February, 1961

While this is the February issue of Chimes, it is being written on New Years Day, and must, of necessity, touch on our plans for 1961.

First, we are delighted that we can make the announcement that we are planning a bigger and better Chimes for the coming months and years.

A little over two years ago, through a mutual friend, we met, by way of the U.S. Mail, a very fine gentleman, who was then travelling in the Orient. As a result of this introduction, we arranged for a monthly article from him. The first several articles were printed before we met the gentleman in person. We are, of course, referring to the writings of Ron Ormond.

The issue in which this editorial appears will present the 26th of the articles from his versatile pen, and here is the good news. "Ron" has agreed to work even more closely with us in the days to come, helping to share some of the physical as well as the mental labor of publishing Chimes.

"Ron" sounds more friendly than Mr. Ormond, and all who meet him will appreciate, as we do, his wonderful spirit of friendliness. In his trip around the world, he searched for the unusual, particularly that relating to the basic interest of Spiritualistic beliefs among many in the Orient. Our readers have learned much about this from the excellent material printed in Chimes and the many wonderful reels of film which he brought back with him, and which have been shown to thousands, during public appearances as well as on Television.

Spiritualist publications cover one of the most important fields in the lives of man, and certainly should be worthy of the efforts of those most capable in the field of Journalism. Hence our joy in this addition to our staff, made doubly important and necessary by the "circulation explosion" in the subscription lists of Chimes during the past year, climaxed by over 1500 individual new and renewal subscriptions during the recent Holiday weeks.

Ron has a background of extensive work in the field of journalism. In fact, during his school days, he "cub-reported" for the San Francisco Call, now the "Call Bulletin". Subsequent to this, he worked on the Tyler Courier-Times in Texas, and later edited the Alexandria Weekly Review in Louisiana. It was while working on this newspaper that he gained recognition as the, then, youngest newspaper editor and publisher in America, since he was, even then, accepted as an accredited member of the N.E.A. (National Editorial Association).

Scripting stories for the studios in Hollywood gained him membership into the Screen Writers Guild, and his promotion to the three-fold duty of Writer-Director-Producer for Lippert Pictures, Inc. In that capacity, he produced and wrote some 67 features and television productions.

Even though his busy schedule kept him constantly at the typewriter, he, nonetheless, found time to pursue his favorite subject—the vast world of investigating and learning more about things of a psychic nature.

Rev. Ron Ormond, our new Chimes Associate

In 1957 he talked a serious matter over with his wife June. June says, "Ron sounded like a man being 'called'." The facts were these; he wanted to go into the Orient and investigate the so-called unknown.

able unknown. Together with his boyhood pal, Ormond McGill. The two adventurers flew out of Lockheed Air Terminal and devoted the better part of a year and a half to investigating and photographing "Into The Strange Unknown." Since their return, thousands of people have viewed the pictures on TV screens and in lecture auditoriums.

Despite his heavy schedule, Ron Ormond has still found time to write a series of books. One of these being a, now accepted, text book for motion picture neophytes, "Your Career In Hollywood." He also co-authored, with Ormond McGill, their popular book, "Into The Strange Unknown," and a series of other books on the subject of hypnotism and hypno-clairvoyance. "Spiritual Healing," another book by Ron, is a popular seller, as it probes deep into aspects of magnetic healing. Others are; "The Power Of Faith," Yogi Therapeutics," which he edited from the writings of a Hindu Sage.

"But, mainly," he will tell you, "my main interest is that of healing, and even though we didn't intend it that way, everything we did in the Orient had something to do with the art of healing."

Ron Ormond's association with Ernest Weltmer, one of the surviving heirs to the fabulous Weltmer School of Drugless Healing in Nevada, Missouri, just about punctuates his life, for together with Ernest Weltmer, Ron has completed one of the famed healers greatest courses. And the subject matter; you guessed it. Spiritual Healing.

Chimes has always been more interested in healing than any one other phase of phenomena. This is one of the new things planned for the new year. We also have the

THE SIXTH SENSE

by Mattie S. Miller

Spiritual sight is often spoken of as the sixth sense. The average individual has only five senses, but all have the sixth sense dormant, which has become developed in many individuals. There was a time when we had only four senses fully developed, but as time marched on, the fifth sense became quite the normal thing. Likewise, as time marches on, the sixth sense will become quite the normal thing. The first evidence of the development of the sixth sense consists in sensitiveness to the vibrations from the planes above the physical.

The sixth sense, or spiritual sight by which we obtain first-hand knowledge of the higher planes, is threefold, namely, etheric sight, astral sight and spiritual sight. Nature spirits belong to the etheric realm, and etheric sight enables one to see through physical objects, observing the etheric forces that work back of the physical forms. Thru clairvoyance and clairaudience, man contacts the astral world — the astral bodies of the entities living therein. Spiritual sight is awareness in the mental world — the world of thought. Here one contacts the archetypes of all existing things. These archetypes are living things, always seen as a whole, and not made up of parts, as in the case of one's physical vision.

Spiritual sight may be positive or negative. The positive side is developed through living a life of purity and service, awakening the pituitary body and pineal gland. Positive spiritual vision is always under the control of the will. The negative path of development is that of mediumship, which has its seat in the solar plexus and sympathetic nervous system, whilst the positive development has its seat in the brain, heart and cerebrospinal nervous system. The negative development is not subject to the will. However, the negative mediumistic stage is one which is frequently passed through by the aspirant on his way to the development of positive spiritual sight.

If spiritual sight and occult powers are developed from any other motive than that of co-operating with evolutionary law, that is, for selfish desire for power, then there is always danger of opening the aura to evil entities or forces. Because of this fact, all the ancient Mystery Schools stressed purification of thoughts and desires as absolutely necessary steps in all spiritual development. Vanity over one's spiritual development is also dangerous, especially so when the student's astral and mental bodies have become sensitized. One must be much more careful than the ordinary person, to avoid sensuality in any form, because it will pull him down far more quickly than it will the unawakened soul.

There is an old saying to the effect that we have eyes and see not and ears and yet hear not. Thus spiritual science insists upon training and deepening the physical senses so that keen observation of details becomes instantaneous. This is necessary in order that there shall not be a conflict between the conscious records in the mind, and the subconscious records in the etheric body, for otherwise inharmony results. All this implies concentration and positive thought. Thought wandering destroys thought power, while concentration builds it up. Positive thought trains the mind to accomplish in whatever field of endeavor we work and brings the work to a successful conclusion. Negative thought opens the aura to undesirable entities and forces, who bring disorder and chaos into our lives.

Most people do not realize that their consciousness is, in reality, functioning in four different vehicles of expression — the physical, the astral, the mental and the spiritual. Systematic repetition of spiritual truths will tend to become imprinted upon the very cells of the body, making a man's character whatever he wishes it to be; and character is destiny. Let us explain this in detail. At death, man merely discards the physical vehicle and then functions in a universe of astral matter with his astral consciousness. The body that he discards, disintegrates, and is used by nature in building up lesser forms of life; animal, plant and mineral life. After awhile, the astral consciousness ceases to function and the molecular substance of the astral body is cast off, which in all religions has always been spoken of as the "Second Death". Man then functions in a vehicle of atomic substance — the higher Mind Plane.

It is in this higher Mind Plane that the ego rests, according to the life lived upon earth. The evil-minded, cruel or inhuman personality has very little rest, comparable to that experienced by the fine and noble souls; in fact, the undeveloped soul is forced into conditions corresponding to its thoughts and actions, giving the soul an opportunity to profit by its karmic reactions and thus ascend the ladder of life. On the other hand, since God has given to man the gift of free will, the soul may further descend the scale of evil and thus eventually become a laggard in its evolutionary progress. The Higher Mind Plane is called the "heaven world" or "Devachan".

Our vehicles of consciousness — spiritual, mental, astral and physical, are closely related with the four planes of matter, for there is interdependence, interpenetration and correlation between spirit, mind, energy and substance in the composite body of man, just as we have muscles, nerves, bone and blood. Man is capable of thinking from the standpoint of sense experience and he is, at the same time, capable of thinking in pure abstractions, namely from the spiritual experience, and it is this latter power that distinguishes man from the animal evolution. The next step in evolutionary progress for man, lies in the field of abstract or spiritual thinking, and that means that there resides within man, the power of rising entirely out of sense experience into the super-human realm of pure consciousness.

What is this faculty within, which man must cultivate? We are told it is pure intuition or, in other words, direct cognition of the Reality of Being. To accomplish this, man must transcend the intellectual mind as well as the emotional self. In other words, man must reflect the Wisdom and Love of God. This is what the development of the sixth sense entails, namely, pure intuition, pure analysis and impersonal love.

The kingdom of God is within, but only those whose spiritual vision is open can see its glories. The gestating of spiritual life is governed by the same laws as the gestating of physical life. Mind is masculine, Soul is feminine. In the soul, ideas take form and are clothed in matter. Regeneration is a renewing process and when complete, the body, like an evergreen tree, will not show signs of decay. Man gives life; woman gives form. Not only does woman give form in a physical sense, but in the emotional, mental and rational planes of activity. All her activities are in the very nature of things formative.

Woman must awaken from her deep sleep, for she must bring forth the new super-humanity — the new archetypal form of the coming Sixth Race. In this sense, every awakened woman is the soul mother of the race of super humanity, that is to come next upon the stage of expression. In order to comprehend this truth, we need to realize the power of creative thought. The unenlightened woman, who is living in her destructive emotions and thoughts, cannot engender a race of super beings. Her life germs are not patterned after the Christ Pattern, "Be ye perfect even as is your Father in Heaven perfect."

It is not difficult to realize the progress that has been made by humanity in the past fifty years or more, and as man advances spiritually, he will create types that are more dynamic and truer to the spiritual archetype — the God-self within. Thus will old karma become entirely dissolved in the powerful love vibration of regenerated souls.

The spiritual soul, leading the regenerate life, sends streams of creative energy through the astral light, magnetizing it with its ideals of Love and Wisdom. This power acts formatively on the astral bodies of all those who are attuned to these higher vibrations. That is how the Great Masters work. Their higher vibrations so act upon the astral bodies of humanity that they actually pass through a process of gestation, bringing about a new birth and greater consciousness.

In all the old religions, the Twice Born Race are called the Seed of the Woman, clothed with the Sun, because woman is the formative principle in life, and for that reason has more power upon the astral plane than man possesses, unless he has strongly developed the Love quality within himself. But, you say, the God conception has been that of a masculine God, who was devoid of the feminine characteristics. Although the religions of the past ten thousand years have given us the idea of a strictly masculine God, God is male-female, the positive and negative pole of the same principle. God, however, is not a personality, but Cosmic Source of all that IS — the Cause of all that IS.

All the religions teach that, through the action of Cosmic Creative Energy (masculine), upon the Formative Cosmic Substance (feminine), there are brought forth seven modes of gestative formation, called the Seven Elohim or Planetary Beings. These Seven are double-sexed, being both motion or energy and also modes of for-

GREAT MEDIUMS of the RECENT PAST

By Rev. Enid S. Smith, Ph. D.

Chapter VIII TWO FAMOUS EDUCATIONAL LEADERS

Known as the female St. Paul of Spiritualism, and contemporaneous with Andrew Jackson Davis, Emma Hardinge Britten, a young woman of London, England, who traveled to New York with a theatrical company, soon became one of the greatest educational propagandists our Movement has ever known.

Two of her outstanding contributions to Spiritualism were: (1) The calling together of representatives of twenty-nine Spiritualist Societies, through which Conferences and the National Federation of Spiritualists was founded and which did much valuable work; and (2) The establishing of a newspaper, Two Worlds, in Manchester, England, of which she was editor for five years, and which has played an important part in building the Spiritualist Movement in England.

Though psychic all her life, it was necessary for her to come to America where she received proofs of the truths of Spiritualism, which made it impossible for her to doubt; then she became a famous medium on both sides of the Atlantic. She was responsible, as a powerful medium, for one of the best attested and sensational cases in the early history of the movement, an instance that was communicated to her, by spirit, to the effect that the mail steamer "Pacific" had gone down in mid-Atlantic with all souls on it. She was threatened with prosecution by the owners of the boat for repeating what the spirit of one of the crew had told her. The information, however, proved to be true and the vessel was never heard from again.

The books of Emma Hardinge Britten were educationally important. Her Modern American Spiritualism and her Nineteenth Century Miracles will always be a most valuable record of early days, showing times when there were instances of the most absurd scientific intolerance, which has always been as violent and unreasonable as that of the Medieval Church. British science, and that, indeed, of the whole world, has also shown the same intolerance and want of elasticity which marked those early days in America. She, herself, played a part in them. She tells us that Judge Edmunds was pointed out in the streets as a

"crazy Spiritualist." Wealthy merchants were compelled to assert their claims to be considered sane. Professional men and tradesmen were reduced to ruin by relentless persecution. Many of the houses where circles or seances were held were surrounded by crowds that yelled and disturbed the meetings. Many cast stones into the rooms and broke windows, trying to molest the investigators in their "waking of the dead," as the newspapers explained. Mrs. Britten also gives an idea of the pressure upon the Fox girls at this time. She talks of "pausing on the first floor to hear poor patient Katie Fox, in the midst of a capitious, cynical, grumbling crowd of investigators, repeating, hour after hour, the letters of the alphabet, while the no less poor, patient spirits rapped out names, ages, dates to suit all comers."

She threw herself, with her enthusiastic temperament, into the young Movement, and left a mark upon it which is still visible. She was an ideal propagandist, as she seemed to combine every gift. She was a strong medium, an orator, a writer, a well-balanced thinker, and a hardy traveler. Year after year, she transversed the length and breadth of the United States, proclaiming the new doctrine amid much opposition. With her husband, she went as a missionary of Spiritualism to Australia and New Zealand, and stayed there for several years, founding various churches, which were still going strong, forty years after their founding. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle said, after he had visited them.

She was the lady of the motto, "Light, more light." She was also famous for her silver-tongued lectures. It will be remembered that her subjects were chosen by a committee appointed by the audience, the same as in the case of Cora Scott. The committee was usually composed of educators, scientists, philosophers, ministers, and she did not know until she stood upon the platform what her subject would be, but her collaborators in spirit were always equal to the occasion, and brilliantly educated the crowd. The few following words are an example of the beauty of her expression:

"Ask whether your Almighty Father has bestowed upon you the thousand rainbow hues of different minds, different intellects, different faculties, different energies, different propensities, only to pass away the dull, vast routine of finality. What are you fit for? What you love best; where your attractions are centered, will determine the state of your hereafter; these will be a part of the Heaven or Hades in which you dwell."

In outlining the history of religion through the ages, culminating in the founding of Modern Spiritualism, which she described as the New Reformation, she told of the council of immortal beings who came to earth to establish the Church of Divine Humanity, representing Spiritualism, in which all nations would worship and acknowledge the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. The Seven Principles of Spiritualism, which later were adopted by the Spiritualists' National Union, came through her mediumship, which were the Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man, Communion of Spirits and Ministry of Angels, the Continuous existence of the human Soul, Personal Responsibility, Compensation and Retribution hereafter for all, the good and evil deeds done on earth, and Eternal Progress open to every soul.

When she began her public trance lectures she was very timid. General Bullard was sent to "compel" her to continue her work. Then Benjamin Franklin manifested and spoke both to the General and to Emma herself, saying that her future had been providentially ordered—trance, and every step of her career had been marked out by spirit. Soon the words spoken through her lips were fearless: "Prove the conditions of life hereafter," she said, "as growing out of the conduct here—tell your governments and they will not dare to abuse their powers over the governed. Prove our truths to the legislatures of the land, and they will not dare to make unjust laws or strive for selfish purposes, whilst those committed to their charge are oppressed and ruined." She insisted on the world-wide propaganda started by the spirits of peace among the nations, of doing away with war and slaughter, and improvement of conditions for the prosperity of the people.

Just the other day, she came to the writer with a message to be given to the world, saying, among many other things, "Yes, I lived and worked at the same time and place as Andrew Jackson Davis. I demonstrated many of the gifts of the spirit and served fully and freely. Spirit was unlimited to express through me to bring to people a greater understanding of this truth and its meaning. We saw many lives changed through the demonstrations. But, this is what I would now say to the world, and I am aware that many are listening: My brother, my sister, do not look behind for what has gone, but, rather look to the dawn of the new day meant for you. Upon your shoulders rests the responsibility of what you do. Gather it all up, a little here and a little there, and do what you can with the sixty seconds in each minute of each hour. Do not waste time in idle prattle, but give your time intelligently, so that you may prosper spiritually and grow in character, in emotional strength, and in the realization that you have lived a full day and have not slighted anyone, but have brought something of value to those who have crossed your pathway. Live your life so that each day it will be an example. This good living will bring joy to the end of your days. It is well, also, that you pay heed to the young folks, for they are the future rulers. Let us leave behind seeds of graciousness which we have sown for the young folks to absorb. Thank you for bringing me here. My blessings upon you and your work." Then she was gone—this lady of "Light, more light."

Another educational medium was Andrew Jackson Davis, Prophet of the New Revelation, Seer of Poughkeepsie, the forerunner of psychosomatic medicine, the founder of the Spiritualist Progressive Lyceum,

Necessity Is Your Friend

by Alberta Hilands

"Tis the burdens you help another bear
That makes your own seem light,
'Tis the dangers seen for another's feet
That shows you the Path to Right.
'Tis the good you do each passing day
With a heart sincere and true—
For giving the world your very best,
Its best will come back to you."

—Dennison

It is unfair to make life too easy for anyone, for necessity is often the only prod that will bring out their hidden strength and ability. If you fail to pay attention when opportunity knocks at your door, you will be compelled to do so when necessity singles you out.

Did it ever occur to you that you are an absolute necessity in the scheme of things? That your flunking not only causes discomfort to yourself, but that it disturbs the vibrations that go far beyond you? To produce, it is necessary that even the most minute part of a mechanism must work perfectly, and no matter what your station in life may be, you are a necessary part of the One Great Whole. If this was not true, you would not be here.

Anything a man really wants, he can have, if he hammers persistently at the door behind which it is guarded. Persistency is one of the most essential keys to success. True Success can never be attained or enjoyed selfishly, for it is built upon consideration for others. Every thought, word and act is a magnet that draws to it the power of a like quality. When you help others, or even send them encouraging thoughts, their success reflects a similar quality into your own affairs. The good you do puts the Universe in your debt.

"Talk less and think more." What is usually termed "idle chatter" is often pregnant with possibilities, and these words must, sometime, be accounted for. Even a sound has vibration and value. Every effect is preceded by a cause, and to the creator of conditions, belongs the harvest. An expressed idea may be a long time in returning to its source, but its return is none-the-less sure, for not even a vibration is ever lost. Sometimes payday is so long delayed that it is not recognized, and when it does come, and the one who has to pay feels greatly abused because of the tax with which he is burdened. He did not think of this possibility when he ignorantly and recklessly launched his "order" on the sea of life.

"Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss." What does it mean to ask amiss? Do we ask for the wrong things, or do we ask in the wrong way? As we are all the children and expressions of Divine Love, which seems the most reasonable?

All things belong to the conscious child of Omnipotence, so it must be that we have asked in the wrong manner, when we fail to receive what we desire. We fail to realize that we are already one with the things we have been wanting. If we do realize our oneness with them, this precludes any asking for them — no one begs for the things he has already received. Until we do have this realization, we are not ready to receive.

Ordering from Universal Mind is much like ordering anything else. Suppose you decide you are going to try to raise roses. You must first decide upon the kind of a rose you would like to have, and you fix the picture of it firmly in your mind. Then you comply with the requirements demanded by the firm from which you purchase it — sending your check with the order. You do not write to them several times a day, asking if they intend to send it, or tell them you hope they will. They would think you were crazy if you did, so you just feel sure it will come as soon as they can fill the order. Then you prepare the place where you intend to plant it, putting in the best soil and proper fertilizer, and even though the roses are delayed, you know the firm is reliable, so you know you will receive. If we can have as much faith in Universal Mind as you have in the nursery firm, we would not ask amiss so often.

There are many ways in which we limit ourselves — fear, doubt and worry form dense clouds between us and an understanding of the best use of our creative power, and as long as our desires are smothered by these inhibitions, we can never fully realize them. These negative emotions are the enemies of confidence and enthusiasm — both necessary adjuncts of success. We must reach the place where we, too, will say, "Even though He slay me, yet will I trust Him." We need not be afraid to reach this place, for Good cannot harm anyone — it is fear that causes grief and suffering, and that is what we must get rid of. Is it not strange how we cling to the thing that causes us so much agony of mind? Perhaps we think that our fears will eventually guide us to a solution, but how can good possibly come out of anything as destructive as fear? Fear can only produce more fear — it is not its nature to help.

If lack is our problem, might it not be due to the fact that we have not been good stewards with what we already have? I have heard many people bemoaning the high cost of food and yet they would not think of planting a garden, wherein they could have raised a goodly portion of the best kind of food.

Sometimes we get too close to things to see their best qualities,

To-Day Is Ours

by V. May Cottrell

To-day is ours to make or mar, according to our use or abuse of its precious hours. Yesterday may have been full of joy and light-hearted gaiety, or spoilt by sadness, disappointment and loss. To-morrow may appear bright with promise of good things to come, or dark with dread forebodings of disaster, consequent upon our own attitude of mind towards it. But to-day is here — ours to do with as we will, no matter what our circumstances in life may be. For to-day — and every day as it dawns for us — is a rare jewel which we should prize at its true worth and use wisely in our own best interests and for the betterment of humanity at large.

We are all too much inclined to squander the precious moments of to-day with futile regrets for the past or vague fears about the future. It is only as we grow older, however, that we fully realize the deprivations and lost opportunities that are directly attributable to this negative attitude of mind towards life. The welter of disquieting world news, both true and false, with which our minds are continually bombarded now-a-days, keeps millions of us in a state of acute mental strain and severe nervous tension, thus robbing us of our birth-right of health, happiness and good cheer. As citizens of the world, we cannot ignore grave happenings possessing world-wide implications, or fail to realize their evil potentialities. But we can refuse to allow ourselves to become obsessed by the dread possibilities of disaster that they tend to evoke in our minds.

When we weakly submit to the harsh dominance of fear, we voluntarily surrender ourselves to the destructive power of a cruel tyrant who knows no mercy and who permits no other allegiance. If we could all learn to live only one day at a time, and live it to the fullness of our individual capacities, much of the stress and strain of living would disappear from human ken. This changed attitude of mind towards life would not preclude the exercise of fore-thought and definite planning for the future, but it would banish those useless worries and futile regrets that now harass the minds and deplete the bodies of so many of us.

Now is the time to live — to-day is our opportunity for individual advancement and self-improvement. The past has ended for us and the future has not yet arrived, consequently, we have only the present in which to enlarge our mental horizon, increase our spiritual perceptions, and bring into being those things which we desire and need.

My Tussle With A Poltergeist

by Peter Ballbusch

I had been occupied with psychic research for several years and lectured for the Edgar Cayce groups when I met Harvey Dunn, a television actor. Since I was also a motion picture man, Harvey felt that we spoke the same language, and as we were both interested in psychic phenomena, we became acquainted and exchanged our views over a cup of coffee now and then.

One evening, shortly before midnight, our telephone rang. It was Harvey, who asked me, "Peter, can you lay a ghost?"

"Lay a ghost?" I exclaimed, "What do you mean?"

"You might say banish one," replied Harvey, "This is a very rambunctious ghost. Will you come with me and try helping my friends to a decent night's sleep?"

I thought it over and replied, "I have never witnessed an exorcism and would not know what to do with a 'Poltergeist,' but I will come to watch the fun. I will pick you up."

Ten minutes later, I picked Harvey up in front of his hotel. He carried a Bible in one hand and a candle in the other, and said, "I have read up on exorcism. We need the Holy book and a candle." I replied, "Hop in, now where do we go?"

Harvey's friends lived in an apartment. When we were ushered in by a lanky young man, we found his friend in bed with a handkerchief wrapped around his head. He moaned, and every now and then he cried, "Ouch!" The young woman, who sat on the edge of his bed, said soothingly, "Relax, Jerry, it takes a few minutes for that tooth remedy to work." The man turned to her and cried indignantly, "It's not the tooth, that damned thing is pulling hair out of my head."

The young man who had led us into the room, addressed Harvey and said, "Poor Jerry, that spook won't leave him alone." Again the man in bed cried, "Ouch!" and slapped his head. Harvey turned to him and said, "Be patient, Jerry, we will soon be rid of that ghost." I walked up to the bed, introduced myself and said, "You can cure a toothache by mental concentration, in sending the blood accumulating there to another part of the body. Does it hurt badly?" He looked at me through swollen eyelids and mumbled, "Some, but that spook will not let me sleep, it keeps pulling my hair out."

I smiled unbelievably and replied, "But that is impossible. A spirit has no corporal means to do such a thing." The young woman sitting on the bed turned to me and said, "But it's doing it. Come close and watch." I bent close and watched an area she indicated. The silken handkerchief was wrapped solidly around his head and the place the young woman had indicated had at least two layers of cloth. To my amazement, one single hair began to pierce the handkerchief as if it was a piece of wire and not a pliable strand of hair. It came straight through and then it was suddenly whisked away and vanished. The man in bed cried, "Ouch," and slapped his head, and the young woman turned and said, triumphantly, "See what I mean?"

I had seen it all right, but I still could not believe my eyes.

Harvey was arranging his Bible and a picture of the Christ on a small table. I called to him, "Harvey, come and watch this, it is fantastic!" Harvey came to the bed, and together we watched as another single hair came straight up through the handkerchief and vanished. Harvey murmured, "Incredible," and turning to the young woman, he said, "We will soon be rid of this troublemaker."

Walking back to the little table, he opened the Bible to a specific verse and lit the candle in an intricate ritual. Then, picking up the lighted candle, he crossed the room in the four directions of the compass and began an incantation in an impressive and ever growing singsong.

What happened then was just as incredible as the hair being pulled out of Jerry's head. As Harvey walked and chanted, the pictures on the wall began to move. First they swished back and forth, then, as the incantation grew in volume and speed, the pictures began to swing around on their nails in complete circles. This phenomena unnerved Harvey to such an extent that he stopped, mopped his brow and said, "I give up! That is one ghost which can not be banished."

"Yes, he is a dilly," said the dark young man straddling a chair. "Night before last, he threw my hat up to the ceiling and had it swinging from the chandelier, and last night he took Jerry's shorts, carried them in to the bathroom and threw them in the bowl."

"That is going too far," said Harvey, "A ghost can not move solid objects."

"Well, this one did," replied the young man, "And what about the pictures on the wall? They are solid, are they not?" That stumped Harvey.

Jerry moaned and said, "Chatter, chatter, but no one does anything about it. This spook is driving me crazy. That is the fourth night that I did not get a wink of sleep. I will lose my job if this goes on. What about it, Harvey?"

Harvey shook his head and replied, "I am sorry, but that is the most stubborn ghost I have ever encountered. He just will not leave." The young woman turned to him and said, "Who says it is a he? It could just as well be a she, clamoring to get attention. The gals love to cry on Jerry's shoulder."

This set me thinking and I asked, "Jerry, has some one died recently whom you know?"

"My mother, about two years ago," replied Jerry, slapping his head and crying, "Now stop that!" I mused about this and objected, "It is not likely that your mother would pull hair out of your head, it must be some one else who died much more recently." Jerry shook his head and said, "No one I know." The young woman frowned in concentration, then her face lit up and she cried, "I bet it is Gertrude, the gal who committed suicide a couple of weeks ago. You knew her, Jerry."

Yes, Jerry had known her. He explained that Gertrude had been a waitress in a restaurant and had married the bartender, but it was not a happy marriage. Joe, the bartender, was a jolly fellow whom the women customers loved. This drove Gertrude into a jealous frenzy. She quarrelled with Joe and he told her to fly a kite. When she was despondent, she came to cry on Jerry's shoulder, and he told her not to be so insanely jealous, that everyone liked Joe, and Jerry said he had never seen him making a pass at another woman. "Sure, because I am there," cried Gertrude, "but every Sunday morning he goes out when I am still asleep. I bet he sees them then." Jerry replied, "I know he plays cards with the boys." He tried to reason with Gertrude, but jealousy will never listen to reason. "And boy, was she jealous!" concluded Jerry.

At this moment, his bed began to quiver as if some one was trying to shake it, but not being able to shake the bed with two persons on it, the spirit turned again to the pictures on the wall and began to swish one around over Jerry's head. He looked up and said, "Sure, you were insanely jealous, and if it is you that is causing all the trouble, for heaven's sake leave us alone!"

The picture fell back as if some one had dropped it and in the ensuing silence one could almost feel the hurt of the sulking spirit.

I felt sorry for the suicide and said, "Gertrude, I am sure that Jerry would like to help you if he could only see you and talk to you, but he is not developed psychically and so he can neither see you, nor can he hear a single thing you are trying to tell him. But there is a way out. I have a woman friend who can both see and hear spirit beings like you. You and Jerry should go there the same day at the same time. You can tell my woman friend what bothers you, and she will tell Jerry what it is you want him to know. If you understand, Gertrude, move the picture above Jerry back and forth." Immediately the picture began to swish sideways and Jerry said, "All right, it is a date. Where does that psychic friend of yours live?"

I gave Jerry the address and the phone number and said, "Now Gertrude, it is up to you and Jerry to make an appointment and keep it. Will you do that?" Swish, swish, went the picture above Jerry's head, and we all knew that Gertrude had understood and was willing to cooperate.

On the way home, Harvey said to me, "How on earth did you guess that it was a deceased friend of Jerry's who was causing all the trouble?" I replied, "My psychic friend had told me about a similar

RON ORMOND REPORTS

The audience seemed fascinated with the three women who sat on the dimly lighted stage. Moments before, they had watched me put the three volunteers into a state of hypno-clairvoyance. With the exception of one individual, the other two ladies had not been conditioned in any fashion. Now, all three were in the twilight zone of hypno-clairvoyance, an art that has been used but slightly during the last fifty years — and yet during the early years of hypnotism, hypno-clairvoyance was one of the chief factors of developing mediums.

The soft Oriental music helped put the ladies into their passive state as I gave directions:

"You are now into a highly developed state of consciousness," I intoned. "Everything else is quiet and peaceful, and in just a few moments I am going to ask you to predict some event that is going to happen in the future."

I was directing my comments to Dr. Evelyn Black, a Chiropractor by profession, a woman, while highly interested in things of a psychic nature, had never been considered mediumistic.

"Evelyn," I asked, "can you hear my voice?"

"Yes," Very softly.

"Can you see anything of the future that you want to reveal to the ladies and gentlemen in the audience?"

"It's horrible," she exclaimed hoarsely.

"What's horrible, Evelyn?"

"The airplane accident — I see two planes colliding. One is a jet-people are screaming and firemen are trying to put out the fire in the buildings."

"Buildings, what buildings?" I inquired, "I thought you said it was a plane accident."

"It is, but one of the planes fell into the city."

"What city?"

"I can't tell — I just know that it's in the east."

"New York City?"

"No, not New York City," she faltered slightly — "but it's near New York City."

"What else do you see, Evelyn?"

"I see another accident and another ship is going to crash, but this time it's overseas."

"Do you know where?"

"I hear an accent — it's kind of guttural."

"But you don't recognize the city?"

"No, I don't."

"When is this going to take place, Evelyn?"

"Within the near future — within three months, or perhaps three weeks."

"Relax now — just relax and go into a sound, wonderful sleep and I will return in a few moments and awaken you."

Dr. Black's head slumped down onto her chest.

Our other subject was Mrs. Grace Olsen — a highly attuned and organized person. I had worked with Mrs. Olsen once before. Unlike Dr. Black, we attempted something utterly different, that of psychic-diagnosis. A form of prediction, but one pertinent to disease.

Edgar Cayce was noted for his work in this field, and psychic-diagnosis is an old and honorable art. In the Orient today, it is still considered one of the surest methods of discovering what ails the patient, so to speak. Guruni Varamai, Siam's great woman teacher, is noted for diagnosis and treatments afterwards. Her percentage of cures average around 80%.

Our other experiment was with a woman I had never seen before. We experimented with her in the fascinating field of telepathy. Her percentage of accuracy was approximately 75%.

In 1503, a French astrologer, who was born at St. Remi in Provence, was destined to shock the world with the accuracy of his predictions. His name, Michel de Notredame. In 1555, he published a book of rhymed prophecies under the title of Centuries, which secured him the notice of Catherine de' Medici. The fulfillment of his predictions increased his influence, and Charles IX named him physician in ordinary.

History has come to know this great prophet as Nostradamus. And history has also revealed that only when Nostradamus was in a state of passivity, did he ever make predictions. History also gives us a clue that in his early years as a student, the prophet worked with an unnamed person who helped put him into his state of "quiet", and even though hypno-clairvoyance was then unknown, as such,

it is quite conceivable that it was this type of conditioning that developed his highly attuned psychic power.

By the same token, I should mention an important factor pertinent to hypnotism. Many psychically inclined individuals are of the erroneous impression that a hypnotist can control another's mind. Nothing could be further from the truth, for certainly an organization with the boundless prestige of the A.M.A. (American Medical Association) would not have accepted hypnotism as a legitimate healing art, if it did have such powers.

Aldous Huxley mentioned in Life Magazine that within a few years every city and village in North America may have its medical or dental hypnotist.

In that statement, I concur 100%. But, I also mention that individuals like Dr. Mesmer, one of the great healers of Europe, or other subsequent healers, who have used hypnosis to induce a state of passivity in which to create the desired healing attitude should not be denied.

One of the greatest Spiritual Healers living today is Ernest Weltmer, son of Professor Sydney Weltmer, now passed over, who started his career as one who did enumerable experiments in hypno-clairvoyance. As a matter of fact, it was when his youngest son was in a state of hypno-clairvoyance that he was told how to perform his first actual cure.

Professor Weltmer was asked to revive a Mrs. Grimes, who was in a state of coma, so that she might awaken long enough to say goodbye to her family. When Weltmer was told that he could and would revive Mrs. Grimes, but that by properly placing his hands in a specific area of her body and saying a certain soothing affirmation, Mrs. Grimes would recover, he (Weltmer) was doubtful. But, when he carried out the orders of his young son, and saw the results, for Mrs. Grimes was totally and completely made well, Weltmer had no other alternative but to become a healer.

I point this out because of the erroneous impression that many make: "No one is ever going to hypnotize me," they say adamantly, "for if they do, they might make me commit murder."

If it is morally against the principle of the subject to commit murder, no hypnotist in the world can order anyone to do so. In actuality, that kind of thinking belongs to the negative thinkers. Not positive thinkers. All a psychic has to do is to recall that hypnotism was discovered by psychics and that thousands of mediums have been developed by this method. But again, it's the old story of the alchemist of yesteryear becoming the chemist of this year. Hypnotism was founded and nurtured by metaphysically inclined people, but today, Science has claimed it as its very own.

Just recall, Dr. Mesmer was practically crucified by his own profession, simply because he stated that through his method of creating what he called "animal magnetism," he could heal.

Today, any doctor will tell you that the art of hypnotism will remove these psychogenic symptoms: Palpitation of the heart, insomnia, overweight problems, head noises, poor memory, nervousness, hypertension, phobias, alcoholism, tobacco, narcotic addiction and other difficulties far too numerous to mention in this column.

And yet, but yesterday, doctors told you that hypnotism could not do these things.

True, even today, they will not admit that hypnotism has a big brother called hypno-clairvoyance, but just as it took them over 200 years to admit hypnotism as a healing art, we shall see the day when hypno-clairvoyance will again be accepted by thousands, perhaps millions of people.

In the Orient, it is this state of reverie (hypno-clairvoyance) that helps so greatly to awaken the sleeping Kundalini. And, while I run the risk of being criticized by some readers, self-hypnosis can help you attain almost anything you desire. But, in making that statement, I likewise recognize that there are also other routes to a higher state of consciousness.

Appreciation of the beautiful would be a moral duty if it were not so natural an instinct. In our busy life and our earnest pursuit of practical goals, we may well consider whether we are allowing to our soul that margin of leisure required for its enrichment through the ministries of nature and of art.

Psychic Experiences of "We, The People"

SHE KNEW!

Much has been written about the precognition of coming events. Such a case happened recently in Los Angeles, California, when the wife of a city policeman felt an overpowering sense of doom, which seemed to foretell the death of her husband in the line of duty.

Mrs. Mary Jane Kent, the wife, tried to dissuade her husband from going on duty when she called him at three o'clock in the afternoon, but he did not take the warning seriously. Four hours later, he lay dying of a bullet wound, received in a gun battle between himself and a bandit whom he had found robbing a supply store.

Too often, we ignore such warnings, to our own later discomfort! The more we learn to obey these inner guidances, the better for ourselves and others. Each time we heed the warning, we grow more sensitive and are better able to receive them correctly.

THE RING WAS STILL THERE by Mrs. Billy Ryberg

One day, I was returning home from Church and stopped at a service station to wash my hands in the rest room. I slipped off my ring, which is one of the order to which I belong, and laid it on the wash bowl, thinking no more about it. Then I thought of a friend nearby at a rest home, and decided to visit her before returning home. I was there about an hour, when, all of a sudden, I looked at my hand and realized that the ring was not there.

I hurried the two blocks to the service station, which seemed miles away just then, and my heart was in my throat as I entered the rest room to look for my ring. But, there it was, just where I had left it!

When I came out, and told the attendant what had happened, he said, "Lady, you sure are lucky. There have been at least twelve people in the room since you were there before!"

The only thing I can figure why the ring was not taken, was because the spirit loved ones blinded the people who came into the room, or, in other words, put some kind of spirit protection around the ring, which prevented them from seeing it.

THE INDIAN WOKE ME by Karl Stubbs

A number of years ago, I was sitting in my room reading, when I began to be very drowsy, and would have dropped off to sleep had not an Indian spirit, with whom I was familiar, kept me awake. He caused me to get up and walk about the room, and in doing so, I noticed that the rubber hose connecting the gas outlet and the heating stove had broken, allowing the gas to fill the room.

Had I gone to sleep in the chair, a gas explosion would most certainly have occurred, likely blowing me out into the street and into eternity!

THE AIR FLIGHT by Mrs. Ada M. Rogers

In 1950, I went on my first airplane flight, leaving Burbank, California, for Chicago, Illinois. Between the hours of two and four in the morning, we encountered a severe hail and wind storm, and the plane was tossed about like a toy balloon. Most of the passengers were ill, but fortunately, I was not, and actually enjoyed the experience.

Suddenly, the plane made a terrific lurch, and I felt my stomach turn over. I cried out in prayer to the Father, asking for protection. Immediately, I seemed to see the Master walking down the aisle. My Indian guide and sister followed, and all went to the pilot's cabin. The plane ceased to toss, and I heard a voice saying, "Your pilot has been taken ill, and when we land, he will be taken to the hospital."

When we landed at Chicago, I had to hurry to make connection with another plane, so did not learn about his condition. But the Wednesday night before the flight, at a Church seance class, my band of Indians manifested and said they were going with me. I know they did, for I was never afraid.

THE BLONDE GHOST

In England, the family of Ed Westwood claims that a blonde ghost chases himself and his five grown sons. At the time, the Westwoods were living in an old house, which had previously been a Tavern. But, after the many incidents in which the blonde ghost bothered them persistently, they left for other quarters, a new government housing project, where they felt sure that no proper ghost would follow.

Such was not the case, for the ghost apparently moved with them, and her unwelcome attentions rapidly unnerved the entire family.

The ghost lies low until the family is asleep, then awakens them, setting off alarm bells, rocking beds and otherwise cavorting around. Two members lost their jobs because of lack of sleep.

Experts in the supernatural came to investigate, and one of them subsequently said, "the ghost apparently wears lipstick and other makeup!" One wonders!

STRANGE IMPRESSIONS by Violet Faulkner

When I was in my teens, my elder sister and I went on a vacation to the seashore. One evening, we went to an entertainment in the park. When we had taken our seats, I opened my handbag, in order to pay for the program. The small purse had been originally fastened to the handbag, but had come loose, and it was gone!

At first, I felt rather upset and thought we might have to write home for money, as all we had taken with us for our holiday was in that purse. But, I said to sister, "I expect the program boy has found it." And when we asked him, sure enough, this had happened, and the money was returned safely to us.

Another time is an instance of what happened when I did not follow a "hunch." I was living in a house, during the last War, where the landlady was a kleptomaniac, and in the habit of taking things. I had missed some money and other things from my room, and felt sure that I knew who had taken them.

One day, when I was in the hallway, I saw a letter addressed to another lodger, lying on the hall table. I had a strong impulse to pick the letter up and give it to the lodger, but failed to do so. However, I did remember the postmark on the letter.

Later on, I asked the lodger whether she had received her letter. She replied that she had not, whereupon I was able to tell from what city it had come, and she knew immediately from whom it had come. Later, letters back and forth cleared up the matter.

One day, I was standing waiting for a bus. A friend was with me, and for some strange reason, I suddenly knew what she was going to say, word for word. This was, "Do you know, Vi, I haven't eaten a thing all day." It was then ten p.m.

Why these "hunches" come to me, I have never known. Obeying them seems to be helpful, and I feel that some kindly disposed spirit is sending them thru.

THE LOST BALL OF THREAD by Nora E. Walters

A few days before Christmas, I was very busy getting presents ready, among which were a half dozen crocheted doilies. I have a basket of thread, all sorted out and ready for my work, in which are several large, 600 yard, spools of many colors.

On this night, I sat down, picked up the basket and prepared to work on a doiley that was completed, except for a green border. I looked in the basket again and again, as did my husband, but no green spool of thread was to be found.

We even searched the room, but found nothing. So decided that the following day, being Saturday, we would clean the room and move all the furniture, and so likely discover the spool of green thread. Well, we did search, and we moved every piece of furniture in the room, but found no ball of green thread! So, as evening came on, my husband said he would go to the store and purchase another, so that the doiley might be finished.

Just as he was ready to leave, I picked up the basket, and to our complete surprise, there lay the ball of green thread! How it got there, we do not know, unless our spirit friends were playing tricks with us!

WHAT GOD CAN DO by Mrs. Evelyn S. Kerr

My son and his wife were saved by what seems a miracle. It happened this way: I was at work at the Minneapolis General Hospital, when all at once I felt the shadow of Angel Wings over me, and sensed that these dear ones, then on their way home from Texas, were in terrible danger.

So I put my hands out right over my desk and said out loud, "Dear God, these two children are yours. You take care of them."

Several hours later, I got the news that there had been an accident, which caused nine hundred dollars worth of damage to their car, and completely demolished the other car involved. Yet, neither the lady driving the other car, which had gone out of control, or my own two dear ones were hurt, only shaken up. God can accomplish so much if we just allow ourselves to be a channel thru which He can work.

READERS NOTE!

If you like this feature, sit right down and write out your own psychic experiences. We cannot print what we do not get! And, if you promise yourself to send them in "someday," they rarely get sent. So, do it now! We cannot promise to use them all, but the authors of those that are used, will receive five free copies of the issue in which they appear. None will be returned, and we cannot enter into correspondence about them, please!

Conclusion

I have often told you that I live in the third sphere, yet have a house in the fifth. I work somewhere in the borderland, and try to be useful in any sphere where I am sent to serve. If I should have to return to earth to live, after all the glory that has opened to my vision here, I am afraid it would seem a hell to me. If I had never known the third-sphere conditions, it would be different. Hells here are when we are put back into lower conditions after having tested the bliss, comfort and quiet of higher spheres. Heaven is the universe. All the stars, far and near, all the planets, far and near, are spheres, or worlds. Some are way out of sight of earth. These are the fifth spheres, or stars. Some are in sight, such as Aldebaran, the red star; and Alcyone, the great bright one. The planets are all earths, just as this one is, and are what we call the borderland.

Very few souls that rise are angels; they are simply the soul bodies, renewed. An angel is one who has conquered every sinful thought, has no bad habit, and would willingly give away a nice cloak to a cold child. Anybody who can live on earth, doing just what Christ did, with a mind all for others, will come thru as an angel and rise to the very highest part of the heavens. There are stars and more stars as high or as wide as one can go.

The guides here know every world, just as you know the towns on a map, and to cross space is never as dangerous to them as to cross the Pacific Ocean in a man made ship.

All over the sky there are great suns, with their family of planets. You, on earth, can see some of the planets of the borderland, where most people come when they leave their physical bodies and cross over the air seas. These suns are the third degrees, but there are other suns and planets far beyond your sight, yet they are part of the heavens all the same. There is a correspondence between some of these, but not all.

My teacher says that those who believe they will be pardoned for every sin if only they belong to a certain sect or Church, have taken the literal translation of some of the Bible teachings, but not their real meaning. Immortality is gained only through personal effort and the throwing off of things not needed by the true soul. And this takes constant watchfulness and persistent effort always. That is why God said, "Vengeance is Mine," for He tells about the darkness being the opposite of light, tho we cannot have one without the other, and of how we must learn to make our way through both, toward our real goal of attainment.

And now to another subject dear to my heart. I now can change the juices of plants into forms for healing, and can use every part of a plant, root, stem, bud and incense. I have to use a microscope to learn about the cells of the herbs and what color they give forth, and have thousands of small vials full of drops and strange essences all ready at a moment's notice.

Too, we have now established a pneumatic air tube from the higher studio to the lower one, so small packages can be sent without employing a messenger spirit. Strange that amid so much that is healing, I still cannot make myself robust enough to travel from star to star. My teacher says it is my fear, but I am not sure this is correct and feel that, perhaps, it is a feeling of awe at all these worlds around me.

We have some new juices and new currents of force to introduce into the earth to combat some of the new diseases which are coming. In every so many years the whole race changes, and thus the body gets a different kind of microbe, which appears to be a wider extension of what is called disease. It is because the blood of the newer race casts out the old and takes up the new, and so the change creates a new disease.

This has been a happy day, and I always feel this when I come near to earth to write. I have strength enough for these worlds of spirit, but to come to earth, one has to get a new body which knows all that the old body did, yet which can bear the coarse earth vibrations in order to see, smell and sense, just as we did when in the other body. It is what is called descent and condensation. Knowing something about chemical compounds, I found this an easier process to accomplish than some do.

I remember that when I was on earth, I scoffed at the idea of spirit return, but no one was more happy than I to find a way back to earth. Well, the past is behind us now, and we will build for the future! I can see now that we must not pin ourselves to one world alone, and that everything will come out all right in the end, notwithstanding bad breaks, separations, losses, and great sorrows, I think we do not ourselves know which way is best to bring everything out right at the end, and that some one greater than we are, does. The very effort of gaining power, thru serving others, makes the soul able to have more and more beauty . . . and more and more able to enjoy the glories of the higher spheres.

A great magnetic push is now coming out over all the lands of earth, and as man feels the thrill of it, he will begin to live more in the harmonious plan, and become a deeper part of it. One world is no better than another, only in condition, and a spirit not in accord with that particular sphere finds that he cannot breath or live in it's atmosphere. For instance, to live in the sixth sphere, one must have cast off all worry, self pride and ignorance of the law, and must understand miracles, which are really a high law working down into a lower world. Very few can throw off the self, and their great consideration for themselves. I could not yet do it, and so could not breathe for a minute in the sixth world. So those on the upward road must try to drop all worry, and concentrate on their efforts to rise above self, for such efforts are the very thing whereby they may attain their goals.

When the celestials allow a sorrow to come, they have some future good at heart. They plan for the whole volume, not just for one chapter, whereas mortals plan for only one chapter and hope it will come out as they desire. This should be of comfort to those who feel that life is all cruel. For the great plan works in an orderly

SOUL EVOLVEMENT

A former official of one of the largest Spiritualist organizations in America, after a number of years of conflict, resigned a short time ago from all affiliation with Spiritualism. He wrote to a friend, in part, as follows:

"I am convinced that Spiritualism is, definitely, not the path to soul evolution. I found that the majority of its activities are of negative nature, and that it ultimately destroys its adherents. With true soul evolution, you will find yourself more and more pulling away from the precepts and practices of modern Spiritualism."

In the history of honest controversy among sincere persons, there is usually some degree of truth in all arguments; but, as I have often said, no gold mine of religion or philosophy in this mortal world will assay 100 percent pure gold of truth. Ore residue must be discarded before we refine the gold. And, as St. John warned us, we must test spirits to make sure they are of God. Too many Spiritualists fail to do this, but accept every spirit message received, and therefore can be negatively guided and sometimes controlled.

In my forty years of experience with spirit phenomena, I have found both high and low among Spiritualists; but the percentage of those with negative qualities, is not more than that found in any religious or philosophic affiliation, unless it be the Salvation Army, which ranks so high in human kindness and service. Therefore, I feel that soul evolution is still an individual thing, and can be found in any sincere religious or philosophic affiliation that seeks truth thru righteous spirit development.

Spiritualism in principle, not judged by the lowest in it but by the higher — is a true path to God and soul evolution. Those who stray into byways and swamps (and they may be numerous), do not carry the banner. But those who stay on the solid highway, walking proudly, with high spirit guides, just as Christ demonstrated with Moses and Elijah — represent soul evolution to the greatest extent — for they have found the Spirit Comforter which the Master Spiritualist promised all those who are for righteous spirit truth — not against it . . . and who live by it.

(Ed Bodin replies to a healer who wrote that many people do not follow through and cooperate with the healer when treatments are slow).

Right now I am concentrating on little tots who can not tell doctor or healer what ails them, yet who have full faith. Maybe some of the adults do not deserve the healing force, but Christ said, "Suffer the children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Some healers go too far into explanation and not far enough into demonstration. Healing by silence seems to be more effective; as invisible x-ray.

The healer who can serve at crippled children's hospitals will have the respect of the holy Mystic Shrine. The news services will broadcast any such healing, with proper verification. The method is secondary to the results. Oral Roberts seems to have a great spirit doctor working with him as did the famous diagnostician-medium Edgar Cayce. Roberts heals as did the Disciples . . . the power of spirit through the energy of Light that Christ turned on. Sunlight reaches us for mortal healing and growing, aided by the cosmic energy coming through the ether. If we send up clouds, we dim the sunlight. Faith removes those clouds of fear and doubt — but a child without clouds of mental blocks, needs the strength of the healer, who focuses the ray into healing heat. The light, of course, comes from the sun of spirit, and not from the healer, and is carried by the energy of ministering spirits. Theories may differ, but healing is as evident as truth.

A high school student of English literature has asked: "Didn't Shakespeare believe in psychic phenomena and prophecy by mediums?" It is evident that William Shakespeare believed in survival and communication, but was also well aware of evil forces. He presented such in several of his plays. And those who take stock in negative divination by mediums (explained by Saint Paul in Acts 16:16) should read Shakespeare's words spoken by the character General Banquo in the first act of Macbeth, after Macbeth's fortune had been told by the unrighteous Three Witches.

Referring to evil soothsaying, General Banquo said: "Oftentimes to win us to our harm, the instruments of darkness tell us truths; win us with honest trifles, to betray us in deepest consequence."

So it stands to reason that Shakespeare feared "instruments of darkness," and did not favor fortune telling merely for the sake of ambition and greed. It has been fairly well established that prophecy for selfish gain and advantage over our God-given free will, is not that of high spirit forces, which are interested in our spiritual progression and righteous happiness and protection.

And thus, Shakespeare, as well as Saint Paul, have warned us against "mediums of darkness". But you can determine the "mediums of light" by their lives of peace and good will — free from the earmarks of greed and deceit, jealousy, ill will and lust. Seek those who thirst after righteousness, ever conscious of the beatitude, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted", by spirit.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING?

by Margaret Kapp

We have been erroneously taught how to live life! It goes back not 100, or 200 years ago, but nearly 2,000 years ago! It has been caused thru misunderstanding the message Jesus came to give. He came as a pattern, He said, "I am the Way." Again, He said, "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I have commanded you." What were these commands? First, we should love God, and, second, we should love our neighbor; Love one another; be kind to one another, tender hearted, forgiving one another. That was to be our pattern of behavior, yet how often are we reminded of these things? It is the human way to forget, or to let it slide "just this one time" until, we have forgotten our good intentions. Remember how often you made New Year's Resolutions! How long did you live up to them?

What are we taught as to our aims or ambitions in life? Jesus said, we should "Seek first the Kingdom of God, and all else would be added unto us." And what does that mean exactly? It means that if we will learn first about God, we will eventually come to that place where we must give expression to the things we have learned. It could be of a creative nature or, perhaps, a way of service, but we will automatically choose a career that will help us to fulfill our purpose for living.

● NEWS FROM HERE AND THERE ●

Many readers have inquired about the Rev. Maude Kline of Long Beach, California, who is still confined to the Belmont Heights Convalescent Hospital, following severe strokes. Those who would like to send cards or letters to cheer Maudie up, may address them to her, care of the Hospital, 420 Grand Ave., Long Beach, California, or to P.O. Box 647, Long Beach, California. Let us show her we all remember her many years of service, and that we still care!

Mrs. Cecil Williams, 3520 Centralia Ct., Rt. 12, Jeffersonville, Indiana, writes that there is a small, but earnest, group of students who meet at her home once a week to sit for development. There is no developed medium as yet, but it is hoped that as time goes on, one will be provided. Those in this area, that are interested in meeting with this group, may call Mrs. Williams at White Hall 4-5827. No charge is made and all strive to help, not only themselves, but others as well.

The Church of Ataraxia, Los Angeles, Calif., was the setting for an unusual Christmas program at two o'clock on Sunday, Dec. 18th. Mr. Andrew Howe, guest speaker for the Church was in charge, and gave a reading telling of the birth of the Christ Child, which was interspersed with organ music and song. Mr. Robert Flack was at the organ, and he and Mrs. Sylvia Howe sang several appropriate songs.

Mrs. Howe is an artist, working under the inspiration of her Spirit Teachers. Several pictures, in pastel colors, of the Master Teachers and the Star of Bethlehem were shown in connection with the story. Mrs. Eleanor Rauch was in charge of the projector.

In the evening, the Church Christmas party was held at the home of Mr. and Rev. Barnes. Music, Singing and Messages were enjoyed by all. At the close of the message work, Miss Gladys Selman and Mrs. Mary Cory served refreshments.

Instead of the Grab Bag party, the Church has started a program of help for the Crippled Children's Hospital. Each guest brings a cash donation to the party and, whatever the amount, the Church gives a like amount to the Hospital.

EXTENSION CLASSES FROM THE SPIRITUALIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, REV. JOHN BUNKER INSTITUTE VERY EFFECTIVE

During the month of October, Rev. Ivy M. Hoover, Missionary at Large for the Spiritualist Episcopal Church organization, a member of the teaching staff of the Institute and also Dean, held classes in regular subjects taught in the Institute at several distant churches.

This is an entirely new project of bringing the Institute to those who, because of great distances, are unable to attend the classes held each summer during the Institute in Lansing, Michigan. Great enthusiasm was expressed in the reception of the classes.

Two classes were held in Minneapolis, one in St. Paul, and one in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. At the conclusion of the classes, full time students received certificates of attendance.

There were 37 full time students and 22 visitors were welcomed, who attended many of the lectures. All deeply appreciated the efforts of Rev. Clara S. Johnson, of Minneapolis; Rev. Ethel Colby Holzman, of St. Paul; Rev. Henry Paulson, of Minneapolis; and Rev. Otto Fredricks, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in assisting in the promotion of the classes.

UNUSUAL RELIGIOUS BROADCAST

An outstanding contribution to the cause of Spirit was made on the night of December 11th over KHJ (Channel 9), when Dr. Hal Styles, pastor of Church of the Good Neighbor, in Reseda, California, presented an unusual group of clergymen, representing seven different religious denominations. The program, one hour and twenty minutes in length, was made possible by Lindy, president of the Lindy Pen Co., who was, himself, a participant and interested observer.

In keeping with the trend toward religious unity, and in the belief that a point or place of beginning can be arrived at by clergymen of all faiths, Dr. Styles offered the question: "As all men are admittedly spirit beings, creatures of one common Father, and we, as clergymen, seek common understanding; can we unite?"

The program marked a definite "first" in television and created widespread comment. Reading left to right, photo shows: Lindy, president of Lindy Pen Co.; Rabbi Israel Chodos, Temple Sinai, Los Angeles; Rev. Don Hartsock, Presbyterian pastor at UCLA campus; Rev. Jerry Ford, pastor, AME Church, Los Angeles; Paul Bindrim, consulting psychologist and minister, Church of Divine Metaphysics; Dr. James O'Brien, former Roman Catholic priest; Rev. Robert Wallace, pastor First Baptist Church of Los Angeles; Rev. Franklin Loehr, Congregational minister and director of the Religious Research Foundation; and Dr. Hal Styles, moderator, and pastor of Church of the Good Neighbor in Reseda, California.

The School and Church of Divine Law, Sarasota, Florida, held a most enjoyable Christmas Party in their new headquarters. The silver Christmas tree, decorated by contributions of the students, was placed in the healing room, the curtains of which were drawn back so that all might enjoy the tree.

A delicious dinner was served to the group, followed by games and messages. Rev. Jannings, who now serves the Church, was presented with a small monetary gift, in gratitude for his work. Kay Earli, organist, and Madeline Jones, Swiss bells, presented a musical program.

On New Year's Eve, a "Watch Party" was held, during which flame messages were given, followed by refreshments.

Rev. Lloyd Huffman, President of Camp New Era, Canby, Oregon, and Vice President of the Northwest Ministerial Counsel, was a guest during the recent holidays at the Mary A. Tower Memorial Church, Seattle, Washington, where he held two Sunday circles, and lectured at three evening services.

At a special New Year's Eve "Watch Party", trance prophecies were given by Rev. Gene Prescott. Miss Gayle Fowler and Mr. Lloyd Olsen sang. A pot luck dinner was served following the service, after which all remained to greet the new year.

On Sunday, December 11th, the Rev. Hazel Byrd, of Chatsworth, California, was guest speaker at the Spiritual Science Church, San Bernardino, California. She gave a most interesting lecture, thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. After services, refreshments were served. Rev. Ann Cannara is Pastor of the Church, which only a short time ago moved into their new building at 25014 5th Avenue. Be sure to visit them when in that vicinity!

At St. Paul's Church of Spirit Communion, 813 W. 165th Place, Gardena, California, the Rev. Frances A. Bond, Pastor of the Church, ordained seven candidates into the Ministry of Spiritualism at the afternoon service on Dec. 11th.

Those ordained were: Lila Bortel, Venice; Bettie Sides, Lawndale; Josephine Edwards, Los Angeles; Gloria Ramsy, Gardena; Betty Gardena, Torrance; Ersilia Johnson, Pasadena; and James Dawkins, Los Angeles.

All seven Ministers plan to be teachers in the new school now being constructed at 95th St. West and Rosamond Blvd. in the Lancaster area. Church services are now being held Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. at this address, the Star of Jesus Universal Church.

The members of the B.C., Society for Psychic Study, have worked for years to open a place of their own. In May, 1960, they purchased an older type house, in a central location of White Rock, British Columbia, Canada, situated on the border near Blaine, Washington.

The large living room was converted into a Church auditorium, complete with pulpit and small electric organ. The Church is also fortunate in having a fine library, donated by a Spiritualist pioneer, Rev. Louise Daniels of New Westminster. The use of the library is free to all who are interested in Spiritualism. The New Westminster Church also donated hymn books, and through the kindness of Mr. James Sutherland, of Newton, B.C., The Copp Shoe Store of New Westminster donated upholstered seats.

Doors of the Church were opened to the public on June 26th, 1960. Various mediums from Vancouver and New Westminster serve the Church under a rotation system. Thus, each sixth or seventh week, a speaker returns, all of which tends to keep interest at a high level, and membership has grown steadily since the Church's opening.

Rev. Richard Lee Reid, of 526 So. Serrano Avenue, Los Angeles 5, California, was host at a most delightful Christmas Tea to ministers and teachers from many channels of Truth Teachings. Short inspiring talks were given by several of those present, followed by the group singing of Christmas carols, accompanied on the organ by a co-teacher, Helen G. Nelson.

Rev. Reid was ordained last Easter at Morongo Valley, under the Universal Church of the Master of Oakland, California. He has been doing extensive missionary field work and healing conferences in Elsinore, Palm Springs and Los Angeles.

Beginning January 13, 1961, Rev. Reid began holding classes at the above address, and Church Services will be inaugurated at an early date in 1961.

(see ad elsewhere)

A beautiful and impressive ordination was recently held at Christ's Healing Shrine, Kenosha, Wisconsin, when William Larrv O'Brien of Milwaukee, Wisconsin took his vows in the Universal Religion, of which the Rev. Marnie Koski, is Pastor and Founder.

Those who took part in the rites were: Mrs. Barbara Walker, soloist; Darrel Hoeft, cross bearer; Rev. Marnie Koski, officiant; Peggy Dickey, flame girl; Mrs. Win. O'Brien, mother of the student, sponsor; Craig Anderson, ring bearer; William Dickey, gift bearer; and 16 members of Christ's Robed Healing Shrine Choir.

A forty five minute musical was enjoyed before the ordination, after which Rev. O'Brien was robed in his Ministerial vestments. A full house witnessed the ceremonies.

Ministers from other communities who attended were: The Rev. Anita Kuchler, Rev. Lillian Boetger, Rev. Adele Hopkins, Rev. Walter Hoertel and Rev. Ray Mc Hood, all of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Rev. Richard Bangs, Rev. Marion Mason and Rev. John Mason, of Elkhart Lake.

A family style turkey dinner was served and enjoyed by all, following the services.

Rev. Ralph Whitney and Mrs. Whitney, of Columbus, Ohio, will spend the month of February in their Cassadaga, Florida home, located within the Spiritualist Camp. Rev. Whitney will be available for private readings or direct voice seances.

On March 26th, 1961, they will serve at the Anniversary services of the Connecticut State Spiritualist Association, in Hartford, and on June 10th, 1961, will serve the Colorado State Convention in Denver, Colorado. Rev. Whitney is Pastor of the First Spiritualist Cathedral, of Columbus, Ohio, and is a well known and deeply respected worker in the Spiritualist movement.

PROPOSED PSYCHIC CENTER WILL FOCUS ESP RESEARCH IN LOS ANGELES

by Joe Dun Sloan

Los Angeles is destined to become the psychic center of America when the much needed and desired establishment of a study and research headquarters here is completed by a recently formed group of ESP authorities headed by Mr. Walter Whittaker, real estate broker and consultant. The center, to be named Research Associate, will be primarily concerned with offering financial aid and proper facilities to established groups and individuals.

Above, left to right: Rev. Laurine J. C. Stroud, Rev. Penny Umbach, Dr. Lillian Dee Johnson, Rev. Nellie Curry Hicock, Rev. Raymon Noegel, Mr. Lamar Keene and Rev. Ralph Hicock.

On March 6, 1960, a group of sincere Spiritualists, led by Rev. Raymon Noegel and Mr. Lamar Keene, formulated a new church in Tampa, Florida. They applied for a charter with the Universal Spiritualist Association on March 7th and on March 16th, the charter was granted and registered.

The opening service was conducted on March 20th at the Federation of Women's Club Building, 809 Horatio St., with well over one hundred in attendance. Dr. Lillian Dee Johnson, Rev. Raymon Noegel and Mr. Lamar Keene participated in the service. Dr. Johnson gave the lecture and clairvoyant messages, Rev. Noegel and Mr. Keene demonstrated dual blindfold billet reading.

For about six months, this group met in the Federated Women's Club Building, after which time they had raised sufficient funds to buy two lots on Central Ave., and erect a building valued at a total of fifteen thousand dollars.

The present building has a seating capacity of one hundred and twenty, and at the dedication on November 24th, there was standing room only. Many outstanding mediums participated in the dedication service: Dr. Lillian Dee Johnson, Rev. Nellie Curry Hicock, Rev. Ralph Hicock, Rev. Penny Umbach, Rev. Laurine J. C. Stroud, Rev. Raymon Noegel and Mr. Lamar M. Keene.

When sufficient funds have been raised, a larger sanctuary will be erected and the now existing building will be used for a recreation and class room.

UNSEEN GUIDANCE by O. W. Blanchard

Ed Note: This month we introduce a new column, by the author of "The House" and other articles recently printed in Chimes. We know you will enjoy this short feature, and if readers have had experiences of this kind, proving spirit intervention, they are invited to send them in for use in this new feature.

It was very late when a group of us on a vacation trip arrived in Hendersonville, North Carolina. Everyone was tired and announced that they intended to sleep late. However, for some reason, I was suddenly awakened quite early. Going into the lobby, I told the desk clerk that I was going for a walk before breakfast.

Walking along the avenue, I observed a public garage on the other side of the street. The door was open and, although I had no business to transact, I was impelled to cross the street and enter the garage.

Within, I noticed a boy, of perhaps sixteen years of age, working under the rear end of an old Cadillac car. The rear wheels had been removed and the rear axle ends were supported only by ordinary jacks.

"You had better get out from under that car and quick," I heard myself telling the lad. "That is a very dangerous thing you are doing." Mumbling something about needing another wrench, he crawled out from under. No sooner had he cleared the car than it crashed to the cement floor; the big rear axle housing hitting the exact spot where the boy's head had just been!

(Surely the angels have watch over thee)

People who complain they are getting old, should remember that there are those who are denied that privilege.

✠ Religion vs Spirituality ✠

by Rev. Emery C. Van Hise

This is a dissertation comparing Religion and Spirituality, designed to clarify the meanings of each, as applied to our spiritual understanding, development and progression. In considering the matter of religion vs spirituality, we do not mean to say that they have nothing in common. They do! For they are two different aspects of our progression toward a perfect concept or understanding of God. Just as the political parties of Republican and Democrat are two aspects or concepts of a perfect form of government.

Religion is teachings about God. Spirituality is inner experience with God. Religion is external, for the good of humanity. Spirituality is internal, for the good of the soul of man. To be religious is to follow the doctrines of man-made organizations, such as the various Churches. To be spiritual is to follow the dictates of God's Spirit, working in and thru our spirit.

During the many years of recorded history, we have never had peace in the world, in spite of the thousands of religions that have been, and are now, upon the earth. The reason they have failed to bring about peace is because they have failed to emphasize the intimate relationship of the individual with God. They have looked upon God as something separate and apart from man, and it is impossible to have peace, without first having a consciousness of God with us.

When we are conscious of God's Presence, it then becomes impossible for anyone to have racial or religious prejudices, or to envy another his possessions.

We live in a religious world. Denominations, sects, creeds, ideologies abound throughout the earth. There are no heathen! Every race or color of people are religious in that they have their own concepts of a Supreme Being. Some are external in their concepts, and are, therefore, religious. Others are internal in their concepts, and are, therefore, spiritual.

Jesus, the Christ, did not come to earth to teach us to be religious. He came to teach us to be spiritual. There is a difference. Jesus taught that we are to worship God in spirit, in our inner consciousness, because man is spirit of God's Spirit, and is therefore, spiritual in his being! To be spiritual then, is to follow the dictates of God's spirit in and through our spirit. To be religious is to follow the dictates and doctrines of man-made organizations, designed to improve our morals.

Spirituality is the highest expression of religion, but religion is not spirituality. Like St. James said in his letter to the Churches,

Jas. 1:27, "Pure religion and undefiled, is to visit the fatherless and the widows in their afflictions, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world."

All ancient religions, together with the various groups of our day, believe in one Supreme Being, God. Many have become dogmatic in their teachings, insisting that their way is the only true way for salvation. As a matter of fact, God's Spirit is not a teaching, not a doctrine, nor a mode of behavior. It is an inner experience, resulting from experiences that are available to all, regardless of race, color or creed. Jesus said, Math: 6:33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these other things will be added unto you." Later, he said, "God's spirit is within you."

To be religious is to pray to God. To be spiritual is to pray with God, thereby consciously receiving His Word direct from His Mind into our mind, from His Spirit into our spirit, from His Soul into our soul! We become enclosed in His Presence. Spirituality is God in us. God is spirit! Consequently, the most important thing on this earth is to become spiritually minded.

In making the transition from a religious belief, with its outer behavior patterns to an inner experience of spiritual enlightenment, we start with our concept of God. First, we look to a God somewhere in the sky, a God who is something apart from ourselves. Then, we seek contact with our concept of God, begin to feel Him near or with us. Finally, we realize God as the reality or soul of our beings. We feel His presence so completely in and about us that there is no separation or feeling of God apart from us. We are one in spirit and in truth!

It is then, in this oneness, that we realize that the veil of the Temple of religion has been rent asunder and that we are, indeed, in the presence of the Holy of Holies. No longer God and us, but God with us. There is no separation, because we are one in spirit, just as the waters of Lake Erie and Niagara Falls are, in reality, one body of flowing water, manifesting as individual identifications called Lake Erie and Niagara Falls. One God, one spirit flowing into and out through us to separate entities or expressions, manifesting wisdom, understanding, peace, harmony, prosperity and perfection for our own good, and by reflective action, the good of those about us.

The question then, is, are we religious, or are we truly spiritual? This is the big question for this Aquarian Age.

HEALING STONES

by Doris M. Hodges

In medieval times, in Europe and in other lands, THE TOPAZ acquired a singular reputation for healing illnesses to which women might be peculiarly susceptible.

This is a comparatively rare stone, and a very unusual one, having unique and very beautiful colouring. The Topaz, in fact, is found in five colours, pink, black, white, green, and yellow. The gem most closely associated with healing, in the mystical and practical sense, comes from the latter group, although all varieties of this lovely jewel have been employed in these kinds of medicine.

Sometimes called the Peridot, or Peridoto, it closely resembles Chrysolite, the so-called "Golden Stone" of the ancients, and is still sometimes occasionally mistaken for the latter. The Chrysolite is yellowish-green in hue, but lacks the deep, intense shading of the true Topaz.

In antiquity, this stone was mined from the Island of Topazos in the Red Sea. Some pirates, marooned there, discovered the jewel, when digging in the earth for roots for food. Other sources, from which the gem comes, are Mexico and Brazil, Russia and India, some parts of Europe, whilst some varieties of Topaz have also been found in districts in our own Island.

The ancient Greeks called it "The Stone of Strength," employing it widely in healing. In practical medicine, their physicians and healer-priests recommended it for the relief of gout, for some disorders of the circulation, and for many internal complaints. Worn purely as a talisman, it safeguarded the mentality, protected against sudden or violent death, and conferred the boon of wealth and the patronage of influential persons.

Like the diamond and some other precious gems, the Romans decreed that it should be worn upon the left arm if its magical powers were to be properly invoked. It was then a deterrent against the "Evil Eye," and protected the owner of the gem from any who might be practising Black Magic against him.

In the home, the Topaz guarded him against injury by fire, or from accidents by scalding water. It was a powerful amulet on a pilgrimage, since all who wore the Topaz could be certain to reach journey's end in perfect safety, and with no hindrance upon the way.

In very early centuries, the gem's yellowish-green hue linked it with those disorders reproducing these colours in the skin or body secretions. For this reason, the Topaz was accounted a valuable stone, prescribed in many ways, for disorders of the liver and kidneys, dropsy and dropsical conditions.

In medieval times, in Europe and in other lands, the jewel acquired a singular reputation for healing illnesses to which women might be peculiarly susceptible. Catarrh, lung conditions, nasal disorders and throat diseases, as well as asthma, were all believed to show a healing response, or to lessen in severity, when the medicinal powers of the Topaz were employed.

Epileptics, and those suffering from sleeplessness, found relief either by wearing this jewel or by drinking the water in which it had been set to steep. Sometimes wine was used instead. Whatever the agent, the stone had to remain immersed in it for some hours, in order that its healing properties might be absorbed into the liquid before it was drunk.

At other times, the gem was worn upon the naked flesh, directly over the lungs, the stomach, throat or abdomen, this intimate contact ensuring that its virtues in healing might enter the body easily. Wealthy people, who could afford it, often had the jewel ground into powder. Mixed with wine, water, or other medicines, it was then taken internally.

This stone was said to possess mystical properties beyond the ordinary, according to gemmologists of antiquity and medieval times. It had particularly potent power over the mind, freeing it from envious and jealous thoughts, and dispelling depression and gloom.

In the Middle Ages, it was often set in gold and other precious metals, and bound upon the left arm, or suspended from the throat or breast. As a talisman, it was capable of soothing angry passions, sharpening the intellect, and of bestowing tranquillity and contentment upon the personality.

Like other gems and stones, which have acquired a reputation for mystical and healing properties, the Topaz was thought to have greater potency during the hours of darkness. Accordingly, the jewel was often placed beneath the pillow at night, or retained upon the person, when its owner retired to his couch or bed.

Not only did it promote sleep, but it drove away nightmares and evil dreams. In antiquity, especially, its use in all these fields was limited to that period when the moon waxed—whether used during daylight or at night—for it was held that it was at this time that the power of the jewel was greatest.

There have been some famous specimens of this gem. One of the finest was that set in the shrine of the Three Kings — Caspar, Melchior and Balthazar — in Cologne Cathedral. Another historic Topaz was that worn by the Emperor Hadrian, whose rule over his Roman subjects was benevolent and prosperous.

Hadrian, who embraced and furthered the spread of Christianity in his kingdom, wore a ring set with a Topaz. He is said to have valued it as a proved and most powerful talisman.

This, too, was one of the jewels in the breast-plate of Aaron, which are thought to have been specially grouped and arranged for the deflection of evil powers. The Topaz, or Peridot, was, according to the Book of Exodus, the second jewel in the first row of the breast-plate. Each jewel, incidentally, was inscribed with the name of one of the tribes of Israel, thus making the breast-plate an even more powerful talisman.

In the East and in India, the Topaz is almost revered for its occult powers. Some Eastern soothsayers and mediums believe that, with its help, they can contact astral beings. In India and Ceylon, it is the saffron-yellow Topaz — always known as the "Indian Topaz" — which is most highly prized for its mystical and magical powers.

Amongst other gifts, the people of these countries say that it will bring to its owner, are good health, the faculty of wisdom, and the assurance that death will come neither by violence nor suddenly. For the people of Burma, too, the jewel has sacred associations, Concluded on page 20

The Law of Attraction

by Carole Colby

When studying the various planes and sub-planes of the invisible realms, it is imperative that we consider those beneath (of a lower frequency) what is commonly referred to as the Heaven World, for it is from these denser planes that the majority of mankind is influenced and able to gain more immediate, conceivable knowledge.

Like attracts like. It is a natural law that shall ever be so. As we are drawn to each other through the law of attraction, guiding forces from the other side of life are likewise attracted to us.

A clearer picture of the existing Spirit World, as we may call it for the purpose of clarity and simplicity, shall be perceived if we visualize the seven planes with their seven subdivisions, etc., as being differing degrees of vibration or consciousness. While bound to the mortal body by the magnetic silver cord, it is not possible to reach higher than the fifth subdivision of the fifth plane, we are told by some authorities, who assert that it is the highest plane from which spirit intelligences can come to contact mortals.

It may be a good idea to inject a brief description of how communion occurs between entities residing upon different planes of vibration. Let us use ourselves as an example. If we desire to contact a particular being from the spirit realm, we must concentrate upon him and endeavor to raise our vibration (consciousness) to make the attunement. This is done by entering the Silence, to enable the mind to become cleared and centered upon the purpose we are attempting to achieve. As our collected thought is sent forth into the ethers, it soon touches upon the consciousness (individual vibrational keynote) of the person to whom it is directed. Though it is often possible for spiritual beings to travel to our side by lowering their vibration, they may choose to only reply to us via mental telepathy, projecting the impression they wish to make. Their thoughts then can be picked up by our soul or subconscious mind, and brought forth into the consciousness when we are in a receptive mood. We can begin to realize, more fully, how it is also possible to mentally attune ourselves to universal mind, or the akashic records, when we seek knowledge pertaining to what may be unobtainable in books.

We cannot enter the higher realms until we are permanently released from the magnetic pull of the physical body. Even then, we are not assured of a place in the more elevated regions of the superior planes, for we will not be able to reside upon any plane to which our consciousness has not become acquainted and en rapport with, either during our mundane life or the one hereafter.

It stands to reason that when we desire anything of a concrete or abstract nature, we should first and foremost seek the Will and aid of the Creator who gave us life, and who possesses the supreme power, at any time, to discontinue or diminish the flow of the vital energy required to sustain us. It is also conceivable that whenever we wish to be enlightened upon any subject, we should endeavor to attune ourselves to the highest possible source of information. However, since we are all somewhat limited in our mental capacity, we should realize that to perceive knowledge which is understandable and discernable to us, it necessitates a stepping-down of ultimate truth, so it can be grasped by us in our present state of consciousness.

If we will reflect for a moment, it becomes apparent why there is such a diversity of temperments and opinions among people who are born of varying chemical types, under the influence of different planets, rays, number vibrations, and are in numerous stages of psychic, intellectual, and spiritual development. Tolerance, thus brotherly love, would be fostered if we could become sufficiently selfless to respect the right of others to express their inherent abilities. Frequently, we ourselves, are lacking in wisdom, insight, or unselfish philanthropic devotion for the advancement of mankind.

I shall reiterate that we attract spiritual forces or guides to us, as well as earthly companions, who are compatible and harmonize with our individual auras and characteristics. If such was not the case, there would be too much friction and discomfort generated for them to remain long in our presence, or we in theirs. Though it is desirable for each one of us to be able to lift our consciousness to the higher planes to directly receive sought-after enlightenment, the average person has not progressed sufficiently to allow him to do so. Therefore, it necessitates the need for guidance from the planes or levels of consciousness to which he is capable of mentally contacting.

The world, both this one and the next, would be in a tragic plight if intermediate messengers (guardian angels, if you prefer) were not sent to lead those less advanced than they along the path of virtuousness and deliverance. Though we may reject the idea of being guided by a force anything less than we wish to visualize, it is nevertheless often essential and expedient that it be so. As a comparison, let us again use ourselves as an example. Those of us who have an unrelenting desire to be of service to help free struggling humanity from prevalent chaotic, deceptive conditions, do not, I am sure, imagine ourselves to be Masters who have overcome the world. It is evident that this is not so, or else we would not be restricted by the terrestrial plane's polarity. Yet, it does not prevent us from endeavoring to assist others, who are drawn to us because they, at least unconsciously, recognize something within us which they are lacking and in need of. By freely giving of our godly gifts, our own abundance is increased. We do not expect everyone to accept, without question, what we have to offer, even if it is presented in a near perfect form, for we know that not all are attracted to us or the truths we expound.

And what becomes of the dedicated humanitarian after his trans- ition, who has spent his entire lifetime concerning himself about others? Where would be the justice of being forced to reside in a higher heaven world (even if it were instantly possible) before the conscientious one had ceased feeling his heartfelt passion to befriend mortals during their climb up the aspiring rungs of the ladder of life? Indeed, there would be no justice at all; heaven would hold no peace or contentment for such a person who could not relax sufficiently to further his own spiritual ascent, while remaining anxious about those left behind to shift for themselves, but for the Mercy of God.

It is up to us what kind of people and forces we attract to help steer us along the course that we, as individuals with free will and choice, set for ourselves to follow.

I Believe

by Rev. Helen Fandino

Lord, I Believe

"Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief,"
So cried a father burdened for his son.
He came to Jesus overborne with grief:
The load was lifted and the victory won.
Today across the lands the anguished cry
Goes up to God, "How long, O Lord, how long?"
When wilt thou save thy people?
Draw thou nigh—
My son is sore distressed, Lord make him strong."
Anxious and troubled I believe—and doubt—
But still that calm voice speaks across the years,
"By prayer alone this demon cometh out;
Entrust to Me thy care and loose thy fears."
In thee, O Lord, I rest and find relief;
Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.

—Mark 9:21

A delivery truck stopped behind a well-known department store and the driver began to carry in stacks of boxes which contained draperies and bedspreads. As he was unloading the boxes in the storeroom, he realized that the last box felt as light as a feather, and thought, "It seems like this box was delivered with nothing in it." He mentioned this to the manager and, after inspection, to their astonishment, they found the box was empty. It was sealed, addressed, and post paid, but nothing had been put into it.

Many individuals today face a life of emptiness, darkened by unhappiness, misery and hopelessness. They appear to start out with every promise of happiness and success, but as they begin to cope with responsibilities, they find that their endeavors are futile, empty, and disheartening. Frustration meets them at every turn, disappointments mar their brightest hopes, injustice hinders their desires, and attaining a successful life seems improbable, and they conclude that life has handed them nothing.

Have you ever asked yourself, "Why is life all confusion, frustration, misery, tribulation, suffering?" Is it possible to attain felicity in such a material world? Is God lacking in ingenuity regarding such discordant persons?

There is one plausible answer to this and that is that an unhappy person lacks the inner peace which is the Spiritual Faith in God. He has nothing to fall back on, no Supreme Power to turn to, no vital, lasting power to aid him in shouldering responsibilities. Only by believing and trusting in God can a man find repose.

A little boy was asked, in his classroom, to give a definition of salt. His reply was, "Salt is what spoils your potatoes when you leave it out." The trouble with most individuals is that they leave the "salt" of a deep faith out of their lives. It is that which, when left out, spoils the home, destroys character, and causes life to become flat and tasteless.

Before Dwight D. Eisenhower was inaugurated as President of our beloved country, he stated: "This is what I found out about Faith and a religion to live by, it gives you courage to make decisions during a crisis, which is so important to the welfare of our nation and fellowman, and the confidence in knowing you may leave the result to a higher Power, resting assured of satisfactory returns."

The Rev. Helen Fandino

The true Christian is one who has accepted the certainty of Divine Power and has become intimately acquainted with it. The Lord said: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." To accept God as our personal friend, to accept His way of Life as ours, to live by the examples of Christ's teachings, is a sure cure for worry, fear, and dissolution.

There was once a man who desired to be a good Christian, but who worried and fretted about everything, living in constant fear of things which had never happened to him. During his night sleep, he dreamed he was worrying, rolling and tossing on his bed, being afraid for the next day to come, because he was troubled. Groaning, he said, "Oh, God, whatever shall I do?" He seemed to hear the voice of the Lord saying, "Sleep in peace, and leave the worrying to me." St. Paul was able to trust in God assuredly so, when he said: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him."

The secret of perfect peace is in knowing we belong to God and that He belongs to us. When we feel the presence of God in us, we sense deep Spiritual communion with Him. There permeates a feeling of oneness with God that can only be understood by those who have experienced it. Faith in God is the same today as it was in days of yore. The only difference is the mental outlook of people.

There was a man from our town who was possessed by the drink habit. Being a married man with five children, he subjected the family to ridicule, shame, remorse, and unhappiness. The family turned to the County Welfare Aid for help. On payday, he would patronize the various saloons. He went so far as to borrow money during the week, in order to obtain drink, resulting in ever growing debt. A court order was issued ordering him to leave his home and not enter it until further notice. Having no home to go to, no friends to turn to, and realizing his wrong doing, he ventured to the East Side Mission, there telling his story to understanding helpers. Mr. Karl Gregory, one of the directors of the Mission, suggested prayer. The alcoholic prayed fervently to Divine Spirit, soon sensing a deep Faith stir within him, he actually felt assured for the first time in months that God was going to help him find the right way, and his prayers were answered. He joined the A.A.A., obtained employment, proved himself, and asked his wife and children for clemency. Now he is a happy man, knowing that at any crucial moment in his life he can turn to God for support.

Spiritualists Do You Know?

By Dr. John P. LeMay

The positive and negative sides of the seven colorays never rest. Just as the colors of nature vary from season to season, so does the activation of the varied hues of the colorays. The human personality is in continuous flux, and never rests upon one note or mood, for the mental and emotional activity is radiation and emanation, change and counter-change, in cycles of motion. Emotionalism within the individual presents a kaleidoscopic interplay of colors of varying hues, tints and patterns. Therefore it is necessary, for an accurate analysis, to have a person who has developed the "vision to see" and also the knowledge of the meaning of the varied colorays.

A person of strong emotion, when excited, projects almost visible tongues of orange red flame from the eyes, especially when in anger. A sensitive person will readily feel such thoughts which literally "burn him up," even at a distance. The opposite of this would be a deep feeling of Love, which also can be seen radiating a warm rose colored glow, with emanations of yellow flowing from the person's eyes. When we speak of the light in a person's eyes, we usually use the qualification of "fire, warmth, chill, etc.", although, at present, it is scientifically impossible to record any real physical change in the luminosity of the eyes. This process is entirely a psychological one, since it cannot be factually proven as yet.

It is interesting to note that married couples in constant association, will begin to partake, more or less, of a certain amount of each other's personality- colors and moods. A person of the red color band, married to a blue, produce, between them, a tendency to acquire the properties of the violet colorays, and their offspring will be a blending into the next band of the spec-

CORONARY OCCLUSION

Since the heart is the throne of God in man, for the heart keeps the body fed, keeps the temperature of the body, and, of course, keeps the life force flowing through the body, when you find this condition there is one predominant factor. It is the characteristic of holding within. When an individual holds an ill thought toward another; when they covet their neighbor's goods within their heart; when they hold unexpressed attitudes of animosity toward life and toward others, they are inviting this condition to develop.

Man must recognize that he is endowed with the power to achieve his own good in life. He need not hold thoughts of envy for his brother. Once again, it is a question of disciplining the mind, in this case, to let go of all desires or thoughts of a selfish nature, which would press in upon the person, accumulating pressure.

The psychology of the mind does trum. Yellows and blues joined together produce an environmental note in the spectrum of green.

It is important that the harmonious color groups associate, otherwise psychological and emotional imbalances often result, which can produce not only emotional disturbances, but also physical problems. Thus couples can be, and often are, partly responsible for the illnesses of others.

Through coloray symbology, it is now possible to study and classify every type of thought and emotion, thereby gauging accurately their effects upon the individual. Coloray analysis is the one reliable key with which it is possible to know another's positive or negative thoughts and feelings. Only with the highest intuitive development can one hope to be able to master this all inclusive subject. Intuition of this kind is invaluable, for it is the inner faculty of the mind which knows the truth without the use of conscious thought or reason. This gift, which every individual has within him, is beyond the ordinary senses, and reaches out into deeper resources of Infinite Wisdom.

It is necessary to keep highly positive in thought to safeguard ourselves against the world's constant undercurrent of negative emotionalism, which we telepathically receive when indulging in the note it occupies on the shades of the coloray system.

National unrest and apathy is the result of mass negation, started by the few. Rise above all negation, and you cannot help but become positive in thought, word, and deed.

very strange things. Mankind in general is unaware of the great power he has over his own physical body. How often have you heard of people spending thousands upon thousands of dollars for medical diagnosis and care of the heart, only to die of a heart attack at an early age? If they had looked to their own mind with discernment, if they had made an attempt to understand the psychology of the mind, they could have cooperated with the medical care they received and could have been reinstated to perfect health.

When the inner plane teachers are requested to help with a healing, they begin by thoroughly cleansing the aura of the person of all error thought. They then proceed to align the spiritual centers, that the individual may function in perfect law and order. They examine the thinking processes of the person and attempt to feed that person clear, pure thoughts. Notice that no mention has been made of healing the condition itself. The condition falls away as the other treatment begins to take effect. However, unless the individual offers the cooperation of desire for healing and correction of their thoughts of negation, the condition may return again.

Prayer is a great and vital force in healing. One desiring healing may indeed turn to another for help. He may turn to a doctor. He may turn to a spirit healer, or to an inner plane physician. But the greatest help he can receive is from within himself. When you turn within yourself in prayer, you are acknowledging God and placing your full trust in Him. Through an act of sincere prayer, you let go of the old condition. You give up all orthodox ideas regarding your ailment, passing them out of your mind, never to return again. You replace them with confidence in your doctor, your spiritual healer, your inner plane physician—and, above all, in God the Father.

Then comes the resurrection, in which you literally arise from the state of illness forever, and you immediately attract unto yourself the proper nutritional advice, the proper mental atmosphere, and the proper understanding to continue your life in a state of perfect health.

Ed Note: Readers are invited to send questions regarding the causes of various diseases to the writer. These, then, will be submitted to the spirit teachers for discussion, the answers being given in these columns.

I Contacted My Medium's Guide

by Dr. Jesse Citron, M.D.

I was finishing up a patient's papers during a Saturday week end, late in the summer of 1930, when a thought occurred to me. I had frequently wondered if it would be possible for me to contact the guide of my medium and friend, Rev. George Francis, without his knowledge, and whether, if I did so, the guide would keep it secret until I gave him permission to reveal it. I decided to make the attempt.

The reason for this was that my family and I had been attending Rev. Francis' Church for several months past, and all collections at the Church door were refused, even though we were members of the developing class, the Sons and Daughters of the Silence. I felt that if I could gain the cooperation of Rev. Francis' guide in this experiment, it would bring rare proof of the life-forces in the hereafter.

So, I put two one dollar bills in an envelope, addressed it on the typewriter to radio station KMPC, over which Rev. Francis was, once a week, broadcasting the Philosophy of Spiritualism, ending his program by answering sealed envelopes, sent in by radio listeners. I placed no return on the envelope, and after sealing it, held it above my head and audibly requested the spirit guide, Thompson, not to reveal to his medium from whom the letter had come.

I then went to the post office, and told the Postmaster that my letter contained a gratuity, and that I would like to have him give me permission to personally cancel the stamp and obliterate the post office designation by smudging it, so that no possible clue might be had as to the origin of the letter. This I was allowed to do, even to placing the letter in the mail sack myself.

I listened carefully, thereafter, to all the radio broadcasts, during which Rev. Francis would take each letter that he received, psychometize it unopened, giving the writers name, and the nature of their requests. My letter was never mentioned.

Four months after the close of the radio series, a patient by the name of Mr. Wilbur Savely called on me, he being the son-in-law of the Rev. Francis. Before he left my office, I asked him how "Paw" was (as he called Rev. Francis), and how "Paw" had come out on the radio broadcasts, and specifically whether he had been able to answer all the letters that had been sent to him.

Mr. Savely replied that "Paw" had not done badly, and that with the help of his guide, Thompson, he had been able to answer all the letters except one. This, he said, was an unsigned blank envelope containing two one dollar bills. Rev. Francis had been unable to get any clear message with this particular envelope, and felt that it might have been sent by some female to whom he had given helpful advice, and that her gratitude had been expressed thru the gift of the two dollars.

Realizing that, when the time came to reveal the experiment, I would need some proof of the matter, I related it all to Mr. Savely, extracting from him a solemn promise not to reveal the matter to anyone until I gave him permission to do so. He gave me his hand on the matter, and we parted. The matter was soon forgotten by both of us in the press of work.

A year or more went by, and I was planning at that time to move to Hemet, California, for the health of my youngest child, who suffered from asthma. Before placing the full down payment on the home there, Rev. and Mrs. Francis accompanied my wife and I to Hemet, both to see the place, and also to enjoy together a ride in the warm spring sunshine, it being the middle of June, 1931.

On the return trip, after passing Gilman Hot Springs, Rev. Francis was smoking a cigar, and the ladies were quiet in the back seat. It occurred to me that this would be a splendid time to consummate the experiment. So I mentally contacted Thompson, the spirit guide, and told him that he might now reveal the secret to his medium. Not more than a half minute later, Rev. Francis pulled over to the side of the road and stopped. Looking over to where I sat, he said, "So you are the 'bugger' that kept Thompson from telling me that you were the person who sent me that two dollars!"

I admitted it, and revealed the whole experiment, started in my office over a year and a half before, and told how I had revealed it to his son-in-law. I suggested that he ask Mr. Savely about it when we arrived at his home. This we did, to the great joy of all of us.

It once again proved the point that life is a continuous process, and that there is no death! Also, it proved to me, that it is possible to get in touch with a medium's guide, without their knowledge.

THE MESSAGE

To the late Francesco De Leone
by Adele Warn Gardner

*I walked into the woods and laid
My loss before a pine.
The forest listened while I prayed
For peace that wasn't mine.*

*In tribute nothing stirred. No sound
From birds nor Echoe's tongue
But where my tears had met the ground*

A jeweled bush had sprung.

*Along the branches poems grew
In clusters nestled bare
In cups of leaves and then I knew
The forest heard my prayer.*

The answer bloomed before my eyes!

The Silent Spirit said, "Declare the truth and realize The soul has gone ahead!"

*Beside me stood the noble tree.
It couldn't see nor speak
And yet, it gave new strength to me
As faith supports the weak.*

*I free the lyrics when I please
And watch them learn to fly—
And songs return to me through trees*

To music from the sky.

O DOVE OF PEACE

*O, dove of peace, so pure and white,
So filled with God's Eternal Light,
Come to our land I humbly pray
And with God's children always stay!*

*America, this land of ours
With all its beauties, trees and flowers,
Its mountain tops, its rivers wide,
Its valleys, oceans and the tide*

*Were given man by love Divine
To cherish for your sons and mine,
To keep it free from bitter strife,
That all might have the better life.*

*And so today, O dove of peace,
I'm praying that all wars shall cease,*

That love shall reign in every land, Upheld by God's omnipotent hand!

We Look At Some New Books

Spiritualized Hands and Spiritualized Feet, Rev. Donald H. Heech. (P) 42 pps. $1.00. 11 illustrations. Mr. Heech is a practicing Divine Healer, and has made the very important discovery of two outstanding methods of treating the physical body without medicine. First, through the application of color and color vibrations, and; secondly, through the use of zonal therapy through the patient's feet.

Color healing is becoming more and more a part of healing, even by the Medical profession. When a practitioner learns the values of color, both those which emanate from his own hands and those which are a part of the patient's auric pattern, and can properly blend them, beneficial results are assured.

Combine the use of color harmonizing with the treatment of the nerve endings in the feet, and one has an answer to every problem of spiritual attunement. There are several groups who use this foot approach with excellent results. Mr. Heech has stated in this booklet that Joe S. Riley, M.D. and his wife are two of his Spirit collaborators in this form of treatment.

Star Book For Ministers, Hiscox. Imitation Leather. 271 pp., 4" X 6½", $2.00. This is the 34th printing of this excellent book, which we have tried to locate for resale for many years.

While this book is not slanted particularly for Spiritualist Ministers, we have found that its service rituals and forms are easily adapted to our needs, and that few changes were necessary.

Its size is most convenient, slipping easily into a coat pocket or hand bag. Its binding, with gold lettering, is dignified and rich looking. The contents cover all the functions of a Minister.

- 1—Suggestions to Ministers. Weddings, Funerals, Visitation of the sick, Councils, Ordinations, Dedications, Etc.
- 2—Selection of Sacred Scriptures for use in both private and public consultations.
- 3—The Burial Service. Suggestive thoughts for Funeral Occasions.
- 4—Forms of Marriage Services.
- 5—Regulations for conducting business meetings. Rules of order and procedure.
- 6—Forms and blanks needed in the conduct of a Church.
- 7—Tables of Biblical facts and figures.

Every Minister can use one of these excellent books. We can think of no more fitting gift than this book for every person who receives the rites of ordination.

Four Thousand Questions And Answers On The Bible. (P) 99 pp., $0.60. Outstanding features and personalities of the books of both the Old and New Testament, covered by the question and answer method. What the topics cover, who wrote them, and other personal bits of information.

Ziska, another of the wonderful books written by the late Marie Corelli, long out of print. While this book is not as well known as many of her other books, those who are interested in her writings will welcome an opportunity to secure this book for their library. Price, $2.35 post paid. Calif. purchasers please add $0.09 sales tax.

Modern Loaves And Fishes With Other Studies In Psychic Phenomena, Second Edition, by Dr. P. S. Haley. Brings the work of the author and his wife through five-hundred-fifty-two seances in concise form to the reader. Contains seventy-nine photographs, most of them of ectoplasmic structures, with various diagrams and graphs.

The only work in the world which contains a detailed experimental study of food multiplications, illustrated by photographs and diagrams, and letter-testimonies of Stewart Edward White and Dr. Milo A. Tucker.

Contains a full chapter on non-sectarian cases of psychic fasting, giving full details about people who have lived a lifetime without eating any food or drinking water.

Published by the author in small personal edition of 100 copies only. This will be the only opportunity to obtain details of a mediumship which is the only one ever to secure multiplication of food under experimental conditions.

The cost of each book to the author was $7.45 (actual cost of printing). Will be sold for five dollars per copy to anyone who feels that he cannot afford to pay the full cost price.

Other chapters deal with "Obsession," "Mediumship and the Unconscious," "Psychiatry as the Mystic Sees It," "Healing," "Theory of the Spirit World and its Relation to the Psychic Organism," with supplementary material and comments.

The material for the book has been gathered by the author during his 40 years of experience as Research Officer and President of the California Psychical Research Society, Inc.

linked to the culture and the customs of their country. The Topaz is, for instance, by tradition, one of the jewels which must be set in the Nan-Ratan, the jewel of nine precious stones, which forms the most important piece in the Regalia of Burma.

For the writer, the Topaz is the most beautiful of all gems in this range of colouring. Its appeal lies in its colour, the golden radiance it holds at its heart, and which undoubtedly was one of the reasons—if not the primary reason—why healers and gemmologists of antiquity employed it so much.

For yellow is a potent healing colour for those upon whom its impact is favourable (colour, of course, affecting different people in different ways). It conveys vitality, strength, the impression of warmth, and promotes a sensation of physical and mental well-being. To the ancient Egyptians, who were very powerful and skilled healers, it symbolized "Ra," the Sun-God, giver of life and fertility.

Topazos . . . Topaz . . . the name, of course, is derived from that Island in the Red Sea where those marooned seafarers first discovered it. "Topazos," roughly translated, means "a seeking after," the name being given to the Island because, so often, it was lost to sight in mist or fog.

In our present civilizations—except in the lands of the East and other countries where it is still employed as a talisman—the Topaz is certainly sought after, but generally because it is valuable as a rare and beautiful gem-stone. In a wider sense, this stone, associated as it has been, since antiquity, with mysticism and occult forces, evokes this quality of the eternal search for all those who believe in its powers.

mation; in fact, they partake much more of the feminine element than they do of the masculine mode of energy. Between these planetary beings — called the Elohim, and the Central Sun, there is the Christ being, the heavenly archetypal man-woman, who has the evolution of humanity in charge, and who is the perfect pattern for humanity in their evolutionary progress. Although the Christ is spoken of as a male god, he is, in reality, both male and female. He is the crucified redeemer of all religions, for there is no masculine principle that has not its corresponding feminine principle. The masculine principle is one of energy, whilst the feminine is one of formation—giving form to everything in manifestation. The Mystery Schools teaching is as follows: "What was that power which held light fast-locked in primordial darkness awaiting the divine command, 'Let there be light?' What was the nature of that light which first glowed on and brooded over the world's expanse? It was the Christ spirit, the Builder, the Word, poured out from the Father into the womb of Chaos, the primitive Mother."

All evolution is the manifestation of energy through form. All progress rests upon man's ability to build higher and higher forms, so that a greater expansion of consciousness may be expressed. Up to the Piscean Age, our planet was still in an involutionary period, and for that reason the masculine was stressed, for it meant cultivating and developing the intellectual faculties. Now the period of Cosmic Regeneration has arrived, which means that new forms must be prepared through which the higher vibratory forces may work. This means that the feminine principle must again become a positive element, for the power of love must become the directing power on all planes of nature.

This new cosmic power will not only manifest throughout the Cosmic, but will permeate all life, for the time is at hand when the "lion and the lamb" shall lie down together. In other words, the evil conditions in the world must become dissolved in love, just as light dissolves darkness. When man learns to use his intellect for the good of humanity, he will gain spiritual power over life itself. The "lost Word" or Creative Fiat which, under the guidance of Great Teachers, man used in ancient Lemuria in the creation of plants and animals, will again be restored to man — not for the creation of the kingdoms below him, but to create bodies at will.

We speak of our planet as Mother Earth, because she is a formative sphere of evolution. The thought forms that become the myriad expressions of the life forces of the earth do not remain in the aura of the earth, but pass on into the inner mental world, and as these forms change, so likewise do the forms upon the earth change. Animals that once roamed the earth are no longer found here — their form having evolved to something higher.

The astral and mental worlds are also governed by absolute law, therefore law governs man's thoughts and feelings. Man's feelings are magnetic and make the mold or pattern of his desires, while thought releases the energy that brings these patterns into objective form. Whatever thoughts are held in the mind are accepted — consciously or unconsciously by the subconscious mind and sooner or later brought into objective form.

We live at the bottom of an immense ocean of atmosphere — stretching scores of miles above our heads. Air is matter and has great weight. At sea level, the atmosphere presses down with a force of 15 pounds on each square inch of body surface. Three miles high, the air becomes rarified, the lungs become larger, the number of red blood cells greater, the blood plasma becomes thicker and the blood pressure higher. We are all pulled to the center of the earth by the unseen force of gravity. Science tells us that inadequate nutrition (wrong foods) gravity pull, bent posture, body strains and inadequate aeration of the cells, due to wrong respiratory (breathing) habits literally pull the average person into an untimely grave. Science tells us that vitamins and minerals affect breathing. Posture affects it; likewise emotions, gravity, speed and temperament all play their roles. The body can exist for from forty to sixty days without food, five or six days without water, but only a few minutes without air.

Upon the use we make of the talents we possess, depends the amount of soul growth we attain. We are told that Buddha, after years of fruitless wandering, found that it was useless for him to seek wisdom at other men's doors. All but despairing, he flung himself down under the sacred Bo-tree. Here he held communion with himself, discovering, in the silence of his own soul, all the truths he had so vainly sought throughout his wanderings. Buddha remodeled Brahmanism and checked idolatry in India. Jesus came five hundred years after Gautama Buddha, and while Buddha taught that salvation could be reached thru the merit of right actions, Jesus taught how to become immortal here and now.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting, get understanding."

case where a deceased aunt bothered a teenage girl, but it was Jerry's girl friend who got us on the trail of Gertrude."

"It takes a woman to recognize the working methods of another woman," mused Harvey and chuckled, "I must have looked silly to her with that candle."

A few days later, Harvey called again and reported, "Peter, it worked! All is peace and quiet in Jerry's household. Gertrude has left for realms beyond, and the boys are able to sleep again." I said, "Fine, but what happened when they went to see my psychic friend?"

"Didn't she tell you?"

"She may have tried, but I was out of town a couple of days."

"Well, this is what happened," explained Harvey, "It seems that Gertrude had only wanted to scare Joe, and so simulate a suicide, but she took too many of those sleeping pills and so actually passed on. Joe felt that it was his fault that Gertrude had committed suicide, and he began to brood and drink heavily. Gertrude wanted to tell Jerry to see Joe and tell him that the suicide was a stupid accident, that she was sorry she had done it, and that Joe should stop drinking and brooding. When Jerry did this Gertrude left, but, you know Peter, I am sure sorry about one thing."

I asked, "About what?" and Harvey replied, "That we did not have a movie camera to photograph those swinging pictures. Without visual proof no one will believe our story."

I said, "Even that would not help, people would claim that it was trick photography."

"You are right," sighed Harvey, "Too bad, I would love to prove our tussle with a bonafide Poltergeist."

So would I, but up to this day, only Harvey and I, Jerry, his friend and his girl friend have witnessed the amazing phenomena which took place on the night when Harvey tried to lay a ghost with the Holy book and a candle. We have never been able to coax Gertrude back. That fickle woman has lost all interest in Joe and in earthly matters, and refuses to oblige with a repeat performance.

way, even if we cannot now comprehend it, and even though there seem to be cruel things along the way, the end result is for our good.

It can be heaven all the way along, if one makes it so, and gets up the tone of the soul to where nothing can worry or distress it.
There is a point of mind that can be reached where nothing distresses. It corresponds somewhat to insanity. Insanity is the unconscious depth, while what we mean is the conscious height, a peculiar oneness with divine law, enabling the soul to overlook all obstacles and know their causes. It is an effort to reach this point, but a great satisfaction, because then we see that all things we thought mistakes and wrong, were but symbols in meaning, and purposely given to try our strength.

I never feel the press of time,
except when I come near to earth.
And I wonder then how people live and work as well as they do, with the constant hurry to accomplish certain tasks before age comes. Surely, the conscious active life of an individual, striving to attain material things, is short, for more than half of his time is spent in sleep, idleness, sickness, and in waiting for others. It would be a terribly weak and foolish God to create man for such stupendous nothingness, if there was nothing beyond! But the fact that the climbing of the soul is unending, is a worthy cause, and the growing thru eternity to ripen into perfection is real benevolence.

The bands of spirits who are sent every morning to earth to bring up the prayers and needs of people are attracted most by those who carry good auric lights and who are bearing life courageously.
With such as these, they leave many measures of strength or renewed magnetic force. It is as if signs were hung out all the way, and our bands take note of them
all. Here in spirit, the law itself regulates everyone's magnetism,
but, on earth, the flesh is so thick,
and the customs and habits so dense, that the workings of this law seldom show thru. Yet, day by day, you are visited by bands of spirits, who do their utmost to adjust your magnetic flow to a healthful, normal flow. So you are never alone or without help in your upward striving.

Somehow, the souls of those in earth life find it hard to occupy two bodies at one time and still retain the memories of each one. It is a physical condition which would be more clearly understood, if the study of the chemical construction of the body was taught more extensively in the public schools. One body is composed of meat, dust, and opinions, disease, pains, and all manner of elemental atoms, and the other is composed of light, color, magnetic pulse, fine nerve filaments, throbs of spirit principle and spiritual fire. There is as much difference as between the root and bloom of a plant. The great Masters, who are continually being "born" into flesh, have the power of retaining consciousness through all such changes, for their memory is like a chain, each link fastened into the one before it. Such a one functions on the fifth sphere, where the soul has converted its experiences into right action, and has ceased to regard the past except as a series of developments, instead of a life of sorrow and grief.

There is the sixth-sphere condition, where the soul, by its progress in divine light, is able to join bands who have the task of sustaining some dark earth, helping to bring it forth from doubt and sin. There are higher spheres also,
but of these, I know but little.
Everyone here aspires for progress, just as, on earth, people aspire for money, because money is a means in which to rise, by earth standards.
And, if money was used according to the divine attributes, all would be well. But, it is usually used for selfish reasons, and thus the beautiful principle of equality is broken and defaced.

In spirit worlds there is no possible rising or progress of a soul by money, but entirely by the absorption of the true principles of life.
When a spirit comes into the borderland from earth, the first thing asked is not how much money he had, but rather, how much magnetic fire he has brought over with him! If the spirit we measure is below one hundred pulse motion, we know at once, that, while living on earth, he did not gain much spirituality, but was mostly mortal, with self-opinions, and cared for himself first, regardless of the rest of the race. A spirit with less than the one hundred pulse rate cannot exist in the fifth spheres, and must be treated and quickened by our spirit doctors.

It is not ministers here that save souls, but doctors. We strive to make the spirit body compact, complete in its power, without egotism, or pride of self, for we know the eternal Law will do the rest, and running easily through the delicate frame of outer spiritual causes, create beauty, holiness and truth.

All Churchly creeds will eventually outgrow themselves as they reach the spheres, where there is no money needed for prospective missions to the "heathen," or for salaries to the Ministers. Nuts die because they are cracked, and so beliefs, habits, opinions of earth die when truth begins to settle down upon them. The clay drops out, and the fine magnetic pulse begins, and old crude ways give way to the fresh and the new, full of harmony and truth. Be ye ever hopeful, ever watchful, ever on the upward way!

The End

I BELIEVE . . .

A woman was taken ill suddenly with heart trouble. She lost weight, could not eat well, neither could she sleep. Fatigued and plagued by fear, she wept herself into a state of nervous frenzy. Knowing that all possible medical help was being administered, with little result, she decided to call her Minister and ask for his counselling.
He immediately suggested recharging her Spiritual Machine with deep faith in God, sincere prayer and firm belief that the Lord would help her to her recovery. This she did and the results were truly amazing. She recovered materially as well as spiritually, and now leads a normal, healthy life.

There was a man in church last week with a radiant smile on his face and a look of real peace. He had just finished a long prison term for his crimes against society, and now was a free man. But, why was he in church? You would not think that a law breaker would want to attend church services, would you?
While in prison, he began going to church services, and, hearing the minister lecture and actually prove his words, he began to realize that God loved him also, and knew that just because he had broken laws it was no sign that the Lord would discard him completely. He repent, atoned for his misdeeds, resolved to start a fresh new life,
and when his prison term expired,
he continued to attend church services, living a true Christian life, finding happiness and security because of his belief in God.

Friends, believe without hesitation! Know sincerely that God is good, just, and merciful. He is our partner. The rich and the poor, the meek and mighty are one with Him. We are all His children. If He helps one, then surely He will help us all!

*Spring comes again, and thoughts turn, among other things, to gardens. Your garden may be a plot of land to cultivate, a single flower pot on a window sill, or better yet,
a blossoming in the heart.*

NECESSITY . . .

or we cling to them after they have passed their state of usefulness and have become a burden. However it is, the solution of our problems can be found where the problem is — inside of ourselves.

One morning as I was talking to a neighbor, we saw a new refrigerator being put into the home of another neighbor. Mrs. Lee, to whom I was talking, said, "Why is it that some people seem to get everything they want and others have to rake and scrape to get along?" "I think the way you feel is because you are too close to your blessings to appreciate them," I suggested. "The woman who is getting the nice refrigerator hasn't any children while you have seven. Would you trade one of them for all she has?" "Oh, heavens, no!" she said, emphatically. "They make me lots of work, but they are worth it." Time has passed and she has a nice refrigerator and still has her happy brood. When she began to appreciate what she had, it was not long until things began to improve in other ways.

Too many of us pray for a change in existing conditions, but we make no provisions for the reception of such a change. We want things, but we doubt very much if we will get them, and continue condemning the things we already have. We seldom stop to think that everything that is of great importance to humanity is due to someone's faith in the unseen, and that faith was eventually rewarded. "Faith looks into the unseen and fastens its gaze on a solid reality." When we have learned to do this, we will not be complaining of lack. We will still have experiences, but they will not be unsolvable problems.

"You always get everything you want," was said to a woman, who seemed to be very fortunate. "Yes, I usually do," she replied, "and I'll tell you just how I do it. When I have definitely made up my mind to anything, and I feel assured that it is right that I should have it, I get busy and do everything I can to answer my own prayers — I pray and I hustle."

Many have invoked the Law of Increase by blessing everything they already had, seeing new beauty and usefulness in things they had formerly either ignored or condemned, while others have been more successful by preparing to receive. One stresses gratitude and the other expectation, but both are backed by a "something" intangible to the senses but very real in its action. Both gratitude and expectation are powerful forces that compel this Power into expression. One woman told me that whenever she wanted a new dress, she went through her wardrobe and selected something that would be useful to another and gave it away, and the new dress never failed to materialize, in some way.

Since most people are unaware of their inherent potentialities, they look for something outside of themselves to come to their aid. The so-called "self-made man" is an impossibility to them. They feel that he must have had more aid than he acknowledged. They have not reached the place where the prod of necessity has been urgent enough to reveal their latent ability as well as the opportunities that are lying all around them.

"If I only had the money," is the cry everywhere, and from all classes of people, regardless of the undisputable evidence that easily acquired money does vastly more harm than good, and seldom stays long in the hand that did not earn it. Money, in the right hands, is a valuable possession, that is, if it does not remain a possession too long. The right hands are usually the hands that have, at least, participated in earning it.

Money, like everything else, was made for use and not to be hoarded, and when anyone acquires a goodly amount of it, and refuses to allow it to circulate for the benefit of his fellowmen, he is abusing it, and sooner or later will pay the penalty by either losing it, or his ability to enjoy it. The possession of money can never really benefit a man unless it inspires a latent ability.

Where would civilization be today if everyone had been robbed of the necessity of making an effort by having plenty of money, or its equivalent? How many people do you know that have done anything worthwhile without being forced to do so, through necessity? How many people, when they are separated from their possessions and the results of them, are above the ordinary? Too often people are convinced that money will cover a multitude of sins, both of omission and commission, and go confidently on their way, pushing aside their superiors, but eventually the Law, that is no respecter of persons, demands a settlement.

Wishing, alone, is of little value, and the one who is always wishing for something to come his way, seldom puts forth much individual effort. It is only when necessity seeks him out and forces him to develop a back-bone instead of a wish-bone that he realizes that both the gift and the giver are latent within himself.

What a wonderful blessing necessity is. It has been truly said, "Necessity is the mother of invention," and to necessity, recognized or unrecognized, we owe all that we have today. Necessity is older than money and has a prior right to our homage. Study yourself. If you are a success, that is, a real success, and you alone know whether you are or not, do you not owe it to necessity?

I met a woman, some time ago, who had been an invalid for a number of years, and she expressed the hope that she would again take her place in the world's activities. She acknowledged that she seldom had much pain — just a great weakness. Her appetite was good and she was at a loss to understand why she did not regain her former strength. I noticed that she made very little effort to move around and asked her how she expected to gain strength, if she did not use all she had at the present time. Noticing a stairway, leading to the basement, I asked her, if she saw a baby creeping toward it, if she thought she could save it. She looked surprised, as she answered, "Why, of course I could!" "Then you have all the strength you need, if you will just use it," I assured her.

A month later, I met her on the street and I was surprised at her improved appearance. She thanked me for the "jolt" I had given her, and said she had decided to take my advice and not wait for necessity.

There is one thing, however, that we cannot do without, and it is worth any price it might cost us, as well as being a powerful asset — self-respect. No one can be truly successful without it. What does it all amount to if we pile up fabulous possessions, and know within our own souls that we have not been true to ourselves? Necessity never forces a loss of self-respect upon anyone — there is always a way out, or around the difficulty, and faith and determination will find it.

As we read many wonderful stories of achievement, and realize that only a small portion of them are held up to public attention, we are forced to conclude that necessity has done more to develop latent ability, and, therefore, added more to the comfort and luxury of the world today than all else combined. And, when next she beckons to you, greet her with a smile, for her forbidding appearance may be but a mask, covering the opportunity you have long been seeking.

which was for all ages and for the physical and spiritual improvement of both sexes. As Sir Arthur Conan Doyle remarked, "Davis was a miracle man, the inspired, learned, uneducated apostle of the new dispensation." His work for spirit has been lasting and his teaching is the one modern influence, which, if followed, could recast the modern world into a "Summerland," a term he used for Paradise.

But, Davis is an illustration of what spirit can do for a person. Never was there a lad with fewer natural advantages. Feeble in body, starved in mind. Up to sixteen years of age, he had read but one book. Yet, within him, lurked such spiritual forces that by the time he was nineteen he had written one of the most profound books of philosophy ever produced. He pictured himself with an unusually small head, with youth's mental capacity unusually limited—his lungs weak and unexpanded, his manners were rough and awkward. He knew nothing of grammar and had not associated with literary or scientific persons. Yet early, while in the fields, he heard gentle spirit voices that gave him advice and comfort. Clairvoyance followed clairaudience. His powers became recognized and were experimented with by a traveling showman who exhibited the wonders of mesmerism in his village.

Davis then became known as having remarkable clairvoyant ability. These powers of his were later developed by a pioneer thinker, a tailor and a hypnotist named Levingston, who abandoned his own business and devoted his whole time to working with "Davis, of the X-ray eyes," using him for diagnosis of disease. The lad could see without eyes and see things not seen in any case by human vision. This gift had first been used as a sort of amusement in reading the engraved letters on the watches of assembled rustics, when Davis' eyes were bandaged.

Now, under Levingston, the human body became transparent to his spirit eyes. Each organ stood out clearly, and with a special radiance of its own, which was dimmed in case of disease. The boy could diagnose those both near and far, as his etheric body could be liberated by the magnetic manipulation of his employer and sent forth to return with desired information. Sometimes his etheric body roamed at will, and he described in wonderful passages, what he saw—a translucent earth beneath him with the great veins of mineral beds shining through like masses of molten metal, each with its own fiery radiance. Also, he could quote, in trance, various languages unknown to him, such as Hebrew, and quote them accurately.

When Davis was a lad of seventeen, he had an unforgettable experience. He wandered away from home in a state of semi-trance, and found himself, the next morning, some forty miles away in the mountains. Here he met two venerable men who, later, he declared to be Galen, a Greek physician who lived in the second century, A.D., and Swedenborg, who had passed to spirit some seventy or more years before. This meeting set him afire with enthusiasm. His mind was illuminated, and he returned, knowing what his work was to be, that he was to become the apostle of a new philosophy.

About a year after this experience, he began a different type of work, with a Dr. Lyon as his "magnetizer," and in trance. For fifteen months, he dictated his monumental book, The Principles Of Nature, Her Divine Revelation, and a Voice to Mankind. Lyon repeated each sentence as Davis uttered it, and a Reverend William Fishbough, as scribe, took down the words. The lad claimed that Swedenborg possessed him. After this great work, Davis was able to dispense with any "magnetizer," and by voluntary effort, throw himself into a "superior condition," as he called the trance state. When returning, he was able to remember all his inner perceptions and visions, and so was able to write them down.

Of this first great work, Dr. George Bush, a Swedenborgian, and Professor of Hebrew at New York University (who had heard Davis quote Hebrew accurately, never knowing anything of the language) said, "Taken as a whole, the work is a profound and elaborate discussion of the philosophy of the universe, and for grandeur of conception, soundness of principle, clearness of illustration, order of arrangement, and encyclopedic range of subjects, I know no work of any single mind that will bear away from it the palm." The book was received with enormous interest and passed through forty-four successive editions. Its originality has never been contested. The language and ideas, for the most part, are identical with those of Swedenborg, Davis' supposed Mentor or spirit Guide. Its publication was made possible through the generosity of a woman, much older than himself, whom he married.

Without help from a magnetizer or scribe, Davis then began the first of forty volumes of The Great Harmonia, a message to the world in harmony with Hermetic Science, of which he was quite unconscious, revealing the natural, spiritual, and celestial universe. Always a great educator, in his book Physician And Harbinger Of Health, Davis, as a forerunner of psycho-somatic medicine, revealed that all disease, in its origin, is mental and spiritual, and not physical, as is generally believed. This revelation amounted to a new discovery greater than that of Harvey and Jenner combined. He showed that one must obey the laws of God and Nature if one would be healthy. "If you wish to have a pure nature," he said, "and be clad in a beautiful spiritual body at death, feed on better substances, drink better fluids, and habitually think better thoughts. Everything unworthy will linger to darken the vestibule of Wisdom's immortal Temple."

He earned and received his degree, M.D., from the United States Medical College of New York. He also gave trance lectures, before the learned ones, and these lectures were incorporated in his Principles Of Nature, the book that traces the evolution of the Universe from its beginning as an "ocean of liquid fire." Moreover, he was connected with a number of "reform" movements, and worked editorially with several periodicals, among others, The Herald Of Progress. His description of how the soul passes out of the body at death is the first such record, and is still quoted as a classic. It was published in his book, Death And After-Life. He sat by the dying woman, described and observed every detail of the soul's departure.

Marvelous revelations, teachings, predicted discoveries, are included in his writings. In his Penetralia, 1872, which he preferred of all his writings, because it was the "wisest," he gave an account of an automobile, describing the engine and the fuel used for motive power.

LOVE OFFERING

Also, in the same book, he alluded to the airplane as only waiting the development of the power referred to in his description of the automobile. All this information Dr. Davis received from the spirit world, as nothing was published at the time on these subjects. Regarding the predicted motor car, he wrote:

"Look out about these days for carriages and traveling saloons on country roads—without horses, without steam, without any visible motive power, moving at great speed and with far more safety than at present. Carriages will be moved by a strange, beautiful, and simple mixture of aqueous and atmospheric gases—so equally condensed, so simply ignited, and so imparted by the machine, somewhat resembling fire engines, as to be entirely concealed and manageable between the forward wheels."

He goes on to say that these vehicles will prevent many embarrassments now experienced by persons living in thinly populated territories, and that the first requisite for these "land-locomotives" will be good roads, upon which the engine without the horse may travel with great rapidity. These carriages he sees to be of uncomplicated construction.

Davis also predicted the typewriter in 1856. The first typewriter was an American invention dating from 1868, and most of them were of much later date. He says:

"I am almost moved to invent an automatic psychographer, that is, an artificial soul-writer. It may be constructed somewhat like a piano, one brace or scale of keys to represent the elementary souls; another, a lower tier to represent a combination, and still another for a rapid recombination, so that a person, instead of playing a piece of music, may touch off a sermon or a poem."

Davis was a great traveler in the astral worlds and on other planets. He claimed that all but the three outer ones he knew to be inhabited, some of them with beings vastly superior to ours. At this time, only seven planets were known to science, but he speaks of nine. Before the discovery of the eighth planet, Davis revealed the planet's density, which statement agreed with later findings. The ninth planet, Pluto, which he referred to, was not discovered until 1930, long after his passing to spirit.

In his astral travels, he saw the spiritual Lyceums of the Summerland, and in 1863, founded the Spiritualist Progressive Lyceum at a meeting held in New York City, a plan to unfold and actualize on earth, partially at least, a progressive juvenile assemblage like those beyond, whither children are constantly going from earth and received into groups for improvement, growth, and graduation. He says the Lyceum is "one of the most classical, progressive, and musical brotherhoods in the homeland of the Good, the True, and the Beautiful."

Children and also adults have their lessons and their play, take part in music, singing, marching, and are arranged in groups according to their ages, as best suited for their nature and the unfoldment of their powers. He was so pleased with what he saw that he wanted duplicates on earth where people could be taught how to grow, to be wise, good, true, with a correct understanding of their bodies and souls, as well as a knowledge of the true conditions existing in the Spirit World, and of the effect their lives lived on earth would have upon the conditions of their souls when they entered the Spirit World. Of course, the organizing and conducting of the Lyceums on earth depend largely upon the conditions needed and available where organized. These Lyceums take the place of the orthodox Sunday Schools.

In his visions and in his travels, Dr. Davis saw a life that resembled that of earth, a life semi-material, with pleasures and pursuits that would appeal to our natures, which had, by no means, been changed by death. He saw study for the studious, congenial tasks for the energetic, art for the artistic, beauty for the lover of Nature. He saw graduated phases of spiritual life, through which one slowly rose to the sublime and the celestial. He saw, also, the present universe dissolve once more into the fire-mist from which it had consolidated, and then consolidate once more to form the stage on which a higher evolution can take place—the highest class here starting as the lowest class there. This process he saw renew itself innumerable times, covering trillions of years, and ever working towards refinement and purification.

The object of life was to qualify for advancement in this tremendous scheme, and the best method of human progress is to get away from evil, from sins as they are commonly called, and especially from bigotry, narrowness, hardness, which are blemishes here and yonder in the permanent spirit. For this purpose, a return to the simple life, simple beliefs, and to primitive brotherhood are essential. The great obstacles to racial progress, he said, are money, alcohol, lust, violence, priesthood, and others.

In his eighties, the great seer kept a small book shop in Boston, and in a little back room prescribed herbal remedies, as a professional doctor. When Professor Lutoslawsky, a distinguished Polish psychologist and mystic, a guest of Dr. William James, found the seer and they shook hands, he said to Davis, "Why, you are Swedenborg!" Davis said in an off-hand way, "Yes, I am." Then he turned to place a bottle on a shelf. Some have wondered if Davis was joking, or really considered himself the spirit of Swedenborg back on earth. But, both men were serious. When the visitor asked how long Davis would be on earth, looking around his little room, he said, "I have chores enough to keep me about three years, and then I will be going." He passed on three years later, in 1910.

He has spoken, however, to the writer several times, and just recently, the other day, to say, among other things:

"I am the seer of Poughkeepsie and greet you, and am glad to share a thought or two with you and with your readers. There is a need today and in coming days for people like I was, one who felt a great joy to serve. I did much you are doing, and worked in the educational field, healed, lectured, and wrote. The greatest need now is in the healing and medical field. I would have a real educational program of trained students in a well-established institution to diagnose disease, accurately as I did—then there would be similar work as before."

"The thought also, that I would leave to all, is to use the best available in the truth; search and seek for the highest. Do not be content with 'I think.' People do not want what you think, they want 'I know.' And we certainly want people educated. Take time to thoroughly educate yourselves to the country you live in—know its teachings, laws, manners, purposes. Be able to hold your place among the spiritual people of the world. Do not clothe yourself with a title to add to your prestige, but make certain you earn it and that you use it to serve the needs of your fellow traveler. As you receive, bless, and serve. Among my admonitions is my meager staff, as I call it—'In all instances keep an even mind'."

PROPOSED CENTER . . .

dividuals engaged in research, development and education in the psychic, esoteric, new age and related fields of scientific research bearing upon human consciousness and its evolution.

A committee of reputable experts in the diversified fields of paranormal phenomena met in public forum several weeks ago to get the reaction of leaders of local and national groups to their proposal to establish the first "chamber of commerce" of so-called psychic associations. This plan to form the scattered, ineffectual individuals and groups into a powerful, well-organized association with a central headquarters in Los Angeles was enthusiastically received.

This organizational committee is composed of William Foos, head of True Sight Church, Dr. Robert E. Shaffer, minister and psychologist, Gloria Lee of Kosmon Research, Ann Graham, yoga, Wayne Dunbar, spiritual psychologist, Dr. Gina Cerminara, author and lecturer, William King, clairvoyant diagnostic and often called the modern Edgar Cayce, Stanley Marcus, social sciences, Rev. Franklin Loehr of "prayer on plants" fame, and head of the Religious Research Foundation, Dr. Michael Cuypers, an authority of psychic art and science, but better known for his ability as a psychic healer, and Dr. Victor Ahlheim, known in England and America as a leading authority and instructor of hypnosis.

Pleased with the initial response to its proposal, the committee prepared questionnaires to be sent to several thousand leaders of study and research groups throughout America. This response was also extremely encouraging, as 90% of the replies favored a federation of psychic groups and 75% were willing to work in the organizational field to make the proposal a success.

The research center is intended to include offices, classrooms, laboratory equipment, library, cooperative publicity, printshop, lecture rooms, living quarters for guest speakers, secretarial services, etc. The facilities will be available to all members locally, at all times, and to out of state members by reservation. A strict code of ethics and membership requirements is planned to give the center the national prestige and reputation necessary for successful operation.

All member groups, though joined in a forceful federation, will still retain their individual leaders, activities and personalities. Though bound by the laws and regulations of the center, which apply to all members, the joining groups will function as individual entities co-operating and offering knowledge to all other members, yet not forcing their teachings upon any one.

The size and location of the center has not yet been determined, pending a more complete analysis of questionnaires, yet to be mailed to interested parties. At present, however, a fund of approximately $300,000 is available for the establishment of the center and the final determination of size and location will depend upon additional funds to be pledged.

Groups or individuals interested in the proposed center can obtain more information and questionnaires by writing to "Associated Groups, 3050 West Seventh St., Los Angeles 5, California." Persons interested in forming similar centers, in other parts of the nation, are also invited to write for further details.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING . . .

We would also find that, no matter what the material return, it would prove to be enough for our needs, if we learn of the Father within us, and uncover and liberate that power that is within each of us. But no one can do it for us. We have to seek for ourselves, for it comes to each of us in a different way. We have become so accustomed to mass teaching and mass thinking — we are not used to being different or apart from the crowd!

If we had been taught on the basis of these things, we might now have that Kingdom the disciples were constantly hoping, praying and looking for, but even they forgot that Truth never stays still, else it becomes stagnant! Truth is always learning and always seeking; always moving forward — What are you doing???

*If you would be happy,
make somebody glad,*

*And the joy you are giving away,
And the sunshine you bring to hearts that are sad,*

Will shine in your heart someday.
