THE PRAYER OF THE CHALICE

Father, to Thee I raise my whole being,
— a vessel emptied of self. Accept, Lord, this my emptiness, and so fill me with Thyself — Thy Light, Thy Love, Thy Life — that these Thy precious Gifts may radiate through me and overflow the chalice of my heart into the hearts of all with whom I come in contact this day revealing unto them
the beauty of Thy Joy and Wholeness
the serenity
of Thy Peace
which nothing can destroy.

Becoming Spiritual Minded

by REV. M. LAMAR KEENE

Tampa, Florida

OFTEN we find our lives beset by storms of conflict, and the white heat of pressure is brought to bear upon us. This continuing process of tempering is inevitable. One thing is certain, however, for whatever the situation, the spiritual minded man will surmount it. He has learned the all-important value of every experience. To him, each one signifies the fiery furnace that purifies the gold, the desert wanderings that lead to a Canaan land flowing with milk and honey.

LET us think for a moment what it means to be spiritual minded. You may not have been raised in a Christian environment; your home life may have been or still may be, dedicated to the demands of this world. Still - - you can become spiritual minded. The Master Jesus termed this inward awakening as re-birth. A more easily understood term, from the metaphysical viewpoint, would be that of spiritual illumination or enlightenment. This does not consist, as is often taught, of one single experience, but of many, occurring in various ways to create a spiritual mind.

THIS awakening is accompanied by such characteristics as the deep conviction that a higher life can be expressed; the hunger for peace of mind; the thirst for Truth; the compassionate urge to help struggling humanity; and above all, honesty and courage to face oneself and admit wrong thinking. These are all requisites for a spiritual mind.

OBSERVATION will show that the greater number of those who attend our churches are interested solely in the phenomena, and, unfortunately, the philosophy that would bring them a happy existence becomes simply an unnecessary part of the service. Some even go so far as to covet spiritual gifts, and see no need to present to those attending a spiritual life through which they may function better. Desecrated channels contaminate the pure waters that flow from spiritual sources. It would be as wise to place spiritual gifts in the hands of such people as it would be to place a an unruly child. All important is the motive in back of our desires. Right motives are only cultivated by right thinking - - the spiritual mind, if you please.

THERE are those who are confronted with the deeper truth, but remain persistent in their determination to hold fast to erroneous teachings. Paul says in his epistle to the Hebrews, "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye Transformed by the Renewing of your minds that ye may prove what is good and acceptable and the perfect will of God." We are living epistles read by men. It behooves all of us to be flexible enough in thought to rid our minds of needless and non-productive thoughts. Progression in spiritual thinking prevents stagnation and encourages deeper development.

THE spiritual minded person readily accepts the bitter as well as the sweet, with the knowledge and realization that all things work together for good. He sees beyond his present status, and rejoices in the knowledge that every experience that comes his way is Divinely ordained by Infinite Intelligence. In his progression, he has come to understand that tribulation worketh patience, and patience ... experience, and experience ... hope, and hope maketh man not ashamed. Confident is he; though often he stumbles, he quickly rises, knowing that if he fights the good fight of faith, there will be a glorious victory to follow. In the hour of distress, he turns his thoughts inward and finds in silence a reservoir of strength and sustaining joy. From him flows a river of love in which those caught by trouble's web may bathe and secure new strength to carry on. His memorial is forever erected in the hearts of those his life has blessed. He towers above cheap criticism, seeing his adversaries who are governed by ignorance only through the eyes of love and understanding.

THE spiritual mind holds the key to every problem, for it has mastered the true art of living.

Lincoln

IN THE years since Lincoln's death, there has been wide discussion as to whether or not he was actually a Spiritualist . . . at least in the sense of what we think of as a Spiritualist today.

Although Lincoln frequently emphasized that he was not identified with any particular religious group, we know that he did have many private seances with the leading mediums of that day while he was in The White House. Among them were the famous Charles Foster of Salem, Massachusetts, Mrs. Lucy A. Hamilton, Charles Colchester, Nettie Colburn, and many others.

It is well known that Mrs. Lincoln was deeply interested in Spiritualism. During the time she was First Lady in The White House, and after, Mrs. Lincoln was deeply influenced by the spiritual messages she received through prominent mediums of that day.

Miss Nettie Colburn, one of the youngest and most outstanding mediums of the 1860's, often was a guest at The White House where she held private seances for both The President and Mrs. Lincoln. On these occasions, Miss Colburn was usually accompanied by her devoted friend, Mrs. Miller.

After the close of the Civil War when she married Mr. Maynard and lived at White Plains, New York, Miss Colburn wrote a most interesting book on her experiences at The White House during Lincoln's first administration. Miss Colburn's book was published under her full name, Nettie Colburn Maynard, entitled, "Was Abraham Lincoln a Spiritualist?"

In the concluding chapters of this book there are numerous statements and sworn affidavits. These were prepared specially for Mrs. Maynard (Miss Colburn) by some of the highest officials and statesmen in Washington at the time of the Civil War. Each of these sworn statements formally affirms the truth of Mrs. Maynard's close association in seances with the Lincoln family at The White House.

Miss Colburn held her first private seance for Mrs. Lincoln at the home of a mutual friend. At this first seance she remained "under control" for one full hour. As she described it later, a new and powerful entity seemed to take possession of her. She spoke to Mrs. Lincoln while entranced with an amazing clearness. Evidently her deep sincerity had a very moving effect on Mrs. Lincoln. At the end of the seance, Mrs. Lincoln exclaimed: "This young lady must not leave Washington. I feel she must stay here, and Mr. Lincoln must hear what we have heard. It is all-important, and he must hear it."

Within the next few days, Miss Colburn received her first invitation to hold a private seance at The White House for The President and Mrs. Lincoln. That was December, 1862 with the Civil War at its height.

Mrs. Lincoln received Miss Colburn and her friends, Mrs. Miller and Mr. Laurie, in the beautiful Red Room of The White House. That night Mrs. Lincoln was a most charming hostess in shining silk, with roses in her hair. President Lincoln, in a much more relaxed mood than usual, joined the little group later in the evening.

At this first seance in The White House, Miss Colburn fell into a deep trance almost immediately. Her controls "over there" spoke forcibly and distinctly to President Lincoln of things which only he seemed really to understand.

Among the most important things Miss Colburn emphasized while she was entranced was that Lincoln should proceed immediately with all the authority of his office to put into effect The Emancipation Proclamation. Those Higher Powers in The Great Beyond, through the mediumship of Miss Colburn, emphasized again and again that he should not delay the Proclamation beyond the first of the year.

Near the close of this most eventful seance, these "unseen powers" assured Lincoln that The Emancipation Proclamation eventually would become the crowning event of his career and his life.

During this first seance in the Red Room of The White House, those present seemed to forget the fact that Miss Colburn was only a very young girl. Actually, in appearance she was almost child-like. On that occasion, while she was entranced, her being seemed to acquire a strength and a force far beyond her years. Everyone sensed that some strong masculine entity was delivering his thoughts and directions through her marvelous mediumship.

After that first seance, The President obviously was impressed. Turning to Miss Colburn, he said quietly: "My child, you possess a most singular gift; that it is of God, I have no doubt. I thank you for coming here tonight. It is more important than perhaps anyone present can understand."

That evening when the seance was over, another most unusual thing happened. Mrs. Miller, who was an excellent pianist and a physical medium also, at the request of Mrs. Lincoln agreed to a test performance.

Mrs. Miller placed her hand on the big grand piano. Then, standing a full arms length away from the instrument, asked The President to place the palm of his hand on the instrument also. Immediately that huge instrument began to rise and fall from the floor in perfect timing to Mrs. Miller's up and down gestures. As this astonishing performance continued, President Lincoln said, with his quaint smile, "I think we can hold that instrument down." Thereupon, he, Mr. Somes, and another gentleman climbed up on the piano and sat down - - side by side. As soon as they were seated on the instrument, Mrs. Miller again placed the palm of her hand on the piano. Instantly, even with all that added weight, the piano started to move up and down in the same manner and in the same perfect rhythm.

After this almost unbelievable performance, President Lincoln frankly acknowledged, along with all the others present, that there must be some invisible power in operation. He also added in the presence of all those assembled, that if anyone ever doubted the fact that the instrument did move up and down in this manner they "should bring such a person here and when the piano seems to rise, have him slip his foot under the leg and be convinced by the weight of the evidence resting upon his understanding."

At one of Miss Colburn's later seances in The White House when the war was at its most desperate point, she was able to give some most valuable suggestions to The President with the help of her Guide, Dr. Bamford. Dr. Bamford was an elderly gentleman who had passed on some years previously.

Of all the guides who controlled Miss Colburn, he was the one most favored by Lincoln. Dr. Bamford's quaint methods of expressing himself and his genuinely old-fashioned manner seemed to have a very pleasing effect on President Lincoln.

At this seance when Dr. Bamford took control, he proceeded at once to relate through Miss Colburn the shocking disobedience of the Union soldiers at the front. This tragic state of affairs had not been fully recognized at that time by anyone present, other than by President Lincoln.

After Dr. Bamford had described the almost complete breakdown of army discipline, he added that he would be glad to give The President the correct solution.

To this suggestion, Lincoln replied, "You seem to understand the situation. Can you point out the remedy?" Dr. Bamford answered, "Go in person to the front, taking with you your wife and children, leaving behind your official dignity and all manner of display. Resist the importunities of officials to accompany you, and take only such attendants as may be absolutely necessary; avoid the high officers, and seek the private tents of the soldiers. Inquire into their grievances; show yourself to be what you are, 'The Father of your People.' Make them feel that you are interested in their sufferings, and that you are not unmindful of the many trials which beset them in their march through the dismal swamps, whereby both their courage and numbers have been depleted."

Lincoln replied, "If that will do any good, it is easily done."

Dr. Bamford replied through Miss Colburn, "It will do all that is required. It will unite the soldiers as one man. It will unite them to you in bands of steel. And now, if you would prevent a serious, if not fatal, disaster to your cause, let the news be promulgated at once, and disseminated throughout the camp of the Army of the Potomac. Have it scattered broadcast that you are on the eve of visiting the front, that you are not talking of it, but that it is settled that you are going, and are now getting into readiness. This will stop the insubordination and hold the soldiers in check."

Lincoln replied, "It shall be done, Dr. Bamford."

As Miss Colburn and her friends were leaving The White House that night, Mrs. Lincoln pointed out a handsome bust of President Lincoln which had arrived that afternoon.

This beautiful bust of The President was standing on a marble topped table in front of one of the stately pier glasses in the Red Room. Surrounded by beautiful ferns and roses, it appeared almost life-like in the soft glow of those crystal chandeliers.

While admiring this beautiful statue, Miss Colburn silently gave thanks to her friends on "the other side of life" and was deeply grateful for the help and assurance they had given her in aiding The President.

In speaking of Miss Colburn's remarkable gift from The Great Beyond, Abraham Lincoln once told Mr. Somes, a mutual friend:

"I am not prepared to describe the intelligence that controls this young girl's organism. She certainly could have no knowledge of the facts communicated to me, nor of what was transpiring in my Cabinet meeting prior to coming to this seance, nor of affairs at the front, nor regarding transpiring events which are known to me only, and which I have not imparted to any

I WHO am your beloved Master and your Wayshower take the initiative to come into your hearts and into your lives through the mediumship of one whose life so far has coincided with my way of life to let you know that my coming to earth will be a great surprise to those whose way of life as yet has not been my way . . . but will be. As soon as I will have made my entrance upon this world, everything not of value in the coming New Age will be done away with. I would talk with you heart to heart that all of you who will be led and guided into such an outstanding way of life as to become what God our Father has had in His Mind we should be.

My coming to earth will be of such a nature as for all to know that it has come from Him who is the source of all our good. Those whose way of life so far has not been with Him, or for Him, will be altered to such a degree as to become aware that He is the Giver of all our good, whether small or large. Mankind will know in its heart that it is His love that will let us come into that for which we have been waiting - - - the new Spiritual Age dawning upon the horizon. My love and compassion will be the staff and the shield to those whose love for me has been tried and tested. So it will be when upheaval rages in the hearts and minds of those whose way of life as yet has not been my way, but who will be with me when the time of tribulation will let them quake for fear, for the end is not as yet in sight, but will be soon. It is He whose wish and will it is that the days of tribulation shall be shortened due to the love of Him who has demonstrated His love to His Father when I, who am His resurrected Son, ask for leniency for His wayward children who are in a quandry, not knowing which way to turn. I can only say that my Father's love will let me come, despite the opinion of many of my followers whose way of life has been such an ordeal that they cannot conceive anything that is of enduring happiness. Such is His love that what He will do for us will be His blessing that will be us unto All Eternity.

Such is His love, that He, whose presence is in our hearts will let us be together, not alone in Spirit and soul, but in the body of the Church of Christ, which - - when being established - - will be the church of all nations, regardless of race or color.

All this will be when the Son Man will appear in the clouds surrounded by my angels who have made for themselves a place in God's Heart. Those who are with Him are also for Him, and hear the small, still voice, which, when taken seriously tells which way to go. This is either clairaudience or mental telepathy, as the scientists call it.

We are all endowed with the same capabilities. When we know this we will pray that what is our birthright will come to the surface of our minds and do all in its power to fulfill our innermost desires, large or small. When we dwell upon that, our minds become like a clear pool where the spiritual vibrations sink into its deep well, clamoring to be released into those minds open to the influx of His all abiding and all pervading power.

It stands to reason that this is the force which comes to all whose hearts, minds and souls are in full At-One-Ment with Him who has endowed us with all of His aptitudes. It is what He himself is, namely, the I AM, which, when being fully realized, will say to us: "I Am That I Am," meaning - - we are the replica of the Divine Presence within. We are all of that Divine Presence; whether we know it or not does not make any difference to our friends as they are also the same as we are. To know that God is, always has been, and always will be is of supreme value.

My heart is in full accord with Him who has sent me as your Redeemer from the materialism which has kept you in bondage for centuries. We are becoming fully informed as to what the mode of life will be in our next incarnation, as our bodies have taken on the perfections of the God-Presence, also called the Causal Body, which will be the likeness of the body now ours. There is no one excepted. We must all adhere to the same law which has been constituted by our Creator whose image and likeness we are. This means that we all possess His inherent spiritual qualities, which, when being dwelt upon, bring us to the throne of Him who is our all, our life, and our whole being, and who will be with us unto All Eternity.

All of this has been prophesied centuries ago. We are now coming to the fulfillment of our dreams and desires inspired by Him. He who is our Heavenly Father will send me to earth to reign with a scepter of Love, Joy and Peace. This is our birthright, having been forfeited so far by our willfulness to lead the kind of life we want to lead. However, as God our Father has given us the right to do as we please, we will not lose our heritage which may become like a pot of ashes or a pot of gold - - according to our love for Him whose leadership will portray the wisdom and the power of the God within.

It is with the utmost understanding of the function of the conscious mind that I make the statement that those who deny my Fatherhood will see the error of their thoughts, as the vibrations will be so spiritual that nothing else will matter, only the knowledge that Spirit is all there is, and all there is, is God. This is not mere theory, but a wisdom which has come down through the ages.

We are all interwoven in that One Mind which is God - - pure Spirit, pure Consciousness, pure Wisdom. It is He, our Creator, who will see to it that we will be what He has in His Mind we shall be . . . His most beloved Sons and Daughters who will be in His Kingdom of Love, Joy and Peace before long.

PROOF OF A PRESENCE

by Esther Hendersbott
Vicksburg, Michigan

Recently my husband and I received convincing proof of a presence in our midst, apparently seeking recognition. As my husband is employed in the daytime, often I am at a loss to find useful entertainment or occupation. Consequently, I time myself to work a few hours each day in my garden, hoeing and weeding. To be more specific - - I take my alarm clock along to do this.

One morning my husband wound my alarm clock for me as usual, and replaced it on the sewing machine in front of the bed where it is normally kept. Having completed my breakfast duties, I decided to do some work in the garden and went to get my clock. When I went to pick it up - - to my amazement, it was gone! My husband wears a wrist watch, so I knew he would have no use for the clock. So - I went to work without the clock.

The incident slipped from my mind until it came time for me to return in the afternoon. Still no clock! So then I began a systematic search thinking it might have been knocked off the sewing machine and not been observed - - but to no avail. It was gone from my bedroom.

When I returned to the room again about three in the afternoon, there to my further amazement was the time-piece ticking placidly away on the sewing machine. Evidently our mischievous guest felt convinced we were aware of his presence in our midst.

A GROWING FAMILY

by Patricia Weed
Port Jervis, New York

For the past five years, my daughter, Pam, who is now eight years old, has had constant spirit companionship. These dear spirit children spend much of their time with us.

I will never forget the day a little girl named Penny came to stay with us. We were on a family trip to the cemetery where we have a family plot. It was a beautiful spring day, and little Pam was playing off by herself and friends.

She was very deep in conversation with an unseen friend, when she came running up to me, all excited, asking, "Please, could we have one more little spirit friend come home with us?" Her eyes were filled with anticipation. I told her that if this new friend loved Jesus as she did, we would welcome her.

In a few minutes Pam came running back holding her little unseen friend by the hand. She told me her friend's name was Penny, and that she wanted to be my little girl since she didn't have a mommy or daddy. Since that day Penny has been an important part of our life. A few months later on while my daughter and I were talking with this beautiful spirit, she apported to Pam a bright, shiny Penny for her to keep by which to remember her always.

We have had so many wonderful experiences with these beautiful children on the other side of life. What a thrill it is to hear a ball being bounced down the stairs or see a balloon suddenly take off. At present we have five little spirit girls and two boys who bring us love, joy, and happiness each day of our lives. Three years ago God sent to us another gifted little girl, and we look forward to even more spirit children to be with us soon.

A PROMISE IS A PROMISE

by I. C. Lengyel

EVERYONE in a little mountain hospital where she was a patient loved Larque - - French-Canadian, seventeen, with auburn curls and eyes as bright as glowing candles. She had the fresh and delicate coloring of early Spring. And when the sun smiled through the open window on the little gold ribbon she wore in her hair, her curls lit up like embers.

I was an orderly, a gangling youth of eighteen, and Larque became the queen of my heart. Every morning, I filled a vase with wild flowers for her. She touched them with delicate finger-tips, and her face took on a lovely look of happiness and longing. There was a kind of communion between us even though we seldom talked.

As the weeks dragged on, it became evident that the young girl was nearing transition. One night, she turned to me, her eyes deep and unfathomable, and asked, "Do you think I might recover?" I attempted to reassure her, but she only laughed at my feeble efforts. "You know, Mon Dieu and I have a little understanding. Come closer, I'll whisper it to you."

Two nights later, Larque died.

Every night I placed wild flowers in the vase above her bed in the empty room.

One night, a young man suffering a broken neck and multiple internal injuries was wheeled into "Larque's room." For three days he hovered between two worlds; then he recovered.

Months after that, while skiing, I broke my back. Unconscious and barely breathing, I was brought back to this same little hospital.

In my delirium, I saw Larque laughing and running toward me, her auburn curls flying. Days later when I had recovered consciousness, the doctor said, "You'll be alright now."

It was then the nurse told me I was in "Larque's room." There were wild flowers in the vase near my bedside. I smiled, remembering Larque's whispered secret, "No one will ever die in this room after I am gone."

Le Bon Dieu had promised her that. And God always keeps His promise!

January 1963

IN THIS age of science, electronics and mathematics, an ever increasing importance is placed on numbers. Not only do scientific formulas and mathematical equations depend on numbers, even your telephone company has found it more efficient to change your dial code from a part letter and part number arrangement to an assembly of only numbers.

Numbers play a big part in everyone's life . . . you are born on a numbered day, month and year; your graduation from school, your marriage date and finally "check-out" date from earthly life and earthly concerns all are given in numbers.

Man became aware of this as far back as the occult history of Atlantis and Lemuria reaches. However, as there remains no historical proof of this fact, our investigation must therefore be content with a mere twenty-five centuries, at which time the Greek philosopher and teacher, Pythagoras, influenced man with his ideas, experiments, and philosophy.

Born on the Greek island of Samos in the sixth century, B.C., Pythagoras became an avid student of mathematics, astronomy, astrology and the occult sciences. As a young man, he traveled extensively investigating the wisdom gathered in India, Egypt and Persia. After returning to his native island, he began to spread this knowledge he had garnered. Such a profound thinker and courageous innovator did he become that the historian, Heracleitus, said of him: "Pythagoras, the son of Mnesarchus, was the most assiduous inquirer into the mysteries contained in our universe."

Knowledge, however, can become a dangerous thing to the one who is so eager to spread it. The ideas of Pythagoras stirred the people of his island into comparing the philosopher's ideal of self-government with the tyranny of Polycrates, the local ruler. The two forms of government, (the ideal one and the existing one) were so far apart that the people became restless, and King Polycrates ordered Pythagoras driven away from Samos.

In 529 B.C. Pythagoras migrated to the ancient city of Croton in Southern Italy, and there founded a religious organization for the reformation of society. It was called, "The Pythagorean Brotherhood," and taught that the soul could free itself from "The Wheel of Birth" through a series of austere rites and abstinences. "The Pythagoreans," as the people called them, believed that the self-imposed silence, (often kept for months and years) abstinence from flesh foods and intoxicating drink, and severe physical training were needed to purify the soul. This purification increased the student's spiritual awareness to such an extent that he became an initiate worthy to partake of all the secret sciences. If he applied himself diligently, he was relieved from the slow and painful learning through lifetime after lifetime, such as the average mortal is forced to undergo in what is called today "Reincarnation."

In the beginning, the aims of "The Pythagoreans" were strictly religious, and they were considered to be an austere sect. But as their influence grew in Greece and Southern Italy, they began to pursue social aims. The ruling class, therefore, considered them to be a dangerous political organization. Pythagoras was therefore banished to Metapontium, where he remained until his death at the beginning of the fifth century B.C.

After the death of their leader, the Brotherhood flourished up to the middle of the fifth century, when it was ruthlessly stamped out. The meeting houses of its members were sacked and burned; the members of the Brotherhood were slain. In the city of Croton, where the the parent organization resided, sixty "Pythagoreans" were mercilessly slaughtered. Some managed to escape and take refuge in India, Egypt, and Persia. Architas was one of those who fled to Persia, later returning to Italy where he founded a new Pythagorean school in Taras, became a friend of Plato, and a mighty warrior who was never defeated in battle. As a school of philosophy, however, "The Pythagoreans" became extinct in the middle of the fourth century B.C.

If we inquire about their teachings, we must turn to the treatise of "Philolaus" who tells us that their spiritual leader taught not only that through "The Wheel of Rebirth" man learned self-control, but he also believed in the basic kinship of all life. For this reason "The Pythagoreans" were vegetarians, since they refused to shed the blood of animals which they considered their lower brethren. They called the physical body, "The Tomb of the Soul," and prepared themselves for their rebirth in Spirit (death).

An Ancient Science of Present Day Value

Their leader became famous, however, for his Theory of Numbers. He believed that numbers were the principles of all existing things. He also discovered the interrelationship of Music and Numbers. He experimented with different lengths of strings placed under the same amount of tension. Thus, he discovered the mathematical ratio of the octave, (2:1) the fourth, (4:3) the fifth, (3:2) etc.

Out of his experiments with numbers and sounds grew his theory that the entire universe was a grand symphony based upon the vibration of sound and numbers.

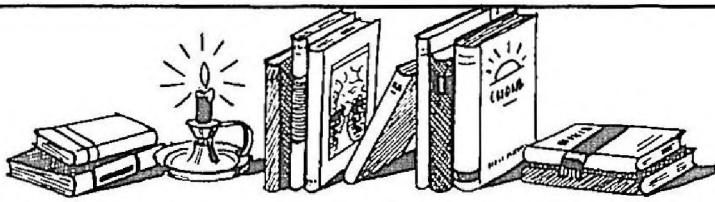

"The Pythagoreans" called the ODD numbers - "limit" - and EVEN numbers - "un-limited." Pythagoras believed that the entire universe was the realization of eighteen opposites.

In arranging the ten basic numbers in a triangular shape, such as this:

he devised the triangle, thence the pyramid, which - according to him -

For many years a milestone in the interpretation of man's cultural past, no other work has contributed so much to the study of human behavior from the magic and superstitions of the savage to locating its basis and roots in modern-day social, scientific, and religious ideas. It is said that what Freud did for the individual, Frazer did for civilization. This mammoth new revised one volume abridgment based on the original twelve volumes preserves the original structure and documentation. Enhanced by new findings and the Editor's foreword on folklore and mythology, this is a fine example of what such an edition should be of a famous classic and reference work.

"THE UNOBSTRUCTED UNIVERSE"

by Stewart Edward White

(p) 320 pgs., $1.65 postpaid
7¢ sales tax in Calif.

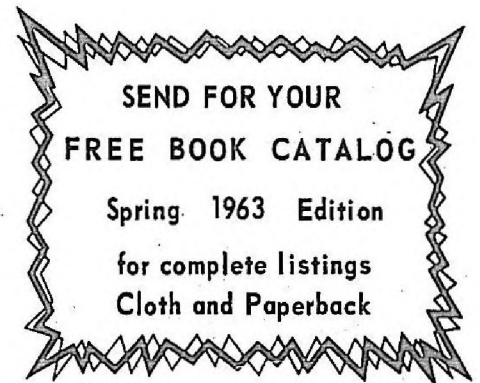

Unquestionably a book that will add to the spiritual enlightenment of every intelligent person because of the details that are recorded of life after death. Before her death the author's wife, "Betty," became famous for her remarkable experiences with psychic manifestations. But it was only after death that she was able to open the channel through which the author was able to obtain this information on the nature of life after death. By being able to present this book as a paperback, new dimensions of consciousness may now be revealed to a greatly widened scope of readers.

Based on the discoveries of the great physiologist, Ivan Pavlov, Andrew Salter's work marks a new era in understanding the workings of the human mind. How the trance state, sleep, and the constructive use of "reconditioning therapy" - - verbal chemistry - - releases past experiences and accumulated inhibitions restoring peace and wholeness to the individual, which, when multiplied, brings world peace and progress. We know that the Commandment to "love thy neighbor" is based on human experience, that the person conditioned to the contrary cannot love his neighbor or anybody else. "It is the pudgy infant hands of soul sciences that hold the key to the future whereby individuals may be trained into whatever conditionings are necessary to solve their problems." Those who are interested in psychiatry, psychology, hypnosis, etc., would do well to investigate the value of Conditioned Reflex Therapy for emotionally relearning habits which replace old, unnatural ones that retard our progress.

"THE RELIGIONS OF THE WORLD MADE SIMPLE"

One of the "Made Simple" books widely used by teachers, students, and leaders in Adult Education, this giant size paperback yields a panorama of the world's religions, its forms and varieties, and man's continuing faith and belief in a life beyond this one. Included are a description and analysis of many less known religious practices, as well as special features describing the Dead Sea Scrolls and a Guide to the World's Sacred Books. A virtual religious encyclopaedia at a fraction of the cost.

YOUR NUMBER. . .

Out of this grew the amazing preservation of perishable foods. "The Pythagoreans" placed fruits and legumes inside an accurate pyramid formed from strings and were thus able to preserve their perishables any length of time. This has recently been rediscovered in Germany where even meat has been found to withstand the atmospheric influence of putrification.

Out of the Divine concept of the Creator's basic vibrations grew the ancient Science of Numbers (Numerology), whose founder, Eurytus, a disciple of Philolaus, assigned numbers to the letters of the alphabet, and later, arranging numbers in the forms of triangles and squares, showed the connection between numbers and geometry.

What has happened to the ancient Science of Numbers? In a recent book - "Numerology - How to be your own Numerologist," by Vincent Lopez, the meaning of the numbers still aligns closely with the interpretation by Pythagoras. Thus we read on page 129:

ONE is considered masculine, positive, singular.

TWO is feminine, cooperative, negative.

THREE is the extension of One and Two (the Son), and therefore truly creative.

FOUR, the square, has a material foundation.

FIVE has a pivotal quality (change). SIX symbolizes benevolence (the Brotherhood).

SEVEN is considered a mystic and sacred number (the seven lights to enliven the tomb of the soul).

EIGHT is a number of work, power and overcoming (all are transformed). NINE is a number of widening influence (leadership).

Only TEN is missing in modern numerology (the return to God), which seems rather significant in our age of space missiles and nuclear bombs.

Eurytus showed that man's birth number (day, month, and year) gave the indication of his PURPOSE, his learning in this life cycle. Modern numerology still is convinced of this and tens of thousands of numerological life charts sustain this assumption. Eurytus also believed that a child's name should be carefully chosen, as it could so easily have a negative vibration and make life's path difficult. Modern numerology also found this to be true and seeks to align the birth vibration with the name vibration. To illustrate this, let us take the original name of a great star Greta Gustafson, whose director, Maurice Stiller, changed to Greta Garbo, helping her to become world-famous.

EXPRESSION 11 - All 11's seek to express their ideals. They are not adapted to the business world.

SOUL URGE 7 - The 7's want silence and peace to live their inner life and hate the noise and confusion of the business world.

LATENT SELF 4 - The 4's see themselves working tirelessly for the rewards of accomplishment and appreciation.

Let us see what the name change brought to this talented girl who was not adapted to the business world.

7 9 5 2 1 7 1 9 2 6
G R E T A G A R B O

EXPRESSION 4 - The 4 is the pillar upon whom all depend.

SOUL URGE 4 - The 4 Soul Urge wants to serve and be a rock of dependability. It is willing to deny itself that others may benefit.

LATENT SELF 9 - The 9 sees itself as one of the world's great artists.

Quite a change . . . especially when you consider that the two FOURS (Expression and Soul Urge) make an 8 which gives the vibration of power and success.

The EIGHT wants success in all material matters. It loves the huge operations of the commercial world.

Thus the new name catapulted the shy introvert formerly known as Greta Gustafson into world fame and stardom. We may all benefit from applying the science of numbers to our names and affairs. This is why I have long found the study of it to be not only most enlightening, but extremely fascinating as well.

... OF LIKE MIND

"For anyone in this day to say that powers of clairvoyance, telepathy, etc. are not exercised, is to admit his own ignorance.

"These things do happen, and are continually happening in more and more instances. The thing to do is not to deny what happens, but to find a logical and scientific explanation of it. It is our business to explain all mental action . . . in so far as at present it is explainable . . . and so we must find an answer which will cover the law of psychic phenomena. MIND, with the laws governing it, is the whole answer, for each plane reproduces the one next to it; and psychic phenomena are but the reproductions of man's physical capacities on the mental plane.

"What is true on one plane, is true on all."

how to "project"

SOMETHING of the propensities of astral bodies and what we may expect of them was touched upon in the preceding issue. Let us now consider some definite instruction on how to develop and use such powers.

One method may be used by any individual to good advantage. Composing oneself comfortably, secure against interruption, is important so that no shock may result, as might be the case if rudely shaken or drawn back into the physical body too quickly. Then, through the power of concentration, the student visualizes himself as standing on the top of a high mountain from which he is able to look in every direction. Next, he counts his blessings, enumerating each of the smallest details for which he can honestly give thanks. (He will be surprised at the number of them!) Then, he turns to the east, sending blessings out over all the land and its peoples, letting Divine Love well up within him in this blessing. This process is repeated to the west, the north, and the south.

After this is finished, the student should ask God sincerely and earnestly for wisdom and guidance, then return himself in thought to his room. Here, step by step, he will trace mentally every detail of going to his chosen objective. Thus, mentally he will open the door, close it, walk down the path to his car, open the door, close it, turn the key in the ignition, step on the starter, and go through all the motions that he would follow if he were actually going to his goal in his physical body.

Should you wish to project to a place you have never seen or to which you have never gone, and if you cannot visualize the complete step by step process, go as far as you can, then call for assistance. This will come to you instantly! At this point it is important not to manifest fear if something unexpected happens, for this would cause shock, and the astral body immediately would draw back into the physical body for protection.

Never use the power of projection for useless purposes, or for mere idle curiosity. To do so might be to place yourself in a most undesirable situation, even a dangerous one. If real need arises, or if you wish information of a spiritual nature that you cannot otherwise obtain, then you may rightly venture forth, garbed in your astral body, to find it.

Many times another method has been used successfully, particularly when the objective is to obtain information. In this method the subconscious mind is used primarily. Just before settling down to sleep, speak aloud and impress upon the subconscious mind the need for certain information. Instruct it to assist you in finding it. Then in the same earnest tone of voice, instruct it further that such knowledge must be elevated in the morning to the level of memory. For it would be of little value to experience during the night unless in the morning the wisdom so obtained could be remembered and used.

Those who have experimented with various types of astral projection and with various conditions under which it can and does take place are of the opinion that projection is accomplished most easily in total darkness. However, it is not advisable nor wise to develop it in this way . . . and the reason is a simple one.

All of us have experienced occasionally, a feeling of momentary confusion upon awakening from a deep sleep in a totally dark room. We have, momentarily, lost our sense of direction. We grope blindly around for a time, bumping into furniture which, in our confused state, we thought was in the opposite part of the room. Often we have not understood why these moments of confusion occur, but the answer is a simple one. Quoting from Sylvan Muldoon's book, "The Case for Astral Projection," he says: "When you go to sleep, the astral body rises out of the physical, and can lie at a different angle than the physical body. The senses during sleep are keen, and impress the fact that the the body is lying at a different angle upon the conscious mind. When you waken in the physical, the impression made by the astral body is so strong in the mind, that, of course, you think that you are lying in a different position than you really are, and being unable to see, you cannot prove or disprove the matter."

It can be readily seen that the the same sensations may be experienced when awakening from projection in a pitch dark room. For then the eyes cannot fasten upon known objects for reorientation. It is therefore recommended that students do not sit in total darkness, but in subdued, restful light, in which objects can be seen easily and recognized. This seems to bring a sense of confidence, which is desirable.

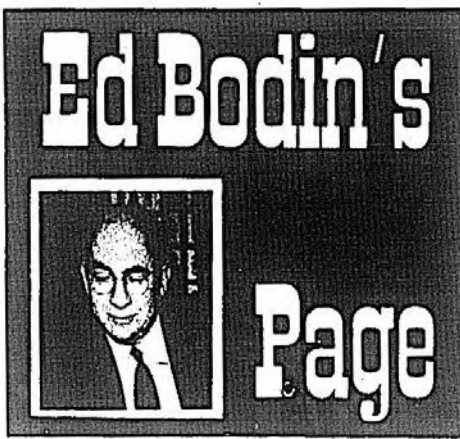

Most sleepers experience their most vivid dreams, so psychologists tell us, just before the normal waking time. Also, it is most normal to experience involuntary projection during sleep, after the body has been at rest for a few hours. This is due to the fact the conscious mind has more of its dominance and control, the heart beat has slowed, and all the wide awake functions have become quiescent for a while.

In this type of spiritual development, as in all others, the student must work earnestly, with enthusiasm. Become ONE POINTED. Think projection, dream of it, wish for it, talk of it, and live with the thought of constantly. This subtly impresses your desire for the phenomena upon the subconscious mind, and is a direct aid in receiving its fulfillment. Let your mind dwell upon projection when you retire at night, and practise faithfully the ritual of projection best for you.

The subject of projection is so vast in its implications, so replete with possibilities for soul growth, so entirely desirable, that each student should study the subject thoroughly. Right knowledge is power. Improper knowledge is peril, and it cannot be too strongly urged that those who wish to attain these powers of projection for themselves prepare themselves thoroughly before attempting to put projection into actual use. This gives the fullest protection, and is the greatest guarantee of success.

QUESTIONS TO ED BODIN
AND ANSWERS

Q I have read recently several attacks on Spiritualism in certain magazines. Why don't you answer them?

A Why dignify a wolf howl by response? For years I have heard all types of squeals from frustrated Pied Pipers who think that Spiritualism is infected by rats. These howlers may play saxophones of scorn, cornets of cynicism and even harmonicas of hate, hoping to get attention while some dupe pays good money for the instrument, instead of paying for a psychiatrist or psychic healer.

Q What is the definition of the "Comforter" Christ spoke about?

A Psychiatrists call it your subconscious mind. But, Spiritualists call it your Spirit Guide. Christ implied that the Spirit Guide of John the Baptist was Elijah. Shortly after John the Baptist died, the spirits of Elijah and Moses manifested on the Mount of Transfiguration - - evidently both had volunteered to assist Christ.

Q I am dejected because things promised me by Spirit have not come true. Why?

A I can best answer you by quoting a message recorded from a Spirit whom I respect: "Seek not a prognostication of fortune, lest you become discouraged and disillusioned. High Spirit is interested in the education of your soul through endurance. You shall be aware of your graduation long before you receive your diploma."

Q Have Spirits ever lied to you, Mr. Bodin?

A In over forty years of trial and error, I have learned that some spirits are bigger liars than the communists. I suggest you follow St. John's order . . . try to make sure the spirits (and mediums) are of God . . . just as you do with associates here on Earth.

The intelligent sensitive, however, rolls up her sleeves and learns how to cope with and dismiss astral pretenders. The deceivers are always at our shoulders seeking entry into the sensual awareness . . . whether we will or no. We are all, to a certain extent, in mortal mind. When we rise higher into Spiritual awareness, we are not easily deceived. Our Spiritual antennae apprise us of both the seen and unseen danger or deception. We have risen above the worst in mortal mind, but technically are still aware of all. Thus, man has the choice to reject evil and false belief and draw ever closer to the Angels of Light who are with all men who follow Christ.

If our love of God and his perfect Son (Light), the Christ Spirit, are equal to our effort to remain at all times mentally pure, morally upright, physically chaste, there is nothing we cannot do or be, even on earth. For the Spirit of Truth brings Divine immunity to those who are blest with the Christ Light. They will be conscious of attempted astral interference, but the temptations, in-

The Church of Spiritual Light was the scene of two impressive ceremonies in October. One occurred in the afternoon with communion rededication services led by Mr. Allan Hinz, President of The Church of the Good Samaritan of Waterford, and lovely music by Mrs. Dorothy Wylie and Francis Higgins. This was followed with the serving of a delicious dinner under the leadership of Mrs. Lucille Cooley and her committee.

Evening ceremonies saw the ordination of Mrs. Nellie Haubrich of Lapeer and Mr. Glen Cooley of Union Lake, Michigan, Rev. Harry M. Hilborn of Chicago, Illinois, President of The Independent Spiritualists Association, officiating. Candidates were presented at the church altar by Rev. Ethel Knapp, Pastor, and Mr. Nelson Knapp, President. Sponsors were Revs. Carroll Ware, Lena Bullock, Allan Hinz, Mrs. Margaret Ferrier, and Mr. & Mrs. Gordon Boehmer. New ministers were each presented with a white leather Bible, as well as white robe as gifts of the church membership and friends.

■ Tampa, Florida

The Good Shepherd Universal Spiritualist Church has been the scene of many and varied 'good news' items. A most profound demonstration of healing was witnessed by a capacity congregation October 7th, Ministers Revs. Lamar Keene and Ramon Noegel having received many testimonials from those who received healing, many of which were shared at a special Testimonial Service in November.

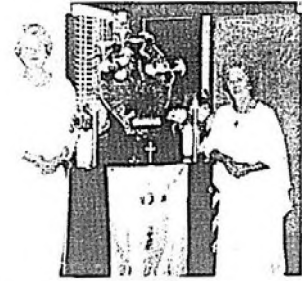

An expansion program being under way to accommodate the rapidly growing church, construction has begun on the annex to the auditorium, with many new furnishings having been donated, such as a new church model organ, Baldwin grand piano, new communion vessels, offertory plates, and lovely custom-made desk and chairs. Many prominent workers are scheduled to serve this season: Revs. Mamie S. Brown, Mildred A. Curren, Fanchione H. Dorsh, Nellie C. Hickok, Lillian Dee Johnson, Gladis Strohme, and Penny Umbach, all of whom contributed tremendously to the growth of the church. It is hoped the strides made by this church will be an encouragement to other new groups and churches working in His service.

I COME to you from the great Temple of Science on the inner plane where we are all so happy in our work because here it is constructive, not destructive. There are many young people here of all races who have laid down their lives in sacrifice for others. Their minds are filled with new ideas, so automatically they are attracted to this great Temple of Science. They are working joyously on many types of inventions which will improve your earth life, for they are so eager to share with you some of the wonderful things they have discovered in this world of Light.

Beloved ones, every invention you now enjoy and every new idea that comes to you is first perfected here in the great Within. Many in this Temple have been working lately on the constructive use of Atomic power, but many inventions are being held back because the mind of man is not yet ready to use them constructively. The time is very near, however, when the warlike tendencies in man will disappear, and he will turn his energies and powers into constructive channels. We broadcast our findings to the world constantly in the hope that some advanced soul will receive it and put such knowledge to use for the good of all.

The Word of God has gone forth from these unseen Broadcasting Stations . . . "Behold, I make all things new." It is the will of the Father that this newness shall come forth slowly, beautifully and harmoniously, not through great stress and suffering. His will is always good will for all His children. In the years to come God will be found through the avenue of science, believed in and worshipped, and healing of body, mind and soul will come forth along scientific lines. There is a great need today for healing of the mind and the soul, as well as the healing of the body, and it is much easier for you if this takes place while you are still in the physical body.

Methods that have been used in the past for healing will pass away with the coming of new ideas more in harmony with the vibratory rates of the body. There will also come forth in the future more knowledge on how to grow food scientifically, and what types of foods the body needs for its renewal. Action and re-action upon the body of different emotions, vibrations and elements will be taught in the schools just as arithmetic is being taught today. The human body will no longer be such a mystery. Man will be able to see with great ease into the human body by the aid of marvelous machines without any discomfort to the person. He will see how the organs in the body are functioning, or whether there are any foreign substances around them with the aid of these machines. He will also be able to tell just what minerals the body needs, or lacks, or of which there may be an over-abundance.

The next fifteen years will see many great and wonderful inventions and ideas come forth of which you would not now have the slightest conception or believe if I were to tell you. You ride now in what you call an automobile, but the time is not far distant when you will be able to travel anywhere, at any time you wish - with ease, speed, and safety - and you will not need a machine to do this, for science has both its material and spiritual aspects. Inventions will be upon all three planes . . . material, spiritual, and mental.

On the mental plane, machines will be created that will read man's thoughts. This will change the world very quickly. Man can now plot, plan and hide his real thoughts, but in a short space of time, machines will read thoughts as easily as you now read the daily papers. Machines also will bring to man substance out of the air for food and Lillian Dee Johnson, known to thousands of Spiritualists the world over as an outstanding Apport and Spirit Writing medium, as well as faculty member of the Chesterfield Seminary, announces that the full courses which she has been teaching in the Seminary for the past thirteen years are to be made available to the general public. Heretofore these courses have been offered only to students at the Seminary.

Rev. Johnson has been a Staff Medium at Camp Chesterfield for many years. Here she conducts seances, lectures, and gives messages daily and participates in the educational program which the Camp offers. She was for a number of years Pastor of the Universal Spiritualist Church of Bradenton, Florida and is the immediate Past President of the Universal Spiritualist Association of America. She has served churches and psychic groups throughout this country and Canada. Her mediumship has the subject of two recent books, "The Continuity of Life," by Dr. Herbert G. Lull and "The Autobiography of a Fortune Teller," by C. Doreen Phillips.

This talented, dedicated medium is listed in "Who's Who in American Women" and is a member of The Speech Association of America, the latter as a result of her work as a teacher of Public Speaking in the Chesterfield Seminary.

The following courses are being offered by Rev. Johnson: "Basic Philosophy of Spiritualism;" "Survey of Psychic Phenomena," which explains each phase of both mental and physical mediumship with suggestions as to how each may be developed; "Spiritualism in the Christian Bible;" and "Metaphysics for Everyday Living." Each course is offered at $5.00 and can be ordered direct from Rev. Johnson, 1828 First Avenue East, Bradenton, Florida.

PART II. Conclusion

How do we make the wonderful journey from here to forever? There are all kinds of suggestions, but all of the magic of the flying from here to reality is summed up in an experience of man's own nature, which we have come to know through time as the mystical experience. The magical instrument, the strange fuel that must provide the energy for this wonderful rocket jaunt into Being, is simply Silence - - the mysterious friend that very few of us know much about.

The entire conquest of space involves the experience of silence, for even when man goes out beyond the atmosphere of this earth physically, he has to deal with this problem of silence. Psychologists already have said, "Suppose we wanted to launch a person into space to reach another planet, suppose he had to fly into eternity for fifty years before he could arrive at his destination; what state would he be in when he got there?" The general consensus of opinion is that he would be in a state of stark madness; that he could not exist for fifty years alone in a capsule in space. And if by any chance he had friends with him, none of them could survive the pressure of such intimacy in a small space. They would grow to hate each other with an undying hatred, and probably there would hardly be a survivor by the time the projectile reached its destination. One scientist came forward and said, "I have an answer for you, gentlemen. We have to pick certain kinds of people if we ever want to make this experiment, presuming that we could." And he said, "I nominate one type of passenger who might make it . . . an American Indian. Here is a man who has lived with silence. He has lived in mountains and valleys and looked out on deserts. This man might quietly live with himself for fifty years, alone." Another suggestion was that a yogi might make it because perhaps he could settle quietly into meditation and meditate for the whole fifty years. Such things have been reported. Perhaps some strange way could be found by which consciousness could be internally suspended through this long, mysterious journey. If it were done by artificial means, perhaps drugs would be used, but these are only crutches.

The best answer, of course, would be if we could produce human beings who were able to live with themselves. In so doing, we would probably solve a number of smaller problems along the way. It is estimated that if the average person could live with himself for a reasonable length of time, crime would be cut 90%, divorce 90%, and sickness 90%; for most of these troubles arise in people who cannot keep quiet, in the sense of achieving quietude of consciousness in themselves. We are sick and miserable because we have never been able to live with the space dimension of our own natures. We cannot be quiet. We cannot know the wonderful experience of that detachment which, in the twinkling of an eye, can make us a citizen of space. The individual who can integrate himself has gone farther into the infinite than the time capsule will go for a long time.

The moment the individual releases himself from his own smallness, he is a citizen of space. Now, as a citizen of space, he has some tremendous privileges and opportunities. He has the magnificent opportunity of a space-pattern conduct, and space suggests bigness; but bigness suggests the very inevitability of space itself. Space is everywhere - - in the small and in the great. We have not yet begun to explore the infinite space in the atom. We do not realize that every atom of existence is space-life and that man has a kinship with all of this wonderful mystery. But most of all, space is a strangely stratified thing. Man, moving forward, must ascend from one space level to another. He must finally come to realize that he is moving upward through conditions of both time and space, with eternity or omniscience as his ultimate goal.

Man can never learn everything, but he can experience, out of the infinite unity of life, many wonderful and universal forms of knowledge. If we could become more interested in these larger matters, we would also have something better with which to cope with smaller matters. A problem can never be defeated on its own level. The only way to solve a problem is to become bigger than the problem. Otherwise, we struggle from the cradle to the grave, and nothing is solved.

. . . Why do we behave as we do? Many books have been written on it, but one simple statement sums it all up - - because we want to and we want to more than we want to do anything else, or we would do "anything else;" but we do what we want to do. So out of a strange, dark hole within ourselves, the depth of which we have never plumbed, parade all these impulses and instincts, and all of man's great creative thoughts. It is the mind in man that made the space ship; it is the ingenuity of man that must get us off this planet into the air if we expect to conquer physical space. This space ship is not something arbitrary; it is something that began in man as a thought, or an idea, coming from this same mysterious depth of uncharted mystery that lurks within consciousness itself.

I would therefore like to suggest as a very important expedient at this time that we take the challenge of consciousness as the challenge of space and time for ourselves. For at the root of our comprehension of space and time must be the fact that we are conscious beings, and that consciousness itself makes all of its own products possible. Consciousness does not easily reveal consciousness that knows no barriers of time or place, but can reach out across half the world to find a healing herb. I like to think that this consciousness is a being, and that man, united to this being, becomes a citizen of eternity, and not time. In the conquest of this mystery of consciousness, man becomes all-parent, all-friend, all-associate in the most constructive meanings of these terms, and the beginning of the conquest of the universe is man's conquest of himself - - the release of his own potential, the development of faculties and powers for the exploring of time and space. I do not believe that he will ever be able to explore these dimensions adequate-world to machines; nor can we afford to so perfect machines that idiots and tyrants can run them. We endanger our entire way of existence needlessly and foolishly. The great need is that man shall recognize that his consciousness alone can give him a true understanding of space; once he understands space, he does not want to conquer it; rather, he prefers to believe and to hope that he will have the wisdom and the modesty to permit reality to conquer him.

Thus, I feel very deeply that in building a pattern for the years that lie ahead, man must either gain victory over his own works, or

Excerpts from address given at the 1962 Annual Conference of The Association for Research and Enlightenment

its secrets. We do not know what it is; we do not know what intelligence is; we do not know what force is. All we know is that these tremendous powers move into manifestation, producing the intricate and diversified phenomena that we see about us every day. Space is a very small mystery in comparison to the mystery of consciousness, and we strongly suspect that no matter where we go in space, we are going to find consciousness. When the end is found, if it is ever found, we are going to find that space goes to sleep in consciousness. The mastery of space is therefore a subtle way of expressing our own exploration of consciousness - - the very life principle. It is this principle which contains within itself the answers to the infinite diversity of riddles that man can ask.

I rather like the idea, then, of placing greater and greater emphasis upon this qualitative accomplishment; of thinking of life as an adventure in consciousness. Perhaps space and time will fall into their proper places in this larger concept of things. Time is really only an expression of consciousness in motion, in duration; and space is simply consciousness expressing in area, and perhaps in the abstraction of potential. All this world is consciousness, and in the midst of it is man. Within his nature is the power to be all-conscious, but he has been so dedicated to other less valuable procedures that he has failed in this inner victory.

I like to think of the work of Edgar Cayce as pointing out the inner world of man, the inner world of man, the inner world of conly with the utter materialism which has bound him for the last half century. No matter how large the telescope is, no matter how powerfully it may be amplified, the one weakness of the telescope is the little human being at the small end. And while this human being remains little, and human, and fallible, and bigoted, and self-opinionated, and self-righteous, he will never see anything in the stars except the reflection of his own ego. Consequently, our whole exploration must depend upon man himself becoming a greater instrument of knowing. From his own base metals must be fired the key that will unlock the mystery of space.

. . . It is wonderful to dream and hope that we will conquer other worlds, if that is our ambition; but it is a much more important thing for us to develop the living instrument by means of which we can cross all distance, annihilate time, and master space - - and that instrument is consciousness itself. When we have developed that instrument, we will not need to worry about whether or not we will stay in orbit. We will never stay in orbit until consciousness keeps us there; and we will never be lacking fuel if consciousness propels us in the journey toward truth.

We have put too much confidence in mechanistic achievement and in the tremendous impulse to build bigger machines. We have forgotten the importance of building bigger people. If we continue this false perspective, these machines may turn upon us as the monsters of some Frankenstein dream. We cannot afford to entrust the future of our

he may find himself vanishing in a blaze of glory, like some knight of Gotterdammerung. We will not be able to preserve our world against our own ingenuity unless consciousness makes us citizens of eternity, releasing us from this desperate struggle that centers upon our determination to own, exchange, conquer little handfuls of dirt. This entire idea of what we call success today is ultimate madness and stupidity. This thinking that we are here to finally conquer the earth, to ravage it by impoverishing its resources and wasting its bounty, doing merely what we will to do, has brought us desperately close to destruction. We must rearrange our entire way of life, and our concept of life's purpose. We must realize that we must either perish for the smallness of our vision, or live because of greater vision.

This greater vision is the recognition of our place in a universal consciousness. It is this universal consciousness that can end the rifts of misunderstanding and intolerance. It is this universal consciousness that enables us to share the dreams and hopes of our children, our friends, and our neighbors. It is this universal consciousness alone that can give us a measure of security in the uncertainties of our common ways.

So our adventure in time and space is the adventure of stretching, of reaching out our own experience, our own souls, to the discovery of a good world. As long as we are small, we will suffer; but the moment we align ourselves with

IF YOU were reading the Bible for the first time with a mind free from religious prejudice, what would you think when reading such statements as these?

"The prayer offered in faith will heal the sick man." James 5:15.

"I assure you that the man who believes in Me will do the same things that I have done, yea, he will do even greater things, for I am going away to the Father. Whatever you ask the Father in My name, I will do." John 14:12.

If you were sick, or had a loved one very sick, when first reading such promises in the Holy Scriptures, you would begin an investigation to test such sweeping assurances of healing by faith and prayer.

The first statement is from the Apostle James who was one of the inner circle of three disciples who walked close to Christ for three years; certainly he saw many healing miracles performed, and must have performed many healing miracles himself. Closing his letter to the churches, James urged that when they became sick their fellow Christians be called in to hold a prayer meeting, because . . . The prayer of faith will heal the sick.

The second statement and promise is from out of the mouth of Christ, spoken just before He went to His death on the cross. He assured His followers (and all their successors down through the centuries) that everything He had done in performing miracles of healing, His followers could do, because from that day on, He would be working through them in Spirit Power. After this, for the first one hundred years of the church, healing was a common practice throughout the churches. Luke, himself a physician and accurate reporter, writes in Acts 5:15:

"Signs and wonders in great numbers continued to be done among the people by their hands, so that people would carry their sick right out into the streets, and lay them down on beds and mats, to have at least Peter's shadow fall on some of them as he went by. Even from towns around Jerusalem crowds would come bringing in sick people and those troubled with foul spirits, and they were all cured."

Each summer I am invited to fill the pulpit of a Presbyterian church in a city in Ohio while the pastor is on vacation. Back of that invitation is a remarkable story of healing. The pastor, when a young man, had much trouble with his eyes. Doctors who examined his eyes told him that at nineteen he had the eyes of an eighty year old man; they could give him no hope for improvement. This young man's mother, however, was a woman of great faith and spiritual power. She refused to accept her son's blindness even though by the time he was ready for college he could not see and had to hire a reader to read all the textbooks to him. Even while handicapped by the loss of his vision, he completed college, and felt a strong call to become a minister.

I met this young minister several years later, and joined him in a great spiritual fight to regain his physical sight. We have been together many, many times, and I have preached in his pulpit each year for several years. God does answer prayers. Today, with the help of glasses, he can read even fine print. He prepares his sermons, and writes on the typewriter and by hand. He is dearly loved by his congregation, and is able to fill all the duties of a good pastor. Even more, he knows the recovery of his sight is from God through faith and prayer. I do not think he will object if I mention his name here . . . the Reverend Myers Bost.

After forty-three years as a pastor of Methodist churches, as fuel. As you look at television today, you are able to see only what others want you to see. However, machines will be invented that will enable you to see anywhere in the world, at any time you desire, and no one can prevent you from doing this.

In the years to come machines will be invented that will enable you to see into what you now call the "unseen." With the aid of these machines communication with the "so-called dead" will be a reality, for these souls simply are in another rate of vibration which you have not yet been able to contact except through those who have special gifts. The words spoken by Christ Jesus and the prophets of old no longer will need interpretation, for all things of the past are written in the ethers around you and shall be easily read by means of these wonderful new machines.

All these things are ready and waiting for you, beloved ones. However, they will come forth gradually as man learns the constructive use of his powers. But the greatest thing that will come to your world - - and it is already beginning to appear - - is the descent of the Spirit of the Creator upon all mankind. It will come to the world like the falling rain . . . first, a few drops, then a gentle shower, then a great out-pouring of this Spirit of Good upon all the earth. The confusion around you will pass away as the mist passes when the sun rises. Other earths have gone through what you are going through today. They have evolved, grown, and unfolded this God power within themselves - - just as you, beloved ones, now have the same opportunity to do.

Go forth - unafraid - strong in the power of Almighty God to conquer, first, yourself, then all things outside of you, through His Love in you.

LINCOLN...

one, and which have not been made public."

If Lincoln had not had faith in Spiritualism, he would not have had connected himself with it, especially in peculiarly dangerous times while the fate of the nation was in peril. Again, had he declared an open belief in the subject at that time, he most likely would have been pronounced insane and probably incarcerated. A man does not usually follow or obey dictation in which he has no faith, and which does not contain information of active present value to him.

In the years to come there will probably still be discussions as to just how deeply Abraham Lincoln believed in Spiritualism. The day when science is able to turn back The Hands of Time will reveal the Truth. This much is certain... those who knew him best were well aware that he knew weeks before he died that the end of this life was very near.

well as churches of other denominations, I feel that the greatest blunder the organized church can make is its silence on healing by faith and prayer alone. I know it is customary for all ministers to visit the sick and offer perfunctory prayers in a mechanical manner, but I believe in prayers for healing where all the faith is placed in God with an expectation of becoming completely healed, even though the doctors say the case is hopeless.

Equally important is the need of persistence in praying. Some people tell me they think we should ask God only once, then stop. Christ's teachings, however, certainly encourage us to keep right on praying until the answer comes. In Luke 18:1 He gives an illustration showing that one must always continue to pray and never give up.

There is much misunderstanding about Spiritual Healing. It is not just a physical change that is effected, but spiritual changes must also occur. People come to me to be healed by Spirit Forces who think they can retain all their bad habits, all their selfishness, and all their worldly ways. God is interested in your healing only insofar as that healing will contribute to your spiritual growth and development.

Often many healings take place in a lifetime. Let us make certain that each one we ask for and receive adds to our spiritual stature.

HEALING GEMS

The great upsurge of interest in Spiritual healing by our orthodox churches calls fresh attention to the use of gems as psychic aids. For the past twenty years we have made a study of mystic gems and can supply suitable specimens at reasonable cost for all phases of development and application. We call special attention to the following.

LAPIS LINGUA. The copper gem that is recognized throughout the free world as an aid in psychic development and divine healing. Handpiece, Cayce specifications . . . each $2.00

TELOLITH. The Boron crystal used in saucer contacts and astral projection.

Small crystal . . . each $3.00

TUAOI Crystal. The astonishing results obtained in "Maser" and "Laser" investigations leads us to believe science has found the great crystal of the Atlantean Age. Our selection is worth experimenting with. . . . each $2.00

RADIALITH. An obsidian gem said by Cayce to be a specific for radiation injury. Today with background count increasing the accumulative effect is beginning to have effect. To succumb to fear and panic is to sign your death warrant.

Pendant (specify if for ladies' or gent's wear) . . . each $5.00

Pocket piece . . . each $2.00

TURQUOISE. Recent release of old Indian legends makes this old favorite worthy of investigation today.

Tumbled gem . . . each $2.00

HEALING STONES, New Edition
. . . Book by noted English psychic, postpaid . . . $1.00

We stock the 28 Cayce gems in many forms and mountings.
Beautiful Brochure free.

growth, all nature works with us. Growing is the beautiful adventure, and because of the very nature of the universe, we can never outgrow this adventure. Man's great adventure today is to grow up in the infinite potential of space, in the infinite presence of eternity, seeing that space and time are merely forms, or patterns, by which the possibility of growth is assured. The purpose of time is not to kill us, but to give us all that we need in order to achieve. If we waste achievement, if we do nothing with it, then time becomes a heartless censor upon our conduct.

This adventure in time and space is an adventure in self-discipline. It is the great journey of consciousness going forth along the wonderful road that leads on and on, until it goes much farther than rockets can ever go. The end of this adventure is union with life itself - - union with universal consciousness, or union with God. This journey is an adventure in insight, in the discovery of what is real, what is important, and what is necessary. It is an adventure of high dynamic - - of growing, building, and living. Little by little, the space and time around us will disappear into us, and we shall find eternity within our own consciousness.
