I BEHOLD THE CHRIST IN YOU

I behold the Christ in you,
Here the life of God I see;
I can see a great peace, too,
I can see you whole and free.

I behold the Christ in you,
I can see this as you walk;
I see this in all you do,
I can see this as you talk.

I behold God's love expressed,
I can see you filled with power;
I can see you ever blessed,
See Christ in you, hour by hour.

I behold the Christ in you,
I can see that perfect One;
Led by God in all you do,
I can see God's work is done.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

○ The photographs on the front of your magazine very much interest me. In a recent issue I could see the Spirit of many forms of life. . . human, animal, birds and plants, even rocks and water. I will watch this more closely now, as I see more than I can even describe to you. Deepest regards from, William Stephan Manspeaker, Philadelphia, Pa.

(As a rule, photographs are not selected with this in mind, mostly because other specifications that must be met would make them too difficult to locate. We know we are fortunate in securing many of these unusual photographs, and that readers will take the time to drop us a note and comment on what they see in them.)

○ I am sending you my subscription order and a request that you place me on your Prayer List for healing. I was directed to do this in a dream. Your friend,
Frederick Alleyn, Diego-Martin, Trinidad

(As has been said, God has a thousand ways to reach us. . . and doing it via our dreams may not be as far-fetched as some might think. Does it really matter HOW if we receive the answer to a prayer?)

○ "Congrats" on Chimes' new look. I like the feel of the paper, clearer print, and subtler changes giving our New Age Voice a more dignified and businesslike appearance. I've been giving my used copies away, but now may want to keep them on file. May our New Age thinking be enlightened by your creative and diverse outlook. Very truly yours,

Rev. David C. Oaks, San Francisco, Calif.

○ Why did you change Chimes just when it was perfect, as far as I was concerned? Now I have to become acquainted with it all over again and try to make up my mind whether I like its new look and slant of its articles. From an old friend and subscriber, day. When we are willing to learn and benefit from each one, unexpectedly we often find ourselves taking giant steps forward. It doesn't do any good to be a glorified "has been". . . what we are "becoming now" is more important.)

Josh Tree, Los Angeles, Calif.

○ I have been searching and wondering about the life beyond. . . am a member of Unity which teaches a beautiful way to live and think. . . but I want to learn more, and Chimes teaches me so much. I am so happy the day the mail man brings it to me, and I want to say "Thank you" and God bless you all.

Mattie B. Jones, Santa Cruz, Calif.

○ On behalf of those with whom I share my copy of Chimes here in Ottawa, we send you our good wishes for the best of everything in all you undertake. Unfortunately there is no official group here, so we must rely on reading material, such as is in Chimes, to satisfy our longing for more of this Truth.

Mrs. Nellie Thracker, Ottawa, Ont., Canada

○ (From a gift subscriber) Please do not send any more issues of Chimes. I refuse to subscribe to this or any other magazine that contains material such as is referred to in Chimes.

Merlon E. Savage, Bandera, Texas

(It is good to know that we still have freedom of choice, and that we can respect one another for it.)

○ I am an electronics technician, 30 years of age, much interested in inventing a machine to contact those in Spirit, either by voice or visually, without the aid of a medium. If there is material on this by Edgar Cayce or Dr. Carl A. Wickland, or other information available, I would appreciate hearing from anyone who is interested in this invention so we may share our views. If such a machine is invented by me, I shall give it out to mankind without reward of any kind.

THE INSIDE STORY OF CHRISTMAS

By George L. Pasfort
Del Mar, California

IT'S CHRISTMAS TIME again. . . and the entire Christian Church the world over bears witness to the celebration of the birth of the child who, according to the story, born in Bethlehem, was called Jesus, later to be known as Jesus of Nazareth, and Jesus the Christ.

The celebration of this event has been in practice one thousand nine hundred and sixty five years. . . a short span of time considered in terms of eternity, but a very long time considered from the standpoint of the manner in which ignorance persists in holding its own. Christmas after Christmas so many still think of it only as something of a gay, outward celebration.

What has happened to its real meaning, and the place it should have in our lives? Ignorance is still hugged by the many, but there are a few who cry out for Truth, and in their hearts ask — "How long, oh Lord, how long?" In looking about the world they see it in the throes of calamity and despair, and Christmas seems such a sad time for countless millions of people. . . all for want of knowing the Truth.

To know the Truth, the Truth that frees, is to know the true Substance of Reality. To know the Truth, however, it is necessary to do a complete turn about in our thinking. We must seek within instead of without for the true meaning of Christmas. The spiritual, inward meaning of the Truth of Christ's birth, as applicable in our own lives, must be rightly understood. If, as an individual, and the world at large, we are to have the power to progress spiritually to true freedom, we must know the Truth that sets us free. Free from what? . . . free from darkness to light, free from suffering and limitation to health and wealth. To do this, we must come to know ourselves, spiritually as well as naturally. We must acknowledge and accept the basic Truth that God is a Divine Essence, a Universal Principle that operates in all, above all, and through all. We must know this not only with our conscious mind, but with our subconscious and superconscious minds. This is ultimately, God consciousness, or Christ consciousness.

When we grasp the inner meaning, the inside story of Christmas, we see its profound significance and how it symbolizes the deepest and most glorious of Truths. It is a story of the process of spiritual re-birth, regeneration, the way to and of the Christ, the substance of the life, motion, and being of God, in whom we should consciously have our life, our moving, and our being.

Even though we regard them as allegories, if we deal with the elements of the Biblical story of Christmas from an inward viewpoint, we see they are fraught with deep meaning. They are spiritually illustrative of the Christ principle operative and applicable in our lives, and with right understanding, give meaning and purpose as to why we are here on earth.

For its inner meaning, the allusion to the STABLE is that here is the place where the spiritual nature of our life and thinking puts up for rest and refreshment mid the animalistic tendencies of our nature. This is where we are to be instructed.

The INN is our mind where spiritual food or instruction is to be supplied for the birth and nourishment of soul growth.

The MANGER is the place where food is provided, or instruction, and is to be given more specifically by reason of the humble and lowly state of our mind to receive the Truth, and, when accepted, the Divine Principle becomes assimilated in our being, so we grow to and finally come to the realization of the infant child.

The INFANT CHILD corresponds to our consciousness opening to the light within us and, in innocence, or a childlike manner, accepting it, permitting the Christ Child to be born of the love of God as Truth unfolding within us.

The SWADDLING CLOTHES, allegorically understood, mean the coverings or confinements wrapped around this Christ Child within us by erroneous teachings still prevalent today, false opinions that would keep our understanding and thinking wrapped in ignorance and error. These wrappings must be removed by the Truth seeker so that he sees the Truth of the spiritual idea of the Christ principle as a revelation in his soul and its meaning in his own life.

The SHEPHERD WATCHING HIS FLOCKS BY NIGHT symbolizes our Divine Self which, during the pilgrimage of the journey on earth — signified by the night — watches his flocks — signifying thoughts. . . thoughts often disturbed by

Have you ever wanted to test your own ability to be psychic?

ARE YOU PSYCHIC?

by [illegible]

CAN YOU UNCOVER hidden facts, find lost articles, read minds, predict the future? Perhaps you can, and are not aware of it. There are ways you can find this out and enjoy doing it.

Last month two types of testing, simple procedures you can try yourself, were described: Calling All Floors and The Restaurant Game. Such simple tests, and often psychic games, reveal potentialities that otherwise might never be suspected, and cannot yet be measured by any aptitude test.

OUT OF THIN AIR

When out driving a car by yourself, often you will find yourself in the right mood for a game of psychic solitaire. This is one pastime in which you can safely indulge while still keeping a sharp eye on the road. The best type of impression to go after is one involving your sense of hearing. Your car radio provides the perfect medium for this. Raise your ESP antenna and see what you can pick up. You might start by concentrating on some popular song, then turn on the radio to pick up the music from some local station. If you are really attuned, you will pick the station playing the tune in your mind at that time. People musically inclined who practice this often call two or three tunes in sequence correctly. The fun you will find in this game lies in picking a tune from thin air and having the radio confirm it. Each time this happens, it stands out as more than a slight achievement. You demonstrate to yourself that it can be done; it fortifies your self confidence, and you will do better.

WHAT COLOR ?

Children adore games and make up many of their own. Loving candy as they do, sometimes they try to anticipate what color, shape, or number will come up next in a package. You can do it too. . . try it with lifesavers, gum, magazine covers. . . anything that lends itself such tests. Simple as they are, they serve to focus your attention on unfolding your ESP ability.

TRY YOUR PHONE

The telephone offers many opportunities to test your psychic abilities. One you might start with involves someone else's cooperation. . .

although for some purposes it is better this not be known. Some tests won't work if the other person knows about it.

Concentrate upon a friend, or even a family member, who is likely to call you, but from whom you are not expecting an immediate call. Mentally keep asking that person to phone you within the next hour so that the thought emanates repeatedly from your mind as if you were broadcasting a message by means of brain waves. The purpose of this experiment is to see if the person you are calling picks up the message and phones you.

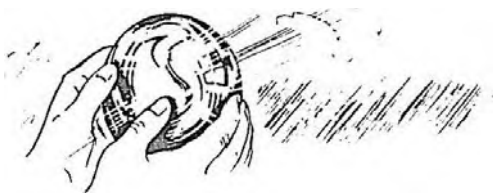

Results from this may prove remarkable, and sometimes fairly frequent, but you must allow for some lapses in between. Sometimes the other person is too busy with other things to receive your mental message, or perhaps may be in an automobile or some inaccessible place where no phone is available. In this case, the thought received might be dismissed as a fleeting impression and forgotten altogether. On the other hand, the person you tried to reach may phone you hours later saying there was something in his mind he wanted to tell you, but couldn't quite remember what it was, or perhaps was just calling to see how things were going.

Often "flash" impressions that keep recurring to the receiver will finally grow into a definite idea and you will be called. If you will visualize the receiver and his surroundings, it could help to get your message through better. Mentally picture making a call to the other person's home or office, even visualizing yourself right there with the person saying that you expected to hear from him. You may receive a call almost as an automatic response. This frequently happens between husbands and wives, particularly if both are consciously in the habit of communicating with each other in this fashion.

When the other person does call in reply to your mental broadcast, you might even be surprised to learn of his intention to call you on some unexpected matter you knew nothing about.

While talking on the telephone, you can also practice your color game. See if you can pick the color of some piece of wearing apparel the other person is wearing. It might not even surprise you before long, as you continue to apply

COMING EVENTS

... A peek into the unknown, a glimpse of the future, a ray of light on the mysteries of time . . . this search has fascinated mankind throughout the ages. Call it by whatever name you will, a glimpse of something better ahead often has given men fresh courage and strength to overcome life's trials. Here are tidings of some of those events to come.

* * *

... SAILING AMONG THE STARS

In the past sixty years we have increased the maximum speed at which we can travel about 500 times. . . from about 36 miles per hour to more than 18,000. If we continue to increase our speed of travel at the same rate for another sixty years. . . we will probably approach the 'light barrier.' Since this is a mathematical and philosophical barrier rather than a natural one, we will probably find a way through it with little more effort than was required to penetrate the sonic barrier. . . once such a bogey man to early aeronautical engineers. When this has been accomplished, then earth man—surpassing his orbital flights of rising only a few miles above the surface of his planet—can dream of leaving this galaxy and, as a true Astronaut, "sail among the stars" in the space between galaxies in what astronomy terms outer space. Paraphrased from Understanding Magazine.

... HOW SHALL MAN AWAKEN?

Earthquakes are produced by forces of the seventh strata working outward until they burst forth from the surface of the earth. The movement of faults in the solid crust is the secondary effect of the primary forces originating in the seventh strata, the earth currents being intensified to the point of breaking through the surface, that earth current energy being shot off into space from the inner parts of the earth, and accompanying the earthquake disturbance. This powerful etheric current, traversing the bodies of living human beings in the area where an earthquake occurs, impinges upon the pineal gland. . . The etheric current within the body is stimulated to intense activity by this force emitted from the earth, such stimulation throwing the pineal gland into active vibration and oscillation. This produces a temporary acceleration in the normal vibratory rate of seeing. . . creating before the eyes, as though it actually existed in the atmosphere, a blue light. . . A camera would not record evidence of such a phenomenon, as the entire activity occurs within the faculties of sight in the individuals involved. When this force is thrown out in tremendous volume, the seeing faculty of the persons through whom it travels is raised to the point where they are able to recognize instantly, through the faculty of sight, the etheric world about them. . . objects in the ether. . . as well as those who have recently passed from physical life. Instead of the graves giving up their dead and the dead rising out of the graves, man's faculties will have been intensified to the point where he perceives that which has been about him all the time, but to which he has been blind, lacking the faculty to perceive it. When this faculty has become fully established, there will be no more seeming death. . . for those who 'pass out' will be as present as though they were still with us in physical form. . . We see now by what means Nature is to stimulate, on a large scale, the faculty of spiritual seeing. . . the answer to the great enigma, "How shall man awaken?" Paraphrased from Frank Bowman in Secret Forces that Change the World.*

... THE HEART OF THE RUBY

In a condensed version of Atlantis, Fact or Fiction,* Edgar Cayce foretold that the ruby, known in those early days as the "fire stone," once again would come into its own as a vast source of power and healing. When the sun's rays are focused upon it, its radiations will provide the motivating force for all forms of transportation, as well as generate power that radiates across an entire continent requiring no wires. Concentration of the sun's rays on this stone, also described as a crystal, would rejuvenate the physical body again and again, prolonging life beyond one hundred years, and will provide the answer to disease, not in animal research. In use now on a research basis, known as the "lazer beam," within ten years its accelerated use is expected to revolutionize all forms of planetary and interplanetary communication and transportation.

CHRISTMAS IN AUGUST

By Rev. Rose H.F. Strongin, San Francisco, California

CHRISTMAS is a time for giving, sharing . . . spiritually and materially. From my heart, let me give you, share with you that which was given to me.

First, permit me to express my feelings. I have always said, to those who wanted to believe, that Christ-mus (t) is every day. The Esoteric is present in the Mundane.

This year Christ-mus(t) was special for me . . . it came in the month of August. It also brought with it a special gift from God . . . the opening of others' hearts to me. Since 1959, I always had in my prayers of Thy Will be done the desire to revisit the Camp Chesterfield, Indiana Seminar where I had been ordained . . . to walk on the grounds once again in silent meditation, and to revisit the Garden of Prayer and give thanks to God for my many blessings. When I learned that the Camp was to be open the year around, I added to my prayers, "even if it is in winter, let me go, dear Lord, if it is Thy Will." So, though Nanna Rose did go to Camp Chesterfield in August, to her the summer's warmth was really the cheer of good hearts at Christmastime.

Off and on, for years money had been saved for the trip, but always it seemed to be needed for some purpose that appeared to be more important when the time came to go. At last the time came, and arrangements were made as early as May to spend two weeks at the Camp. Family, children, employer, everyone was notified . . . then it happened again. Quite suddenly someone dear to me was in need, so I loaned the vacation money with the promise that it would be returned in time. On this hangs the tale, or more accurately, on this incident hangs my faith, for when the money was not returned as promised, and it was too late to borrow it, I turned to God in prayer. I spoke my thoughts out loud to Him: "I KNOW it is Thy will that my vacation take place as planned. Show me the way." This He did, for He opened the hearts of people to my need, and, suffice it to say, my vacation did take place as planned.

The sun shone brightly and the skies were clear as the plane rose into the sky. To me it was a reindeer sled with wings, instead of deer. "Oh, Father, this is happiness," I thought. "This is love in action. May you never find me wanting."

wondered, "Rose, will you be accepted as warmly, in friendship as your Angel loved ones said you would be?" My answer came as a smile rose from my soul, and a great peace filled me.

Visualize with me a Christmas tree made up of many trees, yet like one big tree, and around it not ornaments and dolls, but people . . . warm, kind people moving about . . . all part of "Joy to the World." Then, see the Chapel, the Little Church in the Wildwood . . . its door open while someone softly plays the organ . . . and a little way off, the beautiful Garden of Memories, then the splendor of the Cathedral . . . all typifying lovely Camp Chesterfield. The first gift I was presented to unwrap contained the warm-hearted welcome of Camp Chesterfield's ministers and leaders. I knew then how good it was to feel at home again. The second gift, when opened, came while visiting several Seminar classes, with my introduction as "Rev. Rose Strongin, known to many of you as 'Nanna Rose' of Chimes," and the genuinely warm response this evoked. Those are not lights, nor are they stars shining over Camp Chesterfield, but my loving heart beaming a 'thank you' for the kind and generous welcome I received from so many wonderful people who received me as their friend.

There were other gifts too . . . appointment as a committee head, lecturing in the Chapel, and, of course, much togetherness in laughter, song and fun. The two gifts last to come were as silver and gold to me. The silver gift took me to the Cathedral where, while awaiting the announcement of the President's annual award to the most outstanding church of the year, another announcement came of a special award to be made to "Nanna Rose" of Chimes. Stunned with surprise, I was hardly able to speak for, in happiness and appreciation, a great silence welled up in me . . . but it was a silence filled with a loud and fervent "God bless all of you for this active demonstration of your love." Then, the last of the gifts came, the golden gift, marked as, "Will you conduct the service in the Cathedral?" . . . one signed by the President of the Universal Spiritualist Association, Rev. Clifford Bias. Sudden as it was, Rev. Bias knew I would say "yes," knew I would feel it a high honor and privilege

THE POWER OF THE SUBCONSCIOUS MIND TO HEAL

PART VI

By Dr. Joseph Murphy, Los Angeles, California

AMONG THE TECHNIQUES which have been found practical for use in mental healing are those which have intelligent application because the truth and meaning behind them is understood. Affirmations or prayers used in vain repetition avail little, but those which carry the weight of positive conviction avail much.

THE AFFIRMATIVE METHOD

When you realize the truth of your being, you accept only health, harmony, and peace for yourself and for others. As you do this, you rearrange any negative patterns that may have been in the subconscious mind. To affirm is to state that it is so, and as you maintain this attitude of mind, regardless of all evidence to the contrary, you will receive an answer to your prayer. Strange as it may seem, your thought can only affirm, for even if you deny something, you are actually affirming the presence of that which you deny. Therefore, when you repeatedly make a statement of positive affirmation—knowing what you are saying and why you are saying it—this leads the mind to the state of consciousness where it accepts that which you have been stating to be true. You can see, therefore, how in continuously reaffirming the truths of life, eventually you will achieve a subconscious reaction which satisfies and changes all conditions in your life for the better.

How this type of positive thinking . . . affirming the truth of life . . . can be applied to any condition of ill health with remarkable healing results may be seen in its application to my sister's case, one that might be helpful to others in time of need.

The usual hospital tests and X-ray procedures had established that my sister, Catherine, then living in England, should undergo an operation for the removal of gallstones. She had asked me to pray for her, and, although we were separated geographically by 6,500 miles, there is no time and space in the Mind principle, for it is present simultaneously in its entirety at every point in God's creation.

I withdrew all thought from the contemplation of symptoms and from any physical personality. I affirmed as follows:

"This prayer is for my sister Catherine. She is relaxed and at peace, poised, balanced, serene, and calm. The healing intelligence of her subconscious mind which created her body is now transforming every cell, nerve, tissue, muscle, and bone of her being according to the perfect pattern of all organs lodged in her subconscious mind. Silently, quietly, all distorted thought patterns in her subconscious mind are removed and dissolved, and the vitality, wholeness and beauty of the life principle are made manifest in every atom of her being. She is now open and receptive to the healing currents which are flowing through her like a river, restoring her to perfect health, harmony, and peace. All distortions and ugly images are now washed away by the infinite ocean of love and peace flowing through her, and it is so."

Several times a day I affirmed the above prayer. At the end of two weeks my sister had an examination, again including hospital tests and X-rays, the results of which showed evidence of remarkable healing.

Another method utilizing the active exercise of positive beliefs and convictions stems from a procedure of Dr. Phineas Parkhurst Quimby of Maine, pioneer mental and spiritual healer.

THE ARGUMENTATIVE METHOD

In a book called The Quimby Manuscripts, edited by Horatio Dresser, newspaper accounts are given of this man's remarkable results in prayer treatment of the sick, duplicating many of the healing miracles recorded in the Bible. According to Quimby, the treatment employed consisted of spiritual reasoning, wherein the patient and himself were convinced that his sickness was due to his false belief, groundless fears, and negative patterns lodged in his subconscious mind. A distorted, twisted pattern of thought had taken form in the body, externalized as sickness, therefore changing the thought pattern could eliminate the sickness. In this process, it is pointed out that the subconscious mind creates the body and all its organs, therefore knows how to heal it, can heal it, and is doing so now. You continue to build up evidence in the courtroom of your mind on behalf of the healing

PSYCHIC DIGEST

OUR SAVINGS ACCOUNT

Our inner life is like a savings account. The more we put in, the more we can take out; and we never appreciate our savings more than in those years of rest and repose. We live physically on the income for which we have planned, and spiritually, upon the dividends from the investments in wisdom, friendship, and understanding that we have accumulated along the way. From Manly P. Hall in The Philosophical Research Society Journal.

ADVENTURE IN FRIENDSHIP

In response to a letter from an inmate at the Indiana State Prison interested in studying psychic phenomena, Betty Spickler reports in the Parastudy Review how, in acquiring her first "pal from the pen," extensive correspondence resulted with seventeen other prisoners, then subsequent study group sessions at the prison. Reflecting upon her experience, she recalled a statement of truth that was brought home to her:

"God is never divorced from our relationship to each other. God is in all humanity and therefore includes not only the perfect specimen, but the blind, the deaf, the dumb, the mentally deficient, the drunkard, the prostitute, the beggar. In all of us is this light of truth—it need only have its exterior removed. Therefore, good cannot exist in its own little circles. It has to enormously expand to include all who need compassion and help. . . . He who has seen this light has seen the Father. . . . and even in mortal imbalance this light is there."

GETTING THE IDEA ACROSS

Understanding is not entirely dependent upon the written or spoken word, and communication—getting the thought across—often goes deeper than words. At times, the unuttered thought can be more powerful than any expressed words, and sometimes those we even dare not speak get through to others. Pearl E. Gerow, writing in the Rosicrucian Digest, tells of a woman who, ill during the depression, wrote her sister in another state asking if she could visit her. Several days later, for one split second she saw her sister; in that instant she knew what her answer would be. Though later she received a letter verifying this knowledge, no words could express as completely as that instantaneous thought transference the sorrow her sister had felt at the necessity of refusing her request. Thoughts also seem to hang in space, as it were, to be picked up at a later day or hour. Another instance is given of a woman who became seriously ill and had to be taken to the hospital immediately. She wanted to tell her dearest friend, but no one answered the phone. When her friend returned home, she was as aware of the message as though it were a waiting telegram.

Some ultrasensitive to thoughts can pick them up almost word for word from another who does not even speak his language. Inebriates are especially receptive to thought, their inhibitions being anesthetized by alcohol, they respond readily. Most of us receive thoughts we know not from whom they came, or why, and wonder how they happened to arise in our minds. Thoughts being so potent and powerful then, we should be more careful, it would seem, of what we diffuse—though unspoken—to others, and what we ourselves accept.

SHORT WAY NOT ALWAYS THE BEST

Noting the increased attention psychedelic drugs have been receiving, rather ironic was the advertising salvo received from a group promoting psychedelic sessions across the country. . . . their aim being "to produce a psychedelic or ecstatic experience without using drugs." In some twenty hours of experimental sessions, the methods used for inducing consciousness-expansion revolved around meditation, breathing exercises, visualization techniques, trance induction, telepathic experiments, etc.—all methods long successfully used before drugs became a recent short-cut fad. Now that they have been found to have many dangerous ramifications, and have been banned, not only for public, but medical use, now the tried-and-true so-called longer spiritual paths suddenly are the latest, more fashionable approach to attaining what is termed "an ego-shattering, ecstatic peak." Speed seems to be such an all-important factor in this age in which we live. . . . could it be the speed of desperation, perhaps?

HEALING SAINTS

ST. DOMINIC

By Major T.H. Patterson, Kent, England

DURING RECENT YEARS I have witnessed the successful healing of many children. I have also personal knowledge of many such healings in all parts of the world. There is no doubt that, as a rule, children respond promptly to the power of Spirit to heal. It may be that they are less subject to the influence of doubt; it may be also they are less likely to retard their attunement.

"Twelve months ago this child could neither walk nor speak. She was completely paralyzed."

The above statement was made to me a few years ago by the father of a seven year old girl. Observing the child sitting on a chair, she did not appear to be particularly interested in her surroundings.

"Can she walk now?" I inquired. "Ask her to come to you," said the mother, keenly interested in making known the cure of her child. Doing as she suggested, the little girl promptly jumped up from her chair and crossed the room towards us. I tried to enter into a conversation with the youngster, but soon realized that she wished to do all the talking. Her mother commented that she often wondered if she would ever stop talking.

It seems that from the time of her birth the child had suffered from a form of paralysis. Her speech had been limited to a mumbling sound, although she had not been affected mentally in any way. Then, spiritual healing was administered to her by one of a group of healers that reaches large numbers of people through the Spiritualist Association of Great Britain, and thereafter she has been as normal as any child of her age. Such healings as this often go unnoticed, however, apart from those who visit the premises of the Association regularly and who accept them as a natural course of events in their lives.

St. Dominic, a saint of the 12th century, had many such healings to his credit. There are also records of successful healings of this kind long before the birth of Jesus, as well as those being recorded daily in our own time. Healings of children, particularly, are being reported to me currently from all parts of America, Canada, Brazil, Japan, and Germany.

St. Dominic, whom we mentioned briefly above, was born in 1170 at Calavoga, Castille, Spain. He came from one of the most noble families in Spain, his father being Felix of Guzman, and his mother, Jane of Asa, both descendants of Dukes and Marquises. The details of his personal and spiritual life, and as a saint, are not the object of this article, however, rather our main concern is to show that he was a great spiritual healer.

One account of St. Dominic's healing power describes how a woman of gentle birth named Gutadona, having found her child seriously ill, and then declared "dead," carried him to a place called St. Sixtus' place and, believing in St. Dominic's healing power, placed the child without comment at the feet of the saint. After just a few minutes of his prayerful intercession, the child was healed completely. A stone mason, severely crushed by the fall of some masonry from building construction, was dramatically healed when St. Dominic administered healing to him in the presence of large numbers of civil and religious dignitaries. It is interesting and worthy of note that many of St. Dominic's adult patients were unconscious at the time of receiving healing. This gives added emphasis to the claim of spiritual healers that faith, as generally understood, is not essential to spiritual healing. We learn rather that unconscious patients, children, and animals respond promptly, and with greater receptivity, to the prayerful intercession of healers who have great love and compassion for all living things.

Actually, the healing of Gutadona's child by St. Dominic in the 12th century was no more spectacular or unusual than that of the paralytic child who was healed by one of a group of healers in our own time. Both healings were proof of the great power of Spirit forever being bestowed upon us.

Although he passed to spirit August 6, 1221, at that time being fifty-one years of age, he was canonized in 1234, but St. Dominic did not end his healing ministrations. Reliable records show that since that time intercession to him has produced some truly remarkable healings. The general character of these healings has not changed, having followed the same pattern as those performed during his physical life on earth. Indeed, he can be considered as one of those

ADD A NOTCH TO YOUR "GUN OF LIFE"

TELE-THOTS

By Hilda Magnuson, St. Petersburg, Florida

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD someone say how sad it is that Mrs. so-and-so had such a bad accident, or that she has such a mean husband, or wayward son? Any number of such things—irritating to the mind and soul of an individual—often are attributed to fate.

Mr. so-and-so might go out for a walk, trip over a hammer, and get laid up for a week . . . months . . . even for the rest of his life. "'Tis fate," some would say. "You can't buck fate," is an oft-quoted phrase. What does fate have to do with it? Much, I can assure you, although it is a misused word, for in reality it is the Law of Cause and Effect at work.

Man sows his seed (all types) in multitudinous ways. He leavens the bread of life by all sorts of adventures. Some are educational; some are those he could very well do without. Some women bemoan the fact they have corns on their feet, bunions, etc. Far be it for them to go back to the cause: ill-fitting shoes, too little shoe, too much weight . . . any number of causes . . . yet it is a matter of reaping what has been sown.

Man sets out to cultivate his fields. He sows what he thinks is good seed . . . the man at the store told him it was . . . but he may have been sold a sack not of first quality seed. When his fields began to look green, he found much of the reason for it was the growth of a variety of unwanted weeds. He reaped what he had sown, even though in this case he had been tricked by the salesman.

A woman (or man) goes to the store to shop for some item . . . apparel or food, perhaps. She is handed her change. It turns out she receives more than her due. Quickly she puts it into her purse and hies away. Some months later the procedure is reversed. She does not receive the full amount due her. This time she does not see it until she arrives home . . . too late to make an issue of it. What happened? As she had previously sown, by not reporting the first mistake, she is now on the short end of the receiving.

A man gets kicked in the shins during a day's activities. He didn't do anything wrong, so why did he have to be kicked? That's not fair, one might think. Yet somewhere along the line in this man's path of progress he had hurt others without provocation on their part. Simple and fair, isn't it? It is when you understand the law of sowing and reaping.

Imagine a universe, or universes, run by a helter-skelter system such as man would concoct for himself! There would soon be turmoil and chaos of the worst kind. Imagine a government without laws . . . a state without principles of decency and order. No wise and just God is going to run a helter-skelter universe. It was all created perfect in the beginning, made to operate under certain universal laws in order to maintain peace and harmony and balance. For us to derive benefit from these laws, there must be balance. This is not fate. Man thinks of fate as something that happens only to him, whereas it is actually the receiving back of what he has given out—good or evil. If good is received, it has been earned, for somewhere along the line it was done unto others. If so-called fate gives us a dirty look, a bit of hard luck, some short change, we can be sure we have done likewise to another, or to others, in the course of our living and learning.

Take fate as it comes; profit by it. Let it teach you something. By so doing, a notch is added to your "gun of life," as it were, and one more lesson will have been learned in your life's history book. You are then one step nearer to the God of your creation.

Many interesting illustrations and explanations of how this law of cause and effect, of sowing and reaping, operates is contained in William W. Atkinson's enlightening book entitled, Reincarnation and the Law of Karma. It may be purchased from Chimes, $2.75 postpaid. California residents add 10 cents sales tax.

To absorb one lesson well is worth a whole lifetime. To learn, say, that money is worthless as a foundation on which to build a life; that the deed ever rebounds on the doer, is to reap a good harvest, and to pave the way for learning other lessons.

A lesson well understood is never repeated, while one misunderstood is repeated again and again in diverse forms and manners until its meaning sinks in the mind and heart.

—Mikhail Naimy

Through the trance mediumship of Rev. Richard Zenor, Los Angeles, California, the author conducts interviews with Margie, in the unseen realms of life, presenting readers' questions on life after death. From her, and many evolved souls in Spirit, has come much valuable knowledge otherwise unobtainable.

MARGIE ... the Answer Girl

By Philip A. Hastings, Pomona, California
(All rights reserved to the author)

THOSE OF US who have undergone the heartrending experience of having a loved one pass away in what seems to be great pain may be comforted by these words from Margie.

She tells us that in many instances, although the one passing seems to be suffering greatly, on the astral plane there are present at the time kind, wise beings who often help such souls by taking the pain away. If the loved one could talk, he or she would tell you there was no suffering, and that there were present at the bedside loved ones, as well as Spirit helpers, who were of much comfort and assistance.

Unfortunately, we have no real assurance on the earth plane that this is the case. Each soul's passing is also different, according to what has been merited, and arrival in the world of Spirit is in accordance with the law of sowing and reaping. . . of cause and effect. Sometimes this turns out to be quite a rude awakening, indeed. More often, though, it is not the case.

That the person passing is squirming, moaning involuntarily, or giving outward indications of agony, is not proof positive of his suffering. Some have returned from the Spirit world and assured those who were at their bedside that they were not really in pain at the last. Such physical manifestations often are involuntary and cannot be controlled by the one passing.

There is much interest in the subject of faith healing or magnetic healing. In answer to one of many questions received on this subject, all in the same direction, Margie gives this reply:

O What constitutes a magnetic healer? Do I have to be advanced spiritually to bring about the restoration of good health in others in order to be a healer?

If you are extremely magnetic, you can heal. You do not have to be a highly spiritual individual to do this. I understand that the common belief is that faith or magnetic healing requires a high degree of spiritual development, but this is not true. If one person is run-down and deficient magnetically, while another has a surplus of magnetic vibrations, pain can be alleviated and the afflicted one can be restored physically through the vibrations of the stronger of the two. Magnetism itself, according to its potency, automatically can build up a person low in magnetism. . . the process being one like charging a battery. Often this process of recharging brings about healing because magnetism destroys bacteria which could be afflicting the person low in vitality.

As far as the medical profession is concerned, I grant you that I am talking nonsense, for it does not concede the importance of magnetism in healing. However, many physicians and nurses, as well as others connected with the healing arts, do possess the quality of magnetism, and the ability to transmit it to others, without even being aware of it.

You may be around a magnetic person, yet not be greatly impressed by what he or she says, or by their appearance, yet you will sense that you feel good in that person's presence. This is because of the strong magnetism emanating from that person's body. Usually if you are noticeably helped — magnetically — it is because you are greatly in need of magnetism, that you need to be recharged, so to speak. If, however, negative magnetism is given off by someone you are around, it won't make you feel good or help you, rather you will feel drained of energy. Thoughts, being somewhat like radio waves, must have something to carry them from one person to another. They cannot flow of themselves. Magnetic waves act as the "carrier" of these thought forces between human beings. The experience most people have had of thinking of someone, then having that person phone, write, or appear immediately thereafter is known as thought transference. The magnetism that flowed between the two persons carried the thought with it. This is the way in which communication takes place in the astral world. The question may arise here as to why some are not as receptive to transmitted thoughts. Without being consciously aware of it, everyone receives thoughts transmitted from others. However, when a specific thought has been transmitted to someone in particular who failed to receive it, that person is immune to receiving it. This could be for the reason that too much in his own make-up is working against being receptive, or that in his immediate environment a "cross current" is nullifying or detracting from

GEORGE BUTLER COMMENTS

THE PAINTING THAT Baffles SCIENCE

ONE OF THE STRANGEST paintings in the world baffled the artist who painted it. . . and has mystified thousands who have viewed it. Seen in the light, it is a painting of Jesus standing on a rock beside some water. His right hand is held over His heart, His left hand at His side.

In the near-darkness, however, the painting changes completely. The background glows with a strange light and the figure of Christ becomes a black shadow. Over his head is a visible halo, and over His shoulder is the shadow of a cross. Yet the artist, Henri Ault, did not paint the cross or the halo. . . a phenomenon that has baffled artists, clergymen, and scientists for many years.

A French-Canadian, Henri Ault painted this picture of Jesus in 1896. It remained in his studio for several weeks after it had been completed. Then one night, while getting a book he needed from his studio, his glance was attracted to the painting. What he saw there in the darkness sent him racing down the road to the nearest neighbors. They scarcely believed his story, but hurried back to the studio with him to see for themselves. There, in the unlighted room, all could see the strange sight quite clearly. . . the dark figure, the cross, the halo, and the glowing light. . . something Ault swore he had not painted.

In 1904 the painting was exhibited at the World's Fair held at St. Louis, Missouri. Later it was shown at the Dore Galleries in London, England, then (was taken on a tour of the European continent. In 1948 it was presented to the Mission of St. Francis of Assisi in Ranchos de Taos, one of the earliest Spanish missions in the nation, by Mrs. Herbert S. Griffin of Wichita Falls, Texas, who had acquired it in the belief that, because of being in the nature of a religious work, it properly belonged in a church.

From the narrow wooden benches of this old church, in a setting of Spanish statues and magnificent beams, one views this famous painting as it hangs in an alcove to the left of the main altar. A parish priest, appearing in the pulpit of the brightly lighted church, extends a welcome to all visitors, speaks briefly about the history of the painting, and emphasizes the fact that there never has been an explanation for the strange transformation which takes place in the picture in the darkness. Soon the lights are turned off, and the church is plunged into almost complete darkness, with only small flickers of red lights from the votive candles. . . then, in the silence and the darkness, one can see the painting begin to glow. Suddenly, but unmistakably, its striking background becomes clearly visible. The figure of Christ becomes a black shadow with a luminous circle sharply outlined above His head, and the dark shadow of the cross looms heavy over His shoulder. An involuntary gasp escapes from the viewers, then a feeling of tremendous awe fills the tiny church. Sitting there in the dark, all eyes become riveted on that patient figure bearing the cross, which, before — in the light — was not present. Without the contrast of darkness and light produced by the phenomenon of this painting, it might not otherwise make such a deep impact upon the consciousness. It is in this contrast one can perceive the truth that man carries his greatest burdens, bears his heaviest cross, when he is in darkness. . . yet in the light, dissolve as though they had never been. The contrasts of life, as in the painting, are filled with drama and pathos, yet in the light we see the beauty of the artist's original creation.

For many years Henri Ault tried to duplicate this painting, but was never able to achieve quite the same effect. When it was thought that some type of phosphorous might have been present in the paint, various chemical tests were run. . . even tests with a Geiger counter. . . but all proved to be negative.

After nearly seventy years, science still is unable to explain how such a phenomenon takes place. Frank Edwards, in his book, Stranger than Science, describes many such occurrences. . . all a matter of verifiable record. . . which science stoutly maintains "can't happen." Only when we understand the working of presently unknown higher natural laws will we have a logical explanation for such occurrences.

Frank Edwards has written several astounding books based on his monumental true-to-life collection of fascinating facts and stories acquired during his years as a master news analyst and commentator. Stranger than Science, Strange People, and Strange World may be purchased from Chimes, $5.20 each, postpaid. ## LET NOTHING DISTURB THEE

By Frank B. Whitney

NOTHING CAN DISTURB or frighten us when we realize that things of the world are ever going through a process of change. Only God is permanent. Patiently watching God and the things of God coming more and more into evidence and visibility, we behold the things that disturb passing into a state of invisibility. Knowing that God possesses us and we are His own, we can want nothing. . . not even peace of mind. We cannot let persons, things, and situations disturb us when we have a consciousness of God's presence and power. If we believe that God in His omnipotence has power to make us peaceful, we cannot at the same time believe that things have power to disturb us.

Cease to build up a state of mind in which you give any person or thing power to disturb you. No longer give any thought to the belief that you are a victim of another's unkindness, injustice, or ill will. YOU ARE FREE from all belief that another can disturb you, but you must know this truth in order to see it demonstrated in your life. Aim for that impersonal consciousness where you are not thinking constantly about what other persons think, say or do. When you find things disturbing you, taking your peace of mind from you, let this be a warning that you need to think Truth and direct your thought to God at the heart of your being. You cannot believe in the power of other persons and things when you believe in your own God-given power, the power of the presence of God within you. "Let nothing disturb thee."

LESSONS FOR STUDENTS

TYPES OF TELEPATHY

OUR INTEREST in what telepathy is, how it works, its forms, and who can use it is being encouraged these days by the attention being devoted to it by researches in various branches of the physical, social, as well as mental sciences. It is something within the realm of experience and understanding of everyone, yet not much has been "tied down" on the how, when, and why of its functions. Urgent demands of our life and times, however, are pushing us into doing something about this.

We have learned a few things. . . that telepathic messages take many forms. They may be visual, taking the form of pictures, figures, written or printed words or symbols. They may be auditory, most likely via spoken words. They may be emotional, with the feeling of a peculiar depression or excitement. They may also be volitional, arousing an imperative desire to perform a certain action. There are probably many more forms than are now recognized.

Origination of telepathic messages may be from those living or in the realm of Spirit. As they are known to be transmitted to and from the subconscious mind (sometimes under the supervision and direction of the conscious mind), their most effectual time is during sleep, trance or hypnosis, under the influence of a drug, anesthesia, or alcohol, in delirium, while unconscious, or at the moment of death. It is while the conscious mind is asleep, or in abeyance and unable to interfere, that the message is able to reach the subconscious mind. This is also when "visions of the dying," states of ecstasy, trance-speaking, and revelations occur.

Those in Spirit tell us that telepathic communication is the method they use between one another, enabling them to understand fully another's thoughts as though full sentences of words had been spoken. If at times we who are spirit in the flesh can converse with one another by this means, and those who are disembodied can do so also, it only stands to reason that the embodied and disembodied spirit should be able to communicate in this way. All trance mediums, of course, attest this to be a fact.

PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

EGGS THAT TALKED BACK

By Dr. Elizabeth Reams, North Platte, Nebraska

SINCE 1948 I have raised a great number of different types of canaries, as well as Chihuahua dogs, and have boiled hundreds of eggs to feed to the birds and dogs for extra protein.

Last August my husband, Charley, and I drove over to Grant, Nebraska to see his family visiting from the West Coast. Wishing to take some cooked eggs along with us, I took eighteen eggs that had been laid during the past three to four days, put them in a kettle, drew hot water over them, and placed them on the stove to cook. As I started to leave the stove, a peeping noise started. I turned to look behind me, but saw only the cocker dog sleeping that was boarding with us for a week. I turned back to the stove, and the peeping sound grew louder and louder. I checked the kettle. It was hot, but made no sound whatever. The peeping sound grew still louder, definitely that of a disturbed, uncomfortable baby chick and was now coming from the kettle. A baby chick in distress in the kettle? Impossible! The eggs were not even fertile, and, besides, were only about two to four days old. I grabbed up the kettle, took it to the sink, scooped out several eggs, and listened. The peeps still came from the kettle, so I took out more eggs and listened to them. While I held these last eggs in my hand and listened to them, the peeping stopped. I put them back into the hot water, and the sound started again. Alarmed, I had no desire to boil a helpless chick. I was actually afraid to cook the eggs for fear of killing a live chick. I argued with myself for a moment. . . these are infertile eggs — there cannot be chickens in them — and even so, it takes twenty-one days to hatch out chickens, and no mother hen ever sat on these. So I put the kettle back on the red hot burner. Again the noise started. . . the peep, peep, peep sounding as much in distress as ever. The water got hotter and hotter, then suddenly the peeping stopped, leaving me feeling downright guilty that I had boiled that dozen and a half eggs.

I was much puzzled by this strange experience of having non-fertile fresh eggs talk back to me. However, knowing that there are no baby chicks anywhere in our neighborhood, I realized afterwards that it was a psychic manifestation of some sort. If any Chimes readers could explain it or have had a similar experience, it might be helpful to know about it.

○ ESP ... MEANS TO AN END

In their engrossing study of the potential powers of the mind, Estabrooks and Gross, in The Future of the Human Mind, conclude on the extended use of man's paranormal and extrasensory perception that if experimentation and research ultimately can yield knowledge of the basic psychical processes of living things comparable to what it has unlocked of the basic physical processes at work in our universe, it would be hard to describe the possibilities open to the human mind. Even the use of clairvoyance that would permit the doctor to diagnose and treat his patients all over the world right from his office, the use of telepathy putting the telephone and telegraph companies out of business, with retrocognition making history a present event, and precognition permitting us to see our descendants of two hundred years. . . all this would be unimportant compared to the implications of man's bringing to consciousness his paranormal abilities whereby he would be in touch with all mankind and all nature.

○ THANKS TO HYPNOSIS

Describing how man can benefit when attuning his subconscious mind to the great Universal Mind, in Is, Open Forum Magazine, Aaron Zeligman gives auto-hypnosis for ESP use a boost: "Science and the psychological areas have established that there are five mental compartments, i.e., memory, reason, imagination, intuition, and faith. In hypnosis, when one surrenders unconditionally, this is faith. Then he lets imagination take over. . . From my own experience in hypnosis, I believe that any human being who has faith in this imagination, through the practice of auto-hypnosis, can accomplish many of the wonders that until now have been called miracles in the environment of ESP. Within the state of hypnosis one not only surrenders to his imagination, he surrenders to another one of those compartments, his intuition. With constant practice, one develops within oneself an attunement which is certainty. . . an area of perfection. . . the final objective in living. In our daily lives we try to attain a degree of perfection in all the provinces of living, and, of course, science, too, does exactly the same thing. It strives for certainty and for perfection."

○ RHINE LOOKS AT ESP TODAY

Summarizing his outlook on the status and prospect of parapsychology today, Dr. J. B. Rhine, formerly of Duke University, now head of the new Foundation for Research on the Nature of Man, states in the Foundation's first published proceedings, Parapsychology: From Duke to FRNM, that "the most impressive fact about parapsychology today is the really enormous amount of public interest in the field" and the remarkable growth of this interest year after year over several decades. Less gratifying, however, is the slow pace at which research is moving, its lag behind other sciences in acceptance, the few full-time trained research workers, and the large turnover of trained personnel. He seemed encouraged, though, that research findings increasingly "make sense," even those factors still a mystery comprising the unknown of human personality, and that psi phenomena can be investigated by the same basic approach used throughout the whole of natural science. Dr. Rhine sees the greatest difficulty parapsychology offers to test a researcher's capability is in the demand it makes upon his entire scientific orientation. . . that no field of inquiry ever was dominated by such a great variety of inquirers with such assorted assumptions, backgrounds, philosophies, and special interests. . . with few of them able to give up their limited approaches for the good of an objective research program, becoming a humble searcher for whatever the truth of nature is.

Ending on an optimistic note, Dr. Rhine sees present parapsychologists as less sensitive to critical attack, more confident, and willing to stand on their own feet. . . to "let the chips fall where they may" . . . although there will still be those who must continue to speak with restraint, whether to meet the requirements of a party line or of an academic line. Dr. Rhine feels it is high time we push research into the hidden part of man's nature with all the best methods scholarship can offer, for a more important inquiry to submit to science, no one has thought of yet.

THE MODUS OPERANDI used mainly by those who have become adept at the skill of leaving the body at will is called Direct Projection. It is an ability to be in any world, at any place, at any time, and to be, know and see what we wish at a moment's notice. This is a highly developed skill, but not as impossible as so many believe.

In Direct Projection one can hop out of the body and fulfill whatever desire is necessary at the moment. The body is usually left behind to run on a mechanical basis, but if the danger is too great will remove itself by some yet unexplainable means.

To do Direct Projection one needs strict discipline, for it means making instant withdrawal from the perimeter of consciousness and blanking out everything of the physical world. To do this at once is done by postulate. The postulate is made up mainly of three words: BE — DESTINATION — NOW. By its use the Soul, or Self, suddenly is out gathering needed knowledge, then returns when the task is finished.

This is actually an advancement on the trance state, often while the physical body is in action. It is an instant, but brief, trance, one not harmful to the person using it, nor to anyone concerned. If the physical body is active, the period of being out of the body may be brief. However, this depends on the mission the Soul is to accomplish.

Brown Landone in his writings tells of a time when, during the rush hour in the Chicago Loop, he was caught between two trucks going in opposite directions. Thinking he was to be crushed, he closed his eyes, used a similar postulate, then upon opening his eyes again, found himself on the opposite side of the street moving with the evening crowd along the sidewalk.

The technique is simple: the postulate is made, the image is flicked to the Soul of what is desired, and the rest is left to that inner sense to make the necessary motion. In the twinkling of an eye, the attention is switched from the outer senses to the inner, for where thought is sent in strong force, the inner body will follow.

The question often arises as to the difference between bi-location and intuition. The intuitive sense is a knowing obtained without recourse or reasoning whereby the psychic faculty opens and innate knowledge is received without effort. This faculty works in all of us, but it is lost when we are troubled and cannot fully trust such knowledge, or possibly the physical senses refuse to obey the impulses sent through this channel.

Direct Projection, however, enables one to get outside the body, get a sharp, clear picture of the situation at hand, then act accordingly. Often it is only a clear picture, but it meets the need for the moment. This may last only for four-fifths of a second, or for as long as one desires.

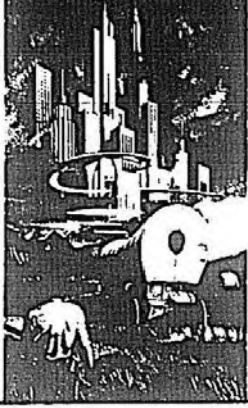

The spiritual guides are interested in the welfare of every Soul. It is their duty to see that each one of us eventually reaches the highest world where dwells the Supreme Being. The reason for our returning to the ultimate spiritual plane is that God has a need for us. Ultimately we are all to become one of those spiritual travelers whose duties it is to lift the less fortunate, and in turn teach them how to reach the God world.

There are ways in which true spiritual travelers or guides may be distinguished from those who merely pose as such. First, and among the most noticeable, is that those in physical form never make a personal charge for their services. Second, they never boast of their abilities and attainments. Third, they never complain of their treatment at the hands of others, nor find fault, or blame others. They exalt the positive virtues and never lecture others about their shortcomings, nor do they punish anyone — though they may have the power to do so. Fourth, they are never given to ascetic practices, always give instead of receive, and never perform miracles for public exhibition. Finally, the genuine spiritual traveler will practice as well as teach the Word . . . the sound of God.

*"Every person who wishes to attain peace of mind must learn the art of renouncing many things in order to possess other things more securely and fully." . . . Joshua Loth Liebman from *Peace of Mind

HOW WE GAIN WITH EVERY SACRIFICE

IT IS IN the nature of mortal man that he finds objects of admiration and devotion. . . those he regards highly, shows affection for, idolizes or loves deeply. A time may come, however, when he will have to break his ties with those for whom he shows special regard, and go on in life without them.

It is in the destiny of things that union with these especially loved people is not always a permanent one, and man many times has to face renunciation and sacrifice in the form of yielding to inevitable changes in relationships, accepting the inescapable growth of others, and releasing them to their new experiences.

Sacrifices involving the renunciation of loved ones seem to be among the most painful of man's experiences for those who touch his heart are not quickly renounced by him. That he will meet again in future lives those whom he has lost does not always comfort him, if he still lives with the belief that he has only one life in which to give and receive this love. The soul, on the other hand, can relinquish those loved with less feeling of sacrifice, for it understands the ties which bind man to others in every life.

Besides sacrificing his possessions and renouncing his loves, man may also be required to make other offerings to the altar of sacrifice. . . His creative work may be plagiarized, his inventions stolen, his plans thwarted, his credit destroyed and his reputation attacked. He may be offered moments of supreme self-sacrifice at the very summit of his cycle of fulfillment and accomplishment. Some men can rise to great heights at moments and hours of sacrifice. Such a time of sacrificial experience may mark the peak soul experience. In some men the soul force takes over and exerts a tremendous power over the human self, and is able to throw its weight in the direction of its ideal.

It is at this time of sacrificial crisis that the soul can aid its tortured human self. The qualities of character are then man's only strength upon which he can rely. . . and these qualities force the personality to yield to a higher law. The relinquishment of possessions, the conquering of the compulsion to possess another's love, the surrendering of selfishness— all are accomplished only with the assistance of the soul.

If man is unable to make a wise choice, renounce a desire, sacrifice his human ego. . . and his soul is unable to force him to do so. . . he loses an opportunity for his soul to achieve another victory for itself. The crest of the experiences passes, and nothing of exceptional value has been accomplished in that cycle of living.

Under the drama of such renunciatory sacrifice, the breakdown of man's selfishness gradually is accomplished. . . he begins to change his nature. . . and is subtly lifted to a higher level within himself, for only in his soul nature will he find the understanding and comfort the demands growth have made on him.

Among the most advanced souls are those who stake their lives on their ideals and principles and suffer martyrdom for their ingrained beliefs. They have reached the evolutionary status of great souls; they have great respect for truth and justice, do not ignore their strong soul impulses in its efforts to support concepts of right and wrong; they face many tests, lose friends— money— reputation— power— family, and may stand alone in life when sacrificing all that is mortal for their beliefs. The soul is so strong within them that they are capable of enduring great suffering. . . even death.

This acceptance of the necessity of sacrifice is built into the very structure of advanced souls because they have faced similar situations before, and have been tested repeatedly for their ability to become selfless. When life demands a continuance of supreme testing, these magnificently abnegated souls accept the demands made upon them. . . and, because of past life conditioning, yield more quickly to the rites of sacrifice than the souls who have not yet accepted this belief or who do not possess this wisdom. Thus we see why many do not understand the sacrificial experiences in life. . . are unable to resign themselves to the demands made upon them, and do not yet have the vision to see that these acts actually lift them up out of the mediocrity of earth life into the higher soul levels.

Opportunities for sacrifices are given to man to force his soul into a superior state. . . Such sacrificial souls show a luminosity not found in those concerned only with the self. . . Each

CROISET - The Clairvoyant

Jack Harrison Pollack

Here is the story of that amazing Dutchman, Gerard Croiset, Holland's celebrated clairvoyant crimebuster, who, for eighteen years, worked in collaboration with the police departments in many European countries to help solve countless baffling murders, sex crimes, and thefts. Though he has never visited the United States, from 3,000 miles away he has assisted the police in this country with his paranormal impressions. He has also assisted in locating hundreds of missing children, found lost documents for officials, and identified ancient manuscripts and historical items of great value. All Croiset's work has been officially documented and controlled under the direction of Prof. W.H.C. Tenhaeff at the University of Utrecht in Holland, and he has been tested under laboratory conditions in many European countries. Acclaimed by Dr. J.B. Rhine, formerly head of the Duke University Parapsychology Department, here is a biography that dramatically illustrates the potential of the human mind.

YOGA, YOUTH AND REINCARNATION

Jess Stearn

$6.20 postpaid, plus 24c sales tax in Calif.

Former news reporter and syndicated columnist Jess Stearn found it hard to believe that people could become young and virile by merely practicing Yoga. In a dramatic self-experience, he learned that Yoga was more than just a series of exotic exercises. He writes this book to tell how he got rid of colds, headaches, indigestion, sleeplessness, and felt and looked ten years younger after a four-month course. Under the direction of proper Bostonian Marcia Moore, a Radcliffe graduate schooled in India who lectures on Yoga countrywide, he found himself immersed in the life of the somewhat zany Moore family, tells how they used Yoga exercises, and candidly comments on their somewhat unusual approach to reincarnation, astrology, vegetarianism, and life after death. With many do-it-yourself charts, photographs, drawings and directions, anyone who is willing to apply himself can benefit from Stearn's practical suggestions.

OUTWITTING YOUR YEARS

Clarence William Lieb, M.D.

$4.20 postpaid, plus 16c sales tax in Calif.

"Older people can be dignified, yet fun-loving; religious, yet not puritanical; conversational, yet not chatterboxy," says Dr. Lieb. At any age, for that matter, "we must refuse to let our opinions become jelled, our interests narrowed, or our sympathies dulled. We must not withdraw from life, shirk responsibilities, or sit with folded hands recounting our ailments to a sympathetic listener," he reminds us. "The old still rule the world—the good no longer die young—and if some crackpot system of compulsory retirement forces us to give up our jobs, we can get new ones, new friends, hobbies, and interests". . . all pretty sane observations and advice, we'll have to admit. 21

THE BODY TELLS THE STORY THE METAPHYSICS OF ANATOMY PART III

By Dr. Cushing Smith, Detroit, Michigan

Resuming discussion of what the various parts of the body signify metaphysically, we see how our physical senses relate to corresponding mental attributes.

THE FACULTIES of sight, hearing, feeling, tasting and smelling are recognized as more mental in nature than the organs of the viscera. Everyone remembers times when he has walked down the street with his mind so centered on a particular idea that he has been completely unaware of his surroundings, passing friends without noticing them. Perhaps he has concentrated on something he has been doing to the point where he has not even heard someone calling his name. Under similar preoccupation he might not be able to tell another what he was eating, what a pungent odor smelled like, or whether someone jostled him in passing. For that reason, few aspects of the body lend themselves more readily than the senses to metaphysical analysis.

Eyes perform the primary function of capturing light and darkness in varying degrees. You cannot see black furniture in a darkened room, nor discover a polar bear on a snowscape. Metaphysically interpreted, sight represents the capacity for discernment. A person who is able to see all angles of a proposition quickly, without the need for deep study, should rejoice in excellent eyesight. True spiritual insight is the most dependable guarantee of normal eyesight. In other words, the way one looks at life mentally and philosophically determines in large measure the way he will look out from his eyes.

Ears represent the recognition of external phenomena on a subjective basis, as contrasted with eyes on a more objective basis. By this is meant that, while in both cases there is interpretation of that which comes via the ether waves, the matter of distance makes it appear that we project thought in seeing, and have to wait for something to strike the eardrum in hearing. Since it is written: "Having eyes, ye see not; and having ears, ye hear not, neither do ye understand," the key to ears is represented by understanding. The familiar expression, "falling on deaf ears," is purely metaphysical since it refers to mental receptivity rather than hearing.

Animals have keen hearing not subject to deterioration to the same degree as in mortals, largely because animals do not become confused by a flow of words which they are unable to comprehend; they merely ignore the situation, whereas man, in trying to understand, may find his mental ears to be "dull of hearing," devoid of proper comprehension.

Smelling is considered a lesser sense only because its diminution is less hazardous to man than weakening of sight and hearing. It is the sense of smell that indicates intuition, rather than a physical sense of keenness, like that of a hound's ability to follow a scent. When intuition is blunted, the sense of smell easily becomes impaired. On the other hand, one who is able to "smell a rat" in a situation may thereby develop his physical sense of smell, even when his skepticism later may prove to have been unfounded.

Taste is a matter of discrimination. . . different from discernment in that it is more likely to relate to finite phenomena than to "the things of the spirit." As physical taste requires contact, so discrimination relates to tangible rather than intangible things. The development of this sense by wine-tasters and others is amazing evidence of its mental significance, enabling an expert to tell almost the identical vineyard which produced the grapes made into the wine samples. A "woman of good taste" may likewise develop the physical sense of taste, often without being aware of the connection. A discriminating buyer seldom is visited with deficiency either in tasting or smelling, usually enjoying his food more than others, but a person who habitually is gullible may lose both these senses.

Symbolism for the entire human body is to be found in Dr. Smith's enlightening book for self-healing, I Can Heal Myself and I Will. Purchase your copy from Chimes, $5.25 post-paid. California residents add 20c sales tax.

Why is the word most felt by men, yet least uttered, for men fear to ask of that which they do not know for shame, shame which might be bestowed upon from lips of mortals like themselves who, likewise, fear to ask honestly why. Why is the gatepost to learning. Without the question there is no search for the answer.

STORY OF CHRISTMAS

doubts and trials in this night time of our lives. As in the story, while the shepherd steadily watches, holding to principle, behold . . . the star appears!

The STAR is the light within our own soul, its gleam heretofore hidden, now shining forth in the heavens of our consciousness. This is the light that leads us to the manger (humble attitudes) for spiritual comprehension. The star that guided the shepherds in the story was but the reflex of the enkindled light within their own souls.

The Christ Child slumbers within each one of us, but not every one knows of this child and the manger in which it lieth, only him born of spiritual awareness who discerns spiritual things. The birth of this Christ Child in us begets all inspiration, all life, all knowledge, all power, and all virtue, revealing to us our sonship of the Living God and how its joys and blessings can convey the true significance of Christmas.

This being a season of gifts and giving, let us see what gift we can give our Father in Heaven. Could we not give our attention to Him and to His Truth . . . directing our thoughts and attending to them as flocks watched over by a shepherd? Could we not watch our errors in thinking . . . praying they be removed as the limitations of swaddling clothes so that the Christ Child be revealed in our lives?

As you do this, you will comprehend a great deal more of the inside story of Christmas. You will find the lodgement you sought in the inn of your mind and in the manger of your soul to which your own star light, your divine self, has guided you. You will deny no longer the truth of the Christ Child struggling within you to be born, and you will make room now in the inn of your soul for His coming. Then Peace surely will come, as Jesus the Christ has promised . . . My Peace I bring unto you.

the magnetic vibrations being sent to him. Just as it is with electricity, magnetism must flow freely between the negative and the positive if it is to make a connection or be received.

In coming to the close of our endeavors for the year 1965, Margie and I wish to express our most sincere appreciation, not only of the interest Chimes readers have expressed in this column, judging from the questions and comments received, but also of the enthusiastic reception accorded our first published book entitled, Margie Answers You. It is immensely encouraging to know that not only have our efforts not been in vain to reach those who hunger for "the bread of life" . . . those who yearn to be enlightened, better prepared for what lies beyond this short span of years on Earth . . . but to know also a measure of inner fulfillment, as well as reward from having blended our efforts with those of the spiritual realms. So, for what we have been able to share with one another with its inevitable multiplication for good, God bless you, every one.

When preparing your order for Margie Answers You, consider what a lovely gift it would make — at Christmas or any time of giving — to place in the hands of those of your acquaintance who may have plied you with varied questions, often somewhat difficult to answer, concerning life after death, the astral planes, and assorted types of extrasensory phenomena. Such a gift could very well turn out to be among the most valued of a lifetime. Just send in your order to Chimes for it on the handy book order form attached to this issue, $4.25 each, postpaid, plus 16 cents sales tax for California residents. 23

THE SOURCE OF ALL HEALING

○ THE GIVE AND TAKE. . . . If a person would have his prayers answered, he must be willing to be a channel through which the prayers of others are answered. If he would be healed, he must be willing to be a healer of discords. If he would have prosperity, he must be willing to give as freely as he desires to receive. He must not only be willing to do these things, but he must prove his willingness by doing them. If we look ourselves squarely in the face, we shall find that many times the things we are asking for in prayer we are not trying to live in our life. . . . We need to give as we would have the Father give to us, we need to forgive as we would be forgiven; in fact, we need to practice the Golden Rule, not only toward people, but toward God also. Many a person has been healed at a time when he forgot his own aches and pains in praying for another's healing. Many a person has opened a channel for riches to flow to him by giving the widow's mite.—Frances W. Foulks from Effectual Prayer.*

○ HEALING EVERYWHERE. . . . There is as much healing power in a Beethoven sonata or a painting by Constable as in excerpts from the Bible.—G.B.S. from The Spiritual Healer.

○ NO LANGUAGE NEEDED. . . . Prayer is the upgush of God in your heart. You do not need words with which to pray. . . . only the fervent recognition of the Presence. — Walter C. Lanyon from The Temple Not Made With Hands.*

○ UNFAILING HELP. . . . When some emergency of human need arose, the instinctive reaction of Jesus was a consciousness of God's invisible but mighty presence. He turned to God as you or I might turn to a loving human Father. He met the thought of the world with the thought of God. — Ernest C. Wilson from The Sunlit Way.*

○ ONENESS WITH NATURE. . . . It is at the subconscious level that kinship with the natural creation is most strongly established, below the threshold of conscious awareness that we make contact with the inherent regenerative and healing energies of nature. . . . the life-giving potency of ozone or the fragrant country air, the sun's warmth, the elemental strength of earth and sea. . . . where we are at-one-ment with all the pulsing energies of the cosmos. — Harry Edwards from Spirit Healing.*

great souls who took his interest in and gift for healing with him beyond the grave. He passed from being a spiritual healer during his life on earth to being a healing guide in the realm of Spirit.

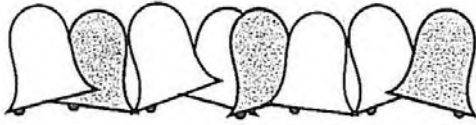

Beyond even what we can imagine, spiritual healing has far-reaching implications. . . . one of these being that we are only dimly aware that, after what we call "death," we are able—in consequence of our greater knowledge and understanding—to use the healing forces of the spiritual realms in a manner far greater than anything yet understood by living humans on earth.

Those who may be interested in obtaining healing for any ill-condition may write to Major T.H. Patterson, 14, Fielding Street, Faversham, Kent, England. Although his services are on a voluntary basis, it would be of much assistance if, when a reply is expected, one International Reply Coupon, or an equivalent cash donation, is enclosed to cover the cost of return postage. Coupons may be obtained at any local Post Office.

Although of a somewhat different approach to the same central idea of spiritual healing, in his book entitled, Spiritual Unfoldment, White Eagle artfully describes the invisible worlds, how they may be discovered, and spiritual healing powers released, while Joel S. Goldsmith in The Art of Spiritual Healing and M. McDonald Bayne in Spiritual and Mental Healing, describe how healing takes place within natural laws, and explain the principles and practices behind all spiritual healing. These books, as well as a complete listing of all the works of these authors, may be secured through the Chimes Book Catalog, available at 15 cents each.

CHIMES CALL TO PRAYER

It is a great joy and sacred privilege to hear from every friend of Chimes who is in need of prayer. Lovingly we invite you to meet with us each day in God's thoughts for the healing of mind, soul, and body. The faith you demonstrate in the power of Divine Healing to transform your life can light the way for others: the prayer answered for you that is shared with others can be a blessing multiplied many times over. As the Chimes Call to Prayer resounds in your heart, may you know the joy of His perfect peace.

Dear Friends:

Thank you very much for your prayers and for your comforting messages to me. I do believe in prayers because I was restored once from death and agony by the infinite love of God and His powerful messengers of the Spirit World. They have led me through new channels of truth and understanding, for which I am so thankful to the good Lord.

I do so sincerely admire your work, and because I cannot help presently in a spiritual way, I would like to help materially. . . Often we can help others who ask us for it, but sometimes it seems impossible to be able to help those close to us for whom we deeply care. That is how it is in my case, but I accept and understand that God knows best.

I will be in prayer with you sometimes at noon, but at other times I will be unable to do so for material reasons. A few of my loved ones still need the help of your prayers. I pray they will come to feel an inner peace, love and contentment.

God bless you all, and wishing you continued success, I am, gratefully yours,

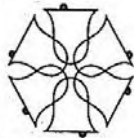

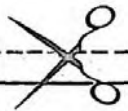

Mrs. Rafaela Rivera, Philadelphia, Pa.

In appreciation to all dear friends, here and in Spirit, who have heard and responded to the Chimes Call to Prayer, we dedicate the beautifully expressed words of Frances Nuttall. . .

"THE PRAYER OF THE CHALICE"

FATHER, TO THEE, I raise my whole being — a vessel emptied of self. Accept, Lord, this my emptiness, and so fill me with Thyself — Thy Light, Thy Love, Thy Life — that these Thy precious gifts may radiate through me and overflow the chalice of my heart into the hearts of all with whom I come in contact this day, revealing unto them the beauty of Thy Joy and Wholeness, and the serenity of Thy Peace which nothing can destroy.

power within, then you render a verdict in favor of your patient, and liberate him by faith and spiritual understanding. There being but One Mind, what you feel is true is resurrected in the experience of the patient. Quimby might really be considered the father of psychosomatic medicine and the first psychoanalyst. He also had the capacity to diagnose clairvoyantly the cause of a patient's difficulties. We shall see in the ensuing issue how he was able to combine this gift with mental healing and spiritual realization for some truly singular results.

The book to which Dr. Murphy refers above entitled, The Quimby Manuscripts, edited by Horatio Dresser, truly is a foundation stone for all modern day mental healing practices. From it have stemmed countless New Thought philosophies, representing evidence of man's eternal desire to be released from bondages that sorely try him and limit the good to which he is heir. A wonderful companion book to this is, of course, Dr. Murphy's The Power of Your Subconscious Mind, for it describes how this miracle-working power of the subconscious mind works. These and many other simple tests of your psychic ability, as well as those that can be used in groups, are described in Psychic and Other ESP Party Games, by David Hoy. Those two glorious weeks at Camp were, indeed, a special gift to me from God. . . one of strengthened faith, the renewal of long-cherished friendships, as well as much joy and happy anticipation in the many new ones. I, too, have a gift. . . a special Christmas gift for Chimes. . . that I was asked to convey from Spirit. . . one of great resplendence. . . a magnificent Diamond of Light. . . one composed of Rays from the Cosmic Mind where He creates it, then seals with love in the hearts of those for whom it is intended. ## HOW WE GAIN new act of resignation, each new sacrifice of something of the human self lifts man and his soul to tremendous heights. By these acts, the soul is washed clean of old thoughts and purged of its mortality. All acts of selflessness move the soul forward with accelerated evolutionary speed and become the hallmark of man's soul progression. How true it is that with every sacrifice man is able to make of the things of this world, he more surely gains in the ascendancy of his immortal soul.

The foregoing are thoughts paraphrased from the haunting and intriguingly beautiful book entitled The Flowering Tree by mystical and clairvoyant writer, Gladys V. Jones. This book may be purchased from Chimes, $5.20 postpaid, plus 20c sales tax for California residents.

ODE TO SPIRIT

OUR CHRISTMAS OFFERING

Did you see the Light of Dawning,
Shining o'er the cradle there,
When the Wise Men laid their offering
At His feet, with loving care?

Child of love, in holy rapture,
Lay your all at Jesus' feet;
Give your gifts as though to Jesus —
Token to His life so meek.

— Ruby Stedman Cummins

HEAVENLY CHIMES

Whene'er I hear the thrilling sound
Of chimes upon the air,
I always feel that angel friends
Are singing with them there.
Assuredly to all mankind
A blessed sound is given,
And surely there is none that brings
Us closer unto Heaven.

Then ring the joyous vibrant tones
Of chimes for all to hear
No other sound of music brings
Our loved ones quite so near;
Thus shall they live in loving thought

Whene'er the joy-bells ring,
Their angel voices joining ours
In praise to God our King.

PROBLEMS!

PROBLEMS!

PROBLEMS!

This world is a glorious place in which to live when you work WITH life vibrations rather than against them

HELEN FITZSIMMONS helps others solve their problems and strengthen every aspect of their lives through the science of vibration. The numerical value of your name tells a story that is different than any other, and shows you how to solve each problem in your life.

Rev. Robert G. Chaney says of her work: "She has helped me see my own life through clearer eyes and to discover previously undreamed-of possibilities."

For your own personal life vibration study, and help with your present problems, send your full name given at birth, your birth date (month, day and year), a brief outline of your problems, and Helen Fitzsimmons will show how to take the place in this universe that belongs to you personally.

The infinite source of truth has no name. Man is the Medium through which wisdom is recorded with paper and pen. Thus these automatic writings came to earth. WSP

LIFE . . . is like a violin string, sensitive to the touch and the ear. It bends like the bow. The strings are sometimes taut, but when released vibrate, are loosened and free. This is life in the body— all encompassing, holding back complete free expression of the will. Like the bowman's string, it is taut and tense, and can be relaxed only upon release.

Humans should have no fear of death. For those who have prepared themselves for release, freedom shall replace strife and grief. Those who have not prepared themselves shall bear the consequences after release. They will be like the bowstring, incapable of being loose by its own will, bound by tautness for lifetimes to come.

* * *

LOVE . . . is the command. Ask nothing, but give love. Love is above the errors of the flesh, for love is of the soul. Go forth and speak silently by action. Love is action.

Love is something that cannot be possessed, bought, kept, or hidden. Love is a gift and is to be given. Love is not to be received unless it is given, nor can it be received until it is given. Love is the meaning of Christmas.

Dr. Letari

Many perplexing questions of this nature are answered for you by a young woman in the world of Spirit known as "Margie."

Gleaning highlights from several years' interviews with Margie, Philip A. Hastings has written a unique book that should be as basic to everyone's education on life after death as learning their ABC's is to this one. # EXPLORATION AND HIGH ADVENTURE ON THE FRONTIERS OF CONSCIOUSNESS with Stewart Edward White

(Books by Stewart Edward White listed in the order intended to be read)

THE BETTY BOOK

$5.25

"This book is the record, condensed, of the excursions of 'Betty,' a psychic intimately known to me and of absolute integrity, into the world of 'other consciousness' and of communications received by her from forces which I have ventured to call the 'invisibles'. These excursions, made in a condition of trance or otherwise, began in the year 1919 and have continued ever since. They are recorded . . . with no idea of adding to the existing literature of automatic writing and kindred phenomena, but in the belief that, as embodying a workable philosophy of life, they may be of aid to seekers after spiritual light' . . . so writes a friend of the author in describing what came to be the first of a series of "Betty" books, all very dear to the heart of the psychic student.

ACROSS THE UNKNOWN

$5.25

Early in his writing career, Mr. White was well known for the flavor he imparted to descriptions of pioneering on America's northwest frontiers, in Africa and Alaska. . . and it is in this same sense of adventure, romance, and lure of the unknown that his exploration begins into the unlimited frontiers of man's consciousness. "It is essential to linger frequently on the frontier of one's limitations, looking out eagerly across the unknown" . . . anyone with the daring to read beyond these opening words is launched on an adventure into the "country beyond," that, knows no end.

THE UNOBSTRUCTED UNIVERSE

$4.75

Now in its twenty-fifth printing, this book was given to our generation from the Invisibles as a new pattern for individual and social living based on the recapture of faith, not in the thereness of immortality, but in its hereness, with a solid foundation for this faith in The Unobstructed Universe, of which all is a part, in its many aspects of the One Universe. How our viewpoint, our thinking, has created any obstructions or walls we believe to exist, and how we may change it is the purpose of this communication.

THE JOB OF LIVING

$3.75

Prepared before his passing, this was the full statement of the philosophy of life and self-development divulged to Mr. White by the Invisibles, and is, in a sense, the summation of his books in this vital field. Mr. White believes that each of us is meant to function in harmony with the cosmos by developing our spiritual personality on the highest level, and he gives us clear and specific advice on using the tools we have been given to do this. . . how we may work within the peaks and troughs of our creativeness and establish rhythm and balance in our life and work. The Job (of living) of every one of us, he tells us, is to function fully through the highest development of one's personality.

The Christ is Here

As shepherds watched their flocks by night
They heard the angels sing
"Peace on the earth, Good will to men"
Glad tidings thus we bring.

The Spirit of the Christ is here
And over land and sea
His message shall go forth to bring
All men as ONE to be.

The Love of God shall reign supreme
In every heart and mind
And Peace, her sheltering wings shall spread
A refuge to mankind.

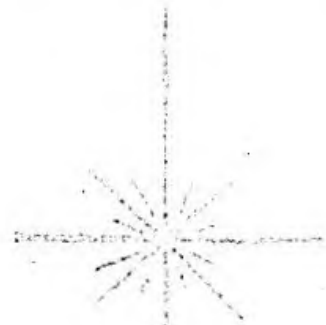

—By Margaret A. Creyke
