W. Emmett Small, 98; committed to sharing tenets of theosophy

By Jack Williams
STAFF WRITER

From the height of the theosophy movement in San Diego to its subsequent division into opposing factions, W. Emmett

W. Emmett Small

Small remained firmly committed to sharing its tenets of universal brotherhood.

The dean of San Diego theosophists, he grew up and was schooled in the movement's 400-acre headquarters on Point Loma. Many years later, as president of Point Loma Publications, he published and edited books on theosophy and world religions.

Disabled by a fall in August and kidney failure, Mr. Small died Oct. 25 at San Diego Hospice. He was 98.

Since its inception in 1971, the nonprofit Point Loma Publications has published more than 50 books, said Mr. Small's wife, Carmen, who has taken over as president.

For Mr. Small's 80th birthday, his family published a collection of articles he had written on theosophical topics, "The Path of Self Unfoldment."

"Emmett was a scholar," his wife said. "He loved to read, write and study. He wrote numerous articles throughout his life and spoke at conferences around the world on theosophical topics."

Among them: karma, reincarnation, the purpose of life and following one's highest duty.

Founded in New York City in 1875, the theosophy movement embraces a universal brotherhood that extends from people to plants and planets.

By the early 1920s, it was thriving in a 100-building complex on 400 acres in Point Loma called Lomaland, where theosophists worked, schooled their children and staged concerts and plays.

Mr. Small moved there with his family as a 2-year-old. He studied at the Theosophical Raja Yoga Academy, learned to play cello, clarinet and piano and acted in Shakespearean plays in the complex's Greek Theater.

As a young man, he became assistant secretary general of the Point Loma Theosophical Society. For 16 years, he edited and contributed articles to various publications published by the society.

In May 1942, the headquarters moved from Point Loma to Covina. But friction among members broke the movement into factions. "When the administration changed, it no longer was possible for us to work there," Carmen Small said.

Returning to San Diego with his family in July 1946, Mr. Small did gardening and maintenance work before beginning a career in technical writing and teaching adult education classes in English and creative writing.

From 1946 until the mid-1980s, he was active in the Robert Browning Society, at one time serving as its president.

After retiring at 65, he became a mentor to aspiring authors. When Iverson Harris founded Point Loma Publications in 1971, he launched a new career as an editor.

For more than 20 years, he teamed with Helen Todd in editing The Eclectic Theosophist, a bimonthly international newsletter. He also edited and wrote introductions to a variety of books, including a Sanskrit text used in university courses and a book on Tibetan Buddhism by Lama Doboom Tulku.

As a memorial to Mr. Small, his family is hoping to publish a compilation of treatises from various authors on such topics as karma, reincarnation, evolution and the interdependence of life. The title they have selected is "The Seven Jewels of Wisdom."

Survivors include his wife of 61 years, Carmen; daughters, Gwen Small of San Diego and Clare Nugent-Small of Fairfield, Iowa; and a son, Kenneth of San Diego.

Services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at Point Loma Nazarene University, Clara Colt Hall, 3900 Lomaland Drive, San Diego.

Donations are suggested to Point Loma Publications, P.O. Box 6507, San Diego, CA 92166, or San Diego Hospice, 4311 Third Ave., San Diego, CA 92103.
