PREFACE.

WITH the conclusion of the Twelfth and the commencement of the Thirteenth Volume of the Freemason, the Publisher feels that he has a "few words" to say to his numerous friends, patrons, and readers. It is impossible for him to look back to-day on the origin and advance, the struggles and the success of the Freemason, which has been unprecedented in the history of Masonic literature, without feeling deeply how much he truly owes to the warm and constant sympathy of unwavering friends, and the genial and consistent favour of the Masonic public. And thus to-day he looks back with satisfaction and pride on the success which has attended his efforts to render the Freemason worthy of his cosmopolitan fraternity, remembering how widely it is read at home, how deeply it is valued abroad, while he is equally pleased to regard present and future with animating trust and hopeful anticipations. He trusts that in the year to come, as in the past time of its useful career, the Freemason will remain a faithful exponent of the true principles of Freemasonry; and whether by its loyal adhesion to its own rulers, a warm appreciation of our great Masonic charities, or the tolerant and gentlemanly tone of its management, the Publisher feels convinced that this acknowledged representative of English Freemasonry will continue to merit the patronage of the Grand Master, the approval of those in authority, as well as the ready support of those many faithful Craftsmen in every quarter of the globe, who peruse its pages, approve of its principles, and cheer its efforts.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This lodge was convened as an emergency meeting on Monday, the 23rd ult., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. In consequence of the exceedingly inclement weather the attendance was but small. Amongst those present were Bros. Charles Dairy, W.M.; Themans, P.M., acting as S.W.; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; W. Stuart, P.M., Secretary; E. Hopwood, P.M., P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, &c., acting I.P.M.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, J.D.; and Longstaffe, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Gladwell, S.D. Old Concord, and Prime, Hemming. The latter brother was, at his request, and by the consent of his W.M., passed to the degree of F.C. There being three candidates in attendance for initiation, viz., Messrs. Weeden, Kendall, and Joy, the W.M. with the assistance of his officers duly inducted those gentlemen to the degree of an E.A. No other business being on the agenda, the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren partook of a slight repast. Previously to the meeting being dissolved, the W.M. took occasion to call the attention of the brethren to the fact that he was a Steward at the forthcoming festival in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and he hoped that they would give him their hearty co-operation in that laudable undertaking.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—The December meeting of this lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, for the first time in one of the fine rooms in the new portion of the building. Bro. Isaac Buscall, W.M., presided. There were three raisings, two passings, and one initiation. Bro. Edward White, S.W., was elected Worshipful Master, and Bro. George Everett, P.M., Treasurer. Among the brethren present were Bros. T. Adams, J. R. Foulger, M. Haydon, H. Elmes, J. E. Walford, Ferguson, F. Kent, A. Treadwell, and Jas. Willing. Among the visitors were Bros. Wm. Joyce, W. M. Stiles, McGavin, and Holt (Daily Telegraph). Bro. Robert Turnham, a very old member of the lodge, Past Chairman of the Licensed Victuallers' School, was also present. A banquet included the proceedings of the day. In the course of the speeches, which were delivered subsequently, the W.M., in reply to the toast of his health, said he was sure that during his year of office he had made many mistakes of omission and commission, but the kindness of the brethren had overlooked them. He had been received with the same kindness as other Masters had been, and he thanked the brethren for their treatment of him, and for the support they had given him during his year. In proposing "The Health of the W.M. elect," the W.M. said he was sure Bro. White would perform his duties creditably as he had performed them in the offices to which he had been called. He had been Master of another lodge, and in that position had gained renown. Bro. White, in reply, said he would do his best while Master to promote the interests of the lodge and the comfort of the members. He had had some experience having just vacated the chair in the City of Westminster Lodge. There was a great difference between that lodge and the Domestic, as the City of Westminster had but forty or fifty members; whereas the Domestic numbered 200. The difference in numbers made a great difference in the quietude, and he could not expect the Domestic to be so quiet as the City of Westminster. However, he had no doubt that everything would be very harmonious. This was the first time for many years they had elected a new Treasurer. He had no doubt that they would all get on very well with Bro. Everett. Speaking for himself he owed a great deal to Bro. Everett, as he was the first to discover any Masonic merit in him (Bro. White.) That was the first round of the ladder which he put his foot on, and from being a quiet unobtrusive member he rose by degrees to the position of W.M. elect. He was but a young man to take charge of so large a lodge, but with the assistance of the P.M.'s, he should get on well. He could inform the brethren that he should appoint his officers in rotation, so that they would all know what to expect. With a new lodge room they would be very comfortable, and he was glad that his year of office would be inaugurated under such promise of personal comfort. Anderton's Hotel was the old home of the Domestic Lodge, and the brethren would not like to leave it. Bro. Clemow had consulted their comforts, and he should look forward to his year of office as a very prosperous and happy one. P.M.'s, Willing, Foulger, Walford, Ferguson, Kent, Everett, and Treadwell replied to the toast of "The P.M.'s," and Bro. Everett thanked the brethren for electing him Treasurer. Bro. Walter Joyce, Lawrence, Stiles, Brooks, Gilliam, and Baker, replied to the toast of "The Visitors," after which Bros. Everett and Foxcroft responded to the toast of "Treasurer and Secretary." The brethren then drank the Tyler's toast and separated.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 18th ult. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. J. Douglas, assisted by Bros. T. A. Adams, P.G.P.; R. T. Kingham, I.P.M.; C. J. Scates, S.W.; W. Side, J.W.; J. Willing, P.M., Treas.; W. M. Stiles, Sec.; H. Stiles, I.G.; G. Clarke, D.C.; H. Lovegrove, W.S. and Asst. Sec.; Brumwell, Steward; Daly, Tyler; H. Clark, F. Perks, Edmonds, Tuck, Hatch, Beattie, Gilbert, jun., Cruikshanks, J. Van Camp, E. Van Camp, Tombe, W.B. Clarke, Fortescue, Brooker, H. Dimsdale, F. Dimsdale, Barton, and others, making in all fifty members of the lodge present. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, Bros. A. Mellon, J. Mackie, L. Hollingsworth, and D. Morgan having been entrusted, were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons. Bros. G. W. Pauley, C. Sheath, A. J. Thompson, and F. H. Parker were passed to the Second Degree, and after ballot Mr. John Clarkson was duly initiated into the mysteries of Masonry. It was announced that Bro. Kingham, I.P.M., and the W.M. had undertaken the office of Stewards at the forthcoming festivals of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, respectively, and a sum was voted to head each list. After the transaction of some routine business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet provided in Bro. Clemow's best style. The usual toasts were given and ably responded to, the W.M. gracefully alluding to the bereavement of Her Majesty the Queen. The visitors, Bros. Thompson, 1695; Carter, 1662; Spiller, 217; Jacobs, 1732; Hollidge, 1602; Pearce, 890; and others, who expressed themselves highly pleased with their visit to the lodge.

SAVOY LODGE (No. 1744).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 24th ult., at Ashley's Hall, Covent Garden. Bro. James Willing, jun., W.M., presided; Bros. Sillis, as S.W.; F. H. Clemow, J.W.; W. M. Stiles, S.C.; Augustus Holt, Stwd.; F. W. Stiles, James C. Smith, Robt. C. Read, J. H. Bennett, H. Lloyd, J. H. Vaughan, M. Zampf, Hylaud; and visitors: Bro. Henry Stiles, S.D. 1732; B. Kauffmann, 1732; J. Cherry, 19; F. W. Lyon, 19; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason); were also present. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bros. J. H. Bennett, J. C. Smith, J. B. Vaughan, and M. Zampf were raised to the Third Degree. Bro. Tomkins was passed to the Second Degree. Lieut. W. R. A. Cole, of Manchester House, South Tottenham, was initiated in Freemasonry. The day on which the lodge met being Christmas Eve, it was expected that scarcely sufficient brethren would be got together to form a lodge; the attendance, however, was very good. The brethren did not banquet, but separated immediately after the work was concluded with the usual seasonable greetings.

CRICHTON LODGE (No. 1641).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday week at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Bro. Andrew Middlemass, W.M., presiding. The following visitors were present at the meeting:—Bros. M. S. Larham, P.M. 1216; Edward Priest, Org. 152; P. Rose, P.M. 73, 1622; R. Isaacson, P.M. 104; Peter Parsons, P.M. 749; Robt. Turner, P.M. 795; H. Stephens, W.M. 754; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; A. Thomas, jun., W.M. 1446; W. Ough, P.G.P.; John Alexandra, Alfred Allworth, P.M. 1261, 1622; P. G. H. Griffin, 1395; J. H. Hill, 1604; Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C.; Thomas W. Bone, W.M. 1185; Charles Wilson, 1329; Thomas Elmonston, 1658; H. Hammond, 1216; J. M. Harrap, 1420; H. C. Reeves, 1381; H. Clemence, 749; Rob. Johnson, 1649; Thomas Cull, 1446; Edward Clarke, P.M. 134; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). Bro. Andrew John Murray having been admitted as a joining member of the lodge, Bro. Middlemass proceeded with the installation of Bro. Thomas Guthrie, S.W., and W.M. elect. This was the first time that Bro. Middlemass had performed the ceremony, and the execution of his work deserved as much praise as his performance of the other Craft ceremonies, of which he is known to be a skilled Master. After the installation the following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. Andrew Middlemass, I.P.M.; Thomas Gardiner, S.W.; Robert James Voisy, J.W.; D. D. Mercer, Treasurer; Thomas Weeks, Secretary; S. H. Galdschmidt, S.D.; Thomas Edmund Heller, J.D.; Percival A. Nairne, P.M., D.C.; David Mercer, I.G.; Arthur N. L. Byrne and William H. Baker, Stewards; and Robt. Harrison, Tyler. Bro. Middlemass then delivered the addresses, after which the W.M. initiated Mr. John Fredric Adams and William Pink in Freemasonry, performing his work in excellent style, and being ably supported by the newly appointed officers. The next ceremony was the presentation to Bro. Middlemass of a beautiful P.M.'s jewel, and the W.M. in making the presentation paid a very high compliment to Bro. Middlemass for his ruling of the lodge during the past year. His remarks met with frequent interruptions of approval, as it is universally admitted in the Crichton Lodge that Bro. Middlemass has won the esteem and affection of all the brethren, both by his amiability and his good working. Bro. Middlemass made an excellent reply, in acknowledging the gift, to the kind observations of the W.M. and good feelings of the brethren. On the motion of Bro. Middlemass, seconded by the W.M., the brethren afterwards passed the following resolution unanimously, "That the brethren, deeply sympathising with the bereaved widow and children of the late Bro. J. H. Salter, of the Sphinx Lodge, do resolve to vote the sum of five guineas to the fund for their assistance, and that the votes of this lodge be given for the election of Arthur Salter to the Boys' School." Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a bountiful banquet, supplied with much taste and discrimination by Bro. Oliver, jun. The usual toasts followed. The W.M., in proposing "The Queen and the Craft," said that at the present time the brethren would deeply sympathise with Her Majesty on the sad occurrence of that day week. When such circumstances arose Freemasons cordially joined in the sorrow of their Queen, and felt her grief. The toast was followed by a muffled fire. In proposing the toast of "The M.W.G.M.," the W.M. said that Shakespeare evidently must have been a Freemason, or he could not have used those words in Henry IV.—"The immediate Heir of England, the hope and expectation of our time, it is the Prince of Wales." "Of our time;" by that he presumed Shakespeare must have meant the time of Masons. He was their hope and their expectation, as he had been in times gone by. After alluding to the resignation of the Grand Mastership by the Marquis of Ripon, he said the Prince of Wales's acceptance of the office was hailed with enthusiasm by Freemasons. He was now suffering under a deep calamity in the loss of his beloved sister, who endeared herself to him by her devotion in nursing him when he was on the point of death. Bro. W. Ough, P.G.P., and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P., replied to the toast of "Lord Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers." Bro. Middlemass, in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said the toasts of the Queen and the M.W.G.M. were; undoubtedly very important toasts; the Queen and the Prince of Wales were very important persons in their way, but their health was looked after several times a week; whereas, the principal person in Masonry, the Master of the Crichton Lodge, had very few opportunities to have his health well drunk and his prosperity well assured. He did not wish to be at all disrespectful to the eminent persons whose names he had mentioned, and who had been so eloquently represented by the two brethren who had preceded him, but he wished to inform them that they had given the chronicles of very small beer to what he was going to say. They had had to speak of eminent persons, whose merits were well known; but he had to speak of an eminent person, whose merits were only beginning to be well known, and who this time twelve months would show that he was equally worthy to have those merits proclaimed to the world at large. Most of the brethren knew the W.M. as he (Bro. Middlemass) did, and those who had become more recently acquainted with him, would not be sorry to learn that the more they knew the better they would like him. He (Bro. Middlemass), had had many occasions of seeing him, and the W.M. had occasionally blown him up and he had blown up the W.M., in the most Masonic way; but they had always separated with the greatest respect for each other. He believed the W.M. would conduct himself in the ensuing year in a way which would certainly secure the brethren's approbation; he not only believed it, but he was certain of it, and, therefore, was going to ask the brethren at the commencement of the W.M.'s troubles to drink his health. It was no light trouble to be the Master of a lodge; but even in the lightness of the troubles of the W.M. of the Crichton Lodge it was no small anxiety to keep all things straight. He would recommend the W.M. to do as he (Bro. Middlemass) had done—let everybody have his own way, and let every man cultivate a good opinion of himself. He had found that a capital specific. He had never for a moment affected to have a difference of opinion with the members of the Crichton Lodge, and it was marvellous to witness the unanimity with which they came to agree with him. If the W.M. did the same he would come out of his year of office with ten times the credit that he (Bro. Middlemass) had, and whether he did or not the brethren would now take him on faith, and drink his very good health. The W.M., in reply, said that while it was confessedly always difficult to respond to the toast of one's health, it was more especially difficult to him on this occasion, because when he entered Masonry he did not think he should ever become the occupant of the W.M.'s chair. It had pleased the brethren to place him there, and they must of course take him for what he was, all in all, his qualities for good and his qualities for bad. He would endeavour to remove the latter qualities from his character as fast as he possibly could; but Masons were but mortal, and although they might feel actuated by the kindest Masonic spirit, yet there might at times be something a Mason might have to regret. He did not know that he could charge his conscience with an unmasonic act in his Masonic life, and he never should be able to do so. If he only filled that chair with the same ability as the I.P.M. he should be satisfied. His ideas of Masonic working were that every Master should be able to go through the ceremonies in a decent manner, and if he could do so, he should. But there was something else underlying this—A Master should impress on the brethren the spirit of Masonry. He knew he was speaking in the presence of some brethren who had attained to higher degrees of Masonry than, perhaps, it would ever be his fortune to attain to, but even in their presence he would say that a Master should show younger Masons the beauties of Freemasonry as exemplified in the dealings of Masons outside the lodges. It had been his lot, young Mason though he was, to meet men in Masonry that made him wonder how they got there. A W.M. ought to be very guarded in respect to whom he initiated. That evening he had initiated two gentlemen into Masonry, but he must tell the brethren it depended on every Mason, acting in his individual capacity, whether Masonry should be an honoured institution. It was no use to come to a Masonic lodge, it was no use for him as W.M. to go through the ceremonies, it was no use for the officers to perform their duties properly, unless the brethren went outside the lodge and enunciated and practised the teachings they had received therein. It might be that they would find men who did not come up to the brethren's standard of Masonry, but they should remember that they were to view a brother's failings with the greatest amount of charity they could put upon them, and give the most favourable constructions they possibly could. He only hoped that when his year of office ended he should have the good feelings of all the members of the Crichton Lodge. It should not be his fault, or from any want of striving to earn their good will, if he failed. He knew that men did fail to secure the ends for which they strove; however, one could but aim high, and if at the end of his year he went out of the W.M.'s chair with the good wishes of the brethren he would have the satisfaction of knowing that, at least, he had striven to do his duty. The W.M. next gave "The Initiates," to which Bro. Adams and Bro. Pink replied. The W.M. then proposed "The Installing Master," whose influence on the lodge he trusted would have its effect in causing his successor to follow in his footsteps. He also hoped the ceremony of that evening would leave its mark upon his (Bro. Griffiths') mind. Bro. Middlemass responded and said, there was a good old Scotch maxim, "Claw me, and I'll claw you." That was the case with the Masters and Past Masters of lodges. He had flattered himself that he should hear no more about the I.P.M. When he heard the W.M. speak of him in the lodge as he did, he thought he should have dropped on the floor. "He was very deeply indebted to the brethren, very much more than they were indebted to him. He had said it before, and he should never cease to say so. Some time after the lodge commenced it appeared to him that there were two careers before it: one was to make Masons from among friends; the other was to devote the lodge to the practical cause of benevolence. He believed in Masonry, and he believed in Masons being men whose hands were guided by justice and whose hearts were expanded by benevolence. Not to indulge in vain boastings, this lodge had completed two years of existence, and in that time it had devoted a hundred guineas to the cause of charity. He had the honour of going up as Steward at the Boys' School festival and carrying with him forty guineas. He had also the honour as Master to go up to the Girls' School with fifty guineas, and they had devoted to the sustenance of widows and orphans of members the sum of ten guineas. That spoke much more for the lodge than anything that could be said of its interior arrangements or the number of its members. He hoped that as they had begun so they would go on to the end, and whatever deficiencies might be discovered in the Crichton Lodge, its deficiencies would never be that its members had been backward in the cause of benevolence. He was going to make an appeal to them on behalf of a very intelligent little boy, Salter. The good and true work of the late Bro. John Hall Salter had placed the people of Bermondsey under great obligations to him. The brethren knew how completely he showed himself the friend and benefactor of education. On his dying bed, and with his dying breath, he said, "Perhaps my brother Masons will get Arthur into the Boys' School." Now this Arthur was a remarkable boy. Give him the means of a good education, and he (Bro. Middlemass) did not hesitate to say that under the good providence of the G.A.O.T.U. he would rise to eminence in the world. When he went before the General Committee of the Boys' School that day fortnight, attended by Bro. Mercer, he astonished the brethren on the committee by his accurate reading. The brethren who were present were not numerous but they were certainly critical. The boy was passed. He was a lad of extreme intelligence, and he would ask the brethren to support his candidature. They must elect him in April. That was something practical they had before them. He (Bro. Middlemass) was quite aware of his shortcomings in the lodge, and he repeated now that he never felt timid with regard to what a Master should do except when he was in the chair. When he came to the sticking point, like Bob Acres, his courage oozed out at his fingers' ends. The brethren of the lodge were not like his colleagues in the Camberwell vestry, and he could not bore them. The brethren did not need to be bored, because they were much more intelligent than the vestrymen. The parochial intellect was somewhat dense; the Crichton intellect was somewhat bright. Thanking the brethren again for their kindness, he had no doubt that the present W.M. would fill the chair very much better than he (Bro. Middlemass) had filled it, and when he came to the end of his year he would most probably have the same signs of the brethren's deep and lasting kindness shown to him by the members of the lodge. He would ask the brethren to sustain the W.M. in his position by the same kindness and forbearance as they had always shown towards their late Master; then he would have a happy and successful year. Bro. Edward Clarke, P.M. 134, replied to the toast of "The P.M.'s." Bro. Nairne, he said, was distinguished for the excellence of his work, and for the amazing service he had rendered to different lodges, by the instruction he had given to those who had come on in office. He (Bro. Clarke) would have been very well content to have been sheltered under Bro. Nairne's experience, and to have heard him respond for the P.M.'s. He hoped it would not be expected of him, at the close of a very fatiguing term, when he was somewhat exhausted by the work of the last few weeks, to say very much on behalf of Masonry. It was sufficient to say of P.M.'s, there as elsewhere, that they had worked through the different stages of Masonic honour, that they had in their way attempted to discharge the high duties of Master of a lodge, and Bro. Middlemass had spoken in not too high terms of the responsibility that fell upon every one who assumed for twelve months the government of a lodge. He (Bro. Clarke) was sure that every Master when he went into the chair felt that it was a precious possession that was entrusted to him in the reputation and the work of a lodge; and he (Bro. Clarke) confessed to a feeling of very great relief, when he had passed from the active duties of the Mastership of the Caledonian Lodge, and took his place in that quieter ground where he was only occasionally called upon to assist younger brethren. He hoped it might be said of those Past Masters who were now standing in response to this toast, and that it might hereafter be said of all the brethren present when they had passed through the chair, that they worthily upheld the highest traditions of Freemasonry. These social gatherings, although they helped to keep Freemasons together, and although they afforded many pretexts for the cultivation of that personal friendship and good will, which was one of the happiest aspects of Masonic life, still they did not constitute the principal object and duty of Freemasons. It was, in his belief, more and more essential that the true meaning of Freemasonry should be learned by and shown in the practice of Freemasons. As time went on, as men were gathered together, in the large assemblies of great towns especially, there was some difficulty in keeping alive the bonds of personal friendship. The residents of the neighbourhood were not sufficient, the connection of men of the same profession was a connection which was apt to degenerate into cliquishness and exclusiveness; and it was in the highest degree desirable that there should be some bond, which, having a good and true meaning for its object, should link together men of different professions, of different neighbourhoods, of different classes, in one common association for objects of good, which were common objects to all; and that was found in Freemasonry. They had been reminded that evening of the labour which this young lodge had already done in the cause of charity; they had had pointed out to them in a way which he hoped would affect the members of this Lodge, a special and particular duty which lay for discharge upon the friends and members of the Crichton Lodge at this time. There could be no better work in Masonry than such work as Bro. Middlemass had pointed out to be done in the next few weeks by the members of the Crichton Lodge. In conclusion, Bro. Clarke thanked the W.M. and brethren for the toast, and stated that the P.M.'s were always ready to give their assistance to younger brethren. Bro. Thomas and Bro. P. A. Nairne also replied, and the remaining toasts were afterwards given and the brethren separated.

CHELTHENHAM.—Foundation Lodge (No. 82).—The annual installation meeting of this old and popular lodge was held on Friday, the 27th ult. (St. John the Evan.), when there was a large gathering of members and visitors. The W.M., Bro. John Bubb, opened his lodge at 5.30, and after the minutes of the last lodge had been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when a brother was duly passed. The chair was then assumed by the Installing Master, Bro. Henry Godfrey, P.M., Prov. G.S.W., who, in the most able and impressive manner, installed according to ancient custom, Bro. W. Anslow Sole, the W.M. elect, into the chair of K.S., and who was afterwards proclaimed in the Three Degrees. The newly-installed W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. Dr. Julius Maier, S.W.; the Baron de Ferrieres, J.W.; Colonel Basevi, Sec.; Frederick Ticehurst, S.D.; John Pearson, J.D.; E. Dyer, I.G.; Rev. C. R. N. Lyne, Chaplain; and S. Green, Treas. Upon the proclamations being made by the W.M., he referred to the very able, efficient, and impressive manner in which the installation ceremony had been performed by Bro. Godfrey, and concluded by proposing a resolution "That the best thanks of the lodge be accordingly presented to him," which having been seconded by the I.P.M., Bro. Bubb, was carried unanimously. The W.M. then closed his lodge in due form and with solemn prayer, after which the brethren proceeded to the large banqueting-room, where the banquet was subsequently served. The newly-installed Master, Bro. Sole, presided, and was well supported by a large and important muster of P.M.'s and Provincial and Past Provincial Grand Officers, of which the Foundation Lodge has many upon its roll of members. The W.M. in proposing the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft" as also "The M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales" referred in feeling terms to the great loss Her Majesty, our M.W.G.M., and in fact the whole country, had sustained in the death of the Princess Alice, and observed that as Masons he was sure we all mourned with our Sovereign and our M.W.G.M. in their bereavement. In giving "The Health of the Installing Master" the W.M. referred to the eminent services that had been rendered to the Foundation Lodge by Bro. Godfrey, in his great desire to bring its working as nearly as possible up to the high standard of the Emulation Lodge, in that endeavour sparing himself no trouble or expense. He also referred to the tribute of praise awarded to him by the R.W. Prov. G.M., who, when visiting the lodge during the Mastership of Bro. Godfrey, incidentally stated that he had been much gratified by the way the ceremony of "raising" had been performed, the work being as he considered as nearly correct as it could be. Bro. Godfrey having suitably responded, and thanked the brethren, the I.P.M., Bro. Bubb, then proposed "The Newly-Installed W.M." who in responding mentioned that it was exactly seven years since he was initiated into Masonry, and that the then I.P.M., Bro. Bubb, was being passed to the Second Degree. That from that time, when filling each office successively in the lodge, he had always been immediately preceded by him, and that any success he may have attained in Freemasonry he could not but attribute in a great measure to the influence of that which he might term his guiding star preceding him. The other usual toasts followed, and the evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner. Amongst the visitors and members of the Foundation Lodge present were:—Bros. Geo. Atkins, P.M.; J. B. Winterbotham, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; W. H. Gwinnett, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; E. W. Godfrey, Captain Nelson Foster, C. F. Gale, W. R. Porcher, P.M.; Rev. H. E. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given and responded to, "The Health of the newly-installed W.M." was proposed by Bro. F. Sharpe, I.P.M., and responded to in a feeling manner. Other toasts followed, amongst which was "The Masonic Charities," proposed by Bro. Robert Hudson, Prov. Barker, P.M.), of a purse of money and a handsome watch, as a token of the great esteem he is held in, for eighteen years' services, by his brethren. There were nearly sixty members and guests present. The banquet was held in the Golden Lion Hotel, and was a great success; in fact, St. Luke's Lodge now stands first in the province of Suffolk, numerically, and is in a most flourishing condition. An excellent menu was provided by Bro. J. Toes, of the De Grey Rooms, York, and there was an unusually good muster of the brethren. Bro. A. Bro. Alderman Terry proposed "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. the Rev. W. Valentine, P.P.G. Chap., Bro. T. B. Whythead, Prov. "The Masonic Charities" was given by the W.M., and "The Officers of the Lodge" by Bro. Councillor Rymer, and replied to by Bro. G. Kirby, Sec., and the Tyler's toast brought a very pleasant and harmonious evening to a close.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, Lancaster, on the 11th ult., under the presidency of Bro. J. Jowett, W.M. There was a good attendance of brethren. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, with the following results:—For W.M., Bro. Edward Cordwell; for Treasurer, Bro. James Hatch P.M. (re-elected); for Tyler, Bro. A. K. Allinson (re-elected); for Auditors, Bros. Gregson, Bayley, and Johnson. The installation meeting was fixed for the 27th ult., after which the usual proclamation was made, and the lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge, (No. 540).—During the more than thirty years that this lodge has been founded, amongst all its important gatherings, no work has ever been done within it so interesting as that which was so well carried out on Wednesday, Dec. 18th, the occasion of the initiation into Masonry of Mr. William Dugald Stuart, a Lieutenant in the 18th Beds. Light Infantry Militia, of which his father, Colonel William Stuart, of Tempsford Hall, is Honorary Colonel. Colonel Stuart is, himself, a Past Master of the Lodge, which was founded by and named after his father and uncle, the late Bros. William Stuart, of Aldenham Abbey, and Henry Stuart, of Kempston. Mr. William Dugald Stuart, who is thus the grandson and great nephew of the founder of the lodge that bears his honoured name, is a minor, but being a Lewis, obtained the dispensation of the M.W. the Grand Master. Many members of the lodge and visitors assembled to assist in the ceremony, many, too sending letters of regret at their enforced absence. The lodge was opened at 4 p.m. by the recently installed W.M. Captain Colborne, who worked remarkably well, as did his officers, Bros. Coombes, S.W.; Thody, J.W.; Rev. Canon Brereton, R.D., Chap.; Dr. Prior (P.M.), Sec. Sergeant (P.M.), Treasurer; Alderman Bull, J.P. (P.M.), Steward; Carter, S.D.; Stafford, J.D.; Capt. Verey, I.G.; Piper, Organist; and Reynolds, Tyler. There were also present:—P.M.'s Bros. Colonel Stuart, Cuthbert, Captain Nash, Whyly, Captain Green, Billson, and Lester; and Bros. Thompson, Warren, Pick, Forster, Kilpin, Roberts, Alexander, Jarvis, Bosanquet, Page, &c. Whilst amongst the visitors were Bros. Barfield, P.M., Zetland, 511, and W.M. elect of Medina Lodge, Cowes, 35; Lieutenant Higgins, St. Aubyn, Devonport, 954; and Tudball, I.P.M., Truth, Bombay, 944. After the minutes had been read and confirmed Bro. Bosan-quet was duly passed by the W.M. to the Second Degree. The Secretary then read the dispensation of the M.W. Grand Master, upon which a ballot was taken for Mr. Stuart, which proved unanimous. The candidate's father, Col. Stuart, then took the chair, and duly initiated his son into the mysteries of the Craft. Lodge having been closed, about thirty brethren sat down to supper, and during the toasts that followed, the W.M. most feelingly alluded to the recent sad bereavement experienced by the Queen and Prince of Wales by the death of the Princess Alice. Of course no singing took place. Before the close of the evening, as is usual on nights of initiation, a collection was made for the Masonic Charities, and thus was brought to an end an evening ever to be remembered and looked back upon by the members of this deservedly honoured lodge. It is almost superfluous to add that the arduous duties of the Steward were carried out, as usual, heartily and excellently.

OPENSHAW.—Lodge of Faith (No. 581).—On Wednesday, the 18th ult., the members of this lodge met to celebrate the festival of St. John, and install the W.M. elect, Bro. John Bedford, S.W. At 3:15 o'clock, Bro. Henry Darbyshire, I.P.M., in the absence of the W.M., opened the lodge in the First Degree. The minutes of the last regular meeting were then read and unanimously confirmed, the lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and the W.M. elect was presented to Bro. John Parker, P.M., Installing Master, by Bro. Henry Darbyshire, I.P.M. The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with in a very able manner, to the great delight of a number of the visiting P.M.'s. The Board of Installed Masters was then closed, and all Master Masons being admitted, the Installing Master for the first time, and in the East, declared Bro. John Bedford duly installed into the chair of K.S. The lodge was closed in the Third Degree, and all F.C.'s admitted, when the Installing Master again made the usual declaration from the W., and by virtue of the power invested in him, declared the F.C. Lodge closed and open in the First Degree, and from the South again made the usual declaration. Bro. T. Tyers, P.M., presented the working tools in each degree, Bro. J. T. Richardson gave the address to the W.M. in a very eloquent style, and the address to the Wardens and Brethren was given by Bro. John Parker, P.M., Installing Master. The following brethren were then duly invested, Bro. J. Greenup, as S.W.; F. Hickson, as J.W., by the Installing Master, and the remaining officers were invested with the collars and jewels of their respective offices by Bro. Henry Darbyshire, I.P.M., viz., Bros. T. Walker, as S.D.; W. H. Brougham, J.D.; John Parker, P.M., Installing Master, as Treas.; Lee Speakman, as Sec.; T. Tyers, P.M., as D.C.; J. M. Johnson, as I.G.; C. Beswick (for the ninth time), as Tyler; W. Swift, J. Swift, and J. Bosustow, as Stwds.; Pettitt, as Org.; and Walter Mabon, as Std. Br. In investing the Standard Bearer, Bro. Darbyshire congratulated the W.M. on his having appointed Bro. Mabon to that office, for several reasons, some of which were, that Bro. Mabon being a fine, handsome fellow and a good brother, and having a beautiful banner (presented to the lodge by a lady) he would be able to lead the processions with splendour and dignity, and shed lustre to the proceedings. The office was gratefully accepted by Bro. Mabon. The installation ceremony was brought to a close by Bro. Darbyshire repeating the prayer. The Installing Master then called upon Bro. H. Darbyshire to make a presentation to Bro. Lee Speakman, Secretary, which consisted of a very handsome gold jewel, on which was neatly engraved, "Presented to Bro. Lee Speakman, Hon. Sec. to the Lodge of Faith, No. 581, by the W.M. and brethren, as a token of respect and with feelings of gratitude for the very able manner in which he had discharged his duties for the past three years; December 18th, 1878." Bro. Darbyshire, P.M., said: Dear Bro. Speakman, it is with feelings of very great joy that I, in the name of the W.M. and brethren, place this jewel on your breast, we feel that the very able manner in which you have always performed your duties is deserving of some tangible mark of esteem, and we feel that this jewel will be prized by you, your dear wife and family, not for its intrinsic value, but from the fact that it has been presented by the brethren generally as a mark of their personal esteem, dear Bro. Speakman, I am instructed by the P.M.'s, and the brethren to say that we are heartily proud of you, and we consider that the Faith Lodge has now a Secretary second to none in the province, nay even the Grand Lodge. It is a source of great satisfaction to the lodge to hear from the Auditors that your books are patterns of good order and regularity, and personally I hope you may long be spared to fill that office, and that your domestic happiness may increase in the sincere wish of every member of the Faith Lodge. Bro. Speakman simply bowed his acknowledgement, it being apparent that his feelings were such he could not give utterance to more words than, W.M. and brethren I thank you. The banquet was prepared for 6 p.m., and the tables presented a very beautiful sight by a floral decoration arranged and very kindly lent by Bro. J. C. Brown. The catering of Bro. Aldred, the host, was of a very satisfactory character, and the wines supplied of the first vintage. After the banquet the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given, and in a very feeling manner the W.M. referred to the sad loss their Grand Master and the Royal Family had sustained in having removed from their number a daughter, the fairest of all, a sister the most affectionate, a mother the most loving and endearing, and a wife a pattern for the world. He hoped that the Great Architect of the Universe would visit and console the Royal Family in the hour of their affliction, and would cause our Grand Master to feel that his great loss would be his dear sister's eternal gain. At 10.30 the most enjoyable meeting in the history of the Lodge of Faith was brought to a close, and the brethren took their seats in an omnibus (which is always provided) and proceeded to Manchester, in its route dropping the brethren in their respective districts.

SHEFFIELD.—Wentworth Lodge (No. 1239).—The annual festival of this well-known lodge was held on the 2nd inst., when Bro. W. R. Thomas, M.D., installed his successor, Bro. John Clark, in a very able manner. The new appointments were as follows:—Bros. Dr. W. R. Thomas, I.P.M.; Chas. Hill, S.W.; J. E. Darling, J.W.; H. J. Garnett, Treas.; J. Broadhead, S.D.; H. Nixon, J.D.; Bennett, P.M., M.C.; T. Blair, I.G.; Unwin and Hewitt, Stewards; Leighton, Tyler. Amongst those present, in addition to the foregoing, we noticed Bro. Westenholm, Scargill, Tindall, White, and S. B. Ellis, P.M.'s 1239; Hay, P.M. 139, W.M. 1779; Drury, P.M. 296; Nicholson, W.M. 296; Schott, W.M. elect 296; Webster, W.M. 139; Bromley, W.M. elect 139; Roome, W.M. 904; Harvey, S.W. 904, Prov. G. Orgt.; Gamble, of Grantham; W. H. Brittain, P.M., &c. (the Master Cutler of Hallamshire); S. H. Gatty, S.W. 1779; and many others. The business of the lodge being over, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was also a great success. For several years Wentworth Lodge has been noted for its menu cards; this time it was in the antique style (Chaucerian English), and gave great satisfaction, a copy of which will be found in another column. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured. Bro. Thomas, the outgoing Master, received well deserved encomiums for the ability with which he had rendered all the ceremonies during the past year, and Bro. Clark, the W.M. was warmly congratulated and well supported on his accession to the chair of K.S.; and taking this meeting as a criterion we feel certain that the Wentworth Lodge has another bright, prosperous, and happy year before it under Bro. Clark's genial rule, indeed of this we are assured for all who know our Bro. Clark have found in him the right material of which W.M.'s are made, and that is suavit in modo happily blended with the fortiter in re. We take this opportunity of personally congratulating Bro. Clark on this, the first time that he has presided over his mother lodge, and more particularly so as it meets in the beautiful Masonic Hall, of which he was the architect. Of this, his handiwork, he may well feel proud, for the lodge and banqueting-rooms are "perfection," both from Masonic and acoustic points of view.

LEWES.—Pelham Lodge (No. 1303).—On Friday, the 27th ult., the R. W. Provincial Grand Master of Sussex (Sir Walter W. Burrell Bart., M.P.), paid an official visit to Pelham Lodge, most of his Provincial Grand Officers being in attendance. Bro. W. W. Turner, P.M., was the acting Master, and very efficiently discharged his duties. In response to a vote of thanks for his attendance, the Prov. G. Refreshments were provided at the Bear Hotel, in Bro. Whitcomb's best style, for which he was deservedly complimented.

LANCASTER.—Duke of Lancaster Lodge (No. 1353).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 18th ult., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. Bro. Robert Wolfenden occupied the chair of K.S., supported by his respective officers, a goodly number of the Craft being present. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. It was resolved to send an address of condolence to Her Majesty the Queen, expressing the sympathy of the members on the bereavement Her Majesty and the Royal Family have sustained in the death of the Princess Alice. The motion was proposed by the W.M. (Bro. R. Wolfendale), and seconded by the senior P.M. present (Bro. J. Bell), and supported by the I.P.M. (Bro. F. G. Dale), and adopted in solemn silence. The Organist (Bro. J. E. Oglethorpe), played "The Dead March in Saul." The lodge closed with the usual formalities.

LIVERPOOL.—Prince Arthur Lodge (No. 1570).—The brethren connected with this admirably-governed lodge assembled in their handsome Masonic Rooms, North Hill-street, Toxteth-park, on Tuesday afternoon, the 17th ult., for the purpose of assisting at the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Samuel Hikins. There was a good gathering of members and visitors, and the whole arrangements were of a most satisfactory character. At the opening of the proceedings, shortly after 3 o'clock, the chair in the East was occupied by Bro. Archibald Morrison, W.M., and amongst those present were Bros. Thomas Evans, I.P.M.; H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec., P.M.; S. Hikins, S.W.; R. Roberts, J.W.; R. Webster, S.D.; W. W. Thomas, J.D.; W. P. Vines, I.G.; Thomas Walters, W. Benn, I. Turner, D. Morris, J. Webster, J. Seeley, J. Kenwright, C. Colcroft, J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; W. Pughe, W.M. 1620; E. Paul, Treasurer, 1356; J. L. Houghton, W.M. 594; J. W.

Williams, W.M. 1356; J. H. Gregory, J.W. 667; Lindo Courtenay, W.M. 1609; T. Nickson, P.M. 1356; J. T. Amson, 1393; W. Roberts, 1356; A. Woolrich, Treasurer 1609; E. George, S.D. 1356; W. Parry, 1505; J. G. Hartley, 594; T. Boswell, S.W. 594; J. B. Mackenzie, S.W. 1609. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the W.M. (Bro. Morrison) closed his year's work by performing the ceremony of initiation in a remarkably able manner. The chair of Installing Master was afterwards taken by Bro. Thomas Evans, P.M., of the Prince Arthur, whose Masonic zeal and ability are so well known in Liverpool, and in a most excellent and highly impressive manner he placed Bro. Samuel Hinkins in the chair of K.S. The following were invested as the officers for the ensuing year: Bro. A. Morrison, I.P.M. Thomas Evans, P.M., Treasurer; Robert Roberts, S.W.; Henry Worthington, J.W. (by proxy); Ralph Webster, Secretary; Walter W. Thomas, S.D.; William P. Vines, J.D.; David Morris, I.G.; and Peter M. Larsen, Tyler. The brethren subsequently dined together in the lodge room, the banquet being served by Bro. W. S. Vines, P.P.G.D.C., in a manner which left literally nothing to be desired. The W.M. in giving the toast of "The Queen," said that on the recent death of the Princess Alice, which had come so unexpectedly, Her Majesty would have no more wide-spread and heartfelt sympathy exhibited amongst any of her subjects than in the body of Masonry. (Hear, hear.) While Queen and subjects alike must submit to the will of the G.A.O.T.U., Her Majesty would, doubtless, feel the consolation of having the sympathies of a loyal and loving people. The W.M. next proposed the toasts, "The M.W.G.M. Bro. H.B.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The M.W. the Pro Grand Master, Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon," and "The Right W. Dep. G.M., and Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge, Present and Past." Bro. H. S. Alpass responded to the last toast, and in doing so he said that as a P.M. of the Prince Arthur Lodge he naturally took a great interest in it. He was very glad to say that they had hitherto gone on very quietly, and he was quite sure his lordship would be quite satisfied with the manner in which the W.M.s. and all their officers had invariably performed their duties. The I.P.M. gave "The Health of the W.M." in highly eulogistic terms, and the toast, received with much enthusiasm, was most suitably acknowledged by Bro. Hinkins. "The I.P.M.'s" health was next on the list, and, in proposing it, the W.M. presented Bro. Morrison, the I.P.M., with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren during his connection with the lodge since its consecration. The toast and presentation were very feelingly acknowledged by Bro. Morrison, and the other toasts given during the evening were "The Installing Master," Bro. P.M. Evans (most cordially received), "The Officers," "The Visitors," "The Press," &c. Several capital songs were given during the pleasant evening's proceedings.

INSTRUCTION.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge, (No. 1611).—A meeting for instruction was held on Monday evening by this lodge at the Queen's Hotel. Bro. J. S. Cumberland, the W.M., worked the First Degree ceremony, and the meeting was very interesting, several matters being discussed relative to the lodge affairs. Bro. J. Hanly, W.M. elect of the St. Patrick's Lodge, was present by special invitation. A supper followed the closing of the lodge and a social evening was passed in all harmony and good will. Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M., presented to the lodge a copy of Dr. Oliver's "Twelve Lectures on Freemasonry" and some photographs of American brethren for the Lodge Album.

Mark Masonry.

BURY ST EDMUNDS.—Freeman Lodge (No. 105).—This lodge held its quarterly meeting on the 12th ult., and the business on the agenda paper was to install Bro. William H. Lucia, Grand Sword Bearer of England, as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and, if elected, to advance thirteen brethren. The ballot being taken, a unanimous voting was declared for all the candidates. Past Master Bro. R. N. Sanderson, of the Victor Albert Lodge, Ipswich, assisted by P.M. Bro. T. W. Westgate, of the same lodge, then advanced the following brethren:—Bros. J. Hedley Bevan, 1008; J. T. Hassall, 1008; H. Thompson, 1008; J. D. Perrott, 1008; E. Sparke, 1592; N. Tracey, 376. The installation ceremony was performed by Past Master Bro. Thomas Poore, P.M. and Secretary 139; assisted by Bro. George Lilly, P.M. and Treasurer 139. The newly installed Master invested his officers as follows:—Bros. I. N. York, S.W.; B. Chennell, J.W.; C. T. Oakes, S.D.; E. King, J.D.; T. F. Lucia, M.O.; J. Hedley Bevan, S.O.; W. J. Nunn, J.O.; R. Thompson, I.G., Wm. Armstrong was appointed Secretary, and T. J. Huddleston, elected Treasurer. The whole of the work was admirably done, and thanks were given and recorded on the minutes to the four brethren who had so kindly made special journeys to carry out the duties of the evening. At the close of the business, the addresses were delivered to the officers and brethren by the Installing Master, after which the lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to banquet. Loyal and Masonic complimentary toasts followed, intermixed with harmony, and it was acknowledged that the evening was a most enjoyable one, not only in sociability but from the satisfaction that Mark Masonry was now firmly established in the town.

MARYPORT.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 151).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 19th ult., in the Masonic Hall, Eaglesfield-street. There were present:—Bros. J. H. Banks, W.M.; T. Maudie, I.P.M.; W. Armstrong, S.W.; P. Dodgson, J.W.; E. G. Mitchell, M.O.; J. Quay, as S.O.; G. D' Thompson, J.O.; W. F. Lamouby, W.M. 229, Chaplain (Freemason); Jos. Nicholson, P.M. and Treasurer, a S.D.; J. Adair, Secretary; J. W. Robinson, S.O., as J.D.; J. S. Gardiner, P.M. as I.G.; and J. Smith, Oig. The minutes of previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for the advancement of Bros. John Elliot, S.W. Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371, Maryport, and John Wilson, of the same lodge. Both ballots were unanimously clear, and Bro. Elliot, being in attendance, was duly advanced to the honourable degree of M.M.M. After the transaction of some other business the lodge was closed in harmony.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PORTSMOUTH.—Naval and Military Conclave (No. 35).—The quarterly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on the 16th ult. The conclave was opened by Sir Kt. G. A. Green, M.P.S., at 6.30 p.m. The meeting was honoured with the attendance of Sir Kt. M. A. Bolton, M.P.S. Thanet Conclave, No. 121. The minutes of the September Conclave were adopted. Bros. E. Good, P.M. 804; A. Wendover, 1069; and G. F. Brown, 342, were balloted for and unanimously elected. Bros. Brown and G. Whitehall being present, were entrusted, admitted, installed, and proclaimed. The M.P.S. delivered the Historical Oration. The Recorder informed the members that he had received letters from Lady Williams and Mrs. Little, acknowledging their receipt of addresses of condolence from the Rec. in the name of the officers and members generally. The Sir Kts. adjourned to the George Hotel, High-street, where a banquet had been provided by Bro. Kemp, but some twenty only attended, the weather being unpropitious. The Sanctuary K.H.S. was held early in the evening, when Sir Kts. Clay, Triggs, Hall, and Health were received into this exalted Order.

Obituary.

BRO. B. HEAD, P.G.D.

We are sorry to have to record the departure from this world of a good and kind brother who was much esteemed and valued by all who knew him, Bro. Benjamin Head, who died quite peacefully at his residence 12, Earl's terrace, Kensington, on Tuesday afternoon, the 24th ult. He was interred in the grave of his late wife at Arnot's Vale, Bristol, on Monday the 30th ult. Bro. Head was born at Ipswich, September 28th, 1801, and was initiated into Freemasonry in the Doric Lodge, Woodbridge, 5th October, 1826, raised to the Third Degree 7th December, 1826, and remained a member till death. He was a Past Grand Junior Warden of Suffolk; he joined the Cornerstone Lodge, No. 37, (previous to its amalgamation with the St. George's Lodge, No. 5,) remaining a member till death, and served as Grand Steward in 1856; he joined a lodge at Bristol, and one or two at Ipswich, he was also a member of the Caveac Lodge, No. 176, for many years, and an old member of the Stability Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Head was appointed Grand Deacon in 1863 by the late M.W.G.M. the Earl of Zetland, he was exalted in the Doric Chapter, Woodbridge, joined the St. George Chapter, No. 5, served the office of M.E.Z. in 1856, and that of Treasurer from 1859 till he resigned the office in the early part of 1878 on account of advancing years, to the great regret of the members by whom he was much respected and loved as a brother and a friend. He was appointed Sword Bearer of Grand Chapter in 1863. Bro. Head was a Vice-Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, Vice-President of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, Vice-President of the Royal Masonic Institution for the Aged, a member of the House Committees of each, and for some years Chairman of the House Committee of the Boys' School. Not only have the Masonic Charities lost a good supporter, but various charities outside Masonry will miss him very much, particularly some of our hospitals.

BRO. JOHN BOYD P.G.P.

It is our painful duty also to record the death of Bro. John Boyd, which sad event took place suddenly on Monday last, the 30th ult. The following brief account of his Masonic career will be read with interest by his numerous friends and admirers:—

Bro. John Boyd was initiated on the 3rd January, 1848, in the Robert Burns Lodge, No. 25; joined the Lodge of Prudent Brethren, 2nd March, 1853; and the Globe Lodge, No. 23, 14th April, 1869; Polish National Lodge No. 534, in 1854; appointed Assistant Grand Pursuivant in 1871, Grand Pursuivant in 1872; exalted in Polish National Chapter, No. 534, on the 25th October, 1849; was First Z. of Prudent Brethren Chapter, No. 145, in 1869; one of the Founders of Burdett Chapter, No. 1293, Hampton Court, and was at the time of his death G.N. in the Prov. Grand Chapter of Middlesex. Bro. Boyd took great interest in Royal Arch Masonry, and worked the ceremony and lectures with great taste from his thorough knowledge and meaning of the Ritual. He also took great interest in, and rendered very valuable aid at, the Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, which was established by the Prudent Brethren Chapter. He consecrated several lodges and chapters, he was one of the committee of the Wentworth Little Memorial Fund. It was only a few days ago that he paid over to the Treasurer several sums for that Fund, and said he hoped to do much more yet. Bro. Boyd was a Knight Templar, and also took great interest with Bro. Little in the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine.

The funeral takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, at Brompton Cemetery, at 2 o'clock.

BRO. BRYAN WORMALD.

On Thursday, the 19th ult. a number of the York brethren met at the York Cemetery to see the last of the remains of their late Bro. Bryan Wormald, who died on the previous Tuesday after an illness of five years. Bro. Wormald was initiated, in 1866, in the York Lodge (No. 236), and was always an ardent admirer and supporter of the Craft. He was a member of the Zetland Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, of the York Lodge of Mark Master Masons (Time Immemorial), and of the Hilda Chapter Rose Croix. His long illness prevented him from undertaking the chair of the York Lodge, but he served the office of Preceptor in the Ancient Ebor Preceptory of Knight Templar, and cherished a very warm regard for that Order. According to his express wish the pall was supported by six members of the Preceptory, E. Sir Knts. N. B. Whythead and G. Cooper and Sir Knts. J. S. Cumberland, J. Keswick, C. Palliser and F. Rawling. A beautiful cross formed of camellias and chrysanthemums, sent by the Preceptory, bearing the motto of the Order, "In Hoc Signo Vincas" was placed upon the coffin.

Chapters of Instruction are held at the White Hart Tavern, Bishopsgate-street and at the Jamaica Coffee-house, St. Michael's-alley Cornhill.—City Press.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The Sheffield Masonic Amateur Dramatic Society gave two more performances at the Freemasons' Hall there, on the 21st and 22nd ult., when "Friend Waggle," "An Ugly Customer," "Delicate Ground," "Fish out of Water," and "Rosebud of Stinging-nettle Farm," were successfully produced. Bro. Gatty was again to the fore; good service was also rendered by Bros. Capt. Mills, Garnett, Reaney, Middleton, Brailsford, Townsend, Hoyland, Scargill, Holiday, B. M. Renton, S. B. Ellis, J. W. White, and Leighton, in their various parts.

Bros. Blair and Bennett were efficient prompters, and the band, under Bro. Webster, was all that could be desired. Last, but not least, these brethren were most ably assisted by two lady professionals, Miss Marie Montgomery and Miss Frederica Taylor, of London. These ladies received a hearty welcome, which the impression they made on their former visit fairly justified, and they fully sustained the reputation they had gained.

The Sheffield Masonic Amateur Dramatic Society is a great success; we hope it may be our lot to chronicle many more such pleasant and clever entertainments as those given in its first season, which certainly surprised us and many others, showing that if brethren work together much may be done, especially where there is such a manager at hand as our hardworking Bro. Reaney.

MUSIC.

Hearts yield easily when under the divine influence of music. Its soothing, thrilling, and softening effect on us tender-hearted mortals is really charming, enchanting, sublime! It gives rise to emotions which steal over and lift us completely above our common-place existence. The new pleasures that are born within us, by the harmonious strains of soul-inspiring melody, are often seraphic. The soul seems to expand and to quit the body, to be wafted heavenward with the ascending sounds. Nature hath no greater or sweeter joy to give unto man than that which is conveyed to him by music; the gift of which must be, in some degree, a compensation for that beautiful, that benign, and blissful paradise—the Garden of Eden; the loss of which is a curse to the human race, and a cause of its utter degradation and souls' bondage. The first ray of bliss, of hope, and even of piety, may be, may is often let in to the sleeping soul by the sweet sounds and heart touching chords of refined, classical, and sacred music. The love of it grows apace, it fills our hearts with joy, and those whose souls are not enraptured by its celestial strains, have hearts that cannot feel all the sublimity of the heaven-bestowed gift. Music cheers the heart, smooths the rough path of life, and makes the world bright and gay. Without it the earth would be dreary, and man less happy.—SAVARIUS.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual New Year's Entertainment to the annuitants resident in the Institution at Croydon, was given on Wednesday last, and notwithstanding the great success of all the entertainments of former years, a programme was arranged which put previous New Year's celebrations, at the same place, in the shade. The weather was very inclement, the rain falling fast and furious, but it can hardly be said that it was unfortunate that it did so, as it considerably enhanced the warmth of the hospitality which greeted the brethren and ladies who journeyed to Croydon to assist in making the old people once more happy for a few hours.

On entering the building the visitors were met by Bro. Terry (Secretary), Bro. Norris (Warden), and Miss Norris (Matron), and welcomed with the best wishes for the New Year in the hall, which was decorated with elegant cards, tastefully arranged on the walls, and interspersed with branches of holly. Everywhere was to be seen an indication that the day was to be a happy one, and glorious fires were in the grates to keep out the damp and cold. No time was lost in beginning the enjoyments of the day, for as soon as the company had assembled the bell was rung to summon the old brethren and ladies from their different residences to partake of the liberal fare which had been provided for them in the hall, which, by the way, although of sufficient dimensions in former times for the requirements of the Institution, affords, at the present time, totally inadequate accommodation for such entertainments as are given twice a year. The hall where the dinner took place was profusely adorned with seasonable symbols, the arrangement of which had occupied the attention of Bro. Terry and assistants for the best part of two days. The three large tables, which were placed on as many sides of the room, were loaded with good things, and every available seat was soon occupied. The arrangements were excellent, for although there was no room to spare, every inmate of the Institution was studiously attended to. The visiting brethren volunteered their services to look after the annuitants and the lady visitors, and, with an admirable corps of waiters, left no one any occasion for complaining of neglect.

Dr. Strong, Honorary Surgeon to the Institution, took the chair, having on his right Bro. Norris, the Warden of the Institution, and on his left Mrs. Terry. Bro. Terry occupied the Vice-Chair.

The visitors present were:—Bros. Dr. Strong, James Terry, G. S. Becknell, R. F. Cheesebrough, George Everett, and Mrs. Everett, H. Massey, Miss Annie Massey, Master H. W. Massey, W. H. Main, Mrs. Notson, Mr. J. E. Terry, George Knill, W. H. Wallington, A. H. Tattershall, C. J. Perceval, F. R. W. Hedges, (Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls), Mrs. Hedges, Bro. Joseph Stock, Mrs. Stock, Mr. Aug. E. Perceval, Bro. John Newton, Mrs. Newton, Bro. Charles Daniel, Mr. Thomas S. Oborn, Bro. Bowyer, Mrs. Bowyer, Bro. Thomas Cubitt, Mrs. W. Culmer, Bro. R. H. Halford, Mrs. Halford, Bro. Richard Piercy, Mrs. Piercy, Thomas Goode, Bro. Edwin Legge, Mrs. Legge, C. H. Webb, Mrs. Hilliard, Mrs. Oborn, Bro. J. Tickell, Mrs. Tickell, Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Terry, Miss Terry, Miss Jessie Terry, Bro. G. J. Hilliard, Mrs. Wallington, Miss Wallington, Bro. W. W. Morgan, Mrs. Morgan, and Bro. C. Stewart.

A Christmas card of the prettiest pattern and choicest workmanship, was provided for every one, and after dinner each female annuitant was presented with a packet of tea, and every male annuitant with a packet of tobacco, the gift of Bro. W. Hale.

Bro. Perceval also presented every male annuitant with a handsome snuff-box, and every female annuitant, with a scented packet.

Dr. Strong proposed the three usual toasts, "The Queen," "The Founders of the Feast," and "Bro. Norris, the Warden of the Institution." In proposing "The Founders of the Feast," he said that the entertainment was not provided at the expense of the funds of the Institution, but by a few brethren and ladies who took a great interest in the welfare of the annuitants, and were never tired of doing something, which would promote their happiness. These brethren and ladies were always pleased to see their aged friends happy, and came down to Croydon, periodically, to assist in making them so. In giving "The Health of Bro. Norris," he said that this toast would be as pleasing to all the visitors as well as to the residents in the Institution, as Bro. Norris looked carefully after their welfare. Bro. Norris, who was the oldest Mason in England, was within a week or two of eighty-nine years of age. Bro. Norris was very proud of being the Warden of the Institution. He was ably assisted by his daughter, Miss Norris, who had been appointed Matron, and in such entertainments as the present she took a very important part, seeing to the dinner, the cooking, and the arrangements for refreshments and tea. In this way a very heavy burden necessarily fell upon Miss Norris, but the duties she had to discharge were performed most efficiently. The residents in the Institution would testify how solicitous she was for their welfare, and no one was more qualified than he (Dr. Strong), to give testimony to her unremitting care and attention to those who were sick or infirm.

Bro. Terry here announced that he had received a telegram from Bro. J. L. Hime, of Manchester, who, with some other brethren there, had contributed one-sixth to the expenses of the entertainment, trusting that the entertainment was being enjoyed and wishing every one a "Happy New Year." Bro. Terry said he had sent a telegram in reply, thanking Bro. Hime and the Manchester brethren, and wishing them also a "Happy New Year."

Bro. Norris, in reply to the toast proposed by Dr. Strong, said it would not surprise the company if he said he felt completely overwhelmed by the compliments which had been paid to himself and daughter. He hailed the compliment to his daughter with peculiar satisfaction, and as to himself, the less he said, perhaps, the better. Brevity was said to be the soul of wit, and he should, therefore, say very little. He most heartily returned thanks for the compliment paid to him and his daughter, and most earnestly wished every one a Happy New Year, and that every succeeding year might be happier than its predecessor.

The company then retired, and those brethren who had been busy attending to the wants of the diners then partook of dinner.

Bro. C. J. Perceval proposed "The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution," to which Bro. Terry, in replying said that happily the brethren never liked to meet at their social gatherings without remembering this toast. No doubt they had all seen in that morning's newspapers the grand success that had attended all the Masonic Institutions in the year 1878. In the year 1877 these Institutions totalled up £42,300; but in the year which had just passed, despite all the failures, the dreadful calamities which had overtaken the country, and the fearful depression of trade, the three Institutions had totalled more than £40,000. Of that sum the Benevolent Institution for the second time had the honour of taking the lead, totalling the amount of £14,880. The Girls' School was regaining its old position, which it unfortunately lost, of being at the head of the poll; this, last year, stood second on the list, with £12,866. The Boys' School, for the first time during the past sixteen years, stood at the far-end of the list with £12,566, less by £300 than the Girls'. Looking at these figures it appeared that although there had been great disasters in trade, the Freemasons of England had not been affected by them, and, therefore, they might be congratulated upon having a greater amount of success than other branches of the community. As regarded the Benevolent Institution, while he desired most heartily to see the Girls' and Boys' Schools progressing, if should never be his fault if the Benevolent Institution did not retain its present proud position—not for his own sake, but for the sake of the Institution. He looked upon the matter in this light:—The Girls' School was established ninety-one years ago; the Boys' School was established eighty-one years ago. These were established by the old Masons, and the old Masons worked to support them. This continued for a long period, and it was not till 1842, or thirty-six years ago, that the poor old people were worthy of any recognition at all. Since the establishment of the Benevolent Institution it had grown, notwithstanding the opposition of the then Grand Master, the Duke of Sussex, and the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Zetland, who would only allow the Institution to have a festival once in three years. It had, however, been able to hold its own and to show itself worthy of the brethren's confidence. He could only say that since he had had the honour of being the Secretary of the Benevolent Institution he had had the pleasure of having around him, as he had now, a number of representative men—men coming up from their lodges, from different localities, entertaining different opinions—yet all agreed in one thing, that the Benevolent Institution was worthy of their support, and worthy of introducing to these social gatherings these ladies they had now with them. Thanking Bro. Perceval very much for proposing this toast, he hoped and trusted, that as years went by, they might be enabled to see this Institution go on and prosper; and pre-eminently as it had taken a position in, and highly as it was thought of by the Craft, yet that, like the electric light, it might only be in its infancy, and instead of having one year £16,000, and another year £14,000, in years to come it might add a nought to those figures, and cause surprise among the outside world at where the Masons got their money from. If health and strength were continued to him he would never flag in his efforts to uphold the Institution. If he could not get help for the Institution he should still be pleased to get it for the Girls' and the Boys' Schools. He was now looking forward to the festival of this Institution, and already he had attained 210 Stewards for that festival. That number was twenty-one in excess of the number he had this day last year when he first summoned a meeting of the Board of Stewards. If each of those 21 Stewards brought up £50 he would have a thousand guineas. He looked forward to a bright future in 1879. Col. Starkie would take the chair at the festival, and Col. Starkie was Grand Master of a province which had 89 lodges and 37 chapters, or nearly 130 collective Masonic bodies. The Board of Stewards numbered some 50 or 60 brethren from that province, and he thought it likely he should be able to say he had never had such a list announced as they would bear at the next festival on the 12th of February. He hoped Bro. Hedges would be successful in obtaining an equally prominent chairman for his festival in May. No doubt he had his eye upon some distinguished brother, for he was ambitious. The late Secretary obtained the Prince of Wales; perhaps the present Secretary would obtain the Duke of Connaught. At all events he hoped Bro. Hedges would be successful and get a better festival even than he had yet had. He was worthy of it. His friends had made him Secretary, and it was their bounden duty to support him. He would be thrown on his own resources in 1880, but never mind that; he had good friends round him for 1879. He hoped also that Bro. Binckes would have a bumper festival for the Boys' School. Bro. Terry then made a strong appeal for support for the Benevolent Institution, and concluded by again thanking the brethren for remembering the toast.

Afterwards the company paid visits to the abodes of the aged brethren and widows, and then partook of tea. In the evening a delightful Drawing-Room Entertainment was given by the celebrated Pickwick Historic Club, of which the following is the programme:—Pianoforte Selection Mr. G. S. Graham; "Nine Points of the Law," Joseph Ironside, Mr. E. Johnson; Cunningham (an Attorney), Mr. G. J. King; Rodomont Rollingstone (a gentleman at large), Mr. Dupree; John Britton, Mr. E. Baker; Mrs. Smylic, Miss Lizzie Henderson; Katie Mapleson (her niece), Miss Fanny Perfit.

After which Mr. G. S. Graham presented his Musical Olio, introducing:—Descriptive Song, "The Fisherman's Daughter," Anon; Buffo Song, "The British Lion," Anon; Organophonic Piccolo Song, "Il Trovatore," Verdi (with natural whistle accompaniment); Buffo Song, "The Adventures of Little Mr. Binks," Walker; and "The Muddle Puddle Porter."

The performance concluded with the Comic Drama, written by Mr. J. B. Buckstone, entitled "A Rough Diamond"—Lord Plato, Mr. E. Johnson; Sir William Evergreen, Mr. Dupree; Captain Augustus Blenheim, Mr. E. Baker; Cousin Joe, Mr. G. J. King; Lady Plato, Miss Fanny Perfit; Margery, Miss Lizzie Henderson.

When the performances were concluded, votes of thanks were passed to Bro. Terry, and also to the Pickwick Historic Club, on whose behalf Bro. E. Johnson replied, and expressed the pleasure it gave his company, and himself particularly as an old Mason and supporter of the Institution, to do anything they could on its behalf. Speaking for himself he looked upon it as a duty. The visitors then shook hands individually with all the annuitants, wishing them "A Happy New Year," and returned to town in the special saloon carriage, kindly provided for the party by the South Eastern Railway Company.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The first meeting of the Board of Stewards for the festival of 1879 was held on Thursday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall. There were present:—Bros. J. L. Mather, P.M., 1471; Charles Dairy, W.M., 141; Thos. Cubitt, William Stephens, George Newman, J. B. Dodson, George Jeffery, 7; H. H. Smith, 25 Chapter; W. Norris, S.D. Sir Hugh Myddelton; R. R. Davis, P.M., 256; J. Tanner, P.M. 1707; Dick Radclyffe, J.W. 742; W. Henry Farnfield, P.M. and Sec. 907; Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, D.M. No. 2; P.G.C., Joseph Clever, P.M., 12, P.M. 171, P.Z. 12; W. Maple, P.M. 657; George Blythe, 1348; Joseph Driscoll, 30; C. P. Mills, 898; H. Massey (Freemason); H. C. Levander, and James Terry (Secretary).

Bro. Terry, said before a Chairman of the Board of Stewards was selected, he had to inform the brethren that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., had appointed Wednesday, the 12th of February, for the next festival of the Institution. He had also to inform the brethren that Lieut.-Gen. Le Gendre N. Starkie, Prov. G.M. for East Lancashire, had consented to be Chairman of that festival. In accordance with the usual custom he (Bro. Terry) had sent round notices to all the lodges and chapters under the English constitution, with the exception of those in the colonies, and he had received responses from 209, which had agreed to send Stewards for the festival; that number was an increase of twenty over the number he had that day last year. He thought this seemed to augur well for the success of the festival, and considering all present circumstances—the depression of trade—it was a great achievement for the Institution.

On the motion of Bro. William Stephens, seconded by Bro. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P., Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford Past Grand Chaplain, was elected Chairman of Board of Stewards, and therefore took his seat as Chairman of the meeting, and thanked the brethren for the compliment paid to him.

On the motion of Bro. J. L. Mather, seconded by Bro. George Newman, Bro. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P., was elected Treasurer, and on the motion of Bro. W. Stephens, seconded by Bro. J. L. Mather, Bro. Terry was elected as Honorary Secretary.

Bro. Terry said he hoped when the festival came round they would be able to say it was the most successful festival the Institution had ever had.

The price of tickets and other usual preliminaries were then arranged.

Bros. Tanner, W. Stephens, W. H. Farnfield, Charles Dairy, and H. H. Smith, were chosen as Musical Committee.

The toast list and the arrangements to be conformed to by the Stewards were then read over.

The Stewards' fee having been arranged to be two guineas, Bro. Terry read a letter from a brother of Woodbridge, Suffolk, suggesting that if a country Steward found that he was unable to attend at the festival, he should, on giving notice of such inability a fortnight before the festival, be charged only a guinea and a-half instead of two guineas. The proposition was then put to the meeting and negatived.

Some minor details were then settled, and the meeting was adjourned till the 25th inst., at four o'clock.

At the conclusion of the above meeting the Musical Committee assembled and proceeded to make arrangements for the music to be performed at the festival.

STOKES ON MEMORY.—Some very interesting and valuable proofs of the extent to which the memory may be strengthened by skilful training are given by Bro. Stokes, at the Royal Polytechnic Institution, and it is to be hoped his untiring efforts made for many years to assist teachers and students will be productive of great good to the public. This system is based upon the association of ideas, and is suited for classical studies, and for every phase of thought.

THE FREEMASON.

THE NEW YEAR.

With the new year which has now dawned upon us all when this has met the eyes of our many and kind readers in all parts of the world, the Freemason in all sincerity of heart begs to offer to them one and all, heartfelt good wishes for 1879. May it be of undimmed happiness to all our zealous patrons, to our good old Order everywhere, and to mankind. It is indeed impossible for us to shut our ears or close our eyes to the sounds and sights of much anxiety, depression, and suffering all around us, and no thoughtful Freemason, much less any English patriot, will wish or think it right to be insensible to what is patent just now, as alike painful and sorrowful, or to what is possible, or even probable, in the good providence of T.G.A.O.T.U. in the twelve-months, (unknown and untrod), which now lie before us. We end 1878, as we begin 1879, with national affliction, (in which the hearts of the people is bowed down as one man), for the premature loss of the lamented and gifted Princess Alice. Only let us believe reverently that what is our "loss" is, no doubt, her "gain," in the, to us, "inscrutable counsels of the Most High." We leave 1878, and we begin 1879, with much of local suffering, as well as a serious extension of mercantile embarrassment, and, in addition to this, we have also to realize a vast amount of personal distress. To none of these things can we, as loyal citizens, or zealous Freemasons, be indifferent, and we trust earnestly that 1879 may witness a speedy amelioration of a state of affairs, alike affecting and distressing for all who have capacity to think or hearts to feel. The charity of our Order, ever liberal and discriminating, may well be aroused at the sight of so much suffering among our fellow citizens and fellow creatures. Indeed, it may be a question whether some of our leading brethren might not form a committee to assist similar committees elsewhere. And thus the new year meets us, let us trust neither insensible to duty or insensible to responsibility. What 1879 will bring to any of us we cannot tell to-day. Its dark or sunny hours are still parted from us in the veiled and distant recesses of the mysterious future of an all-controlling Providence. But as Freemasons we leave an old year and hail a new one in a spirit of becoming hope, trust, and resignation. With the great American poet we can say, and should say—

"Look not scornfully into the past
It comes not back again;
Wisely improve the present—it is thine.
Go forth to meet the shadowy future Without fear, and with a manly heart."

FOREIGN FREEMASONRY
IN 1878.

The immense length to which our "Summary" of the yearly record of the Freemason extended on December 21st, excluded from any proper treatment necessarily, the history of non-Britannic Freemasonry, unless, indeed, we had wished to exhaust utterly the courteous attention of our readers. Many of our friends dislike long leaders as much as they disapprove of long sermons, and as we are not anxious to weary others, and admit freely that patience has its limits, alike with sermons as with leaders, we always seek to make a proper and charitable allowance for the amiable weakness of our good readers as men and Masons. Accordingly, we supplement to-day our yearly summary, with the following brief recapitulation:—In France and Belgium the situation is as bad as can be, in fact it cannot be worse, and as it neither deserves the sympathy of the patriot, nor calls for the consideration of the Mason, we may well leave these two insubordinate jurisdictions without further heed or notice to that non-masonry to which they are rapidly drifting. It is very doubtful whether they can justly be considered offshoots of the one great and true Masonic family. They are altering their rituals to please positivist Masons and nihilist professors, and propose to erase from all their circulars their solitary recognition of T.G.A.O.T.U. It is quite clear from the mournful and insane proceedings of the last "Convent" of the French Grand Orient that such erasure is only a question of time. In addition to this, they have "taken power" to establish lodges in "hostile jurisdictions," so that we may soon hear of French lodges in England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, and America. Not being Masons, we shall simply not recognize them: and, of course, the moment such a fact is a "fait accompli" all relations between French and English and American Masonry will "ipso facto" cease, and French Masons will be inadmissible in Anglo-Saxon lodges. We leave them to-day with feelings of commiseration and unmitigated regret. In Germany Freemasonry, under the wise patronage of our august brother, the Emperor of Germany, and of the Crown Prince, pursues its peaceful course. The meeting of the Grand Masters seem practically to have taken the view of the Freemason, of the "position," and to have condemned, (by implication at any rate), the proceedings of the French Grand Orient. In Spain and Portugal Freemasonry is in activity, though in Spain a divided body under great disadvantages. In Italy the Grand Orient of Italy seems to be acting with prudence and discretion, though we feel bound to admit that we have received from most reliable sources, complaints of political, and even revolutionary tendencies in Italian Freemasonry. All we can say is, if that be so, that their practice belies their profession. Our worthy Bro. J. C. Parkinson can best enlighten English Masons on the subject. Freemasonry seems also to be flourishing truly in Denmark and Sweden and Hungary, (though again here with divided authority), in Switzerland and Holland, and to be springing into life again in Austria. In Russia it is still absolutely prohibited, though it was once highly favoured by the upper classes, and even patronized by the Empress Catherine. In Canada, Freemasonry is moving on, though the Grand Lodge of Quebec has in the heat of controversy put forward pretensions of jurisdiction which are inadmissible. Many of the professing Masonic jurists in Canada (of more than doubtful authority) confound the rights of a sectional, or provincial, or district Grand Lodge with that of a National Grand Lodge. The analogy of the American Grand Lodges is fallacious, as the States of America are Sovereign States, upon an equality with one another, and claim a quasi national jurisdiction. But the Grand Lodge of Quebec only represents a portion of a nationality and is practically an "Imperium" in an "Imperio." Assuming that it is legally formed, it can only claim to exercise the rights the Grand Lodge of Canada claimed to exercise and did exercise; it cannot by self asserting resolutions extend its powers beyond Masonic precedent, or "international comity." We are very sorry thus to express our opinions, but feel bound to speak out clearly on the subject, whether we please or displease others. We confess that we feel very proud of the position of the American Freemasons. 700,000 brethren seem to be acting with most commendable zeal and correctness in the maintenance of our great principles, and we rejoice to think that we are entirely one with them, alike in the assertion of Masonic truths and the "outcome" of Masonic practice. The American Masons have some difficulties to contend with of which we know nothing, and as in their national life so in their Masonic progress, they demand and deserve the admiration of the reflecting, and the sympathy of the intelligent. In South America Freemasonry is working on under many drawbacks, but we hear of its progress alike in Mexico, Brazil, La Plata, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela, New Grenada. Freemasonry is at work in Liberia, and the Island of Cuba. Freemasonry is also apparently progressing in Turkey, Greece, and Egypt, as well as in Hayti and St. Domingo. Indeed, as Bro. Kenning's Cosmopolitan Calendar tells us,

"In every land we find a friend,
In every port a lodge."

So sang Dibdin of old, and so say we in 1879. May the old Craft keep still to the fore in this year of grace and light, 1879.

ULTRAMONTANISM AND FREEMASONRY.

The restless spirit of Ultramontanism just now cannot leave Freemasonry alone. It is, to use a French expression, its "bête noire," or, as we should put it, its "bit of red rag." The mere mention of its name suffices to make its Popes, its cardinals, archbishops, bishops, to say nothing of its "seminary priests," lose their heads, their reason, and their charity. The last deliverance of this kind, which 1878 has witnessed, is the very foolish, and we may add, mendacious "mandement" of the Bishop of Nismes, Monseigneur Besson, in which he reproduces, and repeats all the calumnies, all the shameful libels, which Ultramontane traducers and Jesuit accusers have so industriously circulated and heaped upon Freemasons. According to this most charitable and correct Bishop Besson, Freemasonry is a vast secret political body, an aggregation of assassins and revolutionists, whose one mission is to destroy the Roman Catholic Church and to uproot society, the law, and all social organization. Therefore in the words of previous Jesuit calumniators for whose lying words there is not the slightest pretence or even excuse, he proceeds gravely to assert—in an episcopal charge—that since 1785 Freemasonry has been a combination to destroy society and religion, to murder monarchs, and to revolutionize nations. The extraordinary jumble of accusations, with which he "piles up the agony," is alike amusing and absurd in the highest degree. At the Convent of Wilhelmsbad, in 1785, he declares the Freemasons decided to destroy Louis XVI.; the Freemasons were the cause of the death of Gustavus the III. of Sweden, at the masked ball, the Freemasons imprisoned Pope Pius VII. at Valence, and made Napoleon III. go to war with Italy. Freemasonry has recently poisoned, (so says this good man), the Archbishop of Quito, and the President of Equador, and has driven Brazilian and German bishops into exile and plundered them. Can any one believe that a Roman Catholic Bishop could talk such nonsense, such absolute rubbish, in a so-called serious charge? Yet, there it is, as you can see, in La Semaine Française, and page 581 of the Freemason. Without taking the trouble, (for it would be an insult to our readers), to wade through this tissue of "malice and mendacity," we will take two points, as facts of history, to shew how utterly ignorant Bishop Besson is of what he so complacently chatters. The Convent of Wilhelmsbad in 1782, was a purely Christian movement of the so-called Strict Observance, presided over by the well-known Duke Ferdinand of Brunswick, at which a large number of noblemen and gentlemen assembled, most anti-revolutionary. At this convent the Templar Order of the Strict Observance and the Clerical Observance, which Von Hund and Starck had founded, was changed into "Knights of Benevolence," but purely Christian, and having nothing in common with Freemasonry. Starck some say was a Jesuit, at any rate eventually a Roman Catholic, and died one, and Von Hund died in the odour of Roman Catholic sanctity and is buried before the high altar of Melrichstadt. Be it also remembered that the "Illuminati," with whom Freemasonry is confounded, were not Freemasons, but were established by a Roman Catholic professor, who died at Gotha, a Roman Catholic, an exile from his native land. In this sense, to Roman Catholicism as the origin rather than to Freemasonry, (which has ever ignored them), must fairly be attributed the creation of those pernicious secret societies, like the Illuminati with their countless ramifications and developments, which, in former days brought such evil on society and on the world, and which as "Lothair" tells us, are still at work, and potent for evils many and great. It is no concern of ours, (neither does it affect the argument, let us observe,) that in some countries, just now, Freemasonry seems to be laying itself open to the charge of becoming a secret society. That is a very deplorable fact, per se, but it is one which does not affect Freemasonry in general, however it may disgrace it in particular. Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, we repeat, knows nothing of such teaching or such revolutionary ideas. It is a religious, benevolent, God-fearing, law-observing, Order, and is always to be found, where it is faithful to its abiding principles, on the side of peace, order, and equality, and an opponent of social anarchy, and intestine commotion. It is a loyal, genial, tolerant, friendly, brotherhood, and thus goes on its way, heedless alike of the curses or the praise of men, disregarding Ultramontane impertinences, and laughing heartily at such puerile opponents as Monseigneur Besson.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Craft at large, and the metropolitan brethren in particular, will hear with deep regret, the lamented departure from amongst us of our worthy Bro. Benjamin Head, who died on the 24th December, in his 78th year. Bro. Head, whose services to Masonry, to Grand Lodge, and the Charities, above all, are well known, will be a very "missed man" amongst us. When many read these lines of ours they will sincerely regret to think, that they no more shall greet the "pleasant presence" or clasp the warm hand of Bro. Head, that it will be theirs no longer to profit by the singularly matured wisdom and kindly moderation of his energetic mind and warm heart. Bro. Benjamin Head has, we understand, been for some time ailing, and had not long ago recovered from a severe illness, but though he leaves us in a "green old age," his place will be hard to fill, and his loss will be long sincerely mourned and felt by all who knew him, all who valued him, and all who loved him. Thus the close of 1878 will ever appeal to all London brethren especially, with regretful memories, in the realization of the loss of so wise a counsellor, so true a friend, and so sincere a brother Mason, as Bro. Benjamin Head. We have also to mention another name, as added to the list of our Masonic worthies departed, which will be a name most familiar to London Masons, and well known to the Craft. We have to announce with sincere regret the death of our lamented Bro. John Boyd. His services as a Masonic Preceptor, especially in the Royal Arch Grade, are too well known to need comment or encomium, but we feel sure that we express the feeling of our entire fraternity and of our London brethren in particular, when we say, that his valuable labours for Masonry will long be gratefully remembered by his friends and companions and that his memory will always be endeared to them, as a true, a honoured, a most worthy and kindly brother.

PROFESSION AND PRACTICE.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

Though I think your Editor is quite right in leaving the "Grand Orient" to itself, as it seems doubtful whether it is really any longer a true Masonic jurisdiction, I am of opinion that it is equally proper in your cosmopolitan and impartial pages to call attention to what I deem a most melancholy proof of the real decadence of French Freemasonry.

This, according to my view, (though unlike the Grand Orient and the Pope, I do not profess to claim infallibility), is to be found in the last "Budget," and anything more absolutely unsatisfactory, I have never perused, or more suggestive of its present abasement, more symptomatic of its future fall.

Its accounts have long since been pointed out as most peculiar and dubious, and I will defy anyone to tell me on the present statement, whether the Grand Orient is in a state of solvency or insolvency. The Grand Orient began with a balance, in March, 1877, of 1167.50 francs, or £46 19s. 8d. The receipts from all sources for the 12 months amounted to 133,954.65 francs, or £5414 15s. in round numbers; its expenses to 131,782.50 francs, or £5320, in round numbers. The balance on the 28th February, 1878, was 2175.15 francs, or £87 3s., in round numbers. Of this amount £5414 15s., the only sum devoted to charity that I can find, is 12,822.75 francs, or £518, 15s. in round numbers, and this is paid by collections, special gifts, temporary special payments, and £300 interest on certain funds. The "cours gratuits" of instruction cost £160, towards which the Grand Orient receives 5,898.125 francs, or £237 10d. The travelling expenses swallow up 16,000 francs, or £640. The office expenses cost 28,000 francs in round numbers, or £1120.

But I cannot understand what is the exact position of the Grand Orient and the Société Civile. The Grand Orient lets out lodge rooms for 20,092.15 francs, £802 16s. but it also pays for "loyer," or rent, in 1878, and will pay the same in 1879, 15,000 francs, or £600. I can only suppose that the Grand Orient "sublets" to the lodges from the "Société Civile." Perhaps some French brother can explain this fact. I fear that French Freemasonry under the Grand Orient has many troubles to contend with, owing to its suicidal policy and dark days before it, under the patronage of political partisans; but I think it well to point out to your readers, as the moral of this letter, that a great body which spends £640 on the travelling expenses of its members, and only gives for all purposes of Masonic relief £518 10s., seems to the reflecting mind a burlesque on the name of Freemasonry. For it will be then seen that the travelling expenses and the office expenses cost £1760, as against charity £518. There is a payment to the Société Civile, in addition, of 24,000.60 francs, £960.

I have put these figures as clearly before your readers as I can, but they still seem to me very obscure, and if any French brother can throw light upon them, simply as a matter of fact, I shall be greatly obliged, and I have no doubt your readers will too.

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,
MASKELYNE.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think it may safely be affirmed that there are few members of our Order better acquainted with Masonic statistics than my esteemed friend, Bro. James Terry, and those who, like myself, have long enjoyed the pleasure of knowing him, will readily concede that from the ingenuous frankness of his character, he would not make any statement incapable of proof.

These premises being granted, it follows as a natural corollary that any serious utterance of Bro. Terry commands and deserves attention.

In the interesting report, given in your issue of the 28th ult., of the consecration of the Kennington Chapter (vide Freemason, vol. XI., page 60r). Bro. Terry is reported to have made a statement which ought to be printed in letters of gold and be placed in the hands of every brother throughout the length and breadth of the land. The statement was as follows:—"If every Mason gave five shillings a year to each Institution, the Institutions would never require a festival or an election, as they would be able to meet every demand made upon them."

Consider, for one moment, what this short sentence implies. Five shillings to each Institution means fifteen shillings a year—in other words, one half-penny per day!

Can it be supposed that anyone among us is unable to afford this trifle? If so, I venture to think that it would be well for himself, as also for his family, if he withdrew from our Order.

Bro. Terry tells us that, if every member of the Craft made this small contribution, no festivals would be required. Now it will, I think, be universally admitted that we can well dispense with the festivals, provided the object of them (raising funds) be attained by other means.

The festivals entail a vast amount of labour to the several Secretaries; to a certain extent they bring, I fear, discredit to the Craft, as the outside world naturally imagines the £10,000 or £12,000 collected is in some way or other due to the festivity, than which a greater error cannot exist, the fact being that the Stewards' lists are made up and handed in before the banquet. Therefore, if the income of the Institutions be otherwise secured, the abolition of the festivals will be a loss to no one excepting to the tavern-keeper.

But it is Bro. Terry's second point to which I would especially draw attention. Fifteen shillings a year from every Mason would obviate the necessity of elections!

What does this not mean?

A brother dies—his widow, in straitened circumstances, seeks the election of her child to one of our Schools—or, a poor widow is a candidate for the Benevolent Institution. How many weary journeys do they take? How many ill-afforded postage stamps do they employ? How many anxious hours do they spend in their endeavour to secure the election?

If all this can be avoided, by so small a sacrifice from each of us, surely it ought to be done; and if Bro. Terry's speech be the means of accomplishing it, he will gain the gratitude of hundreds of present and future applicants for the benefits of our noble Institutions.

Bro. Terry has touched upon a weak point in our system. We need only look at the several lists of subscribers to see that the Institutions are supported by a comparatively few. What is wanted is not only the guineas of the few, but the crowns from all. Let it be remembered that "unity is strength," and every Mason should feel it a duty incumbent upon him to make, at least, a small annual contribution to each of the Institutions. If the whole Craft were to co-operate as Bro. Terry suggests, the lists of the subscribers would form three portly volumes.

In concluding this letter (for the length of which I apologize) I venture to hope that means may be devised for bringing this subject prominently before every lodge under the English Constitution. If every W.M. were to use his influence how much might be done!

Faithfully and fraternally yours,
P.M. OF A LONDON LODGE.

FREEMASONRY IN SOUTH AFRICA.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In my correspondence to you by last mail I promised to acquaint you with the result of the meeting of the members of the "Peace and Harmony," working under the G.E. of the Netherlands, regarding the contemplated introduction of new rituals for the Symbolic Degree, which make a "clean sweep" from the lodges of the Bible and immortality of the soul. After a long discussion, which lasted two evenings, in which the W.M., all the P.M.'s, and prominent members took part, it was unanimously decided to reject the rituals in toto, and that notice thereof be immediately sent to the Prov. G. Lodge in Cape Town. Should the G.E. insist upon the removal of these landmarks, the "Peace and Harmony" will return its warrant of constitution.

Yours fraternally,

A NATIONAL MEMORIAL TO THE PRINCESS ALICE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

All that is best and noblest in our nature has been stirred to its very depths by the death of the Princess Alice, so devoted as a daughter, a wife, a mother. By every means that could be devised, the nation has sought to prove its respect, its esteem, its love for that pure, noble, self-sacrificing life that has just passed into the world where "the weary are at rest;" has endeavoured, too, by its respectful sympathy, to soften the bereavement that has fallen upon the Royal Mother, whose wise counsels and careful training have moulded such a daughter.

Let us, sir, by a National Memorial to the Princess Alice, perpetuate the name of this Royal lady, this peerless woman.

I feel convinced that this suggestion—which I have offered to several journals—needs only to be made in order to be eagerly adopted by all creeds, all parties, all classes, not only in this country, but throughout our great empire.

Believe me to be, yours fraternally,

J. KINGSTON, LL.D.,

FREEMASONRY IN CEYLON.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Ceylon held a meeting on the 14th November, at the New Freemasons' Hall, Colombo. Present, R. W. Capt. Gorman, P.G.M.; R. W. Bro. J. Maitland, D.P.G.M.; V.W. Bro. Symons, P.G.S.W. V.W. Bro. Bailey, P.G.J.W.; V.W. Bro. Greig, P.G.T.; V.W. Bro. Guthrie, P.G.S.; W. Bro. Joseph, P.G.S.D.; W. Bro. Tilly, P.G.J.D.; W. Bro. Ohlmus, (acting) P.G.J.G.; W. Bro. Hegarty, P.G.D.C.; and the following brethren, Van Dort, S.W. 107; H. Robertson, J.W. 107; Hudson, S.W.; Watson, J.W. 115; Thwaites, S.W.; Willistord, J.W. 112; Home, P.M.; and Cantrell, W.M. 115. The P.G.M. announced that the first business before the meeting was the election of officers for the ensuing year. Considering the short time that the Provincial Grand Lodge had been in existence, and the necessarily limited opportunity that had been afforded of judging of the working, it was suggested that the same officers should be re-elected for next year. This proposal was so much in harmony with the wishes of the brethren, that it was carried by acclamation, and thus all the office-bearers of the present year remain in statu quo.

The next business was that most tedious but important one, the consideration of bye-laws, which, of course, necessitated a lengthy sitting and protracted discussion, so that it was late before the meeting broke up, having happily concluded the whole matter.

The Leinster Lodge, (No. 115, I.C.), met on the 16th November, in the New Masonic Hall, when a large number (for Ceylon) of brethren were present. After balloting for Mr. James Smith for initiation, and Bro. E. C. Davies for affiliation, the W.M. raised Bro. Hassenauer to the high and sublime degree of M.M. The next business was the election of officers, and the result of the ballot was as follows: W. Bro. Cantrell, W.M. (re-elected); Bro. Watson, S.W.; Bro. S. Davis, J.W.; W. Bro. J. Guthrie, P.M., Sec. and Treasurer; Bro. H. S. Campbell, S.D.; Bro. D. Macmillan, J.D.; Bro. E. C. Davies, I.G.; and Bro. Hudson, D.C., and Hassenauer, Steward. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren departed. The office of Tyler was left vacant, there being some difficulty in selecting a brother for this duty. After the election the lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquetting room where W. Bro. J. Maitland, P.D.G.M. 30, in eloquent words, proposed the health of the W.M. elect, congratulating the lodge on its choice, which he was convinced would prove a wise one. The healths of the other officers elect were successively proposed and drunk with enthusiasm, and the brethren separated in peace, love, and harmony.

FREEMASONRY IN COLOMBO.

The Sphinx Lodge, (No. 107, I.C.), met at a stated communication on Friday, 8th November, at the New Freemasons' Hall, for the purpose of electing the Master and officers for the ensuing year. The result of the ballot was that most of the present officers moved up in regular rotation, a gratifying proof, as was remarked at the time, of the confidence placed in them by the members of the lodge. The following are the officers elect for the year 1879:—Bros. J. L. K. Van Dort, W.M.; H. Robertson, S.W.; J. W. Ebert, J.W.; and P. F. Ohlmus, Secretary; W. Bro. John Guthrie, P.M., Treasurer; Bros. O. G. Joseph, S.D.; J. W. Vanderstraaten, J.D.; and E. F. Perera, I.G.; W. Bro. J. G. L. Ohlmus (present W.M.), J.P.M.; W. Bro. A. O. Joseph, P.M., Director of Ceremonies.

FREEMASONRY IN LIBERIA.

The following prospectus has been forwarded to us for publication:—

"A Masonic Hall and a Masonic Hospital in the town of Edina:

"In order to promote some usefulness and good among and for all men of our institution, we propose, in connection with our contemplated Masonic Hall, to erect a Masonic Hospital upon the same grounds for the care of all indigent sick and afflicted brother Masons, their wives and little children that may arrive at this place from any part of the world, and need the care and nursing of friends. This building we propose to locate on the end of an acre of land in the town of Edina, and on the opposite end will be erected the Masonic Hall, the whole constituting and to be known as Masonic-square. The dimensions of the hospital is proposed to be as follows:—60 feet long, 40 feet wide, situated on a 4-feet rock foundation, and 3 stories high of brick, each story 10 feet; to be in every respect adapted for the comfort of the sick. In order to accomplish this great end, about 20,000 dollars, or £4,000 is necessary. We, therefore, solicit your aid in such amounts as you may feel justified in contributing to so good a cause.

"Contributions will be cheerfully received in London through Bro. George Kenning; and in Liverpool through Bro. James W. Shaw.

A NOBLE MASONIC EXAMPLE.

On account of the great distress at present prevailing in Bootle, near Liverpool, the brethren of Bootle Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1473 (of which Bro. Duncan is the present W.M.), have resolved not to hold the annual Masonic ball this year, but have decided to subscribe with the view of giving needed help to the starving poor. Bro. Councillor S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B., Treasurer of the Bootle Lodge, had already received about £30 towards the end of last week as the result of a few days' efforts, and it is fully expected that upwards of £50 will be raised by the Freemasons of Bootle for the relief of the distressed, without reference to glass or creed. The total will be handed to Bro. J. Newell, the Mayor of Bootle, to augment the General Relief Fund. The example thus set is worthy of general imitation in these trying times.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The annual Twelfth Night Entertainment to the pupils of this Institution, who, to the number of forty-two, have not gone home for the holidays, will be given on Monday evening. The entertainment this year will be different to that of former years, the celebrated Eickwick Historic Club having been engaged to perform. The programme, with which we have been favoured, gives Mr. Craven's domestic drama of "The Chimney Corner," "A Musical Olio," and Morton's farce of "Whitebait at Greenwich."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The pupils of this Institution remaining at the school during the Christmas holidays visited the Alexandra Palace on New Year's day, and witnessed the performance of the pantomime as well as the amusements in the Circus and the other entertainments. Thirty-four of the boys have spent their Christmas in the Institution, where they will have an evening's entertainment next Wednesday, consisting of lecture, dissolving-views, comic pictures, and

MARRIAGE OF THE EARL OF CARNARVON.

On Monday last the marriage of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon and Miss Elizabeth Catherine Howard, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Howard, of Greystoke Castle, was celebrated at St. Andrew's Church, Greystoke, Cumberland. A large family party had met at Greystoke Castle for the wedding, which excited much interest in that part of Cumberland where the bride and her family are so well known and respected for their benevolence. From the Castle to the church, about a mile distant, several arches, composed of evergreens and decorated with flags, were erected, bearing mottoes expressive of the joyous feelings of the inhabitants; among others, "Every blessing attend thee, Elsie," "God bless the happy pair," "Look to the Houses of Howard and Herbert," "Canny auld Cumberland wishes them weel," and others. The pathway from the carriage road to the church was covered by an awning and carpeted with crimson cloth, as was also the aisle of the church. The fine old collegiate church of Greystoke was handsomely decorated. The wedding party came from the Castle at half-past eleven o'clock, the Earl of Carnarvon, who was attended by the Hon. Alan Herbert, his brother, arriving just before the bride, who was received by her brother, Mr. H. Howard, on her arrival, and at once proceeded to the Communion table, attended by four bridesmaids, namely, Miss Maud Howard, her sister; Lady Camilla Wallop, niece of the bridegroom; Miss Macan, cousin of the bride; and Lady Caroline McDonnell. The bride's dress was of ivory white satin trimmed with Brussels point lace; a wreath of orange blossoms and myrtle, covered by a tulle veil. Her jewels were a diamond necklace and bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom, and a gold and diamond locket, the gift of the tenants at Greystoke. The bridesmaids' dresses were of pale pink cashmere, trimmed with dark ruby satin, ruby satin hats turned up with velvet to match, and pink feathers. Each lady wore a gold bracelet set with pearls and lapis lazuli, Lord Carnarvon's gift. The marriage was solemnised by the Rev. Norman Ogilvy, M.A., Rector of Hanbury-near-Bromsgrove, assisted by the Rev. Edmund Askew, B.A., Rector of Greystoke. The bride was given away by her brother. The ceremony concluded, the wedding party returned to Greystoke Castle to breakfast. The déjeuner was served in the great hall of the Castle, which has been recently restored after the fire which partially destroyed the Castle a few years ago. Among the relatives and friends who met on the happy occasion were Mr. and Lady Mabel Howard, Mrs. Howard and Miss Maud Howard, Mr. Stafford and Lady Rachel Howard, Lady Gwendolen Herbert and Hon. Alan Herbert, Lord Porchester and Lady Winifred Herbert, Lady Camilla Wallop, Lady Caroline McDonnell, Sir John Ogilvy, Sir Richard and Lady Musgrave, Sir Wilfrid and Lady Lawson, General and Mrs. Brougham, Colonel and Mrs. Wybergh, Captain and Mrs. Markham, Mr. Howard and Mrs. Howard of Corby, Mr. Mowbray Howard, Mr. Esme Howard, Miss Macan, the Rev. Edmund and Mrs. Askew, Mr. Tompaine Buller, Mr. and Mrs. C. Fetherstonbaugh, Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Mr. Senhouse, Miss Hayell, and others. Early in the afternoon the Earl and Countess of Carnarvon left the Castle for his lordship's residence in Bruton-street, Berkeley-square, on their way to Pixton Park, Somersetshire. Her ladyship's travelling dress was of dove-coloured cashmere, with jacket and muff trimmed with fur to match, and plush hat and feathers to correspond.—Daily Telegraph.

MASONIC BENEVOLENCE IN 1878.

During the year 1878 the income of the three Masonic Charitable Institutions from donations, subscriptions, and all other sources, amounted to £40,312 4s. 3d. Out of this sum the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution obtained the largest amount—namely, £14,880 2s. 7d., for the second year in succession heading the list. The Royal Masonic Institution for Girls took the second place with £12,866 1s. 8d., while the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys took the third place with £12,566. The total amount for the three institutions for 1878 was about £4,000 less than was contributed in 1877, but it was very much larger than was expected, when at the beginning of the year public charity was extensively diverted to other channels. The Masonic body, however, although giving liberally to non-Masonic appeals, strongly supported their own charities, which in 1878 only fell short by £2,000 of the most successful year on record, 1872. The Benevolent Institution has between 300 and 400 applicants on its books; the Boys' School maintains, and educates about 220 boys; and the Girls' School over 200 girls. In the year 1878 the Lodge of Benevolence, connected with Grand Lodge, contributed £4,984 to distressed Freemasons, and the widows and orphans of deceased members. This lodge meets every month. The largest amount dispensed at any one meeting in 1878 was at the December meeting, when £765 was granted, and the smallest at the August meeting, when the sum voted was £203. The Fund of Benevolence now amounts to some £45,000, and it has for some years been a proposition of Mr. J. M. Clabon that a portion of the annual surplus should be set apart towards apprenticing or otherwise advancing in life the children when they leave the schools.—Times.

Bro. J. C. Dwarber, P.M. 55 and 1589, has been elected, by a large majority, Guardian of the Poor for the Ward of Farringdon Without. The funeral of Bro. John Boyd takes place at Brompton Cemetery this (Saturday) afternoon at 2 o'clock. The following reports have been received, but unavoidably stand over, 1002, 1051, 1536, 1609.

GRAND MASONIC ENTERTAINMENT IN LIVERPOOL.

The vitality of Freemasonry in the province of West Lancashire, (notwithstanding the silly sneers and ignorant denunciations of those who know little about the Order) was most significantly shown on Friday evening, the 20th ult., at the Royal Amphitheatre, Liverpool, where an entertainment of a novel and singularly attractive nature, almost without a parallel in the history of dramatic performances, was given by the members of the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, in aid of the Masonic Hall Fund of No. 1609. The whole of the arrangements which were of the most elaborate kind, were entirely carried out under the direction of the members of this lodge, which has deservedly secured a prominent place in the Masonic roll of West Lancashire.

It may be explained that since its erection the principal rooms of the Masonic Hall in Hope-street, solely devoted to Masonic purposes, have remained without any permanent decoration, and the object of the performance on this occasion was to secure sufficient funds to decorate and furnish the banqueting room in an effective manner. The enterprising spirit thus displayed by the brethren of the Dramatic Lodge elicited the admiration and cordial support of the brethren in every lodge in this district, and the immense gathering at the Amphitheatre on Friday, the 20th ult., not only demonstrated that Masonry is something more than the mere fiction which ignorant person, delight to call it, but will certainly result in enabling this Dramatic Lodge to carry out their excellent intention to the full extent.

The performance was under the patronage of his Worship the Mayor of Liverpool (Mr. T. B. Royden), Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M. of England and Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire; and his Worship the Mayor of Bootle (Bro. J. Newell), Bros. Alderman J. G. Livingston, E. Samuelson, J. Pearson, A. Boyd, and Sir A. B. Walker, Knight; Bros. Councillors J. A. Forrest, G. Fowler, G. Peet, E. Grindley, T. H. Sheen, and W. J. Lunt, the P.G. Officers Past and Present, and the W.Ms. and P.Ms., Wardens, and brethren of West Lancashire and other provinces. So great was the demand for seats at extra prices that seven rows of orchestra stalls had to be provided; the dress circle was fully booked a fortnight ago, and, as the tickets for all the other parts of the theatre sold well, the audience was one of the most brilliant and crowded which has been seen for a long time, even with the dense fog which prevailed.

The free use of the theatre was generously given by Bros. Leslie and Courtenay, the lessees, the latter of whom is the W.M. of the Dramatic Lodge for the current year. The programme furnished was about as attractive as could be conceived, and all the arrangements both before and behind the curtain were most complete and admirable. By permission of Mr. Tom Taylor, the ever-welcome comedy "Still Waters Run Deep" was the chief dramatic item of the bill, the different male characters being principally represented by members of the lodge, assisted con amore by ladies whose husbands are both worthy Masons. Miss Rachel Sanger (wife of Bro. J. C. Scranlan, of Lodge 1609), travelled all the way from London for the special purpose of giving her valuable help on the occasion, and the splendid manner in which she played Mrs. Mildmay elicited frequent and hearty applause from every part of the crowded house.

Mrs. Lindo Courtenay (wife of the W.M. of the Dramatic Lodge), also most kindly gave her services, appearing as Mrs. Hector Sternhold, whom she represented with telling spirit.

Bro. John Dewhurst, belonging to a Southport Lodge, who also gave his services, very pointedly hit his mark as the Still-water, Mildmay, and Bro. Lindo Courtenay, W.M. proved to demonstration that he is an actor of a very high order by his representation of the amorous and unprincipled Hawkesley. Bro. Frank Emery, J.D. 1609, gave a portrait of Mr. Potter, which, while free from exaggeration, was singularly forcible, artistic and intelligent. Dunbilk was played with remarkable raciness by Bro. R. J. Roberts, 1609, and minor parts were well filled by Bro. Constantine I.P.M. (Gimlet), Bro. H. P. Squire, J.S. (Mr. Markham), Bro. C. Courtenay, 1609 (Mr. Langford), Bro. J. Pyer, I.G. (Richwood), Bro. J. A. Mercer, 1609 (Jessop), and Bro. Henry Leslie, 1609 (aide to Captain Hawkesley). The comedy was staged with exquisite taste, and calls were given to the chiefs in the cast at the close of each act. The stage management was under the able direction of Bro. J. A. Mercer. A vocal and dramatic entertainment, in connection with which an almost unequalled array of talent was brought into requisition, under the able and skilled management of Bro. D. Saunders, 1609, followed the comedy, and this was as thoroughly appreciated as any section of the performance.

A specially written Masonic overture, composed and conducted by Bro. H. Round, a work of much merit, was capably played by the excellent orchestra, chiefly composed of brethren, and gave additional value to the evening's entertainment. Mrs. F. R. Phillips opened the second section of the entertainment with much effect, and the others who appeared during the evening were Bro. J. Bushfield, 216; Miss L. Price; Bro. J. Hill, 1609; Mr. and Mrs. Charles; Bro. E. Saker, 1609; Bro. H. Walsham; Bro. H. Gill, 2086; Bro. Walton, 1609; Bro. Hemming; Bro. J. Webster Williams, 1609; Bro. W. J. Ashcroft (who came from Manchester for the purpose of assisting, with his usual success), and Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O. (accompanyist). The National Anthem and "God Bless the Prince of Wales" were sung at the close with an enthusiasm which clearly showed the essence of Masonry is loyalty, the solos being given by Bro. Webster Williams, whom the public must be glad to welcome back to Liverpool in connection with the Hague Minstrels. The success of the performance is largely attributable to Bro.

J. Atkinson, 1609, the Honorary Secretary, and Bro. P. Lownes, 1609, the Honorary Treasurer; while all the officers and the principal members of the Lodge contributed their services most willingly to secure complete success. An efficient band of stewards did their best to contribute to the comfort of the patrons of the Masonic entertainment, and they wore elegant badges.

The theatre was performed with Rimmell's Patent Va-pouriser, supplied by the eminent photographers Bros. Brown, Barnes, and Bell, all connected with the Dramatic Lodge, and an admirable Shakespearean programme was also got up by them for the occasion.

BRO. HUGHAN'S NEW WORK.

Bro. Hughan's new work, "A Numismatical and Numerical Register of the United Grand Lodge of England," is now printing, and may be expected early in the new year. It will be handsomely printed and illustrated, and be the best of the books he has brought out for the benefit of the Craft, as well as the most valuable, Masonically.

It is to be dedicated to the R.W. Bro. Sir Albert W. Woods, (Garter) G.D.C. of England, especially as the heraldic part of the work has been partly prepared under the superintendence of that worthy brother. The frontispiece will consist of the Arms of the Grand Lodge of England, beautifully lithographed in appropriate colours, and the other plates will comprise drawings of several important medals, such as the Royal medals of the "Anti-queen," and "Prince of Wales" Lodges, the Freemasons' Hall medal of 1780, the Charity, Inauguration, and Royal Installation medals, special jewels of the "Grand Master's" "Royal Somerset House and Inverness," "Westminster and Keystone," "Royal Alpha," "Royal York of Perseverance," &c., Lodges, also particulars of many other lodges, lists of Centenary Lodges, Roll of "Union" Lodges, &c. Intending subscribers should remit at once, half-a-guinea for each copy, direct to the author Bro. W. J. Hughan, Truro, as after publication this cost will be twelve and sixpence.

THE FORTHCOMING EXHIBITION OF THE DUBLIN ROYAL ACADEMY.

The exhibition of the present year, we are informed, promises to be a brilliant one, and we have fortunately been allowed a private view of some of the pictures that are going from England.

Amongst them we cannot refrain from noticing three works of a rising young artist—Mr. William Bennett, jun.—who has adopted, as his abode, one of the most beautiful spots in Surrey, and therefore in all England, Caterham Valley.

The pictures to which we refer are beautifully executed in water-colours, and are respectively:—"May in the Surrey Laues," a view near Wurlingham, an exquisite piece of rural scenery in Spring; "The Day before the In-gathering," an old gateway opening upon a cornfield at Tilling-down, a lovely Autumn picture, which we are glad but not surprised to see, bears the magic word "Sold;" and "The Coming October," a finely executed Summer view of a hop-garden, with Godstone in the middle distance, and the downs beyond. All are contiguous to the charming valley we have mentioned. The artist kindly showed us other works in progress for the Dudley Gallery, the Royal Academy, and the Bristol exhibition, all of which we hope to speak of in due course. All who have seen this artist's pictures at the Crystal Palace and other galleries, will gladly welcome his works again wherever and whenever they may be exhibited.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday afternoon, the 26th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creation, V.P. and Trustee, presided. There were also present Bros. Thos. F. Peacock, Arthur E. Gladwell, John Faulkner, L. H. Webb, C. Harcourt, Griffiths Smith, Thos. W. White, R. B. Webster, H. A. Dobois, E. H. Finney, S. Rawson, Thomas J. White, F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary; and M. Massey (Freemason). The House Committee minutes, which were read for information, recorded that notices had been served by the Brighton Railway of their intention to apply for a bill next session, which would require a portion of the grounds of the Masonic Girls' School, to be taken for the new works to be carried out if that bill was successful. These minutes also notified the steps that had been taken with regard to the cookery class which had been established at the School. It was also recorded that the Pickwick Historic Club had been engaged to give a dramatic entertainment at the Twelfth Night treat to the children remaining at the School during the Christmas holidays.

Six petitions were received, and the candidates placed on the list for next election in April. Eighteen vacancies were declared for that election, for which there are forty-eight candidates.

The Committee then adjourned.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This purifying and regulating Medicine should occasionally be had recourse to during foggy, cold, and wet weather. These Pills are the best preventive of hoarseness, sore throat, pleurisy, and asthma, and are sure remedies for congestion, bronchitis, and inflammation. A moderate attention to the directions folded round each box will enable every invalid to take the pills in the most advantageous manner; they will there be taught the proper doses, and the circumstances under which they must be increased or diminished. Holloway's Pills act as alteratives, aperients, and tonics. Whenever these Pills have been taken as the last resource, the result has always been gratifying. Even when they fail to cure, they always assuage the severity of the symptoms and diminish the danger.—[Adv't.]

Masonic and General Tidings.

Bro. George Kenning has, following the spirit of the times, published a Christmas number of his excellent Masonic Magazine, which contains quite a large collection of literary attractions. Chief amongst these, especially to the brethren of West Lancashire, will be found a capital portrait of Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., of this division; and the picture is enhanced by a carefully written biographical sketch of his lordship. Mr. Anthony Trollope contributes a story called "Catherine Carmichael," which shows the author's unabated literary power; and amongst the other contributors are the editor, Rev. M. Gordon, Rev. W. Tebbs, Bro. Emra Holmes, Mrs. Tweddell, &c. The contents are exceedingly varied in their character, and, as the number is most attractively got up, Bro. Kenning ought to "score a success."—Liverpool Mercury.

The annual installation meeting of the Walton Lodge (No. 1086), was held on New Year's Day, at the Skelmersdale Masonic Hall, Westminster-road, Kirkdale, Liverpool, when Bro. G. J. Townsend, W.M., was again placed in the chair for the second consecutive year. A full report of the proceedings will be given in our next issue.

The annual ball given jointly by the Carnarvon Lodge (No. 1572), and the Mizpah Lodge (No. 1671), will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on the evening of the 7th of February. The committee will be pleased to have the company of brethren from other lodges. Application for tickets—ladies, 15s.; gentlemen, 17s. 6d.; or double ticket for lady and gentleman, 30s.—should be made to the committee through Bro. Nelson Reed, hon. sec., St. Helen's Lodge, Lee, S.E.

The marriage of the Duke of Connaught will, it is understood, take place at Windsor Castle on the 13th of March, the ceremony, originally fixed for February, having been postponed a month in consequence of the death of the Princess Alice (Grand Duchess of Hesse). The preparations commenced at the Castle for the nuptials are at present in abeyance, but it is expected that these will be completed previous to the return of her Majesty from the Isle of Wight.

Bro. Herbert Rymill, of the Barbican Repository, has, according to the City Press, made his customary distribution of coals and other gifts to the poor in the neighbourhood of Barbican.

The Baroness Burdett-Coutts has received kind messages from the Queen and the Empress Eugenie, and an autograph letter from the King of the Belgians, expressing their sympathy with her in the loss of her much loved and valued friend, Mrs. Hannah Brown.

Bro. John Derby Allcroft, M.P., P.M. Lodge 1657, has forwarded £125 for distribution among his former workmen at Messrs. Dent and Co.'s Worcester factory, in consideration of their loss of time during the Christmas holidays and the annual stocktaking.

The directors of the London General Omnibus Company (Limited) are desirous of receiving tenders for lighting their omnibuses for three years from February 1st.

Bro. H. B. Marshall has forwarded to the Lord Mayor a donation of ten guineas for the Surgical Aid Society.

His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief will hold a levee at one o'clock on Wednesday, Jan. 8, at the Horse Guards, Whitehall, the number being limited to 158.

With the expiration of the year 1878 the custom of awarding good conduct gratuities to soldiers has been abolished.

The funeral of the late Bro. Colonel Duff, member for North Norfolk, Prov. Grand Superintendent designate for Norfolk, took place on Tuesday last, at Westwick, Norfolk, and was attended by Lord Rendlesham, M.P., Lord Tollemache, Lord Suffield, Sir E. Lacon, M.P., Sir Robert Buxton, M.P., Mr. Clare Sewell Read, M.P., the Hon. Harbord Harbord, and hundreds of gentlemen from distant parts of the county.

A supper and entertainment to the employes of Bro. J. H. Spencer, proprietor of the Bridge House Hotel, London-bridge, took place on Tuesday evening at that establishment. Mr. John Hainsworth occupied the chair. After the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, the Chairman gave, "The Health of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer," wishing them in every sense a prosperous new year. The toast was drunk with much applause, and Bro. Spencer replied, wishing all present "the complements of the season." At the conclusion of the supper, the remainder of the evening—which was a thoroughly enjoyable one—was spent in dancing.

At a recent meeting of the Town Council of Leeds it was resolved to purchase Hunslet Moor from the lords of the manor for the purposes of a recreation ground for the people.

The Worshipful Company of Merchant Taylors have granted a donation of twenty guineas to the North-West Hospital for Diseases of Women and Children, Kentish Town-road, N.W.

VEGETABLES ALL THE YEAR ROUND.—It should be the aim of everyone to grow their own vegetables. It is true economy besides being a pleasure. To do so is very simple and the greatest novice may soon be a good gardener, by purchasing "Sutton's Amateurs' Guide in Horticulture," the most practical work on gardening yet published. It should be read by everyone who has a garden, and may be had post free from Messrs. Sutton and Sons, the Queen's Seedsmen, Reading, for 15 stamps, or for 11. at all Railway Bookstalls.

J.W.; Thos. Grime, J.D.; Arthur Peake, I.G.; John Armstrong, P.M., Treasurer; John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.J.W. Cumberland and Westmoreland, Hon. Sec.; John Harding, P.M.; S. E. Johnson, Charles Skinner, F. Walter, Thos. Jones, Dr. Mackie, Dr. Joseph, Thos. Morris, Christoph. Ekkert, R. W. Francomb, W. Burn, Domville, Tyler. Among the visitors we noticed, Bros. J. S. Crapper, P.M., Prov. G.A.D.C., Staffordshire; D. W. Finney, W.M. 1250; Prov. G. Steward, Jas. Kenworthy, J.D. 1565; D. Gabrielson, 1502; Morris Flatau, 1502; Charles Petty, 477; J. H. Evans, W.M. 1565; J. H. Wilson, 384; J. H. Galloway, Treas. 1250; and others. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer, when the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The W.M. then announced the receipt of a letter of request from Bro. S. Schonstadt, W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, to pass Bro. M. Flatau, of Hamburg, to the degree of a F.C. Bro. Sec. having read the communication from the W.M. and Sec. of 1502, and Bro. Flatau having proved his claim to preferment, was entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Flatau re-admitted and passed by the W.M., assisted by Bro. D. W. Finney, W.M. 1250. The chair of K.S. was now assumed by Bro. Bowes at the request of the W.M., who presented his successor, Bro. John Rymer Young, S.W., W.M. elect, for the benefit of installation. The presentation was duly attended to, and the first part of the ceremony being completed the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when Bros. Past Masters Armstrong and Finney were placed respectively in the West and South. All below the degree of Installed Masters having retired, the W.M. elect was entrusted and retired. A Board of Installed Masters was then opened in ample form, not "declared" as the manner of some is, the W.M. elect admitted and placed in the chair of K.S. according to the ancient custom. Having been saluted, proclaimed and greeted in the usual form, the W.M. requested the Installing Master to call off for a brief space, and during this interval the "cement" was judiciously applied, and then labour was resumed. The Board having been closed, the brethren in the several degrees were re-admitted, and the W.M. saluted, proclaimed, and greeted in each degree. The Installing Master requested Bro. Crapper to deliver and explain the working tools, which he did in a most able manner. The W.M. invested the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year, viz.: Bros. Joseph Pickthall, I.P.M.; C. E. Hindley, S.W.; A. H. Young, J.W.; Jno. Armstrong, P.M., Treas.; John Bowes, P.M. &c., Sec.; James Paterson, S.D.; Thos. Grime, J.D.; Thos. M. Pattison, Org.; Arthur Peake, I.G.; and Thos. Domville, Tyler. Bro. Bowes having addressed each of the officers with respect to the teaching of their emblems of office, situation, and duty, then delivered the ancient charges to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren. The Auditors' report was then read, which showed that after a very expensive year there was in the hands of the Treasurer a balance of nearly £70. The W.M. then said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, namely, to present to Bro. Joseph Pickthall, I.P.M., a handsome gold Past Master's jewel, on behalf of the lodge. The inscription on the back of the jewel so fully expressed the feelings that prompted the presentation that he would add nothing to it, and concluded by placing the jewel on Bro. Pickthall's breast. Bro. Pickthall, who was evidently much moved by this token of esteem, said: "Worshipful Master, Past-Masters, officers, and brethren all, the presentation of this beautiful jewel, which has been awarded to me by you, conveys along with it a value of far greater worth than any words of mine can express. You must bear with me if words fail to express all I feel at the present moment, as nothing is more embarrassing than to return thanks in suitable terms. This much I must say, that in accepting this jewel, I bear with me into the future a trophy of brotherly love. I never can forget your kind regard, and never can I look upon this jewel without the happy feeling again springing up, which now well-nigh overpowered me. The "esteem" which you say it conveys specially merits my warmest thanks; I am proud of such regard, and to my dying day the association with the brethren of the Lodge of Lights, No. 148, will be remembered by me as among the happiest days of my existence. With regard to any worth of mine, as late Worshipful Master of this lodge. I cannot lay any claim to, for whatever responsibilities are attached to that high office, such responsibilities have been shared in by my Wardens and other officers, by them my year of office has been made pleasant, and the duties of Worshipful Master considerably lightened by their knowledge of the ritual, their general urbanity of manner, and strictly regular attendance at lodge. Allow me here to tender my best thanks to each of them, and also to each of you, my brethren, for the respect you ever manifest to the Worshipful Master of our lodge, and without unnecessarily trespassing on your time, allow me a further indulgence in expressing a hope that the same harmony which characterised my year of office may be extended to you, sir, our worthy brother, and now Worshipful Master of this lodge—John Rymer Young. With my precious jewel I now retire and join the rank of Past Masters, where, with them, I trust I may be more useful than during the limited period of my office experience. To be associated with Masonry, we all know, is a privilege only appreciated by Masons. The sacred tie which binds us all in one common brotherhood, is but a type of the Grand Lodge above, and to be gathered there as one family with the G.A.O.T.U. is the aspiration of every true and loyal Mason. Brethren, I thank you all again and again, and may the Lodge of Lights ever continue to be united, prosperous, and happy, and God be with us all." A gentleman having been proposed as a fit and proper person, and some routine business having been transacted, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Lion Hotel for the banquet. This was served in excellent style by mine host, Bro. Speakman. Grace after meat having been said, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a most enjoyable evening was enlivened by the musical talent of Bros. Crapper, Petty, Francomb, Skinner, and Ekkert.

BRIXHAM.—True Love and Unity Lodge (No. 248).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, 3rd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Brixham. Bro. W. C. Gregory, the W.M. elect, was installed by W. Bro. J. McLean, P.M.; supported by the following Board of I.Ms.:—W. Bros. S. Colstone, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Johnson, J. Howard, H. Brown, P.M.; and J. Hammick. The following officers were invested and appointed:—Bros. J. Hammick, I.P.M.; H. Cowell, S.W.; G. Searle, J.W.; W. Woolley, Treasurer; J. Cranford, Secretary; E. Barter, S.D.; R. Stevens, J.D.; C. Janes, I.G.; and S. Clarke, Tyler. The brethren dined at the Bolton Hotel.

YORK.—York Lodge (No. 236).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 6th inst. Bro. A. Buckle, the W.M., presiding, and working the ceremony of the Third Degree. A vote of condolence with the family of the late Bro. Bryan Wormald, was moved by Bro. J. Todd, P.M. and Treas., seconded by Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M., and passed unanimously. A vote of thanks, moved by Bro. T. S. Camidge, P.P.S.O., to Bro. W. B. Richardson, P.M., through whose liberality principally it was that the lodge organ was now in its efficient condition.

ROCHDALE.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 298).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Ann-street, at three o'clock on New Year's Day. The W.M., Bro. Hudson, was supported by Bros. R. R. Grey, S.W., W.M. elect; Dodds, J.W., W. Roberts, P.M., P. Prov. G.P.; Holdroyd, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B., W. Yorks; Butterworth, P.M., P. Prov. G.A.P.; Green, S.D.; Turner, J.D.; Parker, I.G.; Matley, Sec.; Taylor and Collingwood, Stewards; Hoyle; Duckworth and Fielden, visitors; Bros. John Bowes, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.W., Cumberland and Westmoreland; Schofield, W.M., 367; Fletcher, W.M., 1129; and Schuler. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the W.M. invited Bro. John Bowes to take the chair as Installing Master. The W.M. elect was then presented and installed in the usual manner in a Board of Installed Masters duly opened in ample form. Bro. Roberts, P.M., &c., acted as Director of Ceremonies throughout. The W.M. appointed and invested as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Hudson, I.P.M.; Dodds, S.W.; Green, J.W.; Matley, Sec.; Turner, S.D.; Parker, J.D.; Taylor, I.G.; Collingwood, Steward, &c. The addresses to the various officers, as well as the charges to the W.M., Wardens, and members generally were all given by the Installing Master. At the conclusion of the interesting ceremony a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Bowes for his services that day. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. Bowes said it had afforded him very great pleasure to come to Rochdale to instal his old friend, Bro. R. R. Grey, the esteemed Head Master of their Grammar School, and if the manner in which he had worked the degree had met with their approval his pleasure was enhanced, and he was amply repaid for any little trouble and inconvenience he may have experienced in visiting them that day. The remainder of the business having been transacted, the lodge was closed, and the room transformed into a banqueting-hall. In the degree which followed, ample justice was done by all present, and the various loyal and Masonic toasts were very heartily considered, and a pleasant evening spent. We cannot close this brief notice of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 298, without congratulating the members on their possession of such a comfortable, well-furnished, and convenient lodge room, and also on their wisdom in electing a gentleman of position and education to fill the chair of the lodge. Our ritual always merits consideration at the hands of brethren of Bro. Grey's social position and attainments.

MANCHESTER.—Affability Lodge (No. 317).—This old and popular lodge held its annual St. John's Festival on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street. The brethren assembled at five o'clock p.m., and the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. D. Donbarand. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been ratified, and other routine business disposed of, the W.M. proceeded to instal his successor, Bro. J. R. Lever in the chair of K.S., the P.M.'s of the lodge ably assisting him. After the brethren had saluted and greeted the newly-installed W.M. in the Three Degrees, the following officers were invested by Bro. Lever, W.M., viz.:—Bros. Mark Vickers, S.W.; W. Nicholl, J.W.; John Church, Sec.; J. Tomlins, S.D.; J. Halliday, J.D.; Jas. Dawson (P.M.), Reg.; Jno. Bladon (P.M.), D.C.; Cunliffe, Org.; E. Cohen, I.G.; P. Holmes, W. Wilson, and R. Forshaw, Stewards. The Treasurer (Bro. Smethurst) was absent through ill-health. As is customary on this annual gathering, grants were voted for the Masonic Charities, and the lodge was closed in due form. In consequence of so many claims for charity (Masonic and otherwise) which are now presented to the brethren, it was decided to dispense with the usual banquet, and tea was substituted. The absence of the expensive luxuries did not, however, interfere with the enjoyment of the evening. Toasts, songs, and recitations were heartily given, and Bro. Bladon, P.M., collected a good round sum on behalf of the Aged Freemasons, which will be added to Bro. J. H. Sillitoe's Steward's list for the next festival.

BODMIN.—One and All Lodge (No. 330).—A meeting of this lodge was held on the 3rd inst., when W. Bro. W. Rowe, in an able and impressive manner, installed Bro. R. Adams as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The W.M. afterwards distributed the various collars as follows:—W. Bros. W. Rowe, I.P.M.; J. G. Vincent, S.W.; R. Vercoe, J.W.; J. Crang, P.G.S.D., Treasurer; W. Angwin, Secretary; J. Treverton, S.D.; S. Trevail, J.D.; T. Spear, D.C.; H. Jacobs, O.; B. G. Derry, and S. G. Bake, Stewards; J. Gatty, I.G.; and P. Carroll, Tyler. The banquet was afterwards held at Sandoe's Royal Hotel. In proposing the toast of "The Royal Family," the W.M. spoke of the recent bereavement which had befallen them in the death of the Princess Alice, a devoted wife and mother so suddenly taken from those for whom she had laboured so indefatigably and with such anxiety to restore to health. The toast was drunk in silence, as was also that of "The Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England."

OXFORD.—Alfred Lodge (No. 340).—The annual festival of this lodge was held on Friday, 27th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Alfred-street. The Worshipful Master (Bro. F. W. Ansell, P.P.G.S.W.) presided, and there was a large attendance of the brethren, including the Deputy Prov. Grand Master (Bro. R. Bird, M.A.), and the Masters of the Bertie, Bowyer (Chipping-Norton), and St. Mary's (Thame) Lodges. Opportunity was taken to present Bro. W. R. Hobbs, the retiring Secretary, with a testimonial from the brethren for his services for the past 25 years. In making the presentation the Worshipful Master spoke of the very efficient manner in which the duties of Secretary had been performed, and the length of time (a quarter of a century) during which they had had the benefit of Bro. Hobbs's services. The testimonial consisted of a handsome Masonic jewel and a purse. The jewel bore the following inscription:—"This jewel, with a purse containing fifty guineas, was presented to Bro. W. R. Hobbs by the brethren of the Alfred Lodge, No. 340, on St. John's Day, 1878, as a small token of esteem and appreciation of his services for a quarter of a century as Secretary." Bro. Hobbs expressed his thanks in suitable terms for the kind compliment paid to him, and assured the lodge that it was only increasing infirmities that induced him to relinquish the office, but he hoped to be with them as often as possible. Bro. James Jenkins, P.P.G.S.B., was then installed Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed in a very masterly manner by the retiring Worshipful Master. The new Worshipful Master appointed and invested his officers as follows:—F. W. Ansell, Immediate Past Master; F. Ryman Hall, Senior Warden; J. J. Hughes, Junior Warden; H. Houghton, Treasurer; P. M. W. G. Emberlin, Secretary; R. Payne, Assistant-Secretary; W. E. Knowles, Senior Deacon; J. M. Dornier, Junior Deacon; Senior Master of Ceremonies, A. Wheeler; Junior ditto, J. H. Robson; Organist, W. R. Bowden; Inner Guard, T. Eley; Stewards, E. Horn and S. Harris; Tyler, W. Stephens; Assistant-Tyler, G. Norwood. On the proposition of the Secretary (Bro. Emberlin), seconded by the Worshipful Master, it was resolved that a Past-Master's jewel should be presented at the next meeting to Bro. Ansell, in recognition of his services to the lodge. At the termination of the business, the anniversary banquet was held in the hall, the new Worshipful Master occupying the chair, and discharging the duties with much genial ability. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to, and several excellent speeches were delivered. About 40 brethren, including the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, sat down. The banquet, which was of a very recherché character, was well served, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

SWINDON.—Royal Sussex Lodge of Emulation (No. 355).—On Friday, the 27th ult., the annual festival of St. John was celebrated by the above lodge at the Masonic Hall, Victoria-street. A large number of brethren attended the lodge to take part in the installation of Bro. William Jenkins, the W.M. elect. The customary preliminary business having been gone through Bro. Jenkins was regularly installed in the chair of K.S.; and he then having invested the late W.M., Bro. J. Campbell Maclean, P.G.J.D., Wilts, as the I.P.M., the loving cup was passed round in a massive crystal goblet, handsomely engraved with Masonic devices, and the health of the newly-installed W.M. was duly honoured. The following brethren were next invested as the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year, viz.:—Bros. E. J. Hollings, as S.W.; J. Green, J.W.; H. Bevir, S.D.; J. Bryant, J.D.; Rev. A. Law, Chaplain; Geo. Whitehead, Organist; B. Colbron, I.G.; J. Savory, Tyler. The indefatigable Treasurer, W. Bro. John Chandler, P.G.D.C., Wilts, having been re-elected, and the likewise energetic Secretary, W. Bro. Joseph J. New, having been re-appointed, both zealous and experienced Past Masters, they were again invested with the badges of their respective offices. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by the late I.P.M., W. Bro. T. E. Liddiard, P.G.S.B. Wilts, who acted as the Installing Master. The meeting was well supported by the former Past Masters and officers of the lodge, amongst those present being W. Bros. John Toomer, P.S.G.W. Wilts; W. H. C. Tombs, P.G.D. England, and P.G. Sec. Wilts; W. W. Affleck, P.G.A.P., Wilts; W. E. R. Ing, P.P.S.G.W., Wilts; W. R. Bradford, P.P.G. Treas., Wilts; W. R. Tarrant, P.P.G.D.C., Wilts; W. Alf. Plummer, P.P.G.A.D.C., Wilts; W. J. Godwin, P.P.G.S.D., Wilts; and as visitors, the W.M. the I.P.M. and the Sec. of the Gooch Lodge, No. 1295; W. Wm. H. Ludgate, and Jos. Goudge, also F. C. Kent, S.W., and Thos. Turner, J.W.; W. J. C. Milbourne, P.D.J.G.W., Egypt. The brethren adjourned to the Goddard Arms, where about forty sat down to an excellent banquet, the newly-installed Master presiding. The first toast from the chair was received with the usual feelings of loyalty, the brethren singing "God save the Queen," and after the next to the M.W. Grand Master, that of "God bless the Prince of Wales;" the subsequent toasts being also duly given and responded to, and interspersed with some excellent songs, accompanied to music by the Organist, Bro. Whitehead, who presided at the pianoforte, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

HAYLE.—Cornubian Lodge (No. 451).—The annual meeting of this lodge took place on the 3rd inst. The W.M., Bro. William Husband, presided, and there was a good attendance, including W. Bros. H. S. Hill, W.M., No. 223, Plymouth; J. Jeffery, W.M., 318, Helston; John Thomas, P.G.S.B., 589; William Rowe, W.M., 1544; John Pool, J. P. Smith, P.P.G.D.; John Coombe, P.P.G.D.; F. Harvey, P.P.G.S.W.; N. J. West, P.P.G.R.; F. H. Pool, P.G.S.B.; William Huthnance, James Pool, and George Stevens. The W.M. elect, Bro. H. H. Trevithick, was installed by Bro. G. B. Pearce, and he invested and appointed the following officers:—Bros. W. Husband, I.P.M.; B. Spray, S.W.; Rev. G. Kennedy, J.W.; F. Harvey, Treasurer; N. J. West, Chaplain; J. P. Smith, Secretary; W. J. Jordan, S.D.; W. Bawden, J.D.; F. J. Vivian, I.G.; H. J. Warren, D.C.; and J. Bray, Tyler. Bro. John Coombe was appointed Steward of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund. The subject of a Williams' Memorial Fund was brought before the lodge by Bro. W. Husband previous to the installation, and after a discussion it was resolved that £10 10s. should be voted from the funds of the lodge, and that the brethren should be solicited individually to contribute. Some of the brethren at once put down their names for various sums, and in a short time nearly £30 was promised. The banquet was held at the White Hart Hotel. A speech on the Williams Memorial Fund was made by Bro. John Thomas, who warmly supported the movement, but expressed a desire to see the fund made available for educational purposes in the Province of Cornwall, instead of, as the letter Bro. W. Husband, sent to the various lodges, suggested, obtaining voting powers in the Boys' and Girls' Schools, &c. It was explained by Bro. Husband that his proposal was merely a suggestion, and that it would be for the P.G.M. and Prov. Grand Lodge to determine upon the form the memorial should take.

BERKHAMPSTEAD.—Berkhampstead Lodge (No. 504).—The installation meeting of this celebrated Hertfordshire Lodge was held on Wednesday last, at the Town Hall. The lodge, which was very fully attended, was opened by Bro. Henry Hollis, Provincial Grand Sword Bearer, W.M., at which time there were present the following brethren:—Bros. W. C. Maddever, S.W.; J. T. Rowe, J.W.; John C. Lane, P.M. and Treasurer; W. Wilson, P.M., A.G.P. Sec.; W. H. Hobson, S.D.; J. J. Hatton, J.D.; H. C. Lambert, I.G.; Wm. H. Rowe, P.M.; Robt. A. Wright, D. C. Foster, Fredk. Harvey, P.P.G.C.; Charles Bullock, J. M. Lockwood, W. Evans, Henry Monet, Z. Cartwright, John Greig, T. Harvey Hill, William Abbott, F. L. Lane, Thos. F. Peacock, A. Dennis, F. Graham Robinson, J. Edward Wilkin, 1241; George Gromley, 176; T. S. Waits, P.M. 916; R. Barclay Brown, George Brooks, 902; J. Tickle, P.M. 1196; W. Bristow, 861; W. T. Buck, 1196; J. K. Stead, G.S. 21; G. A. Rein, P.M. 1364; Henry Balderson, G. P. Bernard, Thos. E. Taylor, H. J. Foster, Wm. Field, A. Robbins, P.M. 1056; Ernest Wright, P.M. 1364; James C. Howell, C.C., 715; Edward Stuart Pugh, W. C. Mulligan, P.M. 305; Edward H. Smith, 404; J. J. Berry, P.M. 554; B. B. Fitzgerald, 1364; G. Young, 13; John Faulkner, 1423; Wm. Randall, 1470; Alfd. Thos. Parkes, Edwin Legge, W.M., 1196; David Stevenson (Wolverton), Henry Prince, 1309; H. D. Martin, 1309; Jas. Kift, 749; Lewis Poulton, S.D., 591. As a great number of these brethren went down from London, special arrangements were considerably made for them by the lodge with the London and North Western Railway Company. After the lodge had been opened, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, Bro. Wilson read the Audit Committee's report and the report of the Benevolent Fund, both of which showed large balances in hand. The W.M. then resigned his chair to Bro. W. H. Rowe, P. Prov. G. Sup. of Works, P.M., who had engaged to instal the new W.M. Bro. W. C. Maddever, S.W., and W.M. elect, was then presented to Bro. Rowe by Bro. Hollis, W.M., and formally installed as Master of the lodge, in the presence of a Board of Installed Masters, numbering twenty-one. The officers for the ensuing year who were invested were Bros. Henry Hollis, Prov. G.S.B., I.P.M.; J. T. Rowe, P.M., S.W.; W. H. Hobson, J.W.; Lane, P.M., Treas.; W. Wilson, Assistant G. Pursuivant, P.M., Sec.; J. J. Hatten, S.D.; Hill, J.D.; H. C. Lambert, I.G.; Wright, P.M., W.S.; and Thomas, Tyler, who, in thanking the W.M. and the lodge for his re-election and investiture said that the present was the thirty-fourth year he had held his jewel of office. After the addresses had been delivered by Bro. W. H. Rowe, the lodge, on the motion of the Installing Master, seconded by Bro. Foster, P.M., unanimously voted a P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Henry Hollis, the P.M. Bro. Wilson, Sec., then drew the attention of the brethren to the fact that Bro. Maddever would represent the lodge as its Steward at the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution on the 12th of February. As there was a balance of £12 2s. 6d. to the credit of the Benevolent Fund of the Lodge, and as it had always been the custom of the lodge to vote sums of money to the Masonic Charities he would move that the sum of ten guineas be taken from the Benevolent Fund and placed on the list of Bro. Maddever for the Benevolent Institution. The motion was seconded by Bro. Laxton, P.M., and carried unanimously. This completed the business of the lodge, which was thereupon closed, and the brethren adjourned to that excellent hotel, the King's Arms, to banquet. This was served in the very best style of a fine old English hotel, all the viands being of the first quality, and the wines of good old standing. The musical brethren were Bros. Martin, No. 1309; Upstone, No. 1309; and James Kift,

No. 749; who, after dinner, sang some excellent songs. The W.M. proposed the usual toasts, and in giving that of "The Queen and the Craft," said he was sure that the toast would be well received, as all Freemasons were loyal men. Bro. W. Wilson, A.G.P., responded to the toast of "The M.W.G.M. and Grand Officers," and said he, of course, felt it a great honour to be in a position to reply to the toast of the Grand Officers of England, and he appreciated the compliment that had been paid to him very highly. The other Grand Officers if they had been present would have been delighted with the warm reception given to the toast. For the information of the brethren who might not be aware of the fact, he would say that Lord Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale were constant attendants at the Grand Lodge, and were always ready to do their duty. The Hertfordshire Freemasons, as well as other Freemasons, were ever ready to uphold the Grand Officers in the high positions to which they had been appointed, and it was a great satisfaction to the Grand Officers to feel that they had the support of the Craft in general. The W.M. next gave the toast of "The Prov. G.M., Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P.," who, he very much regretted, was unable to be present at this meeting on account of ill-health. The Prov. G.M. was a member of the Berkhamstead Lodge, and all the brethren knew how well he did his work, as they had had an opportunity of seeing it several times. In giving the next toast, "The Deputy Prov. G.M., and the rest of the Present and Past Prov. G. Officers," the W.M. said the brethren were all well acquainted with the Deputy Prov. G.M., and to tell the brethren how well he performed his work, would be only to tell them what they had no need to be reminded of. He was an old and well-tryed Mason, and a first-class worker. With this toast he would couple the name of the Rev. Bro. Harvey, who was a member of the lodge, and was giving infinite pleasure to the brethren by being present at this meeting. He (the W.M.) hoped that during his year of office, he should always have the pleasure of Bro. Harvey's presence at the meetings of the lodge. The Rev. Bro. Harvey, in reply to the toast, said the brethren were all so well acquainted with what he might say that he really had nothing to talk about. The Prov. G. Officers were worthy of the brethren's esteem and admiration, and this the brethren very well knew. From the Prov. G.M. downwards the Prov. G. Officers were as good Masons as could be wished. Therefore, as far as they were concerned, the brethren had done well to acknowledge their merits, and the Prov. G. Officers were much obliged for the recognition. When his name was coupled with the toast he did not really expect that, particularly when he found there were so many Grand Officers present who were senior to him, and nearly all of them holding higher office. But as the honour of replying had been conferred upon him he must say that he thanked the brethren very much for the compliment. The W.M. had not seen his work, but he hoped that would be remedied. It made him feel warm again, coming to this lodge, when there was a meeting like this. He had never sat down in it when there was such a crowded meeting, and he had not expected to meet such a distinguished company. As far as he was concerned he felt wonderfully pleased, and yet when he went back to former times when he first joined the lodge, and compared that period with the present and saw how the lodge had grown, he felt he must compliment the brethren. When the lodge was 742 he and the other brethren then in it thought they did their duty, and that they were a happy and good body of Masons; but to-day he saw before him a body of Masons who altogether eclipsed them. When he looked that day at the little leather case which held his apron, he saw on it the date of 1853, and now the year was 1879. This was more than a quarter of a century, and it was then that he first came to the lodge. It was many years since he had the honour of filling the Master's chair. When he looked forward to what the lodge would be, and backward at what the lodge had been, as well as on it as it now was, he felt proud to "stick up," to use a common phrase, for the Berkhamstead Lodge. He hoped to continue a member of it, for he never felt more happy than when he came among the brethren and heard his health drunk by such a distinguished body of Freemasons as formed this lodge. He felt then that he was higher in the Craft than ever he was before, and he should always have pleasure in meeting the brethren and passing such a delightful time with them as he had passed that night. Bro. Henry Hollis, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." The brethren had seen the way in which Bro. Maddever had performed all the offices in the lodge. He had always discharged his duties creditably to himself and pleasurable to the brethren, and they had displayed their good taste and sense in electing him as their W.M. He was sure that Bro. Maddever would fill the chair of the lodge with honour, and carry out all the tenets of Freemasonry with his usual good feeling and urbanity of manner, and in so doing he would obtain the best feelings of the brethren. He (Bro. Hollis) wished the W.M. most sincerely a very pleasant year of office, and he would call upon the brethren to do the same. The toast having been most warmly received, Bro. Maddever, in reply, said that four years ago when he came into the lodge Bro. Wilson suggested that it would be a great pleasure to see him sitting in the W.M.'s chair. He had now the greatest possible delight in occupying that seat. It had been his ambition to achieve that distinction, and now that he had achieved it, he hoped that the way in which he would discharge his duties would give the greatest satisfaction to the brethren. He also trusted that the interests of the lodge or of Masonry would never suffer at his hands, and that the lodge when he left the chair would stand even higher, if it were possible, than it stood at present. Bro. Maddever then proposed the toast of "The Visitors," who, he hoped, had all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. He had the pleasure of knowing a great number of those visitors who were then present, but there were some whom he did not know. He was, however, equally pleased to see those he did not know. Bros. Stead, Smith, Bristo, and Tickle replied very briefly, acknowledging the hearty reception they had met with, and expressing the great pleasure it had given them to visit the lodge and witness not only the ceremony of installation ably performed, but the new W.M., when investing his officers, keep closely to Masonic ritual. "The P.M.'s," was the next toast, and the W.M., in proposing it, acknowledged the great assistance the Masters of the lodge always received from these brethren. Bros. Hollis, Lane, Laxton, and Wright, replied, and spoke with pride and satisfaction of the gradual improvement in the lodge during the time they had been acquainted with it. It was now in the first position among the Hertfordshire lodges, and it would always be their greatest ambition to maintain for it that position. The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. W. H. Rowe." Ever since he (the W.M.) had been in the lodge he had always received from that worthy brother the utmost extent of kindness in every possible way, and to-day it had reached its climax. Bro. Rowe had that day installed him in the chair of the lodge, and he supposed this was the utmost he could do for him. He (the W.M.) knew the metal Bro. Rowe was made of, and he was sure that when he called upon Bro. Rowe for any assistance it would never be refused. Bro. Rowe's kindness had been shown in every way, and he (the W.M.) trusted that the brethren would for many years have the happiness of seeing him among them and greeting him with the same cordiality that they did now. Bro. W. H. Rowe, P.M., in reply, said it afforded him a very great amount of pleasure and gratification to return thanks for the kind manner in which this toast had been proposed by the W.M., and responded to by the brethren. He certainly did not think he deserved so much kindness as the W.M. had expressed, but he would ask the brethren to make some allowance for any deficiencies they might have observed in the ceremony of installation, as it was now twelve months since he went through it. It had given him very great pleasure to instal Bro. Maddever, and at all times he would be very much pleased to instal any Master of the lodge. Nevertheless, he hoped that at next installation meeting he would have the pleasure of seeing Bro. Maddever perform the ceremony himself. He looked upon it as the duty of the W.M. to instal his successor, especially London brethren, who had more opportunities for learning the ceremony than country brethren. He trusted that the W.M. would have a successful year of office, and that all the brethren would be happy under his rule. The W.M. next proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary." The Treasurer was a most important officer, and a most essential man in a lodge. He was happy to say that Bro. Lane, the Treasurer, was father of the lodge, and he performed his duties most satisfactorily, and took great care of the bullion. He hoped that Bro. Lane would long be in the position of Treasurer. The Secretary, Bro. Wilson, was another most important and indefatigable officer, and the brethren knew well how ably he discharged his duties, more especially in his arrangements for the lodge's summer outing, which were entirely in his hands. Bro. Lane in reply, said that his duties were not so arduous as Bro. Wilson's who had always a great number of letters to answer, besides having the books to keep, and the summonses to issue, and in the Berkhamstead Lodge this was no light matter. Bro. Wilson, in replying as Secretary, said that ever since he became an initiate in this lodge he had had the interest of the lodge in view. He had always tried to promote good feeling among the brethren, and create the harmony and enjoyment of every member. So long as he was spared he should endeavour to follow the same course. "The Officers of the Lodge" was the next toast, which having been replied to by those brethren, the proceedings were brought to a close, and the company returned to town by the last train, after spending a most happy and harmonious evening.

LISKEARD.—St. Martin's Lodge (No. 510).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Friday, the 3rd inst., the Bro. John Beaglehole, W.M., presiding. W. Bro. William Nettle, the W.M. elect, was installed by Bro. Beaglehole, assisted by W. Bro. J. F. Childs, P.P.G.R., and supported by the following board of I.M.'s:—W. Bros. John Ough, P.P.G.D.; Thomas White, P.P.G.S. Wks.; W. Tonkin, P.G.S., Wks.; R. A. Courtney P.P.G.D.C.; J. W. Chegwidden, P.P.G.D.C.; G. Barnes, P.P.G.P.; R. Coath, P.G., S.; W. George, P.M.; S. Seccombe, P.M., 510; J. Rawlings, P.M., 1071; and N. H. Lamb, P.M., 977. At the close of the installation the W.M. invested the following brethren as his officers for the year ensuing:—W. Bro. J. Beaglehole, I.P.M.; Bros. J. Harris, S.W.; O. Colmer, J.W.; and the Rev. W. Fookes, Chaplain; W. Bros. T. White, Treasurer, and R. A. Courtney, Secretary; Bros. W. Sargent, S.D.; J. U. Hill, J. D.; C. F. C. Hole, Organist; J. Moon, D.C.; W. Hocken, I.G.; P. B. Henwood, and W. Huddy, Stewards; and R. Penwarden, Tyler. Bro. E. Venning was unanimously elected Steward for the C.M.A. Fund. The brethren dined together at Webb's Hotel, where they were joined by additional brethren, including Bros. J. Baxter, P.P.G.D.; W. H. Maynard, P.M., 1164; A. P. Davis, W.M., 977; and T. H. Gibbons, J.W. 1272.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, William-street, on Wednesday, the 18th ult., Bro. A. C. Woodley, W.M., in the chair. The following officers were present:—Bros. Past Masters, W. Graham, E. Bowles, G. Crawford, J. Wilkins, J.W.; T. Butt, P.M. and Treasurer; C. Norman, P.M. and Secretary; E. B. Hobson, S.D.; W. McCoy, J.D.; G. Beaver

I.G.; H. Roberts, D.C.; and B. Norman, O.G. Among the visitors were Bros. T. D. Hayes, W.M. 913; J. S. Mutch, W.M. 706; W. B. Lloyd, 213; A. Saunders, 1536; R. J. Warren, 1437; T. Green, 1076; T. Hassell, 13; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The work before the lodge consisted of the balloting for and initiation of Mr. S. E. Southgate, which was satisfactorily accomplished. Bro. Fenn was then passed to the Second Degree, and Bros. Reed and Swanson were raised to the Sublime Degree. Twenty guineas was then voted to the Boys' School as an instalment, for the purpose of making the lodge at some early date a vice-president of that institution; and three guineas to the Woolwich Soup Society. The lodge was closed, and after supper re-assembled in the hall, where the social board was spread. The usual toasts were drunk, and in responding to his health, which was given and responded to heartily by the assembly, Bro. Woodley thanked them. He had been, and he supposed most new Masters were for the first time or so, rather nervous in going through the ceremonies of the evening. He supposed he must attribute it in a great measure to the—well to the "fog" (Cheers and laughter.) He trusted, however, before his year of office was up to show that the name of the lodge for good working had not suffered at his hands. (Hear, hear.) He should like to say a few words about the Masonic Charities. They had that night resolved to present the sum of twenty guineas to the Boys' School—a course that had the fullest sanction of every member of the lodge. Considering the immense good the Charities of the Craft were doing, and the large amount of money necessary for their maintenance, that sum was undoubtedly a small one; but if every lodge in the kingdom did the same, or even gave five guineas to each, or either of the three great Charities, it would amount to £8,800, taking the number of the lodges as only 1600—an excellent nucleus around which to gather private subscriptions, and might, he considered, be easily appropriated from the funds of almost every lodge. They meant to give another twenty guineas next year, and he trusted they would so prosper as to be able to go on and make the lodge vice-president of all those grand charities that were so noble and so honourable to Freemasonry. (Applause.) He then proposed the Past Masters of and belonging to the lodge, and Bros. Bowles and Butt responded. The "Initiate" was honoured, and modestly replied. The next toast was that of the "Visitors," which the W.M. characterised as a most important one. They knew how gratifying it was to the lodge to see visitors attend their meetings, not only from neighbouring lodges, but from distant ones. He tendered them in the name of the Nelson Lodge a hearty welcome. Bro. Hayes after thanking them for the toast, expressed his sorrow that he was unable to attend the working of the lodge on account of unfavourable circumstances, but he had hastened there to show how much he appreciated both the lodge and its friendship. That regret was, however, modified by hearing the Master promise to work better next time, for then he should certainly attend if only for the purpose of hearing something from him that might be of benefit to himself. (Cheers.) He hoped at the next meeting of his lodge, the Pattison, on the first Thursday in January next, to see the W.M. of the Nelson, and as many of his officers and brethren as could possibly come, and there he, as W.M., would try and imitate the good work he had upon so many occasions seen done in the Nelson Lodge. He always attended that lodge with a great deal of pleasure, and left it with pleasant memories, not the least was on account of the singing of Bro. Butt, whose "Yoicks, Yoicks, Hark Away" was an institution among them. (Laughter and cheers.) He had read the other day of an old huntsman who died at the age of eighty years. He hoped they would have Bro. Butt with them to sing "Old Towler" till he was eighty-five. (Applause.) Bros. Jolly, Green, and Hassell, also briefly responded. "The Officers" and Tyler's toast concluded the business of the meeting.

WOOLWICH.—Florence Nightingale Lodge (No. 706).—The regular monthly meeting of the above select and pretty little lodge took place on Friday, the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, Bro. J. Scott Mutch, W.M., in the chair, supported by the following officers and visitors:—Bros. W. Gamble, P.M.; J. Donally, S.W.; Eugene Sweeney, J.W.; Sydney Clark, P.M.; Treasurer; E. Denton, P.M., Secretary; J. Black, S.D.; H. Eves, Tyler; C. H. S. Solbe, Hon. Chaplain, 1536; and C. Jolly, 913, (Freemason). The only work before the lodge was the initiation of Mr. Mathews, Solicitor, into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, and well did the W.M. sustain the prestige of the lodge, not only by the excellent style of his working the ceremonial, but by the eloquent and impressive rendering of the charge so seldom given in most lodges. Two guineas were then voted for the poor of the town, to be placed in the hands of the Rector, the Rev. and Hon. A. Anson, and one guinea to the "Woolwich Soup Society." The lodge was then closed and the brethren then adjourned to Bro. De Grey's House, The Freemasons' Tavern and Hotel, opposite the Dockyard Railway Station, where one of the recherché and unique diners that the worthy host is so well able to give awaited them. One of the peculiarities of this lodge is that, except upon such occasions as the Installation meetings, no toasts are given with the exception of "The Initiate," and upon this occasion Bro. Mutch gave "The Health of the Initiate" in such choice and appropriate language, that we could not help regretting the strict observance of the custom above mentioned. However, he now welcomed Bro. Mathews as a valuable addition to the roll of the lodge, and hoped he would so make himself acquainted with their mystic lore, that he might be able at some future time to take the highest offices in the lodge. Bro. Mathews, in returning thanks, said he had attained that night one grand object of his ambition, in becoming a Mason in the first place, and in the next in being admitted a member of the Florence Nightingale Lodge. He should always remember the occasion with pride and pleasure, and trusted to be worthy of the position he now held as a member of their grand and distinguished Order. Some excellent harmony enlivened the evening.

LEVENSHULME.—Alexandra Lodge (No. 993).—The festival of St John and the installation of Bro. Wm. Parker, W.M. elect, was celebrated on the 28th ult., at the Midway Hotel, Levenshulme, the regular meeting being held on the preceding evening. Bro. G. Sharp, W.M., in the chair, assisted by his able officers, initiated Messrs. Cheetham, Mason, and Stoveld, then closed the lodge and adjourned the usual festive board until the afternoon of the following day. A very pleasing and rare circumstance in connection with this installation was that the Installing Master, Bro. John Parker, P.M. of the Faith Lodge (No. 581), and also P.M. of this lodge, is natural brother to the W.M. elect, who performed the ceremony in more than his usual very effective manner, assisted by Bro. Hind, P.M., who gave the address to the W.M., and Bro. Timperley, P.M., who gave the address to the Wardens. All the officers were invested by the Installing Master, viz.: Bros. Owen, S.W.; Peak, J.W.; Wright, Treas.; Cheeseman, Sec.; Robberds, P.M., as D.C.; Nelson, S.D.; Bridges as J.D., by proxy for Bro. Ellis, whom the Installing Master said, with much feeling, was absent owing to a severe illness, and desired the prayers of the brethren for his safe and speedy recovery. Bro. Robberds, P.M., for the thirteenth year as Org., and Bro. Nall for the ninth year as S.S., Bros. Rycroft and Lingard as Assistant Stewards. The brethren sat down at 5.30 to a very sumptuous banquet provided by Bro. Davison; the usual loyal toasts were proposed by the W.M., who made a very feeling reference to the death of our deeply beloved late Princess Alice. The patriotic toasts followed in due order, after each of which appropriate songs were sung by visiting Bros. Greenwood, N. Dumville, Lister, Pearson, and Prestwich. After the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. Robberds, P.M., D.C., sang with much enthusiasm, "Here's to His Health," the W.M. responded, concluding by giving the toast of "The I.P.M.," and presenting that brother with a very handsome gold P.M.'s jewel, which was very gratefully received, and very feelingly acknowledged by Bro. George Sharp, I.P.M., in a few appropriate remarks. The toast of "The Visiting Brethren" was proposed by P.M. Timperley in a very welcome manner, coupling with the toast the names of the W.M. of the Egerton Lodge, and P.M. Darbyshire, of the Faith Lodge, both of whom were called upon to respond on behalf of the visiting brethren. The worthy W.M. of the Egerton Lodge, in a very able speech, returned thanks for the very kind reception and sumptuous repast given to the visiting brethren, and concluded by calling the attention of the brethren to the approaching charity festival, asking them, in a very enthusiastic manner, to give their individual support to that charity. Bro. P.M. Darbyshire concurred in all that had been said about the very kind reception given that day to the visitors, and took the opportunity, with the permission of the W.M., to propose a toast which was not in the programme, being that of "Installing Master." He said that the members of the Faith Lodge of which he had the honour to belong, held the Installing Master in high estimation, and as Bro. John Parker was first initiated into Freemasonry in the Alexandra Lodge the brethren ought and no doubt did think equally as much of their Installing Master as did the brethren of the Faith Lodge. The very able manner in which he had performed the ceremony that day, and the way which he had always performed every ceremony of Craft Masonry had very properly called forth and was truly deserving the praise of old and distinguished Past Masters, who it was well known never did give praise where it was not due, but were always very happy to give praise to any brother who showed such ability as had that day been shown by the Installing Master. He had a very pleasing recollection of the willing assistance that Bro. Parker gave him, when preparing for the high and important office of W.M., and he reminded the brethren, particularly the officers, that in Bro. Parker they would always find a very willing and able coach for any office connected with the work in Craft or Royal Arch Masonry, and called upon the brethren to rise and join with him in wishing good health, long life and prosperity to Bro. John Parker, P.M., Installing Master. The toast was responded to in a very able speech, which was received with rapturous applause and musical honours. The "Masonic Charities" was next proposed by Bro. Brocklehurst, P.M.; and suitably acknowledged by Bro. Hind, P.M. The toast of "The Officers" was next given, followed by "To all poor and distressed Masons," which brought the proceedings to a very pleasant close at 10.45.

CORNWALL.—St. Anne's Lodge (No. 970).—The brethren of this lodge held their annual meeting on Friday, the 3rd inst., at the lodge-rooms, East Looe. There was a large attendance of members. The W.M. elect, Bro. J. G. Henwood, was installed by Bro. G. Roseveare, P.P.G.S. Wks., supported by the following board of I.M.'s: Bros. J. Hill P.P.G. Std.; John Walters, J. Crossman, J. Johns, J. Dawe, W. Fenwick, James Walters, and J. S. Tucker. The following brethren were invested by the W.M. as his officers:—Bros. J. S. Tucker, I.P.M.; T. Harding, S.W.; J. H. Dawe, J.W.; G. Kerswill, Treas.; G. W. Martin, Sec.; R. Oliver, S.D.; R. Solt, J.D.; T. Cook, I.G.; A. Hunter, and J. Marshall, Stds. The brethren afterwards dined together at Bro. T. Cook's Ship Hotel.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 20th ult., in the Masonic Hall, Station-street. There were present:—Bros. R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas., in the chair, in the temporary absence of the W.M. Bro. James Black, who entered the lodge at a later period of the evening; Capt. F. R. Sewell, S.W., and W.M. elect; T. Bird, J.W.; W. Shilton, P.M.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org.; W. F. Lamonby, P.M. (Freemason); T. C. Robinson, Sec.; H. Peacock, I.G.; Jos. Hewson, Tyler; R. W. Robinson, Isaac Evening, E. L. Waugh, J. Pearson, J. Borrowscare, R. Harrison, J. Tedron, H. Ritson, Stephen Thwaite, J. Nicholson, W. Paisley, and A. Taylor, P.M. 310 (Carlisle), as a visiting brother. The business before the lodge was the raising of Bros. Nicholson and Paisley, which ceremony was performed by the W.M. in the chair; after which, on the motion of Bro. Lamonby, seconded by Bro. R. W. Robinson, it was resolved not to hold a concert and ball in connection with Faithful Lodge of Mark Masons, No. 229, and Dyke's Conclave of Red Cross Knights, No. 36, as had previously been agreed by the two latter bodies, in deference to the isolated position of two or three brethren of the Skiddaw Lodge. This was all the business, and the lodge was closed in form.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 23rd ult., in the Masonic rooms, Athenæum, Bro. A. Sheriff, W.M. in the chair of K.S. There was a fair attendance. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. It was then opened in the Second, when Bro. J. C. Curtis having given proof of his skill as a Fellow Craft, was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Curtis being re-admitted was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by the W.M., the working being gone through in an admirable manner. The working tools were presented by the S.W. The lodge was then closed down to the First Degree, when the ballot was taken for Mr. Joseph Edward Hannah, C.E., and proving unanimous he was duly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. The election of officers for the ensuing year was then taken. Bro. N. Helme, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M.; Bro. W. J. Sly, P.P.G.J.W., Treasurer (re-elected); and Bro. A. K. Allman, Tyler (re-elected). The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, and the lodge closed with the usual formalities of the Craft.

LIVERPOOL.—Walton Lodge (No. 1086).—The annual installation gathering of the members of this highly prosperous and influential lodge, which comprises several brethren who have made their name and fame in the Craft, took place on New Year's Day at the Skelmersdale Hall, Westminster-road, Kirkdale, Liverpool; and the peculiarity of this particular installation ceremony was the fact that the W.M. of 1878 was, owing to certain unforeseen circumstances, again installed in the same position for the year 1879. The Walton Lodge thus conferred an honour of a very special kind on a brother who well merits the "compliment of the season," and there is little doubt that Bro. G. J. Townsend, the brother who has been thus distinguished, has well merited the honour of unanimous re-election. The vitality of Freemasonry at this part of Liverpool has more than once been recently exhibited—conspicuously so by the erection of a new Masonic Hall, named after our respected D.G.M. and P.G.M. for West Lancashire, and also by the consecration of a new lodge a few weeks ago,—and the Walton is the oldest as well as the most prosperous of the group of Masonic combinations which exist at the north-end of the "good old town." Business on New Year's Day commenced at four o'clock, when the lodge was duly opened by Bro. G. J. Townsend, W.M., who was supported by the following principal brethren: Bros. G. E. Hanmer, I.P.M.; J. Lunt, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; R. Abrahams, P.M.; W. Sephton, P.M.; J. Ellis, P.M.; W. Walker, S.W.; the Rev. Dr. Hyde, J.W.; W. Archer, P.M., Treasurer, P.G.J.D.; J. Leece, Secretary; G. Ryley, J.D.; R. Beckett, I.G.; H. Gee, S.S.; W. G. Veale, Hon. Org.; and M. Williamson, Tyler. The private members present included Bros. J. J. Savage, W. Wilkinson, H. Walker, H. Spencer, J. Macbeth, W. J. West, R. E. Roberts, J. H. Sterling, C. E. Laington, E. Outsell, H. Worthington, J.W. 1570; G. W. Baron, H. Woodend, W.W. Thomas, J. D. Reader, F. S. Halpin, Dr. Parry, J. Parry, W. Roberts, W. Smith, J. E. Beer, W. P. Vines, R. Parry, G. Smith, and others. The Tylers' Book showed the following visitors as being present:—Bros. G. Read, 673; Rev. R. T. Leslie, J.W. 1713; J. Wells, P.G.D.C.; J. W. Burgess, P.M. Treasurer 1325; J. W. McWan, S.W. 1035; W. Lawson, 1035; J. H. Seales, 1756; W. S. Vines, P.P.G.D.C., P.M. 220 and 1299; J. Latta, S.D. 241; T. Chesworth, P.G.D.C. (Cheshire), P.M. and Treasurer 724. J. C. Corris, 823; R. Williams, 1350; H. H. Smith, S.D. 1505; Dr. Wallace Smith, S.W. 1713; T. C. Fish, 1264; J. McKenzie, S.W. 1609; and Henry Alexander, 203, I.G. 1756. After the transaction of the usual introductory business, the chair was taken by Bro. W. Archer, P.G.J.D., Treas., who proceeded to install Bro. G. J. Townsend, P.M., as the W.M. for the second consecutive year—an honour which is secured very rarely indeed in the Masonic world. The latter portion of the ceremony was performed by Bro. John Lunt, P.P.G.D.C. and the following were the other officers invested for 1879:—Bro. G. E. Hanmer, I.P.M.; the Rev. Dr. Hyde, Chaplain; Isaac Leece, S.W.; James Casey, J.W.; W. Archer, P.G.J.D., Treasurer; Hugh Spencer, Secretary; John Lunt, P.P.G.D.C., Dir. Cer.; G. Ryley, S.D.; Richard Beckett, J.D.; J. J. Savage, I.G.; J. D. Reader, S.S.; Dr. D. L. Parry, J.S.; W. G. Veale, Hon. Org.; and M. Williamson, Tyler. At the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where a splendid dinner was served most admirably by Bro. J. Casey, J.W. After the usual loyal and principal Masonic toasts, the W.M. gave the toast of "Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M. of Eng., P.G.M. of W.L.; Bro. the Right Hon. Col. Stanley, D.P.G.M. W.L., and the P.G.L. Officers, Past and Present," the toast being acknowledged in felicitous and well chosen terms by Bro. W. Archer, P.G.J.D., Treas.; Bro. J. Lunt, P.P.G.D.C.; and Bro. W. S. Vines, P.P.G.D.C., who referred to the enthusiasm which Lord Skelmersdale had shown in connection with the Craft. Many would recollect that at Southport, about two years ago, his lordship said there had been some talk of dividing the province, as it then contained seventy-six lodges and was, therefore, too large; but he rightly answered this by saying that he could rule the province even with seventy-six more so long as they were worked so harmoniously and well. That was good evidence of the true fellowship which existed amongst the brethren, and at which he (Bro. Vines) thought they should all greatly rejoice. The toast of the evening, "The Worshipful Master," was given by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Hyde, Chaplain, who said it was to him a source of real enjoyment to have the privilege of proposing that toast, which embodied a sincere wish for the health and happiness of Bro. Townsend during the coming year. The Walton Lodge had been particularly fortunate in its P.M.'s from the beginning, and he was sure their present Master, who had been elected for the second time, would add lustre to the long list. He could assure the brethren that the reelection was not of Bro. Townsend's seeking, but was the result of certain circumstances which need not then be explained. The past year had been one of considerable difficulty, and of an uphill nature in connection with the lodge, as they had had to open and inaugurate their new hall, but by the W.M.'s guidance they found themselves in a good position at the close of the year. After speaking of the many excellent qualities of the W.M., Bro. Dr. Hyde went on to speak at considerable length of the silly and contemptible article which had recently appeared in what is styled a "leading local journal," but only by courtesy, and said as Masons they could afford to laugh at such vile vituperation, and strive to walk with that caution and circumspection which would be the best answer to such an unprovoked and unwarranted attack. What, after all, was Freemasonry? Our so-called secrets were but of small value when compared with the grand object of their institution—to try to do good to their fellow-men; to succour the widow and the fatherless; and to assist a distressed brother in the hour of his need. It would not do for them to throw their meetings open to the world, because they would then have all kinds of men mixing in their society, and weakening its influences for good. He could not mention in the admission of members and the appointment of officers, and concluded by presenting Bro. Townsend, W.M., with an exquisitely designed P.M.'s jewel, in token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren. The W.M., in reply, said that when he was first elected to the chair of the Walton Lodge he considered it the highest honour which he could receive at the hands of his brethren; but having been elected a second time to the distinguished position, he could hardly find words to express how deeply he felt and realised the honour. He had had a most happy year in the chair, thanks to the help and kindness of every member of the lodge, particularly the P.M.'s and officers. He thanked the brethren for the very handsome P.M.'s jewel, with which he had been presented, and assured them it would be an incentive to him to endeavour to secure even greater prosperity to the Walton Lodge. Other toasts followed, and a very pleasant evening was spent. Bro. H. Gill, 1086 (who had the distinguished honour last year of playing before Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., when on a visit to Lord Selton) again charmed every one by the lovely music of his "Fairy Bells," and capital songs, recitations, &c., were given by Bros. W. G. Veale, Hon. Org.; John Latto (whose "Bellman" was as humorous as ever) and various other brethren.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—The regular monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Friday, the 13th ult., at the Masonic Hall, adjoining the Sir Robert Peel, Anglesea Hill, Bro. Garbett's house, a large number of the brethren and visitors assembling to witness the generally plentiful and admirable working of this excellent lodge. Bro. Hay Grieve Picken, W.M., presided, supported by the following officers:—Bros. Past Masters G. Spinks, I.P.M., and W. Weston; H. Shaw, S.W.; D. Deeves, J.W.; W. Murphy, Treas.; G. Kennedy, Sec.; W. Holliman, I.G.; H. Harding, Org.; C. Buckland, D.C.; and J. Lackland, Tyler. Amongst the visitors were Bro. Major G. Hare, 706; H. De Gray, 706; J. Holloway, 706; W. Robinson, 1434; W. A. Tucker, 913; C. Clarke, 184; R. Goddin, 273; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason), and others. The work done by the lodge was the initiation of Sergt. R. Anderson, of the mounted R.A. band, and the raising of Bros. Hickey and Griffin. Bros. A. Penfold and C. Jolly then severally returned thanks for the great honour paid them by unanimously electing them honorary members of the lodge. After Bro. Weston had spoken for the widow of Bro. Benn, who died at his duty in India, and her petition to Grand Lodge had been signed for presentation, the lodge closed, and the brethren sat down to refreshment. In giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. said that, perhaps, at no time of late had their hearts been drawn to their beloved Queen more than now—when her life had been threatened by a madman (no sane man would ever think of such a thing), and her heart torn with the loss of one of her family, one who was especially and affectionately held in the hearts of every Englishman and Englishwoman wherever the language was spoken—he trusted the G.A.O.T.U. would comfort her in her great affliction, and grant her long to live and reign over them. The other loyal and Masonic toasts followed in due course. In giving that of "The Grand Officers of the Province of Kent," the name of Bro. Col. King, R.A., G.S.W., and who is a member of the lodge, was most enthusiastically cheered. The W.M. trusted soon to have that distinguished brother as a visitor to the lodge. Bro. P.M. Spinks then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and pointed out how he kept to the course laid down by his predecessors, and worked the degrees well; nothing but that would satisfy them in their W.M.'s. Bro. Picken briefly replied. The Initiate responded to the toast of his name. Bro. Major Hare, in replying for "The Visitors," said he had been a Mason twenty years, and had never seen the ceremonies better carried out than he had that night. He thanked them as well for the gratifying reception the lodge had that night given its visitors. He certainly should do himself the honour of visiting them again. Bro. De Grey said he had been twenty-three years a Mason, and remembered with pride the consecration of that lodge. From that day to now he believed it had been one of the most successful lodges in the district. Its working was always admirable. It gave both pleasure and satisfaction to old Masons to see the young ones doing so well, and while thanking them for the toast he wished them every success. Bros. Holloway, Hassell, and Gooding as well responded. To the toast of "The Past Masters," Bro. Spinks, in reply, said it was now about four years ago since he first stood up in that lodge to respond to the toast of his health, and up to the present time it had continued, and he wanted to know when he should have finished doing so. The Past Masters always had done, and always would do their best for the prosperity of the lodge, and the support of the W.M. in carrying out the duties of its affairs. He wished them all "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year." Bro. Weston as well replied. Bro. Penfold expressed the pride he felt in having his name enrolled among the Past Masters of the United Military Lodge, it was one of the greatest honours ever paid him, and he was proud of it. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the meeting. The proceeds of the charity box, amounting to £1 5s., was devoted to the temporary needs of Mrs. Benn, the widow of a military Mason, although not a member of the lodge; that, with £2 8s. collected in the Excelsior Mark Lodge, has since been placed at the disposal of Bro. Weston, P.M.

PLYMOUTH.—Lodge of Prudence, (No. 1550).—The fourth annual winter meeting of the Masonic Craft was held on Saturday, 4th inst., at the Huyshe Temple, Princess-place. Among the officers present were:—W. Bros. J. G. Keverne, W.M.; J. Y. Avery, P.M. and Treasurer; L. D. Westcot, P.P.G.S. Wks.; E. Aitken-Davies, P.P.G.S. Wks.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.A.D.C.; W. W. Dymond, P.P.G.O., Cornwall; J. T. Browning, W.M. 105; W. Marsh, W.M.; E. Manley, P.M., 156; T. Goodall, P.M., 954; T. Searle, W.M., 1091; G. J. Firks, W.M.; James Rendle, P.M., 1247; T. J. Smith, W.M.; John Pearce, P.M., 1255; Bros. R. G. Tippet, Dr. Pearce, of Holworthy, and Burden, of Callington. The working of this new lodge was found to have proved very satisfactory under the new arrangements adopted. The news of the suspension of Messrs. Tweedy's bank at Truro caused much regret, and warm sympathy was expressed for Bros. Tweedy, of whom W. Bro. William Tweedy has been the active P.G. Treas. of the Province of Cornwall for several years, also Treas. for the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund, Treas. for the Committee of Relief, and a member of the Masonic Hall Board, Truro. In the evening the members of the lodge and visiting brethren supped together at Chubb's Commercial Hotel, where they passed a pleasant evening.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—Although the usual monthly meeting of this most prosperous lodge was held on Christmas Eve, when the majority of the professional brethren were otherwise busy with pantomimic and other specialties for the festive season, there was a good attendance of members and visitors at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on the above date, to assist in the ordinary business transactions of the day. Bro. Lindo Courtenay, W.M., presided, and he was supported by Bros. W. J. Chapman, I.P.M.; J. McKenzie, S.W.; W. W. Sandbrook, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treasurer; John Atkinson, Secretary; J. Pyer, I.G.; R. Burgess and J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Organists; W. Savage, S.S.; H. P. Squire, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. H. Leslie, C. Courtenay, H. Round, A. Duncanson, W. Annand, J. S. Macbeth, Dr. R. H. D. Johnson, M. P. Tueski, C. Campion, J. G. Gough, Boyd, Shrapnell, P. Lowndes, Heap, Keet, W. Martin, &c. Amongst the visitors were Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; Bro. Captain W. J. Newman, P.M. 786, P.G.S.; Bro. Captain D. W. Winstanley, P.M. 1094, and others. After the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read and confirmed, the ballot, which proved unanimous, was taken for Mr. John Wainwright, comedian, Prince's Theatre, Manchester; Mr. Hemming, comedian and pantomimist, Prince of Wales Theatre, Liverpool; and Mr. Charles Burby, of the Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool. Singularly enough, however, since their proposition a month before, Messrs. Wainwright and Hemming had each sustained a severe domestic affliction—the one having lost his mother, and the other a charming child—and their initiation was therefore, delayed till the February meeting. Mr. C. Burby being in attendance he was initiated into the mysteries of the Order, and Bros. J. A. Mercer and Charnock (the latter coming with a note from the W.M. of 1356) were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M.'s. The work in both degrees was done faultlessly and with remarkable impressiveness by the W.M. (Bro. Courtenay). On the motion of Bro. M. P. Tueski, seconded by Bro. Dr. Johnson, it was unanimously, and by acclamation, resolved, "That a most cordial vote of thanks should be passed and recorded on the minutes to Bros. Leslie and Courtenay, lessees of the Royal Amphitheatre, for granting the use of that place on the occasion of the recent performance by the members of the Dramatic Lodge for the purpose of raising funds to decorate the Masonic Hall, and to Miss Rachel Sanger, Mrs. L. Courtenay, Bro. John Dewhurst, and the other artists who had so kindly given their valuable services on the occasion." Bro. Lindo Courtenay acknowledged the vote of thanks in an excellent speech, expressing the great pleasure which it had given Bro. Leslie and himself to afford assistance in connection with so interesting an event. The brethren, after several propositions for initiation had been made, adjourned to the old lodge room for substantial refreshments, and during the evening the mirth was unconfined, toasts, jokes, and songs following each other in rapid succession. Bro. Alpass, in responding for "The P.G.M. and his Officers," referred to the pleasure which it afforded him to find the Dramatic Lodge so prosperous; and Bro. Captain D. W. Winstanley, P.M., replying for "The Visitors," also spoke of the intellectual treat which he had experienced that afternoon in witnessing the admirable working of the W.M. and all his officers. Great pleasure was also derived from the vocal and histrionic efforts of Bros. H. Leslie, Dr. Johnson, M. P. Tueski, A. Woolrich, and others.

SUNDERLAND.—St. John's Chapter (No. 80).—A general convocation of this chapter was held on the 17th ult. at Masonic Hall, Park-terrace, Sunderland, when the following companions were duly installed officers for the ensuing year in an able and efficient manner by Past Ex. Comp. R. Hudson, P.G.D. of C. &c., viz.: Ex. Comps. F. Maddison, Z.; M. Douglas, H.; H. J. Turnbull, J.; Comps. J. Mitchinson, E.; J. S. Nicholson, N.; R. Kinmond, P.S.; W. H. Craven, Treas.; Curry and J. Brown, Asst. Secs.; J. Thompson, Janitor; after which the companions voted several sums of money to the charities, including the Soup Kitchen, the Local Society for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Shipwrecked Mariners, &c. The companions then adjourned to the banquetting room, and partook of an excellent dinner, and after the usual Masonic toasts, Ex. Comp. Maddison, in a neat and feeling speech, referring to the many excellent qualities of Comp. W. H. Craven, proposed his health in the loving cup, which was passed round, and presented him on behalf of the companions with a pair of beautiful gold spectacles and a silver case, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Companion W. H. Craven by the members of St. John's Chapter, No. 80, in recognition of his valuable services as Treasurer since the formation of the chapter in 1867, 17th December, 1878." Comp. Craven responded in a feeling manner, thanking the companions for their kind appreciation of his services.

EZRA CHAPTER (No. 1489).—A regular convocation of this chapter was held on Friday, the 3rd inst., at the Metropolitan Hall, Balls Pond-road, Dalston, Present: Comps. J. E. Walford, C.C., M.E.Z.; William, Stephens, H.; Thos. H. Miller, J.; Jno. High, N.; Jas. Glaskin, P. Soj. After the confirmation of the minutes, a ballot was taken for Bro. Elam, of the Fitzroy Lodge, and Bro. Marsh, of the Lebanon Lodge, which being unanimous in their favour, they were, with due and proper solemnity, exalted to this degree. Comp. Dr. Jno. Symons was admitted a joining member. This being the regular meeting for election of Principals and officers, they were selected as follows: Comp. W. Stephens, P.Z., 1st Principal; T. Hastings Miller, 2nd Principal; John Dixon, 3rd Principal; John High, Scribe E.; Jas. Glaskin, Scribe N.; William Grist, P. Soj.; Gilchrist, Janitor. A Past Principal's jewel was voted to the retiring M.E.Z., and three Auditors appointed at the dinner which followed. The usual toasts were honoured. Comp. Elam returned thanks to the companions for exalting him and his colleague to this Sublime Degree, the very essence of Freemasonry. Comps. Goddard and Soper responded for "The Visitors," and the Janitor's toast concluded the business at ten o'clock.

The establishment in Fleet-street which has been so long known to the general public as "Prosser's," has recently undergone some important alterations and improvements, the proprietors being desirous of adapting their business to the growing requirements of the neighbourhood, where presumably the New Law Courts will some day draw together crowds of human beings whose appetites will require to be appeased by something more substantial than legal uncertainties. To this end "Prosser's" has been enlarged and fitted up, so that while the familiar luncheon department remains untouched, accommodation is afforded in the elegantly-appointed dining-room for about fifty persons at a time.

We are asked to state that the Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction, and the Finsbury Park Master Masons' Lodge of Instruction, No. 1288, will in future hold their lodge meetings at the "Earl Russell" Tavern, Isledon-road, Holloway, at 8 o'clock p.m., the first named on Wednesdays, the latter on Fridays, every week throughout the year.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are securities of health to all nations, of whatever clime. They have given hope, relief, and comfort to millions. In irritation and debility, generated by excesses of any kind, or in general prostration of the system, their effect is rapidly soothing, renovating, and restorative. They rapidly drive from the system the morbid cause of ailment, and renew in the frame its pristine animation, health, and vigour. They greatly increase the appetite, give tone to the stomach, assist the digestion, and impart elasticity to the spirits; their essence enters the circulation and, carried through its course, exerts its cleansing power over every organ. In the lungs they affect most striking changes, converting the impure venous into pure arterial blood, by which the whole frame is recruited.—[Adv.]

THE MASONIC CHARITIES IN 1878.

Our contemporary, the Times, has called attention to the results of Masonic benevolence for the year of light and grace, 1878, and very striking are the figures which it sets before its readers. It gives us as one result of Masonic benevolence in 1878, namely, £40,312 4s. 3d., collected by our three great Metropolitan Charities. But even this statement, startling and remarkable as it is, and most creditable to Freemasons, does not exhaust the subject, and we refer to it in a subsequent leader. By the kind aid of our brethren, the Secretaries of the Institutions, we are enabled to set before our readers the following detailed items, which are, in truth, most gratifying and most creditable to our Masonic Fraternity. The Girls' School has received up to December 31st, 1878, £12,866 1s. 8d.; which sum is composed of the following items—

Subscriptions and Donations	£11,033 9 8
Donation by Grand Lodge	150 0 0
" " Chapter	10 10 0
Dividends	1170 0 0
Purchased into the School	357 0 0
Miscellaneous	145 1 0
In all	£12,866 1 8

Grand Chapter also voted £500 to the Girls' School last year. It may be well to remember here that the amount capitalized for the Girls' School reaches to £39,000, and that so skilful has been its management, and so large its receipts in 1878, that it will be enabled to pay off its building debts, we believe, without further recourse to its capital. This is a most satisfactory state of things, and reflects the highest credit on the Committee and Bro. Hedges. The receipts for 1878 are considerably in excess of 1877, for whereas in the latter case they reached £11,854 10s. 5d. in the former they amount, as we have said before, to £12,866 1s. 8d., a difference of over £1000. We doubt not, nay, we feel sure, that the festival of the Girls' School in 1879 will be a great success, and remembering that it requires at least £10,000 per annum to keep it in full efficiency and educate its 200 happy inmates, we leave the support of so needful and admirable an institution confidently in the hands of the Craft. The Boys' School has also a very good financial statement to make for 1878. It has received—

For Subscriptions and Donations	£11,100 0 0
Purchased Admissions	535 0 0
Life Presentations	525 0 0

in round numbers, and by approximate calculation. It will be remarked that the capital of the Boys' School, owing to its large and prolonged building expenditure, is reduced to a comparatively small amount, and we feel that we shall only be doing our duty to this much needed and important Institution, if we press upon our readers the advisability of giving to it a large and a liberal support in 1879. The good work so laudably began must be carried on, and the Boys' School has every claim upon us as a great and useful Educational Institution for the orphan sons of our deceased brethren. The Boys' School will soon be educating 211 boys, and its financial requirements cannot possibly be rated at less than £10,000. We feel sure that this sum will be forthcoming, and an effort made to increase its capital. The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution supplies us with a most satisfactory balance-sheet. The receipts, up to the close of 1878, amount to the large sum of £14,824 17s. 7d. Its approximate expenditure, including a purchase of £3000 consols, is £12,281 8s. 11d., so that the balance will be comparatively small to bring forward. It has now 145 male annuitants receiving £40 each, and 134 widows receiving £32 each, and twelve widows receiving £20 each. Thus we see it has a pledged expenditure of £10,360. There are between sixty and seventy candidates for the male and female annuitants in May. We need hardly, we think, commend this excellent and true charity of which, as English Masons, we may well be proud, to the sympathy and patronage of our brethren, though we feel bound to point out in simple words its undeniable claims for support and aid. Its indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Terry, has already announced 200 Stewards for its festival in February, and we have no doubt but that the gathering will be a complete success in every sense. We feel sure that there will be no difficulty either in raising for it its needful annual return of £11,000. Thus it will be seen that the returns are as follows:—

The Girls' School	12,866 1 8
Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution	14,824 17 7
In all	£40,231 19 3

We leave these figures to-day to tell their own tale, merely premising that we shall next week call the attention of our readers to one or two points in which, we venture to think, we can make our support of our great Charities more universal and more effective.

WHAT IS MASONIC CHARITY?

We are often asked what is Masonic charity, and wherein it consists? and as we gather from conversation, and note from correspondence, that very different and fallacious views exist respecting it, we think it well to point out in these pages, both what, in our opinion, is charity and what is not. In the first place, there is a special paradox growing up amongst us, and often vehemently insisted on in postprandial orations, neither the most lucid, nor the most logical, which seems to confound, by some obliquity of the mental vision, all Masonic charity, with giving simply to the Metropolitan Charities. Now, this is a grave fallacy, and may do a great deal of harm to the Charities themselves, unless met and confuted. Masonic charity is alike multifarious and diversified in its operations and outcome. It begins with the old lodge "pedestal" in the provinces, it goes on in the Provincial Grand Lodge, it continues in the Grand Lodge Fund of Benevolence, and, often diverting to Provincial Educational, or Benevolent Institutions, culminating in the Metropolitan Masonic Charities. In the metropolis Masonic charity is simply threefold—beginning in the lodge, continuing in the Grand Lodge, and developed in the support of our great central institutions. It is impossible to give the figures here of what is voted in lodges, or by Provincial Grand Lodges for charity; but we know that the Grand Lodge has voted in round numbers £5,000, the highest amount in any one monthly Lodge of Benevolence being £765, the lowest being £203. If we could put together the whole amount given from all these sources of benevolence in 1878, the total would sum up to large figures; and as Freemasons, we should always seek to extend, as far as we can, the benevolent tendency and work of our excellent fraternity. It is undoubtedly true that too many lodges do but little for charity, and care too much for number one, but let us hope that we shall see a great improvement in this respect in 1879, and that many of our lodges and chapters may be awakened up, both to the sense of their own duty and the "excelling claims of charity." But having said this we think it well to put in a word of warning. We must not forget to say that any claim by any to concentrate Masonic charity on our Metropolitan charities, must end in a regrettable reaction, inasmuch as our Provincial brethren have several very useful educational and benevolent institutions that are now accumulating considerable sums, and if they are told that they ought to devote all their efforts to the London charities alone, they may be induced to become still more local and provincial in their support of their own special institutions. The central charities have such real and lasting claims on all thinking Masons, that they need neither "high falutin" nor "fantastic theories," nor "sentimental treatment," nor "exaggerated claims," to commend them to the support and sympathy of the Craft, to attract admiration, or to invoke the "fostering hand." They are bound up with the truest principles and most living practice of Freemasonry. They constitute the best of answers to the gainsayer or the scoffer; they exemplify in a remarkable degree the warm hearts and unselfish aims of English Masonry and they form a valid defence against rabid assailants, petulant objectors, and ignorant calumniators. What can fairly be said by way of complaint of an Order, which on the lowest calculation spends £50,000 annually in benevolence and charity? As Bro. Terry has put it, we may safely leave the value of Freemasonry to be tested by its many deeds of munificent and yet unostentatious charity. Avoiding any unreasonable positions or "hyperbolic arguments," let us endeavour to develop a true spirit of Masonic Charity in our well meaning and kindly Order, in all our lodges and chapters especially, and let it ever be distinguished by those characteristics which alone safely mark, in our humble opinion, true charity, namely, spontaneous gifts, sympathetic labours, cheerful almsgiving, and unostentatious doing good.

LITERARY PROGRESS.

We call attention to the announcement made in our columns last week, that Bro. W. J. Hughan, well known to us all, is just about to produce a valuable work called "Numismatical and Numerical Register of the United Grand Lodge of England." We heartily welcome this fresh addition to our Masonic literature, from the correct and able pen of Bro. Hughan, and we desiderate for it, and we feel sure it will receive, large patronage and universal support. Masonic History and Archæology, and above all "Lodge Life" in England past and present, owe a great deal to Bro. Hughan. He began his labours at a time when, in common with a small band of zealous students, (some now silent in their graves), the pathway of Masonic research and criticism was alike dim and dubious. He has laboured untiringly with others we could name, and "other men have entered" into his "labours," not always acknowledging the source from whence their "original facts" were derived! We who claim to be of the number of Bro. Hughan's fellow students, have better reason than most, nay, better opportunities certainly than any, to know his correctness of detail, his accuracy of research, and we admire sincerely both his remarkable clearness and his unselfish desire to communicate his knowledge to others. We shall await his promised work with interest, for we know we shall read it with pleasure and profit to ourselves.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even approving of, the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.]

A GRAND LODGE FOR NEW ZEALAND.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Under this head I notice a paragraph in your paper from your "Special Correspondent," stating that "some brethren hailing from New Zealand lodges, who are now in Sydney, having made every inquiry, are fully enlightened as to the correct modus operandi to be pursued, and so have decided to use every endeavour to ensure the erection of a Grand Lodge in New Zealand." I have no wish to throw any doubt upon the reliable character of your correspondent's information, but in the latter portion of the paragraph in question, he says, "the brethren throughout that Colony are unanimous in their desire for a Grand Lodge for New Zealand;" and this, I think, can hardly be the case, seeing that within the last two months two Past Masters of English lodges in New Zealand, have in writing to me, expressed a decided opinion against such a step being taken, one urging that it would be premature, and the other that the condition of the Craft would thereby be lowered in character. When I left New Zealand five years ago, the question of a Grand Lodge for that colony was being very generally discussed, and opinions were much divided; and I scarcely can think things have very much altered, from what I have heard, and I am in constant communication with several experienced Masons, resident in New Zealand. The statement that the movers in this matter have obtained their enlightenment in Sydney is, I submit, at this time, somewhat suspicious, and I can only express a hope that our New Zealand friends do not regard the "modus operandi" now being pursued by some of the New South Wales brethren as "correct." I take it that the great difficulty in the establishment of a Grand Lodge for New Zealand would be the selection of a Grand Master, and from what I know of the Craft there, I fear that this question alone would prove a stumbling-block at the outset. If our Bro. Sir George Grey (the present Premier), could be induced to accept the office he would probably be the best man available, and he is just now so popular in the colony that, perhaps, he might be acceptable to an immense majority of the brethren there; but every one acquainted with New Zealand is well aware of the rivalry existing between North and South, and between the various cities and settlements, and knows the almost insuperable difficulties at present standing in the way of any unanimous movement in the direction indicated. For my own part, as an individual Mason, I believe that the successful formation of a Grand Lodge of New Zealand, could be successfully achieved, would have a very beneficial effect on Masonry in that colony.

I am, yours fraternally,

VANITY FAIR (Christmas Number.) Tavistock-street, Covent-garden.

We have read the Winter Number of "Vanity Fair" with considerable interest, as not only a new "phasis" in our hebdomadal and Christmas literature, but as alike calling for some notice from its many special characteristics. On the whole we confess to a feeling of disappointment, though some of the papers are sure to find readers, and, we think, justly so. One great mistake in policy we feel will strike all critical readers, namely, the error of allowing both those well-known writers, Bret Harte and Lord Desart, to make their stories turn upon a nightmare, or "siesta-scare." And if, in one case, this uncomfortable state of things is brought about by the "Pork Chops" of a T.G., in the other it is equally caused by the "qualifying liqueur" of a "Free Vintner." In neither case do we find, we hope we shall be pardoned for saying so, the element of the "high or heroic," the "sympathetic or pathetic." Indeed, both dreams are as prosy and pointless as dreams can be. Bret Harte amusingly describes, however, the sacred laws of German "Mittagsessen." Jehu Junior, writes "selon nous" a very vapid and foolish tirade, and puts us in mind of an older "Jehu," with this difference, that whereas Jehu Senior drove, Jehu Junior writeth "furiously." We think his remarks neither connected nor patriotic. How true it is, still as ever, "Scrilimus docti, indoctique." "Li Jingolletti" appears to be marked by simple "batbos," and to be a piece of unmitigated "traah" from beginning to end. Who could have taken the trouble to put together such vapid nonsense and such pretentious childishness? The writer, to parody a famous dictum of Lord Beaconsfield in the greater strife of old, "mistakes personality for wit, and puerility for point." We like Lord Londonderry's honest and artless narrative, and the Meltonian reminiscences of Lady Florence Dixie, as well as the "Famous Runs" of the Duke of Beaufort. Lord Ronald Gower's paper is very true and affecting, and we venture to think useful even in the horrors it evokes, and the lessons it proclaims.

The Duke of Manchester might well give us a longer article on so interesting a subject, and Lady Stradbroke, and Countess Bathyan's suggestions are worth reading. We wish Lord Winchelsea would turn his happy gift of verse to a better purpose and another subject. We always remember gratefully his verses on the Duke of Wellington at Oxford, and sigh over a promise of high power and merit, so far not realized. Let us soon welcome something better from his "facile pen." We cannot profess to admire the special portrait of our Royal Grand Master.

SUTTON'S AMATEUR GUIDE.—Sutton and Sons, Reading.

We have been much struck with this goodly "Guide" and with its noble illustrations. It reflects great credit on Messrs. Sutton, alike for lucidity of detail and artistic excellence. We have turned over its pages with pleasure and astonishment and can only call the attention of all our readers to this last "deliverance" of a well-known firm, whose seeds and fame go everywhere. To all who interest themselves in gardens this Guide and Catalogue are simply invaluable.

THE GARDEN ORACLE. Edited by Shirley Hibberd, 11, Ave Maria Lane.

We have received and read with pleasure an old and valued friend. It is a "Vade mecum" for professional and amateur gardeners, and few there are who cannot profit by its contents or learn a lesson from its lore. We commend it confidently and conscientiously to the notice of all our Craft.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Committee of this Association took place at 1, Clifford's Inn, on Wednesday, the 8th inst., when several new members were elected, and other business was transacted. It was decided to hold a special general meeting of members at Freemasons' Tavern on Tuesday, January 21st, at 4.15.

Any brother, having been previously elected a member of the Association, (the Committee meets at four for that purpose), can recommend the case of any London candidate.

Bro. Viscount Mandeville was installed W.M. of the Union Lodge, No. 105, Tandaragee on Friday the 27th ult.

TWELFTH NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT AT THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Twelfth Night Entertainment given annually by the House Committee of this Institution to the children who do not go home for the Christmas holidays was given on Monday evening, the old-fashioned Christmas, when snow was on the ground, and hard-pinched poverty felt none of the enjoyments that tale and legend rejoice in relating to have been the accompaniments of the season being revived again. Twelfth Night followed on the same tack, and a severe white frost taking the place of snow brought out all the furs and warm wraps which were necessary to shield the visitors against the ill effects of a keen northerly wind. A heavy black fog all day got frozen as it hung over the metropolis, and covered everything out of doors with a thick coating of white which had all the appearance of a snow fall. The common in front of the Masonic Girls' School, at St. John's Hill, as well as the gardens in front of the establishment recalled the memory of the before-mentioned old-fashioned Christmases, and the building itself might very well have been mistaken for one of the old baronial halls where warm fires and reasonable cheer gave a hearty greeting to all who entered the doors. The building was lighted up early, and the fires were all aglow, and it was plain long before visitors entered the vestibule that a very pleasant evening was before them. The impression was strengthened on entering when the first objects to meet the eye were "Welcome," "A Merry Christmas," and "A Happy New Year," arranged amongst festoons of holly and other evergreens, and some forty little girls with as bright and sunny faces as any Mason who had assisted in placing them there could wish to see. The Matron, Governesses, and domestics were also looking as well as they themselves could have desired to be, and if any visitor had chanced not to be in the best of health, his ailments must speedily have taken wing when confronted with such universal signs of vigour and happiness. No visitor, however, appeared to be suffering from any bodily or mental malady, and every one seemed to have resolved to realise all the historical pleasures of Christmas and Twelfth Night. Bro. Joshua Nunn was the leading spirit among the hosts, and was exceedingly active in seeing that nothing was wanting that could add to the pleasure of the company. In the performance of his functions he was ably assisted by the other members of the House Committee, and it is due also to the Misses Chancellor, the daughters of Bro. J. G. Chancellor, to say that they most cheerfully rendered material aid by giving musical performances, and making every one feel perfectly at home. One little occurrence which happened was very amusing, and the more amusing because it was spontaneous and unstudied. Bro. Joshua Nunn, who is well known to all London Masons as the possessor of a long white beard and a healthy, cheerful face, was receiving visitors in the hall, when among one of the incoming parties of visitors was a very little child, who immediately she saw him exclaimed, "Oh, here's Old Father Christmas!" The little lady was more truthful than polite, for though Bro. Nunn's beard is grey, like the beads in the pictures of Old Father Christmas, Bro. Nunn, does not happen to be old. If the little lady had been older than she was she would have seen that at the beard and the cheerfulness of the countenance the resemblance stopped. We may add that though several brethren heard and enjoyed the joke, no one enjoyed it more than Bro. Nunn himself.

The entertainments of the evening commenced with tea at five o'clock, after which there was dancing, and then at seven o'clock the excellent dramatic performances of the Pickwick Histrionic Club, who performed the previous Wednesday with so much talent at the New Year's entertainment at the Benevolent Institution at Croydon. The following is the programme:—Pianofort: selection by Mr. G. S. Graham; this was followed by Craven's domestic drama, "The Chimney Corner," in which the characters were sustained as follows, Solomon Probity, Mr. E. Johnson; Peter Probity, Mr. Dupree; John Probity, Mr. E. Baker; Mr. Charles Chetty, Jun., Mr. Upton; Sifter, Mr. G. J. King; Grace Emery, Miss Fanny Perfit; Patty, Miss Lizzie Henderson. When this piece, which was thoroughly enjoyed both by the children and the visitors, was concluded, the children had their twelfth cake and other refreshments, together with bon-bons, in the centre, (annually presented by Bro. and Mrs. Hirsch) which is always a marked feature of this entertainment. A good half-hour having been devoted to this portion of the treat, the company again assembled in the schoolroom for the second part of the dramatic performance.

Mr. G. S. Graham then presented his "Musical Olio," Song, "Give me the Man of Honest Heart;" "The Muddle-Puddle Porter;" Organophonic Piccolo Solo (Selection), "Lucretia Borgia" (natural whistle and pianoforte accompaniment); "Adventures of Little Mr. Binks."

The performances concluded with Morton's farce, "Whitebait at Greenwich," Mr. Benjamin Buzzard, Mr. E. Johnson; Mr. Glimmer, Mr. Dupree; John Small, Mr. G. J. King; Miss Lucretia Buzzard, Miss Lizzie Henderson; Sally, Miss Fanny Perfit.

Supper and dancing wound up the evening, which from beginning to end was a complete success.

Among the company present were Bros. A. H. Tattershall, Mrs. Tattershall, Geo. Everett, Mrs. and Miss Everett, Thos. Cubitt, Mrs. and Miss Massey, Col. Burdett, F. R. W. Hedges (Sec.); H. C. Levander, Thos. W. White, and Miss White, Thomas Kingston, John A. Rucker, Henry Muggerridge, Miss Muggerridge, Mrs. Sack, Master Charlie Sack, R. B. Webster, J. G. Chancellor, Joshua Nunn, Miss Nunn, Miss Bennyfield, Frederick G. Rucker, John A. Rucker, jun., W. J. Weber, Col. Peters, Herbert Dickets and family, Louis Hirsch and Mrs. Hirsch, H. A. Dubois, two Masters and two Misses Dubois, John Faulkner, E. Letchworth, Mrs. Levander, the Misses Levander, and H. Massey (Freemason).

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creation presided, and there were also present Bros. C. J. Perceval, C. A. Cottebrune, John M. Stedwell, Wm. Hale, Hyde Pullen, Wm. Hilton, James Brett, John G. Stevens, W. Clarke, Thomas Cubitt, James Willing, jun., G. Ward Verry, Dr. Jabez Hogg, L. Stean, S. Rawson, Erasmus Wilson, Raynham W. Stewart and James Terry (Secretary).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the December meeting Bro. Terry reported the death of Bro. Benjamin Head, on the 24th of December.

The brethren then passed a vote of condolence with the family of the deceased, and a copy with a letter was directed to be forwarded by the Secretary.

Bro. Terry also reported the death of Bro. Quelch, (annuitant in the Asylum at Croydon, on the 4th inst.), Bro. J. H. Snell, (annuitant, Paignton, on the 22nd Decr. 1878), and Mrs. Emily Sturges, (annuitant, London, on the 12th Dec. 1878).

The Report of the Warden, and of the Finance Committee, were then read, and the Chairman was authorised to sign cheques.

The Committee then examined the petitions of 12 poor brethren and 11 widows, seeking election in May next, all of which petitions were found to be in order, and the petitions were placed on the list.

In consequence of the next meeting day of the Committee falling on the 12th of February, the day set apart for the festival of the Institution, the next meeting was fixed for Thursday, the 13th prox.

The list of candidates for next election was settled, when it appeared that there will then be 35 widows and 43 brethren seeking the benefits of the Institution.

The Committee then adjourned till the 13th of February.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall: Bro. W. Roebuck presided. There were likewise present Bros. Don. M. Dewar, Henry Dearsley, H. Muggeridge, A. Tisley, Rev. Richard Morris, LL.D., (Head Master), F. Adlard, D. R. Still, W. Mann, C. F. Matier, J. M. Dosell, S. Rosenthal, H. W. Hunt, W. F. C. Moutrie, H. Young, H. T. Thompson, J. H. Cox, J. G. Chancellor, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

A letter was read by the Secretary, which he had received from Bro. John Symonds, acknowledging the vote of thanks to him, passed at the last Quarterly Court, on his resignation of the office of Trustee, for his numerous past services to the Institution, and his able discharge of the duties of Trustee. The letter assured the brethren of the deep interest he still took in the welfare of the institution.

A very long list of petitions to be placed on the list of candidates for the April election were then examined, and by the close of the meeting fourteen were accepted. The list approved was as follows:—46 brought forward from last election, 8 new cases accepted at subsequent general committees, 14 accepted at this meeting, making 68; but to this number may have to be added three others which are accepted on the performance of some uncompleted-with conditions. There will be sixteen to be elected.

The Committee, after passing a vote of thanks to the Chairman, adjourned.

Among the other brethren who attended were Bros. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; S. Rawson, Past Dist. G.M. China; T. Cubitt, P.G.P.; W. Paas, W. F. C. Moutrie, J. M. Stedwell, W. Platt, H. Norman, F. R. W. Hedges (Sec. Girls' School); Jas. Brett, P.G.P.; M. Haydon, H. Massey (Freemason), T. Murlis, C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; B. H. Swallow, J. Hervey, George Kenning, H. Reed, 733; Robinson, 201; C. F. Hogard, C. Woods, E. Moody, 145, Chapter; J. C. Cox, E. J. Scott, C. Hunt, 194; W. Stephens, J. Hughes, 1257; F. De Leliva, 1426; R. J. Brand, 25; E. Stearnwitz, P.M. 435; J. G. Marsh, Elliott, Ireton, J. Coutts, P.G.P.; Gulliford, Limebeer, 1446; W. Mann, G. R. Sherrill, W. Ough, P.G.P.; H. G. Buss, Asst. G. Secretary; A. A. Pendlebury, H. A. Dubois, George Clarke, jun., H. C. Levander, W. W. Morgan, Charles Lacey, J. W. M. Dosell, George Newman, and D. W. Pearce.

The Rev. W. H. Frazer, St. Jude's, Gray's Inn, read the service in the chapel most impressively, after which the brethren re-formed, and followed the funeral cortege to the grave. On the coffin were placed several immortelles, among which was one brought by Bro. Scott, formed into the Royal Arch emblem, the Royal Arch in Freemasonry being Bro. Boyd's strong feature. At the grave, after the body had been lowered and the sprig of acacia reverently dropped upon it, the Rev. W. H. Frazer completed the service in the same feeling and impressive way in which he had read the portions in the chapel, and the mourners heartily echoing the "sure and certain hope of a resurrection to eternal life" for their dear Bro. Boyd, "drew a long, long sigh, and wept a last adieu."

The London correspondent of the Yorkshire Post, telegraphing his letter on Sunday evening, says:—
"There was buried on Saturday at Brompton Cemetery a Freemason whose name, face, and figure have long been familiar to Yorkshire brethren. Their acquaintance with him has been made by their frequent attendance at the Masonic charity festivals and elections, at all of which he was a regular visitor. Leeds, particularly, may claim this acquaintance, as nothing takes place in London at the large Masonic meetings when Captain J. Wordsworth and Mr. Henry Smith, the provincial Grand Secretary of West Yorkshire, are not among the brethren. To mention the name of John Boyd, Past Grand Pursuivant, will be only to mention the name of an intimate friend. This brother died suddenly on Monday last of heart disease, at the age of 69, and the deepest sorrow is felt by his brother Masons for his loss. The respect in which he was held was manifested by the largest gathering I have ever witnessed at the grave of a Freemason. The service was read by a brother Mason, the Rev. W. H. Frazer, of St. Jude's, Gray's Inn."

The London correspondent of the Liverpool Courier on the same night also telegraphed.

"A distinguished Freemason was buried at Brompton Cemetery yesterday. Mr. John Boyd, Past Grand Pursuivant of England, who died suddenly on Monday last, was laid to his rest amidst the largest assemblage of Freemasons I have ever witnessed at the funeral of a brother. The Grand Secretary and Assistant Grand Secretary, the Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, a Past District Grand Master of China, and other Masonic notabilities followed the deceased brother's remains. But knowing the man's character well after an acquaintanceship of many years, I can honestly say that no respect paid to his memory could be too great. The Masons of Liverpool knew him well, and they know what little volumes to hold up when speaking of John Boyd, they may say, 'Si monumentum quaeris circumspice.'"

The Daily Chronicle (London), on Monday, speaking on the same theme, says:—

"The remains of Mr. John Boyd, a Past Grand Pursuivant of the Grand Lodge of English Freemasons, were interred on Saturday in Brompton Cemetery. The deceased gentleman, who had for many years belonged to the brotherhood, took a leading part in all Masonic affairs, was a strong supporter of the Charities of the Order, and a highly skilled interpreter of the Masonic ceremonies, more especially those of the Holy Royal Arch. His great services to Freemasonry obtained for him at the hands of the Grand Master what is known in the Craft as the 'purple,' or, in other words, the distinguishing badges and insignia of a Grand Officer. Mr. Boyd, who was sixty-nine years of age, expired suddenly on Monday, the 30th ult., from heart disease. The funeral was attended by a very large number of Freemasons, and some beautiful Royal Arch emblems were deposited on the coffin.

BRO. P. W. BENHAM.

The Masonic fraternity has again suffered a severe loss by the death of Bro. P. W. Benham, who expired on Thursday, the 2nd inst., from an incurable malady, in the presence of an attached circle of friends. Deceased was one of the most active members of the Masonic Craft in Jersey, and until lately had carried on the business of a wine merchant, in which capacity he was also well-known. The mortal remains of deceased, who was a Past Master, laid in state at the Masonic Temple, Stortford-road, on Monday last, and the public were admitted to view the body from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening. The funeral took place on Tuesday, Jan. 7, with full Masonic honours, and the following was the order of procession:—

The procession was reformed in Bond-street, and then proceeded through Broad-street, Charing Cross, York-street, Parade, Cheapside, St. John's-road, to the Cemetery. The return was made by way of St. John's-road, Rouge Bouillon, Midvale-road, David-place, Stopford-road, to the Temple.

BRO. W. JENKIN THOMAS.

The funeral of W. Bro. Jenkin Thomas, P.P.G.S.W., took place on Saturday last at the Plymouth Cemetery. Several of the P.M.'s of the lodges St. John and Charity, of which he had been a member, attended; also several brother tradesmen of his craft, of which he was the senior in the town, who had known him as a prominent tradesman when they were serving their apprenticeships.

TANDARAGEE.—Union Lodge (No. 105).—This lodge met at the Union Masonic Hall upon St. John's Day, 27th December, for the purpose of installing officers for the ensuing year, and conferring degrees in the Royal Arch Chapter. The attendance was unusually large, including visiting brethren from Belfast, Portadown, Lurgan, Banbridge, and Newry. Bro. Viscount Mandeville, who had been unanimously elected Worshipful Master at a previous communication, was installed in the presence of Bro. M. C. Close, M.P., Provincial Grand Master. The other officers elected were Bros. Dr. James Taylor, S.W.; R. A. Johnston, J.W. and Sec.; Thomas Cousins, S.D.; Joseph J. Shannon, J.D.; James S. Burnett, P.M., J.G.; and J. Hardy, Treas. The degrees of the Royal Arch Chapter were conferred upon Bros. Taylor, Johnston, Burnett, and Gilpin in a most impressive manner by Bros. Lutton, Falloon, and Darragh. The business of the lodge being completed, the brethren repaired to the Manchester Hall, where they partook of a most sumptuous dinner.—Bro. Viscount Mandeville, M.P., occupying the chair. Amongst the visiting brethren present were—Bros. M. C. Close, M.P., P.G.M. for Armagh; Colonel M'Donald, Rothsay Castle; F. C. Crossle, M.D., Newry; Dr. S. Herron, W. J. Guy, Robert M'Clatchie, Robert Darragh, William Kilpatrick, Hugh Wallace, James Fordyce and Matthew Wilson, Portadown; William MacCormac and Joseph Anderson, Banbridge; Falloon and Maxwell, Lurgan; John Moody, Poyntzpass; Joseph Abbott, Tandragee; and Alex. A. Lutton, Belfast. Ample justice having been done to the dinner, Bro. Macauley made a most eloquent appeal on behalf of destitute brethren and their families, which was heartily responded to. After the toasts, "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Masters," and "The Provincial Grand Master" had been duly honoured, Bro. Close rose, and having thanked the brethren for the manner in which they had received his health in the latter capacity, proceeded to propose the health of Bro. Viscount Mandeville, the W.M. of 105, which was received most enthusiastically, and who, having thanked the brethren for the cordial manner in which they had welcomed him amongst them and received his health, asked them to join with him in toasting "The Visiting Brethren." Bro. Colonel M'Donald responded on behalf of the visitors in an appropriate speech. The Chairman next proposed "Prosperity to the Northern Masonic Mutual Benevolent Assurance Association," and expressed his satisfaction with its principles. In responding to this toast, Bro. Anderson explained very clearly the working of the society and the benefits which had resulted from similar institutions in America, and which he hoped would follow here. He expressed his conviction that the principles of this organisation would reach the entire Masonic system of Great Britain and Ireland, as it had in the U.S. of America; the plan was simple, cheap, and safe, and would infuse new life and energy into Masonry in these lands. The last toast of the evening was "The Health of the Dinner Committee," coupled with the names of Bros. Hardy, Macauley, and Taylor, which was responded to by Bro. Macauley in a concise, but graceful, manner. Upon the motion of Bro. Dr. Taylor, the second chair was taken by Bro. J. Hardy, who thanked Bro. Lord Mandeville for the manner in which he had conducted the meeting, after which the proceedings of the evening were brought to a close. At the conclusion, Bro. Viscount Mandeville asked Bro. Anderson to accept him as a member of the Northern Masonic Mutual Benevolent Association; subsequently his lordship expressed the pleasure it would give him to become one of its patrons. The headquarters of the Northern Masonic Mutual Benevolent Association is at Banbridge; the Secretary is Bro. Wm. MacCormac, Banbridge.

Masonic and General Tidings.

OLD, BLIND, AND IN WANT.—Bro. J. B. Monckton, President Bd. G.P., in announcing his intention to close the subscription for the above benevolent object, and publishing a statement of the amount received in our next issue, asks for a few additions to the list of donations, "which, though liberal and most serviceable, is capable of a little extension without exceeding the object in view." Bro. Monckton's letter reached us unfortunately too late for insertion.

We have received, and we acknowledge with fraternal regards and good wishes, felicitations for the New Year from Bros. Hubert, of Paris; Merkel, of Nurnberg; R. Mucklé, of Philadelphia; and the Grand Orient of Spain.

Her Majesty the Queen and their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh have graciously accepted copies of "In Memoriam," written by Bro. John Saffery.

We are informed that Bro. Emra Holmes's new book, "Amabel Vaughan," is now nearly complete. The publishers state that in consequence of there being so much more "copy" than was originally agreed upon, the publication will be necessarily delayed at least a fortnight.—Bro. Holmes is anxious that the subscribers shall have their money's worth—and will contain his tales and poems contributed to the "Masonic Magazine"; "Penny Post"; "South Wilts Express"; "South Durham and Cleveland Mercury"; "Sunderland Times"; "Western Daily Mercury"; "Royal Cornwall Gazette"; "Civil Service Review"; "West Briton"; "Lincolnshire Herald," and others, as well as Masonic Papers originally appearing in our own columns. Subscribers names may still be received at the office of this journal, and when we add that the object of the publication is not gain, but simply to benefit a well-known literary brother Mason who needs assistance, we think we have said enough to induce the charitably disposed in our fraternity to invest a half-crown in the little work and so help the unfortunate.

The installation meeting of the Eclectic Lodge was held on Friday. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

R. W. Baxter and Co., of Australian-avenue, Barbican, E.C., announce that they are opening up a branch house, in Cape Town, South Africa, and will be pleased to receive orders for Masonic Jewellery, Masonic Stationery, and Masonic Literature. Messrs. Baxter and Co., are the special agents for the Freemason, the "Masonic Magazine," the "Rosicrucian, and Masonic Record," and the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Pocket-Book."

The election of Professor Charles Darwin and Richard Owen, as foreign members of the Berlin Academy of Science have been confirmed by the Emperor of Germany.

A morning performance of Rossini's "Moses in Egypt," conducted by Bro. Sir Michael Costa, will be given by the Sacred Harmonic Society, at Exeter Hall, this (Saturday) afternoon.

ST. LUKE'S LODGE, No. 225, IPSWICH.—The following reply to a vote of condolence to the Queen, on the death of the Princess Alice, forwarded to the Home Secretary, on behalf of the above lodge, by Bro. T. J. Wentworth, W.M., a few days ago, has just been received.—"Whitehall, January 3rd, 1879. To T. Wentworth, Esq., Sir,—I have had the honour to lay before the Queen the loyal and dutiful address of the St. Luke's Lodge of Freemasons, 225, on the occasion of the death of Her Royal Highness the Princess Alice of Great Britain and Ireland, and Grand Duchess of Hesse. I have the satisfaction to inform you that her Majesty was pleased to receive the same very graciously. I am, Sir, your obedient servant, R. ASHETON Cross."

BRO. R. R. MORRIS, formerly of Norwich, Norfolk, England, has been re-elected Master of Webb Lodge, No. 24, Richmond, Indiana, U.S. Bro. Morris is Assistant Auditor of the P.C. and St. L.R.R. (Pan Handle), and by strict attention to business, and his genial manners, has won a host of friends, both in and out of the Order, in the land of his adoption.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE, No. 1642.—A report of the meeting of this lodge, which was held on Thursday last, will appear in our next.

ORDER OF ST. LAWRENCE THE MARTYR. At a meeting of the Ebor Lodge, held at York on Thursday, the 2nd inst., Bro. G. Simpson, J.W., was unanimously elected W.M. The installation has been fixed for the 15th inst.

CHRISTMAS AT THE POST OFFICE.—"So great," says the City Press, "was the pressure caused by the dispatch of the seasonable missives which passed through the Post Office at Christmas, that the whole of the sorting staff were engaged on the duty, and most, if not all, were at their posts from three o'clock on Monday afternoon until nine the next morning, and even then letter bags came in so fast that it was found necessary to leave quantities of letters over for later forwarding. The cheap registration system seems to have been largely taken advantage of, as on the morning of the day before Christmas 40,000 more packets passed through the office than usual."

The Lord Mayor, with Bro. Sheriff Burt and Bro. Sheriff Bevan, will attend in state on Sunday, the 19th January next, at the church of St. Pancras. The Rev. Canon Spence is to preach a sermon on behalf of the parish Scripture readers.

MAILS BETWEEN QUEENSTOWN AND HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA.—The following notification has been issued by the Post Office:—The line of packets hitherto employed in conveying mails between Queenstown and Halifax having been withdrawn for the winter, the mails for Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, &c., will, in future, be made up in London every Thursday evening for conveyance by Canadian packet for Londonderry.

On Tuesday evening last, in the presence of the Duke of Saxony and Prince William of Wurtemberg as witnesses, the marriage of the King of Holland with the Princess Emma of Waldeck-Prymont was celebrated with great solemnity at Arolsen.

The annual ball in aid of the funds of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, will take place at St. James's Hall on Thursday next.

"The Marquis of Lorne and H.R.H. the Princess Louise have decided to remain at Ottawa until the spring, when they contemplate a visit to Western Ontario. The statement that the Marquis intends to visit Quebec shortly is without foundation. Lord Lorne and the Princess will doubtless accept the hospitality of the citizens of Quebec during the summer, but not before."—Whitehall Review.

CAUSING A "RUN" UPON A BANK.—The Daily Chronicle states that it is understood that the directors of an important banking company of London and the provinces are about to try a very interesting case at law. A newly-appointed manager to one of their branches quite unintentionally hurt the feelings of a customer who was a brewer, and who as such received from dozens of public-houses in the surrounding country cheques and other means of making payments which are well-known to accumulate in the publican's till. With the view of punishing the offending bank manager, the brewer is represented to have sent a circular to all publicans concerned with him in business, cautioning them against taking the cheques on the bank concerned. The communication soon got known to the customers of the bank. A "run" ensued, and not much less than a quarter of a million of money was withdrawn at that one branch in consequence. The bank was prepared, and had nothing to fear; but the injury is very clear, and the directors are said to be resolved to see if they can get damages out of their mischievous enemy. The amount is placed at £10,000.

The Berkshampstead Lodge, No. 504, at its installation meeting on Wednesday, voted ten guineas to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to be placed on the list of Bro. W. C. Maddever, W.M., Steward for the next festival of 12th February.

The Thirtieth Annual Grand Masonic Ball, to which the public will be admitted, takes place at the Town Hall, Liverpool, on Tuesday next, the 14th inst. Tickets may be obtained at the Masonic Depot, 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

A Grand Masonic Ball will be held in the Town Hall, Congleton, on Wednesday, the 29th inst., under the banner of the Eaton Lodge (No. 533).

VEGETABLES ALL THE YEAR ROUND.—It should be the aim of everyone to grow their own vegetables. It is true economy besides being a pleasure. To do so is very simple and the greatest novice may soon be a good gardener, by purchasing "Sutton's Amateurs' Guide in Horticulture," the most practical work on gardening yet published. It should be read by everyone who has a garden, and may be had post free from Messrs. Sutton and Sons, the Queen's Seedsmen, Reading, for 15 stamps, or for 2s. at all Railway Bookstalls.

A Quarterly General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held at Freemasons' Hall, on Monday next, for the transaction of the business of the Institution. The chair will be taken at 12 o'clock.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR.—We rejoice to have to announce the publication for 1879, of the Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, edited, &c., by George Kenning. We have already had occasion in preceding years to offer our best compliments, and to express our best thanks both to Author and Editor, for presenting Freemasonry such a Vade-mecum, which unites with its convenience the greatest utility! It is almost marvellous to be able to include in so few pages, of such a size and with typographic characters so correct and readable, so much and such universal information on the Masonic jurisdictions of the world, their rites, their dignitaries, their lodges, and other supplementary details! The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar is a book which ought to be found in all Masonic Libraries, and which all Masons, especially those who travel, should have in their pocket. The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar is in English, but if even everybody only reads their own language, and though there may be some lines which are embarrassing, a brother is always to be found who will translate them. Therefore, it is not absolutely necessary to understand the English language, to furnish oneself with a Vade-mecum, which gives you the names of all existing Masonic Lodges and their respective Grand Lodges, points out to you the various Masonic "Obediences," known and regular, and their dignitaries, &c. We often receive letters asking us to name a Masonic Annual which can tell him who needs or desires to know it, in what town he is certain to find a working lodge; in what county he is sure of finding brethren. Dear brethren who thus write to me, obtain the Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar of Bro. George Kenning, and you will have always under your hand every facility for such information.—Translated from the "Chaine D'Union" for January, 1879.—See page 24.

The following stand over;— "Lodges and Charity," by P.M. 163; "Old Lodges" by T.W.F.; Reports of Lodges, 57, 164, 417, 1550; Chapter 1507; Mark Lodge, 69.

A Grand Masonic Ball, by special dispensation of the Prov. Grand Master, will be held in the Royal Public Rooms, Exeter, on Wednesday week, the 22nd inst. Full particulars may be obtained of Bro. Samuel Jones, 31, P.G.J.W. (Devon), 12, Longbrook-street, Exeter.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—[ADVT.]

BRO. JENKIN THOMAS.—On Saturday, the 4th inst., the mortal remains of Bro. Jenkin Thomas, printer and stationer, of Cornwall-street, Plymouth, were consigned to their last resting place at the Cemetery. The funeral was of a private character, but there were present representatives of St. John's and Charity of Freemasons.

The Freemason Card Almanack for 1879, with portraits of the Grand Masters of England, Ireland, and Scotland, is now ready, and may be obtained on application at the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London. Post free 2d.

An amateur evening concert will be given in the Langham Hall, Great Portland-street, London, W., on Monday, January the 27th.

Bro. Edmund Yates announces for April, No. 1 of "Time," a monthly miscellany of interesting and amusing literature.

Bro. W. H. Bickerton has been appointed by the Grand Lodge of Scotland, representative of the Grand Lodge of Hayti.

"A FREEMASON,"

An Extract from the Works of Zschokke. Translated from the German by BRO. ERNEST E. WULFF.

This little Brochure sets forth, in a lively and entertaining manner, most excellent arguments in favour of Freemasonry in its social and benevolent aspects, as against the opinions and prejudices (not always expressed) of many worthy people. The "Dramatis Personæ" are Dr. Solomon Wiseman, who, as may be surmised from his name, is the Champion of Freemasonry, and a Family of Quakers, and it will be found that the arguments of the Doctor, so eloquently expressed, led the worthy Quaker in the end to admit that he too, in a certain sense, was a Freemason.

ROYAL JUBILEE LODGE (72).—The installation meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, on Monday 6th inst. There were present Bros. W. Carr W.M.; F. Dunn, S.W.; J. Dunn, P.M., as J.W.; C. Chesterton, S.D.; A. Darch, J.D.; F. Thurston, I.G.; H. Webb, P.M.; Treasurer, J. Nunn, P.M. Sec.; E. Dodson, P.M.D.C.; J. N. Bate, W.S.; C. Rhodes, P.M.; J. Laskey, P.M.; T. Durkin, P.M.; T. Hines, P.M.; also a large gathering of the members. The lodge being opened the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. W. Chalk, J.W.; 1558, was elected a rejoicing member. There were five gentlemen for initiation viz:—Messrs. J. Morris, J. James, J. Shephard, J. Brand, and D. Woolf. The ceremony which was very ably performed by the W.M., was rendered still more effective by solemn and appropriate music. The lodge was opened in the second degree by the installing Master Bro. J. Nunn, P.M.; and Bro. F. Dunn, S.W.; W.M.; elect was presented, and the ceremony of installation was performed. The brethren below the degree of installed Master having been requested to withdraw, a board consisting of twenty-six installed Masters was formed, when Bro. F. Dunn was duly, and solemnly placed in the chair of K.S. Having been saluted and most cordially greeted by the Past Masters, the brethren were then admitted and saluted the W.M. in the several degrees. The installing Master then delivered the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, in a masterly and feeling manner which the brethren acknowledged with applause. The officers were then appointed for the ensuing year. The W.M., in a few appropriate sentences addressed each officer as he was invested as follows.—Bros. W. Carr, I.P.M.; C. Chesterton, S.W.; A. Darch, J.W.; F. Thurston, S.D.; J. N. Bate, J.D.; T. Brevortor, I.G.; E. Dodson, P.M.; D. C. W. Murray, A.D.C.; H. Webb, P.M.; W. S. and Treasurer; E. Walker, A.W.S. and J. Nunn P.M.; Sec. There were over forty visitors present, among whom we observed Bro. J. B. Atkinson, P.M. and Sec., Henglat, 195, P.P.G.S.D. Hants; D. Forbes, 948, P.M. 65; J. W. Cobham, P.M. 141; W. Dunn, 195; P. Vickery, J.W. 1475; J. Ebbelwhite, 11; H. Hammond, P.M. 1216; J. S. Lean, 1119; J. Ellis, S.D. 917; G. W. Wigglesworth, W.M. 975; J. Close, 463, and P.P.G.D.C. Surrey; W. Canton, P.M. 1269, 1475; J. Bourdelaine, 624; A. P. Fabian, P.M. 487, P.P.G.S.W. Hants; J. Greenway, 174; W. S. Larlbam, P.M. 1216; J. Garner, I.P.M. 1632; J. Biddle, W.M. 193; T. Foxall, P.M. 742, 1349; W. S. Cackett, P.M. 1558; C. Hampton, P.M. 179. The lodge being closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, presided over by the W.M. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and enthusiastically received, the I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M." wishing him a prosperous and harmonious year of office, to which the W.M. replied in a few appropriate remarks, at the conclusion of which he gave "The Health of I.P.M." and in a feeling manner said what pleasure it give him to place the splendid jewel on his breast, which the lodge had presented to him in recognition of his services. Bro. Carr briefly returned thanks. The W.M. then gave "The Initiates," which was responded to by each of the initiates. "The Health of the Visitors" was responded to by Bros. J. B. Atkinson, P.M. 195, P.P.G.S.D. Hants, D. Forbes, 948, P.M. 65, and several other brethren. The enjoyment of the evening was greatly enhanced by some excellent songs by various brethren of the lodge, accompanied by a professional brother.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst. at Anderson's Hotel. Bro. Isaac Buscall, W.M., opened the lodge, and raised Bro. Barker, Johnson, and Moseley; and passed Bro. Edwards. The Past Masters who attended were Bros. Ferguson, Foulger, Walford, Haydon, Elmes, and Everett. Bro. Ferguson, P.M., at the W.M.'s request, installed Bro. E. White, S.W. and W.M. elect, as W.M. for the ensuing year. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. H. B. Spink, S.W.; Capt. Harris, J.W.;

George Everett, P.M., Treas.; Morris, Sec.; McLean, S.D.; Herbage, J.D.; Kent, jun., I.G.; Pierpoint, W.S.; Foxcraft, D.C.; and John Daly, Tyler. When the ceremony of installation had been completed, a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Ferguson for his kindness. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren, to the number of ninety, sat down to an excellent banquet. The usual toasts followed. After the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, and the rest of the Grand Officers," Bro. Buscall, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." In doing so, he said he congratulated the brethren on their having placed in the chair that evening Bro. Edward White, as W.M. of the lodge. The brethren who had attended the lodge regularly had seen the way in which Bro. White had done his work in the various offices he had filled. He had now attained the highest position they could give him, and he was sure the brethren would join with him (Bro. Buscall) in congratulating Bro. White on having reached the chair. Bro. White was a child of the Domatic; he was initiated, passed, and raised in that lodge, and it was with peculiar pride and pleasure that he would occupy the chair. These were the sentiments which he (Bro. Buscall) felt, and the brethren would reciprocate what he expressed when he said he wished Bro. White a happy and successful year of office. When Bro. White left the chair in a twelve month's time he hoped he would succeed to the brethren's good wishes. The W.M., in reply, said these flattering terms were more than he deserved; but Bro. Buscall had said one thing which was perfectly true, and that was that the Domatic was his (the W.M.'s) mother lodge. He was initiated and passed in it, and raised that very night seven years ago. He had, therefore, served his apprenticeship before getting to the chair. He was very proud to be in that position, for the Domatic was one of the largest lodges in the Craft. It was a responsible position to hold, but he hoped with the brethren's assistance to be able to get through his work satisfactorily to the lodge and with credit to himself. The Domatic Lodge had a long and noble history, and he hoped he should do nothing to tarnish it. But in order to do the work with satisfaction all round he must have the brethren's assistance. He must look to the officers to attend to do their work and assist in keeping order in the lodge and at the banquet table. Bro. W. Stephens replied to the toast of "The Visitors," and in the course of his remarks, which were but brief, he said he had frequently enjoyed the hospitality of the Domatic Lodge. He wished the W.M. every success during his year, and he hoped the lodge would always have the repute of being one of the most hospitable lodges in the City of London. Bro. Draper also replied, and complimented Bro. Ferguson on the admirable manner in which he had delivered the addresses. He had never heard them delivered much better, for they were delivered in that kind tone and with that good feeling which made every word valuable. He had known Bro. White for some years. They belonged to the lodge which he (Bro. Draper) was now Master of, and he was indebted to Bro. White for bringing him to the Domatic, for he could not disguise the fact that it was an excellent lodge, not only numerous but distinguished. The brethren might congratulate themselves on having elected Bro. White as their W.M.; he was thoroughly proficient in the duties of a W.M., and there was nothing in Freemasonry that he was not acquainted with. He had the energy and ability to carry out the work, and he would do it to the brethren's satisfaction. The officers who had been appointed to serve under Bro. White were excellent officers, and there was a good prospect of the lodge having excellent Masters for several years to come. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. Ferguson, the Installing Master," and complimented him on the performance of the ceremony. Bro. Ferguson replied, and said the complimentary remarks the W.M. had been pleased to make about him were rather more than he deserved, though he could not say the W.M. had said anything that was not correct. The duty of a P.M. was to fill any vacancy that might occur in a lodge, from Inner Guard to Installing Master. Even if necessary to take the post of Outer Guard; and the duty of Deacons or Wardens he should always be ready to take on himself, and feel honoured by being asked to take them. It was, no doubt, a great honour to be called upon to instal the W.M. If he had performed that duty to the satisfaction of the brethren, even if it had been in a humble, halting way, it showed that he had tried to do credit to his position as a P.M. of the Domatic Lodge. He trusted that whenever he might be called upon to fill any vacant office he should do so, and whenever he was so called upon he would discharge his duty to the best of his ability. He took no credit to himself for what he had done, but he felt proud to find that the brethren were pleased, and he sincerely thanked them for the honour they had conferred upon him, by passing the vote of thanks to him for his humble efforts. In conclusion, he said he should always be pleased to be a member of the Domatic Lodge. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the P.M.'s of the Domatic Lodge." The P.M.'s, he said, were a very useful body in any lodge, and they were always willing, as Bro. Ferguson had proved, to do anything that was required of them. They had been very useful that evening, and had assisted to do the work of the Deacons. The I.P.M. had given entire satisfaction during his year of office, and had brought great credit on the Domatic Lodge. At the last meeting the brethren were pleased to testify their appreciation of his services by voting to him a Past Master's jewel. It was a very handsome jewel, and he (the W.M.) had great pleasure in decorating Bro. Buscall with it. He hoped that Bro. Buscall would long be spared to appear in the lodge with that jewel on his breast. (The W.M. here fastened a very handsome Past Masters' jewel on Bro. Buscall's left breast.) Bro. Buscall, I.P.M., in replying said that many persons had before that evening spoken of certain periods of their existence as the happiest moments of their lives, but he had never experienced what it was to have that feeling till now. The jewel which the brethren had voted, and the W.M. had presented to him was a very handsome jewel, and for that mark of the brethren's esteem he thanked the brethren most cordially. He should ever consider that gift as the greatest honour he had ever had conferred on him. As Bro. Ferguson had indicated what the duties of a P.M. were, he should have the greatest pleasure in carrying them out in his own person. His best endeavours would be used in promoting the interest of the lodge, and in contributing to its good working. He sincerely thanked the brethren for the hearty good way in which they had received the toast proposed by the W.M. and he also felt very grateful to the W.M. for the very complimentary terms he had employed in proposing the toast. As it was customary in the Domatic Lodge for all the Past Masters to reply to the toast he should leave it to those very able colleagues of his to add any observations which might supply deficiencies that might have occurred in the few remarks he had made. Bro. J. E. Walford, P.M., also replied. He observed that while the Past Masters were always ready to perform any duties in the lodge, the brethren at all times appreciated them, and were ever ready to acknowledge them. The brethren in a true Masonic spirit rallied round the Past Masters, and looked upon them as a body of brethren who having performed their duties in the chair, were not, when they had passed the chair tired of their work, but were ready again to enter the lists and work for the true interests of the lodge. Bro. George Everett, P.M., and Treasurer, said that having been promoted to a distinguished office in the lodge by the kindness of the brethren, he should reserve his observations for the time when his health in that capacity would be proposed. Bro. Frederick Smith, P.M., reiterated all that had been said by Bro. Walford, whose remarks he considered as a full and ample reply to the toast. He hoped that the Past Masters would continue to perform their duties to the lodge as they had performed them hitherto. Bro. Foulger, P.M., thought that if all the Past Masters replied it was a waste of time; but as a Past Master of the Domatic Lodge he felt it a great kindness for the brethren to remember the Past Masters. As a P.M., who felt very desirous for the prosperity of the lodge, it was a great gratification at any time to be called upon to perform the duties of any office which, from unavoidable circumstances might be vacant. Bro. M. Haydon, P.M. would simply say "ditto" to the observations made by the preceding P.M.s. Bro. Ferguson, P.M. congratulated Bro. White on being the first W.M. at whose installation Bro. Haydon had made a speech. (Laughter.) This must be a red letter day for the Domatic Lodge, as it was the only day on which such a distinguished Past Master as Bro. Haydon had favoured the brethren with any eulogium. (Cheers.) If the brethren appreciated the qualifications of the P.M.s, any officer, however low down on the rounds of the ladder, should endeavour so to discharge his duties that he might afterwards say to himself, when he arrived at that happy, quiet oasis in the desert, he had done his duty in every office he had filled. The brethren had complimented him very much that evening. He scarcely knew how any officer could conscientiously pass through the chair without having performed his duties properly and sit down among the Past Masters who had. He, therefore, thought it incumbent on every Master to perform his duties properly, and not only so, but to pass through all the previous grades with credit and honour. It was his great pride to act as a true and trusty Master, and he hoped that all the brethren who aspired to that high office would endeavour to acquire himself as a Mason should who reigned over such a lodge as the Domatic. The brethren who had been put into office might not care much for their positions, but might say that when they became Master they would do their work properly. That was not the proper feeling. When they obtained any position they were bound to do their duty in that position, and when they did so they were in a fair way to rival their predecessors in the chair. If they could surpass them, so much the better for the lodge, and all the Past Masters would be glad to find a meteor among them. The toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary" followed, and the W.M., in giving it, said that Bro. George Everett was the first to discover any merit in him. Bro. Everett, as one of the respondents to the toast, said that he was happy to find that in discovering merit in the W.M. he had not made a mistake, and he was sure now that the W.M. would do honour to the position he filled. As Treasurer he assured the brethren he should not shirk his duty, and he hoped when the first year of his office came to an end he should have the approval of the brethren. Bro. Morris also replied as Secretary. Bro. J. Terry, Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, responded for "The Masonic Charities," and reminded the brethren of the great success those Institutions have had during the last year, notwithstanding the great commercial depression. Wishing for even a brighter year in 1879 he trusted that the Domatic Lodge would support the Charities again as they had in the past. Referring to the number of members of the Domatic Lodge, he said that if each member gave 15s. to the Charities it would make an amount of £150. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings, which were most enjoyable throughout.

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188).—The Committee of the Benevolent Fund attached to this lodge, met on the 13th inst., at the Blue Post Tavern, Southampton Buildings, Hulborn, for the purpose of electing a President for the ensuing year. There was an unusually large number of Vice-Presidents as well as elected Committee in attendance, Bro. E. P. Albert, P.G.P.V.P., proposed, and Bro. S. L. Hickman, V.P., seconded, that Bro. Lewis Alexander, who had presided over them for some years past, be re-elected, Bro. Hickman in addressing the meeting spoke in very complimentary terms of Bro. L. Alexander, when the proposition was put to the meeting, by Bro. Spiegel, W.M. and Sen. V.P., which was carried unanimously.

ECLECTIC LODGE (No. 1201).—At Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, the Eclectic Lodge held its installation meeting on Friday last, Bro. Arthur E. Taylor, W.M., presiding and being well supported by his officers and a large attendance of lay members of the lodge. There were also a great many visitors present, among others Bros. Thos. Fenn, P.G.D.; W. H. Perryman, P.M. Fidelity, 3; Arthur Rule, P.M. Sphinx, 263; P. Dickinson, P.M. Royal Standard, 1298; T. Burham, P.M. Fidelity, 3; G. Brickland, W.M. Asaph, 1319; H. P. Reed, P.M.; and Lamer, Westbourne, 733; T. D. Berry, P.M. Manchester, 179; and Bro. Masey, W.M. West Kent, 1297, (Freemason). Previous to the installation Mr. Wm. Howard Paddle, having been balloted for and approved was initiated by the W.M. who performed the ceremony with his customary ability. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree and Bro. George William Saul, S.W. and W.M. elect was presented for installation and duly obligated; and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed he was installed in the chair of K.S. with the customary solemnity, and on the return of the brethren was proclaimed and saluted in the usual form, and then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Lee, S.W.; Moss, J.W.; Mander, Treas.; Watts, P.M. Sec.; Higgs, Organist; Bochm, S.D.; Dr. Lloyd, J.D.; Bro. Baylis, I.G., Bro. Harty, P.M. D.C., Bro. Bowley, Asst., D.C., Bro. Paice, W.S., Baveas, Asst., W.S., Tyler, Bro. Grant. The entire ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Taylor I.P.M., with the greatest precision, and the beautiful addresses which close the ceremony were rendered more impressive by the quiet earnestness of his delivery. At the close of the ceremony the W.M., presented Bro. Taylor with a handsome P.M. jewel with a few appropriate words, and Bro. Taylor in returning thanks said that he appreciated the very kind manner in which the jewel had been presented to him, that it had been his aim during his year of mastership to promote as far as he was able the prosperity of the lodge and the happiness of the brethren. If he had succeeded in doing that in addition to carrying out the ancient ceremonies he was thankful, and he should feel proud to wear the honor badge just presented to him, not only in his own lodge but in all lodges which he might have the honour to visit. The lodge was then closed and the brethren nearly ninety in number adjourned to the tavern to partake of an excellent banquet. On the removal of the cloth the customary loyal and masonic toasts were proposed from the chair and heartily responded to by the brethren. In reply to the toast of the Grand Officers,—Bro. T. Fenn, P.G.D. rose and said, Worshipful Master, I beg to thank you on the part of the many distinguished names you have mentioned, as well as for the other Grand Officers and in my own behalf, for the honour you have done us in proposing this toast. Since I last had the honour of being your guest the Grand Officers have to regret the loss of many useful and much respected members of their body. I will mention two as representing the two different vocations in which their masonic usefulness was the most conspicuous. First our amiable and universally respected Bro. Benjamin Head. His naturally beneficent character disposed him to devote his time and attention and his purse to the administration and support of the Masonic charities. For many years he was a member of the House Committees (I believe I am right in saying) of all the charities. Having no family of his own Bro. Head came to regard the little inmates of the schools almost as his own children, and for them he had always ready a kind word or a smile of encouragement. Doubtless many a silent tear was shed by those little ones when they heard that the grave had closed over their old friend's kindly face. Bro. Head will be long remembered and his death lamented by his brother Grand Officers. The second brother whose recent loss we have to deplore was one whose life of usefulness lay, for the most part in another direction. Bro. John Boyd although actively connected with the charities was principally conspicuous in the teaching of our rituals and lectures, particularly those in connection with the Royal Arch Degree. Brethren, subscription to the Charities is so constantly forced on our notice as a paramount duty that we might think Masonic Charity consisted of nothing else than giving away money to these Institutions, that this duty was the sole aim, the beginning and the end of Freemasonry, and to such an extent is importunity for subscriptions carried that at last we have descended (I suppose on the principle that the end justifies the means) to the lowest and in the opinion of many others as well as myself, the most degrading form of solicitation—the shilling lottery. No doubt these excellent Institutions ought to be well and liberally supported, whatever may be our individual opinion upon minor matters in connection with the management, but there are many amongst us who sincerely wish that this could be accomplished with less ostentation and obtrusiveness. Bro. Terry I hear has made a suggestion, which I cannot help thinking might in some form be one day adopted and might perhaps lead to this "consummation devoutly to be wished." His suggestion I believe was that a subscription of five shillings per annum to each of the Charities should be paid by every subscribing member of a lodge, and that in this way the Charities might be supplied with funds sufficient to render festivals and even elections unnecessary. Now, every member of a London lodge is obliged by the Constitutions to contribute 4s., and country lodges 2s., yearly to the Fund of Benevolence. This contribution being paid by lodges out of each member's yearly subscription is so little felt that Masons are not aware that they are contributors to this fund. Now, does it not seem possible (although, no doubt, there are difficulties in the way) that this mode of subscription might, with certain conditions and guarantees, be extended to the other charities? In round numbers this subscription to the Fund of Benevolence amounts to £8000 a year, namely, £2300 from the London lodges, and £5700 from the country lodges. If the contribution were uniformly 4s. this sum would be increased to £14,000, thus, 5s. would produce £17,500 for each of the Charities, or £52,606 for the three, which is £12,500 more than the amount subscribed last year. To this, however, might fairly be added, those really voluntary contributions which would, I believe, be forthcoming without solicitation, so that we see the figures go far to confirm Bro. Terry's theory. In the present competition for subscriptions, the Stewards of the Charities are held up so persistently before our eyes, that such humble labours as those of our Bro. Boyd are apt to be overlooked. Yet the labours of the Masonic teacher are surely not without their usefulness? I can bear testimony from my long experience in the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, of the beneficial effects of a careful teaching of the ritual. The teaching of this lodge has undoubtedly been the cause, both directly and indirectly, of a marked improvement in the manner in which the work of the lodge is performed. Carelessness and irreverence, which were rife twenty years ago, are now quite the exception, and Masters now emulate each other in their endeavours to impress their candidates by a serious and earnest delivery of the ritual. Bro. Boyd's labours were, as I have already said, particularly directed to the beautiful ceremonies of the Royal Arch, which he invariably taught with that peculiar care and seriousness which their solemn and sacred language demands. His labours in this direction have not been without their effect, and in Bro. Boyd's death I consider we have lost one of our most useful and earnest workers. So shall we all pass away from our Masonic labours when the time shall come for our eternal rest, but we may feel assured—such is the internal vitality of Masonry—that there will never be wanting, brethren equally zealous, and with equal ability to fill the vacant places of those that are gone. The brethren having met at the banquet table much later than was intended, the various toasts were proposed in very brief speeches, which were responded to as briefly. There was nothing of interest to the general body of Freemasons. The W.M., returned thanks when his health, which was proposed by Bro. Taylor I.P.M. was drunk, with acclamation, but the only additional remarks he made referred merely to Lodge matters which would not interest our readers. In the intervals between the toasts and the replies the company were entertained with vocal and instrumental music. Bro. G. S. Graham, the popular buffo vocalist and organophonist (which being interpreted means whistler) amused his audience with some good songs, and whistling with a pianoforte accompaniment.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1642).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 9th inst., in the Ladbroke Hall, Notting-hill, Bro. Samuel H. Parkhouse presiding, supported by his officers, Bros. G. M. Lander, S.W.; Samuel Smout, J.W.; G. Penn, P.M. Treas.; J. W. Murliss, P.M., Sec.; C. Darby Reade, S.D.; Samuel Smout, jun., J.D.; F. Delevanti, Org.; John Woodmason, Steward; Frederick C. Frye, I.G.; Robert Schofield, P.M., Tyler; and Wm. Stephens, P.M. The following is a list of members present:—W. M. Buckland, F. E. Pocock, J. H. Wood, Wm. Oldrey, W. F. French, E. Rogers, J. T. Newlana, R. E. Green, C. Rowlands, W. R. Bushman, G. A. Williams, T. W. Heath, R. H. Pearson, J. Linscott, J. Whittlesea, J. Rutherglen, John R. Roberts, J. Hempton, R. Reid, W. V. Hook, H. T. Rule, and Caleb Manchester. The visitors present were Bros. J. P. Manchester, 1214; E. P. Albert, P.G.P., 188, 1017; Charles Bates 901; Alfred Ginger, J.W. 901; W. H. Beauchamp, 167; Henry Whitret, P.M. 511; Alfred B. Griffiths, 420 (New Zealand); James Hood, 201; W. F. Savage, P.M. 1425; E. P. Van Norden, 188; and A. H. Chisholm, 154 (Freemason). The lodge having been opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Murliss then referred, in feeling terms, to the death of Bro. J. Boyd, remarking that this was the first death that had occurred in the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Bushman and French having been duly examined and found qualified for raising, it was opened in the Third Degree, and those brethren were formally raised. The next business before the meeting being to pass Bro. G. F. Rule, the lodge was closed in the Third Degree, and after Bro. Rule had satisfactorily undergone the usual preliminary examination he was duly passed. The lodge being closed in the Second Degree, Mr. M. E. Russell Lochner, proposed by Bro. Rutherglen, and seconded by Bro. Murliss, was balloted for, and having been unanimously elected, was initiated in the usual form. This constituting the business of the lodge, it was closed in the customary form, and it is only right to add that Bro. Parkhouse, for the first time acting as W.M., conducted the ceremonies with unflinching accuracy and ability. The brethren then retired to the banquet room adjoining the lodge which was tastefully decorated with flowers, and partook of a sumptuous repast, presided over by the W.M. The arrangements for the banquet were carried out by Bro. Linscott, in a praiseworthy manner, everything being of the most recherché description. In proposing "The Health of the Queen and the Craft," Bro. Parkhouse alluded in touching terms to the death of the Princess Alice, observing that there were none of Her Majesty's subjects who more heartily sympathised with her in her bereavement than Freemasons. The toast was duly honoured, the brethren remaining standing while they sang "God Save the Queen." The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Prince of Wales, the M.W.G.M.," remarking that His Royal Highness was a great credit to the country in general and to Freemasonry in particular; whether at home or abroad he was always received with the greatest enthusiasm. The toast of "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W.P.G.M." was then drunk and was followed by that of "The Health of the Right Hon. the Earl of Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers." Bro. E. P. Albert, P.G.P. suitably replied. Bro. Penn, P.M., then said it was his pleasing duty to propose "The Health of the W.M." He could not speak so highly of the way in which the W.M. had done his duties that evening, bearing in mind the fact that two years ago he was ignorant of Freemasonry as he (the speaker) was, and that was bad enough. The W.M. had done all he could to promote the interests of the lodge, and he (the speaker) was sure that it would prosper under his tenure of office. The W.M. having very suitably replied, said that he had very great pleasure in proposing "The Health of Bro. M. Russell Lochner, the newly-initiated Brother." The toast was drunk with the greatest enthusiasm, and in the absence of Bro. Lochner, who was obliged to go away on professional business, Bro. Rutherglen replied for him. In proposing the toast of "The Visitors," the W.M. said the brethren of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge were always very glad to see a number of visitors among them, and always endeavoured as far as possible to provide for their comfort. The visitors were not, however, so numerous on that occasion as they generally were, but what they wanted in number they made up in quality. Bros. Griffiths, Hood, and Albert replied, the former of whom remarking that he might never have the pleasure of meeting any of the brethren in New Zealand, but if any of them ever were there, he could assure them of receiving a hearty welcome, for Freemasonry was as well represented in New Zealand as it was in any other country. The toast of "The Health of the Past Masters" was next proposed, immediately after which Bros. W. Gordon and Locock Webb, P.G.D., whom the pressure of professional engagements had prevented from attending the banquet at an earlier period of the evening entered the room amid loud cheers. Bros. Penn, Murliss, and Stephens then briefly acknowledged the toast, the latter observing that Bro. Penn, the Immediate Past Master, said he intended to surpass him (the speaker) in the amount he would raise for the Charities. Well, he should endeavour to do all that he possibly could for Bro. Penn in this laudable object, so that he might eclipse him (the speaker) altogether. He, himself, took £270 for the girls; and if Bro. Penn did not succeed in getting 300 guineas for the boys, he was much mistaken. The lodge had entered into the spirit of Freemasonry to the fullest extent as far as Charities went, and he was sure that Bro. Penn would find very little difficulty in making up that sum. He concluded by announcing that he would give ten pounds towards this object. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of Bro. Locock Webb," who, in responding, said that he valued very highly the way in which they had been good enough to receive his humble name. He had listened with very great pleasure to the remarks that had fallen from the preceding speaker with reference to the success of the lodge. The W.M. had referred to the interest he had taken from the first in the success of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. Well, he might say that he was present at its foundation, and he had little doubt then, when he knew the character and determination of those who took the leading part in its formation, that it would soon secure success. But he was surprised at the great advance it had made. As far as he knew it was almost unprecedented, that a lodge in so short a time should have accumulated so largely in numbers, and more than that, have been able to assist so much the excellent Charities, which it was the duty of the Craft to do. The charitable objects of Freemasonry, not merely in this country but abroad, had done more than anything else to raise Freemasons highly in the estimation of the world. He had on several occasions had the pleasure of witnessing their working, and he must congratulate the brethren on the excellent way in which the working of the lodge had been carried out. In concluding, Bro. Webb trusted the W.M. would preside over the lodge in high credit to himself and advantage to the brethren, setting a bright example to those who followed him, and that those who succeeded him might, like him, hold the office for the benefit of the lodge. "The Officers of the Lodge" was next proposed and suitably replied to by Bros. Lander and Samuel Imont. In replying to "The Health of the Lay Members" Bro. Gordon said it was only from a strict sense of duty that he withdrew from office in the lodge, and solely for this reason that he thought that it was of the highest importance that those who undertook duties in this or any other lodge should have time to give proper attention to them. He found it absolutely impossible to do so, and he felt he was not doing his duty to the lodge if he accepted an office in it which he could not properly discharge. He thought it was not right of any one to stand in the way of those who had greater opportunities of giving more attention to their work. Yet he would say this, that there was not a member who took a greater interest in the prosperity of the lodge than he did, and in the elevation of the present W.M. in his post he was sure they would have one who would discharge his duties with great energy and zeal, and a desire to further the welfare of the lodge, and he would have a great task before him to beat in these respects his admirable predecessor. The next toast was "The Masonic Charities" to which Bro. Penn replied. He regretted that the charities had not an abler member to represent them during the forthcoming season. Yet he did not think he would experience much difficulty in making up the sum of which Bro. Stephens had spoken. At the present time he had something like £195 on his list, which included fifty guineas from the lodge itself, and they had a ball coming on directly, from which he expected fifty guineas more, and that would bring the sum up to almost within fifty guineas of Bro. Stephens' anticipated £300. The brethren all knew how much the Charities deserved support, and he was quite sure that they would not allow him, their Immediate Past Master, to come off disappointed, which he would do if he did not take 300 guineas. During the evening Bro. Delevanti played some excellent music on the organ; Bro. Heath contributed a solo on the cornet; and Bros. Rowlands, Van Norden, and Smout, jun., sang several songs. The Tyler's toast was then duly honoured, and the brethren separated.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Medina Lodge (No. 35).—The new W.M. of this lodge Bro. Asher Barfield, the S.W. of the past year, was on Thursday installed by Bro. T. W. Faulkner, P.M., in the presence of a good attendance of brethren. The Master invested the following brethren as his officers for the year:—Bros. Wyatt, I.P.M.; Penton, S.W.; Mursell, J.W.; H. H. Wheeler, S.D.; Patch, J.D.; Mannall, I.G.; Munt, Tyler; J. G. Wheeler, Treas; Giles, Sec.; J. G. Jones, Org.; and Rev. W. Barker, Chaplain. The brethren afterwards sat down to a very elegant dinner at the Glaston Hotel, and the evening was spent in that harmony which at all times characterises such gatherings.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—A regular meeting was held on the 2nd inst. at the Masonic Hall, at which the following brethren were present:—Bros. F. Wilkinson, W.M., in the chair; F. J. Brown, I.P.M., P.G.S.W. Somerset; Rubie, P.M., acting S.W.; P. Braham, J.W.; Wm. Hunt, Sec., pro tem.; T. P. Ashley, P.M., Treas.; Thos. Ames, acting S.D.; C. W. Radway, J.D.; J. J. Robinson, I.G.; W. L. Baldwin, Org.; Bigwood, Tyler; Mercer and Holmes, Stewards. In the absence of Bro. Wilton, D.C., Bro. Ashley kindly undertook the duties; there were also present Bros. Wilton, jun., Cater, C. Wilkinson, T. B. Moutrie, and visitors, J. Innes, 369, E.C.; Gen. Doherty, C.B., P.P.G.S.W. Somerset, P.M. 906. The lodge was opened at 7.45 and the minutes were read and confirmed. Letters read from Bro. Dr. Hopkins, apologising for absence on account of illness, and others of minor importance, which the Secretary was instructed to attend to. The W.M., Bro. F. Wilkinson, announced he had a present to make to the lodge, viz., a handsome silk embroidered banner, which had been especially worked by his wife, Mrs. Wilkinson, in whose name he duly presented it. Bro. F. J. Brown proposed, and Bro. Ashley seconded, a cordial vote of thanks for the very handsome gift, which was carried by acclamation. The W.M. replied in suitable terms. A letter was read from the Prov. Grand Lodge, announcing a lodge of emergency to be held at Taunton, on January 13th, for the dedication of a Masonic Hall, at which Lord Carnarvon intended to be present. The brethren were invited to attend. The Prov. Grand Lodge accounts were also received. Bro. Willis was then carefully examined, and duly passed to the Second Degree, and entrusted with the secrets, &c., by the W.M. After a few remarks from the W.M., eulogising the careful manner in which Bro. P. Braham, J.W., had performed his duties, and a kindly introduction by Bro. Moutrie, of Bro. Braham, as Master elect, ballot was taken, which proved unanimous. Bro. Braham returned thanks, and appointed Stewards to conduct the banquet to be held at Bro. Rubie's, Castle Hotel, on the night of the installation. Bro. Moutrie proposed, and Bro. Cater, seconded, the election of Bro. T. B. Ashley, P.M., as Treasurer, which was carried unanimously by acclamation. Bro. Ashley returned thanks in most happy terms, he having filled the office for many years. Bro. Rubie then addressed the lodge in the most earnest and feeling manner, as to presenting to Bro. Wilkinson, the W.M., a suitable recognition of his valuable services, as Master of the lodge, during two years of his office, and proposed that a small committee be formed to consider a suitable manner of carrying out the same. The motion was heartily seconded by Bro. Ashley. Bro. Wilton, jun., addressed the lodge on the same, conveying a special message from his father, D.C., who was unavoidably absent, entirely concurring in the motion. Bro. Radway made a few suitable remarks on the same, and a committee was appointed. Bro. Radway proposed, and Bro. Brown seconded, that a sum not exceeding ten guineas be placed at the disposal of the Committee for the purchase of the testimonial. Bro. Moutrie proposed, and Bro. C. Wilkinson seconded, that a suitable staff and mounting for the banner be provided, and that the banner be placed behind the Master's chair at each lodge meeting. Bro. Rubie proposed, and Bro. Braham seconded, that Bro. Bigwood be elected Tyler for the ensuing year. The usual grant was made to the Stewards of the banquet. Bro. Gen. Doherty, P.M., &c., announced he intended visiting the Masonic School for Girls in May next, to represent the province. The question of amount to be voted was postponed till next lodge. There being no further business, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony and solemn prayer at 9.30 p.m.

YORK.—Humber Lodge (No. 57).—Recently the annual installation of officers of this lodge took place, Bro. Henry Toozee being installed W.M. for the ensuing year by the Worshipful Bro. J. P. Bell, D.P.G.M., assisted by Bro. G. Hardy, P.M. No. 250, and Bro. W. Reynolds, P.M. No. 250. Bro. Toozee then appointed and invested the following brethren his officers:—Bros. Thos. Thompson, I.P.M.; I. D. Wing, S.W.; R. Beevers, J.W.; W. Tesseyma, P.M., Chaplain and Charity Steward; John Fountain, Treas.; W. B. Hay, P.M., M.D., Treasurer of the B. and P. tor, S.D.; R. Pexton, J.D.; W. W. Thachrah, D.C.; G. D. Storry, Org.; W. D. North, I.G.; E. Kidd, Steward. E. Lancaster, W. B. Wilkinson, James Matthews, W. H. Sumner, M. J. Martensen, James Fox, and Chas. Borrill, Assistant Stewards; Crier, Tyler; and Lowe, Assistant Tyler. After the installation ceremony a banquet, provided by Bro. W. Shepherdson, was held in the banqueting hall of the lodge, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly acknowledged, several brethren being present from the sister and distant lodges.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—This old lodge which claims to be the mother lodge in unbroken succession for more than half a century past of the Prov. Grand Master, the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and the Prov. Grand Secretary of Hampshire, and for a long portion of that time, as at present, both the two last named Prov. Grand Officers, celebrated the festival of St. John, (which it formerly observed twice a year), at the installation of its W.M. last Thursday. The attendance included the Deputy Prov. Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. Hickman), and Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, Prov. Grand Secretary, (both Past Masters of the lodge), with Bros. G. Dunlop, (the senior P.M.), E. Booth, the W.M.'s. of the Peace and Harmony, Southampton and Shirley Lodges, and other leading brethren of the lodge and the Craft in the town. The retiring W.M., Bro. C. John Phillips, after a passing and a raising, installed his successor, Bro. C. W. A. Jellicoe, the retiring S.W. of the lodge and Treasurer of the borough of Southampton, the retiring I.P.M., Bro. R. Sharpe, assisting by giving the charges. The newly-installed W.M. subsequently invested the officers for the year as follows:—Bros. James Cole, S.W.; Sydney Myer, J.W.; Rev. A. A. Dupont, Chaplain; Robert Sharpe, P.M., Treas.; J. R. Weston, P.M., Sec.; Pike, Org.; Geo. Davies, S.D.; James Robertson, J.D.; F. Obree, I.G.; C. A. Dyer, P.M., D.C.; C. Marshall and Baird, Stewards; Biggs, Tyler; and Vane, assistant Tyler. Before the lodge closed a vote of thanks and a Past Master's jewel were awarded to the retiring Master in recognition of his discharge of the duties during his year of office. These included two degrees on seven out of the twelve monthly meetings, one of these embracing five passings, and another four raisings, besides three initiations on one night, two on another, &c. Thirty brethren afterwards partook of the installation banquet, provided by Bro. Dartnall, of the High-street, and during the subsequent proceedings many congratulations were tendered to this old lodge and its new W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and advantage was taken by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master of the presence of the Mayor of Southampton, as one of the Past Masters of the lodge, of proposing his health, both in recognition of the loyalty of Masons towards the powers that be, and by way of congratulating the lodge on so many of its members having from time to time occupied the civic chair in Southampton. A charming selection of music on the harmonium by Bro. R. Sharpe, with several songs by various brethren gave a pleasing variety to one of the most genial of annual Masonic gatherings.

RINGWOOD.—Unity Lodge (No. 132).—This old Hampshire Lodge held its annual installation of W.M. on the 7th inst., when Bro. A. W. Ward, the retiring S.W., was placed in that position by his brother, P. M. Horatio Ward, now of Canterbury, a Past Prov. J.W. of Wiltshire, there being present some half-a-dozen Past Masters of the Ringwood and other lodges. In due course the following were invested as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. the Rev. G. C. Brown, I.P.M.; Stephen Masters, S.W.; G. S. Stock, J.W.; E. Low, Treas.; W. E. Alexander, Sec.; Geo. Palmer, S.D.; C. Heddon, J.D.; Albert Taylor, I.G.; and C. Elliott (for 30 years Tyler of the Lodge, which has passed its centenary) Tyler. Before the closing of the Lodge, on the proposition of Bro. Brouncker, P.M., seconded by P. M. Hicks, acting I.P.M., a cordial vote of thanks was awarded Bro. H. Ward for his very satisfactory and impressive installation. Following an excellent dinner, supplied by Host Low, and which gave every satisfaction to about twenty brethren, the newly-elected W.M. embraced the opportunity, in proposing the Prov. Grand Lodge, of congratulating the Lodge on the fact that during the past two years, after remaining for a very long period without provincial honours, two of their brethren had secured the purple—Bros. Dr. Dyer, the retiring I.P.M., and E. Low, an influence which he trusted might continue to be experienced by one of the oldest lodges in the province. The toast was acknowledged by both the brethren named. The health of the new master was very cordially received, and acknowledged in an excellent speech, full of good feeling and Masonic spirit. "The Visitors" was acknowledged by Bro. C. John Phillips, W.M. of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, 130, Southampton, and Bro. Wyndham, of Wimborne, representing several neighbouring lodges. Bro. H. Ward took advantage of the opportunity of speaking to say that although a native of Ringwood, from which, however, he had been absent five-and-twenty years, his present was his first appearance in the lodge, and he naturally experienced more than ordinary pleasure in attending to instal his brother. Several very pleasant hours were spent by the brethren in social intercourse before separating, after one of the most successful installation meetings for some years.

SIDMOUTH.—Perseverance Lodge (No. 164).—The annual meeting of the members of this lodge took place at the London Hotel, for the purpose of appointing the officers for the ensuing year. Bro. F. H. H. Orchard, the W.M. elect, was installed by V.W. Bro. B. J. Hodge. The following officers were then duly appointed and invested:—Bros. R. Thornton Thornton, I.P.M.; W. T. Orchard, S.W.; Edgar, J.W.; Rev. R. Beebe, Chap.; J. Yelverton, Sec.; G. Beard, S.D.; W. Chatworthy, J.D.; B. T. Hodge, Org.; J. A. Orchard, D.C.; G. King, S.S.; J. Perriman, I.G.; H. Paull, Tyler. The banquet was held in the large room of the Hotel, and the brethren could not too highly express their appreciation of the catering of Mr. W. Coulson. The visiting brethren also spoke in eulogistic terms of the banquet, and its moderate cost, and compared it most favourably with the expensive spreads which induces the brethren to forego what ought to be a pleasant and general gathering, instead of an uncomfortable and costly dinner.

GUERNSEY.—Mariners Lodge (No. 168).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 1st inst., a goodly number of brethren being present. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for three candidates for Freemasonry, which being favourable, Mr. Wright, one of the candidates, was duly admitted and initiated, according to ancient custom, by the W.M., Bro. R. Smythson. Bro. Reed, being questioned, was entrusted and passed out. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Reed was admitted and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when the W.M. elect, Bro. J. Gallienne, P.D.P.G.M. and P.M. 84, having solemnly renewed his obligation, taken when previously installed, was duly invested and installed by a Board of Installed Masters. The brethren below the rank of Installed Masters, who had retired, were then recalled, and the usual salutations, &c., given in the Three Degrees, under the able direction of the Installing Master, Bro. R. Smythson, after which the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. R. Smythson, I.P.M.; F. Clarke, P.M., S.W.; H. Dunn, J.W.; H. Watkins, P.M., Treas. (re-elected); W. De Jersey, P.M., Sec.; H. Quick, S.D.; W. Courtenay, J.D.; H. Saunders, I.G.; and S. Baker, Tyler. The Treasurer having given a flourishing account of the funds, proposed that the sum of ten guineas be given as a donation to the Aged Freemasons' Benevolent Institution, and two guineas each to the Boys' and Girls' Schools. This was ably seconded by the J.W., Bro. H. Dunn, and unanimously carried by the lodge. A joining member being proposed, and "Hearty good wishes" given from Lodges 570 (I.C.), and 1023, the lodge was closed in form. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting room, where justice was done to an excellent spread, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M.; the Tyler's toast, at 11 o'clock, bringing a pleasant evening to a conclusion.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—There was on Wednesday, the 8th inst., a large muster of the Masonic brethren at the Freemasons' Hall, Halford-street, to witness the ceremony of the installation of the W.M. elect of this lodge, the attendance, which included at least twelve P.M.'s, being testimony alike to the harmony and cordiality with which the old lodge is always conducted, and of the high esteem in which the W.M. elect, Bro. Councillor S. Cleaver, is held by the brethren. Amongst those present were Wor. Bros. W. Kelly, P.M., P.P.G.M.; Bros. S. S. Partridge, Prov. G. Sec.; Thos. Worthington, P.M. 50; H. Hitchman, P.M. 455, P.G.J.W.; G. W. Statham, W.M. St. John's; Clement E. Stretton, I.P.M.; J. W. Smith, P.M.; J. M'Alister, P.M.; J. Baines, P.M. 523; R. A. Barber, P.M.; S. Cleaver, S.W. and W.M. elect; J. Farndale, J.W.; the Rev. J. H. Smith, Chaplain; Cornelius Gurden, Treasurer; Councillor J. Jessop, S.D.; Thos. Coltman, J.D.; T. H. Scott, Organist; J. B. Ashby, I.G. 50; Jos. Cleming, 163; Richard Taylor, W.M. 523; W. H. Chamberlain, 523; C. P. Chamberlain, 523; Joseph Young, J.W. 523; A. Ross, 523; G. B. Atkins, 523; W. L. Emmerson, 523; J. H. Hale, W.M. 737; W. Beaumont Smith, Thos. P. Pickering, W. E. Jefferson, Fredk. Crick, W. H. Bastick, M. A. Cook, R. Michie, S. A. Marris, John Young, Francis Dawson, Robt. Dudgeon, John Clifton, J. Roadknight, Edward Newton, jun., W. Tomlin, Chas. Stevens, W. Faire, Jas. Tanser, and Thomas Dunn, Tylers. The lodge was opened by Bro. Statham, the retiring W.M., all the officers being in their respective places, except two, who were unavoidably absent. After the transaction of the ordinary business, Wor. Bro. Kelly, who has for so very many years ably officiated as the Installing Master at St. John's, as well as at a good number of other lodges in the provinces, and who had kindly consented again to discharge the important duty on this occasion, took the chair, and proceeded to instal the W.M. elect in the most impressive manner. This done, Bro. Cleaver appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year, Bros. Statham, I.P.M.; Farndale, S.W.; the Rev. J. H. Smith, Headmaster of Dulwich College, J.W. and Chaplain; Gurden, Treas. (re-elected); Orlando Law (unavoidably absent), Sec.; Thos. Coltman, S.D.; L. P. Chamberlain, J.D.; Newton, D.C.; Faire, I.G.; H. Scott, Org. (re-appointed); M. A. Cooke and Fredk. Crick, Stewards. On the motion of Bro. M'Alister, P.M., seconded by Bro. Clement E. Stretton, P.M., it was unanimously resolved that a P.M.'s jewel should be presented to Bro. C. W. Statham, as a mark of esteem and appreciation of his services in the chair during the past year. The remaining business of the lodge having been transacted, the brethren sat down to a grand banquet under the presidency of the newly installed W.M., who was supported by Wor. Bro. Kelly, P.P. G.M., his worship the Mayor (Wor. Bro. Ald. Stretton, P.M., P.G.S.W.), and all the brethren who had attended the lodge, as well as numerous others who were unable to be present earlier. The usual Masonic and loyal toasts were duly honoured, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, several of the brethren at intervals singing capital songs, in which they were accompanied on the piano by Bro. T. H. Scott, who also favoured the company by one of his masterly performances of a solo on the pianoforte.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (281).—The annual meeting for the installation of W.M., and investiture of officers of the Lodge of Fortitude of Free and Accepted Masons was held on the 27th ult., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, St. Leonard-gate. Bro. J. Jowett, the retiring W.M., presided and there was a good attendance of members. The W.M., elect (Bro. E. Cardell) was duly presented by Bro. Whimpray, P.M., and Bro. Simpson P.M., and installed by Bro. Jowett, who officiated as installing master, and went through the ceremony in a highly impressive and efficient manner. The W.M. then invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows: I.P.M., Bro. Jowett; S.W., Bro. W. Warbrick; J.W., Bro. J. J. Crockett; Treas., Bro. James Hatch; Sec., Bro. John Hatch; S.D., Bro. John Atkinson; J.D., Bro. John Pilkington; I.G., Bro. B. Gregson; Org., Bro. Aldous; S.S., Bro. E. Johnson; J.S., Bro. Bayley; D. of C., Bro. R. Stanton. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the King's Arms hotel, where the installation banquet was held, under the presidency of the newly-installed W.M. After the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, amongst the latter being that of Bro. Dr. Moore, regret being expressed that the state of his health prevented his being present amongst them. The toasts were interspersed with songs, and a very pleasant evening was spent.—The monthly meeting of the above Lodge was held on the 8th inst., under the presidency of Bro. Cardwell. There was not a very large attendance. The lodge having been opened in the first degree, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed, and several communications read. Bro. Jowett I.P.M., then gave a lecture on "The Symbolism of the Masonic Apron." The lecture an original one, was very interesting, and did great credit to Bro. Jowett's knowledge of Masonic lore. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was passed to him. The usual proclamations were then made, and the lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony and silent prayer.

YORK.—St. Patrick's Lodge (No. 295) (I.C.)—The annual installation meeting of this military lodge, which is attached to the 4th Royal Irish Dragoon Guards, at present lying in York Barracks, was held at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance of visitors, consisting chiefly of brethren from the local lodges. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M. (Bro. Major T. B. Shaw-Hellier), Bro. J. Todd, P.M. and Treas. 236, Prov. G. Reg., presided, amongst others present being Bros. J. S. Cumberland, W.M. 1611; G. Balmford, P.M. 236, P.P.G.O.; W. C. Lukis, W.M. De Grey and Ripon, 837; F. B. Whythead, P.M. 1611, Prov. G.D.C.; and others. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by Bro. J. Todd, assisted by Bro. T. B. Whythead, and the W.M. (Bro. J. Hanly) appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. L. Murphy, S.W.; M. C. S. Tynne, J.W.; Wm. Harris, Sec.; James Pedley, Treas.; J. Somers, S.D.; Walter Flint, J.D.; Hy. Lewis, I.G.; J. Gladman, Tyler. An excellent supper, supplied by Bro. J. Toss, followed the closing of the lodge, at which the W.M. presided, and proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. "Prosperity to the St. Patrick's Lodge," "The Health of the W.M.," "Prosperity to the York and Eboracum Lodges," "The Visitors," and other toasts followed, and a pleasant evening was passed.

MALTA.—Lodge of St. John and St. Paul (No. 349)—The brethren belonging to (this influential and admirably conducted lodge, and a number of visitors, mustered in strong force in the Masonic Hall, Strada Streeta, on St. John's Day, December 27th, for the purpose of assisting at the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Lieut. Coffery, R.A. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., and the minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Walton, the retiring W.M., vacated the chair, thus closing his useful and prosperous year of office. The chair was then taken by Bro. Kingston, the W. D.G.M., and the W.M. elect having been presented to him by Bros. P.M.'s Rotherham and Doherty, he proceeded with the ceremony of installation, which he performed in the able, impressive, and effective style which characterises all his Masonic working, and which never fails to elicit the sympathy and approbation of those present. The following brethren were subsequently invested as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. W. Watson, I.P.M.; E. Rosenbusch, D.D.G.M., Treas. (for the fourteenth time); Jones, S.W.; Littledale, J.W.; J. W. Starkey, Sec.; L. Schaefer, S.D.; Godwin, J.D.; Saviles, I.G.; Beck, Tyler. Three candidates were proposed for initiation at the next regular meeting, and the lodge was then closed in ancient form, and with solemn prayer. The brethren retired to the adjoining refreshment room, where they sat down to an excellent collation, provided by the active and able Tyler, Bro. Beck. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed in appropriate terms, by the W.M., and met with the hearty reception and response which they always call forth in Masonic assemblies. "The Health of the W. D.G.M., Bro. Kingston," followed, and was responded to with the manifest pleasure, fervour, and empressement which his popular personal qualities, impartial and conciliatory manners, as well as his long, useful, and successful Masonic career, never fail to elicit from every lodge and every member under his jurisdiction. In acknowledging the toast, Bro. Kingston thanked the officers and brethren present for their continued kindness, and the manifestations of their good-will and approbation. It had been his constant aim and earnest study to fulfil the important duties appertaining to his high and responsible position honestly, impartially, and to the best of his ability; and if the expressions of kindness and approval which were so constantly accorded him by the brethren in his district, might be taken as indications of success, certainly he might reasonably conclude that his endeavours had been, so far, tolerably effective. His aims and aspirations in the past would, he could assure them, be those of the future and he would continue, as far as he was able, to disseminate and carry out the great principles of masonry, promote its benevolent purposes, and so perform his responsible duties as to merit and secure a continuance of their esteem and approbation, as well as the satisfaction and approval of Grand Lodge. The health of the W.M. was then given, and was greeted with evident and hearty marks of pleasure and approbation. In responding, Bro. Coffery said that he most heartily thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him by placing him in the most honorable position to which a mason could aspire. He felt the honour more intensely because he was, comparatively, a very young mason and very little right to expect such a result. He could only assure them, that his constant and undeviating purpose and endeavour would be to do honour to their choice by conscientiously performing the agenda, and promoting the interests of the lodge over which they had so kindly selected him to preside. There might be many shortcomings in his working but these would, certainly, not be the results of either inattention or the want of an earnest desire to perform his duties efficiently. The health of the I.P.M. Bro. Watson, was subsequently proposed and was received and responded to with tokens of pleasure and hearty enthusiasm. Bro. Watson, in acknowledging the toast, said that he felt greatly affected and gratified by the complimentary terms in which his health had been proposed, and by the hearty manner in which it had been received. These appreciative expressions and indications were especially pleasing and gratifying on the present occasion, because they might, he hoped, be taken as proofs that he had succeeded in executing the duties of W.M. in such a manner as to gain their esteem and approval. When they did him the great and unexpected honour of electing him W.M. of the Lodge of St. John and St. Paul he was, comparatively a stranger to many of them. But the brotherly greeting, hearty welcome, and able assistance they so readily accorded him, greatly pleased and encouraged him; and made him anxious and determined to do all in his power to carry on the duties of his important and honourable office as efficiently as possible and maintain the prestige of the lodge and leave this chair as unsullied as he found it. At first, he certainly looked forward with a considerable amount of diffidence and fear, and saw many shortcomings and defects looming in the distance, but by their kind forbearance and sympathy, and the able co-operation and assistance of his officers the agenda of the lodge had in his thinking been performed effectively and in harmony. He was proud to say that his year of office had not only been a pleasing and harmonious one, but also a successful and prosperous. They had not held fewer than thirty meetings and worked thirty-eight degrees. Eighteen candidates had been initiated, nineteen passed, and fourteen raised, and eight admitted as joining members. He was sorry, in one sense, that the departure of some of Her Majesty's ships and removal of certain regiments had prevented five of the brethren completing their degrees, but he hoped that some of them would return and have the pleasure of being raised by the present able and efficient W.M. He confessed that neither the character nor the prosperity of a lodge could be justly estimated by the number of initiations and members. Quality as well as quantity must be taken into account. But he believed that in the past year they had been fortunate in those admitted, for, in his thinking, they were such as would do honour to that lodge in particular, and the Craft in general. He again, most emphatically, thanked the officers and brethren for their continued indulgence, kindness, and support, and congratulated them on having made such a wise and prudent choice in selecting for their W.M. Bro. Coffery, who, as they all knew, had worked so diligently and well as S.W. "The Health of the Visiting Brethren" and Tyler's toast terminated a pleasant and successful evening.

SANDBACK.—Samaritan Lodge (No. 368)—The annual meeting of this old Lodge was held on Wednesday, January 8th at the Masonic Rooms at three o'clock. The lodge was opened by the D.M., Bro. L. R. Jones, assisted by Bros. Rev. Thomas Lunt, S.W., W.M. Elect; E. Furnivall, J.W.; T. Dalton, S.D.; R. Finlow, J.D.; J. Wakefield Jun., I.G.; J. C. Hilditch, Sec.; J. W. McGill, P.M.; P. Prov. J.A.D. Cer.; Markin, P.M., Prov. G.D.; George W. Latham, Past Grand Deacon of England; J. Tomlinson, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D.; J. Hulme, P.M.; J. Arden, P.M.; S. Carter, P.M.; P. Jackson, P.W.; F. Leach, P. The Lodge was opened in due form with prayer when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confounded. The lodge being opened in the second degree the W.M. in the name of the lodge asked Bro. John Bowes to take the chair as Installing Master. The W.M. Elect, the Rev. Thos. Lunt was then presented for the benefit of installation and the first part of the ceremony being completed the lodge was opened in the third degree. The Installing Master then requested Bros. McGill and Makin to take the Wardens' chairs, and the collars and jewels being collected, all below the degree of Installed Masters, except the W.M. Elect, retired. Bro. Rev. Thos. Lunt being entrusted, retired, and a Board of Installed Masters was opened in ample form, the W.M. Elect admitted and installed in the chair of K. S. according to ancient custom. After the usual greeting, salutation, and proclamation by the W. brethren, the lodge was called off and the cement applied. Labour resumed, the Board was closed, and the brethren of the several degrees re-admitted, and the usual greetings, salutations, proclamations, and presentations made. The W.M. then nominated and invested his officers for the ensuing year, each of whom was addressed by the Installing Master, and subsequently the ancient charges to the Master, Wardens, and brethren were delivered by the same brother. The ceremony being completed, Bro. J. W. Latham said they were indebted to Bro. Bowes for the able manner in which he had worked the ceremony and the earnest impressiveness in which he had conveyed the great Masonic truths of their ritual. He proposed that the thanks of the lodge be accorded to him and begged him to believe that he suggested no empty compliment. The vote was carried by acclamation, and Bro. having suitably responded the remainder of the business was completed, the lodge closed and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where an abundance of good things awaited them. Grace after meat being said the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. We were much impressed by the earnest dignity with which the W.M. conducted the proceedings and the clear and intelligent exposition he gave of Masonic principles. In proposing the Installing Master's health, he acknowledged his deep obligations to Bro. Bowes and paid a high compliment to that brother with respect to his rendering of the beautiful ceremony of installation. In responding to the toast of "The Visitors" Bro. Buxton said he did not remember spending a more pleasant day than he had on this occasion. He did not know which most pleased him—the installation ceremony or the utterances of the W.M. With both he had been delighted and felt greatly indebted to Bro. Gilbert for inviting him. The Tyler's toast was proposed about nine and the brethren separated in harmony, well pleased with the day's proceedings.

DORCHESTER.—Faith and Unanimity Lodge (No. 417)—The installation of the W.M. elect of this lodge, Bro. W. E. Brymer, took place on the 1st of January. It was a most successful meeting in every way, an unusually large number of the brethren being present on the occasion, besides numerous visitors from other lodges. Amongst the latter were Bro. Montague J. Guest, P.G. Master for Dorset, Bros. G. Burt and G. R. Crickmay, P.P.S.G. Wardens, Dorset. The Installing-Master was the retiring W.M., Bro. W. H. Dean, who performed the whole of the ceremony in the most efficient manner, and whose eloquence a high, but pre-eminently deserved tribute was paid by the P.G.M. The brethren were greatly edified by W. Bro. Dean's discharge of this important duty, and, without exception, they regarded with admiration the facility with which the work was done. Bro. W. E. Brymer, W.M. appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. W. H. Dean, I.P.M.; J. Rowe, S.W.; T. M. Dron, J.W.; H. Everitt, Chap.; A. H. Lock, Sec.; R. D. Thorton, S.D.; J. Robinson, Junior, J.D.; J. Robinson, P.M., D.C.; H. P. Raikes, Org.; J. E. Stroud, I.G.; C. Parsons, P.M., and W. Osmond, P.M., Stewards; W. Talbot, Tyler. After the closing of the lodge, the brethren assembled round the banqueting-table, where the usual Masonic toasts were honoured; and a very happy evening was spent.

SALFORD.—Zetland Lodge (No. 851)—On Wednesday, the 8th inst., the usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Albert Hotel, the W.M., Bro. John Thos. Watts, in the chair. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. John Barnes was then initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M. Bro. T. Alcock having given the necessary proofs of his proficiency in the First Degree, he was passed to the Fellow Craft by Bro. Samuel Heathcote, P.M., in a very impressive manner. Bro. Heathcote then presented Bro. Robert Holland, the W.M. elect, to hear the ancient charges and regulations, read by Bro. Wm. Naylor, the Secretary, after which all the brethren below the chair retired, and a Board of Installed Masters was declared. Bro. Robert Holland was then duly installed as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing twelve months in a very efficient and impressive manner by Bro. J. T. Watts, I.P.M. The brethren were then admitted, and the W.M. appointed his officers—Bros. J. Hardy, S.W.; T. Heyworth, J.W.; J. G. Edge, Treas.; W. Wheeler, Sec.; T. Conroy, S.D.; G. Bingham, J.D.; W. Young, Chap.; Thos. Batty, Org.; W. Naylor, I.G.; W. Hill, Tyler; who were invested with the collars and jewels of their respective offices by Bro. Uriah Nicholls, P.P.G.P. The lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer at 6 o'clock, p.m. The brethren (upwards of forty) then prepared to celebrate the festival of St. John the Evangelist with a most sumptuous banquet, served by the worthy host in an excellent manner. The W.M., Bro. Holland, presiding, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. The toast of "The W.M." having been received with great approbation, and replied to in a neat and effective speech, Bro. W. Riddell, P.M., then proposed "The Health of Bro. John Thos. Watts, I.P.M.," referring to the admirable way in which he had performed his duties during the past year, also the efficient manner he had done the installation ceremony. Bro. Holland, W.M., then presented a Past Master's jewel to him in the name of the brethren of his lodge, as a token of their appreciation of his zealous services on behalf of Freemasonry, which was received and acknowledged in suitable terms. The remaining toasts were "The P.M.'s," "The Visiting Brethren," "All Poor and Distressed Masons," &c., all of which were cordially received and duly honoured. The proceedings were enlivened by songs, recitations, &c., given by several of the brethren, and terminated about 11 o'clock.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of installation, the W.M. in a very able manner initiated Mr. Pooley into the mysteries of the Craft. A petition was presented for the formation of a new lodge at Shoeburyness, which was recommended by the lodge. After a vote of thanks to Bro. A. Lucking for his able services as Installing Master, the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, which, with the handsome decorations of the room, reflected great credit on the host of the Middleton Hotel, Bro. B. M. Johnstone. On the cloth being withdrawn the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to. In response to Bro. Binkes earnest appeal on behalf of the Masonic Charities, the W.M. expressed his intention to serve as Steward at the next festival of the Boys' School. LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The installation meeting of the members of this lodge was held on the 6th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum. Bro. A. Sheriff, W.M., presided. The lodge having been opened with solemn prayer, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second and Third Degrees by Bro. John Hatch, P.M. and Sec. 281, officiating as Installing Master, in the absence of Bro. Moore, P.G.S.B. of L., through indisposition. Bro. N. Holme, the W.M. elect, was then presented for installation, and made the necessary declaration. The brethren below the degree of P.M. then retired from the lodge room, and a lodge of Past Masters having been formed, Bro. Helme was duly installed into the high and honoured office of W.M. The brethren were then re-admitted, and the newly-installed W.M. was proclaimed according to ancient rights and custom, and with the usual formalities. The W.M. then invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Sheriff, I.P.M.; George Taylor, S.W.; J. T. Jackson, J.W.; W. J. Sly, Treas.; H. The brethren subsequently adjourned to the King's Arms Hotel, where the installation banquet was spread, the newly-installed W.M. occupying the seat of honour at the head of the table. Two usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and a very enjoyable evening was spent, the post-prandial proceedings being enlivened by the harmony of some of the brethren.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Shirly Lodge (No. 1112).—Bro. F. H. McCalmont, the S.W. for the past year, Past Prov. Grand Registrar Oxon, was last week installed as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master Bro. W. Hickman, one of the Past Masters of the lodge, amidst a good attendance of brethren, the installed Masters among them numbering a dozen. The W.M. subsequently invested the following officers, the clothing and silver jewels being a new set, supplied principally at the expense of the new Master, who also presented the lodge with a supply of charge glasses.—Bros. Parkinson, S.W. and Steward; R. Harfield, P.M. 130, J.W.; C. Crew, (re-elected) Treas.; J. T. Fletcher, Sec.; Venables, S.D.; Mayoys, J.D.; E. Sharpe, P.M. 130, D.C.; Martin, sen., I.G.; and Vane, Tyler. Before the lodge adjourned to refreshment thanks were voted to the retiring Master, Bro. J. E. Tucker, ac-his services during the past year, and a satisfactory report was given as to the future prospects of the lodge.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—If the above young but vigorous lodge goes on increasing at the same ratio as it has during the last twelve months under the judicious and courteous rule of Bro. Manning, the W.M., Bro. West, the worthy and esteemed host of the lodge house, the Three Crowns, will have to enlarge, not only the lodge room itself but the neat little supper cosy, where his friends love to gather round his comfortable and hospitable board, for on Tuesday, the 7th inst., the lodge was crowded, perhaps, not inconveniently, but, nevertheless, crowded by the members and visitors who gathered to see the excellent and careful working of the W.M. and his officers. "There is a tide in the affairs of man, &c.," and there can be no doubt that this especially applies to communities. The Henley Lodge has been up and down rather severely during its short but eventful career, but like the noble hearted man whose name it bears, whose gigantic establishment at North Woolwich, once the field from which many a store was garnered, but which now lies silent and deserted, still struggles on toiling and hoping, and climbing up higher and higher each day. It has felt the cold breath of inanition fanning, chilling its very life, but the heart of it has never despaired. Aided by firm and faithful hands it has surmounted all difficulties, and now both in strength and talent, takes its position, and worthily too, among the first lodges of the metropolis. Upon the occasion under notice, Bro. Manning was supported by the following officers and Past Masters, Bros. W. T. Turner, S.W.; J. Ives, Sec. and P.M.; Dr. Vance, S.D.; E. Lloyd, J.D.; C. S. Boardman, Org.; J. A. Elder, I.G.; Jas. Palmer, Steward; A. W. Page, P.M. 1076, Tyler; and Past Masters E. West and W. Graham. The visitors included Bros. W. Gilbert, P.M. 1317, and P.P.G.J.W. Herefordshire; J. Paul, 1287; H. White, 405; Thos. Budgett, 405; C. R. Adam, 212; W. J. Burgess, 1664; Wood, 700; Hawkins, 700; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The work before the lodge consisted of the raising of Bros. Lewis and Cash. The passing of Bros. Ball and Young, and the initiation of Mr. T. Feast. The whole of this heavy list of work was admirably performed by the W.M., nor must we forget to render praise to merit where it is due, and Bro. Lloyd filled the J.W.'s chair at a moment's notice admirably. A high compliment was then paid to Bro. Jolly, he being unanimously elected an honorary member for services rendered to the lodge through the Freemason, and Bro. Jolly returned his sincere thanks for the great honour paid him. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the "snuggery," where a prettily arranged tempting collation awaited them. Having settled that important question, a move was made to the social board, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and received right Masonically. The speeches were much as per usual. The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, proposed by Bro. Graham, spoke sadly of the inevitable hour that was fast arriving when he should have to resign into the hands of one well worthy of it, the symbol of his office, but pleasantly of the year and its results. He said that harmony in its fullest attributes had reigned in the lodge. Its strength had increased, and his earnest wish was for its continued prosperity under his successor. The evident feeling of the W.M. was understood and appreciated, and truly he has deserved well of the lodge. "The Initiate," "The Visitors," and "The Officers," were the other toasts, and then a most enjoyable meeting was concluded.

MANCHESTER.—Avon Lodge (No. 1633).—This new and rising lodge held its second installation meeting on Thursday, the 26th ult., at the Lodge Rooms, Denmark Hotel, Greenleys. At 3 o'clock the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. W. Leigh. There were about 50 brethren present, including several visitors of distinction. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree when Bro. W. Bostock, P.M., assumed the office of Installing Master, and ably and impressively placed Bro. J. D. Brickles, the W.M. elect, in the chair of K.S. When the brethren had greeted the newly-installed W.M. in the various degrees, the following officers were invested by the W.M. assisted by Bro. T. J. Hooper, P.M., P.P.G. Treas., viz.:—Bros. A. Painter, S.W.; A. B. Whittaker, J.W.; W. Bostock, P.M., Treas.; H. Bracewell, Sec.; G. Macfarlane, S.D.; S. McKellen, J.D.; W. Brown, I.G.; T. J. Hooper, P.M., D.C.; B. Smith, Org.; G. Yates, Steward. A vote was proposed and unanimously carried for a grant to the Masonic Charities, and the lodge was closed, after which the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which was presided over by Bro. Brickles, W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and "The Health of the W.M." was ably proposed and enthusiastically received. Bro. Brickles, in reply, assured the brethren that nothing should be wanting on his part to promote the prosperity of the Avon Lodge. Bro. Painter, S.W., proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Leigh," and presented him with a P.M.'s jewel, as a mark of esteem from the members of the lodge. The toast of "The Installing Master," "The Masonic Charities," and "The Officers," were proposed and suitably responded to, and the proceedings of the evening were enlivened with songs, glees, and recitations, contributed by members of the lodge.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER (No. 1507).

A convocation of this chapter was held on the 2nd inst., at Metropolitan Club, Pentonville-road, King's Cross. Present:—Comps. Willing, M.E.Z.; J. R. Stacey, (Morning Advertiser), H.; W. J. Ferguson, J.; W. M. Stiles, S.E.; Hudson, S.N.; John Douglass (Standard and Park Theatres), P.S.; also Comps. J. G. Humphreys, No. 157, in an impressive and earnest manner, Bro. Holt, (Daily Telegraph), and Side, who were to have been exalted at this convocation, were absent through illness. Numerous propositions for joining having been given in, the companions adjourned to the banquet, which was served in a very creditable manner by Bro. C. Cox the spirited proprietor of the club. In the course of the evening, which was enlivened by some beautiful and appropriate singing, notably a comic song by the Scribe E. Comp. Stiles, the M.E.Z. alluded to the satisfaction of the members at seeing the M.E.Z. of the Kennington Chapter present. Comp. Everett, whose genial eloquence is universally admired, bore witness, in his reply, to the excellent working by the officers of the chapter, from the M.E.Z. downwards, and said that the present meeting was one of the happiest he had ever spent, and hoped to be again invited. The M.E.Z. congratulated the companions upon the financial state of the chapter, and expressed his conviction that the next two meetings would see the chapter with their magnificent paraphernalia entirely paid for, there being no other liability, and he further stated that if the companions continued to act together in harmony as at present the chapter would prove not only one of the best appointed, but one of the happiest in London. The companions separated at a late hour expressing themselves very pleased at the meeting, and adjourning until the first Thursday in February.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER OF IMPROVEMENT (No. 975).

Jermyn Boyd, on the death of his father, Comp. John Boyd, P.Z., was unanimously carried.

The ceremony was impressively performed by the W.M., ably assisted by his officers, and great praise is due to one and all for the manner in which they discharged their duties. Other business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in harmony.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 18, 1879.

THE QUARTERLY COURT OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The Quarterly Court of the Girls' School on Saturday last was a most important one, and resulted in some great changes in the laws of the Institution, which had been previously submitted to the careful consideration of a joint committee representing the two Institutions. The main changes in the laws are the substitution of seven years for five years of lodge subscription, and the refusal to allow a second orphan of the same family to be educated at the same time, except the "number of vacancies be in excess of the number of candidates." It was originally proposed to make the seven years "consecutive," but the word "consecutive" was expunged, and Bro. Rawson proposed, though we could not see the cogency of his remarks, not to allow a female orphan to have a brother at the same time educated in the Boys' School. It was quite proper, we think, to discourage two orphans from the same family, while so many applicants seek admission into the school, but we entirely dissent from Bro. Rawson's proposal, as we think all our readers will do. The proposal to make it a "sine qua non," that the father of an orphan should have been a "subscriber to one of the Institutions," was very properly rejected by an overwhelming majority, and we cannot profess to realize any proposition more unwise or inexpedient in itself, or more utterly unworthy of Freemasonry. If it be true that the children of brethren who do nothing for Freemasonry are recipients of its benefits, as no doubt it is—if such be an abuse of a great charity, which we are not altogether prepared to admit, if the Girls' School be a charity, it must be specifically dealt with; but as "two blacks do not make one white," so we are not to do "evil that good may come," and by a dereliction of Masonic duty, and a failure from all Masonic principle, endorse the theory of a "benefit society," and seek to gain a desired end by undesirable means. The meeting very properly adhered to the obvious distinction between Freemasonry and all benefit societies, and we feel sure that its decision will be approved of and supported by the great bulk of our warm-hearted Craft who subscribe to our Educational Institutions. We will only add, that that must be a peculiar mind, Masonically speaking, which seeks to put forward, in respect of a Masonic charity, the principle of utter selfishness both in the abstract and concrete. No orphan society in existence makes it a necessity of admission that the poor child's father must have previously subscribed to the Institution. We are happy to think that our Order is saved from such a reproach, and we will add such a scandal. Let us all beware of peddling and un-masonic changes in those leading principles which have governed the administration of our Educational Charities. The other alterations were mostly verbal, but none of any material importance.

THE QUARTERLY COURT OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

This meeting, which took place on Monday, as before, under the able presidency of our distinguished Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creton, resulted in an agreement with the Quarterly Court of the Girls' School, on Saturday, on all important points but one, namely, seven years' "consecutive" subscription. Whereas in the meeting on Saturday it was resolved to enforce seven years' subscription simply, on the part of the brethren, as a qualifying condition for their orphan daughters to receive the benefits of the Girls' School, on Monday, the meeting resolved by a small majority to uphold the seven years' "consecutive" subscription, as recommended by the Joint Committee. On the "confirmation," a proposal will, we understand, be made to make the term ten years, but not consecutive. It seems to be conceded on all hands that five years is too short, and the question remains which is the better amendment, seven years or ten years. We think that under any case power should be reserved to the Committee to place on the list of candidates the children of brethren whose services to the Craft and the Charities have been distinguished, and who have become reduced in circumstances before such term of needful subscription has naturally expired. On the whole we congratulate the Craft on these needful changes, and are very glad to note that the "Benefit Society" theory has been wisely given up, as any attempt to re-introduce it would only have a more crushing defeat. Our worthy Bro. S. Rawson, re-introduced his proposal not to allow a boy educated in our School to have a sister educated in the Girls' School at the same time, but such was really the inadvisability of the proposal, that he did not hold up his hand for it himself against a host of hands held up on the "contrary."

ANTAGONISM TO FREEMASONRY.

Our contemporary, the "Freemasons' Repository," calls attention to a violent movement against Freemasonry in the United States, led on by a Rev. Mr. Blanchard, and others, which has culminated in an anti-masonic convention held at Worcester, Massachusetts. Bro. the Rev. T. E. St. John, of Worcester, it seems, was tempted to enter into the lists with these reverend assailants, and irreverent libellers of our Benevolent Order, and we are glad to call attention to his words, which are both able and practical, moral and suggestive. St. John, we may remark, according to the "Repository," lived in Worcester for a long term of years and had a deservedly high reputation as a Christian minister and a citizen. The great objection, apparently, was the fact of secrecy, and Bro. St. John dealt with the objection in this way: "He claimed that Masonry is not a secret organization in any unworthy sense. Its objects are announced to all the world; its meetings and work are advertized; and the proceedings of its most important gatherings are published and laid open to the scrutiny of all who are interested. There are plenty of books which show the aims and character of Masonry; and to these, and to the friends of the Institution, the enquirer had better go for knowledge rather than to those who are its enemies. The positive, well understood benefits of secret societies were next commented upon, and their helps to life socially, intellectually, and morally were shown. It was affirmed that these societies teach brotherly love and charity in a most impressive way, and that they make practical illustration of many of the Christian virtues. They do a work of philanthropy which of itself is their sufficient commendation. The world has the benefit of these works of charity and love, though they may not be performed in precisely such ways, or according to such formulas, as some would choose." The "Freemasons' Repository" goes on to observe:—"The extracts above given only faintly indicate the character of the discourse which we are told was attentively listened to by a large and interested audience. As stated at the outset, public defences of Masonry do not seem to be often called for, nor is it generally worth the while to reply to those whose ignorance or malice leads them to misrepresent the Institution that has done so much to shed the light of a blessed charity over the world. If, occasionally, such work of defence needs to be done, we are glad to see it taken hold of by competent hands; and we know of none more competent than our stalwart minded brother in Worcester who has had a membership, long and conspicuous, in the Fraternity for which he speaks." We quite agree with our contemporary, but think it well to call attention to the subject, as it interests us as much in England as it does in the United States. We, too, have our Blanchard's "Et hoc genus omne," equally perverse, illogical, unfair, and fanatical. Freemasonry heeds them not, but still it is always well in this mundane existence, to know both the amiable conclusions of kind friends and the angry tirades of irreconcilable enemies.

OLD LODGES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have perused with much interest the list of lodges published in the Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine," but in one respect, at least, Bro. Hughan seems not to have carried his researchs far enough, or to have been searching in a wrong direction, for he has entirely missed my mother lodge, the present No. 35, holding its meetings here. This lodge was originally warranted on the 17th February, 1732, as No. 111, and its place of meeting, at that time, was the Theatre Tavern, Goodman's Fields. In 1756, it was No. 57, meeting at the City of Norwich, Wentworth-street, Spitalfields; and in 1761, it was removed to Cowes, how or why does not appear, for the written records, now in existence, do not go further back than 1780. In 1770, it had become No. 39, and in 1781, it was No. 33. In 1792, the number was again changed, and it became No. 31, and so remained until the Union, when it was No. 48, and has since, by the different closings up of the roll of lodges, become No. 35. The original warrant appears to have been lost or destroyed, for in 1824, H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex granted a warrant of confirmation, under which the lodge is now working. It is one of the very few lodges which has a special centenary jewel of its own, the warrant for which was granted by the late Earl of Zetland, as G.M., and the right to wear which is confined to actual subscribing members.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
 T. W. FAULKNER, P.M.
 Cowes, 8th January, 1879.

OUR LATE BRO. P. W. BENHAM, OF JERSEY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It affords me much pleasure to have perused, through the medium of your valuable paper, so full and able an account of the funeral arrangements of our late respected brother. It too affords me the greatest possible pleasure and delight to be able to inform you that our late brother was a prudent, as well as a thoughtful member of our Order; his life being assured in the office of which I am managing director. Immediately on receipt of the sad intelligence of the death, communicated to me by one so much esteemed and regarded as our Bro. Binet, the company's representative in Jersey, I acknowledged the communication in question and, on behalf of the company, offered at once to pay the claim.

Yours fraternally, A. TORKINGTON.

OLD, BLIND, AND IN WANT.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I just say that I propose to close the list of kind subscriptions this day week, and to then send to you a statement, both of the amounts received since my last publication, and also of the total contributions. If a few more kindly brethren on reading this would be inclined to join the charitable rank of donors to a most worthy object, it will give me real pleasure to add their names to my list, which, though liberal and most serviceable, is capable of a little extension, without exceeding the object in view.

I am faithfully and fraternally yours,
 JOHN B. MONCKTON,

SUPREME COUNCIL OF SCOTLAND, &c.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am a constant reader of the Freemason, and was much interested in the correspondence which has appeared in it in reference to the genuineness of the Supreme Councils of Scotland and of that of Charlestown, U.S. In the absence of any contradiction by General Pike or others, of the facts stated by your correspondents, would you kindly say whether your readers may now look on the Councils of Scotland and Charlestown as of spurious formation?

Yours fraternally,
 A PRINCE OF THE ROYAL SECRET.

EBORACUM MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1879.

Presented by Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M., Prov. G.D. of Ceremonies.
 We have received this neat and handy little Calendar, and which contains a "photo" of these interesting relics, the Bible which belonged to the Freemason's Lodge, "at Mr. Howard's, at York, 1761," the "gauge," which bears the names "John Drake, William Baron of York, and John Baron, with the date 1663," and two emblems, interlaced triangles, and the silver loving cup, now belonging to Mrs. Newstead Solby, and which is said to have been the property of the Grand Lodge of York. We like this "opusculum" very much, all except the publication of the "working tools," which we think a mistake. We are quite aware that Bro. Whythead can plead the authority of Oliver, but we are of those who think that Oliver published a great deal which he had no right or authority to publish. We need hardly point out that all such publications are only "ex parte," and not, in any sense, authoritative or authorized. We feel sure that Bro. Whythead will take our fraternal remarks in good part, as all are aware what a zealous and investigating Mason he is.

MONTHLY MAGAZINES:—

"Temple Bar;" "Scribner's Magazine;" "All the Year Round;" "London Society;" "The Leisure Hour;" "Sunday Magazine;" "Argosy;" "Cassell's Family Magazine;" "Golden Hours;" "Monthly Packet;" "Macmillan's Magazine;" "The Gentleman's Magazine;" "The Fortnightly;" "The Contemporary;" "The 19th Century;" "Cornhill;" "Good Words;" "Belgravia."

These various magazines come before our readers with multifarious claims, and often with great interest.

TEMPLE BAR is, we think, this month hardly up to its normal tone and temperament, though the new story "Probation," seems to open well.

There is in "Scribner" a somewhat remarkable paper on Leonardo da Vinci, and we can cordially commend this always genial magazine. In "All the Year Round" "Vixen" moves on serenely and pleasantly enough, and the number is worth reading.

"Golden Hours," "London Society," "The Leisure Hour," "The Sunday Magazine," "The Argosy," all have varied claims on a friendly circle of readers. So have "Macmillan's," "Cornhill," "The Gentleman's Magazine," and "Belgravia." "The Monthly Packet" is very interesting, under the able editing of Miss Yonge. We give a little "bit" from the "Otter's Story."

"The rustle of a dead leaf is all that betrays that the badgers are out on the bank before their earth, sitting up like little bears as they are, to watch the bunnies feeding so innocently in the moonlight beyond the trees.

"A little squeal sooner or later tells that a bunny is gone, and for a few moments all the tall ears are pricked up to listen, and one or two of the most enterprising and intelligent of the bereaved family sit up erect; but they always take it for granted it is no matter, or if it is any matter it can't be helped, and so they drop down again on all fours, and the feeding and scampering in the moonlight go on as before.

"But for all that, a brother and a bunny is gone whence bunnies come back no more; and somewhere underneath the grassy glade where the moonlight looks so sweet and peaceful, in dark dungeon holes below, the big bears and the little bears are having rabbit for supper."

"The 19th Century," "The Fortnightly," "The Contemporary" deal for the most part with "Vexatious questions" which are outside our Masonic cognizance, and which touch upon that "debateable land" which is purely neutral ground for Freemasons. We can only refer our readers to them, for fear we should be supposed as Masons to lean to one side or the other in these "tangled skeins" of debate and doubt which so agitate society, so divide the "body politic," and so vex us poor mortals here below. Happily in Freemasonry, as Præd sang so genially of old of the Leamington Charity Bazaar—

"Churchman, Dissenter here for once unite,
 And here at least they both are in the right,
 While the hot Tory smilingly throws down
 For fair Whig hands the sovereign and the crown."

MEYER'S ALMANACK (Liverpool).

FIRST REPORT OF THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION FOR 1879.

The Committee of the London Masonic Charity Association has thought it well, at the commencement of its work for 1879, to put forward a few considerations, which it begs respectfully to commend to the serious attention of the London voters for our Metropolitan Masonic Charities.

1. It has been often said, and it is as constantly still repeated with much emphasis, that there is "no need of such an Association." The Committee would beg on the contrary, most distinctly to assert that there is, in its opinion, a very great need of such an Association, for the following reasons:—(1) The absolute friendlessness of many of the London candidates; (2) the necessity of reforming the present system of election, which rests to a great extent, at any rate, on merely personal prepossessions alone; and (3), the prevailing tendency to leave in the hands of a few select brethren, or, as American writers term them, "wire pullers," the result of our elections. Not that this view, or this fact, imply necessarily any great weakness in the existing voting system, or are put forward to justify hasty charges or inadvisable meddling with the undoubted liberty of personal selection, but the Committee thinks it right to point out that there is no uniform system of voting carried out by our London brethren, inasmuch, as owing to old connexions and prevailing individualism the votes are given as much to Provincial Charity Committees as to London cases, and the consequence is, many most deserving claimants for aid, unable to meet the provincial organization on the one hand, (quite right in itself), and the want of influential patrons on the other in London, fail altogether to secure the benefits of our great Charities, so needful to them, and intended originally for those very cases which are now too often unsuccessful.

It is a matter of fact, beyond dispute, that the opposition to the Association has come from a few influential brethren in London, who, to their honour be it said, in one sense, at any rate, spare no pains in obtaining votes from individual brethren to carry their cases, to help their clients, to whom they are such friendly and fraternal patrons.

The need of such an Association was signally shewn at the last elections, when "most deserving cases were left out in the cold" completely, though it was their last chance, for want of influential support.

2. It is said again that the institution of this Association is improper and unmasonic, in that it would seek to create a difference between London and provincial cases. But as this assertion, often made, rests upon an entire fallacy, the Committee thinks it well to point out its unreal and illogical character.

If no Provincial Charity Committee existed, the Committee would admit that it might be a question whether it would be wise to constitute a specific Metropolitan Committee. But as some of the Charity Committees in the provinces are of nearly twenty years standing, and many are most powerful now, with their power of accumulated voting, it is clearly within the competency of London subscribers to the Charities to follow a good example, and carry out in fact the dictates of common sense.

The provincial brethren so far from looking askance, as was predicted confidently, on the London Masonic Charity Association, have all admitted its raison d'être, and fully recognized its sphere of action, and the reasonableness and seasonableness of its formation.

The Committee thinks it hardly worth while to dilate on a topic, which except in the hands of the interested or the prejudiced, has no valid importance, and no real weight.

3. It is also asserted somewhat loudly, that the London Masonic Charity Association is a dictatorial attempt to "tell the London brethren how to vote." But the truth is, the Committee begs respectfully to point out, that the Association only seeks to do what brethren "many and great," have long since been accustomed to do, and do at every election.

Why Bro. Jones, or Bro. Brown, or Bro. Robinson is to have the power to issue circulars and cards, soliciting for votes for his candidate, and a Committee of forty-five London brethren, all well known to the Craft, may not do the same, passes the comprehension of the Committee to realize. Which is more likely, "a priori," that the selection by Brown, Jones, or Robinson is a good one, than the selection by a numerous committee of brethren of candidates, to which selection they bring much Masonic experience, great accuracy, and special care?

As the entire object and actual process of work, which the London Masonic Charity Association has been established to attend to and develop, have given grounds to unfounded fears and irrational objections, the Committee thinks it well, once again, to assure its London brethren that it altogether repudiates any theory of supposed dictation, and asks for no votes from any who do not conscientiously approve of its formation and proceedings. But it does venture to press upon all London voters for the Charities, that if they wish well to the success of the friendless and helpless, if they desire to see meritorious candidates efficiently supported, if they approve of the honest effort which the London Masonic Charity Association has endeavoured to support, to elect those applicants whose cause is good, but whose friends are few, then they will give their names and votes to an Association, whose aims are the unselfish ones of aiding those who cannot help themselves, whose labours are devoted not to advance personal possessions but public claims, and whose organization and endeavours will, the Committee has every confidence, eventually commend themselves to the honest and independent support of a large majority of the voters for the Charities in the London district.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The quarterly meeting of the Subscribers and Governors was held on Monday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creaton presided. The other brethren who attended were Bros. S. Rawson, W. Roebuck, Dr. Ramsay, W. H. Perryman, G. Bolton, Don M. Dewar, C. F. Matier, J. Terry, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, H. A. Dubois, J. W. Baldwin, Rev. Richard Morris, J. H. Cox, Raynham W. Stewart, John Mason, Arthur E. Gladwell, F. R. W. Hedges, C. F. Hogard, W. R. Applebee, A. Tisley, L. Ruf, C. Pulman, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason.)

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Binckes read a letter he had received from Bro. John Symonds, who lately resigned the office of Trustee of the Institution, acknowledging the vote of thanks to him, which was passed at the last Quarterly Court on his resignation being accepted. The letter of Bro. Symonds was ordered to be entered on the minutes, on the motion of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, seconded by the Chairman.

On the motion of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, seconded by Bro. H. A. Dubois, Bro. W. H. Lovejoy was appointed Honorary Dental Surgeon to the Institution, in place of Bro. Peter Matthews, resigned on account of retiring from practice.

The list of candidates for the April election was settled at sixty-eight, and the Court declared vacancies, at that time, for sixteen boys.

The new laws, submitted to the Court by a special Sub-Committee appointed to revise the old laws, were then taken, and considered, and after a long discussion, in the course of which several alterations were made, were passed. One important variation in the old laws was made, all boys elected after the confirmation of the minutes of this Quarterly Court at the quarterly meeting in April, having to leave the School at fifteen instead of sixteen years of age. Another important alteration was rescinding the privilege of voting at any elections but those of boys for the school hitherto possessed by subscribers who are ladies (being minors) and ladies.

The proceedings closed with the usual compliment to the Chairman.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly Court of the Subscribers and Governors of this Institution was held last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creaton presided. Among the other brethren present were Bros. A. H. Tattershall, Arthur E. Gladwell, T. F. Peacock, R. B. Webster, Griffiths Smith, J. E. Le Feuvre, Col. James E. Peters, Herbert Dicketts, W. Roebuck, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Thos. W. White, A. Tisley, A. Hopwood, C. Harcourt, Thomas Massey, Raynham W. Stewart, S. Rawson, C. J. Perceval, W. Tyerman, Dr. Ramsay, John Faulkner, C. F. Matier, Leopold Ruf, James Terry, Peter de Lande Long, D. D. Berry, H. Potter, F. Binckes, John G. Stevens, H. T. Thompson, Hugh H. Riach, G. J. Row, T. Kingston, W. Mann, Dr. Woolman, Robert Berridge, F. R. W. Hedges (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason.)

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of last court the list of candidates for the April election as settled by the last General Committee was declared. By this list it is announced that there are forty-eight candidates, and that there will be eighteen vacancies in the School to be filled up. This was passed on the motion of Bro. Raynham W. S. seconded by Col. Peters.

Bro. T. F. Peacock, for Bro. H. A. Dubois, who was engaged at Tunbridge Wells, moved, and Bro. Griffiths Smith, seconded, "That Bro. John Faulkner be appointed as the Honorary Dental Surgeon to this Institution."

Bro. F. W. H. Ramsay, M.D., who had another motion for a similar appointment of Bro. W. H. Lovejoy, withdrew his motion, and Bro. Faulkner was thereupon unanimously elected.

Bro. John Faulkner returned thanks for his election, and assured the brethren that nothing should be wanting on his part to merit the confidence of the brethren.

The next business was to consider the alterations of the laws of the Institution, as framed by the Special Sub-Committee appointed for that purpose.

Bro. A. H. Tattershall thought that sufficient time had not yet been given to the members of the court for the considerations of these laws. The prints had only been in the hands of the brethren recently, and he suggested that additional time should be given and that a special court should be called at which the laws might be fully considered. Several brethren had mentioned to him that they had not had sufficient time to go carefully through the printed copies sent to them. He therefore moved that the consideration of the laws as altered be deferred to a special court.

Bro. T. F. Peacock, was of the same opinion, and seconded the motion of Bro. Tattershall.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., on the contrary thought sufficient time had been granted. He thought the proposal of Bro. Tattershall involved more than that brother thought he conveyed. The court to day was to consider alterations which had been proposed by a Sub-Committee and which had been appointed for the express purpose of deciding upon some alterations which had been printed, and a printed copy sent some time ago to every member of the court. Looking round the table he saw a large number of brethren whom he knew, and he thought a better body of brethren could not be got together for a calm, careful and dispassionate consideration of the alterations. He himself had come prepared to discuss them, having gone carefully over them, and a great many other brethren had come at great personal inconvenience with the same object. If another meeting were called he doubted very much whether so many brethren could be got together, and he was sure that a more competent body could not be found. He opposed the proposition of Bro. Tattershall on the ground that there were a great many brethren who like him (Bro. Woodford) had some perfectly prepared to consider the alteration.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., thought Bro. Woodford was perfectly right. He wished it also to be borne in mind that there was also a Quarterly Court of the Boys' School on the following Monday, and the result of Bro. Tattershall's motion would be that the brethren would have also to postpone on that day the consideration of the new rules as affecting that Institution. He thought all the brethren were prepared to go on now. They had all had full notice of the alterations proposed, which had been in their hands for the last fortnight.

Bro. Tattershall's motion was then put and lost, and the brethren then proceeded to consider the new rules.

Law LV., as altered, was the most important, and involved the longest discussion. This new law ran as follows:—"No boy shall be eligible for election unless the father has been a subscribing member to a lodge for seven consecutive years, and have been a subscriber to, at least, one of the Masonic Institutions, except in the case of death, fire, shipwreck, or of his having become afflicted with blindness, paralysis, or other infirmity, during such membership, permanently incapacitating him from earning a livelihood."

Bro. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford: Bro. Chairman, I rise to object to a proposed alteration in this law, an alteration which I conceive to be likely to tend gravely to the prejudice of the Institutions, and to be most adverse to the true principles of Freemasonry. We are now proposing to introduce the principle of benefit societies into Freemasonry, deliberately and avowedly. (No, no.) If the worthy brother who says "no, no," will kindly listen to me for a few seconds, for I do not speak without much reflection and study of the subject, I think he will see reason to change his opinion. The great principle of the Girls' School since 1786 (I hold in my hands the original laws of the year of its creation) has been for Masonic charity to the orphan daughters of "indigent Freemasons."

An objection having been taken that the rule consisted of two parts, which ought to be separately considered, the motion was so divided, and the part referring to the seven years' subscription to a lodge was taken first.

Bro. Thomas W. White, P.G.S., did not think that the seven years' subscription was too long a time to be required. He suggested, however, that as people now moved about very rapidly, a brother might remove to a place at some distance from his lodge and neglect for a while to join another, and so lose a consecutive subscription by twelve months. He thought if the law should be altered by striking out the words "consecutive," and add the words, "four of which shall have been consecutive."

The amendment having been seconded, was then put and carried.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, on the second part of the proposition: Bro. Chairman, I will now resume what I was formerly contending, and to save time will condense my remarks as much as possible. I object, as I said before, to this change, because, in my humble opinion, if carried, it will obliterate that great distinction which exists between Freemasonry and all other benefit societies. What is the principle of all benefit societies but a "quid pro quo?" value given for value received. What was the original object of this Association? what the unchanging teaching of Freemasonry, but to give relief and aid to all who have a fair claim on our charity, spontaneously, gratuitously, and on the unselfish principles of "the Masonic beneficence?" We are now going to say for the first time that the orphan's father must have subscribed to one of the Masonic Charities, which, however, will resolve itself into this, that you must subscribe 5s. to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. There is too much tendency just now to make our admirable institutions, (and not the least our excellent and useful Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution), act as a benefit club, or insurance system. I, for one, must strongly object to bringing into Freemasonry the principles of a benefit order, and I think it right once more to say, as I always shall, that Freemasonry is not, and never can be, and never was intended to be in any sense, a benefit society. For these reasons I beg to move that the words "or has been a subscriber to one of the Masonic Institutions" be expunged.

Bro. Thomas W. White seconded the motion, and said that Bro. Woodford had mentioned everything which he should have said himself on this subject. He thought that the new law, if passed, would be detrimental to the Institution. He did not wish to say anything with regard to the Benevolent Institution, but he thought that if brethren were obliged to give anything to the Institutions they would give to that the subscriptions to which were the smallest, and they would give 5s. to the Benevolent Institution.

Dr. Ramsay, as a member of the Sub-Committee, wished to say that the Sub-Committee did not make a point of this proposition, but as it was brought before them by some of the members, they thought it might be put into the law and submitted to the Quarterly Court whether the law should be so framed or not.

Bro. J. G. Stevens admitted the justness of the remarks of Bro. Woodford, that to place such a provision among the laws would be to make Freemasonry a kind of benefit society. It was thought, however, by some of the members of the Committee that some deterrent rule should be adopted to prevent many hundreds of candidates coming on for the Boys' and Girls' Schools. Take, for instance, the number of candidates admitted within the last two years, and if they examined what the fathers of these candidates had done for the Schools, he would venture to say that they would find in a very large majority of cases that the fathers had done nothing whatever for the Institutions. In justification of what the Sub-Committee had done he would inform the Court that it was upon this principle the words now under discussion were introduced. The Committee thought that the whole subject should be thoroughly ventilated by the Court. He did not conceive for one moment that the proposition would be passed, the brethren having an opinion that it would be turning the Order into a benefit society. No doubt if the parents did subscribe to the Institutions, so much the better would it be for them, and a candidate for those Institutions would deserve on that account, because it would show a disposition on the part of the fathers of the children to support the Institutions when they were able to do so. The Committee would be perfectly satisfied if the proposition was rejected, as an opportunity had been given for the subject being properly discussed.

The words "And have been a subscriber to at least one of the Masonic Institutions" were then struck out, and the law as thus altered was carried unanimously.

The other alterations were then adopted, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SOMERSETSHIRE.

The brethren of Taunton held high festival on Monday last on the occasion of the dedication of their new Masonic Hall. The meetings have hitherto been held at an hotel in the town, but recently a company was formed among members of the Craft for the purpose of purchasing a building in the Crescent, which was originally built for a Roman Catholic Chapel. This placed was found admirably suited for Masonic purposes, and the ceremony of dedication was performed on Monday. The occasion created an interest beyond local Masonic circles, and a great gathering of Freemasons took place, the interest being increased by the fact that the ceremony of dedication was to be performed by the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M.

The day's proceedings commenced with Divine service at the church of St. Mary Magdalene. The brethren, to the number of 300, met at the school-room, where they clothed themselves and then walked in procession to the church. The sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. T. Randell, M.A., P.P.G.C., from the text 1st Thessalonians ch. v., v. 11—"Wherefore comfort yourselves together and edify one another, even as also ye do." The discourse was in defence of Freemasonry.

The ceremony of dedication took place at the new hall, at half-past one o'clock. The brethren having taken their seats in the lodge room, received the Provincial Grand lodge in due form, and the Provincial Grand Lodge was then opened by the Earl of Carnarvon. During the ceremony a choir, composed of the members of Lodge 261—Unanimity and Serenity—sang Wilson's Anthem in G, "Praise God in His Holiness," and two suitable hymns, also giving the responses in a very creditable manner. The ceremony concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

After the ceremony of dedication had been performed, Bro. R. C. Elise, D.P.G.M., proposed a vote of congratulation to the Earl of Carnarvon on his recent marriage, wishing him and Lady Carnarvon all the happiness this world could afford.

The motion was seconded by Bro. Payne, P.G. Treasurer, and carried by acclamation.

The Earl of Carnarvon, in responding, apologised for the inconvenience he might have caused the brethren in not attending on the date first fixed, but they had learned what the cause of this disappointment was. He knew that the kindness and sympathy of his Somersetshire Brethren, to which he had never appealed in vain, would find a better excuse for him than any words he could use. He was not surprised at the reception of the resolution, because there was nothing since he had been connected with Somersetshire which had ever occurred to him which had not their kindly feeling of sympathy. He felt completely identified with Somersetshire Masons, and appreciated most deeply this fresh evidence of their friendship and regard. When they were good enough to congratulate him, he should say he had very good cause to be congratulated. He knew that ladies could not be admitted to any participation in Masonic proceedings; still, as a humble outsider, there was no one who sympathised more with the objects of the Craft, respected the work they had set before them, and, above all, gave more hearty good wishes to the Masons of Somersetshire than did Lady Carnarvon, and he hoped he should not be committing any breach of the secrecy to which he was sworn so many years ago as a Mason, when, with every injunction for the most solemn secrecy, he informed her on his return that amongst the objects in which they were engaged that day there was one in which her happiness and welfare were bound up. (Hear, Hear).

The banquet was held in the Victoria Rooms in the evening, the Earl of Carnarvon presiding.

In responding to the toasts of his health, as Provincial Grand Master of Somerset, the noble Earl said he lived in a very peculiar stage of Masonry. Within the last few years Masonry had been passing through a period such as their Masonic forefathers knew nothing of, and such as might issue in very great good, but which had also its difficulties and its dangers. When he was initiated, Masonry was apparently very prosperous in England; but he was struck with the enormous increase of prosperity during the last ten or fifteen years. Masonry had become much larger in point of numbers, much more important in respect to the wealth which had flowed in from all sides, and it stood in a position perhaps of greater dignity and external ceremonial than it formerly did, but on the other hand there was a reverse side to the picture. All this material well-being had a tendency sometimes to lead Masonry out of the straight road and to set up idols, so to speak, of false gods unless it were very carefully watched. They must not fall into the grave error of supposing that ease and luxury and mere material welfare was all that Masonry had to look to. They were not to suppose that lodges were to become mere convivial clubs (applause). They must keep before the mind the fact that Masonry had great practical duties, and the code that Masonry laid down was one of very high and great morality. There was another temptation to guard against, viz., the danger of allowing politics to have anything to do with the craft. A departure from the rule respecting this point, in which all Masons had been educated would be one of the most fatal blows which could be struck at English Freemasonry. Lastly he referred to the exclusion of the name of the Deity by the Grand Orient of France, and said that foreign Freemasonry was distinctly contrasted with Masonry in England, inasmuch as here it was a loyal supporter of the Constitution, while on the Continent it was to be found plotting and planning against existing order.

Several other toasts followed.

THE PRINCESS ALICE AND THE IRISH FREEMASONS.

"The Grand Lodge of Ireland at its last meeting adopted the following address of sympathy to Her Most Gracious Majesty on the death of H.R.H. the Princess Alice, Grand Duchess of Hesse.

"To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

"May it please your Majesty,

"We, the Freemasons of Ireland, in Grand Lodge assembled, respectfully approach your Most Gracious Majesty, in this your hour of sore trial, to tender our loyal and heartfelt sympathy for the irreparable loss you have sustained.

"The universal sorrow that prevails all classes of your subjects is participated in by none more deeply than by the Masonic body. Recognising the great and noble qualities of our late Royal Princess (brought up to womanhood under the influence of your precepts and the example of your virtues) which added lustre to her high station, and endeared her alike to the countries of her birth and of her adoption. We knew that these very qualities make your loss the heavier, and your grief the more poignant. We would, however, venture most respectfully to suggest to you the consolation that she was all the merrier for a better world; and that few mothers, who have been blessed with so numerous an offspring as your Majesty, have, like you, been for a period of near forty years exempt from a calamity such as that which has now fallen upon you.

"We earnestly pray that God may sanctify this trial to you, and give you strength to bear it.

"Signed on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Ireland,

"ABERCORN,
"Grand Master."

"My dear Duke,—

"I have laid before the Queen the address of condolence transmitted by you. I am commanded by Her Majesty to request that you will assure the Freemasons of Ireland that the Queen heartily appreciates the kind and loyal sentiments contained in their address, and

I am to ask you to convey Her Majesty's sincere thanks to those gentlemen for their feeling expressions of sympathy.

WENTWORTH LITTLE MEMORIAL.

The following is the copy of a letter which is being sent to the lodges in the province of Middlesex. We are happy to give it space in our columns, and trust it will meet with a ready response:—

"Ancaster House,
"Richmond Hill,
"December 26th, 1878.

"Dear W.M. and Brethren,—

"Knowing how fully our late Bro. Wentworth Little was esteemed and appreciated by every member of the Order, in the Province of Middlesex, and that you and almost every member of your lodge have seen and known the many and special benefits that the lodges in the province, and the province itself, have derived from his exertions, I feel that I am not asking too much from you, and the brethren of your lodge, if I ask you and them to make a special and handsome grant in support of the memorial now suggested by a committee, consisting of very influential members of the Order, towards his memory, and to be of some assistance to his widow during her life, and eventually to be invested for the benefit of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

It was mainly through his instrumentality and with the assistance of a few others that the province was formed and a Provincial Grand Master appointed in 1869, at that time, consisting of a few lodges, but now a considerable number. For several years Bro. Little performed the duties of Prov. Grand Secretary with great advantage to the province and satisfaction to all around him, since which he has served the office of Prov. S.G. Warden, and when he died he held the office of Deputy Grand Master of Middlesex.

"Having frequently visited the different lodges in the province, and heard the opinion of the brethren as to Bro. Wentworth Little's services, I trust I am not asking too much of the brethren of the province, if they will assist the Committee with a contribution from the lodge funds, and, of course, it would be a greater compliment to his memory should private contributions from the members themselves be made.

"Believe me, W.M. and brethren, yours sincerely and fraternally,

"FRAS. BURDETT, P.G.M. Middx., P.S.G.W.
"and P.G. Sup., and Representative from "the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

"To the W.M. and brethren of lodges in the province of Middlesex."

Masonic and General Tidings.

On Sunday evening last Canon Miller was appointed to preach in the Chapel Royal Savoy. At the hour of service a message was received, and read to the congregation, by the chaplain, announcing the sudden illness of the preacher. His place was filled by Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain of England, the rector of St. Clement Dances.

The Queen has been pleased to confer the dignity of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath (Civil Division) upon the Marquis of Hertford.

The directors of the Bank of England met on Thursday, and reduced the rate of discount from 5 to 4 per cent.

THE DUBLIN HOSPITAL FUND.—The total sum received in Dublin for the Hospital Fund at the late collection was £423, an improvement on the previous year.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, No. 1614, meeting at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Thursday next, the 23rd inst., by the members of the La Tolerance Lodge, No. 538. Bro. E. Farwig, S.W. 180, will preside.

The New Concord Ball will take place at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on Wednesday, February 6th. Tickets and general information may be obtained of Bro. W. H. Main, 171, Kingsland-road.

Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, has been unanimously re-elected President of the Benevolent Fund of the Joppa Lodge, No. 188.

THE MAYOR OF LEICESTER.—For the second time Bro. Ald. Stretton, P.M., P.G.S.W. Leicestershire and Rutlandshire, is again occupying the civic chair at Leicester, having been unanimously re-elected in the place of the late Alderman Grimsley, who was elected to succeed Bro. Stretton on the 9th of November last, but died suddenly, having only been in the office about a fortnight.

The annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire was held at Barnsley on Wednesday last. Bro. R. W. Sir Henry Edwards presided. A full report will appear in our next.

We regret having to record the death of Bro. Commander Charles Scott, R.N. The sad event took place suddenly on Thursday week, January 9th, at Strathroy, Omagh, Co-Tyrone. Bro. Scott was in his 48th year.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 3d.—ADVT.

Brethren desirous of possessing a copy of the Freemason Card Almanack for 1879, with portraits of the Grand Masters of England, Ireland, and Scotland, should make an early application at the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London. The publisher will be pleased to send a copy to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of 2 penny stamps.

The Echo, of Thursday week, announced that a sum of £400 or £500 is likely to come into the possession of a Greenock Lodge of Freemasons, under singular circumstances. More than a hundred years ago the lodge contributed £40 towards the cost of erecting a new Town House; and in return a clause was inserted in the feu charter giving to the lodge a perpetual right to hold meetings in the house for the transaction of their ordinary business. The Town House having been recently converted into the Town Clerk's office, it is no longer practicable to use it for Masonic purposes, and the lodge has asked £500 for the renunciation of its rights. The Greenock Town Council has offered £400, which will probably be accepted by the lucky Masons.

DUKE OF LANCASTER LODGE (1353).—We announced a fortnight ago that this lodge at their last monthly meeting passed a vote of condolence to her Majesty on the death of the Princess Alice. The vote of condolence was duly forwarded, and the W.M. of the Lodge, Bro. R. Wolfenden, has since received the following reply:—
Osborne, December 24th, 1878.

Sir,—I am commanded by the Queen to assure you that her Majesty feels very grateful for the loyal and touching expressions of condolence offered to her by the Worshipful Master, Wardens, and members of the Duke of Lancaster Lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons. I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant,
HENRY F. PONSONBY.

THE LIVERPOOL MASONIC BALL.—The 30th annual grand Masonic ball in aid of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, under distinguished patronage, took place last Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., at the Town Hall, Liverpool—a building which, through the retrograde action of the enlightened corporation, will in future be closed to the public for similar purposes, and reserved only for the special purpose of entertaining the "currant jelly" element of polite society in Liverpool. Whether the public will tamely submit to such a deprivation of legitimate privileges yet remains to be seen. Meanwhile, our report of the ball is left over, but will probably appear next week, should space permit. The meetings of the Victoria Lodge, No. 1056, are now held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, City.

The Earl of Carnarvon, as Provincial Grand Master of Somerset, presided on Monday at the dedication of a Masonic Hall at Taunton, and about 200 brethren from all parts of the country were present. Lord Carnarvon spoke of the new hall as an additional centre of masonic life in the province. At the banquet his lordship contrasted the loyalty of English Freemasons with the planning and plotting against existing order which characterised some organizations abroad. He urged on all fidelity to the principles of the craft.

We learn from the City Press that Bro. George Burt having a short time since spent three months in making for the sake of his health, a very pleasant trip to Egypt, Greece, and Constantinople, has written an account of the journey, which has been printed for private circulation. The incidents narrated are of an interesting character, and the attention of the reader is by no means lessened by the genial and unassuming manner in which the story is told by the author.

The Standard, which has outstripped its contemporaries in the length and excellence of its telegrams from Afghanistan, has accomplished this creditable feat at an outlay almost unprecedented in the annals of English journalism. A single telegram cost upwards of £600. The proprietors of the Standard are understood to have arranged for the use of a special wire to Paris, for which £2000 a-year is to be paid to the Post Office authorities, and the service is to extend over three hours daily.

An amateur evening concert in aid of the orphan child of Bro. G. Dawson, late of the Londraborough Lodge, No. 1681, will be given at the Laughan Hall, Great Portland-street, W., on Monday week, the 27th inst.

A grand Masonic gathering took place on Wednesday afternoon at the Globe (No. 200), to give due importance and éclat to the ceremony of the installation of the Worshipful Master, Brother Charles Emerson, who was duly installed with all Masonic honours by Brother W. H. Smyth, R.W.P.G.M. (Lincolnshire), assisted by Brother J. W. Woodall, P.M., P.P.S., G.W., and Brother G. H. Walshaw, P.M., P.P., G.D.C. After the above ceremony had been duly performed in the presence of a large gathering of the craft, the Worshipful Master nominated and invested his several officers for the ensuing year. "The whole of the Masonic fraternity owe a deep debt of gratitude as well as hearty support in his enterprise, to Bro. G. Kenning, for the spirit which he displays in connection with publications intended for the use of the members of the various mystic orders. Chief amongst his numerous publications is undoubtedly 'The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book,' which is an invariably welcome annual, and that for 1879 is in some respects superior to those of former years, inasmuch as there is not only more extensive information, but one or two features of a novel kind. As a Masonic book of reference it has no equal, and every Mason ought to possess a copy, as he will thus be able to 'see at a glance,' (as Mr. Toole would say), a complete list of the lodges and other Masonic orders in every corner of the globe. The compilation of such a work must have been one of the greatest difficulty, but the publisher, justly proud of his 'Cosmo,' has evidently exercised the greatest care in connection therewith. Information which can nowhere else be found is here presented most readily, and Bro. Kenning is again to be complimented on his model Calendar."—Liverpool Mercury, Dec. 23, 1878.

"A FREEMASON,"

An Extract from the Works of Zschokke. Translated from the German by BRO. ERNEST E. WULFF.

This little Brochure sets forth, in a lively and entertaining manner, most excellent arguments in favour of Freemasonry in its social and benevolent aspects, as against the opinions and prejudices (not always expressed) of many worthy people. The "Dramatis Personae," are Dr. Solomon Wiseman, who, as may be surmised from his name, is the Champion of Freemasonry, and a Family of Quakers, and it will be found that the arguments of the Doctor, so eloquently expressed, led the worthy Quaker in the end to admit that he too, in a certain sense, was a Freemason.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.
 Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF ANTIQUITY (No. 2).—This ancient lodge met at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday, the 22nd inst., in good numbers. Bro. Ames was raised to the Second Degree, and Bro. John Armitage Batley (a Lewis), was initiated by Bro. Woodford, D.M. H.R.H. Prince Leopold was unanimously elected W.M., and a vote of condolence, carried unanimously, to Her Majesty the Queen, in reference to the recent and lamented death of the Grand Duchess of Hesse-Darmstadt. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. The routine business being disposed of, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, and separated at an early hour, after a most enjoyable evening.

LODGE OF SINCERITY (No. 174).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 15th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern. Bro. John Appleby, W.M., presided, and there were also present:—Bros. G. T. H. Seddon, S.W.; C. H. Webb, J.W.; George Jones, S.D.; J. Brown, J.D.; Charles Lacey, P.M.; E. J. Moore, P.M.; W. C. Barlow, P.M.; John Bulmer, P.M.; G. J. Hilliard, P.M.; A. Harry Brown, D.C.; James S. Fraser, I.G.; and a large number of lay members of the lodge, and the following visitors:—George Wothey, 1382; Robert Smith, 1694; Thos. J. Barnes, P.M. 554, 933; Allen Brown, 869; J. J. Berry, P.M. 554; George Brooks, P.M. 902; Edwin G. Legge, W.M. 1196, Treas. 1607; George Mellison, 1636; S. Quint, 749; Frank Shaffland, 511; F. Knight, 1185; J. F. Clark, 217; Henry Wilson, 217; E. J. Anning, 1625; George Joseph Duhkley, 1777; W. W. Morgan, Sec. 211; J. Hanson Thorn, W.M. 554; H. Massey, P.M. 619, (Freemason). The W.M. raised Bro. W. Cecil, and afterwards installed Bro. G. T. H. Seddon, S.W. and W.M. elect as Master of the lodge for the current year. The following brethren were appointed to office:—Bros. C. H. Webb, S.W.; G. Jones, J.W.; S. Rawley, P.M., Treas.; J. Newton, P.M., Sec.; F. Brown, S.D.; J. S. Fraser, J.D.; A. H. Brown, I.G.; T. F. Harvey, D.C.; J. Miller, W.S.; and Verry, Tyler. Bro. Appleby then delivered the addresses, and on the resumption of his seat, and having performed the ceremonies in splendid style, was loudly applauded by the brethren. The new W.M. in investing his officers showed himself perfectly skilled in the art. After the installation had been completed Bro. Seddon initiated Mr. James Benson in capital style. Subsequently he presented to Bro. Appleby a handsome Past Master's jewel, voted at last lodge, in recognition of the ability with which Bro. Appleby had performed all the duties of Master during the past year. The brother acting as Secretary for the evening, Bro. Rawley, jun., Bro. J. Newton, P.M., being absent through serious illness, read a letter from the son of Bro. Dicker, an old and highly respected member of the lodge, informing the lodge of the death of Bro. Dicker that afternoon at five o'clock. Thereupon, it was resolved that a letter expressing the sympathy of the lodge with the family of the deceased Bro. Dicker in their bereavement should be written, and the lodge was ordered to go into mourning at its next meeting. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to a delightful banquet. After the banquet the usual toasts were proposed, and "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro Grand Master," and "The Dep. G.M.," were drunk with great cordiality. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "Lord Skelmersdale," said he was a Lancashire lad himself, and as such felt a great pride in Lord Skelmersdale, as all other Lancashire men did, and when the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution took place on the 12th of February they intended to show by their subscriptions the pride they felt in him. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the Initiate, Bro. Benson," who he was proud to call his first bairn. He had had the pleasure of initiating Bro. Benson, and from the attention he had paid to the ceremony, and the interest he took in it, he felt assured he would become a very worthy member of the Order. Bro. Benson responded, and trusted he would become an honour to the Craft. Bro. Appleby, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M.," and was very pleased that that brother had had an opportunity that evening of displaying his ability by initiating Bro. Benson. The W.M. had shown he was no novice in Freemasonry. For many years he had been a member of this lodge, and in the various offices he had filled he had discharged his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren. The W.M., in responding, after thanking the brethren for honouring the toast, said that while he had been an officer of the lodge he had striven as far as lay in his power to perform his duties thoroughly. He had not at any time felt he was performing them in a lukewarm way, or in a careless, easy going manner. He trusted that in the new position he had assumed he should not be found wanting in the thoroughness which had characterised the performance of his previous duties. He had but one aim in view, to be happy himself and to promote the happiness of the brethren. If he succeeded in that design, which had been pointed out to him as the grand design of Freemasonry, he should feel convinced that he had satisfied the brethren and done his duty as W.M. Some years ago he gave up office, but it was done voluntarily, in consequence of his having to go northward for six or eight months, and not being present then at the installation meeting he did not have the office conferred on him to which he would have succeeded. Consequently, he was out of office for a few years; otherwise he would have been W.M. six years ago. Six years ago he would have been a good deal younger than he now was; but he was not at all sorry he had waited six years, because he had acquired more experience, instruction, and acquaintance with brethren whom he did not know before, among whom were Bros. Borne and some others he now saw before him. For this extra experience he was very grateful, and he hoped that if the brethren discovered any errors in him they would look upon them not as errors of heart, but errors of judgment. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the I.P.M. Bro. Appleby," and reminded the brethren of the services that brother had rendered to the lodge during his year of office. Bro. Appleby had carried out all his duties in a way which had given such satisfaction to the brethren that they unanimously voted him a Past Master's jewel. The brethren must acknowledge that whenever they had visited they had not sat under a brother who was more urbane or more zealous in the discharge of his duties. Bro. Appleby in responding said he had endeavoured to discharge his duties faithfully, and it was very pleasant to him to find that his efforts had met with the approbation of the brethren. The W.M. then proposed "The Masonic Institutions," and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. C. J. Perceval. The W.M. stated that he was himself Steward for the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Benevolent Institution, and that Bro. Charles Lacey, P.M., whom all the brethren knew as a most energetic supporter of the Charities, had gone round the room, and received support for his (the W.M.'s) list to the extent of £48 5s. Bro. C. J. Perceval replied to the toast. On two previous occasions the brethren had supported him with a good round sum, and he was sure they would not fail the W.M. now. The festival for the Girls would be in May. He was Steward for them, and if the brethren put their names down now, they would have the privilege of voting at the April election. "The Health of the Visitors" was the next toast, and to this Bro. T. J. Barnes, J. J. Berry, Thorn, Legge, Awning, and W. W. Morgan replied. Bro. Rawley, P.M., replied to the toast of "The P.M.s." At this period of the evening Bros. James Terry, John Constable, and Thomas Mortlock visited the lodge on their way home from other lodges, and Bro. Terry was called upon for a few remarks on behalf of the Institutions. Bro. Terry, who looked as fresh and well as if he never had to work hard, said that he had not been in bed till half-past five that morning [Bro. Terry had been celebrating the coming of age of Miss Terry the night before, on which occasion a party of about 150 ladies and gentlemen assembled at Freemasons' Tavern to do honour to the event], and after his day's work had visited four lodges in the evening. He reminded the brethren that the Institutions suffered last year by the depression of trade, and the Benevolent Institution had run so close that if one more male annuitant than was put on in May last had been put on, the balance in hand on account of the male fund would have been but £11 5s. 7d. As it was; there was a balance of £51 5s. There never had been so small a balance since the Institution was established. The widows' fund was more prosperous. For the next election there were 43 candidates, but only five vacancies, and therefore unless the next festival was of a more than ordinary character the Institution would at the next election have to refuse the largest number it ever had refused. For the two funds, the male and the widows', there were 78 candidates, and 18 vacancies, which meant that 60 would have to be left out in the cold. Many of the candidates were making their fifth and third applications. Bro. Terry then repeated the remarks made by him several times lately, which had been duly reported in the columns of the Freemason, that if every Freemason under the English Constitution would give five shillings a year to each of the Institutions, and every lodge a guinea, all candidates for the Institutions could be taken in without election, and the Institutions would not require to have their annual festivals. He also repeated his statements regarding the position of the three Institutions on the list at the close of last year, and informed the brethren that he expected great things of East Lancashire on the occasion of his festival on the 12th February. The toast of "The Officers of the Lodge" followed, and the Tyler's toast as usual closed proceedings. Some charming music was given during the evening by Bros. Hansen Thorn, W.M. 554; W. B. Stirling, C. E. Hall, and J. Miller, and Bro. W. W. Morgan gave an excellent reading of Tennyson's "In Memoriam." The W.M. in addition to his other duties, accompanied all the vocal brethren on the piano.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday evening, the 15th inst. There were present:—Bros. W. A. Morgan, W.M.; E. H. Boddy, S.W.; F. Reed, J.W.; W. F. Wardropet, S.D.; J. Carter (visitor), J.D.; S. E. Frances, P.M.; George Howick, P.M.; H. R. Jones, P.M.; W. Field, J. W. Marshall, H. F. Goodchild, G. W. Smith, P. V. Denham, A. J. Duck, J. Stirk, W. Spingell, H. J. Newens, and A. A. Denham. Bros. Field and Marshall were impressively raised to the Degree of M.M. by Bro. J. G. Carter, the W.M. (Bro. W. A. Morgan) being prevented from attending until a late hour. Three gentlemen were proposed as initiates, and the ballot will be taken for them at the next meeting. Bro. G. Hourick proposed, Bro. E. H. Boddy seconded, and it was carried unanimously, "That a letter be sent to Bro. H. Wilson, Treasurer, announcing the regret of the lodge at his illness," he being prevented from attending on account of indisposition. After the "labour" of the evening the "refreshment" was very acceptable, Bro. Hart Dougherty having provided a capital dinner. The cloth having been removed, Bro. Morgan, the W.M., gave the usual Masonic toasts, which were heartily received. He regretted the absence of the elected officers, and was sure it was only through urgent business on their part. Bro. H. R. Jones, P.M., in proposing the W.M.'s health, which was received with very hearty "fring," referred to his Masonic efficiency and his geniality to visitors. The Tyler's toast brought the close of a happy evening.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—A full meeting of this flourishing lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, on Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., Bro. W. Allen, the W.M., presiding. There were present, Past Masters C. Wise, A. Wright (Treasurer), J. Wright, J. Walter, H. Potter, R. Clarke, T. Putsford (Secretary). The officers were Bros. S. Smith, S.W.; Harris, J.W.; Stewart, S.D.; Fortune, J.D.; Holloway, I.G.; Wilkes, W.S.; Stead, Tyler. Among the visitors were Grunnant, Winkley, and others. The members were Bros. Horsley, Austin, Kincey, Russell, Robins, Brady, Green, Vantree, Block, Durdell, Effa, Levi, Bertolli, Bullock, Gouldstone, Morgan, and many others. At five p.m. the Master opened his lodge. The minutes of the last lodge having been read and confirmed, the Master opened in all the Three Degrees, and in a very impressive manner passed Bros. Firmin and Whybro to the Second Degree, both of these gentlemen going through the ordeal in a very excellent manner. Several names were down for raising, but as those brethren were not present, the Master was assisted by P.Ms. McDonald and Wise in working some of the beautiful lectures in the different Degrees, and the manner in which those brethren worked the various sections met with the warm approval of those present. The business of the evening being over, the lodge was closed in due form, and the members adjourned to banquet. Upwards of 60 sat down to partake of the good things provided. Bro. Oliver, being caterer, and a word of praise is due to him for the excellent manner in which everything was put on the table. The cloth being cleared the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and well received by the brethren. The musical part of the evening being sustained by Bros. Walter, P.M.; Smith, Robins, and Bertolli, who created much amusement by giving a history of "Little Pigs." The Tyler's toast having been called for, a truly harmonious meeting was brought to a close at 11 p.m.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The members of this lodge mustered in good strength on Tuesday, the 7th inst., at the Club House, Kennington Oval, it being election night. Amongst those present were Bros. H. Reeves, W.M.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.W.; Kohler, J.W.; H. Higgins, I.P.M.; Page, P.G.S. of England, Treasurer; W. Stuart, P.M. 141, &c., Secretary; Speedy, S.D.; Webb, J.D.; Marsden, I.G.; Robinson, D.C.; Stranger, A.W.S.; F. Honeywell, P.M.; Dobie, Organist; Koch, P.M.; Everett, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M. Bro. Downie was a visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, raised Bros. Boyce, Swainsbury, and Silvester in an exceedingly creditable manner. At the conclusion of the ceremony he vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Higgins, I.P.M., who ably passed Bro. Jenkin to the Degree of a F.C. The W.M. having resumed the chair, initiated Mr. Town into the mysteries of the Craft. The election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler then took place, and resulted in favour of Bros. Walls, Page, and Longstaffe. The Audit Committee were appointed to meet on the 22nd inst., and the members elected to serve upon it were Bros. Cruise, Heywood, and Boyce. The motion of Bros. Robinson and Honeywell was confirmed as to the sum of ten guineas being voted to the R.M.B.I. on the occasion of Bro. Walls going up to represent the Kennington at the forthcoming festival. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren separated after a sitting of nearly five hours duration. There was no banquet.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The usual meeting took place at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. The lodge was opened at five o'clock by the W.M., Bro. John Douglas, assisted by Bros. J. Willing, jun., P.M., Treas.; J. J. Michael, P.M.; C. J. Scales, S.W.; W. Stie, J.W.; W. M. Stiles, Sec.; H. Lovegrove, W.S., acting as S.D.; H. Clark, acting J.D.; H. Stiles, I.G.; Beaumont, Steward; and J. Daly, Tyler. There were also present Bros. Gilbert, jun., Edmonds, Bestie, Raney, Killingback, Tuck, Solomons, Cruikshanks, Edwards, and many others. The visitors were Bros. Hallows, J.W. 1662; T. West, 1641; Higgins, 1381; and Hyland, S.D. 1744. After the confirmation of the minutes, and the opening of the lodge in the Three Degrees, Bros. Hall, Panley, Parker, Sheath, and Thompson were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. Bros. J. Clarkson and J. Sheppard were passed to the Second Degree. On the proposition of Bro. Willing, P.M., seconded by Bro. J. J. Michael, P.M., it was unanimously resolved that the Secretary be instructed to write a letter of condolence to Bro. T. Williams, P.M., who has been suffering from a serious illness for a long period, necessitating absence from the lodge. At the close of the proceedings, the brethren adjourned to banquet, served in excellent style by Bro. Clemow. The usual toasts were honoured, and some excellent songs were given by Bro. G. Musgrave, Thompson, and others.

NEW CROSS LODGE (No. 1559).—On Saturday, the 4th inst., at the New Cross Public Hall, Lewisham High-road, an emergency meeting of the above lodge was called and holden. Punctually to the summons time lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Walter Simmonds, who was supported by Bros. E. H. Thielay, P.M. 73, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., S.W.; Louis Beck, P.M. Rothesay, J.W.; Ernest E. Smith, J.D. (acting as S.D., in the absence, through ill-health, of respected Bro. P.M. Green); A. McGillivray, C.S. (acting as S.D.); T. Grumant, D.C. (acting as I.G.); H. Keeble, I.P.M., P.M. 1275, S.W. 73; Sec.; J. Moss, W.S.; S. Wise, A. Priest, H. Metham, T. Metham, S. H. Knipps, W. Clarke, W. Bull, jun.; and the following visitors:—Bros. John Thomas Moss, P.M., P.P.G.R. Middx. Ingle, P.M. Era; Woodland, P.M. 781; and H. Penney, 147. Lodge being opened, Messrs J. Ross, F. T. Dowden, Fredk. Cash, and William R. Waters were admitted and severally initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, Bro. Simmonds being at his best, and performing his duties with appropriate seriousness. Bro. W. Clarke was then raised to the degree of a M.M. by the Secretary, and the lodge was closed. An adjournment then took place to the banqueting hall below, where the brethren were soon busily engaged with the good things their esteemed caterer, Bro. Liedig, had provided for them. Having done justice to the inner man, and disposed of the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. Keeble gave "The Health of the W.M.," which was drunk heartily and "fired" à la New Cross. Bro. Simmonds replied neatly and tersely, thanking the brethren for their hearty support during his year of office, and wishing to his successor, Bro. Beech, an equally enjoyable twelvemonths' occupation of the chair of K.S. Bro. Simmonds then gave the toast of "The W.M. Elect," who in the course of his reply assured the brethren that it would be no fault of his if the forthcoming twelvemonths, so far as it affected the Masonic gatherings of 1879, was not a happy one for the brethren. He promised them "good times," and intimated that since the honour had been done him—his election to the chair—he had thought of several improvements in the shape of comfort, which he trusted would meet with general approval. "The Initiates" was next proposed by the W.M., the "Entered Apprentice's Song" being given by Bro. P.M. Moss, in most spirited voice (Bro. Moss was evidently in full song), and then Bro. Cash replied on behalf of himself and brother initiates. For "The Visitors" Bro. Moss made a most interesting reply. After thanking the W.M. and brethren for his kindly reception, he proceeded to entertain them with a synopsis of his Masonic career and experiences. Touching upon the subject of "good fellowship," our worthy brother was most happy. Said he, in the course of my Masonic life I have visited a vast number of lodges, but never have I sat down to banquet with jollier companions than those surrounding me. It is evident that the brethren of 1879 do not meet to sigh and be serious. Up stairs in lodge he had seen the work done in the serious manner it should be, and the officers had performed their various functions in a manner which was highly creditable to the lodge, and the W.M. who presided over it. Down stairs at table, he must admit that the proceedings were anything but serious, save so far as in the direction of doing justice to the viands was concerned. On the other hand, joviality and hilarity, inseparable companions in the spice of good fellowship, had prevailed throughout the proceedings. The officers replied individually, and after the Tyler's toast, music passed the time away, until the brethren separated.

TEMPLE BAR LODGE (No. 1728).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday week at The London, Fleet-street, on which occasion there were present the following brethren:—Bros. J. Dixon, W.M.; Butcher, S.W.; Bush, J.W.; Adamson, Treas.; Reed, Sec.; Staley, S.D.; Harris, J.D.; B. Buckworth, I.G.; J. Kimpton, W.S.; R. G.D.C. Kent, then installed Bro. T. W. C. Bush, W.M. elect, as the W.M. of the lodge, and the following brethren were invested as his officers for the year:—Bros. J. Dixon, I.P.M.; Charles Butcher, S.W.; A. E. Staley, J.W.; George Adamson, P.M. 199 and 1298 Treas.; Nelson Reed, I.P.M. 1671, S.W. 1572, S.W. 1601 Sec.; K. Harris, S.D.; B. Buckworth, J.D.; J. Kimpton, I.G.; James Rexworthy, D.C.; W. Woodward, Steward; W. A. Frost, Organist; and Church, [Tyler]. After the delivery of the addresses by Bro. Adamson, the worthy brother presented to the lodge in the name of Bro. Rayner, a handsome portrait, framed and glazed of Bro. John Dixon, I.P.M., and Bro. Nelson Reed, Secretary, having read the balance sheet of the lodge, which showed a balance in hand after all expenses had been paid, this balance sheet was passed, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. When the toasts were proposed, the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., in responding to the toast which included the names of "The Grand Officers," said that with regard to the Earl of Carnarvon, the brethren trusted that his lordship's new wife might never be the cause of his not attending a Masonic meeting, for there was "naught but what's good to be understood by a Free and an Accepted Mason." With respect to the present meeting the two Grand Officers present, himself and Bro. Howe, felt very much honoured by having the privilege of attending, and though they had domestic ties at home, readily accepted the invitation to meet the brethren of the Temple Bar Lodge. They had seen the work of the lodge admirably performed, especially by the Installing Master, and W. Master in the chair, and would be able to give a good account to their wives and families of the way in which they had spent their time. One thing he was quite satisfied of as to Masonry, that as the memory of the just smelt sweet and blossomed in the dust and lasted longer than the memory of other glories, which soon died away; so the beautiful words, high thoughts, and blessed doctrines of the Craft, repeated as they were, not by any means usque ad nauseam, but rather to an improvement in life, when delivered intelligently and eloquently as they had been that day, remain with those who heard them; while coarse sentiments, low jests, and unhappy allusions passed away and were forgotten. The one rested upon the mind, and oft as it was repeated became not so familiar as to breed contempt, but rather improvement. He and Bro. Howe felt that however highly well might have worked as Masons, and however often they might have heard the ceremonies, they still were a lesson to them, and they felt the better for attending these meetings and hearing the ceremonies beautifully delivered. When one found them butchered it was a terrible and awful farce, and more or less tolerated in the language of the Great Master of old, "Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." He hoped the lodge would go on from strength to strength, and that in time there would be in it a long line of Masters, who, both in appearance and work, would rival the Master who retired that day, and whose portrait this lodge had had presented to it by Bro. Rayner. Before sitting down he would express the hope that Grand Lodge and all the other lodges associated with it would do their best to make Masonry a praise, not only in this country but on the whole earth. He believed that Masonry, extensive as it was becoming, and holding a prominent place among the nations as it did, had a great career before it if it acted up to its responsibilities. He did not know what limit could be placed on it in the present day when we were surrounded by infidelity on the one side, and superstition on the other, or what great position it might take in the minds of plain, sensible, sincere men; but this he did feel, that if we did for a moment allow hypocrisy, or jobbery, or any low feeling to become rife among us, so as to eat as doth a canker into Masonry, it would sink to the level of the lowest unions that there were in the country, and instead of being in the fore front and van of civilization, become only a mere convivial association. He trusted that the convivial element would be kept up, and kept up as only Masons knew how to keep it up; but at the same time he hoped they would put forth the true principles which would ever illustrate Masonry, and make it, as he had said before, "a praise upon earth." With respect to the Temple Bar Lodge, he hoped to live to see it prosper, and adopt that noble word which they had often heard in song, "Excoelsior." Bro. Dixon, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said that it was a difficult matter to please everyone, and a W.M. was sorely puzzled to do it; but as the brethren had elected Bro. Bush he (Bro. Dixon) thought they would find the present W.M. a better than the last. When he arrived at the end of his year he hoped the brethren would say of him, "well and nobly done." The W.M., in reply, said that no Master of a lodge ever felt the responsibilities of his position more than he did. To be the first elected Master of the lodge was to him a great honour, and he felt in duty bound so to act during his year of office that at the end of that year they should not regret the choice they had made. If, at that time, the brethren approved of his Mastership, he should consider that an ample reward for his humble services. He would as far as in him lay study the harmony and good feeling of the brethren, and T.G.A.O.T.U. granting him health and strength, would endeavour to prevent any passing feeling of discord or ill will which might perchance arise, which, he hoped, might be speedily scattered like the down from the thistle. Such being the case, he had no doubt that at the end of the year it would be found to be a prosperous lodge. The W.M. next proposed "The Installing Master," whom he highly complimented on his delivery of the installation ceremony. Bro. Adamson replied. When he joined the lodge he did it with a sincere desire to enhance its prosperity, and he was willing to contribute in any way to that prosperity. Whether in a junior or a higher office the brethren would always find him willing to take any position they might like to place him in. He hailed from Kent, in which province he had learned what he knew of Freemasonry, and where he had visited something like forty lodges. He had found invariably that there was good working there, and he would never give the palm away till he found the working better elsewhere. Bros. Foulsham, Hellier, E. Barlow, and Dr. Chatterton responded to the toast of "The Visitors," and Bro. John Dixon, in replying to the toast of "The I.P.M.," said he was proud to have been Master of the lodge and he was proud of his officers. The lodge started last year, and by its establishment Temple Bar, which was pulled down, rose Phoenix like from its ashes. He acknowledged the great assistance he had received from Bro. Adamson and the other officers. He now retired and gave up the command to Bro. Bush. It should not be his fault if the lodge did not prosper. He did not retire from the good ship, and while a timber remained he should stick to it. The W.M. then proposed "The Masonic Charities," to which Bro. James Terry replied, fully explaining the position of the three Masonic Institutions, the large number of persons they benefited, the large amount of money it needed it to meet their requirements, and their reliance upon the Craft generally to enable them to meet in the future the increasing demands which would be made upon them. Bros. G. Adams and Nelson Reed, replied to the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary," and the other officers replied to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge." The brethren who had been entertained with some excellent music and singing in the course of the evening, then separated.

Master honoured the banquet with his presence. This lodge was granted a charter last year by the Grand Lodge, to entitle the subscribing members to wear the customary jewel, it having reached its 100th year, being born in 1776.

GIBRALTAR.—Lodge of Friendship (No. 278, E.C.)—The annual installation meeting of the members of this lodge took place on the 27th ult., at their lodge rooms, Horse Barrack-lane, when a large number of the Craft met to do honour to the new Worshipful Master. After the transaction of some formal business Brother Stanley, the retiring W.M. proceeded to install Bro. C. Johnson as his successor in the chair of K.S., a ceremony which was performed with much impressiveness, Bro. Stanley being assisted by Bro. Glasford, I.P.M. The newly-installed W.M., then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year:—Bro. Stanley, I.P.M.; Bros. The brethren subsequently sat down to a banquet served in capital style by Bro. Miranda. The banquet room presented a charming appearance having been decorated by Bro. Cottrell, who had evidently made it "a labour of love." The beautiful transparency that of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of the Order, was painted (from a photograph) by Lieut. Wald, R.B., H.R.H.'s "Coat of Arms" and "Feathers" and the "Old Year" being contributed by Bro. Mangle. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and "The Health of the W.M." given by the I.P.M. was warmly received. Cottrell, and responded to by Bros. Cavana, P.M.; Conroy, Bacon, W.M.; and Claveresso. An excellent musical programme was provided by Bros. Cottrell, Gimenez, Myatt, and Bacon, Bro. Rellé ably presiding at the harmonium and pianoforte, added very considerably to the enjoyment of the evening by his charming selections. Bro. Henry, P.M., D.C., admirably carried out the entire arrangements of the ceremonies and banquet. The Tylers toast brought to a close a capital evening, spent in a truly Masonic manner, and reflecting the greatest credit upon all concerned.

(Saffron Walden); &c. About sixty brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Moyes. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair and heartily responded to by the brethren.

BIRKENHEAD.—Mersey Lodge (No. 477).—The members of this lodge, who, like the noble river whose name it bears, has had its ebbs and flows, but is now on the full flood of prosperity, met on Thursday afternoon, the 9th inst., at the Masonic Chambers, Argyle-street, for the purpose of assisting at the annual installation of the W.M. elect (Bro. William Bennett). There was an attendance of nearly 90 brethren, and the proceedings were marked by an amount of eclat which showed how greatly the largest lodge in the Province of Cheshire is now prospering. The chair at the opening was taken by Bro. John Dutton, W.M., and he was supported by Bros. J. Adams, P.M.; J. Griffiths, P.M.; J. Higson Johnson, P.M.; W. Bennett, J.W.; J. Woolley, S.D.; A. K. Gardner, J.D.; Donald Fraser, P.M., Treasurer; Sam. Jones, P.M., Secretary; G. Thompson, I.G.; W. Hopkinson, S.; H. Seaman, S.; and J. H. Holtway, Tyler. The members present were Bros. J. Marsh, T. Cowdrey into the mysteries of the Order. The chair was then taken by Bro. J. Salmon, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., who proceeded to install Bro. William Bennett as W.M. of the Mersey Lodge in a most masterly and impressive manner. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Dutton, I.P.M.; J. Wedgwood, P.M.; Joseph Braiten, P.M., P.P.S.W.; Samuel Jones, P.M., and Secretary (for the fifth time); Donald Fraser, P.M., and Treasurer (for the third time); Frederick Thompson, S.W.; A. K. Salmon for his services as Installing Master. The balance sheet which was taken as read, was of a highly satisfactory kind, and one of the most pleasant features about it was the fact that no less a sum than £106 5s. 7d. had been spent during the year in charity and education. Bro. J. Higson Johnson, P.M., in the name of the members, then presented Bro. Dutton with a very unique and valuable Past Master's jewel as a token of the manner in which his valuable year's services had been esteemed by the lodge. The gift was suitably acknowledged, and after hearty good wishes had been given from about twenty representatives from other lodges the proceedings closed. At the conclusion of the business, the members and visitors dined at the Ranelagh Hotel, where Bro. Berry catered with his usual success, and gave every satisfaction. The usual Masonic and general toasts were proposed and responded to, and a pleasant evening was spent.

SALISBURY.—Elias de Derham Lodge (No. 586).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 9th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Canal. After the minutes of the last lodge had been read and confirmed, and Mr. Hugh Crawford initiated into the mysteries and secrets of Freemasonry, Bro. Ambrose Tucker, S.W. and W.M. elect, was installed the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by Bro. H. Ward, P.M., P.P.J.G.W. Wilts, &c., assisted by the following Board of Installed Masters:—Bros. R. Stokes, P.P.S.G.W. Wilts; F. Griffin, P.M.; J. Rumtold, P.M.; F. J. Russell, P.M.; T. S. Fitcher, P.M. 1112, P.P.G.D.C. Before the lodge was closed, the outgoing Master, W. Bro. F. Norwood, was presented with a handsome Past Master's jewel, which the lodge had voted him as a mark of their appreciation of his services during his year of office. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited "Hearty good wishes" from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed with the usual formalities of the Craft. The brethren subsequently dined together, the newly-installed Master presiding.

BRECON.—Loyal Brecknock Lodge (No. 651).—The brethren of this lodge held their annual installation meeting on Tuesday, 7th inst, in the Masonic Hall, Castle Hotel. The lodge was opened in due form at 4 p.m., Bro. W. Howell, Rector of Lower Chapel was proposed as a joining member, and Dr. Johnstone of the Brecon Infirmary as a candidate for initiation at the next lodge. The S.W. Bro. Thos. Butcher, W.M. elect, was then questioned in the usual manner by the Secretary, and having satisfactorily responded, the Board of Installed Masters was formed and the installation ceremony very ably performed by Bro. E. Cambridge Phillips, P.M. On the re-admission of the brethren after the customary salutations the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. R. Webb, I.P.M.; T. Jones, S.W.; F. Grundy, J.W.; D. Evans, Treas.; J. A. Whittle, Sec.; W. Webb, S.D.; Capt. J. Morgan, J.D.; T. L. Lewis, Org.; A. Phipps, D.C.; D. Gulling, I.G.; Bros. A. Maybery, W. Games, T. B. C. Watkins, R. Groom, Stewards. The lodge having been closed in ancient form the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel, where a sumptuous repast was provided for them. Bro. T. Butcher, W.M. presided, and after the usual loyal toasts had been proposed and cordially responded to, a very handsome Past Master's jewel was presented by the W.M. on behalf of the brethren to Bro. R. Webb the retiring W.M. The inscription on the jewel was as follows:—Presented to Bro. R. Webb, P.M. and P.G.J.W. for unremitting attention to the Craft during two years of Mastership 1877, 1878. Bro. Webb heartily thanked the brethren for the splendid jewel they had presented to him and assured them that his interest in the welfare of the lodge would be as great in the future as it had been in the past. During the evening some capital songs were contributed by Bros. Lewis, H. C. Rich, Groom, T. Jones, G. Vaughan, Coulthard and Williams. The brethren separated shortly before 11, with a general expression of hearty good wishes for the success of the lodge during the ensuing year.

CHESTER.—Lodge of Independence (No. 721).—The feast of St. John and annual installation of the W.M. of this lodge, were held in the Masonic Rooms, Chester, on Tuesday, the 14th inst. The retiring W.M., Bro. R. C. Edwards, installed the W.M. elect, Bro. H. P. Swindells, in an impressive manner. The following brethren were afterwards invested as officers:—Bros. E. Cletwr Jones, S.W.; H. Ellis, J.D.; T. Knowles, I.G.; J. Dennis, P.M., Treas.; J. Lyon, P.M. (by proxy), Sec.; W. Johnson, P.M., D. of C.; A. Stephenson, Steward; and Evan Jones, Tyler. A grant of £3 was made in aid of the widow of a brother recently deceased at Bangor. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Town Hall, where a banquet was provided. Among the brethren were Bros. J. P. Platt, P.P.G.J.W.; E. Cuzner, P.G.O.; J. E. Williams, P.P.S.G.D.; T. M. Lockwood, P.P.G.S. of W.; J. Salmon, P.P.J.G.D.; L. Gilbert (Mayor of Chester), P.M.; J. J. Cunnah, P.M.; F. A. Dickson, W.M., 425; J. Robinson, P.M.; J. Jones, W.M. 1576; G. H. Webb, 25; C. Foulkes, 605; G. T. Holland, 1472; E. Smith, W.M. 1336; J. Dennis, P.M.; &c.

NEYLAND.—Neyland Lodge (No. 990).—On Tuesday, the 14th inst., the brethren of the above lodge assembled in the lodge-room, South Wales Hotel, for the purpose of installing the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The lodge having been opened in due form, the ceremony of installation was immediately proceeded with, when Bro. Thomas Poulter was installed the Worshipful Master of the lodge, according to ancient custom, by Bro. G. Phipps, P.P.G.L.D., in an efficient manner. After which, the newly-installed Master invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. A. Evans, P.P.G.S.B., I.M.P.; George W. Foris, S.W.; J. Adkins, J.W.; W. G. Phillips, P.P.G.J.W., Treas.; George Phipps, P.P.G.S.D., Sec.; W. Hall, S.D.; J. Snoddy, J.D.; J. George, I.G.; W. Rees, S.S.; T. Wilson, J.S. The lodge was then called off, and the brethren repaired to the banquet-room, where an excellent spread was prepared for them by Mr. and Mrs. Whetton, and served in the most prompt and satisfactory manner, which elicited eulogiums from all present. The following brethren, besides those already named, were present:—Bros. Dr. H. D. Reynolds, P.P.G.S.D.; Jas. Walkley, P.P.G.P.; Thomas Cousins, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; J. Harris, P.S.W.; R. F. Symes, P.J.W.; J. Coram, P.S.W.; J. Cotam, P.S.D.; and G. Rickard, 378. The W.M. presided and was supported by his Senior and Junior Wardens. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly attended to, in the course of which some excellent remarks bearing upon Freemasonry were made. Some excellent songs were well sung by several of the brethren, and taken on the whole the occasion was one of the most pleasant and enjoyable experienced in connection with the above lodge. The brethren separated at eleven o'clock, highly satisfied with the whole of the proceedings.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The feast of St. John the Evangelist, in connection with this lodge was observed on Tuesday, the 7th inst. The brethren met in the Masonic Hall, Station-street, Cockermonth, at noon, there being present the following members:—Bros. Jas. Black, W.M.; C. Morton, P.M. 1002, 872, 1267, and 1660, P.P.G.S.W.; W. Shilton, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas., P.P.G.S.D.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org., P.P.G. Org.; W. F. Lamonby, P.M., P.P.G. Reg. (Freemason); Rev. E. M. Rice, M.A., P.M.; Captain F. R. Sewell, S.W., W.M. elect; T. Bird, J.W.; Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A., Chaplain; T. C. Robinson, Sec.; H. Peacock, I.G.; Jos. Hewson, Tyler; J. C. Nicholson, H. Ritson, L. F. B. Dykes, W. Paisley, E. L. Waugh, R. Harrison, T. Armstrong, J. Towers, J. Bolton, J. Fearon, G. Brash, and J. Borrowscale. The attendance was less than usual, no doubt on account of the holidays being over. The visitors were Bros. P. de E. Collin, P.M. 962, P.P.G.A.D.C.; Quartermaster Sergt. G. Noakes, 55th Regt., W.M. 1532, P.G.A.D.C.; A. Walter, P.M. 371, P.P.G.S.B.; A. Taylor, P.M. 310 and 1532, P.P.G.S.B.; T. Mandle, P.M. 371, P.G. St.; J. W. Robinson, W.M. 371; Jas. Quay, 371; C. A. Bradbury, 962; and W. Gaspey, D.C. 1073. Several apologies were received, amongst others from Bros. J. R. Bain, P.M. 1400, P.G. J.W.; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M. 119, P.G. Treas.; Jos. Nicholson, P.M. 371, P.P.G.S.W.; E. Tyson, W.M. 119. After the lodge was opened, the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, and performed in the fullest and completest manner, including opening and closing the Board of Installed Masters, "calling-off," and "on." Up to the Third Degree, the work was done by Bro. R. Robinson, P.M. In the Board of Installed Masters, which mustered fourteen, Bro. Black, W.M., officiated, with the following officers:—Bros. R. Robinson, W.S.W.; W. F. Lamonby, W.J.W.; Rev. E. M. Rice, M.A., Chaplain; W. H. Lewthwaite, Org.; A. Taylor, W.I.G.; and W. Shilton, W. Tyler. The newly-installed W.M., in investing his I.P.M., explained the symbolism of the jewel belonging to that office. On the re-admission of the Master Masons, the proclamations, presentations, and explanation of the working tools, investiture of officers, intrusting of the Three Pillars, and the charges to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, were performed by Bro. Lamonby, P.M. Bro. Capt. Sewell's officers were invested as follows:—Bros. J. Black, I.P.M.; T. Bird, S.W.; T. Robinson, J.W.; Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A., Chaplain; R. Robinson, P.M., Treas. (fifth time); J. Fearon, Sec.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M., (fifth time); H. Peacock, S.D.; R. W. Robinson, J.D.; R. Harrison, I.G.; T. Armstrong, and W. Paisley, Stewards; Jos. Hewson, Tyler. On the proclamations being put, Bro. Black moved, Bro. Lamonby seconded, and it was unanimously resolved that the sum of two guineas be subscribed from the lodge funds, in aid of the distressed widow and children of a deceased brother belonging to Lodge 1400, and the list was also ordered to be passed round the members individually. Bro. Lamonby, P.M., then said he had to perform a pleasing duty, the more so, that the Worshipful brother, to whom it referred, was with them to-day. He alluded to Bro. Morton, the senior P.M. and father of Skiddaw Lodge, who sat in the chair for the first two years of the lodge's existence, during which time he performed an extraordinary amount of work, notwithstanding that he lived at a distance. After leaving the chair of Skiddaw Lodge, Bro. Morton installed his successors for a period of ten years, till he retired. Owing so much as they, (the members of Skiddaw Lodge) did to Bro. Morton, who, from the very beginning had continued a subscribing member, he (Bro. Lamonby) thought they would readily agree with him that their senior P.M. had fairly earned exemption from payment of dues, the more so, that another lodge, at least, had a prior claim on him. He therefore had to move, and he did so with pleasure, enhanced from the fact that he first saw the Light of Masonry under Bro. Morton's first year of Mastership, and was also installed by him, that Bro. Morton be from that day enrolled an honorary member of Skiddaw Lodge; and, further, that such resolution be engrossed on vellum, suitably framed, and presented to Bro. Morton. Long might it please the G.A.O.T.U. to permit the name of Bro. Morton to remain at the head of the roll of Skiddaw Lodge. The W.M. in cordially seconding the motion, alluded to his being present fifteen years ago as a visiting brother, when Skiddaw Lodge was consecrated, and Bro. Morton was installed its first W.M. The motion was then put and carried unanimously. Bro. Morton acknowledged the compliment paid him in a feeling manner. It may be added, to Bro. Morton, in addition to being the father of Skiddaw Lodge, also occupies the same fraternal distinction in connection with Kenlis Lodge, No. 1267, Egremont, and Arlecdon Lodge, No. 1660, Frizington. "Hearty good wishes" having been tendered from lodges 371, 872, 962, 1073, 1267, 1532, and 1660, the lodge was closed in form, at a quarter to two o'clock. The brethren then adjourned to Bro. Rapley's, the Globe Hotel, where a substantial banquet awaited them. Bro. Captain Sewell, W.M., presided, faced by his Wardens. After the loyal and patriotic toasts had been duly honoured, the company found that the Arctic temperature of the large hall was dead against a full enjoyment of the feast of reason and flow of soul about to be placed before them; and, on the proposition of the W.M., they beat a retreat to the drawing room of the hotel, where, for three hours, they were comfortable and en famille. The W.M., in proposing "Her Majesty the Queen, and the rest of the Royal Family," made a feeling allusion to the lamentable death of the Princess Alice. Bro. Lamonby, P.M., gave the "Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces." He referred to the original success, so far, of the Afghan expedition; the recent disasters in connection with ships of war; the value of the Militia, as the backbone and feeder of the army; and the spirit displayed by the volunteers in the Cape troubles. He associated the toast with the names of Bro. Noakes, 55th Fort; Bro. Capt. Sewell, Royal Cumberland Militia; and Bro. Lieut. Waugh, of the Cockermonth Rifle Volunteers. (Applause.) Bro. Noakes, in acknowledging the compliment, spoke of the improvements effected in the army during the years he had had the honour to belong to the first branch of Her Majesty's forces, and he gave it as his opinion that before long, all the land defences of the country would be blended in one harmonious whole. (Applause.) The W.M., in returning thanks for the Militia, referred to the good uses of the Army Reserve, which, although last year, it deprived him of thirty of the best men of his company, was one of the means to bring about that consolidation and harmonious blending spoken of by Bro. Noakes. He had to mention an interesting circumstance connecting the Royal Cumberland Militia with Freemasonry. Some time since he heard that a Masonic lodge once existed in the Cumberland Militia, but unfortunately no traces of it could be found. Talking with Bro. Lamonby subsequently on the subject, he (Capt. Sewell) was informed, much to his gratification, that the warrant of the Militia Lodge was recently found by him, after laying forgotten many years. Bro. Lamonby had framed the warrant, and it was now to be seen on the walls of the Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge, at Whitehaven. This was an interesting circumstance, and as there were eight officers in his regiment, who were Masons, he (Capt. Sewell) intended to bring the fact under their notice. (Applause.) Bro. Lieut. Waugh also replied for "The Volunteers," and he proposed "The Bishop of the Diocese, with the Clergy of all Denominations," coupled with the name of Bro. Rev. E. M. Rice, M.A., P.M. Skiddaw Lodge, who returned thanks. The W.M. next (after the door had been tied) gave "The M.W. Grand Master of England." Independent of the advantages which accrued to Freemasonry in England by having at its head the heir of the crown, he (the W.M.) spoke warmly of the effect produced in France, by the active part taken in the success of the Paris Exhibition by the Prince of Wales. Wherever Englishmen went they heard nothing but the warmest of praises of their Grand Master from the French people. (Applause.) The toast was drunk with full Craft honours. The W.M. then gave "The M.W. Pro Grand Master, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the Rest of the Grand Officers." He alluded to the fact of Lord Carnarvon being more than ever entitled to their esteem, in that his lordship had recently become a Cumbrian by his marriage with Miss Howard, of Greystoke. (Applause.) The toast was received with full honours. The W.M. next gave "The Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Colonel Whitwell, Dep. Prov. Grand Master, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," which he associated with the names of Bros. Collin, Noakes, and Taylor, who severally acknowledged the compliment. Bro. Black, I.P.M., then proposed "The Newly-installed Master of Skiddaw Lodge." (Applause.) He remarked on the energy, punctuality, and ability displayed by Bro. Capt. Sewell during the twelvemonths he had acted as his (Bro. Black's) Senior Warden. Not only had their new W.M. discharged the duties appertaining to his office in a way never excelled, but he had ably assisted him (Bro. Black) on many an occasion by presenting and explaining the working tools to candidates, delivering the charges, and explaining the tracing boards. Bro. Sewell had only been absent from his post once during the twelve months, and that was when he was with his regiment on Bracken Var Moor. Bro. Sewell, therefore, thoroughly deserved the honour conferred on him that day—the highest that any lodge had in its power to confer on its members, and he trusted he should have a prosperous and happy year of office. (Applause.) Whilst wishing their new W.M. every prosperity, however, he warned him to be extremely careful in the admission of candidates. (Hear, hear.) The W.M., in reply, expressed his deep sensibility of the honour conferred on him, and he could assure the brethren of Skiddaw Lodge, that with the assistance of the officers whom he had appointed, he should put forth his best endeavours to conduct the affairs of the lodge in the most constitutional manner. The office of W.M. of a lodge of Freemasons was one any man might well be proud of; and he might mention that, almost the last words of his father were that he should strive to make himself useful in Masonry. He was glad to see present to day one brother, who some years back raised him to the sublime degree in his mother lodge (Bro. A. Walter, P.M., Lodge of Perseverance), and he was only sorry that the old and respected brother who "deceased" him through his degrees, and who was a conjutor of his (the W.M.'s) father, when Lodge of Perseverance was barely able to keep its head above water, was prevented from being present that day through illness. He alluded to Bro. Jos. Nicholson, P.M., Lodge of Perseverance. After thanking the brethren for the warm manner in which they had received the toast of his health, the W.M. then, in most complimentary terms, proposed the "Immediate Past Master," alluding to the able manner in which Bro. Black had discharged the duties of his office, in the face, too, of an extraordinary amount of work. (Applause.) Bro. Black, I.P.M., replied, and thanked his officers for the ready assistance rendered him during the twelve months, which had been a period of real hard work to all concerned. In Bro. Bird, who had that day been promoted to the W.M.'s chair, he had an officer, who, no matter what the weather was like, travelled a long distance, either to regular lodge business, or to lodges of instruction. As to Bro. T. C. Robinson, the late secretary, he had to do double duty, undertaking the post of Deacon in the absence from the neighbourhood of the former S.D. He also thanked Bros. R. Robinson and Lamonby, for their able and willing assistance during the year closed, in which there had been ten initiations, with the subsequent passings and raisings. The drawback was the apathy displayed by his I.P.M., Bro. W. Taylor, who had, he was sorry to say, been not a bit more diligent in that office, than in the chair the year previous, as W.M. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. proposed (the "Newly-invested Officers," coupled with the names of Bros. T. Bird, S.W., T. C. Robinson, J.W.; J. Fearon, Sec.; H. Peacock, S.D.; and R. Harrison, I.G., who severally returned thanks. The W.M. next gave the "Installing Masters." Bro. R. Robinson, in acknowledging the toast, said it was the first time he had assisted in such an onerous capacity, and the little he had done, was, he considered, quite an honour, seeing that the brother installed in the chair that day was likely to make so excellent a W.M. of Skiddaw Lodge. (Applause.) Bro. Black returned thanks, and observed that he considered it the duty of every retiring Master to take some part in the installation of his successor. Bro. Lamonby also replied, and whilst expressing the pleasure it afforded him to assist as Installing Master, as also wishing the W.M. a prosperous year of office, took occasion to refer to Bro. Black's caution as to discrimination in the choice of candidates. He would read them the advice of two eminent authorities. One of them was the late Bro. Hutchinson, who, it would perhaps be interesting to them to know, was a Cumberland Mason; not only that, but the author of the now valuable and scarce "History of Cumberland," published at Carlisle, in the year 1798, the same year, and from the same office, as produced the leading county newspaper of to-day, the Carlisle Journal. (Applause.) The Masonic work of Bro. Hutchinson's to which he (Bro. Lamonby) alluded, was the "spirit of Masonry," published in 1796, at the aforesaid office in Carlisle. In it the writer urged:—"I warn you to be particularly cautious not to initiate any but such as are worthy; be well assured that their conduct is regulated by virtue, and their bosoms inflamed with the love of knowledge. All are not proper to be admitted into Masonry, whose influence ought to be universal, but whose privileges should not be made too common; and you are well convinced that there are some amongst us who take the shadow for the substance, who are acquainted with its ceremonies, but catch not the spirit of the profession." (Hear, hear.) The other quotation was from the "Aporisms" of the late Bro. Dr. Oliver, who remarked, "Be very cautious whom you recommend as a candidate for initiation; one false step on this point may be fatal. If you have a good lodge, keep it select. Great numbers are not always beneficial." (Hear, hear.) Those were very valuable recommendations, and it was to be hoped they would always be acted up to strictly by Skiddaw Lodge. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Bolton then, in cordial terms, gave "The Visiting Brethren," which he coupled with the names of all those present, and they returned thanks. Bro. Lamonby proposed "The Masonic Charities," and, in doing so, referred to the status and importance of Cumberland and Westmorland as a province, which could always depend upon the election of a candidate into one of the three Institutions at the second time of asking. (Applause.) Referring to the special appeal made in the large room that day on behalf of the widow and children of a deceased brother, he asked them to leave their contributions with Bro. Fearon, the new Secretary of Skiddaw Lodge, at the close of the proceedings, and he hoped a good amount would be at once raised, and as readily dispatched. (Applause.) Bro. R. Robinson, P.M., proposed "The Masonic Press." He deplored the fact, that, although there were published excellent papers, recording the proceedings of Masonry all over the world, reading Masons were a rarity. In one of these publications that he (Bro. Robinson) had subscribed to for years past, there would be found admirable and talented articles on every subject connected with Masonry. The letter-writing also was very interesting, and the only fault seemed to be the great amount of acerbity, and apparent want of brotherly love in them. He coupled the toast with the name of Bro. Lamonby, who represented The Freemason. (Applause.) Bro. Lamonby, in thanking Bro. Robinson and the brethren, referred to his connection with the Masonic Press, and deplored the apathy and supine indifference, which characterised nineteen out of every twenty Freemasons, not only in Great Britain, but all over the world. They were content to be in their places on lodge night; but there their interest stopped, and it was a fact that the Masonic student was a "rara avis." He had a project in his mind, so far as Skiddaw Lodge was concerned, and that was the formation of a library in connection therewith. (Applause.) He should be most happy to give the scheme a start with a nucleus in the shape of a few works on Masonry, and if other brothers would assist in like manner, there would be created, he hoped, an admirable incentive for the brethren to dive into a rich store of Masonic literature, which he was sorry to say so few were aware existed. Very shortly he should bring forward a project for the formation of a library in connection with Skiddaw Lodge. (Applause.) The Tyler having given "To all Poor and Distressed Masons," a most enjoyable afternoon was closed at a few minutes past six o'clock. An excellent programme of music was, as usual, interspersed amongst the toasts. Bro. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org., P.P.G.O., presided at the pianoforte, and the following brethren contributed songs, &c., during the evening:—Bros. Black, Brash, Hewson, Nicholson, T. C. Robinson, Noakes, and Lamonby.

LIVERPOOL—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1035).—The brethren connected with this lodge assembled for installation purposes at the Sklmersdale Hall, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 9th inst., when there was a good attendance. Donkin, Sec.; John White, Asst. Sec.; J. P. Bryan, S.D.; and others. The W.M. elect was presented by Bros. A. Willis and G. Casey (1086.) The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured; that of "The Provincial Grand Master and Officers" was cordially received and acknowledged by Bro. Archer, P.M. 1086, P.G.S.D. The toast of the evening, that of "The Worshipful Master," was proposed by Bro. Fozzard, P.M., who said he was confident everyone would bear him out when he said that their W.M. was worthy of the great trust they had reposed in him. The W.M. thanked the brethren in feeling terms, and assured them that he would do his utmost to deserve the honour they had conferred on him. "The Installing Master" was proposed by Bro. Willis, P.M.; and the "P.M.'s" by the W.M., who presented Bro. J. W. M'Wear with a handsome Past Master's jewel on behalf of the lodge; while Bro. Peake presented him with a handsome epergne on behalf of a number of the individual members, accompanying it with some flattering remarks on the present condition of the lodge, and the good feeling which had existed during his year of office. The toast was responded to by Bro. Fozzard, P.M., and M'Wear, P.M. "The West Lancashire Educational Institution" was proposed by Bro. R. R. Forshaw, S.W., and coupled with it the name of Bro. George Morgan, P.M., who responded. Other toasts followed, and the brethren separated after an agreeable reunion.

NORTHALLERTON.—Anchor Lodge (No. 1337).—There was an attendance of about forty brethren on Tuesday, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, to witness the installation of Bro. Walmsley in the chair of this lodge by Bro. Knowles, P.M. and P.P.S. Deacon of Durham. The officers were appointed as follows:—Bros. H. Rymer, I.P.M.; Hardy, S.W.; Palliser, J.W.; Rev. H. A banquet at the Golden Lion Hotel followed the closing of the lodge.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The interesting ceremony of the installation of the W.M. of this lodge took place at the Assembly Rooms, High-street, on the 8th inst., when Bro. John Clisham was installed Master of the lodge, Bro. Richardson, P.M., P.P. G.S.D. officiating as Installing Master. The ceremony was carried out in a most impressive manner. After the good things had been duly discussed, the following programme of toasts was gone through, "The Queen and the Craft," by the W.M.; "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England," Bro. Eye, P.M., then proposed "The P.G. Master of Hampshire," and spoke in the highest terms of the P.G.M., and the great interest that was taken by him in Masonry. Whenever there was a good work to be performed he was always present to take his share; and the general opinion of the brethren in this province was that they had got a P.G. Master second to none. The brethren separated about 10 o'clock, after spending a most enjoyable evening.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge No. (1536).—Lieut.-Col. A. H. King, Asst. Gr.-Master General of the Royal Artillery, Past Master 1307, and P.G. S.W. for the Province of Kent, honoured the above lodge, held at Bro. Garbett's, the Sir Robert Peel, on Friday, the 10th inst., with a visit, and was evidently pleased, not only with the reception he had at the hands of the brethren, but with the good working and unanimity that is so patent a sine qua non in this lodge with all who either aspire to position or membership. Bro. Picken, the W.M., was assisted by the following officers:—Bros. the Rev. C. A. Solié, Chap.; H. Shaw, S.W.; D. Deeves, J.W.; W. Murphy, Treas.; G. Kennedy, Sec.; H. Welding, S.D.; H. Hardy, Org.; T. Hollyman, I.G.; C. Buckland, D.C.; and J. Lackland, Tyler. The following Past Masters of, and belonging to the lodge were present:—Bro. G. Spinks I.P.M.; W. Weston, C. King was conducted into the lodge by the Past Masters, and was received with the "honours of fire" and took his place upon the right of the chair. Bro. Anderson, and Bro. Solbé, of No. 501, a lodge in China, were then passed to the Second Degree in splendid style. The W.M. then said, as Bro. Brooks, their J.D., had left the garrison, he should invest Bro. Holleyman in his stead, and Bro. Holleyman was accordingly so honoured. Bro. Buckland was made I.G., and Bro. Anderson Steward. It was then announced that Bro. Weston had represented the case of Widow Benn at the Board of Benevolence, and had obtained for her a sum of twenty-five guineas. The lodge was then closed.

PLYMOUTH.—Lodge of Prudence (No. 1550).—The members of the above lodge held their usual meeting at the Hayshe Masonic Temple, Princess-place. W. Bro. J. G. Kervern, W.M., presided, and after the customary business adjourned to Chubb's Hotel for their usual banquet. Thirty-seven were present, and amongst the visitors were several distinguished brethren from this and the neighbouring province of Cornwall. The usual toasts, which were duly honoured, were interspersed with songs and glees, admirably rendered by Bros. T. Goodall, Jarvis, Congdon, J. Rendle, Burden, and Dymond. The lodge is in a prosperous condition, numerically and financially, and for the short time it has been in existence has given a large amount to the Masonic and other charities.

LANCASTER.—Duke of Lancaster Lodge (No. 1353).—The members of this lodge of ancient Freemasons held their regular meeting on Wednesday, the 15th inst., having been summoned to meet at 9 o'clock, a.m., and at 7.30 p.m. At 9 a.m., there were present Bros. The lodge was closed to the First Degree and adjourned to 7.30 p.m., At the appointed hour the lodge was resumed in the First Degree, the minutes, address of condolence to the Queen, &c., were read and confirmed, the above officers being present and a very good muster of the brethren. The W.M. Bro. Wolfenden, initiated one and passed another brother. The letter of reply to the address of condolence to the Queen was read, all the brethren standing. Bro. F. G. Dale, I.P.M., was appointed Steward from this lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and widows of Freemasons, and a sum of ten guineas was voted from the lodge funds to the Institution (this is the fourth donation of that sum from this lodge). It was also resolved on the motion of Bro. J. Acton, P.M. seconded by Bro. J. Bele, P.M., that a donation of five guineas be given from the lodge funds to the widow of our late Bro. John Proctor, deceased. The business of the evening being ended, the lodge was closed, the choir and brethren singing the closing hymn, Bro. R. Woods presiding at the organ.

Henry Frederick Frost, of The Great City Lodge, 1426, which proved unanimous in his favour, and he was forthwith advanced to the Degree of Mark Master. The ceremony was performed in such a masterly manner, that only those who have before witnessed the almost matchless rendering of the ritual by our gifted Rev. Bro. can fully realise. It augurs a very meritorious future for St. Mark's No. 1, embodied as it is with the "fine fleur" of the working element (one of the officers regularly travelling a distance of 120 miles to do his duty). Letters of apology were read from absent members. Three candidates were announced for advancement at the next meeting. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form and adjourned. THE FREEMASON.

IN MEMORIAM.

As week succeeds to week we have to deplore the loss of worthy brethren, whose place in the lodge knows them no more. We announced in our last the death of Commander Scott, R.N., J.P., of Strathroy, Omagh, Ireland, and we call attention to it with deep regret. He formed one of that too limited number of enquiring Masons who sympathize with Masonic literature and hail Masonic Investigation. A kind hearted and friendly brother, he was always anxious to extend the teaching and influence of Freemasonry, to raise its intellectual character, to uphold its civilizing influences. We condole with our Irish brethren on the loss of so true a brother and so good a Mason.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

A correspondent very kindly calls our attention to a prevalent error, which may do some harm to the Educational Charities, unless pointed out, namely, that lady Life Governors are deprived by the amended rules of their votes in General Committee. That is not so, and was so distinctly decided on Monday last. By the wording of the amended law, as quoted by our correspondent, lady Life Governors have the same right they had previously under the laws of the two Schools.

THE LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

We are glad to call attention to the first report of this Association for 1879, which we were asked to publish last week, and which we think both by its modest words and simple statements, and straightforward explanations will commend itself to very many of our London brethren. We ask the London voters for the Charities not to be led away by childish canards or personal feelings, but simply to read the report, to think it over carefully, and we have no fear of the result. Moderation and good sense, right reason and straight running are generally commended by men, and we feel sure, will be by Masons. Indeed, the need of the Association is so obvious to all who will only condescend to look beneath the surface, that we think the Association is destined to be a great success.

THE ORIGIN OF FREEMASONRY.

The origin of that remarkable society, to which it is our privilege to belong, is still a "vexata quæstio" amid Masonic students and non-Masonic enquirers. So peculiar is its organization, and so undoubted its existence, that numerous most contradicting, and even absurd theories have been broached, from time to time, with dogmatic certainty, as to its rise and progress, its first beginning, its later development. We may pass over a host of puerile and ridiculous suppositions, and confine ourselves to-day to those within the domain of credibility, evidence, common sense, and even possibility. A modern magazine writer, so late as this last year, propounds this new theory, or rather an old theory in a new dress, in the following words:—"Saracen architects became scattered during a considerable epoch through Greece, Italy, Sicily, and other countries; a considerable number of Christian artificers, chiefly Greeks, joined them, forming a corporation, which had its secret laws and statutes, and whose members recognized each other by signs, this was the origin of Freemasonry." We prefer on this head the theory of Bro. Fort, of "Byzantine Revival," so to say, but we allude to this passage to point out how, from time to time, such explanations are given of the origin of our mysterious brotherhood, and how they should be noted by all, who, not blindly prejudiced by foregone conclusions, are still open to historical evidence and matter of fact, while they are equally unmoved by fantastic explanations or childish and uncritical suggestions. It may be well to remind our readers here, with the commencement of 1879, where we stand in the progressing road of "Masonic investigation." The theories of Masonic origin, which really deserve attention and study, may, we think, be safely reduced to three. 1st the Guild Theory; 2nd the Hermetic Theory; 3rd the Adaptation Theory. If we wish to study the Guild theory in its past or complete development, we must read the works of Preston, Findel, Steinbrenner, and above all Fort. Neither must we overlook the remarkable labours of Bro. David Murray Lyon, the contributions of Bro. Hughan, and other modern writers on the same subject, whose papers are still only to be found in Masonic journals and magazines. The Hermetic theory is mainly to be gathered by implication, as we are aware of no writer who calmly arrays all the evidence in favour of it. The Adaptation Theory, started by Bro. Buchan, has recently gained a new ally in Bro. Findel and one or two other well known Masons, but we apprehend, "pace" such authorities, that it cannot face the fire of a remorseless and destructive criticism. It is altogether hazy and unsatisfactory, and entirely based on "ex post facto" assumptions and prepossessions. "It is because it is." We have often before expressed our view in favour of the Guild Theory, though we have never for one moment shut our eyes, to its many and salient difficulties. It is still, however, the most simple, the most rational, and proceeding more than any other on historical evidence alone best answers to the needful requirements of "cause and effect." But it is fair to observe, that latterly a good deal of evidence has "cropped up" which seems to give some "colouring" at any rate to the Hermetic view. We say nothing here of the old view of Oliver which links our Freemasonry to the mysteries, or to the skilful use which Bro. Fort has made of this theory, in his remarks on the Scandinavian mysteries. That is a separate question, and may well even be admitted in part, at any rate by those who accept the guild theory. But what we wish to point out is this, that we have to modify certain views, which have to this time been universally held as correct, by all modern critical students of Masonic history. The high grade movement, with its Hermeticism and specific "colouring matter," has generally been ascribed to Ramsay, alike in as its first "fautor," and in its later development under these German mysteries which did such harm to Freemasonry. Thus Masonic Hermeticism dates from 1750 or thereabouts. But now we have the fact, that in 1721 a Hermetic Society, connected too with Masonry, was apparently existing in London, of which all previous writers have taken no account, being seemingly ignorant of it, and which, therefore disturbs all existing calculations and disquisitions on this "moot point." What this Hermetic Society was we are not told. It may have been the Royal Arch, or it may have been a traditional re-adaptation of the Rosicrucian Hermeticism, which in the times of Lily and Ashmole, seems to have had many "adepts," and to form the basis of "Nicolais'" untenable theory of a Baconian-Caroline politico-Hermetic fraternity. We can never too often repeat that the Rose Croix of the A. and A.S. Rite has nothing to do with Rosicrucian Hermeticism, though it may be the use of a name. Thus it will be seen how "open" is still the question, and how much ground there is for investigation and, above all, "tolerance," as regards diverging views and contrasted schools. Freemasons, who are always preaching toleration, should not be "intolerant" in respect of differing schools of Masonic history, and, as Freemasons, not being too "dogmatic," above all we should welcome all honest theories and differences, and "agree" to "differ," if need be harmoniously, sincerely, and fraternally.

AN ERROR.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am anxious for a little explanation on a matter which appears to me, despite the florid explanations of one or two brethren, involved in considerable obscurity.

It is stated that one of the effects of the revised legislation on Monday at the Boys' School Quarterly Court, was to deprive ladies of all votes except the elections of boys. But how can that be? By Rule XXXV. "All Life Governors not being Minors" constitute the General Committee, and to this Committee the power of election of Secretary, &c.

So doubtful was this point, that the question was deliberately raised on Monday to insert after Life Governors "not being Minors and Freemasons," but the words "and Freemasons" were rejected by a very small majority on the ground that they would exclude the ladies.

It is then a great error to say that ladies are deprived of any rights they had before, though "Minors" undoubtedly can no longer vote at the election of "Secretary," though they can vote at elections of boys.

It seems important in the interest of the Boys' and Girls' Schools to point out that the assertion that ladies can no longer vote at the election of Secretaries or of the General Committee is a complete mistake. No rights which they had before the passing of these amended laws have been taken away from them.

Yours fraternally,

HUGHAN'S LIST OF OLD LODGES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. T. W. Faulkner, P.M. 35, has misunderstood the character of the List of Lodges I supplied for the Christmas number of the "Masonic Magazine," as the lodges noted therein were all warranted by the "Grand Lodge of England according to the old Institutions," known as the "Ancients," whereas the "Medina Lodge," Cowes, was chartered by the "Grand Lodge of England," known as the "Moderns" (which, however, is the premier Grand Lodge of the world.)

In my "Numismatical and Numerical Register of the United Grand Lodge of England," now in the press, and printed to page 86, the Medina Lodge is correctly described as follows.—

"Moderns" 1814	1832	1863	Date
31	48	41	35 Medina Lodge, Cowes. 1731

The date given, as in all cases, is taken from the Calendar, published by authority of the United Grand Lodge of England. The name of the lodge also occurs in my list of special centenary warrants granted for jewels 1861-66, at page 57 of the same work.

The lodge in question has a curious history and one worth publishing. I have not any account of the style of the special centenary medal of No. 35, and I shall be glad to be furnished with a sketch and particulars from Bro. Faulkner. Also of those worn in Lodges 18, 30, 47, 86, 97, 109, 120, 124, 127, 134, 140, and 148.

Fraternally yours,

W. J. HUGHAN, P.G.D.

MASONIC MEDALS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having lately purchased two silver Masonic medals, I subjoin descriptions of them, and shall be glad to receive through your columns any information as to the object for which they were made.

No. 1. A circular medal about 2½ inches diameter, which appears to have been worn with a ribbon, the loop being formed of a crown, below which is a hand grasping the top of the medal.

Obverse.—A building in course of erection on the left hand side of the medal. On the top of the building are two men superintending the hoisting of a block of stone which is being raised by a rope, a man on the floor steadying the stone by means of a guide rope. There is also a ladder placed against the building, and a man ascending the ladder carrying materials on his back. On the right side of the obverse are two men stood at a bench, one of whom is pointing with a sword towards the building; the other man holds in his hand a square. Below these figures are a trowel, pickaxe, crowbar, and a mallet. Inscription.—"Amor. Honor. Justitia." Reverse.—Three arches standing at the edge of a tessellated pavement. On the top of the smallest of these arches stands a man endeavouring to loosen the keystone of the arch with a crowbar. Below this arch is the open Bible, on which are placed the square and compasses; below the Bible is a five pointed star. At the front of the pavement stand two pillars, on the right hand pillar being a square, and on the left hand pillar a pair of compasses extended; and at the outside of the pillars are placed a number of tools, such as the square, compasses, mallet, pickaxe, crowbar, also the letter G, &c. On the left of the reverse is a level, surmounted by the moon, and on the right the plumb rule, surmounted by the sun. Inscription.—"Sit. Lux. Et. Lux. Fuit."

This medal appears to be struck or cast, not engraved, the figures and emblems being raised.

No. 2. This is an engraved oval medal, about 2½ inches by 1 inches.

Obverse.—Two pillars surmounted by globes; above the left hand pillar is the sun, and above the right hand the moon and seven stars; between the sun and the moon is a triangle, below which, and between the two pillars are the All-seeing Eye, the open Bible, square and compasses, and a level. At the outside of the left hand pillar is a mallet, and of the right hand pillar a trowel. The reverse is quite plain, having only an engraved rim round the medal. This medal also appears to have been worn with a ribbon having a loop riveted to the top of the medal.

Yours fraternally,

JAMES NEWTON.

THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In order to express my regret for the alterations in the laws of the Institutions for Boys and Girls, suggested by the special Sub-Committee, and in the hope that it may conduce to the expression of similar sentiments from other and older brethren, I venture to request that you will find space for this in your next issue.

With respect to the extension of the father's subscription from five to seven years before the child is eligible for election; I think the consecutive seven years—adapted by the Governors of the Boys' School—is a most unfortunate error, almost amounting to an injustice; indeed, I am one of those who are of opinion that a brother having once passed through the Three Degrees should be eligible for all the advantages of our Order. The expression "once a Mason, always a Mason," I heard many years ago, and it has made a lasting impression upon me. Without underrating the invaluable services rendered to the Craft by the now veteran Masons, I can myself point to several instances when brethren have within seven years of their initiation done great and good service to the Order, and have died young men, without having had the opportunity of making suitable provision for their relicts, and we always have a sufficient check upon unworthy cases being passed, through the action of the Committee who pass the list of candidates, and from the fact that particulars of each case are inserted in that list.

In regard to the ineligibility unless the father "has been a subscriber to at least one of the Institutions," I most strongly protest against it, and as a body one must be extremely thankful to Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, and those brethren who supported him, for sparing our Order from such an unworthy and most un-Masonic proceeding. There can be no doubt but that the Institutions are not supported as they should be by Freemasons as a body, but as you yourself say, "two blacks do not make a white." We are most justly proud of our Benevolent Institutions, splendidly supported as they are by purely voluntary means, and I give it as a deliberate opinion, that if they could be brought more directly home to chapters, lodges, and individual brethren, and particularly if they were more generally urged by the P.G. Masters at the annual meetings of P.G. Lodge, as Bro. Lord Skelmersdale never fails to do, there would be no reason to complain of the result. It is certainly evident that the further we move in the direction of the alterations suggested by the Sub-Committee, the nearer we shall be assimilating our Order to a mere benefit society, an event which would and must be deplored by every Freemason.

In conclusion, let me express the hope that "on confirmation" the word "consecutive" at least will be erased.

With many apologies for occupying so much of your valuable space.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

EDGAR HUMPHRIES.

AN IMPOSTOR.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should esteem it a favour if you would kindly insert the following in your next issue:—

I was in company with the Treasurer and Almoner of Lodge Silent Temple, 126, Burnley, on Tuesday, the 14th inst., when he was asked by a short statured, prim man, of foreign accent, for alms. He gave his name as Weir, of Lodge 317, Affability, Manchester, and also of two Scottish lodges. Just as our worthy Almoner was about to give him money, I requested that he be asked to call again in half-an-hour, as I had something to communicate. After he had retired, I told the Almoner that his description exactly agreed with that given of an impostor in a letter to The Freemason, of November 2nd, 1878, and that I would fetch the paper and he should see it before the man returned. I was not long before I came back, and there was the individual pacing up and down at a short distance from the office awaiting the completion of the half-hour. He eyed me as I went in with the paper, but did not think it prudent to await the issue, for on our Almoner going to the door to call him in, he was nowhere to be seen. Mr. Editor, I feel sure, that, on account of the scandalous imposition by such characters as the one above described, and referred to in your issue of November 2nd, 1878, on lodges and brethren, it is of the greatest importance that strict investigation should be made, where it is at all possible, into the character and claims of strangers asking for charity, professing to be members of the Craft.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

R. N., P.M. 308 and 126.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you please answer the following query in the next issue of The Freemason:—

Can less than three Past Masters initiate a Worshipful Master? ALPHA.

MASONIC CHARITY AND ITINERANTS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I venture to address you on this subject, which I think is one worthy of being ventilated through the medium of your columns, and thereby lessening the abuse which is now being practised upon our charity funds by some (only few I am happy to say) unscrupulous brethren, and in some instances imposters, who manage to obtain a fair living by begging from the lodges and Charity Committees, and by that means depriving genuine and deserving cases of relief.

In one province of the north of England a considerable check has been put upon their practices by means of postal communications between the several Committees, but such could not apply to the whole of the kingdom.

Much care will have to be exercised in order to avoid dealing un-Masonically with a deserving applicant, as in my opinion it would be far preferable to be imposed upon a dozen times, than to refuse aid to the worthy distressed; still I believe that much good may be done by opening a column in your paper for the purpose of registering the applications, simply by initials, and the number and constitution of the lodge, which would be quite sufficient for identification. Cases of a local character, or those properly recommended would not of course be sent for publication, but simply such as in the minds of the lodges, Committees, or Almoners, are professional itinerants.

This system would also be useful in another way. I have known cases in which the applicant has had considerable diffidence in applying to his lodge, as he wished to hide from his friends the low ebb to which he had been reduced in some instances, poor fellows, by misfortune or other causes beyond their control. By the means I would suggest, their friends may perhaps recognise the initials and probably rescue them from their pitiable state.

I would recommend a table as under:—

Remarks.	To go to Belfast.	Out of employment.	In distress.	Refused—untruthful.	Refused—applied before.	To return home.
Constitution.	S.	I.	E.	A.	S.	I.
No. of Lodge.	3225	2591	2703	2203	2225	2037
Initials.	P.C.H.	J.T.C.	R.Y.D.	J.R.C.	P.C.H.	A.T.C.
Where applied.	London	Liverpool	Manchester	Leeds	Bristol	Birmingham
Date.	10 Jan.	"	"	"	15 "	16 "

Of course the numbers are simply imaginary in this.

Perhaps some more capable pen than mine will take up this matter.

Yours fraternally,

ALMONER.

BURDETT TESTIMONIAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have not seen or heard anything for some months of the testimonial to the Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex. I think the time must have come when the list should be closed, and something decided upon.

I do not know what the views of the Provincial Grand Master on the subject of the testimonial are, nor have I seen any proposed scheme suggested by the Committee.

Having read the letter of Col. Burdett in your last week's issue, calling the attention of the brethren of the province to the "Wentworth Little" testimonial, and asking them to subscribe to the fund, I cannot help suggesting to the Committee of the "Burdett testimonial" their suggesting to the Prov. Grand Master that it would be a noble tribute to the memory of his late Prov. Grand Secretary and Deputy Grand Master to transfer the amount collected for his testimonial to the "Wentworth Little" testimonial—especially as the intention of the Committee of the latter fund is to reserve the same for the ultimate benefit of the Girls' School.

I remain, yours fraternally,

P.M.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND.

The second convocation of the new Royal Arch Province of Cumberland and Westmorland, was held on Tuesday afternoon, the 14th inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, College-street, Whitehaven, under the banner of Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, No. 119, which held its quarterly convocation the same day.

The new province was constituted in October, 1877, at Kirkby Lonsdale, and musters seven chapters, viz.:—Sun, Square, and Compasses, No. 119, Whitehaven; Kendal Castle, No. 129, Kendal; Union, No. 310, Carlisle; St. John's, No. 327, Wigton; Regularity, No. 339, Penrith; Mount Sinai, No. 412, Longtown; and Beave, No. 1074, Kirkby Lonsdale. A petition is also in course of preparation for presentation to Grand Chapter, and the constitution of a new chapter, to be called "The Nicholson," attached to Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371, Maryport.

There was not a large attendance on Tuesday, the convocation having been postponed from the first week in December, in consequence of the winter session of Parliament. The time of the year and hour evidently was unfavourable for a good muster, and two chapters were entirely unrepresented, viz., Regularity No. 339, Penrith; and Mount Sinai, No. 412, Longtown. Several of the provincial officers also appointed at the first convocation, were conspicuous by their absence. The following signed their names in the Janitor's book:—M.E. Comps. the Earl of Beattie, M.P., Z., 1074, Prov. G. Superintendent; Colonel Whitwell, M.P., P.Z. 129, P.G.S. of England, Provincial Grand H.; W. B. Gibson, P.Z. 119, Provincial Grand J.; G. J. M. Kay, J. 129, Provincial Grand Scribe E.; John Barr, P.Z. 119, Provincial Grand Treas.; W. Court, Z. 310, Provincial Grand Standard Bearer; W. F. Lamson, H. 119, Provincial Grand Sword Bearer (Freemason); J. Godfrey, H. 129, Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies; W. Sandwith, P.Z. 119; H. Bewes, P.Z. 327; Jesse Banning, P.Z. 310, P.P.G.P.S., West Lancashire; James Gardner, Z. 327; G. W. Kenworthy, P.Z. 119; E. Tyson, J. 119; Comps. J. Rothery, S.E.; T. Dixon, S.N.; T. Atkinson, P.S.; J. T. Ray, 1st A.S.; J. Cooper, Org.; J. B. Braithwaite, J. Smith, F. Hodgson, W. Holloway, J. Casson, J. W. Miles, G. Sparrow, W. Armstrong, W. F. Hunter, J. D. Thompson, J. R. Smith, J. Mills, W. Bell, J. J. Coverdale, George Dalrymple, Rowland Bagster, and C. W. Hodgson, all belonging to Chapter 119; also Comps. George F. Webster, J. Henderson, and W. Blaylock, hailing from Chapter 310. After the Provincial Grand Chapter had been opened in solemn form, the minutes of the previous convocation were read and confirmed. M.E. Comp. G. W. Kenworthy, P.Z. 119, P.G. Treas., Cumberland and Westmorland (Craft), was unanimously elected P.G. Treas.; Comp. Geo. Fitzgerald, 119, was also unanimously elected P.G. Janitor. The officers for the year were next invested as follows, half of them, by the way, by proxy:—

M.E. Comp. J. Holme, P.Z. 129.....	Prov. G. J.
" G. J. M'Kay, J. 129 ...	Prov. G.S.E.
" D. Henry, Z. 114.....	Prov. G.S.N.
" H. Bewes, P.Z. 327.....	Prov. G.P.S.
" J. Bintley, P.Z. 129 ...	Prov. G. 1st A.S.
" J. B. Arnison, P.Z. 339	Prov. G. 2nd A.S.
" G. W. Kenworthy, P.M.
" 119.....	Prov. G. Treas.
" Major Spencer, P.Z. 119	Prov. G. Reg.
" J. A. Wheatley, H. 310	Prov. G. S. Br.
" J. Gardiner, Z. 327.....	Prov. G. Swd. Br.
" E. Tyson, J. 119.....	Prov. G.D.C.
Comp. J. Cooper, Org. 119 ...	Prov. G. Org.
" J. Rothery, S.E. 119 }
" Nelson, 129	Prov. G. Stewards.
" J. Cook, J. 310
" G. Fitzgerald, 119	Prov. G. Janitor.

It should be observed that the M.E. Provincial Grand Superintendent first nominated M.E. Comp. Jesse Banning, for the post of P.G. Organist, who, however, withdrew, by reason of his non-residence in the province.

The bye-laws, for the government of the Provincial Grand Chapter, were next read and adopted, after two or three alterations in the copy.

This being the whole of the business, the M.E.P.G. Second Principal rose, and in feeling terms, referred to the absence of the M.E.Z. of Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, Dr. Henry, from severe illness, and he moved a resolution of sympathy, which was cordially agreed to, and a copy ordered to be sent to Dr. Henry.

The Provincial Grand Chapter was then closed. Subsequently the companions adjourned to the banqueting-hall, where dinner had been provided by Comp. Smith, of the Albion Hotel. Two or three hours were pleasantly spent, under the genial presidency of the M.E. Provincial Grand Superintendent.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

A Committee meeting and general meeting of this Association were held on Monday last, at 4 o'clock, at Freemasons' Tavern. Several brethren were elected new members, and many subscriptions paid. The meeting selected Frost and Giles, for the Boys', and Miss Williams as the candidates to be supported by the Association at the April election. Voting papers should be sent to the Secretaries, London Masonic Charity Association, 1, Cliffords Inn, Fleet-street, E.C.

The installation of Col. Feard as Provincial Prior of Cornwall will take place at Truro next month.

It is stated to be the intention of the Marquis and Marchioness of Lorne to pay a visit to the Falls of Niagra shortly.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. The chairs of President, and Senior and Junior Vice-President were occupied respectively by Bros. John M. Clabon, P.G.P.; Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B.; and James Brett, P.G.P. After eight o'clock Bro. Joshua Nunn took Bro. Clabon's place, and Bro. Griffiths Smith occupied the chair vacated by Bro. Nunn. The other brethren present were, Bros. Hy. Bartlett, W. H. Perryman, W. J. Muris, S. Rawson, W. Mann, W. Maple, Thos. Cubitt, W. Christian, Charles Atkins, Griffiths Smith, George Britten, G. Bolton, G. Adamson, A. G. Creak, A. Barfield, Robt. Perkins, George Penn, Walter E. Gompertz, Allan C. Wylie, Wm. Tebb, Alfred B. Baker, Wm. Stephens, Charles Dairey, William Payne, J. Shackell, George Read, Richard Case, E. Squinell, C. A. W. Davis, G. L. Moore, E. W. Gratham, D. Nizholson, W. Russell, G. J. Cooke, J. A. Hudson, E. W. White, E. Farwig, B. H. Swallow, A. Brookson, C. Jolly, G. W. Saul, D. M. Bellfray, G. B. Shervill, S. Rosenthal, L. Cornelissen, John Hervey, G.S.; H. G. Buss, Assistant G.S.; W. Dodd, C. B. Payne, G. T. and H. Massey (Freemason).

The brethren first confirmed those grants which required confirmation that were made at last meeting of the lodge, amounting to £360. There were thirty-six new cases on the list, out of which thirty-one were relieved with £970. The petitioner in one case had died the day before the meeting of the lodge. The other cases were adjourned for further particulars. The £970 granted was made up as follows:—To three cases £100 each (£300); one £50 (£50); five £40 (£200); three £30 (£90); two £25 (£50); nine £20 (£180); four £15 (£60); and four £10 (£40).

WYLIE'S HISTORY OF "MOTHER LODGE KILWINNING."

Bro. Hughan writes:—"I shall be glad to add my recommendation to that of the Editor of The Freemason as to the value of the History of 'Mother Lodge Kilwinning,' just published by our enterprising Bro. John Tweed, of Glasgow. Copies may be had of Bro. Geo. Kenning at 8s., post free, from London, Glasgow, Dublin, Liverpool, &c. The Prov. Grand Secretary of Ayrshire, R.W. Bro. Robert Wylie, P. Prov. G.M., is the author of the history in question, who being the Secretary of the mother lodge, and well versed in all that concerns its interests and that of the province, has had special opportunities to render his labours as a historian both accurate and most acceptable to the Craft. The notes on the Kilwinning Abbey are very interesting, but, of course, to us the part of consequence is that devoted to the records of 'ye olde lodge.' The derivation of Kilwinning, from Saint Winning's cell or kil, and the ecclesiastical sketch possess little value to us compared with the verbatim et literatim transcripts of the charters granted by the lodge, which, until now, have never been collected and printed in a form accessible to the Masonic student. These ancient documents and petitions from brethren for warrants, ranging from A.D. 1728 to 1785, and historically from 1677, are of great value, and furnish important dates of a peculiar character, of special use in a consideration of early Scottish Freemasonry. In fact, the appendix alone is an ample return to the subscriber for his outlay, and constitutes a feature in the work which will always command readers whilst our society is popular amongst antiquaries and students of our ancient records. There is quite a profusion of illustrations, several of which are most excellent, and the plates of Masons' marks from the minutes of 'Kilwinning' 1642-74 and 1674-1769, as also those from Kilwinning Abbey, should render the volume quite a boon to 'Mark Masons' everywhere. It is just possible that if outsiders had been consulted they would have desired less about laying foundation stones, and more excerpts from the ancient records, but on looking at the trifling sum asked for the book, and seeing the excellence of the typography, lithography, and illustrations, I can but wonder that so much has been furnished for the information of the Craft, and thank most warmly our good Bro. Wylie for his last 'labour' of love, as well as praise the printer and publisher, John Tweed, Glasgow, for doing his part so well. I wish the volume a speedy sale, and sometime I should still like to see a book mainly devoted to the minutes of old Mother 'Kilwinning Lodge.'"

THE PRINCESS ALICE AND THE FREEMASONS.

The Duke of Lancaster Lodge adopted the following address of condolence to Her Most Gracious Majesty on the death of the Princess Alice:—

"To the Queens Most Excellent Majesty,
"May it please your Majesty,
"We, the Worshipful Master, Wardens, and members of the Duke of Lancaster Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1353, in regular lodge assembled, beg permission to approach your Majesty with feelings of devotion, loyalty, and deep sympathy on the great loss which your Majesty has sustained on the melancholy occasion of the death of Her Royal Highness, the Grand Duchess of Hesse-Darmstadt, Princess Alice of Great Britain and Ireland.

"And we beg to convey the assurance of our warmest interest in whatever concerns your Majesty's domestic relations, and our ardent wishes for the happiness of your Majesty and of the Royal Family, and to express our fervent hope that your Majesty may long be spared to us and to the nation.

"With the most sincere and dutiful feeling of loyalty and devotion.

"We have the honour to be your Majesty's most devoted subjects,

THE REPLY.

"Osboone,
"December 24th, 1878.

"Sir,
"I am commended by the Queen to assure you that Her Majesty feels very grateful for the loyal and touching expressions of condolence offered to her by the Worshipful Master, Wardens, and members of the Duke of Lancaster Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons.

"I have the honour to be, Sirs,
"Your obedient servant,

LODGE OF ISRAEL, 1474.

"To Her Most Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria.
"We, the Master, officers, and brethren of the Israel Lodge of Freemasons (1474), regularly assembled, humbly offer to your Most Gracious Majesty, our most sincere and heartfelt condolence on the severe loss you have suffered by the death of your beloved daughter Princess Alice, the Grand Duchess of Hesse. We, in common with the nation at large, feel by her removal that a true and faithful wife, a doting mother, a dutiful child, a fond sister, and a truly pious woman has been called away, whilst exercising those duties that should be the aim of every good and true woman to attain. We venture to hope that your Majesty will find a solace in the fact that your grief is shared by all your loyal subjects, but by none more sincerely than by the Masonic body of these realms."

GRAND MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

As we briefly announced last week, the thirtieth annual ball of the Masonic fraterity in and around Liverpool, in aid of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, took place at the Town Hall, on the evening of the 14th inst., and again proved a most enjoyable festive gathering to all who were present. Reference has been made in the columns of the Freemason on more than one occasion to the principles and objects of this noble institution, which has for so many years been the just boast of Masonry in this division, but it will not be out of place to give some details regarding its present position and future prospects. During its 28 years' existence it has increased in popularity year by year, until it now occupies a position which is eminently satisfactory to those having the charge of its management, as it is highly creditable to its numerous friends and supporters. The invested capital, according to the last published report, amounted to £13,886, and there are now upwards of 100 children educated by means of the annual subscriptions of the brethren and the interest from this capital, without touching any portion of the invested money. The amounts paid for education and advancement in life of the children of distressed and deceased Masons in the year 1877 amounted to £580 17s. 3d., but as a great number of little ones have been admitted to the privileges of the scheme since that time, a greatly increased expenditure will necessarily be the result of last year's working. The great charm of the charity is its unsectarian character (thus resembling the Order which gave it being and active life), and another most remarkable feature of its working is the fact that the little ones who are thus educated and advanced in life know nothing about the source from whence the money comes which thus helps them. Mothers or guardians are allowed to select the schools to which the children are to be sent, and the Committee of the Institution, who carry out this part of the work in pure charity, make it their business to see that the education is of an effective kind. Trusting to the continued and even increased support of the brethren connected with the 80 lodges of the Province of West Lancashire, the Committee of the Institution (of which Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., is president, and Bro. Colonel Stanley, M.P., D.P.G.M., one of the Vice-Presidents) have under consideration the broadening of the basis of the charity by clothing as well as educating the children who stand in need of this further help. Already the matter has been mooted, and from the enthusiasm shown in connection with the extended scheme there is little doubt that it will be crowned with success.

The Ball on this occasion was under the following distinguished patronage:—

LADY PATRONS.—The Mayoress of Liverpool, the Right Hon. the Countess Bective, the Hon. Lady Constance Stanley, the Rt. Hon. Lady Skelmersdale, and Lady Grenall.

PATRONS.—His Worship the Mayor of Liverpool (Mr. T. B. Royden); Bros. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master; the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., R.W. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Major Starkie, P.G.W., R.W. Prov. G.M. East Lancashire, W.P. Prov. G.S.W. of West Lancashire; Rt. Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Hon. Frederick A. Stanley, W.D. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Sir Gilbert Greenall, M.P., P.G.S.W., and W.P. Prov. G.S.W. of West Lancashire; Lieut.-Col. N. Bousfield, M.P.; Lieut.-Col. R. F. Steble, Capt. Garnett, W.P. Prov. G.S.W. West Lancashire; Sir

James Ramsden, W.P. Prov. G.S.W. West Lancashire; John Prescott, W.P. Prov. G.J.W. West Lancashire; the Rt. Hon. Earl Bective, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cumberland and Westmorland; Sir Watkin Wynn, Bart., M.P. R.W. Prov. G.M. Shropshire and North Wales; John Pearson, J.P.; E. Samuelson, P. Prov. G.S.D. Cheshire; W. J. A. Baldwin, Prov. G.S.W. West Lancashire; H. R. Robertson, Prov. G.J.W. West Lancashire; Sir A. B. Walker, W. Rathbone, M.P.; Rt. Hon. Viscount Sandon, M.P.; J. Torr, M.P.; and Col. Ireland Blackburne, M.P.

Additional interest was given to what invariably proves a pleasant and agreeable gathering to the brethren and ladies, as well as to the public generally, by the fact that it will probably be the last at the head quarters of the mayoralty, owing to the recent action of the council, in closing the Town Hall against the admission of the "vulgar crowd," and reserving it only for their own "sweet use."

Considering the bad times, the attendance was good, and the financial result will probably be such as to add to the funds of the noble institution. The arrangements were of the most complete and satisfactory character, thanks to the indefatigable efforts of the Committee, the principal members of which were Bros. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., (Chairman); J. M'Kune, P.M., 216 (Vice-Chairman); and R. Martin, jun., P.M., 1182 (Treasurer). The onerous duties of Ball Secretary were admirably filled by Bro. Thos. Salter, J.W. of the Merchants' Lodge, No. 216, to whose untiring efforts the success attending the ball for 1879 is greatly due. As usual, the duties of Master of Ceremonies were fulfilled with great tact and courtesy by Bro. H. M. Molyneux, P.M. 823, who has for a great number of years given his assistance in this way. There were about 500 brethren and ladies present, and amongst the former were Bros. Councillors Peet, Steen, and Lunt, T. M'Cracken, &c. The members of the various orders appeared in full dress Masonic clothing, with the jewels and insignia of their rank and office, and these added considerably to the fine effect of the gathering. Bro. John Houlding, P.M. 823, was the excellent captain of a band of Stewards, about fifty in number, to whose efforts the general comfort of the visitors was largely attributable.

The following were the Stewards on this occasion:—Bros. H. Ashmore, C. Courtenay, F. Smitton, J. B. MacKenzie, A. C. Wylie, A. Mattison, G. Hulce, J. R. Goepel, R. Webster, J. Keet, G. Peet, J. Hocken, W. T. Smith, T. Roberts, J. Penney, A. Woodbuck, H. P. Squire, W. H. Watts, W. Newsome, J. L. Houghton, J. Whitfield, J. W. Burgess, J. H. Bradshaw, W. O. Jones, T. McCracken, S. Jacobs, D. Jackson, J. Hayes, J. Atkinson, T. Clark, W. H. Cooper, H. H. Smith, W. Savage, W. T. May, T. H. Sbeen, G. Hutchen, R. Wilson, W. M. Cuddey, W. J. Lunt.

The refreshment was done by Messrs. Fick and Fairhurst. The chef d'orchestre was Bro. G. A. Wielopolski Phillipps.

ORDER OF ST. LAWRENCE.

A numerously attended meeting of the London section of this very old degree was held at the Masonic Hall, Red Lion-square, on Saturday, the 11th inst. Among those in attendance we noticed Bros. S. Rosenthal, 33°, W.M.; W. Roebuck, 30°, S.W.; S. C. Dibdin, J.W.; D. M. Dewar, 18°, Secretary; C. F. Matker, 32°, P.M.; F. Binckes, 30°, P.M.; G. Lambert, T. Keere, R. Roy. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken on behalf of a number of brethren well-known in Masonic circles, and having been declared unanimous, the six who were in attendance were duly admitted members of the Order. They were Bros. R. L. Loveland, 18°, A. Williams, 18°, T. C. Walls, 18°, Thomas Poore, R. Beridge, and C. E. Soppet. The interesting and quaint ceremony was well performed, Bro. Matier's rendering of the historical lecture appertaining to the degree being exceedingly good. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony, a long discussion ensued, and several propositions were fully considered as to what steps should be adopted for the immediate formation in London of a governing body. Ultimately, upon the advice of Bros. Binckes, Matier, and Lambert, the whole matter was referred to a Committee, to fully consider and to report at the next meeting, to be convened on Saturday, April 10th. It was afterwards suggested by one of the newly admitted brethren that the Secretary should immediately place himself in communication with the numerous country lodges, in order that united action might be taken with the object of reviving this unquestionably old degree and establishing it upon a thoroughly sound and independent basis. This was approved. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent repast at the Albion Hotel, Theobald's-road, where the usual toasts were done full justice to. "The Health of the W.M., and Success to the Order of St. Lawrence," was proposed in very happy and exhaustive terms by Bro. Binckes, and duly responded to. "The Initiates," and "The Officers" followed, and those toasts having been warmly received and briefly acknowledged, the proceedings, which were throughout thoroughly enjoyable, terminated.

EBOR LODGE OF ST. LAWRENCE THE MARTYR.

The installation meeting of this lodge was held at York on Wednesday, the 8th inst., Bro. T. B. Whytehead, R.W.M., presiding. Several candidates having been admitted to the degree, Bro. G. Simpson, S.W. and R.W.M. elect, was presented and questioned, and a Board of Installed Masters having been opened, he was duly enthroned in the chair, and the brethren being re-admitted, he was saluted in due form. Bro. Simpson then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. B. Whytehead, I.P.M. and D.C.; J. S. Cumberland, S.W.; T. Cooper, J.W.; Rev. W. C. Lukis, Chap;

A. T. B. Turner, Recorder and Treas.; T. Humphries, S.D.; W. Palry, J.D.; G. H. Simpson, Org.; W. P. Husband, Keeper of the G., and J. Ward, Tyler. The brethren afterwards met at supper and passed a social evening.

Obituary.

BRO. W. H. BARTLE.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. W. H. Bartle, the only son of Bro. H. Bartle, at the early age of twenty-six years. Bro. W. H. Bartle, who was a young man of great promise, was one of the first Initiates in the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642. His death took place on Monday last at his father's residence, 236, Lancaster-road, Notting Hill. His remains will be interred at Kensal Green Cemetery this (Saturday) afternoon, at half-past two o'clock. The friends of the family and brethren will meet at Lancaster-road, at half-past one, and other brethren at the cemetery by half-past two.

Knights Templar.

MOUNT CALVARY PRECEPTORY.

The installation meeting of this very old encampment of the Knights of the Temple was held on Friday, the 10th inst., at Freemason's Tavern, Great Queen-street. There were present amongst others Sir Knights J. Tanner, E.C.; C. Jacques, Prelate; W. Paas, P.E.C., Almoner; D. Dewar, P.E.C., Secretary; Morgan, 1st Captain; Driver, and Captain; Neall, Expert; T. C. Walls, C. of the Lines; S. Rosenthal, P.E.C.; J. Hervey, P.E.C., and Rawles, Equerry. Sir Knight R. Stewart was a visitor. The minutes of the previous encampment having been read and confirmed, companion Saunders was duly admitted and installed as a Knight of the Order by Sir Knight Dewar, who most ably installed Sir Knight Morgan as E.C. for the year ensuing, both ceremonies being most ably performed. The officers appointed were Sir Knights Tanner, Prelate; Paas, Almoner; Dewar, Secretary; Driver, 1st Captain; Neall, and Captain; Walls, Expert; Williams, C.L.; Rawles, Equerry. There being no other business before the preceptory, it was duly closed, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the banquet. The usual routine of toasts were duly proposed and honoured. Sir Knight Rosenthal responded on behalf of the Grand Officers. "The Health of the E.C." was warmly proposed by Sir Knight Tanner, most heartily received, and duly acknowledged. "The Newly-installed Knight" was given in a few chosen sentences by the E.C., and having been received with excellent "fire," Sir Knight Saunders briefly responded by expressing the great pleasure it had afforded him at being present that evening to receive the privileges of the Order, and at the same time he wished to convey to the Sir Knights the great impression the ceremony had made upon him, thanks to the very able way in which it had been performed. "The Visitor" was acknowledged by Sir Knight R. Stewart, and "The Officers," by Sir Knight Driver. The Equerry's toast at an early hour terminated the proceedings.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are pleased to announce that Bro. Samuel Poynter will contribute the following papers to the March, April, and May, numbers of the "Masonic Magazine":—"A Native Nuisance," a sketch founded on fact; "Under the Garland;" "Tud' Smoked," a Masonic sketch.

CONSECRATION CEREMONY.—We think many of our readers will be interested to learn that the above ceremony, followed by the "installation," will be worked at the Upper Nurwood Lodge of Instruction No. 1586, White Hart Hotel, on Monday evening the 30th February, at 7.30. precisely, by Bro. Frances, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., Hon. Preceptor to the lodge. The musical arrangements necessary for the proper working of the ceremony have been placed in the hands of some competent brethren. Bro. Frances is so well known for his mastery rendering of all the Masonic ceremonies that we confidently recommend this as a really good opportunity of hearing the impressive ceremony of "consecration." Full Masonic clothing.

The name of the Lord Mayor of the City of London (Bro. Sir C. Whetham) has, on the recommendation of the Lord Lieutenant (Lord Shaftesbury) been placed by the Lord Chancellor on the Commission of the Peace for the County of Dorset.

We are asked to state that the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1558, meets every Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, at the Fauces Arms, Fauces-street, South-place, Kennington Park. Bro. James Dann, P.M. 72 and 1558, is the Preceptor.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Southwark Lodge of Instruction, No. 879, on Wednesday next, the 29th inst., at the Southwark Park Tavern, Bermondsey, by Bro. William Beavis, assisted by several other brethren.

The installation meeting of St. James's Lodge takes place this (Saturday) afternoon at the George Inn, Enfield Town. Bro. Thomas J. Cusworth is the W.M. elect. A report of the proceedings will be given in our next.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—Advr.

A meeting, which was strongly attended, of the brethren of the Province of Devon, was held on Tuesday last, in the Hayshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth, for the purpose of considering the propriety of establishing a fund for clothing, educating and advancing in life of the children of distressed or deceased brethren of the province. Bro. L. P. Metham, Dep. P.G.M., presided. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Bro. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., presided on Monday week at a congregational meeting in connection with St. Paul's Church, Upper Holloway.

The Earl and Countess of Carnarvon, whose nuptials took place on the 26th of last month, at Grytstocke, Cumberland, returned to his lordship's Hampshire seat, Higholere Castle, near Newbury, on Friday week, after spending their honeymoon at Pixton Park, Somersetshire. The reception given them was a magnificent one.

Prince Louis Napoleon, accompanied by the Duke de Messina, are on a visit to Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., R.W.P.G.M. Kent, at Linton Park, near Maidstone.

Her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Princess Beatrice are expected to return to Windsor, from the Isle of Wight, on or about the 14th of February.

It is expected (so says the Whitehall Review) that on the resignation of the Marquis of Hertford, he will be succeeded as Lord Chamberlain by Lord Skelmersdale, who will be created a Viscount.

We have received a copy of 'The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket-book for 1879.' To Freemasons this portable little volume is indispensable. It is neatly bound, and gives, in a very concise form, an amount of valuable Masonic information and statistics not procurable elsewhere. The object of the 'Calendar' is to give Freemasons a synopsis of all that relates to home and foreign Masonic bodies, and in this, the publisher (George Kenning, Freemason Office, 198, Fleet-street) has eminently succeeded. But even those who cannot lay claim to initiation into the mysteries of Freemasonry will acquire much useful knowledge in respect of this ever-increasing and important brotherhood from a perusal of its pages.—Mayfair, Jan. 21st.

"The Norwich Argus" states that a handsome antique silver salver was presented by the Union Lodge of Freemasons, No. 52, to Bro. Cardiner Stevens, at the recent banquet on the installation of Bro. C. Cubitt, W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Stevens has been Secretary and Treasurer of the lodge more than twenty years, and the opportunity was taken to make the presentation to him as a slight recognition of his valuable services. The presentation was made by the retiring W.M. Col. Baileau, who in a very complimentary address expressed the great esteem in which Bro. Stevens was held by the lodge. The salver weighs 52 ozs., and was subscribed for by 52 members, the figures thus curiously corresponding with the number of the lodge. With the salver was a vellum scroll, beautifully illuminated, upon which the jewels of the offices held by Bro. Stevens, and the names of the subscribers were embossed.

The annual Masonic Ball given by the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, will be held at the Grand Hall of Gymnasium, Paddington Baths, Queen's-road, Bayswater (close to the Queen's-road and Royal Oak Railway Stations), on Friday, 21st February, under the management of Bros. S. H. Parkhouse, W.M.; W. Gordon, M.P., P.J.W.; Charles Loeock Webb, G.C., P.G.D., and a long list of Stewards. The whole of the proceeds will be devoted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Tickets can be obtained of any of the Stewards, of Bro. G. Penn, P.M., Treasurer, and Bro. W. J. Murliis, Hon. Sec., 154, Lancaster-road, W. Bros. Coote and Tinney's band is engaged for the ball.

At the annual meeting of the Duke of Leinster Lodge, 363, I.C., held at the Alfred Masonic Hall, Weymouth-street, Adelaide, on Tuesday, November 10th, the following were the officers elected for the ensuing year:—Bros. A. F. W. Klaner, W.M.; J. Butterworth, S.W.; T. S. Lang, J.W.; H. Dehlmann, S.D.; W. Foxwood, J.D.; W. Bickford, I.G.; A. Tucker, Tyler; R. J. Pinler, Sec.; W. Stratton, Organist; A. O. Hatch, Steward.

We understand that Bro. Lieut.-Col. Sir J. McGarel-Hogg, M.P., Chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works, is to be raised to the peerage.

The Annual Ball in aid of the Builders' Benevolent Institution will be held at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, on Thursday next, January 30th.

The annual ball in aid of the funds of the Licensed Victuallers' Schools, will take place at St. James's Hall on Thursday next.

VEGETABLES ALL THE YEAR ROUND.—It should be the aim of everyone to grow their own vegetables. It is true economy besides being a pleasure. To do so is very simple and the greatest virtue may soon be a good gardener, by purchasing "Sutton's Amateurs' Guide in Horticulture," the most practical work on gardening yet published. It should be read by everyone who has a garden, and may be had post free from Messrs. Sutton and Sons, the Queen's Seedsmen, Reading, for 15 stamps or for 1s. at all Railway Bookstalls.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—A certain cure for Headaches, Bile Loss of Appetite, and Lowness of Spirits.—These Pills can be taken without danger from wet or cold, and require no interruption from business or pleasure. They act mildly on the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and promote a healthy action of the liver, whereby they purify the blood, cleanse the skin, brace the nerves, and invigorate the whole system. They effect a truly wonderful change in a debilitated constitution, as they create a healthy appetite, correct indigestion, remove bile, giddiness, headache, and palpitation of the heart. Plain directions for the use of this medicine, at once so mild and efficacious, are affixed to each box.—[Advr.]

Notes on Art.

ACCORDING TO THE FRENCH CENSUS OF 1870 the foreigners resident in France numbered 801,700, of whom 30,000 were English. It is curious to note the occupations of the French people, of whom 18,968,000, or 53 per cent., are engaged in agriculture, 9,274,000, or 26 per cent. in manufacturing and similar industries, 3,837,000 or 14 per cent., in trade, and 1,231,000, or 4 per cent., in liberal professions. Of the agricultural population, 10,620,000, cultivated their own property, 5,708,000, were farmers, and 2,639,000 labourers and gardeners.

DIAMOND LACE has been the most fashionable New Year's gift among Transatlantic millionaires this season. The lace is an imitation of old point, made in the finest filigree silver, with diamonds set in the pattern, and costs £1,000 per yard. A set of lace consists of three pieces, about 4in. long. Diamonds just now, however, are not as fashionable as usual in America, as they have declined in price, and pearls have taken their place.

Intelligence has been received that Professor Nordenskjöld's steamer "Vega," engaged in Arctic exploration, is ice-bound on the Siberian coast.

The writer of "New Solutions of Homeric Problems," in The Month, contends, in a carefully written paper on the structure of the Iliad, against the views of Grote and Professor Geddes, and pleads that—"The man who could compose the Iliad must have been very much more than a mere adapter of old materials—must have been, in fact, very much what the popular conception supposes Homer to have been."

The Paris stage during the past year is stated by a French critic to have been particularly unproductive in the way of novelties. Managers depended mainly on the revival of old successes during the exhibition, and only eighty-three new pieces were brought out at the twenty-two principal Paris theatres during 1878. The Gymnase heads the list with nine new productions, the Opera and the Théâtre Français only brought out two novelties apiece, the Opera Comique five, the lively little Palais Royal and the Odeon each produced eight, the Variétés and the Vaudeville respectively four and three, and the Gaité only one new work. The theatres are making up for lost time this year, however. M. Lecocq's latest production, "Le Grand Casimir," is to be played this week at the Variétés, and the same composer has another piece ready for the Renaissance, "La Petite Mademoiselle," while MM. Erckmann-Chatrian will produce a drama at the Gaité this spring.—La Guerre.

THE PARIS LUXEMBOURG has been closed for several weeks for the annual alteration of the pictures. Even paintings—including Rosa Bonheur's "Haymaking"—have been taken down and added to the reserve collection of the Louvre, their place being filled by a similar number of works bought by the Government at recent Salons. Six fresh pieces of statuary have been added to the Sculpture Room—M. Aimé Millet's "Cassandra" being amongst the additions.

There has been an eruption of mud at Salinella, at the foot of Mount Etna, which is regarded as an epilogue to numerous shocks of earthquake recently felt in Catania. Several craters were formed, which discharged torrents of thick and heated mud propelled by gases formed of carbonic acid, hydrogen, carbon, carbureted hydrogen, and sulphuric acid. Particles of hydro-carburets, constituting a kind of petroleum, were also observed. A smoking lake of increasing dimensions has also been formed.

he displayed (he being a member of the lodge) to add comfort and pleasure to his assembled brethren. Grace being said the usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed. With the toast of "The Visitors" the W.M. called the attention of the brethren to the honour that was conferred on them by the presence of so many visiting brethren, especially as he believed many of them were men of eminence in the Craft. After mentioning some by name, he called upon Bro. Rose, of the "Mount Lebanon" Lodge, No. 73, P.M., to respond, who upon rising to return thanks on behalf of the visitors was received with great and earnest cordiality. After thanking the brethren for their manifest kindness, he paid great compliment to the efficient working of the ceremonies, and said from what he had seen, he fully believed the lodge would lose none of its renown, nor would its position be in any way tarnished whilst it was in the hands of its present W.M. The following is a list of the visiting brethren present:—Bros. Rose, P.M. 73; Lover, P.M. 475; Dilley, P.M. 147; Heikell, P.M. 1155; Gallant, P.M., P.Z., and S.D., 127, 172, 813; Etheridge, P.M.; Wrigglesworth, W.M. 995; Catterson, J.W. 548; Peck, S.D. 1205; Batchelor, J.D. 548; Hunt, I.G. 1662; Feullade, Org., 548; Frederick Dunn, 25; Milbourn, 13; Martin, 382; Larner, 733; Dobbs, 879; Judge, 1178; Millman, 507; Johnson, 733; Jewett, 1155.

lodge flourish and the brethren spending such a delightful evening of harmony and good fellowship as they were then engaging in. He had met many kind old friends there. Bros. Robinson, Davage, Whitley, Wagner, and Elsam, besides several others, brethren whom he had known a great number of years. Whenever he had been at the lodge he had endeavoured to his utmost to promote its interests, and the brethren had always been kind enough to express their good feelings for it. It gave him infinite pleasure to meet his old friends, and he trusted that as long as they were willing to receive him with the same kindness as they had that evening, he should never hesitate for a moment to come among them. He was the only one of the fathers of the lodge present, and it was extremely pleasing to him to see so many young members joining the lodge. He believed Bro. Smith, W.M., to be the right man in the right place, and that under his direction the lodge would go on prosperously. Bro. R. T. Elsam, P.M., for whom there were loud calls, said he should have been happy to sit down if the brethren had not persisted in calling upon him. He was the Junior P.M. of the lodge, and it was a very good feature in the lodge to have so many P.Ms. There were some, however, who were not then present, but speaking for himself it gave him great satisfaction to be there, and to have had the privilege of installing the W.M. He did not expect he should ever have the opportunity again, because if the W.M. did not perform the ceremony, the I.P.M., Bro. Read, would. He should always be pleased, nevertheless, to assist in anything that might be asked of him, more especially when it would contribute to promoting the interests of the lodge. The W.M. in giving the toast of "The Masonic Charities" said, they must be excellent charities, or they would not be so well supported as they were. He hoped to be better acquainted with them than he was at present, and whatever he could do he should be happy to do for them. Bro. Davage, P.M., Treasurer, D.C. and W.S. replied, Charity was the great principle of Freemasonry. He had been several times Steward for the Masonic Institutions, and had had an opportunity of seeing their work. There was no brother round the table who would at any time be unwilling to support them or to pay them a visit. They were open daily for the inspection of any brother, whether he contributed to them or not; and he begged that the brethren would go and see how well they were conducted. His own experience of them was that they were conducted perfectly and in the true spirit of Freemasonry. He was very pleased to hear that the W.M. would become a Steward; and for himself he might say he was highly gratified when that privilege was accorded to him. The brethren of the Jordan Lodge had frequently contributed liberally, and he had no doubt that the brethren would support the prestige of this old and ancient lodge. Bro. Robinson replied as Secretary, and Bro. Davage as Treasurer, to the toast of "Treasurer and Secretary," and the brethren after the other toasts had been disposed of, drank the Tyler's toast. Bro. Simpson hoped that the bill which was to take place would be of great benefit to the Institutions. The brethren enjoyed some excellent singing during the evening.

OLD KINGS' ARMS LODGE (No. 28).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday, the 17th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. There were present, Bros. Joseph Farmaner, W.M.; T. J. Thomas, S.W.; C. T. Church, J.W.; Paas, Treas.; D. Crombie, Sec.; G. H. Wright, D.C.; Charles Tighe, P.M., and a large number of brethren. Among the visitors we noticed, Bros. Alderman S. C. Hadley, P.G.D.C.; Alderman Knight, Nelson Reed, Donald Dewar, Felton, C.C.; George Kenning, Dossell, Latrielle, T. Loveridge, C.C., and many other brethren. Bro. Chas. Tighe installed Bro. T. J. Thomas into the W.M.'s chair, in such a manner as to call forth a vote of thanks, which was proposed and carried with acclamation. The W.M. invested Bros. Joseph Farmaner, I.P.M.; C. T. Church, S.W.; J. Hainsworth, J.W.; W. Paas, Treas.; D. Crombie, Sec.; W. R. Thomas, S.D.; W. W. Rust, J.D.; Morell Mackenzie, I.G.; G. H. Wright, D.C. The brethren adjourned to the Freemasons' Tavern, where there was awaiting them a bountiful dinner, served in a most satisfactory manner by Bro. Best. The usual toasts were proposed by the W.M. most effectively. Bro. Alderman Simeon C. Hadley, P.G.D.C., replied for "The Grand Officers." A selection of music was performed by Bros. Lester, Montem Smith, and Chaplin Henry, contributing very much to the pleasures of the evening.

LODGE OF TEMPERANCE (No. 169).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the White Swan Hotel, High-street, Deptford, on Thursday the 16th inst. The W.M. Bro. Denton, assisted by his officers opened the lodge punctually at 5 o'clock, the time specified on the summons. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and confirmed, the Auditors' report of the financial position of the lodge was received, read, and adopted; by which it appears that success waits upon all its proceedings and above all Charity finds kind friends with open hands to assist her. During the year £10 10s. has been given to the Girls' School, £10 to the old men and women, and a sum of £20 to the widow of a deceased member. At the last meeting a vote of twenty guineas was passed and ordered to be entered on the list of Bro. Brown, (the Treasurer who stands Steward at the next festival for the Girls' School), and at this meeting the brethren were unanimous in voting £10 10s. for the old men and women. The W.M. then, for the benefit of Bros. Elliott and Haynes, worked the Second Degree, they being passed accordingly; after which Bro. George Longman Moore, the W.M. elect, was duly presented for installation, the ceremony being most impressively and effectively performed by Bro. Denton, the retiring W.M., subsequently the brethren unanimously voting that the "thanks of the brethren be recorded on the minutes for the very able manner in which the ceremony had been worked." The newly installed Master then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Denton, the retiring W.M., I.P.M.; Predam, S.W.; Monk, J.W.; George Brown, P.M., who at the previous meeting had been unanimously re-elected, was re-invested Treas.; Neeld, P.M. re-appointed and re-invested Sec.; Zachariasen, S.D.; William Mallett, J.D.; E. W. Wilson, I.G.; and Geodard, re-appointed Tyler. The W.M. in the name of the brethren then presented to Bro. Denton, the I.P.M., a handsome Past Master's jewel which had been voted with enthusiastic unanimity by the brethren at the last meeting, as a mark of appreciation of the manner in which the lodge had been presided over, and the business conducted during the past year. The proceedings were then brought to a close in the accustomed way, the brethren retiring to partake of a banquet supplied by mine host of the White Swan, Bro. Frederick Morgan, and no niggardly praise is due to the worthy brother for the self-sacrifice and denial

JORDAN LODGE (No. 201).—On Friday, the 17th inst., the brethren of this old lodge held their annual meeting at Freemasons' Hall, for the installation of a new W.M. Bro. Robert C. Read, W.M., presided, and previous to the installation, passed Bro. Day, and initiated Messrs. B. Bangerter, G. J. Brailey, T. Willis, and J. Palmer. Bro. R. T. Elsam, P.M., Prov. G.D.C. Surrey, afterwards installed in the chair Bro. James Smith, the proprietor of Mullens's Hotel, Ironmonger-lane, J.W., and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge for the current year. The brethren appointed to office were, Bros. Robert C. Read, I.P.M.; Hyland, S.W.; Payn, J.W.; T. B. Davage, P.M., Treas.; Peter Robinson, P.M., Sec.; Wallis, S.D.; Dovey, J.D.; Cressey, I.G.; and Parkinson, Tyler. After the delivery of the addresses, and the presentation of a handsome Past Master's jewel to Bro. R. C. Read, I.P.M., Bro. R. T. Elsam initiated Mr. J. B. Ottaway in the early mysteries of the Order. Among the brethren present were, Past Masters R. T. Elsam, Edward Spooner, George Whitley, Peter Wagner, Peter Robinson, F. B. Davage, and visitors, Bros. E. J. Bowen, 1310, J. B. Brown, P.M. 1399; W. Cook, 1580, Prov. G.S. Herts; J. Stock, W.M. 1178; and H. Massey P.M. 619 (Freemason). After the work of the lodge had been concluded, the brethren closed down, and adjourned to Freemasons' Tavern, where an excellent banquet was provided by Bro. Alfred Best, the proprietor. The customary toasts followed. After honouring the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past." Bro. Robert C. Read, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said he was sure the brethren had taken the proper course in electing Bro. James Smith, the J.W. of the lodge, to the high and important office of W.M. To dilate properly on the qualities of Bro. Smith required an eloquence which he (Bro. Read) was not master of; but he might say that since Bro. Smith's initiation that brother had been such an excellent Mason as well as a man that it was impossible the brethren could forget him. By his working, his assiduity, and his kindly temperament, he had endeared himself to all the brethren, and he firmly believed that at the end of Bro. Smith's year of office he would be presented by the brethren with as handsome and valuable a testimonial of the brethren's esteem as he (Bro. Read) had that evening had the honour of being the recipient of. The W.M. acknowledged the toast, and said he wished he could feel he deserved the flattering remarks of Bro. Read, but at least he would promise this, that he would pay all the attention that it was possible for man to pay to his duties during his year of office; and if he lacked ability in the discharge of his functions he should look to the brethren to view it with a lenient eye. Bros. Bangerter, Brailey, Willis, and Palmer responded to the toast of "The Initiates," but Bro. Ottaway was not present at the banquet, pressure of business calling him away immediately after the closing of the lodge. The brethren who responded expressed the hope that they would become good Masons, to which end they would exert themselves to the utmost. Bros. Bower, Stock, Cook, and Massey replied to the toast of "The Visitors." The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the Past Masters," said that a great deal of gratitude was due to those brethren for the kindness they at all times exhibited in assisting in the work of the lodge. That kindness had been again shown that evening, when Past Masters filled various offices. It must be a gratification to those brethren that their works were appreciated, and he was sure they ever would be, for the brethren could not forget that however humble the office that was vacant, any Past Master, however old he might be, filled it, and showed the same efficiency in his duties as if he was a junior member striving with all his might to attain the chair. Bro. Robert C. Read, I.P.M., in reply, said he should always endeavour to support the chair, and would always be ready to take any office which might be vacant. Bro. Spooner, P.M., said he was the Senior Past Master of the Lodge, and though he did not not often come he was ever pleased to be among the brethren. He was extremely gratified at the way in which he had been received, and he was pleased to see the lodge in such a prosperous condition. He thought it was going on in a fair way to become one of the best lodges in the Craft. The working he had witnessed afforded him much pleasure. Bro. Elsam had conducted the ceremonies of installation in a very able manner, and Bro. Read had certainly contributed very much to the success of the chair by performing his duties in a highly creditable way. He should always be ready to enhance the work of the lodge, and he hoped he should live many years to see the LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 205).—This ancient lodge held its installation meeting at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Tuesday last, the W. Bro. A. M. Cohen (P.M.), W.M. in the chair. The lodge was opened at four o'clock and there was a large attendance of brethren. As soon as the lodge was opened the ordinary business on the agenda was proceeded with. This included the confirmation of the minutes of the last regular meeting, the confirmation of the minutes of an emergency meeting held on the 22nd of January, the confirmation of the minutes of the Audit-Committee, the reading of the report of the Committee of the Benevolent Fund, and a communication from H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. This communication was in reply to an address of condolence which on the motion of Bro. C. F. Hogard, P.M., and Hon. Sec., seconded by Bro. Cohen, P.M., had been forwarded from the Lodge of Israel to the Grand Master in consequence of the death of the Princess Alice. The following is a copy of the reply. "Sindvingham, Kings Lynn. Mr. Knollys is desired by the Prince of Wales to thank the members of the Lodge of Israel for their address of condolence on the occasion of the death of Her Royal Highness the Grand Duchess of Hesse, and to assure them that His Royal Highness is much touched by the kind and fraternal expressions of sympathy which they have addressed to him in his affliction. 1st. January, 1879. To Charles Hogard, Esq. The ceremony of raising Bro. J. J. Milburn, followed the reading of the above communication, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Cohen, ably assisted by his officers. The lodge was afterwards resumed in the Second Degree when Bro. A. Bassington, W.M. elect, was presented to the W.M. to receive the benefit of installation, whereupon Bro. Cohen having addressed the lodge, obligated Bro. Bassington in due form. The brethren of lower rank then retired and a Board of Installed Masters was formed to whom Bro. Bassington was presented, and his installation completed. On the return of the brethren the W.M. was formally proclaimed and greeted in the Three Degrees, after which he appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Phillips, S.W.; Norden, J.W.; Hogard, Secretary; Coote, Treasurer; Gomperts, S.D.; Smith, J.D.; Da Silva, I.G.; H. M. Harris, D.C.; Abraham Abrahams, Steward; Rawles, Tyler, and Bro. Cohen concluded the ceremony with the customary addresses to the Master, officers, and lay brethren. Bro. Harris, P.M., then rose and said that it gave him great pleasure, for which he was indebted to the members of the lodge, to have been deputed to present to Bro. Cohen the testimonial which had been voted to him by the brethren, and which was before them. Such a task required but few remarks from him, those present being so perfectly acquainted with the good qualities of Bro. Cohen. He (the speaker) might tell them that a testimonial had been voted to Bro. Cohen, and it was intended that it should have taken the form of a jewel. Bro. Cowen, however, had an abundance of jewels already, and on being consulted preferred a Life Governorship of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and an illuminated vellum like that before them. Bro. Harris, after a few further remarks read the address (which was a very beautiful piece of workmanship) which ran as follows:—"Lodge of Israel, 205. This Testimonial, together with a Life Governorship of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons (purchased at his request) is presented to W. Bro. Abraham Mark Cohen, P.M., and President of the Lodge Benevolent Fund, as a token of esteem and appreciation of the ability evinced by him as W.M. during the past year, by members of the above lodge, trusting that the G.A.O.T.U. may grant him health, happiness, and long life to continue to watch over the lodge, of which he has been for 35 years one of the chief supporters. Signed on behalf of the lodge this 28th day of January, A.L. 5879. A.D. 1879.—A. Basington, W.M.; Chas. Fredk. Hogard, P.M. and Hon. Sec." Bro. Cohen in acknowledging the honour done him said that his heart was much too full at that moment to allow him to say all that he could desire in return for this exhibition of the regard of the brethren. It was necessary to think also of the comfort of those present, and therefore he would not delay the proceedings by any further remarks, hoping to have an opportunity of doing so later in the evening. Bro. Cohen then drew attention to a notice of motion he had placed on the agenda:—"That the sum of two guineas be voted from the funds of the lodge to the 'Chambers' Testimonial." Chambers was the head waiter at the hotel, and a testimonial was being got up for him by the Masonic lodges using the house. The motion was seconded by Bro. Hogard, and carried unanimously, after which the lodge was closed in perfect harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room, where an elegant repast was admirably served to them. In noticing the banquet we must compliment Bro. Hogard, the Secretary, as the taste evinced in preparing the card containing the menu and list of toasts, which is provided with a margin containing words of welcome and good cheer culled from the writings of Shakespeare, such as: "The feast smells well" (Carolanus), "Pray sit down, for now we sit to chat as well as eat" (Taming the Shrew), "Bring in the banquet quickly" (Anthony and Cleopatra), "There is full liberty of feasting till the bell has tolled" (Othello), and others equally appropriate. When the cloth was drawn, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and honoured, and responded to, but there was nothing of public interest in any of the speeches. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Cohen, and responded to in a very few words. Bro. Cohen addressed the brethren of the lodge on behalf of the Lodge Benevolent Fund, for which he pleaded with his customary zeal, but reminded those present that as the fund was exclusively for the benefit of members of the lodge they could not receive any of the donations which visitors so frequently and so generously urged upon them. Bro. Hogard announced that the sum of £13 2s. had been collected at the table. There were, however, some further donations handed in subsequently, the amount of which did not transpire. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the I.P.M.," and Bro. Cohen in responding, again referred to the very handsome testimonial with which he had been presented. Such a mark of their esteem was very gratifying to him, and it was most pleasing to him to have been made by them a Life Governor of one of the Masonic Charities, for which he had stood Steward in former times. "The Healths of the Visitors, Past Masters, and the Officers of the Lodge," were also duly honoured, and the proceedings concluded as usual with the Tyler's toast. The meeting was a large one, and there were many visitors present, among whom we noticed, Bros. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D.; C. A. Coltebrune, P.G. Purs.; J. R. Harrison, Prov. G. Chap. for Kent; D. Pinner, W.M. 185; Jacob Lazarus, W.M. 1017; George Buckland, W.M. 1317; Lewis Lazarus, P.M. 188; D. Nicholson, P.M. 19; Arthur Mayer, 1704, and H. Massey (Freemason).

BURDETT LODGE (No. 1293).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on Saturday, the 25th ult., at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court. Present, Bros. Edward J. Southwell, W.M.; R. v. David Shaboe, S.W.; Sindall, J.W.; D. W. Pearce; H. G. Buss, P.G.T., Sec.; Henry Phythian, P.M.; Raynham W. Stewart, P.D.G.M.; David Bindoff, John William Saunders, Leopold Ruff, Hugh Mackay Gordon, Chas. Sadler, and other brethren. Visitors, Bro. Chas. Atkins; Dawson; George Kenning, P.P.G.D., and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Edward J. Southwell installed Bro. Rev. David Shaboe, P.P.G. Chaplain, in a very able manner. Bro. Shaboe invested Bros. Sindall, S.W.; Gordon, J.W.; H. G. Buss, Treas. D. W. Pearce, Sec. A vote of thanks and a presentation of the value of ten guineas was proposed and seconded, and carried unanimously, to Bro. H. G. Buss for his valuable services to the lodge. The brethren then adjourned to a well spread banquet under the personal supervision of the host, Bro. Sadler.

SIR HUGH MYDDELTON LODGE (No. 1602).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Agricultural Hall on Friday, the 24th ult. The W.M. Bro. I. J. Combs presided, and was supported by his office bearers, Bros. Sim, I.P.M.; Somers, P.M.; G. T. Rowly, S.W.; J. Weston, J.W.; J. Greenfield, Treasurer; J. Osborne, Secretary; Wm. Norris, S.D.; W. T. Poulton, J.D.; R. G. Thomas, Organist; H. Field, I.G.; and J. G. Russell, Steward. The following members were present:—Bro. J. Kitchiner, E. Percy, C. Parslow, W. Payne, E. Payne, R. R. Allison, E. Abrams, S.

Hollidge, and G. Tarrant. There was only one visitor present, Bro. J. Cogan, W.M. (1365). The lodge having been opened the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were unanimously agreed to. Bro. H. L. Godolphin, of the Friar's Lodge (No. 1349) proposed by Bro. Sun, P.M., and seconded by Bro. Somers, P.M.; and A. H. Chisholm, of St. Anthony's Lodge (No. 154 S.C.) proposed by Bro. Lee, P.M., and seconded by Bro. Somers, P.M., were then balloted for as joining members, and declared duly affiliated. Mr. James Alexander was formally elected and initiated into the mysteries and secrets of Freemasonry. The next business before the lodge being to raise Bros. Kitchiner and Pelikan, it was opened in the Second Degree, and these brethren having satisfactorily gone through the usual preliminary examination retired, and the lodge being opened in the third degree, were re-admitted and raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons. This constituting the principal business before the meeting the lodge was closed in the third and second degrees, when Bro. Giny, P.M., proposed the following resolution:—"That a Royal Arch Chapter be formed in connection with this lodge." The motion, which was seconded by Bro. Osborne, having been put to the meeting, was unanimously carried. On the motion of Bro. Somers, S.M., seconded by Bro. Sim, W.M., two guineas were voted to Bro. Worthington, of the Ranelagh Lodge. The lodge was then closed in the usual manner, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall and partook of refreshments. The various loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and after spending two or three pleasant hours together the brethren separated.

KILBURN LODGE (No. 1609).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held in the Queen's Arms Hotel on the 27th ult. There was a large attendance of members and visitors. Bro. George Kiallmark, W.M., presided, and was supported by Bros. Chas. Brewer, S.W.; J. W. Cuff, J.W.; Geo. Everett, Treasurer; Samuel Brooks, Secretary; George H. Goody, J.D.; J. Parry Cole, P.M., Org.; and Frederick J. Baker, Steward. In the absence of the S.D. Bro. Fletcher kindly officiated in that capacity, Bro. Frederick Brewer, in the absence of the I.J.G., performing the duties of that officer. The members present were—John Palmer, P.M.; J. The lodge having been opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. H. W. Kiallmark, of the Rural Philanthropic Lodge (No. 241), was balloted for as a joining member, and unanimously admitted. Bro. Kiallmark then proceeded to raise Bros. T. Corns and John Frost Paddon, which done, he installed Bro. Charles Brewer, S.W., as W.M. for the current year, performing the ceremonies in a very able manner. The installation being completed, the newly-installed W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. J. W. Cuff, S.W.; Samuel Brooks, J.W.; G. Everett, P.M., Treasurer; Alfred B. Webster, Sec.; Geo. Goody, S.D.; E. Brewer, J.D.; J. Parry Cole, Org.; F. J. Baker, I.G.; H. B. Phillips, D.C.; W. Blackburn, S.; and Charles Thomas, Tyler. The lodge was then closed to the First Degree, and the W.M. initiated Mr. J. G. E. Brewer into the mysteries of Freemasonry, going through the ceremony in a manner which proved his thorough acquaintance with the art. This constituting the business before the lodge, it was closed in the usual manner, and the brethren sat down to a magnificent banquet, presided over by Bro. Kiallmark, I.P.M., the new W.M. having, in consequence of indisposition, to leave after the ceremony of initiating Mr. Brewer. The arrangements for the banquet were carried out by Bro. Thos. H. P. Hartley, of the Queen's Arms Hotel, in capital style, everything being of the most recherché description. After the banquet, grace was sung by Miss Susanna Cole, Miss Kate Tudor, and Mr. Milton, and the customary toasts followed. "The Queen and the Craft" was drunk in true Masonic honours, the brethren remaining standing while they sang "God Save the Queen," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." having been proposed and warmly responded to, Miss Susanna Cole sang in excellent style "Bid me Discourse." In proposing "The Health of the M.W. Pro G.M.," the Deputy G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," the president thought the brethren were sometimes apt to undervalue the services not only of the super Grand Officers, but of the Grand Officers generally, yet he was perfectly sure that those services were of inestimable value to the Craft. The toast having been duly honoured, Bro. Howard Reynolds delighted the company with a correct obligato with masterly execution, after which Bro. F. Bines, P.G.S. and J. C. Wharton, P.P.G.C. (Buckingham) acknowledged the toast. The former said that he need hardly mention that the Earl of Carnarvon was a nobleman esteemed by every one, but especially were his services well appreciated in connection with Freemasonry. With reference to the M.W.D.G.M. they all knew that his name was a household word. Whether as Deputy G.M. or in whatever connection they met him they had in Lord Skelmersdale one of the most genial and kindly English gentlemen that they could possibly be associated with in any circumstances, and one who discharged his duties most faithfully and efficiently in the responsible position in which he was placed. The W.M., again rising, said the next toast he had the honour to propose was the most important perhaps of the evening, namely, "The Health of the W.M. Bro. Charles Brewer." He could not tell them with how much regret it was that he had to propose the W. Master's health in his absence. Not that he believed that the reception of the toast would be any less cordial on that account, but because he should have liked to see in the faces of them all and to hear in their voices the cordial recognition which he was sure they would give of his straightforward conduct, his thoroughly manly heart, and his genial disposition. As a Mason, their W.M. had shown them a proof of his intentions that afternoon, by coming from a sick bed which he had scarcely left for seven weeks in order to be present on that occasion, at the same time performing his duties in a manner which was highly creditable to him. He (the speaker) thought it was a good augury for the brethren that during the coming year they would have a W.M. who would carry out in their integrity the tenets and principles of the Order. The last was enthusiastically drunk, and Mr. Milton, who was in excellent voice, sang "The Village Blacksmith." The Treasurer then said that, in consequence of the deplorable absence of their much-respected W.M., it fell to his lot to propose "The Past Masters of the Kilburn Lodge." The lodge had now been two years in existence, and during that time the brethren had paid every penny in the formation and furnishing of the lodge. They had given 50 guineas to the charities during those two years, and they were putting Bro. Brewer into the chair as third W.M. with a balance of over £40. At the outset they had determined, whilst doing everything they could to insure the comfort and enjoyment of the brethren, that the charities should not be forgotten. They made that their stand-point all through their career, and they might rest assured they intended making it their stand-point in time to come. They had supported the old men and women with 25 guineas, they had given 25 guineas to the girls, and Bro. Brewer was going up this year on behalf of the boys with a similar amount. But when he told them that the lodge had given 50 guineas to the charities during the last two years, that represented scarcely more than a sixth of what they had sent to the charities. Through the generosity of the brethren, Bros. Kiallmark and Palmer were enabled to take up 300 guineas during the two years of the lodge's existence on behalf of charities. He himself was on the list, and took up 156 guineas on behalf of the girls, and he was proud to say that he stood second on the list out of 196 lodges. They had done this, and they were determined to go on and do the like again. He did not think he could say anything more with regard to the toast he had the honour to propose, because he had no desire to make a long speech, but he felt he could not propose the health of the W.M. first Master of the lodge without saying a word or two about the great thing that had been done during their membership. They had established themselves, they had enjoyed themselves, they had given such entertainment to their visitors as made their lodge almost proverbial for its hospitality, and, in spite of all that, they had not been unmindful of their poorer brethren, in short they had done more than any other lodge in the same period. The toast was cordially responded to, after which Miss Kate Tudor sang very effectively the beautiful melody from the "Bohemian Girl," "I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls." Bros. Past Masters Kiallmark and Palmer very graciously acknowledged the toast. The presiding Master then said the toast he had next to propose was dear to the heart of every Mason, namely, "The Health of the Initiator." The brethren had been sufficiently happy that evening to find a recruit who, he was sure, would be an honour not only to the Kilburn Lodge in particular, but to the Craft in general. Mr. Pulton then sang "Mighty Pasha," with capital effect, and Bro. J. E. Brewer briefly responded. In proposing "The Visitors" the presiding Master remarked that the lodge was generally strong in visitors. Well, the brethren of Kilburn Lodge were glad that it should be so. He assured them, at all events, that if they had failed in any of the duties of the working of their lodge one most important element of good fellowship was attained in bringing around them brethren from other quarters. On the present occasion they were well represented, and he asked the brethren to give them a hearty welcome. Seeing that there were their y-eight present he might be excused if he did not mention all their names. Suffice it to say that some of them were men of great distinction and worth, such as Bros. T. Bines and G. S. Wharton, P.P.G.C. (Bucks), with whose names he had much pleasure in coupling the toast. Miss Susanna Cole then sang the well-known air "Jannette and Jeannot." Bro. Wharton, in reply, said he was sorry that out of the 38 visitors a better man had not been found to return thanks for them than himself. He supposed that one reason was that the W.M. had chosen his unhappy name as he happened to be one of the visitors perhaps nearest home to the Kilburn Lodge. He was sorry the lodge was not in his own parish. A very narrow ditch divided them, but he must confess it was not the fault of the members of the lodge, but only his own, or rather the result of his own engagements that he had not been a visitor at it before. He had had frequent invitations which he had always been obliged to refuse. Now, to-night he found himself amongst them it afforded him considerable pleasure. He knew that amongst those who were visitors there were some who, should they begin to talk together, would find in their history a great many converging points. Let him say that as a clergyman he had had frequent opportunities to thank God that he was a Freemason. In his parish it had often enabled him to do and say things and to overcome difficulties that he would not have done without his connection with Freemasonry. He could look back with very great pride to the time when he first, like their brother initiate that evening saw the light in the glorious Apollo Lodge, at Oxford; since then he had had the opportunity of working his way from the I.G. to W.M. in a grander lodge, and passing on to the Prov. G. Lodge of his county where he had the opportunity and the happiness of making many staunch friends who, he hoped, would be friends through life. He thanked them very much on behalf of his thirty-seven brethren for drinking their health, and he trusted it would not be the last opportunity the brethren of Kilburn would give them of returning thanks for the visitors. The next toast was "The Masonic Charities," in proposing which the acting W.M. said that he need not tell them that Freemasonry was nothing without charity. He could scarcely conceive of any better investment than that of laying up any spare money one might possess, for the education of the boy or girl of a distressed Mason, or for providing against old age. Miss Tudor, then very appropriately gave a pathetic rendering of "My lodgings on the cold ground" which was very warmly applauded. Bro. Terry, P.M., very briefly replied, and was followed by Bro. Bines, P.G.S., who after some preparatory remarks to the effect that in the minds of Freemasons the three Charities should never be the subject of invidious preference, inasmuch as these institutions stood on one common platform, went on to say that as Masons they had to provide for both sexes in the decline of life, and for the young of both sexes on their entrance into life. They were three distinct institutions, that could only appeal to Masons for support. Brethren had heard a great deal lately, and a great deal had been written about what real Masonic charity was. Well, he simply and without any reserve or hesitation whatever, as he had expressed in writing, so would he say to them vis a voce, that unless every man who offered himself as a worthy candidate for admission into the ranks of this Order, thoroughly understood, appreciated, and acted up to the obligations administered to him of doing something in the way of practical charity, that man did not understand what Freemasonry really was. He was not now going to occupy time by a discourse as to what charity generally meant. They all knew that it was a synonym for love, that it meant the bearing and forbearing with each other's weaknesses, and all those other little matters that affected them as citizens and men of the world, in short that they should be charitable to each other, and make allowances where they differed. But he did say that there was a specific, undeniable, and distinct claim laid upon the shoulders of every candidate who was admitted into their Order, that he should do something, however small it might be (and God, in His mercy, knew that he should be the last one in the world to ask any one to exceed the means he had at his command), in support of the distressed portion of what he had often called the "household faith." After a few more remarks of a similar import, Bro. Bines went on to say that he, and such as he, did not address their appeals for help to those who were liberal supporters of the Charities, but they must not forget that they had this fact staring them in the face, which must not be ignored and could not be gain-said, that the great majority of the members of their Order did not contribute anything whatever to the Masonic Charities, and as long as the brethren found those uncultivated fields,—those lands lying fallow, so long was it their bounden duty to endeavour to stimulate into wholesome action those who had not done anything to fulfil the obligation he had alluded to? Their work would not be done until the great majority, not the minority, as it now was, were made to support the charitable institutions of their Order. The presiding Master here announced that Bro. Bines' earnest reminder of a Mason's duties had been followed by subscriptions amounting to over £150, a statement which drew forth loud cheers. Bro. Hyatt then sang "The Blue Alsatian Mountains," in excellent style, and "The Officers" having been drunk and replied to, the toast "To all Poor and Distressed Masons, &c.," brought the proceedings to a close. The musical arrangements were ably carried out under the direction of Bro. Parry Cole, P.M., P.P.G.O., whilst the W.S., left nothing to be desired in his attention to the comfort of the brethren.

CAMBRIDGE.—Scientific Lodge (No. 88).—A meeting of this ancient and flourishing lodge was held at the Lion Hotel on the 13th ult., the chief interest being the installation of Bro. C. F. Jarrold, W.M. elect. The ceremony of installation was preceded by raising Bro. Ennon to the Sublime Degree of M.M., and the initiation of Mr. Frank Piggott, who had been unanimously elected. The Worshipful Master, Bro. B. Chennell, resigned the gavel to Bro. J. Dimmock, P.M., P.G.H., the Installing Master, who as a skilled workman performed the ancient ceremony in a most able manner. The musical part was performed by the Organist, Bro. W. Purchas. At the close of the ceremony the Worshipful Master made the following appointments:—Bros. B. Chennell, I.P.M.; A. H. Moyes, S.W.; T. Hunnybun, J.W.; J. V. Pryor, S.D.; C. W. Palmer, J.D.; A. Thompson, I.G.; W. H. Jarrold, Treas.; T. Nichols, Sec.; C. A. Smith, D.C.; W. Davidson, P.M., Steward; B. Chennell, P.M., Chap.; W. Purchas, Org. The lodge was closed in solemn form, when about fifty brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet. Bro. C. F. Jarrold, W.M., presided, supported by the Past Masters of the lodge. The invited visitors composed the Worshipful the Mayor (Bro. H. Rance, P.M.) and several other brethren, and the evening was spent in true Masonic harmony.

EXMOUTH.—Sun Lodge (No. 106).—The brethren of this lodge assembled at their lodge-room, at the Beacon Hotel, Exmouth, on Wednesday the 15th inst., at three p.m., for the purpose of their yearly installation of a Worshipful Master to preside over them. The choice had fallen on Bro. W. Creasy, and, having been duly presented by Past Master T. Freeman, the worthy brother was duly and impressively installed by Bro. W. T. Maynard, P.P.G.T., whose excellent working and perfect acquaintance with the ritual invested the proceedings with more than usual interest. The W.M. appointed the following as his officers for the ensuing year, and a kindly word was given to each as he received his collar:—W. G. Lacey, I.P.M.; S. G. Blackmore, S.W.; E. Bishop, J.W.; W. Thomas, Treasurer; T. P. Jones, Registrar; A. A. Carter, Secretary; W. Cocks, S.D.; J. R. Stevens, J.D.; J. H. Clode, D.C.; P. Sylvester, S.B.; H. B. Starke, Org.; J. Wills, B.B.; H. F. Platt, J. James, and F. Dutton, Stewards; F. Burridge, I.G.; W. White, Tyler. Bro. W. Brodie, P.G.J.D., was called upon by the Worshipful Installing Master to deliver the address to the Wardens and brethren. Bro. Past Master W. T. Maynard was unanimously elected to represent the lodge on the Committee of Petitions. The lodge was then closed in peace, order and harmony, and the brethren adjourned to partake of the customary banquet, which was served in admirable style by Mrs. Bastin, and thoroughly enjoyed by nearly fifty of the brethren, amongst whom were the following, viz.:—Bros. Captain W. E. Stone, P.P.G.J.W.; W. T. Maynard, P.P.G.T.; H. W. Hooper, P.P.G.R.; W. Brodie, P.G. J.D.; W. Haymes, P.P.G.P.; H. B. Starke, P.P.G.O.; G. Bishop, P.G.S.B.; W. Thomas, P.M.; A. A. Carter, P.M.; T. Higgs, P.M.; G. W. Legge, P.M.; W. Vinnicombe, P.M.; G. C. Maynard, P.M.; W. G. Lacey, P.M.; W. Creasy, W.M.; G. W. Madge, W.M. 372; J. R. Stevens, P. Sylvester, W. Cocks, E. Bishop, F. Burridge, F. Dutton, E. Arnold, J. H. Clode, F. Collins, J. Matthews, H. F. Platt, E. O. Bence, S. G. Blackmore, J. Bennetts, F. Horn, J. T. Horne, H. E. Thompson, T. P. Jones, J. Turner, J. Wills, J. R. Cheall, W. Gifford, R. J. Hutchings, J. Lindsay, W. Perry, J. Kitto, W. White, &c. After the tables had been cleared, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured, that of the Provincial Grand Master Bro. the Rev. John Huyshe, and the P.G. Officers, Past and Present, being especially well received. Bro. W. Brodie, whose name was coupled with the toast responded. The brethren who had subscribed the necessary sum then drew numbers for a Life Governorship in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons, Bro. E. Bishop, the newly-appointed Junior Warden, drawing the Life Governorship ticket, of the value of five guineas, which confers a vote, at each election of an annuitant, during the lifetime of the Governor. The toast list having been gone through, some excellent songs were sung, and the convivial spirit reigned supreme until the brethren separated.

PENZANCE.—Mount Sinai Lodge (No. 121).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the festival of St. John on Wednesday, the 15th inst., when Bro. J. J. Taylor, of Marazion, who has filled the S.W.'s chair during the past year, was installed W.M. by his predecessor in office, Bro. W. H. Kinsman, who in the impressive ceremony was assisted by the following Board of Installed Masters:—Bros. F. Boase, P.P.G.S.W.; I. Levin, P.P.G. S.D.; J. Maxwell, S. H. James (St. Just.), C. Read, Beringer, W. A. Gerry (Prov. G.O.); Past Masters of 121; and H. S. Hill, W.M. 323 (Plymouth). The newly-installed W.M. invested his officers as follows:—Bros. W. H. Kinsman, I.P.M.; A. O. Michell (Marazion), S.W.; James Lovell, jun., J.W.; Rev. R. W. Aitken, Chaplain; C. Read, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., Treas.; G. H. Small, Sec.; F. Holman, S.D.; M. Sampson, J.D.; F. Rodda, I.G.; J. C. Simpson, D.C.; W. A. Gerry, O.; W. Colenso, S.S.; G. Wedlake, J.S.; and R. Reynolds, Tyler. Bro. Levin, P.M., was re-elected Steward of the Masonic Annuity Fund. On the motion of W. Bro. Boase, seconded by W. Bro. Levin, the retiring W.M. was cordially thanked for his devotion to the office and the excellent example he had set to his successors. W. Bro. Kinsman acknowledged the compliment. Hearty votes of thanks were also accorded to W. Bro. Read, many years Treasurer, and to Bro. Lovell, who for five years had been the courteous and indefatigable Secretary of the lodge. W. Bro. Read, in returning thanks, expressed a belief that if the lodge continued to prosper as it had during the last two years, they would be in a position to consider the advisability of erecting a building of their own. At the close of the lodge, W. Bro. Gerry, P.M., on behalf of the subscribers, presented to W. Bro. Kinsman a handsome Past Master's jewel, in recognition of the highly satisfactory manner in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. The brethren adjourned to W. Bro. Mitchell's Western Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was tastefully spread and admirably served. W. Bro. J. J. Taylor, W.M., who presided, had issued a large number of invitations, but not a few brethren had had to decline in consequence of business engagements in connection with the failure of the Cornish Bank. Bro. Boase, P.M., was kept away by a professional engagement, but he sent a fraternal greeting. Bro. the Rev. R. W. Aitken was absent through indisposition. In proposing "The Queen and Craft," the W.M. said that as an American-born citizen, it gave him peculiar pleasure to propose this toast, for all the world over he had ever found the name of the Queen of England honoured and beloved. To them as Masons she was especially dear, as the daughter of a past and the mother of their present G.M. W. Bro. C. Read followed with "The Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal family," requesting the brethren to testify to their sympathy with the Royal Family in their bereavement by drinking the toast in silence. "The M.W. Grand Master, Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales;" "The R.W. the Pro. G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon;" and "The D.G.M. the R.W. the Earl of Skelmersdale and officers of G.L.," were next given by W. Bros. Read, Maxwell, and Levin respectively; and then in terms of eulogy Bro. A. O. Michell, S.W., submitted "The R.W. the Prov. G.M. the Earl of Mount Edgcombe and the Prov. G.L. of Cornwall," appropriate response being made by Bro. Read, P.P.G.S.W.; Bro. Levin, P.P.G.S.D.; and Bro. Gerry, Prov. G.O. W. Bro. Kinsman then gave the toast of the evening, "The W.M. of Mount Sinai," remarking that Bro. Taylor first came amongst them a stranger in a strange land, but they soon found in him one whose whole heart and soul was in Freemasonry, and who in his life exemplified its principles. Every member was bound to feel that in their present W.M. they had one who would rule the lodge well and wisely. W. Bro. Taylor responded in a thoughtful speech. Very proud indeed did he feel of the honour that day conferred on him, for he believed he was the first American-born citizen that had filled the chair of a lodge in the county and probably of any lodge in England. To Bro. Michell, their S.W., he owed the pleasure of introduction into Freemasonry—a great and glorious institution. The high and honoured names connected with it was conclusive evidence that it was not a mere convivial society as many thought, or designed to upset authority; whilst the fact the clergy sought admission into it was proof that it was not an irreligious assembly. Masonry was truly a religious and a moral institution capable of accomplishing a great deal of good for the human race. Its historical associations too were of the greatest possible interest. It had been his pleasure to stand on the site of the temple at Jerusalem, from which Masons obtained most of their symbols, and to have slept in all that remained of that famous forest which supplied much of the material for the building of that temple; but tenfold would have been the pleasure if at that time of the visit he had been a Freemason. Freemasonry, in a figurative sense, was itself a magnificent temple, not indeed made with hands, but founded on the firm foundation of a belief in the Great Architect of the Universe. It was true there was a spurious Masonry that was not built on that rock, and he regretted to say that they must now include in it the Grand Orient of France, which had eliminated the name of the Most High from its constitution. But that spurious form would long have died when true Masonry flourished, every member a stone in a temple far exceeding in beauty the temple of King Solomon. None should enter the Order but from the purest motives, determined ever to exercise the virtues of Faith, Hope, and Charity. In conclusion, Bro. Taylor expressed the fervent hope that when the great ocean should divide them his memory would still remain fresh in their hearts as theirs would in his. "The Installing Master" was next proposed by the W.M., who remarked that Bro. Kinsman had worked well and worthily, with the result of being an adept in the Masonic art. It had given him unfeigned pleasure to be his S.W. Bro. Kinsman feelingly responded. He was glad of having had the opportunity of doing anything for an institution that did so much to soften and relieve the asperities and troubles of life, and proud of having presided over so important a lodge. "The Past Masters of Mount Sinai" was the next toast, and W. Bro. Read, responding, took the opportunity of welcoming to their ranks W. Bro. Kinsman, whose industry had not been surpassed by any W.M. of the year, and who had installed his successor with an effect and solemnity he had never witnessed before. W. Bro. Lovell having congratulated the lodge on the prosperity of the past year, and expressed himself confident that equal prosperity would attend the coming year, proposed "The Wardens and Officers of Mount Sinai," and Bros. Michell and Lovell suitably acknowledged the compliment. The next toast was "The Visiting Brethren," and the W.M. gave expression to his regret that the financial disaster in the county had deprived them of the pleasure of the presence of some worthy brethren. In a few hearty words the toast was given by W. Bro. Gerry, who believed that the permanent advancement of Masonry was promoted by a cordial intercourse between lodges. W. Bro. Trevithick, W.M. 450, and W. Bro. Eustice, P.M. 450, responded, congratulating the W.M. (a member of their lodge) on his preferment. Bro. H. C. Martin, of Dutch "De Goede Troef" (The Good Trust) Lodge, Capetown, also responded, remarking that he could conscientiously say, although he had visited many lodges, he had not been more cordially or more fraternally treated than he had at Mount Sinai Lodge, and he should not fail to let his lodge at Capetown know it. Especially did he thank Bro. Wedlake for introducing him. "The Initiates" was the next toast, and Bros. Laity and Edkins responded. The important toast of "The Masonic Charities" was entrusted to W. Bro. Lewin, who remarked that the Cornish province had its Annuity Fund instituted by their late G.M., Bro. Augustus Smith, and now existing on a very sound and firm basis. Its income was about £300 a year, derived from £2000 to £2500 capitalised subscriptions from lodges and chapters, and from the individual contributions of the brethren. The income provided annuities for £20 a year to four deserving Masons, afforded assistance to widows, and grants from £15 to £20 a year to assist in educating children of deceased brethren of the province. First established of the general Masonic Charities was the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which had between three and four hundred annuitants, the men receiving £40 a year and the women £23. This institution in some measure was proof that the fraternity practised the great virtues it professed. But, in addition, there was the Masonic School, which clothed, maintained, and educated 200 girls and 220 boys; and last year these three institutions received upwards of £40,000 in subscriptions from the brethren. And it should be remembered that every province, like that of Cornwall, had its own special Masonic charities; so that they could proudly and truly say that one of the brightest ornaments

of the Order was charity. In truth did he believe that when a man became a Freemason he gave more rein to his charitable and benevolent feelings, was not so narrow-minded, enlarged his heart, and became cosmopolitan. During the last few months disaster had been stealing through the country, and unfortunately it had come very near home to them, and there would be large claims on the Order in consequence, and he had no doubt that those claims would be fully met. (Hear, hear.) At the conclusion of W. Bro. Levin's speech Bro. Martin, of the Capetown Lodge, begged to be allowed to give a guinea to the charity fund of the lodge as an evidence of his fraternal feelings, and W. Bro. Levin, gratefully accepting it, mentioned that an appeal was about to be made on behalf of the Girls' School. W. Bro. Read, responding to the toast, mentioned that a member of Mount Sinai Lodge was the first recipient of the annuity fund, and that that member's daughter was about the same time admitted to the Girls' School. W. Bro. Gerry proposed "The Masonic Press," and Bro. H. S. Hill, W.M. 223, responded, "The Host and Hostess" were toasted, and highly praised for the character of the banquet. Bro. Holman proposed "The Ladies," and Bro. Lovell made a neat response. With the Tyler's toast, "Our Poor and Distressed Brethren," one of the pleasantest St. John's festivals, as admitted by all, Mount Sinai Lodge had ever had, was brought to a close. The musical arrangements were excellent, thanks to Bro. J. Lovell, jun., whose services the W.M. cordially acknowledged. The J.W. himself sang in capital style "Old Tubal Cain," "Nancy Lee," "The Last Chord," &c., and, joined by W. Bro. Gerry, he gave "The Larboard Watch," while with Bro. Sampson he rendered "All's Well." Bro. Sampson, in excellent voice, sang, "The Fine Old English Gentlemen," (after the toast of "The Prov. G.M.") "My Sweetheart when a Boy," "Her bright smile haunts me still," &c. The glee, "Ye shepherds tell me," was also sung by the three brethren.

TRURO.—Lodge Fortitude (No. 131).—The festival of St. John was held on the 14th inst., when the W.M. elect., Bro. J. H. Sampson, S.W., was installed by Bro. T. Chirgwin, P.S.G.W., assisted by the following Board of I.Ms. Bro. J. J. Taylor, W.M., Mount Sinai, 121, Penzance; W. H. Christie, Phoenix, 331, Truro; W. J. Johns, R. John, N. B. Bullen, and E. Edwards. At the close of the ceremony the W.M. invested the following as his officers:—Bro. T. Chirgwin, I.P.M. and Treas.; T. Willcocks, S.W.; J. C. Furniss, J.W.; W. Porter, Chaplain; W. B. The W.M. was elected Steward to the Royal Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund. At the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel, to the annual banquet, where the W.M. was supported on the right by Bro. Sir J. McGarel Hogg, Bart., M.P.; T. Chirgwin, and W. J. Johns, and on the left by Bro. E. T. Carlyon, Prov. G. Sec.; J. Tregoning, S. J. Taylor, 121, and W. H. Christie, 331.

GIBRALTAR.—Inhabitants' Lodge (153 E.C.)—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, December 18th, in the lodge rooms at Armstrong's-buildings, and was very numerously attended. The D.D.G.M. Bro. Gibbard was present, and among the visitors were the following Masters and Past Masters:—Bro. Franceri, D.G.S.; Ross, Cunningham, Holiday, Barker, Conroy, Valerino, Luque, Jimenez, and Gavannah. The chair was taken by Bro. Conroy, W.M., and on the lodge being raised the W.M. elect, Bro. Bacon, was presented to the W.M. for installation. On the re-admission of the brethren below the chair and the customary salutes in the different degrees being given, the W.M. invested the officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bro. White, S.W.; King, J.W.; Armstrong, Treasurer; Ingate, Secretary; Button, S.D.; Allen, J.D.; Clifton, D.C.; Lyon, I.G.; Ghio, Tyler. Bro. Conway, I.P.M., then delivered the addresses to the W.M. and Wardens in a most impressive and admirable manner. The D.D.G.M., Bro. Gibbard now rose, and in a short but very feeling speech passed several high encomiums on the I.P.M., and ended by proposing a vote of thanks to Bro. Conroy for the very able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. This was seconded by Bro. Barker, and the W.M. directed it to be entered in the minutes without putting it to the lodge. Bro. Conroy, in reply, said he was very much gratified by the vote of thanks, and remarked that he had endeavoured to do his work as well as possible, and was only too well rewarded by seeing what perfect satisfaction he had given to the brethren. After a vote of thanks to the Board of Installing Masters had been carried and suitably responded to by Bro. Ross a vote of thanks was proposed to the D.D.G.M. for his kind attendance. Brother Gibbard, in returning thanks, said that he took a great interest in the Inhabitants' Lodge, and had watched its progress with great interest, and ended by complimenting the lodge on the excellence of its working. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where a splendid repast was prepared for them by Bro. Miranda. After ample justice had been done to the good things, the table was cleared and the W.M. proposed the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," which was drunk heartily, and was followed by the National Anthem. The next toast was "The Three Grand Masters, England, Ireland, Scotland," proposed by the W.M. in a few appropriate remarks. This was heartily responded to, and was followed by airs on the piano illustrative of the countries mentioned. The next toast, proposed by Bro. White, S.W., was "The District Grand Officers," which was responded to by Bro. Jimenez, who wished the lodge all success and prosperity. The I.P.M. now proposed the health of the newly-elected W.M., and in the course of his remarks said that he handed over the chair to Bro. Bacon with great pleasure, being sure that the lodge would improve and prosper under his guidance. The W.M., in reply, said that the position he occupied at that moment was one of great pride, and regretted very much that he could not express, as he would wish, his gratification at the trust reposed in him by the brethren. It was a position of great honour and responsibility, and it should be his utmost endeavour, with the assistance of the Great Architect of the Universe, and the hearty co-operation of his officers, to give perfect satisfaction to all. The W.M. then proceeded to propose the health of the I.P.M., Bro. Conroy, and remarked that the year they had completed had been a very important one in the history of the lodge, and a very arduous one for the W.M., for it had been marked by two great events, the Canterbury Festival and the removal of the lodge rooms. Through this year of hard labour the I.P.M. had passed triumphantly and furnished an excellent example to succeeding masters. Bro. Conroy, in the course of his reply, said that he owed a great deal of his success to the assistance which he had received from his officers, and hoped that the P.M. would be as fortunate in that respect as he was. "The Health of the Incoming and Outgoing Officers" was then drunk and suitably responded to by Bro. White (incoming) and Bro. Briggs (outgoing). The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," and said the lodge offered them a hearty welcome. Bro. Cottrell and Turner returned thanks, expressing the great pleasure they always derived from witnessing the working of the lodge, and the kind manner in which they were always received. Some excellent songs by several of the brethren contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the evening, and the Tyler's toast concluded a very pleasant and enjoyable evening.

LIVERPOOL.—Ancient Union Lodge (No. 203).—The annual installation meeting of the members of this old lodge was held on Thursday afternoon, the 16th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, and the meeting was attended by a numerous and highly influential representation of brethren. The lodge was opened by Bro. T. W. Serjeant, W.M., P.G.S.D., and amongst the "leaders in the Craft" who supported him were the following officers:—Bro. James Winsor, P.M.; J. Parsons, P.M.; B. W. Rowson, P.M., P.P.G.S. of W.; E. Johnson, P.M., W.M. 1756; J. T. Alston, S.W.; C. Birch, J.W.; T. Hatton, J.D.; W. Gick, I.G.; C. Bromley, P.M., Treas.; E. McCabe, Sec.; E. Catrall, S.; J. Walker, S.; R. Bryan, Organist; P. Ball, Tyler. The list of members present included, Bro. W. H. Ball, J. N. Hounsell, R. Kinsey, Connell, T. Armstrong, R. Fairclough, J. Taylor, G. Haever, J. Davies, 241; H. Gill, 1086; I. Jacobs, 724; W. Walker, 1086; J. W. Ballard, P.M. 724; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; P. R. Forshaw, S.W. 1035; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594; T. Hay, 1756; H. Macaulay, 339 (S.C.); Sol. Jacobs, 241; J. Baxton, 1013; J. Barker, 673; H. Marshall, 693; R. E. Mitton, 1356; J. O. Rea, 1182; J. Queen, 667; J. D. Reader, 1086; W. G. West, 1756, and others. The W.M. elect, Bro. J. T. Alston, was presented by Bro. Bromley and Rowson, and installed in an impressive manner by Bro. James Winsor, P.M., and W.M. 241. After the usual Masonic honours had been paid the following officers were invested:—Bro. Charles Birch, S.W.; James Hilton, J.W.; Chas. Bromley, P.M., re-elected Treas.; E. McCabe, Sec., re-appointed; Wm. Gick, S.D.; Edward Catrall, J.D.; Joseph Walker, I.G.; James Winsor, P.M., D.C.; J. P. Bryan, Organist; E. Donnelly, S.S.; F. Mansley, J.S.; P. Ball re-elected Tyler. The addresses to the various officers on their duties were very effectively given by the Installing Master, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was capitally served up by the House Steward. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and honoured. The "Prov. Grand Master" was proposed by Bro. Birch, S.W., and responded to by Bro. Dr. McGeorge, P.P.G.R., and the I.P.M. of the lodge. The toast of the evening, "The W.M.," was proposed by the I.P.M., who stated that if the approval of the brethren was expressed in the votes, they had spoken in the most favourable manner of their W.M., by giving him their unanimous support, and he hoped that they would vie with each other in loyalty to him during his year of office. The W.M. replied in suitable terms, and hoped that the return to their old installation day would be an augury of good times in store for 203. "The Health of the I.P.M." was proposed in eulogistic terms by the W.M., who presented him with a handsome Past Master's jewel on behalf of the lodge, and also a beautiful tea and coffee service, in consideration of his having filled the chair a second time. The I.P.M. replied in feeling terms, and expressed a hope that the members of 203 would do their utmost to support his successor. "The Installing Master" was proposed by Bro. Bromley, and heartily honoured. Other toasts followed, including "The Past Masters of 203," "The Masonic Charities," &c., and a very enjoyable programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered by Bro. A. Child, 1505; J. P. Bryan, Thos. Hatton, Jos. Queen, 667; R. Hobart, 1505; and Hargreaves Gill, fairy bells, a very pleasant reunion being largely contributed to thereby.

NORWICH.—Perseverance Lodge (No. 213). The brethren of this lodge met on Tuesday, the 21st ult., at the Rampant Horse Hotel, for the purpose of installing Bro. Joseph Stanley, solicitor, Norwich, as W.M. for the ensuing year. There were between forty and fifty present, several of whom were visitors from the various lodges in the province, and amongst them we observed Bro. G. B. Kennett, P.P.G.R.; O. D. Ray, P.P.G.D.C.; E. Orams, P.P.G.J.W.; J. C. Chittock, P.P.G.S.D.; Edwin Baldwin, P.M., 40, P.Z.; Charles Rackham, Gilman, John Boyce, P.P.G.S.D.; Miles J. Walker, (Governor of Norwich Castle), F. E. Linging, (Manager of Norwich Gasworks), H. M. Vvall (Secretary Montgomerie), H. C. Riches, W.M. Sincerity; A. J. Berly, W.M. (Cobbell); W. M. Mills, (Walpole); A. D. Stone, P.M. Friendship; A. W. Reeve, (Walpole); Thirkettle and Baldry, P.M.'s Cabell; P. Soman, (807-213); Wilkin, Notley, T. C. R. King, Santy, and others. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. James Dunsford in a most impressive manner, and the W.M. proceeded to appoint his officers as follows:—Bro. J. E. H. Watson, S.W.; J. W. Reynolds, J.W.; George Baxter, P.M., Treas.; George Daniels, Sec.; George Kersey, S.D.; R. J. Silburn, J.D.; J. Dunsford, P.M., P.Z., M. of C.; William Cooper, I.G.; S. N. Berry, Org.; Edward Charles Thompson and William Anthony Crisp, Stewards; and Morse, Tyler. After the officers had been appointed, the lodge was duly closed, and an adjournment made for the banquet, which was one of the most recherché character, and did credit to mine host. Lodge Perseverance has always been one of the best in the province for its installation banquets, and on this occasion it may fairly be said to have suffered nothing in the hands of the new W.M. The tables were most tastefully and artistically arranged with choice exotic plants, and each brother had placed opposite his plate a most charming bouquet, supplied by the indefatigable Secretary of the lodge, Bro. G. Daniels, upon whom too much praise cannot be bestowed for the care and attention and expense the floral decorations must evidently have entailed. The menu in itself was something out of the common, being printed in gold and light blue. Upon the outer page was inscribed the name of the lodge, on the inner the menu, on the third page toasts of the evening, and on the fourth the new officers. In addition to this, on every page appeared four quotations from Shakespeare; amongst which were the following:—"A hundred thousand welcomes" (Coriolanus); "Worshipful master" (Taming of the Shrew); "This is the house" (Comedy of Errors); "Labour shall refresh itself" (Henry V.); "Will it please you taste of what is here" (Tempest); "Good wine is a good familiar creature, if it be well used" (Othello). But, perhaps, the most appropriate were those at the top and bottom of the page, containing the list of officers, viz.:—"We cannot all be masters" (Othello); "One step I have advanced thee" (King Lear). After the banquet the usual Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to. Bro. Ray proposed the toast of the evening, viz.:—"The Health of the Newly-elected W.M.," who, on rising to respond, was received with quite an ovation, which he richly deserved, not only for his generous liberality on the occasion, but also for the zeal which he has always shown in promoting the welfare of the craft. Lodge Perseverance will never suffer under his mastership, and the members may well feel proud of having such a master, who is equally good at the "work" as at the social board. The toast of "The Masonic Charities" was introduced in a very enthusiastic speech by the W.M. forcibly impressing on the brethren the claims they had on our sympathy and support, and hoping that every brother would become a life governor in one or other of those valued institutions. With this toast were combined the names of Bro. Chittock, Orams, and Baldwin, each of whom replied in a few well-chosen remarks, recommending every brother to give something to one or other of those institutions annually. Bro. Baldwin stating that if every Mason in the province gave 5s. annually in support of the charities, the result would prove a benefit to those institutions of about 150 guineas. Certain it is that Norfolk does not supply its quota. At the close of the response, the W.M. and Bro. Blake promised to hand over to Bro. Baldwin the sum of five guineas each, to be disposed of as the latter might deem advisable in the interest of Perseverance Lodge, and Bro. A. J. N. Chamberlain kindly handed over a guinea for the same purpose. Other amounts will, no doubt, be forthcoming before the next lodge meeting, making the amount 20 guineas, and thus securing to the W.M. for the time being of this particular lodge the qualification of a life governor during its existence. The W.M. in glowing terms proposed the health of his immediate P.M. (Bro. Ray), who richly deserved all that was said of him, for he has done much to elevate Masonry—if such a term can be used—and also to aid its noble charities. We would particularly note that Bro. H. J. Mason, the oldest member of the Craft in the province, has been secured a comfortable home in the Benevolent Institution, mainly through Bro. Ray's efforts. A very happy and harmonious evening was spent until high 12, when the brethren dispersed. Bro. George Baxter acted throughout as M. of C. in a manner that added materially to the pleasure and enjoyment of all present.

LEWES.—South Saxon Lodge (No. 311).—On Wednesday, the 15th inst., the annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall. Bro. S. Tanner was installed as W.M., the ceremony being efficiently performed by Bro. T. R. White, the retiring Master. Bro. Jos. Farncombe, P.M. and P.G. Purs. Sussex, acting as D.C. The financial position of the lodge was reported to be very satisfactory. The following officers were appointed:—Bro. T. R. White, I.P.M.; G. Stone, S.W.; A. Holman, J.W.; R. Blaker, Sec.; Rev. W. E. Richardson, Chap.; R. Crosskey, Treas.; Honey, S.D.; Bridges, J.D.; R. A. Stock, I.G.; S. Starnes, Org.; F. Noakes, D.C.; H. Hall, Tyler. Bro. J. C. Lucas, was appointed Charity Steward. The newly-appointed W.M. presented Bro. White, on behalf of the lodge, with a Past Master's jewel, in recognition of his services during the past year. The gift was suitably acknowledged. At the close of the business the brethren dined together at the White Hart Hotel, Mrs. Hunsley providing refreshment in a very excellent manner. About forty were present, including the Masters of several lodges in the province and other visitors, as well as the officers and several members of the South Saxon Lodge. The after dinner proceedings were of a very agreeable character.

WHITBY.—Lion Lodge (No. 312).—On Monday, the 20th ult., the brethren of this Lodge assembled at the Masonic Hall, John-street., on the occasion of the installation of Bro. John Stevenson, P.M., as W.M. for the ensuing year, and also of the investiture of the officers whom he has appointed to assist him in carrying on the work of the lodge. More than ordinary interest attached to the ceremonial from the fact that this is Bro. Stevenson's third re-election to the chair. Bro. Stevenson's third year of office (1878) was distinguished by the completion of a work of improvement in the spacious hall in which the brethren assemble from month to month. This hall, one of the most beautiful and well proportioned in the province, has been, internally, much beautified and embellished since the previous St. John's banquet, and the accomplishment of a result so thoroughly artistic and satisfactory has been materially aided by the munificence of Bro. Stevenson, W.M. The lodge having been duly opened on Monday afternoon, Bro. W. Stonehouse, P.M., officiated as Installing Master in an able manner. The investiture of the officers for the ensuing year by the W.M. then took place. The officers for 1879 are as follows:—Bros. Francis Thornton, S.W.; G. T. Crowther, J.W.; W. E. Wolsey, S.D.; G. Farrow, J.D.; J. T. Thornton, I.G.; J. N. Lawson, P.M., Treasurer; J. B. Dale, Secretary; H. Hallgate, P.M., Organist; James Wood, Tyler; T. H. Trueman and T. Harland. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the brethren, to the number of about thirty, adjourned to the Royal Hotel, and sat down to the installation banquet, which was provided and served up by Mrs. Atlay, the hostess, in an elegant and sumptuous style. The menu comprised the choicest viands, and the wines were of superior quality. The chair was occupied by Bro. Stevenson, P.M., W.M., and the vice-chair by Bro. Thornton, S.W. After the removal of the cloth the Chairman proposed the customary toasts, "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., and the other Members of the Royal Family," which were drunk with loyal cordiality. Bro. W. H. Falkingbridge, P.M., gave the toast of "The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W.P.G.M., and the other Provincial Grand Officers," which was heartily drunk, and Bro. T. N. Marwood responded. "The Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces" formed the next toast, which was given by Bro. T. F. Pearson, and suitably acknowledged by Bro. W. H. Marwood, P.M. "The Health of the W.M., and Prosperity to the Lion Lodge" was proposed in an eloquent speech by Bro. Moss, P.M., and drunk with enthusiasm and all the Masonic honours. The W.M. feelingly responded. The next toast, "The Immediate Past Master and the other Past Masters of the Lion Lodge," was given by the S.W., and responded to by Bro. Moss, P.M. The remaining toasts were "The Installing Master," proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Stonehouse, P.M.; "The Officers of the Lion Lodge," proposed by Bro. T. Smailes, and responded to by Bro. Crowther, J.W.; "The Ladies," proposed by Bro. W. H. Marwood, P.M., and responded to by Bro. T. Summerson; "The Hostess," and "Our Next Merry Meeting." The proceedings afforded much enjoyment to all present, and the harmony of the evening was enhanced by songs from Bros. W. Falkingbridge, P.M., T. N. Marwood, P.M., G. Farrow, J.D., J. T. Thornton, I.G., T. H. Trueman, S.S., and a recitation from the worthy Secretary, Bro. Dale. The "loving cup" went round before the brethren separated, the assembly dispersing after "Auld Lang Syne" had been sung as Free and Accepted Masons know how to sing it.

TRURO.—Phoenix Lodge of Honour and Prudence (No. 331).—At the meeting of this lodge held on Monday, the 20th inst., at Truro, Bro. J. H. Ferris, J.W., was installed by Bro. S. Serpell, P.M., assisted by the following Board of Past Masters:—E. Trewbody, Carlyon, P.G.S.; R. Bell, E. D. Arderton, P.P.G.S.W.; James Bryant, R. John, P.P.G.S.; W. H. Christoe, W. H. Jenkins, P.P.G.S.W.; J. J. J. of No. 331, Phoenix; E. Edwards, P.M., 131; Thos. Webber, P.M., 75, P.P.G.S.W.; T. Michell, P.M. 1006; J. J. Taylor, W.M. 121; J. H. Sampson, W.M. 131. The W.M. then invested the following as his officers:—Bros. J. Jose, I.P.M.; J. J. Hawken, S.W.; Sampson Stephens, S.D.; J. Christoe, Sec.; C. Bryant, Org.; F. J. Christoe, J.W.; J. H. Reynolds, J.D.; S. Serpell, P.M., Treas.; J. Tregoning, jun., D.C.; J. Tregoning, I.G.; W. H. Watkins, Stwd.; W. H. P. Martin, Swd.; W. Rooks, Tyler. Amongst the brethren present were:—Bros. R. Carter, 331; Captain Tregoning, 331; T. J. Willcocks, S.W. 131; R. Angel, 131; F. J. Christoe, 331; J. Christoe, 331; J. Rogers, 331; W. H. Watkins, 331; R. H. Carter, 331; J. J. Hawken, 331; J. Julian, 331; Amos. Jennings, 331; T. Davey, 331; J. Juleff, 331; and others. Bro. W. Tweedy, P.M., 331, P.G.T., was re-elected Treasurer of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund. After some further business was transacted, the brethren, joined by several others who were unavoidably absent from the lodge, adjourned to the Red Lion Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was prepared for them, and a very pleasant evening was passed.

PORTSEA.—Royal Sussex Lodge (No. 342).

—The first regular meeting in 1879 of this old and well conducted lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, St. George's-square, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. The chief event of the evening was the installation of a well-known but much respected Mason, Bro. James Willmott, as the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. After the business of the lodge had been concluded, the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, when a most excellent banquet was provided by Bro. Sherman, of The Hard. The newly-installed W.M. most ably presided, and was enthusiastically supported by a large number of the brethren. After the cloth had been removed the W.M. gave the first toast of the evening, "The Queen and the Craft," remarking that the brethren as Freemasons must necessarily be loyal men; and the head of this realm at all times commanded the respect of the Craft; but the Queen not only was regarded with respect but with the sincerest affection, as she had shewn a warm interest in our Order by becoming a patroness of our Masonic Charitable Institutions. The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the M.W. Grand Master of England," said that the ancient Craft had made immense progress under the superintendence of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and although it was impossible for him to attend all the meetings of Grand Lodge, he continued to take the most active interest in the well-being of the Order. The W.M. observed in proposing the next toast, "The M.W. Pro Grand Master of England," that the Earl of Carnarvon was one of the most energetic Masons in England, he ably assisted H.R.H. in conducting the onerous duties of the Grand Master's chair, and was also the P.G.M. of Somersetshire. His name was respected not only by Masons, but by all Englishmen who were not members of the Craft. The next toast, that of "The D.P.G.M., the Earl of Skelmersdale, and the Officers of Grand Lodge, Present and Past," was proposed by the W.M. in enthusiastic terms, and likewise cordially received. The W.M. in proposing "The K.W.P.G.M. of Hants and the Isle of Wight, W. W. D. Bacon, Esq., M.P.," and also that of "The D.P.G.M., Bro. W. Morgan, and the Officers, Present and Past, of the Provincial Grand Lodge," said that the P.G.M. being more intimately connected with them, they could more highly appreciate his excellent qualities; he was most ably supported by the D.P.G.M., and likewise by the officers, and he had much pleasure in associating the name of Bro. Mark Frost, the P.G. Treas., with the toast. Bro. Mark Frost, who was very cordially received, suitably replied. The other toasts were "The W.M.," "The Installing Master," "The Worshipful Masters of Neighbouring Lodges," and was responded to by Bro. Goble, W.M., Bro. Hall, Havant, Bro. Townsend, United Service, Bro. Frost, United Brothers, Bro. Lancaster, Portsmouth, Bro. R. J. Monnell, Landport Lodges. "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. E. S. Main, P.M., and Hayles, and after "The Past Masters of Lodge," and "The Officers of the Lodge" had been drunk, the meeting closed. Some capital harmony was contributed by several of the brethren during the evening. The following brethren are the officers appointed for this year:—Bros. James W. Willmott, W.M.; William Payne, I.P.M.; R. Barnes, S.W.; C. Knott, J.W.; W. C. Redward, P.M., Treas.; J. R. Wilson, P.M., Sec.; Craven, jun., S.D.; H. Crouched, J.W.; J. E. Buck, I.G.; T. Good, D. of C.; Norris, Mason, Steward. The under-mentioned brethren attended:—Bros. J. Rastrick, P.M., P.P.J.G.W.; G. Wilkins, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. R. Wilson, P.M., P.P.G.P.; J. Friedeborg, P.M.; W. WINSHILL.—Royal Sussex Lodge (No. 353). The sixty-first anniversary of the above lodge was celebrated on Monday, the 23rd ult., at the Swan Hotel, when Bro. W. J. Booth, S.W., was installed in the chair of K.S. as W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was most impressively performed by the I.P.M., Bro. W. Boden, the brethren expressing their cordial approval of the manner in which he had presided over the lodge during the past year. The W.M. appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. F. J. Roe, S.W.; W. Lobb, J.W.; W. J. Drewry, P.M., Treas.; W. Walters, Sec.; W. Johnson, S.D.; W. L. Ball, J.D.; W. J. Gothard, P.M., P.P.G.P., D. of C.; A. B. Plant, Org.; J. C. Perfect, I.G.; Johnson, Tyler. The business of the lodge being concluded, the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Spooner, which was well served and gave in every way satisfaction. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to in a truly Masonic spirit, and several subjects relating to the interests of Masonry were ably spoken to by brethren present, and a very hearty desire expressed that the newly-installed W.M. might experience a pleasant and successful year of office. The Royal Sussex Lodge occupies a deservedly high position among the lodges of the Province of Derbyshire, being noted for its contributions to the various Masonic Charities, and always endeavouring to illustrate the fraternal spirit and the generous sympathies, which are the distinguishing characteristics of the Craft. The visiting brethren who honoured the lodge with their presence were as follows:—Bros. T. Cox, P.M. 253, P.P.S.G.W. Derbyshire, P.G., Treasurer; F. Campion,

P.M. 253, P.P.S.G.W. Derbyshire; H. Hillam, P.M. 731, P.P.S.G.W. Derbyshire; C. Grabam, P.M. 624, P.S.G.W. Staffordshire; W. J. Mantle, P.M. 297 P.P.G., Superintendent of Works, Lincolnshire; S. Briggs, P.M. 614; K. Macrea, I.P.M. 624; T. C. C. Martin, W.M. 624; W. G. Lowe, Secretary, 624; J. Samble, jun., 624; H. J. Lawrence, 624. The D.P.G.M. Bro. Okeover, P.J.G.W. of England; Bro. W. Naylor, P.M. 253, P.P.S.G.W. Derbyshire, P.G., Secretary, and other distinguished brethren were in consequence of pressing engagements unable to be present at the installation ceremony and banquet.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Peace and Harmony Lodge (No. 359).—The installation of the W.M. of this lodge for the ensuing year took place at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, the 20th inst., when Bro. Thomas Lashmore, one of the Past Senior Wardens, was duly installed by Bro. T. P. Payne, P.M., in the presence of a full attendance of brethren, including Bro. W. Hickson, D.P.G.M. Hampshire and the Isle of Wight; the I.P.M., and the Treasurer of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, and the W.Ms. of the Southampton, Clausentum, and Shirley Lodges; the Installed Masters numbering eighteen. The W.M. elect subsequently invested his officers as follow:—Bros. W. H. Martin, I.P.M.; J. R. Weston, P.M., Treas.; A. J. Miller, P.M., Sec.; Andrews, S.W.; Stroud, J.W.; Jones, S.D.; J. Patstone, J.D.; W. Waters, D.C.; K. G. Westley, I.G.; and Goodwin, Org. Before the lodge closed the W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. T. P. Payne, P.M., for the able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation, expressing the hope that he might live long to perform many similar offices. Bro. P.M. Dusautoy seconded the proposition, and it was carried with acclamation, and Bro. Payne acknowledged the compliment. A vote of thanks and a Past Master's jewel were awarded to Bro. Martin, the retiring Master, for his services during the past year. The installation banquet, provided by Bro. Dartnall, was held in the evening, presided over by the new W.M., to whom many congratulations were tendered on his accession to an office for which he was eligible, and might have had, many years ago had he chosen, and confident hopes were also expressed that the present prosperous condition of the lodge would in no way suffer during his regime. The usual toasts were given, and a most pleasant evening was spent in true Masonic spirit.

HALIFAX.—St. James Lodge (No. 448).—On Tuesday, the 7th inst., the annual installation festival was celebrated by the members of this lodge at the Freemasons' Hall. Bro. T. Whitaker, W.M. opened the lodge at half-past three. After the transaction of the ordinary business of the lodge, Bro. A. Roberts was duly installed as W.M. for the ensuing year according to ancient custom, in a masterly and impressive manner, by Bro. C. T. Rhodes, P.M. The interesting ceremony occupied about an hour and a half, and was highly appreciated by the numerous brethren present. The following brethren were appointed by the new W.M. to assist him in the government of the lodge during his year of office:—Bros. W. Swale, S.W.; Councillor Richard Worrick, J.W.; Richard Jessop, P.M., Treas.; G. H. Radcliffe, Sec.; W. Walshaw, S.D.; J. G. Lee, J.D.; C. T. Kendall, M.C.; C. Taylor, Org.; A. H. Booth, I.G.; G. Greenwood, P.M., Tyler; J. Hanney, and S. Dickinson, Stewards. Hearty congratulations were accorded to Bro. Roberts upon his elevation. Before the lodge was closed, Bro. C. T. Rhodes, P.M. and J.W. (in the absence of the Rt. W. Prov. G.M. Bro. Lieut. Colonel Sir Henry Edwards, who had written excusing his attendance), presented, in appropriate terms, to Bro. Thos. Whitaker, the retiring W.M., in the name of the lodge, a beautiful P.M.'s jewel, in gold, as a mark of esteem for his services during the year, which was suitably and feelingly acknowledged by Bro. Whitaker; after which the brethren adjourned to the handsome dining hall, to partake of the usual sumptuous banquet (provided on this occasion by Bro. J. C. Crocker, of the White Swan Hotel), where Bro. Roberts, who presided, was supported by many distinguished brethren, amongst whom were Bro. Thomas Perkinson, P. Prov. G.W. and P. Prov. G.M.M.M. of West Yorkshire; Bro. John Fisher, P. G. Treas. and P.G.E.C. of K. T. of West Yorkshire; Bro. B. N. Jackson, P.P.G.D. of Bro. Siddal, P. Prov. G.D. of East Lancashire; Bro. J. Gautroger, P.M., 61; Bro. Waghorn, W.M., 61; Bro. George Scarborough, S.W., 61; Bro. John Leach, J.W., 61; Bros. Thomas Whitaker, P.M., C. T. Rhodes, P.M., Richard Jessop, P.M., C. J. Walshaw, P.M., W. F. Wilkinson, P.M., W. B. Spencer, P.M., 448, W. Cooke, W.M., 1302, H. S. Holdsworth, W.M., 408, and H. Beaumont, W.M., the officers of the lodge, and numerous brethren of the town and district. The menu was not only rich in the provisions afforded, but was unique in design, containing appropriate quotations from Shakespeare around the borders, and before and after the bill of fare and toasts. The "Two Gentlemen of Verona" announced the fact that "Dinner's ready," while from Macbeth was the desire, "Now good digestion wait on appetite, and health on both." After an enjoyable repast, composed of innumerable dishes, the diners were invited by the card to "Praise us as we are tasted, allow us as we prove;" and on the border of the toast list was the caution from Othello, "Every inordinate cup is unblessed, and the ingredient is a devil." Heading the toast list was the hackneyed, but nevertheless trenchant, reminder that "Brevity is the soul of wit, and consequently the W.M., Bro. Roberts, indulged in few, but nevertheless graceful, observations in giving the loyal toasts. After the name of her Majesty on the list came the words from Henry the Fifth:—
"God and His angels guard her sacred throne,
And make her long become it."
and how sincerely the sentiment was endorsed was evidenced in the cordial response to the health of "The Queen, the Royal Family, and the Craft." The next toast was the healths of the M.W.G.M. of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; the M.W. Pro. G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon; the R.W.D.G.M., the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale; and the rest of the grand officers past and present. Bro. Roberts, in submitting this, "praised, commended, and extolled their graces," and the toast was received with enthusiasm, and accompanied with grand honours. In giving "The R. W. Prov. G.M. of West Yorkshire, Bro. Lieut-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart.; the W. Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. T. W. Tew, J.P., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers past and present," the W.M. expressed regret at the unavoidable absence of Bro. Sir Henry Edwards. Bros. T. Perkinson, J. Fisher, B. W. Jackson and Cooke acknowledged. Bro. T. Whitaker, I.P.M., was received with cheers to propose the health of the W.M. of the Lodge of St. James's, which was duly acknowledged by Bro. Roberts. The Immediate Past Master "who has done nobly and cannot go without any honest man's voice" was toasted cordially, as also was the Installing Officer, Bro. C. T. Rhodes. "The Senior and Junior Wardens and Officers" was proposed by Bro. Wilkinson, and responded to by Bros. W. Swale, S.W., and Worsick, J.W. Bro. Swale also gave the healths of the Past Masters, and Bro. C. Walshaw, P.M., replied. Bro. T. Whitaker, in terms of welcome, proposed "The Sister Lodges in Halifax," and this was cordially acknowledged by Bro. Waghorn, W.M., Proby; Bro. Cooke, W.M., De Warren; and Bro. W. B. Spencer, W.M., St. John's. Bro. Worsick, J.W. gave "The Visiting Brethren," and Bro. Holdsworth, W.M., Three Graes (Haworth), Bro. Shaw, W.M., Saville (Elland), Bro. C. T. Keys, P.S.W. (Huddersfield), and Bro. Nicholl, Ryburn (Sowerby Bridge), replied. "The Masonic Charities," proposed by Bro. C. T. Rhodes, P.M., was followed by "Lady Edwards and the Ladies;" and by the last toast, "To all Poor and Distressed Masons," we were reminded by the card that "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." During the banquet Bro. Hemingway's band performed choice selections of music, and at intervals during the evening Bros. Wood, P.M., Varley, P.M., Todd and Armitage, and glee party from Huddersfield delighted the assembly with glees, duets, songs, &c., their efforts being ably supported by several members of the lodge. The proceedings were brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

SPALDING.—Hundred of Elloe Lodge (No. 469).—Thursday, the 9th inst., was a "high day" with the brethren connected with this lodge, the annual festival of St. John being celebrated on that day. At 1.30 business commenced, and the labours of the day were protracted until half-past six in the evening. The ceremonies of "raising" and "installation" were performed by the W.M., Bro. G. F. Barrell, in a manner seldom witnessed in a provincial lodge—indeed, the D.G.M. of Lincolnshire, who was present, testified his unqualified admiration at the manner in which these onerous ceremonies had been carried through. Necessarily impressive and solemn, they were performed with the most perfect good taste, and elicited the universal congratulations of the brethren. Bro. Woodrow, P.M., also performed the ceremony of initiation in his customary able manner. Bro. Bonner, P.M., having been duly installed into the chair, briefly addressed the brethren, thanking them for the honour they had conferred upon him, and testifying his intention to carry out the duties of his office to the best of his ability. He then appointed the following officers:—Bros. Symes, S.W.; J. Laming, J.W.; Fountain, P.M., Treas.; Barrell, P.M., Sec.; E. Cammack, Org.; Benner, S.D.; A. Harrison, J.D.; S. E. K. Capps, I.G.; Woodrow, D.C. One of the most pleasing ceremonies of the day was the presentation by Bro. Woodward, P.M., on behalf of Bros. Barrell, Benner, and himself, of a magnificent banner, to be used on "state occasions." Bro. Woodward expressed a very sincere wish that this might be accepted as a token of their sincere regard for the principles of the Craft, and hoped that instead of a cold formality all the members might evince attention to the principles of the Order. The brethren then adjourned to the White Hart Hotel (the Commissioners refusing to let their board room for the purpose, as has been done for many years), where a sumptuous and recherché banquet was provided by Bro. Harper. The W.M. presided, supported by the D.P.G.M. of Lincolnshire, Captain Lockock, the I.P.M., Bro. Barrell, P.G.A.D.C. of Lincolnshire, Bros. Perry, Lowe, P.G.C. of Lincolnshire, and W.M. 172, Dr. Wood, W.M. 838, Hodgings, W.M. 985, Hart, 466, Shepherd and Ferguson, 838, with numerous other visitors, and most of the members of the Hundred of Elloe Lodge. After the banquet the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly acknowledged, some very useful and interesting conversation took place, which obviously cannot be recorded here, and several brethren enlivened the evening with songs and recitations. Bro. Cammack and Dr. Wood ably presided at the piano. We cannot refrain from noting the splendid way in which Bro. Hayes rendered those exquisite songs "Maid of Athens," and the "Blue Alsatian Mountains," while Bros. Abbott and Woodrow's truly Masonic songs "struck home" to every one present. Bro. Hart also took part in the harmony, and Bro. Symes gave a recitation on "The Patience of Job," with admirable effect, and after a most pleasant evening the brethren retired, well pleased with each other and the treat they had enjoyed. We understand that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire will be held at Spalding early in the summer of this year.

AXMINSTER.—Virtue and Honour Lodge (No. 494).—The annual meeting of the members of this lodge was held on the 14th ult., at the George Hotel, when Bro. S. G. Loveless was installed for the ensuing year W.M., by Bro. Evans, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., who performed the ceremony in an edifying and instructive manner, for which the brethren showed their appreciation by unanimously passing a vote of thanks. The duties of W.M. had been performed by Bro. Loveless in so admirable and efficient a manner during the past year that he was unanimously re-elected, an honour which Bro. Loveless evidently appreciated. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Toms, I.P.M.; J. G. Pinney, S.W. and Treas.; J. Jefford, J.W.; A. P. Reece, Sec.; Jarwin, S.D.; Pickering, J.D.; Derrick, I.G.; Webber, P.M., Organist; Wakley, I.G. After the closing of the lodge the customary banquet was partaken of by the brethren (including several visitors). The usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a pleasant evening was spent.

MANCHESTER.—Princess Charlotte of Wales Lodge (No. 570, I.C.).—This lodge, which is attached to the 5th Dragoon Guards, now stationed at Manchester and Bury, held their annual St. John's festival in the Masonic Hall, Coopers' street, on Monday, the 20th ult. The lodge was opened by the W.M. (Bro. J. Arthur). There was a good muster of members and visitors; amongst the latter were Bros. J. H. Sillitoe, P.M. 317, P.P.G.D. of C.; George Smith, W.M. 1009; J. After the lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which was presided over by the newly-installed W.M. The usual loyal toasts were heartily proposed and received, and then followed the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.V. Grand Master of Freemasons in England;" "His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, M.W. Grand Master of Freemasons in Ireland;" "Sir M. R. Shaw Stewart, M.W. Grand Master of Freemasons in Scotland," and Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire, and the rest of the Provincial Grand officers present and past. Bro. Sillitoe responded to the latter, and in his remarks alluded to the peculiar pleasure he felt in doing so, as their R.W. Provincial Grand Master, who was every inch a Mason as well as every inch a soldier, had formerly served in the regiment, and so highly was he esteemed that any circumstance which in any way formed a connecting link with him was sure to be hailed with cordiality by every brother in the province. The toast of the W.M. was ably proposed and very enthusiastically received. In responding, the W.M. assured the brethren that he should at all times take a deep interest in everything that would tend to uphold the dignity and prosperity of the lodge. Other toasts followed, and the evening was enlivened by some excellent music, both vocal and instrumental.

The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree and Bro. Peter Nightingale duly admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason by Bro. Henry Darbyshire, P.M. By virtue of the authority invested in him Bro. Darbyshire closed the lodge in the Third Degree, and in the Second Degree. The W.M. then called upon the Secretary to make the usual business announcements, which being done, the lodge was closed in due form and with solemn prayer at 9.45 p.m., the remainder of the evening being spent as usual in a very happy manner at the festive board.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Lodge (No. 874).—The rapid strides that this lodge is making must be a source of great satisfaction to all its members. What with the splendid room and handsome furniture it may well be classed as the most complete lodge-room in the South of England, and it having been suggested that there should be a banquet on the completion of the new lodge-room, there was a gobe muster of the brethren at the Pump Room on Wednesday, the 15th inst., in response to the circular issued by the W.M. There were present, Bros. W. B. Bacon, W.M.; H. D. M. Williams, S.W.; W. A. Hodgkin, J.W.; B. S. Wilmot, I.P.M.; W. S. Elers, Treas.; J. F. Bates, Sec.; C. Graham, acting S.D.; J. Dunkley, J.D.; R. W. Delves, I.G.; Strange, Tyler. Past Masters J. Read, Beckley, Roper and Elerk. Bros. Arnold, Boom in, Crip, s, Durrant, T. Elliott, W. Elliott, W. Langridge, Satchell, Ranisbotham, Role and others. The lodge was opened in the three degrees and on being resumed in the First Degree, Bro. Elers, P.M., proposed and Bro. Wilkins seconded "That a gratuity of two guineas be given to the Tyler" which was unanimously carried. The W.M. having made the usual enquiries the Secretary read a letter of resignation from Bro. Hugh H. Riaach, P.M., which was accepted and Bro. Bates was instructed to convey to Bro. Riaach the regret the lodge felt at his resigning his membership. Several small matters having been disposed of, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Royal Kentish Hotel to a splendid banquet provided by Bro. Semark, the host, which was served in good style and drew forth the approbation of all present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured and the evening was enlivened by some very good harmony and brought to a close at an early hour.

FOWEY.—Fowey Lodge (No. 977).—The members of this lodge, together with the visitors, met in the Masonic Rooms, Church Street, on Monday, January 6th, for the purpose, as expressed in the agenda paper, of initiating Mr. C. N. Stevens, Chief Traffic Inspector, Cornwall Minerals Railway, and for the installation of Bro. A. P. Davis, Surgeon, as K.M., &c. During the last twelve months the lodge has received as a joining member Bro. Emra Holmes, P.M., P.P.G.R., and P.P.G.D.C. of Suffolk. The advent of Bro. Holmes to Fowey was heartily welcomed by all the brethren, as from his well-known writings, Masonic and otherwise, his fame had preceded him, and the high anticipation of the brethren were not deceived, but they found, high as they had estimated him, they had not valued him at his full worth. Bro. Holmes, by his writings, public lectures, concerts, &c., given for charitable purposes, and his readiness to open his purse strings in the cause of charity for every deserving object has already gained the goodwill of all in the neighbourhood. While we welcome him amongst us we cannot but express our sympathy for those who have been deprived of his valuable services. Bro. Holmes, from the great advantages he has had in witnessing the performance of our impressive ceremonies has been of invaluable service in correcting our little deficiencies, and we sincerely hope the east would send us a few more such as he is. Among the brethren present, were Bro. H. W. Duraw, W.M.; N. H. Lamb, I.P.M.; Rev. Dr. Treffry, D.C.L., P.P.G.C.; Dr. Davis, M.D., P.P.G.J.W.; A. E. Goni, P.M., P.G.Std.; F. B. Williams, P.M.; W. Tonkin, Secretary, P.M., P.P.G.S. of W. and Emra Holmes, P.P.G.R. of Suffolk. Visitors, T. C. Stephens, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; J. Stephens, P.M.; P.G.Std.; J. Ruddle, S.W.; J. Langford, J.W., of Lodge St. Andrews, 1,151; Dr. Mason, W.M., Peace and Harmony Lodge, 496, St. Austell; and about forty brethren. After the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed the ballot was taken for the candidate, Mr. Stevens, and that being declared unanimous, the W.M. vacated the chair for Bro. Dr. Davis, father of the W.M. elect, who proceeded with the impressive ceremony of the initiation, which was performed in a very able and efficient manner. Bro. A. P. Davis was then presented and installed as W.M. of the lodge by Bro. Tonkin, P.G.S. of W., who acted as installing master, and very efficiently performed a difficult task. The following were appointed officers of the lodge for the ensuing year.—Bros. H. W. W. Durant, I.P.M.; C. Slade, S.W.; A. Lake, J.W.; T. Walton, S.D.; T. Richards, J.D., and G. Varcoe, I.G.; Rev. Dr. Treffry, chaplain; H. W. Durant, treasurer; Emra Holmes, D.C.; W. Tonkin, secretary; R. Beale and W. Phillips, stewards. Letters were received from the W.Ms. of the Lostwithiel and St. Columb Lodges, regretting they could not attend. It was agreed that the sum of 40 guineas should be voted to the Cottage Hospital and Church Clock Fund, as allowed heretofore at the annual meeting. The lodge was duly closed, and a banquet was afterwards given at the Commercial Hotel, to which some 40 brethren sat down. Mr. Richards catered admirably. After dinner the W.M. resigned the gavel to Bro. Emra Holmes, D.C., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In proposing the toasts of "The Prov. Grand Master" and "The Officers Present and Past of the P. G. Lodge," Bro. Holmes congratulated the brethren of Cornwall on having at their head so estimable a nobleman, and one so justly respected and beloved, as the Earl of Mount Edgumbe. He coupled with the toast the names of A. Elford, P.G. Std., and Bro. Dr. Treffry, P.P.G.C. Bro. Elford very briefly replied, and was followed by Dr. Treffry, who in a long and eloquent speech dilated upon the unquestioned antiquity of Masonry, and gave some interesting details of Capt. Warren's discoveries of Masonic works in his recent exploration of Jerusalem. The Rev. Doctor then proposed "The Health of the W.M." and spoke in a very cordial way of the hopes entertained of the manner in which Bro. Percy Davis, would fill the chair, trusting that, if it were possible he might make a better Mason than his father. Bro. Davis very modestly replied, when the Director of Ceremonies gave in succession the toasts of "I.P.M. and Installing Master," Bro. Holmes took occasion to remark upon the interesting address of Dr. Treffry, and supplemented the statements as to the antiquity of Masonry and its signs and tokens. He had heard a reverend brother of high Masonic rank state that he had himself seen from the summit of Lincoln Cathedral three gigantic figures carved in stone, and mounted on the pinnacles which adorned that structure, the one a monk, the second a nun, and the third an angel; standing in certain positions known to Masons and making the signs of the Three Degrees. These three figures had stood for centuries testifying to the antiquity of Masonry and its signs and symbols. It had been stated many years ago that the Royal Arch Degree must be false, since it taught the belief that the Arch was known in architecture in the time of King Solomon whereas it was well known to the said sceptics that the arch was not known until the times of the Romans. Well, in the recent explorations in Jerusalem under the very sight of the Temple, arches were discovered, which proved that the Masons were right after all. Bro. Mason and Westlake replied to the toast of "The Visitors" and "All poor and distressed Masons" brought the formal toast list to a close. A very agreeable evening was spent.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—A strong gathering of the members of this large and flourishing lodge was held at the Lion Hotel on Thursday, the 16th inst., when there were present Bros. Fox, P.M.; Lebanon, W.M.; Jessett, S.W.; T. Ockenden, J.W.; E. Hopwood, P.M. 141, 1512, P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, Treasurer; W. Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, 1513, W.M. 1666, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, Secretary; J. Hammond, P.M., 201, P.G.S. of Middlesex, I.P.M.; Raw, Hon. P.M.; Kent, J.D.; Hiscox, I.G.; Moody, D.C.; Day, A.W.S.; Gilbert, P.G.T. of Middlesex, Tyler; and T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.D. (Freemason). The minutes of the November meeting and the motion then given that the sum of ten guineas should be placed upon the list of Bro. Walls as Steward to the R.M.I. for Boys at the next festival having been unanimously confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers initiated Mr. Charles James Bunyan into the mysteries of Craft Masonry, and raised Bros. W. Bartlett, E. Russell, and R. M. Oxford to the degree of M.M. Upon the conclusion of these ceremonies Bro. P. Ockenden in very eloquent terms moved that the sum of two guineas should be voted to the fund for securing the return into the London Orphan Asylum of the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Chapman, who were highly respected in Hampton, and whose premature death threw their three young children upon the mercy of the world. This case, although outside the Masonic pale, was warmly advocated by Bros. Hopwood and W. Hammond, and the resolution upon being put was unanimously passed. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a collation. In consequence of the lateness of the hour the after proceedings were shorn of their customary formality. The only toasts given were "The Queen and Craft," "The W.M.," "The Visitors," responded to by Bro. Bowers, and Brownrigg, and "The Officers." The latter toast was acknowledged by Bros. Hopwood, W. Hammond, and Jessett.

ENFIELD.—St. James's Lodge (No. 1579).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 25th ult., in the George Inn. The lodge was opened at four o'clock, there being a full muster of brethren. Bro. John Painter, W.M., presided, and was supported by his officers, Bros. H. Stephens, S.W.; Thos. J. Cusworth, J.W.; Herbert J. Adams, Treasurer; J. Driscoll, Prov. G.P., Secretary; Geo. H. Jaffa, S.D.; J. W. Hobbs, J.D.; P. H. Kilduff, Chaplain; Wm. Jain, I.G.; J. Very, Tyler; E. J. Everdell, D. of C.; E. Litchworth, I.P.M.; and James

Lynell, P.M. The members present were:—Bros. H. Weld, John Painter, Geo. Corbol, C. W. Chambers, J. Stephenson, Joseph Boulton, Geo. Tegg, S. J. Waterer, F. Auerbach, R. J. Webber, and J. M. Greenwood. Visitors: W. F. Green, 861; G. Wallace, 907; J. L. Cogan, W.M., 1365; J. Paterson, 19; Henry V. Clements, S.D. 754; James Oddy, 754; S. W. Iron, P.M., 902; J. Selly, 25; F. Coker, 1426; and A. H. Chisholm, 154 (Freemason). The lodge having been opened, the Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. Letters of apology from the Prov. G.M. (Colonel Burdett) and Prov. G. Sec. (Bro. H. C. Levander), for not being able to be present, were read. Bro. Joseph Stephenson, a candidate for passing, having been examined and found worthy of preferment, retired, and the lodge was opened in the second degree. Bro. Stephenson was then re-admitted and duly passed. The W.M. then presented Bro. Thos. J. Cusworth (the W.M. elect) to Bro. E. Litchworth, P.M., who kindly undertook the duties of Installing Master, which he performed in a most creditable manner. The Board of Installed Masters having been closed, the W.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his office-bearers. They are as follows:—Bros. Stephens, S.W.; Joffa, J.W.; Adams, Treas.; Driscoll, Sec.; Kilduff, Chaplain; Hobbs, S.D.; Iron, J.D.; Everdill, I.G.; Rudd, D. of C.; Tegg, W.S.; Very, Tyler. The business being thus concluded, the lodge was closed in the customary way, and the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, presided over by the newly-installed Worshipful Master. The arrangements for the banquet were carried out by mine host of the George Inn (Bro. Mattieson) in excellent style. The cloth having been removed, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D. G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," all of which toasts were drunk with true Masonic honours. In replying to "The Health of the G. Officers," Bro. Litchworth, P.M., as Installing Master, said he was sure that all the brethren regretted the absence of their M.W.P.G.M. and their M.W. P.G. Secretary. It was not many days since he had the pleasure of seeing the former who, at that time, expressed his regret that he would be unable to attend the banquet, but he (the speaker) had every reason to hope that the brethren would within the next few months have the pleasure of his company at some of their meetings. With regard to the Prov. G. Secretary, he had seen him on the preceding day, and he, too, deeply regretted his inability to be present, but it was to be hoped that before long the brethren of St. James's Lodge would have the pleasure of seeing him amongst them. As one of the original members of the lodge he (Bro. Litchworth) must take that opportunity of congratulating the brethren on the accession to office of so distinguished a member of the Craft as their W. Master, he being a most fit successor to their I.P.M., for whom, he was sure, all the brethren entertained the highest esteem. He could assure them it was no empty phrase that he used, when he told them, that it gave him the greatest possible pleasure to instal their W.M. in the chair that evening. Bro. Painter, P.M., then proposed, in very complimentary terms, "The Health of the W.M.," remarking that it was a great pleasure to him to see Bro. Ensworth in that position, and expressing the hope that during his year of office the affairs of the lodge would continue to prosper. The W.M. very appropriately replied. He had, he said, every reason to hope that his year of office would be a successful one, and he trusted brethren would bring as many initiates as possible to augment the number of members of St. James's Lodge, in order to give him an opportunity of working the various degrees in Freemasonry. Before sitting down he had great pleasure in asking the brethren to drink to "The Health of their I.P.M." They had all witnessed the successful way in which he had performed his duties during his tenure of office. He had now lost the opportunity of presiding over them, but he (the speaker) was certain he would never be forgotten in St. James's Lodge, not only for the urbanity of manners which the brethren had always experienced at his hands, but for the great interest he had shown in promoting the affairs of the lodge. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, which Bro. Painter, P.M., gracefully acknowledged, remarking that his connection with the lodge from its commencement was one which he very much prized, and he trusted that the pleasant evenings which he had spent amongst the brethren he saw around him, would never be obliterated from his memory, whilst he would assure them that he would always do his best for Freemasonry in general and the St. James's Lodge in particular. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," observing that they had the pleasure of the company of three Past Masters that evening, but more particularly in connection with that toast would he call the attention of the brethren to the Installing Master Bro. Litchworth. He was sure it was very gratifying to all present to witness the able manner in which he had performed the duties of that beautiful ceremony. He (the W.M.) confessed he had attended numerous lodges and had seen the ceremony of installation often performed, but never had he witnessed it gone through in so accurate and impressive a manner as on the present occasion. Bro. Litchworth in replying thanked the brethren for the cordial manner in which they had responded to the toast, and went on to say that he congratulated the lodge on the thorough Masonic spirit which up to the present time had influenced the brethren in all that they had done. Masonic banquets and meetings really did nothing unless there was something behind them, and he trusted that the St. James's Lodge might as long as it continued to exist, be animated with those feelings which had hitherto influenced it. "The Visitors" was next proposed, being coupled with the names of Bros. Oddy and Green, who suitably responded. In proposing "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary," the W.M. said he was sure all the brethren would bear testimony to the excellent way

THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The second meeting of the Stewards for the anniversary of 1879 has taken place, and the numerous attendance betokened the general interest in the welfare of the Institution and the success of the festival. Everything promises a most prosperous gathering, and a most satisfactory return, and Bro. Terry, the indefatigable Secretary, has already announced 253 Stewards, an increase of twenty-eight on last year. We rejoice sincerely at such a welcome appearance of things, and trust that the result will verify both predictions and hopes. East Lancashire, always alert and energetic, sends up alone sixty Stewards, and the festival will be presided over, as is well known, by our distinguished brother Lieut.-Col. Legendre Starkie, P.G.M. for East Lancashire. In his able hands the claims of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will be forcibly and fitly commended to listening auditors and warm hearts. We have ourselves no doubt but that Bro. Terry is going to make one of his effective "coups," after twelve months of untiring zeal and assiduity to the interests of the Institution, and we feel sure that our brethren will answer to his straightforward appeals, will second his endeavours, and reward his labours in so good, so honest, so true a cause. No Masonic association can boast a "more solid basis" than that on which the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution "rests," the relief of aged and indigent brethren and their widows. We may feel much, as we do, for the orphan boys and interesting daughters of our friends and comrades, and long may our overflow of fraternal sympathy for them tend to support largely and liberally the Girls' and Boys' Schools. But the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution appeals, we venture to think, with increasing claims on our own individual feelings, in that many whom we relieve and support, we have known and worked with in lodge, and their widows seem most directly and distinctly to claim our fraternal "largesse," and our personal concern. If it be true that trade is bad and business unsettled; if it be the fact, undoubtedly, that complications of foreign nations have made our home prospects cloudy and precarious, yet, let us remember that charity, Masonic charity, knows and can know no pause in its benevolent efforts and beneficent duties, and that we may well seek to evince to an admiring world, that Masonic charity is still active and progressive, a demonstration, (if proof be needed), the reality of the professions of the truth of the theory of Freemasonry, namely—the honour of God and the welfare of man. May the anniversary of 1879 witness to that warmth of true Masonic charity in many a high and humble heart amongst us, which asks to be permitted to alleviate the burdens of some poor and failing brother, to cheer the lonely and the mourner, to cause the "widow's heart to sing for joy."

THE GRAND LODGE OF ILLINOIS.

We note a statement in a Transatlantic paper that the Grand Lodge of Illinois has espoused the cause of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and has issued a "Bull" excommunicating practically the Grand Lodge of Scotland. We are very sorry for the Grand Lodge of Illinois; first, that it could act so foolishly, and, secondly, that it holds itself up to ridicule and laughter. We need hardly point out that such an act is "Ultra vires," and has no validity whatever outside Illinois. That such a proceeding will help the Grand Lodge of Quebec we do not believe, as it will serve to convince all thinking Masons whither the violence of a few illogical writers, or some very un-Masonic minds is leading worthy brethren. Indeed, such proceedings are alike undignified and indecorous in the highest degree, and constitute an abject parody on all our Masonic professions of fairplay, justice, toleration, precedent, Masonic unity, and Masonic comity; neither do we think that this most uncalled for and most un-Masonic course will be followed by other American Grand Lodges. There are in America brethren who are on a "par" with all, as to the knowledge of Masonic law, custom and precedent alike in theory and practice. The Grand Lodge of Quebec has outraged that great principle which, until this last foolish "escapade" of theirs had never been disputed by any competent Masonic writer, that a lodge has a right when duly warranted to adhere so long as it suits its own convenience, or for good and sufficient cause, to its mother Grand Lodge. Numberless instances might be given in the history of all jurisdictions as to this universally recognized principle, and which may fairly be called a "landmark" of Masonic life. But the truth is that up to the present the Grand Lodge of Quebec has never hit the one little weak point in the position of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The one strong point of the Grand Lodge of Quebec consists in this, that when the Grand Lodge of Canada was formed, the Grand Lodge of Scotland made a friendly "waiver" of its jurisdiction; and that it can now claim a "reviver" on account of the action of the Grand Lodge of Quebec is more than doubtful. But we pass from this to point out, that the Grand Lodge of Quebec is raising a false issue on untenable grounds. And great is our regret to learn that the Grand Lodge of Illinois has been so unwise as to commit such an un-Masonic act, and create so evil a precedent by a hasty and evidently ill considered decision, in endorsing the unsound assumptions and assertions of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. We hope that there may be some little incorrectness in the report, as though reported in the Voice of Masonry, it seems so far to come alone from a zealous partizan of the Grand Lodge of Quebec.

OUR INITIATION FEES.

A matter of no little importance to the present and future welfare of our now great Order, has been pressing for some time on the attention of the thoughtful and the serious amongst us. Our present initiation fees are much too low. If it be true that they might have been sufficient at the time they were settled, the progress of the Craft seems to show that the period has come carefully to reconsider them. At this moment English Freemasonry is threatened with two great evils; first, the tendency to introduce too many and unsuitable members; secondly the leaning to the benefit society system which crops up week by week in many forms and many ways. At this moment, more than ever previously in its history, Freemasonry holds out the possibility and prospect of striking material advantages, and there can be no doubt whatever that many are now attracted to Freemasonry by what it does do, by what it may do, by what it can do, for those who seek some return for "money invested," for subscriptions paid. We might say a good deal on this topic, from facts within our cognizance, but we spare our readers a too long exordium, and content ourselves with asserting the truth, which is uncontrovertible, declaring a reality, which may issue in grave evils to our excellent Order. Under these circumstances there is one remedy, which we beg to press upon our readers and all in authority, "increase the initiation fee." We are all aware that by the provisions of the Book of Constitutions, no lodge can charge less for initiation than £3 3s., and in addition to this a registering fee in London lodges of £1 1s., in the provinces of 10s. 6d. Thus in London the minimum is £4 4s., in the provinces £3 11s. 6d. Of course the London lodges as a rule have high entrance fees, both for initiation and joining, but in the provinces it is not so, except in some very rare instances, and we are not wrong in saying that whereas probably the average of all the London lodges might be put at £12, that of the provinces hardly reaches £6. As regards lodge subscriptions the difference is still more marked, just as the system of metropolitan and provincial lodge life is entirely distinct and contrasted. We have known provincial lodges in which the bye-laws provide for

12s. annual subscription, and a not unfrequent payment is 16s. annually. This constitutes an amount of payment which is trifling to those who think that Masonry holds out "great material benefits," and the consequence is that we are now initiating those who never were intended for Masonic lodges, whose very callings are precarious, and who inevitably, within a few years, more or less, come upon our general charitable resources and our particular charitable Institutions. At this moment, and under our present system, there seems to be no possible limit to prevent a further pressure on all our charitable resources, a pressure which leads to continual increase of our charitable "supply," and yet which does not seem to touch the charitable "demand." We then beg to commend to the careful consideration of our superiors this very important point, the opportuneness and need of change. As is always true, much may be said on both sides, and we do not advise hurry or recommend the legislation of "panic," which seems to be the controlling movement of some recent unadvisable changes suggested in our great Educational Institutions. What we hope is this, that Grand Lodge will appoint a committee to consider the whole question, fully and dispassionately, and that then we may, after clear discussion make the alteration alike needed and imperatively called for, for the stability and safe progress of our estimable and useful Fraternity.

AN IMPOSTOR, MASONIC CHARITIES AND ITINERANTS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I have read with pleasure the letters in your impression of the 25th ult. bearing above headings, and signed "P. N., P.M. 303 and 126," and "Almoner." Annually examining a great many such cases as they refer to, I can fully bear out what these brethren say as to the need of greater caution. I am glad to say that out of several hundred cases I have only been imposed on once by an unworthy brother, and on finding him so reported the matter to his lodge. I have only come across one real impostor, who had got large sums from lodges here on the faith of a diploma, on examining which (under a manifesting glass) I found had several important erasures so as to suit the applicant. This impostor's career I stopped by impounding the diploma, and forwarding it to our R.W. Bro. the Grand Secretary of Grand Lodge of Scotland.

As to Bro. "Almoner's" experience of applicant's diffidence in letting communications being made to their lodge, I have only once come across such a case, and before the applicant declined to allow me to do so, I had come to the conclusion he was not in good standing in his lodge, and Bro. "Almoner" may rest assured the diffidence arose from the same cause.

Bro. "Almoner's" schedule is good to keep but not to publish, as every member of the applicants lodge would know the initials.

As it may assist some brother, I give you my course of proceedings:—

1. To examine most carefully but never to reply on certificates, as I regret to say deceased brother's certificates are sold, and I always, when I can, buy and destroy them.
2. To examine as to cause of misfortune.
3. To examine fully as officers of lodge and locality, so as to test local knowledge.
4. To examine Masonically.
5. Inform applicant I shall telegraph to the Secretary of his lodge as to his standing, and give applicant (if satisfied with his case) enough to maintain him until answer to telegram received. The answer to telegram is always received within the shortest possible time. I have never come across a refusal to reply or a delay.
6. If a mechanic wanting to return home, have him seen to the place of departure, hand to him his ticket and enough to maintain him during the journey.
7. On receiving answer to telegram write sender a full statement of the case.

Some of the cases have been most interesting, I hold numbers of letters of thanks from brethren delivered as also from their lodges after their return home. In one case the amount was refunded me, which I at once reported to answer of telegram.

I remain, yours fraternally,

A QUERY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
As a subscriber to your paper may I ask you kindly to inform me whether a member of a lodge, being a P.M., but not the "Immediate P.M." of that lodge has a right to wear his blue collar and Past Master's jewel suspended to it at ordinary lodge meetings. If he have Provincial Grand Office, he, of course, wears the dark blue collar, &c., &c., but, in the other case, is the wearing of light blue collar only restricted to the officers of the lodge for the time being.
Yours faithfully and fraternally,
A PROV. S.G.W.

[A P.M. is always a P.M. as long as he is a subscribing member of some lodge, and has a right, of course, to wear his jewel on all occasions.—Ed.]

MASONIC COURTESY.

Dear Sir and Brother,
By the proceedings of a recent Masonic meeting (which need not be named) I was forcibly reminded that some remarks under this heading had appeared in your columns. On searching my file of the Freemason I find the following letter in your number of 5th October, 1878:—
"As Freemasons we profess often a good deal; I fear that, like men in general, even we Freemasons are not exempt from the veriest littleness of humanity. Indeed, how could such exemption be expected? To say the truth, I fancy that if the veil were lifted which hides much of our Masonic life from the public gaze, we should be found to be equally susceptible, as other mere mortals, of all those passions which dominate the human will and agitate the human breast.
"For instance, in courtesy due to another, we are often gravely and greatly wanting, sometimes most markedly so, and though, as a Freemason, I am taught not to be uncharitable in thought, word, or deed, I believe that I am correct in my assertion. I cannot shut my eyes to acts which amongst ourselves are almost a ludicrous reflection on our noisy professions, and too often demonstrate in the culprits a weakness both of the head and the heart.
"I might say more, but I beg to day to subscribe myself,
"Yours fraternally,

"MASONIC COURTESY."

A reprint of this for the benefit of all whom it may concern may not be unseasonable.
Yours fraternally,

BYE LAWS OF THE A. AND A. RITE, ORIENT OF PHILADELPHIA, &c. Sherman and Co., Philadelphia, U.S.

This interesting little compilation takes us back to 1781, and shows that at that period a lodge of perfection was at work in Philadelphia. The actual history of the A. and A.S. Rite is still veiled in somewhat of obscurity. In Kenning's Masonic Cyclopaedia will be seen the latest collection of historical authorities on the subject. The German view, as propounded by Bro. Findel, seems to be this, that the A. and A.S. Rite, as now practised, is of American formation, and was brought back in its "fulness" to France from America about the beginning of this century; and to that view Mackey seems also to have joined himself. They appear to base their arguments on the fact that only twenty-five degrees were known to Stephen Moir. But in Kenning's Masonic Cyclopaedia (see A. and A.S. Rite) it is clearly pointed out, such is only an ex post facto assumption, the post hoc propter hoc. That the separate grades from the twenty-fifth to the thirty-third existed in France, and Germany, and Switzerland, and were practised, some of them at any rate, in England before 1800, admits, it is clear, of certain proof. That the Thirty-three Degrees were formed into a consecutive system openly and formally in Europe before 1800 is no doubt a very debatable proposition. And as truth generally lies, if not "at the bottom of a well," at any rate "between two extremes" it is not incompatible with "historical evidence and accuracy, that the Americans may have formulated into one consistent whole those various grades, which from the 25th of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, form the 33 degrees now in existence. But the value of this little work is great as independent testimony, confirming the existence of the American growth of the A. and A.S. Rite, after the transmission through Steven Morin, for on this fact all seem to agree. We thank sincerely our kind friend and correspondent (E. C. E. Meyer) for sending us this little volume.

CHARITY EDIFIETH: A Sermon preached before the P.G.L. of Norfolk, by H. T. GRIFFITHS, B.A., P.G.C. Norwich, Miller & Co.

We like much Bro. Griffiths modest but masterly sermon. It is alike effective and edifying, and thoroughly Masonic in tone and teaching. He draws out the argument from his text clearly and forcibly, and it will, we fancy, prove as acceptable to its readers as to its original hearers. We commend it warmly to the notice of the Craft.

AMABEL VAUGHAN, and Other Tales. By Bro. EMRA HOLMES. Lake and Lake, Truro; George Kenning, 191, Fleet-street, London.

We feel that the motive for the publication of the second series of Bro. Emra Holmes's contributions to serial literature, (assistance to a decayed brother), is almost a bar to criticism; but in saying this we do not wish our readers to suppose that we are anxious to be critical or cynical, captious or complaining. On the contrary, independently of its mission of charity, the little work may claim perusal on its own merits, and for its own sake. All occasional contributions which are notoriously, as they must be, "pieces d'occasion," often "pan out" unsatisfactorily, and incompletely when reproduced in later years. What pleased at the moment our lighter hours pleases us no more to-day, and, as Dr. Johnson said, "success produces satiety, and reflection causes weariness." Still, with this reserve which we find needful every day, we are glad to welcome this little work of charity and an effort of Literature. Bro. Emra Holmes, well known to the readers of the Masonic Magazine, and to those (though in less degree) of the Freemason, has for some time devoted his pen to much of our Masonic passing literature, and not without success, not without pleasure to his readers. Amabel Vaughan comes then forward under very favourable auspices, and we trust will commend itself to the kindly feelings and literary tastes of the Order.

THE EAST ANGLIAN HAND BOOK AND AGRICULTURAL ANNUAL. W. Seman, Argus Office, Norwich.

This well known and useful annual comes before us in its twentieth appearance, and may well be noted and highly commended. Among its unusually interesting contents may be noted the following papers:—"East Anglian Farming in 1878," by C. S. Read, M.P.; "About British Agriculture," by J. J. Mechi; "A Hundred years ago," by Charles Sulley; "A Good Rat Story;" "On the Application of Chemistry to Agriculture," by Dr. Drinkwater; "Fish Farming," by J. H. Keene; "Snipe Shooting in East Anglia," by J. Manley; "Stanfield Hall," by Edward Delvis; "Norfolk Landowners, Past and Present," by Walter Rye; and "A Fisherman's Log Book," by R. J. Greville Fennell. The little book will repay perusal.

I think it well to continue my list of Masonic books in the British Museum.

The Perjured Freemason Detected; and yet the Honour and Antiquity of the Society of Freemasons Preserved and Defended. By a Freemason. "For Perjury's a blast upon the mind." London: Printed for T. Warner, MDCCXXX. 30 pages, 8vo.

It begins with a short abridgment of the history of Freemasonry down to the present age. 3 p.p.

Then follows "a short entertainment between one of the Masters and a junior member lately admitted," and who is one of the weak brethren mentioned above. This is in the form of a dialogue, and occupies 4 p.p., and concludes part I.

Part II. Begins at p. 12, and treats upon the oaths, and the treachery and perjury committed, illustrating it by another dialogue between a Freemason and one Mr. Samuel Pritchard. The dialogue occupies to p.p. This brings us to p. 23, where begin some remarks upon the preceding dialogue as to Mr. Pritchard's design, and how far the event answered the malice illustrated by an imaginary dialogue with the same Pritchard, which occupies 5 p.p., and brings us to the conclusion, 2 p.p.

MASONIC STUDENT.

Obituary.

BRO. R. W. HAYNES.

We deeply regret to announce the very unexpected death, in his fifty-first year, of Bro. Robert William Haynes, Law Publisher, of Bell-yard, Temple Bar, which occurred at his residence, Shepherd's Bush, at about midnight on Sunday last.

Bro. Haynes was initiated into Freemasonry in the Lodge of Unions, No. 256, in February, 1875, and the following year he was exalted in the Royal York Chapter of Perseverance, No. 7. Although he had not undertaken any office, he was a warm supporter of the Charities, and, indeed, had subscribed to the Boys' School for many years before he entered the Order.

In the lodge, as well as in the chapter, he had won the sincere regard of his brethren; and those who had the privilege of enjoying the private friendship of our late brother have suffered a loss which cannot easily be replaced. As a man of business, he was marked by integrity and perseverance, as a husband and a father, by the most devoted affection; and as a friend, by a warm-heartedness and sincerity seldom equalled and never exceeded.

Bro. Haynes, who was a widower, leaves two daughters to lament their irreparable loss. The funeral will take place at the Brompton Cemetery, on the morning of Saturday, 1st February.

The Quarterly Meeting of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons will be held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Wednesday next at 6 for 7.

n which they had performed their several duties. In Bro. Adams they had not only a careful guardian of their treasures, but from what he had heard from Bro. Driscoll that evening when he went round the lodge to ask subscriptions for one of the Charities, a very munificent donor to the charitable objects of the lodge. Bro. Adams had kindly subscribed twenty-five guineas to the list of the Steward for the last new lodge (Bro. Driscoll), and had placed on Bro. Letchworth's list for the Girls' School, a similar amount. That was the best he could say for the Treasurer, but he thought it was saying a great deal. He trusted that the St. James' Lodge would long have the pleasure of seeing Bro. Adams occupying the position of Treasurer. As regards Bro. Driscoll, all the brethren knew what an excellent Secretary he proved himself. He had a very kind and pleasing manner, and was not at all calculated to let the brethren fall into arrears, should they be so inclined, which however had happily not been the case hitherto. The toast was enthusiastically drunk, and Bro. Adams and Driscoll very gracefully acknowledged, the former observing (that although he was not eager for office, he felt that the lodge was in some difficulty as to filling it, and when one or two of the brethren had requested him to accept it, he was induced, after weighing the matter in his own mind, to yield to their solicitation. His disinclination to become Treasurer arose from the fact that the acceptance of office involved his constant attendance at every meeting, whether it was an ordinary or emergency one, which was a tie upon anyone not to be undertaken without consideration. Yet, when one's services were generally met with that kindness which he had always experienced at the hands of the brethren of St. James' Lodge they became a labour of love and pleasure. The W.M. had been kind enough to allude to him in connection with the Charities. Well, he could only say that it had been his privilege and pride to support the Charities of their great brotherhood as far as he could. He was proud to say he was already a Vice-President of all the Institutions, and it was his desire to make himself a Vice-Patron. He concluded by saying that since the brethren had entrusted him with the taking care of the funds of the lodge he hoped at all times to render a very satisfactory account of them. "The Officers" was suitably responded to by the Senior and Junior Wardens, and by the J.D., Bro. Hobbs. In proposing "The Charities," the W.M., who announced his intention to represent the Girls' School on the next festive occasion, trusted that the brethren would generously come to his aid that he might have a handsome sum on his list. Bro. Adams responded, and, in doing so, remarked that if the W.M. instead of going up for the Girls' School would transfer his labour on behalf of the Boys he (Bro. Adams) would then be willing to head his list with twenty-five guineas. He was quite sure that the Charities had every right to be thankful to the Craft in general for the liberal manner in which they were supported. He did not suppose there was any society in the world which more generously contributed to charitable objects than Freemasons, still he thought the sum might be largely augmented. After a few words from Bro. Driscoll and Letchworth it was agreed that Bro. Cusworth should represent both the Boys and Girls next year. The Tyler's toast was then drunk, and the brethren separated. During the evening Bro. Boulton, Parker, Hobbs, and Oddy enlivened the proceedings with several excellent songs.

PORTSMOUTH.—Landport Lodge (No. 1776).—The third regular meeting of this newly-constituted lodge was held on Thursday, 16th ult., at Freemasons' Lodge, Herbert-street, Landport. The lodge was presided over by the W.M., Bro. Richard John Murrell, who in an exceedingly able manner passed four brethren, and initiated a candidate into the Order. After the business had been concluded in the lodge room, the brethren adjourned to the George Hotel, High-street, Portsmouth, by special tramcar to supper, as they have no accommodation for any banqueting at their regular place of meeting; which, although large enough for a small lodge of thirty members, is totally inadequate to the requirements of so large a body as the Landport Lodge is destined to become. It was constituted on the 20th November, 1878, by seven well-known and distinguished brethren as the founders, and in the short space of two months it numbers forty-two active and enthusiastic brethren. After supper the W.M. eloquently proposed the loyal and Masonic toasts, which were received with great cordiality. Bro. Mark Frost, P.M., P.G. Treas., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," Bro. R. J. Murrell, remarked that he had known him many years, and had ever found him a kind-hearted and genuine Mason, and was very much gratified in attending to witness the admirable working of the W.M., and the other officers of the lodge that evening, auguring well for its continued prosperity. The toast was received with very great enthusiasm, and responded to by the W.M., who in reply said, that the success of the new lodge was mainly due to his worthy brother E. S. Main, P.M., the Secretary, and his esteemed and old friend Bro. J. Lillywhite, P.M., the Treas.; likewise to the indefatigable exertions of Bro. J. Clark, S.W., and Bro. Riddell, P.M., and those joining brethren who had so nobly come forward to disseminate the principles of Freemasonry in the large and populous district of Landport. Some very good songs were sung by the brethren, and a very enjoyable evening was spent over the first lodge supper since the consecration. Among those who attended to support the W.M. were, Bro. J. Clark, S.W.; E. S. Main, P.M., P.P.G.D. of C.; J. Lillywhite, P.M., P.P.G.Reg.; Bro. Riddell, P.M.; E. Smith, Hancox, Russell, Cunningham, Good, Adams, Naylor, King, Kemp, Grant, McKinlay, Cousins, Andrews, Stroud, Hall, Dowse, Niven, and others. Visiting brethren, Bro. M. Frost, P.M., P.G. Treas.; Hayman, J.W. 257; L. Edwards, 342.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of the above lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday, the 22nd ult. There were present, Bro. J. Frost, W.M.; F. Reed, S.W.; W. A. Blackmore, J.W.; P. V. Denham, S.D.; W. J. Huntley, J.D.; and J. G. Carter, C. Digby, A. Mason, J. J. Holland, S. C. Landon, A. A. Denham, and C. M. Monk, of the Earl of Spencer (1420). The brethren had the pleasure of hearing the ritual well rehearsed, Bro. Frost, Carter, and Digby—who are by no means the "three lesser lights"—alternately occupying the chair. Bro. Mason went through the ceremony of initiation, and Bro. P. V. Denham that of passing. Bro. Carter, in a clear and expressive way, delivered the E.A. charge. Bro. Monk and Landon (the former proposed by Bro. Reed, and seconded by Bro. Carter, and the latter proposed by Bro. Huntley, and seconded by Bro. P. V. Denham) were unanimously elected as members. Bro. Reed will be the W.M. at the ensuing meeting.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1056).—The annual banquet of this well-known lodge of instruction was held on Friday, the 24th inst., at the Portugal Hotel. Bro. Leggott presided as W.M. for the evening. Bro. Able officiating as S.W., and Bro. Squirrel as J.W. There was a good attendance of brethren to support the chair, and Bro. Stacey, the popular Preceptor, occupied the seat on the immediate right of the W.M. An excellent dinner having been discussed, with unanimous expressions of satisfaction, the W.M. proceeded to give the toasts of "The Queen and Craft," and "H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England," which were received with enthusiasm. The health of "The Pro Grand Master (Lord Carnarvon), the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers Present and Past," was next drunk. The W.M. then gave the health of "The Visitors." Bro. Hassell responded. He said that he had a peculiar pleasure in being present, as this was the lodge of instruction to which he had been first recommended upon becoming a Mason. He was made by Bro. Foulger, the Treasurer of this lodge, but had never before been able to attend it, as he left London just after being admitted as a member of the Craft. He thanked the W.M. and the brethren for so cordially drinking the health of the visitors, and he had spent a most pleasant evening with them. Bro. Lee and another visitor also acknowledged the toast. Bro. Creak, W.M. of the Bedford Lodge, proposed "The health of the W.M." He had known Bro. Leggott many years ago, when he first came from Yorkshire, and, after losing sight of him for a long time, again met him in this lodge, where he (Bro. Creak) had gained all his Masonic instruction. It was a first-rate lodge, as many brethren could testify. Bro. Leggott was just about to take the chair at his mother lodge, and, with the instruction he had received at the Metropolitan, he was certain to acquit himself well as a good and intelligent Mason. The W.M. thanked Bro. Creak for the very handsome manner in which he had proposed his health, and the brethren for so cordially drinking it. He was glad to see so many of the brethren present, and as to the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, he could not speak too highly of it. He liked the lodge, and always looked forward to coming to its meetings. Before he sat down, he had to propose the toast of "The Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction," coupled with the name of their Preceptor, Bro. Stacey. He had known Bro. Stacey for some years, and a more genial and pleasant Preceptor he had never had the honour of meeting anywhere. Their Preceptor received all the brethren with kindness, and spared neither time or trouble in bringing young Masons well to the front as efficient Craftsmen. He trusted that Bro. Stacey would live many years to instruct them in the science and mysteries of Freemasonry. Bro. Stacey, who on rising to reply was warmly cheered, said that he took a great pleasure in this lodge. He recollected the time when he was the Preceptor of six lodges of instruction, but he never took so much pride in any other lodge of instruction as in this one. The peculiarity about its members was that they were to be found in all parts of the kingdom, and he could hardly go anywhere out of London without meeting brethren who had been as it were his pupils in that lodge. He would remind the brethren that the W.M. and Bro. Snelling, their Secretary, were Stewards of two of the Masonic Charities, and as there never was a time when charitable effort was so much needed in England as there was now, he hoped the brethren would hand their contributions to either the W.M. or Bro. Snelling. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Senior and Junior Wardens," and took advantage of the occasion to plead earnestly for the Masonic Charities. Bro. Snelling, with the permission of the W.M. drew attention to the fact that there was a benevolent fund in connection with the lodge. In three years they had been able to subscribe £610 to the four Masonic Charities, and he hoped that that amount would soon reach £1000, no insignificant sum for a lodge of instruction to raise. The Wardens briefly acknowledged the toast, and "The Health of Bro. Foulger and Snelling, the Treasurer and Secretary," was next duly given and responded to. Other toasts followed. In the course of the evening Bro. Hallam sang several pieces greatly, to the edification of the brethren. Other brethren also contributed to the harmony of the proceedings.

Royal Arch.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—A convocation of this old and distinguished chapter was held on the 23rd ult., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, in the new Masonic Hall. There were present amongst others Comps. Weaver, M.E.Z.; Hill, H.; Cubitt, P.Z., acting J.; Cottebrune, P.Z., S.E.; Lawrence, S.N.; Harrison, P.S.;

Briggs, 1st Asst.; Maclean, 2nd Asst.; Wilson, P.Z. Bolton, P.Z.; G. Everett, M.E.Z. 1381; J. Webb, Ford, Downie, Ambrose, Heyward, T. Bolton, Fountain, J. Jones, Verry, Janitor. Comp. T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, (Freemason) was the only visitor. The minutes of previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. with the assistance of his officers most ably exalted Bro. Bowie, of the Bedford Lodge to the Royal Arch Degree. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place with the following result. Comps. Hill, M.E.Z.; G. Everett, H.; Laurence, J.; Cottebrune, S.E.; Harrison, S.N.; Briggs, P.S.; and Verry, Janitor. The election of Treasurer was postponed. Upon the motion of Comp. Cubitt, P.Z., which was duly seconded and carried unanimously a Past Principal's jewel was voted to Comp. Weaver for his services. Several propositions having been handed in, the convocation was duly closed and the companions adjourned to the banquet. In the absence of the M.E.Z. Comp. Cottebrune, P.Z., presided at the festive board. The customary loyal and Royal Arch toasts having been disposed of, the acting First Principal proposed in very happy terms "The Health of the Exalted" which having been duly honoured, Comp. Bowie, responded by briefly expressing the very great gratification it had afforded him at being present that evening to receive at their hands the privileges of Royal Arch Masonry. He had been highly impressed with the whole ceremony, thanks to the very able manner in which it had been performed by their worthy First Principal and his officers. The toast of "The M.E.Z. elect" followed. Comp. Hill in reply thanked the companions most heartily for the high compliment that they had paid him by unanimously electing him to the position of First Principal. He said he could not hope to carry out the duties as well as many of their old M.E.Z.'s had done but he would do his best, and he hoped to be well supported by the officers. The remaining toasts viz., "The Past Principals," "The Second and Third Principals," and "The Officers," were given quickly and having been duly acknowledged the proceedings terminated.

KENNINGTON CHAPTER (No. 1381).—An emergency meeting of this chapter was held at the Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 20th ult., when there were present Comps. Everett, M.E.Z.; Page, H.; W. Mann, J. and acting S.E.; Speedy, 1st Asst.; Webb, 2nd Asst.; and T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, acting P.S. (Freemason). The visitors were Comps. Mortlock, P.Z. Industry and Faith; J. Bull, Prudent Brethren; Ferguson, Victoria. The ballot was taken for the following candidates for exaltation, and proved in each case to be unanimous:—Bros. Higgins, P.M. 1387; G. L. Everett, 177; Fowler, 1381; C. J. Davies and C. J. Davies, jun., 177; Wood, St. James' Union; Arlett, 869; and E. Chantler, 177. Comp. Downie, Industry Chapter, was also unanimously elected as a joining member. The first five candidates, being in attendance, were duly exalted to the supreme degree of the R.A. The three lectures were most ably rendered by Comps. Ferguson, Bull, and Mortlock. Previously to the closing of the chapter, Comps. Walls and Higgins were appointed respectively to the offices of S.N. and P.S. At the banquet which followed, the following toasts were done full justice to. "The Health of the M.E.Z." was most warmly proposed by Comp. Mortlock, and cordially received. In reply, the M.E.Z. said that although he had had some experience in Craft Masonry, he knew but little of the R.A. degree. He had been twenty-one years connected with the Craft, but only ten years with the Royal Arch. It had been his practice to endeavour to do things well or not at all, and finding that he could not carry out the whole duties of the First Principal that evening, he had called in the assistance of their able Comp. Mortlock, who had discharged those duties most carefully and well. He felt proud at occupying the position of founder and Z. of the Kennington, and he would leave no stone unturned to render it a success. He hoped that they would make every allowance for his shortcomings that evening, and that on future occasions he hoped to be in a position to discharge the full functions of his office to their satisfaction. He believed that in a very short time the chapter would equal in every respect the Kennington Lodge. In conclusion, he thanked Comps. Bull and Ferguson for the assistance that they had also rendered to the chapter that evening. "The Exalted" followed, and drew from each a most excellent response. In giving "The Visitors," the M.E.Z. took occasion again to revert to the services of the three distinguished companions who had honoured the Kennington by their presence that evening. Comp. Mortlock, in the course of his reply, congratulated the chapter upon possessing so good a working staff. It was not to be expected that a new chapter could be entirely worked without some little extraneous assistance. It had afforded him a great deal of pleasure at being present that evening, and the humble efforts that had been manifested by his co-visitors and himself, to render the proceedings a success, had been most cheerfully made. In conclusion, he congratulated the chapter upon the advent of five Exalted, who would, he felt confident, reflect the highest credit upon the chapter of their adoption. Comp. Bull, having replied in similar terms, Comp. Ferguson briefly responded, by endorsing the remarks of the first speaker. It augured well for the prosperity of the chapter when, on such an off night, they could muster five such candidates for admission to the degree. He hoped that each of the exalted would look back with pleasure to that night, and say with pride that he was one of the first to enter the Kennington Chapter, and he (the speaker) hoped that in time they would occupy the Principal's chair. In conclusion, he said that if the members that had been admitted that evening, and those that were coming in, would only manifest the same good feeling that appeared to exist among the founders, the bright future dawning upon the chapter would be still brighter. "The Second and Third Principals" followed, and was duly acknowledged by Comps. Page and Mann. "The Health of the Officers" followed, and was responded to by Comps. Walls and Webb. The first regular meeting of the chapter will be held on the second Saturday in the present month.

Mark Masonry.

HAMMERSMITH LODGE (No. 211).—The installation meeting of this lodge, which has just completed the first year of its existence, was held on the 18th ult., at the Windsor Castle Hotel. There were present amongst others, Bros. Mason, W.M.; J. Baldwin, S.W.; W.M. elect; F. Walters, P.G.I.G., Secretary; Dunham, M.O.; A. Tisley, J.O.; Haynes, S.D.; Goodall, I.G.; Pearson, D.C.; Page, W.S.; Stevens, P.G.J.O.; W. Mann, P.G.R.; Poore, P.G.I.G.; Potter, Tyler; T. C. Walls, J.O. (Freemason). The visitors were, Bros. D. Dewar, P.G.R.; W. A. Barratt, P.G. Organist; and Faulkner, Era. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Stevens most ably advanced Bros. Millis, P.M. Bedford, &c., and Lawson to the Degree of a M.M.M. The ceremony of installing Bro. Baldwin then took place. Bro. Poore being the Installing Master appointed Bro. Dewar, as S.W.; Mann, as J.W.; and Stevens, as D.C. to assist him in the ceremony, which was performed with that strict attention to ritual which is one of Bro. Poore's special characteristics. The addresses were ably delivered by Bro. Stevens. The officers appointed and invested were as follows:—Bros. Walls, S.W.; Dunham, J.W.; F. Walters, Treas.; A. Tisley, Sec.; Barney, R. of M.; Austen, M.O. (by deputy); Haynes, S.O.; Goodall, J.O.; Pearson, S.D.; Graham, J.D. (by deputy); Page, I.G.; Game, D.C.; Millis, W.S.; and Potter, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was well served by Bro. Gibbert and assistants. The preliminary toasts were done full justice to. Bro. Dewar responded at some length on behalf of "The Grand Officers," in which he expressed the great pleasure it had afforded him, as one of the representatives of that body, at being present that day. He believed that the "Hammersmith" had a bright career before it. It was exceedingly well officered, and with the exercise of a little discrimination in the quality of the candidates seeking advancement in it, there was no reason why it should not eventually equal the most prosperous Mark Lodge in the country. In conclusion, on behalf of Bro. Binckes, he expressed that brother's great regret at being prevented through indisposition from attending the installation meeting that day. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M. in very felicitous terms. Bro. Baldwin briefly responded by stating that the duties of the position to which he had that day been inducted would receive his best attention. He had been but a very short time a member of the Mark Degree and consequently it would require him to devote great energy and perseverance to attain a thorough knowledge of his responsibilities but should he fail to come up to their expectation he hoped that they would bear kindly with him and put it down, not to a want of determination on his part to succeed, but to his very recent connection with the Order and consequent non-ability to master its arduous ceremonial. In proposing "The Health of the Past Masters" the W.M. said that on that occasion his remarks would be almost entirely directed to the I.P.M. Bro. Mason, whose qualities and abilities were well known. He was the founder of the lodge and had devoted his best energies to render it a success and that he had succeeded in winning their good opinion was manifested by their unanimously voting him the very handsome jewel which he, the W.M., had great pleasure in then presenting him with. In concluding his remarks the W.M. expressed the great obligations he was under to Bros. Poore and Stevens for their kindness in attending that day to assist in the "working" of the lodge, and sincerely hoped that they would be spared many years to come among the brethren of the "Hammersmith" and take their position as their deservedly popular honorary Past Masters. The jewel, which was of very elegant design, and reflected great credit upon the well-known firm that supplied it, bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the Hammersmith Lodge of Mark Masters to Bro. John Mason, P.M., as a mark of esteem and in recognition of the efficient manner in which he officiated as 1st W.M. 1878." The I.P.M. warmly acknowledged the toast and the gift that accompanied it. Bros. Poore and Stevens also replied by thanking the W.M. for the very kind expressions he had used whilst proposing their health. They hoped that No. 211 would continue to prosper, and that as far as their numerous engagements would permit they would frequently attend the lodge, and render any assistance that might be required of them. The toasts of "The Advancers," "The Visitors," and "The Officers" terminated the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful.

FRIZINGTON.—Henry Lodge (No. 216).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 15th ult., in the Masonic Hall. The members present were, Bros. Geo. Dalrymple, W.M., P.G.J.D.; Jas. Harper, P.M., P.G. Swil. Br.; John Gosdon, S.W.; W. Kennedy, J.W.; Dr. J. J. Lacey, as M.O.; Rowland Baster, S.O.; W. Martin, Treas.; Bryce Craig, Sec.; A. Crawford, J.D.; T. Swainson, Steward; W. Swaith, I.G.; J. Close, Tyler; W. Tremble, R. Wilson, Jos. Merritt, Isaac Mills, Jas. Ramsay, W. Graham, F. Whittle, E. Clarke. There were also two visitors present from Faithfull Lodge, 229, Bros. W. F. Lamonby, W.M. (Freemason); and T. C. Robinson, J.O. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M. vacated the chair, his term of office having expired. At the last meeting, however, Bro. Dalrymple had been re-elected W.M. for the fourth time, consequently the business of the evening was merely of a formal character. The chair was taken by Bro. W. F. Lamonby W.M. 229, P.P.G.A.D.C., and the officers having deposited their collars and jewels in the East, Bro. George Dalrymple, W.M. elect was inducted to the chair of A., and proclaimed by the officiating brother. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Harper, I.P.M.; J. J. Robinson, P.M. 872 (Craft), S.W.; E. Clarke, P.M. 1267 and 1680 (Craft), J.W.; R. Wilson, M.O.; W. Macauley, S.O.; W. Tremble, J.O.; W. Walker, Chap.; W. Martin, Treas.; Bryce Craig, S.C.; F. Whittle, Reg. M.; J. Winter, S.D.; Dr. Lacey, J.D.; J. Back, Org.; I. Cramond, D.C.; A. Crawford, I.G.; J. Jordan, and W. Kennedy, Stewards; J. Close, Tyler. After a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Lamonby, the W.M. proposed as a candidate for advancement Bro. T. Atkinson, P.M. Lodge 872, P.P.G.D.C. (Craft.) The lodge was then closed in form. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent supper laid out in the lodge-room, when a few toasts were hurriedly gone through, under the presidency of the W.M., who, with others, had to leave Frizington by the last train from the benighted region, at 7.20 p.m. Henry Lodge is one of those originally worked under the authority of the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland, under the title of Trinity, No. 27. A charter of confirmation being granted by the M.W. Grand Master of England, in the early part of last year, the lodge was consecrated at Keswick, in July last, when a Moveable Grand Lodge was held there. Henry Lodge is now one of the most flourishing Mark organisations in the Province of Cumberland and Westmorland, and no doubt the principal part of its prosperity is due to Bro. Dalrymple, who, as before stated, has been W.M. four times.

COCKERMOUTH.—Faithfull Lodge (No. 229).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 17th ult., in the Masonic Hall, Station-street, Cocker-mouth. The following members were present:—Bros. W. F. Lamonby, W.M. (Freemason); R. Robinson, S.W.; W. H. Lewthwaite, J.W.; R. Bailey, J.D., as M.O.; R. W. Robinson, S.O.; T. C. Robinson, J.O.; J. Black, Sec., Treas., and Reg. M.; H. Peacock, S.D.; W. Shilton, I.G.; Jos. Hewson, Tyler. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed, which was all the business, two candidates, previously balloted for, not being in attendance for advancement. After the Secretary had been instructed to make up the Grand Lodge return to the end of the past year, inclusive of six certificates for advanced brethren, the lodge was closed.

DUBLIN.—Lodge of Israel (No. 126).—The regular monthly communication of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the 20th ult., in the Grand Lodge room, Masonic Hall. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. Thomas Rice. In addition to the regular members of the lodge, there were present, W. Bros. James C. Meredith, L.L.D., Grand I.G.; and R.W. Bro. R. W. Griffin, P.G.S.B., and Rep. from Grand Lodge of Greece. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The installation of officers for 1879 was then proceeded with, and the following brethren were installed in their respective offices, viz.:—Bros. Krantzeke, as W.M.; Goff, as S.W.; and T.G. Phillips, as J.W. Having been saluted according to custom, they respectively returned thanks. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Rice, the outgoing W.M., for his attention to the affairs of the lodge during his year of office. After some routine business the lodge was closed, and the W.M. requested the brethren to remain for a short time, as some of the brethren desired to evince to Bro. Rice, P.M., their feelings of high appreciation by presenting him with a mark of their esteem and regard. The Secretary, Bro. R. Stewart, read a very handsomely illuminated address, and Bro. Morris Harris, the Senior P.M. of the lodge, handed a beautiful gold Past Master's jewel to Bro. Rice, who thanked the brethren, and read a suitable reply.

ADDRESS.
"Lodge of Israel," No. 126.—Masonic Hall, Molesworth-street, Dublin. January, 1879.

Address to Thomas Rice, Esq., P.M.
Dear Sir and Brother,—
We the members of the "Lodge of Israel," wishing to record our high appreciation of your honourable and impartial qualities as our W.M. for the year 1878, and your uniform kindness on all occasions to every individual member of our Order, and your own lodge in particular, herewith beg you will accept from us a small souvenir on the occasion of your retiring from the honourable and arduous post as Master of this lodge. We take leave to assure you of our sincere regret at losing in you a Master to whom we could always look with confidence and good faith. With a firm and business-like manner of carrying out the duties of your office, you have ever acted towards those under your charge with the most brotherly consideration. We can only add that we hope you will, as a Past Master, help, aid, and assist us in the future, as you have done in the past, so that we may be able to point to you as an honour to the Masonic fraternity.

Wishing you long life and happiness, and that you may be spared to spread the light of Freemasonry, in which you are so great an ornament,
We beg to remain, yours fraternally,
M. HARRIS, P.M., K.B.G.P.

REPLY.

20th January, 1879.

W.M. and Brethren.—
To respond suitably to such an address as that which you have just presented to me is a task to which I feel totally inadequate. I find it almost impossible to select words which would fully convey to you the depth of my gratitude. I assure you I have never experienced such a mingling of feelings as I do on the present occasion—feelings of surprise and thankfulness.

Surprise, when I consider how undeserving I have been of such a mark of favour as you have just evinced towards me. I know of nothing in my conduct, either as a member of the lodge, or as one of its officers, to warrant such an outcome of friendly feeling and regard as you have just displayed by your valuable present.

It would be false were I to deny that I have taken a deep interest in the affairs of this lodge ever since I became a member of it; and to the affairs of Lodge 126, my interest is not confined, for it extends to every institution connected with our Order.

During the years I spent in the several offices of the lodge I felt the spirit of honest and earnest ambition flowing higher and higher as I approached that honourable and responsible position, which I have just vacated, and with that spirit of ambition within me, I became the more conscious of my own weaknesses and shortcomings, when I contemplated the duties and responsibilities of the exalted position of W.M. of the lodge. It needed no such evidence as an address and testimonial to assure me of your personal esteem, and truly Masonic feeling towards me, for these you have constantly proved by the assistance, support, and forbearance, which you so willingly accorded to me during my year of office as your W.M.

It is alone to that support and forbearance, must be attributed whatever small success may have attended the discharge of the duties which devolved upon me. The feelings of thankfulness which so largely mingle with those of surprise, I cannot sufficiently express. I can only give you my word of solemn assurance, that these feelings are genuine and sincere. The kind and too flattering expressions contained in your beautiful address I could not attempt to reply to; but the words of friendship and regard which it contains I will never forget, and I ask you to believe that they are fully reciprocated by me to the members of Lodge 126.

The valuable present which accompanies that address I shall ever guard and preserve for its intrinsic value as well as a memento of the friendly spirit and fraternal feelings which I know prompts you to present it; and I trust it may ever keep me in constant remembrance of the great lessons which are conveyed to the minds of all true Freemasons by the symbolic teaching of the compasses and square.

The feelings of honour and pride with which I shall ever regard the Degree of Past Master, are beyond my power of expressing. This jewel will ever serve to remind me of the pleasantest year of my Masonic career—the year I spent as W.M. of my own parent lodge—the Lodge of Israel, a lodge which has ever held an honourable position amongst the lodges on the roll of the Grand Lodge of Ireland. Although I have served in all the offices of the lodge, and have now surrendered the last and most honourable of these offices, yet my interest in its well being is not diminished. I cannot share the feelings, which I regret, is so manifestly exhibited by many, who on leaving the chair of the W.M. can console themselves with the idea that they have nothing more to do in the affairs and labours of the lodge.

This line of reasoning I cannot adopt, for I am strongly of the opinion that every P.M. should try to be in his place at the lodge meetings, and so endeavour to promote the interests of the lodge, by his presence and advice, and thus afford to his junior brethren the benefit of the experience which by his years of service he has been able to acquire.

My earnest prayer is that the year we have just entered upon may be one of much prosperity to the lodge, and that its meetings may be happily begun, conducted with order, and closed in harmony. That brotherly love may prevail, and every moral and social virtue may cement and unite us. Again thanking you for your valuable present and address.

I remain, yours truly and fraternally,

LORD CARNARVON AND THE NEWBURY FREEMASONS.

On Friday, a deputation from the Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Freemasons, Newbury, No. 574, consisting of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Samuel Hunt; the immediate Past Master, Bro. G. Knight; the Senior Warden, Bro. S. Knight; the Senior Deacon, Bro. Walter Wilson; the Junior Deacon, Bro. W. T. Toms; the I.G., Bro. Plenty; Bro. Richard Ravenor, Past Master, and Bro. George Cosburn, waited upon Lord Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master of the Order, at Highclere Castle, for the purpose of presenting his Lordship with an address of congratulation upon his marriage. The deputation reached Highclere at a quarter to eleven, being received by Mr. Allen, Lord Carnarvon's secretary. Lord Carnarvon, with the Countess, Lord Porchester, and Lady Winifred Herbert, having entered the saloon, Bro. George Knight introduced the brethren, and the Worshipful Master then asked Lord Carnarvon's acceptance of the address, which was read by Bro. Cosburn, in the absence of the secretary, Bro. C. Hopson. The address was as follows.—

"LOYAL BERKSHIRE LODGE OF HOPE, NEWBURY, No. 574.
"To the Right Honourable the Earl of Carnarvon, Most Worshipful Grand Master of England.

"The officers and brethren, in lodge assembled, this third day of January, One thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, unanimously resolved, on the proposition of Bro. Stephen Knight, S.W., seconded by Bro. Richard Ravenor, P.M.:—"That the most hearty congratulations of the brethren be respectfully tendered to your Lordship on the occasion of your marriage." The brethren pray that the Great Architect of the Universe may be pleased to grant to you and yours health and happiness, and that, as a distinguished brother, and also as a highly esteemed neighbour, you may long be spared to enjoy the rich blessings of Divine Providence.

"S. G. HUNT, W.M.

"CHAS. HOPSON, Secretary."

The address was exquisitely engrossed and illuminated and artistically ornamented with Masonic emblems, the square and compasses, with a shield bearing the Borough Arms, appearing beneath the title of the lodge. A red morocco case, suitably lettered in gold, lined with white satin, accompanied the address, both being supplied by Bro. Cosburn, of the Caxton Printing Works, Market-place.

Lord Carnarvon, in acknowledging the presentation said he received with very great satisfaction and gratitude, on behalf of Lady Carnarvon and himself, that splendidly illuminated, and to them most interesting and pleasing, document. He assured them that they should prize it very highly, both as speaking the sentiments of, what he might call by the informal, but nevertheless more pleasant, name of the Newbury Lodge of Freemasons, and also for the kindness and personal feeling which had dictated it. They had been good enough to mention in the address that they presented it to him in his double capacity of a neighbour and also as one holding high office in the Craft, and all he could say was that he rejoiced to welcome them there in that double capacity. As neighbours they had known each other for a great many years, and he believed there had never been any friction or anything that had tended to mar the good intercourse and friendly feeling that had existed between himself and he might say every single person in Newbury, and he hoped that state of things would long continue. There had been repeated occasions on which they had been able to exchange good offices and evince kindly feelings, which had bound them together for so many years, and which he trusted might long last, both on the part of himself and Lady Carnarvon and his family. As regarded their common bond of Masonry, that was as they knew a peculiar bond which he believed to be strong and enduring. Theirs was one of the most ancient and, as he believed, one of the most powerful, wealthy, and prosperous societies in the world, and, as he had often taken occasion to remark at Masonic meetings, if as Freemasons they chose to live up to the standard that was set them, and act in accordance with what they professed, they would not fall very far short of that morality and those duties which were impressed upon them by the highest authority they knew and recognised. As regarded Lady Carnarvon, he tendered her best and grateful thanks for this mark of kindness and goodwill. There were many things in this world which they prized highly, and there was nothing they set so much store upon as the goodwill and friendship of those among whom, and near whom they lived. Lady Carnarvon had had the great happiness in her old home of enjoying the regard, affection, and goodwill of all those among whom she had grown up, and to whom she had been known all her life, and he hoped it would be the same in her new home to which he was sure she brought every good wish and every kind feeling; and he trusted that they and others who through his life had given so many tokens of friendship, goodwill, kindly offices, and sympathy would extend the same through the life of Lady Carnarvon. He thanked the Freemasons of Newbury very much for coming there that day and presenting to them that handsome and valuable document, which they would very much prize throughout their lives.

Bro. Cosburn, on behalf of the brethren, then expressed the hope that on some suitable occasion the noble Earl would honour the Newbury Lodge with his presence.

His Lordship replied that he should have great pleasure in doing so.

The members of the deputation were subsequently invited to partake of luncheon with the Earl and Countess and family.

Lord Carnarvon proposed "Prosperity to the Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Hope," which was responded to by Bro. Hunt, the Worshipful Master, who concluded by proposing "Health and happiness to Lord and Lady Carnarvon," thanking them for the handsome and courteous reception which they had accorded to the deputation.

Bro. Cosburn then proposed "The Health of Lord Porchester and Lady Winifred Herbert.

Lord Porchester replied, and said that it had given him great pleasure to know that the Freemasons of Newbury had paid such a compliment to his father.

The Earl and Countess then took leave of the deputation and withdrew. Mr. Allen conducted the party over the Castle, pointing out the valuable paintings and works of art which it contains.

CONSECRATION OF THE UBIQUE LODGE No. 1789.

The consecration of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 21st ult., at the Café Royal, Regent-street, the future home of all the Royal Artillery Masons within the circle of the Metropolis. The fulfilment of a need long wanted for our gallant brethren who have "Ubique" for their motto, and whose branches, like Masonry itself, spread over the four quarters of the globe, has now been accomplished, thanks to Bros. Ritchie, Weston, and Smythe, household names among the military Masons of the London district, who alone are responsible for the baptism of this Masonic "Woolwich Infant."

The ceremony of consecration was most impressively rendered, and we have only to mention the names of the Right Worshipful Bros. W. Hyde Pullen, 33°, P.G.S.B. of England, and P.D.P.G.M. Isle of Wight; assisted by the Rev. Ambrose, T. Hall, M.A., Chaplain, to the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 259, P.M. 416, and P. Prov. G. Officer for Surrey, who upon this occasion filled the office of consecrating Chaplain, to assure our Masonic brethren of the results produced by their united efforts. To those who have seen the consecration of a lodge, it is totally unnecessary for us to describe it, suffice it to say that the ritual was most elaborate, and splendidly carried out by the consecrating officers. Bro. Weston, P.M. 1536, then installed Bro. Ritchie, and with the usual honours the brother was placed in the chair of K.S. He then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Smythe, S.W.; H. Shaw, J.W.; C. Solbé, Chaplain and Treas.; A. G. Saunders, Sec.; J. W. Kirkbride, S.D.; T. Holleyman, Org.; J. A. Watkins, I.G.; J. McCaffery, D.C.; and J. Lacklanel, Tyler.

Among the brethren present were Bros. W. Ritchie, P.M. 00, who during the ceremony of consecration filled the chair; of S.W.; F. G. Pownall, P.M. 13 and 1536, P.P.G.S. of W. Kent, who filled the Junior Warden's chair; T. D. Hayes, W.M. 913; H. G. Picken, W.M. 1536; A. Bookham, W.M. 604; G. Spinks, P.M. 1536; H. G. Sparks, P.M. 552; C. Hammerton, P.M. 1339; J. L. Thomas, P.M. 142, A.G.D.C. England; C. B. Payne, P.M. 27; A. Penfold, P.M. 913; H. Pryce, D.C. 913; C. Buckland, 1536; H. de Grey, 706; W. Taylor, 1536; G. Smith, 1536; G. Kennedy, Sec. 1536; G. Bugache, 12; E. Palmer, 913; D. Nichols, 12; G. A. Mason, 1636; E. Turner, 1536; Joyce Murray, 1706; Wilson, 1536; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason).

Bro. Weston then finished his arduous duties by giving the charges, and, notwithstanding the fact of his having a most critical audience, fairly and honestly did the work entrusted to him. Bros. Pullen, Hall, Hammerton, Thomas, and Nicholas were then elected hon. members of the lodge, and each returned thanks. Votes of thanks were then ordered to be placed upon the minutes of the lodge to Bros. Pullen and Hall, for their services in consecrating the lodge, and to Bro. Whiston for installing the W.M., which were carried unanimously.

Several nominations were then made for both initiates and honorary members, and the lodge was closed in due form.

The banquet was one of Bro. Nichol's especial efforts, and was a superb illustration of the arts of the cuisine.

After the clearing of the cloth, the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," and in so doing said it was needless for him to say a single word to them in praise of their beloved Sovereign. Her worth and virtues were household words to the whole world, and as military men they above all others were bound to support and strengthen her hands, as their motto said, "all over the world." (Cheers.) As loyal Englishmen and as Masons, he asked them to drink the toast with enthusiasm. (Cheers.)

The next toast was that of the "Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England." The W.M. said they were now about to speak of one who took a great interest in the Craft, and who, in his exalted position had ever been a help and service to them on all and every occasion. There were around him, the W.M., that night, brethren who had had the honour of seeing His Royal Highness in his position, as G.M.; and they could bear testimony to his generous desire to promote the Craft and its interest by his presence and example. (Cheers.) He asked them, therefore, to drink the toast with all the honours it deserved. (Cheers.)

In response to the toast of "Lord Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers," coupled with the names of Bros. Thomas and Pullen, Bro. Thomas said that the eloquent speech of the W.M. had placed him in this position, that he must say something more than had been said, or say nothing at all. (Cheers.) He could only thank him and the brethren for their kind and hearty reception of the toast. In regard to Lord Skelmersdale, he was one of the most generous and amiable of men; kind, courteous, and considerate, and it was with such feelings they always met him, and with which he was always received at Grand Lodge. He could only wish that some of the Grand Officers, whose names were household words in Masonry, had been present that night, to see how their names were honoured by that young lodge. He wished success to the lodge, and its motto, because it was not only the motto of artillery men, but of Masonry "all over the world." (Loud cheers.)

The next toast was that of "The Consecrating Officers," and Bro. Pullen, in the course of a long and interesting speech, returned thanks for the honour paid him and Bro. Hall, giving at the same time, the W.M. and brethren some excellent advice as to the carrying out the duties attendant on their positions, and wishing them every success in their undertaking. Bro. Hall as well replied.

Bro. Weston then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," saying they would find that in placing Bro. Ritchie in the chair as the first Master of the lodge that they had placed the right man in the right place.

Bro. Ritchie said he must use an old hackneyed saying, and own that he could not find words to express his thanks to them for placing him in the chair of such a lodge as the "Ubique," as they had done that day. He should endeavour to uphold the dignity of the position, and at the end of his year of office place it, as it was given to him, pure and unsullied in the hands of his successor.

The toast of "The Visitors" followed, and Bros. Hayes, Picken, Pounhall, and Nichols responded. That of "The Officers," brought Bro. Forsythe to the fore, and in no measured eloquence, but in a strain that held all the brethren, he said he felt himself at a great disadvantage in responding to the toast so eloquently given by the W.M. The many able speeches that had been given that evening by the W.M., Bro. Hyde Pullen, and the other Grand and Provincial Officers, who had honoured the Ubique Lodge by their presence that evening, were so eloquent, that, in fact, he required their sympathy, and a deal of it. In the first place he wished in the name of the officers to return his very sincere thanks for the able manner, the kindness of thought, the delicacy of feeling, and the more than flattering-inequities their W.M. had been pleased to preface the toast with, as well as the flattering reception it had earned at the hands of the brethren. At a time like the present, when they heard of the Great Orient of France (so ably alluded to by the G. Chaplain) and one or two lodges in Brussels and America, who had repudiated that name—the very keystone of all honourable, true, and honest Masonic bodies—from their rituals it was, he averred, the solemn duty of the officers of their infant "Ubique Lodge" to attend to their duties in such a manner as to assist the W.M. in preventing all such from gaining admission into their lodges of England should they have the temerity to attempt it. He had included a few American Masons, but it was nevertheless most gratifying to know that they, the Masons of England, were supported by an array of 700,000 American Masons, who were one with them in all things Masonic. (Cheers.) With the exception named Masonry was increasing throughout the world. That they had upon no light authority. Here our brother paid a high compliment to Bro. Kenning, and his staff, who he declared had done great good in the advancement of Freemasonry, not only by their reports, but by their scientific and historical researches into Freemasonry, as registered weekly by the Freemason, and kindly mentioned the name of Bro. Jolly, who had favoured them with his company at the launching of this "Woolwich Infant," the Ubique Lodge, into the world of Freemasonry. (Cheers.) Referring again to the able and eloquent remarks of Bro. Hyde Pullen, to whom they were indebted for sending forth into the Masonic world—well, to put it modestly, "a thing of beauty," which would, he trusted, be "a joy for ever," he asked to pay, in the name of the officers, an acknowledgment of their indebtedness to their distinguished brother, and to assure him that his head might lie lightly on his pillow, so far as his anxiety was concerned with respect to the punctuality of the officers of their lodge. For was not military time a proverb? That was his guarantee for the anxiety expressed so eloquently and feelingly by their distinguished brother. He said their motto, "Ubique," means in its fullest sense "Here, there, everywhere"—to do this, that, or everything. It was only his modesty that prevented him saying that they stuck at nothing—(cheers and laughter)—and could do everything. (Continued laughter.) Such were the W.M. and officers of their lodge, whose future lustre their W.M. had so boldly and manfully proclaimed was the goal he intended to reach ere his year of office was expired, and it was for them—the officers—to see that nothing on their part should mar this glorious determination. With such a W.M., all things within the grasp of mortals were possible. Then let them brace up for their work. Let "Ubique" be their standard, "Brotherly love" their support, "Charity to all men" their password, and the good fight must end in "Victory! victory! victory!" (Loud and continued cheering.)

The brethren shortly after separated.

Bro. H. B. Marshall, C.C., was on Saturday last unanimously elected Treasurer of the Royal Hanover Lodge, No. 1777, and on Monday last was also unanimously elected a member of the Farringdon Without Lodge, No. 1745.

The installation meeting of the Granite Lodge, No. 1328, takes place on Saturday next, Feb. 8th. Bro. R. Payne, of Lotherby, is the W.M. elect. A report of the proceedings will appear in due course.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.P. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held on Thursday in the board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. H. A. Dubois in the chair. There were also present, Bros. Col. Creaton, W. G. James, E. Peters, Arthur E. Gladwell, J. J. Berry, John A. Rucker, John Mason, Thomas Cubitt, F. B. Baker, Thomas W. White, John C. Stevens, William Stephens, Griffiths Smith, G. Bolton, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Thomas J. Barnes, E. Letchworth, S. Rosenthal, W. F. C. Moutrie, C. J. Perceval, H. Potter, E. Spooner, A. Tisley, F. R. W. Hedges (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes authority was given to the chairman to sign cheques for £1,374 10s. for accounts, and also a cheque for £178 10s. to be returned to the Mansion House Princess Alice Fund, paid by the committee of that fund for the admission of a daughter of the late Captain Grinstead to the school, but the child being above the age within which a child can by the laws of the institution be admitted, the Committee were constrained to refuse her.

A letter was read from Mr. W. J. Soulsby, the Secretary of the Mansion House Fund, in which he expressed the hope that the Committee would see their way to admitting the child.

Bro. Rucker thought that a letter should be written to Mr. Soulsby in answer, regretting the circumstances of the case, but stating that it was a fixed and established law of the institution that a child must be under eleven years of age to be admitted to the School.

Several petitions were received. As some of them were for children who had sisters in the school, the question was put by the Chairman whether they did not come within one of the new laws which prescribe that only one daughter in a family shall be in the Institution at the same time. Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., explained that the new laws were not yet confirmed, and that until they are confirmed the old laws remain in force. This view was admitted, and the petitions received the usual consideration.

One case was admitted by purchase, and one was deferred for a month for further enquiry.

The Chairman then reported, with great regret, two vacancies on the House Committee, by the death of Bro. Benj. Head and Bro. John Boyd.

Bro. Rucker moved that the regret of the brethren on the loss they had sustained be recorded on the minutes.

The motion, having been seconded, was carried unanimously.

The following brethren were then nominated to fill the vacancies:—Bros. Edward Spooner, John Mason, Edw. Cox, Thomas Cubitt, Frank Richardson, Dr. Wm. Holt, and J. A. Farnfield.

The election will take place on the next General Committee.

One child was withdrawn by her father from the list of candidates for next election.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

—The children of this Institution visited the pantomime at the Crystal Palace yesterday, to which they had been kindly invited by the Directors of the Company.

We regret to learn that Lord Leigh, P.G.M. Warwickshire, is confined to his room at Stoneleigh Abbey by an attack of bronchitis.

The Court went out of mourning for the late Grand Duchess of Hesse (Princess Alice) on Wednesday.

The ceremony of Installation of the Principals will be worked at the Domestic Chapter of Instruction, held at the Union Tavern, Air-street, Regent-street, W., on Wednesday evening next at 8.30, by Comp. W. Smallpeice, P.Z. 21.

VEGETABLES ALL THE YEAR ROUND.—It should be the aim of everyone to grow their own vegetables. It is true economy besides being a pleasure. To do so is very simple, and the greatest novice may soon be a good gardener by purchasing "Sutton's Amateurs' Guide in Horticulture," the most practical work on gardening yet published. It should be read by everyone who has a garden, and may be had post free from Messrs. Sutton and Sons, the Queen's Seedsman, Reading, for 15 stamps or for 1s. at all Railway Bookstalls.

The installation meeting of the Cabbell Lodge, No. 807, was held at the Rampant Horse Hotel, Norwich, on Thursday last. Bro. E. Pankhurst was the W.M. installed. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

A Masonic ball in connection with the Friendly Lodge, 1513, and in aid of the Masonic Charities was held at the Public Hall, Barnsley, on Thursday.

We regret to learn that Bro. Captain Bedford Pim, M.P., in descending a staircase on Monday evening last, missed his footing, owing to weakness in the right leg from old wounds, sustaining a very severe compound fracture of the left kneecap. The gallant captain is, we are happy to state, progressing favourably, but the injury is of so serious a nature that some time must elapse before he can leave his bed.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., has been pleased to grant a warrant for the formation of a new lodge, to be called the Coborn Lodge, and to meet at the Bow Vestry Hall. The consecration will shortly take place.

A meeting of the Thistle Mark Lodge of Instruction is held every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Harp Tavern, Jermyn-street, Haymarket. The attendance of Mark Master Masons is invited.

CHILDREN'S IRISH STEW DINNER.—The sight witnessed on Wednesday, last., at noon, at the fifth dinner given by the London Cottage Mission, of 14, Finsbury-circus, E.C., at their Mission Hall, Conder-street, Limehouse, E., to the poor children, will be long remembered. The earnest cry for admission and the great rush was distressing to all engaged in this noble work. Hundreds pressed with plates and spoons in hand. Hunger was depicted on many faces, and the quick way in which they devoured the Irish stew was an additional proof of their sad need. Those who had not been successful in obtaining tickets lingered outside patiently in the cold, waiting with almost despairing hope to be recipients of any that might be left. So heartrending was the scene outside that a second dinner was provided, and even then numbers had to be refused. To carry on this work of charity during the winter months, funds are still needed, and a trifle from each reader would not be missed, but would satisfy the craving hunger of several of these poor children, and would be thankfully received by Miss Napton, 304, Burdett-road, Limehouse, E., and by Mr. Walter Austin, at the office of the Mission, 14, Finsbury-circus, E.C.

Bro. F. H. Cozens, of 21, Treherne-road, Brixton, has the superintendence of the musical arrangements for the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Sleeplessness, flatulency, acidity, nausea, and all dyspeptic indications may be speedily relieved by these famous Pills, of which large quantities are shipped to all parts of the world. The constantly increasing demands for Holloway's medicine proves its power over disease, and its estimation by the public. In weakness of the stomach, in diseases of the liver, and in disorders of the system caused by cold or a sluggish circulation, no medicine is so efficacious, no remedy so rapid, as these Pills, which are altogether incapable of doing mischief. By quickening digestion, they give refreshing sleep, sharpen the appetite, impart tone to the digestive organs, purify and enrich the blood, regulate the secretions, and strengthen the whole physical frame.—[ADV.]

SERVICES OF THE FREEMASONS LIFEBOAT,

ALBERT EDWARD.—The Freemasons' Lifeboat, the Albert Edward, stationed at Clacton-on-Sea, was instrumental on the 24th inst., in rendering most important service to a shipwrecked crew of 14 men, from a large barque, the "Hebe," ashore on the Swin, Middle Sands. The intelligence having been conveyed to the Prince of Wales, H.R.H. expressed, through Col. Dighton M. Probyn, much pleasure and satisfaction at the service rendered by the Lifeboat "Albert Edward," which was presented to the Royal National Life-boat Institution by the Freemasons of England. Through the courtesy of Bro. Richard Lewis, the Secretary of the Institution, we are in possession of, and shall place before our readers next week, a full account of the rescue.

The "Broad Arrow" states that Bro. Dr. Balfour Cockburn has returned to Bangalore from a tour of invaliding and inspection of the military stations of the Nilgubberies and the Western Coast.

Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, M.P., R.W.P.G.M. for Sussex, accompanied by his W. Deputy and officers, will pay an official visit to the Wellington Lodge No. 341, Rye, on Thursday next on the occasion of the installation of Bro. Francis Millom.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This lodge met in great strength on the 28th ultimo at Anderson's Hotel. The officers present were Bro. C. Dairy, W.M.; Rumball, S.W.; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, P.M.; Treasurer; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Mallott, I.P.M.; Heapy, S.D.; Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, J.D.; Clark, I.G.; Tidy, W.S.; Abrahams, A.W.S.; Hopwood, P.P.G.S. of Middlesex, P.M.; Taylor, P.M.; Green, P.M.; Themans, P.M.; Kennett, P.M.; Cobham, and Longstaff, Tyler. The minutes of the previous regular and emergency meetings having been read and confirmed the W.M., with the assistance of the officers, raised Bro. Weedon and Nathan, passed Bro. Kendall, and initiated Mr. Joseph Lloyd, the ceremonies being well performed. The election of Trustees upon the Benevolent Fund was adjourned until the next meeting. Amongst the visitors present were Bro. J. Terry, Sec., R.M.B.J.; F. Walters, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex; Ferguson, P.M., 177; Dean, P.M., 417; Williams, 147; Andrews, 382; Tapp, Eockston; and Prime, Hemming. After the banquet, which was well catered for, the customary Royal and Craft toasts were duly honoured. The health of "The W.M." was ably proposed by the I.P.M. In the course of his remarks he said that Bro. Dairy had been many years among them and was highly appreciated by them all. He believed that the destinies of the Faith were quite safe in the W.M.'s hands, and that the lodge would be represented by him in the same exemplary way as it always had been. It was Bro. Dairy's extreme desire to do his duty well, and that at the end of his year of office it was his intention to leave, if possible, a larger balance in the Treasurer's hands than had ever been held by that worthy official before. There were many ways of economizing the funds of the lodge without unduly stinting the creature comforts of the brethren or the requirements of the charities, and this was the course their W.M. intended to carry out. The W.M., briefly, in reply, thanked the I.P.M. for the very kind manner in which he had proposed his health, and expressed his obligations to the brethren for the very cordial way in which they had received it. He hoped that this year of office would end as prosperously as it had begun, and that when he left the chair he should carry with him the good wishes of every member. In giving "The Initiate," the W.M. earnestly impressed upon the candidate the necessity of carrying out, as far as possible, the good principles of the Order, viz., "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." He assured him that by doing this he would be only exercising that duty which one brother owed to another, or in other or more familiar words, "To do unto others as you would wish others to do unto you." The candidate having responded, the remaining toasts, viz., "The Visitors," "The Past Masters," "The Officers," and "The Masonic Charities" were proposed in brief, though pertinent terms, and having been heartily received and acknowledged, the Tyler was called upon to discharge his duty, and the proceedings terminated.

ST. THOMAS'S LODGE (No. 142).—The installation meeting of this famous old lodge was held last Saturday evening at the City Terminus Hotel. Bro. W. Beattie, W.M., presided, and after the formal portion of the day's work had been concluded, installed in the Master's chair, Bro. Frederic Julius Macaulay, S.W. and W.M. elect. The brethren invested with the collars and jewels of their respective offices for the ensuing year were, Bro. William Beattie, I.P.M.; George Powell, S.W.; the Rev. W. S. Moses, J.W.; W. Batty, P.M., Treas.; H. C. Levander, P.M., (Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes), Sec.; F. Statham Hobson, S.D.; A. V. Haines, J.D.; S. W. Yockney, I.G.; J. Lewis Thomas, P.M., (Asst. Grand Director of Ceremonies), D.C.; F. G. Bailey, A.D.C.; and J. Rawles, Tyler. Bro. Beattie then delivered the addresses, completing the whole of the work in admirable style. The W.M. also invested his officers with the proper formula most fluently and impressively. When the installation ceremony was concluded, the W.M. said the very agreeable duty devolved upon him of presenting Bro. Beattie with a beautiful Past Master's jewel, voted to him by the brethren of St. Thomas's Lodge, in remembrance of the very successful and pleasant year they had had during the time he had occupied the W.M. chair. All he could say at that moment, when placing the jewel on Bro. Beattie's breast, was that worthily indeed had he won it and most worthily did he wear it. Long might he be spared to enjoy the appreciation of his brethren, not only in St. Thomas's Lodge, but among the Craft generally; and he congratulated Bro. Beattie on having received the jewel. Bro. Beattie, I.P.M., in acknowledging the presentation, said it was rather difficult for him to find appropriate words in which to express all he should like to say in return for that beautiful jewel. All the brethren knew how much he appreciated the kindness of the brethren of St. Thomas's Lodge and how much he esteemed and respected every member of it; and he believed that feeling was mutual. He could assure the brethren that the past had been a very pleasant year of office. He had met with kind consideration on the part of every member of St. Thomas's Lodge, and whatever his future lot might be, or wherever it might be cast, he should always look back with feelings of pride and satisfaction to his official connection with St. Thomas's Lodge, more particularly during the past year. Bro. Levander then read the correspondence, among which was a letter he had received the day before from the present W.M., presenting new columns and square, level and plumb-rule for the Warden's chairs, as a token of the very pleasant year he had had as S.W. Bro. Batty, Treasurer, proposed, and Bro. W. Dyott Burnaby, P.M., seconded, that the handsome gift be accepted, and when this motion had been carried a vote of thanks to the W.M., proposed by Bro. Levander, Secretary, and seconded by Bro. Batty, Treasurer, was also carried. Bro. Levander having announced that he had received circulars soliciting Stewards from the Benevolent Institution and the Boys' School for their next festivals, read a letter from Bro. Lambert, P.M., in which he stated that if no other brother offered himself as Steward for the Girls' School festival he should be happy to take that office, and place ten guineas on his list if the brethren of the lodge would make up the amount to thirty guineas; it was resolved on the motion of Bro. Batty, seconded by Bro. F. T. Dubois, P.M., that Bro. Lambert's offer be accepted. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet. Amongst the brethren, who numbered in all seventy-five, who sat down to banquet were Past Masters Fredk. Thomas Dubois, James William Lambert, William Dyot Burnaby, and visitors, W. Ferguson, J.W. 1101; J. S. Tamburni, 33; R. Payne, S.W. 1328; R. R. Davis, P.M. 256; T. H. Edmunds, G.S.L.; F. W. Levander, P.M. 1415; Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. G.M., Middlesex; B. James Fisher, W.M. 444; Thos. Higgs, P.M. 106; C. F. Hogard, P.M. 205; F. W. Percival, 357; E. S. Stidolph, P.M. Chaucer; Thomas Green; F. Pendered, P.M. 33; George J. Byass; John Ferrier, W.M. 957; Henry E. Wallis, W.M. 33; John Strapp, P.M. 33; John Davis, P.M. 33; Capt. J. Russell Clipperton, S.W. 66; James Glaisher, P.M. 33, P.G.D.; John Aird, 259; Col. James E. Peters, P.M. 1460; P.G.J.W. Middlesex; James R. Clinton, P.M. G.S. Lodge; John Davies 76 (Ireland); James Usher Peter de Lande Long, Past Grand Deacon; J. O. Carter, P.P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks, P.M. 209; Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, W.M. 1657; J. Tickle, P.M. 1196; W. Adams, 33; J. C. Park, 33; Daniel Nicholson, P.M. 19; C. M. Dodds, 171; Edward King, P.M. 857; Wilhelm Ganz, P.G. Org.; Geo. W. Dixon, W.M. 865, P.M. 209, P.P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks; Robert Roberts, W.M. 209, P.P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks; P. P. Dickinson, P.M. 1298; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). In proposing the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. said that Her Majesty commended herself to all her people in every relation of life. Independently of politics they looked upon her as the head of the state, as serving a great purpose, doing a great duty, and doing that duty in a most exemplary manner. After the toast of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," had been duly proposed and honoured, the W.M., in giving "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," said he might be allowed this opportunity of suggesting that in addition to drinking his lordship's health as a very great Mason, the brethren might congratulate him upon his recent domestic felicity. He would not venture further to introduce so delicate a subject, but he could not resist the temptation of reminding the brethren that their noble Pro Grand Master had recently been married. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. for Middlesex, in replying to the toast of "The Deputy G.M., and the Rest of the Grand Officers," said he felt great diffidence in replying to the toast when other Grand Officers were present. Whether it was Present or Past Grand Officers they were always anxious to do their duty to the Order in general, and they were happy to find whomever they went that there were others coming on to hold the offices now filled. There were able and efficient brethren round the table, and he hoped some day or other to see them in Grand Office. He had no doubt when they were called upon to fill such office they would perform their duties as efficiently as those who had gone before them. The present officers must pass away at some time, and it was necessary that there should be some ready to occupy the vacancies. Going to another subject it must be superfluous for them to express an opinion as to the working of St. Thomas's Lodge; but he must say that he had seen a great deal of Masonic working, both in England and in other countries, but he had never seen the working, from that of the junior officer to the Master in the chair, done so fairly, clearly, and without any hesitation whatever as he had that evening. It must be satisfactory to every one present. Those brethren who belonged to the lodge were accustomed to it, and it was nothing new to them; but the visitors would agree that there were few instances when they had witnessed such perfect working as they had that evening. The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the Visitors," with which he coupled the name of Bro. James Glaisher, P.G.D., said that he was happy to think, that on most occasions of the lodge's meetings they had visitors present. On no occasion was it more agreeable to him than now. The presence of visitors was a sign of that hospitality which should prevail throughout the Craft. He had had the great honour and pleasure of being a visitor at other lodges, and he knew the gratification derived from such visits. He trusted that those visitors who had honoured the lodge with their presence that evening would have the same feeling of gratification which he had experienced when he visited other lodges. The visitors that evening were very numerous; their name was legion; but whatever number might be present the brethren welcomed them heartily. Bro. James Glaisher, P.G.D., replied, and said that looking around the table he was almost inclined to use the word legion that had been suggested as being the true representative of the number of visitors to this lodge; but he that as it might, he thanked the lodge in the name of every brother now standing up, for the favour the lodge had done them by giving them that opportunity of seeing the excellent working of the lodge, and partaking of its hospitality. He had ever held that as lodges were naturally limited in number, it was most important that there should be a free intermingling of the one with the other, and as he had held that opinion how gratified must he be that evening in seeing that St. Thomas's Lodge had followed it up to perfection. He recollected that when he had the honour of being present last year there were nearly as many visitors as now. The members of the lodge therefore did a good piece of Masonic work in inviting brethren of other lodges to see their working, because by that free intercourse of lodges the working of all was brought more and more into harmony. It was alike in all essentials. In no part of the country to which he went was there a fundamental difference. Whether in Scotland or Ireland, although there were some differences in the system, essentially it was all alike; but the more the different brethren met together the better it would be for the Craft, that it might be not merely like, but like in reality, and that, he thought, was a very important thing. The W.M. had spoken of the pleasure it had given him to visit other lodges, and he (Bro. Glaisher) thought he might say for all the visitors present that they had experienced the same pleasure in visiting St. Thomas's Lodge, and hoped that even again the same opportunity would be afforded them. Bro. W. Beattie, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said he was sure the toast would be received with enthusiasm and acclamation by all the brethren. They were well aware that Bro. Macaulay was not an amateur at working. He had worked at the junior offices, and as he had qualified himself more and more he had gained the esteem and affection of the brethren of the lodge in proportion. He prognosticated for Bro. Macaulay a happy, prosperous, and beneficial reign while he occupied the chair of K.S., and he was sure he would, to the best of his skill and ability, carry out in their integrity every thing that fell to the office of W.M. Bro. Macaulay was well known to all the members of the lodge, and to most of the brethren present who were visitors, and he, Bro. Beattie, was sure that the whole of the company would join with him in drinking with all sincerity to the health of the W.M. and to his having a happy and prosperous year, hoping that at this time next year they might feel that he had performed the duties of his office with satisfaction to himself and advantage to the lodge. The W.M., in reply, said he begged to thank the brethren most heartily for the very great honour they had done him in responding so unanimously to the sentiments of his kind friend, the I.P.M. He felt that in much that Bro. Beattie had said of him he had been too promising; but as he should desire to do, not only for St. Thomas's Lodge in particular, and the Craft in general, all he could, though his poor powers were very limited; still, to the best of his ability, they were at the disposal of the brethren. He felt that he might have applied to himself that morning the words of the great Psalmist, "I am small and of no reputation;" but to the brethren of St. Thomas's Lodge he was indebted that night for a high place. His trust and hope were that he might not be found wanting in his attempt to do his duty by the Craft and by St. Thomas's Lodge. He had a very perfect recollection of his initiation in this lodge, and of being seated between the W.M. and Bro. Glaisher on that occasion. He had never forgotten the kind words addressed to him then as the initiate; they were deeply engraven on his mind, and in addition to that he had had most excellent friends in the several Masters who had preceded him in the chair. Whether in geniality, in perfect efficiency, in regularity of attendance, in hospitality or in any other essentials, he had had such excellent examples that they could not possibly be lost on a mind such as he hoped he possessed, that was imbued with Masonic principles. With those feelings he hoped the brethren would allow him to thank them, and to offer them one and all the right hand of fellowship, the perfect essence of which they, no doubt, understood. Having said this much on behalf of himself and of his occupation of the chair, he would add in reference to what his kind friend, Bro. Beattie, had said as to not only the probability but certainty, (if he might be spared) of retirement to the rank of the honourable band on his left, that he hoped his duty would be done with such skill as to render him worthy of that position. To that end he would work, and with that object he was now before the brethren. Being on his feet he would now economise time by proposing "The Health of the Past Masters," a toast which needed no words to recommend it. The Past Masters were the "elder brethren" to whom the Master must look for counsel and support, for assistance and advice. It was only natural, it was only right and proper that it should be so, otherwise it would not have been so ordained. The Past Masters had evidently been designed for useful purposes; and in St. Thomas's Lodge they carried out those purposes to the fullest extent. They had a bright array of Past Masters in that lodge, Past Masters who were not content with the honours they had attained, but who were regular in their attendance and constant in their adhesion to the Master for the time being. Therefore they deserved the best consideration of the brethren. They were not, like the visitors, legion, but they formed a goodly array. Bro. W. Beattie, I.P.M., in reply, said it was rather a novel position for him to have to return thanks for the Past Masters of the lodge, but he would do the best he could. The W.M. had been pleased to allude to the Past Masters in a slightly facetious manner, and it almost reminded him of Lord Beaconsfield's expression about a stationer who had either retired from business, or from whom business had retired. However, he could not say he had retired from business, because no doubt his services might be required. When they were required he could truthfully say on behalf of himself and the other Past Masters they would be freely and cordially given. Any assistance they could render or anything they could do to maintain the position that St. Thomas's Lodge had achieved for good working or good discipline they would be most happy to do. He thanked the brethren on behalf of himself and the other Past Masters for their very kind reception of the toast, and he hoped that they might for many years have the pleasure of seeing the Master of St. Thomas's Lodge on installation night surrounded by an assemblage as large as, or even larger, than that he now saw before him. The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the Officers," remarked that it had been a great pleasure to him to promote to the different offices brethren who in offices they had already filled showed qualities which entitled them to promotion. The brethren he had appointed had displayed not only efficiency in working but general efficiency and utility. The Rev. W. Stainton Moses, J.W., (Bro. Powell), S.W., having been compelled to leave early in reply, said that all the officers were determined, to the best of their several abilities, to do the work of the lodge with efficiency, so as not to throw any discredit on the high traditions of the lodge. The W.M. would set them an example which they would find it to their benefit to follow. Outside and beyond their offices, the officers of the lodge felt they were united together by a bond of unity, companionship, and fellow feeling, of which the W.M. set them one of the brightest examples. Nothing they could do should be wanting in the fulfilment of the several duties they had to discharge, and if he might go further than this he would say it might be a tradition of St. Thomas's Lodge that there was in it good fellowship and good working, brotherly love and charity, and that being so, the officers would use every effort, that in these respects it should suffer no diminution. The officers also were grateful to the W.M. for giving them the opportunity of carrying those theories into practice, and they wished the W.M. during his year of office health, prosperity, and happiness, and that when he left the chair he would find that the traditions of the lodge had suffered no diminution. Bro. Battye, and Levander, responded to the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary," and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. The evening was enlivened by some beautiful music and singing by Bros. Wilhelm Ganz, P.G.O.; John Hodges, Alfred Kenningham, Joseph Thornton, and Turkey Beal, under the conductorship of Bro. Osborne Williams.

URBAN LODGE (No. 1196).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 28th ult., at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell. Bro. Legge, W.M., presided. Bro. Charles Lacey, P.M., &c., occupied the S.W. chair, and Bro. H. C. Levander, Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes, the J.W. chair. Bro. Webb, P.M., acted as D.C. Among the brethren present were, Past Masters J. Hanson, Richard Henry Marsh, J. Redding, J. Tickle, J. Simpson, R. H. Pearson, Treas.; J. E. Carpenter, Sec.; and visitors:—Bros. W. H. Mulley, P.M. 256; W. Porchison, 12; Geo. H. Carter, 1702; W. R. Smith, 1702; W. J. Murlis, P.M. 1642; W. C. Madder, W.M. 504; W. F. C. Moutrie, P.M. 11; S. H. Parkinson, W.M. 1642; R. Gifford, 784; S. J. Hilliard, P.M. 174; W. Brown, P.M. 1609; Charles Lacey, P.G.D. Herts; George Jones, J.W. 174; F. J. Dellow, 174; W. J. Hunter, W.M. 1677; H. C. Levander, W.M. 1415; S. J. Weston, P.M. 194; W. J. Compton, S.W. 191; C. Rowlands, 1642; W. J. Foster, 19; C. Lee Roberts, S. F. Watts, P.M. 194, and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). The only work before the lodge was the installation, a ceremony which Bro. Legge performed in admirable style, placing Bro. R. H. Blatchford in the chair of the lodge as its Master for the ensuing year. The brethren appointed to office were, Bros. Legge, I.P.M.; J. T. Heath, S.W.; T. J. Eckstein, J.W.; R. H. Pearson, P.M., Treas.; Dr. Carpenter, P.M., Sec.; W. Radbord, S.D.; Chas. Hawksley, J.D.; G. E. Fairchild, I.G.; Tickle, P.M., W.S.; Buck, Steward; Butler, D.C.; and W. Steedman, P.M., Tyler. After the delivery of the addresses the brethren voted ten guineas to the list of Bro. Legge, I.P.M., who stands as Steward for the lodge at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Five propositions for initiation and one for joining were then given in after which the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. As the hour was late when banquet was concluded the speeches were very short. Bro. Legge, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who, he said, was young in the chair and no doubt felt nervous. He hoped, however, that when the lodge met again for installation next year he would feel more easy than he did at present. The brethren would admit that the W.M. had made a very good beginning, and it had been with great pride that he (Bro. Legge) had installed him in the chair. The W.M. had been pleased in the course of the evening to refer to the long friendship that had grown up between himself and him (Bro. Legge) since they were boys together. He (Bro. Legge) looked upon it with equal satisfaction. The field of Freemasonry was a large one, and he hoped the W.M. would look upon his entrance to it as one of the most progressive steps he had taken in a good cause. The W.M., in reply, said he hoped the brethren had overlooked any imperfections they had seen in him, and if they had confidence in him he was sure their confidence would not be misplaced; and if at the end of his term of office, when he hoped to instal his successor, he retired to the position of P.M., he trusted he should carry with him the good wishes of the brethren. It was now seven years since he was initiated in that very room, and on that memorable night he never dreamt he should at the close of his seven years' apprenticeship occupy the chair of the lodge. He had, however, done so, and he was very proud of his position. Bros. Charles Lacey and H. C. Levander responded to the toast of "The Visitors." In proposing "The health of Bro. Legge, I.P.M.," the W.M. said, although he was obliged to make very short speeches, he could not suffer the brethren to depart without returning Bro. Legge their very best thanks for the noble way in which he had conducted the ceremony of the evening. Bro. Legge had been known to the brethren some years, and the longer they knew him the better they liked him. As Bro. Legge had told the brethren, he had known him (the W.M.) many years. He was a very good fellow at heart, though he had some crotchets. Who had not? But they sank into insignificance by the side of his other good qualities. He had now great pleasure in presenting him with a P.M. jewel which had been voted by the lodge, and he hoped, as they went down the hill together, he might for many years have the pleasure of seeing Bro. Legge wear it. Bro. Legge, in acknowledging the toast, said he did not know that he had merited all that had been said, because he held it to be the duty of every Mason who took office to do his utmost to perform the duties of his office properly. He had tried to do so ever since he had been a member of the lodge, and he had tried to do what he had done with goodwill and the utmost zeal. He hoped, as far as he had gone, that he had pleased the brethren, and more than that, that he had done some good to the Institution. That had been his great aim, and it always would be his great aim, and he would recommend those brethren who were coming on to do the same, for it was a little secret in that lodge that until they were in and out of the chair they were nowhere. They had a great deal of work to do, and when they had done it they would find they were just becoming useful in the cause of Masonry. The toasts of "The P.M.s.," to which Bros. Dr. Carpenter and Tickle replied, and "The Masonic Institutions," to which Bro. Legge responded, were then given, and Bro. W. Steedman, P.M., having given "The Tyler's Toast," the brethren separated, after spending a very pleasant evening, which was made additionally agreeable by the singing of some capital songs.

LODGE OF ASAPH (No. 1319).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, on Monday, the 3rd inst. There was a fair attendance. Bro. George Buckland, W.M., presided, and was supported by his officers, Bros. Edward Swanborough, S.W., C. Wellard, J.W.; E. Stanton Jones, Secretary. In the absence of the S.D., Bro. Herr Meyer Lutz took the place of that officer, Bro. Maclean filling the posts of J.D. and I.G.; F. Delevanti D. of C.; C. E. Tinney, Organist; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. The following members were present:—Bros. James Weaver, P.M.; W. A. Tinney, P.M.; J. M. Chamberlin, P.M.; E. Frewin, P.M.; C. S. Jekyll, P.M.; Arthur Thomas, John Wallace, Robert Soutar, Luigi F. Chisholm, 1602 (Freemason). The lodge, which has special power conferred by the Grand Lodge of holding its sittings during the day, was opened at two o'clock. The Secretary having then read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were unanimously confirmed, it was opened in the Second Degree. Bros. Wallis Mackay and H. M. Edsall were examined, and, having very satisfactorily given proof of their claim to preferment, retired, after which the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and these brethren, having been re-admitted, were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons, the W.M. performing the ceremony with that precision and unobtrusive skill which all Freemasons like to see. There being no further business before the meeting, the lodge was formally closed in the Three Degrees, and the brethren adjourned until the first Monday in March.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held in the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on Tuesday evening last. There was an average attendance of both members and visitors. In consequence of the indisposition of the W.M., Bro. Henry Charles Reeves, Bro. Geo. Everett, P.M., kindly officiated as W.M., and was supported by Bros. T. C.

Walls, S.W.; C. H. Köhler, J.W.; W. Stuart, Sec.; H. Speedy, S.D.; W. P. Webb, J.D.; F. Honywell, Org.; and George Longstaff, Tyler. The following members were present:—Bros. H. Higgins, P.M.; W. Morgan, 177; George Hugall, 1539; M. Bellamy, 1367; J. Hardy, 190; A. H. Chisholm, 1602 (Freemason). The lodge having been opened at half-past four in the customary form, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and agreed to. It was then opened in the Second and Third Degrees, Bro. Town being passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, and Bro. Jenkins raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, Bro. Thomas Charles Walls, P.P.G. Org. Middlesex, W.M. elect, was then presented to Bro. Everett, who very efficiently performed the ceremony of installation, after which, the Board of Installed Masters having been closed, the brethren saluted the newly-installed Master in the usual manner. The lodge was then closed in the Third Degree, and the W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—C. H. Köhler, S.W.; H. Speedy, J.W.; E. F. Page, Treasurer; H. Stuart, Sec.; W. P. Webb, S.D.; F. Marsden, J.D.; H. G. Robinson, I.G.; A. Stokes, D.C.; H. G. Stranger, W.S.; John Bolton, A.W.S.; F. Honywell, Org.; and Geo. Longstaff, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in the Second Degree, and on the motion of Bro. W. Mann, P.M., seconded by Bro. J. W. Kock, P.M., it was unanimously agreed that Bro. H. Higgins, P.M., who kindly volunteered his services for the office, should act as Steward to the Girls' School at the next anniversary. It was subsequently agreed that the lodge should give Bro. Higgins 10 guineas to head his list. Bro. H. C. Reeves, I.P.M., then, in very complimentary terms, bore testimony to the skilful manner in which Bro. Everett had performed the duties of Installing Master, and concluded by moving a resolution to the effect that a vote of thanks to Bro. Everett should be recorded on the minutes. The motion was seconded by Bro. Higgins, and having been put to the meeting, was unanimously carried. Bro. Everett very briefly acknowledged the compliment. The business before the lodge being then concluded, it was closed in the usual form, after which the brethren repaired to the banqueting-hall, and sat down to a splendid banquet, presided over by the newly-installed W.M. The customary toasts followed. "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. the Grand Master," "The Pro Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, and the Rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past," having been duly honoured, Bro. Hardy sang the "Village Blacksmith" in capital style, after which Bro. Reeves, I.P.M., said it was a very pleasing duty to him to propose "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Walls had gone through all his offices with the greatest credit, and he now filled the very honourable chair which he (Bro. Reeves) had just quitted, but he was quite sure that the brethren had selected the right man to fill it, and he felt certain that they would have a most successful year under his presidency. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, whereupon Bro. Webb sang the beautiful melody from "Marta" commencing "She Appeared." The W.M., in acknowledging the toast said that by a singular coincidence that very night four years ago he had the pleasure of being initiated into the Kennington Lodge, and he could scarcely realise that, after so short a period as had elapsed between that time and the present occasion, he was presiding over so large and influential a lodge as the Kennington. He might say that when he was initiated, he was so impressed with the principles of the Craft, and the manner in which he was initiated, that he became infatuated with Freemasonry, and within twenty-four hours joined a lodge of instruction, and the result had been that he now found himself holding the high and responsible position of W.M. of the Kennington Lodge. After a few words of encouragement to aspirants to preferment, the W.M. concluded by assuring the brethren that it would be no fault of his if his tenure of office did not prove a successful one. "The Visitors" having been proposed, Bro. Stokes sang "My Pretty Jane" in capital style, after which the most of the visitors gracefully acknowledged the toast. The W.M. next proposed "The Past Masters," and decorated Bro. Reeves with a handsome Past Master's jewel, which the latter, in a few appropriate sentences, acknowledged. All the other Past Masters having also briefly responded the W.M. delighted the company with a capital rendering of the well-known ballad "Love me once again," which was warmly applauded. He then, in very eulogistic terms, proposed "the health of the Secretary and Treasurer," who, in replying, both commented upon the very satisfactory condition of the affairs of the lodge, and assured the brethren that it would be their constant aim to promote its interests in every way they could whilst they continued to act as office bearers. The W.M., in proposing "The Masonic Charities," took occasion to allude to the controversy which is agitating the minds of Freemasons everywhere just now with regard to raising the initiation fee. There was, he said, a gradual access to the numbers of Freemasons without a corresponding increase in the contributions, and, consequently, the demand on the Charities was exceeding the available funds at their disposal. This was a fact that required investigation. It arose mainly from the circumstance that there was not that care taken in the initiation of candidates into the Order that there ought to be. It very often occurred that brethren were made Masons who had no right to be admitted into the ranks of the Craft, and who, after a very short time, came upon the Charities, and, he thought, this practice ought to be religiously guarded against. He was glad to see that the fees were to be increased. He thought the average fee would soon amount to 12 guineas for initiation; but, for his part, he did not think that this sum was sufficient. The three Charities at the present moment were most powerful, and they must not allow Freemasonry to degenerate into a benefit society, for then they would lose the patronage of the highest in the land. It should be pure and cosmopolitan, but not a benefit society. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Mann, P.M., replied, and in doing so, took occasion to point out that during the last year upwards of £40,000 had been collected amongst Freemasons on behalf of the three Institutions, and also so far corroborated the view of the W.M. as to say that those who sought relief were generally men of only two or three years' standing in the Craft. "The Officers" having been drunk and suitably responded to by the Senior and Junior Wardens, the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. All the arrangements for the banquet were most creditably and successfully carried out.

NEW CROSS LODGE (No. 1559).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 1st ult., at the New Cross Hall. There were present, amongst others, Bros. W. A. Simmons, W.M.; Thiellay, P.P.G.S. of Middx., S.W.; L. Beck, P.G.O. of Middx., J.W., W.M. elect; F. Walters, P.P.G.D. of Middx., Treas.; H. Keeble, P.M., &c.; Secretary; Smith, S.D.; Green, J.D.; Cowley, I.G.; Grammant, D.C.; Hubbuck, P.G.S., Hon. P.M. Amongst the numerous visitors were Bros. Bickerton, W.M. 1329; Stephens, W.M. 1475; Isbister, W.M. 1531; Kirk, W.M. 1687; Cooper, P.M. 73; Lightfoot, P.M. 147; Levy, P.M. 188; Burnstead, P.M. 548; Andrews, P.M. 871; Macdonald, P.M. 1158; Moss, P.P.G.R. of Middx., P.M. 1326; Vickery, J.W. 1775; Moffatt, S.D. 1558; Crossland, S.D. 1687; Batchelor, 72; Clark, 79; Long, 1275; Healey, 1348; Dunbar, 1538; Carter, 1687; Livermore, 1687; and T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middx., &c. (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, and the report of the Audit Committee received and adopted, Bro. L. Beck was duly and most ably installed W.M. for the year ensuing by Bro. Hubbuck, assisted by Bro. Cooper as S.W., J. T. Moss as J.W., F. Walters as D.C., and E. Smith as I.G. The impressiveness of the proceedings were considerably enhanced by the organ accompaniments of Bro. Gibbs, P.P.G.O. of Kent. The officers appointed and invested for the year were Bros. Thiellay, S.W.; Smith, J.W.; Walters, Treas.; Keeble, Sec.; Gibbs, Org.; Green, S.D.; Cowley, J.D.; Grammant, I.G.; Moss, D.C.; Macgillivray, W.S.; Hinton, A.W.S. Previously to the lodge being closed, a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hubbuck for his services as Installing Master. The banquet was well served in the large hall, by Mr. G. Leidig, purveyor, of Lewisham High-road. "The Queen and the Craft," "The W.M.G.M.," and "The P.G.M., D.P.M., and the Rest of the Grand Officers," having been duly honoured, the I.P.M. briefly proposed "The Health of the W.M." This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M., in a few well-chosen sentences, expressed the great pleasure it had afforded him at being once more installed Master of a lodge. During his connection with the New Cross Lodge, he had received nothing but kindness and courtesy from its members, and he took that auspicious opportunity of returning them his very sincere thanks for their consideration. He pledged himself that he would carry out the duties of his position to the best of his ability. He had served the office before, and, consequently, was acquainted with the onerous and arduous responsibilities attached to the Masonic chair. In conclusion, he hoped to leave the position in the possession of their fullest confidence, supplemented by an unanimous opinion that he had done ample justice to the lodge, but, as self laudation was no praise, he should bring his remarks to a finish by quoting the homely phrase, "that the proof of the pudding was in the eating." In proposing "The Health of the I.P.M.," the W.M. took occasion, in very feeling terms, to allude to the serious illness that had overtaken Bro. Simmons at the very commencement of his Mastership. He was, however, greatly improved in health, and he hoped that that happy state of things would long continue. It afforded him (the W.M.) the highest possible pleasure in being the vehicle of conveying to the I.P.M. the substantial marks of the esteem of his brethren of the New Cross Lodge, which had taken the forms of a very handsome Past Master's jewel and time-piece. In concluding his remarks, he trusted that the I.P.M. would live many years to come among them as one of their most highly esteemed and honoured Past Masters. The I.P.M., in reply, briefly thanked the brethren for their handsome gifts, and hoped that his health would enable him in the future to devote his energies to the well being of the lodge. That night, twelve months ago, was one of sorrow to him, for he was then dangerously ill, but it was an anniversary now of rejoicing. Notwithstanding the precarious state of his health, he had endeavoured to carry out his duties conscientiously, and as a proof of his interest in the lodge, as one of its founders, he was happy to be in a position to state, that on the next occasion, he should introduce, subject to their approval, four initiates and two joining members. "The Visitors" and "The Treasurer and Secretary" followed. The former toast was acknowledged at length by Bros. Burnstead, Kirk, and Crossland. In introducing the latter toast, the W.M. paid a high compliment to the efficient and zealous services of their veteran Bro. Walters, in the capacity of Treasurer, and eulogised the care and attention bestowed upon the Secretarial duties by Bro. Keeble. This pledge having been acknowledged, the toasts of "The Officers" and "The Masonic Charities" terminated the proceedings. The enjoyment of the brethren was greatly enhanced by the pleasing singing of Miss Moss, of the R.A.M., who was assisted by Bro. Solomon and others. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the first Saturday in May.

ROYAL SAVOY LODGE (No. 1744).—This lodge held a further meeting on Tuesday evening, the 28th ult., at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, under the presidency of Bro. James Willing, jun., W.M. Among the other brethren present were, Bros. John Douglass, S.W.; Clemow, J.W.; Treadwell, Treas.; Stiles, Sec.; Hyland, S.D.; Cook, J.D.; Deller, I.G.; Holt, D.C.; Smith, W.S.; Sella, Lloyd, Barcham, Dovey, Bennett, Merion, Jacques, Callaghan, Armstrong, Philpott, Nixon, and visitors:—Bros. H. G. Buss, Asst. G.S.; J. J. Michael, Thompson, Ravensbourne, H. Stiles, Cooch, Kauffman, and Speedy. The W.M., who was suffering from a very bad cold, raised Bros. James W. Smith and E. Tompkins; passed Bro. W. R. A. Cole; and initiated Messrs. Ben. P. George, John Wells Wheeler, and P. Jagels. The W.M. announced his intention to represent the lodge as its Steward at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of an excellent banquet; after which the usual toasts were honoured.

KENSINGTON LODGE (No. 1767).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held at the Courtfield Hotel, South Kensington, on the 18th ult., under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Read. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and Bros. Duistan and Barclay were examined and approved, and retired for preparation, and the lodge being opened in the Second Degree, they were severally passed to the degree of F.C. The lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, and Messrs. Kirk and Norman were initiated. A proposition for initiation was made, and the W.M. informed the brethren that the Grand Secretary had certified his assent to the bye-laws of the lodge, and that they would be printed and circulated among the members without delay. At the conclusion of the business the lodge, the brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet, prepared by Bro. Silcock. In responding to the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. Read called the particular attention of the members of the lodge to the words of sound advice given by the Grand Secretary at the consecration banquet, that their great aim should be to obtain, as members, men who were worthy of being enrolled in the Craft, and that in his opinion the mere idea of making a lodge great in numbers was a mistake, and that by introducing into Freemasonry men whom they would not care to know otherwise, they would not be doing their duty to the Craft. We understand that Bro. Silcock, the landlord of the Courtfield Hotel, is again seeking a full license for the house, and we hope that he will be successful, as the accommodation of such a house is much needed in the neighbourhood.

ROYAL HANOVER LODGE (No. 1777).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Town Hall, Hounslow, on Saturday, the 25th ult., when there were present:—Bros. H. A. Dubois, P. Prov. S.G., D.P.M., P.Z., W.M.; H. Lovegrove, S.W.; G. Clark, jun., J.W.; W. Ramsey, Hon. I.P.M.; H. B. Marshall, Treas.; W. H. Barber, Sec.; H. Clark, S.D.; C. C. Cruikshanks, J.D.; G. J. Dunkley, Org.; J. Daly, Tyler, and others, with visitors:—Bros. J. W. Baldwin, P. Prov. G.P., and Cannon. Bros. H. B. Marshall, W. Hullis, C. J. Axford, and C. W. G. Wood having been entrusted, were passed to the Second Degree, and the ballot having been taken for four gentlemen, the two who were present, Messrs. Walter S. Dunkley and W. A. Villais, were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. The W.M., Bro. H. A. Dubois, was indisposed, but managed to get through the ceremonies in his usual style, except the passing, which was very kindly taken by Bro. J. W. Baldwin, P.M. After discussing some business matters, the lodge was closed. The next regular meeting will be on the 22nd of March. The brethren partook of refreshment, when the usual toasts were honoured, that of "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master (Col. F. Burdett) and the Provincial Grand Officers" being ably responded to by Bro. J. W. Baldwin, P. Prov. G.P., and the party separated at an early hour.

KENDAL.—Union Lodge (No. 129).—The annual meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held at the lodge-rooms, Stramogate, on Thursday, 30th ult., at three o'clock in the afternoon. The W.M., Bro. Geo. McKay presided, and was assisted by Bros. John Banks, S.W., W.M. elect; Watson, J.W.; John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; John Talbot, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; T. Wilson, P.M.; Hogg, Sec.; Nelson, P.M.; Harrison, Theobald, Gooding, Baron, Taylor, B.J., Atkinson, Medcalf, Winder, and about fifty other brethren. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, the approach at the door of the lodge of the Deputy Grand Master of the province, Colonel Whitwell, M.P., was announced, and on that Worshipful Brother's entrance he was saluted as became his office and rank. The lodge being opened in the Second Degree, Bro. John Banks, W.M. elect, was presented for the benefit of installation, and the ceremony was ably performed by Bro. McKay, who opened and closed the Board of Installed Masters, assisted by Bros. Bowes and Nelson. All the newly-invested officers were placed in their respective situations, and their jewels and duties fully explained by Bro. John Bowes, who also presented the working tools of the Three Degrees to the W.M. At the conclusion of the ceremony the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Commercial Hotel for the banquet. The newly installed W.M., Bro. John Banks, presided, and was supported on the right by the Deputy Grand Master; Bros. McKay, Titus Wilson, Hogg, and others, and on the left by Bros. John Bowes, Holme, Talbot, Wilson and others. The company numbered over fifty. Grace after meat having been said by Bro. the Rev. H. Chaplain, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a most agreeable evening was spent. We are glad to be able to congratulate this old lodge on its increasing vitality. It has always borne a good name for correct working, and now there is a goodly number of efficient Past Masters ever ready to afford instruction to the members in the lower degrees. So mote it be.

Galloway, W.M. 1250. The lodge was opened in due form, when the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and declared to be correctly recorded, Bro. Sec. reported that he sent the W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, an extract from the minutes just read relating to the passing of Bro. Flatan, and read that brother's acknowledgment of the same. The ballot was then taken for Mr. Archibald Crawford, as a fit and proper person, which proved unanimously in his favour, and he being present, was initiated by the W.M. in a manner that called forth the congratulations of the "elder brethren." The working tools were presented and explained by the J.W., Bro. Dr. Young, and the charge was delivered by Bro. Bowes. "Hearty good wishes" were tendered by the visitors, and no other business presenting itself, the lodge was closed.

Pantling was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. Hume here again occupied the chair of W.M., and proceeded to instal Bro. Roberts as W.M. for the ensuing year. On the lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the White Hart Hotel for banquet. The usual toasts were given in good style by the new W.M. Bro. Dick Radclyffe, as on former occasions, gratuitously provided the floral table decorations, and seemed on this occasion, if possible, to exceed his previous efforts.

STOWMARKET.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 516).—The brethren of this lodge held their annual meeting on Friday, the 24th ult. It was numerously attended. Bro. J. W. Sheridan, P.P.G. Registrar, who for the second time has been installed Worshipful Master of the lodge, named Bros. E. Beveredge and Jas. Hughes, his Wardens, and Bro. C. Turner, Senior Deacon. There was a goodly number present, including Bros. J. S. Cockledge, S. H. Wright, C. Turner, W. Ransom, Geo. Tydeman, Rev. Angell, and A. H. Diaper (W.M. of the Lodge of St. George and Corner Stone, London). After two candidates had been initiated, and the usual Masonic business gone through, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment, a banquet having been provided by Bro. Edward Bridges, of the Fox Hotel. After many dainties had been enjoyed various toasts were given, including that of the worthy Secretary, Bro. S. H. Wright, the brethren showing by their demonstration how much they appreciated the long and valuable services of that gentleman. Bro. C. W. Sutton returned thanks on behalf of "The Past Masters of the Lodge," as also did Bros. Ranson, Smith, Peddar, and Gudgeon. Bro. Wright proposed "The Health of their highly-respected Bro. Spencer Freeman," which was responded to by Bro. James Hughes, who spoke of the deep love Bro. Freeman had for Masonry; although from ill-health unable to be present, his heart was in the cause of charity, which was Masonry. After several songs had been sung the proceedings terminated, all trusting that the coming year may be a happy one for their W.M. and brethren.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The January meeting of the above Lodge was held at the Swan Hotel on the 29th ult. The W.M., in consequence of a recent severe family bereavement, was not able to be present, and other brethren were kept away by the severe weather, still there was a goodly number present. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. Sergeant, P.M. and Treasurer, and he was supported by Bros. Prior, P.M., Secretary; Coombs, S.W.; Thody, J.W.; Carter, S.D.; Stafford, J.D.; Verey, I.G.; Canon Breerton, Chaplain; Col. Stuart, P.M.; Cuthbert, P.M.; Green, P.M.; Billson,

P.M.; Cookson, P.M.; and Bros. H. Allen; Foster; Kilpin; Thompson; Whittaker; D. Stuart; Page; Bosanquet, and as visitors, Bros. Usher and Bro. Blackburn, a resident in Bedford. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the Lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Bosanquet was duly raised, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Prior, P.M. The Lodge was then returned in the Second Degree, and Bro. Sergeant, P.M., passed Bros. Page and Dugald Stuart. Our Brother Carter, the S.D., deserves praise for the manner in which he did the duties of his office. Several items of business were disposed of, and upwards of twenty brethren sat down to supper and spent a pleasant evening.

DEVIZES.—Wiltshire Lodge of Fidelity (No. 663).—The annual meeting took place at the Town Hall, on Tuesday the 21st ult., for the purpose of installing as Master for the ensuing year Bro. T. H. After the usual preliminaries the retiring Master, Bro. Burman, duly installed his successor, Bro. T. H. Chandler into the chair of K.S. in a Board of 12 Installed Masters. The new Master appointed and invested the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Dr. Burman, I.P.M.; W. H. Burt, S.W.; H. Howse, J.W.; Rev. H. Richardson, P.M., Chap.; D. A. Gibbs, P.M., Treas.; Wm. Nott, P.M., Sec.; J. A. Randall, S.D.; G. S. A. Waylen, J.D.; S. Badham, I.G.; Thos. Waite, P.M., M.C.; F. S. Hancock, Stwd.; John Hayter, Tyler. Addresses to the officers on their investment were given by Bro. Nott, and the usual addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren by the installing Master. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to the I.P.M. for his conduct in the chair during the past year. Bro. Nott on behalf of his daughter, Miss L. Nott, presented to the lodge a handsome alms bag, which she had worked in velvet and silver. It was accepted with great pleasure, and the warmest thanks of the lodge were ordered to be conveyed to her for the same. Before the lodge was closed the alms bag was sent round as usual, the proceeds on this occasion being devoted to the funeral expenses of Alice McHugh, daughter of a deceased P.M. of this lodge, who, until her death on Christmas morning last, had been for some years maintained by the brethren. After the completion of the business and the closing of the lodge the brethren adjourned to the Crown Hotel, where Bro. Raymond had provided an excellent banquet, aided as usual by liberal contributions of venison and game from Bro. Watson Taylor, of Erlestoke Park. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

NORWICH.—Gabbell Lodge (No. 807).—On Thursday evening, the 30th ult., the brethren of this lodge met at the Rampant Horse Hotel, for the purpose of installing Bro. Pankhurst, as W.M. for the ensuing year. About forty brethren attended, including Bros. George Baxter, Horace Lacey, Butters, Mansfield Bailey, Hunt, Roslin, Barnes, Chambers, Reeve, Dr. James Offord, P. Soman (Norwich Argus), G. Thirkettle, T. Campling, J. W. Taylor, W. E. Provart, R. Baldry, J. W. Lacey, A. E. Atkinson, Green, S. N. Berry, and Madge. Amongst the visitors were Bros. A. M. F. Morgan, P.P.D.G.M.; Barwell, P.G.S.; Moore, W.M. Social; G. C. Riches, P.M. Berry, the retiring Worshipful Master, assisted by Bro. Baldry, P.M., who gave the address in a manner not to be surpassed. Bro. Campling, P.M., acting as Master of the Ceremonies. The W.M. invested his officers as follows:—Bros. A. J. Berry, I.P.M.; S. N. Berry, S.W.; G. Green, J.W.; L. Butters, S.D.; J. Hunt, J.D.; Chambers, I.G.; Madge, Organist; J. W. Lacey, Treasurer; W. Murrell, Tyler; and that indefatigable Bro. G. Baxter, P.M., Secretary. After the installation the brethren sat down to a banquet supplied by Bro. Coleman in his best style, the table being tastefully decorated with plants and flowers bountifully supplied by Bro. Daniels. During the evening the usual Masonic toasts were given, that of "The W.M." with full Masonic honours. The question of the Masonic Charities formed the staple of the speeches—and very rightly too—the P.G. Secretary obtaining numerous promises of support from visiting brethren by his powerful appeal. This province is decidedly waking up to its duty towards our Institutions. We wish Bro. Pankhurst every success during his year of office, and if he follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, Bro. A. J. Berry (who, we may add, was surprised by the presentation of a beautiful Past Master's jewel), the well-working and success of the lodge will be ensured. The pleasure of the evening was enhanced by the excellent singing of Bros. Baldry, Taylor, Dr. Offord, and others. Bros. H. J. Minns and W. N. Smith (of the Cathedral choir), were unavoidably absent.

EAST DEREHAM.—Sondes Lodge (No. 996).—The installation of Bro. J. Whear as W.M. of this lodge was celebrated on Wednesday week at the Eagle Hotel, Host Minn preparing an excellent banquet. The after-proceedings were of a very enjoyable character, the Eagle being "all in a flutter" of excitement till past high twelve.

BRADFORD.—Townley Parker Lodge (No. 1083).—The Festival of St. John was celebrated on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at the Mosley Hotel. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 3.30, by the W.M., Bro. John Wood, assisted by the officers of the lodge. The following visitors were present, representing neighbouring lodges:—J. W. Abbott, 1030; H. E. Clauson, 1077; P. F. Brownbridge, 1459; H. Darbyshire, 581; J. Parker, 993; R. Cauldwell, 1458; J. Bridgford, 1077; W. Dumville, 1011; J. Whittaker, 277; J. Bedford, 581; J. Westall, 852. At 4 p.m. the W.M. elect, Bro. Wm. Hoyland, S.W.; who is also a P.M. of this lodge, was for the second time installed into the chair of King Solomon by Bro. P. M. Cauldwell, 1458, 1011 and 1077. The following brethren were then appointed to the several offices:—Bros. S. R. Brown, S.W.; C. H. Smith, J.W.; John Wood, I.P.M., Treas.; C. Hanmer, (by proxy) Secretary, (for the second year); G. Higham, P.M., as D.C., (by proxy) (being absent through a sudden illness); J. T. Clark, S.D.; J. Dickinson, J.D.; Downs and Ashworth as Stewards; E. Barlow, as I.G.; Blackshaw, as Org.; and J. Sly, Tyler. The address to the Master was ably given by the Installing Master, the address to the Wardens by a visiting P.M. Bro. John Parker, the address to the brethren by Bro. Bridgford, P.M. 1077. Bros. P.M. Darbyshire, Bridgford and the Installing Master, invested the officers with the collars and jewels of their respective offices, when by virtue of the power invested in him the Installing Master closed the lodge in the several degrees, and then adjourned for refreshment. The banquet was well served up by Bro. S. Atherton the host. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were duly given and responded to by the several officers and brethren. Bro. P.M. Coupe in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said it was a great honour to be appointed for the second time in one lodge to the important office of W.M., it said we are satisfied with your past services and we have confidence for the future. After a song from Bro. Wm. Dumville, the W.M., responded in a few appropriate remarks. The toast of the Past Masters was responded to by Bro. Wood, I.P.M. The toast of "The Visiting Brethren" was responded to by Bro. John Parker, P.M. 581, thanking them for the very liberal spread, which, at all times, is well known to be put on the festive board of the Townley Parker Lodge. Bro. Parker reminded the brethren that this lodge was an offshoot of the Lodge of Faith, to which he had the honour to belong, and congratulated them upon the position the lodge had attained, and concluded by expressing a hope that their prosperity might continue, and a desire to see any brother at the next regular meeting of the Faith Lodge. The last toast being proposed, the brethren separated at 10.45, after having spent one of the most enjoyable evenings in the history of the Townley Parker Lodge.

BRIGHTON.—Hova Ecclesia Lodge (No. 1466).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Old Ship Hotel, on Wednesday, 22nd ult., at 5 p.m., and the proceedings were of an unusually interesting character. The W.M., Bro. Capt. Frederick Huth, having opened his lodge, initiated Mr. Charles Walter Kelly, son of the esteemed Vicar of Hove, into the mysteries of the ancient Craft. A thoroughly hard working Master, Capt. Huth spared not himself, but gratified the brethren by his admirable rendering of the "Charge," and exposition of the First Tracing Board. To demonstrate the fact that he was supported by officers, men versed in the ceremonies of Masonry; the W.M. then called upon Bro. Capt. Stratford, P.M. and J.W.; who, having seated himself in the chair of K.S. examined Bros. Alexander S. Price, and Henry E. Price as to their proficiency in the First Degree; finding them perfect, Bro. Stratford, entrusted them with a test of merit and dismissed them for preparation. He then opened the lodge in the Second Degree and proceeded to pass the aforesaid brethren to the degree of Fellow Craft. Capt. Stratford having thus furnished proof of his capacity for work, then gave place to Bro. C. J. Smith, P.M. and S.W., who expounded the Second Tracing Board. This concluded the actual work of the lodge. Few lodges perhaps have been so singularly fortunate as the Hova Ecclesia in possessing members whose practical interest has apparently had but one object in view, that of making their lodge renowned, not only for its "good working," but for its completeness in detail of its furniture, and ornamentation. Consecrated not yet five years back, the lodge, numbering now some thirty-one members, has from time to time received many valuable gifts. At its consecration, a splendid set of silver jewels was presented by the widow of one of the founders of the lodge—one held indeed in "high estimation among his brethren and his fellows"—the lamented Bro. Jabez Gomez. This handsome gift was then supplemented by the presentation of three pairs of gauntlets, by Bro. Capt. McWhinnie. Bro. Capt. Huth signalled his installation by presenting three handsome oak arm chairs for the W.M., S.W., and J.W., next Bro. Capt. Stratford added a beautiful set of tracing boards, with an etasel for their better demonstration, then came Bro. Robert Neil who gave a large tessellated carpet. On this present occasion Bro. H. A. Donett, rose and asked the W.M. to accept a chair, for the S.D. Bro. W. H. Cockburn making a similar request, his chair being for the

J.D., Bro. H. Price adding a chair for the I.G., and Bro. Alexander Price, three chairs for the I.P.M., Chaplain, and Secretary, respectively. All the chairs were made to match Capt. Huth's, and were splendid specimens of work. Bro. C. J. Smith next requested the W.M. to accept on behalf of the lodge a pair of pillars, representing those which of old were wont to arrest the attention of those of our ancient brethren who sought the middle chamber of King Solomon's Temple. Bro. Smith said he had, during the long time it had taken him to hunt up what there was known of the originals, and superintend the production of these, put on paper some notes which the lengthened tale of work during the evening forbade his inflicting upon the brethren on this occasion, but he hoped to find an opportunity in the early future of submitting them to the lodge; and perhaps find them honoured by a place in the columns of the Freemason. These pillars were magnificent specimens, the workmanship affording abundant evidence that in entrusting his designs to Bro. H. Hagher, the son of the respected Tyler of the province, Bro. Smith had been more than justified. Standing upon pedestals, rendered in imitation of red granite, the columns, four feet six inches high and twelve inches in diameter, spring from ebonized bases, and are capped by handsome chafers, the carved work thereon being beautifully carried out, the net work, lilly work and pomegranates being most accurately illustrated, columns and chafers being gilded in such a manner as to represent brass rather than gold. Two globes, celestial and terrestrial fly crown the whole; these were presented to Bro. Smith, by Bro. J. Malby of Little Quen - street, London, and were exquisite samples of his art. The admiration of the brethren was excessive at the impressive appearance of these pillars, which in all stand between eight and nine feet high. Votes of thanks to the brethren who had made the various presentations, among whom Bro. Malby was included, were carried by acclamation, and the W.M. congratulated the lodge upon its good fortune in possessing Masters who evidenced so practically the interest they felt in their lodge. The following were the brethren present:—W. Bros. Capt. F. Huth, W.M.; C. J. Smith, S.W. and P.M.; Capt. Stratford, J.W. and P.M.; Capt. McWhinnie, I.P.M.; W. H. German, P.M., Treasurer; Bros. Rev. E. Richards Adams, Chaplain; H. A. Dowell, S.D.; A. S. Price; Captain Lutman Johnson, D. of C.; W. Toore St. Auburn; T. T. Skipton, Reginald Huth, W. H. Cockburn, J.D.; H. E. Price, Lieut.-Col. G. E. Morley, Capt. Francis Handley, C. W. Kelly, and T. Hughes, Tyler. Visitors, W. Bros. W. R. Wood, P.G. Steward, P.M. 811; Geo. Smith, P.M. 732; E. Folkard, G. Vickers, and H. Hughes.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 609).—There was a very large assembly of brethren at the usual monthly meeting of the members of this lodge, which was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 28th ult. There were altogether nearly 100 brethren present, several of the visitors hailing from a great distance. Bro. Lindo Courtenay, W.M., was as usual in his place, and his officers present were Bros. W. J. Chapman, I.P.M.; J. Bell, P.G.S., P.M.; B. B. Marson, P.P.G.S.B., P.M.; J. McKenzie, S.W.; W. W. Sandbrook, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; J. Atkinson, Secretary (acting S.D. and J.D., in consequence of the absence of the brethren holding these offices); H. P. Squire, J.S., acting I.G.; R. Burgess, Hon. Org.; W. Savage, S.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Mr. John Wainwright, Mr. F. J. Stimson, Mr. George Henry Parezo, (professionally known as Dixon, of Mason and Dixon), Mr. Walter Hemming, (professionally known as Witty Watty Walton), and Mr. Henry were duly initiated into the Order, and seven candidates were passed to the F.C. degree. Bro. P. Lowndes, Hon. Treasurer of the recent dramatic performance at the Royal Amphitheatre for the decoration of the banqueting-room of the Masonic Hall, reported that there was likely to be a nett balance for the purpose, of upwards of 100 guineas, after paying all expenses. Bro. Marson, P.M.; and Bro. J. M. Boyd, an indefatigable and esteemed private member of the lodge, were unanimously elected Auditors of the performance accounts. The W.M. said the House Committee had shown a disposition to absorb the money in the proposed general scheme of decoration, apparently forgetful of the promise given to the members of the Dramatic Lodge when the subject of the performance was first mooted, that they would be allowed to entirely decorate the room indicated, at their own expense, and according to designs approved by the House Committee. It was unanimously resolved that the money realised on the occasion of the performance at the Royal Amphitheatre (of which the W.M. is one of the lessees) should remain in the bank to the credit of the lodge until the Committee allow the original understanding on the matter to be carried out. It was agreed on the motion of Bro. A. Woolrich, Treasurer, seconded by Bro. J. Bell, P.M., to invest the S.D.'s chair with a life governorship (in perpetuity) of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, as the outcome of recent private subscriptions by the brethren of the lodge. "Hearty good wishes" were given by the representatives of about twenty lodges, and the business closed in peace and harmony. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting room, where they secured as much social enjoyment as the miserably cold, cheerless, and comfortless nature of the apartment would allow poor shivering Masonic humanity. There were a few speeches of the standard kind, and recitations and songs were furnished by several members, including Bros. R. J. Roberts, F. J. Stimson, Dr. Johnson, Woodend and Howard (of the Tynwald Lodge, Isle of Man). Bros. R. Burgess and J. Skeaf, P.G.O., provided the accompaniments for the "songists," and the meeting closed shortly after seven o'clock.

BRIGHTON.—St. Cecilia Lodge (No. 1626).—On Tuesday, 21h ult., additional interest centered in the annual meeting of this lodge, in consequence of an official visit by the E.W. Prov. G. Master, Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., attended by the officers of Provincial Grand Lodge. The proceedings took place in the Royal Pavilion, and at the close of the business a splendid banquet was provided for near 100 guests in the banqueting-room. Bro. C. Sandeman was duly installed as Master for the year, the ceremony being performed very ably by Bro. J. Eberall, who vacated the chair, and to whom was presented a Past Master's jewel for his services. The officers appointed were as follows:—Bro. Eberall, I.P.M.; W. T. Nell, S.W.; S. T. East, J.W.; H. Payne, Treasurer; A. J. Hawkes, Secretary; R. T. Nye, S.D.; E. J. Pope, J.D.; W. H. Gibson, D.G. W. Roe, Organist; Smithers, Std.; W. R. Wood, I.C.; and Bro. T. Hughes, Tyler. The lodge closed at 8 o'clock, and soon after the "refreshment" of the inner nan commenced, Messrs. Sayers and Marks discharging the duty of caterers with marked success. Among the guests were the E.W. Prov. G. Master and the Deputy Prov. G. Master, Bro. J. H. Scott, Bro. H. Davey (Mayor of Brighton and P.M. Royal Brunswick); John St. Clair, W.M. 1722, Prov. J. G. Warden; Cave-Brown-Cave, P.G. Chaplain; R. Crosskey, P.G. Treas.; V. P. Freeman, P.G. Secretary; W. Hale, P.G.S.D.; Mark B. Tanner, P.M. 811, J.G.D.; C. Tomlinson, P.M. 811, P.G. Supt. Works; J. M. Kidd, Prov. G.D.C.; W. G. Sharp, P.G.A.D.C.; Jo. Farncombe, P.G.S.B.; A. King, P.G. Org.; W. T. Bayliss, Royal York; S. T. Ridley, Royal Brunswick; W. J. Smith, Royal York; H. N. Jenner, Royal Brunswick; G. D. Legge, Royal Jublee; R. Willard, Royal Brunswick. Among those present were nearly all the members of the St. Cecilia Lodge, and over thirty Past Masters of various lodges in the province.—The customary loyal and Craft toast were honoured as is the custom in the Craft, Bro. Kibe responding as a Past Officer of the Grand Lodge of England on behalf of that august body.—The W.M. gave "The Health of the Prov. Grand Master," and said the province of Sussex was particularly fortunate in having so popular and energetic a chief. Sir Walter Burrell, in responding, spoke in flattering terms of the excellent working in the St. Cecilia Lodge, the admirable manner in which the books were kept, and the general management of its affairs. Bro. M. Davey, Mayor of Brighton, in giving "The Deputy Prov. G. Master and the rest of the Provincial Officers," spoke of J. H. Scott as a most efficient lieutenant to an excellent captain, who had associated with him a body of officers who were of the highest Masonic distinction in the county. The toast was suitably acknowledged, as was also that of "The W.M.," proposed by Bro. Eberall. Other minor toasts followed. The speeches were interspersed with some excellent songs and glees by Bros. S. H. Soper, E. Broadbridge, Mellion, W. Roe, G. Cole and Boxall. The accompanists were Bros. Kibe, S. Gates and W. Roe. The former gave two of his brilliant pianoforte solos, and received enthusiastic applause. The installation of the St. Cecilia Lodge was one of the most enjoyable Masonic gatherings which has taken place in the provinces for some time.

BRIDGEND.—Ogmore Lodge (No. 1752).—An ordinary meeting of this young and flourishing lodge was held on Monday, the 27th ult., when the Deputy Prov. G.M. of the province, Bro. Marmaduke Tennant, paid the brethren a visit. The lodge was opened at 6 p.m., and immediately raised to the Second Degree, when several brethren were passed, the ceremony being ably performed by the Master of the lodge, Bro. J. Sim Woolley, Prov. G.D.C., who subsequently lowered the lodge, and initiated four candidates to the E.A. Degree. Some propositions having been disposed of, the lodge was closed in ancient form. The members and visitors afterwards met at the festive board, and after Bro. B. Williams's catering had been fully appreciated, several toasts were proposed. The D.P.G.M., in acknowledging the hearty way his health had been drunk, congratulated the Master on his excellent staff of officers, and from what he had seen, predicted a creditable future for the lodge. To the toast of "The Visitors," Bro. E. Sladen, of Indefatigable Lodge, 1523, and Bro. Jno. Rees (Silurium), replied. The Deputy Prov. G.M. proposed "The Officers," coupling with the toast the names of Bros. Pennington, J.W., and Hemming, Secretary. The latter proposed "The Health of the Treasurer," and expressed a regret, in which he was sure the lodge fully joined, that Bro. Podmore was about resigning his post on leaving for Yorkshire. The toast was suitably acknowledged by Bro. Podmore, who tendered his good wishes for the future of the lodge. The proceedings were varied by the songs of Bros. Collier, Perry, and J. H. Thomas, I.G. The monthly meetings of this lodge have been changed from the third to the fourth Monday.

INSTRUCTION.
WANDSWORTH LODGE.—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday, the 29th ult. Bro. F. Reed was the W.M., but, after ably working the First Degree, he resigned the chair to Bro. W. A. Morgan (the esteemed W.M. of the 1044). Bro. C. Digby afterwards presided, when he rehearsed the Third Degree (Bro. F. Reed being the candidate) in a very impressive and correct style. The S.W. was Bro. A. A. Denham, and the J.W. Bro. P.V. Denham. The other brethren present were Bros. H. R. Jones, J. Frost, W. Marshall, J. G. Carter, and C. M. Monk. Bro. A. A. Denham proposed, Bro. Carter seconded, and it was carried nem. con., that Bro. Marshall be elected a member. The Secretary (Bro. Denham) will be the W.M. at the ensuing meeting.

KENDAL.—Kendal Castle Chapter (No. 129).—The annual convocation of this chapter was held at the Chapter Rooms, Stramongate, on Thursday, the 30th ult., at one o'clock. In the unavoidable absence of the M.E.Z., Comp. Joseph Bintley, through domestic affliction, the first chair was occupied by E. Comp. John Bowes, P.Z., P. Prov. G.S.N., as Installing Principal, who was supported by E. Comp. Colonel Whitwell, M.P., P.Z., Prov. Grand H.; John Holme, P.Z., Prov. Grand J.; Titus Wilson, P.Z.; John Talbot, H., Z. elect; Geo. McKay, Prov. G.S.E., J., H. elect; Nelson, P.S., J. elect; Banks, Taylor, Bell, and a goodly number of other members. The chapter having been opened by the Principal, assisted by other distinguished members of the proper rank, the rest of the companions were admitted, and the minutes of the last convocation read and confirmed. E. Comp. Bowes then proceeded to install the Principals for the ensuing year, viz.,—E. Comps. Talbot, McKay, and Nelson, each being presented by E. Comp. Titus Wilson, P.Z., Treas. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the subordinate officers were invested, and the usual proclamation, salutations, and greetings were observed. The proceedings were closed with the ancient benediction by the Installing Principal. We regret to observe that several exaltations were of necessity postponed for want of time, as the Craft lodge held its annual meeting in the same room at three o'clock. We would recommend that in future, exaltations due should be cleared off at a chapter of emergency, held prior to the annual convocation, as it is scarcely ever convenient to take them on the same day.

SHEERNESS-ON-SEA.—Adams Lodge (No. 6).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Victoria Hall-buildings, Banks Town, on Thursday, the 29th ult., for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, and, no doubt, it was very pleasing to the brethren, to see among the members of the lodge, Bros. The meeting was then closed in due form and with solemn prayer, when the brethren adjourned to the Britannia Hotel, where a most excellent dinner was provided by Mrs. Green, with her acknowledged taste and skill. After grace and the cloth removed, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts of the Mark Degree. In returning thanks for the G. M. Lodge, Bro. Binckes earnestly advocated the true principles of charity, and gave an account of our noble Masonic Institutions, and their probable future; also Bros. Spears and Finch responded on behalf of the Prov. G. Lodge of Kent, and expressed their regret that, through a prior engagement, the new D.G.M. was unable to attend. The W.M.'s health having been proposed by the I.P.M., and most fraternally responded to by the brethren, he replied and said he felt it a great honour to be installed the W.M. of Adams Mark Lodge, and he could sincerely say that nothing should be wanting on his part to make his year of office a successful one. Feeling certain he should receive the same kind support from the P.M.s. as others had done before, it afforded him much satisfaction in proposing their very good health, which was suitably responded to by P.M. J. Bagshaw. The W.M.

next gave "The Officers of the Lodge," and said he had no doubt he should receive their hearty and cordial assistance in carrying out the duties of the lodge, coupling the name of Bro. J. T. Nixon, S.W. with the toast, who in replying assured the W.M. that he and his brother officers would render him all the assistance that lay in their power. With several pleasing songs, the evening was spent in peace and harmony.

DEAR AND CHEAP VEGETABLES.—The Pall Mall Gazette of January 18th mentions that in a suburb of London the following prices are charged for vegetables:—Carrots, 1d. each; turnips, 1/2d. each; parsnips, 1/2d. each; savoy, 2d. each; potatoes proportionately dear. These exorbitant prices should induce all who have a spare piece of ground to grow their own vegetables. Messrs. Sutton & Sons, the Queen's seedsmen, Reading, supply collections of vegetable seeds for the amateur's small garden at 12s. 6d., 15s., and 21s. each, the latter collection carriage free; while those who prefer making their own selection can have all seeds sent free by post (except peas and beans) on receipt of order. "Sutton's Amateur's Guide in Horticulture," which contains full particulars as to when to sow, what to sow, and how to sow, may be had post free for 15 stamps, or for 1s. at all the railway bookstalls. Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1879.

OUR NEW W.M.'S.

Our lodges have recently been very busy, and still are, and still will be, for a short space, in installing the new Masters for 1879-80, and we cannot but earnestly express the hope that the choice has been wisely made, and on public grounds alone. Just now an incompetent W.M. is a sorry sight, a great anomaly, and we wish we could think that neither private partiality nor unreasoning cliqueism had anything to do with the elevation to the Master's chair, and that public running and private worth were the sole claims and conditions of high office. No doubt in this, as in other matters, the public opinion of the Craft, and the good sense of the brethren are rendering such elections amongst us a test of merit and a proof of duty. Still, as here and there, the old heresy lingers, we feel constrained to "testify," once more to-day, against possible abuses and probable laxity in this respect. Now, we admit at once, if even the sternest censor taking the high Masonic moral line disapproves, that lodges have a right, if they so think, to elect a brother whose social position gives a sort of prestige to the lodge itself, especially in the eyes of the world profane. We can quite understand such a position, and make allowance for it, but then a lodge can only do that once in its existence; if it repeats the "little game," it sows broadcast the seeds of its own eventual disruption and dissolution. But, with this one exception, we contend that the Master should be the most skilled brother attainable, a "bright Mason" technically, morally, and one who is not ashamed to do his own work, who is willing to learn, able to instruct. To put a mere "parrot" or an "automaton" into the Master's chair is, to use an old simile, as if you planted a birch broom in the ground and expected it to blossom and to bloom. And not only must the W.M. be an "expert Mason," he must be a "fair man," a just man, a brother in whose decisions all can confide, to whose ruling none can properly object. As long as he is W.M. and in the "curule chair," he must sink his individuality in that of his office, and should never forget that just as he presides over "work," so is he the interpreter of "law," and is bound to give a courteous hearing, and ensure just rights and liberty to all. It is always a pitiable sight when a W.M. hurries over business, slurs over difficult questions, and rules out discussion, simply because "it is late," or because the complaisant Steward has announced "dinner on the table." We know of few more important positions than that of W.M., in which more good or more evil may be done, and, therefore, we desiderate in all lodges a selection of the W.M. on the true principles of Freemasonry, namely, merit, character, and ability.

THE POWERS OF A QUARTERLY COURT.

As some misapprehension appears to exist on this subject at the various meetings of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, it seems well to point out what are the exact powers of the Quarterly Courts. In the first place they are the Supreme Courts of Appeal and of Legislation. They are completely superior to the General Committee, whose decisions on nearly every subject they can approve or reject, and from their final decision, there is no appeal. They ultimately approve of all the candidates for the number of vacancies, and, in fact, are supreme in all matters affecting the general interests of the Schools. The election of officers, is, however, reserved to the General Committee, except in certain specified cases, where the House Committee appoints, or the Secretary recommends an assistant. Indeed, there are practically no other limits to the powers of a Quarterly Court, except such as the laws of the Institution provide, or the common sense regulations of public meetings prescribe. Some one has been pleased to contend, we believe, that the Quarterly Court cannot order an inquiry as to the laws, appoint a Committee, or receive a report, but that all such arrangements must be left to the General Committee. But we need not point out to our readers that the Quarterly Court can appoint, from its own inherent authority, and from the necessity of the case, any number of committees, and receive any number of reports, and that the General Committee has nothing to do with the matter at all necessarily. Indeed any such view can only be based on a impossibility of interpreting the objects of the laws on the one hand, or pure inability to understand the Queen's English on the other. Any such objection is utterly futile and ridiculous, and can neither could it be seriously made by a sensible person, nor properly entertained by any competent chairman of a Quarterly Court. True it is that under the former laws a notice was to be given in writing at a General Committee of the intention to move a new or alter an old law. But this is done to ensure notice being given, so that no Life Governor need be taken by surprise, and is not meant to detract from, as indeed it could not, the legitimate functions and normal duties of the Quarterly Court. We hope we have heard the last of this "word encing" and "hair splitting" which are a great hindrance to the due discharge of business, and that brethren who are so fond of interrupting the legitimate course of needful "agenda papers," will kindly remember in future that time is precious to all, and that as Freemasons we should be above needless objections, and frivolous fault finding.

WHAT IS THE PRESENT POSITION OF OUR AMENDED LAWS FOR THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOLS.

A very curious and interesting discussion arose at the last general meeting of the Girls' Committee, on Thursday last. Two girls came up on petition for admittance who had sisters in the School, and in the first place it was held that they were ineligible by virtue of the new laws, but, subsequently, it was decided to admit these petitions, as the new laws were not confirmed. As a general rule, as we know, all alterations in laws require confirmation, in some form or other, to prevent mistaken haste or inadvisable impulse, and at the meetings of the special court for the consideration of the amended bye-laws, it was understood, and, in fact, announced, that those laws would be read for confirmation at the next Quarterly Court. Indeed, it is necessary absolutely to do so, as the boys and girls have now different qualifications as regards subscription to the lodge. By the new laws confirmation is necessary, and, therefore, until confirmed, the new laws do not, as is the general case, take effect. But, curiously enough, though it was assumed that there was a confirmation under the old laws there is apparently none, and this alone constitutes one proof, if proof were wanting, how defective on many points the old laws really were. It may be doubted whether we may not now ask, under which law, "Bezonian say," we are, and the response will be somewhat difficult, perhaps, at first sight, as though caution and common sense are on the one side, it is more than doubtful whether the old laws are not really on the other. Hence, being in a "fix," to use a modern slang expression, the best thing to do is to try and get out of it as soon as we can, and we, therefore, are glad to think that until the Quarterly Courts are held, and the new laws are confirmed, we shall give poor petitioners the "benefit of the doubt." There is one point, however, which we think has not been taken into consideration, namely, that the minutes of each preceding Quarterly Court must be read for "confirmation" and not merely for "information," and on confirmation it is within the power of all to move the non-confirmation of any previous resolution, or portion of the minutes. Substantially, therefore, the power exists by the nature of things, though not given in special provision, or by express words. We are aware that some doubts exist on the subject, and that different opinions have prevailed, and much confusion has been created, in respect of the minutes read for "confirmation" and "information." But we are equally clear, that the "right of non-confirmation exists," and that the minutes of each preceding meeting, whether of Quarterly Court, General Committee, or House Committee, must be read for confirmation, (not merely for information), and be confirmed or non-confirmed at the subsequent meeting by the members present. At the Quarterly Court the minutes of the preceding Quarterly Court must be confirmed, though the minutes of the General Committee, House Committee, &c., are read for "information." We hope we have heard the last of this mistaken view of things, as the result has been hasty legislation and overhand treatment of matters, almost without consideration, and certainly without appeal. By the restoration of the undoubted privilege of "confirmation," possible abuses are checked, and matters soon fall into a reasonable and legal groove.

RESTORATION OF ST. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

We are privileged in being able to state, that a meeting of Freemasons, under distinguished auspices, will be held on Tuesday next, February, 11th, at Freemasons' Tavern, in the Ladies Coffee-room, to form a Committee to assist in restoring in whole or in part the West-Face of the Abbey. The chair will be taken at 4.30. This is a subject full of interest to Freemasons.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT ANNIVERSARY.

Before we greet our readers again the Anniversary Festival of this excellent Institution for 1879 will have taken place. We hope that in our next issue we may be able to announce another proof of the unchanging activity of Masonic charity and a happy result to the labours of Bro. Terry, and an unprecedented list of Stewards.

VOTES FOR THE BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOLS ELECTIONS IN APRIL.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—
By your kind permission I am permitted to ask such of my brethren, Life Governors of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, who have not promised their votes and have no special case to support, to kindly spare me such of them as they can at the approaching election. I will only say that they will be gratefully received, and faithfully applied to their destined purpose, by Yours fraternally, A. F. A. WOODFORD.
18, Upper Porchester-street,
Hyde Park-square, W.
February, 1879.

Dear Sir and Brother,
As the time is now approaching for the election of the boys and girls to those celebrated Institutions belonging to the Fraternity, would you allow me to call the attention of the London subscribers especially to two candidates for the Boys' School with their last application each, in order to secure if possible those votes as yet unpledged, in their behalf. The names of the two boys are Christian Frederic Frost and Frank Arthur Giles. The former is one of four children, who has been entirely dependent upon the mother since 1871. The father was a Life Subscriber, and has been Steward for both Institutions; he also held the rank of W.M. and Grand Steward during his eight years of Masonic life.
The father of the latter was 12½ years a subscribing member of the Old Kent Lodge, No. 15; the child is one of four dependent upon a stepmother, the present Mrs. Giles having no surviving issue. These unfortunate ladies appear to have been entirely deserted by the former friends of their late husbands; they have had empty promises and that has been all. Now, brethren, there is an opportunity of showing what London can do, by wiping out the disgrace of the last October election, when out of three candidates on their last application, only one was returned, and that a partially Provincial case. Up to this time these boys have only received ten and three votes respectively, and I trust this reminder will be all that is necessary to give them the benefits of the Institution, to which their father's services so justly entitle them. The London Masonic Charity Association has taken up these cases, and will gladly receive proxies on their behalf. With regard to the girls, there are fortunately no last applications, except those who have already one or more sisters in the School. The case taken up by the Association is, Eliza Emma Williams, whose father is afflicted with that dreadful scourge, insanity.

I remain, dear Sir and Bro., yours respectfully and fraternally,

CHARLES PERCEVAL,
Treasurer to L. M. C. A.

"OLD, BLIND, AND IN WANT."
To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I have the pleasure to acknowledge the under-mentioned additional donations, and desire, at the same time, to mention that I unwittingly scheduled the "Friends in Council Lodge, £5 5s." twice, viz., on December 7 and 21st. The second should have been "Grand Masters." The total sum collected for the poor old lady is £60 14s., and I heartily thank one and all for kind and fraternal help and sympathy, and none more than yourself, through whose charitable courtesy the good has been done.

I am, faithfully and fraternally yours,
JOHN B. MONCKTON.

MASONIC CHARITIES AND ITINERANTS.
To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I certainly think that Bro. James H. Neilson, whose letter appears in your issue of last week, is to be congratulated upon his very successful experience in regard to itinerants, because, as he says, "that out of several hundred cases he has only been imposed on once by an unworthy brother, and has only come across one impostor."

I am sorry to say that my experience has been widely different, for out of every hundred applicants at least twenty have been either unworthy or rank impostors.

Bro. Neilson's course of procedure might do very well for Ireland, but I fear it would not work in England.

His suggestions (Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 are, I think, usually followed, but No. 5 (as to the telegrams) would not be practicable. For instance, during the last twelve months, had I followed the course suggested, I should have had to wire to several parts of England, Scotland, Ireland, America, India, the Cape of Good Hope, Germany, France, Switzerland, &c., which would have entailed some considerable expense. Even supposing I had confined my telegrams to the United Kingdom, I fear I should have had to wait in many cases a long time for replies, as W.M.s. do not often visit the lodge rooms except on lodge nights.

No. 6 is very well in theory but not in practice. Only last week I received a letter from a correspondent, as under, "Have reason to know that Bro. ——— has not gone to Glasgow, although our Tyler bought his ticket for him," and I have known cases where tickets have been obtained to distant places, and the applicants put into the train, which they have left at the first important town on the road, and have positively stated to the parties to whom they applied in the latter places "that they have never been relieved before." In fact, I may say, I can trace many such cases from reports I have received.

Now, what we want is some medium by which lodges, Committees, and Almoners can be put on the alert without delay. It is beyond all reason to expect to do this by circular, and I can only see one channel, and that is by your publishing a sheet with your weekly issue, which, if necessary, could be charged as a small additional subscription, this could easily be pasted in a guard book and indexed, thereby, at once forming a complete reference. I shall be glad if some one will improve upon the schedule in my letter of the 25th ult.

Yours fraternally, ALMONER.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I should feel obliged if you would answer the following questions in your excellent paper:—

1. Are brethren, who have served as Wardens of warranted lodges in other constitutions than the English, entitled to be elected Masters of lodges, or is it necessary to have been a Warden in an English lodge?
2. Would a P.M. of another constitution, who had never been a Warden, be eligible for the Mastership of an English lodge?
3. Is it correct for a Royal Arch Mason to visit a lodge (Craft) in Royal Arch regalia? and would the Master of the lodge be justified in refusing admission to companions in Royal Arch clothing, who are well known to the M.M.?
4. Does the degree of Royal Arch entitle a brother to rank as a P.M. and remain in a lodge during the installation of the W.M.? and what would probably be the penalty imposed by the Grand Lodge on a brother so transgressing?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
F. IRVING DE LISLE, M.D.,
Napier, N.Z., Nov., 1878. J.W. 1577.

[1. No. Yes. 2. No. 3. (1.) Certainly not. (2.) Most certainly. (3.) No. But we fancy this question alludes to a confessed "Crux," very difficult to deal with and decide. By the English law and usage none but "Installed Masters" can form the Board of "Installing Masters," "Passing the Chair," once in vogue, has been wisely abolished. The "comity" of conflicting jurisdictions in the colonies may, perhaps, induce a W.M., (without much actual blame), to allow a P.M. of the Irish jurisdiction for instance, simply "passed the chair," (who can prove himself to be a P.M.), to be present in a Board of Installing Masters. The Degree of R.A. conveys no privilege of a P.M., and under the English laws, on complaint to the Board of General Purposes, a W.M. disobeying the laws would be undoubtedly, we think, suspended "ex officio."—Ed. F.M.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Is a brother who has never filled either of the chairs able to take the W.M. chair as the first Master of a new lodge?

Yours fraternally, SEC.

Feb. 4, 1879.
[Strictly speaking, perhaps not, but we fancy it is sometimes conc.—Ed.]

APRONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,
Will you kindly allow the following to appear in the Freemason?

What authority have we to have the blue edging of our Master Mason's apron two inches deep?

"Nov. 26th, 1728. The Stewards for the year are allowed to have jewels of silver (though not gilded) pendant to red ribbons about their necks, to bear white rods, and to line their white leather apron with red silk.

"On March 17th, 1730. 1. The Grand Lodge (to cure some irregularities) ordered, that none but the Grand Master, his Deputy, Wardens, Treasurer, Secretary, and Sword Bearer (who are the only Grand Officers) shall wear their jewels in gold, pendant to blue ribbons about their necks, white leather aprons with blue silk, which sort of aprons may be also worn by former Grand Officers."

The following is copied from Bro. T. Manningham's, D.G.M., letter to Bro. Saucer, at Haag, 12th July, 1757, which appeared in the Freemason's Magazine and Masonic Mirror of Aug. 15th, 1868, which letter Bro. Hughan well remembers from the part he took in the controversy at the time of its appearance:—

* "The only distinction of ribbons or jewels that we make in our lodges, you will find in our "Book of Constitutions," viz., Grand Officers wear their jewels gilt, pendant on blue ribbons, and their aprons lined with blue; those brethren that have served the office of Steward at our grand feast (from which number all Grand Officers, except Grand Master, must be elected) wear their jewels of silver on red ribbons, and lined their aprons with red; all other brethren wear white aprons, and their jewels pendant on white ribbons, neither are they suffered to wear other jewels than the square, level, and plumb, the compass belonging only to the Grand Master."

The Book of Constitutions edition, 1871, p. 124, after describing the Entered Apprentice and Fellow Craft's aprons, describes the "Master Mason,"—"The same, with sky-blue lining and edging, one-and-a-half-inch deep."

The Grand Steward and Grand Officers have their edging three-and-a-half inches.

Page 125. The Prov. Grand Officers. "The garter-blue edging to the aprons must not exceed two inches in width."

Two inches is also the regulation of the edging in the R.A. apron.

Will some brother who is well versed with the apron be kind enough to give an account of the different styles that it has gone through to the present time. It will be instructive and interesting to many of the readers of the Freemason besides Yours fraternally, R. W. O.

IRISH FREEMASONS' CALENDAR AND DIRECTORY FOR 1879.

As usual this useful and interesting publication deserves the notice of the reviewer and the thanks of Freemasons. To Irish Freemasons it is both valuable and authoritative. Though we fear we are not in much favour (we know not why), in Molesworth-street, we venture to make a suggestion. Why not give the names of all the Irish Provincial Lodges, as well as of the Dublin ones? We cannot understand why not, or why the Irish Provincial Lodges (as in Belfast, for instance) are to be deprived of their names, and only mentioned by their numbers. Though people often ask "what's in a name,"—there is a good deal in it—especially Masonically and in lodge life, and we fancy the little blot only requires to be pointed out to be attended to. We feel sure that such an addition would add greatly to the value of the Irish Masonic Pocket Book, and the convenience of the Irish and English brethren. Bro. Oldham, as the editor, deserves, as we have before observed, both praise and thanks.

LE MONDE MACONNIQUE.

We have received the February number of this Parisian Masonic magazine, and rejoice to see our good old friend and brother, Adrien Grimaux, in great force, if in "bad form." To adopt some words of a recent correspondence in the Times, the brother who expects to test the science of Freemasonry by the charlatany of French Masonic writers just now, like our amiable opponent Grimaux, will surely find no equal antagonist outside a lunatic asylum. Though our worthy confrere attacks the Freemason, "more suo," and talks of the "bile du journal Anglican," (we are, unfortunately, somewhat bilious at times,) we do "not usually employ a "park of artillery to overthrow a house of cards," and we are not "going to be so silly as to dignify" our good brother's tirade, "by any close criticism."

We are amused to find the Monde Maçonnique coming to the rescue of the "Grand Conseil," but we are surprised at nothing. Apparently Bro. Grimaux does not yet realize that the Grand Lodge of England has nothing in this world to do with the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, or that they are two independent bodies. Neither does he apparently value the honest utterance and manly independence of the Freemason, a pure Craft journal. But here we stop. The Monde Maçonnique is otherwise well worth reading.

BRIEF, VOL. II.

We like this new volume of a well-known paper much, and we feel sure that Brief is destined to become a very successful venture. If short, it is always sweet; and if brevity be the soul of wit, Brief has countless claims to commend it to the artist, the student, the professional man, the "fellahs" we daily meet, who read little, and understand less; and, above all, to the family circle. It is very good reading, and improves on longer acquaintance. We can honestly commend it.

SCOTTISH MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1879.

A very useful and well-compiled little book of Masonic information and reference. For Scottish Freemasons it must be often consulted and much valued.

VIVISECTION NECESSARY TO PHYSIOLOGICAL DISCOVERY. By E. WARD. James Burns, 15, Southampton-row.

We never have read a publication with greater pain, and we may add loathing. It is simply a record of unjustifiable experiments, morbid horrors, and, in our opinion, useless cruelty. Its moral appears to be that two American citizens have "done" the police, Mr. Busk, and the Home Secretary. Let us hope that many of the statements in the pamphlet, especially as regards "squaring," &c., must be taken "cum grano salis." We cannot believe that medical science is advanced by such, to us revolting acts.

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. ANDREW'S MARK LODGE, No. 237.

The ceremony of consecration of the above lodge took place on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at the King's Head Hotel, Rochester, with the accustomed solemnities. There was a large attendance of brethren from all parts of the Province of Kent, including many Provincial Grand Officers. Bro. the Rev. W. Sicklemore, Prov. Grand Master for Kent, was not able to be present, through indisposition, but we were glad to learn that much interest had been taken in the formation of this new Mark lodge by the M.W. Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, who, although he could not attend personally, was represented by several of the Grand Officers. The Consecrating Officer was the V.W. Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.W., Grand Secretary; assisted by V.W. Bro. D. Dewar, P.M.O., Asst. Grand Secretary. The clergymen who took part in the more solemn portion of the consecrating duties were Bro. the Rev. C. A. Solbe, Prov. Grand Chaplain; and Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson, Past Prov. Grand Chaplain; the latter delivering an eloquent and deeply learned oration on Mark Masonry and its intimate connection with religion.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of consecration, W. Bro. Capt. George Wattson, P.M., G.J.D., was installed as the First Worshipful Master of the St. Andrew's Lodge, 237, under the registry of the Grand Lodge of England; the following officers were then appointed, for the ensuing year:—Bros. T. S. Warne, S.W.; T. Wyles, J.W.; R. C. Burfield, M.O.; J. P. Griffin, S.O.; J. Willmott, J.O.; Rev. T. Robinson, Hon. Chap.; T. Elliott, Sec.; Lewis B. Biggs, Treas.; Ashdown, S.D.; W. Watson, J.D.; Penfold, D.C.; E. Barrell, I.G.; and J. Oram, Tyler.

Several brethren were then advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master Mason. The inaugurate banquet subsequently took place at the same hotel, at which there was a large gathering of brethren. The usual loyal, Masonic, and other toasts were duly honoured, the entire proceedings of the day passing off in the most satisfactory manner. In honour of this occasion the Mayor, F. F. Belsey, Esq., who is also the Constable of Rochester Castle, gave permission for the city flag, as well as the flag of the new lodge to be hoisted upon the castle from the "Gundulph" Tower, which act of kindness afforded much pleasure to the brethren for the ready manner in which their application was granted.

PROVINCE OF DEVON.

A largely-attended meeting of the officers of the Masonic lodges in Devon was held on Tuesday 21st at Plymouth to consider the propriety of forming a fund for the clothing, educating, and establishing in life of the children of destitute or deceased brethren of the Province. Bro. L. P. Metham, D.P.G.M., presided. It was determined to establish a fund for the purpose named, and a committee, representing various lodges in the province, was appointed to carry out the scheme, to frame by-laws, to call subscribers' attention to the scheme, to receive applications of candidates, to call a meeting of life governors and subscribers within three months, to assist the trustees, and, if practical, to elect candidates. It may be added that subscribers will have one vote for every five shillings subscribed, and a contribution of five guineas annually will constitute a life governorship. The object of the scheme is to supplement the educational facilities of the London Masonic Schools by raising a fund for the education of children in the province without removing them from their friends, and by this means to help many children whom it would be impossible to get into the London Schools. The meeting was very unanimous and hearty on the subject.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

The Quarterly Convocation of Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. The following companions were present:—Comps. S. Rawson, as Z.; Capt. Platt, as H.; Capt. N. G. Phillips, as J.; John Hervey, E.; Erasmus Wilson, N.; Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, P.S.; Rev. C. W. Arnold, 1st A.S.; Henry C. Tombs, 2nd A.S.; Jas. After the minutes of last Quarterly Convocation in November had been read by Comp. Hervey, E., and confirmed, the Report of the Committee of General Purposes was, on the motion of Col. Creaton, President, seconded by Comp. F. P. Morrell, taken as read, and ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

On the motion of Col. Creaton, seconded by Comp. F. P. Morrell, the Grand Chapter adopted the recommendation of the Committee and granted the prayers of the following petitions:—

1st. From Comps. Henry France as Z., John W. Ridsworth as H., Mark Potter as J., and six others, for a chapter to be attached to the Sincerity Lodge, No. 1019, Wakefield, to be called the Sincerity Chapter, and to meet at the Freemasons' Hall, Wakefield, in the West Riding, of Yorkshire.

Permission was also granted to the Hervey Chapter, No. 1260, to change its name to the "John Hervey Chapter," following the permission already given to the "Hervey Lodge" to change its name to that of the "John Hervey Lodge."

Col. Creaton then read the following paragraph of the Committee's report:—

The Committee regret to report the lamented deaths of Comp. Benjamin Head, Past Sword Bearer, an appointed Member of the Grand Chapter Committee, which occurred on the 24th December, and of Comp. John Boyd, P.Z., No. 145, an elected Member of the Committee, which occurred on the 30th December, in whose place Grand Chapter will have to proceed to the election of some other companion.

Comp. Rawson then rose and said—Companions, I am sure you will all join with me in a feeling of regret at the death of these two companions. I do not know whether I shall be in order in proposing from the chair that our regrets be expressed in this Grand Chapter; but I am certain, if I am not out of order, this Grand Chapter will agree most cordially in my own expression and wish, that the minutes of Grand Chapter should record our regret at the death of two companions so highly respected as our Comps. Benj. Head and John Boyd. I will, therefore, move "That the regret of Grand Chapter for the death of Comps. Head and Boyd be recorded on the minutes of Grand Chapter."

Col. Creaton—I shall have great pleasure in seconding it.

Comp. John A. Rucker, P. Soj., thought that a letter of condolence should be written to the relatives of the deceased companions.

Col. Creaton said this was not necessary.

Comp. S. Rawson afterwards announced that the M.E.Z. had appointed Comp. A. J. Duff Filer on the Committee in place of the late Comp. Head.

Comp. William Stephens was elected in the place of the late Comp. John Boyd.

Col. Creaton, said he had received a note from Comp. S. Leith Tomkins, the son of the late Comp. Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer, informing him that the balance due to Grand Chapter by the Grand Treasurer at the failure of the late firm of Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., bankers, had been paid in full from his late father's private estate that day. (Applause.)

Grand Chapter was then closed.

[We understand that the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution and the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys have also received in full, from the private estate of the late Grand Treasurer, the balance due to them by the failure of the bank in which he was a partner.]

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Phillips, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post-free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—ADVT.

The consecration of the Creaton Lodge, No. 1791, will take place on Monday next, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. The Consecrating and Installing Officer will be Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart occupied the chair, and there were likewise present, Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; C. J. Perceval, A. Tisley, A. Durrant, S. Rosenthal, J. G. Chancellor, J. M. Dossell, F. Adlard, H. T. Thompson, W. F. C. Moutrie, Richard Tyrrell, W. Paas W. Hobuck, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason.)

The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. Binckes announced the death of Bro. Benj. Head and Bro. John Boyd.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford then said that he thought it would ill become the brethren, considering the long and valuable services of Bros. Head and Boyd to the Institution and to Masonry generally, and the high respect in which they were held by the whole of the Craft, if they separated without recording an expression of their deep regret at the loss they had sustained by the death of these old and valuable friends. He would, therefore, move "That an expression of the deep regret of the brethren at the death of Bros. Benj. Head and John Boyd be entered on the minutes of this day's proceedings."

The motion was seconded by Bro. S. Rosenthal, and carried.

On the motion of Bro. W. F. C. Moutrie, seconded by Bro. A. Durrant, the Secretary was directed to write a letter of condolence to Bro. A. H. Diaper, the grandson of Bro. Benj. Head, and to Bro. Jermyn Boyd, the son of Bro. John Boyd.

The report of the Audit Committee was read and passed, and ordered to be entered on the minutes.

One candidate was placed on the October election list, and one other was deferred.

An application was read from a former pupil for assistance to enable him to go to the Military College at Sandhurst, his own friends being about to raise some of the necessary funds. As the Committee can only do this to the amount of £20, and this pupil had already received the usual outfit of £5, the Secretary was directed to ascertain whether there was a reasonable prospect of the friends of the pupil making up the whole of the difference between the £15 and the requisite sum, and if so, that a further application should be made to the Committee. The Committee then adjourned.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF HAMPSHIRE AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

The P.G. Treasurer, M.E. Comp. M. E. Frost, having produced his accounts, showing a satisfactory balance in hand of over £60, was unanimously re-elected, and the Auditing Committee were instructed to report as to the amount which should be subscribed to the Masonic Charities.

The Prov. Grand Superintendent invested his officers as follows:—

and on appointing Comp. Hacker, Scribe N., in the name of the Panmure Chapter presented him with a handsome jewel, which had been subscribed for by the members of his chapter, in recognition of his very valuable services in the Order.

The companions afterwards adjourned to the Wellington Hotel, where a first-rate dinner was provided.

THE LIVERPOOL MASONIC HALL COMMITTEE.

The annual general meeting of the above-named committee was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Friday evening, the 24th inst. Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., Chairman, presided. Bro. Coancliff Lunt, P.M. 823 occupied the vice-chair, and there was a numerous gathering of members. The minutes of the previous Quarterly General Committee and of the several meetings of the House Committee were read by the Honorary Secretary (Bro. J. T.

Callow, P.G., Treasurer), and were unanimously confirmed. On the motion of Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, seconded by Bro. G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., Bro. Robert Wylie was re-elected Chairman for the ensuing year. Bro. John Houlding, P.M. 823 proposed the re-election of Bro. Councillor Lunt as Vice-Chairman, a proposition (seconded by Bro. Thomas Salter, J.W. 241) which was carried by acclamation. Bro. J. B. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C., the Hon. Treasurer, submitted his annual statement of accounts, which, after being circulated amongst the brethren, was taken as read. These accounts showed that £43 was derived from the rent of lodges, £105 from chapters, £46 from miscellaneous rents, £41 from lodges of instruction, with other items, made the total income £827 18s. 9d. After paying all demands the Treasurer had in hand about £64 in connection with the Masonic Hall Committee; £43 8s. for the furnishing and decorating fund, and £23 odd for the building fund. The Chairman congratulated the brethren on the highly satisfactory character of the balance-sheet, and trusted that they would be able at the close of another year to show even a larger surplus. The Hon. Treasurer said that the rents of all the lodges had been paid, and the committee at the close of the year did not owe a single farthing. He also said that, as compared with last year, there was a decrease of £23 4s. 7d. in the gas account, in consequence of the alterations in the cooking arrangements. On the motion of Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G., Secretary, seconded by Bro. R. Robinson, P.G., Registrar, Bro. Goepel was unanimously re-elected Hon. Treasurer; and on the motion of Bro. Cottrell, P.M. 823, seconded by Bro. Ballard, P.M. 724, Bro. J. T. Callow was also unanimously re-elected Honorary Secretary.

The brethren then balloted for twenty-one members of Committee, and the following were declared elected:—Bros. J. Pemberton, Dr. Smith, J. Hayes, Ballard, R. Martin, Jan., J. Houlding, A. C. Wylie, D. Jackson, R. P. France, R. H. Evans, J. Hocken, H. Jackson, Cotterell, J. W. Burgess, T. Clark, H. S. Alpass, H. Ashmore, W. H. Cooper, G. Broadbridge, R. Robinson, and H. Firh. Bros. Boulton, H. A. Tobias, W. T. May, and Thomas McCracken, were appointed Auditors for the coming year.

The Chairman, before the conclusion of the business, said he had a very gratifying announcement to make. Bro. McCracken had generously offered fifty guineas towards the general decoration of the Masonic Hall, if the other brethren would personally subscribe the other 200 guineas. (Applause). He hoped a general scheme of decoration would soon be carried out, and that Bro. McCracken's generous offer would induce the brethren to subscribe liberally towards the object in view. (Hear, hear.)

A letter was read from Bro. Major Turner, P.P.G. Treasurer, contributing five guineas, and the following other donations were announced:—Bro. J. Houlding, ten guineas; Bros. Alpass, Dr. Smith, R. Wylie, H. A. Tobias, R. Robinson, and J. R. Goepel, five guineas each; Bros. J. W. Burgess, Pemberton, R. H. Evans, Cooper, A. C. Wylie, and J. T. Callow, two guineas each; and Bros. A. Hart, J. Hayes, R. P. France, D. Jackson, J. L. Houghton, J. Hocken, Webster, T. Clark, Reader, and Ballard, one guinea each. It was incidentally stated that a plan of decoration, which would cost about £1500 to carry out, had been submitted to the House Committee, but this was left over for future consideration.

The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary, and Treasurer, for their services during the past year.

SERVICES OF THE FREEMASONS' LIFEBOAT, "ALBERT EDWARD."

Dear Sir,—
I trust the accompanying communications particularising the important services of the Freemasons' "Albert Edward" lifeboat on the 24th ult. will be of sufficient interest for insertion in the Freemason.
I am, yours faithfully,
RICHARD LEWIS.

The Freemasons' Lifeboat, the "Albert Edward," belonging to the National Lifeboat Institution, and stationed at Clacton-on-Sea, was instrumental, on the 24th ult., in rendering most important service to a shipwrecked crew of fourteen men. Signals of distress were seen from the vessel in question about seven o'clock in the morning, at which time the wind was blowing very strong from the east, accompanied by a heavy sea. The Lifeboat promptly responded to the signals, and on reaching the Swin Middle Sands, she found a large barque ashore there. She proved to be the "Hebe," bound for London with a cargo of timber. The sea was furiously breaking over the unfortunate ship, bumping her on the sandbank, and threatening every instant to destroy her. The crew were huddled together on the port quarter. They had previously lost four boats, and a steamer had tried to save them, but found it impossible to do so, and now they eagerly watched the efforts of their brave rescuers. The Lifeboat had no easy task before it. Three times it was filled with water. Six times the plucky crew strove to get near the wreck and failed. Again they tried, and eleven lives rewarded their perseverance. Then the "Hebe" shifted and the heavy sea and wreckage made it too dangerous to lie by her; but, after much anxious labour and one or two narrow escapes, the rest of the crew (which numbered fourteen in all) were hauled into the boat by means of life lines. A great number of people heartily welcomed the Lifeboat and freight when returned. The shipwrecked Norwegian sailors presented a pitiable sight on landing. Several were unable to walk from cold and cramp, among them the captain, a man advanced in years, who had to jump overboard with a life-line, and in doing so struck heavily against a floating spar. In a room kindly opened to them by the spirited proprietor of the Royal Hotel the poor fellows received the utmost attention from Dr. Main and many other gentlemen, who are always ready and foremost in rendering help in such matters. After the Lifeboat took in the crew, its cable had to be slipped in order to save it and its crew.

Too much cannot be said in praise of this noble and successful effort to save life, under most trying circumstances on the part of the "Albert Edward" coxswain, and crew, who are a willing, able, and disciplined set of men, and we feel sure the Freemasons will be highly gratified by this second proof of the value of their gift, and thankful for such answers to their best wishes. On Sunday morning, by the invitation of the worthy President of the Branch (the Rev. H. Law, Vicar of St. Paul's) both crews attended divine service at St. Paul's, when special prayers were offered up; and the Vicar, in most suitable and feeling terms, alluded to the event. The crews walked to and from church in couples, and in returning, some of the inhabitants fell in. Several of the Local Committee and the Hon. Secretary also were present. In the evening the crews attended the Wesleyan Chapel, a large number of people being present at the service.

The National Lifeboat Institution having conveyed the intelligence of this lifeboat service to the Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, through General Sir Dighton Probyn, V.C., C.B., his Royal Highness directed the following answer to be sent to the Institution:—

"Sandringham, Norfolk, Jan. 27th, 1879.

"Sir,
"I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th inst. In reply to the same, I am directed by the Prince of Wales to beg you will assure the committee of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution that the information you communicate of the lifeboat 'Albert Edward,' which was presented to the Institution last year by the Freemasons of England, having been instrumental in saving, on the 24th inst., a shipwrecked crew of fourteen persons, has caused his Royal Highness much pleasure and satisfaction.

"I have the honour to be, Sir,
"Your obedient servant,
"DIGHTON M. PROBYN, L.C.,
"Comptroller.

"To Richard Lewis, Esq., Secretary
"Royal National Lifeboat Institution."

FUNERAL OF BRO. W. H. BARTLE.

The funeral of Bro. W. H. Bartle, whose death was announced in the Freemason of the 25th inst., took place on Saturday week at Kensal Green Cemetery. The cortege left the house of Bro. J. Bartle, 236, Lancaster-road, Notting Hill, at half-past one. Several hundred persons were present, Bro. J. Bartle, the father of the deceased; Mrs. Bartle, the mother; three Misses Bartle, the sisters; Bro. Francis Bartle, the uncle; and many near relatives; together with several of the friends of the family followed the hearse.

Among the brethren and officers of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge who attended were, Bros. Parkhouse, W.M.; G. Penn, I.P.M.; W. J. Murlis, P.M.; E. M. Lander, S.W.; S. Smout, jun., S.D.; J. Woodman, W.S.; Hook, Steward; J. Pushman, R. Scholefield, P.M.; R. C. Green, C. Rowlands, F. Crabbs, J. T. Newland, W. W. Buckland, J. R. Roberts, J. Empson, E. Rogers, J. Whittlesea, R. H. Heath, Henry Stevens, W. Oldrey, J. H. Wood, and B. Jeffries. About seventy brethren, chiefly members of the lodge took the lead, each bearing a sprig of acacia. The funeral car with six horses bore the remains of the deceased in a polished oak coffin covered with a violet silk pall, a large velvet quantity of choice azaleas, camellias, lilies of the valley, &c., &c., in baskets and wreaths surmounting it. The mourners were conveyed in two mourning coaches, and about twenty private carriages, many of them belonging to members of the lodge followed. The whole of the work people of Bro. Bartle came next, numbering about sixty. The brethren formed single file line at the entrance of the chapel and the cemetery, and a square about the bier in the chapel, and at the grave. Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden, P.M., performed the service most impressively, and at the words "earth to earth," &c., the brethren threw their sprigs of acacia into the grave. Bros. Garstin, of Wigmore-street, were entrusted with the funeral.

Brethren desirous of possessing a copy of the Freemason Card Almanack for 1879, with portraits of the Grand Masters of England, Ireland, and Scotland, should make early application at the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London. The Publisher will be pleased to send a copy to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of two penny stamps.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are strongly recommended to all persons who are much reduced in power and condition, whose stomachs are weak, and whose nerves are shattered. The beneficial effects of these Pills will be perceptible after a few days' trial, though a more extended course may be required to re-establish perfect health. Holloway's medicine acts on the organs of digestion, and induces complete regularity in the stomach, liver, pancreas, and kidneys. This treatment is both safe and certain in result, and is thoroughly consistent with observation, experience, and common sense. The purification of the blood, the removal of all noxious matter from the secretions, and the excitement of healthy action in the bowels, are the sources of the curative powers of Holloway's Pills.—[Advrt.]

Masonic and General Tidings.

At Grand Chapter on Wednesday last Col. Creaton announced to the Companions present, that he had received a letter from Bro. S. Leith Tomkins, son of the late Bro. Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer, informing him that the balance due to Grand Chapter at the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival & Co., had been paid in full out of the private estate of his late father. Our readers will also be pleased to learn that the balance due to the Masonic Institutions has also been paid in full out of Bro. Tomkin's estate.

We learn from the World that Bro. the Hon. Lord Ossulston, 33^d, is lying ill of fever at Peshawar. We extract the following remarks from our contemporary. "The heir to an earldom and a fine estate, courted and caressed by the world of London society, the young Guardsman abandoned the Capua of St. James's about four years ago, and exchanged into the 4th battalion Rifle Brigade, then in India, with the view of seeing service if possible, and also being with his brother who is in the same battalion."

A warrant for the formation of a new lodge to be called the Coborn, to meet at the Bow Vestry Hall, has been granted by the M.W.G.M. The consecration will take place as soon as the necessary preliminaries are arranged.

Bro. G. S. Graham announces that his 14th Annual Evening Concert will be given in the Angell Town Institute, Gresham-road, Brixton, on Thursday next, the 13th inst. Several well known artists will appear.

The Birmingham Gazette announces the death, on Sunday last, of Bro. C. C. Whitney Griffiths, of Worcester. He was a magistrate for the city, and held high rank in the Provincial Grand Lodge of Worcestershire.

A CHARMING GATHERING.—Bro. Alderman J. F. Newell, P.M. 1035, the respected Mayor of Bootle (a borough immediately adjoining Liverpool), signalled his year's office most pleasantly on Tuesday evening, the 28th ult., at the Town Hall, Bootle, where about 200 youngsters of both sexes, whose ages ranged from five to fifteen, were entertained and present at a fancy dress ball there. The scene was a most charming one, and the little ones seemed to enjoy their piquant and novel gathering as only children can. Bro. Newell was accompanied by the Mayoress, and amongst the "children of older growth" present were:—Bros. S. E. Ibbis, J. P. McArthur, Major Pierce (town clerk), J. Wells, and others. Bro. H. Molyneux and Miss Molyneux conducted the "ceremonials" as a labour of love, and Bro. Duncan's band discoursed dance music for the multitudes of little dancers.

CLOSING OF DRURY-LANE THEATRE.—Last Tuesday evening notices were suspended outside the theatre, Drury-lane, stating that owing to unforeseen circumstances it had been found necessary to close the theatre for the present. It is said that Mr. Chatterton, finding that the Pantomime was not remunerative, had proposed to the performers to consent to a reduction on their salary, and that the majority agreed to do so. Some, however, refused to accept of any reduced payment, and therefore Mr. Chatterton determined to close the theatre. Numbers of persons came to see the performance, and had to go away disappointed.—Standard.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual festival of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Lieut.-Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master for East Lancashire. The festival, as will be seen from the list of subscriptions given below, was a grand success, and is one more proof of the growing interest which is being taken in the Masonic Institutions. This interest was also evidenced by the immense gathering of ladies and brethren who assembled on the occasion, for, except when H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was Chairman of the festival, a larger company has not been gathered together. The entertainment was admirably managed, and, while reflecting the greatest credit on the Stewards, obtained in all directions the warmest praise. The arrangements at the dinner table were perfect, and in the Temple, where a concert was given, the greatest attention was paid to the comfort and convenience of the visitors.

Amongst the brethren who supported the Chairman were Sir Henry Edwards, Prov. G.M. for West Yorkshire; the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; Col. Creton, P.G.D.; Bro. J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant G. Sec.; Bro. Dr. Barringer, Col. Somerville Burney; Dr. Jabez Hogg; Dr. Strong; Honorary Surgeon to the Institute; Bro. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P.; the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., Dep. Prov. G.M. for Suffolk; The Rev. C. W. Arnold, P.G.C., Deputy Prov. G.M. for Surrey; Bro. E. P. Albert, P.G.P.; Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P.; Bro. W. Ough, P.G.P.; Bro. F. R. W. Hedges, Secy., R.M.I. Girls; Bro. F. Binckes, Secy., R.M.I. Boys; Bro. C. J. Cooke, P.P.S., G. W. Kent; Bro. W. Beattie, P.M., 142; Bro. F. J. Macaulay, W.M., 142; Bro. H. C. Levander, Vice President of the Board of General Purposes; Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. E.S., West Yorkshire; J. L. Hine, Manchester; Bro. George Kenning, P. Prov. S.D., Middlesex; Bro. H. A. Dubois, Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette, Marshall, Bro. Ramsay, Bro. T. W. Tew, Dep. Grand Master W. Yorkshire; Bro. Headon, Bro. Freeman, Bro. Moody, Bro. Lambert, Bro. W. Lake, Bro. Saillart, Bro. Jolliffe, Bro. Dewar, and Bro. Massey (Freemason.) Nearly 400 sat down to dinner. The Board of Stewards, numbered 283 (an unprecedented number), comprising many of the most influential brethren in the Craft.

When the cloth had been removed, grace was beautifully rendered by the professional ladies and brethren, and the list of toasts was then gone through.

In proposing the toast of "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen," the Chairman after alluding to the great loss Her Majesty had recently sustained in the death of the Princess Alice, assured the brethren that Her Majesty took great interest in the Masonic Institutions. He also added that Her Majesty's grief at the present time was shared in by the Craft, and that in all her joys and sorrows the Freemasons, who were among her most loyal subjects, felt them as their own.

The Chairman afterwards proposed "H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., M.W.G.M., the Patron and President of the Institution; the Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family;" "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro. G.M.;" "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the Present and Past Grand Officers," the last of which was responded to very briefly by the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., Deputy Prov. G.M. for Suffolk.

The toast of the evening, "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons," was the next on the list.

The Chairman: Ladies and Brethren—The next toast I have the honour to propose is one which, of itself, on the present occasion, must necessarily commend itself to your notice, it is that of "The Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons." It is for the advancement of this Institution we are here assembled; and it is for its success we all here have exerted ourselves; and I now pledge you in the remarks that I may make, to drink to its continued prosperity. I feel perfectly sure, from the support the Masonic body has given, and, I am happy to say, the support of those not belonging to our body have given, and by this numerous and influential company now before me, that nothing that I can say in favour of this Institution can fix the benefits of the same more deeply in your minds than they are fixed, no eulogiums that I can express or find words to adduce, can, I am sure, add any more to the zeal of you here present, or to those brethren in London and in the provinces who have worked so hard, and so successfully, on this, and on other occasions for the furtherance and maintenance of this Institution, and when I look around me and see the enthusiasm exhibited by those present, I feel the deeds of those present and of those whom they represent, put quite into the shade any remarks that I may make to enhance the furtherance of this good cause, but, as President on this auspicious occasion, it behoves me to make a few remarks on the origin, the rise, the nature and objects of this Institution. The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons has two separate interests. First, the aged Freemasons, and second, the widows of Freemasons. I will take the first portion as being the oldest part of the Institution. The Institution for granting annuities to aged Freemasons was suggested by the M.W. G.M., his late R.H. the Duke of Sussex, in 1842, since which time 487 brethren have been elected on its funds. After the last election there were 145 brethren receiving £40 per annum each, or, in all £5800. The permanent income is as follows:—

The residue of the income, including the working expenses of this branch of the Institution, has to be provided for by donations and annual subscriptions. There are thirty-five candidates for election in May next and only twelve vacancies. The second branch of the Institution is the widows of aged Freemasons. The Treasurer's Fund was established under the sanction of the late Earl of Zetland in 1849, since when 260 widows have been elected. After the last election there were 135 widows receiving £32 per annum each, or, in all £4220. There are also eleven widows receiving half their late husband's annuity (for three years from death) amounting to £220.

The residue of the income, including working expenses, has also to be provided for by donations and annual subscriptions. There are forty-three widows, candidates for the next election, and only five vacancies. There is an asylum at Croydon, attached to the Institution, affording a home for thirty-three annuitants in addition to the annuity, each of whom has two rooms, and are provided with coals during the winter months and Medical attendance gratis. Thus, you will plainly see, that the only reliable income for these two branches of the institution is £2297, and the expenditure at the present rate is £10,340, being an expenditure of £8043, to be provided for by charitable donations. Such, ladies and brethren, is a brief summary of the origin, expenditure and mode of raising the funds for this Institution. This extra sum of £8000 is raised by the voluntary donations of Provincial Grand Lodges and Chapters, private Chapters and Lodges, private Masonic brethren, and much to their honour, some who are not members of our Order, and without the aid of these voluntary gifts it would be impossible to pay the number of annuitants now receiving relief, of keeping up a sufficient staff of officers to carry on the business of the Institution or maintaining the Asylum. There are, as you are aware, two other noble Masonic Institutions attached to our Order, viz., the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, both for the benefit of the children of indigent and deceased Freemasons. These two Institutions have well ordered and noble buildings not far from the Metropolis; each of these Institutions, the boys', the girls', the aged Freemasons', have their peculiar advantages, their particular sphere of action and their special claims, and there is this great claim and benefit in the well doing of each of these noble Institutions, that there is no clashing in their various interests, neither does the working or the prosperity of any one of these interfere with or deter the prosperity of the other two. There are, as I dare say most of you know, three great and distinct Orders of architecture which Masons particularly prize, and attach great weight to—these are the Doric, the Ionic, and the Corinthian. Carrying out the comparison with regard to these three Institutions, each possessing in itself a definite mark and charm, yet not clashing with the others, and, as in the three styles of architecture, each has a particular feature of adornment and attractive line of beauty, so in each of these three Institutions there is an element of beauty and harmony, which adorns the Masonic structures, without in any way diminishing the benefits conferred by any one of the three preponderating over one another. I feel sure, as I look around me on this present assembly, that I have no need to resort to special pleading for any particular Institution that may form part of the Masonic charity, but, as our meeting here to-day is on the occasion of the annual festival of the aged Freemasons and widows, our aspirations and desires naturally turn themselves to the well-being and furtherance of this Institution in particular. It has been the custom amongst all civilized nations, both ancient and modern, heathen and Christian, to pay respect to the aged of their communities, and therefore, amongst a body of men like we Masons, whose principles are founded on the truest lines of charity, honour, virtue, and morality, a respect for the comforts of old age amongst its members, and a desire to make the latter end of life pleasant to those who when in former years were in more affluent circumstances, but whom the storms of adverse fortune have overcome, must naturally exist. There can be no more pleasing sight for anyone than that of an old man or old woman whose locks, like the snow-drifts of winter wreath round their heads as a garland of silver, passing the remainder of their allotted life in comfort and in happiness. Neither, on the other hand, can there be a spectacle which will conjure up in a well-regulated mind more feelings of pity, and regret, and compassion than that of an aged and forlorn creature, perhaps a cripple, with no one to care for him or her, no one to cheer them, dependent on uncertain charity for a miserable bare existence—one whose case is so pathetically described by one of the most descriptive of our English poets of the last century:—

"The wretched woman, forced in age, for bread,
To strip the brook with mantling rushes spread,
To pick the wintry fagot from the thorn,
To seek her nightly shed, and weep till morn."

It is to avoid such misery as this that the Masonic community has instituted, organised, and maintained the Institution for the benefit of whose funds we are met together. A celebrated Roman orator, and no mean philosopher, has recorded that each portion of age has its charms, and each phase of life has its definite period assigned to it, so that the feebleness of boys, the high spirit of young men, the steadiness of more fixed manhood, and the maturity of old age has something material which ought to be enjoyed in their time, and we know that old age, especially an honoured old age has so great authority that this is of more value than all the transient pleasure of youth, enjoyable as they may be. But as neither grey hairs nor wrinkles can of themselves command respect, let the former portion of a man or woman's life when such life has been honourably spent, reap the just esteem of mankind in general, and if of a Masonic life, should they be so circumstanced, the benefits of this Institution, which is a mark of the esteem of the Masonic brethren, for great care and caution is exercised in admitting members into this Institution, and the former character and mode of life is strictly enquired into before any one can be admitted to partake of this Institution's benefits. It has been said of old, in Greece, when that country was the centre of civilization, of arts and science, that Lacedaemon was the most honourable abode for old age. I say here this day, in this great Metropolis of the world, of England, of commerce, and enterprise, and of Masonic sentiment, that for a Mason this Institution is the most honourable abode for old age of all I know, for nowhere is so much conceded to that time of life, nowhere is age more respected. The times of year naturally instance the life of mankind. Spring represents the time of youth and the promise of future fruits, the remaining seasons are left for the development, ripening, and gathering of these fruits, as therefore in nature so in Masonry if the first conduct of the young Mason be good and healthy, and the blossom of his early career ripens still further into perfection, his case in old age will be similar to the ripened fruit which when plucked from the tree comes off of its own accord, without wrench or violence, and is amenable to all who partake of it, and if misfortune, or adversity overtake such a one, his fruit will be stored in the orchard home of this Institution, and the trunk that bore the fruit will not be left to wither and decay, unheeded and neglected, but cared for and preserved in the garden of the Masonic Fraternity. We are perfectly aware, that as a community, we, like all others, must exist for good or for evil, and if only performing certain duties, which duties must be founded on true noble principles. But we can contend for the former and avoid the latter, for all communities have necessarily an effect more or less on society at large, and we say that we have performed, and are performing, duties which have been, and are now, for the benefit of mankind also. We have passed away as a body of men from the utility of construction as Masons, but the deeds of those of our Order who existed in former ages are written in tablets of stone, and in indelible monuments of our history (I am now speaking of Freemasonry in England) from one end of England to the other, through the length and breadth of the land. These are visible in the works of man's handicraft—our old parish churches, round which slumber the remains of our forefathers, some nestling in our beautiful Southern vales and dales, some raising their elegant tipped spires to the vaulted roof of Heaven, serving as beacons to travellers here, and pointing to a road beyond this earthly orb, or turn we our eyes again to those splendid efforts of architectural skill, our minsters, our cathedrals, our abbey, mediæval mansions, and castles, within whose walls the literature of the dark ages has kept secure, and from whose embattlements the engine of war kept at bay the invading foe. These we point to as example of those men who have preceded us, and though some have been ruthlessly destroyed through fanatic frenzy and heated turmoil, still, even their beauty in their ruins adds a charm to the beholder, and cannot fail to awaken the feeling that there were master minds in those days whose talent and skill in beauty of Gothic architecture, now has been destroyed. And here I may mention that there is set on foot a committee of Freemasons, under the patronage of the P.G.M. of Herefordshire, to restore the west front of St. Alban's Cathedral. But now we have another duty to perform, and our efforts for good to mankind have taken a different direction, we are a body of men who want to cultivate virtue and charity amongst ourselves, for the benefit of our Order and for the example of the outer world. What the Masons in the old dark ages did by constructing these noble buildings, which have been of so much use to mankind, and so ornamental in their appearance, we now wish to emulate, by raising a structure of education and morality for the still furtherance of the general good, and, as we expect to see some of those grand buildings destroyed and in ruins, so to prevent our brethren, when overcome by misfortune, figuratively speaking, being neglected, we have instituted this change, along with the two others I have before named. That it is your wish that this noble Institution should not fall a ruin I feel certain, by your zeal and your presence here to-day. What time is assigned to each to live, with that each ought to be content, for as it is not necessary that a drama should be performed entirely by one actor, but that each actor should so shape his part to help the piece through for the general success of all engaged, so we all, in the drama of life, ought to help each other, and in no way can we do so better, as Masons, than by supporting this Institution as we have done to-day, for we must bear in mind that, in adding comfort to the recipients of a charity like this, we are not only performing a pleasant duty to ourselves, but also to others whose lot in life otherwise would be one of suffering and want. For to the aged all comfort that can be expected must be recalled from the past, and the past is soon exhausted, all the events and actions of which the memory can afford pleasure are quickly recollected, and the harvest of old age is the recollection of blessings previously secured. Hours indeed depart from us and days, and months, and years, nor does time past ever return. Providence has ordered our life in this world to be as an inn to sojourn in, not a place of habitation, and the happiest end of life is when the mind and the other senses, being unimpaired, the same hand that put it together, takes assunder without violence, placidly, and tranquilly, his own work. To make the end of their days comfortable here to the best of our ability is I am sure the wish of everyone here present. I call on you now to drink the toast of "The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons."

Col. Creaton, P.G.D., responded to the toast, and thanked the brethren for honouring it so enthusiastically. He assured the brethren that the greatest care was manifested in the management of the Institutions, that unremitting attention was paid to all details, and that the interests of the annuitants and the subscribers were confided to a staff of officers in every way qualified to give the utmost confidence.

Bro. James Terry, Secretary, then read out a summary of the following magnificent list of subscriptions, prefacing it with the observation that an initiate had commenced his Masonic career by giving to this Institution £105. We believe this initiate is Bro. H. B. Marshall (C.C.), who took his degree in the Royal Hanover Lodge.

Making a total, for London and the Pro-	vinces, of	13,926 8 0

Loud and long continued cheering followed the reading of this list, and Bro. Woodford, as Chairman of the Board, having, with the permission of the Chairman, asked for three hearty cheers for East Lancashire, which appeal was enthusiastically responded to, the East Lancashire brethren were warmly congratulated on having achieved such a result as a total list for their province of £3542.

Sir Henry Edwards, R.W. Prov. G.M. for West Yorkshire, proposed "The Health of the Chairman," whom he characterised not only as one of the best of Masons, but as a thorough Englishman, and a most worthy type of the head of the domestic circle.

The Chairman having replied, Bro. Hedges replied to the toast "Success to the other Masonic Institution: the Girls' School (Festival 14th of May); the Boys' School (Festival 25th of June)." There were loud calls for Bro. Binckes, who, in answer thereto, also made a most energetic speech on behalf of the Masonic Institutions generally, but particularly the Boys' School.

The Chairman, in proposing "The Stewards," complimented those brethren on the success of the meeting, and on the admirable arrangements which had been made.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford (who sat on the left of the Chairman), President of the Board of Stewards, responded.

R.W. Sir,—At this late hour of the evening it would ill become me to trespass on the patience of the meeting, "anxious to migrate to more harmonious sounds and pastures fair," but I should not be doing my duty, if, as Chairman of the Board of Stewards, I did not return the thanks of my many zealous friends and coadjutors for the honour which this large assembly has done them in drinking their health. If the labours of the Stewards have given pleasure and comfort to the brethren they are heartily satisfied, their anxieties are rewarded, their pains recompensed. Sir, allow me to congratulate all present, on the happy fact, that under your auspices, and with the aid of the energetic brethren of your province, we have so well begun 1879 in the cause of Masonic charity, that Masonic charity, which, we so often say, blesses them who give as well as they who receive, that charity, I repeat, which renders our beneficent Order, the pride of its members, the admiration of its contemporaries, and a real utility and a lasting blessing to mankind. (Applause).

The toast of "The Ladies" was then given, and the brethren joined the fair sex in the Temple, where the concert was held, ably presided over by Bro. Joseph Clever.

The intervals between the toasts were enlivened with some beautiful vocal performances by Madame Ashton, Miss Agnes Ross, Miss Lizzie Evans, Bro. H. Ashton, Bro. G. T. Carter, Bro. Fred. H. Cozens, the English Glee Union, Bro. A. Hubbard, and Bro. Theodore Distin, the same artists also performing at the concert given in the Temple. Bro. F. H. Cozens had the direction, and presided, with Bro. Fountain Meen at the pianoforte. Bro. G. S. Graham also gave his startling organophonic performances, which included selections from several operas.

The favour worn by the Stewards this year is worthy of special commendation. In former years a rosette with tassels has been the distinguishing mark of a Steward, but this year a handsome solid silver medallion about the size of a florin, bearing on one side the inscription "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution," and on the other the Arms of the Chairman, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie took its place. The workmanship was all that could be desired, and is very creditable to the firm entrusted with its execution. We doubt not but that every brother who had the privilege of wearing the medal on Wednesday will carefully preserve it as a souvenir of the most successful festival of this admirable Institution.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Thursday at Freemasons' Hall, the day after the very successful annual festival of the Institution. Bro. Colonel Creton presided, and there were also present, Bro. Thomas Cubitt, Samuel Hawson, Henry G. Warren, R. H. Giraud, W. Stephens, James Brett, John A. Farnfield, John G. Stephens, Charles F. Hogard, John M. Case, William Hilton, C. A. Cottebrune, W. F. Nettlehip, Dr. Jabez Hogg, Henry Smith, Thomas W. Tew, James Terry (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Terry, after reading the minutes, reported the death of six annuitants and one candidate for next election. Bro. Terry also read a letter from Bro. E. J. Barrow, P.G.D., Solicitor, enclosing £990 19s. 10d., which he had received from the private estate of the late Bro. Samuel Tomkins, Treasurers. Bro. Terry stated that the result of this was that the Institution did not lose one farthing by the failure of the firm of bankers of Willis, Percival, and Co. Bro. Terry likewise said he had now to report, as most of the brethren were aware, that the festival of the Institution, held on Wednesday evening, was largely attended, that Col. Starkie, Prov. G.M. for East Lancashire, presided, and that the subscriptions amounted to £13,875 10s. 6d., with fifteen lists to come in. There had been a Board of Stewards numbering 288 brethren, the largest Board of Stewards they had ever yet had. (Cheers.)

A vote of thanks was then passed to Col. Starkie for presiding at the festival. Another vote of thanks was also passed to the Board of Stewards for their great and successful efforts for the comfort and convenience of the visitors.

The Chairman then said that the brethren had heard of the great success of the Institution the night before, and a great deal of that success was due to the Board of Stewards of East Lancashire, and more especially to the Chairman of that Board, Bro. J. L. Hine. He thought it would be a graceful compliment to that brother if they elected him a Vice-President of the Institution for his services.

A motion was made to that effect, and carried unanimously.

Cheques for annuities, men £1280, and widows £1097, were authorised to be signed by the Chairman.

The Chairman announced that there were thirty-three male candidates and seventeen to be elected at the election in May, and forty-three women, and four to be elected.

The Chairman said that after the great success of Wednesday, and seeing that there were only four vacancies for widows at the next election, he thought the Institution might elect ten extra candidates.

The Committee agreed to this.

The balloting papers were afterwards settled, and a letter having been read from Bro. S. L. Tomkins, Manager of the Capital and Counties' Bank offering to receive subscriptions for the Institution, the Committee accepted the offer with thanks.

The Committee then adjourned.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

EGYPTIAN LODGE (No. 27).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 6th inst. at Anderson's Hotel, where the new lodge room afforded ample room for what would have been elsewhere a crowded assembly. Bro. T. J. Maidwell, W.M., presided, and there were also present, among 104 brethren, of whom fifty-seven were visitors, the following:—Past Masters Buss, Atkin, Greene, Harrison, W. H. Gibbon, C. B. The W.M. first installed Mr. James Francis Hale, and afterwards, on presentation duly made to him, installed Bro. William Richards as Master of the lodge before a Board of Installed Masters, numbering thirty-four. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. T. J. Maidwell, I.P.M.; Chapman, S.W.; Coulson, J.W.; H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, P.M., Treas.; J. B. Poole, P.M., Sec.; Kemp, S.D.; Cuthbertson, J.D.; Grammer, I.G.; Murch, D.C.; David Jacobs, P.M., W.S.; King, Assistant W.S.; and Potter, Tyler. After the delivery of the addresses, which were fluently given by Bro. Maidwell, the lodge voted £25 to a distressed brother, fifteen guineas to the Girls' School for Bro. Maidwell's list, and £2 to a brother, late a member of the lodge, who was in distress. Lodge was then closed and banquet served. When the toasts were proposed, Bro. Buss, Asst. G.S., and Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P., responded for "The Grand Officers," but, the hour being late, the speeches were made very short. Bro. Maidwell, in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said the brethren had seen very little of the W.M.'s working that evening, although what they had seen had been perfectly done. Referring to the old adage that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," he would ask the brethren to wait to see what the W.M.'s capabilities were before they came to any conclusion on the matter. The W.M., in reply, said that if he did not say so much, and that so ably as some of his predecessors had said, it was for the reason that a long address was not his forte. He had been in this Egyptian Lodge many years; he had spent some of his pleasantest hours in it, and made some of his firmest friends in it; therefore he felt great honour in presiding over the brethren. Last December they paid him the highest honour they could in electing him without a dissentient vote, and while he was their Master he would endeavour to justify that vote of confidence. In proposing the toast of "Bro. Maidwell, I.P.M.," the W.M. presented that worthy brother with a handsome Past Master's jewel, and said that he believed every brother would endorse his observation, that Bro. Maidwell had performed his duty as Master as well as any brother who had held the chair of that lodge, adding that he knew the jewel would be valued by Bro. Maidwell as one of his greatest treasures. Bro. Maidwell, responding, apologised for any defects in his reply, which he hoped the brethren would excuse, because of the novelty of his position as a P.M. He highly appreciated the unanimous feeling the brethren had shown towards him, and assured them that what little he had done had been dictated by the love he had for the lodge. He first came among the brethren as a joining member and after he had been among them many times as a visitor. He came so often as Bro. Jacobs' visitor, Bro. Todd's visitor, and as the visitor of other brethren, that at last he was ashamed to come in that character any longer. Still, he was always pleased to be a visitor at the Egyptian Lodge, but when he became a member he tried to prove, from the office of D.C. upwards, that it was his earnest endeavour to do the best he could for the lodge, to work to the best of his ability, and to uphold the dignity of the old lodge. As long as that met with the approbation of the brethren he was satisfied, and he should ever regard the jewel just presented to him as one of his most valued possessions. Bro. Binckes, P.G.S., responded for "The Visitors and the Masonic Charities." For five-and-twenty years he had advocated brethren visiting lodges, as there was nothing which tended more to do away with sectional organisation. Every one naturally considered his own lodge the best, and it was only by going among other lodges, instituting comparisons and drawing contrasts that the brethren derived a large amount of information. Bro. Buss had alluded to one subject which he (Bro. Binckes) could not suffer to pass by unnoticed. The Egyptian Lodge had never forgotten the great principle of charity, and while he saw in this old lodge worthy traditions handed down from a time-immemorial foundation, he, as a visitor, and as an official charged with duties connected with the great Masonic Institutions, had to thank the brethren both for their hospitality and their charity. He concluded by wishing that these great virtues might long of the distinguishing characteristic of the Egyptian Lodge. Bro. Maidwell then announced that he had secured on his list 111 guineas for the Girls' School. Bro. Buss replied for "The P.Ms., Treasurer, and Secretary," and said it gave him great pleasure to see the lodge prosper from year to year and its funds increase. He was always pleased to see the lodge liberal in its charity, but, while entertaining that feeling, he was anxious to check too great liberality of the funds would soon be swamped. It was a principle of Masonry that the Master should not err, but it was extraordinary to see how he erred on the side of extravagance as soon as he became a P.M. There were very few lodges which had supported the Charities for the last twenty or twenty-five years as the Egyptian, and if it ever occurred that the funds of the lodge at the end of any year would enable them to give twenty-five, thirty, or even fifty guineas to the Charities he should never stand in the way. Bro. Poole, P.M., Secretary, also responded, and Bro. David Jacobs, P.M., W.S., replied, in very happy strains, for the honour the brethren had done him in drinking the toast so heartily. He assured the brethren that in the position he held he should try to promote the happiness of the brethren. The S.W. having replied to the toast of "The Officers," the Tyler's toast was honoured, and the brethren separated. Bro. Knight Smith treated the brethren to music and singing during the evening.

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188).—This lodge held its regular monthly meeting on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the Albion, Aldersgate-street. Bro. M. Spiegel, W.M., presided for the first time, assisted by Bros. Hymans, S.W.; Campion, J.W.; Bakes, S.D.; L. Myers, J.D.; Benjamin, I.G.; Lazarus, P.M., D.C.; and Bann, Steward. After reading the minutes, ballot was taken for Messrs. Alfred Davis, Alexander, and Gardiner, which proved unanimously in their favour. Bros. B. and M. Hart, having answered the usual questions, retired, and the lodge was opened to the Second Degree, and Bro. Hart passed to that degree. Resuming the lodge to the First Degree, the above named three gentlemen were then duly initiated, and the brethren seem highly pleased with the excellent working of their new W.M. After closing the lodge the brethren adjourned for light refreshment, and the usual loyal toasts were respectively proposed. For "The Grand Officers" Bro. Albert, P.G.P., responded, and Bro. Bean for "The Joppa Benevolent Fund," Bro. Hickman, S.W., proposed "The W.M.," and in his remarks mentioned the many years the W.M. worked faithfully in the Craft, and more especially for the Lodge of Joppa, and they all rejoiced in seeing him in the chair, which he so worthily occupies. The W.M. briefly responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Candidates," and implored them never to forget the time when they were placed before the W.M. in the East, and to remember the three great principles on which our Order is founded, which he explained briefly. Bro. Davies replied, and Bro. Fletcher, 180, replied for "The Visitors." The W.M. then proposed "The Past Masters," and in his remarks said, on his installation he compared the Past Masters as the ornaments of the lodge, and further, as one of the three great pillars which supports our lodges, namely, beauty, but finding this evening the assistance he had from the Past Masters he came to the conclusion that they were in reality "the" three great pillars, as without them no lodge could properly be carried on, now regretted that in former years he spoke so lightly of them, and admitted he did not know their value. Bro. Dodson, P.M., replied, Bros. Hymans, S.W.; Campion, J.W.; Baker, Benjamin, and Bann replied for their respective offices. Bros. Benjamin, Fletcher, B. and M. Hart, and A. Davis gave great satisfaction to the brethren by their excellent vocal entertainment, more especially a duet sung by Bros. Benjamin and Davies. Visitors present were Bros. Fletcher, 180; Samuel, and Barrett.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The February meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Brethren present:—Bros. Henry Legge, W.M.; Cohu, P.M., acting S.W.; Rickwood, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treasurer; George Abbott, P.M., Secretary; J. G. Marsh, P.M.; Bright, Fisher, Lucas, Chillingworth, jun.; Perkins, Barker, Goddard, Pratt, Lorkin, Carter, Copelin, Agutter, Groves, Cook, and other brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. George Cook was raised to the degree of Master Mason, and Bro. James E. Groves was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year resulted in favour of Bro. Charles Arkell, with thirteen votes, Bro. Rickwood polling nine votes. Bro. George Kenning, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treas. Bros. Carter, Goddard, and Agutter were elected on the Audit Committee. The consideration of the alteration in the bye-laws was adjourned to the October meeting. The audit meeting was appointed for Thursday, the 20th inst. A distressed brother was relieved with £5 5s. od. The lodge was then closed.

DORIC LODGE (No. 933).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening at Anderton's Hotel. The W.M., Bro. Tucker, presided, and a very large number of the brethren honoured the occasion with their presence. The members of the lodge present were numerous, and the Past Masters who attended were Bros. Tucker, I.P.M.; T. J. Barnes, P.M., and Installing Master; and P.Ms. J. Bowron, W. Wainwright, W. Yetton, J. Giffin, W. R. Marsh, R. Ayton, J. Taylor, and John G. Stevens. The list of visitors includes Bros. Latreille, P.M. 1056; Browne, 194; Solomon, 194; G. Chappell, 147; W. Chappell, 147; Stedman, 172; Taylor, W.M. 1421; Harrison, P.M. 206; Carter, P.M. 1044; Cook, 1585; Cramner, 334; Alston, 193; Nash, 79; Myers, P.M. 820; G. Ward Verry, P.M. Burdett Coutts; Dance, P.M. 754; Musto, P.M.; Charles Lacey, P.M.; Motion, P.M.; McCarthy, Joyce, Goodhall, J. Harrison, Richards, Wayland, Stephens, W. H. Ellis, Calverley, P.M. 1349; H. Massey (Freemason). After the preliminary business had been disposed of, Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., took the chair of W.M., the S.W. chair being occupied by Bro. Bowron, P.M., and the J.W. chair by Bro. Wainwright, P.M. Bro. Barnes then installed Bro. Charles Isaac Digby, W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge for the year ensuing. The brethren appointed to office were Robert James Tucker, I.P.M.; George Hollington, S.W.; William John Edney, J.W.; T. J. Barnes, P.M., Treasurer; John G. Stevens, P.M., Secretary; George A. Payne, J.D.; Stephen Crane, I.G.; S. Fromm, D.C.; G. Williams, W.S.; G. T. H. Seddon, Organist. The offices of D.S. and Tyler were left open, as the brethren who were to fill those offices were absent through unavoidable causes. After delivery of the charges by Bro. T. J. Barnes, and the transaction of some formal lodge business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren then adjourned to banquet. The usual toasts followed, and the W.M., in proposing "The Health of the Queen and the Craft," spoke of her Majesty as taking great interest in the Craft, and in everything that concerned Freemasonry. In proposing "The M.W.G.M.," his worship said that the Prince of Wales was also very much interested in Freemasonry, and that other members of his family were likewise faithful supporters of the Order, for only a twelve-month ago the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold occupied the two Wardens' chairs in Grand Lodge. The other formal toasts having been given, Bro. Tucker proposed "The Health of the W.M." In doing so, he said that he and Bro. Digby had been associated together ever since he had taken the Third Degree. Bro. Digby had followed him step by step, and he was pleased now to see him in the honourable position now occupied by him. Bro. Digby was a brother whom he (Bro. Tucker) very much respected, and he was sure those brethren connected with the lodge when they had had an opportunity of forming his acquaintance would respect him equally. Bro. Digby was a brother who was never known to have the slightest ill-feeling towards anyone, and no one had the slightest ill-feeling towards him. Bro. Digby was determined to be respected by every one that knew him, and he had succeeded, and there was no better proof of it than in this Lodge. The W.M., in reply, said he was deeply grateful for what had been said of him, but such eulogistic terms were used in proposing this toast that they had really taken his breath out of his body. He was not prepared to receive such commendations as he had heard, but he hoped they were deserved. At the end of his year of office he hoped the brethren would be pleased to say he had done his duty. He would endeavour by every means in his power to discharge his duties faithfully, diligently, and with energy. It was just ten years ago that he was introduced into Masonry. Bro. Barnes was then Master, and the way the ceremony of initiation was performed by him on that occasion created such impressions on his mind as had never been eradicated, and never would. On the contrary, having grown, as he had grown, older and stronger, they had now resolved themselves into firm, irremovable convictions that Masonry was one of the grandest, if not the grandest and noblest institution in this land or any other land. The toast of the "P.M.s." followed, to which Bros. Tucker and Barnes replied. In the course of his reply Bro. Barnes said the Past Masters had the interest of the Doric Lodge deeply impressed on their minds and embedded in their hearts. When the time came, which could not be far distant, when he would be removed from the brethren, some other brother, he felt, would be ready to succeed him, and would be found fully equal to the performance of the duties that had fallen on himself, and would do everything that was necessary for the welfare of the lodge. To "The Health of the Visitors," Bros. Harrison, Carter, Myers, Lacey, and Musto replied. Bro. Barnes replied to the toast of "The Masonic Institutions," and as an old Past Master, who was standing Steward for the lodge at the festival of the aged Freemasons next day, he exhorted the brethren to support those Institutions which had grown from very small beginnings, and had taken upon themselves obligations which they were bound to fulfil. The toast of "The Officers," and the Tyler's toast concluded the list. Bros. Seddon, Steadman, and J. G. Stevens entertained the brethren with some excellent songs.

GRANITE LODGE (No. 1328).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 8th inst., in the Freemasons' Hall. There was a full attendance of members and visitors. The lodge was opened at half-past four by the retiring W.M., Bro. R. C. Mount, and his office-bearers, Bros. Robert Payne, S.W.; John Rhodes, J.W.; J. W. Thomas, Chaplain; Fred. West, Treas.; J. Lewis Thomas, Sec.; P. Turner, S.D.; D. F. Kirk, J.D.; A. Mount, D.C.; Oswald Gardner, I.G.; and T. Wilson, Steward. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the Auditor's report was read, which showed that, besides contributing several handsome sums to the Masonic Charities, there were abundant funds in hand. The adoption of the report was moved by Bro. A. Sturt, seconded by Bro. Maysfield, and carried unanimously. There being no initiations, passings, nor raisings, Bro. Robert Payne, W.M. elect, was presented to Bro. R. C. Mount, I.P.M., who performed the ceremony of installation in the most effective way, and the charges which were read by the Secretary, Bro. James Lewis Thomas, P.M., were answered in a very satisfactory manner. After this, Bro. Payne proceeded to the investment of his officers for the ensuing year, appointing Bros. Wm. Rhodes, S.W.; Benjamin Turner, J.W.; Frederick West, Treasurer; J. Lewis Thomas, Secretary; Walsh

Thomas, Chaplain; Frank Kirk, S.D.; Oswald Gardiner, J.D.; Frank Swain, I.G.; S. Wilson, D.C.; Albert Mount, Wine Steward; and Woodstock, P.M., P.Z., Tyler. The I.P.M. then proceeded to charge the newly elected W.M. on the manner of performing the duties of his office, and delivered his farewell address to the brethren with much eloquence and effect, after which the Worshipful Master presented P.M. Mount with an elegant Past Master's jewel, in consideration of the effective way in which he had acted during his tenure of office. Bro. Mount who was warmly congratulated on the acquisition of the decoration, very appropriately acknowledged the gift, remarking that he would always regard the jewel as one of the happiest mementoes of his life, for he felt that it was a testimony of his having earned the good will and esteem of all the brethren of the Granite Lodge. The lodge was then formally closed and the brethren repaired to the banqueting-hall of the Freemasons' Tavern, where a magnificent banquet was served. Besides the brethren already mentioned, there were present, Bros. John Oliver, P.M.; George Hackford, P.M.; H. W. Collins, P.M.; W. Henry Mudgegier, P.M.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.M.; A. Stuart, Wm. F. Rowell, Allen James Hewitt, Fredk. S. Osmond, G. W. Chapendy, D. W. Pearce, John B. Lee, E. J. Pain, W. Parkins, W. F. Tomkin, Geo. Lansdown, W. Wilkinson, W. Cooke, W. Wood, Fred. Worssam, R. Masefield, F. Swain, Robt. F. Giles, W. W. Kell, J. Browning, Richard Coad, Septimus Baker, and A. C. Shelley. Amongst the visitors present we observed the following:—Bros. H. T. Somerville Burney, P.M. 1615; S. Wheeler, I.G. 414; D. Matthew, 12; James Cutbush, P.M. 1385; John Crake, 1687; Thos. Leigh, 1687; C. E. Jueiqua, 1687; Wm. Beattie, P.M. 143; Macaulay, W.M. 142; Fred. Cambridge, 1706; James Kendall, 1420; Geo. Collier, 1237; Geo. D. Bundy, Wm. Dyer Burnaby, Sec. 42; Thos. A. Hull, 595; E. Letchworth, P.M. 1237; T. Wilkens, 1420; W. Maple, P.M. 657; Thos. W. C. Bush, W.M. 1728; A. Tryner, 18; D. H. Witherbon, 414; J. Early Danks, S.W. 1101; J. T. Brown, P.M., P.G. Sup. of Wks. Betks and Bucks; Jno. Hernaman, M. Glaisher, F.R.S.; H. H. Collins, P.M. 23; J. Peters, P.M. 1460; M. Frost, P.M. 228, 704, 685; and A. H. Chisholm, 1602 (Freemason). After the cloth was removed the W.M., in proposing "The Health of the Queen and Craft," said that it had always struck him as being singularly apposite that the toast of the Queen should also comprise that of the Craft, because it was an essential element—in England at all events—that Royalty formed part and parcel of its constitution. It was unnecessary for him to occupy the time of his audience by commenting upon the virtues of Her Majesty. He would simply express the hope that the Great Architect of the Universe might long spare her to reign over a prosperous people, and that the Craft might continue to flourish under her benign influence. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, the brethren remaining standing while they sang the National Anthem. The next toast was "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," in proposing which the W.M. observed that H.R.H. had shown himself to be a patron of the liberal arts and sciences, and the brethren as Freemasons all knew that the liberal arts and sciences were an essential part, he would not say of the education, but of the principles inculcated in the minds of Freemasons. They made them a study, and His Royal Highness had set them a bright example in this respect, which he (the W.M.) trusted the brethren would all endeavour to emulate. (Hear, hear.) Bros. T. Baxter, Geo. Carter, and W. Wian then favoured the company with an effective rendering of the glee by Davy, entitled "Just like Love." The next toast was "The Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M., the D.G.M. and the Rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," which was cordially responded to, whereupon Bro. Geo. Carter sang in exquisite taste the pretty ballad "Sweethearts." Bros. Glaisher P.G.D.; Cottebrune, P.M.; and Thomas, P.M., Secretary, very suitably acknowledged the toast. The former trusted that at all times the Grand Officers would command by their conduct that esteem and respect which at present they enjoyed. (Hear, hear.) He was quite sure that if they in any way followed the bright example set by the Earl of Carnarvon, who performed every Masonic duty with which he was charged in a manner that was a pattern to every one, they would always stand high in the estimation of Freemasons. Nor could he say that Lord Skelmersdale was less energetic, less careful in the performance of his Masonic duties. (Hear, hear.) He believed the Grand Officers generally were Grand Officers because they had carried out to the letter the principle enunciated by the I.P.M. that evening, that no effort of his should be spared in the endeavour to devote the best of his ability to perform the work he had engaged to do with credit to himself and benefit to the lodge. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Glaisher concluded by pointing out that during the last twenty years the number of lodges had increased from 600 to 1800, a circumstance from which the brethren would gather that there were only a limited number of offices in the Grand Lodge every year. But the Granite Lodge, he was glad to say, already claimed among its numbers one whom he (the speaker) had very much pleasure in frequently meeting at the Grand Chapter—Bro. Thomas. (Hear, hear.) He thanked the brethren most heartily in the name of the Grand Officers for the manner in which the toast had been received. Bros. Past Masters Thomas and Cottebrune having also offered a few graceful remarks in acknowledgment of the toast, the I.P.M., Bro. R. C. Mount rose, and said it was unnecessary for him to tell the brethren why he had monopolized their attention for a few moments. He had to propose one of the most important toasts of the evening. He wished only that the proposition should have come from some one that could have done it more justice than he could, although no one in the room entertained a stronger desire to do it justice than himself. He had the pleasure of proposing "The Health of the W.M." There were many around the table that evening who knew the W.M. much more intimately than he (the speaker) did, and who could speak of his good qualities outside the pale of Freemasonry. Unfortunately for him he knew him only as a Freemason. But in that connection he could bear testimony to his honour, truth, his manliness of heart, his geniality of temper, and his skill in the Craft. (Applause.) Ever since Bro. Payne had come into the lodge in a state of darkness he had been a thorough Mason. He had gone through every office with the greatest credit, and he (the speaker) thought that fact alone spoke volumes for what the brethren might expect of him in the chair. The toast having been heartily drunk Bro. Winn, who was in excellent voice, delighted the company by singing the familiar song "Vanity let it be," for which he was loudly encored. The W.M. in reply said when he was put into the chair of King Solomon that evening it was the most crucial point of his existence, but he thought it was equalled, if not excelled, by the position in which he was placed at that moment. To occupy the chair of King Solomon by their suffrages, and those suffrages unanimous, was an event which he could not help thinking marked an epoch in his life. It showed him that his endeavours to do what was right and proper to gain their brotherly esteem had not been without its reward, and thankful and proud he was that he had been enabled to attain that very enviable position. But the acclamation with which the brethren had received the toast of his health had rendered the task of responding an exceedingly embarrassing one, because he felt the obligations he had taken upon himself as their Master were of an exceedingly responsible nature. He could only say—and he thought it was the most grateful recognition of all the kindness he had experienced at their hands, from the first moment that he entered the lodge until the present occasion—that, God helping, him no effort of his would be wanting to fulfil his duties. He always held that whatever a man put his hand to that he should do with all his might; and if he had felt that he could not occupy the position of presiding over them he would never have accepted it. (Hear, hear.) "The Visitors" having been proposed and drunk, the glee from "Macbeth," "When shall we three meet again?" was admirably sung by Bros. Baxter, Carter, and Winn, after which Bros. Burnaby; Burney, P.M. 1615; Peters, P.M. 1160, J.G.W. Middlesex, and Letchworth, P.M. 1237; replied in suitable terms. The W.M. next proposed "The Past Masters," in a few complimentary sentences, after which Bro. Baxter gave an excellent rendering of "Norah, the Pride of Kildare." In replying, Bro. Mount, I.P.M., said he could not disguise the fact that he felt a little melancholy at the idea of passing away from the active work of the lodge—that the various offices he had filled should know him no more. But it was a satisfaction to feel that having passed through those offices, having finished his work, and having gained such applause and approval as he had received that evening, he should now sit at his ease as a Past Master with the magnificent pendant which hung at his breast. He assured the brethren that he would do his utmost to promote the interests of the lodge, and concluded by thanking the brethren for the manner in which they had drunk the health of the Past Masters. In proposing "The Treasurer and Secretary," the W.M. congratulated the brethren on having two such efficient officers as Bros. West and Thomas. Nothing was left undone by those brethren that could in any way further the affairs of the lodge. "The Pilgrim of Love" was then very ably sung by Bro. Carter; and Bros. West and Thomas acknowledged the toast in a few appropriate remarks. "The Officers" having been drunk, and replied to by the S.W., Bro. Rhode's "Mynter van Dunk" was sung by Bros. Carter, Baxter, and Winn, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. All the arrangements for the banquet were most creditably carried out, Bro. A. Mount, who has always acted as W.S. at the installation banquet, leaving nothing undone to provide for the comfort of the brethren.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Havlock Hotel, Albion-road, Dalston, on Thursday, the 30th ult. The lodge was opened by Bro. Bernard Meyer, W.M., who was supported by Bros. Neville Green, S.W. and W.M. elect; H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Sec.; W. H. Lee, P.M. Sec.; T. C. Chapman, P.M.; C. W. Smyth, Treas.; E. Dignam, S.D.; J. Payne, I.G.; C. Beame, J. Symes, J. Varney, T. Norman, G. Ferrar, R. Polak, F. Brasted, W. H. Brand, A. Ferrar, E. W. Silk, R. George, A. R. Olley, C. Olley, W. Beasley, C. Lorain, J. Hill, J. Bell, A. Loeffler, F. Bonner, E. A. Harding, H. Robinson, W. J. Watkins, and the following visitors:—J. Terry, P.G., J. W. Harts, Sec. Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; John Green, P.M. 27; Charles B. Payne, Grand Tyler, P.M. 27; R. A. Steel, P.M. 1194; Elias Somers, P.M. 1602; W. Fieldwick, S.W. 1364; T. Cross, J.D. 1194; J. Brown, 975; C. Barrow, 1424. After the usual introductory business had been transacted, the chair was assumed by Bro. Lee, P.M., who had undertaken the duties of Installing Master, and Bro. Neville Green, S.W. and W.M. elect, was presented by Bro. Chapman, P.M., for installation, and a Board consisting of ten Past Masters having been formed, he was duly installed, according to ancient custom. The following brethren were invested as officers for the year:—Bros. W. H. Brand, S.W.; F. Brasted, J.W.; C. W. Smyth, Treas.; W. H. Lee, P.M., Sec.; E. Dignam, S.D.; C. Lorain, J.D.; J. Payne, I.G.; A. Ferrar, D.C.; R. Polak, Steward; W. G. Christ, Tyler; the whole of these appointments being highly satisfactory to all present. After the completion of the ceremony, some propositions for initiation were received, and the lodge was closed in due form. An adjournment then took place to the banquet table, which was well supplied, under the superintendence of Bro. W.

Ferrar. Ample justice having been done to the good things provided, Bro. Green, W.M., proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was loyally received and duly honoured, after which "God Save the Queen" was sung by the brethren. The W.M., in proposing "The M.W.G.M.," referred to the many valuable services his Royal Highness had rendered to the Craft, and to the great success it had attained under his rule. "God bless the Prince of Wales" was then sung by Bro. Cross. The W.M. then proposed "The Pro and Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," with which he coupled the name of Bro. H. G. Buss, Asst. G. Secretary, and eulogized the efforts of Lord Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale in the cause of Masonry, expressing the pleasure felt by all Freemasons in having such "good men and true" as Grand Officers, and the pleasure felt by the lodge in being honoured on this occasion by the presence of Bro. Buss, Asst. G. Secretary, who, they were all very glad to see, and hoped that he would come amongst them many times during the present year. Bro. Buss, Asst. Grand Secretary, returned thanks for the Grand Officers and expressed his acknowledgments for the compliment paid to that distinguished body. Bro. Buss then proposed the toast of the evening, "The Health of the W.M.," and expressed the pleasure he felt in having the opportunity of being present at the installation of Bro. Green. He had known the W.M. since the latter first came to London, and he could assure the brethren that in Bro. Green they had a W.M. who was not afraid of work and who would spare no efforts to make his year of office a success. He congratulated the W.M. and the brethren upon the thorough success which had attended the proceedings, which augured well for the future of the lodge, Bro. Green was well supported by the Past Masters, who, he was sure, would render him every possible assistance. This toast was received with great enthusiasm, clearly evincing the popularity of the newly-installed W.M. Bro. Green, W.M., in a neat and appropriate speech acknowledged the toast, and thanked the brethren for the cordial manner in which it had been received, and assured them that he would do all in his power to promote the prosperity of the lodge. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and said that he felt proud to be surrounded by the distinguished brethren who had favoured him by their presence. At that late hour he could not call upon them all to respond, and as he intended to reserve Bro. Terry for another toast, he would ask Bro. John Green to reply. Bro. John Green, P.M., Egyptian Lodge, 27, in reply, said he was sorry it had not fallen to the lot of some more competent brother to respond to this important toast. He could only thank the W.M. for the genial terms with which he had welcomed the visitors, and the brethren of the Duke of Connaught Lodge for the hospitable manner with which they had been entertained. It had given them all very great pleasure to witness the cordiality and good feeling which had characterised the proceedings of the evening, the whole of which had given the greatest satisfaction and delight to the visitors. The W.M. then proposed "The Masonic Charities," and stated that Bro. Chapman, P.M., and himself had undertaken to represent the lodge at the ensuing festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and he hoped they would receive the hearty and substantial support of the brethren on behalf of the Institution to which he had referred. He would call on Bro. Terry to respond, and he hoped that every brother present would place his name on the list. Bro. Terry, Secretary, Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, replied in an eloquent and stirring speech setting forth the claims of the Masonic Charities in general, and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in particular, and he trusted that as the lodge would be represented by two Stewards at the approaching festival, the list would be creditable to the brethren, and that the name of every brother present would be found as a contributor, if even to a small amount. He could not, considering the state of the balance-sheet expect a grant this year from the lodge funds, but he was sure the brethren would, notwithstanding this drawback, send up a good list. This appeal was favourably responded to by the brethren, and a handsome sum was subscribed for the Charity. The W.M. then rose to propose "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge," saying that he knew the brethren would receive and drink the toast with the same pleasure that he proposed it. He well knew that he should not rely in vain on their assistance during his year of office, with this toast he should couple the names of Bros. Lee and Chapman. Bro. Lee, P.M., in reply, thanked the W.M. for the flattering terms in which he had proposed the health of the Past Masters, and assured the brethren that Bro. Chapman and himself would use their utmost endeavours to promote a continuance of that cordiality and good feeling which had been so prominently exhibited that evening. In proposing the toast of "The Officers," the W.M. expressed the pleasure it gave him in doing it, as from the way the appointments were received by the brethren they evidently thought with himself that he had made a very good selection, and hoped that there would be plenty of opportunities of proving their proficiency. As the hour was late he would call upon Bro. Brand, S.W., to respond for the officers. Bro. Brand, S.W., responded for the officers, and thanked the W.M. for the honour he had done them in appointing them to office, and promised him a cordial and hearty support. The Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings, which were highly satisfactory throughout. Bro. Cross presided, during the lodge business, at an American organ, kindly lent for the occasion by Bro. Lorain, J.D., and at the pianoforte after the banquet. The proceedings were enlivened by some excellent singing by Bros. Brasted, Cross, Lorain, Olley, and others.

ROYAL COMMEMORATION LODGE (No. 1585).—This lodge held its first meeting this year on the 5th inst. at the Fox and Hounds Hotel, Putney and in the unavoidable absence of the W.M. (Bro. W. T. Morphew), the I.P.M., Bro. Robinson, took the chair. Having opened the lodge in the Three Degrees, he resumed to the First, when the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. He then took the ballot for Messrs. Outram and Collick and also for Bro. Hulatt, which proved in each case unanimous. Bro. White having been examined and entrusted was passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Marshall having also qualified himself, was duly raised to the M.M. Degree. P.M. Wright then kindly relieved Bro. Robinson, and initiated the foregoing candidates. The lodge was then closed and adjourned till February.

ROYAL KENSINGTON LODGE (No. 1627).—The first meeting of the lodge since Christmas was held at Freemason's Hall, on Friday the 7th instant. Present: Bros. W. E. Gordon Leith, W.M.; B. F. Cramer, S.W.; H. M. Sydney, J.W.; Hyde Pullen, Treas.; D. W. Dewar, Secretary; J. B. Stevens, J.D.; Joseph Steele, I.G.; Chas. E. Soppet, I.P.M.; Percy Leith, P.G.D.; G. J. Robinson, Mark Beaufoy, D. W. Rees, G. W. Justin, Eugene Delacoste, W. L. Harvey, John B. Ball and Chas. Waters. Visitors: Bros. Col. Randolph, W.M., 1383; C. W. E. Pines, P.M., 257; G. Pigache, 12; H. S. Hansard, 197; E. S. Lintott, 1687 and E. Valeriani, 1687. The lodge having been opened and the minutes read and confirmed, Bro. Pullen, at the request of the W.M., raised Bro. Harvey to the Sublime Degree of a W.M. The W.M. having resumed the chair, passed Bros. Ball and Waters to the Degree of F.C. The rest of the business having been transacted, the lodge adjourned to refreshment and spent a very pleasant evening under the genial presidency of the W.M.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday, Feb. 10th, at the Castle and Falcon Hotel. Brethren present:—The Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette, W.M.; Hyde Pullen, acting S.W.; A. J. Altman, J.W.; George Kenning, Treasurer; Thomas Jones, Secretary; Rev. R. Lee, Dr. H. Alder Smith, E. Y. Jolliffe, S. White, Thomas Benskin, Alfred Brookman, Dr. S. Benton, John Jackson, and H. C. Levander. Visitors:—Bros. Henry Legge, W.M. 192; T. J. Thomas, W.M. 28; J. H. Sillitoe, 317, P.G.D.C. East Lancashire; N. B. Hcadon, 1426; Edwd. Humphrey, 538; John H. Southwood, W.M. 1260; E. J. Altman, 101; E. Marner, 1673; G. De Luca, 101; G. S. Snellgrove, 12; J. A. West, 76; Bertram Noakes, 92; Geo. Watson, 21; E. J. Jauau, 1641; A. J. Protheroe, 22; H. S. Legg, 171; Dr. Great Rex, 22; Walter Lumley, 4; and Ellis Jones, 28. The minutes of the last meeting were read. Bro. Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette then installed Bro. A. J. Altman into the chair in a most able manner. Bro. Altman after investing Bro. Rev. Dr. Brette as his I.P.M., appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. George Kenning, S.W.; Dr. H. Alder Smith, J.W.; Rev. Richard Lee, Chaplain; J. D. Allcroft, M.P., P.M., Treasurer; Thomas Jones, Secretary; W. S. Chapman, S.D.; Alfred Brookman, J.D.; Dr. S. Benton, I.G.; E. Y. Jolliffe, D.C.; S. White, Steward; John Jackson, Steward; Thcs. Benskin, W.S.; W. Steedman, Tyler. A very handsome gold jewel, set with a large diamond, was presented to Bro. Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette as a mark of respect and affection entertained by all the brethren towards him as a wise, generous, and well instructed Master, discharging his duties with true Masonic precision, upholding the high standard of charity as the end of all Masonry, and as a brilliant expert in the theory and practice of our most ancient rites and ceremonies. It was proposed, seconded, and carried by acclamation that the best thanks of the lodge be given to Bro. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., P.M., for his gift to the lodge, qualifying it as Vice-President of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Ordered to be entered on the minutes. It was proposed by the W.M., and seconded by the I.P.M., that ten guineas be given from the funds of the lodge to the Wentworth Little Testimonial Fund, which was carried unanimously. At the conclusion of the preceding business, the brethren adjourned to banquet, under the charge of the newly elected W.M., A. J. Altman (one of the founders of the lodge). The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given with great effect by the presiding and retiring W.M.s, and responded to by various brethren, Bros. Hyde Pullen, Brette, Legge, White, Alder Smith, and others. The brethren of the Aldersgate Lodge regard Bro. A. J. Altman with much affection, knowing that the prestige of the lodge will be maintained, and its usefulness continued under his prudent management. Bro. the Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette attended the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution as Steward for this lodge the amount of £106 11s. 6d. being contributed.

ALL SAINTS LODGE (No. 1716).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Town Hall, Newbury-place, Poplar, on Friday evening, the 7th inst., there being present Bros. J. Dennis, W.M.; J. K. Coleman, S.W.; Leonard Potts, J.W.; W. H. Farnfield, I.P.M.; J. S. Turner, S.D.; T. Bates, I.G.; J. Hoque, D.C.; J. Groul, Org., and several other brethren, members of the lodge, also the following visitors:—Bros. H. May, P.M. 212; T. Burne, 162; T. Brown, 1362; and E. Martin, 879. The work consisted of two raisings, two passings, and two initiations, Bros. Rundell and Pittam being raised, Bros. the Rev. J. H. C. McGill and H. W. Fenner passed, and Messrs. Robinson and Day admitted to the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The whole of the Degrees were worked by the W.M. in his own inimitable style, the officers ably supporting him. Bro. the Rev. McGill was then invested Chaplain by the W.M., who said it gave him great pleasure to make the appointment, as the presence of such an officer greatly added to the

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1879.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FESTIVAL FOR 1879.

The scene witnessed on Wednesday evening will not soon be forgotten by those who were present, and before a crowded hall, and an enthusiastic auditory, Bro. Terry announced, considering many attendant circumstances, a result really marvellous, and one that reflects no little credit on our generous and warmhearted Craft. For what was it that Bro. Terry read out which brought down such enthusiastic cheers?—it was—that with 15 lists yet to come in, the returns amounted to £13,875. This sum will probably reach to over £14,000 when all is returned, and we repeat it is a very wonderful result, and one that reflects every credit alike on the brethren, the Stewards, the lodges, and Bro. Terry. To the Province of East Lancashire, whose amiable and genial P.G.M. so ably presided at the festival, the thanks of all friends to the Institution are truly due, and we congratulate Bro. Hine, the Chairman of the Charity Committee, and our many excellent and true hearted friends in East Lancashire, on the success of their noble and praiseworthy efforts in the cause of Masonic charity. At this festival the provinces, including Middlesex, have sent up in round numbers £7644, as against £6230. East Lancashire heads the list of course with the munificent contribution of £3542. West Yorkshire semper vivens as the gallant and esteemed Prov. G.M. would say, follows with £550. Kent is not very far off with £430; and Bucks and Berks succeed with £336. Middlesex is close at hand with £311, and Norfolk does not retrograde with £306. South Wales, western division, produces £225; while Hampshire is credited with £187; Suffolk with £171; Surrey with £165; and Norfolk and Gloucestershire run a tie with £144. In the metropolis the highest amount brought in is by Lodge 933, T. J. Barnes, £325 10s. No. 781, Clement Bredan, sends £178; 1426, James Freeman, remits £151 2s.; while 1118, L. G. Gordon Robbins, sends £157 10s.; 174, T. H. Seddon, forwards £135 10s.; 160; Frederick Brown, £134 18s. 6d. We, therefore, on this our first great Masonic charitable festival for 1879, are glad to announce to our Order on this striking proof of its vitality, zeal and charity, and congratulating Bro. Terry on this happy response to his eloquent appeal and untiring labours, we desiderate earnestly for Bros. Hedges and Binckes the same felicitous results, the same brilliant returns.

THE RESTORATION OF THE ABBEY CHURCH OF ST. ALBANS.

By a report elsewhere our readers will perceive that a meeting has been held to form a Committee in London to co-operate with a Committee of Hertfordshire brethren, for the purpose of the restoration of the remarkable and beautiful Minster at St. Albans. Owing to various causes, the meeting was not so largely attended as could have been wished, the notices not having been extensively distributed, and many brethren being ignorant of the assembly. But we are glad to call the attention of our readers to the report of the meeting elsewhere, and to say, that an adjourned meeting of the Committee will take place next Wednesday at 4.30, at Freemasons' Tavern, when all brethren interested in the subject will be welcomed, and it is hoped that some may bring brethren friends with them. That wonderful structure at St. Albans appeals to Englishmen and Freemasons very forcibly, and directly, in order that it may be revived from decay and devastation, and be rendered, as "God's House" should be, "exceeding magnificent." As Freemasons, let us bear in mind, that all the operative Guild legends mention Alban or Albanus, as the president of a Guild assembly, as the procurer of a charter, as one who settled the price of wages. We probably have in this a confused account of the proceedings of a Roman operative Guild of Masons under his protection or direction. Be this as it may, there is every reason, as it appears to us, why we Freemasons should not be ashamed of those old operative legends, why we should seek to participate in so good and so needful a work, and lend our aid to the complete restoration of this noble building on patriotic, archæological, and Masonic grounds. It will be seen that H.R.H. the Grand Master has given his name and subscription, and we invite attention to the list of subscriptions already promised or paid, which will, no doubt, soon be much larger. The maximum amount has been fixed at five pounds, but as it is hoped that the subscription will be universal among English, and we would fain hope may even be aided by American Freemasons, any lower sum will be accepted by the active Secretary, Bro. Keyser. Any communication to him should be addressed C. E. Keyser, Esq., 47, Wilton-crescent, S.W. We hope on Wednesday, the 19th, to see a numerous assembly in so good a cause.

LEGACIES TO FREEMASONRY.

Bro. Frederick Thomas Wethersill, of Woodside, Bowden, and Mansion-street, Manchester, has left £1000 to the Masonic Charities, to be disbursed on the recommendation of the W.M. and the Wardens of the Lodge of Friendship, No. 44. We are glad to note the fact, not merely for the money itself, but because we think Masonic legacies to our great Charities are good things, per se, and to be encouraged in moderation and common sense. We know too much of the history of many of our great general Charities in this country to admire very much, if at all, the animus which has marked and controlled many of the donors of sums for public charities. Probably, as a good old commissioner of charities used to say, we hardly see in anything else in life so many proofs, if proofs be wanting, of the littleness, of the animosities, of the vindictiveness of humanity. But though we are aware that, as in anything here, everything is liable to be abused, whether we regard the best longings of our race, or the most thronging impulses of our nature, the gifts we possess, the faculties we employ, yet as abuse never takes away use, we think that in due moderation we may fairly laud and encourage such acts of Masonic memory and good will. Many of our brethren may fairly bequeath a legacy to the charities or to their lodges, and we have always thought that our whole Masonic existence would be more free and elevated, more removed from cold calculation or sordid apprehension, if our lodges possessed a certain amount from capital to apply to the general purposes of the lodge, and the particular claims of charity. Of course there are evils in everything here below, and we do not shut our eyes to what others have pointed out as possible complications in this respect, but, in our opinion, the advantages so counterbalance the disadvantages, that we are pleased to note Bro. Wethersill's kindly recollection of the Order to which he belonged, and to hold up his example to the imitation and example of our readers.

THE ROYAL ARCH DEGREE AND DEGREE OF PAST MASTER.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,— Referring to the queries of our Bro. Dr. Irving de Lisle, J.W., Victoria Lodge, New Zealand, which appeared in the Freemason of the 8th February, I notice a similar question in the Masonic department of the New York Dispatch, of January 19th, relative to the presumed status of Royal Arch companions in a Board of Installed Masters. For myself, I do not know how many, or what grades are included in the degree of Royal Arch, as practised in Ireland; but, under the Scotch and American Constitutions, the degree of Past Master is included merely as a grade like that of Mark Master. This is how Bro. John W. Simons, M.W. Past Grand Master, State of New York, and Masonic editor of the New York Dispatch, disposes of the question as to status of Royal Arch companions in a Board of Installed Masters. I give the query and answer, verbatim—

QUESTION—"Has a Royal Arch Mason a right to be present when the Past Master's Degree is conferred on the Master elect? If so, has he (the Royal Arch Mason) a right to instal the officers?"

ANSWER—"A Royal Arch Mason, who has been the duly elected and installed Master of a blue lodge, has a right to be present when a Master elect is qualified for installation—not otherwise; and hence, the mere fact of a man being a Royal Arch Mason, does not qualify him to instal the officers of a lodge. He can only gain that privilege by having been lawfully elected, installed, and having served as the real Master of a just and duly constituted lodge, which means that a mere ceremony does not take the place of actual service."

The italics in the above, I may observe, are mine. My especial reason for quoting the authority of our distinguished American brother is, that it may be accepted with greater force, coming, as it does, from a jurisdiction where the chapter degrees are much more extended and diversified, than they are under the rule of the Grand Chapter of England.

The question of our Bro. Dr. Irving de Lisle, and its very apparent difficulty, is plainly the result of chapters working simultaneously in New Zealand, under the three separate jurisdictions of England, Scotland, and Ireland.

MASONIC CHARITY AND ITINERANTS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read Bro. Almoner's letter in this week's Freemason, and do not wonder at his experience and mine differing so widely, as I have little doubt but he has been imposed on to nearer ninety per cent. than twenty per cent., and that three-fourths of the certificates shown to him have been bought ones.

Nearly thirty years ago I met a similar gang of swindlers (non-Masonic).

I would suggest to Bro. Almoner to obtain (as said) the assistance of a smart policeman, who will doubtless be able to give him the history of most of his applicants, and he will find that they are well known in the city where he resides, especially his American, Indian, and foreign friends.

My system of telegraphing costs me only a few shillings a year, although I send them all over the United Kingdom, and pay for the reply; doubtless doing so stops Bro. Almoner's friends coming back.

I have never met a case of an answer not being returned same day.

True foreign cases are seldom met with, and the greatest caution should be taken with them.

As to breaking the journey there is no way of avoiding this. A good safeguard (in doubtful cases) is to endorse the relief on the certificate. This should not be done generally.

Yours fraternally,

JAMES H. NEILSON.

5, Up. Mount-street, Dublin.

BRO. KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Would you be so kind as to mention in the next Freemason that my husband Bro. Kenneth R. H. Mackenzie, has been very dangerously ill and quite unable to attend to any business? Indeed, last week, from Wednesday to Friday, I hardly expected he would live. He is now a little better but extremely weak, and still unfit to resume his usual pursuits. If you would kindly state this in the Freemason it would be a sufficient reason for the delay which has unavoidably occurred in answering the letters of his many Masonic correspondents throughout the country.

Yours faithfully,
Hounslow, Feb. 11th 1879.
MAY MACKENZIE.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I wish to bring under the notice of the Grand Lodge of England a case which occurred here a short time since. A resident in this town was proposed as a member in Lodge 471, but withdrawn, as his proposer and seconder were informed that if he went to the ballot he would be rejected. To the great surprise of nearly all present he was visitor at the last lodge, having been accepted at Lodge No. 15, in London. The question is asked is it right that a lodge, that distance from the town where the person is living, with three lodges in it, should accept any one without first making enquiries whether he has been proposed in either of them and why he was not accepted?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
A MEMBER OF No. 471.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in your issue of the 1st inst. a letter from "A Prov. S.G.W.," asking whether a P.M., when attending a lodge of which he is not the I.P.M., has a right to wear a blue collar with a P.M. jewel suspended to it.

Your answer is, that he has that right.

I would now ask whether it is customary for him to avail himself of it?

Yours faithfully and fraternally,
W.M. 1768.

THE VOICE OF MASONRY AND FAMILY MAGAZINE, January. Chicago, U.S.

This well-known American Masonic magazine comes before us under the sole editorship of Bro. J. W. Brown, the veteran writer and cyclopaedist. Bro. Albert Mackey seems to have resigned the co-editorial pen, and like the "last rose of summer," Bro. Brown is left to bloom and blossom alone. But, certainly, the Voice of Masonry in 1879 with undiminished vigour, and speaks with no faltering or failing tones. It contains fifty-three articles, longer or shorter, as the case may be; some, no doubt, very short, but it is well "got up" and edited, and deserves patronage and will repay perusal. The Voice of Masonry may fairly be considered one of the leading Masonic journals in the world, and there are few which can compare with it, either in the variety and interest of its matter or the clearness and ability which its contributors display. We always receive it with pleasure and read it with care.

KEYSTONE. Philadelphia.

Our good old friend the Philadelphia, edited by our confrere Clifford P. MacCalla, gives week by week abundant tokens of good sound Masonic life. Long may it continue to flourish, and may our brethren in America and Pennsylvania estimate aright, as no doubt they do, the value and importance of so cultivated and conscientious an editor as our most esteemed friend and correspondent.

PUBLIC LEDGER ALMANACK, 1877. J. W. Childs, Philadelphia.

We welcome once again this most useful and interesting publication, and are glad to call the attention of our readers to it, especially all about to visit Philadelphia, all who are interested in those things which a "fellah ought to know."

A FREEMASON. An extract from the works of ZSHOKKE. Translated from the German by Bro. ERNST E. WULFF.

We have been much struck with a little translation from Zshokke, which, executed by Bro. Wulff, of Glasgow, is now issuing from the printing office of the proprietor of the Freemason, and of which an early copy has been sent to us. It seems to us to be well done and likely to be much read. It is alike interesting and forcible, correct and convincing in itself, and cannot fail to do away with some misconceptions, of and dispel many objections to, Freemasonry. It appears to us to be alike opportunely and wisely published, and though we fear if Masonic books are many Masonic readers are "few and far between," yet we still trust in the dawn of a better day for Masonic literature, when its writers shall be more appreciated, and its readers will no longer be counted by units, but by thousands. We are glad to call attention, then, to this unpretending, but useful "brochure," which is very neatly printed, and is both readable and amusing in the highest degree.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGE AT BRIGHTON.

A wedding of more than usual interest, combining the civic and Masonic elements, took place on Thursday, the 6th inst., in the fashionable town of Brighton. The proceedings commenced with the merry peals ringing from the belfry of St. Nicholas Church, the crowds assembled in the vicinity of St. Peter's indicating that one of those interesting events in which the majority of mankind take an interest, was about to be consummated. Needless to say, the indications were correct, and the happy "contracting parties" on this particular occasion were Miss Kate Weston, only daughter of Bro. Councillor Oliver Weston, North-road; and Mr. Frederick Bridgen, third son of Bro. Alderman J. L. Bridgen, J.P., Ex-Mayor of Brighton, P.M. 732, P.P.G.W. Sussex, of the Western-road. Fifteen minutes past eleven was the hour fixed for the wedding, and long before that time the approaches to St. Peter's Church were densely crowded. An almost similar condition of things reigned within the sacred edifice itself. The wedding party arrived within a minute or so of the appointed time, the bride being conducted to the altar by her father, who subsequently "gave her away." In close attendance were the three bridesmaids—Miss Jessie Bridgen, Miss E. White, and Miss Ettie Thorpe. The bride was attired in a white satin dress surmounted by an embroidered veil. The bridesmaids wore white cashmere dresses trimmed with ruby velvet, their hats being similarly adorned. The Rev. J. J. Hannah conducted the marriage service, and the responses were given in a clear audible tone. As the party were retiring to the vestry, Mr. Crapps played Mendelssohn's spirited "Wedding March" on the organ. A move was then made for Wentworth House, Marine parade, where a satisfactory dejeuner was served by Mr. Booth, of East-street, and was partaken by a large number of friends who had assembled to wish the newly-married pair "bon voyage." The company present included Mr. Albert Adams, Mr. Felix Adams, Bro. and Mrs. J. L. Bridgen, Miss Bridgen, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bridgen, Bro. and Mrs. Buckman, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke,

Miss Goldsmith, Rev. Julius Hannah, Bro. Alderman Lamb, ex-Mayor of Brighton, the Mayor Bro. Alderman Davey, J.P. (P.M. 732), Mr. and Mrs. R. Perry, Mrs. Reffit, Mr. and Mrs. Tugwell, Miss Thorpe, Bro. Councillor Oliver Weston, Mrs. White, Bro. Sturt Weston, Miss Emily White, Mr. O. Weston, jun., and Master W. C. Weston. During the "after-breakfast" proceedings, the Mayor (Bro. Alderman Davey) proposed the "Bride and Bridegroom," which was acknowledged by the bridegroom. "The Bridesmaids and Best Man" were toasted at the invitation of Bro. Alderman Lamb, and responded to by Mr. J. Bridgen, who had officiated in the latter capacity. The graver responsibility of proposing "The Parents" was undertaken by the Rev. Julius Hannah, and appropriately replied to by the respective "heads" of the families. In order, we presume, to pay a special compliment to the ladies—the value of their co-operation under similar circumstances being so obvious—Bro. Sturt Weston asked the company to drink the health of the "Visitors and Ladies," which was characteristically replied to by the Mayor. The "happy pair" started on their honeymoon by the 3.45 for London, and after spending a week in the "great city," they will proceed to Leeds. We subjoin a list of the presents:—

Set of six fish knives and forks, Mr. James Bridgen; tea pot, Mr. A. Adams; coffee pot, Mr. F. Adams; sugar basin, cream ewer, and sugar tongs, Mr. Steer; biscuit canister, J. O. ANNUAL BALL OF THE NEW CONCORD LODGE, No. 819.

The New Concord Lodge, No. 819, held its annual ball in the Freemasons' Tavern on Wednesday evening, the 5th inst. There was a full muster of the members present, besides the usual large contingent of visitors whom the ball in connection with this lodge yearly attracts. Shortly after nine o'clock the genial and popular Master of Ceremonies, Bro. R. Johnson, entered the hall, and dancing soon commenced, the following ladies and gentlemen taking part in the first quadrille:—Bro. Wm. Stead, W.M., and Mrs. Harper; Bro. W. H. Main, P.M., and Mrs. Notson; Bro. J. R. Gillant, P.M., and Miss Bryant; Bro. T. Bartlett, P.M., and Mrs. Bartlett; Bro. R. R. Harper, S.W., and Miss Todd; Bro. R. R. Harper, jun., and Miss Fisk; Bro. J. Stillwell, and Mrs. Stillwell; Bro. W. Pierpoint, D.C., and Miss Stillwell; Bro. A. J. Patter, and Miss Sharvell; Mr. and Mrs. Turnham, Mr. and Mrs. Worth.

Dancing was kept up briskly until twelve o'clock, when the company which, by this time, numbered about 170, repaired to the supper-room, where there was provided a splendid cold collation, over which the W.M., Bro. Stead, presided, supported by the Stewards.

The toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," and "The New Concord Lodge," were duly honoured. Bro. Bartlett suitably acknowledged the latter.

"The Ladies" was next proposed by the W.M. in a happy speech, and was responded to, in equally felicitous terms, by Bro. Main.

Dancing was resumed shortly after one o'clock and kept up till about four o'clock in the morning. The programme was elaborate and varied, much of the music arranged for the dances being selected from some of the most popular of the latest comic operas. The band, under the leadership of Bro. H. J. Dane, very efficiently supplied the music.

The ceremony of installation of Principals will be worked at the Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement, Jamaica Coffee House, Cornhill, on Tuesday evening next at 6 o'clock, by Comp. William Stephens, P.Z., &c.

efficient working of the ceremonies, and proves an assistance to the W.M., who, in the absence of a Chaplain, usually recited the several prayers. The investiture was applauded by the brethren in Masonic form. Bro. W. H. Farnfield, I.P.M., then moved that, as the W.M. would represent the All Saints Lodge at the R.M.B.I. Festival, the sum of £5 5s. be placed on his list from the funds of the lodge. This being unanimously agreed to, the W.M. expressed thanks, and stated he had then a sum of fifty guineas, and relied on the individual efforts of the brethren to supplement the amount. This resulted in a further sum of ten guineas being then and there collected. A circular having been read from Bro. F. Binckes, asking for a Steward from the lodge for the annual festival of the R.M.B.I., Bro. Coleman, S.W., announced it was his intention to serve the office, and trusted the brethren would support him. The lodge was then closed in due form. At the after proceedings, which consisted simply of light refreshment (this being a non-banqueting lodge), the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and in responding to that of "The Visitors," Bros. May, Burne, Martin, and Brown severally expressed gratification at their reception, and all agreed that the work in the lodge had been performed in a manner never surpassed at any lodge they had attended.

FARRINGTON WITHOUT LODGE (No. 1745).—This new but highly prosperous lodge met on Monday, the 27th ult., at the Holborn Viaduct Hotel, when there were present Bros. W. H. Jackson, jun., P.M. Royal Arthur; W. M. C. Jacques, S.W.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. Middx., J.W. and Secretary (pro tem.); Ramsey, P.M., Treasurer; H. A. Dubois, P.P.G.O. of Middx., Hon. I.P.M.; Lardner, S.D.; M. Samuel, J.D.; Parkinson, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. most ably raised Bro. C. Potter, passed Bro. Strugnell, and initiated Mr. William Williams into Craft mysteries. The ballot was then taken and declared to be unanimous in favour of Bro. Horace Brooks Marshall, C.C., Royal Hanover Lodge, as a joining member. The following notices of motion were then considered—by the S.W., "That the sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds of the lodge, and placed in its name upon the list of Bro. Ramsey, P.M., as Steward to the forthcoming festival in connection with the R.M.I. for Girls." By the Hon. I.P.M., "That for services rendered to the lodge, Bro. Hart, of the St. James's Union, be elected an honorary member." Both of these motions having been duly seconded were carried nem. con. The visitors present were Bros. Rickin, W.M. 1536; Murden, S.D. 171; G. Manners, J.D. 1589; Hart, St. James's Union; Acland, Lodge of Israel. The lodge having been closed in ancient form, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was elegantly served. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the customary Loyal and Craft toasts, which were duly honoured. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed in very feeling terms by the I.P.M., in which he expressed the great pleasure it had afforded him and the members of the lodge at seeing the W.M. once more among them in the apparent enjoyment of good health. On the last occasion when the lodge met two months ago, the most serious reports were rife as to the W.M.'s condition, it being stated that it was only a question of a few days whether he would succumb or not. It had pleased the G.A.O.T.U., however, to restore him to health, and he hoped that it would be many years before Bro. Jackson would be called upon again to undergo so severe an ordeal. The W.M. having made an able response, immediately proposed "The Health of the Initiate." In introducing this toast the W.M. congratulated the lodge upon the advent that evening of a brother whom he was sure would not only reflect credit upon the lodge of his adoption, but upon the Order generally. He was necessarily one of the youngest Masons in the Craft, as he had only just attained his majority. In conclusion he hoped that in the course of time he would become an able exponent of the mysteries of the Order. Bro. Williams, in reply, briefly thanked the W.M. for the flattering manner in which he had proposed the toast, and also expressed his obligations to the brethren for having admitted him as one of their number. As the W.M. had predicted he hoped to become a good working Mason, but if unable to achieve that end, he would promise to do nothing that should disgrace Freemasonry. "The Visitors," followed, and having been responded to, the W.M., in very felicitous terms proposed "The Health of the Officers." This toast having been duly acknowledged, the Tyler was called upon to discharge his duty, and the proceedings terminated.

SAINT LEONARD LODGE (No. 1766).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Town Hall, Shore-ditch, on Wednesday, the 5th inst., Bro. Louis Stean, W.M., presiding, assisted by Bros. G. T. Barr, S.W.; C. F. Barham, J.W.; C. Stevens, Treas.; J. Cox, Hon. Sec.; E. Benjamin, S.D.; J. A. Jones, J.D.; A. A. Clement, I.G.; R. Marshall, S.; G. C. Young, Org.; and C. T. Speight, Tyler. Besides a good attendance of members of the lodge, there were also present, Bros. W. P. Dukes, P.M. 15; W. Hester, P.M. 749; E. S. Parker, P.M. 1579; C. W. Cox, S.W. 1566; R. W. Biggs, J.D. 1421; A. Wagstaff, 188; S. J. Wolton, 1693. From the reading of the minutes, it appeared that at a lodge of emergency, Bros. Funston, Waynforth, King, and Matthews had been raised to the Sublime Degree. After the usual formularies, Bro. the Rev. H. G. Henderson, was duly entrusted with the distinguishing badge of a Master Mason, the ceremony being most impressively worked by the W.M. and his officers. Bros. Tidball, Thrower, and Drysdale were then duly passed to the F.C. Degree. Mr. W. J. Stevens was balloted for and afterwards initiated into the ancient mysteries of the Order, the work being admirably done. Bro. W. H. Brand, No. 1524, was elected a member of the lodge. Other business was also transacted, and a sum of £10 was voted to the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Bro. W. Beasley having undertaken to serve the office of Steward at the forthcoming anniversary festival. The W.M. then proceeded to invest Bro. the Rev. H. G. Henderson with the collar and jewel of Chaplain of the lodge, and Bro. G. C. Young, who had previously been appointed Organist, was now likewise formally invested. The lodge having been duly closed, the brethren retired from labour to refreshment, which was served by Bro. Grist in his usual excellent manner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, Bro. the Rev. H. G. Henderson warmly acknowledging the kindly spirit and excellent working of the Worshipful Master, and the visitors expressing high approval of the conduct of the Master and his officers, as well as the unanimity which appeared to exist amongst the whole of the brethren. The meeting was altogether of a very satisfactory character, and this new lodge is evidently making very satisfactory progress.

MANCHESTER.—Affability Lodge (No. 317).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on the 6th inst. Bro. J. Lever occupied the chair of K.S., supported by his respective officers, and a fair number of brethren being present. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed, after which Mr. Whitfield was balloted for and unanimously elected a member of the lodge, and was then duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry as an E.A. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. R. R. Lisenden raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., this ceremony being performed in a most impressive and able manner by the I.P.M., Bro. D. Doubar, and who had also previously performed the ceremonies of initiation and passing with Bro. Lisenden; after which the lodge was closed with the usual formalities.

RYE.—Wellington Lodge (No. 341).—On Thursday, Feb. 6th., an official visit was paid to this lodge by the Right Worshipful Prov. G.M. of Sussex (Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P.). He was attended by his officers, most of whom left Brighton by the 7.55 morning train. It was the annual meeting, and Bro. Francis Milson was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year. The lodge was held at the George Hotel. An initiation having been exceedingly well performed by Bro. Rubie, the outgoing Master, Bro. W. Dawes, P.G. Registrar, went through the ceremony of installing the new Master in an elaborate and masterly manner. At the conclusion of the business (2.30), the brethren adjourned to the Cinque Ports Hotel to dinner. This early hour was fixed that the Prov. G.M. might return home the same evening. An excellent repast was provided, and the arrangements generally were very satisfactory. In responding to the toast of his health, as Prov. Grand Master of Sussex, Sir Walter Burrell said that although the town of Rye had been reached by them at considerable inconvenience, owing to bad railway accommodation, it had afforded him and his officers considerable pleasure to be present, and especially to witness the very efficient working of the lodge. On referring to the minute book he said he found it was eleven years ago to the day that a similar official visit had been paid, but his intention being to attend each lodge at short intervals, he hoped to see the brethren of the Wellington Lodge again ere long. The other toasts were of the usual complimentary character, "The Health of Bro. Rubie," who had occupied the chair during the past two years, being given in especially flattering terms. Several officers and brethren of the province of Kent were also present.

WIMBORNE.—St Cuthberga Lodge (No. 622).—On Monday, the 3rd inst., the W.M. elect W. Bro. C. H. W. Parkinson, P.M., 386, and P.G.J.W. (Dorset) was installed Worshipful Master of "St. Cuthberga" Lodge. No. 622, he having been elected to fill that honourable position in his own lodge at the last meeting of the brethren in January. W. Bro. Hammond (P.M. 622), conducted the installation ceremony in a very efficient manner. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—W. Bros. J. Atkins, I.P.M.; C. W. Wyndham, S.W.; Bro. W. Wyke Smith, I.W.; W. Bros. Rev. W. M. Heath, Chap.; T. T. Budden, Treas.; J. Whitehead Smith, Sec.; Bros. Lodder, S.D.; Bugden, J.D.; Clifton, I.G.; Haylett, Tyler; W. Bro. Hammond accepted the collar of D.C.; and W. Bro. J. Whitehead Smith that of Organist. A large number of the members of the lodge and visiting brethren were present, and after the business of the lodge was closed they adjourned from the lodgeroom to the Corn Exchange, where a very elegant and substantial banquet awaited them, provided by Bro. Hoare, of the Criterion Hotel, Bournemouth. About fifty sat down to the banquet, including the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. Montague Guest, the D.P.G.M., Bro. J. P. Gundry, W. Bros. Hambro (W.M. of the Blandford Lodge) and Bryan, (W.M. of the Winchester Lodge); Captain Hanham, G. Burt (of Swanage and London), Rev. W. M. Heath, the Masters of the Poole and Wareham Lodges, and Past Masters from Ringwood, Bournemouth, Weymouth, Blandford, and Shaftesbury. The usual Masonic toasts were given, not forgetting "The Charities," for which W. Bro. H. C. Burt responded. The collection at the table in aid of the charities amounted to £7 7s. The banquet was well served, well attended, and thoroughly enjoyed by all, under the presidency of the W.M., and a few songs and recitations added interest and harmony to the meeting, which proved one of the most successful ever held under the auspices of "St. Cuthberga," and W. Bro. Parkinson is to be congratulated for such an auspicious commencement of his year of office. It may be noted that the lodge at their meeting on Monday voted £10 10s. to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the like sum for the Girls, and a similar sum for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons.

HAVANT.—Carnarvon Lodge (No. 804).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday the 4th inst. The W.M., Bro. Thomas Parsons Hall, presided, assisted by a goodly number of Past Masters, including Bros. W. Hillinan, Weeks, Purnell, Harrison, Good, and Francis, and a very large number of brethren. Additional interest in this meeting was probably created by the presence of a number of visitors; the W.M. having generously invited the seven brethren who were the founders of the recently constituted Landport Lodge, Bro. M. E. Frost, P.M., P.G., Treasurer, and many officers and brethren from the neighbouring lodges. The ceremony of raising a brother was very efficiently and creditably performed by the W.M., who was ably assisted by a well-drilled and intelligent staff of officers. After the business of the lodge had been concluded, the brethren adjourned to the Dolphin Hotel, and partook of an excellent dinner, served in Bro. Purnell's best style. The loyal and Masonic toasts were given with considerable confidence and ability by the W.M., Bro. M. E. Frost, P.M., P.G. Treas., responded for the P.G.M. and his officers, and humorously alluded to their former visits, especially the laying of the foundation stone of the new Hall in such unfavourable weather. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Visitors," said that he considered this toast as the principal one that evening, as they were delighted to honour the founders of the Landport Lodge, and officially recognised them in their good work in establishing another centre in the large and populous borough of Portsmouth for spreading the benign influence and genuine tenets of Freemasonry. The toast was received with great cordiality and enthusiasm, and ably responded to by Bro. John Clarke, S.W., who, with his usual earnestness, replied at some length to Bro. Hall's kind remarks. Bros. E. S. Main and A. Riddell, Past Masters, 1776 also responded. The W.M. of the Landport Lodge, Bro. R. J. Murrell, was unable to attend, in consequence of a meeting of the Watch Committee of the Town Council. Some capital songs by Bros. J. Stroud, J.W. 1705, and G. T. Cunningham, 1776 concluded a most agreeable and harmonious meeting.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The first meeting of this lodge, after the feast of St. John the Evangelist, was held on Tuesday evening, the 4th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Station-street. There were present:—Bros. Capt. Sewell, W.M.; J. Black, I.P.M.; T. Bird, S.W.; T. C. Robinson, J.W.; W. Shilton, P.M.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org.; W. Taylor, P.M.; J. Fearon, Sec.; H. Peacock, S.D.; R. W. Robinson, J.D.; R. Harrison, I.G.; W. Paisley, Steward; J. Hewson, Tyler; I. Evening, S. Ferguson, J. Towers, J. Borrowscale, C. H. McCall, T. C. Fearon, J. C. Nicholson, T. Mason, and W. F. Lamonby, P.M. (Freemason). The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. Mason, having given proof of his proficiency, claimed preferment, was intrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and he was re-admitted, and duly passed to the degree of F.C. by the W.M. in first-class style. The new officers, also, performed their work in the most correct and effectual manner. The working tools were presented by the J.W., and the charge of the degree delivered by the S.W. After the lodge was closed down to the First Degree, Bro. Black, I.P.M., warmly complimented the W.M. on the ability displayed by him in the chair. The W.M. subsequently, in sympathising terms, congratulated Bro. T. C. Fearon on his recent providential escape from shipwreck. Bro. Fearon, it may be observed, is the son of the Secretary of Skiddaw Lodge, and was initiated in that lodge four or five months ago, passed in his mother lodge, and raised in Antient Union Lodge, No. 203, Liverpool, prior to shipping to South Shields, as chief officer of the Dorica, bound to Valparaiso, with coal. The vessel foundered in the Bay of Biscay, on the 21st of last month, and the whole of the crew were fortunately rescued by the S.S. Zena, which landed them at Liverpool, two days after. Bro. Fearon, under such circumstances, it may be readily conjectured, received a hearty welcome at the hands of his brethren of Skiddaw Lodge. Before the lodge was closed, Bro. Lamonby, P.M., gave notice of motion for the formation of a Masonic library, in connection with the Skiddaw Lodge, with the appointment of a committee, consisting of the W.M., Wardens, Past Masters, and Secretary, to carry the same into effect.

To revert to the business of Monday, the members were summoned for five o'clock, but, although there was an initiation on the summons, it was half an hour ere the lodge was opened. The members present were:—Bros. William Lamony, W.M., P.P.G. Tyler; J. Wood, P.M., P.P.G. Org.; E. Hinks, W.M. elect; D. Pape, S.W.; Jos. Barron, Treas.; W. Wilson, Sec.; Jon. Scott, S.D.; G. P. Abraham, Org.; W. Gaspey, D.C.; J. Armstrong, I.G.; C. Thompson, Tyler; J. Wales, F. Jackson, W. Thornton, J. Rushford, T. Usher, D. Crowden, and A. Pettitt. The visitors were:—Bros. H. Cook, P.M., 149; Willie Laren and 1225; Barrow-in-Furness, P.G.S.W., Cumberland and Westmoreland; W. B. Gibson, P.M., 119, P.G., Secretary; J. C. Hunter, P.M., 962; Workington, and 1225; R. Hooker, P.M., 1225; J. Huartson, P.M., and Treas., 1021, Barrow-in-Furness; J. T. McIntosh, 1225, and W. F. Lamony, P.M., 1002, P.P.G., Reg. (Freemason). Bro. Hinks, the W.M. elect, it should be stated, attended the meeting under very disadvantageous circumstances, he having pluckily travelled all the way from Barrow-in-Furness, a complete cripple, the result of the accident before noted. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes read, adjourned, including alteration of the date of meeting from the Monday before full moon till the first Tuesday in each month. W. F. Lamony, P.M., was invited to take the chair, when Mr. James Coward, who had previously been balloted for, was admitted, and regularly initiated into Masonry. The initiate, having retired, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Cook, P.M., 119 and 1225, assumed the presiding officer's position, and performed the whole ceremony of installation, inclusive of the investiture of the officer's said charges, with a correct and rhetorical ability scarcely to be excelled anywhere. The officers were appointed and invested as follow:—Bros. W. Lamony, the P.M.; D. Pape, S.W.; D. Crowden, J.W.; J. Barrow, Treas. (re-elected); J. Wales, Sec.; W. Hodgson, S.D.; W. Wilson, J.D.; G. P. Abraham, Osg. (re-elected); J. Rushford, the I.G.; T. Usher, D.C.; C. Thompson, Tyler (re-elected). On the proclamations being put from the chair, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the installing Master for his kindness in coming so far, and the elaborate manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. A vote of thanks was also METROPOLITAN MARK LODGE.—After a lapse of several years an attempt has been made to revive this once famous Mark Lodge of Instruction. The first meeting took place on Wednesday last at eight o'clock at the Harp Tavern, Jermyn-street. The ceremony of advancement was rehearsed by Bros. Manden (W.M. Thistle), W.M.; Farwig, S.W.; H. Longtom; (J.W. Brixton), J.W.; Baber, as S.D.; Burrell, I.G. As this is the only lodge of instruction in the Metropolis for this degree it is hoped that Mark Masters will attend regularly at eight o'clock punctually at the Harp Tavern, Jermyn-street.

PRUDENT BRETHREN CHAPTER (No. 145).—A meeting of this chapter was held on the 11th inst., at Freemasons' Hall; there were present, Comps. E. H. Thiellay, P.G.D.C. Middx., M.E.Z.; J. C. Cox, H.; H. Venn, J.; and the following Past Principals, Comps. H. Dicketts, T. Bull, E. Moody, W. Platt, G. S. States, P.Z., S.E.; G. Biggs, P.S.; W. H. Braine, and Ast.; H. Sadler, Janitor; J. G. Manby, Dr. Whiteway Wilkinson, J. Chinnery, J. H. Leggot, J. Moon, T. W. Leuty, C. A. Woods, J. Waugh, T. A. de Leliva, H. Hall, A. Daw Kerrell, G. Clark, M. A. Woodliffe, the Rev. W. H. Frazer, and the following visitors Comps. Smallpeice, P.Z.; and W. Kippis, P.Z. The minutes of the preceding convocation were read and confirmed, Bros. A. W. Martin and H. Smith the candidates present, were balloted for and unanimously elected, and duly exalted by the M.E.Z. The ceremony being performed by the officers in the excellent manner which has become so notorious with the Prudent Brethren Chapter, an address of condolence was voted to be forwarded to Comp. Jermyn Boyd, son of the distinguished Mason who has so recently departed from this life, leaving such a vacancy never to be forgotten in the Chapter of Prudent Brethren. Owing to this lamentable occurrence, the M.E.Z. requested Comp. Thos. Bull, being the eldest eligible member to take the Treasurership of the chapter, until the next annual election of officers; which generous responsibility was cheerfully accepted. Letters of apology for non attendance were received from Comp. D. Haslet, S.N., and others. Business being ended, the chapter was closed and adjourned. The companions dined together at the Freemasons' Tavern, due solemnity being observed.

OLD KENT LODGE.—A meeting of the members of this distinguished and prosperous lodge was convened on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at the Ship and Turtle Hotel, Leadenhall-street. There were present, among others, Bros. T. Poore, P.G.I.G., acting W.M., in the absence, through severe indisposition, of the W.M., Bro. Charles Jacques; E. C. Mather, S.W.; Henry Venn, J.W.; J. H. Wynne, P.M., Treasurer; D. M. Dewar, P.M., &c., &c., Secretary; J. Moon, M.O.; H. Dicketts, S.O.; W. B. Date, J.O.; J. O. Wood, J.G.; S. Rosenthal, P.M., &c.; W. Roebuck, P.M., &c.; A. Solomon; and Rawles, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. T. J. Pulley, P.M. 54, and T. C. Walls, S.W. 211, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Joseph Tanner, P.M. Eleanor Lodge, was ably advanced to the M.M.M. Degree by that veteran in Masonry, Bro. Poore. The election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler was unanimously in favour of Bros. Mather, Wynne, and Rawles. Previously to the lodge being closed, a notice of motion was given that the annual subscription should be raised. The Old Kent has attached to it a lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, and when the Mark business was concluded, Bro. D. M. Dewar, P.C.N., proceeded to open the lodge in the former Degree, for the elevation of several distinguished brethren who were in attendance for that purpose. The respective chairs of J. and S. were ably occupied by Bros. Poore and Roebuck, and Bro. Rosenthal officiated as P.C.N. The ceremony was performed by Bro. T. C. Walls. The brethren who were inducted to this very interesting degree were Bros. Tanner, Dicketts, Wood, Pulley, and Rooks. Upon the conclusion of the work, Bros. Mather, Wynne, and Rawles were unanimously elected to the respective offices of W.C.N., Treasurer, and Warden. The brethren then adjourned to a well served collation, ably presided over by Bro. Roebuck. Bros. Dewar, Wynne, and Rosenthal replied on behalf of "The Grand Officers." "The Health of the W.M." was acknowledged by his locum tenens, Bro. Roebuck. In response to "The Advance," Bro. Tanner expressed his satisfaction at the manner in which the two ceremonies of the Mark and Royal Ark Degrees had been performed. In concluding his speech, he hoped that the members of the Old Kent would never have occasion to regret having admitted him among them. "The Visitors" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Poore and Walls. "The Health of the Past Masters" was given, and drew in response from Bro. Dewar a stirring appeal on behalf of the funds of the new educational scheme in connection with the Mark Degree. The brethren, to show their appreciation of Bro. Dewar's efforts to promote this laudable undertaking, and as a mark of their unanimous approval, subscribed £5, which handsome amount was duly handed to the Treasurer, for the purpose of its being forwarded to the proper quarter. "The W.M. Elect" came next in order, and his toast having been most warmly received, Bro. Mather modestly acknowledged the compliment. In giving "The Health of the Officers," Bro. Roebuck dwelt at some length upon the great and valuable services of Bros. Wynne, Treasurer, and Dewar, Secretary, and to whose exertions the prosperity of the Old Kent was mainly due. In concluding his remarks, he said that the other officers were equal in working capabilities to any Mark lodge in London, and he hoped that they would in turn ultimately arrive at the proud position of W.M. in the Old Kent. This pledge having been responded to, the Tyler's toast at an early hour terminated the proceedings.

BRIXTON LODGE (No. 234).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Saturday last, at half-past five o'clock, the W.M., W. Bro. T. Poore, P.G.I.G., P.M., in the chair. Bro. C. P. Mackay, S.W.; H. Lovegrove, J.W.; G. Clark, jun., M.O.; J. Curtis, S.O.; Acland, acting J.O.; J. Baldwin, Secretary; Dr. Pearce, S.D.; Moss, J.D.; Evans, I.G.; and K. Potter, Tyler. After the minutes of previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. W. Acland, 139, as a joining member, and having proved unanimous, the next business was to ballot for Bros. J. J. Gibson, Belgrave, W. Weekes, Stuart, and A. T. Pearce, Carnarvon, and the two latter being in attendance were duly advanced to the honourable degree. The ceremony was well performed by the W.M., the musical portion being very efficiently rendered by W. Bro. W. G. Brighton, G. Mark Sup. Works, and Prov. G.S. Middx. and Surrey. There were several honorary members and visitors present, among whom were Bros. J. H. Leggett, J. W. Thistle, J. K. Pitt, W.M. elect 198; Pulman, G.M.S.; M. J. Laribam. After the transaction of some routine business the lodge was closed and adjourned until the second Saturday in May.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Nervousness and want of Energy.—When the nerves feel unstrung and listlessness supplants energy, it is the right time to take some alternative as Holloway's Pills to prevent disorder running into disease. These excellent Pills correct all irregularities and weakness. They act so kindly, yet so energetically, on the functions of digestion and assimilation that the whole body is revived, the blood is rendered richer and purer, the muscles become firmer and stronger, and the nervous and absorbent systems are invigorated. These Pills are suitable for all classes and all ages. They have a most marvellous effect on persons who are out of condition, they soon rectify whatever is in fault, restore strength to the body and confidence to the mind. —[Avert.]

The consecration of this lodge took place in the Freemasons' Hall on Monday, the 10th inst., in the presence of a large and distinguished assembly of Freemasons. H. Chisholm, 1602 (Freemason).

The brethren met in an ante-room of the hall, at half-past four, and thence, forming themselves into processional order, marched into the lodge room, where they received the Consecrating Officer, Bro. John Hervey, P.M., Grand Secretary, who, on taking the chair, appointed as office bearers pro tem., Bros. T. Fenn, P.G.D., as S.W.; E. J. Barrow, P.G.D., as J.W.; J. Terry, P.P.G. J.W., Herts, D. of C.; and J. Dyer, P.M. 1314, as I.G. The lodge being opened by Bro. John Hervey, G.S., he addressed the brethren with his usual clearness and effect. He said, that they were again assembled to form a new lodge, and one, too, which has taken the name of an honoured brother amongst them—Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton (applause), and to whose services to Freemasonry, for many years, alike for the Craft at large—the Charities in particular, he could bear most ample testimony. He hoped all success would attend the Creaton Lodge, and he felt sure, that in its future career, it would never derogate from the high character of him whose name it bore. Bro. Hervey then went on to say, that with this repetition of consecration and applications for new lodges, not only were we now almost beginning another hundred on the roll, and entering into 1800, but he felt he was bound to say a few words of kindly caution. It was to be feared that many now were seeking Freemasonry from its material benefits, its remarkable educational institutions, its helpful annuities, but he thought it right to point out that Freemasonry ought not to be merely strong in numbers, but in the character of its members, and, therefore, too much care and discrimination could not be exercised in the admission of new members. He might say a good deal more, Bro. Hervey continued, but as we have a long evening before us, I will now, congratulating the brethren on the present assembly, proceed with the appointed ceremonies of consecration. (Applause.)

Bro. Hervey's address was evidently most welcome to, and in accordance with, the sentiments of the influential gathering.

The usual ceremonial on such occasions was followed and interspersed with some most effective music, and at the proper place, Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., delivered the following oration:—

M.W. Consecrating Officer—I have been requested to deliver the customary oration to-day, at the consecration of the Creaton Lodge, and the duty is, on personal grounds as well as for Masonic considerations, rendered alike to myself a deep pleasure and a great privilege. In the first place, I am very glad to be permitted to take part in the always interesting ceremony to the attached members of our Order, as a mark of respect, esteem, and attachment to our common friend and brother, Colonel Creaton, whose services to the Craft have been so many and so real; whose interest in all our Charities never wavers, whose personal merits have so rightly attracted to him the confidence of his brethren, and whose whole Masonic and public career has attached to him so many applauding and admiring comrades. To myself, V.W. Sir, I venture to repeat, it is a subject of very great personal pleasure to be permitted, in my humble capacity, to be associated with these proceedings, and to act as one of the Consecrating Officers under your distinguished presidency, when a new lodge is about to be devoted by our ancient ceremonial to the service of Masonry, to the welfare of mankind, and is henceforth to be known amongst us by the name of my excellent and distinguished friend and brother, Lieut.-Col. Creaton, as the Creaton Lodge. Some opposition has been hastily made to the adoption of the names of living Masons for our lodges, but in this view, I, for one, cannot concur. We have many names of lodges amongst us which recall pleasantly to our memories old friends and long services to Masonry, (and which I need not mention, being known to us all), and there is this one advantage in it, as it appears to me, in all deference to those who think differently. We have in the names whether of departed Masonic brethren, or patron saints, or the cardinal virtues, or social qualifications, or local cognomina, after all, what is so distant and what is abstract, a custom of the past, partly mythic, partly historical, as the case may be, and only appealing, after all, to ourselves, in what is ideal, what is philosophically true, or welcome, or admirable, or commendable. But in the name of our brethren we have the practical proof of what Freemasonry is, what it does, what it teaches, inasmuch as in admiring their talents, or sympathising with their merits, recalling their good services to our common Order, or offering to them the tribute of our heartfelt attachment, good will, and respect, we seek to perpetuate in their honoured names, familiar to our lips as household words, those Masonic attributes we most desiderate, those Masonic excellences we most commend, these Masonic services we deem to be the most deserving of our affectionate recognition, or our grateful recollection. But I pass on to other topics. In the next place, I rejoice to think that the Creation Lodge, which we consecrate to day, represents what is, after all, the very life of true Freemasonry in England, the aggregation of individual brethren who know each other, who value each other, who respect each other, who are attached to each other, and who thus essay to form within the sacred enclosure of the lodge another pleasant retreat of mutual sympathy, friendship, content, and goodwill. This new lodge has not, I understand, been formed hastily, or unadvisedly; it is not marked either by the unsatisfactory condition of too rapid growth, or mere personal anxiety for office; it is the result of much consideration, and is established to meet a want of many brethren, some of old standing in the Order, of congenial tastes and pursuits and well-known respectability, to find a nucleus of adhesion, a centre of attraction and a bond of union in the important duties and pleasant sociability of a Masonic lodge; and I feel sure that it will be the hope of all now present, that this Creation Lodge may prosper, alike in its material and its Masonic condition, that it will be noted among our many other distinguished bodies of Masons for its obedience to authority, its love of order, harmony, and concord; its hospitality, and its liberality, its good Masonic work, and its large Masonic heart in the cause of Masonic charity. As one of the Consecrating Officers to day, I beg to express the sincere wish, which I believe will be echoed by my superior officer and coadjutors, as it will be, I feel sure, by all present, that no cloud may obscure its bright and onward career, but that it take a foremost place among English lodges, and be a source of pride to its brethren and an ornament to the English lodges. And, thirdly, V.W. Sir, I, for one, as a very old Mason now (like yourself), venture to rejoice in the creation of a new lodge. I hear, sometimes, remarks that we are forming too many new lodges, and that we are moving on too rapidly. I, for one, do not believe it. On the contrary, I feel sure that in every new lodge, when rightly conducted, we have a fresh incentive to every moral, and every social virtue; we have an additional guarantee for the peace and good order of society; we have a new declaration of the great principles of toleration, and civil and religious liberty; we have a reiterated appeal to loyalty and obedience to law. For what is that which Freemasonry really does proclaim, that good old Order of ours, so often assailed by the ignorant and the credulous; so often maligned by the preverse and prejudiced; so often ridiculed, and even excommunicated by the petulant and the intolerant? What is it that it certainly does teach to all, to neophytes and to men? Am I wrong, Sir, in saying that Freemasonry, though not religion, (as it cannot be), and never professes to be, is a most religious Fraternity, in that it makes both the foundation stone and the keystone of its glorious Masonic arch which spaces the universe, acknowledgment of, reverence for, and trust in God Most High, the Great Architect of the Universe, Kings of Kings, Lord of Lords? Freemasonry does not seek to dogmatize, as regards either, the belief or the conviction of men; it imposes no tests; it asserts no formulae of inflexible or fallible authority. Its only Theology is that which bids us to believe in the great fatherhood of God, and the living brotherhood of man, and strictly to obey God's law, and avoiding all controversies, and rejecting all discussions, just as it repudiates all persecution for conscience sake; it seeks to unite all who can say "Our Father which art in heaven," around its beneficent and peaceful altars of simple religious faith and earnest religious duty. Freemasonry bases all its goodly moral teaching, on what? On the dicta of Masonic authors, or Masonic philosophers, or Masonic sages? On the axioms of antiquity, or the didactic excellence of mere human morality? Most certainly not! It simply and solely builds up its whole moral lore on God's Holy Word—the Bible—ever open in our lodges, the first great light in Masonry, and which constitutes alike the strength and the unity, and let us add the glory and the bond of Anglo-Saxon Masonry; that which gives cohesion to our whole moral teaching, which throws its holy and purifying light over the whole circle of Masonic morals, which while it reminds us of our needful sympathies and wants and conditions of men, never forgets to own to, to look up to, to confide in God Most High. And thus based on the best of books, the inspired source of Divine wisdom and truth, Freemasonry bids us be loyal subjects, and good citizens, exemplary members of that family, and home life so dear to us as a wise and understanding people, and impresses upon us due regard to all our public and private callings, and enjoins us to carry out on all occasions daily and hourly, both abroad and at home, the principles we profess, the teachings we avow. In this world of change and imperfection, where all is still morally in disorder and weakness, where infirmity too often accompanies the best resolution, and failure attends on the most consummate plans, we cannot hope or suppose that Masons are exempt from the errors or weaknesses of mortality, or that in our numerous brotherhood we all, be we who we may, can always square our duty with our inclinations, or our practice with our professions. But still it is well to remind ourselves from time to time, (making due allowance for human imperfections), that as Freemasons we profess to be a band of brothers, rejoicing in each other's prosperity, grieving in each other's adversity, foes to detraction and slander, and averse to backbiting and animosity, and even bound to uphold what is fair, and proper, and due from one brother to another, by proving ourselves, alike in dark as in sunny hours, above the paltry and time-serving propensities of our fallen nature, and ever ready and anxious to commiserate the sorrows and relieve the wants of those whom we call friends and brothers to day. Remembering these truths, we seek to drive from our midst the fawning voice of flattery and the base accents of dissimulation. We endeavour to be true to one another, and to be alike considerate and compassionate, making needful allowance for human feelings, as bearing in mind our common mortality, but promptly generous and large-hearted to alleviate the misfortunes of others by kindly words and actual deeds. Brethren of the Creation Lodge, let me earnestly impress upon you to day those sublime precepts of our Order, which inculcate mutual sympathy, mutual forbearance, mutual tolerations and mutual goodwill, and, and above all, let me remind you that Freemasonry, though great and goodly in itself, though having many striking gifts and pleasant hours, is nothing without its nobler and higher aims of charity and goodwill to the great brotherhood of man. Without Masonic charity we should be, perhaps, a decorative building indeed, adorned with precious stones and cunning ornamentation, but the spirit would be wanting, and we should have the crumbling walls of a perishing tabernacle to meet, and avert the encroaching hand of time. But illustrated and adorned by the exelling grace of charity, Freemasonry helps and ennobles its own professions by the reality of its services to the brotherhood and to mankind, and standing now before the world as the most zealous and energetic of all earthly institutions in its advocacy and support of charity, let us trust that it will never forget that it owes to that great truth a great part, at any rate, of its usefulness to its members, and its blessings to the world at large. Sir, I have done, and I will only now repeat that I am glad to be permitted, once again in my Masonic career, to bear my humble testimony to the utility, the value, the importance of Freemasonry, alike to the order and stability of society, the happiness and advance of the brotherhood, and the lasting unity and peaceful progress of every portion of the habitable world.

After the reading of the oration, which was frequently applauded, the 133rd Psalm was sung, and the formulae of the programme were duly and solemnly performed, the musical arrangements being ably carried out, under the direction of Bro. Ion Cante. The Board of Installed Masters was then formed, the rest of the brethren retiring, and the W.M. designate was formally installed in the chair of King Solomon. The brethren, on being readmitted, saluted the W.M. in the customary form in the Second and Third Degrees, after which the W.M. appointed and invested for the ensuing year the subjoined officers:—Bros. H. J. Johnson, S.W.; John Williams, J.W.; J. Nielson, S.D.; John H. Buck, J.D.; and J. I. Cante, Secretary. The remaining office-bearers will be appointed at the next meeting. The W.M. then proposed that the following brethren should be elected as honorary members of the lodge:—John Hervey, P.M., Grand Sec.; A. F. A. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain; J. Terry, P.P.G.J.W. Herts; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; and E. J. Barrow, P.G.D., all of whom, having been unanimously elected, briefly acknowledged the honour thus conferred upon them. The Secretary next read the names of several joining members, and this constituting all the business before the meeting, the lodge was formally closed until the second Thursday of March.

It goes without saying that, under the direction of such distinguished and able officers, the proceedings throughout were most ably and impressively conducted. The business being over, the brethren retired to the banqueting hall in the Freemasons' Tavern, where they were provided with a sumptuous banquet. The W.M. occupied the chair, supported by his officers. Grace was said by the Past Grand Chaplain, Bro. A. F. A. Woodford. On the cloth being removed, the customary Masonic toasts were drunk.

The W.M. said the first toast of the evening which he had the honour to propose was one always given at every assembly of Englishmen and Freemasons. It was the health of the first lady in the land, the first sovereign in Europe, the daughter of a Mason and the mother of Masons (hear, hear), "Her Majesty the Queen," and he begged to connect with the toast "The Craft." The toast was enthusiastically drunk, all the brethren standing while the National Anthem was sung. The W.M. next proposed "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." which was cordially responded to, Bro. Cante singing "God Bless the Prince of Wales." In proposing "The Grand Officers Present and Past," the W.M. referred in eulogistic terms to the unceasing interest and the great ability which all the Grand Officers shewed in connection with the Craft. After this Bro. W. G. Reynolds gave a recitation, entitled "Doncaster St. Leger," in a very effective manner. In replying to the toast of the Grand Officers, Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chaplain, remarked that he always felt very great diffidence when he rose in the presence of so many distinguished Grand Officers to return thanks for the Present and Past Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge. But he felt sure that with their usual kindness the brethren would accord him a few moments of their attention while he ventured to express on behalf of the Grand Officers and himself their earnest thanks for the honour conferred upon them that evening. The Present and Past Grand Officers were deeply sensible of that honour; and he assured the brethren that the Grand Officers were always happy to retain the good opinion of their brethren in Freemasonry, and were always glad to render their services on all occasions when they were needed and useful. (Hear, hear.) There were many reasons why the Grand Officers were pleased to be present that evening, namely, to rally round their excellent Consecrating Officer, the Grand Secretary, one of the most hard worked men in their Order, (cheers), and offer to him that humble support which his important duties and high merits so fitly claimed. He need say nothing as to the regard, attachment, and, he would say, affection, which the entire Craft entertained for their valued friend. (Cheers.) And, in the second place, they had come in such numbers to support their old and esteemed friend the new W.M. (Applause.) It had been his (the speaker's) good fortune to know the W.M. for many long years, and he believed he could say the same of many round the table that evening, and he knew that the whole career of the W.M. as a Mason had been guided by one great principle—not his own welfare, not his own promotion, not his own self-gratification, but the welfare of his brethren, the advantage of their great Charities, and the diffusion of kindly feeling and brotherly goodwill among all the brethren with whom he was brought in contact. (Hear, hear, and applause.) He was himself happy, and he felt convinced he was expressing the feelings of every Grand Officer present, to have been permitted to be present, and to inaugurate the Creation Lodge. As a member of the Craft he felt more and more proud of English Freemasonry. It was now standing before the world in a position which it had never previously attained. Its Charities were the pride not only of the brethren, but the admiration of the outer world, and he hoped and trusted that they would all long continue to remember that the great aim of Freemasonry was not merely office or rank, or power, or splendour, or even social enjoyment, though that was most excellent in its way, but it was to endeavour to show sympathy for the sufferings of their fellow-creatures, to bind up the wounds of broken-hearted brethren, to pour in the balm of consolation into the afflicted bosom, and to show that goodwill, that sympathy which ought to be the distinguishing aim of every human being, and which he trusted would ever be the leading characteristic of every true-hearted Freemason. (Cheers.)

The W.M., again rising, said he had now come to what he might term the toast of the evening—the health of the brother who had done such good service that evening. He referred to the Grand Secretary. He was sure they all felt a deep debt of gratitude to him for coming to the ceremony of consecration, and discharging the duties, which he had done so ably and nicely. Bro. Hervey was always ready to give his services when required, and, notwithstanding that he was slightly indisposed, he had done his work most admirably. (Hear, hear.) Anything that he might say beyond that was quite unnecessary. Bro. Hervey was so well known that among Freemasons his name was a household word.

The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, after which Bros. Ion Cante and Frank Percival delighted the company by singing the beautiful melody from Balfe, "Excelsior."

Bro. Hervey, in acknowledging the compliment, after thanking the brethren for the cordial reception which had been accorded him, begged to remind his hearers that the praises awarded to him were divisible. He had been admirably supported that evening, as he had on previous occasions, in carrying out the ceremony which the brethren of the Creation Lodge were desirous that he should perform. They all knew what a host Bro. Woodford was when he put his shoulder to the wheel, and assisted in performing the ceremony of consecration. They all knew also (and he did most especially) how much they were indebted to Bro. Terry (hear, hear) for the kind and courteous way in which he had extended that substantial assistance which he was always ready to give. He (the speaker) always felt that when he had Bro. Terry at his elbow he had someone whom, if he went wrong, he (Bro. Hervey) could always rely upon to assist him in his own default. He had also very good Wardens in the persons of Bros. Fenn and Barrow. (Hear, hear.) If the brethren would allow him he would supplement those remarks he had made with a few others, which, he trusted, would be more to the gratification of the brethren than what he had already uttered. They had all met to consecrate a new lodge. That had been done, and the W.M. had been installed in the chair. He was now in harness. He had his work before him and he was sure that all around that hospitable board hoped that he might prosper in his undertaking. He (the speaker) did not think there was any reason to doubt that such would be the case, because all those who knew Bro. Creation were well aware that he was fit to overcome any difficulty. They knew that in the Charities of the Order the Committees were not always amenable to the dolce far niente, but were somewhat disposed, occasionally, to run riot, and who could control them better than the worthy brother who now sat at the head of the table? (Hear, hear.) He had done more than perhaps he could with money—he had given that which was of infinitely more benefit to the Charities, namely, his time and attention (hear, hear); and his efforts to promote that unity which should prevail in every Charity Committee were untiring. No trouble was too great for him, and he was sure all the brethren knew that in his Masonic career he had not got a single enemy. (Hear, hear.) If that were the case, then he (the speaker) was quite sure that the W.M. would carry out his duties in connection with the lodge in a way that would satisfy not only the members of the lodge, but the members of the Craft generally. (Hear, hear.) He would, therefore, ask them to drink to the newly installed W.M.

The toast having been enthusiastically honoured, Bro. E. Collins very effectively sang the well-known song, "Dear Betty," which was loudly applauded.

The W.M., in replying, after thanking the brethren for the kind way in which the toast had been received, said he had had the honour of being placed in the chair of the Lodge of Antiquity, and he had thought—he would not say hoped—that when he retired from that position he would have been out of harness. But there he was, and he assured the brethren that he would endeavour to fill the post to the best of his ability. (Hear, hear.) He would just say, in conclusion, that he felt convinced he had got officers who would work with him heart and soul; and one thing which they had decided upon was that they should not forget the Charities. (Cheers.) The W.M. then said they were honoured by a large number of visitors. It would be quite impossible for him to speak of each individual, but speaking in the name of the Creation Lodge he would say that the members were all delighted to see that so large a number of visitors did them the honour of coming there on that occasion. He was expressing the opinion of all the members when he said they hoped and trusted they would have the pleasure of seeing all the visitors on a future occasion. Bro. Pearse, P.G. Steward, very appropriately replied, and in doing so remarked that it was not the first time he had been placed in the position. He was quite sure all the visitors had been intensely gratified by what they had seen in the lodge. (Hear, hear.) Perhaps enough had been said about the consecration ceremony, but if the brethren would allow him he would add the testimony of the visitors to the great gratification they had received by the manner in which that ceremony had been performed. It did not fall to the lot of every Mason except a few times in his lifetime to see a consecration ceremony. He could only say that something like nineteen years had elapsed since he had witnessed one himself, and he never regretted that so great a time had passed until he heard it conducted that evening. After referring in eulogistic terms to the Grand Officers who had taken part in the ceremonies of the day, Bro. Pearse concluded by saying that he trusted the P.G. Chaplain's address had appealed to all the brethren as it had done to him, and that they would long remember and profit by it.

Bro. John Cantle then gave an excellent rendering of "I fear no foe," which was loudly applauded. "The Treasurer," was next proposed in a few complimentary words by the W.M.; Bro. James Kift immediately following with a humorous song entitled "Proverbs," which he rendered with considerable effect. The Treasurer briefly replied, giving an outline of the history and origin of the Creation Lodge, and concluded by assuring the brethren that he would do all he possibly could to forward its interests.

"The Officers" having been drunk, and acknowledged by the Senior and Junior Wardens, Bro. Percival, notwithstanding that he was labouring under a severe cold, sang in capital style the popular ballad, "The Blue Alsatian Mountains."

In replying to the toast of "The Charities," Bro. J. Terry, speaking on the flourishing condition of the Institutions, observed that the outer world wondered how it was that they were able to hold their own. He would simply remind them that over £49,030 had been received last year in behalf of their Institutions. That was a great deal to say, remembering that six years ago they were able only to give hardly the half of that amount. (Hear, hear.) Their Institutions were doing an enormous amount of good. 200 girls, 210 boys, and 290 old men and women were not a very small family to keep, but they had only to appeal to the Freemasons, and they were cheerfully and generously responded to. (Hear, hear.) He felt sure the Creation Lodge would be no exception to this rule. After a few more words from Bro. Terry, the Tyler's toast was drunk, and Bro. Reynolds having given a humorous recitation entitled "Hans Breitmann on Smoking," Bros. Percival and Jon. Cantle brought a very happy evening to a close by singing the duet, "All's Well."

ST. ALBAN'S CATHEDRAL.

A meeting was convened in the Freemasons' Tavern, on Tuesday last, to consider the subject of the restoration of this fine old cathedral, and to form a London Committee to act in conjunction with a Committee organised in Hertford for that purpose. There was a very small attendance. On the motion of Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chap., Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D. was called upon to preside. The Chairman in opening the proceedings said there was scarcely to be found a finer building than St. Alban's Cathedral, and they, as Freemasons, ought to be proud of the opportunity of helping in the restoration of what was really a noble work of architecture. When Bro. Keyser, the Secretary of the Hertford Committee, had communicated to him (the Chairman) the wish of the brethren in Hertfordshire that a London Committee should be formed, he lost no time in saying how happy he would be in giving what little help he could towards that object. He concluded by hoping that a great number of the brethren would rally around them, that they might be enabled to collect the sinews of war, so that they might help the Hertford Committee in their noble object of restoring the edifice. Bro. C. E. Keyser, S.D. 400, Secretary to the Committee, then entered into an elaborate explanation of the nature and cost of the proposed restoration, at the same time tracing the history of the movement through all its phases. He was himself, he said, one of those who are not at all in favour of restorations. But he took an interest in this because he thought it was a special exception to the general rule of such projects, and because the restoration of St. Albans would conduce very much to the honour and credit of those who undertook it. The work was very beautiful, and the finest of the kind in existence. The architecture was contemporary with such examples as are to be found at the Lincoln, Salisbury, Winchester, and Ely Cathedrals. The cost of the reconstruction of the west front of the building, taken roughly, according to the late Sir Gilbert Scott and Mr. Chappell (Clerk of Works), would be about £9000 altogether. Of course that was a very large sum. The architect's estimate for the restoration of the central porch was £2500, and for each of the side porches £2000. That was of course leaving out the window. The work was of a very elaborate character, and he believed that the carving of one of the capitols alone would occupy a workman something over a month. The brethren in Hertford did think that they could do something for themselves, but the cathedral had cost such an immense amount of money already—fifty or sixty thousand pounds—that the gentlemen of Hertford had been pretty well drawn upon, and they came to the decision that in any undertaking by the Masonic body it was only fair that all the Freemasons of England should combine to aid in the work. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chap., then addressed the meeting. He said he had been requested to say a few words as to the connection of St. Alban's with Freemasonry. It would be remembered by some present that Bro. Havers, when he proposed a grant of £2000 for the restoration of St. Alban's in Grand Lodge (which he was sorry to say had not been carried), based a portion of his proposition on the early connection of St. Alban's with the traditional history of Freemasonry. St. Alban, or as he was called Albanus, was, as they all knew, the first British martyr; and all the legends of the guilds, without exception almost, referred to the fact of his having held a Grand Lodge of Masons at Verulamum, now St. Alban's, and arranged for the pay of the Masons. In all probability Albanus was the protector of a Roman Guild of Freemasons. But the fact was undoubted that the ancient operative Masons had always proclaimed St. Alban as the first Grand Master in England, be they right or be they wrong. In the seventh century Offa raised a church to the memory of St. Alban, of which Mr. Chappell, the Clerk of the Works, could tell them a portion still remained, and this was said by the chroniclers to be erected the "hond Masones," or hand Masons. Under these circumstances they had a right, it appeared to him, to look upon the restoration of St. Alban's not only as a local, but as a national Masonic duty, and to assist their Hertford brethren in carrying into completion that noble undertaking. He might observe that the earliest manuscript which mentioned St. Alban's in connection was dated in the fifteenth century. The speaker concluded by saying that he could see no possible objection to Freemasons combining, whether in lodge or out of lodge, to further the good work; and he felt assured that if it was once begun it would be carried with their usual energy to completion. (Applause.)

Bro. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chap., D.P.G.M., Suffolk, then moved the following resolution:—

"That this meeting, having heard the statements of Bro. Keyser and the other brethren who have taken part in the discussion, is of opinion that the Freemasons of England be invited to undertake the restoration of some special portion of St. Alban's Cathedral, as a memorial to St. Alban, the first reputed English Mason, and the founder of the first lodge in England."

He had the greatest pleasure in moving the proposition. Like Bro. Woodford, he was exceedingly sorry that the motion of their esteemed Bro. Havers was not carried in Grand Lodge, because he thought it would have been a good work, and worthy of the Freemasons of England. (Hear, hear.) Passing, however, from that, he thought if they could not make up a regular Masonic memorial by the restoration of St. Alban's Cathedral in the fullest sense of the word, there could be no possible reason—but, on the contrary, every possible argument in favour of it—why individuals as Masons should not join together to promote this great and magnificent work. If they could bring about such a magnificent work as this, it would be an evidence and an answer to those who tried to put down the Craft, that there was something high in its professions. (Hear, hear.) He thought it was the bounden duty of everyone to try and help on the project. He was very sanguine that, when it came to be known what their object was, they would not long fail to effect their purpose for want of the necessary funds.

The motion was seconded by Bro. Wilson Iles, P.G. Sec. Herts, and, having been put to the meeting, was unanimously carried.

Bro. A. F. A. Woodford then proposed the following motion, which was seconded by Bro. J. Kent, P.G.J.D.:—

"That the whole or a portion of the west front commends itself as the most fitting object to be undertaken by the Craft."

After a short discussion the motion was carried. Bro. Chappell, Clerk of Works, next briefly addressed the brethren, reading several extracts from correspondence which he had had with the late Sir Gilbert Scott. One of these extracts expressed the opinion that there is not a finer work in England than St. Alban's Cathedral, and Bro. Chappell observed, that in his conversations with Sir Gilbert on the subject, the latter had often remarked if he could see the restoration, which the brethren so much desired completed, it would be the pride of his life.

The Chairman being obliged to leave the meeting at this stage, Bro. Martyn, on the motion of Bro. Woodford, replaced him.

It was then moved, seconded, and carried, that the following brethren should act on the Central Committee:—Bros. Sir Albert Woods, G.D.C.; Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chap., D. Prov. G.M. Suffolk, &c.; Æneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., G. Registrar, &c.; Lieut.-Col. Creaton, P.G.D., &c.; J. M. Clabon, P.G.D.; P. de Lande Long, P.G.D.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.; R. Grey, P.G.D.; A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; Rev. W. Tebbs.

The Chairman next proposed "That the Deputy Grand Master be requested to act as President of this Committee."

This motion, which was seconded by Bro. Woodford, was carried unanimously.

Bro. Woodford, again rising, said they must have a Secretary, and as there was no brother who took a greater interest in their object than Bro. Keyser, he respectfully moved that he be asked to act as Secretary to the Committee."

The motion having been seconded and carried, Bro. Keyser, in a graceful speech, accepted the office.

Bro. J. W. Edwards, I.P.M., 1479, proposed "That Bro. J. F. Halsey, M.P., P.G.M., be the Treasurer."

Bro. Wilson Iles having seconded the resolution it was carried unanimously. The Secretary then read the following subscription list towards the Restoration Fund:—

" H. R. H. The Prince Leopold, Prov. G.M., Oxon	5 0 0

Bro. Woodford then moved a vote of thanks to the Chairman, the Secretary, and Bro. Martyn, for their services on that occasion, and the brethren adjourned till Wednesday next, when a meeting will be held at 4.30, in the same place, to consider what further steps will be taken in the matter.

The brethren are requested to take notice that the adjourned meeting will be held at Freemasons' Tavern at 4.30 on Wednesday next, when it is hoped Bro. Keyser will be rewarded by a full attendance.

Public Amusements.

THEATRE ROYAL STRAND.—The new farcical comedy at this popular little house entitled "The Snowball," by Sydney Grundy, is one of the brightest and most happy, and withal, well constructed comedies that has been produced during the present generation. Space will not permit of a lengthy description of "The Snowball." We can only say that it is most efficiently carried out by the whole company. Especial praise is due to Mr. W. H. Vernon, for his very realistic rendering of a character, in every sense of the word, difficult. Bro. Harry Cox, in the part of "Uncle John," is a host in himself, and carries out the details of the character to perfection, and to the great delight of the audience. Miss Ada Swanborough executed the rôle of "Mrs. Featherstone" with the greatest ease imaginable. The careful study demanded by the peculiarity of the character was faithfully given by the actress, and a great deal of the success of the piece depended upon the audience properly appreciating "Mrs. Featherstone's" every new move. Miss Lottie Venn as at first the innocent "Penelope," and then as the Snowball rolled on, the "Penelope" who meant to make capital out of the situation, was an impersonation worthy of the greatest praise. Mr. F. Wyatt performed the part of "Harry Prendergast" (the suitor for the hand of "Ethel") with efficiency, as also did Miss Gwynne Williams as "Ethel." We venture to think the "Snowball" will long occupy its place in the "Strand" programme.

LONDON COTTAGE MISSION.—The sixth Irish stew dinner was given on Wednesday by the London Cottage Mission, of 14, Finsbury Circus, E.C., to several hundred poor children, in their Conder-street Hall, Limehouse, E. The Hall was well filled three times with these little ones. They eat ravenously and fully enjoyed the substantial meal which through the kindness of our readers had been provided for them. There seems to all appearance as much need as ever for such charity. The meal gave much credit to Mr. and Mrs. Waller (formerly father and mother of two boys' homes) who had served it to the satisfaction of all present. The dinners lasted three hours and it did the hearts full good to see the gratitude written on their faces. No child was turned away.—There were many cases of great interest among the recipients brought under notice by kindly disposed persons. This mission by its evangelistic and benevolent work is doing much practical good, and these dinners are a great boon to the poorly clad and hungry little ones. They will be continued as long as benevolent people send their kind and timely gifts, which will be gratefully received by Miss F. Napton, 304, Burdett-road, Limehouse, E., and by Mr. Walter Austin at the office of the Mission, 14, Finsbury Circus, E.C.

Brethren desirous of possessing a copy of the Freemason Card Almanack for 1879, with portraits of the Grand Masters of England, Ireland, and Scotland, should make early application at the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London. The Publisher will be pleased to send a copy to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of two penny stamps.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We have the pleasure of informing our readers that in addition to the forthcoming papers announced to appear during the ensuing months in the pages of the Masonic Magazine from the pen of Bro. Samuel Poynter, P.M., that learned brother will contribute to the June number a descriptive sketch, entitled "A Queer Career, Nocturne in A Minor, the Key of the Street."

Mayfair states (Feb. 11th) that the Masonic Magazine is really the monthly digest of Freemasonry which it calls itself. It is a well edited serial with features interesting to a large public.

The City Press announces the death of Bro. James Perry, of the Ship, Ivy-lane, for many years associated with the Licensed Victuallers' Associations, and a member of the Dalhousie Lodge, No. 860. He was always ready to lend a helping hand to the advancement of the societies, and was a man of the strictest integrity, whose loss is deeply regretted by a very large circle of friends. His death is ascribed to congestion of the lungs, after a very short illness. He was 58 years of age, and was buried at Kensal Green, on Saturday last.

On Monday night Miss Helen Hopekirk, daughter of Bro. Walter Hopekirk, the young Edinburgh pianist whose successful appearances at the Leipsic Gewandhaus concerts and in London have constituted not the least interesting events of the musical season, gave a recital in the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh. Miss Hopekirk was assisted by Mr. A. C. Mackenzie (violin) and Mr. Carl Hamilton (cello). There was a large audience, who emphatically confirmed in the course of the recital the favourable verdict hitherto gained by Miss Hopekirk wherever and whenever she had appeared in public.

The "Masonic Magazine" for February is now ready, price 6d. It may be obtained of any bookseller or newsagent, or direct from the office of this paper, 198, Fleet-street, London.—[A.D.V.T.]

We extract the following from The Whitehall Review:—M. Desanges must be congratulated on his portrait of the H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, painted for the Rose Croix Chapter. Prince Arthur is not the least comely of a comely race, and his military bearing adds a dignity to an appearance which is essentially soldier-like. His features, however, are indisputably Teutonic, and if, as is the case, there is a tenderness in his lustrous blue eyes and in his classical mouth which relieves the hardness of his profile, it needed the ideality of a true artist to render his likeness poetical. That M. Desanges has achieved this strikes one at once, nor is this favourable impression lessened when you come to examine the portrait critically. The picture itself is three-quarter length and in outline oval. "The Royal Duke stands 'four-square,'" reminding one in his pose of Aristotle's perfect man. He is in evening dress, with the conventional and infinitesimal white tie, but his decorations almost convey the notion of his being in uniform. He wears the broad white and gold sash of the Third-third Degree, with the badges of the Supreme Council of the Masonic Craft and of the Sovereign of the Rose Croix Order, termed technically the Studholme Chapter. These badges are very effective, and they are so arranged as almost, yet not quite, to obscure the ribbon and star of a yet more coveted order—that of the Garter. The Duke's right hand hangs listlessly, but the foreshortening of the left arm and the attitude of the fingers of the left hand indicate that he is about to address the brethren of the illustrious Rose Croix Chapter, the legitimate representatives of chivalry. It is needless to add that as regards texture and tonality this splendid portrait is worthy the reputation of M. Desanges, still less that the inevitable realism of a portrait is quite forgotten by the spectator in the naturalness and charm of its treatment. Seldom have I seen a picture which more fully rose to my standard of what portraiture should be. The Duke of Connaught gave the artist a final sitting for the portrait on Monday last."

The members of the St. Cuthberga Lodge, No. 622, at their meeting on Monday week, voted £10 10s. to each of the Masonic Institutions.

The number of out-patients at the National Hospital for Diseases of the Heart and Paralysis, Soho-square, registered for the week ending Feb. 1st., 1879, was 1339.

The Cosmopolitan Masonic Pocket Book for 1879 is now ready, price, post-free, 2s. 2d. Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.—A.D.V.T.

The installation meeting of the Burgoyne Lodge, No. 902, will take place at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Monday, the 24th inst., at 5 p.m. Bro. S. J. Byng, the W.M., will install his successor.

The annual ball of the Carnarvon and Mizpah Lodges was held at the Cannon-street Hotel on the 7th inst. A full report will appear in our next impression.

His Royal Highness Prince Leopold has fixed Tuesday evening, the 25th inst., for the fifty-fifth anniversary and distribution of prizes of the Birkbeck Institution.

Bro. and Mrs. S. C. Hall have issued cards for the fifty-fourth anniversary of their wedding.

The Hour of Meeting of the Macdonald Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 104, on Friday next, has been altered from 5 o'clock to 5.30 p.m.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—A.D.V.T.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

TRANQUILLITY LODGE (No. 185).—In the presence of upwards of eighty brethren, Past Masters, and visitors, Bro. Geo. S. Pare, S.W. of the above lodge, which holds its meetings at the Guildhall Tavern, E.C., was on the 17th inst. installed its chief. Prior to the ceremony, however, the retiring Master, Bro. David Posener, raised Bro. Balver to the Third Degree. In due course Bro. Pare was presented to a Board of Installed Masters, and having declared himself qualified, and giving his pledge to uphold and guard the regulations and landmarks of the Order, was placed in the chair of his predecessor according to ancient form, the rather onerous duties of the ceremony being performed by the Installing Master in a manner gratifying alike to himself and his hearers, as was amply shown by the applause which greeted him at the end of the addresses. The newly-installed Master next invested his officers as follows: Bro. D. Posener, I.P.M.; W. T. Bayley, S.W.; F. Croaker (by proxy), J.W.; J. Peartree (by proxy), Treas.; P. Levy, Sec.; Geo. Bilby, P.M., Org.; T. W. C. Bush, L.D.; J. Barber (by proxy), J.D.; Staley, I.G.; B. D. Barnett, D.C.; Sol. Barnett, W.S.; Potter, Tyler. The W.M. next invested Bro. D. Posener with a handsome gold P.M. jewel voted by the brethren to mark their appreciation of his services. The auditor's report was then read and adopted, which disclosed a very satisfactory financial condition, the lodge balance being £201, and the balance of the benevolent fund £853. Bro. John Constable, P.M., having given notice of motion on a previous occasion, proposed that the sum of thirty guineas from the lodge fund be given in equal portions to each of the three Masonic Institutions, which, after a friendly discussion, was agreed to. A very ample and exceedingly well-served banquet followed. After grace was sung the usual toasts followed, characterised in this instance by the absence of all stereotyped claptrap, the speakers confining themselves to a few common sense remarks, following the example of the new Master. Replying to the toast of his health, proposed in flattering terms by the I.P.M., the W.M. gave expression to his sense of the good feeling shown towards him throughout the whole period of his connection with the lodge, and promised his best attention both to the interest of the lodge and the enjoyments of the festive board. Among the speakers were Bros. Cubitt, Albert, J. D. Burnett, J. H. Ross, Constable, Lazarus, Spiegel, and others. Past Master S. Solomon spoke on behalf of the benevolent fund, calling attention to its flourishing state and absence of applicants for its benefits, which rendered needless all appeal for subscriptions, yet he trusted the fund would continue growing, so that in case of emergency the power might be in their hands to render substantial aid to any members whose needs may entitle him to sympathy, as they had frequently done in the past. Under the general direction of Bro. Pare the proceedings could scarcely fail of success, the diversions being greatly aided by the renowned skillful vocalists, Bros. D. Moss, Barrett, Kenningham, and De Lacy. The visitors present were Bros. T. Cubitt, P.G.P.; E. P. Albert, P.G.P.; Bassington, W.M. 205; Lazarus, W.M. 1017; Spiegel, W.M. 188; Kent, P.M. 879; E. Jacobs, P.M. 1614; Mickley, P.M. 449; Chaloner, Sec. 1178; Peprill, 180; Russell, 1227; Moss, 1706; Barrett, 1706; Herold 1056; Cullon, 1031. The P.M.'s were S. Solomon, M. Harris, N. Moss, R. Z. Bloomfield, N. Defries, J. D. Barnett, J. Constable, N. Gluckstein, E. Gotther. Universal regret was expressed at the absence of Bro. John Peartree, P.M. and Treas., he being prostrated by a most dangerous illness. May the G.A.O.T.U. speedily restore him to health and vigour.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 715).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Saturday, the 15th inst., when Bro. Henry Mug-geridge, the Senior Past Master, installed Bro. Edward Phillips W.M. for the ensuing year (whose installation had been deferred from January, in consequence of the severe and painful illness of Bro. Phillips, caused by a cold caught in Paris during the Exhibition.) The new W.M. appointed the following brethren to the different offices, viz., Bros. A. C. Cope, S.W.; Henry Watts, J.W.; Ernest Zwinger, S.D.; Harry Bennett, J.D.; J. C. Howell, I.G. Bro. S. G. Myers was invested as Treasurer, and Bro. Henry Muggeridge as Secretary. Bro. William Birdseye, the I.P.M., who had been previously invested with the Past Master's collar and jewel, and presented with the usual gold jewel for his good and valued services during the year 1878, accepted the office of Steward to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to be held on Wednesday, the 14th day of May next. This lodge was consecrated in October, 1857, by Bro. John Havers, P.G.W., who installed Bro. Henry Muggeridge the first Master. Bro. S. G. Myers, in whose house the idea of the lodge originated, was first Junior Warden, since which Bro. Muggeridge has installed every Master of the Panmure Lodge, with the exception of the Master in 1872, Bro. William Bennett, who he subsequently installed as Master of the Ancley Lodge, 1397. Bros. Muggeridge and Myers are the only two original members remaining in the Panmure Lodge, in addition to whom there were present Bros. Phillips, W.M.; W. Birdseye, I.P.M.; Watts, J.W.; Zwinger, S.D.; John Gale, P.M.; H. Birdseye, P.M.; Crossfield, P.M.; Jones, P.M.; Weedon, P.M.; Shayer, and Richardson; there were also present the following visitors, viz.:—Bros. J. Clever, P.M. 12 and 171; W. C. Banks, S.W. 1225; W. F. Kibble, I.G. 1426; J. M. Walter, 763; E. M. Hubbuck, P.G. Steward; W. McCall 103. The brethren then partook of an excellent banquet, prepared by the good people of Cannon-street Hotel, which they appeared to enjoy very much.

CAPPER LODGE (No. 1076).—This excellent lodge has now we believe definitely taken up its quarters at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, City. Its old dwelling place at Tidal Basin will, however, long be remembered as the birthplace of a lodge that has, during the time of its existence, added perhaps more members to the Masonic fraternity than any lodge in the Metropolis. The causes that have led to this change are in no way prejudicial to Bro. Hillier, host of the old house of meeting, but to the fact that he having found it necessary to enlarge and alter his house at Tidal Basin, could not accommodate the brethren during the alterations, and hence the removal. The meeting on Thursday, the 13th inst., was both large and enthusiastic. Among the visitors were:—Bros. G. Stephens, 1623; J. J. West, P.M. 548; J. Manning, W.M. 1472; Jas. Thomas, 704; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason), and others. The officers of the lodge present were:—Bros. F. Brien, W.M.; E. West, P.M.; J. Gaskell, P.M.; H. B. Holliday, P.M.; T. G. Day, P.M.; J. Dorton, I.P.M.; P. McCarthy, S.W.; H. Taplay, J.W.; B. B. Brayshaw, P.M., and Treas.; Jas. Mitchell, Sec.; J. W. Job, S.D.; W. Dorton, J.D.; W. Nevins, I.G.; Mat. Stierwin, Org.; A. R. Mason, D. of C.; R. Brown, and W. Harris, W.S.; and B. Norman, Tyler. The lodge having been opened, Bro. Johnson was raised to the Sublime Degree by the W.M. in a style seldom surpassed at any lodge, and Mr. N. Sykes, having already been balloted for, was initiated into Freemasonry. There being no further work before the lodge, it was closed and the brethren adjourned to a plain but elegantly served repast. This having been discussed and the cloth cleared, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts which were becomingly honoured. Bro. P. M. West, then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," a privilege of which he was proud. He felt sure they would agree with him when he said that from the manner in which the W.M. had carried out the duties entrusted to him that evening, not only in ruling and governing the lodge, but as well in performing the solemn ceremonies of initiation and raising, the honour of the lodge was safe in his hands. It must have been very gratifying to them, as it was to him, and if their Master continued so to carry out those duties, they would never have reason to regret having placed him in the proud, yet responsible position he now so well and worthily held. (Applause.) Bro. Brien, in reply, said he must in the first place thank Bro. West for the kind remarks with which he had accompanied the toast, and in the second the brethren for its hearty reception. Bro. West had said, "that if he continued as he had commenced his duties, the brethren would be satisfied with him." He would promise them that if he did not improve, at least he should not be any worse (cheers and laughter), but he trusted so to continue, by a constant care and undivided attention to the duties of his office, and the interests of the lodge, that at the end of his year they would say that he had done his duty as a Master and a Mason should, to a lodge like the Capper, over which he had the honour to preside. (Applause.) The next toast was that of "The Initiate," and Bro. Sykes suitably responded. The toast of "The Visitors" was coupled with the names of Bro. West, P.M. 548, and Thomas, 704, and Bro. West, in response said he had to thank them very much for the manner in which his name had been placed before, and received by the lodge. He could only say that he was very pleased to be with them. It was his first visit, but he trusted it would not be his last. He was pleased to see the good and effective work done in the lodge by the W.M., and while they had such an officer to preside over them, their lodge could never go wrong. (Cheers.) Bro. Thomas was exceedingly pleased at this his second visit to the Capper Lodge, to find that they had come to that locality. His own lodge was held there, and he trusted that an unity might spring up between the lodges that would be beneficial to them both. He could without flattery congratulate the lodge upon its W.M. and officers, and they had treated him so well upon that occasion, that with their permission he should come again.

(Laughter and cheers.) The next toast was that of "The Past Masters of and belonging to the Lodge," and in giving it, the W.M. wished to express to them his extreme regret at the unavoidable absence of Bro. White, their esteemed and valued I.P.M., which absence had been caused by serious domestic affliction. He had received a telegram from Bro. White, stating that on account of the illness of his children he should not be able to be with them that night. Bro. White had a large family, and he felt sure that he was only expressing their wishes when he trusted that nothing serious would arise to cause a pang to the heart of their esteemed brother. (Hear, hear.) There was another thing that made him sorry for the absence of Bro. White. It was only yesterday that the good brother had paid fifty guineas into the Masonic Benevolent Institution, a sum which entitled their lodge to a Vice-Presidency. Had he been present he would have been able to tell them something about the gathering. (Cheers.) There were, however, present an array of Past Masters such as any lodge might be proud of, and if he could find words sufficiently to express his obligation to them, and the many services they had rendered the lodge, he might go on till midnight. (Hear, hear.) He would now ask them to drink the toast with all the enthusiasm it deserved. Bro. West, who in the absence of P. M. White, acted as I.P.M. during the evening, responded, and said, that anything the Past Masters could do for the benefit of the lodge they would only be too happy to do. The whole of them deeply deplored the cause of Bro. White's absence, and trusted the cause would soon be removed. The next toast was that of "The Masonic Press," to whom the W.M. said they were much indebted for reports of the proceedings of their lodges. He believed that by seeing the good work done by other lodges they were stimulated to try and emulate them. The Freemason carried reports of their meetings all over the world, and many a brother of the Capper Lodge in distant lands, when he got his Freemason felt his heart glow with pride when he saw in its columns how the good old lodge was flourishing. (Cheers.) He, therefore, asked them to drink the toast with all the honours it deserved. Bro. Jolly having suitably replied for this paper, the W.M. gave "The Officers of the Lodge," especially complimenting the S.W. and Secretary for the many helps they had rendered in the work of removal, and said from S.W. down to Tyler a better set of officers no lodge could boast of. (Cheers.) Bro. McCarthy and Mitchell having replied, the Tyler's toast concluded a memorable evening in the annals of the Capper Lodge.

COVENT GARDEN LODGE (No. 1614).—This lodge held its principal meeting of the year at Ashley's Hotel, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, on Tuesday last, when the brethren assembled at four o'clock to transact a large amount of business. The W.M., Bro. Edward Jacobs presided, and was well supported by his officers and a large number of lay brethren, in addition to which some forty or more visiting brethren from other lodges came to witness the installation of Bro. Arthur John Ireton, the W.M. elect. Among the visitors were several eminent Masons, including the following Grand Officers:—Bros. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D.; E. P. Albert, P.G. Purst.; Tibbets, P.P.G. Reg. Leicester; Louis Beck, P.G. Org.; F. Binckes, Secretary for the Boys' School; and Hedges, Secretary for the Girls' School. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the last regular lodge meeting were read and confirmed, after which the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Ireton was presented to the W.M. to receive at his hands the benefits of installation. Thereupon the W.M. proceeded to address some remarks to the body of brethren assembled, and thereafter Bro. Ireton having given his assent in the usual manner to the ancient charges, recited by the Secretary, was duly obligated. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and a Board of Installed Masters formed, to whom Bro. Ireton was presented, and installed into the chair of K.S. with the usual solemnities. On the return of the brethren the newly-installed Master was proclaimed and saluted in the customary form, and then proceeded to appoint his officers which are as follows:—Bros. John Mason, S.W.; J. J. Sterne, J.W.; the Rev. P. M. Holden, Cnap.; John Coutts, P.M., P.G.P., Treas.; W. Bourne, P.M., Sec.; C. Kedgley, S.D.; S. Jacobs, J.D.; W. H. Gulliford, I.G.; George Stacey, Org.; George Coleman, D.C.; J. E. Collins, W.S.; C. Wyman, A.W.S.; John Jacobs, Steward; R. J. Potter, Tyler; all of whom were invested, except Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden, who, it was understood, was absent through illness. The usual addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren were then delivered by Bro. P.M. Edward Jacobs, by whom the entire ceremony was performed in a most able manner. No sooner had the new Master assumed the reigns of government than his skill was put to the test, for there were no less than five candidates for initiation in attendance, viz.:—Mr. Thos. Bourne, proposed by Bro. Ireton, seconded by Bro. Coutts, P.M. and Treas., P.G.P.; Mr. Alfred Bush, proposed by Bro. Coutts, seconded by Bro. Wyman; Mr. Henry Kelsey, proposed by Bro. Coutts, seconded by Bro. Ireton, who were balloted for and approved; and Mr. William Sage and Mr. F. Owen, already balloted for. The ceremony of initiation was very ably performed by Bro. Ireton, although it was rendered unusually arduous, from the fact that in consequence of the pressure of time the whole of the five candidates were necessarily taken at the same time. The only other business paper was a notice of motion by Bro. A. J. Ireton, given in open lodge on Tuesday, 14th January last, "That the initiation fee be increased from ten to fifteen guineas, and that bye-law No. 10 be altered accordingly," which having been put and carried, the lodge was closed in due form and in perfect harmony. It was now past seven o'clock, and the brethren and their guests at once adjourned to the banquet room, where a sumptuous repast was served to them in the best style, to which ample justice was done. A very handsome dessert of all the fruits in season was generously provided by the W.M. himself. About eighty brethren sat down. On the waiters retiring, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed from the chair and heartily responded to by all present. In proposing the first toast the W.M. remarked upon the excellent qualities of the Queen and the good fortune of Englishmen to be under such a ruler, and also referred to the recent bereavement she had sustained, and the deep sympathy that had been felt for Her Majesty by the whole Masonic body. "The Health of the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M." the Sovereign of Freemasons, was responded to with enthusiasm. "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master," also received a very hearty response, the W.M. in proposing it remarking on the truly admirable manner in which the Earl of Carnarvon carried out the work of Grand Lodge. In proposing "The Health of the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Skelmersdale, and that of the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past," the chairman remarked that they had always a Grand Officer in the lodge in the person of Bro. Coutts to keep them informed of the doings of Grand Lodge, but that on this occasion when they had a number of other Grand Officers present, he should couple this toast with the name of Bro. Jabez Hogg, P.G.D. Bro. Hogg in responding said that he had much pleasure in availing himself of the privilege accorded him and after a few remarks upon the good qualities of his fellow Grand Officers expressed the pleasure it gave him to see Bro. Ireton in the proud position acquired that evening. The W.M.'s name was one not unknown in English history, and he was quite sure that the brethren had done well in placing him in the chair of K.S.; that Bro. Ireton had come into the lodge resolved to attain the honour of the chair, and that having done so he was ready to give the brethren the advantage of his Masonic knowledge and his services. The brethren could not do better than rally round him and support him on every occasion. Bro. Hogg expressed himself as being extremely gratified at the working of the lodge, the gratification being the greater because it so seldom happens that a Master just installed, initiates five brethren in one night. And under such circumstances it was not surprising that the W.M. should propose to increase the initiation fee. He agreed with the W.M. in his desire to limit the number of the lodge. As regarded more particularly those for whom he was responding, the Grand Officers were always ready to do their duty and render their assistance whenever occasion demanded, just as the Deputy Grand Master was always ready in the absence of the Pro G. Master to carry out the work of G. Lodge. Bro. Edwd. Jacobs, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M., and in doing so remarked upon the great support that Bro. Ireton had bestowed upon the Masonic Charities, and upon his many good qualities and fitness for the office he had assumed, and trusted that the brethren would all give their Master their most cordial support. Bro. Ireton.—Brethren, a Worshipful Master has a most difficult task to perform during the evening—he has to reply for himself. That time for me has arrived, and I know not what to say, for I fear I have not deserved any of the praise which our Immediate Past Master has passed upon me. You have elected me your W.M., and nothing I can do shall be omitted, no talent that is placed within me but shall be exercised to promote that hospitality that should exist among Freemasons. I desire to make this a model lodge—that as it is in the centre of the metropolis it shall be a centre of Freemasonry. That is the object with which we endeavour to promote the Covent Garden Lodge, and strive to make it second to none in Freemasonry. You have had several good Masters and there are several coming on—men of education, men who know what the world is and possess all the qualifications for a W.M. I have to thank Bro. P.M. Jacobs for the very kind manner in which he has spoken of me. I shall perform the office to which I have been elected with all the ability I possess, and I think I have the brethren all with me, and I thank you for the very unanimous way in which you have recorded your sympathy with me in drinking the toast to my health. The next toast that we come to is "The Health of our Chaplain." No! "The Health of the Initiates" comes next in order, but as I mentioned the Chaplain I will say that his absence is involuntary. I have received a beautiful letter from Bro. Holden, and am sorry to tell you that it is indisposition that has prevented his being with us this evening. I will now pass to the toast of "The Initiates." We have initiated five candidates to-day, and when, brethren, you know as much of them as I do you will rejoice at their admittance into our body. They are men not only of position, but men whose minds are Masonic in every way. They were Freemasons though they did not belong to our body. They are imbued with a feeling of good fellowship and all the Masonic virtues. We should always try to select men so well fitted as these are to become candidates, bearing in mind that it is not the length of the chain but the quality of the metal it is composed of that makes its strength. This toast was responded to very heartily, and having been briefly responded to by each of the five initiates, the W.M. proceeded to propose "The Health of the I.P.M.," Bro. Edward Jacobs, remarking on the skill and ability with which he had transacted the business of the lodge, and the large number of brethren he had initiated during his year of office, concluding by presenting him with a handsome Past Master's jewel and expressing the warmest wishes for his health to wear and enjoy the mark of esteem won from the brethren by his own merit. Numerous other toasts were drunk including "The Visitors," "The Past Masters," "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Masonic Charities," "The Officers of the Lodge," the Tyler's toast bringing the proceedings to a conclusion at a somewhat late hour.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 6th inst. at the Masonic Hall, the chief business of the evening being the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Philip Braham, J.W. There was a good assembly of brethren, Past Masters, members, and visitors. The W.M., Bro. F. Wilkinson, was supported by about twenty P.M.'s and W.M.'s of other lodges. The lodge was opened at 4.25, and the minutes of the last regular lodge having been read and confirmed, a letter was read from the D.P. G.M., Bro. Else, apologising for absence, on the ground of previous engagement; also a notice from the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, announcing the festival to be held in May, and asking that a Steward might be sent from No. 41, consideration of which was deferred. The W.M. then vacated the chair, and Bro. T. P. Ashley, P.P.G.S.W., P.M. and Treas., took it for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, and opened the lodge in the Second Degree. After the customary introduction and address, the Secretary read the ancient charges, and the W.M. elect having given his consent thereto, the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, the brethren below the chair retired, and a Board of Installed Masters was opened, in whose presence Bro. Braham was duly installed. The board having been closed, the M.M.'s were re-admitted, and subsequently the F.C.'s and E.A.'s, in both cases the lodge being brought down to those degrees. The usual proclamations and salutes were given, and the officers appointed as follows:—Bros. Dr. Henry Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. Warwickshire, P.M. 43 and 958, &c., received the collar of S.W., which appointment was hailed by the brethren with great acclamation, he having rendered many valuable services to the lodge during his five years' sojourn amongst them, being ever ready to assist in any of the ceremonies, always willing to deliver charges, addresses, and Masonic lectures, &c., and at all times prepared to give instruction to brethren who may require such, or any other assistance Masonically, and in regard to the proper working of charity and other useful branches of the society, always exerting an interesting himself. The collar of the J.W. was given to W. Hunt; C. W. Radway, Sec.; T. P. Ashley, Treas.; R. B. Cater, S.D.; E. J. Mercer, J.D.; Thos. Wilton, D.C.; J. Rubie, Asst. D.C.; W. L. Baldwin, Org.; A. Holmes, I.G.; Ames and Peach, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler. The installing Master then gave the customary addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren with great effect, indeed, the whole ceremony was marked by great impressiveness and solemnity, but previously, at his request, Bro. Dr. Henry Hopkins gave an address to the I.P.M. in most impressive manner, and explained Masonically the symbolism of the emblem on his jewel, that is the forty-seventh proposition of the first book of Euclid. Bro. Wilton then, in the name of the lodge, and in most earnest and feeling manner, presented the I.P.M., Bro. Frank Wilkinson, with a handsome silver inkstand, to be accompanied by a scroll on vellum, as a testimonial for the able and courteous manner in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. of the lodge for two successive years. We would like to give this address in extenso, for it contained such truly Masonic and hearty brotherly feeling as rarely is found existing under any ordinary circumstances, but space will not permit. The I.P.M., on rising to return thanks, evidently affected with much genuine emotion, was received with such an ovation that for several minutes he was unable to speak, when, however, he proceeded to return thanks he was heard with the most profound attention, and without ostentation or humility of language thanked the lodge in very suitable terms, expressing his full determination that so long as he may be spared and able to do so he will still assist in maintaining the prestige of this, the oldest lodge in Somerset. On resuming his seat he was again greeted with hearty exhibitions of good feeling. Bro. Dr. Henry Hopkins then announced that he had received a prospectus from Bro. Hughan, of the publication of another important Masonic work in a few weeks, and solicited the brethren to become subscribers for copies. He eulogized the usefulness and qualities of the author as well as of the work, and the beautiful manner in which it is being got up. A few orders have been placed in the hands of Bro. Hopkins. Bro. F. Wilkinson then proposed, and Bro. J. S. Turner seconded a candidate for initiation. Bro. Ashley presented a very ancient Bible, and a very old record of the lodges in this part of the country, for the library of No. 41. A vote of thanks was then proposed to the visiting brethren, which was responded to by Bro. C. Collins, W.M. Royal Sussex; Bro. Powell, of "Gooch Lodge, Wilts," Bro. Moutrie, 906, and others. Bro. F. Wilkinson then gave notice for the agenda paper of next month, that he should propose a vote of ten guineas to be given to Bro. General Doherty, on his going up as a Steward to the Masonic Girls' School at the ensuing festival. There being no further business the lodge was closed in perfect harmony and solemn prayer at 6.15, after which the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel for the banquet, which was capitally served by Bro. Rubie, P.M., and a most enjoyable evening was spent. After the cloth was cleared the usual toasts were given and some capital songs and glees by various members of the lodge, assisted at the piano by very much respected Bro. Pyne, organist at the Abbey Church, who also gave three or four excellent songs in his best style. Bro. Dr. Henry Hopkins in responding to the toast of "S.W." alluded to a rather singular coincidence, that last week occurred the thirtieth anniversary of his investiture in his mother lodge, No. 43, in the same office he this day assumed in No. 41, both lodges having been founded or rather received a warrant of confirmation in the same year, 1733. Bro. T. P. Ashley, in proposing the "Masonic Charities," appealed to the brethren in a most urgent and feeling manner for increased support, alluding, of course, to the recent successful election of the boy Cooper into the School, and, we believe, that during the evening many promises and some actual donations and subscriptions were received by him for all the Institutions. After a most enjoyable evening and cordial votes of thanks to the visitors, amongst which were some American brethren, and a hearty invitation for all of them to revisit their respective lodges, the brethren separated just at high twelve. We subjoin a list of the brethren who attended lodge, which was largely increased at the banquet. Bros. F. J. Brown, P.M., P.P.G.S.W. Somerset; J. S. Turner, P.M.; S. G. Mitchell, P.M.; R. Mann, Hy. Leader, J. Maggs, James Robinson, F. W. Willis, Walter E. Smith, Harry B. Smith, Jacob Smith, Wm. Morris. Visitors:—Bros. R. Ford, P.M. 534; W. H. Peyton, 284; J. A. Innes, 639; Jno. Banks, W. H. Young, 906; General H. E. Doherty, C.B., P.M. 906, P.P.G.S.W.; Jas. Dutton, P.M. 53, and 855; F. Neebe, 1254; W. H. Dill, P.M. 906, P.P.G.P.; S. Edwards P.M. 53; Jas. Powell, 1295; Morris, 1295; C. Collins, W.M. 53; Wm. F. Collins, J.D. 53; E. T. Payne, P.M. 53; J. S. Bartrum, P.M. 379; and others. Besides the officers &c., mentioned in their proper places above. This report would be incomplete without mention of the ease and effectiveness with which the new W.M. conducted the proceedings of the evening, and that on this account, and the character of the officers he has appointed, a general impression prevails that there is every prospect of a happy and prosperous new year in store for Royal Cumberland Lodge, 41.

GUERNSEY.—Mariners Lodge (No. 168).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Court-place, on the 5th inst., the W.M. Bro. J. Gallienne, P.D.P.G.M., presiding, supported by the following officers:—Bros. F. Clarke, S.W.; H. Dunn, J.W.; H. Wilkins, P.M., Treas.; W. De Jersey, P.M., Sec.; A. C. Quick, S.D.; W. Courtney, J.D.; H. Saunders, I.G.; S. Barter, Tyler, and about forty brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for two candidates, and two joining members, in each case proving successful. Bro. Wright was then examined, entrusted and then passed out. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Quant and Reed having given proofs of proficiency retired for preparation. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree when Bros. Quant and Reed were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by the W.M. in his very able and impressive manner. The lodge being resumed in the Second Degree Bro. Wright was admitted and passed to the degree of F.C. The lodge was then resumed in the First Degree, when Messrs. Baigent, Newport, and De Jausserand, were admitted and initiated according to ancient custom. On the usual questions being put, the S.W. (Bro. F. Clarke) rose, begging the W.M. to accept for Mariners Lodge, the portrait of the most distinguished brother amongst them. This painting he said was a humble present from our artist, Bro. Boutillier, to his mother lodge, and he (the S.W.) begged to propose that the lodge defray the expense of a suitable frame, with inscription. The I.P.M. (Bro. R. Smythson), in seconding the proposition, further proposed that a hearty vote of thanks be given to the donor, and that the same be recorded in the minutes of the lodge; this was carried unanimously. The W.M. then rose, and said, Bro. Boutillier, it is the portrait of myself which you have so kindly given to the lodge and I beg of you to accept my sincere thanks as well as the thanks of the lodge so cordially given. The lodge was then closed in due form, the brethren adjourning to the banqueting room, where an excellent spread was laid out, to which the brethren had been specially invited to remain, as it was provided by the brethren of the 10th Regiment, stationed in Guernsey. After justice had been done to the good things, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. The I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said—Brethren, you all know the toast which, as I.P.M., it is my pleasure and duty to propose, and I know you will receive it enthusiastically. Time was when Bro. Gallienne came amongst us and objected to our drinking his health except on his birthday, but now we will take care that he has twelve good ones this year. The W.M., in rising, said it would be ungrateful on his part did he not respond to the kindness of the brethren. He thanked them, and wished to give them a little advice, but he begged them to remember that he did not wish to be thought invidious. He wished them to take it as kindly as it was meant, coming from one of some experience in Masonry, he having nearly attained his thirtieth year of Masonic life. He then pointed out some of the duties of members in and out of lodge, and concluded an able speech by saying, "Our lodge is now in a prosperous condition as contrasted with what it was but a very few years since, but we must be cautious that that prosperity does not make us careless, and unmindful of the real purport of Masonry—charity. If we have done a little good in the past, let us try and do a great deal more in the future." "The P.M.s." being given and responded to, was followed by "The Initiates and the newly passed Brother." In proposing "The Health of the newly raised Brethren," the W.M. referred to the manner in which military men went through the ceremonies—the strict attention they gave, as if the discipline of their bodies was reflected on their minds. He would couple with this toast that of their hosts, the two newly-raised being part of them; personally he had always objected to anything of the sort being given; amongst some, he said, it was impressed as the correct thing when a brother was raised to provide a spread, but this was not necessary in this lodge, and if it had not been a spontaneous offering on the part of the brethren of the 10th Regiment, which, he thought, it would be ungrateful not to accept, he would have set his face against it. Bros. Quant and Reed (the newly-raised brethren), as also Bros. Biggs, Potton, and Battershill briefly responded. "The Officers" elicited a response from several of them, as also did that of "The Visitors." The Tyler's toast at length brought a very pleasant evening, which had been interspersed with some very good singing, to a close.

FILEY.—Royal Lodge (No. 643).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held at the lodge room, Foord's Hotel, on Monday evening, Feb. 10th. The W.M., Bro. J. Johnson Field, in the chair. The lodge was opened at 3.15 p.m. The following brethren were present:—W. Budd, I.P.M.; W. G. Long, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Treas.; R. M. Taylor, P.M., Chaplain; W. Fisher, P.M., Hon. Sec.; W. H. Porrett, P.M., S.W.; J. McFaden, J.W.; Val. Fowler, J.D.; C. W. Scrivener, P.M., D.C.; W. Jefferson, Tyler; W. B. Jackson, Thos. M. Ler, James Barwick, H. A. Darby, R. Dobson, P.M.; R. Land, Wm. Cranswick, C. Ireland, C. Nicholson, E. Nesfield. Visitors:—Bros. W. H. Smyth, P.M. 712, P.G.M. Lincolnshire; G. H. Wahan, W.M. 1760, P.P.G.D.C.; these were installing Masters in the place of Bro. J. Woodall, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., who, by the death of his father the day before, could not attend; Sir W. L. Fielden, Perseverance, 345; G. Wilkinson, P.M. 250; A. E. Hudden, P.M. 818, South Africa; R. H. Peacock, P.M. 200; C. W. Winterbottom, 734, Sec.; Fred Hogg, British, 8; J. C. Lamb, 1610; G. Dixon, Org. 1760; G. O. Crowther, 1248; H. H. Prince, 298, P.P.G.S.B. Lin.; B. Shaw, Org. 200; W. B. Richardson, S.W. 200; A. S. Kirk, 304. Bro. W. B. Jackson, P.S.W., was installed as W.M. for the current year, the ceremony having been most ably performed by the Installing Master. After a most excellent dinner, presided over by the newly-appointed W.M., and served by Host Bro. Wilborn, in his usual profuse and liberal style, the W.M. proposed the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," which was most loyally received. "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of all England" was the next, and after that "The Provincial Grand Officers," which was ably responded to by Bro. Long, P.M., P.P.G.S.B. The I.P.M. then gave "The W.M.," and, in an eloquent speech, took the opportunity of highly complimenting the members of the lodge resident in Filey, and also the Scarbro' brethren, and concluded by calling for musical honours, which were duly accorded. The W.M. responded in very warm and genial terms, thanking the brethren for having placed him in so high and coveted a position, and promising to do his utmost for the support and well-being of the lodge. The W.M. next gave "The Retiring W.M. and his Officers," to which Bro. Field, the I.P.M., responded in a very appropriate speech. Bro. Land, 200, here favoured the brethren with an excellent song, which was highly applauded. Bro. Taylor, P.M., the highly respected Chaplain of the lodge, gave "The Masonic Charities," to which Bro. Field responded in his character of Steward, and in a most feeling and impressive manner, calling upon the brethren present to exert themselves to the utmost to sustain those who, less fortunate than themselves, needed the kindly assistance and support of all such as could lend them a helping hand. Bro. McFaden, S.W., gave "The Visiting Brethren," to which Bros. Prince, Hogg, and Lamb, severally responded. The W.M. proposed "The Health of Bro. Darby," as the oldest member of the lodge, who acknowledged the compliment by expressing the very great pleasure it afforded him, at his advanced age, in still being able to come amongst his highly esteemed brethren. The I.P.M. then called upon all present to drink "The Health of Bro. Fisher, P.M.," the very efficient and painstaking Secretary, and warmly thanking him for his valuable and untiring exertions on behalf of the Royal Lodge. Bro. Fisher briefly, but forcibly replied, expressing the pleasure he always felt in doing everything within his power to promote the interests and welfare of his mother lodge. The next toast proposed by the W.M. was that of "Bro. Woodale, P.M.," who was to have acted as Installing Master, but was prevented doing so by the death of his father, the highly respected banker of Scarbro', and upon the deceased gentleman the W.M. pronounced a high and deserved eulogium. The toast was drunk in solemn silence. Bro. Shaw, Organist of Old Globe, 200, and Bro. Dixon, of Leopold, 1760, greatly promoted the pleasure of the evening by their admirable rendering of solos and concerted pieces, each receiving an encore and the warmest thanks and applause of all the brethren. This very joyous and harmonious meeting was then brought to a close, amidst the heartfelt expressions of nearly fifty brethren who were present, that they might all meet again at the next anniversary in the same spirit of fraternal amity as now united them. The W.M. elect must have been highly gratified with the support accorded him by representatives from lodges situated in distant parts of the kingdom, and by the full attendance of Masons from the immediate neighbourhood, and a gratifying fact was also announced by the Treasurer, that the lodge, in the face of every outward depression, was in a flourishing financial condition. The W.M. appointed as his officers:—Bros. J. McFaden, S.W.; V. Fowler, J.W.; R. M. Taylor, P.M., Chap.; W. G. Long, P.M., Treas.; W. Fisher, P.M., Hon. Sec.; R. Land, S.D.; T. M. Lee, J.D.; W. Budd, P.M., E. Wesfield, Stewards; W. Cranswick, I.G.; W. Jefferson, Tyler.

WINDSOR.—Windsor Castle Lodge (No. 771).—The annual festival of this lodge took place on Tuesday, February 11th, at the Masonic Hall, St Alban's-street, Bro. W. V. Brown, W.M., in the chair, supported by his officers, Bros. Fleck, S.W.; Cantrell, J.W.; J. S. Barton, S.D.; Manley, J.D.; R. G. Barton, I.G., and Past Masters Tolley, P.P.G.D.; Captain Cutler, P.P.G.J.W.; Grisbrook, P.P.G.D.; Bingham, P.P.G.D.; Powell and Nixon, together with Whitehouse, Treas., and P.P.G.S. of W.; Ralph Thorowgood, and others. The visitors were, Bros. Wilson, P.M. 209; Ashby, 162; Roberts, W.M. 209; R. C. Hallows, 33; W. Seward, jun., 1612; Wheeler, P.M.; Norman, P.M. G. Stewards' Lodge; Smith, 152; Glover, 100, 305, 574, P.P.G.O. The ballot was taken for Bro. Dr. Wm. Brown Holderness as a joining member, and for Mr. F. B. Kitto as a candidate for initiation. Both proved to be unanimous, and the latter gentleman was duly admitted. Bros. Vogel and Spooner were raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, the ceremonies being most ably carried out by the W.M. The next business was the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Fleck, which was most impressively done by Bro. Tolley, P.M., assisted by Bro. Powell. The officers invested were, Bros. Cantrell, S.W.; J. S. Barton, J.W.; Whitehouse, Treas.; J. S. Tolley, P.M., Sec.; Manley, S.D.; R. G. Barton, J.D.; John Goddard, I.G.; W. H. Powell, D.C.; Hannis, A.D.C.; Ashby, Willett, and Seymour, Stewards. A P.M.'s jewel was presented to the retiring Master as a mark of appreciation of the manner in which he carried out his duties during his year of office, which has been signalled by the re-decoration, at a cost of nearly a hundred pounds, of the beautiful little hall which belongs to this lodge, of which its members are so justly proud. One great improvement effected is the introduction of a centre sun light (with the letter "G" pendant), the light from which falling upon the newly decorated walls is most effective, while over the stalls, with which the hall is seated, the names of the Past Masters of the lodge since its formation have been inserted, leaving space for additions to be made for twenty years to come. The whole cost has been raised by the private subscriptions of the members and a few friends, together with a contribution from the Etonian Lodge, which meets in the same building. Too much credit cannot be given to Bro. Brown for his exertions in the matter, nor should the name of the indefatigable and deservedly popular Secretary, Bro. Tolley, be omitted. The banquet was held at that well-known hotel, the Castle, where a most sumptuous banquet was put upon the table by Bro. Kemsley, the excellent fare, wines, and particularly the waiting, giving the greatest satisfaction. Afterwards the usual toasts were honoured, interspersed with music, under the direction of Bro. Tolley, by Bro. Thornton, of St. Paul's, Smith, Eton College, Tolley and Thorpe Briggs, St. George's Chapel, while Bros. Glover and Kemsley contributed to the harmony of the evening, the former singing, by special desire, his Masonic song, "Woman, Dear Woman."

KNUTSFORD.—De Tabley Lodge (No. 941).—The annual festival of St. John the Evangelist of this flourishing lodge was held in their splendid lodge-room, at the Royal George Hotel, on Monday 10th inst., for the installation of the Worshipful Master elect, and the appointment of the officers for the ensuing year. Besides a large attendance of the brethren of De Tabley Lodge, including the R.W.P.G.M. Lord De Tabley, there were present, Bros. Rev. R. Hodgson, P.M., P.G.C.; Rev. N. Tanner, P.P.G.C.; J. Siddeley, P.M., Scamford; J. H. Evans, W.M. Earle of Chester Lodge; H. Bratt, Lodge of Sincerity; J. F. Smith, W.M. 1009; G. Fairhurst, J. Weston, J. Jackson, Bro. W. Leigh, S.W. having been unanimously elected was duly installed and invested. Bro. W. Nicholls, P.M., was the Installing Master, and was highly congratulated by the R.W.P.G.M., Lord de Tabley, and the brethren for the efficient and impressive manner in which he performed that duty. The Worshipful Master then appointed the following officers:—Bros. W. Nicholls, P.M., I.P.M.; D. Kinsey, S.W.; W. Taberer, J.W.; Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, P.M., P.G.C., Chaplain; J. Siddeley, P.M., P.P.J.D., Treasurer and Secretary; C. Sherwin, S.D.; J. Partington, J.D.; A. M. Palmer, I.G.; J. Tuis, Organist; M. Alcock, Tyler; W. Fair, P.M.; J. B. Cutter, P.M.; J. Hodgkinson, P.M.; A. Noakes, Stewards. The business of the lodge being ended, the brethren sat down to a most excellent banquet, provided by the worthy hostess, Mrs. Caldecutt, which reflected the highest credit upon her capability for catering upon such occasions. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received with all the Masonic honours, and some excellent speeches were given upon the beauties of Masonry and its Charities. Bro. Farr, P.M., proposed "The Health of the R.W.P.G.M., Lord De Tabley," in a most feeling and interesting speech, giving a full account of the position the province stood with reference to our Masonic Charities, and the progress that had been made since his lordship had held the government of the Province of Cheshire. The toast was received with the greatest enthusiasm and applause, with all Masonic honours. The R.W.P.G.M. Lord De Tabley responded to the toast in a most eloquent and feeling speech, advocating the cause of the Masonic Charities at great length. The R.W.P.G.M., Lord de Tabley, in rising to propose "The Health of the Worshipful Master of the Lodge" said, "Worshipful Master and brethren, it gives me the greatest pleasure to be here to-day, and visit the lodge which does me the honour to bear my name; and being the first Worshipful Master of the lodge, I have always felt a deep interest in its working and prosperity, and am very glad to find it stands in so good a position with regard to our Masonic Charities, and earnestly hope the lodge will never lose sight of those noble Institutions, the pride of our Order, and the glory of our land; it therefore affords me great pleasure to propose "The Health of Bro. Leigh, the Worshipful Master of the Lodge." To me it is the greatest satisfaction to see such a good attendance of the brethren, such excellent working, and the efficient and impressive manner in which the Installing Master, Bro. J. Nicholls has performed that duty to-day is worthy of imitation, and gives credit to the lodge. I hope you will follow the example set you to-day, and at the end of your year of office be able to take the position he now occupies. I also trust you will have a pleasant and prosperous year of office, and that the peace and harmony of the lodge will in no way be disturbed, but will be more closely cemented by fraternal friendship and brotherhood. Bro. Leigh having responded in suitable and feeling terms for the honour, the R.W.P.G.M., Lord De Tabley, had done him in proposing his health, and the brethren for having placed him in the proud position of Worshipful Master of the De Tabley Lodge, assured them that nothing should be wanting on his part to maintain the dignity and lustre of the lodge, and hand it down as pure and unadulterated to his successor as he had received it. Bro. Siddeley, P.M., 1045, in proposing "The Health of the Installing Master" said, "Worshipful Master and brethren, it gives me the greatest possible pleasure to be present upon this occasion, and have the honour of proposing "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Nicholls." The able manner in which he has performed that duty, and gone through the ceremony to-day, reflects the highest credit upon himself and the lodge, and is worthy of your imitation, and I hope you will all follow, and take him as a pattern for your future progress. The toast was received with the greatest enthusiasm and Masonic honours. Bro. Nicholls returned thanks in a suitable and feeling speech, assuring them it was for the love he had for the Craft which he had deeply at heart, that he worked to promote its best interests, and maintain the honour and dignity of the lodge to which he had the honour to belong, and so long as it pleased the Great Architect of the Universe to give him health and strength, he should continue to do so, and his best services would be always at their command. A most enjoyable evening was spent, enlivened by a selection of vocal and instrumental harmony, by Bros. Young, Pearson, Burgess, and Fairhurst.

KESWICK.—Greta Lodge (No. 1073).—The installation festival of this lodge, postponed from the previous monthly meeting, on account of a serious accident to the W.M. elect, was held on Monday evening, the 10th inst. The lodge has recently removed to its old quarters at the Keswick Hotel, which is a decided improvement on the cheerless, uncomfortable, and utterly unsuitable nature of the previous quarters at the County Court Rooms, whatever sceptics may say to the contrary. Without for a moment attempting to bolster up the practice of lodges holding their meetings in hotels, in this instance it was a matter of choosing the lesser of two evils, for we are thoroughly convinced that, had the late-lodge premises been keenly inspected by some high authority, they would at once have condemned the building on Masonic structural grounds. Greta Lodge, we may add, although, for the first few years of its existence, a flourishing concern, has latterly fallen into decay; but it is to be hoped that a new era of prosperity has dawned upon Masonry in the "capital of the lakes;" indeed, there is now every indication that such will soon be a fait accompli. To revert to the business of Monday, the members were summoned for five o'clock, but, although there was an initiation on the summons, it was half an hour ere the lodge was opened. The members present were:—Bros. William Lamonby, W.M., P.P.G. Tyler; J. Wood, P.M., P.P.G. Org.; E. Hinks, W.M. elect; D. Pape, S.W.; Jos. Barron, Treas.; W. Wilson, Sec.; Jon. Scott, S.D.; G. P. Abraham, Org.; W. Gaspey, D.C.; J. Armstrong, I.G.; C. Thompson, Tyler; J. Wales, F. Jackson, W. Thornton, J. Rushford, T. Usher, D. Crowden, and A. Pettit. The visitors were:—Bros. H. Cook, P.M., 119 Whitehaven, and 1225, Barrow-in-Furness, P.G.S.W., Cumberland and Westmorland; W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.G. Secretary; J. C. Hunter, P.M., 962, Workington, and 1225; R. Hooker, P.M., 1225; J. Huartson, P.M. and Treas., 1021, Barrow-in-Furness; J. T. McIntosh, 1225, and W. F. Lamonby, P.M. 1002, P.P.G. Reg. (Freemason). Bro. Hinks, the W.M. elect, it should be stated, attended the meeting under very disadvantageous circumstances, he having pluckily travelled all the way from Barrow-in-Furness, a complete cripple, the result of the accident before noted. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, including alteration of the date of meeting from the Monday before full moon till the first Tuesday in each month, Bro. W. F. Lamonby, P.M. 1002, was invited to take the chair, when Mr. James Coward, who had previously been balloted for, was admitted, and regularly initiated into Masonry. The initiate having retired, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Cook, P.M. 119 and 1225, assumed the presiding officer's position, and performed the whole ceremony of installation, inclusive of the investiture of the officers and charges, with a correct and rhetorical ability scarcely to be excelled anywhere. The officers were appointed and invested as follows:—Bros. W. Lamonby, I.P.M.; D. Pape, S.W.; D. Crowden, J.W.; J. Barrow, Treasurer; (re-elected); J. Wales, Sec.; W. Hodgson, S.D.; W. Wilson, J.D.; G. P. Abraham, Org. (re-appointed); J. Rushford, I.G.; T. Usher, D.C.; C. Thompson, Tyler (re-elected). On the proclamations being put from the chair, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the Installing Master for his kindness in coming so far, and the elaborate manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. A vote of thanks was also given to the Provincial Grand Secretary for his presence on the occasion. Bro. W. F. Lamonby, P.M. 1002 having been elected an honorary member of Greta Lodge, in recognition of his willingness at all times to assist in the work of the lodge, hearty good wishes were tendered from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed in form. The brethren then adjourned to a splendid banquet, which was duly discussed, and an hour and a half was spent in toast and song, the proceedings, however, coming to an abrupt conclusion at ten o'clock, when the programme was little more than half through, in consequence of the discovery that the hotel, being situated to the north of the River Greta, and therefore out of the boundary of Keswick, must be closed at that early hour. The idea of an extension for an hour or two, it seems, had never entered the minds of the lodge committee, and unfortunately no justice of the peace was of the party, else he might have been prevailed on to hold a special licensing session. It was with deep regret, therefore, that the happy party were forced to separate in the very midst of their harmony and conviviality.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—A very distinguished gathering of Freemasons took place at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street, on Wednesday, the 5th inst., the occasion being the anniversary meeting of the above lodge, and the installation of its W.M. for the ensuing twelve months. The lodge was opened by Bro. George Pipes, P.G.O., the retiring Master. Bro. M. H. Bobart, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., Derbyshire, subsequently assumed the chair, and then Bro. Joseph Heathcote, S.W., was presented by two Past Masters Bros. S. Pipes, P.P.S.D., and J. Worsnop, P.P.G.P., for the benefit of installation, which ceremony was thereupon proceeded with by Bro. Bobart. It was most efficiently and impressively performed, and called forth high encomiums. The newly installed Master invested Bro. G. Pipes, the I.P.M.; Bro. Bobart, the Treasurer; and his officers as follows:—Bros. W. B. Hextall, S.W.; J. O. Manton, J.W.; W. Butterfield, Sec.; J. E. Russell, S.D.; C. D. Hart, J.D.; J. Parkins, M. of C.; J. Pakeman, I.G.; and G. Johnson and J. Lane, Stewards. A handsome Past Master's jewel, voted by the lodge, was afterwards presented to Bro. G. Pipes, in recognition of his very able Mastership during the past twelve months, and was suitably acknowledged by him. There was also an amount of ten guineas voted from the lodge funds to the Masonic Charity for Girls. At the close of the lodge the brethren adjourned to the banquet table, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. At an early stage of the evening the W.M. was compelled to retire, owing to indisposition; the toast of the evening, that to the W.M., therefore, was robbed somewhat of its interest; nevertheless the W.M. was very highly spoken of, and his work in the subordinate positions in the Craft was very favourably commented upon. The toast to "The Visitors" was the next in interest, and showed that the Hartington Lodge heartily welcomed members of other lodges, and that its welcome was fully appreciated. Next, perhaps, stands the toast to "The Officers of the Lodge." In the selection of the S. and J.W.'s. it was confidently anticipated that the chair of the lodge would not lack a suitable occupant at least for some time to come, and as regards the other officers, their work hitherto proved that much might yet be looked for amongst them. Our space is too limited to give the names of all those present, and it is a difficult matter to make a selection from such a large assembly of Masons of high rank. However we give a few names:—Bros. T. Cox, P.M., Prov. G. Treas.; W. Taylor, P.M., Prov. G. Sec.; W. H. Marsden, P.M.; and F. Campion, P.M.; all of whom are also P.P.S.G.W.'s. of the province, E. R. Ward, W.M. 253; T. C. Hammond, P.M. 253; G. Small, P.M. 787; and W. Merry, P.M. 1179; Bro. Stone, the Tyler was almost overlooked in our report, but such a deserving officer and such a well informed Mason, is at all times prominent, and as it happens be very suitably "tyles" this report.

MIRFIELD.—Mirfield Lodge (No. 1102).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge was held on Friday, the 14th inst., when the following brethren were present, viz: Bros. T. B. Fairclough, W.M.; J. T. Barras, S.W.; John Crowther, J.W.; John Walmsley, P.M., Treas. as S.D.; Jas. Barker, Secretary; J. Kenworthy, I.G.; W. Booth, Tyler; and J. Wainwright, P.M. John Barker, P.M.; Thomas Lang, P.M.; A. A. Stott, P.M.; and J. F. Crowther, P.J.W. The lodge was opened; in due form in the First and Second Degrees, when Bro. R. Lister, F.C. now entered the lodge, and having answered the usual test questions, was entrusted and retired. The W.M. now vacated the chair in favour of Bro. John Barker, P.M., P.Z., &c., who opened the lodge in the Third Degree, and performed the ceremony of raising Bro. Lister to the Sublime Degree of M.M. in a most impressive and solemn manner. The chair was again resumed by the W.M., and the lodge closed to the First Degree, when a most valuable and interesting present was made to the lodge by Bro. J. Wainwright, P.M., namely a piece of stone, originally forming part of one of the pillars of King Solomon's temple. This stone was obtained by our Bro. Wainwright himself on his recent visit to Jerusalem, and has been now given to the lodge, the members of which will long think of the giver with the most kindly feelings. It is scarcely necessary to say that a hearty vote of thanks was given to our worthy brother for his present, which was duly acknowledged by him. A candidate having been proposed the lodge was closed in peace and harmony, in ancient form.

FELTHAM.—Elliot Lodge (No. 1567).—A meeting of this young but successful lodge was held at the Railway Hotel, on the 1st inst., when, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, there was an excellent attendance of the brethren, comprising the following:—Bros. J. R. Nichols, W.M.; W. Dunham, P.M.; John Mason, S.G.D. Middlesex, P.M., Treas.; J. Elliott, P.M., Sec.; J. H. Pearson, S.W.; J. W. Clarke, J.D.; Rev. J. Jackson Wray, Prov. Grand Chaplain Middlesex, Chaplain; F. Jacob, J.D.; W. H. Goodall, I.G.; R. F. Potter, Tyler, and the following brethren:—Bros. J. Harris, G. R. Nichols, H. Randle, J. Dixon, C. T. Green, F. A. Pemberton, T. D. Dutton, E. W. Winter, W. W. Elliott, J. Fletcher, J. Davie, C. R. Schmidt, J. W. Bellamy, R. C. Smith, F. Wadson, G. T. Church, and R. A. Fraser. The visitors were Bros. H. J. Fischel, 1381, and E. E. Crombie, 1623. This was the first regular meeting of the lodge since the installation of the popular W.M., and it amply confirmed the wisdom of the appointment. Bro. Nichols performed the whole of his duties to the gratification of every one present, raising Bros. Schmidt and Church, passing Bro. Fraser, and initiating Bro. William Dormer in an excellent manner. The Worshipful Bro. John Mason, by consent of the W.M., made an eloquent appeal to the brethren on behalf of the Benevolent Institution, which met with a hearty response. The duties being concluded, the brethren sat down to a banquet, at which the viands were all of the usual excellence, leaving nothing to be desired in the matter of either quantity or quality. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given with commendable brevity, that of "The P.G. Officers" being acknowledged by the Chaplain and Bro. John Mason. "The Health of the W.M.," proposed by the Treasurer, was received with acclamation, and acknowledged in brief but well chosen remarks. Bro. Goodall responded for "The Officers of the Lodge." The Tyler's toast brought to a conclusion an evening which, miserable without, was distinguished by that feeling of good fellowship and brotherly love which is the distinguishing mark of our Craft in general and of the Elliot Lodge in particular.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the W.M. Bro. J. S. Cumberland presiding, supported by Bros. T. B. Whythead, I.P.M.; Geo. Balmford, P.M., Treas.; W. Hanly, W.M. (Military Lodge 4th Dragoon Guards); and many other officers and brethren. The business consisted of a ballot for a candidate, and the passing of Bro. York to the Second Degree. The W.M. announced that Bro. T. Cooper, P.M., would be unable to attend the Benevolent Festival in London that week as he had fully intended, since he was suffering from very severe illness, but that he himself and Bro. A. T. B. Turner, Asst. M.C., hoped both to be present and would take up a list of about £40. This was very encouraging for so young a lodge. Great sympathy was expressed for Bro. T. Cooper, who is universally respected as one of the finest old Masons that York has produced, and the father of the Eboracum Lodge.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—This very prosperous young lodge met in great strength, (it being election night) on the 3rd inst., at the White Hart Hotel. The lodge was opened punctually at 6 o'clock by the W.M. Bro. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, &c. There were present also, besides others, Bros. Baldwin, P.P.G.P. of Middx., P.M., acting S.W.; the Rev. F. J. Champion de Crespiigny, P.M. 708, P.P.G.C. of Middx., Chaplain and J.W.; Smith, W.M. 201, acting I.P.M.; T. W. Ockenden, J.W. 1512, Sec.; B. R. Ashton, S.D.; J. Hurst, P.M. 1512, J.D.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middx., W.M. elect 1381, I.G. (Freemason); Forge, acting I.G.; Harrison, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. with his customary ability raised Bros. Emms and Drummond. The ballot was then taken upon behalf of Mr. Heinrich Gerhold, and having been declared unanimous, that gentleman together with a Mr. Henry Ellis, jun., (already balloted for), was initiated into the Order. The ceremony being well performed. The next business on the agenda was to consider a notice of motion by Bro. Walls, "That the day of meeting be the second instead of the first Monday in the months of February, March, November, and December." This motion having been supported by the Chaplain, Secretary, and other officers, was put to the meeting as a resolution and unanimously carried. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year resulted unanimously, with the exception of one vote, in favour of Bro. the Rev. C. de Crespiigny, who briefly returned thanks. The election of Treasurer and Tyler fell unanimously upon Bros. Nutball and Gilbert. Upon the motion of Bros. Hurst and the Rev. C. de Crespiigny, a jewel of the value of ten guineas was unanimously voted to the outgoing W.M. for his able services in the chair during a period of two years. The W.M. having in a few well chosen sentences thanked the brethren for this mark of their esteem and confidence, proceeded to close the lodge. This ceremony having been duly performed, the brethren adjourned to a very substantial collation, ably catered for by Bro. Andrews. In consequence of the extreme lateness of the hour the toasts were necessarily curtailed and but briefly responded to. The installation meeting will take place on the second Monday in the ensuing month.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday, the 19th inst., when the following were the brethren present:—Bros. W. A. Morgan, W.M.; A. N. Newens, S.W.; A. B. Walker, J.W.; W. J. Huntley, S.D.; J. J. Holland, J.D.; F. W. Wardroper, I.G.; J. Frost, Sec.; S. C. Landon, D.C.; S. Steed, Tyler; E. H. Boddy, P.M.; H. R. Jones, P.M.; J. G. Carter, P.M.; J. G. Kewney, P.M.; and Bros. R. Walker, John Stirk, George Fortescue, and A. A. Denham (Mid-Surrey Standard). The visitors were:—Bro. C. Digby (the newly-installed W.M. of the Doric, 933), and Bro. W. S. Stewart (of the Strong Man Lodge, 45), who wore the centenary medal. The lodge being duly opened, the W.M., very impressively initiated Mr. Thomas Arnison, Truro-villa, Wimbledon, and Mr. W. T. Bell, of New Wandsworth. The brethren afterwards proceeded to elect two Past Masters as trustees of the Lodge Benevolent Fund, and, after some discussion, Bros. Carter and Boddy, were unanimously chosen. The lodge was closed in due form, and an adjournment was made to the banquet room. The W.M., upon the cloth being removed, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts with his usual felicity. Bro. Digby in reply to "The Visitors," referred to a remark from the W.M. that brethren were always welcomed at the 1044. He (Bro. Digby) had heard of "knife and fork" Masons, but he thought that, as the ruling principle of Freemasonry was charity, that more attention to the charities, and less to the Fourth Degree (laughter) would be better. Bro. Stewart also humbly replied, and said that in his lodge the brethren were induced to forego a banquet so as to subscribe more to the charities. He thought such a sacrifice—one of the stomach—was deserving all praise (laughter). The other usual toasts having been given, the Tyler's brought the evening's meeting to a close.

METROPOLITAN MARK LODGE.—A meeting was held on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., at the Harp Hotel, Jermyn-street. Present:—Bros. J.

Mander, W.M.; Copeland, S.W.; Smallpicer, J.W.; E. Baber, Sec.; Tredwell, S.D.; and others. The ceremony of advancement was ably worked by the W.M. This Lodge of Instruction meets now every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER OF IMPROVEMENT.—A largely attended convocation of this chapter assembled on Tuesday evening, 18th inst., at the Jamaica Coffee House, Cornhill, to witness the ceremony of installation by Comp. W. Stephens, who occupied the First Principal's chair, Comp. Clarke, Prov. G.D. of Cer. Suffolk, the chair of H., and Comp. Wood, Z. of the Vane Chapter, the chair of J. Amongst the visitors were Comps. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, P.G.C. of the Grand Lodge of England; the Rev. C. W. Hill, P.G.C. of Kent; Spencer Compton, Prov. G.H., Surrey; G. E. Wainwright, P.Z. 372; Lindus, P.Z. Vane Chap., and many other Companions of distinction. After the installations of the three Principals had been most solemnly performed; the chairs were occupied by Comps. Clarke as Z.; Brown as H.; and Stephens as J.; Walker, Scribe N.; and Wyer, P. Suj.; Massa acting as candidate. The ceremony was most impressively rendered, and much appreciated by the visitors, who expressed their admiration in unmeasured terms of the excellent working of the Chapter of Improvement, after which all were admitted members, and the nominal joining fee paid. A vote of thanks was accorded to Comp. W. Stephens for performing the ceremony of installation, many Companions having travelled a long distance to witness it, to which he briefly replied, thanking the Companions, and offering his humble services on any other occasion. This chapter of improvement is generally well attended, and any Companion seeking a knowledge of the Royal Arch Degree will be well repaid by a visit. Comp. Gompertz was elected Z. for the next term, Wyer H., and Lawrence J. We regret the absence by illness of Comp. T. W. White the Scribe E., who is at all times most indefatigable in his exertions for the good of the Royal Arch Degree.

Royal Arch.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—This old chapter met on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street. There were present:—Comps. P. Wagner, M.E.Z.; P. Robinson, H.; J. Mander, J.; Harfeld, P.Z., Treas.; Elsam, I.P.Z.; T. C. Walls, S.N.; Davage, P.Z., S.E.; Moss, P.S.; Stewart, 1st. Asst. S.; Davis, and Asst. S.; Holbrook, P.Z.; Loewenstark, P.Z.; Whitey, Gispert, Pratt, Ellborn, J. Hurst, and Longstaffe, acting Janitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. in consequence of the candidate for exaltation not being present, ably worked a portion of the ceremony. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place and resulted in each case unanimously in favour of Comps. Robinson, M.E.Z.; Manour, H.; Walls, J.; Harfeld, Treas.; Davage, S.E.; Moss, S.N.; and Stewart, P.S. The election of Janitor was postponed. A jewel was voted to the outgoing M.E.Z. There being no other business before the convocation, it was duly closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet, which was well served by Bro. Best, and assistants. Upon the removal of the cloth, the First Principal gave the customary Royal Arch toasts which were duly honoured. "The Health of the M.E.Z." was warmly proposed by the I.P.Z. who spoke in high terms of the Masonic abilities of Bro. Wagner. This toast having been received with excellent "fire" the M.E.Z., briefly responded by thanking the companions for the support that they had given him during his year of office. He was sorry that he had no candidates for exaltation, but notwithstanding that misfortune, his term had not been altogether profitless, for they had "worked" the ceremony on more than one occasion. He hoped that his successor would have better fortune, because without the introduction of fresh blood into the chapter, it would necessarily in a few years assume but very small proportions. In conclusion, he heartily thanked them for having voted him a Past Principal's jewel which mark of their esteem he should ever regard as a most interesting souvenir of his year of office, and he hoped to be spared many years to come among them in the character of a Past Principal. "The Health of the M.E.Z. Elect," and "The Past Principals," followed, and these toasts having been drank were briefly acknowledged by Comps. Robinson, and Elsam. The First Principal then proposed, in very flattering terms, "The Health of the Officers," which was responded to by all the companions thus honoured, with the exception of Comp. Stewart who had left. The Janitor having been called upon to discharge his duty the companions adjourned at an early hour.

LIVERPOOL.—Downshire Chapter (No. 594).—The first ordinary meeting of this chapter after consecration, which was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, was attended by an amount of success which gives good token of future prosperity. The attendance was good, and the working of the chapter was such as must have astonished every one. The First Principal was particularly impressive and efficient, and the other Principals and chief officers vied with each other in maintaining the excellence thus displayed by the M.E.Z. The chapter was opened in prompt time, amongst those present being Comps. R. P. France, M.E.Z.; John Hayes, H.; J. L. Houghton, J.; J. Whitfield, S.E.; F. Barnett, P.S.; Wynne Parry, R. Williams, T. Lillocock, John Pyc. The visitors were:—Comps. B. B. Marson, P.P.G. Soj.; A. D. Heskith, T. Williams, John Stockes, A. Woolrich, and Joseph Wood (Freemason.) There were ten candidates exalted, eight of whom belonged to the Downshire Lodge, viz., Bros. James Montgomery, Richard Maddox, Thos.

Boswell, Wm. Evans, W. Peacock, Jonah Milner, W. Larker, and W. H. Vevers; one (Bro. W. Evans), to the De Grey and Ripon Lodge; and one (Bro. J. Waller), to the Mariners Lodge. As we have said already the work was splendidly performed, and Comp. F. Barnett, who was only exalted at the previous meeting, merits honourable mention for his P.S. work, in which he was assisted by Comp. B. B. Marson. The companions subsequently supped, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Priory Chapter (No. 1000).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held at the Middleton Hotel, on the 12th inst. Present, Comps. J. A. Wardell, M.E.Z.; J. Willing, jun. H.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, J.; J. C. Johnstone, P.Z. 20 (I. C.); Scribe E.; W. Pissey, Scribe N.; E. Judd, Prin. Soj.; A. Lucking, I.P.Z.; Rev. A. F. Heaton, Visitor, Comp. A. J. Ireton, Mount Lebanon, 73. There being no candidates for exaltation, the companions proceeded to the election of Principals and officers for the ensuing year, with the following result, viz.:—Comp. J. Willing, jun. Z.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, H.; W. Pissey, J.; A. Lucking, P.Z., Treasurer; J. C. Johnstone, Scribe E. (re-elected); E. Judd, Scribe N.; J. R. Hemmann, Prin. Soj. Some candidates having been proposed for exaltation at the next meeting, the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to refreshment.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Chapter (No. 1356).—The annual installation of Principals in connection with this highly prosperous chapter took place recently at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, where there was a very large and highly influential gathering, which included Comps. R. Brown, Z.; Joseph Bell, P.Z.; B. B. Marson, P.Z., P.P.G. Asst. Soj.; J. A. Edginton, H.; W. J. Chapman, J.; A. Heaketh, Scribe E.; Jno. L. Houghton, Scribe N.; Lindo Courtenay, P.S.; E. Paul, Asst. S.; Peter Lassen, Janitor; Alfred Woolrich, Treas.; James Keet, S. Nickson, James Cotes, Thos. D. Dutton, F. Horne, Edward George, R. F. Milton, H. P. Squire, J. W. Williams, R. W. Barnes, G. Maxwell, T. Holden, H. Pritchard, J. M. Askey, R. Burnett, A. Martin, L. H. Pryce, Sandbrook, and T. B. Myers. The visitors were Comps. F. Barnett, P.S. 594; R. P. Francer, Z. 594; John Hayes, H. 594; Dr. R. H. D. Johnson, P.Z. 1094; Thos. Salter, S.E. 241; Joseph Wood, Treas. 249 (Freemason). Comp. B. B. Marson, P.P.G.A.S., most impressively installed Comp. J. A. Edginton as M.E.Z.; W. J. Chapman as H.; and Lindo Courtenay as J. The other appointments and investitures were Comps. Robt. Marin, jun., P.S.; A. D. Hesketh, S.E.; F. G. Dutton, S.N.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; and P. Larsen, Janitor. A special and cordial vote of thanks was given to Comp. B. B. Marson for the faultless manner in which he had performed the installation ceremony. The following candidates were elected and exalted:—Bro. G. Lewis, 1356; A. Hemming, 1319; C. Courtenay, 1609; T. Davies, and E. H. Thomson, 1609; and R. Barnes, 1609. Two joining companions were also elected. The chapter having been closed, the companions, to the number of forty-eight, adjourned to the old lodge room, where a most excellent dinner was provided by the House Steward. After the usual loyal toasts had been duly honoured, the M.E.Z., Comp. Edginton, returned thanks for the chiefs and himself to Comp. Brown, for the kind manner in which he had submitted their healths to the companions, and after expressing a desire to do their best for the happiness and prosperity of all, proposed the next toast. He called on the companions to join with him in the pleasure of drinking "The Health of the J.P.Z.," remarking that his efficient rendering of the ceremonies had proved his great ability as a Royal Arch Mason, whilst his inimitable mirth and wit had greatly increased their social enjoyment, expressing how highly he prized the opportunity of presenting him with a P.Z.'s jewel, which the companions trusted he would accept as a slight token of their esteem and regard. Comp. Brown, in acknowledging the toast, stated that it had been his good fortune to form many warm friendships in the chapter, and he hoped to increase their number on those future occasions which he should have great pleasure in attending. The Z. then gave "The Health of the Past Chiefs," reminding the members that their great success was principally owing to the exertions made by their predecessors, and coupled with it the name of the Installing Principal. Comp. Marson, acknowledging the tribute paid to past service, stated that it was always a pleasure for them to be present to do what they could to further the interests of the De Grey and Ripon Chapter, as each meeting seemed happier than the preceding one, and in their minds nothing but pleasing memories of its past could remain. Comp. Bell also remarked that it would be a happy privilege to place their future services at the disposal of the chapter should occasion require it. "The Newly-Exalted Companions" were ably represented by Comp. Barnes, whilst Comps. Dr. Johnston, D. Bennett, and France, Z. of the Downshire Chapter, responded, in eloquent terms, for "The Visitors," and Comps. Chapman, Brown, Woolrich, Myers, and others, contributed in a marked degree to the musical enjoyment of the evening.

BRO. J. S. CUTHBERT, S.W., 823, 1576.
After an illness of considerable duration, Bro. James Stuart Cuthbert, S.W., of the Everton Lodge, No. 823, Liverpool, and who held a similar position in the Dee Lodge, No. 1576, meeting at Parkgate, Cheshire, expired at No. 2, Priory-road, Liverpool, on the 5th inst., greatly regretted by the numerous circle of brethren to whom he was well known, and by whom he was very highly respected, by reason of his genuine Masonic character, his amiable disposition, and his generous nature. His body was interred in Anfield Cemetery, on Saturday morning, the 8th inst., and the large attendance of brethren clearly demonstrated the general esteem in which he was held by the brethren of his own and other lodges. The Everton Lodge, in which Bro. Cuthbert had served every office until reaching the S.W.'s chair, was represented by Bros. Henry Ashmore, W.M.; John Houlding, I.P.M. (Chairman of the West Derby Board of Guardians), Bro. W. Cottrell, P.M.; William Wilson, P.M.; Thomas Shaw, P.M.; J. Boyle, Secretary; J. Beesley, J.D.; Brassey, I.G.; R. Webster, S.S.; Galley, J.S.; J. Jacobs; D. Callow; T. Bloomfield; and Micalle. The Dee Lodge was represented by Bros. T. Chesworth, P.G.D.C. (Cheshire), P.M.; J. Jones, W.M. 1576; A. Richardson; W. Jones, Secretary; W. Foster; and D. Davies; and amongst others present were Bros. J. W. Ballard, P.M. 724; W. O. Jones, J.W. 292; and J. Jenaway, 2496. At the conclusion of the funeral services, the assembled brethren threw sprigs of acacia into the grave, and many took a last look into the resting place of a worthy brother with tearful eyes.

BRO. JOSEPH FRANCIS.

We regret to record the death of Bro. Joseph Francis, which took place on Jan. 12th, at his residence, 101, East-street, Kingston, Jamaica. The time was when the deceased held his place among the first of our mercantile men in the fancy and general dry goods line, but the lapsing of a policy of insurance and the occurrence of a devastating fire a few days thereafter, ere the policy had been renewed, cast him into deep and ever since continued difficulties; from that time his life had been a series of perplexities, nevertheless, throughout his difficulties he never lost sight of that gentlemanly and urbane deportment towards those with whom he was brought into association, which was always a marked characteristic of his life. In his hey-day he was ever charitable and kind to the poor, gaining at all times the esteem of a large circle of friends who amidst weal or woe ever entertained the kindest sentiments for him, and who now unite in regretting the demise of one whom they had learnt to regard as a truly honest and worthy man. Bro. Francis belonged to the Craft, and was among its leading and most respected members. By them his loss will be deeply deplored, and with them we unite in tendering to his bereaved wife and children our earnest condolences.

DEATH OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER OF HEREFORDSHIRE.

We regret having to record the death, at the advanced age of eighty, of the Provincial Grand Master of Herefordshire, Bro. the Rev. J. Bowles, D.D., Vicar of Staunton Lacey, Salop. The deceased gentleman was the oldest Provincial Grand Master but one, having held the appointment since June, 1848. The younger brethren of the Province had not the opportunity of his acquaintance, the rev. gentleman for some few years past being able to devote but little time to the duties of his office owing to failing health, but by the elder members he was held in the greatest respect.

The principal work of his parish has also been for the same reason for several years entrusted to a curate.

In the parish of Staunton Lacey the deceased gentleman was highly esteemed and beloved, and the poor will miss a good friend.

The Rev. Joseph Bowles, D.D., was educated at Magdalen College, Oxford, and graduated B.A. in 1835 and M.A. in the year following. He was ordained deacon in the same year, 1836, and priest in 1837, by the Bishop of Lincoln; was domestic chaplain to the Duchess of Inverness and Rector of Stoke, Oxford, 1837 and 1838. He was appointed incumbent to the Donative of Sanford, Oxon, in the latter end of 1838, and in the same year was elected Chaplain to His Royal Highness the late Duke of Sussex. He was rector of Woodstock, Oxford, from 1841 to 1847, in which latter year he accepted the living of Staunton Lacey, Salop, which he has held from that date until his demise. The living of Staunton is of the gross value of £564 and vicarage, and is in the gift of Lord Windsor, who has just attained his majority.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

There were thirty new cases on the list, twenty-seven of which were relieved with a total amount of £542, two taking £75 each (£150), four £30 (£120), one £25 (£25), four £20 (£80), five £15 (£75), eight £10 (£80), two £5 (£10), and one £2 (£2).

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

No more pleasant festive gathering could possibly be found than that which has taken place for several years as part of the arrangements of the principals of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, which meets at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The lodge, during its existence, has deservedly secured a prominent place in the estimation of the fraternity in South-west Lancashire, and, as the annual merry meeting is held for the purpose of giving aid to the Benevolent Fund of the lodge, it invariably secures a large share of patronage. The fourth annual ball, held at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., was again eminently successful. There was an attendance of about 150 brethren and ladies, and, as all the arrangements were of a complete and satisfactory kind, the festive gathering assumed the feature of a happy family party. Bro. S. Schonstadt, W.M., was present, and amongst the other principals of the lodge were Bros. R. Robinson, P.G. Registrar, P.M.; A. Jones, I.P.M.; A. J. Henochsberg, P.M.; M. Hart, P.M.; H. A. Tobias, J.W.; S. J. Henochsberg, Sec.; M. Aronsberg, S.D.; and M. P. Tieski, J.D. The W.M. was the Chairman of the Ball Committee, and the other officers were Bros. A. Lyons, Hon. Treas.; H. M. Silver, Hon. Sec.; A. J. Henochsberg and H. A. Tobias, Captains of the Stewards; and S. J. Henochsberg and A. Hart, P.M. 724, efficient Masters of Ceremonies. During the evening an excellent supper was served, under the direction of Bro. Ludlow, manager of the hotel, and an exceedingly pleasant evening was spent by all who were present at the "Israel" ball.

FATHER SUFFIELD AND THE FREEMASONS.

Father Suffield has made the amende honorable. Some ten or twelve years ago he was at West Hartlepool, a Dominican friar, founding, as he says, the Roman Catholic cause in that place, when he took occasion in a lecture to denounce Freemasonry as "bad, atheistic, and revolutionary." He was warmly brought to book by Bro. Emra Holmes and Bro. G. M. Tweddell, enthusiastic brethren of "the mystic tie;" but you may bring a horse to the water and not succeed in making it drink. The Rev. Father read the letters in the Mercury, but did not recant. He has done so now. The opportunity having been furnished by a reference to the correspondence in a "Masonic Memoir" of Bro. Emra Holmes, prefixed to his book just published, Mr. Suffield, now no longer a "Father," writes that when he denounced Freemasonry he did so upon an authority—the authority of the Pope—then believed by him to be "overruled by Providence," but which he has since discovered to be "an unrighteous assumption over God and man." Acting as "a freed man and an Englishman," his earnest wish has been to seek admission into a society promulgating the very principles he holds—"the worship of God and the service of man;" and has only been deterred from gratifying the wish by circumstances over which he has had no control. Dating from Oak Hill House, Broomhill, Sheffield, January 23rd, and addressing Bro. G. M. Tweddell, he desires it to be distinctly understood that, though not a Freemason in fact, he is in spirit.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT FESTIVAL.

The more we consider the result of this great gathering the more we are struck with its figures, the more we must applaud the efforts of all concerned. The totality of the Stewards' lists is alike a striking fact and remarkable reality, per se, and the festival of Wednesday week will long remain an "Alba Dies" in the annals of that useful and beneficent Institution, a "landmark," so to say, in its kindly and useful career. Last week we shortly glanced at a "general resumé" of the incidents and announcements which accompanied the last festival, to-day we propose to consider one or two other points in those speaking returns, which may not be without interest to our readers, or without profit to ourselves to peruse and ponder over. The metropolis has returned £6300 in round numbers, and in round numbers £1200 less than the provinces. No doubt, in the nature of things, this is but natural, and must be expected, seeing that London lodges and brethren stand in relation to the rest of the Craft as one-sixth against five-sixths. Indeed, the metropolitan returns, judged by an ordinary standard, are very marvellous in themselves, and reflect the highest credit on the zeal, energy, and benevolence of our metropolitan brethren, whose hearts, as many of us well know, are always in the right place. In our last notice we pointed out that the six highest returns from London varied from £325 10s. the highest, to £134 18s. 6d. the lowest. But we think it well to supplement that enumeration with the names of a few more lodges, from which, by the aid of the Stewards, three figures have been returned to gladden Bro. Terry's heart, and augment the funds of the charity. Such are Lodges 1671, W. W. Medcalf, Steward, £120 15s.; 1178, J. Stock, Steward, £118 3s. 6d.; 1288, S. T. Goode, Steward, £116; 259, J. A. Rucker, Steward, £115 10s.; 180, A. L. Annett, Steward, £115 10s.; 1363, H. R. Murchison, Steward, £113 18s.; 1471, J. Mather Steward, £113 8s.; 1613, G. M. Felton, Steward, £111 6s.; 228, R. H. Halford, Steward, £112 1s.; 1585, J. W. Robinson, Steward, £110 14s.; J. G. Stevens, Steward, £110; 141, C. Dairy, Steward, £107 10s.; 1657, Rev. Dr. Brette, £106 11s. 6d.; 1260, J. H. Southwood, £105; 657, W. Maple, Steward, £100 16s.; and 12, W. H. Bateman, Steward, £100. The other numerous returns vary from £96 15s. to £5 5s. There is one point we feel bound to note, namely this, that from No. 1700 only four metropolitan lodges subscribe anything, and the amount sent by these lodges is £215 17s. 6d. That, no doubt, is a good average, as it would give £50 per lodge, but still we regret deeply the fact that only four metropolitan lodges from 1700 have sent anything, leading to the inevitable conclusion that it is to old friends, not to new, at any rate from No. 1700 in the lodges, that the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution is indebted for these goodly returns. We wish we could believe that our lodges and chapters were doing their proportion of this work as lodges and chapters. Is it not to be feared that our lodges and chapters are spending all their available income, especially in the metropolis, on "creature comforts," and have little to spare for charity in general or in particular? Is it not the fact, that far too many metropolitan lodges and even chapters are in debt to their Treasurers, often in large amounts, rendering the position of such bodies, not at all a wholesome or a safe one? We do not ask these questions in a spirit of censorious complaint or uncomplimentary cavil, far from us be any such "animus," but we do ask them honestly, fearlessly, and fraternally, that so these "spots" on our "feasts of charity" may gradually disappear from among us, and we may enjoy a far healthier and more satisfactory condition of things both in our lodges and in our chapters. As regards the provinces, what can we say but that they are doing their duty? Since West Yorkshire set the stone a rolling, something like nineteen years ago, how wonderful has been the development of provincial efforts for our great metropolitan Charities; and long may it so continue. Long may the metropolis and the provinces run a race of friendly zeal and eagerness, like those gallant boys, the Austrian and English "middies," in Syria, some few years back, to plant their national flag on the walls of the surrendered fortress, each endeavouring to do as much as possible for these excellent Charities of ours, which reflect such credit on our Order, and are speaking witnesses both of its goodly profession and its truthful practice, its utility, its reality, its blessing for mankind.

MASONIC SARCASM.

Whether sarcasm is in itself allowable we must leave, we think, to the moralist and the casuist. There are those who declare that sarcasm is not permissible ever, as it constitutes a breach of the spirit of God's great moral law of love. On the other hand, we must not forget, it seems to us, that the sense of the ridiculous, the gift of irony seem to be born with some of us, just as the powers of the mind, the gift of imagination. It appears to us, however, though we are aware we tread on debateable ground in saying so, that sarcasm may sometimes be profitably employed and lawfully made use of in the affairs of life, in the contests of the world. Some of us may remember when the poet, appealing to a great and sarcastic satirist, says,

"Bethink thee Gifford when some future age
Shall miss the promise of thy playful page,
The hand which brushed a thousand fools away," &c.

and, we confess, that in the ineptitude of the hour, the weakness and the "folly of fools," we are often led to believe that such powers of sarcasm are a great gift, to be legitimately used and "properly applied to their destined purpose." The historian of humanity might well also declare that to sarcasm we owe a great many of the most legitimate triumphs of common sense and right reason, alike in the affairs of men and the whirlpool of the world. Some are so constituted as only to be moved by sarcasm, and though some hides are so thick, as is often said, that nothing, "not even sarcasm," can touch them, yet as we ourselves know, there seems often to be a most legitimate sphere for its direct and prevailing use, either when "fools rush on where angels fear to tread," when we have to wage a warfare hourly with folly in various shapes and hues, when we have to contend to the loss of our temper, sometimes with that mournful vacuity of intellect, and that perversity of purpose which antagonize the best efforts and mar the most philanthropic plans. But what can we say of Masonic sarcasm? Is it justifiable? Can it be justified as between professed brother and brother, true to each other, whatever betide, "true and faithful," though oceans divide, though slanderers betray, though the faithless bewray, though the whole world stand in opposition and persecution? To deny to the Masonic mind the sense of the ridiculous, the gift of satire, irony, sarcasm, would be, we venture to think, excessively unreasonable and absurd, but then, by the moral law which Freemasonry promulgates, being that of God's Word, we are taught to control our tempers and our tongues, and to refrain from the full flow of indignant honesty, or justifiable complaint. In the progress of life and human affairs we often see those "jests," or sarcastic effusions, which if witty, amuse, if genial, delight, if reasonable and pointed, excite our hearty admiration, and so far all is well, and many of us can recal to-day the pleasant "pasquinades" of happier and cheery years, when we took life easily enough, when health was good, friends were many, cares were few, "the attic salt" of many a laughing rhyme, and merry "skit" still lingers with us agreeably though time has moved on rapidly since then, and memory seems to point with weird and wasted finger to vacant places at our board, to eyes that are dim, voices that are hushed, and hearts that are cold. But if what is most kindly and intellectual be allowed, what shall we say of those lamentable effusions we sometimes read, which betray nothing but personality and vulgarity, which are the offspring of wounded vanity or excitable folly; which only grieve the thinking and intelligent, and make the Masonic and kindly-hearted sigh? We can only remark we suppose that they do amuse somebody, though whether that somebody is worth amusing is another and a different question. We saw, for instance, an anonymous fly-sheet the other day, which, very un-Masonic in tone and temper, was vulgar in conception and utterly worthless in its "tout ensemble." It could only have emanated from a very petty, narrow mind, utterly incapable of elevating itself, either to Masonic good feeling, sense, or decorum. There was nothing witty in it, or even amusing, that any one could laugh at a line of it; approval was utterly impossible, since being a merely personal attack, and penned in evidently an unworthy and vindictive spirit, it was as idle as it was ridiculous, and as unjustifiable as it was un-Masonic. Some great and dignified, and intellectual individual had been "sat upon," "snubbed," "snuffed out," "pro tem.," so he prints at once that foolish broad sheet. What a commentary on Masonic good will, Masonic professions, and Masonic brotherly love! But such is the world, "my masters," even in Masonry, and while the puppets move up and down, or talk with squeaking voices, and beat themselves with passion, and throw themselves into ridiculous "poses," the Masonic philosopher shrugs his shoulders, and leave them silently and complacently to that obscurity which is their proper lot, to that oblivion before which happily fade away to-day the impertinences of the ignorant and the personalities of the un-Masonic.

THE POWERS OF A QUARTERLY COURT.

We are told, though we can hardly credit it, that some doubt still lingers as to the real meaning of the laws of our educational Institutions in this respect, and as to the actual powers of a Quarterly Court. It was said at a recent Court, though nobody paid attention to so childish a remark, that the Quarterly Court had no power to receive a report from a Committee, or even to refer anything to a Committee. We could only charitably suppose that any brother who could deliberately make such a statement, and seriously, must, as our young men like to say, be "off his nut." Yet any such contention is really too puerile and too perverse to demand attention, or require confutation. It falls at once with its own inherent absurdity, pre-supposing on the part of the objector an entire unacquaintance with the phraseology and purpose of laws, and the dictates of custom and common sense, the Quarterly Court, we repeat, is superior to all other Committees necessarily, and is, as we before pointed out, supreme. We believe it was contended, and has since been somewhere repeated, that because among the powers of the General Committee it is laid down that it is to receive "all reports from Committees," therefore, admirable logician, no reports can be ordered or received except by the General Committee. If this argument be good, the House Committee could not delegate to a Sub-Committee any work without reporting to the General Committee and the Quarterly Court, the Supreme Court of Appeal, on almost any subject, if it does order a report must submit it first to the General Committee. Had good Bro. Obstructive taken the trouble to read carefully the words of the laws, did he enter into the construction of paragraphs, or the rules of legislation itself, he would understand, if he can do so, that all such provisions must relate to matters in what the lawyers term "pari materia." The laws relative to the General Committee only affect proceedings of the General Committee, and do not profess to touch upon, nor can they touch upon, the procedure of the Quarterly Court on the one hand, or the House Committee on the other. As we said before, we can ourselves hardly realize the fact in our own minds, that such obtuseness and such ignorance should prevail as to the powers of the Quarterly Court, and we doubt very much whether any one competent to understand the question at issue, does seriously entertain any doubt on the matter. We hope that if any such objections be made at the Quarterly Court, it will be at once overruled by the Chairman, as to discuss such a frivolous objection is both a waste of time, and an insult to the common sense of the meeting. That the Quarterly Court has power to refer any number of questions to any number of Committees, is perfectly clear, and that without any reference whatever to the General Committee, an inferior body itself, we should have supposed must be patent to the dullest mind amongst us. We cannot, however, legislate for thick-headedness and perversity, but we can prevent the valuable time of a meeting being taken up by objections in which nothing is objected, and by casuistry by which nothing is manifested except a spirit of personality, or an insensibility to decorum.

RESTORATION OF ST. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

By a report elsewhere it will be seen that this movement progresses, and we are requested to state that all brethren desirous of joining the Committee should send in their names at once to C. E. Keyser, Esq., 47, Wilton-crescent, S.W. The maximum subscription is five pounds, but any lower sum will be received. We wish the proposal all success.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
It was only yesterday afternoon that I found myself in a position to justify a definite correction of a statement which has obtained wide-spread publicity through the columns of both the Masonic and ordinary daily press. Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., were the Bankers of this Institution, and the late Bro. S. Tomkins, a partner, was neither Trustee nor Treasurer, as he was to Grand Lodge and the other Masonic Institutions, and it is held this Institution has no locus standi as a claimant on the private estate. The information, therefore, should be—"The claims of all the Masonic bodies on the estate of Messrs. Willis, Percival, and Co., have been paid in full, with the exception of that of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys."

In consequence of the loss thus sustained, in amount £894, and on that account alone, we are compelled to obtain assistance from our present bankers to discharge the bills for the past quarter.

Surely, under these exceptional circumstances, we have the best possible basis for an exceptionally urgent appeal for sympathy and for increased practical support in our hour of need.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
FREDERICK BINCKES,
Secretary.

6, Freemasons' Hall, W.C.,
19th, February.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM GRAND LODGES.
To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
The question is often asked, have representatives any duties? In a circular I have just been sent, and dated December, 1878, and issued by the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, it is stated that "the Most Worshipful Campbell H. Johnson, in his official communication as our Grand Master last year, tabulated the following as his views upon the duties of a Grand Representative, and they were approved by the Grand Lodge:—

"First. To visit at all regular sittings the Grand Lodge to which he is accredited; interchange published proceedings, and deposit with the Grand Secretary copies of all official documents emanating from the appointing power.

"Second. To acquaint himself thoroughly with the Constitution, code of jurisprudence, and forces of work in vogue in the Grand Lodge which he represents, that so he may be able to communicate them, when desired, to the Grand Lodge to which he is accredited.

"Third. To welcome, vouch for, and introduce worthy Masons from the jurisdiction which he represents; to detect imposters, if any, and to see to the judicious distribution of charity where demanded.

"Fourth. To strengthen the golden chain of pure attachment between the Grand Lodge, encourage mutual customs and goodwill, and give due warning of perils that may threaten to both."

How very few representatives fulfil these four requirements. The majority, I fear, consider themselves ornaments.

Yours fraternally,
JAMES H. NEILSON,
5, Up. Mount-street, Dublin,
18th February.

THE ADMISSION OF MEMBERS.
To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,
Is it not true that the Grand Lodge should interpose some restriction to prevent lodges accepting propositions for membership from candidates residing at a considerable distance and under other jurisdictions, especially so to prevent London lodges admitting members resident in other jurisdictions and from places within reach of established lodges, thus facilitating the bringing discredit on the Craft by the admission of unworthy members?

Last week's Freemason records a similar transaction to one I communicated to the Freemason some time since, when a candidate for Masonry, knowing he would be rejected by the two lodges in the town and neighbourhood of his residence, succeeded in securing membership in the Phoenix Lodge, 173, London; and as, in the case recorded last week by a member of 471, the individual intruded himself as a visitor where he would not be received as a member. Surely this is not a proper state of things, and something ought to be done to prevent the repetition of such censurable proceedings. If the credit and good character of the Craft is to be maintained this surely is not the way to secure it.

Will you, Sir, kindly give an expression of opinion on the subject, the Freemason being looked up to as an authority.

Fraternally yours,
A MEMBER OF 291.

Reviews.

DEBRET'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE, &c.
Dean & Co., 160A, Fleet-street, E.C.

This most useful work comes before us with much prominence and effect as one of the most handy and needful handbooks of the day. It is, in fact, indispensable to all, and we do not wonder, noting its correctness and fulness, to hear on all sides how much it is appreciated and approved of. We can honestly commend it, and we do so gladly to-day, having proved its accuracy and experienced its want.

THE BROAD ARROW. 2, Waterloo Place.

A publication intended for the public servants of the country, and is ably edited, and full of interesting and important information. We have been struck, however, with a review in the issue of February 8th, to which we think it right to call attention. The review praises the Masonic Magazine properly for February, but uses these words respecting its editorial management.

"Both poetry and fiction in this number of the Masonic Magazine are unusually good, while the initiated will find much that will attract his special attention. We regret, however, to see that the editor feels it requisite to disavow sympathy with the very best and most sound Masonic article in the whole magazine. Mr. Kenning would do well to clear out of his pages the mass of soft padding which seems to find favour in the eyes of the editor, and give more scope to good, sound, true Masonic principles, such as good Masons abroad as well as good Masons at home are capable of appreciating. We have had too much lately of the sophistication of Masonic truth."

We fear that the reviewer can hardly have read the article. The best of the joke is that the Editor had translated the article itself from the Chaine d'Union, but thought it needful to add a note of warning. And for this he is blamed; but what for?

Bro. Berton traces the origin of secret societies to the combination of servants against their masters, oppressed against oppressors, subjects against rulers, and puts forth the theory of a "droit de travail," which does not suit our view of the facts of history, or the progress of Freemasonry. Freemasonry does not come from secret societies qua secret societies.

He, no doubt, recognizes the operative guilds, but more as a combination of trade unions, organized against capital and masters than anything else. It is against this view that the Editor rightly protests as we have always done. It is quite clear that the reviewer knows nothing of the opinions of the editor, or he would not accuse him of sympathy with the "sophistication of Masonic truth." As is well known to others the editor has long been foremost in advocating the simple historical view of Freemasonry but he regrets mistaken theories and mischievous suggestions, as well as crude notions, and is not likely to fall into the rhapsody or nonsense of a French sentimental revolutionary school. We say this in fairness to our contemporary, because we feel the remarks of the reviewer, are alike penned in ignorance and injustice.

OUR HOME. Louisville, Kentucky, U.S.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

A Grand Lodge of Emergency of the Mark Degree was held on Tuesday, 18th inst., at the offices, No. 2, Red Lion-sq., for the purpose of voting an address of condolence to Her Majesty the Queen on the death of Her Royal Highness the Princess Alice. Lord Skelmersdale, M.W. Grand Master, presided, the remainder of the lodge being formed as follows:—Bros. Rev. G. R. Portal, Past G.M.; Lord Henniker, G.S.W.; F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., as G.J.W.; D. M. Dewar, Asst. G.S., as G. Sec.; Robert Berridge, as G.I.G.; Thos. J. Sabine, G.M.O.; Rev. H. John Hatch, S.O.; C. Hunter, G. Swd. B.; J. B. Shackleton, G. Std. B.; Thos. W. Murley, P.G.S.; Thomas Cubitt, P.G.D.C.; W. A. Barrett, P.G. Org.; S. Rosenthal, P.G.D.C.; H. Machin, Sussex; H. Baldwin, Sec. 234; Henry Lovegrove, J.W. 234, as Tyler; W. G. Brighten, Prov. G. Sec. Middlesex and Surrey; and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Dewar having read the notice convening the lodge,

Lord Skelmersdale said: Brethren, after taking advice with different members of the Grand Lodge it was thought advisable to call together this lodge of emergency for the purpose for which you have just heard the notice read. It was felt that for us to wait till Grand Lodge next June, which is the next regular meeting, we should be too late—we should be putting off this melancholy duty longer than we ought to do. I can assure you, brethren, that one particular body of Freemasons, viz., Mark Masters of England are not wanting any more than other bodies in loyalty to her Majesty, and under these circumstances I feel we are only doing to her Majesty a duty in voting to her an address of condolence on this occasion. All who knew the late Princess Alice, all who heard of her, must have known what a good woman she was, what a good mother she was, and what a good example she set to all in her station of life. No one can feel more deeply than parents—and many of us are parents—the loss of a child, and when the loss of that child is the first loss a parent has ever felt it must come the more deeply. It has so come to her Majesty. I am sure it is not necessary to say many words on this occasion, as I am sure you will all feel the deepest sympathy with her Majesty in this, the greatest affliction which has fallen on her uniformly happy reign.

Bro. Dewar then read the following address:—

"To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

"May it please your Majesty—

"We, the Mark Masters of England and Wales and the Colonies and possessions of the British Crown, in Grand Lodge assembled, beg permission, respectfully, to approach your Majesty with the humble assurance of our deep sympathy in the loss that your Majesty has sustained by the lamented death of H.R.H. the Princess Alice, Grand Duchess of Hesse.

"Recognising the great and noble qualities of the illustrious Princess, and the bright example that was afforded by her in all the varied relations of life, which she so signally adorned, we venture to hope that your Most Gracious Majesty will find some solace in the bereavement with which it has pleased the Supreme Ruler of the Universe to visit you, in the knowledge that your grief is shared in by all your Majesty's subjects, without distinction of race or creed.

"Signed on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons,

"SKELMERSDALE, G.M.M."

The Rev. G. R. Portal, M.W.G.M., I beg to move that the address just read be adopted by this Grand Lodge.

Lord Henniker—M.W.G.M., I have great pleasure in seconding the resolution that this address should be presented. I do not think it is at all necessary for me to say one word in addition to what you have said. The fact that the Masons of England are one of the most loyal bodies in this country, and I think the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons is not less loyal than any other body of Masons in this country, is enough to recommend the motion that has been made to us. But we have also another thing to think of, which is this, that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales is the Grand Master of the Order, not of this particular Order, but of the Ancient Order of Freemasons in England. We all of us belong to that Order, and we all feel for him in the great bereavement that he has suffered, and we all feel for the whole of the Royal Family in the bereavement they have suffered. I am told, and I believe with truth, that there is no member of the Royal Family who has felt this grief so greatly as His Royal Highness, and this is one reason which commends this vote to us. Another reason, I think, is this, that among Masons there is nothing which is so much valued as the home life and the purity of the home of the sovereign of this country. I am quite certain that those few words are enough, if it is necessary to add to what you have already said, to recommend the motion to this Grand Lodge. I am bound to say this, that I have been to-day at a meeting of the trustees of the fund which is being raised in this country for the endowment of a hospital at Darmstadt. I am bound to say this in order to explain the matter. The Masons of England, some of them at least, may be anxious to supply subscriptions that way, some may not, but it will be raised entirely privately; but as this motion has come before Grand Lodge I may mention that I am one of the trustees. The subject emanated at Darmstadt first of all; it received the approval of the Queen, the Patron of the whole Order of Freemasons in this country, the Prince of Wales, and a great many people have subscribed to it. A great many other people wish to subscribe to it, not in large sums, but in order to show their affection for the Princess, who, as his lordship said, brought the home life of the Queen and the affection of the Royal Family on to others, and also joined her position in the homes of every day in this country more to us. I only mention this that I hope some Masons may think it right to subscribe to this fund, not perhaps that they will get any glory by it, or gain any elevation by doing so; but simply because they may wish to show the kind feelings they have for the Royal Family, the great wish they have to carry out not only the work begun by Her Royal Highness herself, but a work which His Royal Highness, the Grand Duke of Hesse wishes to carry out, and hopes to be supported in this country. I have great pleasure in seconding this motion.

Lord Skelmersdale—I think I am right in saying that the fund already amounts to about £1,500.

Lord Henniker—It is nearly £2,000. I hope you will allow me, M.W.G.M., to add that I had no intention of mentioning this matter. I only wished to come and perform my duty as the Senior Grand Warden. I came up on purpose to attend this meeting. I came up fresh from the country, and I had no intention of making this statement; but as I was seconding the motion I really could not refrain from stating what I have stated.

The motion was put, and carried unanimously.

It was then arranged that the address should be engrossed, and afterwards signed by Lord Skelmersdale and presented to Her Majesty.

Bro. Dewar stated he had received letters of apology for absence, from the S.G.W., the Grand Treasurer, the Grand Registrar, and other Grand Officers, regretting their inability to attend Grand Lodge, but expressing their sympathy with the movement.

Grand Lodge was then closed.

CONSECRATION OF THE COBORN LODGE (No. 1804).

The consecration of this lodge and the installation of the W.M. took place in the Vestry Hall, Bow, on Monday last. The proceedings commenced at half-past four, when the brethren met in an ante-room of the hall, and thence marched in the usual order into the lodge room, where they received the Consecrating and Installing Officer, Bro. James Terry, P.G.J.W., Herts., who appointed as his officers pro tem. Bros. W. R. Marsh, P.M. 1672, S.W.; B. Cundick, P.M. 1421, J.W.; J. Kemp Coleman, J.W. 1716, I.G.; W. Clarke, P.G.D.C. Suffolk, D.C.; C. B. Payne, P.M. and Grand Tyler, Tyler. The lodge was then opened in the Three Degrees, and after the preliminary formulae customary on such occasions had been gone through, the Consecrating Officer delivered an able and impressive dissertation on the nature and principles of Freemasonry, dwelling with especial emphasis on the obligations which the Craft are under to support, as far as each member individually can, the charitable objects of the institution. The ceremony of consecration was then solemnly performed, the musical part of it being efficiently conducted by Bro. Fred. H. Cozens, Org., 907.

The Board of Installed Masters having been formed, the W.M. designate, Bro. C. A. Heimann, P.G.D. Treas., Japan, was presented to the Installing Officer, and was duly installed in the chair of King Solomon.

The brethren having then saluted the W.M. in the Three Degrees, he, at once, proceeded to appoint and invest his office bearers. Their names and offices are as follows:—Bros. F. J. Hunt, S.W.; W. H. Farnfield, J.W.; Eoinger, Treas.; John Dennis, Sec.; R. M. Talbot, S.D.; W. Seaborn, J.D.; J. Kemp Coleman, I.G. pro tem.; G. Harrison, Tyler.

The W.M., in very complimentary terms, moved a vote of thanks to Bros. Terry and Clarke for the very able manner in which they had conducted the ceremonies, and further proposed that they should be elected as honorary members of the lodge, which was cordially agreed to.

In replying on behalf of Bro. Clarke and himself for the compliment conferred upon them, Bro. Terry assured the brethren that nothing could have given them greater pleasure than to inaugurate the Coborn Lodge, which, he trusted, would soon make for itself a name in connection with Freemasonry.

The Secretary next observed that it was his great pleasure to announce that the newly-installed W.M. had handed him a cheque for twenty-five pounds towards defraying the cost of the furniture and other appointments of the lodge, a statement received with loud cheers.

It was subsequently moved by the J.W. that a vote of thanks be given to Bro. Heimann for this seasonable and handsome donation. The proposition was carried with acclamation.

The W.M., in a few appropriate remarks, replied, taking occasion to observe that although he could not devote that attention to the chair which he would wish, owing to the circumstance of his having to go abroad, he could never fail to take a lively interest in the affairs of the lodge.

The J.W. and Sec. having mentioned the names of several joining members the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren sat down to a magnificent banquet in an adjoining chamber, over which the W.M. and his principal officers presided.

Besides those whose names we have already given, there were present:—Bros. Farnham, P.G. Steward; A. Ellis, 933; Thos. Bates, I.G. 1716; Leonard Potts, J.W. 1716; Thos. C. Thornicroft, J.W. 1401; James Kift, 789; G. J. Shipway, 813; F. H. Cozens, P.M. 907; Henry Alcock, 162; Hugh Cutter, P.M. 554; Chas. Brown, 1362; H. Ashton, 1185; C. Henry, 201; N. Joseph, 176; F. Farnham, P.M. 29; Chas. B. Payne, P.M., and Grand Tyler 27; E. J. Anning, 1625; Robt. H. Halford, P.M. 228; S. W. Thompson, 9; and A. H. Chisholm, 1602 (Freemason).

After the banquet was over, the usual Masonic toasts followed. "The Queen and the Craft," and "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," were drunk with the usual enthusiasm, Bros. H. Ashton, F. Cozens, J. Kift, and C. Henry singing the National Anthem and "Hail to thee, Albert." The W.M., in proposing the "The Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro. G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present," said that as Freemasons they had all reason to be thankful to the Grand Officers for all that they did to promote the interest of the Craft. "True to the Core," was then very effectively sung by Bro. Charles Henry, and Bro. Farnham, P.G. Steward, suitably acknowledged the toast. Bro. Terry next said that, as Consecrating Officer, it devolved upon him to offer for the acceptance of the brethren the toast of the W.M. Bro. Heimann had travelled many miles to be installed Master of the Coborn Lodge under the Grand Lodge of England, and he (Bro. Terry) had little doubt would return to Japan again, where he held the high distinction of being P.G.D. Treas., carrying with him a fair fame and high reputation to be promoted to a still higher position. If the honours that the W.M. had had conferred upon him elsewhere were an evidence of anything, it was that the Coborn Lodge would prosper under his Mastership. He (the speaker) knew that the W.M. was most desirous to do all he could to promote the interests of the lodge, and he was certain that when the ceremonies came to be performed they would be conducted in such a manner by the W.M. as to set a worthy example to all those who were to follow him in that high and responsible position. He would simply conclude by expressing the hope that health would be spared to the W.M. to preside over the lodge with credit to himself and satisfaction to the brethren. "By Celia's Arbour" having been charmingly sung by Bros. Ashton, Cozens, Kift, and Henry, the W.M., in responding to the toast, whilst regretting that he could not be there during the whole of his year of office, trusted that when he returned to London next winter he would be able to carry out his duties to the entire satisfaction of the brethren. The next toast the W.M. had the honour to propose was "The Health of the Consecrating Officer and Director of Ceremonies." The brethren of the Coborn Lodge had every reason to be deeply grateful to these distinguished brethren for having consecrated it, and he personally was extremely indebted to them for having installed him in the chair. The toast having been drunk with great enthusiasm, another glee, entitled "Hart and hind are in their lair," was sung, and Bros. Terry and Clarke appropriately replied.

The remaining toasts, "The Visitors," "The Secretary and Treasurer," "The Charities," were duly honoured and responded to, being interspersed with some capital songs by Bros. Ashton, Kift, Cozens, and Henry, and the Tyler's toast brought a happy evening to a close.

All the arrangements for the banquet were most creditably carried out, the Secretary, who acted as W.S., leaving nothing undone to provide for the comfort of the brethren.

ANNUAL BALL OF THE CARNARVON AND MIZPAH LODGES, Nos. 1572 AND 1671.

The third annual ball of the above lodges was held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Friday, the 7th inst., under very favourable auspices. Amongst the brethren present we noticed, Bros. Hale, W.M. 737; Hall, W.M. 455; Haan-ger, I.P.M. 455; Edward Terry, I.P.M. 1319; Bergmann, J.W. 1671; Maidwell, I.P.M. 27; Stevens, W.M. 1730; Jenner, J.W. 455; Curtis, 145; Foreman, 34; Brock, 765; Barham, J.L. 144; Brown, P.M. 765; Clark, J.D. 1632; Hopkins, 1572; Hellier, W.M. 1572; Wooton, 1671; Nelson Reed, 1671; Perkins, 1572; Carter, 1728; Gow, 619; Noakes, 92; Blenkinsop, 754; Wiles, 1671; Hardy, 1572; [and several other brethren and gentlemen.]

Dancing commenced at nine o'clock, and was kept up with great spirit till five o'clock in the morning. The band was supplied by Bros. Coote and Tinney. An excellent supper was supplied by Bro. Rand, the manager of the Hotel.

Bro. Nelson Reed occupied the chair, and after the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, gave "The Health of the Ladies," thanking them for their kindness in gracing the meeting with their presence, and called upon Bro. Jas. Curtis, 145, to respond. The toast was received with great enthusiasm.

Bro. Curtis, in reply, said: Bro. Nelson Reed, brethren, and gentlemen—I rise with feelings of the greatest possible pleasure to respond to the toast of "The Ladies," which you have pledged with the enthusiasm it deserves. The pleasure is, however, mixed with a sense of responsibility, but if I am overwhelmed I know I shall be "overwhelmed in a sea of glory." Bro. Nelson Reed has, with that modesty which always characterises and so well becomes him, forbore to enlarge upon the good qualities of the ladies, but I feel that to-day surrounded by such a galaxy of beauty I must recite their praises. It is a pride and an honour to reply on their part, and, therefore, sinking my individuality, I appear for the time as a lady, and say—

"We are here as a boon and a blessing to men, Like the Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
Some of you may not, perhaps, regard Mrs. Bardell as an enviable lady, yet she had, withal, her good qualities. Now, see the allusion to the owl. It is a well known fact in natural history that a young owl grows more beautiful every day, so does a good woman become daily more and more estimable. Carry it further, and what does Waverley suggest but a train of thought, as exhaustive as it is correct, in believing that the author of Waverley spoke forcibly and well, as in his poems he declared—

"When pain and anguish wring the brow
A ministering angel thou?"
That is a truism, and here to-day we minister to your enjoyment; you would not have had a ball without us, and we are pleased to be your guests, and ye bachelors, if such words are insufficient to impress you with our worth, learn from Tommy Moore, the Irish poet, that—

 "There's a bliss beyond all that the minstrel has told,
 When two that are linked in one heavenly tie,
 With heart never changing and brow never cold
 Love on through all ills, and love on till they die.
 One hour of a passion so blessed is worth
 Whole ages of heartless and wandering bliss,
 And O, if there be an Elysium on earth,
 It is this! It is this!"

We, being ladies, are, of course, ignorant of the mystic tenets of your Order, but we opine that charity has ever formed the mainspring of all your actions. We, then, claim to represent and to personify charity or love. Our very name is derived from two Saxon words 'Lef diau,' signifying to serve bread, an allusion to the feudal times when we personally doled out bread or distributed charity to the deserving poor. We are pleased to see, and we congratulate you most heartily upon that charity or love which has prompted the Carnarvon and Mizpah Lodges to join hand in hand this evening to promote our enjoyment. This is "the third time of asking," words in church of momentous import to us. Well, now we regard these words, as this is your third annual ball with much appreciation, because we feel that the success of your ball is ensured, and that for a long string of years to come your gatherings, as your happiness, will be great. Now, as then, we say—

"Stand firm and fast, nor slave, nor lord,
 United bands of faithful brothers be;
 Stand firm and fast, defend of one accord
 Your holy rights and be for ever free."

Bro. Edward Terry, P.M. 1319, in reply to the toast, "The Health of the Visitors," said, I have a very difficult task to perform. It was quite true, as Bro. Nelson Reed has informed you that I have played many parts, and I might also add that I have performed in several pieces, but the part I have to play to-night is a most difficult one, inasmuch as my parts are always written for me, but to-night it is not so. On behalf of the visitors here I must thank you very sincerely for the great treat you have given us to-night at this your third annual ball. I myself have been to each, but think this the most enjoyable and successful ball you have had; I, therefore, trust next year to be one of your guests, as I am certain all my brother visitors hope to be invited again and again.

The Chairman proposed "Continued success to the Carnarvon and Mizpah Lodges' Ball," to which Bro. Goffin replied.

Bro. Clark, J.D. 1632, proposed "The Health of the Chairman," who, in reply, thanked the ladies and gentlemen for responding to his call, and was glad to see such an assembly of fair ladies as was present on this occasion. It was quite true there had been some difficulty in arranging the ball, but that was overcome, as all present must acknowledge. He thanked the brethren and gentlemen for drinking his health, and hoped the next ball would be, if possible, more successful than the present.

Considering the bad times the attendance was good, there being 154 ladies and gentlemen present. The arrangements were of the most complete and satisfactory character, thanks to the great and untiring exertions of the Stewards, the principal members of which were Bros. N. Reed (Chairman and Hon. Sec.), Clarricoats, Goffin, and Warden (Vice-Chairman.)

The duties of Masters of Ceremonies were fulfilled with great courtesy by Bros. Briggs and Reed. The brethren appeared in full Masonic Craft clothing with the jewels and insignia of their rank and office, and these added considerably to the fine effect of the gathering.

The following were the Stewards on this occasion:—Bros. Bromwich, 1671; Bullock, 1572; Burman, I.G. 1572; Clarricoats, Treas. 1572; Goffin, 1572; Lovebond, 1572; Meier, 1671; Pearce, W.S. 1572; Bisons, 1671; Sull, W.M. 1671; Taylor, 1572; Warden, 1671; Whitaker, P.M. 1572; Willcock, 1572; Wright, 1671; Briggs, J.W. 1572; and Reed, S.W. 1572, and I.P.M. 1671.

ST. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

The adjourned meeting in connection with the restoration of St. Alban's Abbey was held in the Freemasons' Tavern on Wednesday afternoon last, Bro. the Rev. J. C. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, D.P.G.M. Suffolk, presiding.

Bro. C. E. Keyser, Sec. to the Committee, having been called upon to read the minutes of the previous meeting, Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., announced that there was a brother in attendance who was to enter an objection to the proposed scheme, and he ventured to think that it would perhaps be better, since, at the last meeting a resolution had been carried to the effect that it was the intention of the meeting to carry out the proposed restoration, to hear the dissenting brother before they should proceed further. After a short discussion upon the rules which regulate the business of public meetings, it was agreed that the minutes be signed as corrected.

The Chairman then said the next paragraph on the agenda paper had reference to the calling upon himself to state the result of his endeavours to get the D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, to act as the President of the Committee. He had much pleasure in stating that he had received a kindly letter from the D.G.M., in which he expressed his hearty approval of the object they had in view, and announced that it would afford him great pleasure to allow his name to appear on the Committee. (Applause.) Lord Skelmersdale had so many engagements, as they all knew, that he could not promise to be often present, but he would do his best to promote the work which he (the speaker) was sure the D.G.M. would do with all his heart. He had not heard from any of the Senior or Junior Grand Wardens, but he was in hopes that some of them would also consent to act on the Committee. (Hear, hear.)

The Secretary then announced that he had received letters of apology from several influential brethren who could not be present owing to the pressure of other engagements, and further stated that he had since last week received one or two more answers from patrons of the undertaking, amongst them being Colonel Starkie, Montagu Guest, P.G.M. Gloucester, who would be very glad to throw his influence and best endeavours into the movement; and Viscount Holmsdale, M.P., P.G.M. Kent. He had communicated with all the patrons, and he was happy to say he had only had three refusals. He begged also to say that he had received the following subscriptions:—Bros. Montagu Guest, £2; J. W. Edwards, I.P.M. 1479, £5; A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chaplain, £5; C. Keyser, S.D. 404, £5; Colonel Starkie, £5; Sir Albert Woods, £5; Viscount Holmsdale, M.P., £5; Rev. Dr. Griffiths, £5; and one or two others. (Applause.)

Bro. T. Wardle, I.P.M. 966, then addressed the meeting. He said he had come there that afternoon, as they might expect, with great diffidence, owing to the kind invitation of Bro. Keyser, who had been good enough to reply at some length to a letter which he (the speaker) had thought it necessary to address to that meeting on its first assembling. He would ask the kind indulgence of his hearers whilst he made a few remarks which he had very much at heart, not because he had any enthusiastic notions upon the question they had met to consider, but because it was one to which he had paid, as an amateur, a lifetime's attention. He ought to say that he was associated with men whose names were of the greatest possible weight in art, and, if his observations might appear disjointed, it would be more from his inability to address a public audience than anything else. He had come from North Stafford that morning, at considerable personal inconvenience, to be present at the meeting. He had two objects in coming. One was that as Worshipful Master of a lodge, his last act was to give notice of a resolution, which if passed, should be sent to the Grand Lodge, and to the Provincial Grand Lodge, calling upon Freemasons to try and take care of the buildings which were being so ruthlessly and mercilessly treated. He thought they had been for a long time past neglecting their duty in allowing, without protest, such things to be perpetrated, as had been perpetrated under the name of restoration. So great was his astonishment when he saw, in the Freemason, the proposal they had met to discuss, that he at once took the opportunity of writing to the last meeting, with the result that they now saw him there. He was much obliged to Bro. Keyser for writing to him, for that had induced him to come to London and address them. Another reason was that he was one of the promoters of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings, having been on its committee from its commencement; although he did not appear there as the agent of that society, or at its wish or suggestion. He would not take up any time by discussing the restoration of St. Alban's Abbey in particular which might lead them into an architectural debate which he did not think was opportune or necessary. He ought, however, to say this, that for some time the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings had been using what influence it possessed with the St. Alban's Committee, and the Committee generally, against putting upon the nave the high pitched roof that is proposed, and the society were very glad to find that such protests as they had been able to make had been listened to, and that there was by no means a unanimous acquiescence in this high pitched roof. He was told that members of the Committee had even left the committee rather than be bound to do that which they thought was not right. He had himself heard at one of the committee meetings Earl Cowper say that he disapproved of the proposal.

The Chairman here reminded Bro. Wardle that the scheme was simply to restore the west front of the Abbey.

Bro. Wardle (continuing) was coming to that. He was strictly speaking to the question, as he would show that the putting up of a nave roof would necessitate the raising of a gable to the west front, which would be a most monstrous thing to do. That was why he mentioned the subject of the nave roof. By all means let them have as much of the stone of the old work as possible; but as to doing what the circular proposed to do—which he was happy to find was at variance with what Bro. Keyser had told him in his letter, which said "we propose to restore, not to renew"—he entered his warm protest. Bro. Wardle then read the following excerpt from the circular referred to:—
 "The architect's estimate for the restoration of the central porch is £2,500, and for each of the side porches £2,000, or for the entire west front £9,000. These sums appear at first sight very large, but very much will have to be done on account of the decayed and mutilated condition of the stonework, and the cost of reproducing and repairing the elaborate details of the design will necessarily be considerable. Of those portions which have at some time been wilfully destroyed, sufficient fragments have been discovered to enable the architect to restore the porches in accordance with the original plan of Abbot John de Cella."

He earnestly protested, as far as he might do in politeness and courtesy to the meeting, against any so-called restoration whatever—any building from fragments to imitate what it was before, any re-duplication of the old work, the spiritless carving of masons whose work bore no comparison to, and, in fact, was utterly insipid when put by the side of the work of their older brethren. Let him give an instance. It was proposed to alter the porches—to re-duplicate them—to restore them with modern mimicry. They had only to go to Westminster Abbey to the north porch and see what had been done there in putting up a porch in place of the old one. One would think that the architects would certainly do their best for Westminster Abbey. He ventured to say it was a most disgraceful structure, and it was not worthy of a second-rate architect's clerk. When once they, as Freemasons, committed themselves to this scheme, they really should have no power to correct the mistake they would make. He knew from experience that they would have no power in controlling what was being done. The architect himself would have no power, because he could not be there constantly and see what was going on. He (the speaker) knew what was going on in the west porch of the Lichfield Cathedral now. The old cathedral was being absolutely destroyed, and Bro. Keyser in his letter, called attention to that as an instance of modern restoration where sad damage was unnecessarily done. He knew he stood alone in this matter, and felt his position very much, but he trusted the brethren would bear with him patiently for a few minutes longer. He had said pretty nearly all that he need say on the point, except this, that he did not wish their Masonic body committed to any work of re-duplication whatever. That was his great anxiety, and it was that which had chiefly brought him there on that occasion. Many mistakes had been made by deans and chapters and other people, who were well enough intentioned in matters of this kind, but let them not follow such examples. He thought they ought to respect the work of their older brethren more than to permit any spiritless imitations to disfigure their beautiful work.

The Chairman having to leave, in consequence of having to attend his lodge meeting, Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D. was called upon to occupy the chair.

Bro. Wardle, resuming, said he would like to conclude his remarks by reading to them a quotation from Professor Ruskin's "Seven Lamps of Architecture," giving them all that possibly could be said on the subject.

Bro. Woodford objected to this. He ventured to say that if Bro. Wardle would give his own opinions they would be very happy to listen to what he had to say. Like all other students, he had read and knew well Professor Ruskin's work.

Bro. Wardle, continuing, said he knew at what a disadvantage he stood, because he had no real influence in the matter except a love for the old work, but he would just say that he did very much more strongly than he had done, earnestly and fraternally protest against the proposed scheme. They had no business to commit their brethren to any such re-duplications as were clearly proposed, and, although he knew he would not have a seconder, he begged to move that the resolution which referred to the restoration of the west front of St. Alban's Abbey be rescinded. He would add that if they wanted to do anything to the memory of St. Alban, no one would more willingly join in any suitable project than he. There were plenty of green fields in the county where they might erect a memorial to St. Alban, but let them do something new; but as to tinkering their beautiful old art by restorations he most humbly protested against that.

No seconder to the resolution being found it fell through. Captain Dick wanted to ask Bro. Keyser a question. He understood from the minutes that there was a limit fixed to subscriptions, namely £5. Did this refer to lodge or individual subscriptions?

The Chairman—Only to individual subscribers.

A short discussion here followed, most of the brethren brethren taking part in it, as to whether the Hertford Committee and the London Committee were at one upon the essential principles of the published circular setting forth the objects of the movement.

Bro. Woodford pointed out that a resolution had been unanimously passed at the last meeting to the effect that a Central Committee should be formed in London, and that the Hertfordshire Committee should be incorporated in the Central Committee, and that they had all received a copy of the circular with an intimation that this meeting was to be held, which, seeing that there had been no objections lodged, was tantamount to saying that they generally agreed.

This view being concurred in, it was decided, on the motion of Bro. Keyser, that a remodelled circular, containing some additional information demonstrating the connection of St. Alban with Freemasonry, which Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chaplain, kindly undertook to supply, should be sent to every Secretary of the lodges in England.

The Secretary then announced that Bro. George Kenning had kindly consented to act on the Committee, and also that he had received a letter from Bro. John Hervey, P.G. Sec., to whom he had made formal application to be allowed to hold their meetings in the Board Room of the Freemasons' Hall, stating that the Board of General Purposes would be very happy to let them have the room for holding their meetings. Loud applause followed this announcement.

Bro. Woodford thought it well, before the meeting separated, to point out that it must not be supposed that there was no answer to Bro. Wardle's remarks. To this the Chairman and meeting assented, as no opinion had been expressed, owing to Bro. Wardle's motion not having found a seconder.

The meeting was then closed. A meeting of the Committee will be held on Thursday, the 27th inst., at 4.30, to further consider what steps are to be taken in connection with the movement.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

The fortnightly Committee of this Association took place at 1, Clifford's Inn, on Wednesday, 19th inst., when new members were elected, the routine business was transacted, and the meeting adjourned to Wednesday, March 5th, at 5 p.m. Brethren are requested to take notice of the alteration.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We understand that, in accordance with arrangements made last year to suit the convenience of several lodges, the next meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, will be held on Saturday, June, 21st. The place and hour will be advertised in due course.

Amongst the officers specially selected for duty at the Cape is Deputy Commissary Gordon, who has been for some time past in charge of the foreign issue branch in the Ordnance Store Department. Assistant Commissary Spinks, of the same department, will go out in charge of the Ordnance Corps, sailing from Woolwich in the City of Venice on Friday. He was entertained at a special Masonic banquet, given by the United Military Lodge, at Plumstead on Saturday night, and presented with a field glass and diamond ring. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The ceremony of installation will be worked in the Star Lodge of Instruction, Marquis of Granby, New Cross, this evening at 7. The Preceptors, Bros. Macdonald and Andrews, will divide the work.

A stroke of good fortune, it is said, has befallen an officer serving with his regiment in the Kyber Pass. Some years ago he quarrelled with his father, ran away from home, and, as is common in such cases, enlisted as a private in a foot regiment. By degrees he rose, and now holds the position of adjutant to his corps. Quite recently his father died, and evidently had forgiven his truant son, seeing that he has left him a fortune of £60,000 and an estate near Rockferry, in Cheshire.—The Broad Arrow.

Bro. W. T. Rickwood, of 33, Cheapside, J.W. of Lodge, 191, is a candidate for the Secretaryship of the Metropolitan Commercial Travellers' and Warehousemen's Association. Bro. Rickwood states in his circular, that having had some years' experience in similar pursuits he feels sure he could satisfactorily discharge the duties of the office.

We are asked to announce that the ceremony of consecration will be rehearsed by Bro. James Terry, Junior Grand Warden, Herts, in La Tolerance Lodge of Instruction, No. 538, on Wednesday next, the 26th inst. Brethren will appear in Craft clothing. The lodge meets at No. 2, Maddox-street, Regent-street, W., at 7 p.m.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—We regret that by an inexplicable error on the part of our reporter the Chairman is said to have proposed the toast of "The Board of Stewards," whereas it was proposed by Bro. J. L. Thomas, G.A.D.C.

A presentation of an interesting character took place at the Devonshire Hotel, Hindpool-road, Barrow-in-Furness, on Thursday week. For the past nine years Bro. H. Bagot, P.M. 1021, P.P.G.S. of W. for W.L., has acted as Secretary to the Committee which has carried out the arrangements for the annual ball which is held in aid of the Masonic Charities. Recently he has intimated his intention of resigning the post which he has so creditably filled. The General Committees of lodges 1021 and 1025 determined to mark their appreciation of the services he had rendered by the presentation of a suitable testimonial, and on Thursday evening he was presented on behalf of the Committees, by Bro. G. B. Nalder, W.M. 1025, with a handsome tea and coffee service. Bro. Bagot in appropriate terms acknowledged the gift.

At the last meeting of the Westminster and Keystone Lodge, No. 10, held at Freemasons' Hall on Thursday, the 6th inst., an illuminated copy of the vote of condolence which had been passed unanimously by the lodge at their previous meeting, was signed by Bro. the Rev. Thomas Cochrane, M.A., the W.M., and by Bro. G. J. Fraser, the Secretary, for the purpose of being forwarded to the widow of the late Bro. F. P. Cockerell, G.S. of W., who was a P.M. of the lodge. The vote of condolence was illuminated on vellum, and was a very beautiful specimen of the caligraphic art, serving as an elegant and lasting memorial of the esteem and regard in which our late brother was held.

THE ZULU WAR.—As we have so many readers and brethren in the military and naval services we are glad to note the announcement of a brilliant victory at Rooke's Drift, by Col. Wood and his column, on the 24th January, over 4000 Zulus. We trust ere long to hear that our gallant soldiers have brought their wily foes to reason and submission.

In the report of the Granite Lodge meeting last week the W.M. was made to say that Loyalty formed part and parcel of the Constitution—it is needless to say that Loyalty was intended.

The Masonic Hall, Hackney, has been purchased for £3500, by the church at Cambridge Heath, of which the Rev. W. Marshall is pastor. It is intended to devote the building chiefly to Sunday-school purposes, and accommodation will be thus provided for 2000 children. The large hall will hold 1500 persons. Nearly £4000 beyond the purchase price will be required to finish, fit up, and furnish the building, which is to be designated the "Morley Hall," in recognition of the services of Samuel Morley, Esq., M.P.—Christian World.

The consecration of the Sir Charles Brigh Lodge No. 1793, takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, at half-past four punctually. The ceremonies will be performed by Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, assisted by Bros. Sir Charles Bright and H. G. Buss. Bros. J. Hurst, R. W. Forge and J. Piller are the officers designate. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The consecration of the South Down Lodge, No. 1797, will take place on Tuesday next, the 25th inst., at Hurstpierpoint. The ceremony will be performed by Bro. J. Henderson Scott, Deputy Grand Master of Sussex.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Glad Tidings.—Some constitutions have a tendency to rheumatism, and are throughout the year borne down by its protracted tortures. Let all sufferers bathe the affected parts with warm brine, and afterwards rub in this soothing Ointment. They will find it the best means of lessening their agony and assisted by Holloway's Pills, the surest way of overcoming their disease. More need not be said than to request a few days' trial of this safe and soothing treatment, by which the disease will ultimately be completely swept away. Pains that would make a giant shudder are assuaged, without difficulty by Holloway's easy and inexpensive remedies, which comfort by moderating the throbbing vessels and calming the excited nerves. —[Adv't.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

ANTIQUITY LODGE (No. 2).—The installation meeting of this ancient lodge took place on Wednesday evening last, at Freemasons' Hall, before a numerous gathering of members and visitors, among whom we noticed Col. Bardett, Prov. G.M. for Middlesex; Bro. Mouchton, President of the Board of General Purposes; several Past Grand Officers, as Bros. Rucker and P. De Lande Long, as well as Bros. Lieut.-Col. Peters, Brodie, Hewitt, Jones, Jekyll, and many more. Among the members present we noticed, P.M.'s Col. Stewart, Rae, Sampson, Pierce, E. J. Barrett, Lt.-Col. Creaton, and Bro. Stephen Pearce, Greetingham, Pontifex, Batley, Rivington, Sharon Turner, Leitchworth, Ames, and others. Bro. Ames was raised to the Third Degree, and Bro. A. J. Batley passed to the Second Degree. Bro. Hope, appointed by H.E.H. Prince Leopold as his D.M., was then installed according to ancient form, by Bro. Woodford, D.M., P.G.C. The ceremonies were accompanied by some admirable music played on the organ, by Bro. Jekyll, of the Chapel Royal, St. James. Afterwards the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was, as usual with this distinguished lodge, alike most social, harmonious, and agreeable. The brethren separated at an early hour.

BURGOYNE LODGE (No. 902).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, on Monday last. Bro. Simon John Byng, W.M., presided, and there were also present, Past Masters Bros. H. C. Jefferys, (Sec.); T. F. Bringes, Samuel Poynter (P.M. 1491); S. W. Iron, Henry Smith, R. W. Field, E. H. Simmons, Harvey, and Brooks. The whole of the Past Masters were thus present, and there was a very numerous attendance of the brethren, this popular lodge enjoying at the present time an almost unexampled season of prosperity and harmony. Among the visitors we noticed Bro. Joseph Pigot, P.M. 753; W. A. Morgan, W.M. 1044; R. Payne, W.M. 1338; Wm. Thorp, P.M. 463; A. R. Jones, P.M. 1044; Max Sabel, 1490; John Close, W.M. 463; Charles C. Addison, 1305; J. Fredk. Wuest, P.M. 753; J. J. Berry, P.M. 554; Thomas Castland, 913; Thomas W. Hayes, W.M. 913; J. J. Griffiths, 193; J. Wallace, 907; W. Iron, J.D. 1579; J. Wilson, P.M. 1165; Fredk. J. Sweeting, 1257; B. Oxenham, 115; R. W. Savill, 215; J. W. Lee, 205; J. G. Tongue, 334; J. Pickett, 526; Joseph Scott, 3; N. B. Headon, P.M. and Treasurer 1426; C. H. Maisham, 326; E. Gosherton, 193; J. J. Cattle, P.M. 1441; Walter M. St. Aubyn, 318, 357; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). Previous to the installation Bro. Byng, W.M., passed to the Second Degree Bro. Williams, Shaw, and Cooper. On presentation duly made by the D.C., the W.M. then formally installed Bro. Henry Alexander Pocock, S.W., and W.M. elect, as Master of the Burgoyne Lodge for the year ensuing. The following brethren were appointed and invested as officers of the W.M. for the year:—Bros. Taylor, S.W.; Wales, J.W.; Samuel Poynter, P.M., Treas.; H. C. Jefferys, P.M., Sec.; Gabb, S.D.; Turner, J.D.; Wilkins, I.G.; Bundy, W.S.; Brookes, P.M., D.C.; Charles Young, Asst. D.C.; and Shepherd, Organist. Bro. Grant, the regular Tyler of the lodge, being unfortunately confined to his house by illness, the investiture of Tyler was deferred. Bro. Byng then concluded the ceremony by delivering the addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren, finishing off his work in the same complete style as he carried it on throughout. The result of the audit was announced by Bro. Byng, in the course of the evening, when the highly satisfactory statement was made by him that there was a balance of £45 in the hands of the Treasurer after all liabilities of whatever kind had been met and the Charities not forgotten. Lodge being closed with the customary formalities, the brethren adjourned to banquet. At the proper time for the proposal of the toasts, the introductory toasts of "The Queen and the Craft;" "The M.W.G.M.," and others, were given by the W.M., and the I.P.M., Bro. Byng, proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said that he knew the brethren would receive this toast most heartily, because it was always well accepted by the members of the Burgoyne Lodge. The reason it was so well received was that they never elected a brother to that office unless they had the greatest confidence in his ability, and Bro. Pocock answered that requisition. The brethren had had an opportunity of seeing what he could do in other positions in the lodge, and could testify to his having brought to bear on his work those great essentials, efficiency and urbanity. He, therefore, felt perfectly sure that the new W.M. would conduct the duties he had just entered on with credit to himself and satisfaction to themselves. The W.M., in reply, said he would not detain the brethren from the enjoyment of their evening, and would, therefore, merely thank the brethren, though he did it with great heartiness, for the kind way in which they had received the flattering remarks of their I.P.M. After some music and singing, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Byng," and in the course of his remarks said the brethren were quite aware how well Bro. Byng had performed his duties while occupying the chair of the lodge. Most of those brethren present had seen how ably he had concluded his year of office by installing his successor in the chair of the lodge. For himself (the W.M.), although he had seen many installations performed, he had never seen one that was performed better. The brethren having at the last meeting of the lodge given an evidence of their approval of his conduct in the chair by voting him a Past Master's jewel, it was his (the W.M.'s) duty now to present it to Bro. Byng, and in placing it on his breast he must say that single token of the approval by the brethren of the Burgoyne Lodge of the late W.M.'s conduct had been fully earned; and, in conclusion, he wished Bro. Byng many years of life and health to wear that jewel in the presence of the brethren. It would be a pleasure to Bro. Byng and to the members of the lodge. Bro. Byng, in reply, said he was deeply sensible of the too flattering terms in which the W.M. had spoken of him, and of the cordial reception by the brethren of the W.M.'s remarks. During the time he had had the honour of presiding over the lodge, his sole anxiety had been not only to further the interests of the lodge, but to contemplate those three great principles on which the Order was founded, and from the very marked manner in which the brethren had responded to the toast of his health he was led to believe he had been somewhat successful. That alone was sufficient recompense for any labours that his occupation of the chair might have entailed. But the brethren in the goodness of their hearts had thought fit to supplement it with something more substantial, by presenting him with a handsome Past Master's jewel. He should always prize it, not for its intrinsic value, but as a lasting and pleasing memento of the very cordial and kind support he had received from all the brethren, without any exception, and that was saying a great deal. For the kindness he had received from the brethren, one and all, during his year of office he begged to thank them most heartily, and he could assure them that it would never be effaced from his memory. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," whom, he said, it was very pleasing to him to see present at his installation. Of these visitors there were thirty present. Bro. Scott (No. 3) replied. He said he had been selected, unfortunately, to reply in preference to other more able brethren, because his lodge was older than that of any other visitor present. Although he had had the pleasure of attending many lodges, he had never on any occasion enjoyed himself more than he had that evening. Everything had passed of admirably, and the superior way in which the work had been done had given him great satisfaction. It was for these reasons he hoped he should frequently have the opportunity of coming again among the brethren. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The Past Masters," said it was very gratifying to him to see so many of those brethren present to honour him with their company. Although he had been so short a time in the chair he was glad to have P.M.'s to back him up. The brethren always honoured the P.M.'s because they were all worthy and good fellows. They were always ready to assist the W.M. in the performance of his duties, and they should always be most highly esteemed by the brethren. Bro. Harvey, P.M., replied, and stated that if the W.M. required any assistance during the twelve months he was in the chair he should always be pleased to give it. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of Bro. Samuel Poynter, P.M. and Treasurer," warmly eulogised the zeal, energy, and prudence displayed by that brother, to which, in a great measure, the present prosperity of the lodge was to be attributed. This toast was very warmly received, and Bro. Poynter, in returning thanks, observed that he had so frequently performed the duty of responding to the kindness of his brethren from that place, although never with greater satisfaction than at that moment, that they must excuse him if he spoke upon something less personal. As for his sense of their cordial appreciation of his labours, oels va sans dire, they had it on Scriptural authority that a prophet was not without honour save in his own country and among his own kindred, and it was often said that a man was not thought much of in his own family. With deep gratitude he (Bro. Poynter) could say that in the Burgoyne Lodge the brethren whenever they met did their best to convince him that his was the exception that proved the rule. The learned brother then proceeded to give a detailed statement of the prosperous condition of the lodge at the present moment, and remarked that to some of those present it must recall by contrast other and less favoured times. He attributed much of their present prosperity to the perfect union of the Past Masters, every one of whom was then present. The speaker then adverted to general Masonic principles, contending that the lodge should represent the family, where a brother should leave his cares, and, at the same time, his passions and his crochets, outside in the ante-room with his hat and overcoat. The brother who, through irritation or, still worse, deliberate animosity, did an action, spoke a word, or gave a vote not under the solemn sanction of his moral—and that is equivalent to his Masonic—consciousness of responsibility, was a traitor to the body among whom he worked, an unfilial member of the family into which he had been admitted. For his own part a formula, with which they were all acquainted, had ever had for him a real, and not merely a conventional, significance, but now in these halcyon days, with even a deeper meaning, a more marked emphasis, a more heartfelt, if that were possible, conviction of its truth, could he repeat of meeting his brethren of the Burgoyne, "Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again." The worshipful brother resumed his seat amidst considerable applause. Bro. Jefferys, P.M. and Secretary, responded to the toast of "The Secretary," and the S.W. to that of "The Officers." The brethren shortly afterwards separated, having spent a most happy and agreeable evening.

PECKHAM LODGE (No. 1475).—This lodge held its installation meeting on Thursday, the 20th ult., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, under the presidency of its highly esteemed W.M., Bro. Thomas Stephens, who, after initiating three gentlemen in a very perfect and impressive manner, proceeded to install Bro. Henry Vickery, the J.W., who had been duly elected the sixth Master of the lodge, into the chair of K.S., it being a sine qua non in this lodge that every W.M. shall install his successor. Bro. Stephens proved no exception to this excellent rule, and in the presence of nearly thirty Installed Masters who formed the Board, the W.M. elect was duly installed and saluted. On the return of the brethren into the lodge the W.M. appointed and invested the following officers for the year:—Bros. E. A. Whitley, S.W.; D. Channon, J.W.; Warren, P.M., Treasurer; W. E. Gompertz, P.M., Secretary; Thomas Jackson, S.D.; Gaywood, J.D.; Messum, I.G.; Rose, P.M., D.C.; Watkins, P.M., W.S.; Stribling, Org.; and Harrison, Tyler. The Installing Master then gave the three addresses in so perfect and impressive a manner that all the Past Masters present averred they had never heard them given more feelingly or with better effect before. It is but fair to note that the highly efficient manner in which the Masters of this lodge have acquitted themselves is in a great measure due to the untiring zeal of Bro. Rose, the Preceptor of the lodge of instruction. After the usual routine business, ten guineas were voted to the Boys' School, and the lodge closed. The brethren, accompanied by over fifty visitors, adjourned to the large and handsome hall used for dramatic and other entertainments, where a sumptuous banquet was laid. Amongst the numerous visitors the purple of Hertfordshire, from the mother lodge of the Installing Master, was conspicuous, being represented by Bros. Dr. E. G. Pottle, the W.M. of 869, P.G.S.B. of Herts; F. D. R. Copstick, P.M., P.G.S.B.; A. C. Wylie, P.M., P.G.S.B.; Gompertz, P.M., P.G.P. Herts. A letter was also received from Bro. James Forsyth, P.M., P.G. S. of Works, regretting his inability to be present, but sending his hearty good wishes. Bro. the Rev. Chas. E. Mayo, M.A., P.G. Chaplain, unable to be present, sent a donation to the Steward's list for the Boys' School, Bro. Stephens having announced his intention to serve as Steward at the forthcoming festival. There were also amongst the visitors Bros. Richards, P.M. 1329; Grammont, 1559; H. Smith, 205; Tholander, 1457; Blackmore, 1672; J. Brown, 1327; J. W. Hunt, 1662; Bickerton, W.M. 1329; Rush, P.M. 1201; Vail, 1155; Hockley, P.M. 172; Barnes, P.M. 1632; James Allen, 1052; Haddington, 217; Voisey, J.W. 1641; J. Garner, P.M. 1622; Sensey, 1632; Henry Gompertz, W.M. 1364; W. H. Lee, P.M. 975; Goldmidt, S.D. 1641; Seex, P.M. 1426; Thuc, 1622; Robins, W.M. 25; A. W. Stead, S.W. 1622; Earl, 186; Saul, W.M. 1201; T. E. Smith, W.M. 185; Redding, 917; Pitt, 917; Binckes, P.M., Secretary of the Boys' School, and many other brethren. Full justice having been done to the good things provided, "the perfect arrangements for which they were indebted to the untiring zeal and ready will of Bro. Hilton, who had charge." Grace was sung by four of the brethren of the lodge, and the cloth removed. The usual loyal toasts were given and duly responded to. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Stephens," spoke in feeling terms of his genial and courteous behaviour in the lodge, and of his kindly and consistent conduct as a neighbour and friend, and in placing a very handsome Past Master's jewel on his breast, presented by the lodge, he correctly interpreted the feelings of all the brethren present in saying he hoped he might long be spared to wear it, and the lodge have the advantage of his presence amongst them. Bro. Stephens, in reply, after thanking the W.M. for the kind way in which he had spoken of him, assured the brethren that although he regarded his mother lodge with the affection of a first love, yet having adopted the Peckham Lodge, he would never forsake her. He was pleased to see so many of his old friends present from his mother lodge and thanked them for their good wishes towards him, but as a Past Master of 1475 his future care and interest for the prosperity of that lodge and for the comfort of its members would be his constant care. The jewel they had so kindly presented him he should wear with pride as a token of their good will towards him. During his remarks the subscription list went round the tables, and it was announced that close on one hundred pounds were added to it for the Boys' School. Bro. Binckes, in responding for "The Masonic Charities," said as there were three gentlemen initiated that evening who, in all probability, knew very little, if any thing, of our great Charities for their benefit, at the risk of tiring the brethren, most of whom he recognised as supporters of our Institutions, he would go over the old ground, and spoke at length of the financial position of each of the Institutions, and of the benefits conferred, concluding with an earnest appeal for the subscription list of Bro. Stephens on behalf of the Boys' School. The toast of "The Visitors" was next given. The fact that so large a number were present, the W.M. thought to be evidence of the cordial manner in which visitors were always received, and of their appreciation of the hospitality extended to them. Bros. Bickerton, W.M. Sphinx Lodge; Copestick, P.M. Gresham Lodge, 869; and H. Gompertz, W.M. Earl of Zealand Lodge, 1364, replied. Bro. Bickerton spoke in very feeling terms of the pleasure he, in common with the rest of the visitors, had experienced at being in the lodge and hearing the very perfect manner the installation had been conducted; he also spoke of the frequent and kindly interchange of visits by the officers of this and his own lodge, which meet under the same roof, and hoped the same cordial feeling and goodwill would ever exist. Bro. Copestick said, while he regretted the loss of Bro. Stephens from his own lodge, he heartily congratulated the brethren of 1475 for their good fortune in numbering amongst their Past Masters so worthy and zealous worker. Bro. H. Gompertz followed, saying he had been present at the consecration and at every installation since, and in making the progress and efficient manner in which all the duties were carried out he was much pleased, and of the hospitality extended to visitors the large gathering present bore sufficient evidence of their appreciation. Other complimentary toasts followed, and the evening was greatly enlivened by a well arranged programme of songs by the members of the lodge, under the immediate superintendence of Bro. Stribling, the Organist.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, 19th ult., the W.M., Bro. John Douglass, in the chair, assisted by Bros. C. J. Scales, S.W.; W. Side, J.W.; R. T. Kingham, I.P.M.; W. M. Stiles, W.M. 1732, Secretary; George Clark, jun., D.C., as S.D.; H. Lovegrove, W.S., as J.D.; C. C. Cruikshanks as I.G.; Brummell, Steward. The visitors present were Bros. Fred. Binckes, P.G.S., Sec. Boys' School; Pitman, Orpheus; Kauffman, 1732; Blunt, 422; Cleverly, 1107; R. W. Hayday, P.M. 504; W. Hayday, 504; Barrett Kidder, 12; and Brent, 769; and members, Bros. J. J. Steele, Gilbert, jun., Edmonds, Fortescue, Perks, Wiltshire, Dimsdale, Burton, and others. Bros. Clarkson and Shepherd having been entrusted, were raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. The ballot was taken for Messrs. Potter and Conolly, but as they were unable to be present there was no other business before the lodge, which was closed down in the Three Degrees. At the banquet table, after the usual toasts of "The Queen," "M.W.G.M.," and "Grand Officers," the toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by the W.M., and ably responded to, especially by Bro. Binckes, who, as is usual with him, made a very effective speech in behalf of the Charitable Institutions of the Order in general, and the Boys' School in particular. The speech of this worthy brother had such an effect that a further sum of twenty guineas was collected at the table, in addition to the large sum collected at a former meeting, to be divided between the W.M. and I.P.M. as Stewards for the Boys' and Girls' Festivals respectively. The Tyler's toast was given at an early hour, and the brethren separated.

NEW FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1695).—This lodge having removed to the Alexandra Palace, the first meeting was held there on Tuesday, the 18th ult., when the members present were:—Bros. W. T. Parkins, the W.M.; T. Press, S.W.; H. B. D. Dunn, J.W.; E. V. Davies, Treas.; A. J. Berry, Sec.; H. C. Frampton, S.D.; J. N. Thompson, J.D.; J. Eldridge, D.C.; G. Edmunds, I.G.; E. Grout, Org.; G. Carey, Steward; C. Hutchinson, T. Jackson, J. H. Bastable, J. Cox, S. Hawkins, G. Chutter, J. Reid, J. Brown, and G. E. Trodham. The visitors were:—Bros. Hollis, P.M. No. 167, P.P.S.B. Heris; J. Rowe, P.M. 167; J. Shackell, P.M. 167; J. Yeoman, W.M. 167; J. F. O. Wood, 1288; J. Scarle, 1288; A. Speller, 217; J. Wilkinson, 167; J. Swinyard, 1178; and A. J. Mucklow, 1685. The lodge having been opened, Bro. Reid was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., and Bro. Brown was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. Frodsham, of Lodge No. 3, was then balloted for as a joining member, and declared unanimously elected. A sum of £5 5s. was unanimously voted to be placed on the list of the W.M., who had accepted the office of Steward for the Girls' School. Several propositions for initiates and joining members were then received, when the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where a repast was served in a style which reflected the greatest credit on Messrs. Bertram and Roberts, the well-known caterers and proprietors of the Palace. The usual toasts were given, that of "The Visitors" being responded to in the most able manner by Bro. Hollis; and some vocal assistance rendered by the brethren brought to a conclusion a very successful meeting.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Southampton Lodge (No. 394).—The installation of the Senior Warden, Bro. Bone, as W.M. of this lodge for the year ensuing, took place at Freemasons' Hall on the 19th ult., in the presence of a numerous attendance of brethren, the Board of Installed Masters numbering nineteen, and including the W.M.'s of the Peace and Harmony, the Shirley, and the Albert Edward Lodges, with the Mayor of Southampton, Bro. J. Blount Thomas, P.M. of the Royal Gloucester Lodge. The ceremony of installation was impressively performed by Bro. W. Hickman, W.M., and D.P.G.M. of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, and the W.M. elect invested his officers as follow:—Bros. F. H. McCalmont, W.M., S.W.; W. J. Hickman, P.M., J.W.; W. Furber, P.M., Treas.; E. T. Howell, P.M., Sec.; Rev. S. Scott, Chap.; H. P. Aslatt, D.C.; Alex. Paris, S.D.; Henry Lashmore, J.D.; G. Dymott, P.M., I.G.; and Biggs, Tyler. Votes of thanks were afterwards accorded to the D.P.G.M. for his important services during the day; the retiring W.M., Bro. J. W. Walker, at whose absence, through indisposition, much regret was expressed, and to certain officers for past services. The installation banquet was served by Bro. Dartnall, and presided over by the W.M. elect, to whom many hearty congratulations were tendered.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Lodge (No. 874).—The usual meeting took place at the Pump-room, on Wednesday, the 19th ult. Bro. W. B. Bacon, W.M., presided, and there were also present Bros. H. D. M. Williams, S.W.; C. Graham, acting J.W., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Hodgkin; T. F. Bates, Sec.; J. Burton, S.D.; J. Dunkley, J.D.; Strange, Tyler; Boorman, T. Elliott, Rule, Read, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second and Third Degrees, and having been closed down to the First Degree, the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler took place, and was unanimous in favour of Bros. A. D. M. Williams; W. S. Elers, P.M.; and Strange. The Audit Committee were appointed, and the members elected to serve were Bros. Cheale, Elliott, and Graham. Bro. Read, P.M., proposed that the usual Past Master's jewel be given to Bro. Bacon. The W.M. proposed, and Bro. Williams seconded, that Bro. Lord George Nevill and Bro. Dickenson, both of the Tunbridge Lodge, be joining members of the lodge. An important notice of motion having been given by the W.M. the lodge was duly closed.

BUXTON.—Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann (No. 1235).—The anniversary of this prosperous lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th ult., at the Court House, when there was an assemblage of brethren from all parts of the province. The following were among those present:—Bros. J. H. Lawson, W.M.; E. J. Sykes, P.P.G. St. Bearer, I.P.M.; E. C. Milligan, P.M., P.P.J.G.D.; R. R. The lodge was opened in due form at two o'clock by the retiring W.M., Bro. J. H. Lawson, who after the usual routine business proceeded to raise Bro. W. C. Cheever, which ceremony he performed in such a manner as to receive the encomiums of all the brethren present. The lodge was then closed to the Second Degree, and Bro. W. Milligan, P.M. 889, P.G.J.W., took the chair for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. Philip Le Gros, S.W., who was presented by Bro. Sykes, P.M., and Bro. Lawson, W.M. The installation ceremony was performed in a most able and beautifully impressive manner by Bro. W. Milligan, P.M. 881, P.G.J.W., assisted by Bro. Sillitoe, P.M. 317, P.P.G.S.B. East Lancashire. After the ceremony the W.M. appointed and invested the following officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. H. Lawson, I.P.M.; W. Boughen, S.W.; W. D. Sutton, J.W.; Josiah Taylor, P.M., Treas.; G. An adjournment was then made to St. Ann's Hotel, where an elegant and sumptuous banquet had been prepared by the proprietors, Messrs. Harrison and Le Gros, in a style every way worthy of the reputation of the house, for the companions of the chapter and the brethren of the lodge. When the cloth was removed and grace had been said by Bro. the Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, P.G.C., who had also assisted in the ceremonies of the lodge, there were the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. The newly-elected W.M. presided, and in proposing "The Queen and the Craft," made a touching allusion to the great domestic affliction which had fallen on the Royal House since the last anniversary of the Phoenix Lodge, expressing himself confident that every brother would unite with every subject and every Mason in deepest sympathy with her Majesty on that occasion. "The Health of the Prince of Wales" was also proposed by the President, who remarked on the eminent services his Royal Highness had rendered to Masonry, and the high estimation in which he was held by the brethren generally. The following toasts were subsequently proposed:—"The Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Pro. G.M. and G. 1st Principal K.A., with the Officers, Present and Past, of Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter;" "The Marquis of Hartington, M.P., R.W.P.G.M., Pro Grand Sup. R.A., Bro. H. C. Okeover, R.W. D.P.G.M., P.G. 2nd Principal, and the Officers, Present and Past, of P. Grand Lodge and Chapter;" "The Newly-Installed Principals;" "The Newly-Installed W.M.;" "The Installing Masters and Principals;" "The Visitors;" "The I. Past Master and Past Principals;" "The Charities;" "The Officers of the Lodge;" "The Treasurers of the Lodge and Chapter;" "To all Poor and Distressed Masons." In proposing "The Health of the Immediate Past Master," Bro. J. H. Lawson, the newly-installed Master, expressed the great pleasure it gave him to propose that toast, and the additional pleasure he had in investing him with the jewel, which the lodge had unanimously voted him as some recognition of the estimation they held of his valuable services during his term of office. The jewel was of very elegant design, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to W. Bro. J. H. Lawson, P.M., by the brethren of the Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann, Buxton, as a token of regard and appreciation of his services as W. Master, 6th Feb., 1879." The whole of the proceedings throughout were perfectly satisfactory, and a most pleasant day was spent in perfect harmony.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—This prosperous provincial lodge met in goodly numbers at the Lion Hotel, on Thursday, the 20th ult., when there were present, amongst others, Bros. Fox, P.M. Lebanon, W.M.; Francis, P.P.G.D.C. Surrey, acting S.W.; Hiscox, I.G., acting J.W.; J. Hammond, P.M. 201, I.P.M.; E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, Treasurer; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, &c., Secretary; E. Raw, P.M.; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.D.; Kent, J.D.; Moody, D.C.; Tagg, A.W.S.; Gilbert, P.G.T., Tyler. Bro. Handel, of the Wolsey, was the sole visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, passed Bro. Bunyan to the degree of F.C. He then vacated the chair in favour of the I.P.M., who most ably raised Bro. Prime to the degree of a M.M. Letters of apology for non-attendance from the Wardens and others having been read, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation. "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," and "The Grand Officers, Present and Past," having been duly honoured, the W.M. in very warm terms proposed "The Health of the R.W.P.G.M. of Middlesex, and the rest of the P.G.O.'s, Present and Past," coupled with the name of Bro. W. Hammond, P.G.D. The toast having been received with excellent "fire," Bro. Hammond responded. In his speech he eulogised the services of Bro. Col. Burdett to the cause of Freemasonry in general, and to the Province of Middlesex in particular. He believed that no Masonic province had ever attained so high a position in so short a time as Middlesex had. This happy state of things was undoubtedly due to the zeal displayed in its welfare by the distinguished subject of the toast. In conclusion, he briefly touched upon the merits of the brethren composing the remainder of the staff of the Provincial Grand Lodge. "The Health of the W.M." followed. In proposing this toast the I.P.M. deplored the indisposition which had prevented their W.M. at the very commencement of his Mastership from taking that active part in its administration which the position demanded. He believed that their W.M.'s interest in all things Masonic could not be surpassed by any member of their mystic Order, and that when he left the chair of the Hemming Lodge he would carry with him the respect of every member. This toast having been duly honoured, the W.M. made a brief reply, and immediately proposed "The Health of the Visitor." Bro. Handel in response expressed the great pleasure his visits to the Hemming Lodge had invariably afforded him. He was impressed with the "work," delighted with the harmony manifested by the members, and gratified with the hospitality always displayed by No. 1512. In conclusion, he hoped that they would shortly permit him to come among them as a joining member. The toasts of "The Past Masters" and "The Officers" came next, and were suitably acknowledged by Bros. W. Hammond and E. Hopwood. The remainder of the evening having been agreeably spent, the members separated at an early hour, highly pleased with the instruction and the entertainment that had been afforded them.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Friday, the 14th ult., at Bro. Garbett's fine hall on Anglesea Hill, attached to the Sir Robert Peel, when an unusually large gathering of the brethren of the lodge and district assembled to bid farewell to one who had not only added a lasting lustre to the lodge, but had gained for himself the deep attachment and esteem of all who knew him, both in his private and Masonic life. We refer to Bro. Past Master George Spinks, I.P.M. of the lodge, who, as Assistant Commissary in the Army Service Corps, sailed on the following Tuesday in charge of stores for the Cape of Good Hope. The lodge was opened by Bro. Hay Grieve Picken, W.M., supported by the following Past Masters and Officers:—Past Masters Dr. Spurrell, also P.M. 615, and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; C. Coupland, also P.M. 913, and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; W. Weston; T. D. Hayes, also W.M. 913; A. Penfold, also P.M. 913; H. Shaw, S.W.; D. Deeves, J.W.; W. Murphy, Treas.; J. Kennedy, Sec.; W. Welding, J.W.; T. Holleyman, J.D.; H. Harding, Org.; H. A. Watkins, Steward; and J. Lackland, Tyler. Bro. Anderson acted as I.G. The visitors present included Bro. J. Scott Mutch, W.M. 706; A. Woodley, W.M. 700; T. Newman, 1604; J. Sculley, 363; J. A. Elder, 1472; E. W. Crews, 13; T. E. Hassell, 13; S. Hare, 706; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason), and others. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed, Bro. Richard Soars, Sergt.-Major, 6th Brigade Royal Artillery, of Lodge No. 465 in India, was balloted for, and accepted as a joining member. Sergt.-Major E. Maul, R.H.A., and Sergt. John Steer, of the 1st Brigade, R.A., were then, after ballot and approval, initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, and then Bro. Robert Anderson was raised to the Sublime Degree. The initiates were then called up to the pedestal, and the W.M. recited the E.A. charge to them most eloquently. Bro. Weston then rose, and said he felt that before they closed they would like to convey to Bro. Spinks in open lodge their regret at losing not only his valuable services but his esteemed companionship. The brethren had heard of the terrible misfortune that had befallen their gallant brothers in arms at the Cape, and how throughout the garrisons of England the note of preparation had sounded for reinforcements. Among those gallant soldiers who were called was their esteemed Bro. Spinks, and he was sure before he left that lodge to go on his pathway of duty, that they, the members of that lodge, would try, or at least desire to try, and repay him the deep debt of gratitude they owed him, for the many valuable services he had rendered them since and before the formation of the lodge. He had not only gone through his work in the two Wardens' chairs in a perfect manner, but in his position as W.M. he had excelled, if not surpassed, anything that had been done in it by his predecessors. No one, he felt sure, who had been at the installation ceremony last year could ever forget the magnificent manner in which he had performed that beautiful and solemn ceremony. It was the admiration of all who heard it, and their distinguished Chaplain, Bro. Solbé, had declared it to be equal to anything he had ever seen in his life for eloquence and impressiveness. Their esteemed brother was going to leave them for active service in the field, and they wished him God speed on his journey. Might the G.A.O.T.U. keep him in the hour of danger, and when honour was satisfied—for English soldiers wanted not revenge—might he be spared to come once more among them, and in that lodge receive a welcome home such as they in their hearts would give him, and which would be as honourable to them as it would be pleasing to him. The brief but feeling reply of Bro. Spinks was cheered to the echo. The W.M. said a few words, which he promised to supplement at the social board, and then, after the usual questions, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. Upon reassembling the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, as well as the provincial ones, all of which were duly honoured. Bro. Spurrell, in replying for "The Past and Present Grand Officers of Kent," said he did not expect to receive such a compliment, as he now formed a part of the very large circle of those who belonged to the past. It was however, an honour at any time and anywhere to respond for the Grand Officers of Kent, and in their name he returned thanks. He was now a member of that lodge, and hearing that their excellent Bro. Spinks was going away he could not let this opportunity pass without attending and bidding him farewell, and wishing him a safe journey out and return home. Bro. Spinks then rose to propose the toast of the W.M. He said he had the honour once more to propose the toast, and from the manner in which Bro. Picken did his duty they could see that he was determined to do it firmly, honestly, and nobly. They had heard the admirable rendering of the charge to their initiates that evening; that showed them that their W.M. was capable of carrying out his duties to the utmost limits. He was one of those who came in at the door and went out at the window. Well, he would go out at the window, for he was not at the furthest end of the room. He asked them to drink the toast with enthusiasm. Bro. Picken, in response, said, were it not for the cloud that hung over them through their being about to lose Bro. Spinks, he should have felt proud of the way in which they had responded to their brother's call in connection with the toast. There was one thing, however, he could not help being proud of, and that was that they were at last out of debt. Every Master of the lodge had tried to clear it off, and had done well, and now he was proud to say every claim was paid, and they were clear. (Cheers.) He now hoped they would be able to take their place among the lodges who assisted, and largely too, those grand Institutions of the Order "The Masonic Charities." (Applause.) "The Initiates" were then toasted, and returned thanks. In proposing the toast of "The Past Masters" Bro. Picken said it would be the last time for the present they would have their esteemed Bro. Spinks with them. They all knew that the British arms had sustained a severe reverse at the Cape of Good Hope, at least on the borders of Natal, and that reverse had raised a profound feeling of sorrow in every heart in the land, from the Queen in her palace to the peasant in his cottage. The loss had been severe, and while they mourned for that loss, yet there was not a soldier in the British Army who would not step forward and gladly go to-morrow to retrieve that reverse. It was their duty, and duty was a sacred thing in the heart of a soldier. (Loud cheers.) He knew personally the leader of the corps that was lost, Colonel Durnford. He was not only a good soldier, but was a good man, and a Mason, who would not only assist a brother with money, but [with advice and example, and that evening they were about to send away to the same place one who was near and dear to them, their good Bro. Spinks. (Cheers.) Should he fall at his duty he would have a soldier's death, and a soldier's grave, and those he left behind him would be to them as their own, and they would protect them, (Loud cheers), but should he be spared to return they would welcome him back with joy and rejoicing. Bro. Spinks, who replied to the toast, and was sensibly affected at the warmth of the brethren's response, said, on behalf of the Past Masters, he thanked them heartily. With respect to himself he never could thank them for the manner in which they had assembled together to express to him their wishes for his welfare in the expedition, in which he, among many more of her Majesty's soldiers were about embarking. When he was installed and placed in the chair of that lodge by Bro. Weston he ventured to speak as to its future, and to foretell for it a great and useful path in Masonry, and he did not think upon that night, when he was about to leave them, that he had a single word to recall. It had increased in strength, position, and numbers, and while he gloried in the opportunity afforded him of going into active service, he left that lodge to go without a single fear or regret, save for those he left behind. He had been a sort of mother to it, while Bro. Weston had been the father, and like some fathers, Bro. Weston was hot, and hasty, and impetuous, and so energetic in the cause of his offspring, that it required his (the speaker's) slow and wet blanket sort of ways to restrain Bro. Weston's ardour. But between them they had, with the help of the brethren, he trusted, placed it upon a safe and sound basis, and he left it with confidence in their hands. He should as long as he lived continue to be a member of it, and should always take an interest in its prosperity, and so that he might hear continually of its goings on, he had commissioned Bro. Weston to send him the Freemason every week, and that brother had promised to do so. He then spoke of the good feeling that existed between their lodge and the other lodges round about, more particularly with the Pattison Lodge, between whom and themselves a bond of brotherly love existed that he trusted would never be broken. Their W.M. had alluded to his being called away to active service. His corps was famed more particularly for being "first for bread and last for ammunition." He had, however, applied for a six-chambered revolver, and if he had occasion to use it there would not be a barrel of it thrown away, for

"With our twelve or nine-pounders we will force the savage foe,
And give a good account of them wherever we may go.

But if it is our fortune, boys, to fall upon the field, We'll die like British soldiers, but never will we yield."

"The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. Watts, of the Pattison; Hall, of the Florence Nightingale; Hassall for the Union Waterloo; and Bro. Hayes, although an honorary member of the lodge, yet as W.M. of the Pattison, felt that he could not let this occasion pass without saying how much they regretted losing Bro. Spinks from their midst. But their loss was his gain, and although at the present a dark cloud seemed to hang over them it had a silver lining, and would soon pass away in the lustre that would, he trusted and hoped, be theirs from the honour done them by Bro. Spinks and his gallant comrades on the shores of Africa. Bro. Watts, as the oldest Mason in the room, wished Bro. Spinks success and a honoured return; and after Bro. Spinks (who filled the chair upon Bro. Picken leaving the room) had toasted their Bro. Rust, who had just gone to Cyprus as Chaplain of the Forces, and paid a tribute to the memory of Bro. Hiscock, of the Union Waterloo Lodge, who had just departed this life, the Tyler's toast and "Auld Lang Syne" brought the meeting to a close.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of the above lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday, the 25th ult., when there were present Bros. P. V. Denham, W.M.; A. B. Blackmore, S.W.; J. Frost, J.W.; W. J. Huntley, S.D.; W. F. Wardroper, J.D.; F. Reed, I.G.; C. Digby, W. A. Morgan, J. G. Carter, H. R. Jones, A. Newens, A. Mason, W. Marshall, and A. A. Denham. The lodge being duly opened, Bro. Newens offered himself as a candidate for the First Degree, which was worked. The W.M. then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. W. A. Morgan (W.M. of the 1044), who worked the Second Degree, Bro. Newens again being the candidate. The brethren then proceeded to discuss a motion of Bro. J. G. Carter—"That the evening of meeting be changed from Wednesday to Tuesday." This was carried unanimously. Bro. W. F. Wardroper proposed, Bro. J. Huntley seconded, and it was carried nem. con.—"That the time for meeting be 7.30 instead of 8 o'clock, as heretofore." Bro. Blackmore was appointed W.M. for the ensuing meeting.

Royal Arch.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—A regular convocation was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, 18th ult., summoned for 8 p.m., but it was nearer 9 before the Board of Principals was opened. Present:—Ex. Comps. Hill, Z.; Watts, P.Z. 379, as H.; Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, 710, as J.; Keene, P.Z.; Becket, P.Z.; Moutrie, P.Z. and Treasurer. On the admission of the companions the chairs were taken by Comps. Howes, E.; Peach, as N.; Stuckey, P. Soj.; Young, as S. Soj.; Hayward, J. Soj. The chapter having been opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. satisfactorily accounted for the absence of H., J., N., and S. Sojourner. A brother in distress applied for relief, presenting a certificate from a lodge in Scotland, whence so large a proportion of such cases come. A small sum was given for immediate necessities, and the Janitor was directed to pay his fare to Exeter, where he stated that he has friends, and to see him off by rail. Bros. Glover and Mercer, who had been previously balloted for, were admitted, properly prepared, and duly exalted to the rank of R.A. companion by the M.E.Z., at whose request the acting J. gave the historical and symbolical lectures. Ex. Comp. Moutrie communicated the signs, with their explanation, and as it was then late, Dr. Hopkins promised privately to make the new companions acquainted with the rest of the mystical lecture, to whom a vote of thanks was accorded for his assistance on this as on all occasions when called upon. A ballot was taken for Bro. Cartmell as a candidate for exaltation at the next meeting, which was unanimous in his favour. It may be added, that the proceedings went off very smoothly, which was creditable to the new officers who acted for the first time after their appointment.

OLDHAM.—Tudor Chapter (No. 177).—A meeting of this chapter was held on Monday evening, the 17th ult., at the Freemasons' Hall, Oldham, at 6 o'clock. The proceedings were opened in due form and with the usual solemnities, under the presidency of Comp. P. P. Henry Lees Hollingworth, as M.E.Z.; Henry Thomas, H.; and James Lees Page, J. The minutes of the preceding chapter were read and confirmed. The next business being the installation of the Principals for the ensuing twelve months, the very eminent and worthy Comp. James Hall, P.P.G.P.S. of Lancashire, was requested to perform that ceremony, and the three Principals elect were duly presented to him in open chapter and obligated. A Conclave of Installed Principals was afterwards formed, and the Principals invested, after which the other companions were admitted into the chapter and saluted their newly-installed superiors, viz., Comps. Henry Thomas, M.E.Z.; James Lees Page, H.; and Joseph Crompton Lees, J. The officers having then been severally invested and admonished by the Installing Principal, the magnificent and impressive ceremony was concluded by an earnest address to the companions generally. So complete was the satisfaction of the chapter at the very able manner in which Comp. P. P. James Hall performed the beautiful ceremony, that it is their intention to elect him as honorary member, as a slight token of their appreciation of his services, and his kindness in having for several years installed their Principals. The chapter was then closed and the companions adjourned to a banquet of the most recherché character, which reflected the highest credit upon Mr. Chew, the manager of the Freemasons' Hall.

MANCHESTER.—Affability Chapter (No. 317).—The installation festival of this old chapter was held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 20th ult. The chapter was opened by Comp. Smethurst, Z., at 5.30, and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the companions adjourned to tea. On the resumption of business about 40 companions were present. Comp. W. F. Towle, P.Z., P.P.G.P.S., commenced the installation ceremony. When all below the rank of Installed Principals had retired, Comp. James Dawson was placed in the chair of Z. by Comp. J. H. Sillitoe, P.Z., P.G.D. of C. Comp. J. E. Lees was placed in the chair of H. by Comp. J. Hall, P.Z., P.P.G.P.S., and Comp. W. P. Norris in the chair of J. by Comp. W. F. Towle. On the readmission of the companions the newly-installed Principals were proclaimed and suitably greeted, after which Comp. Hall invested the following officers, viz.:—Comps. W. Nicholl, S.E.; J. T. Watts, S.N.; W. Sowlar, P.S.; H. Rocca, 1st A.S.; John Church, and A.S.; F. Vetter, Organist; and James Sly, Janitor. The address to the newly-installed Principals was delivered by Comp. J. Batchelder, P.Z., and those to the officers and companions by Comp. Sillitoe. As is usual in this chapter the new year was commenced by voting a sum to the funds of the local charity in lieu of having a banquet. The chapter was duly closed, and the remainder of the evening was spent very harmoniously and agreeably, the musical talent, both vocal and instrumental, possessed by members of this chapter being far above the average.

CHORLTON-CUM-HARDY.—Chorlton Chapter (No. 1387).—This chapter assembled at the Masonic Rooms, on Wednesday, the 19th ult. The chapter was opened by Comps. J. H. Sillitoe, Z.; John Bladon, P.Z., acting as H.; J. E. Lees, J. There were also present Comps. J. J. Lambert, Treasurer, acting as S.E.; J. G. Batty, S.N.; John Dewhurst, P.S.; Alfred Love, 1st A.S.; A. D. Edwards, and A.S.; and other members and visitors. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been duly ratified, Bro. A. J. Billings, P.M., was exalted to the Supreme Degree of a Royal Arch Mason by the M.E.Z., the historical lecture was delivered by Comp. Lees, and both the symbolic and mystical lectures by Comp. Sillitoe. Although this chapter has but recently been consecrated it possesses a fair number of members and has attained a high standard of working. Letters were read from several officers and companions explaining the causes of their absence, and the chapter was closed in solemn form.

Mark Masonry.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 104).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 21st ult., at the Guildhall Tavern, on which occasion there were present Bros. North Ritherdon, W.M.; Thomas Meggy, P.M., Treas.; James Stevens, P.M.; William Worrell, P.M. and Sec.; Robert Berridge, P.M.; Edward Moody, S.W.; W. P. Collins, M.O.; F. H. Cozens, S.O.; George Yaxley, R.M.; G. Ward Verry, S.D.; W. C. Hall J.D.; J. K. Pitt, I.G.; H. F. Partridge, W. Johnstone, T., A. De Leliva, T. W. Simons, Louis Hirsch, H. Mills, A. Hubbard, John Syer, 139; and H. Massey, P.M. 22 (Freemason). Bro. T. B. Humphrey was advanced to the Mark Degree, after which Bro. Berridge announced that he was going to stand as Steward for the lodge at the next festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, and explained to the brethren the scheme which was settled at last half-yearly communication of Grand Lodge for establishing an educational fund. He hoped he should at the next festival take up a good list, and he asked the favourable consideration of the lodge for that object. Thereupon Bro. Worrell moved, and Bro. Meggy seconded, a resolution for giving two guineas from the lodge funds to Bro. Berridge's list, and this having been unanimously adopted, the thanks of the lodge were presented to Bro. Berridge for undertaking the office of Steward. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a most agreeable dinner. When the toasts were proposed, Bro. Meggy replied to the toast of "The Grand Officers." Bro. James Stevens responded to that of "The Provincial Grand Master, Col. Burdett," and said that he was proud to think that the Macdonald Mark Lodge had the honour of supplying so many Grand Officers to the province. The lodge had reason to be satisfied with the kind consideration that the Prov. G. Master had given this lodge from its foundation to the present time, and he hoped it would be in the future as it had been in the past, a very great encouragement to the members of the lodge that their chances of preferment in Grand Lodge were almost positively secured. Bro. Meggy proposed "The W.M.," who, he said, had done his duty well, and shown the brethren that he could perform the ceremony of advancement most admirably. The W.M., replying, said he congratulated himself on having had the opportunity that evening of performing the ceremony for the first time since he had been Master. He had begun to think he should go through his year of office without showing what he could do. This lodge could boast that among its Past Masters was a race of giants in Mark work, and he thought there was a fair prospect of the race being perpetuated. Their next W.M. would be Bro. Edward Moody, who would also be a good worker. He (the W.M.) congratulated himself not only upon having entered Mark Masonry, in which he took great delight, but also on having taken the degree in the Macdonald Lodge, No. 104. He always looked back with satisfaction on his introduction into the degree; he had the interest of the degree in general at heart, and of this lodge in particular. He should always do all he could to advance the interests of the lodge. Bro. Humphrey replied to the toast of "The Newly Advanced Brother," and said he had been highly delighted at the ceremony and the way in which it was worked. Bros. Hubbard and Massey replied to the toast of "The Visitors," and Bro. R. Berridge to that of "The P.M.'s." He said that it always had been and always would be the greatest possible pleasure to him to render any assistance he could to the Master in the chair, and to his officers in any post he might be asked to fill. He then repeated the observations he made in lodge as to the Educational Branch of the Mark Benevolent Fund, and appealed to the brethren for their support of his Steward's list. In giving "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary," the W.M. said, the lodge was highly favoured in these two offices. The first had filled all sorts of offices in the lodge, and was always ready to do any work which might be required of him. With respect to the Secretary, they could not possibly have a better. Bro. Meggy, in reply, said, the remarks made concerning him were very flattering, and the warmth of the brethren's reception very hearty. Both the W.M. and the brethren had done what they had done from the bottom of their hearts, and he believed they had felt what they had expressed. He should always do what he could for the lodge, and all he could to make the brethren comfortable. Bro. Worrell, as Secretary, also replied, and the proceedings, which had been enlivened with some delightful music and singing by Bros. Cozens, Simons, Hubbard, Stevens, and Meggy, were brought to a close.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

MOUNT CALVARY ROSE CROIX CHAPTER (No. 4).—A meeting of this old and distinguished chapter was held on Friday, the 14th ult., at 33, Golden-square. There were present Ill. Bros. C. H. Driver, 31°, M.W.S.; W. Paas, 30°, Almoner, acting 1st General; D. M. Dewar, Recorder, as 2nd General; Hyde Pullen, 33°, as High Prelate; D. Nicols, 30°, as Grand Marshal; T. C. Walls, as Raphael; B. F. Cramer, Organist; J. O. Wood, as Captain of the Guard; Col. S. H. Clerke, 33°, G.S.G., &c.; R. W. Stewart, P.W.S.; A. Williams, F. W. Driver, C. W. Taylor. Ill. Bro. G. Lambert was a visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the M.W.S., with the assistance of his officers, most ably rehearsed the ceremony of perfection, Bro. F. W. Driver acting as candidate. There being no other business, the chapter was duly closed, and the companions adjourned to the Café Royale, where a most elegant repast was served by Comp. Nicols and assistants. Upon the removal of the cloth the customary preliminary toasts were done full justice to. The toast of "The Supreme Grand Council" was acknowledged in fitting terms by Ill. Bro. Col. Clerke. "The Health of the M.W.S." was proposed by Ill. Bro. Dewar, in which he congratulated the Mount Calvary upon possessing so able an exponent of the ceremonies of the Rose Croix Degree as their Ill. Bro. Driver had unquestionably proved himself to be. He was sorry that through unavoidable circumstances the candidate for perfection had been prevented from attending the chapter that day, because the M.W. had evidently taken great pains in getting up the arduous ceremony, and it was a pity that he should have been disappointed by the non-attendance of the candidate. In conclusion, he hoped that the remainder of the M.W.S.'s year of office would be characterised by the same amount of prosperity and happiness as had attended it hitherto. This toast having been warmly received, the M.W. modestly replied. "The Health of the Visitor" was acknowledged at length by Bro. Lambert. "The Officers" followed, and drew from Ill. Bro. Hyde Pullen an exhaustive response. The proceedings then terminated.

India.

BANGALORE.—Bangalore Lodge (No. 1043).—Notwithstanding that the war in Afghanistan has summoned to the front many of the military brethren of Lodge "Bangalore," seldom has the Masonic Hall here been more densely crowded than it was last St. John's Day. The proceedings commenced at 7.30 a.m., with the installation of W.M. Bro. Arthur Hayes, the late Senior Warden, who had been unanimously elected at the previous regular meeting. The ceremony was performed by P.M. Bro. Balfour Cockburn, assisted by an unusually large number of Past Masters, amongst whom we noticed Bro. Brindley, P.M. from Burmah; Bro. Collins, P.M. from Secundarabad; Bro. Haynes, P.M. from Bellary; Past Masters J. W. Hayes, sen., Nepean Smith, Pratt, and M'Cally Hayes, from Mysore. The W.M. having been duly placed in the chair of K.S., appointed Bro. J. Smith to be Senior Warden, and Bro. H. Reuben to be Junior Warden. The remaining collars having been duly distributed and the final charges delivered, the W.M. rose, and, in an exceedingly neat and appropriate speech, presented P.M. Bro. Balfour Cockburn with a testimonial in the form of a very handsomely printed address. The following is a copy of the same.

"To W. Bro. J. Balfour Cockburn, Esq., M.D., P.M., P.Z., &c., &c."

"Dear Sir and Brother.

"We the undersigned Past Masters, Past Wardens, Wardens, and members of the Bangalore Lodge, 1043, consider we shall be failing in our duty and depriving ourselves of a great pleasure, were we to allow this memorable day to pass away without conveying to you our warm and sincere thanks for the very able manner in which you have presided over our lodge during this year. Deprived of the services of the Worshipful Master who was elected by the brethren for this year, viz., W. Bro. Capt. J. M'Cleverty, you unhesitatingly accepted the responsibility of filling his place, and we are proud to bear testimony to your having cheerfully and zealously performed all the duties required of you from time to time, and to your having advanced the best interests of our lodge. This will be at once understood when we add that during this year nine members have been initiated by you, six passed, eight raised, and eight affiliated. In vacating the chair you carry with you our best wishes. We shall always cherish your connection with us with feelings of the utmost gratification, and we hope and trust that you will yet attain that high rank in Masonry, which all of us so sincerely desire, feeling assured that the same cannot but conduce to the welfare of Freemasonry throughout Southern India.

"We subscribe ourselves, dear Sir and Worshipful Brother, yours fraternally.

"Bangalore, 27th Dec., 1878."

To the above address is appended the signature of every member of the lodge, without a single exception. P.M. Bro. Balfour Cockburn, accepting the presentation, made a most suitable reply, and alluding to the kind wishes expressed as to his future advancement, said that should H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master be pleased to deem him worthy of occupying the post of District Grand Master, he trusted he would never for a moment be insensible to the duties or grave responsibilities of that high and important position, and no efforts would be wanting on his part to justify the selection of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, as also to merit the approbation of the brethren of the province.

MELBOURNE.—Lodge of Judah (No. 388 S.C.).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held in Freemasons' Hall, Lonsdale-street, Melbourne, Victoria, on Tuesday evening, 3rd December, 1878. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 6.30 p.m., the retiring R.W.M., Bro. James Moore, in the chair. There was a brilliant assembly of Provincial Grand Officers—bearers of the Three Constitutions, W. Masters, Past Masters, and visiting brethren from the various lodges in the province. The minutes of last monthly meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. John Thornton, age 33, proposed at last monthly meeting, and resulted in his being declared duly elected; also for Bro. Geo. Wilson, M.M. Carlton Lodge, 380 I.C., as a joining member, who was duly elected a member of the lodge. The candidate, being in attendance, was admitted in due form, and initiated to the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry in the First Degree by the retiring R.W.M., who thereafter intimated that Bro. P.M.M. Goldstein had kindly consented to act as Installing Master, and vacated the chair in his favour. The R.W.M. elect, Bro. J. P. Ceddesburg, was then conducted to the East by Bros. P.M.'s Erichsen and Little, and, having given his assent to the charges, was duly obligated and subsequently installed R.W.M. of the lodge. The following brethren were then obligated and invested with the collars and jewels of their respective offices:—Bros. Cederberg, R.W.M.; Moore, P.M., R.W.D.M.; Erichsen, P.M., R.W. Substitute Master; Spink, S.W.; Burton, J.W.; Cahill, P.M., Treasurer; Millar, Sec.; Rintel, P.M., Chaplain; Coverlid, S.D.; Browne, J.D.; Perraton, Org.; Wright and Jackson, Stewards; Altson, I.G.; Levy, Tyler. Bro. Goldstein, P.M., then, in a very impressive and eloquent manner, addressed Bro. Joseph Cahill, P.M., Treasurer, thanking him in the name of the lodge for the many valuable services rendered as Warden, R.W.M., and during the past five years as Treasurer, the duties of all of which offices he had fulfilled to the entire satisfaction of the brethren, and presented him, in the name of the lodge, with a beautiful Past Treasurer's jewel in gold, the key being studded with diamonds and brilliants. Bro. Cahill, P.M., replied in suitable terms, thanking the brethren for their kind token of brotherly love, and expressing the pleasure it gave him to be connected with the lodge and help it onward in its career of progress. Bro. Secretary having read correspondence and apologies for absence, and a candidate having been proposed for initiation on next lodge night, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 9.30 p.m. The brethren, to the number of over a hundred, adjourned to the banqueting hall, when a truly pleasant evening was spent, enlivened with speeches, songs, and recitations. A visiting P.M. made a stirring speech by relating how, when a stranger in Melbourne, and in dire distress, his wife and family stricken with fever, Bro. Cahill, P.M., had visited him, and raised him physically and mentally from a state of great despondency. Visiting Bro. Glover, a recent arrival in the colony, contributed greatly to the pleasure of the evening by his excellent singing.

LAGOS.—Lagos Lodge (No. 1171).—The annual festival and installation of this lodge was held on Friday, the 27th December, 1878, at the Freemasons' Hall, Marina, Bro. Robert Campbell, W.M., presiding. The minutes of the previous meeting being read and confirmed, Bro. Chas. Foresyth, W.M. elect, was then presented by Bro. Charles Dennett Turton, P.M., to the Installing Master for installation. The ceremony of installation having been impressively performed, the new W.M. invested Bros. John Field, S.W.; Charles J. George, J.W.; Rev. Valentine Faulkner, Chap.; John A. Payne, Sec.; Charles Pike, P.M., Treas.; William Meyer, S.D.; Thos. J. Whittington, J.D.; W. William Lewis, I.G.; F. D. Cole, Tyler. The lodge was closed at the conclusion of business, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. To the pleasures of this upwards of twenty-two brethren sat down to enjoy the many delicacies, which had been so carefully provided by the exertions of Bros. Campbell, Payne, and Pike; the place being tastefully decorated, or dressed up, by Bros. Lawson and Whittington. The W.M. gave the toasts of "The Queen;" "Bro. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.;" "The Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family;" and "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master," and referred to the valuable services his lordship had rendered to the cause of Masonry. Bro. Campbell, P.M., gave the toast of "The New W.M.," and, in reply, the W.M. gave "The Health of the Past Masters," and coupled it with the name of Bro. Turton, P.M. After reply, Bro. Turton, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Officers" for the ensuing year, and coupled the name of Bro. Field, S.W., who, in reply, gave "The Health of the Retiring Officers," and coupled it with the name of Bro. George, who, in reply, wished prosperity to the lodge. Bro. Pike, P.M., gave "The Health of the Visitors," and coupled it with the name of Bro. Leighton, and this brought the banquet to a close.

Public Amusements.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Last month Mr. Carl Rosa produced at this house an English version of Herr Wagner's first successful opera, "Rienzi." The English disciples of Wagner, and the school is now a large one, must have experienced considerable disappointment on hearing the music in "Rienzi;" there is nothing in the opera to indicate that it was composed by the author of "Tannhauser" and "Lohengrin." On the other hand, those who are not rabid Wagnerists will welcome this English version of "Rienzi," as a decided acquisition to the somewhat restricted repertoire now in existence; and from this section of the musical public Mr. Carl Rosa will be thanked for his enterprise and judgment. But altogether apart from its merits as a musical and literary production, it must be allowed on all sides that its first appearance in England was undeniably successful. Mr. Carl Rosa himself conducted his excellent and efficient band, as only Mr. Carl Rosa can conduct, throwing his whole soul into the task before him.

ROYALTY.—This charming little theatre is now under the management of Mr. J. Mortimer, who on the 3rd ult. produced an adaptation of Sardou's "Papillonne," entitled "A Gay Deceiver." From a dramatic point of view the piece has many serious blemishes, the fault lying more with the author than the adapter; but, its faults notwithstanding, "A Gay Deceiver," which is most efficiently acted by an excellent company, affords much laughter and amusement.

FOLLY.—That capital comedy "Retiring" still holds its place in the play bills at this house, and recently has been produced a new burlesque, to wit, "Carmen, or Sold for a Song," by R. Rexce. It is not so good as "Nemesis," by the same author, but it is, nevertheless, a good burlesque, and certainly well worth seeing.

CRITERION.—Here we have a new piece by Bronson Howard, the author of "Brighton," first played in America, under the name of "Hurricanes," and now called "Truth." I need only say that it is a weak and poor imitation of "Pink Dominoes."

PRINCES' THEATRE, MANCHESTER.—On Monday evening, the 23rd ult., at this elegant theatre an entire change took place in the performance, the splendid pantomime having given place to Mr. Cellier's ever welcome comic opera, "The Sultan of Mocha," which was played before a large audience. It is capably mounted by Mr. Edmonds, whose responsible duties as stage manager have been transferred to this theatre. Mr. Wainwright was the Sultan, Mr. Ryley, Admiral Sneak, and Messrs. Doyle and Bremner filled respectively the parts of Captain Flint and Peter. Madame Cave-Ashton, who is well-known to Manchester, both on the platform and stage, fulfilled the important rôle of Dolly, and sang the music charmingly, her rendering of the "Slumber" song creating quite a furore. This lady is a valuable acquisition to the company. The rest of the characters were fairly represented. The opera is announced to run seven nights longer, terminating on Saturday, the 8th inst.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

The doubly interesting ceremonies of the consecration of a new lodge-room and the installation of the new W.M. for the ensuing year of the Marlborough Lodge of Unanimity, No. 1236, took place on the 21st November last, exactly two years after the building, in which the lodge was formerly held, was destroyed by fire. The lodge having met and opened in the Three Degrees, the members had, some of them for the first time, an opportunity of looking round the new room, which has been specially constructed, and furnished with very great thought and care, and at considerable cost, as nearly as could be contrived after Dr. Oliver's valuable suggestions in his book of the lodge. The handsome veil of the three appropriate colours, shutting out the light from the chilly north; the Ionic pillars on the other sides; the rich carpet and tessellated pavement; the canopy in the East; the plebeian chairs with their massiveness and comfort; form but part of a pleasing and harmonious whole. The W.M., Bro. B. O. Waddy, having in front of him the Three Great Lights, the warrant of constitution, and the vessels of consecration, rose, and gave an exordium on Masonry as follows:—He said that we were met together that evening on a very solemn and interesting occasion, that of opening and consecrating our new lodge-room. As Master of the lodge the honour of conducting the ceremony, an honour which he should remember as long as he lived, fell upon him. It was an honour which very rarely fell to the lot of Masters of lodges, as the ceremony was usually performed by Grand Officers. As, however, we were directly under the Grand Lodge of England, there was no Masonic authorities in this country to whom we owed allegiance, and, consequently, the ceremony must be performed by ourselves. Before commencing, or rather, perhaps, as part of the ceremony, it was usual for some remarks to be made on Masonry in order to prepare the mind for the after ceremonial, and he thought it would be as well to explain the necessity of consecrating the lodge at all. He would have to tell them—what, indeed, they already knew, and few of his remarks could teach them what in one form or another had not been taught them already—that lodges are consecrated because the floor of the lodge represented holy ground. It represented the spot on the top of Mount Moriah where the three great offerings were made; the first, that of Abraham, of his son Isaac; the second, that of David, to stay the pestilence which was raging amongst his people; and the third, that of Solomon, at the dedication of the Temple. Indeed, one of our customs was, but for the dedication, have no meaning. It was well known that in the East—and most of our practices and traditions came from the East—it was the custom, on entering a sacred edifice, to take the shoes from off the feet, a custom the necessity of which was at certain times insisted on in our lodges, as would be remembered by all present. In endeavouring to prepare the minds of the members for the approaching ceremony, he thought he could not do better than call their attention to the consideration of some of the symbols by which they were surrounded, after doing which he should bring his remarks to a close. To commence with, the lodge-room itself was a symbol as much as the furniture it contained. It was a singular circumstance that the greatest Masonic monuments existing in the world had been built by despots—by those who had almost supreme power over the bodies or over the minds of men. In a free country the buildings generally, both private and public, are good, but the public buildings, as monuments, are far inferior to the magnificent structures of tyrants. No one who knows anything of the history of the human race can look upon the Pyramids of Egypt and doubt for a moment that those grand and useless structures were built by slaves to the glory of some potentate, and no one can doubt that under their vast shadows were hovels full of squalor and wretchedness. To come to modern times, the magnificent palace of Louis XIV. at Versailles was built at a time when the French people were starving, and this and other instances of reckless extravagance in wealth and in human life led to the fearful retribution of the French Revolution, when the people rose like a wild beast in its fury, and tore into tatters, and ruins, and death the good with the bad, the sacred with the profane. The object of Freemasonry is not to erect buildings such as these, but it looks upon them in a speculative manner. When a candidate is made he is placed in the N.E. part of the building, and is told that he represents a stone, a foundation stone, on which he is expected to raise a superstructure, perfect in its parts and honourable to the builder. He is also told, in the explanation of the tracing board, that a Freemason's lodge is as high as the heavens, proving that our lodge rooms are regarded as merely temporary and emblematic, and that we are all supposed and expected to form living stones of a temple which was commenced long ages ago, and is still being raised, willingly and freely, to the glory and honour of T.G.A.O.T.U. Inside the lodge, he continued, are other emblems, but he could not refer to all. On occasions of this sort it was necessary, of course, to consult authorities, and we were told that at the ceremony of dedication the three great lights were to be displayed. They are the volume of the sacred law the square and compasses. The sacred law is to rule and govern our faith. He could not let the occasion pass, especially considering the late action of the Grand Orient of France, without saying a word about Masonic toleration. A Masonic lodge-room was a place where all sorts of religious belief were tolerated. In fact, we were an example of it. Not a word in this room could be said about foras of religion without discord being the result. All sorts of religious belief were tolerated in a Masonic lodge, but there must be a line somewhere, and the Masonic line was drawn at unbelief. Masonry requires an acknowledgment from a candidate of his trust in God, and it teaches him later the grand doctrine of the immortality of the soul. Do away with those two landmarks, and the lodge-room is at once and for ever stripped of its glory. This first great light would then be useless, for by its life and immortality are brought to light. You may expunge that—for it alludes to the Grand Geometrician of the Universe. You may tear up that pavement, for it represents that on which the high priest walked when he went once a year to pay adoration to the Most High. The prayers in our ceremonies become a farce, and the ceremonies themselves lose their meaning and are shorn of their beauty. Of the other two great lights, the square is to regulate our actions, and the compasses to keep us in due bounds with all mankind, particularly our brethren in Freemasonry. In other words, the first great light teaches us our duty towards God, and the other two our duty towards our neighbour. The disciples of Christ were to teach all nations, but "it was meet" that they should do so "beginning at Jerusalem," amongst their own brethren. Freemasonry is similar in its instructions. It teaches us to keep in due bounds with all mankind, particularly with our brethren in Freemasonry. This, brethren (he said), is what we have to remember. It is "one another first, the world afterwards;" and if Freemasonry has not taught each of us at least this, it has failed as far as we are concerned. In conclusion, he sincerely hoped that the opening of the new lodge-room would be the commencement of a better and more united feeling. We might congratulate ourselves on having a suitable and handsomely furnished room, and must look forward to its being productive of social pleasure and other benefits to ourselves in the first place, and eventually a blessing to the town in which we lived. At the conclusion of this address, the officers of the lodge were formed in procession, under the able direction of the P.M., C. J. W. Griffiths, and the W.M. sprinkled salt, with the usual invocation. The procession then moved round, when Bro. P.M. J. T. Robinson strewed corn, giving the invocation. The second time round Bro. Griffiths, P.M., sprinkled wine and gave the invocation, and the third time the W.M. anointed with oil and gave the closing invocation. The proceedings being ended, most of the brethren then adjourned to partake of a supper, at which much satisfaction with the conduct of the ceremony was expressed, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts drunk. At a later meeting of the lodge, a motion was unanimously carried, that an account of the opening of the new lodge-room should be sent to the Editor of the Freemason.

CONSECRATION OF TWO NEW LODGES AT NAPIER, NEW ZEALAND.

On Friday, the 27th of December, 1878, the Masonic Hall, in Munroe-street, of the Victoria Lodge, English Constitution, was the scene of an exceedingly grand ceremony, that of dedicating and consecrating two new lodges—the Abercorn, of Waipawa, and the Heretaunga, of Hastings—followed by the installation of the officers of the Victoria Lodge and of the two new lodges. The ceremonial of dedication and consecration was ably conducted by Bro. Nicholas Marchant, P.M., District Grand Superintendent of Works, and acting by special dispensation as Deputy District Grand Master. The duties devolving on the Grand Chaplain were performed by Bro. the Rev. D'Arcy Irvine, M.A., Chaplain of the Victoria Lodge. Bros. Rudman and Apin conducted the musical part of the service. The installation of the three Worshipful Masters and officers of the three lodges was performed by Bro. Marchant, P.M., D.G.S.W. The following are the names of the officers installed:—

Victoria Lodge.—Bros. De Lisle, W.M.; C. Raven, Treas.; E. P. A. Platford, Sec.; W. E. Combs, S.W.; W. A. Dugleby, J.W.; J. W. Upchurch, S.D.; F. Bee, J.D.; Russell Duncan, I.G.; Motley, Tyler.

Abercorn Lodge, Waipawa.—Bros. R. Karuish, W.M.; Todd, Treas.; A. St. Clair Inglis, Sec.; J. Chicken, S.W.; J. Westmoreland, J.W.

Heretaunga Lodge, Hastings.—Bros. J. M. Batham, W.M.; G. R. Grant, Treas.; W. Beilby, Sec.; W. O. McLeod, S.W.; D. A. Wright, J.W.; W. Y. Watson, S.D.; Hayes, J.D.; Chapman, I.G.

After the installations, several candidates were proposed for initiation in each of the two new lodges.

Before the lodge meeting closed, the District Officer, Bro. Marchant, took occasion to compliment the Victoria Lodge upon its flourishing condition, financially and otherwise, and several visiting brethren testified that they had not seen a better appointed lodge within the Wellington Masonic District.

The festival was celebrated in the evening with a banquet, held in the Masonic Hall, Munroe-street, where a large number of members of the Victoria Lodge, and the officers and warrant members of the two new lodges, assembled to do honour to the occasion. The chair was occupied by the newly installed W.M. of the Victoria Lodge, Bro. F. I. De Lisle, supported on his right by P.M. Bro. Marchant, D.G.S.W.; Bro. Karuish, W.M. of the Abercorn Lodge, and P.M. Bro. Wundram; and on his left by P.M. Bro. Batham, W.M. of the Heretaunga Lodge, and Bro. H. C. Pirani. Later in the evening P.M. Bro. Sutton and P.M. Bro. Koch joined the company, and were accommodated with seats on the dais. There were a good many visitors present, some—such as Bro. Rhodes and Bro. Ellison—Masons who have not joined in a festivity of the kind for some years.

After ample justice had been done to the many good things provided in excellent style by the caterer, Bro. Johnson, the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," and "The Three Grand Masters of England, Scotland, and Ireland," were duly honoured.

The W.M. then proposed "The District Grand Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. Marchant, D.G.S.W.

Bro. Marchant acknowledged the toast at length, and afterwards proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Masters of the Victoria, the Abercorn, and the Heretaunga Lodges," to which Bros. De Lisle, Karuish, and Batham responded.

Bro. Wundram, P.M., proposed, "The Installed Officers of the Three Lodges."

The toast was acknowledged by Bro. Combs, on behalf of himself and the other newly-installed officers.

Bro. Batham, P.M., proposed "The Outgoing Officers of the Victoria Lodge." He had to thank them very much for their assiduous attendance. They had worked very harmoniously together, and it was a pleasure to him to acknowledge it. (Applause.)

Bro. Carnell acknowledged the toast for himself and the other outgoing officers.

Bro. Marchant, P.M., desired to show to the brethren that while the proceedings of that day were being conducted interest was felt in those proceedings in the Wellington lodges. On leaving the hall that afternoon he received a telegram from Bro. G. S. Cooper, W.M. of the Wellington Lodge, as follows:—"Wellington Lodge desires to congratulate the newly-constituted lodges." He had also received a telegram from Bro. F. Binns, the W.M. of the Pacific Lodge, in which he said, "Tender congratulations to Victoria, Abercorn, and Heretaunga Lodges from Pacific Lodge." (Applause.)

Bro. De Lisle, W.M., proposed "The Sister Lodges of the Sister Constitutions."

The toast was acknowledged by Bros. Wundram, Batham, and Koch.

The other toasts were "The Visitors," acknowledged by Bros. Sutton, Pirani, Ellison, Howard, and Koch; "Newly-Initiated Masons," acknowledged by Bro. M'Kenzie; "The Ladies," acknowledged by Bro. Grace; "The Press," acknowledged by Bro. Pirani; "The Chaplain of the Victoria Lodge," acknowledged in eloquent and feeling terms by Bro. the Rev. D'Arcy Irvine; "The Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces;" "The Life Boat Crews of England;" "The Caterer, Bro. Johnson;" "Absent Friends."

The following toasts were drunk in solemn silence:—"The Memory of Princess Alice," and "All Poor and Distressed Masons."

A good many songs were sung and recitations given during the evening, and it was a good deal past 1 o'clock in the morning before the company broke up.

We observe that Bro. Henry Murray, Past District Grand Master, &c., for China, Past Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Warwickshire and Staffordshire, is about to read "Othello" at Birmingham, under distinguished Masonic patronage. Bro. Murray comes of an old theatrical family, and possesses great dramatic and elocutionary ability. In an address presented to him upon quitting China the brethren affirmed that "the various public ceremonials in which he had taken part had received an enhancement of dignity from his impressive delivery of the ancient ritual." His grandfather, Mr. Charles Murray, was an eminent member of the Covent Garden company at the commencement of this century, while his aunt, Mrs. Henry Siddons, and his father, Bro. William Murray, were the famous artists under whose management the Edinburgh Theatre flourished for more than forty years. In the pages of "Waverley" Sir Walter Scott makes mention of Mrs. Henry Siddons and Bro. William Murray, as Viola and Sebastian in the comedy of "Twelfth Night." The Earl (afterwards Marquis) of Dalhousie, when M.W. Grand Master of Scotland, visited the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, in ample Masonic form. It may be of interest to add that Bro. Murray's great grandfather was a Mason who, early in the eighteenth century, took an active part in the dissemination of the Craft upon the Continent of Europe.

The Eleventh Annual Festival of the French Hospital place last Saturday, the 2nd ult., at Willis's Rooms as usual. The banquet was largely attended by English and French gentlemen. The Count of Montebello took the chair, and was supported by the Lord Mayor of London and his Sheriffs. His Lordship made a very humorous speech, which was very much applauded. The noble Chairman also, after the dutiful toast to "Her Majesty the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and Royal Family," made a very telling speech, eulogising the French Hospital, the new President of the French Republic, and saying that moderation in politics was the programme of the present French Government, which elicited a thunder of applause from all parts of the room. After dinner, and many good speeches by different distinguished French and English guests, Signor Tito Mattei sat to the piano and performed his own celebrated and beautiful waltz, which was encored accordingly. Then came Signor Urio and Mdle. De Bono, the talented violinist, the former delighting the select audience by his beautiful and pure singing, the second one by her admirable instrumentation. As soon as the entertainment was over, M. Rimmel, the infatigable honorary secretary, gave an account of the funds of the French Hospital, thanking the learned French physicians for their great care to the patients, and the good it had done, not only to the French colony, but also to English poor, who partake with the French the great benefits of the hospital. Altogether it was a very enjoyable evening, and a large sum of money was collected for the benefit of the hospital.

THE NEXT QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

The next Quarterly Communication is one, for several reasons, of some importance, inasmuch as in addition to the vote of condolence to the Queen, which Bro. Clabon will move, the Grand Master will be nominated, and the Grand Treasurer elected. Of course until the meeting of Grand Lodge it is impossible to know who is the brother who most commends himself to the feelings of the brethren to fill that important post. We have heard several names mentioned, such as Bro. Monckton, the President of the Board of General Purposes, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, Bro. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., and others. A very important question comes before us—if Bro. Monckton, for instance, is elected by Grand Lodge Grand Treasurer, who is there to succeed him at the Board of General Purposes? There he has given great satisfaction, there his high attainments and legal knowledge are invaluable, and we feel we express the feelings of the Craft when we say he is emphatically the "right man in the right place." Considering the brethren who compose our Grand Officers, it is alike unwise and impertinent to doubt but that many can be found to fill either post with every advantage to the Order, and no doubt as the coming man "is always coming." Dame Rumour—not always the "lying jade" she is sometimes represented to be—seems to intimate that all these offices can be efficiently filled, whether by promotion, or merely by the election of a Grand Treasurer. For our part we leave the matter in entire confidence in the hands of Grand Lodge. The days are past when anything like a "job" or "favouritism," or too hasty elevation would be possible, and in the present advanced Masonic public opinion on the subject, no such proceeding is possible or practicable. And, to say the truth, we need not discount any such apprehensions; no such procedure is ever likely under our present wise and considerate rule. Never at any time in our history need Freemasons repose more trustingly and in full confidence on the executive. Well may we all feel proud of the manner in which our general business is transacted at Freemasons' Hall. We must all remember that the work there is very different from what it was say twenty-five years ago. And no one can be insensible to the fact that our claims, our executive duties, our charities, our responsibilities have all gone on "pari passu" with increasing numbers, and an expanding Order. We have no doubt that we shall have a good attendance at the next quarterly meeting, and we feel sure that the result will justify our expectations, and that the result may be safely left both in calm assurance and with "Hearty good wishes," to our Masonic Parliament. We have heard that a brother of high social standing will be proposed as Grand Treasurer (not so far named), if so, there can be no doubt of his entire eligibility. His appointment would, no doubt, also gratify the members of Grand Lodge.

ANTI-MASONRY.

There always has been a tendency, probably on the theory "omne ignotum pro magnifico," to doubt and disparage the institution of Freemasonry. It has had to encounter since 1717 the anathemata of Popes and the maledictions of synods, it has had to confront stupidity and ignorance combined, it has had to bear the sarcasms of the weak and the cavils of the suspicious. We do not say that Masons have been always wise, or that all Masonic bodies have kept close to the "good old paths." Unfortunately, and undoubtedly, much may justly be said on the folly of some professors of Masonry, on the unfaithfulness of some jurisdictions. But, on the whole, very little can be alleged at any rate, against Anglo-Saxon Masonry, in times past, and at this moment, we believe, positively nothing. It is moving on faithful to old landmarks, abiding by ancient traditions, a loyal, religious, God-fearing, man-helping Fraternity, and whether we look at its words or its works, its avowed teaching, or its actual results, it may well compare with any other body of men on the face of the habitable world. That it has its weaknesses, its shortcomings, its deficiencies, and its drawbacks, is both inevitable and admitted, but what earthly society has not, we should like to know? and making every allowance for human frailty and earthly imperfection, we may well all of us be proud of our kindly, sincere, and beneficent brotherhood. But, alas! just as human nature is ever weak, wayward, failing, and fallen, so is it still prominently marked by those tendencies which deform, those unworthinesses which disgrace. It seems to be purely human to persecute and revile, to antagonize and defame. Even religion itself is not free from fanaticism and bigotry, from a love of persecution, from a willingness to slander, from an incompetency apparently of realizing that truth may be anything else but what we ourselves like subjectively to accept, to proclaim, to profess, to maintain. Lately some religious fanatics have "run a muck" at Freemasonry, especially in America, but Freemasonry can well leave its defence to its own worth, well dismiss attack and assailable to calm contempt and contemptuous oblivion. Mawworm and Stiggins have had their day, they can do no harm now to any one. If Freemasonry is doing good it will prosper, if it is a thing of evil it will come to naught, and so knowing what it is, what it says, and what it does, we may well leave the reply to the world in which we live to-day, assured of this, that neither childish opposition, nor ignorant malediction, nor fanatical "furor," nor bigoted "condemnation," will ever weaken the foundation, or cast down one stone of that goodly building, which is built up on reverence to God and love to men, on the practice of piety and virtue, on a generous and philanthropic effort to aid and comfort all fraternal claimants who rightly apply to charitable hearts, on a kindly and enlightened sympathy with the common evils and prevailing woes of our common humanity. We need trouble ourselves with no controversies, nor seek to reply to any antagonists; let us have confidence in our Order, its mission, its work, its profession, and, above all, its practice.

MASONIC STUDIES.

Time was when few of our brethren knew much more of Masonic literature than was contained in "Prosper the Art," "Worthy Freemasons All," "No Mortal can boast a nobler Preston than a Free and Accepted Mason." If Anderson and Callcott, Ashe and Hutchinson were in abeyance, and the brother who wanted to know something about Masonry was referred to the list of "Patrons of Masonry" in the Grand Lodge Calendar, to Oliver's newest and most sensational work, and to our Masonic serial literature, which was then sometimes extant and sometimes not, and mostly, we regret to say it, of the purely uncritical school. We are speaking of 40 years ago, we regret to say it, though we will not add, "Ah mihi præteritos si referet Jupiter Annos." To-day what a change appears. We are now speaking of England alone, because in Germany, to say the truth, from the end of the last century, a critical school in Germany has gradually been forming and advancing. But in England what a wonderful difference and progress we have seen. Oliver with all his merits and industry, and cleverness and good feelings, was too uncritical to please this cavilling age, and those who have trod the pathway pursued amid many hindrances by a little band of true Masonic students have seen how very clearly Masonic studies and criticism have proceeded, so to say, hand in hand. We remember gratefully to-day the names of W. J. Hughan, D. Murray Lyon, Matthew Cooke, R. Spencer, Bro. R. F. Gould, Masonic Student, Bro. Ellis, Bro. Whythead, and many more, who have all sought to advance the goodly cause of Masonic criticism and research. In the United States we can also gratefully mention the names of Mackey, Macoy, Steinbrenner, E. T. Carson, Fort, Clifford P. Macalla, and many others well known to fame in various ways and for various efforts. We rejoice to mention such names, and to note such results. In the next Masonic Magazine will appear a valuable contribution of Bro. R. F. Gould in respect of the numeration of lodges, as well as a catalogue of Masonic books, by the Editor, both of which will be very valuable to Masonic students. Too much cannot be said for the efforts of those who seek to vivify and develop Masonic literature amongst us, and to aid Masonic studies. We hope still to witness a literary revival amongst us, when the laborious efforts of a few faithful and earnest Masonic students will be appreciated and applauded, and brethren will learn to believe at last that a good deal may be written, and a good deal moreover read with interest about Freemasonry. If the reviler and the scorner tell us we have no Masonic literature, as ignorance likes sometimes to say, we beg to refer all such "obscurantists" to Bro. Fort's "History of the Antiquities of Freemasonry," as a work "sui generis," really remarkable "per se," worthy of any order, and which deserves, as it has received, careful perusal and friendly acknowledgments from all, whether Masons or non-Masons.

ST. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am very happy to note the Masonic movement to help to restore this noble building. This is most emphatically a Masonic work.

I trust that Bro. Keyser may be well supported.

Yours fraternally,

AMPHIBALUS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The protest of Bro. T. Wardle, as reported in the Freemason, at the meeting on the above subject ought to command attention, although it could not be supported by the Committee appointed to carry out the text—"The Restoration of St. Alban's Abbey."

I trust you will allow me space in your columns to express my views, with all due deference to the Committee and their worthy Secretary.

Freemasons of late years have almost kept a silent dignity in such matters, and erred by silence rather than bustle. They have thereby, perhaps, avoided many of the errors and manias of the outer world.

As regards our operative work, surely the experience connected with our Charities and Institutions can give us wide fields of industry at home, and although it may be urged that it is impossible for us to neglect these, even when busy at work abroad, such as is now proposed, I submit that we ought to do the latter with dignity to the Craft and a thoroughly well considered selection. We should certainly keep a strong curb upon "restoration" work, or there may be no end of it.

I admire the zeal and judgment displayed in soliciting Freemasons to assist in making up the deficiency for the restoration of St. Alban's Abbey, but object to our work being mixed up with the structural parts of the building. When Freemasons, as a body, become "operative" as well as "speculative," I, like Bro. Wardle, would rather see them identify themselves with something original.

A memorial window, or monument of some kind, to our ancient brethren who built the Abbey would have been quite enough to identify the spirit of the Freemasons of this century with St. Alban's Abbey.

Yours fraternally, G. TIDCOMBE, JUN.
Abercorn Lodge, 23rd Feb.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any of your numerous readers inform me, through your columns, if they know of an institution where an old gentleman (a Mason) rendered helpless by a slight paralytic stroke could be boarded and cared for at a reasonable cost? By so doing they will greatly oblige.

Yours fraternally,

M.S.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the Freemason is looked up to as an authority, will you kindly inform me in your next issue whether or not it is the duty of the Secretary of a lodge before issuing the regular lodge circulars to convey to the W.M. the postscript for his perusal and confirmation?

Yours fraternally,

A MEMBER OF 1389.

[We suppose the brother means "transcript," and we should say certainly, yes, alike for courtesy's sake and Masonic requirements.]

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The final meeting of the Board of Stewards took place on Monday last, the 24th ult., at Freemasons' Hall, amidst a goodly attendance. The accounts were audited and passed, and the usual complimentary votes carried by acclamation, not forgetting a very warm vote of congratulation and gratitude to Bro. James Terry.

A balance of £66 was then disposed of. Life Governorships were voted, amid much applause, to the Chairman and Treasurer; £5 5s. each to the clerks in the office; and the balance was offered as a fraternal "honorarium" to Bro. Terry, whose labours had been alike remarkable and unceasing.

The Board of Stewards was then dissolved.

CONSECRATION OF THE SIR CHARLES BRIGHT LODGE, No. 1793.

Another new lodge for the Province of Middlesex was consecrated last Saturday, at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, by Bros. the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Col. Burdett, who was assisted by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Sir Charles T. Bright; H. G. Buss, Asst. Grand Sec.; H. C. Levander, Prov. Grand Sec.; the Rev. Ambrose William Hall, M.A., Chaplain to "Prince of Wales" Lodge, No. 259, P.M., Prov. Grand Chaplain and P.P.G.S.W. Surrey, and others.

The lodge was formed as follows:—Bros. Col. Burdett, W.M.; Sir Charles T. Bright, as Deputy G.M.; H. C. Levander, S.W.; H. A. Dubois, P.P.G.D. Middx., J.W.; Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, Chaplain; H. G. Buss, D.C.; and J. W. Baldwin, P.P.G. Tyler Middx., I.G.

The lodge room was crowded. The brethren present besides the above were:—Bros. John Hurst, R. W. Forge, John Piller, Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, Charles R. Pitt, Sec.; T. C. Walls, H. W. Linton, Charles Stevens, who acted as Org.; Fredk. Brown, T. A. E. Scott, 1656; W. D. May, 1538, 1700, P.M.; D. M. Dewar, P.M. 1415; Edward Brown, Treas. 1685; Fredk. Chandler, 1656; W. H. Bateman, W.M. 12; W. J. Buddell, D.C. 12; Thos. J. Lamb, J.W. 820; Charles Cousin, S.D. 259; F. J. Hunt, Org. 1638; R. T. Elsam, P.M. 201, 889, P.P.G.D.C. Surrey; Rev. F. J. De Crespigny, P.M. 708; John Bond, P.M. 889; Charles B. Payne, G.T., P.M. 27; E. B. Bright, W.M. 778; Francis Buckland, W.M. 1638, P.M. 325, 889; George Harrison, 1336; Alfred Abbott, 1656; C. Worthington, 1656; Alfred Humphris, 1656; Williams Gredies, 1293; W. E. Fliker, 887; S. Hill, 889; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason).

After the lodge had been opened, Colonel Burdett, addressing the brethren, said, they were assembled for the purpose of consecrating a new lodge, and it gave him great pleasure to assist in forwarding the wishes of its promoters. He believed that such a lodge was required in that neighbourhood for the residents of the locality. The town of Teddington was rapidly increasing in size and importance, and the lodge might be made in time a lodge holding a good position in that part of the county. It was not always that a lodge could be entirely supported by local residents, and frequently members were brought to it from other parts. It was very essential that a lodge should be supported entirely by the inhabitants of a particular district. He believed that all the promoters of the Sir Charles Bright Lodge were resident in the locality, and he congratulated the brethren on having for their first W.M. and Wardens, brethren who would do a great deal of good to the Order, and who would be always creditable to the lodge. The Master whom the brethren had selected was not new to his duties, and it was consequently with the greater confidence the government of the lodge was committed to his hands. Bro. Hurst would be able to rule the lodge in a way creditable to himself and with much advantage to every one. The Wardens he believed had not had the same experience, but they were capable of performing their duties, and under the presidency of such a Master as Bro. Hurst they would have ample opportunities of attaining proficiency and setting a good example to those brethren who were coming on after them. That was what was wanted. They wanted junior officers who could perform their duties well, and afford the means of learning to their juniors. It was not absolutely necessary that a lodge, situated as the present lodge was, should try to extend its numbers largely. A lodge consisting of a few members was much more manageable and comfortable in itself than those lodges whose members were numerous. If a lodge was limited in numbers it became the more valuable for a gentleman to seek initiation in, and if that were done with this lodge it would have a very select and agreeable body of members. There had been occasions with which he was acquainted when the admission of some person to a lodge had been a very unfortunate circumstance for it; for the brethren must remember that if a brother obtained admission to a lodge as a member and afterwards became disagreeable it was a very difficult thing indeed to get rid of him. He had known cases where a brother had found himself out of place as a member of a lodge, and had withdrawn voluntarily. This was a very wise and considerate act; but there were cases where brethren did not choose to retire; and, therefore, the members of a lodge should be doubly careful in their choice. They should look more to quality than quantity, and he trusted the brethren would be careful in framing their bye-laws, an ingredient in a lodge which was highly essential, particularly with reference to the ballot. This question had come before Freemasons very frequently. The ballot was a very serious thing, because what a man really was should be ascertained before his name was submitted to the test of the ballot. For this purpose it would be far better that the bye-laws should be so framed, that the ballot for an initiate should be taken at one meeting, and the initiate at the next, otherwise there was a chance of a gentleman being prepared for the ceremony when he was really blackballed, and then he had to be sent away. This, of course, created a great deal of annoyance, and it was a very awkward position. There were difficulties, no doubt, in the scheme he had suggested, on account of the long time that elapsed between the last meeting of one season and the first meeting of the next; but still a lodge of emergency, for the purpose of the ballot, might be called before the regular meeting of the lodge, which would get over the difficulty. To avoid any awkwardness he recommended that if a gentleman was proposed, and a brother found out anything which he considered would not render the candidate acceptable to the lodge, communication should be had with the Secretary, and then, without the name of the brother being divulged, the information would be conveyed to the proposer of the candidate, and the name could be withdrawn. With such precautions as these many unpleasant situations could be avoided, and the brethren of this lodge might bring it to a highly prosperous condition, and render it a credit to the Order, and a source of pride to its members and the province to which it belonged.

At the conclusion of this address, the ceremony was proceeded with, and the oration was delivered.

The Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, in giving the oration, said—Brethren, My invitation to attend here to-day was so short a one that I must ask you to bear with me whilst I say a few words, according to ancient custom, upon the nature and principles of our great Order, and I will speak to you much in the words that I addressed at a lodge which I very lately attended the consecration of, and I will ask you to give me your ears a little space, although I know when I look around at the eminent Masons that are here that I can tell them nothing that they are not already acquainted with—that there can nothing emanate from me as regards our great principles that they do not know already, and have not already endeavoured to practise. And, yet, it is a good old custom that, on an occasion like the present one, when a new lodge is about to be founded, the founders of that lodge should be reminded of the responsibilities that will rest on them and the great duties that they are going to undertake. You, who are to be the members of this lodge, are now bringing into life another society, formed for the guidance of its members in the path of truth and virtue, formed also to bring together a number of brethren in that social intercourse which, it is probable, without this lodge would not have had an opportunity of being brought together. Therefore, you are to be a lodge of brethren, you are to extend to each other the great features of goodwill and equality; you are to cement the ties of brotherhood by your good teaching, by your good working, by your good understanding of our rites and ceremonies, so that your lodge may shine as one of the now many bright stars in what I may symbolically term the great firmament of our Order. For we see lodge after lodge rising up, and we are astonished at the great influential body we are becoming. Why is it that so many are crowding under our Masonic banner? It is, as our old Entered Apprentice Song says, because

"There's naught but what's good,
To be understood,

By a Free and an Accepted Mason."

Those who were at the last meeting of Grand Lodge will remember our noble brother, my Lord Carnarvon, the Pro Grand Master, calling our attention to a little scarce work that had been presented to Grand Lodge, which gave an account of the roll of Lodges 150 years ago, in 1723. At that time the lodges numbered 150 only. Well, now taking this lodge, which is 1793, you will see the rapid strides we are making, and I mention this to call your attention to those rapid strides, and also to bear testimony to those valued brethren, now long passed away, to whom our mysteries, and our ceremonies, and our teachings were originally committed, and who through this long vista of years have brought them down to us as pure and unsullied as when first they were delivered to the Masonic world. It is these great truths and teachings that are now to be confided to you. If as brother after brother is added to your number you give him an example by your good rendering of our beautiful rites and ceremonies you may lead him in the path that good Masons have trodden before, so that when you, who I may call the parent stem, are gathered too to the Great Lodge above, the growing children of the lodge may carry out the good work, nobly commenced to-day, and may show to the outer and uninitiated world what Masons should be, in sorrow and in joy, in sickness and in health, in life and in death. Thus much for the nature of Freemasonry. A few words now upon its principles. As you all well know, the principles of our Order are brotherly love, relief, and truth, and yet at the present time it is a duty that your attention should be called to another great all-prevailing principle that permeates and pervades all the lodges of this country. I mean the presence of the Great Architect of the Universe. We seek His aid to-day for a blessing on this new lodge; we seek His aid when we open our lodge with prayer; we ask His blessing on the candidate for our mysteries and ceremonies; and when we close our lodge we render Him our grateful thanks for the mercies we have received. And now, at this day, when on the continent our brethren in the Grand Orient of France have chosen to ignore that Great Presence, it is, I say, the bounden duty of one bearing the Holy Orders I do to tell you, to remind you, that He is always with you and His all-seeing eye is upon you, that in the eternity of ages past, ere worlds were made, or suns were formed, and other worlds revolved in their orbits, great God, Thou wast—to tell you in His own Almighty words, "Him that honoureth Me I will honour, but him that despiseth Me shall be lightly esteemed." And now, brethren, I will not keep you any longer than to wish all success to your new undertaking. May your vessel have a prosperous voyage on the ocean of its Masonic life; and I feel sure from those who are to form its bulwarks that the helm will be properly held, and that it will bear onward the great truths it possesses to the good of our cause, the glory of God and the benefit of our fellow creatures. Brethren, for the kind attention you have paid to the short address that I have been enabled to give you, receive my hearty thanks. I have tried as much as I could to condense what I had to say of the nature and principles of our Order as inculcated in our rites and ceremonies; and if one word of the Chaplain's should be remembered in after years to a brother's good, if aught that I have said should bear good fruit or bring down the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe upon you, upon your lodge, or upon our holy cause, my mission has been faithfully fulfilled, and I would bid you go to your respective duties as founders, as officers, as members of the Sir Charles Bright Lodge, to go to them with energy and zeal; and God's benison be with you, and with all those who would make good of bad, and friends of foes.

The reverend brother resumed his seat amidst loud applause, and the ceremony of consecration was afterwards proceeded with and completed.

Bro. H. C. Levander then installed Bro. John Hurst, P.M. 1512, W.M. designate, as Master of the lodge, and the following brethren were invested as officers:—Bros. R. W. Forge, 1656, S.W.; J. Pillar, 1656, J.W.; Charles R. Pitt, Sec.; T. C. Walls, S.D.; H. W. Linton, J.D.; Charles Stevens, Org.; and John Gilbert, Tyler.

On the motion of the W.M., seconded by the S.W., Bros. Colonel Burdett, Sir Charles Bright, H. G. Buss, H. C. Levander, the Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, H. A. Dubois, and J. W. Baldwin, were elected honorary members of the lodge, with thanks to them for their kindness in consecrating and assisting in consecrating the lodge. After a good list of names for initiation and joining had been proposed, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet. The toasts which followed were given very briefly, as many of the brethren had to leave for town.

The W.M., in proposing the toast of "Colonel Burdett, R.W. Prov. G.M. for Middx.," said that this toast came home very closely to the brethren, as they were under the provincial rule of Colonel Burdett. He could not let this toast be drunk without first informing the brethren that they had to thank Col. Burdett for the kind manner in which he had come forward to assist at the ceremony of opening the new lodge, and for the very great kindness he had also exhibited in aiding them in getting the warrant for the lodge. They had very much to be thankful for in the kind services of Col. Burdett, for his recommendation, and for the great interest he had taken from the first time the subject of the lodge was called to his attention. He had at all times acted very kindly towards him (the W.M.) in the matter, recommended, advised, guided, and otherwise counselled him in everything he had had to do with reference to the lodge, for all of which kind acts he (the W.M.) felt personally deeply grateful. The brethren well knew how Col. Burdett had acted in the Craft in the province, that he was always to be found somewhere performing Masonic duty. In every lodge in the province he was highly esteemed, and the brethren could not go into a lodge in Middlesex without finding him held up as a pattern Mason. The brethren must be aware that whenever he came among them it was at great personal sacrifice, and, if for no other reason, they must for this feel themselves under a great obligation to their Provincial Grand Master.

Col. Burdett, in reply, said it was with great gratitude he acknowledged the flattering remarks of the W.M., and the cordiality of the brethren's acceptance of them. This was not an ordinary appreciation of the efforts of a Prov. G. Master, for he found himself surrounded by friends who had in the most affectionate and kind way expressed their appreciation for several years. He was not like a stranger coming among the brethren, but was a friend and a brother, and he hoped he and they would have many opportunities hereafter of meeting not only in that room, but in other places in the province. The Province of Middlesex within the past ten years had grown very largely. Ten years ago he was installed as Provincial Grand Master in that very room, but at that time he did not think he should ever preside over twenty provincial lodges. It was very gratifying to him, however, to do so, and it was the more gratifying to him to find that the brethren around him were all brethren of that class which would do credit to their lodges, the province, and the Order in general. He had seen throughout the province of Middlesex an immense number of members brought into it, and he had also seen a great deal of attention had been paid to the class of men who were brought in. From all that had been said and considered in this question the Masters and other officers had been very particular as to whom they admitted, and it was on that account the province had a high class of men which he believed no province in England could exceed. They were likewise brethren who were anxious to work up the system of Freemasonry, and go through the several offices in the lodges. He was happy to see around him a body of brethren who he thought would sustain the interests of this lodge, and he felt confident that under the able presidency of Bro. Hurst they would find the lodge not only flourishing in a few years, but rapidly increasing in a very short time.

The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Dep. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Sir Charles T. Bright," and said that that day a brother of Sir Charles Bright had been proposed as a joining member of the lodge. This, he thought, the brethren ought to feel very proud of.

Sir Charles Bright, in reply, said that the Provincial Grand Master had really said everything that he (Sir C. Bright) could say. As regarded the interests of this lodge they would be his best care as long as he took any interest in Masonry, which he had now done for the last twenty-three years, and which he hoped he would do to the end of his life. His interest in this lodge, besides it being in the province of which he was Deputy Grand Master, would always be the greater in that his name was so prominently associated with it. It would always be a great pleasure to him to come among the brethren whenever he was able, and from what he had seen of the commencement of the lodge he was sure it would be an example to every other Masonic lodge in the province, that its work would be thoroughly well done, and the social friendship of its members would not be surpassed by any of the twenty-six lodges over which the Provincial Grand Master presided. He hoped his name would ever be received as that of a friend by every brother of the lodge.

Bro. the Rev. Ambrose W. Hall responded for "The Visitors," to the toast proposed and drunk in their honour.

He said he was obliged to hurry over his remarks, as he and other brethren had to catch the last train to London. It had given him great pleasure, as he knew it had to all the rest of the brethren and the other officers who assisted at the consecration, to be present, and assist in bringing to light a new lodge. He was sure from what he had seen that the lodge would become distinguished among the roll of lodges, especially in the province of Middlesex. He had said so much to the brethren in his address in lodge, in the way of advice, that he really had scarcely anything left to say. Indeed, it was very little he could say to such old Masons as he saw at the table, because he knew they would all feel those great duties which devolved upon them; they would hold out their hand to a brother Mason, succour distress, sustain all those points which made our noble Order what he was proud to say it was, and which, he was sure, they were all proud and pleased to belong to. He thanked the brethren most heartily for the reception they had given to the visitors, and he drank "Success and all Honour to the Sir Charles Bright Lodge and the Province of Middlesex."

The London brethren then left, and the remaining toasts were soon afterwards disposed of. The whole of the day's proceedings passed off with the greatest success.

THE LANGTHORNE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

The anniversary meeting of this Association was held on Wednesday, the 26th ult., at the Swan Hotel, Stratford, when there were present the President, Bro. J. G. Stevens, P.M. 544, 933, P.Z. 933; Vice-President Bro. W. A. Thorp, P.M. 49, 1228, Z. 93; Treasurer Bro. Charles Lacey, P.P.G.D. Herts, P.M. 174, 1327, 1421; Bro. R. W. Biggs, 1421; Bro. H. N. Taylor, 1421; Bro. R. J. Tucker, P.M., 933, members of the Committee; and Bros. Owen, Bright, Medwin, Allen, Bolton, Hunt Claridge, &c.; Bro. T. S. Taylor, W.M. 1421, Secretary of the Association, and Bro. Fredk. Binckes, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. On this occasion the Committee presented their third Annual Report, in which they congratulated the members on the continued success of the society. During the course of the year just closed the sum of £196 11s. was paid in by members, and, with the balance from last year, has enabled the committee to have twenty-six appropriations balloted for, making 71 from the commencement of the society's operations.

The society started with one hundred and nineteen members, each paying one shilling per week for the purchase of Life Governorships in the three Masonic charities. Of the above number, seventy-one, as already stated, have obtained Life Governorships, and there are only thirty members still to receive prizes, some few having discontinued their contributions. The total amount received from the commencement down to the close of the third year was £750 18s. 6d., of which the Boys' School received £196, the Girls' School £155 10s., and the Benevolent Institution for the Aged £200. These amounts do not absorb the whole of the above sum, there being eleven Life Governorships allotted, for which the institution was not nominated when the report was drawn up. The Association, it will be perceived, is worked very much upon the same principle as a building society, and enables brethren by means of small weekly contributions to become Life Governors of the Masonic Charities who would be unlikely to become so by making a single payment of ten guineas each, and, in the result, societies of this kind are the means of obtaining for the institutions more than the bare sums contributed by the societies; because the allottees frequently accept Stewardships, and, of course, get as large an amount upon their Hsts as they are able.

The Committee of the Langthorne Association suggest to their members that as this is the fourth and last year of its existence, it is advisable for each member to pay up the amounts due by him, so that those who have not yet had their appropriations may obtain them as speedily as possible, and thus enable the Committee to close the Association within the time prescribed by the rules.

The report concludes with an expression of the desire of the Committee to testify to the very valuable services rendered by Bro. T. S. Taylor, the Honorary Secretary, as they feel convinced that the success of the Association is mainly due to the admirable manner in which he has conducted its proceedings, and, on behalf of the members, to accord him their warmest and fraternal thanks.

The report being in the hands of the members was taken as read.

Two Life Governorships were balloted for, the successful members being No. 45, Bro. T. Jex, and No. 52, Bro. J. Jessett.

Wednesday being the night for the election of officers, it was proposed and seconded that the present officers be re-elected; carried unanimously.

A letter was read from Bro. F. W. Hedges, Secretary of the Masonic Institution for Girls, apologising for his inability to attend.

The Secretary stated that the amount received that evening from members was £29 16s.

This concluded the business before the Committee, and the brethren then adjourned to the dining-room, where a handsome repast, admirably served by Bro. Watkins, the host, was partaken of. On the removal of the cloth, the President rose to propose the health of the first lady of this land, "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen," to whom the hearts of all Englishmen turned more particularly just now, in consequence of the present crisis in colonial affairs. The Chairman also proposed in one toast "The M.W.G.M., Prince of Wales, and all the Grand Officers, Present and Past."

These having been duly honoured, he again rose, and said—The next toast that I have to introduce

o the notice of the meeting is really the toast of the evening, "Success to the Langthorne Masonic Charitable Institution." Now, brethren, it requires certainly a better man than myself to explain to you, if need be, the objects of this Charitable Association, but you are so well versed in the working of it, and the report is in your hands, that, perhaps, I may save myself some trouble in endeavouring to explain that which you already know. To-night we celebrate the third anniversary of this Association, and I think we may fairly congratulate ourselves upon our venture commenced three years since. I find that during that period seventy-one Governorships have been balloted for, though eleven out of that number have not yet been appropriated; it is a matter of fact, however, that sixty Life Governorships have been paid for during those years. Further manipulating the figures, I find that during that time £196 has been paid to the Masonic Institution for Boys, £155 10s. to the Masonic Institution for Girls, and £260 to the Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows. Now, brethren, these facts and figures are incontestable. I think we may safely say that if we had not banded together the three Institutions, of which we are so justly proud, would not have received that amount of money—perhaps not a quarter of that amount. This, therefore, is a proof of the usefulness of this Institution, whose third anniversary we celebrate to-day, and of that of the other kindred institutions that exist. We really do not know the extent of the good accomplished, how we have assisted the aged to obtain an annuity, the child to win his candidature. Yes, it may be ours to picture the relief of a broken-hearted widow when she sees her son or daughter has been successful in entering the schools through the assistance we have gained the power to give. It is a well-known fact, that in these schools the children are admirably tended; morals, health, conduct, and education are well cared for, and in all cases are these children looked upon as members of one great family, and not as the recipients of charity. Now, brethren, we may congratulate ourselves that we have done something towards assisting these widows in getting their boys and girls into the schools. And we may congratulate ourselves in like manner that we soothe the aged, and render less rugged the declining path by which they reach the grave. These facts are golden; we know that they have taken place; and I say prosperity to the Langthorne Masonic Charitable Association, which has been marvellous, so that £750 has been collected in three years, or on an average £248 10s. every fifty-two weeks. Brethren, it deserves our highest encomiums. Our success proves that a society of this kind was wanted in this neighbourhood. In asking you to drink this toast I shall also ask you to drink "The Health of Bro. Binckes," who is closely associated with us through the position he holds as representing one of those noble Masonic Institutions in whose behalf this society is working. Bro. Binckes will be able, better than I can, to tell you what the Boys' School can do; and from his constant communication with his colleagues he can tell you what the kindred Institutions can do. As regards the report I call your attention to the second paragraph, which is as follows:—

"The Committee desire to impress upon the members that as this is the last year of the Association, the advisability of at once paying up the amounts now due by them, so that those who have not yet had their appropriations may obtain them as speedily as possible, and thus enable the Committee to close the Association within the time prescribed by the rules."

Well, now, as an individual member of this Association, and as your President, I wish to say it is well to elude this society as soon as you reasonably can. Every effective member is now owing £1 12s. Some of us have got our appropriations; some have not. Those who may very likely feel inclined to pay up; those who have not may possibly also be so disposed as they will get their appropriations the sooner; but if they do not all agree of course we must carry on the society to the term of four years. The auditors are here; they have examined the accounts, and have found them correct. Since printing some of the names of prize-holders several have been placed upon the lists, and the money has been paid to the Aged Freemasons Institution. We have sent up a large amount to the Institutions, indeed in what we have attempted, I believe we have been perfectly successful.

Bro. Binckes in reply, alluded to a report which has somehow got abroad that he did not approve of this Association, that indeed the questions had been put to him point blank, but he assured his hearers that such a thought had never crossed his mind, indeed, he regarded with the most favourable eye such Institutions, which had his best wishes for their success. He then proceeded to give the brethren present some interesting information as to the condition of the Institutions, and the manner in which their operations were being extended. Bro. Binckes concluded by referring to the fact of the festivals that had been held this year as a proof that however great commercial depression might be, yet Freemasons had the welfare of their Charities so constantly at heart, that they were able to make sure that the Masonic Institutions should not suffer.

Bro. Lacey, the Treasurer of the Association, proposed "The Health of the President, Bro. J. G. Stevens," referring to the length of time, 16 or 17 years, during which time Bro. Stevens had always distinguished himself by his desire to make himself serviceable to his fellow creatures, and by his energy in Freemasonry had become widely known among the brethren. He trusted that the day was far distant when they would no longer see his face.

The President having returned thanks in an amusing speech, referring to his vivid recollection of his experience as an initiate, &c., proposed "The Health of Bro. Taylor," and in so doing stated his belief that the success of the Association was mainly due to the talents and energy of their worthy Secretary. During the three years they had been at work there had been neither mistakes nor confusion in the accounts, which was highly creditable in a society consisting of more than a hundred members contributing to the funds by small monthly payments.

Bro. Taylor having replied, the President proposed "The Health of the Vice-President, Bro. Thorpe," whose business talents and genial character were so very welcome in their society.

"The Health of Bro. Lacey, the Treasurer," was also proposed in fitting terms by the President, the compliment being duly acknowledged by both these brethren.

Hockley, Herbert Dicketts, Peter De Lande Long, William Hope, C. H. Harding, F. Adlard, F. R. W. Hedges, (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. R. B. Webster gave notice of motion for the next Quarterly Court, that one girl be struck off the list of elected candidates, in consequence of her not having been sent in after frequent applications by the House Committee.

The Secretary reported that a brother did not intend to proceed with the candidature of one little girl.

The petitions of three candidates' friends were read and accepted, and the candidates placed on the list.

The letter from Bro. S. Leith Tomkins was read by the Secretary, offering to receive subscriptions on behalf of the Institution, and stating that his interest in the welfare of the Institution remained unabated.

On the motion of Bro. Tattershall, seconded by Bro. A. E. Gladwell, a letter was ordered to be written to Bro. Tomkins acknowledging the kind offer, which was deferred on the suggestion of Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, for further consideration.

The election of two members of the House Committee in place of Bro. Benjamin Head and Bro. John Boyd, deceased, was taken during the meeting of the Committee. The poll was kept open till five o'clock, when the scrutineers of votes commenced casting up the votes. When the poll was declared the following was found to be the result:—

A Meeting of the St. Alban's Restoration Committee was to take place on Friday, at the Board Room, at Freemasons' Hall, at 4.30 p.m.

Bro. W. Stokes has just completed his sixteenth year at the Royal Polytechnic as a lecturer and teacher of the Science of Memories. We need hardly add that Professor Stokes has during the above time given valuable instruction to thousands.

Bro. Colonel Stanley, M.P., W.D. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire, Secretary of State for War, will preside at the 48th Anniversary Meeting of the Royal United Service Institution, to be held in the Theatre to-day, at twelve o'clock, when the gold medal will be presented to the writer of the Prize Essay.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The diseases common to our climate, and endangering man's physical condition, will always exist, though many may be mitigated and their effects removed by timely and appropriately applied at the proper time. Holloway's Pills are acknowledged far and wide to be the most effective purifier of the blood, the most certain regulator of disordered organs, and the most innocent aperient that can be prescribed. This medicine is applicable to all alike, young or old, robust or delicate; it increases the appetite and controls all derangements of the bowels. After the disorder is subdued occasional doses of these Pills will prevent any relapse, and moreover secure, promote, and ultimately the good results which flow from perfect purity and regularity.—[ADV.]

Masonic and General Tidings.

Bro. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., P.M. 1657, has forwarded to the directors of the proposed Worcester County and City Coffee Tavern Company a donation of £50 towards the preliminary expenses attending the formation of the company.

On Wednesday evening, the 11th December, the District Inspector, P.M. Bro. W. Oldham, installed the officers of the Woorora Lodge, No. 461, I.C., Riverton, for the ensuing term. In consideration of the business in hand viz., one initiation, one passing, and installation, the lodge had been called for 4 p.m., so that many were thereby prevented from attending who had otherwise signified their intention of being present. The lodge was first duly opened by W.M. Bro. P.M. J. E. Blechmore, raised to the Third Degree, and the V.W. Pro. Grand Inspector, Bro. Oldham, was then requested to assume the chief position, who with Bros. Jobling, P.M.; A. Klaner, W.M. 363, I.C.; A. G. Aish, P.M., W.M. 408, I.C.; F. H. Barkla, W.M. 416, I.C.; and J. J. Rurad, W.M. St. James, I.C., then formed a Past Master's lodge, and duly installed Bro. Castine, J.W., W.M. of Woorora Lodge for ensuing term. Lodge being closed to First Degree, the following officers were then installed as follows:—Bros. James Scholefield, S.W.; R. B. Millner, J.W.; J. M. Elliott, Treas.; F. Calf, jun., Sec., (re-elected); the Rev. J. Houghton, Chap.; J. Gray, S.D.; R. W. Hall, J.D.; H. Cole, I.G.; J. M. Elliott, Tyler. Mr. James Gant, farmer, of Finnis Point, was then initiated, and Bro. T. Campaign, passed, lodge being closed at about 7.30 p.m., when all present sat down to a very nice spread provided by host Seckling, of the Riverton Hotel, and after the cloth was removed, the usual Masonic toasts were drunk and the brethren separated.

The Whitehall Review is enabled to announce that General Lord Napier of Magdala, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., will return to Gibraltar and resume the Governorship of that fortress on the expiration of his leave, and that there is every probability of his completing his full period of six years in the appointment, which he took up in October, 1876.

"BRUT IMPERIAL" CHAMPAGNE.—The wines of the famous house of Moët and Chandon, of Epernay, where they boast some six miles of cellars, wherein are stored millions of bottles of champagne, have become famous all over the world since the days when, in the fifteenth century, Jean and Nicholas Moët were chevins of the City of Reims. Their "Star" brand is known wherever champagne has penetrated; and, in order to keep pace with the modern demands for dry wine, they are now shipping, in addition to their White Dry Sillery, a fine champagne entitled the "Brut Imperial." There can be no doubt it is one of the finest dry champagnes ever offered for sale in this country. It is entirely "Brut," that is, the wine has only its natural saccharine, with no added liquor, and thus it will recommend itself to the physician as well as the connoisseur of champagne, as it is infinitely more wholesome as well as pleasanter to the taste. It has a good body, is thoroughly vinous, and possesses also a delicate flavour.

The Quarterly Meeting of the Duke of Leinster Mark Master Masons Lodge, 363, I.C., was held in the Alfred Masonic Hall, Weymouth-street, Adelaide, on Friday, Dec. 20th, 1878. The business of the meeting comprised the marking and passing of Bro. Alfred George Aish, W.M. 408, I.C. The candidate was present, and the ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner by the C.A., Bro. R. J. Winter. The following are the officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. J. Winter, C.A.; W. Baker, 1st Inspector; W. Sumson, 2nd Inspector; J. W. Castine, 3rd Inspector; T. S. Lang, Sec.; W. N. Crowder, Treas.; A. Klaner, P.C.; R. W. M. Hunckley, Asst. C.; R. Couch, I.G.; and Tucker, Tyler.

The Whitehall Review can state most positively that there is not the slightest prospect of Lieutenant-General Sir Garnet Wolseley handing in his resignation of his appointment at Cyprus, as has been more than once stated by some of our contemporaries. We have before us a letter from an officer holding an official position at Cyprus in which it is stated that "His Excellency has never even hinted at such a thing, and for some months at least he will remain at his post."

The number of out-patients on the books of the National Hospital for Diseases of the Heart and Paralysis, Robo-square, for the week ending Feb. 15th, was 1,147.

Among the many articles on demand in the household none deserve more attention than plate and polishing powder. Many of the powders now in use are simply ruinous to every article upon which they are used. The "Star" Plate and Universal Polishing Powder Co. have supplied a great want in the "Star" Plate and Polishing Powder, and the price places it within the reach of all. This powder has been subjected to the most crucial tests, is entirely free from all mercury, acids, or anything that can injure plate, gold, silver, or the finest jewellery. For polishing and cleaning copper, white metals, ivory, marble, or glass it far surpasses any preparation in use. The company received the only prize medal for polishing powders at the Exhibition, Philadelphia, 1876, there being fourteen competitors. Their powder is certainly a great desideratum.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post-free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—Adv.

Bro. Viscount Mandeville was installed W.M. of Union Lodge, No. 105, Fandaragee, on Friday, the 27th Dec., 1878. The Viscount Mandeville is son and heir of the Marquis of Westminster. His marriage to Miss Yznaga, daughter of the Cuban merchant of that name, at Grace Church, in New York, will be remembered as one of the most fashionable ever solemnised in that city. Viscount Mandeville is well-known in leading society in that city.

DEAR AND CHEAP VEGETABLES.—The Pall Mall Gazette of January 18th mentions that in a suburb of London the following prices are charged for vegetables:—Carrots, 1d. each; turnips, 3d. each; parsnips, 3d. each; savoy, 2d. each; potatoes proportionately dear. These exorbitant prices should induce all who have a spare piece of ground to grow their own vegetables. Messrs. Sutton & Sons, the Queen's seedsmen, Reading, supply collections of vegetable seeds for the amateur's small garden at 12s. 6d., 15s., and 21s. each, the latter collection carriage free; while those who prefer making their own selection can have all seeds sent free by post (except peas and beans) on receipt of order. "Sutton's Amateur's Guide in Horticulture," which contains full particulars as to when to sow, what to sow, and how to sow, may be had post free for 15 stamps, or for 1s. at all the railway bookstalls.

Bro. G. C. Boor has been unanimously elected chairman of the Streets Committee of the Commissioners of Sewers.

At a recent meeting of the Ward of Cheap Club, held at Kennan's Hotel, Cheapside, a handsome marble dining-room clock, with a pair of bronze and gilt candelabra, were presented to Bro. J. Hamilton Townend, in recognition of his services as honorary secretary to the club.

Bro. G. S. Graham's grand annual evening concert took place on Thursday, the 13th ult., at the Angell Town Institute, Brixton, under Royal and distinguished patronage. The programme consisted of a varied selection of vocal and instrumental pieces, which were exceedingly well rendered by the talented artists who took part in the concert, Bro. G. S. Graham especially distinguishing himself and winning the well-deserved approbation of the company present.

The "Masonic Magazine" for March is now ready, price 6d. It may be obtained of any bookseller or newsagent, or direct from the office of this paper, 198, Fleet-street, London.—[Adv.]

After the minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 4th of December, 1878, had been read by Grand Secretary and confirmed, Grand Secretary read the regulations for the Government of Grand Lodge during the time of public business.

The next business on the paper was the election of a Most Worshipful Grand Master, but before this was taken,

The Earl of Carnarvon said: Brethren, there stands on the notice paper a motion in the name of our Bro. Clabon, and I know he will not think that I am taking it out of his hands if I anticipate him in that motion, and propose it to you from this chair. It is right that such a motion as this, whoever may be the occupant of this chair, should proceed from this Grand Lodge with all the weight and all the solemnity that the subject requires. Brethren, this is the first occasion that we have come in this hall since the unfortunate death of Her Royal Highness Princess Alice. In the lives and in the deaths of very eminent persons there is generally a great formality, but in the life of Her Royal Highness there was a reality which brought her home very much to the sympathies of English people; and in her death there was a reality not less than that of her life. She had not been too long separated from us by marriage in a foreign country for Englishmen to forget her name, her character, and even her face, and in the final tragedy which by that marvellous process of reporting was brought to us every day in every detail of the illness that carried of numbers of her family, and finally took her as its greatest prey—in all that tragedy, I say, she had the liveliest sympathies of this country. Brethren, the lives of many people—or most people, I may say, who bear a character—are consistent with themselves, and generally there are some great features verifying at home which give them reality and interest during life, and which serve to make them remembered after death; and if there was any one characteristic by which Her Royal Highness will live in the recollection of English people, and by which she was fortunate enough to set, so to speak, a public mark upon her time and life, it was the deep interest that she took in the nursing and tending of the sick. It began and was practised in her earliest days; it closed with the last hours only of her existence. It probably is in the knowledge of most members of this Grand Lodge that she, perhaps of all the members of the Royal Family, nursed with the greatest assiduity and patience her father during his last illness. She again stood by the sick bed and nursed with indefatigable care her brother, our illustrious Grand Master. She again took no mean part or interest in that hospital organisation which she mainly created at the time of the French and German war. I can remember when I was in that country myself a year or two after that war, how many stories I heard, many of them very touching, of the patience and zeal and earnestness with which she had devoted herself to her self-imposed task. And lastly it may be truly said that her own death was caused by the nursing of her own children. It deserves to be known, for it is a touching and remarkable coincidence, that her death fell on the very anniversary of her father's death, and also, I believe, almost, if not quite, coincided with the day when His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales in his illness received the first favourable turn. Brethren, Her Royal Highness was cut off in the very noontide of life, at the moment when duties seemed to have multiplied upon her, when her power of usefulness was the greatest, when numbers upon numbers had become dependent upon her care and thought, and when she was most competent, perhaps, to counsel and to assist. But though all that came to pass, according to our eyes, prematurely, she did not pass away without leaving a great and useful lesson behind; she left, as I said just now, a public mark, so to speak, of her life and character on the time in which she lived, and the people amongst whom she lived, and I can remember no case of more genuine and unmistakable sorrow in this country when an event of this kind was announced, as I know indeed the loss was, one of the irreparable losses sustained by her adopted country. Brethren, the higher the position, the loftier the estate in which men or women move, the greater, too, the glitter and the brilliancy—there is quite enough of that; but when those who are in positions are adorned by simplicity of life, by a faithful discharge of duty, by courage, and by the homely, but because homely not the less princely, virtues, they a great lesson is left behind, and a very noble picture is painted for others to follow their example, and such I believe to have been the case with her late Royal Highness the Princess Alice. Brethren, I am sure of this, that though this vote comes late, as late it necessarily was, because we have had no opportunity of meeting here since that unfortunate event, I am sure that you will heartily and sincerely add your voices to the melancholy resolution which I am about to propose, and that you will unite in a vote expressing the deep sympathy which we all feel at the loss sustained by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, and by His Royal Highness the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and the rest of the Royal Family, by the death of Her Royal Highness the Princess Alice, Grand Duchess of Hesse-Darmstadt.

Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D.: Most Worshipful Grand Master, it is with feelings of peculiar pride that I contemplate being permitted to second this resolution. I desire to say that I gave the notice of motion in a representative character, and at the unanimous request of the last Board of Masters. I only desire to add this one word touching the statement which has been made by the Pro Grand Master. I happened to be with my family at Eastbourne late in the autumn, and when we arrived there the name of the Princess Alice was on all lips; and this I know, that one of the first things which she did when she arrived at Eastbourne was to send for the clergyman to know the condition of the poor of the parish, and how she could assist him in assuaging their sorrows; and day after day while she was at Eastbourne she performed the duties most kindly and charitably of a district visitor. I beg to second the motion.

The motion was then put, and carried unanimously, and the Earl of Carnarvon directed Grand Secretary to have it engrossed and sent to his lordship for transmission to the Prince of Wales.

The Earl of Carnarvon: The next business, brethren, is the election of a Grand Master.

Bro. Frank Richardson, P.M. No. 14: M.W. Pro Grand Master and Brethren, having had the distinguished honour at the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge to nominate His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the ensuing year, I rise now to ask you, according to ancient custom, to confirm that nomination by unanimously re-electing him; and I think on this present occasion I may be forgiven for a few seconds if I pause to suggest that we should all express our thanks to the Great Architect of the Universe for having, through His mercy, saved His Royal Highness from what might have been a very serious accident; and, at the same time, to congratulate ourselves as Englishmen that in the hour of peril His Royal Highness maintained that courage and fortitude which are inherent in his family. In an assemblage like the present I need not allude, I am sure, to the benefits derived by Masons in general in having His Royal Highness at the head of our Order; but I would point out, as a fact, that during the short period he has reigned over us nearly 200 lodges have been added to the register. It would ill become so humble a member of the Order as myself to dilate upon the excellences of His Royal Highness or his particular qualifications for this great office. The manner in which he performs the duties of his high station are well known and appreciated, not only by the Craft, but by the nation at large. We all know perfectly well that the cause of charity is never overlooked by him, for we all feel that his hand is at all times guided by justice, and his heart expanded by benevolence. It is therefore with great confidence, brethren, that I propose the re-election of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Most Worshipful Grand Master for the ensuing year.

Bro. Edgar Baylis, P.M. 259: Most W. Pro Grand Master, I have the honour to second that nomination. I am quite certain that no expressions of mine will add to the unanimity with which it will be received; and I therefore simply and formally second the election of His Royal Highness as our Grand Master for the ensuing year.

The motion having been put by the Earl of Carnarvon, was carried unanimously.

The Earl of Carnarvon: I must as a matter of formality ask if there is any voice on the contrary; but I am happy to say the vote is general and universal.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was then formally proclaimed by Sir Albert W. Woods (Garter), G.D.C., as Grand Master of Freemasons of England for the ensuing year.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, the next business on the paper is the election of the Grand Treasurer.

Bro. L. W. Cave: M.W. Pro Grand Master, I have the honour to propose for Grand Treasurer our Bro. Ferdinand de Rothschild, of the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 259. The office of Grand Treasurer, as we all know, is one of great importance, and I strongly recommend our Bro. Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild for that office. His name is well known not only in the City of London, but throughout the whole of England, and not only in England, but in all the markets and exchanges of the world; and I think that the election of a brother so distinguished as Bro. Ferdinand de Rothschild will tend to add lustre to the office of Grand Treasurer.

Bro. Samuel Pierce, P.M., 33°: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, it is with very great pleasure that I stand before you to second the proposition that we have just heard. The advantages of that election to Grand Lodge in particular, and the Craft in general, have been quite sufficiently dilated upon by the brother who has proposed our Bro. Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, and I think I shall best study the wishes and feelings of the Grand Lodge if I content myself with simply seconding that proposition.

Bro. F. Binckes, P.G. Steward: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, however invidious may be the position I may be thought in the estimation of some to occupy, I do not think that, with any regard to consistency, the opinions I feel, and the sentiments I express, I can allow this nomination to go unchallenged. There are but two offices, M.W. Pro G. Master, within the gift, generally speaking, of the members of the Craft; the one is that to which we know and we all gladly acknowledge no exception could by any possibility be taken, because we are all of us animated both by loyalty to the throne and our allegiance to our Most Worshipful Grand Master, to prohibit, by the due consideration of either of those feelings, any difference of opinion with reference to the illustrious Head of our Order who has just been elected by acclamation, but with reference to the Grand Treasurer I think a few observations may be very well thrown out to Grand Lodge on an exceptional occasion such as this, and which, I not only believe in my own opinion, but without any formality, I think in the estimation of a large number of members of the Craft are worthy of very grave and serious consideration, and I do hope that, however brief I may endeavour to make my remarks, if I should be tempted in argument to extend them a minute or two longer than I may purpose to do, I may be listened to with consideration, attention, on account of the particular circumstances in which we are now placed; and if I am not out of order—and of course if I am I shall be called to order, and I shall submit to the ruling of our excellent presiding officer—I would ask why is it that in the election to an office so important as that of the Grand Treasurer, the usage which I can testify to in my experience of over a quarter of a century has been now of departed from? I have never known during a quarter a century the December Quarterly Communication to pass by without the nomination of a Grand Treasurer being made to the Craft at large, equally with that of the Grand Master. How it is that Masonic usage has been allowed to lapse it is not for me to say, because I am perfectly prepared to admit that by Masonic law—and I take the Constitutions as an embodiment of Masonic law—the nomination of the Grand Treasurer is not ancient. The Constitutions provide for the nomination of Grand Master at the meeting in December, and for his election at the meeting in March, and those Constitutions simply state that a Grand Treasurer shall be elected at the Quarterly Communications in March. But then, if that is the case, why has a work of supererogation been performed to my knowledge for nearly thirty years in the appointment to the important office of Grand Treasurer, and for the first time at the meeting of December last been omitted, without any communication whatever being made to the great body of Masons assembled in Grand Lodge? Now, surely, brethren, as I have said, with only two officers in our gift, by the exercise of our free and unbiassed suffrages, is it or is not wise, if the law has not made provision for this nomination, when, after the loss of that Grand Treasurer, the loss of whose services we all regret and deplore, for the first time we are called upon to elect a Grand Treasurer, we have not the slightest idea of this or that person who is to be elected to that responsible position till we come here this evening. With reference to the other brother whom we have elected in the person of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, there can be no question, there can be no difference of opinion; but when you come to the brother who is nominally responsible for your finances, and the only other elective officer we have it in our power to appoint, surely, brethren, we ought to have some notice of information why that usual nomination has been departed from. Now, Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, I must justify my coming before Grand Lodge this evening. I do it, I do not hesitate to state, in behalf of and in connection with that cause without some association with which I am never intruding myself on Grand Lodge; and it is on behalf of our great Masonic Institutions that I do say that if this office is one of responsibility, if this office be one of honour, if this office be one of repute, if this office be one of distinction, why do not we select for this office a brother who has made himself conspicuous not only by the responsibilities he has undertaken but by the generous support he has given to these Institutions? I would not for a single instant do the injustice of being the organ or mouthpiece of any section of Freemasonry that for one instant questioned the freest possible exercise of the high prerogative of the Grand Master in appointing his Grand Officers from year to year; but I will, whenever I have a justifiable pretext, stand here as the exponent of those who wish to see the privileges of Freemasonry entertained, and not overriden by secret councils. Now, brethren, there are a certain number of names that I have heard likely to be mentioned or proposed for the distinguished office of Grand Treasurer, and I must say that from the multifarious businesses many of us are engaged in, there has been no time or opportunity, whatever course had been proposed by our rulers or any one else, for consideration. I have thought, that we ought, when an opportunity was afforded, not to give our suffrages on this question to any brother who had not been adorned by the Grand Master with the modern purple; but I cannot tell this evening that any brother with the exception of the one who has just been nominated for the office of Grand Treasurer will be proposed who has not been so adorned; and, therefore, without consultation, for the purpose of nominating one who has honoured himself by his large-hearted support of our Charities, and who has also had the purple awarded to him, and, I think, seventeen years ago very worthily indeed received that honour, I am about to propose, in order to test whether we shall have this election in our hands or not, and whether you, brethren, feel with me that those who support our Institutions have done as great and good services in connection with Freemasonry as it is possible to be effected, and whether you will by your spontaneous suffrages, if these brethren have been honoured already, add honours to them, and if they have not had honours conferred upon them when a worthy name is submitted to you you will confer the honours on them—I wish to test it this evening. I do not wish to detain you further, but I will simply propose the name of our worthy brother, Colonel Creaton, Past Grand Deacon, who has been a great supporter of our various Institutions, is a Trustee of them, a member of all our Committees, a most liberal and constant supporter of all the Charities, and who for many years of his life has been one who shows the greatest interest in Freemasonry. Let us under such circumstances, when for the first time in twenty-seven years and upwards the office of Grand Treasurer is placed in our nomination, show that we can reward a Past Grand Deacon who, by seventeen years of hard work in our cause, has proved himself worthy of the high honour of having that office conferred upon him.

Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts: Most Worshipful Pro G. Master, I have much pleasure in seconding the nomination of our Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton as Grand Treasurer.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, it is my duty to call upon any brother who has any other candidate to propose for this office.

Bro. J. B. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes: Most Worshipful Pro. G. Master, I ask to be entitled to say a word or two on what has been said by our Bro. Binckes, because I think what I may say will be useful to this Grand Lodge. While I agree with a good deal which has been uttered by our Bro. Binckes I do not agree with all. I rather think and imagine that Grand Lodge will perhaps take it from him that the reason of the first nomination of Grand Treasurer to-night is the result of some terrible inquisition. Now I am prepared to say for myself that I am in the councils of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and that till I entered Grand Lodge to-night I had not the smallest notion of who was going to be proposed as Grand Treasurer in the place of our late much-respected Bro. Tomkins. I did not know who was going to be proposed, and I say this in Grand Lodge because I do not like it to be said in Grand Lodge that there is anything secret. Brethren who are in a Masonic position must judge what is best for the general good of the Craft. Every one will know and admit that; but do not let it be thought that these matters are arranged beforehand, and I am sure this has not been the case in this instance. I had not the smallest notion, though I am one of the Grand Officers, of who was likely to be nominated for the office of Grand Treasurer to-night.

Bro. McIntyre, G.R.: Most Worshipful Pro G. Master I am not about to propose any candidate for the office of Grand Treasurer, but I wish to call the attention of the Grand Lodge to some facts, because the brethren seem to be led away upon this subject by Bro. Binckes from the usual practice at the election of Grand Master and Treasurer. Now, on this subject the Book of Constitutions is clear in its provisions. The Book of Constitutions enacts that "the Grand Master shall, according to ancient usage, be nominated at the Quarterly Communication in December," proposed for election in March, and installed at the Grand Festival. The Book of Constitutions is also clear in what it says respecting the Grand Treasurer; he does not require a nomination. If my memory serves me right, and in this Grand Lodge it goes back to a very long period, I never recollect the Grand Treasurer being nominated at the Quarterly Communication in December. I have known him always proposed and elected in March, and it is well known that one particular brother during his lifetime was constantly brought forward. Grand Lodge was never at any time taken by surprise in that proposition; but I venture to say this, that it matters not whether the nomination takes place in December, no other nomination might be made in March; because if other nominations might be made in March it would be free to every brother to consult his own feelings, to act for what he considered the good of the Craft, and to come forward prepared to propose a brother for the office of Grand Master. If on the other hand a nomination is to be made in the month of December, the whole of Grand Lodge would be shut out in the month of March, and no one so nominated could be put up for election for the Grand Master, because no one not nominated in December can be put for election in March. The provisions of the Book of Constitutions have been acted upon on this occasion, as I trust they are on every other occasion; and therefore there is no irregularity in the present proceedings. On the proposition of Bro. Cave on the one side, and Bro. Binckes on the other, I shall not offer any opinion at all; but I do think it is my duty, as one of the officers of Grand Lodge to whom is confided the task of seeing that Grand Lodge law is correctly laid down, to place before you that which the Book of Constitutions enacts.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D.: M.W. Pro Grand Master, our Bro. Binckes was perfectly right when he said the nomination of Grand Treasurer took place in December. I have myself nominated in December, and it has been carried. No doubt, as our Bro. Grand Registrar says, no question was ever raised to Bro. Tomkins, but as far as I know, ever since I have been connected with Grand Lodge I have always known Grand Treasurer nominated in December, and, as I have said, I have done it myself.

Bro. Brackstone Baker, P.G.S.: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, it is a very delicate subject I quite admit to propose any one in competition with those two brethren, who have already been suggested to this Grand Lodge as Grand Treasurer, but when I name one brother for the office I am quite sure that the brethren who have nominated them will admit to you, and that you will assent, that a more worthy, a more earnest, a more eager, and more active Mason has perhaps never of late years shown himself in this Grand Lodge. I refer to Bro. John Moxon Clabon, who has been well known for the last twenty or thirty years among us, a man of high social position, a man of high standing in the City—all necessary positions—and who in this Grand Lodge has over and over again come here to advocate the cause of the Benevolent Fund of which he is the President; and I am sure that from his activity, and from the desire he has to devote himself to the interests of Masonry, no better man could you have for Grand Treasurer than Bro. John Moxon Clabon. Therefore, M.W. Pro G.M., with your permission, I beg to propose Bro. J. M. Clabon as Grand Treasurer—I have had no communication with him on the subject; it is quite a voluntary proposal on my part—if he will accept the office, though I do not know that he will.

Bro. G. P. Britten: M.W. Pro G.M., I presume the nomination just made requires seconding, and it will give me great pleasure to second the name of Bro. Clabon. I am sure that in the whole Craft we shall find no man more zealous and able than Bro. Clabon, and if he will accept the office of Grand Treasurer, I am sure he will be doing good to the cause of Masonry, and conferring upon us a great obligation. I am just informed that Bro. Ferdinand de Rothschild, who has been proposed as our Grand Treasurer, is a Mason only newly made, only two or three months; that he has never passed the chair. (Cries of "Oh, oh.") If that statement is wrong, I beg pardon, but I am informed that he has not yet passed the Master's chair, and he is not even entitled to be present in Grand Lodge. If that is so I cannot think, and nothing will induce me to believe, that such a man should be proposed for the greatest honour it is in our power to give. I beg to second the nomination of Bro. Clabon as Grand Treasurer.

Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D.: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, I have been proposed for this Grand Office without any previous knowledge, except that my Bro. Brackstone Baker told me a few minutes ago that he was going to propose me. If I was in competition with Bro. Ferdinand de Rothschild alone I might be disposed to go to the poll with him; but I am very loth to go to the poll with my dear old friend Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton. (Great applause.) I have known Lieut.-Col. Creaton many years in Masonry, and in various charities, more particularly our own Masonic Charities, and I know there is no man that deserves honour more than Col. Creaton.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Then Bro. Clabon has withdrawn. (Cries of "No, no.")

Bro. J. M. Clabon: Having been proposed by Bro. Brackstone Baker, and seconded by Bro. Britten, I think it would be unfair to withdraw; but I adhere to what I said before, that I do not wish to go to the poll with Col. Creaton.

Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D.: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master, will you allow me to say, in answer to Bro. Britten, that Bro. Ferdinand de Rothschild was made a Mason in the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 259, in 1860 or 1861, at the time I happened to be Master of that lodge.

Bro. G. P. Britten: Most W. Pro Grand Master, then I am sorry I made the statement I did that Bro. de Rothschild was only a new Mason. I must have been misinformed.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Has any brother any other candidate to propose? Brethren, it appears that there are three candidates before this Grand Lodge for election to the office of Grand Treasurer—Bros. Ferdinand de Rothschild, Col. Creaton, and Clabon. I shall take those three names successively, and shall call for a show of hands in favour of each. If, of course, the show of hands should be overwhelmingly clear and distinct in favour of any one of those candidates I shall not proceed to verify it by actual voting; but if there is any doubt on the subject I shall require Grand Lodge to divide; and I think that will be the best way to do it.

The election was then taken, when the show of hands for Col. Creaton was enormously in excess of the show of hands in favour of the other two candidates.

The Earl of Carnarvon: I have to announce to Grand Lodge that by an incontestable and enormous majority Bro. Col. Creaton is elected (Loud applause.)

Bro. Col. Creaton, who was received with loud cheers, said: Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master and brethren, I am taken a little aback, for I was not aware when I entered this hall to-night that my name would have been proposed for this honourable office. I thank you very much for this honour that has been conferred upon me, and I assure you that nothing shall be wanting on my part to carry out the duties of the office to which you have elected me with honour and integrity.

The Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, was then taken, and the following grants were confirmed:—

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.

18th February, 1879.

Bro. John B. Monckton: Most Worshipful Pro. Grand Master, I am happy to be able to state, as the members of the Grand Lodge will see by the paper, that beyond the ordinary statement, the Board, although they have been busy during the last quarter, has nothing to draw the attention of Grand Lodge to particularly. It must be very satisfactory to Grand Lodge to know that all that has been done does not call for any special report. I move that this report be received and entered on the minutes.

The motion having been seconded, was duly carried. Grand Secretary then read the report of Bro. R. P. Harding, Auditor of Grand Lodge accounts, of receipts and disbursements during the year 1878, which was adopted.

Bro. McIntyre, G.R., brought up the appeal and protest of Bro. George John Ryan, District Grand Senior Warden of the Argentine Republic, against the action of the District Grand Lodge in repealing some of the bye-laws, against the wishes of the District Grand Master, and contrary to the provisions of the treaty entered into between the Grand Orient of the Argentine Republic and the Grand Lodge of England, authorising the establishment of a District Grand Lodge at Buenos Ayres, under the English Constitution.

Bro. McIntyre said that by the treaty entered into between Grand Lodge of England many years ago and the Grand Orient of the Argentine Republic, Grand Lodge had the power to establish lodges in that Republic, and to name a District Grand Lodge and Grand Master to rule over them. The representative of England was to be a Provincial Grand Master, and the Grand Lodge was to have the power of framing bye-laws of their own, and the Grand Master to appoint his Deputy and officers. With respect to Provincial Grand Lodges the English Book of Constitutions enacted that "the Provincial Grand Lodge has the power of framing bye-laws for its own government, and of making regulations for the guidance of the private lodges of the province; provided that none of these be contrary to or inconsistent with the laws and Constitutions of the Grand Lodge; but such bye-laws shall not be valid until submitted to and approved by the Most Worshipful Grand Master." That was the state of things which existed when the Provincial Grand Lodge was established in the Argentine Republic. District Grand Lodges were now placed in a very similar position, for the Book of Constitutions said with respect to District Grand Lodges—"District Grand Lodges may make rules and regulations for the management and conduct of their own proceedings, and of those of any Committee of their own body, and may alter such rules as they think fit; but no rule or regulation shall be in force until approved by the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England." The dispute that had arisen between the appellant in this case, who was the District Grand Warden, and the District Grand Lodge was whether the District Grand Lodge had the power of framing bye-laws for itself and the government of private lodges; and Bro. Ryan, who seemed to have taken great interest in the matter, and to have displayed very great research, had been actuated no doubt by what he considered to be a spirit of loyalty to his chief, and brought the motion forward in this way. He said that by the articles of the treaty between Grand Lodge of England and the Grand Orient of the Argentine Republic the Provincial Grand Master was to be sole ruler and governor, to be superior to the whole province, and to have the power of vetoing any bye-laws that might be promulgated by the Provincial Grand Lodge; and he said that if the District Grand Lodge had the power to frame bye-laws, and those bye-laws were not submitted to the District Grand Master, he was reduced to the position of Chairman of the meeting. Certain modifications were made in the bye-laws. A Committee was appointed to consider the bye-laws and to report to the District Grand Lodge. Bro. Ryan opposed that, because he said the Provincial Grand Master was the only person who could be called upon to frame the bye-laws, and that the power ought not to be delegated to the body of the brethren. The District Grand Master seemed to have taken a great deal of trouble about it; he called a Board of Masters, but they did not appear to have sat as a Committee. They did meet, and the opinion of the District Grand Master was taken whether the District Grand Lodge had the power. They thought they had. Out of eighteen brethren assembled, fifteen votes were for sending the bye-laws to a Committee to be revised. Hence the appeal. It seemed to him (Bro. McIntyre) that if anything was clear with respect to the Constitutions of Freemasons it was this, that they were the statutes by which the body of Freemasons was governed. They overrode anything and everything. Grand Lodge was bound by them as well as private lodges. The ruling power was really Grand Lodge, and the bye-laws of District Grand Lodges would not be of any force until they had been approved by the Grand Master of England. The whole status of the District Grand Master stood in exactly the same position at the time the treaty was made. The Book of Constitutions gave the District Grand Lodges power to frame bye-laws, and if the District Grand Lodge at Buenos Ayres delegated to a Committee power to consider bye-laws, and bring up a report, they were acting strictly in accordance with the power given to them. Although Bro. Ryan had taken great pains in this matter, and appeared to be actuated by the best spirit, he (Grand Registrar) advised that his appeal could not be sustained, and, therefore, must be dismissed.

Bro. James Mason, P.G.S.B., seconded the motion, which was put and carried, and Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

REPORTS, etc., intended for insertion in current number, should reach the Office, (198, Fleet-street), by 12 o'clock noon, on Wednesdays.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This lodge met in great strength on Tuesday, the 25th ult., at Anderson's Hotel. There were present Bros. Dairy, W.M.; Rumball, S.W.; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, P.M.; Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Mallett, I.P.M.; Clark, I.G.; Tisley, W.S.; Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. of Middlesex, P.M.; Taylor, P.M.; Green, P.M.; Thomas, P.M.; Kennett, P.M.; Waygood, P.M.; Cobham, P.M.; and T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, J.D. (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Kendall, passed Bros. Bendall, Joy, and Lloyd, and initiated Mr. Wadcoat, the ceremonies being well performed. The W.M. and Past Masters Hopwood and Mallett having been elected trustees of the benevolent fund, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a well-served banquet. The visitors were Bros. Gompertz, P.M. 869, P.P.G.P. of Herts; Wilson, P.M. 1155; C. Kendall, J.W. 1625; Docker, J.W. 1687; Harrison, S.D. 1681; Nailor, 174; Rowe, 1558; Handel, 1656; Booth, Victoria, and Phillips, St. David (Scotland). Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the preliminary toasts with commendable brevity, and they having been duly acknowledged, the I.P.M., in very flattering terms, proposed "The Health of the W.M." In the course of his speech he said that the W.M. had tried very hard to give the brethren every satisfaction, and he believed that thus far he had succeeded. Previously to his election Bro. Dairy had been a frequent attendant at lodges of instruction, in order to make himself conversant with the duties of the chair. As a Past Master of the Faith Lodge he (Bro. Mallett) was quite satisfied with the manner in which their W.M. had hitherto discharged his responsibilities, and he felt confident that the character of their old lodge would be safe in his hands. In conclusion, he congratulated the W.M. upon having so good a staff of officers, whose efforts had so greatly assisted him in the carrying out of his duties. This toast having been received most warmly, the W.M. briefly replied, by stating that notwithstanding the very kind manner in which the I.P.M. had dilated upon his working capabilities he felt that that night he did not deserve such encomiums. He was suffering from a nervous indisposition, and consequently he could not do justice to the ritual, but on the next occasion he hoped to do much better. In concluding his remarks the W.M. took occasion to revert to the glorious success that had attended the festival of the R.M.B.I. As one of the Stewards he had been well supported by the brethren, which was evidenced by the fact that he had gone up with a list of upwards of £100; and he had been informed by the Secretary of the Institution that that amount had never been equalled by any Steward of the Faith Lodge before. (Applause.) In giving "The Initiate," the W.M. said that Bro. Wadcoat was an old friend of his, and that it had afforded him, the W.M., a great deal of satisfaction at being the means of introducing him to Masonry. He assured the initiate that with a fair amount of perseverance in a few years he might hope to attain the proud position of W.M. of the Lodge of Faith. In the attainment of that laudable desire he would receive every assistance from the Past Masters of the lodge. The brethren of the Faith Lodge were always gratified at receiving new members who were likely to do credit to the lodge, and he believed in the present instance that such anticipations would be fully realised. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the newly-admitted brother made a suitable and modest response. "The Visitors" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Harrison and Gompertz. "The Past Masters" came next in order, and was responded to in a few well chosen sentences by Bro. Hopwood. The toast of "The Officers," coupled with the name of Bro. Rumball, S.W., brought the proceedings to a termination.

BOLTON.—Anchor and Hope Lodge (No. 37).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 4th inst., at the Church Institute, Bolton, at six o'clock in the evening. Present, Bros. Saml. Crowther, W.M.; James Brown, I.P.M.; Rorke Pennington, J.W.; Rev. J. H. Gibbon, Chaplain; E. M. Garstang, S.D.; F. W. Pacey, Organist; J. Robinson, I.G.; J. W. Roiley, Tyler; P.M.'s G. P. Brockbank, P. Prov. S.G.D.; James Walker, R. K. Freeman, and W. H. Horrocks. Visitor, Bro. Ralph Bexley, 86. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been confirmed, the report of the Committee on the subject of lodge accommodation was deferred for further consideration. It was resolved that the W.M. with two other members of the lodge be appointed to confer with three representatives from each lodge in the town, to take into consideration the propriety of renting, erecting, or purchasing premises in which all the Masonic bodies in the town can be accommodated. Hearty good wishes were expressed from Lodge of Loyalty, Prescott, and Lindsay Lodge, Wigan, and St. George's Lodge, Bolton. After reading a portion of the ancient charges, the lodge was closed at eight o'clock in good harmony.

HULL.—Humber Lodge (No. 57).—The members of this old lodge, which was founded in the year 1736, met in their large handsome rooms in the Freemasons' Hall, Osborne-street, Hull, on Tuesday last. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Among those present were Bros. H. Toozes, W.M.; Wm. Day Keyworth, P.M., P.P.G.S. of Works; Wm. Taceyman, P.M., P.P.G.S. of Works; Wm. Needler, P.M.; John Hilton, P.M.; Thomas D. Wing, S.W.; R. Beavers, J.W.; Joseph Hindson, Sec.; Thomas Proctor, S.D.; G. Storry, Org.; W. D. North, I.G.; and the following brethren: Bros. E. Kidd, W. B. Wilkinson, W. J. Martensen, E. Lancaster, Hugh Muir, F. Kipps (1531), T. Ross, W. Vickerman, G. Gibson, T. Feetum, G. Selby, T. Middleton, W. North, T. Jameson, J. Dawson, G. Bally, J. Priest, George Robinson, James Walker, James Taylor, S. Newlan, and W. Cutbbert. Visitors: Bros. Flichtenhofer (Irene, No. 87, Dutch Constitution), and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). The Secretary read a report from the Committee of the Benevolent and Pension Fund, which was unanimously confirmed. The lodge being opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Selby, acting as Junior Deacon, gave an interesting lecture on the Tracing Board of that degree. The W.M., Bro. Toozes, then, in a most eloquent and able manner, passed Bro. James Walker to the degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge was then lowered to the First Degree, when Bro. Cohen proposed, and Bro. Proctor, S.D., seconded, that a vote of condolence be sent to Mrs. Crier and family, on the occasion of the decease of Bro. Thomas H. Crier, Prov. Grand Tyler, and Tyler of the Humber Lodge for the last eight years. The vote was carried unanimously. After the name of a candidate for Freemasonry had been submitted, the lodge was closed. The brethren afterwards sat down to an ample supper, provided by the chief Steward, Bro. Kidd, at the conclusion of which the following toasts were given:—"The Queen and the Craft;" "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.;" "Lord Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M.;" "Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M.;" "The Prov. Rulers." The toast of "The Visitors and the Press" was then given, coupled with the name of our representative, to which Bro. Kelly replied. After a little harmony the brethren separated, until the third Tuesday of the present month.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Integrity (No. 163).—The usual monthly meeting of this admirable lodge was held on Wednesday, Feb. 26th, at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, Bro. Henry Walley, W.M., occupying the chair of K.S., supported by his respective officers, viz.—Bros. John E. Williams, S.W.; Alfred Heald, J.W.; J. M. Sinclair, S.D.; Joseph Senior, J.D.; B. Williams, P.M., Treas.; William Seddeley, Sec.; H. Warburton, P.M., Org.; and George F. Smith, I.G. We say admirable advisedly, because the almost faultless manner in which the working is done, added to the perfect concord which always reigns amongst its members, and combined with the munificent donations to the Masonic and other charities, renders it one of the most distinguished lodges in the province. The minutes of the previous lodge night having been read and confirmed, Bro. John Bird Sumner, of the Richmond Lodge, No. 1011, was balloted for, and unanimously elected a joining member. With this exception there was no other business (owing to a brother, who was to have been passed, failing to put in an appearance), and this was a most unusual feature in connection with this lodge, and the like of which has not happened for the last three years. The lodge was therefore closed with due ceremony, and the brethren adjourned to the refreshment board, where a most enjoyable evening was spent, several of the brethren showing a more than ordinary amount of talent, both vocally and instrumentally.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The February meeting of this lodge was held at the Swan Hotel on Thursday, the 27th ult., and there were present Bros. Capt. Colburne, W.M., presiding; Capt. Green, acting I.P.M.; R. H. Coombs, S.W.; H. Thody, J.W.; J. Carter, S.D.; R. B. Stafford, J.D.; R. Boughton-Smith, acting I.G.; Dr. Prior, P.M., Sec.; J. Sergeant, P.M., Treas.; J. R. Bull, P.M., Steward; G. Reynolds, Tyler; Piper, Org.; Past Masters G. P. Nash, Billson; Bros. Kilpin, Hetherington, Pick, H. Allen, Roberts, Foster, Jarvis, Page, Chibnall; and an visitor Bro. Higgins, of the St. Aubyn, 954. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the former lodge were read and confirmed. Bro. Page being a candidate to be raised to the degree of M.M., was examined, and satisfied the lodge; he then retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Page was raised to the Sublime Degree by the W.M., who, by the way in which he did the work gained great praise from the brethren. A gentleman, residing in a neighbouring village, was duly proposed and seconded for initiation at the next meeting, and a brother residing in Bedford, and a member of the Ionic, 227, was proposed and seconded as a joining member. Bro. Boughton-Smith having signified his intention of being a Steward at the Boys' School Festival in April, and offering to represent the Stuart Lodge, notice was given to vote a certain sum to be placed on Bro. Smith's list at the next meeting. Other items of business were disposed of, and the brethren, after a protracted meeting, adjourned for refreshment, and spent a very pleasant evening, which was greatly enhanced by the excellent manner in which our Bro. Carter accompanied Bro. Stafford's singing.

DEPTFORD.—Royal Oak Lodge (No. 871).—The nineteenth installation meeting of this well-established lodge was held on Thursday, the 27th ult., at the White Swan Hotel, High-street. Punctually at half-past four the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. G. T. Linn. The minutes of the election meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was read, received, and unanimously adopted, and ordered to be entered on the lodge minute book. It showed a good balance in the hands of the Treasurer, Bro. Henry Clarke being a candidate for passing, was interrogated, entrusted, and withdrew. On his re-admission Bro. Henry Clarke was passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft Freemason, the ceremony being splendidly rendered, and reflected the greatest credit on Bro. G. T. Linn, W.M. The all-important event of the evening was the installation of the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. Robert Harman, a local and highly respected celebrity, who had done good suit and service in the lodge, and to the parish where he and his sire have resided for upwards of a century, a large number of Installed Masters being present. Bro. J. J. Pakes, I.P.M., took the chair, and in a most graceful manner installed Bro. Robert Harman, W.M., who appointed as his officers Bros. J. G. Vohmann, S.W.; G. Harvey, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M., Sec.; W. A. R. Harris, S.D.; E. Good, J.D.; G. Porter, I.G.; G. Andrews, P.M., D.C.; H. J. Tison, W.S.; J. Bavin, P.M. 147; Tyler; G. T. Linn, I.P.M. Bro. G. Andrews, P.M., D.C., in his usual faultless manner gave the address, cordial votes of thanks being given to Bro. J. J. Pakes and G. Andrews for their excellent working of the all-important ceremony of installation. We were pleased to see this ceremony so well rendered, and it reminded us of the predecessors who had worked it in that lodge, a list of eminent worthies commencing with Bro. H. Muggeridge, who did the consecration and installed the first W.M., Bro. Dr. Dixon, who in his turn installed the late Bro. Dr. Scott, who installed Bro. G. Wilton; then followed on Bro. H. A. Collington, the well-known Preceptor, who is matchless in his work. Afterwards came the veteran Bro. F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middx., who so frequently has done his share at installations. We were sorry to miss his well-known face, and sorry to learn his absence was caused by a severe and painful illness. Some others might be mentioned who had done their share of installations at this lodge. Suffice it to say that we can look with satisfaction on those who so worthily fill the post of honour of Installing Master in this lodge. It shows the young will emulate the old, and in many instances if possible surpass them. The next important event was the presenting of a costly Past Master's jewel to Bro. George Thomas Linn (there being a strong feeling to give honour where it was due), which had been unanimously voted to him from the lodge funds as a slight recognition of the admirable manner in which he had conducted the affairs and business of the lodge during his year of office. Bro. G. T. Linn, in a graceful speech, acknowledged this present. A petition to the Lodge of Benevolence from a brother who was overtaken by unforeseen misfortunes was unanimously supported, and signed by nearly all who were present, supplemented by votes from the benevolent fund of the lodge by amounts of a little over ten pounds. The name of one gentleman was given in for initiation at the next lodge meeting. The successful result of the hard work of Bro. James George Thomas was announced, who had represented this lodge as its Steward at the festival of the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons. His list was a long way above the average, and helped to swell the large amount of over £14,000, which was gathered at that festival. He was warmly congratulated over his success. All business being ended, the lodge was closed, and adjourned to meet on Thursday, April 24th. There were present besides those named Bros. H. A. Collington, P.M.; J. Truelove, P.M.; J. Woollett, R. J. Harvey, J. Rennie, R. T. Stringer, H. W. F. Fellows, J. W. Hadington, C. F. Buhler, W. Simmons, W. Abbott, G. Wildermuth, J. Buibele, J. Sanders, G. C. Whibley, F. G. G. Bax, W. H. Luckcraft, J. Stanley, G. Hill, and others. Amongst a large number of visitors we noticed Bros. C. Bredan, W.M. 781; J. Lightfoot, P.M. 147; J. Mott, 147; J. Dawkins, J.D. 79; J. Warcup, 140; R. W. Robinson, 879; J. M. Hunt, I.G. 1662; A. Coningham, 1625, and others. A splendid banquet, which reflected the greatest credit on Bro. Morgan, the host, was served under his personal superintendence; all were pleased with it. The usual loyal toasts were given and responded to. Songs, recitations, &c., were indulged in, and brought to a close a pleasant evening, when the brethren separated to enjoy "Tired nature's sweet repose, balmy sleep."

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 4th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Station-street. There were present, Bros. Capt. Sewell, W.M.; T. Bird, S.W.; T. C. Robinson, J.W.; J. Black, I.P.M.; W. Shilton, P.M.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org.; W. F. Lamony, P.M. (Freemason); J. Fearon, Sec.; H. Peacock, S.D.; R. W. Robinson, J.D.; R. Harrison, I.G.; W. Paisley, Steward; J. Hewson, Tyler; R. Bailey, J. Evenling, J. Towers, J. Borrowscale, T. C. Fearon, J. C. Nicholson, and T. Mason. Visitors:—Bros. H. Cook, P.M. 119 and 1225, P.G.S.W.; A. Taylor, P.M. 1532, P.P.G.S.B. The lodge being opened, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Mason subsequently gave proof of his proficiency as a F.C., and was regularly raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., by the W.M., assisted by his officers, the J.D. giving the latter part of the traditional history, the J.W. presenting the working tools, and the S.W. delivering the closing charge of the degree. After the lodge had been closed down and hearty good wishes tendered from Lodges 119, 1073, and 1532, Bro. Cook G.S.W., warmly complimented the W.M. on the manner in which he had performed the work of the evening, this being only the second meeting after the installation. Bro. Cook further expressed the pleasure it had afforded him to be present in Skiddaw Lodge after a lapse of twelve or thirteen years, and he should take the earliest opportunity to convey to the R.W. Prov. Grand Master the excellent way in which the W.M. and his officers had performed their duties. Bro. Lamony, P.M., having intimated his wish that the notice of motion for the formation of a Masonic library in connection with the lodge stand over for a month, when there would be more time to discuss it, the lodge was closed with the customary hymn, "Now the evening shadows closing."

DRIFFIELD.—Sykes Lodge (No. 1040).—The members of this lodge met in their hall, on Wednesday, 19th ult., for the installation of the following officers, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Richard Boggett, P.M.; Bros. W. Santon, W.M.; E. Wilson, P.M.; J. Dunn, S.W.; J. S. Wilson, J.W.; R. Teal, P.M., Treas.; S. Chadwick, Chap.; H. Holgreaves, Sec.; M. Simpson, S.D.; G. Bielby, J.D.; R. Hornby, D.C.; J. Elgey, P.M.; J. T. Kirby, I.G.; W. Barmby and W. Ross, Stewards; R. Potts, Tyler. The installation banquet was held in the evening, at the Bell Hotel, when several of the brethren from neighbouring lodges attended.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The usual monthly meeting of this popular lodge was held on Tuesday afternoon, the 25th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, where there was an attendance of about eighty members and visitors. The chair was occupied by Bro. Lindo Courtenay, W.M., and amongst the Craft principals present were Bros. W. J. Chapman, I.P.M.; J. Bell, P.M., D.C., P.G.S.; B. B. Marson, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. McKenzie, S.W.; W. W. Sandbrook, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; J. Atkinson, Sec.; F. Emery, J.D.; J. Pyer, I.G.; W. Savage, S.S.; H. P. Squire, J.S.; R. Burgess, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The brethren included Bros. J. M. Boyd, J. Shrapnell, P. Lowndes, J. Hill, H. Leslie, H. Holden, Thomson, Ballard, W. M. Annand, J. R. Brown, F. Cowdell, Rac, Ashley, Meers, Stimson, Dixon, Wainwright, Walton, Johnson, and others. The Three Degrees were down on the circular, but as Mr. T. W. Robertson (son of the celebrated author of "Caste," and other comedies), who was unanimously elected, had to go to London on business, his initiation was postponed. Bros. Wainwright, Stimson, Dixon, Hemming, and Wyatt were passed to the Second Degree, and Bros. Holden, Hayter, and Burby were raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. After two or three propositions for joining, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. Several standard toasts were afterwards given, and during the evening capital songs were contributed by Bros. Webster, Williams, Greenwood, Walton, Hemming, Stimson, Bragginton, Chapman, and others, Bro. R. Burgess, Org., presiding at the piano.

BOLTON.—St. George's Lodge (No. 1723).—The monthly meeting was held on Wednesday, the 26th ult., at the Commercial Hotel, at 6 o'clock in the evening. The following were present:—Bros. Job H. Greenhalgh, W.M.; N. Nicholson, S.W.; Henry Strad, as J.W.; J. M. Rutter, P.M., Sec.; Jas. Heywood, S.D.; W. Court, J.D.; R. Latham, I.G.; J. W. Taylor, P. Prov. James Hall, late of Lodge 221, was balloted for, and elected a joining member. Mr. William Daniel Hughes, of Bolton, was balloted for, and approved as a candidate for initiation; Bros. Ramwell, Harwood, Holt, and Priestley having passed a satisfactory examination as to their proficiency, retired; the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Ramwell, Harwood, Holt, and Priestley were passed to the degree of F.C. by Bro. J. M. Entwistle, and the working tools of the degree were explained by the S. Warden. Bro. Hargreaves having been examined and entrusted, he, with the other candidates, retired, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Hargreaves was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason by Bro. Charles Stanley, who also instructed him in the working tools of the degree. Closed to the First Degree. Mr. William Daniel Hughes was duly initiated into Masonry by Bro. G. P. Brockbank, the working tools were explained by the J.W., and the charge delivered from the chair. The Secretary reported that seven of the brethren in the lodge had officiated as Stewards at the festival for Aged Freemasons and their Widows, which was held in London under the presidency, of Col. Starkie, Prov. G. Master of East Lancashire—viz., Bros. Brockbank, Entwistle, Taylor, Ferguson, Rutter, Nicholson, Court. Bro. Cosgrave, M.D., was proposed as a joining member. A portion of the ancient rules and charges was read by the Senior Warden, and the lodge closed at 9 p.m. The brethren adjourned to banquet, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and honoured.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—The first meeting of the above lodge of instruction, since the alteration in the evening for meeting, was held on Tuesday, the 4th inst., at the Spread Eagle Hotel. The following were amongst the brethren present:—Bros. W. A. Blackmore, W.M.; J. Frost, S.W.; W. F. Wardroper, J.W.; J. G. Carter, A. N. Newens, S.D.; J. J. Holland, J.D.; P. V. Denham, I.G.; H. J. Carter the Third, when Bro. A. N. Newens went through the ceremony of being raised. The question of providing proper Masonic clothing was discussed, but the question was deferred until after the meeting of the regular lodge (1044). The brethren warmly appreciated the kindness of Bro. Carter as Preceptor. Bro. Charles E. Golding (of the 1216) was unanimously elected a member.

Royal Arch.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Abbey Chapter (No. 1225).—The annual installation in connection with the above chapter was held on Wednesday, the 26th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hartington Hotel. E. Comp. M. Haslam was installed M.E.Z.; E. Comp. G. Cornfield, H.; and Comp. E. J. Morgan, J. The ceremony was efficiently performed by E. Comp. Brooke, P.P.G.S.N., and E. Comp. R. Worrall, P.P.G.S. of Cheshire. Subsequently the M.E.Z. installed his officers as follows:—Comps. H. J. Klyne, S.E.; J. Settle, S.N.; G. Cornfield, P.Z., Treas.; J. Read, P.S.; C. P. Richards, 1st Asst. S.; W. Bath, and Asst. S.; S. S. Lord, Organist; D. Smyth, S.S.; G. Nelson, J.S.; and W. Ford, Janitor. E. Comp. Hocker, P.Z., then presented E. Comp. Brooke, on behalf of the chapter, with a portrait of himself, as a recognition of the great services he had rendered to the chapter, and of the difficulties which had been overcome in the formation of the chapter and in its subsequent maintenance, owing to the zeal he had displayed in the movement, and the assistance he had rendered with a view of promoting its welfare. The portrait represented E. Comp. Brooke wearing the robes and insignia of his office as the first M.E.Z. of the chapter. The portrait was taken by Comp. C. P. Richards, and enlarged and painted in oils, and was in every respect not only a worthy and fitting present, but was a credit to the artistic taste of Comp. Richards. It was mounted in a rich gold frame, and the following inscription was engrossed at the foot:—"Presented to E. Comp. R. A. Brooke, P.P.G.S.N., first Z. of the Chapter No. 1225, 1878." E. Comp. Brooke then made a suitable reply, and thanked the companions for this proof of the services he had rendered. He begged to present the chapter with the portrait, and wished it the greatest possible success. The M.E.Z. then presented, on behalf of the chapter, a P.Z.'s jewel to E. Comp. Hocker for the manner in which he had conducted the business of the chapter during the past year. The jewel, which was supplied by E. Comp. Kenning, London, was of elegant design in gold, and was engraved as follows:—"Abbey Chapter, No. 1225. Presented to E. Comp. R. Hocker in recognition of the zeal with which he discharged his duties as M.E.Z. for the year ending 26th February, 1879." Bro. Hocker having replied, the chapter was closed according to ancient custom. The companions retired to an adjoining room, where dinner was provided by Mr. Beardmore, the M.E.Z. occupying the chair. The usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given and duly honoured, and the evening was enlivened with songs given by various companions.

KEOKUK, U.S.A.—Damascus Commandery (No. 5).—The 12th Feb. was an eventful day in the history of Masonry in this city. It was the time fixed for conferring the Order of the Red Cross upon a number of candidates. This ceremony was commenced at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and lasted until nearly 6. The candidates were Joseph Bennett, of this city, and Wm. G. Kent, S. Atlee, Edwin D. Smith, and Henry C. Spreen, of Fort Madison. The ceremony of conferring this Order was performed by Sir Knight Henry W. Rothert, P.G.M. and E.C. of Damascus Commandery. In the evening the ceremonies assumed a social character, and Masonic Hall was the scene of a brilliant and festive gathering, the occasion being a Red Cross banquet given in honour of the Order. The event was one that has been looked forward to with much interest, and for which extensive preparations were made. The hall was brightly illuminated and decorated with the banners of the commandery, the Sir Knights appeared in full uniform and displayed knightly gallantry, many of the ladies were handsomely dressed, and altogether the spectacle was a pleasing one to look upon. The company was composed exclusively of the Sir Knights of Damascus Commandery and their families, visiting Sir Knights and their wives, and representatives of the press. But these were sufficient to form a large assemblage. Shortly after 9 o'clock all present were formed into procession, and proceeded to the banquet hall with the ceremony incident to the occasion. A bounteous repast, gotten up by the wives of the Sir Knights, was then served. This partook of the generosity and hospitality for which the Sir Knights are noted in all these entertainments. Following the banquet came the toasts and responses. Sir Knight Rothert, E.C., was Master of the Ceremonies, and delivered the opening address, in which he alluded to the importance of the occasion, and thanked those who had assisted in making it so interesting. The first toast was: "Our Ladies—God bless them." Response by Sir Knight Dr. J. M. Shaffer. Dr. Shaffer made a very appropriate response, referring to woman and her supremacy in highly complimentary terms. His remarks were warmly applauded. The next toast was: "Masonry and Religion—the promptings of one are the teachings of the other." Response by Sir Knight Rev. R. C. McIlwaine, who traced the relations between Masonry and Christianity through various stages of their history, and said that while Masonry is not Christianity it is founded on Christianity, and its teachings are in harmony therewith. Joseph Bennett, one of the Zerrubabels, was then called upon and responded in a very happy manner. The next toast was: "Templar Masonry—its aims, its purposes, and its enjoyments." Response by Sir Knight R. F. Bower, P.G.C. In introducing Bro. Bower, the Eminent Commander spoke of him in the most complimentary manner, and paid a high tribute to his services to Masonry and the distinction he has achieved in the Order. Bro. Bower acknowledged the honour in suitable words, and gave an interesting and scholarly review of the history of Temple Masonry. He spoke feelingly and eloquently of the prowess, the chivalry, the valiancy, the magnanimity, and the persecutions of the Knights Templar through all their eventful career. Sir Knight Bower spoke at considerable length, and his remarks were listened to with intense interest. It was the purpose to hear from the remainder of the Zerrubabels, and the following additional toasts were on the programme, but owing to the lateness of the hour it became necessary to adjourn the ceremonies:—"Faith, Hope, and Charity;" as knights and as Masons we are taught to have faith in God, hope in immortality, and charity towards all mankind. Response by Sir Knight Frank Allyn. "Masonry and Civil Government;" we recognise the authority of each, and promise obedience to both. Response by Sir Knight Rutledge Lea. "Our Absent Friends." Response by Sir Knight W. O. Crosby, of Centerville. After the banquet the remainder of the ceremony of the Red Cross Order was performed. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Among the visitors present were H. Clay Stuart and wife, Robert E. Smith, Dr. A. C. Roberts, H. C. Spreen and wife, E. D. Smith and wife, Samuel Atlee and wife, Mrs. J. C. Blackburn and Wm. G. Kent, wife and niece, Fort Madison; W. O. Crosby and wife, and J. K. Boyles and wife, Centerville; R. Lea, Keosauqua; L. L. Therme, Wm. F. Grubb, and Wm. H. Manning, Farmington. During the evening Mr. Camp exhibited the operations of the phonograph in the hall, to the delight of all present.

BOMBAY.—Keystone Chapter (No. 757, E.C.)—This chapter held its regular meeting at the Masonic Hall, Nesbit-lane, Byculla, Bombay, on Monday, the 13th January. Present, M.E. Comp. Counsell, P.Z.; V.E. Comp. Watson, P.H.; V.E. Comp. Cooper, P.J.; M.E. Comps. Barrow, P.P.Z.; Rowe, P.P.Z.; McKenzie, P.P.Z.; Comps. The minutes of the last convocation were read and confirmed. The minutes of the permanent Committee were read, and M.E. Comp. P.Z. then informed the companions present that the business of the evening was of a pleasing nature—it was to present M.E. Comp. Barrow, P.P.Z., with a jewel of the chapter pattern for the long and valuable services he had rendered to the chapter. The jewel was then attached, with a few neat and appropriate remarks. M.E. Comp. Barrow replied in suitable terms. Read a letter from M.E. Comp. Mitchell, who was compelled to leave Bombay through sickness, and consequently tendered his resignation, which was received with regret. Read a letter from M.E. Comp. Hussey, D.G.S.E., asking the chapter to consider the proposal therein made, re-establishing a District Grand Chapter of R.A. Freemasons of Bombay and its Territories, also asking the chapter to bear a share of the expenses of the attempt to establish the same in the year 1874. After some discussion on the subject it was agreed to pay the amount, viz., Rupees 38 3a. 1p, forthwith. In consequence of the retirement of M.E. Comp. Honourable J. Gibbs, D.G. Supt. and First P.Z. One companion was proposed and seconded as a joining member. There being no further business before the chapter, it was closed in due form at 8.30 p.m.

ANDERSON, JAMES, D.D.—His name is well known to all Masonic students and readers as the compiler of the first authoritative book issued by the Grand Lodge of England. There had been indeed, in 1722, published by John Roberts, "The Old Constitutions belonging to the Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons." But to James Anderson belongs the credit, by order of the Grand Lodge, of giving to the Craft and to the world the first official account of Freemasonry. It has been contended that Desaguliers is the author of the Constitutions of 1723. But those who thus contend forget that Anderson himself says, at p. 74, edit. 1723, that he was the author—he being then Master of Lodge 17. Of James Anderson little, however, is known. He is said to have been born at Edinburgh in 1684, some say 1662, which is, we apprehend, erroneous. He was, it seems, minister of the Scottish Presbyterian Chapel in Swallow-street, Piccadilly, but more than this, so far, is not discoverable. It is not known where or when he was initiated into Freemasonry, but he was Worshipful Master of No. 17 in 1723. According to the Constitutions of 1738, the 17th lodge met at Berry's Coffee-house, Bridges-street. But we must remember, Bro. Hughan points out, that the 17 of 1738 was not the same as the 17 of 1723. We know not, therefore, what it was. Anderson then, apparently, was living in Exeter-court, Strand. In 1723, as we said before, appeared the first book of the English Constitution, now somewhat rare. In 1738 Anderson put out a second and much augmented edition, and a third appeared in 1746. This, however, is only 1738 with a new title page. Some say that Anderson died in 1739, others in 1746; 1739 is right, as announced in the "Gentleman's Magazine." We do not agree with Mackey's view, that considerable interpolations and alterations had been made by Anderson without authority in the edition of 1738. There are no doubt considerable additions, but they are made in bona fides, and were evidently the result of Anderson's more complete and careful study of M.S. documents and Constitutions, which have not yet been identified. The "Pocket Companion" of 1754 says that the alterations occurred owing either to his "ill health" or the "management of strangers." It appears to us that Anderson has been the subject of much unfair criticism. He was not ordered to write a new and florid history of Freemasonry; he merely arranged them in a clear, readable, and concise narrative, and such as those old histories themselves of the Guilds were, such is Anderson's record. Anderson may probably have held what others have maintained, that Freemasonry through the Guilds went up to the mysteries, the outcome of corrupted antediluvian teaching, and thus to the lore of the "theodidaktoi." But there is nothing to blame in such views, and we cannot, it appears to us, judge Anderson fairly by our colder criticism of to-day, as the cases are essentially different. Knowing even in 1876 the great difficulties attendant on Masonic literature and Masonic history, we feel certain that no other course was open to Anderson than the one he so carefully followed—namely, of endeavouring to give to the Craft the Guild legends, as a simple traditional history. We do not expect to find in oral traditions, or ancient legends, the correctness of historical annals, and we should only take Anderson's "History of Freemasonry" for what it is—for what it professed to be—a lucid representation of the old operative cherished Constitutions and legends of Freemasonry. Anderson, despite his obvious faults in the eyes of the critical and authentic school, is yet the father of English Masonic History, and also the first of that educated band of students who have so long contended that the real history of our Order is to be found in that of the Operative Guilds and Societies of mediæval times, of early ages. He wrote one or two other works, and two well-known tracts, a "Defence of Masonry," 1730; "Observations and Critical Remarks on the New Constitutions" 1725. Some seem to doubt whether the latter work was his.—Kenning's Cyclopaedia of Freemasonry.

CONSECRATION OF THE SOUTHDOWN LODGE, No. 1797.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Sussex assembled at Horstpierpoint, on Tuesday, Feb. 25th, to consecrate the Southdown Lodge, No. 1797, in the Grand Registry of England. The warrant was granted in December last, but a variety of circumstances delayed the opening ceremony. Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., being detained in London by his Parliamentary duties, the Deputy Provincial G.M. conducted the proceedings with the ability which invariably characterises his efforts. The music-room, as it is termed, was prepared as a lodge for the occasion with evident care. The floral decorations, lent by Messrs. Green and Son, added much to the beauty of the lodge and dining-rooms.

At three o'clock the proceedings commenced, nearly the whole of the Provincial Grand Officers and Stewards being in attendance. During the ceremony the Deputy Prov. G.M. and the Prov. G. Chaplain delivered appropriate addresses on the designs and uses of Freemasonry. Charity, they said, was the one aim and object of every sincere member of their Craft, which knew no religious distinctions, while the Great Architect of the Universe was looked up to as the Supreme Being who ruled their destinies.

The usual anthems and hymns used on such occasions were sung by Bros. Broadbridge, Roe, Gates, and Cole, Bro. A. King (Prov. G. Organist) accompanying on the harmonium.

The lodge having been regularly formed and properly dedicated the following were appointed its officers:—Bros. George Kelly King, P.G. Steward England, P.M. 4 and 1541, the first W.M.; James Curtis, P.M. 315, S.W.; Walter, Fitch, P.M. 1410, J.W.; E. Broadbridge, Sec.; J. Musson, S.D.; J. Fitch, J.D.; R. Pope, I.G.; H. Hughes, Tyler.

A committee having been appointed to draw up the by-laws of the lodge, several propositions were made of gentlemen wishing to become initiates and others to be balloted for as joining members.

The business proceedings ended, the brethren adjourned to the Sussex Hotel, where the event was celebrated by a banquet, at which about 80 were present. Messrs. Sayers and Marks, of Brighton, were entrusted with its preparation, and they catered most admirably. Those present included Bros. John H. Scott, Dep. Prov. Grand Master; W. Sergison, Prov. S.G.W.; H. M. Davey, G. Chaplain; C. A. Woolley, G. Registrar; V. P. Freeman, G. Sec.; W. Hale, S.G.D.; Mark Tanner, J.G.D.; J. M. Kidd, G.D.C.; W. G. Sharp, G.A.D.C.; C. The newly-elected W.M. (Bro. G. Kelly King) presided at the banquet. The post prandial proceedings included the usual loyal and Masonic toasts; also "The Health of the W.M. of the Southdown Lodge and Success to its Future," which was drunk most heartily. Those who were able to stay till the conclusion of the entertainment enjoyed a most pleasant evening, but several of the guests were obliged to leave early to enable them to reach home that night.

THE SOUTHAMPTON MASONIC HALL COMPANY.

This company held its annual meeting during the preceding week, the Mayor of the borough, Bro. J. B. Thomas, P.M., in the chair, when the directors reported that after surmounting many obstacles they had at last succeeded in securing a site and satisfactory plans for a building, the freehold site being just off the High-street, overlooking the western shore and the pleasant bay, and close to the remains of the donjon of the old Southampton Castle. The plans have been prepared by Bro. J. G. Poole, Architect, and provide a third more space in the principal rooms than that supplied at the present hall, which is held on lease under Queen's College, Oxford, besides other accommodation not available in the existing rooms. The contract for the work has been taken by Bro. S. Stevens, builder, who has undertaken to complete it by the month of November, and has actually commenced the work, which will be executed in white brick. The retiring directors of the company were unanimously re-elected, with Bro. W. Hickman, Dep. Prov. Grand Master, as Chairman.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. S. Rosenthal in the chair. There were also present Bros. George J. Row, D. M. Dewar, J. H. Cox, John S. Cakebread, the Rev. Richard Morris, L.L.D. (Head Master), J. N. Frost, Joseph Richard Smith, Arthur E. Gladwell, H. Murray, Richard Tyrrell, Raynham W. Stewart, W. Maple, J. G. Chancellor, W. F. C. Moutrie, F. Adlard, W. Paas, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Two candidates were placed on the list. The Committee voted, in accordance with their powers, £20 to a late pupil towards his advancement (he having strongly expressed his desire to pursue military studies at Sandhurst), on condition that his friends came forward to furnish the balance that would be required.

The Committee also granted an outfit of £5 to a late pupil of the Institution for an outfit, the circumstances of the case being that, although he had a former similar sum granted him for the same purpose, he had been shipwrecked in the Sharon, off Black Gang Chine, and lost his kit. The young man had behaved himself admirably since he left the Institution, two years of which time he had been voyaging with the Sharon. He on the day the Committee met sailed for Auckland, N.Z., where he intended to settle, and Bro. Binckes, not doubting that the Committee would grant the outfit asked for, advanced the amount out of his own pocket.

Another outfit of £5 was also granted to a lad who had left the Institution and obtained a situation in the Railway Clearing House through the exertions of Bro. Dawson, the Secretary of that establishment. The lad passed a very satisfactory examination, which caused Bro. Dawson to inform Bro. Binckes that he had other vacancies at his disposal for more youths from the Institution who could pass as well.

Bro. Binckes read a letter from Bro. Jermyn Boyd acknowledging the resolution of the Committee, conveying their sympathy to the family of his father, the late Bro. John Boyd, on their loss.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart informed the Committee that Bro. Henry Browne, P.G.D., a member of the House Committee, died on Thursday morning.

The Chairman expressed his deep regret, and said that Bro. Browne had been a member of the House Committee since June, 1866.

It was unanimously resolved that a letter of condolence with the late Bro. Browne's family should be sent.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

St. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

The Committee formed in connection with the movement for restoring the west front of St. Alban's Abbey, met in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, on Friday, the 28th ult. Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Prov. G.M. Herts, occupied the chair. Bro. Keyser having read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were agreed to, stated that he had received a letter from Bro. the Rev. J. C. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, enclosing two communications, one from Lord Henniker, and the other from Sir Harcourt Johnstone, notifying their willingness to act as Vice-Presidents of the Committee. Bro. Keyser had also much pleasure in stating that Bro. John Fawcett, Prov. G.M. Durham, had consented to become a patron of the movement. A subscription of £5 5s. from Bro. George Kenning, P.P.G.D. Middx., and one of £5 from Bro. F. Robinson, P.A.G.D.C., had been paid. He had much pleasure in acquainting the Committee that since their last meeting they had got the promise of a great many additional subscriptions. Bros. John Fawcett, Prov. G.M. Durham, had promised £5; F. F. Halsey, M.P., Prov. G.M. Herts., £5; the Hertford Lodge £25; Hertford Chapter £10 10s.; Captain E. C. Dick £5; Thos. Kent, W.M. 1479, £5; C. Erskine, I.G. 1479, £5; C. W. Reynolds, J.D. 1479, £5; and several others. He had great pleasure in proposing Bros. W. Hope, D.M. (2), and E. J. Barton, P.G.D., as members of the Committee.

The motion being seconded by Bro. the Rev. Dr. Griffiths, was unanimously carried. He also begged to propose that Bro. Sumner Knyvett, P.G. Steward, and the present Grand Treasurer of G. Prov. Chapter in Herts, should be elected a member of the Committee.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chap., seconded the motion, which was carried.

Bro. Percy W. Taylor next proposed that Bro. A. W. Nash, W.M. 409, should be enrolled on the Committee list, and the motion [having found a seconder in Bro. Thos. Kent, was carried unanimously.

The meeting then entered into a protracted discussion as to what would be the best form of circular to send to Freemasons throughout the country, specifying the origin, object, and approximate cost of the movement; and it was eventually agreed that Bros. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chaplain, Captain E. C. Dick, and C. E. Keyser should meet together and draw up a suitable circular succinctly setting forth these matters. The circular will be presented for consideration at the next Committee meeting, which will be held in the same place on Thursday, March 13th, at 4.30.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman having been passed, the meeting broke up.

The annual installation meeting of the Bootle Lodge, No. 1473, took place at the Town Hall, Bootle, on Thursday afternoon, the 6th inst. Bro. W. H. Clemmey, T.C., was then installed W.M., and in next issue will appear a report of the interesting ceremony.

THE FREEMASON.

THE "FREEMASON."

Ten years ago the Freemason was founded by its present and sole proprietor, and appeared for the first time March 13th, 1869. In its address it spoke in the following modest terms of its origin, its aims, its plan, and its hopes. It threw itself fraternally on the "indulgence" of its readers, to "excuse imperfections," and appealed also "confidently" to their "sympathies" for "support" in this "attempt to establish a journal which we hope will become a worthy organ of the great Masonic Fraternity." Without repeating here to-day many of the sensible and effective passages of its first address, we may well remind ourselves, (after this lapse of time especially), of one of the concluding paragraphs of the Introduction to page 1 of the Freemason for March 13th, 1869, for they are still as true and pertinent as when originally printed, though, perhaps, the skilful hand and active brain which first planned and penned them are now at rest in the grave. "It will be our constant aim to sustain the reputation and enhance the renown of our Institution, which has been so long

'To fame immortally allied,
And crowned with glory.'

And once more let us note the key note of the original address, which was to dominate the entire harmony of the Freemason, "working under the ægis of lawfully constituted authority, and paying due deference to the ordinances of ruling powers, we shall ever remember that we are 'Free-Masons,' and vindicate our position as such, by maintaining a just independence, as the organ of a great and free Fraternity." And now kindly readers, as a dispassionate jury, what is your verdict after this onward passage of years? Has the Freemason made good its promise? pursued the even Masonic mean of its honourable progress? We believe that there will be but one reply, alike from courteous critic and impartial censor. If ever a paper has sought manfully to carry out its professed aims and object, we think we may claim that characteristic emphatically for the Freemason. Founded and published by one publisher "ab origine," it has had no shareholders (real or mythic) to back it up, it has sought for no subsidies, and asked for no patronage—merely as patronage. A "fair field and no favour" have been its motto, and it has manfully striven to hold its own and win its way in the great open mart of Masonic opinion and public approval. It has offered its wares to all, in the confidence that if good they would be appreciated, if bad, rejected, as they deserved to be. It has not wished to palm off a "sham imitation" on unsuspecting bystanders, but has offered the "real and genuine production," openly and honestly, of the best quality, and at a very cheap rate. What else could it have done? It has made merit and value its one test of success and support. To claim for the Freemason perfection in all its endeavours would be futile; to assert that it has always avoided error would be absurd. In all human undertakings imperfection crops up, and no enterprise of man is free from the "breakage" of machinery, the "wear and tear" of stock, the stupidity of employés, or the mistaken animus even of friends and supporters. Probably the stern and censorious might hit upon some little blots, be they typographical or be they editorial; blunders which ought not to have occurred, errata for which there is no excuse; the appearance of matter which ought not to have been put forth at all, but after all, how very few indeed they are, at the most, and what organ of our daily, weekly, and monthly literature is free from them? But this we may say, fairly and confidently. The Freemason has never deviated consciously from the narrow pathway of true Freemasonry; it has never "turned to the right hand or the left;" it has moved on like "Excelsior," with the banner of Masonry aloft, neither checked nor intimidated; neither awed by the threats of childish persecution, nor embarrassed by the pseudo criticism of open assailants; above all, utterly defiant of the contemptible mutterings of the surreptitious and anonymous libeller. From the first hour of its appearance until to-day it has sought to take a high position, and reach unto a goodly goal. Though it has discouraged personality, the bane of the Masonic press, it has advocated free discussion and fair play for all. It has not desired to open its pages to the petty complaints of each "Peter Grievous," nor has it wished to serve as a medium of idle attacks on authority, but has simply, within certain definite limits, endeavoured to enable any real grievances to be ventilated, and opportunity afforded for honest difference of opinion, manly controversy, and the Masonic interchange of thought and feeling. To the great Masonic archaeological and literary movement of the last ten years it has given earnest support, and has led the way in many subjects on which the fame of such writers as Hughan, D. Murray Lyon, C. P. McCalla, Masonic Student, Mackey, and many more is built up. And one remark we feel bound to make. The Freemason has been conspicuous for the completeness and fidelity of its reports of all Masonic proceedings. It is, indeed, a very wonderful portion of contemporary Masonic life and work, which is to be found in the weekly pages, the goodly volumes of the Freemason. But, above all, the Freemason has been fervent in advocating the support of our great Masonic Charities, and the lists of each festival will shew that its publisher while others have talked has acted, and in season and out of season the friendly columns of the paper have been open to the communications of the Secretaries, and the records of the proceedings of their admirable Institutions. They have no truer or better friends than the Freemason and its publisher. During the last eventful ten years of English Masonic life few more important contributions to Masonic literature can be found, than may be perused by the curious and the student, in the eleven volumes of the Freemason. They, in fact, constitute a store-house of Masonic facts, of items relating to Masonic history, archæology, jurisprudence, lodge life, as well as general Masonic teaching and practice, which are simply invaluable to the collector, to the reader, to the Masonic antiquary and historian amongst us. And this is, no doubt, the simple secret of its cosmopolitan success and support. "All the world over," just now, the Freemason is read, the Freemason is criticized, the Freemason is reproduced, the Freemason is valued, and week by week we receive the most gratifying testimonies to the zeal of its friends, the good opinion of its readers, and, above all, the kind and flattering appreciation of its matter, whether by those who speak of it in terms of eulogium, or by those—not many, happily—who see in an honestly conducted Masonic enterprise a fit subject for un-Masonic sneers, for puerile personality, or petty slander. Its publisher, looking back to-day, may fairly flatter himself that he has truly carried out his original "programme" in the great main, and has earned, as he has done, the confidence and support of a large and kindly, and increasing audience. He, therefore, once more begs to tender to all who have supported with such genial liberality, and honest good will, his legitimate and literary enterprise, founded and carried on with great attachment to our excellent Order, his heartfelt thanks, as well as his warm sense of their generous sympathy and untiring support. He trusts in the future, as in the past, to merit their confidence and good opinion, and alike to advance the progress of Masonic literature, the prestige of the Order, and the thorough efficiency, reality, and vitality of the Freemason.

THE QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

Though the last meeting of our Masonic Parliament was of short duration, it was fully attended, and transacted business of much importance in its way. Having by acclamation passed a very proper and seasonable vote of condolence with Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, on the loss of her lamented daughter, the Princess Alice, Grand Duchess of Hesse-Darmstadt, and having as unanimously re-elected the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales,

Grand Lodge dealt with a very important matter for the Order—the election of Treasurer. Three candidates were proposed. The first was Bro. Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, the second Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, the third Bro. J. M. Clabon, President of the Board of Benevolence. It was quite clear at an early period that the nomination of Bro. Baron de Rothschild was not agreeable to the majority of Grand Lodge, and that the contest, if contest there should be, lay between Bros. Lieut.-Col. Creaton and Clabon. Bro. Clabon having disclaimed any opposition to Bro. Creaton, no one was astonished when 14 hands were held up for Baron de Rothschild, and about the same for Bro. Clabon, and the remaining number, probably between three and four hundred, were elevated for Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton. His election was greeted with loud cheers, which were repeated when he came forward to speak, and thank the brethren in terse terms for the honour conferred upon him. There can be no question that, in electing Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton Grand Treasurer, the Grand Lodge has sought to recognize almost unexampled services to Masonic interests, and, above all, Masonic Charity, for 17 years. Few brethren also have done more for the Order, or worked harder in the interests of our great Charities, while his liberality on their behalf has been as conspicuous as his exertion. Grand Lodge has shown once more, as we ventured to predict, that it is guided simply by a sense of Masonic services, of duty and devotion for our good old Craft. However high abstractedly Bro. Rothschild's position may be, and however striking the "prestige" attached to his name in the City, and, as one brother said, on the "Exchanges of Europe," he was comparatively unknown to Masonry, and to the majority of the brethren. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, on the other hand, is well known to the great bulk of the London brethren, not only on account of his high qualities, his ready and available services, but for the confidence which his brethren have in him, and which they have manifested by making him Trustee of more than one of the great Metropolitan Charities. Altogether we feel perfectly satisfied that the selection so decisively made, and so loudly applauded, will give in every respect satisfaction to the Craft, and uphold the dignity and interests of Grand Lodge.

VALE!

Another good old Mason has passed away—most useful in his time and generation, and deeply valued and respected by his brother Masons. We have to announce with deep regret the death of Bro. Henry Browse. Of his services to Freemasonry or to the Charities it is needless here to speak, as they are too well known to all our readers. They were indeed many and great. We all shall regret that we no more shall hail his venerable presence, and our memories will be alike kindly and affectionate, as recalling moral worth and duty, well performed to the very last. Bro. Browse will not soon be forgotten by many admiring friends and brethren.

JOHN HERVEY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The lodge of instruction having removed to a private room, in the Albion Hall, London-wall, City, I take this early opportunity of inviting your attendance and co-operation, in order to insure uniformity of working among the officers of the lodge; a dissemination of Masonic knowledge among the members, and a just emulation, by united practice in rehearsal, to render our beautiful Masonic Services in the most perfect manner.

Our Bro. H. J. Dean, Organist, has most generously offered to give us the benefit of his services in conducting the musical portion of the ritual, if the members of the lodge will rally to our support.

The next meeting of the lodge of instruction, in its new quarters, will be on Monday, 10th March, and every succeeding Monday evening, at 8 o'clock punctually.

Hoping to have the pleasure of your company, together with any brother you would like to introduce, on next and future Monday evenings,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,
JOHN H. SOUTHWOOD,
W.M. 1260.

Albion Hall is within 3 minutes' walk of Moorgate-street, Broad-street, and Bishopsgate Stations, and 5 minutes' walk from the Bank; thus securing ample and frequent communication with all parts of London.

ROMAN CATHOLIC IGNORANCE AND INTOLERANCE.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I send you herewith a translation of a letter addressed to the editor of a local newspaper, the Commercio Portuguez, and printed in its issue, not as an advertisement, of the 23rd February.

During a residence of several years in this country I have never met with a similar occurrence, but I cannot say that I have much sympathy with Masonry as practised here, where the most important point of the Third Degree is not unfrequently given by the W.M., who is smoking a cigarette while wielding the tools of the Craft.

As a curiosity of Masonry and an instance of modern intolerance, the translation of the letter may be deemed worth inserting in your publication.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, obediently and fraternally yours,

JOHN GLAS. SANDEMAN, 33^o,
Late Secretary General H.E., A. and A. R. for England, Wales, and Dependencies of the British Crown.
Oporto, 1st March, 1879.

"S. Vicente de Pereira,

"12th Feb., 1879.

"I, the undersigned, having been initiated in Freemasonry through ignorance, supposing it simply a beneficent and charitable society, as has been and is proclaimed by its rulers, as containing in its organisation and construction nothing that can be offensive to sound morals, or contrary to the Holy Apostolic Roman Catholic Church, in whose bosom I was born and desire to live and die; and having now come to the conclusion that, on the contrary, from all it indicates, it is a society inimically irreconcilable to the Holy Church and all social order, as is conclusively proved by the Encyclical of the Holy Father Leo XIII. of the 28th December, last; and that the Holy Church has condemned it as such, threatening it with the major excommunication, and repeating and confirming this penalty many times—I declare that I abjure it, and solemnly with execration renounce it from now henceforth and for ever.

"I make this solemn and public retraction of my own free and spontaneous will, convinced that I incur imminent peril of the eternal salvation of my soul if I continue relations with the said sect, which now by the Grace of God I abjure for ever.

"I crave humble and contrite pardon of God and His Holy Church, and I swear to live henceforward in the bosom of the Holy Church in which I had the fortune to be born, as a good Christian and obedient son, and as such I reprove what she reproveth, and condemn what she condemns.

THE MONTHLY MAGAZINES.

TEMPLE BAR continues its effective career. In all serials there must be a higher and lower level of excellence, as it is impossible to bring all articles up to a normal standard, just as in the money market, there is month by month a tendency to "rise," and to "depreciation." But "Temple Bar" runs very even on the whole, and its articles, if not always very deep, are very readable. "Probation" has undoubtedly great merits, but, to say the truth, we are not much taken with "Ebenezer." "Auld Robin Gray" is lively and touching at the same time. There is a very interesting article about "Madame de Maintenon," and the account of "Etty" is not without power.

ALL THE YEAR ROUND.—We especially commend in this admirably conducted monthly the liveliness and reality of "Vixen," and the "pathos" and power of "Haunted Chambers." The latter is most effective writing. Indeed, all the papers demand alike perusal and praise.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY is, as usual, a very striking and pleasant magazine, and "Sui Generis" must fill English readers with admiration for American enterprise, literary powers, and artistic excellence. We commend it to the notice of our readers.

THE MASONIC REVIEW. Cincinnati, Ohio. Edited by Bro. Melish.—Is one of the best Masonic periodicals we know. It is always full of matter interesting to the Masonic student and reader.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY REPORT FOR 1878.

It would seem, which is a matter for congratulation, that whereas in 1874 the returns amounted to £6463, the expenditure to £1927, and amount distributed to £4494, in 1878 these various figures are represented by the following amounts: Receipts £6502, expenses £1272, distributed £5000. We still must think that 19.56 of expenditure to receipts is too large, and ought to be reduced. Still we do not wish to be too critical or censorious, in respect of so useful and so benevolent a movement, and merely allude to the fact "en passant." It would seem that the working population of London is composed of 800,000 males, and 411,631 females, more or less, and it is calculated that were each person to give a penny a week, 4s. 4d. a year, the fund would have an increase of £60,000 per annum. But, of course, this is "optimism" in the highest degree, and can hardly be expected, though it is well to mention the state of things, and to express a hope that each year may see an increase in the returns of this needed and important movement. Considering the depression of trade the amount is very large.

THE EUROPEAN MAIL.

Is a very valuable paper for our Colonial Dependencies. It has eight editions, six of which are published monthly, two of which are issued bi-monthly. We can at once conceive and appreciate its great utility and importance in the various quarters of the habitable world.

FREEMASONS' MANUAL AND OFFICIAL DIRECTORY FOR THE PROVINCE OF KENT.

This useful little Masonic handbook for the good province of Kent we welcome sincerely on its second appearance. It is edited most carefully by Bro. Samuel Warne, Rochester. There are now forty-three lodges in the province of Kent, with 2548 members, as far as can be ascertained, but only thirteen chapters, with 346 members. We confess that we do not understand this "great weakness." We would suggest to Bro. Warne another year to issue a synoptical table of the members in lodges and chapters, as we have had to make the calculation ourselves, and such an enumeration saves "time and trouble," and is interesting alike to Kentish Masons as well as Masonic students. We thank Bro. Warne for his little book.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Sores, wounds, ulcerations, and other disease affecting the skin, are amenable by this soothing and healing unguent. It has called forth the loudest praise from persons who have suffered for years from bad legs, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, after every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Ointment can form an idea of the comfort it bestows, by restraining inflammation and allaying pain. Whenever this Ointment has been once used it has established its own worth, and has again been eagerly sought for, as the easiest and safest remedy for all ulcerous complaints. In neuralgia, rheumatism, and gout, the same application, properly used, gives wonderful relief.—[ADVT.]

ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED SCOTTISH RITE.

We recently published the concordat between the Supreme Council of Charlestown, U.S., and those Councils associated with it, and the Supreme Council of Egypt, whereby the latter Council recalled the warrant granted by it to form a Supreme Council in New Zealand. The following is the reply of the latter Supreme Council to that proceeding:—

Supreme Council for New Zealand, Valley of New Zealand,
Dunedin, 21st November, 1878.

F. F. ODDI, Esq., 33^d, G.G.S.R.C.,
Grand Orient of Egypt, Cairo.

Dear Sir and Illustrious Brother,—

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 8th September, addressed to our Ill. Sov. Grand Commander, conveying the extraordinary intelligence that your august body "has been obliged to withdraw the warrant it granted us, and recognise the right of the British Supreme Councils in New Zealand."

As this is the first official communication I have been favoured with since your friendly one received about twelve months ago, I need scarcely say its perusal has been attended with pain and surprise to the members of our Supreme Council, upon whom you would evidently endeavour to aim a cruel blow without the slightest warning upon your part, or offence of any description given upon theirs, to warrant it. Surely such conduct calls for some further explanation from you than the mere letter above acknowledged, especially as I have been in regular correspondence with you up to a late date without drawing from you the slightest hint of what was going on, or what your views were upon a matter of such importance to us, until at last you deemed it right to issue un coup d'état as undeserved as it is improper and unconstitutional.

Allow me now to review with you the establishment and progress of our Supreme Council, not only as matters of fact, but for the general information of similar bodies throughout the universe. By warrant from you, dated 16th October, 1875, our Council was opened, as advised to you (and announced in the newspapers here) on 11th June, 1876.

Some time afterwards, through you and good sincere friends in the old country, we learned yours was deemed a spurious Council, and consequently recognition would be denied us (vide "Scottish Annual Reporter for 1877"). Subsequently it was announced to us that a body styling itself the Supreme Council of England and Wales and British Dependencies claimed the sole right of working the A. and A. Rite Degrees in any British colony or possession. Seeing your council was in existence for some time previous to granting our warrant, this important claim must have been of course known to your members, though unknown to us.

Under the warrant accorded to us, we proceeded to open Rose Croix Chapters, receive monies, confer degrees, and issue the necessary certificates throughout New Zealand. These proceedings you were duly made acquainted with, afterwards acknowledging same in your "Bulletin Official," praising us for our ability, and thanking us for naming the chapters after Ill. Bro. Zola, &c., &c. Our proceedings have always been conducted openly and above board, and the members perfected in the 18th Degree selected with care from the Craft throughout New Zealand as fit for the advancement, not only in a social point of view, but also from their standing as Freemasons high in office and of long experience.

Acknowledging the foregoing to be strictly correct—which you cannot than otherwise do—I fail to comprehend on what ground you have submitted to be dictated to, principally no doubt by the Supreme Councils of England and Scotland, both irregular in their formation and constitution, as you are well aware, and yet capable, in their conceit and lust for power, of coercing a properly constituted body like yours, well and authoritatively founded, to join them in an action towards us which you will pardon me stating is the reverse of honourable. Of the English Council, the founder of it (General Pike) writes as follows:

"To form the Supreme Council of England and Wales, the Supreme Council of our Northern Jurisdiction sent to Dr. Crucefix the obligation of a 33rd, recognised him as an honorary member, and sent him the ritual when he had returned the obligation signed, and empowered him to create that of England and Wales. What could be more irregular? Yet it is too late to question the legitimacy of that body."

The position and antecedents of the Supreme Council of Scotland have been so ably challenged by worthy Masons at home as to require no remark at my hands; and your own correspondence gives ample proofs of their underhand, deceitful workings against your own Council. If then you were moved to act as you have done to acquire the mere empty honour (?) of recognition from such bodies, all I can assure you, with deep regret, is that the members of our Council can scarcely comprehend or believe it. You will in the future not find yourselves an independent power, but rather shorn of your proper dignity, and obliged to follow what other Councils wish or dictate, with the threat of "non-recognition" always held over you. Better far to possess Masonic honour and independence and remain isolated than occupy such an unenviable position as this.

I need scarcely argue with you the question of attempting to recall a charter once granted and acted on, as the New Zealand one has been. The grant of the charter is irrevocable, and its abolition impossible. All that your Supreme Council can really do is to withdraw the bond of amity which has for more than two years bound our Councils together; but any attempt on the part of your Council to recall the degrees we have received from you and have conferred on others under the authority of your charter must be absolutely futile. Holding these views, which are shared by the other members of our Council, I am at a loss to comprehend the object of your circular of 7th September, as to all just, upright, and well-informed Masons it must appear as so much waste paper. Had you denied our Council continued recognition, or declined further correspondence with it, such action could under the circumstances have been understood, but to attempt a cruel wrong to those who (you will pardon me for saying so) have rather added to than detracted from the lustre of the Grand Orient of Egypt is an act that eventually must meet with universal condemnation and contempt.

Without further preface, I now beg in my official capacity to hand you the copy of the resolutions arrived at upon 13th inst., when your correspondence of 7th September, already alluded to, was submitted to the members of our Supreme Council, viz:—

Resolved—That this Supreme Council, having been lawfully constituted by charter from the Supreme Grand Council of Egypt (a genuine Masonic power), having acted under the authority of that charter for upwards of two years, with the full knowledge and expressed approval of the Supreme Council of Egypt (as stated in their own official bulletin), having committed no act derogatory to a Grand Council, and denying (in common with the Supreme Council of Scotland) the right claimed by the Supreme Council of England to exclusive jurisdiction in New Zealand, will adhere to its charter, will work under it, and will patiently submit to opposition from and non-recognition by all the Supreme Councils of the Universe, being assured that the time will come when its just claims to recognition will be universally admitted.

Resolved further—That the Ill. G. Sec. be requested to convey the foregoing resolution to the Supreme Council of Egypt, with an expression from this Supreme Council of its surprise and deep regret that, under pressure exerted by other Supreme Councils, it should have felt at liberty to adopt a course of action subversive of its own independence and one alike opposed to honour and good faith.

I shall be glad to receive the further correspondence from you which you lead me to expect, and withhold for the present the course of action which in consequence of your letter now under reply it will be necessary for our Council to take.

Regretting the untoward circumstances which have produced this letter, and with the expression of the hope that your Supreme Council will so far consult its dignity and honour as to retrace the step it has taken,

I have the honour to be, yours fraternally and respectfully,

T. S. GRAHAM,

ROYAL AND SELECT MASTERS.

On Friday, the 21st ult., a meeting of the Grand Masters' Council was convened at No. 2, Red Lion-square, for the dispatch of business. Among those in attendance were Comp. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.P.G.M.; Hyde Pullen, 33^d, R.P.G.C. of Works; F. Davison, R.P.G. Treas.; D. M. Dewar, R.P.G. Recorder; T. C. Walls, as T.J.M.; H. R. Cooper Smith, C. of the G.; R. Berridge, R. H. Thrupp, R. G. Glover, R. L. Loveland.

The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the following candidates, being in attendance, were duly admitted and received the degrees of M.E.M., R.M., Select Master, and S.E.M.:—Bros. Thos. Poore, the Rev. T. W. Lemon, Robert Roy, C. T. Pearce, H. F. Partridge, and Edward Letchworth, the four ceremonies being performed and the attendant lectures delivered by Comp. Walls.

A number of propositions for admission and reception having been handed in, Comp. Walls moved, and Comp. Davison seconded—"That in future an annual subscription of ten shillings be paid by every member of the Grand Masters' Council, and that a festival be held once a year in connection with the same."

This motion having been briefly discussed, it was carried nem. con.

Previously to the convocation being adjourned, Comp. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.P.G.M., appointed Comp. Walls as T.J. Deputy Master of the G.M.'s Council.

Bro. Walls having duly acknowledged the honour, the Council was closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent collation at the Albion Hotel, and which was presided over by the M.P.G.M.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on the first Wednesday in April next.

DR. MACKEY ON MASONIC RITES.

By WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

It would scarcely be possible to have selected a more appropriate subject on which to write Masonically, than the one adopted by my friend and Bro., D. G. Mackey; for "Masonic Rites," as a matter of fact, are much undervalued by many, and misunderstood by a still greater number. Certainly, if long experience of the manners and customs of several rites would fit a brother for their study and explanation as a guide for others, the learned doctor should be well qualified, and hence we have not been disappointed generally in reading the articles in question. We apprehend their circulation will do good, and certainly they well deserve all the praise they have received. On one point, however, they appear to be deficient or misleading, and the able Masonic archaeologist, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., quite concurs in so thinking, indeed, has also said so in a thoughtful article in "The Freemason," (London), of which it is well known he is the editor, a copy of which is to be found in "The Masonic Newspaper," No. 10.

We refer to No. 11, "The York Rite," in "The Masonic Newspaper" of Oct. 19th, 1878. Dr. Mackey thus states his opinion: "Bro. Hughan denies that there is any such Rite as the York, and says that nobody now knows what the York Rite is. With all respect for his sagacity in Masonic archaeology, I am compelled to dissent from his opinion."

I accept Dr. Mackey's definition of a Masonic Rite, viz.: "The way or manner of arranging or conferring the degrees of Freemasonry," and I make bold to say that not a Mason living knows aught of the manner in which the degrees were conferred by the old York Masons, either historically or traditionally. Assertion is always easy, but the proof sometimes very difficult. In this case, however, both are easy, as there has not been any information left as to the character of these degrees or ceremonies by the Masons of York, and there is not a MS. of any kind that has been traced in that city which refers in any way to the esoteric portion of the York Craft degrees, which portion, of course, is really what is meant and included in the term "York Rite." A Grand Lodge held at London, and never, directly or indirectly, connected with York, or with the "Grand Lodge of all England," held in York, did, I know, make a semi-claim to have been descended from the "Prince Edward of York of 926," but even if they called their ceremonies the "York Rite"—which is not proved—their doing so did not make them so; neither were they York Masons, or members of a "York Rite," at any time. This London Grand Lodge of the "Seceders," or "Ancients," was constituted A.D. 1753, and was a secession from the premier Grand Lodge, also held at London, formed A.D. 1716-7. The first mentioned never was acknowledged by the Ancient York Masons, but the older body was. The Grand Lodge at York started in 1725, from the lodge which assembled for many years before (and has left many documents), died out, however, late last century, and has left no descendants. All its lodges warranted in England—none ever out of that country—also succumbed, and on the advent of the present century not a vestige remained of the "York Rite!" True, we have MSS. of great value, but of the ritualistic portion, save the names and order of the Craft degrees, we absolutely know nothing, and, therefore, can say nothing. Dr. Mackey says the term York Rite "is appropriated to that system which was fabricated in the early part of the eighteenth century by the Grand Lodge of England." This is an error. The premier Grand Lodge (of 1716-7) has never had any claim, and never been known in connection with a "York Rite," neither has its promoters referred to—Dr. Desaguliers and Anderson—ever called their Rite the York. Dr. Mackey thinks "English Rite" would be a better term to describe that promulgated by the Revivalists of 1716-7. In England we know of no other. Dr. Mackey declares the Grand Lodge of the "Ancients," which claimed the York descent, to be an illegal body, and that what they practised "no more resembles the English York Rite, than it does the Scottish or Ancient and Accepted Rite." Our brother also admits that if the early Masons of York did establish a series of degrees and a method of initiation, they have long since been irrecoverably lost. Also that "it would be, therefore, not only absurd, but even fraudulent, to attempt, as giving to any system of Masonry the name of the City of York, to convey the impression that it was there invented." After this it is not needful for me to say more in justification of my declaration, to which Bro. Dr. Mackey has objected, as his own admissions furnish proof that my opinion is the correct one. It was generally believed, years ago, that the lodges in the United States mainly owed their constitution to the York "Grand Lodge of England," but since it has been proved that they were chiefly indebted to a London "Grand Lodge of England," known as the "Ancients." I have understood that the term "Ancient York Masons" (A. Y. M.) has generally been dropped in the United States, as also the term "York Rite," as both suggest a connection with a city wholly unrepresented, directly or indirectly, in Freemasonry in America. On these points I should like to direct the readers of "The Masonic Newspaper" to my "Masonic Sketches and Reprints" (American Edition), handsomely reprinted by Bros. Macey & Co., of New York, which contains a "History of Freemasonry at York."

I take this opportunity of wishing "The Masonic Newspaper" all the success it so well deserves.—From The Masonic Newspaper, New York.

Bro. De Keyser has been appointed chairman of the National Training School for Music.

Among the many articles on demand in the household none deserve more attention than plate and polishing powder. Many of the powders now in use are simply ruinous to every article upon which they are used. The "Star" Plate and Universal Polishing Powder Co. have supplied a great want in the "Star" Plate and Polishing Powder, and the price places it within the reach of all. This powder has been subjected to the most crucial tests, is entirely free from all mercury, acids, or anything that can injure plate, gold, silver, or the finest jewellery. For polishing and cleaning copper, white metals, ivory, marble, or glass it far surpasses any preparation in use. The company received the only prize medal for polishing powders at the Exhibition, Philadelphia, 1876, there being fourteen competitors. Their powder is certainly a great desideratum.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post-free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—ADVT.

FAREWELL DINNER AND PRESENTATION TO BRO. SPINKS.

Among the number of our gallant soldiers residing in our midst who are about to or have left England for service at the Cape, none have gained more friends or held them faster than Assistant Commissary Bro. G. Spinks, I.P.M. of the United Military Lodge, No. 1536, who for the last twenty years has lived in Woolwich, and by his character and conduct has attained the proud position of an officer in Her Majesty's Army. Bro. Spinks only received orders for departure on Wednesday, the 12th ult., and no sooner was it known among his comrades in the garrison, Masonic brethren, and many friends outside, than it was determined to present him with a token of the esteem and regard in which he is held by them, and on Saturday evening, the 15th ult., a large and influential gathering took place at Bro. Capon's House, the Prince Alfred, Raglan-road, Plumstead, for the purpose of presenting the testimonial to him. The testimonial took the form of a diamond ring and binocular field glass, of the estimated value of twenty-five guineas. Both the ring and glass were suitably inscribed. An excellent cold collation was spread for the company, among whom were Bro. Weston, P.M. 1536, Chairman; Bro. Shaw, S.W. 1536, Vice-Chair; Bro. Spinks, and Bros. Sculley, Kikk-bide, Hayes, Price, Hare, Jarvis, Hollyman, Cox, Mabbett, Kennedy, Murphy, Vincent, Emby, Moulds, Purnell, Hasall, McClellan, Saunders, Sharpe, Welding, Norman, Palmer, Campbell, Capon, and C. Jolly.

The dinner having been disposed of, the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," "Lord Carnarvon, P.G.M.," and the rest of the Grand Officers, were drunk with enthusiasm. The Chairman then rose, and said the time had now arrived when it was his duty to commence that portion of the proceedings for which they had especially been brought together. They all knew that their esteemed brother and friend, Past-Master Spinks, was about to leave them and go to a far distant land, not for pleasure, but for duty, and however much they might regret losing him, yet this call, the soldier's call to duty, must be obeyed. He was going to war, but to a war the horrors of which were not mitigated by the arts or amenities of civilisation, but against a cruel and a ruthless foe, who spared none in his lust for blood and rapine. (Hear, hear.) Their Bro. Spinks carried with him the respect, esteem, and admiration of them all, and not only those present, but all who knew his sterling worth and manly heart, as was evinced by the token of that respect which it was now his duty to present to him. He then made the presentation, and said—Bro. Spinks, I now, in the name of this company, and in the name of all those who have subscribed to it, present to you this diamond ring, which, we trust, will for many years be a memento of their respect and esteem for you, and when you look upon it you will remember the many happy years you have spent in their company, not only in Freemasonry, but in the open paths of life you and they have trod together. I have also much pleasure in presenting you with this binocular glass, and, in asking your acceptance of the same, we trust you will ever value both ring and glass, not for their intrinsic value alone, but as an evidence of that which we know is of far higher value to you, the love and respect of your fellow men. (Cheers.) Believe me, Bro. Spinks, no matter where you may be, wherever the call of duty is, there we know you will be doing your duty as a soldier, a man, and a Mason. (Loud cheers.) We wish you God speed upon your journey, and may He spare you through the dangers awaiting you by sea and land, and when your duty is done speed you safely back again to your friends in Woolwich and Plumstead, where a hearty welcome will always await you. (Loud and continued cheering.) "The Health of Bro. Spinks" was then drunk with musical honours, and Bro. Alexander Jarvis by special request sang "Auld Lang Syne."

Bro. Spinks, who, on rising to reply, was received with cheers, said—W.M. Bro. Shaw, and brethren, I cannot find words to express to you my thanks for the great kindness that I have always received at your hands, and more especially for the very handsome manner in which you have shown your regard and esteem for me. It was only on Wednesday last that I received orders to go to the Cape, only three days ago, and in those three days what has been done? As I have before said, I know Bro. Weston is a red-hot Mason, and whatever he takes in hand is done quickly and well. (Cheers and laughter.) He and Bros. Saunders and Shaw had worked hard for this occasion, and it reflects great credit upon them for the manner in which they have carried it out, and for their kindness I thank them from my heart. I never expected to receive such a valuable present from the hands of my friends, and feel that I have done nothing to deserve it. I have always endeavoured to do my duty in any position that I have been placed in, and no more. This beautiful jewel, which is encased in this band of gold, will, I trust, be a light to still further guide me on in the same path of duty and honour that has won for me, above all other honour, your generous esteem and regard, and when I look through these magnificent glasses I will think their vision brings before me my kind friends, both civil and military, in Plumstead and Woolwich, until once more I am back amongst them again, if not with fame, at least with honour. (Loud cheers.) I have said that I cannot find words to express to you my gratitude for the kindnesses I have received at your hands, but believe me that if ever I return to my own country I will, with God's help, come to you my friends, at Plumstead, and again and again thank you for your splendid testimonial and your hearty good wishes for my welfare. (Loud and prolonged cheering.)

Bro. Assistant Commissary Cox, who, like Bro. Spinks, leaves for the Cape, and who had come all the way from Shoeburyness to participate in the gathering, was then toasted and wished God speed, and returned thanks in a splendid speech, replete with eloquence and patriotic sentiments.

Bro. Hayes, W.M. 913, proposed "The Health of the Chairman," and in so doing spoke of the unceasing toil of Bro. Weston for any cause that was good, more especially for charity. His exertions for the children who were fatherless, and for the widow who was penniless, were such as reflected the highest credit upon him, and many a poor and distressed widow and child are now living to bless his generous and brotherly aid. He asked them to drink the health of one who was worthy of all they could say or do for him, and his wife and family. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. Weston then returned thanks, and said that the more he knew of his brethren and the Craft, the more he loved it and honoured them. As Bro. Cox had said, it made a man return the sword to the scabbard in the face of his foe who was a brother, and such a thing had been done repeatedly in the Franco-Prussian war. He thanked them especially for their good wishes to his wife and family. He now had six, with a prospect of adding to their number. (Cheers and laughter.)

Bros. Shaw and Saunders were then complimented on their good work in raising the testimonial, and suitably replied.

Bros. Vincent and Jolly responded for the Press, and after Bro. Capon had been warmly thanked for his excellent catering, and the many kindnesses he had shewn the brethren of the Military Lodge especially, a verse of the National Anthem closed the proceedings.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The installation meeting of the Portsmouth Lodge, No. 487, will take place on Thursday, 13th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Portsmouth, when Bro. R. Osborne will be installed W.M. by V.W.; Bro. W. Hickman, Dep. G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight, in the presence of W. Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, P.G. Sec. Hants and Isle of Wight, and other distinguished brethren.

The annual meeting of the Shakespeare Lodge, No. 99, took place at the Albion Tavern on Thursday, the 27th ult., when Bro. W. Marshall was installed in the chair of K.S. for the ensuing year.

The half-yearly meeting of the Great Western Railway Company was held on Friday, the 28th ult., under the presidency of Sir D. Gooch, M.P., P.G.M. Berks and Bucks, when the report was adopted, and a dividend on the ordinary stock at the rate of 4 per cent, was declared.

Bro. J. D. Allcroft, M.P., laid the foundation stone of the new church of St. Simon, Shepherd's Bush, on Thursday, the 6th inst.

The Saddlers' Company have voted a donation of ten guineas to the King Edward Ragged School, Spitalfields.

The Annual Supper of the Israel Lodge of Instruction will be held at the Rising Sun, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, on Thursday, the 13th inst., at 7.

There is yet a chance, it is said, of Lord Hardwicke's remaining Master of the Buckhounds. If this be so, everybody will be well pleased; for the "glossy peer" is a model of kindness and courtesy, and his popularity extends far beyond his own set, or his own order.—The World.

It is not customary at Royal marriages to speak of "the best man." A Prince is said to be "supported" to the altar, and the heraldic term is by no means inappropriate. The Duke of Connaught's supporters will, as I announced a month ago, be the Prince of Wales and Prince Leopold, who will wear the costume of Knight of the Garter. They will be ushered to the altar by Lords Hertford and Barrington, with a complete retinue of heralds, gentlemen-at-arms, and pursuivants. The bride's supporters will be Prince Frederick William (her father), who will give her away, and the Prince Imperial of Germany.—The Whitehall Review.

Bro. Commander Cheyne, R.N., lectured at Oxford, on Wednesday, to appreciative audiences, on his proposed expedition to the North Pole by a new route, and the search for Sir John Franklin. Mr. Grenfell, President of the University Boat Club, presided in the evening. The lecturer stated that his plan of reaching the Pole was by taking advantage of the ocean currents which circulate in the Arctic regions. An influential committee, comprising members of the university and citizens, was formed to assist Commander Cheyne in his project. This makes the forty-sixth committee established in different parts of the kingdom for the same object.

Mr. W. R. S. Ralston repeated his interesting lecture on Popular Fairy Tales on Wednesday afternoon, at St. James's Hall, the proceeds being given to the fund for the benefit of the shareholders of the Glasgow Bank. Mr. Ralston unmercifully exposes the fairy delusions we have always looked upon as gospel, and proves unremorsefully that the glass slipper of Cinderella was made of fur.

According to information received by Joseph Malins, G.W.C.T., from the Cape, an entire Lodge of Good Templars was destroyed at Isandula. The lodge was formed among the men of the 24th in Cape Colony, and was called the British Pioneer Lodge. This is the second Templar Lodge swept out of existence by a great disaster, the first being destroyed when the "Eurydice" went down.

THE ASYLUM FOR IDIOTS.—The employes of Messrs. J. and C. Boyd & Co. will give an entertainment at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, on Thursday evening, the 13th inst., in aid of the Asylum for Idiots, at Earlwood. The programme includes "Our Bitterest Foe," by C. C. Herbert; a three-act comedy, "Old Soldiers," by H. J. Byron, and negro selections in character. The profits on former entertainments by the employes of Messrs. Boyd have amounted in the aggregate to nearly £500, and we trust that such a deserving charity as the Idiot Asylum will be materially benefited by the present effort.

On Monday Bro. E. J. Keeping, who was for fourteen years on the staff of the Albion, and now house steward at Grocers' Hall, was presented by the members of the Joppa Lodge (188) with a locket with a brilliant centre, monogram, and suitable inscription, as a mark of the respect he was held in by the members.

The Grand Mark Secretary, Bro. Frederick Binckes, P.G.J.W., will hold a lodge at the Masonic Hall, Cheltenham, to-day (Saturday), at 2.30 p.m. precisely, for the purpose of constituting the Provincial Grand Lodge of M.M.M. of Gloucestershire, and the installation of Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davy, as the first Provincial Grand Master.

The Whitehall Review is enabled to announce on official authority that the Queen has finally determined to take part in the wedding ceremony at St. George's Chapel on the 13th inst. The report that Her Majesty would merely be present in the private pew, which is accessible through the Deanery, originated owing to the erection of a temporary structure at the entrance to the cloisters. As a matter of fact, Her Majesty will be the first of the Royal party to arrive at the chapel. Her Majesty is timed to leave the Castle at 12 o'clock.

Bro. Sir John Bennett lectured on "The Paris Exhibition: Its Lessons and its Warnings," at the Brentford Institute, Brentford, on Wednesday, and to the Peckham Mutual Society, in the Collyer Memorial Schools, Peckham, on Friday.

We learn that Messrs. Cassell have sent out, for the use of our troops at the Cape, through the care of Mr. Kirkwood, the Scotch Chaplain to the Forces, 100 parts, well assorted, of "Cassell's Family Magazine," "The Quiver," "Little Folks," "Heroes of Great Britain," and "The Sea." This generous and welcome gift goes by the ss. Andean, which sails from the Victoria Docks this day (Saturday).

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on the 6th inst. at the Cannon-street Hotel. Brethren present:—Bro. Lee, Davies, and other members of the lodge, with thirty visitors. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed; the report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted; Bro. James E. Groves was raised to the Third Degree; Mr. Arthur Foss Baxter was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. The W.M., Bro. Henry Legge, then installed Bro. Charles Arkell into the chair of K.S. in a faultless manner. Bro. Arkell invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Henry Legge, I.P.M.; W. T. Rickwood, S.W.; S. T. Lucas, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treas.; George Abbott, P.M., Sec.; J. G. Chillingworth, jun., S.D.; James Lorkin, J.D.; H. A. Pratt, I.G.; George Newman, P.M., D.C.; W. S. Carter, W.S.; W. H. Lee Davies, Org.; Geo. Smith, Tyler. A valuable gold jewel was presented to Bro. Henry Legge, in acknowledgment of the services rendered to the lodge during his year of office. The widow of a deceased brother was relieved with ten pounds.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday evening, the 8th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel, and was very numerously attended. Bro. Headon, P.M. (in the absence of Bro. James Freeman, W.M.), presided, and the officers present were, Bros. Blackie, S.W.; Catchpole, J.W.; Rev. R. J. Simpson, Chaplain; Moody, Secretary; Hamer, S.D.; Jenkins, Organist; Kibble, J.G.; Hook, D.C.; Hooker and Keeble, Stewards; and P.M.'s Stevens and Seex. There were also present the following visitors: Lawrence, 1326; Fairie, 1329; Parker, 310; Dolby, W.M. 1515; Black, 859; Levy, 780; Tiddeman, 813; Gaston, 1538; Groom, 145; Ashwell, W.M. 22; W. W. Morgan, 211; J. Morgan, 1611; Mason, P.M. 1540; Casper, 1216; Toppet, P.M. 1627; Finnegan, 188; Hammond, 1329; Hastie, P.M. 1669; Eastgate, 1563; Field, P.M. 902; Sweeting, 1257; Hooper, 1515; Lamb, 145; Chapman, 194; Harris, 177. The lodge having been duly opened, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Bro. Moody, Secretary, and confirmed, after which the lodge was advanced to the Second Degree, when Bros. Lawes and Robson were introduced and questioned as to their proficiency in the science. Their answers being considered satisfactory, they retired, and the lodge being opened in the Third Degree, they were separately re-introduced and raised to the Degree of M.M., the W.M. closing the ceremony with a recital of the traditional history of the Degree. The work was most ably performed, and elicited unanimous commendation from all the visitors present. The next business before the lodge was the passing of Bros. Mogridge and King to the Second Degree, which was done in an equally satisfactory manner. According to annual custom Bro. Moody, the Secretary, read the by-laws, and afterwards the members proceeded to the election of a W.M. for the ensuing year, when the choice all but unanimously fell upon Bro. Blackie, S.W., who has so ably fulfilled all the duties required of him in the other offices to which he has been appointed, and this crowning honour was looked upon as one that he has well merited and richly deserved. The result of the election having been announced, Bro. Blackie, S.W., said he heartily thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him in electing him W.M. of the lodge, and he hoped at the end of twelve months, when they would have to appoint his successor, that he should be able to prove to them that their confidence had not been misplaced. On the motion of Bro. Stevens, P.M., seconded by Bro. Henry Thompson, P.M., Bro. Headon, P.M., was elected Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. Steedman was also re-elected Tyler of the lodge. Three Auditors of the lodge accounts were also nominated. An episode here occurred in the proceedings, on a table being uncovered, on which was displayed a large salver, &c., tea and coffee service, which had been purchased by the voluntary subscriptions of the members, and intended as a present to Bro. James Freeman, W. Master, who was now on a wedding tour in France. Bro. Stevens, P.M., said that the committee to whom the matter had been entrusted had provided the tea and coffee service they saw before them, and they thought it right to bring it before the lodge, in the absence of the W.M., who during the last 48 hours had passed through the ceremony of marriage, and to ask Bro. Headon, their Treasurer, to transmit it to Bro. Freeman, as an expression of the good will of the lodge, and with the "Hearty good wishes" of every member for his happiness and prosperity in the new life he was just entering upon. The members of the lodge regretted that the articles were not of greater value, but as it was the gift of all, there was no doubt that the W.M. would duly appreciate it on that account. The salver bore the following inscription: "Presented, together with a tea and coffee service, to Bro. James Freeman, W.M. of the Great City Lodge, No. 1426, with the 'Hearty good wishes' of the members, on the occasion of his marriage, March 6th, 1879." Bro. Headon, Treasurer, said he should have great pleasure in taking charge of the gift, and would transmit it to Bro. Freeman. Bro. Hamer, S.D., said he had been reminded by Bro. Perceval, of the London Masonic Charity Association, that with respect to the two London children, Frost and Giles, who were candidates for admission to the Boys' School, this was the last application, and he had been requested to ask those members who had not promised their votes to send them to the W.M. of the lodge, to Bro. Perceval, of the Unity Lodge, or to himself at their earliest convenience. Unless something energetic was done he was afraid that these children would not have a chance of election. The lodge was then closed in due form and with solemn prayer, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. At its conclusion, the W.M. gave the first formal toast, which was that of "The Queen," and said that her merits were so well known that there was no necessity for him to enlarge upon them, and to render the toast Masonic he coupled with it "The Craft." The toast was cordially responded to, followed by the "National Anthem," Bro. Frost accompanying the vocalists on the pianoforte. The W.M. said the next toast in order was that of "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales." Those who were present at the Grand Lodge on the previous Wednesday were aware that His Royal Highness had been again unanimously re-elected as Grand Master. He (the W.M.) need say nothing to extol his virtues, as they all knew them, and were fully aware of everything that could be said in his behalf. He asked them to join him cordially in drinking "The Health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, their Illustrious Grand Master." The toast was heartily responded to. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was one that met with great favour in all Masonic assemblies, as it was "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master," and he would, on that occasion, couple with it that of "Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past." That was a very comprehensive toast, and as they were assembled in sufficient numbers they could drink it in a very comprehensive manner. Bro. Stevens, P.M., said the toast he had to submit was to drink "The Health of their Worshipful Master, Bro. James Freeman," who was now in Paris, and he was sure the brethren would endorse the sentiments he had expressed in the early part of the evening, that he had the good wishes of the brethren for his happiness and prosperity in the future. The compliment they had been pleased to pay him had been well earned, and he trusted to see him at the next lodge, and to be received by him in that urbane and courteous manner in which they were accustomed to see him. He now came to his locum tenens, Bro. Headon, the acting W.M., and begged also to propose his health as their Treasurer. Bro. Headon said as the locum tenens of the Worshipful Master he thanked them for the very kind manner in which they had received the toast as their Treasurer. He believed that it would be a long time before they would see their W.M. again in the chair, but when he came back there was no doubt he would receive them in his usual kind and friendly manner. As his locum tenens he had little to say for himself, but he hoped what he had done, or should do, would be satisfactory to the lodge. He thanked them for receiving the toast of his health in the cordial manner they were always pleased to do. He said that the next toast was "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and they were Bros. Stevens, Seex, and himself. Bro. Stevens was ready to respond for those who were present as well as those who were absent. He was ready to act as locum tenens for all who were present, and as many more as liked to come. He asked them to drink the health of the Past Masters, who had done good suit and service in their time, and were ready to do so again when called upon. Bros. Stevens and Seex severally returned thanks. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was one that he was hardly able to do justice to, but it was one that was always received with pleasure in the Great City Lodge, as it was that of "The Visitors." They had twenty-six with them that night, and one brother had asked him how it was that they had so large a number present, as there was nothing said about refreshments in the summons. He supposed, however, that the reason they had so large a number present was because they were pleased to be there at their bread and cheese banquets. They had, as he had said, twenty-six present that night, and he hoped any shortcomings they had seen at the table would be compensated for by what they had seen in the lodge. Bro. Stevens said to him that it was "a small feast but a great welcome." He was not certain about it, but he believed that it was their immortal William who said it, and if he did not he might have done so, but they gave their visitors a "more hearty welcome than a more formal banquet." Bros. Leon, Dolby, Field, and Ashwell severally returned thanks, all of them speaking in the most eulogistic terms of the working of the lodge. Bro. Bertram sang in exquisite style Balfe's ballad "When other lips," &c., and it was enthusiastically applauded, which was followed by a recitation by Bro. Hastie. The W.M. said the next toast was that of "The Treasurer and Secretary," but their Treasurer was not that night present in his proper place, as he was the locum tenens of the W.M. However, they had present their Secretary, who had not missed a lodge since it was established, so jealous was he of any locum tenens doing anything there but himself. It was only a day or two ago that he went off to Scotland, but last night, or perhaps at an early hour that morning, he returned, so that he might be with them in his place that night in the lodge. Bro. Hook sang "The Village Blacksmith" in his usual excellent style. Bro. Moody said, first as locum tenens for the Treasurer, he thanked the brethren on his behalf, and also on their having again elected him to that office, and he was only sorry that he was not present to return thanks for himself. As for himself, the brethren had always received his name very kindly. As Secretary of the Great City Lodge he was proud of his position for many reasons. He was proud of it for its high character for its working, and for the high character of its members, and the attention they paid to its working was a matter which struck the notice of all visitors to the lodge. He was in the habit of visiting many lodges, but he must say that he never went anywhere where there was so much attention paid to the ceremonies as he had seen in the Great City Lodge. Once more he thanked them for the kind manner in which they always received the mention of his name. "The Health of the Worshipful Master Elect" was then given, for which Bro. Blackie returned thanks, stating that when he commenced he hardly knew what Freemasonry was, but he never thought the time would come when he should be elected W.M. He had done his best in the various offices he had gone through, and when he was installed he hoped to do his duty to their satisfaction. The other toasts were disposed of, and the proceedings were brought to a close.

ROYAL COMMEMORATION LODGE (No. 1585).—The members of this lodge met on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at Putney, and had a very pleasant amount of work before them. The W.M., Bro. Morphew, was in the chair, and was supported by I.P.M. and Secretary Bro. Robinson; P.M.'s Wright, Whitley, and Stacey, Organist; Bros. Carter, S.W.; Boehr, J.W.; Watkins, Treasurer; Collings, Harrison, and other brethren. Lodge having been opened in the First Degree, the minutes were read and confirmed. Ballot was then taken for Mr. Andrew, and proving unanimous, he was duly admitted into the Order. Bros. Collick and Outram having been examined, were entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the before-mentioned brethren were duly passed. The W.M. having risen for the first, second, and third times, announced that this was the day for electing the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year. The W.M. and P.M.'s Wright and Robinson having signified their intention of not seeking re-election, the ballot was found to be unanimous in favour of Bro. F. Holland, the S.W. Bros. Watkins and Steed were again re-elected Treasurer and Tyler respectively. P.M. Whitley and Bros. Mansell and Carter were elected to serve on the Audit Committee. Five candidates were announced for initiation, and the W.M. having, on the proposition of P.M.'s Robinson and Wright, had a jewel voted him for his duties whilst in the chair, closed the lodge in due form and solemn prayer.

ST. DUNSTON LODGE (No. 1589).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 26th ult. at Anderson's Hotel, when there were present Bros. H. W. Dalwood, P.M. 860, W.M.; J. H. Dodson, P.M. 55, S.W., W.M. elect; Turner, J.W.; Wellsman, I.P.M.; Praed, P.M., Treas.; Tisley, Sec.; Woodbridge, S.D.; Manner, J.D.; Low, I.G.; Bull, D.C.; Clemow, W.S.; Dwarber, P.M.; Albert, P.G.P., Hon. P.M.; and Gilbert, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Ponnerby, W.M. 55; Dodson, W.M. 860; Ansey, P.M. 30; Farthing, P.M. 55; Dodson, P.M. 188; Farnfield, P.M. 907; Singleton, P.M. South Middx.; Stacey, P.M.; Lee, P.M.; Penrose, S.W. 1607; Wellard, J.W. 1319; Baker, S.D. 188; Dickens, S.D. 860; Sarti, 180; Foster, 257; S. Smith, 742; Westcott, I.C. 1365; Fortescue, 1507; Bott, 1558; Gibbs, 1613; Sadler, 1670; Glaze, 1768; and T. C. Walls, W.M. 1381, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Messrs. W. Farrington, E. Symmons, W. E. Ruddle, and F. J. E. Young were duly and ably initiated by the retiring W.M. The report of the Audit Committee having been read and confirmed, Bro. Dodson was duly installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. Dalwood, assisted by Bros. Wellsman and Stacey. The addresses were delivered by Bro. Wellsman with an amount of impressiveness and elocutionary power but rarely witnessed. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. Turner, S.W.; Woodbridge, J.W.; Praed, Treas.; Tisley, Sec.; Manners, S.D.; Low, J.D.; Bull, I.G.; Clemow, D.C.; Farrington, sen., W.S. Previously to the lodge being closed, the I.P.M. was presented with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, and which well-deserved honour was accompanied by a few well-chosen sentences from the W.M. The ceremony of the installation was greatly enhanced by the instrumental efforts of Bro. Sidney Smith, acting Org. The banquet was well served by Bro. Clemow and assistants. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave very briefly the customary Royal and Craft toasts. Bro. Albert responded upon behalf of the "Grand Officers, Present and Past." In giving "The W.M.," Bro. Dalwood, the I.P.M., said that the brethren of the St. Dunstan had elected the right man in the right place. He, the W.M., was not an untried brother, because he had only just vacated the chair of a very old and distinguished lodge, and he thoroughly believed that the W.M. would fulfil the duties of the chair of No. 1589 with honour to its members and credit to himself. In conclusion, he wished him a most successful and prosperous year of office. This toast having been warmly received, the W.M. briefly replied, and immediately gave "The Initiates." In the course of his speech he said that he need hardly remark to the newly-admitted brethren that they had entered that evening upon a new life, and he hoped that what they had heard in the lodge would be put by them to good use. As they progressed in the Craft they would learn much that was morally beneficial, and they would also have an opportunity of gathering useful knowledge. In concluding his remarks he earnestly conjured the initiates to treasure up the benevolent principles of the Order, and to practically disseminate them as far as their circumstances would fairly allow. This toast having been duly acknowledged by each of the initiates, the W.M. gave "The Visitors," coupled with the names of Bros. Ponnerby, Farnfield, and Walls, who duly acknowledged the compliment. In giving "The Past Masters," the W.M. warmly eulogised the services of those distinguished brethren to the cause of Masonry in general, and to the St. Dunstan Lodge in particular. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Bro. Dalwood, the I.P.M., said that he hoped to be spared many years to attend the meetings of the lodge, and to carry out any duties that might be required of him. He had had a desire for many years to be a founder of a parochial lodge, because he had been officially connected with the precinct of St. Dunstan for so long, and knew that it possessed those elements that were necessary to ensure success in a Masonic venture. Bro. Dwarber briefly said that the anticipations of the founders had been fully realised, inasmuch as they had found a very great desire on the part of the inhabitants of the parish to come among them as initiates. The lodge had only just entered upon the fourth year of its existence, but had achieved a very great success. When he undertook the arduous duties of the first Master he felt sanguine that he should receive support, but he had no idea that the lodge would have attained, during his tenure of office, such large proportions, and which happy state of things had steadily continued to the present time. In conclusion, he congratulated the lodge upon their support of the Masonic Charities. Bro. Wellsman briefly said that a certain political personage had once remarked "that there were three sides to a question." He should endeavour to exemplify that quotation by saying that the first two had been spoken by his colleagues, and he should complete the trio. He had been complimented that night upon his humble "working." He could only say in recognition of their kindness that, having been called upon to assist the I.P.M., he felt that it was a duty he owed to the lodge as one of its Past Masters, and he had endeavoured to do it to the best of his ability. There were some who believed that after passing the chair their labours ceased, but he was of opinion that the W.M.'s labours only commenced, and did not end with his relinquishment of the chair. He then dwelt upon the great success that had attended the lodge since its consecration, and concluded by expressing a hope that it would always continue to be a first-class representative lodge. In giving "The Treasurer and the Secretary," the W.M. took occasion to congratulate the members of the lodge upon possessing two such able brethren as Bros. Praed and Tisley, who had hitherto discharged the functions of those highly responsible offices so well. This toast having been duly responded to and acknowledged, "The Officers" and the Tyler's toasts terminated the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful. The enjoyment of the brethren was enhanced by the musical efforts of Bro. Sydney Smith and others.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The March meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday last at the Castle and Falcon Hotel, Aldersgate-street. Members present: Bros. A. J. Altman, W.M.; George Kenning, S.W.; Dr. Alder Smith, J.W.; J. D. Allcroft, Treas.; Thomas Jones, Sec.; Brookman, Froom, Benskin, Jolliffe. Visitors: Bros. Soppet, Larkin, and Hogg. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed; two brethren were proposed as joining members.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The first meeting under the new W.M. and officers was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 6th inst. They entered the lodge room as usual in procession within a few minutes after the hour fixed, 7.30, and at once proceeded to business, the chairs being taken thus.—Bros. Braham, W.M.; F. Wilkinson, P.P.G. Sup. of Wks., I.P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. Warwick, and P.M. 43 and 958, S.W.; Hunt, J.W.; Ashley, P.P.G.J.W., Treas.; T. Wilton, P.P.G.J.W., Dir. of Cer.; Rubie, P.P.G.S.W., Asst. D.C.; Radway, Sec.; Cater, S.D.; Mercer, J.D.; W. L. Baldwin, Org.; Holmes, I.G.; Ames and Peach, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler. Of the many Past Masters of the lodge, except those already named only three were present, Bros. Brown, P.P.G.S.W.; Moutrie, P.P.G.S.W.; and Mitchell, P.P.G.J.D. As visitors were Bros. Bolt, C. T. P. Smith, and Protheroe, all of 1388, Bristol; Innes, 639, Bengal; Brumby, Steuben Lodge, New York; J. J. Dutton, 53, and P.M. 855; Dingle, 906; Rev.—Bird, 1363. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Mr. Churnbury as a candidate for initiation, which was unanimously favourable. An interesting letter was read by the W.M. from Bro. C. H. C. Marsh, member of 199, Dover, mentioning that his father, who has just celebrated his 90th birthday, at his residence, Tunbridge Wells, was initiated in No. 41 in 1819, filled the chair of W.M. in 1829, and continued a member of the lodge and also of the chapter, of which he was Z., for nearly thirty years, till he left Bath. Many other details of his Masonic career were given in this letter, and he appears to have been a subscribing member of the Craft during the whole period till the present time, and to have been one of the founders of a lodge in Wells in 1861, though he had lost his sight five years before that date. The Secretary was desired to acknowledge receipt of the letter, with thanks to the writer, and to inform him that his father's name appears on a tablet in the lodge room which contains a record of all the Past Masters since a warrant of confirmation was granted in 1733. It was ordered also that the letter should be entered in the minute book. Pursuant to notice a vote of ten guineas to the Girls' School was passed. The candidate for initiation was introduced, properly prepared, and the ceremony was carefully conducted by the W.M. The J.W. explained the working tools, and the S.W. gave the charge. As Bro. Churnbury is about to leave England for Natal, and it is uncertain whether he will remain here sufficiently long to take the other degrees, the W.M. addressed him in kindly and fraternal terms, and in the name of the lodge expressed every good wish for his happiness and prosperity in his new home, which was confirmed by the acclamations of those present. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bros. Willis, W.E. and H. B. Smith were examined as to their proficiency, which was amply proved, and they were entrusted and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, to which the candidates were raised by the I.P.M., assisted by Bro. Ashley. Dr. Hopkins communicated the signs, also the traditional history, and gave the charge. The lodge was brought down to the First Degree. It was resolved to purchase for the library a copy of Bro. Hughan's forthcoming new work on Freemasonry. At the meeting in February a silver inkstand was presented to the I.P.M., which was to be accompanied by a scroll on vellum, expressive of the esteem in which he is held by the lodge, and of gratitude for his services as W.M. for two years. The latter not having been completed on that occasion, Bro. Wilton now presented to him this beautiful work of art, addressing him in feeling and complimentary terms. Bro. Wilkinson made a short but effective reply. The lodge was not closed till nearly 11 o'clock.

WOODBIDGE.—Doric Lodge (No. 81).—The ordinary meeting of the lodge was held at the private room, on the 5th inst., under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. E. C. Moor, when Bro. Sudolph was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, and Mr. J. C. Fisk was duly initiated in the first mystical part of Freemasonry. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. R. Allen for so handsomely redecorating the columns and pedestals of the lodge. The lodge was then closed in due form and adjourned to banquet at Bro. John Grout's, Bull Hotel, where peace and harmony prevailed.

MELTHAM.—Lodge of Peace (No. 149).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Saturday evening, the 8th inst., in the Masonic rooms. Present, Bros. A. W. Derbyshire, W.M.; H. W. Wrigley, S.W.; James Haigh, P.M., as J.W.; D. Wood, P.M., Treas.; C. H. Redfern, P.M., Sec.; Wm. Sugg, S.D.; John Heywood, J.D.; James Wilkinson, P.M., as I.G.; John Kenyon, Tyler; David Cairns, I.P.M.; Wm. Haigh, P.M.; Chas. Rayner, P.M.; Foster, J.W.; Sykes, and other brethren. After the minutes of last lodge meeting had been read and confirmed, Bro. Chas. Rayner, P.M., rose and said: "Worshipful Master and brethren, we are assembled here this evening under mournful circumstances. 'In the midst of life we are in death.' 'Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down, like a flower. He fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay.' These are solemn and impressive words which are used in that grand old Church of England burial service of ours, and I think that they are not inappropriate for use on the present occasion. We had a startling proof of their truthfulness whilst assembled round the festive board at our last lodge meeting, for it was then that we received the telegram from our absent W.M. informing us of the unexpected death of our lamented Bro. George Haigh, P.M., and P.P.G.D. of C. Whilst acting as his S.W. during his year of office as W.M. of this lodge I had many opportunities of eulogising his Masonic zeal and eminent talents, and now, brethren, as a last tribute of respect to his memory, and as a mark of our deep and heartfelt sympathy for his sorrowing widow in her bereavement, I take this opportunity of proposing that a letter of condolence be sent to her expressive of that sympathy. In taking upon myself to do this I feel sure that my action is in harmony with your own feelings, and that my proposition will meet with your entire approbation and receive your warm support. The loss to his widow is no ordinary one. She has been deprived of her partner in life, and the father of her children, the sharer of her sorrows and her joys; and although he has left wealth behind him, he has also left behind him a proportionate amount of care, anxiety, and responsibility, much of which must of necessity fall upon her. As we all know, our deceased brother has been a most successful man in life. It was in the year 1858 that he first commenced business on his own account, at the age of twenty-one years, and was then a poor man, comparatively speaking. In the year 1878, after a lapse of twenty years, he was generally acknowledged to have been one of the most successful woollen cloth manufacturers in the Huddersfield district. But, alas! after only five short weeks of the new year 1879 had passed, he had to succumb to a dire disease, which had seized upon him with unrelenting severity, and carried him off at the early age of 41 years. The best medical skill was of no avail in arresting the progress of that fell disease. He was cut off in the very flower of manhood—in the prime of life. He died in full harness, his hands filled with the chief control and principal management of large concerns of various kinds. Since our last lodge meeting his last remains have been committed to the grave, and we shall never more hear his voice within these walls. We shall never again have the opportunity of enjoying such happy social evenings with him in this room as those which some of us have reason to remember so well. But, although his body is now enclosed within the cold tomb, we have a sure and a certain hope that his spirit has ascended to that magnificent temple from whence all goodness emanates. It can truly be said of him that he was both a great and a good man. He could not boast of a high classical education, but he was a man that had great aptitude for self-improvement. His leisure hours were spent in pursuits of an intellectual and an elevating kind. His energy of character, his quiet and unobtrusive perseverance in anything that he took in hand, and his well-known general abilities, won for him the confidence, respect, and admiration of all who knew him. Outside his family circle his loss will be severely felt, not alone by us, but by hundreds of other people, some of whom were his bosom friends, others who were intimately connected with him in business and other matters, and a great many who had had the good fortune to participate in the great benefits which he had been the means of bestowing upon the village of Slaithwaite. His Masonic career, like his general career in life, has been a successful one. He was initiated into Masonry in this room by Bro. Dr. Haigh, P.M., in July, 1869. He was passed in August, and raised in September of the same year, I believe by the same brother. In 1870 he did duty for Bro. Preston, as I.G., and was appointed S.D. for 1871. In 1872 he had no office, but was always ready to take the place of any officer who might happen to be absent. He was appointed J.W. for 1873, S.W. for 1874, and was unanimously elected W.M. for the year 1875. The same year he was appointed a Prov. G. Steward, and a Steward for the annual festival of the R.M. Benevolent Institution. During his year of office as W.M. he had two initiations, two passings, and two raisings, and received great praise for the able manner in which he performed the ceremonies. I followed him in the W.M.'s chair for 1876, and he was I.P.M. It was during this year that the movement was commenced, and successfully carried out, of establishing a Masonic lodge at Slaithwaite. It was consecrated at the end of the year, on December 23rd, by the W.D.P. Grand Master, Bro. Tew, J.P., under the name of Colne Valley Lodge, No. 1645, and I had the honour of installing him as the first W.M. In the year 1877 he was appointed P.G.D. of C. During the first two years of the existence of the Colne Valley Lodge his duties in connection with it as W.M. and I.P.M. were very arduous. He performed no less than forty-five ceremonies, besides taking part in others, in which I and other friends went over to give him assistance. He had thirteen initiations, twenty-one passings, and eleven raisings, the whole of which ceremonies he gave in a most efficient manner and with remarkable impressiveness. The last time that he attended this, his mother lodge, was at the festival of St. John and the installation of his friend, Bro. Derbyshire, as W.M., on the 21st of last December. I have now traced his Masonic career in detail up to the end of 1878 and the beginning of 1879, a career which, for its usefulness and energy, we may say has been an extraordinary one. In conclusion, brethren, seeing that our dear departed brother is now no more, that it has pleased the Great Architect of the Universe to take him away from us, let us never forget that we too have but a short time to live. Let us ever remember that—

A few more seasons come,
And we shall be with those that rest
Asleep within the tomb."

And when that great day does arrive let us all hope, aye, and fervently pray, that we may be found with him in that Grand Lodge above, where the world's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever. The motion was seconded by Bro. H. W. Wrigley, S.W., and feelingly supported by Bro. Edwin Foster and the W.M.

The newly-elected W.M., Bro. C. Hudson, was duly installed and appointed his officers, viz.:—Bro. T. Packham, S.W.; R. J. Pope, J.W.; W. Hudson, sen., Treas.; G. Nash, Sec.; W. H. Gibson, S.D.; G. R. Lockyer, J.D.; W. Devin, Org.; R. T. Nye, D.C.; H. Payne and W. Anderson, Stewards; R. Ridge, I.G.; T. Hughes, Tyler. At the conclusion of the meeting the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where they sat down to a splendid banquet supplied by Bros. Sayers and Marks, Western-road, who fairly outvalued themselves in the choice viands and excellent wines placed before the brethren—nothing being wanting in the arrangements. The chair was taken by the newly-elected W.M., who gave the opening toasts, "The Queen and the Craft;" "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. of England;" "The Right W. Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M. of England;" "The V.W. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M.;" and "The Officers of the Grand Lodge, Present and Past." To the last toast Bro. W. Kuhe responded. The W.M. next proposed "The Rt. W. Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., Provincial G.M. of Sussex." He was sure Sir Walter would have attended their meeting but for his Parliamentary duties. Since he had been elected to his high position he had done his utmost to advance Freemasonry in Sussex; he had visited most lodges in the district, and had so far back as last September paid his official visit to their own lodge. The Worshipful Master then gave "The W. Bro. John H. Scott, Dep. Prov. G.M. of Sussex, and the Officers of Prov. Grand Lodge, Present and Past." Bro. Scott, in responding, remarked that the glowing terms in which the health of Sir W. W. Burrell had been proposed were fully deserved; his genial and kindly feeling added an additional attraction to their meetings, and although he had but two or three lodges in the district yet to visit, he would, he was sure, attend them. Frequent visits could not then be reasonably demanded, but he was sure Sir Walter would endeavour to be present at the installation meetings of the various lodges. The Prov. G. Master, with himself, had received the cordial support of the officers of Prov. G. Lodge, and last week, at the opening of a new lodge at Hurst, two only were absent. He heartily wished the newly-elected W.M. a successful year of office. Bro. Freeman, Prov. G. Secretary, also responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," to which Bros. J. Willing, jun., Wilkinson, and T. J. Sabine responded. Bro. A. J. Hawkes proposed "The W.M., Bro. C. W. Hudson," who responded. The Chairman gave "The Past Masters," to which Bro. A. J. Hawkes responded. The Chairman also proposed "The Officers of the Lodge," which was acknowledged by Bros. T. Packham, G. Nash, W. H. Gibson, and G. R. Lockyer. The Tyler's toast concluded the meeting. During the evening the musical arrangements, under the care of Bro. W. Devin, comprised songs by Bros. E. Broadbridge and R. Nicholson, and pianoforte solos by Bro. W. Kuhe, while Bro. Greenwood gave a recitation. The gathering was most successful.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Affability (No. 317).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. R. Lever, W.M., at 6 o'clock. There were present, Bros. D. Donbavaud, I.P.M.; Mark Vickers, S.W.; William Nicholl, J.W.; Jno. Smehurst, Treas.; John Church, Sec.; R. T. mlins, S.D.; J. Halliday, J.D.; Ezra Cohen, I.G.; J. Bladon, P.M.; J. H. Sillitoe, P.M., P.P.G.D. of C.; and others. Visitors: Bros. Cumberland, P.M. 1611 (York); R. W. Aithen, 999, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been ratified, and the ballot taken for two joining members, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. J. W. Edwards to the Fellow Craft Degree, which ceremony he performed in a most praiseworthy manner. The lodge was lowered to the First Degree, when the W.M. addressed the brethren, and stated his desire to commence a series of lectures and addresses in order to impart a better knowledge of the Order to the members of the lodge. He announced that one P.M. had already volunteered to read a paper that evening, he therefore called upon Bro. J. H. Sillitoe to favour them with his lucubration. Bro. Sillitoe then read an original and exhaustive; sketch on the ancient history of the Craft, supporting his views by quotations from many well-known authorities. At the conclusion, the W.M. invited the brethren to ask any questions they might desire, and some edifying and instructive conversation followed. A vote of thanks was passed to the reader for his interesting paper, and a unanimous wish was expressed that he would continue it on some future occasion, which he at once promised to do by reading a second paper on "Modern Masonry." The lodge was closed and an adjournment made to the banquet hall, where some excellent trios were rendered by Bros. Lever, Stanley, and Aithen, also a recitation by Bro. Donbavaud, which is at all times listened to with special pleasure. The evening was brought to a close at 10.30.

MOTTRAM.—Lodge of Loyalty (No. 320).—This old established lodge held its usual monthly meeting at the Masonic rooms, on Wednesday, the 5th inst. The following brethren were present:—Bros. Wm. Hadfield, W.M.; Hanson, I.P.M.; Ashton, P.M., Treas.; Past Masters Harrison, Swindhurst, and Britner; Bros. H. Kinder, S.W.; J. Burgess, J.W.; Hurst, acting S.D.; W. Wardle, J.D.; Birch, I.G.; and Collier, P.M., Tyler. Lodge 625 was represented by Bro. Drarnaley, I.P.M., as a visitor. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather a goodly number of brethren put in an appearance. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer at 6.30. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read by the Secretary (Bro. Woodhouse) and confirmed, and several items of routine business concluded, the ballot was taken for John Vaxon, of Hadfield, and he being unanimously elected, was initiated by the W.M. in a most efficient and impressive manner. There being no other "work," the lodge was closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous repast, prepared by the host (Bro. Tinker). The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and received in a hearty manner, and the brethren separated at about 11 p.m., bringing a very pleasant reunion to a fitting conclusion.

FOLKESTONE.—Temple Lodge (No. 558).—The annual meeting of the lodge for the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. F. Klatt, was held on Tuesday, the 4th inst., at the Town Hall, the use of which had been kindly granted by the Mayor. There was a goodly muster of the members and visiting brethren. The lodge was draped in black, and the brethren appeared in mourning for the loss of Bro. D. Swinford. In the absence of the retiring W.M., Bro. Field, of the A.S.C. (who has left with his corps for Zululand), the ceremony of installation was ably performed by Bro. A. Cooley, P.P.G.J.W., and P.M. 20, 184, and 972. Previous to the installation Bro. W. Evenden was passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft. The W.M. having been duly installed, proceeded to appoint his officers for the year ensuing, viz.:—Bros. P.M. Earnshaw, P.P.G.J.D., I.P.M.; R. Baker, S.W.; A. Holbein, J.W.; Joseph, Treas. (re-elected); James Kennett, P.P.G.O., P.M., Secretary (in the place of Bro. P.M. Stock, P.P.G. Sup. of W., who had resigned, having held the office for fourteen years); W. Francis, jun., S.D.; J. Eldridge, J.D.; H. S. Roberts, Organist (re-appointed); G. Saxby, I.G.; and Job Baker, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren, to the number of thirty-six, adjourned to the magistrates' room below, which had been prepared for the banquet. This had been provided by Bro. R. Medhurst, of the King's Arms Hotel, which together with the entire arrangements gave great satisfaction. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. Lewis Crombie, P.M. 33, P.G.D., P.P.G.M. of Aberdeen; A. Cooley, P.P.G.J.W., the installing Master; G. Craven, 6; Rubie, W.M., and E. Ashdown, P.M., 125; Keeler, W.M. 1436, and several brethren; Bacon, W.M. 874, Tunbridge Wells; Brothers, W.M. 709, Ashford; Lester, W.M., and Cessford, P.M., 199, Dover. Amongst the Past Masters of the lodge present were Bros. W. F. Gosling, P.P.G.Purs., and J. Snerwood. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Lewis Crombie responded for "The M.W.G.M. and Officers of the Grand Lodge," and Bro. Cooley for "The P.G.M., D.P.G.M., and Provincial Officers, Past and Present." "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Klatt," was next given by Bro. Earnshaw, P.M., and was briefly acknowledged by him. "The Healths of the Installing Master, Past Masters, and Officers of the Lodge," "The Visitors" (responded to by Bro. Craven), and "The Masonic Charities" (responded to by Bro. Earnshaw, the newly appointed delegate to the Prov. Charity Committee), with the Tyler's toast, concluded the evening's entertainment. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Roberts, Organist, and the evening's entertainment was well sustained by some excellent songs and glees by Bros. Plant, Moulding, and Rhodes, of the Canterbury Cathedral Choir.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge, on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, was honoured by a visit from Bro. Col. A. H. King, Royal Artillery, Prov. G.S. Warden for Kent. Bro. T. D. Hayes, W.M., presided, supported by Past Masters H. J. Butter, I.P.M.; C. Coupland, P.P.G.J.W. Kent; W. Tongue, P.P.G.J.W. Kent; J. McDougall, A. Penfold, W. T. Vincent, W. B. Lloyd, S.W.; Jas. Chapman, J.W.; E. Denton, P.M., P.P.G.P. Kent, and Sec.; R. J. Cook, S.D.; H. Mason, J.D.; R. Edmonds, I.G.; H. Pryce, D.C.; T. Reed, W.S.; C. Cooke, Org. Among the visitors were Bros. H. J. Picken, W.M. 1536; G. M. Tapp, P.M. 706; W. Gamble, 706; Captain E. S. Gordon, Royal Artillery, J.W. 706; C. Norman, P.M. 700; J. Wilkins, J.W. 700; J. Black, I.G. 706; Jas. Smith, 1744; W. Iron, 902; J. Holloway, 706; C. Beard, 700; G. Beaver, I.G. 700; A. W. Moore, 967; W. A. Watkins, 1536; W. Holleyman, J.D. 1536; G. Kennedy, Sec. 1536; Lieut. Petley, R.N., 706; S. Hare, 706; and C. Jolly (Freemason). The lodge having been opened in due form and with solemn prayer, Bro. King was announced, and was met at the entrance of the lodge by the Past Masters, and escorted to the post of honour on the right of the W.M., and received with grand honours. The minutes and accounts were passed, and then the ballot was taken for Ambrose Flagg Esq., of Christ's College, Cambridge, and was found to be unanimous. Mr. Thos. Messer was then balloted for as a serving brother, the necessary dispensation having been granted by Grand Lodge for that purpose, and upon approval he was initiated and withdrew. Bro. C. Smith, of the Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744, presided at the harmonium during the ceremony of initiation. Bro. Butter, the I.P.M., then rose, and said: W.M., we are honoured this evening by the presence amongst us of Bro. Col. King, our Provincial Grand Senior Warden, and I rise for the purpose of proposing that our heartfelt thanks be presented him for the honour he has done us by thus coming amongst us. The position of our brother in H.M. Army, and the many calls necessarily made upon his time in that position, and as well as his services in the province, must make it an effort for him to come among us often, but, Worshipful Sir, I desire in the name of the lodge to thank him for his visit this night, and, further, that our thanks be inscribed upon the minutes of the lodge. The W.M.: Bro. Butter and brethren, I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution. No one can be more deeply sensible of the honour conferred upon the lodge by the presence of our distinguished Bro. Col. King than I am, and while I am sorry, to a certain extent, that we have not more work to do before him, yet I trust that at some future time our brother will again honour us when we shall have the whole of the degrees to work. I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution. The resolution was carried unanimously. Bro. Col. King said: W.M., officer, and brethren of the Pattison Lodge, let me, in the first place, thank you for your very cordial and gratifying reception of me this night, and in the next, allow me to express my pleasure at having witnessed the admirable manner in which you, Worshipful Sir, and your officers have conducted the business of the lodge. I do not take the honour you have paid me to myself, but I do take it, that through me you desire to, and do, do honour to the Craft. As S.W. of the Province of Kent, I do not visit the lodges so much as I perhaps ought, and certainly not so much as I should like, but I have visited a great many and I have always been received in a most cordial and gratifying manner. As I said before, I do not take the honour to myself, and here to-night I feel that you are honouring in me your P.G. Master, Lord Holmsdale. His lordship will, I feel sure, be gratified to hear of the reception the Pattison Lodge has accorded to one of his officers, and, for myself, I thank you most cordially and sincerely. The lodge was then closed in due form, and our esteemed and gallant brother retired amid every demonstration of respect and affection from the brethren. At the refreshment board the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, and the evening was spent in harmony and brotherly love.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The ordinary monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, St. Leonardgate, on Monday, the 3rd inst. Bro. Helme, the W.M., presided, and was supported by his respective officers. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of prior meeting read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. John Cutts, and proving unanimous, he was subsequently admitted, and initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M., the working of the degree being gone through with considerable impressiveness. The working tools were presented by the J.W. The lodge was afterwards opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Hannay was advanced to the pedestal, and gave evidence of his proficiency as a Craftsman, which being satisfactory, he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Hannay was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason by Bro. Sheriff, I.P.M., occupying the chair of K.S., the working of the degree being carefully and efficiently done. The lodge was then closed down, and the usual proclamations having been given and responded to, the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Lodge (No. 1094).—At a meeting of this lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, the chair was occupied by Bro. Thomas Williams, W.M., and amongst others present were, Bros. William Crane, P.M.; R. R. Martin, P.M., D.C.; Rich. Washington, P.M., S.W.; T. Birch, J.W.; Job. Wood, Treasurer (Freemason); T. Marsh, P.M., P.P.G.A.D.C., Sec.; H. B. Jones, S.D.; John Alexander, J.D.; H. Horspool, I.G.; E. Callow, and Thos. Leave, Stewards; Peter Ball, Tyler. The members were, Bros. Robt. Bethel, Edwd. Chaters, John Cave, W. Callow, Wm. Pyc, E. W. Boulding, R. Ellinger, M. Yeoman; and the visitors, Bros. D. Parry, 1086; J. W. Wright, W.M. 786; and John Tickle, 1264. The lodge was opened at six o'clock by the W.M., and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. F. E. Bouthead, which was declared unanimously in his favour. The candidate was subsequently initiated in a most effective manner by the W.M., and the most impressive way in which the ancient charge was given by the S.W., Bro. Washington, created a deep impression upon all who were present. After business the brethren adjourned to banquet, supplied most satisfactorily by the House Steward. After the standard loyal and Masonic toasts had been proposed, the W.M., Bro. T. Williams, gave "The Health of our Newly-initiated Brother." In doing so the W.M. said: Brethren, I have now the pleasure of submitting another toast for your acceptance, and when I tell you it is the toast which on occasions like the present we usually consider the principal one of the evening, you will at once understand its nature. As Freemasons we are always happy to receive into our circle those of our friends and fellow townsmen whom we have known from the tongue of good report to be "good men and true," and I am sure you will fully agree with me when I say that the names of Bro. Cave, and Bro. Past Master

Martin, as the proposer and seconder of Mr. Boustead, who has been initiated this evening, are quite a sufficient guarantee that he is one of the right sort. But when I say this I do not wish it to be understood that he is only one of the right sort at the festive part of our arrangements, far from that, for at this moment, brethren, I am thinking of something higher, and nobler, and grander, something which as Freemasons should affect our public and every day life, and be visible in our daily intercourse with our fellow men, which should also have a large influence on the domestic and inner life of every Mason—I mean the practical working out of those great principles which form the foundation, the structure, the top stone of our magnificent Institution. It is true we do not require to know, neither is it part of our duty to enquire, what are the particular religious beliefs and sentiments of those who wish to be admitted into our lodges—I think, brethren, we all agree that these are matters simply resting between man's conscience and God; but we do require to be most positively assured that every man who is admitted into our brotherhood should have a firm and solid belief in the Great Architect of the Universe, as the only Sovereign maker and ruler of all things, the creator and sustainer of all His creatures, the object of our adoration and praise, that He is our Father, that His word which He has given us, and which is one of the greatest proofs of His love, is given to cheer and comfort our hearts in time of sorrow and trouble, to strengthen us when we are weak, to enhance our joys, to be our guiding star through life, and down into the dark valley, and beyond, away into that grand and glorious lodge above, where faith is absorbed in sight, and the Great Master is visible in all His splendour and magnificence. Those of you, brethren, who have taken the trouble to search into, and properly understand what is required and expected of us, if we would carry out what we profess, will, I am sure, agree with me, what to be consistent Freemasons we must be loyal subjects, useful citizens, kind neighbours, loving friends, good fathers, husbands, sons, and brothers, and that we exercise to the utmost of our ability those beautiful Masonic ornaments which occupy such a prominent position in our Institutions, namely, benevolence and charity; and when we have done all this what a vast amount is left undone, and which it would be impossible even to hint at this evening. Brother Boustead, we welcome you into our midst, and may you find much happiness and pleasure in your association with the brethren of the Temple Lodge. Some of my most treasured friends are on the roll book of 1894; may you find their companionship as sweet as I have, and you will be more than satisfied; if possible, be regular and punctual in your attendance, study the requirements of our Order, make yourself acquainted with its principles—they are brotherly love, relief, and truth, to which we will add, if possible, an additional lustre, the words of Holy Writ, honour all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, honour the king. Brethren, join with me in the toast, "Bro. Boustead, the Newly-initiated Member of our Lodge." The toast having been enthusiastically received, Bro. Boustead responded in a few well-chosen words, expressing a hope that he would never do anything to disgrace the Order into which he had been received so cordially that day. "The Visitors" and one or two other toasts were proposed during a most agreeable evening.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The installation meeting of the above lodge took place on the 4th inst., at Bro. West's, the Three Crowns, when Bro. W. T. Turner, W.M. elect, was, with the usual honours, placed in the chair of K.S. The brethren began to assemble at about three o'clock, and shortly after Bro. Manning, W.M., opened the lodge, supported by his officers and the following Past Masters and visitors:—Past Masters E. West, P.M. 1076, and P.P.G.D.C. Herts; B. B. Brayshaw, P.M. 1076, and A.P. Prov. G. Officer of Essex; W. J. Graham, P.M. 700; J. Ives, P.M. and Sec.; F. Brian, W.M. 1076; A. Woodley, W.M. 700; J. C. Match, W.M. 706; W. Gilbert, P.M. 1327, and P.P.G.J.W. Herts; Jos. Gaskill, P.M. 1076; H. J. Taplay, J.W. 1076; Jas. Hemming, 1287; J. Paul, 1287; G. Ayres, 742; D. Hutchinson, 25; R. E. J. Mathews, 706; R. Wells, 704; J. Tame, 700; Hogarth, and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed, Bro. Manning passed Bro. Biggs to the Second Degree, and then proceeded to instal his successor, and under his hands Bro. Turner received the dignity of W.M. of the Henley Lodge. Having been duly saluted, Bro. Turner invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Dr. W. Vance, S.W.; E. J. Lloyd, J.W.; J. Ives, P.M., Sec.; A. J. Manning, I.P.M., Treas.; Jas. Elcer, S.D.; Jas. Palmer, J.D.; W. J. Burgess, I.G.; V. J. Holloway, D.C.; C. T. Lewis, W.S.; M. Sherwin, Org.; and W. Page, P.M. 1076, Tyler. Bro. Manning then finished his work by delivering the Three Charges, in a style seldom surpassed for eloquence and impressiveness, and received the congratulations of all present for his excellent working. The first official act of the new W.M. was, in the name of the lodge, to present to Bro. Manning a handsome Past Master's jewel, of the value of ten guineas, and it was further resolved that a vote of thanks should be entered on the minutes of the lodge, and a testimonial, to be engrossed on vellum, be presented to him for the masterly manner in which he had carried out the ceremony of installation. Bro. Manning suitably returned thanks, and the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then sat down to a superbly presented banquet, under the superintendence of the worthy host, and upon its removal the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and drank right loyally. In giving the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. Manning said it was the first time he had the honour to propose that toast. It was a pleasure that he had long looked forward to, and was one of great importance. From what he and they had seen of their W.M., he believed his whole heart and soul were in the duties of his office and the prosperity of the lodge. He had worked hard in every office he had held in the lodge, and was worthy of the position he had just been exalted to. With these few remarks he would ask them to do honour to the toast. The W.M., in reply, briefly expressed his thanks, and said there had been several W. Masters in that chair whose career had been one of unclouded success, and whose excellence he was afraid he should not be able to emulate, but with the help of his officers he trusted to make the lodge, if not better than when he found it, at least make it retain its position as high as he found it, and as successful as it had been in Bro. Manning's year. If he did that, he should not have reason to regret. He trusted that peace, concord, and unanimity would continue to reign in the lodge, and that at the end of his year of office he should feel, and they acknowledge, that he had done his duty, and faithfully followed in the footsteps of his predecessors, in adding both to the numbers and finances of the lodge. Bro. P.M. West then introduced to the notice of the lodge a brother who was in distress, and who was well-known to him as a Mason, who had at one time been in good circumstances, not only in England, but at the Cape of Good Hope, where at present his friends were, and to which place he desired to return. His call was attended to, and after a proper investigation and report by the I.P.M., the W.M. decided to devote the proceeds of the charity box to the needs of the poor brother. The first collection realized £4 4s., Bro. P.M. Graham gave another 10s., and the sum was immediately made up to £5, which was presented to the brother, who, after returning thanks most earnestly, went on his way rejoicing. The next toast was "The Visitors," and in giving it the W.M. expressed his pleasure as seeing so large an array present. He asked the brethren of the lodge to give the toast the reception it deserved. Bro. Gilbert said he had just been thinking that there were many great and invaluable privileges in Masonry, and one was that if they were true and proper Masons, they would have very often the privilege of exercising that greatest of all Masonic virtues, charity. They had that night seen how useful and how excellent a thing it was, and in no other sphere of life could they have seen how the claims of a poor and distressed fellow creature to their assistance were listened to, investigated, and relieved more spontaneously or heartily than they had that night, and in that room. There was another privilege, highly prized among them, and that was the privilege of coming into a lodge of which they were not members, and not only participating in the beautiful ceremonies, but of extending the right hand of fellowship, and receiving the hospitality of the brotherhood, and thus with labour and refreshment sanctifying such gatherings as the present. He trusted none of them would ever require the aid of charity, but he felt sure of one thing, that in a lodge like the Henley, where charity and hospitality reigned, and where there were such evidences of brotherly love and excellent working as he had witnessed that day, it must go on and prosper, and that it might do so was his, and he felt sure the heartfelt wish of every visitor present. Bro. Woodley said it was the third time he had attended the installation meetings of this lodge, and every time confirmed his opinion that it would be one of the best in the district. The Nelson Lodge, over which he had the honour to preside, considered this lodge its child, and was very proud of it. Bro. Brian thanked them for the invitation given him, and his Wardens, because it proved to him that there was no cloud between the Henley and the Capper Lodge. The reason why invitations were not sent out by the Capper Lodge at their last installation was on account of financial difficulties, but they were cleared up, and they were in such a position that for the future the usual invitations would be sent out by the lodge. Bros. Gaskell, Hutchinson, Wells, Ayres, Hogarth, and Tame, as well responded. In response to the toast of "The Past Masters" Bro. Manning said the Past Masters were always anxious for the dignity of the lodge. The prospects of the lodge were most excellent, and he hoped before long to see a chapter attached to it. As there were other Past Masters who would have something to say he would only heartily thank them for the toast. Past Master Graham in the course of an eloquent speech said reference had been made by Bro. Woodley to the Nelson Lodge, of which he had the honour of being a Past Master, as being the mother of that lodge. The mother always liked to look after, and did always rejoice in the prosperity of its child. He was proud of his position as a Past Master in a lodge like this, which carried out its duties in such a manner as made it an honour to Freemasonry. He spoke of the great charities of the Order, and trusted now the lodge was so flourishing it would subscribe to their funds. He had said in that room that he should at all times be pleased to receive applications for Masonic teaching from any member who aspired to the position achieved by their W.M. that day, and that was the feeling of every Past Master. He then spoke of the duties of the W.M., and reminded him that he was expected to undertake a Stewardship of one of the charities, as well as look after the welfare of the lodge. He alluded in flattering terms to the Freemason, which carried to the brethren, not only through the length and breadth of England, tidings of their lodge work, but all over the world. He advocated it as a valde necesse of Masonic lore and information, and as an old and constant subscriber for the last ten years, from its very first institution, he thanked it as a power and help to Freemasonry. After paying a high compliment to Bro. Manning for his splendid working of the ceremonies of the day, Bro. Graham concluded a lengthy and brilliant address. "The Officers" were then toasted, and then the Tyler's toast concluded a most enjoyable meeting.

BOOTLE.—Bootle Lodge (No. 1473).—The annual installation meeting of this celebrated suburban lodge, which is invariably attended with success and enjoyment, took place on Thursday afternoon, the 6th inst., at the Town Hall, Bootle, near Liverpool, where there was a large and good representative attendance of officers and other rulers in the Craft. Bro. John Duncan, jun., the retiring W.M., presided at the opening of the lodge, and he was supported by Bros. Richard Roberts, I.P.M.; H. Wyatt, P.M.; Major T. D. Pierce, P.M. (Town Clerk); J. W. Farley, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; W. H. Clemmey, S.W. (the W.M. elect); J. C. Paterson, J.W.; S. E. Ibbes, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Treasurer; R. A. Hough, Secretary; T. J. Young, S.; R. Harley, S.; J. P. Bryan, Organist, and W. Blake, Tyler. The members present were Bros. H. Howe, H. M. Molyneux, P.M. 823, R. E. Mellor, J. Lamb, W. J. Rice, J. Smith, J. E. Dowling, E. Pratt, W. Graham, J. C. Clarke, R. Scott, G. F. Walsh, J. Griffiths, H. Pennington, A. Beale, W. C. Fane, W. R. Brewster, and C. Muirhead. The list of visitors included the names of Bros. J. Newell, P.M. 1035 (the Mayor of Bootle); H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; J. Houlding, P.M. 823; T. Foulkes, 1325; F. J. Pentin, W.M. 1713; J. Little, 667; C. Johnston, W.M. 1756; Jos. Clemmey, 163 (Integrity, Manchester); A. Soldas, 1246; J. Parry, 1547; H. Jones, 673; J. Cobham, W.M. 1380; A. V. Henderson, 1225; T. G. Fisher, 1399; J. Jones, P.M. 216; C. Tyrer, S.W. 1620; R. Chabham, 1356; J. T. Gould, 594; C. Wells, P.G.D.C.; G. Maxwell, 594; C. Waterson, 1055; W. Forrester, 1035, and others. The ceremony of initiation was, after the minutes had been confirmed, performed by Bro. J. Duncan, jun., W.M., and the sterling style in which he did this important work showed how well and efficiently he had fulfilled the duties of the chair during his year of office. Bro. Duncan then proceeded to instal Bro. Councillor W. H. Clemmey, an active member of the West Derby Board of Guardians, as the W.M. of the Bootle Lodge for the ensuing year; and this last work of his official year still further proved Bro. Duncan's Masonic capability. The following brethren were invested as officers during 1879-80:—Bros. Duncan, jun., I.P.M.; Councillor S. E. Ibbes, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Treas. (re-appointed); J. P. M'Arthur, P.M., D.C.; J. C. Paterson, S.W.; R. A. Hough, J.W.; H. Wyatt, P.M., Sec.; T. F. Young, Asst. Sec.; J. P. Bryan, Org.; W. R. Brewster, S.D.; R. Minton, I.D.; R. Harley, I.G.; R. Scott, S.; and W. Blake, Tyler (re-elected). As an evidence of brotherly feeling in official life, it may be stated that amongst the numerous visitors were Bro. John Houlding, P.M. 823, Chairman of the West Derby Board of Guardians; Bro. John Jones, P.M. 216; and Bro. C. Tyrer, S.W. 1620 (members of the same board). The brethren, after business, sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. R. Scott, of the Wyndham Hotel. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were afterwards duly honoured. In responding to the toast of "Our Masonic Rulers," Bro. Alpass, P.G. Secretary, remarked that no one could know so well as himself how few were the complaints in the Province of West Lancashire, and bore testimony to the fact and justice of their P.G.M. (Lord Skelmersdale) in dealing with such matters. He complimented No. 1473 on the way in which it was conducted, and more expressly on the example set by the I.P.M. in so efficiently installing his successor. He also congratulated them on the fact that they had given up their ball this year in order to hand over the very handsome sum given to the distress fund in Bootle, while they had not neglected their Masonic Charities. He wished every lodge would do the same, or something similar; and he cautioned the brethren as individuals against paying too much attention to the forms of Freemasonry, and neglecting its cardinal precepts, especially charity. Other toasts followed, including that of "The W.M.," which was most enthusiastically received. In responding, Bro. Clemmey took the opportunity of presenting the I.P.M. (Bro. John Duncan, jun.) with a beautiful Past Master's jewel on behalf of the lodge. After a most enjoyable evening the brethren separated. The musical portion of the evening's proceedings was efficiently rendered by Bros. Waterson, 1035; Thos. Foulkes, 1325; and W. Forrester, 1035; with Bro. Bryan, Organist, as accompanist.

MOLD.—Sir Watkin Lodge (No. 1477).—Last week the feast of St. John of the above lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Mold. Among the visitors present were Bros. F. Smith, P.P.G.S. of W. Cheshire; T. M. Lockwood, P.P.G.S. of W. Cheshire; W. Matthews, P.P.G.A.D. of C. Cheshire; P. Maddox, P.P.G.S. of W. West Lanc.; A. H. Edwards, P.P.G. Reg. West Lanc.; Donald Fraser, P.M. 477; R. M. Edwards, I.P.M. 721; E. Smith, W.M. 1836; Evan Clewry Jones, S.W. 721; W. H. Foulkes, S.W. 1674; J. C. Owen, S.W. 1336; J. B. Murlless, S.W. 1432; H. C. Lloyd, J.W. 721; J. Pye, J.W. 425; H. Davis, J.W. 1336; C. Petty, 477 Stanhope Hall, 425; G. Bradley, 1336, and others. The lodge was opened before Bro. Algernon Potts, I.P.M., who afterwards installed Bro. A. J. Brereton, S.W., as Worshipful Master for the year. The W.M. elect nominated and invested the following as his officers: J. Rowlands, S.W.; W. Roberts, J.W.; R. C. Griffiths, S.D.; G. H. Adams, J.D.; J. S. Swift, I.G.; J. Rose, Sec.; R. W. Lewis, Treas.; T. Ollis and Lambert, Stewards; E. Parry, Tyler. A banquet was afterwards held at the Black Lion Hotel.

TEDDINGTON.—Sir Charles Bright Lodge (No. 1793).—The first regular meeting of this lodge since its consecration was held at the Clarence Hotel, on the 1st inst. There were present Bros. J. Hurst, P.M. 1512, W.M.; Forge, S.W.; Piller, J.W.; Fitt, Secretary; Linton, J.D.; Stevens, Organist; Harrison, acting Tyler; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, S.D. (Freemason). The visitors were: Bros. Abbett and White, 1656. The minutes of the consecration and installation meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot for two initiates and five joining members was taken, and having been declared unanimous, Mr. Goodchild, being in attendance, was ably initiated into Craft mysteries by the W.M. The other candidate for initiation was unavoidably absent. The draft bye-laws were then read, and passed nem. con. The W.M. then invested the following officers: Bros. Fricker, Treas.; Goodchild, I.G., and Abbott, D.C. Upon the motion of Bros. Abbott and Fricker, it was unanimously resolved that the founders of the lodge should each be presented with a jewel in recognition of their services. A number of propositions for initiation having been handed in, the lodge was closed, and adjourned until the last Saturday in April. The brethren then partook of an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual routine of Royal and Craft toasts were done full justice to. The toast of "The D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past," was acknowledged by Bro. Walls, who then gave "The W.M." Bro. Hurst, in reply, dwelt at length upon the very great success that had attended the consecration of the lodge on the previous Saturday, and which ceremony had been so ably reported in the columns of the Freemason. He should, therefore, not dilate upon those proceedings, as they could purchase the journal and judge for themselves of the eclat that had attended their young venture on the 22nd ult. He had long had a desire to found a lodge in connection with the district, but he had not dreamt that he should have been called upon to be its first Master. The proposal of his health had said so many flattering things in connection with his Masonic career, that he did not feel competent to touch upon them any farther than to heartily assure them that they should never have occasion to regret having placed him in that high and honourable position. "The Health of the Initiate" followed, and was ably acknowledged by Bro. Goodchild, to the effect that he had been highly gratified with the whole proceedings, and that he was only sorry that he had not entered Freemasonry earlier in life, as, although his knowledge of its mysteries at present was exceedingly limited, yet he had seen and heard enough to convince him that it was an Institution to be proud of. "The Visitors" came next in order, and was responded to in a neat speech by Bro. White. In giving "The Masonic Charities," the W.M. dwelt at some length upon the principles of those deservedly popular Institutions, and concluded by expressing a hope that the brethren would, as far as compatible with their circumstances, assist the cause of Masonic charity on all occasions. This toast was coupled with the names of Bros. Linton and Walls, who briefly replied. "The Officers" received full justice at the hands of Bros. Forge and Piller. The Tyler having been called upon to discharge his duty, the proceedings terminated.

LANCASTER.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 7th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, Morecambe. Bro. Thomas Longmire occupied the chair of K.S., and there was a fair attendance of brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Brayshay, having given proficiency as a F.C., was entrusted, and retired. During his absence the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Brayshay was re-admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., the ceremony being well gone through by the W.M., and who afterwards presented the working tools. The lodge was subsequently closed down to the First Degree with the usual formalities. A vote of condolence was passed to Bro. F. G. Dale (I.P.M. 1353), who had suffered a severe domestic bereavement. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. R. Taylor, P.M. 281, for a gift to the lodge. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—There was only a thin attendance at this lodge of instruction, which met at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Tuesday, the 11th inst. This is to be regretted, as the lodge has an able and willing Preceptor in Bro. J. J. Carter, and is also now in possession of a complete set of working tools. The brethren present were Bros. J. Frost, W.M.; A. N. Newens, S.W.; J. J. Holland, J.W.; P. V. Denham, S.D.; W. A. Morgan, I.G.; A. B. Blackmore, F. Reed, and A. A. Denham, Sec. Bro. Frost was complimented for his working of the First Degree, with Bro. Blackmore as candidate. The W.M.'s chair was then taken by Bro. W. A. Morgan (the W.M. of the 1044), who ably rehearsed the Second and Third Degrees, Bros. Blackmore and Reed being the candidates. Bro. A. N. Newens was unanimously chosen as W.M. for the ensuing meeting.

Royal Arch.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER (No. 1507).—A meeting of this chapter was held at the Metropolitan Club, 269, Pentonville-road, King's Cross, on Thursday, 6th inst., at five. Present: Comps. James Willing, M.E.Z.; J. R. Stacey, H.; Ferguson, J.; W. M. Stiles, Scribe E.; Hudson, Scribe N.; J. Douglass, P.S. Also Stiles, Gilbert, Tuck, Beattie, Claire, Edmonds, and others. Visitors: Comps. Briggs, Dyte, and Stead. The meetings of previous convocation were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Bros. Holt, 1744; Side, 1507; Sillis, 1744; Cherry, 19; Deller, 1744; J. F. Van Camp, 1507; E. Van Camp, 1507; W. S. Daniel, 1541. This being unanimous, they were exalted in a most impressive form, the several lectures as well as the ceremony being most effectively rendered. The Scribe E. reported that the Grand Chapter had approved bye-laws, which were ordered to be printed. Several new propositions were made for exaltation, and the companions adjourned to a splendid banquet provided by the proprietor of the club, Bro. Cox, with the usual satisfaction to the companions.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Chapter (No. 874).—This young and prosperous chapter held its last convocation on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the Pump Room, and there were present Comps. W. Stephens, M.E.Z.; W. Delves, H.; W. J. Murlis, J.; S. B. Wilmot, I.P.Z.; R. W. Delves, S.E.; H. Williams, S.N.; C. Graham, acting P.Z.; W. T. Bates, 1st A.S.; C. W. Holt, D.C.; and Spencer, Janitor. The visitors were Comps. W. J. Murlis, 177; and Grist, 177. The rooms, set aside exclusively for Masonic purposes, and the beautiful furniture, called forth the approbation of all present. The minutes of the previous convocation and emergency meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was then taken for Bros. Waterman and Whitehead, which proving unanimous, they were duly exalted to the Sublime Degree of the Royal Arch, the ceremony being performed in such a manner that left nothing to be desired; in fact, the working of the beautiful ritual by Comp. Stephens is always so correct and impressive that the companions are to be congratulated on having such a First Principal to preside over them. A notice of motion having been given by Comp. Wilmot, P.Z., viz.:—"That the installation meeting be changed from October to December," and "Hearty Good Wishes" from Chapters No. 177 and 1540, the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the Royal Sussex Hotel, when a most enjoyable evening was passed, the companions separating at an early hour.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (T.I.). The quarterly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, 27th ult. The lodge was opened at 8.15 by Bro. Rubie, S.W., was unanimously elected, and the present Treasurer was reappointed. The I.P.M., Secretary, and Wardens were elected Auditors of the accounts. The lodge was closed at a quarter to ten.

ANDERSON, JAMES, D.D.—Referring to the mention of this brother in the Freemason of last week, it may be added that his decease on May 28th, 1739, was duly announced in the "Scot's," as well as in the "Gentleman's Magazine" of that year. The obituary notice in the "Scot's Magazine" I subjoin. In addition to being Master of the Seventeenth Lodge, the names of whose Master and Wardens were appended to the Constitutions of 1723, Anderson was also, along with Bros. Payne and D-saguliers, a member of Original No. 4 (now Royal Somerset House), in which lodge he had probably been in the engraved list of the same year, and of these only initiated. Of the twenty lodges enumerated in the Constitutions of 1723, I have only been able to identify thirteen four survive at the present date, viz.: present Nos. 2 (Antiquity), No. 1 in Constitutions and also in engraved list; 12 (Fortitude and Old Cumberland), No. 3, in Constitutions, No. 2 in engraved list; 4 (Somerset House), No. 4 in Constitutions, No. 5 in engraved list; 14 (Tuscan), No. 19 in Constitutions, No. 35 in engraved list. It is almost certain that present Nos. 6 (Friendship), 8 (British), 10 (Westminster and Key Stone); and 16 (Royal Alpha), must, through their Masters and Wardens, have approved the Constitutions of 1723. But though both the existing Friendship and British Lodges are plainly traceable from the engraved list of 1723 to current date, I have been unable to connect either with the earlier list exhibited in the Constitutions. During 1723—29 the Friendship met at the King's Head, Ivy Lane; and the British at Tom's Coffee House, Clare-st., Clare Market.

R. F. GOULD.

"On Monday, May 28th, died, at his house in Essex-court, in the Strand, the Reverend and learned James Anderson, D.D., a member of the Church of Scotland, and native of this kingdom, author of "The Royal Genealogies," and several other works, a gentleman of uncommon abilities and most facetious conversation. But, notwithstanding his great talents, and the useful application he made of them, being, by the prodigious expense attending the above-mentioned work, reduced to slender circumstances, he has, for some years, been exposed to misfortunes, above which the encouragement due to his merit would have easily raised him.

"But the remembrance of his qualifications, and the many hardships under which he was publicly known to labour, will serve to show succeeding generations there was a time when Italian singers, by English contributions, were favoured with 5 or £6000 per annum, and a gentleman, who, by more than twenty years' study, gave the world a book of inconceivable labour and universal use, was suffered to fall a victim to his attempt to serve mankind."—Scot's Magazine (Edinburgh, 1739), Vol. I, p. 236.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall. Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer, presided, and there were also present Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, Dr. Jabez Hogg, Griffiths Smith, A. H. Tattershall, C. A. Coltebrune, F. Adlard, J. M. Case, S. Rawson, Thos. Cubitt, W. Stephens, H. C. Levander, James Brett, J. G. Stevens, C. Lacey, W. F. Nettleship, J. A. Farnfield, L. Stean, James Willing, Edgar Bowyer, R. Warner Wheeler, W. Hilton, James Terry (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Terry read the minutes, which were put and confirmed, and reported the death of three annuitants. Several petitions from widows for the allowance of half their late husband's annuities were granted, and the Warden's report was read.

The Chairman gave notice of a motion for raising the Secretary's salary £100, on account of the great success which has attended the Institution, and which is in great part attributable to the exertions of Bro. Terry.

On the motion of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart it was agreed to invite the Stewards of the late festival to visit the Institution at Croydon.

Some formal business having been disposed of, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

CONSECRATION OF THE DE VERE LODGE, No. 1794.

The consecration of the above lodge took place on Monday, 3rd inst., in the Council Chamber, Nottingham, Bro. Sir James Oldknowe, the Mayor, having granted it for the use of the brethren on this occasion. The ceremony was performed in a most able and impressive manner by the W. Bro. John Watson, D.P.G.M. Notts, assisted by the Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers. The Provincial Grand Chaplain, the W. Bro. the Rev. F. V. Bussell, P.M., gave one of the most beautiful addresses ever delivered on such an occasion, and it was appreciated by the brethren in such a manner that they have requested permission to print and distribute it. The offertory, amounting to £8 10s. 9d., will be devoted to the endowment of the Master's chair. At the conclusion of the consecration, the ceremony of the installation of the W.M. designate, Bro. Isaac Davis, A.P.G.P. Notts, P.M. 47, was then performed by the W. Bro. Thos. Danks, P.P.G.S.W., P.G. Treas. Notts, after which the W.M. appointed and invested the following officers: Bros. S. G. Gilbert, S.W.; H. J. Norris, J.W.; S. Jackson, I.P.M. The business was concluded by the election of the Consecrating Officer, W. Bro. John Watson, as an honorary member, and the proposing of a large number of brethren as joining members, and also several candidates for initiation. The banquet took place at the George Hotel, and was in all respects a very successful affair. The usual toasts were given, and some of the brethren replying mentioned facts in connection with the history of Freemasonry in Nottingham which many present heard for the first time. The musical arrangements both at consecration and banquet were under the direction of Bro. W. Wright, Prov. G. Organist.

ST. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

The committee in connection with the movement for the restoration of the west front of St. Alban's Abbey again met in the board room of the Freemason's Hall, on Thursday afternoon. There was a fair attendance of members. Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., P.G.M. Herts, occupied the chair. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed. He then announced that the following subscriptions were paid:—Bros. T. F. Halsey, M.P., P.G.M. Herts, £5; the Hertford Chapter 403, £10 10s.; W. Hope, M.D., D.M. 2, £5; the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G. Chaplain, £5; F. Sumner Knyvet P.M., P.G. Steward, £5; C. W. Reynolds, J.D. 1479, £5; and C. R. Rivington, £5. He had received since the last meeting the following additional promises of subscriptions:—The Chapter of Felicity, £5; Bros. Professor Erasmus Wilson, S.G.D., £5; W. Ramsay, £5; B. F. R. Webster, P.M. 1479, £5; E. J. Byron, P.G.D., £5; S. G. Finch, P.M., £5; and J. E. Dawson, W.M. 404, £5.

Bro. Keyser thought it was opportune that the members should be made acquainted with the present state of their accounts. They had already standing to their credit in the London and County Bank, at St. Albans £89, 12s., which with the promised amount of £143 5s., would make a total of £232 17s. The expenses up to the present time had only been £4 15s. 2d. Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford thought it was right to say that this amount had been entirely collected by Bro. Keyser. They had had no appeals circulated amongst the brotherhood. It had all been done by private correspondence, and he thought this was a promising augury for the success of the movement.

Two other brethren were proposed as members of the Committee. It was also decided that Bro. Keyser should be empowered to write to all the Prov. Grand Secretaries inviting them to act on the Central Committee.

The meeting then proceeded to the principal business of the sitting, namely, the consideration of the circulars as amended by the Sub-Committee appointed at the last meeting, which it is proposed to send to the Secretaries of all the lodges throughout the kingdom. They were finally drawn up and agreed to.

The Secretary read several letters from influential brethren expressing their hearty sympathy with the movement, and after some other business, the meeting adjourned till Thursday, the 8th of April, when the Committee will meet in the same place at 4.30.

THE COURSE OF SOUND MASONIC LITERATURE.

In our last issue we called attention to the "decennial period" of our Freemason, though we said nothing about "profits," which we left to the imagination of our readers. But it has occurred to us that we might follow up the announcement of that interesting, historical, literary, and Masonic fact, by the promulgation of certain rules and regulations, which we, from our own experience, deem essential to the progress of a true and sound, and creditable Masonic literature amongst us. In the first place, we must set our face more and more against personality of all kinds. In the past, personality has been confessedly the bane, the weakness, the disgrace of our English Masonic literature, and it is still one of the difficulties most trying to meet, and most serious to overcome. Some men will be personal. It seems as if personality were part of their very nature. They can never give credit to any one else for high motives, true aims, consistent conduct, or Masonic qualities, hence they impart into all they write the ignoble and debasing style of the mere partizan or fanatic. They never can afford to be generous, much less to be just. If they have to write about the commonest subject they will cast dirt on any one who opposes their views, and on the principle "throw plenty, and some of it must stick," they seem to resemble more than anything else that we are aware of that historically dirty bird which befouls its own nest. We read diatribes sometimes which are a disgrace to Masonic professions; insinuations which we know are mendacious; suggestions which are libellous; and charges which are ridiculous; simply because in the hot field of controversy, "Greek" has met "Greek," and hence the "tug of war." In the Freemason—we admit not so fully as we could wish—we have tried to "keep clear" of "personality" as well as of "politics," but on the whole there has been a marked advance in this respect from the first moment the Freemason appeared to this hour. Any Masonic paper which aspires to please and represent the Freemasons of to-day must keep clear of personality, as it constitutes an utter parody on all Masonic professions to see brother belabouring brother, and brother attacking brother in the weekly and peaceful pages of a Masonic paper; and such a state of things is both ludicrous and lamentable. We must indeed have controversy; we live in a world of controversy, as some one has said, but in all controversy as Freemasons we should never forget the high duties of courtesy, fairness, moderation, and that we are professedly brethren, friends, and above all gentlemen. Another point to be avoided is needless discussions on the ritual of Freemasonry. We have for some time felt in the Freemason that far too much was written in minute detail of lodge proceedings, and we have, therefore, limited such matter, restricted it, and watched over it. But as Masonic literature has a large "outcome" beyond our "British Isles," it is a work of great effort to hold back in due limits the tendency to rush into print. We feel sure that in the future as in the past of the Freemason, especially of the last six years, if we wish to preserve the good opinion of friends, and extend still more the constantly increasing circle of our readers, we must keep close to our own wise rules of careful supervision of all ritual discussions. Such matters are best decided in lodge rooms, they are not properly for the "profanum vulgus," nor for the pages even of a Masonic journal. The increase of lodges and members, and awakened interest in Masonry itself, necessitate much more reporting than our forefathers would have tolerated, but legitimate reports of proceedings are one thing, as addressed to the initiated especially, attempts to explain and lay bare all the "arcana" of our teachings and lodge work are alike un-Masonic, unwise, and, in our opinion, unjustifiable. And lastly, if the Masonic press is to prosper like the Freemason, we must avoid all those petty feelings of "trade jealousy" and opposition, which throw such ridicule on our acts and assertions. The Freemason has always welcomed, and always will welcome, all Masonic literary enterprises, which are conducted solely as such, inasmuch as we believe that there is plenty of room for us all in this world, and that more "light" is always advisable for Freemasons as well as for any one else. But what the Freemason has protested against, does protest against, and ever will protest against, is building up your own "stock-in-trade" by depreciating the "wares" of a successful competitor, making personality the secret explanation of ill-omened platitudes, vulgar prospectuses, and sneering correspondence. Because Bolsover has done well, is there any reason why Puckle is to assert that Bolsover's article of manufacture is not good? Let every one puff his own article "ad nauseam" if he likes, and to the highest degree if he so wills, truly or falsely matters nothing, but in the name of all that is mentionable and unmentionable let him leave his competitors alone. He has a right to do all he can for himself, but he is utterly wrong in casting stones at his neighbour. And, therefore, while the Freemason holds out the hand of amity and fraternity to all literary compeers, be they what or whom they may, which conform to the laws of Masonic equity, courtesy, justice, and truth, it never will recognize any, from whatever portion of the habitable globe they hail, which mistake personality for wit, and slander for sagacity, which, though professedly Masonic journals, can neither apparently appreciate the dictates of Masonic teaching, nor realize what is truly involved in the simple and sacred word of "Brother."

IGNORANCE AND INTOLERANCE.

We must all be struck by that peculiar and portentous document, as signed by Mr. Manoel Alvez Da Cruz—let the world know the worthy's name—to which our attention was called in the last Freemason, by our esteemed correspondent, Bro. J. G. Sandeman, writing from Oporto. This is a "recantation," so to say, of a Roman Catholic Freemason, ignorantly joining the pernicious society of Freemasons, and contrasts amusingly enough with another recantation, to which we call attention in the next article, and which emanates from a quondam Roman Catholic priest and controversialist, and once very hostile too to Freemasonry. Curiously enough, Mr. Manoel Alvez Da Cruz finds no fault with Masonry, but only that it is universally "irreconcilable to the Holy Church and all social order," which grave accusation is "conclusively proved," the writer adds, by the "Encyclical of the Holy Father Leo XIII. of the 28th of December last." Perhaps some correspondent will kindly furnish us with a copy of this "conclusive proof," which we should like to see very much indeed, be it what it may. Until we receive such irrefragable evidence and such overwhelming denunciation, we must put down all such effusions as this last one, which naturally exercises, though it also probably amuses, Bro. J. G. Sandeman as it does us, to the ignorance and intolerance of those who pen or dictate such ridiculous statements.

A RECANTATION.

It may be in the remembrance of some of our readers that some time back—ten years ago—Bro. G.M. Tweddell had a controversy with a well-known Roman Catholic controversialist, Father Suffield; though neither of them then, as is usual in all such cases, was convinced by the arguments of his able and courteous opponent. After the lapse of ten years, the same Father Suffield has found out the error of his ways, alike as regards Papal infallibility and alleged Masonic iniquity, and writes the following letter to Bro. Tweddell, which is gratifying in itself as the honest recantation of hasty prepossessions, and openly expressed opposition to, and condemnation of, our peaceable, and loyal, and benevolent, and uncontroversial Fraternity. In his letter occurs the following passage, which we are glad to be permitted to reprint: "The error, which I am glad to be allowed an opportunity of withdrawing, consisted in the statements regarding the Freemasons, wherein I followed the Papal Allocution, and, whilst obeying its commands, was deceived by its mendacity. The Pope had on various occasions issued criminations and condemnations of the Freemason brotherhood, binding all Roman Catholics, and rendering it impossible for any believing and practical Roman Catholic to be a Freemason. In the year 1865, a Papal Allocution again condemned all secret societies, specifying the Freemason. My charges against the Freemason Society were distinctly stated by me to rest upon authority—an authority I then believed to be overruled by Providence, and to bind us all under pain of sin. In 1870, the Papal absolutism culminated in an impious assumption, which, happily, caused me to investigate and to discern the rotten fallacy of the basis. When I discovered the authority to be an unrighteous assumption over God and man, whatever in my mind rested on that authority disappeared at once and for ever. When I was the servant of the Roman Church, I acted consistently in warning Roman Catholics away from the only world-wide rival of her antiquity and her extension, the only powerful organization existing in which no practical Roman Catholic can be found. When acting as a freedman and an Englishman, my earnest wish was to seek admission into a society promulgating the very principles I hold—the worship of God and the service of man; but the fresh start in life necessitated by my secession did not pecuniarily justify me in carrying out my heart's desire. I am glad that your public statement has now enabled me to make the reparation I have often desired. This letter is entirely at your disposal. And thus you will perceive that, though not a Freemason brother in fact, I am such in spirit. Believe me, dear Sir, very truly yours, Robert Rodolph Suffield." It may be the fact, that Bro. Suffield has been mixed up with other controversies, with which, as Freemasons, we have nothing to do, and which in the opinion of some might detract from the value and importance of this change of opinion; but we think it well to note this handsome retraction and recantation, of condemnation openly expressed in respect of Freemasons and Freemasonry, and we trust that we may have yet to welcome many more similar honest and repentant admissions in respect to Freemasonry, and to our harmless and beneficent Brotherhood.

ST. ALBAN'S ABBEY.

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I feel bound to trouble you with a few remarks in reply to a letter, which appeared in your issue of the 1st, from my friend, Bro. G. Tidcombe, jun.
In the first place, my Committee do not propose to solicit subscriptions to make good any deficiency in the funds for the general restoration of St. Alban's Abbey, but we hope to be able to raise a sufficient sum to enable us to undertake the restoration of the west front, which has not yet been reached in the course of the general restoration, and, therefore, if completed by the Freemasons, will remain as a special memorial of the generosity and importance of our brotherhood of the present day. Should we not be able to undertake the whole of the west front, we may yet do a special work, and leave a fitting memorial of the Craft, by restoring one or more of the three west porches, which, for the beauty of their architectural details, will compare favourably with any work of this, the Early English, or, indeed, of any other period in England.
I cannot see why, because we are now "speculative," and not "operative" Masons, it should be considered that we are to confine our efforts to undertaking some new work, such as a reredos or window, as has hitherto been the case, and I venture to think that, as we are about to appeal to the English brethren generally to contribute towards a fitting memorial to St. Alban, whose connection with the English Craft will be clearly set out in our forthcoming circular, something should be undertaken to commemorate the combined action of the Craft, on a grander scale than has yet been attempted in the various provinces, which have already contributed to some special work in their own cathedrals. That a greater responsibility will be thrown upon us in dealing with the beautiful work of the 13th century, instead of simply contributing towards a 19th century reredos or window, we do not for a moment lose sight of, but trust that with the hearty co-operation of the present Faculty Committee, their architect, and clerk of the works, we shall be the means of carrying out the work in such a manner as to reflect the greatest credit on our Craft, and to give unalloyed satisfaction to those who have contributed to the fund, and are interested in the preservation of those noble buildings of which Englishmen may justly be so proud.

In conclusion, though we are not sufficiently sanguine to hope for universal support, yet we trust that the moderate sum of £5 which we have fixed as the maximum amount for subscriptions will commend our scheme to the brethren generally, and we do not for a moment anticipate that this object will in the least degree interfere with the income of our great Masonic Charities, in which we are all so deeply interested. To carry out our scheme in its entirety will not require one-fourth of the sum annually contributed to the Charities, and we therefore feel confident that all donations given to our fund will be in excess of, and in no way interfere with, the splendid sums annually recorded as subscribed to the Masonic Charities. Our resolve to appeal only to individual brethren, and not to the lodge funds (though where, as has already in several instances been the case, a grant from these may be made by the unanimous vote of the lodge, we are of course very pleased to accept it), will make it unnecessary for any one to contribute to our undertaking who does not give the scheme his unqualified approval.

Yours fraternally,

CHARLES E. KEYSER,

Hon. Secretary for the Fund for the Restoration of the West Front of St. Alban's Cathedral by the Freemasons of England.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I venture to make use of your columns, which, like Freemasonry itself, extend over the four quarters of the globe, to invite criticism upon the subject which I broach in this letter, and which should be of interest to all Freemasons throughout the universe, especially the brethren under the English Constitution—a subject, I am afraid, of tenor left out than taken into consideration in the numerous lodges so rapidly springing into existence. That beautiful ceremony of installation, with its heart-stirring words, its graphic description of Freemasonry, what it professes to, and what it should be, seems to be no sooner uttered than, vulgarly speaking, like water on a duck's back it is off again, the feasting part of the meeting is paid particular attention to, and is remarkably well attended, but the charity is often less than that model lodge whose refreshments cost £33, and their charity £20 18s. Look on this side, look on that. Is that the charity that on initiation we profess? Is that the way to be good men and true? Surely brethren would be highly indignant if you doubted their word, yet their solemn Masonic profession seems to sit lightly enough on their shoulders. One might well exclaim with Prince Hal, "O! monstrous! one halfpenny worth of charity to that intolerable steeping of self."

I would now lay my subject before those lodges and individual members whose acts speak for themselves, whether a fairer or more equitable method could not be devised for disposing of the votes they have so liberally earned for the cause of the watchword of our Order, charity. To commence, we all enter into Freemasonry, emblematically speaking, as we enter life, bringing nothing with us; we become all equally brethren, except so far as the necessary offices are filled for the better guidance and governance of our lodges; and yet, when we are called upon to exercise our privilege of assisting those amongst us who have the misfortune to need our help, we seem entirely to forget the universality of the brotherhood, and allow ourselves to be guided only by partiality, favour, or affection; we go with the current because there is no trouble, but entirely forget to put our shoulders to the wheel to help the weak and friendless, unable to help themselves. If our votes were used with proper discrimination, we need never be distressed by seeing candidates for our suffrages turned away from our asylums downcast and despairing, to remain living witnesses of the inequality and unjust partiality of our voting system. I have already pointed out a very simple method of correcting the abuse of our otherwise perfect organisation, viz., that as there are always more vacancies than there are last applicants, so should all last applications be admitted at each election, and the others in rotation as far as the vacancies will allow, and so make sure of admitting all candidates as equally worthy of our support—taking it for granted that no lodge would endorse an application unless fit and proper to be received, and which it meant to support as a proof of its genuineness; but if this does not meet the views of the brethren, there are other methods I will mention for your consideration, viz., canvassing in the old way, or drawing lots for the remaining vacancies; the canvass would give the same excitement, or nearly so, as hitherto, without any hopeless disappointments, and also bring cash, as formerly, in the shape of votes bought on the spot on the day of election, while the lot drawing would be blindfold and impartial, as it should be. I do earnestly ask the co-operation of the brethren generally, both provincial and general, to help to solve this knotty problem of such vital importance to Freemasonry in general, and our Institutions in particular.

I remain, yours fraternally,

CHARLES PERCEVAL.

[We publish our correspondent's letter, but we do not think the discussion seasonable or advisable, as all has been said that can be said.—Ed.]

MASONIC REPORTING.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I know not to what limits the representatives of the Masonic press are permitted to extend their remarks, or whether they are in any way amenable to the acknowledged principles by which our Craft is guided. Be this as it may, I think that a newspaper published with the express purpose of furthering the best interests of our Institution, should abstain from giving space to those correspondents who evidently do not possess the virtues we are taught to practise.

A week or so since a Masonic contemporary published a report of a meeting held in Manchester, which contained some very unasonic expressions with regard to the officers of the lodge. Doubtless the officers felt somewhat nervous in the presence of this great light, more especially so as he does not fail to make known his association with the "Masonic press," and hence, perhaps, the slight errors in working. Would it not have been more in keeping with our tenets and principles if this worthy brother had practised the Masonic precept, viz., "If you cannot speak well of a brother, observe that Masonic virtue, silence?"

I am, however, told by a prominent brother of the lodge referred to that the literary visitor was not invited to partake of the banquet. Let us hope, in all sincerity and fraternal feeling, that this omission did not change the writing fluid into gall.

I am, yours fraternally,

A LANCASHIRE P.M.

HONOUR TO THE BRAVE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the Freemason of this day's date I see a paragraph stating that the Order of "Good Templars" mourns the loss of an entire lodge in the disaster at Isandula. We, too, as F. and A. Masons, have to regret the loss of many dear and worthy brethren on that occasion.

During the time the 1st Batt. of the 24th Regiment was quartered in Malta, from 1866 to 1872, many of the officers and non-commissioned officers belonged to the various lodges in the island, particularly to the Leinster Lodge, No. 387, I.C. I may mention more particularly Bros. Porteous and Melville; the heroic death of the latter in defence of the colours of his regiment has made his name a "household word" throughout England, but by none will he be more sincerely lamented than by the members of the Melita Preceptory.

Yours fraternally,

P.D. DIST. G.M.

8th March, 1879.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

Has an honorary member of a lodge the equal right with a subscribing member to propose an alteration in or addition to its bye-laws? Your opinion on this point will much oblige.

I enclose my card, and remain, fraternally yours,

P.M.

[Certainly not. An honorary member has "no rights."—Ed.]

Reviews.

A NUMERICAL AND NUMISMATICAL REGISTER OF LODGES, &c., &c. Compiled by Bro. W. J. HUGHAN. George Kenning, London; Lake and Lake, Truro.

We have received a copy of this valuable contribution to English lodge history, by our esteemed Bro. W. J. Hughan, and hasten to acknowledge it and review it. Like all the contributions of our well-known and able brother, to Masonic history or archaeology, it is admirably and carefully edited, remarkably well printed, and most effectively illustrated. It contains five plates of various lodge and centenary jewels, all of which, most artistically rendered, not only grace the pages, but add to the value of the work. The book is one we can most earnestly commend to the notice and study of all our readers, as alike interesting and valuable, and, if concise, correct. For on these somewhat abstruse points of lodge history no one is more competent to speak, or has a better right to be heard, than Bro. Hughan. This, like other contributions of his, is the result of many years of patient toil, careful collation, of unremitting hard work, and tedious study to boot, of which few of our readers have any idea, or except those who have meandered in the same by-path of old Masonic history can fully realize or appreciate. And as it has been a "labour of love," so is it of undoubted authority on all those moot points which surround the annals of our lodges, on the subject it treats of so fully, on the matter it refers to so carefully. To all who wish to trace the position and numbers of the "modern" and ancient lodges at the Union, and to follow them down the stream of time, this, Bro. Hughan's latest contribution to our Masonic literature, which he has so enriched, will be hailed with pleasure, approval, and gratitude. Nay, knowing Bro. Hughan's peculiar capabilities in this respect, we are so exorbitant and ambitious as to desiderate from his pen, as a fitting supplement to this useful compilation, a short account of all lodges on the English roll, giving us their date of warrant, their change of names, their mutations, their ups and downs, their active life and premature decay. Such a consummation, devoutly to be wished for by those who like to study the lodge history of English Masonry, would be a work worthy of Bro. Hughan's reputation, and would add greatly to those many obligations under which Masonic students of all countries to-day are to Bro. W. J. Hughan. We thank him once more, as fellow lodgers with him in the same interesting field of study and research, for this very important and laborious contribution to lodge numeration and lodge identification.

THE BICYCLING NEWS. No. 9, Vol. IV. BENJAMIN CLERG, 13, York-street, Covent Garden.

"On allons nous?" as our French neighbours say. Here we have the ninth number of the fourth volume of a journal devoted to the great and noble art of Bicyclism. A modern art, unknown utterly to our forefathers, it has sprung into existence with intense velocity, and our "young rapids" now reach, it is said, the goodly number of 80,000 in this free and favoured land of ours. Its clubs are many; its supporters are loud in its praise; it is said to promote "athletic exercise, manly vigour, stern morality, and graceful politeness all combined," and though those somewhat alarming specimens of youthful humanity, who appear in such very dressy and variegated costumes, often delighting nursery maids and frightening old women, and are sometimes, we feel bound to confess, very much in the way; yet, as the clown says, "Here we are." Nay, we hasten to announce with much interest a fact, to be welcomed in the dearth of true poesy, that there is now a "Bicyclean Poet." Pray note the fact, kind readers. The Bicyclean poet laureate has given to the world the following spirited lines, quite in the heroic ballad style:—

"We had Nuttall for our captain,
And Wolfenden for our sub,
They've coached us well, and so we've gained Much credit for the club;
That Rowe has had his work cut out
Let none of us ignore,
He has done his duty like a man,
And what could you wish for more?"

Now, we are not prepared to deny, especially in this day of "small things and little men," that bicyclism may have its use and, of course, its abuse, and may serve to fill up some spare hours which might be given up to less profitable uses. Nay, we will go a little further, and say, that in so far as it promotes a love of country sights and scenes, and is simply a healthy exercise of muscle, activity, and endurance, it is as a pastime good. We hope some stories are not true which accuse bicyclists of discourtesy to the young, and even misbehaviour to the old of the "softer sects." We feel sure that the case reported in a police court lately was an exception to the general rule, and we, therefore, though we must confess a little astonishment at the fact of a bicyclean literature at all, wish our young and energetic friends all success, level roads, and not much soreness of bone, &c., &c. But here we stop; we must not profane the chaste mysteries of bicyclism; we can only say to all, as a great statesman once said, at most important quadruple gathering, "Sit tight."

THE PAN HELLENIC REVIEW. Printed by Hazell, Watson, and Viney, and published by Curtice and Co., 139 and 140, Fleet-street. E.C.

This is a new journal, published weekly, well printed, carefully edited, and, by its name, devoted to "Pan Hellenism," and which means, as far as we can understand it, getting as much as you can for Greece and the Greeks. Now we have deep sympathy with Greece, as Greece. We remember those glowing words in which gifted writers have spoken of Greece—in terms which still move our sympathies and revive our grateful souvenirs. But we confess we cannot quite enter into Pan Hellenism geographically, for as Freemasons we dare not and cannot write, of course, politically. We can, of course, all agree, probably, that in the progress of time, like as in Germany, the "Greek speaking people" should be united under one compact, energetic, and coupon paying country, with an excellent young ruler with his pleasant wife, like their present Hellenic Majesties, with a strong administration, and a good economical, honest, internal government. And we can quite realize how old Greece and the Isles of Greece may yet form one goodly, free Hegemony, purely Greek in nationality and language, and bound to past traditions and present longings for sound, wise, and national progress. With the graceful poet of our own generation, we can still heartily say, and believe—

"Farewell, sweet Athens! thou shalt be again
The sceptred Queen of all thine old domain,
Again be blest in all thy varied charms,
Of loveliness, and valour, arts, and arms."

But we cannot understand, for the life of us, geographically speaking, what Greece has to do with Asia Minor, or Constantinople, or Roumelia, or Bulgaria. We may be wrong, but unless our history is all awry, Constantinople is in itself a development of Roman supremacy, not of Grecian rule, and, strictly speaking, Greece, as Greece, has no "part or lot" in Constantinople, historically or nationally. Such has ever appeared to us, for numerous reasons, a dream of dreams, and, therefore, though loving Greece, admiring Greece, gladly reminding ourselves of its glorious past, its services to art, culture, literature, and all that ennobles and exalts the struggle of humanity, we cannot profess ourselves to be Pan Hellenes. Phil Hellenes we might be, but we dislike the word "Pan." We have personal reasons for being very sympathetic with Greece and its people, but, to use a common expression, we cannot "go the entire animal." It is not for us, in our neutral position, to discuss in these pages Mr. Freeman's long "deliverance," though, to say the truth, even to the most neutral minded person, a good deal of it must appear mere "bunkum" and "fustian," unworthy of so able a writer, and eminently unjust to great statesmen, alike chimerical in complaint, unsound in theory, and valueless in authority. Here, however, we stop, "ex necessitate rei."

Obituary.

BRO. BEDFORD, W.M. No. 581.

The brethren of the Lodge of Faith, No. 581, were summoned by circular to meet at the Corporation Inn, Tipping-street, Ardwick, at 12 o'clock at noon, on Friday, the 7th inst., the business being to pay the last sad office of respect to their deceased W.M., who died on the Sunday previous, after a short but severe illness, having been stricken with paralysis about three weeks previous. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 12.30 by Bro. Henry Darbyshire, P.M., acting W.M., assisted by the regular officers of the lodge, viz.:—Bros. Greenup, S.W.; Hickson, J.W.; Walker, S.D.; Brougham, J.D.; Johnson, I.G.; Beswick, Tyler. The following brethren were also present:—Bros. Parker, P.M., Treasurer; Lee Speakman, Hon. Sec.; Tyers, P.M., Director of Ceremonies; Brown, Pettitt, Org.; Bradburn, Cordingley, Markham, Turner, Entwistle, Mabon, Standard Bearer; and Wm. Swift, Steward; and visiting brethren, Bros. Hudson Lister, W.M., Richmond Lodge; Wm. Dumville, P.M.; N. Dumville, P.M.; James Kemp, Wilton Lodge. The following companions from the Chapter of Rectitude, No. 581, which is held under the Lodge of Faith warrant, also attended, the deceased W.M. being the then present Scribe E., of the chapter:—Comps. Wilkinson, Treasurer, Booth, Nicholls, Lavender, Armstrong, and Nelson. After the lodge had been duly and regularly opened, the Hon. Sec., Bro. Lee Speakman, read a dispensation which had been obtained from Prov. Grand Lodge, authorising the brethren to wear Craft clothing, also another dispensation was read by Comp. Henry Darbyshire, Third Principal of the Chapter of Rectitude, containing the same authority for the companions to wear their clothing. The lodge was then duly adjourned, and Bro. T. Tyers, P.M., Director of Ceremonies, arranged the companions and brethren in walking order, and marched them in procession from the lodge-room to the house of the late Bro. Bedford. Precisely at one o'clock the funeral procession started from Union-street, Ardwick, in the following order:—Brethren of the Richmond and Faith Lodges; companions of the Chapter of Rectitude, No. 581, of Royal Arch Masons; the hearse, drawn by four splendid horses; mourning coaches containing members of the deceased's family and friends, amongst whom were the Rev. Joseph Nunn, the Rector of St. Thomas Church, Ardwick (to which church Bro. Bedford had been churchwarden for many years), Rev. B. Jones, of St. Jude's Church, Ancoats, and Bro. James Kemp (J. and H. Kemp, Exchange-street), at which firm Bro. Bedford was the respected cashier; and private omnibuses for the accommodation of the brethren. The Dir. of Cer. led the procession down Union-street by Ardwick Green, passing St. Thomas Church (whose bells were tolling the passing knell), thence down Downing-street, until out of the parish, when the brethren took seats in the omnibuses, and followed in due order the funeral cortege, arriving at the Salford Borough, or Modé Wheel Cemetery, Eccles-road, Weaste, at 2.15, and were met by Comps. Nathan, P.Z., and Hollins, P.Z. The coffin, on which were placed three very beautiful wreaths of choice flowers, was borne into the church by Bros. Mabon, Brown, Pettitt, and Wilkinson. The funeral service was very feelingly read by the Rev. Joseph Nunn. The church being quite full, principally of ladies, at the time presented quite an unusual appearance on such occasions, and testified how highly the deceased was esteemed by all around him. The scene at the grave was very touching, the rev. gentleman showing evident signs of the grief within. After the usual church rites had been performed, the rev. gentleman and family left the grave, when Bro. Henry Darbyshire, P.M., acting W.M., asked the brethren to assemble as near the grave as convenient, and putting himself in an attitude as though he was about to perform a Masonic service said: Brethren, it was the dying wish of our dearly-beloved brother that we, about whom he thought so much, should follow him to his last resting place, and that, too, clothed in the regalia of the honourable Order it was his ambition and privilege to belong to, and preside over, when living. He charged me with a message to you, which I had intended to now deliver, but I really feel unequal to the task, and am compelled to desist; suffice it to say, that in following our dear brother here to-day we are carrying out one of our glorious principles, that of holding fast to one another until the grave do us part; and in committing his remains to the grave, let us do it in the usual formal manner—"Peace to his ashes." "Peace to his ashes." "Peace to his ashes." By this time the family had taken their seats in their respective coaches, and were speedily joined by the brethren, and returned to town. The brethren going to the place from whence they started, and closing the lodge in due order, sat down to a luncheon, which had been provided by the Faith Lodge, under the direction of Bros. Darbyshire, P.M., acting Master, and Lee Speakman, Hon. Sec. A number of the brethren attended on the following Sunday morning at St. Thomas Church, Ardwick, when the Rev. Joseph Nunn preached the funeral sermon, and took for his text Ecclesiastes, 9th chapter, 10th verse: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest," and 11. Corinthians, 5th chapter, 9th verse. The reverend gentleman in a very able discourse dealt with the subject matter of the text, pointing out that life to be sweet must be useful, and especially useful in the Lord. The sermon throughout was most instructive, and quite characteristic of the person to whom he afterwards referred. He said: Our friend (Bro. Bedford) whose loss this morning we all deeply feel was a true pattern of a good man, a man who, although ambitious in some things, was always regardful of the world to come, a man who, striving and obtaining the favour and esteem of his fellow men, never lost sight of his Eternal Master, who in early youth had been left without father, had struggled nobly on, seeking the instruction of the Sunday school as a scholar, became a teacher, and more instrumental in the church; as Warden, who always worked hard for the church, and whatsoever he did, did it in such a manner as to reflect credit on himself and great and lasting good to the church, arriving at the age of manhood, and being blessed with sons and daughters, had always, by example and precept, set those dear children such an example that, if acted upon hereafter, will prove a barrier to temptation and vice and a sure rock for eternal happiness. He had lived such a life, that when stricken down with sickness, he had not (as some) to commence to seek his Maker, but calmly, and with all submission, blessed his dear wife and children, and gave them the consoling intelligence that he was happy in the Lord, and quite ready to meet his God. The reverend gentleman laid particular stress upon this fact, and earnestly entreated his hearers to bear that consoling fact in mind, that when summoned (like their dear friend) to leave this sublunary abode, their families and friends will have the happy thought that they have entered the Grand Lodge above where the world's Great Architect lives and reigns for evermore.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS FOR GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

The great progress made by Mark Masonry throughout the kingdom during the past fifteen years has not been overlooked in the West, where the Craft possesses so many votaries. So long back as 1858, Somersetshire possessed its Provincial Grand Lodge, over which the Earl of Carnarvon presided. In 1876 Bristol followed the example of the neighbouring province, Bro. W. A. F. Powell being the presiding officer. Monmouthshire quickly followed, Bro. L. F. Homfray being installed as Provincial Grand Master, and on Saturday last Gloucestershire completed the list of provinces in the immediate vicinity by the constitution of its Provincial Grand Lodge. The inauguration took place at the Masonic Hall, Cheltenham, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Fred Binckes, P.G.S.W. and P.G. Sec.; and there were present, Bro. Colonel Henry Basevi, P.P.G.M.M. Bengal; L. A. Homfray, P.P.G.M.M. Monmouth; General Doherty, P.M. 177; J. Brooke Smith, M.A.; Julius Maier, Ph.; Wm. Watkins, P.M. 109, P.G.S. Mon.; James Robinson, W.M. 13; Geo. Rennie Powell, W.M. 218; John Walker, M.A., P.M.; the Baron de Ferrieres; Wm. Forth; Wm. Munro; W. M. Canyng, P.M. 119, P.P.S.W. Somerset; W. Forth, P.G.S.; J. Jowitt, E. Inskip, P.G.J.D.; Thomas Parker, J. P. Curtis, W.M. elect 218; W. M. Lowick, H. Jeffs, Joseph R. Monks, J. Balcomb, J. Stevens, W. R. Filton, T. F. Stoney, E. T. Boyan, George Norman, W. L. Bain, Geo. Peters, Arthur Jack, F. G. Roberts, N. Gregg, P.G.J.D.; W. R. Porcher, Francis J. Vizard, T. Tinsley, and others.

The P.G. Lodge was opened at 2.30, and the authority of the Earl of Skelmersdale having been read by the P.G. Secretary, Bro. Binckes called upon Bro. Powell, P.G.J.W., to give an account of the proceedings which had led to the constitution of the Provincial Grand Lodge. After this the P.G. Master designate (Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davy, of Tracy-park, Doynton, P.G. Chaplain of England) was most impressively installed and addressed by Bro. Binckes. The R.W.P.G.M. (Bro. Davy) then proceeded to the investment of his officers. Bro. John Walker, M.A., was appointed Deputy Provincial Grand Master; Bro. W. M. Payne was unanimously elected P.G. Treasurer; Bro. James Robertson, P.W.M. 13, was appointed P.G.S.W.; Bro. George Rennie Powell, P.G.J.W.; William Forth, P.G.M.O.; Jeffs, P.G.S.O.; the Baron de Ferrieres, P.G.J.O.; Dr. Maier, P.G.D.C.; Col. Basevi, P.G.S.D.; W. M. Lowick, P.G.J.D.; James Payne Curtis, P.G. Secretary; E. T. Bryan, P.G. Register of Marks; F. J. Vizard, P.G.S.B.; and Algernon Sudlow and T. Tinsley, P.G. Stewards. The P.G.M. then addressed the lodge, thanking the brethren for the honou of his appointment.

Apologies for non-attendance were read from several distinguished brothers, and congratulations were reported from Bro. Bryant, of Brislington, P.G.O., from the Royal Sussex Lodge, Bath, from the P.G. Lodge of Monmouth, and the Lichfield Lodge, No. 59; and the P.G.M. having thanked Bro. Binckes for the kind and impressive manner in which he had conducted the proceedings, the lodge was closed in due form.

The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent and capably served repast in the banquet-hall. The proceedings were, of course, of a non-public character, but it may be stated that the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and received with enthusiasm.

The constitution had been looked forward to for some time past by members of the Craft, not only in the county of Gloucester, but in the districts adjacent to the county. Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davy has won great Masonic popularity not only by his high position as the Prov. Grand Chaplain of England, but also by his devotion to the general interests of Masonry and the readiness with which he has always assisted in the promotion of the interests of the Order, and the knowledge of his installation will, it is believed, be heard of with the greatest satisfaction by the Masonic body generally.

We, the undersigned, have examined the foregoing abstract of the receipts and expenditure of the Grand Lodge of Ireland for the year ending 31st day of December, 1878, and compared same with the audited weekly statements of income and expenditure, and find same correct, and that there was on the 1st of January, 1879, a balance in the Royal Bank, to the credit of the Trustees of Grand Lodge, of the sum of five hundred and sixty-two pounds twelve shillings and two pence—of which balance five hundred and fifty-six pounds three shillings and five pence belongs to the Charity Fund, as per statement annexed. We also find that there was one thousand six hundred and seventy pounds four shillings and five pence due to Grand Lodge by provincial and subordinate lodges; and that the amount due by Grand Lodge at the same date was five hundred and fourteen pounds nine shillings and three pence.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Wrings made Right.—Every day that any bodily suffering is permitted to continue renders it more certain to become chronic or dangerous. Holloway's purifying, cooling, and strengthening Pills are well adapted for any irregularity of the human body, and should be taken when the stomach is disordered, the liver deranged, the kidneys inactive, the bowels to plid, or the brain muddled. With this medicine every invalid can cure himself, and those who are weak and infirm through imperfect digestion, may make themselves strong and stout by Holloway's excellent Pills. A few doses of them usually mitigate the most painful symptoms caused by indigestive food, from which they thoroughly free the alimentary canal, and completely restore its natural power and action.—[Adv.]

ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LANCASHIRE AND CHESHIRE.

A meeting of this Provincial Grand Chapter and Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Thursday, the 6th inst., at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The R.W. Bro. R. H. Hutchinson, Prov. G. Master, presided, supported by the following Present and Past Prov. G. Officers:—Bros. Chas. Fitzgerald Matier, Dep. Prov. G.M.; Z. R. Brockbank, P.P.S.G.W., as Prov. G.S.W.; Thos. Entwisle, P.P.J.G.W., as Prov. G.F.W.; John Chadwick, Prov. G. Sec.; John Duffield, Prov. G. Treas.; Thos. Chorlton, Prov. G.W. of Dorset; Sam Spratley, Prov. G. Marshal; Jack Sutcliffe, Prov. G.B.B.; J. McKie, Prov. G. Guarder; also Bros. Geo. Mellor, R. Butterworth, Townsend, Jaffrey, Cumberland, Hoffgaard, Pollitt, and others. Visitor: Bro. the Rev. W. Spencer Stanhope.

The minutes of the last meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge and Chapter having been confirmed, the ballot was taken for Capt. Murphy, of the Dragoon Guards, Major Slatt, of Llanfairfechan, and Thomas S. Ainsworth, which resulted in the unanimous election of the candidates. The brethren being in attendance were accordingly introduced, and were admitted to the degree of H.D.M. by their several characteristics, the ceremony of induction being presided over by the Deputy Prov. G.M., the T.W.R., guarded by Bros. Chorlton and Spratley, Grand Marshal, and the lectures given in extenso, and the Wardens' chairs filled by Bros. Brockbank and Entwisle.

A Provincial Grand Lodge of Knights of the R.S.Y.C.S. was forthwith opened, and the brethren above named being admitted and presented to the Provincial Grand Master, were, by him, exalted to the rank of Knights of the R.S.Y.C.S.

Bros. Higgins and R. McD. Smith, were appointed auditors of the accounts of the past year.

Bro. John Duffield was unanimously re-elected Provincial Grand Treasurer.

The annual meeting and festival was fixed for Thursday, the 3rd July.

At the conclusion of business the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was presided over by the Prov. G. Master, after which the usual loyal toasts were proposed.

Bro. Matier proposed "The Health of the Prov. G. Master," eulogising the services he had rendered to the Order, and expressing a hope that he might be long spared to give the benefit of his services to the Order.

Bro. Hutchinson, in reply, warmly thanked the brethren for their kindness, and expressed himself much indebted to the various officers who so efficiently supported him in the discharge of his duties.

Bro. Chorlton proposed "The Health of the Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. Matier," and remarked that the formation of this Prov. Grand Lodge, and its continued prosperous existence, had been mainly due to the zeal and ability with which Bro. Matier had conducted its proceedings, and his unvarying promptitude in attendance at the meetings, and his felicitous rendering of the quaint and interesting ritual of the Order.

Bro. Matier in reply expressed his thanks to the brethren for their kindness to him on all occasions he had to come amongst them, and stated that he had now served as Deputy to three Provincial Grand Masters, the first, a Lancashire man, known to all the province as a sterling man and Mason, honoured and respected by all, viz., Bro. W. R. Callender, who died in harness as member of Parliament for his native city of Manchester; the next, the kindly, benevolent, and genial Bro. John Sutcliffe, whose death so soon after his appointment was so deeply to be deplored; and lastly, Bro. Hutchinson, who now ruled this province, and long might he continue to occupy and adorn the position. Bro. Matier intimated that he thought some other brother should now be called upon to occupy the position he held, as his residence was some considerable distance from the province, but he would always give to the Order and the province a loyal and earnest support.

The Prov. G.M. proposed "The Health of Bros. Brockbank and Entwisle, and the Past Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge." He warmly thanked those brethren for their regular attendance and assistance at all the ceremonials of the Order.

The toasts having been suitably responded to, "The Candidates" was proposed, and responded to by Bro. Ainsworth and Major Platt.

"The Masonic Charities" were duly acknowledged, and "The Visitors" kindly remembered.

The last toast was given at 9 p.m., and the pleasant meeting terminated.

Public Amusements.

PRINCE'S THEATRE MANCHESTER.—On Monday evening last, an entire change took place in the performance at this theatre, Cellier's popular opera, "The Sultan of Mocha" being withdrawn in the height of its success, in favour of the production of a so called rustic opera entitled Babiole, the music composed by Laurent de Rille, and the English adaptation by Mr. Robert Reece. We shall not attempt to give a description of the plot which will no doubt be fully entered into by the Manchester press, but will content ourselves by remarking that the opera was a complete success, encores being the order of the evening. The music is lively and sparkling, though not particularly original. A word of praise must be given to Miss Pattie Laverne, who sustained the title character, and whose rendering of the rustic was fully appreciated, as it deserved to be, by an enthusiastic audience. Some very clever dancing was executed by Mr. Harry Collier in the part of Carrossol. The opera is announced to run until Saturday the 22nd inst.

In accordance with a resolution passed at the February meeting of the Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Hope, on the motion of Bro. S. G. Hunt, W.M., seconded by the Immediate Past Master, Bro. G. M. Knight, a ballot was taken at the lodge held on Friday, the 7th inst., for the election of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master of England, as an honorary member of the lodge. The ballot was, of course, unanimous.

DEAR AND CHEAP VEGETABLES.—The Pull Mall Gazette of January 18th mentions that in a suburb of London the following prices are charged for vegetables:—Carrots, 1d. each; turnips, ½d. each; snips, ½d. each; savoy, 2d. each; potatoes proportionately dear. These exorbitant prices should induce all who have a spare piece of ground to grow their own vegetables. Messrs. Sutton & Sons, the Queen's seedsmen, Reading, supply collections of vegetable seeds for the amateur's small garden at 12s. 6d., 15s., and 21s. each, the latter collection carriage free; while those who prefer making their own selection can have all seeds sent free by post (except peas and beans) on receipt of order. "Sutton's Amateur's Guide in Horticulture," which contains full particulars as to when to sow, what to sow, and how to sow, may be had post free for 15 stamps, or for 1s. at all the railway bookstalls.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

SOUTHERN STAR (No. 1158).—A meeting of this successful lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, on Tuesday, 11th inst., the occasion being additionally interesting from the fact of its being election night. There were present, Bros. Smith, S.W.; Harris, J.W.; Stewart, S.D.; Fortune, J.D.; Holloway, I.G.; Wilkes, W.S.; P.M.'s A. Wright, J. Wright, Wise, Prater, Walter, McDonald, Clarke, T. Pulsford, Sec.; Bros. Dowdell, Bullock, Hoskin, Green, Cole, Richards, Durdell, Robins, Block, Holland, Luby, Russell, Kineey, Austin, Morgan, Walker, Giles, Morgan, Lyon, Bertolli, and others. Visitors: Day, 1327; Bertolli, 898; Booker, 382; Walsh, 1329; Kipling, 946; Dann, 186; Newton, 1624; Green, 1687. The Master, Bro. Allen, opened his lodge at 5.30 p.m., and the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, Bros. Firmin and Whybrow were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. in a very excellent manner by the W.M. Lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, and Mr. H. T. Purkis and Job Pack were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Order. On rising for the third time, and Bro. S. Smith, the esteemed S.W., being put to the vote, he was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing twelve months. Bros. A. Wright re-elected Treasurer; Steed, Tyler. Bro. Wise then brought forward a notice of motion that the lodge be moved, which was put to the members and carried, Anderson's Hotel being unanimously chosen for the future meetings of the lodge. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was most excellently served by Bro. Oliver, of the Masonic Hall. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given and responded to; the speeches being commendably brief, the Tyler's toast brought a truly harmonious meeting to a close. The brethren were much pleased with the singing of Bros. Giles, Fowler, Robins, Bertolli, and Walter.

GRANITE LODGE (No. 1328).—Benevolence is the pole-star of Masonry. Once a man steps within the charmed circle of the Craft his whole being, as it were, undergoes metamorphosis. He glides from shade into light. What was a shadow assumes the attributes of substance. He no longer remains an outside atom, but merges in an ethereal corporation. Freemasonry is like a good round of roast beef, you may cut and come again. When a man has subscribed his name in the Masonic calendar he acknowledges fellowship and goodwill towards all men. Whatever may have been his mundane failures his entrance into the new sphere tends to correct and mollify. But why is this? Because the influence of example is irresistible. It is a pleasure, therefore, to record that since this lodge was founded, six years ago, it has drawn into its vortex so many tributary members that to be numbered amongst the pebbles can no longer be reckoned upon by "outsiders." This lodge is full; and the services rendered by Bros. Cottebrune and J. Lewis Thomas, and others, in the past are no longer called into action for initiations, &c. Consequently, on Saturday, the 8th inst., when the lodge met, Bro. Robert Payne, W.M., in the chair, there was only business of a formal character to be transacted. Hercules is resting after his fatigues. But in order not to make things too formal, Bro. Pearce proposed that, as Bro. J. Lewis Thomas had been so instrumental in the success of the lodge, the clothing of the Grand Lodge should be presented to him in recognition of his services. Any one knowing the esteem in which Bro. Thomas is held in the lodge will not be surprised to hear that the proposal found an able seconder in Bro. P.M. Reginald Mount, and that it was supported by Bro. P.M. Frederick West, Bro. P.M. Oliver, and other members, and that after a very pretty sprinkling of compliments the members unanimously decided to record U cyent as an established fact. After voting money for Masonic Charities, the members adjourned to a repast in the Freemasons' Tavern, when the M.W.M., Bro. Robert Payne, presiding at the "feast of reason and the flow of soul," called upon the brethren to drink "The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen," which was vociferously responded to. The next toast was that of "The M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales," which having been replied to, was followed by the old-fashioned selection "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," a toast which is always received with enthusiasm by this lodge. Bro. J. Lewis Thomas in the course of the evening, in reply to a toast, said that many of the brave fellows now fighting in South Africa were good Masons. His own son, as soon as he saw the recent painful news from Zululand, insisted on going out, gave up his business, equipped himself, and would be one of the first arrivals, having gone out in the Dublin Castle. After spending a very agreeable evening the members separated before the "witching hour of night."

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The members of this prosperous lodge met in good numbers at the Club House, Kennington Oval, on Tuesday, the 4th inst., when there were present, among others, Bros. T. C. Walls, P.P.G. Org. of Middlesex, W.M. (Freemason); Kohler, S.W.; Speedy, J.W.; Page, P.G.S., &c., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; G. Everett, P.M., acting I.P.M., in the absence through indisposition of Bro. Reeves, I.P.M.; Webb, S.D.; Robinson, I.G.; F. Honeywell, P.M.; Dobbie, Org.; Stokes, D.C.; Stranger, W.S.; Bolton, A.W.S.; Mann, P.M.; Koch, P.M.; Higgins, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M. The minutes of the installation meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Fown and initiated Mr. Cockburn. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to the banquet. Among the latter were, Bros. D. Dewar, P.M. 1415, &c.; Goodall, 33; Cox, 1314. Upon the removal of the cloth "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The P.G.M., D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," were done full justice to. "The Health of the W.M." followed, which toast was proposed by Bro. Everett in very flattering terms. The W.M. having responded, then gave "The Initiate." Bro. Cockburn, in reply, briefly said that he was deeply impressed with what he had seen and heard that evening, and also expressed his gratitude to the brethren for their kindness in having allowed him to come among them. The toast of "The Visitors" came next in order, and having been received most warmly, Bro. Dewar responded by thanking the brethren for the very hospitable manner in which he had been received on that his first visit to the Kennington Lodge. He likewise expressed himself satisfied with the "working" of the lodge. His connection with the side grades of Freemasonry had been mentioned, but he wished to state that, however pleased he was with these outside degrees, yet as he believed that the foundation of all Masonry was the Craft, he was always most gratified when participating in the work of the beautiful ceremonies of the latter degree. Bro. Goodall briefly said that he was exceedingly satisfied with the "working." His visit had been in every way agreeable to him. He had visited many lodges, but he could honestly say that he had never seen the degrees of the Craft better carried out by all hands than they had been performed by the officers of the Kennington Lodge that evening. Bro. Cox also endorsed the remarks of the previous speakers. "The Past Masters" followed, and gave each of the members of that distinguished body an opportunity of saying a few words in response to the very warm and hearty manner in which the toast was received by the brethren. In giving "The Treasurer and Secretary," the W.M. took occasion to express his great obligations to Bros. Page and Stuart for the assistance that they had personally rendered him at the commencement of his year of office, and which kindness he hoped would continue to its end. Bro. Page, the Treasurer, in reply, expressed himself highly satisfied with the financial position of the lodge, which had enabled him to sanction the voting of ten guineas to the respective funds of the R.M.B.I. and the R.M.I. for Girls. (Hear.) The latter institution would be represented by Bro. Higgins, P.M., and he hoped that he would be well supported. Bro. Stuart having briefly replied, the toast of "The Officers" brought the proceedings to a conclusion. During the evening Bros. Honeywell, Cox, and others musically entertained the brethren.

EARL SPENCER LODGE (No. 1420).—A meeting of the above lodge was held at the Swan Hotel, Battersea, on Tuesday evening, the 18th inst., when there were present Bros. Dr. J. J. Joseph, W.M.; J. Hiscox, jun., S.W.; J. T. Pilditch, J.W.; J. Sinclair, S.D.; W. W. Young, J.D.; J. W. Hiscox, Sec.; E. Spooner, P.M., Treas.; J. C. Radford, I.G.; and Dr. J. Oakman, Dr. W. H. Kempster, A. Southam, T. Harrap, Goaden, A. A. Correllis, H. Hill, Cooch, Kendall, Kenneby, Wilkinson, Harford, and P. V. Denham, visitor from the Wandsworth Lodge, 1044. Bro. A. A. Correllis was ably passed to the Second Degree by the W.M., who afterwards complimented Bro. Correllis on the proficiency he had attained for so young a man. Bro. J. W. Hiscox, P.M., delivered the charge in a way which called forth the admiration of the brethren. It was unanimously resolved that the sum of ten guineas be paid from the lodge funds to the Girls' School, and also a like amount to the Boys' School. At the conclusion of the lodge business refreshment was provided in the form of a capital supper. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair. For that of "The Visitors," Bro. P. V. Denham replied, and thanked the brethren for the kindly welcome he had received from the Earl Spencer Lodge. A very pleasant evening was spent.

CREATON LODGE (No. 1791).—The first regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall on Thursday, the 13th inst. Present, Bros. Col. Creaton, W.M.; H. J. Johnson, S.W.; J. Williams, J.W.; J. Nielson, S.D.; J. W. Buck, J.D.; J. J. Cattle, P.M.; Hon. Sec.; R. G. Shute, D.C.; W. Carrington, I.G.; J. Kift, Org.; and W. Williams, Steward. Members: R. M. Rogers, T. Matthews, and David Ferguson. After the lodge was opened the Secretary read the minutes of the consecration meeting, which were confirmed. The following brethren were then balloted for as joining members of the lodge, and were all unanimously elected:—Bros. Wm. Carrington, 1314; R. G. Shute, 511; E. Thurkle, P.M. 1257; Wm. Williams, 173; D. Ferguson, 173; James Kift, 749; T. T. Matthews, 1624; W. Mardon, 205; and G. Slingsby, 1624. The ballot was next taken for Mr. A. Wolter and Mr. R. H. Rogers, and having proved unanimous in their favour, these gentlemen were duly initiated into the secrets and privileges of the Order. This being the only business before the lodge, it was formally closed, and the brethren repaired to the Freemasons' Tavern, where they sat down to an excellent supper, over which the W.M. presided. The visitors present were Bros. Hugh D. Sandeman, P.D.G.M. Bengal; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.S.; John Finch, W.M. 173; James Browning, 1328; T. W. Cooper, S.W. 338; H. M. Levy, P.M. 188; C. Taylor, D.C. 1624; W. E. Moorman, 1624; S. Ward, 186; H. W. Davie, 173; John H. Horsey, 186; J. B. Colvill, 173; Geo. Edwards, 157; W. C. Smith, 1561; and A. H. Chisholm, 1602 (Freemason). The cloth having been removed, the usual patriotic and Masonic toasts followed. In proposing "The Health of the Queen" the Worshipful Master said this toast was one which on all occasions when Englishmen met, especially Freemasons, was received with great enthusiasm. He was sure that Her Majesty had been very much gratified that day at the happy and important event which had taken place at Windsor, but he was also convinced that none of her subjects more cordially congratulated her on the union between her third son and the Princess Louise of Prussia than did the Freemasons of England. "The National Anthem" having been sung, "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," was proposed, and honoured with the usual enthusiasm, Bro. Cattle, whom we have never heard in better voice, singing in fine style, "God bless the Prince of Wales." The next toast the W.M. had the honour to propose was "The Health of the Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past." Those who were in Grand Lodge on the previous week could all testify that the Pro G.M., when it fell to his lot to preside, did so with the greatest ability and judgment. The same might be said of the D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, whose bonhomie and Masonic utility had earned for him the high esteem of all Freemasons. Indeed, the whole of the Grand Officers were a body of men who deserved the greatest honour that the brethren could bestow upon them. (Hear, hear.) He was happy to say they were that night honoured by the presence of a Grand Officer who had greatly distinguished himself in India—Bro. Sandeman. He had presided over the district of Bengal with great ability and credit to himself, and satisfaction to those among whom it had fallen to his lot to reside. They had also Bro. Cottebrune, who had done good suit and service to the Craft, and whose good qualities were known to them all, and he begged to couple with the toast the names of these two honoured brethren. Bro. Sandeman, in acknowledging the toast, said that, like all the customary toasts in connection with Freemasonry, that of the Grand Officers, thanks to the courtesy of the brethren in all well-regulated lodges, was invariably received with consideration and kindness. He would not dare to controvert any word that the W.M. had said in praise of the Grand Officers, for he was inclined to think that the depreciation of one self frequently was—at any rate it might be, and not seldom was—construed to be an actual magnifying of one's own office. On his own behalf, while he thanked the brethren for the generous hospitality they had extended to him and his esteemed brother on his right as Grand Officers, he would like to take that opportunity of congratulating the W.M., in the presence of the brethren of the Creaton Lodge, upon his having been called on to rule over a lodge bearing his own name. (Hear, hear.) The long, steady, disinterested, and unobtrusive services which the W.M. had rendered to Freemasonry were fitly acknowledged at the last Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge. But he felt persuaded that it must be an additional source of gratification to him to feel that his name, which was a household word amongst the Craft, had a good chance of being permanently recorded in connection with this lodge. He would conclude with the expression of the sincere and hearty wish that the Creaton Lodge might continue to prosper long after the grave had closed upon them, upon their children, and their children's children, so that in the long and distant future the Grand Lodge of England might retain a pleasing recollection of the name of one who during a lifetime of usefulness had been an honour and an ornament to the Masonic brotherhood. (Cheers.) As one of the founders and acting Secretary of the lodge, Bro. Cattle said he had been entrusted with the gavel of the W.M., and the brethren no doubt well knew for what purpose he temporarily held it. It was to propose "The Health of the W.M." The Creaton Lodge was as yet only in its infancy; in fact, to use a homely simile, in its swaddling clothes. (Laughter.) It was just about a month since it was born, but from what the brethren had seen that evening it was gradually beginning to gain strength, and to push the figure a little further, would soon be able to run alone. (Renewed laughter.) They had that evening received nine joining members and two initiates (hear, hear), and had it not been for a family bereavement, which precluded him from being present, they would have had a third. From the exhibition they had all had of the working of the lodge on that occasion he felt sure that the brethren were very pleased indeed to have such a Master to preside over them as Bro. Creaton. (Hear, hear.) He had been known for many years in connection with Freemasonry, in everything where stern duty was required. They had only to appeal to the officers presiding over any of the Charities to know how hardworking a Mason their W.M. had been, and he felt certain he was expressing the opinion of all the brethren when he said they would always consider his presence as a ruling spirit amongst them, and hoped that the Great Architect of the Universe would long give him health and strength to be amongst them. The W.M. felt at a loss to know how to return thanks after all the kind things that had been said about him. He could assure the brethren that he esteemed it a very great compliment to have been selected to be their first Master, and, while thanking them for their kindness, he ventured to assure them that as long as he lived he would endeavour to merit it by attention to his duties as W.M., and after he ceased to hold office by his constant attendance at and interest in the lodge which bore his humble name. (Hear, hear.) He had done all that he could during his connection with the brotherhood to advance the Charities, and he was vain enough to believe that he had done a little good in that direction, and as long as the Great Architect of the Universe spared him he would lose no opportunity to continue to do what he could for the Charitable Institutions of the Craft. (Hear, hear.) "The Initiates" having been proposed and duly honoured, "The Visitors" followed, and was briefly and appropriately acknowledged by Bros. Cottebrune, P.G.P., and John Finch, W.M. 173, both of whom took occasion to congratulate the members of the Creaton Lodge on the large accession of brethren to their lodge that evening. The remaining toasts, "The Secretary and Treasurer," "The Officers," and "To all poor and distressed Masons," having been drunk the meeting broke up. During the evening Bros. Kift and Cattle enlivened the proceedings with some fine singing, and Bro. Levy gave a few of his theatrical imitations, much to the amusement of the company.

MANCHESTER.—Caledonian Lodge (No. 204).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Wednesday, the 12th inst., Bro. J. Roberts occupying the chair of K.S., supported by his respective officers, viz.:—Bros. G. T. Mullock, S.W.; W. Bagnall, J.W.; J. C. Hind, Treas., P.M.; R. L. Spencer, Sec.; H. T. Robberds, Org., P.M.; J. Sutcliffe, J.D.; C. Duckworth, I.G.; R. A. Eldershaw, I.P.M.; J. Battye, P.M.; W. Aldred, P.M.; and J. Sly, Tyler. There was a fair sprinkling of members present and a few visitors. This lodge, which musters some sixty or seventy members, was at one time the strongest in the province, so much so that it was found necessary and advisable to break off some branches from the parent tree, and form them into other lodges; and we believe that the Faith, Strangeways, Yarborough, Shakespeare, Robert Burns, Alexandra, and De Grey and Ripon Lodges have all sprang from the Caledonian. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. J. Cliffe was duly passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his officers, after which Bros. Henry Paulden and Benj. Taylor were respectively raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., the ceremony being performed in the first case by the W.M. and in the second by Bro. J. Battye, P.M., who also presented the working tools, and delivered the charge to both the newly raised brethren, in a most efficient manner. The lodge was then lowered to the First Degree, when a proposition was made by Bro. R. A. Eldershaw, P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. Battye, P.M., that the sum of two guineas be given to the Warehousemen and Clerks' School, which was unanimously carried. This being all the business the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where a very excellent supper was served, to which 29 sat down. The cloth being cleared and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts responded to. "The Healths of Bros. Paulden and Taylor," the newly raised brethren, were proposed and drank with enthusiasm. Bro. Taylor responded in a very flowing and eloquent speech, in which he thanked the brethren on behalf of himself and Bro. Paulden for the honour conferred on them by the Caledonian Lodge in enrolling them among its members, and trusted they might long be spared to render Freemasonry all the assistance in their power. Other toasts followed, including "The Visitors," which were duly responded to, and with some singing, to which Bro. H. T. Robberds, P.M., rendered valuable assistance, this very pleasant evening was brought to a close at 10.30.

ROCHDALE.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 298).—The regular monthly meeting of this exceedingly well worked lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Ann-street, on the 5th inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. R. R. Grey, assisted by his Wardens and officers, an unusual number of members, and several visiting Past Masters, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and declared to be correctly recorded. The lodge was opened in the Second degree, when Bro. Robinson claimed preferment, and having sustained his claim, was entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when the W.M. invited Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.J.W. Cumberland and Westmoreland, to take the chair, which he did, and raised Bro. Robinson in ample form. The lodge was lowered, the further business transacted, and finally closed in harmony.

WHITBY.—Lion Lodge (No. 312).—In the large Masonic Hall, John-street, which is handsome, furnished and artistically decorated with Masonic emblem, the brethren of this lodge assembled on Monday last. The W.M., Bro. John Stevenson, P.P.G.J.W. Yorks, N. and E. Ridings, opened the lodge with solemn form at 7.30, supported by the following brethren:—Bros. J. S. Moss, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; Major W. H. Marwood, P.M.; T. N. Marwood, P.M.; H. Hallgate, P.M.; F. Thornton, S.W.; G. H. Crowther, J.W.; John H. Lawson, P.M., Treas.; J. B. Dale, Sec.; W. E. Wolsey, S.D.; George Farrow, J.D.; J. T. Thornton, I.G.; T. H. Trueman and Thomas Harland, Stewards; Capt. W. Sanderson, J. H. Breckon, W. Pattison, R. Johnson, W. Turner, J. Brooks, T. Bolton, J. Andrew, and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). The lodge was opened in the several degrees, the business of the evening consisting in the initiation of Mr. John Brand. This ceremony was performed by the W.M. in so perfect a manner as to elicit unanimous praise from the Past Masters and admiration from the brethren. The W.M. was ably assisted by his officers, especial praise being due to Bro. Farrow, the Junior Deacon. After the closing of the lodge the brethren partook of refreshment, during which the usual toasts were proposed. Bro. H. Hallgate replied to the toast of "The Past Masters," Bro. John Brand that of "The Initiate," and Bro. Kelly "The Visitors" and "The Press," proposed, in very complimentary terms, by Bro. John Stevenson, the W.M. This veteran brother has served the office of W.M. to the lodge four years. In the lodge-room is a tablet, upon which is inscribed the names of each Master since the year 1797, from which we learn that Bro. Stevenson was in the chair in the years 1850 and 1851, and again in 1878, at the expiration of which he was unanimously re-elected. The brethren separated at an early hour, after spending an enjoyable evening. On Friday next, the 28th inst., the members of this lodge purpose holding a conversation in their well proportioned and commodious hall. Each member may invite two friends. The entertainment will consist of two parts—the first musical, the second miscellaneous. Half an hour will be spent between the parts around the social board and in the inspection of various articles of interest lent by the brethren. The musical arrangements are in the hands of Bro. H. Hallgate, who has been fortunate in securing the valuable aid of Bro. Padel, of York, the eminent pianist. The general arrangements are under the control of the W.M., Bro. John Stevenson, Bro. T. N. Marwood, P.M., and the Senior Warden, Bro. F. Thornton. A very pleasant evening is anticipated.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Affability (No. 317).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at 4.30, for the purpose of initiating into the mysteries of Freemasonry Mr. John Lawton, who was proposed by Bro. Daniel Donbavand, I.P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. H. Sillitoe, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. Bro. John Roger Lever, W.M., presided, supported by the following officers, viz.:—Bros. Mark Vickers, S.W.; William Nicholl, J.W.; R. Tomlins, S.D.; J. Halliday, J.W.; Jno. Smethurst, Treas.; John Church, Sec.; Ezra John, I.G.; Wilson, Steward; and J. Sly, Tyler. There were also present Bros. Daniel Donbavand, I.P.M.; Dawson, P.M.; Albert Brenner, and several other brethren. Visitors: F. Stanislaus, 1633; J. Wainwright, 1609; C. H. Stevenson, H. Hallam, jun., John Cavanah, P.G.A.D.C. Cheshire, and others. The minutes of the last lodge night having been read and confirmed, Mr. John Lawton was duly balloted for, and unanimously elected a member, and afterwards initiated by the W.M., who performed the ceremony in a most praiseworthy manner. Bro. Dawson, P.M., then delivered the E.A. Charge to the candidate in a highly commendable style, and at the conclusion of the ceremony the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts proposed and responded to. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Newly-Initiated Candidate, Bro. Lawton," which was received and drank with acclamation and true Masonic "fire." Bro. Lawton, in a short but telling speech, thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him by electing him a member of the Affability, and further stated it to be his earnest desire to continue advancing up the ladder of Freemasonry, and stepping over the different degrees until he should be able to be on a par with some of the great workers whose portraits adorned the walls around the room. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the Visitors," said he felt proud to see an array of talent around him, as it was not often that the lodge was honoured with the presence of so many of the dramatic profession, and it simply manifested the high esteem in which Bro. Lawton was held, to see around him such a goodly number of brethren who had assembled to witness the ceremony of his initiation. He was quite sure the brethren would coincide with him in requesting that, instead of the usual verbal response to the toast of "The Visitors," some of them would reply by obliging them with a song, and he therefore called upon Bro. H. Hallam, jun., of the True Friendship Lodge, Calcutta, to favour them with a specimen of his vocal abilities. Bro. Hallam, who has a very sweet tenor voice, sang "Molly Bawn, why leave me pining?" with great taste and feeling, and called forth the admiration of all present, after which Bro. J. Wainwright gave a reading from Shakespeare's "As You Like It" in a highly creditable manner, and then followed a humorous song, given by Bro. C. H. Stevenson, entitled "Gee Ho, Dobbins," and which, by reason of the intensely comic manner in which it was sung, produced shouts of laughter. Bro. Albert Brenner, who was labouring under a slight hoarseness, sang "Good Bye, Sweetheart, Good Bye," with great pathos, and called forth the warmest applause; and, lastly, the W.M., Bro. J. L. Lever, by desire, gave "The Low backed Car" in his inimitable style, which song concluded one of the most pleasant meetings of this lodge.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Lodge (No. 874).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday last, at the Pump Room, The Parade, Tunbridge Wells. The rooms at this establishment are admirably suited for the convenience of the brethren, there being every accommodation for lodge business, and no lack of space. There is a most commodious preparing and clothing room, and the lodge room, which is nearly square, is large enough to hold what in London would be considered a crowded lodge. The lodge has been furnished with very handsome and substantial oak furniture, every detail of which has been most studiously considered and most effectively worked out. A tessellated carpet covers the floor, and two dozen substantial oak chairs with leather seats, including half-a-dozen arm chairs for the Past Masters, are ranged on two sides of the room. Special chairs of oak are provided for the Master, I.P.M., Treasurer, Wardens, and Secretary, surmounting each being the jewel in gift of the officer whose chair it is. For these chairs there is also a dais, so that the principal officers of the lodge are seated higher than the other brethren. The pedestals also have the jewels of their respective officers in front, and the panels are surrounded with a banding of black. The Ionic, Doric, and Corinthian columns are placed at a short distance from the pedestals, so that no inconvenience is experienced in the introduction of candidates to the officers in the different degrees. The perfect ashlar, which is very heavy, is of polished marble of beautiful workmanship, and depends from sheer legs of some five feet high. All the other furniture is in keeping, and affords altogether a fine example of what can be done in furnishing a lodge to make Masonic ceremonies impressive to those who join the Order, and probably in no lodge could the paraphernalia create a greater impression than in the Holmesdale Lodge. The brethren assembled at half-past two, and at the time mentioned in the summons the lodge was opened by Bro. William Beadell Bacon, W.M. The following brethren were present:—Bros. W. B. Bacon, W.M.; H. D. M. Williams, S.W.; W. H. Hodgkin, J.W.; J. Burton, S.D.; J. Dunkley, J.D.; R. W. Delves, I.G.; G. Strange, Tyler; J. F. Bates, Sec.; W. S. Elers, P.M., Treas.; P.M.'s Roper, Beckley, Read, W. Delves; Bros. Satchell, M. Williams, Ramsbotham, Boorman, Grabam, Whitehead, Holt, Dowden, Durrant, Lord George Pratt, J. K. Pain, S. Cheale, Dickinson, Rule, Lord Nevill. Visitors: Bros. Greig, G.M. of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, J. Nicholls, P.P.G.S.W., P.M. 1050; J. M. Cuthbert, P.M. 540; W. Stephens, P.M. 1505 and 1489; Thos Kingston, P.M. 862 and W.M. 1612; J. Brothers, P.M. 709; J. Hughes Hallett, P.M. 709, P.P.G.R.; W. Demes, P.M. 341, P.P.G.R. Sussex; R. Carnell, 1414; T. G. Wilkinson, 1449; — Whitehead, Bagshaw Lodge; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, and the adoption of the Auditors' report, which was read and moved by the Treasurer, Lord George Montacute Nevill and Bro. William Dickinson, of 1678, were elected members of the lodge, after which, on the motion of Bro. J. Read, P.M., seconded by the Treasurer, a Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. Bacon. The W.M. then installed Bro. H. D. M. Williams, S.W. and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge, performing all the work in first-class style. The officers invested were Bros. W. H. Hodgkin, S.W.; J. Burton, J.W.; W. S. Elers, Treasurer; J. F. Bates, Secretary, — Boorman, Organist; J. Dunkley, S.D.; J. Waterman, J.D.; — Cheale I.G.; R. Delves, M.C.; C. Graham, A.M.C. After the delivery of the charges, the new W.M. informed the brethren that Bro. Pelton had presented the lodge with a fine portrait of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., framed and glazed, whereupon the portrait was placed upon the wall, and the W.M. moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Pelton for the handsome present. In proposing the vote the W.M. said the brethren were very much pleased at the gift, and they would like to see the lodge-room adorned with other portraits. Probably the example set by Bro. Pelton might induce other brethren to make similar presents, and for his own part he would like to see portraits of the Past Masters of the lodge on the walls, as a memento of their connection with the lodge. The Treasurer seconded the motion, and said it was very kind and thoughtful of Bro. Pelton to make such a present. Every brother of the lodge would appreciate it. The W.M. then closed the lodge, and the brethren adjourned to the Calverley Hotel, where a charming banquet was in readiness for them. When this had been disposed of and grace said, the usual toasts were proposed. After the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro and Deputy G.M., &c.," had been honoured, the W.M. proposed "Lord Holmesdale, Prov. G.M. Kent, the Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. Eastes, the Prov. G.S.W., and other Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present." To this toast Bro. Hallett, P. Prov. G. Reg. Kent, responded, and said he hardly knew why his humble name should have been associated with this toast, stranger as he was in that immediate neighbourhood, although he was not a stranger in the county of Kent, where his name was pretty well known. Still, for the honour the W.M. and brethren had been pleased to pay him along with the Prov. G. Master and other Prov. G. Officers, he returned his most sincere thanks. He was sure when he reported to them the compliment that had been passed on them they would be highly gratified. He exceedingly regretted that his old friend the Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. Eastes, was not present, because that esteemed brother would have responded more ably than he. Bro. Read, P.M., in proposing the toast of "The Installing Master, Bro. Bacon," said the brethren would all agree with him that to propose that toast in suitable terms was a very arduous duty. Bro. Bacon must have paid great attention to the task of learning the ceremony to have been able to install the present W.M. with the great fluency and ability that the brethren had witnessed. It was the general opinion of the brethren that the manner of his performance did him great credit. It was the custom in the Holmesdale Lodge for the outgoing W.M. to install his successor, and Bro. Bacon had determined to maintain the old character of the lodge, by not breaking this rule. The exertion he had thrown into his task was most commendable, and the lodge would never forget that he had well and worthily wound up a most successful Mastership by performing unaided the ceremony of installation. Bro. Bacon, I.P.M., in reply, simply said that he was highly gratified that his conduct of the ceremony of installation had met with the approval of the brethren. Bro. Bacon then proposed "The Health of the W.M., Bro. H. D. M. Williams." He said that Bro. Williams was a worthy occupant of the high and distinguished position to which the brethren had elected him, and the brethren who were members of the Holmesdale Lodge were well acquainted with the manner in which he had performed the duties of all the other offices which he had filled year by year. He felt confident that Bro. Williams's year of Mastership would be a very successful one, and in his endeavour to make it so all the brethren would afford their most cordial assistance. The W.M., in reply, said that, coming newly to the chair of the lodge, he felt very much as Moses, of old, felt when he had to address an important message to the Israelites, that he was slow of speech and of a slow tongue, and that he could not declare himself without the fluency of his brother Aaron. The Past Masters of the lodge, however, were to him what Aaron was to Moses. Although not fluent of speech, he could assure the brethren that with the able assistance of the officers of the lodge, and the Past Masters, and other brethren he would try to make the lodge successful. If the brethren would be punctual in their attendance, and work with Masonic heartiness both in and out of lodge, they would show to the world that Masonry was not a name only but a reality. There was a sort of kindred nature between Masonry and that old Book on which he had that day laid his hands and made a declaration, and if the brethren took what was said in that Book as a guide, and acted up to the different obligations they contracted in the various degrees through which they had passed, they would become not only good Masons, but good citizens of England and good citizens of the world. Passing on to the obligations of the different degrees, and recounting in brief the principles that were recited, he adjured the brethren to maintain those principles in their daily walk in life, and they would never regret the day when they entered so high and holy an Order as the ancient Craft to which they belonged. The W.M. next gave "The Health of the Past Masters of the Holmesdale Lodge," coupling with it more particularly the name of Bro. Roper, P.M., whose services to the lodge were well known. Bro. Roper, in reply, said the W.M. had spoken very highly of him, and had called upon the brethren to assist him in keeping the lodge in its present proud position. The brethren resident in the town of Tunbridge Wells had greater facilities for responding to this call than those who did not live in the town, and he was sure that their zeal and loyalty to the noble and ancient Craft would not decay, but that they would answer the W.M.'s request to support him on every occasion. For the honour conferred upon him and the other Past Masters by drinking this toast he, with them, felt deeply grateful. It happened that he was the senior P.M., and, therefore, the duty of responding fell upon him of thanking the brethren for the compliment. Now that the lodge was so admirably housed, when he thought how much they were indebted to those members of the lodge who had taken a leading part in arranging for the new lodge-room and its splendid fittings, he could not help considering that they had done great service, and had assisted in placing the Holmesdale Lodge in the fore-front among the lodges of England in point of accommodation. The Past Masters were abundantly grateful to those who had more recently had the conduct of the affairs of the lodge, and the very least that they (the Past Masters, whose time was rather passing, by the way,) could do was to continue that support which Providence enabled them to render. Bro. Wilmot, P.M., also responded. As the partner in business of the W.M., he congratulated the lodge on having chosen such a chief. He was sure the brethren would never regret the choice they had made in electing him as Master of the Holmesdale Lodge. With regard to the lodge, he supposed he had been called upon to reply because he had taken some little interest in placing the lodge in its present position; but there had been many, many brethren who had come to the front more than he. Being less acquainted with public speaking than he, he supposed was the reason they had chosen him as their mouthpiece. They had succeeded in placing Masonry on a solid basis in Kent, and had shown that they venerated it, and did not choose to have it desecrated by tavern adjuncts. They had shown that they could have a lodge set apart and consecrated to Masonry, because they had among them many men who looked above the mere eating and drinking, which were supposed by the outer world to be the connections of Freemasonry. The P.M.'s had done the very best they could to promote the benefit of the Craft, and he only hoped that in the future (he said this in the presence of many Provincial Grand Officers) when Grand Lodge granted warrants for the formation of new lodges they would look to the places where those lodges were proposed to be held. In his opinion not half enough attention was paid to this point. Sometimes they would find lodges held in a place where there was such small accommodation that the preparing room was formed by a curtain being drawn across a staircase. This he did not approve of, and he thought it was the duty of Provincial Grand Lodge Officers to see to it that all lodges in the province, or proposed to be erected in the province, could be decently and properly tyled. Thanking the brethren again on behalf of the P.M.'s, he remembered that he had taken great interest in the Holmesdale Lodge ever since he had been connected with it. He trusted he should always continue to do so, but he felt there were brethren who had more work in them than there was left in him, and he hoped they would exert themselves in that respect. Bro. Bickley, P.M., also responded, and said the brethren were all deeply indebted to Bro. Wilmot for the exertions he had made, and which had been crowned with such success. The W.M. next proposed "The Officers, Present and Past, of the Holmesdale Lodge," whose working at present and in the past was all that could be desired. With reference to Lord Pratt, he reminded the brethren that his lordship was about to be married, and he congratulated him on that event. Lord George Pratt thanked the W.M. for his kind allusion, and hoped his life in the future would be a happy one. Bro. Hodgkin, S.W., likewise replied. The lodge was to be congratulated on the Masters it had had. To Bro. Wilmot's services it was deeply indebted, for undoubtedly they had been very great. The I.P.M., Bro. Bacon, had laid the lodge under deep obligations by his excellent working during the past year, which had culminated in his admirable performance of the installation ceremony that evening. It must have been a great pleasure to the brethren and the visitors, as it was to him, to witness the way in which that long and difficult ceremony was rendered. Bro. Williams, the W.M., had filled other offices in the lodge, and if he performed the office of Master with the same ability there could be no question of the lodge having a successful year. Bro. Burton also replied. Bro. Hudson, P.P.G.R., replied to the toast of "The Visitors." It was a great honour, he said, to him to have to respond for such a distinguished body of visitors as those he saw around him. He had done himself the honour of travelling from town to be present at this meeting, and he took it that it was the sentiment each and every one of the visitors entertained that they came because they wished to honour Masonry, that grand tradition which each of them like their forefathers was most interested in preserving. He believed that at no period of the world's history were those accessories which bound heart to heart and man to man more necessary to society than at present, and if they could dive into the past or look forward to the future, they would be able, no doubt, more fully to appreciate that fact. Masonry had done much to cement the fabric which we called society into one harmonious whole. There was a bond far higher than Masonry, he admitted, but Masonry was based upon it, and it was that bond which Masonry seemed to perpetuate and make acceptable to the mind of man. Therefore, they honoured Masonry. It had a kindly instinct about it. It was levelling, perhaps, and brought together people as friends who were not friends before. In lodge even titles for the moment disappeared, and place was given to the kindlier and grander instinct of brotherhood. Hence it was that titled and untitled men got a grip of each other's hands when other ties had failed to unite them; therefore it was, he said, that Masonry had a kindly feeling. Engaged, as he said, in London business, he had lately come down into the neighbourhood, where he would not, perhaps, have met many gentlemen who were sporting, shooting, and engaged in country exercises, and would not have known them if it had not been for Masonry. Masonry gave him the opportunity of meeting many excellent men, and he thanked Masonry for it. He hoped it would be cherished in the locality, and that many times he might have the opportunity of meeting the brethren again around the hospitable board. The Tyler's toast was then given, and the proceedings were brought to a close. Some excellent songs were sung during the evening by Bros. Boorman and Bates, and Tennyson's "Godiva" was recited by Bro. Dawes.

SCARBOROUGH.—Denison Lodge (No. 1248).—The first meeting of the members of this lodge, since the installation, was held on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at the Grand Hotel. Bro. J. Ivor Murray, P.P.G.S.D. China, occupied the chair of K.S., and was supported by the following officers and brethren: Bros. F. Foster, P.M.; Kitchen, P.M.; F. W. Booty, S.W.; G. O. Crowther, J.W.; G. Padley, Sec.; H. J. Motton, S.D.; John Davidson, J.D.; A. Parkinson, I.G.; and J. Verity, Tyler. Bros. S. W. Fisher, G. B. Holmes, James Townsend, and H. Wellburn. Visitors: W. Peacock, P.M. 200; T. Cooper, 697 (Ireland); J. Knaggs, 200; F. A. Kelly (Freemason); W. Fraser, 200; W. G. Smyth, 712; and George Dixon, 1166. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Leesome Walker was examined, and having satisfied the lodge, retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Leesome Walker was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason by the W.M., Bro. J. Ivor Murray. Bro. Murray is a very old Past Master, and has initiated upwards of seventy gentlemen into Freemasonry. Several small matters of business were then disposed of, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, where the customary toasts were given and duly responded to.

CHORLTON - CUM - HARDY.—Chorlton Lodge (No. 1387).—The new Masonic Hall was opened on Wednesday, the 12th inst., on the occasion of the annual installation meeting of the above lodge. A Craft lodge was opened at 3.30 by the W.M. (Bro. J. Rains, M.D.), supported by his officers and a large gathering of members and visitors. Amongst the latter were Bros. J. H. Sillitoe, P.M. 317, P.P.G.D. of C. East Lancashire; Chas. McBride, P.P.G.A.D. of C. Leicestershire; J. Battye, P.M. 204; J. Studd, 63; A. H. Sykes, 369; H. A. Gilbody, W.M. 1045; J. E. Lees, P.M. 645; G. F. Freeman, P.M. 1055; E. Orrill, 204; H. Hunter, W.M. 1088; J. Laidlaw, P.M. 1375; G. Bradbury, P.M. 78; W. E. Nor-burn, John Turner, W.M. 268; and F. Vetter, 815. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Squirrel, and proving in his favour, he was initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M., after which Bro. J. Crompton, P.M., installed the W.M. elect (Bro. James G. Batty) in the chair of K.S., who, after having been properly saluted and proclaimed in the various degrees, appointed the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year, who were invested by Bro. Crompton:—Bros. R. Davies, S.W.; E. Brundritt, J.W.; Rev. H. B. Jones, M.A., P.M., P.P.G.C., Chaplain; H. Marshall, Treas.; D. Williams, Sec.; John Dewhurst, S.D.; A. D. Edwards, J.D.; T. Schofield, P.M., D. of C.; W. Norbury, Org.; J. J. Lambert, I.G.; J. Addy, A. Love, R. Fowler, W. H. Acton, Stewards; W. Chesshyre, Tyler. The addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren were delivered very impressively by Bro. Schofield, P.M. At the conclusion of the installation ceremony Bro. Crompton, by command of the newly-installed W.M., presented a beautiful jewel to the I.P.M. (Bro. Rains), after which the W.M., in a very eloquent and appropriate speech, presented to Bro. R. Davies, S.W., a handsomely chased silver salver, as a slight acknowledgment of the generous services rendered to the lodge and chapter by allowing them to assemble in his school-rooms and storing the furniture, &c., during the building of the new hall. The salver bears the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. and Comp. R. Davies by the members of the Chorlton Lodge and Chapter, 1387, as a token of their sincere regard, 12th March, 1879." Bro. Davies thanked the brethren in suitable terms. The lodge was closed in peace and harmony, and an adjournment was made to the Lloyd Hotel, where a recherche banquet was prepared by the hostess. The W.M. presided, and about fifty members honoured him with their presence. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were very ably proposed, and the toast of the evening, "The W.M.," as well as those of "The Past Masters," "Officers of the Lodge," "The Visitors," &c., were enthusiastically received, and heartily responded to. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. F. Vetter. Miss Crabtree (daughter of the hostess) completely charmed all present with her beautiful voice and very ably rendered pianoforte solo. Bro. R. Fowler was equally successful as a flautist, and the popular Masonic quartet party, consisting of Bros. J. R. Lever, W.M. 317; M. Thomas, W.M. 350; C. Stanley, 204; and T. Shorrock, P.M. 350, sang some glees and trios, notably "Willie brewed a peck o' maut," in a manner that called forth well-deserved applause, and in some cases encores were insisted upon. Several other brethren took part in the vocal music, which enhanced the pleasures of the evening.

CUCKFIELD.—Ockenden Lodge (No. 1465).—Following out his announced intention of officially visiting periodically each lodge in the province of Sussex, Sir Walter W. Burrell, Bart., M.P. (Provincial Grand Master), attended the above lodge, at the Talbot Hotel, on Tuesday, the 11th inst. He was attended by the following Provincial Grand Officers:—Bros. John Henderson Scott, Dep. Prov. G.M.; W. Sergison, S.G.W.; J. St. Clair, J.G.W.; V. P. Freeman, G. Sec.; W. Hale, G.S.D.; Mark Tanner, G.J.D.; C. Tomkinson, G. Supt. of Works; J. M. Kidd, G.D.C.; W. G. Sharp, G.A.D.C.; Jos. Farncombe, G.S.B.; W. T. Nell, G. Purst.; G. S. Evershed, E. Bright, F. J. Rubie, and A. J. Hawkes, G. Stewards. The occasion was the annual installation, Bro. S. W. D. Williams, M.D. (medical superintendent Sussex County Lunatic Asylum), having been unanimously selected by the lodge for this important position. He was duly installed according to ancient custom, but in consequence of a severe domestic affliction to the family of the outgoing Master (Bro. T. S. Byass) the ceremony was kindly undertaken by his immediate Past Master. An interesting feature of the proceedings was the presentation to Bro. Byass of a valuable Past Master's jewel for the efficient discharge of the duties of his office during the past twelve months. Bro. Dr. Williams having appointed his officers the ceremony was continued with the assistance of the Deputy Prov. G. Master and the Prov. G. Secretary. At the conclusion of the business the brethren dined together in the assembly-room, which important part of the day's proceedings was very admirably arranged and carried out. Messrs. Sayers and Marks, of Brighton, were the caterers, and their reputation is a sufficient guarantee that the banquet was well served. Bro. Dumsday supplied the wines and superintended the general arrangements very efficiently. Among those present at the dinner other than those already mentioned were Bros. Kuhe, P.G.O. England; W. H. German, P.P.G.S.D.; W. R. Wood, P.P.G.S.W. and P.G. Steward Eng.; J. P. Smith, D.P.G.M.; C. Sandeman, P.G.A.D.C.; W. Devin, P.P.G.O.; W. Read, P.G. Purst.; S. Tanner, W.M. South Saxon; J. Eberell, P.M. 1636; T. Wilkinson, W.M. 271; A. Taylor, W.M. 1110; T. U. Price, W.M. Howard; B. Bennett, W.M. 732; E. Broadbridge, F. Marks, J. Sayers, St. Cecilia; S. H. Soper, Royal Brunswick; C. E. Saunders, St. Albans; C. Golding, York; C. Sawyer, Sackville; Robertson, M.D.; R. C. Williams, J. S. Champion, John Gallop, C. F. Lewis, F. W. Otter, W. H. W. R. Burrell, C. Braid, E. Dumsday, F. Milsom, W.M. 341, and others. The customary loyal and Craft toasts having been enthusiastically received, the newly-elected W.M. (Dr. Williams) gave "The Health of Bro. Sir Walter Burrell." In doing so he referred to the important positions which the hon. baronet held in the county, not only as their Provincial Grand Master but in the discharge of many other and important duties. In each of these he displayed a judgment and large-heartedness which especially commended him to all with whom he was brought in contact. Personally he had to thank him for many kindnesses, and he took that opportunity to do so publicly. The Provincial Grand Master, in responding, referred to the high compliment which had been paid him by the proposer. As to any services which the W.M. might consider had been rendered by him he had only done it in the discharge of a public duty. That he was right in his judgment at the time was shown by experience since. Having taken some interest in the formation of the Ockenden Lodge, Bro. Sir Walter Burrell said he naturally watched its growth with satisfaction. The real merit of the establishment of the lodge, some five years ago, was, however, due to their late Deputy G.M. (Bro. Furner). Bro. Sergison gave "The Deputy Grand Master and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge." In a humorous speech, he said the members of the Ockenden Lodge looked upon Bro. Scott as their "nursing mother;" he having been of very great assistance to them in the early days of its existence. Bro. Scott replied by saying that it was to the day five years ago that the Ockenden Lodge was consecrated, and said it was a pleasure to find that the officers were now sufficiently skilled in their duties to perform the ordinary ceremonies without extraneous aid. In their new Master they had one who was thoroughly proficient, and he had little doubt he would become a shining light in Masonry in the province. In responding to the toast of his health as Master of the lodge, Bro. Williams said he fully appreciated the honour which had been conferred upon him, and he should spare no effort to carry out the duties of his office efficiently. Bro. J. H. Scott gave "The Past Masters," of whom three were present and the other two unfortunately debarred from attending through the sudden death of one near and dear to them in India. Their grief he felt sure was shared by all present. The Past Masters were the mainstay of a lodge, and the toast of their health was one well worthy of their warmest reception. The toast having been acknowledged, the proceedings terminated about ten o'clock. During the evening Bro. Kuhle favoured the company with a brilliant pianoforte performance, and some excellent songs were sung by Bros. Broadbridge, Sharpe, Soper, and others. Bro. Devin accompanying. Bro. Sir Walter W. Burrell has recently presented to the Prov. G. Lodge of Sussex a very valuable Damascus sword, with gold-mounted hilt and bearing various Masonic devices. It was used for the first time on Tuesday, and was very much admired.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—On Monday, the 10th inst., at the regular meeting of this lodge, there was an unusually large muster of members and visitors on the occasion of the presentation of a valuable gold Past Master's jewel to the I.P.M., Bro. T. B. Whythead, Prov. G.D.C. The presentation was made by the W.M., Bro. J. S. Cumberland, who at the close of a neat speech called upon Bro. Thos. Cooper, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., to place the jewel on Bro. Whythead's breast. The recipient of the jewel responded in felicitous terms, and the brethren afterwards met at supper. Amongst the visitors present were, Bros. W. Beanland, P.M.; A. Buckle, W.M. 236; W. C. Lukis, W.M. 837; G. Balmford, P.M. 236; C. Foster, P.M.; J. Church, J. Ward, and several others from neighbouring lodges. An emergency meeting of the same lodge was held last Monday evening, when the W.M. presided, supported by his officers and brethren. Two candidates were initiated, and a pleasant evening was spent. Bro. T. B. Whythead presented to the lodge a copy of "Hutchinson's Spirit of Masonry," and a large coloured lithograph of the Masonic Temple at Philadelphia, the handsome oak frame for which had been given by Bro. J. Keswick.

RAYLEIGH.—Trinity Lodge (No. 1734).—The first anniversary of this young but flourishing lodge took place at their lodge-room, at the Golden Lion Hotel, on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at half-past two o'clock. The all-important event of the evening was the installation of the Worshipful Master elect, Bro. John Allen, P.M. 160, P.P.G.S.B. Essex, as W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony of the installation was performed by the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. Wm. Pissey, P.M. 160, P.P.J.G.W. Essex, in a faultless manner. Bro. J. Allen, the W.M., then appointed and invested his officers as follows: W. Bros. Wm. Pissey, P.M. 160, P.P.J.G.W., the I.P.M.; Edwd. Judd, P.M. 160, P.P.G.R. Essex, S.W.; Fredk. J. Wiseman, P.M. 160, J.W.; Bros. Wm. I. Belcham, sen., re-elected Treas.; W. Pissey, Sec.; Francis R. Bernard, S.D.; the Rev. A. F. Heaton, J.D.; Jas. Syer, D.C.; Wm. I. Belcham, jun., I.G.; Chas. T. Witham, re-elected Tyler. There was a good attendance of members, and the visitors present were, Bro. J. C. Johnstone, W.M. 1000; W. Bros. J. A. Wardell, P.M. 160, and 1000, M.E.Z. 1000, P.P.G.D. Essex, and Sec. 1000; Albert Lucking, P.M. 160, and 1000, P.Z. 1000, Prov. G.D.C. Essex; Bro. F. D. Grayson, I.G. 1000. After all business was over, the lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet provided by Mr. Jas. Devenish. After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly responded to, songs were given by several of the brethren, and brought to a close a very happy and enjoyable evening. Bro. Wm. Pissey, on his retiring from the chair, was presented with a valuable Past Master's jewel by the lodge, he being a founder and the first Worshipful Master.

INSTRUCTION.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, on Wednesday, the 19th inst. There was very little lodge business, and to this, possibly, may be attributed the rather scanty attendance. The following brethren were present:—Bros. W. A. Morgan, W.M.; H. R. Jones, I.P.M.; A. N. Newens, S.W.; J. B. Walker, J.W.; J. J. Holland, J.D.; F. W. Wardroper, I.G.; J. Frost, Sec.; H. Wilson, Treas.; J. G. Carter, P.M.; F. H. Newens, P.M.; E. H. Boddy, P.M.; H. C. Frances, P.M.; S. C. Landon, J. Sanders, W. T. Bell, T. Arnison, A. J. Duck, W. A. Blackmore (visitor, Industry Lodge, 1485), P. V. Denham, and A. A. Denham (Mid-Surrey Standard).

The minutes having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Arnison and Bell were very ably passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M. At the conclusion of the supper—which was by subscription, and not provided by encroaching on the lodge funds—several capital songs were given by Bros. Morgan, Duck, A. N. Newens, J. G. Carter, and J. Frost, an inimitable comic. As a parting word of advice, the W.M. exhorted the brethren to attend in good force at the next meeting. A letter was read from Bro. W. J. Huntley, S.D., who was prevented from attending by illness.

Royal Arch.

ST. JAMES'S CHAPTER (No. 2).—This distinguished chapter met on Thursday week, at Freemasons' Hall, to exalt Bro. Roberts and to instal the Principals and officers. There was a numerous gathering, among whom we noticed Comps. Sandeman, Rucker, Thomas, Levander, Peters, Trimmer, and many more. Many old members of the chapter were present. M.E. Comp. Erasmus Wilson duly installed Comp. Brodie as Z.; and M.E. Comp. Brodie installed Comp. Middleton as H.; and Comp. Middleton installed Comp. Woodford as J. Among the officers of the chapter were Past Principal Erasmus Wilson, Comps. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, Treas.; Muggeridge, E.; Letchworth, N.; and Capt. Davis, P.S. Many old members of the chapter were present, like Comps. Lieut.-Col. Stewart, Whitehead, Sampson Peate, Wood, and others. After the chapter was closed, the companions adjourned to the banquet, at which many excellent speeches were made, and the companions separated at an early hour, sorry that the moment of parting had come from the friendly agreeable, and social circle.

ROYAL JUBILEE CHAPTER (No. 73).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held on Thursday, the 13th inst., at the Horns, Kennington. The chapter was opened by the Principals, Ex. Comps. Durkin, M.E.Z.; J. Nunn, H.; E. Dodson, P.Z., acting J.; Foxall, I.P.Z., S.E.; F. Dunn, S.N.; H. Lovegrove, P.S.; Strube, 2nd A.S.; R. Potter, Janitor. Comp. Lovett, J., was unable to be present until nearly the end of the ceremony. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. Walker, Royal Jubilee Lodge, and Bro. W. Dann, Robert Burns Lodge, which being favourable, those brethren were duly exalted, the whole ceremony, with lectures, being given in a very efficient manner. The next business was the presentation of an illuminated testimonial and a gold bar for jewel, as a slight acknowledgment of the services rendered to the chapter by E. Comp. Foxall, who, at the last convocation, left the first chair after two years' service. Comp. Durkin expressed in a suitable manner the feelings of the companions towards Comp. Foxall, and he, in return, expressed his thanks, and stated that his services were always at the disposal of the chapter. Some propositions relative to alterations of bye-laws were withdrawn, and notice of motion given relating to the benevolent fund, after which the chapter was closed in ancient form. The companions present besides the officers were Comps. Boyton, Curry, Murrell, Salter, Thurston, Harris, and others, with visitors E. Comps. James Stevens, P.Z. (Panmure), Geo. Clark (Prudent Brethren), and Kew. At the banquet, which was unusually good, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given; the visitors complimenting the M.E.Z. and P.S. on the manner in which the ceremonies had been rendered.

WARRINGTON.—Elias Ashmole Chapter (No. 148).—The annual convocation of this chapter was held at the Chapter Rooms, Sankey-street, on the 10th inst., at four o'clock in the afternoon. The chapter was opened in due form by E. Comps. Robt. Brierley, Z.; John Bowes, H.; Thos. Tunstall, J.; P. J. Edleston, P.Z.; and D. W. Finney, P.Z., when the rest of the companions were admitted, and among them we noticed Comps. Jno. Armstrong, S.E.; Galloway, Treas.; J. R. Young, Potter, Thos. Hutchinson, R. Heaton, Dr. Hall, W. Richardson, Jas. Hannah, Read, C. E. Hindley, Politt, Hawkins, P.Z.; and Domville, Janitor. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. invited E. Comp. P. J. Edleston to take the chair as Installing Principal, when Comps. John Bowes, P.Z., P.P.G.S.N. Cumberland and Westmoreland; Thos. Tunstall, J.; and James Jackson, J. elect, were respectively presented and installed as Z., H., and J. for the ensuing year according to ancient custom. The M.E.Z. then invested the following companions as officers, viz.:—Comps. P. J. Edleston, P.Z., P.S.; Finney, P.Z., Treas.; Galloway, S.E.; Thos. Sutton, S.N. Comp. Edleston nominated Comps. Pickthall and Hindley as his assistants. The Auditors presented their report, which showed a good balance in favour of the chapter. It was reported that Dr. Evans had two candidates to propose, but professional duties prevented his attendance. After the transaction of some routine business, the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the Patten Arms Hotel, where an excellent tea was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Chew. After tea the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair. The M.E.Z. in response to the toast of his health said he did not wish to disguise from them the fact that he felt proud of the position that they had again elected him to. He was one of the founders of the chapter, the first H., and at the present time the senior member. He hoped that the honour and credit of the chapter would be advanced, even to a higher position than it now enjoyed, during his year of office, and that when the time arrived he should instal his Masonic offspring as his successor to rule over a flourishing and efficient chapter. All the officers were good "workers," and he hoped to see them rise by regular gradations to the position he then had the honour to fill. In proposing "The P.Z.'s" he spoke very highly of E. Comps. Brierley and Finney, who he said had the good of Royal Arch Masonry at heart. In response to his health, E. Comp. Edleston, Installing Principal, augured well for the chapter under the enlightened rule of the M.E.Z. Other toasts followed, interspersed by excellent songs from Comps. Tunstall, Richardson, Dr. Hall, Brierley, and others, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close at nine o'clock.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Chapter (No. 540).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Swan Hotel on Tuesday evening, March 11th. The M.E.Z. being absent through ill-health, Comp. J. R. Bull, P.Z., occupied the first chair. Comps. Cuthbert, H., and M.E.Z. elect, and Col. W. Stuart, P.Z., filled respectively the second and third chairs. After the opening of the chapter the minutes of the former convocation were read and confirmed. The companions below the rank of 1st Principal having retired, Comp. John Mason Cuthbert was duly installed into the 1st chair, the ceremony being performed by Comp. J. R. Bull. Comp. Jas. Fisher, H. elect, was installed into the 2nd chair. Comp. George Read, P.Z. of the Andrew Chapter, 834, and M.E.Z. elect of Mount Sinai, 19, ably performed the ceremony, assisted by Comp. A. Barfield, P.Z. 19. The installation of Comp. the Rev. W. Tebbs, the J. elect, was unavoidably postponed in consequence of his serious illness. The chairs having been filled, the M.E.Z. invested the following companions with the collars of their offices:—Comps. Capt. Colburne, E.; Billson, N.; Carter, Treas.; Stafford, P.S.; Coombs, 1st Asst. S.; G. Reynolds, Janitor. Comps. Lindsell, 2nd Asst. Soj., and Thody, Org., were unavoidably absent. The report of the Audit Committee, which showed a handsome balance to the credit of the chapter, was read and confirmed. The Committee having recommended a reduction in the chapter subscriptions, to commence from next December, the companions unanimously adopted the same. The sum of two guineas was voted to the "Wentworth Little Testimonial Fund," the late Comp. Little having been the Consecration Officer of the chapter, and also one of its honorary members. The chapter having been closed in due form, the companions, to the number of fifteen, sat down to supper, which, although the quality of the viands placed before the companions was good, the quantity, considering the handsome sum paid for a supper, being very unsatisfactory.

LIVERPOOL.—Hamer Chapter (No. 1393).—The ordinary meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Thursday, the 13th inst., when there was a good attendance and generally excellent working of the chapter. The chiefs present were, Comps. Henry Jackson, M.E.Z.; John Houlding, H.; Thomas Sammons, J.; and amongst the officers were, Comps. R. H. Evans, I.P.Z., Treasurer; Walter C. Erwin, S.E.; M. Callaghan, S.N.; R. Reader, P.S.; J. Pilling, 1st A.S.; and M. Williamson, Janitor. The private members included Comps. J. McCarthy, Past J.; M. Drake, A. Samuels, P.Z. 477; J. S. Russell, P.Z. 292; R. L. Stockton, and F. Lomerin; and the list of visitors contained the names of Comps. H. Williams, P.Z. 580, P.P.G.S.B. W.L.; J. W. Burgess, H. 1094; J. T. Collow, P.Z. 673, P.P.G.S.B. W.L.; and Joseph Wood, Treasurer 249, 1094 (Freemason). The chapter was opened in regular form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Fred. J. Pentin, W.M. 1713; the Rev. R. T. Leslie, A.B., J.W. 1713; and W. J. Henderson, 1393, each of whom was duly elected, and as they were in attendance on this occasion they were admitted and exalted in a highly effective manner. After several propositions had been made, the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet, and during a pleasant evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and cordially responded to.

YORK.—York Lodge (T.I.).—At the regular meeting of this prosperous lodge, held on Tuesday evening, the 18th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Bro. Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett in the chair, supported by Bros. T. Cooper, P.M.; T. B. Whythead, P.M.; W. Valentine, S.W.; J. Hollins, J.W.; J. S. Cumberland, M.O.; C. S. Padel, S.O.; G. Garbut, J.O.; W. P. Husband, as S.D.; A. T. B. Furner, J.D.; T. Humphries, as I.G.; P. Pearson, Tyler, and a number of members and visitors, successful ballots were taken for several candidates, two joining members, and an honorary member, and Bro. R. War, of the Eboracum Lodge, was advanced to the degree of M.M.M. After the close of the lodge there was a good muster at supper, the W.M. presiding, and giving the principal Masonic toasts.

BOLTON.—St. John's Lodge (T.I.).—A meeting was held on Thursday, the 13th inst., at the Commercial Hotel, at six o'clock. Present: Bro. H. Greenwood, W.M.; J. W. Dooley, S.W.; W. H. Acock, J.W.; T. Morris, P.P.G.S.B., Sec.; G. P. Brockbank, P.G.W., Treas.; Entwistle, P.P.G.M., Registrar; J. A. Greenhaugh, M.O.; Wm. Cooper, S.O.; J. B. Taylor, S.D.; R. Beckett, J.D.; Thos. Hyson, Tyler; Past Masters Thos. Holme; John Harwood, P.P.G.D.; J. W. Newton, P.P.G. S. of W.; and Bros. E. Morris, B. Pilling, J. Mitchell, B. Topp, R. Irving, J. Walls, N. Nicholson, J. Smith, W. Scholes, W. Bottomley, and Barrett. Visitors: Bros. W. H. J. Jones and W. H. Milligan, Rose and Thistle, 145. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Bro. Robt. Horridge, W.M. 146, who being approved, was advanced to the Degree of M.M.M. by Bro. John Harwood, P.P.G. J.D. Bros. Entwistle and Newton presented the report of the Auditors on the Treasurer's accounts, which was adopted. The lodge closed at half-past eight.

GIBRALTAR.—Mark Lodge (No. 43).—The regular meeting of this flourishing lodge was held in the Lodge Rooms of Inhabitants, No. 153, at Armstrong's Buildings, on the 13th ult., R.W. Master Bro. James Cunningham presiding, with the following officers:—Bros. J. Conroy, S.W.; B. White, J.W.; E. Bacon, Sec., and acting M.O.; J. King, S.O.; J. Clifton, J.O.; W. Allen, S.D.; O. Latham, J.D.; J. Lyons, I.G.; and Ghio, Tyler. The lodge being opened in due and ancient form, and the minutes of the last regular meeting as well as the cash account having been read, approved, and confirmed, the Secretary read out the business of the evening, which was to advance Bros. G. J. Lane, H. Abrams, T. Lane, and J. W. Scattergood, and to ballot for as a joining member Bro. J. Azopardi, all of Inhabitants' Lodge, No. 153. The ballot in all cases being favourable, the above named were duly advanced to the Honourable Degree of Mark Master Mason in a highly creditable manner by Bro. J. Cunningham. The next business was the election of Worshipful Master, Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year, the result of which showed an almost unanimous feeling in favour of Bros. E. J. Barker, as R.W.M.; E. Bacon, as Treasurer; and J. Ghio, as Tyler. Each of these brethren returned thanks, Bro. Barker especially thanking the brethren for the honour bestowed upon him, and stating it was his determination to work the lodge to the satisfaction of the brethren at large, and that nothing should be left undone by him to keep the lodge in its present flourishing condition. After some routine business had been transacted, the brethren received their wages, and the lodge was closed in due form with solemn prayer. At the banquet table the W.M., Bro. J. Cunningham, in felicitous terms, proposed "The Health of the Advanced Brethren," and also that of "The Newly-elected Officers." He expressed his great satisfaction at the result of the election, and promised to assist the newly-elected W.M. in any matter that would conduce to the welfare of the lodge, and benefit Mark Masonry generally. Bro. Barker responded in a few well chosen sentences, and trusted, with the assistance of the officers, he should be able to give a good account of himself at the end of his year of office. Some capital songs were sung by Bros. Allen, Button, Piner, and others, which wound up a most enjoyable evening.

CROYDON.—Croydon Lodge (No. 189).—The installation meeting of this young and prosperous lodge was held on Friday, 14th inst. Heretofore the lodge has been held at the Greyhound Hotel, but, following the example of many other brethren who prefer a private house, or a Masonic Hall specially devoted to the purpose, the members of this lodge have made arrangements with Bro. Rhodes for the use of his spacious suite of rooms in High-street, where the brethren found every convenience. The lodge and ante-rooms are well appointed, and there is a fine three-manual organ, with nearly forty stops, worked by hydraulic pressure. This welcome addition to the resources of the lodge-room gave the greatest satisfaction to those present. The lodge was opened at six p.m. by Bro. J. Cross, W.M.; J. K. Pitt, S.W.; Diddie, as J.W.; W. J. Nichols, M.O.; H. W. Brown, S.O.; S. N. Griffiths, J.O.; H. A. Pocock, Secretary; Stampa Lambert, Treas.; Ridge, S.D.; Alfred Pocock, J.D. There were also present the following brethren: V.W. Bros. George Yaxley, L.P.M.; James Stevens, P.G.J.O.; W. Poore; S. C. Diddie, P.G.J.O.; and others. After Bro. Rhodes had been balloted for and advanced to the Honourable Degree of M.M.M., with full ceremonial by Bros. Stevens, P.M., and Poore, P.M., the chief point of interest in the proceedings was reached, and the Board of Installing Masters having been formed, Bro. J. K. Pitt was led from the chair of S.W. to the chair of W.M., and presented the dispensation from Grand Lodge authorising him to be installed. The brethren below the chair having retired, Bro. Pitt was inducted into the mystic seat of Adoniam, with all the ancient ceremonies, by Bro. Poore, and on the re-admission of the brethren was saluted in due form. The new W.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. J. Cross, P.M.; W. J. Nichols, S.W.; H. W. Brown, J.W.; S. N. Griffiths, M.O.; Ridge, S.O.; Lambert, J.O. and Treas.; H. A. Pocock, R.M. and Sec.; A. Pocock, S.D.; Rhodes, Org. and W.S.; A. Haynes, I.G. A cordial vote of thanks was awarded to the retiring W.M., Bro. Cross, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. Bro. Rhodes rendered the musical portion of the ceremony with splendid effect on the organ, and by his skill contributed much to the harmony. With a grim sense of humour, and, no doubt, with the special object in view of increasing the lodge funds, the W.M. offered the collar of D.C. to a very eminent P.M., an honorary member of the lodge, who, in all innocence, at once took the bait, and accepted the office, little thinking that by so doing he gave the lodge to understand he was willing to forfeit the privileges of honorary membership and become a subscribing member; it being a well-known Masonic law that an honorary member of a lodge is not eligible to hold office in it. The business having been completed, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was served in first-rate style by Bro. Mash. The usual toasts were given and received with great warmth of feeling, and the speeches were very wisely tempered with brevity; so that all the brethren who had to return by the train were enabled to remain to the last, when the Tyler's oast brought to an end a very happy meeting. Now that the lodge has entered into the third year of its existence, it is time that the members should get out of the "leading strings," and show that the teachings of the Preceptors have at length enabled all the present officers to master the duties of their respective positions without depending on their honorary members, who have so kindly given their aid and assistance. The fact of the new W.M. hailing from the Macdonald Mark Lodge ought to be a tower of strength, and now that the lodge is so fortunate as to possess a lodge room, with such an accessory as a first-class organ, we hope it will increase in efficiency as well as numbers.

NORWICH.—Chapter of Perseverance (No. 213).—The annual convocation of this chapter took place on Friday, the 7th inst., at the Rampant Horse Hotel, when nearly fifty companions from every chapter in the province assembled to do honour to this chapter, so justly celebrated for its correct rendering of the beautiful ritual of this degree. The principal companions duly qualified entered the chapter room soon after the appointed hour, 5 o'clock, when the opening ceremony commenced, Comps. James Dunsford, M.E.Z.; Edwin Baldwin, H.; C. H. Capon, J.; after which the rest of the companions were admitted, and the business of the chapter commenced by reading the minutes of the last convocation, which being confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bros. Henry Lamb, P.M. Cabbell Lodge; Berry, also a P.M. of Cabbell Lodge, and James Anderson, of Perseverance Lodge, as a serving companion, which proved unanimous in each case. Bro. Berry being absent, the two candidates were duly examined, prepared, and exalted to the Sublime Degree of Royal Arch Masons by the M.E.Z., Comp. James Dunsford, the whole ceremony being very impressively rendered. Each of the Principals delivered the addresses in a manner which was highly appreciated by the companions present, which included a very large number of visitors. The Principal Sojourner delivered his portion of the ritual in a most impressive manner, evidencing deep and careful study. The election of officers being the next business on the agenda, the choice of the companions was as follows: Comps. Edwin Baldwin, M.E.Z.; C. H. Capon, H.; Joseph Stanley, J.; James Watson, Scribe E.; N. Provart, N.; Robert Baldry, Principal Sojourner; James Dunsford, Treasurer; S. N. Berry, Org.; and Murrell, Janitor. The companions then retired, and a Board of Installed Principals duly formed, when Comp. Edwin Baldwin was installed in the chair as M.E.Z.; C. H. Capon, as H.; and Joseph Stanley, as J.; the beautiful ceremony of each chair was very impressively and solemnly rendered by the Principals in office, each of whom installed his successor. The companions were again admitted, and the newly-installed M.E.Z. invested the rest of the officers with their collar and jewel of office. A candidate was proposed for exaltation, and hearty congratulations to the M.E.Z. from the several chapters in the province. The chapter was then closed in solemn form, and the companions retired to banquet, which was supplied by Comp. Edward Coleman in a manner which gave entire satisfaction; after which the usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given. "The Health of Comp. Colonel L'Estrange" was received with immense enthusiasm, who in reply to the remarks from the chair stated that it was his good fortune to be elevated to the high and important position of Provincial Grand Superintendent, he would do every thing in his power to promote Royal Arch Masonry in this province, and thanked the companions most sincerely for the very flattering reception which they had given him. The toast of "The Visitors" was very warmly received, and as there were upwards of twenty present the M.E.Z. called upon the First Principals of Philanthropic Chapter, 107; Friendship Chapter, 100; Unanimity Chapter, 102; and Comp. G. B. Bennett, representing No. 52, to respond. Each of them spoke in very encouraging terms of the success of Royal Arch Masonry in their several districts, particularly eulogising the Chapter of Perseverance for its efficient working, and the M.E.Z. for the many services he had rendered to the various chapters in the province. "The Immediate P.Z." was the next toast, and it was received in such a manner as to convince Comp. Dunsford that the services which he had rendered to Royal Arch Masonry were highly appreciated. The M.E.Z. during his address fixed on the breast of the I.P.Z. a very handsome gold P.Z.'s jewel, which had been purchased by voluntary subscriptions by the members of the chapter. The jewel bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the companions of Perseverance Chapter, No. 213, Norwich, to Comp. James Dunsford, P.Z., as a mark of their esteem and regard for his valuable services, March 7th, 1879." Comp. Dunsford replied, thanking the companions for the splendid testimonial which had been presented to him, assuring them that if he had given satisfaction he was doubly happy, for it was always a pleasure to him when engaged in the duties of Royal Arch Masonry, and hoped that when his services were required in any part of the province to be found at his post at the appointed time. He was pleased to know that he would be succeeded in this chapter by a very worthy and esteemed companion, who would discharge all the duties of his office with that promptitude and propriety of demeanour which would give them their proper effect; that if the chapter had conferred honour upon him he had conferred honour upon the chapter by accepting the position, and he wished him health, happiness, and a prosperous year of office. "The M.E.Z." was the next toast, which was well received, indeed, it must have convinced him that his efforts in the cause of Royal Arch Masonry were deeply impressed on the minds of every one present; his reception by the companions must have satisfied him, that they were fully cognisant of the many services rendered by him. The M.E.Z., in reply, thanked the companions for the very flattering manner in which they had received him. He assured them that he would endeavour to discharge the duties of the high office to which he had been elected to the satisfaction of the chapter, and he hoped to have the cordial assistance of every officer in the chapter. He hoped the companions would be very careful in their selection of candidates for exaltation, that in every case the chapter may be unanimous in the matter of their reception. He anticipated a pleasant year of office, and trusted that when he retired from the position he had been placed in that day the chapter might not have any cause to regret having elected him to that high and important office. "The Health of Comp. C. H. Capon, H., and Comp. Joseph Stanley, J.," followed. Comp. Capon assured the companions that he would exert his utmost to discharge the duties of his office to their entire satisfaction, that when the next period of election arrived they might feel no hesitation in placing him in that dignified position which had been his ambition for a very long time. Comp. Stanley, in reply to the toast of his health, thanked the companions for the honour they had conferred upon him; he hoped to give satisfaction by the zealous discharge of the duties of his high office, and would by every means in his power endeavour to promote the prosperity of Perseverance Chapter. "The distinguished Visitors," and "The Rest of the Officers" followed, and was replied to by Comp. Patrick, Lynn; Chittock, 52; and G. B. Kennett, 52. For the officers Comp. Robert Baldry, Prin. Soj., replied, after which the companions separated, and thus ended one of the most successful Royal Arch meetings ever held in Norfolk, which reflects great credit on Perseverance Chapter. Among the companions present were Comps. Colonel L'Estrange, P.Z. 52; Kennett, N. 52; Chittock, 52; Chadwick, M.E.Z. 107; Patrick, H. 107; Smith, M.E.Z. 102; Worthy, J. 102; Martin, H., and M.E.Z. elect 100; Hubbard, J. 100; Geo. W. Page, Scribe E. 107; Oram, 52; Santy, 52; Hotblack, 52; H. C. Riches, J. Bridgman, H. Burgess, T. Watson, Gardiner Stevens; W. W. Bowler, P.Z. 51; Edwin Baldwin, M.E.Z. 213; C. H. Capon, H.; Joseph Stanley, J.; James Dunsford, P.Z.; Short, P.Z.; Thoms, P.Z.; Baxter, Baldry, Watson, Stanley, sen., Berry, Provart, Havens, Beeve, Isley, Cooper, Offord, Coleman, and others.

PLUMSTEAD.—Excelsior Lodge (No. 226).—The regular quarterly meeting of the above lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Anglesa-hill, on Tuesday, the 11th inst., and was well attended by the brethren. On account of the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. Capt. J. Ritchie, Bro. Holmes, who upon the last occasion so ably officiated, again, at the request of the brethren, filled the chair, being supported by Bros. C. Coupland, S.W.; Jas. Smythe, J.W.; Weston, Shaw, and Penfold, Overseers; the Rev. — Solbe, Chap.; G. Kennedy, Sec.; H. Pryce, Treas.; Hollyman, Capon, Sweney, and others. The lodge having been duly opened, Bro. Holmes was admitted a joining member, and Bro. C. W. M. Keys, M.D., Surgeon-Major, Army Medical Depot, and Bro. W. B. Lloyd, of Lodge 913, were, with the usual ceremonies, advanced to the degree. The next business was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year after the next quarterly meeting, and Bro. Coupland was unanimously chosen. Bro. Pryce was then chosen as Treas., and Bro. B. Norman as Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the rest of the evening was spent in harmony, the ever genial and witty J.W., Bro. Smythe, by request filling the chair, and proposing the toasts, which, at his hand, received their due share of applause, and were drunk with enthusiasm. The installation will take place on the second Tuesday in June next.

Red Cross of Constantine.

ORIGINAL OR PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND.—The quarterly convocation of this old and distinguished conclave was held on the 3rd inst. at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. There were present Sir Knights Holden, M.P.S.; Kingston, V.E.; Macartney, J.G.; Cubitt, P.S., Treas.; Levander, Grand Treas., Recorder; Maasa, Prefect; Thiellay, Orator; Letchworth, 1st A.D.C.; Marsh, P.G.S.G., P.S., &c.; Dubois, G.P.P.S., &c.; Coekle, K.G.C.; Peek, Mather, Fowler, Moses, and Moss. The visitors were Sir Knights Weaver and Tesseman. The conclave having been duly opened, the minutes of the meeting held on December the 2nd were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot was then taken upon behalf of Bros. the Rev. R. P. Bent, M.A., P.M. 10, P.G. Chaplain of England, &c., and T. C. Walls, W.M. 1381, P.P.G.O. of Middlesex, 18, K.T., &c., and having been declared unanimous, the latter brother was duly installed a Knight of the Order. The elocutionary ability of the Rev. Sir Knight Holden is so well known that it needs no other comment than to say that his rendering of the ritual was equal in every respect to his former efforts. The election of the officers for the ensuing year then took place, with the following results:—Sir Knights Kingston, M.P.S.; Peters, V.E.; Cubitt, Treas.; Levander, Recorder; Gilbert, Sentinel. Sir Knights Mather, Thiellay, and Walls were unanimously elected to serve on the Audit Committee, which will meet to transact the business on Friday, the 25th prox. Letters of apology for unavoidable absence having been read from Sir Knight Robinson, of York, and Bro. the Rev. R. P. Bent, the conclave was formally closed, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. Upon the removal of the cloth the long but customary routine of toasts was given ably from the chair, and duly responded to. Sir Knight Levander responded upon behalf of "The Grand Officers." "The Health of the M.P.S." was fluently proposed by Sir Knight Dubois, who congratulated the conclave upon possessing so able and impressive an exponent of the ceremonies of the Red Cross as Sir Knight Holden had undoubtedly proved himself to be. The M.P.S. having briefly replied, gave, in very flattering terms, "The Health of the Newly-Installed Sir Knight." This toast having been duly acknowledged, the remaining toasts were given in quick succession, and the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful, terminated at an early hour with the Sentinel's toast.

Bro. Horace B. Marshall, C.C., F.R.G.S., Treasurer of the Royal Hanover Lodge, was on Monday last presented, at the Levée by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor.

OUR MASONIC CHARITIES.

From time to time we hear of energetic suggestions for the reform of our general Charities, and even our Masonic Charities do not always escape the benevolent interest of the caviller and censor. To say the truth, we are not so far very keenly impressed, we think it fair to say, with cries for reform or assertions of defect. Our Charities are all on the whole efficiently managed, and the alleged abuses not only too often resemble what Carlyle terms "bottled moonshine," to affect deeply the man with sober senses, but seem destined to afford a fund of indefinite amusement and excitement, not only to these "gentlemen who write with ease," but to a not meagre crowd of pseudo reformers. For there are "reforms and reforms;" and all changes are not necessarily good, reasonable, or advisable, all open or anonymous assailants are not deserving of being treated as "amici curiæ." Indeed, to-day, irresponsible advice and unreasonable changes crop up daily and hourly, requiring alike prudence and discernment to meet and reply to. We live at a time when the "subjective" is cramped down our throat by those who ought to know better as the objective, and we are bid, with a dogmatism which is often painful, and always ludicrous, to accept the assumption of first principles as the first principles themselves. We protest to-day, as we often have protested before, against that "positivism" of the private judgment and opinion, which is obtruded upon us with all the force and authority of Ultramontane infallibility. All proposed reforms must be treated by certain distinct principles of need, seasonability, applicability, and common sense, which alone constitute their "raison d'être" and their true power on the thoughtful and the practical. We never could believe, for instance, that as regards our Charities, that which is termed "the most distressing case theory" is either reasonable or logical, or advisable, or practicable, in any case. In our opinion it is a chimera, an utter impossibility to realize or develop. Still less could we accept such a theory as regards our Masonic Charities. Such a step could only result in the extinction of local efforts, and provincial and metropolitan energy, and we cannot profess to understand how it is even possible, much less probable in any way. We agree on the whole with the professed and simple aims of the London Masonic Charity Association, which, we think, puts the "boot on the right leg," when it seeks to encourage provincial zeal amid metropolitan brethren, and to ask both the metropolis and the provinces to send up their strongest cases. Further than this at present we cannot clearly go, and we must not forget that there are in all human enterprizes the clinging seeds of decay and failure, so even a General Committee for the Charities might degenerate, and probably would, into a "close borough," and lead to mournful jobs, and a good deal of unpleasant underhand work, from which open voting and a free canvass keep us free. The only one possible objection to the London Masonic Charity Association rests upon a similar apprehension, but in that case there is the counterbalancing effect, as in the system of open voting, of much publicity, much opposition, and above a large, independent, and earnest constituency. Even the work, however, of the London Masonic Charity Association is only "tentative," and, though we believe it will do good, and turn out to be sound in theory and practice, we do not see how we can, at present at any rate, hope to extend the principle with advantage either to the voters or the Charities. Indeed, the probable evils far outweigh the possible advantages, as under the selection of one select Committee, all public opinion would, we think, practically cease. But on the whole, as the present system rests upon the appeal to the individual Life Governor and subscriber for their subscription's sake, if not for them, such a change would be tantamount to a revolution which would greatly unsettle our excellent Masonic Charities, and so we dismiss it to the limbo of hopeless and chimerical projects, of which we read so many now-a-days.

GRAND LODGE OF IRELAND.

The balance sheet of the Grand Lodge of Ireland is not a good one, and we confess we think it might and ought to be a good deal better. As Paddy says, "bedad we do." Its general receipts, including a balance of £305 10s. 2d., amount to £3943 7s. 11d. Its expenditure "barrin" a positive balance of £6 8s. 9d., amounts to £3939 19s. 2d. It does not seem to have put anything by in 1878, which we regret much, especially on its own account. Indeed, we do not profess to understand why the Irish Grand Lodge funds are so small, but the Grand Lodge of Ireland has its "skeleton in the closet," in that it cannot, and does not, enforce sufficient payment from its lodges annually. Its office expenses are £1119 16s., too large a proportion, in our humble opinion, for its receipts, and it pays a rent of £600 a year, clearly an Irish way of doing business, as the Masonic Hall Company ought to pay it to Grand Lodge, not Grand Lodge to it. Again, when we take up the casual expenses, including printing, we find they represent a considerable amount for the whole income, namely, £350, and we especially dislike to see that item of committee dinners—£134 18s. 6d., on the general of £134 18s. 6d., and on the charity account, though it is just possible that these dinners are not eaten twice over, but are the same item put in an Irish way. And though it be true that there is a "set off" of £170 10s. 6d. on this head by "cheques for dinner" in the general, and £170 10s. 6d. in the charitable amount—are they the same items? if so, why? We think such entries are a great mistake and "bad form." The charity account has on the credit side £1061 11s. 5d., including the mysterious item of committee dinners, and on the debit side represents £506 8s. given as charity, it also has, necessarily, a balance of £356 3s. 5d. So that the two balances amount to £562 12s. 2d. This, we fear, is rather a "Flemish account" for the Grand Lodge of Ireland, and we wish heartily "more power to its arm," and its best "health and inclinations as they be virtuous."

ST. ALBAN'S RESTORATION FUND.

We are glad to think that this movement is progressing, and beg to commend the laudable undertaking to the notice and support of all our brethren and readers. Bro. C. E. Keyser, 47, Wilton Crescent, will be happy to give any information, and answer any questions.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I consider it my duty to emphatically contradict the statement made by your special correspondent, as being void of truth, under the heading of Freemasonry in New South Wales, as relating to the colony of New Zealand and the erection of a Grand Lodge, appearing in your issue of the 30th Nov., 1878. For which purpose I enclose the extract alluded to, as also contradictory ones from the Australian Freemasons, which will put the matter in its true light. It is to be lamented that publicity should have been given in your widely circulated journal, to unintentionally mislead the Craft at large, to satisfy the morbid cravings for something new at the hands of your special correspondent, in whose good faith too much dependence has, in this instance, been placed. Therefore, in justice to the loyal Masons holding of sixty-two lodges under the E.C., I.C., and S.C. in New South Wales, as well as on behalf of our sister Constitutions in the colony of New Zealand, I would fraternally ask the favour of the insertion of the several extracts in your earliest issue, which, I can assure you, will be deeply appreciated by the several Constitutions here.

I remain, R.W. dear Sir and Brother, yours very fraternally,

WM. HIGSTRIM,
P.M., P.M.M., P.G. Chap. 110, P.P. K. Red Cross, P.P. Ark Mariners, P. Prior K.T. of Scotland, P.P.G.S.W., Prov. Grand Sec.

Sydney, Jan. 30.

London Freemason, Nov. 30th, 1878.

"A GRAND LODGE FOR NEW ZEALAND.—We are informed that some brethren, hailing from New Zealand lodges, who are now in Sydney, having made every enquiry, are fully enlightened as to the correct modus operandi to be pursued, and so have decided to use every endeavour to ensure the erection of a Grand Lodge in New Zealand. We commend them for their laudable intent, and advise promptitude of action. We have been assured that the brethren throughout that colony are unanimous in their desire for a Grand Lodge for New Zealand."

"SCHISMATICS IN N. S. WALES FALSELY CIRCULATING THE REPORT THAT NEW ZEALAND MASONS ARE ABOUT TO SECEDE FROM LOYAL FREEMASONRY.

(To the Editor.)

"Dear Sir and Bro.—By a paragraph entitled as above in a paper called The Freemason, sent to me by somebody I do not know, I perceive that several brethren from New Zealand—hailing from different lodges—are desirous of forming a Grand Lodge in New Zealand, and that they have made every enquiry at the Schismatics as to the "modus operandi" to be adopted. The spurious Masons of Sydney refer to W. Bro. Stanton, of the Star of the South Lodge, Nelson, and W. Bro. Wildman, of the Lodge of Corinth, Grahamstown. I have myself made enquiry as to the truth of this report, and I have been positively assured by the Right Worshipful the District Grand Master of the Province of Auckland, N.Z., Bro. George S. Graham, that representations were made to N.Z. Masons by the Schismatics in Sydney, setting forth that there was to be 'A Grand Confederation of the whole of the Australian Freemasons,' but finding that the body that made such representations were 'irregular and self-constituted and a very small minority' of the fraternity, the N.Z. Masons have wisely declined to accept the advice of the Schismatics. The scoundrels thought themselves very clever, but they outwitted themselves. I congratulate our New Zealand brethren on their caution and discernment, and reciprocate the fraternal feeling of good fellowship. The Loyal Masons of N.S. Wales will always feel glad to greet them and all other brethren from the 'Maori Land' in the same warm and cordial manner whereby their District Grand Master was welcomed at the last Quarterly Communication of our District Grand Lodge, on Oct. 21st. I simply state the above facts to show that the futile efforts of the 'Irregulars' are worthless and unavailing.

"A SYDNEY MASTER MASON.

"Nov., 1878."

"NEW ZEALAND BRETHREN.

To the Editor of the 'Australian Freemason.'

"Rev. Sir and Bro.—A Sydney Master Mason, writing under this name to your journal, of November 1st, states that 'the spurious Masons of Sydney refer to Worshipful Bro. Stanton, of the Star of the South Lodge,' and to others in New Zealand, as having made enquiry of them as to the modus operandi to be adopted for the formation of a Grand Lodge in New Zealand.

"As it is as well that the truth should appear, I desire to inform the writer, and others concerned, that neither myself nor any brethren of my acquaintance have made any enquiry or had any correspondence on any subject whatever with this unconstitutional body. If the Masons of this country had desired information on such a subject, they would probably have preferred their enquiries to the proper authority, the Grand Lodge of England, certainly not to the self-constituted body in Sydney.

Yours fraternally, W. M. STANTON, Master Southern Star Lodge, 735, E.C.

Nelson, Nov. 18."

"THE SO-CALLED GRAND LODGE OF NEW SOUTH WALES versus NEW ZEALAND BRETHREN.

"The brethren in New Zealand are 'very indignant' that false rumours should have been circulated regarding them in New South Wales, as the following correspondence indicates:—

"The So-called Grand Lodge of New South Wales—Another Denial from New Zealand.

To the Editor of the 'Australian Freemason.'

"Rev. Sir and Brother,—Will you fraternally insert in your journal the enclosed letter addressed to me from the D.D. Grand Master of the Auckland District? The letter will be self-explanatory.

Yours fraternally, W. M. STANTON,

Master of Southern Star Lodge, Dec. 19th, 1878."

Thames, 11th Dec., 1878.

W. M. Stanton, Esq., W.M. Southern Star, 735, E.C., Nelson.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—I noticed in the Australian Freemason a paragraph stating that you and I were in favour of the movement for an Australasian Grand Lodge. As Bro. Graham, our D.G.M., had personally contradicted this when he was lately in Australia, I have not thought it worth while to trouble myself any more about it, nor do I intend doing so unless I find further occasion arise.

"The matter was mentioned to me here by a resident brother of the S.C. more than two years ago, and I at once said that I did not consider it at all advisable to set up an independent Masonic jurisdiction for the Australias, and that I would, if the matter was seriously mooted in these parts, do my utmost in opposition.

You are at liberty to make what use of this letter you please.

Yours fraternally, J. K. WILDMAN, D.D.G.M., Auckland.

"I need hardly add that I have had no communication whatever with the so-called Grand Lodge of New South Wales."

"The above correspondence speaks for itself, and speaks to wise men. Judge ye what it says. Additional particulars regarding this 'curious affair' are found in another column, in a report from Nelson, New Zealand."

"NEW ZEALAND LODGES.

"NELSON.—At a meeting of the Southern Star Lodge, No. 735, E.C., held last month, W. Bro. W. B. Sealy, S.W., gave notice that at the next lodge meeting he would ask the W.M. what grounds there were (if any) for the statement made in the Australian Freemason of November 1st, by a Sydney correspondent, to the effect that W. Bro. Stanton, of S.S. Lodge Nelson, and V.W. Bro. Wildman, D.D.G.M. of Auckland, had been in communication with the Independent body in Sydney, styling themselves the 'Grand Lodge of New South Wales,' with a view to establish a united confederation of the Masons of the Australias and New Zealand. Pursuant to the above, Bro. Sealy formally put the question in the lodge on 10th December, and afterwards (by permission) proceeded to read the W. Brother's reply from the Australian Freemason of December 1st, which gave an absolute denial, and ended thus: 'Neither myself, or any Mason of my acquaintance in this country, have, at any time, made any enquiry, or had any correspondence or communication on any subject whatever, with that unconstitutional body.' Bro. Stanton thought it unnecessary to add to that statement anything whatever. He would, nevertheless, observe, that since writing it he had met his friend and brother, the R.W. D.G.M. of Auckland, Bro. Graham, who had recently returned from Sydney, and whose name was also associated in the letter of November 1st, and he was surprised at finding his statement so utterly perverted or misconstrued."

"NOCTES MASONICÆ.

"The following notice of motion was given by W. Bro. Dr. Sealy for the meeting of Southern Star Lodge, 735, E.C., Nelson, N.Z., on 10th Dec. —To ask the W. Master, for the information of the lodge, the grounds (if any) for the statement in the Australian Freemason of Nov. 1st, by a Sydney correspondent, to the effect 'that Worshipful Bro. Stanton, of Southern Star Lodge, Nelson, and V.W. Bro. Wildman, D.D. Grand Master of Auckland, had been in communication with the independent body styling themselves "The Grand Lodge of New South Wales," with a view to establishing an united confederation of the Masons of the Australias and New Zealand.' 'A N.Z. correspondent' on the subject, says, 'this notice indicates an ardent misconception of Bro. Graham's views and statements made when recently in Sydney—the opposite of his views and remarks appears to have been reported in the (so-called) GRAND LODGE.' 'But the question,' continues our correspondent, 'is to be asked in lodge for the purpose of recording and announcing our humble protest against the innovation.' Do not the Schismatics possess rather misrepresenting or misunderstanding faculties? January, 1879."

METROPOLITAN AND CITY POLICE ORPHANAGE. Report for 1878.

We congratulate the managers on their annual report, alike succinct and suggestive, clear and convincing. No one can rise from the perusal of it without feeling strongly how needful is the Institution, what a want it meets, and how efficiently it is conducted, and, full of practical benefits for the present, of undoubted utility and blessing to many poor children for the future. Its balance sheet is a very pleasant and prosperous one, and there is one thing we always have liked about this orphanage, namely, its thoroughness and practicability. When that hardworked and not overpaid force, the police force of this great metropolis, both in the west-end and the city, contributes directly and indirectly, out of a total of £10,879 1s. 1d. of receipts, £6147 11s. 2d., we may feel assured not only that the charity is much needed, but deeply valued alike from "esprit de corps," as well as kindly feelings of helpful humanity. As we said before, the whole amount received for the year 1878 is £10,879 1s. 1d., and out of this the force contributes, directly and indirectly, £6147 11s. 2d., the balance of £4731 9s. 11d. is made out of subscriptions from the public, and donations of £3060 13s. 6d., a legacy of 100 dividends, £167 15s., and balance of last year, £1152 11s. 8d., and £246 especially from Baroness Burdett-Coutts. The expenditure has reached £7269 17s. 11d. for the normal expenses of the orphanage, and, in addition, £246 1s. for the new wing. 2000l. metropolitan stock has been purchased at a cost of £1970 12s. 6d., and a balance remains in hand of £1392 9s. 8d. There is now the sum of £7000 invested. We may note that Baroness Burdett-Coutts, with her customary kindness and beneficence, has lent the Institution £3000, without interest, to defray the expenditure of some new and necessary buildings. We are glad to note that the standard of education has been raised, and additional teachers obtained. There are 219 children in the Schools, 131 boys and 88 girls, and Mr. J. H. Clack, Head Master of the Royal Arsenal Schools, Woolwich, speaks in high terms of the tone, appearance, educational acquirements, and morale of the school. We repeat the report for 1879 is a very pleasant one to read, very creditable to all concerned.

REPORT OF THE GRAND LODGE OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

This is a goodly volume indeed, which gives us an account of the proceedings of this Grand Lodge. It is certainly somewhat alarming at first sight, as suggesting the size to which Grand Lodge reports were destined to reach, but it shows, we think, that the brethren are in earnest, and that there is an evident appreciation of Masonic duties and privileges.

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN SHAW, P.M. 79.

On the 20th February, quietly and calmly as he had lived, Bro. John Shaw, one of the best and brightest Masons this generation has produced, entered into his rest in the forty-fifth year of his age. Bro. Shaw was initiated in the Pythagorean Lodge, at Greenwich, and was a subscribing member at the time of his death. After having passed, pari passu, through the subordinate offices of the lodge, he served the office of W.M. with honour and credit. Bro. Shaw had been suffering for some years from that baneful disease consumption, and, although it was too evident his end was near, very many indulged in the vain hope that his life would be spared yet a little longer. It was as a Masonic Preceptor that our brother was so well known and beloved in the south-eastern district of London, and the members of the lodges of instruction in the district will long mourn the loss of one who was ever their "guide, philosopher, and friend." Possessed of a most marvellous memory, he quickly mastered the intricacies of our ritual, and was never happier than when he could impart it to those who were earnestly seeking for a knowledge of the ceremonies, lectures, and sections of our Order. His quiet, unaffected, genial method of imparting instruction gained for him the love and esteem of all with whom he came in contact, while to his brother Preceptors he was ever ready to lend a helping hand, and no Mason ever sought his advice or assistance in vain. His remains were interred at Shooter's Hill Cemetery, on the 26th ult., and a large concourse of brethren assembled to pay the last sad tribute of respect to departed merit. Amongst the numerous brethren assembled round the grave were noticed, Bros. Partidge, W.M. 79; H. Roberts, C. Nash, W. Smith, and Dussee, P.M.'s 79; Fowler, J.W. 79; Clifford, G. Bonney, F. H. Watt, A. Hammond, A. Satch, F. Malyon, and D. Edney, all of No. 79; Dr. Gooting, P.M. No. 1; G. Macdonald P.M. 1158; J. Griffin, P.M. 933; Hutchings, G. Brown, Tuck, Church, Rishton, Hall, and many others. Bro. Shaw leaves a wife and two children, aged four and two, and his income dying with him they are utterly penniless. A movement is on foot amongst the members of the lodges of instruction, with which he was associated, to raise a fund to place the widow in some light business, for which end funds are urgently required. Many brethren who read this notice and knew our brother may feel inclined to help in this work, in which case subscriptions will be thankfully received by Bro. G. Macdonald, Star Lodge of Instruction, Marquis of Granby, New Cross, or Bro. H. Roberts, Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction, Portland Hotel, Greenwich.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President, occupied the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President, the chair of Senior Vice-President; and Bro. E. P. Albert, Past Grand Pursuivant, the chair of Junior Vice-President. The other brethren who attended were Bros. S. Rawson, P.D.G.M. China; H. Bartlett, John Coutts, P.G.P.; G. S. Elliott, S. Rosenthal, John Hervey, Grand Secretary; H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary; A. A. Pendlebury, H. Garrod, L. Alexander, W. Richards, Charles Atkins, G. P. Britten, J. Yeomans, J. T. Rowe, G. Bolton, R. Harman, J. H. Sillitoe, A. Withers, C. Dobit, F. W. Smith, John Coe, C. G. Dillen, A. J. Ireton, H. S. Friend, James Weaver, John Elliott, F. Newton, G. Read, John Holden, John Mason, E. Squirrel, C. Davis, H. A. Bennett, Sir E. A. H. Lechmere, and W. H. Perryman. Bro. C. B. Payne, G. Tyler, also attended.

The brethren confirmed the amount of £300 granted at last lodge, and afterwards took up the new cases. Of these there were 29 on the list. Three out of this number were deferred till next meeting for further information. The remainder were relieved with a total sum of £667. One case was relieved with £75 (£75); two with £50 (£100); three with £40 (£120); six with £30 (£180); one with £25 (£25); four with £20 (£80); two with £15 (£30); five with £10 (£50); one with £5 (£5); and one with £2 (£2).

Lodge was then closed.

CAMBRIDGE LOCAL EXAMINATION, CHRISTMAS, 1878.

The results of this examination have just been published.

At the London main centre between forty and fifty schools sent up candidates. Only fifteen boys (representing six schools) were in the First Class.

The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys gained nine first-class honours, leaving only six for the other five schools.

Table with 3 columns: Number of boys, Honours, and Class. Row 1: Nine boys, First Class. Row 2: Three boys, Second Class. Row 3: One boy, Third Class.

One passed in the Fourth Division. Fourteen passed. Number of candidates sent up, fourteen. None failed.

By R.W. Bro. ROBERT RAMSAY, 33° P.G.J.W. GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC.

Canadian Masonry is in many respects in a highly flourishing condition, more so, perhaps, than that of many older and larger jurisdictions, still, unfortunately, there are schisms in the Fraternity, which have done, and are, at the present time, doing, a certain amount of injury to the Canadian Craft. I allude to the so-called Grand Lodge of Ontario, a spurious organisation, not recognised by any Grand Lodge in the world; the schismatic Grand Lodge of Manitoba, which claims to be the legitimate authority over symbolic Masonry in the Prairie Province, and the recent embroglio in Quebec between the Grand Lodge of that jurisdiction and the Grand Lodge of Scotland. If these difficulties were only removed, Masonry in the Dominion would be as calm and pure as its most ardent devotees could desire; as it is, in three provinces there are organisations making Masons whose status in the Craft is in some instances nil, and in others very dubious.

On this continent the doctrine of exclusive Grand Lodge sovereignty is acknowledged by every Grand Lodge, and when once a Grand Lodge is organised and recognised by its sister Grand Lodges it is held to be the supreme Masonic authority in, for, and over the jurisdiction of the State, province, and territory for which it was organised. The Grand Lodge of Canada, after formally extending the hand of friendship and brotherly love to her daughter, the Grand Lodge of Quebec, yielded all Masonic authority in that province to her, she claiming jurisdiction merely over the province of Ontario. Unfortunately, as some think, she did not see fit at the time to change her name to "Ontario" instead of "Canada," and when certain "discontents" saw an opportunity, they formed themselves from one lodge (Eden), and that under dispensation, into a so-called Grand Lodge of Ontario, claiming that as there was no Grand body of that name, consequently there was no sovereign authority for symbolic Masonry over that province. These men have been suspended and expelled by the Grand Lodge of Canada, but they continue to meet in their so-called lodges and confer so-called degrees, which, not being recognised anywhere in the world, are utterly useless to those who receive them. In plain words, those expelled Masons are taking money from innocent candidates without giving them any consideration for the same.

The case of the schismatic Grand Lodge of Manitoba is, if anything, of a still more flagrant and unmasonic character. On the 13th of December last, at an emergent communication of the Grand Lodge of that province, some differences arose regarding the work, R.W. Bro. Kennedy being desirous that the lodges should be permitted to use either the Canadian, or what is termed the "Ancient York," as they pleased. This, "for the sake of peace," was agreed to, and in order to give time to complete the arrangements, the Grand Lodge was called off at 2.55 p.m., to meet at 7.30 p.m. During the intermission a few brethren returned to the hall, declared that the whole of the proceedings in June, 1878, were illegal, rescinded them, amended the Constitution so as to meet January 3rd, 1879, and then proceeded to elect officers, and at once proclaimed themselves "the Grand Lodge of Manitoba, A.F. and A.M." There never was a more high-handed and unwarrantable proceeding performed in the name of Masonry than this usurpation of power during refreshment by the schismatics of Manitoba.
