BURDETT-COUTTS LODGE (No. 1278).—The brethren of this lodge assembled in full force on Thursday, the 18th inst., at the Approach Tavern, Victoria Park, and, exercising the usual hospitality, there was an usual a goodly number of visitors. The lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. Charles Kerr Crouch, the ordinary business was disposed of, and the W.M. proceeded to raise Bro. J. W. R. Hammond, which he did in a most impressive manner. A notice affixed to the summons urged brethren to be punctual, failing to observe which, Bro. W. J. Bonner, who came late, did not receive the Sublime Degree, to which he would have been entitled. Punctually at five o'clock the W.M. proceeded to install his successor (Bro. Abraham Lazarus) into the chair of K.S., and his admirable working of the ceremony elicited the warm approbation and encomiums of the brethren and visitors present. Considering that Bro. Crouch had to follow such experienced and able workers as Bros. Terry, C. Musto, and others, it is the more creditable to him that he should have worked the ceremony, not only to the satisfaction of those present, but have received so warm an approval of his exertions. The W.M. invested his officers as follows: Bros. Dr. Defries, S.W.; Sturtevant, J.W.; Prestage, S.D.; A. Jones, J.D.; Chitson, I.G.; and G. W. Verry, P.M., P.Z., as Honorary Secretary. The Approach Tavern, Victoria Park, where the lodge is held, was never more full than on Thursday, the 18th inst., and Bro. Lloyd, the host, placed an excellent banquet before the brethren, to which they did ample justice. After the labours of the lodge the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received with enthusiasm, and the brethren separated after a very enjoyable evening having been spent.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—On Thursday, the 18th inst., at Bro. T. Butt's, New Market Hotel, West Smithfield, the installation meeting was held. Bro. G. S. Elliott, W.M., opened the lodge, supported by his officers. The minutes of the last regular and an emergency meeting were read, unanimously confirmed, and signed by the W.M. The report of the Audit Committee was received, adopted, and entered on the lodge minute book. The W.M. raised Bros. King and Long. Bro. T. W. Adams, I.P.M., presented Bro. Joshua Howes, P.M., S.W., and W.M. elect, for installation, when he was installed. The officers are Bros. W. Pennefather, S.W.; W. Malthouse, J.W.; G. S. Elliott, P.M., Treas.; E. Mallett, P.M., Sec.; H. M. Butt, S.D.; H. J. Lardner, J.D.; G. H. Stephens, I.G.; J. J. Howes, D.C.; W. Snow, W.S.; W. Delafous, C.S.; E. Roberts, Organist; Smyth, Tyler. The work was so well rendered that a vote of thanks was given to the I.P.M., Bro. G. S. Elliott, for doing the installation ceremony so well, and the same ordered to be entered on the lodge minute book. Bro. G. S. Elliott, I.P.M., Treasurer, had the usual ten guinea Past Master's jewel given to him. Although entering on his third apprenticeship in Masonry, this was the first lodge Bro. G. S. Elliott has passed the chair in. When the lodge was founded, Bro. F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M., selected him for first J.W., and stuck by him until he had completed his year of office. He resigned the Treasurership, and had the happiness of seeing Bro. G. S. Elliott unanimously elected to succeed him. As Bro. G. S. Elliott, P.M., now holds office in other lodges, we hope in time to have to chronicle how well he will do his work in other lodges as he has done here. Bro. J. Howes, P.M. 765, W.M., a well-known worker of the Fifteen Sections, commenced his duties. The ballot proved unanimous in favour of the admission of Mr. Alfred Silcorn, and being present, he was initiated into Freemasonry. The work was well done. Bro. Frederick Walters, P.P.J.D. Middx., P.M., late Treasurer and Secretary, resigned his membership; his health being so bad, and living in Leicestershire, precluded him from coming up to town. His resignation was accepted with regret. Some candidates were proposed for initiation. Business ended, the lodge was closed. There were present also Bros. G. S. Wintle, P.M.; Greenwood, Smith, T. Butt, King, Rose, W. Butt, Cork, and many others. The visitors were Bros. W. A. Barrett, P.P. G. Org. Oxon, P.M. 1706, &c.; Pearson, P.M. 315; Dr. Hunter, P.M. 1677; Sheadd, P.M. 720; Goodde, P.M. 1228; Silvester, W.M. 463; Elliott, 749; Page, 1821; Rumball, S.W. 141, and others. The usual good banquet and dessert followed, which reflected the greatest credit on Bro. T. Butt and his two sons, all of whom were unremitting in their exertions to make all present happy and comfortable, in which they succeeded. The usual toasts were given and responded to. Songs and recitations brought a happy meeting to a pleasant close.

KENSINGTON LODGE (No. 1767).—On the 20th inst., the first anniversary of this lodge was celebrated at the new rooms, at the King's Arms Hotel, High-street, Kensington, the original intention of meeting at the Court-field Hotel, Earl's Court Station, having been abandoned. The business of the day consisted in the submission of minutes of last lodge for confirmation, the passing of one brother to the Second Degree, and the installation of a W.M. for the ensuing twelve months. By a unanimous vote, Bro. Charles Edward Williams had been elected to that important position (rendered more so than usual in the case of a young lodge), than whom no more suitable person could have been chosen, uniting, as he does, to a thorough knowledge of his duties, the assiduity of a successful man of business, and the amiability and cordiality of an English gentleman. The preliminary matters having been gone into, the ceremony of installation was performed by the I.P.M., Bro. George Read, in so accurate, distinct, and impressive a manner as to call forth the sincere congratulations of the brethren, accustomed, as they are so fortunate as to be, old auditors of his excellent working. The Rev. Bro. Ambrose W. Hall, P.M., &c., Chaplain to the lodge, assisted with his usual powerful aid in rendering the ceremony one which for excellency may have been equaled, but has, undoubtedly, never been surpassed. Having been duly installed, the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers as follows: Bros. T. Hancock, S.W.; J. Barker, J.W.; Rev. Ambrose William Hall, P.M., P.P.G.C., P.P. S.G.W. Surrey, Chaplain; A. Barfield, P.M., Treas.; C. J. Foakes, P.M., Sec.; J. H. Taylor, S.D.; G. Bidgood, J.D.; E. R. Baugh, D.C.; F. J. Oliver, Org.; J. Swanson, I.G.; Mrcalle and Hayes, Stewards. The Worshipful Master then announced that one of the first, and, certainly, one of the most pleasurable duties he should ever have to perform as Master of the Kensington Lodge, would then be, in the name of the Kensington Lodge, to present to Bro. Read the P.M. jewel, in token of the affectionate regard and high appreciation which he had gained on all sides, both during his tenure of office as well as during the many years of his residence in Kensington. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Joseph King Hurrell into the mysteries of Freemasonry, and, if we may judge by a slight example of good workmanship, the lodge will lose none of its excellence under the administration of Bro. Williams. There was a large attendance of brethren, and the following visitors honoured the lodge with their company:—Bros. W. M. Stiles, W.M. 1732; H. Stiles, J.W. 1732; H. Blunden, J.D. 865; J. Clayton, 1489; Walter Goodall, 142; S. Millar, P.M. 157 and 834; R. J. Gaubert, W.M. 172; M. Cobham, P.M. 141; J. Avery, W.M. 511; T. Broughton, C. G. Gumpel, I.G. 1257; C. Holland, 1681; D. Wetherell, 1681; W. Honeyball, J.D. 1681; and many others. Banquet was served in the new lodge-room by Bro. G. P. Cook, and the menu placed upon the table we venture to believe could not have been improved upon by the most ambitious "Cordon bleu," whilst the dinner on closer acquaintance did not belie that in which the prospect is always good, viz., the prospectus. The banqueting-room had been magnificently decorated, the walls being of a pale blue tint, the mouldings picked out in gold, and the ceilings enriched with Masonic ribands and insignia, the whole affording an effect of lightness and consistency of colour unequalled by that of any salon in the Metropolis. The table was brilliant with flowers, the glitter of many a well-earned jewel lent sparkle to the scene, and the cordiality and friendship of the company lit up the whole circle. After banquet the usual toasts were proposed and received with acclamation, whilst in each successive interval Bro. Oliver, assisted by a number of musical associates, admirably rendered the well known and appropriate national and patriotic songs. In response to the toast of "The W.M.," Bro. Williams said he had exercised much caution in accepting the exalted honour the brethren offered him, firstly, on account of a not unnatural diffidence, and secondly, because, in having to succeed such a perfect example of excellence as the I.P.M. he would be placed at a disadvantage. He hoped, however, by following, as far as in him lay, in the footsteps of his predecessor, he at least might chance to deserve some favour at the hands of the brethren. He asked that during his year of office Bro. Read would favour him with his advice and assistance, the value of which was so well recognised, not only by himself but by the Kensington Lodge. After the toast of "The Initiate" had been given and responded to in appropriate terms, the W.M. then rose to propose "The Health of the I.P.M.," and said the next toast he had to propose was really the toast of the evening—it was to their "Immediate Past Master." Brethren, Bro. George Read and the Kensington Lodge are so closely allied to our old mother lodge, the Zetland, No. 511, that I feel it quite impossible to speak of one without alluding to the other. The Zetland is in fact the mother of the Kensington, and as one of the founders, and I may say one of the sponsors, of the Kensington Lodge, I trust that the child may be worthy of the parent. There is no question but that the great success which has attended the Zetland for many years has been mainly due to the zeal and consistent exertions of Bro. Read, as P.M. of the Zetland, loyally and faithfully supported by our Treasurer, Bro. Past Master Barfield, also of the Zetland Lodge. And then, as the accomplished Preceptor of our lodge of instruction which is held in this room, Bro. Read will be ever gratefully remembered for the kind, brotherly, and painstaking manner he endeavours to impart to others that knowledge of Freemasonry which he is so eminently qualified to do. As an example of his working I am sure that every brother here must have been struck with the faultless manner the ceremony of installation has been performed by Bro. Read this evening, and socially I will say of Bro. Read that those who know him best, either in or out of Freemasonry, are those who most admire him, for all those great, good, and sterling qualities that make a man what a man ought to be. Brethren, such is the man, such is the Mason, that the founders of this lodge selected and solicited to become their first Master. I feel quite unable to express in fitting terms how much we owe Bro. Read for the distinguished and finished manner he has organised the working, presided at our meetings, and governed the lodge during his year of office, but of all this I need not say one word—you, brethren, have anticipated me; you have in the most graceful and spontaneous manner already marked your appreciation of those well directed labours, and your esteem for him individually and Masonically, by unanimously voting him the highest honour it is in your power to award, the P.M.'s jewel of the lodge. Bro. Read, may you live many years to assist the lodge with your valuable counsel and advice, and to wear that jewel you have so honourably earned. The I.P.M., on rising to respond, was enthusiastically welcomed. He said he had never known a greater satisfaction than that which he experienced in successfully, as he hoped and believed, ending his year as W.M. He had, at all events, satisfied the brethren that he had done his best, for the beautiful jewel he had received was a warrant of their favour. He was very grateful for the mark of esteem, and said the jewel would rank in his mind no less high than that jewel he had earned in the mother lodge, Zetland, 511. He was glad to find so earnest a man in the chair he had vacated, and he would be proud if any advice or assistance of his should be accepted by the W.M. The position of the Kensington Lodge was now assured, and he thanked all those who had helped in perfecting its establishment. All the toasts having been passed, the evening was brought to a close with harmony and good fellowship. We add our cordial good wishes for this lodge that in years to come it may lose none of its pristine lustre; that it will rival the fame and hospitality of many larger and older lodges in London is the sincere hope of all who attended the first anniversary of the Kensington Lodge, 1767.

GATESHEAD-ON-TYNE.—Lodge of Industry (No. 48).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 22nd inst., at No. 34, Denmark-street, Gateshead. The lodge was opened in due form shortly after seven o'clock p.m., by the W.M., Bro. Robert Whitfield, assisted by the officers as follows: Bros. M. Corbitt, I.P.M.; D. Sinclair, P.M.; John Wood, S.W.; J. G. Smith, J.W.; W. Brewis Elsdon, Treasurer (also as J.D.); E. Liddell, Sec.; E. W. Middlemast, S.D.; Jas. Boyatt, I.G.; Robert Ferry, Org.; J. C. S. Liddell, S.S.; J. W. A. Boyatt, A.S.; and Joshua Carry, Tyler. The following members were also present: Bros. J. E. Robson, P.M.; B. P. Ord, P.M.; H. N. Ground, Jacob Matthews, Matthew Swinburne, Thomas Swan, Wm. Richardson, W. B. Bolland, and others. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. John Page, W.M. 406; Wm. Healey, 405; W. H. Dunn, 1676; U. Mein, P.M. 541; J. R. S. Baker, 541; M. H. Dodds, J.W. 1119; R. Smalles, P.M. 541; Jas. Cook, P.M. 481, P.P.G.S.W. Northumberland; Wm. Cooper, W.M. 1342; James Cooper, 1342; G. S. Sims, 1342; T. S. Miller, 424; and Thos. Foster, 406. After the minutes were confirmed the ballot was taken respectively for Mr. Wm. Mark Pybus, Mr. Henry Bewsher Slee, and Mr. Edwd. Shewbrooks, who were duly elected. Mr. H. B. Slee being in attendance, and properly prepared, was then initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry by the W.M.; the S.W. explained the working tools, and the J.W. gave the charge. The lodge was afterwards opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. M. Swinburne received the test of merit and retired. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, when Bro. Swinburne was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by the W.M., who also explained the tracing board. The working tools were given by the S.W. The lodge was then closed down to the First Degree, when the W.M. received the "Hearty good wishes" of the visitors. During the evening the W.M. announced that the next Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham would be held at Gateshead on the 21st October, under the joint banners of Lodges 48 and 424, and requested the attendance of all M.M.'s who could make it convenient to attend. The lodge was closed at 9.30 p.m., when the brethren retired to the refreshment-room, where they were entertained with a musical melange, consisting of glees, &c., ably rendered by Bros. Richardson, Ferry, Ord, and Sinclair. The usual list of loyal and Masonic toasts was included in the programme.

MANCHESTER.—Virtue Lodge (No. 152).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Friday, the 19th inst. There were present Bros. Wm. Hollins, W.M.; Wm. Jaffray, S.W.; G. C. Williams, J.W.; C. Harrop, Treas.; Bonehill, D.C.; R. F. Brewer, Sec.; E. A. Priest, Org.; J. Nicholson, I.G.; G. V. Blaikie, J.D.; James Wright, Steward; T. R. Stephens, W. R. Williams, Charles Kay, and B. Nitscke. Visitors: Bros. E. Cummins, S.W. 1459; Murray Thomson, 163; Wm. Bidgood, 261; D. A. Murray, 204; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). As will be seen the attendance of members was not very great, most of them being enjoying the salubrious air of Blackpool, where a grand fête was being held. The lodge was opened at 6.45, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. There being no work the lodge was raised to the Second and Third Degrees, and afterwards lowered to the First. Following the announcement made on the circulars, the bye-laws were read by the Secretary (in the absence of the Chaplain), with a view to alteration, if necessary. A portion of the provincial bye-laws was next read, bearing upon the intimation made by the R.W.P.G.M. with respect to joining members throughout the province, the particulars of which are by this time doubtless well known by the brethren in East Lancashire. This last matter terminating the business, and "Hearty good wishes" having been expressed by the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony soon after 8 o'clock. The brethren afterwards assembled at the social board and spent a couple of hours together, separating at 10 o'clock.

KENNINGTON CHAPTER (No. 1381).—A meeting of this recently-constituted chapter was held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 13th inst. There were present among others Comps. George Everett, M.E.Z.; W. Mann, P.Z., J., and acting H. in the unavoidable absence of Comp. E. Page; T. C. Walls, P.G.D.C. Middlesex, S.N., acting J. (Freemason); Henry Higgins, S.E.; Binjemann, P.S.; Speedy, 1st Assistant; Webb, and Assistant. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. reported that the bye-laws of the chapter had been duly approved by the Grand Chapter. He then directed the S.E. to furnish each member present with a copy of them, which was accordingly done. There were two brethren down on the agenda of business for exaltation, but through unavoidable circumstances they were prevented from attending. There being no other matter before the convocation, it was duly closed, and the companions adjourned to a collation. There were no toasts, and the companions separated at an early hour.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER (No. 1507).—An emergency meeting of this chapter was held at Metropolitan Club, King's Cross, on Thursday, the 18th inst. There were present Comps. Willing, M.E.Z.; T. Adams, P.Z., as H.; Ferguson, J.; W. M. Stiles, Scribe F.; Edmonds, as H.; H. Stiles, as P.S.; Side, 1st P.S.; Barnes, J.; Deller, Sillis, Clemow, Holt, Humphreys, and others. Letters of apology were received from Comps. Stacey, H.; Douglass, P.S.; Hudson, S.N.; and others. A ballot having been taken for Bro. A. N. Clemow, which proved unanimous, he was regularly introduced and impressively exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry. The M.E.Z. then proposed that, in view of the lease of the present premises being disposed of, the chapter be removed. This was carried unanimously, and the committee appointed to make arrangements. The companions immediately on closing the chapter separated.

SUNDERLAND.—St. John's Chapter (No. 80).—The regular convocation of the above chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Tuesday, the 16th inst. Present: Ex. Comps. H. Maddison, Z.; M. Douglass, H.; H. P. Turnbull, J. The chapter was opened by the Three Principals. The minutes of last convocation were read and confirmed. The circular was read convening the meeting. Present on the dais Ex. Comps. Crookes, P.Z.; Hudson, P.Z.; Comp. Lova, P.Z.; Ex. Comps. Clay, Z. of Chapter de Lambton; Frampton, J.; Henderson, P.Z. The ballot was then taken for Bro. T. W. Barnlett, a candidate for exaltation, and Comp. Munroe, of Chapter 487, who were duly elected. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, when the following were elected: Ex. Comps. Maddison, re-elected, Z.; Turnbull, H.; Comps. Lowes, J.; Nicholson, E.; Beattie, N.; Kinmona, P.S.; Craven, T.; Thompson, J. Auditors elected, Comps. Godfondson and Nicholson. All business being done the chapter was closed in due and solemn form.

EAST HARTLEPOOL.—St. Helen's Chapter (No. 531).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, Regent-square, on Friday, the 12th inst., at 6 p.m. There were present Ex. Comps. R. Hudson, Z.; M. Douglass, H.; and G. Moore, J. The chapter was opened by the Three Principals, and the minutes of last convocation were read and confirmed. The circular was read convening the chapter. There being no exaltations, Ex. Comp. Hudson, Z., proposed to give the Symbolic Lecture, which was done in a most impressive manner, giving great satisfaction to the companions.

Comp. Spofforth proposed Bro. R. H. Lynn, of St. Helen's Lodge, for exaltation, seconded by Comp. Hunter. "Hearty good wishes" were given by Ex. Comp. Maddison, Z. of St. John's Chapter, No. 80, and Ex. Comp. Lova, Chapter of Strict Benevolence, No. 97. All business being done, the chapter was closed in due and solemn form.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

MALTA.—Rose of Sharon Rose Croix Chapter (No. 33).—A regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Valetta. There were present Comps. A. M. Broadley, M.W.S.; Capt. Blake, R.A., as Prelate; C. Riechelman, 1st General; Surg.-Maj. Mackinnon, as 2nd General; Lieut. Coffey, R.A., Raphael; Maj. Ewing, Organist; W. J. Jones, Captain of Guard and acting Recorder; together with a large attendance of members of the chapter. A ballot was taken for the following candidates:—Capt. A. Finch Noyes, A.P.D.; Capt. Hodgson, 10th Regt.; Lieut. McLaughlin, R.A.; and Surgeon Walker, A.M.D. These brethren being present, were duly perfected by the M.W.S., as S.P.R.C. of H. It was decided to change the election meeting from January to March. The labours of the evening being ended, the princes adjourned to a banquet.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

HUGHAN'S "OLD CHARGES OF BRITISH FREEMASONS," &c.

Bro. Gould having so kindly alluded to one of my pets ("Old Charges of British Freemasons") I write at once to pledge myself to a reprint of the work as soon as circumstances permit. The fact is, I cannot afford to undertake more than one work at a time, and having a portion of my last, "The Numerical and Medallie Register of Lodges," still on hand, it depends mainly on the brethren how soon the reprint is made. Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford and I have agreed to bring out another edition of the "Old Charges," and that brother has already done a good part towards it in publishing in the "Masonic Magazine" an annotated transcript of the "Halliwell MS.," which will be available for the promised reprint. Of Bro. Cooke's MS. I believe Bro. Walter Spencer has still a number on sale. Though out of print, I am often able—by watching sales and catalogues—to meet with copies of the "Old Charges of British Freemasons," and have two by me now. Bro. Gould's reference to the "Holy Martyrs Four," of the seventh century, is a most important one, and I should like much to know in what MS. they occur. As to Charles Martel's name being in either Halliwell or Cooke's MSS., it will require more than the authority of Bro. Fort to authenticate it, for, as a matter of fact, the name does not occur. Bro. Fort, unfortunately, has not well studied our old MSS. W. J. HUGHAN.

MELROSE LODGE.

In regard to Bro. W. J. Hughan's announcement in the Freemason of the 13th inst., that I have unearthed an old MS. charge at Melrose, I am happy to say that I have transcribed the whole of it from a copy in the possession of the old lodge at Melrose, which has evidently been made about the beginning of last century from the old one I first discovered. It is a very imperfect copy, some words having been altogether mistaken by the transcriber, and some left out altogether where he could not decipher them. The name "Euclide" proved a sore stumbling block, so he copied it exactly as it is written, so that it looks like some mysterious hieroglyphic, and no doubt it was so considered by the scribe. Having got this document copied into my note book, on my next visit to Melrose I will compare it very carefully with the original so as to get a verbatim copy, which I will forward to Bro. Hughan as soon as complete.

In reply to Bro. Woodford's query anent the minutes of this old lodge, I beg to say that as soon as I have leisure and opportunity I will take them up and make extracts of any that may prove of interest to the Craft. From a cursory inspection of one of the books I noted that the first minute bore the date 1678. A faithful transcription of the ancient charges, however, will be my first care; after I have obtained that, I will trace out the history of this ancient lodge as far as it is preserved in these old records.

It is well known that Melrose has never acknowledged the authority of Grand Lodge of Scotland, consequently we are not permitted to receive Melrose Masons in our lodges, or indeed, to recognise them as brethren. This is to be regretted, as it places the members of this ancient lodge in a false position with other brethren. I trust it is not too late for this old lodge to own allegiance to the governing body in Scotland—such a procedure would be honourable to the lodge, and at the same time it would be an honour to Grand Lodge to enrol in its ranks this most ancient lodge. The Lodge of Kilwinning in Ayr, called in Scotland "Mother Killwinning," held aloof until the year 1807, when Grand Lodge conceded it the privilege demanded, that of being registered as the oldest lodge in Scotland, and No. 1 being already allocated to the Lodge of Edinburgh, Mary's Chapel, Kilwinning, was made No. 0. As Melrose claims a history as old as either of these lodges, and claims its establishment from "time immemorial," would it not be possible in justice to its claim, which I think may be fairly established, to give it a position as honourable as the others, and number it 12 or even 21? This arrangement would not affect the numbers of the other lodges as they stand on the roll of Grand Lodge of Scotland.

W. FRED. VERNON.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CHESHIRE.

In obedience to the command of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord de Tabley, R.W.P.G.M., an immense gathering of the brethren from every section of the Province of Cheshire assembled at the Mechanics' Institution, Stockport, on Wednesday, the 17th inst., to assist in the transaction of the annual business of the Provincial Grand Lodge. The large and influential gathering clearly indicated two facts—the continued popularity of Bro. Lord de Tabley, and the unabated vitality of the Order in this Masonic division of the kingdom—and the meeting was generally voted the most successful which has been held since his lordship was appointed to his high and important office in 1865 by the late Earl of Zetland. The last meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge in Stockport was in 1866, but so long ago as 1853 the town was honoured by a visit, when the late Bro. Lord Combermere held the reins of Masonic government.

There are altogether five Masonic lodges in Stockport, but one of these—the Egerton Lodge, held at the George Hotel—belongs to the West Lancashire Province. The four Stockport lodges in the Province of Cheshire are, St. John, No. 104, held at Ashton House, Greek-street; Unanimity, No. 287, Dog and Partridge, Churchgate; Lodge of Peace, No. 322, Warren Bulkeley Arms Hotel, Warren-street; and Concord, No. 323, Florist Hotel, Shaw Heath. There are thirty-six lodges in the province, with a total membership of upwards of 1700.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord de Tabley, P.G.M., was received in due form by the assembled brethren, amongst the P.G. Lodge Officers present being Bros. G. W. Latham, Past G.W. of England, acting as D.P.G.M.; R. Beales, P.P.G.J.W.; A. E. Cockayne, P.G.S.B.; Llewellyn Makin, P.G.J.D.; J. Tomlinson, P.P.G.S.B.; Rev. R. Hodgson, P.G.C.; W. Nicholls, P.G.P.; J. Cavanagh, P.G.A.D.C.; Rev. Augustus A. Bagshaw, M.A., P.G.C., and P.P.G.S.W. Derbyshire; G. A. Fernley, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Hibbert, P.P.G.J.D.; J. P. Platt, P.P.G.J.W.; Captain J. W. Arrowsmith, P.P.G.S.B.; R. C. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D. North Wales and Salop; Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, G. Chap.; H. C. Lisle, P.P.G.S.D.; W. Matthews, P.P.G.A.D.C.; J. Samuel, P.G.P.; T. Smith, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Salmon, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Wood, P.P.G.R.; T. Marwood, P.P.G.J.W.; J. H. Sillitoe, P.P.G.D. of C. E. Lancashire; F. Smith, P.P.G.S. of W.; T. H. Kirk, P.P.G.O.; G. P. Brockbank, P.P.G.S.D. E. Lancashire; J. Beresford, P.P.G.D.C.; J. W. P. Salmon, P.P.G.D.C. E. Lancashire; J. Beech, P.P.G.P.; S. Wilkinson, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Twiss, P.P.G.O.; B. Taylor, P.P.G.D.C. E. Lancashire; T. Chesworth, P.P.G.D.C.; T. M. Lockwood, P.P.G.S. of W.; W. Greatrix, P.P.G.P.; J. C. Cheatham, P.P.G.S.B.; P. Wadsworth, P.P.G.A.D.C.; J. E. Anderson, P.G.R. E. Lancashire; J. Newell Tanner, P.P.G.C.; and others.

Letters of apology for non-attendance were acknowledged by the P.G. Secretary (Bro. E. H. Griffiths) from Bro. the Hon. W. Egerton, D.P.G.M. (who has gone to Italy); Bro. Horatio Lloyd, P.P.G.S.W.; Bro. Le Gendre Starkie, P.G.M. of East Lancashire; and a number of other Provincial Grand Lodge Officers. The roll of lodges was then called over, and it was found that all were represented, the total attendance being about 450. The minutes of the previous annual meeting, held at Nantwich, were read and unanimously confirmed.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord de Tabley, P.G.M., who was received with loud cheers, said that he had again to thank the G.A.O.T.U. for being once more permitted to preside over the P.G. Lodge of Cheshire. He did so with very sincere gratitude, and especially when he again found himself, after a lapse of thirteen years, in the good old town of Stockport, where he had always met with a cordial and hearty reception. (Applause.) The Masonic gathering which he had now the honour to address in no way lost its previous reputation, or fell short of what he had reason to expect. He thought that no P.G. Master ever addressed so large and influential a meeting as that which was there assembled. (Cheers.) Every lodge had answered to its name, and several of them were most largely represented. What was still more satisfactory to his feelings, and must be to every Mason, was the fact that during the year every lodge had nobly done its duty in promoting the noble and sacred cause of charity. (Hear, hear.) It would perhaps be invidious for him to particularise any individual lodge, but he felt that he must mention the Lodge of St. John, No. 104, Stockport, as being prominent in its support of the Girls' School in London during the last year. Other lodges, however, had nobly done their duty, and the result was that during the year their success had been unprecedented. They carried their three candidates for the Girls' School and the Royal Benevolent Institution on the first application. Besides this, £10 had been voted by the Fund of Benevolence to a distressed brother at Hyde, and £10 which had been voted to another distressed brother had been increased to £40 through the efforts of one of their brethren. (Hear, hear.) His lordship then referred to a case in which the daughter of a deceased brother was a candidate for the Girls' School on the representation that her father belonged to the Province of Cheshire, but he desired to state that this was not the fact, because, although her father had been initiated in Cheshire, he actually had been a subscribing brother in Wiltshire. He would, therefore, ask the brethren to reserve their votes till the next spring election, when they would have three bona-fide Cheshire candidates for the Charities, whose election he trusted they would secure through the same excellent arrangements which had distinguished them in times past. (Hear, hear.) He was happy to say that during the past year the peace of the province had been undisturbed; no dispute of any sort had been brought under his notice, and he was glad to know that the vitality of the province was shown by the fact that there was now a total membership of 1731 in connection with the lodges. No doubt it was very satisfactory to find that Masonry had so greatly increased in that portion of the kingdom, but there was one circumstance upon which he wished to make a few remarks. From the returns of the various lodges he found that out of the 1731 members there were no fewer than 114 defaulters in the way of subscription. That was a very serious matter, and he accordingly wished to call the attention of the brethren, especially the W.M.'s of the various lodges, to the fact. Those brethren who were behind in their subscriptions ought to be struck off the roll of the lodge—(hear, hear)—as each lodge had to pay a certain amount to the Grand Lodge in fees, even for those who did not meet their subscriptions. This was a very serious matter, and he (Lord de Tabley) was sure he had only to mention it to secure immediate attention and a speedy remedy. The Cheshire Educational Institution, under the chairmanship of Bro. J. P. Platt, had also flourished greatly during the year, and there was now a very considerable number of children supported through its instrumentality. The mention of this Charity vividly called to his memory the loss which their Order had sustained by the death of Bro. Thomas Platt during the year, whose exertions and energy were so conspicuous in the cause of Masonry and the Educational Institution of Cheshire—an example which they might all very worthily follow. He (the P.G.M.) had only to express, in conclusion, his deep responsibility of the position which he held as the head of that province, and he could assure the brethren that his great anxiety was to do the duty which the Grand Master had placed upon him fairly and impartially. (Hear, hear.) He had hitherto great reason to thank the brethren for their cordial support, and he could only hope that he would continue to merit that in the future. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. F. Jackson, Prov. Grand Treasurer, then submitted his annual financial statement, from which it appeared that there was a balance to the credit of the Prov. Grand Lodge amounting to £537 15s. 7d., and to the Fund of Benevolence of £713 17s. 4d. The Prov. Grand Treasurer congratulated the brethren upon the fact that the province was now out of debt, and he trusted that they would be able next year to vote a sum of money in charity.

Lord de Tabley said it was most satisfactory to find this state of things, especially after the magnificent subscription of 1000 guineas which had been voted a few years ago to secure a perpetual presentation to the Boys' School.

The financial statement was passed; and on the motion of the P.G.M., seconded by Bro. Latham, acting D.P.G.M., Bro. F. Jackson was re-elected Prov. G. Treasurer.

His lordship then appointed the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—

- Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P. ... Prov. G.D.M.
- " John Wood ... Prov. G.S.W.
- " Francis Arthur Dickson ... Prov. G.J.W.
- " the Rev. R. Hodgson, M.A., (re-appointed) ... Prov. G. Chap.
- " the Rev. George Frederick Dean ... Prov. G.A.C.
- " F. Jackson (re-elected) ... Prov. G. Treas.
- " John Hibbet ... Prov. G. Reg.
- " E. H. Griffiths (re-appointed) ... Prov. G. Sec.
- " W. Harrison ... Prov. G.S.D.
- " W. Hickton ... Prov. G.I.D.
- " Stanhope Bull ... Prov. G.S. of W.
- " Herbert Finch ... Prov. G.D.C.
- " T. Brooke ... Prov. G.A.D.C.
- " G. H. Holden ... Prov. G.S.B.
- " Edward Cuzner (re-appointed) ... Prov. G. Org.
- " W. Nicholls ... Prov. G.P.
- " W. Booth, J. K. Green, J. Leigh, E. Stevens, Josiah Hill, and W. H. Brown) ... Prov. G. Stewards.
- " J. H. Holtaway ... Prov. G. Tyler.

The P.G.M. re-appointed Bro. J. P. Platt as the Chairman of the Fund of Benevolence, and invested him with a clasp in recognition of services again given as Steward to the Girls' School.

The P.G.M. also presented and invested the following brethren with charity jewels, to which they had entitled themselves by twice serving the office of Steward to the London Charities:—Bros. Simcock, 1357; J. J. Cunnah, 721; Harrison, W.M. 104; Kirk, I.P.M. 104; T. Burrows, J.W. 104; H. Finch, P.M. 104; and J. Stafford, 104.

The P.G.M. announced that he would hold the next meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge at Runcorn; and a vote of thanks having been given to the Rev. Matthew Pugh, M.A., rector of St. Thomas's Church, for the use of that building for Divine service, the Prov. G. Lodge was closed in solemn form.

The brethren subsequently formed in procession and proceeded to St. Thomas's Church, where a special service was held. The musical portion was under the direction of Bro. E. Cuzner, P.G.O., assisted by Master W. E. Cuzner, Misses Florence, Alice, and Essie Cuzner, Bros. Edmondson, Humphries, and T. Knowles, and Mr. R. H. Williams. The anthem was Sterndale Bennett's "God is a Spirit," which was sung with true devotional spirit. The sermon was preached by the Rev. R. Hodgson, M.A., P.G. Chaplain, from the words of St. Peter, "Honour all men; love the brethren." A collection was made on behalf of the Provincial Fund of Benevolence and the Stockport Infirmary, which realised a substantial sum.

The brethren subsequently banqueted at the Armoury (specially decorated for the occasion), under the presidency of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord de Tabley. During the dinner the band of the 4th C.R.V. played a choice selection of music, conducted by Mr. T. M'Arde.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by Bro. Lord de Tabley, "The Health of the Grand Officers" being acknowledged by Bro. H. Bulley.

Bro. G. W. Latham, acting D.P.G.M., gave the toast of "Lord de Tabley," and in doing so referred to the great progress which Masonry had made in that province during his lordship's fourteen years' Mastership. The P.G.M., in response, spoke with the highest satisfaction of the thorough harmony which prevailed in every lodge in the province. All his hopes and expectations had been realised, and he trusted that so long as his heart continued to beat he would be able to show the same interest as he had done in their noble Order.

An excellent musical programme was given by the "voices" which gave the choral portion of the church service.

Bro. Herbert Finch, the newly-appointed P.G.D.C., fulfilled his duties in a manner which excited the admiration of all who were present at business and banquet.

THE CONSTITUTIONS OF THE FREEMASONS.

SECOND ARTICLE.

BRO. WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

From the Voix of Masonry.

Brethren should always be most careful to distinguish between the Constitutions printed and published by Roberts, in 1722, and the volume issued by the Grand Lodge of England, in 1723, as the first mentioned is simply an exact reproduction of an Operative Manuscript, of which there are many versions extant from the 14th century. It was claimed that the 1722 work contained an account of the "Hautes Grades," and the report was accepted by many until Bro. Richard Spencer, the noted Masonic Bibliographer, allowed me to peruse the only copy known, which was in his collection, and was subsequently purchased for Bro. Robert Farmer Bower's grand Masonic Library. Roberts' manuscript makes no mention of any Masonic degrees whatever, and is in no sense of any value as a Book of Constitutions, though as the unique copy of the first printed transcript of the Operative "Old Charges," the value of the pamphlet cannot be over-estimated. Bro. Spencer has had it carefully printed, and it forms one of the four Constitutions issued by him in one handsome volume.

The rights and privileges of the "Four Old Lodges," which formed the Grand Lodge in 1717, have been most ably considered, of late, by Bro. Robert Freke Gould, who in a large volume, with that title for his work, has done ample justice to the subject, as well as accumulated a vast amount of most interesting and curious information, both historical and statistical, on the subject, the like of which has never been attempted before, and is not likely ever to be again, now that Bro. Gould has so ably presented the subject.

The Constitutions of 1723 were the foundation of all others of the kind, such as those issued in Ireland, A.D. 1730, and elsewhere. The subsequent alterations, however, of the Regulations made it indispensable for a new edition to be issued, and so, in 1738, was published "The new Book of Constitutions of the Ancient and Honorable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing their History, Charges, Regulations, etc." The volume was dedicated by Dr. Anderson to H.R.H. Frederick, Prince of Wales, who was the first of the "Royal Blood," in England, to join the Grand Lodge. Since then fourteen members of the "Royal Family" have been initiated, the 23rd Prince of Wales, H.R.H. Albert Edward, being the present Grand Master of the English branch of the widespread Fraternity. As Bro. Carson observed, it is scarcer than the first edition, and the same work, only with another title-page introduced (the first being removed), is rarer still. It would appear that several remained unsold, or a number of copies came into the hands of a printer, for in 1746 we find that they were issued with a different title-page, and bearing that year instead of 1738, added to which another printer's name appears. The 1738 edition was printed and sold by "Brother Casar Ward and Richard Chandler, Booksellers, at the Ship without Temple Bar, etc.," but the new title-page has the name of J. Robinson, who, though he declared himself the printer of the book, simply printed the following:

The History and Constitutions of the Most Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons; containing an account of Masonry. 1. From the Creation, throughout the known earth, till true architecture was demolished by the Goths, and at last revived in Italy. 2. From Julius Casar to the first arrival of the Saxons in Britain. 3. From the union of the crowns of England and Scotland, in the person of King James the First to the present time.

To which are added:

1. A list of the Grand Masters or Patrons of the Freemasons in England, from the coming in of the Anglo-Saxons to these times, who are mentioned in this work.
2. The Old Charges of the Masons, collected from their earliest records, at the command of his Grace the Duke of Montague.
3. The manner of constituting a lodge.
4. The general regulations of the Free and Accepted Masons, both ancient and modern, in distinct columns.
5. The constitution of the Committee of their Charity.
6. A list of lodges in and about London and Westminster; with the deputations of several Grand Masters for the forming of lodges in Wales, the remote parts of England, and in foreign realms.

7. The songs sung at the lodges.

8. A defence of Masonry, occasioned by a pamphlet called Masonry Dissected; with Bro. Euclid's letter to the author against unjust cavils.

By James Anderson, D.D., London, printed and sold by J. Robinson, at the Golden Lion, in Ludgate-street. In the vulgar year of Masonry, 5746.

The frontispiece in the editions of 1723 and 1738 is about the only bond of agreement, for there is a vast difference in the two works. The compiler styles the latter "about twice as large as the former, having many proper additions, especially the principal transactions of the Grand Lodge ever since." The account of the Grand Lodge thus mentioned from 1717 is indeed a specially attractive feature of the 1738 edition, as also the continuations in subsequent issues down to 1784. The "History of Masonry" is divided into three parts: 1. The Creation to the Revival of Masonry in Italy. 2. Julius Casar to Queen Elizabeth, A.D. 1603. 3. From A.D. 1603 to the Marquis of Carnarvon, A.D. 1738. The third part, it will be seen, is the one of value, the others possessing little to entitle them to the consideration of the Craft. The second edition was ordered under the Grand Mastership of the Earl of Darnley, January 25th, 1737-8, and sanctioned as published by the Marquis of Carnarvon, Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, Grand Wardens, &c. The brethren were cautioned against using any other book, in any lodge, as a lodge book, as they shall be answerable to the Grand Lodge, doubtless owing to the circulation of "Pocket Companions," which contained the laws of the fraternity of 1723, &c. Prefacing the front page of the history is the plate of arms, &c., of the Grand Master, as in Pine's engraved lists of lodges of the period, and evidently printed from the same plate as the latter, being of the narrow and long form peculiar to such lists, commenced to be published in 1723.

A list of the Grand Masters or Patrons of the Freemasons in England is furnished, commencing with the first Archbishop of Canterbury, and ending with the Grand Master of 1738, the majority of the names before the last century being mainly an imaginary arrangement by the author. The "Old Charges of the Freemasons" are given as in 1723, save the first, which is altered but not improved. In it, for the first time, mention is made of a Mason as a "true Noahida," and also of the "Three great articles of Noah," &c. These were never again printed, and so much the better. Bro. Leon Hyneman is the only Freemason that I know of who has published another edition of this 1738 Constitutions, which he did in Vol II. of his "Masonic Library." In a notice of his reprint Bro. Hyneman states, "There is a mystery involved in the charges of a Freemason, which differ from the 1723 edition." The mystery to me is how such an able brother as the Rev. James Anderson, D.D., could sanction such a change! He evidently for a time forgot the last sentence in his address to the reader, November 4th, 1738, "It is good to know what not to say!" page x., Constitutions, 1738.

The history of the Grand Lodge from 1717, which adorns the work, is a most useful compilation and must always tend to make such works of special value to the Craft. Each successive edition to 1784 contained the history to period of publication, after which date the information has been omitted from the Books of Constitutions of the Grand Lodge of England.

The general regulations of 1723 and 1738 are given side by side, and the dates of the changes from the old to the new laws. At this period white leather aprons alone were worn by the Craft, save the present and past Grand Officers, who were allowed the addition of blue silk. Masters and Wardens were only allowed white ribbons from which to suspend the lodge jewels. Evidently simplicity was then the order of the day. In 1729 two guineas was the charge for a warrant, now it is fifteen in London and ten in the country. Originally a brother could not be a member of more than one lodge, but that has long been otherwise in England. A year's ceasing to meet as a lodge obtained erasure de facto. This, however, did not refer to the lodges constituted abroad. All the degrees were allowed generally to be given in lodges according to the laws after 1725. The Grand Secretary was always appointed by the Grand Master after the Grand Lodge made choice of the first in 1723. Grand Stewards were first allowed red ribbons for the jewels, 1731, and aprons lined with red silk. In 1735, they were formed into a lodge, and have since so continued, only without any authority to do Masonic work. The Tylers at the Grand Lodge were appointed by the Grand Stewards. These changes are sufficient to indicate the fact that the members of the Grand Lodge did not accept the regulations of 1723 as final, added to which, June 24th, 1723, it was agreed that "It is not in the power of any man, or body of men, to make any alteration or innovation in the body of Masonry, without the consent first obtained of the Grand Lodge." The laws of the Committee of Charity, first proposed in 1724, with subsequent alterations, are presented in full. Then follows a list of the lodges in and about London and Westminster, and for the country and abroad, to which Bro. Gould does ample justice in his "Four Old Lodges." A variety of songs and a remarkable "Defence of Masonry," published A.D. 1730, occasioned by a pamphlet, by Samuel Pritchard, called Masonry Dissected" (supposed to be by Dr. Anderson), as also a letter to the author of the able defence by "Euclid," &c., concludes the volume of 231 pages.

An intimation has been received by Mr. Mark Firth that Court arrangements prevent Prince Leopold from visiting Sheffield to open Firth College on the date fixed. His Royal Highness's visit has been postponed until Saturday, October 18th, and he will be the guest of Mr. Firth until the 24th.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1879.

FREEMASONRY IN THE EAST.

Such is the heading of a communication in the Times last week, which suggests many curious memories and many important considerations to the Masonic student. We do not refer to the subject matter of the communication we print elsewhere, for that only refers, in our opinion, to a somewhat commonplace present, if even it seems to have a bearing on things as they really are in that far and still mysterious clime. But we prefer, as if on a magic and Masonic carpet, to travel far away to that land of startling reminiscences and moving tales, to the past centuries through which Tennyson's poetic "Argosies" have floated on, laden with the spoils of the old world and the industry of the new, surrounded for the most part with that mist of ignorance and prejudice which has blinded men's eyes to the historic truth, and landed them in a picturesque but deceptive realm of shadows, legends, and myths. Freemasonry, as we believe, hails from the East, but what have been its conditions of vitality and reality since Christianity sprung marvellously to the fore? Has it survived troubled and stormy ages amid the conflicting claims of Christians and Mohammedans, the Crusader and the "Sclan," both the "encroaching hand of time" and the inevitable human process of decay, dissolution, and oblivion? Was Freemasonry still lingering in the East in mystic and secret sodalities when stately knights did battle for the Cross and their Redeemer, and sought to rescue the dear and Holy City from Paynim and Iconoclast? Does Freemasonry still survive, if in an altered form, amid the Dervishes of Turkey, the Santons of Africa, the Dhijals of the Druses, the secret confraternities of Soght colleges? One High Grade tradition declares that the Crusaders brought back from the East certain quasi-Masonic organizations, and some of the proceedings of the Templars are only explainable on the ground of some common ground of intercommunion with their Mohammedan foes? Many of the peculiar ceremonies attributed to the Templars in their "secreta receptio" seem to have come from the East, and to have been Oriental both in idea and end. Can we hope to obtain a satisfactory answer to such questions? a lucid explanation of such suggestions? We fear not. No, for us the great and wondrous East, the storehouse of all worldly lore and learning, the quondam source of all the wisdom and mysteries, the Hermetic secrets and the Inductive science of today, must still we fear repose for us in its imperishable dimness and stillness, and will still refuse to unravel the arcanæ of the past, or give us the golden key to unlock the sealed book of ages. Sufficient for us as Freemasons that with the East are bound up our most ancient associations and our most cherished traditions, and that under its bright shadow we are still willing also to confront, whether the destructive theories of the present, or to look on in hope and trust to the gradual unveiling of a brighter, because less dubious future.

MASONIC HOLIDAYS.

"All work and no play," says the old saw, "makes Jack a dull boy," and though, like a good many aged and affecting "saws" we wot of, it has its "outcome" of fallacy, yet there is a "substratum" of truth in it, clearly and convincingly. To many workers in this world's great beehive, (not "drones," observe, kind readers), a holiday is often needed, not only for rest and refreshment of mind and body, but actually for very health's sake. The effort of continuous overpowering work, especially brain work, is to produce not only lassitude of mind and body, but to expedite the inevitable symptoms of weakness and decay. Indeed, it is sometimes surprising to think how many of us all stand, day by day, and hour by hour, the wear and tear on our faculties, on our corporeal strength. With few can such a pressure go on safely for long without indubitable signs of overwork, of breaking down. And holidays are good for us all, be we who we may. The clergyman labouring in his parish, the lawyer toiling in his chambers, the physician intent on his benevolent mission of help and healing, the actor triumphing over the sympathies and minds of his auditory, the man of business in his counting house, all have claims for, nay more, have need of, "holidays" from time to time, lest the turmoil and weight of worldly pressure should erase their finer sensibilities, or overpower their truer emotions. And not only this, but as we have before observed, sanitary considerations demand a cessation from time to time of mental and bodily labour for us all alike. The Freemason from the first has rejoiced in the Bank Holidays, for example, as tending greatly to the eventful elevation, (let us trust), of vast masses of our labouring and laborious countrymen in social virtues and æsthetic culture, in their improvement and benefit in many ways. And feeling all this strongly, we also approve greatly of Masonic holidays, when for a time our busy lodge life ceases and our good brethren, scattered in every direction, in health resorts by the sea side, on mountain and on moor, revive their strength, recruit their energies, and prepare valourously for the serious emergencies of another (not Cabul, but Masonic) campaign. We think that a short visit to one of the sequestered and beautiful spots in our own country will do us all good in most respects. It is impossible, we believe, when surrounded by the associations of the country, in all its grace and sweetness, to be altogether wrapped up in self, or to be insensible to the claims and duties of life. The everlasting hills, the placid lake, the goodly trees, the green meadows, the elements in wrath or in repose, all alike affect our minds with bettering associations, and serve to stir up in us all a sense of the truly beautiful and the divine, in the wondrous handiwork of the Most High, and soothe our jaded spirits, or soften our bitter reflections, or lighten up our dim aspirations, or renew our decaying inner life with those perceptions and memories which the Great Creator seems to have identified in His mercy with all nature's sternest and gentlest scenes for the happiness and improvement of man. These words may recall to some of our readers many a pleasant outing, many a happy walk—the old country side hostelry, (now rare), the mountain stream, the winding path, the chat with an old mate, and all the humble but honest emotions of youth, not too grand to be pleased, or of manhood not too lordly to be satisfied with meagre fare and the traveller's life. Pleasant recollections are those which recall the needful holidays of life, before we were too great, capricious, or prosperous to find happiness in little things, or the quiet companionship of an ancient friend, in that real holiday of the heart and soul, which brings us face to face and mind to mind with congenial spirits and kindly souls.

CABUL.

This land of ill-omened memory to English minds of olden time, lately associated with a most triumphant expedition, is now once again before us in all the lurid light of treachery and cruelty. The Freemason does not profess or affect in any manner to touch upon political problems or deal with "matters of state," directly or indirectly, but it can, and does, sympathize deeply with those gallant brethren of ours who are to be found in that noble service, ever ready at the call of its Sovereign and its country to "go anywhere and do anything." And, hence, to-day it is glad in its humble columns, which are read by hill fires and in distant cantonments, to express its warm and anxious interest in those who "have gone to the front," and who it trusts ere long, in the capital of a treacherous foe, may inflict a punishment which may serve as an example to all open or secret enemies, to those who declare themselves our antagonists, to those who surreptitiously egg on others to savage warfare, of the might and retribution of England. We say once more to-day, that we have every confi-

FREEMASONRY IN ROUMANIA.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The following notes, compiled from an article in the Deutches Montags Blatt, of Berlin, respecting the position of certain members of the Masonic body in Roumania may prove of interest to your readers. I may add that the original article is written by a Mason.

"Before Roumania became independent of Turkey the numerous lodges in the country were affiliated to and under the jurisdiction of the Grand Orient of France, Italy, or Germany, and there was in them, as in all other Masonic lodges, perfect social, religious equality. Directly Roumania obtained her independence, the Masonic lodges met and formed a Grand Orient of their own, which has hitherto remained unrecognized by the Grand Orient or Grand Lodges of other countries. The principle upon which this new Grand Orient and its affiliated lodges are working is entirely opposed to the fundamental laws of Freemasonry. Their organ in the press entirely repudiates the idea that Masonry is a Cosmopolitan Brotherhood, and claims for Roumanian lodges that they shall admit no foreigners, either as guests or as members. Further than this, it is laid down that no German, and no person professing the Jewish faith, shall, at this or any other future time, even if he be a Roumanian by naturalisation or birth, be allowed to participate in the privileges of Roumanian Freemasonry."

I hardly think that these facts require much comment on my part, but I would humbly suggest that Grand Lodge take cognizance of the matter. When the Grand Orient of France repudiated the first principle of Masonry all lodges under its jurisdiction were debarred from joining in the working of English lodges; surely in this, a very similar case, the Grand Lodge of England might with good effect administer a severe rebuke to the presumptuous and narrow-minded lodges of Roumania.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

S. H. D'AVIGDOR,

Reviews.

BRITISH BARROWS. By WILLIAM GREENWELL, M.A., F.S.A., Oxford. Clarendon Press: Andrews, Durham.

This very elaborate work, most interesting and lucid in itself, deserves a larger space than can unfortunately be afforded to its undeniable merits in the limited space of the Freemason. But as the able writer of it, so well known to many, is an old and very genial member of our Order, it seemed to us when preparing this humble notice of a really great work, that for once we may outstep the somewhat curt and unsatisfactory limits to which reviews are condemned in our hebdomadal issue. Canon Greenwell's work may fairly be divided into three divisions, which for the convenience of our readers we shall treat seriatim, as otherwise the facts are so many that they will crowd on us in their wonderful fulness, rendering our canvas blurred and indistinct, and taking away from our review of so much recondite information any merit of clearness, and every claim for method and order. We will, therefore, confine ourselves to-day to the general question of Barrows, reminding our readers that no more important topic connected with the early development of our individual life, or the progress of the civilization of our race, can be touched upon or treated, even by the skillful hand of the great "Opener of Barrows," and that to all who wish to study the conditions of this human existence of ours, in various epochs, whether as pre-historic or historic ages, must on this wide subject of "mortal burial" go to our Bro. Canon Greenwell's book for enlightenment and information, for all that can positively be known on customs and the life of our common humanity, shrouded in the dimness of past time, and buried, so to say, in the dark recesses of the earth. We call attention, therefore, to the fact at the outset, as not only one great modern source of information on a matter of which we have all heard a good deal no doubt in our various localities, but as an exhaustive treatment of incontestable data and startling facts, acquired by much personal labours, and through a long series of valuable and skilful explorations. The writer of the work on British Barrows points out to us in words which are most true, that there has been from the earliest times an universal custom among men of raising a mound, the so-called Barrow, over the buried dead to mark their earthly resting places. Barrows are, let us remember, mounds of earth, cairns, mounds of stone. These "Barrows," under divers names, are found, as we may many of us have seen, by Mediterranean shore and Northern steppes; are to be seen on the continent of Hindostan; are to be found in the Pyramids of Egypt, though the Pyramids were not, in our opinion, solely places of burial; amid the errant Red Indians of the North American forests, as well as amid the ruined cities of Central America. They abound in England, Scotland, and Ireland, and are to be found in Brittany and numerous other portions of the earth's surface. Indeed, it is hard to say where they are not. Curiously enough they vary in size, from a few feet diameter, to Silbury Hill, Wiltshire, which covers five acres of ground, and measures 130 feet in perpendicular height. As a rule they are circular, though sometimes they approach an oval form, but a long shaped mound, common in some parts of England, has been "regarded," Canon Greenwell says, with "much probability" as the earliest form of Barrow, and belonging to a period before the introduction of the use of metal into the country. They differ considerably, we are told, in outline, and even in shape. Those which remain have no doubt suffered greatly from either the "encroaching hand of time," or the inroads of the plough, and the farmer regardless of antiquities, but judging from some which seem to be still preserved intact in their original shape, Canon Greenwell thinks they may be fairly described as "being bowl shaped and conical, those of the former shape being, perhaps, the most numerous." In Wiltshire the writer alludes to the "Bell Barrows," as they are called, and which some of us may have seen, and to what Sir Richard Colt Hoare terms "Druid Barrows," whether "two barrows," or more than two small ones surrounded by a ditch, and which, as a foot note points out, seem to take us back to the "Sema" of Homeric burials. On the "wolds of Yorkshire," where many barrows exist, many of them had probably an "encircling mound or ditch, or both, at the back," though in some cases, as we before remarked, the levelling plough has swept their last trace away. The Wold Barrows are of various sizes, and may be said to range from twenty feet to 150 in diameter, and from one to twenty-four feet in height. These barrows have been made, as Canon Greenwell reminds us, of the materials which "came the nearest to hand," more of earth than of chalk, but it is seldom we find any barrows without some admixture of chalk or flint, the chalk having been frequently obtained from the grave. And then having realized the barrows, whether as great "landmarks of time" or quiet witnesses of a buried past, standing in their solitary grandeur on exposed hills and lonely moorlands, telling us of dead men and vanished ages, the next question that necessarily occurs is, what is their age? Canon Greenwell thinks they can fairly and safely be attributed to a period which centres, more or less, in a.c. 500. That they belonged to a time before the Roman occupation seems also absolutely certain, and Canon Greenwell does not doubt that they were erected by a people who erected those burial mounds antecedently both to the Christian Era and the Roman occupation of Britain. And here to-day we pause, as regards the main question, hoping at a very early period indeed to point out to our readers what the Barrows were used for, why they were built with such care and skill, as the age permitted, and what was placed within them. But before we close this first portion of our review of a most important and enduring work, we think it right to remind our readers, as some of them, like ourselves, may have been fascinated by the same study in other years, though cares and trials, many and great, may have made us forget that old earth lore we had once essayed to master, that other writers have treated upon the same subject, though none, in our opinion, so clearly, satisfactorily, and fully as Canon Greenwell. Some of us may have pored over in other days some of the glorious volumes of Sir Richard Colt Hoare and revelled in his striking description of Wiltshire antiquities. Some of us may have seen Mr. Borlase's most interesting work, "Nenia Cornubiae," and Mr. Warne's "Celtic Tumuli of Dorset," some of us may have looked into Douglas's "Nenia Britannica," some of us may have admired Bryan Faussett's "Inventorium Sepulchrale." But still, despite many lucubrations of the past, as regards funeral rites and modes of interment, some interesting French cursory notes, we have seen some general works on interments or local essays on the remains, for instance, of Brittany, we certainly are indebted to the writer of "British Barrows" for a work which constitutes a complete collection of facts on a subject about which much has been written, but until his happy and ingenious explanation, great doubts and obscurity prevailed.

FREEMASONRY IN THE EAST.

We have, says the Times, been favoured with the following extract from a letter written by an Englishman of high position in Egypt:—

"Cairo, Sept. 8.

"You will remember, of course, the name of Sheikh Jamál ed Din, whose violent articles against England were translated by Dr. Badger. This man has been lately delivering most revolutionary lectures, and has gotten together a number of disciples, in whom he has instilled principles of atheism and communism. About a fortnight ago the Sheikh was arrested and sent off to Suez, where he was placed on board a steamer bound for Jeddah. All his papers were seized by the police, and a day or two afterwards a paragraph, communicated by the Prefecture of Police, was published in the native journals. This paragraph alluded to the exile of the Sheikh, to the revolutionary principles he had taught, and to the secret society he had founded, and warned the Egyptians of the peril incurred by following such a leader, &c. Jamál ed Din had been W.M. of our lodge, and, in consequence of his unMasonic conduct, we had applied to Grand Lodge for his expulsion. But the native Masons were filled with fear and trembling on reading the 'communiqué,' and applied to me to make matters smooth for them. Nobody would take any step. They were all afraid of coming forward and desirous that their connection with Masonry should be ignored and even denied. I did not know the exact light in which the new Khedive would regard Masonry among the natives, but hoping to be able to convince his Highness, and relying on his own good sense, I entered the arena as the champion of Oriental Masonry.

"I obtained a private audience with the Khedive, congratulating him upon the wise step he had taken in expelling Jamál ed Din, but hoped he would not attribute to Masonry the principles held by one member of the fraternity. He replied, 'No, on the contrary, mon Bey, I know all about it. Masonry is a society for doing good and does not enter into religion or politics; and as Jamál ed Din would lecture on these forbidden topics you expelled him from the lodge, and for the same reason I have expelled him from Egypt. He was only here on sufferance, having been already sentenced in Constantinople to expulsion from the Ottoman dominions. You need not fear that I shall confound his principles with those of Freemasonry.'

"I thanked his Highness, but added that, although we European Masons knew that we could always justify our meetings, the natives had not the same means of making their feelings known, and it was on their behalf that I came to speak to him. His Highness replied that I might assure them of his protection so long as they acted as Masons; but that any Egyptian, whether Mason or not, who sought to cause intrigues and conspiracies would be punished. I then asked his Highness for the papers belonging to the lodge, which he promised should be restored to me.

"I subsequently drove to the lodge and found the 'Concordia' holding a meeting, in which a painful discussion was going on with regard to this business. But when I was announced I was admitted as a visitor with immense honours, and, communicating to them the substance of my conversation with the Khedive, I received the hearty thanks and applause of the meeting. And I have since received ... the papers belonging to the lodge. I had only attended one meeting at which the Sheikh presided, after which there was a banquet, at which the health of the Prince of Wales was proposed. But the W.M. (Sheikh Jamál) refused to drink it, saying that all Princes, Kings, and Khedives were tyrants. Whereupon I rose from the table, quitted the room, and wrote to the lodge, and afterwards to the Grand Lodge, for his expulsion.

"I have succeeded him by unanimous acclamation."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution assembled on Thursday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. H. A. Dubois presided. There were also present Bros. James F. Corben, Col. James E. Peters, F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary, and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the recommendations of the House Committee were adopted, and notices of motion were received for the October Quarterly Court.

A letter purporting to come from Bro. Dick Radcliffe for approval of his scheme for the "Masonic Scholars' Assistance Fund" was read, but as the letter enclosing the circular was not signed, it was ordered to lie on the table.

On the motion of Col. Peters, seconded by Bro. Corben, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Joshua Nunn and his nephew, Mr. A. Rowland, for entertaining the children of the Institution, with a vocal and instrumental concert, which several of the House Committee attended, on Monday last.

The Committee then adjourned.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. FOUNTAINE, LODGE 948.

On Wednesday, the 17th inst., the brethren of the above lodge performed the very pleasant duty of presenting Bro. Bernard Thomas Fountaine, Esq., of Stoke House, a Past Master of the lodge, with a very handsome portrait of himself. The object of the present was twofold. It was intended as a testimonial to Bro. Fountaine for the very efficient services he had rendered this his mother lodge, in acting for a long series of years as Treasurer of its funds, and in filling all the offices—even the highest—with so much distinction to himself and benefit to the lodge; and also to be a wedding present to his eldest daughter, Mrs. Fountaine, of Paris. The portrait is three-quarters in length, and most life-like, the countenance having a warm and benevolent expression. The clothing (purple and gold) is that of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Berks and Bucks, of which lodge Bro. Fountaine is a Past Grand Treasurer. The jewels depicted on his breast are indicative of the honour with which he has passed through the various degrees of Masonry. The portrait was painted by Myall, of Regent-street, and is mounted in a handsome gilt frame, with glass, surrounded by a margin of velvet. It is quite a work of art, and does much credit to the firm from which it emanates. The presentation was made at Stoke House by the Testimonial Committee, Bros. McCubbin, Poynter, King and Morgan. Bro. Fountaine, who was accompanied by Mrs. Fountaine and family, together with a few select Masonic and other friends, received the present at the hands of the Committee, and in a neat and appropriate speech expressed his pleasure and thanks on behalf of his daughter and himself. By the kindness of the host and hostess the brethren and friends dined together, and in the post-prandial speeches great desire was expressed that T.G.A.O.T.U. would grant long life, happiness, and prosperity to Bro. Fountaine, and his family, as well as to the newly-wedded pair in Paris.

Bro. W. H. Saunders, of 27, Walbrook, London, will be happy to receive votes on behalf of Percy Herbert Stone, candidate for the Boys' S...

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF MALTA.

The half-yearly meeting was held on the 16th inst., at the Masonic Hall, La Valetta. There were present the W. Bro. A. M. Broadley, D.D.G.M., on the throne, also W. Bros. Thomas Fellowes Reade, P.D.D.G.M. for Egypt, H.B.M. Agent and Consul General for the Regency of Tunis; Rotherham, D.G.S.W.; Coffey, D.G.J.W.; Riechelmann, P.D.G.J.W.; Bro. Walker, D.G. Chaplain (acting); W. Bros. Dahu, D.G. Registrar; Read; Bro. Starkey, D.G. Sec.; Jones, D.G.S.D.; Crabtree, D.G.J.D.; Ewing, D.G. Organist (acting); Blake, D.G. Supt. of W.; Mortimer, D.G. Sword Bearer; King, Stanley, Cummings, and Miller, D.G. Stewards; several other D.G.L. Officers, and numerous brethren from the lodges in the island, as well as many from lodges working under the Irish and Scottish Constitutions, rendering this one of the most numerously attended meetings of District Grand Lodge that has hitherto been held in this island.

District Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the Dir. of Cer. called upon all present to salute with the grand honours the D.D.G.M., Bro. Broadley, and, in obedience to the call of the same officer, all the brethren present saluted in like manner their illustrious visitor, W. Bro. T. F. Reade, P.D.D.G.M. for Egypt, &c.

The D.D.G.M. then called upon the D.G. Secretary to read the minutes of the last meeting of District Grand Lodge, held 10th April last, as well as the minutes of the Board of General Purposes, held 15th inst., both of which were confirmed in the usual manner.

The D.D.G.M. then referred in congratulatory terms to the presence in District Grand Lodge of an illustrious visitor, W. Bro. T. F. Reade, P.D.D.G.M. for Egypt, on his way from Smyrna to take up the appointment of H.B.M. Agent and Consul General for the Regency of Tunis, dwelling upon the important service he had rendered in years past to Freemasonry as W.M. of the Bulwer Lodge, No. 1068, at Cairo, and under Halim Pasha, uncle of the ex-Khedive of Egypt, as D.D.G.M. for that country. The D.D.G.M. had much pleasure in announcing that an address to W. Bro. Reade had been prepared and signed by the principal officers of District Grand Lodge, which he called upon the D.G. Secretary to read.

This having been done, the address was presented by the Dir. of Cer. to W. Bro. Reade, who expressed his deep appreciation of the kind reception he had met with, and the pleasure he felt on being present on this occasion, his gratitude for the cordial address just presented to him, and assured all present that he would spare no efforts in co-operating with the D.D.G.M., W. Bro. Broadley, to promote the welfare of the Craft in this district, and of the lodges at Tunis and the Goletta in particular.

The D.D.G.M. then addressed the meeting, regretting his inability to discharge as he would wish the duties that devolved upon him in the absence of the D.G.M., R.W. Bro. Kingston, now in England, and to whom he had caused a telegram to be sent containing the fraternal greetings of all present assembled in D.G.L. on this occasion. He referred to the general prosperity of the Craft in this district, to each of the new lodges recently formed at Tunis, and to the illustrious visitor, W. Bro. Reade. Referring to a circular issued by him in June last, he warned all the brethren in most emphatic terms to exercise the greatest care when any foreign brother presented himself for admission to their lodges, and to co-operate with their ruler, the R.W. D.G.M., Bro. Kingston, and himself to maintain and uphold the great reputation this island has attained to as a stronghold of Freemasonry. Referring to the Ancient Carthage and William Kingston Lodges at Tunis, he called upon the D.G. Secretary to read the telegrams received from them that evening containing the fraternal greetings of all present. Letters of apology for being unable to attend this meeting from W. Bro. Chev. E. Rosenbusch, P.D.D.G.M., and Bro. F. O. Rowlinson, were also read.

The acting Chaplain having offered up prayer, the D.D.G.M. closed D.G.L., and all present adjourned to the refreshment-room, where a sumptuous banquet awaited them, in the course of which, after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given and duly honoured, that of "The Visitors," coupled with the name of W. Bro. T. F. Reade, P.D.D.G.M. for Egypt, &c., &c., as well as the visiting Irish and Scotch brethren, was proposed by the D.D.G.M., and received with enthusiasm.

W. Bro. Reade, in reply, confirmed, with many kindly expressions of regard and appreciation of the hearty welcome he had met with that evening, his earnest wish to promote the good of Freemasonry in the Regency of Tunis, to which he would shortly proceed.

Various other toasts followed, and the brethren separated after passing a very pleasant evening.

Royal Ark Mariners.

MALTA.—Saint Elmo Lodge.—A lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, bearing the above name, has been founded at Malta, under the auspices of the Broadley Mark Lodge. The first meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Valetta, on the 9th inst., when the W.M.M. of the Broadley Lodge, Bro. Lieut. Charles Edward Coffey, R.A., was installed as W.C.N. of the new lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, by Bro. Chev. Edward Rosenbusch, and Bro. Captain Charles John Blake, R.A. Seventeen Mark Masters were afterwards advanced to the Degree of Royal Ark Mariners, from among whom the W.B.N. named the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year. Lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

WORDSWORTH'S "COCA PILLS" the successful remedy for sleeplessness, neuralgia, and Hay fever. 6s. per box. Homeopathic Chemist, 6, Sloane-street, London.

Royal and Select Masters.

GRAND MASTERS' COUNCIL.—A meeting of this flourishing Degree was convened at the Masonic Rooms, 2, Red Lion-square, Holborn, on the 10th instant, when there were present among others Bros. T. C. Walls, R.I.D.M.; Davison, Grand Treas.; D. M. Dewar, Asst. Grand Recorder; H. C. Levander, G.L.; T. Poore, acting P.C.W.; Dr. Pearce, G. Lambert, S. Rosenthal. The minutes of the previous council having been read and confirmed, Bro. the Honourable W. T. Orde-Powlett, York Mark Lodge, &c., was duly received and admitted to the Degrees of M.E.M., R.M., S.M., and S.E.M., the four ceremonies being performed by the R.I.D.M., ably assisted by Bros. Levander, Poore, and Dewar. Some minor business having been transacted, the council was duly and formally closed, and the brethren adjourned.

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS DURKIN.

We record with deep regret the sudden death of our Bro. Thomas Durkin, of Saint Mary's-road, Peckham, an old member and a Past Master of the Royal Jubilee Lodge, No. 72. He retired to rest, apparently in his usual good health, on the evening of Sunday, the 14th inst., and early on Monday morning he was found dead in his bed. On the previous Thursday he had presided at the meeting of the Royal Jubilee Chapter, of which he was First Principal, and the report of that meeting, held at the Horns, Kennington, appeared in our columns last week. We need hardly say that our brother's sudden death has thrown a deep gloom over the lodge and chapter, with both of which he was so intimately connected, and wherein he was most sincerely respected and beloved by his brethren and companions. Nor is it in Masonry alone that our brother's death will be lamented, but very widely indeed among a large circle of friends. He had for many years occupied the highly responsible position of Superintendent of the Bow-street division of police, and in the faithful and efficient discharge of his important duties he had found time to cultivate many warm and enduring friendships. He was widely known in his service, from which he had only recently retired, and his memory will be long preserved and cherished among those whose friend and brother he had been. His body was interred in Brompton Cemetery on Thursday, the 18th inst., and, notwithstanding the necessarily short notice, a large number of his brother Masons and others attended there to testify their respect and affection for their departed friend.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The consecration of the Shepherd's Bush Lodge (No. 1828) took place on Monday last, at the Richmond Hotel, Shepherd's Bush.

The newly-erected Masonic Hall was on Thursday week inaugurated at Portmadoc by a meeting of the Grand Provincial Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire, a large number of the Craft taking part in the proceedings.

A meeting of the Holy Palestine Preceptory of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temple will be held on Wednesday next, the 1st prox., at the Masonic Hall, 33, Golden-square, London, W., at 6.30 p.m. punctually.

The consecration of the Brixton Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners will take place this day, at 6.30 p.m., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. Bro. D. M. Dewar, Asst. G. Secretary, will be the Consecrating Officer. Brethren are invited to attend.

The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be rehearsed at the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, on Tuesday, 7th October, at six o'clock, by Bro. J. Terry, P.P.G.J.W. Herts, and Sec. R.M.B.I., at the Moorgate Station Restaurant, Moorgate-street. The Craft cordially invited. A cold collation will follow; tickets to be obtained from the Hon. Sec., Bro. W. M. Stiles.

The Duke of Abercorn arrived in town at the end of the past week from Homburg, accompanied by Lady Georgiana Hamilton. Lord and Lady Claud J. Hamilton have also returned from Homburg.

The question of reducing the rate of commission on foreign and colonial money orders is now under the consideration of the Postmaster-General.

It is interesting to note that in February next there will be five Sundays. This fact occurs but three times in a century. Thus, after 1880, we will have to wait until 1920 before the shortest month in the year can again boast of five Sundays.

Bro. George F. Fort, the highly esteemed author of the "Early History and Antiquities of Freemasonry," has just returned from Old England, after having successfully accomplished his literary purposes, and delighted with his reception by various eminent English brethren, including especially Bros. Woodford and Mackenzie. We never saw Bro. Fort look better than he did a day or two ago, when he honoured our sanctum with a visit.—The Keystone (Philadelphia).

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 108, Fleet-street, London.—[ADVT.]

WENTWORTH LITTLE MEMORIAL.—The subscription list stands over until next week.

The Lodge of Prudent Brethren, No. 145, met at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 25th inst. The agenda contained a considerable amount of business including the election of W.M., Treasurer, &c., for the ensuing year. A banquet followed. The report will appear in our next.

WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.—The annual Court of this Institution will be held at Morecambe on Wednesday next, the 1st October, for the purpose of receiving and determining the recommendations of the General Committee on behalf of ten boys and girls for education and two for advancement. This admirable Institution is doing good work in West Lancashire, and we congratulate the brethren of that province on its prosperous condition.

Lord and Lady de Tabley have left town for Tabley House, Cheshire, for the autumn.

The Queen has sent to Madame Cavagnari an expression of deep sympathy with her on the death of her gallant son, Sir Louis Cavagnari.

Sadler's Wells Theatre will be opened under the management of Mrs. Bateman on Thursday, October 9th, when will be produced the successful Scotch drama, "Rob Roy."

The Queen has been pleased to confer on Bro. [the Earl of Donoughmore, P.G.W., the honour of Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George.

St. George's Chapel, Windsor, was re-opened on Sunday last for divine service, after being closed for two months for renovation and cleansing, under the supervision of Bro. Sir Albert Woods, Garter King of Arms.

The garden laid out by the Corporation of London in the churchyard of St. Paul's Cathedral, was formally opened on Monday by the Lord Mayor, the Dean and Chapter being represented by the Rev. Dr. Stubbs, canon in residence.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Lionel Lawson, one of the principal proprietors of the Daily Telegraph, which sad event occurred on Saturday morning last, at his residence in Brook-street, W. The deceased gentleman was 56 years of age.

DISCOVERY OF A NEW PLANET.—The Astronomer Royal announces the discovery by Professor Peters, of Clinton, New York, of a minor planet of the eleventh magnitude, in the R. A. 23 hours 44 minutes; dec. 10 degrees 5 minutes south, with a daily motion of seven minutes south.

The Sunday Times states that the tomb of his late Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, which was erected in Kensal Green Cemetery by the Masonic brotherhood, owing to the very wet weather, is now in a most dilapidated condition, and likely to fall in, the ornamental iron work having given way. Her Royal Highness Princess Sophia's tomb opposite is in the same condition.

Tewkesbury Abbey Church was opened on Tuesday last, after extensive alterations according to the plans of the late Sir Gilbert Scott. There was a procession, in which the Mayor and Corporation, the Bishops of Gloucester and Hereford, and the Archdeacons of Gloucester and Hereford took part. The sermon was preached by the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol. The festival of rededication will be continued for eight days.

On Sunday last Baron F. de Rothschild had a severe fall from his horse while riding with some friends in Cheddington fields. He was conveyed to Leyton Buzzard in the carriage of Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, suffering great pain, and placed under the care of Dr. Lawford. It was discovered that the Baron's left arm was dislocated, and that he was otherwise severely shaken. The dislocation was at once reduced, and the Baron, who passed a comfortable night, is going on well, and was sufficiently recovered to be able to remove to his London house yesterday.

At a meeting of the Court of Aldermen on Tuesday the following resolution was proposed by Mr. Alderman Finnis, seconded by Alderman Sir B. Phillip, and carried unanimously:—"That this Court desires to express its deep regret that their much esteemed and respected colleague, Sir Francis W. Truscott, should have been placed in the painful position of meeting an unfounded charge of libel at the Central Criminal Court, originally preferred against him in his absence, and without his knowledge, and congratulates him on the termination of the proceedings, and this Court further expresses its regret that the present state of the law permits any man to be placed in such peril."

CONCERT AT THE GIRL'S SCHOOL.

On Monday evening last a charming concert was given at the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, at the instance of Bro. Joshua Nunn, by his nephew, W. A. Rowland. The brethren who attended were Bros. W. Roebuck, Joshua Nunn, Col. Jas. E. Peters, H. A. Dubois, Thos. Kingston, R. B. Webster, F. R. W. Hedges, Dr. Hope, and H. Massey (Freemason), besides whom there were several ladies.

The following is the programme of music performed:—Piano Duett, "Symphony, No. 15," Miss Goodridge and Miss Barton; Song, "Sweethearts," Mr. A. Kenningham; Violin Solo, "Adagio from 9th Concerto," Mr. Ernest Crook; Song, "The Lady of the Lea," Miss Annie Butterworth; Piano Duett, "Dion Giovanni," Lilly Bellamy and Violet Lang; Piano Solo, "Rondo in E. Flat," Ethel Hinson; Song, "Come into the garden, Maud," Mr. Alfred

PILGRIM LODGE (No. 238).—A very interesting ceremony took place on Wednesday last at Freemasons' Hall, viz., the celebration of the centenary of the "Loge de Pilger, No. 238." This is the only lodge under the English Constitution working in the German language, and the members are deservedly proud of its having attained its 100th birthday under such circumstances. It was established in 1779 by German residents in London at the Old Mitre Tavern, in Fleet-street, its then number on the roll being 516. From there it migrated to the Old London Tavern, and remained there for many years. As the members increased this house was found too small, and it moved thence to the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street. It has now found a resting place at the head-quarters of Freemasonry in London—the Freemasons' Hall. It is very evident from the members assembled on Wednesday, and the long list of apologies for non-attendance and expressions of goodwill, that the "Pilger Loge" stands high in the estimation, not only of the German community in London, but of a very large number of English Freemasons. As a proof of this, we may mention that letters of congratulation were received from the M.W. the Grand Master, H.H.R. the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Leopold, Lord Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and a large number of distinguished brethren. There were present many deputations from Hanover, Hamburg, and other parts of Germany. The Grand Lodge of England was represented by Bros. Wendt, Sec. for German Correspondence; T. Fenn, Past Grand Deacon; H. G. Buss, A.G. Sec.; Dr. Martini, Grand Master of Frankfurt; C. Hoffmann, Past G. Steward; and Handewerk, Prov. G.W. of Gloucester and P.G.M. of the Royal Gloucestershire. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, the W.M., Bro. A. Beyrau, presiding, supported by Bro. A. Vogt, Deputy, or Past Master; Bro. Charles Sevin, for thirty years Treasurer of the lodge; and Bro. Karl Bergmann, P.M. and Sec. The Wardens were Bros. Furst, S.W., and Neuhaus, J.W.; Bro. Harrer, M.D., occupied the position of Orator, or speaker. The whole of the proceedings were conducted in the German language, and the W.M., in an eloquent and telling speech, warmly welcomed the visiting brethren, and expressed the pleasure he felt, which was fully shared in by the whole lodge, at receiving brothers from the beloved Fatherland. Bro. Wendt, on behalf of the Grand Lodge of England, congratulated the lodge on having preserved unbroken the records of proceedings, which had entitled them to the much-coveted distinction of a centenary jewel. He also congratulated the members on its past career and present position. Dr. Martini, Grand Master of Frankfurt, wished the greatest possible success to their brethren in England, for whom they all had the greatest respect, and took the opportunity of expressing the appreciation of the Craft in Germany for the way in which the ancient landmarks of the Order had been preserved. He remarked that the first lodge established in Frankfurt was the Union, under the charter of the English Grand Lodge, which was afterwards, by the courtesy of the English Grand Lodge, transferred to the German Grand Lodge, when it came into existence, yet the origin of the lodge would never be forgotten, and the sacred precepts handed down to them would always be preserved. Addresses were also delivered by the deputies of other German lodges, and the enjoyment of the brethren was much enhanced by the performance, by a select body of the brethren, of two original compositions, viz.: a poem, set to music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, in memory of the founders of the lodge, and a Fest-Cantate, composed by Bro. Martin Müller. During the singing of a hymn by members and visitors, fraternal greetings in unity took place according to the custom in German lodges. The ceremony lasted for more than two hours, and on the lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to a banquet. The toasts, "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. Grand Master the Prince of Wales," "The Dentcher Kaiser," "The Visitors," responded to by Bro. R. F. Gould on behalf of the English brethren present, and by Bro. Martini for the German visitors. The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. We may mention that the musical programme, as might have been expected from such a music-loving people, was of the highest character, the principal contributors being Bros. Wilhelm Ganz, M. Müller, Eugen Kapff, Josef Ludwig, Dr. Harrer, A. Siegle, Hugo Daubert, W. Lotz, and G. W. C. Starke.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—The September meeting of this, one of the few Banner Lodges, was held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Thursday week, the 25th ult. On this occasion an innovation was made, in the form of admitting ladies to the banquet table. This experiment, for which we are indebted to Bros. George Newman, P.M., and Wm. Worrell, P.M., proved a most decided success, and its occasional observance would no doubt tend to lessen the severity of the charge of selfishness which the ladies oft make against the brethren. The lodge was opened at 2.30 by the W.M., Bro. Dr. C. R. Cutmore, assisted by the following officers and brethren: Bros. E. Kidman, S.W.; W. Drake, J.W.; Capt. G. J. Kain, P.M., Treas.; Wm. Worrell, P.M., Sec.; W. J. Roberts, S.D.; E. B. Broomhall, D. of C.; George Newman, P.M., Steward; W. J. Collens, I.G.; John Pringle, P.M.; W. Manfield Newton (W.M. elect); H. E. Heath, J. W. Hutchison, Turle Lee, Wm. Johnston, L. S. Burt, J. G. Appell, A. G. Rees, F. G. Barnes, P. Steinmann, and the following visitors: Bros. H. Garrod, P.M. 749; L. Brck, W.M. 1559, P.G.O. Middx.; H. Harman, 1541; W. W. Morgan, 1385; S. Smith, 742; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). Bro. Worrell, P.M., Sec., read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Lawrence S. Burt was raised to the Degree of a Master Mason. The ballot was taken for Messrs. C. W. Lenox Hall, Geo. Hutchison, and Alfred Wortham. Proving unanimous in their favour, each gentleman was separately initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Cutmore. The election of W.M., Treas., and Tyler for the ensuing year was then proceeded with. On the motion of Bro. Captain Kain, P.M., seconded by Bro. John Pringle, P.M., Bro. Wm. M. Newton was elected to fill the chair of K.S. for the ensuing year, Bro. E. Kidman, S.W., having gracefully declined that honour in favour of Bro. Newton, who was eligible for the office in 1876, but had retired in favour of his father, the late Bro. W. E. Newton. Bro. Capt. Kain was re-elected Treasurer, an office which he has ably filled for several years. Bro. Grant was also re-elected Tyler. Bro. Kain then, in very feeling terms, referred to the loss the lodge had sustained in the death of Bro. Past Master W. E. Newton, and proposed that a letter of condolence should be sent to Mrs. Newton. The Worshipful Master seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously. After the appointment of the Audit Committee the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren forthwith joined the ladies and non-Masonic gentlemen in the drawing-room. The company shortly afterwards assembled in the banquetting-hall, which, by a very tasteful grouping of the banners of the various Worshipful Masters of this lodge, looked certainly very effective. Bro. Dr. C. R. Cutmore, Worshipful Master, presided, and among the company present, in addition to those already mentioned, were Dr. D. M. Forbes, Mr. Lockwood, Mr. F. Ullmer and Miss Ullmer, Mrs. Newman, Madame Worrell, Mrs. Manfield Newton, Mr. M. A. Trass and Mrs. Trass, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Rees, Miss Marian Burton, Mr. A. S. A. Dodson, Mr. Alfred Kenningham, and Mr. E. Powell (City Press). After the dinner, which was exceptionally good and ably served under the superintendence of Bro. E. H. Rand, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Capt. Kain, with great humour, proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Master," to which Bro. Cutmore replied. The W.M. then proposed "The Initiates," to which the newly-enlightened brethren responded. To the toast of "The Past Masters," Bros. Capt. Kain, Miller, Newman, Pringle, and Worrell replied in fitting terms. Bro. George Newman related some interesting facts concerning the lodge from the time when it consisted of but seven members to its present successful condition. The toast of "The Non-Masonic Visitors" was proposed in complimentary terms by the Worshipful Master, and was responded to by several gentlemen, including Messrs. Dodson, Lockwood, Dr. Forbes, and E. Powell. Bro. Williams ably responded on behalf of "The Ladies." In reply to the toast of "The W.M. elect," Bro. W. Manfield Newton sincerely thanked the brethren for electing him, also Bro. Kidman, S.W., for kindly waiving his claim to the chair. Several other toasts were given and responded to. During the evening an elegant musical entertainment was given under the direction of Bro. Seymour Smith, the artistes being Madame Worrell, Miss Marian Burton, and Mr. Alfred Kenningham, accompanied on the pianoforte by Bro. Turle Lee. Bro. Garrod gave a most laughable recitation entitled "The Quack Doctor," which was very warmly applauded. The infant Salvini also recited, with great power for so young an artist, "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

SIR HUGH MYDDELTON LODGE (No. 1602).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held in the Agricultural Hall, on Friday, the 26th ult. There were present Bros. A. F. Rowley, W.M.; Edward G. Sim, P.M.; E. Somers, P.M.; Thos. J. Coombs, P.M.; J. Weston, S.W.; J. Osborn, J.W.; J. Greenfield, Treas.; C. F. Parslow, Sec.; W. Norris, S.D.; W. F. Poulton, J.D.; G. Thomas, Org.; H. Field, I.G.; A. G. Rutchmell, Steward; T. B. Adison, A.S.; F. F. E. Heyse, Percy Taylor, G. W. Parker, S. Hollidge, E. Payne, John Gibbs, E. Abrams, C. Gwyn, G. W. Larter, and A. H. Chisholm (Freemason). Visitors: Bros. R. Pearcy, W.M. 228; Wm. Brown Kidder, P.M. 12; Wm. Weaver, P.M. 820; T. Tupward, S.D. 1662; Albert Yates, J.D. 948. The lodge having been opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. C. Gwyn, P. G. S. Taylor, and G. W. Larter were then formally raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons. Bro. F. F. E. Heyse was afterwards passed to the F.C. Degree. This concluding the business before the meeting, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren retired to the banquetting-room, where they were served with an excellent dinner, presided over by the W.M. A vellum testimonial, bearing a suitable inscription, was presented by the W.M. to Bro. R. Pearcy, the Preceptor of the lodge of instruction, by way of a mark of congratulation on his recovery from a late severe illness. Bro. Pearcy very appropriately acknowledged the presentation. The usual Masonic and patriotic toasts were duly honoured, interspersed with some capital songs by several members of the company.

HENRY MUGGERIDGE LODGE (No. 1679).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Saturday, the 27th ult., at the Prince George, Parkhulme-road, Dalston. There were present Bros. E. F. Storr, W.M.; J. Lorriu, S.W.; Henry John, J.W.; J. H. Wilkin, S.D.; Charles Arnold, J.D. (pro tem.); Alfred Sack, I.G.; E. Dyer, D.C.; Henry Muggeridge, P.M.; J. Bagot Scriven, Treas.; Henry Leah, Hon. Sec.; E. Hyde Hewett, and several other brethren. Bro. Sandland was raised to the Degree of Master Mason, and Bro. Street passed to the Degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren partook of a very nice plain supper, provided by the hostess in her usual admirable manner. Bro. Scriven, the generous Treasurer, told the brethren that he intended to have the pleasure of presenting the lodge with a new set of lodge boards and an emblem of mortality. Great anxiety was expressed for the success of the Widow Fellow's daughter, Charlotte Amelia, at the ensuing election of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, it being her last chance. The brethren separated at an early hour, much pleased with a very agreeable meeting.

ROTHERSAY LODGE (No. 1687).—The third installation meeting of this young but flourishing lodge was held on Wednesday last, the 1st inst., at the Inns of Court Hotel, Holborn. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Frank Kirk, and among the members and visitors present we noticed Bros. John Hancock, S.W. (W.M. elect); J. Docker, J.W.; Louis Beck, P.M., P.G. Org. Middlesex, Treas.; William C. Parsons, P.M., Secretary; Jas. Crossland, S.D.; Henry Outhwaite, J.D.; E. Duret, D. of C.; E. W. Levermore, A.D. of C.; J. Berron, Org.; B. H. Swallow, P.M., W.S.; H. E. Forscutt, I.G.; Preter, Tyler; F. Green, sen., John Butler, F. Farr, T. Wallace, A. H. Levy, Fred. V. Green, Thomas Lloyd, Warner Sleight, Wm. Mole, E. Blewitt, John Wake, E. Valeriani, E. C. Newell; and the following visitors: Bros. W. H. Dean, P.M. 417, P.P.G.S.S. Dorset; Joseph Wright, P.M. 1158, P.G.P.; E. W. Farwig, W.M. 180; S. Watkins, P.M. 212; E. T. Scott, P.M. 749; H. M. Levy, 188; W. H. Perryman, 3; G. Detraz, 145; E. P. Festa, 834; R. F. Giles, 1328; J. W. Lakin, 180; James Inge, 1563; H. Stewart, 780; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was also read, received, and adopted. Ballot was then taken for two candidates, Mr. Thomas Lloyd and Mr. Wm. Mole, which proved unanimous in their favour. The brethren below the chair of Installed Master having retired, Bro. John Hancock was installed into the Worshipful Master's chair in a most impressive manner, by Bro. Louis Beck, P.M., Provincial Grand Organist Middlesex, in the presence of a numerous Board of Installed Masters. Bro. Beck was heartily congratulated on the very efficient manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. Bro. John Hancock, W.M., then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year: Bros. Frank Kirk, I.P.M.; J. Docker, S.W.; James Crossland, J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chap.; Louis Beck, P.M., P.G. Org. Middx., Treas.; Wm. C. Parsons, Sec.; Henry Outhwaite, S.D.; H. E. Forscutt, J.D.; E. Duret, I.G.; E. W. Levermore, D. of C.; F. Green, sen., A.D. of C.; J. Berron, Org.; B. H. Swallow, P.M., P.P.G.D. Middx., W.S.; Macgillivray, A.W.S.; and Potter, Tyler. Lodge was then lowered to the First Degree, when Messrs. Mole and Lloyd, having been properly prepared, were introduced and duly initiated into the mystic order, the ceremony being most impressively given by the W.M., assisted by his newly-appointed officers. After a notice of motion for the next meeting by Bro. Green, sen., and "Hearty good wishes" had been expressed from the numerous visitors present, the lodge was closed, and the brethren shortly afterwards sat down to a choice and elegant banquet, provided by Bro. Gosden. Bro. John Hancock, W.M., in proposing "The Health of the I.P.M.," made some very complimentary remarks upon that brother's services, and concluded, amid the applause of the brethren, by placing upon Bro. Kirk's breast a handsome gold Past Master's jewel, with the following inscription at the back:—Presented by the brethren of the Rothersey Lodge, No. 1687, to Bro. Frank Kirk, I.P.M., as a slight acknowledgement of his services as Worshipful Master during his year of office ending September, 1879. Several other toasts followed, and were duly honoured. The pleasures of the evening were considerably enhanced by the vocal and other contributions of Bros. Warner Sleight, Louis Beck, Lloyd, and Levy.

DUKE OF CORNWALL LODGE (No. 1839).

—This lodge held its first regular meeting after the consecration on Thursday, the 25th ult., at their lodge-room, in Freemasons' Hall. There was a full attendance of officers, viz, Bros. J. W. Brooke, W.M.; J. C. Corpe, S.W.; W. G. Bott, J.W.; J. W. D. W. nap, Treas.; Henry Cruse, Sec.; G. F. Smith, jun., S.D.; Alfred Stokes, J.D.; J. C. Wilkins, I.G.; A. Bau mann, Steward; together with the following visiting brethren:—Bros. Pocklington, S.W. Camden Lodge, No. 704; Black, Temple Bar Lodge, No. 1728; and other brethren. After the lodge had been duly opened, the W.M. called upon the Secretary to read the minutes of the consecration meeting, which being done, were unanimously confirmed. The ballot was then taken for the admission of Bro. Baumann as joining member, which was carried unanimously. The brethren then balled for, and unanimously approved of, Capt. Wm. Furse and Mr. Alexander Williams, candidates for initiation, and they were accordingly introduced and regularly initiated. Bro. Baumann was then appointed Steward, and invested with the collar, and addressed by the W.M. on the nature and duties of his office. The W.M. then called on the Secretary to read the bye-laws, which had been prepared for the approval of the Grand Lodge, after which the Secretary read a letter received from Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, P.G.C., acknowledging the receipt of the resolution electing him an honorary member of the lodge, and expressing in suitable terms his grateful acceptance thereof; also a similar letter from Bro. W. M. Maloney, P.M. Robert Burns Lodge, No. 25, expressing regret that absence from London prevented him from attending the lodge, to which he had been invited by the W.M. All Masonic business being ended, the brethren adjourned to partake of a banquet, supplied in the usual excellent manner, and the evening was spent in love and harmony.

DUBLIN.—Nassau Lodge (No. 75).—The members of this lodge met for refreshment at the Exhibition Palace on Thursday, the 25th ult., to pay a substantial tribute of fraternal affection to a brother who had contributed for so many years to the well-being of their lodge, and we learn, with regret, the severance of so useful a member from the lodge. Bro. T. D. Lambert, W.M., in the chair; Bros. Peter Marshall, P.M., acting S.W.; Odbert, J.W.; William Spence, P.M., Treas.; W. D. Gordon, Sec. After the usual loyal toasts were received and duly honoured, the following address was read by the Secretary:—"To Bro. Spencer Hart, P.M. Dear Sir and Brother,—We, the members of Masonic Lodge No. 75, cannot allow you to resign your membership without taking occasion to express our deep regret on your retiring from amongst us. For a period of years, since the lodge was founded, you have occupied each of the different chairs; the manner in which you filled the various offices, including the Secretaryship of the lodge, is well known to many even outside our number. Firm, yet kind; giving, not grudgingly, but open and generous, with that which is good, courteous to all. Thoroughly understanding and appreciating the principles on which our Institution is founded, you, at all times, endeavoured, by precept and example, to fix them in the hearts of your brethren. To sum up, you have, by your uniform kindness, sound judgment, and knowledge of the rules of our Institution, left it a difficult, but noble task, for any brother to imitate so good an example. We beg your acceptance of this small token of respect with our earnest prayer that you may be long spared, and that the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe may dwell with you and your family.—Signed on behalf of the lodge, Bros. T. D. Lambert, W.M.; J. H. Morrison, S.W.; James Odbert, J.W.; W. Spence, Treas.; W. D. Gordon, Sec." The W.M. then presented Bro. S. Hart (P.M., Sec., and Prest. of B. of Genl. Purposes) with a silver salver, accompanied with the foregoing address, beautifully illuminated. Bro. Hart replied as follows: Brethren, your more than kind and fraternal address, accompanied as it is by such a substantial token of your extreme good-will and friendship, places me in a dilemma as how best to return you the thanks which really spring from my heart. When I laboured amongst you for so many years, and took such an interest in the advancement and welfare of our lodge, and may I be permitted to say in the advancement and welfare of each brother connected with it, I did so, brethren, from the most sincere and simple motives, and had not the remotest idea that my conduct would merit or receive such a reward as you, in your generous kindness, have thought fit to honour me with this evening. I can only say that you have always been courteous and indulgent to me. By your suzerainty and good-will I have passed through the several chairs of the lodge up to the W.M., and afterwards your Secretary, and finally your Representative at the Board of General Purposes, the highest honour in your power to give, and the legitimate aspiration of every Past Master. Brethren, I would for ever be unworthy of this flattering testimonial if I could forget such kindness and friendship I always received from each and every brother in the general working of the lodge, even though in my anxiety I was sometimes a little impetuous. For many years in it of us have worked shoulder to shoulder, hand in hand together for the good of the Masonic Order, but more especially for Lodge 75. And I think we can all say with truth that we have not laboured in vain, as the lodge from its very foundation has prospered, and has always been foremost in every good work, either in giving to the widow or orphan, or in the help cheerfully given to the poor and distressed brother, or the word of sympathy to the bereaved one, to the kindly help given to assist other brethren in raising a hall to work the Craft, or even to the relief given to the distressed brethren in Canada—works which every true and good Masonic lodge should cultivate, and which Lodge No. 75 can always look back on with pleasure and profit; and now, brethren, once again, you have shown your generosity by presenting me with this beautiful testimonial, which shall always bring happy thoughts to my mind when thinking of my connection with the lodge. Again, brethren, I thank you most heartily and earnestly, and I am sure, if the Great Architect of the Universe spares us to old age, we may all look back to the remembrance of this evening with pleasure and happiness. And now, in taking farewell of my brethren, I pray that the Most High shall always have you in His keeping, individually, each member, and collectively, as a lodge, and that you may always promote unity and charity as your watchword, and continue to be prosperous, as you have the elements of a good, sound working lodge amongst you, second to none, and holding up an example to others to go and do likewise. The following brethren were present: Bros. Spence, Girardin, Marshall, Odbert, Lambert, Gordon, Robertson, Raynor, Wentworth, Lovell, Longstaff, Young, Weatherup, Marchbank, Bolton, MacIvor, Crofton, Shaw, Bolster, Gater, Shea, Dagge, Milligan, Jarratt, and others. Bros. Wentworth and Odbert contributed towards the harmony of the evening, accompanied by Bro. Gater, Mus. Bac. Bro. Lovel supplied the refreshments, which gave universal satisfaction.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Integrity (No. 163).—The usual monthly meeting (after the adjournment) of this prosperous lodge took place at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Wednesday, the 24th inst. The brethren assembled at six o'clock, and partook of tea. At 6.45 they assembled in the lodge to the number of some forty-six, and presented a gratifying coup d'oeil to some of the visitors, who were in the habit of seeing, perhaps, only a third of this number at their own lodges on an ordinary night, and there is little doubt but that the sight of such an array of spectators gives additional energy to the worthy W.M. and his able officers to do their utmost to keep up the prestige this lodge has for its working. The following officers and members were present: Bros. Henry Walley, W.M.; W. Rome, I.P.M.; Williams, jun., S.W.; Alfred Heald, J.W.; J. M. Sinclair, S.D.; J. Senior, J.D.; Wm. Siddeley, Sec.; H. H. W. burton, P.M., Org.; J. Mackie, acting I.G.; B. Williams, Treas.; John Studl, W. D. Waddell, and William Livesey, Stewards; J. Kirk, Tyler; J. Wildgoose, P.M.; R. Neild, P.M.; Jno. W. P. Salmon, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. E.L.; George F. East, P.M.; John Taylor, Thos. Mather, W. Stott, Thos. Howell, Jas. Collins, J. A. Gee, J. Wolfensberger, Alfred Youle, G. Russell, Jas. Loundes, Thomas Sutcliffe, W. Colwell, Jno. Quance, Jno. B. Bennett, J. Clemmev, W. Hilton, Robert Cryer, and Matthew Owen. Visitors: H. Bratt, W.M. 428; Geo. W. Wilson, S.W. 1009; J. W. Johnstone; J. Bra'shaw, 1375; J. R. Edmondson, P.M. 1061; H. Lister, 1011; Wm. Dumville; C. E. Austin, P.M. 1009; W. H. Landless, 126; J. B. Seel, 1147, 1730; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The minutes of previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. R. L. McMillan, who was a candidate for raising, having been interrogated and answered the questions, withdrew for preparation. On his re-admission he was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. The W.M. performed the ceremony, and, being the first time he had done so, great praise is certainly due to him for the commendable manner in which it was done. The efficiency too of the officers was exemplified by the thorough business-like style in which they went through their work, and the most cynical observer could scarcely have found any fault. Bro. Geo. F. East, P.M., gave the traditional history, which was well rendered by that assiduous brother. At the conclusion of the ceremony of raising, the lodge was lowered to the First Degree, and "Heartly good wishes" were expressed by the visitors, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 8.30. The brethren afterwards assembled at the social board, and passed a most enjoyable evening, being well entertained with some excellent solos and glees, given in irreproachable style by Bros. Dumville, Lister, Turner, Senior, Heald, Salmon, and others, and separating before eleven o'clock.

MALTA.—Zetland Lodge (No. 515, E.C.)—An emergency meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, No. 27, Strada-stretta, Valetta, on Wednesday, the 17th ult. Present: V.W. Bro. A. M. Broadley, D.D.G.M.; W. Bros. G. Segond, W.M.; R. V. Westrup, P.M.; C. E. Coffey, W.M. 349, acting S.W.; Prof. Professor H. Stilon, J.W.; G. H. Westrup, S.D.; A. B. Tagliaferro, J.D.; Major A. Ewing, Organist; R. Page Miller, Secretary; W. Clare, Saville, I.G.; R. Beck, Tyler; Captain C. J. Blake, G. Williams Freeman, Rowley King, G. H. McLaughlin, A. T. Chapman, J. Walker, J. W. Starkey, C. Lippett, W. Pariente, O. E. Segond, J. Houghton, J. Davison, J. H. Hodgson, J. A. Mathews, R. Price, T. Jones, E. Barter, C. E. Mortimer, S. G. Yeoman, and W. Farquharson. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer in the ancient manner in the First Degree, and then passed to the Second Degree, when Bro. Pariente, a candidate for Master's Degree, was called to answer the necessary questions before being raised. The lodge was then raised, and the D.D.G.M. kindly consented to honour the lodge and candidate by assuming the gavel and conferring this sublime Degree. The ceremony was very impressive, rendered so by the exquisite manner in which the Degree was worked, also by the beautiful manner in which Bro. Ewing executed on the organ, at the special request of the W.M. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree, when the Secretary read a letter from the D.D.G.M., warning the brethren from countenancing certain persons styling themselves "The Grand Orient or Council of the Reformed Egyptian Rite," a lodge not recognised by the Grand Lodge of England, or of Rome and Palermo. The D.D.G.M. spoke at some length as to the evil consequences that would result if the brethren inadvertently countenanced these persons. The lodge was then closed in the usual manner, and the brethren adjourned to a substantial repast, where the usual loyal and other toasts were given. The D.D.G.M. on rising to respond to his toast, asked the brethren to toast "The W.M. of the Lodge, W. Bro. Segond," who was unable to attend the banquet on account of family bereavement, coupling with it W. Bro. Westrup, the P.M. The D.D.G.M. spoke at great length on the great merits of W. Bro. Segond, of his known great charity and zeal for Freemasonry; he also spoke in high terms of the energetic endeavours of W. Bro. Westrup, who when he joined the lodge found it in anything but a prosperous state, and gave it over to his successor in its present flourishing state. W. Bro. Westrup replied in a very appropriate speech, thanking the D.D.G.M. for the flattering terms in which he was pleased to speak of Bro. Segond and himself. The Tyler's toast then brought to a close one of the most pleasant and successful meetings held in the hall. A vote of thanks was unanimously carried to the visiting brethren, who kindly came forward to aid in making the meeting a success.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).

—The annual installation gathering of this celebrated lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Tuesday afternoon, the 23rd ult., when there were about 120 brethren present, including a very large representation of P.G. Lodge Officers. This lodge, though only three years old, has had a most prosperous career, and now embraces some 130 members, amongst whom may be found a large percentage of brethren connected with the dramatic, musical, literary, and medical professions, for whose convenience the lodge was first specially consecrated, its meetings being invariably held in the afternoon. The attendance on this occasion was exceptionally numerous and brilliant, and clearly demonstrated the popular position attained by the Dramatic under the fostering care of the three worthy Masters who have already "passed the chairs." About half-past 12 o'clock, the post of honour in the east was taken by Bro. Lindo Courtenay, the retiring W.M., who was supported by the following officers:—Bros. W. J. Chapman, P.M.; Joseph Bell, P.M., P.G. Sid. (P.G.J.D. designate); B. B. Marson, P.M. P.P.G. Sr. B.; J. B. MacKenzie, S.W.; W. Sandbrook, J.W.; Alfred Woolrich, Treas. (W.M. 1356); John Atkinson, Sec.; Fred. Wilkinson, S.D.; Frank Emery, J.D.; James Pyer, I.G.; W. Savage, S. Steward; H. P. Squire, J. Steward; R. Burgess, Org.; Joseph Skeaf, Prov. G. Org., Hon. Org.; and Wm. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; R. Wyllie, P.P.G.S.D.; J. E. Jackson, P.G. Superintendent of Works; Charles Courtenay, George (Jolly Little) Lewis, Dr. Henry Y. Pitts, Dr. A. W. Pierce, Robert Eyers, T. Walter, Dr. W. A. Whittle, Fredk. Duncanson, H. Holden, J. Keer, Peter Buck, W. Addis, J. F. Cowdell, John Wiat, P. W. Sanderson, W. Hildyard, J. A. Mercer, E. Ovenden, S. Mattison, P. Lowndes, E. H. Thomson, Wm. Heap, J. Penney, Jas. Shrapnell, J. Ballard, J. W. R. Brown, Robt. Williams, W. Williams, J. Ashley, T. Avann, J. Reay, C. Campion, R. Williams, J. H. Owen, Jno. B. Gough, M. P. Tieski, Thos. S. Bailey, John Hill, R. Brown, P.M. 241 (Hon. Sec. W.L.M.E.I.), H. Round, Sam Hague, Dr. Williams, and others. The long and brilliant list of visitors included Bros. J. F. Newell, P.M. 1035 (Mayor of Bootle); Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.P.G. Reg.; R. Robinson, P.G. Reg.; W. B. Ackerley, P.M. 680 and 1713 (P.G.J.W. designate); Major Turner, P.P.G. Treas.; T. Armstrong, P.P.G. Treas.; J. T. Callow, P.G. Treas.; R. C. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D. (Cheshire); J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; W. S. Vines, P.P.G.D.C.; John Wells, P.G.D.C.; Wm. Poghe, P.M. 1620; H. R. Eiston, 73; W. T. G. Harman, 70; Wm. Johnson, 241; Dr. F. J. Bailey, W.M. 786; Thos. Salter, W.M. 241; Dr. D. Dunlop Costine, J.W. 216; J. H. Greenwood, 163; Henry De Frece, 1502; R. E. Mitton, 1356; T. J. Hughes, 216; T. B. Brown, J.W. 786; Jno. Williams, P.M. 1182; Arthur H. Fry, 609; Wm. Coxon, Treas. 1675; Thos. Evans, Sec. 1675; T. Wright, 1182; R. Griffiths, 724; Captain Thos. Berry, P.M. 155; C. Du Val, 93; Thos. F. Hill, W.M. 220; Henry Hatch, S.W. 220; Charles Cogle, 594; H. C. Sidney, 95; Jno. Duncan, jun., P.M. 1473; R. Thompson, 249; Edwin Paul, Treas. 1356; R. Casson, W.M. 995; Saml. P. Gore, 1356; Henry Firth, W.M. 667; J. Busfield, 216; Jas. P. Bryan, 1035; A. Morrison, P.M. 1570; N. Green, 241; Joseph Wood, 249, Treas. 1094 (Freemason), and others. After the minutes had been confirmed and two candidates elected, the chair was taken by Bro. Joseph Bell, P.M. 1609, P.G.S. (the P.G.J.D. designate), who immediately proceeded with the installation of Bro. James B. MacKenzie, S.W., as the W.M. of the Dramatic Lodge for the ensuing year, the presentation being made by Bro. L. Courtenay, the retiring W.M., and Bro. W. J. Chapman, P.M. The ceremony of installation throughout was performed by Bro. Bell in an almost faultless and most impressive manner, eliciting general admiration and a cordial vote of thanks at the close, which was directed to be recorded on the minutes. The Board of Installed Masters was most numerous attended, there being no fewer than sixteen P.G. Lodge Officers and about twenty W.M.'s and P.M.'s present. Bro. MacKenzie having been duly placed in the chair, the brethren generally were re-admitted, and saluted him in the Three Degrees, appropriate music being sung during the time the honours were being paid to him. The newly-installed Master invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows: Bros. Lindo Courtenay, I.P.M.; M. J. Chapman, P.M., M.C.; W. Sandbrook, S.W.; J. Atkinson J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas. (re-elected for the fourth time); F. Wilkinson, Sec.; F. Emery, S.D.; J. Pyer, J.D.; W. Savage, I.G.; R. Burgess, Org. (re-appointed); J. W. P.G.O., Hon. Org. (re-appointed); H. P. Squire, S.S.; C. Courtenay, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler (re-elected). At the conclusion of the investiture of officers, Bro. Skeaf's splendid anthem, "Behold, how good," was sung with magnificent effect by Bros. Greenwood, Bryan, Busfield,

Armstrong, Hughes, Penney, and other selected "voices." The closing charges were given by Bro. Bell with remarkable effectiveness, and afterwards "Hearty good wishes" were given by about twenty visitors to the newly-chaired W.M. Telegrams and letters apologising for non-attendance were also received from Bros. E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Sec. Cheshire; Harry Jackson (who had gone to London); Dr. Sheldon, P.M. 1094; J. Levy, 1609, and others. At the conclusion of business the brethren were "called off" to banquet, which was supplied in first-class style by Bro. R. Russell, 813, whose catering fully sustained the reputation he has acquired in Liverpool and elsewhere. The comparatively unattractive nature of the room was greatly enlivened by festoons of flags and banners, which had been placed on the walls by Bro. J. Keet, J.W. 1356, a member of the Dramatic Lodge, and Bro. A. Woolrich, W.M. 1356, Treasurer 1609. There were upwards of 100 brethren present at the banquet (presided over by Bro. J. B. MacKenzie, W.M.), who was supported by almost all the P.G.L. Officers, and all his P.M.'s who had been present during the afternoon. After dinner the newly-installed W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In proposing "The Queen," he alluded to Her Majesty as the Patron of the Order, the mother of enthusiastic Freemasons, and a lady whose example might safely be followed by every lady in the land. The W.M. next proposed "The M.W.G.M., Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." The Prince of Wales, he remarked, had many duties, which he fulfilled faithfully, and none did he perform more pleasantly and faithfully than those which he fulfilled as chief of his noble Order. (Applause.) The W.M. also gave "The M.W. Pro G.M., Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Grand Officers; the R.W.D.G.M. and R.W. Prov. G.M., Bro. the Right Lord Skelmersdale; the R.W. Prov. G.M., the Right Hon. Col. Stanley, and the Officers of Prov. G.L., Present and Past." Referring to the names in the first part of the toast, the W.M. remarked that there was no doubt as to their earnestness in Masonry. (Hear, hear.) All who had come into contact with Bro. Lord Skelmersdale must have been struck with the earnestness and enthusiasm which at all times characterised his Masonic career. He was speaking the simple truth when he said that Masonry would not have occupied the prominent position which it did in West Lancashire had it not been for the undoubted influence and active zeal of the Prov. G.M. In him they possessed a true Mason and an honest man, one who was not above his business and never thought it too much trouble to fulfil the duties of his office to the satisfaction of every brother, however humble that brother might be. (Applause.) Lord Skelmersdale had an admirable second in the Deputy Grand Master (hear, hear), and the other officers were Masons whom they must all admire. Bro. H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec., whose name was coupled with the last, responded. He said he had had the pleasure of knowing the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge from its very foundation, and he knew well the originators and founders of the lodge. He had looked through their minute book that day, and was perfectly satisfied that it would be very difficult to any one not a practised orator to address a lodge of that kind. Like his friend Bro. Newell, the Mayor of Bootle, he had had the pleasure of addressing town councils, but on that occasion he had, he thought, a more critical audience to address even than the town council of Liverpool or of Bootle. (Laughter.) He had the pleasure of addressing that night many very excellent and honourable members of the dramatic profession, and he was quite aware that he must address them in a very different manner to that in which ordinary audiences ought to be addressed. It had given him great pleasure to witness the proceedings of that day. He had had the pleasure of the newly-installed Worshipful Master's Masonic acquaintance for many years, and the longer he had known Bro. MacKenzie the more he had learned to appreciate his many excellent qualities. (Hear, hear, and applause.) Perhaps no one had had a better opportunity of appreciating the W.M.'s Masonic qualities than he (Bro. Alpass). The W.M., he might say without praising him too much, was a distinguished member of the local press. It had been a difficulty on all occasions in reporting any of their Masonic gatherings as to how little should be published, and yet sufficient information be given for those who desired to know what had taken place; and it gave him great pleasure to bear his testimony to the very great and the very wise discretion which their Worshipful Master had exercised on all occasions in fulfilling his important duties. (Applause.) This subject was rather uppermost in his mind, and he was almost losing sight of the toast to which he had to respond. He might say that the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. Grand Master of England, had had the honour of holding many important positions in Masonry, and every one he had filled to the entire satisfaction of the Craft—(hear, hear)—and Lord Skelmersdale's devotion to, and appreciation of, Masonry could not be exceeded by any Mason in the whole world. (Applause.) There were one or two other subjects to which he (Bro. Alpass) would like to refer before he resumed his seat. To such a lodge as the Dramatic Lodge it was almost out of place for him, an unprofessional, to make any remarks as to the manner in which they gave the beautiful ritual of the Order. The Lodges of Liverpool, and, indeed, of this and other provinces, ought to attend the Dramatic Lodge to know how the ritual should be conducted. He had certainly heard the Degrees given in that lodge in a manner which he had never listened to elsewhere. (Applause.) But there were other and greater duties which devolved upon Masons, whether they belonged to the Dramatic or any other lodge, and he found it necessary to impress them upon the brethren upon all occasions—he alluded to the duties which they owed to the various Charities of the Order. He feared that brethren too often thought that when they had paid their lodge subscriptions they had performed all the duties which devolved upon them as Masons. Well, he maintained that in all cases—he would not except that lodge—they had done but a small part of their duty when they had paid their lodge subscriptions. The amount of their lodge subscriptions was calculated on the amount of refreshments which they proposed to take during the year, and whether they had a balance to be devoted to charity or not depended a great deal upon whether they had had a large number or a very small number of initiations in the year. Now, that ought not to be so. The sums that a lodge received for initiations were really sums received under the authority of the warrant for making Masons, and they were paid by those initiated for the privilege—and a very great, and honourable, and high privilege it was—of being admitted into that Order. Those amounts, he contended, should be entirely devoted to the charitable institutions of the Order. If, in addition to their subscriptions, lodges, unfortunately, spent the amount received for initiations, and when both these sums were added together they just balanced their expenditure, they could quite understand that there was nothing left for charity. When they were asked the question by persons outside the Craft, "What is the good of Masonry?" unless they could point to something tangible which they had done for the good of charity, what answer, he asked, could they make to the world as to the good Masonry did for society in general? Unfortunately, the number of children who had to be supported and educated by the Order appeared to increase year after year. What was thought to be a comfortable income twenty or thirty years ago had ceased to be so, hence it frequently happened that when a brother Mason died, a man who had occupied a good position in society, and paid his way as far as he had gone, yet when smitten down there was very little left for his wife and family. In a province like that, which contained so many subscribing members, they ought to be prepared, whenever a good and deserving case arose, to give the assistance which was required. (Hear, hear.) They had in their province an excellent institution, the West Lancashire Educational Masonic Institution, which was doing an exceedingly good work, the number of children it contained fast approaching 100. He observed from the minutes of the Dramatic Lodge that their W.M., S.W., and J.W. were Governors of the Institution. But every year there occurred in the province cases in which it was but a very small thing just to educate the children; when, perhaps, there might be five or six depending on the widow, more was required. One, if not two, of the children should be taken entirely off the hands of the mother and educated and clothed completely. That could only be done at present through the two Institutions in London—the Boys' and Girls' schools. In both excellent educations were given, as the prizes obtained at the Oxford and Cambridge Examinations testified. He could assure them from his own experience that it was absolutely needed that in that great province they should possess more votes than they did possess for those two Institutions. He would say to them "Support the West Lancashire Institution, but don't forget that you must be prepared every year to do more for one or two of the widows' children than to educate them—you must be prepared to clothe and keep them, and that can only be done by possessing more votes than we now possess in this province." He asked them to bear these observations in mind, and, as their funds permitted, to assist the province in obtaining votes first for one Institution and then for the other, so that when a case turned up where it was necessary that a boy or girl should be taken entirely from the hands of the widowed mother they should be able to ensure the election, and carry it with perfect certainty. (Applause.) He thanked the W.M. for coupling his name with the toast. It had given him very great pleasure and satisfaction to be present, and he was quite sure that every visitor in the hall would join with him in wishing the greatest prosperity to the Dramatic Lodge, and that it might exist for many years in that province a model of good work and good management. (Loud applause.) Bro. Lindo Courtenay, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Master." In accepting the office of W.M. Bro. MacKenzie had, he felt quite assured, taken the position with a full determination to do his duty in every sense of the word. (Hear, hear.) He had had the pleasure of the W.M.'s acquaintance for some years, Masonically for between three and four years, and he knew how greatly devoted the W.M. was to Masonic interests generally. He could assure them that the Dramatic Lodge had at its head a W.M. who would not only do his best to promote the interests of the lodge, but who, he felt convinced, would be the means of elevating it. (Hear, hear.) He asked them to drink most cordially and heartily health, wealth, long life, and prosperity to the Worshipful Master. (Applause.) The W.M., in responding, said he gave place to no one in his esteem for Masonry, because he knew that in their Order everything which was excellent and which was calculated to elevate humanity was to be found, if properly developed and applied. He felt it to be a high honour to occupy the Master's chair of a Masonic lodge, but when he found himself occupying the chair of a lodge which held a deservedly distinguished position in one of the most distinguished provinces in England, the honour was increased ten-fold. He could quite see the influence which such a lodge as the Dramatic should exercise, and he could assure them that if all the powers of his mind and all his physical strength were necessary and desirable in connection with a proper fulfilment of the duties of the chair, those physical energies, and that mental power, would be exercised to the fullest extent. (Hear, hear.) He had around him officers who would strive to do their duty, and he was sure he appealed to their Masonic enthusiasm when he said that no lodge could be properly worked unless the Master had the constant support of every officer of the lodge. (Hear, hear.) As their esteemed friend and neighbour, Lord Derby, said the other day at Southport, it was rather an unpleasant thing to talk of one's self, and, therefore, he (the W.M.) now turned to a more pleasant and palatable duty, and that was to in some measure recognise the talent and service of a brother who had just vacated the chair—he meant their Immediate Past Master, Bro. Courtenay, one who, by his amiable conduct, had won the heart of every brother in the Dramatic Lodge, one who had striven to do his duty, and had done it well, one who had never been sparing of himself in trying to follow what was good in Masonry and in connection with her Charities and schemes. Bro. Courtenay had given the Dramatic Lodge a munificent opportunity of contributing towards an object which he hoped would soon be carried into effect, namely, the general decoration of the hall in which they were assembled. Bros. Leslie and Courtenay, at that time joint lessees of the Royal Amphitheatre, gave the free use of that establishment for a benefit, and although the weather in some measure interfered with the success of the entertainment, the result was that £100 was secured towards the decoration of that hall. (Hear, hear.) This result was largely owing to the spontaneous offer of the free use of the Amphitheatre on the occasion. (Applause.) He had much pleasure in proposing "The Health of the I.P.M.," and in the name of the lodge he (the W.M.) had to present to Bro. Courtenay a Past Master's jewel. This was the first serious part of his work in the chair, and he could assure Bro. Courtenay that no other initial work could have given him greater pleasure than that of investing him with that jewel. He trusted that the I.P.M. would be long privileged to wear it, and that the Great Architect of the Universe would give him health and strength to perform his Masonic duties, in connection with which that jewel would be an ornament which could not be too highly prized. On behalf of the lodge he had further to express to Bro. Courtenay the hope that in his business arrangements prosperity might continue to attend all his efforts. Success seemed to lie at his door; whether it would be continued or not lay very much in Bro. Courtenay's own hands; but this he (the W.M.) could say, that every brother in the room wished him most heartily the very greatest success which could possibly attend him. (Hear, hear.) Several brethren of the lodge had further thought that a Past Master's jewel was not a sufficient recognition of Bro. Courtenay's merits and the ability with which he had performed his duties. On behalf of nearly all the officers and a good many private members of the lodge he (the W.M.) had the further privilege and great pleasure of presenting him with a diamond ring and a set of diamond studs. They were brilliant in themselves, and he hoped they would be but an evidence of the brilliancy attaching to Bro. Courtenay's professional and Masonic character. He trusted Bro. Courtenay would be enabled long to wear them, remembering that they came from the heart in recognition of the hearty work which he had done in connection with the Dramatic Lodge. (Applause.) Bro. Alpass, P.G. Sec., said that the observations of the W.M. had reminded him that he had omitted a very important point in his remarks. He had the honour to be the Chairman of the Decoration Committee, and he deeply regretted that in his anxiety to talk about the leading object of the Order—Charity—he omitted to recognise the very handsome sum which the Dramatic Lodge had given towards the decoration of that building. It was a very serious omission, and he must apologise for it. He could only say that if other lodges would follow the example which the Dramatic Lodge had set them, the decoration of the building would be a very easy matter indeed. He was sorry to say that in some lodges the appeal had been met with a great amount of lukewarmness, but, notwithstanding that a sufficient number of brethren were willing to assist in that good object, and he was quite certain that with a little pains they would be enabled to decorate the building in a way which would be agreeable to the brethren. Bros. Courtenay and Leslie did in the most handsome manner give the use of their theatre for the entertainment, which had been a great assistance to the Decoration Committee in carrying out the object which they had in view. Bro. Courtenay, I.P.M., thanked the brethren for the kindly spirit in which they had received the toast of his health. He had had a letter from his late partner, Bro. Leslie, on the previous day, stating that he would not be able to be present at the installation owing to business engagements, but assuring the brethren that he was with them in spirit. It had been their intention to set apart a night during next December for an entertainment on behalf of the Dramatic Lodge Fund of Benevolence and the Masonic Educational Charities, and if he (Bro. Courtenay) was spared he would endeavour to carry out the worthy object himself with the support and help of the brethren. (Applause.) He thanked the lodge with all his heart and soul for the great compliment which they had paid him in voting him a precious Past Master's jewel, which he would ever prize highly. Perhaps he was touched even more nearly by the further mark of their kindness and esteem in presenting him with an additional testimonial. (Applause.) The W.M. next proposed "The Installing Master, Bro. Bell, P.M., P.G.S." He remarked that Bro. Bell was the first W.M. of the Dramatic Lodge, and had done much to establish it on the broad basis on which it now stood. Bro. Bell had again given evidence of his Masonic zeal that day in performing an important and difficult duty in a manner which left even the most hypocritical very little to find fault with. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. added that Bro. Bell was about to be invested Prov. Grand Junior Deacon of West Lancashire—an honour which he well deserved. (Applause.) "The Past Masters" was the next toast, and was acknowledged by Bros. B. B. Marson, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., and W. J. Chapman, P.M., M.C. "Our Visiting Brethren," which was cordially proposed by the Chairman, was responded to by Bro. J. T. Newell, P.M.

10.35 (Mayor of Bootle). He observed that the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge was second to none in the estimation of the Province of West Lancashire. During the several years in which he (the Mayor) had been passing through the several offices of the Order he had been supported by their W.M., and Bro. MacKenzie had also been present on several occasions on which he had been placed in the Worshipful Master's chair. No other Mason in Liverpool would have induced him to have left home that evening. There was rarely an evening on which he was not occupied with duties arising from his official position, and, besides that, he had felt far from well that day. However, he had considered it as little as he could do to accept Bro. MacKenzie's kind invitation, and it had afforded him great pleasure to be present at the installation. He felt assured that there would be no fear as to the future of the Dramatic Lodge so long as it continued to possess such officers as at present conducted its work. (Hear, hear, and applause.) The W.M. next gave "The Officers of the Lodge," which was acknowledged by Bro. W. Sandbrook, S.W., and Bro. John Atkinson, J.W., both of whom promised the W.M. their hearty and constant assistance during the coming year. "The Masonic Charities" was proposed by Bro. B. B. Marson, in most suitable and eloquent terms. Bro. R. Brown, one of the Honorary Secretaries of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, replied. He said that their West Lancashire Charity was the glory and the beauty of the Province. One of its many glories and beauties was that it did its work so silently and so well. It was not like many charities. It did not pain its recipients with the feeling of charity, but left them with perfect freedom and without the knowledge that they had been the children of charity at all, and just as their own children might be if they were left to look after them. Another of its glories and beauties was that its work was done for love by every one connected with it. The money was not spent in salaries and commissions, but for the very object for which it was contributed, and every penny which was not so spent was well invested, and went to form another fund to help the exigencies of the Institution in years to come. Another of its glories was that it was exceedingly progressive. During the first fifteen years of its establishment it spent some £700 in educating the children under its charge, whilst during the last fifteen years it had spent about £6000, and last year nearly £600 in the educational advancement of their Masonic offspring. (Applause.) All this was to be attributed to the continued generosity of the brethren. Since its commencement the Dramatic Lodge had always borne this Institution in mind, and in years to come they would be exceedingly proud that they had not forgotten their duty in that respect. Brethren could not spend their money better than in promoting the interests of the charity. If they saw how thankful the widows and children were for the good which the brethren did with so little, but which to them was so much, they would not require any speech from him in recommendation of the Institution. (Hear, hear.) "The Health of the Musical Brethren" who had contributed to the enjoyment of the evening was given from the chair, Bro. Sidney responding, and the proceedings concluded with the toast "To all Poor and Distressed Masons," proposed by the Senior Warden. The brethren were again called to labour, when Bro. J. Atkinson, J.W., presented the lodge with a handsomely-carved collecting box, for the purposes of the Fund of Benevolence and the general Charities of the Order. During the evening an excellent musical programme was admirably rendered by Bros. Webster Williams, T. J. Hughes, C. H. Du Val, J. Hill, J. H. Greenwood, J. Busfield, T. Armstrong, D. Saunders, Captain Turvey, H. C. Sidney, Peany, Elstone, Harmon, Casson, and others. A prominent feature of the evening's selections was Bro. Hargreaves Gill's delightful performance on the fairy bells. The accompaniments were well played by Bros. R. Burgess and J. Skeaf.

LEWES.—South Saxon Chapter (No. 311).—The annual convocation of the above chapter was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, the 24th ult. The following companions were installed as officers for the ensuing year: Comps. R. H. Ellman, M.E.Z.; Jos. Farncombe, H.; S. Tanner, J.; R. Crosskey, Treasurer and I.P.Z.; G. Stone, S.E.; W. H. Hodgkin, S.N.; J. Stedman, P.S.; W. Kraeuter and F. H. Hauxwell, Assistant S. The installation ceremonies were efficiently performed by Comp. C. A. Woolley, P.Z. On behalf of the chapter the M.E.Z. presented to Bro. R. Crosskey a P.Z. jewel for his services as first Principal during the year just completed. The financial condition of the chapter was reported to be good, although the number of members was not large. The chapter being closed, a banquet was held at the Bear Hotel, Bro. Whitcomb providing a very excellent repast, on which he was deservedly complimented. Among those present were Comps. J. H. Scott (Deputy Prov. G. Master of Sussex); C. Sandeman, Royal Pavilion Chapter; Day, Royal Sussex Chapter; J. M. Kidd, Lennox Chapter; J. C. Lucas, P.Z.; C. Briscoe, A. Holman, and others. The proceedings were very enjoyable, and concluded early that several companions might reach home by train.

Mark Masonry

MALTA.—Broadley Lodge (No. 248. E.C.)—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Valletta, on the 13th ult., when the W.M.M., Bro. C. E. Coffey, also the P.G.M.M.M., Bro. A. M. Broadley, W.M.M., Bro. W. Read, and a large number of Mark Masters were present. The W.M.M., after opening his lodge, vacated his chair in favour of the W.P.G.M.M.M., Bro. Broadley, who advanced a brother to the Degree of a Mark Master in a most impressive manner, and to the admiration of all present. Bro. Coffey, W.M.M., having resumed the chair, tendered his warmest acknowledgments, coupled with those of the members of the Broadley Lodge, to the P.G.M.M.M., for acceding to their request that the lodge might bear his name, as well as for his kindness in working the Degree in the splendid manner he had done. The P.G.M.M.M. replying, said he deeply felt the honour the brethren had conferred on him in naming their lodge after him. He experienced great satisfaction in being with them on that occasion, and complimented the officers on the excellence of their working; after which Bro. Coffey, W.M.M., closed the lodge in due form.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—William de Irwin Rose Croix Chapter (No. 27).—An emergent meeting of this chapter was held on the 22nd ult., at their chapter-rooms, York Hotel, when the following illustrious members of the Supreme Council were present:—Bros. J. Montagu Pulteney Montagu, 33°, P.D.P.G.M., G. Supt., and Prov. Prior of the Temple of Dorset; Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Henry Clerke, 33°, Capt. of the Royal Body Guard, P. Prov. G.S.W. of Devon, D.P.G.M. R.O. of Scotland, Prov. Prior of the Temple for Sussex, and Great Sub-Prior of England and Wales; Hugh D. Sandeman, 33°, P. Dist. G.M., G. Supt., P. Prov. Prior of the Temple, and P.G.M.M. Mason for Bengal; R. Giddy, 33°, Inspector General of South Africa, and Prov. G.M., Prov. G. Mark Master and Prov. G. Sup. of South Africa; Genl. H. E. Doherty, C.B., 33°, Inspector Genl. of South Western District, and Prov. Grand Mark Master of Somerset; the Rev. C. R. Davey, 32°, Past Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of England; together with the following members of the chapter, viz.: Bros. Benjamin Cox, M.W.S.; the Rev. C. R. Davey, 32°, Acting High Prelate; Sidney Jones, First General, and Treasurer; Edward Gregory, Second General, pro tem.; Dr. Westcott, G. Marshal; W. Nott, Raphael; Edward Bath, Recorder, pro tem.; and other members. Bro. Ernest Edward Baker, of this town, was admitted a member of this high Order of Masonry, the ceremony of perfection being performed by the Grand Secretary General, Lieut.-Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke. The members of the Supreme Council expressed great satisfaction at the way in which they had been accommodated, the chapter having been fitted up so nicely. In addition to thirty-three lights on the altar, it was decorated with a hundred scarlet rose blooms. On the conclusion of the third point the members of the chapter, with the Supreme Council, sat down to an excellent banquet (which was à la Russe), under the presidency of Bro. B. Cox, M.W.S., supported on the right by Ill. Bros. J. M. P. Montagu, G. Chancellor; General Doherty, C.B., Inspector General of the South-Western District; R. Giddy, Inspector General of South Africa; and on the left by Ill. Bros. Lieut.-Col. S. H. Clerke, Captain of the Royal Body Guard, G. Secretary General; H. D. Sandeman, G. Sec. for Foreign Correspondence; and the Rev. C. R. Davey, Past G. Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of England. By permission of the Supreme Council, Royal Arch Masons were allowed to dine with them. Upon the removal of the cloth the Chairman submitted the following toasts:—"The Queen"; "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Head and Patron of all Freemasonry"; "The Supreme Council," associating with this toast the name of Bro. Gen. Doherty. The G. Chancellor proposed "The Health of the M.W.S. of the Chapter, Bro. Benj. Cox," which was duly acknowledged. Ill. Bro. R. Giddy, Inspector General of South Africa, very humorously invited all the members of the chapter to meet him in South Africa at an early date. The toast of "Royal Arch Masons" was very suitably responded to by Bro. Matthews and Bro. J. J. E. Willmott; the newly-admitted, Bro. E. E. Baker, very cordially acknowledged the honour done him; and the last toast, that of "The Visitors," was acknowledged by Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davey, Prov. G. Mark Master of Gloucestershire. We would state that, by the kind permission of Bro. B. Cox, Masons with their friends were allowed an inspection of the chapter-rooms, which were illuminated on the following evening for the purpose of showing to the Craft the handsome decorations of this high Degree in Freemasonry. The 6th Somerset Rifle Volunteer band played a selection of music during the evening, after which the men partook of the hospitality of the members of the Supreme Council and the members of the chapter.

Council of the 33°, now on a tour of inspection in the western counties, visited the above chapter at the Masonic Temple, Princess-place, on Monday last, Michaelmas Day. The deputation consisted of Ill. Bros. I. M. P. Montagu, 33°, Grand Chancellor; Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, 33°, Grand Secretary General; H. D. Sandeman, 33°, Grand Secretary for Foreign Correspondence. They were accompanied by Ill. Bros. General Doherty, C.B., K.C.T., 33°, Inspector General of the South Western District, and the Hon. R. W. H. Giddy (who is Colonial Treasurer of Griqualand, we believe) 33°, Inspector General for South Africa. A Sovereign Tribunal of the Thirty-First Degree was opened, at which were present the members of the Supreme Council and Ill. Bros. W. J. Hughan, 32°, and Emra Holmes, 31°, K.C.T., &c., when the Degree of Grand Inquisitor Commander, 31°, was conferred on Bros. J. E. Curteis, Arch Treasurer of the Order of the Temple, and Col. Peard, Provincial Prior of Cornwall. A Grand Chapter of Illustrious Knights K.H., 30°, was then opened, at which the above were present, together with Ill. Bros. the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., 30°, the Rev. W. H. Blossome, 30°; Vincent Bird, 30°; Dr. Paul, 31°; J. Chandler, 30°, &c. E.P. Bros. Major Desmond Adair, 18°; Dr. Mason, 18°; E. D. Anderton, 18°; J. S. Short, 18°; T. Hart, 18°; and S. R. T. Templer, were duly obligated, and having received the intermediate degrees at the hands of Col. Clerke were with the usual imposing ceremonies admitted to the Degree of Grand Elected Knight K.H., Ill. Bros. Sandeman and Montagu conferring the Degree with that dignity which could not fail to deeply impress the candidates. At the conclusion of the ceremony Ill. Bro. Hughan rose to express on behalf of the western brethren their thanks to the Supreme Council for visiting the district and holding such meetings as the present, when brethren who often found it difficult to attend in London had the opportunity afforded them of taking the Thirtieth Degree and other Degrees, which otherwise they might be precluded from advancing to. He dwelt on the unexampled progress of the Order within the last few years owing to the admirable way in which it was managed at headquarters, and to the visits of the Supreme Council to their various chapters throughout England. When he was made a Rose Croix, some years ago, there were but twenty chapters in England; there were now eighty-five. Bro. Anderton also desired to thank the Council for holding a meeting of the Thirtieth Degree, which enabled brethren in the west to take that Degree. The business being over, the Grand Chapter was then closed, and later in the day the Rose Croix chapter was held, at which Admiral Glasse, C.B., and Bro. Baker were installed as S.P.R.C. A large number of the members of the Ancient and Accepted Rite were present. A banquet followed at the Globe Hotel.

TRURO.—Cornwall Rose Croix Chapter (No. 61).—On Saturday afternoon last the members of this chapter assembled in considerable strength, nearly all the officers and resident brethren being present, and received a visit from several members of the Supreme Council of England, viz.: Bros. J. Montagu Pulteney Montagu, Grand Chancellor, 33°; Lieut.-Colonel Shadwell H. Clerke, Grand Sec. General, 33°; Hugh David Sandeman, Grand Sec. for Foreign Correspondence, 33°; R. W. H. Giddy, Inspector General, 33°, for South Africa; and Genl. H. E. Doherty, C.B., the Inspector General, 33°, for the Western District, as well as other distinguished visitors. The Supreme Council were pleased to find the chapter in such an efficient state, and appeared highly gratified at the cordiality and heartiness of their reception. One candidate was exalted by the M.W.S. in a pleasing manner, and a joining member was also unanimously elected. At this meeting a special consistory of the 32° was held for the purpose of raising Bro. W. J. Hughan to that Degree, and Colonel Clerke, announcing the fact, said that on account of his great Masonic erudition and services to the Order the Supreme Council with great pleasure conferred the Degree on Bro. Hughan. Bros. Anderton and Emra Holmes thanked the Council for this mark of their favour, and the latter said that Bro. Hughan was known and honoured in both hemispheres, and the Council in honouring him had done honour to the Ancient and Accepted Rite, which they represented. The appointment has given universal satisfaction. The Supreme Council, in the course of their western tour, have already visited the St. Peter and St. Paul Chapter, at Bath; and the Ivor Hael Chapter, at Newport (Wales); the Morganwg Chapter, at Swansea; the William de Irwin Chapter, at Weston-super-Mare; the Alfred Chapter, at Taunton; and the Coryton and Rougemont Chapter, at Exeter. On Saturday, the 27th ult., they attended the St. Aubyn Chapter, at Morice Town, and on Monday, the 29th ult., the Huyshs Chapter, at Plymouth, at which a chapter of the Thirtieth Degree was held—an occurrence so rare that many were present who have attained that distinction. These visits have given a great impetus to the Rose Croix chapters, as well as to the Precceptories of the Knights Templar, which have also been visited, and all concerned have every reason to be pleased with the success of the tour.

SWANSEA.—Morganwg Rose Croix Chapter (No. 70).—The Supreme Council having informed the M.V.S., Bro. J. L. C. Hunter Little, that they intended to pay an official visit to Swansea on the 20th ult., a chapter of emergency was held to receive them. The Supreme Council was represented by Ill. Bros. J. M. C. Montagu, 31°; S. H. Clerke, G.S.G., 33°; H. D. Sandeman, 33°; Genl. Doherty, D.G.I.G. for South Wales District, 33°; and R. W. H. Giddy, D.G.I.G. for South Africa, 33°. Notwithstanding that the day (Saturday) was very inconvenient to the members, some of whom reside in the neighbouring counties, there was a very fair attendance. By their own desire, the illustrious visitors entered the hall before the chapter was opened, and Ill. Bro. Montagu, having re-

THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND AND THE GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC.

We are not quite so sure as our good Bro. Ramsey, of Orilla, seems to be, of the "heinous crime" which the Grand Lodge of Scotland has committed in setting up a D.G. Lodge in Montreal. In a very animated appeal, which appears in our contemporary, the New York Dispatch, and which we publish elsewhere, Bro. Ramsey "heaps up the agony" considerably against the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and as he seems to rest upon the action of the American Grand Lodges, we think it well to say a few more words on a subject which we had hoped by this time might have been dismissed as a "res adjudicata." The Grand Lodge of Quebec, an offshoot from the Grand Lodge of Canada, claims to forbid all Scottish and English lodges to hold warrants from their mother Grand Lodges. But on what grounds? Independently of an understanding, or concordat, with the Grand Lodge of Canada, which is still binding, honourably and Masonically, both in the letter and spirit, we apprehend that the common law of Masonry fully warrants the claims and the course of the Grand Lodge of Scotland and of the Grand Lodge of England. If the position of the Grand Lodge of Quebec be analyzed, it amounts to this: "We claim by Masonic law to sever the connexion between every lodge and its mother Grand Lodge, because that lodge is in our jurisdiction, utterly irrespective of any previous honourable understanding or compact on the subject." This is a bold and a decisive claim, which has to be considered, and considered alone, in the light of Masonic law and Masonic precedent. Bro. Ramsey, like others who have written on this untoward discussion, uses hard words, and angry words, and loud words; but let us, like good Masons, go back in a peaceful spirit to what is, as far as we know or understand, Masonic law on the point. For a very momentous point is involved in this discussion—the very independence of all true lodge life. Now, we apprehend that this is undoubtedly the Masonic law on the subject: A lodge to be in life must have a warrant or charter, and that warrant or charter must emanate from a legal body. The legality of the Scottish lodges in Montreal is undoubted, they were properly warranted by the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The Grand Lodge of Quebec is set up, but certain Scottish and English lodges retaining their old connexion with the mother country, as they preferred to do at the time the Grand Lodge of Canada was formed, with the full consent and approval of that body—the Grand Lodge of Quebec claims for them, on alleged jurisdictional sovereignty, a transfer of their allegiance, and calls upon them to surrender their old charters and take out new charters from the Grand Lodge of Quebec. Can such a claim be upheld? Certainly not! Can such a pretension be supported? Again we say, certainly not! If there is one clear fact in Masonic law, local or general, it is this, the absolute right of the lodge to adhere to its warranting authority. The powers and practice of the Grand Lodges of America are appealed to in support of such novel and unheard-of assumptions, but we fancy that they will be appealed to, after all, in vain. In the first place, the Grand Lodge of Quebec is not exactly in the position of a State Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge of Quebec is, at the best, at the outside, a provincial body in a province which has no sovereign rights. It has more the "status" of a District Grand Lodge than that of a national Grand Lodge. Despite some recent speakers we believe we are correct in saying, that the American States are Sovereign States, all of equal power and status, and that their Grand Lodges are bonâ fide national Grand Lodges, in their own limits and territories. But is the precedent of Masonic proceedings in the United States favourable to our Canadian friends and Bro. Ramsey's contention on any ground? We think not. Is it not true, as a fact, that though when new Grand Lodges are formed in America, and though union and uniformity may suggest a general recognition of the lawful authority of a lawful Grand Lodge, countless cases may be adduced where other Grand Lodges, the warranting Grand Lodges of individual lodges in the new jurisdiction, have manfully upheld the right of the individual lodge, despite the formation of a new Grand Lodge, to adhere to its original constituting authority? It is one thing, as our readers will see at once, to advise in a friendly and fraternal spirit; all lodges in a new jurisdiction, for the sake of peace and uniformity, to join that new body, and quite another thing to claim it as a right, and to attempt by threats of Masonic excommunication and violent resolutions "in terrorem" to compel recalcitrant lodges to leave the old Grand Lodge and take up with the new. The position assumed by the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and the line of argument of Bro. Ramsey may be very politic and convenient for the interests of an united Freemasonry in that special district, but they are not warranted by any good Masonic precedent, nor are they supported by any known Masonic law. We rather doubt if our American brethren will be led astray by the specious but unsound views put forward on this important point. They, like ourselves, wish to adhere to precedent and to law, and above all they are anxious to discourage novelties in practice and legislation, which if carried to their logical and legitimate extent must "stamp out" the rights of private lodges, and ignore what until this recent discussion has never been questioned, as far as we are aware, as the local and universal Masonic law on the subject. We cannot, therefore, concur on any grounds in the censure passed by Bro. Ramsey on the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

MASONRY RETURNING HOMEWARDS.

Little by little our good brethren are wending their way homewards, and back to the "little village," and are finding themselves in the "bosom of their families" again, let us trust with a smiling wife and contented "olive branches." From all quarters of the world, their modest holiday over, Freemasons are "ingathering" slowly from their travels within the area of this great Metropolis, and we may note symptoms, slight indeed, at present, in the weekly announcements of the Freemason of the resumption of lodge life, lodge labour, and lodge sociality. But it is not so much, at present, to Masonic journeyings or the revival of Masonic work, to both of which we shall allude later, that we wish to call attention to-day by the "little text" on which we have pinned our "lesser sermon," as it is that we feel bound to sympathize with many worthy married brethren of ours, who, the victims of circumstances, or "connubiality," teste Mr. Samuel Weller, have been compelled to vegetate in some out of the way bathing place, because Jemima Matilda was recovering from the "chicken pox," or Thomas Anthony had been half starved at school. And so Bro. Meriman is taken away from his customary life and his creature comforts, to walk up and down disconsolately on the beach, watch the one donkey carriage and smoke his cigar, while listening to the "yarns" of the coastguardsman. Unfortunate "Freemason," he whose jokes set a whole sympathetic audience in a roar; he who is the life and soul of that famous "musical union;" he who was never known to miss the gathering of the "Agreeable Goslings" any more than the assembly of his own good lodge, "Conviviality, 2591." Surely, kind readers, he is an object of pity under such melancholy circumstances, and in such a lonely condition, such isolated walks, and such limited society. In vain does our old friend Sister Mullberry tell us, with a shake of her good old decided head, that a "married man's first duty is to be with his wife," and that a "father's chief concern ought to be the care and control of his children." We admit all this at once. These are old world saws we have heard over and over again, whose venerable warning we have often admired, whose sublime duty we have often appreciated. But in this go-ahead day, when we have given up so many of the ways and manners, nay morals, of the past, it does seem very hard on a married man, with cheap trains and excursion tickets, that he can't go where he likes, and we know as a fact that our good Bro. Panther declares, in which statement he is eagerly joined by Bros. Pope, Trippet, Carver, and Crome, that he "don't like the sea side," at all, and that it will be "some time before 'chicken pox,' or 'school starvation,' or any other marital or matrimonial mystery will take him to that most dreadful of all spots on earth, 'Sliddle-on-the-Sea.'" If he must go any where, he declares loudly, he will go to Harrogate, Scarborough, or Brighton, where there is something to do and something to look at, and where life is agreeable, and one can find a "little society."

BOYS' AND GIRLS' SCHOOLS ELECTION.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—
You were good enough to allow me to make an appeal last year, and I venture to trespass on your space to-day to ask all my worthy brethren who have votes to spare, and no case to support, to let me have their proxies for several very deserving London cases.

I am, yours fraternally,

LAUGHTON CHURCH TOWER RESTORATION FUND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."
Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to draw the attention of your readers to an effort that is being made to liquidate a debt which has suddenly fallen on our much esteemed brother (the Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D., Past Grand Chaplain Prov. Lincolnshire), owing to the failure of the contractor.

Dr. Ace's income from his living is very small, and the village is but a poor one. The repairs which have been effected were such as were absolutely necessary for the preservation of the structure, and as there are no church rates, the sum cannot be paid by that means.

The following sums have already been received or promised, viz:—

THE NEW FOREST HOTEL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."
Dear Sir and Brother,—

When it has been my lot to come across something particularly good I like that my brethren, my friends, and my neighbours should be equally able to enjoy the like pleasure.

On Saturday last I availed myself of an invitation to attend the installation meeting of Lodge 453, or Highwell Lodge, at the New Forest Hotel (in conjunction, or rather in close proximity to, the old Hunting Lodge of Queen Elizabeth), in Epping Forest, in the parish of Chingford. The hotel is owned and has been built by the world-renowned Mr. Gordon, of Crossie Hall, Holborn Restaurant, &c. The hotel has been designed by Bro. Ebenezer Saunders, and the work carried out by Bro. John Egan, of Backhurst Hill. To each one great praise is due for their several parts in the undertaking.

The position cannot be surpassed for loveliness of aspect, or for interest in the days of yore. I feel quite sure that it must necessarily be a great success, not only from the beautiful scenery surrounding it, or for the elegance of the structure, but also from the easy access to the metropolis, and the known good qualities of Mr. Gordon as caterer for the public.

I shall content myself with describing the banqueting hall. The floor is of oak and American walnut in parqueterie; the walls are lined with French cretonne, 42s. per yard, representing various kinds of Sylvan spots; the roof is of pitch pine, panelled; windows commanding lovely views of the forest are placed in the N.E. and South. The table was regally furnished with massive gold and silver and silver-gilt ornaments, many of them having historic and regal memories attached. Some of the private sitting-rooms are furnished in the elaborate and costly styles of various foreign courts.

Now if I have not said enough to whet your appetites, and to cause you to go and prove in propria persona the truth of my words, then indeed I have written in vain.

Yours fraternally,
CHARLES JOHN PERCEVAL,
W.M. 1607.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

The Committee of the London Masonic Charity Association wishes once more to call the attention of the voters for the Boys' and Girls' Schools to the cases which it has selected with great care.

As some brethren seem to think that because the London Masonic Charity Association has taken up a case, therefore all individual exertion becomes superfluous, the Committee think it right to disabuse the minds of their London brethren of so great an error.

All exertions are needed to secure the election of the candidates, and all proxies should be sent at once to Bro. A. Tisley, 1, Clifford's Inn, Fleet-street, E.C.

PROVINCIAL GRAND PRECEPTORY OF CORNWALL.

The Province of Cornwall in Knights Templary has been dormant for some years, the last appointed officers dating from 24th October, 1871, when the Earl of St. Germans (then Lord Eliot) was the Provincial Grand Commander. On his lordship resigning the post the late Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., was appointed to the Provincial Grand Commandership, but died before he could be installed, and after his lamented death it was generally felt that the choice should fall upon Colonel John Whitehead Peard, J.P., of Trenynton, Par, who is the Provincial Grand Master for the Mark Provincial Grand Lodge. This well-known brother, happily for the Degree, has been appointed by patent in the office in question, and Friday, 26th ult., was selected for his installation. Since 1871 a variety of alterations have been made in the statutes of the Order, and many of the titles have been changed, the head of the province now being styled the Provincial Pri, and the various provinces being united in this country under Lord Skelmersdale as Great Prior of England. England, Ireland, and Canada have united to form the "Convent General," over which presides the Grand Master, the Prince of Wales, and Her Majesty is the patroness. It is hoped ere long that Scotland will join in this organisation—being now independent of all others—and ultimately it is hoped that all the English-speaking languages throughout the world will accept the Prince of Wales as sole Grand Master, leaving each Great Priory for the various countries or States to make their own separate statutes. When this occurs there will be upwards of 100,000 members, many of whom are of the first rank in society, and enthusiastic and zealous Craft Masons.

Lieut.-Colonel Shadwell Clarke, Prov. Prior of Sussex, and Great Sub-Prior of England and Wales, had been deputed by Lord Skelmersdale as "acting Great Prior," and effectually fulfilled his high and responsible position on Friday at the Masonic Hall, Public Rooms, Truro, in the presence of the most distinguished body of Knights Templar that has ever assembled in the province. Among the numerous Sir Knights who attended in honour of the occasion were R. W. Hoskins Giddy, Prov. Prior of South Africa; J. M. P. Montagu, Prov. Prior of Dorset; Hugh David Sandeman, Past Prov. Prior of Bengal; General H. E. Doherty, C.B., Past first Grand Captain of England; Emra Holmes, Hon. Prov. Prior of Canada and Representative, &c.; William Tweedy, Past Preceptor of the Cornubian; S. G. Bake, Preceptor of the Restormal; Richard John, Preceptor of the Cornubian; Edward Dixon Anderton, Past Preceptor (C); T. C. Stephens, Past Preceptor (R); Charles Truscott, jun., (R), Past Preceptor, M.A.; W. Polkinghorne, Past Preceptor (R); John Stephens, Past Preceptor (R); Dr. Mason, Past Preceptor (R); A. Luke, Past Preceptor (R); Richard Carter, the Rev. W. H. Bloxome, Dr. Hugh de Legh, the Rev. F. B. Paul, George Brown, Samuel Harvey, W. D. Rogers, William Rooks, and H. Elliott.

The various banners of the Great Officers and of the Prov. Priors, &c., added much to the effect of the scene, which was very imposing, on the reception of Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clarke as acting Great Prior, and of Lieut.-Col.

J. W. Peard, the Prov. Prior nominate. The minutes of the last Prov. Priory having been read, the patent of Colonel Peard was announced, and he was then in a very efficient manner obligated, invested, and proclaimed as the Prov. Prior for Cornwall. He afterwards appointed the following as his officers for the ensuing term: Wm. Tweedy (C), Prov. Sub-Prior; Rev. W. H. Bloxome, M.A. (C), Prelate; Edward Dixon Anderton (C), Chancellor; Charles Truscott, jun. (R), Constable; Dr. Wm. Mason (R), Marshal; Thomas Couch Stephens (R), Registrar (reappointed); William Polkinghorne (R), Treasurer (re-elected); Rev. F. B. Paul (R), Almoner; Richard Carter (C), Organist; Col. S. G. Bake (R), Captain of Guard; R. John, Sub-Marshal; John Stevens, Aide-de-Camp; Alfred Luke, First Herald; Dr. Hugh de Legh, Sword Bearer; Samuel Harvey, Standard Bearer; H. Elliott, Equerry.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the members of the Great Priory for their kindness in attending, and particularly to the acting Great Prior.

Sir Knight Emra Holmes proposed a grant of five guineas to the "Cathedral Fund," but was ruled out of order as no notice had been given; but he gave due notice to that effect for the next Prov. Priory.

The banquet at the Red Lion Hotel, presided over by Colonel Peard, was a brilliant one, and gave satisfaction to the members who participated, the brethren of the Rose Croix Chapter, of which the Prov. Prior is a member, having joined the Sir Knights at the festive board. A very hearty reception was given to Lieut.-Colonel S. H. Clarke, especially for his valued and able services as the Installing Great Prior; and the other members of his distinguished staff were most warmly greeted and entertained by the Cornish fraters.—Western Morning News.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF TUNIS AND MALTA.

The first and inaugural meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge took place on the 11th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Valetta, Malta, in the midst of a very large gathering of Mark Masters belonging to the three English lodges forming the province, numerous members of the Leicester Mark Lodge, and a Mark Master belonging to the Scottish Constitution.

The Keystone Lodge having been opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. W. Read, the P.G. Secretary, Bro. Lieut. C. E. Coffey, R.A., W.M. Broadley Lodge, No. 248, was called upon to read the patent from the Grand Mark Lodge of England appointing W. Bro. Alexander Meyrick Broadley, W.M. Ancient Carthage Lodge, No. 1717, and P.M. Kingston Mark Lodge, No. 222, barrister-at-law and advocate of the Consular Courts at Tunis, the first P.G. M.M.M. of this province. The letter of authority for W. Bro. Read to instal W. Bro. Broadley was also read.

An alarm having been given, W. Bro. Broadley was announced, and the first P.G.M.M.M. of this province entered the lodge in procession, preceded by Bro. R. F. King, P.G.D. of C.; Miller, Sec. Keystone Lodge, 107, Sword Bearer; and followed by Bro. Starkey, Sec. Broadley Lodge, No. 248, and two P.G. Stewards. The P.G.M.M.M. was escorted by Bros. Westrup, P.M., and Rotherham, P.M.

Having advanced to the pedestal, Bro. Broadley was obligated by W. Bro. Read, placed in the chair, duly proclaimed to the brethren by the D. of C., and saluted with grand honours by all present.

Addressing Bro. R. V. Westrup, P.M., the P.G.M.M.M. expressed his satisfaction in nominating him his Deputy for the coming year, and invested him accordingly. The Grand Wardens and other officers having been appointed, to each of whom the P.G.M.M. made suitable addresses, P.G. Lodge was opened.

Bro. G. Segond was elected P.G. Treasurer, and Bro. Beck P.G. Tyler.

The P.G.M.M.M. then addressed the founders of the Broadley Lodge, announced his intention of consecrating it, and called upon the Secretary, Bro. Starkey, to state the proceedings which had been taken up to the day of meeting.

The petition and warrant of the Broadley Lodge having been read by the P.G. Secretary, the P.G.M.M.M., as Consecrating Officer, delivered the following eloquent oration, which was received with the most marked signs of approval:—

Mark Master Masons of the Province of Tunis and Malta: We are assembled here this evening for the purpose of inaugurating the Grand Mark Lodge of this Province, and at the same time consecrating, as an addition to its muster-roll, Lodge No. 248, upon which the kindly feelings of its founders have bestowed my name. The formation of this Provincial Mark Lodge on the classic soil of ancient Carthage on the one hand, and the last residence of the Knights of St. John on the other, may, perhaps, have an interest for Mark Master Masons beyond the boundaries of the district itself; indeed it is difficult to imagine any given combination of localities which could afford more food for the study and contemplation of the thoughtful brother than the two countries comprised in this united province. Our imagination may well carry us back through the vista of centuries to the distant epoch when the immediate descendants of the Operative Masons of Tyre, "going westwards" reared on the shores of North Africa that magnificent metropolis which for a time ruled the ancient world, and then pass from the consideration of their labours to the more recent period, when under Roman rulers, Masons of the Roman College of Artificers raised on the same site a second city which vied in architectural splendour with the Phoenician capital, upon the ruins of which it was erected. Turning to the part of the province in which we now stand, the eye rests on the varied proofs of the cunning and skill of that great military Order, the customs of which (to say the least) have afforded a model for the ceremonies, and laid the foundation of one of the most interesting Degrees of Christian Masonry. It will be impossible for me on this occasion to trace in detail the history of the Mark Degree; still more to show its historical connection with this province, to which I firmly believe it has of late years been merely restored. The practice of the Mark begins doubtless in the earliest days of Operative Masonry, when guilds of Tyrian workmen under Tyrian overseers built the Temple of King Solomon, and when their descendants constructed the walls and citidels and harbours of Carthage. The "marks" of these early Masons abound in the deep buried remains of the Phœnician city, which now lie under the accumulated rubbish of more than two thousand years; they were perpetuated by the Roman occupants of the ancient site, and have descended to the operatives of the Moslem conquerors, whose victorious flag has waved for ten centuries over all that remains of the cities of Hannibal and Hamilcar, of Cato and Scipio. The city gates of Tunis still bear distinctive marks, familiar to every one present. The history of Masonry in its most general sense may, I think, be truly described as operative in its birth, partly operative and partly speculative in its growth, and purely speculative in its maturity. The Degree of the Mark was from the first an essential constituent of Operative Masonry. It was doubtless worked from time immemorial in the operative lodges of Scotland, as well as in the old semi-operative lodges of England and other countries deriving from us the origin of their Masonic systems. The Mark Degree forms an integral part of the pure and recognised Masonry of Ireland, Scotland, and the United States. In Scotland, even as early as 1598, the annals of Masonry abound in allusions to the Mark Degree, and in England it was worked in many lodges under one or other of the two Constitutions, as well as in others acknowledging the supremacy of the Grand Lodge at York. By the articles of union between the rival Grand Lodges in 1813, the Mark Degree was excluded from, or perhaps more correctly, not included in, the symbolical teaching of the Craft. In spite, however, of the new regulations the Mark was still extensively worked in many lodges, and flourished more especially in the north and midland districts of England. About a quarter of a century ago the attention of the Masonic world in general was drawn to this anomalous state of things, and more particularly to some lodges having obtained charters from the Supreme Chapter of Scotland. A rigorous attempt was made to obtain the recognition of the Degree by the Grand Lodge of England, and on this effort failing the Grand Mark Lodge was established, having, according to the precedent afforded by the history of the Royal Arch, exclusive jurisdiction over the Degree of the Mark. To discuss to-day any longer the origin of this Grand Lodge is, entirely useless. A Grand Lodge is nothing more nor less than a union of several lodges which vest in one the power which each formerly had separately, and any possible flaw in its original constitution is condoned by the adhesion of the lawful lodges it has received. The "time immemorial" lodges throughout the country, as well as those originally holding warrants from Scotland, have almost unanimously acknowledged its supremacy, and it now numbers 250 lodges on its muster-roll, which is, as a matter of fact, numerically stronger than that of the Craft Grand Orient of France and Italy, and many other Grand Lodges on the Continent. We find our Mark Grand Lodge to-day recognised as a legitimate governing body of the Degree of the Supreme Royal Arch Chapters of Ireland, Canada, Quebec, and many of the American States, and it is my agreeable task to inform you that on the 18th June last the Grand Chapter of Scotland resolved unanimously to acknowledge the Grand Mark Lodge of England and Wales as lawful and supreme throughout those countries and to refrain from henceforth granting any charters for Mark lodges within its home jurisdiction. Thus, my brethren, we have the satisfaction of knowing that our Mark Masters will be recognised and our certificates respected wherever the Mark Degree exists. I would fain say something of the illustrious rulers of the Grand Mark Lodge (one of whom, Lord Carnarvon, became a K.T. in this very hall), of the admirable working of its various departments; of its fast increasing Benevolent Fund, and its excellent scheme for assisting to educate the children of Mark Masters, but time will not permit me. As to the intrinsic worth of the Degree itself, suffice it to say that its rapid progress is the best proof of its merits. Not only do we find in it practical illustrations of the truths taught in other Degrees, but it abounds in appropriate lessons for our rule in daily life. This province has had the pleasure of introducing the Speculative Mark Degree and the rule of the Grand Mark Lodge of England amongst foreign brethren, of many nationalities and many languages, in the Regency of Tunis, and I see in their keen appreciation of its eloquent teachings, homely illustrations, and striking lessons, yet another attestation to its value; and though necessity has sometimes compelled me to employ the medium of four languages in a single evening, I have never heard any candidate do otherwise than express himself gratified with the ceremony of his advancement. Your recommendation, and the approval of the M.W.G.M.M., has called me to the rule of this honourable Degree in this province, and I can only trust the progress it is destined to make in our midst will be commensurate with its rapidly increasing appreciation at the hands of the Craft at large. The inauguration of this Provincial Grand Lodge has brought with it the consecration of our third subordinate Mark lodge. I feel sure both the one and the other has the best wishes of every Mark Master present. I trust my assiduity for the best interests of the Degree in this province will justify the recommendation you made in my favour. The time seems to be approaching when each Craft lodge will have a Mark lodge attached to it, and we venture to hope that the United Grand Lodge of England will feel justified in extending its recognition to the Mark Degree, under its own particular government, as a portion of "pure and ancient Masonry." May the activity of the Mark Masters of Tunis and Malta contribute to the general spread of Mark Masonry throughout the world. We cannot assist this end better than by carrying out in practice as well as in theory the principles of humility, uprightness, self-control, and universal benevolence, inculcated in the Mark Degree.

"The well-known sign we mark, and fly,
The wound to heal, to still the sigh,
And wipe the tear from sorrow's eye.
For ours the aim is, ours the art,
To meliorate the human heart
Of wild desires—to stem the flood,
And act as if of kindred blood."

The ceremony of consecration of the Broadley Lodge was then performed, the musical parts of which, under the able direction of Bro. Major A. Ewing, P.G. Organist, were very effectively rendered.

The P.G.M.M.M., dedicated and constituted the new lodge, congratulating the W.M., Bro. Coffey, on its formation, and delivering to him and his officers their respective collars.

W.M. Bro. Coffey returned thanks in suitable terms.

A collection, to form the nucleus of a charitable fund, was then made, and the P.G.M.M.M. having closed P.G.L., retired in procession as on entering.

W. Bro. Read having closed the Keystone Lodge, the P.G.M.M.M. and all the brethren present adjourned to the refreshment-room, where a magnificent banquet awaited them.

The ceremonies, both of installation and consecration, were a great success in every respect; they will long be remembered by all present as forming one of the greatest Masonic events ever witnessed in this island.

CONSECRATION OF THE BRIXTON ROYAL ARK MARINERS' LODGE.

The consecration of this lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, to be worked in connection with the Brixton Mark Lodge, took place on Saturday last at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. The Mark lodge was opened by Bro. T. Poore, P.G.I.G., W.M., supported by Bros. C. P. McKay, S.W.; H. Lovegrove, Prov. G.S. of Wks., J.W.; G. Clark, M.O.; Pitt, acting S.O.; H. Baldwin, Sec.; Dr. Pearce, S.D.; Moss, J.D.; G. S. Graham, Org.; Axford, and Potter (Tyler).

After the transaction of some routine business the lodge was closed, and a lodge of Royal Ark Mariners opened, with Bros. Poore, as N.; H. Lovegrove, as J.; G. Clark, as S., and others, when Bros. McKay, Graham, Moss, Pearce, Baldwin, Axford, Anderson, and Potter were duly elevated, the ritual being most impressively delivered.

The chair was then taken by Bro. Donald M. Dewar, the Consecrating Officer, who called upon the acting Scribe to read the warrant, after which he delivered an oration on the ancient Degree of Royal Ark Mariners.

The usual ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, and in due course the W.C.N. designate, Bro. H. Lovegrove, was presented by Bro. Poore, and the brethren below the rank of N. having retired, he was duly enthroned. The brethren on their return saluted in due form, and the officers were invested as follows: Bros. G. Clark, J.; Poore, S.; Pearce, S.D.; McKay, J.D.; Baldwin, Scribe; Moss, I.G.; G. S. Graham, Org.; and Potter, Tyler.

The brethren unanimously approved of the vote of thanks to Bro. Dewar for his able rendering of the ceremonies.

The W.C.N. then closed the lodge in ancient form.

The next meeting of the Brixton Mark Lodge will be held on the 8th November, when Bro. C. P. McKay will be installed as W.M.

FREEMASONRY IN NORFOLK.

Of the next lodge in the order of time, though it enjoyed only a brief existence, we have some particulars, extracted from the "Memoirs of the Life and Writings of Richard Gardiner, Esq.," who was its first W.M., and published in "Freemasons' Magazine," vol. iv., pp. 304-6 (1795). The account begins by stating that "in the year 1764, Freemasonry was revived at Swaffham," though the word "revived" seems out of place, as we have had no mention, thus far, of a Swaffham Lodge. Be this as it may, "the Great Lodge at the Crown Inn," as it is described, was warranted by Lord Blancy, Grand Master, on the 17th December, 1764, "being the 329th Lodge in Great Britain" (? England). Benjamin Nuthall, Alderman of King's Lynn, was appointed to install the new Master, Bro. Richard Gardiner. "The Duke's Head" (No. 283) "and White Lion Lodges" (No. 31), at Lynn, were present, as well as "many members of the lodges at Norwich." After Divine service the installation ceremony was performed, and then "an elegant intertainment was prepared at the Crown. In the evening there was a brilliant assembly of ladies to celebrate the constitution of the new lodge." This "Great Lodge" soon increased in numbers, and "many of the first gentlemen were admitted into the fraternity," yet it had disappeared from the roll when the numbers were closed up in 1792. At least it became No. 267 in 1770, and No. 213 in 1781; after which it passes away, and all we have to remind us of its existence is this brief account in a defunct "Freemasons' Magazine." However, it seems to have played its part at the outset well. In 1765, "the Lynn Company of Comedians coming to Swaffham, the members of the Great Lodge were requested to bespeak a play." They bespoke the comedy of "Love for Love," and on the 6th of

May it was performed before a crowded audience "the members walking in procession, properly clothed (sic) to the temporary playhouse (a barn), where a building on the stage was erected for their reception." The officers of the lodge are given as follows: "Richard Gardiner, Esq., Master; William Pawlett, Esq., Deputy Master; William Mann, Esq., and Sir Henry Peyton, Bart., Wardens; Sir Clement Trafford, Bart., Treasurer. The following occasional epilogue was written by W. Master Gardiner, and spoken by Mrs. Dyer, and it has struck us as being sufficiently interesting to justify its reproduction in the columns of the Freemason :—

While royal splendor and theatric state
On princely Barry and king Garrick wait,
How little can we hope an humble stage,
Void of all pomp, can your applause engage:
For which among you ladies can discern
A Covent Garden in a Swaffham barn.

Yes, 'tis a barn—yet fair ones, take me right,
Ours is no play—we hold a Lodge to night!
And should our building want a slight repair,
You see we've friends among the Brethren there.

[Pointing to the Masons on the stage.]

Reply the Scalds* with miserable frown,
'Masons repair—they'd sooner pull it down.
A set of ranting, roaring, rumbling fellows,
Who meet to sing "Old Rose and burn the Bellows," Champaign and Claret, dozens in a jerk,
And then, O Lord, how hard they've been at work!

Next for the secret of their own wise making,
Hiram and Boaz, and Grand Master Jachin;
Poker and tongs! the sign! the word! the stroke!
'Tis all a nothing, and 'tis all a joke.
Nonsense on nonsense! let them storm and rail,
Here's the whole hist'ry of their mop and pail,
For 'tis the sense of more than half the town,
Their secret is—a bottle at the Crown."

But not so fast, ye enemies to light,
I, tho' no Mason, am their friend to-night;
And by your leaves 'tis something strange I trow,
To slander that which none of you can know.
We women, tho' we like good Masons well,
Sometimes are angry that they will not tell:
And then we flout away from rout to rout,
And swear like you, we've found the secret out.
But O! vain boast! to all enquiring eyes,
Too deep the mine where that bright jewel lies.

That Masons have a secret is most true;
And you, ye beauties, have a secret too.
Now if the Masons are so rigid gown,
To keep their secret to themselves alone;
Be silent in your turns, 'tis that allures:
Silence! and bid the Masons find out yours.

Thus far conjecture in the comic way,
But let not fancy lead your thoughts astray.
The ties of honour only Masons bind;
Friends to each other and to all mankind:
True to their king, and for their country bold,
They flew to battle like their sires of old:
Banish'd the trowel for the barbed spear,
And where loud cannons thunder'd, form'd the square.
Gallant and gay, at Minden's glorious plain,
And the proud Moro storm'd, alas! in vain!
In peace with honest hearts they court the fair,
And most they triumph when they triumph there.
Their actions known, their bitt' rest foes approve,
For all that Masons ask is—Love for Love.

The year 1765 saw the constitution of two lodges, one of them being No. 357, held at the Blue Boar, Norwich, and the other, No. 358, at the Red Lion, Fakenham. The former became No. 281 in 1770; No. 225 in 1781, by which year it had migrated to the Three Tuns; and No. 192 in 1792, when it was held at the Black Horse. It was re-numbered after the Union as No. 236, when it was known as the Union. It died before 1832. The Fakenham Lodge became No. 283 in 1770; No. 226 in 1781, when its quarters were at the White Hart, Thetford; No. 193 in 1792, when it was known as the Royal Edwin Lodge, and was held at Bury St. Edmund's, in Suffolk; and No. 238 after the Union. It has since passed out of existence.

The Royal Alfred Lodge, of Diss, No. 404, was founded on the 26th July, 1770, and became No. 313 in 1781. It had ceased to be when the lodges were re-numbered in 1792, so that its existence was not a prolonged one. However, the next that was established was more fortunate. Though no longer an East Anglian—having migrated between the year of its foundation and the Union into Warwickshire—it still flourishes. When constituted in 1792, it was distinguished as Lodge No. 501, and was held at the Little White Swan, in the parish of St. Peter-Mancroft, Norwich. In 1813 it was known as the Shakespear Lodge, No. 501, of Warwick, and was re-numbered No. 536 in 1814; No. 356 in 1832; and No. 284 in 1863. It is still on the roll of Grand Lodge.

The next two lodges ceased working between 1814 and 1832. They were the Lodge of Unity, No. 531, of Great Yarmouth, founded in 1793, and re-numbered in 1814 as No. 558, and the Norwich Theatrical Lodge, No. 563, of Norwich, which became No. 584 after the Union. Another 1797 lodge, to wit, the Lodge of United Friends, No. 564, of Great Yarmouth, became No. 585 in 1814; No. 392 in 1832; and No. 313 in 1863. It is still on the roll. Two other lodges, namely, No. 572, Lodge of Attention, held at the Green Dragon at its foundation in 1798, and No. 636, Lodge of Perseverance, Great Yarmouth, founded in 1812, became in 1814 Nos. 591 and 643 respectively, but were defunct at the re-numbering in 1832. These complete the tale of lodges holding under the Grand Lodge of the Moderns, or, to sum up the list, between the establishment of our Grand Lodge, in 1717, and the union of the "Ancients" and "Moderns," in 1813, no less than twenty-six lodges under the latter were constituted, and of these six are still on the roll in Norfolk itself, namely, No. 52, the Union, of Norwich; No. 85, the Faithful, of Harleston; No. 93, the Social, of Norwich; No. 100, Friendship, of Great Yarmouth; No. 102, Unanimity, of North Walsham; and No. 313, United Friends, of Great Yarmouth. One other, now No. 71, Unity, of Lowestoft, is on the roll of Suffolk, and yet another, Shakespeare, No. 284, of Warwick, is on that of Warwickshire.

* The Scalds Miserable Society.

The "Ancients" do not seem to have been so successful in establishing themselves in this county. We have traced no more than three under their Grand Lodge, two of which are still flourishing. The Philanthropic Lodge, of King's Lynn, founded in 1774, was No. 142 in 1813, and met at the Maid's Head Inn. It became No. 172 in 1814; No. 124 in 1832; and in 1863, as it still is, No. 107. Lodge of Perseverance, of Norwich, founded in 1795, was No. 294 in 1813, when it met at the Angel Inn, and became No. 374 in 1814; No. 258 in 1832; and No. 213 in 1863. A lodge No. 166, King's Head, Norwich, became No. 203 in 1814, and No. 145 in 1832. It no longer exists. Thus no less than eight lodges founded before the Union are still in existence, and of them all but two can boast of an existence of more than 100 years.

It remains for us to enumerate the lodges which have been constituted since the year 1813 and are still working. These are as follow: the Cabell Lodge, No. 807, of Norwich, founded in 1860; the Sincerity, No. 943, of the same city, founded in 1863; the Joppa, No. 1114, of Fakenham, founded in 1866; and the Doric, No. 1103, Wymondham, founded in 1867. These were added to the roll during the Prov. G. Mastership of the late Bro. B. Bond Cabell, who presided over the fortunes of the county from 1854 to 1874. Lodge Walpole, No. 1500, founded in 1874, records the Grand Mastership of the late Hon. F. Walpole, whose rule over the province was of the briefest; while the Montgomerie Lodge, No. 1741, of Diss, and the Suffield Lodge, No. 1808, of North Walsham, bear testimony to the energy and active interest in Freemasonry of the present Grand Master of the province, namely, Lord Suffield, at whose installation His Royal Highness the Grand Master himself presided. We do not doubt that, under his lordship's auspices, every thing will be done to strengthen and confirm the position of Freemasonry in this favoured county, and we know that even in the short time he has held his high office the greatest activity has prevailed in what is essentially Masonic in its character—that is, in the support of our great central Charitable Institutions.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

The allusion to the "Holy Martyrs Four," will be found in Giles' "Patres Ecclesie Anglicane" (Latin and English), Book II., c. vii., p. 196-197, as follows:—Erat autem eo loci, ubi flammam impetus maxime incumbebat, myrtyrium beatorum quatuor Coronatorum. (English) "The church of the four crowned martyrs was in the place where the fire raged most." The heading of the chapter is: "Bishop Mellitus by prayer quenches a fire in his city. A.D. 619." The circumstance is similarly recorded in Ven Bede, Opera Historica (Stevenson, 1841), Book II., c. vii., p. 115 (Latin), and in Bede's Eccles. Hist., Bohn's Antiquarian Library (1847), p. 80 (English). Mr. H. C. Coote in his "Romans in Britain" has some interesting remarks on this subject, and cites a good many authorities, which Bros. Haghan and Woodford may find of value in tracing the prevalence and antiquity of this tradition. In a letter written by Mr. Godwin to Sir H. Ellis, published in the Archaeologia for 1843 (vol. xxx.), reference is made to one of the Arundel MSS. in the British Museum, described as Sanctiorum Fidei, Miracula, et Myrtyria. At folio 218 is a narrative of four men wonderful in the art of Masonry, "who always worked in the name of the Lord," after prayer and signaling with the cross; and whose skill when employed by the Emperor Diocletian (it will be recollected that the martyrdom of the "Four Coronati" is said to have occurred in his reign) excited both the envy and the astonishment of the "Philosophers," who attributed their skill to the "mysterious words" of "art magical."

R. F. GOULD.

P.S.—Bro. Fort's positive statement that Charles Martel is mentioned in the Hallwell MS. is calculated to seriously mislead the numerous readers of his work. The appearance or non-appearance of this Sovereign's name in our oldest Masonic charge being a point, as it seems to me, of no little importance, having regard to the contents of all the other MS. Constitutions.

MELROSE LODGE.

In the Freemason of 27th September, 1879, Bro. Vernon states that this lodge claims a history as old as either Kilwinning or Mary's Chapel, and that he thinks the claim may be fairly established. I would be glad to know the grounds on which he thinks so. Inquiry was made, about eleven years ago, into this matter by Bro. W. P. Buchan, of Glasgow, a well-known and well-qualified Masonic archaeological inquirer. He visited Melrose, and examined the whole records and documents of the lodge, but found nothing instructing its existence beyond the earliest date in its minutes, 1678. Bro. Buchan was satisfied that it had no other evidence to produce. None has since been discovered, either in the lodge's own possession or elsewhere. Unless it can instruct its existence by reasonable evidence at a date earlier than that of many other lodges on the Grand Roll, it need not expect that these lodges will stand tamely by, and for the mere sake of securing the accession of the Melrose Lodge to Grand Lodge, permit it to obtain a precedence over them. Bro. Vernon is somewhat mistaken as to the Kilwinning case. The Lodge Kilwinning did join the Grand Lodge at its institution in 1736, but seceded from it some years afterwards, because it claimed a greater antiquity than Mary's Chapel. It had never been able to instruct that claim by many years; but it succeeded, in 1807, in getting itself placed on the roll before Mary's Chapel, for reasons of expediency. This gave rise to a secession in Grand Lodge, which took years to heal. It is most unlikely that, with such an example before it, Grand Lodge will again follow such a course, particularly with a lodge so weak as that of Melrose. The Kilwinning Lodge, in 1804, claimed and exercised the position of an independent Grand Lodge, with many lodges hailing under her banner; and it was to secure the accession of it, and its daughter lodges, that the precedence given to it was conceded. When Bro. Vernon has the old MS. of Melrose in his possession, I would suggest that he should obtain a photograph of one or two of its pages, to enable those qualified to test its antiquity by the formation of the writing.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire (Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., R.W.P.G.M.) was held on Wednesday last, the 1st inst., at the Winter Gardens, Morecambe. A report of the proceedings will appear next week.

We are informed that Bro. Sir Michael R. Shaw-Stewart, of Ardgowan, has again consented to allow himself to be nominated for the office of Most Worshipful Grand Master Mason of Scotland.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham will be held in the Town Hall, Gateshead-on-Tyne, on Tuesday, the 21st inst., at 2.30 p.m., by order of the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. John Fawcett.

The consecration of the Tudor Lodge, No. 1838, will take place on Tuesday next, the 7th inst., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Wolverhampton. The ceremonies will be performed by R.W. Bro. Aeneas John McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar of England, acting Prov. Grand Master. Bro. G. S. Tudor, D.P.G.M., P.M. 526, is the W.M. designate.

The Earl of Carnarvon will lay the foundation stone of the new Town Hall, Free Library, and Museum at Reading on the 14th inst.

In a letter received by Mr. Mark Firth recently Prince Leopold definitely fixes the date of his visit to Sheffield. He will arrive from Balmoral on Saturday, the 18th inst., and remain till Wednesday, the 22nd. He expresses a wish to visit the museum established by Mr. Ruskin at Walkley, a suburb of Sheffield, for the purpose of art education. Firth College will be opened on the 20th inst.

The Prince of Wales will visit Sir R. Wallace, M.P., at Sudbourne Hall, Suffolk, in the third week in November. There is a good quantity of game on the estate, and some first-rate sporting is anticipated. The Prince was to have visited Sudbourne early last winter, but the death of Princess Alice prevented his doing so.

New Sadler's Wells Theatre, under the management of Mrs Bateman, will open on Thursday next. The theatre is estimated to hold 2500 persons. Over 300 supers are engaged for the opening piece, "Rob Roy."

The Folly Theatre will be opened in November under the leaseholdship of Bro. J. L. Toole.

The proprietor of the Freemason would be glad to learn the present place of meeting of the Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the members of the Whittington Lodge of Instruction, No. 862, at the Red Lion Hotel, Poppin's-court, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 29th inst., commencing at 5:30 o'clock. Bros. Brown, 862, W.M.; Gush, I.G. 1541, S.W.; Tate, J.D. 862, J.W.

Table with columns for section number, name, and amount (£ s. d.). Includes entries like '1st Section... Bro. Hyde', '2nd... Gates, Treas. 1599', etc.

Celebrities in every walk of life seem to have given Bro. W. Shury Marshall sittings for their portraits. On view at his Gallery, 34, Parliament-street, may be seen likenesses, spirited, truthful, and characteristic, of numerous Englishmen who have acquired distinction in art, science, literature, sporting, and Masonry—in the latter the life-like portraits of Bros. the Rev. P. M. Holden, Helston, Swallow, Percival, Osman Vincent, Veal, and Tidcombe call for especial mention; while in the section devoted to the athletic John Higgins, of sculling celebrity; John Keen, the bicyclist; and John Gale, the pedestrian. In art H. Larpent Roberts and Frank Holl, A.R.A., are amongst the foremost of those most easily recognisable, in fact to single out for special commendation any individual portrait is needless, since in almost every instance where acquaintance with the original made it possible, we found the representation true to life as well as artistic in treatment. Bro. W. Shury Marshall standing as he does at the very summit of photographic art, his invariable success entitles him to the very highest patronage that can be conferred.

Bro. Dr. Wm. Sparks, P.M. 289, P.F.G. Org. West Yorkshire, and Organist of the Leeds Town Hall, will play this (Saturday) evening at the popular organ recitals at the Bow and Bromley Institute, Bow. The vocalist will be Miss B. Grosvenor. These recitals are intended to cultivate a love of good music amongst all classes, and to offer the working classes an educational amusement at a cheap rate.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Staffordshire will be held at the Star and Garter Hotel, Wolverhampton, on Tuesday next, the 7th inst. Lodge will be opened punctually at half-past 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

The Quarterly Convocation of the Metropolitan College of the Rosicrucian Society will be held on Thursday next, the 9th inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, at 5.30 p.m. precisely.

A Reuter's telegram dated Ottawa, September 30th, states that the steamer Sarmatian, by which the Princess Louise has taken passage for England, sails on the 18th inst. It is said that the physicians of the Princess have urged a change of air for the benefit of her health, which has not been so good lately. Her Royal Highness, it is understood, will return to Canada for the opening of the Dominion Parliament.

ROYAL GENERAL DISPENSARY. — The memorial stone of the new Dispensary House, Bartholomew Close, will be laid on Thursday next, the 9th inst., at 2 o'clock, by the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Dartmouth, President of the Institution. The ceremony will be followed by a dejeuner at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, at 3 o'clock.

"Dogberry" of the City Press, writes: "Attention has again been called to the fact that any one asking for a parliamentary, or, as the abbreviation in vogue has it, "parley," ticket may travel on the Metropolitan Railway from Aldersgate-street to King's-cross for one penny, whereas the ordinary third-class fare is threepence. Each of these tickets admits the passenger to all the trains. It is a fact of which I have long been aware, but which I am unable to explain."

M. Riviere announces that he commences a series of promenade concerts (for five weeks) at Covent Garden on Monday, the 6th inst. There will be an orchestra of 100 performers.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire was held on Wednesday, the 1st inst., at the Winter Gardens, Morecambe. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Prov. Grand Master West Lancashire, presided, and was supported by the Right Hon. Colonel Stanley, M.P., and an influential gathering of Grand Officers. A full report will appear in our next.

The present series of Promenade Concerts at Covent Garden will be brought to a close this (Saturday) evening, when Messrs. Gatti take their benefit. A capital programme is announced.

Bro. Wm. Ramsey, P.M. 1539, has been elected Master of the Glass-sellers' Company for the ensuing year.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Mind and body are so closely intertwined that for the former to be vigorous the latter must be healthy. The first step towards the maintenance of health is to secure perfect digestion, which is readily obtained by this adjuvant medicine, the most competent effectual way to retain every adverse influence which can mar impair, or venally modify this all-important process. The student, merchant, man of pleasure, and humblest labourer may each in turn derive vigour, ease, and strength from occasional doses, or a longer course of Holloway's purifying Pills. However wavering the mind, or unstrung the nerves, this fine medicine will track the derangement to its source, where it will overthrow it and establish order and purity in its place.—[Adv't.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

TEMPLE LODGE (No. 101).—This lodge met on Tuesday evening the 7th inst., at the Ship and Turtle Hotel, Leadenhall-street, after an interval of five months, and there was a good muster of brethren. Among those present were Bros. Thomas Cox, W.M.; J. H. Thomas, I.P.M.; W. George, S.W.; W. Beard, J.W.; Pettifer, S.D.; White, J.D.; Powell, I.G.; Reynolds, Sec.; Bond, Treas.; and Past Master's Wynne, Hastelow, Scott, Grimby, and Taylor. Mr. Adolphus Bullock, F.S.A., was initiated by the W.M., and Bro. McNeill was raised to the Third Degree. After the business had been concluded, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to one of Bro. Painter's sumptuous banquets. Among the toasts was that of "The Initiative," which was received with great cordiality, and responded to by Bro. Bullock in very felicitous terms. Several visitors enjoyed the hospitality of the lodge, and gave expressions to the pleasure which they had experienced on the occasion.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The October meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, October 2, at the Cannon-street Hotel, when the following brethren were present: Bros. Charles Arkell, W.M.; Henry Legge, I.P.M.; W. T. Rickwood, S.W.; S. T. Lucas, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M. Treas.; George Abbott, P.M., Hon. Sec.; Chillingworth, jun., S.D.; James Lorkin, J.D.; H. A. Pratt, I.G.; H. A. Carter, Steward; Henry Muggerridge, P.M.; John George Marsh, P.M.; Ebenezer Roberts, P.M.; George Newman, P.M.; Thomas Cohe, P.M.; Edward Jones, P.M.; Thomas Fisher, R. J. Dart, R. E. Bright, Charles Cann, John Kent, James Groves, W. Waring, Barclay Perkins, E. Hunter, R. H. Goddard, Cook, W. Darnell, John Guy, and other members. The visitors were Bros. J. Brooks, 51; C. M. Mathew, 263; Thomas Williams, British Oak; Henry Stubbings, 186; Anderson, 1320; C. F. Hogard, 205, P.G.S.W. Essex; W. White, 1693; G. T. Pummell, 1693; W. Simmons, 1871; W. C. Holladay, 1321; Walter Downing, 20; T. Bradley, 517; G. Clarke, 177; H. Youldon, 548; and G. Morrison, 548. The minutes of the last lodge having been read and confirmed, an adjourned motion of Bro. Edward Jones, P.M., respecting a Charity Fund, was discussed, which resulted in its withdrawal, after which a notice of motion was given by Bro. George Kenning, P.M., Treasurer, "That the subscription to the lodge be altered from three to three-and-a-half guineas." Another notice of motion was then made by Bro. H. A. Carter, Steward, to the effect "That, in the event of the Treasurer's motion being carried, an amount of ten per cent. of the subscription be applied to the Charity Fund." Two pounds were given to the widow of a deceased brother. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren, to the number of fifty, then dined, the usual toasts being most ably given by the W.M. Bro. Henry Muggerridge, in replying to that of "The Past Masters," said that he was the father of the lodge, it being forty years since he was initiated in the Lion and Lamb lodge. Bros. Marsh, Bright, Cann, and others contributed to the pleasures of the evening by a selection of good songs. The menu, under the excellent supervision of Bro. Rand, gave universal satisfaction. The charity box having been passed round, a collection of £1 12s. was made.

WEST KENT LODGE (No. 1297).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 27th ult., at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham. There were present Bros. R. H. Crowden, W.M.; J. C. Woodrow, S.W.; Kent, J.W.; J. C. Woodrow, Sec.; W. F. Gardner, S.D.; Thos. Perrin, J.D.; M. Vizetelly, I.G.; Crump, Steward; J. Beckett, Tyler; H. D. Stead, P.M.; J. K. Stead, P.M.; Crouch, P.M.; John Crowden, and James Crowden. Visitors: Bros. Webb, P.M. Loyalty Lodge; and Fullwood, P.M. St. John's Lodge, 328. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Messrs. Druce and Orange, and declared unanimous. The W.M. initiated Messrs. Druce and Orange in a most praiseworthy manner. The brethren then adjourned to banquet, which was served in the usual elegant manner by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, and afforded the brethren very great satisfaction, this being the first meeting at the Crystal Palace.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—An emergency meeting of this lodge (the first after the usual recess) was held on Saturday, the 4th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. The chair was occupied by Bro. James Freeman, W.M., supported by his officers, Bros. J. Blackie, S.W. (W.M. elect); W. Catchpole, J.W.; N. B. Headon, Treasurer; Moody, Secretary; T. Hamer, S.D.; C. Taylor, J.D.; W. Kibble, I.G.; F. T. Keeble, Steward; and the following members: Bros. H. King, T. de Lelive, J. W. Cadiot, T. R. Vowles, A. T. Roberts, Julian Hartley, T. Keene, H. Bertram, L. Hudd, W. Baber, Owen Bowen, R. Zendrick, W. Lucas, R. Greening, H. Thompson (Freemason), and others. The lodge having been opened in the First and Second Degrees, the W.M. resigned the chair to Bro. Moody, P.M. and Secretary, for the purpose of allowing him to raise his friend Bro. King to the Sublime Degree. Bro. King was accordingly examined as to his proficiency in the science, and his answers being considered satisfactory, he retired, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. On his re-admission he was in due form raised to the Degree of M.M., that beautiful ceremony being most impressively rendered by Bro. Moody, and he received only his due meed of praise from all present. The next business was to pass Bro. Edwin Charles Percy Stevens to the Second Degree. This was at the request of the W.M. of the Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326, of which lodge Bro. Stevens is a member, but as it does not meet for some time the W.M. of the Great City Lodge was requested to allow that rite to be conferred upon him in this lodge. He was initiated in the Lebanon Lodge, by his father, Bro. Jas. Stevens, who is a member of that lodge, as well as the Great City Lodge. By the permission of Bro. Freeman, W.M., Bro. Stevens was allowed to take the chair, and in due form passed his son to the Second Degree. The lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, when, pursuant to notice, Bro. Greening moved "That a Past Master's jewel of the usual value be presented to Bro. J. Freeman, W.M., on the completion of his year of office." The motion was seconded by Bro. Cadiot, and warmly supported by Bro. H. Thompson, P.M., on account of his genial nature and kindness to every member on all occasions. The motion was put and unanimously agreed to. A long discussion arose in consequence of an announcement from one of the members tendering his resignation, and it was suggested by several of the speakers that some hardship would be inflicted if the rule as to resignations was too strictly construed, and the letter of it rather than the spirit was adhered to, but as that was a lodge of emergency it was impossible to take any action as to an alteration, and the subject was deferred until the next meeting. The lodge was then closed and adjourned until Saturday, the 11th inst., when Bro. G. W. Blackie, S.W., will be installed as W.M. of the lodge.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held yesterday week at the Metropolitan Benefit Societies' Asylum, Ball's Pond-road. Bro. J. Symons, M.D., W.M., presided. The other brethren who attended were Bros. William Stephens, P.M.; Elias Somers, W. J. Murlis, P.M.; J. E. Walford, P.M.; John High, S.W.; James Glaskin, S.D.; W. Grist, J.D.; Charles Smith, I.G.; A. J. Stanton, D.C.; John Tovell, Steward; Wm. Gray, F. A. Hawthorn, George J. Glover, James Hanney, C. H. Fisher, F. C. Nevill, H. Patient, Edwin Blunt, W. J. Brewster, James Clayton, B. G. Poulton, W. Matthews, Ed. George, Silvester Patient, and visitors, Bros. Thomas Cubitt, P.G.P.; Charles Veal, P.G.S.W. Surrey; C. E. Barnett, 1678; James F. Hasdine, Org. 1364; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). The only business on the paper was the installation of the W.M., the appointment and investiture of officers, and the reception of the Auditors' report; and after the lodge had been opened, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. William Stephens, P.M., was requested by the W.M. to perform the installation. Bro. Williams Stephens thereupon took the chair, and installed Bro. John High, the popular S.W. and W.M. elect, as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. After the W.M. had been congratulated on attaining the exalted position of the chief officer of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge, the usual salutes and proclamations were given, and the following brethren were appointed as officers to assist him during his tenure of office:—Bros. T. Hastings Miller, S.W.; James Glaskin, J.W.; William Stephens, P.M., Treas.; Edwin Blunt, Sec.; William Grist, S.D.; Charles Smith, J.D.; A. J. Stanton, I.G.; John Tovell, I.G.; W. Gray, W.S.; F. A. Hawthorn, W.S.; James Hanney, Org.; and Marsh, Tyler. Bro. Stephens then delivered the addresses, and, on the motion of Bro. J. E. Walford, P.M., seconded by Bro. W. J. Murlis, P.M., a vote of thanks was unanimously ordered to be entered on the minutes in recognition of the admirable way in which Bro. Stephens had performed the duties of Installing Master. The Auditors' report was then submitted, from which it appeared that there was in the hands of the Treasurer at last audit the sum of £28 3s. 7d.; that there had been since received during the year £121 15s. 6d.; and expended, including dues to the Grand Lodge to the same time, £114 7s. The balance in the Treasurer's hands was, therefore, £35 12s. 1d. This report having been adopted, a vote of thanks was accorded to the Auditors, and the lodge was closed. One of Bro. William Grist's choice banquets followed, and the usual toasts were proposed, honoured, and responded to; but all the speeches were very short. Bro. T. Cubitt, P.G.P., responded to the toast of "The Grand Officers," and Dr. Symons proposed "The Health of the W.M." Bro. High in responding expressed his sincere gratification at being placed in the Master's chair, and promised to use his utmost exertions to maintain the dignity of the office, and the distinguished position of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge. In proposing "The Health of the I.P.M." he recalled the brethren's attention to the eminent services rendered by Dr. Symons to the lodge, of which the brethren shewed their sense by unanimously voting him a Past Master's jewel. This jewel, which was a very handsome one, he now presented, and he trusted that Dr. Symons might long enjoy life, health, and strength to continue with them in the lodge, and exhibit to future Masons this testimonial of the brethren's esteem. Dr. Symons in acknowledging the gift confessed that he endeavoured to perform his duties faithfully, and only regretted that his services to the lodge had not been still greater. The toast of "The P.M.'s" gave the W.M. an opportunity of expatiating on the great services of Bro. William Stephens, which, he said, all the brethren must acknowledge. Bro. Stephens was really the mainstay of the lodge, and was always ready to undertake at a moment's notice the duties of any office he might be called on to fill. Bro. W. Stephens, P.M., modestly acknowledged the compliment, but stated that the interest he felt in the success of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge would ever lead him to do whatever he could for it. The toasts of "The Visitors," "The Masonic Charities," &c., followed, and the Tyler's toast closed the proceedings of a most agreeable evening.

ALL SAINTS LODGE (No. 1716).—Friday, the 3rd inst., was the occasion of the installation meeting of this lodge, held at the Town Hall, Poplar, when the following were present:—Bros. John Dennis, W.M.; J. K. Coleman, S.W.; Leonard Potts, J.W.; W. H. Farnfield, P.M.; W. C. Young, J.D.; N. J. Fenner, Treas.; T. Bates, I.G.; J. House, D.C.; J. Grout, Org.; and several other brethren, members of the lodge; also the following visitors:—Bros. J. A. Farnfield, P.M. 236; G. Anderson, P.G. Steward, W.M. 60; A. M. Ellingford, J.D. 834; R. M. Talbot, S.D. 1804; F. H. Cozens, Org. 907; and E. Martin, 879. The lodge met at three o'clock in the afternoon, the business being to read and confirm minutes of previous meetings; to receive report from Audit Committee; to elect Treasurer for the ensuing year; to raise Bro. John Smith; to pass Bro. D. W. Forbes; and to instal Bro. J. Kemp Coleman as W.M. The minutes having been confirmed, and the audit report received, intimation was given that Bro. N. J. Fenner, who had acted as Treasurer since the formation of the lodge, did not desire to be put in nomination for the office for the year ensuing. This being the case, the choice of the lodge fell unanimously on Bro. W. H. Farnfield, P.M., to fill the position, and, at a later period of the evening, when a letter was read from Bro. N. J. Fenner resigning his membership in consequence of living at a long distance from Poplar, it was unanimously resolved that an honorary membership be conferred upon Bro. N. J. Fenner for services rendered as Treasurer. The ceremonies of raising and passing were performed by Bro. J. Dennis in his usual faultless style, and Bro. J. Kemp Coleman was then installed W.M. of the All Saints Lodge, according to ancient rite, also by Bro. Dennis. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows: Bros. Leonard Potts, S.W.; W. C. Young, J.W.; W. H. Farnfield, Treas.; E. L. Bracebridge, Sec.; T. Bates, S.D.; J. House, J.D.; E. L. Kennett, I.G.; and J. Grout, Org. The installation ceremony was performed in a very impressive manner, and a vote of thanks was passed to the Installing Master and ordered to be entered on the minutes. In communicating this to Bro. Dennis the W.M. expressed his personal thanks for the manner in which the installation ceremony had been rendered, and took the opportunity of presenting the retiring W.M. with a Past Master's jewel voted at a previous meeting. Bro. Dennis in reply assured the W.M. and the lodge of the gratification he felt in thus being honoured, and promised that although his year of office had expired he should continue to take a great interest in the welfare of the lodge, and would make a special point of supporting the W.M. just installed. The lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to another part of the large hall, where a banquet awaited their attention. Justice to this having been done, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed. To the toast of "The W.M." Bro. Coleman responded, and thanked the brethren for the manner in which the toast had been received; he trusted to receive the support of the members of the lodge during the year, promised constant attention to his duties, and hoped when the time came for him to retire he would be able to look with satisfaction upon his year of office. To the toast of "The Visitors" those present responded, and Bro. J. A. Farnfield alluded in a humorous vein to the presence of brethren from the west at a lodge in the east, and that inasmuch as in olden time wise men went to the east, so in present days brethren might do worse than go to the east for instruction in Freemasonry. The toast of "The Past Masters" was responded to by Bros. Dennis and W. F. Farnfield, and that of "The Officers" by the S.W. and other officers, and the Tyler's toast brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

FARRINGTON WITHOUT LODGE (No. 1745).—This civic lodge met on the 29th ult., at the Holborn Viaduct Hotel, when there were present Bros. Charles Jacques, W.M.; T. C. Walls, P.P.S.B. Middx., S.W. (Freemason); H. J. Lardner, J.W.; W. H. Jackson, I.P.M. and Sec.; H. A. Dubois, P.G.J.W. Middx., P.M.; M. Samuel, S.D.; Potter, I.G.; Hart, Hon. Org.; Strugnell, D.C.; Parkinson, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Dr. Hunter, W.M. 1677; Butt, J.W. 907; P. J. Jackson, 49; Acland, Lodge of Israel. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the I.P.M., by permission of the W.M., raised Bro. Thomas Simpson to the Degree of a M.M. The ceremony was well performed. The W.M. then resumed the chair, and passed Bros. Richards and Wildash to the Degree of F.C. The subject of the bye-laws was postponed until the November meeting. The lodge was then duly closed, and the members and visitors then adjourned to the banquet. The Royal and Craft toasts were duly honoured. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," the I.P.M. said that Bro. Jacques for the zeal which he had manifested in the founding of the lodge, and for the uniform attention he had displayed in the discharge of his duties, was worthy of their warmest commendations. In conclusion, he (the I.P.M.) trusted that the remainder of the W.M.'s year of office would continue to be prosperous and harmonious. The W.M. having responded, then proposed "The Health of the Visitors" in very eulogistic terms. This toast having been most warmly received, Bros. Hunter, Butt, Acland, and Jackson duly and tersely acknowledged the compliment. In giving "The Officers," the W.M. spoke at length upon the great assistance some of them had rendered in the founding of the lodge. He particularly mentioned the services of the Treasurer, Bro. Ramsey, who, for the first time since the consecration of the lodge, was unavoidably absent. He believed that very few young lodges possessed so many good working Masons as the Farringdon Without undoubtedly had. In conclusion, he hoped that the new members anxious for preferment would endeavour to emulate the skill of their superiors in office, in order that the future Masters might be as well supported during their tenure of the chair as he was then. This toast having been duly honoured, each of the officers present made a suitable reply. The proceedings were agreeably diversified by the instrumental and vocal efforts of Bros. Hart, Potter, Samuel, Jackson, and others. The Tyler's toast at an early hour terminated the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The first meeting of the season after the summer recess was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 2nd inst. The lodge was opened at 7.45 by Bro. Braham, W.M., supported by the following brethren, Brov. F. Wilkinson, I.P.M.; and P.M.'s F. J. Brown, P.P.G.S.W.; Peel Floyd, Moutrie, Dr. Tunstall, Dr. Hopkins, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W. Warwick, S.W.; Hunt, J.W.; Radway, Sec.; T. Wilton, sen., Dir. Cir.; T. Willon, jun., as S.D.; Mercer, J.D.; Holmes, I.G.; Ames and Styles, Stewards; and Bigwood, Tyler. An apology for unavoidable absence was received from Bro. Ashley, P.M. and Treasurer. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, it was announced that many members of the Royal Albert Edward Lodge, No. 906, demanded admission. They then entered, headed by their W.M., Bro. Howes, and were received with honours. Mr. Henry Lane Brown, previously balloted for, was admitted as a candidate for Freemasonry, and duly initiated by the W.M., the obligation being administered by his father, the symbolism of the working tools explained by the J.D., and the charge delivered by the S.W. Bro. F. J. Brown brought before the lodge the utter uselessness of the library for want of a resident curator and means of access to the books, except at the times when the lodge meets. Some discussion followed, which had no immediate result, but the brethren were requested by the W.M. to think over the matter with a view to some satisfactory arrangement. Other private matters having been discussed, the lodge was closed at 9.30.

WARRINGTON.—Lodge of Lights (No. 148).—The regular monthly meeting of the old lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, on the evening of Michaelmas Day, at half-past six. The W.M., Bro. J. Rymer Young, was supported by a goodly number of brethren, amongst whom were Bros. Dr. Young, J.W.; Thos. Grime, J.D.; John Bowes, P.M., P.P.J.G.W. Cumb. and West., Hon. Sec.; D. W. Finney, P.M., Prov. G.D.C. designate; Archibald Crawford, Charles Skinner, John Pierpoint, Thos. Domville, and others. Among the visitors we noticed Bro. T. W. Ockenden, J.W. 1512, and I.G. Lodge of Progress, 1768. The lodge was opened in due form, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and declared to be correctly recorded. The W.M. then said that the brethren would notice that the Second Degree was to be worked as an instruction that night, and he was exceedingly glad that their visiting brother, T. W. Ockenden, was willing to work the Degree. Bro. Skinner having volunteered as a candidate, and Bro. Bowes taking the S.D. position, the Degree was worked with a quiet impressiveness that will not soon be forgotten. Bro. Ockenden then delivered the "Six Periods of Creation." A vote of thanks preceded the closing of the lodge.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Affability (No. 317).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Thursday, the 2nd inst. There were present Bros. J. Roger Lever, W.M.; Mark Vickers, S.W.; W. Nicholl, J.W.; Robert Tomlins, S.D.; John Smethurst, P.M., Treas., acting I.G.; John Church, Sec.; Daniel Donbavand, I.P.M.; James Wilson and P. C. Holmes, Stewards; J. Sly, Tyler; J. Dawson, P.M.; John Higginbotham, P.M.; E. J. Rix, Henson, J. W. Edwards, De Gough, H. Walmsley, Ludwig Oppenheimer, Saml. Percivals, Francis Hilton, Ellis Jones, and R. R. Lisenden (Freemason). Visitor: Bro. J. L. Greenwood, 163. The lodge was opened at 6.30 with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Ellis Jones being a candidate for raising was interrogated, and having answered the questions without hesitation withdrew. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, and Bro. Donbavand assumed the W.M.'s chair. Bro. Jones was re-admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. Too much praise can scarcely be awarded to Bro. Donbavand for the careful and painstaking manner in which he performed this beautiful ceremony, his elocutionary gifts and distinct accentuation making it a pleasure to listen to him, and must undoubtedly have had an impressive effect on the candidate. The traditional history was delivered by Bro. J. Dawson, P.M. At the conclusion of the ceremony the lodge was lowered to the First Degree, and "Hearty good wishes" having been expressed by the only visiting brother, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—An emergency meeting of the members of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, St. Leonard-gate, on Tuesday evening, the 30th ult. Bro. W. N. Helme, the Worshipful Master, occupied the chair of K.S., and was supported by his respective officers. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and afterwards in the Second Degree, when Bros. Marriott and Kershaw, having given proficiency as Fellow Crafts, were entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bros. Marriott and Kershaw severally re-admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons by the W.M., Bro. Sheriff, I.P.M., giving the traditional history and the working tools. The working was well gone through. The lodge was then closed down to the First Degree, and the usual proclamations made, which elicited "Hearty good wishes" from the visiting brethren. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer. The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge was held on the evening of the 6th inst., in the lodge room, but the business was only routine.

SCARBOROUGH.—Leopold Lodge (No. 1760).—On Monday night, the 6th inst., the installation of the W.M. of the above lodge took place at the Old Globe Hotel. Bro. S. Middleton, S.W., having been unanimously elected, was duly installed by Bro. J. W. Woodall, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., assisted by Bro. G. H. Walsham, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C. After the usual impressive ceremony had been gone through, the newly-elected W.M. invested the following officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Fraser, S.W.; Kirk, J.W.; R. H. Peacock, Treas.; Knaggs, Sec.; Thackers, S.D.; Thackett, J.D.; Webster, I.G. The business of the lodge being over, the members adjourned to the large dining room of the hotel, where an excellent banquet had been prepared. After the repast the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and honoured.

TEDDINGTON.—Sir Charles Bright Lodge (No. 1793).—This lodge, which holds its meetings at the Clarence Hotel, met in good strength on the 27th ult. There were present among others Bros. J. Hurst, P.M. 1512, P.G.A.P. of Middlesex, W.M.; Forge, S.W.; Piller, J.W.; Fricker, Treasurer; Fitt, Secretary; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, S.D. (Freemason); Linton, J.D.; Goodchild, I.G.; Stevens, Organist; and Gilbert, P.G.T. Middlesex, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Brown, Treas. 1685; Frampton, 622; Beard, 946; W. Lane, J.D. 1638; Alidge, 1638; and Featherstone, W.S. 1656. The minutes of the previous regular and emergency meetings having been read and confirmed, Bro. Hickinbotham was passed to the Degree of F.C., and Messrs. Warner and Phelps were initiated, both ceremonies being well performed. Bro. Handel, 1656, was balloted for and unanimously received as a joining member. In consequence of the recent demise of Bro. Captain Brown, one of the most active founders of the lodge, the members were in mourning. Previously to the lodge being closed the W.M., in a few brief but kind words, touched upon the melancholy event, and proposed that a vote of condolence should be forwarded to Mrs. Brown, and that the lodge should wear mourning for six months. The proposition was seconded by the S.W., and carried unanimously. It having transpired that the caterer of the hotel had expressed a wish that the lodge should be removed in consequence of the inconvenience to his business, Bro. Walls proposed that an application should be made to the R.W. P.G.M. for permission to remove the lodge to the commodious and elegant Assembly Rooms, in the Queen's-road, Teddington. The proposition was seconded and carried nem. con. The members inspected the Assembly Rooms, which had been designed by Bro. Goodchild, and erected by Bro. Hurst, and they unanimously agreed that with a slight alteration the rooms were capable of affording every Masonic requirement. The brethren then adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. Upon the removal of the cloth the customary toasts were done full justice to. "The R.W.P.G.M." was proposed in very warm terms by the W.M., and heartily responded to by the brethren. "The R.W.D.P.G.M. and the rest of the P.G. Officers, Present and Past," was acknowledged by Bro. Walls, who directly afterwards gave "The W.M." This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M. made a modest reply, in which he expressed his satisfaction at the rapid progress the lodge was making. It was to him a source of congratulation that with one or two exceptions the initiates were local residents, and, therefore, it proved that the necessity for having a Teddington lodge had not been over estimated by the original petitioners. In conclusion, he thanked the members for the very great support that had been given him hitherto, and which satisfactory state of things he hoped would continue to the end of his tenure of office as first Master of 1793. "The Health of the Initiates" followed, and elicited from Bros. Warner and Phelps brief but pertinent replies. In giving "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. congratulated the lodge upon the status and the number of the visiting brethren who had honoured them with their presence. The practice of visiting various lodges was a custom highly to be commended, as it conduced to the harmony of Freemasonry, and, in point of fact, assisted in the dissemination of one of its greatest principles, namely, brotherly love. He then touched upon the Masonic services and merits of the different visiting brethren present. This toast having been duly honoured, Bro. Brown made an exhaustive reply. He congratulated the lodge upon its progress and upon its generally good "working." He had been present at its consecration, and he was pleased to see that the good things then predicted for it by the Provincial Grand Master and other distinguished Masons who had taken part in the ceremony had thus far been amply verified. In conclusion, upon behalf of his co-visitors and himself, he expressed their and his sincere thanks for the very kind and hospitable manner in which they had been received that day. "The Officers" followed, and was responded to by the S.W. and others. The remainder of the evening was agreeably spent, and the brethren separated highly pleased with the success that had characterised their first regular meeting after the summer recess.

Royal Arch.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT CHAPTER (No. 1524).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held in the new Masonic rooms at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday evening, the 8th inst. The following companions were present:—Comps. W. H. Lee, M.E.Z.; Neville Green, H.; T. C. Chapman (Z. 193), J.; H. G. Buss, P.G. Standard Bearer, P.Z.; W. H. Brand, S.E.; E. Somers, P.S.; F. Brasted, J. L. Payne, W. Beasley, R. George, J. Marsh, Janitor. The chapter having been formally opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, Comps. Brasted and Payne were appointed Assistant Sojs. Ballot was taken for Bro. Sidney T. Fisk, Euphrates Lodge, No. 212, a candidate for exaltation, which proved favourable, and Bros. Fisk and Edwin T. F. Bell, Lodge of Asaph, No. 1319 (previously elected), being in attendance, were regularly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry. The usual banquet followed; after which the ordinary loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly responded to. Comp. Buss, P.Z., in proposing "The Health of the M.E.Z.," congratulated the chapter on the progress it had made, and the officers on the efficient manner in which the ceremony had been carried out. Comp. W. H. Lee, M.E.Z., returned thanks. Comps. Fisk and Bell returned thanks for "The Exaltees," and Comp. Somers for "The Officers." The proceedings at the banquet table were enlivened by the vocal abilities of Comp. Bell, Payne, and Brasted. The Janitor's toast was given by Comp. Marsh, Janitor; after which the companions separated, no doubt looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the next meeting.

INSTRUCTION.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER OF IMPROVEMENT (No. 975).—This old chapter for instruction and improvement in the ceremonies pertaining to the R.A. Degree, met for the first time after the recess at its old quarters, the Jamaica Coffee House, St. Michael's Alley, Cornhill, on Tuesday, the 7th inst. The offices were filled as follows: W. H. Lee, Z.; F. Brown, H.; S. P. Catterton, J.; G. Walker, N.; N. Moss, P.S. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. G. P. Gillard as candidate. There were beside the above a goodly attendance of companions, amongst whom Comp. A. J. Thomas, Z. 7; W. Sayer, 1185; T. Dixon, J. 1489, were elected joining members. A letter having been read from Comp. T. W. White, Scribe E., stating his inability to attend through illness, expressions of sympathy were passed, all uniting in the hope of his speedy recovery. Chapter was then closed in due form. We commend this chapter of improvement to all companions seeking instruction; it is centrally situated, meets at a convenient hour, and ought to have a very large support.

Red Cross of Constantine.

YORK.—Eboracum Conclave (No. 137).—The regular meeting of this conclave was held on Thursday, the 2nd inst., when the following brethren were present: Ill. Sir Knight T. B. Whythead, P.S. Int. Gen., unatt., as M.P.S.; E. Sir Knight J. S. Cumberland, V.E.; Sir Knights T. Humphries, as S.G.; George Simpson, I.G.; M. Millington, Prefect; A. T. B. Turner, Recorder; L. Murphy, H.P.; W. P. Husband, Herald; J. Ward, S. F. Bousfield, H. Jackson, and others. Bro. J. J. Wilkes, of the Restoration Lodge, No. 111, Darlington, having been elected, was duly installed a Knight of the Order. A draft code of bye-laws was submitted and agreed upon. Bro. W. B. Dyson, of the Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, was proposed and seconded as a candidate. Several letters of apology for non-attendance were read, and the conclave was closed. The sanctuary of St. Peter and commandery of St. John were afterwards successively opened, and those Degrees conferred upon Sir Knight Wilkes. The members subsequently met at refreshment.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Autumn is proverbially the season of sickness; then the blood requires purification, the digestion demands a thorough and attentive regulation, and all the secretions call for correction. Holloway's remedies supply all the necessaries for securing health; the one overcomes cutaneous diseases, sores, ulcerations, abscesses, carbuncles, and all visible imperfections, the other acts most potently in cleansing the circulation, strengthening the stomach, governing the liver, regulating the bowels, and reducing the entire system to order. Thus these twin medicaments furnish the most efficient medicine chest available for family use. It is easier, through Holloway's discovery, to point out the remedy than to describe the disease; into the former no fallacy can intrude; into the latter prejudice may unwillingly creep.—[ADVT.]

ANNUAL PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

That Masonry flourishes, notwithstanding bad times which have had scarcely a parallel within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, was shown by the large and most enthusiastic attendance of brethren from every section of the division at the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire, which was held at the Winter Gardens, Morecambe, on Wednesday, the 1st inst. The arrangements were certainly not perfect, but this can hardly be wondered at, when no fewer than eighty lodges require to find accommodation at these annual gatherings. The immense and brilliant assembly on this occasion again gave incontrovertible proof of the sustained and even increasing popularity of our deservedly esteemed D.G.M., Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire Province, who on this occasion was again welcomed with the warmth which is always displayed by the multitudes of Masons over whom he holds Masonic sway. There were between 500 and 600 brethren present, and this was a most significant fact, when it is borne in mind that the meeting was held in nearly the most remote corner of the province. The majority of the brethren hailed from Liverpool, Wigan, Preston, and Lancashire, and for their accommodation the London and North-Western Railway Company (of which Bro. Shaw, of the Lodge of Loyalty, No. 86, is the local superintendent) ran special trains.

The whole of the eighty lodges in the extensive province, which is the second largest in the kingdom, were represented, with one exception (the Ashton, No. 1140, Wittington).

The Craft lodge was opened by the W.M. of No. 32, assisted by Br. T. F. Hill, M.M. No. 220, acting as S.W.; and Bro. T. Salter, W.M. No. 241, as J.W.

Bro. the Right Hon. and Right Worshipful Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., and D.G.M. of England, who was most enthusiastically greeted, took his seat on the throne, and was supported by Bros. the Right Hon. Colonel Frederick Stanley, M.P., D.P.G.M., Secretary of State for War; W. Baldwin, P.G.S.W.; H. R. Robertson, P.G.J.W.; Rev. J. Rea Jenkins, P.G. Chaplain; R. Robinson, P.G.R.; H. S. Alpass, P.G. Wylie, S.W. 1264; J. Keet, J.W. 1356; J. McCarthy, P.M. 1393; W. Pughe, P.M. 1620; and others.

The P.G. Sec. (Bro. H. S. Alpass) called the roll of the lodges, and afterwards read the minutes of the last P.G. Lodge meeting, held at the Philharmonic Hall on the 2nd of October, 1878, which were unanimously confirmed.

The accounts of the P.G. Treas. (Bro. J. T. Callow), which were taken as read, showed that during the past year the income in connection with the Charity Fund, including balances, amounted to £510 1s. 3d.; to the Prov. Grand Lodge Fund, £644 8s. 11d.; to the Fund of Benevolence, £2084 14s. 8d.; total, £3238 16s. 10d. Amongst the disbursements were £105 for the West Lancashire Educational Institution; £105 for the Masonic Institution for Girls; the total expenditure amounting to £477 16s. 3d. It appeared that £2039 had altogether been paid to the West Lancashire Masonic Institution. There was a total balance of £2761, of which £1000 was invested in dock bonds, £795 at the savings banks, and about £965 in the North-Western Bank.

On the motion of Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.P.G.R., seconded by Bro. Major G. Turner, P.P.G. Treas., Bro. J. T. Callow, P.M. 673 and 1505, was unanimously re-elected P.G. Treas., Bro. Turner remarking that he had become a convert to the idea that the office of Treasurer of the P.G. Lodge should be held for two years by the same brother. (Laughter.)

In thanking the brethren for the honour which had been conferred upon him, Bro. Callow said he trusted that he should be able to discharge the duties of his office to the satisfaction of the brethren. (Applause.)

The P.G.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—

- Bro. the Rt. Hon. Col. Stanley, M.P. Prov. D.P.G.M.
- " J. F. Newell, P.M. 1035 ... Prov. G.S.W.
- " W. B. Ackerley, P.M. 680 ... Prov. G.J.W.
- " Rev. L. R. Ayre, P.M. 995 ... Prov. G. Chap.
- " J. T. Callow, P.M. 673 and 1505 ... Prov. G. Treas.
- " R. H. Evans, P.M. 1393 ... Prov. G.S.D.
- " Joseph Bell, P.M. 1609 and 1356 ... Prov. G.J.D.
- " Capt. Newman, P.M. 786 ... Prov. G. Reg.
- " T. Clark, P.M. 673 ... Prov. G.S. of Wks.
- " D. W. Finney, P.M. 1250 ... Prov. G.D.C.
- " H. Williams, P.M. 1264 ... Prov. G.A.D.C.
- " J. Hayes, P.M. 249 ... Prov. G.S.B.
- " J. Skeaf (re-appointed) ... Prov. G.O.
- " J. Ballard, P.M. 724 ... Prov. G.P.

Bros. Harrison, Longman, Longmire, J. Houlding, P.M. 823, Sharples, and Whitenead } Prov. G. Stewards.

Several applications for assistance from the Fund of Benevolence were read and considered, and relief amounting to about £100 was granted.

The P.G.M. moved, "That any brother of this province who may be entitled to wear the Charity Jewel shall be presented with the same by Prov. Grand Lodge." He would suggest that the motion should be made of a retrospective character, and he trusted that in future more brethren than hitherto would come forward to help a most deserving object, and so become entitled to wear the jewel. (Applause.) The motion was seconded by Bro. R. Robinson, P.G.R., and carried unanimously.

The P.G. Sec. (Bro. Alpass) reported as follows:—

I have nothing special to report to Prov. G. Lodge. The depression in trade has affected Freemasonry to some extent. There have been fewer initiations, and, for the first time in my experience, a diminution in the number of the subscribing members of the lodges in the province. Notwithstanding these untoward circumstances, a few zealous brethren of this province accepted office as Stewards at the last festival of the Girls' School, and worked so well that they took up a larger amount of money than the brethren from any other province. The following is the list for the West Division of Lancashire:—Bro. Deeley, Selson Lodge, No. 680, £126; Bro. Salter, Merchants' Lodge, No. 241, £115 10s.; Bro. Wylie, Prov. G. Lodge, £105; Bro. Robertson, St. George's Lodge, No. 32, £53; Bro. Pochin, Architect Lodge, No. 1375, £48 6s.; Bro. Buxton, Victoria Lodge, No. 1345, £42; Bro. Wells, Lodge of Harmony, No. 580, £36 15s.; Bro. Platt, Fernor Lodge, No. 1313, £26 5s.; Bro. Wainwright, Lodge of Unity, No. 613, £21; Bro. Roberts, Bridson Chapter, No. 613, £21; Bro. Harding, Trafford Lodge, No. 1496, £17 17s.; Bro. Remington, Lodge of Furness, No. 995, £13 14s.; Bro. Houlding, Everton Lodge, No. 823, £10 10s.; Bro. Mattison, Dramatic Lodge, No. 1609, £10. At the festival of the Boys' School, Bro. Goodsacre, Prince Leopold Lodge, No. 1588, took up £65 2s.; Bro. Barker, Urmston Lodge, No. 1730, No. 1330, took up £13 13s., the last-named brethren fulfilling the engagement at the last meeting of Prov. G. Lodge, that the youngest lodge in the province should raise for one of the Masonic Charities a sum of not less than fifty guineas during the first year of its existence. I have no account of the names of the subscribers at the last festival, the annual report of each school being published early in the year, I shall therefore esteem it a favour if the Stewards will see that voting papers are received by all the donors on their lists, and forwarded to me, signed, in order that they may be used at the election of the Boys' School, in October, in favour of Albert Grice Aspden, a candidate from this province. In conclusion, I have the pleasure of informing Prov. Grand Lodge that all the lodges have sent in their returns and paid their dues.

On the motion of Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., it was resolved that the sum of 150 guineas be voted out of the Charities Fund to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

On the motion of Bro. Wylie, seconded by Bro. J. R. Goepel, it was unanimously resolved that the sum of 100 guineas be voted out of the Charities Fund to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution.

It was also resolved, on the motion of Bro. Wylie, seconded by Bro. Dr. Smith, P.P.G.R., that 100 guineas be voted out of the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund to the Widows' Fund of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

On the motion of Bro. R. Wylie, it was further unanimously resolved that the sum of £30 be voted out of the Provincial Grand Lodge Fund to assist the election of Albert Grice Aspden, son of the late Bro. Aspden, a candidate for the Boys' School; and the election of the widow of the late Bro. Robert Grace, a candidate for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and that the votes of the Provincial Grand Lodge be given to these cases.

On the motion of Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C., seconded by Bro. W. S. Vines, P.P.G.D.C., it was agreed that the votes of the Provincial Grand Lodge should be given to these cases.

Bro. R. Wylie next gave the sixth annual report of the Hamer Benevolent Fund, from which it appeared that the Charity was making most satisfactory progress. Although the amount contributed during the year was small as compared with the number of lodges in the province, yet the Committee were thankful for the support which had been given, and believed that in the event of the fund having many calls upon it the brethren would respond in such a manner as to enable the Committee to meet every claim. There was still one annuitant on the fund, and it was satisfactory to find that no other application had been made during this year. The invested funds now amounted to £750, and, besides this, upwards of £200 was in the bank.

The officers of the fund for the ensuing year were then appointed, and thanks were given to those brethren who had served the Charity during the past year.

The P.G. Lodge was next resolved into a Court of Governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, a resumé of the proceedings for the year being read by Bro. G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., one of the Honorary Secretaries. The annual report of the Charity was as follows:—

A perusal of the accounts will show that the Institution is, as ever, prosperous, not only with respect to its funds, but also to its increasing usefulness in carrying out the objects for which it was founded, and which it has for many years so successfully effected. Important as were the objects and intentions of its founders, this importance has become greatly enhanced from the fact that Freemasonry has of late years been so considerably extended in the Province of West Lancashire, and the greater necessity that has arisen for local effort, supplementary and independent to that of the London Charitable Institutions. No better proof of the success of the Institution, and the desire for its maintenance and support, and no clearer view of the manner in which its benefits are appreciated, can be found than in placing before you the following figures. During the first fourteen years of the existence of this noble Charity the payments for the education and advancement of children were as follows: 1850 to 1859, £238 2s.; 1860, £121 11s. 6d.; 1861, £110 18s. 5d.; 1862, £143 2s. 10d.; 1863, £166 17s.; total, £780 11s. 9d. During a nearly similar period, namely, the last fifteen years, the payments have been: In 1865, £263 4s. 1d.; 1866, £267 5s. 11d.; 1867, £178 7s. 5d.; 1868, £256 18s. 6d.; 1869, £238 6s. 8d.; 1870, £260 8s.; 1871, £274 3s. 1d.; 1872, £341 1s. 3d.; 1873, £266 15s. 5d.; 1874, £288 15s. 7d.; 1875, £430 9s. 11d.; 1876, £470 6s. 3d.; 1877, £580 17s. 3d.; 1878, £580 16s. 1d.; total, £4697 16s. Notwithstanding this handsome and increasing expenditure, promoting, as it does, so much lasting benefit, it will be seen, by reference to the accounts, that the invested fund amounts to £14,907 19s. 6d., and it will be admitted that the wisdom of those who in the early history of the Charity husbanded its resources, and carefully guarded the investment of its funds, was of the highest importance, inasmuch as the subscriptions and donations of the brethren have now ceased to cover the annual expenditure for the education and advancement of the children, and it is only from the interest on investments that its financial position can be maintained, and the increasing demands upon its resources fully satisfied. We, therefore, earnestly call upon the brethren, and especially upon the Worshipful Masters of the lodges in the province, and of those who take an interest in the cause of charity, and particularly in the continued welfare of our West Lancashire Charity, of which the brethren of the province are so justly proud, to take care that the various lodges with which they are connected are fully represented in the lists of donations and subscriptions which appear year after year. These annual reports, issued from time to time, form a lasting record of the generosity of those who are thus called upon to perform the important duties attached to the position they have been elected to occupy, whilst the absence of such a record shows but too clearly that some of the brethren have not so faithfully discharged their Masonic duties, a circumstance which they cannot but regret in years to come. While earnestly commending these observations to the notice of the brethren, we would also impress upon the Worshipful Masters, Treasurers, and those having charge of the affairs in the various lodges, the necessity of rendering a statement of subscriptions and donations before the 31st of December in each year. In many instances, returns have been sent in so late as the middle of May. Reports and accounts are thus delayed, and considerable irregularity is the result. It having now been decided that the accounts of the honorary Treasurer shall in future close promptly on the 31st December, it will be necessary to give strict attention to this matter, as otherwise those lodges omitting to carry out this arrangement cannot be represented in the ensuing reports, which will in future be issued early in each year. During several months preceding the date at which this report is issued, a Sub-Committee, consisting of many of the most earnest and energetic workers in the cause of Freemasonry in this province, have been actively engaged in revising the bye-laws of the Institution. The increasing extension of the Charity, and the altered circumstances surrounding its working, having gone considerably beyond any ideas that its founders could have anticipated, rendered this revision and amendment necessary, and the Committee feel that their labours, the result of which will be shortly placed before the brethren, must tend to the better and more harmonious working of the Institution, whilst its improving financial position has fortunately enabled the Committee to increase the benefits to the children for whose welfare the Institution has been established. Finally, we ask for continued and increased effort on the part of all good Masons, the result of which will in years to come enable those who will have the management of this great Charity still further to increase these benefits to the fatherless and the orphan, and so maintain the position of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution as first and foremost in the ranks of Masonic beneficence.

Five Past Masters of the Committee of the Hamer Benevolent Fund were elected, and also two Auditors, a Secretary, and Treasurer.

The annual Court of the Governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Institution was then held, and subsequently the Annual Court of the Governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, and the usual business was transacted.

The P.G. Lodge was then closed in solemn form, and according to ancient custom.

The banquet was held at the Winter Gardens, and was largely attended. The R.W.P.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, presided, being supported by the Right Hon. Colonel Stanley, M.P., D.P.G.M., and many of the P.G. officers of West Lancashire.

After "The Health of the Queen" had been duly honoured,

The P.G.M. proposed "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family." He observed that not only was the Prince of Wales a most ardent Mason, but Prince Leopold was also, for His Royal Highness, in his own Province of Oxford, took an active part alike in Craft and Royal Arch Masonry. (Loud applause.)

The toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon and the other Officers of the Grand Lodge" was proposed by Bro. Col. Stanley, P.D.G.M., and responded to by Bro. Dr. Moore.

"The Health of the R.W.D.G.M. and R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire" was received most enthusiastically.

Lord Skelmersdale, in responding, said Masonry was in a most flourishing condition in this province, for there were somewhere about 5000 members, and this year there were upwards of 600 initiations. (Applause.) He thanked the brethren most cordially for attending in such large numbers that day. (Loud applause.)

Bro. Davis, P.M., proposed "The Right Hon. Frederick Stanley, R.W.D.G.M., and the Prov. G. Wardens." (Loud applause.)

Bro. Colonel Stanley, M.P., who was loudly cheered, responded. He said he thanked them most sincerely for the manner in which they had received the toast, and he was happy to find that, notwithstanding the bad times, Masonry in West Lancashire was in so good a position. That showed that Masons were determined to put a cheerful face on matters, and that, whatever might be the ups and downs of life, they were determined to hold together. (Applause.)

Several other toasts were proposed and most cordially received, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

By command of Comp. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Second Grand Principal of England and Grand Supt. of the Western Division of Lancashire, the annual P.G. Chapter of West Lancashire, was held on Wednesday, the 1st inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Morecambe, immediately preceding the P.G. Lodge meeting. There was a large and influential gathering of P.G. Officers and others.

The P.G. Chapter having been opened in due and solemn form, the minutes of the previous P.G. Chapter were read and confirmed.

The M.E. Superintendent appointed the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—

Comp. Robert Wylie...	Prov. G.H.
" H. R. Robertson	Prov. G.J.
" H. S. Alpass	Prov. G.S.E.
" Wm. Tyrer	Prov. G.S.N.
" R. H. Evans	Prov. G.P.S.
" W. W. Cottam	Prov. G.A.S.
" J. Wainwright	Prov. G. 2nd A.S.
" R. Robinson	Prov. G.R.
" T. Clark	Prov. G.S.B.
" P. J. Edleston	Prov. G. Std. B.
" John Wells	Prov. G.D. of C.
" Joseph Skeaf	Prov. G.O.

The usual business of the P.G. Chapter was transacted.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUSSEX.

On Monday last the annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Sussex was held in the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., Provincial Grand Master, occupied the throne, and he was supported by a large number of Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers, including Bros. J. H. Scott, Prov. Deputy G.M.; Warden Sergison, Prov. G.S.W.; J. St. Clair, Prov. J.G.W.; R. Crosskey, Prov. G. Treas.; C. A. Woolley, Prov. G. Reg.; V. P. Freeman, Prov. G. Sec.; W. Hale, Prov. G.S.D.; M. Tanner, Prov. G.J.D.; C. Tomkinson, Prov. G. Supt. of Wks.; J. M. Kidd, Prov. G.D. of C.; W. G. Sharp, Prov. G.A.D. of C.; Jos. Farncombe, Prov. G.S.; A. King, Prov. G. Org.; W. T. Nell, Prov. G. Purs.; G. T. Evershed, A. J. Hawkes, F. J. Rubie, F. Holford, and S. B. McWhinnie, Prov. G. Stewards.

At one o'clock the Prov. Grand Stewards entertained the Prov. Grand Master and a number of distinguished Masons a luncheon, after which the Board of Finance assembled and transacted a considerable amount of business in readiness for the general meeting at three o'clock.

The Prov. Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A very satisfactory report was then presented from the Board of Finance and adopted.

The Charities Committee presented a report showing that all the lodges in the province had subscribed, and that one election in the Girls' School, and one election of a widow to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, had been secured. This report was also adopted.

The Provincial Grand Sec. then read statistics, showing that new lodges had been established during the year at Bognor, Hurstpierpoint, Brighton (Atlingworth), and Shoreham. That the number of brethren at the last meeting was 828; that during the year sixty-five had been initiated, forty-seven joined, thirty-eight resigned, twelve died, and six had withdrawn, leaving the present number 884.

Bro. Sir Walter Burrell congratulated the brethren on the satisfactory state of the province, as evidenced by the statistics just read. In 1877 there were 784 members, since which time there had been an increase of one hundred. During the past year three new lodges had been opened, and in the course of next month another was to be added to the roll. He congratulated the province that the scheme brought forward last year of subscriptions by lodges to the Masonic Charities had worked out successfully, and he threw out some practical suggestions for further development of this movement by subscriptions from individual members. If this were fully carried out the province might make pretty sure of the election of their candidates. He urged upon them the desirability of making good and sufficient inquiries into the character of those who wish to become members of the Craft. The object was not so much to increase the number as that those initiated should be men of the highest respectability. He trusted that honour and success would attend the Institution in the future as in the past. (Applause.) He then appointed the following brethren as his officers for the year ensuing:—

Bro. C. Raymond Burrell	Prov. G.S.W.
" H. Davey (Mayor of Brighton)	Prov. G.J.W.
" R. Adams	Prov. G. Chap.
" R. Crosskey	Prov. G. Treas.
" C. A. Woolley	Prov. G. Reg.
" V. P. Freeman	Prov. G. Sec.
" E. Bright	Prov. G.S.D.
" S. Evershed	Prov. G.J.D.
" A. Wyatt	Prov. G.S. of Wks.
" J. M. Kidd	Prov. G.D. of C.
" R. R. Crouchier	Prov. G.A.D. of C.
" A. J. Hawkes	Prov. G.S.B.
" A. King	Prov. G. Org.
" F. J. Rubie	Prov. G. Purs.

Bros. J. T. Whatford, T. Morris, C. R. Chandler, G. Stone, S. W. D. Williams, and C. J. Smith ... Prov. G. Stewards.

Bro. T. Hughes ... Prov. G. Tyler.

Bro. Dawes (P.P.G. Reg.) proposed "That the sum of one hundred guineas be voted from the funds of this Prov. Grand Lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows, the privileges accruing therefrom to be conferred on Bro. John Scott, Prov. D.G.M., and to be exercised by him and his successors in office in perpetuity.

Bro. Walter Kirkland seconded, and the proposition was carried unanimously.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master thanked the brethren for the handsome sum which they had thus added to his list, as one of the Stewards to the Benevolent Institution for the present year, and expressed a hope the brethren would individually help to swell the amount.

After some formal business, the lodge was closed in due form.

The banquet took place in the banquetting room at five o'clock, the services of Messrs. Sayers and Marks having been secured to carry out this important part of the day's programme. About 100 were present. The R.W. Prov. G.M., Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., presided, supported by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master and his Provincial Officers, the Masters of the various lodges in the province, the Mayor of Brighton, Bro. Marriott, Q.C., Bro. Kuhe, and others.

Grace having been sung, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the Prov. Grand Master and heartily received.

Bro. Rev. R. Adams proposed "The Health of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and Officers of the Grand Lodge, Present and Past," eulogising the eminent services of Bro. Kuhe, who, as Grand Organist of England, had done his duty, and who was not only a true Mason, but a good man in every sense of the word. (Applause.)

Bro. Kuhe responded.

Bro. J. Henderson Scott gave "The Health of Sir Walter Burrell," and said it was a happy day for Masonry in Sussex when he (Sir Walter) was appointed to the high position in the Craft which he now occupied. Their Provincial Grand Master was most popular in the province, and he devoted considerable time and attention to the duties of his office. He desired to make himself familiar with the working of every lodge, and he had visited each one during the short time he had presided over them. He trusted Sir Walter might long be spared to occupy the proud position of Provincial Grand Master of Sussex. (Loud applause.)

The Prov. Grand Master replied in a happy manner amid frequent applause, especially thanking his Past Officers for the assiduous discharge of their various duties.

Bro. Marriott proposed "The Health of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master." In doing so he said that Bro. Scott was a tower of strength in the Craft, and his energy in well doing knew no bounds. He had to couple with the toast "The Health of the Present and Past Provincial Officers," and in doing so spoke of the popularity of the appointment of Sir Walter Burrell's eldest son to the post of Senior Warden. As the next officer in rank none was more popular than Bro. Davey, the respected Mayor of Brighton. (Applause.) The other appointments he had no hesitation in saying met with general approval.

Bro. J. H. Scott replied. He said it was very gratifying that those who held office did so with the hearty approval of the brethren. He wished to point to his own career as an example to young Masons. He had been every round of the ladder, and all would attain honours if they only threw energy into their work and were content to bide their time.

Bro. H. Davey also acknowledged the compliment.

Bro. Marriott, Q.C., responded to the toast of "The Visitors."

Bro. C. A. Woolley gave "The W.M.'s of the Province," a body of men who held very responsible positions in the Craft, and who discharged their duties with great zeal and ability.

Bro. W. Curtis replied.

The Prov. Grand Master asked the brethren to drink

"Success to the Masonic Charities," urging upon them love and charity as their watchwords. (Applause.)

Bro. Gerard Ford gave "The Health of the Stewards," who had catered so well for their comfort on that occasion.

Bros. McWhinnie, Hawkes, Holford, and Rubie, expressed their appreciation of the compliment.

The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to an end.

During the evening Bro. Kuhe favoured the brethren with a brilliant pianoforte performance. The musical arrangements were ably carried out by Bro. King, Prov. G. Organist, the vocalists being Bros. Large, G. T. Carter, F. Distin, and L. Conti, all of whom discharged their allotted parts with considerable ability.

A TEN-MINUTES' "ORATION."

The following oration was delivered on September 18th and 19th, at the consecration of Portmadoc and Holyhead Lodge Rooms, by Bro. the Rev. J. Sidney Boucher, P.G.C. and P.W.M. Segontium, 606, Carnarvon:—The appearance of a new house, whose site, style, or surroundings are of special beauty and appropriateness, naturally leads the beholder to speculate upon the character and condition of the owner. And the consecration of a new lodge-room seems equally to call for remark upon the time-honoured Institution which is here to have its home. What then, briefly, is Freemasonry?—originally, no doubt, a Guild of Artificers, dating from the reign of King Solomon, and organised by his marvellous wisdom; with valuable trade secrets to keep close among themselves, and a careful system of passwords, signs, and tokens for their preservation; a regular classification of the brethren into convenient groups or lodges; orderly arrangements for government and discipline; periodical examinations of junior workmen, to ascertain the progress they were making; solemn forms and ceremonies for admitting new members into the brotherhood, passing successful candidates to higher degrees of proficiency, and investing them with conspicuous badges of merit; special times and places for discussing business matters, with a rigid exclusion of all exciting topics of debate, such as religion and politics, so as not to disturb the harmony so essential to the successful accomplishment of the grand work of temple-building, which was being carried on by the diverse nationalities of India and Phœnicia in conjunction. With the prestige of a lofty origin like this, and its necessary connection with the liberal arts and sciences, such as painting, sculpture, and the rest, the Masonic association rapidly developed, and extended to every quarter of the civilised world. A powerful organisation of this kind, with its ever accumulating stores of knowledge and experience, could not fail to produce extensive and important results. And, accordingly, we cannot be surprised to learn that to Freemasonry we are indebted for the wonderful structures, beautiful even in their ruin, erected under Greek and Roman auspices before the Christian era; and in especial for the magnificent mansions, castles, churches, and cathedrals that sprang up everywhere in Great Britain and the Continent during the comparatively quiet period of the eleventh and four following centuries. Nor can we wonder that men of other trades and professions, even kings and princes, eagerly sought admission into an Order of such high renown for the sake of companionship with the illustrious Masters of art and science who ennobled it, and whose splendid labours did so much to enhance the national pride and glory. By degrees, however, these "speculative" Masons, who by special favour were admitted to the freedom of the Craft, so far outnumbered their "operative" brethren, that, cuckoo-like, they ousted the original owners from the Masonic nest, and stayed in it themselves; retaining the outward shape and form of the Ancient Guild, with its working tools and badges; its stringent vows of secrecy, fidelity, and obedience; its elaborate and impressive ritual, and its oral triadic instruction—but turning all into parable and metaphor, so that, as we have it now, it is simply a "beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols;" a system possessing many important secrets and valuable privileges, and a history of unquestionable fact, embroidered with a variety of curious myths or legends to furnish a plausible explanation of passwords, signs, and tokens, whose real origin and primitive significance have in all probability passed away from us for ever. Such is Freemasonry in the past. What then are its claims upon us in the present? And why are we here to-day doing our utmost to perpetuate it in the future? Now to answer these inquiries we must call to mind that Masonry may be viewed under two aspects, a lower and a higher; viz.: (1) as connected with lodges here on earth, and their members as citizens of the world, and (2) as connected with Grand Lodge above, where the world's G.A. lives and reigns for ever. In its lower aspect it has three special claims upon our attention and regard, viz.: as (a) a bond of union and brotherhood between all the widely separated families and classes of humanity; (b) a central ground of meeting for free and social intercourse among less widely separated neighbours and acquaintances; (c) a universal letter of introduction to entire strangers, and a special medium for assisting the needy and distressed. In its higher aspect it is still more worthy of the eulogies and encomiums that have been lavished upon it by the brethren in every age. As one of our fraternal charges well expresses it: "Tis not mere blind fanatic zeal that prompts the brethren of the mystic tie to speak thus highly of the Masons' Craft. For well they know that it is the best and truest handmaid to religion that ever man devised, and admirably fitted to assist him in his search for light and knowledge through all the various stages of this mortal life, from the cradled helplessness of infancy to the final darkness of the grave. It is founded on a triad of deep mysterious truths connecting earth with heaven: the eternal existence of a triune God, the resurrection of the body, and the immortality of the soul. It inculcates the purest principles of piety and virtue, and teaches plainly in the First Degree to measure all our words and actions by the gauge of rectitude and justice; to shape our conduct, in the Second, by the square of morality and honesty; and in the Third to circumscribe our passions with the compass of propriety, and keep them strictly within the limits of the circle of our duty to God and man. Hence we learn to be upright, just, and true to our fellow men; humble, meek, resigned to the will of God; so that the Mason who has thus discharged his duty as a true and faithful brother of the Craft may calmly wait that awful moment when his heart shall cease to throb and his soul, released from the burden of the flesh, shall wing its upward flight to the boundless, unexplored expanse above. Truly then is Masonry a noble thing, and nobly should it be enshrined among us. It is a precious jewel which demands a goodly setting, and we congratulate the brethren of this lodge upon the admirable hall which is consecrated to its use to-day, as our first G.M.K.S. congratulated himself and his people when his building at Jerusalem was completed—"I was glad when they said unto me, We will go unto the House of the Lord. For thither the tribes go up, even the tribes of Israel, to behold the fair beauty of the Lord and to visit His temple." Being then what it is, we might naturally expect to find Freemasonry everywhere held in the highest and most reverent estimation, and, like a powerful magnet, drawing into it irresistibly all that is great and good now, as it did in days gone by. But is it so? To some extent it is, no doubt, and, in proof of this, we point with pride and pleasure to such an assemblage as is gathered here to-day. Yet, is it not the case that our influence and numbers are not nearly what they ought to be?—that, in fact, they might and ought to be far larger than they are? And, if so, where lies the fault? Have we any one to blame for it but ourselves? Speaking from my own experience, I should say that Masonry is by no means popular with women as a body; that wives dislike it for their husbands, mothers for their sons, and that many men who take an independent stand in thought and feeling fight shy of it for themselves and their belongings. And why? Because there is a wide-spread feeling that men become Masons, not from high but low motives, to increase their business connection, perhaps, or enlarge their "jolly-good-fellow" circle; and that their moral tone is not improved thereby, but the reverse; that Masonry, in fact, is little else than a costly knife-and-fork society, fond of idle dissipation; and lodge meetings merely a convenient excuse and cloak for wasting ill-spiced money upon extravagant eating and drinking, especially drinking. That this opinion may have had foundation in the conduct of some few past and even present brethren cannot be denied. Nor is the reason far to seek. In the great majority of our town and country districts no large and suitable room for meeting can be found except at the public inn, where temptations and excess present themselves to every comer. And, accordingly, it is their misfortune, not their fault, if Masons thus unhappily situated have from time to time made lapses from their high profession. For it is not the orderly Masonic banquet in Masonic clothing, nor the modest lodge refreshment with Masonic guards and checks on every side, that does the mischief; but the un-Masonic lounging at the bar, and the alcoholic convivialities there indulged in before the lodge is opened, and after it is closed. Hence it is that unseemly scandals have at times arisen, that solemn vows of initiation have been forgotten, that the mysteries of Masonry have more or less been blabbed by drunken lips to the scoffing outer world, and grave discredit cast upon the whole fraternity. Freemasonry, however, cannot justly be condemned, any more than Christianity, for not doing its proper work of making all its members worthy; or than the Legislature for not making every one sober and religious by Act of Parliament. Much, however, may be done in this direction by diminishing the temptations to vice and the facilities for getting drunk. And an immense stride will have been taken towards the exaltation of Freemasonry among ourselves, and the world at large, when every lodge has a place like this set apart for Masonic purposes, where the most fastidious may assemble as in an ordinary well kept reading room, without hesitation on their own part or suspicion on the part of others; where evenings may be often spent, not wearily and drearily in merely getting through a dull routine of "work," but pleasantly and profitably in "lectures" and discussions upon interesting topics of art and science, thus fulfilling the special obligation, to "make continual advancement in Masonic knowledge." And this is unquestionably the right and proper thing. For what says an ancient charge? "A Mason's lodge is an emblematic representation of the universe, the magnificent temple of that G.A. whom we all revere and adore. Wisdom, strength, and beauty are the pillars of His throne and manifest in all His works; His wisdom is infinite, His strength omnipotent, and His beauty shines through all creation, in symmetry of form, grandeur of proportion, and glorious harmony of colour." Here is a grand ideal! But how can it possibly be realised in a public-house, with un-Masonic sights and sounds at every turn, with cowans and intruders in every corner. Very cordially then do we reiterate our warm congratulations to the Madoc and St. Cybi Lodges for the temple-building they have done. Very heartily do we say to you, go on and prosper as you well deserve! This structure has been raised in perfect unanimity and concord. Long may it so continue. May the proceedings of to-day serve but to forge another link in the chain of brotherly love and good-fellowship, by which you are already united. May your children and your children's children rejoice in these auspicious solemnities. May you enjoy within these walls every satisfaction and delight that disinterested affection and Masonic intercourse can afford. And may the good report of this lodge so tend to exalt and enhance the reputation of the Craft at large, that Masonry may flourish here as in every other quarter of the globe; and be assisted to fulfil its noble mission by diffusing the light of wisdom, aiding the strength of reason, displaying the beauty of virtue, and diminishing the aggregate of human vice and misery. Being thus established firmly by the high character of its friends, it may laugh to scorn the malice of its foes, and rise superior to all the opposition of the outer world; like the lofty summit of the mighty Snowdon, that bares its breast with dignified composure to the tempest, and fearlessly presents its bosom to the midnight storm.

MASONIC MUSIC.

A very interesting and instructive lecture on the above subject was given by Bro. Dr. Spark, P.M. 289, P.P.G.O. of West Yorkshire, to the brethren and visitors of the Lodge of Fortitude, No. 289, on Thursday, the 25th ult., at the special request of the W.M., Bro. G. B. Scott. The lecture was divided into two parts, the first consisting of music adapted for the various ceremonies of the Craft, the second of that used at Masonic festive gatherings. The illustrations, which were most efficiently given by Bros. Blagboro, Dodds, Higgins, and Rickard, were all taken from the "Freemasons' Liber Musicus," edited by Bro. Dr. Spark, who also took part in the vocal examples, and played the necessary accompaniments. Mendelssohn's "Like as a Father pitieth his Children," Mozart's "Gude us, oh, thou Great Jehovah," and the lamented Bro. Henry Smart's "I will wash my hands in innocency," were much appreciated amongst the adapted music of the first division of the lecture; whilst of the music specially composed for Masonic ceremonies, a part song, "Now the Evening Shadows," by Bro. Dr. Spark, and a Sanctus, with a tenor solo and soft response chorus, by the same composer, were greatly admired, the solo in the latter piece being beautifully given by Bro. Blagboro. In the second division of the lecture "Hail, Masonry Divine," an inspiring composition, specially written by the lecturer for the ceremony of installation of the Marquis of Ripon as Grand Master, was very effective. A very quaint old English tenor song, "The Pratty Flowers," composer unknown, was much applauded, and was given with that charming sweetness and purity of tone for which Bro. Blagboro is so justly celebrated. The lecturer, as might be anticipated, strongly advocated a closer and more systematic alliance of good and appropriate music with the beautiful ritual of Freemasonry than is at present general. The literary merits of the lecture were considerable, and, with the musical illustrations, seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience, amongst whom was the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, Bro. J. W. Tew, J.P. A vote of thanks to the lecturer and the brethren assisting him, proposed by Bro. H. Hutchins, P.M., and seconded by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, was carried by acclamation, and it was very evident that the object of the lecture was in thorough accordance with the desires of those present. After refreshment further illustrations of Masonic festive music were given by various brethren, and once more an enjoyable Masonic evening was spent in the lodge, which its brethren love to speak of as "Old Fidelity."

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly Committee meeting of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton presided. There were also present Bros. W. Hale, S. Rawson, C. P. Dilley, J. Brett, J. G. Stevens, J. Newton, Charles Atkins, J. H. Leggatt, J. M. Case, Wm. Stephens, R. H. Giraud, C. J. Perceval, L. Stean, J. Kemp, J. A. Farnfield, Dr. Jabez Hogg, H. Somerville Burney, Chas. Lacey, Jas. Willing, jun., Raynham W. Stewart, Edgar Bowyer, James Terry (Secretary), and E. C. Massey, (Freemason).

The minutes of the last meeting (10th September) were read and confirmed.

The Secretary reported the death of two female annuitants, one having received £130, and the other £80.

The report of the Finance Committee was read and adopted.

An investment of £1000 in Three Per Cent. Consols on account of the Male Annuitants' Fund, and a similar addition to the Female Fund were ordered.

The Secretary reported that he had made a contract with a firm at Croydon for supplying coals to the Institution throughout the winter months at a fixed price of 25s. per ton.

A letter from the Assistant Grand Secretary was read stating, in reply to a letter of inquiry from Bro. Terry respecting office accommodation, that the matter is under consideration of the Premises Committee.

Petitions were considered of two female candidates, whose names were added to the list. Petitions were also received from four male candidates, with the result that three names were added to the list, one petition being sent back, not being in conformity with the rules of the Institution.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held last Saturday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. J. Joyce Murray in the chair. There were also present Bros. the Rev. Richard Morris, L.L.D. (Head Master of the School), F. H. Ebsworth, Dr. F. W. Ramsay, W. H. Perryman, Donald M. Dewar, S. Rosenthal, Arthur E. Gladwell, R. B. Webster, William Roebuck, Richard Tyrrill, J. G. Chancellor, A. J. Duff Filer, W. F. C. Moutrie, Thomas Meggy, Geo. J. Palmer, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, an addition of £5 per annum was made to the salary of the Foreign Master. The petition for placing one candidate on the list for the April election was received, examined, and agreed to, and an outfit was granted to one lad who has left the Institution and obtained a situation. An application for funds for apprenticing one boy, after a little discussion, was ordered to stand over for further information, and the Committee then adjourned.

Order of St. Lawrence.

YORK.—Ebor Lodge.—A meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at which were present Bros. G. Simpson, R.W.M.; J. S. Cumberland, S.W.; T. B. Whythead, P.M., as J.W.; M. Millington, S.D.; T. Humphries, I.G.; W. P. Husband, K. of G.; A. T. B. Turner, Sec.; L. Murphy, S. F. Bousfield, P. Pearson, Tyler. The Degree was conferred upon Bro. J. J. Wilkes, Restoration Lodge, No. 111, Darlington. Bro. T. B. Whythead gave a report of the proceedings at a meeting he had attended at the Alexandra Palace on the 9th August, for the purpose of forming a Council of Side Degrees. The lodge expressed its general approval of the course adopted, and after some conversation and suggestions relating to the government of the Order of St. Lawrence, the lodge was closed.

The Eighty-Second Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held in June next at the Alexandra Palace, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master and Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire, in the chair.

The Royal Commemoration Lodge of Instruction, No. 1585, was opened on Monday last, and will meet regularly for the future on Monday evenings, from 8 to 10, at the Railway Hotel, High-street, Putney, under the Preceptorship of Bro. J. W. Robinson, P.M.

THE RECENT MEETING OF THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

Though the reports we have so far received from the last "Convent" are neither precise nor particular, we are able to state that in several very important points the last meeting was marked by great moderation and circumspection. We do not so far gather what has been the result of the Ritual Revision, or what are the exact modifications introduced in the Ritual, but we shall refer to that subject later, and we hope that previous anticipations of any serious change or of any revolutionary alterations may be found to have been exaggerated or hasty. We are, we confess, struck with the wise tone and cautious temper of the meeting, so clearly exhibited, and, above all, with the repeated assurances of the speakers that no actual negation of the G.A.O.T.U. is really intended by previous innovations, whatever outward appearances may seem to suggest. We are, therefore, in hopes that a bridge may yet be formed by which the chasm between the Grand Orient of France and the Grand Lodge of England may be passable, and we shall rejoice if that anticipation prove these, as, while we have always regretted the course events have taken (and events are sometimes, as we know, stronger than men), we have always had a most kindly and fraternal feeling for French Freemasons. We know the real difficulties of their position, their trials and their troubles, their stumbling blocks and pitfalls, in the face of unwise friends or a bitter Ultramontanism, and if we have spoken strongly it is because we wished sincerely well to the Grand Orient of France, and were interested as brother Masons in the progress and prestige of French Freemasonry. We trust that better days are in store for Freemasonry in France, and if moderate counsels prevail, if calm reflection leads our good brethren to modify needless changes, and to remove unwelcome impressions in the interests of peace, goodwill, and cosmopolitan fraternity, we trust that some "modus vivendi" may yet be discovered as between French and Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry. We venture, therefore, with genuine feelings of goodwill and sympathy, to offer our advice to the members of the Grand Orient of France, in the interests, above all, of peace and confraternity. Do not too hastily take up with alien bodies or doubtful organizations in other jurisdictions, for if you do you will only add complication to complication, and stumbling block to stumbling block. Freemasonry is something too high, too grand, too noble, too true, and, above all, too universal to be coloured or dominated by "Positivism," or any other "ism," and remembering what just now is the attack on Freemasonry "all along the line" by vigilant and unscrupulous Ultramontane antagonists, we feel sure that the only safe position for universal Freemasonry is to be found in the old and religious avowal of positive belief in T.G.A.O.T.U., the acceptance of the Bible, and the realization of the immortality of the human being. The questions of "creeds and catechisms" must be left, where Freemasonry leaves it, to the conscientious conviction of humble and pious believers, but, alike in its exoteric symbolism and its esoteric instructions, Freemasonry, avoiding controversy, seeks to rally round its peaceful banners all who can reverently look up to T.G.A.O.T.U., and work together in love, unity, and harmony, screened altogether from controversial difficulties, and ignoring antagonistic schools of thought, philosophy, and belief. Freemasonry passes judgment on none, condemns none, excommunicates none, but recognizes bonâ fide the sublime axiom of inspired authority, that each mortal "to his own master standeth or falleth." We, therefore, are glad to hail such signs of moderation as the last Convent of the Grand Orient really displays, if we are rightly informed, and to express our hope that unfortunate divisions and sad separations may one day be healed and removed. We speak, as we said before, with some diffidence and reserve, as we do not quite understand as yet what has actually taken place on that most important point, the revision of the ritual, and which must affect, for good or for evil, French Craft Masonry, from our Anglo-Saxon point of view, greatly and gravely for the future. But we are willing and ready to hope, we repeat, for the best. As regards the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the accounts of the position do not appear. We have already expressed our sympathy, clear and decided, with the "Grand Conseil," but we fear that men's minds are too heated just now to accept either pleas of moderation or the traditions of honour, justice, and truth. We fear that with the animus prevalent in some quarters in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in France there is a tendency to "extreme measures," both of defiance, of authority, and revolutionary change, and while we still feel how unjust is this violent excitement, this rampant insubordination to the governing body on the hierarchical and sovereign principles of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite itself, we will add another expression of hope that calmer counsels and moderate measures may yet prevail.

WEST LANCASHIRE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

We are so much struck with the report of this excellent Charity, so much so that we think it right to call the attention of our readers to it, and support the earnest appeal of the Committee for continuous and increased support. It is impossible to overrate its utility and needs, as a few figures will speedily show. It was founded in 1850, and from 1850 to 1863 it expended £780 11s. 9d. in the prosecution of its laudable designs, its philanthropic efforts. From 1863 to 1878 its payments have amounted to £4647 16s., and in 1878 it reached the highest amount, £580 16s. 1d. With this sum it helps the education and advancement in life of eighty-nine children, of whom forty-four are girls, and forty-five are boys. The highest sum paid for any child is James Mott, £30; the lowest is E. Warlington, £1 8s. 9d. The Association has now £14,900 invested and luckily for it, it has been that in past years its resources have been husbanded, as the donations and subscriptions from brethren do not now cover its working expenses. Its annual balance-sheet is as follows:—It had a balance at the bank of £306 5s. 7d., and received from investment, &c., £755 5s. 10d.; from Masonic hall, Liverpool, £103 10s. 9d.; Provincial Grand Lodge Charity Fund, £105; donations and subscriptions, £469 9s. 6d.; interest £2 15s. 8d.; in all £1742 6s. 7d. Its expenditure for education of children, &c., was £580 16s. 1d.; it purchased stock £807 18s.; it paid for stationery and small expenses £24, and had a balance in hand of £329 12s. 6d. Such is the resumé of twelve months' work of a very useful Provincial Institution, and such we commend to the notice and approval of our readers.

OUR NATIONAL FINANCES.

We cannot concur with the gloomy estimate which our contemporary, the Times, is pleased to take of our "financial position" in respect of the Chancellor of the Exchequer's Budget, neither do we profess to understand the principle on which this melancholy, (rather morbid), view of our financial struggles has been arrived at. If we understand figures, as we hope we do, they tell us a very different tale, apart from interested speculations or party "discounting," and we venture to think, on the contrary, though not as good, and certainly not as cheerful as they might be, they are yet coloured with a brighter gleam of hope, are yet suggestive of slight, and, let us trust, increasing improvement. As we read the figures, they amount to this; a deficit, though not in some items, but on the whole, if a loss on the quarter, a gain on the half year, and the twelve months. The decrease in the quarter appears to be £100,305, mainly, as was to be expected, on the Customs and Excise; the gain of £332,695 on other items being counterbalanced by a deficiency of £433,000. On the half year the increase is not large, for it only amounts to £4050, still it is an increase and not a decrease, and we can afford just now to be thankful for "small blessings." On the twelve months ending Sept. 30th, the increase is £3,322,351, with a decrease of £653,000. The whole amount for the twelve months ending September 30th, 1879, being £83,102,022, as against £79,797,671, and though, no doubt, the main increase is on the Income Tax, yet stamps give us an increase of £163,000, the Post Office of £40,000, and repayment of interest £183,004. The loss on Excise and Customs amounts to £619,000—£189,000 for Customs and £430,000 for Excise. Considering the exceptionally hard times we have lately gone through, for trade has been very bad in almost every branch, we are not surprised at such a statement, but we are inclined to believe from a comparison of the quarters ending September 30th, 1878, and September 30th, 1879, that good hopes may yet be entertained of a "rally" before next April in the important matter of "Customs" and "Excise." It would have indeed been strange if Customs and Excise had not fallen with the national barometer of prosperous or unprosperous trade, and we ought, we think, instead of complaining, to be glad that matters are so worse. We trust sincerely that with 1880 we may witness renewed confidence and reviving trade, and that the onward tide of increasing national prosperity may float our good ship "Britannia" beyond the gloomy breakers of deficits and debts. We venture to think, not being politicians, that a good deal of exaggeration in view of a coming election prevails on such matters, and that, after all, the Chancellor of the Exchequer may yet, in 1880, be able, if not quite to "balance his accounts," to exhibit no very alarming deficit.

BRO. COLEMAN'S MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1879 AND 1880, AND HIS ACCOUNT OF MASONIC IMPOSTORS, TRAMPS, &c., IN AMERICA.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Our R.W. Bro. Dr. Robert Morris, of La Grange, Kentucky, United States, has most kindly sent me a copy of this most interesting and valuable annual, which contains the names and addresses of the fifty-four Grand Lodges of America and Canada, also of their Grand Officers, and the names and location of the 10,000 lodges holding under them; also the names and address of nearly every Grand Lodge, Grand Royal Arch Chapter, and Masonic Body over the whole globe.

Amongst other interesting and valuable information is an article, by R.W. Bro. Morris, on the Jewish half-shekel, widow's mite, &c.

The calendar also gives most valuable statistics, by M. Ill. Bro. Josiah H. Drummond, and a list of all American Relief Committees.

This short note of its contents will show how valuable this work will be to all brethren who have Masonic correspondence abroad, and how its perusal will well repay any brother.

Bro. Coleman, at page 95, gives most interesting accounts of Masonic impostors, tramps, &c., and names a great many leading American ones, adding, "But I might accumulate page upon page of such notices. There are not less than 500 of those leeches to-day sucking the blood out of our Masonic Charities."

Doubtless few of your readers will be prepared for such a statement, but there can be no doubt of it from the facts stated by Bro. Coleman.

Now, as our Masonic lodges will be renewing their meetings this month and next, I would like to call their attention to this matter.

Bro. Coleman states from his own experience and that of the many brethren whom he has consulted, and amongst whom are our venerable and esteemed R.W. Bro. Theodore S. Parvin, Grand Secretary of Iowa, and R. Ex. Comp. Christopher G. Fox, Grand Secretary of Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States, that the following are good rules to guard against these impostors, tramps, &c.

1st. To ascertain that there is the lodge the applicant states he hails from, as American applicants sometimes hail from lodges which do not exist, or from what are called Black Lodges, which are not recognised in these countries. This can be ascertained from the proceedings of the respective Grand Lodges, or Bro. Coleman's calendar.

2nd. Always, if possible, to telegraph to the lodge to know the standing of the applicant in it, and if the applicant be an impostor or a tramp he will become very indignant, and make an excuse for his departure, and not wanting the relief at the time.

Not long since an applicant sought to gain admission as a Grand Master to a lodge here, but who was found to belong to one of these Black Lodges, and of course refused, and being shown our Masonic buildings and the matter explained to him, he was quite pleased and satisfied.

I need not say I am proud to find such brethren as Bros. Parvin, Fox, and Coleman approve of the system of telegraphing—I long since urged it in a letter you kindly inserted; and I would again most strongly, and from longer experience, urge even more strongly than before its use before giving relief.

I remain, yours, fraternally,

JAMES H. NEILSON.

32, Lower Leeson-street, Dublin,
2nd October, 1879.

CAN WE NON-CONFIRM?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A lodge issues a summons convening a regular meeting. Business: passing Bro. Brown; raising Bro. Smith; election of W.M. for the ensuing year. There are a majority of brethren desirous of electing a Past Master, instead of the S.W., who has made himself very unpopular. The S.W. and his friends are at the posts at the hour named on the summons, open the lodge, and read the minutes. Before any one else is admitted into the lodge the W.M. says they will now proceed to elect the W.M. for next year, and so gain the election by three votes before others are admitted known to be in favour of the P.M. Can the minutes be upset at the next meeting on account of the election not being taken in the order of business on the paper?

Yours fraternally,

E. L.

[The minute of election can be non-confirmed at next meeting on any ground the voters think well to take, so far, that is, as is proper, legal, and Masonic. If this election, as it seems, is the result of a "trick," it will be properly non-confirmed by the majority. All our brother has to do is to move "the non-confirmation of that portion of the minutes relating to the election of the W.M." The lodge will then proceed to ballot for a W.M. This position is, however, to be deprecated, as the W.M. will not have served his twelve months.—E. F. M.]

Reviews.

UNIFORMITY OF MASONIC RITUAL AND OBSERVANCE. By Bro. JAMES STEVENS. W. W. Morgan, 67, Barbican.

We have never changed our opinion on this vexata questio. We expressed it strongly years ago, and time only confirms our objections to meddling interference with our established system. There never has been perfect uniformity of ritual in our English system, and there never can be, owing to the imperfections of the human memory, unless, indeed, we resort to that most objectionable, and idle, and worthless of all proceedings, a printed ritual. Before the Union in 1813 more that one system was in vogue in England, and since the Union certain allowable differences may be traced by the careful observer in the "working" in various parts of England. There is the Emulation working, for instance, based on Williams' corrections, now very popular and widely used. There is the working, which our good old Bro. Muggeridge preserves so carefully in the Stability Lodge of Improvement, and which is the earlier stage of the Emulation. There is the Prestonian working, which was the predominant working until 1813, and which still prevails in many parts, and there are lodges, like the Lodge of Antiquity, with special ceremonies. So long as in all these workings the landmarks of the Order and the appurtena of Freemasonry are strictly and studiously preserved, there is no reason why we should not allow these slight differences, and any attempt to reduce all working to one stereotyped form could only result in a period of "cram" and parrot-like performance. A Board of Ritual Preceptors would do more harm than good, and though we doubt not Bro. Stevens' zeal, in our opinion that zeal outruns his discretion, and we feel quite persuaded ourselves that Grand Lodge will never consent to any such proposition. It is alike unnecessary, uncalled for, and, in our opinion, will be utterly injurious to industry and energy in our officers, and to true, and educated, and sensible Freemasonry amongst us.

THE REALITIES OF FREEMASONRY. By Mrs. BLAKE. Chapman and Hall, 193, Piccadilly.

We rise from the perusal of this work, (well printed as it is), with mingled feelings of wonder and curiosity. We cannot quite understand it—its "raison d'être," the cause of its appearance. For it tells us nothing we did not know before, and throws no new light on the realities, or objects, or work of Freemasonry. It is practically a reprint of well-known Masonic documents, a statement of facts and views as regards Freemasonry, resting too often on the "picturesque" but unsafe authority of Clavel, and of works which in our modern criticism are not now acknowledged as reliable teachers or trustworthy guides. Indeed, it is to us nothing but what can be found in well-known manuals. Mrs. Blake, with some admiration for the benevolent aspect and work of Freemasonry, seems to lean, curiously enough, in much, at any rate, to the mistaken, most mistaken, Ultramontane theory of Masonic existence, formularies, and work. If we are to judge from her words, she clearly does not recognize either the mission, or the need, or the benefits of Freemasonry at this epoch in the history of civilization and the annals of the world. Mrs. Blake accepts the Georgian era of Masonic life, and repudiates the connection between speculative Masonry and Guild Masonry. She also accepts the Romish distinction between Freemasonry in England and Freemasonry abroad, and brands all foreign Freemasonry with the stigma of revolutionary and destructive principles. While, therefore, we note the publication of this work as a feature of the hour, significant both of the curiosity of the reading public and the present prestige of our Order, we must beg respectfully to dissent from its supposed "reality" and "realism" as explaining what Freemasonry is, and can only remember it among many similar publications, which have no real worth and no "staying power" as authoritative expositions of a remarkable Order, beyond gratifying an idle love for exposition of "mysteries," and an "ad captandum" sentiment of unsatisfactory "cram" in respect of recondite truths and mysterious symbolism. While we say this we feel bound to recognize the carefulness with which Mrs. Blake has collected and arranged her available authorities, though we cannot assent to her deductions, nor can we concur in her conclusions. The work is a remarkable work, even in its errors, omissions, and weaknesses, for a non-Mason to have put together.

HOW I VOLUNTEERED FOR THE CAPE. By

T. E. FENN. Tinsley and Co.

This amusing work is the production of a son of our esteemed and well-known Bro. Thomas Fenn, for not to know that good Masonic ritualist and teacher is really to argue oneself Masonically unknown. For his sake the work would have deserved, had even its merits been less conspicuous than they really are, notice in the Freemason. But having read the book we can safely commend it to the attention of our many readers, as containing a truthful and effective picture of striking events and a desperate struggle. If any wish to know the real difficulties of "bush warfare," if any are desirous to realize the conditions of an encounter between civilization and barbarism in a far-off land, if any seek to master the "facts of the case," and to appreciate how well our soldiers, and sailors, and volunteers "went to the front" and "fought it out," obedient to the calls of duty, let them open the interesting pages of Mr. Fenn's work, and master alike his lively illustrations and animated descriptions of "stiff service" and "hard blows." We have in this book a very lucid, but we feel sure, truthful description of what all went through who have taken part in the Zulu war, and we think that no candid reader can rise from it without feeling proud of numerous heroes of our race and land, and without thanking the writer of it for a most readable and instructive work. It says a good deal for the author's pluck and patriotic feeling that, instead of leading an idle life at home, as too many do to-day, he volunteered for work, and danger, and rough doing, and bad fare, anxious as the son of a good Mason to demonstrate his loyalty as an Englishman, and his devotion as a volunteer.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

CHARLES MARTEL.

My esteemed friend, Bro. Hughan, is not (for once) quite correct as to Charles Martel. He is referred to at lines 579, 580, 581, and 589 in Matthew Cooke's MS. as Carolus Secundus and Charles the Second, and is, no doubt, the same as mentioned in all the subsequent prose contributions. Charles Martel did give laws and privileges to the French Masonic Guilds, as Depping shows us. There is no reference to Charles Martel in Halliwell's poem.

A. F. A. W.

THE QUATUOR CORONATI.

Masonic students are indebted to Bro. Gould for reviving this interesting question. Findel's argument as to un-Teutonic origin of the "Ars Quatuor" of English Masonry is clearly unhistorical. The allusions to the "Coronati" probably date even before 600, though it would be interesting to hear when these names first appeared in the Roman Service Book. Perhaps some one can tell us what is the date of the "earliest service book" known in England or at Rome.

"P.M. No. 1 (S.C.)" AND MELROSE LODGE, &c.

I do not care to say aught as to the relative positions of the lodges under the Grand Lodge of Scotland—which existed prior to its formation—in the event of the old lodge at Melrose agreeing to enter its fold, but, doubtless, the members of Grand Lodge would do much for the sake of peace and harmony, should the much-wished-for union occur, as they did in 1807 and since. The note of warning, however, which a writer has sounded under the signature of "P.M. No. 1, S.C." must not be disregarded, and, therefore, I trust that the authorities "across the border" will carefully consider his letter in the Freemason of last week. As a member (honorary) of Nos. 0, 1, and 5, Scotland, I may be excused saying this much, but yet I have so great a longing to see old Melrose Lodge fall into line that I fraternally advise the terms to be made as easy and honourable as possible to all concerned. Our Bro. Vernon will soon announce his complete account of his researches, which, it must be remembered, have culminated in the tracing of one of the oldest Masonic MSS. in Scotland.

W. J. HUGHAN.

ANOTHER MASONIC M.S., AND STILL ANOTHER!

In May, 1874, our zealous Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., stated in the "Masonic Magazine," relative to the reproduction of the "Halliwell MS." (modernised version), "It is just possible that this publication may lead to the search for, and discovery of, other Constitutions, and if so, Bro. Hughan's efforts and mine will be amply rewarded." Since that period we have, together and with other co-workers, traced more MSS. than were known twenty years ago, and we have not yet arrived at the end of our researches. Every now and then a copy of the "Old Charges" is being found, and ere long we shall have quite a number to reproduce for the information of the Craft universal. I have the pleasure to announce the discovery of another old MS., which has been in the most handsome manner placed in my hands (to examine and transcribe) by our illustrious Bro. Colonel Shadwell H. Clarke, P.G.D., &c. It is written on two parchment skins, which are sewn together, and bears on a most ornate illumination at the head the inscription "J. 2d., R., 1686," i.e., James the Second, King, A.D. 1686. It is, therefore, the same date as the Antiquity MS., and is an exact reproduction of the Dowland MS., save as to the orthography, which, in many respects, is an improvement on that version. The illumination contains two fine ovals, within which are the arms of the City of London and that of the operative Freemasons. It was found lately in Wales, and my own impression is that the document is the missing Masons' Company MS., and so I have informed Colonel Clarke. Our brother has consented to my copying it, and then intends to place it in the valuable library of the Supreme Council, 33°, London, which already is especially rich in uniques, and then will contain one of the most perfect and ornate MSS. known. I hope ere long to announce another MS. which is in the fine collection of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite."

W. J. HUGHAN.

MELROSE LODGE.

In your issue of last week I observe a note by a P.M. of No. 1, Edinburgh, upon the above subject in which he makes some rather dogmatic assertions, upon the authority of "Bro. W. C. Buchan, a well-known and well qualified Masonic archaeological inquirer," who, it seems, had "visited Melrose and examined the whole records and documents of the lodge, but found nothing instructing its existence beyond the earliest date of its minutes, 1678." I am sorry to confess that this is the first time I ever heard of this well-known brother, still my ignorance of his existence does not affect his qualification as a Masonic archaeologist. I have no doubt his researches are accurate in the main and are of great value, and I shall only be too pleased to sit at his feet and study his works if any brother will kindly direct my attention to them, but I must question his accuracy in the present instance if he asserts that the earliest minutes of the Melrose Lodge are those of 1678, and that "he was satisfied that it had no other evidence to produce" of its antiquity. Upon this "P.M. No. 1, S.C." asserts that no evidence has since been discovered either in the lodge's own possession or elsewhere. I am in an position to prove the contrary, having seen documents of an earlier date, and a minute of 1674. I have neither time nor inclination to enter into a correspondence upon this subject, but I cannot but remark that the writer of the note I refer to does not seem to take up the matter in a fraternal spirit; his remarks anent Melrose Lodge seem to partake of a sneering tone, the expressions "a lodge so weak as that of Melrose" (I believe this weak lodge has about 200 members), "it need not expect that these lodges will stand tamely by," seem to me to be wanting in one of our first principles, Charity. I have nothing whatever to do with Melrose Lodge, only in the course of my investigations into the history of some of the Border lodges I came across this anomaly in our midst, an ancient and flourishing lodge, which is unrecognised by the Craft in general—hence my first communication.

BRO. AARON WINKUP, P.M. 1356.

As we briefly announced last week, Bro. Aaron Winkup, who was greatly esteemed by a wide circle of Masonic and other friends in Liverpool, died at his residence in Crown street, on Friday, the 26th ult., after an illness of considerable duration. The mortal remains of our deceased brother were interred in the Necropolis, West Derby-road, Liverpool, on Monday the 29th ult., and the wide cherished respect felt for the memory of the deceased was shown by the attendance of about 100 brethren. The deceased had the distinguished privilege of being the first P.M. of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge, No. 1356, and was also a P.M. of the Alliance Lodge, No. 667. Amongst the members of the fraternity present were Bros. Councillor W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823; Councillor E. Grindley, 1547; A. Woolrich, W.M. 1356; Treasurer 1609; J. Keet, J.W. 1356; H.P. Squire, S.D. 1356; E. O. C. Rothwell, P.M. 1356; H. Firth, W.M. 667; J. Ellis, P.M. 667; J. R. Goepel, P.P. G.D.C.; J. E. Jackson, P.G.S. of W.; T. Shaw, P.M. 823; W. Philipps, P.M. 667; T. Roberts, P.M. 673; A. Morrison, P.M. 1570; W. Brackenbury, W.M. 673; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594; M. Corless, P.M. 594; T. Clark, P.M. 673; R. Pearson, P.M., 673; Urnson, P.M. 667; W. Evans, W. Jacobs, 673; R. Fairclough, 1356; W. Gamble, 249; C. Campion, 1609; J. Hughes, W. Humphries, Kropman, J. Kirkman, Baker, Ellison, W. Parrington, Bolton, P.M. 667; Devaynes, P.M. 667; Peake, J.W. 667; Campbell, 249; J. Horner, 1356; R. Douglas, and others. The majority of the brethren walked from Crown-street to the Necropolis, preceded by the hearse and three carriages, the first containing three sons of the deceased; the second, Messrs. Tomlinson (senior and junior), Mr. A. Scott, London, and Mr. S. Hughes; and the third, Bro. Councillor S. E. Ibbes, P.P.G.S.B., Dr. Sinclair, Mr. C. Milbourn, and Mr. Williams. There were also present at the funeral Messrs. Luke Barber, Rankin, R. S. Milbourn, J. Milbourn, H. Shimmin, and other gentlemen. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Rees Evans, the clergyman attached to the Necropolis.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. GEORGE CHAMBERS.

In response to a suggestion that a Masonic Testimonial in the shape of a purse of money should be presented to Bro. George Chambers, head waiter at the Cannon-street Hotel, in recognition of the very courteous and at all times most efficient discharge of his duties, a Committee has been formed, composed of members of the various lodges and chapters meeting at Cannon-street Hotel, to give effect to the proposition.

The following is the preliminary Committee:—Bros. Captain Kain, P.M. 766, Chairman, pro. tem.; George Kenning, P.Z. 192, Treasurer; George Newman, P.M., P.Z. 192, 766, &c., Hon. Sec.; George Abbott, P.M. 192; A. Braun, M.E.Z. 766; F. D. Rees Copestick, P.P. G.S.B. Herts, &c.; Edwd. B. Grabham, P.M. and Hon. Sec. 19; Dr. Kempster, H. 766; Henry Muggidge, P.M., &c.; John Harper, P.M. and Steward St. Paul's Lodge, 194. The co-operation of brethren who may be willing to assist in promoting the object in view is solicited.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED.

Table with columns for lodge names and amounts in £ s. d. format. Includes entries for Panmure Lodge, Bro. Henry Muggidge, St. Thomas Lodge, etc.

Bro. Major Chard, V.C., has been granted leave of absence, and received Her Majesty's commands to proceed to Balmoral.

The October Quarterly General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will be held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, this day (Saturday) at twelve o'clock. The election will commence at one o'clock and close at three precisely. There are vacancies for eighteen girls, for which there are forty-eight applicants.

Lord Brougham, when practising at the Scotch bar, joined a yatching party to the Western Isles. All of the party, excepting himself, were Freemasons. Having been invited by the brethren of the Lodge Fortrose, Stornaway, to pay them a visit, Brougham was entered, passed, and raised upon that occasion. On returning to Edinburgh, Lord Brougham affiliated with the Lodge Canon-gate Kilwinning, and was a frequent attendant, until he removed to London, where his busy political life so absorbed his attention that we hear nothing further of his Masonic career. He never appears to have held Masonic office.—The Krystone.

Masonic and General Tidings.

ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED SCOTTISH RITE.—A Grand Council of Illustrious Knights K.H., 30°, will be held at 33, Golden-square, on Tuesday next, the 14th October.

A Quarterly General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be held on Monday next, the 13th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London.

A warrant has just been granted for the St. Leonard's Lodge, No. 1842, to meet at the Warrior-square Concert Rooms, St. Leonard's-on-Sea. The day of consecration is not yet fixed.

Bro. Kuhe, P.G.O. England, gave the first of his annual series of pianoforte recitals on Wednesday afternoon to a crowded and fashionable audience at the Pavilion, Brighton. Mr. Carrodus, the eminent violinist, and other artists, assisted at the performance.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Langthorne Lodge of Instruction, No. 1421, on Wednesday next, the 15th inst., at the Swan Hotel, Stratford. The various Sections will be performed as follows:—

Bro. Walter Wood, 193, Acting Secretary.

The dinner which was to have been given by the members of the Wanderers' Club on Thursday to Bro. Major Chard, Bro. Major Bromhead, Surgeon-Major Reynolds, and the other defenders of Rorke's Drift who have received the Victoria Cross, has been postponed until the return of Major Chard from Balmoral.

The Queen will, according to present arrangements, leave Balmoral the second week in November, and the stay of the Empress Eugénie at Aberfeldie will terminate at the same time. The Court will pass four weeks at Windsor, and will then remove to Osborne for a couple of months. If the Queen goes abroad next spring she will start about the middle of March.

The installation meeting of the Eccleston Lodge, No. 1624, takes place on Wednesday next, at the Grosvenor Hall, Ebury-street, Pimlico, when Bro. Wm. Vincent will be installed, W.M. A report will appear in due course.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—[ADVT.]

Bro. J. L. Toole will officiate at the laying of the foundation stone of the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, this (Saturday) afternoon.

We understand that R.W. Bro. Sir George Elliot, Bart., M.P., intends to dedicate to the public a plot of ground in a prominent part of his estate, and commanding a fine view of the sea, upon which the hon. baronet will erect a monument to Captain Cook, the celebrated circumnavigator, who was a native of the locality of Whitby, near to which he served his apprenticeship.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs, set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s., sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—ADVT.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This old lodge held its first regular meeting since the vacation at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on the 30th ult. There were present Bros. Charles Dairy, W.M.; Rumball, S.W.; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; W. Stuart, P.M., Sec.; E. Mallett, I.P.M.; Heaphy, S.D.; Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx., J.D. (Freemason); Clark, I.G.; Titley, W.S.; Abrahams, D.C.; Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., P.M.; Green, P.M.; Cobham, P.M. The visitors were Bros. Millar, Robert Burns; H. Smith, Lodge of Israel; J. Andrews, Royal Union; A. Coleman, P.M. 1306; W. Bate, 1306; T. Murrey, 1475. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Hart and initiated Messrs. Harrison and Burchon, both ceremonies being well performed. The election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler resulted unanimously in favour of Bros. Rumball, Carter, and Longstaffe. The election of trustees of the Benevolent Fund then took place, and Bros. Hopwood, Green, and Rumball were duly and unanimously elected. The resignation of Bro. Taylor, P.M., was received, and accepted with regret. Bros. Walls, Holland, Holmes, Catmur, Whitby, and Clark were elected unanimously upon the Committee of the Benevolent Fund. The Audit Committee were appointed to examine the accounts on the 14th inst. Previously to the lodge being closed, upon the motion of the I.P.M., a Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to the W.M. Bro. Dairy having returned thanks for the honour awarded him, then presented the lodge with a shield, emblazoned with the arms of the lodge, for affixing to the Master's chair. This gift having been accepted with acclamation, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was admirably served by Bro. Clemow in the new, commodious, and thoroughly ventilated hall attached to his establishment, and which building might favourably challenge comparison with any similar place of Masonic rendezvous in London. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave with commendable brevity the preliminary toasts. In giving "The W.M.," the I.P.M. congratulated Bro. Dairy upon the great success that had attended his year of office. He had been exceedingly fortunate in respect to the number and quality of the candidates that had entered the portals of the old Faith Lodge. The proceedings also had been throughout exceedingly harmonious, and on his retirement he (the W.M.) would carry with him the good wishes of every individual member. (Hear, hear.) The Worshipful Master having briefly replied, then proposed "The Initiates," in which he expressed a hope that they would never regret the step that they had taken that day in enrolling themselves members of the ancient Craft. He trusted they would endeavour to carry out in their every-day life the principles that they had heard climated that evening in the lodge. The W.M. then concluded by briefly touching upon several other matters in connection with the Order. The initiates having returned thanks, the toast of "The Visitors" immediately followed, and was acknowledged in fitting terms by Bro. Coleman, P.M., and others. On introducing the toast of "The Past Masters," the W.M. said that as the hour was late he should connect that toast with "The Officers." The Past Masters of the Lodge of Faith were not only a large but a most influential body. Many of them had distinguished themselves in other lodges, and in other grades of Masonry. He was particularly pleased that one of their oldest members, Bro. Carter, should have been unanimously re-elected for the nineteenth time their Treasurer. (Hear.) Another old Past Master had rendered himself exceedingly valuable to him, the W.M., during his year of office, namely, Bro. Stuart, their Secretary, and he took that opportunity of expressing his thanks to him. With respect to the other officers he had also to thank them as a body for their attendance and assistance. In concluding his remarks he congratulated the lodge upon their unanimously electing the Senior Warden as W.M. for the ensuing year. No brother in the lodge was more capable of carrying out the duties of the chair than

Bro. Rumball, and he hoped that his health would permit him to attend to the responsibilities of his position without inconvenience or harm. This toast having been warmly received, Bros. Hopwood, P.M., Clark, Titley, and others responded. The Tyler's toast then terminated the proceedings.

JOPPA LODGE (No. 188).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 6th inst., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. The minutes of the last regular lodge, as well as an emergency meeting, were read and confirmed; the W.M., Bro. M. Spiegel, in the chair; Bros. Henry Hymans, S.W.; R. Baker, as J.W. (in the absence of Bro. Campion, who sent a telegram to the W.M. expressing his inability to attend, having that day met with an accident); Lewis Alexander, sen., P.M., as I.P.M.; E. P. Albert, P.G.P., Secretary; H. Levy, P.M.; Maurice Alexander, P.M.; S. L. Hickman, P.M.; A. G. Dodson, Lewis Lazarus, P.M., and a large number of members of the lodge. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Constantine Burk, Prov. G.M. of Jamaica, &c., &c.; T. Poore, P.M. 720; W. Klingenstein, J. Grunebaun, P.M. 1017; J. Lazarus, W.M. 1017, and others. The candidate whose name appeared on the summons for initiation was not in attendance, the business therefore consisted of an election for Treasurer, the result of which was almost unanimous in favour of Bro. J. S. Lyons. Two distressed brethren appealed to the lodge for assistance—in each case a small sum was awarded. The lodge was closed shortly after seven o'clock. The brethren then retired to partake of a sumptuous banquet, worthy of the Albion Tavern, under the superintendence of Bro. Jennings. The W.M. having proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. E. P. Albert, P.G.P., responded for "The Grand Officers." The W.M. then proposed "The Joppa Benevolent Fund," which he made the special toast of the evening, and coupled with it the name of Bro. Lewis Alexander, sen., P.M., and President of the fund. Bro. L. Alexander replied to the toast in suitable terms, in the course of which he informed the brethren that although frequent and heavy claims had been made on the fund during the last eighteen months, he was glad to say there was a balance of nearly £1100 to the credit of the fund. "The I.P.M. proposed 'The Health of the W.M.," which was well received by the brethren. The W.M. briefly replied, and then proposed "The Health of the Visitors," which was received most heartily by the brethren, and responded to by Bros. Burk and Poore, the former of whom expatiated on the vast amount of good Freemasonry had effected in the colonies, which had come to his knowledge. Bro. T. Poore, in the course of his reply, said that he felt great pleasure in stating that he had derived all the knowledge he possessed of Masonic ritual from Bro. L. Alexander, P.M., and complimented the lodge on having a member so well versed in the lore of the Craft, &c. Bro. Alexander, sen., P.M., returned thanks for "The Past Masters," and in the course of the reply advised some of the younger brethren not to lose sight of the honour and dignity of the lodge while they were enjoying themselves at the festive board. The vocal entertainment (which was provided by the W.M.) was thoroughly enjoyed by the brethren, and the meeting terminated pleasantly.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—The installation and sixth anniversary meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday afternoon, the 11th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. James Freeman, W.M., presided, and all the other officers were in their places. Amongst the members present were the Past Masters, Bros. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain and Chaplain of the lodge; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; H. Thompson, P.M. 177 and 1158 (Freemason); E. Moody, Sec.; N. B. Headon, P.M. and Treas.; and the following visitors:—Bros. Bissett, 405, S.C.; J. Goulden, 854; C. A. Frost, 1728, Temple Bar; T. Gütens, 1056; W. Earl, 1695; T. Poore, P.M. 720; G. H. Thomas, W.M. 1632; G. W. Saul, W.M. 1201; Percival, W.M. 1647; E. J. Renaud, 1607; J. Painter, P.M. 749; F. Greenall, 275; T. Eastgate, 1563; H. T. Tiddeman, 813; G. Block, 859; Wethult, 1601; W. Partridge, 1445; A. Jamieson, 1270; W. W. Morgan, 1385; T. Lawrence, 1804; and R. H. Pearson, 1196. The lodge having been opened by the W. Master, and the minutes read and confirmed, the chair was taken by Bro. N. B. Headon, P.M., and the lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Blackie, S.W. and W.M. elect, was presented to receive the benefit of installation. The usual forms having been gone through, and the brethren below the chair retired, a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Blackie was installed as Master of the lodge. He appointed his officers as follows: Bros. Catchpole, S.W.; Hamer, J.W.; Simpson, Chaplain; Headon, Treas.; Moody, Sec.; Taylor, S.D.; Kittle, J.D.; Keeble, I.G.; Bate, D.C.; Jenkins, Org.; Fendick, Steward; Potter, Asst. Steward; Steedman, P.M., Tyler. Bro. Headon then resumed the ceremony, and gave the usual addresses in a most careful and correct manner, which elicited unanimous approval from the large body of Masons assembled. Some notices of motion having been given, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the large hall, in which the customary banquet was to take place. The W. Master presided, supported by the Grand Officers and visitors, and both the fare and the attendance were unexceptionable, and reflected the highest credit upon Bro. Rand, the manager of the establishment. At the conclusion of the repast "Non nobis Domine" was sung by Bros. Frost, Hanson, and Kempson. On the removal of the cloth, the W. Master said the first toast of the evening was one that was usual in all gatherings of Englishmen, as it was the health of the Queen, and Freemasons always did honour to that toast. He proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was drunk, and followed by the National Anthem. The Worshipful Master then said: Brethren, the next toast I have the honour to propose is "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales." I think we have much to congratulate ourselves on the fact that so high a person as the Heir Apparent to the throne is our Grand Master, and I am assured that he feels the deepest interest in Freemasonry, and takes great care of our affairs. It is well for Freemasonry that that high position is filled by the Prince of Wales, who at all times takes deep interest in the affairs of the Craft. With these few observations I give you "The Health of the Prince of Wales, our Grand Master." The toast was enthusiastically responded to. The Worshipful Master said the next toast he had the honour to propose was rather a comprehensive one, and he feared that it was so comprehensive that he should be unable to do justice to it. It was "The Right Worshipful Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present." In the Right Worshipful Pro Grand Master there was little doubt that they had a good working brother, and one who was able to undertake all the duties of the Grand Master in his absence. All who had had an opportunity of attending the Grand Lodge knew well how very pleasantly he went into all matters brought forward, and how ably his duties were discharged. As regarded Lord Skelmersdale they might say "ditto," and the Craft had just reason to be proud of him. As to the rest of the Grand Officers they were too numerous to go through then, but they had two present with them that evening, Bros. Simpson and Fenn, but he should associate this toast with the name of Bro. Fenn, P.G.D. The toast was enthusiastically received. Bro. Fenn, P.G.D., said: Worshipful Master, I beg to thank you on the part of the Grand Officers for the compliment you have not only paid them, but to me in coupling my name with the toast, a compliment which properly belongs to Bro. Simpson, who takes precedence of me in Grand Lodge. I may say that I have been a Grand Officer for fifteen years, and with the arduous duties which devolve upon me I have endeavoured to execute what I have undertaken to the best of my ability, with willingness and cheerfulness. It is with great regret that I miss from my side one of the Grand Officers, and one who has rendered more service to the Craft than any other Grand Officer living, and I must say that before this I have never been present at this lodge without having Bro. Hervey at my side. I have been associated with him for many years, and long before he ever became a Grand Officer, but I fear that I shall never again see him occupying that active position in Freemasonry so characteristic of him. I hope, however, with returning strength and careful treatment we may occasionally see him amongst us. Brethren, in allusion to the services that the Grand Officers are always willing to perform, I cannot help, in mentioning the name of Bro. Hervey, remarking that he has belonged to the Lodge of Emulation for thirty-three years as its Treasurer, and has been a most active working Mason. He is one of the links between the past and the present, for the Lodge of Emulation depends upon tradition for the excellence of its working, and there were but three who had derived their teaching in a direct line from Bro. Peter Gilkes, revised by Bro. Williams, and happy am I to say that a link is not wanting to keep up the Emulation ancient system of working. While I am alluding to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, I may say that I feel so much interest in its working that I am present there about forty nights out of the fifty-two weeks of the year, and our simple duty is to preserve in its integrity the system as handed down to us by Peter Gilkes and Stephen Barton Wilson, there being only two links between them and the Lodge of Reconciliation, by whom it was concocted. We wish to preserve what has thus been handed to us without alteration, and while we do not attempt to alter some slight anachronisms, we have endeavoured to hand down the pure system of working, and I would strongly recommend you all to follow the same course. I trust that you will not allow any pretended reform or correction to be made in the ancient working of Freemasonry, for it is my firm belief that if you attempt to reform or correct the ritual of Freemasonry it will be very difficult to find out where to begin, but you will never be able to find out where you should leave off. In the name of the Grand Officers I thank you for the honour conferred upon them. There were calls for Bro. Simpson, who said he had no wish to make a speech upon the speech which Bro. Fenn had just delivered, as he had great pleasure in giving way to him, although nominally he stood before him in the Grand Lodge. He had given them a few practical remarks, and the subject of them he had most admirably dilated upon. He hoped that they would give him (Bro. Simpson) absolution for coming so late to the lodge, as he thought the installation would not begin until five o'clock. He had previously a little duty to perform, and he thought he should have arrived in time, but he was glad to have had the opportunity of making this apology and to wish success to the Great City Lodge, and also to the W.M. in the chair. Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., rose, and said that the toast he had to propose was one that gave him great pleasure, as it was "The Health of the W. Master." He was sure that there was not a member of the lodge but was highly pleased to see Bro. Blackie installed as the W. Master. He had been connected with the lodge since its foundation, and had gone through all the offices, and no man had done the working of them with more credit to himself than Bro. Blackie. He was about to say that no man ever did the work better in this lodge or any other. However they might have the work done by other Masters, he felt satisfied that they would see it well done by their W. Master. During his year he (Bro. Freeman) was certain that they would give him all the duty and order he required at their hands, both in the lodge and at the banquet table, and when the time came when he should sit in the place that he (Bro. Freeman) occupied they would be able to confirm what he then expressed. Praises were fulsome, but they might safely trust Bro. Blackie for the way in which he would conduct himself in the Great City Lodge. In conclusion he proposed "The Health of the W. Master." The W. Master said he begged sincerely to thank Bro. Freeman for the very kind way in which he had proposed the toast of his health, and the brethren for their unanimous reception of it. He had been connected with the lodge from its consecration, and from the time he received the first collar he was determined to perform the duties of the office to perfection if he should be able to do so. He had gone through the various offices from the bottom to the top, and he believed that he had done so to the satisfaction of the different Masters who had come to the chair, and now by electing him to the chair they had passed the highest honours upon him, and in return for that compliment he would perform the duties to the best of his ability, and he hoped to be able, if not to excel, at any rate to work up to as high a standard as had been arrived at by those who had gone before. The W. Master said the next toast was one that he had peculiar pleasure in proposing, which was that of "The Visitors," and he on the part of the Great City Lodge gave them a hearty welcome. In response to this toast the visitors severally returned thanks. The W. Master, in giving the next toast, "The Immediate Past Master, the Installing Master, and the Past Masters," said he should skip over the first part of the toast, and for the instant thank Bro. Headon for the very creditable manner in which he had performed the ceremony of placing him in the chair, and in no lodge had he seen the installation ceremony performed in so careful a manner as on this occasion. Bro. Headon had got the task thoroughly at heart, and he had never heard it done better by him except when he installed his successor. As to Bro. Freeman, in recognition of his services, the brethren had agreed to present him with a Past Master's jewel, and he was very happy in being the medium of making that presentation. He had great pleasure in presenting it to him, and long might he be spared to wear it, as it could not fail of being a reminder of the many happy hours he had spent in the Great City Lodge. Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., said he thanked the W. Master for the very flattering manner in which he had proposed his health, and the brethren for drinking it. He thanked the brethren for the confidence they had reposed in him during his year of office, and that night they had rewarded him by presenting him with a magnificent jewel. He had some work to do every night in the lodge. The lodge was in a prosperous state, and he hoped that it would continue to be so. They were all aware that he had taken unto himself a wife, and they would all be pleased to know that up to the present time he felt that he had not done a wrong thing (laughter), and what he wished to speak of was, to acknowledge their kindness, for on coming back from a tour at his house he was pleased to find a handsome tea and coffee service, and he thanked them sincerely for so useful and valuable a gift from the lodge, which he should highly appreciate, and when he went hence it would be transmitted to others who might follow him, and he also thanked them for the splendid jewel with which they had presented him that night, which he looked upon as a great honour conferred upon him. He hoped long to be with them, and when the W.M. left the chair he trusted that he would receive the same honours as had been awarded to him. Before he sat down he hoped to be allowed to thank Bro. Headon for the very able manner in which he had filled the office of Installing Master. Bros. Headon, P.M. and Treasurer, Stevens, and Stanway also returned thanks. The W.M. next proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary," and said those two offices could not be filled with better brethren. Their Treasurer had already received the congratulations of all upon the manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation, and their brother Secretary was simply a wonder, as the office of Secretary of that lodge was no light duty, for the manner in which the accounts were kept would do credit to any mercantile establishment. He hoped the Secretary would long continue in that position, and therefore he asked the brethren to drink with cordiality the health of the Treasurer and Secretary. Bro. Headon said he had already inflicted upon them a speech in response to the toast of the Installing Master, and he was now asked to respond as Treasurer, and he thanked them very cordially for recognising him as Treasurer, an office he had held for about four years, and he said he had done the best with the money entrusted to him. He certainly received the money, but as certainly they soon spent it, and in conclusion he thanked them for the confidence reposed in him. Bro. Moody, the Secretary, also responded, and the proceedings were brought to a close at an early hour. The musical performances were by Bros. W. Frost, 1726; Hanson, 1706; Kempton, 1706; and H. J. Bertram, 1426. Instrumentalists, Mr. T. Harper, trumpet, and Bro. H. Frost, 1426, pianoforte.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 9th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road. Bros. Walter Mitchell, W.M.; Runacres, S.W. (W. Master elect); Chalk, J.W.; Boyton, S.D.; Power, J.D.; Dann, Sec. There were present Past Masters Bros. Cackett and Sleaf, and the following visitors: Bros. H. A. Robinson, Prosperity; Smith, 1158; Yeman, 167; Macan, 26; Hilton, 1475; J. Dixon, P.M. 1728; Malthouse, 1623; Sandell, 907; Renault, 1623; Bolt, 1839; Bath, 788; E. Dodson, P.M. 72; Graham, 1543; and H. Thompson, 1426, and P.M. 178 and 1158 (Freemason). The lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. Dann, the Secretary, read the minutes of the last lodge, which were acknowledged to be correctly recorded, and were put and confirmed. The report of the Auditors was then presented and agreed to. The lodge was then raised to the Second Degree, when Bro. G. H. Trenaman was questioned as to his progress in the science, and being considered satisfactory, the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and P.M. Bro. Sleaf took the chair, and on re-admission Bro. Trenaman was impressively raised to the Third Degree, the W.M. pro. tem. giving the traditional history of the Degree, and an explanation of the Tracing Board. The lodge was then lowered to the Second Degree, when Bro. Dann, P.M. and Sec., presented Bro. Runacres, W.M. elect, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The usual forms having been gone through, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Runacres was duly installed into the chair of K.S., and received the congratulations and customary salutes. He appointed his officers as follows: Bros. Chalk, S.W.; Boyton, J.W.; Dann, P.M., Secretary; Corfe, Treasurer; Power, S.D.; Taylor, J.D.; Sims, I.G.; Harris, D.C.; Emms, W.S.; J. R. Smith, A.W.S.; Wilkins, Organist; and H. Thomas, Tyler. The addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren were emphatically delivered by Bro. Sleaf, the Installing Master. The new W. Master said his first duty was a very pleasing one, as it was to present his predecessor and Immediate Past Master with a jewel, which had been voted to him by his brethren in acknowledgment of his valuable services during the year he had presided over them as W. Master of the lodge, and in attaching it to his breast he hoped he might long live to wear it, and afterwards that it might be preserved as a heirloom in his family, and be passed down from generation to generation. (The jewel is one of singular beauty, consisting of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught's Arms, with the quarterings most exquisitely defined, and the Pythagorean problem, the name and number of the lodge, and the word "Founder," Bro. Mitchell being one of its first members. On the reverse "Presented to Bro. Walter Mitchell, by the Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1558, on his retiring from the Master's chair, October, 1879.") Bro. Mitchell, P.M., said he thought he should best consult the wishes of the brethren by deferring any observations he had to offer until a later period in the evening. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired to the banquetting room, where a splendid repast was provided. At its conclusion the W. Master gave in rotation the usual loyal toasts, which were all cordially responded to. Afterwards Bro. Mitchell, I.P.M., said he had for a short time been entrusted with the W. Master's emblem of power, and the brethren were well aware of the purpose to which he should apply it, and that was, with great pleasure to propose "The Health of Bro. Anthony Runacres," their W.M. It was, as he said, with great pleasure that he proposed the health of so worthy a man as their incoming Master, Bro. Runacres, for he was sure that he would prove as good a Master as ever sat in the chair, and perhaps better. He knew his good qualities during the time that he had worked under him, and, therefore, he needed no recommendation on his part. To his knowledge Bro. Runacres was constant in his attendance during every year he had been a member of the lodge; he had the welfare of the lodge at his fingers' ends, and he was sure that he would do all in his power to promote the interests of its members. Words failed him to say what he should wish to say on behalf of the W.M., but had he not possessed their good opinion they would never have elected him to fill the chair, and he could only say that if Bro. Runacres only carried out in Masonry the good qualities that distinguished him in private life the brethren would have no reason to regret the choice they had made, believing that no more happy selection could have been made. (Cheers.) The W. Master said: Brethren, I am sure that the very flattering speech which Bro. Mitchell has just addressed to you has taken me so much aback that I know not what to say to you. This, however, I will say, that you may take it for granted that I will do all in my power to make the Duke of Connaught Lodge one of the finest lodges in London. We now number forty-four members, and that is almost as many as we require, but our wish is that we shall only admit those who will prove a credit to us, and such as we may feel a pleasure in sitting beside. I thank you sincerely for the honour you have conferred upon me. The W. Master then proposed "The Past Masters of the Duke of Connaught Lodge." Bro. Mitchell, I.P.M., in returning thanks, acknowledged the honour conferred upon him, and for their confidence reposed in him for his humble endeavours during his year of office, when he had done everything in his power to the utmost limit of his capacity and capability. Bros. Sleaf and Cackett also returned thanks. The W.M. next gave "The Health of Bro. Sleaf, the Installing Master," who said he felt extremely proud in being again called upon to respond to the toast. If he had given them satisfaction he was proud at what he had done that evening, and he thanked them from the bottom of his heart for the kind and cordial manner in which they had drunk his health. "The Health of the Visitors" was next given, for which the brethren severally returned thanks. Some other toasts were given, and a very happy meeting was brought to a close. It ought not to be omitted to be stated that Bro. Chalk sang some choice ballads during the evening, for which he was most deservedly applauded.

EGGLESTON LODGE (No. 1624).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday last, the 15th inst., at the Grosvenor Hall, Ebury-square, Pimlico. Bro. J. C. Flattely, W.M., presided. The other brethren present included Bros. Daniel McLeod, I.P.M.; Wm. Vincent, S.W., W.M. elect; Samuel Jones, J.W.; Isaac Isaacs, Treas.; Alfred H. Beckham, Sec.; J. Galt Fisher, S.D.; E. Powell, J.D.; W. E. Moorman, Org.; C. Taylor, L.G.; H. J. Johnson, S. W. Creation Lodge, No. 1791, D. of C.; Charles Thomas, Tyler; J. Tapp, Asst. Tyler; C. T. Naylor, P.G.D. of C. Jersey; C. J. Hood, E. Pactel, J. Playford, E. Potter, H. Scott, R. Botle, L. Bertrand, F. Bond, John W. Ray, E. King, A. D. Renshaw W. Carter, E. W. Fisher, E. Peacock, N. J. Crow, Thos. Coulthard, R. Cullingford, James Morgan, G. Breckles, R. C. Fry, E. Horn, J. Chitty, R. H. Burnham, C. Watkins, F. Sloman, W. J. Beazley, F. Arnold, J. R. Jones, B. Newnham, J. Webb, A. A. Johnson, W. Ballard, J. Ashbourne, J. L. Coulton, and the following strong array of visitors:—Bros. A. Barfield, W.M. 35; Thos. Simpson, W.M. 1178; J. Ion Cattle, W.M. 1257; F. J. Wray, W.M. 1604; J. H. Boyd, P.M. 137; C. Pulman, P.M. 720; R. A. Steel, P.M. 1194; J. Weyer, P.M. 1314; James Stevens, P.M. 1426; T. C. Pratt, S.W. 957; Thos. Cross, J.W. 1194; W. Carrington, I.G. 1791; J. Easton, John Williams, J. C. Bond, jun., W. Honeyball, S. Nash, J. Penn, J. Snook, G. Hamilton, G. R. Egerton, J. Healey, G. H. Atkinson, J. H. Hawkins, T. F. Davis, J. C. Hall, Wm. Dyke, S. Cooper, W. H. Lucas, Chas. Armfield, C. T. Green, G. E. Saunders, and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). The lodge was opened in the First Degree, when the Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. These were confirmed, as also was the Auditor's report. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Scott was passed to the Fellow Craft by the W.M., Bro. F. C. Flattely. The next business was that of installing Bro. Wm. Vincent, S.W., W.M. elect, into the chair of K.S. After the customary ceremonies all the brethren below the chair retired, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. F. C. Flattely, in a most impressive manner, ably installed his successor into the chair. The brethren being re-admitted, the new W.M. was saluted in the Three Degrees, after which Bro. Vincent appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. F. C. Flattely, I.P.M.; S. Jones, S.W.; John Galt Fisher, J.W.; Isaac Isaacs, Treas.; A. H. Beckham, Sec.; E. Powell, S.D.; C. Taylor, J.D.; W. E. Moorman, Org.; H. J. Johnson, I.G.; McLeod, P.M., D.C.; Wilson, Asst. D.C.; Tapp and Botle, Stewards; Charles Thomas, Tyler. Bro. F. C. Flattely, in a very distinct tone, impressively delivered the various addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren. The new Master at once commenced his duties by initiating Bro. Hooper, which ceremony he performed in a most skilful manner. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the dining hall for the banquet, which was most recherché, and ably served by Bro. A. W. Beckham, of 182, Ebury-street, Pimlico. After grace, the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" was given by the Worshipful Master, and loyally received, the National Anthem being sung by the brethren. The W.M. then gave "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. G.M. of England." It was well known, the W.M. said, that among his many duties H.R.H. could not be so often among the brethren as His Royal Highness would like. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, followed by the song "God bless the Prince of Wales," the solo parts being given by Bro. McLeod. The W.M. then gave "The M.W. the Pro Grand Master, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers." After eulogising these distinguished brethren for their services to the Craft, Bro. Vincent expressed his regret that they were not that night honoured by the presence of any of the Grand Officers, and read a letter from Bro. W. Hyde Pullen expressing his sincere regret at his forced absence. Bro. Flattely, I.P.M., then rose and proposed, in flattering terms, "The Health of the Newly-installed W.M.," and in the course of his remarks praised Bro. Vincent for the very efficient manner in which he had performed the ceremony of initiation. Bro. Flattely's remarks were constantly applauded by the brethren, which sufficiently testified as to the popularity of the W.M. Bro. Vincent, in reply, said his Bro. Flattely had so eulogised him that he could hardly find words to reply, but he would say that when he first put himself forward to become Master of the lodge he made a resolve to follow if possible in the footsteps of his predecessors, but his predecessors having been so great a credit to the lodge, made it a much harder struggle for him. He flattered himself that during his connexion with the lodge he had made many friends, and not one enemy. He assured the brethren, that the post entrusted to him he would do his very best to well fill. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Flattely," and included in this toast the names of the other Past Masters, Bros. Hunt and McLeod, and regretted that the first-named (son of Sir Henry Hunt) who was the first W.M., had found it impossible to be present that evening. In speaking of the I.P.M., Bro. Vincent acknowledged with thanks the many kindnesses he had from time to time received at his hands, not only at the lodge, but also at the lodge of instruction. He deemed Bro. Flattely to be one of the most genial and kindhearted men he had ever met. He (Bro. Vincent) had great satisfaction in investing Bro. Flattely with a handsome Past Master's jewel, presented to him as an evidence of the esteem in which he is held by the brethren of the lodge. Bro. Flattely, in the course of his reply, thanked the brethren for their good opinion. A more hearty and unanimous response to his health he thought could not be given. He considered that the secret of his success as W.M., and the success also of the officers during his year of office, was their constant attendance at the instruction meetings, which are held at the King's Head, Ebury Bridge, Pimlico, every Saturday evening, at seven o'clock. Bro. McLeod also replied. Several other toasts followed, and were duly acknowledged. Some capital singing was given during the evening by Bros. J. Ion Cattle, C. Taylor, and W. E. Moorman.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The October meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday last at the Castle and Falcon Hotel. The brethren present were Bros. Albert J. Altman, W.M.; Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, I.P.M.; George Kennig, S.W.; Dr. Henry Alder Smith, J.W.; Rev. R. Lee, M.A., Chaplain; John Derby Allcroft, M.P., P.M., Treas.; Alfred Brook-man, J.D.; Thomas Benskin, D.C.; Dr. Saml. Benton, I.G.; E. Y. Jolliffe, W.S.; Geo. Sims, C.C.; Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B. Visitors: Brns. James Lewis Thomas, G.D. of C.; Lavender, De Luca, Taylor, Beard, McNeill, Paget, Picken, Dodd, Altman, jun., Protheroe. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and a brother was proposed as a joining member. Notice of motion having been given that the lodge should meet five times a year instead of four, the lodge was closed in due form, the brethren dining together. The usual toasts were given by the W.M. Bro. James Lewis Thomas responded for "The Grand Officers," Bro. Dr. Henry Alder Smith for "The Officers of the Lodge," Bro. the Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette for "The Past Masters." The charity box being passed round, the contributions amounted to £2.

SUNDERLAND.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 94).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Freemasons'-street, on Wednesday, the 1st inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Frampton, supported by Bros. Potts, Lutert, Todd, Henderson, and Suttees, Past Masters, and Bro. Douglass, P.M. 80 (Freemason). The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, and the lodge was then raised to the Second Degree, when Bros. Cowen and Smart were examined in the former Degree and gave satisfaction. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, when Bros. Cowen and Smart were regularly admitted, and raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., the work with the charge in this Degree being done by the W.M. in a very able manner. A petition was read from Bro. Halliday, P.M., to the P.G.L. of Durham, when Bro. Lutert, P.M., proposed, and Bro. Suttees, P.M., seconded, that the petition be signed by the W.M. and brethren, which was done. All business being finished, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, when the brethren retired a short time for refreshment.

SUNDERLAND.—Palatine Lodge (No. 97).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Thursday evening, the 9th inst., at seven o'clock. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. F. M. Watson, supported by Bros. Egglestone, 949; M. Frampton, 941; T. Henderson, 94; Cook, 481, P.M.'s. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. The circular was read convening the meeting, and the circular was also read of the P.G. Lodge of Durham, meeting on the 21st inst. Bro. Wake was examined in the First Degree, and gave satisfaction; he then retired, and the lodge was raised to the Second Degree. Bro. Wake was then admitted and made a Fellow Craft Freemason. Bros. Singleton and Nashett were examined in the Second Degree, and retired. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, when they were regularly admitted, and received the Sublime Degree of a M.M. The lodge was then closed to the Second Degree, then to the First Degree. All business being done, the lodge was closed in due and solemn form. The brethren then retired to refreshment.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 164).—A crowded meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 13th inst., at York. The business consisted of a passing and a raising, which were worked by the W.M., Bro. J. S. Cumberland, with his usual ability. A ballot was taken for a candidate, and a joining member was proposed. On the proposition of Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M., the following brethren were elected honorary members of the lodge: W. J. Hughan, P.G.D. Eng.; A. M. Broadley, D.D.G.M. Malta; and C. E. Meyer, P.G. High Priest, Pennsylvania. Ten guineas were voted to the loop list for the Benevolent Festival, at which Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M., expressed his intention of representing the lodge, and ten guineas to the Girls' School Festival, at which Bro. J. S. Cumberland expressed a hope to be present. Bro. C. G. Padel, S.W., was then unanimously elected to the chair for the coming year, and Bro. G. Balford, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer. At subsequent refreshment the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, "The Health of the W.M." being proposed by Bro. T. B. Whythead, and received with enthusiasm.

MANCHESTER.—Caledonian Lodge (No. 204).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Wednesday, the 8th inst. The following officers and brethren were present: Bros. John Roberts, W.M.; G. T. Mullock, S.W.; William Bagnall, J.W.; Thos. Guest, S.D.; Jno. Sutcliffe, J.D.; R. L. Spencer, Sec.; Chas. Duckworth, I.G.; J. C. Hind; Past Master's R. A. Eldershaw, R. Timperley, and A. Humphreys. Bros. J. Batty, H. Paulden, B. Taylor, Jno. Harrop, W. Dearden, Thos. Fairrie, M. Thomas, jun., P. D. Apartoto, Wm. Percival, Edmund Orrell, Thos. Sawen, and Wm. Grundy. Visitors: Bros. John Slack, 993; R. W. Whitaker, 1213; Henry Darbishire, P.M. 581; Henry James Banks, 179; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The brethren met at six o'clock and partook of tea, and afterwards assembled in the lodge room. The lodge was opened at seven o'clock with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. There being no "work" the W.M. announced to the brethren that he had expended some little time and trouble in examining the minutes and records of the lodge since the year 1802, a portion of which he had copied, and for the information of the brethren he would read it, to show them the progress the lodge had made since the year mentioned above. Some very curious facts and items of expenditure were then read from the extract of the minutes, and which created some little amusement amongst the members, who could scarcely fail to be struck with the peculiar methods adopted in those days, and to make with them a favourable comparison of the present system. At the conclusion of the reading, Bro. Roberts remarked that he trusted the brethren had been interested with the extracts he had selected from these old records, and that he had not thought it advisable to make the subject too lengthy, and, therefore, had only selected a portion up to a certain period, but if they would like him to continue the details on some future occasion, he should be very pleased to do so. A cordial vote of thanks to the W.M. was put, and carried with acclamation. "Hearty good wishes" having been given by the visiting brethren, the lodge was formally closed in peace and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

IPSWICH.—St. Luke's Lodge (No. 225).—On the evening of the 8th inst. one of the most interesting ceremonies ever held in connection with the above lodge was celebrated in presence of a most brilliant Masonic gathering, consisting of some eighty leading Masons of the province. The occasion was to commemorate the appointment by Lord Waveney, Prov. G.M. of Suffolk, of their W.M., Bro. T. Wentworth, as Provincial G.S.D. of Suffolk, last July. This appointment is a most popular one, as the great interest Bro. Wentworth has from the commencement taken in the erection and completion of the new Freemasons' Hall, Ipswich, and as the successful issue is in a great measure owing to his undaunted exertions, with others, to overcome so many difficulties that beset the enterprise, it was a graceful compliment to himself and the lodge to confer this honour upon him. There were about thirty guests, and, amongst others, the lodge was honoured by the presence of their greatly beloved Dep. Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk, Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, rector of Long Milford, and Past Grand Chaplain of England. Bro. Martyn is so well known in Masonic circles that it is quite needless to say his genial presence is always a welcome addition on such occasions. There were also present Bros. H. H. Lucia, Prov. G. Secretary of Suffolk, and Past Grand Sword Bearer of England; Thomas Clement Cobbold, M.P. for Ipswich, and who has lately been honoured by Her Majesty the Queen with the dignity of C.B. for past diplomatic services; W. P. Mills, 376, P. Prov. G.S.W.; N. Tracey, P. Prov. S.W., 376; H. Casley, Prov. G.J.W., 114; W. B. Jeffries, Prov. G.S. of W., 376; J. M. Harvey, Prov. G.P., W.M. 936; W. Boby, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., 114; J. H. Staddon, P. Prov. G.S.D., 379; B. P. Grimsey, S.D. 114; R. S. Anness, S.W. 376; R. Anness, S.D. 376; H. Sidney, P.M. 376; T. Elkington, 376; H. Buckham, 376; S. Gooding, 376; G. S. Elliston, S.W. 114; A. Bennett, P.M. 959; W. Spalding, P.M. 144; T. Thurlow, W.M. 555; H. Pearson, 936; J. Bury, 936; T. Harris, 114; A. Barfield, W.M. 35; H. Palmer, 376; W. Ross, Panmure; F. W. Hammond, 279; D. D. Steele, 959; C. Cooke, 959. The members of St. Luke's Lodge present were Bros. T. J. Wentworth, W.M., Prov. G.S.D.; W. T. Westgate, P.M., P. Prov. G.D. of C.; T. Prentice, D.C., and P. Prov. G.P.; P. Whitehead, I.P.M.; G. Abbott, J.D., and P. Prov. G.S.B.; J. Whitehead, P.M.; W. Daking, P.M.; J. G. Churchyard, P.M.; W. G. Cunlold, S.W.; J. Napier, J.W.; A. Barker, Sec., P.M.; J. Talbot, S.D.; J. Daniels, I.G.; G. Spalding, W. Leathers, S.S.; J. L. Brooke, J.S.; W. T. Jobson, C. Hillyard, J. Shepherd, J. Orton, W. Eaves, R. Senton, F. S. Spinks, M. Crannis, W. Fisk, R. Crawley, P. Harrison, F. B. Brown, O. T. Gibbons, T. Saul, J. Thornton, G. Griffin, W. Brown, A. W. Cooke, H. Murray, J. King, J. White, W. H. Sedgwick, F. Senton, T. Turner, G. Bell, E. W. Saxby, and others. Bro. Philip Harrison supplied the dinner in most excellent style, and gave great satisfaction. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. T. Turner was passed to the Degree of a Fellow Craft, after which Bro. C. J. Martyn gave in a beautiful manner the working tools to the candidate, and the lodge was then resumed in the First Degree. It may here be mentioned that about eighteen candidates have been initiated in the last twelve months, and the lodge numbers now about 150 members. Before the lodge was closed Bro. W. G. Cunlold, S.W., advanced to the Master's chair, and in a most touching and effective manner presented to him a beautifully chased gold Past Master's jewel, which he pinned on his breast. In doing so, he said that he was sure their Master would appreciate the gift from the fact that it was subscribed for by each individual member, and not paid from the funds of the lodge, which was so frequently done. He also said that the lodge was under a very great obligation to their W.M. by the able and efficient manner and the great courtesy and kindness he had shown in conducting its affairs, and to him in a very great measure they owed their position of being the strongest lodge in Suffolk. He also asked his acceptance of a splendidly framed parchment address, beautifully illuminated, and signed by the members of the lodge, as a token of their esteem. Both the jewel and the address contained the following words:—"Presented to Bro. T. Wentworth, W.M. 225, and Prov. G.S.D. of Suffolk, by the officers and members of St. Luke's Lodge, for the zeal and energy he has displayed during his year of office, 1878-9, and as a mark of their brotherly esteem." The W.M., Bro. Wentworth, was greatly affected by this presentation, and confessed himself quite unmanned by so much kindness. He trusted that any want of words to thank them adequately for their noble present was from the fulness of his heart. He resumed his seat amidst loud applause. The Deputy Prov. Grand Master then congratulated the lodge on this very appropriate ceremony, and also expressed the pleasure he felt in their Worshipful Master deserving such honour, and said he sincerely trusted they would go on increasing in usefulness and charitable deeds towards their fellow creatures. He trusted their W.M. might long be spared to render himself useful to his lodge and the Craft in general. This brought the business portion of the lodge to a close. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting-room, where a sumptuous dinner awaited them. We may here mention that the jewel was very handsome, and of first-class quality. After the usual toasts the W.M. proposed "The Deputy Provincial G. Master, Bro. Martyn," and thanked him and the other guests for their presence on that occasion. They all knew the unbounded kindness of Bro. Martyn in all Masoxic matters, and the love and respect he was held in by his own parishioners as well as the Masonic body. Bro. Martyn responded, and again expressed the great pleasure he had experienced by being present that evening. Bro. Westgate, P.M., proposed "The Health of their esteemed Worshipful Master." This toast was enthusiastically received. The W.M., in replying, said that he hoped their flattering reception would not render himself puffed up with vanity, but would rather stimulate him in the endeavour to maintain their good opinion for years, he hoped, to come. Bro. T. C. Cobbold, M.P. and C.B., and also their respected friend Bro. W. Boby, P.M. 114, so well known in "Charity" circles, responded on behalf of "The Visitors." The toast of "Masonic Charities" was left in the hands of Bro. Martyn, and it is needless to say how earnestly he urged the attention to the new scheme of Charity in reference to the Boys' and Girls' Schools, in which he takes so great an interest, and has so frequently been alluded to in your columns. His remarks met with very hearty response. The toast of "The Officers of the Lodge" was given by the W.M., who said how he was indebted to them for their assistance during his year of office, and that nothing would give him more pleasure than the election, he trusted next month, of their Senior Warden, Bro. W. G. Cunlold, as their Master for 1880. The Officers responded, and the Tyler's toast brought the greatest success connected with St. Luke's Lodge to a close. We cannot conclude these remarks without mentioning the Secretary, Bro. A. Barber, P.M., who is so zealous a member, and renders such useful service to the lodge. Bros. G. Abbott, D. D. Steele, and C. Cooke, rendered some beautiful songs and glees during the evening, and all kindly volunteered their services.

LIVERPOOL.—St. John's Lodge (No. 673).—The usual monthly meeting of the members of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Tuesday evening, the 7th inst., when Bro. W. Brackenbury, W.M., occupied the place of honour in the E. There was a large gathering of the fraternity, including Bro. D. Jackson, P.M.; J. T. Callow, P.M., P.G. Treas.; T. Clark, P.G.S. of W.; H. Burrows, P.M.; T. Roberts, P.M.; W. T. May, P.M., Secretary; Councillor G. Peet, P.M. 241; Councillor J. Ball; S. Jacobs, 241; I. Levy, 1609, and others. During the evening the W.M. presented Bro. D. Jackson, I.P.M., with an elegant tea and coffee service, in recognition of his valuable services to the lodge, a presentation which was suitably acknowledged.

NEWQUAY.—Fort Lodge (No. 1528).—At a meeting of this lodge on Monday, the 6th inst., Bro. T. Boyle, W.M., presiding, Bro. Robert Martyn, S.W., was elected W.M.; Bro. B. Wellington, P.M., Treas.; and Bro. C. Carrivick, Tyler for the ensuing year. Bros. R. Rowe and N. N. Lewarne were appointed Auditors, Bro. Boyle, Steward of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund, and five brethren were nominated as the Festival Committee.

GREAT STANMORE.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 1549).—The last regular meeting for the season of this summer lodge took place at the Abercorn Hotel, on the 1st inst., presided over by the new W.M., Bro. W. Shury Marshall, who, although deprived of two of his officers with an unusually small attendance of members, was honoured with many distinguished visitors, amongst whom were Bros. Wm. Stephens, W.M. 1637, P.G.D.C. Middx.; Japheth Tickle, I.P.M. 1702, P.G.S. Middx.; A. F. Roberts, W.M. 1702; W. T. Buck, S.D. 1702; C. S. Buck, I.G. 1702; T. L. Roberts, 1702; W. Grist, J.W. 1489, 1637; H. G. Gush, I.G. 1541; and others. The lodge was opened by the Worshipful Master at 4.15, and after having the minutes of previous meeting duly confirmed, further opened in the Second Degree, to admit of the examination of Bro. Bamford, prior to his admission to the Third Degree, which proving satisfactory, the W.M. further opened his lodge, and raised the worthy brother to the Sublime Degree of M.M. in a most creditable and impressive manner. On resuming to the First Degree the report of the Committee appointed at last meeting to revise the bye-laws was read and adopted. A vote of thanks was also duly recorded to Bro. Tidcombe, I.P.M., for having during his year of office secured a vote to the lodge in perpetuity for the Boys' School. The usual enquiries, resulting in the "Hearty good wishes" of the visiting brethren, completed the business, and the lodge was closed in due form at 5.40. The customary banquet followed, at which the usual toasts were duly given and responded to, many of the brethren contributing to the musical programme, which with the Tyler's toast brought the eventful season of 1879 to a close.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Friday afternoon, the 10th inst., at the Masonic Hall, under the Worshipful Mastership of Bro. J. B. MacKenzie, who was officially supported by Bros. L. Courtenay, I.P.M.; W. J. Chapman, P.M.; W. Sandbrook, S.W.; J. Atkinson, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; J. Pyer, J.D.; W. Savage, I.G.; R. Burgess, Org.; H. P. Squire, S.S.; C. Courtenay, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. There were about thirty brethren present, including Bros. D. Saunders, G. Lewis, W. Hildyard, W. Heap, H. Round, Addis, C. Du Val, W. Fry, J. Keet, and others. The lodge was called for the purpose of initiating Bro. Richard Geldard, the well-known comedian, who is about to proceed to the south of England in connection with a professional engagement. After business, the brethren partook of slight refreshment, and a pleasant two hours were spent. Among the few toasts "Our Dramatic Professional Brethren" was inroduced by the W.M., the toast being acknowledged by Bro. D. Saunders and Bro. C. H. Du Val.

RHYL.—Caradoc Lodge (No. 1674).—The vitality of the Masonic Order in the Principality was again demonstrated at the annual installation meeting of this lodge, which took place on Monday, the 6th inst., at the Town Hall. The lodge was consecrated on the 3rd of August, 1877, and since that time its career has been both pleasant and prosperous. Amongst the more illustrious brethren on this occasion were Bro. Bulkeley Hughes, D.P.G.M.; Bro. Boucher, P.G.C.; Bro. Lister, P.G.P.; Bro. J. Salmon, P.P.J.G.W.; Bro. W. A. Dickson, P.J.G.W. Cheshire; Bro. T. M. Lockwood, P.P.G.S. of W.; Bro. Smith, W.M., 1336; Bro. Owen, S.W., 1336; Bro. Davies, J.W., 1336; Bro. Edwards, W.M., 721; Bro. Rowland, S.W., 1477; Bro. Roberts, J.W., 1477; Bro. Major Penn, 1674; Bro. W. A. Dew, 1674; Bro. Rev. T. Hughes, 1674; Bro. S. Roose, 1143; Bro. S. Perks, 1143; Bro. L. R. Morgan, 755; Bro. T. Davies, 755; Bro. C. Foulkes, 606; Bro. Prothero, W.M. elect, 606; Bro. W. Matthews, P.P.G.A.D.C. Bro. J. Salmon, P.P.G.J.W., most effectively installed Bro. W. H. Foulkes as W.M. for the ensuing year; and the following brethren were subsequently invested as officers: Bro. J. Salmon, I.P.M.; J. Rhydwyn Jones, S.W.; R. M'Ewen, J.W.; W. L. Nicholas, Chaplain; W. T. Girdlestone, Treasurer; H. A. Steer, Secretary; T. Coxhead, S.D.; E. W. Keatinge, J.D.; E. Groucutt, D.C.; F. Wrigley, O.; W. Hackforth, I. G.; G. D. Burdett, S.; and J. Bayliss, Tyler. The brethren subsequently dined at the Westminster Hotel.

HOUNSLOW.—Royal Hanover Lodge (No. 1777).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held in the Town Hall, Hounslow, on Saturday, the 11th inst. The lodge was opened at half-past four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. H. A. Dubois, Prov. J.G.W., P.M., P.Z., &c., supported by Bros. H. Lovegrove, S.W.; G. Clark, jun., J.W.; W. Ramsey, Hon. I.P.M.; H. B. Marshall, Treas.; H. Clark, S.D.; C. C. Cruikshanks, J.D.; F. J. Perks, D.C.; G. S. Graham, Organist; J. Daly, Tyler; with Bros. M. S. Larham, P.M.; Heelis, Gritten, W. S. Dunkley, C. A. White, Wood, Villars, and others, members of the lodge; and Bro. J. F. Wuest, P.M., 753; W. Brown Kidder, P.M., 12; G. W. Dixon, P.M., 209, P.P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks; E. W. Dubois, 1216; J. O. Carter, P.M., 209, P.P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks; Bassett Keeling, and W. M. Stiles, W.M., 1732, visitors. After the reading of the minutes of the last regular meeting and an emergency meeting, and the confirmation of same, the ballot was taken for Bros. E. W. Dubois and Cannon as joining members. The ballot was then taken for four gentlemen for initiation, Messrs. Elliott, Thorn, Holliday, and Boyle, which being unanimous they were admitted and duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Considerable interest attached to the initiation of Mr. Boyle, who is the Consul representing the Republic of Liberia at Sierra Leone, and is a native of the latter colony. The W.M. then left the chair, which was taken by Bro. Mark S. Larham, P.M., M.E.Z., for the purpose of proceeding with the installation. Bro. Dubois, W.M., then presented Bro. H. Lovegrove, S.W., W.M. elect, who assented to the usual charges, and having been obligated, the brethren below the rank of Installed Master retired. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, with Bro. Dixon as S.W.; Stiles as J.W.; Ramsey as I.G.; and Bro. Henry Lovegrove was installed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient form. The new W.M. having declared the Board of Installed Masters closed, the brethren were admitted and saluted him in the Three Degrees, after which the addresses were very ably given by the Installing Officer. The officers were then invested as follows: Bro. G. Clark, jun. S.W.; Harry Clark, J.W.; C. C. Cruikshanks, S.D.; F. J. Perks, J.D.; W. S. Dunkley, I.G.; W. Heelis, D.C.; T. G. W. Wood, W.S.; G. S. Graham, Organist; and J. Daly, Tyler. The retiring W.M. was invested as I.P.M., and Bro. H. B. Marshall, C.C., F.R.G.S., was invested as Treasurer, the W.M. alluding to his reelection to that office, and his liberality to the Masonic Charities during the past year. A letter was read from Bro. H. C. Levander, Prov. Grand Secretary, announcing that the M.W. Pro Grand Master had consented to the removal of the lodge to the Albany Hotel, at Twickenham, an announcement which was received with much satisfaction by the brethren. After receiving some names for initiation, and passing a vote of thanks to the Installing Officer for his services, the lodge was closed in due form. The retiring W.M. declined to accept any recognition of his services until the lodge had been longer established. At seven o'clock the members and visitors assembled at the banquet at the Red Lion Hotel. The printed list of toasts was appropriately embellished with texts from Shakespeare, arranged by the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., Bro. H. Lovegrove, those of "The Prov. G.M., Col. F. Burdett," and "The Provincial Grand Lodge" being especially well received; the latter was responded to by the I.P.M., who, owing to the meetings of other lodges, was the only Provincial Grand Officer present. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., who alluded to the energy shown by him in the formation and working of the lodge. The W.M. thanked the brethren for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast, and proposed that of "The I.P.M.," who had skillfully managed the affairs of the lodge. Bro. G. Clark, S.W., suitably responded for "The Officers." In proposing "The Health of the Initiates," the W.M. made some pleasing remarks about their private life, as two of them had been known to him for some years, and their initiate from Africa for over sixteen years. Bro. Stiles, W.M. of the King's Cross Lodge, responded on behalf of "The Visitors," and congratulated the W.M. on his advancement, also on the officers who had been appointed by him. As the time for the departure of the last train approached the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated after spending a very pleasant evening.

INSTRUCTION.

ROYAL COMMEMORATION LODGE (No. 1585).—This new lodge of instruction was opened on Monday evening, the 6th inst., at the Railway Hotel, High-street, Putney, under very favourable auspices. Bro. J. W. Robinson, P.M. of Royal Commemoration Lodge, No. 1585, was selected as the first W.M., and he chose for his officers Bros. John Noble, J.W. of No. 975, S.W.; John Featherstone, 1656, J.W.; George Bugler 975, S.D.; J. C. Radford, J.D. of No. 1420, J.D.; and Joseph Wright, P.M. of Nos. 1585, 1158, &c., I.G. Bro. George A. Watkins, Treasurer of No. 1585, was elected Treasurer of the new lodge, and Bro. C. E. Goldring, of Macdonald Lodge, No. 1216, is the Secretary. After verifying the authority of the Royal Commemoration Lodge to open and work the lodge of instruction under their warrant, and some other formal business was transacted, the ceremony of the First Degree was worked by the W.M., assisted by Bro. Harry John Carter, 1585, who is the Preceptor to the new lodge. Subsequently a number of brethren were elected members. Amongst those present were Bros. P.M. Wm. Platt, 144 and 23, P.M.; J. G. Carter, 1044, P.M.; Wm. Carter, 141; R. W. Forge, S.W. 1793; John Frost, Sec. 1044; J. J. Holland, S.D. 1044; H. Wildey Wright, J.D. 1828; A. T. Trehearne, 1441; Frederick Reed, 1420; Isaac Kerby, 975; George Simmons, 975; Edward Ayling, 975; Alfred Weston, 1585; C. D. Blackford, 1563; Henry Langley, 228; and John Phillips, 196. The formation of the new lodge has been most actively promoted by Bro. John Featherstone, (the J.W. of the evening), to whom a vote of thanks was accorded in acknowledgment of the trouble he had taken. The meetings will be held every Monday evening, from 8 till 10, at the Royal Hotel—opposite the station—Putney.

Royal Arch.

MOUNT SION CHAPTER (No. 22).—A meeting of this chapter was held at Guildhall Tavern on the 13th inst. There were present Comps. J. Canham, I.P.Z., as M.E.Z.; Henry Birdseye, P.Z., as H.; William Birdseye, J. The chapter was opened in due form, and, in addition to the above, there were also present Comps. H. Muggeridge, P.G.S.B., P.Z. and S.E.; James Hamilton Townend, P.Z. and Treas.; Ernest Wright, S.N.; W. E. Maddever, P.S.; R. A. Wright, P.Z.; W. J. Crossfield, P.Z.; Louis Hirsch, W.S.; John Jonas, R. W. Muggeridge, and two visitors, viz., Comps. J. J. Berry, M.E.Z. of the Yarborough Chapter, 554; and Graveley, 554. The S.E., Comp. Muggeridge, read the minutes, which were confirmed. A ballot then took place for Bro. John Greig, of the Berkhamstead Lodge, No. 504, and he was unanimously elected to the Degree of Holy Royal Arch by Comp. Henry Muggeridge, Past Grand Standard Bearer. The resignation of Comp. Chas. Jacques was accepted, and the chapter was closed in due form, and the companions partook of an excellent banquet, presided over by Comp. John Canham, I.P.Z. Comp. Henry Muggeridge having returned thanks for the toast of "The Grand Officers," remarked that the Mount Sion Chapter was not his mother chapter; he joined it in February, 1851, and since then he had introduced above 100 members; he was M.E.Z. in 1856; he became Scribe E. in January, 1865; he was now the father of the chapter, but intended to resign next February, after installing the Principals of the chapter for the year 1880, thus completing twenty-nine years as a member. He therefore reminded the companions that at the next convocation they would have to choose one of their number to fill the office of Scribe E.

ARDWICK.—Chapter of Rectitude No. 581).—The last regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Corporation Hotel, Tipping-street, on Thursday, the 9th inst., when the following companions were present: Comps. Julius Arensberg, Z.; John Hayes, H.; Henry Darbyshire, J.; Joseph Wilkinson, Treas. and acting E.; Thomas Tyers, P.Z.; Taylor Topham, A.S.; Henry Booth, James Burton, John Brown, P. H. Nicholls, J.; and visiting Comps. James Hall, P.Z., P.P.G.T.; John Gallagher, Z. 325. The chapter was opened in due form and with solemn prayer at 6.45 by Comp. Julius Arensberg, E.Z., in a very neat style. The minutes of the last regular chapter were then read and confirmed. Several communications were then read and disposed of, and there being no work that evening, the E.Z. said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to present to Comp. James Hall, P.Z., P.P.G.T., a very handsome P.P.P. Sojourner's jewel and collar, which had been unanimously contributed for by the members of the Rectitude Chapter as a token of esteem for Comp. James Hall, and in recognition of the very many services rendered to the chapter by this highly esteemed companion. The duty was all the more pleasing from the fact that it was the first jewel ever received by Comp. Hall from any chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and he could assure Comp. Hall that it was the earnest and heartfelt wish of every member of the chapter that he might be long spared to wear the jewel, and that he would continue to honour the chapter with his visits, and in the future he hoped that the officers would by their united endeavours show to Comp. Hall that his long and arduous exertions to fit the officers for doing the work which devolved upon them had not been in vain, and that they might give him pleasure and rest in his visits henceforth. Furthermore, it gave him very great pleasure to say that the companions of the chapter had unanimously decided to make Comp. Hall an honorary member of the chapter, and he hoped by the help of the Most High that he might be long spared to enjoy that honorary member ship, and concluded by adorning neck and breast with the collar and jewel, which was very graciously received by Comp. Hall amidst the hearty applause of all the companions present. Comp. Hall, on receiving the jewel, said: Companions, I am very thankful for your kind expressions and also for the very handsome collar and jewel which, as your E.Z. says, has been so unanimously given to me by the companions generally. I do assure you that I have always taken a deep interest in Royal Arch Masonry, and anything I may have done for you in the past I will readily and most willingly do in the future, if my health will permit. I esteem most highly the great honour you have conferred on me by honorary membership, and I do assure you that from this fact alone I shall feel more than ever that I am one of you, and will more than ever try, by example and precept, to stimulate the officers and companions to efficiency, so that when the chapter is visited, as it no doubt will be, by Provincial Grand Officers, those officers will go away pleased to be able to say that the officers and companions of the Rectitude Chapter are well up to their work, and have plenty of work to do. Companions, from my heart I sincerely thank you. The election of officers was then proceeded with, when the following companions were duly elected: The First, Second, and Third Principals were appointed to again serve in their several chairs for another year, owing to the fact that amongst the companions there did not happen to be one eligible; Comps. John Brown, Scribe E.; Wilkinson, Treas.; Emanuel Nelson, P.S.; and Comp. Thomas Tyers, P.Z., seeing that an efficient N. was wanted, very generously offered to take that office, which was most readily given to him with hearty expressions of gratitude by the E.Z. and loud acclamations by the companions. Comp. Nicholls being re-appointed as Janitor, the election of Auditors was then proceeded with, and on the motion of Comp. Julius Arensberg, seconded by Comp. Burton, Comps. Thomas Tyers, P.Z., and Henry Darbyshire, J., were appointed Auditors. The chapter was then closed in due form and with solemn prayer, at 8.30 p.m. Comp. Julius Arensberg, E.Z., having given the visitors his usual hearty invitation, the companions sat down at the festive board to a grand supper, which was (as it always is) put on the table by the comely hostess and most excellent cook, Mrs. Langford, with her usual neat style and pleasing manner. Supper over, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and then Comp. John Gallagher, E.Z. 325, was called upon to respond on behalf of the visitors, and concluded by moving the next toast, which was "The Health of the Officers, and the Prosperity of the Rectitude Chapter." Comp. Gallagher made a most enthusiastic speech, and after complimenting the E.Z. upon his choice of officers, said it had given him very great pleasure to be present for two especial reasons—one was to see his old and highly esteemed Comp. James Hall presented, for the first time in his life, with a jewel, and by a chapter who knew so well his merits and his worth, and the other reason was that he had seen the true characteristic of a Royal Arch Mason exemplified in Comp. Thomas Tyers, P.Z., who on seeing that there was a companion wanted to fill the office of N., had very nobly and very humorously stooped down from his high and honourable position of P.Z. and proposed himself for the office, very much to the gratification of the chapter. He had every confidence in the prosperity of the Chapter of Rectitude, and gave the companions a hearty invitation to 325 whenever they could make it convenient to attend. Comp. Julius Arensberg, E.Z., and Comp. John Hayes, H., in a few very appropriate remarks acknowledged the compliment, and said that it had been thought desirable by some of the companions to form a chapter of instruction, and concluded by requesting Comp. H. Darbyshire to draw up a circular convening a meeting to be held at the Portland Hotel, Portland-street, Manchester, on the 7th October, at 8 p.m., for the further consideration of the subject. At 10.45 the companions retired, after having spent one of the most enjoyable evenings in the history of the Rectitude Chapter.

INSTRUCTION.

METROPOLITAN CHAPTER (No. 975).—There was the usual meeting of this well established chapter of instruction, which has resumed its meetings for the season, on Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., at the Jamaica Tavern, St. Michael's Alley, Cornhill. This chapter, like the lodge of instruction in Craft Masonry, is looked upon as the high authority of instruction in the superior Degree, and is attended by some of the most efficient and best working Arch Masons of the Metropolis. Comps. W. L. Lee presided as Z.; F. Brown (Preceptor), H.; W. H. Kimpton, J.; H. Higgins, P.S.; G. L. Walker, N. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. Poore, P.Z. of the Panmure Chapter, No. 720, being the candidate, and he was afterwards elected as a joining member. The ceremony was excellently performed, and after some formal business the chapter was closed.

CHACEWATER.—Boscawen Lodge (No. 101).—The annual meeting of this Mark lodge was held on Monday, the 6th inst., when W. Bro. J. F. Hooper, P.J.G.D., W.M., who had been re-elected, was installed as Master for the ensuing year. The installation was carried out by Bro. Niness, and the following brethren were invested as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. A. Moyle, S.W.; S. G. Moyle, J.W.; J. Niness, P.M., Treasurer; Rev. G. L. Church, P.M., Secretary; J. Hall, P.M., Registrar of Marks; J. Estlick, M.O.; J. Dorrington, S.O.; J. Williams, J.O.; J. Paull, P.M., S.D.; W. P. Hugoe, P.M., J.D.; W. T. Davey, P.M., I.G.; W. Lean, Tyler; J. Paull, jun., Assistant-Tyler. At the conclusion of the lodge the brethren partook of a banquet.

HELSTON.—St. Michael's Lodge (No. 175).—The annual meeting for installation of the officers of this Mark lodge took place at the Masonic Rooms on the 8th inst. The W.M. elect, Bro. H. Trembath, P.G.P., was installed by W. Bro. N. J. West, P.P.G.W., P.M. No. 87, Cornubian Lodge, after which the W.M. appointed the following as his officers:—Bro. T. Davey, I.P.M.; W. Wearne, S.W.; J. Jeffery, J.W.; J. Q. James, P.P.G.D., P.M., Treas., re-elected; T. Taylor, P.P.G.D., P.M., Sec.; Sedgman James, M.O.; T. J. Joyce, S.O.; W. Ellis, J.O.; W. E. Lukies, Org.; J. H. Willey, S.D.; J. M. Richards, J.D.; J. Ellis, I.G.; M. Pascoe and J. A. Hill, Stewards; and R. James, Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined at the Globe Hotel.

Rosicrucian Society.

METROPOLITAN COLLEGE.—The Quarterly Convocation of the above college was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Thursday, the 9th inst. The fraters present were Frs. Dr. Woodman, as Master of the Temple; Stanton Jones, Deputy Master; H. G. Buss, Treas. Gen.; John Mason, Sec. Gen.; Foulger, George Kenning, Massa, McCartney, M.P.; Weaver, Rosenthal, Peck, Dewar, Thiellav, T. C. Walls, and others. The minutes of the last Quarterly Convocation were read and confirmed. Fr. Rosenthal was installed Master of the Temple for the year ensuing; Fr. Thomas Cubitt elected Deputy Master; and Fr. H. G. Buss re-elected Treasurer General. Afterwards the usual banquet took place.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly Court of this Institution's Governors and subscribers was held last Saturday in the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern. Bro. Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer, presided. Among a crowded meeting of the brethren there were present Bros. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, J. Wordsworth, Henry Smith, C. L. Mason, Thos. Hill, W. H. B. Tomlinson, James A. Birch, J. L. Hine, A. H. Tattershall, G. F. Lancaster, G. Mellor, J. F. Tweedale, H. A. Dubois, W. Nicholl, L. Tyerman, W. West Smith, A. Pratt, G. R. Sherrill, H. T. Bartlett, J. A. Farnfield, F. W. Ramsay, David D. Mercer, J. Todd, Edgar Bowyer, R. B. Webster, J. J. Berry, J. G. Stephens, J. P. Platt (Cheshire), H. Dearsley, No. 3; A. Tisley, Andrew Middlemass, G. Brown, Thomas Cochrane, William Roebuck, John Bodenham, Arthur E. Gladwell, Thomas Meggy, Col. James E. Peters, H. S. Goodall, W. Seaman, E. Caste, A. J. Duff Filer, Edward Cox, F. R. W. Hedges (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of previous meeting, the Scrutineers of votes for the election were chosen.

Bro. Thomas Meggy, Past G. Steward, and Vice-President, moved "That a Committee be appointed to consider the manner in which the scrutiny of the votes shall be made, both for the election of candidates and for other purposes, and to report to the next General Court." He said he thought no brother was unaware that within the last few years there had been several scrutinies demanded of the result of the poll of the elections, and frequently it had disclosed the fact that the Scrutineers had not correctly made a declaration of the poll in the first instance. He did not think there was any good reason why his motion should not be carried. There was evidently some laxity in the scrutiny somewhere or other; possibly the arrangements might be slightly at fault; and if a Committee were appointed to consider those arrangements, it might result in the declaration of the poll being correct in future.

Bro. John G. Stevens said that after some consideration of the subject he would second this motion, not that he quite endorsed or fully agreed with Bro. Meggy in all that he said, but for the purpose of having this matter ventilated.

No other brother spoke on the motion, and it was then put and lost.

Col. Creaton then, as Chairman of the Building Committee, proposed "That a dwarf wall be built on the south side of the Institution grounds, at a cost not exceeding £300." He said he might tell the brethren that the present fence was very old, and worn out. It had been in its present position ever since the building had been erected, and it was necessary now to have a new fence of some kind. The Building Committee thought that a dwarf wall instead of the wooden fence would be much better, and that was the reason they recommended and he moved it.

Bro. H. A. Dubois seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. James A. Birch, East Lancashire, brought forward the following motion. "Proposed alteration of Rule 71, Sub-section 2, to read as follows:—The election and removal of the Secretary shall be vested in the General Committee, the voting to be by balloting papers duly forwarded to each qualified member, not less than fourteen days before the date of election; such balloting papers must be signed by the party entitled thereto, and may be presented by a member of the General Committee on his or her behalf at the time of election." Bro. Birch said that this motion was intended to assimilate the form of election for Secretary to that which was now adopted for getting children into the schools. The election of Secretary was vested in the Life Governors, but owing to the fact that it had to be a personal vote, and that each voter had to attend in London at Freemasons' Hall, the election of Secretary was really vested in the brethren of and around London. A provincial brother after he had purchased his Life Governorship of the Charities, of which distinction he was naturally very proud, found if he wished to exercise one of his privileges, that of voting at the election of Secretary, he was put to a cost which varied in amount, but taking his own province, that of East Lancashire, amounted to some pounds. This he thought was an unfair tax. Looking over the list of Life Governors of the Boys' School, he found there were about 3000 Life Governors in the provinces. Now if they took the expense of those Life Governors coming up to vote at the election of Secretary at £3 a head it amounted to £9000, and it appeared to him that this money would be much better invested if given to one of these Institutions. It had been said to him that there was a certain amount of jealousy among London brethren against the provincial brethren, which would prevent him carrying this motion; but it seemed to him that any jealousy of that kind would be unbecoming such a universal brotherhood. He did not believe there was that jealousy. The only jealousy which ought to be admitted as the portals of Freemasonry was the noble emulation of doing benevolent work. It was argued that if the brethren of the provinces possessed that power of voting for Secretary they might put forward an inefficient candidate and so sacrifice the Institution. He could assure the brethren that the most lively interest existed in the provinces on behalf of the Masonic Institutions, and that there was no possibility of such a thing occurring, because if any one did propose a particular candidate for the office of Secretary it would be impossible for the provinces to be united against London. (Hear, hear.) He hoped that the brethren would by their vote show that there was no jealousy, and would make the concession to the provinces which the provincial brethren considered fair and just. He was sure the London brethren would not deny to the provinces what was just and fair.

Bro. T. Constable seconded the motion. The Chairman put the motion, when there appeared

Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. G. Sec. West Yorkshire, gave notice of motion for the Quarterly Court in January "That the Institution accept the sum of one thousand guineas from the Province of West Yorkshire for the purchase of a perpetual presentation to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls."

Bro. Louis Hirsch, Vice-President, gave the following notice of motion for the Quarterly Court in January, 1880:—"That a Committee be appointed to consider the manner in which the scrutiny of the votes shall be made, both for the election of candidates and for other purposes, and to report to the next General Court."

The election of eighteen out of a list of forty-eight girls was then proceeded with. The poll was declared at half-past four, when the following was found to be the result:—

Table with 2 columns: SUCCESSFUL, UNSUCCESSFUL. Lists names and vote counts for 48 girls.

Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. G. Sec. West Yorkshire, proposed a vote of thanks to the Scrutineers. As a proof of the admirable way in which those brethren had discharged their duties he might mention that they had made the return that a West Yorkshire candidate, Jessie Delaval Wilson, who was No. 16 on the list, had polled 1101 votes, and that was the exact number that he had recorded.

Bro. Kirke seconded the motion. Bro. Tattershall returned thanks, and said the Scrutineers tried to do their best. They could not expect to please every one, but he was sure they endeavoured to do justice to every candidate.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, who had presided so admirably, with such patience, urbanity, and impartiality. He need hardly say anything in praise of Bro. Colonel Creaton, as he was well known to all the brethren, but he was sure he expressed the feelings of every one of the brethren when he said he hoped they would see Bro. Col. Creaton as their Chairman for many years to come.

Bro. James A. Birch, East Lancashire, seconded the motion.

Bro. Col. Creaton, after the motion had been unanimously carried, said he was extremely flattered by the kind expressions of Bro. Woodford and by the hearty reception the brethren had given to them. It gave him great pleasure to attend these meetings, and if spared he hoped to come many, many years among the brethren.

The proceedings then terminated.

STOKENHAM (NEAR KINGSBRIDGE) CHURCH PULPIT.

At the time the above church was being restored, a few years ago, it happened that the Duncombe Lodge (No. 1486) was consecrated. There was Divine service at the Kingsbridge Parish Church on that occasion, when the Ven. Bro. Archdeacon Earle, of Totness, preached, the offertory being made a special gift towards a new pulpit in the church of Bro. Rev. J. C. Carwithen, vicar of Stokenham, who is very much respected in that neighbourhood, besides being a great friend of R.W. Bro. Rev. J. Huyshe, Provincial Grand Master of Devonshire, who consecrated in person.

The restoration of the church was entrusted to Bro. T. Lidstone, ecclesiastical architect, residing at Dartmouth, P. Prov. G.D. of Works Devon, who designed the pulpit, which is of Bath stone, and octagonal in plan, each side being filled with tracing, with shields, and a carved and battlemented cornice, &c. The decorations of the church have been since continued from time to time, as opportunity offered, several stained-glass windows having been added. The church is a noble structure, and deserves the attention our rev. brother continues to give to it. During the last few weeks he, in conjunction with the R.W. Bro. Huyshe, who, from the necessity following the infirmity of age, has this year resigned his post of P.G.M. of Devonshire, have further decorated the pulpit, by having it illuminated in ecclesiastical style and with Masonic illustrations, which will mark the event in R.W. Bro. Huyshe's Masonic career just referred to. Advantage has been taken of the presence of the shields to introduce the banners of the twelve tribes, and the four minor banners, which—the lion, the eagle, the ox, and the man—are further significant from their subsequent ecclesiastical adoption. It may be observed that a pulpit in the same archdeaconry (Totness) bore many of these Masonic emblems emblazoned on its sides until recently; when the process of "restoration" resulted in their removal. On Sunday, October 5th, the work being completed, the reverend vicar preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion, taking for his text Genesis xlix, 1; and Ezekiel, i, 10. In the course of this address, the reverend brother gave a succinct history of each of the tribes; and promised a further dissertation on that of Ephraim from which tribe many learned persons contend that we (Englishmen) are descended. He then alluded to the four living creatures or cherubims (Ezekiel x, 20), having four faces each, answering to the four great kingdoms of Assyria, Persia, Greece, and Rome, and which the early Fathers of the Church identified with the four Evangelists. "The man represented intelligence and understanding; the lion, strength and power; the ox, the ministration of patience and assiduity; the eagle, the promptness and celerity with which the will and pleasure of the Supreme Jehovah are executed." They guarded the Sacred Name which was ever present in the temple, and which is as surely present in our churches, though we see Him not with our bodily eyes, just as our souls are present in our bodies, although they be invisible indeed. Our care should be to recognise this Presence everywhere; especially in all assemblies dedicated to His worship, and for instruction in Divine Truth. This is the "Bright and Morning Star" to which all are directed. Our object should be to attain to a full communion with God, to be no longer unsatisfied, and wandering in the dark, but to ascend steadily that only ladder which exists between this world and the world unseen, Christ Jesus, the Son of the Living God. And those who have this life-giving knowledge have the solemn charge laid upon them to make their Redeemer's name known upon earth, and his saving health among all nations. We are all members of the same family, all brothers of the dust. At the Judgment the monarch will be side-by-side with the slave, Dives with the poor petitioner for his alma. May our prayer be, "O! Great Architect of the Universe, teach us to feel our brotherhood now; Thou that hearest prayer teach us to forgive our brother his trespasses, as we hope to be forgiven by Thee hereafter, for art Thou not our Father and we Thy children?" He trusted they would also add a petition that he (the preacher) may, by God's grace, fully preach Christ's crucified, as the only name given amongst men whereby they may be saved.

The illumination of the pulpit was entrusted, under the general direction of the architect, to Bro. Driffeld, ecclesiastical decorator, of Exeter (Beer and Driffeld), who has done his work very satisfactorily. Several of the stained windows in this church have been produced by the same firm.

The pulpit was much admired, and has cost about sixty pounds.

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1879.

GIRLS' AND BOYS' SCHOOLS RECENT COURTS.

The Elections have proceeded with their usual regularity, the large numbers voting showing the increased and increasing value of these admirable Educational Institutions. At the Girls' School meeting on Saturday Bro. Meggy's motion was rejected, to appoint a committee to scrutinize the Scrutineers, (Quasi custodiet ipsos custodes?), and the proposal to elect the Secretary by voting papers instead of personal voting, as heretofore, was carried by a large majority. On Monday Bro. Meggy's motion was again rejected by an overwhelming majority, and Bro. Matier's motion to strike out the word, "consecutive," after "seven" and before "years," moved for him by Bro. Woodford, was also carried by a large majority. Bro. Birch's proposal for voting papers for the election of Secretary was likewise again carried by a decisive majority. What the effect of the change will be time can only show. A good deal may be said, in our opinion, for it and against it, and the subject hardly received the consideration which it deserved at the recent meetings.

THE PROVINCE OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

This most distinguished province held its gathering last week under most auspicious circumstances and before a most goodly attendance. Indeed, the assembly of 600 Masons is not a matter to be lightly regarded or hastily ignored. No doubt the popularity of the Prov. G.M. and the D.P.G.M. and the Masonic zeal and fervour of our worthy West Lancashire brethren are sufficient to account for a state of things, if noteworthy in itself, most creditable to the eighty lodges which now compose the Province of West Lancashire, and whose members so gladly rally round the banner of their Prov. G.M., one of the chief rulers of our Craft moreover, on all occasions and under all circumstances. We need hardly say that the proceedings of this united and enthusiastic body, when duly convened for the good purpose of our admirable Craft, were characterized from first to last by all that warmth of Masonic feeling, and that harmony of inter-communion, and that unity of thought and action so pleasant always to the Masonic mind to contemplate, so congenial with the principles we constantly and carefully avow, and so very prevalent, and happily prevalent, in the Province of West Lancashire. Though we are well aware of the fact, as a fact, we are glad to be assured of irrefragable authority that the province is in a most healthy and prosperous state, and despite the badness of trade, the trials of agriculture, and the fluctuations of commerce, that there is no apparent weakening either of the golden chain of Masonic union or the goodly outcome of Masonic charity. The Province of Lancashire is second to none in its zeal for our great Masonic Institutions, and maintains a very effective and important educational system of its own. In fact, "all round," all West Lancashire brethren may feel proud both of the Masonic district to which they belong, and of that wise and energetic rule under which their prestige as a province increases year by year. Surely we have a right to add that all this auspicious state of things, in general and particular, reflects the highest credit on the distinguished ruler of the province and its hard-working officials, among whom we feel bound to mention the name of that worthy, and energetic, and respected Mason, Bro. Alpass. We congratulate sincerely all in West Lancashire on this their normal and undoubted state of Masonic efficiency and Masonic work. One point, indeed, we do not, we confess, to understand in the account of these interesting proceedings; that is, how the Prov. Grand Lodge of West Lancashire can be turned "for the nonce" into a Board of Governors of any other Masonic Institution. If we read the Book of Constitutions correctly, and understand the laws and precedents which govern the provincial organization, the Prov. G. Lodge must open and close as a Prov. G. Lodge, and nothing else, and that it has no power under any circumstances to resolve itself into any other body whatever, neither can such proceedings legally appear on its minutes. We suppose that there is some explanation of the proceedings possible, some ancient custom which takes the face and form of law. We have thought well to notice the point, because we do not profess to understand it ourselves, and because in other days we have ourselves objected to what was once not uncommon, the transaction of the affairs of a benefit club, of which all the members of the lodge were members, attached to the lodge, in the lodge. But such a proceeding is contrary to the Book of Constitutions, as could easily be shown if it were necessary. We are aware that something may be said as to the force and effect of provincial bye-laws which have been current for years, and at one time may have received the sanction of competent authority. But provincial bye-laws cannot go beyond, or over, or beside the Book of Constitutions, and as Provincial bye-laws require, legally and strictly speaking, re-enactment under each Prov. Grand Master, nothing like finality can attach, even to the most skilfully framed of them, many of which are a credit to their compilers and to the province. We have said this with no desire of finding fault, (far be from us any such intention or desire), but simply for information, as we confess as we said before, to be in doubt upon the subject, and nothing in our opinion is so bad in in Freemasonry, in general or in particular, as precedents of questionable validity, especially when by the force of circumstances, or what Lord Palmerston called the "concatenation of atoms," they come before us invested with all the sanction which high character, Masonic work, and personal merit can give.

THE BRITON AND FREEMASON TRAVELLING.

Though we do not profess to admire the "advice gratis" sort, immortalized by Mr. Samuel Weller, junior, we yet think it well and not unbecoming, in us, as "Amici Curie" above all, translate it as you will, to tender a little homely advice to many a wandering brother and sister especially, if a lady will take advice. Wherever our numerous friends, or "fraternities," now may be, among the Alps or in Venetian gondolas, loitering at Vevay or sojourning at Marienbad, wondering at the Splügen, or enthusiastic in the Tyrol, amid the sights of Paris, the art treasures of Dresden, the palaces of Munich, or the agreeabilities of Vienna, surely to them a little friendly and fraternal advice will not be altogether valueless, especially when tendered with the most sympathetic good will in the genial pages of the Freemason. It has been said by some one, we forget who, but probably an "anser," we are inclined to opine, that "nobody should travel who did not understand the language of the country through which, on highways and bye-ways, (pleasant reminiscences of an old work of Colley Grattan's here supervene), he is to wend by noisy train, by lumbering diligence, or with kaapsack on back and alpenstock in hand." But this mistaken adage has been proved to be untrue in countless ways and by innumerable voyagers. Some of the best travellers we ever knew were those who practically did not know one word of any language but their own, and would not learn. In the Duke of Wellington's memoirs a good story is told of the well known Sir Colin Campbell, (not Lord Clyde), one of his most trusted and effective officers, and who, as the Duke himself said, did not "know two words of French." "I have heard him," said the Duke, "disputing with a French departing guest about an umbrella, and all Colin could do or say was to seize the umbrella and shout out, Cest moine." Neither do we agree with another facetious and proverbial saying, (by whomsoever composed),

"When you go abroad, mind you know the lingo, If you don't, like me, you'll be done, by jingo."

The truth is, that as a general rule, if our dear compatriots abroad would only conform to the ways of the countries through which they pass, if they would become personally, as they Masonically profess to be, "citizens of the world," they would get on themselves a good deal better and everything would "dovetail" in better with their ideas, their habits, and their idiosyncrasies. We have often admired the Briton and Britoness finding fault with everything abroad out loud, for the benefit of the company in general. For them everything was "frightfully dear," there was "positively nothing to eat; no, nothing, my love, but kickshaws; and "then if you don't dine at the Table d'Hôte you pay double for everything," and so on, "ad infinitum." We once met a genial, burly Briton on a Rhine steamer, who declaimed thus: "Sir, the Rhine is all very fine, but it is much exaggerated, and then you never can get boiling water abroad. I've not had a decent cup of tea since I left England." Now our advice to many travelling friends is this, we have found its efficacy in many a pleasant jaunt, alas, over for us: try to conform to the habits of the country in which you are pro tem. Give up insular ways, ideas, and even meals. You will fare better if you will only accept the "Café au lait," &c., for instance, as an early breakfast, and make a good luncheon at their "Dejeuner à la Fourchette;" you can get some tea if you like in the afternoon, and then a late dinner. But do at Rome as Rome does. If you will have expensive apartments and solitary meals you must pay for them, and pay for them, dear brother and dear boy, and grumble not. Always be civil to the "natives" and they will be civil to you. Remember, a little civility goes a long way, and if you respect them in word, manner, and act, they will assuredly treat you in the same manner. If you go abroad don't expect all the luxuries and conveniences of home. You can't have a good British breakfast, (for the most part), at 9; you can't open the broad sheet of the Times; you can't be purely English; but you can, if you will, thoroughly enter into all the incidents and varieties of foreign life and travel; you can journey on contented and come back with your mind enlarged, illustrating one of the great tenets of Freemasonry, the true citizenship of life and of the world.

COUNCIL OF SIDE DEGREES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In a notice of the Ebor Lodge at York of the Order of St. Laurence I find a statement upon which I think I am entitled to be heard, especially as it cannot in any way disturb or react upon the prosperity of that lodge and that Order. It would seem by this report that some meeting was held at the Alexandra Palace, on the 9th August last, "for the purpose of forming a Council of Side Degrees." This appears in your issue of this day, the 11th October, and very much astonishes me in more ways than one. So long ago as October, 1875, during the time that I was issuing my "Royal Masonic Cyclopædia," and before the publication of the part in which Side Degrees were spoken of, the proof sheets of that work, now in my possession, were submitted to several eminent Masons, including Bros. Captain Irwin, Hughan, Hyde Pullen, Yarker, and others, and in the correspondence incidental to the completion of the book, the formation of a Council of Side Degrees was suggested and took place, and the following passage from my book, written in January, 1876, may be cited in evidence:—

"As a Council of Side Degrees is taking under its protection all stray rights not otherwise expressly claimed by the former five bodies, they will for the sake of convenience, and for clear Masonic thought, be placed unattached, but with the addition of the letters C.S.D. to indicate the desire of this body to collect and preserve in its archives many obsolete degrees at present lying dormant.—'Royal Masonic Cyclopædia'—article, Knights, Masonic, pp. 425-6."

A Council was then formed, and I was requested to take charge of it in a secretarial capacity, which I have done, not for the purpose of emolument, but from a desire to co-operate in preserving many interesting Degrees from undeserved neglect. A prospectus—now lying before me—was privately submitted to most eminent brethren, to their perfect satisfaction, and my book contains the list of the Degrees the Council desired to protect. Finally Bro. Capt Francis George Irwin temporarily agreed—as his letters to me show—to act as President of this Council, and had not the premature demise of his son caused him to retire very much from active Masonry, the Craft at large would have heard more of it. But I claim priority as the representative of the Council in every respect, not only on account of publication, but because the detailed organisation lies before me at this moment, having been duly announced in my book.

In conclusion I should like to be informed by whose authority the Alexandra Palace meeting was convened, and who it is, therefore, that is so zealous for the purpose entertained by the brethren with whom in so many ways I have for years been intimately associated.

In any case I must claim for those brethren and myself the real merit, so far as it may exist, of a Council of Side Degrees for the United Kingdom and the Colonies.

A study of Masonry rather closer than given by the majority of my brethren has afforded me wide opportunities for the accumulation of trustworthy information on these recalcitrant points. Many really Masonic Degrees are in my possession totally unknown to the present generation of Masons, derived from trusty historical sources of indisputable authority.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours sincerely and fraternally,

KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE, IX^o,

Hon. Secretary Council of Side Degrees (Instituted 1875);

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Bro. Kenning,

As I receive many Masonic letters day by day perhaps you will kindly allow me to inform kind correspondents through your columns that my address henceforth is 25A, Norfolk-crescent, Hyde Park, W., instead of 10, Upper Porchester-street, though practically it is the same street still, curiously enough.

Yours very fraternally,

A. F. A. WOODFORD.

MELROSE LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I regret that any remarks of mine should have given umbrage to a Craftsman so worthily esteemed as Bro. Vernon. I can assure him that such was very far from my intention. Their object was to ascertain the grounds on which he based his opinion that the Melrose Lodge could instruct an antiquary as ancient as that of Kilwinning or Mary's Chapel Lodges. As he has not stated them, I am afraid that I and others must remain of opinion that Melrose can instruct no such claim. Bro. Vernon from his letter leads one to infer that it was only recently that he discovered the existence of this lodge, which surprises me. Several attempts have been already made to induce it to join Grand Lodge. The most recent was that made by the Past Provincial Grand Master of Peebles and Selkirk Shires a few years ago. He had meetings at Melrose on the subject, and did everything to induce the Melrose brethren to—as Bro. Hughan happily puts it—"fall into line." He even indicated that the lodge would get the highest vacant number on the Grand Roll, and possibly a higher "Bis" number, if they would come to terms. After much trouble the proposal was abandoned as hopeless. Every one shares the "longing" of Bro. Hughan to see the Melrose Lodge hailing under the Grand Banner. But to attain this desirable object it is surely not necessary to do an injustice to other lodges. My own recollection was, that the minutes of the Melrose Lodge opened in 1674, and on referring to the MS. of my note you will find that I had so stated it, but as Bro. Vernon's letter gave the date 1678, and I was writing from recollection, I altered the date to that given by him, believing his date was the correct one. As Bro. Vernon states that documents have been discovered since Bro. Buchan visited Melrose, about eleven years ago, would he kindly state what they are, and where they were found. As regards the "Melrose MS.," Bro. David Murray Lyon tells me that he knew of it many years ago. He says it is a copy of the old charges similar to those of Kilwinning (which was obtained from Mary's Chapel) and the Aitchisons Haven Lodges. As the Kilwinning Lodge obtained its copy between the years 1675-1678, and the Aitchisons Haven Lodge in 1666, dates corresponding to the minutes of Melrose, very likely the latter lodge obtained its copy about the same period, and from the same source. Facsimiles of the Kilwinning and Aitchison Haven charges are given in the history of Mary's Chapel Lodge; and I respectfully suggest that Bro. Vernon should compare the caligraphy of those documents with the Melrose MS., and tell us the result. Bro. Murray Lyon states that Kilwinning was in the practice of selling copies of her copy of the "Charges" to lodges. Other lodges may have followed a similar practice. If Bro. Vernon will look into the "Freemasons' Magazine" (published ten years ago by the "Freemasons' Magazine" Company, London), and other Masonic publications about that date, he will find many instructive archaeological articles by Bro. W. P. Buchan, who was then a large contributor to Masonic literature. In some of these magazines, too, he will find everything that can be said about the Melrose Lodge.

Reviews.

THE LETTERS OF THE YOUNGER PLINY, Translated by J. D. Lewis, M.A. Trubner & Co., Ludgate Hill.

Curiously enough only three English translations of these famous epistles are in existence. The versions of Melmoth and Lord Orrery, both published about the middle of the last century, are now only to be found in the libraries of the great or of book collectors, and are somewhat scarce. Mr. Bohn some little time back published an edition of Melmoth's translation, but with some adaptations and modifications. And even the two versions named are not most inviting to the general reader, and though they may be fairly, we think, said to contain a true representation, on the whole, of the mind and meaning of the writer, they cannot be considered literal translations of the Latin of the man whom the Emperor Trajan addressed as "my dear Secundus." Mr. Lewis has accordingly produced a translation based on the text of "Keil," and we, having read the book through, can honestly say that he has done his work well. Some little doubt may here and there perhaps exist, whether in intricate passages and obscure Latinity he is always correct, but such little points are few and far between, and only serve, in our opinion, to set off the general fidelity and accuracy of the work. And how interesting to us still are these letters of Pliny the Younger, in the glimpses they give us, so true and minute, endued with a sort of word painting of the old world life of Imperial Rome, rapidly hastening to its decay and fall. We seem, as we read his frank and animated letters, to live over again the scenes well known to our "classic youth," to see and converse with the very persons whom we have often heard of, and whose works we have studied and read. We see Rome depicted as it really was in Trajan's days by one who, a successful lawyer and a distinguished statesman, had every opportunity of knowing the facts he describes so well; who was above all temptations to deceit, all imputations of partiality, and who seems to recount the daily doings he talks of so easily and so confidentially, as a faithful and close record of things as they really were. Such a witness is very valuable, such a writer deserves both perusal and reliance. We who have studied the annals of the past, know how difficult it is to discriminate between truth and falsehood, owing to the animus of the historian or the peculiar colouring which in consequence of predisposing influences or preconceived opinions, he gives to well-known contemporaries or passing events. Horace Walpole, delightful as a letter writer, has always to be read cautiously when he touches upon historical facts, and his so-called historical works are valueless as authorities for the student of history. Even that great writer, Lord Macaulay, though he will always be admired for the grace of his diction, and the point of his antithesis, and his admirable collocation of words, will in another generation not be looked up to as an authority on what is most important, after all—historical accuracy and fairness. And almost the same may be said, more or less, of all our historians. But, when we open the pages of Pliny, we are struck with his fairness and his accuracy. Perhaps it was his legal training; perhaps it was his "mens æqua;" perhaps it was his own narrow escape from the brutal cruelties of Domitian, which made him adopt that admirable spirit of liberal and enlightened appreciation of things and persons, which renders his letters so valuable a picture of the public and private life of the age he lived in. In his dealing with the Christians Pliny has justly incurred grave censure, and was practically rebuked by Trajan. Like all the Roman statesmen, he seems to have looked upon the Christians as a "secret fraternity" more than anything else, and records, with a sort of unctuous satisfaction, worthy of an Inquisitor, or a callous persecutor of his brethren, how he tortured two poor deaconesses to get at the truth and meaning of the "secret assemblies." As is well known to us Masons, Pliny's letters contain Trojan's reply to a request to establish a guild of firemen, (not of Masons, as some older Masonic writers had it), which is a negative one, on the ground of their becoming "secret societies." The Collegia of the Romans, no doubt, sometimes played the part of secret fraternities, but from them undoubtedly the Fraternity or Guild of Freemasons took its rise, (as all guilds did), and handed down through Anglo-Saxon times those sodalities those sodalities which afterwards played such an important part in the social, domestic, and building life of England. To many of our reading brethren we commend this edition of Pliny's letters, as a like useful and entertaining in the highest manner.

LONDON MASONIC CHARITY ASSOCIATION.

Communiqué.

We understand that this useful and growing Association has been very successful in the recent elections, having succeeded in carrying, or aiding to carry, three girls and three boys, and having placed its female candidates in such a position as to render, humanly speaking, the election of two certain next April, and a third probable and possible. We are glad to think that the objects of the Association are becoming more and more appreciated and their honest labours zealously supported.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the members of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1056, at the Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, on Friday next, the 24th instant. The lodge will be opened at 6 p.m. precisely.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The October Quarterly Court of the Governors and subscribers of this Institution was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Tavern. Colonel Creton, Grand Treasurer, Vice-Patron and Trustee, presided, and among the brethren present were Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, Henry Smith (West Yorkshire), John Wordsworth, Robert B. Webster, J. L. Hine, W. H. B. Tomlinson, Thomas Ruddock, A. H. Tattershall, W. H. Perryman, Charles Godtschalk, S. Rawson, Don. M. Dewar, John Bodenham, H. A. Dubois, William Stephens, William Hale, H. Hacker, A. Pratt, William Roebuck, John Thompson, George W. Dixon, R. C. Spaul, W. H. Bowden, F. H. J. Barish, H. Cox, W. A. Barrett, H. T. Bartlett, J. Vaughan, W. Hickman, J. E. Le Feuvre, Thomas Meggy, Joyce Murray, James Hodges, F. H. Cox, J. P. Platt, Hy. C. Burt, W. Douglas Dugdale, George Everett, Edward Clark, Arthur E. Gladwell, Hyde Pullen, Frank H. Celli, John Alfred Pitman, F. Binckes (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Binckes having read the notice convening the meeting, the minutes were read to the brethren and confirmed.

Bro. Thomas Meggy, Past Grand Steward, Vice-Patron, then moved, pursuant to notice, "That a Committee be appointed to consider the manner in which the scrutiny of the votes shall be made, both for the election of candidates and for other purposes, and to report to the next General Court." He said it was probably in the minds of the brethren that several times mistakes had been found in the returns of the Scrutineers of votes at elections, and when a further scrutiny of the votes had been demanded it had been proved to have been justified by the first return proving inaccurate. The mistakes had occurred quite unintentionally, but still they proved that there must be something wrong in the system, whether in the casting of the votes, or the checking of the votes, or the way in which the Scrutineers were appointed. Whatever the defect was, if the question were submitted to a Committee, that Committee would find out where the fault lay, and probably would suggest a better mode of conducting the scrutiny of votes. For this reason he moved that a Committee be appointed.

Bro. Thompson seconded the motion.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., said he thought there was great objection to this motion being now brought forward in the Boys' School. At the meeting of the Girls' School on Saturday, a similar motion by Bro. Meggy was rejected, and if the brethren were to carry a resolution now which had been rejected in the Girls' School, it would seem to be a reflection on the Scrutineers of the votes in the Boys' School. He objected to having two different modes of treatment in the two Institutions. If there was to be an enquiry as to the Scrutineers it must be for all the Charities, and not for one Charity only. He begged to move as an amendment that the motion be rejected.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., seconded the amendment. From what he knew of the scrutines for many years, they had been most honestly, carefully, and fairly conducted. There was not a suspicion on the Scrutineers, and even in this motion of Bro. Meggy's there was no question of improper conduct.

Bro. Thomas Meggy: Certainly not.

Bro. A. J. D. Filer, P.G.S.B., said he was not behind the scenes in this matter, but he was present on Saturday when the same motion was brought forward and rejected by a small majority. The motion might be brought on again at the next meeting of the Girls' School, and the best way would be for the same motion in the Boys' School to stand over till after that.

Bro. A. H. Tattershall thought that parties bringing forward such a resolution should be agreeable to acting as Scrutineers themselves. If they would come and see how the work was done they would find no fault with it. The way the work was done on Saturday at the Girls' School election was a fair specimen of the way it was generally done. Of course mistakes would sometimes occur—it was unavoidable; but it frequently arose from some brethren being chosen as Scrutineers who were not used to the work. He thought that on Saturday there was no objection raised.

Bro. Thomas Meggy, in reply to an observation of Bro. Tattershall, said he had been a Scrutineer, and it was in consequence of having been a Scrutineer that he brought forward this motion.

The motion was then put and lost by an overwhelming majority.

The next motion was one by Bro. C. F. Matier, "That in Law 55, line 3, after the word 'seven,' the word 'consecutive' be omitted," the effect of the motion being that if a candidate's father has subscribed to one or other of the Masonic Institutions seven years in all, the candidate shall be eligible, rendering it unnecessary that the subscription should have been for seven consecutive years.

Bro. Binckes said no doubt it would be in the recollection of the brethren and other members of the Court that this question was discussed at the last Court, as also at the Court of the Girls' School. In the case of the Girls' School it was resolved to erase the word "consecutive." On the following Monday the Court of the Boys' School retained the word "consecutive," therefore the laws of the two Institutions as they at present stood differed in this respect. In the Girls' School it was "seven years," in the Boys' School "seven consecutive years." Bro. Matier had given notice of motion to eliminate the word "consecutive," but he was not able to be present, and wrote from Glasgow that Bro. Dr. Woodford would make the motion for him.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., said he was very unwilling to trespass again on the time of the meeting, but as he had promised Bro. Matier to second the motion when it came on he would now explain the reason of the motion without going into the whole question of the object of it. It was brought forward now for the purpose of assimilating the laws of the two Institutions. At present there were two systems in existence, and that was clearly not an advisable state of things. Under those circumstances, whatever opinions the brethren might entertain on the question of aggregate or consecutive subscriptions, the motion was now brought forward for the sake of uniformity. He begged to move that the word "consecutive" be omitted, so that the systems of the two Institutions would be harmonious.

Bro. R. B. Webster seconded the motion.

Bro. Henry Hacker said a Committee might be appointed to revise the bye-laws. Some subscribers might feel that seven consecutive years should still be the rule. Would it not be better that notice of motion should be given in the other Institution to alter the laws of the Girls' School so as to make it "consecutive?"

Bro. Col. Creton said the motion at present was whether the word "consecutive" should stand. It had been struck out of the laws in the Girls' School.

Bro. W. Roebuck moved that the word remain. It was quite right that the rules of the two Institutions should be the same; but in this particular instance the case of the two Institutions was different. There were more candidates for the Boys' School than there were for the Girls. In the Boys' School there were seventy-seven candidates and only sixteen to be elected, whereas on Saturday in the Girls' School there were only forty-eight candidates and eighteen to be elected. It had been found that there were many Masons who belonged to a lodge only for four or five years, and attended no lodge at all for years before they died. Their children were put up for the Institutions, and very often they pushed out the children of the thoroughly energetic Mason.

Bro. J. Joyce Murray seconded the amendment.

Bro. Binckes said no amendment was necessary. The motion only required to be met with a direct affirmative or negative.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford observed that with reference to the remark of Bro. Roebuck, as to the list of candidates for the Boys' School being larger than the Girls, it was not a "sequitur." There had been times when the Girls' list was the longer of the two, and there was no reason why it should not be so again. Bro. Roebuck's argument, therefore, was not of any great weight. But the great argument was that one system of "qualification" should prevail for our two educational charities.

The motion was carried by thirty-six votes against seventeen.

Bro. James A. Birch, East Lancashire, moved a proposed alteration of Rule 71, sub-section 2, to read as follows:—"The election and removal of the Secretary shall be vested in the General Committee; the voting to be by balloting papers duly forwarded to each qualified member not less than fourteen days before the date of election; such balloting papers must be signed by the party entitled thereto, and may be presented by a member of the General Committee, on his or her behalf, at the time of the election."

He said it was probably superfluous for him to adduce again the arguments he brought forward at the Quarterly Court of the Girls' School on Saturday, especially as the Boys' Court was composed of very nearly the same members as were present at the Court of the Girls' Institution when the resolution was adopted. Those Masons who resided at considerable distances from Freemasons' Hall thought that the election of Secretary when it did take place should be conducted in the same manner as the election of candidates for admission to the School, by balloting papers. After having by donations to the Institution acquired the privileges of a Life Governor, they felt it was a hardship upon them that, in order to exercise one of those privileges, they should be put to the expense of a journey which involved an outlay of £5 perhaps, and the loss of two days' time, which to many of them was a very serious consideration. By the present law the country brethren were partly disfranchised unless they chose to incur this additional tax, and the election of Secretary, if it should occur, would be vested in those brethren who resided in close proximity to Freemasons' Hall. He did not know that he had anything more to say. The brethren did him the honour to adopt this resolution on Saturday. If he might say without appearing obtrusive, he would mention that if they conferred on the provinces the privilege he asked the Province of East Lancashire trusted it would be many years to come before they had to exercise it in this School. The eloquent advocacy of Bro. Binckes on behalf of this Institution had not only tended to diffuse the privileges of this School alone, but also to promote the prosperity of the other Institutions, by awakening in the breasts of the brethren those feelings which led them to support the Masonic Charities. The brethren trusted it would be many years before he was removed by any cause from the office of Secretary of the Boys' School, because they believed that he sincerely sympathised with the afflictions of the fatherless and widows, and there was no more eloquent or able brother to plead their cause. He hoped that this Quarterly Court of the Boys' School would not be more indifferent to the wishes of the provincial brethren than the Court of the Girls' School on Saturday, but that they would adopt this resolution, and so assimilate the laws of the two Institutions.

Bro. Ruddock seconded the motion.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., while agreeing with the remarks of Bro. Birch in reference to Bro. Binckes, thought that after a large Committee had decided, after due consideration on the law as it at present stood, it was inexpedient to make any alteration.

Bro. W. Roebuck agreed with Bro. Raynham W. Stewart. Bro. Henry Smith, Provincial Grand Secretary West Yorkshire, supported Bro. Birch, and trusted that the Court would do what the Court of the Girls' School did on Saturday. If the principle asked for was granted to the provinces, they would exercise it with great caution. There need be no fear or doubt as to their supporting a proper person. They certainly thought they had a right to the privilege. They did not ask for any new favour. If the London brethren would be generous they would take nothing from themselves, while they would be giving a great deal to the provinces.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart enquired what would be the expense of sending out balloting papers.

Bro. Binckes said the postage would be about £15, and the printing £10. If he might endorse the good wishes expressed by Bro. Birch, he would add that this expense would not occur every year. (Laughter and cheers.) He had held the office himself twenty-five years, and his predecessor held it thirty-seven years. He did not think the question of the expense of printing and postage ought to influence the question at all.

Bro. James A. Birch, in reply, said if the brethren did not pass his resolution, the laws of the two Schools would not be assimilated. The benefits of these Institutions were not restricted to any locality, and really the interest which was felt in these Charities ought to be co-extensive with the benefits conferred. The provincial brethren were anxious to exercise the little influence they possessed without the additional tax he had referred to, and to exercise that influence for the best interests of this Institution.

The motion was carried by thirty-eight against ten votes.

The brethren then proceeded to the election of sixteen boys, by ballot from a list of seventy-seven approved candidates. At five o'clock the Scrutineers of votes, of which Bro. R. B. Webster was chairman, made the following report:—

CELEBRATION OF THE CENTENARY OF THE FREEMASONS' HALL FUND.

(From a Special Correspondent.)

The ancient lodge of Love and Honour, No. 75, Falmouth, on Monday eve last, the 13th inst., assembled in full force to celebrate the centenary of the "Freemasons' Hall Liquidation Fund," which was formed on June 21st, 1779, and to which the lodge contributed very handsomely. There was a very large attendance, and throughout the interest was well sustained, and was enthusiastic to the last.

The W.M., Bro. Wilson Lloyd Fox, took the chair at 7.30, and was supported by the Dep. Prov. G.M. of Cornwall, Bro. Col. J. W. Peard (in the unavoidable absence of the Prov. G.M.); R.W. Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.S.G.D. of England; and W. Bro. W. Copeland Borlase, F.S.A., P. Prov. S.G.W. of Cornwall. The R.W. Bro. J. H. Neilson, Representative of the Grand Lodge of Egypt, was also expected, but was unable to be present, to the regret of his many friends in Falmouth.

After the usual business was finished, and the election of Bro. O. H. Marson du Gillon (late S.W. 1511) as a joining member, the real duties commenced by the W.M. aptly introducing the matter by saying that the fact of the lodge having the privilege to wear the Freemasons' Hall medal, in the person of its W.M., had been quite lost sight of for many years, and the jewel itself had been lost, but the publication of their distinguished Bro. Hughan's "Masonic Register of Lodges" had directed attention to the subject, and through the interest exhibited in the medal, in consequence of the beautiful lithographic plate of it in the work, he and others had endeavoured to procure one of the original medals which had once belonged to an old but defunct lodge, but without any success. He then communicated with Bro. George Kenning, of London, who had a duplicate struck, and he felt very proud indeed to know that the lodge was again to exercise its privilege.

The W. Bro. W. F. Newman, P.M. and Treas. (P. Prov. G.D.), then rose, and expressed his great pleasure on being permitted to invest the W.M. with the medal, on behalf of the Past Masters and members, and he desired to draw attention to the character of the ornament thus attached to the Master's jewel. An unfinished building was depicted on the obverse, thus suggestive of the incompleteness of our lives, and until all discordant elements had been subdued the medal would not be wanting in symbolism to remind us of the cementing character of our ancient and honourable society. The W.M. was then duly invested with the collar, jewel, and medal, amid the plaudits of the brethren.

Bro. Hughan was then asked to address the lodge, and in response, furnished a complete historical account of the beginning, continuance, and ending of the "Freemasons' Hall Fund." Certain lodges had subscribed the sum of £25, without interest, while others had given that sum to the Grand Lodge to liquidate the debt on the Hall, which was inaugurated in 1776, and so the Grand Lodge on 21st June, 1779, had passed a resolution that those members and lodges who had thus aided in the erection of their hall should be presented with a silver medal, to wear "as an honourable testimony to their services," &c. Eighty-two brethren had subscribed, including the Prov. G.M. of Cornwall, Sir John St. Aubyn, whose privileges had died with them, but whilst they lasted the twenty-six lodges were to retain their rights through their W.M.'s for the time being. Of these nine have died out, and outside the London district there are only four left in England which have the right to use the medal, one being No. 75, Falmouth, the nearest else being No. 41, Bath, and the other two are No. 154, Wakefield, and No. 237, Swansea. It was, therefore, a great honour to be thus distinguished, and he felt proud to be an honorary member of one of these lodges, especially No. 75, warranted so early as 1751, and noted from its constitution for its liberality and heartiness. It was also the premier lodge in the county, and the founder of the Prov. G. Lodge of Cornwall.

Bro. Hughan's address was listened to most earnestly by the brethren, and frequently was much applauded.

The W. Bro. H. Tilly, P.M., Prov. G. Reg., then moved that a record be made in the minutes of the celebration that evening of the institution of the Freemasons' Hall under such distinguished auspices, and, in a few well-chosen words, expressed his hearty appreciation of all that had been done to make the meeting such a complete success, and to bring the exertions of the W.M. and Bro. Hughan to such a successful issue.

The W. Bro. Michael Little, P.M. 75, seconded the proposition, and gracefully alluded to the distinguished character of the guests that had honoured them that evening by being present, his reference to Col. Peard, as "Garibaldi's Englishman," and one so honoured and respected, provoking a hearty outburst of applause, as also his remarks respecting the W. Bro. W. C. Borlase, a lineal descendant of the great Cornish historian, the Rev. Dr. Borlase, who (it transpired that evening) was initiated in 1751 in their Lodge, No. 75.

Bro. Borlase, responding, observed that it was due to the antiquity of the lodge that they assembled that evening, and drew some very beautiful thoughts from the object contemplated by the meeting. He was not aware that his illustrious ancestor had been a Mason, and was highly gratified that Bro. Hughan had made so important a discovery in examining the old records of the lodge.

The W. Bro. Col. Peard (who had been duly saluted early in the evening), on rising, was most warmly greeted, and his genial, happy speech was as gratefully and fraternally received by the members, as the reception was most thorough and hearty. He had great pleasure in visiting their old lodge, and particularly on so important an occasion. In reply to the W.M., he consented to accept the position of one of the honorary members of the lodge, the ballot, of course, proving unanimous, and he was presented with a copy of the curious history and bye-laws of the lodge.

The W. Bro. W. H. Dunstan, P.M., P. Prov. S. of W., then proposed a vote of thanks to the W.M. for his well directed efforts, and for the trouble he had taken to obtain the medal, but was brief in his remarks, so as not to make the meeting too protracted.

The W. Bro. F. Dennis seconded, and on being put to the lodge by the I.P.M., the proposition was carried most enthusiastically.

The W.M. thanked the brethren for their kindly mention of his humble services, and to have succeeded in obtaining them was a sufficient reward to him for what he had done. He, however, wished it be known that the meeting was really due to the publication of Bro. Hughan's "Masonic Register of Lodges," and he also expressed his appreciation of Bro. Gould's "Four Old Lodges."

The banquet was served in the spacious ball room of the Royal Hotel by "mine host," Bro. R. Carter, P. Prov. G. Org., and Sec. of the lodge, and, as becoming the time of the year, it was duly served in a most temptingly hot condition. The speeches were much above the ordinary, and, in addition to those already named, the following Past Masters and others were present at the meeting of the lodge and banquet, as well as very many of the members:—Bros. John Vivian, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; Timothy C. Polglase, P.M., P. Prov. A.G.D.C.; John H. Mitchell, P.M. 589; Joseph Wallace, S.W.; W. D. Rogers, J.W.; and the other officers of the lodge.

[Note by the Editor.]

As so much interest has been exhibited in this celebration we append a full list of the lodges entitled to wear the "Freemasons' Hall Medal," taken from Bro. Hughan's work.*

FREEMASONRY IN NORWICH.

The Craft in Norwich have at length fallen upon what they consider comfortable quarters, away from the contaminating influence of hotels and taverns. The residence of the late Mr. H. Bollingbroke, situated at 23, St. Giles'-street, coming to the hammer, a couple of speculating Masons went in for the purchase thereof, and with Bro. H. A. Wooster Reeves as Secretary, and "having the cordial support of the R.W.P.G.M. (Lord Suffield)," a Masonic Club has been started with all the usual facilities of such places. Subscription, one guinea per annum. It remains to be seen how this will succeed. Anyhow, three lodges have already located themselves at No. 23 for their usual monthly meetings—Walpole taking the initiative (with a splendid opening on Thursday evening, the 9th inst.), followed by Cabbell and Perseverance, and it is expected Social and Sincerity will come in shortly, and maybe the aristocratic Union; this latter, however, we doubt, unless his lordship smiles benignly and says yes. Provincial Grand Lodge this year is also to be held in this house, and as the ruling powers are going in strictly for economy, and do not intend to advertise in the local press, we give their announcement free, gratis, for nothing. Major Penrice, D.P.G.M., is unaccountably averse to newspaper reports of Masonic banquets, and expressed himself to that effect at the opening of the new North Walsham (Suffield) Lodge the other day, and yet half a column appeared in our non-Masonic daily contemporary—full of inaccuracies, we admit, nevertheless it must have been supplied by a brother standing well in the Craft. How was this? Here is the circular above alluded to:—

"PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORFOLK.—The Right Honourable Lord Suffield, K.C.B., R.W.P.G.M., Major Penrice, D.P.G.M.—Annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of this province, will be holden at No. 23, St. Giles'-street, Norwich, on Friday, October 17th, 1879, at half-past 12 o'clock precisely, when and where the Provincial Grand Officers, Past Officers, with the Worshipful Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens are summoned to attend, and at which all Master Masons are invited to be present. [Here follows the agenda.] At half-past 3 o'clock the brethren will assemble in the School-room in the Cathedral Cloisters, and from thence proceed, in their Masonic clothing, to the Cathedral for Divine Service, at 4 o'clock, when the Rev. H. T. Griffith, Felmingham Rectory, P.G.C., will preach a sermon. H. G. Barwell, P.G.S. A banquet at Cooper's Restaurant, Bank-plain, Norwich, at 6 o'clock, at which the R.W.P.G.M. will preside. Tickets 11/ each (to include half a bottle of champagne), to be obtained of W. Bro. James Dunsford, P.P.G.S.D., St. Giles'-street, Norwich, and of Bro. H. A. Wooster Reeves, No. 23, St. Giles'-street, Norwich, not later than Tuesday, the 14th inst."

* "Masonic Registrar of Lodges" (plates), by Bro. W. J. Hughan (12/6). London: George Kenning; Truro: of the Author.

Touching this migration to "Cooper's," we have received a letter from "A Mason" protesting against holding a Masonic banquet "under the roof of the greatest Atheist in the Eastern Counties, when we have such respectable hotels in our midst." These hotels are many of them lodge houses, held by brethren who naturally feel aggrieved that they should be passed over in favour of one—however good a caterer—who reviles at religion, and holds Freemasonry in contempt. The matter has created much stir among the Craft in the province.—Norwich Argus.

PROVINCE OF BERKS AND BUCKS.

In consequence of the sudden illness of Lord Carnarvon, the ceremony of laying the memorial stone of the Public Buildings in Reading, intended for Tuesday last, the 14th inst., was unavoidably postponed. Lord Carnarvon is suffering from a very severe attack of gout, which makes it absolutely impossible for him to attend. It is hoped that the ceremony may take place on or about Tuesday, the 4th November. The Provincial Grand Lodge, summoned for the 14th inst., was, therefore, not held.

[The Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Robt. Bradley, desires us to state that he took every possible precaution to prevent inconvenience by sending to every Mason in the province a copy of the above notice on Friday evening, the 10th inst., having been informed of the postponement only that same evening at seven o'clock. A notice was also sent on the following day to all others whom he had reason to believe would come, and it is hoped the means taken will have prevented any brother coming.]

Masonic Notes and Queries.

ANOTHER MASONIC MS.

It is again my delight to announce the advent of another MS. which, although the latest in point of publicity, has been known to me for some little time, only I have not had the opportunity to carefully examine it until now. Some months ago it was exhibited to me by Capt. N. G. Phillips (P.G.D.), one of the Illustrious Chiefs of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite," it forming one of the special features of the Grand Library owned by the "Supreme Council," 33, of England, &c. I have already alluded to the older MS. of A.D. 1686, which is a most valuable document, and carefully preserved in the archives of the Supreme Council. The junior is a transcript of the old MS. known as "Matthew Cooke's" (of the 15th century circa), and is a marvel of the calligraphic art. Its size is 6 1/2 inches by 4, and the binding is of red morocco, gilt. The copy is likely to have been early last century, say about 1730, and a pencil note thereon entitles it the "Lord Coleraine MS." Likely enough the title refers to Lord Coleraine, who was Grand Master in 1727-8, whose name occurs on a similar transcript, now in the possession of the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A. (P.G.C.) Bro. Woodford's copy has the arms' plate of "William Cowper, Esq., Clerk to the Parliaments" (doubtless the Grand Sec. of A.D. 1723), and contains the following important note:—"This is a very ancient record of Masonry, wch was copy'd for me by Wm. Reid, Secretary to the Grand Lodge 1728. Ld. Coleraine, Grd Master, Al. Choke, Depy., Nat. Blackesby and Jo. Highmore, Gd. Wardens." The original MS. was purchased of a Mrs. Caroline Baker, Oct. 14th, 1859, by the authorities of the British Museum, and was edited in 1861 by Bro. Matthew Cooke, hence its title. Evidently, in 1728, it was known to the Grand Secretary, and from it apparently several transcripts were made, two at least being still in existence. Bro. Woodford's copy was purchased a few years ago from a bookseller at Bristol. The present MS. under notice I beg to name the "Ancient and Accepted Rite MS.," and I desire to thank the R.W. Bro. Hugh David Sandeman, P. District G.M. of Bengal, for the facilities afforded me to carefully examine its pages.

ANCIENT MASONIC POETRY.

The following extracts were taken from our good friend, the Keystone. We wish its pleasant Editor would also give us a reference whence they came:

The following is an ancient Masonic Epitaph:

The Circle's round
Is Virtue's bound.
The Perfect Square
Tell's God is there.
The Plummet's fall
'S Heaven's grace fo. all.
Employ good tools
By Mason's rules.
Eschew all evil
And shame the Devil.

An old Masonic poem closes with this telling stanza:

Let love abound in all your ways,
That all Mankind may see
That trust in God is the Keystone
Of ancient Masonry.

THE QUATUOR CORONATI.

I hope in December number of the "Masonic Magazine" to give the Latin and English versions in Arundel MSS., British Museum, of the old legend of the four faithful Craftsmen. A. F. A. W.

Masonic and General Tidings.

Bro. Sir Charles T. Bright has been elected Master of the Needle Makers' Company.

We are happy to state that Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M., who, as already stated, is suffering from a severe attack of gout, is somewhat better, although still confined to his room.

The installation meeting of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday last, the 15th inst. A report of the proceedings unavoidably stands over.

The election meeting of the Era Lodge, No. 1423, was held on Saturday last. A report will appear in our next.

The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed in the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction by Bro. Geo. King, P.M., Preceptor, on Tuesday evening, the 21st inst., at 7 o'clock. Brethren are kindly invited to attend.

In our report of the lecture delivered by Bro. D. Spark it was stated that it was given to the brethren and visitors of the Lodge of Fortitude, No. 289, whereas it should be the Lodge of Fidelity, No. 289, Leeds. We are also informed that a practical application of this lecture was made at a ceremony of initiation in the same lodge on Thursday, the 7th inst., when both vocal and instrumental music was introduced, as advocated in the lecture.

The Fifteen Sections will (by invitation) be worked on Wednesday week, the 29th inst., in the Southwark Lodge of Instruction, No. 879, by the brethren of the St. James's Lodge, No. 765, at the Southwark Park Tavern, Southwark Park-road, Bermondsey. The lodge will be opened at 7 o'clock precisely.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, M.W.G.M. Ireland, presided on Tuesday, at the opening of the Madeline wing of the Adelaide Hospital, Dublin. The new wing is a substantial addition to the hospital. It is named after the late Lady Madeline Crichton, wife of Colonel the Hon. C. F. Crichton, and daughter of the Marquis of Headfort.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, speaking on Tuesday, the 14th inst., at the opening of a bazaar in aid of the new church of St. Luke's, Southport, said he had very high authority for saying that the heavy cloud of depression, under which we had been for a long time, was disappearing. There was a rift in the cloud, which he hoped and trusted would open until we saw the blue sky of prosperity above us once more.

The annual dinner of the Licensed Victuallers' School will take place at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday next, Baron Henry de Worms presiding. The institution maintains, clothes, and educates 200 poor children, at an annual cost of about £7,000.

The meetings of the Royal Hanover Lodge, No. 1777, will in future be held at the Albany Hotel, Twickenham.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked at the meeting of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, to be held at the White Swan Hotel, High-street, Deptford, on Monday next, the 20th instant. Bro. Martin, of the Southwark Park Lodge, No. 879, will occupy the chair of W.M. on this occasion, and the lodge will be opened at 7 p.m.

The Rev. D. Armstrong, D.D., preaching in Holy Trinity Church, Walton Beck, on Sunday, the 14th ult., made special reference to mission work in Mexico, and said that Dr. Riley, Bishop of the Happy Valley, had told him that Freemasonry had done more to promote the extension of the Gospel in Mexico than any other thing that had ever been introduced into that country.—Rock.

The brethren within the Liverpool Masonic circle, and many besides who are beyond it, will learn with regret that Bro. Joseph Wood, who for so many years has occupied a working position in Masonry, has recently sustained a severe loss in the death of his wife, who for the long period of forty-five years had been his sharer of every-day joys and sorrows. The sad event took place on the 9th inst. at Monument-place, after a long and painful illness, which was borne by the sufferer with the greatest resignation and patience. Mrs. Wood, who had reached her seventy-second year, was universally respected and esteemed; and now that Bro. Wood, by the dispensation of T.G.A.O.T.U., has been bereft of her who was for nearly half a century his kindly helpmeet, he may fall back for some consolation on the heartfelt and universal sympathy of all who know him, both in and out of Masonry. The interment of Mrs. Wood took place on Monday afternoon at Smithdown-lane Cemetery, Liverpool, where there were gathered a number of Bro. Wood's personal friends. The funeral service was read by the Rev. Dr. Harrison, of St. Silas's Church, Liverpool.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Autumn is proverbially the season of sickness; then the blood requires purification, the digestion demands thorough and attentive regulation, and all the secretions call for correction. Holloway's remedies supply all the necessaries for securing health; the one overcomes cutaneous diseases, sores, ulcers, abscesses, carbuncles, and all visible imperfections, the other acts most potently in cleansing the circulation, strengthening the stomach, governing the liver, regulating the bowels, and reducing the entire system to order. Thus these twin medicaments furnish the most efficient medicine chest available for family use. It is easier, through Holloway's discovery, to point out the remedy than to describe the disease; into the former no fallacy can intrude; into the latter prejudice may unwillingly creep.—[Adv't.]

It will interest many of our readers to know that a complimentary benefit is in preparation at the Gaiety Theatre, to Mr. William Belford. Few actors on the stage have more claims on the sympathy of the public than Mr. Belford.

The World says the household at Camden Place is broken up, and Dr. Conneau and M. Pietri have virtually taken their leave of the Empress, with whose family they have been so long associated.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The members of this lodge assembled in good numbers on the 7th inst. at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. There were present among others Bros. T. C. Walls, P.G. S.B. of Middx.; W.M. (Freemason); Kohler, S.W.; Speedy, J.W.; H. Higgins, P.M., acting I.P.M.; W. Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Webb, S.D.; Marston, J.D.; Stokes, D.C.; Honeywell, P.M. Dobie, &c., Organist; Stranger, W.S.; Bolton, A.W.S.; Koch, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M.; Longstaffe, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. James Stevens, P.M. 1426, &c.; Goodhall, 33; G. Rumball, W.M. elect 141; Ayling, 975; Bennigfield, 1589. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, letters of apology for non-attendance were read from Bros. Reeves, I.P.M.; G. Everett, P.M.; and Robinson, I.G. Bro. Cockburn was then raised to the Degree of a M.M., and Wm. Robertson was initiated. Several minor matters having been satisfactorily disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the customary Royal and Craft toasts were duly proposed and honoured. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Koch, P.M., in a very flattering speech. This toast having been briefly acknowledged, "The Initiate" followed, and was responded to by Bro. Robertson in fitting terms. The next toast, "The Visitors," was most warmly received, and was replied to at length by Bros. Goodhall, Ayling, Bennigfield, Rumball, and Stevens. The latter brother, in the course of an able speech, took the opportunity of ventilating the subject of uniformity in Masonic ritual, and which matter he fully dwelt with on the work recently compiled and edited by him. In giving "The Past Masters," the W.M. expressed his regret that the senior member of that important body, Bro. Page, was prevented by indisposition from attending. His services as Treasurer could not be over-estimated, and he (the W.M.) hoped that at the next meeting Bro. Page would be sufficiently restored to come among them. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the Past Masters present briefly replied. "The Officers" came next in order, and was acknowledged by Bros. Stuart, Kohler, Speedy, and Webb. The brethren were entertained during the evening by Bros. Honeywell, Stevens, Stokes, and others. The Tyler's toast at eleven terminated the proceedings.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Lodge was opened with the usual formalities by Bro. John Douglass, who was supported by a numerous assembly of members and visitors, among the latter being Bros. E. E. Barratt-Kidder, J.D. 12; S. Hollidge, 1602; B. Kauffmann, 1732; Leon Jacobs, I.G. 1732; T. W. Kingston, P.M. 1107, 912, 615, P.P.G.D.C. Kent; A. Daw Kerrell, I.G. 145; H. M. Levy, P.M. 188; H. Stevens, 1732; H. A. Dubois, P.G.J.W. Middx.; C. Reingspach, 392, G.O. France; J. Cherry, 19; F. G. W. Guyer, 1288; W. Read, 177; C. Harcourt, 1319; A. Hubbard, 1732; J. L. Simpson, 1076; W. Walden, 49; W. Medcalf, 206; E. F. Pierdon, 948; A. Mulord, J.W. 1288; T. Wilson, D.C. 1328; W. Searle, 907; M. S. Boyle, 1777; J. J. Wine, 826; J. Terry, P.P.G.W. Herts., Sec. R.M.B.I.; C. B. Putland, 1732; J. H. Lamer, 733; W. W. Morgan, J.W. 1385; Bradshaw Brown, J.W. 1; G. W. Churchley, P.M. 615; F. Morgan, 169; and others. Bro. C. J. Scales, the W.M. elect, occupied the position of S.W.; Side, J.W.; J. Willing, P.M., Treas.; G. Clark acted as S.D.; Colls, J.D.; Eduonds, as I.G.; and H. Lovegrove, Steward. Among the Past Masters were Bros. Kingham and Michael. After the confirmation of the minutes, the report of the Audit Committee was presented and adopted. On the proposition of Bro. Stiles, seconded by Bro. Kingham, the sanction of the lodge was given for the removal of the lodge of instruction, held under the sanction of this lodge, to the Moorgate Station Restaurant. Bro. Weias, of No. 145, was passed to the Second Degree, and then Bro. Scales was formally presented for the benefit of installation, which ceremony was ably performed by the outgoing Master, Bro. John Douglass. The following brethren were in due course appointed and invested as officers for the coming year: Bros. W. Side, S.W.; W. M. Stiles, J.W.; J. Willing, P.M., Treas.; J. J. Michael, P.M., Sec.; G. Colls, S.D.; H. Stiles, J.D.; J. Clark, I.G.; H. Lovegrove, D.C.; G. W. Brunell and T. Gilbert, jun., Stewards; J. Daly, Tyler. The installation ceremony was then completed, and the W.M. at once called upon to shew his proficiency, there being two candidates for initiation, viz., Messrs. H. Connolly and C. Rooks. Each of these gentlemen were admitted to a participation of the secrets of Freemasonry, and then the W.M. proceeded to close the lodge. Previous to doing so, Bro. Michael proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. John Douglass for the able way in which he had installed his successor; this was seconded by Bro. Willing, and carried with acclamation. It was then announced that the W.M. had undertaken the office of Steward for the next festival of the Benevolent Institution, and as it was pointed out that the lodge was already Vice-President of one branch of that fund, a hope was expressed that on the occasion of the Master's Stewardship sufficient money would be forthcoming to enable the lodge to the rank of Vice-Patron. Bro. Michael also offered his services to represent the lodge at another of the festivals, and treated that the year on which they had just started would be marked for the amount devoted by the lodge to the Charities of the Order. Nothing further offering, the lodge was now closed, the brethren proceeding to the banquet hall, where a first-rate repast awaited them. Bro. Clemow personally superintended the serving, and although they had the capabilities of their establishment fairly tested, proved they were equal to the work demanded of them. One of the items the W.M. mentioned previous to proposing the toasts was that during his year of office brevity would be observed by the clear and appreciated from the members—if the speeches on this occasion are a criterion of what may be expected in the future, we may assume the remarks of the W.M. will be acted on thoroughly. The usual first three toasts were quickly disposed of. Bro. Douglass proposed "The Health of the W.M.," rarely remarking that the present was the first occasion on which Bro. Scales had been thus honoured, and he (Bro. Douglass) hoped, therefore, that the response would be a hearty one. Bro. Scales thanked the brethren for the compliment the brethren had paid him, and then proposed "The Health of the Immediate Past Master." Bro. Douglass had, by installing him that evening, he said, conferred on him the greatest honour it was possible to receive from a lodge. He had very great pleasure in carrying out the wishes of the brethren, and investing Bro. Douglass with the Past Master's jewel, which had been voted from the lodge funds. Bro. Douglass in acknowledgment tendered his hearty thanks. If the way in which he had performed the ceremony of installation that evening had met the approval of the lodge, he was highly gratified. He hoped the brethren were satisfied with what he had done for the lodge during the past twelve months; the very handsome jewel they had presented to him led him to believe that such was the case, and for it and their support during the term of his Mastership he tendered the heartiest thanks. Bro. Scales now proposed "The Health of the Past Masters." The toast was one that had been so often proposed, and the brethren it included were so well-known, that it was quite unnecessary to dilate long on its merits; he hoped the brethren who had occupied the chair of the lodge in years past would for a long time to come be found in their respective places in the lodge, where they would always command, and he felt sure receive, the greatest respect. Bro. Willing, in replying, tendered his congratulations to Bro. Scales on his promotion to the chair of his mother lodge, and likewise the lodge on having so early initiated a brother who had proved himself so capable in performing the various duties he had undertaken. It was a great satisfaction to the Past Masters to see the brethren they had initiated fill the chairs of the lodge. Bro. Michael considered that his office of Secretary was one requiring him to write rather than speak. He was pleased to see the lodge in the position to which it had risen, and pointed out the great credit that attached to the members in having so zealously supported the Charities on each opportunity that had arisen since the lodge was consecrated. He thought the idea of giving up one of the banquets and devoting the money that would have been then spent was a good one, and hoped that should the present Master see fit to adopt such a course during his year of office the members would attend in as great a number as usual, and show they were really sincere in their support of the Institutions. He should ask each brother, on some future occasion, to put a few shillings towards making the lodge a Vice-President of the various Charities. Bro. Kingham followed in a few words, mainly supporting Bro. Michael's plan for placing the lodge in the proud position of V.P. of the Institutions. Bro. Scales now proposed "The Health of the Initiates." The two received that evening were worthy brethren, and likely to advance the interests of the lodge. Bro. Rooks thanked the brethren; he greatly appreciated the compliment that had been paid him in receiving him in the lodge. Bro. Connolly likewise thanked the brethren. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Visitors," calling upon Bro. Dubois to respond. That brother on behalf of himself and fellow visitors expressed the gratification they felt at hearing that the rule in the lodge had been for each Master to instal his successor; he considered such a course was of great benefit to a lodge, and any brother who thus finished his year of office was entitled to greater honour that could otherwise accrue to him. Bro. Brown followed, complimenting the lodge on its efficient officers; he should endeavour to emulate their example and point them out as a pattern for young brethren to copy. Bro. Cherry also replied. The toast of "The Charities" followed, Bro. Terry responding. He urged the brethren to support their Master in the laudable endeavour he had promised to make to place the lodge among the Vice-Presidents of the Benevolent Institution; this was a position attained by only thirty of the 1845 lodges on the roll of English Grand Lodge, and the fact of so young a lodge as the Metropolitan qualifying itself would reflect the greatest credit on all connected with it. The next toast was that of "The Treasurer, Secretary, and other Officers of the Lodge," which was heartily proposed and responded to by each of the officers then present, all of whom expressed their intention to work in their new offices as much for the benefit of the lodge as was possible. The Tyler's toast followed, and thus the proceedings terminated.

SUNDERLAND.—St. John's Lodge (No. 80).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Tuesday evening, the 14th inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. Newton, supported by Bros. Huntly, P.M.; Frampton, W.M. 94; Surtees, P.M. 94; Eggleston, W.M. 949; and Douglass, P.M. (Freemason). The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Hayhurst and Huntly were examined in the First Degree, and gave satisfaction. They then retired, and the lodge was raised to the Second Degree, when Bro. Hayhurst and Huntly were regularly admitted, and made Fellow Craft Masons. The lodge was then closed in the Second Degree. Bro. Douglass, P.M., nominated Bro. Hawdon as W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Lemon proposed, and Bro. Hayhurst seconded, Mr. Buckhart as a candidate for Masonry. The W.M. proposed Amos Broughton as a candidate for Masonry, which was seconded by Bro. Huntly, P.M. No other business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, in due and solemn form.

STOCKPORT.—St. John's Lodge (No. 104).—The regular monthly meeting of this old and prosperous lodge was held on Monday, the 13th inst., at the lodge rooms, Ashton House, Greek-street, when about fifty brethren were present. In the unavoidable absence through indisposition of the W.M., Bro. W. Harrison, P.S.G.D., the lodge was opened by Bro. Herbert Finch, P.M., P.G. D.C., who was supported by Bros. Collier, S.W.; C. Pearson, P.M., as J.W.; W. W. Shelmerdine, Treas.; T. Bullock, Sec.; W. Booth, Prov. G. Steward, S.D.; G. Balfie, Org.; E. Stevens, Prov. G. Steward, I.G.; H. W. Mather, and J. Fox, Stewards; Past Masters Schofield, Kirk, and Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson, P.P.S.G.D. The visitors included Bros. J. L. Vaughan, P.M. 1030 (Mayor of Stockport); Oswald Wilkinson, S.D. 1030; C. E. Steward, W.M. 336; S. P. Bidder, P.M., 993; J. Worsnup, W.M. 328; L. Bradbury, J.W. 322; W. Alcock, J.D. 322; T. Wilkinson, P.M. 1126; J. Leigh, J.W. 287, Prov. G. Steward; R. Johnson, 281; and others. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been ratified, letters of apology for inability to attend were read from the W.M., and Bro. J. Beresford, P.M., P.P.S.G.D. The ballot was then taken for Major Francis Preston, C.E., as a candidate for initiation, which proving favourable he was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Masonry by Bro. Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson, P.M., P.P.S.G.D., his proposer. The remaining business consisted of a passing and a raising, the chair being occupied during the former ceremony by Bro. Finch, P.M., P.G.D.C., and during the latter by Bro. C. Pearson, P.M. All the ceremonies were conducted with an impressiveness and finish which betokened careful study and rehearsal on the part of the officers concerned in them, and which at a later period of the evening called forth the highest eulogiums from the visiting brethren. On the motion of Bro. Finch, P.G.D.C., seconded by Bro. Collier, S.W., two questions were referred to the General Purposes Committee of the lodge for consideration and report, viz., the desirability of having a paid Secretary of the lodge, and an increase in the annual subscription, the Committee's report to be included in the next lodge summons. "Hearty good wishes" having been expressed by the visitors, the lodge was closed, and a couple of hours afterwards spent in a most enjoyable manner at the festive board, the performances of the lodge choir enhancing the pleasures of the evening to no inconsiderable extent.

LIVERPOOL.—Merchants' Lodge (No. 241).—The usual monthly meeting of the members of this "crack" lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, under the presidency of Bro. Thomas Salter, the excellent W.M., who was supported by a full complement of officers and large attendance of brethren, amongst the visitors being several recently appointed Prov. Grand Officers. Mr. Blades was efficiently initiated by the W.M., who afterwards passed three brethren to the Degree of F.C. in an equally satisfactory manner. This being what is known as a "quarterly night," the lodge was closed down to the First Degree, and the J.W. called the brethren from labour to refreshment. An adjournment was made to the banqueting room, where a capital supper was served. The standard loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and during the evening several capital pieces of music were rendered by the brethren and visitors. Prominent amongst the latter was Bro. Walter Belton, the popular baritone of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, who literally took the brethren by surprise as a consequence of his masterly rendering of "Largo al Factotum." The duet, "The moon has raised her lamp" (from "The Lily of Killarney"), was also effectively rendered by Bro. Bolton, and Bros. Thomas Hatton, 203, Child, Pugmire, E. Donnelly, and others also contributed several choice items. The accompaniments were capably played by Bro. J. P. Bryan. The last toast was given at 10.30, when one of the most enjoyable meetings in the annals of this popular and influential lodge was brought to a close. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Captain Newman, P.G. Reg.; J. T. Callow, P.G. Treas.; H. Williams, P.G.D.C.; Longmire, P.G.S. (Morecambe), and others.

SUNDERLAND.—Williamson Lodge (No. 949).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the St. Stephen's School on Monday evening, the 13th inst. There were present Bros. Eggleston, W.M.; Munro, S.W.; Hall, P.M.; Gray, P.M.; Frampton, W.M. 94; Surtees, P.M. 94; Newton, W.M. 80; Douglass, P.M. 80 (Freemason). The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and the circular was read convening the meeting. Bro. Thompson was then examined in the First Degree, and gave satisfaction. He then retired, and the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Thompson was re-admitted, and made a Fellow Craft Mason. Bro. Macnamara gave a lecture on the Second Tracing Board in a most praiseworthy manner. The lodge was then closed in the Second Degree. The W.M. proposed, seconded by Bro. Taylor, P.M., Mr. Thos. Lachenby as a candidate for initiation in this lodge. No other business being done the lodge was closed in due and solemn form, and according to ancient custom.

SUNDERLAND.—Fenwick Lodge (No. 1389).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Friday evening, the 17th inst., at 7.30, after a vacation of five months. The lodge was opened in due and solemn form by the W.M., Bro. W. Beattie, supported by Bros. Bell, P.M.; Lord John Taylour, P.M.; John Tillman, P.M.; Nicholson, I.P.M.; Frampton, W.M. 94; Eggleston, W.M. 949. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. The election of the W.M. then took place, when Bro. Barnard was unanimously elected. Bro. Hudson, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. Douglass, P.M., was re-elected Tyler. All business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom in due and solemn form.

TWICKENHAM.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on the 11th inst., at the Albany. The W.M., Bro. Devereux, presided, and was supported by Bros. A. Loos, S.W.; J. Faulkner, J.W.; B. Wright, Sec.; J. H. Pearson, S.D.; Dr. Ryley, J.D.; E. H. Thielley, P.M.; J. W. Baldwin, P. M. and Treas.; B. Squire, W. Morton, Messrs. M. A. and A. A. Sims, R. Chipperfield, and F. P. Jenkins. Bro. J. T. Moss was unavoidably absent, but was well and worthily represented by his son, Bro. J. T. H. Moss, 169. The visitors included Bros. J. W. Long, of the Fitzroy Lodge; Jackson Barwise, 255; R. A. Fraser, 1567; J. W. Watts, 507; Middlemass, 957; T. Edmondston, 1669. The lodge was called for three o'clock, and after opening, the Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed and duly signed by the Worshipful Master. Afterwards the ballot was taken for four candidates, which was unanimous in favour of their admission, and being in attendance were very impressively initiated by the W.M., who afterwards passed Bro. B. Squire to the Second Degree. This being election meeting Bro. A. Loos was unanimously elected W.M. for the year ensuing, as were also Bros. Baldwin, re-elected Treasurer, and Gilbert, as Tyler. On the motion of Bro. Baldwin, seconded by Bro. Henman, the usual twelve guinea jewel was voted to the retiring W.M. Bros. Henman, Elliott, and Squire were elected Auditors in addition to the standing Committee, and notices of motion were given by Bro. Baldwin to reduce the joining fee from seven to five guineas, and by Bro. Elliott to make an alteration in Bye-law 25, after which the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, and returned to town at an early hour.

MANCHESTER.—Trafford Lodge (No. 1496).—The installation meeting of this young and prosperous lodge was held on Monday, the 13th inst., at the Alexandra Hotel, Moss Side East. The meeting was convened for two o'clock, but it was long after that hour before the brethren assembled in the lodge room, in fact it was nearly 3.30 ere the lodge was opened; and we must protest against the tardiness of brethren in not being "up to time," as, although due allowance must be made for pressure of business with some, yet it cannot be the case with all, and it would be better to arrange the meetings for a later period of the day than to cause brethren (who imagine that punctuality will be "l'ordre du jour") the inconvenience of filling up as best they can the wasted hour. The following officers and brethren were present: Bros. W. S. Watson, W.M.; Henry Jones, I.P.M.; John Rowe, S.W.; S. D. McKellen, J.W.; D. Johnson, J.D.; E. B. Harding, Treasurer; John Brierley, Secretary; Jas. McGrath, I.G.; William Hill, Tyler; Edwin Jordan, Jno. Jordan, George Burslem, George Marsden, Thos. L. Frith, Thos. Carter, B. Halliwell, Henry Pattison, Christopher W. Willis, C. F. Mathew, George Johnson, J. Atkinson, and Dr. R. Ausfield. Visitors: Thos. Fallows, 1052; George Balford, P.M. 236 and 1611; J. Barker, P.M. 1134, 1345, P.P.G.T. E.L.; Benjamin Taylor, P.M. 935, Prov. G. Treas. E.L.; Edwin Hardon, P.M. 1030, P.P. S.G.D. E.L.; Thos. Elliott, P.M. 1147; P. Child, P.M. 177; Robt. White, I.G. 1052; James Batty, W.M. 1387; Albert Kenworth, 217; Jas. Warren, P.M. 992; Chas. Jones, S.W. 1060; Wm. Byway, 1633; W. P. Hayhurst, 1633; Thos. Buxton, P.M. 1345; John Buckley, S.O. 277; William Rye, 467; Joseph Wild, 277; Samuel Rome, 252; H. Carr, 1170; Edward Carr, 1170; and R. L. Senden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened with prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. A copy of the balance-sheet for the past year was then handed to each member of the lodge, and the Auditors, Bros. Burslem, Halliwell, and Dickinson, having testified to the correctness of the same, a proposition was put and carried that it be passed. The usual extracts from the Book of Constitutions were then read by the Secretary to the W.M. elect, Bro. John Rowe, who gave the requisite responses. At the conclusion of this formality the brethren, with the exception of those who had passed the honourable goal of W.M., retired, and a Board of P.M.'s having been formed, Bro. Rowe was duly installed W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. Bro. Gillman very ably performed the ceremony of installation. On the re-admission of the brethren Bro. Harding proclaimed to them that Bro. John Rowe had been installed W.M., and called upon them to salute him in the customary manner, which was done. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. S. D. McKellen, S.W.; D. Johnson, J.W.; Stuart, S.D.; James McGrath, J.D.; Harding, Treasurer (re-appointed); Geo. Burslem, Secretary; F. Dickinson, D. of C.; Atkinson and George Johnson, Stewards; and J. Hill, Tyler. The address was presented to the W.M. by Bro. Dickinson, P.M., to the Wardens by Bro. Jones, P.M., and to the brethren by Bro. Watson, I.P.M. The lodge having been lowered to the First Degree, "Hearty good wishes" were expressed by the numerous visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed with the usual formalities. The brethren afterwards sat down to a banquet, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. The I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said it gave him great pleasure in so doing, for, as the brethren were aware, Bro. Rowe had been connected with the lodge from its commencement, and had by his assiduity well earned the position he had attained, and no one felt prouder than he (the I.P.M.) did to see him in his present position, and he had no doubt that his year of office would be as successful as the last had been, and in wishing the W.M. all prosperity he would call upon the brethren to drink a bumper to this toast. The I.P.M., Bro. Watson, in response to the toast of his health, said it afforded him great satisfaction to know that in retiring from the chair of W.M. he carried the good wishes of the brethren with him, and in thanking them sincerely for their kindly expressions of feeling, he trusted that there would always be that thorough understanding and cordiality which had hitherto existed between himself and the members of the Trafford Lodge. The toasts of "The Visiting Brethren," "The Masonic Charities," "The Newly-invested Officers," "The P.M.'s of the Trafford Lodge," and "All Poor and Distressed Masons," followed, and were duly responded to. A choice selection of songs and glees were ably rendered by the Bros. Dumville (two) and Bro. Lister, and a word of praise must certainly be awarded to Bro. Dickinson for his excellent catering at the banquet.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—This provincial lodge met on the 8th inst., at the Albany Hotel. The officers present were Bros. W. H. Saunders, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, acting W.M., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. H. Court, W.M.; W. Taylor, S.W.; H. Court, jun., Organist, acting J.W.; Tomlinson, P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, &c., Treasurer; Ashley, S.D., acting Secretary; the Rev. D'Orsey, Assistant Chaplain; T. C. Walls, P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, D.C. (Freemason); and Harrison, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the election of W.M. for the ensuing year unanimously resulted in favour of Bro. William Taylor, S.W. Bro. Tomlinson then stated that in consequence of his being about to reside permanently in Norfolk he was reluctantly compelled to tender his resignation of the office of Treasurer. This announcement having been received with great regret by the lodge, Bro. Richnoll was then unanimously elected Treasurer for the ensuing year. The election of Tyler fell upon Bro. Harrison. Previously to the lodge being closed two notices of motion were given for discussion at the next meeting. The lodge was then formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation. The only toasts proposed were "The Queen and the Craft," "The W.M.," and "The W.M. elect." The members separated at an early hour.

EAST GRINSTEAD.—Sackville Lodge (No. 1619).—The last regular meeting of this very successful lodge for the present year was held at the Crown Hotel, on Tuesday, the 7th inst. There were present Bros. John G. Horsey, W.M.; S. Davison, S.W.; Chas. Sawyer, I.P.M. and Secretary; C. W. Noehmer, P.M.; J. G. Calway, J.D.; Jas. Cooper, Walter Harwood, C. Firbank, M. Ovenden, and G. W. Holmes. Visitors: Bros. A. W. Thorpe, S.W. 176; S. Harrison, P.M. 804 and P.P.G. Supt. of Works Hampshire and I. of W.; Jos. Irith, 1507, and J. Hopkinson, 38. The lodge was opened in the First Degree punctually at five o'clock. The minutes of previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Christopher Firbank, G. W. Holmes, and Mark Ovenden, candidates for raising, having replied to the usual questions, were entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and these three brethren raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. Upon the conclusion of this most impressive ceremony the lodge was resumed to the Second and then to the First Degree. The W.M. read a letter he had received from Bro. Head, J.W., explaining that he was prevented from attending through a death happening in his family the day before, and upon the suggestion of the W.M. the brethren unanimously agreed that the Secretary should write a letter to Bro. Head expressive of their sympathy. Letters of apology from Bros. P.M. Noke, Dickman, Woolgar, and Pile for their non-attendance having been read, and other business concluded, the lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a substantial repast, served by Bro. Ovenden in the large market-room of the hotel, and a very pleasant evening closed the meeting. During the repast the usual loyal and other toasts were duly honoured.

GREAT STANMORE.—Unity Lodge (No. 1637).—This lodge met on Saturday last at the Abercorn

Hotel. There were present Bros. Wm. Stephens, Prov. G.D.C., W.M.; C. J. W. Davis, Prov. G. Steward, S.W.; W. Grist, J.W.; E. C. Woodward, P.M., Treas.; W. Coombes, Sec.; S. A. Cooper, S.D.; J. W. Cooper, J.D.; H. Slyman, D.C.; J. Adkins, I.G.; J. Middleton, Tyler. Visitors: Bros. H. Reed, P.M. 733; H. M. Levy, P.M. 188; W. J. Mullis, P.M. 1642; S. Parkhouse, W.M. 1642; H. D. M. Williams, W.M. 874; J. J. Pattison, W.M. 1678; T. P. Smith, W.M. 1441; J. E. Cattle, W.M. 1257; T. J. Maidwell, P.M. 27; G. Brown, P.M. 65; C. Daniel, W.M. 65; Blunt, 1489; E. Rea, 1096, Deal; G. J. Glover, 1489; C. Hickling, 538; J. Hurdle, 1348; and Wolmer Brown, 355, South Australia. Mr. Bristow was initiated, after which the W.M. installed his successor, Bro. C. Davis, who appointed and invested the officers as follows: Bros. W. Grist, S.W.; S. A. Cooper, J.W.; W. Stephens, Treas.; T. W. Cooper, S.D.; J. Adkins, J.D.; Slyman, I.G.; Geo. Penn, D.C.; J. Linscott and Oldroy, Stewards; Middleton, Tyler. The charges were then delivered, and after "Hearty good wishes" from the many lodges represented, the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet, when the usual toasts were proposed and duly honoured. Bro. Jas. Terry, Prov. G.J.D. Herts, responded for "The Charities." Bro. Stephens, P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," spoke of his many excellent qualities and his determination to make the Unity Lodge a great success. The past year had seen a great accession to their numbers, and, no doubt, the present year would complete their ranks, the members of this lodge being limited to thirty only. Letters of apology were read from the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Col. Burdett, the Prov. Grand Treasurer and Secretary, and many others. This was the largest meeting since the formation of the lodge, and with such an excellent staff of officers it augurs well for its future prosperity.

INSTRUCTION.

LANGTHORNE LODGE (No. 1421).—A goodly number of the brethren assembled at the Swan Hotel, Stratford, on the 15th inst., on the occasion of the Fifteen Sections being worked by Bros. James Boulton, S.D. 1056, W.M.; B. Cundick, P.M. 1421, S.W.; W. H. Myers, P.M. 1445, J.W.; F. Y. Latreille, P.M. 1056, P.M. The various Sections were worked as follows:—

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, Bro. G. M. Felton, W.M. 1056, in proposing a most cordial vote of thanks to the W.M., expressed the great treat he had personally experienced in hearing the Sections worked in so masterly a manner. The proposition was seconded by Bro. T. S. Taylor, and unanimously carried. Votes of thanks were also proposed, seconded, and unanimously awarded to the working officers, Bros. Cundick, Myers, Durrant, Dix; the Hon. Sec., F. C. D. Fenn; and the Hon. Preceptor, F. Y. Latreille. The brethren who had worked the Sections having been unanimously elected honorary members of the lodge, and several brethren having been elected joining members, the proceedings were brought to a close. There were present Bros. J. Boulton, S.D. 1056, W.M.; B. Cundick, P.M. 1421, S.W.; W. H. Myers, P.M. 1445, J.W.; W. G. Durrant, P.M. 1056; A. Mole, 186; G. F. Dix, J.W. 1421; F. Y. Latreille, P.M. 1056; F. C. D. Fenn, I.G. 171; H. N. Taylor, S.W. 1421; E. Triggs, 749; R. G. Owen, P.M. 1421; G. Gwinn, 772; H. John, 749; W. C. Hall, J.D. 749; J. Brooks, 51; J. Bullwinkle, 1421; M. Christian, 860; W. J. Quiney, 87; J. Morley, 1421; A. Calver, 933; G. E. Long, D.C. 1056; G. R. Atkinson, 1056; E. Mages, 51; H. Atter, 1056; C. Ashdown, P.M. 1421; J. J. Berry, P.M. 554; J. E. Sims, 1445; A. Robbins, P.M. 1056; J. Gaskell, P.M. 1076; G. M. Verry, P.M. 554; H. Hobbs, 749; W. L. Greenfield, 975; J. H. Gurney, 749; T. S. Taylor, W.M. 1421; F. W. Job, S.D. 1076; H. Tapley, J.W. 1076; F. King, J.W. 1056; J. Pallen, 1056; W. H. Bateman, W.M. 12; W. Brooks, 545; J. M. Petrie, 171; T. Grover, 1421; S. W. Iron, 902; W. Iron, 1579; J. Grey, 504; J. G. Defriez, P.M. 45; J. Marsh, 1336; G. Graveley, 808; J. Barley, 1056; W. W. Quiney, 87; J. Magrath, 1306; H. R. Davies, I.G. 1056; F. Foster, 51; J. G. Garin, W.M. 781; G. L. Rundsen, 431; F. Walls, 50; G. M. Felton, W.M. 1056; F. Herold, J.D. 1056; P. Burgess, 72; J. W. Braund, 72; R. Hayward, 1306; G. Bench, 51; C. Walls, 1306; T. Holmes, W.M. 1259; G. H. Stephens, I.G. 1623; C. Mansfield, 1421.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday, the 22nd inst. Present: Bros. J. Dignam, W.M.; A. R. Olley, S.W.; J. L. Payne, J.W.; J. Lorkin, J.D.; G. Ferrar, I.G.; W. Fieldwick, Preceptor; C. Lorkin, Treasurer; J. Williams, Secretary; and several other brethren. The lodge was opened in ancient form with solemn prayer. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. C. Lorkin being candidate. Bro. C. Lorkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the First, Second, and Third Sections of the Lecture. Bro. W. Fieldwick, assisted by Bro. C. Lorkin worked the Fifth Section of the Lecture. Bro. W. Fieldwick proposed, and Bro. A. R. Olley seconded, that Bro. J. Williams be W.M. for the ensuing week, carried unanimously. Bro. J. L. Payne proposed, and Bro. J. Williams seconded, that this lodge of instruction be removed to the Royal Edward Hotel, Triangle, Hackney. Carried unanimously. Nothing further offering, the lodge was closed in ancient form.

CRUSADERS LODGE (No. 1677).—This lodge held its installation meeting at the New Market Hotel, King-street, Smithfield, E.C., on the 8th inst. The reason of the lodge leaving its old home is that the Knights of St. John require the exclusive use of the lodge rooms at St. John's Gate, thereby compelling Bro. Guy reluctantly to part with the lodge, of which he is a brother and officer. Bro. Hunter, W.M., opened the lodge in the usual form—Bros. Simmonds, S.W.; T. Goode, J.W.; Rothschild, S.D.; and Millward, J.D. The minutes of the last regular meeting and two emergency meetings were read and confirmed, and the Auditors' report was received and passed. The W.M. opened the lodge in the Second Degree, Bros. Mount, Keiller, Gilbert, and Scull being candidates for raising. The W.M. having put the usual questions, the brethren were entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and the brethren were raised in the W.M.'s usual impressive style. The installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. T. Goode, was the next business, Bro. Dr. Hunter being installing Master, Bro. Maples, P.M., D.C., the ceremony being done with great credit to Bro. Hunter. The brethren being admitted, and the W.M. proclaimed, the following brethren received the collars of office: Bros. Simmonds, S.W.; Rothschild, J.W.; Millward, S.D.; Calderwood, J.D.; Pigott, I.G.; Gay, D.C.; and W. Goode, J.W.S. The addresses being given, the W.M. proceeded to take the ballot for the following gentlemen for initiation, Messrs. James Fletcher, W. Aynsley, J. H. Budden, and Edward Lenard. This proving satisfactory, the W.M. performed the ceremony, for the first time in the Crusaders Lodge, in a style that augurs well for his year of office. Business being finished, the brethren, nearly seventy in number, adjourned to the spacious hall recently built by Bro. Butt, where a recherché banquet was provided, which did great credit to mine host of the New Market Hotel. The usual toasts followed. The banquet was enlivened by a selection of vocal and instrumental music under the direction of our experienced Bro. Millward. Among the visiting brethren were Bros. Dr. Barringer, P.P.S.G.W. Herts; Terry, P.P.J.G.W. Herts; E. Bowyer, P.P.G.D.; Dr. Carpenter, P.M. 1196; Price, P.M. 1288; Percy, W.M. 228; and many others.

MOUNT LEBANON CHAPTER (No. 73).—The regular convocation of this well-established chapter was held on Thursday, the 9th inst., at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, Southwark. There were present Comps. J. C. Mason, M.E.Z.; M. D. Lowenstark, H.; W. Smeed, P.Z., as J.; F. Walters, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., S.E.; J. W. Baldwin, P.Z., Treas.; B. Isaacs, S.N.; W. H. Goodall, P.S.; J. S. Swasey, jun., 1st A.S.; and others. The only visitor was Comp. J. Stevens, P.Z. 720, P.Z. 771. The chapter was opened by the Principals and Past Principals who were present. The companions were then admitted, and the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot was taken for Bro. William Pennefather, P.M., S.W. 1623, and was unanimous in favour of his admission. Bro. W. Pennefather was duly exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry, the ceremony, as usual in this chapter, being well rendered. Several important notices of motion were given, and the chapter was then closed. The usual banquet followed.

ST. THOMAS'S CHAPTER (No. 142).—The installation meeting of this new chapter was held on Saturday last, at the City Terminus Hotel. There were present on the occasion Comps. H. C. Levander, M.E.Z.; G. A. Rooks, H.; James W. Lambert, J.; Chas. F. Hogard, P.Z., S.E.; F. W. Levander, P.S.; F. Statham Hobson, 2nd A.S.; J. Terry, Hon. P.Z.; James C. Hayes, G. Motion, A. Webb, S. W. Yockney, Rev. W. Stanton Moses, A. W. Haines, Robt. Martin, R. F. Scarth, Wilhelm Ganz, No. 8; P. de Lande Long, P.G.P.S.; J. L. Thomas, P.G. Swd. B.; T. S. Hellier, P.S. 1471; Edgar Bowyer, P.Z. 1471; G. N. Dodd, 12; Fred. Thos. Dubois, P.Z. 1216; and H. Massey, P.Z. 617 (Freemason). Comp. James Terry, P.G.D.C. Herts, installed Comps. G. A. Rooks as M.E.Z.; J. W. Lambert as H.; and C. F. Hogard as J. Comp. H. C. Levander was invested as I.P.Z. The other companions appointed to office were Comps. W. Beattie, S.E.; F. W. Levander, S.N.; H. A. Dubois, Treasurer; F. J. Macaulay, P.S.; F. Statham Hobson, 1st A.S.; Rev. W. Stanton Moses, M.A., 2nd A.S.; and Rawles was elected and invested as Janitor. The newly-appointed officers immediately proceeded with their work, and exalted Bro. Francis William Percival, performing their duties in a masterly manner, Comp. F. W. Levander, S.N., in the absence of Comp. W. Beattie, filling the post of P.S. When the ceremony was completed Comp. Rooks, M.E.Z., in the name of the chapter presented to Comp. H. C. Levander, I.P.Z., a very handsome ten guinea P.Z.'s jewel, in recognition of his services in the part he took in founding the chapter, and discharging the duties of M.E.Z. during the first year of its existence. The chapter was then closed, and the companions partook of an elegant banquet. When the toasts were proposed

Comp. P. de Lande Long, in replying to the toast of "The Grand Officers," said he esteemed it a very great honour to have his name connected with the toast on the first anniversary festival of St. Thomas's Chapter. He had the good fortune to be present at the consecration, but he esteemed it a greater good fortune to be present at the first anniversary, because he had had an opportunity to witness the success and prosperity of the chapter. The work he had seen that evening would be gratifying to any good R.A. Mason, and it had more than realised what was predicted twelve months ago. Had the chiefs and rulers who were present at the consecration attended that day they would have been delighted at what took place. No work could have been performed better by the most distinguished R.A. Mason. The St. Thomas's Lodge was celebrated for good work, and he believed that as many of its members belonged to the chapter it would be equally celebrated. Under the present M.E.Z.'s sceptre it would be sure to flourish, and all the visitors would hope to have the opportunity of again attending and being spectators of the flourishing condition of the chapter. Comp. James Lewis Thomas, Prov. Swd. Br., also responded in compliance with loud calls, and said that the only words he could add to those of Comp. Long were that, being an old member of the St. Thomas's Lodge, he must congratulate the chapter sincerely on its eminent success. He took great interest in the chapter, and regretted that up to the present he had not been able to join it. Still he hoped the period was fast approaching when the companions would allow him to be one of them. Comp. H. C. Levander, I.P.Z., proposed "The Health of the newly Installed Principals." The companions all knew Comp. Rooks, who for two consecutive years filled the Master's chair in St. Thomas's Lodge, and presided at the time when it celebrated its first centenary. The companions all knew how well he discharged the duties when in that position, and they believed that the same devotion to his work which he showed as Master of the lodge he would exhibit as Principal of the chapter. Comp. Lambert, who was next to him in office, was also a distinguished Master of St. Thomas's Lodge. He likewise was well known, and he brought with him an earnest of his zeal and anxiety to do his work most thoroughly in whatever position he might be placed. Comp. Hogard, though he was not a member of the St. Thomas's Lodge, was well-known to many, if not to most of the brethren of that lodge, and he was equally known to the members of the chapter as one of the most energetic among them, one to whom they were especially indebted for the very flourishing condition in which it now was. All these companions, he and the other members hoped, might pass into the ranks of the Past Principals of the chapter, and remain among them for many years to come. The M.E.Z., after announcing that the alms box had yielded 30s., thanked the companions for the toast they had just drunk so cordially. Speaking for himself—and his sentiments he was sure were those of the other Principals—he took from the first, and took still, the greatest interest in the St. Thomas's Chapter. There was a doubt at first as to whether the chapter would be successful, but it was now seen that it was launched on a long and prosperous career. He should do the best he could to follow in the footsteps of Comp. Levander, who was the first First Principal of the chapter, and the companions would agree he could have no better guide. He knew he should be ably assisted by his colleagues, or he did not conceive what he should do in the position in which the companions had placed him. The M.E.Z. next gave "The Health of the Exalted, Comp. F. W. Percival," and said that at no previous meeting of the chapter had they been without candidates for the R.A. Degree. He trusted that the ceremony had made some impression upon their newly-made companion, and he was almost saying he would not give much for a companion who did not admit that his introduction into the Order had not made an impression upon him. It was an impression which would grow with a further acquaintance with the ceremonies and the teaching of this Sublime Degree. Comp. Percival replied. It was most difficult for him to show his gratitude for the welcome given to him, or to express the pleasure he felt at being made a R.A. Mason. Only a week ago he did not know whether his engagements would allow him to take the Degree, but he was happy to say he had been able to come, for this chapter he knew was regarded as the child of a most illustrious parent, and he believed that as it grew in years it would follow the steps of its parent, and be equally illustrious. Again it was a pleasure for him to be present, because he knew all congresses of Masons were agreeable, and that this meeting would bear out the dictum of Shakespeare—"Brother; for in that word doth nature plead." In giving "The Health of the I.P.Z.," the M.E.Z. said all the companions were deeply indebted to Comp. Levander for what he did in founding the chapter, and for the spirit in which he carried on its business during the first year. It was unnecessary to add anything to the mention of his name, because he was so highly esteemed by and so endeared to the members of St. Thomas's Lodge as well as to the companions of the chapter. Comp. H. C. Levander responded, and thanked the companions who had so ably assisted him during the past year in the performance of the work of the chapter. It was said that honour should be given where honour was due, and he would be doing very wrong indeed if he arrogated to himself all the honour which Comp. Rooks had bestowed on him as to the founding of the chapter. He really was not the founder, though he had the honour of being selected to fill the first chair. The honour was really due to Comp. Lambert. He it was who brought on the motion in the lodge for founding the chapter, and both to him and to Comp. Rooks and others the credit belonged. He had again to thank the companions for selecting him as first M.E.Z., and especially on the present occasion for the very handsome manner in which they had testified their approval of his conduct during the past year. He had had a very happy and pleasant year, which he ventured to say had been a very prosperous and successful year through the energy and zeal of several members. He trusted that during the years which were to come other First Principals, though they might not have as many candidates for exaltation as he had had, yet that they would have such companions join as would at all events conduce to making their year of office as pleasing. "The Visitors" toast was responded to by Comps. Edgar Bowyer and H. Massey. In proposing the toast of "The Masonic Charities," the M.E.Z. observed that he particularly took advantage of the opportunity of proposing it to mention that distinguished man they had among them, Comp. Terry. It was their good fortune to number among the members of this chapter that particular companion. They knew the great service he did at the consecration of the chapter. Even at the present meeting he had not been found wanting, and he (the M.E.Z.) was quite sure that whenever the chapter needed the assistance of his excellent working they had but to ask it and it would be forthcoming. In his position as Secretary of one of the great Masonic Charities they all knew his immense zeal, and what a pattern he was for all those who were animated with the true feeling of charity. It was with great pleasure, therefore, that they saw him among them that evening, and with the name of the Masonic Charities he could most appropriately couple the name of Comp. Terry. Comp. Terry replied. The Masonic Charities were doing an immense amount of good, and the recipients of it were extremely grateful. The three Masonic Institutions were the model Charitable Institutions of the country. In the Girls' School and in the Boys' School everything that could be done was done for the clothing, maintenance, and education of the children, and it mattered not what suggestion was made for the improvement of it the Committees were always glad to consider the suggestions. A fund was now being got up for the further advancement of the pupils when they left the School, but whether it would be a success or not he did not know. With respect to the old people, they did not require an advancement fund. The Benevolent Institution was doing, he thought, the largest amount of good, for whereas the expenditure of the Boys' School annually was between £6000 and £7000, and the Girls' School between £8000 and £9000, the Benevolent Institution was spending in annuities £10,700 a year. In speaking at Norwich the night before, he had said that, notwithstanding the great depression in trade, the Benevolent Institution last year received the largest amount any of the three Institutions had ever received in one year, which, he ventured to say, showed that the depression had not affected Freemasons as it had the other portion of the public. The Deputy Provincial Grand Master afterwards said he thought it was in consequence of the depression of trade and the almost ruin of the agricultural interest that members of the Craft had been desirous to see their Charities progress, and, therefore, had given so largely. Perhaps there was something in that. Bro. Terry afterwards said he expected that the three Institutions this year would total up as much as £43,000. He also expressed the pleasure he always had in being present at this chapter, to which he should ever feel delighted to be of any assistance. Subsequently Comp. F. Statham Hobson undertook the Stewardship of the chapter for the festival of 1880 of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and headed the list with five guineas, an example which was followed by the M.E.Z., the H., and several other companions. The proceedings closed with the Janitor's toast.

LION AND LAMB CHAPTER (No. 192).—The October meeting of the above chapter was held on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. The companions present were Comps. T. C. Chapman, M.E.Z.; H. Birdseye, P.Z.; F. D. R. Copestick, P.Z. George Kenning, P.Z., Treas.; Chas. Arkell, S.E.; E. F. Storr, S.N.; J. Lorkin, P.S.; J. Kent, S. D. Ewins, C. B. Cheese, G. J. Potter, J. Greenaway, W. Medwin, H. Brand, J. Perry, C. J. Harmsworth. Visitors: Comps. Darcy, Darcy jun., Gale. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and Bro. Herbert Cuff, Macdonald Lodge, 1216, was exalted into Royal Arch Masonry. Comp. T. S. Holland was elected a joining member, and the election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, the result being: Comps. H. Birdseye, Z.; F. D. R. Copestick, H.; Charles Arkell, J.; George Kenning, P.Z., Treas.; Cheese, S.N.; Lorkin, P.S.; Marsh, Janitor. The companions dined together, presided over by Comp. Chapman.

BEADON CHAPTER (No. 619).—The quarterly convocation of this chapter was held on Thursday evening, the 16th inst., at the Horns Tavern, Kennington, Comp. D. Jacobs, who has recovered from his severe and dangerous illness, occupying his position as M.E.Z.; Comp. Wyer, H.; and Comp. H. Thompson, J. (Freemason). The minutes of the last convocation were read by Comp. Green, P.Z. and S.E., and confirmed. The next business was the election of M.E.Z. for the ensuing year, and the ballot was unanimous in favour of Comp. Wyer. A ballot was equally unanimous in favour of Comps. Thompson, as H.; Sharrett, as J.; and Dodman, as S.N. Comp. Seaman, P.Z., in a few well-chosen observations on the merits of the M.E.Z., Comp. Jacobs, proposed that a jewel of the usual value should be presented to him on the completion of his year of office, he having won the good opinion of every member of the chapter. The motion was seconded by Comp. Green, P.Z., put, and unanimously agreed to. The Audit Committee was appointed. The chapter was then closed in due form, and the companions adjourned to a banquet, served in Comp. Cox's best style, and it embraced all the delicacies of the season. The usual Royal Arch toasts were proposed by the M.E.Z., and cordially responded to, and the evening was spent in a most harmonious manner. The Janitor's toast brought a very happy meeting to a close at about 11 o'clock.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Chapter (No. 913).—The usual quarterly meeting of the above chapter took place on Thursday, the 16th inst., at the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, Ex. Comp. A. Penfold, as Z., with Ex. Comps. Denton, P.Z., and P.G.P.S. Kent, in the chair of H.; and T. D. Hayes, as J. The following officers and companions were present:—Comps. J. McDougall, P.Z., and P.G.S.B. Kent; C. Coupland, P.Z., and P.P.G.P.S. Kent; W. H. Myers, P.Z.; H. Pryce, Scribe E.; Eugene Sweny, 1st Asst. P.S.; H. Mason, 2nd Asst. P.S.; J. F. Randall, H. Shaw, P.S. 13; E. B. Hobson, Thos. Cartland, W. Rees, J. Topp, G. Frost, J. H. Roberts, G. R. Nichols, R. Edmonds, J. Chapman, H. Mabbett, Janitor; and C. Jolly (Freemason). The chapter having been opened by the Principals, the companions were admitted. The only business before the chapter was a report of the meeting of Grand Chapter, held at the Skating Rink, Plumstead, in July last, and a long and exhaustive report, especially prepared by Comp. Pryce, was read by him, and it was resolved that a copy of it should be inscribed on the minutes of the chapter. Several votes of thanks were recorded to those companions who had assisted in the necessary preparations to receive the Prov. Grand Superintendent, Lord Holmesdale, and the members of Prov. Grand Chapter, and then the chapter was closed in solemn form. A modest little dinner was then partaken of, and the cloth being cleared the usual loyal and Arch Masonic toasts were honoured. In giving that of their "Grand Superintendent, Lord Holmesdale," Comp. Penfold said the companions had had an opportunity of seeing the great interest his lordship took in Arch Masonry in the Province of Kent. That was but a solitary instance of the many calls there were upon his time, but it would be one that would show them the many and arduous duties he had to perform. He had won the respect and admiration of every Mason in Kent, and he trusted their noble and honoured Grand Superintendent would long be spared to rule over them. "The Present Prov. Grand H., Ex. Comp. Eastes, and Prov. G.J., Ex. Comp. Robinson," were then honoured. The Past and Present G. Officers Comp. Penfold looked upon as the toast of the evening, because they had present two Grand Officers, members of their own chapter. One, Comp. Denton, had been twice honoured, and the other, Comp. McDougall, had taken his first step in Prov. Grand Chapter honours. Comp. Denton had been a veritable pillar of Masonry in this district, and well and worthily merited every distinction given him, and as to Comp. McDougall, he (Comp. Penfold) should have said if the honour had been offered him, "No, give it to Comp. McDougall." Comp. Denton, in reply, said as one of the present Grand Officers it devolved upon him to respond to the toast. It was a great honour to hold office under Lord Holmesdale and under the present H. and J. of the province. His lordship had been pleased to confer an honour upon him, but it was intended to be as much an honour to the Pattison Chapter as to him personally. Their Grand Superintendent had expressed his satisfaction at the reception this chapter had given him and Prov. Grand Chapter at Plumstead, and that sentiment had been echoed by a number of distinguished companions from all parts of the province. He congratulated the chapter upon the success that had attended its efforts. It was one of the most important events in the history of the Pattison Chapter, and would be an event, not only for the present companions to be proud of, but for those who joined it in years to come. In conclusion, he thanked them most heartily for the toast. Comp. McDougall also returned thanks, and then proposed in glowing terms "The Health of Ex. Comp. Penfold, Z. of the Chapter," and, in so doing, congratulated himself that he was just out of the chair when his lordship visited them, and the chapter that Comp. Penfold was in to receive him. Comp. Penfold said that he ought to be one of the happiest men in Kent, for it was something to be First Principal of a chapter like the Pattison, and to receive the Grand Superintendent of the province and Grand Chapter in one year. As the head of the chapter it was his duty to do all that he could to make that gathering a success, and he trusted that it had been one, but he could not have succeeded had it not been for the hearty co-operation of the whole of the companions. He passed a high eulogium upon Ex. Comp. Pryce, who, he said, was indefatigable in his exertions to bring the meeting to a happy issue, and also the companions who were on the committee, and concluded by assuring them of his desire, above all, for the prosperity of the Pattison Chapter. "The Health of the Second and Third Principals" was then proposed, and Comp. Hayes replied, regretting the absence of Comp. Butler, who, the M.E.Z. told them, was at the Isle of Wight, superintending some experiments for the Government. The toast of "The Officers of the Chapter" was coupled with the name of Comp. Pryce, who briefly returned thanks. The meeting then broke up.

CHORLTON - CUM - HARDY.—Chorlton Chapter (No. 1387).—This chapter held their bi-monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. There were present Comps. J. H. Sillitoe, Z.; Joshua Potts, H.; and James G. Batty, J. Also Comps. J. E. Lees, H. 317; R. Davies, S.E.; J. J. Lambert, S.N.; Jno. Dewhurst, P.S.; E. Brundritt, 1st A.S.; D. Williams, 2nd A.S.; Alfred Love, Treasurer; C. J. McBride, H. Marshall, W. Chesshyre, Janitor, and others. After the chapter had been duly opened, and the minutes of the preceding meeting read and passed, the ballot was taken for Bros. W. H. Milner, W. Butcher, and C. Heywood, all of the Chorlton Lodge, and being in each case favourable, the ceremony of exaltation was performed in a most praiseworthy manner by Comp. Sillitoe and the officers of the chapter, who one and all have striven hard to make themselves thoroughly efficient in their respective duties. Some disappointment, however, was felt at the unavoidable absence of the Organist, Comp. Miller, and his quartet party, as the musical ceremony which has been specially arranged for this chapter had, under the circumstances, to be omitted. After the close of the chapter the companions adjourned to a substantial supper, provided under the superintendence of Comp. Davies, S.F., and served by Mr. and Mrs. Langford, the hallkeepers, in a manner which elicited the hearty approval of all present. Songs and recitations interspersed the toasts, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Mark Masonry.

ERA LODGE (No. 176).—The installation meeting of this Mark lodge was held at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, Southwark, on Friday, the 10th inst. Bro. T. Horton, W.M., presided. The report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted. The minutes of the last regular meeting were unanimously confirmed. Bro. W. Hammond, S.W., was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, and he appointed and invested his officers. Business being ended the lodge was closed. There were present Bros. J. Stevens, P.M.; T. Poore, P.M.; F. Walters, P.M.; W. Pennefather, Sec.; and others.

Knights Templar.

MOUNT CALVARY PRECEPTORY.—This old and distinguished encampment met on Friday, the 18th inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, for the dispatch of business. Among those present were Sir Knight Tanner, P.E.C., acting E.C. (in the absence of Sir Knight Morgan); D. M. Dewar, P.E.C., Recorder; S. Rosenthal, P.E.C.; Baxter, P.E.C.; Rosbeck, P.E.C.; Driver, 1st Captain; Neeld, 2nd Captain; T. C. Walls, Expert (Freemason); Williams, Captain of the Lines; Beridge, Saunders, Rawles, Equerry. It being the election meeting, Sir Knight Driver was unanimously elected M.E.C.; Sir Knight Paas, Almoner; and Sir Knight Rawles, Equerry. Comp. Driver having been submitted as a candidate for installation at the next meeting, the encampment was duly closed, and the Sir Knights adjourned to the banquet, which was most excellently served by Bro. Best and assistants. The customary preliminary toasts having received full justice, Sir Knight Rosenthal proposed in happy terms "The Health of the P.E.C." This pledge was heartily drunk, and Sir Knight Tanner replied upon behalf of Sir Knight Morgan in a very neat speech. "The Health of the P.E.C.'s" followed, and drew from Sir Knight Dewar an exhaustive reply. In the course of his remarks he congratulated the Mount Calvary Preceptory upon possessing so many young officers who were on the road to the chair, and who he felt confident would discharge the onerous duties of the post in a manner that would equal if not surpass the efforts of those Sir Knights who had held the position. In conclusion, upon behalf of his colleagues and himself, he warmly thanked the members for the very hearty manner in which their healths had been proposed and received. The toast of the evening, "The E.C. elect," came next in succession, and in response Sir Knight Driver made a modest speech. "The Officers" was acknowledged by Sir Knight Driver, Neeld, and Williams. The proceedings were enlivened by the vocal efforts of Sir Knights Baxter, Driver, and others.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

BRO. LAMONBY'S HISTORY OF PROVINCE OF CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND.

What Bro. Lamonby has done for his own Province of Cumberland and Westmorland should be achieved by competent brethren for every other province in England. Some have preceded our brother in this good work, and I hope still more will succeed him, so that we have a complete history Masonically of the English Provincial Grand Lodges. The present handsome little book before us, of which a review has previously appeared in the Freemason, is adorned with a portrait of the Prov. G.M. of Cumberland, &c., the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, to whom also the work is appropriately dedicated. We all as subscribers feel indebted to Bro. Lamonby for so skillfully weaving his materials as to form a very pleasing narrative, and his venture should prove a success in every way, for surely there should not be the slightest difficulty in circulating the 500 copies printed, and published at a crown each. After a readable introduction on Freemasonry in general, and a sketch of the Province of Cumberland from 1771, and that of Westmorland from 1788, the united Province of Cumberland and Westmorland is then noted from 1860, the Earl of Bective, installed 27th Sept., 1867, being the third Prov. G.M. from the Union, that number having been appointed during the period of seven years, owing to the deaths of the first and second soon after their accepting office. Having satisfactorily presented much interesting information on these points, Bro. Lamonby enters upon what I consider to be the chief value of the work, viz., the history of all the lodges in the united province, both extinct and in existence, from 1740 down to 1876, thirty-seven in all. It is just possible that there may have been more "ancient" lodges at one time in Cumberland and Westmorland than we find in this history, but at all events there are six enumerated, all of which have ceased to exist save No. 119, Whitehaven, of which most curious particulars are furnished. One will suffice as a sample. Sixteen brethren had been guilty of a Masonic offence, not described. After a due trial the sentence inflicted on one of the delinquents was to be "silenced for ninety-nine years," another was to be similarly treated for six months, another for three months, the latter having also to perform the Tyler's work without remuneration. The ordinary warrant is still preserved, and was issued in 1768 by the "Hon. Thomas Mathews, G.M." The oldest lodge working is the "Union," Kendal, of A.D. 1764, whose centenary was celebrated in 1864, the lodge having a Centenary Jewel Warrant, so we are informed, which was granted during the same year, a distinction all the more prized because of being the only one of the kind conferred upon any lodge in the province. Mention is made of a Scottish lodge working in Carlisle from about 1784 until 1796, when the members came under the English Constitution, and in 1825 a great number of Scottish stonemasons were employed in the construction of the county prison, some of whom were anxious to become Freemasons. Accordingly the Prov. G.M. of Dumfriesshire addressed a letter to the Prov. G.M. of Cumberland asking permission for the Master of the Journeyman Masonic Lodge of Dumfries to visit Carlisle and initiate his countrymen, which was agreed to by George Blamire, as "P.G. Master of Manual, Instrumental, and Scientific Masonry for Cumberland." The ceremony was observed on 28th January and following day, A.D. 1825, and appears to have taken exceedingly well. I must not give more now from the work, but ask for its being welcomed by the Craft.

W. J. HUGHAN.

OLD MSS.

Is it quite certain that the "Charles" mentioned in the Cook MS. is the veritable Charles Martel? Bro. Hughan in his note of Sept. 27th says—"The name of Charles Martel does not occur in this MS.," and this is beyond doubt. As to whether by Charles II. is meant Charles Martel, is another matter, but I scarcely think we are justified in assuming it to be clearly made out. There are, indeed, four of the name (Charles) to either of whom the MS. in question may refer, viz., Charles Martel; Charles (Karl the Great or Charlemagne) A.D. 771; Charles (son of Charlemagne) A.D. 806; and Charles the Second (so called), crowned Emperor A.D. 875. Bro. Fort at p. 163 of his work, whilst referring to Charles Martel in the text, adds in a foot note, "or, according to Cooke's MSS., Charles II." As regards the discrepancy between the oldest (the Halliwell) and the other charges, what, I think, many of us would like to hear from Bros. Hughan and Woodford would be some explanation of the omissions in the former of any reference to Solomon, Naymus Grecus, or Charles Martel? These names continually recur in the later MSS., in fact the entire legend hinges upon the transmission by Naymus Grecus* to Charles Martel of Masonic lore, acquired at the building of King Solomon's Temple. Upon this point Bro. Fort's book contains some very instructive remarks (pp. 118, 163), but the same writer (at p. 181) comments with much force upon the absence of any allusion to the Solomonian theory in our very earliest MSS. If, as it seems to me, at a certain point in our legendary history our leading characters all "drop out," the circumstance is so far remarkable as to call for a little explanation from those "specialists" by whom only the subject is at all understood, and of whose labours it would be altogether impossible to speak too highly.

R. F. G.

ANOTHER MASONIC MS.

At page 367 Bro. Hughan refers to an old Masonic MS., the original of which bears the date 1581. In reference to it Bro. Hughan says, "For the time then we put it down to 1583." Now, I cannot understand what he means by that, as the date of the extracts is afterwards given as "Anno MDCLXXIII," or 1673. Perhaps Bro. Hughan will kindly explain this.

W. P. B.

MASONIC MSS., &c.

If it can be proved that "Matthew Cooke's MS." refers to Charles Martel, I am ready to acknowledge my error in saying that neither "Halliwell's MS." nor the Forgoing allude to that individual, though our Bro. Fort declares they do. My friend, Bro. Woodford, admits my accuracy as to "Halliwell's MS.," but not as to the other, but, so far as I can see, has not proved his assertion, for it is not likely that "Charles the Second" was the Charles Martel of the Masonic MSS., for they are all most explicit in reference to that monarch, when they really allude to him. As to the "Holy Martyrs four," we want positive evidence as to the earliest notice of the legend, rather than surmises as to the matter, and Bro. Woodford has special facilities to elucidate this point if he will kindly look it up.

W. J. HUGHAN.

MELROSE MS., &c.

Bro. W. P. Buchan, of Glasgow, was a most energetic and useful Masonic student some years ago, and deserves all that our Bro. "P.M. No. 1, S.C.," has said on his behalf. Have heard from him recently, after a long silence, and whilst expressing his unabated interest in our studies, he regrets his inability to work at them as formerly, owing to his increased duties as an author on sanitary science, &c. All his friends are pleased to hear of his success in that direction. Respecting the "Melrose MS.," I am not aware of any one having stated in print that there was a copy of the "Old Masonic Charges" at Melrose until Bro. Vernon came on the scene, and in a letter to me announced the fact, which I published. If my esteemed friend, Bro. D. Murray Lyon, knew of it, he has not, to my knowledge, ever said so in print, either in his grand work on the "Lodge of Edinburgh," or elsewhere,

* A MS. note, penned some 125 years ago, in the margin of a copy of the 1723 Constitutions, has the following: "Witness the story of Meron Grecus, who was at ye building of Solomon's Temple, in the year of the world 2933, and after came into France to Charles Martel, their king, who began to reign in the year of ye world 4660. So the man was 1727 years old."

THE FOUR CROWNED MARTYRS.

These words refer to one of the oldest legends of Freemasonry, most interesting to the Masonic student and archaeologist. The "Quatuor Coronati," as they are called, and who are referred to in the Masonic poem under the head "Ars Quatuor Coronatorum," are four working Masons, "quadratarii," stone-squarers, who are said in the reign of Diocletian to have been cast into the Tiber in leaden coffins for refusing to make a statue to Æsculapius. The names are, however, not always given the same, and the legend in the Roman Catholic service-books is somewhat confused. In the Sarum Missal, 11th century, under November 8, and "Quatuor Coronati," they are named Claudius, Nichostratus, Simphorianus, Castorius, and Simplicius, being actually five in number. The breviary of Spire, 1478, and the Roman breviary of 1474, term them Claudius, Symphorianus, Nichostratus, and Castorius. Some legendary books call them Severus, Severianus, Carpophorus, and Victorinus. In one of the Seismetza Constitutions the names thus run: Claudius, Chacterius, and Significanus—three instead of four; just as in the Sarum Missal they are five instead of four, so here they are three instead of four. All this shows how uncertain they were about the actual names, though not of the fact itself; and this we think a strong proof of the truth of the legend per se in some form or another. Whatever their actual names may have been, they were in early times the patron saints of the Operative Guilds, and especially of the German Steinmetzen. Heidehoff states in his "Bauhütten des Mittelalters," that many of the altars erected by the medieval German Steinmetzen were dedicated to the "seligen vier gekrönten." Mrs. Jameson, in her "Sacred and Legendary Art," Mackey appositely points out, tells us that on the other side of the Esquilaine, and on the road leading from the Coliseum to the Lateran, is the church of the "Quatuor Coronati," the four crowned brothers. On this spot in the 4th century were found, she also says, the bodies of four men who had been decapitated, whose names being then unknown, they were merely designated the "Quatuor Coronati"—crowned, that is, with the crown of martyrdom. This church, Mrs. Jameson, says, is still held in much esteem and particular respect by the builders and stonemasons of Rome. She has found allusions, she adds, not only in Roman art, but in Roman sculpture and glass, to the "Quatuor Coronati," where they are always to be distinguished by the fact that they stand in a row, bearing palms with crowns on their heads and various Masonic implements at their feet—such as the rule, the square, the mallet, and the chisel. As we have said before, the "Ars Quatuor Coronatorum" is found in our so far earliest Masonic document, the Halliwell MS. so-called, and where the Quatuor are treated as a well-known legend,—so much so that their names are not given, though we are told of

Those holy martyrs four

That were in this Craft of great honour;
They were as good Masons as on earth shall go.

Who so well of their life will know,
By the book he may it learn
In the legends of the Saints,
The names of the four crowned ones.
Their feast will be without denial
After All Hallows the eighth day.

We have been somewhat lengthy under this head, because we think it is important that the whole matter should come clearly before us. Bro. Findel bases on this very "ars quatuor," &c., his argument for the derivation of English Freemasonry from Germany. But the fact that the "Quatuor Coronati" were in the Sarum Missal in the 11th century, is surely the best answer to that supposition. In all probability the "ars quatuor" was originally an old Latin legend, and if "Para Occult" ever turns up, will probably be found in it. The legend is a beautiful one per se, and in our humble opinion casts, so to say, a ray of light on the actual history of the early guilds, which no doubt were guided and directed to a great extent by the religious confraternities, and had special Bulls for their incorporation and privileges from the Popes of Rome, as many writers affirm, which it is convenient for the Ultramontanes now to forget. Freemasonry has never been hostile to religion in any age, nor really antagonistic to the Roman Catholic Church in any country, until forced into an attitude of opposition by the bitterness and calumnies of its assailants. Indeed, the later senseless charges of the Roman Catholic Church against Freemasonry are alike piously perverse and historically untrue.—Kenning's Masonic Cyclopædia.

GRAND CHAPTER OF QUEBEC.

We give the following extracts from the address of our respected friend, Bro. Graham, of Quebec:
Companions of the Holy Royal Arch:

As your chief executive officer, it is my pleasing duty fraternally to welcome you to this, the third annual convocation of the most excellent the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Freemasons of the Province of Quebec;—to render to you an account of my stewardship;—to guide you in your present important deliberations;—and to aid you in drafting your designs on the trestle-board of the future, so that the great work entrusted to us may be carried on to the glory of the Grand Geometrician of the Universe, without whose blessing the craftsmen labour in vain. May our work thus begun in order, be continued in peace, and closed in harmony.

The year just closed has been one of concord and fraternal harmony, and the overseers and workmen have most commendably manifested their desire to lay the foundation of Capitular Masonry within our jurisdiction, wisely and well. No case of dissonance has been submitted to me for adjudication; and to the extent of my observation, it appears that the materials received for the erection of our superstructure, if not so great in quantity, have been of superior quality, and well fitted for the acceptance and approval of the chief overseers, and for the upbuilding and beautifying of our symbolic temple. It may moreover be justly inferred that the increasing zeal and intelligence so happily being displayed in Craft Masonry, and the favourable drawings of greater material prosperity, everywhere observable within our borders, will cause many of the more expert and able of Master Masons to seek exaltation to the Supreme Degree of the Royal Arch, and thus reach the perfect consummation of the labours and rewards of ancient Craft Masonry.

The following communication from His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, in reply to the address forwarded to him by this Grand Chapter, will be by you with the greatest satisfaction; and the cause of the delay in answering, arising from the universally lamented death of Her Royal Highness Princess Alice of Hesse Darmstadt, will meet with deep responsive sympathy in the heart of every Royal Arch companion, and of every member of our Order within our jurisdiction and throughout the Dominion.

Freemasons' Hall,

Sir and Companion, London, 24th January, 1879.

I am commanded by His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, to acknowledge receipt of the fraternal address which you have been good enough to transmit to him in behalf of M. E. Grand C. and the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Quebec, and to apologize for the delay which has taken place in such acknowledgment, a delay caused mainly by the almost constant absence of the Prince officially at the French Exhibition and elsewhere during the summer and autumn of the past year, and subsequently by a severe domestic affliction.

His Royal Highness however now commands me to thank the companions of the Grand Chapter of Quebec most sincerely for the good wishes expressed towards himself personally, and the Grand body over which he deems it an honour to preside; and most especially for the sentiments of loyalty and attachment to which they give utterance, to Her Majesty his beloved mother the Queen, and for the blessings they have invoked on the Princess of Wales, and the members of the Royal family.

The Prince is also much touched by the reference made to the services rendered to Masonry in general by his illustrious ancestor the late Duke of Kent.

In conclusion, I am to convey to the Grand Chapter of Quebec, the most earnest wishes of the Most Excellent the First Principal of England, for its future success and prosperity.

I have the honour to be, R. E. Grand Scribe E., Yours sincerely and fraternally,

JOHN HERVEY,

E. Companion J. T. McMillan, G. S. E.
R. E. Grand Scribe E.,
Grand Chapter of Quebec.

From time immemorial, it has been a custom among the Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, at the request of a brother, to accompany his corpse to the place of interment, and there deposit his remains with the usual formalities; and although on this continent, the Holy Royal Arch, for its better governance, is under the authority of a separate Grand Body, yet it remains as ever an indivisible part, and is the copstone of ancient Craft Freemasonry, and hence has no need of a separate form of burial service for its deceased members, as our companions clothed in their distinctive regalia are wholly identified with the other members of our ancient Fraternity in the performance of the sad funeral rites. But as more especially in our day, many commendable benefit and other like societies have sprung into existence, and to one or more of which members of our Order may properly belong, and as some of these excellent bodies have adopted, or in part borrowed from the Craft, a form of burial service, it becomes therefore highly desirable, that the immemorial principles and practice of our Order relating to burial should be fully understood and prudently carried out. The rulers of the Craft should therefore always bear in mind, that it is only at the request of a brother, that his remains are to be honoured with Masonic burial, the formalities of which at the grave take place immediately after the services of the church to which the deceased may have belonged or was in some way connected, and the Masonic services close the last mournful rites.

The Craft cannot, therefore, take part in or unite with any other body or bodies in having a double or triple funeral service at the grave. No member of our Fraternity should make a request to be buried by any society, if he desires Masonic rites of sepulture, but if he has done so, and if it is arranged that the burial services of any other body, except those of the church are to be performed, the Craft cannot then rightly perform any burial service. This practice does not arise from any assumed superiority, or from any want of good-will to such societies on the part of our Fraternity, but because it is required by immemorial custom, and is adhered to in order to have everything on such sad occasions, "done decently and in order," and to promote peace, harmony, and concord.

Although we are members of the one of youngest and the smallest of Grand Chapters of Royal Arch Freemasons—and on account of our peculiar surroundings, we are not likely soon to have the large numerical increase enjoyed in many other jurisdictions—yet we cannot but rejoice at the healthy growth and rapid extension of Capitular Mark and Craft Masonry in so many countries, on every continent, and on distant isles.

In all free and enlightened nations Masonry is becoming a mighty power for good. Freedom and Freemasonry are twin-sisters. Human enlightenment and the light of the Craft spread alike together. Sound morality and the genuine principles of our Order are one and inseparable. Wise government finds in our Fraternity a bulwark of loyalty. Benevolence finds in it a perennial fountain, and pure religion finds a hand-maid in our Fraternity whose fundamental doctrines are the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man.

Just rulers of nations deem it among their highest honours to be rulers in the Craft. Distinguished statesmen and learned divines,—eminent jurists, literati and scientists,—gentlemen of business and of leisure,—and a host of good and true men of every rank, through our temples.

Methods the golden age of our ancient Fraternity is now dawning; it is not mere enthusiasm to affirm that an unprophetic eye may see in the not distant future a grand realization of the vision of so many seers and sages of the olden time, who beheld afar off the benign reign of human Fraternity.

The hitherto most distant parts of this grand old world of ours are being brought nearer and nearer to each other every year. The whole earth is fast becoming one great neighbourhood, with all whose inhabitants we soon shall hold daily converse as neighbour with neighbour; and it is no day-dream to predict that the time is at hand when from every clime the sovereign rulers and princes of the craft will readily and frequently assemble in a world's conclave for the consideration and promotion of the interests of our Universal Brotherhood.

JOHN H. GRAHAM,
Grand Z.

GRAND CHAPTER OF QUEBEC.

At the annual convocation of the Royal Arch Masons of the Province of Quebec, held on Tuesday evening, the 23rd ult., the following officers were elected:—

- M.E. Comp. J. Hamilton Graham ... G.Z.
- R.E. Comp. I. H. Stearns ... G.H.
- " Frank Edgar ... G.J.
- " Angus Grant ... G. Scribe F.
- " J. W. Wiggett ... G. Scribe N.
- " Albert D. Nelson ... G. Treas.
- " Samuel Kennedy ... G. Pris. Soj.

GRAND SUPERINTENDENTS OF DISTRICTS.

- R.E. Comp. John McLean, Montreal District.
- " J. F. Thomas, Quebec District.
- " James Addie, Eastern Townships District.
- Comp. John Porteous ... G. Janitor.

On Tuesday Prince Leopold, who is the guest of Mr. Mark Firth at Sheffield, visited the Norfolk Works of Messrs. Thomas Firth and Sons, Saville-street, where a 5-ton ingot of steel for a heavy gun was cast; the Cyclops Works, belonging to Messrs. C. Cammel and Co., where an armour plate for H.M.S. Hotspur was rolled; the works of Messrs. Dixon and Sons, silversmiths and electro-platers; and the cutlery works of Messrs. Rodgers and Sons. At Messrs. Dixon's he was presented with a silver pocket-flask, bearing a coronet and his monogram. The Prince met with an enthusiastic reception at the several works and in the streets. In the evening he was present at a ball given by Mr. Mark Firth.

The Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool, has been re-opened after extensive enlargements and alterations, which have occupied the past three months. The building will now contain an audience of about 3000, representing £50 increase in the receipts. Bro. Toole, with his company, appeared, the programme commencing with the singing of the National Anthem by the company. Mr. Barnard's comedy, "Artful Cards" was then played, followed by the farce of "Turning the Tables," after which Bro. E. Saker, lessee and manager, delivered a speech. Both Bros. Toole and Saker were enthusiastically received by a crowded audience.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the medicine most in repute for curing the multifarious maladies which beset mankind when dry, sultry weather suddenly gives place to chilly drenching days. In fact, these Pills offer relief even if they fall of proving an absolute remedy in all the disturbances of digestion, circulation, and nervous tone which occasionally oppress a vast portion of the population. Under the genial, purifying, and strengthening powers exerted by this excellent medicine the tongue becomes clean, the appetite improves, digestion is quickened, and assimilation is rendered perfect. These Pills possess the highly estimable property of cleansing the entire mass of blood; which, in its renovated condition, carries purity, strength, and vigour to every tissue of the body.—[Advr.]

MASONIC CHARITY.

The scene which is presented at our Masonic elections is a very remarkable one indeed. So remarkable is it in all its incidents and all its bearings that it may be doubted if any similar scene exists in this country, or, in fact, any other portion of the world. America, for instance, with its 7,000,000 Masons, knows nothing of it, and it is reserved for us English Masons, happily, in the good Providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., to exhibit an "outcome" of Masonic Charity before which our enemies may well be silent, and of which our friends may be justly proud. The English Craft is a great organization. It raises £40,000 annually to keep up its goodly Charities, which minister to the feebleness of old age, which aid and educate the sons and daughters of Masons. Each year, as it passes over our heads, serves but to attest the wonderful, nay increasing value of these goodly Institutions, inasmuch as with a growing brotherhood the claims on our Masonic sympathy and benevolence are augmented in about a two-fold ratio, and there seems at present no limit either to the one or the other, no probable bar to the former, no possible restriction to the latter. Old age and calamity know no repressive or Malthusian laws. They exist, and always will exist, and the very prosperity of Masons, on the whole, is too often only the prelude to hours of adversity. Indeed it is affecting to remember how many of those who thus at our elections appeal to our good feelings and ask for our support, are the children of those whom we once met in lodge, who filled the same social sphere as ourselves, were our friendly mates, our genial companions. Memory takes us back a long flight when one worthy brother was an habitual subscriber, a member, an officer of our own old lodge, and with him, perhaps, are bound up, too, the unfading reminiscences of pleasant days and vanished friends. And here is his child asking from us help for that education and care which, had he been spared in the infinite wisdom and preserving care of T.G.A.O.T.U., it would have been his glad duty and his zealous effort to have procured. Alas, his place in the lodge knows him no more, and we, like good and true Masons, stand, sympathetically and Masonically "in loco parentis" to that poor child. This is the sublime, and yet practical, idea of our Schools, and a very sublime and yet practical idea it is. When then to-day men deride us or assail us, question our utility or our work, we have always thought, (are we not right in so doing?), that the best, the truest argument for our "raison d'être" is to be found in the good we do, the "charity" we labour for. Our lodges are very pleasant social gatherings, our Grand Lodge is a wonderful organization. The members of our Order are many, educated, and distinguished; the rank we win and the decorations we wear need be despised by none. But, after all, all these things sink into comparative insignificance when we consider the superabounding, the overwhelming claims and grace of Masonic Charity. That is the "salt" which seasons all our "symposia," that is the "leaven" which leaveneth our whole framework, that is the end and goal of all our efforts, that is the reason of all our true Masonic labour. Without it we might be a mighty sodality, but we should have no vitality of existence, no power of endurance, the scorching "simoom" of the world's great wilderness would exhaust our being and shrivel our external form, or "the encroaching hand of time" would sweep away our little building, level it to the ground, or consign it to the dust and oblivion of ages. And so, wherever Freemasonry has forgotten Charity it has degenerated into one of two shapes,—it has either become a purely social body, given up to galas and great festivals, or it has become mixed up with politics, and it has ere long been found to be inimical to authority and destructive of social order and constitutional laws, Happily in England, avoiding these pitfalls, we have kept by the via media of practical work and charitable efforts, and there our Freemasonry evidences itself, alike to the outer world as to its own members, in that its utility is unquestioned, its position recognized, and the unostentatious good it does is recognized and experienced. We therefore rejoice to note the increasing votes for our Charities, and find no fault with our many claims. They are for the most part unavoidable, the necessary result of the onward and expansive march of Freemasonry in this country, and must be watched over carefully, and when they exceed our present means of dealing with them, must be looked at from no niggard or grudging point of view, but as true Masons we should ever treat the rightful claims of those who make a fair appeal to their principles and their pockets. One word of warning, however, comes in here. Speakers at meetings are apt sometimes, dilating upon the duty of giving to the Charities, and properly enough in all sound measure, to ignore the fact that all Masonic charity is not confined to giving to the Charities. There are many ways of giving in Masonic charity, which, as Freemasons, we should always seek to aid and forward, and whether in lodge, Provincial Grand Lodge, Grand Lodge, or in our support of the Charities, and, above all, our private gifts, we should ever bear in mind that it is not so much what we give as how we give it, in what real, true spirit we make the offering, that constitutes its value, help, and blessing.

UNIFORMITY OF RITUAL.

In the earlier days of this paper a movement for uniformity of ritual was looked upon with some favour by its then able editor. But "tempera mutantur," and as we also change with them so do editors. There is no finality or infallibility in editorship, neither is there any reason why because once upon a time an opinion, favourable or unfavourable, was expressed on a particular subject, therefore the same opinion is always to be expressed at all times and under all circumstances. It very often happens in journalism that the view of one editor is not the view of another, and, indeed, journalism itself could not exist if we were supposed to be always bound by casual opinions and ancient theories. It is more than probable that had the able brother who once conducted our paper been still editor he would have completely endorsed the views of the writer of a late review in our pages on this old controversy. But be that as it may, we who now have the honour to address our brethren week by week in Bro. Kenning's widely-spread paper, have conscientiously expressed the opinion we have always held on the subject, to which we have given frequent utterance in lodge and out of lodge, and which a long and careful study of our ritual and our archæology has only confirmed and consolidated the more. We feel quite sure of this, that no more unhealthy or unsound movement could be carried on, than that which would serve to bring about a slavish adherence to, a rigid uniformity of ritual. In the abstract something may perhaps be said à priori for an uniformity of ritual, but in practice we are persuaded nothing, nay, less than nothing. The only result will be a system of "cram" and "cribbing," idle officers, and the encouragement of surreptitious formula. As it is, we are suffering just now, and we speak feelingly, from personal knowledge and experience, from that want of a close mastering of our ancient lore, which is best to be obtained in lodges of instruction and from expert teachers. The differences about which so much is often said amount in reality to an infinitesimal quantity, while on the other hand a certain amount of liberty is preserved in our ceremonial usages, which, so far, has not worked ill for English Freemasonry. In our opinion any attempt to enforce one ritual is sure to fail, alike from the impossibility of the result as from the opposition of the best and brightest Masons amongst us. Much of the discussion relating to this subject cannot well be discussed in a newspaper, even a Masonic one, but we speak with some certainty when we say that any proposal to form a lodge of Preceptors will only throw back educated Freemasonry amongst us, or advance, what some wish, (despite its absolute failure elsewhere), a printed ritual. For who are they who are beginning this new agitation? Are they Masonic teachers like those we possess in our lodges of instruction? Are they those who, having carefully studied the ritual, we know well from their careful and correct rendering of it? Are they those to whom the history and antiquities of Freemasonry, as well as its ornate and intricate ceremonial, have been the subject of minute study for years? Certainly not. We have often heard the subject discussed in former years, but we never heard any brother who had looked closely into the matter on reflection approve of the proposal, or fail to see the difficulties, and dangers, and pitfalls involved in the question. In all societies there are a set of fussy men, who always must be saying or doing something. To them controversy is a boon, agitation a blessing. They swim like the little apples of old in the stream, and are elate if only they can manage to cause a certain amount of discussion, to secure a certain amount of spare type. They are friends to the printer, but not to themselves. They are not the persons who make great movements or create needful reforms, and we feel sure that if ever this little question is seriously discussed in Grand Lodge it will be found that the good sense of the brethren will at once reject a proposition fraught, as we know it to be, with countless evils to all honest and loyal working Masons amongst us. As we have often said before, these very objectors to slight discrepancies seem to forget, in their love of uniformity, that this very independence of ritual is a strong proof among many more, alike to the antiquity of our Order and to the long continued usage of habitual archaisms and familiar words, with some slight allowable variation in the different lodges of our jurisdiction.

THE GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC.

We are pleased to notice that our esteemed Bro. Graham is re-elected G.M. of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. We trust that this is a good omen that moderate counsels may prevail. Bro. Graham has much experience, kindness, and tact, and he is, we venture to think, a friend to Masonic peace and fraternal concord.

THE LICENSE OF LIBEL.

Just now libel seems very much in fashion, and we are informed, on what we consider a good authority, that there are several papers which under various and euphonious titles seem to revel in the garbage of disgraceful slander. In a free country like ours it is obviously impossible to restrict the liberty of the press, except within the limits of public safety, general morality, and personal forbearance. We can undoubtedly, and we do by statute and common law, punish those who write treason, who insult religion, who vilify individual character, who do injury to the fair fame or actual credit of unoffending fellow-citizens. But beyond this we cannot go, and we can only leave to the good taste of the community to discourage that "fifth estate" of the press which is a disgrace to journalism, and an injury to society. For as there is no smoke without a fire, so unless these scurrilous prints and printers have readers and supporters they could not thrive at all, much less survive the needful expenses of production. It becomes a serious matter for enquiry who are they who read such papers which, false in themselves, discredit and degrade every axiom of decency, fair play, and truth? Unfortunately there always is a class in society, both of old and young, which seems to revel in prurient gossip or defamatory mysteries. These are they who, the nuisances of our clubs, retail in private circles the vile innuendo or the deliberate libel with a nod of intelligence or a wink of sagacity, and so it is passed on from one gobemouche to another as "the last new thing at the clubs." We always distrust a person who tells us what he heard at the clubs, as, with the exception of the "City," to which many extraordinary statements are credited day by day, more lies, to use a plain good word, are put down to the authority of the "clubs" than ever were coined in the idlest and most reckless of them all. Hence it comes to pass that social life is saturated with that tendency to "libel," to all "uncharitableness," to downright cruel and wicked slander, which is either significant of debased morals or a dissolving society. At this moment many are these truthful and intellectual prints which cater to a vitiated taste, to this diseased condition of morals and feelings. The publisher of two of them has lately been before Mr. Alderman Staples, and is now at the Old Bailey, for audacious libels, simply intended to create "sensation" or inflict pain. It represents well the state of things to which a portion of contemporary journalism is reduced, that the proprietor states that he had resource to a special agent to ascertain the truth of the vile and cowardly libel given him by a contributor, which he so greedily and daringly published, and that he was deceived by both. Can any further commentary be needed on proceedings which we feel are disgraceful to us all? Let us hope that the common sense and keen perception of our great community will ere long render all such "ventures" both profitless and hopeless, and that the punishment of the law, and the contempt of society will await all who, violating every decency of public and private life, pander to a passing craze for what is libellous, hateful, debasing, and untruthful.

MELROSE LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg to thank your correspondent P.M. No. 1, S.C., for his courteous information about Bro. Buchan's contributions to Masonic literature, and I will endeavour to avail myself of his previous researches in the ground I am now going over. Respecting the ancient charge, all I can say at present about it is that it purports to be "extracted by me, A.M.," in MDCLXXIV. from one of date 1881. The original must have been an English document, as it is subscribed "in the raising of our most Sovereign Lady Elizabeth the (22) year." Not having Bro. Murray Lyon's valuable work I am unable to compare the documents. I have, however, compared the writing with that of some of the earlier minutes in the Melrose Lodge book, and find it resembles some of them very much, and I further find that the chirography of one of these old Masons, yeleft Andro Mein, is remarkably like that of the old charge, and this idea is borne out by the initials A.M., which stand in all probability for this Andro Mein.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,
W. FRED. VERNON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has been called to a correspondence which has been going on in your columns about the Melrose Lodge, and reference is made to a visit paid by me to Melrose about eleven years ago, when I had the privilege of getting a glance at the old records of the lodge, and also seeing the fine old abbey.

An account of my visit was published at pp. 205-209 of the "Freemasons' Magazine and Masonic Mirror" for September 11th, 1869, and inter alia I stated "It has records so far back as 1674." I did not assert that it had no other older documents, but mentioned 1674 as the date of the oldest I was either shown, or spoken, or written to about then. I published a copy of the lodge seal, but it was not old, and also of certain regulations dated 1796. I referred to the Melrose Masonic legend that John Murdo was Grand Master of the Masons of Melrose in 1136, when the abbey was founded, but showed its absurdity as proved by Mr.—or shall I say Bro.—Murdo himself.

In the inscription tablet at Melrose Abbey, where John Murdo treats us to his autobiography, we learn that Melrose only got a share of his patronage, for he says he "had in keeping all Mason work of St. Andrews, ye high Kirk; of Glasgow, Melrose, and Paislay; of Myddysdale and of Galway," &c. So from this we see, that even supposing that John Murdo had been either a Master or a Grand Master of the Melrose Lodge, yet as he places it after Glasgow during his life, there is no good reason why it should be placed before Glasgow after his death. Taking the whole matter into consideration, and with the desire to give the Melrose Lodge as high a position as possible upon the roll of Grand Lodge without unnecessarily insulting other lodges possibly older than the Melrose Lodge, I would respectfully suggest No. 34, so as to place it between the Lodge of Glasgow St. John, No. 34, and Kilwinning, No. 4. I think I published a minute of the Lodge of Glasgow St. John of 1613, while the Glasgow Masons' incorporation have minutes back to 1600, I think, and a charter or seal of cause a number of years earlier. Then again, as the Glasgow Masons signed the 1628 Roslin Charter, I fear that Bro. Vernon must in justice restrain his enthusiasm a little before really supporting the idea of placing the Melrose Lodge upon the roll as either "1A" or "A1." I wish Bro. Vernon, however, good speed with his researches, and trust he will be able to publish valuable and interesting information shortly. Only, above all, give us historical accuracy, and support the truth, no matter what becomes of pretensions. I cannot close without holding out my hand to my old and esteemed friend Bro. Hughan, May he long be spared to the Craft.

I am yours fraternally,
W. P. BUCHAN.

A CORRECTION: RECTITUDE CHAPTER No. 581.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your report of the meeting of this chapter contained in your last week's issue Comp. Arensburg is stated to have said that the jewel he was presenting to Comp. James Hall was the first ever presented to him, and at a later part of the evening Comp. Gallagher, Z. 325, repeated the statement.

In fairness to our esteemed Comp. Hall, I think it right to prevent any misapprehension which might arise from the above erroneous statement, as such would lead your readers to suppose that Comp. Hall's valuable services had hitherto been unrecognised by the various chapters in which he has worked so energetically.

Some five years since eight or nine chapters subscribed for a very handsome eighteen-carat P.Z. jewel set with diamonds, which was suitably inscribed and presented to Comp. Hall. Each subscribing chapter had a bar bearing its number placed across the ribbon.

It seems somewhat strange considering that the Rectitude Chapter as well as St. John's, 325 (Comp. Gallagher's), took part in this presentation, that such statements should be made, more especially so as St. John's Chapter in addition presented Comp. Hall with a P.Z. jewel on their own account.

It is a pity that more care is not observed in making such statements, as these errors sometimes cause much trouble and annoyance. And correspondents ought also to be more careful in giving proper titles, and not send them to the press hap-hazard. Comp. Hall is not P.P.G. Treasurer, as reported, but P.P.G.P.S., as the presentation jewel denotes.

Yours fraternally,
"PALMAM QUI MERUIT FERAT."

ROYAL MASONIC PUPILS' ASSISTANCE FUND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am pleased to inform you H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught has forwarded through Bro. Binckes £20 as a donation to the Royal Masonic Pupils' Assistance Fund. I enclose you the list of Patrons up to October 11th; there are some thirty names to add since. I find the well-known Westminster and Keystone Lodge have since the year 1866 forwarded a subscription annually to the Boys' and Girls' Schools, for the purpose of assisting deserving boys and girls on leaving school (an example I am sorry to say not followed by other lodges.) I am informed at the present time the Supreme Council and members of the Schools Committees have several cases they are supporting in the manner proposed by the R.M.P.A.F., and Dr. Morris can mention other cases. This alone speaks for the necessity of establishing a separate fund, and when we remember that at various periods such well-known brothers as Bros. Clabon and Dr. Jabez Hogg have proposed that some such fund be established, as also that our illustrious Bro. Lord Leigh, as Chairman of the Boys' Festival, proposed the advisability of establishing scholarships, there can be but little doubt Lord Roslyn's proposal at the last Boys' Festival will meet with hearty support and approval, and the success up to the present is so far beyond my most sanguine expectations that very early I hope to be able to report the proposed scheme "un fait accompli."

Thanking you, Sir, for your hearty support,
I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
DICK RADCLIFFE.

ORIGINAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The work bearing the above title is still in hand, and will, in all likelihood, be published in the course of six months.

It will shew by the science of speculative astronomy,

* I have made somewhat free with the spelling here. I believe it will be difficult for John Murdo to prove his existence before the fifteenth century. He tells us he was not engaged building new edifices, but he "had in keeping" those he mentions, which were already erected, and which often suffered at the hands of the English after the death of Robert the Bruce, and the memory of whose raid uses him to pray that Melrose Kirk might be protected from harm, or "kept fra skaith."

and its keys of the Old and New Testaments, that the theology of Catholicism is founded on astronomical fiction; that the astro-Masonic theology of the one pure and simple faith in God is founded on His Divine sciences of creation, and that that faith will be the theology of the future.

The work will be illustrated by one Egyptian and four Planispherical pictures, and sold at two shillings or two shillings and sixpence, and be dedicated to the Grand Lodges of all nations.

Yours fraternally,

W. N. CRAWFORD.

Orchard-hill, Guernsey.

Reviews.

LETTERS OF THE YOUNGER PLINY. Lewis. SECOND NOTICE.

Since we wrote the review of this interesting work, which appeared in the last Freemason, our attention has been called to the fact that the generally received statement as to the number of translations is not quite correct. On looking carefully into the matter we find that as far back as 1576, Abraham Fleming, in his "Panoplic of Epistles," 4to., London, published "Certain selected epistles out of C. Plinius, translated out of Latin into English. Pliny's Epistles were published, together with the Paneygerick, in 1724, in two volumes, 8vo., London, by Mr. Henley. Robert Castell, in his "Villas of the Ancients," fol., London, 1720, published two of the letters of Pliny, and it may be well to observe that in 1711 a book called the "Description of Epsom," &c., four letters of Pliny were translated by John Toland. In 1746, Wm. Melmoth published the "Letters of Pliny" in two volumes, a second edition appeared in 1747, a third in 1748. Other editions appeared in 1757, 1770, 1777, 1786, and 1796. John, Earl of Orrery, published in 1751, in two volumes, 4to., London, the "Letters of Pliny the younger," which were reprinted in Dublin the same year in 8vo., as also in London. In 1747, in the "Gentleman's Magazine," appeared the sixteenth and twentieth epistles of the sixth book, translated. These, so far, besides Mr. Bohn's more recent edition, are all the translations of Pliny traceable, and Mr. Lewis seems to have been ignorant, as we were ourselves, of the edition of Mr. Henley in 1724, until our attention was called to it by Mr. E. W. Stubbs, of Museum-street.

THE CAUSE OF COLOUR AMONG RACES. W. SHARP, M.D. David Bogue, 5, St. Martin's-place.

We have read this little "brochure" with much interest. It seems to give us a very sensible and reasonable explanation of the strange contrast of colour of races. As Ethnology has recently received great attention it is a reasonable contribution to the discussion of that matter-of-fact state of things which exists in this world of ours. We commend the little work to the attention of our readers, as so much that is interesting, and so much that is striking belong to the history of mankind, in its physical as well as its psychological condition, that no more profitable path of study can be struck out, especially for the young. Freemasonry reminds us of a great truth, often forgotten, not unfrequently ignored—that whatever colour we be of, we are all children of one Great Parent, that it is the same God who made us one and all.

UNIFORMITY OF RITUAL. Second Notice.

We called attention to a work of Bro. Stevens's, propounding the uniformity of ritual in a recent issue, and feeling convinced that any such effort was a mistake, we said so, and to that opinion we adhere, and shall certainly give to any such proposal, from whomsoever emanating, all the opposition in our humble power and capacity. But since we wrote the review we have looked into this question of uniformity of ritual as a matter of history, and we give the following facts for the consideration of our readers. From 1717 to 1813 there was not, as far as we know, any one authorized system of ritual. At one time there were two competing and conflicting systems of ritual in use—that of the Moderns (our Grand Lodge), that of the Antients, or the Schismatic Grand Lodge. There was considerable sameness between the two systems, that of the Antients being a little more elaborate apparently, in symbolism, and leaning a little more to Christian symbolism. The earliest ritual of which we know of appears to be that of Desaguliers and Anderson, and if Oliver is to be credited a sort of Committee of Masons whom he names, revised the old workings and adapted it to the Grand Lodge working's at that time. About 1732 Martin Clare again revised the working, which, until 1770, when it was again revised by Duncerley, seems to have prevailed in our lodges. Between 1770 and 1813, William Preston again methodized the working and the teaching, and in 1813, under the Lodge of Reconciliation, Dr. Hemming prepared a ritual, afterwards completed by Williams, which is now that of the Lodge of Emulation, while the earlier working of Hemming, untouched by Williams, seems to be that of the Stability Lodge, so ably presided over by our good friend and brother "Old Mug." Thus any idea that before the Union there was any uniformity of working is alike a chimera and a myth, and subsequently to the Union the G. Lodge by a wise toleration has allowed—subject to uniformity of landmarks and aporata—some pardonable and innocuous variations. Any attempt, therefore, to introduce an iron, or rather a leaden, uniformity can only be productive of grave mischief, as it must inevitably lead to a reign of "cribs" and "crams," and that greatest of all curses to Masonry—a printed ritual. As Freemasons, proud of our oral traditions, happy to meet in lodges of instruction under skilful Preceptors, when any one is so rash as to endeavour again to raise this needless and inopportune question, we fancy that an overwhelming majority of "bright Masons" will prove that, uninfluenced by nonsensical bombast or childish ignorance of the subject, they are determined to "leave well alone."

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice-President, occupied the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice-President, occupied the chair of Senior Vice-President; and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P., took the chair of Junior Vice-President.

The other brethren present were Bros. H. G. Bass, Asst. Grand Sec.; W. Dodd, Neville Greene, W.M. 1524; W. Smithson, P.M. 1001 (Harrogate); S. Rawson, Past District Grand Master China; Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, P.M. 1615; W. Mann, P.M. 186; H. Garrod, P.M. 749; James Kench, Asst. G. Pursuivant; G. P. Britten, P.M. 183; W. H. Perryman, P.M. 3; N. B. Headon, P.M. 1416; W. Stebbins, P.M. 1489; Griffiths Smith, P.M. 21; W. J. Marlis, P.M. 1642; T. F. W. Knight Smith, W.M. 1441; E. W. Deveaux, W.M. 1423; A. Middlemass, W.M. 957; C. F. Hogard, P.M. 205; Chas. Atkins, P.M. 27; W. R. Marsh, W.M. 1805; George Cooper, W.M. 507; Walter J. Stride, P.M. 176; Charles Dairy, W.M. 141; W. H. Dean, P.M. 417; Richard Croynod, P.M. 254; J. A. Matthews, W.M. 143; E. Scratton, P.M. 898; J. K. Young, P.M. 1327; Fred Drummond, P.M. 217; H. Sweetland, W.M. 1460; Charles Daniel, W.M. 65; G. H. Wigglesworth, W.M. 975; W. Smith, W.M. 1158; Spencer J. Weston, W.M. 7; F. A. White, P.M. 1437; Richard Jennings, W.M. 907; J. Kemp Coleman, W.M. 1716; John Dennis, P.M. 1804; G. F. Weige, W.M. 860; E. W. Braine, I.P.M. 1471; Percival A. Nairne, P.M. 1329; W. Miller Goss, P.M. 176; Thos. Edmondston, P.M. 1508; James Garnar, P.M. 1622; A. McMillan, W.M. 1365; John Henry Leggett, W.M. 145; G. S. Elliott, P.M. 1623; E. White, W.M. 177; H. Vickery, W.M. 1475; Samuel H. Parkhouse, W.M. 1642; H. Potter, P.M. 11; W. F. Richards, W.M. 27; E. Squirell, W.M. 206; H. Sadler (G. Tyler); and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason).

The brethren first confirmed grants, recommended to the Grand Master at last meeting, to the amount of £310, and then proceeded with the consideration of the new cases, of which there were twenty-seven on the list. Twenty-one of these were relieved with a total sum of £755. Two recommendations of £100 each were made to Grand Lodge; and five of £50 each; three of £40 each were made to the M.W. Grand Master; two of £30 each; two of £25 each; and one of £20. Five grants were made of £10 each, and one grant was made of £5. Six cases were deferred.

The lodge sat four hours.

SOUTHAMPTON NEW MASONIC HALL.

The new hall and premises built by the Freemasons of Southampton, in Albion-terrace, just off the High-street, though not yet completed, are in so forward a state that the banqueting room has been occupied this week by a party given by the Mayor of the borough (Bro. J. Blount Thomas, P.M.), to celebrate the laying of the foundation stone of new Municipal Offices for Southampton.

The new buildings have been erected by a joint-stock company of Freemasons, the brotherhood in Southampton having outgrown the accommodation provided by the hall in Bugle-street, which has been dedicated to Masonic purposes for the past fifty-five years. So long ago as June, 1823, the brethren of the Royal Gloucester, then the only existing lodge in the town, removed to this hall from premises which they had previously occupied in East-street. Several years later the owner finding himself in financial difficulties, the hall fell into the hands of a few of the brethren, chiefly through the exertions of the late Bro. C. E. Diacon, and has been used by the brotherhood ever since. The site, however, being leasehold of the Corporation, who in their turn hold it of Queen's College, Oxford, it was thought advisable when the question of rebuilding was revived a year or two since to secure a freehold site. After considerable difficulty in obtaining a suitable position, a vacant piece of land overlooking the Western Shore was purchased of the executors of the late Mr. John Aslett, a limited liability company, with a capital of £4000, being formed for the purpose of erecting thereon a new hall, which now occupies as nearly as possible the site of the old donjon or keep of Southampton Castle, close to some of the (preserved) walls of which it is built. The series of buildings thus erected is intended to provide accommodation for the five Craft lodges, three Royal Arch chapters, the Mark, and other Masonic bodies in Southampton, the brethren of which exclusively form the Masonic Hall Company. The building, treated in the Italian style, is constructed of white brick as a facing, with Douling stone finishings to the entrance, principal windows, and balustrades; and embraces an arched entrance porch, lobby, passage, and corridor, paved with neat pattern Minton's tiles, leading to the chief rooms. These are a lodge, which is enclosed on all sides, 45 feet by 30, lighted from the ceiling by two large lantern lights, and having in the principal walls, over two handsome fire places, ornamental niches for busts or pictures, of which latter the Masonic body here possess a goodly number, several of them being of great artistic as well as personal value; a smaller room designed for chapters or as a reception room, is 24ft. 6in. by 18ft. 9in., inclusive of a large bay window which commands a very extensive and pleasing view of the West Bay, the opposite shore, New Forest, &c.; whilst facing Albion-terrace there is a banqueting room, 38ft. by 25ft., lighted by five windows, and intended to be let for public or quasi-public gatherings such as that of to-day, the lodge and chapter rooms being reserved exclusively for Masonic use. Besides a cloak room, lavatories, and other offices, the domestic portion of the building consists of a kitchen, with ample cooking appliances, a scullery, &c., and four small rooms on the upper storey for the use of the hall keeper. The gas lighting in the lodge and banqueting room is by sun lights and pendants. The work throughout is of a plain and economical character.

THE NEW MARKET HOTEL.

A Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the City was held on Saturday, the 18th inst. There were present the Lord Mayor, Mr. Alderman Finnis, Alderman Sir R. W. Carden, Alderman Sir T. Dakin, Mr. Alderman Nottingham, and Mr. Alderman Hadley.

Bro. Thomas Butt, licensed victualler, applied for a new licence for the New Market Hotel, Snow-hill, Farringdon-street, for music and dancing. Mr. Fulton appeared in support of the application, and Mr. Vennell opposed on behalf of Mr. Maskell, the landlord of the Victoria, a neighbouring public-house. Mr. Fulton explained that his client, who bore an excellent character, and who had been a licensed victualler for twenty years, did not intend to convert the house into a music hall. His object was to keep it for balls exclusively, and he would give a guarantee that only the Masonic and other societies who held their meetings at his house should be allowed to hold their balls there. Alderman Sir T. Dakin observed that all the lodges in the list produced were not Masonic, and he wished to know whether applicant would give a guarantee to the effect that none but Masonic lodges should hold balls at his house. Mr. Fulton replied that if the Bench thought it necessary to exclude all but Masonic lodges, his client would do so. Mr. Vennell said his ground for opposing the application was that the neighbourhood was most unfitted for such a licence. The majority of Bro. Butt's customers were persons employed at the Meat Market, who came early in the morning, and consequently retired home at an early hour. The neighbourhood was an unusually quiet one, and he submitted that should the Bench grant the licence the result would be that persons living in the neighbourhood would be annoyed by the noise. In addition to this he would put his client in the box, and he would swear most positively that for the last two years he had been kept awake of a night by the noise made by a piano played in Bro. Butt's house. Alderman Sir R. W. Carden asked whether the learned counsel's client had not a piano in his house? Mr. Maskell replied that he had not. Alderman Sir R. W. Carden: Then you are an exception to the general rule. The landlord of the Victoria was put into the witness-box, and he corroborated the statement of his counsel. He generally closed his house at ten o'clock, but had heard persons in Bro. Butt's after twelve. Cross-examined: He had often complained about the music to Bro. Butt, who, on one occasion, acknowledged that a certain amount of noise had occurred at his house. Mr. Fulton: The petition in opposition is signed by thirteen persons, who do not vouch that this house is a nuisance. How is that? Why did they not embody in their petition that it was a nuisance to the neighbourhood? Was it ever suggested until by your counsel to-day? Witness: I do not know. Mr. Fulton: Your house is a small one. Witness: It is smaller than the other. Mr. Fulton: The other is a large place. You could not accommodate 200 or 300 at a banquet? Witness: No. Mr. Vennell: Though the noise was sufficient to disturb you in your rest you thought it was not your duty to make complaints to the police? Witness: That is so. Mr. Vennell: So that you would not embody it in your petition? Witness: No. Mr. Vennell: But complaints have been made to you personally by these petitioners? Mr. Fulton objected to the question. The Lord Mayor: The question is out of order. In answer to the Bench, Mr. Fulton said the music should be confined to Masonic and Foresters' lodges. The application was granted. —City Press.

FREEMASONRY IN PHILADELPHIA.

SUPREME COUNCIL, THIRTY-THIRD DEGREE.

Had the clerk of the weather been a 33° Mason, he could not have favoured the members of the Supreme Council with more delightful weather than we have had during the present week, and it has added materially to the comfort and pleasure of our distinguished visitors. On Tuesday morning and afternoon the sessions were largely attended. In the evening the formal reception by the members of Philadelphia Consistory took place in Corinthian Hall, when that body met and opened in the 14° Ill. Commander in Chief, John Hanold, in the East. There were present some 230 members of the body.

The members of the Supreme Council met in the Grand Chapter Room at 7.30 o'clock, when the Committee of Arrangements, Bros. Meyer, Hutchinson, Dealy, Hall, Coulomb, Young, Garrigues, and Kendrick, met them, and escorted them to Corinthian Hall, where they were received in due form. Ill. Bro. J. H. Drummond, Sovereign Grand Commander of the Northern Jurisdiction, headed the line, arm-in-arm with Ill. Bro. Albert G. Markey, Dean of the Supreme Grand Council of the Southern Jurisdiction (Bro. Albert Pike not being able to attend).

The guests were introduced by Bro. C. E. Meyer, and welcomed by Bro. John Hanold. Addresses were made by Bros. Drummond and Markey.

After an interchange of courtesies, the line was formed, and the entire body, numbering some 350, were conducted to the grand banquet room, where a repast had been furnished. The tables were handsomely arranged, the flower and fruit pedestals setting off the immense tables to great advantage. It was about as handsome a sight of this kind as one would wish to see. The bill of fare was quite an extensive one of seven courses, and the manner in which it was served reflects great credit upon the caterer, Bro. Jacob Wiener, 527, Arch-street. The dishes were served in courses, the dishes of one being removed before the succeeding one was put upon the table.

After the edibles and drinkables were disposed of, a Table Lodge was opened, with Bro. Charles E. Meyer in the East, Bro. Thos. R. Patton in the West, and Bro. James S. Barker in the South.

The toasts respectively were "The United States of America," the brethren taking in singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

"The Supreme Council Northern Masonic Jurisdiction, U.S.A.," responded to by Bro. Drummond.

"The Supreme Council Southern Jurisdiction," responded to by Bro. A. G. Mackey.

"Ancient Craft Masonry," responded to by Bro. J. L. Lewis.

"To all Poor and Distressed Brethren," responded to by Bro. Roome.

"Woman," responded to by Bro. Woodbury, concluding with "Auld Lang Syne."

Bro. Bastert's parlour orchestra enlivened the evening with choice instrumental music, and Bro. Aaron R. Taylor gave some fine vocal selections.

At the session on Wednesday the following officers were elected—Bros. Henry L. Palmer, Wisconsin, Sovereign Grand Commander; Charles Levi Woodbury, Boston, Lieutenant Grand Commander; Joseph D. Evans, New York, Minister of State; Heman Ely, Ohio, Grand Treas. General; Clinton F. Paige, New York, Grand Sec. General; Samuel C. Lawson, Massachusetts, Grand Keeper of Seals and Archives; Charles T. McClenahan, New York, Grand Master of Ceremonies; Homer S. Godwin, Pennsylvania, Grand Marshal General; W. R. Higby, Cincinnati, General Standard Bearer; George O. Tyler, Vermont, Grand Captain of Guard.

The Thirty-Third Degree was conferred upon the following members—Bros. George Henry Bigelow, Vermont; James Kirker, Connecticut; Charles William Batchelor, Pittsburg; John Hodge, New York; Edwin Gates, Brooklyn; William P. Witsie, Ohio; Stith M. Sullivan, Dayton, Ohio; Joel B. Parsons, Cleveland; Edgar P. Tobey, John McLaren, Alfred Russell, Amos Pettibone, J. A. Allen, M.D., James B. Bradwell, and Loomis E. Bullock, all from Chicago; William D. Rowell, Freeport, Ill., and H. C. Clarke, Kankakee, Ill. Deputies for the States in the Northern Jurisdiction were elected as follows: Bros. G. W. Dearing, Maine; John Christie, New Hampshire; George O. Tyler, Vermont; Benjamin Dean, Massachusetts; F. A. Doyle, Rhode Island; C. W. Carter, Connecticut; Colonel B. M. C. Graham, New York; Joseph H. Hough, New Jersey; Anthony E. Stocker, Pennsylvania; D. Burham Tracy, Michigan; Enoch T. Carson, Ohio; Elbridge G. Hamilton, Indiana; Hosmer A. Johnson, Illinois; and Alvin B. Alden, Wisconsin.

The following subordinate appointments were made on Thursday, when the annual session was closed—Bros. Rev. Thomas R. Lambert, Massachusetts, Grand Prior; J. H. Hobert Ward, New York, First Marshal of the Camp; Charles E. Meyer, Philadelphia, Second Marshal of the Camp; Hugh McCurdy, Michigan, Third Marshal of the Camp.

The next session will be held in Boston.

On Thursday afternoon the guests and their ladies were taken to Fairmount Park. Each carriage had one Philadelphian as escort. They left the Continental Hotel at 3.30, and passed up the East Park, on the river road, to the Wissahickon, near the Sixth Mile Stone, returned across Falls Bridge, thence around Belmont to Horticultural Hall.

Here the party alighted and took a brief survey, re-entered the carriages, drove around George's Hill, and thence to Pennsylvania State Building, where ice cream, cakes, lemonade, and fruits were provided. They left here at 7 o'clock, arriving at Continental Hotel at 7.30. The drive was highly enjoyed.

The Royal Order of Scotland had a business meeting on Wednesday evening, after which the members proceeded in a body to Bro. J. Wiener's, 527, Arch-street, where they partook of a choice banquet.

The next meeting of this body will be held in Washington in October, 1880.—Philadelphia Chronicle-Herald, Friday, Sept. 19th.

WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.—A Masonic ball in aid of the funds of the above Institution will shortly take place at Liverpool. An influential Committee has been formed, and we have no doubt our Liverpool brethren will carry it through with their usual spirit, and the result will be a substantial addition to the funds of this excellent Institution.

PROVINCE OF CORNWALL.—The Provincial G. Master for Cornwall, the R.W. Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, will hold a Provincial Grand Lodge at Callington, on Tuesday next, for the purpose of dedicating the new hall of the Loyal Victoria Lodge (No. 577) to Masonic purposes. The Valletot Chapter of Royal Arch Masons will be consecrated the same day at three o'clock.

Lord Carnarvon presents the prizes at the School of Art, Winchester, on Tuesday next. On the following day his lordship will move the following resolution at the conference to be held at the County-hall: "That it is desirable to promote in every way the efficiency of the system of preaching in the Church of England."

MASONIC COLLEGES AND BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

The Masonic Fraternity of the United States has never succeeded in establishing institutions of learning, though many and expensive efforts have been made. The Grand Lodges of Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Missouri, by turns, invested large amounts of money in colleges, under the pleasing hope of usefulness, but in vain—wrecks, debts, and a long feeling of dissatisfaction were the net results. Education is so cheap in America there seems to be little call for Masonic Charity in this direction.

There are at present five living institutions deriving their existence in whole or part from Masonic beneficence, viz.:

1. St. John Masonic College, Little Rock, Arkansas.
2. Masonic Female College, Covington, Georgia.
3. Oxford Orphan Asylum, Oxford, North Carolina.
4. Girard College, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
5. Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home, Louisville, Kentucky.

A Committee of the Grand Lodge of Texas recently circulated the American Grand Lodges with the following queries:

1. What organised Masonic charitable institution is maintained in your jurisdiction, for the benefit of the widows and orphans?
2. How was it founded and endowed, and how is it supported?
3. What are the details of its organisation and government?
4. What has it accomplished in the way of contributing to the relief of the widows and orphans of deceased brother Masons and others?
5. What modifications, if any, in its plans, organisation, government, resources, or in any other respect, can you suggest for our benefit?

6. If you are familiar with any other organised Masonic Charity, please inform us in regard to such.

7. If you know of any such institution having failed, please give us specifically the cause of its failure.

In reply California says: "We have no special institution for the benefit of Masonic widows and orphans." Alabama the same. Canada: "The Grand Lodge created a fund for a Masonic Asylum, but it was never applied to that purpose." Connecticut: "We are striving to organise an institution for widows and orphans and for aged brethren. Contributions coming in for that purpose are set apart to accumulate principal and interest." Colorado and Dakota reply as Alabama. District of Columbia has an organised Masonic Charity entitled St. John Mite Association. Idaho has an orphan fund to which every Master Mason pays one dollar a year. It amounts at present to 5000 dollars. Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, New Hampshire, New York, and Ohio have none. Indiana has recently organised the Masonic Widows and Orphans' Home Society, and aims to raise $100,000, and then erect an edifice. Maine has a plan on foot, and has raised about $10,000 already. Michigan, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, and Missouri have none. Nebraska has an Orphans' School Fund amounting to 10,000 dollars, but no building is proposed. South Carolina, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Utah, and Pennsylvania have none.

If relief lodges are placed under this head, the list will swell into hundreds. That at San Francisco, Cal., does an immense work in this good direction. The relief lodges of New Orleans, New York, Louisville, Ky., Baltimore, Md., and many others, have won noble testimonials to their efficiency. Philadelphia, however, takes the lead, having a Stephen Girard Charity Fund, founded some fifty years since, the capital investment of which is now 62,000 dollars, the annual interest over 3000 dollars. This is devoted strictly to the purposes intimated in the bequest, viz.: "to relieve all Master Masons in good standing." Besides this, the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania has a Charity Fund of 60,000 dollars for the relief of the widows and orphans of deceased Master Masons who were contributing members of lodges within three years of death. More than 3000 dollars flow out annually from that fountain of charity. Still further to place Pennsylvania in the foremost grounds of benevolence, they have an incorporated Masons' Home, which in due time will be made effective. The Fraternity of New York has the purpose to establish an asylum for aged and destitute Masons.—Coleman's Masonic Calend. v.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Rt. Hon. Lord Kensington, M.P., R.W. Senior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of English Freemasons, will preside at the annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement on Friday, November 28th.

The meetings of the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1558, will in future be held at the Palmerston Arms, Grosvenor Park, Camberwell, every Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked by the members of the Whitington Lodge of Instruction, No. 862, at the Red Lion Hotel, Poppin's-court, Fleet-street, on Wednesday next, commencing at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Appleby continues his pleasant holiday notices in the October issue of the "Masonic Magazine;" an account of "A Visit to the Lakes" is the subject of his present contribution. Mr. Emra Holmes has a poem of some length on "The Golden Wreath." Mr. Poynter brings to a close his graphic paper entitled, "Within the Shadow of the Shaft." Mr. Tweddell deals in some interesting notes with literature, science, and art. Many other capital contributions are included in this attractive monthly, which is under the patronage of the Prince of Wales.—High Peak News, Oct. 18th, 1879.

The Masonic Magazine for November is now ready.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Freemasons of Cheshire was held at Crewe on Wednesday, the 22nd ult., under the presidency of Lord de Tabley, R.W.P.G. Superintendent. There was a large number of influential companions present, and the whole of the chapters in the provinces, except two, were represented. On the proposition of Comp. Latham, the chapter granted £57 15s. from the funds to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The chapter was closed at four o'clock, and the companions afterwards adjourned to the Crewe Arms Hotel, where a banquet was served. The officers for next year were invested, Bro. F. Jackson being Treasurer, Bro. W. Alcock, Junior. A report will appear in our next.

Bro. Emra Holmes gave a reading in the hall of the Mechanics' Institute on Friday, the 17th inst., when about 500 persons were present. Milton, Shakespeare, Tom Hood, Tennyson, and Southey were laid under contribution for the more serious pieces, whilst readings of a lighter character from Mark Twain, Dickens, and Arthur Sketchley were introduced. The Western Daily Mercury says, "the pieces were well selected and admirably rendered." Bro. Holmes read his new poem, "The Golden Wreath," which was very well received, and which appears in this month's "Masonic Magazine."

LONDON GENERAL OMNIBUS COMPANY.—Traffic receipts for the week ending October the 19th £10,639 16s. 6d.; 1878, £11,269 1s. 11d.

The Committee of the Sunday School Union propose bringing out their present serial, "Kind Words," as a present weekly for boys and girls, under the title of "Young England." The first number will be ready before Christmas.

We have to announce with deep regret the death of Lady Ellen Frances Lubbock, the wife of Sir John Lubbock, Bart., M.P. for Maidstone, which melancholy event took place on Monday last at the family seat of Sir John, High Elms, near Dover, Kent.

The seventy-third anniversary dinner of the friends and patrons of the Licensed Victuallers' School was held on Wednesday, at the Crystal Palace, Baron Henry de Worms presiding. During the evening the Secretary announced that the subscriptions amounted to £5200.

The Gazette of Tuesday night announces that His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught has been pleased to appoint Samuel Wilks, Esq., M.D., F.R.C.P., F.R.S., to be Physician in Ordinary to their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

Richard Carlisle, the Cornish pedestrian, completed on Tuesday evening his walk from Land's End to John O'Groat's house, trundling a wheelbarrow all the way. He did fifty-six miles on Monday. His walk has taken twenty-five days, excluding Sundays.

The Israel Lodge, No. 205, will meet on Tuesday next, at five o'clock, at the Cannon-street Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. A. Bassington, W.M. There is a good paper of business before the brethren on this, their opening meeting of the season, one gentleman having to be initiated, whilst two brothers are down for passing, and two for raising. A re-joining country member has also to be balloted for.

Five hundred and sixty-nine associations, scientific, literary, Masonic, and working men's, have already signified their adherence to the programme of the meeting at Naples in favour of a general disarmament.

At a meeting of the Committee of the Sacred Harmonic Society, held on Tuesday, it was decided that as the Directors of Exeter Hall were now in a position to continue the Society's tenancy of the Hall, the concerts should be continued in that building as heretofore. The opening concert of the forty-eight season will therefore take place in November. The Committee understand that the building will not be available for musical purposes after October next, and the concerts for the season 1879-80 will therefore be the final series given by the Society in Exeter Hall.

THE ROYAL MASONIC PEDIGREE WHEAT.

—The Reading Mercury, in publishing the programme of the ceremony of setting the memorial stone of the new Public Buildings in that borough with Masonic rites (which has been postponed through the indisposition of the Pro Grand Master, Lord Carnarvon), says:—"The corn which will be used in the ceremony has been presented by Bro. T. Deller, of Southsea, and forwarded through Bro. Cosburn, of Newbury, to the Provincial Grand Secretary. It is a sample of the "Royal Masonic Pedigree Wheat," and possesses a history of some interest. Bro. Deller attended the laying of the stone of the Reading Grammar School, performed some years since with Masonic rites by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Order, and a grain of wheat which fell during the ceremony, being picked up by Bro. Deller, was planted by him, and in three years the produce amounted to seven-and-a-half gallons. The Prince accepted the wheat, which was grown on the Sandringham Estate, and in two years it produced 500 bushels. In October, 1877, his Royal Highness sent eight bushels to Bro. Deller, who grew it two years, and he has now in his possession the yield of fifty acres, grown from the eight bushels. The wheat is of fine quality and yields well, and it is certainly an interesting circumstance that the wheat to be used next Tuesday by the Pro Grand Master should have descended from a grain of that used by the Royal Head of the Craft on the last occasion when an important work in this town was inaugurated under Masonic auspices."—Vide advt. in another page.

The election of sixteen boys out of an approved list of seventy-seven to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Monday, the 13th inst., at Freemasons' Tavern. West Yorkshire was successful with two candidates. The first was William Henry Healey, son of the late Bro. David Healey, woollen manufacturer, Batley, who was initiated in the Nelson of the Nile Lodge, No. 264, Batley, on the 28th December, 1858, to which he subscribed till his death on the 2nd of November, 1872. Seven children are left without father or mother. The second successful candidate was John Roebuck Murgatroyd, son of the late Bro. Thomas Murgatroyd, surgeon, Shipley, who was initiated in the Airedale Lodge, No. 387, Shipley, on the 25th of April, 1864, of which he was a Past Master and Almoner, and to which he subscribed till his death on the 24th of November last. Four children were left dependent on their mother. Healey polled 1603 votes and Murgatroyd 1474.

A correspondent writes that the Council of the Grand Orient of France is preparing an appeal to the Grand Lodge of England against the exclusion of its members from the English Masonic fraternities. The exclusion rule of the English and Scotch lodges is represented to have been felt by French Masons in many parts of the world, the ruling having application in almost every English-speaking lodge. Many complaints have reached the Grand Orient, accompanied in some instances by applications for charters to start lodges. Unwilling to widen the breach in the Masonic circle, the Grand Orient has hitherto declined those charters, but should the English Grand Lodge continue to refuse fellowship, the Council of the Grand Orient will grant those charters. The English body will, of course, refuse to admit the validity of a right which excludes the recognition of a Deity, and we shall then have established in London several lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Orient.

It is intended to apply for Parliamentary powers next session to construct a tunnel under the Mersey between Liverpool and Birkenhead. The proposed subway, estimated at £500,000, is projected to start from the junction of Taylor and Canning streets, Birkenhead, passing under the Woodside stage, and ascending on the Liverpool side between the George's Baths and the George's Dock, with an outlet at the bottom of James-street. The scheme involves the removal of one of the blocks of the Gorse warehouses. The Liverpool Town Council, the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board, the railway companies having termini at Birkenhead, and the Birkenhead Town Council are invited to unite for the purpose of carrying the project out. The latter body has already agreed to be one of the four contributors. The estimated annual revenue from tolls on foot passengers, carriages, carts, and goods is £45,000, and the probable utmost expenditure is placed at £5000. The width of the subway under the river is to be 27ft., and 30ft. at the entrances, and it is stated that the engineering difficulties are comparatively insignificant. The gradients vary from 1 in 27 to 1 in 50 feet.

A notice of the rebuilding, on an extensive scale, of Anderton's Hotel has already appeared in the City Press, but as the work is now approaching completion a more detailed account may be given. The hotel is one of the oldest establishments of its kind in the metropolis. The new structure, when the main elevation has received its finishing touches, will form a prominent architectural feature in Fleet-street. The frontage is about 50ft. in width and between 80 and 90ft. in height, and is carried to a depth of nearly 100ft., much valuable property adjoining having been purchased for the new and enlarged building. The Fleet-street elevation, which contains four storeys above the ground floor, is built with red patent brick, and massive Portland stone dressings, a profusion of ornamental work in terra cotta being introduced in various portions of the façade. The east and west sides of the elevation are surmounted by crescent-formed gables, and one of the most prominent features is a bold balustrade and balcony in Portland stone, which is carried across the elevation at the foot of the first floor windows. The grand entrance to the hotel is in the centre of the ground floor, consisting of shops on each side unconnected with the hotel itself. The entrance is 10ft. in width, flanked on each side with Aberdeen polished granite, from which springs an archway of the same material. The entrance leads into a handsome corridor 15ft. in width, and upwards of 20ft. in length, which is laid with ornamental encaustic tiles. From this corridor the several apartments of the hotel are approached, the upper portions being by a grand staircase 7ft. in width. The capacity of the interior of the building will be imagined when it is stated that, in addition to numerous reception, coffee, and dining rooms, there are no less than 120 bed rooms. A special feature consists of a spacious Masonic lodge room at the rear of the first floor, which is magnificently decorated, and the windows of which are all in stained glass, containing Masonic emblems. In the basement there is also a fine Masonic banqueting hall, in which 500 persons can dine. The floors of the lower portions of the building are all fireproof, and as a large and valuable quantity of plate will be permanently deposited in the hotel, not only belonging to the hotel itself, but also to Masonic lodges, several large safes have been furnished by Milner's Safe Manufacturing Company, of Moorgate-street. The architects are Messrs. Ford and Hesketh, and the builders Messrs. Browne and Robinson. The cost of the building will be upwards of £60,000.—City Press.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—[ADVT.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

PAXTON LODGE (No. 1686).—The October meeting of this lodge was held last Saturday, at the Crystal Palace, and in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Goddard, W.M., the brethren were presided over by Bro. J. M. Klenck, P.M.; Bro. F. J. Sawyer, S.W., and W.M. elect, occupied the S.W. chair, and Bro. W. H. Boswell, J.W., performed the duties of J.W. Bro. R. E. Woodhams acted as Deacon, and Bro. G. R. Dodd, as I.G. After the opening of the lodge, the minutes having been confirmed, Bro. H. E. Frances, P.M. and Secretary, was requested by Bro. Klenck to take the Master's chair, and that brother having done so, Mr. J. J. H. Sale was introduced and initiated into Freemasonry. This ceremony was followed by the Audit Committee's report being read, and when this had been adopted, Bro. Klenck introduced Bro. F. J. Sawyer to Bro. Frances for the purpose of installation. Bro. Sawyer having agreed to accept the office of W.M., was then July installed in the chair, with the customary forms and ceremonies, and after he had received the congratulations of the brethren, he appointed the following brethren to office: Bros. W. H. Boswell, S.W.; R. E. Woodhams, J.W.; J. M. Klenck, Treasurer; H. E. Frances, P.M., Sec.; N. J. Bassett, P.M., S.D.; G. Dodd, J.D.; S. Walker, I.G.; F. W. J. Goddard, D.C.; E. L. Partridge, A.D.C.; F. C. Graves, W.S.; J. E. Sharman, Assistant W.S.; and Radford, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed the new W.M. presented to the lodge his banner, whereupon Bro. Boswell, S.W., proposed, and Bro. Bassett, S.D., seconded, a vote of thanks for the gift. This having been unanimously carried, Bro. Frances, P.M. and Secretary, announced that in consequence of increased business engagements and ill health, the I.P.M., Bro. Goddard, had reluctantly felt compelled to resign his membership of the lodge. Bro. Frances proposed, and Bro. Bassett seconded, a vote of regret at the circumstance, and Bro. Klenck in putting the motion to the lodge hoped that Bro. Goddard would soon find more time and have better health, and so be enabled to come again among the brethren. A vote of thanks was then passed to Bro. Frances for having, in addition to his ordinary duties as Secretary of the lodge during the past year, also performed the work of the W.M., and five guineas was afterwards voted towards a testimonial to him in recognition of those services, on the motion of the W.M., seconded by the J.W. This concluded the work of the lodge, and nothing was left to be done but to close down and celebrate the W.M.'s accession to office by a banquet. Lodge was thereupon closed, and an adjournment took place to one of the elegant dining rooms of the Crystal Palace, where a choice repast was provided by Bros. Bertram and Roberts. When the toasts were proposed at the conclusion of the banquet, Bro. Klenck, P.M., in submitting to the brethren "The Health of the W.M.," said that the selection the lodge had made of a brother to rule over them was one which was a credit to the lodge, and it would be found when his year of office closed that his good qualities had commended him to the respect and affection of the brethren. At the foundation of the lodge Bro. Sawyer took great interest in it. That interest had continued, and it was a great pleasure to find a brother who took such an interest raised to the high position of W.M. He hoped to see all the brethren who stood by the lodge at its formation spared to attain the same distinguished position. The selection the lodge had made had fallen on the right man, and the right man was in the right place. Bro. Sawyer would promote the harmony and prosperity of the lodge, and he (Bro. Klenck) called upon the brethren to award him that meed of approbation which they could evince by drinking his health. The W.M., in reply, said that as the time was very late, and he had to catch more than one train before he got home, he should not say much, but he would merely detain them by saying he was very proud indeed—no one knew how proud he was—at having attained to the position of W.M. of the Paxton Lodge. Since he first entered into this wonderful brotherhood (for wonderful it really was), the more he had seen of it the more delighted he had been with it. The more he had seen of it, the more he had been struck with the ceremonies which had raised him from pillar to pillar until he had attained the eminence on which he now found himself. He must thank Past Master Frances primarily, and Bro. Past Master Klenck secondarily, for having helped him forward at such a rate, that within five years of his initiation he had reached the position of W.M. He trusted that he might ask the initiate to try and get on as fast. If that brother would do his best to learn, and try to emulate those brethren who had gone before him, and work up to the position of W.M., it would give him great pleasure, and, no doubt, as much pleasure as it had given him (Bro. Sawyer) to reach the chair. He knew all the brethren felt as he felt; they were all equally glad to see him at their head, and this fact rendered it unnecessary for him to say any more on the toast which had been so kindly proposed and cordially drunk. The W.M. next proposed "The Initiate." It was a toast which they all gave honour to at all times, and it was right that they should, as there was no toast to which more honour was due. Without an initiate there would be no Masonry. He could only repeat what he had said just now, that he hoped and trusted the initiate would do all that he possibly could for Masonry, and as he had been told that evening that the badge he had on was the badge of innocence and the bond of friendship, and that if he never disgraced it it would never disgrace him, he should go on and obtain the higher badge as quickly as he could. There was no difference, however, in his connection with the fraternity; he was as much a brother Mason now as he would be when he took the higher degrees; the only difference there was was in the degree; he would be no more a Mason in the further degree than he was now. Sooner or later the brethren would no doubt see Bro. Sale rise step by step until he obtained the Worshipful Master's gavel. It might take some little time, but he (the W.M.) could assure him that the more attention he gave to Masonry the more pleasure would he take in his duties, and the better would he be appreciated by the brethren. The toast having been heartily drunk, Bro. Sale, in responding, said he had no idea when he came to the lodge that evening that he was going to be so kindly and heartily received. He had been going to join the Craft a great many years on account of his having been so deeply impressed with it when travelling abroad, and never more impressed than when travelling in Mexico. If a man was a Mason when there, if he was not a native of the country, he was looked upon as akin to it, and he had received the greatest kindness at the hands of the inhabitants. He should adopt the advice of the W.M. and obtain the higher badge of which he had spoken. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and expressed the great pleasure felt by the brethren at seeing the visitors among them. Bro. Butt, in replying, after thanking the brethren for their hospitable reception of the visitors, wished the W.M. a most happy and prosperous year of office. He also complimented the lodge on having the ceremonies so ably performed as they had been that evening by Bro. Frances. If the brethren would emulate the Past Masters, the lodge would never lack a brother to fill the post of Worshipful Master, if that brother should from any cause be absent. This would bring great credit to the lodge. He was sorry the I.P.M. had been unable to attend, because it was a great thing for a lodge to have the Master always present. Bro. Dunn also replied, and expressed the same sentiments. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. H. E. Frances." He had been, and continued to be, a prime mover and instigator in Freemasonry. He was the hardest working man that he (the W.M.) knew in that particular sphere. Bro. Frances was very proud of Freemasonry, and never tired of hard work in its interest. He believed that the greatest pleasure of Bro. Frances's life was to install some one. He begged to express his best thanks to Bro. Frances for the admirable way in which he had performed the ceremonies of the evening, with which he was sure all the brethren were equally pleased. Bro. Frances, replying, said he thoroughly enjoyed Freemasonry, and especially when he had the pleasure of putting one of his friends in the chair. He was exceedingly sorry that he had not seen Bro. Goddard since he was installed. Bro. Goddard was a brilliant star in the firmament of Freemasonry. The brethren would never get a man who had the powers of Bro. Goddard, who was a born orator, with a marvellous power of speech which belonged to few men. Bro. Sawyer he knew would attend to his work; he was thoroughly sincere, and he would perform the work of the lodge in a way that would bring credit upon it. Bro. Klenck responded to the toast of "The P.M.'s." Whenever anything was wanted of him the brethren might command him. He took a great interest in the Paxton Lodge, and was pleased to see its progress. The brethren had never had a wry word or dissension. He was pleased to find that member after member was added to the number. The same unanimity and concord, however, prevailed notwithstanding this increase. He only hoped that as years rolled on, and Masters succeeded Masters in the chair, the unanimity and concord would increase, and brotherly love continue. He was much indebted to Bro. Frances for his kindly aid, and in assisting him in Freemasonry. With regard to the Charities of the Order they had found in him (Bro. Klenck) a leader and supporter, for although he had not been many years in Masonry, he had raised directly or indirectly £500. That was the end and aim of Freemasonry. Freemasons ate and drank, were merry and enjoyed themselves, but amid the whole of that the great secret was that they were kind to those who could not help themselves. While enjoying themselves they did not forget others who required help. He was proud to be a Past Master of the Paxton Lodge, and he hoped the brethren would with him long enjoy each other's society. The toasts of "The Officers" and "The Press" followed, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 8th ult., in the Masonic Rooms, Athensum, the W.M., Bro. Cardwell, presiding, supported by his respective officers. The lodge having been opened with the usual formalities, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Jowett, I.P.M., then gave a very interesting original lecture, entitled "The Ancient and Modern Rituals," which was listened to with much attention. Several illustrations were given, in which Bro. Jowett was assisted by Bro. Warbrick, S.W. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the I.P.M. on the motion of Bro. Whimpray, P.M., seconded by Bro. Atkinson, S.D. The usual proclamations were then made, eliciting "Hearty good wishes" from the visiting brethren, after which the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

LISCARD.—Warren Lodge (No. 1276).—The brethren of the above lodge, which has now attained its tenth year's existence, met on Tuesday afternoon, the 21st ult., at the Queen's Arms Hotel, for the purpose of assisting at the annual celebration of the festival of St. John, and the very large and influential attendance of members and visitors clearly showed the popularity and vitality of this important lodge in the important Province of Cheshire, which enjoys the genial Masonic rule of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W.P.G.M. Bro. W. Price, the W.M., was unavoidably absent in consequence of severe illness, and his place at the opening was accordingly taken by Bro. J. Taylor, P.M., who efficiently initiated a candidate into the Order. At the conclusion of this section of the work, the chair was taken by Bro. E. Pritchard, P.P.G.P. Warwickshire, who, in a most impressive and thoroughly-efficient manner, proceeded to install Bro. Henry Matthews as the W.M. of the Warren Lodge. The following were subsequently invested as the officers for the ensuing year: Bros. W. Price, I.P.M. (by proxy); J. G. Parker, S.W.; W. Danger, J.W.; G. Henderson, Treas.; J. H. Jones, Sec.; M. Ellaby, S.D.; T. V. Burrows, J.D.; G. Alistair, I.G.; J. Taylor, P.M., M.C.; J. H. Poval, S.S.; J. Hindley, J.S.; and J. H. Holtway, P.G.T., was unanimously re-elected Tyler. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Pritchard for his services as Installing Master, and it was agreed to send a letter of condolence to Bro. W. Price in connection with his illness. The attendance included besides those already named Bros. H. Skinner, P.M.; W. R. Bainbridge, F. B. Hughes, J. Looney, E. T. Rawson, W. Mathias, H. Hindley, J. Lawton, P. Hockey, J. Jones, W. Worth, A. M'Kay, J. Ellis, H. P. Jones, J. Leicester, J. Alltree, G. Dunn, and others. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. J. Ridehalgh, P.P.G.P.; W. Matthews, 220; H. Nelson, P.M. 673; G. Hutchin, P.M. 241; W. Brackenbury, W.M. 673; J. P. Platt, P.P.J.W.; H. Williams, P.G.A.D.C.; W. Bennett, W.M. 477; T. Gregory, W.M. 605; Ellis Davies, P.M. 605; J. B. MacKenzie, W.M. 1609; T. Wilson, 216; M. Miller, 673; T. Davis, 1182; R. E. Fulton, 1505; E. Briesley, 223; T. F. Chaloner, 477; E. Evans, J.D. 477; A. G. Coveney, S.D. 605; J. Jones, 605; G. Richardson, J.W. 1045; J. Lewis, 1045; S. Ellaby, 605; and E. Chater, 1094. The brethren subsequently banqueted, under the presidency of the W.M., at the Queen's Arms Hotel, and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and cordially responded to. A choice musical programme was also given, and a pleasant evening was spent by the whole of the brethren, who mustered about seventy strong.

HAMPTON COURT.—Burdett Lodge (No. 1293).—The October meeting of the above lodge was held at the Mitre Hotel on Saturday last. Present: Bros. Col. Francis Burdett, P.M., Prov. G.M. Middx.; Rev. David Shaboe, P.G. Chap. Middx., W.M.; Southwell, I.P.M.; R. L. Sindall, S.W.; H. G. Buss, Treas.; D. W. Pearse, P.M., Sec.; Frederick Keily, P.M.; W. D. Kenish, S.D.; Sanders, J.D.; Bindoff, I.G.; Hubbard, George Kenning, Spentley, Kirk, Sadler, Stewart, Forrester, and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A brother was elected a joining member. Bros. Harvey and Smith were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The Secretary read an application from the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for a Steward, whereupon Bro. Kirk offered himself, and Bro. Buss then proposed that the sum of ten guineas be voted from the lodge funds to be placed on the list of Bro. Kirk, which was carried unanimously. This being the day for the election of W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year, a ballot was taken, the result being unanimously in favour of the S.W., Bro. Sindall, for W.M., and Bro. Buss for Treasurer. Three brethren were appointed for the Audit Committee. The brethren afterwards dined together, presided over by the W.M.

LIVERPOOL.—Emulation Lodge (No. 1505).—The annual installation meeting of the members of this capably conducted lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Thursday afternoon, the 23rd ult. There was a very large and highly influential gathering of members and visitors, the latter including Bros. Major Turner, P.P.G. Treas.; Richard Brown, P.M. 241 and 1609, one of the Hon. Secretaries of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution; L. Courtenay, I.P.M. 1609; W. J. Chapman, P.M., M.C. 1609; J. B. MacKenzie, W.M. 1609; and others. Bro. John Capell, who has already fulfilled the duties of the chair in the Pembroke Lodge with complete satisfaction, was on this occasion duly installed W.M. of the Emulation by Bro. J. Hocken, the retiring Master; and the officers invested were Bros. J. Hocken, I.P.M.; H. Coulson, S.W.; R. Foote, J.W.; J. T. Callow, P.G.T., Treasurer (re-elected); H. H. Smith, Secretary; M. Strang, S.D.; J. Irvine, J.D.; H. Morris, P.M., D.C.; Rev. H. G. Vernon, P.G.C., Chaplain; W. S. Banks, I.G.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Organist; T. Blundell, Asst. Org.; P. Thomas, S.S.; W. Roan, J.S.; W. Kritchman, A.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The brethren banqueted after business, and during the evening a valuable gold watch was presented to Bro. Hocken, in recognition of his valuable services to the Emulation Lodge, which occupies a very high position in the Province of West Lancashire. The banquet was most admirably provided by Bro. W. S. Vines, P.P.G.D.C. of the Canton Hotel, Liverpool.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 16th ult., at the Lion Hotel. There were present Bros. Fox, W.M.; Jessett, S.W., W.M. elect; Ockenden, J.W.; E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. of Middx., Treasurer; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middx., Secretary; T. C. Walls, P.G. S.B. of Middx., S.D. (Freemason); Kent, J.D.; Hiscox, I.G.; Moody, D.C.; Day, A.W.S.; J. Hurst, P.G.A.P. of Middlesex, P.M.; J. Hammond, P.G.D. of Middlesex; and Gilbert, P.G.T. of Middx., Tyler. The visitors were Bros. H. E. Francis, P.P.G.D. of Surrey; Rev. C. H. Gem, P.P.G. Chaplain of Cumberland and Westmoreland; H. W. Linton, W.M. 1638; C. Hopekirk, 179; Theokatz, 754; Robinson, 784; McClelland, 901; Pinckney, 1638; and Marvin 1768. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Bro. J. Hammond, who had kindly undertaken the onerous duties of Installing Master. The officers appointed to assist him in the ceremony were Bros. Hopwood as S.W.; Walls as J.W.; Francis as D.C.; and Fox as I.G. The ceremonial was most ably carried out, and at its conclusion a vote of thanks to Bro. J. Hammond, in recognition of his exertions, was carried with acclamation, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The officers appointed and invested for the ensuing year were Bros. Fox, I.P.M.; Ockenden, S.W.; Walls, J.W.; Kent, S.D.; Hiscox, J.D.; Hopwood, Treasurer; W. Hammond, Secretary; Moody, I.G.; Tagg, D.C. (by deputy); Day, W.S.; and Knowles, A.W.S. The W.M., in the name of the lodge, then presented Bro. Fox with a handsome Past Master's jewel, to mark its appreciation of his services. Bro. Fox having acknowledged the honour in a few appropriate sentences, a distressed brother of a neighbouring lodge was relieved to the extent of five guineas. Previously to the lodge being closed the Secretary read a letter from the R.W.P.G.M., apologising for his absence, in consequence of a recent domestic bereavement. The members and visitors then adjourned to an excellent banquet, ably catered for by the new host of ye Lion, Mr. Ballard, and which repast gave general satisfaction. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. announced that it was his intention during his year of office to be exceedingly brief in prefaceing the various toasts—a very laudable resolution, and which course might be copied with advantage by many after-dinner Masonic orators. "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The P.G.M., D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," and "The R.W. P.G.M. of Middlesex," followed in quick succession, and were duly honoured. In giving "The R.W.D.G.M. of Middlesex, and the rest of the P.G. Officers, Present and Past," the W.M. took occasion to congratulate the lodge upon possessing five members who were the fortunate possessors of the Provincial purple. He said that he should couple the toast with the name of the father of the lodge, Bro. William Hammond, P.P.G.D., whose all-round services in the cause of Freemasonry in the province and elsewhere could not be over estimated. This pledge having been greeted with excellent "fire," Bro. Hammond made a modest speech in responding. "The Installing Master" followed, and in reply Bro. John Hammond expressed the gratification it had afforded him that evening in being called upon to discharge the duty of installing the W.M. into the chair of K.S., and that pleasure had been enhanced by the fact that the "work" had been carried out under the eye of his old Masonic tutor, Bro. Francis. "The Health of the W.M." followed. In introducing this—the toast of the evening—Bro. Fox indulged in some very flattering observations. He said that Bro. Jessett had been connected with the lodge from its commencement, he had been most zealous and energetic as an officer, and he felt confident that the work of the lodge would be carried on well under his able Mastership. This toast having been warmly received, the W.M. made a brief but efficient reply. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was fully dealt with by Bros. the Rev. C. H. Gem, Linton, Marvin, and others. The toast of "The Past Masters" came next, and was acknowledged by Bros. Fox, W. Hammond, and Hopwood. In prefaceing "The Health of the Officers," the W.M. was pleased to say that no Master of a lodge could possibly hope to be better officered than he was. He particularly mentioned the name of his S.W., Bro. Ockenden, whose Masonic abilities were widely and deservedly known. He also alluded to the great services of the Treasurer and the Secretary. He said that very few provincial lodges could boast so excellent a balance-sheet as the Hemming Lodge, which showed a surplus of upwards of sixty pounds. This gratifying result was greatly due to the exertions of Bros. Hopwood and W. Hammond, who occupied the positions of Treasurer and Secretary. This toast having been acknowledged, the proceedings terminated with "The Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of Bro. Walls. In the intervals of the toasts Bros. Knowles, Hurst, Pinckney, Raw, and others entertained the brethren with vocalisation.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE (No. 68).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held on Friday, the 24th ult., at the Masonic Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Present: Bros. Barnett, W.M.; Wells, S.W.; Britain, J.W.; J. D. Langton, Sec.; Hogg, Treas.; Williams, S.D.; J. D. Langton, J.D.; Langton, I.G.; J. S. Fraser, Preceptor, pro. tem.; and G. B. Cooper. Lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of the last lodge meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Garland acting as candidate. Bro. Chapman being candidate for the Second Degree, answered the usual questions.

Lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Chapman was passed to the Degree of F.C. Bro. Wells was elected W.M. for the next meeting. The lodge was then closed in due form.

WELLINGTON LODGE (No. 548).—The Fifteen Sections were worked at a meeting of this lodge of instruction, held at the lodge house, the White Swan Hotel, Deptford, on Monday, the 20th ult. Bro. Walter Martin, D.C. of the Southwark Park Lodge, 879, occupied the chair of W.M., and was supported by the following brethren:—Bros. Stephens, P.M. 879, as S.W.; Cattersin, J.W. 548, as J.W.; Hutchings, J.W. 169, and 1531, as S.D.; Hassall, 13, as J.D.; and Lefever, 1531, as I.G. The lodge was opened in the Three Degrees, and being resumed in the First Degree the Sections appertaining thereto were worked as follows:—

FIRST LECTURE.
1st Section ...	Bro. Ross, D.C. 700.
2nd " ...	" Cattersin, J.W. 548.
3rd " ...	" Milbourn, 13.
4th " ...	" Hutchings, J.W. 169, 1531.
5th " ...	" Moss, 1275.
6th " ...	" Stephens, P.M. 879.
7th " ...	" Stephens, P.M. 879.

4th " ...	" G. Andrews, P.M., D.C. 871.
5th " ...	" Taylor.

The lodge having been resumed in the Third Degree the remaining Sections were rehearsed, the First Section by Bro. Gibson, 1531, Hon. Sec. to the lodge; the Second Section by Bro. Griffin, P.M. 933, S.W. 1531, P.Z. 79 and 933, the Preceptor of the lodge; and the Third Section by Bro. Davis, 879. The business of the evening having been thus brought to a satisfactory termination, the lodge was in due time closed, after a unanimous vote of thanks had been passed to the W.M. and the brethren who had assisted him in the working. As a further recognition of the services of Bro. Martin, and of the ability displayed by him in fulfilling the duties of the chair, he was elected a honorary member of the lodge of instruction. It may be added that the working of the Sections was completed in a few minutes less than the stipulated time—three hours—which is usually allotted for the purpose, a fact which affords abundant proof of the ability and promptitude of all concerned.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—This lodge of instruction met on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston. Present: Bros. J. Williams, W.M.; A. R. Olley, S.W.; J. L. Payne, J.W.; J. Lorkin, J.D.; J. Dignam, I.G.; W. Fieldwick, Precep.; C. Lorkin, Treas.; also several other brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. E. Digman being candidate. Bro. C. Lorkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the First, Second, and Third Sections of the Lecture. Bro. W. Fieldwick proposed, and Bro. J. L. Payne seconded, that Bro. A. R. Olley be W.M. for the ensuing week. Carried unanimously. Bro. C. Lorkin proposed, and Bro. J. Marsh seconded, that 150 circulars be printed and dispatched to the members of this lodge of instruction, informing them of the change in the place of meeting. Carried unanimously. The Secretary announced that on Wednesday next, the 5th inst., this lodge would be removed to the Royal Edward Hotel, Triangle, Mare-street, Hackney, on which evening the ceremony of installation would be performed by Bro. W. H. Lee. Nothing further offering, the lodge was closed in ancient form.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The Fifteen Sections were worked by the brethren of the Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298, on Monday, the 27th ult., under the very able direction of Bros. T. Cull, S.W. 1446, W.M.; G. Davis, S.W. 167, S.W.; T. Dickinson, P.M. 1298, J.W.; W. Pennefather, P.M. S.W. 1623, I.P.M.

3rd " ...	" J. H. Powell, S.W. 186.

Better Section working is to be rarely seen, the brethren having been, doubtless, carefully and well trained, and some of them greatly excelling, amongst whom may be mentioned Bros. Cull, Dickinson, Dunn, and Lee. The working of Sections in one another's lodges is greatly on the increase, and, if encouraged, will be one of the best systems in getting near to uniformity of working, besides bringing the various members of the Craft together. The undoubted good feeling amongst Freemasons was fully exemplified on the present occasion, every one vying with each other in displaying brotherly love to all. The Sections completed, the W.M. closed the lodge in the several Degrees, and rose to enquire for the good of Freemasonry. On proposition, many of the visiting brethren joined the lodge, each brother expressing his happiness at joining; also on proposition, the W.M. and S.W. presiding were unanimously elected honorary members of the lodge in acknowledgment of the admirable services rendered to the lodge by their able working. The W.M., in tendering his thanks to the lodge, remarked that it always gave him great pleasure to preside at a meeting of that description, and hoped it would not be the last time the two lodges would meet together; the S.W. also expressed his satisfaction at the honour conferred on him, and reciprocated the sentiments of the W.M. The names of the brethren of the lodge assembled to meet their visitors were Bros. Pennefather, Preceptor; W. Stuart, T. Butt, W. Butt, D. Moss, Lardner, King, Lawrence, Patrick, Silveo, Caton, Greenwood, Renault, Malthouse, Valentine, G. H. Stephens, G. Stevens, Mallett, Hon. Sec.; Dunbar, the regular Tyler of the lodge, being in attendance; and a word of praise is due to the Bros. Butt for the excellence of arrangements made for the comfort of the brethren, considering there was a similar assemblage of brethren in another spacious apartment in the hotel. The labour being ended the W.M. closed the lodge in due form, and the usual greeting amongst friends being ended, the brethren separated after having spent a most enjoyable evening, the muster amounting to close upon forty.

Royal Arch.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 181).—This old chapter held a meeting on the 14th ult., at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, when there were present Comps. P. Robinson, M.E.Z.; J. Mander, H.; T. C. Walls, P.G.D.C. Middx. (Freemason), J.; Duvage, P.Z., S.E.; Harfeld, P.Z., Treas.; Wagner, I.P.Z.; Moss, S.N.; Ellborn, 2nd Asst.; Lowenstark, P.Z.; Holbrook, P.Z.; Gispert, Aucard, Sarsa, Whitby, and Parkinson, Janitor. The minutes of the installation meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of exaltation was most ably rehearsed by the M.E.Z., assisted by his officers. The chapter was shortly afterwards closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. Upon the removal of the cloth the preliminary Royal Arch toasts were done full justice to. "The Health of the M.E.Z." was proposed in a very flattering speech by Comp. Wagner. In his remarks he complimented the chapter upon possessing so very able an exponent of Royal Arch Masonry at the head of its affairs. They had seen that evening the very excellent manner in which the impressive and arduous ceremony of exaltation had been rehearsed by their First Principal, and he hoped that the M.E.Z. would have an early opportunity of performing the "work" of the degree with an actual candidate for Royal Arch mysteries. This toast having been heartily received, the M.E.Z. briefly responded, and immediately gave "The Second and Third Principals," which toast was most ably responded to by Comp. Mander. "The Past Principals" followed. In introducing this toast the M.E.Z. enlarged upon the merits of the long and distinguished array of Past Principals who had successively occupied the chair in the old Jerusalem. They were fortunate that evening in being favoured with the presence of four of that influential body, and he hoped that they, the Past Principals, would be spared many years to come among them. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Comps. Wagner, Lowenstark, and Holbrook briefly replied. In giving "The Treasurer and Scribe E." the M.E.Z. paid a well merited compliment to their worthy and esteemed Comps. Harfeld and Duvage, for the very zealous and able way in which they managed the financial and secretarial duties of their respective positions. He felt convinced that the affairs of the chapter were in very good hands, and he trusted that the chapter would continue for many years to possess the ripe and able judgment which those two worthy companions had brought to bear upon the exigencies of their duties. In response, Comps. Harfeld and Duvage both expressed their thanks to the M.E.Z. for the more than flattering way in which he had prefaceed the toast of their health. They were gratified at witnessing the steady progress which the chapter had made in recent years, both financially and otherwise. They were also pleased to see that the officers, from the M.E.Z. downwards, were so well filled. In conclusion they stated that they would continue to exercise the same interest and zeal as hitherto in the affairs of the chapter. "The Officers" terminated the proceedings, which were agreeably diversified by the vocal efforts of Comps. Robinson, Mander, and others.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Chapter (No. 13).—The usual quarterly meeting of the above chapter took place on Wednesday, the 22nd ult., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, one of the oldest P.Z.'s of the chapter, Comp. Thomas, in the absence of Comp. Pownall, in the chair of Z. The only business before the lodge was the election of officers for the ensuing year, and Comps. Gamble, W. Weston, and E. West were elected to those exalted positions. Comps. Kennedy, as Scribe E.; H. Shaw, as Scribe N.; C. Coupland, Treas., &c., were the other appointments. Among the companions present were Quarter Master Sculley, R.H.A.; Wilkins, Denton, P.Z.; Warren, Deeves, Gaskell, De Gray, Ashford, McDougall, P.Z.; and B. Norman. The business of the evening being concluded, the companions adjourned to Comp. De Gray's house, the Freemason, opposite the Dock-yard Station, where a superbly served banquet awaited them. The usual loyal and Arch Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and a most enjoyable evening spent by all assembled.

BRIGHTON.—Royal Pavilion Chapter (No. 315).—The annual convocation and installation of the Principals of this chapter took place on the 21st ult., when Comp. W. T. Nell was exalted to the position of M.E.Z.;

Masonic Notes and Queries.

CHARLES MARTEL.

It is no doubt true that the words "Charles Martel" do not occur in Matthew Cooke's MS., and so far my esteemed friend Bro. Hughan is perfectly correct (as he generally is), in the "letter." But in the "spirit" of the Guild legend he is, I venture to think, not so, and that Bro. Fort may fairly claim the evidence of Bro. Cooke's MS. For the Charles Martel, or Charles Marshall, can only be the real "Charles Martel" alluded to in the old French Guild Regulations,—quoted by Depping,—and who, the son of Pepin d'Heristal, and born about 689, died in 742. The fact brought out is in this old tradition, that, like Athelstan, he gave privileges and charters to the operative Guilds. It is impossible to rely too much on the mere "dicta" of Guild legends, which often betray confusion, and are marked by anachronisms. Suffice it for us if the salient points remain intact and matters of historical fact. Such I conceive to be the case as regards "Carolus Secundus," by whom, indeed, the Masonic scribe may mean the actual Charles the Second who made many regulations for various bodies. But Charles Martel is the person to whom the old Guild Traditions assigns the patronage of the "Craft." If we understand the old Norman French rightly, he made the "Maçons" free of taxes and military service. Bro. Hughan is quite right, therefore, in saying that no mention of "Charles Martel" nominatum occurs in the Halliwell or Cooke MSS., but there is in Cooke's MS. a reference to a French King Charles, or Carolus Secundus, who, in all probability answers, (as no other is known or alluded to), to the Charles Martel of the prose constitutions. The earliest prose constitution in which "Charles Martel" is found is Dowland's, if its antiquity can be maintained, and there the words "Charles Martel" are found, in conjunction with a certain "Mamus Græcus," whoever he may really be. In the Lansdown we have the words "Charles Marshall." I note Bro. Gould's remarks, and will allude to them again (D.V.) next week.

THE QUATUOR CORONATI.

I hope to publish in the December number of the "Masonic Magazine" the Martyrology in the Arundel MSS., in Latin and English, and which is a 12th century MS. The names of the Coronati occur in the Sarum Missal, 11th century, and as that was based on others, we probably go back to the 8th century. But what I am anxious to know is, which is the earliest MS. Service Book known in which the names are to be found? The mere fact of the pious legend being well known in the 11th century is an answer to my good friend Bro. Findell's theory of the German origin of English Masonry. Rome is again the source of the Christian legend as of the operative Guilds, and this very fact becomes an historical point of no little importance.

THE MELROSE MS. No. 2.

In the Freemason for September 13th, 1879, the date 1583 should be 1674, the former being an unaccountable error. The facts are these—The Melrose MS. is a transcript made in December, 1674 (by, apparently, Andro Mein) from a still older MS. of A.D. 1581, or earlier. The record at the end of the MS. of 1581 is the only clue at present to the date of the original, but of course may have been added some years after the original MS. itself was written. The addition is simply a certificate from a "Master Free Mason" to Robert Wincester, a Mason, and probably refers to the latter having completed his time as an Apprentice, A.D. 1581. This MS., which we style Melrose MS. No. 1 of 1581, was transcribed in the Records of the Melrose Lodge during the first four days of December, 1674, by "A. M." (Andro Mein), and is so dated, "Anno MDCLXXIII." The "Melrose MS. No. 1" is still untraced, but the copy of 1674 is the one discovered by our indefatigable Bro. Vernon, of Kelso, from whom I have had the foregoing particulars, and I desire to have it known by the name of the "Melrose MS. No. 2." I am now anxiously waiting for Bro. Vernon's careful transcript of the latter MS., and trust that these facts, brief, because all we have at present, will serve to correct the errors kindly pointed out by Bro. "W. P. B."

W. J. HUGHAN.

"THE HOLY MARTYRES FOURE."

Referring to the "Masonic Cyclopædias" respectively edited by Bros. Woodford and Kenneth Mackenzie, I find the earliest reference to this legend recorded by the former under date of the eleventh, and by the latter under date of the fifteenth century. In a former note I have shown the actual existence of the tradition at Canterbury in the seventh century, and now submit a few remarks from which it may not unreasonably be inferred that a belief in the "four blessed coronati" was prevalent in Britain some centuries earlier. Bro. Mackenzie ("Royal Masonic Cyclopædia"), quoting, I imagine, from the "Roman Breviary" of 1474, assigns Nov. 8, A.D. 287, as the date of martyrdom. This, though coinciding with the era of St. Alban's decapitation, given by writers of the Craft, is scarcely historically correct. Gibbon says ("Decline and Fall," vol. 2, p. 458)—"Notwithstanding a celebrated era of martyrs has been deduced from the accession of Diocletian (284), the new policy, introduced by that prince, continued, during more than eighteen years, to breathe the mildest and most liberal spirit of religious toleration." This writer, therefore (at p. 468), places the first edict against the Christians (tempus Diocletian) at February 24th, A.D. 303. The author of "The Life of St. Alban," in the "Biographia Britannica," likewise dates his martyrdom at 303. The prosecution of the Christians was very thorough everywhere but in Britain; their immunity from repression in these islands being due to the clemency of Constantius, of whom Gibbon (p. 478) observes—"The provinces of Gaul (under which we may probably include those of Britain) were indebted for the singular tranquillity which they enjoyed to the gentle interposition of their sovereign." It is, therefore, I think, fairly deducible that churches in honour of the victims of A.D. 303 would most probably be first of all erected in that part of the empire where a spirit of toleration alone prevailed. According to Mr. Cooté ("Romans in Britain," p. 414) "St. Germanus visited the martyrdom of St. Alban at Verulamium in the fifth century;" and this learned writer not only dates the Christianity of our island from the epoch of St. Alban's martyrdom (A.D. 303), but adduces abundant evidence in favour of its continuation and perpetuation down to the arrival of St. Augustine. Of the sudden stoppage of the fire, which ravaged the city of Canterbury, A.D. 619-624, on its reaching the martyrdom of the "four blessed coronati," Mr. Cooté (at p. 420) observes:—"Now Bede's account of the circumstance demonstrates one of two facts—either the martyrdom contained the bodies of the saints, or the martyrdoms had taken place upon the spot where the church was afterwards built. But in either case the martyrdom must have been erected about the time when the work of Satan was committed." This writer seems to be of opinion that the martyrdom of the "coronati" was of home manufacture. A passage, however, cited by him on a previous page of his work (419) will make his meaning clearer:—"By Canon 14 of the 19th Council of Carthage, no church could be built for martyrs, except there were on the spot either the body or some certain relics, or where the origin of some habitation or possession, or passion of the martyr had been transmitted from a most trustworthy source."

R. F. GOULD.

I recently came across a part of the title page of a Masonic work, on which was "The only genuine edition—Jachin and Boaz; or, an Authentic Key to the Door of Freemasonry, both Ancient and Modern." On the margin, in pencil, "1812." Can you inform me if this is a well-known book, and of any value or otherwise?

PRINCE LEOPOLD AT OXFORD.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Oxfordshire took place at Oxford on Wednesday, the 29th ult. The Prov. Grand Master, H.R.H. Prince Leopold accompanied by his Private Secretary, arrived at Oxford, at 2.15 on Tuesday, and proceeded to his rooms in Christ Church. On Wednesday afternoon the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in the Apollo University Masonic Hall, H.R.H. presiding, when the usual Masonic business was transacted and the officers for the ensuing year were appointed and invested. All the lodges in the province were well represented, there being a large attendance of Past Masters and brethren. The annual banquet took place in the Clarendon Assembly Rooms in the evening, which was also well attended, and the proceedings throughout were of a very interesting character. We shall give a full report in our next issue.

MASONIC FUNERAL AT PLUMSTEAD.

The mortal remains of Bro. Robert Lister, one of the oldest members of the Pattison Lodge, No. 913, for some five years past Tyler of the lodge, were conveyed to their last resting place at Old Plumstead Church yard on Saturday, the 25th ult., in the presence of a large assembly of the brethren of the district and friends, who in life knew his sterling qualities as a man and a brother, and who sorrowed for him in death. Our dear brother was only 48 years of age, and occupied an important position at Messrs. Siemens, Bros., the distinguished telegraphists and electricians at Charlton, near Woolwich, and we may say in reference to his position of Tyler to the Pattison Lodge, that he merely filled the office through his love for Masonry. The emoluments arising from the office were in no instance received by him, but were handed over to a brother, who holds several similar positions in the Woolwich district. Bro. Lister was a native of Leeds, in Yorkshire, and had been employed in Her Majesty's Arsenal for many years. He was in his earlier days one of the best bowlers in Woolwich, and many an old cricketing brother living around the Metropolis will remember poor Robert's "left hand twisters." He was one of the eleven Englishmen some seventeen years ago chosen to play against an eleven of the inhabitants of Boulogne, in France, and to his fine bowling the victory achieved by the "perfidious Albions" was by both friends and foes attributed.

Among those assembled around his grave were, of his own lodge, Bros. Lloyd, W.M.; C. Coupland, P.M. and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; E. Denton, Sec., and P.P.P.Kent; T. D. Hayes, P.M.; Widgery, Day, Capon, Allen, Ozer, Joskey, Watts, Grant, Ginman, Mabbett, and Jarvis. Of the Union Waterloo, No. 13, Bros. N. Brown, S.W.; H. Syer, J.W.; Hodgkisson, P.M.; and J. Bell. Of the Cornwallis Lodge, Bros. Harger and Peschlar. Of the Capper Lodge, Bros. Knox, P.M., and Risch. Of the Sydney Lodge, Bros. Moulder, S.W., and Coombes. Bros. Gregg, Franklin, and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason).

There was a large concourse assembled, and the principal foremen and employes at Messrs. Siemens followed in procession the funeral cortège; and so has gone to his rest a good man and a good Mason, kind, generous, and loving; his memory will ever be green in the hearts of his sorrowing family, friends, and brothers in Plumstead—aye, and wherever and to whom he was known in both private and Masonic life.

Comp. G. Smith, as H.; and Comp. S. T. Foat, as J. The following junior officers were also installed: Comps. A. J. Hawkes, S.E.; G. Nash, S.N.; R. J. Pope, P.S.; W. H. Gibson and T. Packham, A.S. The chapter being closed, the companions partook of a sumptuous banquet, served in Messrs. Sayers and Marks' best style. Among those present at the dinner table were Comps. H. Davey (Mayor of Brighton), J. H. Scott, P.Z. (Deputy Grand Master of Sussex); V. P. Freeman, P.Z., Prov. G. Sec.; J. W. Stride, P.Z.; W. Huds., P.Z.; W. Smith, P.Z.; Day, M.E.Z. Royal Sussex; Watts, M.E.Z. Hartington; Henty, M.E.Z. Cyrus; R. H. Ellman, M.E.Z. South Saxon; C. J. Smith, M.E.Z. Yarborough; Farncombe (Lewes); W. T. Clarke, J. Ridge, W. Smithers, R. T. Nye, Sturt Weston, Sayers, Marks, and others. The usual toasts were given and heartily received, and an exceedingly pleasant evening was passed.

DARTFORD.—High Cross Chapter (No. 829).—The installation meeting of the above chapter took place on Tuesday, the 21st ult., at the Bull Hotel, Bro. Bray's house, and was a most successful and pleasant gathering. The chapter has for its M.E.Z. one of the most popular and respected Masons in Kent, viz., Comp. the Rev. W. A. Hill, G. Chaplain England and Kent, while among its ranks are numbered such Masons as Comps. C. Andrews, W. Russell, Flaxmen Spurrell, T. J. Barnes, G. M. E. Snow, and T. Smith, names in Kent as familiar as household words. The chapter was opened at 3.30 precisely by the M.E.Z., Bro. Hill; C. Andrews, as H.; and H. S. Thompson, J. Among the officers and companions present were the following:—Comps. W. Russell, P.Z., Scribe E.; T. J. Barnes, P.Z.; R. Russell, Scribe N.; A. Spencer, P.S.; F. Spurrell, 1st Asst. S.; H. Potter, 2nd A.S.; H. S. Neate, 2nd A.S.; T. Smith, P.Z.; G. Martin, Janitor; R. French, T. R. Cnapman, W. Hicks, T. W. A. Meah, J. Spurge, C. Stratford, G. Churchley, B. K. Sharpe, P.G.H.; and C. Jolly (Freemason). The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. J. Allud, 615, and Bro. G. W. Mitchell, 700, which proving unanimous they, with Bros. T. W. Wallis and J. E. Meredith, who had been previously approved of, were, with the usual ceremonies, exalted to the Sublime Degree of Royal Arch Masons. The report of the Audit Committee having been received, and proclaimed very satisfactory, the installation of the Principals and officers took place as follows: Comps. C. Andrews, Z.; H. G. Thompson, H.; R. Russell, J.; R. P. Atkins, Treas.; W. Russell, P.Z., S.E.; A. Spencer, S.N. The whole of the beautiful ceremonies were splendidly worked, Comp. Barnes aiding materially by his perfect knowledge of the ritual. The business being concluded, the chapter was duly closed in solemn prayer, and the companions adjourned to a superbly served banquet, specially prepared by Comp. Bray for the occasion. The usual loyal and Arch Masonic toasts having been enthusiastically honoured, that of "Lord Holmesdale, the G.S. of Kent," was given in eulogistic terms by Comp. Andrews. He said every Mason in the province heard the name with reverence and respect. Since his lordship had taken an interest in Masonry it had increased greatly, and Royal Arch Masonry had under his lordship's guidance taken great strides in the province. He asked them to drink the toast with all the enthusiasm it deserved. To the toast of "The Grand Officers of the Province, Present and Past," Comp. Barnes, whose name was coupled with it, replied, and thanked them for the hearty manner in which they had received it. He thought they perhaps might have let him off and placed the honour of it in the hands of Comp. Thompson, who had been sufficiently long in office to take the responsibility upon his own shoulders. In the course of a most able address, Comp. Barnes was repeatedly cheered, and gave way to Comp. Hill, who rose to propose the toast of the evening, that of "The M.E.Z., Comp. Andrews." He said nothing gave him more gratification than to have the privilege of proposing the toast. He was now about to ask the companions to do honour to it—it was that of their esteemed M.E.Z., who that day had achieved the highest position in the chapter. That was not the first occasion by a great many that they had had the opportunity of meeting Comp. Andrews, and it was totally unnecessary for him to say that he (Comp. Andrews) was second to none in carrying out any and every duty entrusted to him, especially in Freemasonry. In the High Cross Chapter they only would have good men as their officers, and they looked for efficiency in their M.E.Z. He felt this Comp. Andrews had earned, and trusted he might be spared for many years to enjoy the respect and esteem in which he was held, not only by every member of that chapter but by every Mason in the Province of Kent. Comp. Andrews, in response, expressed his regret that ill-health had prevented him not having the opportunity of being with them during the last two years so much as he should have liked. He looked forward to the time when he should be so enabled to carry out the high duties placed in his hands as would cause them never to regret having placed him there. During the time Comp. Hill had held the position he now occupied he had honoured and dignified it. He should endeavour to follow in his footsteps, and if he did so he should have no fear of their approval at the expiration of his term of office. "The Exaltees" were then toasted and responded. An excellent address from Comp. Russell followed the toast of "The Officers of the High Cross Chapter." Comp. Jolly returned thanks for "The Visitors," and shortly after the proceedings closed.

The first meeting since the consecration of the Duke of Cornwall Lodge, No. 1839, was held at the Freemasons' Hall on Thursday last, Bro. J. W. Brooke, W.M., presiding. During the evening Bro. Lieut.-Col. Shadwell H. Clerke ably delivered the Lecture on the Second Tracing Board. A full report will appear in our next.

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1879.

H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD AT SHEFFIELD.

All the members of our Craft will be deeply pleased with the appearance and utterances of their distinguished brother at Sheffield. As W.M. of the Lodge of Antiquity, as Prov. G.M. of Oxfordshire, as P.G.W. of England, H.R.H. comes before our loyal Craft, invested with all the attributes which add incentives to loyal regard and Masonic sympathy. Like our Royal Family in general, Prince Leopold never forgets that he too, despite his high rank, has not to lead an idle life, merely a "denizen of palaces," but that he is a worker in the great hive of our industrious community. And, therefore, it is that our English people, always indulgent and ever sympathetic, rejoice to see him making use of his high talents and many gifts, "pro bono publico," ready to assist in all efforts, when the state of his health permits, which tend either to the development of art, the furtherance of science, the spread of education, or the cultured progress of civilized humanity. Prince Leopold seems to have a special career marked out for him in the providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., alike honourable to himself and beneficial to society, and which obtains for him the marked approval and applause of all thinking persons amongst us. Inheriting in signal measure many of the tastes and ideas of his lamented father, if debarred from a more active life, he has time, happily, to devote to subjects which, whether utilitarian or ornate, are ever helpful here to the best interests of peace and progress, and serve to consolidate and cement in one homogeneous pyramid the different orders and separated classes of society. When the late Prince Consort, in one of his best and most comprehensive speeches, gave us the golden opinion that the "interests of the most widely contrasted classes are identical," he not only struck a chord which vibrated through the active sympathies of society and thought, but he offered us the key note, let us hope and trust, to the eventual harmonies of advancing and intelligent civilization. To us, as Freemasons, the same teaching always comes home, as it is the ground work, so to say, of our whole Masonic building, and is one which serves to compact and cement our Order with those loyal, and yet fraternal emotions which colour all our professions, which dominate, or ought to dominate, at any rate, all our practice. With the immediate work, in which Prince Leopold took so honourable and distinguished a part, we shall, as Freemasons, also heartily sympathize. To Mr. Mark Firth the best thanks of all are due for having sought among the crowded masses of our countrymen to place the means of shelter, instruction, and recreation within the reach of the humblest and poorest of us all, to open out a path for honest industry, and to offer rewards for happy intelligence and hard working zeal. As Freemasons, preferring light to darkness, religion to superstition, cultivation to ignorance, we shall rejoice in all undertakings which subserve the great end of intellectual cultivation, which seek or serve to "encourage industry and reward merit," and we are glad to read the words and note the presence of our exalted Bro. Prince Leopold at such memorable gatherings, and in so goodly, and peaceful, and fraternal a warfare.

THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND AND THE GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC.

It seems from the last report of the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Quebec that the "position" in this serious controversy remains unchanged. The Grand Lodge of Quebec appears also desirous of commencing a similar angry discussion with the Grand Lodge of England, but which if the Grand Lodge of England is wise it will decline to carry on. Forewarned is forearmed, and the position of the Grand Lodge of England in the matter is so legally and constitutionally unassailable, that its best recourse, in our opinion, is dignified reserve and silence. As regards the question at issue we note with pleasure that our contemporary, the New York Dispatch, in its Masonic sheet, admits that the original position of the Scotch lodges was right and the course of the Grand Lodge of Quebec wrong, for it denied the absolute and alienable privilege of the Scottish Lodges warranted by the Grand Lodge of Scotland to retain their lawful connection, if they so willed it, with their mother G. Lodge. This is what we have always contended to be the real "Crux" in the whole matter, and on this point we have never doubted for one moment what is the law, as we have often ventured to explain. It is a most important question thus raised, rashly and unwisely, we think, by the Grand Lodge of Quebec, namely, the very reality, legality, and independence of all lodge existence. How far the Grand Lodge of Scotland is wise or unwise, right or wrong, in setting up a Prov. Grand Lodge is not for us to decide. It is but fair, however, to the Grand Lodge of Scotland to say that it has only acted after great provocation, after its ancient organization had been practically "excommunicated" with almost Ultramontane violence of expression, and its attached and faithful members in Canada deprived of their normal privileges as Masons, and held up to universal odium and blame. Under these circumstances it has a moral and Masonic right, we think, to throw its "ægis" over the faithful brethren who hail from "Auld Reekie," and are loyal and steadfast to the principles and centre of Scottish Masonry. We see with much regret that the "Keystone" does not go along with us in the matter. So far we have been like Masonic Siamese twins, and we fear for this "severance" in the best interests of Freemasonry.

MOST UNSOUND MASONIC TEACHING.

Our attention has been called by a Masonic contemporary in the United States to a speech reported in the "Chaine d'Union" for September last, (edited by our esteemed confrère Hubert), to which our friend takes most serious exception, and which we also feel bound as honest journalists, and, above all, in the interests of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, at once to animadvert upon and protest against. Indeed, remembering Bro. Hubert's known views on the subject, and that of many sympathetic French brethren, we confess we are surprised and grieved to read such an "Oration" reported in the "Chaine d'Union," without a note of warning, as it is the duty of all Freemasons at once to repudiate such teaching in the most emphatic terms, as contrary to common sense and injurious to Freemasonry everywhere. It seems that our good Bro. Hubert reproduced in the "Chaine d'Union," from the "Reveil de la Dordogne," an account of a "Masonic feast at Perigueux," in the words which follow. Knowing from personal experience how often reports slip in, and how difficult it is to keep out the very passages which ought not to appear, we are inclined to look upon this paragraph as one of those little "accidents" to which the best of editors are liable. Sure we are that the sentiments are not those of Bro. Hubert. But now for the statement. "Last Sunday, the Feast of the Summer-Solstice brought together, in the Masonic Temple of the Rue Saint-Front, the members who constitute the lodge, and a great number, from all points of the department, who had taken advantage of the general invitation, happy to strengthen the ties which unite them, especially to their brothers of Perigueux. After the labours of the day, during which three new Freemasons received light, a banquet took place in the vast park, which, however, proved too small to receive the numerous guests who had flocked together to cement, in a fraternal love-feast, the reciprocal feelings of strong solidarity which animate them. Seldom has it fallen to our lot to be present at a more brilliant Masonic feast. At the beginning of the banquet, the Orator arose from his chair, and delivered the following address, which we are happy to be able to reproduce: 'In our ancient love-feasts, the Orator began by inviting you to place your labour under the authority and protection of the Great Architect of the Universe. That invocation, nowadays, has ceased to be regular. But if the formula was obliged to disappear, you have already admitted, on a former occasion, that we should preserve its fundamental idea and thought. Henceforth, the tradition is established in our lodge to replace the antiquated invocation by a simple reminding by the Orator of the always sublime character of our unions. In fact, my brothers, whatsoever may be the nature of the labour to which we are going to apply ourselves in the courts of the Temple, we should never forget what we are, and what we always should remain—seekers of ideas, men devoted to the labour of thought. For a certainty there is room for all here; there is room for all those, at least, who possess the good-will to study the great questions relating to the origin and destiny of man, his faculties, and consequently the institutions which must govern him. But the Great Architect of the Universe does not preside over our work any longer. The time has passed when we worked with fear under the timid forms of religion. Finally, disengaged, we clearly perceive, to-day, that we do not belong to those who, in the great and incontestable harmony of Christian Spiritualism, think themselves able to cut all difficulties at once by faith alone. In spite of the torments, caused by the painful labour of doubt, and by the honest investigation of truth, we strive to rest as free-thinkers in the safe harbour of sure, positive opinions, independent in philosophy, in morals, and in politics. In this research, my brothers, we have no longer faith for a guide, nor the Great Architect of the Universe for a Master. Our only means, our only tool is reason. Reason is the secret light which illuminates and fecundates our labour. Reason is the great witness towards which we should incessantly and on every occasion elevate our minds and our hearts. In consequence, my brother, you will not be offended if your Orator takes the liberty to recommend to you—not forgetting himself—at the moment that we are going to sit down at this table of equality and fraternity, to preserve from all dethroning a faculty which elevates and ennobles human nature to so high a degree, and to watch, with a most jealous care, over the most precious and fragile instrument of our labour—our Reason." Such is the speech, and, as our readers will see, a very disagreeable speech it is, to look at it from our reverent Masonic point of view. Our American contemporary says of it, "The specially noticeable feature of this oration is its rank atheism. It discards the Great Architect of the Universe and faith, and for its god sets up reason. It proclaims the desirability of seeking ideas and of being devoted to thought, but ignores the fountain of wisdom, the source of true ideas and correct thought. It proclaims that there is room in this field for all who study the great questions concerning the origin and destiny of man, but denies his origin and destiny, that from God he came, and unto God he is to return. It puts away from the work of the Craft the Great Architect; accounts His wisdom, skill, and designs of no use or consequence, and without compass, rudder, captain, or pilot, launches boldly out on the seas of materialism and nihilism. It prates of honest investigation of truth, and yet shuts from its vision the author of truth—the being who is its Master, and without whom truth cannot exist, for He is truth, and only in, and by, and through Him, can it be revealed and discerned." And we feel, as we write with the speeches before us to-day, not only how true are our contemporary's words, but how repugnant to the whole teaching of Freemasonry are such avowals and assertions. And here is the great danger which permeates and envenoms French Freemasonry. Once let Anglo-Saxon Freemasons believe firmly that henceforth such teaching is to be paramount in Masonic addresses in France and Belgium, there will be nothing left for our honest Craft but utter repudiation of sentiments and theories against which Freemasonry offers a solemn protest, and to which its entire teaching is in open opposition. As in all movements which loosen either the influence of religion or weaken the links of order, at first often the specious clap-net and insidious proposition ensnare the unwary and mislead the unreflecting, until at last the gulf opens out before them when they least expect it, when retreat is impossible, when they have "burnt their boats and their bridges," and fear overpowers vacillation, and presumption masters timidity. And thus the result is very different from the proposed beginning; reality, alas, widely antagonistic to anticipation. We cannot, as honest English Freemasons, too solemnly protest against such unsound, unwise, and insane teaching, or too affectionately warn our foreign brethren against the dangers of their course, and the inevitable end of all such unjustifiable infidelity. To substitute the Goddess of Reason for T.G.A.O.T.U. is in itself, despite its utter childishness, not only a crime and a misdemeanour of the deepest dye, but it is practically high treason to the great and reverent, the universal, and beneficent declarations of true Cosmopolitan Freemasonry.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

We understand that some negotiations are on foot with respect to the purchase of some adjoining property. We feel sure that such a purchase will be for the best interests of the School, both for its safety in respect of building and for the health and convenience of the inmates. We hope to hear that the arrangements will be speedily completed.

TRURO CATHEDRAL AND THE FREEMASONS.

[The following, which has been addressed to our contemporary the Western Morning News, will be of interest to many of our readers.]

Sir,—
Under the head of "Cornish Facts and Notions," I see a statement made by a Truro correspondent, I trust not a Mason, in to-day's issue of your valuable paper, to the effect that the reason my motion at last Provincial Grand Lodge relative to the Freemasons assisting in the erection of Truro Cathedral was withdrawn, was, that I was not a Cornishman of eminence; and that in order to ensure success in carrying such a motion we must get our Provincial Grand Master, the Earl of St. Germans, or any Cornish Mason of eminence to bring it forward. It is true, sir, I am not eminent, nor yet a Cornishman (more's the pity), but I will yield to none in zeal for the Order to which I am proud to belong, and as Masonry is universal, and cosmopolitan, and not provincial, I am loth to believe that Cornishmen are so narrow minded, especially amongst the Masonic fraternity, that they will refuse to support an effort, no matter how excellent in itself, simply because it is not suggested or initiated by a Cornishman of eminence. Let me also say that your correspondent is wrong in thinking I am wedded entirely to the scheme of putting in a window in the new edifice, or that the proposition for a Committee to collect subscriptions was withdrawn altogether at the last meeting. I distinctly gave notice that I should bring forward the question at the next and subsequent Provincial Grand Lodges until the proposition was carried, and if I am spared I intend so to do. If the Freemasons of Gloucester could give a reredit to their cathedral, for which they paid £1300, restore the west front of Bath Abbey at a cost of some £3000, and only lately restore the 13th Century Chapel in Tewkesbury Abbey (all honour to them!), I venture to hope that the Masons of Cornwall will take to themselves a lesson in the noble text, "Go and do thou likewise."

The Masons of Bristol restored the Lady Chapel at St. Mary Redcliffe Church, at their own charge, and helped in the restoration or re-building of the nave of their cathedral. The Masons of Durham have put a beautiful stained glass window, in memory of their Provincial Grand Master, in their cathedral. The Masons of Brecon are going to defray the cost of the Bishop's Throne in their cathedral, and I see no reason why the Freemasons of Devon and Cornwall should not copy so noble an example, although the idea has been first suggested by so humble an individual as myself.

I shall be only too proud to withdraw my motion at next Provincial Grand Lodge when I find any noble lord, or other Masonic luminary, ready to take it up in my place.

Should a subscription list be open for the Masons of Cornwall and Devon, I for one, though only a poor civil servant, will gladly put my name down for £50 in five annual payments of £10 each. Will 500 out of the 1700 Masons in Cornwall do the same, or will fifty? Apologising for trespassing on your valuable space,
I remain, yours fraternally,

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
In your last number, on page 424, I note the paragraph commencing "A correspondent writes." As an old Mason, initiated under the rules of the Grand Lodge of England, wherein we are taught to consider the Bible as our unerring guide, it is our duty to show in every possible way we can that great quality in the Book on which we base our faith.

It is with this view I beg to introduce to your notice the astronomical calculations and archaeological researches of my friend and brother Mason, Robert Greaves, which tend to confirm our belief in that sacred volume as the revealed word of God to man, refute the ignorant, and those who ignore the belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. as the fundamental groundwork on which to base Freemasonry.

LAUGHTON CHURCH TOWER RESTORATION FUND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
I am compelled to appeal to the public on behalf of the Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D. (Vicar of Laughton-by-Gainsborough, Lincolnshire), who, to the surprise of everybody who heard the evidence and the summing up of the judge, was made personally liable at the late Lincoln Assizes for the repairs of the Church Tower of Laughton. The sum claimed by the builder (including damages £600) was £889 15s. 5d., which was increased by the legal charges of the plaintiff (£121) to £1000 15s. 5d. These amounts were reduced by the special arbitrator appointed by the judge who tried the case (Henry Goddard, Esq., diocesan architect, Lincoln), from £889 15s. 5d. to £181, only £2 being allowed for damages instead of £600. The law charges were brought down to £80 from £121. The sum required to meet this liability and to save Dr. Ace from absolute ruin (including law expenses, &c., £138) is about £400, of which £120 has already been raised. The Rev. Dr. Ace has no private means; he is sixty-seven years of age, and conducts three services on Sunday without assistance. The net income of the united parishes of Laughton and Wildsworth, of which he is vicar, is only £223. The churches are three miles apart, which distance he has to walk, the income not being sufficient to supply him with means of conveyance. The repairs of the church tower, for which the Doctor has been made by this decision entirely responsible, were absolutely necessary to save the fabric from destruction.

As in the present state of the law church rates are not compulsory, and as the parishioners, who are farmers and farm labourers, have already contributed £70, and are not in a position (owing to the present depression in agriculture) to render any further help, I am compelled, on behalf of Dr. Ace, to appeal to the generosity of the public to rescue an old and efficient minister of the gospel from a position of great distress and anxiety.

The sheriff's officers have been put in his house; his library and effects have been sold, and he is threatened with sequestration of his living.

I am confident that a clergyman of the Church of England will not be abandoned in his hour of need, or allowed to suffer utter pecuniary ruin through his having (in his anxiety to preserve the ancient and venerable edifice in which he ministers) incurred a debt not in any way for his own personal benefit, but wholly for the preservation of the House of the Lord.

Contributions have already been received (amongst others) from Further contributions will be thankfully received by the Vicar and Churchwardens of Laughton, Messrs. Smith, Ellis, and Co., Bankers, Gainsboro, or by Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Smith, Lombard-street, London.

Apologising for troubling you, I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

W. H. SAUNDERS, P.P.G.S.D. Midx.

A CAUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
By inserting the following you may save many brethren and lodges from being imposed upon.

A person, calling himself Thomas Bissett, late sergeant in H.M. 72nd Highlanders, has been endeavouring to obtain money from brethren in Southsea and Portsmouth. He has lately been released "on license" from Woking Prison, has in his possession five certificates of character, neatly bound, evidently for begging purposes, and a certificate lately signed by me and the Secretary of my lodge, No. 126, S.C. Thomas Bissett, then a sergeant in the above regiment, was initiated, &c., in 1855, in Lodge St. Andrew's, No. 126, S.C., and the person alluded to may be Thomas Bissett; but a brother in Southsea with whom I have had some correspondence anent him, and who, with others, examined him, is not satisfied that he is. From correspondence I have had with Bissett (?), the Governor of Woking Prison, and the Southsea brother referred to, I am convinced that brethren and lodges should be thoroughly satisfied of his (Bissett's) integrity and identity before assisting him. Should any brother have the opportunity of doing so, I should like him to write across the face of the certificate granted by me to Bissett (?) the words "I find the bearer unworthy"—if he thinks he is.

To give the history of my correspondence with the persons above referred to would occupy too much of your space.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,
THOMAS SCOTT,
I.P.M. 384; R.W.M. 126. (S.C.)
Kilmarnock, 27th Oct., 1879.

Reviews.

PLAY GRAMMAR. By MISS CORNER; DOG TRAY'S TRAVELS; THE WHITE CATS OF YORK. Dean and Son, 160A, Fleet-street.

We have received the three books mentioned above, and have looked over them with much interest and approval. The "Grammar," which has gone through sixteen editions, of 2000 each, has been entirely revised, and we commend it conscientiously to the notice of all our young friends as affording alike information and amusement, and being easily digested by the mental assimilation of the young and very healthy food. The new Royal series of toy books is likely to be very popular from the two specimens mentioned above, which are highly commendable in themselves, and reflect great credit on the publisher. They are very effective in appearance, and are likely to amuse and attract.

It may interest some of our readers to know that Messrs. Dean and Son fairly claim credit for the fact that the "illustrations" are much better executed, being printed in chromo, than those usually provided for "children's books," and that "the books are sewn along the entire length, so that nothing short of deliberate tearing will destroy the leaves." Remembering the humble picture books of our youth, we almost say with a sigh, "Ah mihi prae teritis si referet Jupiter annos," and are inclined to envy the youthful generation such pleasant companions for the sportive or idle hour.

DICTIONARY OF THE THAMES FROM OXFORD TO THE NORE. By CHARLES DICKENS. 26, Wellington-street.

We welcomed Bro. Dickens's "Dictionary of London" when it appeared, and we hail this new contribution of his to-day just as we are prepared, like Roman citizens, to say "Salve," to his "Dictionary of Paris" when it appears in good time. We think Bro. Dickens is doing good by these handy, useful, "unconventional" handbooks. For it is astonishing what an amount of ignorance still exists, even among educated people, as to the streets and "purlieus" of our "little village," and how much more the stretch from "Oxford to the Nore," is a "terra incognita" actually to ordinary mortals. And yet in these days of athletic exercises, of "muscular Christianity," at an epoch when Cook's cosmopolitan trips are becoming stale, and Gaze's European journeys are becoming rapid, it seems a reasonable excuse of time and temper, a proper development of money and patience, to search out the nooks and corners of the "old country," and to realize that instead of a "cheap trip" to Boulogne or Hamburg, or Mount Blanc, or even Paris,—yes, even Paris,—it would be better for us if we realized what charms good Father Thames, and our fair country side have for the pedestrian tour or the family expedition. There are aspects and scenes of beauty, nature, and interest in Great Britain, which we may defy the world to equal or surpass. Here we see, or we think we see, in these little books, which is the same thing, a wish to superinduce a knowledge of, and taste for, home realities and English life; a wish to remove ignorance and impart information, equally creditable to the author as a "litterateur" and a Freemason, and, therefore, we warmly welcome them. We have ourselves turned over the pages of the new handbook with much pleasure. We have found a good deal of interesting information in it, and we cannot help hoping that with the idea it appears to us to suggest, and the love of country it traces so effectively, when summer again brings us green meads and "sighing trees," many a pleasant jaunt may be organized, which will not only bring out the great capabilities of the Thames for personal and intellectual enjoyment, but will make many better acquainted with the resources of their own country than they are at present, in respect of a needful holiday or mental recreation. The handbook will also be useful to yachting men, and then—yes, oh! then—it only costs "one bob!" As Captain Cuttle says, "When found make a note of it."

JUBILEE CELEBRATION OF THE HERTFORD LODGE, No. 403.

A lodge of emergency in connection with the Hertford Lodge of Freemasons was held in the Shire Hall, Hertford, on Tuesday, the 21st ult., followed by a banquet in the Assembly Room, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the lodge.

The proceedings were rendered the more interesting and remarkable from the fact that they also served to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the membership of Bro. Stephen Austin, sen., the Worshipful Master of the lodge for the present term.

There was a large attendance of members, and several visitors from all parts of the country were also present.

After the transaction of the routine business of the lodge, Bro. T. S. Carter, P.M., P.G.J.W., in the name of the members of the lodge, presented Bro. Austin with a handsome dining-room clock, a pair of antique bronze ewers, and an address illuminated and framed, of which the following is a copy:—

"To the Worshipful Bro. Stephen Austin, P.P.G. Sup. Wks. Herts, W.M. and P.M. of the Hertford Lodge, No. 403.

"We, the members of the Hertford Lodge, No. 403, upon the occasion of celebrating its jubilee, most fraternally request your acceptance of the accompanying time-piece as a slight token of our esteem and regard, and as a memento of your having been one of our first initiated members. We congratulate you upon the completion of your 50th year in Freemasonry, knowing that you have been during those years a continuous subscribing member of one and the same lodge—a fact unprecedented in the annals of the Craft. We earnestly trust that the Great Architect of the Universe will in His infinite wisdom grant you health and strength for many years, that you may be enabled to witness the growth and continued prosperity of the Order, and afford this lodge the advantage of your matured experience."

The Worshipful Master feelingly acknowledged the presentation, and alluding to the jubilee character of the proceedings and to the valuable articles presented to him, said that they would be placed in his house in such a position that his children and those who came after him might at all times look upon them and see in them an appreciation of him by the members of his lodge as a true, tried, and valued friend. In the course of his remarks he said that a brother had recently waited upon him with a manuscript containing a history of the lodge compiled from its minutes. He had added to this an article from Turner's "History of Hertford," giving a brief history of the Craft, a list of the members of the lodge from its foundation to the present time, lists of joining members and honorary members, and a list of Worshipful Masters from the first Master of the lodge downwards, and thinking that a copy of these documents would be interesting to the members, he had had copies printed in the form of a book, one of which he asked each member of the lodge and each visitor to accept.

The lodge having been closed, the members and visitors adjourned to the Assembly Room, where the banquet was served.

The banquet was presided over by Bro. Stephen Austin, W.M., P.P.G. Supt. Works, and amongst the members of the lodge present were Bros. Rev. Lewis Deedes, S.W., P.P.G. Chaplain; Baron Dimsdale, J.W.; J. R. Cocks, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., Treasurer; Robert T. Andrews, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., Secretary; R. Benyon Croft, S.D.; John Harrington, J.D.; F. Taylor, I.G.; J. E. J. E. Cussans, P.M., 1366; C. C. Dick, P.M. 112, 494, 1181; W. Warriner, W.M. elect 2; W. P. Willson, P.M., P.P.G.A.D.C.; Abel Smith, M.P.; E. R. P. Francis, F. Roberts, A. J. Small, J. J. Dorman, W. J. Morris, W. Finch, J. Wells, E. Oram, W. H. Clarke, F. Cates, T. D. Medcalf, C. H. K. Gilbertson, and F. Hall. The following visitors were also present: The Right Worshipful Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., P.G.M.; Bros. F. H. Wilson Iles, M.D., D.P.G.M.; A. W. Nash, W.M. 409, P.A.G.D.C.; T. Erskine Austin, P.M. 475; R. J. Abbott, P.M. 1473; R. Freer Austin, Studholme, 1591; Stephen Austin, jun., 403; W. M. Armstrong, P.M. 403; J. R. Dagg, 449; David Roberts, P.M. 754; H. C. Finch, P.P.G.R., P.M. 404; Geo. Turner, 70, St. Abb, Eyemouth; Fredk. Venables, W.M. 1385; John Lowthin, P.M. 1385, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Childs, 453; George Corble, 453, P.P.G.J.W. Essex; John Purrott, W.M. 1479, P.G.S.B.; and Malcolm Heywood, P.P.G. Orgt. 403. Letters expressive of regret at being unable to be present were read from the following brothers: Bros. L. P. Metham, P.G.D. England, D.P. G.M. Devon; W. C. Maddever, W.M. 504; W. Oswald Thompson, W.M. 1757, P.G. Chap.; W. H. Green, 403; Samuel Jacobs, W.M. 1327; Geo. Farr, 403; George E. Lake, W.M. 404, P.P.G. Regr.; C. W. Bernard, M.D., Secretary 1757; C. E. Keyser, J.W. 404; the Right Hon. Earl Cowper, K.G.; G. T. Carter, P.M. 382; W. J. Fitch, P.M., Secretary 449; G. E. Gompertz, P.M., Secretary 869; and S. Andrews, 403. Bros. William Winn, Thomas Baxter, and Charles Beckett were present, and afforded the utmost gratification by their classical rendering of several glees, songs, &c., during the evening. Bro. M. Heywood accompanying on the pianoforte in his usual excellent manner.

On the removal of the cloth, the Chairman said his duty was now to propose a toast which was the first proposed in every company of loyal Englishmen, and he would therefore ask them to drink "The Health of the Queen." This toast he was sure would be received with all the enthusiasm it so richly deserved. (Applause.)

The toast was drunk with great applause, the company singing "God save the Queen."

The Chairman next proposed "The Health of the M.W. the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," and in doing so remarked that he presented a striking contrast to many of his predecessors, in that he came among his people in such a way as to make himself respected, admired, and beloved.

"The Health of the Pro. Grand Master (the Earl of Carnarvon), the Deputy Grand Master (Lord Skelmersdale), and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," followed, and was received with great enthusiasm.

The Chairman next proposed "The Health of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master," and said it was unnecessary for him to say anything in the way of eulogy of the brother who filled this distinguished office, inasmuch as he was so well known and appreciated by all present. (Applause.) Bro. Halsey possessed that most admirable quality of doing whatever he had to do in the best possible way it could be done, and he had, therefore, no hesitation in recommending him as an example for them to imitate. (Loud applause.)

Bro. Halsey, Provincial Grand Master, said he had to return them his most sincere thanks for the very kind manner in which they had received the toast of his health, and for their flattering expressions of feeling in regard to himself. He could assure them that he esteemed them very highly, because, from their originating with one who filled the position the Chairman did in his lodge—reckoning a membership of fifty years, and filling the highest office in it—he could not regard them but as of a very high character, and as showing that his labours were appreciated. He could only say that it had given him very great pleasure to be with them on that occasion. It was the third time, independently of the day of his installation as Provincial Grand Master, that he had visited the Hertford Lodge, and he was glad to see that their work prospered as the years went on. (Applause.) He most sincerely said that he hoped this meeting, marking as it did the close of one half century of their lodge's successful working, would be the commencement of another, and that during the next fifty years it would go on as prosperously as it had hitherto done, and show even an increased amount of work at its close. It gave him great pleasure to know—although the fact was not due to any merits of his own—that Masonry in the province was not only not deteriorating, but in spite of bad times and depression of trade was increasing. He was glad of this continued prosperity of the lodges, and it was satisfactory to him to know that he had at least done nothing to counteract it. (Applause.)

"The Health of the Deputy G. Master, V.W. Bro. Iles," was next proposed in very complimentary terms by Bro. Capt. Dick, P.M., and drunk with great applause.

The Chairman next proposed "The Memory of the Founders," and remarked that it was unnecessary for him to say much to commend this toast to their acceptance. The Duke of Sussex was the Grand Master at the time of the foundation of the Hertford Lodge, and granted the warrant for it upon the petition of Francis Crew, Alfred Septimus Dowling, Robert William James Rodgers, John Cass, Thomas Cobham, John Harwood, Joseph Francis Taylor, and others. He felt that he must say a word about Bro. Crew, who was the "head and front" of the whole matter. There were people alive now who could recollect his powers of vocalisation. Anything more exquisite than his singing he (the chairman) never heard, and he pleased the members so greatly that it was felt they must have the ladies present to listen to him. Accordingly, when singing was going on, the doors of the lodge were opened, and the ladies, who were in the adjoining room, were permitted to hear, and this was continued for some time. (Applause.)

The toast was drunk in solemn silence. Bro. Halsey (P.G.M.) proposed the next toast, "The Worshipful Master of the Hertford Lodge, and continued prosperity to it," which he said might emphatically be called the "toast of the evening." When they remembered that the lodge was founded so long ago as the 1st of September, 1829 (as he saw by the book the Chairman had kindly placed in their hands), and when he found on the 19th of October, in that year, in the list of initiates one of the name of Stephen Austin, jun., printer, Hertford (loud applause)—when he found fifty years and three days afterwards, to be exact, the same Stephen Austin—but he must say senior now—in the chair, although not for the first time, they would, he thought, agree with him in saying that they had before them a career of which every Mason might be proud.

The present year marked a great era in the province, this lodge being not alone in celebrating its jubilee, for on the 28th November the Watford Lodge—of which he had the honour of being a Past Master—would be engaged in the same agreeable proceedings. It would not fall to their lot, however, for it fell to the lot of very few lodges, to celebrate the fiftieth year of its existence and the fiftieth year of the membership of a brother—and that brother the Worshipful Master—at one and the same time, but on behalf of the Watford brothers he would say that if any of those here were there on the evening they celebrated their jubilee, they would receive a most cordial welcome. (Loud applause.)

The Chairman on rising to respond to the toast was received with a long-continued burst of applause. On silence being at length restored, he said that he felt he must rise at once to thank them for their most kind and hearty congratulations. He felt very grateful to God, the Great Architect of the Universe, that, notwithstanding his age, he was in the full enjoyment of all his senses. He was twenty-five years of age when he was initiated in the Hertford Lodge, and having completed his fiftieth year as a member, he was now seventy-five, and he, therefore, could not be sufficiently thankful for the health and strength which he enjoyed. (Applause.) He felt a little pride in his own name having been so long and agreeably associated with the lodge, and hoped that at the termination of another fifty years of its existence some of its descendants would be found connected with it, and would then receive similar expressions of good will from its members as he now did. (Applause.) He had just to add that none of the members of the lodge who assisted at its foundation were living now, but one or two of the initiates of 1829 were still alive, and he desired at this time to mention their names. These were Charles Smith, of Enfield, and his friend from boyhood, Young Crawley, and then of a little later date there were Valentine Carter, of Buntingford, George Farr, William Robert Baker, of Bayfordbury, the Right Hon. William Cowper-Temple, Dr. Woodhouse—whom he would have liked to have seen present—and Henry Kember. He had only in conclusion to thank them, and that most warmly, for the kind feelings they had expressed towards himself. (Loud applause.)

"The Health of the Visitors" was proposed by Bro. Cocks, Treasurer, and responded to by Bro. Nash.

The Rev. L. Deedes, S.W., proposed "The Masonic Institutions," a toast which, he said, was most dear to his own heart. The Institutions connected with Masonry were the principal attractions that induced him to join the Hertford Lodge, an act which he had never for a moment regretted, and he most seriously hoped that all earnest men, whatever their position in life or the form of their religion might be, would unite in extending the benefits which they were calculated to confer upon all, no matter what the position in life might be in which it might have pleased the Almighty to place them. (Applause.) These Institutions were of undoubted excellence, of tried capability, and were bringing forth fruit which would redound to the credit of all concerned in founding and conducting them. With the toast he coupled the name of Bro. James Terry, Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons. (Applause.)

Bro. Terry returned thanks for the manner in which the toast had been received, and assured the company that he esteemed it a great compliment to be allowed to respond to it. Allusion had been made to the fact that these Institutions were not "charities," and he might justly say, on behalf of their Committees, that everything was done that could be accomplished to take away from their benefits all idea of charity. The Committees knew full well what had been done by the Hertford Lodge in the way of rendering them assistance by their contributions. He found, by referring to their books, that since its foundation the members had contributed £700 in this way, and although this sum might not appear large when spread over a period of fifty years, yet, when it was remembered that it was only during the last nine or ten years that the claims of the various Institutions were brought prominently before them, the amount contributed was very considerable, and on their behalf he had to thank the members of the Hertford Lodge for what they had done. (Applause.) Bro. Carter would represent the lodge as Steward during the present year; and he ventured to think that as Bro. Crew, to whom allusion had more than once been made, was at once time Secretary of the Girls' School, there was a debt of gratitude due to that Institution on his account which might be paid through Bro. Carter in May, 1880. (Applause.) Reference was then made to the Girls' School and the Benevolent Institution, and in the course of an eloquent appeal for additional subscriptions to the three Institutions, Bro. Terry mentioned that if an average contribution of £60 a year could be got from each lodge, no candidate for admission need ever be turned away for want of funds.

The Chairman proposed "The Healths of the Officers of the Hertford Lodge," and in doing so thanked them very heartily for their attention during the year now closing. In connection with the toast he also wished to couple the name of Bro. Warren, the newly-elected Worshipful Master.

The Hon. Baron Dimsdale, J.W., in replying, said he was only speaking the sentiments of all his brother officers when he returned his most hearty thanks for the way in which the toast had been received. He must say that in all the arguments against Masonry he had heard there was nothing substantial, but they were indebted to the Senior Warden for the able manner in which he had shown how their Institutions had removed the stigma—if it was a stigma—from them as Masons that their time was spent principally in eating and drinking. He was indebted to the Chairman, however, for another illustration of the usefulness of their lodge, for, alluding to a period of fifty years ago, he had told them that such a feeling of animosity then existed in the town, politically and religiously, that the people were at "daggers drawn." The great corrective of this objectionable state of things, however, was the foundation of a Masonic lodge, and therefore those who had seen and rejoiced at the entire decay of that feeling were indebted to those men who founded it and kept it going, and to none were they more indebted than to the Worshipful Master who now presided over them. (Loud applause.) It must also be satisfactory to those present that the first Masonic lodge in the county was founded on the eastern side of it, and that an example was thus set to their friends on the other side, which, however, they were not long in following. (Applause.) He wished to say on behalf of all the officers of the Hertford Lodge that they were anxious to promote the interests of Masonry to its utmost extent, remembering at the same time that it was their duty to do all in their power to promote that charitable and kindly feeling towards all men which was the best and surest foundation for the prosperity of States. (Applause.)

Bro. Dr. Warren (W.M. elect) also returned thanks, and expressed the great pleasure he experienced at being present at the celebration of the jubilee of the Hertford Lodge. He was very much pleased to see Bro. Austin in the chair, and he sincerely hoped that he would long continue to be amongst them. When as years rolled on, however, and the time came for him to bid farewell to the lodge below, might he indeed become a joining member of the Grand Lodge above, there to live and reign for ever. (Loud applause.)

The Tyler's toast was then given, and the company shortly afterwards separated.

The members of the Committee appointed by the lodge to carry out the jubilee arrangements are to be congratulated upon the success that attended their labours. To Bro. R. T. Andrews, the Secretary, great praise is due for the excellent manner in which he performed his onerous duties, and conducted the mass of correspondence which the festival involved.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution assembled on Thursday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer, presided. There were also present Bros. Herbert Dicketts, Frederick Adlard, Colonel James Peters, Arthur E. Gladwell, A. H. Tattershall, Henry Venn, Charles G. Rushworth, James F. Corben, E. Letchworth, H. Potter, H. A. Dubois, W. C. F. Moutrie, E. Spooner, F. R. W. Hedges, Secretary, and H. Massey (Freemason).

On the recommendation of the House Committee, the sum of fifteen guineas was voted for the purpose of apprenticing one girl to a business in Hackney.

On the motion of Col. Creaton, in accordance with the recommendation of the House Committee, the salary of Bro. Weaver, the senior clerk in the Secretary's office, who has given the greatest satisfaction in the discharge of his duties, was raised £20 a year.

Two children were placed on the list for election in April, 1880.

On the motion of Bro. H. A. Dubois, the letter of Bro. Dick Radclyffe, with regard to his Pupils' Assistance Fund, was ordered to lie on the table. The Chairman, however, informed the Committee that any member was at liberty to read it.

The usual compliment to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The installation meeting of the Brixton Mark Lodge will be held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Saturday, the 8th inst., at five o'clock. Bro. C. P. McKay is the W.M. elect, and the Installing Master, will be Bro. Thomas Poore, P.G.I.G., P.M., &c., who, as W.M. of the lodge, will previously perform the ceremony of advancement. Further particulars may be obtained of Bro. Baldwin, Secretary, 47, Flaxman-road, Brixton, or Bro. H. Lovegrove (Prov. G.S. of W.), Treasurer, 30, Budge-row, Cannon-street.

The Scottish Corporation will hold its 215th anniversary festival on Monday, December 1st, for St. Andrew's Day, when the Earl of Rosebery, one of the vice-presidents of the Corporation, will occupy the chair.

We understand that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught have consented to preside on November 13th at the distribution of prizes to the successful students of the City of London College.

A report of the election meeting of the Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744, which was held on Tuesday last, unavoidably stands over.

The future meetings of the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524, will be held at the Royal Edward Hotel, Mare-street, Hackney, where the ceremony of installation will be worked on Wednesday next by Bro. W. H. Lee, P.M. 975 and 1524.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro. G.M., distributed the prizes to the students at the Art School of Winchester on Tuesday. He traced some of the effects and tendencies of modern art culture, among which he prominently remarked that manual workers were forsaking the country for the towns in the search for higher avocations. The noble Lord regretted that while our national taste had improved with marked rapidity, the quality which partially compensated for our former deficiency in this respect seemed to be declining, for the charges that the soundness of our workmanship was departing were frequent and loud.

The Panmure Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners will be consecrated on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the Balham Hotel, Balham. The officers designate are Bros. C. Pulman, J.P.G. Stwd., W.C.N.; Gibson, P.P.G.S. of W., J.; and Bro. Mitchell, S. The Panmure Mark Lodge will be opened at five o'clock.

Mrs. Swanborough, of the Theatre Royal Strand, has presented the Asaph Lodge, No. 1319, with an entire set of clothing on the occasion of her youngest son's (Bro. Edward Swanborough) installation as Worshipful Master of the lodge.

A supplement to the London Gazette, published on Wednesday night, contains a Royal Proclamation further proroguing Parliament until the 19th of December. The Convocations of the Provinces of Canterbury and York are also prorogued until December 20th.

Mr. George Rignold, the eminent tragedian, who commences his season at Drury-lane this (Saturday) evening, has secured a good company for the production of "Henry V.," the list including such names as Mr. Ryder, Mr. Charles Harcourt, Mr. Odell, Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Calhaem, and Miss Henderson.

It has been said that the man who causes two blades of grass to grow where one had grown before is a public benefactor—this, from a political economist's point of view—but many of us are more concerned just now about domestic economy, and the man who can double the utility of an article in common use deserves the thanks of the community. It seems the designer of a new necktie, which has just been submitted to us, is not content with simply doubling its usefulness, he has produced the patent rotary scarf, which can, by a very simple arrangement, be used in four different positions, without altering its appearance in any way when in use. The arrangement is very simple, but ingenious, and we have no doubt there will be a large demand for it.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all sores, wounds, bad legs, and sprains of any kind this Ointment is the most efficient application. It at once gives ease by allaying inflammation and moderating the flow of blood to the part. Whenever the malady has been of long standing the Ointment should be assisted by Holloway's Purifying Pills, which act upon the stomach and liver, guarding digestion from falling into that disordered state which the pain, restlessness, and fever attending these ailments is apt to produce, and which much retards recovery, and sometimes even makes serious the slightest case. No mother or nurse should be without these noble remedies; they are equally applicable to all ages and constitutions. They purify the blood, regulate its circulation, renew diseased structures, and invigorate the system.—[ADVT.]

THOMAS'S HATS.

(LETTER FROM THE PREMIER TO "PUNCH.")

Oh, my dear Mr. Punch, what a fuss, what a clatter, People talk of naught else but the Practical Hatter; If you're speaking of Gladstone, the Budget, the Queen, This Practical Hatter is brought on the scene, And the "Telegraph," "Echo," the "Standard" & "Times," All have leaders on Thomas's Hats and his Rhymes, Whilst the Editors swear "when in Thomas's Castor Their ravings flow brighter, and lighter, and faster;" And I hear Tupper, Tennyson, Ruskin, Carlyle, Have offered him odes and critiques by the mile; With no other return for their essays and lays Than his finding them Hats for the rest of their days. So I felt half inclined, since they've made such a row 'Gainst the "penny gold wreath" to encircle my brow, The pleasure of wearing at once to forego, And exchange it away for a Thomas' Chapeau. For, to tell you the truth, my dear Punch, I've a dread Of any more weight being placed on my head, And as Thomas's Hats are so easy and soft, Whilst the wreath will be hard and not easily doffed, If Thomas is willing, I'll readily yield The wreath for a hat. Ever yours—Beaconsfield.

LODGE OF ASAPH (No. 1319).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Monday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. George Buckland, W.M., presided. Including visitors, 130 brethren were present, and amongst the members of the lodge, who numbered seventy in all, were Bros. E. Stanton Jones, P.M. and Sec.; J. M. Chamberlin, P.M.; J. Weaver, P.M., P.P.G. Org. Middx.; George Buckland, W.M.; Thomas A. Adams, P.G.P.; Charles Coote, jun., Treas.; Edward Frewin, P.M.; W. H. Cremer, Charles S. Jekyll, P.M.; Charles Harper, jun., Joseph Perry, William A. Tinney, P.M.; John M. Ball, Henry Snyders, Henry J. Tinney, Julian Egerton, Joseph Baker, Edward Terry, I.P.M.; William J. Castell, Joseph Horton, Edward Swanborough, S.W.; Gustavus R. Egerton, F. Kendall, William Lewis Barrett, William Meyer Lutz, J.D.; A. Thomas, H. Cox, S.D.; A. Hemming, A. Henson, C. H. Stephenson, Stwd.; C. Wellard, J.W.; Arthur Swanborough, Robert Soutar, John Maclean, I.G.; William J. H. Waud, William Jones Hill, Frederick Delevanti, D. of C.; James Charles Hambleton, Edmund Rogers, Victor Tussaud, Charles George Alias, Rubini A. F. Rochester, Charles Beckett, Charles Francis Fogarty, Charles Harcourt, Walter Hopkins Smith, Henry James Carter, Robert Dobson, Jules Guilton, Pietro Le Conte Castell, Charles Blount Powell, Lionel Brough, Charles Ernest Tinney, Organist; John Thomas Hatcher, William John Kent, James Beveridge, Henry James Callcott, Alfred Morton, Henry Ashley, Lestock Boileau Woodridge, Harry James Hitchins, Edward Humphrey, George Edwin Fairchild, and J. G. Taylor. Bro. H. Massey (Freemason). Bro. Edward Swanborough, of the Strand Theatre, was the W.M. elect, and to show her pleasure at her son obtaining the chair of the lodge, Mrs. Swanborough presented the W.M. with Master's collar and apron, and the other officers with their collars of office. Bro. Swanborough was installed by Bro. George Buckland, who performed the whole of the work in faultless style. After the customary salutes, the new W.M. appointed to office Bros. C. Wellard, S.W.; Harry F. Cox, J.W.; C. Coote, jun., Treasurer; E. Stanton Jones, P.M., Secretary; W. M. Lutz, S.D.; J. Maclean, J.D.; F. Delevanti, I.G.; C. E. Tinney, Org.; C. H. Stephenson, D.C.; Arthur Swanborough, Steward; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. A vote of thanks to Mrs. Swanborough was passed unanimously for her liberal and handsome gift to the lodge, and the Audit Committee's report having been received and adopted, the report of the Benevolent Fund, showing a balance of over £340, was read and approved. The brethren then adjourned to Freemasons' Tavern, in the large hall of which the company sat down to an elegant banquet, while Mrs. Swanborough, Miss Ada Swanborough, Mrs. George Buckland, Mrs. Keeley, Mrs. James Weaver, Mrs. Edward Swanborough, Master E. Swanborough, and Miss. Gus Swanborough, occupied seats in the gallery. After the banquet had been partaken of, grace was sung, and the hall was tyled, and the toasts were proposed. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," said that our beloved Queen, to whom the theatrical and musical professions owed so much, was too well known to require any remarks from him. "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," was received with loud applause. The W.M. said he was very pleased indeed to hear such a reception of H.R.H.'s name. The Prince of Wales was dearly beloved by the Craft, and by no lodge better than the Lodge of Asaph; for two reasons, that, God bless him, he supported their profession in every way, and they were proud to have him at the head of the Craft. He was not only a good Mason, but a good working Mason, for during the last season, if the brethren referred back to the newspapers, he had laid the foundation stones of many hospitals and other charities. He (the W.M.) would not take more time with this toast, because as he had said with regard to the Queen, so he would say with regard to the Prince of Wales, he was too well known to require any observations. The toasts of "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon," "The D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, &c.," having been proposed and honoured, Bro. Thomas Adams, P.G.P., responded. Bro. G. Buckland, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in doing so said all the brethren knew how efficiently Bro. Edward Swanborough had performed the duties of the various offices he had filled in the Lodge of Asaph. He would be equally efficient in the more important duties which now devolved upon him. He (Bro. Buckland) thought he might say that they had not in their lodge a more genial and popular brother than Edward Swanborough, and with these few words he would call upon the brethren to drink heartily "Health, Prosperity, and Long Life to the W. Master." The W. Master, in reply, said: I thank you most sincerely for the manner in which you have drunk my health. I do not think I deserve all that my Bro. Buckland has said (cries of "Yes, yes"), but if I do not at present I will try in future to do so. I may say that I am now at the top of the tree in the Craft, but many men when they get at the top of the tree, if I may say so, forget those friends who helped them to that position. I am not one of those men. I have to thank in a very large measure Bro. James Weaver for my proud position this evening, and I think it is but fair to him that I should tell you so. He has been most kind to me; in fact, I never experienced so much kindness in my life as I have experienced from my brethren in the Lodge of Asaph. I have said that I will try and do my best during my year of office. One thing I will try and do, that is to make you all happy and comfortable, and if I fall short in the work, my dear old Immediate Past Master Buckland is at my side; as I told him at the time, I shall feel doubly strong, and I shall get through my year of office, if it please T.G.A.O.T.U., if he is by my side, and I think I shall have the same compliment paid to me at the end of my year that I am about to pay to him on behalf of the Lodge of Asaph. Bro. George Buckland, it is now my pleasing duty to place on your breast this jewel. It was voted to you by the unanimous voice of the lodge. I assure you I am exceedingly proud to be Master of such a lodge, because one must have some brains about him to be Master of it. If I only come up to a quarter of your excellence during my year I shall be satisfied. In placing this jewel on your breast I may say I hope the G.A.O.T.U. will spare your dear and good life for many years to come. I have an additional pleasure in presenting you with this testimonial as one of the founders of this prosperous lodge, and I hope that you may live for many years to see it on your walls. (The Worshipful Master then presented Bro. Buckland with a handsome testimonial, inscribed in illuminated writing on vellum, and framed and glazed.) Bro. Buckland, I.P.M., in reply, said he begged to disclaim altogether the too flattering compliment paid to him by the W.M. To have done his work in the discharge of the duties of the chair to the satisfaction of his brethren was to him ample recompense and reward. He took this opportunity of thanking the P.M.'s, who had been all most kind to him, and he trusted that like the W.M. it would not be considered invidious if he particularly thanked Bro. Weaver, P.M., for the kind support and countenance he had given him during his Mastership. He gladly accepted the Past Master's jewel, which he should wear as a proud memento of the office he had filled, and the testimonial he should prize still more, not only as having been Master, but as one of the brethren who had founded the lodge. And when he looked around him and saw so many members of the dramatic and musical profession, who would naturally in due course fill the various offices of the lodge, he thought he might confidently predict that the Lodge of Asaph was destined to occupy a position second to none on the register of the Grand Lodge of England. The W.M. next proposed "The Benevolent Fund." During Bro. Buckland's year the lodge had given away no less than eighty-six sovereigns to the poor. It could afford to do that in consequence of the lodge having only one banquet a year. It would please the brethren to know that they had over £300 invested in the Three per Cents. on behalf of the Benevolent Fund, and there was £45 in the hands of the Treasurer to give away. It was all to give away. He exhorted all the members of the lodge to give some trifle to this fund. Bro. E. Stanton Jones, P.M., as Treasurer of the fund, responded. The existence of such a fund in a lodge was of great importance. While he was proud to say a portion of the lodge subscribed to it, he was sorry to say another portion took no notice of it. He would only point out that it was a mutual advantage to the members, which began with them and should continue with them. Its object was charity, which was universally acknowledged by Freemasons, and felt and practised by them, and especially by those professions of which the members of the Asaph Lodge were composed. He, therefore, thought it ought not to require any words of his to incite the brethren to give their liberal support to it. The Asaph was certainly becoming a very prosperous lodge, and the donations of the brethren to its Benevolent Fund ought to advance with its increase. He commended the fund to the support of the brethren to their utmost capacity. (The list was here handed round to the brethren, and realised a sum of £21 16s.) The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the P.M.'s," returned thanks to those brethren for the assistance successive Masters had had from them. There were now nine P.M.'s of the Lodge of Asaph, and with such a firm basis, it would take a tremendous force to knock the lodge over. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Chamberlin, on whom he intended when Bro. Buckland was engaged to call for the Lectures on the Tracing Board, knowing how well he was able to give them. Bro. Chamberlin, P.M., in reply, said that it had been the object of the founders to help their successors in every way in their power, and they were all willing to do so. As a founder of the lodge

he looked round with pride on the gathering he saw before him. One of their oldest P.M.'s, Bro. Charles Coote, he was sorry to say was absent on account of ill health, but every member of the lodge trusted he would soon be better, for he had endeared himself to all. Bro. Macintosh, W.M. No. 4, in responding to the toast of "The Visitors," congratulated the lodge on having such a Master as Bro. Swanborough, whose eloquence would delight the brethren. From the time he had first known Bro. Swanborough to the present the principles of Freemasonry had been evinced by him, and he would carry out those principles with advantage to the Lodge of Asaph. Few men could claim to have more persons as genuine friends than he, and during his Mastership those friends would rally round him, and assist him in carrying out the duties of his office. Baron H. de Worms also replied, and said that brethren outside the dramatic profession felt highly honoured at being present. Professors of the dramatic art taught all outsiders a great moral lesson. It was they who could move to laughter or to tears, and awaken in the breast those best feelings which were sometimes dormant; in fact they struck upon the proper chord, and gave that "touch of nature" which made "the whole world kin." Bros. Wellard, S.W., Arthur Swanborough, and Delevanti, replied to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge," and the Tyler's toast having been given, the proceedings were shortly afterwards brought to a close. The brethren were entertained in the intervals between the toasts with vocal and instrumental music of the highest order. The vocalists who took part were Bros. C. Beckett, G. Egerton, C. E. Tinney, George Buckland, E. Terry, P.M.; Rainham, C. Collins, and E. W. Collins; Master Manning and Master Dunster (solo), and two others, all pupils of Bro. Stanton. The instrumentalists were Bros. E. Stanton Jones, P.M. and Sec., (violin); H. J. Tinney (piano); C. S. Jekyll (piano); Thomas, P.M. (piano); W. L. Barrett (flute); Julian Egerton (clarinet); W. J. H. Waud (contra bass); and W. J. Kent (cornet à piston). The vocal music was under the direction of Bro. George Buckland, P.M., and the instrumental music under that of Bro. E. Stanton Jones, P.M.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE (No. 1589).—On the 22nd ult. this prosperous City lodge held its first regular meeting since the vacation at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, when there were present Bros. Dodson, P.M. Constitution, W.M.; Turner, S.W.; W. Wellsman, P.M., acting J.W.; Dalwood, I.P.M.; A. Tisley, Sec.; G. Manners, S.D.; H. W. Clemow, D.C., acting I.G.; F. Farrington, W.S.; Farrington, jun., Organist; Dwarber, P.M.; Gilbert, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Westcott, J.W. 1365, and T. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx. (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, several important alterations in connection with the bye-laws were discussed, when it was subsequently resolved that a Committee, consisting of the W.M., Past Masters, officers, and three members of the lodge, should consider the proposed alterations, and report upon them at the next regular meeting. Bros. Brown, Thurgood, and A. Clemow were the three lay members appointed upon the Committee. There being no other business on the agenda the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was well served by the Bros. Clemow. The Royal and Craft toasts having been duly honoured, "The Health of the W.M." was proposed in very flattering terms by Bro. Dalwood. He congratulated the W.M. upon the great success that had attended his Masonic career. He had no sooner vacated the chair of one of the most influential lodges in the Craft, namely, the Constitution, than he was called upon to assume the reins of Masonic government in the St. Dunstan, of which lodge he was one of the founders. In conclusion, the I.P.M. touched upon the manner in which the W.M. had recently discharged the onerous duties of Master of one of the City companies. This toast having been heartily received, the W.M. briefly replied by thanking them for the hearty manner in which they had received and drank his health. Having been connected with the lodge from its commencement, he felt exceedingly gratified at witnessing the great strides it had made in the short space of four years. This result was very pleasing, more especially as the lodge was a representative one, and, therefore, necessarily limited in the admission of candidates. Although he had presided over a very large lodge, and had visited many, he did not think that they were to be desired, as quality and not quantity was, or should be, the consummation to be wished for in all Masonic communities. "The Past Masters" followed. In introducing this toast the W.M. briefly touched upon the merits of the three brethren, namely, Bros. Dwarber, Wellsman, and Dalwood, who had passed through the ordeal of the chair of No. 1589 with honour to themselves and credit to the lodge. (Hear, hear.) As the members had had so many opportunities of judging of their social and Masonic qualities he should not further dilate upon the toast than to wish them long life and happiness. This toast was acknowledged by Bros. Dalwood and Dwarber. The latter brother made, as usual, a very eloquent speech. He also congratulated the lodge upon the great success it had attained. As one of the founders, he, in conjunction with his two worthy colleagues and labourers in the Masonic vineyard, felt that the trouble they had individually and collectively bestowed in the administration of its affairs in the days of its infancy had been rewarded, and had borne such good fruit. As the St. Dunstan was a representative lodge it should bear a high character, as it was connected with the first parish in the City of London, a parish that had for centuries held a very distinguished place, not only in the history of the mighty Metropolis, but in the annals of the country. Many stirring scenes had taken place in its vicinity, and some of the most brilliant personages recorded in the chronicles of science, art, and literature had met within its venerable precincts. In concluding his remarks he expressed a hope that his colleagues, and himself might be spared many years to come among their brethren of 1889 "The Health of the Visitors" was acknowledged by Bro. Westcott. "The Treasurer and Secretary" came next. Bro. Tisley in acknowledging this toast expressed his regret at the unavoidable absence of the Treasurer, Bro. Præd, but upon his behalf he wished to assure the brethren that the financial state of the lodge was most satisfactory. After thanking them for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast of his health in conjunction with that of the Treasurer, he dwelt upon the subject of the Masonic Charities, and the gratifying results that had attended the action of the London Masonic Charity Association at the recent election. He said there might be a difference of opinion as to the necessity for the establishment of such an Association, but the most captious could not deny the great success that had hitherto accompanied its operations in its candidature for the Metropolitan applicants for the benefits of their valuable Charitable Institutions. (Hear, hear.) "The Officers" terminated the proceedings. This toast was acknowledged by Bros. Turner and Farrington, sen. The success of the proceedings was enhanced by the instrumental and vocal contributions of Bros. Farrington, jun., Tisley, Esson, Raddle, and others.

ROYAL SAVOY LODGE (No. 1744).—A meeting of this lodge took place at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden on Tuesday, the 28th ult., Bro. J. Willing, W.M., in the chair. There were also present Bros. J. Douglass, S.W.; Jones, as J.W.; W. M. Stiles, Sec.; Hyland, J.D.; Cook, I.G.; Holt, W.S.; Deller, Jacques, Dovey, Smith, Sillis, Lloyd, Bennett, Cole, and about sixty of the brethren. Visitors: Bros. Mursell, J.W. 35; Kauffmann, D.C. 1732; and Meacock, 742. The minutes of the previous regular meeting, and that of the emergency, having been read and confirmed, Bros. Dickey and Ramsden were raised to the Degree of M.M. Bros. Harton, Blundell, Thorn, and Holland were passed to the Degree of F.C., after which Messrs. H. Dickey, H. Hoare, and J. T. Woods were properly introduced, and impressively initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year was proceeded with, when Bro. John Douglass (Standard Theatre), P.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge, 1507, was unanimously elected. The outgoing W.M. was unanimously elected Treas., and Bro. Nolan, Tyler, Bros. Sillis, Maby, Bennett, Johnson, and Lieut. Cole were elected Auditors. The Secretary, Bro. Stiles (W.M. King's Cross Lodge, 1732), proposed that a Past Master's jewel, of the value of £10 10s., be voted to Bro. Willing, W.M., for his successful and able working during his year of office as founder and first W.M. of the Royal Savoy Lodge. This was seconded, and carried unanimously. The names of several candidates were given in to be balloted for and initiated at ensuing meeting (installation), and after accepting Bro. Treadwell's resignation the brethren adjourned to banquet at half-past seven. During the evening the W.M. most earnestly thanked the officers and brethren for their able working and hearty co-operation from the formation of the lodge, some fifteen months ago, and felt certain the same goodwill and assistance would be rendered to his successor; the number of the brethren in the lodge now amounted to about seventy, and the earnest attention paid by the brethren to the duties of Freemasonry and the cordial reception accorded to visitors at all times augured well for the prosperity of the lodge and the happiness of the brethren. Several songs were excellently rendered by the brethren, and the meeting broke up about 10 in the evening.

DUKE OF CORNWALL LODGE (No. 1839).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 30th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Present: Bros. J. W. Brooke, W.M.; J. C. Corpe, S.W.; W. G. Boit, J.W.; J. W. Dewsnap, Treas.; H. Cruise, Sec.; G. F. Smith, jun., S.D.; A. Stokes, J.D.; G. F. Smith, D.C.; J. G. Wilkins, I.G.; A. Bowman, Steward. W. Bros. Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clerke, P.G.D., P.M.; Capt. Phillips, P.G.D., P.M.; Maloney, P.M.; Furse, and other brethren. Visitors: Bros. Owen, Marcus, and Culver. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. P.M. W. A. Maloney, of Robert Burns Lodge, was then invested with the collar of acting P.M., and addressed on the nature and duties of the office. Bro. Maloney returned thanks in suitable terms. Bro. Furse was then passed to the Second Degree. W. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clerke, P.G.D., then with much impressive effect gave the Lecture on the Second Tracing Board. A vote of thanks was then unanimously passed for same. It was proposed and carried that a founders' jewel be struck. The lodge was then adjourned. The brethren subsequently dined, and the usual toasts were given and responded to.

GATESHEAD-ON-TYNE.—Lodge of Industry (No. 48).—This lodge held its regular meeting at 34, Denmark-street, on Monday, the 27th ult. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Robert Whitfield. He was assisted by the officers, viz.: Bros. John Wood, S.W.; J. G. Smith, J.W.; William B. Eldson, Treas.; Edward Liddell, Sec.; E. W. Middlemast, S.D.; John Moulit, S.D.; Jas. Boyatt, I.G.; R. Ferry, Org.; Joshua Curry, Tyler. Amongst the members present during the evening were Bros. R. F. Cook, P.M.; M. Corbett, P.M.; M. Swinburne, R. Brason, Adamson Rhagg, M. J. Wheatley, J. Matthews, and others. The following visitors also attended: Bros. John Bolam, P.M. 24; J. J. Athey, W.M. 240; John Duckitt, S.W. 481; C. F. Dawson, 1086; E. A. Gibson, 424; W. F. Poad, 424; R. W. Lisson, 406; Robt. Waugh, 1626. The minutes of previous meeting having been confirmed, Messrs. Wm.

Mark Pybus and Edwd. Shewbrooks were admitted in due form, and initiated into the mysteries of Masonry by the W.M. The S.W. explained the working tools, and the J.W. gave the charge of the First Degree. Other business having been transacted, two new candidates for initiation were proposed, and after the W.M. had received the "Hearty good wishes" of the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed at 8.30 p.m. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the refreshment room, where the usual Masonic toasts and a musical entertainment contributed to the harmony of a pleasant re-union.

GIBRALTAR.—Inhabitants Lodge (No. 153).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 6th ult., under the presidency of Bro. Edward Bacon, W.M., assisted by the following officers: B-os. Broster White, S.W.; Jas. King, J.W.; Jno. Button, S.D.; W. Haywood Allen, J.D.; Peter Lyons, I.G.; Harry Clipson, M.C.; Manuel Ghio, Tyler; Fred. Myatt, Sec.; and Charles T. Armstrong, Treas. Above forty members of the lodge were present, and the following brethren honoured the lodge with a visit on this occasion: The R.W. Bros. G. J. Gilbard, D.D.G.M.; Rev. W. Stewart Pattison, P.P.G.M. of Manitoba; Jas. Cunningham, P.D.G.J.W.; Bros. J. Franceri, D.G. Sec.; J. Holliday, P.M. 325 (I.C.); W. P. Kennedy, P.M. 1331; Beaton, 43; Treney, Silva, Morello, and Bellini Diefenbach, all of 115; Brebber, Rowsell, Howard, and Probyn, of 278; Tellan, 424 (18°); G. Blake, 893; J. Knight, 1331; Wm. H. Farr, 1424; Else, Reid, Sheppard, and O'Neil, 325 (I.C.); J. Macdonald and J. Emslie, 160 (S.C.); and W. Teat, 576 (S.C.) The business of the evening was to pass Bros. Evans and Sinclair Forbes, and to raise Bros. Brown and Stillman. Bros. Evans and Forbes having been duly passed, Bro. King, J.W., gave them the charge in his usually correct and impressive manner. Bro. White, S.W., then riveted the attention of the large gathering by giving the Lecture in the Second Degree, and received highly complimentary remarks afterwards on his excellent rendering of this interesting portion of our traditional history. The instructive and beautiful ritual of the Third Degree was then proceeded with, and Bros. Brown and Stillman were raised by the W.M. in his well-known form to the Sublime Degree. This part of our ceremonies has for the past two years been worked by Bros. Cunningham and Conroy in a manner which called forth the greatest admiration, but through the hearty co-operation and assistance of the officers, the present incumbent of King Solomon's chair has been enabled to make such improvements in drapery and musical accompaniments as to work the ritual in a manner never attempted before, perhaps, in this lodge, and certainly in very few others. After the lodge had been successively lowered, and some routine business transacted, Bro. Bacon, the W.M., proposed that the thanks of the members be accorded direct from the chair to the R.W. Dep. D. Grand Master, Bro. G. J. Gilbard, and the R.W. the Past Prov. G. Master of Manitoba, Bro. the Rev. W. Stewart Pattison, for honouring the lodge that evening with their presence. Bro. Gilbard, D.D.G.M., in reply, said it was quite true, as the W.M. had stated, that his professional duties took up a great deal of time, but he should never feel he was straining a point of time to come among the brethren of Inhabitants Lodge. On the contrary, he was pleased that evening to have an opportunity of visiting them, and proud indeed to be a member of a lodge in which the work was carried out with such attention to detail as he had seen that night. The Inhabitants Lodge had for some years back been distinguished for the excellence of its work, but when he saw the present W.M. and officers displaying such an interest, and going through these impressive ceremonies without a hitch, he ventured to say that this lodge was adding considerably to its popularity, and predicted for it, as he heartily wished, increased success and prosperity. Masonry in Gibraltar had to be carried on very often under a great disadvantage, owing to the frequent changes that occurred amongst the military brethren, but he was pleased to notice from the large gathering before him that this lodge had not suffered from the last removal of regiments, but, on the contrary, its numbers must have increased, a fact which must be immensely gratifying to both the W.M. and his officers. He thanked the lodge most cordially for the vote just put from the chair, and promised another visit during the winter. R.W. Bro. Pattison, the P.P.G.M. of Manitoba, also replied, thanking the lodge for the vote just passed. He had visited them two months ago, and was so much pleased with the work on that occasion that he expressed a desire to see the Third Degree given. The W.M. having kindly sent an invitation, he availed himself of it, and must acknowledge the great pleasure derived from what he had that night seen. He wished the lodge all the success which the excellence of its work so amply merited, and was quite sure, under its present chief, the popularity and usefulness of the Inhabitants Lodge would not wane. Two candidates were then proposed for initiation, and the lodge was closed in due and ancient form. The anthems sung during the evening were "Guide us, O Thou Great Jehovah;" "Solemn strikes the fun'ral chime;" and Mendelssohn's "Just as a father pitieth his own children;" the latter well rendered by Bro. Myatt, accompanied by Bro. King, J.W. and Organist. The whole are from the collection of Bro. Dr. Spark, procured by P.M. Bro. Cunningham when in the chair of 153. At the banquet table the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, that of "The Visitors" being responded to by Bro. Rev. W. S. Pattison, P.G.M. of Manitoba; Bros. Kennedy, P.M. 1331; Rowsell for 278; Morello for 115; Else on behalf of 325 (I.C.); and J. Macdonald for 160 (S.C.), "Roman Eagle;" and a little harmony brought to a close an evening which had for its characteristics work, instruction, interest, and pleasure.

ABERGAVERNNEY.—Philanthropic Lodge (No. 818).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held in the lodge-room, on Friday, the 24th ult. Bro. T. Hanley presided. The only business on the paper was the installation of the W.M. and the investiture of officers. The lodge being duly opened Bro. G. H. Gorvin, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., was requested by the W.M. to perform the ceremony. Bro. G. H. Gorvin thereupon took the chair, and installed Bro. H. R. Barrett, the respected S.W. and W.M. elect, as W.M. for the ensuing year. The following brethren were appointed to assist him for the ensuing year: Bros. T. Hanley, I.P.M.; G. H. Gorvin, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., D.C.; J. O. Marsh, S.W.; W. R. Eames, J.W.; W. C. Freeman, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Sec.; E. L. Baker, S.D.; E. Hampton, J.D.; Rev. J. W. Osman, Chaplain; C. Howells, Org.; B. E. Hodgson, I.G.; W. O. Pegler and J. Hanley, Stewards; and J. Green, Tyler. At the termination of the proceedings a banquet, prepared by Bro. Wm. Tucker, under the direction of the Stewards, Bros. C. Bailey, P.M. 818, and G. H. Gorvin, P.M. 818, P.P.G.A.D.C., was held at the Greyhound Hotel. About fifty brethren, consisting of the above-mentioned officers (with the exception of the Chaplain), sat down, among whom were the following: Bros. J. R. Jenkins, P.M., P.P.J.C.; S. H. Steele, P.M. 818; H. Feathers, W.M. Kennard Lodge; S. H. Facey, P.M.; W. Williams, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; J. Bishop, P.S.W.; J. L. C. B. Little; J. Smith, P.S.W.; C. Williams, T. Moore, C. Wilson, J. Howard, W. Hands, S. Eames, W. Charles, R. Shackleton, J. Thomas, D. Gwyar, H. Harris, John Thomas, T. Judd, H. Timkins, and others. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Bro. H. R. Barrett, W.M. elect, thanked the brethren in feeling terms for the honour they had conferred upon him in electing him to the highest honour in the lodge, and expressed his intention, with the able assistance of his officers, to carry out the duties of his office to the best of his ability, without fear or favour. A most enjoyable evening was spent, and the proceedings terminated to the entire satisfaction of all present.

MANCHESTER.—Truth Lodge (No. 1458).—This lodge held its meeting on Saturday, the 1st inst. After the lodge was opened, the minutes being confirmed, the ball was taken for Mr. W. A. Burton, which being unanimous, he was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. This being the day of election of W.M., the ballot was taken, the result being unanimous in favour of Bro. Iliff, S.W. Bro. Proctor was again elected Treasurer. The lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 6.30.

WEST GORTON.—Ashbury Lodge (No. 1459).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 22nd ult., at the Justice Birch Hotel. There were present Bros. Hughes, W.M.; Cummings, S.W.; Newton, J.W.; Abbott, P.M., Treas.; W. Wright, S.D.; F. Roberts, acting I.G.; Reynolds, Sec.; Brownridge, I.P.M.; J. Meadows, Tyler; John Gallagher, P.M.; Jas. Moors, P.M.; Aspenall, P.M.; John Battersby, J. Wilson, J. Wormald, J. P. Harvey, Jas. Storey, J. Wright, and Jas. Ryder. Visitors: Bros. E. Elphinstone, S.W. 210; A. Sligh, P.M. 210; Penton, W.M. 210; and R. R. Lisenenden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at 6.45, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. A candidate was due for raising, but, although the W.M. waited for him some considerable time, he failed to put in an appearance, to the great disappointment of the visitors, who had fully expected to see some "work." The lodge was gradually raised to the Third Degree, and afterwards lowered to the First, when the W.M. announced that it was customary to elect a W.M. for the ensuing year on that evening. Several brethren being eligible for that honourable post, their names were handed to each member of the lodge present, who affixed their mark against the name of the candidate of their choice, when it was found, on the papers being collected and examined by the W.M., that, with one single exception, the whole of the brethren had recorded their votes in favour of the S.W., Bro. Cummings. The announcement was received with warm applause, as Bro. Cummings is a most assiduous and thoroughly excellent worker, and well deserves the honour bestowed upon him. The newly-elected W.M., in a few well-chosen sentences, thanked the brethren for their appreciation of his humble services. Bro. Abbott, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Meadows Tyler. A communication was read by the Secretary from Provincial Grand Lodge respecting joining members, the particulars of which have already been commented upon in this paper. "Hearty good wishes" having been expressed by the visitors the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 8.15. The brethren afterwards sat down to supper, and on the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to, and after a most enjoyable evening they separated at 11 o'clock.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The first monthly meeting of this lodge after the installation meeting was held on Tuesday, the 28th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, when there was an attendance of about sixty members and visitors. Bro. J. B. MacKenzie, W.M., occupied his position in the E., and amongst his chief supporters were Bros. Lindo Courtenay, I.P.M.; W. J. Chapman, M.C., P.M.; Joseph Bell, P.M., P.P.G.J.D.; W. W. Sandbrook, S.W.; John Atkinson, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treasurer (W.M. 1356); F. Wilkinson, Secretary; R. Burgess, Organist; J. Pyer, J.D.; W. Savage, I.G.; H. P. Squire, S.S.; C. Courtenay, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. S. Mattison; D. Saunders, W. Addis, I. de Frece, J. E. Jackson, P.P.S., S. of W.; J. Shrapnell, W. Williams, R. Williams, H. Round, W. Heap, J. Adams, J. Keet, J. W. Collinson, J. Brown and others. The list of visitors included Bros. Allen, Cyril Searl, H. C. Sidney, Little, Hanmer, P.M. 1016; J. Banning, P.P.G.O. Westmorland and Cumberland, and others. Mr. Ellis Brammall, jun., was duly initiated, and Bro. Collinson raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. In the course of the after banquet proceedings, Bro. John A'kinson, J.W., was presented with an exceedingly valuable timepiece pendant for watch guard, in the form of cross pens, and an illuminated address (along with a splendid suite of jewellery, with diamond setting, for Mrs. Atkinson), in recognition of his admirable services as Secretary since the consecration of the Dramatic Lodge. The W.M. referred to the value of the services given by Bro. Atkinson, so heartily and spontaneously, and the gifts (subscribed for privately by about sixty members of the lodge), were feelingly acknowledged by Bro. Atkinson. During the evening songs and recitations were given by Bros. L. Courtenay, H. C. Sidney, D. Saunders, Allan, Searle, Brammall, Webster, Williams, and others.

RHYLL.—Caradoc Lodge (No. 1674).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday, the 3rd inst., at their own hall. There were present Bros. W. H. Foulkes, W.M.; K. McEwen, J.W.; W. T. Girdlestone, Treas.; H. S. Steer, Sec.; E. W. Keating, J.D.; E. Groant, D.C.; W. Hackforth, I.G.; G. D. Burdett, Stewd.; J. Bayliss, Tyler; Jas. Salmon, P.P.G.S.D. Cheshire, P.P. G. J. W. North Wales and Shropshire, P.M.; J. Lean, T. H. Griffiths, T. Hughes, J. P. Lewis, R. Hughes, R. Roberts, S. E. Lloyd, J. Wrigley, Organist. Visitors: J. Brownley, 279; F. W. Jarman, 606. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bros. Buckley Hughes, M.P., D.P. G.M. North Wales and Shropshire, and C. H. Hanner, 74, as joining members, and they were unanimously elected. The ballot was taken for Mr. P. P. Pratt, which was favourable. Messrs. N. L. Clercs (previously balloted for) and P. P. Pratt were then duly initiated.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB (No. 58).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held on Friday, the 31st ult., at London Masonic Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. There were present Bros. Wells, W.M.; Chapman, S.W.; Joseph Langton, J.W.; J. D. Langton, Sec.; Hogg, Treas.; J. D. Langton, S.D.; Barnett, J.D.; Garland, I.G.; J. S. Fraser, Preceptor; and Williams. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. J. D. Langton acting as candidate. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree. The W.M. vacated the chair, and Bro. Chapman occupied it instead, Bro. Barnett taking the S.W.'s chair. Bro. Williams being a candidate for the Third Degree answered the usual questions. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Williams was raised to the Degree of M.M. The W.M. rose for the first time. Bro. J. D. Langton proposed, Bro. Joseph Langton seconded, and it was carried unanimously, "That Bro. W. Mackay, of the Asaph Lodge, No. 1319, be elected a member of this lodge of instruction." W.M. rose for the second time. Bro. Barnett was unanimously elected W.M. for the next meeting. W.M. rose for the third time, and the lodge was closed.

SUNDERLAND.—Sunderland Lodge (held under the warrant of the Phoenix Lodge, No. 97).—The regular meeting of the above lodge of instruction was held in the Masonic Hall on Wednesday, the 22nd ult., at 7 p.m. There were present Bros. R. Hudson, P.M. 1389, Preceptor; Kinmond, J.W. 80, acting W.M. The minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed, and the lodge was opened and closed in the Three Degrees. The Second Degree was rehearsed by the acting W.M. in a Masonic manner. The Lecture on the First Tracing Board was given by Bro. M. Frampton, W.M. 94, reflecting credit upon himself and the lodge. Bro. T. M. Watson, W.M. 97, proposed Bros. Fairclough, Singleton, and Nasbett as members of this lodge. Bro. McNamara proposed "That the Three Sections be worked at next lodge," which was seconded by Bro. Kinmond, acting W.M. No other business being before the meeting the lodge was closed in due and solemn form. The brethren then retired to refreshment, when the usual Masonic toasts were given, and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

Royal Arch.

WHITEHAVEN.—Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter (No. 119).—The quarterly convocation of this flourishing chapter was held on Friday afternoon, the 31st ult., in the Freemasons' Hall, College-street. There were present Comps. Dr. Henry, P.G.S.N., M.E.Z.; W. B. Gibson, P.Z.; P.P.G.J.; E. Fearon, P.Z.; W. Sandwith, P.Z.; W. F. Lamony, P.P.G. Swd. Br., H. (Freemason); E. Tyson, P.G.D.C., J.; J. Rothery, S.E.; and about twenty others. Comp. Jos. Nicholson, M.E.Z. Nicholson Chapter, No. 371, Maryport, was present as a visitor. The chapter having been opened, the minutes were read and confirmed, after which E. Comp. T. Dodgson, P.Z. and Z. Furness Chapter, No. 995, Ulverston, P.P.G.D.C. West Lancashire, and a member of No. 119, took the chair as Installing Principal, when the Three Principals elect were duly installed as follows: Comps. W. F. Lamony, Z.; E. Tyson, H.; and T. Atkinson, J. The other officers invested were: Comps. J. Rothery, S.E. (re-elected); T. Dixon, S.N. (re-elected); J. M'Kelvie, Treas. (re-elected); G. Dalrymple, P.S.; C. H. Hodgson, 1st A.S.; F. Hodgson, 2nd A.S.; J. Cooper, Org.; W. Jackson and E. Clark, Stewards; G. Fitzgerald, Janitor. The whole ceremony was performed by the Installing Principal with an impressiveness and elocutionary ability rarely heard, and Comp. Dodgson was awarded a cordial vote of thanks for his excessive kindness in attending, on the proposition of the First and Second Principals. After a brother of Lodge 872, and another of Lodge 1267, had been proposed as candidates for exaltation, the chapter was solemnly closed. Subsequently the companions had some light refreshment, the customary banquet having been dispensed with, on account of charitable calls on the funds of the chapter. This is a worthy innovation, though we dare be bound some companions accepted the change with an ill grace. The usual toasts were duly honoured, and a couple of hours were pleasantly spent.

LEICESTER.—Chapter of Fortitude (No. 279).—A regular convocation of this chapter was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 23rd ult. There were present Comps. J. T. Thorp, Z.; J. W. Smith, H.; Clement Stretton, P.Z., as J.; Robert Waite, P.Z.; Geo. Toller, jun., P.Z.; Clement E. Stretton, E.; T. Worthington, P.S.; T. Colman, Treas.; the Rev. C. H. Wood, John H. Thompson, L. P. Chamberlain; J. H. Hale, P.S. 360, and many others. The chapter having been opened in ancient form, Bros. John Roadknight, Edward Watson, Alfred Chamberlin, and also James Tanser (as a serving companion by dispensation) were admitted and exalted to this Degree by the M.E.Z. Comps. William Kelly and George Toller, jun., were re-elected as representatives upon the Freemasons' Hall Committee. The ordinary business being concluded the chapter was closed. After supper the loyal and Royal Arch toasts followed in their usual order.

TUNIS.—Ancient Carthage Chapter (No. 1717).—The first regular meeting of this chapter after the summer recess took place on Saturday, the 25th ult. The chapter was duly opened at 5.30 p.m., and there were present E. Comps. A. M. Broadley, Z.; Dr. Mugnaini, H.; Baron Dr. Castellnuovo, J.; J. H. Stevens, E.; G. Pentecost, N.; Professor V. C. Clement, Reg.; Professor Souiller, Interpreter; Dr. Perini (W.M. 1717, E.C.), P.S.; G. B. Cassar, 1st A.S.; J. Barsotti, 2nd A.S.; Eymon, Janitor; and others. After the confirmation of the minutes Comp. Thomas Fellowes Reade, P.D.D.G.M. Egypt, her Britannic Majesty's Agent Consul General at Tunis, was elected a joining member. E. Comp. Broadley, on behalf of himself and the other Principals, expressed a desire to retire from office, and a ballot for three Principals was taken accordingly. The ballot resulted as follows: Comps. T. F. Reade, P.M. 1068, Z.; A. Perini, M.D., W.M. 1717, H.; J. E. L. Barker, C.E., W.M. 1835, J. A very cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the outgoing Principals, under whose rule the chapter has achieved a signal success. The M.E.Z. has exalted no less than thirty-four M.M.'s to the Sublime Degree since the chapter was consecrated on the 26th June, 1878. The chapter then adjourned.

Mark Masonry.

WHITEHAVEN.—Fletcher Lodge (No. 213).—A meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, College-street, on Friday, the 31st ult. Though constituted about eighteen months ago, from various causes very few meetings have been held, and the opportunity was seized to infuse a little more vitality by summoning the lodge the same afternoon as Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, No. 119, held its annual convocation. The meeting was a thorough success, a number of visiting brethren being present from other lodges in the province, including Bros. Jos. Nicholson, P.M. 151, P.P. G.S.W.; G. Dalrymple, P.M. 216, P.G.J.D.; J. Harper, P.M. 216, P.G. Swd. Br.; W. F. Lamony, P.M. 229, P.P.G.A.D.C. (Freemason), and others. The lodge was opened by Bro. Dr. Henry, W.M., assisted by the following officers:—Bros. W. B. Gibson, S.W.; E. Clark, 216, as J.W.; W. White, M.O.; T. C. Robinson, S.O. 229, as S.O.; J. J. Robinson, 216, as J.O.; E. Tyson, Sec. and Treas.; H. Peacock, J.O. 229, as S.D.; J. Wilson, I.G. After the minutes were read and confirmed, ballots were taken for Bros. J. M'Kelvie, P.M. 119; W. Holloway, 119; and Geo. Fitzgerald, 119, as candidates for advancement, and they were accepted, as also Bro. Geo. Sparrow, True Blue Lodge, No. 935, Wexford, Ireland, as a joining member. Two of the three brethren elected being in attendance, Bro. Dalrymple, W.M. 216, was invited to take the chair, and he, with the assistance of Bro. Lamony, P.M. 229, advanced the candidates to the Honourable Degree, the other officers performing their respective duties to perfection. The W.M. then resumed the chair, and the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler was proceeded with, Bro. Dr. Henry was unanimously re-elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. Tyson, Treas.; and Bro. Fitzgerald, Tyler. Bro. Dalrymple was proposed as a joining member, and the lodge was then closed. There is no doubt that Fletcher Lodge will now go on flourishing, for it shows what good can be effected by members of prosperous lodges coming forward to lend a helping hand to a struggling organisation.

Knights Templar.

SOUTHPORT.—De Lacy Encampment (No. 95).—The annual installation ceremony of Knights Templar enrolled under the banner of the De Lacy Encampment in this town, and under the Eminent Commandership of Sir Knight J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.C. of the William de la More Encampment, and P. Prov. 1st Grand Captain, was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Nevill-street, on Tuesday, the 21st ult. There was a good muster of swords; the occasion, amongst those present being Sir Knights Clement R. N. Beswicke-Roys, Very Eminent Prov. Grand Commander, and Henry Thomas, Prov. Grand Chancellor, of the County Palatine of Lancaster. Sir Knight C. R. W. Beswicke-Roys, according to ancient custom, installed Sir Knight J. H. T. Cottier as Eminent Commander for the ensuing year. The newly-installed Commander then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers, who were as follows: Sir Knights J. W. J. Fowler, P.E.C.; Rev. C. S. Hope, Prelate; John Sutton, Constable; Wm. Taylor, Marshal; Wm. Dodd, Treas.; Dr. G. B. Baker, Sub-Marshal; T. S. Cory, Captain of Lines; W. H. Johnson, Registrar; John Barratt, 1st Standard Bearer; Ralph Heap, 2nd Standard Bearer; J. H. Welsby, 1st Herald; J. C. Seidenstricker, 2nd Herald; John Barratt, Almoner; George Rockliff, Equerry. After the usual business of the encampment, the Sir Knights adjourned to the Victoria Hotel to partake of a sumptuous repast, provided by Sir Knight J. C. Seidenstricker, which was duly honoured and appreciated.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PREMIER CONCLAVE.—An emergency convocation of this old and popular conclave was held on the 30th ult. at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of Sir Knight T. Kingston, M.P.S.; Sir Knight Nunn, P.G.V., &c.; Sir Knights Woodman, G.R.; Levander, Grand Treas., Recorder; Marsh, P.S.; Cubitt, P.S.; Shirley, T. Massa, Prefect; Letchworth, Peek, Moses, T. C. Walls, A.D.C. (Freemason); Gilbert and Harrison, Sentinels. The ballot was taken on behalf of Bros. William Kingston, District Grand Master of Malta, and Henry Blake, Lodge 213, Norwich, and it proving unanimous, those brethren were duly installed as Knights Red Cross by the M.P.S. The higher grades of the Order were then conferred upon those Sir Knights, together with Sir Knight Moses, the ceremonies being performed by Sir Knight Levander. The conclave was shortly afterwards dissolved, and the Sir Knights partook of an excellent banquet. It being only an emergency meeting, the after proceedings were shorn of their customary long array of toasts. "The Health of the Newly-Installed Sir Knights" was, however, warmly proposed by the M.P.S., and having been heartily received, it was acknowledged by Sir Knights Kingston and Blake in well expressed terms. "The M.P.S." followed, and having been briefly responded to, the proceedings terminated.

Swedenborgian Rite.

ROYAL OSCAR LODGE AND TEMPLE (No. 9).—A meeting of this flourishing lodge and temple was held at the Bee Hive Hotel, Mount Pleasant, Liverpool, on the 22nd ult., at which the following officers and other brethren were present: Bros. W. T. May, W.M.; Thomas Clark, I.P.M.; Thomas Roberts, S.W.; W. Brackenbury, J.W.; H. Burrows, S.D.; J. H. Hall, J.D.; R. Pearson, Treas.; J. Seddon, J. Sampson, C. Furness, H. Horspool, and C. Jacobs. The visitors were Bros. Major George Turner, P.M., Prov. G.M.; Reginald Young, P.M. No. 6; and W. J. Thompson, P.M. After the ordinary business the temple was solemnly opened on the Third (Sixth) Degree, and having been duly closed, the lodge resumed, and the following brethren were unanimously elected to serve as officers during the ensuing year: Bros. Thomas Roberts, W.M.; W. Brackenbury, S.W.; H. Burrows, J.W.; Major George Turner, P.M., Prov. G.M., Treas.; W. J. Thompson, P.M., Chaplain; Reginald Young, P.M., Master of Ceremonies; Charles Jacobs, Secretary; J. H. Hall, S.D.; C. Furness, J.D.; J. Seddon, Registrar; J. Sampson, S.B.; and H. Horspool, P. Other business having been transacted, the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous repast, at which the usual toasts were proposed and responded to, and a very pleasant evening was spent to the entire satisfaction of the brethren.

CONSECRATION OF THE PANMURE LODGE OF ROYAL ARK MARINERS.

The consecration of this new lodge of Royal Ark Mariners took place on Monday last at the Balham Hotel, Balham. The Panmure Mark Lodge was opened at five o'clock by the W.M., Bro. C. Pulman, P.G. Steward, P.M., supported by Bros. Gibson, S.W.; Ackland, J.W.; Mitchell, M.O.; Baldwin, J.O.; Lilley, P.M., Treas.; Gunner, S.C.; Whittaker, I.G.; Steedman, Tyler; Hawkins, and Vincent; with visitors: Bros. H. Lovegrove, Prov. G.S. of W., and Hayes, J.D. 198.

After the transaction of some routine business the lodge was closed.

A lodge of Royal Ark Mariners was then opened, with Bros. Poore, as N.; Lovegrove, as P.N.; Mitchell, as J.; Gibson, as S.; Baldwin, as D.; and Hayes, as G., when Bros. Ackland, W. Poore, Whittaker, Steedman, Lilley, Hawkins, Gunner, and Vincent were duly elevated.

The chair was then assumed by Bro. D. M. Dewar, who gave the usual address, and Bro. Poore having presented Bro. Pulman as W.C.N. designate, a Board of Installed Commanders was formed by Bros. Dewar, Poore, and Lovegrove, and Bro. Pulman was installed in ancient form.

The customary salutes were given, and the officers invested as follows: Bros. Gibson, J.; Mitchell, S.; Lilley, Treas.; Hawkins, Sec.; Ackland, S.D.; Vincent, J.D. Gunner, G.; and Steedman, Warden.

At the completion of the business the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was served in Bro. Lilley's usual excellent style.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

The Quarterly Convocation of Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Comp. Rawson acted as M.E.Z.; Comp. W. Platt, as H.; and Comp. Capt. N. G. Philips, as J. The other companions present were Comps. E. E. Wendt, as S.N.; H. G. Buss, as S.E.; A. A. Pendlebury, J. A. Rucker, as P.S.; Robert Gray, as 1st A.S.; the Rev. C. W. Arnold, as 2nd A.S.; J. Lewis Thomas, Swd. Br.; S. Mullens, D.C.; Col. Creaton, Treas.; E. S. Snell, T. Fenn, Francis Robinson, J. C. Parkinson, A. J. Duff Filer, Joshua Nunn, Peter de L. Long, Col. Shadwell H. Clerke, J. M. Case, F. Adlard, H. Maudslay, James Glaisher, E. J. Barron, H. J. P. Dumas, G. de Lucena, P.Z. 239; J. S. Hickley, P.Z. 723; James Hillhouse, J. 228; Neville Green, H. 1524; William Dodd, P.Z. 1194; James W. Lambert, H. 142; E. Crouch, Z. 857; Geo. E. Walters, Z. 1598; P. Parsons, Z. 1348; W. H. Perryman, J. 1348; J. Fenn, H. 417; J. McDougall, P.Z. 913, and P.G.S.B.; F. Driver, P.Z. 742; R. Loveland Loveland, P.Z. 175, 357, and P.G.S.N.; W. R. Marsh, J. 1598; Chas. Fredk. Hogard, P.Z., J. 142; George Lambert, P.Z. 7 and 21; Thomas Massa, J. 1293; H. Hacker, P.Z. 723; Walter Sowdon, P.Z. 723; J. E. Middleton, H. 2; E. Letchworth, P.Z. 1237; Joseph Brown, P.Z. 723; F. Adlard, P.Z. 214; George Brooke, H. 63; J. J. Berry, Z. 554; H. E. Frances, P.Z. 887; H. Sadler, G. Janitor; and H. Massey (Freemason).

The minutes of last Quarterly Convocation having been read and confirmed, Comp. H. G. Buss informed the acting G.Z. that it was with very sincere regret he had to announce that Comp. Hervey, G. Scribe E., was still compelled to be absent on account of severe indisposition. He saw Comp. Hervey the previous evening, when he expressed his great regret that he would not be able to attend the present convocation.

Comp. Rawson said he was sure that all the companions would regret as much as he did that Grand Scribe E. was still suffering from severe indisposition. (Hear, hear.)

Col. Creaton, G. Treasurer, moved, and Comp. Robert Gray seconded, that the report of the Committee of General Purposes be taken as read and received, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. This motion was carried.

The following petitions for charters for new chapters were then granted, as recommended by the Committee—
1st. From Comps. Thomas William Adams, as Z.; George Samuel Elliott, as H.; John Bairstow Shackleton, as J.; and eight others for a chapter to be attached to the West Smithfield Lodge, No. 1623, London, to be called the West Smithfield Chapter, and to meet at the New Market Hotel, Snow Hill, West Smithfield, in the City of London.

2nd. From Comps. Richard Nicholas Howard, as Z.; William Smith, as H.; James Jesty, as J.; and eight others for a chapter to be attached to the Portland Lodge, No. 1237, Portland, to be called the Portland Chapter, and to meet at the Portland Hall, Portland, in the county of Dorset.

3rd. From Comps. James Keith Grosjean, as Z.; John Smorfitt, as H.; George Archer, as J.; and eight others for a chapter to be attached to the Zetland Lodge, No. 1157, Alexandria, to be called the Zetland Chapter, and to meet at Alexandria, Egypt.

4th. From Comps. Thomas B. Whythead, as Z.; John pite Cumberland, as H.; Philip Henry Rowland, as J.; and nine others for a chapter to be attached to the Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, York, to be called the Eboracum Chapter, and to meet at the Queen's Hotel, in the city of York.

With respect to the chapter at Alexandria, Comp. H. J. P. Dumas asked whether a more specific spot than Alexandria should not be named for the meeting of the chapter. Alexandria was a large place, and he thought the precise place in which the chapter was to meet should be named, the same as with the chapters which met in England. If a charter was granted for a chapter to meet in Paris its precise locality would have to be named, in order that the chapter might be found.

Comp. Case thought there would be no difficulty in this respect in the case of a chapter at Alexandria, because the reports would have to be sent to the Grand Scribe E. of the places where the chapter met, and if it was removed the removal would have to be notified.

Comp. Dumas said he did not anticipate any difficulty, but he merely asked for the sake of information to the companions at large. In England the place of meeting had to be named, as was seen by the other petitions on the paper.

Comp. Rawson said the places in Alexandria where a chapter could meet were few and far between, and there would be no difficulty experienced in finding out the place of meeting. In answer to Comp. George Lambert, Comp. Rawson said there would be no clashing with other jurisdictions; there was no other Grand Lodge or Chapter there.

The next petition recommended to be granted was from Comps. John Fenn, as Z.; Alexander Richardson, as H.; Richard Croisdale, as J.; and six others for a chapter to be attached to the Aldershot Camp Lodge, No. 1331, Aldershot, to be called the Aldershot Camp Chapter, and to meet at the Assembly Rooms, Aldershot, in the county of Hants.

Comp. H. Hacker asked whether since this petition had been recommended by the Committee any communication had been received from the Grand Superintendent of the province.

Col. Creaton said such a communication had been received after the report of the Committee had been printed and published.

Comp. Buss then read a letter from Comp. W. W. B.

Beach, Provincial Grand Superintendent for Hants and the Isle of Wight, stating that since he had recommended the petition circumstances had come to his knowledge which caused him to recommend that the warrant should be postponed for the present, and that in the meantime he would attend at Aldershot and make enquiries.

Comp. Hacker said that under those circumstances he should say no more, but would ask Grand Chapter to postpone the granting of the warrant.

A long discussion then arose on this point.
Comp. John Fenn wished to say a few words before the question was postponed.

Comp. Rawson thought that as the Provincial Superintendent had withdrawn his recommendation Grand Chapter had no power to consider the question. A charter in the country could not be granted without the recommendation of the Superintendent.

Comp. John Fenn said that in consequence of its having been recommended by Comp. Beach, Grand Chapter Committee recommended it.

Comp. E. J. Barron thought otherwise. The petition having been recommended to be granted, that question was before Grand Chapter, although it might be convenient to postpone the consideration of it.

The Rev. C. W. Arnold did not see how the letter of the Superintendent could overrule the agenda paper.

Col. Creaton felt bound to say that when the Committee received a petition duly signed, and recommended by the Grand Superintendent, they had no alternative but to bring it before Grand Chapter, and it was a great pity that the Grand Superintendent and the companions who signed the petition did not enquire more fully before sending it. It was, he thought, playing fast and loose with the Committee, and not treating them properly.

Comp. Joshua Nunn submitted that the Grand Chapter was at liberty to discuss the propriety of granting the petition now. Any letter received after the petition had been recommended by the Committee could have no weight.

Comp. Rawson observed that the Provincial Superintendent having written this letter had really withdrawn his recommendation. His own feeling was that the question should be decided at once, and the petition not be entertained. Where a Superintendent was in error he should be allowed to correct that error.

Comps. Robert Gray, John Fenn, and C. F. Hogard, begged to enter their protest. Comps. J. M. Case, James Lewis Thomas, and C. W. Arnold contended that the matter should be postponed, and Comp. C. W. Arnold made a motion to that effect, which Comp. Robert Gray seconded, and the question was agreed to be deferred till next Grand Chapter.

The report of the Committee concluded as follows:—

The Committee have likewise to report that, in consequence of a statement made by the Provincial Grand Scribe E. for North Wales and Shropshire, that the Star of Gwynedd Chapter, No. 384, Bangor, was extinct, and it appearing by the Grand Chapter records that no return had been received from that chapter since 1857—one companion only having been exalted therein since the date of the charter, 27th June, 1856—the chapter, No. 384, was taken out of the register.

It now appears that the charter of the said chapter is in the custody or possession of the St. David's Lodge, No. 384, Bangor, and that no present member of that lodge is now, or ever has been, a member of the chapter. The lodge has therefore been directed by the Committee to surrender the charter to be cancelled, but as the lodge has refused or neglected to comply with this order, the Grand Chapter Committee refer the matter to the Board of General Purposes, and beg to request that the W.M. of the St. David's Lodge, No. 384, may be ordered to forward to the Grand Scribe E. the charter of the said late Star of Gwynedd Chapter, No. 384.

Comp. Thomas Fenn wished to know by whom this chapter was taken out of the register, as no one had a right to do so but Grand Chapter.

Col. Creaton said the chapter was taken out of the register because no returns had been made by it.

Grand Chapter was then closed.

THE MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

A meeting of those interested in carrying out the annual Masonic ball in aid of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution was held on Friday, the 30th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street.

Bro. J. F. Newell, P.G.J.W. (Mayor of Bootle), was elected Chairman of the Committee; Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C., Vice-Chairman; Bro. A. C. Wylie, W.M. 292, S.W. 1264, Secretary; and Bro. T. Salter, W.M. 241, Treasurer.

It was resolved, subject to the Council regulations, to hold the ball at the Town Hall, on the second Tuesday in January, and after the various Committees had been appointed, the meeting was adjourned for a fortnight.

In connection with the Masonic charitable schemes, it may be stated that at the monthly meeting of the Dramatic Lodge this week it was also resolved to give another performance at the Royal Amphitheatre in December (the use of the theatre being kindly granted by Bro. Lindo Courtenay, I.P.M.) in aid of the Charities.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Much watchfulness must be exercised as winter advances, and the earliest evidences of ill-health must be immediately checked and removed, or a slight illness may result in a serious malady. Relaxed and sore throat, diphtheria, quinsy, throat cough, chronic cough, bronchitis, and most other pulmonary affections will be relieved by rubbing this cooling Ointment into the skin as near as practicable to the seat of mischief. This treatment, so simple and effective, is admirably adapted for the removal of these ailments during infancy and youth. Old asthmatic invalids will derive marvellous relief from the use of Holloway's remedies, which have brought round many such sufferers, and re-established health after every other means had signally failed.—[ADVT.]

THE ROYAL ARCH AT YORK.

In turning over the books and papers belonging to the York Lodge, No. 236, a few days since, with Bro. J. Todd, P.M. and Treasurer, for the purpose of making a catalogue, I took up an old MS. minute book, which at the first glance I suspected had been hitherto undescribed. Further enquiry and examination have convinced me that this is the case, and I have great pleasure in announcing that the York Lodge reckons amongst its relics of the past a minute book of the Grand Chapter of All England, dating from 1762, which is, I take it, sixteen years earlier than any previous minute of that body known to be in existence.

Our learned Bro. Hughan, in his "Sketches and Reprints," tells us that the earliest minute of Royal Arch Masonry is to be found in the Treasurer's book of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons at York, which says "A most sublime Royal Arch Chapter was opened on the 8th February, 1778." I have examined this book, which is one of those books formerly in the possession of the United Grand Lodge of England, and presented a few years ago, through the kindly exertions of Bro. Hughan, to the York Lodge. In connection with the earlier minute book just come to light it completes the chain of Royal Arch history at York from the 7th February, 1762, to the 10th September, 1781.

There are several peculiarities to be found in the early minutes of the Grand Chapter, worthy of notice, but a few remarks on the history of Masonry in York about that time will perhaps throw light upon them. From the second edition of "Mahabone, or the Grand Lodge Door Open'd," published in 1766, I find in the list of lodges appended thereto that a warrant was granted, dated the 12th January, 1761, for a lodge to meet at the *Punch Bowl Inn, Stonegate, York, on the 1st and 3rd Mondays of each month. The number of the warrant was 259. From the minute book of this lodge (also in the possession of the York Lodge, 236), I find that its first meeting was held on the 2nd February, 1761, "at Mrs. Chaddock's, at the Punch Bowl, in Stonegate." It would seem as if this event had stirred up the energies of the surviving members of the dormant Grand Lodge at York, for it was in the following month (March 17th, 1761) that they met and revived that body "at the house of Mr. Henry Howard, in Tendall, York," as every Masonic student well knows from Bro. Hughan's valuable work, to which I have before alluded.

Thus, the reader will see, it was in the following year, on Sunday, the 7th February, 1762, that "a most Sublime, or Royal Arch Lodge, open'd at the sign of the Punch Bowl."

The first Master of the Lodge No. 259 was Bro. Bridge Frodsham, who was in his day a Master of prominence in the North. The first S.W. was Bro. Oram, who was the manager of the York Theatre. The Grand Lodge of all England must at this period have been on excellent terms with the lodge hailing from London, for in the minute of the revival meeting, held on the 17th March, 1761, I find amongst the names of the visitors present several who appear on the minutes of Lodge 259 to have been made Masons under its warrant, whilst, in the very first minute of Lodge 259, on the other hand, appears the name of Bro. Coates, who was a Warden of the Grand Lodge of All England. These interchanges of visitors appear through all the earlier minutes, and prove that at this time there was no animosity between the York and London Grand Lodges. Bro. Beckwith, who was elected a member of the Grand Lodge at its revival meeting, had only been made a Mason in the Lodge 259 on February 16th, 1761, just a month previously; and in May, 1761, Bros. Agar, Palmes, Bewlay, and Howard (of Tendal), all of the Grand Lodge, were elected joining members of Lodge 259.

In a future paper I hope to say something about the minute book of this Punch Bowl Lodge, but having briefly noticed the condition of Masonry in York in 1761-2, I will at once go to the subject immediately in hand, the Old Royal Arch Minute Book.

It is a small quarto volume, and has neatly engrossed on its title page "Minute Book belonging the Most Sublime Degree or Order of Royal Arch appertaining to the Grand Lodge of All England, held at the City of York, 1762." The first minute I will reproduce exactly:

"A Most Sublime or Royal Arch Lodge open'd at the Sign of the Punch Bowl in Stonegate, York, on Sunday the 7th of February 1762. Present:

Frodsham P.H.	} in the Chairs.
Oram ... Z.L.
Granger ... J.A.
Owen.

"At this Lodge Brothers Burton Palmes, Tasker, and Dodgson petition'd to be raised to the 4th Degree of Masonry, commonly call'd the Most Sublime or Royal Arch, were accepted and accordingly made."

Then comes the cash account of the chapter for the evening, by which it appears that the fee "for advancement to the 4th Degree" was 11s. 6d., and then—

"This Lodge was closed till the 14th inst. by the Master's Directions."

I have already mentioned that Bro. Frodsham was the first W.M. of the Lodge 259, and that Bro. Oram was his Senior Warden. From the lodge minutes of 259 it also appears that Bro. Granger was its first Secretary, and that Bro. Owen had joined that lodge in January, 1762. The Grand Chapter would seem, therefore, to have been really formed by the brethren of Lodge 259, meeting at the Punch Bowl.

The next meeting of the chapter was held on the 21st of the same month, when the chairs were filled by Bros. Frodsham, Palmes, and Tasker, and Bro. Beckwith was chosen Secretary. The meetings were always held on Sunday at this period, and several members were the same year (1762) "excluded" for neglecting to pay their quarterages, and apparently there was a general laxity of interest, for on the 16th May, 1762, the "lodge was closed till the most convenient opportunity by order of the Masters in the chairs." No meeting was held until January 16th, 1763, and on February 6th, at a lodge of emergency, Bros. Palmes, Agar, and Tasker were elected to the chairs. Again on the 3rd April of that year the lodge was closed "to a convenient opportunity," and no meeting was held until January 23rd, 1764, when it was resolved "that this lodge should be continued by subscription for 4 nights." Meetings were held accordingly on March 4th, April 1st, and May 6th, 1764, but then there was a cessation of work until 16th February, 1766, and then an adjournment sine die. These few last named meetings were very thinly attended, and there were no candidates.

It was probably about this time that Lodge 259 ceased to exist. I have shown that in that year it appears on a list of lodges, although in December, 1767, the Grand Lodge at York informed the Grand Lodge in London that Lodge 259 had been "for some years discontinued."

The next meeting of the Royal Arch Masons was held on the 29th April, 1768, and it is noteworthy that this is the first minute in which the body is entitled a "chapter," previously it having been always denominated a "lodge." The same Principals occupied the chairs as on the last occasion, and six brethren "petitioned to become Sublime or Royal Arch Masons; they were admitted and accordingly made." Three new Principals were also appointed, and a new Secretary. The fee for exaltation was at this time six shillings. At a chapter held on May the 1st, 1768, a Sword Bearer (Janitor) was appointed, and it was agreed that the regular meetings should be held on the 1st Sunday in every calendar month. It was also agreed that every member should pay a quarterage of two shillings, and "he shall be allow'd to have every regular chapter sixpennyworth of any sort of liquor he chooses." The fees were also fixed at 5s. and 1s. to the Sword Bearer for each member admitted of the Grand Lodge in York, and 10s. 6d. and 1s. to the Sword Bearer for every other candidate. Every visitor was also to pay a shilling each time he attended, but had the same claim on the Punch Bowl tap as a member.

At this time candidates were proposed, balloted for, and made on the same evening. On the 5th June, 1768, a Bro. Burnand was refused on the ballot, and a Bro. Thorp, "of the lodge at Hull," was made a Royal Arch Mason. On the 17th August, at an emergency meeting, the day of meeting was altered from Sunday to the first Wednesday in each month. On the 2nd November of that year Bro. Bussey, afterwards Grand Secretary at York, was admitted, and I find Bro. Lakeland's name also prominent at the meetings.

Nothing specially remarkable occurs from this date until October 18th, 1769, when Bros. Meek and Atkinson, of Ripon, were admitted, and at an emergency meeting (28th December) Bros. King and Campey, of Ripon, were also made. "At this chapter Bros. Atkinson, King, and Campey, of Ripon, petitioned to have a constitution granted to hold a Royal Arch chapter at Ripon, the consideration of which is refer'd to the next lodge night, and notice thereof is to be given in the summonses." On the 7th February, 1770, "Bro. R. Consett," who would appear to have acted as counsel for the above-named petitioners, "petitioned for to have a constitution granted to open a Royal Arch chapter at Ripon for the use of the brethren, the which was balloted for and pas'd N.C.

Bro. Atkinson to be P.H.
" King " Z.L.
" Campey " J.A."

and at the March meeting "The constitution for opening and holding a Royal Arch chapter at Ripon was granted and sined in ample form; it was agreed to make them a present of it, only they paying the Secretary his fee."

At the same chapter Bro. Kedar, of Knaresborough, was admitted, and at the April meeting Bros. Bateson, Ackroyd, and Taylor, from Knaresborough, were made, and "the brethren from Knaresborough petitioned to have a constitution granted, to be opened and held at the sign of the Crown, in Knaresborough, which was agreed to.

Bro. Bateson to be P.H.
" Cowling Ackroyd Z.L.
" Hen. Taylor ... J.A."

At the next meeting in June, 1770, this Knaresborough constitution "was seal'd and sign'd."

In October, 1770, I find the following visiting brethren were present:—Bros. Proudfoot, O'Brien, Cannon, and Burke. These probably belonged to the regiment then lying in York Barracks, for it was "agreed to grant a constitution for the opening and holding a most Sublime Royal Arch chapter in the Inniskilling Regiment of Dragoons at all reasonable times, and when duly congregated to make Royal Arch Masons."

On the 1st March, 1771, the days of meeting were again altered to "the first Wednesday after Lady Day, Midsummer, Michaelmas, and Christmas, old stile." A candidate from Leeds was made in April, 1771, and the same year Bro. Kitson, a very prominent member of the Grand Lodge, was received.

On the 3rd June, 1772, the titles of the presiding officers seem to have been altered, and instead of P.H., Z.L., and J.A., I find them given as S., H.T., and H.A. After this minute occur a number of blank pages, as if rough minutes of meetings had been kept and not been entered up, and then comes an entry made 6th January, 1776, of the holding of a chapter on that day, when three candidates were "raised." This is the last minute in the book, and I find nothing between that and the entry in the later minute book, commencing 8th February, 1778, when Sunday was again adopted as the day of meeting at the Grub Tavern, York. In this later minute book the titles of the chairs remain S., H.T., and H.A. throughout.

Not the least interesting of the contents of this old relic are the "Rules and Orders of the Grand Chapter of All England," which are inserted at the end of the book in the neat handwriting of Bro. Lakeland, who acted as Secretary about 1776. They chiefly refer to fees, times of meeting, &c., and that in all cases the ballot must be unanimous. The last of the rules is as follows:—

"The fees charged in any Constitutions granted by this Grand Chapter are usually paid on delivery of the warrant, and are in future to be always so paid."

And then follow "The Principia to be observed by all Regular Constituted Chapters of the Degree of Royal Arch." These provide for annual returns of members to be made to the Grand Chapter at York, for all bye-laws to be subject to the approval of Grand Chapter, for the "Jewels and Ornaments" to be worn and used, and then the following, which I think worth giving in full:—

"That they make no innovation in the business of the chapter, and if any doubts should arise they must always be refer'd to the Grand Chapter for decision.

"That they shall contribute annually to the Grand Chapter at York so much as they reasonably can towards the fund to be employed to benevolent and advantageous purposes.

"That no man of bad or immoral character be admitted a companion,* nor any one until he hath passed the several probationary Degrees of Craft Masonry, and thereby obtained the necessary passport as a reward for his services. And no man may be admitted for an unworthy consideration.

"That they take every method to forward the true purpose of our Order, to promote all the useful arts and sciences, and create universal peace and harmony, and that every companion do consider it as his duty to lay before the chapter whatever may tend to such salutary purposes.

"That any new discovery or other matter thought worthy of observation be communicated to the Grand Chapter at York, who will always be ready to support and forward whatever may be found useful to the fraternity in general or that chapter in particular, not repugnant to the common welfare."

On a subsequent occasion I may continue some notes on the later minutes.

THE PRO GRAND MASTER AT READING.

The most numerous body of Masons ever brought together in the Royal county of Berks assembled at Reading on Monday to assist and support the popular Pro Grand Master (the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon) in setting, with Masonic rites, the memorial stone of the new Public Buildings in that rapidly increasing and prosperous borough. The ceremony had been arranged for the middle of last month, but as Lord Carnarvon was seized with a severe attack of gout, the event was postponed until Monday last. We regret, however, to state that our worthy Pro Grand Master appeared to be still suffering rather acutely, and moved with difficulty, even with the assistance of his valet and a walking stick. From the same cause his lordship was prevented honouring the Provincial Grand Lodge, held in the Corn Exchange, with his presence, or of joining in the procession from thence to the site of the new buildings, as the noble Earl had proposed doing (and as some of our daily contemporaries stated he did, falling into the error through taking it for granted that the printed programme was carried out in its entirety).

Another matter which elicited the sympathy and regret of the brethren was the unfortunate coincidence that both the Provincial Grand Master (Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P.) and also the Deputy Prov. G. Master (the Rev. A. P. Purey-Cust, Archdeacon of Bucks), were precluded from attending through illness. In the absence of these much esteemed brethren, the Provincial Grand Lodge was close tyed in the Corn Exchange at half-past 11 o'clock, under the presidency of Bro. the Rev. Sir John Warren Hayes, Bart., who for many years so worthily filled the position of Deputy Grand Master of the Province of Berks and Bucks.

In opening the lodge, Sir John expressed the regret that all would feel that the P.G.M. and D.P.G.M. were prevented by illness from being present.

A procession was then formed, passing from the Corn Exchange through the Market Place to the site of the new building in Blagrove-street.

When the head of the procession arrived at the buildings the brethren divided right and left, facing inwards, forming an avenue for the Provincial Grand Officers to pass through.

The brethren bearing the vessels containing the corn, wine, and oil, together with the mallet, having deposited the same on a pedestal placed for that purpose,

Silence was proclaimed by the Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, and the Mayor presented a handsome trowel to the M.W. the Pro Grand Master on behalf of the Building Committee, asking him to set the stone.

The architect presented to the Pro Grand Master the plans.

The Provincial Grand Chaplain, Bro. C. R. Honey, offered a prayer.

* This is the only occasion in the book where the term "companion" is used.

The Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Robert Bradley, read the inscription on the stone.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer, Bro. Charles Stephens, then deposited the vessel containing the oils and also the records.

An Entered Apprentice, Bro. Cundell, 574, then presented the cement to set the stone.

A hymn was then sung by the choir, under the direction of Bro. W. H. Strickland, P. Pro. G.O., during which the stone was lowered with three distinct stops.

The Pro Grand Master having proved by the mallet, square, level, and plumb, that the stone was well laid, received the cornucopia, and strewed some of Bro. Deller's Royal Masonic Pedigree Wheat, after which the Grand Wardens presented the ewers containing the wine and oil, which were poured out conformably to ancient custom.

Bro. the Rev. Sir. T. W. Hayes then offered a prayer and pronounced the Benediction.

The Earl of Carnarvon said: Mr. Mayor, ladies, and gentlemen,—I must say two or three words, and they shall be but two or three. I must thank you, sir, for the handsome trowel which you have been pleased to give me; I shall long retain it, I trust, and not only I, but my family, as an heirloom in memory of the work which you have entrusted to me to-day, and which I so deeply appreciate. (Applause.) I desire also to thank my Masonic brethren for being present on this occasion, and to assure you how much they likewise feel it to be an honour and a privilege to take part in this work of great public usefulness. (Applause.) Lastly, let me offer my hearty good wishes for the important group of buildings of which we are to-day laying the foundation stone. May the school of science and art spread far and wide in this town and neighbourhood a useful education (hear, hear); may the museum, already enriched by a precious gift, receive many more bequests, and have a crowd of students to study the works of nature which those specimens within its walls will reveal (hear, hear); may the library be a source of instruction and of happiness to young and to old, to rich and to poor alike (hear, hear); may the Town Hall carry out the best and finest traditions of self-government, the traditions of free speech, the traditions of law and of liberty. (Applause.) Mr. Mayor, I thank you deeply for having allowed me this important part and privilege to-day. (Applause.)

The Masons then returned to the Corn Exchange, and the lodge was closed in due form, the acting Provincial Grand Master thanking Bro. Biggs for his admirable management of the procession, and Bro. Bradley, the P.G. Sec., for his excellent arrangements.

The brethren then adjourned for luncheon, which was served by Bro. Watts, and presided over by Bro. W. W. Moxhay, P.P.G.S.W.

The usual Masonic toasts were given, and an admirable selection of music was performed under the direction of Bro. Strickland, P.G.O., who also presided at the harmonium during the ceremony at the site.

The musical arrangements at the public luncheon in the Town Hall were ably carried out by Bros. Marriott, Hunt, Dyson, and Briggs, of St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

The Masons present at the ceremony included Bros. the Rev. Sir J. W. Hayes, Bart., acting as Prov. Grand Master; E. J. Trendell, P.P.S.G.W., acting as D.P.G.M.; J. Blandy Jenkins, S.G.W.; J. McGubbin, J.G.W.; Revs. C. R. Honey, N. T. Garry, E. De Ewer, G. Chaplains; C. Stephens, G. Treas.; R. Bradley, G. Sec.; Jabez Adams, S.G.D.; Robt. Roberts, J.G.D.; Edward Baker, G.S.W.; R. Ravenor, G.D.C.; Joseph Elmes, A.G.D.C.; Jas. Rutland, G. Org.; W. G. Flanagan, G. Parst.; C. Nowell, A.G.P.; C. W. Cox, C. A. Vardy, Ephraim Davey, E. J. Shrewsbury, Dick Radclyffe, G. Stewards, and forty-one P.G. Officers; also Bros. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight; Reginald Bird, P.G.D., Deputy Prov. G.M. Oxon; T. H. Chandler, P.P.S.G.W. Wilts; W. B. Farr, P.S.G.W. Bengal; W. R. Wood, P.G. Steward, Eng., P.P.G.S.W. Sussex; Lainson, P.P.G.S.W. Sussex; J. M. Reid, P. Prov. G.S.W. Sussex; Darrell W. H. Horlock, P. Provincial Grand S.W. Cornwall; S. Surrey; Jno. Bond, P.G.P. Surrey; H. M. Powell, P.G.O. Hants; Fredk. Binckes, P.G. Steward; W. F. Freeman, P.G. Sec. Sussex; A. Portsmouth, P.P.G.D.C. Hants; and about two hundred members of lodges in the province and visitors.

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS WHITE.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. Thos. White, which occurred at his residence Moxted-road, Peckham, on the 4th inst. Bro. White was initiated in the Neptune Lodge, No. 22, was a P.M., and served as Steward of the "Girls" and "Boys," of both of which he was a Life Governor. In the year 1864, he was exalted to the Royal Arch Degree in Mount Zion Chapter, No. 22. A severe fall during the frost of last winter seriously affected him, and he had not been well from that time to his death. Bro. White was a good working Mason, and earned the esteem and respect of all who came in contact with him.

Bro. C. J. Trendell's connection with the management of the Alexandra Palace being on the eve of severance, a movement has been set on foot to present him with a suitable testimonial.

MASONIC RESEARCH.

It seems well for us from time to time to note and to report on the progress of Masonic research in England. Time has made rapid strides since a few students first began in the older "Freemasons' Magazine," and the Freemason subsequently, those discussions and those contributions which have led to such remarkable results. For let us compare the intellectual and archaeological position of English Freemasonry now with that of say twenty-five years ago. For a long time the whole of our Masonic investigations had been weighed down by the romantic and uncritical school of Oliver. For instance, when we first turned our attention to Masonic studies we could find no authority but Oliver. If it be true, as the careful and intelligent Masonic student of today well knows, that we may find casual contributions downwards from 1723 towards a sounder criticism and a true Masonic history—if it would be ungrateful, amid obvious shortcomings, to forget the labours of Anderson, Entick, Northouck and Hutchinson, and specially William Preston, as well as the essays of Ashe, Calcott, Harris, and others—yet we must confess that in the earlier portion of this century they were all overshadowed by the voluminous works of Oliver—and, unfortunately for Oliver, he ignored, or he was ignorant, of the German labours of the end of the last century, and the continuous contributions of this. Hence, to the German mind Oliver, as a writer, represents "uncriticism," if we may use such a word in its highest and most deliberate phasis, and despite his zeal, his learning, his wish to impart information, and his actual honesty both of labour and compilation, we fear that future Masonic students will be no more satisfied than we can profess to be to-day, with his safe guidance in Masonic history and archaeology. About 1859 a lecture was delivered before the Britannia Lodge, Sheffield, which advocated the Guild theory. This lecture attracted the attention of Bro. Findel, and shortly after that it was openly propounded by others. About the same time a search began for Masonic Constitutions, in which Mr. Sims, of the British Museum, largely aided, and Bro. Matthew Cooke called attention to his collation of the Masonic Constitutions in the British Museum. He subsequently published the earliest prose Constitutions, Mr. Halliwell, a non-Mason, publishing the earliest one, the Masonic Poem, even so far back as 1842. If any of our readers possess the old volumes of the "Freemasons' Magazine" from 1861 to 1868, or that of the Freemason for 1869 and 1870, they will see how far the discussion had then proceeded. About this time—Bro. Hughan will correct us if we are in error—he began those invaluable contributions on the evidences, which have served so greatly to advance Masonic archaeology. At that time, certainly not more, (we speak with a margin of memory), than twenty MS. Constitutions were known to exist of all sorts. What is the number now? In 1872 Bro. Hughan published a list of thirty-two, and since that time others have been found or verified, making the list thirty-seven or thirty-eight. Only quite lately Bro. Hughan announced the discovery of two, and even now we have not exhausted possible or probable "finds." The original of Dowland's has yet to turn up; Ashmole's may yet be verified. We feel quite certain that MS. "rolls" or Constitutions may yet be found in forgotten lodge chests, and when such a completed list of MS. Constitutions is published we shall note, we feel sure, a much larger "total" of "legends of the Craft." What the effect all such researches have upon contemporaneous Freemasonry is too wide a subject to be treated on to-day. We reserve our remarks for a subsequent Freemason, but we think it well to point out certain "landmarks" in respect of Masonic research, which, valuable to the Masonic student of to-day and of to-morrow, deserve to be carefully noted and thankfully remembered.

MASONIC BELIEF.

It is refreshing and interesting to note how clearly, both in the United States, Canada, and Great Britain, the question of Masonic belief is received in its true light, and regarded in its deep importance. Indeed, in our opinion, on this fact depends, more than on any other, the safe progress and legitimate continuance of Freemasonry in the world, as looked kindly on by the ruling powers and favourably appreciated by the public. For it is this reverent acknowledgment of the Most High and the practical development of the Divine law of charity, which have served so greatly to cement Freemasonry in its interior and adorn it in its exterior organization, and have, above all, satisfied the critical and somewhat doubting curiosity of an extern and hesitating world. For a secret society which professes no religion or avows no belief is pretty sure to fall under suspicion and arouse fear. If it be still true that many people hold ever "omne ignotum pro magnifico," the very secrecy of Freemasonry invests it alike with exaggerated terrors and imaginary terrors to the timid or the antagonistic. So that a society which professes to have no religion and to avow no God must not be surprised if its enemies ridicule its statements, if even its friends grow cold when it is accused of revolutionary purposes or atheistic principles. If any of us want to know to what length a vivid imagination will lead those who are ignorant of the true principles of Freemasonry, let them peruse the opening chapter in Alexander Dumas's "Joseph Balsamo," when he surrounds our peaceful, and loyal, and religious Order, (and peaceful, and loyal, and religious it was then in France), with all the attributes of revolutionary unbelievers and insane "Illuminés." But then history repeats itself, and wherever Freemasons are to-day who discard the venerable, and reverent, and loyal, and old-fashioned principles of true Freemasonry, there too we find it proscribed and persecuted, exposed to the vulgar calumny of the Ultramontane, and even doubted and undervalued by good men and orderly citizens. We do not say that, even where as with us—Freemasonry has now the Prince of Wales at its head—where its loyalty is alike unquestioned and unquestionable, it is free from rancour and calumny, from idle gossip or malignant slander. That is not so! But what we do say is, that when it is supported by the "mens conscia recti," when its professions and practice are alike consistent and honest, when it stands by its ancient landmarks and abides by its own goodly teaching—such is the excellence of Freemasonry, that it rises to its own level in the struggles of the world and smiles at petty assailants, just as it contemns insidious calumny. But then it must stand firm on its one sure and safe foundation, or else its building will crumble to decay, whether owing to the opposition of man or the encroaching hand of time. And what is that sure and safe foundation? does any one ask in the Freemason. Then we reply, belief in T.G.A.O.T.U., belief in the Fatherhood of God, the Brotherhood of Man, and the goodly mission of Freemasonry.

TRUE PHILANTHROPY.

There are many ways, no doubt, in which wealth and power can confer happiness on men, but, as our exalted Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold said the other day, the very possession of riches is rendered more enjoyable by the sense of being able to do good to others; and certainly to no other better purpose can wealth be devoted, for no truer end can it be offered, than the relief of the sufferings of our common humanity, the mitigation of its burdens, the progress of civilizing culture, or the happy and peaceful development of intellectual powers or scientific studies. Our age has been distinguished by numerous great and philanthropic gifts of the large-hearted and the truly liberal, of the sincere philanthropist, of the unpretending benefactor of society and of mankind. We need not particularize gifts which have been remarkable, or mention donors whose names are recorded as imperishable "footprints" on the great sands of time;

"Footprints which, perhaps, another
Struggling on life's stormy main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother
Seeing, may take heart again."

Our attention has been specially and forcibly called to an announcement, which will be found elsewhere in our present impression, which tells us in striking and most gratifying manner of a most munificent gift on the part of a very distinguished brother of our Order, and Past Grand Officer, Professor Erasmus Wilson. He is well and favourably known outside his own great profession of which he is a very leading member, by that most patriotic act, which transferred at his own sole cost the obelisk which now graces the Embankment, from the sands of Egypt, where it had long lain prostrated and uncared for. Few of those crowds who pass along the Embankment daily sufficiently realize, perhaps, what they really owe to the patriotic sympathies and manly liberality of Bro. Erasmus Wilson. It is well, then, ever to keep before us the fact—a fact creditable to the metropolis we inhabit, the age we live in, and, above all, to the man and the Mason, who, with princely mind, grudged no expense to adorn for long, distant generations, let us trust, that great metropolis of ours, around which lie centred, as far as human pen can pierce into the coming clouds of future years, the hopes of peace and progress, prosperity and vital civilization, in this great warring and troubled world of ours. There is at Margate a most admirable institution—the Sea Bathing Infirmary—specially applicable to those thousands of the humble classes, who, toiling in our large towns, in reeking alleys and ill-ventilated rooms, either inherit the dreadful taint of scrofula, or have its incipient stages extended and developed by insufficient food and foul atmosphere. The wants of this modest, but most useful institution, most curative and healing in its treatment and results, have outgrown its means. A new wing is required, and our distinguished brother comes forward of his "own free will and accord," like a good Mason and true philanthropist, offers to build this new wing, together with a chapel, at his own cost, without throwing any of the expenditure on the much-needed funds of this truly benevolent infirmary. We are informed that the cost of the new wing is estimated at not less than £20,000, and that it will include a swimming bath, and dormitories, and day rooms for seventy-five inmates. In the new wing, which is to be one storey, there will be covered cloisters, so that the inmates may take exercise in all weathers. The flat roof of the building will also be utilized. By the design of the architect, when the new wing is completed, the old house may gradually be rebuilt on to it, thus introducing throughout the building all those hygienic arrangements and that sanitary system which are so conducive to a proper use of means in the cure and mitigation of suffering and disease. The new wing will be called the "Erasmus Wilson" wing. The chapel is to seat three hundred persons. Are we not justified in recording this fact with some pride, as brought about by the munificent ministry of a worthy and distinguished member of our Order? May we not commend his happy example to others? And, above all, may we not predicate for such true philanthropy a goodly outcome, a blessed result? In time to come, when many a poor ailing brother or sister of the flesh have had health and strength restored to them at the Sea Bathing Infirmary, at Margate, by the healing ministrations and curative sympathy of that excellent institution, they will remember with gratitude the name of Erasmus Wilson as a sincere benefactor to our common race, as one who wished to "leave the world better than he found it," to heal its wounds, to lessen its bitter and appalling afflictions, to remove, if so might be in the good Providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., its deadly scars, its open shame, and its abounding and often almost incurable evils.

WHAT IS FREEMASONRY?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The visit of the Supreme Council, 33°, of the Ancient and Accepted Rite to Weston-Super-Mare on the 22nd ult., has caused the very important question to be asked by many people, who are not members of our Order, "What is Freemasonry?" I have promised to give an answer to such query, and I cannot do better than reply through the columns of the Freemason.

The ordinary reply would be that it is "a beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols," yet a far more elaborate answer may be given without revealing any point or points, or the ancient landmarks of the Order, for it embraces every part of that noble science which has existed from time immemorial, and under whose powerful influence wonderful results have been obtained. We will divide the subject into three separate and distinct periods, or stages, by which the full knowledge of the science is obtained. The First Degree symbolises man emerging from a temporary state of darkness into the light of truth, encouraging him to a fervent hope of becoming a partaker of the blessings of life eternal. The Second Degree admits him to the great intellectual field of science, which is unfolded to view, and enables him to appreciate the goodness, power, and wisdom of the Great Creator, and to read them in the sacred pages of the celestial hemisphere and terrestrial world. In the third stage the aspirant is brought into the sublimity of the science and the full blaze of revelation, for in this Degree we are taught specially to study the hidden mysteries of nature and science. From vain curiosity many cowans strive to penetrate the arcana of our secrets, but, happily, such efforts have proved fruitless to all who do not possess the master-key, and to such our Order is always closed tyled. Another class of inquirers are those Masons who have a desire to render themselves serviceable to their fellow members, but whose daily avocations are too numerous to allow them time for the close study of Masonic symbolism. To this class of inquirers I will endeavour to give such practical explanation of celestial symbolism as must satisfy the intellectual members that Masonry and astronomy are very closely allied, and perhaps they may be willing to admit that there may be mysteries hidden in the heavens, which "at present they cannot understand." To follow what I wish to explain without divulging forbidden points it is necessary to have a globe or celestial atlas. Presuming such atlas to be before us, I will ask the Masonic student to refer to the Southern hemispherical plate. Around the border we find Roman figures from I. to XXIV.; these denote the twenty-four hours of the day; between XVII. and XVIII., below the ecliptic, is an altar or pedestal. Between XXIV. and I. is a book, or Bilvia. Now with compasses from the equatorial pole the centre of this Bilvia will reach the exact centre of the pedestal, above which are always a pair of compasses, a stonemason's old fashioned level, and near thereto can be found the rule and square. The initiate is the celestial figure, Antinous, and between XIX. and XX. we observe the kneeling position of this youth. Between XIV. and XV. is a large figure possessing two sandals or slippers. Compasses from the pole of the equator will take the beel of the sandal from the left foot of this large figure and place it on the little naked right foot of the aspirant. Now with so large a slipper can he move otherwise than "slip-shod?" and compasses from the equatorial will bring the other large slipper to the initiate's left foot. Cowans may say this slipper affair is a mere coincidence, but I will ask them to point out, if they can, whether by compasses these slippers may be brought to fit any other feet in the heavens, or if they can find any other slippers in the celestial atlas than those worn by this great figure. Next to the Northern hemispherical plate, and between XIX. and XX., are the head and shoulders of the aspirant, Antinous, and near II. on the equator is a very remarkable knot. Place one point of the compass within the loop made by the knot, and the other point of the compass at the equatorial pole, we can bring the rope or cord to the youth; does it not fit his neck precisely like a cable tow? Is this another coincidence? With compasses from centre we cannot make this rope fit any other neck in the heavens. For the Second Degree, or stage, compasses from the centre of the ecliptic (not the pole) will take the ear of corn, which is in the large figure's left hand, at XIII. to XXIII., and there it will be alongside a current of water. This symbolism all Masons must know without further reference. Much of the working of the Third Degree is also depicted in the celestial hemisphere, but I may only divulge one point to the uninitiated. Between IX. and X. is a lion's paw, and compasses from the ecliptic centre (not the pole of the ecliptic) will place the right hand of the now exalted Mason in the lion's paw. More of these points must not be revealed in a publication, yet I will readily give them to Masonic students who wish to study Masonic symbolism. I hope I have offered sufficient proof that there is a close connection between Freemasonry and celestial astronomy.

I will now give an explanation of symbolical Masonry in connection with terrestrial objects. For instance, let us take the blossom of a "Passiflora" or passion-flower. What do we find? Why, that every particle of the blossom of this beautiful, curious, and sweet-scented flower teaches Masonic symbolism. Persons unacquainted with the origin of the discovery of this flower have supposed it to be an emblem of the tender passion of love; all who have taken an interest in the origin of botanical names will know the name Passion has no reference to the passion of love, but that it more immediately refers to the last sufferings of our crucified Christ. In the sharp spines springing from the base of the petals and encircling the corolla we can readily perceive a vivid representation of the Crown of Thorns; the three black segments into which the pistil divides itself at the apex are not unlike three large-headed nails, symbolising the three nails by which the feet and hands of Christ were secured to the Cross. The calyx, with its three divisions underneath the petals of the corolla, symbolises the W.M. of a lodge and two Wardens, the three greater and three lesser lights, three supports, three ornaments, three moveable and three immoveable jewels, three principal tenets, three rounds of the Masonic ladder, three working tools in each Degree, three principal orders of architecture, three important human senses, three gates of the temple, or sanctum sanctorum, the three colours, white, red, and purple, of Royal Arch Masonry; the red, blue, and white silken cord twisted into three strands, and worn round the neck of brethren of the Sat B'nai, convey appropriate teachings; the sacred number three strands first for birth, second manhood, third death, and for life, death, and eternity. Next come the ten petals of the corolla of the Passiflora, corresponding in number to the ten letters constituting the name of Hiram Abiff; they also symbolise the ten Sepheroth, constituting the sacred name of God. In their totality and unity, the ten Sepheroth represent the archetypal man, Adam Kadmon. Ten is the most sacred of all numbers, for it forms the beginning and end of numbers, and symbolises the Cross. Next is the numbers or glory surrounding "the point within the circle," or base of the style issuing from the centre. The point within a circle is a Masonic symbol of great importance; its exoteric explanation is, that the point represents an individual brother, the circle being the boundary line of his duty to God and to man, but the esoteric meaning is far different, and would require volumes in itself to fully explain. On the apex of the style rests the egg-shaped ovary, surrounded by five anthers, and supporting three pistils; the ovary containing the seed of the Passiflora symbolises the universality of Masonry within the circumference of our terrestrial sphere. The five anthers typify the five points of fellowship, five Masonic orders of architecture, five senses of hearing, seeing, feeling, tasting, and smelling, the five-pointed star the symbol of health, five F.Cs.—five is a mystical number, being the union of odd and even, representing Asher and the four elements. The anthers seem to be pierced by their filaments on the sharp points of which they are poised, at once suggesting to our minds the five wounds of our crucified Saviour, who shed his blood on the Cross for man's salvation. The three pistils at the apex typify the Z., H., and J., of a Royal Arch chapter, the highest position we can obtain, in Craft Masonry the three principal working tools, compass, triangle, and square, the three Masonic graces, faith, hope, and charity, the equilateral triangle, and the trihedron of three equal sides; the pistils symbolise the Tricity, also the tri-syllabic name of God, A.N.M., Al-Oh-Jah; the term I.A.O. pronounced I-Ah-O, contains in itself a deep allegory. The true pronunciation of this sacred, mysterious, ineffable name was known only to three persons, who are said to have seen God face to face, viz., Enoch, Jacob, and Moses, and each of whom in succession were Grand Masters of our Masonic Order.

I feel that I have already wearied you with the subject of Masonic symbolism, but what better answer can I give the inquirer of "What is Freemasonry," than to bring him into the full blaze of the sublimity of Masonic science, that he may see we have subjects of study other than the Epicurean motto of "Eat, drink, and be merry," for Freemasonry admits us to the great intellectual field of science, which may be unfolded to our view, and enables us to appreciate the wisdom, power, and goodness of the Great Architect of the Universe; although the feebleness of our nature does not permit us at once to grasp the magnitude of His works, we can feel a special joy in the hope of receiving as a reward for a life well spent in acts of piety, an admission into a mansion, not built with hands, but one eternal in the Heavens, where we shall behold shining that bright morning star, whose rising brings peace and salvation to the faithful.

THE PROVINCES AND THE CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Being personally desirous of knowing as far as possible the amount of support awarded to the Charities by the several provinces in proportion to the number of their members, I was induced in the intervals of leisure to calculate the number of life votes possessed by each, and the proportion which it bears to the number of lodges. With the idea that it may be interesting to some of your readers I forward the result herewith.

This test, though not conclusive, appears to me about the fairest which can be applied, as although the number of members of individual lodges doubtless varies considerably, yet by taking the whole of each province we arrive at a very fair average, and, so far as I know, there are no means—open to all—of ascertaining the number of subscribing members of each lodge.

The calculations have been made with considerable care, though I can hardly hope that they are entirely free from error, but should be glad to hear if any serious discrepancies are detected.

The numbers of votes are taken from the last published lists, and, therefore, do not include the present year's qualifications. Life votes only are counted, as the annual subscribers vary so much from year to year as to be quite unreliable for the purpose. Provinces are placed in order of merit, but fractions of $\frac{1}{2}$ are counted as $\frac{1}{2}$.

The following is the result as applied to the Girls' School:—

MASONIC IMPOSTORS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you allow me through the medium of your paper to inform our country brethren that there is a person named Wilson seeking assistance from town to town, stating that he belongs to the United Pilgrims Lodge, No. 507, and at the same time to tell them he does not belong to our lodge; in fact, we have not had such a name on our books for over twenty years.

I am, dear Sir, yours very truly and fraternally,

JONAS DUCKETT,
P.M., Hon. Sec. United Pilgrims, 507.

UNIFORMITY OF WORKING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your article on this subject in a recent number of the Freemason must meet the approval of all who have given the matter more than cursory attention, and are not led away by a sentence which, at first sight, I confess has some attractiveness. But is it at all possible to carry out in detail the promise of such a title? and if so, is the play worth the candle? Under a score or so of Preceptors in this metropolis the Ritual of Freemasonry, &c., is learnt by the members of the Craft who are anxious to qualify themselves for the duties of their various lodges. Undoubtedly the systems of the Preceptors vary considerably, and are infected by their various mentalities. The elaborate system of the Lodge of Stability, and the concise working of the Lodge of Emulation, have each its firm adherents and promulgators, not to speak of the various provincial and Colonial methods. There are, I say, in all these great variations, but there is also a singular convergence.

Now the idea of the promoters of uniformity of workings is of course good in trying to establish a general harmony. But, although the proposition appears paradoxical, I have no hesitation in stating that nothing, in my opinion, would so much tend to inharmonious results as its adoption. Any edict of Grand Lodge insisting on a particular system of working would be considered a claim to infallibility, and in itself antagonistic to the principles, nay, even to the very name, of Freemasonry.

Not in any mode of working that I have at present seen do I recognise perfection. Much of mediæval tenor and grandiloquence might be removed without any detriment to the beauty of the Ritual, but I look to the good sense of the brethren, educated by the facilities the Masonic press gives us in ventilating our various opinions, for remedies rather than in establishing Committees or edicts from Grand Lodge.

Even supposing there be a recognised system enforced by Constitution, it would be necessary to compel its performance in monotone. We know how easily the significance of a word or sentence can be altered by inflection or accent.

We are tethered to our land marks, and cannot go very far astray. Let us, therefore, leave the matter of uniformity alone, or argue our different readings in the Masonic publications, and adopt in our working what seemeth best.

The only uniformity we want is that of the spirit of Freemasonry, not the letter, carrying out, in our intercourse with each other, the grand principles on which the Order is founded, thus "demonstrating to the world at large that the word brother amongst Masons is something more than a name."

I hope the author of a very useful and instructive work ("Uniformity of Working") will be content with his laurels, and not attempt to persuade Grand Lodge to form a Committee to decide the difference betwixt tweedledum and tweedledee.

Remaining fraternally yours,

H. E. FRANCES,

P.P.G.D., Preceptor.

Reviews.

THE NEW "RED BOOK" OF THE "ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE." (ENGLAND, &c.)

The new edition of the rules and regulations and list of members of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite for England, Wales, and the Dependencies of the British Crown" is now ready for issue, corrected to 1st September, 1879; and to the brethren of that distinguished Rite will prove a most useful and interesting compilation. There are several improvements in this the last edition, and every opportunity appears embraced most readily by the Secretary General to make the work all that is wanted or needful to render the members fully conversant as to the laws and customs of the Rite. In the event of any exclusion or suspension the Inspector General is to notify accordingly to the chapters in his district, and cannot of course really take any effect until confirmed by the Supreme Council. There are changes made as to "Serving Brethren," but as to these we need not describe them here, as they should be known only to those whom they concern. Under the 18th Degree it is stated that at least five brethren, including a M.W.S. or P.M.W.S., should be present at the perfection of a candidate. This is a desirable regulation, and should be carefully noted, as well as the fact that no chapter in England can legally admit as a candidate or joining member a brother hailing from another jurisdiction without the authority of the Supreme Council being first obtained. The limited numbers of the 32nd and 31st Degrees have been increased from 36 and 63 to 45 and 72 respectively, doubtless owing to the great prosperity of the Order, and the number of active chapters being now 85, whereas in 1877, when the previous edition was published, there were not more than 75. The prefix Deputy to the Inspectors General has been dropped, and thus by removing rather than by an addition the dignity of the title has been added to thereby. Instead of a breast jewel for the 33rd Degree, that distinction is now to be worn "on the right hip, at crossing of sash, pendant from a golden rose on scarlet bow," and the effect is certainly most artistic. The Supreme Councils in Amity with that of England, &c., number one less this time than in 1877, that, unfortunately, of Scotland being omitted, owing to the management of the latter in some important respects not being satisfactory to the English authorities. We trust that the misunderstanding may soon be removed, so that the number of 21 Councils will be again returned to. "A chronological list of members of the Supreme Council 33° of England" is a new feature, and one that might be considerably added to from time to time, for but little is known of the early history of the Rite in this country. The original members it appears were Dr. Crucefix, the Rev. Geo. Oliver, D.D., and Henry Udall, and the warrant is dated 26th Oct., 1845, but long before this, even during the last century, several of the Degrees were worked in England, and should be noted, we think, in a subsequent edition. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., 33°, is Grand Patron, and his two Royal Brothers, the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold, are also 33rd Degrees, and honorary members of the Council. The oldest member of the Council appears to be Major-General Henry Clerk, and the latest admitted into that distinguished body is General J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., Prov. G.M. of Surrey. There are five retired members (including the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Prov. G.M. of England), and ten Inspectors General, with seven unattached. We must not, however, dwell too long on this little brochure, as, though numbering 144 pages, it can be had at the office of The Freemason, for the sum of one shilling and sixpence, so that no member should be without a copy.

THE SUPERNATURAL IN NATURE. C. Kegan Paul and Co., Paternoster-square.

This is a much larger book, of 477 pages, and which to treat upon fully in the limited columns of the Freemason might fairly be deemed an absurdity, if not an impertinence. We can, therefore, only just glance at it. But we think it right to call attention to it for several reasons. A great controversy has recently agitated Freemasonry, when an important section of the Masonic family threw over and off all avowal of belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. The effect of the change may have been deemed greater than it actually is, (though we fear of its reality there is no possible doubt), but still the fact remains, outwardly, that a large body of Freemasons "knows not" God. And as in addition to this there is in society all around us a great tendency to cling to the natural alone and to reject the supernatural, to take up either with a crazy Positivism, (so called), or a so-called "independent morality," or a grovelling Epicurism, or an abject Atheism, we think it well to remind our readers that our English Freemasonry, reverent and religious as it is, from first to last avows, purely, clearly, fully, its belief and trust in T.G.A.O.T.U. as a personal, living, ruling, judging God, and that it accepts His inspired revelation, with all its supernatural claims on our acceptance of faith, "as the unerring standard of right and wrong," and "bids us to regulate our lives by the Divine precepts it contains." Therefore such a book, though so far anonymously written, may well be a study to the cultured Freemason of to-day. We might perhaps analyse its contents and reproduce its arguments, but we think it better to leave that pleasing task to a second notice, for we ourselves require a little more time to digest the propositions of the able writer than a mere hasty glance can afford. But it may well be pointed out to our readers that the writer of this work has spared no pains to collect from the best sources of information the most striking results of modern discoveries in physical science, and has applied them to the confirmation, not the confutation, of the great truths of religion, of which most men of common sense, whether scientists or not, are fully persuaded. A reviewer in the Times has well remarked "That such arguments should be needed at all is, indeed, the greatest reproach to this scientific age. No one can believe that Sir Isaac Newton, had he lived in these days, would have been perverted to atheism and disbelief in a future state by microscopic discoveries which have upset the faith of some less mature and well-balanced intellects in modern times. Hear his own noble confession in the 'Principia':—'The world is not God, as the Pantheists affirm. It did not exist from Eternity, as the Peripatetics taught. It was not made by Fate and Necessity, as the Stoics said. It did not arise from a fortuitous concourse of atoms, as the Epicureans asserted, nor from the antagonism of two rival powers, as the Persians and Manichæans affirmed, nor was it made by Angels, or by emanations of æons, as some of the ancient Gnostics held, nor out of matter co-eternal with God, as Hermogenes said, nor by the spontaneous energy and evolution of self-developing powers, as some have affirmed in later days; but it was created by One, Almighty, Eternal, Wise, and Good Being—God.'" We, therefore, think it well to call the attention of the reader to this important work, agreeing with the Times reviewer where he has it, "We have no hesitation in saying that he will gain both moral and intellectual strength from its perusal."

Masonic Notes and Queries.

A LODGE MINUTE BOOK.

I wish to call attention to the "extracts" and "notes" which follow, from a MS. recently purchased by the authorities of the British Museum, and to which Mr. R. Sims has kindly called my attention. Perhaps Bro. Hughan or Bro. Gould can enlighten me as to the "Royal Lodge."

A. F. A. W.

FO. 1. begins: "The Royal Lodge, held at the Thatched House, in St. James's St., 6 Nov., 1777. Present: The Right W. Dr. Reynold, M., in the chair; the W. B. Birth, P.M.; the W. B. Evance, S.W., pro tem.; the W. B. Goodenough, J.W., pro tem.; B. Bechford, B. Dalmaiden. The minutes of the last lodge read and confirmed." &c., &c.

FO. 3. The next date is 5 March, 1778. From that date the lodges appear to have been held twice a month to 5 June, 1817, but either the minutes are wanting or the meetings were less frequent, since the notices are dated only once in the year towards the end.

The last paragraph says: "The business of the lodge being ended it was closed in due form, and adjourned to the 18th June, 1818." Quite at the end is printed "Hymn to be sung by the children of the Freemasons' School before the anniversary sermon of the Charity, 15 April, 1804, at St. John's Church, Westminster." Then follows a notice (printed) of the School "St. George's Fields."

CHARLES MARTEL.

I note Bro. Gould's remarks, and I now reply to them. The absence from his "poem" of mention of any names but those of Euclid and Athelstan is, to my mind a proof of its antiquity. We have in the poem two legends, the second beginning at line 471—Alia Ordinacio artis gemetrix, which is henceforth a repetition of the previous legend, to which are added the "ars quatuor" and certain rules for religious service and customary and proper behaviour at meals, &c. The poem is of high antiquity, and though Mr Bond gives the present "Regius MS." at early 15th century date, Casley assigns it to the 14th century, and so did Mr. Walbran. If ever "Pars Oculi" turns up, an old poem, now missing, from which John Myrc borrowed his poem, a portion of which is found in the Masonic poem, and Myrc wrote in 1420, we shall probably find that it is Norman-French, or Latin, originally. Matthew Cooke's MS. gives us, in addition to Euclid and Athelstan, David, Solomon, the son of the King of Tyre, Alban Amphibalus (Adhabell), Carolus Secundus Mamus Græcus, Athelstan, and his younger son. Matthew Cooke's MS. seems to contain a duplicate legend, also beginning at p. 642. In the second legend the name Englet is found, but who clearly is not the Euclid of the first legend, but answers more nearly to the 'personage named "Mamus Græcus," Ninias, or Memon, whoever he may really be. It is a point to be noted, that whereas in the poem there are fifteen articles and fifteen points there are only nine of each in Matthew Cooke's MS., and the points and articles are in the first legend in the poem, and in the second legend in the prose contribution. In Dowland's prose, which probably represents a version of 1500, we have Euclid, David, Solomon, Hiram, Alban Amphibalus, Charles Martel, Mamus Græcus, Athelstan Edwin, all mentioned. Some may say "vires acquirit eundo," but it appears to me only the natural greater fulness of the legend more elaborately treated. If Mr. Bond's view is correct as to date, Matthew Cooke's MS., instead of late 15th, is early 15th century, contemporaneous with the MS. poem.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. S. Rosenthal in the chair. There were also present Bros. Donald M. Dewar, Dr. Richard Morris, R. B. Webster, A. J. Duff Filer, J. W. Dosell, W. H. Peryman, Arthur E. Gladwell, S. Rawson, John Constable, J. J. Berry, F. Adlard, W. Maple, Herbert Dicketts, W. F. C. Moutrie, Charles Horsley, H. Venn, T. Meggy, E. C. Mather, F. Binckes (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason).

The report of the Audit Committee recommended the investment of £1500, and the Committee adopted the recommendation, and ordered the investment to be made in Reduced Three per Cents.

The Committee then considered petitions for candidates, and placed the following on the list for the election in April next:—William Vincent B. Jones, son of the late Bro. the Rev. William Vincent H. Jones, of Knaresborough, who died of diphtheria on the 20th of July, 1879; H. Eccleston, son of Bro. Thomas Eccleston, of Her Majesty's ship "Lily," who died of Asiatic cholera on the 23rd of September, 1877; Isaac Williams, son of Bro. Williams, a mariner (Holyhead), who died October 5th, 1877; S. J. Critch, of Leamington; G. S. Booker; John Hogg (Chester); and H. G. Darling (West Ham).

The Committee afterwards granted £20 to apprentice one boy, and made grants of £5 each to four other pupils of the Institution.

The Committee adjourned, after passing a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF CHESHIRE.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Cheshire Freemasons was held at the Royal Hotel, Crewe, on Wednesday, the 22nd ult. Comp. Lord De Tabley, R.W. P.G. Superintendent, presided, and there was a large number of influential companions.

The following companions were the officers invested:—
Comp. the Rev. Spencer Stanhope ... Prov. G. H.
" F. Smith ... Prov. G. J.
" G. W. Latham ... Prov. G. S.E.
" Siddley ... Prov. G. S.N.
" Lisle ... Prov. G. P.S.
" Bury ... Prov. G. 1st A.S.
" Brooks ... Prov. G. 2nd A.S.
" Dennis ... Prov. G. S.B.
" Tomlinson ... Prov. G. Swd. Br.
" F. Jackson, jun. ... Prov. G. Treas.
" W. Alcock ... Prov. G. Janitor.

The whole of the chapters in the province were represented with the exception of two.

The Provincial Grand Chapter, on the proposition of Comp. Latham, voted the sum of £57 15s. from the funds to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

The Provincial Grand Chapter was then closed, and the companions afterwards adjourned to the Crewe Arms Hotel, where a banquet was served.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF OXFORDSHIRE.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Oxfordshire was held on Wednesday, the 29th ult., in the Apollo Masonic Hall, H.R.H. Prince Leopold, Prov. Grand Master, presiding. He was accompanied by the Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. R. Bird, S.G.D.; Bro. Rev. H. A. Pickard, Past G.C.; and by the officers of Prov. Grand Lodge, viz.: Bros. Jiggins, as P.G.S.W. (in the unavoidable absence of Sir Offley Wakeman, Bart.); H. R. Cooper-Smith, as P.G. J.W.; Rev. T. Johnson and T. A. Janson, as P.G. Chaplains; Ald. Randall, P.G. Treas.; R. H. Collins, C.B., P.G. Reg.; Alfred Winkfield, P.G. Sec.; W. Clinch, P.G.S.D.; T. W. Holland, P.G.J.D.; R. T. Hodge, P.G. Supt. of Wks.; J. J. Hughes, P.G. Dir. of Cer.; Arthur Davis, P.G. Swd. Br.; C. J. F. Yule, as P.G. Org.; W. R. Bowden, P.G. Purst.; Coles, Crowder, Tomlin, Osmond, Buckell, and Palmer, P.G. Stewards. Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chap. England, was among the visitors.

The Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form, when Il. Signor Dibartoli (?), member of the Grand Orient of Italy, was introduced, and conducted to a chair on the right of H.R.H. the Prov. G.M.

The minutes of the last meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge having been read and confirmed, the D.P.G.M. read his report of the various lodges of the province, and also the report of the Charity Committee, which were severally approved.

The Prov. G. Treasurer made his financial statement, and the usual sums were voted to the Masonic and local Charities.

H.R.H. then presented the Charity jewel to Bros. Rev. J. A. Lloyd, 357, P. Prov. G. Chap., and E. L. Hawkins, 357; and bars for the jewel to Bros. Rev. H. A. Pickard, 357, Past G. Chap.; Fentham Hedges, W.M. 478, P. Prov. G. Sec.; and John Potts, 599, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Wks. Bro. T. B. Brown, 1399, Prov. J.G.W., was also entitled to a jewel, but was unavoidably absent, and Bro. Park to a bar, also due, and which would be presented subsequently.

H.R.H. then appointed and invested as his officers for the ensuing year:—

- W. Bro. Reginald Bird ... Prov. D.G.M.
- James Jenkin, W.M. 340 ... Prov. G.S.W.
- Birch, W.M. St. Mary's ...
- Lodge ... Prov. G.J.W.
- Rev. David Thomas, 357; }
W. Bro. Rev. J. Hordera } Prov. G. Chaps.
- Jukes, 357 ...
- T. M. Crowder ... Prov. G. Reg.
- T. Randall (re-elected) ... Prov. G. Treas.
- Alfred Winkfield ... Prov. G. Sec.
- H. O. Crane ... Prov. G.S.D.
- J. O. R. Laxford ... Prov. G.J.D.
- J. Coles ... Prov. G.S. of W.
- E. Locke Tomlin, W. Bro. }
R. Buckell } Prov. G.D. of Cers.
- C. J. F. Yule ... Prov. G. Org.
- G. H. Osmond ... Prov. G. Swd. Br.
- J. S. Palmer, W. Bro. J. }
Scary } Prov. G. Pursts.
- Bros. H. P. Symonds, J. M. Dormor, }
E. L. Hawkins, J. J. Colcutt, J. } Prov. G. Stewards.
- Colcutt ...
- Bros. G. Norwood, W. Biggs ... Prov. G. Tylers.

The other provincial business having been transacted Prov. G. Lodge was closed in due form, H.R.H. the Prov. G.M. being escorted by his officers to the retiring room. Soon after seven o'clock the banquet was served in the Assembly Room of the Clarendon Hotel. H.R.H. again presided, well supported on either side by both Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers and brethren, his officers wearing their collars and jewels; Bro. Jenkin, P.G. S.W., and Bro. Birch, P.G.J.W., acting in the capacity of Vice-Presidents.

The toasts were generally given by H.R.H., "The Queen and the Craft" and "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," carrying with them, if possible, additional interest from the fact that the proposer was the son of the first and brother of the second.

To Bro. Rev. H. A. Pickard was entrusted the honour of proposing "The Health of H.R.H. the Prov. G. Master," who alluded to the great work the Prince was doing in the furthering of education, and of the arts and sciences, following well up in the steps of one esteemed Royal Mason who had gone before him, the illustrious Duke of Sussex, whose mantle, he thought, had fallen on Prince Leopold.

The D.P.G.M. proposed "The Masonic Charities," introducing a new opening which had been made in the way of looking after our boys and girls on leaving the Schools and apprenticing them, or otherwise placing or fitting them out in life. This new call on their care (emanating from the Earl of Rosslyn, Past Grand Master of Scotland, who, as President at the 81st anniversary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, brought the question particularly before the Craft) had the sanction and support of H.R.H. their Prov. G.M., and was one of several works of sympathy he was engaged in.

As a mark of welcome to their distinguished guest from the Grand Orient of Italy, "The Health of the King of Italy" was given from the chair, and responded to with "foreign fire."

The toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by Bro. H. R. Cooper-Smith, and responded to by the illustrious brother from the Grand Orient of Italy. His Excellency's speech was delivered in Italian, its purport being subsequently translated into English by Bro. V. de Tivoli, Taylorian Teacher of Italian in the University.

At about 10 o'clock the Tyler's toast was given, thus concluding a happy day in the Masonic annals of Oxford.

DEDICATION OF A NEW MASONIC HALL AT CALLINGTON.

The ceremony of dedicating the new Masonic Hall, built by the Loyal Victoria Lodge, No. 557, Bro. John Richards, W.M., was performed on the 28th ult., in the presence of a large gathering of the Masonic fraternity. The P.G.M. of Cornwall, the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, was to have been present and undertaken the dedication, but through the illness of a daughter he was at the last moment prevented, and his place was ably filled by the D.P.G.M., Col. Peard. The P.G.M. of Devon, Viscount Ebrington, was among the visitors. The new hall, which has been erected at a cost of about £400, exclusive of the furniture, is situated at the bottom of the main thoroughfare through Callington, near the parish church. Hitherto the members of Loyal Victoria Lodge have met in an apartment at the Bull's Head Hotel; but for the future they will assemble in one of the prettiest little lodges in the province. The architect is Mr. S. Johns, of Saltash, who, adopting the geometrical style of architecture, has produced a building which does him great credit. It is of native stone, with dressings of polyphant and granite, and polyphant corbels. An effective porch has, on each side, appropriate pillars. There is an ante-room, with the necessary conveniences, and inside this is the lodge room. Its length is 33ft., breadth 23ft., and height 24ft., and it is excellently furnished. The work about the interior is very effective, and one prominent feature is the mantel-piece, composed of Portland stone, relieved by polyphant columns and capitals, the handiwork of Mr. Davey, of Bodmin. The W. Master's chair is the gift of Mr. R. Peter, of Callington. The lodge is well ventilated on a system adopted by the architect with equal success in other places. For this particular purpose Mr. Jones utilises the cornices, and the temperature on the 28th ult., when the room was crowded, was not in any way inconveniently felt. The hall is lighted by means of a large "wheel" window at the west end, and a corresponding window over the Master's chair. The keystones are relieved by the arms of the Prince of Wales, as G.M. of England, of the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, as P.G.M., and of the county.

The day's ceremony was inaugurated by the brethren assembling under the direction of Bro. Rowe, P.M. 320, P.G.D.C., and headed by the band of the 5th D.C.R.V., walking in procession to the parish church, where Divine service was held.

There were present Bros. Col. Peard, D.P.G.M.; Lord Ebrington, P.G.M. Devonshire; T. Hawken, P.G.S.W. 350; R. H. Rae, P.P.G.D.; J. Hawkins, P.P.G.D.; F. B. Williams, P.G.S.B.; P. Carroll, P.P.G.T. 330; W. Rowe, P.P.G.D.; J. H. Tonkin, P.P.G.S. 282; J. H. Stephens, P.M. Devon, 159; W. Rooks, A.G.P. 131; T. W. Beale, P.G.T. 977; R. A. Courtney, P.G.D. 510; J. S. Childs, P.P.G.T. 510; E. D. Anderton, P.P.J.G.W. 331; E. T. Carlyon, P.G.S. 331; R. John, P.P.G.D.C. 131; C. G. Archer, P.G.W. 789; W. Smith, P.G.S. of Wks. 851; G. Barnes, P.P.G.P. 1164; G. Kerswill, P.P.J.G.W. 970; T. B. S. Richards, I.P.M. 282; H. Down, J.W. 282; N. Bray, J.D. 282; I. Roskilly, Org. 282; W. H. L. Clark, W.M. 1071; G. J. Firks, W.M. 1247; E. Herring, S.D. 1071; J. Pearce, J.D. 1136; J. Stephens, P.M. 1151; T. C. Stephens, P.M. 1151; J. Rendel, P.M. 1247; T. Gibbons, W.M. 1205; T. Goodall, P.M. 954; J. Rawling, I.P.M. 1071; J. R. Collins, P.M. 336; S. G. Roach, S.W. 1157; T. White, P.M. 510; W. J. Harris, S.W. 510; R. Hooper, P.M. 510; and B. Parsons, D.C. 789.

The Rev. F. S. T. Daunt, rector of St. Stephen's-by-Launceston, preached the sermon, taking his text from the 28th chapter Isaiah, 16th verse. Assembled as they were, he remarked, to assist in the dedication of a new Masonic lodge, he thought it not out of place to speak about two things—first, the great spiritual foundation, the great spiritual Zion; and, then, the fact to which the Apostle Peter alluding in speaking of those whom he called the living stones in the building. In a time when people were clamouring for creed, it was well to think of the one grand foundation of the Christian faith, namely, Christ Jesus. And when they spoke of the foundation they must think of the building that proceeded upon this foundation. Had the members of this lodge gone no further than the initiatory ceremony of laying the foundation stone, what would avail the common-sense object of the building? But in proportion as the building progressed, and tier after tier was placed, windows added, and the roof super-added, the lodge was gradually erected, and now stood in all its symmetry and primitive beauty. So it was with their spiritual life. Most of them had watched with earnestness, anxiety, and love the work as it had grown nearer and nearer completion. So must they watch the growth of their faith, or the foundation was of no avail. Freemasons were the living stones in the building. They were joined together in symmetry, in love, and in faith, and they must teach the outside world that their system was one of the grandest they had, one that accepted the Word of God in its entirety, and taught it on the Tracing Board and in the lectures, so that they were pre-eminently bound to be built up as living stones upon the foundation of their faith. Christ was the tried stone; He was the corner stone; and this applied to them more particularly as Freemasons. He united the building in all its parts, and as the corner stone united the material building, so Christ, as the corner stone, united them to God and to each other. If Freemasonry taught them nothing but this, the intensified manner in which it taught the brotherhood of man, in which it took up the salient points of the love of God, and put it before them in pointed allusion, bidding them remember that all their creeds and professions were nothing unless they had charity, it would be sufficient. Freemasonry, whilst it conserved the love of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, took up the grand point which sectarians of the day disregarded, and which those who clamoured for creeds were perpetually forgetting; it taught them that the grandest of all things was what St. Paul, who, he believed, was in conscience a Freemason, spoke of when he said "And now abideth faith, hope, and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." True Christianity knew nothing of caste, and the corner stone which bound them together knew no distinction. As, then, they had the corner stone, the foundation stone, the tried stone, and as they intended to be the "lively stones built upon the foundation," was it not a grand incentive to them to carry on the work they had commenced, and to show the world at large that they meant what they said, that their system, "veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbol," was meant to teach men many forgotten truths which the Bible prominently spoke about, and which society so often ignored?

At the close of the service the procession re-formed, and the brethren proceeded to the new lodge, which was now consecrated in ancient form to the purposes of Freemasonry. The musical portion of the ceremony was rendered by Bros. G. Firks, W.M. 1247; A. Burden, 557; Goodall, P.M. 954; and J. Rendle, P.M. 1247, under the direction of Bro. W. W. Dymond, P.P.G.O. 557. The ceremony concluded, the brethren adjourned to the school-room, where a public luncheon was provided. The D.P. G.M., Colonel Peard, presided, and the room was crowded, but, contrary to the usual practice, there was no toast list. Later in the afternoon a number of Royal Arch brethren reassembled in the lodge and consecrated it to the purposes of the Holy Royal Arch Degree, under the title of "Valletort" Chapter, No. 557. The ceremony was performed by Ex. Comp. Colonel Peard, Prov. Grand H., as H., assisted by Ex. Comp. E. D. Anderton, Prov. Grand J., as J., and Ex. Comp. J. W. Chegwidde, P.Z. 510; and there were present Comps. M. White, P.Z. 510; W. P. Smith, J. 1151; C. Archer, P.Z. 719; J. Hawkins, H. 789; J. Rawling, S.H. 1164; R. G. Carpenter, T. 1071; J. Harris, P.S. 510; J. A. Childs, P.Z. 510; T. B. Richards, Z. 282, S.E. 557; E. Herring, S.M. 1071; H. T. Newman, 1151; J. U. Hill, S.N. 510; J. Dennis, S.E. 330; J. R. Collins, J. 330; and S. J. Lake, S.S. 333. The Consecrating Officer having dedicated and constituted the chapter, the following were installed as Principals: Ex. Comp. C. T. Pearce, P.Z. 202, Z.; Comp. J. Peter, late of 1164, H.; and Comp. J. Kempthorne, late of 1164, Z. The musical portions of the ceremony were entrusted to Comps. J. Rendle, 1247; Goodall, 954; and B. Richards, 282; under the direction of Comp. T. Gibbons, 1205, as Organist. With this concluded the formal ceremonies of the day.

In connection with the dedication a bazaar, fancy fair, and concert were held in the national schoolroom, and numbers of visitors were attracted into the town. Callington itself looked exceedingly gay. Arches of evergreens spanned the streets at the main entrances, and bunting fluttered in every direction. In the schoolroom the stalls for the bazaar were arranged in districts. There was the Callington stall, the Southhill and St. Dominick, and the Stokeclimsland and Calstock stall, and each of these were plentifully supplied with the usual varied assortment, the proceeds going towards the Building Fund. The Callington stall was arranged by the Misses Kempton, Miss Body, Miss N. Goulding, Miss Sergeant, and Miss Williams; the Southhill and St. Dominick stall by Miss Trehane, Miss Clyma, Mrs. Bond, Mrs. Langman, Miss Cousins, and Miss A. Martin; and the Stokeclimsland and Calstock stall by Mrs. Cornish, Miss P-rry, Mrs. T. H. Martyn, Mrs. J. Richards, Mrs. Steer, Mrs. W. Stephens, Mrs. Turner, and Miss Richards; whilst Mrs. J. G. Spear was at the refreshment stall, and Mrs. Kempthorne was President of the Ladies' Committee. During the afternoon various amusements were provided by the Rev. A. V. Thornton, Dr. W. H. Rean, of Calstock, and other gentlemen, and the band of the 5th D.C.R.V. supplied the music. A public tea was also provided, and the proceedings terminated with a concert at Golding's Hotel in the evening.

COMMUNIQUE.

Our readers will probably have seen in the daily papers that our esteemed Bro. Professor Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., has by an act of almost unexampled munificence undertaken to build a new wing to the Sea Bathing Infirmary at Margate, and a chapel, at a cost of at least £20,000. The present building is old, and not built on scientific principles, but the new wing is to be erected on the most recent and approved system, and is to be so arranged that if another Erasmus Wilson can be found, the old building may gradually be renewed according to the plan and system of the new wing. Nothing too much can be said in praise of such munificence, and for such a good purpose.

The Sea Bathing Infirmary at Margate, which devotes itself to the cure of scrofulous diseases, which we often call the King's evil, is a most needed and admirably conducted institution, and of intense importance and blessing to the humbler classes of the community especially. Two of our most distinguished brethren, Bros. Clabon and the Grand Treasurer, are active officers of its Committee; its worthy Secretary, Bro. Walker, is also a Mason, and many of the Committee are brethren of our Order. It is a hospital which calls for the assistance of the members of our Order, as so purely humanitarian, and helpful, and direct in its usefulness and active treatment of malady and suffering.

At a recent meeting of the Court of Directors, on Friday week, our Bro. Col. Creton read a letter from Professor Erasmus Wilson offering to build a new wing and chapel at his own cost, whereupon the following resolution was unanimously passed:—

"That in accepting Professor Erasmus Wilson's offer of a new wing and chapel of the Sea Bathing Infirmary, the Court of Directors beg to tender their cordial thanks for his munificence, and hereby emphatically express their sense of his large-hearted and liberal offer, which must tend so greatly to the relief of suffering and the cure of the sad disease which the Charity was established to heal."

We understand that the architect of the new wing is Mr. Knowles.

Public Amusements.

COURT THEATRE.—The new comedy "Courtship" which is being played with immense success at this pretty little theatre, is from the prolific pen of Bro. Henry J. Byron, who has undoubtedly scored another success. The comedy is more noticeable for its smartness of dialogue and rapid succession of jokes than any remarkably strong situations. Space will not permit of a description of the plot. Suffice it to say that there is a young lady, accomplished, beautiful, and wealthy, with three admirers, each endeavouring to supplant the other in her affections. Miss Amy Roselle is the heroine, and sustains her character with great care and ability. Messrs. Wilson Barrett, G. W. Anson, and Coghlan are the three lovers, the most amusing of the three being Gubbins (Mr. Anson). Mr. Wilson Barrett's representation of a languid young aristocrat, who, with but little brains and no money, hopes to secure the lady on the score of ancestry, is nearly perfect, and his performance is marked by an exhibition of ease and coolness truly refreshing. Mr. Coghlan as a young farmer gives a pleasant picture of an upright, manly fellow, who scorns the idea of marrying a girl richer than himself. We doubt not that "Courtship" will have a long and a merry run. The amusing comedy, "A Clerical Error," commences the evening's amusement and is well worth seeing.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Directors of the Bank of England met on Thursday last, and advanced the rate of discount to 3 per cent.

At a meeting of the inhabitants of Blackpool on Tuesday, the 4th inst., presided over by the Mayor, it was resolved that the Free Libraries Act should be adopted.

At the last regular meeting of the Mirfield Lodge, No. 1102, Mirfield, Bro. J. T. Barras, S.W., was duly elected to fill the Master's chair during the ensuing year.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught opened a bazaar at Brighton on Tuesday, in aid of the Royal Schools for the Daughters of Army Officers at Bath and Rochester.

The World states that the lease of the late Mr. Posno's house in Portland-place has been purchased by Bro. Lord Teutenden, P.G.M. Essex, for £5000, with £100 a-year ground rent.

An emergency meeting of the Premier Red Cross Conclave of England was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on the 30th ult., when a brother was installed and other business transacted.

At the last regular meeting of the Leodiensis Chapter Rose Croix, Leeds, held on the 21st ult., Bro. John Barker, 30°, P.M., P.Z., &c., was unanimously elected M.E.Z. for the ensuing year.

A convocation of the Metropolitan Chapter, No. 1507, was held at Anderton's Hotel, on Thursday, the 6th inst., when E.Comp. J. R. Stacey was installed M.E.Z. A report will appear in our next.

Lord John Manners, M.P., the Postmaster-General, has consented to act as President of the Sir Rowland Hill Memorial Fund. We understand that, although the first list of subscriptions has not yet been published, upwards of £12,000 has been promised.

His Royal Highness Prince Charles of Roumania, through Colonel de Vacaresco, his Marechal de la Cour, has conferred on Mr. Archibald Forbes the grade and insignia of Commander of the Order of the Star of Roumania, and the "Cross of the Passage of the Danube," a decoration instituted by his Royal Highness in commemoration of the Roumanian participation in the campaign of 1877.

A most successful concert was given in the Town Hall, Retford, on Tuesday, the 21st ult., in aid of the Masonic Charities. There was a very large attendance, and the brethren appeared in Masonic costume. The performance was exceptionally good, and we understand that after paying all expenses it is expected that something over £20 will remain to be handed over to one or more of our Charities.

A dinner was given on Wednesday night to the Mayor of Stafford, Mr. F. Marson, at which, in consequence of the birth of a daughter during his mayoralty, and in accordance with an ancient custom, he was presented with a silver cradle, which, with its supports, weighed over 200 ounces, the whole standing thirty inches high. Mr. Salt, M.P. for the borough, presided. The cradle was provided by public subscription.

The poll of the inhabitants of Liverpool in reference to the proposed new water supply from the river Vyrwy in Montgomeryshire, adopted by the Town Council was completed on Tuesday. When the votes were counted a very large majority of voters was recorded in favour of the scheme, the numbers being 21,974 for, and 19,314 against. The water committee will now proceed to take the necessary steps for obtaining parliamentary powers.

The installation meeting of the Oliver Chapter, No. 792, Grimsby, took place on the 21st ult., when Comp. Jack Sutcliffe was duly installed M.E.Z., Comp. J. N. Scherling, P.Z. Minerva Chapter, Hull, ably acting as Installing Master. The companions were afterwards entertained at the Royal Hotel by the M.E.Z. to a handsome banquet.

Professor S——, whose loss is deeply lamented in the scholastic circles of New-York, wrote very indistinctly. He was at one time a highly valued contributor to the journal of which he afterward took charge, and being one day introduced to its editor, was greeted with every expression of cordiality and respect. It was a great pleasure to meet one whose learning and services had been, &c., &c. "But, professor," added the editor, turning upon him and seizing his hand with sudden earnestness, and with solemnity in his face, "I hope you pray for my printers!" The professor replied that he was very happy to offer his prayers in behalf of any who were in need of them; but what was the special urgency in this case? "Ah!" answered the editor, shaking his head impressively, "if you could but hear them swear when they get to work on your manuscript!"—Harper's Magazine.

"Soldiers must be fearfully dishonest," says Mrs. Partington; "it seems to be an occurrence every night for a sentry to be relieved of his watch."

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—This lodge held its installation meeting on the 28th ult., at Anderson's Hotel Fleet-street. There were present Bros. C. Dairy, W.M.; G. Rumball, S.W., W.M. elect; Morrison, J.W.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Mallett, I.P.M.; Heaphy, S.D.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx., J.D. (Freemason); Clarke, I.G.; Tittle, W.S.; Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. of Middx., P.M.; Green, P.M.; Themans, P.M.; Cobham, P.M. The visitors were Bros. Cottebrune, G.G.P.; Dean, P.P.G.S.B. Dorset; Honeywell, P.G. Org. Middx.; J. Wright, P.M. 1446, &c.; Farwig, W.M. 180; Robins, 15; Davidson, 299; Webb, 382; Denbigh, 417; Earny, 511; Perkins, 765; J. Wright, 813; Turrell, 913; Yates, 948; Capper, 1076; Gobby, 1599; Berg, 1613; Howes, 1623; Docker, 1687; Jones, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted. Bro. Rumball, W.M. elect, was then presented to the Installing Master, Bro. Dairy, for induction into the chair of K.S. A Board of Installed Masters was thereupon formed, with Bros. Hopwood, as S.W.; Themans, as J.W.; Stuart, as D.C.; and Carter, as I.G. That portion of the ceremony having been completed, the brethren below the rank of an Installed Master were re-admitted, and they saluted the W.M. in ancient form. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. Dairy, I.P.M.; Morrison, S.W.; Heaphy, J.W.; Carter, P.M., Treas. (twenty-first time); Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Walls, S.D.; Clark, J.D.; Tittle, I.G.; Whitty, W.S.; Jordan, D.C. The addresses were then ably delivered by Bro. Dairy, who is to be congratulated upon the able manner—it being his maiden effort—that he performed the arduous duties of Installing Master. Mr. Daniels was then effectively introduced into Craft mysteries by the W.M. The pleasing duty of presenting the I.P.M. with a jewel in recognition of his services followed. Previously to the lodge being closed, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Honeywell for his services as Organist during the ceremonies. The members and visitors then adjourned to the banquet, which was as usual admirably served by Bros. Clemow and assistants. Upon the removal of the cloth the preliminary toasts received full justice. "The D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," was coupled with the name of Bro. Cottebrune, P.G.P., who duly responded in an able speech. "The Health of the W.M." was tersely given by the I.P.M. and most heartily received by the brethren. Bro. Rumball, in replying, briefly thanked them for having placed him in the proud position of Master of their lodge. He would endeavour to do his duty, and he was sanguine enough to believe that at the expiration of his year of office they would be pleased to say that he had done so. He then gave "The Initiate." This toast having been acknowledged by Bro. Daniels the toast of "The Visitors" followed. In introducing this pledge the W.M. took occasion to congratulate the lodge upon the almost unprecedented number of visiting brethren who had done the Faith Lodge the honour of attending that evening. It would be invidious for him to particularise—among so many distinguished brethren—any one brother to respond; he should, therefore, place no restrictions as to who should reply, but if they thought fit they might all avail themselves of the opportunity of saying a few words. This toast was acknowledged by Bros. Dean, J. Wright, and Cottebrune. The first named expressed his gratification upon the successful manner in which everything had passed off that evening, both in and out of lodge. He had been particularly struck with the rendering of the addresses by the I.P.M. and also with the "working" of the W.M. Having spoken upon Freemasonry in connection with the Province of Dorset, he concluded by stating that he should carry back with him very pleasurable recollections of his visit to this old and distinguished lodge. Bros. Cottebrune and Wright also expressed their thanks for the hospitality they had received.

"The Health of the I.P.M." came next. In prefacing this toast the W.M. briefly alluded to the successful year of office of Bro. Dairy. The lodge had had an abundance of business to transact during the last year, and he felt confident that they would agree with him that the work of the Master had been on the whole well performed. In conclusion he said he was personally obliged to the I.P.M. for the effective manner in which he had been installed by him that day. This toast having been well received, the I.P.M. briefly expressed his acknowledgments in appropriate terms. As the hour was late the remaining toasts, "The Past Masters," "The Treasurer and Secretary," and "The Officers," were quickly given and they were briefly acknowledged by the brethren thus particularised. The toasts were agreeably interspersed with musical and other selections by Bro. Honeywell and others.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The November meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. The brethren present were Bros. Charles Arkell, W.M.; Henry Legge, I.P.M.; W. T. Rickwood, S.W.; S. T. Lucas, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treas.; George Abbott, P.M., Sec.; Thomas Cobu, P.M.; J. G. Chillingworth, S.D.; James Larkin, J.D.; John Kent, Thos. Fisher, B. Perkins, H. A. Carter, J. Copelin, Thos. Agutter, W. H. Lee Davies, Org.; and other brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Alfred Cuff, of the Port Natal Lodge, No. 738, was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. A notice of motion was given by Bro. H. A. Carter, that ten per cent. of the entire receipts of the lodge be added to the Charity Fund. A letter of resignation was read from Bro. Henry Mugeridge, P.M., father of the lodge. It was proposed by the Treasurer and seconded by the W.M., that Bro. Mugeridge be made an honorary member. The proposition was carried unanimously. The lodge was then closed in due form.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—This lodge met in good strength at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 4th inst., when there were present amongst others Bros. T. Walls, P.G.S.B. of Middx., W.M.; Kohler, S.W.; Speedy, J.W.; W. Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Reeves, I.P.M.; Webb, S.D.; Robinson, I.G.; Honeywell, P.G.O. Middx., Org.; Stokes, D.C.; Stranger, W.S.; Bolton, A.W.S.; W. Mann, P.M.; Koch, P.M.; George Everett, P.M.; H. Higgins, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M. The visitors were Bros. Fisher, P.M. 834; Hardy, 190; Dovey, 1257; W. Randall, 1360. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Robertson was passed to the Degree of F.C. There being no other business the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The preliminary Royal and Craft toasts having received full justice, "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Mann, P.M., and was duly acknowledged. "The Health of the Visitors" followed. This toast was responded to at length by Bro. Fisher. In his reply, he expressed the great gratification his first visit to No. 1381 had afforded him. He came there that evening with the expectation of meeting none but strangers, but he had been most agreeably disappointed; as he had found himself in the midst of many old friends, and he was pleased to renew their Masonic and social intercourse. He had heard the Kennington Lodge spoken very highly of, and he could now bear testimony to its general excellence. In conclusion, he said the members of the lodge were to be congratulated upon possessing so many Past Masters, whose services in the cause of Freemasonry were of cosmopolitan renown. Bros. Hardy, Dovey, and Randall having also replied, "The Health of the Past Masters" followed. In proposing this toast the W.M. expressed his thanks to the members of that distinguished body for the services they had rendered him throughout his connection with the lodge. This toast having been warmly received, each of the Past Masters made a short speech in response. In giving "The Treasurer and Secretary" the W.M. referred to the absence through very serious illness of Bro. Page, Treasurer, and the father of the lodge. He said that Bro. Page's services in the cause of Freemasonry were not to be under-estimated. He held a very distinguished position in the Craft, having filled the office of a Grand Steward, and he had also passed the chair in the Grand Stewards' Lodge. His interest in the Masonic Charities had been and was still very great, this was evidenced by the fact that he was a Vice-President of those excellent Institutions. In conclusion he hoped that T.G.A.O.T.U. would spare him—Bro. Page—many years yet to come in order that he might extend—if that were possible—the sphere of his Masonic usefulness. In conclusion he also touched upon the services of Bro. Stuart, Secretary, to the cause of Masonry in general. This toast having been greeted with excellent "fire," Bro. Stuart briefly responded. The toast of "The Officers" terminated the proceedings. During the evening Bros. Honeywell, Stokes, and others entertained the brethren.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—The first meeting after the installation of the W.M. was held on Saturday evening, the 8th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. Blackie, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Catchpole, S.W.; J. W. Warner, J.W.; N. B. Headdon, Treas.; Moody, Sec.; Taylor, S.D.; Kittle, J.D.; Keeble, I.G.; Baber, D.C.; Fendick and Potter, Stewards. The following were the visitors:—Bros. J. Self, P.M. 214, P.G.S.W. Essex; W. H. Postans, P.M. 34; J. Eldridge, P.M. 167; D. R. Still, P.M. 1671; T. Edmondston, W.M. 1669; G. L. Saul, W.M. 1201; C. Percival, W.M. 1667; C. Forbes, S.W. 634, Scotia, New York; J. B. Lamb, 1695; W. Earl, St. John's; T. Youens, 1287; C. Taylor, 1765; T. Eastgate, 1563; A. Baker, 1708; P. Stevens, 1326; D.

O'Connor, 686; Medcalf, 1671; and H. Thompson (Freemason). The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the last lodge read and confirmed, it was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Mogridge was examined as to his proficiency in the science, as was also Bro. Stevens, of Lodge 1326, who, by the courtesy of the W.M. of that lodge, was allowed to take his Second and Third Degrees in this lodge. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when the W.M. vacated the chair to allow Bro. E. Moody, the Secretary, to raise his friend, Bro. Mogridge, to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., and that ceremony was performed with the ability that always distinguishes anything that is performed by Bro. Moody. The ceremony having been completed, Bro. J. Stevens took the chair, and raised his son to the Third Degree. The W.M. then resumed the chair, and Mr. Edward William Postans, who had been previously balloted for, was in due form initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. A motion which stood on the paper, given by Bro. N. B. Headdon, Treasurer, as to the alteration of Bye-law No. 10, regulating the period when a member shall send in his resignation, was considered, and having been proposed by him, it was seconded by Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., and supported by Bro. H. Thompson, P.M., and after a short discussion was carried with but two dissentients. No further business offering the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to what was called in the summons a "dinner," a repast that was more worthy of being designated "a banquet" than many of those that are dignified by that high-sounding title. There was abundance of everything that was good and substantial, without incurring what some considered the wasted cost of things which but few persons require. After the cloth had been withdrawn, the W.M. made a very pleasing announcement, that as their time was necessarily very brief, he should not take up much of it by making long speeches, having well impressed upon his mind the well-known maxim about brevity, &c., and this promise he faithfully carried out to the end of the business, which was certainly a great relief to members who do not care about listening to a "thrice-told tale" or platitudes which are much better understood in practice than by a theoretical dissertation thereupon. The W.M. gave the usual loyal toasts, which were all duly honoured, after which Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., said the brethren would well understand why he had risen to address them, which was to propose "The Health of the W.M." and he trusted that they would drink it in bumpers. He was sure that the lodge was proud in having such a worthy brother as Bro. Blackie for their W.M., and would esteem him for the very admirable manner in which he had worked the ceremony of initiation that evening, for it plainly showed that in having him for their W.M. the lodge would not lose any of its lustre. It would be fulsome in him (Bro. Freeman) if in his presence he said more in his praise, and without saying anything more he should ask the brethren to rise and drink his very good health, a request most cordially responded to. In reply the W.M. thanked the brethren very sincerely for having drunk his health in so cordial a manner, and as allusion had been made to the way in which he had done the work that evening, he could only tell them, as he had told them before, he would do it to the best of his ability, but so long as he was supported by those who were around him he hoped to carry on the business to their entire satisfaction. The W.M. said the next toast was what might be called the toast of the evening, which was "The Health of their Brother Initiate," a gentleman who had been well vouched for and of good report, and whom he was now proud to call a brother, and he trusted that he would never regret the step he had taken that evening. Bro. Postans, in returning thanks, said he was quite unaccustomed to make speeches, especially before so large an assembly as that he saw before him, and, therefore, he thought it would best become him to speak with brevity, as the soul of wit. He thanked them, indeed, most sincerely for admitting him as a member of such an ancient and noble Order, and for the very enthusiastic manner in which his name had been received in the Great City Lodge. He hoped to prove a good Mason and a credit to the lodge, that they would never regret having admitted him as a member, and that he should never cease to appreciate the honour which they had conferred upon him. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was that of "The Visitors." The Great City Lodge were always proud to see visitors at their festive board, and he was glad to see so goodly an array of them then present. In the name of the lodge he gave them a cordial and hearty welcome. Several of the visitors returned thanks, and after one or two other healths had been given, the Tyler's toast brought a very happy and harmonious meeting to a close.

ALDRERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The second gathering this autumn of the brethren of the above lodge took place at the Castle and Falcon Hotel, Aldersgate-street, on Monday last. In the absence of the W.M., who is now on a visit to the United States, the Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, I.P.M., presided, and discharged the functions of W.M., both in the chair and at the banquet, with all his usual graceful tact and geniality. The brethren present included Bros. George Kenning, S.W.; Dr. Alder Smith, J.W.; John Derby Allcroft, M.P., P.M. and Treas.; Thos. Jones, Sec.; Alfred Brookman, J.D.; Dr. Samuel Benton, I.G.; Samuel White, E. Y. Jolliffe, and Thomas Benskin, Stewards; W. H. Froom, and Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B. Visitor: Bro. W. Taylor, S.W. Francis Burdett Lodge, 1503. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed; the W.M. for the ensuing year was elected by ballot, and Bro. George Kenning was found to have been unanimously selected to fill that high office. Bro. John Derby Allcroft, M.P., P.M., was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. W. Steedman was re-elected Tyler. The sum of ten guineas was voted from the lodge funds to be placed on the list of Bro. George Kenning, for the R.M. Benevolent Institution, who will represent the lodge at the forthcoming festivals of the three Charitable Institutions. During the course of the evening, a lecture upon some of the moral aspects and teachings of Freemasonry was delivered by Bro. Hyde Pullen with unusual eloquence and felicity of illustration. The brethren adjourned to a banquet, under the charge of the Rev. the W.M., and spent an evening of more than ordinary enjoyment.

SAINT LEONARD LODGE (No. 1766).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at the Town Hall, Shore ditch, when there were present Bros. Louis Sean, W.M.; G. T. Barr, S.W.; C. F. Barham, J.W.; Rev. H. G. Henderson, Chap.; C. Stevens, Treas.; Joseph Cox, Sec.; E. Benjamin, S.D.; J. A. Jones, J.D.; A. A. Clement, I.G.; C. T. Speight, Tyler; Funston, Beasley, Snellgrove, Laurence, Staff, Tidball, Matthews, Walker, Dr. Holt, Drysdale, Thrower, Plummer, Brand, Prevost, Mendey. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. J. Staff was passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, the ceremony being ably worked. Bro. G. T. Barr, unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bros. C. Stevens, Treasurer; and Speight, Tyler.

CANTERBURY.—United Industrious Lodge (No. 31).—The first regular lodge meeting since the installation of the W.M., Bro. William Tice, was held at the Masonic Hall, St. Peter's-street, on Thursday, the 6th inst., when there were present Bros. W. Tice, W.M.; H. Ward, P.M., P.P.J.G.W., I.P.M.; Rev. J. Mangam, D.D., L.L.D., P.M., P.P.G.D., Chap.; P. Higham, P.M., P.G.J.W., Treas.; Dr. Longhurst, S.W.; J. E. Wiltshire, P.M., J.W.; T. H. Walkley, S.D.; A. W. Cattelle, J.D.; F. Horner, I.G.; J. Plant, P.M., Org. Visitors: Bros. G. Pilcher, P.M. 972, P.G.D.C.; H. Miskin, W.M. 1449, and others. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and the ceremony of raising Bro. Collard was performed by the W.M., Bro. H. Ward explaining the Tracing Board and presenting the tools. The ceremony was rendered in a most impressive manner by having the full musical service, the lodge having the great advantage of so many musical brethren, among them being Bros. Longhurst, Mus. Doc.; Plant, Rhodes, Moulding, and Higgins, Organist and lay clerk of the Cathedral. After other business the lodge was closed down, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—At the regular monthly meeting, held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 6th inst., the chair was taken at 7.30 p.m. by Bro. Braham, W.M., supported by Past Masters Bros. F. Wilkinson, Brown, Moutrie, Clark, Ashley, Treas.; and Dr. Hopkins, S.W.; C. Wilkinson, as J.W.; Radway, Sec.; Rubie, P.M., as Dir. of Cer.; Mercer, S.D.; Peach, as J.D.; Holmes, I.G.; Baldwin, Org.; Ames, Steward; and Bigwood, Tyler. Besides the members there were several visitors, among them Bro. Howes, W.M. of 906. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. H. L. Brown was examined as to his proficiency, entrusted, and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the candidate was re-admitted, and passed to the rank of Fellow Craft by the W.M., Bro. Mercer, S.D., explaining the symbolism of the working tools, and the final charge being given by Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.M. and S.W. The lodge was closed in the Second Degree. On the proposition of the W.M., seconded by the S.W., the Secretary was ordered to write a letter of condolence, on behalf of the lodge, to the widow and sons of the late Bro. Gummer, who died suddenly a week ago, being cut off in the prime of life, after an illness of only a few days. Though, some months ago, he withdrew from membership of this lodge, he took all his Degrees in it, rose to the rank of S.D., and had never joined any other lodge. The W.M. read a letter from the son of the aged Bro. Marsh, who occupied the first chair of No. 41 in 1828, and was recently elected an honorary member of the lodge, offering to present a portrait of his father to it. The Secretary was directed thankfully to accept the proposal. Letters of apology for absence were read from Bros. Hunt, J.W., and Cater, S.D.; the former on account of domestic affliction, and the latter owing to pressing business engagements. The Treasurer announced success at the last election in obtaining admission to the Girls' Masonic School for a candidate from this province in the first attempt. The S.W. undertook, if possible, to ascertain all the changes in the number of this old lodge, with their dates, in order that they may be engraved on the silver jewels worn by the officers. The W.M. announced that the Prov. Grand Master had fixed the 11th or 12th of December for the annual meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge at Weston-super-Mare. No other business offering the lodge was closed at 9.30 o'clock.

SUNDERLAND.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 94).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Freemason-street, on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at 7.30. The lodge was opened by W.M. Bro. Frampton, supported by Bros. Pearson and Surtees, Past Masters; Watson, W.M. 97; Eggleston, W.M. 949; Douglass, P.M. 80 (Freemason). The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. The W.M. stated the time had now arrived for the lodge to elect the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ballot was then taken, when Bro. John Pous, P.M., was duly elected. Bro. Riseborough, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer; Bro. Brown, re-elected Tyler. All business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom in due and solemn form.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners Lodge (No. 249).—The brethren were summoned to attend the Masonic duties of this lodge on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street. Bro. W. Corbett, W.M., was in his place in the east at the proper time, and his official supporters were Bros. F. Barnett, I.P.M.; Jno. C. Robinson, P.M., M.C.; John Hayes, P.M., P.G.S.B.; H. Wynne Parry, J.W.; Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.P.G. Reg., Treas.; Robert Collings, Sec.; Wm. H. Vernon, S.D.; J. Jeneway, J.D.; Morris Davies, I.G.; Alfred D. Ewart, Org.; D. Cangle, Steward; M. Haworth, Steward; and Wm. H. Ball, Tyler. The members present were Bros. B. J. Parry, Thomas Grindall, Robt. H. Waggett, R. G. Bradley, Thos. Haliburton, John Pye, Alfred Samuels, Jas. Messenger, Henry Hall, Rd. Thompson, John Williams, J. Sykes, James Roberts, Henry J. Pye, Rd. Fitzgerald, Jas. Travis, Thos. Poyser, Wm. Mooney, J. W. Walker, James White, and others. The visitors were Bros. E. S. Hall, 241; D. A. MacKenzie, 1806; Robt. H. Simpson, 343; Henry Firth, W.M. 667; and Webster Williams, 1609. Mr. George James Harper was initiated, and Bro. R. H. Waggett was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Mason, the work being most effectively and satisfactorily performed by the W.M. and his able staff of officers. Three guineas were voted from the funds of the lodge to assist the widow of a deceased brother who belonged to the Merchants' Lodge, No. 241. On the motion of Bro. John Hayes, P.M., P.G.S.B., seconded by Bro. W. Corbett, W.M., it was unanimously resolved to send a letter to Bro. Joseph Wood, Treas. 1094, 249 (Freemason), conveying the condolence of the brethren in connection with the loss he has recently sustained by the death of his wife. The brethren subsequently adjourned to banquet, and besides the toasts there were several capital songs by Bros. Webster Williams, M. Davis, R. Bradley, Messenger, and others.

WARWICK.—Shakespeare Lodge (No. 284).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at the Masonic Rooms. There were present Bros. G. Wilson, M.D., W.M.; T. W. Thursfield, M.D., S.W.; Rev. A. H. Russell, J.W.; Rev. P. Sidney Harris, Chap.; Brabazon Campbell, M.A., Treas.; S. W. Cooke, P.P.S.G.W., Sec.; Geo. Bond, J.D.; T. J. Baker, I.G.; S. C. Smith, P.G. Dir. of Cer., Steward; Purser, Tyler; A. Roberts, Jas. Evers-Swindell, J. S. Moore, J. Yeoman, Robins, P.M., P.P.S.G.W.; E. Pritchard, E. Stanley, J. W. Margret, P.P.G.R.; and F. Haynes, P.M. Bro. A. R. Whiteway, No. 1008, was a visitor. The minutes were read and confirmed, also the report of the Prov. Grand Steward was read. Several gentlemen were proposed as candidates for initiation. The W.M. gave a Lecture on the Tracing Board in the Second Degree.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Affability (No. 317).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Thursday, the 6th inst. The members present were Bros. J. R. Lever, W.M.; Mark Vickers, S.W.; William Nicholl, J.W.; R. Tomlins, S.D.; J. Halliday, J.D.; John Church, Sec.; John Smethurst, Treas.; J. Wilson, acting I.G.; J. Sly, Tyler; Daniel Donbavand, I.P.M.; John Bladon, P.M.; James Smith, E. de Gough, A. Forshaw, S. Percivals, Francis Hilton, Ellis Jones, and R. R. Lisenden (Freemason). There were no visitors. The lodge was opened at 6.30 and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was raised to the Second Degree, when Bro. John Bladon, P.M., gave an explanation of the Second Tracing Board, which was listened to with earnest attention by the brethren. There being no work, the lodge was lowered to the First Degree, and closed in peace and harmony at 7.45.

CROYDON.—East Surrey Lodge of Concord (No. 463).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, and in the absence of Bro. Yaxley, the W.M., his position was taken by the M.W.D.P.G.M., Bro. C. W. Arnold, who worked the ceremonies of the Three Degrees, assisted by Bros. G. N. Price, P.M. and P.G. Treas., who officiated as S.W.; Streeter, J.W.; Hook, S.D.; Byron H. Ridge, J.D.; and Herbert Saxelby, I.G. At the close of the ceremonies Bro. Arnold announced that he had been deputed by the P.G.M. to offer to Bro. Yaxley, the W.M. of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, the honourable office of P.G.S. of W., but as Bro. Yaxley was at that moment abroad on business, he had much pleasure in investing Bro. C. H. Woodward on behalf of Bro. Yaxley. The brethren then saluted the M.W.D.P.G.M. with the usual honours, and the lodge having been closed in due form the brethren retired from labour to refreshment, an admirable banquet being served in an adjacent room, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and honoured.

GLOSSOP.—Devonshire Lodge (No. 625).—The installation meeting and St. John's festival of this lodge took place on Wednesday, the 5th inst. Bro. David Davis, of Manchester, who was the W.M. elect, had spared no expense or personal inconvenience to make the proceedings throughout, what they proved to be, a complete success. The ordinary meetings of the lodge are held at the Norfolk Arms Hotel, and, without doubt, the accommodation there is in every way equal to the requirements of the brethren, but Bro. Davis, with a view of not allowing the preparations for the St. John's festival to interfere in the slightest degree with the installation ceremony, had arranged that the latter should be held at the Town Hall. There is no question but that this arrangement was wisely made, as at its conclusion the brethren had simply to walk across the road to the hotel, where everything was in readiness for the banquet. The following were present:—Bros. J. Collier, W.M.; David A. Davis, S.W.; W. Booth, J.W.; S. Collier, Sec.; John Hadfield, S.D.; John Garlick, J.D.; John Holt, Chap.; W. H. Hodgson, I.G.; W. Fielding, Tyler; G. E. Cox, P.M.; Wm. Dawson, P.M.; J. Merry,

P.M.; J. D. Calder, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. Derbyshire; Thos. Dearnally, P.M., P.G.S.B. Derbyshire; John Hardman, P.M.; Saml. Warhurst, Geo. Woodcock, Jos. Wright, J. Spruce, W. H. Irlim, J. H. Rosson, A. Rowbottom, Albert Andrew, A. Sturgeon, W. Swire, Jas. Bennett, S. Robinson, Jos. Robinson, D. Clarke, S. Rowbottom, T. Orme, Danl. Hessegrave, Chas. Davis, J. B. Hallam, and Henry Patchett. The visitors present were Bros. J. Sillitoe, P.M. 317, P.P.G.D.C. E.L. (Installing Master); James Hall, P.P.G.T. E.L.; James Cole, jun., J.D. 1588; W. Fell, 815; T. Broadsmith, W.M. 1166; Wm. Hadfield, W.M. 320; Wm. Cole, 1588; J. Roberts, 320; J. W. Burgess, P.M. 1325; J. E. Steward, W.M. 336; James Ollerenshaw, 266; Henry Heap, 300; T. R. Williams, P.M. 1147; Lewis Wohnes, 1545; W. R. Browne, Sec. 1545; Robt. Hunter, 1088; William Burton, 268; John G. Willan, 320; James Whitehead, S.W. 654; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at 3.30 with prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The Secretary next read particulars of the financial position of the lodge, which were very satisfactory, and a motion was put and carried that the same be adopted. Bro. Davis having been presented to the W.M. as the W.M. elect, was forthwith interrogated by the Secretary, and having given the customary responses, was installed by Bro. J. H. Sillitoe as Worshipful Master of the Devonshire Lodge for the ensuing year. On the re-admission of the M.M.'s Bro. Sillitoe announced the fact to them of Bro. Davis's installation, and the usual salutations having been given, the Installing Master next proceeded to invest the newly-appointed officers as follows: Bros. W. Booth, S.W.; John Hadfield, J.W.; John Garlick, S.D.; W. H. Hodgson, J.D.; W. Thorpe, Treas. (re-appointed); S. Collier, Sec.; W. Swire, I.G.; W. Dawson, D. of C.; S. Robinson, J. Cooper, and J. Spruce, Stewards; and W. Fielding, Tyler. On the latter brother making his appearance, the W.M., addressing him, said that a very pleasing duty devolved itself upon him, and that was, that in consideration of the many years that he (Bro. Fielding) had ably and zealously served the lodge in his capacity of Tyler, he had much pleasure on behalf of himself and the members of the lodge in presenting him with a silver "Tyler's" jewel and collar, and also a gold scarf pin from himself. The W.M. further stated that the brethren generally were so sensible of Bro. Fielding's long and well tried services, that they could not help signifying their appreciation of them by asking him to accept these humble offerings of their esteem. Bro. Fielding, who seemed quite overcome by surprise and pleasure, thanked the brethren in a few appropriate sentences. On the conclusion of the ceremony of installation the W.M. proposed, and Bro. Calder seconded, a vote of thanks to the Installing Master, Bro. Sillitoe, for the great ability he had displayed in that capacity, having performed the whole of it unassisted, and also given the addresses. The motion was unanimously carried, and Bro. Sillitoe was warmly applauded on quitting the lodge room. On the motion of Bro. Calder, seconded by Bro. Dr. Rose, the sum of ten guineas was voted from the lodge funds for the purchase of a vote in the Boys' School. Bro. Thorpe next proposed, and Bro. G. E. Cox seconded, a motion that a share in the Glossop Gas Company be purchased out of the lodge funds. Some amusement was caused by a question being put to a brother, who was known to be the possessor of several gas shares, as to whether he would sell one to the lodge at par, and in reply to which the worthy brother stated that he had already, as the lodge was aware, sold them some shares on the terms mentioned, and it would be against human nature to expect him to get rid of them all at the same price, but at the same time half-a-dozen, more or less, would not make a great deal of difference to him, and if the lodge would be benefited by the purchase, he had no objection to selling them three or four more on the same terms as the last. This announcement was received with applause, and it is needless to say that the motion was carried. "Hearty good wishes" having been expressed by the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 5.30. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Norfolk Arms Hotel, and sat down to a recherché banquet, the serving of which did great credit to the fair hostess. The usual preliminary toasts having been proposed and duly honoured, the W.M. said he should have to depart a little from the routine order of the programme, as he wished to propose a toast which he knew would be acceptable to them all, viz., "The Health of Bro. J. H. Sillitoe, the Installing Master," who unfortunately would very shortly have to leave them and return to Manchester, but before he did go, he (the W.M.) would like to show Bro. Sillitoe how fully the brethren, and himself, appreciated his kindness in coming so long a distance to instal him as the W.M. of the Devonshire Lodge, and also the able manner he had performed the ceremony, and without further preface he would ask them to drink the health of Bro. Sillitoe in a bumper. The toast was heartily responded to, and, in reply, Bro. Sillitoe said he thanked the W.M. and brethren for their hearty reception and hospitable treatment, and he assured them it gave him great pleasure to think his humble efforts had pleased them, and he congratulated the W.M. on his attaining the proud position he now held, and which he had ably and honourably earned. There was no doubt that the W.M. had the advantage of capable officers to assist him in his duties, and this must be a gratifying fact to him, as it would, doubtless, help him to successfully steer through his year of office, and, in wishing him and the members of the Devonshire Lodge all prosperity, he assured them he should be most happy at any time to render them any service. The I.P.M., Bro. Collier, in proposing "The Health of the Worshipful Master," said it afforded him great pleasure in doing so, having known him for eleven years, during which time he had only been absent from the lodge two or three times. He had always been willing to promote the welfare and success of the Devonshire Lodge, and he hoped his year of office would be a successful one. The brethren were fortunate in their choice of their W.M., and he was satisfied that Bro. Davis would prove himself equal to the duties of his office. He wished him a year of prosperity and happiness, and, believing the brethren entertained the highest respect and esteem for their W.M., he would ask them to drink his health and long life and prosperity. The enthusiastic manner in which the toast was responded to proved the truth of the remarks made by Bro. Collier. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Collier for his kind remarks, and also the brethren for the hearty manner they had received the toast. He soon found after joining the Craft that it was an excellent school of learning, and taught the beautiful principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth, and that Freemasonry did not consist only of passing through the different Degrees and wearing the badges, but it set a good example in every sphere of life, and gained the love and respect of all its pupils. He had that day undertaken a responsible duty, but the lodge was fortunate in possessing some excellent and good working P.M.'s, and he was sure of their support in case of need. He hoped the officers would be regular in their attendance, and the members support him, as it was by doing so himself, and passing through every office in the lodge, that he had attained his high position. He heartily thanked the brethren for so unanimously electing him to preside over them during the ensuing year, and hoped to see the youngest brother in the lodge try to emulate those brethren who had gone before him, and reap the same reward as he had. It scarcely seemed possible that it was the same lodge he was now Master of when he looked back and recalled the time when there were hardly sufficient brethren present to open it, and to note the vast improvements they had made these last few years. It was a gratifying sight which had presented itself to his gaze that afternoon, when nearly sixty brethren had assembled to do him honour; he was proud of his position, and assured them he would do all and everything in his power to merit the confidence they had reposed in him. The toasts of "The Visitors," "The I.P.M.," and others were proposed and responded to, and with some excellent singing by Bros. Heap, Marks, Fielding, Proctor, Robinson, and others, together with a recitation by Bro. Barber, written expressly in honour of Bro. Davis's installation, brought one of the most successful meetings in the annals of this lodge to a close at 11 o'clock.

PLUMSTEAD.—The Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The first meeting of the above lodge since its installation meeting took place on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, and, like most of the meetings of the above powerful and influential lodge, was well attended by both members and visitors. The lodge having been opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, the minutes of the last meeting were read and passed. The following work was then done by the W.M., Bro. Lloyd, in such a manner as to win the approbation of even the most exacting of the Past Masters present, viz., the Second Degree, Bro. Rahtz having, with the usual ceremonies, passed to that Degree. It was then proposed and carried unanimously that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of our lamented and deceased Bro. Robert Lister, late Tyler of the lodge. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren and visitors sat down to a pretty little supper, served by Bro. Tucker in excellent form. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. with spirit, and cordially responded to by the assembly. Bro. Past Master Coupland, in response to "The Present and Past Officers of the Province," regretted the absence of Bro. Butler, who as an officer would have done honour to so important a toast. He, Bro. Coupland, had responded to the toast so often that they must feel a trifle wearied at hearing him. Well, encouraged by their forbearance, he would say that which he had repeatedly said, that in their Grand Master, Lord Holmesdale, and in Bro. Eastes, their Deputy Grand Master, they had two of the best and most gracious leaders that it was possible to serve under. A very short time ago a number of the brethren had had an opportunity, not only of seeing, but hearing their Grand Master, and he felt sure the remembrance of that genial presence, and the kind, encouraging words uttered by their distinguished brother, would not soon be forgotten by the brethren of Plumstead and the surrounding district. At the conclusion of a most elegant address, Bro. Coupland thanked them for the toast. Bro. Denton, who holds a high office in the Provincial Grand Chapter, as well as being a P.P.G. Officer, also returned thanks. Bro. Hayes, the I.P.M., then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and congratulated the lodge upon having a Master who could work the ceremonies, and conduct the lodge in the admirable manner Bro. Lloyd had that night. Bro. Lloyd, in response, after thanking the brethren for the toast, said that he looked upon the position he occupied as a very responsible one. He took it that the work incidental to the position could not be too well or too conscientiously done. For many years past the work in the Pattison Lodge had been done in a most admirable manner, and he had determined to carry out the duties entrusted to him in such a manner as would not reflect discredit upon the brilliant array of Masters who had preceded him. The W.M. then proposed the toast of "The Past Masters," and in so doing he paid a high compliment to his predecessor, Bro. Hayes, both as a man and a Mason, and coupled with his name that of the father of the lodge, Past Master Ellis. Bro. Hayes, in reply, spoke feelingly of the kindness he had received from the brethren during his year of office, and trusted the W.M. would during his year be as well and heartily supported. Bro. Ellis, whose eloquence is a source of unequalled pleasure to the brethren, said when he saw the array of Past Masters gathered around him, and remembering, as he did, not with regret, however, the years ago it was that he occupied the position that Bro. Lloyd held that night, it brought to his mind the words of a song which said:—

"Darling, you are growing old, Silver threads among the gold."

He was pleased to see throughout all those years that the lodge was sanctified by its harmony and brotherly love. In it every brother seemed to have a sympathy with one another, that made its meetings so pleasant and delightful, that he always anticipated their meeting with unmixed pleasure and delight. It was another source of pleasure to him to witness the excellent working of every Master who had succeeded him, and he trusted that the kindly spirit of emulation which existed among the Masters would long continue, for he felt that if it did the honour and prosperity of the lodge, which had made it a marked lodge among the lodges of the province of Kent, would continue as now, undimmed and undiminished. The toast of "The Visitors" was coupled with the names of Bros. Weston, Shaw, and Warren. The former, in replying, thanked the brethren of the district for enabling him to make so good an appearance as a Steward at one of the charity meetings, more especially he thanked the Pattison Lodge, which started him with ten guineas from the funds, and whose members had helped to swell his offering to the sum of £48 18s. In the name of the Ubique Lodge he thanked them. Bros. Scully, Syer, and Smith also replied to the toast. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and then the worthy host, Bro. Tucker, was complimented. The proceedings soon after terminated. Among the officers and brethren present, beside the W.M., were Bros. T. D. Hayes, I.P.M.; Past Masters A. Penfold, J. McDougall, H. Butter, P.G.S. Kent; F. W. Vincent, Jas. Chapman, S.W.; R. J. Cook, J.W.; E. Denton, P.M. and Sec.; H. Mason, S.D.; R. Edmonds, J.D.; H. Pryce, I.G.; T. Reed, D.C.; C. Cooke, Org.; H. Shaw, W.M. 1536; J. Warren, W.M. 700; D. Deeves, S.W. 1536; J. Wilkins, S.W. 700; W. Murphy, Treas. 1536; T. Smith, P.M. 829; G. Beaver, J.D. 700; J. H. Roberts, I.G. 700; J. Scully, I.G. 706; S. E. Southgate, 700; J. Aillud, 615; G. Tedder, 1167; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason).

SUNDERLAND.—Williamson Lodge (No. 949).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the St. Stephen's School, on Monday, the 10th inst., at 7.30. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Eggleston, supported by Bros. Taylor, I.P.M.; Hall, P.M.; Gray, P.M.; Halfnight, P.M.; Cook, P.M.; and a good muster of brethren. Visitors: Bros. Frampton, W.M. 94; Watson, W.M. 97; and Douglass, P.M. 80 (Freemason). The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Mr. Thomas Lackenby, a candidate for Masonry, who was duly elected. He was introduced and received the Degree of an E.A. Mason. The lodge was then raised to the Second Degree. Bro. Osborne was examined and answered satisfactorily; he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree. Bro. Osborne was admitted and made a M.M. The lodge was regularly closed to the First Degree. No other business before the meeting, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom in due and solemn form.

MOSSLEY.—Prince Alfred Lodge (No. 1218).—The installation meeting of this improved lodge took place on Wednesday, the 29th ult., at the Commercial Hotel. The following officers and brethren were present:—Bros. James Buckley, W.M.; the Rev. J. E. Roberts, S.W.; J. Stevenson, S.D.; John Buckley, Treas.; John Waterhouse, Tyler; John Heys, P.M.; Thos. Read, Danl. Dempsey, Thos. Mayall, Joseph Woolhouse, and Robert Wilson. Visitors: Bros. Wm. Blackburn, P.P.G. S.D. West Yorks.; Robert Whittaker, P.M. 350, 678; P.P.G. D. of C. East Lanc.; Geo. P. Cartwright, S.D. 678; John Shaw, P.M. 337; J. W. Tanner, 337; Thos. H. Tanner, 337; C. Shaw, W.M. 337; the Rev. Robert Coburn, 269; G. H. Mellor, W.M. 1774; Dr. W. Y. Martio, 1633; W. F. Towle, 815; W. R. Batchelor, P.M. 324; Dr. G. M. Brumwell, Robt. T. Punter, W.M.; Thos. Peak, W.M. 300; and R. R. Lisenden, 337 (Freemason). The lodge was opened with punctuality at the hour appointed, viz., three o'clock, with solemn prayer, after which the minutes of the previous lodge meeting were read and confirmed. The Auditor's report on the financial position of the lodge was next taken and adopted. The W.M. then addressed the brethren in relation to the annual election of a Master, after which the Installing Master, Bro. W. R. Batchelor, presented the W.M. elect, Bro. J. E. Roberts, who gave the requisite answers to the questions put to him by the Secretary from the Book of Constitutions. Bro. Batchelor, assisted by Bro. W. F. Towle, then proceeded to install Bro. Roberts as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, and both brethren fully bore out the reputation they enjoy for their efficiency as Installing Masters, and produced on the minds of those who witnessed this beautiful ceremony for the first time a most favourable impression. After the W.M. had been saluted in the customary manner, Bro. Towle invested the following brethren with the collars and jewels of their respective newly-appointed office:—Bros. Dunbar Murray, S.W.; J. Stevenson, J.W.; Thos. Read, S.D.; Danl. Dempsey, Sec.; John Buckley, Treas., re-appointed; Thos. Mayall, I.G.; John Waterhouse, Tyler. Bro. Whittaker was invested, pro tem., as Junior Deacon. At the conclusion of this ceremony Bro. Buckley addressed the W.M., Bro. Towle the Wardens, and Bro. Batchelor the brethren. The installation being finished, and "Hearty good wishes" expressed by the visitors, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony, and with prayer, at 5.20. The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet, which had been provided for them by Bro. E. Nield, the host, and we must give due praise to that brother for the amount of care he exhibited in providing for their personal comfort, and in the selection, quality, and cooking of the viands, to which the most fastidious could scarcely take exception. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured, the seventh toast on the list being that of "The Newly-elected W.M.," which was proposed in graceful terms by the I.P.M., Bro. James Buckley, who said, in proposing the toast of the evening, he should not detain the brethren long by his remarks, which would be very short. He stood before the brethren as their I.P.M., and it had fallen to his lot to propose to them this important toast. They all knew that their present W.M. had been the leading spirit in the lodge for a long time past, and more particularly, perhaps, during the past year, as, although he (the I.P.M.) had presided over them the last twelve months, yet he had done very little to promote the interests of the lodge while in that capacity, and whatever had been done, the brethren, he felt sure, were not indebted to him, but to their present W.M., who, as they well knew, had assisted him most kindly and usefully during his tenure of office. He had not the slightest fear about the competency of their W.M. for the office to which the brethren had elected him, and he was sure that not one of them would have to regret their choice, and he would conclude his remarks by asking them to drink "The Health of their W.M." in a bumper. It is needless to say that this invitation was promptly responded to, accompanied with some excellent "firing." Bro. James Tanner sang, with great "verve," "Here's to his health in a song," which was well rendered, and at its conclusion the W.M. in reply said: It is with a feeling of pleasure that I rise to return you my thanks for so kindly responding to the toast of my health, and to say a few words on this, the most important day of the Masonic year. The celebration of the festival of St. John does not, as you are doubtless aware, happen on the same day to each lodge, but whenever it does happen, it is as I said before the most important day of the Masonic year, and it is so, I apprehend, because unquestionably a very important duty has to be performed on the part of the newly-invested officers to diffuse Masonic light and knowledge during their term of office. In their hands is placed the weal or woe of the lodge, and it is for them to say whether the work done shall be good and square work, or whether the timbers shall be crooked, the limbs knotted and dwarfed, and the Order brought into disgrace. Brethren, you have signified your confidence in my ability to perform the duties of W.M. of this lodge by electing me to the highest office which it is in your power to bestow, and I hereby tender you my heartfelt thanks for this token of your respect and esteem. You will, I know, readily believe me if I say that I approach these duties with a large amount of diffidence. Freemasonry expects that the Master of the work shall have nothing to learn. She also expects him to be able to instruct not only the younger members of the Craft, but also those more advanced in Masonic knowledge, and she expects him to be able to repel the insidious assertions of our uninitiated adversaries. This is a lofty standard, but then our mother never expects that any of her sons will ever reach this standard, and because she knows that the best of us—yes all of us—are so very imperfect; and hence the brother does well who does his best, and that I do promise, and I ask you, officers and brethren, to make the same vow. Brethren, let us this day resolve to act up to, more and more, the noble tenets of our venerable Order; yes, let us resolve to regulate our lives by the plumb line of justice and truth, and to square our actions by the principles of virtue, so that we may at the last gain admission to the celestial lodge above, where the Grand Master of the Universe for ever presides and for ever reigns. The W.M. was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his speech, and the musical brethren sang "Prosper the Art" in good style. The toasts of "The Visiting Brethren," "The I.P.M.," and the rest of the P.M.'s, "The Installing Masters," "The Masonic Charities," and "The Newly Invested Officers" were proposed and responded to, and the brethren separated a little before 11 o'clock, after spending one of the most pleasant and enjoyable evenings within their recollection. We must not conclude our report without warmly commending the very excellent singing of Bros. James and T. H. Turner, M. Stafford, P.M., and J. Taylor, and also the accompanying of Bro. Enos Andrew on the piano, the rendering of those beautiful glees, "The Red Cross Knight" and "Comrades in Arms," being most artistic, the latter producing quite a furore and being rapturously re-demanded.

LYMM.—Earl of Chester Lodge (No. 1565).—The annual meeting and installation of W.M. elect and festival of St. John of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., when the picturesque village of Lymm, Cheshire, was en fête. The meetings of the lodge are held at the Masonic Hall, and on the above occasion at three in the afternoon. The W.M., Bro. J. H. Evans, was supported by a large number of members and visitors from neighbouring lodges. Among those present we noticed Bros. John Bows, P.M., P.P.G., J. W. Cumberland and Westmorland; Rev. — Hodgson, P.P.G.C.; E. G. Parker, S.W., W.M. elect; Balshaw, Sec.; Jno. Sudlow, S.D.; Jas. Kenworthy, J.D.; J. Lewis, I.G.; G. G. Wootton, P.M.; Coxhill, W.M. 758; Siddeley, 1045; Jno. Young, W.M. 148; D. W. Finney, P.M., P.G.D. of C.; Capt. Little, 120; Bradbury, P.M. 1357; Kenyon, P.M. 1045; Smith, P.M. 1009; E. G. Simpson, P.M., P.P.G.D.; Rohmer, P.M. 633; Groves, Bradford, Wallington, P. Pearce, Griffin, Thompson, W. L. Stone, Crompton, W.M. 1888; Barber, W.M. 1730; Ryder, W.M. 1357; and others. The lodge was opened in due and form, when the minutes were confirmed, and the Auditor's report received. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when in the absence of Bro. E. Simpson, a distinguished member of the Prov. G. Lodge of Cheshire, Bro. Bows was requested to take the chair as Installing Master. Bro. Evans presented Bro. E. G. Parker, Worshipful Master elect, for the benefit of installation. The preliminary portion of the ceremony being completed, he lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and subsequently a Board of Installed Masters was completed in ample form, W. Bros. Finney and Siddeley presiding over the West and South respectively. Bro. E. G. Parker having been placed in the East, according to ancient custom, the congratulations usual in well-ordered lodges followed, the Board being "called off" pro tempore. Labour resumed, the Board was closed in the name and fear, and the members and visitors of the Three Degrees admitted in due course. The usual proclamations, salutations, and greetings followed, and then the W.M. appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year. The Installing Master addressed each brother on the meaning of his emblem of office, his situation in the lodge, and the nature and importance of his duties, after which he addressed at length the W.M., the Wardens, and the brethren generally, and thus completed the interesting ceremony of the day. After the reception of some propositions and the discharge of some routine business, a unanimous vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Bowes for the able and efficient manner in which he had performed the installation ceremony. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned for a brief interval, after which they re-assembled at the banquet table. The W.M. presided, and after the cloth was withdrawn the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the pleasures of the evening were enhanced by some excellent music.

GOSPORT.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1705).—The annual meeting of this lodge to instal the W.M. elect was held at the Star Hotel Assembly Rooms on Thursday, the 23rd ult. The lodge was, with the usual formalities, opened by the W.M., Bro. C. B. Whitcomb, P.G. Stwd., with the assistance of the officers of the lodge, and supported by a numerous assembly of members and visitors. Among the latter were Bros. Mark J. Frost, 257, 487, 1069, P.M., P.G. Treas.; H. J. Guy, P.M. 342, P.P.G.D.C.; P. C. Puttock, W.M. 257; J. Johns, W.M. 1428, P.G.S.B.; V. Brown, W.M. 903; J. W. Wilmott, W.M. 342; E. H. Liddell, W.M. 804; A. L. Emanuel, P.M. 1069; R. Osborne, W.M. 487, P.P.G.O.; R. J. Murrell, W.M. 1776; J. C. Stroud, J.D. 359; G. Pearman, Org. 487; R. Downing, J.W. 903; W. Bruunwin, S.D. 903. Among the Past Masters were Bros. E. S. Main, J. Wallingford, and G. F. Lancaster, P.P.G.J.D. The minutes of the last regular lodge were read by the Secretary, Bro. Count Des-Geney, and unanimously confirmed, after which the report of the Audit Committee was presented and adopted. A ballot was then taken for the election of a Treasurer, when the W. Bro. C. B. Whitcomb was declared to be unanimously elected. The W.M. elect, Bro. G. Grant, was then formally presented by Bro. G. F. Lancaster, Treas., P.P.G.S.D., for the benefit of installation, to the outgoing Master, Bro. C. B. Whitcomb, P.G. Stwd., who most ably performed the ceremony, and regularly installed the W. Bro. G. Grant in King Solomon's chair. The following brethren were, in due course, appointed and invested as officers of the lodge for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. W. Stroud, S.W.; Count Des-Geney, J.W.; C. B. Whitcomb, P.G. Stwd., I.P.M., Treas.; T. Batchelor, P.P.G. Org., Sec.; C. Johnson, S.D.; C. J. E. Mumby, J.D.; A. T. Cave, D.C.; A. Knight, Org.; G. Darby, I.G.; W. C. Webb and J. S. Senior, Stewards; L. Cauvin and W. Tomlinson, Tylers. A formal vote of thanks was proposed by the W.M., Bro. G. Grant, seconded by Bro. J. W. Stroud, S.W., to Bro. C. B. Whitcomb for the able and impressive manner in which he had installed his successor, which was carried with acclamation. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. C. B. Whitcomb, I.P.M. and Treas., was presented with a handsome Past Master's jewel, of special design and with appropriate inscription, as a token of appreciation by the members, for the able manner he had conducted the business of the lodge as first W.M. for two consecutive years. The brethren then adjourned to their usual place of meeting, the India Arms Hotel, where a capital banquet had been provided for about forty persons by the genial hostess, Miss Eastland, and several hours most agreeably spent in fraternal unity. The graces before and after the banquet were most ably rendered by the "Gosport Masonic Choir," who had equally well rendered and sung the anthems in the musical portion of the installation ceremony, with the kind assistance of Bro. Misselbrook, as Org. The usual toasts among Freemasons were duly given and responded to, and at a late hour the brethren separated, after a thoroughly enjoyable evening's entertainment.

TWICKENHAM.—Royal Hanover Lodge (No. 1777).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, on Monday last, when the following brethren were present:—Bros. H. Lovegrove, W.M.; H. A. Dubois, Prov. J.G.W., I.P.M.; G. Clark, jun., S.W.; H. Clark, J.W.; W. H. Barber, Sec.; C. C. Cruikshanks, S.D.; F. J. Perks, J.D.; W. S. Dunkley, I.G.; G. S. Graham, Org.; Wood, W.S.; Rawles (acting), Tyler; Axford, E. W. Dubois, and others, with Bros. J. Hicks and J. Rush, visitors. The lodge was opened in due form, and Bros. Boyle, Holliday, and Thorn having answered the usual questions, were entrusted, and retired, and the lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and those brethren were duly passed. Messrs. Wm. and Saml. Lewis, brothers, natives of Sierra Leone, were introduced, and duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The members afterwards partook of refreshment, and during the evening much enjoyed the vocal efforts of Bros. Holliday, S. Lewis, W. S. Dunkley, C. C. Cruikshanks, E. A. White, and G. S. Graham, the musical arrangements both in lodge and at refreshment being under the direction of the last-named brother.

CROYDON.—Old England Lodge (No. 1790).—The ordinary monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., Bro. W. Foulsham, W.M., presiding. In consequence of the unavoidable absence of the S.W., J.W., and I.G., Bros. Poer, Sec. of the Panmure Lodge, 720, and Daniel, W.M. Prosperity Lodge, 65, kindly undertook to officiate as S.W. and J.W. respectively, Bro. Sheadel, W.M. of the Panmure Lodge, officiating as S.D. in the place of Bro. Pascal, who filled the post of I.G. There were also present Bros. the Rev. J. H. Roberts, P.M.; B. Whittaker, J.D.; W. P. Robinson, Sec.; J. Sargeant, Dr. Fleming, G. W. Amer, H. Legg, and W. Tancock. This lodge was formally consecrated on the 22nd May last, and since that time, in addition to the founders and two or three joining members, eleven candidates have been initiated, of whom five have passed the Three Degrees. In addition to the eleven brethren before-mentioned, five gentlemen are enrolled for initiation, and one as joining member; the lodge may, therefore, be considered to have made fair and satisfactory progress during the six months it has been established. Its meetings are held on the first Thursday in each month in a spacious hall, erected specially for the lodge, adjacent to the Club, New Thornton-beath, and in connection with the lodge it has been resolved to form a lodge of instruction, a preliminary committee meeting having been fixed for the 20th inst.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB (No. 58).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held on Friday, the 7th inst., at the London Masonic Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. There were present Bros. E. E. Barnett, W.M.; C. J. Hogg, S.W.; J. D. Langton, J.W.; Hogg, Treas.; J. D. Langton, Sec.; Brittain, S.D. and J.D.; W. W. Williams, I.G.; and Fillan. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Fillan acting as candidate. The S.W. vacated his chair, Bro. Fillan occupying same. Bro. J. D. Langton being a candidate for the Second Degree answered the usual questions. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Langton was passed to the Degree of F.C. The lodge was then resumed in the First Degree, and the W.M. rose for the first time. The Secretary stated that he had received information to the effect that the Committee of the Club had made arrangements by which the members of this lodge of instruction could enjoy the benefits of membership of the Club on advantageous terms. Bro. J. D. Langton proposed, Bro. J. S. Fraser seconded, and it was carried unanimously, "That this offer be accepted, and that the thanks of this lodge be presented to the Committee of the Club for their kindness in the matter." The W.M. rose for the second time, and Bro. Hogg was unanimously elected W.M. for the next meeting. The W.M. rose for the third time, and the lodge was closed.

MANCHESTER LODGE (No. 179).—Saturday night, the 1st inst., was quite a gala night at this old lodge of instruction, held at the Yorkshire Grey, Fitzroy-square. The Fifteen Sections were ably worked by the brethren, under the very able direction of Bro. Koester, P.M. 435, W.M.; Bro. Kew, P.M. 179, S.W.; Bro. Baker, P.M. 167, J.W.; Bro. Frost, P.M. 228, P.Z., I.P.M. The lodge was opened in due form with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the last lodge meeting were read and confirmed. The various Sections were worked as follows:—

FIRST LECTURE.

1st Section Bro. Marx, 957.
2nd " " J. C. Smith, 1744.
3rd " " P. Recknell, 202.
4th " " J. J. Harvey, Sec. 100.
5th " " Paul, 1287.
6th " " Frost, P.M. 228.
7th " " Baker, P.M. 167.

SECOND LECTURE.

1st Section Bro. Paul, 1287.
2nd " " Ash, P.M. 179.
3rd " " W. C. Smith, 1563.
4th " " Kew, P.M. 179.
5th " " Sedgwick, P.M. 180.

THIRD LECTURE.

1st Section Bro. Belfrage, W.M. 179.
2nd " " Paul, 1287.
3rd " " Koester, P.M. 435.

The lodge was resumed in the First Degree. On the proposition of Bro. J. C. Smith, seconded by Bro. Baker, P.M., Bro. Ramsden, 1744, was unanimously elected a member of the lodge of instruction. On the proposition of Bro. Sedgwick, seconded by Bro. Baker, a vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Koester, P.M., Preceptor, as a recognition of the ability displayed by him in fulfilling the duties of the chair, and for his services cheerfully rendered as Preceptor of the lodge of instruction; wishing him health and strength to continue his duties. Bro. Koester, in tendering his thanks to the lodge, remarked that it always afforded him the highest and greatest pleasure to preside at a meeting of that description, and to impart Masonic knowledge, pure and undefiled, to those in search of it, and hoped it would not be the last time by many he should meet his old friends, the Masters and Past Masters, who had come to support him on the occasion. Among the brethren assembled were Bros. W. S. Luck, Sedgwick, Lovett, Sibley, Wood, Gittens, Pratt, Stumm, Davis, Kew, P.M.; Ash, P.M.; Recknell, J. C. Smith, W. C. Smith, Ramsden, Belfrage, Harvey, Sec.; and Paul. All Masonic business being ended the lodge was closed in perfect harmony.

KENNINGTON CHAPTER (No. 1381).—A convocation of this new chapter was held at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 8th inst., when there were present Comps. George Everett, M.E.Z.; W. Mann, P.Z., acting H.; T. C. Walls, P.G.D.C. of Middlesex, acting J.; H. Higgins, S.E.; Speedy, 1st Assistant; Webb, 2nd Assistant; Appleton; and others. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, Comp. Mann, P.Z., gave a notice of motion that the days of meeting should be altered from the second Saturday to the second Thursday in the months of February, April, September, and November. There were two candidates on the agenda for exaltation, but through unavoidable circumstances they were prevented from attending. The chapter was then formally closed, and the companions having partaken of slight refreshment separated.

TORQUAY.—St. John's Chapter (No. 328).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, the 4th inst., at five p.m., under the direction of the Principals, Ex. Comps. Bradnee, Z.; Hurrell, H.; and Fullwood, J.; assisted by Ex. Comps. Warren, I.P.Z.; Johns as E.; Dodge, N.; W. A. Goss, jun., Pr. Sojr.; Ellis and Taylor, Asst. Sojrs. The Board of Installed Principals having been opened, the companions were admitted, and the chapter was opened. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Two brethren were expected to present themselves for exaltation, but owing to a little informality one of them was deferred. The First Principal took advantage of the opportunity afforded by the unexpected presence of Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, who was one of the founders of the chapter, to request him to take the chair of Z., perform the ceremony of exaltation, and give the symbolical and mystical lectures, with which he at once complied. This having been completed, Ex. Comp. Bradnee resumed his chair. On his proposition Scribe E. was directed on behalf of the chapter to address a letter of condolence and sympathy to the highly-esteemed Ex. Comp. Rev. R. Bowden, P.Z., on the death of his wife. Ex. Comp. Perry, P.Z., proposed a cordial vote of thanks to Z. for a handsome present to the chapter of a frame containing photographic portraits of all who had occupied the chair of First Principal from the period of the foundation of the chapter, which was carried by acclamation. Notice having been given by the Third Principal of a proposal to require fees of honour from all officers on their appointment, the subject was fully discussed, and an arrangement to that effect was adopted. Other private business having been transacted, the chapter was closed at eight p.m.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 199).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Bell Tavern, High-street, Shoreditch, on Thursday, the 6th inst. Bro. J. B. Shackleton, the W.M., opened his lodge at the appointed hour, assisted by Bros. H. S. Meyer, S.W.; W. Fieldwick, J.W.; W. J. Meek, M.O.; W. Beasley, J.O.; B. Meyer, P.M. and Treas.; James Hill, Sec.; A. P. Little, S.D.; J. J. Gould, J.D.; F. Bonner, R.M.; J. Marsh, Tyler; and the following members, viz.: V. W. Bros. D. M. Dewar, P.G.M.O., and Asst. G. Sec.; James Stevens, P.G.J.O.; and John Constable, honorary members; and Bros. E. M. Adams, W. A. Neede, and others. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting read, Bros. G. Andrews, of Craft Lodge No. 1420; W. H. Edwards, of the Beadon Lodge; and R. Marshall, of Lodge No. 813, were advanced to the Honourable Degree of M.M.M. by Bro. James Stevens, at the request of the W.M. Refreshment followed labour, and a very enjoyable evening was spent in social harmony, the toasts being very ably proposed by the W.M., and as happily responded to by Bros. Dewar, Constable, and others. Some capital songs and recitations by Bros. Stevens, H. S. Meyer, Constable, and other members enlivened the proceedings, which terminated at a reasonable hour, and the brethren separated highly satisfied therewith. This lodge under its present able management promises to become one of the best of the many excellent lodges connected with this flourishing Degree.

BRIXTON LODGE (No. 234).—The installation meeting of this flourishing Mark lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Saturday last, the W.M., Bro. T. Poore, P.G.I.G., in the chair, supported by Bros. M. S. Larham as I.P.M.; C. P. McKay, S.W. (W.M. elect); H. Lovegrove, Prov. G.S. of W., J.W.; G. Clark, jun., M.O.; J. K. Pitt, acting S.O.; Baldwin, Sec. and acting J.O.; Dr. Pearce, S.D.; G. Moss, J.D.; Axford, acting I.G.; G. S. Graham, Organist; Potter, Tyler; and others. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of the last regular and one emergency meeting, Bro. G. F. Smith, jun., was duly advanced to the honorable Degree of Mark Master. The ballot was then taken for some candidates for initiation, and a brother for joining. Bro. M. S. Larham, P.M., P.P.G. Swd. Br., then presented Bro. C. P. McKay for installation, and the whole ceremony was rendered by Bro. Poore in his usual style, so well known to nearly all metropolitan brethren. The following were invested as officers: Bros. T. Poore, I.P.M.; H. Lovegrove, S.W.; G. Clark, jun., J.W.; J. Curtis, M.O. (by deputy); H. Baldwin, S.O.; Dr. Pearce, J.O.; H. Lovegrove, Treas.; H. Baldwin, Sec.; G. Moss, S.D.; G. N. Evans, J.D.; Axford, I.G.; G. S. Graham, Organist; and Potter, Tyler. The brethren passed a hearty vote of thanks to Bro. Poore, the Installing Officer, and the lodge was closed in due form. An excellent repast was provided by Bro. Oliver, to which the brethren did ample justice, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to.

BIRKENHEAD.—Joppa Lodge (No. 11).—The annual gathering of the members of this lodge of Mark Masters was held at the Masonic Hall, Argyle-street, on Tuesday, the 4th inst. There was an excellent gathering, amongst the chiefs present being Bros. John Pemberton, P.P.G.J.D., W.M., in the chair; Hugh Williams, S.W. (W.M. elect); J. W. Burgess, J.W.; C. Dutton, M.O.; Thomas, J.O.; Bennett, S.D.; Bradshaw, J.D.; J. P. Platt, Treas.; Pearson, Sec.; and others. The list of visitors included Bros. J. Hayes, W.M. of West Lancashire Lodge; E. Friend, P.P.J.G.W.; J. Salmon, P.M., P.G.I.G. of England; Bolton, W.M. Egerton Mark Lodge; D. Fraser, W.M. Earl of Chester Lodge; and others. The W.M., Bro. Pemberton, installed Bro. Hugh Williams, P.P.J.D., in a very impressive manner (who was unanimously elected W.M.), assisted by Bro. Stevenson, P.G.T. The W.M. then appointed the following officers:—Bros. J. W. Burgess, P.P.L.G., as S.W.; Dutton, J.W.; J. P. Platt, P.G.D. England, was re-elected Treasurer for the eighteenth time; Pearson, re-appointed Sec.; Gray, Reg.; Thomas, M.O.; Bennett, S.O.; J. H. Bradshaw, J.O.; Gardner, S.D.; Thorburn, J.D.; Robertson, I.G.; and Holtaway, Tyler (re-elected). A Past Master's jewel was presented by Bro. Morgan, P.P.G.S.B., to Bro. Pemberton on his retirement. The brethren afterwards banqueted, and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

LIVERPOOL.—West Lancashire Lodge (No. 6).—The brethren of the above lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Wednesday, the 6th inst., at 6.30 p.m., to assist at the installation of the W.M. elect Bro. A. Wylie, J.W. The lodge was opened by Bro. R. H. Evans, W.M., assisted by the following brethren: Bros. A. Wylie, J.W. as S.W.; W. J. Thompson, M.O., as J.W.; W. Corbett, P.M., as M.O.; R. Reader, Sec., as S.O.; H. W. Parry, J.O.; John Hayes, P.M., P.G.J.D.; G. R. Goepel, Treas., P.G.M.O.; W. C. Erwin, S.D.; J. Jenaway, I.G.; M. Howarth, S.; W. H. Ball, Tyler. There were also present Bros. T. Clark P.M., P.P.G.M.O. L.; John Pye, D. Davies, E. Humphries, J. S. Russell, R. Young, and W. Henderson. The visitors were Bros. S. Mattison, P.P.G.M.O. Cheshire; John Pemberton, P.M. No. 11 and P.P.G.J.D. Cheshire; George Morgan, P.M. No. 11, P.P.G.D.C. Cheshire; Hugh Williams, W.M. No. 11. The following brethren were advanced to the Honourable Degree, Christopher Wadsworth, Luke Bramwell, Jas. Sampson, and David Cangleby, by Bro. Evans, W.M., assisted by Bro. J. Hayes, P.M. The W.M., Bro. Evans, having vacated the chair, it was occupied by Bro. J. Hayes, P.M., as Installing Master. The W.M. elect, Bro. A. Wylie, was presented by Bros. R. H. Evans, W.M., and G. R. Goepel, P.M., Treas., P.G.M.O., and installed according to ancient custom. The W.M., Bro. A. Wylie, then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year. Their names are Bros. R. Reader, S.W.; W. J. Thompson, J.W.; W. Corbett, M.C.; H. W. Parry, S.O.; W. C. Erwin, J.O.; G. R. Goepel, P.M., Treas.; J. Jenaway, Reg. M.; M. Howarth, Sec.; J. S. Russell, S.D.; E. Humphries, J.D.; Dr. A. Samuels, I.G.; D. Davies, Chap.; W. J. Henderson, C. Wadsworth, and D. Cangleby, Stewards. Bro. Evans, I.P.M., in proposing that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Goepel, Treas., P.M., P.G.M.O., said that he could not too highly esteem Bro. Goepel, for his many excellent qualities; his courtesy and kindness were beyond all praise. He had worked long and arduously for the lodge, and all the brethren knew that but for him they would not have seen it in such a flourishing condition as it was that day. The vote of thanks was seconded by Bro. J. Hayes, P.M., P.G.S.D., in a few appropriate words, and carried unanimously. Bro. Goepel, Treasurer, thanked the brethren for their vote of thanks, and said that during the many years he had been the Treasurer of the lodge he had seen it pass through many vicissitudes. He had seen it under three constitutions, but now he hoped that it had safely weathered the stormy sea of difficulties, pecuniary and others, and had entered the safe harbour of success. Bro. Goepel, Treasurer, then proposed that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Evans, I.P.M., for so ably presiding over the lodge during his year of office, and also a vote of thanks to Bro. J. Hayes, P.M., for the very efficient manner in which he had given the installing ceremony. The proposition was seconded by Bro. Wylie, W.M., and carried unanimously. Bros. Evans, I.P.M., and J. Hayes, P.M., responded in suitable terms. A brother was proposed for advancement. "Hearty good wishes" were given by the visitors, and the lodge was then closed in peace and harmony. The brethren then sat down to a banquet, provided by Bro. Chaplin, House Steward, and the remainder of the evening was spent in a very agreeable manner.

FREEMASONRY IN ENGLAND.

BY BRO. WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Freemasonry in England differs in some respects from any other country, and though mostly these differences are to the advantage of the Craft in the "old country," occasionally a few of the departures witnessed under other Grand Lodges might be adopted with like success by the Body which, directly or indirectly, is the parent of all modern Grand Lodges in the world. From the operative companies and societies of "ye ancient tymes" came the old lodges which independently were working early last century in England. A few of these united and formed the premier Grand Lodge of England (and of the world) in 1716-17. The success attending this organisation led to the members of the famous lodge at York starting a "Grand Lodge of all England (at York), and all went on "merry as a wedding feast" until about 1740-50, when, after various alterations and alterations, the secession was an accomplished fact, and a third Grand Lodge was formed "according to the old Institutions," with their Grand East at London, about 1750-1. Of these three bodies, No. 1 and No. 3 went on progressing rapidly—as rivals—until December, 1813, when they united. No. 2 died out about 1800, but before then issued several warrants for lodges to assemble in England, and constituted a Grand Lodge of England south of the Trent, under the wing of the Antiquity Lodge, London (during its temporary secession); but before the present century the Grand Lodge, its offspring Grand Lodge, and all its lodges had expired, and not a real representative of the York Grand Lodge was left anywhere. In fact, York Masonry originated in that city, and under No. 3 Grand Lodge ceased to exist after the latter part of last century. No. 1 issued warrants for Provincial Grand Lodges and lodges in America from 1730, but No. 3 having commenced a similar work about 1750, and recognised four degrees instead of the constitutional three, the latter became the more popular, and most Provincial Grand Lodges in the United States came under its sway, added to which, No. 3, though the more modern, became known as the "Ancients," or "Ancient York Masons," and by misrepresentation secured a firm footing on American soil. Hence the title "Ancient York Masons" (A.Y.M.), which is quite a misnomer, as the York Grand Lodge No. 2 only issued warrants for England, all warrants from that country for America, by No. 3, or No. 1, being dated from London, not York. Under the Duke of Sussex and the Duke of Kent (Masonically and naturally brothers), Grand Masters of Nos. 1 and 3 respectively, the two rival bodies united in December, 1813, and formed the "United Grand Lodge of England," London, since which period its title has been well maintained. The "Articles of Union" provided for the "Fourth Degree" or "Royal Arch" being recognised, as before then No. 1 only authoritatively worked the three Craft Degrees, whereas No. 3 acknowledged the Royal Arch. Hence in England the recognised Degrees are E.A., F.C., M.M., and R.A., all the rest being virtually permitted, but not on any plea to be worked in an open Craft (or R.A.) Lodge. The Grand Master is elected annually by the Grand Officers (present and past), Masters, Past Masters, and present Wardens, who personally attend the quarterly communication in March. No proxy voting is allowed, and, if R.A. Masons, the Grand Master, the Pro Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, Grand Treasurer, Grand Registrar, and Grand Secretary become in like manner the holders of similar offices in the Grand Chapter of the R.A. There are about 1650 active lodges, and over 500 R.A. chapters, and the government is very similar under each Body, the business being conducted most ably by the same staff and apartments in Freemasons' Hall, London. No "mileage" is paid to the representatives, and such hard worked officers as the Grand Treasurer, Grand Registrar, the two Presidents of the Board of General Purposes and of Benevolence, and the Grand Director of Ceremonies, not only give their valuable services freely but pay large "Fees of Honour" on accepting office, the revenue of the two Bodies being obtained from "Fees of Honour," and Fees for warrants, certificates, registration, annual dues, &c. These payments are all required by the Constitution, each member being obliged through his lodge to procure a certificate from the Grand Lodge. The expenses are light considering the magnitude of the two societies, and large sums are devoted to the relief of necessitous brethren, or to their wives and families after due scrutiny. The business is so well conducted by the Boards, &c., that two or three hours a quarter transacts all the work of the Grand Lodge at their communications. The great Masonic Charities are supported by voluntary donations from the Craft and the Grand Bodies, yielding usually about £40,000 ($200,000) annually, and support about 400 boys and girls, and about as many aged Freemasons and widows. In the Provinces (or counties over which rule the Provincial Grand Masters, appointed ad vitam by the M.W.G.M.) there are also similar charitable organisations, only minus the buildings, by which about the same number are supported or educated, and each Provincial Grand Lodge is within its jurisdiction in effect a Grand Lodge, and has similar officers, only all subservient to the M.W.G.M., and have to report their principal work every year to the Grand Secretary. The "unrecognised degrees" (as they are called) comprise the Mark Grand Lodge, which takes care chiefly of the Mark Degrees, which has 240 active lodges; the Royal Arch Chapters only working the Royal Arch, not (as in the United States, Scotland, &c.), the intermediate Degrees. The Grand Priory of the Knights Templar looks after the Templar and Malta Degrees; the Grand Conclave of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, that particular degree; and the Supreme Council, the Fourth to the Thirty-third Degree. The Mark Grand Lodge has its offices at 2, Red Lion square, the Knights Templar in Chancery-lane, and the "Ancient and Accepted Rite" at 33, Golden square, all in the City of London. The latter Body has a magnificent library at its Grand East, valued at 2000 guineas ($10,000), and as respects influence and management, it stands certainly as the accepted chief of the "High Degrees." The Grand Master, Pro Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, and many Provincial Grand Masters, belong to one or more of these Bodies, for though not actually or officially recognised, they are virtually so. The Grand Lodge of England is unsectarian; any gentleman, otherwise eligible, is accepted irrespective of his colour, country, or creed, provided he believes in the Great Architect of the Universe, and practises the sacred duties of morality, and over all rules the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, the Heir apparent to the Throne.—Masonic Review, Cincinnati.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday at Freemasons' Hall. Col. Creation, Grand Treasurer, presided. There were also present Bros. Richard H. Graud, Dr. Jabez Hogg, Col. Somerville Burney, F. Adlard, John Newton, W. Clarke, E. Bowyer, Capt. Philips, A. H. Tattershall, J. M. Case, J. A. Farnfield, Griffiths Smith, S. Rawson, James Brett, C. G. Dille, William Stephens, John G. Stevens, John H. Leggott, J. J. Barnes, C. F. Hogard, C. Atkins, James Terry (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Terry informed the Committee that the day fixed by the Prince of Wales for the next festival of this Institution happened to be on Ash Wednesday. Immediately he became aware of that fact he wrote to the Earl of Zetland, who was to preside, to know whether it would make any difference to his lordship. The noble earl replied that he would prefer to have it on the 9th of February. He (Bro. Terry) then wrote to the Earl of Carnarvon, requesting his lordship to lay this letter before the Prince of Wales, and he had no doubt that his Royal Highness would give his assent to the alteration of the day. Bro. Terry then announced that since the last meeting of the Committee a West Yorkshire male annuitant had died, and also a female annuitant, a resident in the Institution at Croydon. Bro. Thomas White, a candidate placed on the list at last meeting, had likewise died.

A letter from Bro. Recknell, thanking the Committee for the increase made in his salary, was read, and the Chairman was authorised to sign cheques for annuities, salaries, and wages. The application of the widow of the late Bro. John Dawson for half her late husband's annuity was granted. Five male candidates and four widows were placed on the list for the election in May next.

With respect to the petition of one applicant, deferred at last meeting, Bro. Terry said he had received a communication from Bro. Macrae Moir, the Secretary to the Scottish Corporation, saying that the candidate was a pensioner on his fund. As he was in receipt of £40 a year he was ineligible for the Masonic Benevolent Institution.

Bro. J. G. Stevens said he was very sorry that the Yarrow Lodge had recommended the case. At the last meeting of that lodge he had explained the case, and the brethren deliberately said they would not recommend it. Notwithstanding that the brother was ineligible, having £40 a year, he had the effrontery again to come before them for assistance.

Bro. Leggott, before the Committee adjourned, said he wished to bring a subject before the brethren. He went down to the Asylum at Croydon on Tuesday and examined it. He found the building in good condition, with plenty of good air, well ventilated and well lighted; but he considered that the buildings were quite inadequate to the demands of the Institution. When he knew that as Freemasons the Craft extended over the face of the whole earth, he felt that the building was small. The Board room was not half large enough, the library was nothing more than a cupboard, though the inmates of the Asylum thought it quite sufficient. He believed a fund might be raised by which there could be added an infirmary and a chapel, as well as a very large board room. There was a large piece of land adjoining which he thought could be obtained. Close by it would be found there were numerous small buildings, mere rabbit hutches, being erected, which were no credit to such a respectable Institution. The approaches to the Asylum were also bad. He thought he could see a plan by which money might be raised to build another wing in the Tudor style, as well as an infirmary, a chapel, and a large board room. The brethren must understand that this was only a suggestion, but everything were to be done by perseverance, and if a Committee was formed to go fairly into the matter and study it, he thought they might succeed in getting a wing built on one side for an infirmary, which would be detached, and another for the chapel and board room over it. Then there might be an additional wing on the other side in the course of time—not perhaps at once, but in the course of ten years. By this means the building would be rendered worthy of the great body of Freemasons; at present he thought it was quite inadequate. He found the inmates were very cleanly, and the building was in a very good state of repair, and did great credit to the Committee who had the management of it. He called on the inmates, who were not prepared for his visit, and found them cleaning up their residences and polishing the stoves, &c. If an appeal was set on foot he thought it would be responded to all over England. If the site he had referred to was lost the building would not maintain its character, and the object of the founders would not be realised, because the ground would be sold and small tenements built on it. The matter was worthy of consideration, and, if necessary, he would give notice of a motion for carrying out his proposition.

The Chairman said that with regard to the land, he did not think there was any chance of the Institution getting it, and with respect to enlarging the building, it was very rarely that the present building was full.

In answer to Bro. Leggott, Bro. Terry said there were thirty-three inmates at the present time, and only five times since the Asylum had been erected had it been quite full.

The Chairman said that, of course, if notice of motion was given the whole subject would be in order, and it could be discussed at a future time.

Bro. Leggott said he would send to Bro. Terry a proper notice of motion, and then ask the Committee to discuss it.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

Several P.O.O.'s are now in hand, but having received no advice we cannot credit them.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

A correspondent, calling himself a "Past Master," in a column of our last newspaper, gave us some "figures" as regards provincial support of the Girls' School, which are alike curious and most interesting. We assume, of course, that they are correct. There can be no intentional inaccuracy in the matter, and though there is only approximate certainty at the best, yet the facts thus elicited are facts worthy of note and remembrance. We shall next week give our correspondent's figures for the Boys' School. It seems there were to the close of 1879 (though that hardly covers the whole ground, we fancy,) 8435 votes in the provinces for the Girls' School, and that 940 lodges subscribed. Of these the highest average subscriptions came from West Yorkshire, with 65 lodges and 1484 votes, and, as the compiler of the figures puts it, 22½ votes per lodge. This, is, however, a deceptive way of putting the average, we think it right to remark, as all lodges do not subscribe alike; some lodges do much more than others, some do comparatively little. We fancy that this remark applies to West Yorkshire as to all other provinces, though Bro. H. Smith can best tell us, if he will. Still it is a convenient way, perhaps, of getting at an "idea" of provincial work, and, curiously enough, as West Yorkshire heads the list, Kent follows suit, and Sussex succeeds to Kent. East Lancashire is only twenty-fourth in order of forty-three provinces, and West Lancashire thirty-seventh. West Lancashire will no doubt make a noble effort in 1880 under its distinguished chief, and a little bird has whispered in our ears that it "means to beat East Lancashire for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution." We wish it may. It is but fair to observe that the votes for 1879 are not included in this list, and which may materially alter the average, so that our brother "Past Master" must in 1880 repeat his valuable summaries. We have always contended that a great margin remains of work for the Secretaries, and we are sorry when we notice crude suggestions or impractical theories propounded which serve only to check the efforts of zealous brethren, or to dwarf the movements of sympathetic lodges. All lodges cannot contribute alike, all brethren are not on the same level of worldly means, and to lay it down that all brethren shall contribute so much per annum to the Charities, either for themselves or through the lodges, is a very great mistake, because utterly unreasonable to expect, and impossible to effect. The work of the future will, and must be, we fancy, the work of the past, only in enlarged ratio, and with a juster perception of need and of means, and of the real end in view. It still must be left to the willing hearts and thoughtful minds of individual members of our kind-hearted brotherhood, and with the exception of more uniform lodge and chapter support actually of all our Charities, like everything else in the world, the result must still, humanly speaking, be controlled by personal sympathies, individual effort, and a Masonic sense of duty, a belief in the noble principles we habitually profess.

UNIFORMITY OF WORKING.

A very sensible letter from Bro. Frances gives what we fancy is the general idea of all who have ever thought really on the subject. For it is one thing to take up a question, it is quite another thing, and often a very different thing, to think it out. We believe that there is but one feeling among all "sound Preceptors" and "bright Masons," to "leave well alone," and not for any idle love of change, excitement, or novelty to land ourselves in that debatable and undiscovered country of ritual alteration. To take away from the English Craft its harmless and healthy "liberty of ritualizing" would be, in our opinion, impolitic and unwise, and certain to produce at no distant date many and serious evils, hard to ameliorate and harder still to cure. Under these circumstances we deprecate the agitation, just as we question the arguments on the subject. But, to say the truth, arguments we have seen not, and the premises set out involve a complete fallacy in themselves. It is assumed that there has been, first, an uniformity of ritual before and after the Union—that is undoubtedly a myth, pure and undoubted. It is then asserted that in 1813, with the Lodge of Reconciliation uniformity was enjoined, and no doubt that fact is a fact, per se. But then, also, equally practice has widely differed from theory. Just as no uniformity existed before the Union, none has existed since, and Hemming's working has prevailed in some parts, Hemming's improved by Williams elsewhere, while the old Prestonian working is very prevalent. Grateful as we are to the Lodge of Emulation, we are not prepared to concede "infallibility" even to it, nor would its ablest exponent claim that on its behalf; but too much cannot be said in favour of its careful working and grateful simplicity. The Lodge of Reconciliation being now dissolved there is no legal exponent of its views. If any doubts exist as to "landmarks," &c., the Grand Secretary has to be appealed to, but we feel sure, from what we know of that distinguished brother, and no one is a more consummate master of the Royal art, he would, like us, deprecate heartily a childish agitation, and a leaden uniformity. Like us, he would rejoice in the sensible and tolerating liberality of the Grand Lodge of England, which declines to enforce a "standard of ritual" from which some might conscientiously differ, with which few would entirely agree. Let us trust this movement will be "still born."

OUR UNIVERSAL CRAFT.

It is a wonderful idea, is it not, that of the "Universality of Freemasonry?" As the Bishop of Durham, speaking at another meeting of another work, says truly, "Quæ regio in terris nostri non plena laboris." What region is there on the face of this whole earth, what land so parched with heat or numbed with frost, what ancient kingdom so incrustated with the successive layers of an immemorial civilization, or what newly discovered track so rude with the grossness of its aboriginal savagery, that "Freemasonry" has not found thereon a hold for its foot? From the Rocky Mountains to the Wall of China, beneath the Northern Pole Star and beneath the Southern Cross, in the central plains of the African Continent, and in the scattered islands of the far off Melanesia, its voice is heard." And thus, just at this moment, Freemasonry is, in truth, cosmopolitan, world-wide, and is making rapid strides, as in the old world so in the new. There are probably about two millions of Masons dispersed over the "face of earth and water," and wherever we go at this time we find jurisdictions, rites, lodges, chapters, councils, if not all the same in organization and object, yet all proceeding from the "one starting point," Freemasonry. For those so scattered and so severed outwardly a handbook is needed, clear and comprehensive, lucid in order, succinct in statement, easily portable, and easily digestible. The Masonic mind is not always interested, (like others), in details, or long calculations, or tedious compilations, but wants a result, easily attainable, and as easily remembered, one that it can use daily, and serve as a useful little vade mecum of reference wherever chance or duty leads us, wherever the travel-stained pilgrims or the lone and weary pilgrims stay their weary feet. We feel it but then right, alike in a spirit of fraternal sympathy, and yet of honest independence, to announce once more, in the far read columns of the Freemason, the appearance of the "Cosmopolitan Calendar," which aims at being a Masonic handbook of universal use and reference. We can say for it, as we are assured, and as we know, that no pains have been spared to make it worthy of our universal Craft. It has been made a little more handy, with new type, and contains much fresh and useful matter never before published in any Masonic work. We allude, for instance, to the complete account, for the first time printed, of the Masonic bodies in France. Indeed, as we run over its pages, we are struck with its compactness and its completeness, the enormous amount of otherwise unattainable facts and names it records and preserves. Surely we have a right and warrant to say that Bro. George Kenning, has deserved well of the Craft Universal for the trouble and expense he has so liberally and ungrudgingly borne in order that "all the world over," wherever Masons do congregate, in lodge or chapter, wherever the Knightly Grades are found, wherever the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite flourishes, his little book may give to all such brethren and bodies the best and clearest attainable account of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry? And thus it is that the "Cosmopolitan Calendar" enters into rivalry with none, is in opposition to none. There are numerous jurisdictional calendars at home and abroad which, excellent in their way and ably edited, are the correct and official calendars of distinct Grand Lodges. But the "Cosmopolitan Calendar" takes a wider flight, a larger survey of the whole vast Masonic family. It equally records the lodges of France and the lodges of Germany, Spain, and Italy; it gives us the names of all the leading officials of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in all portions of the world. If errors creep in, as creep they will in all similar compilations, despite the most careful supervision, or through the retardation of returns, or the carelessness of correspondents, the "Cosmo." suffers more in this respect, (not from its own fault, but the fault of others), than the most eager and bitter criticism can discover or blame. We claim for the Cosmopolitan Calendar the support of thousands of our educated brotherhood in all countries, as a most useful handbook of facts, and names, and figures, most useful to the traveller, most necessary to the Mason, and one which will tell us, go where we will, loiter where we may on this earth's surface, in words which none can gainsay, or doubt even, of the wonderful and moving fact of the Cosmopolitanism of Freemasonry.

UNIFORMITY OF WORKING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Notwithstanding that I am aware how much we differ in opinion on this subject, I implicitly rely upon your acknowledged fairness in the conduct of our recognised exponent of Freemasonry to afford me space for reply to the letter of our worthy Bro. H. E. Frances in your impression of this date.

I perceive that he, in common with many others, quite misunderstands the nature and import of the movement I have consistently advocated for so many past years and does not recognise the fact that much more important issues attach thereto than the mere diversities and discrepancies which have crept into the language of our ritual.

I cannot if I would, and I am sure I would not, put into print that which I look forward to speak of in another place. Until then I must submit to whatever comments may be made by those who cannot know to what I allude. Meanwhile, it is but reasonable to ask them to suspend their judgment. They may then see that what I suggest is not only absolutely necessary, but eminently practicable, and that the "candle" which may enlighten them will not be wasted. The "score or so of Preceptors in the Metropolis," amongst whom are many worthy, zealous, and sufficiently informed brethren, for whom I entertain a great respect, will, I feel assured, if their desire for the "pure and unsullied system" is as great as they represent it to be, rather coincide with than oppose my views after a fair and impartial hearing shall have been given. There is nothing paradoxical in any portion of my proposition, and nothing inharmonious need of necessity ensue on its adoption. Nor would any edict of Grand Lodge, requiring a faithful following of its measures, become an assumption of infallibility or interfere in the slightest degree with the principles or even the name of Freemasonry.

Our brother says that in no mode of working does he see perfection. But that is no argument against an endeavour to secure, as nearly as possible, perfection and uniformity. There are many who have seen and welcome a simple and effective working, free from anything which can be objected to by religious and educated men, and fully sufficient for the expounding of our "system of morality," without any attempt to illustrate our teachings by the aid of effects which poison the mind, and give rise to feelings of disgust rather than reverence. And as we are, or should be, "tethered to our landmarks," and willingly so, let us not scruple to condemn any attempt to remove them and substitute therefor other allegories or symbols which are not in distinct accord therewith.

As to the suggestion of "arguing our different readings in the Masonic publications," setting aside the impracticability, even if there were the possibility of effectively doing so, our Bro. Frances must see the impolicy of adopting such means as he refers to; whilst the further request to be allowed to adopt in our working "what seemeth best" (I presume he means to each individual), if granted, would be to at once introduce anarchy and confusion, and set brother against brother in the work of communicating light and instruction.

A long personal and pleasant acquaintance with Bro. Frances gives me assurance that he would not wish that any man should do what he himself would not do, namely, "put his hand to the plough and look back," and as this is not a question of difference between "tweedledum and tweedledee," but, in the opinion of many, one of vital importance to the best interests of the Order we reverence, both himself and yourself must take it for granted that I am earnest in continuance, not in the least seeking "laurels," but strenuously desiring to uphold and maintain that "pure and unsullied system" which as an initiate, nearly a quarter of a century ago, I pledged myself to support to the best of my ability.

Believe me to be, my dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,
Clapham, Nov. 8th, JAMES STEVENS.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reading your reports of the various Masonic meetings my attention was particularly drawn to the report of the lodge of instruction held under the warrant of the Palatine Lodge, No. 97, at which I was elected acting W.M. at the next meeting, to be held on the fourth Wednesday in this month.

There is a question connected with lodges of instruction which has often occupied my mind, and on which I venture to ask you to decide.

When an acting W.M. is elected, is he not virtually the same in that lodge of instruction, for the time being, as the W.M. of a regular lodge, so far as the working of that lodge is concerned, or can individual members propose in open lodge (after he is elected) such and such work to be done without his consent or even consulting him in the matter? An answer through your paper will oblige,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,

E. SUTHERST, S.W. 94.

THE PROVINCES AND THE CHARITIES.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In continuation of the tables published last week I now send a return of the votes per lodge as regards the Boys' School. It will be seen that in many respects it differs widely from the former return, but, as in that life votes to the end of last year only are counted, and fractions of $\frac{1}{2}$ are estimated as $\frac{1}{4}$.

The foregoing figures require no comment from me unless it be to notice the splendid position held by West Yorkshire, "facile princeps" throughout. I should have been glad to have added a similar return for the Benevolent Institution, but the mode in which the list is made out precludes it. The insertion of the names of all subscribers, metropolitan and provincial, in one alphabetical list, is very inconvenient, especially for country subscribers, and it is to be hoped that the executive will see fit to adopt the plan pursued by the two other Charities.

A GRUMBLE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Whenever Englishmen incline to grumble, to vent their grievances and propose schemes for reforming the world at large, it is their undoubted prerogative to "write to the Times"; it satisfies them and does no one much injury. When Freemasons murmur I presume the Freemason may be regarded as their Times. Will you, Mr. Editor, kindly let me indulge in the luxury of a growl? I will make my remarks as short as possible, and without preface will begin. When a man enters Freemasonry and takes his Third Degree, he usually reviews his progress, and the question naturally suggests itself cui bono? In my case, I got no very satisfactory answer, and my interest in the subject began rapidly to cool, and had it not been for the fact of my being, by great favour of the then W.M., very quickly appointed to office, I should probably have glided from this sublunary sphere in almost utter ignorance of the real object and significance of the mystic Craft. More extended experience has taught me that Masonry can be understood only by those who persevere in its study and practice; it is more than can be communicated by mere words and signs; it is a something indefinable, which binds man to man in one common bond of brotherly feeling; it will not regenerate the world; it may not in every instance have the effect of moulding unsuitable natures into perfect finish; but even in the unlikely event of the morality inculcated, and the convivial socialism practised, not modifying rugged attributes, it can do them no harm. To a man who has rested content with the acquisition of the Third Degree, who has merely as it were "stood shivering on the brink," and who is without the knowledge possessed by those who have advanced further, Freemasonry can merely be regarded as an intellectual recreation, the practice of which is innocuous if somewhat vapid; this Pierian spring may be either tapped deeply or merely tasted, with equal impunity; if the first taste proved insipid, and the cup is thrown away (as so frequently happens, and for reasons which I hope to show), it is to be regretted, but at least "the last state of that man" is not "worse than the first," and this much can scarcely be said of any other system of morality. I make these preliminary remarks, because in whatever I may feel called upon to write I would that none should misunderstand the purport of my observations, or imagine that any attack upon the Craft is meditated; such is not my object. Masonry is exceedingly conservative, there seems to exist a spirit antagonistic to reform of any kind; any one who demurs at whatever is presented is usually regarded as heterodox, and unreasonable fears are entertained that he might pull up the ancient landmarks (whatever they may be), and cause a deluge or something equally awful and mysterious; let those fears be banished in this instance. I began then to enquire as to the wherefore of my new existence, and could elicit no satisfactory reply. I was informed that benevolence formed a great part of the Masonic scheme. I asked for a sign, and was referred to the various Institutions as a proof; enquiring further, I found no one who could or would enlighten me as to what these Charitable establishments were really doing. I have since that time passed the chair, and have prosecuted enquiries from the highest to the lowest in the province; but beyond the merest generalisations no one appears to know anything about them; but for the facts that certain brethren are said to be in receipt of pensions, and occasionally voting papers are presented for signature, the existence of our eleemosynary organisations might well be regarded as chimerical. I am aware that we are at a distance from the Metropolis, but the printing press obliterates space. I think some one told me the Masonic newspapers contain notices from time to time of the doings of each Institution; that may be so, but it generally happens that a Freemason has some occupation, and time will not admit of his metaphorically searching in a bottle of hay after a needle. Is it not possible to place within the reach of every Freemason a concise history of the various Masonic Charities? This should not be a very difficult matter, and greater publicity would benefit them and evoke salutary criticism. The narration might be accompanied by a copy of the annual balance sheets; thus fully accounting for the funds dispensed ab initio; there could also be appended notices of the progress of pupils in the Schools as shown by annual examinations by competent men and strangers, the status of the Masters, the mode of their election, the salaries or stipends from Head Master to porter; the position of the Schools as shown by results at the Oxford and Cambridge Local Examinations, &c.; the dietary, and the system of rewards and punishments, the Medical Officers' report as to sickness, sanitary arrangements, quality of food, and so forth. All these important matters should annually appear; and if the history of bygone years, as embodied in the balance sheets and reports issued, were collected, bound, and sold to Freemasons at just sufficient price to pay expenses—say two shillings or two shillings and sixpence—I feel sure these Institutions, and therefore, Masonry in general, would be great gainers. A volume of this kind placed in the hands of the newly-raised would go far towards awakening that interest in the material concerns of the Craft on the part of the novice which is now lamentably wanting. Of course, all this pre-supposes the Charities to be properly managed; each of us takes that for granted; but, with due submission to the powers that be, such a course should not be allowed; not, let it be understood, that I would for a moment insinuate that any bad management exists, or that there are any cracks or leakages by which funds may improperly escape; in common apparently with my fellows, I know nothing about the matter; it is every Mason's business, and we are told that is equivalent to being no Mason's business. In affairs of this nature we should take nothing for granted, and especially should no sentimental or fraternal feeling be allowed to interfere with strict supervision and scrutiny. The novice is called upon to pay certain fees, and it is his undoubted right to be informed as to their disposal; it should not be requisite for him to search far and wide after the desired knowledge, it should be placed in his hands on his being raised. The diffusion of such information cannot fail in proving beneficial to the Craft.

Until this or something of the kind is effected, we shall witness what continually happens, that many are introduced into the Order who, when they have taken their Third Degree, feel that nothing more has to be accomplished; their attendance at lodge becomes intermittent, and eventually their visits cease, with their subscriptions; having failed, through no fault of their own, to penetrate further into Freemasonry than the (perhaps imperfectly understood) ceremonial, and a little conviviality, which latter may have been rendered somewhat distasteful by the absence of those conventionalities to which the novice has been accustomed. We deplore the loss from these circumstances of many a "good man and true," who would have adorned a lodge, and rendered good service to the Craft. Thus far, Sir, I entreat your lenience; if you allow me to continue my grumble, I will beg leave to trespass upon your kindness and space next week.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

I.P.M. 877.

AN OLD MASON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"A fact unprecedented in the annals of the Craft."

So runs a paragraph in the address presented to W. Bro. Stephen Austin at the jubilee celebration of the Hertford Lodge, No. 403, published in your last issue, referring to the fact that that brother had completed his 50th year in Freemasonry, having been a continuous subscribing member of one and the same lodge.

However creditable to that brother, I must demur to the word "unprecedented," as the roll of members of Grand Masters' Lodge, No. 1, shows that W. Bro. Richard Hervé Giraud, P.G.T., considerably exceeds that number of years continuous subscription, that worthy brother having been initiated in the lodge on the 17th May, 1824, served as Grand Steward in 1826, and was in the chair as W.M. in 1829, and has, I believe, ever since filled the onerous duties of Treasurer.

A jubilee festival was held in honour of his completing his 50th year of membership in 1874, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Richmond, on which occasion a very beautiful portrait was presented to him.

By your inserting this correction in your next issue you will greatly oblige,
Yours fraternally,

P.M. No. 1.

[The following appears in the Western Daily Mercury of the 4th inst., relative to Bro. Emma Holmes's letter, which appeared in our last, and which also was inserted in our contemporary.]

TRURO CATHEDRAL AND THE FREEMASONS.

Dear Sir,

As a Mason, and a Cornishman, I was truly pleased to see Bro. Holmes's letter in to-day's issue, and felt inclined to shout out "Bravo, old fellow!" when I read his challenge. Surely after this there will be among those who at Masonic gatherings wear big collars, make big speeches, and have their broad acres or big money-making machines in old Cornwall, men who will come forward, and prove by a practical gift towards a county object that they have a fair claim to the honours they possess, and that in being Cornishmen they will not allow themselves to be outdone in liberality upon such an occasion by a brother from another province, whose connection with the county may not perhaps be of such a permanent nature as their own.

Yours faithfully and truly,

SQUARE AND COMPASSES.

Nov. 3rd, 1879.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I attended Prov. G. Lodge, held at Fowey last June, and I hope to attend another. I understood that Bro. Holmes's motion was considered laudable in itself, but was simply withdrawn because it was premature, and I for one thought so too. I believe that not one of the 1700 Masons in this province would object to a Masonic window being erected in Truro Cathedral, and if each lodge is applied to in the usual way the application will be responded to according to the means of its members. I need not say that the Masons of Cornwall are not only believers in the G.A.O.T.U., but they, although of various religious denominations, are so unprejudiced that they will, I verily believe, help in the erection of an edifice wherein shall be said or sung, "Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ, Thou art the everlasting Son of the Father," until time shall be no more.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

M. M.

THE PRESTONIAN LECTURE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The last of the Trustees of the Prestonian Lecture was the late Grand Treasurer, and his death renders it necessary to appoint fresh Trustees. Before they are appointed I think a return ought to be furnished to Grand Lodge of the names of the lecturers, and the subject matter of the lectures they delivered, with the honorarium paid in each case by the deceased Trustees. A Committee might then be chosen to draw up fresh rules and suggestions suitable to the present time, and a strong effort ought to be made to render the trust a means of benefiting the Craft at large. Prizes might be offered for the best essays on Masonic lore and kindred subjects, and the successful one might be read on a special evening in the Hall of Grand Lodge. The arrangements might be carried out by the lodge of the prize winner, and the use of the hall ought to be given free. Perhaps some of the following subjects might be chosen with advantage, and if the area from which the subjects are taken be sufficiently wide, I am quite sure that a stimulus would be given to Masonic research, and an interest excited in the intellectual aspect of our traditions and ceremonies which it is rare indeed to find at present:—

"The rise of speculative out of operative Masonry.

"The operative lodges of Scotland, both before and after the foundation of speculative lodges.

"The rise and progress of speculative as well as operative Masonry in Ireland and on the continent.

"The history of the other guilds in Germany and elsewhere besides the Guild of Architects and Builders, and the traces of any means which they may have taken for the preservation of trade secrets.

"The influence of Freemasonry on the great French Revolution in 1789.

"The evidences of Christian dogma to be found in our ceremonies.

"The secret societies of the Mahommedans, and of other Eastern nations.

"The secret societies of England at the present day, and their association with or imitation of Freemasonry.

"The degradation of Freemasonry by its perversion to political ends, and its consequences as exemplified in France and Italy."

The list might be indefinitely extended, but enough has been given to show that subjects of considerable interest to every Freemason lie outside the threshold, which would renew the ardour of the enthusiast, and make him bless the day when he entered our ancient and honourable fraternity. The knife and fork Mason is held up to ridicule, but can any reasonable man wonder that twenty, thirty, or forty years of lodge meetings, never advancing beyond the first three steps of admission into the Order, become intolerably irksome, and the social gathering and creature comforts come to be looked on as the be-all and end-all of Freemasonry, instead of being considered, as they ought to be, merely accidental accessories? I shall be unable to move myself, but will any brother put down a notice at the Board of Masters to appoint a Committee to enquire into the matter, and see what use can be made of the grand opportunity now offered?

Yours truly and fraternally,

P. G.D.

WHAT IS FREEMASONRY?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been very much interested in the able letter from Bro. Benjamin Cox, P.M., P.Z., on "What is Freemasonry?" published in your paper of the 8th inst., especially where he finds his comparisons in the celestial atlas, but I think he has fallen into an error when he thinks the passion flower teaches Masonic symbolism, particularly when referring to the Passion of Christ, the three nails, and the crown of thorns. If Bro. Cox is correct in his assumptions, those brethren who are not Christians would not be able to appreciate Masonry at all, in fact would be scarcely eligible to become members of a society supposed to have been in existence hundreds of years before the Christian Era. The universality of our institution would be destroyed, a foundation stone removed, and the ancient edifice would be tumbling about our ears, and soon crumble into dust.

With all due respect to the opinion of my learned Bro. Cox, I think unity is strength, and is only to be retained by including all who believe in T.G.A.O.T.U.

Yours respectfully,
Liverpool.

HENRY LYON.

THE GRAND LODGE OF MONTREAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see by your issue of the 4th inst., you have noticed the communication of Robert Ramsey, of Orillia, to the Dispatch. But since you have published his statements I think it well to explain for the information of your readers that we are very careful whom we admit into our lodges. It is false that we accept material from any and every jurisdiction. And we do not give the Three Degrees of St. John's Masonry to any one in one night, except he be a mariner, and I find upon examining the various lodge books, that there has been only one such case admitted within the last fifteen years, and that was on the 25th of September, 1879, when I issued a dispensation authorising the Master of King Solomon Lodge, No. 622, to make Capt. Anderson, of the steam-ship Hurworth.

As to the second charge, you are aware that the Scottish Constitution allows it. But again, on reference to the lodge books, I find there has been only one Mason made of that age, viz., Bro. Russ W. Huntingdon, since graduating as a B.A. and B.C.L. of McGill University, and now one of the editors of the Herald newspaper of Montreal.

Lastly, as to our making Masons for a nominal fee, your readers can judge for themselves by the following quotations, which are never reduced on any pretence whatever:—Elgin Lodge, No. 348, that has worked here for nearly fifty years, charge 30 dollars, £7 10s.; King Solomon Lodge, No. 622, 40 dollars, £10; Argyle Lodge, No. 625, 25 dollars, £6 5s., besides a monthly contribution for the purpose of charity, &c.

Your editorial remarks are sufficiently clear without my adding any further explanation in refutation of his charges.

Believe me, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

THE "FREEMASON" AND "COSMOPOLITAN CPLENDAR."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow me through your columns to thank your publisher for a very great improvement in last week's issue? The cutting of the paper is a very great convenience to those who, like myself, have their first peep at the Freemason in the railway carriage on their homeward journey. I should like also to express my thanks for the adoption of a suggestion of mine as to the arrangement of the country lodges and chapters in provinces in the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Pocket Book," just issued.

Yours truly and fraternally,

ORIGIN OF THE LAWS OF NATURE. By SIR EDMUND BECKETT, Bart. Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge.

This is a very useful and interesting little book, written by Sir Edmund Beckett with all that forcibleness of expression and clearness of logic, of which he is, as we know, a master. It deserves to be read over and thought over by us all, as probably in no print to-day are more sophistical fallacies current or more hurtful suggestions made than on this most important subject. Many paradoxes have been propounded, and many absurd theories invented in this tempting field of assumed dogmatism and infallible pretension in successive generations, and which seem to be very popular just now. It is, however, clear to us, that when people talk so loudly and so glibly as they often do at this hour of the "laws of nature," &c., bearing down all opponents with froth and noise combined, they certainly do not understand either what they talk about, or realize whether the stern logic of their own "premises" must conduct them. They need to study much more carefully such "laws" before they assert, with the infallibility of Ultramontanism, that the theories they enunciate are positive facts or objective truth to us. We owe to Sir Edmund Beckett many thanks for a concise, clear, and masterly little treatise on a question which, for some reason just now, has great attraction for many thoughtful minds amongst us. We hope to hear that the book is largely read.

ALL THE YEAR ROUND, for November.

This interesting serial is before us in much vigour. "Sebastian Strome" is very exciting, and Mr. Anthony Trollope begins "The Duke's Children." "All the Year Round" is very pleasant and healthy reading.

TEMPLE BAR.

Has its usual forcible articles if not always very deep. "Probation" is prolonged and popular, and "Vivian, the Beauty," sails on with flying colours. All the other articles are very readable indeed.

SCRIBNER'S.

Our old friend is, as ever, to the fore with much and varied "pabulum" for American and English minds. It is a very readable magazine, and has few compeers, alike in its artistic illustrations and the general tone of its articles is most healthy and sound thinking.

BLACKWOOD'S.

As usual very effective, vigorous, and interesting, but is a little out of the "country" of the Freemason.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

ROYAL ARCH AT YORK.

I have read Bro. Whythead's communication in the Freemason. If he will look back to the old "Freemasons' Magazine" for 1863, he will find, if I mistake not, a reference to the Royal Arch Chapter minutes. Without wishing to arrogate anything to myself, both in company with Bro. Findel and Bro. Shaw, and thanks to the kindness of the York brethren, the lamented Bro. Cowling, among others, I went over the MSS. in York sixteen years ago, and first called attention to them with Bro. Shaw and to their great value. If Bro. Whythead has found a MS. overlooked by us, (as well may be), no one will rejoice more heartily than myself, as in all my studies and searches I have always placed all I discovered at the services of my good friend Bro. Hughan and the Craft.

A. F. A. WOODFORD.

P.S.—I am at a distance from all books of reference, so can only write "currente calamo."

R.A. DEGREE IN YORK.

All interested in the origin and character of "Royal Arch Masonry" must rejoice to see the important communication in the Freemason of the 8th inst. as to the most fortunate find of Royal Arch records from A.D. 1762, under he wing of the "Grand Lodge of all England, held at York," and I congratulate my good friend, Bro. Whythead, on the valuable discovery thus made. I had the pleasure also of hearing from Bro. Joseph Todd, P.M., &c., as to the matter, on whom the mantle of our lamented Bro. William Cowling has fallen. Bro. Todd (as myself) is quite unable to understand how the old R.A. minute book escaped the vigilant eye of Bro. Cowling, for certainly he was unaware of its existence. Bro. Findel, in his "History of Freemasonry," speaks of the Royal Arch as "having been introduced into York in 1768." Doubtless, our learned brother considered that 1768 was the date of origin, because of the existence of a "Treasurer's Book of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons," which commences April 29th, 1768. No records, however, were known of an earlier date than 8th February, 1778, as Bro. Whythead, P.M. 1611, &c., has pointed out, until the present discovery, and, therefore, whilst it is true that the present minute book in question takes us back six years earlier than the Treasurer's book of 1768, it actually furnishes records of sixteen years before the earliest minutes previously known. Bro. Whythead's explanation of the three titles for the chief officers in a R.A. chapter at York, 1762, is most likely to be correct, though I am not aware of their having been alluded to before in that manner. Owing to this discovery and others, I have decided to re-write my "History of Freemasonry at York," as Bro. R. F. Gould, P.M. 93, &c., has so kindly desired, and others also have been solicitous about, but must defer its publication until the "Masonic Register" has been fully subscribed for. W. J. HUGHAN.

THE "ROYAL LODGE," LONDON.

I find by reference to Bro. Gould's "Four Old Lodges" and my own lists, that the "Royal Lodge" was warranted as No. 313 on April 4th, 1764, and became 251 in 1770; then 201, and 171, at the "Union" taking 210, soon after which it collapsed. W. J. HUGHAN.

LODGE MINUTE BOOKS.

The "Royal Lodge," cited in last week's Freemason, was numbered respectively 313 in 1756-69; 251 in 1770-80; 201 in 1781-91; and 171 in 1792-1813. In the numeration of 1781-91 it was thus described:—201, Royal Lodge, Thatched House, St. James-st. (late the new lodge at the Horn, Westminster). It duly appears in four of the lists appended to "Four Old Lodges," at pp. 60, 64, 70, and 77. R. F. G.

OLD CHARGES.

My object in calling attention to Bro. Fort's incorrect statement, "that the name of Charles Martel is to be found in the MSS. of Halliwell and Cooke," was to bring under notice the fallacy of the argument which that very erudite brother has proceeded to build up on his own erroneous assumption. The allusions in "Antiquities of Freemasonry" to the subject under discussion will be found at pp. 118, 121-24, 163, 174, 177, 179, and 183. Bro. Fort twice qualifies his statement respecting the Cooke M.S., remarking at p. 122, note 1:—"Cooke's M.S. says Charles II. instead of Martel. All others, I believe, agree." Referring to the legend of the "Holy Martyrs," Mr. W. H. Ireland, in his "History of Kent" (1828), vol. I., p. 157, names the Churches of "St. Martin" and of the "Four Crowned Martyrs" as the oldest ecclesiastical edifices in Canterbury. To the former he assigns the earlier date, and thinks that the latter, which stood on ground now occupied by the Church of St. Alphage, was erected about the time of St. Augustine, A.D. 597, its name (Four Crowned Martyrs) being conferred by one of the earliest Archbishops, of whom the three first were Romans. If this supposition be correct, it would be somewhat remarkable that, perhaps, the first church erected after the arrival of St. Augustine should have been dedicated to the patron saints of the Masons, and, if the theory of travelling builders be sustainable (?), might justify the belief that, in passing from Canterbury to other towns, "where churches had to be built" (see Wren's "Parentalia," p. 306), these journeying foreign artificers disseminated far and wide through Britain the legendary history of the "Holy Martyres Foore." On the other hand, however, if it be a fact, as stated by Mr. Coote (Romans of Britain, p. 417), and for which he cites numerous authorities, that, in the 5th century, this island was abundantly furnished with churches, it seems far from improbable that the Church of the Crowned Martyrs at Canterbury was erected long prior to A.D. 597. It would be interesting to ascertain the date of erection of the Church of the "Quattro Coronati" at Rome. Karl Baedeker, in his "Central Italy and Rome" (1872), says:—"The date of the foundation is very remote; the materials were probably partially derived from some ancient structure. After its destruction by Robert Guiscard (A.D. 1084) it was rebuilt by Paschalis II., A.D. 1111." According, however, to Bro. Fort (p. 174), it was first restored A.D. 847. This last date is the most remote which I have succeeded in tracing, in the form of a positive statement, and it would be satisfactory on all grounds could some one more conversant with the subject be induced to elucidate in detail the early history of what is claimed to be the original Church of the Crowned Martyrs. Mr. T. H. Dyer, in his "History of the City of Rome" (1865), does not include it amongst "the seven primeval churches of Rome, said to have been founded by Constantine." Referring once more to Charles Martel, the absence of his name in the Halliwell M.S. (which is known to have been penned by a priest) may be accounted for from his extreme unpopularity with the clergy. A Gallic synod, according to Gibbon (Ed. 1790, vol. 10, p. 27) "in an epistle to a Carolingian prince," "declared that his ancestor was damned; that on the opening of his tomb the spectators were affrighted by a smell of fire and the aspect of an horrid dragon, and that a saint of the times was indulged with a pleasant vision of the soul and body of Charles Martel burning to all eternity in the abyss of hell!" R. F. G.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LANCASHIRE.

Lord Skelmersdale, in his capacity as Grand Master of Mark Masons of the Province of Lancashire, presided at the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge at Wigan, on Wednesday afternoon, the 5th inst., and he was supported by his Deputy, Bro. Le Gendre Starkie, P.G.M. East Lancashire.

The lodge was held under the banner of the Rose and Thistle Lodge, Wigan, No. 158, and the Public Hall premises were devoted to the purpose.

A sum of 50 guineas was voted to the Boys' School; a previous motion that this sum should be divided between the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution and the East Lancashire Systematic Fund being withdrawn, in order that as much support as possible might be accorded to Lord Skelmersdale on his taking the chair at the festival of the Boys' School.

Bro. Hine, of Manchester, was elected Provincial Grand Treasurer, and subsequently the R.W.P.G.M. appointed his officers as follows:—

- Bro. W. Ascroft Byrom, Wigan ... Prov. G.S.W.
- " Henry Thomas, Oldham ... Prov. G.J.W.
- " W. S. Barlow, Bury ... Prov. G.M.O.
- " A. Middleton, Manchester ... Prov. G.S.O.
- " R. Rushton, Accrington ... Prov. G.J.O.
- " Rev. J. Harrison, Oldham ... Prov. G. Chap.
- " Rev. C. E. Knowles, Southport ... Prov. G.A. Chap.
- " J. Chadwick, Manchester ... Prov. G. Sec.
- " J. Clayton, Ashton-under-Lyne ... Prov. G. Reg.
- " J. Reed, Barrow-in-Furness ... Prov. G.S.D.
- " J. Hayes, Liverpool ... Prov. G.J.D.
- " W. Beswick, Rochdale ... Prov. D.G.M. of W.
- " Probert, Bury ... Prov. G.D. of C.
- " J. L. Thorpe, Todmorden ... Prov. G.A.D. of C.
- " Beattie, Preston ... Prov. G.S.B.
- " J. Horrocks, Bolton ... Prov. G. St. Br.
- " W. Balmer, Bury ... Prov. G. Org.
- " Startup, Bury ... Prov. G. Purs.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY IN MANCHESTER.

A meeting was held on Tuesday evening, the 4th inst., at the Portland Hotel, Portland-street, Manchester, to take into consideration the desirability of forming a chapter of instruction, Comp. Julius Arensberg, E.Z., in the chair.

The Chairman introduced the object of the meeting, and said he had long been of opinion that it was very essential that a chapter of instruction be formed, that the companions might meet together for each other's instruction in Royal Arch Masonry. He had observed, when visiting chapters, that, in many cases, the officers had not shown that proficiency which it was desirable to see, and he had furthermore observed, and knew, some chapters who regularly called in the assistance of P.Z.'s to assist them (in fact do their work for them), and he had been informed that it was the intention of Prov. Grand Officers to visit the chapters throughout the province for the purpose (amongst other reasons) of seeing how the officers did their work and the way chapters were conducted generally; therefore, he hoped this chapter of instruction, to be held under the warrant of the Rectitude Chapter, No. 581, would be well and regularly attended, and he doubted not but that much good would ensue.

Comp. Darbyshire moved, and Comp. John Gallagher E.Z. 325, seconded, "That the chapter of instruction be held on the first Tuesday every month, at eight o'clock in the evening, the said chapter to be conducted by a Preceptor, Treasurer, and Secretary, to be elected annually."

The meeting then requested Comp. Henry Darbyshire, J. 581, to draft out the bye-laws and other matters, and submit them for approval at the next meeting, to be held at the Portland Hotel, Portland-street, City, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 6th, at eight o'clock.

A very interesting conversation then ensued, when some companions stated their experiences when visiting in the province.

Comp. John Gallagher said he sincerely hoped, and had every confidence, that this instruction chapter would be instrumental in doing great Masonic good. He had often thought that if companions would more frequently meet together for Masonic conversation it would in itself create a desire for knowledge, and discussing and reciting to each other portions of ceremonies, telling each other of having visited so-and-so, and how so-and-so did his or their business, would be a means of keeping the memory fresh, and the companion ready at any time to take this or that part when called upon. He had been informed that, no doubt, the Prov. Grand Officers would take particular notice when visiting chapters how the work was done, and would, no doubt, report thereon to Prov. Grand Superintendent of Works, so that he would recommend all chapters who were (as they ought to be) ambitious and desired to see their P.Z.'s clothed in purple to start that day forth, study assiduously, meet together frequently, and so prepare themselves for the work of their several offices, that when visited by the officers from Prov. Grand Chapter they will do their work with credit to themselves and satisfaction to the visitors.

A vote of thanks to Comp. Julius Arensberg for presiding and placing a room in his hotel for the use of the companions closed the proceedings, at ten o'clock.

THE EBRINGTON MASONIC HALL.

There was a large gathering of Freemasons on the 11th inst., to inaugurate the opening of the new hall, which has just been completed for Lodge Fidelity.

The warrant of this lodge was granted in 1799, and it was then numbered 320. At the union of the two Grand Lodges it became 405, and is now in consequence of many old lodges having become extinct numbered 230. In 1828 it was removed from Plymouth to Tiverton in exchange for the older Lodge of St. John, No. 83, now No. 70. In 1860, however, several influential brethren, foremost amongst whom was the late Bro. J. J. Clave, P.M., P.P.G. D.C., were instrumental in getting the lodge removed to Devonport; their first place of meeting was in a private room adjoining the Mechanics' Institute. This was inconvenient, and they removed to Fore-street. This temporary accommodation was insufficient, and the members, at considerable expense, altered some premises in Chapel-street, where they remained from 1862 to the present time. Finding it necessary to lengthen their cords and strengthen their stakes, the present Master, Bro. Richard Cawsey, assisted by Bros. J. Lynn, F. Codd, H. Boyling, J. R. Harris, and R. Ellis, as a Committee, found and purchased premises in Granby-street, formerly a chapel, and from plans prepared by Mr Norman they have altered the building, and made it one of the best adapted halls in the province. The lodge room is about 46ft. long by 18ft. feet wide, the refreshment room being about the same size. There are three ante-rooms, with other necessary offices. The alterations have been executed by Bros. Berry and A. Lethbridge, at a total cost of about £600, and Bro. Cawsey is to be congratulated on the success which his energy merited. During the proceedings he received an ovation from the members and visitors. The hall is named after the Prov. Grand Master of Devon, with his consent, and the lodge has the honour of numbering among its members R.W. Bro. Rev. J. Huyshe, P.G.C., and P.P.G. Master of Devon. There is still one brother living who was a member of this lodge before its removal to Tiverton in 1828. This is the respected clerk of St. Andrew's Church, Plymouth, whose father was also a member of this lodge, and was well-known and highly esteemed by the Freemasons in old time.

The ceremonies were ably conducted by Bro. Cawsey, assisted by the officers of the lodge, and during the evening a pleasing episode took place. Bro. A. E. Lean, the W.M. of the Lodge St. John, 70, took the opportunity of presenting an old relic of the Fidelity Lodge, which has been for half-a-century in the possession of his lodge. It was an old silver trowel, which had been presented to Lodge 405 soon after its consecration.

The gift was suitably acknowledged, and the business over, the brethren retired to a collation, provided in the building by Bro. Gorey, of the Temperance Hotel. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

The Lodge of St. Aubyn, 954, will meet in this new hall, and also several Mark lodges, chapters, &c., which are connected with the two lodges.

Amongst those present were Bros. Richard Cawsey, W.M.; J. R. Harris, S.W.; R. Ellis, J.W.; A. Rowe, I.P.M.; Robert H. Burt, P.M.; John Lynn, P.M., P.P. G.P.; John Whitford, J.D.; John Babb, D.C.; W. M. Ridland, Org.; James S. Bowden, I.G.; H. Bridgeman, S.S.; R. Gorey, W. H. Ellis, T. Williams, J. W. Thompson, R. Jones, W. S. Rattenbury, H. Boyling, all of 280; and visitors Bros. J. E. Curteis, P.M. 189, P.P.G.S.W.; J. B. Gover, P.M. 70, P.P.G.A.D.C.; H. Miller, P.M. 159, P.P.G.D.C.; A. E. Lean, W.M. 70; T. Scarle, I.P.M., 1091; J. R. Lord, P.M. and Treas. 1247; O. Ordish, 1212; Jas. Letton, 1136; C. Haggerthy, 1136; C. White, 1136; J. S. Smith, 954; J. D. Sandy, 202; D. R. Waight, 954; F. Littleton, W.M. 159; H. Welch, P.M. 202; H. Pile, 1212; W. MacIlroy, 1136; W. Worth, 1099; J. R. DugJale, W.M. 954; C. Marshall, 159; A. Lethbridge, P.M. 159; George Harper, 750; George Mitchell, 70; O. Knowles, 159; A. Stephens, P.M. 954; John Baxter, P.M. 954; J. Dawe, W. 1253; C. Watson, P.M. 954.

Obituary.

BRO. JOSEPH HAMILTON COX.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. J. Hamilton Cox, P.M. of the Gihon Lodge, No. 49, P.Z. of the Mount Zion Chapter, No. 22, formerly of London, but latterly of Swansea, which sad event occurred on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the early age of forty-seven years, after but four days' illness, leaving a widow and several children to deplore his loss. Bro. J. H. Cox was Secretary of the Gihon Lodge for some years, also of the Stability Lodge of Instruction. He had served as Steward to the Girls' and Boys' Schools, and was a Life Governor of each of those Institutions. He had been up in London some little time on business, and he was taken ill with inflammation of the lungs on Sunday, the 2nd inst., and lingered only four days. His remains were interred on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at Highgate Cemetery.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—In general debility, mental depression, and nervous irritability there is no medicine which operates so like a charm as these famous Pills. They purify the blood, soothe and strengthen the nerves and system, give tone to the stomach, elevate the spirits, and, in fact, make the patient sensible of a total and most delightful revolution in his whole system. They may be commended most unreservedly as the very best family medicine in existence. Though so powerfully efficacious, they are singularly mild in their operation, and might be given with perfect confidence to delicate women and young children. They contain not a grain of mercury, or any other noxious substance, and cannot do harm. Delicate females and all persons of sedentary habits will find these Pills a blessing.—[Adv.]

Masonic and General Tidings.

Bro. Henry Davey has been elected Mayor of Brighton for the second time.

Bro. Dr. Dixon has removed from Melbourne Lodge, Anerley, and 108, Grange-road, to 133, Jamaica-road Bermondsey.

The Earl of Rosebery has remitted 20 per cent. of the rents due at Michaelmas last from his tenants on the Hoggston estate, Bucks.

Bro. George Augustus Sala was entertained at dinner on Thursday last at Willis's Rooms, by his friends and confrères, prior to his leaving for Sydney.

The installation meeting of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, was held on Thursday last, when Bro. E. M. Lander, S.W., was installed as W.M. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Bro. John Derby Allcroft, M.P., P.M. 1567, has presented the Worcester Free Library with a return of members of Parliament for the United Kingdom from the year 1213 to 1702, which enumeration forms a volume of considerable size.

Bro. Horace Marshall, C.C., F.R.G.S., the well-known publisher, of 125, Fleet-street, and Treasurer of the Royal Hanover Lodge of Freemasons, No. 1777, has been invited by the Building Committee of the Loughborough Park Chapel to lay the foundation stone on Tuesday, the 25th inst.

Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Jersey's installation as R.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master of Berks and Oxon will take place at Reading on Thursday, the 27th inst. The ceremony, which will commence at 1.45 p.m. precisely, will be performed by the M.W. the Rev. George Raymond Portal, Past Grand Mark Master.

The first meeting in their new quarters (the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond), of the members of the Rose of Denmark Lodge, No. 975, will be held on Friday, next, the 21st inst., at half-past three for four p.m. punctually. The business before the lodge consists of a raising, the initiation of five gentlemen, and the installation of Bro. James Garnar, P.M. 1622, as W.M.

Prince Leopold and suite left the Victoria Station of the London Chatham and Dover railway, by special train on Monday evening, arriving at Dover at 8 o'clock, and embarked on board the special steamer, Maid of Kent, for Calais, whence his Royal Highness proceeded by the ordinary mail train via Brussels to Darmstadt.

The consecration of the St. Petroc Lodge, No. 1785, will take place on Friday next, the 21st inst., at Padstow, Cornwall. The consecration and installation ceremonies will be performed by the R.W. Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, Prov. Grand Master, assisted by the V.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the Prov. Grand Officers. Bro. Wm. Henry Martyn is the W.M. designate.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Berks and Oxon will be held on Thursday, the 27th inst., at the Foresters' Hall, West-street, Reading, upon which occasion Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Jersey will be installed R.W. Provincial Grand Master. The ceremonies will be performed by the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.W. Past Grand Mark Master. The banquet will take place in the Town Hall at 4 o'clock.

Bro. E. C. Massey, who is well known to many of our readers, has been appointed Secretary in London to the "Millers' and General Fire Insurance Company," of Birmingham; and from Bro. Massey's lengthened experience in insurance business, and the fact that he is so well known and so deservedly esteemed, we do not doubt that the company in question will have reason to congratulate themselves on having selected him to preside over the business of their London Office at 69, Mark Lane, E.C.

AUNT TOWZER ON FREEMASONRY.—"Mrs. Swanborough, of the Strand Theatre, has presented the Asaph Lodge, No. 1319, with an entire set of clothing." Which I'm sure I'm glad to hear. Only think of them Lodgers, as must ha' been unfurnished ones, a-going about in a state of oddity like them Zuloose, as made that poor Lor' Major blush for his speeches—which I'm sure he ought to do after expoging himself as he did. But lor, who'd ha' thought of that Mrs. Swansburrow a-coming forward to rig out them Masons? If it had been a new rigaleyer she'd invested them with I shouldn't ha' been appraised, as it would ha' been more appropose if she'd given 'em orders.—Funny Folks.

The Prince of Wales has just erected in the church of St. Mary Magdalen, Sandringham, a beautiful tablet to the memory of his lamented sister, the Princess Alice. The work, which has been executed by Mr. J. E. Boehm, A.R.A., consists of a medallion portrait in marble of the Grand Duchess, with the following inscription beneath:—"To the beloved memory of Alice Maud Mary, Grand Duchess of Hesse, Princess of Great Britain and Ireland, this monument is erected by her devoted and sorrowing brother, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales." The architectural design is by Mr. Arthur Blomfield, F.S.A. Above and below the tablet are carved these texts:—"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord;" "Thy will be done." His Royal Highness has also presented to the church a fine organ.

Bro. W. Ballard has been re-elected Mayor of Abingdon.

NULLIBIETY OF (THE SO-CALLED) CO-OPERATION.—"Fair Traders" five per cent. discount for cash, with undivided attention and prompt delivery free in London. Country orders over £2 carriage paid. Detailed price lists on application to J. E. Shand & Co., Wine Merchants, 2, Albert-mansions, Victoria-street, London, S.W.—[ADVT.]

The consecration of the St. Leonard's Lodge, No. 1842, will take place at the New Concert Rooms, Warrior-square, St. Leonard's-on-Sea, on Friday next, the 21st inst., at three p.m. Bro. Thomas Trollope, M.D., P. Prov. Sen. G.W. Sussex, P.M. 40, is the W. Master designate. Bro. Dr. Cuncher, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., P.M. 40; and T. H. Cole, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., P.M. and Sec. 40, the Wardens designate. The R.W. the Prov. G. Master, Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart, M.P., with his Provincial Grand Officers will be present. The ceremony of consecration and installation will be performed by the W. Bro. John H. Scott, Dep. Prov. G.M. A large gathering from Sussex and the neighbouring provinces, and many London brethren, including Present and Past Officers of Grand Lodge, are expected. Visitors will be heartily welcomed. Banquet at five o'clock.

The Longton Hall Hotel Company, Limited, has been formed to take over the well-known hotel at West Hill, Sydenham. To those who are unacquainted with the site it occupies, we can say that it is charmingly situated, sheltered from bleak winds, but commanding splendid views of the famed Surrey Hills. But our reason for calling attention to the enterprise in the columns of the Freemason, is that the directors, believing there is need for special Masonic accommodation in the neighbourhood, propose to extend the building by erecting, beside other rooms, a spacious hall for Masonic meeting, banquets, balls, &c., there is nothing of the kind in the locality, and bearing in mind the large resident population, among whom must be many Freemasons, we are warranted in predicting for this part of the scheme satisfactory results.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE (No. 30).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 13th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, when there were present Bro. Aspinall, W.M.; Jagielski, S.W.; Jackson, J.W.; Wm. Paas, Sec.; Lancaster, S.D.; E. T. Smith, J.D.; Beeling, D.C.; Runtz, I.G.; Beckett, Tyler; Past Masters, Bros. Ebner, I.P.M.; Dioso, Cummings; members, Bros. Hayday, sen., Forster, Hughes, Dulan, Hayday, jun., Croucher, Barnes, Tongur, Bryant, Niedzielski, Foster, Robertson; and visitors, Bros. Sargent, Morgan, Till, and Thane. Bros. Dr. Herbert Tibbetts and A. Jamieson were elected joining members. Mr. Day was unanimously elected as a candidate for initiation at the next lodge. Bro. Apsey was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall on Monday, the 17th inst. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. W. A. Blakeman, through illness, the lodge was opened by Bro. Kingston, P.M., who was supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. A. Moor, I.P.M.; C. E. Packer, S.W.; S. Godden, J.W.; T. Kingston, P.M., Treas.; R. P. Tate, S.D.; A. J. Bolton, J.D.; W. Knell, I.G.; E. Sedgwick, D.C.; C. Brothers, W.S.; W. J. H. Jones and C. Walker, Past Masters; J. K. Ward, J. S. Brown, T. Smith, T. Richardson, W. Devine, J. Collinson, D. J. Ross, G. T. Cox, T. F. Lee, G. Maxwell, W. W. Coates, J. G. Thompson, W. Bradford, W. Hill, C. H. Pike, A. C. Moore, J. Guignard, J. Irvine, W. Jones, R. T. Rosenberg, J. Pottle, F. France, and H. Brocklehurst. Visitors: Bros. S. R. Lambie, 27; W. Smith, 1319; J. Carnaby, P.M. 1382; T. W. C. Jones, 259; John Reid, 145; John Bingham, P.M. 55 and 1599; W. W. Morgan, jun., 1385; T. W. S. Tomkins (Royal Leopold); James C. Hayes, 619; J. Kennard, P.M.; T. B. Dodson, 860; M. J. Withers, Sec. 414; E. H. Hill, 700; A. R. Gladwell, 172; H. J. Alexander, W.M. 1425; W. Pierpoint, 813; E. Stanton Jones, 1319; W. M. Stiles, W.M. 1733; W. A. Tinney, P.M. 1319; W. H. G. Rudderforth, W.M. 1668; W. H. Marston, P.M. 1599, S.W. 55; J. W. Bellamy, 1567; R. C. Smith, 1567; W. Ferguson, S.W. 1101; T. Ormiston, 1507; W. Lang, P.M. 435; A. H. Wilson, 733; W. Ledington, 1875; H. J. Newton, 1704; E. Cocombe, 1185; T. Gates, Treas. 1599; S. Crawford, 192; W. G. Dickinson, J.W. 860; W. Lake, P.M. 131 (Freemason), and others. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. H. Brocklehurst to the Second Degree and to raise Bro. Pottle to the Third Degree. The W.M. elect, Bro. S. Godden, was then presented by Bro. P.M. Jones for the benefit of installation, and the chair having been now occupied by P.M. Moore, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, that brother proceeded in the most impressive and able manner to perform the prescribed ceremony, and inducted Bro. Godden in the chair of King Solomon. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. R. P. Tate, S.W.; J. S. Brown, J.W.; T. Kingston, P.M., Treas.; J. Weaver (named as), Secretary (Bro. Collinson being invested with the collar on his behalf); A. J. Bolton, S.D.; C. E. Packer, J.W.; T. Richardson, I.G.; J. Collinson, D.C.; D. J. Ross, Steward; J. Weaver, Organist; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. A Committee was appointed to revise the bye-laws, after which a vote of thanks to Bro. Moore, the Installing Master, was proposed by Bro. P.M. Kingston, seconded by Bro. P.M. Walker, and carried with acclamation. The brethren then adjourned to a choice banquet, served in the Crown Room of the Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of the W.M. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given and honoured, Bro. P.M. Moore rose to propose "The Health of the W.M." He thought that the next few minutes could not be better occupied than in drinking to the good health of the W.M., Bro. Godden. It had fallen to his (Bro. Moore's) lot to do many things in Freemasonry in duplicate, but that he had to perform that night gave him greater pleasure than was usual. However, he assumed the office he was then undertaking with some sorrow, as he could but regret the absence of their Immediate Past Master. It was not usual for him, nor did he think it well, to eulogise a man until he had proved his ability; so far, Bro. Godden had carried out the work of the respective offices he had filled creditably, but, he thought, it was impossible to say how he would discharge the duties of W.M., although he had very little doubt but that they would be done in the same admirable manner as had those of the past. In fact, he had every confidence that he would so discharge his duties as to merit, not only the approbation of the brethren, but, what he considered of far more importance, the approbation of a good conscience. Bro. Godden, in reply, said he had to thank the brethren most heartily for the manner in which the toast had been proposed and received. Ever since he had joined Freemasonry he had desired to attain the position he then occupied. It had always been his wish to attain the highest position in any society. He trusted that during his term of office he might perform the duties to the satisfaction of all concerned. He felt he could materially depend on the officers he had appointed that night, and rely on the assistance of the brethren to look over any slip he might make during the coming twelve months. He now proposed a toast which, he said, it was at all times a pleasure to introduce, as it was a source of gratification for them to see visitors at their various meetings. Bro. Lake was called upon to respond. He thanked the W.M. and brethren for the compliment they had just paid the guests. He considered it a great pleasure to respond to the toast on behalf of the visiting brethren. He had thoroughly enjoyed both the working of the lodge and the hospitality of the festive board. Whatever Masons lack, he thought they could never be accused of forgetting hospitality. Whoever might pay a visit to the Whittington lodge could not but go away favourably impressed. He considered a great compliment was due to the officers of the lodge. He felt that the Whittington Lodge would long be remembered by him for their excellent working and hospitality. He concluded by wishing the W.M. a prosperous year of office. Bro. Stanton Jones followed, and then Bro. Rudderforth was called upon. He felt certain that the brethren had selected the right man as Master. He was one well qualified to discharge the duties of the high office, as he would bring to bear those abilities which had won for him so prominent a position in private life. Bro. Marston was the next upon. From what he knew of the ability of the W.M., and what he had witnessed that night, he felt assured that Bro. Godden would prove himself a good ruler of the lodge. He trusted there would be ample opportunity afforded the W.M. of displaying his knowledge of the ceremonies. Bro. Alexander also replied, desiring to bear witness to the ability with which the ceremony of installation had been performed. The next toast, the W.M. said, was in honour of brethren who it would be impossible to do without. It was at all times heartily responded to, and justly so, it being "The Health of the Past Masters." There was a time, the W.M. said, when he used to think that the P.M.'s were brethren who had only to rest on their laurels, but he had recently found that they had some work to do, and that of an important nature. He felt sure that the Past Masters would one and all render him any assistance he might need. Bro. Jones was the first to respond. He had on many occasions been called upon to respond to various toasts in the Whittington Lodge, having for the past twenty years been frequently called upon to acknowledge one or another. He looked around and found good men in the various positions of the lodge, and felt no doubt but that its prestige would be maintained by the W.M., and those who followed him. Bro. Walker felt it a privilege to be allowed to say a few words in reply to the toast. He was thankful that the brethren had so kindly received the remarks of the W.M., and thankful that the lodge appeared so prosperous—it having so many visiting brethren was one sign of this. He sincerely trusted that the Master would complete his year of office in peace and harmony. "The Health of the Treasurer of the lodge," "The Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund," and "The Secretary," was next given, the W.M. referring to each in suitable terms. Bro. Kingston thanked the W.M. for the genial manner in which he had proposed the toast. So long as the offices of Treasurer and Secretary were entrusted to such brethren as held them at the present time, he felt assured the duties would be properly discharged. "Bro. Pike, Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund," followed. He announced that the current year showed a larger balance than any previous year had exhibited. So long as the brethren showed confidence in him he should endeavour to show he was worthy. "The Wardens and other Officers" were then toasted by the W.M. He had great pleasure in proposing the toast, knowing as he did that the lodge possessed two good Wardens and other efficient officers. The S.W. first replied. The evening had been a most pleasing one to him in many respects. He was glad to see the W.M. in the chair, a position he well merited. Bro. Brown, the J.W., thanked the brethren. They could well imagine his feelings on the present occasion. As he considered that no brother should be placed into office unless he was capable of performing the duties appertaining thereto, he hoped he might prove himself efficient in what would be required of him. Though he had very great respect for seniority he should never study it unless it were accompanied by competency. "The Health of the Auditors" followed, responded to by Bro. Irvine. The W.M. then said that he felt a very grave charge could be laid against him, inasmuch as he had omitted to propose "The Health of the Installing Master." He felt he could hardly take the whole of the blame, as he had asked one of his Past Masters to give a list of the toasts for his guidance. However, he hoped now to do something towards the rectification of his error. He could but compliment Bro. Moore on the ability he had displayed. Bro. Moore, in reply, said that two surprises had come upon him that night; the first, when a vote of thanks was awarded him in the lodge, and now that a special toast was proposed in his honour. No man could have his health proposed and received in such a manner as he had just had without feeling greatly the compliment that was paid him. He thought that if a man only put his heart into his work, he could not fail to perform his duty creditably. He considered that really, as regarded the work he had performed that night, he had but little to be proud of, all the credit being due to those who had instructed him. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Lay Members," and the Tyler's toast brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

CAPPER LODGE (No. 1076).—The installation meeting of the above lodge took place on Thursday, the 13th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, City, when, in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering of the members of the lodge and visiting brethren, Bro. P. McCarthy was installed W.M. for the ensuing year. There being two ceremonies to be worked before the important business of the day commenced, the lodge was opened at two o'clock punctually by the W.M., Bro. Francis Brian, and after the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read and confirmed, the yearly election of officers of the Benevolent Fund attached to the lodge took place, and Bro. Holliday, P.M., was re-elected President; Bro. Mason, Vice-President; Bros. E. West, P.M.; F. Brian, W.M.; and T. Day, P.M., Trustees; and Bros. Job, Miles, and Weekes, Committee. The next business proceeded with was the initiation, after approval, of Mr. Herman Taplay and Captain T. J. Spencer, which being happily effected, Bro. Pitt was passed to the Second Degree, both Degrees being well worked by the W.M. At this time the lodge presented a very animated appearance, the efficiency displayed by the W.M. during his year of office in the lodge raising expectation to a high pitch as to the manner in which he would carry out the arduous duties of Installing Officer. Among the company present, besides those already named, were Past Masters Bros. Gaskell, Knot, Brayshaw, Dorton, Treas. (pro tem.); H. Taplay, J.W.; Jas. Mitchell, Hon. Sec.; W. Dorton, J.D.; W. Nevins, I.G.; B. Norman, Tyler; W. Turner, W.M. 1472; T. Biddle, W.M. 193; J. Stevens, P.M. 554 and 933; A. J. Manning, P.M. 1472; W. Vance, S.W. 1472; E. Benjamin, S.D. 1766; H. Balls, 77; P. Ferguson, A. Taylor, 122; A. Calver, 933; S. T. Fiske, 212; W. J. Bassett, 212; H. W. Taylor, 212; Gerrard King, 1259; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason); and others. The ceremony of installation then proceeded, and Bro. McCarthy was, with the usual ceremonies, seated in the chair of K.S., and duly saluted. He then proceeded to install his officers as follows: Bros. H. Taplay, S.W.; J. T. K. Job, J.W.; Dorton, P.M., Treas.; James Mitchell, Hon. Sec.; W. Dorton, S.D.; W. Nevins, J.D.; A. R. Mason, I.G.; R. Brown, D.C.; W. Harris, W.S.; W. Watkins, J.W.S.; Mat. Sherwin, Org.; and B. Norman, Tyler. Bro. Brian then finished a clever and almost word-perfect ceremony by reciting the three addresses splendidly, and at its conclusion was warmly congratulated and applauded by the brethren. "Hearty good wishes" having been given, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which having been discussed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured. In giving them the W.M. intimated that the speeches would be very short, because they wished to devote as much time as possible to harmony and good fellowship. He then said that, as one of their initiates would soon be compelled to go, he should step a little out of the beaten track, and propose "The Health of the two Brethren who had that day been enrolled among their numbers." He then briefly put the toast, to which the initiates suitably replied. Bro. Brian then rose to propose "The Health of the W.M." He said that the toast was one he felt sure would be well received by every one present. The unanimous manner in which he was elected to the office showed that he had their esteem and respect, and was worthy of their suffrages. From what he had seen of their W.M., and the careful, yet at the same time earnest and energetic manner in which he had carried out every duty entrusted to him, he felt sure that he would do honour to their choice, and to the high position he had that day been placed in. Under his rule he looked forward to the same good working which had distinguished the Masters of the Capper Lodge for so many years, and a year of continued and, if possible, increased prosperity to the lodge. (Cheers.) Bro. McCarthy, in responding, said he felt that the excellent singing and reciting they had heard, and which was in store for them, would be much more acceptable to them than a long speech from him. All he should do, therefore, would be to simply thank them for their many kindnesses to him during the time he had occupied the various offices of the lodge, but above all for the honour done him in placing him at the head of the lodge as its ruler and governor for the ensuing twelve months, and he could assure them that everything he could do in the future would have but one object, viz., the winning of a continuance of that kindness, and confidence, and the welfare of the lodge. He then proposed the toast of "The Past Masters" in glowing terms. There were present that day no less than seven or eight of the Past Masters, all of whom had done well for the lodge, and it was a grand muster for a lodge of only fourteen years' standing. He then proceeded to present a handsome Past Master's jewel of the nominal value of ten guineas to Past Master Brian, and after paying a well-deserved compliment to that brother for his earnest work for the good of the lodge, pinned the glittering jewel upon his breast amid rounds of applause, and concluded by saying, "Bro. Brian, I have great pleasure in the name of the lodge in presenting you with this jewel of your office, and may you be spared for many years to wear upon your breast this token of the esteem in which you are held by the brethren, and of the good work done by you for the honour and prosperity of your mother lodge. (Applause.) Bro. Brian thanked them in the first place for their handsome present, which he should prize as long as he lived, and in the next for the toast of "The Past Masters." The first was only another instance of the many acts of kindness he had always received from the brethren, and he felt proud to think that he was considered worthy of such a testimonial. He had thought that his duties would have been over that night, but that jewel showed him that so long as he was a Past Master of the Capper Lodge his duties were only commencing, and they might rest assured that whatever his work might have been in the past he would, if possible, work even harder than ever for the success and prosperity of the Capper Lodge. To the toast of "The Visitors" Bros. Turner, Manning, Vance, Jolly, and others responded. The toast of "The Officers" followed, to which Bro. Taplay responded, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the business and pleasures of the evening.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—A lodge of emergency was held at the Havelock Hotel, Albion-road, Dalston, on Thursday, the 13th inst., for the purpose of receiving the report of a Committee, appointed at the last lodge, to make enquiries for a suitable location for its future meetings, a removal being necessary, owing to intended alterations at the present lodge house. There were present Bros. N. Green, W.M.; W. H. Brand, S.W.; J. Brasted, J.W.; C. W. Smyth, Treas.; Chapman, P.M.; Lee, P.M., Sec.; Digman, S.D.; Lorkin, J.D.; Payne, I.G.; and a numerous assemblage of the brethren. The report of the Committee was read, recommending that application be made to the M.W.G.M. for permission to remove to the Moorgate-street Restaurant, E.C. A resolution in accordance with this recommendation was moved by Bro. Brand, S.W., seconded by Bro. Brasted, J.W., and, after some observations by several brethren who had visited the house named, the resolution was carried unanimously. The lodge was then closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and the remainder of the evening was spent in social enjoyment.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1642).—The fourth annual installation meeting of this successful lodge was held in Bro. Linscott's handsome hall, Ladbroke Grove-road, Notting Hill, on Thursday week, the 13th inst. The lodge was opened at five o'clock by the W.M., Bro. S. H. Parkhouse, supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. W. Stephens, P.M.; Edward M. Lander, S.W., W.M. elect; Saml. Smout, sen., J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Past G.C. Middx., Chap.; G. Penn, P.M., Treas.; W. J. Murlis, P.M., Sec.; S. Smout, jun., J.D.; J. Woodmason, Steward; F. C. Frye, I.G.; R. Schofield, Tyler; C. Rowlands, J. Etherington, J. Nish, H. Foskett, H. Taylor, E. Rogers, M. Rubinstein, James Bartle, G. A. Williams, John French, W. Buckland, W. Hatton, J. H. Wood, W. Burgess, Thomas Heath, E. F. Tanner, J. H. May, R. C. Green, R. King, W. F. French, J. E. Pocock, M.D., H. Hart, John H. Rutherglen, T. S. Newland, C. Gowland, W. T. Hook, E. J. Cave, E. C. Woodward. The visitors included the following brethren:—Bros. H. C. Levander, P.M. 1415, Prov. Grand Secretary Middx.; F. Binckes, P.M. Grand Stewards' Lodge, Sec. R.M. Institution for Boys; James Terry, P.M. 228, P.G.J.W. Herts, Sec. R.M. Benev. Institution (honorary member of the lodge); W. Coombes, Past G.S.B. Middx.; George W. Dixon, P.M. 209, 865, Past G.D. of C. Berks and Bucks; John O. Carter, Past G.D. of C. Berks and Bucks; Lewis Bryett, W.M. 1828, Past G. Supt. of Wks. Berks and Bucks; Charles Veal, Past G.S.D. Surrey; C. Davey, W.M. 30; M. Spiegel, W.M. 188; J. H. Pearson, W.M. 1567; John Driscoll, P.M. 30; W. Boucher, P.M. 558; T. Brown, P.M. 780; L. H. Isaacs, P.M. 795; J. S. Badkin, P.M. 1365; J. J. Michael, P.M. 1732; W. R. Lister, S.W. 145; G. Davis, S.W. 167; W. Gabb, J.W. 813; S. Dowling, S.D. 167; E. Arrowsmith, J.D. 733; G. Bennett, H. Manchester, P. Marson, W. C. Williams, S. T. Williams, John Healey, S. J. Humphres, Thomas Fisher, W. W. Morgan, jun., A. Kent, H. Stevens, J. T. Bolding, and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). After the confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting, the chief business of the evening was proceeded with, namely, the installation of Bro. E. M. Lander as W.M. for the ensuing year, which was ably accomplished in the presence of a full Board of Installed Masters by Bro. Samuel Henry Parkhouse, the I.P.M., who, in due course, impressively delivered the addresses to the various officers. After the customary salutations Bro. Lander appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. S. Smout, sen., S.W.; Rev. C. Darby Reade (unavoidably absent), J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden, Chap.; George Penn, P.M., Treas.; W. J. Murlis, P.M., Sec.; S. Smout, jun., S.D.; F. Frye, J.D.; J. Bartle, I.G.; F. Delevante, Org.; S. H. Parkhouse, I.P.M., D. of C.; J. Woodmason, A.D. of C.; W. Buckland and Wood, Stewards; and Schofield, Tyler, each appointment being received with acclamations by the brethren assembled. The W.M. then presented Bro. Parkhouse with a handsome eighteen carat gold jewel, richly enamelled with the arms of Lord Carnarvon, bearing at the back the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. Samuel H. Parkhouse by the members of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, in recognition of his valuable services as Worshipful Master during the year 1879." In investing Bro. Lander with the jewel, the W.M. said: "Brethren, we have had the good working of our late W.M., Bro. Parkhouse, and we have great pleasure in now placing on his breast the jewel of his office. Every member of the lodge may even say loves him, for his services during the past year have been such as to call for the highest compliments. Never was there a better Mason at heart. I could go on speaking of his abilities, but will now merely add that his conduct is such that we may copy both in lodge and out of lodge. I sincerely trust that he may live for many years and attend the lodge, and wear the jewel I now have the pleasure of placing upon his breast. Bro. Parkhouse, who, on rising to respond, was loudly cheered, said: I have to thank you, W. Sir and brethren, for the compliment you have paid me. I do not feel that I deserve all that has been said by the W.M., though I cannot but express how highly I appreciate the jewel you have presented to me. After a notice of motion that the lodge should purchase a harmonium, and "Hearty good wishes" had been received from the large number of visitors present, the lodge was solemnly closed. The brethren shortly afterwards sat down to a choice banquet. This was served by Bro. J. Linscott in a manner deserving the highest commendation. Ample justice having been done to the good things provided, grace was offered by the Rev. P. M. Holden, Chaplain of the lodge. The W.M. then gave the first toast, always so loyally received, that of "The Queen and the Craft," following with that of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," which toast the W.M. said he was sure would be most heartily received, as the brethren were so fully aware of the deep interest his Royal Highness always took in all things appertaining to Freemasonry. This toast, which was heartily received, was followed by "God bless the Prince of Wales," well rendered by Bro. A. Kent. In proposing the next toast, "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M.," the W.M. observed that it was always received with extra interest, his lordship having given special permission for the use of his name and arms, and he (the W.M.) need not say how greatly pleased he would be at the presence of his lordship at their meetings. This toast was drunk with hearty cheering. Bro. Facey then gave a very clever performance on the euphonium. The toast of "Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," was next proposed by the W.M., coupled with the name of Bro. Fredk. Binckes, who, in reply, said he considered it a high honour to have his name associated with such a toast, and expressed his very great pleasure in replying on behalf of his lordship, of whom too much could not be said in praise, and who was at all times deserving of the best support of the brethren. The I.P.M., Bro. Parkhouse, gave the next toast, "The Health of the W.M.," which he did with the greatest sincerity and from the bottom of his heart. A truer-hearted, more genuine man never existed. He had well supported the lodge from its consecration, as also the Masonic Charities. He called upon the brethren to drink with the heartiest enthusiasm the health of the fourth W.M. This toast was warmly cheered, and received a very hearty fire. After a very cleverly rendered solo on the concertina by Mr. Rutherford, the W.M. returned thanks for the very hearty manner in which his name had been received. He would use, he said, his utmost endeavours to fill the chair to the best of his ability, but to equal his predecessor would be a matter of impossibility. He could only emulate, and if he succeeded in filling the chair as well as Bro. Parkhouse he (the W.M.) would be perfectly satisfied. Should he want any assistance he was sure he could at all times depend upon Bro. Parkhouse. In proposing the next toast, that of "The I.P.M. and Installing Master," the W.M. observed that he had had the pleasure of knowing Bro. Parkhouse for many years, but the longer he knew him the more he respected him. He had now a very pleasant duty to perform, which was to present Bro. Parkhouse, in the name of the officers and brethren of the lodge, with an illuminated address on vellum, handsomely framed, with the following inscription: "Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642. Presented, together with a Past Master's jewel, to Bro. Saml. Henry Parkhouse, by the brethren of the above lodge, as a mark of regard and esteem in which he is held by them, and in recognition of the services rendered during the time in which he fulfilled the various offices, but more especially during the year in which he presided as W.M." Here follow the signatures of the W.M., his two Wardens, and the Treasurer and Secretary. Bro. Parkhouse, who on rising was vociferously cheered, tendered to the brethren his most sincere and hearty thanks. The presentation of the address, of which he had had no knowledge, had taken him completely by surprise. He had certainly looked forward to the jewel, which he should highly prize. It was with a great deal of nervousness that he accepted the office of W.M., but he had always endeavoured to do his duties to the best of his ability. He felt deeply indebted for the very great attention that had always been paid him. Upon the younger brethren he would strongly urge a continued attention to the sound of the Master's gavel. Bro. Parkhouse, in conclusion, again thanked the officers and brethren, and said that he felt quite overpowered by the kind present made him. The W.M. then gave "The Initiate," previous to whose reply, Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden favoured the brethren, in his well-known style, with "The Charge of the Light Brigade." The initiate, Bro. Rubinstein, replied in neat terms. He should aspire to the chair, which he very aptly remarked was now "so near and yet so far." The toast of "The Visitors" was next given by the W.M., There were a great many visitors present, the more the better, to them all he made a hearty welcome. He coupled with this toast the names of Bros. Levander and Bryett. Previous to their reply a brother, whose name we did not catch, favoured the company with "Tom Bowling," which he sang very effectively. Bro. Levander said, having been called upon, he would, in a very few words, thank the W.M. and brethren for the very kind and hearty welcome accorded to the visitors that evening. He had been invited on several occasions to attend this lodge, but had been unable to do so. He thanked Bro. Penn for his kind invite, and congratulated the lodge on the progress it had made, and for the zeal they have exhibited by the way in which they supported the Charities. Bro. Bryett, in returning thanks, hoped that the lodge of which he was the Worshipful Master (Shepherd's Bush, No. 1828) would prove a worthy child, and emulate the success of its parent, the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. Bro. Isaacs, who was loudly called for, also responded, saying what pleasure it gave him to again find himself a guest of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge. He considered Bro. Parkhouse's rendering of the installation ceremony that evening nearly perfect, and looking at the fact that it was the first time he had performed that ceremony he is deserving of infinite praise. As a novice he had performed the ceremony remarkably well, and he had wound up his year of office in a commendable manner. He concluded by congratulating the lodge upon being one of the leading lodges in London. The W.M. then gave "The Masonic Charities." During his year of office he would uphold and maintain the Masonic Charities as his predecessors had done. He would remind the brethren that the I.P.M. was a Steward for the forthcoming festival in February of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, but as Bro. Terry was present, and would reply to this toast, he need say no more. Bro. James Terry made a very energetic appeal on behalf of his Institution, in the course of which he complimented the lodge upon the liberality that they had already exhibited towards the Charities, they having since the consecration, in Nov. 1876, subscribed upwards of £1000. He heartily wished such munificence would cause other and older lodges to emulate. He trusted that the brethren would support Bro. Parkhouse's list, and send him to the festival with a larger amount even than that taken up by Bro. George Penn, P.M., to the Boys' Festival in June last, namely, £550. Bro. Binckes could not allow this opportunity to pass without saying a few words in gratitude for services already rendered, when, through the instrumentality of Bro. Penn, the very large sum of £550 was collected for the Boys' School. He expressed his grateful thanks, on behalf of the Institution with which he is so closely connected, for the liberality of the lodge, and reminded the brethren of the honour paid the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge by the Board of Stewards in electing Bro. George Penn as their President. Several other toasts were proposed and duly responded to.

CRUSADERS' LODGE (No. 1677).—The first meeting of this lodge, after the installation, was held on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., at the New Market Hotel, West Smithfield. Bro. T. Goode, W.M., presided, and the other officers present were Bros. Hunter, I.P.M.; J. W. Simmonds, S.W.; Rothschild, J.W.; Maples, Treas, Defriez, Sec.; Millward, S.D.; Calderwood, J.D.; Gay, D.C.; Rushton, Org.; Pigot, I.G. The only visitors present were Bros. H. Thompson, 1426, and P.M. 177, and 1158 (Freemason); A. Thiemans, P.M. No. 144; and Leymeyer, W.M. Urban. The minutes of the installation meeting of the lodge were read and confirmed, after which the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Thomas Mount Keller Gilbert was examined and entrusted, and the lodge being opened in the Third Degree, he was in a most impressive manner raised to the Degree of M.M. The lodge was then lowered to the Second Degree, and Bros. Budden and Lennard were passed to the Degree of F.C. A ballot then took place for Mr. Augustus Thomas Buckingham, which proving to be unanimous, he was introduced, and most impressively initiated by the W.M. into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Several of his friends who came to witness the ceremony congratulated him upon his admission to the noble Order. Some other business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large hall for refreshment, and a very excellent and substantial repast was served up in first-rate style, the viands being good and the attendance excellent, leaving really nothing to be desired, as Bro. Butt, the worthy host, personally superintended all the arrangements. After the withdrawal of the cloth, grace having been said, the W.M. gave the first and loyal toast, which was that of "The Queen and the Craft," which was most heartily responded to, followed by the National Anthem, Bro. Lehmyer presiding at the pianoforte. The next toast was that of "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master of Masons," a toast which was most enthusiastically responded to. The other formal toasts having been given, Bro. Hunter, Immediate Past Master, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and descanted on the very able manner in which he had discharged the duties in the chair. The W.M. said he had been suffering from illness, which prevented him from going through the business in the way he could wish, but he trusted to be better able to discharge them in the future, and he sincerely thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him. The next toast was that of "Their Brother Initiate, Bro. Buckingham," and he said, in giving his health, he believed that he would prove a good and worthy Mason, and this toast was most enthusiastically responded to. Bro. Buckingham thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him by admitting him a member of their ancient Order, and could assure them that he would do all in his power to prove himself a good Mason. "The Health of the Visitors" was then proposed by the Senior Warden, who congratulated the lodge in having amongst them, as visitors, some of the most well-known members of the Craft. Bro. H. Thompson, in acknowledging the toast, congratulated the lodge on having so efficient a Master, for having witnessed two of the ceremonies he had performed that evening he, as a somewhat old Mason, could say with confidence that the lodge had really good reason to be proud of their Master, and of his having that night added another link to the great fraternal chain of Freemasonry. He thanked them for the kind hospitality they had shown him, and although that was his first he trusted it would not be his last visit to the Crusaders' Lodge, as that evening had been to him one of unalloyed pleasure. Bros. Thieman and Leh-meyer also returned thanks. In the course of the evening Bro. Lehmeier delighted the members with some choice solos on the pianoforte, and particularly so Thal-berg's "Home, sweet home," with variations. Some other toasts were given, songs sung, and a very happy meeting was brought to a close.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—The first meeting of the members of the above lodge since the installation in July last took place on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, and we were exceedingly pleased to see gathered around the new W.M., Bro. Thos. Hutton, a numerous and influential gathering of the Masons of the district. This grand old lodge, whose history is well worthy the attention of the Masonic student, has had its ups and downs, its original warrant, or charter, having been carried into many lands, and passed through many hands. It has during the last year been rather unsettled, but the interest taken in its prosperity, and the veneration in which it is held as the mother of all the lodges in the Woolwich district, was fully evinced upon this occasion, and we have every confidence that it has a grand future in store for it under its present and coming Masters. The lodge was opened by the W.M., supported by the following officers: Bros. Past Masters G. Davies, Sec.; J. P. Moore, I.P.M.; and R. Hodgkisson; N. Brown, S.W.; H. Syer, J.W.; O. Hutton, Sec.; D. T. Hosgood, S.D.; B. R. T. Smith, J.D.; J. Matvey, I.G.; and B. Norman, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. J. Warren, W.M. 700; H. Shaw, W.M. 1536; D. Deeves, S.W. 1536; G. Kennedy, Sec. 1536; J. H. Roberts, J.D. 700; A. R. Britton, 829; J. J. Gould, 1685; J. R. James, 382 (American); J. A. Elder, S.D. 1472; R. J. Anderson, 1536; J. Murray, 299; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason); and others. The business before the lodge consisted of the passing of Bro. Clements and the raising of Bro. Shoebright, both ceremonies being worked by the W.M. in rare form. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded to, and in response to his health, which was briefly proposed by Bro. Davis, P.M., Bro. Hutton said that he hoped, with the aid of the brethren, and the unanimity which at the present time prevailed in the lodge, to be worthy of their praise at the end of his term of office. In response to the toast of "The Past Masters," Bro. Davis said that during the vacation he had had some half-a-dozen applications made to him by distressed Masons, who had been sent to him by the brethren of the lodge. Now the relieving of strange brethren was not in his province, and he asked the brethren in future to send them to the W.M., or do the same as he always did—that was, after trial and full conviction that the applicant was a worthy object—relieve him themselves. He was sorry to say that there were a great many applicants who were not genuine Masons, but simply impostors who roamed the country, and made a living by their imposture. He thanked the brethren for the toast of "The Past Masters." In giving the toast of "The Visitors," the W.M. said there were not so many present as he could have wished, but they were always welcome at the Union Waterloo Lodge. He then read several letters from officers and brethren of the district, regretting their inability to attend, and concluded by trusting to see as many visiting brethren present as could possibly come whenever the lodge met. Bros. Kennedy, Roberts, James, and Jolly responded. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and Bro. N. Brown responded in a stirring speech, and after a few remarks from Bro. Syer, the Tyler's toast concluded the meeting.

SUNDERLAND.—St. John's Lodge (No. 80).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at 7.30 p.m. The lodge was opened by the W.M., supported by Bros. Elwen, P.M.; Crookes, P.M.; Turnbull, P.M.; Douglass, P.M. (Freemason); and a good number of brethren. Visitors: Bros. Watson, W.M. 97; Eggleston, W.M. 949; Clay, P.M. 97; Gray, P.M. 949; Frampton, W.M. 94; and Henderson, P.M. 94. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed, and the ballot was taken for Mr. Amos Broughton and Mr. John Burkhardt, both candidates for Masonry, and they were declared duly elected. The candidates were regularly admitted, and made E.A. Masons. The W.M. then announced the time had arrived to elect the W.M. for the ensuing year, and the ballot was taken, when Bro. Haydon, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. Bro. Goddardson was re-elected Treasurer, for the twenty-first time, a good, old, tried Mason; Bro. Thompson was re-elected Tyler; Bros. Craven, Waller, and Rackley were re-elected Auditors. The sum of ten pounds was voted from the funds to the sister of a deceased brother, as a token of the high esteem the brethren have of the memory of him. No other business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom, in due and solemn prayer.

SUNDERLAND.—Palatine Lodge (No. 97).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Thursday, the 13th inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Watson, supported by Bros. Lord, P.M.; Clay, P.M.; Curry, P.M.; Twizell, P.M.; and a large number of brethren. Visitors: Bros. Crookes, P.M. 80, P.G.S.; Newton, W.M. 80; Frampton, W.M. 94; Eggleston, W.M. 949; Maddison, P.M. 1389; Gray, P.M. 949; Cumberland, P.M. 1611; Beattie, W.M. 1389; and Douglass, P.M. 80 (Freemason). The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. The lodge was regularly raised to the Third Degree, when Bro.

Wake was re-admitted and received the Sublime Degree of a M.M. The lodge was then regularly closed to the First Degree. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year was then proceeded with. Bro. Tonkinson was unanimously elected. Bro. Twizell was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Thompson Tyler. Bro. Clay, P.M., proposed that the sum of two guineas be voted from the lodge funds towards the local relief fund. Seconded by Bro. Beattie, W.M. All business being done, the lodge was closed in due and solemn form.

MANCHESTER.—Caledonian Lodge (No. 204).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Wednesday, the 12th inst. There were present Bros. John Roberts, W.M.; G. Mullock, S.W.; Wm. Bagnall, J.W.; R. Eldershaw, L.P.M.; R. Spencer, Sec.; Thos. Guest, S.D.; J. Sutcliffe, J.D.; John Hind, Treas.; Thos. Sawyer, acting I.G.; J. Sly, Tyler; R. Timperley, P.M.; J. Baitye, P.M.; Henry Paulden, John Harrop, Samuel Lawton, P. D. Apostolic, the Rev. J. Cater, Alfred Humphreys, P.M.; J. Coliffe, E. Orrell, B. Taylor. Visitor: R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at six o'clock with prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The W.M. then resumed his reading of extracts taken from the old minutes and records of the lodge, some of which were very quaint and amusing. This being the meeting for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, the usual proceedings were gone through, when the S.W., Bro. G. Mullock, was unanimously elected, and afterwards returned thanks to the brethren. Bro. John Hind was re-elected Treas., and Bro. Sly Tyler. A Committee, consisting of the W.M., S.W., J.W., and Sec., was appointed for the purpose of making arrangements for the St. John's Festival, to be held on the 10th December. Bro. G. Mullock announced that the result of the annual soirée and picnic, which had taken place this year in connection with the lodge, had resulted in a balance on the right side of £2 1s., which sum, the W.M. suggested, should be handed over to the Treasurer for the benefit of the lodge. We may here remark that this example of good management and profitable result in both instances would be well worth following on the part of many other lodges, where, in consequence of want of organisation and energy, it too often happens that a balance on the wrong side is effected, and the lodge funds suffer accordingly. A Committee was next appointed to take an inventory of the lodge property. This concluding the business of the evening, "Hearty good wishes" were expressed by the visitor, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 8.30. The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent supper, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to, the pleasure of the evening being greatly enhanced by the excellent glee singing of Bros. Shorrocks, Stanley, and Lever.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 12th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum. Bro. E. Cardwell, the W.M., presided, and there was a large attendance of brethren, especially of visitors. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second and Third Degrees, in order that Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., might give his lecture on "The O.B.'s of Craft Masonry—their similarity and their differences." Bro. Moore, who frequently gives lectures in his own neighbourhood, has the rare gift of making any subject he takes in hand highly interesting to his audiences, but being an enthusiast in Masonry, as well as an authority on many points, his lectures on Masonic lore are rendered doubly interesting. The lecture in question was no exception to the rule, but was given in our worthy brother's happiest style, the language terse and instructive; the illustrations apposite and to the point. Several questions were put to Bro. Moore on his concluding, and these having been answered, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded him on the motion of Bro. Kelland, P.M., seconded by Bro. Hatch, P.M. and Hon. Sec. Bro. Moore, in responding, announced his intention of giving further lectures on Masonry, which was greeted with applause. The W.M. then resumed in the First Degree, and the usual proclamations were made, which elicited "Hearty good wishes" from the visiting brethren. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

LIVERPOOL.—Neptune Lodge (No. 1264).—The usual monthly meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street. The following officers and brethren were present: Bros. A. Cotter, W.M.; A. C. Wylie, S.W.; J. H. Arden, J.W.; P. B. Gee, P.M., Treas.; C. Fothergill, Sec.; J. Warden, S.D.; G. Crute, J.D.; J. Tickle, I.G.; P. Ball, Tyler; Hugh Williams, P.M., P.G.A.D.C. W.L.; J. W. Burgess, P.M. 1325; W. Fish, W. Murray, C. Wadsworth, H. Ravenscroft, R. Edwards, W. C. Webb, J. W. Gaul, H. P. Gray, J. Davies, W. Faulds, W. Davies, J. Donaldson, W. P. Fender, F. S. Smith, A. Soldat, W. Garner, E. Hartnell, J. Cutchen, G. W. Dillon, and W. W. Webster. Visitors: Bros. E. Griffiths, 724; J. Jones, 724; J. A. Partington, 724; A. Hutteroth, 1313; J. Brotherton, 241; R. Ripley, 1547; R. Bethal, 1094; K. Kirkes, 1547; J. C. Robinson, P.M. 249; R. Foote, J.W. 1505; and W. Hughes, 241. The lodge was opened at 6 o'clock and minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. The ballot was afterwards taken for three candidates, which was unanimously in favour of their admission. The chair was then taken by Bro. P. B. Gee, P.M. and Treas., who opened the lodge in the Second Degree and passed Bros. Faulds, Jones, and Partington to the rank of Fellow Craft. Bro. Alex. Cotter, W.M., then resumed the chair, and Bro. H. P. Gray, candidate for raising, having been examined, was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Gray raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. Upon the conclusion of this impressive ceremony the lodge was resumed to the Second and then to the First Degree, and the other business having been concluded the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, the brethren separated at an early hour.

NEWPORT PAGNELL.—St. Peter and Paul's Lodge (No. 1410).—On Tuesday evening, the 11th inst., the installation of the W.M. of the above lodge took place at the Swan Hotel. The V.W. Bro. the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, P.G.C., performed the impressive and interesting ceremony in his customary manner. At the conclusion of the ceremony the newly-installed W.M., Bro. T. Taylor, invested his officers as follows:—Bros. J. R. Wilmer, I.P.M.; A. Coales, S.W.; the Rev. Dr. Margoliouth, J.W.; the Rev. C. M. Outley, Chaplain; E. Carr, Treas.; V.W. Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, P.G.C., Sec.; Bros. L. Cooper, S.D.; B. Wilford, J.D.; J. Line, D.C.; J. Odell, I.G.; A. Egan, Org.; E. J. Saunders and A. Bailey, Stewards; W. Stanton, Tyler. The Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. J. R. Wilmer, I.P.M. The members then adjourned to the banquet room, where Host Cannon had provided an excellent banquet, which would, doubtless, have given greater satisfaction had that part of the catering which considerably enhances the pleasure and promotes the success of a repast been more judiciously attended to, namely, the waiting. We feel sure that such a defect as this will be remedied on future occasions. The chair was occupied by Bro. T. Taylor, W.M., who was supported on his right by V.W. Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, and on the left by Bro. Binckes, P.G.S.; and the vice-chairs by Bros. A. J. Coales, S.W., and the Rev. Dr. Margoliouth, J.W. There were upwards of thirty persons present, including members from the Watling-street Lodge, Stony Stratford; the Scientific Lodge, Wolverton; the St. Barnabas Lodge, Linslade; and the Eleanor Cross Lodge. The repast ended, the Chairman gave the toasts of "The Queen and Craft," and "The Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," which were accompanied with musical honours, the former with "God save the Queen," and the latter by "God bless the Prince of Wales." The next toast was that of "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers, Present and Past," which the Chairman coupled with the names of V.W. Bro. the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg and Bro. Binckes, P.G.S., and the former very suitably responded. "The Provincial Grand Master, the D.P.G.M., and the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past," was coupled with the names of Bros. Hales and Reeve, who individually acknowledged the toast. The V.W. Bro. the Rev. J. S. Brownrigg proposed the next toast, and one which he considered the toast of the evening, "The W.M. of St. Peter and Paul's Lodge, Bro. T. Taylor," and in doing so he passed a high compliment upon his ability as a Mason and his efficiency to discharge the duties appertaining to the Order. Bro. Taylor very appropriately responded, and then gave "The Past Masters," coupling with it the name of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. J. R. Wilmer, who suitably replied, "The Masonic Charities" was connected with the name of Bro. Binckes, P.G.S., the energetic and assiduous Secretary of the Masonic Boys' School, who made an eloquent speech on behalf of the Charitable Institutions in connection with the Order, and concluded his remarks by earnestly appealing to his brother Masons to give a more careful attention to the welfare of the Masonic Institutions and a more unanimous support. "The Visiting Brethren" was next given by the Chairman, who coupled with it the names of Bro. the Rev. Sams and Bro. Reeve, Revill, Valentine, Elmes, Aveline, Eady, and others. The toast of "The Officers" was replied to by Bros. Coales and Cooper. This was followed by the Tyler's toast. Bros. Wilford, Odell, Valentine, J. R. Wilmer, and J. C. Coales contributed to the harmony of the evening, and "God save the Queen" terminated a very pleasant and enjoyable meeting.—Weekly Standard.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, on the 12th inst. The lodge was opened at 5 o'clock in the afternoon by Bro. W. Wigginton, P.P.G.S. of Wks. Middlesex, P.M., in the absence of Bro. Court, W.M.; assisted by Bros. W. Taylor, S.W., W.M. elect; Tomlinson, P.P.G.D. Norfolk, Treasurer, acting J.W.; C. Horsley, P.P.G.R. Middx., acting I.P.M.; the Rev. M. D'Orsey, Asst. Chap.; W. H. Saunders, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M.; Ashley, S.D.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx., D.C. (Freemason); Richnell, W.S., Treasurer elect; Clarke, A.W.S.; Harrison, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Laxton, P.M. 1238, P.P.G.D. Middlesex; Dodd, P.M. 1194, &c.; Stebbing, 26; Snell, 357; Rookman, 1657. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the report of the Audit Committee was received and adopted. Bros. W. H. Saunders, P.M., and Kennedy, P.M., having been appointed to the respective offices of S.W. and I.G. by the Installing Officer, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. W. Taylor was duly inducted into the chair of K.S. by Bro. W. Wigginton. Upon the admission of the brethren below the chair, the ceremony was proceeded with, the delivery of the addresses by the Installing Master being marked by great elocutionary ability. The officers appointed and invested by the W.M. for the year ensuing were: Bros. Ashley, S.W.; Walls, J.W.; H. Court, I.P.M. (by deputy); Richnell, Treas. and S.D.; Wigginton, Sec.; the Rev. M. D'Orsey, Chap.; Clarke, J.D.; Ramsey, I.G. (by deputy); Kennedy, D.C.; and Harrison, Tyler. The other minor offices were not filled. A Committee, consisting of the W.M., Past Masters, Wardens, Treasurer, and Secretary, were appointed to consider a modification of several of the bye-laws and other important matters in connection with the lodge. Previously to the lodge being closed, a donation was unanimously voted to the Laughton Church Tower Restoration Fund, and a vote of thanks unanimously passed to Bro. Tomlinson upon his retirement from the position of Treasurer. The banquet, which was admirably served by Bro. Baylis, having been discussed, the W.M. gave, in brief but pertinent terms, the toasts of "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro G.M., Deputy G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," "The R.W.P.G.M.," and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past." These pledges having been most warmly received, Bros. Charles Horsley and W. Wigginton responded at length upon behalf of the latter. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," the acting I.P.M., Bro. Horsley, congratulated the lodge upon possessing a W.M. who, as an initiate, had been connected with it from its commencement. He had filled nearly all the minor offices most efficiently, and had endeared himself to all those who had been brought into contact with him. The speaker having touched upon other matters in connection with the W.M.'s career in the lodge, concluded by wishing him a most prosperous and happy year of office. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M. modestly replied. "The Health of the Installing Master" followed, and it having been warmly received, Bro. Wigginton, P.M., tersely responded. The toast of "The Past Masters" followed, and was acknowledged by Bro. W. H. Saunders in a neat speech. "The Visitors" came next in order, and drew from Bros. Laxton, Dodd, and Rookman exhaustive and complimentary replies. The toast of "The Officers" was coupled with the names of Bros. Ashley, Tomlinson, and D'Orsey. Those brethren having replied, the Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings, which were throughout most enjoyable and successful.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—The first meeting of the above lodge since the installation of the W.M., Bro. H. Shaw, took place on Friday, the 14th inst., at the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, and was honoured by the presence of Bros. Col. A. H. King, R.A., P.M., P.P.S.G.W. Kent; J. L. Thomas, P.M. 142, and P.A.G.D.C. (England); and a large number of visitors, among whom were Bros. J. Warren, W.M. 700; T. Hutton, W.M. 13; D. W. T. Vincent, P.M. 913; T. D. Hayes, P.M. 913; A. Penfold, P.M. 913; H. Pryce, I.G. 913 (the three latter brethren are also honorary members of the United Military Lodge); A. Brookson, P.M. 1424; Eugene Sweny, S.W. 706; J. Wilkins, S.W. 700; T. Hosgood, S.D. 13; G. Beaver, S.D. 700; J. Elder, S.D. 1472; O. Hutton, Sec. 13; W. Webber, 700; S. Evans, 316; W. Cobb, 700; W. Reece, 913; W. Watts, 913; E. Palmer, 913; H. Grace, 13; W. Lennox, 144; G. Tappenden, 700; D. C. Capon, 913; C. T. Lemessurier, 359; S. Newton, 387; J. Waham, 873; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason), and honorary member of the United Military Lodge. Among the officers present beside the W.M. were Bros. H. Picken, I.P.M.; W. Weston, P.M.; D. Deeves, S.W.; H. Welding, J.W.; G. Kennedy, Sec.; C. Buckland, J.D.; and W. A. Watkins, I.G. The lodge having been opened, the minutes of the last meeting having been read and passed, the ballot was taken for Bro. P. Mills, A.S.C., of No. 903, which proved unanimous. The ballot was then taken for Augustus Carter King, Lieut., son of Bro. Col. King; Sergt. C. T. Rolfe, R.A., and Sergeant-Major W. Halaban, R.A., and the ballot proving unanimous, the candidates were duly initiated into Masonry. Bros. Hutchinson, Hunt, and Waldron were then raised to the Sublime Degree. The whole of the work was done by the W.M. in excellent style, considering this being his first night in the chair. Bro. King then retired, and the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then sat down to a pretty little supper, well served by Bro. Tucker, who was thanked by the W.M. for the care taken by him for the comfort of the brethren. On the cloth being cleared the gallant brethren and visitors drank to "The Queen and the Craft" right loyally. "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," was enthusiastically toasted, as were "The Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, and rest of the Grand Officers." This being a provincial lodge, under Lord Holmesdale, G.M. for the Province of Kent, "The Health of His Lordship, and the D.G.M., Bro. Eastes," who are deservedly popular in this part of the province, was responded to most heartily. In responding for the toast of "The Grand Officers of England," Bro. Thomas expressed the pleasure it gave him to be present that evening. He felt sure that they did not want to hear a word from him as to the excellences and qualification of the Grand Officers who were honoured by holding office under their exalted G.M. the Prince of Wales; but he would say, and he felt sure they would all agree with him, that the offices could not have been placed in the hands of better men. He had come among them that evening at the invitation of the W.M., and was completely taken by surprise at the excellent manner in which the work had been carried out. It was not only a credit to the lodge but an example to Masonry at large. Why, the very initiates stood to order like old Masons, and he could only tell them that it would be a great gratification to him to be enabled to report to Grand Lodge the excellent way this lodge carried out the principles and work of Freemasonry. He felt sure that Lord Skelmersdale would have been pleased to have been with them that evening. His lordship was not only a hard working Mason, but was filling one of the most important offices in the realm, that of Grand Chamberlain, and nothing gave him greater satisfaction than to find that a lodge was doing good work, and in a Mason-like manner. It was not his habit to compliment any lodge merely for the sake of compliment, but what he had said upon this occasion came from the bottom of his heart. As an old Woolwich Mason, for he was made a R.A. Mason within a stone's throw of this lodge, he was never more gratified and pleased than to be among his Masonic friends at Woolwich. After the W.M. had regretted the unavoidable absence of Bro. Col. King, whose love for Masonry was only equalled by his arduous work for its prosperity, Bro. Picken proposed "The Health of Bro. Shaw" in suitable terms; and, in response, Bro. Shaw, after expressing the pleasure it gave him to see such a grand assembly around him, said he knew his shortcomings as well as any one, and they must take into consideration the nervousness natural to a first night. However, he would promise to do better before the end of the year. The toast of "The Initiates" followed, and the brethren present briefly responded. "The Visitors" were toasted, and Bros. Hutton, Brookson, Warren and several others responded. Bro. Picken responded for "The Past Masters," and Bro. Deeves for "The Officers." Bro. Jolly responded to a flattering notice of "The Masonic Press," and then the Tyler's toast concluded a memorable and enjoyable evening.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, on the 7th inst., Bro. William Longmire, W.M., occupying the chair of K.S., and supported by his several officers. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed, after which the ballot was taken for Mr. Henry Baxter, and proved unanimous. Mr. Baxter was afterwards admitted to the lodge, and initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M., the working tools being given by the J.W. Some financial business was then discussed, and the usual proclamations followed, the lodge being closed with the usual formalities.

STONY STRATFORD.—Watling-street Lodge (No. 1639).—The installation banquet of the above lodge was held at the Cock Hotel, on Thursday evening, the 6th inst., when there was a good attendance of members and visitors. The ceremony of installing Bro. G. B. Valentine, W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, was performed by Bro. the Rev. W. F. Short, P.G.C. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Elmes, P.G.A.D.C., I.P.M.; J. Bates, S.W.; J. W. Bull, J.W.; the Rev. W. F. Short, Chap.; W. H. Robinson, Treas.; J. Reeve, Sec.; R. Marlow, S.D.; H. J. W. Cox, J.D.; G. Gilkes, D.C.; L. Ewbank, I.G.; C. L. Lovett, Steward; and J. Bonser, Tyler. At the conclusion of the business an adjournment was made to the banquet room, where Bro. Revill had prepared a sumptuous spread, which gave great satisfaction to the guests. The toasts "The Queen and the Craft" and "The Most Worshipful the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," were given by the W.M., accompanied by appropriate remarks. He next gave "The Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon; the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Skelmersdale; and the Present and Past Grand Officers of England," coupling with it the names of Bro. the Rev. W. F. Short and Bro. Cox, who suitably acknowledged the compliment. "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Sir Daniel Gooch; the Right Worshipful the Deputy Provincial Grand Master; and the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past, of Berks and Bucks," was the next toast, with which the W.M. coupled the names of Bros. W. H. Robinson and J. Elmes, who responded, and Bros. J. Reeve and C. Aveline also replied. Bro. the Rev. W. F. Short then proposed what he considered the toast of the evening, viz., "The Health of the W.M.," of whom he spoke in eulogistic terms as an enthusiastic brother Mason. He also remarked upon the prosperous condition of the lodge, which was now in its fourth year of existence, and, in comparison with other lodges of a similar age, considered its position equal to any in England. The toast was very suitably acknowledged by the W.M., who then gave "The Visitors," coupling with it the names of Bros. J. R. Wilmer, J. Goodwin, and Slater, of Buckingham, who severally responded. The other toasts were "The Masonic Charities," "The Chaplain, the Treasurer, and Secretary," "The Officers of the Watling-street Lodge," and the Tyler's toast. Bro. Robinson then proposed "The Caterer," to which Bro. Revill very suitably replied. Bros. Marlow, Goodwin, Bonser, and others contributed to the harmony of the evening, which was brought to a close by the National Anthem. —Weekly Standard.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—This prosperous provincial lodge assembled in good strength at the White Hart Hotel, Hampton Wick, on the 10th inst. Among those present were Bros. the Rev. C. de Crespigny, P.P.G.C. of Middlesex, W.M.; Ferge, acting S.W.; Featherstone, acting J.W.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, I.P.M.; T. Ockenden, S.W., 1512, Sec.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, J.D. (Freemason); F. Honeywell, P.G.O. Middlesex, Organist; Richer, D.C. Among the visitors were Bros. the Rev. R. Gem, P.P.G.C. of Cumberland and Westmoreland; Inglis, P.M. Carnarvon; Jesset, W.M. 1512; Beauchamp, 1512, Marvin, Progress. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Bro. W. Hammond, who then proceeded to raise Bro. Gerhold to the degree of a M.M., the ceremony being well performed. It having been reported that Bro. Scott, I.G., had recently died, it was unanimously resolved, upon the motion of Bros. Hurst, S.D., and Andrews, that a letter of condolence should be forwarded by the Secretary to the family of their deceased brother. Previously to the lodge being closed, an application for relief was read from the widow of a deceased brother, one of the founders of the Wolsey and W.M. elect at the time of his demise. Upon the motion of the I.P.M. a petition upon her behalf was ordered to be prepared and signed by the officers of the lodge and forwarded to the Board of Benevolence. The lodge was then duly closed, and the brethren partook of a collation. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. arose, and said that he intended to be the best chairman that they had ever had, inasmuch as he did not intend to inflict upon them any long speeches. This announcement having been received with applause, the W.M. proceeded to give the customary Royal and Craft toasts. "The D.P.G.M. and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past," was responded to by Bro. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D., in appropriate terms. "The Health of the Visitors" followed. This toast was acknowledged by Bros. the Rev. R. Gem and Marvin. The former stated that he had visited many lodges in the North, but none of them came up to the standard of working excellence as manifested by those in the South. It had been his good fortune to visit two in the province of Middlesex, namely the Hemming and the Wolsey, and he had been highly gratified with the manner in which the whole proceedings of those lodges had been conducted. In conclusion, he begged to thank the W.M. for the hearty manner he had proposed the health of the visitors. Bro. Marvin, the first initiate of the Wolsey, but who had had to resign in consequence of the distance of the lodge from town, having also said a few words in response, the W.M. gave "The Officers." In giving this toast he said he felt sorry that from urgent private reasons so many of his officers were unable to be present that evening. It was the opening night of the Masonic season in connection with 1876, and it was to be regretted that only three of the principal officers were able to attend. In conclusion, he said he did not wish to complain, because their absence had been accounted for, but he hoped that on the next occasion he should see the full complement of officers. This toast was acknowledged by Bro. Ockenden. The Tyler having been called upon to discharge his duty, the proceedings terminated. In the intervals of the toasts Bros. Honeywell, Filler, and others entertained the brethren.

WARRINGTON.—Elias Ashmole Chapter (No. 148).—An emergency convocation of this chapter was held at the chapter rooms, Sankey-street, on Monday evening, the 17th inst. The M.E.Z., Ex. Comp. John Bowes, P.Z., P.P.G.S.N. Cumberland and Westmorland, was supported by Ex. Comps. D. W. Finney, P.Z., as H.; Jas. Jackson, J.; P. J. Edelsten, P.Z., P.S.; and Comps. Charlton, Starkie, Galloway, C. Skinner, Hannah, Hindley, Domville, and others. The chapter having been opened by the Principals, the rest of the companions were admitted. Bro. Charlson, who was balloted for and approved at the last convocation, was now present, and having been introduced was exalted in due form, according to ancient custom, by the M.E.Z., who also delivered the Mystic Lecture. Much interest was manifested in the ceremony. There being no further business the chapter was closed with the usual solemnities.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Chapter (No. 1061).—The regular meeting of this chapter of R.A. Masons was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athnaeum, on the 17th inst. There were present Ex. Comps. W. Hall, M.E.Z.; H. Longman, H.; and W. Duff, J.; Comps. Ellershaw, Scribe E.; Kelland, P.S.; R. Stanton, A.S.; F. G. Dale, A.S.; and A. K. Allinson, Janitor. The muster roll of members having been read, and the minutes of last chapter read and confirmed, Comp. Col. the Right Hon. Frederick A. Stanley, M.P., Witherslack Hall (Her Majesty's Secretary of State for War) was unanimously elected a joining member of the chapter.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on the 4th inst. at the Freemasons' Tavern, and there were present Bro. Geo. Newman, W.M.; V.W. Bros. C. Horsley, P.M., G.J.O., acting I.P.M.; Rev. P. M. Holden, P.M., P.G.C., S.W.; Bros. Wm. Stephens, J.W.; Dr. Whiteway Wilkinson, M.O.; V.W. Bro. H. C. Levander, P.M., G. Reg.; Bros. H. Santer, Reg.; E. H. Thielley, P.M., Sec.; J. B. Lambe, S.D.; H. F. Frost, J.D.; G. Harrison, Tyler; P. L. Simmonds, P.M.; and G. Sandell. The visitors were V.W. Bros. A. de Cordova, Dist. G. Overseer Jamaica; Don. M. Dewar, G. Asst. Sec.; W. Bro. Wm. Worrell, P.G. Org.; and Bro. George Penn. The lodge was opened in due form, the brethren, accompanied by the organ, chanting the opening hymn, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The musical portion of the ceremony was most effectively executed by Bro. Worrell, with his widely known and appreciated abilities as P.G. Organist, which musical feature is now established permanently in the St. Mark's Lodge, harmonising so thoroughly with the excellent working of the Degree as therein rendered. In the St. Mark's Lodge, whether there are candidates or not, the whole of the ceremony is rehearsed in both elocutionary and musical form at each meeting, so that, as has been the case some time past, should a distinguished brother visitor, hailing from the Antipodes, honour again the St. Mark's Lodge, No. 1, he may not regret the trouble when visiting the lodge. A telegram and letters of apology for non-attendance were received from Bros. E. Shepherd, S.O.; H. A. Dubois, I.P.M.; Thos. Cohe, and other members. There being no further business the lodge was closed in due form with the Mark Masters' hymn, and adjourned. The brethren, presided by the W.M., dined at the Freemasons' Tavern.

CROYDON.—Croydon Lodge (No. 198).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, Nov.

14th, at Harewood House, 105, High-street, Croydon, in the spacious room erected by Bro. Rhodes, P.G. Organist. There were present Bros. J. K. Pitt, W.M.; Nicholls, S.W.; W. B. Brown, J.W.; Griffiths, M.O.; Byron H. Ridge, S.O.; Haynes, Sec.; S. W. Lambert, Treas.; and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and the musical portions of this advanced Degree of Masonry were exquisitely rendered by Bro. Rhodes. The chief business of the evening was the election of a W.M., and the suffrages of the brethren were unanimous in favour of Bro. Nicholls. Bro. Lambert was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Grant as Tyler. The Audit Committee was appointed, and the new bye-laws of Prov. Grand Mark Lodge were received and considered. The regular meetings of the Croydon lodge of M.M.M. are on the second Fridays in March, July, and November. Any M.M.M. residing in the neighbourhood will be fraternally welcomed.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LANCASHIRE.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President, occupied the President's chair, Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President, took the chair of Senior Vice-President, and Bro. James Kench, Assistant Grand Pursuivant, took the chair of Junior Vice-President. There were also present Bros. C. A. Cotchran, E. P. Albert, W. H. Perryman, Henry Garrod, J. M. Case, Charles Frederick Hogard, Griffiths Smith, S. Rawson, Edward C. Davies, W. H. Lucia, Charles Atkins, W. I. Christian, G. P. Britten, Geo. Waterman, James Cooper, Thos. Hutton, John Bustard, A. Buckle, S. Kelly, H. Spedy, John Constable, Hen. Hill, Col. H. S. Somerville Bauney, J. H. Leggett, D. M. Dewar, W. F. The Board of Masters first met, and had read to them the agenda paper of the next Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge. There were general expressions of regret when the draft report of the Board of General Purposes announced that Bro. John Hervey had resigned his office of Grand Secretary, on account of continued ill health. Bro. Stevens' notice of motion on uniformity of ritual, which the Craft have already been informed it was his intention to bring forward, was also read, as well as Bro. Clabon's notice of motion with regard to the surplus of the Fund or Benevolence.

The Lodge of Benevolence was then opened, and the brethren first confirmed the recommendations made to the Grand Master at last meeting, amounting to £250. The new list was then proceeded with. There were 37 cases on this list, and of these five were deferred. The remainder were relieved with a total amount of £1035, composed of the following amounts:—Two £75 (£150); seven £50 (£350); five £40 (£200); three £30 (£90); one £25 (£25); six £20 (£120); two £15 (£30); and seven £10 (£70).

■ Lodge was then closed, after sitting four hours and a quarter.

BOARD OF GENERAL PURPOSES AND COLONIAL BOARD.

The members of these Boards dined together on Tuesday evening last (after the monthly meeting of the former Board) at Freemasons' Tavern. Bro. Monckton, President B.G.P., presided, assisted by Bro. Rucker, President C.B., in the vice-chair. They were supported by Bros. Levander, Vice-President B.G.P., and Griffiths Smith, Vice-President C.B., and the following members:—Bros. Fenn, P.G.D.; Grey, P.G.D.; Long, P.G.D.; Burt, Asst. G.D.C.; Buss, Asst. G. Secretary; Alfred Meadows, M.D., P.M. 4; Adlard, P.M. 7; Frank Richardson, P.M. 14, P.G.S.; Beaumont, G.S. 26; Matthews, W.M. 143; Pitt Lewis, W.M. 165; H. Payne, W.M. 235; Frank Green, P.M. 1567; Litchworth, P.M. 1579; and Cave, G.C., W.M. 1610.

After dinner, which was served in Bro. Best's best style, and could not have been surpassed by any caterer in London, Bro. Monckton proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was responded to with the usual honours.

Bro. Rucker then proposed "The Grand Master," which was received in the same manner.

Bro. Fenn proposed "The Health of Bro. Monckton and Bro. Rucker, the Presidents of the two Boards," which was severally responded to by those brethren.

Bro. Monckton then gave "The Health of Bro. Levander and Bro. Griffiths Smith, the Vice-Presidents," which was also respectively responded to; then "The Health of Bros. Levander, Gould, and Frank Richardson," who had the management of the dinner, was given by Bro. Monckton, and responded to by the latter.

"Better Health to Bro. Hervey" was given by Bro. Fenn, and was responded to in a most feeling manner by Bro. Buss.

Bro. McIntyre, Grand Reg., was expected to be present, but was unavoidably detained at the last moment, as was also Bros. Erasmus Wilson and Gould, from ill-health; and letters of apology were read from Bros. Lord Kensington, Senior Grand Warden; Major-General Clithorpe, Junior Grand Warden; Sir Albert Woods, G.D. of C., and other influential members of the Boards. Altogether the dinner was a great success, and will, no doubt, be repeated in future years.

CONSECRATION OF THE ETHELDREDA CHAPTER, No. 809.

This new chapter, to be attached to the Lodge of United Good Fellowship, No. 809, was consecrated at the Rose and Crown Hotel, Wisbech, on Wednesday, the 12th inst.

The ceremony of consecration was most ably performed by M.E. Comp. J. Deighton, P.G.S.B. England, Grand Superintendent Combs, as M.E.Z., assisted by M.E. Comps. C. W. Morriss, P.Z. 109, as H.; and F. C. Wace, P.Z. 859, as J. The duties of acting Director of Ceremonies were efficiently rendered by Comp. G. W. Page, J. 107.

The new Principals were then installed by the Grand Superintendent Combs in the following order:—

M.E. Comps. Edward Hoggis, P.Z. 88, as M.E.Z.; Alfred Fredk. Donagan, Z. 88, as H.; and Comp. George Carrick, 327, as J. The chapter was then closed in ancient form.

Half-an-hour later the companions re-assembled at the holding of the first regular convocation of the chapter. The newly-installed Principals presided, and thirteen candidates were duly exalted to this Sublime Degree. A number of others, who were not in attendance, were also balloted for and approved. The arduous duties falling to the lot of the P. soj. were most ably and correctly performed by Comp. Youngman, whilst the well-known skill of the M.E.Z. as a thorough worker is a guarantee that nothing would be wanting on his part to complete the ceremony.

The following officers were then elected and invested:—Comps. W. Bray, Scribe E.; A. Bothamley, N.; J. S. Youngman, P. Soj.; Thos. Squire and Jas. Hodgins, Asst. Sojs.; C. K. Ellis, Org.; and J. N. Holmes, Janitor.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Consecrating and Installing Officer (Comp. Deighton), and to those companions who had so efficiently assisted him. A Committee having been appointed to draw up a code of bye-laws, and "Hearty good wishes" having been tendered from several visiting companions, the chapter was formally closed.

The brethren then adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Tidnam (the host of the Rose), and a pleasant evening was spent in a truly fraternal and harmonious manner, hearty wishes being expressed for the future prosperity of the Etheldreda Chapter.

We may observe that the chapter is called after Saint Etheldreda, the founder and first abbess of Ely Cathedral, within which diocese Wisbech is situated.

MASONIC AMATEUR DRAMATIC PERFORMANCE.

On Thursday, the 30th ult., the Theatre Royal, Rochdale, was the scene of one of the most successful and interesting amateur dramatic performances ever witnessed in the town. The whole of the characters were sustained by amateurs, even the ladies being daughters of a resident brother. The piece de resistance was Charles Dance, Esqr.'s, comedy of The Wonderful Woman, the scenes of which are laid in Paris, and the period immediately anterior to the French Revolution. The wonderful woman is the wealthy widow, "Madame Hortense Bertrand," who finds that even a golden key will not open the portals of rank and station. Learning that invitation cards for a Royal fete are only issued to those of the fair sex who can boast of the title of either a duchess, marchioness, countess, or baroness, to obtain the "sine qua non" she makes a proposal of marriage to a ruined nobleman, the Marquis de Frontignac, who is so deeply involved in debt as to become (by the French law of the period) adjudged servant to one of his creditors, "Crepin" (a cobbler). Without reading it, the marquis signs a contract of marriage, one of the conditions of which is that immediately after the ceremony the pair shall separate, his debts be paid, and an annuity of 30,000 livres settled on him. When the marquis discovers the snare into which he has been unwillingly entrapped, he refuses to accept any portion of his wife's wealth, and returns to poverty and servitude with the cobbler, whose shop is opposite to the chief entrance of the chateau of the newly-made marchioness. Here the marquis erects a sign (the Marquis de Frontignac, Cobbler). At this the marchioness's pride is deeply wounded, but he is obdurate to all appeals and terms. She intimates her intention to lay her case before the King, but she is informed by the "Viscount de Millefleurs" that his Majesty has already been made aware of the facts by "Rodolph" (her rejected suitor), and orders have been issued that she must not be admitted at Court, unless accompanied by her husband. She perceiving how futile are all her attempts at securing Court recognition, surrenders to the marquis, and soon discovers that she has considerably under-estimated his claims to honour, and the usual happy reconciliation closes the story. There are few comedies which depend more upon the good acting of the company for their success, and when we record that the performance was received with the greatest enthusiasm by a large and critical audience, some idea may be formed of the great pains and perseverance which must have been incurred by the ladies and brethren, individually and severally. The dresses too were of the most recherché description, first and foremost amongst the characters for special mention was "Crepin the Cobbler," by Bro. J. Dearden, I.G. 54, who created roars of merriment by his really excellent acting and hearty expression of the part; in fact, his general demeanour would have done credit to the professional stage. "The Marquis de Frontignac" is a very ambitious attempt for a novice, but Bro. E. T. Fletcher, W.M. 1129, was quite equal to the occasion, and his gentlemanly ease and dignified bearing, combined with his occasional but appropriate force of declamation, soon established him in the good graces of the brilliant assemblage in front. "The Viscount de Millefleurs," Bro. P. Lee, I.P.M. 1129, was played very fairly, but, unfortunately, his voice in many parts was lost to the audience through its weakness. "Rodolph," Bro. W. Wild, M.M. 363, was a pretty little part, very fairly rendered. Bro. C. Wren, J.W. 367, was "The Tailor;" Bro. W. Davis, P.M. 54, was "The Servant," and, although minor parts, contributed much to the general success. Of the ladies we cannot speak too highly; in fact, the general admiration of the house knew no bounds when it was remembered that they also were non-professionals. The part of "Hortense," the wealthy widow, was played with great care the manner in which it was rendered was both spirited and dignified. Of the part of "Cecile" we cannot speak too highly, suffice it to say it was as near perfection as possible; in fact, both ladies' parts would have done credit to many professionals. At the fall of the curtain there was an unanimous recall. The second part of the programme was the farce of Lend me Five Shillings, by J. M. Murton, Esq.; and here again, as "Mr. Gohgnly," Bro. J. Dearden gave another proof of his general aptitude to the comedy stage. "Captain Phobba," Bro. B. Hill, S.D. 363; "Captain Spruce," Bro. C. Wren, J.W. 367; "Morland," Bro. J. Gibson, Sec. 816; "Sam," Bro. T. Hill, J.G. 363, were all more or less well acted. The same ladies played their parts in the farce equally as well as in the comedy. The attendance was in every sense most encouraging, the theatre being filled to repletion, in pit and circle alike, the latter portion presenting a most brilliant appearance. The proceeds, which we understand are upwards of £40, will be handed to the Masonic Charities.

Mayfair announces that Mr. Wallis Mackay, whose clever sketches in that journal its readers will remember, has again joined the staff, and in future Mayfair will be illustrated by him.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—In general debility, mental depression, and nervous irritability there is no medicine which operates so like a charm as these famous Pills. They purify the blood, soothe and strengthen the nerves and system, give tone to the stomach, elevate the spirits, and, in fact, make the patient sensible of a total and most delightful resolution in his whole system. They may be commended most unreservedly as the very best family medicine in existence. Though so powerfully efficacious, they are singularly mild in their operation, and might be given with perfect confidence to delicate women and young children. They contain not a grain of mercury, or any other noxious substance, and cannot do harm. Delicate females and all persons of sedentary habits will find these Pills a blessing.—[ADVT.]

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1879.

THE PROVINCES AND THE CHARITIES.

Our correspondent "P.M." contributes his curious figures as regards the Boys' School and its provincial supporters. It appears that there are no less than 16,049 votes for the Boys' School in the provinces; of these West Yorkshire claims 2445, East Lancashire 1894, Kent 1644, Warwickshire 983, and Hants 705. We note that the Province of Monmouthshire has only 76 votes, Cambridgeshire 27, Herefordshire 23—which surely is not, and cannot be right. We trust that the publication of these figures will stir up those provinces as well as Nottinghamshire, which has only 98 votes to come "to the fore" in 1880 for the Boys' School. Our correspondent has properly called attention to the splendid position of West Yorkshire, which is, indeed, a fact to remember and be proud of. West Yorkshire has had, however, this advantage, that it inaugurated the movement about 1860, that it has been at work ever since, quietly and unostentatiously, and that it has the peculiar privilege of possessing an admirable Charity Committee—warm-hearted, zealous brethren; and has been presided over by sagacious and large-hearted rulers, while it has been aided by most efficient officers. But, looking back to-day, we are pleased to think and to remember how great endings often come from small beginnings here, and that of those kindly and genial brethren who once set to work in good earnest for the great Charities of our Order in the good old Province of West Yorkshire, if many have, alas, passed away, if some have left us, many yet survive to realize pleasantly what Masonic union, liberality, and perseverance can do in a good cause, nay, in the best of causes—Masonic Charity. We thank our Bro. Past Master for his most valuable statistics, and trust that he may contrive to favour the Freemason with figures which speak to us all more forcibly than eloquent speeches or glibly uttered words.

MASONRY REDIVIVA.

At length in our "great metropolis" Freemasonry is assuming its "normal form," and sending out its "summonses," and putting on its ornate appearance. Our lodges are reassembling after our "long vacation," and idlers and workers, bees and drones; the supporters, like Bro. Stevens, of unity of ritual, and the adepts of the "knife and fork" Degree, are equally obeying the pleasant but stern appeal of indefatigable Secretaries and watchful W.M.'s. The Masonic season for 1880 has now fairly begun for London, and a few considerations seem to "crop up" inevitably, which press upon our own mind, and which we deem it well to submit to the notice and consideration of our readers and co-labourers in our metropolitan lodges. The position of Freemasonry in London is both abnormal and special. Owing to the fact of the late hours in London, and also that the great majority of our Order are devoted to professional pursuits of one kind or another, all our London lodges, without any exception, we believe, to use a familiar expression, are "dinner lodges," that is to say, the "refreshment" which follows "labour" is a bona fide dinner, the usual and necessary dinner of each day when the business occupations of the day are ended. In the provinces, as a general rule, the lodges are what we term, "supper lodges," that is to say, the time of dining being earlier among men of business in our large towns, the lodge when it passes from work to sociality does not go to dinner, as in London, but to supper. Hence the two systems are entirely distinct and different. In the provinces, the subscriptions being low, nothing is appropriated to the expenses of the "social circle," whereas in London, the subscriptions being high (comparatively speaking), provision is made for the dinners as laid down by the bye-laws. We do not here profess or seek to profess any opinion whatever on the relative merits or value of either system. Both have their advocates, for both much may be advanced, but we think it fair to say this much, that we doubt if the provincial system is workable in London. It is pleasant to realize, notwithstanding the "drain" upon their resources, how much the metropolitan lodges and brethren have done for the Charities, and it is well for us to bear in mind to-day, amid the enlarged and happy flow of provincial support to our metropolitan Institutions, that the time was not very far distant, when they were mainly supported by the London lodges and brethren. We are then anxious to impress upon our good brethren of the metropolis, at the commencement of another Masonic season, two points—economy and self-denial. Many of the lodges are largely indebted (often unavoidably so we know) to their Treasurers. Let them curtail their expenses in 1880. Each lodge, in our opinion, should have votes, more or less, for all our Charities, and it would be a worthy and Masonic exercise of self-denial if in any case when the lodge or brethren are deficient in their support of the Charities, that a dinner should be suppressed in the coming season, and the proceeds, or a portion, should be devoted to charity. At the same time we say this, we are not insensible to the fact that we are treating a very difficult subject, and treading on very dangerous ground, in the opinion of some, whether friendly or hostile to us, and we, therefore, beg to conclude our remarks with the assurance, (which we trust is hardly needed), that in all we venture to suggest or propose, we are only actuated by sincere regard to the London Lodges and brethren, and warm interest in the principles and progress of Freemasonry. We cannot conclude this article without drawing attention to the notice of Bro. Carter, in Lion and Lamb Lodge, No. 192, reported in last Freemason, to set apart 10 per cent. of the entire receipts for the lodge Charity Fund. This is, undoubtedly, a step in the right direction, and so tallies with the remarks we have made above, and so commends itself to our minds, that we think it well to direct special attention to it. We trust that this healthy proposal will be adopted by the members of that old and distinguished lodge.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

We see that a motion will be made to-day, (Saturday), by our excellent and esteemed Bro. Colonel Creaton, Grand Treasurer, to purchase Lyncombe House and grounds, adjoining the Girls' School, for the sum of £6500. We are very glad to hear of this proposal, as it will tend, if it be carried, greatly to the advantage of the Girls' School in many ways. For one thing must be borne in mind. The Girls' School has a permanent and "local habitation and name" than which it would be difficult to find a more convenient or healthy one, and all propositions are therefore to be supported "de bene esse," as the lawyers put it, which tend to protect the Girls' School from building speculations, and render it master of its position, and free and open on all sides. We feel sure that the subscribers will heartily thank Bro. Colonel Creaton, considering especially the financial position of the Schools, for thus taking the initiative, seasonably and reasonably, to extend the area of the School grounds, and to increase thereby the striking advantages, arising from its position and arrangements, of a great Institution, one of which the entire Order may feel justly proud.

RESIGNATION OF THE GRAND SECRETARY.

It is with the sincerest regret we have to announce the imminent retirement from office of our worthy and Worshipful Bro. John Hervey, for many years past Grand Secretary of the United Grand Lodge of England, and in this regret we feel assured that every one of our readers, and, indeed, every one of the Masonic brotherhood in England and its Colonies and Dependencies, will join most heartily. What intensifies this regret is the knowledge that Bro. Hervey's resignation has been induced by his failing health, which, for the last few months, has prevented him from giving that scrupulously conscientious attention to the important functions of that high office. It is no exaggeration on our part to say that Bro. Hervey, during the term of his official career, has endeared himself to every English Mason by his marked kindness and courtesy to all who have had occasion to transact any business, even of the slightest import; while it will be extremely difficult to find one to replace him who shall possess a larger or more varied experience, and a deeper knowledge of the arcana of Masonic law and custom, Bro. Hervey, in fact, may have had some equals in the world of Masonry, but unquestionably he has had no superior. That he will carry with him into his comparative retirement the respect and affectionate regard of all his fellow Masons goes without saying, and equally so that every one will unite most cordially with us in hoping that he may yet be spared for many years, not only to the more immediate circle of his relatives and friends, but also that more extended circle of Masonic friends and acquaintances who have known and admired him as one of our brightest lights, and in knowing and admiring him as such have also loved and respected him so dearly.

THE PROVINCES AND THE CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

With reference to the statistics sent by me, and published in your issues of the 8th and 15th inst., your article on "Facts and Figures" shows that you have so singularly misapprehended the scope and purpose of the tables that I fear my first letter could not have been sufficiently explicit, and must, therefore, beg a few lines to further explain, for the benefit of any who may have made a similar mistake.

You complain that my figures to the end of 1878 (not 1879, as you print it) "hardly cover the whole ground." Certainly they would not if your idea that 940 lodges subscribed to make up 8435 votes for the Girls' School was what I had intended to convey. But the number of lodges given are the total number of lodges in each province, as taken from this year's Calendar, and without any reference to the fact of their subscribing or not to the Charities. The votes comprise the whole of the life votes possessed by individual members, lodges, chapters, or other Masonic societies in each province, as taken from this year's official lists. The votes per lodge mean, therefore, the proportion which the life votes of the whole province bear to the number of lodges in the province; and I really cannot see, with all deference to your opinion, how this can fairly be called "a deceptive way of putting the average." As I stated in my first letter, annual subscribers are omitted, because they vary so much from year to year as to be wholly unreliable for the purposes of this return.

No doubt the figures will be altered next year, and every year, I trust; but as this year's lists will not be published until next spring how can that invalidate the completeness of the present returns?

With regard to errors, I have done my best to ensure accuracy, but "humanum est errare." I shall be quite ready to acknowledge any serious discrepancy if pointed out, but will those who wish to verify the tables please bear in mind what I have stated above as to the mode in which they are made up?

Yours fraternally,

A PAST MASTER.

"A GRUMBLE."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The experience of the writer of a letter headed as above, and which appeared in your last week's issue, is far from being an isolated one. In many respects it is similar to what I have passed through myself, and I found that it needs no little determination and research to satisfy the novice on the practical application of the principles Masonry instils.

But what a rich field of delightful surprise is in store for him who essays the task!

With regard to the Charitable Institutions of the Order, there is sadly too little known of them in the provinces, their aims, their working, and their achievements.

Let me advise "I.P.M. 877," and other brethren who need such information, and feel this doubt and uncertainty in all pertaining to the "Charities," to make the effort, and take a Stewardship at any or all of the festivals held in their aid during the forthcoming year, and not only so, but visit all three Institutions, when I promise them they will more than satisfy their most sanguine ideas of Masonic benevolence.

In furtherance of my own enlightenment, I visited all three establishments early in the present year, and made myself acquainted with all the facts relating to each; their origin, their progress, and their present position. As a result, I acted as Steward at each of the festivals this year and qualified as Life Governor of all the Charities. I felt constrained to something more—being deeply conscious of the dearth of information current among the brethren in all relating to this subject—I circulated my experiences in the form of a little pamphlet among the lodges of this neighbourhood, and the result has been apparent in many satisfactory shapes, one of which will be noticeable in the next publication of "Lists of Subscribers" on reference to the Province of Worcestershire.

If "I.P.M. 877" will write me, or any other brother similarly exercised in mind, or who may wish to take a Stewardship for 1880, and desires information to work upon, I will with pleasure send him my little book, so far as the few remaining copies I have will go, as well as give him any aid or advice in my power.

Pardon my intrusion on your space, but the subject, I know, will plead sufficiently.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

GEORGE TAYLOR,

P.M. and Treas. 377, 560, P.G.S.D. Worcestershire, Summerdyne, Kidderminster.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

By your favour I beg to be allowed to continue my lament. I still invoke the sacred name of Charity as the keynote of my dirge. I knew next to nothing concerning the Masonic Institutions until my installation; I knew very little afterwards, and am not profoundly wise on the subject even now. It happened that my lodge had certain votes—how many this record sayeth not, because the recorder does not happen to know. Here, Mr. Editor, let me cry peccavi. I ought, perhaps, to have worried the brethren into giving me information, but it would appear to be a somewhat ungracious return for the honour of being elected W.M. to make one's self generally unpleasant. A portion of the installation ceremony should consist in instructing the new W.M. in these all-important concerns, which appear to occupy quite a subordinate position in the estimation of Freemasons. I was called upon once or twice to vote; on the first occasion our deservedly respected Tyler came round with voting papers, and a list of applicants. I was requested to sign blank votes, and upon demurring was told it was the custom to send them in this manner to Bro. Someone for the use of his province, and that when we required votes here, they were returned in a lump sum, with interest. This was the kind of explanation with which I had to rest satisfied; it seemed rather an eccentric method to me—my voting was simply farcical under the circumstances; but it did not become me to raise an idle quibble, or impudently break through long precedent, and the votes were accordingly given. Since my former letter was written incidents have transpired tending further to enlighten me as to the imperfections of this part of our charitable schemes; and I stand utterly amazed that so rotten and unjust a system should so long have been tolerated among Masons. I find that all the injustice, all the impurities, all the iniquities which have for so long disgraced elections and charitable distributions among the profane are still practised in Freemasonry. Interest—not merit; might—not right, is the order of the day. The voting is a miserable farce; canvassing is allowed; pressure is brought to bear; faggot votes are bought, begged, or borrowed; bribery in various ways is practised; favouritism is here seen in its worst form. A list of candidates is printed, their circumstances made public, and their misery is freely exposed, but to no purpose—the appeal of distress is spurned in favour of that of interest. I have not the slightest hesitation in affirming, from recent personal observations in this respect, that under the present regime these institutions are not worthy of support; the system of election is so monstrously unjust and vicious, that it will entail a lasting disgrace upon the Craft if it is longer tolerated. Let it be distinctly understood, I base these vituperations exclusively upon the method of election; for reasons given, I am unable to penetrate deeper; but I have not forgotten an old adage, Ex pede Herculem. Why should not Freemasonry rise above all this? Why should we not insist upon a termination of this dreadful system of injustice? I appeal to my brethren; I appeal to the superior powers of Grand Lodge. Let us be just and equitable. Let us remove this stain. "Brotherly love, relief, and truth" appear really to mean—enmity, injustice, and falsehood; and the term

"brother," as used among Masons, is only an empty name. Funds are in hand, schools (I suppose) are built, but the system of election to benefices is so abominably corrupt and vicious, that our benevolent efforts are greatly frustrated. We talk a great deal about honour, morality, virtue, et hoc genus omne; we congratulate ourselves that we are not as other men are; and yet, alas, even our charitable actions will not bear the light of day. I know well the difficulty of coping with vested interests, but fear that obstacle much less than listless indifference on the part of Masons; being every Mason's business, no Mason will perform it. It behoves, however, every Freemason to bestir himself in the matter, and to insist that our house shall forthwith be set in order; which done, a glorious future awaits the Craft. Some weeks ago, I was conversing on this subject with our esteemed Bro. Dr. Hopkins, of Bath, he concurred with my views, and stated that most Masons were dissatisfied with the present condition of affairs, and that a crusade need only be initiated, pointing out a remedy, to effect a change. I regret our time did not allow a discussion of the subject, because he seemed to regard the execution of reform as almost impossible; but I believe the difficulty is not so insuperable as may be supposed; a remedy might surely be found.

I would suggest that canvassing be prohibited, and that it should invalidate an election if carried on. It should be required that each candidate be nominated by a brother or lodge possessing a vote or votes; and further recommended as worthy by the lodge to which the distressed brother belongs or belonged; the circumstances of the case should be rigorously investigated and vouched for by (say) six Masters or Past Masters of lodges with which the candidate is unconnected. A short précis should be given of these facts, as is at present done, and a declaration signed by the investigators sent to the Provincial Grand Lodge, which shall enquire further by Sub-Committee into the matter, and, if the case is fairly stated, shall endorse the report, or otherwise amend it if necessary. These applications should be scheduled in alphabetical order, and sent to each voter, allowing him a week or two for deliberation. To each voting paper should be appended the following declaration (or some such), to be signed in the presence of the Master of a lodge:—

And I solemnly declare upon my honour as a man, and my fidelity as a Mason, that I have not been influenced in this my vote by canvassing; by local or personal bias, prejudice, or consideration whatever; or by any unworthy motive; but I give this vote after having duly considered the list of applications, and weighed each claim, conscientiously believing the circumstances of the case, as represented, to be most worthy of sympathy and assistance.

It might also be questioned whether cumulative voting should not be discontinued; the necessity for its existence would depart with the disappearance of corrupt voting.

Thus each brother desirous of exercising benevolence would feel that whatever he might contribute to our Masonic Institutions would reach those for whom it was intended; this much, certainly, cannot truthfully be said at the present time.

I will endeavour to finish my observations in my next letter.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

I.P.M. 877.

UNIFORMITY OF WORKING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have carefully read the letters by Bro. Frances and Stevens on the question of "Uniformity of Work," and whilst feeling anxious to take part in the consideration of so important a subject, it is in many respects so beset with difficulties, from the esoteric character of the question, that to do justice to the matter in the pages of a journal is simply impossible, so I must forbear from doing my humble part in any way, for to explain would require me to say more than is desirable in print. That a uniformity in essentials is not only desirable but should be attainable, as much in this country as in the United States, and many of our Colonies and Dependencies, I firmly believe. That more will be attained is unlikely, but it will be time enough to talk about the minor differences existing between the various London workings when the provinces are in harmony generally with the chief lodges of instruction in London, so far as essentials are concerned.

In many provincial lodges at the present time the members of the chief London lodges of instruction would be like "fish out of water," and "vice versa."

As to the "landmarks," who knows for certain what they are, and especially when some of the generally accepted landmarks, as theories, differ so much practically as to be scarcely recognisable? For the provinces, at least, I advocate the appointment of Provincial Grand Lecturers—say the Prov. Grand Registrars—whose duty it shall be to visit each lodge in their provinces once a year, the travelling expenses to be paid out of the general funds, and who shall seek to promote that uniformity in essentials which is so desirable.

W. J. HUGHAN.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The present discussion of this question gives me a fitting opportunity for bringing to the notice of the authorities, through the medium of your highly-valued journal, two points upon which, I venture to think, some action is imperative, if one of the main principles of Masonry as a cosmopolitan society is not to be practically coded. I refer to the welcome which every brother, come he from whence he may, is entitled to demand from a lodge he may desire to attend when away from home. There are two points upon which, as I before said, an authoritative ruling should be given affecting this principle, viz.:—

1. Have English lodges any right to refuse admission to a lodge to a strange brother who, although perfectly willing and able to impart what he received at his initiation, passing, and raising, cannot or (on principle) will not answer certain preliminary catch-questions, which it is customary, I understand, in England to administer to the applicant for admission?

I have it on the best authority that I have rightly stated what is, or has been, actually done. Indeed, on one occasion, the esteemed Grand Tyler of the G.L. of Scotland—who, I suppose, knows more of the working of Masonry than the bulk of London Masons—was actually refused admittance into a London lodge because he declined to submit himself to a catechism for which there is no warrant, until the officers of the lodge thought better of it. I contend that no stranger should be treated in this way, and the sooner the custom is authoritatively forbidden the better.

2. I am also given to understand that the E.A.S. in England differs materially from that imparted in Scotland. I know not whether the same anomaly exists with the other Degrees, or under other Constitutions, but I venture to think that, whatever the opinion of the Craft may be as to uniformity in the inner working of a lodge, none will deny that in this particular it is essential that uniformity should be aimed at. This could easily be accomplished, I imagine, by consultation between the Grand Lodges of the world.

I only heard of this latter want of uniformity accidentally a few days ago, and I know not how many other stumbling-blocks may lie in my path when I return to London and seek to work my way into a lodge there.

Yours fraternally,

SWEDENBORGIAN RITE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have great pleasure in informing the Craft, through the medium of your wide-spread paper, that a warrant has been issued by the Supreme Grand Master for the establishment of a lodge of instruction in the Swedenborgian Rite, to be called the "Pythagorean Lodge and Temple for the Instruction of Enlightened, Sublime, and Perfect Freemasons." The extreme length of the ritual of the Three Degrees (1st., 2nd., and 3rd.) of the Swedenborgian Rite renders an attentive study of it of the greatest importance to all who desire proficiency in the rite. It is of course needless to add that this lodge of instruction has no power to confer the Three Degrees of which the rite consists, but the fact that a lodge of instruction has been thought necessary at all is good evidence of the increasing interest felt in the important ceremonial of the Three Degrees of the Swedenborgian Rite—a rite which is loyally attached to Ancient Craft Masonry as established at the Union in 1813, and is friendly with all other systems of Masonry recognising the cardinal principles of the existence of God and the immortality of the soul.

Brethren who have taken the Degrees of the Swedenborgian Rite, and others (Master Masons) interested in the same, will always receive fraternal and cordial explanation on applying to, dear Sir and Brother, yours truly and fraternally,

KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE,

Supreme Grand Secretary, Swedenborgian Rite, Flint-villas, Hounslow, 17th November, 1879.

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Our Grand Lodges just now are exercised over the quarrel between Scotland and Quebec. Will you kindly insert the deliverance of our Past Grand Master Johnson on this subject. We, in Kentucky, are agreed that there are two sides to this question, and while we are far from justifying the course of the Scotch brethren in forming a Provincial Grand Lodge in Quebec, which seems a sort of defiance of public opinion in the premises, yet the course pursued at Quebec was oppressive, and it seemed necessary for the Edinburgh people to protect her protégé. I am entirely in accord with Bro. Johnson in the following:—

"Henderson, Ky., September 15th, 1879.

"To the M.W. Grand Lodge F. and A.M. of Kentucky: "The undersigned, your accredited representative of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, near the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, being desirous of strengthening the tie of amity that has ever existed between that venerable organisation and our own, since our establishment as a Grand Lodge, begs leave to lay before you the difficulty that has arisen between the Grand Lodge of Scotland and that of Quebec.

"When the Grand Lodge of Canada was formed, in 1854 (one of our veteran Kentucky Masons, still living, having borne an honoured part therein), it was agreed that the Scotch and English lodges, working then, might, in their own option, retain their connection with their mother countries. Several Scotch lodges did so, and have continued so until this day.

"Any one who has seen the tie which binds a subject of the British Government to his native land, will see the reason of this. At least two lodges near Montreal never united with the Grand Lodge of Canada, and, knowing this, the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, in 1855, recognised the Grand Lodge of Canada, and began the long career of brotherly offices which have subsisted to this day, and may they be perpetuated.

"A few years since the lodges in what was formerly Canada East separated from the Grand Lodge of Canada and formed the Grand Lodge of Quebec. This movement was also recognised by our Grand Lodge and the new sister welcomed to the family, but with the proviso that the same fraternal privilege be accorded the Scotch lodges as before.

"Recently, I regret to learn, the Grand Lodge of Quebec has undertaken to change this, and declares the lodges thus established clandestine. As a necessity of the case, the mother Grand Lodge stands by her offspring, forms them into a Provincial Grand Lodge, and appoints a Provincial Grand Master. Likewise (we learn this with regret), she proposes to strengthen the existing lodges by forming new ones.

"The Grand Lodge of Illinois, hastily and unkindly, I think, comes out under the hand of a most intelligent Grand Master, and declares non-intercourse. She pronounces in effect that for this act the old Grand Lodge of Scotland, large in membership, bright in literature, earnest in good works, and controlling five hundred lodges, dispersed through every civilised country, is a clandestine, irregular organisation, to be treated as the Coloured Lodges, or the Pseudo-Hamburg Lodges, and as all the spawn of irregular Masonry that infest our mountain districts.

"On behalf of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, which I have the honour to represent near your Grand Lodge, and on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, over which I had the distinguished honour to preside for twelve months, I protest against this hasty and unkind action, and ask that the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, with such other American Grand Lodges as may consent to it, offer our mediation between these two contending bodies—the Grand Lodge of Scotland and of Quebec—that the difficulty may be settled upon principles of peace and harmony, and at the same time that we interpose, in kindly respect, between the Grand Lodges of Minnesota and Dakota and the Grand Lodges of Kansas and Indian Territory, where the most serious aggressions, tending to non-intercourse, are reported. All of which is submitted with the desire to strengthen the fraternal ties all over the globe and prevent the breaking of even one link.

"Fraternally,

"CAMPBELL H. JOHNSON,

"Past Grand Master,

"And Representative of the M.W. Grand Lodge of Scotland near the M.W. Grand Lodge of Kentucky."

At the sessions of our Grand Lodge, closed on the 24th inst., the following proposition of my own was unanimously adopted:—

"Resolved that the Grand Lodge of Kentucky will cordially unite with other Grand Lodges, home and foreign, in an effort to restore amicable relations between the Grand Lodges of Kansas and Indian Territory, Missouri and Dakota, Scotland and Quebec; and that we recommend to the contending parties the law of exclusive jurisdiction, so long established among American Grand Lodges and with such harmonious results. This Grand Lodge peremptorily declares that she will never submit to have her own territory invaded by other Masonic powers, and she cannot justify the course of any who lose sight of the Golden Rule."

I send you a copy of my report on foreign correspondence made last week to the Grand Lodge of Kentucky; also the address of our Grand Master, the Hon. Thomas S. Pettit, from which you will make your own gleanings.

Our Grand Lodge Officers for 1870-80 are these:—

Bro. Hon. Jacob Rice...	...	G.M.
" W. La Rue Thomas	...	D.G.M.
" W. H. Millett	...	S.G.W.
" G. D. Buckner	...	J.G.W.
" John H. Leathers	...	G. Treas.
" Hiram Bassett	...	G. Sec.
" H. B. Grant	...	A.G. Sec.

La Grange, Kentucky, 30th Oct.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Let me confirm Bro. "H. L.'s" letter as to the improved appearance and convenient arrangement of the Freemason, and to call special attention to the extremely interesting contents of this year's "Cosmopolitan Calendar."

I am, yours fraternally,

A P.M. IN THE COUNTRY.

AN OLDER FREEMASON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to the letter respecting W. Bro. Stephen Austin, Hertford Lodge, No. 403 (November the 8th), having completed his fiftieth year in Freemasonry, and to the one of P.M. No. 1 (November the 15th), stating that W. Bro. Richard Hervé Giraud had been initiated on the 15th May, 1824, I have to call your attention to "an older Freemason" than either of them, he being the oldest Freemason in West York, and probably the oldest in England. If he be not so, I shall be glad to hear from any of your numerous correspondents of an older example.

Bro. John Greenwood, of Lodges 308 and 408, was initiated on the 4th January, 1823, in Lodge Prince George, 308. Was exalted in R.A. Chapter Affability, 308, in April, 1823, was W.M. in 1824, Z. in 1826. He is now Tyler for six lodges, three chapters, two preceptories, and Rose Croix, also Equerry of Provincial Grand Preceptory of West Yorks. He will be seventy-nine years old on the 1st January, 1880, and considering his age, is remarkably active, and in full possession, of all his faculties. He is a perfect marvel of Masonic lore and intelligence, and is a striking example of his favourite song "We shall never the like again."

I scarcely need to say that he is held in the greatest respect, esteem, and veneration by all the brethren of the province.

Yours fraternally.

P.M. AND P.Z.

Halifax, 17th Nov., 1870.

P.S. He has been a continuous subscriber from his initiation.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WILTSHIRE.

The Prov. Grand Lodge of Wiltshire was held on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at Hill's Hall, Trowbridge, which had been handsomely and tastefully adapted for the occasion by the receiving lodge, the Lodge of Concord, No. 632, Trowbridge.

The P.G.M., Lord Methuen, was unfortunately prevented by indisposition from being present. In his absence the V.W. the D.P.G.M., Bro. Gabriel Goldney, M.P., presided over the meeting, and was supported by Bro. Lord Harry Thynne, P.G.W. Eng. and P.G. Supt. (R.A.) Wilts, acting as D.P.G.M., and a large number of officers and brethren of the province, amongst whom were Bros. John Toomer, P.S.G.W.; General Doherty, P.J.G.W.; Rev. H. F. Crockett, P.G.C.; F. Goldney, P.G.T.; H. C. Tombs, P.G.D. Eng., P.G. Sec.; William Nott, P.G.R.; Walter H. Long, P.S.G.D.; Robert Stokes, P.P.S.G.W.; John Chandler, P.P.S.G.W. and P.G.D.C.; T. P. Fletcher, Colonel Randle Ford, E. T. Pavne, P.G.D. Eng. and P.P.G.W.; J. L. Whalley, P.P.J.G.D.; T. P. Saunders, P.P.J.G.D.; A. R. Browne, W.M. 632; R. de M. Lawson, P.P.S.G.W.; A. Tucker, W.M. 586; T. H. Chandler, P.P.S.G.W.; and amongst the visitors were Capt. Homfray, P.A.G.D.C. and D.P.G.M. Monmouth; W. Pickford, P.G. Tr. Mon.; —Gratte, P.S.G.W. Mon.; Rev. J. A. Lloyd, P.P.G.C. Oxon; R. N. Howard, P.G. Sec. Dorset; A. Parry, P.P.G. S.B. Dorset; R. M. Worlock, P.G. Sec. Bristol, and others.

P.G. Lodge having been opened, the acting P.G.M., after having expressed his regret at the absence of Lord Methuen, requested the P.G. Sec., Bro. Henry C. Tombs, to call the roll of the lodges in the province, when they were found to be duly represented.

The minutes of the last P.G. Lodge were confirmed, and the Treasurer's accounts, which had been duly audited, were afterwards read and passed.

The P.G. Sec. read the minutes of a meeting of the Charity Committee, held immediately before the P.G. Lodge meeting, from which it appeared that two grants were recommended, one to the widow of a rev. brother of Lodge 626, and the other to a very old member of the Lodge 632, who, by reason of the commercial depression, had failed in his business as a manufacturer, and been reduced to great distress. These grants and the minutes generally were confirmed.

The P.G. Registrar, Bro. W. Nott, P.P.J.G.W., read his annual report. From this it appears that the number of members of lodges in the province was steadily increasing, standing now at 455, which was an increase of 81, or nearly 22 per cent., in three years. The report called attention to the pleasing fact that the general working expenses, including rent, Tylers, refreshments, &c., were reduced from 175. 0d. to 155. per member. The average amount contributed to charity was at the rate of 6s. per member, ranging from nothing in one lodge to 13s. 8d. in another, though it was to be remembered that some of the young lodges had not cleared off their original expenses, and had not, therefore, the ability to devote so large a portion of their funds to charitable purposes as the older lodges. The Registrar's report also called attention to the large amount of arrears outstanding in one or two of the lodges, in one case as much as half-a-year's actual receipts, and to show that there was no necessity for this, he instanced two of the lodges where there had not been for years past a single penny of arrear when their accounts were closed. The report also brought before the P.G.L. a great laxity on the part of a few of the lodge Secretaries in sending in the necessary returns.

Bro. Tombs, P.G. Sec., in proposing the adoption of the report, said he was very sorry to find that his mother lodge was one of the greatest offenders as regards the Registrar's concluding remarks, and trusted that means would be taken to effect an improvement, as unless the returns were delivered in good time it was impossible for the Provincial Grand Officers properly to fulfil their duty.

The acting P.G.M., in putting the motion to the meeting, said that the Registrar had very delicately refrained from indicating the lodges complained of, but that should the same fault exist next year, they must not expect a similar consideration, for P.G.L. would have to follow the example of the House of Commons, and name the offenders.

The report was adopted.

Bro. Nott, who is also Secretary to the P.G. Charity Organisation Committee, then read the usual annual report of the proceedings of that Committee, showing that the province had been successful in carrying two candidates for the Girls' School, one at the April and another at the October election, although at the latter election the province had also aided and secured the election of a boy candidate, whose last chance it was. This was a case supported by the provinces of Monmouthshire and Bristol, with both of which provinces Wiltshire is working in the most friendly union. To attain these results the votes of the province had been considerably pledged in advance, but the Committee felt that the brethren of the province would enable it to redeem its pledge by sending in every possible vote, more especially when it was considered that the children in question through the engagements thus made were enjoying the benefits of the School some time before they otherwise could have done so.

The report stated that the Committee had received from the provinces during the year 1176 votes for the various Institutions, shewing a steady increase year by year, and it mentioned the gratifying fact that the average number of votes per lodge possessed by the Wiltshire lodges was only exceeded in eight of the forty-three provinces of England and Wales.

The report was adopted.

Bro. F. H. Goldney, P.G. Treas., brought before the lodge a subject which had appeared on the agenda paper, in relation to the establishment of a local Benevolent Fund for the province. He referred to the large sums taken up for the various charities from time to time by different brethren from this province (as evidenced in the fact they had just heard in the report read by Bro. Nott, that the Wiltshire votes for the year numbered 1176), to the large buildings and great revenues of the Schools, and the large number of scholars educated there. He did not propose to take any decided steps at present and without full consideration, but he thought the time had come when we ought to consider what funds might be likely to be available for local purposes, whether if a distinct fund were established there would be brethren who would like to subscribe to it, whether legacies might not be bequeathed to it, and whether that fund might not be applied in somewhat a different manner to that in which the funds of the existing great Masonic Charities are applied. He instanced, in addition to grants such as those that day made in aid of present distress, the payment of fees at local schools, the granting scholarships, and other ways which would ensure good results at a much less cost than the present large expense of the great Masonic Schools, an expense by many considered to be somewhat excessive. He thought that after meeting such local claims they would still be able to aid the funds of the existing Charities. He proposed the appointment of a committee, consisting of the P.G. Treas., Registrar, and Secretary, and of one brother from each lodge to be elected by the members thereof, such committee to consider the whole subject and report thereon to the next meeting of P.G. Lodge.

Bro. Nott, P.G. Reg., seconded the proposition, remarking that as it was merely for the appointment of a committee to consider the question he did not purpose going fully into the subject. He might mention, however, that he had studied the working of local educational benevolent institutions in other provinces, and in every case that had come under his notice he had found that these institutions were very successful, and he saw no reason to doubt that some such institution as that alluded to would succeed in Wiltshire.

Bro. Tombs, P.G. Sec., drew attention to the fact that no less a sum than £1050 was required to purchase a perpetual presentation to one of the Schools. Now this ought in interest alone to produce between £40 and £50 without touching the capital, and it seemed to him that it was a matter for consideration whether if a province had any large sum to dispose of it might not be employed more advantageously.

Bro. Lord Harry Thynne called attention to the danger of doing anything that would break up the strong associations they had with the existing Charities. They had, no doubt, power to devote their funds as they liked, and to educate children elsewhere if they liked, but he was afraid that if such a fund as that alluded to were established it might have the effect of alienating the sympathies of the brethren from the existing Schools and Benevolent Institution and of prejudicially affecting them. Wiltshire had been most successful in its support of, and connection with, these Charities, and also at the elections, and our position in that respect he did not want to see weakened.

Bro. Walter Long supported the appointment of the Committee. It did not affect their position. The Committee was merely to consider and report to the next Prov. G. Lodge, and it would be for that Prov. G. Lodge then to act as it might think fit.

The acting P.G.M., Bro. Goldney, in putting the proposition to the meeting, said that, no doubt, the administration of the existing Charities was a subject of great interest. Was the present mode of spending their funds the best one? Undoubtedly, the expenses of the Masonic Schools were comparatively higher than those of others of which he had some knowledge, and named Christ's Hospital and the Sons of the Clergy Schools, but he thought that if unnecessarily high this fault could be remedied. He was strongly in favour of getting the feeling of the whole province on the subject of its charitable funds and how they should be applied.

The proposition (with a slight amendment proposed by Lord H. F. Thynne, and assented to) was then put to the meeting, and carried unanimously.

The acting P.G.M. then stated that he had a most pleasing duty to perform, and that was to invest with the Charity jewels, voted by the province, two brethren, who had each served the office of Steward to two of the Masonic Charities—namely, Bros. William Nott, P.P.J.G.W. and P.G. Reg., and Samuel Gauntlett, P.P.G.S. of Wks. In investing Bro. Nott, he mentioned how much the province generally was indebted to him for his work on behalf of the Charities, both as Secretary to the Charity Organisation Committee and also in his two Stewardships, in discharge of which he had taken up a larger aggregate sum than any other Steward had ever done for the province. In investing Bro. Gauntlett, he congratulated both him on the way in which he had always stuck to Masonry and the province on his services.

Bro. F. H. Goldney was unanimously elected Treasurer for the ensuing year.

The acting P.G.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest the P.G. Officers for the ensuing year as follows:—
Bro. F. H. Goldney, 626 ... Prov. G.S.W.
" Walter H. Long, 632 ... Prov. G.J.W.
" Rev. Alex. Headley, 626... ... Prov. G. Chap.
" F. H. Goldney, 626(re-appointed) Prov. G. Treas.

- " William Nott, 663 (re-appointed) Prov. G. Reg.
- " Henry C. Tombs, 355 (re-appointed) ... Prov. G. Sec.
- " Henry J. Birch, 1295 ... Prov. G.S.D.
- " Samuel Gauntlett, 632 ... Prov. G.J.D.
- " Alfred Browne, 632 ... Prov. G. S. of W.
- " John Chandler, 355 (re-appointed) Prov. G.D.C.
- " Chas. Gauntlett, 632 ... Prov. G.A.D.C.
- " Wm. Adye, 1271 ... Prov. G.S.B.
- " W. H. Briakworth, 626 ... Prov. G. Org.
- " H. E. Bishop, 632 ... Prov. G.P.
- " John Savory (re-appointed) ... Prov. G. Tyler.

Before closing the lodge, the acting P.G.M. again alluded to the absence of the P.G.M., Lord Methuen, such absence being enforced by his medical attendant, and said that his lordship very much regretted it, more especially after the demonstration of his feeling towards him at Swindon last year. His lordship wished to say how much—had he been able—he should have liked to come amongst the brethren that day and again thank them for their kind presentation on that occasion. In making the appointment of officers his lordship had thoroughly gone into the various qualifications. In appointing Bro. F. H. Goldney to the Senior Warden's chair, he had desired to some extent to acknowledge the obligation the province was under to that brother for his laborious undertaking in writing that history of Freemasonry in Wiltshire which he believed was now in the press, and he hoped would soon be in the hands of the brethren. His lordship thought that such services as this ought to be acknowledged, and he, the acting P.G.M., as Bro. F. H. Goldney's father, had great pleasure in carrying out his lordship's wishes.

After a cordial vote of thanks to the W.M. and brethren of Lodge 632 for their reception that day, the P.G.L. was closed.

The brethren afterwards dined together in another part of the same building, under the presidency of the D.P.G.M., Bro. Goldney.

After the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

To the toast of "The Grand Master, &c.," Lord H. Thynne, P.G.W. England, P.G.R.A. Supt. Wilts, responded, saying that although his engagements were so varied that he might almost say he was "Jack of all trades and Master of none," yet one of the things he was most proud of was that of being a brother Mason, and there was one thing that he should never forget he owed to his connection with Wiltshire, and that was his position in Grand Lodge.

Lord H. Thynne then went on to propose "The Health of the V.W. D.P.G.M., Bro. Goldney," whom he had had the pleasure of knowing in lodge and in private life for very many years, and in either capacity he had always found that all those who knew him were proud of his acquaintance. Feeling that he was one of those to whom every honour that Masonic custom could give was due, he called upon them to drink his health. The toast was most enthusiastically received.

Bro. Goldney, D.P.G.M., in returning thanks, said he felt that he had not performed the duties of his office as regards visiting the various lodges in such a way as he could have wished, owing to his public engagements, but he hoped to see the private lodges oftener in future. Masonry had many privileges, one very prominent one being its claim to universal brotherhood in its setting down steps to enable us to ascend towards the perfection of high sentiment and good feeling, virtues which ought to enter more than they did into our social life. Lord H. F. Thynne in Provincial Grand Lodge that morning had alluded to the Masonic Institutions in a way as to which there might be a slight difference of opinion, but he believed we all met in lodge in the fullness of that charity which our Great Saviour preached, that feeling in which Masonry existed, and which Masonry enabled them to express. Masonry was a source of much gratification in the interest it promoted between the members of various provinces, but it had its origin in graver things. King Solomon was the greatest monarch in those days, and his principal greatness lay in the fact that he was able to break away from the bonds of priestly knowledge, and set up a secular knowledge under the name of wisdom. That wisdom was believed to have been the foundation of Masonry, and that knowledge ought to be found in our lodges. But had Masonry done all it ought to have done in carrying out the higher wisdom in which it was founded was a question worthy of consideration. Now education had been brought home to every one by the State, it became to his mind a subject of serious moment, and one deserving the best attention of Masons, whether from the large funds at their disposal they might not do more to foster a higher education, and advance the cause of science to a greater extent than they had done, and thus endeavour to walk in the ways of the great originator of our Order. Funds were often wasted by distribution in small sums, without producing any great result, whereas, added together, they might perhaps enable us to give a helping hand to enable some one individual—perhaps in a very humble position, but who only wanted help—to rise to a foremost place in the higher branches of knowledge. Some of our greatest men, some of those who had done most for England's greatness, had begun life in very lowly circumstances; they had struggled, they had persevered through difficulties, and had at last attained to prominence and eminence alike, creditable to their nation and to themselves. Might we not have the power of helping such as these in their early struggles? Now if a boy at school shows great talent, and we could give him an exhibition of £60 or £70 a year for two or three years, what a chance it would give him, for not only his own advantage, but of elevating Masonry in the view of the whole world by showing that it is a body which by its noble acts fostered science, and thereby did good service to the country; for science, he believed, was at the bottom of our success as a nation. If the Committee, that day appointed, could amongst other things shew them the way to devoting some of their funds in the direction indicated, he believed it would be well received and be of great benefit. We should thus be building bridges which would unite one class of the community with the other, and should be doing our best to perpetuate the wisdom of the great founder of our Order.

The D.P.G.M. then proposed "The Health of the R.W. the P.G.M., Lord Methuen."

Bro. E. T. Payne, P.G.D. England, P.S.G.W. Wilts, proposed "The Health of the W. Bro. Lord H. F. Thynne, P.G.W. England, and P.G.R.A. Supt. Wilts," to which his Lordship briefly responded.

Bro. Gen. Doherty, P.S.G.W. Wilts, gave "The Health of the other Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present," and this was responded to by Bro. F. H. Goldney, P.S. G.W., and Bro. Walter Long, P.J.G.W.

Bro. W. Long then proposed "The Visiting Brethren," many of whom of distinguished eminence he was pleased to see amongst them. He coupled with that toast the names of the V.W. Bros. Capt. Homfray, D.P.G.M. Monmouth; Rev. J. A. Lloyd, P.G.C. Oxon; R. N. Howard, P.G. Sec. Dorset; and R. W. Worlock, P.G. Sec. Bristol.

Capt. Homfray, in replying, said it gave him great pleasure to come there to thank them and their Charity Committee on behalf of the Provinces of Monmouth and Bristol for the valuable aid given to their candidate at the last election, which secured her success. He was glad to testify, from personal experience in London at the elections for the Charities, to the excellent way in which those elections were worked on behalf of his province by the Secretary to the Committee, his excellent Bro. William Nott, who by his exact calculations managed to secure the success of their candidates without any waste of votes. He felt that so long as the provinces in the neighbourhood united together in the way they were now doing they would be enabled to secure their fair share of the benefits of the Charities. At the last election they had been enabled to aid a London candidate, thereby shewing that the provinces had no ill feeling toward the metropolis and establishing a claim for reciprocity at some future time. He hoped that nothing would be done to weaken our three noble Institutions, and he felt sure that if there were any well founded complaints against them it was only necessary that representation should be made to Grand Lodge to ensure a reform.

Bro. Howard and Bro. Worlock also returned thanks, the latter expressing the gratitude of the Province of Bristol to the Wiltshire Charity Organisation Committee.

Bro. the Rev. A. Headley, P.G.C., proposed the toast of "The Masonic Charities," dilating warmly on the excellences and advantages thereof, and stating that as Masons they were bound to respond to the constant cry of "Give! give!" which must proceed from those Institutions so long as the claims upon them were so much greater than they could meet, as at present.

Bro. William Nott, in responding, did so with very great pleasure, and was glad of the opportunity of expressing his hope that nothing he had done with reference to a local Benevolent Fund would in any way interfere with these grand Charities. Did he think so, he would never for a moment support such a scheme, but he believed that charity begun and developed at home would expand and widen in such a way as to embrace within its scope aid to these greater Institutions from quarters whence none was at present forthcoming. He thanked them on behalf of the Charities, and also for the support afforded him in his capacity as Steward for two of them, by which he was enabled to take up an aggregate sum of £500.

Bro. S. Gauntlett also thanked the brethren on behalf of the Charities and for the support accorded to him as Steward.

The D.P.G.M. proposed "The Health of the P.G. Sec., Bro. Henry C. Tombs," which was most warmly received.

Bro. Tombs, in responding, said that it was a satisfaction to him that he occupied for the last eleven or twelve years the position of P.G. Sec., for it was an honourable one. He cheerfully performed the duties of the office, chiefly because he knew that Masonry was founded on high and religious principles. He knew of no other which recognises as Masonry recognises the volume of the Sacred Law, the Book which should direct all our labours and ever be borne in mind, and so tend to elevate our Order, and cause the outside world to acknowledge that there is something in our meetings and services which tends to make us better men and citizens. This idea should endear us to Freemasonry and make us strive to maintain its character.

The toast of "The Wiltshire Lodges" and the Tyler's toast brought a most successful meeting to a close.

THE "LITTLE" MEMORIAL FUND.

A meeting of the Committee of the above Fund was held on Friday, the 14th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, the brethren present being: Bros. George Kenning (Chairman), the Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, H. C. Levander, Herbert Dicketts, Thomas Cubitt, and William Dodd (Secretary). The Secretary stated that the total amount received was £108 5s., of which £37 9s. had been paid for the memorial stone, an illustration of which will appear in the December number of "The Masonic Magazine." Promised subscriptions, amounting to £36 15s., were still unpaid; those, when received, would leave £207 11s. at the disposal of the Committee.

Bro. the Rev. Dr. Brette proposed, and Bro. Herbert Dicketts seconded the motion, "That one half of the balance left after paying for the marble column over the late Bro. R. Wentworth Little's grave at the Camberwell Cemetery be paid to his widow, and that the other half be handed over to the trustees of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls for investment, the interest thereon to be devoted annually to a prize to be denominated 'The Wentworth Little Memorial Prize.'"

Bro. Thomas Cubitt proposed that the final meeting of the subscribers should be held at Freemasons' Hall, on Friday, Dec. 5th, at five p.m. This having been seconded by Bro. Dr. Brette and carried, the Secretary was requested to send a summons to each subscriber. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE EAST SURREY LODGE OF CONCORD.

The annual banquet of the lodge of instruction under the warrant of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, No. 463, Croydon—usually held at Bro. J. Goodman's, the Fox and Hounds Inn—was held at the Crown Hotel, on Tuesday evening, to meet the convenience of Bro. Goodman. This lodge was established on the 18th June, 1859, and was removed to Bro. Clemishaw's, the Railway Hotel, Addiscombe-road, on the 2nd January, 1862, and on the 6th March, 1873, it was removed to its present house, the Fox and Hounds. Messrs. Green, of the Crown, provided a very excellent repast, the menu comprising all the delicacies of the season, liberally supplied and exceedingly well served.

The chair was occupied by Bro. J. Close, W.M., P.M., P.P.G.D.C. Surrey; the vice-chairs by Bro. B. H. Ridge, S.W., J.W. 1347, J.D. 463; Bro. J. S. Streeter, S.W., J.W. 463; and Bro. H. J. Saxelby, I.G. 463.

The visitors comprised Bro. R. W. Sprague, P.M. 190, 91, Grand Steward; the following brethren of Panmure Lodge, 720:—Bros. Sheadd, W.M.; E. Mitchell, S.W.; C. Richardson, W.S.; C. Blogg, D.C.; and Ash; Bros. C. Sawyer, P.M. 1619; L. A. Mesrouze, S.W., W.M. elect 1238; W. W. Pritchett, P.P.G. Org. Helts; S. W. Lambert, W.M. 1556; brethren of Old England Lodge, 1790: Bros. Buckworth, S.W.; H. Harland, J.W.; W. P. Robinson, Sec.; and J. M. Gillingham, brethren of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, 463; Bros. J. Close, W.M.; T. B. Dickins, P.M., P.P.G.R.; B. H. Ridge, J.D.; J. S. Streeter, J.W.; Herbert Saxelby, I.G.; G. T. Hall, Gillingham, sen., Platt, and other brethren.

Dessert having been placed on the table, the W.M. proposed in succession "The Queen and the Craft;" "The M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales;" "The Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," associated with the name of Bro. R. W. Sprague, P.M. 190, 91, G.S., who responded to the toast in a highly effective speech; "The Prov. Grand Master, Gen. Brownrigg, C.B., the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. the Rev. G. W. Arnold, and the rest of the Prov. Officers, Present and Past," associated with the name of Bro. Dickins, P.M., P.P.G.R., who suitably responded.

"The East Surrey Lodge of Concord" was proposed by Bro. Sheadd, and acknowledged by the Chairman; followed by "The Lodge of Instruction;" "The Hon. Preceptors, Bro. Ridge and Dep. Bro. Sheadd;" "The Treasurer and Secretary;" "The Dinner Committee;" "The Chairman and Vice-Chairman;" The Press and other toasts of a complimentary nature.

The incidental vocal harmony was capitally rendered by Bros. Pritchett, Ridge, Chumley, and other brethren, Bro. Pritchett officiating as accompanist in his usual artistic manner.

The arrangements were admirably carried out by a Committee consisting of Bros. J. Close, P.M.; Sheadd, W.M.; S. W. Lambert, W.M.; B. H. Ridge, J.D.; and Herbert Saxelby, I.G. (Hon. Sec.)

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS SAMUEL MORTLOCK.

We deeply regret to announce the death of Bro. Thos. Samuel Mortlock, under peculiarly distressing circumstances. Bro. Mortlock was attending the funeral of Bro. E. J. Page, P.M., Grand Stewards' Lodge, on Wednesday, at Norwood Cemetery. While in the chapel, as the clergyman was uttering the words, "In the midst of life we are in death," Bro. Mortlock fell from his seat, and expired in a few minutes. Our deceased brother, who was well-known in Masonry, and was deservedly respected everywhere, was a P.M. of No. 186; P.Z. No. 141 and 186; P.M. of the Thistle Mark No. 8; and a P.M. of the Temple Mark. He was a very hard worker in Freemasonry, and a liberal supporter of the Charities.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC POCKET BOOK FOR 1880.—A glance at this welcome annual will show in an instant the universality of Freemasonry, and prove the fact that lodges abound in the whole of the civilized world. The publisher, Mr. George Kenning, of 198, Fleet-street, claims for this pocket-book that it is a comprehensive Masonic book of reference, and the truth of this statement is shown in every page, for it would be hard indeed to suggest an improvement in a work which is at once a marvel of cheapness and utility. Armed with it the Mason can see the time and place at which every lodge in the world meets, and therefore—wherever he may be—he can ensure for himself an acquaintanceship with men who are bound to him by the fraternal brotherhood of the order. It contains a list of lodges with dates (ancient and modern), Chapters, K. T. Encampments, Conclaves, Grand Councils, names of the officers, and full particulars of every Masonic body throughout the globe. It is unnecessary to wish success to a work of this kind, for its own intrinsic merit is sure to command recognition at the hands of those for whom it is intended.—Clerkenwell Press, Nov. 19, 1879.

Masonic and General Tidings.

Bro. Lieut.-Col. Francis Burdett has been nominated as Sheriff for the county of Surrey.

The election meeting of the Westbourne Lodge, No. 733, was held on Thursday evening last at Lord's Hotel, Lord's Cricket Ground, St. John's Wood. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The presentation of prizes to the London Rifle Brigade takes place this (Saturday) afternoon at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, in the presence of the Hon. the Lord Mayor, Bro. Francis Truscott, and the Sheriffs, Bros. Woollaton, J.P., and Bayley, J.P. The presentation will take place at 5.15 p.m.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement takes place on Friday next at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, W.C., under the presidency of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Kensington, S.G.W.

The M.W. Pro Grand Master has, we are informed, been pleased to sanction the removal of the Clapham Lodge (No. 1818), from the Alexandra Hotel, Clapham Common, to the Grosvenor Hotel, Victoria Station, Pimlico, where spacious rooms have been placed at the disposal of its members. The first regular meeting of the lodge will be held on Monday next; the 24th inst., under the presidency of Bro. Louis Hirsch, W.M.

We are asked to state that the day of meeting of the London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction (No. 58), has been altered from Friday to Monday, at 6 o'clock.

The Annual Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will take place on Monday, the 9th February, 1880, instead of the 11th, as previously announced, the Grand Master's consent having been obtained for the alteration of the day to suit Bro. the Earl of Zetland, Prov. G.M. N. and E. Ridings, Yorkshire, who will preside.

The consecration of the Marlborough Chapter (No. 1399) of Royal Arch Masons is fixed for Friday next at one o'clock precisely. The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be performed in the lodge-room, Woodstock, by Comp. David Pryce Owen, P.Z. 998, the musical arrangements being under the direction of Comp. H. Plumridge, Mus. Bac., Oxon. The principals designate are Comps. T. B. Brown, M.E.Z.; James Long, H.; and Henry Williams, J.

The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland will be held on Monday, the 1st proximo, at 4 p.m., in the Freemasons' Hall, George-st., Edinburgh, for the election and installation of Grand Office-bearers, and also for the celebration, at 5 o'clock p.m., of the Festival of St. Andrew. Bro. D. Murray Lyon, the Grand Secretary, will be glad to have early applications for tickets from those intending to be present.

The annual meeting of the Grand Priory of the Order of the Temple, of the province of Cheshire, will be held at Macclesfield, on Wednesday, the 26th, at 4 p.m.

The half-yearly communication of the Grand Mark Lodge of England will be held at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, on Tuesday, the 2nd of December, at 5 p.m.

Bro. Lieut.-Col. S. W. Wilkinson, J.P., P.P.S.G.D., Cheshire, was elected Mayor of Stockport on the 10th inst., and received the hearty congratulations of his brethren in the lodge of St. John, No. 104, on his arrival in company with the ex-Mayor (Bro. Alderman J. L. Vaughan, J.P., P.M. 1030, E. Lanc.), at the regular lodge meeting held on the evening of the same day.

Six brethren in the Craft retire at the present election of the School Board, but all are nominated:—Bro. Sir John Bennett, W.S. Prior; E. N. Buxton, Rev. C. Danby Reade, J. Heald, and T. E. Miller. They do not belong to our party in the board, but we hope on their re-election they will "agree like brother and brother."

A splendid complimentary banquet was given to Bro. Alderman Clement Stretton on his retirement from the Mayoralty in the Masonic Hall, Leicester, on the 10th inst., under the presidency of the new Mayor, John Bennett, Esq., and attended by a large number of influential inhabitants of Leicester and neighbourhood.

It is in contemplation to present Bro. J. F. Newell, P.G.J.W., ex-Mayor of Bootle, with a handsome silver cradle in recognition of a certain "interesting event" which occurred during his year of office. Bro. Sewell has also been made a borough and county magistrate. On the 10th inst. Bro. J. P. McArthur was elected mayor of Bootle in room of Bro. Newell.

Among those present at the banquet of the Worshipful Company of Liners, held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Tuesday last, were Bros. Sir Charles Whetham, Sir Charles Bennett, R. Poorly, George Kenning, H. Parker, H. W. Dalwood, Bonnewell, Clarke, and others.

The Cosmoopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book for 1880 is now ready, price 2s., and may be obtained of any bookseller, or direct from the office, 198, Fleet-street, London.—[Adv't.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF ANTIQUITY (No. 2).—A meeting of this ancient lodge took place on Wednesday last, when Bro. Lassiter was passed to the Second Degree. A resolution of sympathy with Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, was carried unanimously. Much business was transacted, and the lodge, after one of its pleasant social reunions, separated at an early hour. Among those present were Bro. Hope, D.M., Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer, Sampson Pierce, P. F. Rae, Woodford, Barron, Batley, Barber Deacon, Pontifex, Jolliffe, Taggart, Batley, jun., Letchworth, and some visiting brethren.

CAMDEN LODGE (No. 704).—The above distinguished lodge held its bi-monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, the 18th inst., at the Bull and Gate Tavern, Kentish Town-road. The members present were Bro. Gray, W.M.; Pocklington, S.W.; Morrell Rivers, J.W.; Woolfe, J.D.; and P.M.'s Frost, Garrett, Young, Meddivay, and a numerous assemblage of the brethren. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. Fradelle, of 246. The principal event of the evening was the initiation of Mr. C. B. Hilliard (a Lewis), which was creditably performed by the W.M. The lodge business being completed the brethren adjourned to banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts being gone through, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Newly-Initiated Brother," and, in a few well-chosen sentences, congratulated Bro. Hilliard on his admission into Freemasonry. Bro. Hilliard made a most amusing reply, and was most heartily received by the lodge. Several excellent songs were given, and altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent. We cannot close this brief report without mentioning the very clever rendering of a recitation by Bro. Fradelle.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 17th inst., at the Balham Hotel, Balham, when there were present Bro. W. R. Sheadd, W.M.; E. Mitchell, S.W.; W. Foulsham, P.M., as J.W.; T. Poore, P.M., Sec.; W. Gunner, S.D.; G. Lambert, J.D.; C. A. Blogg, Org., D.C.; G. Mulley, I.G.; C. Richardson, Steward; W. Steedman, P.M.; Tyler; D. Trasher, P.M.; Lilley, Barton, Hall, Garcia, Cronk, Treves, Kerr, King, Plater, Ash, and Melhuish. Visitors: Bro. W. Foulsham, W.M. Old England Lodge, 1790; and P. Butler, P.M. Mayo Lodge, 1413. The lodge was opened, and the minutes read and confirmed. Letters of apology from several brethren and Past Masters were read. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Garcia and Cronk were examined for raising; entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Garcia and Cronk were raised separately as far as investment. The Traditional History was given by the W.M. in full, and exceedingly well done. The lodge was then closed down to the First Degree. The W.M. agreed to represent the lodge at festival on 11th February next, and £5 5s. was voted as a nucleus on his list from the Charity Fund of the lodge. Two candidates were proposed for initiation. One brother, having removed, was placed on the list of country members. The W.M. rose for the third time, and nothing further offering, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. The charity box having been circulated, the Tyler's toast was given about 11, thus concluding a pleasant evening.

SPHINX LODGE (No. 1329).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New road, on Saturday, the 15th inst., when Bro. Bambridge Lyon, who had been unanimously elected W.M. at the previous meeting, was duly installed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, by Bro. P. A. Nairne, in his usual impressive and able manner, in the presence of a Board of Installed Masters who were in attendance, either as Past Masters of the lodge or as visitors. The visitors were very numerous, and included Bros. Lariharn, P.M. 1216; Mulley, P.M. 256; Temple, P.M. 104; Farmer, W.M. 25; C. T. Davey, P.M. 176; Vickery, W.M. 1475; Sanderson, W.M. 69; W. M. Goss, P.M. 176; Thue, W.M. 1622; J. H. Hastie, P.M. 1116; T. Stephens, P.M. 1475; Edmondston, W.M. 1669; Alfred Richards, P.M. 46; Cooper, W.M. 507; A. Martin, W.M. 1539; Allworth, P.M. 1261; Grey, 176; Carter, 1705; Adams, 975; Grommant, 1559; Ward, 1540; Hutchings, 147; Smallman, 507; Collins, 1641; T. W. Hadon and J. Greening, 1426; Whitby, 1475; Robinson, 1381; Attil, 160; Stead, 1622; Peerless, 101; Wayne, 1669; Bradley, 1669; Collins, 1614; A. Legg, 1348; Schofield, 46; Tomkins, 1669; Cowley, 1559; and Earney, 516. The installation completed, Bro. Lyon, the W.M., proceeded at once to the ceremony of raising Bro. Ansell to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., and delighted all the members and visitors by the very accurate working which he displayed in rendering the ritual, which included the traditional history and tracing board. Bro. Bickerton, the I.P.M., was presented with a Past Master's jewel in acknowledgment of his able and courteous conduct in the chair during a happy and prosperous year of office. The report of the Audit Committee was of the most satisfactory character, displaying as it did the characteristics of well paid subscriptions, large contributions to charity, good assets, small liabilities, and a fair balance in hand. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the large hall, where a banquet was spread, to which the brethren did ample justice. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts and "The Health of the I.P.M.," who suitably responded to the greetings of the brethren. Bro. Nairne proposed "The Visitors" in a very happy and hospitable tone, and Bro. Cooper, W.M. United Pilgrims Lodge, and Bro. A. Richards, G.S., as eloquently expressed the gratification of the visiting brethren. The other toasts were equally well received, and Bro. Bryant, S.W., had an easy task in responding for the efficient officers of whom he is now the leader, sitting in the west. The officers invested were, in addition to the S.W., Bros. Richards, J.W.; Golston, S.D.; Middlemass, J.D.; and J. C. Reynolds, jun., I.G. The Treasurer is Bro. J. C. Reynolds, sen.; Bro. Andrews, Secretary; and Bros. Faber and Brinton, Stewards; with Bro. Nairne, D.C.; the brethren of the lodge always deprecating any change in these important offices. Bros. Shibling, O., Goss, Voisey, and Arman, contributed to the harmony of the lodge by their vocal powers, and elicited the plaudits of the 86 brethren assembled at the feast. Bro. Lyon may be congratulated on coming to the chair of this strong and prosperous lodge.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE No. (1623).—The regular meeting was held on Thursday, the 20th ult., at their lodge-house, the New Market Hotel, Snow-hill, E.C. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. J. Howes, supported by his S.W., W. Pennefather; Bro. J. J. Howes, J.W., pro. tem. The minutes of last regular lodge meeting, also lodge of emergency and auditor's report, were read and confirmed. Bros. Silver and Pittet, of the lodge, also Bros. Willis, Cohen, and Follet, of 1326, having the written consent of the W.M. of that lodge, and paying the usual fee, were entrusted, and retired. The W.M. then prepared his lodge for the passing of the five brethren already named, which he accomplished in a most able manner. The lodge was then resumed, and ballot was taken for the two following gentlemen, viz., Messrs. McNeil Mackay and J. Walter, which proved unanimous; these gentlemen being present, were duly initiated into Freemasonry. The W.M. then rose to enquire for the good of Freemasonry. Bro. G. H. Stephens communicated to lodge his intention to stand Steward at the next coming festival of the aged Freemasons, and he requested the lodge to assist him. The lodge voted him £5 5s. Bro. P.M. T. W. Adams promised to support his list by adding a similar amount; also other brethren promising him their support. Masonic business being ended the W.M. closed the lodge, having observed all usual customs, and the brethren retired to the banquet hall, there to partake of one of Bro. Butt's well-served dinners, everything being as it ought to be. All Masonic toasts were heartily responded to, the harmony of the evening being ably sustained by the organist of the lodge, Bro. Egbert Roberts, assisted by Bro. Knight Smith, professor of music and W.M. 1441, and members of the lodge. Members of the lodge not already mentioned were Bros. Elliott, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middx., and late Treas.; McButt, S.D.; H. J. Lardner, J.D.; G. H. Stephens, I.G.; J. J. Howes, D.C.; W. Snow, W.S.; W. Butt, C.S. Lay members: Bros. Renault, Corke, Greenwood, W. C. Smith, King, and others. The whole of the evening was spent in the most enjoyable manner possible. A Masonic ball in connection with the lodge is being arranged, and will be duly announced in the Freemason and other papers as to when.

HENRY MUGGERIDGE LODGE (No. 1679).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 22nd inst., at the Prince George, Parkholme-road, Dalston. There were present Bros. E. F. Storr, W.M.; J. Lorkin, S.W.; H. John, J.W.; H. Leah, Hon. Sec.; Darnell, J.D.; A. Sack, I.G.; E. Dyer, D.C.; H. Muggeridge, P.M., and a number of other brethren. The W.M. opened the lodge in the Three Degrees, when Bro. H. Muggeridge took the chair, and raised Bro. Street to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. The lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren partook of an excellent plain supper, provided by the worthy hostess, Mrs. Crichton, and presided over by Bro. Storr, the W.M., in his usual genial manner.

TEMPLE BAR LODGE (No. 1728).—A meeting was held on Thursday, the 20th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Present: Bros. Bush, W.M.; Butcher,

S.W.; Staley, J.W.; Frost, Orgt.; Adamson, Treas.; Reed, Sec.; Harris, S.D.; Buckworth, J.D.; Rexworthy, D.C.; Kimpton, I.G.; Woodward, Steward; Church, Tyler; Dixon, P.M.; Recknell, R. Kimpton, Stubbs, Bleck, Andrew, Gathercole, Langley, Schove, Fowler, Carter, Lehany, and Chapman. Visitors: Bros. Pare, W.M. 185; and Bausor, P.M. During business Bros. Langley and Stubbs were raised to the Third Degree; Bro. Schove passed to the Second Degree; Bro. Butcher, S.W., elected W. Master for the ensuing year; Bro. Adamson elected Treasurer; Bro. Church was chosen as Tyler; and Bros. Recknell and Kimpton were elected to audit the accounts of the lodge. A Past Master's jewel, value £10 10s, was unanimously voted for Bro. Bush, and £1 10s. for Bro. Terry's (Secretary) old men and old women's annual treat at Christmas.

ROYAL SAVOY LODGE (No. 1744).—A large number of brethren assembled on Tuesday, the 25th inst., at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, to witness the installation of Bro. John Douglass, of the Theatres Royal Standard and Park, as Worshipful Master, which ceremony was performed in a faultless manner by Bro. James Willing, jun., I.P.M. Among the officers and brethren present we noticed the following: Bros. James Willing, jun., W.M.; John Douglass, S.W.; F. H. Clemow, J.W.; W. M. Stiles, W.M. 1732, Sec.; J. L. Jones, S.D.; W. Cook, I.G.; G. H. Deller, D. of C.; W. Jaques, Org.; Augustus Holt and J. W. Smith, Stewards; T. A. Adams, P.M., P.G.P. of England; W. Clarke, P.M., P.G. D. of C. Norfolk; E. W. Parkes, F. W. Sillis, F. H. Tomkins, F. Johnson, W. Armstrong, K. Clemow, J. Maby, F. Howcroft, C. Hammond, F. Dovey, J. H. Bennett, J. C. Smith, M. Zumpf, E. Tompkins, W. R. A. Cole, P. J. Jagels, J. W. Wheeler, A. Ramsden, G. Eshelby, G. W. E. Thorn, J. Blundell, C. H. Holland, W. Redstone, H. Horne, H. Dickey, J. T. Woods, and the following visitors:—Bros. F. R. W. Hedges, Sec. R.M.I. for Girls; M. Spiegel, W.M. 188; Henry Lovegrove, W.M. 1777; J. Stock, I.P.M. 1178; F. Garbett, P.M. 1178; H. Stiles, J.W. 1732; C. C. Cruikshanks, S.D. 1777; B. Kauffmann, D. of C. 1732; W. Knight, I.G. 87; W. Crane, 907; W. W. Morgan, jun., 1385; L. Solomon, 1507; C. Gwyer, 1602; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at four o'clock, when Bro. Willing, W.M., at once commenced with the heavy business before him by raising to the Degree of M.M. Bros. Blundell, G. W. Thorn, and C. H. Holland. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bros. H. Dickey, H. Hoare, J. T. Woods, and W. Redstone were passed to the Degree of F.C. The installation of Bro. John Douglass was then proceeded with. After the usual introductory business had been transacted, the chair was assumed by the I.P.M., Bro. Willing, and Bro. J. Douglass, S.W., W.M. elect, being presented, was duly installed according to ancient custom. Bro. Douglass then appointed the following brethren as his officers: Bros. F. H. Clemow, S.W.; J. L. Jones, J.W.; J. Willing, jun., P.M., Treas.; W. M. Stiles (re-appointed), Sec.; T. J. Hyland, S.D.; W. Cook, J.D.; Augustus Holt, D. of C.; John W. Smith, A. D. of C.; G. H. Deller, I.G.; W. Jaques and W. Read, Stewards; F. W. Sillis, Org.; J. Dolan, Tyler, Bro. Douglass accompanying each investment with a few complimentary remarks. The I.P.M. then proceeded to charge the newly installed W.M. on the manner of performing the duties of his office. The W.M. immediately entered upon his duties by initiating, which he did with much eloquence and effect, Messrs. John N. Hare, Thomas H. Ellis, Joseph Gray, and James Hone. The lodge was shortly afterwards formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, served in magnificent style by Bro. R. Michell. At the conclusion of the dinner, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and warmly received by the brethren present, the W.M. observing that he intended to make all his remarks in as brief a manner possible, and he trusted the rest of the brethren would do likewise. In proposing the toast of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Willing said he perfectly agreed with Bro. Douglass as to short speeches. He (Bro. Willing), as first W.M. of the lodge, felt exceedingly pleased at having such a successor as Bro. Douglass, and he sincerely hoped that everything connected with the lodge would continue to be as happy and comfortable as it had been during his reign. The working of the lodge had always been carried on both prosperously and harmoniously. The lodge having to keep in a certain district, it was very surprising to see the large number of applicants continually seeking to be admitted. He could safely challenge the Craft to name a more successful lodge. When the lodge was started, which event occurred in May, 1878, the number of members was seven, their strength now consisted of sixty-eight members. Though so large a lodge he was proud to say they were all so happy that they should be sorry to lose one of them, which, he thought, was no small boast. Bro. Willing went on to say that this was not the first occasion upon which Bro. Douglass had occupied the chair of W.M., he had already filled the chair of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, both with satisfaction to the lodge and credit to himself. Bro. Douglass had many calls upon his time, being proprietor of two London theatres, the Standard and the Park, but he had always attended, he was pleased to say, regularly to his Masonic calls. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. When it had subsided, Bro. Douglass rose and tendered his best thanks for the very hearty manner in which his health had been drunk. He felt very much flattered by Bro. Willing's complimentary remarks. He would not occupy the time of the brethren, but would call upon Bro. Cruikshanks for a song. Bro. Cruikshanks having complied, the W.M. again rose to propose the toast of "The I.P.M. and Installing Master." The prosperity of the Royal Savoy Lodge should be a gratification to them all. Its wonderful success was, they all knew, mainly due to their I.P.M. Bro. Willing had proved himself a sort of conservatory in bringing out its many sprouts. He had much pleasure in presenting him with a Past Master's jewel, voted to him by the lodge in recognition of his valuable services. Bro. Willing, after some humorous remarks, said every officer of the lodge was so proficient in the duties, that there was really no call upon him as Past Master for assistance. He was pleased to notice, by the constant attendance of the younger members at the Lodge of Instruction, their anxiety to become proficient in the traditions of the Order. He had himself been fortunate enough to meet and to surround himself with personal friends, who had rallied round him at the foundation of the two lodges, the Metropolitan and the Royal Savoy. He assured the brethren he left the chair heartily congratulating himself on the prosperity of the lodge. To have been the first W.M. of such a lodge he considered a proud era in his life. The toast of "The Visitors" was then proposed by the W.M. He would not, time being so short, call upon them all to respond, but would couple with the toast the names of Bros. T. A. Adams, P.G.P., and W. Clark, P.G.D. of C. Norfolk. It being discovered that those brethren had retired, the W.M. said in their absence he would call upon Bros. Henry Lovegrove, W.M. 1777; Spiegel, W.M. 188; and Scott, I.P.M. 1178. Between the toast and the reply, Bro. W. M. Stiles, who was loudly called for, favoured the brethren with a song; one more suitable to a Masonic banquet we have never heard. Bro. Lovegrove, in responding, said he was much surprised to be called upon to speak first, for as W.M. of the youngest lodge, he thought he ought to have been the last. He thought all present would admit that Bro. Willing's working was most satisfactory. He must add his expression of pleasure at the great progress made by the lodge. The number of initiates must have been very gratifying to the W.M., especially as they were so happy together as to cause the I.P.M. to say that they would be sorry to lose a single member. Bros. Spiegel and Stock also briefly replied. The W.M. next proposed "The Initiates," which he considered the most important toast next to the M.W.G.M. He trusted that they would find the science sufficiently interesting as to make them strive to their utmost to grasp the whole workings of the Craft, and aim to occupy the same chair he had that evening the pleasure to fill. Each of the initiates replied, expressing his pride and happiness at being admitted into the lodge, and expressed a wish to become worthy members of the Craft. The W.M. then referred to the presence of Bro. Hedges, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, for the honour of whose visit he would propose a toast not on the toast list. He asked them to drink to "The Health of the Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of their Bro. Hedges. Bro. Hedges, in reply, said: W.M., Wardens, and brethren, it is with the greatest pleasure that I rise to respond to this toast. When I see so many brethren around me, who have done so much for the Charities, I should indeed be wanting were I to allow this occasion to pass without tendering to them my grateful thanks. I would like to avail myself of this opportunity to remark, that between the three Charities, one of which I have the honour to represent, there are from 600 to 700 recipients. With so large a claim upon their resources, I would impress upon the brethren the great necessity of their continued support. He had the authority of the W.M. for stating that it was his (Bro. Douglass's) intention to act as Steward at the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, on which occasion he was sure they would see that he would be well supported. Last year Bro. Willing acted as Steward for the Girls' School, and he took this opportunity of giving that popular brother his best thanks. In proposing the toast of "The Treasurer, Secretary, and the rest of the Officers," the W.M. remarked that they had all worked so well, that it required but few remarks from him. He considered himself particularly fortunate in having so able an Installing Master, and he begged to thank Bro. Willing for the many valuable services he had so repeatedly rendered. He also thanked Bro. Stiles for the very able manner in which he had discharged the duties of Secretary. Bro. Willing considered that he had been amply thanked for what he had done. He should have been powerless without the assistance of the officers, particularly of Bro. Stiles. Bro. Stiles said he would endeavour to be as brief as their worthy and esteemed Treasurer had been. He was very thankful for his re-appointment, as he was very proud to be Secretary of such a lodge. In the short space of eighteen months he was proud to say that they had cleared off all debts, and that the Treasurer had a balance in hand of £40. Bro. Willing, as first Worshipful Master, and followed by such a one as Bro. Douglass, they could do nothing but prosper. He felt great pride at being connected with this lodge. Bros. Clemow, Jones, Holt, and others replied, the Tyler's toast bringing a most enjoyable evening to a close.

GATESHEAD-ON-TYNE.—Industry Lodge (No. 48).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 24th inst., at 34, Denmark-street. The lodge was opened at seven o'clock p.m. by the W.M., Bro. Robt. Whitfield, assisted by his officers, viz.: Bros. M. Corbett, I.P.M.; John Wood, S.W.; John G. Smith, J.W.; Edwd. Liddell, Sec.; H. S. Bird, as S.D.; J. Mout, J.D.; R. F. Cook, P.M. and D.C.; Jas. Boyatt, I.G.; R. Ferry, Org.; Joshua Curry, Tyler; D. Sinclair, P.M.; B. P. Ord, P.M., I.P.M. 1427; Matthew Swinburne, J. Matthews, W. M. Pybus, W. B. Slec, E. Shewbrooks, Jas. T. Hedley, M. J. Wheatley, T. E. Brigham, G. G. Davidson, A. Rhagg, and others. Visitors: Bros. W. S. Vaughan, W.M. 1664; F. H. Corder, S.W. 1664; G. F. Charlton, J.W. 2664; D. G. Anderson, Sec. 1664; H. S. Bird, S.D. 1664; J. W. Lowick, 1664; J. Braithwaite, S.W. 1427; W. D. Waddell, 163; A. M. Loades, P.M. 24; R. Waugh, 1626; E. A. Gibson, 424; L. Morris, 541; J. T. Ridley, 406; W. Colquhoun, 424; R. Colquhoun, 424; and W. H. Dunn, 1676. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been confirmed, the ballot was taken for Messrs. William Dalrymple and William Leach, proposed at last regular meeting, and they were declared unanimously elected. Both gentlemen being in attendance, and properly prepared, were admitted into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M. The working tools of the First Degree were given by the S.W., and the charge was delivered by the J.W. Bros. W. M. Pybus, H. B. Slec, and E. Shewbrooks were examined as to their proficiency as E. Apprentices, received the test of merit, and retired for preparation. The lodge was then opened in the Fellow Craft Degree, when Bros. Pybus, Slec, and Shewbrooks were again admitted, and passed by the W.M. as F.C.'s. The lodge was afterwards closed in the Second, and remained open in the First Degree. Bros. G. F. Westmacott, of Hengist Lodge, 195, and W. H. Dunn, of St. Nicholas Lodge, 1676, were proposed as joining members. The "Hearty good wishes" of the visiting brethren were tendered to the W.M., and the lodge was closed in love and harmony at 9.30 p.m. An adjournment was made to the refreshment room, where the usual list of toasts was proposed, and several songs from the assembled brethren contributed to the harmony of a very pleasant evening.

PENZANCE.—Mount Sinai Lodge (No. 121).—The members of this lodge held their monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall, on Wednesday, Nov. 19th. Brethren present: Bros. W. H. Kinsman, I.P.M.; J. Lovell, jun., J.W.; G. H. Small, S.; F. Holman, S.D.; M. Sampson, J.D.; J. S. C. Simpson, D.C.; F. Rodda, I.G.; W. Colenso, S.; G. Wedlake, S.; J. Maxwell, P.M.; H. Carno, J. Johns, R. Laity, H. J. Oaten, C. C. Curnow, H. S. Hill, W.M. 223; J. Andrews, J. Vivian, jun.; W. Alsop, P.M. 119, Sun, Square, and Compasses; J. Jewell, E. Whitney, J. Reynolds. Visiting brethren: Bros. J. Jackson, 70; R. Sholl, 450; and W. Harker, 314. The lodge being opened in the First Degree, after the minutes of the last lodge meeting had been confirmed, Bro. W. Alsop, P.M. of Sun, Square, and Compasses, No. 119, Whitehaven, was balloted for, and accepted unanimously as a member of this lodge. The next business was that of initiating Mr. W. H. Ash into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, which ceremony he went through with great credit. The lodge was then closed, and opened in the Second Degree; nothing for the good of Masonry being required for this Degree, the lodge was then opened in the Third, and Bro. Joseph Vivian was then introduced to be raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., which ceremony he bore with great fortitude, after which the lodge was closed, and opened in the First Degree, when two gentlemen were proposed, to be balloted for at the next meeting. Nothing more transpiring for the good of Masonry, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The opening meeting of the above lodge took place on Wednesday, the 19th inst., at the Masonic Hall, William-street, and was, as usual, well attended by both members and visitors. The W.M., Bro. John Warren, opened the lodge soon after half-past six p.m., supported by the following officers, viz.: Bros. Past Masters A. W. Woodley, J. Graham, and S. Goddard; J. Wilkins, S.W.; E. B. Hobson, J.W.; T. Butt, P.M.; Treas.; C. S. Norman, P.M., Sec.; G. Beaver, S.D.; J. H. Roberts, J.D.; and T. Denden, I.G. Among the visitors were Bros. H. Shaw, W.M. 1536; T. Hutton, W.M. 13; T. D. Hayes, P.M. 913; W. Moulder, S.W. 829; M. Kaul, 1472; W. Viney, 1076; W. Rees, 913; S. Evans, 473; R. Clarke, 473; J. Gibson, 1536; G. W. Young, 1604; D. Hutton, Sec. 13; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason); and others. The business before the lodge consisted of the balloting for of Messrs. C. Rudge, J. H. Northrop, J. Sanderson, and A. Hornsey, which proving unanimous, those gentlemen were initiated into Freemasonry, the ceremony being worked by the W.M. with all the aplomb of an old Past Master, although this was the first time he had sat in the chair since his installation. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren and visitors sat down to a cold collation, served by Bro. R. Beaver in excellent style. The brethren having assembled round the refreshment board, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were disposed of with all honours. Bro. Woodley, I.P.M., then rose to propose the toast of "The W.M." He said the brethren had seen the manner in which their W.M. had worked the ceremony of initiation that night. It was no easy task for an old and well-seasoned Past Master to manage four initiates, but their W.M. had carried out the work without a single hitch. From that they might anticipate what the Second and Third Degrees would be at his hands. He asked them to drink the health of the W.M. with all the honours it deserved. The W.M., in reply, thanked Bro. Woodley and the brethren for the kind manner in which they had drunk his health. He had always felt it a delight to do his best while in the minor offices of the lodge through which he had passed, and that pleasure was doubled now he had an opportunity of carrying out the important duties entrusted to him as W.M. From the remarks of Bro. P.M. Woodley, and their expressions of regard, he felt he had done the work that evening in such a way as to win their approbation. There was one thing they might depend upon, and that was that he should always endeavour to uphold the dignity and honour of the Nelson Lodge, and not allow its good name to deteriorate among the lodges of the district. "The Initiates" were then toasted, and responded. "The Visitors" were responded to by Bros. Hayes, P.M.; N. M. Hutton, King, Kaul, and Viney. "The Past Masters" were represented by Bros. Woodley, Butt, and Norman, the former of whom responded. Bro. Wilkins responded for "The Officers," and Bro. Jolly responded for "The Masonic Press," and the Tyler's toast and one verse of the National Anthem concluded the evening.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Lodge (No. 874).—An emergency meeting of this admirably conducted lodge was held at the Pump Room on the 6th inst., when there were present Bros. H. D. M. Williams, W.M.; W. B. Bacon, I.P.M.; B. S. Wilmot, P.G.R. Kent, P.M.; J. Read, P.M., acting S.W.; John Burton, J.W.; J. Dunkley, S.D.; C. Graham, acting J.D.; J. F. Bates, Sec.; W. S. Elers, P.M., Treas.; J. Cheale, I.G.; A. Boorman, Org.; J. Strange, Tyler; Buss, Durrant, Everest, Farrer, Rule, and W. T. Wrighton. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. L. S. Tugwell was examined, entrusted, and withdrew, and the lodge being opened in the Third Degree, he was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by the W.M., the whole of the work being done in a manner which added fresh lustre to his already prosperous year. Several propositions were then given in, and the lodge was duly closed.

The regular monthly meeting of the lodge was held on the 19th inst., and was similarly attended, with the addition, as visitors, of Bros. J. G. Calway, 1619, and Copland, 127. The minutes of the last regular meeting and emergency meeting, held on the 6th inst., were read, unanimously confirmed, and signed by the W.M. Mr. Edward Richardson, who was balloted for at the last meeting, was introduced, and was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The ballot was then taken for Bro. Captain Philip Green, of Westminster and Keystone Lodge, No. 10, and Bro. Captain T. H. Hutch, P.M. of Nova Ecclesia Lodge, No. 1466, as joining members, also for Messrs. Thos. Buss, J. E. Westbrook, and Philip Jackson, as candidates for Masonry, which proved unanimous. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed.

RICHMOND.—Rose of Denmark Lodge (No. 975).—This lodge, which for the last sixteen years has held its meetings at the White Hart, Barnes, lately resolved to change its location to the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, and the first gathering at the new quarters was held on Friday, the 21st inst., when the members and visitors assembled in large numbers on the occasion of the installation of a deservedly popular member of the Craft, Bro. James Garnar, P.M. 1622, the S.W. of the lodge, who had been unanimously elected at the last meeting as W.M. for the ensuing year. The lodge was opened punctually at the time named in the summons by Bro. G. Wigglesworth, W.M., supported by Bros. H. G. Buss, Asst. G. Sec.; J. Garnar, S.W.; J. Noble, J.W.; C. A. Smith, P.M., Treasurer; W. H. Lee, P.M., Secretary; Hinton, P.M.; Tyler, P.M.; Clarke, P.M.; Phillips, P.M.; Potter, P.M.; Crane, S.D.; Carpenter, I.G.; Doerr, Monk, M. Graham, J. Graham, Ayling, Matthews, Brown, F. Simmons, Bugler, Slinn, G. Simmons, Williams, Richman, C. Wilcox, T. Wilcox, Hodgkinson, and Percieron; also the following visitors: Bros. T. Robins, W.M. 25; E. White, W.M. 177; A. Newens, W.M. 1044; H. Vickery, W.M. 1475; G. Duck, P.M. 1475; T. Stephens, P.M. 1475; T. Butt, P.M. 700; J. L. Cogan, P.M. 1365; E. Banister, P.M. 212; E. Somers, P.M. 1602; G. Hockley, P.M. 172; W. C. Canton, P.M. 1475; J. Cockburn, 1381; W. Hamlyn, J. D. 1622; H. Hewitt, 1622; C. Radford, J.D. 1420; W. Cowley, W. Minden, 780; C. E. Goldring, 1216; H. Carter, 192; T. Pethbridge, 1622; P. H. Giles, 1158; H. W. Davie, 173; J. Drake, 1035; J. Cheeswright, 15; J. Searle, 172; H. Stanley, 1622; M. Peters, 72; and C. Marriott, 172. Bro. Egbert Roberts, Org. 1623, presided at the harmonium. The preliminary business having been disposed of, Bro. Monk was raised to the Third Degree, after which Bro. Garnar was duly presented for installation, which ceremony was rendered in a very able and impressive manner by Bro. G. Wigglesworth, the retiring W.M. The Board of Installed Masters numbered upwards of twenty brethren, the largest board since the formation of the lodge. The newly-installed Worshipful Master appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. J. Noble, S.W.; G. F. Crane, W.M. 1631 and 305, J.W.; C. A. Smith, P.M. 975, S.W. 1305, M.E.Z. 1305, Treasurer; W. H. Lee, P.M. 975 and 1524, M.E.Z. 1524, Secretary; S. Carpenter, S.D.; E. Ayling, J.D.; G. Slinn, I.G.; H. O. Hinton, P.M., Wine Steward; G. Simmons, D.C.; J. Gilbert, Tyler. The usual addresses were then delivered by the Installing Master in a manner which elicited the warmest applause from the brethren. Bro. Garnar, W.M., at once commenced his duties by initiating into Freemasonry Messrs. G. Campbell, C. Shannaw, G. Farrants, and S. Fogden (who had been previously balloted for and unanimously elected), the work of the W.M. and his officers being performed in a highly creditable manner. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to a first-class banquet provided by Bro. Muffet, and served in a style which fully maintained the high reputation of the Greyhound. After grace had been sung by the musical brethren, the W.M. gave the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," wishing long life to Her Majesty and a lengthened continuance of her happy reign. "God save the Queen" having been impressively rendered, Bro. Garnar, W.M., gave "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master," and congratulated the brethren on having the heir apparent to the throne to preside over the destinies of the Craft, a position which he filled so ably and so well. "God bless the Prince of Wales" was then ably rendered and enthusiastically received. "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, Dep. G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," was then given by the W.M., who dwelt upon the able and excellent manner in which the Pro G. Master and Dep. G. Master performed their duties in connection with the Craft, and in alluding to the rest of the Grand Officers, referred in complimentary terms to Bro. H. G. Buss, Asst. G. Sec., who was one of the founders of the lodge, in which he still took a great interest, as was shewn by his presence on that occasion. He coupled his name with the toast. Bro. Buss, Asst. G. Sec., responded on behalf of the Grand Officers, and thanked the W.M. for the cordial manner with which the toast had been received. He had always taken a great interest in the Rose of Denmark Lodge, of which he was one of the founders, and was much gratified by the great success which the lodge had achieved, as was shown by the large gathering which had assembled on that occasion. He wished to the W.M. a happy and successful year of office, and to the lodge a continuance in the future of that success it had so deservedly enjoyed in the past. Bro. G. Wrigglesworth, I.P.M., in proposing the next toast, "The Worshipful Master," said: To me is now afforded one of the greatest pleasures of the evening, that of proposing the health of your Worshipful Master. It is always a pleasing duty to a Past Master to propose health and prosperity to his successor in office, but it is doubly so to me on this occasion from the long experience, both in Masonry and private life, that I have had of the ever straightforward and gentlemanly behaviour of Bro. Garnar. We were initiated in the Rose of Denmark Lodge within a short time of each other, and have gradually worked through the various offices, and no member ever attained the honour of Worshipful Master who was more entitled to the good will and affection of its members. It is his good fortune to have been elected to the chair at a time when the lodge is about entering on what, I believe, will be a new era of permanent success. To the brethren present this evening who may not be aware of the circumstances, I should like to say a few words respecting our change of location. For some time past, great inconvenience has been experienced by us, owing to the limited accommodation afforded at the old quarters of the lodge, and it had become absolutely necessary to obtain another place of meeting. In this, I think, you will agree with me, we have been more successful than might have been anticipated, which statement, I think, is fully borne out by our numerous gathering this evening, and all that is necessary to make our lodge second to none is to continue to select brethren for office steady, firm, and true, like your W.M., and the position and welfare of the Rose of Denmark Lodge will be fully maintained. "Robin Adair" was then sung by Miss Emma Buer with pleasing effect. Bro. James Garnar, W.M., in responding to the toast, thanked Bro. Wrigglesworth for the kind and complimentary terms in which he had proposed his health, and the brethren for the manner with which the toast had been received, and although he had been Master of another lodge, to which he was still very much attached, he felt very proud indeed in having attained the high position of Worshipful Master of his mother lodge, and in which, like Bro. Wrigglesworth, he had served all the minor offices; and he felt certain that, during his year of office, he would receive the hearty and cordial support of the Past Masters and brethren. He had now a pleasing duty to perform, which was to propose "The Health of Bro. Wrigglesworth, the I.P.M.," whose efficient services in the lodge, and genial conduct at the banquet table, had obtained for him during his year of office the high esteem and regard of the brethren, and he hoped that Bro. Wrigglesworth might be spared for many years to enliven the festive board with his sparkling wit and rich vein of humour. He had now the privilege of presenting to Bro. Wrigglesworth the handsome Past Master's jewel, unanimously voted by the lodge, as a small token of recognition of his valuable services; and he hoped that Bro. Wrigglesworth might be spared for many years to wear this jewel, and in the future it would be handed down to his children, or his children's children, as a mark of the respect and esteem in which he was held in the Rose of Denmark Lodge. Bro. Wrigglesworth, I.P.M., said: Worshipful Sir and brethren, to you who have so kindly expressed yourselves towards me I can but offer my sincere thanks for the great honour done me in presenting me with this valuable jewel, accompanied as it is with the approbation of the brethren, in acknowledgment of the manner in which I have, to the best of my power and ability, attempted the duties of the chair. My connection with this lodge is one extending over many years, and it is to me a most pleasing reflection that, during the whole of that time, I have never seen or heard of any disagreement amongst its members; on the contrary, it has always been a pleasure with us to assist in the advancement of a brother. I, therefore, feel certain I have arrived at my present position without causing a pang of envy or regret in the minds of any of the brethren of the lodge. I started in Masonry with the fixed resolve that should I ever take office in any lodge it should be in this. To the Rose of Denmark Lodge, my first love, I have been true. Your kindness shown towards me in all the offices I have held, but more especially to-night, can never be obliterated from my memory, and, in conclusion, I hope I may live to see increased prosperity to the lodge, but of this I am assured, that we shall never be able to improve on the bonds of true and sincere brotherhood which now exist amongst us. The toast of "The Initiates" was then proposed, and appropriately responded to. An excellent bass song, "In cellar deep," was then given in splendid style by Bro. Egbert Roberts. "The Health of the Visitors" then followed, in proposing which, the W.M. said that he felt highly gratified to see such a large number of visitors around the festive board; he gave them a cordial and hearty welcome. Bros. Robins, W.M. 25; Butt, P.M. 700; and Searle, 172, replied for the visitors, expressing their great satisfaction at the proceedings of the evening. The toasts of "The Past Masters" and "The Officers" were then given, and suitably acknowledged by Bros. Smith, P.M., and Tyler, P.M., after which the Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings. The musical arrangements, which gave great satisfaction, were under the direction of Bro. C. H. Marriott, 172, who presided at the pianoforte, and he was ably assisted by Madame Frances Brooke, Miss Emma Buer, and Bro. Egbert Roberts.

ROCHDALE.—St. Chad's Lodge (No. 1129).—The annual meeting of this prosperous little lodge was held at the house of Bro. C. M. Jones, P.P.G.D.C., Roeback Hotel, on Wednesday, the 19th inst., when Bro. J. G. Meadowcroft was duly installed W.M. by Bro. E. T. Fletcher, I.P.M., who conducted the ceremony in an efficient manner, the officers being invested by Bro. Peter, Sec., P.M. Bro. F. G. Hodgson, who is at present on business in America, was appointed S.W., and Bro. T. B. Collingwood, J.W. Bro. Jas. Hadfield, P.M., who has served the office as Treasurer since its foundation thirteen years ago, was re-elected, and was also Bro. Jos. Ireland, P.M., Secretary. Bros. S. L. Hoyle, S.D.; Wm. Swift, J.D.; and Wm. Davis, P.M., Tyler, were afterwards invested, and placed in their respective offices. The newly-installed W.M. had the pleasure of receiving two propositions of candidates; after which the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Jones. The following visitors were present by special invitation: Bros. W. Roberts, P.P.G.P. E.L., 298; Jas. Schofield, W.M. 367; Jas. Dearden, I.G. 54; Thos. Parker, 298; Simeon Lord (Naphthali, Heywood), 266; Ralph Dodds, S.W. 298; John Ashworth, P.M. 816; John T. Holt, W.M. 854; J. M. Myers, 1502; R. N. Grey, W.M. 298; Wm. Fielding, 298; and Alfred G. Sayer, 1085. After the banquet the usual Masonic toasts were drunk, and suitably responded to, the toast of the evening, that of "The Newly-installed W.M.," being drunk with acclamation, and responded to in a neat speech by the W.M. The proceedings, which were pleasant throughout, were brought to a close about eleven p.m., a most agreeable evening having been spent.

MANCHESTER.—De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 1161).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Denmark Hotel, Chorlton-on-Medlock, on Wednesday, Nov. 20th. There were present Bros. W. Sturm, W.M.; J. Burgess, S.W.; R. Dottie, J.W.; J. G. Walker, Sec.; A. Radford, S.D.; I. I. Cowens, J.D.; I. Islam, I.G.; Geo. Burrows, Tyler; J. Hargreaves, I.P.M.; Julius Arensbergh, P.M.; W. Norton, P.M.; H. Newman, W. Urmsan, A. H. Jefferies, W. Hall, and R. C. Hulme. Visitor, R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at 7.15 with prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting, and also a lodge of emergency, read and confirmed. Owing to a candidate for passing not putting in an appearance, there was, unfortunately, no work, a regrettable circumstance to our thinking, as this lodge has the reputation of excellence in this respect, and we were consequently anxious to witness a ceremony. Some discussion relating to various matters of an unimportant nature ensued, after which the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 8.15.

SUNDERLAND.—Fenwick Lodge (No. 1389).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall on Friday, the 21st inst., at four o'clock. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. Nicholson, I.P.M., and the minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed, with the alteration of Bro. W. Craven's name for that of Bro. Douglass, as Tyler for the ensuing year. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. P. Nicholson presented Bro. Bernard, S.W., for the benefit of installation at the hands of Bro. R. Hudson, P.M., Treas. The Secretary read the ancient charges, to all of which Bro. Bernard gave his unqualified consent. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, when the ceremony was completed by the Installing Master. The lodge was then closed to the First Degree, when the W.M. installed the following brethren officers for the ensuing year, viz.: Bros. W. Beattie, I.P.M.; W. Brandt, S.W.; J. Dobson, J.W.; Hudson, P.M., Hon. Treas.; M. Douglass, Sec.; Brown, Chap.; Thos. Tillman, S.D.; J. Murphy, J.D.; Chapman, Org.; Pinkney, I.G.; Coker, S. Steward; W. Pinkney, J. Steward; W. Craven, Tyler. The W.M. proposed F. S. Panton to be initiated into Masonry in this lodge, seconded by Bro. J. J. Brown, Chap. Bro. Hudson, P.M., moved that £10 ros. be given to the Boys' School in London, which was carried; also, that £1 1s. each be given to the Infirmary, Orphan Asylum, and the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Society, seconded by Bro. J. Tillman, P.M., and carried. Bro. Pinkney, I.G., moved that £1 1s. be given to the Children's Hospital, which was carried. "Hearty good wishes" were given from the Eboracum Lodge, 1611, by Bro. Cumberland, P.M. All business being done the lodge was closed in due form.

NEWQUAY.—Fort Lodge (No. 1528).—The annual festival was observed on the 21st inst. There was a small attendance of visitors, but this was in consequence of the consecration on the same day of the St. Petroc Lodge at Padstow, and the Fort bye-laws enact that the festival is to be kept on the nearest Friday to November 24th, in other words, on the Friday in the octave of St. Columba, the patron saint of the parish. The brethren assembled in their lodge-room at five o'clock, when the W.M., Bro. T. Boyle, installed his successor, Bro. Robert Martyn, in a very able and impressive manner, assisted by W. Bros. W. Tonkin, P.P.G.S. of W., W. E. Michell, and B. Wellington, who formed the Board of P.M.'s. The newly appointed W.M. proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—T. Boyle, I.P.M.; C. R. Bellingham, S.W.; W. L. Bloch, J.W.; B. Wellington, P.M., Treasurer; J. H. Hambly, Secretary; R. Rowe, S.D.; A. Lawry, J.D.; R. Kendall, I.G.; J. Mitchell, D.C.; J. Morris and F. Snell, Stewards; C. Carrivick, Tyler. The brethren subsequently adjourned to Roberts's Great Western Hotel, where a banquet awaited them. The W.M. presided. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed, and an agreeable evening was spent.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1502).—The annual installation meeting of the members of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Monday, the 17th inst., and the proud position obtained by the Israel Lodge in the Province of West Lancashire was amply sustained on this occasion by the success which attended the celebration of the annual festival. The lodge was primarily consecrated for the accommodation of brethren of the Jewish persuasion, and they have largely availed themselves of the advantages thus offered; but the proof that Freemasonry knows no special sect or creed is shown by the fact that it embraces amongst its members many worthy and distinguished brethren who are not of the ancient race. There was on this occasion a very large attendance of officers and members, and a full representation of visitors, who included numerous P.G.L. Officers and W.M.'s and P.M.'s of other lodges. The business was conducted at the opening by Bro. Sigismund Schönstadt, the W.M., who was supported by Bros. A. Jones, I.P.M.; Ralph Robinson, P.M., P.P.G.R.; A. J. Henochsberg, P.M.; H. A. Tobias, J.W., W.M. elect; S. J. Henochsberg, Sec.; M. Aronsberg, S.D.; M. P. Tieski, J.D.; J. Saber, I.G.; M. Hart, P.M., M.C.; W. Wright, S.S.; D. Gabrielsen, J.S.; W. G. Veale, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members of the lodge present were Bros. B. Woolf, M. Feldouar, A. Zolke, W. Levy, H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; I. Phillip, H. Hendesberg, H. Sagar, A. Hart, P.M. 722; M. Ansell, H. de Frece, C. E. Forman, E. Myer, J. Frank, S. Beard, H. M. Silver, J. S. McCabe, M. Baum, A. Saqui, R. Abrahams, S. Jacobs, S. Simmons, A. Levy, J. Mattison, E. J. Hart, A. Rabow, J. Lazarus, A. A. Lyons, and D. M. Joseph. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. J. Grant, A. Abrahams, 205; J. P. Bryan, 1505; H. P. Cleaver, 1713; J. F. Sewell, P.G.S.W., ex-Mayor of Bootle; D. A. Davis, W.M. 625; Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G. Chaplain, Rector of Rufford; J. Cobham, P.M. 241; Ramsey, S.W. 680; W. Corbett, W.M. 249; J. B. MacKenzie, W.M. 1609; L. Walford, P.M. 798 (Brisbane); J. Winsor, P.M. 241; C. W. Makin, 32; C. Titherley, S.W. 1350; H. James, P.M. 203; L. Foinquinos, 1180; J. Jacobs, 724 and 1576; J. C. T. Alston, W.M. 203; L. B. Goodman, 594; J. W. Ballard, P.G.P.; R. Crispe, W.M. 724; M. Breslaw, 402; J. R. Bottomley, W.M. 1675; F. Barnett, P.M. 249; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C.; W. B. Ackerley, P.G.J.W.; and J. T. Callow, P.G. Treas. After the transaction of some ordinary business, Bro. S. Schönstadt, the retiring W.M., proceeded to install Bro. Henry A. Tobias as his successor in the chair of K.S. for the ensuing year. The following staff of officers was subsequently invested:—Bros. S. Schönstadt, I.P.M.; Rev. Professor J. Prag, Chap.; Maurice Hart, P.M., M.C.; S. J. Henochsberg, S.W.; M. Aronsberg, J.W.; A. J. Henochsberg, P.M., Treas.; M. P. Tieski, Sec.; Joseph Saber, S.D.; H. F. Wright, J.D.; D. Gabrielsen, I.G.; W. G. Veale, Org.; H. M. Silver, S.S.; Maurice Baum, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The "Hearty good wishes" of about a dozen lodges were given to Bro. H. A. Tobias, the newly-installed W.M., and the brethren subsequently dined in the banqueting room under his presidency. The standard loyal and Masonic toasts were given during the evening, and most cordially honoured. The toast of "The Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present," was responded to by Bros. W. B. Ackerley, P.G.J.W., and G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C. A valuable Past Master's jewel, set with diamonds, was presented to Bro. Schönstadt, I.P.M., in recognition of his esteemed services as W.M. of the lodge during the past year. A most enjoyable programme was furnished, amongst the items being a well-delivered version of the Buzfuz oration from "Pickwick" by Bro. A. J. Henochsberg, P.M., Treas.; and excellent songs by Bros. D. Saunders, 1609; M. Hart, P.M.; I. Jacobs, and others.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Hospitality (No. 1697).—The installation of the W.M., Bro. James Haworth, and investiture of officers in connection with the above lodge, took place on Thursday, the 13th inst., at the Royal Hotel. The occasion was looked forward to with deep interest, inasmuch as it had been arranged that Bros. Thomas Pilling, P.M., and John Taylor, P.M., both members of the lodge, should perform the ceremony, a circumstance which had the effect of attracting a great many brethren from the neighbouring lodges. Punctually at four o'clock, as announced by the summons convening the meeting, the proceedings began, and terminated about a quarter to six, everything having passed off most admirably. We must not omit to state that directly the new W.M. had been installed he proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. John Thos. Bancroft, I.P.M.; Rowland Rawlinson, S.W.; John R. Lord, J.W.; Rev. A. J. Harrison, Chaplain; Rawdon Ashworth, Treasurer; W. H. Baxter, Secretary; Henry Pickup, S.D.; Ingham Taylor, J.D.; Ralph Pass, I.G.; and James Rothwell, Tyler. He addressed to each a charge bearing on the duties and responsibilities undertaken, and exhorting him faithfully to discharge the same. The lodge was then formally closed, and the brethren repaired to the dining room, where, thanks to the worthy host and hostess, a dinner, consisting of all the delicacies of the season, had been provided, and the admirable manner in which it was served rendered it even more attractive. Dinner over the brethren retraced their steps to the lodge room, where during their absence dessert of a character none the less attractive had been laid out. It was now eight o'clock, and the W.M. at once took his place in the lodge, and proceeded to submit the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were most enthusiastically received. In response to the toast of his health, the W.M. took occasion in a very brilliant speech to thank the brethren for the honour conferred upon him. He remarked that he should during his term of office endeavour to the best of his ability to govern the lodge on truly Masonic principles, and he hoped that when the time arrived for the appointment of a successor, he might be able to hand over his seals of office in a manner alike creditable to himself and honourable to the Order. A glee party consisting of Bros. Ramsbottom, Wroe, Dunville, and Kershaw, accompanied on the piano by Bro. P. M. Taylor, of Bacup, contributed very materially to enliven the proceedings with songs and glees. They also gave anthems from Dr. Spark's "Libra Musicus" during the installation. The proceedings were brought to a close about 10.45.

MAIDSTONE.—Douglas Lodge (No. 1725).—The installation of the W.M. of this lodge (Bro. Dr. Davies) took place on Friday evening, the 7th inst., at the Old College Gateway, the ceremony being performed with exceptional ability and impressiveness by Bro. J. B. Monckton (of the Grand Lodge of England, and Town Clerk of London), brother of the retiring Master (Bro. Herbert Monckton, Town Clerk of Maidstone). The new Master afterwards invested his officers as follows: Bros. R. T. Tatham, S.W.; F. T. Stenning, J.W.; Rev. E. Moore, Chap.; A. Spencer, Treas.; E. B. Smith, Hon. Sec.; Dr. Meredith, S.D.; G. Friend, J.D.; J. W. Menpes, I.G.; C. Arkcoll, jun., D.C.; J. Brennan, S.; and J. C. Hill, Tyler. During the evening an elegant Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Herbert Monckton to mark the brethren's appreciation of his services during the past year. The usual banquet was afterwards held at the Mitre Hotel, under the presidency of the new Master (Bro. Dr. Davies), who was supported by Bros. A. Akers-Douglas, E. T. Luck, J. B. Monckton, H. Monckton, Sutton (Sittingbourne), J. R. Ford (W.M. of Belvidere Lodge), W. Page, J. Brennan, W. Monckton, R. T. Tatham, Dr. Gillespie, A. Spencer, F. S. Stenning, J. W. Menpes, A. C. Nicoll, E. B. Smith, Dr. Meredith, D. W. Langton, R. Troutbeck, C. Arkcoll, J. Hodgson, and others.

MANCHESTER.—Zion Lodge (No. 1798).—On Saturday evening the members of this lodge met at the Portland Hotel, Manchester, on a very interesting occasion, viz., to present Bro. M. Klinkonstin, Chaplain of the lodge, with a handsome Chaplain's jewel, on his leaving Manchester for his native country through family illness. Bro. Klinkonstin having been connected with the lodge since the formation, had won the esteem and goodwill of all its members, and deep regret was evinced at his departure. The presentation was made by the W.M. (Bro. E. Nathan) in a very able and feeling speech on behalf of the lodge, wishing him every success for the future, and hoped he would soon be with them again. Several other brethren also expressed their good opinion and hearty good wishes. Among the members present we noticed Bros. E. Nathan, W.M.; J. Arosberg, I.P.M.; P.G.P.; H. D. Marks, S.W.; D. A. Davis, J.W.; W.M. 625; M. Newman, Treas.; S. Mamelock, Sec.; A. M. Hart, S.D.; S. J. Jourdan, I.G.; E. Wise, S. Hortic, E. Caspen, Stewards; Rev. J. Valentine, M. Stewart, E. Stewart, M. Delakofeke, M. Bianco, and others.

INSTRUCTION.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The Fifteen Sections were worked at the Three Crowns Hotel, on Wednesday, the 19th inst., by Bros. J. Hurdell, W.M. 1348; J. Hemming, S.W. 1287; W. T. Burgess, J.W. 1472; and Ives, P.M., Sec. pro. tem.; supported by a numerous attendance of brethren. The 2nd in Second, and 1st in Third, worked by Bros. Burgess and Hemming respectively, gave great satisfaction to the brethren present. The lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent supper, provided by the worthy host, Bro. E. West, P.P.G.S.D.

Royal Arch.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—A regular meeting of the above chapter was held on Tuesday, the 18th inst., at the Masonic Hall. Ex. Comps. Hill, Hearn, and Williamson respectively occupied their chairs as Principals, supported by Comps. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z.; Moutrie, P.Z. and Treas.; Howes, E.; Keene, P.Z., as N.; Stuckey, Pr. Soj.; Glover, as S. Soj.; Peach, as J. Soj.; Bigwood, Janitor. The chapter having been opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, it was announced that the candidate for exaltation, whose presence was expected, wished his name to be withdrawn. Comps. Rubie, P.Z., and Hunt, J. Soj., sent apologies for unavoidable absence. In accordance with regulations, the by-laws were read. The election of officers for the ensuing year took place with the following result:—Comps. Hearn, Z.; Williamson, H.; Howes, J.; Stuckey, E.; Hayward, N.; Moutrie, P.Z., Treas.; Radway, Pr. Soj.; Mercer, S.S.; Peach, J.S.; Bigwood, Janitor. Arrangements were made for the annual banquet as usual in December, and Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z., was requested to perform the ceremonies of installation of Principals, which he undertook to do. The chapter was closed at 9 p.m.

SUNDERLAND.—Strict Benevolence Chapter (No. 97).—A meeting of the above chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 20th inst., at 7.30 p.m.; Comps. L. P. Austin, Z.; T. Twizell, H.; and Comp. R. Candlish, J. The chapter was opened in due form by the three Principals. The minutes of last chapter were read and confirmed. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, with the following result: Comps. T. Twizell, Z.; R. Candlish, H.; T. M. Watson, J.; G. Porteous, E.; Lerch, N.; Bernard, M.D. (re-elected), P.S.; W. Lidell, P.Z. (re-elected), Treas.; and Thompson (re-elected), Janitor. Comp. Emerson proposed Bro. G. D. Smith, seconded by Comp. Candlish, to be exalted in this chapter. All business being done, the chapter was closed in due and solemn form.

WIGTON.—St. John's Chapter (No. 327).—The annual convocation of this old chapter was held on Thursday, November 20th, at the Chapter Rooms, at three o'clock. The chapter was opened by the M.E.Z., Comp. James Gardiner, assisted by Ex. Comps. Pearson, H.; Hoodless, J.; John Bowes, P.Z., P.P.G.S.N.; John Gate, P.Z.; Henry Bewes, P.Z., P.P.P. Soj.; and Nicholson, M.E.Z. 371, after which the rest of the companions were admitted, and the minutes read and confirmed. The M.E.Z. then invited Ex. Comp. John Bowes to take his chair as Installing Principal. Solemn conclaves were opened, and the new Principals, Comps. Pearson, Hoodless, and Lazonby, presented and installed according to ancient custom. The other officers having been invested, the thanks of the chapter were accorded to Comp. Bowes, and labour terminated. The refreshment provided was an excellent dinner, well served. After the cloth was withdrawn the usual toasts were considered, and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close at eight o'clock.

Mark Masonry.

HAMMERSMITH LODGE (No. 211).—This young but fairly prosperous lodge recommenced their Masonic season by holding a meeting at the Windsor Castle Hotel, on the 15th inst. Among those present were Bros. Baldwin, W.M.; T. C. Walls, S.W.; Goodell, acting J.W.; James Stevens, P.G.J.O., &c., acting I.P.M.; Alfred Tisley, Secretary; Page, I.G.; Game, D.C.; Millis, W.S.; and Potter, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, with the following unanimous results: Bros. Walls as W.M.; Baldwin as Treasurer; and Potter as Tyler. A Committee consisting of the W.M., S.W., Treasurer, Secretary, and Bros. Goodall, Game, and Millis were appointed to audit the accounts, and to approve the bye-laws on the 21st inst. A Past Master's jewel having been voted to Bro. Baldwin, a letter from Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G.I.G., &c., was read, in which he resigned his membership and Treasurership of the lodge, in consequence of ill-health and permanent residence in the country. This communication having been received with regret, the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren partook of an excellent collation, admirably served by Bro. Gilbert. The only toasts proposed were "The Queen and Mark Masonry," and "The W.M." The remainder of the evening was agreeably spent, thanks to the vocal abilities of Bros. James Stevens Tisley, Gilbert, Baldwin, and Page.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

MOUNT CALVARY CHAPTER.—The first meeting of the season of this old chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Golden-square, on Friday, the 4th instant. Amongst those present were Ill. Bros. T. W. Coffin, 30°, M.W.S.; D. Ace, D.D., 31°, H.P.; D. Nicols, 30°, 1st G.; C. H. Driver, 31°, I.P.S.; H. Pullen, P.S., 33°; W. Paas, 30°, Treas.; A. Williams, 30°, Org.; and Ex. Bros. C. J. Morgan, P.S.; D. M. Dewar, P.S., Recorder; F. J. Currier, R.; T. C. Walls, D.C.; W. Mann, E. J. Gardiner, F. W. Driver, C. W. Tayleur, G. A. Berkeley, and G. Austin, E. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. J. D. Larsen, C.E., was unanimously elected as a re-joining member. A communication from the Supreme Council, 33°, having been read, and a donation of two guineas having been unanimously voted to the Laughton Tower Restoration Fund, the chapter was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Café Royal, where a most excellent banquet was partaken of. After the customary preliminary toasts had been honoured, "The Health of the M.W.S." was proposed in very flattering terms by Ill. Bro. C. Driver, P.M.W.S., and having been warmly received, the M.W.S. briefly acknowledged the compliment. "The P.M.W.S." came next, and, in response, Ill. Bro. Hyde Pullen made a fluent speech. "The Treasurer and Recorder" followed, and was responded to in a few terse, but pertinent sentences, by Bro. D. M. Dewar. The remaining pledge, namely, "The Officers," was replied to by Ill. Bro. Nicols, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated.

WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

Agreeably with a resolution passed at the Annual Court of Governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, held at Morecambe on the 1st October last, a "Special Court" was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Friday, the 21st inst., for the purpose of considering the following notice of motion, given at the above Annual Court by Bro. Robert Wylie, P. Prov. G.S.D.:—"That the amended bye-laws, as passed by the General Committee at an adjourned meeting, held on the 19th September last, be adopted."

The chair at the Special Court was occupied by Bro. J. Cobham, P.M. of the Merchants' Lodge, No. 241, and there was a very large attendance of Governors. The amended bye-laws were taken seriatim, and passed without much discussion.

There was considerable debate, however, on the following proposed amended bye-law as affecting the voting power of the various Governors:—"Plurality of votes applies only to elections of children. Nevertheless, upon any question before a General Court or General Committee, a donor or subscriber who has a vote in his own right may also record one vote each on behalf of any lodge or society of which he is the duly accredited representative." Its adoption was moved by Bro. R. Wylie.

A direct negative, however, was proposed by Bro. R. Brown, P.M. 241 and 1609, one of the Hon. Secs. of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, and seconded by Bro. R. Robinson, P.P.G. Reg., P.M. 241.

On being put to the meeting, the negative was carried by 44 to 16.

The other bye-laws were afterwards considered, and at the close of the business a cordial vote of thanks was given to the Chairman and sub-Committee who had considered the bye-laws.

CONSECRATION OF THE ERYRI CHAPTER, No. 1509.

The traveller who journeys northward from Barmouth Junction along the coast section of the Cambrian Railway, after crossing the estuaries of the Dwyryd and the Glaslyn will shortly find himself passing through a well-to-do seaport town standing at the extreme north corner of Cardigan Bay.

Portmadoc, for thus is the town named, scarce fifty years ago was a small hamlet of less than half a dozen houses lying under the shadow of Moel Gest; now, mainly through the opening of the large state quarries at Festiniog, for the produce of which it is the natural shipping port, a fair sized town stands in their place, which of late years has developed and increased with such rapidity as to become one of the most thriving and prosperous business towns on the western seaboard of the principality.

As rapid and prosperous as the rise and progress of Portmadoc itself has been the growth and development of Freemasonry thereat. The Madoc Lodge, No. 1509, consecrated so recently as 1874, now numbers on its roll-call over 100 brethren of the mystic art, whilst the recent establishment of a Royal Arch chapter in connection with it clearly shows that the zeal and earnestness of the brethren of this lodge have in no way been relaxed.

In truth, long prior to their petitioning the Supreme Grand Chapter for a charter of constitution the brethren of 1509 had desired to adopt that course, but the unfitness of their old lodge room at the Queen's Hotel for the requirements of the Holy Royal Arch has ever been a stumbling-block in their way, and now only on the completion of their new lodge room (on the erection of which somewhat over £1200 has been expended) have they been free to give effect to their long restrained desires. The requisite preliminaries having been duly gone through at the Quarterly Convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter of England, held on the 6th August last, the prayer of the petitioners was granted, and the required charter was received early in the following month. The petitioners had originally proposed to hold the consecration ceremony on the day following the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire, held at Portmadoc on the 18th September last, to dedicate the new Masonic buildings to the purposes of Freemasonry, but from causes which it is needless here to narrate it had to be deferred, and the M.E. Grand Superintendent of the province, Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart, M.P., finally consented to the consecration ceremony being held on the 12th day of the present month, the day after the installation of the present W.M. of 1509 into office and the annual celebration of the festival of St. John. It has since been a matter of great regret to the companions at Portmadoc that their respected M.E.P.G. Superintendent was through his severe accident incapacitated from himself presiding over the ceremony of consecration, as had originally been his intention, and almost at the last moment they were fearful that the proceedings would again have to be postponed, as through some inexplicable misconception of the instructions sent him on the part of the Grand Scribe E., it was only on the morning of the 10th that they received, in manuscript, an official programme of the ceremony, and an intimation that E. Comp. W. Johnson, P.Z. of Grosvenor Chapter, 721, had been appointed to preside at the consecration. However, on the arrival of the eventful day, all things went merry as a marriage bell, and in accordance with the customary ancient rites and ceremonies the newly-formed Eryri Chapter, 1509, was duly consecrated by E. Comp. W. Johnson, P.Z. 721; E. Comp. J. Poole, I.P.Z. 606, acting as H., and E. Comp. C. H. Rees, M.E.Z. 606, acting as J. on the occasion.

The chapter having been first duly opened and the numerous companions present having been marshalled by Comp. the Rev. Sidney Boucher, J. 606, who most efficiently acted as Director of Ceremonies during the proceedings, they were admitted. The officers of the new chapter were then ranged in order and presented, and the letter from the M.E.P.G. Supt., authorising E. Comp. Johnson to consecrate the chapter, having been read by the acting Scribe E., along with the petition and charter of the chapter, the ceremony of consecration by the Principals with corn, wine, and oil was proceeded with, and on its completion E. Comp. Johnson gave a most eloquent oration on the fundamental principles of Royal Arch Masonry. The three Principals designate having then been obligated, and all below the rank of First Principal having then been requested to retire, the M.E. Comp. Capt. Charles Hunter, Past Third Grand Principal of Scotland, P.Z. (S.C.) and Grand Representative from the S.G. Chapter of New Jersey, U.S., M.E.Z. designate, was duly installed into his chair, and on their respective re-admissions, Comp. Cornelius Davies, H. 606, and H. designate, and Comp. Dr. Robert Roberts, J. designate, were duly installed into the Second and Third Principals' chairs.

On the re-admission of the companions the following were duly invested as officers of the new chapter: Comps. J. G. Tuxford, Scribe E.; R. Evens, Scribe N.; E. S. Greaves, Treas.; W. Jones Morris, P. Soj.; W. H. Wheeler, 1st Asst. Soj.; T. H. Strowger, and Asst. Soj. The entire ceremony was most impressively given and conducted by E. Comp. Johnson.

On the proposal of Comp. Davies, H., seconded by Comp. Roberts, J., E. Comp. Wm. Bulkeley Hughes (M.P. for the Carnarvon Boroughs) was unanimously and with acclamation elected an honorary member of the chapter, the proposal being accompanied by an expression of regret that, in the unavoidable absence of the M.E. P.G. Supt., he had not been appointed to preside at the consecration ceremony as had been desired by the petitioners, and on the proposal of E. Comp. Capt. Hunter, M.E.Z., seconded by Comp. Davies, H., E. Comp. Johnson, P.Z. 721 (the Consecrating Officer); E. Comp. Poole, I.P.Z. 606; E. Comp. C. H. Rees, M.E.Z. 606; and Comp. the Rev. Sidney Boucher, J. 606, were unanimously elected honorary members of 1509, the hope being expressed that the mother chapter, 606, would equally benefit with the scion, 1509, in the progress and development of Royal Arch Masonry through a spirit of emulation and generous rivalry being fostered between them.

A number of propositions for joining and for exaltation having then been made, the chapter was closed in the accustomed and authorised manner, and the brethren then adjourned to do full justice to an excellent repast awaiting their attention at the Sportsman Hotel, where the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured.

7. REPORT OF THE BOARD OF GENERAL PURPOSES.

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.
The Board of General Purposes deeply regret to have to lay before Grand Lodge the resignation of Bro. John Hervey, who since August, 1868, has filled the very important office of Grand Secretary. At their meeting in October, leave of absence on account of severe ill-health was given by the Board to the Grand Secretary until 3rd of December following, being the date of the ensuing Quarterly Communication, and the hope was entertained that this relief from active duty might be productive of satisfactory results. This hope has however proved fallacious, and, under the advice of his medical attendants, Bro. Hervey states that there is no alternative before him but to resign the office he has, in the unanimous opinion of the Board, so honourably and usefully held, and in this view the Board in whose charge it is to recommend to Grand Lodge whatever it shall deem necessary or advantageous to the Craft, unanimously recommend that on his retirement from office Bro. John Hervey be granted a retiring pension of £800 a year, being the full amount of his salary.

The Board further report that their attention has been called to a constantly recurring breach of the following clause in the "Alterations made by command of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, in the mode of wearing the Charity Jewel, communicated to Grand Lodge, 7th June, 1876," viz.:

"No Charity Jewel, clasp, ribbon, or rosette shall be obtained except through the office of the Grand Secretary, to whom the Secretaries of the respective Institutions shall, after their respective annual festivals, hand lists of the names of the brethren entitled to the jewel or decorations hereinbefore authorised."

And they recommend that a copy of such clause be sent to the W. Master of every lodge under the English Constitution; and further, that it be distinctly intimated that Charity Jewels obtained since the 7th June, 1876, otherwise than through the office of Grand Secretary, are improper, and not to be worn.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.
18th November, 1879.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 14th inst., showing a balance in the Bank of England of £3802 1s. 7d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for petty cash £75, and for servants' wages £96 15s.

The President will then move:—

- 1st. That the report be received and entered on the minutes.
- 2nd. That the resignation by Bro. John Hervey of the office of Grand Secretary be accepted with sincere regret.
- 3rd. That in consideration of the very distinguished services rendered to the Craft by Bro. John Hervey, during his tenure of the office of Grand Secretary, he be granted a retiring pension of £800 per annum, being the full amount of his present salary.
- 4th. That the other recommendations contained in the report of the Board be adopted.

8. Appeal of Bro. Joseph Pallot, P.M. of the La Cesarée Lodge, No. 590, Jersey, against the decision of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Jersey, affirming his (Bro. Pallot's) resignation as a member of the La Cesarée Lodge.

9. Proposed Motions:—

1. By Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720:—That, in pursuance of a resolution of the Grand Lodge, passed at the Quarterly Communication, held on the first day of December, 1869, and confirmed at the subsequent meeting held on the 2nd of March, 1870, as follows, viz.:

"That, with a view to securing greater uniformity of working, and observance of the same usages and customs, throughout the several lodges held under the authority of the Grand Lodge of England, a Committee of Past Masters be appointed to enquire into the merits of the respective systems of working now in practice, and to report to Grand Lodge thereon, with such recommendations as they may think necessary to prevent deviation from the established mode, such deviations being, according to the constitutions of Freemasonry, improper, and not to be justified or countenanced," such Committee be now appointed.

2. By Bro. John M. Clabon, P.G.D., President of the Lodge of Benevolence:—That the following additions be made to the Book of Constitutions, Fund of Benevolence:

"17. Until Grand Lodge shall otherwise direct, one-third of the annual surplus of the Fund of Benevolence shall be appropriated for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and another third for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, in forming funds for apprenticing the children of Freemasons who have been in those Schools, or in otherwise assisting them to commence life.

"18. Such one-third parts respectively shall be invested in the names of four Trustees for each School, to be appointed by Grand Lodge, and the dividends paid to the Treasurer of each School.

"19. The General Committee, on the recommendation of the House Committee of each School, may apply the dividend of the funds respectively appropriated to the School for the benefit of children who have been at the School during the preceding twelve months, in apprenticing them to any business or profession, or otherwise aiding them to obtain employment, or in applying any sum granted by annual instalments for a limited period for the benefit of those proceeding to any school, college, or university.

"20. No sum exceeding £25 shall be appropriated for the benefit of any child without the consent of the Quarterly Court of the School; and such Court shall render to Grand Lodge an annual account of the receipts and expenditure on account of the said fund.

"That the Constitutions, No. 3 Fund of Benevolence, be amended by adding, after the word 'shall' on the second line, the words 'except as provided for by Clauses 17, 18, 19, and 20.'"

A report of the election meeting of the Westbourne Lodge, No. 733, which was held on Thursday week, is in type, but, owing to the pressure of matter, is crowded out. It shall appear in our next.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Colonel Creton, Grand Treasurer, in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. A. Dubois, A. J. Duff Filer, Griffiths Smith, H. B. Webster, E. Letchworth, Edwd. Cox, Joshua Nunn, F. Adlard, Andrew I. Suter, F. R. W. Hedges (Sec.), and H. Massey (Freemason).

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the brethren, on the motion of Bro. Griffiths Smith, seconded by Bro. H. A. Dubois, and upon the recommendation of the House Committee, conferred the title of Assistant Matron on Miss Shepherd, instead of Matron's Assistant, as a recognition of the services she has rendered to the Institution.

A notice of motion, by Bro. Joshua Nunn, was given that the salaries of the Head Governess (Miss Davis) and Assistant Governesses be raised, also recommended by the House Committee. The recommendation was made in consequence of the largely increased numbers of the children in the School. Bro. Joshua Nunn observed that the salaries paid to all the governesses were very much smaller than those paid at institutions of a similar calibre.

Bro. E. Cox gave notice of another motion with respect to a further increase of one of the salaries.

Bro. Edward Cox, who was Treasurer of the Board of Stewards of the last festival of the Institution, drew the attention of the meeting to the circumstance that several of the Stewards on that occasion did not pay their fees till some months afterwards, in consequence of which he had not been able to pay the liabilities of the festival for five months after the festival had taken place. He asked whether some means could not be devised to prevent the recurrence of such a scandal to Freemasonry.

Bro. Col. Creton observed that it was a great pity that such a circumstance had occurred, and he hoped that between the present time and next festival a remedy might be provided.

Several petitions were then examined, and the candidates placed on the list for the election in April.

The Committee adjourned till Wednesday, the 24th of December, at 4 o'clock.

FUNERAL OF BRO. E. J. PAGE, P.G.S., &c.

On Wednesday, the 19th inst., the mortal remains of this well and deservedly known brother were consigned to their last resting place, in Norwood Cemetery. The Masonic career of Bro. Page, who was in his sixtieth year, had extended over a quarter-of-a-century. He was a Past Master of the Globe, Dalhousie, and Kennington Lodges. He was also a Past Grand Steward and a Past Master of the Grand Stewards' Lodge. In the Royal Arch Degree he had been a very distinguished worker, and held the positions of P.Z. of the Jubilee Chapter and Second Principal of the Kennington Chapter. He was likewise a member of the Mark Degree, having been advanced in the old Thistle Lodge. But it was more in connection with the Masonic Charities that our deceased brother was so widely known and universally respected. He was a Vice-President of them all, and he had served as Steward at their respective annual festivals "many a time and oft." Although the weather was exceedingly cold, many members of the Craft attended the funeral, "in token of respect for departed merit."

Among the brethren present were several members of the Kennington Lodge, No. 1381, of which lodge Bro. Page was one of the founders, the first Master, and Treasurer. They comprised Bros. T. C. Walls, W.M.; Wm. Mann, P.M.; George Everett, P.M.; W. Stuart, P.M. and Sec.; Stranger, W.S.; Barry, and others. Other lodges were numerous represented; among them we noticed Bros. T. S. Mortlock, P.M. Industry, &c.; Littell, P.M. Dalhousie, &c.; Downie, 188; Palmer, 177; and others. It was during the preliminary service in the chapel that an event occurred almost unparalleled in the history of Masonic obsequies. Bro. Mortlock, who was sitting apparently deeply meditating, suddenly fell forward and struck the stone pavement of the chapel with terrible force. He was speedily removed to the outer air, and every attention given to him, but life had passed away, thus exemplifying to an awful degree the text that "in the midst of life we are in death." The service, thus lamentably interrupted, was proceeded with, and the large assemblage shortly afterwards dispersed. A brief obituary of Bro. Mortlock, whose sudden death was due to heart disease, appeared in our last impression.

The installation meeting of the William Preston Lodge, 766, was held on Thursday last at the Cannon-street Hotel, when Bro. W. Manfield Newton was installed W.M. A report of the meeting will appear in our next.

Bro. J. Walker, M.A., has presented to the Royal Union Lodge, No. 246, of which he is the W.M., with the sum of fifty guineas, which he proposed should be given in the name of the lodge to the Masonic Charities. Bro. Walker, in making the presentation, expressed in feeling terms how anxious he was that the lodge should become Vice-President of the three Institutions, it being already Vice-President of two. Bro. the Baron de Ferrieres at once generously offered to contribute the balance of seventeen guineas required for the acquisition of the third Vice-Presidentship.

DEATHS.

DELANE.—On the 22nd inst., at his residence, Ascot-heath, Berks, John T. Delane, for 36 years editor of the Times, aged 63.

DICKENS.—On the 22nd inst., at Gloucester Crescent, Regent's Park, Catherine Thomson Dickens, widow of Charles Dickens, after a long and painful illness most patiently borne, aged 65.

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1879.

BRO. JOHN HERVEY.

The entire Craft will have read with deep feelings of personal regret our announcement last week of the resignation of that distinguished brother, and on the ground of continued and confirmed ill-health. In the proposal to accord to him a retiring pension, as made by the Board of General Purposes, all will heartily concur, as no one has ever, in his official capacity and Masonic labours, deserved truer recognition at the hands of the Craft and of Grand Lodge. It will be the sincere hope of all, as well as the prayer, that in the wisdom and providence of the G.A.O.T.U., he may be spared many years to enjoy the rest and solace of domestic retirement, and let us hope the renewal and restoration of that greatest of blessings—health, accompanied, as he will be, by the hearty good wishes of our entire brotherhood. For in Bro. John Hervey the Grand Lodge has not only lost a most valuable adviser, but all Freemasons a sincere brother and real friend. The discharge of his laborious duties by Bro. John Hervey, increasing yearly in serious severity, has been most remarkable and commendable, paying attention, as he did, to the most minute as well as the greatest responsibilities of his high office, letting nothing escape him, and being ever easy of access, urbane and genial, kindly and considerate, shrinking from no duty, and labouring manfully when prudence might have whispered, "spare your health and strength." Those of us who have had the privilege of working with and under our old Grand Secretary will call to mind his intense unselfishness, his wish to put forward others, his generous recognition of the work of others, and the unwillingness he ever displayed either to claim the prerogative of his office or high official position. It will, indeed, be a long time before Freemasons' Hall shall welcome so truthful and zealous an administrator of official functions, so courteous and friendly to all, whom to know was to admire, respect, and love. He has left a mark on Masonry which it will not be easy to efface, and whoever succeeds him will have a hard task before him, whether as emulating his zeal and yet his tact, his forbearance and yet his fairness, his profound acquaintance alike with the Constitutions and ritual of Freemasonry. But the hardest labours of all will be to win, as he did, the confidence, and regard, and affection of his brethren.

The name of Bro. John Hervey will linger for many a long year on the mouths and minds of Masons, "familiar on our lips as household words," and those who knew him well, those who were associated with him the most, will ever gratefully recall the pleasant hours of intimacy with him, the privilege of friendship, and the advantage of fellowship—will ever honour him as a Mason, will always love him as a Man.

THE PRESTONIAN LECTURE.

We think it high time that some attempt be made to revive this valuable source of Masonic instruction, and to carry out the will of Bro. Preston. If it be true, as we have heard, that there is some difficulty now in ascertaining where the original legacy is, in that it has become mingled with the general funds of Grand Lodge, there can be no reason why we should not revive the trust, and have an annual lecture and lecturer. There are, it seems, Trustees of the Fund but it does not appear in our Grand Lodge accounts, and no appointment has been made since Bro. Warren, many years ago, who delivered the Lecture on the First Degree. But those of the Second and Third Degrees, have not been delivered in the memory of Masons, and are, we are told, still in cypher in the archives of the Lodge of Antiquity or the Board of General Purposes. Would it not be well to appoint some brother of that lodge the Lecturer for 1880?

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Our readers will perceive by our report elsewhere that Bro. Col. Creaton carried his motion unanimously at the Special Court of the Girls' School on Saturday last, to purchase house and grounds at the price of £6500. We feel sure that the Quarterly Court arrived at a wise decision, and that the amount, though large per se, is both justifiable and will be well expended. For it will, we think, commend itself to all our readers when they realize the immense importance to us as an Order of our admirable Girls' School, and when, above all, they fully understand that did we let this opportunity slip of freeing the School from probable inconvenient buildings, we should only regret it once and for ever. It is not the first time in the history of the School, that by an injudicious parsimony, the health and position of the School have been jeopardized, and we, therefore, congratulate our distinguished brother, the Grand Treasurer, and the Quarterly Court, on the reasonable and sensible acceptance of a far-seeing and practical proposition, made for the happy progress and the permanent welfare of the Girls' School.

BRO. CLABON'S SCHEME.

It is not often we venture to differ with this most distinguished brother, and when we do so we always do so with diffidence and reluctance. Bro. Clabon's high character and good services render him one of the "authorities" of our Craft, and his words are always listened to with pleasure and profit, and his suggestions always received with deference and respect. But we must demur to his present proposal respectfully on this one ground, that until the words at page 96 of the Constitutions, which relate to the Fund of Benevolence, are enlarged by Grand Lodge, they do not cover this appropriation of the money. The formation of such a fund cannot under any principle of legal interpretation come under the definition of "solely devoted to charity." Believing, therefore, that Bro. Clabon is "estopped" by the verbiage of our enactments at present from thus using the Funds of Benevolence, we think we can predict the fate of the motion. We do not enter into the arguments "pro and con." Much no doubt may be said, but it is needless, we fancy, at present to enter on such a topic, independently of the legal objection to the course proposed, another pertinent question arises, how can you legally divert to the specific objects of special institutions funds set apart to the general purposes of Masonic charity? Why select even the two metropolitan educational Institutions? is a further query which many in the provinces will also desiderate a reply to. We all recognize Bro. Clabon's good intent and praiseworthy aims in this utilization of the Fund of Benevolence, but we doubt its practicability, and, above all, its legality. On the whole we think the preferable plan would be increased grants from Grand Lodge qua grants to the three great Institutions.

UNIFORMITY OF RITUAL.

We note Bro. Stevens's notice of motion at the next Grand Lodge, which we heartily regret to read. For, in our opinion, which we have never sought to conceal, the proposition is alike uncalled for and unsound in the highest degree, inasmuch as it raises questions which had better remain in abeyance, and throws down a "bone of contention" which may lead to ulterior consequences not likely to be productive of harmony or satisfaction in our Order. Indeed, we feel bound to say, a more inopportune and unwise resolution we have never perused, as it ignores the entire history of Masonic ritual, puts on one side the present "status," which is quite satisfactory on the whole, and if carried out to its legitimate conclusion, as the mover hopes, must lead, in all probability, to a prolonged and acrimonious controversy. We cannot too much deprecate the way Grand Lodge has been treated in this matter. Not until much published matter has been largely circulated does the mover approach Grand Lodge, reversing the Masonic order of procedure at any rate. If there is one point which ought not to come before the public it is the question of Masonic ritual, but from some recent contributions on the subject to which our attention has been called, we really do not know where our Masonic conscience is gone to. We hope that at the next meeting of Grand Lodge a decisive majority will put a stop to a senseless agitation, and affix its mark of reprobation on all who, forgetful of Masonic duty, and insensible of the benefits of Masonic toleration, are ready to invest a mere question of verbiage and traditional formulæ with the importance of a subject bound up with the vital interests of English Freemasonry.

A GRUMBLE.

We have read the remarks of "I.P.M.," but we confess, with little satisfaction on the whole. If there might be some foundation for his first letter, and with parts of which we fully agree, there can be none for his second, which has degenerated, (he must pardon us for saying so), into a foolish, vituperative, unfair, and unfounded attack on our great and useful Charities. It is clear, as our brother ingeniously confesses, that he is a young Mason, despite his rank, and has a good deal to learn before he can be permitted to declaim or to dogmatize on subjects which many of us have been familiar with for many long years. Having said this, we will proceed to point out where we agree and where we disagree with "I.P.M." We think, as we have always thought, that our annual reports might be improved, and that a short statement of the annual operations and position of each Charity might judiciously be sent for distribution among the lodges. As it is, the present reports fall into the hands of the few instead of the many, and certainly not more than one-third of the Craft know anything of the working of our great Institutions, take cognizance of their proceedings, or subscribe to their funds. Here then is a simple improvement, easily accomplished, which might lead to much addition and desired support of the Charities. But there our agreement with "I.P.M." ceases. His attacks on the voting system seem flavoured with the quack nostrums of the Charity Reform Association, and are neither realistic as facts nor practical as suggestions. His picture of the present elections is a very highly coloured one indeed, and if drawn with apparent pre-Raphaelite minuteness is marked by that grotesqueness of imagery and those contortions of personality which sometimes mark the elaborate productions of the acolytes of that demonstrative but doubtful school. We think it needless to animadvert upon them, as they fall from their own inner unreality, and when our worthy brother has a little more Masonic experience, and understands more fully the actual working of our Charities, he will be the first, we are convinced, to admit how mistaken are his theories and how exaggerated his complaints. Those of us who have had to do with the Charities for years, know well their work and utility, and, on the whole now, the elections are as fair as fair can be, allowing for that ever necessary ingredient in all earthly institutions, human infirmity. We, therefore, regret to read these fresh complaints, which have been met and answered over and over again, and trust that our good brother will see good cause ere long to modify his present estimate of the voting system in our great Charities.

THE VACANT GRAND SECRETARYSHIP.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I venture to trouble you with a few lines to-day, though I feel at the outset that the subject on which I am about to address you is both difficult and delicate in the highest degree. The much regretted resignation of our excellent Bro. John Hervey, has placed at the disposal of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master, the patronage in respect of the most important office in our Order. It is not for me, or for any one else, to venture in the pages of your widely circulated journal to point out to our Royal Grand Master either his duty or the wants of the Craft. He is too well acquainted with both to need either the advice of the intrusive or the suggestions of the sagacious. We may rest assured, I feel fully convinced, that as he thoroughly realizes the responsibility which rests upon him, so in the appointment he has to make he will only consider what will best conduce to the real interests of our great fraternity. There can be no doubt that the wide-spread popularity of our Royal Grand Master will be markedly increased among us when it is announced in Grand Lodge that he has selected a brother qualified to discharge the duties of his high office, and to maintain the prestige of the most important Masonic body in the world. Knowing fully what the Grand Lodge of England is, alike in position at home and in influence abroad, I think that we may all of us rest tranquil in the assurance that His Royal Highness will nominate a Craft Mason fully competent to uphold the high dignity and solid independence of the English Grand Lodge as a great Craft body, and who is not likely to weaken his own personal and independent position by being in any way intimately connected with any other organizations, especially with those many forms of quasi-Masonry which, however they commend themselves to their own members, have nothing to do with Craft Masonry proper, and only serve to embarrass and weaken the position and progress of true Craft Freemasonry in the world. Craft Masonry has many foes to contend with at the present hour, and it can only, in my humble opinion, be successfully defended or safely upheld on the old and genuine principles of true Freemasonry, which have ever governed and directed the Grand Lodge of England as separate and distinguished from every other body, whether of Philanthropic or High Grade Masonry. Apologizing for thus trespassing on your valuable space, but expressing, I fancy, imperfectly the feelings of very many Craft Masons,

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

A CRAFT GRAND OFFICER.

UNIFORMITY OF WORKING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In view of Bro. James Stevens's motion being brought before the Grand Lodge at the next Quarterly Communication, on Wednesday, the 3rd prox., will you very kindly allow me space to respectfully submit the following suggestions to secure uniformity of working?

That a Grand Lodge of Preceptors be formed in London, and worked as follows:—Take any recognised leading lodge of instruction, say the Lodge of Emulation, held at Freemasons' Hall, over which shall preside a Grand Preceptor; to this lodge all members of the Craft wishing to act as Preceptors within the metropolitan district shall become attached, the Grand Preceptor to grant certificates of competence to those qualified to teach, and without same no one shall be recognised as a Preceptor—the W.M. of the various lodges to which a lodge of instruction may be attached not to grant a dispensation for such lodge without satisfying himself, and to be held responsible, that the intended Preceptor has a certificate as above.

For the provinces there should be a provincial lodge of Preceptors, presided over by a Provincial Grand Preceptor, holding from the Grand Preceptor a special certificate of competence, which should also empower him to grant certificates to Preceptors in his district upon same terms and conditions as in the metropolitan district. In the event of death, resignation, or removal of Provincial Grand Preceptors, the successors to be appointed in same manner as predecessors.

Perhaps it would not be out of place that Preceptors should wear a distinctive jewel, for, although a most useful, hard-working, and praiseworthy section of the Craft, they have no officially recognised position.

Lodges of instruction as at present constituted are without sufficient superior control, and very open to neglect or abuse; any member of the Craft having time at disposal, and an idea of ability, can, with a little trouble, if he finds a sufficient number of students, start a new or preside over an old lodge of instruction; hence the many different modes of working that now exist.

I would further respectfully suggest that, in order the better to enforce a due obedience to those excellent laws and tenets laid down for our guidance in Freemasonry, the Preceptor and Secretary of lodges of instruction, if not already members of the mother lodge, should be affiliated thereto as honorary members with all the duties and advantages of subscribing members; this would also operate as a reward for their labours. The present complicated and various modes of working certainly require a thorough overhauling and setting right by those in authority, the more especially since the Craft has made such rapid strides of late and attained such vast dimensions.

Apologizing for the length of this epistle, yours, very fraternally,

W. C. T., W.M. No. 1622.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The term "uniformity" is one which, at first sight or sound, is calculated to enlist attention, and when applied to lodge working must meet with approbation. I agree with Bro. W. J. Hugban as to its desirability in essentials, but doubt very much whether it can be attained or not in working. It has been my privilege from time to time to meet with American brethren, and I have met one who has taken part in a lodge-working in the Australian bush, with the open sky above for its covering; but with them, although they have admitted the differences of working, still, the working has not been held up as the summum bonum of Masonry. To my mind the essentials of Masonry are apt to be lost sight of by those who attach too much importance to a rigid working of any lodge in particular, or an uniformity of lodge-working in general.

In these days of diversity of opinion, Masons not being an exception to the rule, the mind must be free to accept Masonic matters according to circumstances, semper eadem being applied to its vital principles alone, which have been handed down to us from time immemorial.

A common error among many Masons who are "up" is that of twitting those who are the reverse. I know several of this kind, and to a young Mason they are anything but pleasant; because, instead of affording "instruction to the brethren of the inferior Degrees," they magnify their own importance (when questioned) by all sorts of evasive answers, such as "don't be in a hurry;" "wait a bit;" "you will know in time;" "you are but young;" or if they do not manifest their disagreeableness in this way, they do it by insisting wherever they go that everybody is wrong but themselves. This kind of spirit is generally the result of limiting Masonry to the mere lodge working.

I can sympathise very much with your Scotch correspondent, "M.M. 392, S.C.," because some lodges, I believe, do push the test too far, in fact, I know of one case in particular where an old Mason, who knew his duty almost to perfection, was refused admission to a "genteel" lodge upon a mere technicality. To my mind, what we have to ascertain is this—is he a brother? If he be, how shall we find this out? Well, here we are on delicate ground, because the evidence which would satisfy one would not satisfy another, especially if "word-perfection" were admitted to be the test standard. In the absence of uniformity there cannot be an universal word-test, therefore, caution and discretion in dealing with the circumstances of each individual case ought to be the principles upon which we should act in discerning whom we will recognise and whom we will not.

The Book of Constitutions virtually requires, and some lodges insist upon, the production of his certificate when a visitor seeks admission to a lodge, or that he shall be properly vouched for. Now, the mere production of a certificate of itself proves nothing, the matter to be proved, as regards the certificate is concerned, is, is the holder the rightful owner? If I am not mistaken as to the real principles of Masonry, what we have to do with one who wishes to recognise us, either privately or by visiting our lodge, is to be "wise as serpents and harmless as doves" in our dealing with him, and if, after due trial and strict examination, we find he is his one of us, then give to him his due, the right hand of fellowship. Supposing uniformity of working to exist, if perfection were demanded, how many brethren would be at the trouble to be prepared either to pass into a private lodge, Provincial Grand Lodge, or the Grand Lodge of England?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

PETER LEE.

OLD MASONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I can furnish you with the name of a yet older Mason, Bro. Thomas Thorpe Delassaur, who was initiated in this lodge (1635) August 24th, 1820, passed September 28th the same year, and raised January 20th, 1821. He is, I believe, the oldest Coroner in England, having been elected to that office in April, 1820, and, strange to say, has, with the exception of one or two, outlived all those who voted for him on the occasion. He is, albeit in his 83rd year, hale and hearty, and in possession of his corporeal and mental faculties in their fullest energy.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN R. HALL.

REV. DR. ACE'S APPEAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have to thank you for the kind interest you have taken in this matter. I am happy to state the result of my appeal has been most satisfactory. The "Lady of the Manor" has sent a cheque for £181 17s. (amount of builder's account), and numerous friends have come forward.

The following sums have been paid to Messrs. Smith, Payne & Smith's, Lombard-street, viz.:

Corban
C. S.
Thomas King
Brethren of the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, per A. Withers
Hale and Son
Rowlston

Bro. J. Sutcliffe
" T. Oldham
" Johnson
" Green

Dr. Ace proposes to send a list of subscribers and statement of account to each supporter on completion of the list.

About £350 has been contributed in all, and a further sum of £100 will entirely clear the Doctor of this most unpleasant position.

I shall be happy to receive any further sums. Again thanking you, and the many kind friends who have so promptly come forward,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

PRECEDENCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I wish to enquire what position a Provincial Grand Officer, not a Past Master of a Lodge, holds in his lodge?

I am told he has, ex officio, a right to the rank of P.M. in everything but installation ceremonies, and as such should claim a seat amongst the P.M.'s.

If you will kindly give me authoritative information I shall feel obliged,

Yours fraternally,

P.P.G.O.

[A P.G. Officer has no rank in lodge except what he obtains by his actual position in Masonry. Unless he be an Installed Master he has no rank of P.M., though, of course, he takes precedence of all ordinary members of the lodge.—Ed.]

ADMISSION OF STRANGERS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Residing some distance from my mother lodge, I have on several occasions visited lodges at which I was an entire stranger, but was never refused admission, although I have had to undergo a certain preliminary examination at each lodge, to which no M.M. should object; but as M.M. 392, S.C., is so hard on the English lodges in your last issue, I will relate how I gained admission into a Scotch lodge, and leave every brother, English and Scotch, to decide which is the safest system of receiving strangers.

Being in Glasgow not long ago I visited an old lodge there, holding meetings in Buchanan-street. I signed the roll, prepared myself, and handed my parchment to the Tyler, who, after examining it, returned it, saying, "all right," and ushered me into the lodge; thinking this a loose system, I asked the Tyler (before reaching the door) if I had been duly announced, when he replied, as before "all right," and passed me into the lodge, which I found to be open in the Second Degree. The W.M. finding me to be a stranger, asked how I had gained admission, when I related to him what transpired outside the lodge. He therefore instructed the J.W. to examine me to prove that I was an E.A., and afterwards F.C.; to these examinations I submitted myself, but when the W.M. attempted to prove me to be a M.M. I blankly refused (knowing the lodge to be open in the Second Degree only), and wished to retire until the lodge was open in the Third Degree. The W.M., however, did not consider it necessary for me to retire, but requested me to be seated, that the business of the lodge might be proceeded with, when I was much surprised to hear him call upon two brothers (Fellow Crafts) to retire, that the lodge might be opened in the Third Degree, I being allowed to remain (without further examination) to witness a ceremony which I very much enjoyed, the working being excellently performed, and two F.C.'s raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M.

Hoping you may find space for this in your valuable journal,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,
M.M. 594, E.C.

Salford, November 24th, 1879.

N.B.—I can give number of lodge and date of meeting if required.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In more than one of the letters which have recently appeared in your columns, I find the word "noviciate" used instead of "novice."

I venture to point out to the writers of those letters that a novitiate is a state or condition, or a period of time; while a novice is a living entity. It would have an odd look, but it would be no more incorrect to call a "candidate" a "candidature" than it is to call "a novice" "a novitiate."

While I am writing, may I be permitted to point out a gross error which one too often hears in the lodge—the word "universe" when only "the world" is intended. We have no means of knowing whether or not Freemasonry exists in other worlds than our own, but we may gravely doubt if an edict of even that wise and mighty prince, King Solomon, would have force and effect in those distant regions.

One other error has been handed down to us from our less instructed predecessors, namely, "from whence." "Whence" means literally "from which place," therefore to add the word "from" to "whence" is an absurdity and, as Dr. Johnson calls it, "a barbarism." It would be as reasonable to say "to whither" as to say "from whence," "from thence," "from hence," "from henceforth," and last and worst barbarism of all, "for why." The last is happily of rare occurrence. Unfortunately Hood has immortalised it in "Eugene Aram's Dream,"

"For why, methought
Last night I wrought
A murder in a dream."

Poets, however, enjoy a degree of license not permitted to writers of prose. The members of our lodges are, as a rule, far above the average in education and position, and it requires but little thought on the part of officers and instructors to perceive and to eliminate from our work incorrect and obsolete, and, above all, barbarous modes of expression.

Yours fraternally, P.M.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly allow me through your columns to say that I shall feel greatly obliged to any Secretaries who will take the trouble to send me specimens of the forms of lodge summons and clearance certificate in use in their respective lodges.

Yours truly and fraternally,

THE ROYAL ARCH AT YORK.

I rejoice to see by my Bro. Hughan's remarks that Bro. Whythead has "struck" fresh "oil" at York. I congratulate him on the discovery, as that fact throws back the Royal Arch a good deal later, and is most important and interesting "per se." Let us hope that Bro. Whythead, like Bro. Vernon and others, will continue his investigations. I have always said that much yet remains to be explored and much to be verified.

THE QUATUOR CORONATI.

Bro. Gould's interesting reference to the early church of the "Quatuor Coronati" at Canterbury opens out much valuable ground. There was, however, an earlier church at Canterbury, probably built by a Roman Guild, and used by Queen Bertha and her French Bishop Chaplain before the arrival of Augustine. All this shows not only how early was the legend, but, probably, how true also is the tradition. Perhaps Bro. Gould can ascertain, (for I have not time to do so just now), what is the date of the earliest Service Book in the British Museum which contains the "Quatuor." I rejoice to see so many able students entering the interesting but neglected pathways of Masonic archeology. Bro. Hughan and I have often regretted the paucity of fellow labourers in so good a cause.

HERTFORD LODGE.

The history of the Hertford Masonic Lodge, No. 403 so ably compiled by the indefatigable Bro. T. S. Carter Prov. J.G.W. Herts, is worthy of note, because of its unique character in some respects. I see our brother P.M. No. 1 objects to the terms of the address to Bro. S. Austin, when installed in 1878, as being an unprecedented circumstance, and for the reason our esteemed Bro. R. H. Giraud, P.M., &c., having been a member of No. 1 several years longer than Bro. Austin has of No. 403. Now the point is not as to the length of membership mainly that the installation of Bro. Austin was remarkable, but because he was one of the first initiates on the day the lodge was inaugurated in 1829, and as a P.M. was installed in Nov. 1878, to be the Master of the lodge on the celebration of its jubilee in 1879. Now, is there another instance of an initiate on the formation of a lodge continuing a member, and being installed Master for the jubilee celebration? If so, then this circumstance, so pleasing to the members of No. 403, is not so singular and noteworthy as they deem it to be.

THE "ROYAL LODGE," LONDON.

In reply to your correspondent enquiring as to the Royal Lodge, I find it included in Wm. Cole's engraved list of 1770, where it appears as "No. 251, Royal Lodge, Thatch House, St. James-street, late the new lodge at the Horn, Westminster, meeting on the 1st Friday, date of warrant 4th April, 1764."

ANOTHER MS. CONSTITUTION.

At a sale by Puttick and Simpson on the 12th November, the following MS. is announced as No. 650: "The Antient Constitutions of the Free and Accepted Masons, a very curious folio manuscript, ornamented title and drawing by Inigo Jones, old red morocco, gilt leaves, dated 1607." Unfortunately, being in the north, I did not see the catalogue until the sale was over. I am now trying to ascertain into whose hands it has fallen.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A Special General Court of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, for the purpose of considering a recommendation of the Building Committee:—

"That the sum of six thousand five hundred pounds (£6500) be expended in the purchase of Lyncombe House and grounds (freehold), the property of Wm. Evill, Esq., adjoining the grounds of the Institution, at St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise, S.W."

Lieut. Col. John Creaton, J.P., Grand Treasurer, Treasurer and Trustee of the Institution, presided, and the other brethren who attended were Bros. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Col. James Peters, Herbert Dicketts, Henry Venn, Thomas Massa, H. A. Dubois, John A. Rucker, E. Letchworth, John Sampson Peirce, S. Rawson, Griffiths Smith, Charles John Perceval, F. Binckes, Capt. John Wordsworth, George Kenning, Arthur E. Gladwell, F. R. W. Hedges (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

Bro. Hedges having read the advertisement convening the meeting,

The Chairman said that in moving the adoption of the recommendation of the Building Committee he should be very brief. The brethren were all well aware that the Institution had not too much open space at Battersea Rise. At present they had not much to complain of because the adjoining lands were not built upon, but if such an occurrence should take place, the School would be very much hemmed in. They had the opportunity now to purchase a very large house, which he might call a mansion, and a piece of ground adjoining the School lands, which would only require the removal of a wall and the two grounds would be one. The house was a large one, and at this moment he believed contained twenty people. From this the brethren might judge of its size—that it was not a cottage. If they gave their sanction to the proposed purchase, the grounds would remain open; but if not, the present owner intended to build upon them. He might add that the house and grounds could not be entered upon immediately, as they would not be able to have possession before perhaps a year, if they agreed to purchase. But as soon as the purchase was completed the money would bear interest at 4 per cent.

Bro. C. J. Perceval enquired how much ground there was.

The Chairman said it was about three-quarters of an acre. It was not an acre, but it was more than three-quarters. He then concluded by moving:—

"That the sum of six thousand five hundred pounds (£6500) be expended in the purchase of Lyncombe House and grounds (freehold), the property of Wm. Evill, Esq., adjoining the grounds of the Institution at St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise, S.W."

Bro. H. A. Dubois seconded the motion.

The Chairman having called for any remarks the brethren had to offer,

Bro. Henry Venn, after a short pause, said he had been in hopes that some one would have put a question or two to the Chairman upon the subject, because it seemed to him and some other brethren that the property proposed to be bought was a small piece and not a very eligible site. Therefore, as one of the Governors, he wished to ask what was the supposed rental of the land and house, because they would then have an idea of whether they were paying a fancy price or a market price. He had taken the opportunity of asking an experienced man what was the value of the property. He would like also to enquire whether there was any other purchaser in the field, or whether this Institution was the only body that required it. He thought the subscribers were entitled to come and ask these questions, because they were not all a Building Committee, and there were a large number of Governors so many miles away that they could not afford the time to come and enquire themselves. He understood the Institution was going to give £1000 more than they ought to give for the property, and, on behalf of the country Governors, he ventured to put these questions. He was sure the brethren composing the Building Committee had the best intentions, and were under the impression that they were doing perfectly right. Nevertheless, he did not think it was quite right the Court should pass this motion without the whole question being ventilated. It was said by some who could not attend these meetings that they had no voice in the matter, and that the matter was all cut and dried before the Court met. If, however, the brethren who attended put these questions the country brethren would see that their interests were attended to.

The Chairman said he had to mention, with regard to the value of the property in question, the Committee had every reason to believe that in taking it they were not taking land of any great value. The value, however, was increasing every day. With regard to the house, he was sure it could be utilised for the purposes of the School by making it a probationary school, which would enable the Institution to take in a larger number of girls than at present. There was another point too—the house was in the main road, opposite the railway station, and this would afford the School house and grounds an entrance which was very desirable. To sum up the whole matter, he thought the grounds and house were worth almost any amount to the Institution which it could pay, and there were many reasons which warranted the recommendation of the Building Committee, but above all it was most desirable that the Institution should be increased.

Bro. Herbert Dicketts said the Chairman had remarked that Mr. Evill would build on the land if the Institution did not buy it. He quite agreed with the Building Committee that it was necessary the Institution should have the land, though it might cost more than it would in the open market. He lived himself in the neighbourhood, he knew the property well, and he had gone into the question to the best of his ability. He had come to the conclusion that if the property were put up to auction it would not fetch £5000. If he wanted it for his family to live in it would fetch a rent of £200. That would give the price at twenty-five years' purchase of £5000. He was prepared to admit that the house would be very useful, especially if there was a chance of increasing the number of girls, and he quite agreed with the Chairman's remark that it would make a good preparatory school. There was a difficulty when ten, twelve, or sixteen girls came into the School, and it would be an advantage to put them first of all in the preparatory school for twelve or eighteen months. As he understood, when the Committee first asked Mr. Evill about the property he wanted 8000 guineas. He then reduced it to 7000 guineas. The Building Committee offered him £6000, and he said if they would give him £6500 they should have it.

The Chairman said there was no other purchaser in the field. Mr. Evill did not insure that there would not be, but he would build upon the site if he did not sell it. Mr. Evill would not take a farthing less than £6500.

Bro. Peacock supported the motion.

Bro. J. S. Peirce, as a professional man, had studied the question. Living in the neighbourhood, too, he knew the property for the last quarter-of-a-century. The authorities of the School had lost several opportunities of buying property in the neighbourhood, and they had regretted it but once, and that was ever since. The health, comfort, and general recreation of the girls would be materially interfered with if they had all sorts of houses built on this site as they had on others.

Bro. Gladwell thought if this property was let go, and was built upon, there would be a diminution in the value of the School as it at present stood.

The Chairman, in answer to a question, said there was not much ground to the house.

The motion was then put and carried, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. LEONARD'S LODGE, No. 1842.

For some few years past the necessity for the establishment of a lodge at St. Leonard's has been felt and acknowledged by several of the most prominent members of the Craft in the twin towns of Hastings and St. Leonard's, and in consequence of the action taken by several of the brethren a few months ago and after the usual amount of preliminary routine, a warrant was granted on August 23rd, and the lodge, which is named the St. Leonard's Lodge, and bears the number 1842, was consecrated on Friday week, the 21st inst., in one of the rooms in the new buildings called the Warrior Square Concert Rooms, which have recently been completed in that town. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, there was a large attendance of the brethren, among whom we noticed Bros. John Henderson Scot. D. Prov. G.M. of Sussex; Major-General the Hon. Somerset Gough Calthorpe, Junior Grand Warden of England; Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain of England, and D. Prov. G.M. of Suffolk; Joseph Dixon, P.M. 271, P. Prov. S.G. W., acting as Prov. S.G.W.; H. Davey (Mayor of Brighton), P.M. 732, Prov. J.G.W.; E. R. Adams, S.W. 1466, Prov. G. Chap.; R. Crosskey, P.M. 1303, Prov. G. Treas.; Wm. Dawes, P.M. 341, P. Prov. G. Reg., as Prov. G. Reg.; V. P. Freeman, P.M. 271, Prov. G. Sec.; C. W. Duke, P.M. 40 and 1184, P. Prov. J.G.D., as Prov. S.G.D.; O. N. Wyatt, P.M. 38, Prov. G.S. of W.; J. M. Kidd, P.M. 732, Prov. G.D. of C.; A. R. Croucher (M.D., J.P., &c.), P.M. 40, Prov. G. Ass. D. of C.; A. J. Hawkes, P.M. 315, Prov. G.S.B.; A. Bray, 40; J. P. Reeve, 40; J. Pearce, 40; J. Thompson, 1693; Crosstwaite, 40; Lieut.-Col. Tubbs (St. Paul's Lodge, S.C.); W. Savery, 1184; G. Gaze, 40; C. H. Norris, P.M. 40; A. J. Scott, T. S. Watts, P.M. 916; W. Kirkland, W.M. 1110, P. Prov. G.P.; A. Taylor, P.M. 1110; John Howell, P.M. 40, P. Prov. G.S. of W.; W. H. Fletcher, from the British Lodge, No. 334, held at the Cape of Good Hope; A. W. Elliott, 40; J. Saunders, 1139; T. C. Hulburd, 1597; S. Tanner, 310; A. R. Lyc, 1110; T. Markwick, 40; F. Doyle, 190; Fred Duke, 40; F. H. Parsons (M.D.), 40; A. L. Ward, 40; W. L. Vernon, 40; T. H. Wadd, 40; F. de Brabant Cooper, 40; A. Carey, 1000; J. Cooke (M.B.), 40; and C. Ashenden, 40.

A little after the appointed time, the brethren assembled in the lodge room, and the Provincial Grand Lodge was received in full form. The lodge was then opened in the Three Degrees, and the usual preliminary ceremonies having been carried out, the founders of the new lodge were called together, and the warrant, dated August 23rd, 1879, signed by Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., was read, authorising Bros. Thos. Trollope, A. R. Croucher, T. H. Cole, W. T. Hickman, A. L. Ward, John Cooke, Francis H. Parsons, M.D., James A. Beckett, Thos. Hubbard, T. H. Wadd, E. W. J. Hennah, W. L. Vernon, T. Brassey, M.P., and others to hold the lodge.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master delivered an address to the brethren, in which he specially referred to the old Derwent Lodge at Hastings having, in conjunction with the Union Lodge at Chichester, and the Clarence at Brighton, kept alive the spark of Freemasonry in the Province of Sussex during many dark and troublesome years. It was upwards of one hundred years since the Derwent Lodge was first established at Hastings, and although it was often said in our every-day conversation that it would be "all the same a hundred years hence," here was an evidence that the actions of men had their effect upwards of a hundred years later. But for their predecessors in the Derwent Lodge they might not have been that day. Bro. Scott also expressed his hope that there would not be any petty jealousy, no caprice, no carving or cavilling amongst the brethren, and expressed his pleasure that the W.M. designate of the new lodge was his worthy friend and brother, Dr. Trollope.

The Prov. G. Chaplain, the Rev. E. R. Adams, delivered an eloquent and impressive oration, referring especially to three kinds of Freemasons, whom he might respectively term Masons in name, Masons in ritual, and Masons in reality. The first class simply joined the Craft, and took no interest in its ceremonies, in its lessons, or its Charities, and were rarely to be seen except at the banquet table. A much worthier class were the "Ritual Masons," who took the greatest interest in the work of Freemasonry, and were seldom absent from lodge and other meetings. But the most worthy were the "Real Masons," who, while not letter-perfect in the ritual, nor over stringent as to whether a chair was entered from the right side or the wrong, acted up to the real spirit of Freemasonry in act as well as in word, and who carried out the principles of the Order in their daily life, and were made better fathers, better husbands, and better sons.

The lodge board was then uncovered, and the elements of consecration were carried round and poured upon it, and the lodge was declared by the D.P.G.M. to be regularly opened.

Bro. Trollope, P. Prov. S.G.W., was then installed W.M., and the following brethren were appointed officers for the ensuing twelve months, viz.:—Bros. A. R. Croucher, M.D., Prov. G.A.D. of C., S.W.; T. H. Cole, M.A., P. Prov. G.A.D. of C., J.W.; F. H. Parsons, Treas.; F. de Brabant Cooper, Sec.; W. L. Vernon, S.D.; A. L. Ward, J.D.; T. H. Wadd, I.G.; and William Leslie, Tyler.

The usual addresses were most ably given to the newly-installed W.M., the Wardens, and the brethren of the lodge, the two former by Bro. C. J. Smith, Prov. G. Std., and the latter by the D.P.G.M., who also officiated as Installing Master.

Cordial votes of thanks were proposed, and unanimously carried, to Bro. Scott, for his kind attendance and able services in the consecration and installation that day, and to the Rev. Bro. E. R. Adams, Prov. G. Chaplain, for his most impressive and eloquent address.

Several brethren were proposed as joining members, and several gentlemen as candidates for initiation, and the Senior Warden (Bro. A. R. Croucher) was elected as the representative of the lodge on the Provincial Charity Committee.

Bro. Trollope, the W.M., and the officers of the St. Leonard's Lodge, cannot but have felt grateful at the number of visitors who honoured them with their presence at the ceremony, and from the gentlemen proposed as members the lodge has every promise of a successful career under the Mastership of so distinguished and so active a Mason as Bro. Trollope, and we feel assured that he will be ably assisted by his officers, and that the St. Leonard's Lodge will soon take a prominent position in the Province of Sussex.

The musical arrangements in connection with the ceremony were under the direction of Bro. Alfred King, Prov. G.O., who, with the assistance of Bros. Rossiter, Russell, and other musical brethren, added considerably to the effect.

The consecration banquet was held in the same building immediately after the close of the lodge. The W. Master (Bro. Dr. Trollope) presided, and he was supported by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Officers, while the vice-chairs were filled by the S.W. (Bro. Dr. Croucher) and the J.W. (Bro. T. H. Cole, M.A.). The W.M. was supported in the chair by all the Grand and Provincial Grand Officers who had been present at the consecration of the lodge, and by Bro. Thomas Brassey, M.P. for the borough, and other distinguished brethren.

Justice having been done to the good things provided, the services of the waiters were dispensed with for a time, and the W.M., in proposing the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," remarked that Her Majesty was the mother of our three Masonic princes, and the patroness of our great Masonic Charities, and was an example of every domestic and social virtue.

The W. M. next proposed "The Health of the Masonic Sovereign, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England," who, he could assure the brethren, took the greatest interest in everything pertaining to Freemasonry, and was most particular in not sanctioning the issue of a warrant for any new lodge unless he was satisfied of the necessity for it.

The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, the Pro Grand Master," and alluded to the great tact which that brother at all times exercised when he acted as the representative of the Prince of Wales. He coupled with it the health of the Deputy Grand Master of England, Lord Skelmersdale, and the officers of the Grand Lodge, referring to Lord Skelmersdale's great services to the Craft as Deputy Grand Master of England, and as a ruler of a province numbering over eighty lodges. He also alluded to the presence that evening of General Calthorpe, who some years ago had resided among them, and had been a frequent visitor of the Derwent, and whom he was pleased to welcome again amongst them, and to congratulate him as Junior Grand Warden of England. Bro. Martyn and the other officers he also welcomed in becoming terms.

General Calthorpe, in responding, thanked the brethren for their reception, and in feeling terms referred to the days gone by, when he resided in the borough, and visited the old Derwent, and had pleasure on his return to this town to meet all round, especially as they now met, on non-political grounds, and was equally pleased to meet both his friends and his old opponents (speaking politically).

Bro. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, also responded, and congratulated the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the W.M., the lodge, and its members, on the very successful proceedings of the day, and felt sure that under the guidance of the W.M., Dr. Trollope, the career of the St. Leonard's Lodge would be a prosperous one.

The W.M., in proposing "The Healths of the Prov. G.M., Sir Walter Burrell, Bart., M.P., the Deputy Prov. G. Master, Bro. John Henderson Scott, and the Provincial Grand Officers," said that Sir Walter Burrell would have been present that evening but for the inclement weather. That worshipful brother was a genuine old English gentleman, and took the deepest interest in everything pertaining to Freemasonry, and hoped to see the charity scheme, at present in operation in the Derwent Lodge, introduced into every lodge in the province. With reference to Bro. John Henderson Scott, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, they all knew he was a good working Mason, and they had all had the opportunity of listening to the excellent way in which he had performed the ceremony of consecration and installation that afternoon; and of the other Provincial Grand Officers he might say that, although the inclemency of the weather had hindered many attending, they had still a large number of brethren wearing the purple amongst them.

The D. Prov. G.M. returned thanks, and stated that Sir Walter Burrell would have been there that evening, but was prevented by illness. He would remind the brethren that he intended representing the province at the annual festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to be held in February next. He had already subscriptions promised amounting to over £300, and he would be glad to add further donations from lodges or brethren to his list.

Bro. the Rev. Dr. Richards, in a thoroughly Masonic speech, proposed "The Health of the W.M., and Success to the St. Leonard's Lodge." Some few years ago he had the pleasure of installing Bro. Trollope as W.M. of the Derwent Lodge, and he was glad to be present that day and witness his installation as first W.M. of this new lodge. In this beautiful spot, in our own beautiful island, a still further beauty had been introduced by the formation of a lodge of Freemasons, and long might the new lodge prosper and spread the genuine tenets of Masonry. The rev. brother was warmly applauded during his frequent and heart-stirring Masonic appeals.

Bro. Trollope, W.M., thanked the brethren for the warm reception they had given to the toast proposed by his old friend and Bro. Richards, who had, to a considerable extent, taken the wind out of his sails. This—as the brethren had just been reminded—was not the first occasion on which he had succeeded Bro. Richards in the chair of K.S., neither was the opening of the St. Leonard's Lodge an idea of to-day only. Some seven or eight years ago, a similar idea had been mooted, and their respected Bro. Brassey had promised his assistance towards the formation of a lodge at St. Leonard's. He was especially glad, therefore, to see Bro. Brassey present that evening. The affair, however, hung fire until the completion of the handsome block of buildings in which they had met that evening had been carried out, under the superintendence of Bro. W. L. Vernon. There was ample room for two lodges in the borough. It was some seventeen years since he joined the Derwent Lodge, which then numbered less than forty members, and now it numbered nearer ninety than eighty members. In starting the new lodge, they had no idea of entering into rivalry with the old Derwent. He had been twice Master of that lodge, and hoped to continue a member of it so long as he remained amongst them. This town was large enough, and he believed that many Masons who were deterred by distance from their residences from attending the lodge at Hastings would gladly avail themselves of the privileges of membership of the new St. Leonard's Lodge, and that many who had allowed the rust of years to dim their ardour in Freemasonry would awaken to new life, and once more become bright Masons.

The toasts of "The Visitors," "The Officers of the Lodge," and "The Masonic Charities," were severally proposed from the chair, and duly honoured.

Bro. Price, W.M. 56 (Howard Lodge, Arundel), responded on behalf of the visitors, and Bros. Croucher and Cole (S.W. and J.W.) on behalf of the officers of the lodge.

Bro. James Terry, whose name was coupled with the toast of the Masonic Charities, made one of his most able and effective responses, in the course of which he expressed a hope that the brethren would by their subscriptions still further increase the splendid amount which already appeared on Bro. Scott's list as Steward for the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in February next.

The Tyler's toast wound up a day's proceedings which will not be forgotten by the brethren who were privileged to attend, and will be a red-letter day in the Masonic history of Hastings and St. Leonard's. To W. Bro. Trollope and his officers we can but express our opinion, that in confiding a new warrant to their care the M.W.G.M. of English Freemasons will never have any reason to regret the confidence he has bestowed upon them—better Masons were seldom met.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We believe we are correct in stating that nothing as yet is settled as regards the appointment of Grand Secretary, and that any of the numerous names that have been mentioned are mere matters of speculation.

An interesting ceremony was performed on Friday last at Ardgowan, in the form of presenting to Lady Octavia Shaw Stewart a bust of the M.W. Grand Master of Scotland, Sir Michael Robert Shaw-Stewart. The presentation was made at one o'clock, by the Right Hon. the Earl of Mar and Kellie, in the name of the Freemasons of Scotland.

Mr. Spohr's "Last Judgment" will be performed, with full orchestral accompaniment, on the first Tuesday in Advent, December 2nd, at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The annual presentation of prizes, by the Lady Mayoress, to the 2nd Middlesex Artillery, will take place at the Guildhall this (Saturday) evening at 6 p.m. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Bro. Sir Francis Truscott, will preside.

It is rumoured, says the Athenæum, that Bro. Anthony Trollope is engaged upon a somewhat elaborate work, of which Cicero is the subject. Bro. Trollope, it may be remembered, contributed a volume on Cæsar to "The Ancient Classics for English Readers."

Bro. C. E. Willing, Grand Organist, has resigned his appointment as Organist at the Foundling Chapel.

At the Chancellor's Court for the Diocese of St. Albans, held on Saturday, the 22nd inst., in the cathedral, the application of Sir Edmund Beckett for a faculty to take the restoration of the abbey entirely into his own hands came before the surrogate. A formal objection and opposition to the issue of the faculty was lodged in writing by Archdeacon Grant, by the rector of the parish, three churchwardens, one sidesman, and two other parishioners. Mr. John Evans, D.C.L., F.R.S., who resigned as one of the committee of restoration on a high pitched roof being adopted, and a representative from the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings were also in attendance at the sitting of the Court. The Court was adjourned for a fortnight.

Bro. John Douglass, proprietor of the Royal Standard and Park Theatres, was, on Tuesday last, installed as Worshipful Master of the Royal Savoy Lodge of Freemasons, No. 1744. Bro. James Willing, jun., was the Installing Officer.

NULLIBIETY OF (THE SO-CALLED) CO-OPERATION.—"Fair Traders" five per cent. discount for cash, with undivided attention and prompt delivery free in London. Country orders over £2 carriage paid. Detailed price lists on application to J. E. Shand & Co., Wine Merchants, 2, Albert-mansions, Victoria-street, London, S.W.—[ADVT.]

The publisher of the Freemason will be glad to be informed of the present place of meeting of the Emblematic Lodge, No. 1321.

Mr. J. J. Mechi, of Tiptree Hall, Kelvedon, Essex, will, for the public good, send (on application accompanied by a postage stamp) instructions for the construction of the "Parson's" or "Frontfire Grate." The tested gain by the use of this grate is an increase of 15 degrees of temperature with a saving of one-third in fuel. Mr. Mechi believes that there are several millions of grates on the wrong principle, hurrying the heat up the chimney instead of into the room, and thus causing an indraught of cold air—this is especially the case with strong drawing registers. No part of a grate should be of iron, except the thin front bars, for iron is a conductor away of heat, but fire bricks are not so.

A National Great Priory of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temple and of St. John of Jerusalem will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Friday, the 12th day of December, at 3 o'clock. At the conclusion of the business of the Great Priory, should a sufficient number of knights signify to their Marshal by the 9th of December their desire to be installed, the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the Great Prior, will hold a priory of the Order of Malta, into which any Knight Templar can be admitted on payment of the usual fee.

With the announcement that the Parish Church will thus soon be out of debt, we learn that the order has been given on behalf of the Freemasons for the filling in of the large east window with painted glass, at a cost of about £350. The design of it is being prepared for the approval of the Rector and the Committee appointed to carry out the project by Messrs. Lavers, Burraud, and Westlake, of London, who were the artists and executors of the great window in the north transept of Worcester Cathedral, which was presented by the Freemasons of the Province of Worcester. It is understood the design will represent in the five main lights as many principal incidents of our Lord's Life and Passion, and the upper compartments figures and emblems of the saints of the New Testament. At the bottom of the window, probably, a predella, will contain figures of Prophets and Kings out of the Old Testament, with whom tradition associates Craft and Royal Arch Masonry. This, subject, of course, to the Rector's sanction, will probably be the general design. The window is to be ready for erection between Eastertide and Whitsuntide of next year, and will undoubtedly be to the town a gratifying embellishment of its old church.—Cheltenham Examiner

Her Majesty has sent to Major Chard a handsome ring as a mark of her appreciation of his heroic conduct at Rorke's Drift. The gift is accompanied with an autograph letter.

Bros. John Derby Allcroft, M.P., J.P., and John Dixon, C.E., have been appointed to be two of Her Majesty's Lieutenants for the City of London.

The first anniversary and installation meeting of the Albert Victor Lodge, No. 1773, was held on Friday week. A report of the proceedings is unavoidably crowded out of the present number, but will appear in our next.

The City Press of Wednesday states that Mr. R. H. S. Wyndham, of The Boltons, South Kensington, and Mr. George Kenning, of Little Britain, have joined the livery of the Gold and Silver Wire Drawers' Company.

The installation meeting of the Phoenix Lodge, No. 94, Sunderland, will be held on the 3rd prox. The W.M. elect, Dr. John Potts, J.P., P.M., is the oldest member as well as the oldest P.M. of the oldest lodge in the town. The present W.M., Bro. M. Frampton, will perform the installation ceremony.

The installation meeting of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, took place on Thursday last. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has, in a telegram to the Lord Mayor, expressed "his happiness in becoming an honorary patron of the fund to promote a National Memorial to Sir Rowland Hill." The Chancellor of the Exchequer has joined the Committee of the fund, the subscriptions to which amount to over £4000.

It has been decided by the Tribunal of Brunswick that the will of the late eccentric Duke, by which he bequeathed all his property to the town of Geneva, is null and void. Of his fortune six millions of francs have been spent by the town on a commemorative monument to the Duke, and perhaps as much more on a magnificent opera house.

A National Great Priory of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temple and of St. John of Jerusalem will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel on Friday, the 12th of December, at three o'clock. At the conclusion of the business of the Great Priory, should a sufficient number of knights signifying to the Marshal by the 9th of December their desire to be installed, the Right Hon. The Consecration of the St. Petroc Lodge, No. 1785, took place in the presence of a large gathering of brethren, on Friday week. The ceremonies were performed by the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, R.W. Prov. G.M. of Cornwall. A full report of the proceedings, including his Lordship's address, will appear in our next.

The installation of Bro. George Thomas Barr as W.M. of the St. Leonard's Lodge, 1766, takes place at the Town-hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday next, Dec. 3rd.

The Covent Garden Lodge of Instruction, 1614, will meet in future at Bro. Burnitt's, James-street, Covent Garden, every Thursday evening at 7.45.

The Oxford and Cambridge boat race is fixed to take place next year on March 20th.

We are informed that Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, P.G.W., who has recently taken up his residence in Surrey, having, through the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lieut.-Gen. Brownrigg, C.B., signified his consent to become an honorary member of the Wayside Lodge, No. 1395, he was duly elected a member of that lodge at a meeting held on Tuesday last.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The Quarterly Communication of United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, occupied the Throne. Bro. Montague J. Guest, Prov. G. Master for Dorset, acted as Dep. G. Master. The Grand Wardens, the Right Hon. Lord Kensington and Major-Gen. Somerset G. Calthorpe, were in their respective places, and among the other Grand Officers and Past Grand Officers present were Bros. Lord Tenterden, Sir E. H. Lechmere, R. H. Giddy, A. J. McIntyre, G. C. J. B. Monckton, Thos. Fenn; Joshua Nunn, John Havers, Ex-Sheriff Burt, Capt. Platt, J. M. Clabon, Ex-Sheriff Hutton, Rev. C. W. Arnold, Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, Rev. Sir J. Warren Hayes, Rev. R. J. Simpson, Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Rev. C. J. Martyn, Col. Creaton, Wilhelm Ganz, Sir Albert W. Woods, W. H. Mulleas, H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary. There was a very large attendance of brethren, the Temple being crowded with at least six hundred members of the Craft.

After the minutes had been read and confirmed, Bro. Frank Richardson, W.M. elect of Grand Stewards' Lodge, rose and said: Most Worshipful Grand Master in the chair, this being the evening on which it is customary for the Grand Master to preside over us to be nominated for the ensuing year, I have the distinguished honour of dominating His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. (Great applause.)

Col. Burdett said: Brethren, our Bro. Richardson has nominated H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master for the ensuing year. This being a nomination it does not require a seconder. I shall now have the pleasure of appointing a President of the Lodge of Benevolence. We have had a brother who has done his duty in that particular branch of the Order with so much credit to himself and so much usefulness to the Order for some years that I do not think there will be a single dissentient voice when I say that I nominate, in the name of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Bro. Clabon as President of the Board of Benevolence. (Cheers.) Brethren, the next business is the election of a Senior and a Junior Vice-President. The election has, for many years, fallen to two brethren; and, therefore, as there are no other two brethren nominated, I now declare that our Bro. Joshua Nunn is elected as the Senior Vice-President, and Bro. James Brett as the Junior Vice-President. The next business, brethren, is the election of twelve Past Masters to serve on the Lodge of Benevolence for the ensuing year; but, as only twelve brethren have been nominated, I will ask the Assistant Grand Secretary to read their names to you, and I declare them duly elected.

Bro. Buss then read the following names of the new Past Masters to serve on the lodge of Benevolence for the ensuing year:—Bros. Charles Atkins, George P. Britten, J. B. Collyer, John Constable, Henry Gaird, R. H. Halford, Charles Fredk. Hogard, William Mann, Henry Massey, W. H. Perryman, F. Smith, and William Stephens.

Col. Burdett stated that the next business on the paper was the report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, which he called on Bro. Buss to read.

Bro. Buss having read the report, the following recommendations were severally proposed and seconded:—

The widow of a brother of the Gresham Lodge, No. 869, Cheshunt Park	50	0	0
A brother of the Rose of Denmark Lodge, No. 975, Barnes	100	0	0
A brother of the Lodge of Temperance in the East, No. 898, London	50	0	0
The widow of a brother of the Aberystwith Lodge, No. 1073, Aberystwith	50	0	0

The widow of a brother of the Harrogate and Claro Lodge, No. 1001, Harrogate.....	50	0	0
A brother of the Stoneleigh Lodge, No. 725, Kenilworth	50	0	0
A brother of the One and All Lodge, No. 330, Bodmin	100	0	0
A brother of the Lodge of Fortitude, No. 131, Truro	50	0	0
The widow of a brother of the Lansdowne Lodge of Unity, No. 626, Chippenham.....	50	0	0
The widow of a brother of the Dartmouth Lodge, No. 663, West Bromwich	50	0	0
The widow of a brother of the Prudent Brethren Lodge, No. 145, London	50	0	0
A brother of the Windsor Castle Lodge, No. 771, Windsor	50	0	0
A brother of the Stuart Lodge, No. 1632, Camberwell	50	0	0
The widow of a brother of the Afan Lodge, No. 833, Aberavon	75	0	0

With respect to the recommendation for the brother of the One and All Lodge, No. 330, Bodmin, a long discussion was held, Bro. Clabon having stated that a letter had been received that morning protesting, in the name of the One and All Lodge, against the grant, and alleging various reasons why it should not be made. He recommended that the letter should be handed over to the Board for consideration and enquiry, and it was then suggested that the letter should be read in open lodge. This was protested against by Bro. Clabon, as it might be injurious to the character of the proposed recipient of the grant, when he would not have the opportunity of explaining. Before the Lodge of Benevolence he would have that opportunity. This view was ultimately adopted, and the case was referred back to the Lodge of Benevolence.

On the motion of Bro. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes, seconded by Bro. H. C. Levander, Vice-President, the following report of the Board of General Purposes was taken as read, and ordered to be received and entered on the minutes:—

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes deeply regret to have to lay before Grand Lodge the resignation of Bro. John Hervey, who since August, 1868, has filled the very important office of Grand Secretary. At their meeting in October, leave of absence on account of severe ill-health was given by the Board to the Grand Secretary until 3rd of December following, being the date of the ensuing Quarterly Communication, and the hope was entertained that this relief from active duty might be productive of satisfactory results. This hope has however proved fallacious, and, under the advice of his medical attendants, Bro. Hervey states that there is no alternative before him but to resign the office he has, in the unanimous opinion of the Board, so honourably and usefully held, and in this view the Board in whose charge it is to recommend to Grand Lodge whatever it shall deem necessary or advantageous to the Craft; unanimously recommend that, on his retirement from office Bro. John Hervey be granted a retiring pension of £800 a year, being the full amount of his salary.

The Board further report that their attention has been called to a constantly occurring breach of the following clause in the "Alterations made by command of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, in the mode of wearing the Charity Jewel, communicated to Grand Lodge, 7th June, 1876," viz:—

"No Charity Jewel, clasp, ribbon, or rosette shall be obtained except through the office of the Grand Secretary, to whom the Secretaries of the respective Institutions shall, after their respective annual festivals, hand lists of the names of the brethren entitled to the jewel or decorations hereinbefore authorized."

And they recommend that a copy of such clause be sent to the W. Master of every lodge under the English Constitution; and further, that it be distinctly intimated that Charity Jewels obtained since the 7th June, 1876, otherwise than through the office of Grand Secretary, are improper, and not to be worn.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.
 18th November, 1879.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 14th ult., showing a balance in the Bank of England of £3802 15 7d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for petty cash £75, and for servants' wages £96 15s.

The President then moved:—

- 1st. That the report be received and entered on the minutes.
- 2nd. That the resignation by Bro. John Hervey of the office of Grand Secretary be accepted with sincere regret.
- 3rd. That in consideration of the very distinguished services rendered to the Craft by Bro. John Hervey, during his tenure of the office of Grand Secretary, he be granted a retiring pension of £800 per annum, being the full amount of his present salary.
- 4th. That the other recommendations contained in the report of the Board be adopted.

Bro. Monckton then rose and said: Most Worshipful Grand Master in the chair, in rising to move the second resolution that stands in my name, "That the resignation by Bro. John Hervey of the office of Grand Secretary be accepted with sincere regret." I think it is unnecessary for me to state to Grand Lodge that it is unwelcome to me, and I do it with a feeling of sincere regret, which I am certain every brother present will share, not alone on account of the resignation of Grand Secretary Bro. John Hervey, but also on account of the lamentable causes that have rendered it incumbent on him as an honourable man to lay that resignation before Grand Lodge. M.W. G. Master, there are many yet here, although many have been summoned to the Great Lodge above, who, like myself, will well remember the Quarterly Communication of September, 1868, when the Right Worshipful Bro. Lord De Tabley, occupying the throne for the Most Worshipful Grand Master, invested Bro. John Hervey with the collar and jewel of Grand Secretary of the United Grand Lodge of England, amid the approving acclamation of the rulers of the Craft then assembled; and we at that time, Most Worshipful Grand Master, will also well remember the careful pains and the anxious solicitude bestowed by that estimable Grand Master, the late Earl of Zetland, who was assisted by his counsellors and advisers in filling up the vacancy caused in the Grand Secretaryship by the death of Bro. Gray Clarke, a most important duty at that time, because I think I am right in saying that Freemasonry was then entering upon that remarkable progress that it has since made. The hope of that appointment, Most Worshipful Grand Master, has been fulfilled by the result; the promise of that appointment has been actually borne out by the performance. Bro. John Hervey was a man who united in himself all the qualifications necessary to make a successful and an able Grand Secretary. He combined the heartfelt charity and the skillful ability of a Mason with the industry and good judgment of a man, and, above all, the amiability and gentleness of a woman. He was never so happy as when he was associated with his old friends and colleagues in the Order; but we all know he never tired in giving knowledge, light, and instruction to the humblest brother who sought it. Most Worshipful Grand Master, I think if ever there was a man of whom we might say it, we might say it of Bro. John Hervey, that, "take him for all in all," we may scarcely hope to "look upon his like again." With another expression of the regret with which I make this motion that I expressed when I rose, I now, Most Worshipful Grand Master, beg to move (for I feel that further words on this painful subject will be rendered unnecessary by the feelings of the whole of the brethren in this Grand Lodge), "That the resignation of Bro. John Hervey of the office of Grand Secretary be accepted with sincere regret." (Hear, hear.)

Bro. H. C. Levander, Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes, said: Most Worshipful Grand Master, I beg to second the proposition which has just been so ably made by the President of the Board of General Purposes. I think I should offer no words to supplement what he has already said. Bro. Hervey has endeared himself to every one who came in contact with him, but especially to all members of the Craft. I feel that he is so fully appreciated by all members of the Craft here assembled in Grand Lodge, that I am sure the vote which has just been proposed will be accepted unanimously. (Hear, hear.)

Col. Burdett said: Brethren, having had a great deal of intercourse with Bro. Hervey, and received a great deal of benefit and kindness from him in every way, which I believe every member of the Order has, I must say it is with extreme regret that I feel obliged to put this resolution to Grand Lodge. I wish we could have had some reason to hope that we should have an opportunity of seeing him again among us, but I am afraid, from what I have heard, that it is past hope that we shall see him among his brethren, where he has filled a post with credit to himself and with benefit to the whole of the Order. It is, as I said before, with extreme regret that I put this resolution to you to-night, and I feel that every other brother here present will agree with me that it is with great grief that we accept his resignation. I now put the motion, "That the resignation by Bro. John Hervey of the office of Grand Secretary be accepted with sincere regret."

The motion was carried unanimously. Bro. Monckton, in bringing on his motion, "That, in consideration of the very distinguished services rendered to the Craft by Bro. John Hervey during his tenure of the office of Grand Secretary, he be granted a retiring pension of £800 per annum, being the full amount of his present salary," said he would alter the form of his motion; which, after consultation with Grand Registrar, he found would be quite regular, by proposing that the retiring pension should be £550, and an annual gratuity of £250.

Bro. H. C. Levander seconded the proposition. Bro. Montague J. Guest opposed the granting of so large a sum as £800 a year in any form, and proposed it to be reduced to £300.

Bro. Murlis proposed £600. After several brethren had spoken for and against the different propositions, it was resolved that the pension should be £500 a year, and that an immediate gratuity of £300 should be granted to Bro. Hervey.

The other recommendations of the Board of General Purposes were then adopted.

Bro. McIntyre, G.R., brought up the appeal of Bro. Joseph Pallot, P.M. of the La Cesarée Lodge, No. 590, Jersey, against the decision of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Jersey, affirming his (Bro. Pallot's) resignation as a member of the La Cesarée Lodge. After stating the circumstances of the case, Bro. McIntyre moved the dismissal of the appeal, and the confirmation of the finding of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Jersey.

Bro. James Mason, P.G.S.B., seconded the motion, which was then put and unanimously carried.

Bro. Stevens said that in introducing the motion which stood upon the agenda in his name, he had to ask the brethren present to allow him to state his case without interruption. If they would do so he would, on his part, make his remarks as short as possible, considering the advanced hour, and he should be quite prepared to take the verdict of Grand Lodge as to a settlement of the question. He then went on to show that there were certain articles of union belonging to the Craft which were a sort of standing orders by which the Craft was regulated and governed, and that this prescribed one code of working which should be maintained, upheld, and practised throughout the Masonic world. He could not understand that any more forcible regulations could have been laid down than those which were laid down in 1813. These rules appeared to have been acted on in 1815-16, and a rite was rehearsed in Grand Lodge and ordered to be worked in all Masonic lodges. Therefore, Bro. Stevens said, in 1816 there was what he hoped to ask Grand Lodge to decide upon—a standard ritual; and the question he had to ask them now was, Had that standard ritual been observed? He was not speaking of the mere wording to be used. He did not expect that every one should use the same wording, it was not that he asked, but it was the doing away with many matters which were a disgrace to Masonry. Ten years ago he had attempted to enter a Masonic lodge in the provinces, and he found that, though he was a Mason of many years' standing, he did not understand the Entered Apprentice's sign; and gave some other instances of wide divergencies from the ordinary ritual which were in vogue in provincial lodges. In consequence of this, on the matter being brought before Grand Lodge in December, 1869, it was decided that, with a view to the greater uniformity of working, a Committee of Past Masters be appointed to report to Grand Lodge and recommend a remedy; which resolution was ratified in March, 1870. He did not know how it was, but somebody blundered; and the committee was never appointed. Since that time things had gone from bad to worse; but the same arguments for the appointment of a Committee which were held to be sufficient in 1861 were not held to be sufficient now. It was not now a question whether the teacher knew what he was teaching, or the learner what he was learning; but it was a question of the absolute setting aside of Masonic morality. It was not only in the provinces that such divergencies occurred, but in some parts of London also; and therefore he hoped that this Committee of Past Masters would be formed with a view to put down the very gross evils that existed. Bro. Stevens said that the objection urged was that he was advocating manuals of rituals. He condemned manuals of rituals as much as anybody. He believed that if we searched there was in the archives a standard of working, but there was no authorised printed book extant to instruct Freemasons in any way. And yet there were books—manuals of the ritual—in all parts of the world; and he asked, was it not a shame that they should be found in English lodges? Were they recognised by Grand Lodge? They were printed and sold as if they were authorised, and the younger brethren of the Craft, at least, were thereby misled. Here was a printed book, and here was the printed advertisement which stated that Bro. A. Mason was the publisher's name, whereas in another instance we had it that a book was published by authority. Bro. Stevens added that he had the printed matter there which he referred to. He would not detain the brethren, but he asked them, in common sympathy with the task he had undertaken, to give him that patience which he had himself given to the subject. He had met with a great deal of opposition, but at the same time, he must own he had also met with a great deal of support. Bro. Stevens went on to say that he would leave the consideration of such comparatively small matters as he had been speaking of, and turn to unity of essentials. He then laid before Grand Lodge a statement of things existing in some lodges quite out of harmony with the spirit of Freemasonry. In this portion of his speech Bro. Stevens necessarily entered into details which it would be un-Masonic to publish, and concluded with his motion, which was, "That the Committee be now appointed which had already been voted."

Bro. Marsh seconded the motion.

Bro. Woodford rose to ask the Grand Lodge to vote a direct negative to the motion, and reviewed the various improvements of the ritual since 1723 down to the latest improvements effected by Preston. He said that in 1723 Bros. Desaguliers and Anderson are stated to have put together the first ritual, subsequently altered by Clare, emended by Dunckerley, and improved by Preston, who was said to have used two versions. In addition to these there were from the middle of the last century the concurrent system of the "Antients," which had great influence on English Freemasonry, so that previous to 1813 there were five distinct systems of ritual. In 1813 it was endeavoured to combine the two systems of the "Antients" and the "Moderns," so called, and the very incident that Bro. Stevens has mentioned about the Master's light, showed a point of disagreement which had never been reconciled. Dr. Hemming was the brother to whom, in 1813, the Duke of Sussex confided the rearrangement of the ritual, which was henceforth to be one, but his original ritual was subsequently perfected by Bro. Williams, and this was the system now in vogue in the Lodge of Emulation. But Dr. Hemming's ritual was still extensively used, and was represented by the Stability Lodge of Instruction. And then, in addition, there were several workings in England. There was, for instance, the working of Preston, and even remains of the ancient working. Grand Lodge in its toleration had wisely held, as long as essentials were maintained, and so long as the obligations were correctly given, liberty of verbiage should be allowed to all lodges. The worthy brother who had proposed this motion must be aware that there were a great number of brethren in this Grand Lodge who are not prepared to say that all the alterations of 1813 were altogether advisable. The whole question settled in 1813 must be again gone into. If we agree to refer the ritual to a Board of Preceptors, each one of whom may have his favourite system, it would remain a difficulty to secure unanimity; and if unanimity were secured, it would be difficult to carry their resolutions into effect. Bro. Woodford referred again to the point he had before mentioned about the Master's light, and stated that since the year 1813, notwithstanding circulars on the subject from Grand Lodge, the practice to which various lodges had been accustomed was still maintained among them. He called upon the brethren, therefore, not to pass this resolution. If they did, they would simply make the fortune of one or two degraded brethren, who are selling rituals to the Craft. Bro. Woodford concluded by moving a direct negative to Bro. Stevens's motion.

Bro. J. While rose to move that the question be not put. He thought Bro. Stevens had been indiscreet, inasmuch as he had got up a correspondence in a public print, and had afterwards collected and published the same under the title "What is Correct;" and the week before last there was the whole discussion in print in a leading article. (On Bro. While referring to some objectionable letter that had appeared in print, Bro. Stevens rose and vehemently denied all knowledge of such a letter.) Bro. While continued, and said that in the same paper, and in the leading article last week, they actually discussed the question about an alteration in the Third Degree.

The remainder of Bro. While's speech was inaudible, for having alluded to Bro. Stevens as the Grand Master of Preceptors, Bro. Stevens protested, and considerable noise prevailed during the conclusion of Bro. While's speech.

Bro. Simpson said that, as one of those who had listened to this case, anxious to hear the truth and to vote according to that hearing, he was placed in a difficulty. The amendment called upon them to give a direct negative to Bro. Stevens's motion, which was only for the giving effect to a resolution solemnly passed by Grand Lodge ten years ago. If subsequent facts had altered previous convictions then that negative might be given; but if it was admitted that the objectionable facts, previously condemned, were still existing, and as deserving as ever of condemnation, he did not see how Grand Lodge could do other than follow the matter to a logical conclusion by voting the motion proposed by Bro. Stevens, which was to nominate a Committee already agreed to be appointed. And if there were reasons ten years ago, when Masons were comparatively limited in number, for appointing this Committee, in consequence of errors in performance of the ritual, it was likely that there were still stronger reasons now for doing so; as the errors were likely to have greatly multiplied, in consequence of the vast increase in the number of lodges since the date of that resolution of Grand Lodge. Bro. Simpson, after reminding Grand Lodge that if they carried out the system laid down by Bro. Woodford, the question, what are essentials? would be a difficult one which would require to be answered, concluded by supporting the motion.

Bro. Bodenham protested against a statement made by Bro. Woodford that the provincial lodges will not give up the practices referred to without a struggle, and said that the provincial lodges look up to Grand Lodge as a law-giver, and were always loyal.

Bro. Stevens, in rising to reply, said he would not avail himself of his right in this respect, but was perfectly willing to leave the question in the hands of the Grand Lodge.

The Chairman then put "the previous question," as the amendment proposed by Bro. Woodford, which was declared to be lost. Bro. Stevens's original motion, "That the Committee be appointed," was then put and carried.

Bro. Stevens said that he was perfectly willing to leave the nomination of the Committee in the hands of Grand Lodge. He had not even come prepared with a list of names. He was quite prepared to leave the selection of the Committee to the Board of General Purposes, but whoever was appointed he assumed that he himself should be entitled to sit with them.

Bro. McIntyre said that he had never yet heard that any body could without consulting them cause the Board of General Purposes to perform any special service, and to say that the Board of General Purposes and Bro. Stevens should be the Committee sounded like the assertion of a right to their services, which had no existence in fact. No doubt, if they were consulted on the matter, the Board would give it their favourable consideration, but at this stage they should be considered as a body who might refuse, and had a right to refuse, to act either with or without Bro. Stevens in the matter.

Bro. Simpson suggested the matter should not be referred to any body whatever in the meantime, but that Bro. Stevens should give notice of motion for next Quarterly Communication that he would then propose a list of brethren for appointment.

Bro. Stevens gave the necessary notice.

Bro. Havers rose to order on matter of very great importance. To save time he ventured to ask the opinion of the M.W.G.M. in the chair whether their worthy Bro. Clabon's proposal to divert any portion of the monies of the Benevolent Fund from the original charitable purposes for which those monies were applicable could be ever discussed. Was it within the intention of the fund that any portion should be applied for purchasing "exhibitions" for the Schools? It was a question of very grave importance, and it was, therefore, very desirable to know what was the legal aspect of the question.

Bro. Clabon said it seemed to him rather strange that when the word "charity" was of such wide meaning this question should be raised. In the legal sense the word charity included schools and universities of all kinds, and he knew of no greater charity than to give the means of higher education to those who were worthy and required help.

Bro. Havers said he should like to hear the opinion of the Grand Registrar on the point.

Bro. McIntyre thought that in this matter they should consider what the compilers of the Book of Constitutions intended; and they must look at the context and consider the subject as a whole. The fund was raised from every member of the Craft; whether a supporter of the Schools or not, he is compelled to support this fund, to contribute his money to this, to assist Masons and the widows of Masons, and those only, in the way in which it is pointed out. That was laid down by the founders. It was perfectly open to Bro. Clabon to move that the Constitutions, be altered, and to substitute a different system, but as regards Bro. Clabon's proposition, the Constitutions do not appear by the context to contemplate the fund being so used by those who founded it.

It was at this point agreed that, owing to the lateness of the hour, Bro. Clabon should postpone his proposition until next Quarterly Communication, on the understanding that it was to take precedence of other business.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The Half-yearly Communication of Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown was held on Tuesday evening last, at Freemasons' Tavern. Bros. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., M.W. Past G. Master, occupied the chair; Capt. N. G. Phillips occupied the chair of G. S.W.; J. M. P. Montagu, the chair of G.J.W.; and among a very large number of brethren present were Bros. S. Rawson, as D.G.M.; Broadley, G.M. of Tunis; Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, D. Acc, T. F. Ravenshaw, R. H. Giddy, Dr. Ramsay, James Lewis Thomas, Alfred Williams, Col. Shadwell H. Cierke, R. Berridge, G.D.C.; J. B. Shackleton, H. C. Levander, G.R.; F. Davison, G.T.; George Lambert, F. Binckes, G.S.; Don. M. Dewar, Asst. G.S.; Thomas Cubitt, Charles Horsley, T. C. Walls, and Baron de Ferricres.

Grand Lodge having been opened, and the G.M. saluted, the minutes were read and confirmed. The report of the General Board, which was as follows, was taken as read, and ordered to be received and entered on the minutes:—

The number of certificates issued during the six months ending 30th September last is 496, making the total of registered advancements 12,908.

In the same period five warrants for new lodges have been issued, viz.:

245	Simon de St. Liz	...	Northampton.
246	Duke of Connaught	...	Derby.
247	Alfred	...	Oxford (City).
248	Broadley	...	Malta.
249	Empress of India	...	Woolahra, N.S. Wales.

During the year ending 30th September there have been issued 167 certificates for Royal Ark Mariners, the register showing the total number of brethren elevated to this Degree to be 507; and thirteen warrants for new lodges have been issued, viz.:

Mount Horeb,	attached to St John's Lodge, T.I., Bolton.
Carnarvon	" Carnarvon " No. 7 London.
United Manchester	" St. Andrew's " 34 Manchester
Mount Ararat	" Fidelity " 98 Lahore.
Pantmure	" Pantmure " 139 Balham.
Grosvenor	" Grosvenor " 144 London.
Olive Branch	" Lebanon " 207 Allahabad.
St. Wilfrid's	" St. Wilfrid's " 209 Alford.
Ararat	" Ardvoirlich " 219 Rawal Pindi
Aze	" St. John's " 221 Meeran Meer
Refuge	" Garnet " 228 Dinapore.
Brixton	" Brixton " 234 Brixton.
Sanc Elmo	" Broadley " 248 Malta.

The Treasurer's accounts, subjoined, show that the receipts from all sources for six months were £545 2s. 4d., and that on the 30th September the balances were:—

In favour of the General Fund	...	154	12	9
" " Benevolent Fund	...	42	16	5
" " Educational Fund	...	90	13	0
While investments have been made.
On account of Benevolent Fund	...	200	0	0

That the objects proposed by the establishment of the Benevolent and Educational Fund are widely and increasingly appreciated and approved is convincingly manifested by the support extended thereto at the anniversary festivals, the festival held at the Alexandra Palace, on Wednesday, and July last, under the Presidency of W. Bro. Lord Arthur Hill, Prov. G.S.W. of Sussex, having proved most successful, the proceeds of the thirty-two Stewards' lists amounting to £542.

The first election of a boy for the benefits of the Educational Fund took place on 20th of May last, when Harry Lowndes Edwards was elected, and is now being educated at the Manchester Grammar School.

Two new provinces have been constituted—Tunis and Malta and Berks and Oxon.

Bro. Alexander Meyrick Broadley has been appointed as R.W. Prov. Grand Master of the former, and was installed at Malta on the 11th of September.

No event of greater interest in the history of this Grand Lodge has occurred than the establishment of a Mark lodge, in the first place, and recently of a province, in a locality rich in so many antiquarian associations as the site of the world-renowned city of Carthage. Masonry in all its branches is flourishing there, but no Degree has attracted so much attention, or has been pursued with such avidity, as that of the Mark, and with the details and information received from time to time, the Board considers itself justified in thus making prominent mention of so exceptionally gratifying a circumstance, and in testifying to the zeal and ability of the R.W. Bro. Broadley, whose exertions have tended so materially to produce such successful results.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Jersey, P.G.W., has accepted the appointment of Prov. G. Master of Berks and Oxon, and there can be no doubt as to the beneficial effect of his lordship's rule, supported by the ability and energy of the brethren who have been instrumental in fostering the Order in the united province.

The G.M. has also been pleased to appoint Bro. Thos. Trolope, M.D., to be Prov. G.M.M. of Sussex.

In the same period the following provincial changes have occurred:—

Cornwall—Bro. Col. John Whitehead Peard has been appointed R.W. Provincial Grand Master, vice Sir Frederick Martin Williams, deceased.

Kent—Bro. Rev. Thomas Robinson, M.A., has been appointed R.W. Provincial Grand Master, vice Bro. Rev. G. W. Sicklemore, resigned.

Somerset—Bro. Gen. H. E. Doherty has been appointed R.W. Provincial Grand Master, vice Bro. Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, resigned.

The Board, in testifying to the admirable manner in which the duties of their responsible offices have been discharged by the distinguished brethren, the loss of whose services they regret, have every confidence that the interests of Mark Masonry will be successfully promoted by the brethren whom the M.W. Grand Master has selected as their successors.

It is also with extreme gratification that the Board is enabled to report the re-organisation of the Province of Jamaica under the vigilant care of R.W. Bro. Dr. Hamilton (337), and the consequent resuscitation of the Sussex Lodge, No. 43, followed by the establishment of three new lodges—

Clifton Mount Keystone, Kingston, No. 230.

Royal Keystone, Kingston, No. 240.

Phoenix, Port Royal, No. 242.

All of which are now in a very flourishing condition, with every prospect of continued prosperity.

The Board have very great pleasure in stating that official information of the recognition of this Grand Lodge by the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland has been received, a copy of the communication from the Grand Scribe E. being now subjoined. It affords the Board the highest satisfaction thus to announce the consummation of efforts extending over a number of years to effect a friendly understanding and fraternal agreement between the two bodies.

Extract from Minutes of Meeting of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, held upon the 18th day of June, A.D. 1879, A.L. 5883.

Having taken into consideration an application from the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England and Wales for recognition, and the interchange of representatives, with relative documents, and the report of the Committee thereon, the Supreme Chapter unanimously resolved to recognise the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England and Wales as a lawful governing body of that Degree in these countries. Farther, that the Supreme Chapter would grant no new Mark warrants therein, reserving the rights of the Supreme Chapter as regards warrants already granted. Farther, that Mark lodges in the Colonies, holding of the Grand Mark Lodge of England and Wales, be recognised as lawful, but that no exclusive jurisdiction be conceded to the Grand Mark Lodge, beyond the countries of England and Wales. Farther, it was resolved to delay consideration of the proposal to exchange representatives till next Quarterly Communication, and Comp. Mann, Grand Scribe N., intimated that he would then move that representatives be appointed."

Extracted from the Minutes of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, this 17th day of July, A.D. 1879, A.L. 5883.

(Signed) L. MACKERSY, Grand Scribe E.

Formal communications with recognition have also been received from the Supreme Grand Chapters of Maine, Texas, and North Carolina, U.S.A.

The Board have under their consideration the arrangement of the work in the Grand Secretary's office. They are of opinion that the eminent and lengthened services of the Grand Secretary deserve that he should be excused from attending to the daily routine of the ever increasing business of the office, and at the same time that he should retain his full salary.

In consideration of the additional labour that will fall on the Asst. G. Secretary, they recommend that his salary be increased to £200.

The Board recommends the following grants from the Benevolent Fund: £10 to the widow of a brother, and £20 to a brother.

The mode of electing the five members of the General Board by Grand Lodge being deemed unsatisfactory, the Board recommends the following alteration in Clause 98 of the Book of Constitutions:

After the words "at the meeting in June," on the seventh line, to add—"in manner following; the names of the several brethren intended to be put in nomination are to be delivered in writing at the Grand Secretary's Office at least fourteen days prior to the meeting of Grand Lodge, in order that the names so proposed may be printed in a list, a copy of which shall be sent to every member attending Grand Lodge, when the balloting lists shall be collected by Scrutineers appointed for that purpose, and the result of the election ascertained and announced."

The Board also recommends that in Clause 111 of the Constitutions, the words "signed in open lodge" be added after the word "certificate," in the first line of the clause.

(Signed) G. R. PORTAL, P.G.M., President.

Examined and found correct.
(Signed) THOMAS MROOY, Auditor.

29th October, 1879.
The grants recommended by this report were carried, and the salary of the Assistant Grand Secretary was raised to £200 a year.

Bro. F. Davison, G.T., who proposed the addition, and the G.M., in putting the motion, spoke in the highest terms of commendation of Bro. Dewar's diligence in discharging the duties of his office; and the G.M. explained the reasons for the recommendation of the Board for excusing Bro. Binckes from attending to the daily routine of Grand Secretary's Office. It was also explained to the brethren that Bro. Binckes's salary was really only £125 a year, as he paid half of his salary of £250 to Bro. Dewar, and that in raising Bro. Dewar's salary to £200 a year Grand Lodge paid only £75.

Bro. James Lewis Thomas raised the question of the status of Bro. Dewar, and submitted that the rank of Assistant Grand Secretary was not next immediately after Grand Secretary, but, as in Grand Craft Lodge, immediately before Grand Inner Guard.

A long discussion arose on this subject, when it was admitted that Bro. James Lewis Thomas's contention was correct, that there had been a mistake by the printers of the Constitutions in giving the rank of Asst. G. Secretary immediately following G. Secretary, but that in Bro. Dewar's case he was rightly invested in order, because he was previously a Junior Overseer.

After the other recommendations had been carried,

Col. Shadwell H. Clerke said: M.W.G.M., I rise to propose a motion which, I am sure, will be received with great pleasure by all the brethren present, and that my feelings will find an echo in every brother's breast. Consequently, my motion will require very few words to introduce it to Grand Lodge. Our present G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, has for two years filled that high office, and he has discharged his duties in that office, as he has in every other office he has been called upon to fill, in so courteous and genial a manner that, I feel confident, it is the hearty wish of the Order in general that he should continue in that office for another year. Therefore, I beg leave to nominate the Right Hon. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale for our M.W.G.M. for the ensuing twelve months. (Loud applause.)

The following brethren were then presented with bars and jewels for their services as Stewards of the Benevolent Fund Festival:—Bros. Dr. Ace, Lincolnshire; Richard Buggett, 182; Baron de Ferrieres, Gloucestershire; G. F. Lancaster, Hants and Isle of Wight; W. S. Gillard, Dorset; Walter Spencer, Bon Accord; Charles Jacques, Old Kent; Thos. D. Bolton, 7; B. H. Swallow, 8; E. B. Bright, 13; E. C. Milligan, 34; Capt. Chas. Hunter, 38; John Clark, 53; Joseph Spencer, 53; Thos. J. Pulley, 54; E. Diggle, 56; R. L. Loveland, 63; W. I. Clarke, 75; R. Berridge, 104; R. W. Philpott, 153; A. Hopkinson, 156; Rev. C. R. Davy, 177; J. D. C. Hunter Little, 214; Geo. Dalrymple, 216; E. Margrett, 235; W. Stephens, 236; F. F. Halsly, 241; Dr. E. Passamer, 244; John H. Hale, 245; F. W. Ansell, 247.

Before Grand Lodge was closed the acting Grand Master said there was one notice in the report of the General Board which ought not to be passed over in silence, the recognition of Grand Mark Lodge by the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland. Nothing had happened of greater importance in the whole of the twenty-three years' history of Grand Mark Lodge, because this recognition completed the claim of acknowledgment of this Grand Lodge, which was now acknowledged by all the Grand Masonic bodies throughout the world except Grand Lodge of England. He would move that Grand Secretary be instructed to write to the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland, stating that Grand Mark Lodge had heard with very great pleasure of this action of the Grand Chapter of Scotland, and hoped that this would bind still closer the ties which united Grand Mark of England with Grand Chapter of Scotland.

Bro. F. Binckes, in his position as Junior Grand Warden, seconded the motion.

The motion was put and carried nem. con., and Grand Lodge was then closed. The brethren afterwards dined together at Freemasons' Tavern.

FESTIVAL OF THE EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was held on the 28th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., took the chair of W.M.; Bro. W. A. Dawson, P.M. 1768, took the chair of S.W.; and Bro. W. S. Lee, S.W. 1201, the chair of J.W. Bros. Thos. Fenn, P.G.D., acted as P.M.; W. Smallprice, as Secretary; A. Escott, J.W. 1593, as S.D.; A. Marvin, 1768, as J.D.; and G. C. Pulsford, S.D. 1593, as I.G. Amongst other brethren present were Bros. Lord Kensington, S.G.W.; Gen. Somerset Calthorpe, J.G.W.; Bent, P.G.C.; Gibson, G.S. of Wks.; R. H. Giddy, District G.M. Griqualand; Colonel Shadwell Clerke, P.G.D.; H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D.; E. J. McIntyre, G. Reg.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; R. Grey, P.J.D.; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; and J. M. Case, P.G.D. After the lodge had been opened in the Three Degrees the following brethren worked the Second Lecture, Bro. Murton putting the questions:—

- 1st Section by Bro. F. R. Spaul, W.M. 1768.
- 2nd " " W. S. Lee, S.W. 1201.
- 3rd " " A. Escott, J.W. 1593.
- 4th " " G. C. Pulsford, S.D. 1593.
- 5th " " A. Marvin, 1768.

Each of the brethren did his work admirably, answering the questions with a fluency that reflected the highest credit on the lodge, and testified to their regular attendance at its weekly meetings. When the working was concluded,

Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D., rose, and said: The brethren must have noticed, and, I am sure, must have noticed with regret, the absence from this lodge this evening of a face which on these anniversary occasions has been familiar to us and to those who have gone before us for a period of upwards of thirty years. I need not say, W.M., that I allude to our dear Bro. John Hervey, our most respected Treasurer. The unhappy cause of his absence this evening and his resignation of the office of Grand Secretary is no doubt now well known to us all, and I think, and I am sure, W.M., the brethren will think with me, that we cannot allow this occasion to pass without expressing and recording in our minutes our sympathy with Bro. Hervey in his affliction, our great regard for him, and our sense of the loss which we have all sustained in his resignation of an office which he has filled for many years with such credit to himself and benefit to the Craft. Without further preface, W.M., I will read to you the resolution which I am about to propose:—"The members of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, at their anniversary meeting, have heard with deep regret that their much respected Bro. John Hervey, who has held the office of Treasurer of the lodge for upwards of thirty years, in consequence of serious illness has deemed it necessary to resign the office of Grand Treasurer, the duties of which he has discharged with such eminent ability and conscientious zeal, and so greatly to the advantage and satisfaction of the Craft. They desire to record in their minutes their sincere sympathy with Bro. Hervey in his affliction, and they trust they may indulge the hope that a release from the anxieties of his office may so far conduce to his restoration to health as to enable him, in his retirement, to enjoy the quiet repose he has so well earned. They fervently hope that T.G.A.O.T.U. may grant him yet many years of peaceful life to enjoy the society of his brother Masons, with whom he has been so long associated, and who, one and all, entertain towards him the most sincere esteem and affection."

Bro. McIntyre, G.R., said: W.M., I have very great pleasure indeed in seconding the resolution which has been put before you by Bro. Fenn. It has been my lot to hold office in Grand Lodge for a very great number of years, when I had for my colleague our late Grand Secretary, Bro. Gray Clarke, and all the time our Bro. Hervey has been the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England I have held the post I now occupy. And I must say that during the whole of that period a more zealous officer, a man more determined to do his duty—and no man more thoroughly understood his duty than Bro. Hervey—was not to be found among the whole of the Craft of England. He was always wise in council, he was always rapid in action, always seeing what was right, and doing what was right, and so he endeared himself to the rulers of the Craft, and especially he endeared himself to his brother officers who were brought into almost daily contact with him; and certainly to this lodge, of which I have been a member for a great number of years, he was endeared by the wonderfully good instruction he gave to every one of its members by his assiduity in his attendance upon the meetings of this lodge, and by the ability with which he conducted everything entrusted to his care. We all feel—and those who saw him most feel it most—he is a great loss to friends, to Masonry, and to the Grand Lodge of England; and in his retirement we do hope, and we do hope and fervently pray, that years may be spared to him to enjoy that leisure to which his excellent services to Freemasonry so rightfully entitle him. (Cheers.)

Bro. Murton said: It is with very great regret I put this resolution. I owe a deep debt of gratitude to Bro. Hervey.

He initiated, passed, raised, and installed me. He has been a sincere friend to me in my Masonic career. He has been a dear friend to me and to all the Craft. I am sure I do not know any man more beloved by the Craft than Bro. Hervey. Let us indulge the hope that he may be spared to us for some time and be with us again. I know his heart is with us on this occasion, for it is an anniversary on which he would not have been absent on any account if he could have helped it; and, therefore, it grieves me very much to put this resolution.

The motion was then carried unanimously, and on the motion of Bro. Fenn, seconded by Bro. McIntyre, the Secretary was ordered to transmit a copy to Bro. Hervey.

Lord Kensington, S.G.W., in moving a vote of thanks to the working brethren, said: We have all heard the able and efficient way in which the Lecture has been worked this evening. Speaking for myself, for the first time that I have had the honour and the pleasure of attending the meeting of this lodge, and knowing, as I most truly do, how much in need of improvement I myself am, I can only say that I have been immensely struck with the way in which the various Sections of that Lecture have been worked; but I think I cannot be saying too much when I express my opinion that the oldest member of the Craft present and the oldest member of this lodge will, in conjunction with myself, feel we have learned something from what we have heard to-night. The proposal I have to ask the brethren present to assent to is that a cordial vote of thanks be passed to the brethren who have worked the various Sections of the Lecture to-night.

Major-Gen. Somerset G. Calthorpe, J.G.W., in seconding the motion, said: I can only assure you that I endorse every syllable that has been uttered by my Bro. Lord Kensington. I have been deeply impressed, and, I trust, have been greatly benefited by what I have heard.

The motion having been carried,

Bro. Murton said: On behalf of the working brethren, I beg to thank you. This lodge has been established now, I think, for above fifty-three years, and its office has been to promote improved working in the Craft. If we attain any approach to that desirable end our object is accomplished.

The names of brethren desiring to become members were then taken, and the lodge was closed. The brethren afterwards adjourned to supper at Freemasons' Tavern, at which they were presided over by Lord Kensington.

After supper the toasts were proposed, and the loyal compliments having been paid to "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," and "The Pro G.M., Dep. G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers,"

Bro. R. H. Giddy, District G.M. of Griqualand, in responding, said he had to thank Lord Kensington for the kind reference he had made to their names. He was only speaking the sentiments of the whole Craft when he said that no two men among the brethren were more thoroughly appreciated than Lords Carnarvon and Skelmersdale. He thanked the brethren, also, on behalf of the other Grand Officers, especially those who had the honour and pleasure of partaking of the hospitality of the lodge. It was a very great pleasure to those who had belonged to Grand Lodge to be present at this gathering, but a very much greater pleasure it was to be at the meeting of the lodge and see the wonderful working, which could not be surpassed. That working was a great credit to the Craft, and must greatly benefit it. The Grand Officers had the greatest pleasure in seeing the good work which the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was doing, because it made the men who would be the future officers of Grand Lodge.

Bro. McIntyre, G.R., in proposing "The Health of Lord Kensington," as W.M. of the evening, said that although this was not the first toast on the list, it would be the first with the brethren, as loyal Masons, upon this occasion, because, though they did the greatest homage and had to perform their most bounden duty to those who were supreme in the Craft, they did not forget that they owed allegiance to the W.M. who presided, and who, in the manner in which he had presided, had shown himself most worthy of the confidence of the Craft, and of the honour they were now about to pay him. It was a high honour to the members of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement that the S.G.W. of England was now presiding at their annual festival. They were perfectly well assured that it was to his own merits as well as to the favourable consideration of his friends and former schoolfellows that he had attained to the high position in the Craft which he now occupied, and the confidence of the Sovereign of the Craft which he now enjoyed. Those things alone would be sufficient to give him a passport to every assembly of Masons in England, for a reception which would be heart-felt by the members; but he needed, not that, because the way in which he had conducted the proceedings since he had been in the hall had shown that he was a ruler over men and a great authority among Masons. He (Bro. McIntyre) had the greatest pleasure in proposing "The Health of the R.W. Lord Kensington," and, although this was the first time his lordship had visited the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, he hoped it would not be the last time he would come into a public assembly of Masons, because the more he came among them the more he would endear himself to all members of the Craft. (Hear, hear.)

Lord Kensington, in reply, said he most sincerely echoed that portion of Bro. McIntyre's speech in which he said he hoped it would not be the last time he (Lord Kensington) would attend this Lodge of Improvement. What he had heard that evening had only convinced him of what he well knew before, that he had a great deal to learn. As he ventured to say at an earlier portion of the evening, in the Temple, he did not think that any one of those who were present could possibly have left that room without feeling they had learned something. He only hoped he might have the opportunity—and he should certainly endeavour to seize every opportunity he had—of attending the meetings of this lodge. It had given him the very greatest pleasure to accept the invitation he had received a little time back to preside on this occasion. The only doubt that came across his mind was, whether he should be able to discharge the duties he was asked to undertake in a manner that should be acceptable to the brethren. The brethren had given proof of their satisfaction by the way in which they had received the words of Bro. McIntyre. He came from the south-west of Wales; so far, indeed, that one could not go more than 400 yards from his home to the cliff's edge. But there were a good many Masonic lodges in that quarter where Masonry was well and carefully worked, and he knew that many of their members had attended the meetings of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. When he returned home he should have an opportunity of attending the several meetings of the lodges in that province, and he should then use words of encouragement, and try to stimulate the Brethren to be present at the meetings of the Emulation. He was certain that in that province they all had much to learn, and there could be no better place for a man to learn to perfect himself in Freemasonry than in this lodge. In conclusion, if he had returned thanks imperfectly the brethren must excuse him. The imperfection was only outward; internally he could feel no more than he did.

Lord Kensington next proposed "Success to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement," and in doing so said that when he entered the Temple that evening he had not the honour of being a member, but he was happy to say that since that time he had had the honour of being enrolled. Although he was the junior member of the lodge, the toast would come very fitly from his lips. The good which arose from attending the lodge was a fact no one could dispute who witnessed the way in which the work had been done that evening. He was immensely struck with the excellence of the work, which showed him how much any one had before him if he hoped to rise to proficiency.

Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., replying, said it remained for him to thank his lordship most cordially on behalf of the Committee and the working members of the lodge for the kindness with which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren for the cordial reception they had given to it. It was the desire of the Committee to promote a really good system of working, and he thought, as Bro. Giddy had said, that it had made its way in the Craft. He did not wish to hold up the lodge as of exceptional superiority. It had done, no doubt, a great deal of good during the years it had been established in promoting good and efficient working in the Craft. The sister lodges had also done their part in promoting good working. There had been more desire of late years to do so. Masonry had increased, and it had given an impetus to the zeal of the brethren. The working certainly had very much improved in lodges generally. Formerly country lodges were more zealous than the London lodges, and, though their work might be a little peculiar, still they worked very zealously and fluently. London lodges now worked very admirably as a rule. Of course there were certain little quaintnesses which were adopted by different lodges which might to a certain extent be demurred to, but which Masons did not wish to see quite eliminated; but as a system of working he thought the Emulation system was the best and most logical, and no doubt it would make its way and be felt among all lodges. (Hear, hear.)

Major Gen. Somerset G. Calthorpe, J.G.W., proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement." After the admirable way in which the business of the evening had been conducted he was sure the brethren would drink this toast most cordially. None who witnessed it could be otherwise than gratified. If every Mason could only see how perfectly the ceremonies were performed it would add very much to their feeling of respect and regard for the Order. Lodges of this kind could not fail to impress Masons with the importance and beauty of the symbolism of Masonry, and could have no other effect than to make better men and better Masons, both for working and in social and private life. The W.M. would endorse what he (Gen. Calthorpe) said, that without good officers no Master could successfully carry on his lodge. In the Lodge of Emulation no exception could be taken to the way in which the W.M. was supported. With such a Master, no doubt, the officers had an example, which they found it a pleasure and honour to follow, and, therefore, he was sure the brethren would all cordially respond to this toast, with which he would couple the name of Bro. F. Spaul.

Bro. Spaul replied.

Bro. Murton, by the permission of the W.M., would propose a toast, which, he knew, would have a hearty reception—"The Lodge of Unions," under which the Emulation Lodge of Improvement worked. The Emulation Lodge was proud of its mother, and he hoped the Lodge of Unions was proud of its banding. The Lodge of Unions must feel satisfaction that the Emulation had worked so long, and so well under their warrant, and the Emulation was grateful to the Lodge of Unions for allowing them to work under it. Long might it continue to do so; for a very vast number of years might it go on, to the completion of its first centenary. He would couple with the toast the name of Bro. Farnfield.

Bro. Farnfield, in response, said in these days of education and of Board Schools, poor parents were somewhat astonished or almost frightened at the amount of education their children were receiving, and so it was with the Lodge of Unions in the first two or three years of the Lodge of Emulation by the vast strides it made. They seriously took into consideration the working of the lodge, and if the Emulation Lodge of Improvement had done one thing good it was to bring the Lodge of Unions to a sense of its shortcomings in working, and it made a change in the working of the lodge. Some eighteen years ago, when he (Bro. Farnfield) joined the Lodge of Unions, they were rather slovenly in their working; but since then every Master had done his duty, and if at a meeting there was no work to do, sections were worked. Every one who took office was expected to be able to do his work. As in the Board Schools the child worked up the parent, so this Emulation Lodge of Improvement had worked up the parent lodge, and he trusted this Emulation Lodge might long go on and prosper, till in the year 1885 it arrived at its 100 years of age. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. H. J. E. Dumas, P.G.D., proposed "The Masonic Charities." The toast commended itself to the heart of every Mason, and, therefore, no proof or argument in its favour was required. But he could not forget a clever, good, and truly brotherly remark that came from the mouth of a dear brother who stood in his (Bro. Dumas') place this time last year—Bro. Kucker—who said he was addressing an assembly of those who either were, or had been, or would be subscribers to the Masonic Charities. It told in his (Bro. Dumas') mind, and he hoped it told in the minds of all those who heard Bro. Kucker. He had not forgotten that speech, and under the cover of that part of his speech he would like again to apply his words. He need not expatiate on the needs or requirements of those Institutions, or on what it was desirable that through the brethren they should do; but if example was wanted in this world (and it often was) he could only tell the brethren that the Emulation Lodge of Improvement gave all its surplus funds to the three Masonic Charities. It was not for him as a Steward of the Emulation Lodge to boast, neither was it in any boasting spirit he said it; but he did say that the Emulation Lodge of Improvement had done to the full all it could, and with the intention of doing all it could in the future for the Masonic Charities. These Charities were more than ever deserving of the support and consideration of the brethren, and he took it for an established fact which required no proof at his hands. Masonry was spreading. Lodges did not always remain what they were; they might not be what they promised to become; and we might expect in the future many calls upon the purses and abilities of the Masonic Charities. If ever, now was the time to show we would not relax in our desire to support them. The last three festivals showed that the heart of Masonry was in the right place, that it would do all it could, and more possibly than it had done. The Secretaries of all the Institutions were, unfortunately, not present. Bro. Terry was engaged at the jubilee of the lodge at Watford, and Bro. Binckes, who was always glad to come when he could, and make one of those attractive speeches which he always could, was also absent at another meeting. They had, however, the pleasure of the presence of Bro. Hedges, and he would call upon him to reply.

Bro. Hedges replied, and thanked the brethren for the very kind, cordial, and hearty support which the Lodge of Emulation had at all times granted to the Masonic charities. This was a fact which, being familiar to all present, relieved him of the necessity of detaining the brethren by informing them of it further. He would remind the brethren that the first of the Masonic festivals of the coming year was that of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and he would ask the brethren to afford that institution all the support in their power. The Boys' and Girls' Schools Festivals would take place in the following May and June; and on behalf of all these institutions he begged to thank the brethren.

Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D., proposed "Prosperity to the Sister Lodge of Instruction—Stability." It was a subject of great regret to him, and it must be to all the brethren, that Bro. Mugeridge, from great age and failing health, was unable to be present that evening, as had always been his custom for many years. He (Bro. Fenn) particularly regretted Bro. Mugeridge's absence that night, because in face of the resolution about to be proposed in Grand Lodge, on the 3rd December, the two ancient lodges of instruction should show themselves united to resist any interference in their ancient working. The Committee of this Emulation Lodge of Improvement, more especially those three of the Committee who were pupils of the late Bro. Stephen Barton Wilson, considered that they had a sacred trust bequeathed to them by him to maintain, to its fullest standard, the work which he taught in the Emulation Lodge of Improvement; and they had always shown the most conscientious zeal and desire to maintain that working in its utmost purity. They did not forget that the Stability Lodge of Instruction was the more ancient of the two, and although the working of that lodge differed somewhat from that of the Emulation, in this they agreed to differ with the most fraternal feelings and the utmost good fellowship. Neither this lodge nor the Stability presumed or wished to enforce their working on any lodge or any brother. But any brother who wished to improve himself in Masonry was at liberty to go there or come here, and whether he came here or went there he would find a brother presiding who was anxious and willing to assist his endeavours to the utmost of his ability. What was required was that the brethren who learned, their work should work up to the standard that they chose. He was called to account a little time ago in one of the Masonic papers for having said in another place to those who wished to improve Masonry, that if they found out where to begin they would never find out where to leave off. He repeated that statement, and he believed they had better leave alone the working as it existed in those lodges of improvement and instruction, and he warned the brethren that if they attempted to use the knife and to cut away what they considered to be objectionable in the way of anachronisms or discrepancies in Masonry, they might use the knife to that extent that they might endanger the very life of the patient. He could only say that the two lodges had always worked together with the utmost unanimity and fraternal concord, and he trusted that they would always do so to the end of time. He gave with the most cordial goodwill, and more particularly when they were assailed by a resolution which was to renovate or to disturb the working of those two lodges, "The Health of the Sister Lodge of Instruction, the Stability Lodge."

Col. Shadwell H. Clarke, P.G.D., proposed "The Stewards." It was the duty of every honest man to pay his debts, and he was quite sure that there was a debt the brethren ought to pay before they left the room. The Emulation Lodge of Improvement had been holding its high festival, and the brethren, he was happy to say, had met together in very goodly numbers. They had been accommodated in the Temple with every comfort; they had come into the banqueting room and been received at the hospitable board; been placed with all regularity and order, and enjoyed various good things. Some people might fancy that all this came of itself. The energetic Secretary of the lodge, Bro. Smallpeice, would enter a very strenuous protest against such a principle, for the truth was that all this was accomplished only by a very great deal of labour and trouble, and that labour and trouble were unselfishly and gratuitously given by the Stewards. No one who was unaware of the internal work and organization of such a meeting could have any idea of the immense amount of trouble entailed by the making of the arrangements which were requisite to bring such a meeting to a successful issue. They had only to look round and see the success of the evening to feel quite confident that the Stewards of this festival had done their duty ably and well. Therefore, the debt was a debt of gratitude towards those estimable brethren who had worked so hard and untiringly for the gratification and comfort of the meeting. He would couple with the toast the name of a highly esteemed brother, Bro. Richards, who was not only a Steward but also occupied a very highly responsible position on one of the permanent Committees of the lodge, a brother who was eminently fitted to be the mouthpiece of his brother Stewards. In thanking the Stewards for their kind services, he was sure he expressed the hopes of all the brethren that they might be submitted to their tender mercies on some future occasion. (Hear, hear, and cheers.)

Bro. Richards acknowledged the toast.

Lord Kensington, in conclusion, said: Brethren, I am going to ask you to drink a toast that, although it is not down on the list, you will respond to most cordially. And though I know you will in all heartiness respond to it, I fear that it is with a touch of sadness you will receive it. The name that I was going to submit to you is that of our Bro. Hervey. He has, as I have been informed this evening, and as you well know, served several years as Treasurer of this lodge. He has also for many years discharged the duties of Secretary of Grand Lodge, and in both those positions he has discharged them, not only to the satisfaction of lodges and brethren of those lodges, but also to the advantage of the lodges and brethren themselves. You all know the sad cause of his not being present to-night. He is away on account of ill-health, and on account of that ill-health he has resigned the office he has so long undertaken. I am sure, in drinking his health, that you will all cordially wish it, and offer a heartfelt prayer that the repose he now seeks may be accompanied by a return to health and strength. It is but a very few months that I have had the pleasure of having Bro. Hervey's acquaintance; but during that time I have learned in some way to know his worth, and I can fully appreciate the feelings of those who have known him so many more years than I have at his retirement from office. I will ask you to join with me in drinking health, and I trust I may say, "better Health to Bro. Hervey." (Applause.)

The toast having been heartily drunk was followed by the Tyler's toast, and the brethren separated.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE.—(No. 141).—This lodge met at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday, the 24th ult. Among those in attendance were Bros. G. Rumball, W.M.; Morrison, S.W.; Heaphy, J.W.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, S.D.; Clark, J.D.; Carter, P.M., Treasurer; W. Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Charles Dairy, I.P.M.; Whitey, W.S.; E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S. Middlesex, P.M. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bros. Bourlet and Daniel were duly passed to the Second Degree. At the request of the lodge, the W.M. then delivered the lecture on the Tracing Board. Bro. Rumball's abilities are so well and deservedly known in the Metropolitan Lodges of Instruction, in connection with all ceremonies of Masonry, that it would be superfluous to dilate upon them in the present instance further than to state that his working was quite up to its usual standard of excellence. The lodge was then formally closed, and the brethren separated. There was no banquet.

WESTBOURNE LODGE (No. 733).—The election meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, 20th ult., at Lord's Hotel, St. John's Wood. The W.M., Bro. Edward James Allen, presided, supported by the following brethren:—Bros. J. Welford, S.W.; W. Hallett, J.W.; H. A. Stacey, P.M., Treas.; John T. Woodstock, P.M., Sec.; E. Arrowsmith, J.D.; E. Helsdon, P.M., Past G. Purs. Middlesex, D. of C.; Org.; B. Kershaw, I.G.; S. R. Walker, Steward; C. Thomas, Tyler; Lewis Ascott, P.M.; B. Goodwin, P.M.; James Long, P.M.; H. Reed, P.M.; Thos. W. Allen, P.M.; E. Collins, P.M.; P. Murfin, John Roberts, J. Crick, E. Stevens, C. J. Biorn, J. Martin, G. F. Hearn, W. G. Eaton, T. Thompson, T. Smith, W. Unwin, Fred. Ridley, J. B. Bennett, T. Roebuck, A. Carlstrom, W. Bell, F. Mark, R. Reeder, J. Patterson, A. Bench, Jno. Murdoch, J. Patterson, C. R. Wickens, F. Franklin, George Lamb, jun., J. R. Stuart, H. A. Spencer, John Murdock, W. Stone, B. C. Poppy, J. W. Curtis, G. Lambert, J. Cole, C. Burley, J. Garvith, James Beckham, R. Taylor, G. A. Bradley, and the following visitors:—Bros. John Bashit, P.M. 218, I.C.; F. W. Morrill, P.M. 704; G. Draper, P.M. 1305; J. G. Russell, 1602; J. J. Clarke, 1612; H. Taylor, 1642; James Flood, 1642; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., when the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Ballot was then taken for five gentlemen, which proved unanimous in their favour. The business then proceeded with was the raising of Bros. Roberts and Crick, the passing of Bro. Price, and the initiation of Messrs. Wm. Gillings, James Curtis, and G. A. Bradley, the ceremonies being admirably rendered by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Edward James Allen, ably assisted by his officers. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year then took place, which resulted unanimously in favour of Bro. J. Welford, whose installation will take place on the 19th of February next, when several distinguished brethren are expected to be present. Bro. H. A. Stacey was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, as was also the Tyler, Bro. C. Thomas. Bros. Biorn, Martin, and Ridley were afterwards elected as the Audit Committee. The following notices of motion were then submitted:—Bro. Reed proposed, seconded by Bro. H. Elston, that the usual £5 5s jewel should be presented to the W.M., for the services he had rendered during his year of office. To this the following amendment was proposed by Bro. Walker, seconded by Bro. E. Arrowsmith:—"That, considering the very efficient manner in which Bro. Edward James Allen had dispensed the duties of W.M. during his year of office, the value of the jewel should be £10 10s. instead of £5 5s." Bro. E. Arrowsmith, J.D., submitted the following notice of motion:—"That the fees of initiation should be raised from £10 10s. to £15 15s." This was seconded by Bro. Humphreys. The W.M. then proposed, seconded by the S.W. and W.M. elect, Bro. J. Welford, "That a jewel of the value of £3 3s. be presented to Bro. E. Hart, who had held and performed the office of Organist to the lodge for sixteen years." This was carried unanimously. The previous motions stood over until the next meeting. After the proposition by that Bro. Ridley, Bro. Carter, of Lodge, No. 704, be elected as a joining member, and "Hearty good wishes" had been expressed from the various visitors present, the lodge was formally closed. The brethren shortly afterwards sat down to a banquet, which was all that could be desired, and reflected the highest praise on Bro. Reeder, under whose immediate superintendence the dinner was served. In proposing the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," the W.M. said this toast was always most cordially received. Since he had been head of the Order, Freemasonry had flourished; it had never been in a more flourishing state. In introducing the next toast, "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W.P.O.M.," the W.M. felt confident it would be received with as much enthusiasm, his lordship being so very popular, having, as he had, the respect and admiration of every member; with this toast he would include the names of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers. The toast of "The Initiates" was next given, to which Bros. Bradley, Gillings, and Curtis replied. In proposing the toast of "The Visitors," the W.M. expressed the very great pleasure they all experienced at seeing them; he had certainly expected many more, but presumed their absence was owing to the weather, which had been bad indeed that night. With this toast he would couple the names of Bros. Draper, Flood, Taylor, and Kelly. These brethren having replied, Bro. Goodwin, I.P.M., proposed, in complimentary terms, "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Allen, in reply, said he had a disagreeable duty to perform, that was, to speak of himself. He had always the welfare of the lodge at heart, and his incessant endeavours had always been to promote good feeling among the members. He felt very grateful for the kind manner in which his health had been proposed, and for what trouble he had had he was sufficiently repaid by the very cordial manner in which the brethren had responded to his health. Several other toasts were proposed and duly responded to. The pleasures of the evening were much enlivened by some capital singing by several members of the lodge, those worthy of special mention being Bro. Hallett, for the way in which he sang "The Freemason—tell me the sign, John," Bros. E. Arrowsmith and Unwin for two very amusing songs, the latter brother's being his own composition.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—The annual installation meeting of this old banner lodge took place at the Cannon-street Hotel on Thursday week, the 27th ult. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Dr. C. R. Cutmore, assisted by Bros. E. Kidman, S.W.; W. Drake, J.W.; Capt. G. J. Kain, P.M., Treas.; W. F. Smart, J.D.; W. J. Collins, I.G.; W. Manfield Newton, W.M. elect; George Newman, P.M.; W. Jerrett Miller, P.M.; John Pringle, P.M.; A. Braun, P.M.; Geo. Hutchison, G. W. Hutchinson, J. H. Brookes, C. W. Lenox Hall, E. W. Broomhall, A. Wortham, R. Sutcliffe, P. Steinmann, F. G. Barns, L. S. Burt, W. J. Heath, Dr. D. M. Forbes, Henry Brown, D. G. Hewit, A. Le Grand, W. Johnston, and the following visiting brethren:—Bros. W. H. Baker (late of the Abbey Lodge, No. 945, Abingdon), P.G.D. of C. Berks; W. Rickwood, S.W. 192; G. Lambert, J.D. 720; O. Moore, 176; G. J. Dawson, 749; W. W. Morgan, 1385; H. Jarmain, 1541; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). Lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. George Hutchison and C. W. Lenox Hall, candidates for the F.C., were then introduced, and received from the hands of the W.M. their Second Degree. Lodge was then resumed in the First Degree, when three gentlemen, Messrs. Brown, Hewit, and

Dr. D. M. Forbes, were impressively initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The brethren below the chair having retired, the ceremony of installation was proceeded with. Bro. Cutmore having vacated the chair in favour of Bro. W. Jerrett Miller, P.M., that brother in a very impressive manner installed Bro. W. Manfield Newton into the chair of K.S., Bro. Miller also delivered the lectures at the close of the ceremony. The brethren being admitted, the newly-installed W.M. was saluted with all the honours, who then proceeded to invest the following officers:—Bros. Kidman, S.W.; W. Drake, J.W.; Capt. G. J. Kain, P.M., Treas.; Wm. Worrell (who was, owing to School Board engagements, unavoidably absent), P.M., Sec.; Roberts, S.D.; W. F. Smart, J.D.; W. J. Collins, I.G.; George Newman, P.M., Steward; Broomhall, D. of C.; and W. Grant, Tyler. Bro. Capt. Kain, in the absence of the Secretary, Bro. Worrell, then read a very satisfactory report, in a financial sense, from the Audit Committee. In the course of his remarks, Bro. Kain, referring to the absence of the Secretary, said he was in receipt of a letter from Bro. Worrell apologising for his absence, which was caused by pressing engagements in School Board matters. Bro. Worrell concluded by stating that as it was but the second time he had been absent since his appointment he trusted his absence would be overlooked. Bro. Kain also read a letter from Mrs. W. E. Newton, couched in graceful terms, acknowledging her grateful thanks for the letter of condolence which she had received. Bro. George Newman having consented to represent the lodge at the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Bro. W. J. Collins, I.G., proposed, and Bro. Pringle, P.M., seconded, that the lodge should place the sum of £10 10s. upon his list, which was carried unanimously. Bro. George Newman then announced to the brethren that, owing to the great pressure of business at their last meeting, it was inadvertently omitted to propose the usual Past Master's jewel to the outgoing Master; this omission, he was sure, Bro. Cutmore would excuse under the circumstances. Bro. Newman then formally proposed, seconded by Bro. Miller, that a jewel should be presented to the I.P.M., which was carried unanimously. Bro. Captain Kain then rose and said that, feeling sure the vote would be unanimous, he had ordered the jewel, and was happy to say it was in the possession of Bro. Newton, who would present it at a later period. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large hall, where a choice banquet awaited them. The first toast the W.M. proposed was that of "The Queen and the Craft," followed by that of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. The W.M., in proposing the latter, said it was well known what a thorough good Mason H.R.H. was, and it was a fact that he was as well able to initiate or perform any of the ceremonies as the best of them. The W.M. paid the customary compliments in proposing "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," which toast was received with loud cheering. To the toast of "The Initiates," Bros. Brown, Hewit, and Forbes replied; the former remarking that everything he had recently passed through, so strange and solemn, had made a strong impression upon him. He was much gratified at the hearty welcome and kindness extended towards him, and he was sure he should never forget his initiation. Bro. Hewit would always strive to do his best for Freemasonry, and to become a credit to the lodge. Bro. Doctor Forbes would like to express his thanks for the very friendly manner in which the initiates were received. It could not be wondered at that they were a little nervous after passing through so impressive a ceremony. He hoped they would not regret having received them into their lodge. He, with his brother initiates, would endeavour to prove an honour to the lodge. Bro. Cutmore then proposed "The W.M.," which toast he considered the "cream" of the evening. Bro. Newton lost the office, when he resigned in favour of his father, a worthy action on the part of a son. He had great pleasure in congratulating Bro. Newton on at last seeing him in the chair. Bro. W. Manfield Newton, W.M., returned thanks for the kind manner Bro. Cutmore, I.P.M., had spoken of him, and said that since his connection with the lodge he had received nothing but kindness. He felt deeply grateful to the members of the lodge for unanimously electing him, after three years' absence, to the chair. It was rarely such a thing was done, which caused him a considerable amount of pleasure. He would endeavour to the utmost of his ability to carry out, in its truest sense, his duty, and hoped to meet at the end of his year of office with the approbation of the whole lodge. In introducing the toast of "The Visitors," the W.M. remarked that one of the best features in Freemasonry was that of hospitality. They were always glad to welcome visitors. He was happy to say he recognised several faces who favoured the lodge with their presence on previous occasions. This he was glad to think was a proof that they were well treated. He was always glad to see brethren wearing the purple; it was, therefore, with extra pleasure he coupled with the toast the name of Bro. W. H. Baker, P.G.D. of C. Berks and Bucks, and hoped it would not be the last occasion upon which he would visit them. Bro. Baker, in returning thanks, expressed the very great pleasure he had experienced in visiting the William Preston Lodge. He had taken a very great interest in Freemasonry ever since his initiation, which dated as far back as 1836. During his forty-three years' experience there was no company of gentlemen he enjoyed more than those he met in Masonry. Go where you might, in whatever part of the country, in the lodge you were always received and treated as a brother. Bro. Rickwood and other brethren also returned thanks. The W.M., in giving the next toast, that of "The Past Masters," said: At all times, no matter what society it might be, it was customary to honour old servants. The Past Masters had to bear the heat and burthen of the day, always making the work they had to do a labour of love. It was with great gratification he presented Bro. Dr. Cutmore with a very handsome gold jewel, bearing at the back the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. W. Cutmore, P.M., by the brethren of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766, as a mark of esteem, and in recognition of the able manner in which he discharged the duties of W.M. during his year of office, 1878-9." All the brethren would agree that the terms of the inscription were not overdrawn. Bro. Newton then in graceful terms alluded to the services of the various Past Masters, particularly the services rendered by Bro. W. Jerrett Miller that evening in performing the installation ceremony in so marvellous a manner. Bro. Cutmore, in acknowledging the presentation jewel, thanked the brethren for the gift, and said he always endeavoured to the utmost of his abilities to fulfil his duties properly. Professional duties alone had kept him away, but his soul was always with the lodge. He felt very thankful for the jewel, which he should always look upon with pride and pleasure. Bros. Kain, Miller, Braun, and Newman also replied. The W.M. then made a forcible appeal on behalf of the Charities, which resulted in the collection of £1 17s. 6d. The Tyler's toast closed the proceedings.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 27th ult., at the White Swan, Deptford, when there were present Bros. R. Harman, W.M.; J. G. Vohmann, S.W.; G. Harvey, J.W.; W. Andrews, Treas.; J. J. Pakes, Sec.; W. A. Harris, S.D.; E. Good, J.D.; G. Andrews, D.C.; G. Porter, I.G.; and J. Bavin, Tyler. Past Masters: Bros. G. Limn, J. Truelove, and H. J. Tuson. Bros. Fisher, Luckraft, Whibley, Bax, Stanley, Buhler, Stringer, Horton, Clarke, Fellows, Sanders, Taylor, Wildesmith, Simmons, Abbott, Hadingham, Thomas, and West. Visitor: Bro. J. Forster, 51. Mr. B. G. Matthews was balloted for and elected. A slight alteration was made in Bye-laws III. and XII. Bro. Limn proposed and Bro. Vohmann seconded, that a five guinea jewel be presented to W.M. Harman, for services during his year of office. Carried. Proposed by Bro. J. J. Pakes, P.M. and Sec., seconded by Bro. Good, and carried unanimously, that the sum of ten pounds be voted to charity (widows of Freemasons).

BURDETT COUTTS LODGE (No. 1278).—The usual meeting of this very prosperous lodge was held on Thursday, the 20th ult., at the Approach Tavern, Victoria Park, Bro. Abraham Lazarus, the W.M., presiding, who was assisted by his officers most efficiently. There was a fair attendance of P.M.'s, Bro. Berry officiating as acting Secretary in the absence of Bro. G. W. Verry. Bro. W. J. Bonner received his M.M. Degree, the ceremony being most impressively worked, and Mr. Basil Stewart was duly balloted for and initiated. The brethren then adjourned to the banqueting room, where their festivities were interrupted by a communication being made to the W.M. to the effect that a fire was raging next to his premises, which information naturally necessitated his leaving, but he desired the brethren not to break up, or allow the untoward circumstance to mar the enjoyment of those present, and asked the I.P.M., Bro. Crouch, to preside and carry out the usual programme, which was done.

WEST KENT LODGE (No. 1297).—The brethren of this lodge assembled on the 29th ult., for the second time, at their new place of meeting, namely, the Crystal Palace. Bro. R. H. Crowden, the W.M., was supported by all his officers, who arrived in due form to be present at the opening of the lodge. They included Bros. the Rev. Dr. Rosenthal, D.D., Chap.; the Senior and Junior Wardens, &c.; and Past Masters C. K. Crouch, G. Clements, John Allen, and J. K. Stead. Amongst the visitors were Bros. E. B. Grabham, 19, P.S.G.W. Middx.; H. H. Spede Andrews, 27; and J. Hammond, 1572. Bro. B. Fullwood, P.M. 328, was unanimously elected a joining member, and Dr. William Lomas and Mr. P. G. Philips duly elected for initiation. The latter named candidate was then duly initiated, and Bros. the Rev. Arthur C. Driver, M.A., and James Orange were passed. Bro. Crowden, the W.M., was appointed Steward on behalf of the lodge for the ensuing festival of the Girls' School, and on the proposition of the Treasurer, Bro. P. M. Stead, ten guineas were voted from the lodge funds. At the banquet table later on the subscription list was passed round, and though there were not more than twenty present, the total subscription amounted to £58, which is the more creditable, as, though the lodge was consecrated in 1869, this will be the first time it has sent a Steward to any of the various Charities. It is to be hoped that the example thus set will be followed by each succeeding Master.

LANGTHORNE LODGE (No. 1421).—A meeting was held on Thursday, the 27th ult., at the Swan Hotel, Stratford. There were present Bros. T. S. Taylor, W.M.; H. N. Taylor, S.W.; G. F. Dix, J.W.; G. Ward Verry, Sec.; J. F. Precter, S.D.; R. W. Biggs, J.D.; A. Meyers, D.C.; J. Hunt, I.G.; C. Mansfield, Steward; W. Steedman, Tyler; C. Bundick, P.M.; G. Hollington, P.M.; C. Lacey, P.M.; Furness, Buckle, Loane, Mills, and others. Visitors: Bros. W. Musto, P.M. 1369; H. Tapley, S.W. 1076; W. J. Carter, 1472; S. Waterer, 1579; and R. H. Allen, P.M. 554. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of last regular meeting confirmed, Bro. W. Buckle was entrusted, and raised to the Degree of M.M. Bros. T. Loane and R. Mills were entrusted, and passed to the Degree of F.C. The ballot was then taken for Mr. W. Hope, and being unanimous, Mr. W. Hope was initiated into Freemasonry according to ancient rite. The by-laws were read by the Secretary, after which Bro. H. N. Taylor was elected W.M., Bro. G. Levick, re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Steedman, Tyler. Bros. Bullwinkle, Buckle, and Loane were elected officers. A Past Master's jewel was voted to the outgoing W.M., and the lodge was then closed.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the S.M.H., Camberwell, on the 27th ult. There were present Bros. Knight Smith, W.M.; Ashwell, S.W.; Foster, J.W.; Matlock, P.M., Treas.; Jolly, P.M., Sec.; Kegg, S.D.; Virman, I.G.; Goodman, D.C.; Poupard, P.M.; J. Williams, Gill, Catlin, Raymond, Holste, Smith, Ashford, and Hunt. Visitors: Bros. E. Mallett, P.M. 141; W. Carter, 22; Brock, 755; E. Roberts, 1623; Little, 1706; and Barr, 464. There being no work for the meeting, the W.M. requested his S.W. to employ the brethren with instruction. The lodge was opened in due form, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The S.W. then rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, the W.M. presiding at the harmonium; and, assisted by a quartette, the degree was worked by some beautiful descriptive music, arranged by the W.M., which certainly worked admirably, and does great credit to the genius of their W.M., who is a great favourite amongst them. The second degree was also rehearsed, accompanied by quartette and solemn music. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired to enjoy the fourth degree, after which the usual Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded to, songs, glees, and part-songs being dispersed at intervals, the W.M. and Bro. Egbert Roberts greatly excelling themselves. The Tylers having been entrusted with the Master's gavel, gave the final toasts and the brethren separated after a most enjoyable evening.

CITY OF WESTMINSTER LODGE (No. 1563).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Regent Masonic Hall, on the 29th November, Bro. B. Phillips, W.M., presiding. There were also present Bro. E. White, P.M.; B. Turner, S.W.; J. E. Shand, J.W.; B. H. Swallow, P.M., Treasurer; E. J. Scott, P.M., Secretary; J. Hutchinson, S.D.; J. Waugh, J.D.; T. Murray James, D.C.; E. C. Woodward, I.G.; besides several lay members and the following visitors:—R. Payne, W.M. 1318; W. Coombes, P.M., P.G.S.B.; J. Edell, I.G. 108; F. Green, 1687; Matthew Crook, 1614; T. Lewis, W.S. 1472; F. A. Wiggins, 160; A. Bassington, W.M. 205; George F. Hammond, 1765; E. Farwig, W.M. 180; J. W. Elvin 538; Louis Beck, W.M. 1559; F. G. Baker, P.M. 753; W. Carrington, I.G. 1791; A. J. Mucklow, 1584; J. A. Scarlett, 276; J. Austin, P.M. 753; R. Coad, 1328; J. Simpson, W.M. 1178; R. Callingham, 1178; G. A. Watkins, 1585; James Cronland, J.W. 1687; W. J. Martin, 1681; R. Emanuel 188; W. Grover, J.W. 749; S. Wenkheim, 1017; W. W. Morgan, jun., 1385; H. Black, 1728; T. W. Murley, S.W. 1247; A. B. Ehr, S.W. 1515; John Moore, 548; Charles Wals, 79; Henry Cross, J.W. 589; Wallace Wells, 1319; H. Harvey, 1604; E. B. Beman, 180; and H. Massey, (Freemason). The W.M. initiated five candidates, Messrs. C. L. May, A. Stevens, H. Coots, E. Line, and T. R. Wenn. Bro. E. White then took the chair and installed Bro. B. Turner as W.M. of the lodge. The following officers were then appointed: Bros. Shand, S.W.; J. Hutchinson, J.W.; Swallow, P.M., Treasurer; Scott, P.M., Secretary; J. Waugh, S.D.; J. Emanuel, J.D.; T. Pratt, I.G.; J. Hancock, Std.; James, D.C.; and Potter, Tyler. Bro. White afterwards delivered the addresses, and there being no further business before the lodge it was closed, and the brethren proceeded to banquet. At the conclusion of this repast, which was admirably provided, the usual toasts were proposed. Bro. B. Phillips, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and said that the brethren who had witnessed that brother's working in the various offices he had filled in the lodge, were able to form a good idea of his capability of performing the duties which would now be required of him. Personally he had no doubt as to the result which would attend the labours of his successor. He did not think the brethren could possibly have done better than they had in electing the present Master to his proud position; nor did he doubt that the lodge would be greatly benefited during his term of presidency. The W.M. replied, and said he was exceedingly grateful to the I.P.M. for his remarks, and thankful to the brethren for the heartiness with which they had responded to the toast. He had been made most happy during the whole term of his connection with the lodge, and felt very grateful to the brethren for having placed him in the chair. He felt very proud of his position, and considered it a great compliment. He should endeavour to do even better for the lodge in the future than he had in the past, and hoped his year of office might result as successfully as Bro. Phillips had predicted it would. "The Health of the Initiates" was next given. The W.M. said he was especially pleased to welcome the five brethren who had been admitted to the benefits of Freemasonry during the evening. Each of them had expressed the pleasure they had experienced in being received into the lodge. Each of the initiates responded to the toast. The W.M. next proposed "The Visitors." He felt that they had now arrived at the toast of the evening. He saw a great many brethren around him who were members of other lodges, and had on the present occasion honoured the City of Westminster by visiting and taking part in the work of the day. The guests were thirty-eight in number, to all of whom he desired to tender on behalf of the lodge the heartiest welcome. He hoped that throughout his term of office the lodge would maintain its reputation for hospitality. Bro. Coombes, who was the first called upon to respond, considered it a very great honour to have to reply on behalf of so distinguished an array of visitors. The work he had witnessed that night had been admirable. Every year the lodge seemed to progress, and when they took into consideration the class of men who had filled the chair, it seemed impossible for any other result to accrue. He concluded by hoping that every success might attend the Master during his year of office, and that the lodge would continue to prosper in the future as it had in the past. Bro.

Austin followed. There was no doubt in his mind but that visiting was one of the greatest privileges Masons enjoyed. How and where he could find words to thank the W.M. and brethren was his great difficulty. He could only express the great treat he had enjoyed in witnessing the work performed in the lodge. He trusted the Master might have ample work during the coming year. Bro. Farwig expressed his pleasure at witnessing the progress of the lodge. It could be but a pleasure to every good Mason to see it. Bro. Beck also tendered his thanks. Bro. Payne said it was a great pleasure to him to respond to the call. He was greatly gratified to see Bro. Turner in the chair. He knew him to be a good man and true. He congratulated him on the position he had attained in the lodge. Bro. Baker also responded. The W.M. then proposed the toast of "The Past Masters." Each one of them had acted during their respective years of office as he could wish every Master to act. Very few lodges could boast of such brethren as they numbered among their Past Masters. Bro. White was one who never cared what trouble he put himself to if it was for the benefit of the lodge. The W.M. had especially to thank him for the way in which he had that evening placed him in the chair. Bro. Holden was a good man and true. To hear him render a ceremony was a treat. As Chaplain of the lodge he was especially entitled to the thanks of the members. Bro. Swallow was last, but certainly not least. As founder of the lodge he had done wonders; indeed, had it not been for him the lodge would never have been in existence. A most important part of the duty of the Master at this time was to present to Bro. Phillips the Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted by the lodge. He had great pleasure in placing it on his breast. Bro. Phillips desired to thank the brethren for the jewel they had so kindly voted him. During his year of office he had done his best for the City of Westminster Lodge, and so long as he lived he should endeavour to improve the lodge as far as he could. Bro. Swallow tendered his thanks. He thought the present W.M. was likely to add to the prosperity of the lodge. Bro. Holden regretted his inability to be present at the first part of the evening. Being in the chair in another Order of Freemasonry he was unable to attend the lodge earlier, but he congratulated the brethren on the successful meeting they had had. Bro. White felt it a very great privilege to be allowed to install the Master. The four brethren who had passed the chair of the lodge were among the founders of it, now they had a brother in the chair who joined after the foundation, and might thus be considered to start on a new era. He felt very proud of being numbered among the Past Masters of so distinguished a lodge. The W.M. next proposed the toast in honour of the Treasurer and the Secretary. These were two brethren it would be impossible to do without. Bro. Swallow, in reply, thanked the brethren for the great honour they had conferred on him by again electing him to the important office he filled in the lodge. Bro. Scott also thanked the brethren. He tried to please all, but sometimes found it a difficult task. He thought the brethren should take into consideration the arduous nature of a Secretary's duties. As last but not least the W.M. described the next toast that of "The Officers." Without officers he should be a position similar to a ship without a rudder. The S.W., Bro. Shand, took a great interest in Freemasonry, but more especially in the City of Westminster Lodge; indeed, his zeal in this respect was only equalled by his abhorrence for the trading of Crown servants. (Laughter.) The toast having been replied to, the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. During the evening some excellent music was given by Bros. Wells and Cross, of the choir of St. Andrew's, Wells-street, and other brethren.

CLAPHAM LODGE (No. 1818).—The first regular meeting of this young but highly prosperous lodge was held on Monday, the 24th ult., at the Grosvenor Hotel, Victoria Station, and the spacious room, with its well appointed new lodge furniture and banner, presented a very striking and pleasant coup d'œil. There were present Bros. Louis Hirsch, W.M.; Dr. Thomas Pearce, S.W.; A. Fairlie, J.W.; W. Worrell, Sec.; R. Clay Sudlow, Treas. (pro tem.); Alfred Pocock, S.D.; W. Carlton Hale, J.D.; Dr. Lewis Evans, A. G. Repton, Sydney Pocock, G. Thorp Goodinge, Dr. John Dixon, G. Wright, Great City Lodge; J. Zeder, Mizpah Lodge; and W. Reinhard, Tyler. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the consecration and lodges of emergency having been read and confirmed, the W.M. most ably passed Bros. Dr. Evans, A. G. Repton, and Sydney Pocock, and initiated Mr. Henry Phillips into the mysteries of the Craft, Bro. Worrell presiding at the organ. The ballot was then taken, and declared to be unanimous in favour of Bro. G. T. Goodinge, of the Lodge of Amity, No. 171, as a joining member, the W.M. expressing the great pleasure he felt in seeing Bro. Goodinge as one of the members of the Clapham Lodge, which was heartily endorsed by the brethren. Bro. Goodinge acknowledged the compliment paid him by the W.M. and brethren in a few suitable remarks. The Secretary having read letters from Bros. Buss, Asst. Sec., and Robert Fairlie, regretting their inability to be present, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was elegantly served, well attended, and thoroughly enjoyed by all. A few songs from Bros. Zeder, Sudlow, and Hale added interest and harmony to the meeting, and the W.M., Bro. Louis Hirsch, is to be congratulated for such an auspicious commencement of his year of office. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the customary loyal and Craft toasts, which were duly honoured. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed in very flattering terms by Bro. W. Worrell, P.M. He was sure the W.M. would do his best to make his year of office a pleasurable and happy one

OLD MASONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

How our aged Bro. Delasaux, vouched by Bro. Jno. R. Hall in your last impression as the oldest corner in England and, presumably, the oldest existing Mason on the rolls of Grand Lodge, could have been initiated in 1820 in a lodge (Canterbury, 1635) which, according to the Calendar, did not receive its warrant until 1876, perhaps your correspondent will be good enough to explain.

Lodge Canterbury, 1635, seems only to be connected by its name with the illustrious minster capital of the ecclesiastical province. It holds its meetings at 33, Golden-square, whereas the letter upon which I was remarking is dated from the city of Canterbury.

I have a strong suspicion that Bro. Hall is not responsible for the parenthetical 1635; that some transcriber seeing the word Canterbury at the foot of his letter has, ex mero motu, supplied the number of the lodge bearing that name, and that your esteemed correspondent must have meant to allude to the United Industrious Lodge, No. 31, the only lodge in existence in Canterbury, as far as the Calendar informs us, in 1820. Perhaps you will think the error so obvious as hardly to be worth correcting, but printed matter is constantly building up history, and no one can adequately estimate the value of correction in such apparent trifles as false quotations, inaccurate dates, and involuntary, but none the less mischievous, mis-statements in the organs that, assuming to guide public opinion now, must also fulfil the office of abstract and brief chronicles for succeeding times.

Such slips are so numerous in your contemporaries that, jealous for your fame for accuracy, I presume, even in this minute detail, to disregard the maxim, de minimis non curat, &c., and I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

P.M. and TREASURER.

DERWENT LODGE, No. 40.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the report of the consecration of the St. Leonard's Lodge, No. 1842, which appears in your issue of the 20th ult., the V.W.D.P.G.M. for Sussex is reported to have said, "that it was upwards of 100 years since the Derwent Lodge was first established at Hastings."

I think this is an error which is caused by taking the position the lodge holds on the roll of Grand Lodge. As it is No. 40, it is generally supposed that it must be one of our oldest lodges, but such is not the case. The lodge, under the Grand Lodge Ancients, which was numbered 36, was constituted about 1755, and met in London, and it had ceased to exist for many years when the Derwent Lodge, No. 36, now No. 40, was established at Hastings in 1813, the latter being a new lodge with a new warrant, placed in the position of the extinct lodge; it was not a resurrection of the old lodge or a warrant of confirmation.

The first lodge held at Hastings was in 1799, at the Swan Inn, No. 583, Lodge of Harmony, Grand Lodge Moderns.

I was in hopes that the list of lodges in the "Freemasons' Calendar and Pocket Book for 1880" would have been carefully revised, and the dates annexed to those lodges formally under the Grand Lodge Ancients; as it is the only authorised list published it should be a perfect one.

For further information on anti-union lodges I would refer those who are interested in the same to a recent publication, entitled "A Numerical and Numismatical Register of Lodges which formed the United Grand Lodge of England," and which can be purchased of the author, Bro. W. J. Huggan, Truro, Cornwall.

Yours fraternally.

CONSECRATION OF THE MARLBOROUGH CHAPTER, No. 1399.

The new chapter attached to the Marlborough Lodge, No. 1399, was consecrated on Friday, the 28th ult., at the Lodge Room, Woodstock. The Consecrating Officer was Comp. David Pryce Owen, P.Z. 998, who was ably assisted by Comps. J. Williams, P.Z. 581, as H.; E. Bruton, P.Z. 340, as J.; Reginald Bird, M.A., P.Z. 357, Deputy Prov. Grand Master Oxon, acted as P.Z. The other companions present were J. Pitts, 340; H. Williams, 581; J. Long, 340; T. B. Brown, 185; H. Plumridge, 340; P. Robbins, 340; H. O. Crane, 340; A. Rowley, 340; J. Calcutt, 340; and G. Norwood, Janitor. After the chapter had been formally opened Comp. T. B. Brown, the M.E.Z. designate, was requested by the Consecrating Officer to deliver the inaugural address.

The companions having signified their approval of the officers named in the charter, Comp. D. P. Owen proceeded with the ceremony of consecration. Comp. H. Plumridge ably conducted the musical portion of the ceremonial, assisted by Comps. H. O. Crane and A. Rowley.

The ceremony of consecration being finished, the M.E. Comp. D. P. Owen installed the Principals—Comps. T. B. Brown in the chairs of J., H., and Z.; H. Williams in the chairs of J. and H.; and Jas. Long in the chair of J.

The ceremony throughout was of a very impressive character, being admirably performed. Comp. D. P. Owen delivered all his addresses with great force and animation.

After the ceremony several propositions for exaltation and joining were made. The Consecrating Officer and the three Principals who assisted him were elected honorary members of the chapter.

The chapter was then closed in ancient form.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF BERKS AND OXON.

The Mark Master's Degree has made rapid strides during the last few years, but no better evidence could be afforded of its increasing vitality than the very successful meeting at Reading on Thursday week, to inaugurate the new Province of Berks and Oxon. That the Degree itself is progressing in all parts of the world is proved by the fact that it is now recognised by the Grand Lodge of every English speaking country except England, such as the Grand Chapters of Ireland, Scotland, Canada, Quebec, General Grand Chapter of the United States, &c.; in short, it never was in such a position before, but whilst it may increase in numbers the Degree cannot ever be more recognised than it is now, as the "Articles of Union" of England prohibit it being worked, as in Scotland, in a Craft Lodge.

The lodges comprising the new Province of Berks and Oxon are: Porchester, 27; University, 55; Abbey, 225; Leopold, 235; and Alfred, 247, and it was under the banner of the Leopold Lodge at Reading that the inaugural ceremony was performed.

The lodge assembled at 1.45 and the Grand and Provincial Grand Officers having been received in due form, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened, the presiding Grand Officer being the M.W. Bro. the Rev. George Raymond Portal, P.G.M.M.M. Among the brethren present were Bros. the Right Hon. the Earl of Jersey, 55, P.G.S.W.; Rev. G. R. Portal, Past G.M., Prov. G.M. Hants and the Isle of Wight; A. M. Broadly, 222, 107, and 248, P.M.M., P.G.M.M.M. Tunis and Malta; F. Davison, 7, P.M., G.T., D.P.G.M. Middlesex and Surrey; H. C. Levander, 1, P.M., G.R.; F. Binckes, 7, G. Sec.; T. Meggy, 104, P.M., P.G.M.O.; D. M. Dewar, P.M., G. Asst. Sec.; R. P. Spice, 3, P.M., J.W.; T. Cubitt, 1, P.M., G.S.D.; H. Deane, 55, W.M., P. Provincial C.; G. L. Hawkins, 55, S.D.; H. Hacker, 54, J.W., P. Prov. G.J.W. Hants; Robert Berridge, D. T. Clark, 75, 164, Sec., P.G. Sec. Sussex; F. Harrison, 62, P.M., P.P.G.S.O. Hants; T. J. Pulley, 54, P.M., G.S., G.J.O. Hants; H. R. Bowden, 247, Org.; T. Benham, 54, W.M., P.P.G.S.D. Hants and Isle of Wight; S. Harris, 340, Stewart; S. Cole, 54, P.P.S.W. Hants and Isle of Wight; C. Horsley, G.J.O.; H. Stone, 34, J.D.; Geo. Westall, 54 and 235, S.D., M.O.; Walter Bowdon, 54, M.O.; F. H. Cozens, 104, P.G. Org.; R. White, 54; E. Margrett, 235, W.M., G.S.; H. R. Cooper Smith, 55, W.M.; C. Stephens, 253, S.W., D.P.G.M. Berks and Oxon; Rev. F. F. Ravenshaw, 187, P.M., P.G. Chaplain; and W. Lake, 98, P.M., P. Prov. G. Reg. (Freemason).

There were also present Bros. E. L. Sheppard, C. J. Butler, W. Ballard, J. F. Stransom, R. Bracher, F. J. Ferguson, A. Welch, E. Hornblower, W. J. Lendrin, J. R. Shearer, J. Reade, J. A. Acock, A. Thatcher, J. W. Lamb, G. Lear, Alfred Barker, John Egginton, J. M. Dormer, E. Townsend, F. Ryman Hall, A. Hubbard, J. W. Simons, and others.

The presiding Grand Master having been saluted, and the summons convening the meeting and the minutes of the preliminary proceedings having been read by Bro. Pulley, the Prov. Grand Master designate, Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Jersey was introduced by the Grand Director of Ceremonies, and accompanied by the Grand and Prov. Grand Officers was conducted to the pedestal, where an address was delivered by the presiding Grand Master on the nature, duties, and qualifications for the office. This done the Right Worshipful brother was conducted to the right of the presiding Grand Master, and invested and inducted into the chair.

The Prov. Grand Master was then proclaimed and saluted in due form, and after thanking the brethren for the honour they had done him by selecting him as their first Provincial Grand Master, which office he had not accepted without some hesitation, proceeded to appoint and invest the Prov. Grand Officers as follows:

- Bro. Charles Stephens Prov. D.G.M.
- " H. R. Cooper Smith Prov. G.S.W.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master said it was his pleasing duty to propose a vote of thanks to Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, for the admirable way in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. Bro. Portal was so well known in connection with Mark Masonry that no more need be said to commend the proposition to the brethren.

The motion was seconded by the Prov. Senior Grand Warden, Bro. H. R. Cooper Smith, and carried by acclamation.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal said he thanked the brethren for their kind expressions of feeling, and assured them that it had given him the greatest pleasure to assist at the inauguration of this new province.

Apologies from a number of distinguished Mark Masons who had been prevented attending were then read.

Votes of thanks to those brethren who had worked so hard to bring the proceedings to a successful issue, notably to Bro. T. J. Pulley, whose labours had been unremitting, were then passed, and the lodge closed.

Subsequently the brethren adjourned to the Town Hall, where a banquet was served, the Prov. Grand Master presiding.

The Prov. Grand Master having proposed the toast of "The Queen and Mark Masonry," gave "The Health of the M.W. the Grand Master of Mark Masons, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Past Grand Masters," remarking that to no brother more than the brother on the left (Bro. Portal) had the success of Mark Masonry been due. He felt a difficulty in saying much in praise of a brother who was present, particularly as he had performed an interesting ceremony, with which he (Lord Jersey) had been intimately connected, that afternoon, but he must be allowed to thank Bro. Portal most cordially for having come there that day and given them the benefit of his valuable assistance. He could only express the hope that Bro. Portal would come among them as often as possible.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal said he felt it a great honour to have to return thanks for such a grand roll of distinguished Past Grand Masters. Twenty-three short years ago Lord Leigh found himself with only three lodges, while at the present there were 260 lodges on the roll, and twenty-nine Provincial Grand Masters, including the noble earl he had the pleasure of installing that day. Bro. Portal concluded by proposing "The Health of the Prov. Grand Master."

Earl Jersey, in responding, expressed his warmest thanks to Bro. Pulley and one or two other brethren, for the kind assistance they had afforded him, and the enthusiasm they had manifested in the cause of Mark Masonry.

The D. Prov. Grand Master (Bro. C. Stephens) proposed "The Health of the Deputy Grand Master of Mark Masons (Lord Donoughmore) and Grand Officers, Present and Past," for whom Bro. Cubitt, G.J.O., returned thanks.

Bro. C. H. Levander, G.R., next proposed "Success to the New Mark Province of Berks and Oxon," which, as might have been expected, was received with acclamation, and severally responded to by Bros. H. Cooper Smith, W.M.; E. L. Shepherd, W.M.; E. Margrett, G.S., W.M.; and F. W. Ansell, W.M.

"Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund," proposed by Bro. F. Binckes, and responded to by Bro. Meggy, and other toasts followed, and the brethren separated at an early hour.

The arrangements connected with the Provincial Grand Lodge, the train services, and also the banquet reflected the greatest credit upon Bros. Pulley and Margrett, and other members of the Leopold Lodge.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

An especial P.G. Lodge of Emergency was held at the "Old Hall," Gainsborough, on Monday, 1st inst., W. Bro. W. H. Smyth, R.W. Provincial Grand Master, on the throne.

The lodge was opened in due form as soon as possible after the close of the P.G. Chapter. The Hymn of Invocation having been sung to a new accompaniment by Bro. A. W. Lambert, 588, P.G.O., the R.W.P.G.M. called attention to the business of the day, viz., the confirmation of certain alterations in the existing rules of the P.G.L. Benevolent Fund, and the addition thereto of certain rules respecting the "Oliver Memorial Fund," which had been drawn up by the present Committee of the P.G. Fund of Benevolence.

Proposed by W. Bro. W. Watkins, 297, P.P.G.S. of W.; seconded by Bro. T. M. Wilkinson, 297, P.G. Std.: "That the I.P.M. of each lodge should in future be a member of the Committee of the P.G.L. Fund of Benevolence, and share with the W.M. the voting power of the lodge." For this proposition thirty-two voted against fifteen, and it was declared carried. The remainder of the revised rules were passed without opposition, and on the proposition of W. Bro. C. M. Nesbitt, seconded by W. Bro. A. L. Peacock, W.M. 1386, P.G.S., were unanimously adopted.

The requisite authority was given to W. Bro. W. H. Radley, 838, P.G. Charity Sec., to secure the purchase into the R.M.I.B. of two boys now on the Provincial list, viz., Alfred Thomas Cole (No. 1) and Phillipson Marshall (No. 13), on the October list of candidates for election.

W. Bro. W. H. Sissons, 1447, P.G.J.W., gave notice of his intention at the next Prov. Grand Lodge to propose "That a fund, similar to the Oliver Memorial Fund, be raised in this province, for the purpose of obtaining the admission by purchase of candidates for the R.M.I.G."

This concluding the business, Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren and companions adjourned to a luncheon in the magnificent banquet chamber of the Old Hall, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, the brethren separating at an early hour.

T. Sergeant, P.P.G.S.D., and Bromley, P.M. and efficiently installed by the retiring W.M., the addresses being given by that brother and Bro. Sergeant in an impressive manner. The usual honours were paid, and the following officers appointed and invested for the ensuing year:—Bros. E. Johnston, I.P.M.; T. W. Sergeant, P.M., D.C.; Hugh Ferguson, S.W.; James Grierson, J.W.; R. E. Mitton, Treasurer (re-elected); C. Baryery, Secretary; T. Hay, S.D.; W. G. West, J.D.; H. Marshall, I.G.; James D. Reader, S.S.; H. Formby, J.S.; J. Kellie, Assistant-Secretary; A. Child, Organist; Edwin C. Watson, Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. Gick, W.M., initiated a candidate into the Craft in a commendable manner, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where dinner was served by Bro. Casey, 1086. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. In responding to that of "The Provincial Grand Master and Officers," Bro. J. F. Newell, P.G.S.W., said that it was impossible to overrate the services of their P.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale. No member of the nobility more ably discharged his Masonic duties; in proof of which, he mentioned the fact of his attendance at the P.G.L. meeting at Morecombe in a very indifferent state of health. He hoped that they would long have him spared to them. He congratulated 1756 on his prosperity and working, and concluded with his best wishes for the lodge. "The W.M." was received with acclamation, and suitably responded to by Bro. Gick. Bro. Sergeant proposed "The I.P.M." in hearty and feeling terms, and presented him with a handsome timepiece on the part of the members; and to the lodge, on behalf of several brethren, a very life-like portrait in oil of that brother, by Bro. Rattray, of Bold-street, Liverpool, whom he complimented on his efforts. Bro. Johnston thanked the brethren. Other toasts followed, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The musical arrangements were creditably carried out under the conductorship of Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O., and Bro. A. Child, Organist, and musical items were given by Bros. J. Hill, W. Williams, Bryan, Quayle, Twist, Muir, Ashmore, Queen, and others.

PORTSMOUTH.—Landport Lodge (No. 1776).

—The regular meeting of this popular and very prosperous lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Portsmouth, on Thursday, the 20th inst., when a very large gathering of influential Freemasons attended for the purpose of witnessing the installation of the ex-Mayor, Bro. William David King, P.M., and P.P.G.S.D., as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was most ably performed by the retiring W.M., Bro. Richard John Murrell, assisted by Bro. E. S. Main, P.M., P.P.G.D. of C. During the ceremony some beautiful anthems and odes were exceedingly well rendered by the choir, accompanied by Bro. Misselbrook, of Gosport, as the Organist. After the ceremony of installation had been performed, the W.M., on behalf of the lodge, presented Bro. R. J. Murrell, the I.P.M., with a valuable gold Past Master's jewel, as a slight recognition of the ability, earnestness, and courtesy with which he had discharged the duties of the office of W.M. during the past year. The business of the lodge having been completed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where a most recherché banquet was supplied by Mr. William Maybourn, of Butcher-street, Portsea, whose catering gave unqualified satisfaction. The ex-Mayor, Bro. W. D. King, presided, and was supported by Bros. the Worshipful the Mayor of Portsmouth, A. Cudlipp, P.M. 487; G. Rake, P.M. 487, P.P.G.W.; Francis Pikes, P.M. 257, P.P.G.W.; W. Edmonds, P.M. 309, Hon. Sec. Port of Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce; Councillor G. T. Cunningham, vice-Chairman, and the Directors of the Borough of Portsmouth Freemasons' Hall and Club Company, Limited; Bros. E. S. Main, P.M., P.P.G.D. of C.; G. Felton Lancaster, P.M., P.P.G.D.; C. B. Whitcomb, P.M. 1705; R. J. Murrell, I.P.M. 1776; the W.M.'s and representatives of the following lodges:—257, 309, 342, 804, 903, 1069, 1428, and 1834; the officers of the Lodge, and about sixty other brethren. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were admirably given by the several speakers, and enthusiastically received by the brethren. Some choice selections were sung by the choir during the evening. The officers for the ensuing year are Bro. William David King, W.M.; Richard John Murrell, I.P.M.; Cornelius G. Adames, S.W.; Henry J. Andrews, J.W.; Thomas H. Williams, Treas., Edward S. Main, P.M., Sec.; John F. Baccigalpe, S.D.; Emanuel J. Smith, J.D.; George Drake, I.G.; Arthur Russell, D. of C.; Edwin Izod, Organist; Henry Dean and Alfred H. Hancock, Stewards.

MANCHESTER.—Albert Victor Lodge.—(No. 1773).—The first anniversary and installation festival of this young and promising lodge was held at the Town Hall, Pendleton, on Friday, the 21st ult. Present:—Bro. S. Stratham, W.M., P.P.G.T., who very satisfactorily performed the duties of Installing Master; Bros. John Lees, J.W. and W.M. elect; A. H. Allen, P.M., acting S.W.; J. Harrop, P.M.; E. Williams, P.M.; T. H. Bagnshaw, P.M.; John Brooks, P.M.; D. Asquith, Sec.; W. Slater, Treas.; E. Winterbottom, S.D.; J. Almond, J.D.; W. Hardcastle, I.G.; J. Statham, J. Moffat, Thomas Hewitt, George Crossfield, W. Oldham, Thomas Kay, etc. Visitors:—Bros. Thomas Entwistle, P.M., P.P.G.S. of Works; Gillman, P.P.G.S.D. West Lancashire; Powers, W.M. 325; Bayley; Eldershaw, P.M.; Goodier; Rev. J. Harper, W.M. Victoria Lodge; Rev. J. Baines; Bernhardt, Hamburg; and several others. The lodge was opened in due form, and with solemn prayer; and, after the minutes of previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to install, according to ancient custom, Bro. John Lees as W.M., in which he was ably assisted by Bro. John Brooks, P.M. and D.C.; Bro. Harrop, P.M.; and Bro. Gillman, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. The appointment and selection by the W.M. of his officers gave general satisfaction, and were as follows:—Bros. D. Asquith, S.W.; E. Winterbottom, J.W.; W. Hardcastle, Sec.; W. Slater, Treas.; W. Almond, S.D.; W. Oldham, J.D.; Jno. Statham, I.G. The investiture of the officers by Bro. Gillman was marked by the very interesting manner in which he explained the moral and symbolical teachings or meaning of the several jewels attached to each office. The proceedings were closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for a short time to allow of the lodge room being set out for the banquet, which was supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Penwarden, of the Hare and Hounds Hotel, the excellent character of the repast and the admirable and tasty arrangements for the comfort of the brethren called forth unqualified praise from all present. The W.M. proposed very neatly the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In reply to that of "The Provincial Grand Officers," Bro. Entwistle, P.P.G.S.D., replied, that although that was his first opportunity of meeting the Albert Victor Lodge, yet he had frequently heard of the excellent way in which the lodge was conducted, and from his intimate acquaintanceship of Bro. Statham they had had a W.M. who could not fail to afford both interest and profit to any lodge. Bro. S. Statham, I.P.M., in proposing the toast of the W.M., said The next toast is one which he was sure they would have as much pleasure in responding to as he had in proposing; it was that of their newly installed W.M., Bro. John Lees. There could be but one feeling amongst them that Bro. Lees had well and deservedly earned this honour, by his many excellent qualities, and the great interest he had taken in the lodge, and it must add greatly to the gratification of their W.M. to know that he had been elected to the distinguished position by the unanimous suffrages of his brethren, accompanied with their hearty congratulations and sincere wishes that he might enjoy a most happy and prosperous year. He felt persuaded that the brethren would one and all support their W.M. to the utmost of their power; remembering that the position of the W.M. was often a difficult and responsible one, and happy was he who in the administration of its duties could please everybody, but while they claimed the privilege of being Masons, they must do their duty in supporting the authority of the chair, and depend upon it by so doing they would best promote the happiness and prosperity of the whole lodge. The W.M., Bro. John Lees, replying to the toast of his health, returned his warmest thanks to the I.P.M., Bro. Statham, for the kind and amiable terms in which he had placed the toast before them, and the hearty manner in which it had been received by the brethren, and the pleasure it afforded him was all the greater when he knew their good wishes were sincere. The position in which they had that day placed him was one, as Bro. Statham remarked, of great trust and honour, and one calculated to inspire the aspiration of all true Masons, but at the same time it was a position not by any means to be lightly undertaken; it had its responsibilities as well as its pleasures, and he had several times questioned himself whether he had arrived at that stage in Masonry which justifies him in acceding to the cordial request of his brethren to undertake its duties, but when he reflected that it was their unanimous wish he should occupy the chair for the ensuing twelve months, he thought it was time to put away personal feelings, and with the co-operation he felt he should receive at their hands, faithfully endeavoured to do his best. He then called upon the brethren to drink to "The Health and Prosperity of the I.P.M., Bro. Statham," to whom he said their hearty thanks were especially due, not only for the pleasant manner in which he had conducted the business of the lodge during the past year, but for the very many services by him in obtaining this charter twelve months ago. They were justified in looking upon him as one of the most active pioneers of the lodge, and those who understood duties in a smaller degree in connection therewith would readily understand and realize the amount of work which had been successfully undertaken by him, but, as words and acts sometimes faded away from memory and sight, the brethren had desired that their appreciation of those acts should be conveyed to him in a more tangible form, and he had, on his own and their behalf, the greatest possible pleasure in decorating him with a Past Master's jewel, accompanied with an illuminated address, so that, not only himself but his family and friends might be aware of the esteem in which he is held by his brethren of the Albert Victor Lodge. Bro. Statham, who seemed considerably embarrassed and spoke at first with evident emotion, then rose to respond, and was greeted with the enthusiastic cheers of his brethren, replied: W.M., Senior and Junior Wardens, superior officers, and brethren, I am so greatly taken by surprise with this practical expression of your kind appreciation and esteem that I am quite at a loss to find words suitably to respond to the toast, which has been proposed in such kind terms by our W.M., and so enthusiastically received by you all. If what I shall say in return shall but inadequately express the depth of my feelings, I trust, brethren, that you will not consider that my imperfect speech represents that I am insensible to your kindness. Although I did expect that, in accordance with the custom on these interesting and festive occasions, my health would be proposed, I had not the slightest conception that the feelings of the brethren would be thus so practically expressed. While, on the one hand, I am greatly taken by surprise, yet, on the other, I feel deeply gratified to be thus honoured and respected. As our Worshipful Master has been pleased to remark, I have, as a true Mason endeavoured to be true to the principles of the Craft, and conserve the best interests of this lodge, which was my duty, but beyond that, I am not aware that I have done anything more to merit this special mark of your high esteem. However, I gratefully and thankfully accept it, and whenever I look upon it I shall not only be reminded of the distinguished honour you placed upon me when I was installed the first W.M. of the Albert Victor Lodge, but also of the very gracious way in which you have acknowledged your appreciation of my services upon my completing my year of office, and in making way for one whom I trust will occupy this proud position far more efficiently than I have done. Whatever services I may have rendered during the past year have been all gotten prompted by my love to the Craft and the noble science of Freemasonry; also from a sincere desire to render any assistance in my power to a number of truly worthy brethren whom I greatly respect and esteem; who were most anxious to establish a lodge in this neighbourhood. I sincerely trust I may have been of some little service to them; if so, I consider that out of that alone I receive an ample reward; I would say to the brethren—

All the thanks that I require,

Is that you ask for more.

Twelve months ago the inauguration or founding of the Albert Victor Lodge seemed to me like the launching of a noble Craft, and a noble Craft it was; the launching day was most auspicious, one long to be remembered, and gave promise of a safe and prosperous voyage. Her first voyage is now safely completed, and our vessel well treated. As we look back upon the past we may, brethren, congratulate ourselves upon the success and happiness we have enjoyed. It is no small satisfaction to know that the lodge is now firmly established. Having laid the foundation stones well and truly, it remains with us now to build up a stately, imposing, and comely structure. We may, if we will, make this structure a sanctuary, a school, and a home. A sanctuary where, by our constant study of the beautiful principles of the Craft, we shall culture our higher and better natures; a school where, by our constant interchange of thought, we shall educate our minds; and a home, where, by our constant meeting together, we shall promote the social virtues. I cannot forbear here from expressing my great indebtedness to the Past Masters and all my officers for the cordial support and assistance I have uniformly received from them, and I may just say that if, in presiding over this lodge, I have given any offence or caused any brother to feel uncomfortable in any way, it has been done inadvertently and not intentionally, and for the good of Masonry. It is no small gratification for me to know that there are so many able and experienced brethren in the lodge, this to me presages a most happy and prosperous future. Before bringing my remarks to a close, I should like to add that if this lodge is to be successful the brethren must most earnestly cultivate and do everything to promote a kindly, brotherly feeling, knowing that the happiness of the lodge is in their hands. It will certainly be what they make it. I feel fully persuaded that the brethren will, one and all, set their faces against that narrow, unworthy principle which centres in self, remembering "that man was not born for his own enjoyment alone"—that there is no joy on earth so pure and refining as the joy of contributing to the happiness of others. In the language of that beautiful address so admirably delivered to us this evening by Bro. P.M. Brooks, we must have but one aim in view to please each other and unite in the grand design of being happy; we must be living examples of virtue and benevolence, we must be incarnations of all that is worthy, excellent, noble, and good. We shall then, and only then, demonstrate to the world that we are true to the great and noble principles of our noble Craft. Brethren, let us live these principles, and then shall the words of the poet be applicable:—

Peace to the just man's memory; let it grow
Green with years, and blossom through the flight
Of ages; let the mimic canvas show
His calm, benevolent features; let the light
Stream on his deeds of love, that shunned the sight
Of all but heaven, and in the book of fame
The glorious record of his virtues write,
And hold it up to man, and bid him claim
A palm like his, and catch from him the hallowed flame.
Bro. Josh. Harrop, P.M., in proposing "The Visiting Brethren," remarked that it was one of the great privileges of the Craft to give the right hand of fellowship to, and to welcome to the hospitable board brethren, not only from our own country, but from every other country in the world, and, as an instance of the universality of the Craft, he might draw attention to the presence of Bro. Bernhardt, from Hamburg, who would, doubtless, bear to his own country a favourable impression of his Masonic brethren in England. Bro. Bernhardt briefly replied, expressing great pleasure with his visit to the lodge, and the cordial reception he had received. Bro. W. Slater, Treasurer, in a neat speech, proposed "The Masonic Charities," and expressed his pleasure in being re-elected to the office, and, as an example to others, he notified his intention to give a second donation of £5 to one of the Institutions. Bro. Hardcastle, Secretary, proposed "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and Bro. Crossfield that of "The Officers," which were responded to by Bros. Bagnshaw, P.M., and Asquith, S.W., but having already exceeded our limits we are compelled to close our notice of this very interesting meeting, but not without a well-deserved compliment to the glee party, composed of Bros. Almond, W.M., for the brethren, and he must say that the working of the W.M. and officers of this lodge was carried out in the best possible manner, and no W.M. could take a greater interest in the prosperity of his lodge. This toast was greeted with hearty exhibitions of good feeling. The W.M., in reply, said: I thank you, Bro. Worrell, for your kind expressions of fraternal regard, and for the compliment you have paid me in proposing my health, and you, brethren, for the cordial manner in which you have been pleased to receive the last toast. Though Bro. Worrell has spoken of me in far too flattering terms, I hope that at the end of my year of office I shall be found in a measure deserving of them. Brethren, we are inaugurating to-day the commencement of the official year, which I trust will be a happy and prosperous one to us all. I believe no Master ever felt the responsibilities of his position more than I do, for having been placed in the honourable position of first W.M. of the Clapham Lodge, I feel in duty bound so to act during my year of office that at the end of that term you will have no cause to regret the choice you have made. Though my deficiencies may be great, they are not greater than my desire that the office I hold shall be filled to your satisfaction, and if I can but gain your approbation I shall be amply repaid for any trouble I have taken in preparing myself for the responsibilities of the char. It will be my great aim to make our lodge a model lodge, both for the perfect working of our beautiful ceremonies, and for the existence of genuine, faithful, and brotherly feeling amongst us. For this purpose, brethren, it is, however, necessary that we should keep before us the maxim of the founders of this lodge, not to introduce either as a candidate or joining member any but those whom we would be pleased to receive in our own homes and families. No other men should be introduced to Masonry, and certainly not to this lodge. With exercising this care, brethren, our lodge will flourish, and peace, concord, and unanimity reign amongst us. (Applause.) Brethren, the next toast I have the great pleasure to propose to you is, I am sure, a most welcome one to you all, it being emphatically the toast of the evening, "The Health of the Initiate." We have added, this evening, another substantial link to that golden chain of fraternal sympathy which binds us so closely to one another here below, by initiating a gentleman into the mysteries of our excellent Order, of whom we have every reason to be proud as a member of our lodge. The tongue of good report has been heard in his favour, and we know him to be a man of sterling worth, who would do honour to any society, and who, I feel sure, will carry out the great principles of our Order—brotherly love, relief, and truth. "God send him many years of sunshine days." I ask you, brethren, to rise and drink with me to "The Health, Happiness, and Prosperity of the Initiate." Bro. Phillips, in reply, thanked the W.M. for the flattering manner in which he had proposed the last toast, and expressed his gratification at the handsome way in which he had been received, and the pleasure he had to be admitted as a member of the Clapham Lodge. He was greatly impressed with the beautiful ceremony, so ably rendered by his friend, the W.M., and he hoped to become a good working Mason. He would endeavour to do the best he possibly could for the interest of the Craft in general and this lodge in particular. The Worshipful Master then said: I now rise to propose to you a toast which, I know, will meet with your cordial reception—it is "The Health of the Visitors." We are honoured this evening with the presence of several distinguished Masons, and I trust their visit has been in every way as agreeable to them as it has been gratifying to the members of this lodge. I tender you, brother visitors, our most hearty welcome, and trust you will favour us with your presence on many future occasions, assuring you that a hearty reception will at all times await you, for "all our friends are welcome." With this toast I couple the name of Bro. G. Wright. Bro. G. Wright, in responding for the visitors, thanked the W.M. and brethren for the hearty welcome they had received, and assured them that he had spent a very pleasant and agreeable evening. He could not compliment the W.M. too highly on the excellent working of the ceremonies, and might safely say he had never heard the beautiful rites more impressively performed than that evening. He wished every prosperity to the Clapham Lodge, and trusted to be with them again on some future occasion. Bro. Zeder also replied, and thanked the W.M. for his appreciation of the exertions he (Bro. Zeder) had made for the comfort of the brethren of the Clapham Lodge. The W.M. then proposed the next toast, "The Health of our Secretary and pro Treasurer." We can congratulate ourselves on having such an able and experienced Secretary, who, as we all know, takes the liveliest interest in the welfare of the Clapham Lodge. I regret that on account of ill-health our brother Treasurer is not able to be amongst us, and thank Bro. Sudlow most heartily for having undertaken the duty of pro Treasurer, which, like everything else he undertakes, he is sure to carry out properly, and to your satisfaction. I ask you, brethren, to drink to the health of our brothers Secretary and pro Treasurer. Bro. Worrell responded, thanking the W.M. for the complimentary expressions, and said he would do all he possibly could for the interest and prosperity of the lodge. The Worshipful Master then said: Brethren, I have very great pleasure in proposing to you the next toast, and when I tell you it is "The Health of the Officers" I feel sure you will give it a most hearty reception. It is of the utmost importance for the welfare and position of the lodge that the Master thereof should be well supported by able, efficient, and painstaking officers, and I am happy to say no Master of any lodge could possibly be better or more ably assisted by his officers than I am.

"If ye search all the lodges round
No better officers could be found."

You have witnessed this evening, brethren, the very excellent and impressive manner in which my brother officers performed their various duties, and they are not only capable in efficiently discharging their duties, but I am convinced they are most anxious to give me their best support during my year of office the same as they have hitherto done. I tender my sincere thanks to my brother officers for their many acts of kindness towards me, and the assistance and advice they have rendered me on so many occasions; but special thanks are due to our esteemed Bro. Sudlow, whose untiring zeal for the interest and good working of the lodge is so highly appreciated by every member, and by no one more than myself. "He has deserved high commendation, true applause and love." With such officers, "men endued with worthy qualities," to quote Shakespeare, the Clapham Lodge cannot fail to prosper, and I ask you, brethren, to drink in a bumper "Long Life, Happiness, and Prosperity to the Officers of this Lodge." The toast was received with loud applause. Bro. Dr. Pearce replied, and remarked that he felt sure the officers of this lodge would do all in their power to promote the happiness and comfort of its members. He had come some 150 miles for the purpose of taking his seat as S.W., and should never regret having done so, for it was a pleasure to meet the brethren and to hear the working of their W.M. The brethren had, indeed, every reason to be proud of their W.M., and he trusted he might be spared them for many years. Bro. Dr. Dixon next proposed a toast. The brethren, he said, would be pleased to respond most heartily to the toast he had the honour to propose—it was "The Health of Mrs. Hirsch," who had so generously presented them with a silver charity box. It would be used as often, if not oftener, than any working tool in the lodge, and he trusted always with such good success as that evening. He desired that the W.M. would convey to his kind-hearted wife the sincere thanks of the brethren of the Clapham Lodge, and assure her that her kind gift was fully appreciated by the members of the lodge. The toast was received with all the honour due to it. The W.M. responded, and thanked the brethren most heartily for the kind reception they had given the last toast, and felt sure Mrs. Hirsch would be gratified to hear from him that evening how much the brethren had appreciated her gift. He assured them that from the first Mrs. Hirsch had taken the liveliest interest in the formation of the lodge, and it had afforded her the greatest pleasure to present this charity box as a token of the interest she felt for the Charitable Institutions of the Order. The Tyler's toast brought this happy and eminently successful meeting to a close.

DUKE OF CORNWALL LODGE (No. 1839).

—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 27th ult., at Freemasons' Hall. Bros. Brooke, W.M.; Corpe, S.W.; Bott, J.W.; Dewsnap, Treas.; H. Cruise, Sec.; Smith, jun., S.D.; Stokes, J.D.; Smith, Sen., D.C.; Wilkins, I.G.; Baumann, Stew.; Goddard, Tyler; P.M. Maloney, and Bros. Furse and Williams. Visitors: Bros. Calcin, 286; Cook, 1806; and Culver. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Furse was raised to the Third Degree, after which Bro. Williams was passed to the Second Degree, and all Masonic business being over, the brethren adjourned to a banquet supplied by Bro. Best in his usual efficient manner.

YORK.—York Lodge (No. 236).

—At the regular meeting of this lodge held on Monday, the 1st inst., Bro. W. H. Gainforth, S.W., was elected W.M., and Bro. J. Todd, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer. Amongst the members and visitors present were Bros. A. Buckle, W.M.; C. G. Padel, W.M. 1611; C. F. Matier, P.G.W. Greece; J. Hanly, W.M. 295 I.C.; T. B. Whythead, P.M.; S. Maltby, P.M.; F. Hawling, P.M.; Sir James Meek, P.M.; and others. The installation takes place on the 15th inst.

DARTFORD.—Emulation Lodge (No. 299).

—The usual meeting of this lodge was held at the Bull Hotel, Dartford, on Tuesday, the 25th ult., when there were present Bros. Sears, W.M.; Healey, S.W.; Wells, J.W.; Wills, Harvey, Spurrell, Churchley, White, Bryant, Murray, Brock, and others. After Mr. Horatio Thomas had been initiated into the Order by the W.M., the lodge was adjourned and the brethren afterwards partook of supper, provided by Bro. Bray in his usual excellent manner.

LOUTH.—Lindsey Lodge (No. 712).

—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Rosemary-lane, on Friday, the 28th ult., Bro. Jno. Mawer, W.M., occupying the chair. An interesting feature in the programme of the evening was the presentation to the lodge, by Bro. Frank Adlard, of a very handsome oil portrait of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Lincolnshire, Bro. W. H. Smyth, one of the oldest P.M.'s of this lodge. The portrait, which was in the costume of a Provincial Grand Master, reflects great credit on Bro. Adlard as a painter, for the excellence of the workmanship; and, as a Mason, for the generosity of his gift. This pretty little lodge room has lately been most exquisitely decorated by the hand of Bro. Adlard, assisted by Bros. G. H. Porter, P.M., and E. F. B. Lucas, free of all charge (excepting for paint), from designs by Bro. James Fowler, P.M., the well-known architect. We believe that Bro. Adlard's talent as a portrait painter is not generally known, but feel sure that this picture has only to be seen for it to be appreciated. The portrait is handsomely mounted in an elegant gilt frame, the gift of Bro. Wm. Somerton, of Louth. Votes of thanks were unanimously accorded to Bros. Adlard and Somerton for their valuable present, and the same ordered to be inscribed on the minutes of the lodge.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).

—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 2nd inst. There were present:—Bros. Capt. Sewell, W.M.; J. Black, I.P.M.; Dr. Dodgson, P.M.; W. Shilton, P.M.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treas.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Org.; W. F. Lamonty, P.M.; T. Bird, S.W.; F. C. Robinson, J.W.; R. W. Robinson, Sec.; H. Peacock, S.D.; R. Harrison, I.G.; W. Paisley, Steward; J. C. Nicholson, J. Borrowseale, T. Mason, and J. Hewson, Tyler. This being election night, after the minutes were read and confirmed, Bro. Bird, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bros. R. Robinson, P.M., and J. Hewson were also unanimously re-elected Treasurer and Tyler. It was agreed to hold the Feast of St. John on Tuesday, January 6th, at five p.m. The installing Officers will be Bros. J. Black, P.M.; Capt. Sewell, W.M.; and W. F. Lamonty, P.M. No other business remaining, the lodge was closed in form.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge.—(No. 1512).

—This provincial lodge met for the dispatch of business at the Lion Hotel, on the 20th ult. Among those in attendance were Bros. J. C. Jessett, W.M.; T. O. Ockenden, S.W.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, J.W. (Freemason); E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, Treas.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, Sec.; J. Hammond, P.G.D. Middlesex, acting I.P.M.; Hiscoc; J.D.; Moody, I.G.; Wheeler, I.C.; Knowles, A.W.S. The minutes of the installation meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. John Hammond introduced the following proposition—"That the term 'members' in Bye-law IV., having already, by a resolution, dated January 18th, 1877, been defined to mean full subscribing or voting members, resolved—That the remaining ambiguity in the said bye-law, in its influence on the admission of candidates when the voting members subsequently number less than forty, be removed; and that the phrase, reaching forty, read reaching and remaining at least forty." This matter, after an hour's discussion pro and con., in which the W.M. and Bros. E. Hopwood, W. Hammond, T. O. Ockenden, and Walls took part, was carried. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual routine of toasts followed the collation. Bro. E. Hopwood, P.P.G.S.B., responded upon behalf of "The P.G.O.'s, Present and Past;" and Bro. Ockenden for the toast of "The Officers." In the interval some good selections of harmony were contributed by Bros. Jessett, Knowles, and others. The Tyler's toast, at an early hour, terminated the proceedings.

RHYL.—Garadoc Lodge (No. 1674).

—A meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 1st inst., at the Town Hall. There were present Bros. W. H. Foulkes, W.M.; J. Rhydyen Jones, S.W.; K. McEwen, J.W.; W. L. Nicholas, Chap.; H. A. Steer, Sec.; C. D. Burdett, acting S.D.; E. W. Keatinge, J.D.; F. Wrigley, Org.; E. Graucut, D.C.; W. Hackforth, I.G.; G. D. Burdett, Stew.; J. Baylis, Tyler; T. Hughes, A. E. Lloyd, R. Hughes, E. L. Williams, P. P. Pratt, A. L. Clewes, F. P. Lewis, J. Morris, R. Roberts, J. Lean, J. B. Linnell, and H. J. B. Laurance. Visitors: Bros. Brereton, W.M. 1477; Thos. Davies, S.W. 755. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes read and signed. The ballot was taken for Bro. H. J. B. Laurance, Abbey Lodge, 624, Burton-on-Trent, who was unanimously elected. Bros. Clewes and Pratt being present were examined as to their proficiency in the First Degree, were entrusted, and afterwards passed to the Second Degree. Bro. J. Brownley, 279, St. John's, Leicester, was proposed as a joining member by Bro. A. Eytton Lloyd, and seconded by Bro. E. W. Keatinge, J.D. Bro. Keatinge proposed, and Bro. E. L. Williams seconded, that a Committee, with power to act, of the members present should be appointed to inquire into the advisability of holding a Masonic ball early in January. "Hearty good wishes" were expressed from the brethren of Lodges Nos. 1477 and 755.

LIVERPOOL.—Kirkdale Lodge (No. 1756).

—The members of this most successful lodge assembled at the Skelmersdale Hall, Kirkdale, on Wednesday, 26th ult., when there was one of the largest gatherings of the fraternity which has been seen in Liverpool for a long time. The lodge was only consecrated last year, and its highly satisfactory progress, socially and financially, has been in a large measure due to the admirable rule of Bro. E. Johnston, the first W.M., P.M. 203, who has received enthusiastic support from every member of his lodge. At the opening of the proceedings he was supported by Bros. C. Bromley, as I.P.M.; W. Gick, S.W.; H. Ferguson, J.W.; R. E. Mitton, Treasurer; J. Grierson, Secretary; C. Barger, S.D.; Thomas Hay, J.D. Among the P.G. Officers present were Bros. J. F. Newell, P.G.S.W., ex-Mayor of Bootle; J. T. Callow, P.G. Treasurer; John Wells, P.P.G. D. of C.; John Lunt, P.P.G. D. of C.; George Broadbridge, P.P.G. D. of C.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; John Houlving, P.G. Steward. There were also present, as representing the lodge, Bros. J. Croxton, A. Child, D. Lowe, W. Macindoe, H. Townley, J. D. Reader, J. Kellie, J. Barker, J. Thornton, J. Bamby, T. Singleton, J. Ritchie, S. Bushell, G. H. Shearn, J. Gentles, T. Marshall, T. Powell, R. Forbes, J. Comber, J. Whalley, W. Ellis, Dr. Costine, N. Moreland, R. T. Britten, D. H. Gaskell, R. W. Chatham, C. Marcroft, W. Barrow, M. Arden, and others. The visitors also included Bros. J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; Dr. Sheldon, P.M. 1094; T. Hatton, 203; J. W. McWean, P.M. 1035; C. Birch, S.W. 203; T. McWean, W.M., 1035; J. Queen, 203; S. K. Gardham, 1035; H. James, P.M. 203; J. Hilton, J.W. 203; Webster Williams, 1609; John Hill, 1609; J. B. MacKenzie, W.M. 1609; J. Taylor, 203; J. Pendelton, S.D. 241; C. Donnelly, 203; G. E. Hamner, P.M. 1086; J. Twiss, 1325; S. Jacobs, 241; W. H. Quayle, 1325; H. Pennington, 1473; J. Winsor, P.M. 241 and 203; P. T. Neill, 203; P. Armstrong, 724;

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1879.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

The last meeting of Grand Lodge took place with a numerous assembly. When the Grand Officers entered, the great hall was completely filled. We cannot, however, honestly congratulate Grand Lodge on the temper it evinced, or the resolution it arrived at. Indeed, at one period of the evening, no fair hearing could be obtained for the speakers, and, while we bow to the wisdom of our Masonic Parliament, we deeply deplore the controversy which arose as to Bro. Hervey's retiring pension. If any brother has ever deserved well of the Craft, Bro. Hervey has done so, and we feel sure that on calm consideration all will regret that in his sickness and in his sufferings he was not cheered and consoled as far as, humanly speaking, he could be, by the unanimous vote of that Grand Lodge he had served so faithfully and so well. We venture to think that the result of the last meeting of Grand Lodge in this respect will not accord with the liberal sympathies of our large-hearted brotherhood. It would have been far more dignified and Masonic, in our humble opinion, if Grand Lodge had accepted, without discussion, the reasonable and proper proposal of the President of the Board of General Purposes. Bro. Stevens' motion, unwise, unpractical, and utterly uncalled for, as we venture to think it still, was also carried by a small majority. That it can ever lead to anything we do not believe, as, after the discussion of Wednesday, it is clear that if the Committee ever be appointed it will find itself in a position of inextricable difficulty. For it is idle to suppose that the English Craft in 1879 will accept without discussion a decision arrived at in 1813. But here we stop to-day; we shall return to this subject more fully in our next issue. Bro. Clabon's motion was withdrawn, as we anticipated, on a point of order. It is quite clear to us that, until the text of our Constitution is altered, Bro. Clabon's scheme cannot come under the provisions of our present laws on the subject. Thus ended the meeting of Grand Lodge December 3rd, 1879.

THE CHARITY MEDAL.

We are much struck with that portion of the report of the Board of General Purposes which relates to the Charity Medal. It has for some time been clear to many Masonic minds that the whole question of Masonic supply and demand, of Masonic contracts especially, requires most serious reconsideration and readjustment, inasmuch as by the present system the authorities at Freemasons' Hall are compelled, nolentes volentes, to buy in the dearest market for all they want, for all supplies they have to order. It has often struck us that perhaps by a system of "Licenses" granted by the Board of General Purposes all Masonic manufacturers might act as agents for Grand Lodge, both in the supply of the Charity Medal, the "Calendar," or the Book of Constitutions, and by this means a much larger sale of all these important Masonic adjuncts might be brought about, and the complaints of the Board of General Purposes avoided. Monopolies are always objectionable, and Masonic monopolies run counter to every idea of Masonic fair play, and we shall never cease to contend that Grand Lodge has a moral right as well as material benefit in going into the Masonic, nay the open market, and obtaining what it wants at fair trade prices. For instance, the sale of the "Calendar" might be largely increased if only a fair circulation could be obtained for it, and so the funds of benevolence augmented. As it is it is circulated in a limited area, owing to the absence of a "circulating medium," and it owes a good deal of its very sale to those who are anxious to support Grand Lodge, and yet are debarred from making active efforts to promote its circulation. This is one of many illustrations which might be adduced to point out, that what is complained of by the Board of General Purposes is capable of remedy in only one way, in our opinion, namely, the granting of licenses to Masonic agents by Grand Lodge, or otherwise the correspondence at the Grand Secretary's office, now unnecessarily large, must be increased a hundred-fold. It will be remembered that many of the provisions of our excellent laws were drawn up a time when no one could foresee the extension and expansion the Charities would gradually assume, and it is not impossible that even the Book of Constitutions might be improved by a few alterations and emendations. But here we stop. We have said enough we hope and think so, to warrant some thought and befitting consideration.

THE PRESTONIAN LECTURE.

We understand that the Board of General Purposes is moving in this matter, so that ere long we hope to announce the appointment of the "Prestonian Lecturer" for 1880, who ought, we think, to give the Lecture in all the Three Degrees. There will now be, strictly speaking, some accumulation of the income of the trust, and we hope that this matter, which constitutes somewhat of a reflection on us and on our Order, may now soon be put right "in futuro."

STEWARDS' FEES.

We are somewhat sorry, we confess, that this matter has come before the public in any way. We think we ought always to wash our dirty linen at home, and we doubt the policy or the propriety of thus drawing attention to the little "spots" on our "feasts of charity." At any rate such things, as the lawyers say, should be discussed "in camera." No doubt the evil is a great one, and the fact a disgrace to many brethren and lodges, and both the evil and the disgrace is much greater if it be true, as we are informed, that brethren who have not paid their fees to one institution have acted as Stewards to another. Perhaps if the Charities published in our columns their lists of non-paying Stewards some good may accrue. It is the only cure we see at present for what Bro. Cox seems to consider a growing evil. As Treasurer of the Girls' School Festival last year, he has a right to speak feelingly on the subject.

RECENT ATTACK ON THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA.

The whole civilized as well as the whole Masonic world will hear with indignant reprobation of this last wicked and insane attempt of the Russian Nihilists. All loyal citizens, as well as all patriotic Masons, will rejoice to know that in the good Providence of T.G.A.O.T.U. a life so valuable to Russia, so dear to his family, and so necessary to the peace of the world has been happily and wonderfully preserved. We trust that a speedy punishment will soon overtake the perpetrators of this most dastardly outrage.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even approving of, the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.]

UNIFORMITY OF LODGES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am glad to observe that it is proposed by the Grand Lodge of England to appoint a committee to inquire into and report upon the various systems of Masonic working, with a view of establishing uniformity.

The inquiry is a very interesting one, for the want of uniformity and the causes thereof are of a very ancient date, and will, when found, lead, not only to such uniformity, but to the observance of the articles of faith inscribed on the celestial rays pursuant to the token and spirit thereof.

The causes and observances referred to are fully shown in original research, of which, when published in six or eight months hence, copies will be sent to the Grand Lodges of all nations, so that they may be acquainted with the same, and act thereon, to the honour and glory of the Great Architect of the Universe.

Fraternally yours,

W. N. CRAWFORD.

Orchard-hill, Guernsey.

MASONIC GRUMBLERS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Grumbling members of any society are invariably to be found in larger numbers amongst those who are either too careless or too indolent to thoroughly study the subjects upon which they so prematurely grumble.

Our respected brother, the I.P.M. of Lodge 877, seems to be no exception to this rule, for he freely confesses such dire ignorance as a P.M., that any Lancashire or Yorkshire brother who has even attained the rank of Deacon in his lodge would be heartily ashamed of. To grumble and find fault is with some the first step to knowledge—it may be the least troublesome and least expensive way of getting information to the grumbler, but when these grumbles take the form of communications to public newspapers there is a possibility that the ignorance exhibited, especially by one who uses the magically powerful symbol of I.P.M. as his cognomen, may do very considerable injury to very worthy and estimable charities, that only require to be fully known to be as fully appreciated.

Our Jersey I.P.M. is extremely agitated at present; let us hope ere the storm abates he will have gained so much additional Masonic light as will convert him into an ardent advocate and supporter of all our Charities. If there are faults in their constitution and practices there are constitutional methods of remedying them, but I respectfully and most fraternally submit it is a most unlikely source to seek for needed reforms in the ideas and suggestions of one who begins by confessing his utter ignorance of the subject on which he dilates at so great extent. If every W.M. of a lodge passed the chair of K.S. with such easy indifference to its duties and privileges, Freemasonry in its highest and truest sense would long since have been a thing of the past, and now be only remembered to be held just derision.

If instead of fulminating a string of undeserved epithets in a public print he will take the trouble to write to the indefatigable Secretaries of the Institutions, they will be only too glad to give him all the information possible, or, better still, if he will follow the example of Bro. George Taylor, P.M., who also writes in yours of 22nd ult. on this subject, he will see and learn more in one year's Stewardship, faithfully and ardently carried out, than he would learn in a lifetime by correspondence such as he now indulges in; but, unhappily, if his time or circumstances will not permit him to accept a Stewardship in conjunction with a Life Governorship, and to indulge in a visit to the Institutions, then I fear he will have to be content to take the report of those who can and do. Or he can adopt another course, if he happens to possess the confidence of the brethren of his lodge—he can get elected as their representative on the Charity Committee of his province, and he will, no doubt, learn much while acting on that Committee, which will at least prepare him for further enlightenment. Meanwhile he may gain much by personal conversation with those who are recognised local authorities on such matters.

Regretting I have not time at present to go more fully into this question,

I remain, very faithfully yours,

J.W. 317.

Moffatt, Harrop, and Dale, all members of the lodge, and who, by their excellent singing of some fine glees and songs greatly added to the enjoyment of the meeting. The illuminated address is in the form of a copy of a resolution, "That the thanks of the brethren of the Albert Victor Lodge be given to Bro. Samuel Statham, P.M., P.P.G.T., for his valuable services in the formation of the above lodge, and whilst filling the office of first Worshipful Master thereof, for his exemplary efforts to promote the success and diffusion of the principles of the Craft; and for his undeviating kindness to the brethren, not only to the Albert Victor Lodge, but the Order generally; and that a copy of this resolution be presented to him, together with a Past Master's jewel, suitably inscribed, as a testimonial of the respect and esteem in which he is held by the brethren."

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB (No. 58).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held on Monday, the 24th ult., at the London Masonic Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street. There were present Bros. W. Smallpeice, W.M.; Pulsford, S.W.; Scott, J.W.; J. D. Langton, Sec.; Chapman, S.D.; J. S. Fraser, J.D.; Beeton, I.G.; Joseph Langton, Williams, Barnett, John Wood, Brittain, and Wells. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second and Third Degrees, and was then resumed in the First Degree. Bro. Barnett, being a candidate for the Second Degree, answered the usual questions. The lodge was then resumed in the Second Degree, and Bro. Barnett was passed to the Degree of F.C. The lodge was then resumed in the First Degree. The W.M. rose for the first time, and the following brethren were unanimously elected members of the lodge:—Bros. Beeton, 778; G. C. Pulsford, 1593; F. E. Scott, 771; F. H. Edmunds, 8; and A. Escott. The W.M. rose for the second time, and Bro. Pulsford was elected W.M. for the next meeting. The W.M. rose for the third time, and then the lodge was closed. The brethren then partook of the annual banquet, Bro. Joseph Langton, P.M. 1673, occupying the chair. The excellent manner in which the banquet was served reflected great credit upon Bro. Harrington, the Steward of the club.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE.—(No. 1534).—A meeting of this Lodge of Instruction was held at the Royal Edward Hotel, Mare-street, Hackney, on Wednesday, December 3rd. Present—Bros. A. McDowall, W.M.; C. W. Baker, S.W.; S. Crane, J.W.; A. R. Olley, S.D.; J. L. Payne, J.D.; W. Green, I.G.; W. Fieldwick, P.M.; C. Lorkin, Treas.; J. Williams, Sec.; and also several other brethren. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. A. G. Spencer being the candidate. Bro. C. Larkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th sections of the lecture. Bro. W. Fieldwick proposed, and Bro. S. Crane seconded, that Bro. C. W. Baker be W.M. for the ensuing week, which was carried unanimously. Bro. Cambridge proposed, and Bro. J. Williams seconded, that Bro. A. G. Spencer become a member of this Lodge, which was carried unanimously. Bro. W. Green proposed, and Bro. A. R. Gilley seconded, that Bro. J. Pige become a member of this lodge, which was also carried unanimously. Nothing further offering the lodge was closed in due form.

Royal Arch.

MACDONALD CHAPTER (No. 1216).—On Thursday, the 20th ult., this chapter met at the headquarters of the 1st Surrey Rifles, Flodden-road, Camberwell. There were present Comps. W. J. Messenger, M.E.Z.; J. H. Hastie, H.; Lieut. Newington Bridges, J.; W. H. Thomas, Scribe E.; and a number of other companions. The chapter was opened in due form, when Comp. Henry Muggieridge, Past Grand Standard Bearer, was requested to install the Principals. A conclave of Installed Principals was formed, and Comp. Hastie installed into the chair of Z.; Comp. Bridges into the chair of H.; and Comp. Thomas into the chair of J. The conclave was closed, the companions re-admitted, and Comps. Bradley and Col. Gardner were inducted into the office of S.E. and P.S. A jewel was presented to Comp. Messenger, I.P.Z., and the chapter was closed in due form, when the companions adjourned to the mess room, and partook of an excellent banquet, enlivened by the vocal abilities of Comp. Seymour Smith and other companions.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Chapter (No. 130).—The installation of Principals took place at the regular monthly meeting in Freemasons' Hall on the 27th ult., M.E. Comp. Edward Booth, P. Prov. J.W., performing the ceremony, the following being the officers for the year:—E. Comps. T. P. Payne, First Principal; G. M. Passenger, jun., Second Principal; R. Sharpe, Third Principal; J. R. Weston, Scribe E.; W. Waters, Scribe N.; R. S. Pearce, Treas.; H. P. Aslatt, P.S.; Comps. S. Myer and C. Bemister, A.S.; and Biggs, J.

LINSLADE.—St. Barnabas Chapter (No. 948).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Elephant and Castle Hotel, on Thursday, the 13th ult. Comp. Haslgrave, of Luton, opened the chapter in due form. After the minutes were confirmed, Comp. Henry Muggieridge, P.G. Standard Bearer of England, by request of the M.E.Z., took the chair, and installed Comp. Howell, of Dunstable, into the First Principal's chair, and Comp. Wixley, of London, into the Third Principal's chair. The conclave of Installed Principals was then closed, and the companions re-admitted, when Comp. Poynter, P.Z., of Luton, was inducted into the office of S.E., and Comp. Sandell, P.S. There were also present Comps. Cawdell, P.Z., of Luton; McCubbin, P.Z., and several other companions, who, after the chapter was closed, partook of an excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Morgan, the worthy host, in his usual admirable style.

Mark Masonry.

PRINCE LEOPOLD LODGE (No. 238).—This new lodge commenced its session on the 18th ult., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Among the officers present were Bros. W. Wigginton, P.G.S. of Works, W.M.; T. C. Walls, S.W.; Charles Horsley, G.J.O., Treasurer and M.O.; Richnell, J.O.; J. Dodson, S.D.; F. H. Clemow, acting J.G.; Harrison, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. J. Beningfield, 1589, was duly advanced to the honorable degree of M.M.M., the ceremony being performed by the W.M. most ably. Bros. Webb and Beningfield were then respectively appointed and invested by the W.M. as J.D. and I.G. A discussion then took place upon the subject of the by-laws, when it was unanimously agreed that their final settlement should be deferred until the next regular meeting in February. Several propositions for advancement having been handed in, the lodge was duly and formally closed, and the brethren partook of an excellent banquet. After this entertainment had been done full justice to, the customary loyal and Mark toasts were duly proposed. Bro. Horsley responded in fluent terms upon behalf of "The Grand Officers, Past and Present," and immediately afterwards gave "The W.M." This toast having been warmly received, Bro. Wigginton briefly acknowledged the compliment, and gave "The Advance," which pledge was modestly responded to by Bro. Beningfield. "The Officers" followed, and, in reply, this most important toast received full justice from the hands of Bro. Horsley. The remainder of the evening having been agreeably spent, the Tyler was called upon to discharge his duty, and the brethren separated.

SOUTHAMPTON.—St. Andrew's Lodge (No. 63).—The festival of St. Andrew was celebrated at the Masonic Hall, Bugle-street, on Wednesday evening, the 26th inst., by the installation of Bro. George Tilling, P.P.G.I.G. as W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was ably performed by Bro. Sheppard, P.M., P.P.J.G.W. The following brethren were appointed officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. Blount Thomas, P.J.G.W., I.P.M.; R. L. Loveland, P.P.J.G.W., P.G. Treas., S.W.; F. H. McCalmont, P.G.S., J.W.; C. W. A. Jellicoe, M.O.; P. P. M. Emanuel, S.O.; J. S. Pearce, J.O.; J. E. Le Feuvre, P.G. Sec., Treas.; P. Warren, P.P. Grand Steward, Sec.; J. Coles, Registrar; D. O. Hobbs, S.D.; W. Horton, J.D.; J. R. Weston, P.P.M.O., D.C.; Bro. Stroud, I.G.; and Biggs and Vane, Tylers. The next and future meetings of this lodge will be held in the New Masonic Hall, which is to be opened on the 29th of December next.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 181).—This provincial lodge held its first regular meeting of the season at the Albany Hotel, when there were present among others Bros. S. H. Knaggs, P.G.S. W.M.; W. Taylor, P.P.G.D.C. Middlesex, S.W.; E. Hopwood, Acting J.W.; Tomlinson, P.G.S., P.M.; Sanders, S.D.; T. C. Walls, I.G.; Rogers, Registrar; Richnell, W.S.; and Harrison, Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. W. Taylor was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. Harrison re-elected Tyler. There being no other business the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren partook of a collation. At its conclusion the usual toasts received full justice. Bro. Tomlinson responded on behalf of "The Grand Mark Officers, Present and Past," and then proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who duly acknowledged the same. In giving "The W.M. elect," Bro. Knaggs congratulated Bro. Taylor upon having arrived so soon at that important position. He (the W.M. elect) had been advanced in the lodge, and from the attention and ability he had displayed in the execution of the duties of the various minor officers he had filled in the lodge, he believed that Bro. Taylor's performance of the "work" attached to the higher responsibilities of the chair would be alike creditable to himself and gratifying to the members of the Francis Burdett Lodge. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Bro. Taylor briefly replied. "The Officers," and the Tyler's toast then terminated the proceedings.

WALTHAMSTOW.—Beaconsfield Lodge (No. 205).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Chequers, Marsh-street, on Saturday, the 15th ult. Present: Bros. James Pinder, P.M., as W.M.; W. C. Claridge, S.W.; D. M. Dewar, P.G.M.O., as J.W.; W. G. Hallows, M.O.; J. Franklin, S.O.; Fred. Hallows, Sec.; J. H. Cambridge, J.D.; G. J. Westfield, as I.G.; T. Upward; Organist; Fredk. Binckes, G.S.; G. Graveley, R. T. Williams, and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last lodge and audit meetings were read and confirmed. Bro. F. Binckes then occupied the chair, and Bro. W. C. Claridge, the Master elect, was presented and obligated. A Board of Installed Mark Masters was formed, and Bro. Claridge installed as W.M. for the ensuing year. On the brethren returning to the lodge, the W.M. was presented to them by Bro. Binckes, and saluted according to ancient custom. The W.M. immediately proceeded to invest his officers as follows: Bros. W. Groome, S.W.; W. G. Hallows, J.W.; T. Franklin, M.O.; J. Badkin, J.O.; Fred. Hallows, Sec.; J. M. Cambridge, S.D.; George Graveley, J.D.; G. J. Westfield, I.G.; T. Upward, Organist; and R. T. Williams, D.C. (The remaining officers were left vacant until next lodge meeting.) After the officers had been invested and conducted to their positions in the lodge, Bro. Binckes delivered a very able and impressive charge to them all upon the important duties they had undertaken, and the manner in which it was expected they were to be carried out. The lodge was then closed in due form. The brethren afterwards partook of an excellent banquet, presided over by the W.M. In response to the toast of "The Grand Officers," Bro. Binckes replied; and to that of "The Visitors," Bro. Broadley, the P.G.M.M.M. of Tunis and Malta, responded. Amongst the other visitors present were Bros. G. W. Verry, P.M. 104; S. Wharman, 1773; and others.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PREMIER CONCLAVE.—This distinguished Conclave met at the 'Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on the 1st inst. Among those present were Bros. Sir Knights Kingston, M.P.S.; Peters, S.G., M.E.V. elect; Massa, I.G.; T. Cubitt, P.M.P.S., Treasurer; H. C. Levander, P.M.P.S., Recorder; George Kenning, P.M.P.S.; H. A. Dubois, P.M.P.S.; Marsh, P.G.V., &c.; Thiellay, H.P.; Shibley, Prefect; T. C. Walls, A.D.C.; Robinson, Gilbert, and Harrison, Sentinels. The minutes of the last regular meeting and an emergency meeting having been read and confirmed, Col. Sir Knight Peters was duly installed as M.E.V. A motion by Sir Knight Walls, which was seconded by Sir Knight Levander, "That a silver gilt Past Sovereign's jewel be presented to every subscribing Sir Knight who had filled the position of Sovereign of the Premier Conclave," was carried nom con. Two notices of motion having been handed in, and numerous communications read from absent members, the Conclave was closed in accordance with ancient usages, and the Sir Knights adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth, the preliminary toasts were done full justice to. "The M.P.S." was proposed in very complimentary and exhaustive terms by Sir Knight Peters. This pledge having been cordially received, the M.P.S. gave "The Health of the new-installed M.E.V.," which toast was duly honoured, and in response Sir Knight Peters expressed his acknowledgments. "The Officers," coupled with the name of Sir Knight Levander, brought the formal proceedings to a conclusion. In the intervals of the toasts Sir Knights Marsh, Peters, Massa and others entertained their colleagues.

PLANTAGENET CONCLAVE (No. 2).—The knights of this Masonic and military Order assembled on Monday, the 24th ult., at the Regent Masonic Hall, Air-street, W. The early unpropitious and cold weather, no doubt, chilled many of the members from attending to their chivalrous duties. There were present V.E. and Perf. Sir Knight E. H. Thiellay, G. St. B., M.P. Sovereign; E. Sir Knight C. F. Hogard, G.S.A., Viceroy Eusebius; W. Sir Knight H. Venn, Junior General; V.E. and Perf. Sir Knights H. Dickets, G.A.M., P.S., Treas.; F. Bayley, P.S.; H. C. Levander, P.G.S.G. and G. Treas.; J. G. Marsh, P.G.A.; Sir Knights H. Moon, and Laing, Sentinel. The conclave was opened in due form, letters of apology from absentees and candidates were read, some little business transacted, when the conclave was again closed in due solemnity and adjourned. The usual recherche little banquet ensued, for which the Plantagenet Conclave so distinguishes itself, thanks to that excellent gastronomist, the Treasurer.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

YORK.—Hilda Chapter Rose Croix (No. 236).—At the regular meeting of this chapter, held at York, on Friday evening, Bro. T. B. Whythead, H.P., was unanimously elected M.W.S., and Bro. J. S. Cumberland Treasurer for the ensuing year. In the unavoidable absence of the present M.W.S. Bro. the Hon. W. T. Nole-Powlett, Bro. C. J. Bannister, 33, S.G.I.G., presided.

Order of St. Lawrence.

METROPOLITAN LODGE.—This influential lodge, which comprises upwards of seventy members, met in good numbers at the Masonic rooms, Red Lion Square, on the 28th ult. Among those present were Bros. S. Rosenthal, I.P.M., acting W.M. in the absence of Bro. W. Roebuck; F. Binckes, P.M.; H. C. Levander, acting S.W.; T. C. Walls, acting J.W.; D. M. Dewar, Secretary; A. Williams, Conductor; J. Robins, J. Constable, T. Poore, R. L. Loveland, E. Passawer, C. E. Soppet, T. Cubitt, J. Pinder, W. C. Claridge, C. J. Morgan, etc. Bro. Broadley, of the Ebor Lodge, was a visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Graveley, Anderson, Gimingham, and Silvester were duly admitted members of this quaint degree by the W.M. The interesting lecture of the Order was most ably delivered by Bro. D. M. Dewar. Bro. Binckes then, in a few appropriate sentences, presented Bro. Rosenthal with a P.M.'s jewel. Several communications having been read, and numerous propositions handed in, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent grill at the Albion Hotel. Upon the removal of the cloth, the various toasts pertaining to the Order were done full justice to. Bro. Rosenthal, at an early stage of the proceedings having to leave, the chair was ably filled for the remainder of the evening by Bro. Binckes. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," Bro. Binckes, in the course of his remarks, took occasion to speak in very warm and eulogistic terms of the services of Bro. Broadley in almost every degree of Masonry. He was pleased that the Metropolitan Lodge of the Order of St. Lawrence had had the opportunity of entertaining their distinguished brother previously to his departure for Tunis, and on behalf of the lodge he, Bro. Binckes, wished him "bon voyage." This toast having been drunk most heartily, Bro. Broadley responded in a humorous speech, which "set the table in a roar." In concluding his remarks, he stated that upon his return to Tunis and Malta it was his intention to introduce the Order of St. Lawrence and other side degrees in those districts. "The Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of Bro. Binckes, was given by Bro. Robins in brief but pertinent terms, and having been cordially received, the brother thus honoured made a stirring and able response. The proceedings were enlivened by the contributions of Bro. Constable, Gimingham, and others, and the members separated at an early hour, highly gratified with the success that had attended their first re-union of the season.

A NEW CONSTITUTION.

I am happy to say that this MS. is now in my possession. It is of date 1607. It has a frontispiece by the famous Inigo Jones; on the title page, in MS., are these words—"The Ancient Constitution of the Free and Accepted Masons 1607." This one fact and statement opens the door to numerous most interesting questions.

I will recur to the matter in the next Freemason.

Obituary.

BRO. ALEXANDER RIDDELL.

We regret to have to record the death of Bro. Alexander Ridwell, of Portsmouth, which took place on the 19th ult. The deceased was much respected by the Freemasons of this great Masonic centre, as he has ever been a plodding, hard-working Mason. He was initiated in the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 344, and joined the Fareham Lodge, No. 309, in which he served the office of W.M. with considerable credit. He was also one of the founders of the Landport Lodge, No. 1776, and worked laboriously to promote its success. He was exalted in the Royal Sussex Chapter, No. 342, and served the various offices, and was filling the Z.'s chair the second time at the time of his death. The funeral took place at the Portsea Cemetery, on Saturday, the 22nd ult., and was attended by a considerable number of Masons, although the weather was most inclement. The deceased leaves several children without a mother to look after them, and in rather indigent circumstances, as his pay ceased at the time of his illness, as he held a Government appointment as Clerk of Works.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

A meeting of this Provincial Grand Chapter was held at Gainsborough on Monday, the 1st inst., under the presidency of Comp. W. H. Smyth, M.E. Grand Supt. of Lincolnshire, on the invitation of the All Saints Chapter, No. 422.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, there was a good attendance, probably caused by the fact of the All Saints being one of the oldest chapters in the province, and the Old Hall, which was the appointed place of meeting, being one of the curiosities of the county, it having been at one time, we believe, the residence of John o'Gaunt.

Provincial Grand Chapter was opened by the Prov. G. Supt., Comp. W. H. Smyth, M.E.Z., assisted by M.E. Comps, J. Moxon, H., and W. Watkins, J., at 11.30, after which the minutes of the last Prov. Grand Chapter, held at Grimsby in 1877, were read and confirmed.

The accounts of Provincial Grand Chapter were then presented by Comp. C. M. Nesbitt, Provincial G. Treas., showing a balance in hand of £18.

In the absence of Comp. F. Watson, 297, P.G. Reg., the returns were presented by Comp. T. C. Lazenby, 297, showing a decrease of ten members since the formation of the Provincial Grand Chapter.

The following companions were then appointed and invested as Provincial Grand Officers:—

Comp. E. Pocock, 712	Prov. G.H.
" A. Kirk, 422	Prov. G.J.
" J. Fowler, 712	Prov. G. Scribe E.
" G. Honsham, 422	Prov. G. Scribe N.
" Rev. G. W. Lowe, 272	Prov. G.P.S.
" G. Barrell, 272	Prov. G. 1st A.S.
" J. Robinson, 272	Prov. G. 2nd A.S.
" C. M. Nesbitt, 712	Prov. G. Treas.
" T. C. Lazenby, 297	Prov. G. Reg.
" G. M. Lowe, 297	Prov. G.S.B.
" W. E. Howlett, 422	Prov. G.D. of C.
" G. Robinson, 422	Prov. G. Org.
" B. Box, 422	Prov. G. Janitor.

Comps. F. D. Marsden, P.Z. 712, and G. H. Porter, P.Z. 712, were elected Auditors of the Provincial Grand Chapter accounts for the ensuing year.

Several collars and jewels, wanting to complete the equipment of the Provincial Grand Chapter, were ordered to be obtained by the Prov. G. Treasurer and Prov. G. Scribe E.

Provincial Grand Chapter was then closed in due form, according to ancient custom.

Bro. Frank Richardson, W.M. elect of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, had the honour of nominating, on Wednesday last, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W. Grand Master for the year ensuing.

CONSECRATION OF ST. PETROC LODGE, No. 1758.

The Freemasons of the town of Padstow have, up to the present time, possessed no lodge of their own, but have been subscribing members to those in the neighbouring towns. Recently, however, and mainly through the exertions of Bro. W. H. Martyn, it was determined to form an independent lodge at Padstow, and for this purpose premises known as the old Post-office, in Church-street, have been purchased and converted to the required purpose. A large room in the upper part of the building has been furnished with the necessary furniture, &c., for working the lodge in Craft Masonry, and a small room adjoining has been converted into an ante-room. The warrant for its constitution has been granted by the Grand Lodge, and here eleven members who represent the Order at Padstow will assemble under the title of St. Petroc Lodge, No. 1758. As the membership increases and funds accumulate it is intended to convert the existing premises into a building on a more pretentious scale, and its promoters entertain the idea that they will be in a position to accomplish this at no very distant date.

The ceremony of consecrating and constituting the lodge was performed on the 21st ult., by the P.G.M., the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, in the presence of a tolerably large gathering of the Masonic fraternity, considering the remote position of the town from any of the large centres. The P.G.M. was supported by Bros. Colonel Peard, D.P.G.M.; T. Hawken, P.M. 330, P.S.G.W.; A. Elford, 977, P.J.G.W.; the Hon. and Rev. J. T. Boscawen, P.S.G.C.; Rev. E. S. T. Daunt, P.J.G.C.; E. T. Carlyon, P.G. Sec.; W. Rowe, 330, P.G.D.C.; Richard John, P.M. 131, P.G.A.D.C.; W. Rook, P.M. 131, P.G.A.P.; E. B. Williams, 977, P.G.S.B.; J. Bishop, 790, P.G.S.; A. Giles, P.M. 496, P.P.G.S.; E. D. Anderton, P.M. 33, P.P.J.G.W.; S. Trevail, J.D. 330; M. Hicks, P.M. 1529; John James, D.C. 1529; W. H. Cobeldick, S. 1529; W. Paynter, P.M. 330; A. A. Davis, 997, P.P.G.J.W.; Charles Hawke, W.M. 1529; T. W. Beale, 977, P.G.T.; John Dennis, 330, P.P.G.D.; W. W. Howard, S.W. 1529; W. T. Eastcott (Huyshe), 1099; R. Griffiths, 131; G. Garland, 330; John Hawken, 131; D. Jones, 330; E. Grove, J.D. 1529; C. H. Parks, 1529; and T. Nicholls, 1785.

The brethren first assembled in the lodge room, and the lodge having been opened in the First Degree, a procession was formed, and, headed by the band of the local volunteer corps, marched to the parish church, where Divine service was held in the presence of a large gathering of the townspeople. The Hon. and Rev. J. T. Boscawen, P.S.G.C., read the opening portions of the service, and the Rev. S. T. Daunt, vicar of St. Stephen's, Launceston, P.J.G.C., preached the sermon. Taking his text from the 5th chapter of Galatians and the 24th verse: "And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts thereof," the rev. gentleman put before his hearers the principle which very few of them, he said, applied literally to heart; that was, the complete severance from their lives of those surroundings which were so fatal to what was commonly called the growth of godliness. Freemasons, above all others, he urged, ought to feel the imposture of sin, and all of them should put aside the cant and hollowness of the world and should study that manly style of religion which was indicated and suggested in the Masonic ritual. They had started a new lodge, and he hoped they would be in earnest, that they would have a bona fide faith in the suggestive teachings of their ritual. If they thought of the great Bible teachings and of the suggestive thoughts embodied in that ritual, it would be sure to inculcate faith of a noble and manly character; faith free from twaddle, free from cant, free from hypocrisy; a manly faith, an earnestness of purpose, feeling that they were taking the right road, and then God will bless and reward them in their endeavours.

The brethren having re-assembled in the lodge, the ceremony of consecration was performed by the P.G.M. in accordance with ancient custom. The P.G.M. then addressed the members of the new lodge. As many of them, no doubt, were as old in Masonry as he himself was, he would not, he said, attempt to instruct them on the objects and designs of the Order; but at the same time he did not like an occasion of this kind to pass without addressing a few words that might have some practical bearing upon the working of a new lodge, because he felt very earnestly about it himself, and liked to call the attention of others to it. Without going into the history of Freemasonry, they all knew, and no one could practically help seeing, that the Order was not only an influential and honourable institution, but that it was also one of the most widely extended, and the most critically observed by the outside world, so that those members who were forming this lodge, and who had obtained the permission of the Grand Lodge to do so, were accepting a great responsibility. In their hands was placed, and to a great extent was entrusted, the credit of Freemasonry in that neighbourhood. They were forming themselves into a branch of the great Masonic tree, and it would depend upon them whether it continued to be a living branch and an ornament to the parent stem, or the reverse. Of course their success depended entirely upon their regarding Masonry in its proper light. Wearing Masonic clothing, attending Masonic ceremonies, learning the ritual, or even holding important offices, was one thing, but being a real Mason was another thing. If "brotherly love, relief, and truth" were to be their watchwords, then at least the formation of a lodge in that place would tend to smooth over all those differences which, unfortunately, often existed between neighbours in most places, whether they arose from political disputes, from religious distinctions, or from personal rivalries of any kind. If Freemasonry was to be a real thing amongst them, no doubt all those evils which arose from the different circumstances he had named would be smoothed and softened; and they must be, so far as the members of the lodge were themselves concerned. Kindness and a real and earnest desire to help each other, as implied in the word relief, must be exercised; and honesty in its widest sense, coming under the head of truth, must also be encouraged. There were one or two other things he desired to impress upon them in relation to the practical working of the lodge. In the first place, he would beg of them in balloting for new members only to consider in giving their vote whether the candidate was likely to be a credit to the institution or not. That was the one thing they were to think of. They must never let any personal or jealous feeling influence them to exclude a man. Then, again, there might be a natural desire on the part of a young lodge to increase its membership, and, with that object in view, they might be tempted to admit those whom otherwise they would not admit. He hoped that that would not be the case there. Further than that, he was sure they would not misinterpret his motives when he advised them to elect those candidates who did not seek admission simply for the benefits which might accrue. Those who were admitted into the Masonic fraternity ought to be above that, otherwise the objects of Freemasonry would not be carried out. A man ought to join for the sake of Freemasonry itself, and for the benefit of others rather than himself, and then if he afterwards fell into misfortune he knew that he would be as readily helped as he was previously ready to help others; but it was not right to admit a man simply for the advantages he might expect to derive. He could not too earnestly impress upon them the necessity when a Master was elected of giving him their entire and hearty obedience. The election of a Master in Freemasonry was carried out in the most free manner possible, and when the majority had selected an individual that should be final; everybody should give way, there should be no personal feeling; but they should give him their hearty support and allegiance. Everything depended upon this in the good working of a lodge. It was a natural and honest kind of ambition on the part of a Mason to seek to obtain office; but if at the same time the voice of his brethren selected somebody else all feeling of jealousy should pass away from that moment. Unfortunately, ambition for office was one of the greatest difficulties in Freemasonry, and sometimes brought about a block which all good Masons must regret. He sincerely trusted that this lodge would go on upon the principles he had hinted at, and then he was sure it would not only be a satisfaction to those who were members of the lodge itself, but that it would be a benefit to the town of Padstow, in which it had been established, and that its effect would always be to create harmony and good feeling, and to make all things pleasanter in the town than they were before it was formed. The P.G.M. concluded by declaring the lodge regularly and duly constituted, and by dedicating it to the service of Freemasonry.

The installation of the W.M. designate, Bro. W. H. Martyn, was ably performed by the P.S.G.W., Bro. T. Hawken, after which the W.M. appointed the following as his officers:—Bros. W. H. Roberts, S.W.; F. Bray, J.W.; J. F. Clemow, Treas. and Sec.; J. W. Pearce, S.D.; J. Nicholls, J.D.; C. Matthews, I.G.; and T. Wills, Org. The consecration ceremony having been completed, the brethren adjourned to the Commercial Hotel, where a banquet had been prepared. The W.M., Bro. Martyn, presided, and was supported on his right and left by the P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., and the P.G. Chaplains. Several Masonic toasts were proposed. Among others was that of "The Provincial Grand Officers," to which the D.P.G.M. responded, and proposed, in return, "The Health of the W.M." The toast was received with warmth, and Bro. Martyn, in responding, expressed his firm intention of doing everything in his power to promote the welfare of the lodge, to extend its operations, and to increase its membership. He called upon his officers to render him every possible assistance, feeling sure that with their help he should be able to uphold the dignity of the chair, and to hand the office over unstained and unsullied to his successor at the end of the year. He proposed, in cordial terms, "The Health of the Installing Master." W. Bro. Hawken, in reply, congratulated the lodge upon having made so judicious a selection in their first W.M. He had the pleasure of proposing Bro. Martyn for initiation into the Order, and also of giving him the first office he had held in a Masonic lodge. That day Bro. Martyn had reached the climax of Craft Masonry; he was a brother who would do his work thoroughly and well, and was entitled to the support of every individual member of the lodge. "The Health of the P.G.C." was responded to by the Rev. E. S. T. Daunt, and one or two other toasts of a formal character brought the proceedings to a close. The musical portions of the service and of the post-prandial proceedings were effectively rendered by Bro. H. Jacobs, Org., Bodmin.—Western Morning News.

THE SOUTHAMPTON MASONIC HALL COMPANY.

The Southampton Masonic Hall Company held a large meeting of shareholders on Friday, the 28th ult., W. Bro. W. Hickman, Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Chairman of the company, presiding, and determined to borrow £800 on mortgage, at 4½ per cent., from the Southampton Masonic Benevolent Association, to assist in meeting the cost of the new hall, which is now finished, and in the course of being furnished.

The Secretary of the company (Bro. R. Sharpe, P.M.) announced that £2600 £1 shares had been allotted to brethren in respect of the hall and site.

The buildings are to be opened towards the close of December by the Grand Master of the Province, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The Grand Lodge of Scotland met on Monday last afternoon, in Freemasons' Hall, for the purpose of installing their officers for the next year, and also to celebrate the Festival of St. Andrew.

Grand Lodge then adjourned to the large hall in order to join in the festival, where there were assembled members of Grand Lodge and deputations from the daughter lodges to the number of upwards of 200.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured.

The Grand Master, in his reply, alluded to the presentation of his bust to Lady Octavia, and thanked the Freemasons of Scotland for the compliment, which, he said, had been enhanced, as their kindness was increased by the fact that the gift was not to him, but to her who received it.

MAJOR CHARD IN EXETER.

On Friday, the 14th ult., a Lodge of Emergency of St. George's Lodge, No. 112, was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Exeter, for the purpose of presenting Major Chard, V.C., R.E., the gallant hero of Rorke's Drift, with a congratulatory address on his return home from Zululand.

There were present Bros. George Hirtzel, W.M., P.G.R., Devon; W. R. Woodman, P.G.S.B., England; Lt.-Col. Drewe, Commanding 34th Brigade Depot; Farrant, I.P.M.; Woodgates, P.M., P.P.G.S.D.; Tozer, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; Rogers, P.M., D.P.G.M., Devon; Gray, P.M., P.P.G.R.; Brewin, P.M., W.M. 444, P.P.G.S.W. Leicestershire; S. Hooper, P.M.; S. Johns, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; F. W. Jones, P.M.; A. F. Luke, P.M.; Shaw, P.M.; W. F. Geare, H. P. Boulnois, Rev. Williams, P.P.G.C.; C. T. K. Roberts, Hon. Sec.; J. D. Harris, J. Harding, J. W. Matthews, Capt. Bent, Major Carlyon Simmons, Major Arscott, Capt. Cunningham, S. Rees-Phillips, H. D. Thomas, P.G.S.D.; C. H. Edmonds, P.M. 444; Rev. M. E. Reynolds, P.P.G.C. Cambridgeshire; Rev. R. J. Thornton, P.G.C.; A. K. Hamilton.

A congratulatory letter from the lodge was forwarded to Major Chard in Zululand as soon as his gallant conduct was known to his brother Masons, and the address was at once prepared, to be presented on his return home.

Major Chard is a member of St. George's Lodge, in which he was initiated whilst he was quartered in Exeter. The address was beautifully illuminated by Mr. Faulkner White, of this city, and ran as follows:—"To Bro. John Rouse Merritt Chard.—We, the undersigned Master, Wardens, and Brethren of St. George's Lodge, No. 112, desire to express to you our great admiration of the determined and well-sustained courage and gallantry with which you defended the post of Rorke's Drift against an overwhelming force of Zulu warriors on the night of the 22nd and morning of the 23rd Jan., 1879; our sincere congratulations on the well-deserved honours in the shape of a majority in the Army and the Victoria Cross for valour, with which Her Most Gracious Majesty has been pleased to recognise your gallant feat of arms; and our earnest hope that you may long be spared to serve your Queen and country, with that devotion and courage you have so early evinced." Here follow the signatures of the officers and members of St. George's Lodge. The address was presented in lodge, and Major Chard was most heartily welcomed and cheered. Afterwards the brethren entertained the Major at a banquet at the New London Hotel, but the proceedings were of a strictly private nature.

ROSICRUCIAN SOCIETY OF ENGLAND

On Monday afternoon Bro. C. F. Matier, Supreme Magus of Scotland (by request of Dr. Woodman, S.M. of England), formally opened a new college at York, and installed Bro. T. B. Whythead as Chief Adept.

PROVINCIAL GRAND PRIORY OF NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

The Provincial Priory of the Knights Templar and Malta for Northumberland and Durham was held under the banner of the Royal Kent Preceptory at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, on Friday, the 28th ult. The V.E. Prov. Grand Prior, Sir Knight C. J. Bannister, was received with the usual arch of steel. The Priory having been opened in due form, the muster roll of the Sir Knights was called, when the following appeared under arms:—Sir Knights Hotham, Brandt, Jackson, Jansen, Tuck, Beresford, Maddison, Fry, Martin, Bousfield, and others. The Sub-Prior, Sir Knight John Ironer, having resigned, Sir Knight H. Hotham, who has been a member of the Order for over forty years, was appointed Sub-Prior. The great officers and officers were then appointed and invested, the arms were collected, and the Provincial Priory closed. The Sir Knights then dined together, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk.

GLOBE THEATRE.

"Les Cloches de Corneville," which reaches its 600th performance on Tuesday next, is still being played at this theatre with unabated interest, and, by all appearances, will resemble Tennyson's "Brook." There are one or two new artistes introduced into the cast; also a new chorus. Miss Kate Munroe plays with great spirit her original character of Serpolette, as also does Miss Laura Clement the character of Germaine. Miss Clement, who possesses a very sweet voice, is to be commended for the careful manner in which she enacts her character. Mr. Wilford Morgan is an able Marquis de Corneville. Mr. Shiel Barry portrays the character of the Miser as ably as ever, though the effect is somewhat overdrawn by Mr. Righton, who, we think, somewhat overdraws the character of the Bailie. With this exception, everything is most creditable to the theatre and enjoyable to its patrons.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The presentation of a testimonial to Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., subscribed for by his late parishioners at St. Clement Danes, took place at Clement's-inn Hall on Thursday evening.

Bro. the Rev. Dr. Cox, P.G.C., vicar of St. Helen's, Bishopgate, who has recently returned from America, preached at St. Mary Magdeline Church, Peckham, on Sunday evening last, on behalf of the National and Infant Schools.

Bro. Horace B. Marshall, C.C., has contributed the sum of £200 to the Building Fund of the new Baptist Chapel at Loughborough-park, the memorial stone of which he recently laid.

Another instance of the inexplicable differences between the amounts of builders' tenders is reported in last week's Builder. For re-laying pipe-sewers at Hornsey, for the Local Board, the highest tender was £1095, and the lowest £399, only five tenders being sent in altogether.

The Court Circular announces that, although her Majesty has been prevented taking her usual outdoor exercise since Saturday last, in consequence of a chill, the Queen is much better. A Windsor correspondent writes that it is understood her Majesty's cold was attended with sore throat, and that it was this cause, which necessitated the postponement for a few days of a reception by the Queen of the soldiers who had distinguished themselves in the recent campaigns.

The Fifteen Sections were worked at the King Harold Lodge of Instruction, No. 1327, at the Britannia, Watham New Town, on Thursday, the 27th ult. Bro. Bradstock, 1327, Preceptor; Bro. Beavis (I.G. 879), W.M.; Bro. Robinson (J.D. 1327), S.W.; Bro. Noyes (S.D. 1327), J.W. The lodge was opened at 6.30 p.m.

Table with 2 columns: Section number and Lecturer name. Includes First, Second, and Third Lectures.

The Rowland Hill memorial scheme is being warmly taken up in Derby.

Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold and suite arrived at the Victoria Station at five o'clock on Wednesday evening, by special train, from the continent. His Royal Highness afterwards proceeded to Windsor on a visit to the Queen, where he arrived at 7.30 p.m.

The Lullingstone Lodge, No. 1837, was consecrated at Farningham, in Kent, on Monday last, by Bro. the Rev. Thos. Robinson, P.P.G.S. West Kent, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Hill, Grand Chaplain Kent and England, and a large array of Provincial Officers and brethren of the Craft. A full report will appear in our next week's issue.

Owing to the continuation of the frost, the Sandown Park Meeting Sceptechases are again postponed till Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday next, December the 9th, 10th, and 11th.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to confer a Civil List Pension of £150 per annum upon the widow and five daughters of the late Mr. Peter Vargas, in consideration of his long and meritorious services as Superintendent of the Parliamentary Messengers under the Secretary of the Treasury.

The new Holborn Town Hall will be opened on Thursday, the 18th inst., by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Bro. Sir Francis Truscott, and the Sheriffs, Bros. Woolloton and Bayley.

A report of the installation meeting of St. Leonard Lodge, No. 1766, which was held on Tuesday last, will appear in our next.

Bro. Sir Francis Wyatt Truscott, Lord Mayor of the City of London, has become a Vice-President of the National Thrift Society.

Bro. His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, K.G., M.W. Grand Master of Ireland, was present at the funeral of the Earl of Durham, which took place at Bowm Moor, on Wednesday last.

The annual dinner of the 2nd Middlesex Artillery (No. 4 Battery) will be held at the Holborn Restaurant on Saturday next, December 13th. Dinner on table at six o'clock p.m.

The inaugural dinner of the Master and Wardens of the Liners' Company will take place on the 21st of January next. The Lord Mayor, Bro. Sir Francis Truscott, and the two Sheriffs, Bros. Woolloton and Bayley, have promised to attend.

The enterprise of Messrs. Spiers and Pond appears to know no bounds. For some time past, notwithstanding the size and capabilities of their various establishments, they have found great difficulty in fully meeting the demands made upon them. At the Criterion, especially, the pressure upon some of the departments became so great that it was imperative to make considerable additions to the building. The site of some adjoining shops was secured, the architect of the Criterion, Mr. Verity, was consulted, and upon his plans the present building, the Criterion Annexe, was erected. There are many novelties to be introduced, but what concerns us most are the handsome and commodious Masonic Rooms, which, for convenience and luxury, are superior to anything we have ever seen, and we have no doubt that many lodges will hail with satisfaction the opportunity of locating themselves in such comfortable quarters.

"Saunders's Daily News Letter," the oldest newspaper in Ireland, expired on Monday last.

A supply of sea-water for London is again being proposed by means of a pumping station at Lancing and a series of aqueducts from thence to London.

An arrangement concluded between England and France, and since gazetted, provides that any distressed mariner of either country landing in a colony of the other country or in the territories of a third Power shall be supplied with board, lodging, clothing, and travelling expenses until he finds fresh employment or is able to leave. The arrangement is to come into operation on the 1st of January, and is terminable at twelve months' notice.

Among the earliest arrivals of the Christmas numbers of weekly papers is the Sporting and Dramatic News, which, in illustrations and literature, is equal to anything we have seen of the class. It will run the older Christmas numbers a very hard race, and we shall be greatly surprised if it is beaten by either of the well-known favourites. The general get up is chaste in the extreme, and the illustrations, both coloured and "black and white," of the highest merit.

We regret to hear that Bro. H. E. Francis is suffering from the effects of an encounter with a burglar who had broken into his premises; this prevented his attendance at Grand Lodge on Wednesday, where we believe he intended speaking on Bro. Stevens's motion.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Monmouthshire was held at Newport, on Monday last, when the Prov. G. Master, the Right Worshipful Bro. L. Augustus Homfray, was re-elected for the ensuing three years. We shall give a full report of the proceedings in our next.

The last of the series of four grand subscription concerts, organised by Bro. Wilhelm Kube, P.G.O., took place in the dome of the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Monday evening, and proved to be one of the most brilliant successes of the season.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, R.W.P.G.M. Derbyshire, has consented to allow his name to be placed on the Mansion House Committee List of the Sir Rowland Hill Memorial Fund.

The Cosmopolitan Masouic Pocket Book for 1880 is now ready, price 2s., post free 2s. 4d. Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.—[ADVT.]

Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W. Prov. Grand Master West Yorkshire, has subscribed £10 towards the Rowland Hill Memorial Fund.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR; Diary, and Pocket Book, for 1880.—London: George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street, price post free 2s. 1d.—We do not remember seeing a more useful compendium of class information than is published in this neatly got up pocket book, which forms a complete manual of reference to the great brotherhood for whose use it is designed. Among its contents, besides the indispensable Masonic calendar, is a list of lodges (with dates ancient and modern), chapters, K.T. encampments, conclaves, and Grand Councils; with the names of officers in England and Wales, Scotland, Ireland, the colonies, and in foreign countries, together with full particulars of every Grand Masonic body throughout the globe. By a judicious arrangement, these details are condensed within the limits of a small and convenient pocket body (with neat roan cover and gilt), which should be in the possession of every member of the brotherhood.—Brighton Examiner, Dec. 2nd, 1879.

PARACELSUS.

Whose names were properly, it seems, Philippus Aureolus Theophrastus Paracelsus Bombast von Hohenheim—was born in 1493, and died in 1541. His father was a medical man, and he devoted himself to the study of medicine also; but he superadded researches in chemistry, alchemy, and hermeticism. The accounts of Paracelsus are various and contradictory. According to some writers he was genial and able, profoundly learned, and most intellectual; according to others he was to a great extent illiterate, quarrelsome, given to debauchery, and semi-insane. His work were first published by Huser in 1589-90, and no doubt in his alchemical and hermetic speculations some of the high grade and German Rose Croix teaching may be found by the curious searcher. Beyond this he has no connection with Freemasonry.—Kenning's Masonic Cyclopaedia.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Diseases of the skin.—No case of disease of the skin, be its nature what it may, has failed to be benefited when these potent remedies have been properly applied. In scrofulous and scrobutic affections, they are especially serviceable. Scabby eruptions, which had resisted all other modes of treatment and gradually become worse from year to year, have been completely cured by Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills, which root out the disease from the blood itself and leave the constitution free from every morbid taint. In the nursery Holloway's Ointment should be ever at hand; it will give ease in sprains, contusions, burns, scalds, and infantile eruptions, and may always safely be applied by any ordinary attendant.—[Advrt.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The December meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, December 4th, at the Cannon-street Hotel. The brethren present were Bros. Chas. Arkell, W.M.; Legge, I.P.M.; W. T. Rickwood, S.W.; S. T. Lucas, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treas.; George Abbott, P.M., Sec.; Chillingworth, S.D.; H. A. Pratt, I.G.; H. A. Carter, Steward; T. Fisher, B. Perkins, J. Cook, Thomas Agutter, Henry Stevenson, and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. H. A. Carter proposed that ten per cent. of the entire receipts of the lodge be each year written off the general account and placed to the charity fund account, to be thereafter dealt with as prescribed in the bye-laws. This proposition was fully discussed, the result being that Bro. Carter withdrew his proposition. The lodge was then closed in due form.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Thursday, the 27th ult. There were present Bros. Neville Green, W.M.; W. H. Brand, S.W.; J. Brasted, J.W.; C. W. Smyth, Treas.; W. H. Lee, P.M., Sec.; T. C. Chapman, P.M.; E. Dignam, S.D.; C. Lorain, J.D.; J. L. Payne, I.G.; A. Ferrar, D.C.; R. Polak, W.S.; Varney, Moon, George, Bell, A. Olley, Beasley, Reynolds, Hill, Harding-Watkins, and Fisher. The minutes of the preceding regular meeting and lodge of emergency, including a resolution to remove to the Moorgate-street Station Restaurant, E.C., were read and confirmed, after which Bro. Bell was raised to the Third Degree. The lodge having been resumed to the First Degree, the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and Bros. W. H. Brand, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M.; C. W. Smyth, Treas.; and J. Marsh, Tyler. Bro. N. Green, W.M., in an appropriate address, presented Bros. Lee, P.M. and Secretary, and Chapman, P.M., a past Treasurer of the lodge, with jewels, previously voted by the lodge, for their valuable services in their respective offices, which were suitably acknowledged by the recipients. The usual Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. Green, W.M., for his able and efficient services during the past year. The brethren then adjourned to a substantial repast, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and suitably responded to, and the remainder of the evening was spent in social enjoyment.

ST. DUNSTAN LODGE (No. 1589).—This highly successful parochial lodge mustered strongly on the 26th ult., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, when there were present Bros. Dodson, P.M. Constitution, W.M.; Reeves, S.W.; Woodbridge, J.W.; Alfred Tisley, Sec.; H. Dalwood, I.P.M.; Gruggen, acting S.D. in the unavoidable absence of Bro. G. Manners; Low, J.D.; Clemow, D.C., acting I.G.; Farrington, jun., Org.; Farrington, sen., W.S.; J. C. Dwarber, P.M.; W. Wellman, P.M. The visitors were Bros. Lempert, S.D. 1275; Clark, I.G. 1662; Cox, 8; Jacobs, 206; Newton, 1258; and T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx. (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken upon behalf of Bro. N. W. M. Maxwell, No. 60, as a joining member, and for Messrs. R. C. Downer, F.R.G.S., B. Freeman, and W. M. Edwards as initiates, and it proved to be unanimously in their favour. The three latter gentlemen being in attendance they were then duly initiated into Craft mysteries by the W.M., the ceremonial being ably performed. A resolution having been passed that the sum of £42 should be taken out of the lodge funds towards defraying the expenses of the summer festival, and a distressed brother of a Metropolitan lodge having been handsomely relieved out of the Benevolent Fund, the lodge was duly and formally closed, and the brethren partook of a most excellent and admirably served banquet, which reflected great credit upon Bro. Clemow, the caterer. The preliminary toasts having been duly proposed and loyally honoured, the I.P.M. gave with much warmth and earnestness "The Health of the W.M.," who in his reply expressed among other things the great pleasure it had afforded him in presiding over so large an assemblage of the brethren as had met that day notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. "The Initiates" followed, and drew from each newly-admitted brother in response a few appropriate remarks. In giving "The Visitors" the W.M. took occasion to congratulate the lodge upon the quantity and quality of the brethren that had from time to time honoured the St. Dunstan with their presence. On that occasion they were favoured with the company of six visiting brethren, and he hoped that their visit had been in every way agreeable to them, and in conclusion he said he should couple the name of Bro. Cox with the toast, as he represented one of the oldest and most distinguished lodges in the Craft, namely the British. This toast having been received with acclamation, Bro. Cox made a brief but most pertinent reply. "The Past Masters" followed, and having been drunk with that cordiality which so important a toast demanded, Bros. Dalwood, Dwarber, and Wellman individually responded, the latter brother's speech being full of point and humour. "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Principal Officers," "The Junior Officers," and the Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings, which were throughout most enjoyable, thanks to the musical efforts of Bros. Farrington, jun., Tisley, Raddle, Cox, Esson, and others.

SIR HUGH MYDDELTON LODGE (No. 1602).—The usual meeting of the brethren of this prosperous lodge was held at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Friday, the 28th ult., under the presidency of Bro. Alfred Francis Rowley, the W.M., and despite the notice on the summons, "no banquet," by some considered ominous of a small attendance, the W.M. was supported by his officers, Bros. J. Weston, S.W.; John Osborn, J.W.; and others. Among those present were Bros. L.P.M. Coombes, and Past Masters E. Lionel, Edward E. Sim, and R. G. Thomas, the manager of the popular Mohawk Minstrels, who is also the Organist of the lodge. The principal business consisted in conferring the F.C. Degree upon Bro. Isaac Eisenstein, which work was most efficiently performed by the W.M. and his officers, and the lodge was duly closed in the usual manner.

FARRINGTON WITHOUT LODGE (No. 1745).—This lodge met in good strength at the Viaduct Hotel, Holborn, on the 24th ult. Among those present were Bros. Charles Jacques, W.M.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, S.W.; H. J. Lardner, S.D.; W. H. Jackson, jun., I.P.M., Sec.; W. Ramsey, P.M., Treas.; M. Samuel, S.D.; Strugnell, D.C.; E. Hart, Org.; H. A. Dubois, P.G.J.W. Middlesex, P.M., &c.; and Parkinson, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Dubois, Macdonald, and Acland, Lodge of Israel. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Bro. W. H. Jackson, jun., who raised Bro. Wildaah to the Degree of a M.M., the ceremony being well performed. The draft bye-laws as approved by the Committee were then submitted to the lodge, and they were, with a few trifling alterations, adopted. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was admirably served. Upon the removal of the cloth the customary toasts were duly proposed and honoured. Bro. Dubois responded upon behalf of "The Visitors" in a neat and appropriate speech. "The Health of the Officers" followed, and drew from the W.M. some very warm and flattering remarks upon the merits and services of the brethren forming that important body. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," Bro. Jackson, I.P.M. and Secretary, at the request of his colleagues, returned thanks. The success of the proceedings after the banquet was greatly enhanced by the instrumental and vocal exertions of Bros. Hart, Potter, Ramsey, Jacques, Samuel, and others.

SAINT LEONARD LODGE (No. 1766).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Wednesday week, the 3rd inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Louis Stean, assisted by the following officers and brethren: Bros. G. F. Barr, S.W., W.M. elect; Barham, J.W.; H. E. Henderson, Chap.; C. Stevens, Treas.; Cox, Sec.; Elias Benjamin, S.D.; H. Jones, J.D.; H. J. F. Gales, D. of C.; A. G. Clement, I.G.; and C. T. Speight, P.M. 27, P.G. Tyler Surrey, Tyler; W. Clarke, Prov. G.D. of C. Norfolk; W. H. Brand, R. S. Mendey, John Staff, H. Waynforth, J. Funston, W. Beasley, W. Snellgrove, W. Stevens, Frank Matthews, J. B. Burnard, W. Provost, Thomas Lawrence, R. Drysdale, W. E. Cole, E. T. Henman, and J. Tidball. The following were the visitors: Bros. Dr. Pottle, Past P.G.W. Herts; B. Hilsley, P.M., P.G.S. Berks; W. H. Bateman, W.M. 12; G. Anderson, W.M. 60, P.G.S.; George Burford, W.M. 754; R. R. Harper, W.M. 813; Richard Jennings, W.M. 907; C. W. Cox, W.M. 1566; J. T. Lacey, P.M. 49; S. Watkins, P.M. 212; H. Stephens, P.M. 754; H. Lloyd, P.M. 780; H. H. Hodges, P.M. 795 and 1566; T. E. Purdy, P.M. 861; W. H. Stokes, P.M. 861; John Dennis, P.M. 907; T. Griffiths, P.M. 907; F. A. White, P.M. 907; W. Musto, P.M. 1349; Robt. Nicholson, 1566; E. M. Adams, S.D. 1685; G. J. Turner, J.D. 183; L. E. Stean, J.D. 212; A. T. Leech, J.D. 749; James Garrod, I.G. 754; D. Matthews, 12; H. Sarson, 70; J. J. Mustart, 174; J. W. Long, 569; T. Glass, 813; W. F. Green, 861; T. Butt, 907; W. Lamarque, 917; C. Robson, 960; G. H. F. Rowe, 1096; W. W. Morgan, jun., 1385; G. E. Howes, 1437; P. Edwards, 1816; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). After the usual business had been transacted, ballot was taken for Mr. James George Moore, which resulted unanimously in his favour. The lodge was then advanced, when Bro. John Staff was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. Bro. George Thomas Barr was then presented for installation, which ceremony was performed by the I.P.M., Bro. Louis Stean, who received valuable assistance from Bro. W. Clarke, P.M., the able D. of C. On the re-entry of the brethren, the usual salutations were given, and the following appointed as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Barham, S.W.; E. Benjamin, J.W.; H. E. Henderson, Chaplain; C. Stevens, Treas.; Cox, Sec.; Jones, S.D.; A. Clement, J.D.; J. Funston, I.G.; E. Walker, D. of C.; F. Matthews, W.S.; Young, Organist; C. T. Speight, Tyler. The W.M., Bro. G. T. Barr, then commenced his year of office by initiating Mr. Moore into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry, which ceremony he very ably delivered. The next business was that of presenting a Past Master's jewel to Bro. Louis Stean, the first Master and one of the founders of the lodge, together with a handsomely framed illuminated testimonial on vellum. The inscription, which was written in a most complimentary vein, was signed by every member of the lodge, and, in presenting it, the W.M. said: As the first W.M. he (Bro. Stean) had gained the respect and admiration of every member for his great courtesy and his unceasing endeavours to do everything for the good of Freemasonry. He (Bro. Barr) felt very delighted at having such a Past Master to whom he could look for every support. It gave him extreme pleasure to present his Bro. Stean with such a handsome jewel and address, which had been voted to him by the lodge in recognition of his high worth and for the valuable services rendered. Bro. Stean, in feeling terms, thanked the brethren, and said he felt proud and honoured to be so esteemed. He had always striven to do his best to make the lodge second to none in the Craft. He had received able support from the officers. He was very grateful for the jewel, and felt very proud of it, but he must own he felt more proud of the testimonial, as many of his friends, who could not for obvious reasons be present at the lodge, would see it elsewhere. He concluded by congratulating the lodge on its great success, knowing nothing to prevent the continuance of the same, and thanking the brethren for the kind support they had always given him. The lodge was then closed. After the banquet, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. Bro. W. Clarke, P.M., Prov. G.D. of C. Norfolk (in the absence of Bro. Terry), eloquently responded on behalf of the "Masonic Charities," and in the course of his remarks, said that in the long list of toasts generally honoured there was none more deserving than that of the Charities. He regretted the absence of his esteemed Bro. Terry, who he could but poorly represent. He (Bro. Clarke) had a great admiration for the three Masonic Institutions, there being, he thought, scarcely a choice between them. If he had a leaning towards one, more than another, it was to the old people's Institution. He deemed it a very grand thing to have such an Institution, where brethren in the decline of life, suffering from all sorts of infirmities, could look forward to, to spend their last days, should adversity beset them. It is a pleasure to assist such a deserving Institution, for no one knows but what he may at some time require its assistance. At the conclusion of Bro. Clarke's address, which was warmly applauded, the charity box was passed around with good results.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The regular monthly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 4th inst., which was very scantily attended, no doubt owing to the severity of the weather. Bro. Braham, W.M., presided, assisted by the following: Bros. Ashley, P.M. and P.P.G.J.W. Treasurer; T. Brown, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W.; Rubie, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W.; F. Wilkinson, I.P.M. and P.P.G.S.W.; Moutrie, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W.; Peel Floyd, P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. 43 and 958, P.P.G.S.W. Warwickshire, S.W.; Hunt, J.W.; Radway, Secretary; Murlis as S.D.; Mercer, J.D.; W. L. Baldwin, Org.; Holmes, I.G.; Peach, Steward; and Bigwood, Tyler. There were several visitors, among them Bro. Howes, W.M. 906. The lodge was opened at a quarter to eight. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. H. L. Brown was examined, entrusted, and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree. The candidate was re-admitted and raised to the rank of M.M. by the W.M. The traditional history was given by Bro. Moutrie; the symbolism of the working tools was explained by Bro. Mercer; and the charge was given by the S.W. The lodge was resumed in the Second and then in the First Degree. The Secretary read the bye-laws in accordance with regulations. He also brought up a report from the Permanent Committee, several meetings of which had been held in reference to a revision of the old form of ritual used in this lodge, when certain alterations had been agreed upon, which would be adopted in due course. Bro. Ashley supplemented the report by a statement that he and other old P.M.'s had jealously guarded and maintained all the distinguishing peculiarities of the old ritual, and that the changes were chiefly in regard to forms of expression. A candidate for initiation was proposed, and other private business was transacted. The lodge was closed at a quarter to ten.

SUNDERLAND.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 94).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Freemason-street, on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at 6.30 p.m. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Frampton, supported by many eminent P.M.'s and visitors. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. Bros. Dobbing and Innes were examined, and giving satisfaction, they retired. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when they were re-admitted and made F.C. Masons. The Installing Master, Bro. Frampton, proceeded with the ceremony. Bro. Dr. John Potts was presented to the W.M. by Bro. Pearson, P.M., to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The Secretary read the ancient charges, to all of which Bro. Potts gave his unqualified assent. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, when the ceremony of installation was completed in a highly Masonic manner. The lodge was closed to the First Degree. The W.M. then installed the following brethren: Bros. Frampton, I.P.M.; Sutherst, S.W.; Smart, J.W.; Riseborough, Treas.; Stiles, Sec.; Hudson, S.D.; Wilson, J.D.; Whinham, Org.; Burns, I.G.; Somerville and Craven, Stewards; and Brown, Tyler. All business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom.

MAIDSTONE.—Belvedere Lodge (No. 503).—The annual festival of this lodge was celebrated on Tuesday last, the 9th inst., and more than ordinary interest was manifested in the event from the fact that the worthy and respected Town Clerk of Maidstone, Bro. Herbert Monckton, was to be installed into the chair by his brother, Bro. John Braddick Monckton, Town Clerk of London, who has for many years taken an immense interest in the Craft, and especially the numerous Charities connected with it. The ceremony of installation took place at the Town Hall, kindly granted for the occasion, where a goodly number of the members of the Belvedere and other lodges in the province assembled. Amongst those present were Bros. J. R. Foord, W.M.; J. B. Monckton, Installing Master; H. Monckton, S.W.; Piper, J.W.; C. G. Long, S.D.; Reader, J.D.; Nicholson, I.G.; Rev. T. Robinson, 709, P.P.G.S.W.; G. Allen, 144; W. H. Parsons, 1373; H. Gillespie, 1725; G. Naylor, 20; J. W. Menpes, 1725; and the following Past Masters and brethren of the Belvedere Lodge, 503: Bros. J. S. Ancomb, R. G. Pike, R. Sargent, J. Hunt, J. H. Clarke, J. Cruttenden, H. Cruttenden, Chittenden, Waller, R. T. Tatham, T. Wells, G. Baker, G. F. Baker, Thornhill, Shrubsole, Gray, and others. The ceremony of installation was most impressively performed by Bro. Monckton, and the W.M., Bro. Herbert Monckton, having taken the chair, the formula was completed, and the following officers invested: Bros. Piper, S.W.; C. G. Long, J.W.; Reader, S.D.; Nicholson, J.D.; Cornell, I.G.; E. Page, Steward; Kite, Sec.; Harpur, Treas.; and Case, Tyler. A pleasing feature of the day's proceedings was the presentation to Bro. J. R. Foord of a handsome Past Master's jewel, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. J. R. Foord, Belvedere Lodge, No. 503, as a token of respect, Dec. 2, 1879." At the conclusion of the business of the day, the brethren adjourned to the Royal Star Hotel, where an excellent banquet had been prepared by the host, Bro. Keeley. About seventy sat down, under the presidency of the newly-installed Master, Bro. H. Monckton, who was supported on the left by his brother, the Town Clerk of London, and on the right by Bro. Foord, the I.P.M. The customary loyal toasts having been given from the chair, that of "The R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers" was coupled with the name of Bro. J. B. Monckton, who, in responding, spoke of the pleasure it had given him to undertake the ceremony of the installation of a brother in a double sense, and in his old mother lodge the Belvedere. Referring to the Officers of Grand Lodge, he said they were a worthy body of men, and excellent examples of what Grand Officers should be. The toast of "The R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale," was most enthusiastically received, as was also that of "Bro. Eastes, and the Officers of the Province." The toast of "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Monckton," was entrusted to Bro. Wells, P.M., and received with great enthusiasm. The Worshipful Master, in responding, thanked the proposer for the flattering terms of his speech, and the brethren for the manner in which they had received it. Having referred in appreciative terms to the ceremony of his installation, he ventured to suggest that in the coming year of political strife, although politics were strictly excluded from their meetings, the younger members of the lodge should not allow any feelings of strife to interfere with the harmony and brotherly feelings of Masonry. The toast of "The Past Masters of the Belvedere Lodge" was responded to by Bro. Foord; that of "The Treasurer" (in the absence of Bro. Harpur), by Bro. Swinfen; and of "The Secretary" by Bro. Kite, who referred to his long connection with the lodge, and the pleasure it gave him to again serve them as Secretary. "The Health of the Visitors" was given by the worthy W.M., and the Rev. Bro. Robinson, in an impressive speech, spoke of the excellent principles which Freemasonry was designed to promote. Founded on the volume of the sacred law, it taught them their duty to God and their neighbour, and led them to respect one another in the different positions into which God had called them. "The Health of the Wardens and Officers" concluded the toast list. The pleasure of the evening, we should state, was greatly enhanced by the excellent programme of music given by Messrs. Rhodes and Moulden, of Canterbury Cathedral, assisted by Miss Nelly McEwen.

STOURPORT.—Vernon Lodge (No. 560).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the lodge room at the Swan Hotel, on Tuesday, the 2nd inst. The lodge was opened in due form by the retiring W.M., Bro. J. T. Meredith, 377 and 560, P.G.A.D.C., who was well supported by the following officers and brethren: Bros. Stokes, 252, P.P.S.G.W.; Fitzgerald, P.P.S.G.D.; George Taylor, P.M. and Treasurer 377, and P.S.G.D.; E. A. Broome, P.P.G.P.; George Grosvenor, P.P.G.R.; J. Blundell, P.M. and Treasurer 560, P.P.G.R.; Buck, 280, P.G. Supt. Wks.; Hilary Hill, P.M. 280; McCandless, W.M. 377; T. Pike, W.M. 1204; Stinger, 377;

Ryder, 1792; and others. The W.M. elect, Bro. George Whitfield Naylor, was presented for the benefit of installation by Bro. George Taylor, P.M., and was inducted into the chair of King Solomon in an impressive manner by Bro. J. T. Meredith, the retiring W.M. At this stage the lodge was honoured by the presence of the R.W.P.G.M., Sir Edmund Lechmere, and he having taken the chair, was received by the brethren with royal honours. The R.W.P.G.M. having desired the W.M. elect to resume his chair, the remainder of the ceremony was performed by Bro. George Taylor, P.M., and has seldom been given in a more earnest and impressive manner. The lodge listened with the greatest attention, and Bro. Taylor, at the conclusion of the ceremony, and after lodge had been closed, was warmly congratulated, this being the first time that he had acted as Installing Master. The W.M., Bro. Naylor, then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year, the usual instructions and a few appropriate remarks being made to each by Bro. Fitzgerald, P.P.S.G.D.: Bros. Robert Blundell, S.W.; Comber, J.W., pro. tem., in the absence in Ireland of J. Ormsby, J.W.; Danks, S.D.; Vale, J.D.; H. Preen, I.G. (pro. tem.); J. Blundell, Treasurer; J. T. Meredith, Secretary; and Mills, Tyler. The brethren then, in celebration of the feast of St. John, adjourned to a choice banquet presided over by the W.M. After the usual loyal and the earlier Masonic toasts had been given and honoured, the W.M. rose and proposed "The Health of their distinguished guest, the R.W.P.G.M. of Worcestershire, Sir Edmund Lechmere." He said the Vernon Lodge was exceedingly gratified by the visit of their P.G.M., which was the more pleasant because totally unexpected. The W.M. believed that this was the first occasion of Sir Edmund coming to Stourport since Provincial Grand Lodge had been held there, and he considered it as a great compliment to him, and to the lodge, that he had attended this installation. He hoped that the R.W.P.G.M. would be able to come and see the working of the lodge on an ordinary occasion, for it was his desire to have plenty of work during the coming year, and he hoped to do that work well, for he knew that his officers would give him the heartiest support, and thus they trusted to be always ready should the P.G.M. do them the honour to come and see them again unexpectedly. It was a great encouragement to the brethren to see the interest their R.W.P.G.M. was taking in Masonry and in every individual lodge in the province. The R.W.P.G.M., in responding, expressed the pleasure it gave him to meet the brethren, and to visit the Vernon Lodge. He stated that although his visit had been made without any notice, he was pleased to find the lodge so strongly represented. He intended thus to visit lodges at all times throughout the province; he only regretted that his numerous engagements had prevented his being present in lodge during the first part of the interesting ceremony performed that day, but from what he had seen of the working of the lodge he had derived great pleasure. He wished especially to allude to the impressive manner in which Bro. Taylor had performed the concluding portion of the installing ceremony, which must have afforded great satisfaction and delight to the brethren. The R.W.P.G.M. having proposed "The Health of the newly-elected W.M.," the toast of "The Visitors" was next duly honoured, and after the Tyler's toast the brethren separated.

SUNDERLAND.—Williamson Lodge (No. 949).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the St. Stephen's School, on Monday, the 9th inst., at 7.30 p.m. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Eggleston; supported by many able P.M.'s. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. Bros. Lackenby and Burlinson, candidates for the Second Degree, were examined, and giving satisfaction, they retired. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Lackenby and Burlinson were regularly admitted and made F.C. Masons. Bro. Thompson, a candidate for the Third Degree, was examined, and retired. The lodge was raised to the Third Degree, when Bro. Thompson was admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. The lodge was regularly reduced to the First Degree. "Hearty good wishes" from Bro. Sears, W.M. of the Emulation Lodge, 299, Dartford. All business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom.

ROMILY.—Oakwood Lodge (No. 1126).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Stock Dove Inn on Thursday, the 27th ult. There were present Bros. T. Wilkinson, acting W.M.; R. Ballantine, S.W.; Jno. Gray, J.W.; Jas. Hartley, Treas.; Robt. Gray, Sec.; J. Mitchell, S.D.; H. Woodall, J.D.; T. Booth, acting I.G.; J. Denneley, Tyler; W. Greig, Henry Howard, R. Wilkinson, P.M.; Saml. Howe, John Plant, Geo. H. Jackson, G. A. Robinson, P.M.; and visitors: Bros. H. Howard, P.M. 1126, P.P.G.J.D. Cheshire; Drinkwater, Jno. Beech, P.M. 361, P.P.G. Purst. Cheshire; and R. R. Lienden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at seven o'clock with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Geo. H. Jackson being ready and willing to take his Second Degree was interrogated, and having very satisfactorily answered withdrew. The lodge was then raised to the Second Degree, and on the re-admission of Bro. Johnson he was passed to the Degree of a F.C. by the W.M. The manner in which this ceremony was performed by the W.M. and his officers reflects the greatest credit to the lodge. This being the usual night for the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, the usual proceedings were gone through, which resulted in favour of Bro. R. Ballantine for the first-named honour; Bro. Hartley for the second (re-elected); and Bro. Denneley for the third (re-elected). Bro. Ballantine briefly thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him. After some discussion as to the fixtures for a lodge of emergency and the St. John's Festival, the lodge was lowered to the First Degree.

"Hearty good wishes" having been expressed by the visitors, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 8.20. The brethren afterwards sat down to supper, but some of them, ourselves amongst the number, having to return to Manchester by the 8.54 train, prevented further particulars being noted.

SUDBURY.—Stour Valley Lodge (No. 1224).—The eleventh anniversary of this lodge and installation of the Worshipful Master took place at the Masonic Hall, Market-hill, on Friday, the 5th inst. The brethren assembled at four o'clock, and the lodge having been opened, Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, the highly esteemed D.P.G.M. Suffolk, and P.G. Chaplain of England, and Immediate Past Master, most impressively performed the ceremony of installation, Bro. Robt. E. Jones, S.W., being duly installed in "the chair of King Solomon," with all the ancient rites and ceremonies, "proclaimed in the north, south, east, and west," and saluted in ancient form by the assembled brethren. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. H. C. Canham, S.W.; S. Spurgin, J.W.; E. R. Boulter, S.D.; Geo. Murrells, J.D.; T. Ardley, I.G.; J. F. Hills, P.P.G.J.W., Treas.; F. Wheeler, P.P.G. Reg., Sec.; W. H. Smith, D.C.; H. Welham, P.M., Steward; and H. M. Sholl, Tyler. Bro. Lieut. J. S. De Beauvoir Yelloly, R.N., was balloted for, and elected a joining member. Mr. Christie E. Mauldon and Mr. F. E. Dunn were next balloted for, elected, and duly admitted into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The ceremonies were well worked by the newly-installed W.M., a charge being afterwards delivered by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, I.P.M. Additional interest was attached to the initiations, the two candidates having been recently elected Town Councillors. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren, to the number of thirty, adjourned from "labour to refreshment" to a banquet at the Rose and Crown Hotel, splendidly served up by Mrs. Hansell. The usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to, the names of the W.M., Bro. Jones, who presided, and Bro. H. C. Canham, S.W., vice-chairman, being most cordially received, as well as the Installing Officer, Bro. Martyn, and the newly-initiated Masons. The remainder of the evening was most pleasantly spent in harmony and good fellowship, the gathering having been one of the most successful the lodge has ever had. Besides those mentioned above the following members of the lodge were present:—Bros. W. L. Lewis, A. Boggis, F. W. Gee, E. Flowerday, C. N. Row, C. W. Grimwood, S. Cooper, G. F. Swain, N. Aprile, C. Emmerson, P.M.; G. H. Grimwood, P.M.; C. J. Cardinal, and A. Grimwood. Visitors: Bros. A. Peacock, P.M. Temple Lodge, 118; C. Cooke, W.M.; J. W. Collins, S.W., P.G. Chaplain Suffolk; T. Stokoe, Sec.; T. Klamborowski, J.W., all of the Royal Clarence Lodge, 1823, Clare; J. B. King, Egyptian, 27; and W. H. L. Jones, Royal St. Edmunds, 1008.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—On Saturday last, the 6th inst., the regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in the large room of the Conservative Club, Miles Platting. The lodge was opened in due form, and with solemn prayer at 3.30 p.m., by Bro. Wm. Cox, W.M., assisted by the officers of the lodge. The following brethren were present: Bros. J. E. Iff, S.W.; J. Taylor, J.W.; A. Yaxley, S.D.; W. Nicholson, J.D.; A. Hebden, I.G.; M. Hyams and A. B. Goodchild, Stewards; Chas. Beswick, Tyler; W. H. Flynn, J. Cooper, R. Nelson, F. Kingston, W. A. Barton, G. H. Needle, P.M.; T. Tyers, P.M.; S. Needham, P.M.; and visiting Bros. F. H. Dale, 1773; J. Greenup, S.W. 581; J. W. Hester, 1011; John Rogers, 1219; Chas. Ray, 152; J. Howarth, 1392; M. Davies, 667; J. S. Leach, 1077; E. J. Cummins, W.M. 1459; T. Heap, W.M. 1077; H. Darbyshire, P.M., acting W.M. 681; H. Lister, P.M. 1011; W. Dumville, P.M. 1011; J. Kinder, P.M. 387; E. Everatt, 1077; A. B. Everatt, 1045; Robt. Leach, W.M. 1219; W. H. Anderson, P.M. 1161. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and duly confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the W.M. requested Bro. Robt. Caldwell, P.M., P.G.S.B. E.L., Installing Master, to proceed with the ceremony of installation, which was very ably performed by that distinguished and able brother, assisted by Bros. Cox and Needham, Past Masters of the lodge. The officers for the past year were in each case advanced to the higher position, except the Secretary (resigned), when Bro. J. H. Hall was invested to the important office. The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer at 6 o'clock. At 6.30 the brethren sat down to a banquet provided by Bro. Johnson, and ably served up by a numerous staff of efficient assistants. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M., Bro. J. E. Iff, who also presented the I.P.M., Bro. Wm. Cox, with a gold Past Master's jewel as a slight recognition of the many services rendered to the lodge. The presentation was with much feeling acknowledged by Bro. Cox. The toast of "The Visiting Brethren" was very neatly proposed by one of the Past Masters, and responded to by most of the visiting brethren. A very interesting programme was gone through by the following musical brethren: Bros. Wm. Dumville, P.M. 1011; H. Lister, P.M. 1011; Chas. Turner, W. Nicholson, S.D. 1458; pianist, J. Howarth, O. 1392, and the brethren, after spending a most enjoyable evening, retired at 10.30 p.m.

MANCHESTER.—Ashbury Lodge No. 1459.—The installation meeting of this thriving lodge was held at the Justice Birch Hotel, West-street, Gorton, on Wednesday, the 26th ult. The following brethren were present: Bros. Thos. Hughes, W.M.; E. Cummings, S.W.; S. N. Newton, J.W.; P. F. Brownridge, I.P.M.; Edwin J. Reynolds, Sec.; John Gallagher, P.M., D. of C.; Jas. Abbott, Treas.; Joseph Meadows, Tyler; and Chas.

Aspinall, P.M.; Jas. Wright, Jos. Worwald, W. Drabble, and John Storey. Visitors: Bros. Peter Royle, M.D., P.M. 44, 1357, 300, 64, P.P.S.G.D. of C.; Benj. Taylor, P.M. 935, Prov. G. Treas., E.L.; Henry Johnson, 935; John Greenup, S.W. 581; Abr. Pemberton, 1030; Wm. Parker, W.M. 993; Jno. Jenison, late 1054; W. Sturm, W.M. 1161; J. Bonehill, P.M. 152, 277; J. Hukey, W. Hoyland, W.M. 1083; Dr. Walls, 1219; Jos. Greenwood, 852; John Bird Sumner, 163; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at three o'clock with prayer, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. Bro. John Gallagher (Installing Master) then introduced the W.M. elect, Bro. E. Cummings, and after the usual preliminaries and the retirement of the M.M.'s a Board of Past Masters was formed, and Bro. Cummings was duly installed Worshipful Master of the Ashbury Lodge for the ensuing year. On the re-admission of the brethren Bro. John Gallagher proclaimed the fact of Bro. Cummings having been installed W.M. of the lodge, and the customary salutations were given. Bro. Benj. Taylor, Prov. G. Treas., next proceeded to invest the newly appointed officers as follows: Bros. John H. Newton, S.W.; Jas. Wright, J.W.; Beeston (by deputy), S.D.; W. Harvey, J.D.; Roberts (by deputy), I.G.; John Gallagher, P.M., D. of C. (re-appointed); Benj. Abbott, Treas. (re-appointed); and Jos. Meadows, Tyler (re-appointed). The addresses were given to the W.M. by Bro. Thos. Hughes, I.P.M., and to the Wardens and brethren by Bro. Benj. Abbott. At the conclusion of the installation ceremony "Hearty good wishes" were expressed by the visitors, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 5 o'clock. The St. John's Festival had been arranged to take place at Belle Vue Gardens, and an omnibus was all ready waiting to convey the brethren thereto. The general arrangements of the banquet, and the manner in which it was served, reflected great credit on Bro. Jenison, who is one of the proprietors of the gardens. As soon as the appetites of the brethren had been satisfied, and "Grace after meat" had been said, the W.M. proposed "The Health of H.M.G.M. the Queen, their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," which was enthusiastically received, and loyally responded to. The toasts of "Bros. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Prov. Grand Master, and the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M.," followed, and were suitably acknowledged. In response to the toast of "The R.W.P.G.M. of East Lancashire, Bro. Col. Le Gendre Nicholas Starkie," Bro. Peter Royle, M.D., said it gave him great pleasure to reply to this toast inasmuch as he was glad to notice the cordiality with which it had been received. They all knew, at least all those who had seen and heard Col. Starkie at the Provincial Grand Lodge meeting in Salford knew, the great interest that their Prov. G. Master took in all Masonic matters relating to the Province of East Lancashire. Their province held the proud position of being the largest in the world, and there was nothing that Col. Starkie felt more proud of than in being at its head, and he (Bro. Royle) felt sure that the Provincial Grand Master would be pleased to hear of the prosperity of the Ashbury Lodge. Bro. Benj. Taylor, Prov. G. Treas., in responding to the toast of "Bro. Geo. Mellor, W.D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers," said it was a matter of regret to him that their Dep. Prov. G. Master was not present, as it would have been gratifying to him to witness the completeness with which the arrangements had been carried out. He had not the honour of visiting the Ashbury Lodge before that day, but he felt that the loss was his, and he thought that it was something for them to be proud of in being able to produce amongst their numbers brethren who were capable of performing an installation ceremony without having to go outside their own lodge for assistance, and in thanking them for the cordial reception they had given him he wished the lodge every success. Bro. Thos. Hughes in proposing the toast of their "Worshipful Master, Bro. E. Cummings," expressed his pleasure at being privileged in so doing, and also in having to retire from the chair in favour of their present W.M. He felt sure that there would be no superior, if any equal, to their Worshipful Master, and that so far as prompting was concerned he felt quite certain Bro. Cummings would never require it, as he had nothing to learn, and whatever he undertook would be done in a thoroughly earnest and satisfactory manner. In concluding his remarks Bro. Hughes said he had no doubt the brethren of the Ashbury Lodge thoroughly appreciated their W.M., and he would ask them to drink his health in a bumper. The toast was responded to in such a hearty and genuine manner that made apparent the correctness of the I.P.M.'s remarks. The W.M. in reply, said he thanked Bro. Hughes and the brethren very kindly for the hearty manner in which they had received the toast, and remarked that in holding the proud position to which they had that day installed him, he felt that his humble efforts while filling the various offices in the lodge, commencing at the bottom of the ladder, had at last brought him to the top, and he trusted his younger brethren would, when elected to any office, persevere with earnest endeavours to attain the same position as he now occupied. The W.M. in proposing "The Health of their I.P.M., Bro. Hughes, and the Past Masters of the Lodge," said it afforded him great gratification to present him, in the name of the lodge, with a gold Past Master's jewel as a proof of the respect and esteem in which he was held by them all. The jewel, which was of eighteen-carat gold, and bore an appropriate inscription, was handed round for the inspection of the brethren, and afterwards pinned on the breast of Bro. Hughes by the W.M. The I.P.M. in a few well chosen sentences thanked the brethren for their gift. Bros. Moores and Gallagher responded for the Past Masters. Other toasts followed, and the intervals between each were enlivened by some thoroughly good-fellows and solos, executed by Bros. Turner, Fielding, and Ellis, while Bro. Miller proved himself an able accompanist. The brethren separated at eleven o'clock. We had almost forgotten to state that during the evening a letter was read from Bro. Hall, a P.M. of the lodge, and now residing in South Africa, expressing "Hearty good wishes" to the W.M. and all the members of the lodge. Bro. Hall is universally esteemed by the brethren, and during his presidency proved himself one of the best workers in the province.

WOOLSTON.—Clasentum Lodge (No. 1461).—Bro. R. R. L. Rosoman, the re-elected W.M. of this lodge (so called after the Roman station, now named Bitterne, which it embraces), was re-installed on the 3rd inst., the duty, in the absence of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Hickman, being ably discharged by Bro. W. Bowyer, the Secretary, and a Past Master of the lodge, in the presence of a goodly number of brethren, including Bros. J. T. Bowyer, Brown, Wilson, Lonney, Dr. Symonds, Dr. Turner, Capt. Ward, Capt. Martin, R.N., P.M.; Williams; the Rev. Leigh, Chaplain Isaac Newton Lodge, Cambridge; Bone, W.M. 394; Rev. Scott, P.P.G. Chaplain; T. P. Payne, P.M. 130; S. S. Pearce, P.M. 1780; Crew, Treas. 1112; and Parkinson, W.M. elect 1112; letters of apology for inability to attend being read from the Worshipful Masters of Lodges 130 and 359. The W.M., following the compliment paid to himself by the lodge, both for his zeal in promoting its efficiency and usefulness and for his great interest in the work of erecting a Masonic hall at Woolston, the arrangements for which are now nearly complete, re-appointed his officers as follow:—Bros. G. J. Tilling, I.P.M.; Capt. R. W. Evans, S.W.; W. H. Chapman, J.W.; Rev. W. S. French, Chap.; E. A. Andrews, Treas.; Walter Bowyer, P.M., Sec.; J. Methven, S.D.; J. C. Stroud, J.D.; E. Waters, D.C.; W. Fowler, Org.; D. O. Hobbs, I.G.; R. Scovell and F. Ekless, Stewards; and Vane and Morten, Tylers. A candidate having been initiated, before the lodge closed a unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the W.M. for his services during the past year. Bro. Capt. T. H. M. Martin, R.N., P.M., in making the proposition, alluded to the great exertions of Bro. Rosoman, as well as to his munificent donations towards erecting the Masonic hall for the brethren, which, it is confidently expected, will be built during the year now begun; a letter from Bro. Tankerville Chamberlayne being read, intimating his willingness to transfer a piece of land for the purpose forthwith. A banquet, well served by Mr. Penny, was afterwards held at Woolston College, at which the usual Masonic toasts were honoured, and a very pleasant evening spent.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The regular monthly meeting of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., Bro. W. T. Turner, W.M., in the chair. The following were also present:—Bros. W. Vance, S.W.; W. Burgess, J.W. pro tem.; J. Ives, P.M., Sec.; E. West, P.M., Treas.; J. A. Elder, S.D.; W. G. Holloway, D.C.; M. Sherwin, Org.; W. Mill, A. Ives, C. Guy, W. Mitchell, T. Tollurst, F. Phillips, M. Kaul, G. Brighthouse, J. C. Smith, 1744; and C. Jolly (Freemason). The business before the lodge consisted of the passing of Bros. Mitchell and Brightmore, and the raising of Bro. A. Ives, both ceremonies being ably worked by the W.M. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a cold collation. Upon re-assembling round the social board the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which having been honoured, Bro. West, P.M., briefly proposed the toast of "The W.M.," who as briefly responded. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. Smith and Jolly, and then, in reply for "The Past Masters," Bro. Ives spoke eloquently of the duties attached to the office of Past Master, which were not to be passed through without earnest work and unflinching zeal, but to be so exalted by example as to make it not only worthy of them but adjuncts to the prosperity of the lodge and the happiness of the brethren. They had an example of what could be done by a working Past Master in the sacred cause of charity in the person of their I.P.M., Bro. Manning, who had undertaken to stand Steward for the lodge at the coming festivals, and he, by his perseverance and the assistance of the lodge, had got upwards of £50, and meant to double it before the time came to give an account of his Stewardship. He concluded a speech full of eloquence by asking them all to assist the Past Masters and the W.M. in ruling and governing the lodge and in the grand work of aiding the Masonic Charities. After a few words from Bro. West, Bro. Vance responded for "The Officers," and the Tyler's toast concluded a very pleasant and instructive gathering.

BOOTLE.—Bootle Lodge (No. 1473).—The foremost of the lodges in the neighbourhood of Liverpool, that which meets at the Town Hall, Bootle, gathered on Thursday, the 4th inst., at headquarters, and more than usual interest attached to the proceedings on this occasion, as was evinced by the large and highly influential attendance. Bro. W. H. Clemmey, W.M., presided, and among those present were Bros. J. F. Newell, P.G.S.W. (ex-Mayor of Bootle); J. P. M'Arthur, P.M. (Mayor of Bootle); Councillor S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B.; J. Pemberton, P.P.G.S. of W.; J. Houlding, P.G.S., P.M. 823; R. Roberts, P.M. 1473; A. Woolrich, W.M. 1356, and others. The chief interest of the meeting centred in the fact that Alderman H. Musker was initiated into the Order, and the ceremony was most efficiently performed by the W.M. (Bro. Clemmey), assisted by the officers of the lodge. At the banquet which followed the business of the evening, Bro. Newell, in responding for "The P.G.M. and P.G. Officers," spoke in terms of strong condemnation of the action taken by the Liverpool Town Council in connection with the regulations for balls at the Town Hall. In the course of an admirable speech, he stated that the result of the action of the Council, would be the crippling of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institutions to a very large extent. Bro. R. Roberts, P.M., proposed "The Charities," and made a specially forcible appeal on behalf of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. He said: W.M. and brethren, the toast which I have the honour to bring before you has reference to a subject which I am pleased to say always raises the most satisfactory feelings in the breast of every true Freemason. The outside world is prone to say that our meetings are merely convivial gatherings, devoted to much eating and drinking, and where we indulge in songs of doubtful character; and our lodges are suspected to be the hatching places of many social and political plots. The idea is scouted of an universal brotherhood, undisturbed by differences of politics and creed, and bound together by the closest ties of friendship for purposes of good and benevolence. And while the greater part of our system is to them shrouded in mystery, yet one part which is made visible to the world always commands their respect, and is to us a perennial source of pride. I refer, as you may guess, to our extensive and excellently managed Charitable Institutions. The particular Charity whose claims I am permitted to advocate in this lodge is the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. Most of you know of the incalculable benefits which this Institution has already conferred on the children of our less fortunate brethren; of the valuable work it is at present doing; and I am sure that we all have the sincerest desire that its usefulness may continue to increase. When on former occasions I have had the pleasure of bringing this subject before you, you have unfailingly responded with generosity. I am pleased to see so many eminent brethren here to-night—eminent in Masonry and eminent in many things besides—and I think, my brethren of this lodge, you cannot signalise such an important meeting in a better way than by making such a subscription as will endow four or five of the officers of the lodge with Life Governorships for ever in the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. Brethren, there are many noble Charities besides those connected with Freemasonry, some of them with palatial homes, glorious with magnificent architecture, erected on expensive sites, and managed by well-paid secretaries and numerous assistants. When we are requested to subscribe to such an institution we cannot help a vague feeling creeping over us that not all that we give is expended in real charity. But, brethren, when we are quite certain that every penny we give will go direct to the purpose for which it is intended, that the finances are administered by good and prudent and experienced men, who make their work a labour of love, that not a single farthing is expended on paid officers, but the whole of the work done by trusty volunteers, then, brethren, we may give the utmost freedom to our generous impulses, and dip our hands as deeply into our pockets as we can possibly afford. Brethren, I truly hope you will to-night exceed your usual generosity. Most of you have had some blessing bestowed upon you during the year which is now so near its close; let your subscriptions be in the shape of thank offerings. If God has blessed you with good health; if you have been mercifully restored from sickness; if you have been fortunate in your business; if your worldly store has been increased by any good luck or windfall; if no clouds have shadowed your domestic or private life; if you have been made the recipients of social or public or private honours, however much deserved, or if Providence has been bountiful to you in any way dear to your hearts—you cannot make a more fitting acknowledgment than by to-night making a thank offering on the altar of charity. Brethren, I ask you to drink "Success to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution." The toast was most enthusiastically received, and as the result of Bro. Roberts' eloquent appeal £15 was collected at the table, which, it is expected, will be increased to £20.

TEDDINGTON.—Sir Charles Bright Lodge (No. 1793).—This fairly prosperous provincial lodge met on the 29th ult. at the Teddington Assembly Rooms, Queen's-road. There were present amongst others Bros. John Hurst, P.G.A.P. Middx., W.M.; Forge, S.W.; Piller, J.W.; Fricker, Treas.; Fitt, Sec.; T. C. Walls, P.G. S.B. Middx., S.D. (Freemason); Goodchild, I.G.; Stevens, Org.; Gilbert, P.G.T., Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Elsam, P.P.G.D.C. Surrey, &c.; Cox, 41 (Ireland); and McIntyre, 144. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Mr. Henry Stedenfeld was duly initiated, and Bro. W. Philips passed to the Second Degree by the W.M. The election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler resulted unanimously in favour of Bros. Forge, Hurst, and Gilbert. The Audit Committee having been appointed and the bye-laws read, a Past Master's jewel, of the value of seven guineas, was unanimously voted to the retiring W.M. The correspondence, which had resulted in permission being given from Grand Lodge for the removal of this lodge from the Clarence Hotel to the Teddington Assembly Rooms, was then read. The lodge was directly afterwards closed and the brethren adjourned to the Clarence Hotel, where a substantial collation awaited them. In consequence of the prolonged proceedings of the lodge, the toasts and subsequent speeches at the dinner were, owing to the lateness of the hour, necessarily very brief and formal. They comprised "The Queen and Craft;" "The W.M.;" "The Initiate;" "The Visitors;" and "The Officers." Bro. Elsam responded fluently upon behalf of the visitors, and Bro. Forge, W.M. elect, said all that was necessary in his reply for the officers. The little time at the disposal of the brethren was agreeably devoted to conviviality, Bro. McIntyre, in particular, caused much mirth by his selection from "Our American Cousin," à la Sothorn.

INSTRUCTION.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1298).—This popular and prosperous lodge of instruction held its annual banquet at the Alwyne Castle, Saint Paul's-road, Canonbury, N., on Friday evening, the 28th ult., under the presidency of Bro. Edridge, Treasurer and P.M. 187. There was a large number of guests, and, with his usual forethought, the host, Bro. T. Meekham, had obtained an extension of hours for the accommodation of those assembled, in order that there should be no interruption to the harmony. It was a peculiarity that the toasts usually proposed were given in the ordinary way and without the usual Masonic honours, the gathering being understood to be simply a social one, though under the auspices of the instruction lodge of the Royal Standard. Their labours concluded, some members of the popular troupe of minstrels who have so long delighted the public at the Agricultural Hall attended, and their vocal effusions considerably enhanced the pleasure of the company. Messrs. Egbert Roberts, George Eustace, and C. Temple were specially applauded, and broke through the strict rule observed elsewhere by accepting encores. Bro. R. G. Thomas was the accompanist, and lent valuable assistance to the vocalists by the exercise of his musical skill.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Royal Edward Hotel, Mare-street, Hackney, on Wednesday, the 10th inst. Present: Bros. J. L. Payne, W.M.; J. Lorkin, S.W.; H. Forss, J.W.; F. Fleck, S.D.; W. Green, J.D.; W. Ferrar, I.G.; W. Fieldwick, Preceptor; J. Williams, Secretary; and several other brethren. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of passing was rehearsed. Bro. J. Williams, candidate, having answered the necessary questions, was passed to the Degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. J. Lorkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the 1st and 2nd Sections of the Lecture. The lodge was then opened up to the Third Degree, and closed down to the First Degree. Bro. J. Lorkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the 3rd and 4th Sections of the Lecture.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—The annual banquet of this excellent lodge of instruction took place on Friday evening, the 5th inst., at Bro. W. Tucker's house, the Lord Raglan, Plumstead, and under the presidency of the W.M. of the mother lodge, Bro. T. Hutton, was a most successful and enjoyable occasion. Among the company present were Bros. Rose, P.M. 73 and 1622; H. Syer, J.W. 13; R. A. Smith, J.D. 13; J. Elder, S.D. 1472; H. Gould, 1685; W. Burfield, 687; H. Mabbett, 913; W. Hill, 700; A. Joskey, 913; Bowley, 480 (S.C.); Walters, 166 (I.C.); G. Masters, C. Chasteneuf, H. Grice, A. Deans, W. Tailby, R. Martin, and W. Clements, all of No. 13; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The good things provided by Bro. Tucker in abundance having been discussed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Rose, whose fame as a Preceptor is recognised and acknowledged in this district, then proposed "The Health of the W.M. presiding," and, in reply, Bro. Hutton said he should be hard to please indeed if he was not pleased at the position he was in that night, and the reception of the toast of his health. He felt it an honour to preside over the mother lodge, and was proud to see so many of her children preparing themselves for the position that every good Mason desired to fill during his Masonic career. Unfortunately he was not so well acquainted with the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction as he should like to have been, but promised to give it his support in every way he could. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bros. Bowley, Walters, and Mabbett. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the evening, "Success to the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction." He said, although he was not very old, yet it was some years since he was initiated into Freemasonry. At that time there was no Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction. It certainly used to figure in the calendar as being held at the King's Arms, Woolwich, but had no existence in fact. Since he had been Master of a lodge, and while preparing for it, he knew the value of lodges of instruction, and unless the brethren attended them they could not expect to be placed in office in any lodge where good working was considered a sine qua non for a Master's position. There was a great discussion going on about "Uniformity of Working," and the previous Wednesday he listened to a long oration about it at Grand Lodge. He thought that so long as the great landmarks of Masonry were adhered to in their integrity, they would have nothing to fear on the question of informality in the ritual. He was sorry that Bro. Macdonald was too unwell to attend. Bros. Macdonald and Davies were the Preceptors of the lodge, and were worthily respected for their efforts in the cause of instruction. In their absence he should couple the toast with the name of Bro. Cleal, the Secretary of the lodge, who deserved their esteem for his indefatigable exertions for its prosperity and their comfort. Bro. Cleal, after thanking the brethren for the welcome given his name in the toast, proceeded to say that during the past year twenty-one new members had joined the lodge, and the attendance showed an average of 617, or an average of twelve members present every meeting night. They had, assisted by Bro. Rose, worked the Fifteen Sections, and Bro. Macdonald and Davies were satisfied at the progress made by the brethren who attended. Bro. Davies was at that time at the bed side of a sick brother, or he would have been present. In his name he thanked them for the toast. "The Health of Bro. Rose" was then drunk most enthusiastically, and that brother, in returning thanks, alluded to the very able and marked manner in which the brethren of the lodge answered the sectional questions. Several other toasts followed, and the harmony was well sustained throughout the whole of the proceedings.

Royal Arch.

ANDREW CHAPTER (No. 834).—On Thursday, the 20th ult., a convocation of this chapter was held at the Bell and Anchor Hotel, West Kensington Gardens, Hammersmith-road. The attendance was as usual good, and the chapter having been opened by the Principal, the installation of Comp. William Game, M.E.Z. elect, was then proceeded with. Afterwards Comp. Game had the ballot taken for Bro. George Harrison, of the Ranelagh Lodge, 834, and Bro. Charles Holland, of the Londesborough Lodge, 1681, which proved unanimous. These two brethren being present, they were introduced, and exalted in due form by the M.E.Z., Comp. W. J. Adamson giving the Mystic Lecture. There being no further business the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to a sumptuous dinner, provided by Comp. Millis, which gave great satisfaction to the guests, numbering about thirty. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to, after which the companions separated, having spent a most enjoyable evening.—West London Observer, Nov. 29th.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Holmesdale Chapter (No. 874).—One of those enjoyable Royal Arch meetings for which Tunbridge Wells has become justly famous was held on Monday, the 3rd ult., at the Pump Rooms, under the government of Comps. Wm. Stephens, M.E.Z.; W. Delves, H.; T. Hastings Miller, J.; B. S. Wilmot, P.Z., Treas.; R. W. Delves, Scribe E.; Montague Williams, Scribe N.; and several other companions not holding office. On this occasion all business was suspended, excepting the installation of Principals and investiture of officers. Immediately after the confirmation of the minutes the M.E.Z. proceeded to instal Comp. Williams as Third Principal of the chapter for the year ensuing, he being at the present time the W.M. of the Holmesdale Lodge. Comp. Wm. Delves was then installed M.E.Z. in an impressive manner by the Installing Officer. Comps. B. S. Wilmot was re-invested Treas.; R. W. Delves, Scribe E.; Langridge, Scribe N.; Holt, P. Soj.; and Bates and Goodall, Assistants. After the chapter was closed the companions were entertained at an excellent banquet in the ladies' drawing room of that establishment, the M.E.Z. presiding. After the usual loyal and customary toasts had been duly honoured, an especially pleasing and complimentary presentation was then made to the retiring M.E.Z., Comp. W. Stephens, consisting of an elegant P.Z.'s jewel, supplemented by a beautiful oak spirit case and stand, mounted with silver, and bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to Comp. W. Stephens, Prov. G. Dir. of Cer. Middx., P.Z. 862, 1365, and 1489, by the companions of the Holmesdale Chapter, 874, with a P.Z.'s jewel, as a mark of esteem and appreciation of his valuable services." His health was drunk in the most felicitous terms, and modestly responded to. Comp. H. Miller replied for "The Visitors," and complimented the chapter, not only for the reception he had received and the manner in which the duties were performed, but also on the splendour of the room, which he seldom, if ever, had seen equalled for carrying out the duties and ceremonies of Royal Arch Masonry. Letters of apology were read on the absence of several officers of the province.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (T.I.).—On Friday, the 28th ult., this old time immemorial lodge held a regular meeting at the Masonic Hall, under the direction of Bro. Rubie, W.M., who was supported by Bros. John Dutton, I.P.M.; Jas. J. Dutton, P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, Past G.J.W., P.M. 26 and 74, Chap.; C. Wilkinson, S.W.; Braham, J.W.; Murlis, Sec.; Radway, M.O.; Dingle, S.O.; F. Wilkinson, J.C.; Howes, Reg.; Mercer, S.D.; Penley, J.D.; Sparrow, Org.; Peach, I.G. The minutes having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bro. Knight, which proving favourable, by request of the W.M. the chair was taken by Bro. J. J. Dutton, by whom the ceremony of advancement was conducted, with musical accompaniments by the Organist and some of the brethren. The bye-laws were read by the Secretary. Dr. Hopkins read a letter from the Grand Secretary, from whom he had been requested to make inquiries about the apron, as the members of this old lodge claim the right to wear the Craft apron, in accordance with stipulations made at the time when it consented to be enrolled under the Grand Mark Lodge. The claim was admitted, but at the same time it was stated that the members could not demand admission as visitors to other Mark lodges unless clothed according to regulations, accompanied by the expression of a hope that all newly-advanced brethren would be required to conform to the present custom. No other business offering, the lodge was closed at 10 o'clock.

LIVERPOOL.—Walton Lodge (No. 161).—The members of this Mark lodge met at the Skelmersdale Hall on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., to assist at the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year. There was a poor attendance, partly, no doubt, owing to the cold, inclement weather. The members present were Bros. G. W. Hanmer, W.M., P.P.G.S.D. Lanc.; J. Chas. Lunt, W.M. elect, P.M. 161, P.P.G.M.O. Lanc.; W. Newsome, J.W. 161; Isaac Leccc, Sec.; Rev. Dr. Hyde, LL.D., P.M. 161, P.P.G.C. Lanc.; A. Moore, and M. Williamson, Tyler. Visitors: Bros. John Hayes, P.M. 65, P.P.J.D. Lanc.; W. Corbett, M.O. 65; and David Cangle, S. 65. Bro. John Hayes, P.M. 65, acted as Installing Master, and, in his usual and perfect manner, gave the beautiful ceremony, and installed Bro. J. C. Lunt in the chair in the E. The W.M., Bro. Lunt, then proceeded to invest his officers as follows —Bros. Newsome, S.W.; Leccc, J.W.; Townsend, M.O., by proxy; Lewis Peake, Treas., by proxy; Williamson: was re-elected Tyler. The W.M., Bro. Lunt, proposed, and Bro. Rev. Dr. Hyde seconded, that a cordial vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to Bro. John Hayes, P.M. 65, for the very efficient manner in which he had given the installing ceremony. The resolution having been unanimously agreed to, Bro. Hayes responded in suitable terms. One or two propositions for advancement were given in; "Hearty good wishes" from the visitors were expressed, and the lodge was then closed in due form. We cannot conclude this short report without wishing Bro. Jos. Chas. Lunt, W.M. 161, a successful year of office, and we hope that all Mark Masters in the north end of Liverpool, who meet at the well-appointed Skelmersdale Hall, will enthusiastically rally round him during this his second year in the chair of W.M. of this Mark lodge.

Knights Templar.

YORK.—Ancient Ebor Preceptory (No. 101).—At a meeting of this lodge on Tuesday last, the 9th inst., Sir Knight the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett was unanimously elected to the office of E.P., and E. Sir Knight T. B. Whythead was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. Comp. Major T. B. Shaw-Hellier (4th Dragoon Guards) was installed a Knight of the Order. E. Sir Knight A. M. Broadley, P.E.P. Melita Preceptory, was elected an honorary member.

Royal Ark Mariners.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Solent Lodge.—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 26th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Bugle-street, when Bro. J. Blount Thomas was duly installed as Commander N. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was ably and impressively performed by the I.P.N., Bro. W. J. Hickman. The following brethren were appointed officers by the Commander N.: Bros. R. Loveland Loveland J.; Geo. Cross, S.; G. J. Tilling, S.D.; F. H. McCalmont, J.D.; P. Warren, Treas. and S.; J. R. Weston, D.C.; and J. C. Stroud, G.

CONSECRATION OF THE LULLINGSTONE LODGE, No. 1837.

The consecration of the above lodge took place on Monday, the 1st instant, at the Lion Hotel, Farningham, Kent, in the presence of a large and distinguished circle of the Masons of Kent and the metropolitan district. The brethren began to assemble soon after eleven a.m., and by twelve o'clock the following were among those ready to take part in the ceremony: Bros. Eastes, P.M. 709, D.G.M. of Kent; A. M. Broadly, P.M. 1717, D.D.G.M. of Malta and Tunis; Rev. W. A. Hill, G. Chap. of England and Kent; H. Sadler, P.M. 147 and G. Tyler, England; Rev. Thos. Robinson, M.A., P.M. 88 and 709, and P.P.G.S.W. Kent, and P.P.G. Chap. Cambs; J. Harrison, P.M. 1096, and P.G. Chap. Kent; H. Moncton, P.M. 1225, and P.G.S.W. Kent; F. A. Gange, P.M. 133, and P.G.W. Kent; Flaxman Spurrell, P.M. 615, and P.P.G.J.W. Kent; F. Spencer, P.M. 1063, and G.J.D. Kent; J. R. Foord, W.M. 500, and P.G.S. Kent; J. W. Knight, P.M. 615, and P.P. G.D.C. Kent; H. S. Neate, P.M. 77, and P.G.S. Works Kent; E. Mackney, P.M. 299, and P.P.G.O. Kent; H. Batherst, P.M. 133, and P.P.G.R. Kent; W. Barlow, W.M. 77; W. H. Cronk, W.M. 144; W. Hicks, P.M. 483; Thomas Deane, P.M. 77; R. French, P.M. 483; E. R. Champion, S.W. 77; R. French, 77; W. Hills, I.G. 615; C. Buckland, I.G. 1536; H. Harding, Org. 1536; O. Hervey, J.W. 126; F. W. Underdown, J.W. 133; R. Sears, 299; W. Bedford, 77; J. Spurge, 77; A. Bunnett, 77; J. W. Gibson, 615; H. Biles, 615; Jas. Shrubsole, 503; H. Lawley, 299; C. Bishop, Org. 615; H. De Gray, 706; W. Taylor, 1536; P. Cheep, 1744; C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason); and others.

The lodge room presented a brilliant appearance when the brethren, after having been formed in procession, took their respective places in it. Bros. Eastes was in the chair of the W.M., Moncton in that of the S.W., Gange in the J.W. chair, Spencer as Secretary, and Sadler as Tyler.

Over the Master's chair was hung the banner of the lodge, bearing the arms of Bro. S. W. Hart Dyke, with this motto on it "Prêt a Faire" (Ready to do); this was a present from our worthy brother Sir William. The Bible and Tyler's sword were presented by the W.M. designate, Bro. George Churchley, P.M. 615; the bible cushion by the hostess of the house, Mrs. Haviland; the gauntlets of the W.M., S.W., and J.W. by Bro. Haviland; the Tracing Boards by Bro. G. G. Parker, Treas. designate; the lodge carpet by Bro. Boardman, J.W. designate; and the charity box by Bro. T. W. A. Neech, J.D. designate.

The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, grand honours were paid to Bros. Eastes and Broadly.

Bro. Eastes then said they were assembled for a most important purpose, that of consecrating a new lodge. That day another lodge was added to the roll of the lodges of the province over which their G.M., Lord Holmesdale, had so long and ably presided, and they would, as he did, regret their Master's absence from among them. Their brother had, however, requested him to instruct Bro. Robinson to perform the important ceremony of consecration, and at his hands nothing would be wanted to make the ceremony worthy of the occasion. He was not going to enter into a dissertation on Freemasonry, but he could not allow the occasion to pass without saying a few words on the matter. They would all agree with him that it was something worthy of congratulation to know that a new lodge was being opened, but then it must be taken into consideration as to whether there was any necessity for the opening of a new lodge. It was a most important question, and one that was only consented to by Grand Lodge after due and full consideration. It might be fairly asked, "Was the proposed lodge necessary, and what were its prospects?" Now, it was a very common thing for a brother to say, "My lodge is so far away I cannot attend; I wish I could join a lodge nearer." This lodge, which he considered a necessity for this part of the province, would be the means of affording relief for the brethren of this part of the district whose lodges were far away from their homes. If they looked at the map of Kent, and at the lodges in it, they would find that, while they had lodges at Chatham, Gravesend, Faversham, Ramsgate, Canterbury, Greenhithe on the one side, and at Sidcup, Dartford, and Plumstead on the other, the nearest lodge to the one they had met to consecrate was at Dartford, some five miles away; so that would show that this lodge was a necessity, so far as regards the particular district of the province in which it was situated. (Cheers.) Then, as to its prosperity, he had every reason, after looking at the list of petitioning brethren, to feel confident that with their assistance, and under the rule and governing of its officers designate, it would be a great success. He trusted it would be so, and wished it every success and prosperity. (Applause.)

Bro. Eastes then handed the gavel to Bro. Robinson, who proceeded to fulfil the beautiful ceremony of consecration, which, we need hardly say, was an effort worthy of his high and distinguished character as a divine and a Mason.

Bro. Hill then delivered the following magnificent oration. After a few preliminary remarks, congratulating the brethren of the lodge on the large and influential gathering of Masons who had assembled to assist at the consecration of their lodge, he said they had met to found another temple dedicated to piety and virtue, to brotherly love and charity—another spiritual house which will last when the most gorgeous palaces shall have passed away. The brethren of the Lullingstone Lodge will be stones of that spiritual edifice, here to be squared, and trimmed, and fitted for a place in the Grand Lodge above, after patient perseverance and repeated trials. It is usual on occasions like the present to offer a few words of encouragement to those who are preparing to carry out the principles of Masonic order, and to take note of the moral beauties of Masonry. So, then, while not adopting any stereotyped form, we can readily suggest grounds for congratulation. If impartially viewed, Masonry has not for its foundation a mere plausible, selfish platform of good fellowship and boon companionship. No, nor of mere almsgiving or charity, but its root rests on the purest and most disinterested friendship. It calls to do right in the sight of God, and more, it demands daily self improvement, with eternity in view, and a solemn adjudication in store, according to the deeds done in the body. It is universal in its operation and not sectarian in principle, and yet, though extending its branches throughout the world, it has its limitation, as regards associates and members. Not every man can be admitted, and if proper heed be taken, only "just and upright men of mature age, sound judgment, and strict morals" would be admitted. In the introductory address to the Third Lecture an explanation of these principles is given, which should be kept fresh in the memory. Every Degree in Freemasonry is progressive, and cannot be attained but by time, patience, and assiduity. In the First Degree we are taught the duties we owe to God, to our neighbour, and to ourselves. In the Second we are permitted to participate in the mysteries of nature and science, and to trace the goodness and majesty of the Creator, by minutely analysing his works. But the Third Degree is the cement of the whole; it is calculated to bind men together by mystic points of fellowship, as in a bond of fraternal affection and brotherly love. It points to the darkness of death, and the obscurity of the grave, as the forerunner of a brilliant light, which shall follow at the resurrection of the just, when these mortal bodies which have long been slumbering in the dust shall be awakened, re-united to their undying souls, and clothed in immortality. These principles evidently proclaim our Order as a handmaid of piety and virtue, and show that in Masonry there is nothing incompatible with our social, moral, or religious duties. Can it be just then to brand us with odious imputations, and to urge that our teaching leads to Atheism or Deism. We respond emphatically, "No." We are not of the number of those of whom the Scripture speaks as "fools," "The fool hath said in his heart there is no God." We all remember what a shock vibrated amongst us when tidings crossed the sea that the Grand Orient of France, under pretence of being unsectarian, and giving proper freedom of conscience, banished both the name and idea of God from its constitution. The result, on our part, was an open severance from all lodges so acting, and a repudiation of the infidelity proposed. Happily for us, the sacred law is the rule of our faith and practice; and where this is received not only does the moral law demand observance, but the revelation of mercy and love to fallen man gilds the present and future, and makes us realise the presence of an ark of refuge, in which we may pass in safety over the billows of time, and behold above life's wintry sea a "bright and morning star, whose rising brings hopes of happiness to the faithful and obedient of the human race." So then let none say that Masonry dishonours religion, or is opposed to Christianity, for it is not true. Through its teachings many have been led to adorn the Christian profession. A confirmation of this lately appeared in the public journals from the lips of an eloquent preacher, who, in referring to the progress of Masonry in Mexico, stated that the Bishop of the Happy Valley there had told him that Freemasonry had done more to promote the extension of the Gospel in Mexico than any other thing that had ever been introduced into the country. (Applause.) Well instructed Masons could not expect less than this; and, wounded as we have been through hasty words, we may derive strength from the conviction that our building is not based on sand, but founded on a rock. The tenets of our ancient brethren, while exhibiting them as large hearted, pure minded men, full of kindness and toleration for the opinions of others, yet manifest that they acted upon the principle, "Have thine own faith, but hope and pray for all." If the bases of Masonry did not distinctly lead to the present form of religion, why are we directed in Masonic study to the great parallels of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist; one the preacher of repentance and the forerunner of the Messiah, and the other the apostle of love? and why are our lodges dedicated to one or both of these worthies? Why, plainly that we may receive their virtues and profit by their good examples. The report made by Archbishop Parker to her Majesty Queen Elizabeth on the characteristics and society of the Freemasons of the 16th century, stating that "she had not in her dominions such a loyal, orderly, and religiously disposed body of men," shows that at that time our ancient brethren were, as now, loyal, religious, faithful, and true to the tenets of their faith and harmony. He then spoke of the uniformity question, and said let us use the old motto, Ande vide face, and while we do not insist upon a uniformity in words, let us decline to recognise any substantial defections from our ancient teaching. Let us hold fast to the fulfilment of the admonition, that in the performance of our duty to God and our neighbour hangs, or depends, all the law and the prophets, and in the consecrating of this new lodge, advocating and using the holy tools and sacred symbols, not lightly but reverently, and in a manner creditable to ourselves and acceptable to our God. We pray that the hearts of the brethren may be cheered, and knit together in holy friendship, as were the hearts of David and Jonathan in the days of old, for Jonathan "loved David as his own soul." He gave him his princely robe, his girdle, his sword, and his high position for his sake. Such real friendship, the friendship of abnegation and self sacrifice, yet exists among us, and casts a halo of brightness over us, and we rejoice to have received and personally experienced its glow. With sincere regard and affection and hearty good wishes we cordially, in the words of an ancient manuscript of the 15th century, say, "The might of the Father of Kings, with the wisdom of His glorious grace, through the grace and goodness of the Holy Ghost, these being three persons in one Godhead, be with us, and give us grace so to govern us here in this mortal life, that we may come to His kingdom that never shall have ending, 'so mote it be.'"

Bro. Hill's oration was listened to with rapt attention, and applauded by the brethren most warmly.

The ceremony was then continued, and the lodge having been duly constituted, Bro. Robinson proceeded with the installation of the W.M. designate, Bro. Churchly, and with the usual ceremonies that brother was placed in the chair of K.S. and duly saluted. The following officers were then invested: Bros. T. W. Knight, I.P.M. (we had almost forgotten to say that Bro. Knight acted as Director of Ceremonies throughout the ceremony in finished and perfect style); the Rev. R. Jamblin, M.A., Chaplain 299, S.W.; C. S. Boardman, I.G. 299, J.W.; G. Parker, Treas.; E. Mackney, P.M. 299 and P.P.G.O. Kent, Sec.; J. Fletcher, J.W. 615, S.D.; J. W. A. Neech, 299, J.D.; P. Jones, D.C.; R. G. Stone, I.G., Sec. 615, I.G.; J. Hutton, Steward; G. Martin, Tyler. Our reverend brother then delivered the charges splendidly, and the ceremony was concluded. Votes of thanks were then passed to Bros. Robertson and Hill, for their services, and they, with Bro. Eastes and Knight, were unanimously elected honorary members of the lodge. Three candidates were then proposed for initiation, and three as joining members. Bro. Churchly was elected as Charity representative for the province, and then after "Hearty good wishes" had been tendered by the representatives of the various lodges present, the lodge was closed in due form. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. C. Bishop, Org. 615, who was assisted by Bros. C. Buckland, H. Harding, and W. Taylor.

The banquet was such as fully sustained the character of the house for its menu. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were eloquently put by Bro. Churchly, that of "The Grand Officers" being responded to by Bro. Hill, G. Chaplain of England.

"The Health of Lord Holmesdale, Grand Master of Kent," was enthusiastically received. In reply to the toast of his health, coupled with that of the rest of "The Grand Officers, Present and Past," Bro. Eastes thanked the W.M. and brethren for the cordial manner in which they had received it. He could assure them that the Prov. G. Officers had a great love for Masonry at heart, and nothing gave them greater pleasure than to be among the brethren at the various lodges, and watch the progress of the lodges, and the comfort and happiness of the brethren, and not only watch in but assist by every means in their power their progress and prosperity. (Applause.) He felt it a great source of sorrow that their beloved Grand Master was not present to see the manner in which the duties of the lodge had been carried out that day, but it would be his pleasing duty to report them to that distinguished brother, and be felt sure it would be a great gratification to know that a lodge with such a good prospect before it had been added to the list of lodges in the Province of Kent. (Cheers.) The prosperity of the lodge would depend in a great measure upon the assiduity and zeal of the W.M. and his officers, and from what he had seen and heard of them, he looked forward to the lodge taking a high place among the lodges of the province. He would now say a few words to the brethren of the lodge. There was a very natural feeling among the officers and brethren of the lodge to make it strong in numbers. Now that was not the way to make a good lodge; what constituted the strength of a lodge more than the quantity was the quality of its members. (Hear, hear.) After impressing upon the brethren the necessity of this, he proceeded to give the brethren the advantage of his great experience in Masonry, and some excellent advice as to the manner in which they should carry out their relative duties, more particularly as to the manner of their selection and election of candidates for admission. He reprobated the blackballing of candidates, and pointed out in forcible language how to avoid doing so, and averred that in the twenty-five years he had been a member of the Invicta Lodge, at Ashford, there had not been such a thing as blackballing in the lodge. (Cheers.) Bro. Eastes concluded by saying that if he should have the pleasure of coming to visit them in the course of the year he trusted to find them as prosperous and happy as their present circumstances presented the hope and belief of. (Cheers.)

Bro. Harrison, P.G. Chaplain, also briefly responded. Bro. Robertson then proposed the toast of "The W.M.," and said that he never proposed a toast upon an occasion such as the present with more pleasure than he did upon this. He felt pleased, because Bro. Churchly was not new to the office, having passed the chair of another lodge, so that he brought into this the knowledge and experience obtained there, and those who had seen his work during the closing of the lodge and since in the chair would see that he was eminently fitted to do honour to the office. (Cheers.) He begged, therefore, to propose the toast.

The W.M., in response, said so many kind words had been said of him, and to him, that he felt at a loss to sufficiently thank Bros. Eastes and Robinson for their good wishes and the brethren for their response to the gavel of the latter. He then spoke eloquently of the good feeling which existed among the brethren of the lodge through which he had just passed, and trusted it would be his good fortune to have the same report to make of this at the end of his year of office. He then proposed the toast of "The Consecrating and Installing Officer, Bro. Robinson," in glowing terms, and the brethren received it warmly.

Bro. Robinson, in reply, said that he wondered not at the brethren enjoying the ceremony, not because he did it, he was not vain enough to think that he could add one iota to the effect of it, but because of its grandeur and beauty. The consecration of a lodge was a ceremony not given to every Mason to behold often. He would most likely see the ceremony of installation at his own lodge, or at other lodges, at least once a year, but there were many good Masons who had never seen the ceremony of consecration. It was a great pleasure to him to conduct such a ceremony, because it had in it a spirit of seriousness that impressed the heart of a religious man with its essence of love, and truth, and charity. It was a ceremony that he loved to hear and see rendered by those Masters of the Craft who felt the spirit of the work they were doing, and he had heard it rendered by laymen far better than he had heard clergymen in their pulpits preach and conduct the services of the church. He then eloquently dwelt upon the grand teachings of their ritual, and declared that no good Mason could be else than a good man, and a religious man, and must be better, not only in heart but in his pathway through life, if he followed up the pure, good, and exalted teaching brought before his mind at such a time as that they had experienced that day in the consecration of this their new lodge.

Bro. Robinson was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his eloquent address.

The toast of "The Visitors" followed, and Bro. Broadly briefly responded.

The toast of "The Officers" came next, and Bro. Jamblin responded.

"The Masonic Press" was responded to by Bro. Jolly, and the Tyler's toast concluded a memorable and interesting day.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creation, Grand Treasurer, in the Chair. There were also present Bros. C. A. Cotebrune, James Brett, Thomas Cubitt, W. Stephens, A. H. Tattershall, Fredk. Adlard, Charles John Perceval, John G. Stevens, Richard Hervé Giraud, C. G. Dilley, John Henry Leggett, J. M. Case, S. Rawson, Captain N. G. Philips, Charles Atkins, and James Terry (Secretary).

Bro. Terry read a letter from the Earl of Carnarvon, conveying H.R.H. the Prince of Wales's sanction to the alteration of the date of the annual festival of the Institution to the 9th of February, 1880. Bro. Terry also reported the death of one annuitant, and read the report of the House Committee, which was received and adopted. Bro. Terry likewise read a letter from Bro. B. Percy Middlemist, offering his services as Honorary Surgeon to outdoor annuitants. This offer was accepted with thanks.

The petitions of five male candidates were read, examined, and accepted. One petition was deferred. The petitions of five widows were accepted.

Application being made for the use of the hall of the Institution for the New Year's entertainment to the inmates, the Committee granted the same, and also voted £20 towards expenses.

The Committee then adjourned.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS effect wonderful cures of bad legs and old wounds. If these medicines be used according to the directions which are wrapped round each pot or box, there is no wound, bad leg, or ulcerous sore, however obstinate, but will yield to their curative properties. Numbers of persons who had been patients in the large hospitals, and under the care of eminent surgeons, without deriving the least benefit, have been cured by Holloway's Ointment and Pills when other remedies had signally failed. For glandular swellings, tumours, scurvy, and diseases of the skin there is no medicine that can be used with so good an effect. Though potent for good, it is powerless for harm; and though the cure it effects is rapid, it is also complete and permanent.—[Adv.]

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1879.

GIRLS' SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL.

The Craft will rejoice to hear that H.R.H. Prince Leopold has kindly consented to take the chair at the anniversary festival in 1880. This most interesting fact has been communicated in a letter from Bro. Collins, to Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer. We congratulate Bro. Hedges on the announcement, and have no doubt but that he will soon be able to announce a long list of Stewards.

UNIFORMITY OF RITUAL.

The motion of Bro. Stevens, which was carried at last Grand Lodge after only a very partial debate, is a most serious one both in its immediate effect and its prospective results. It goes much further and strikes much deeper than the majority which voted for it has learnt to realize, and no one who has not studied the whole question in all its bearings can form any conjecture of the mischief likely to accrue from Bro. Stevens' rash and ill digested motion. It has been stated in Grand Lodge, we apprehend, clearly and fully, what is a priori the grave objection to Bro. Stevens' motion, in itself, and though Bro. Stevens in his reply affected to consider the historical objections raised to his motion as beside the question, it is perfectly clear to every thinking mind that there, after all, lies the true and real answer to Bro. Stevens' vehement incriminations of our present system. Admitted, if you like, that Grand Lodge passed and confirmed a resolution to the same effect in 1870, unless you could predicate absolute wisdom and infallibility of every resolution of Grand Lodge, the answer fairly comes that, like many other legislative bodies, Grand Lodge was taken by surprise; the subject was not fully debated, and for nearly ten years no action has been taken—showing, not as some foolishly assert, any disrespect by the authorities of the resolution of Grand Lodge, but the serious difficulty of the whole question when fairly faced, and the impossibility, owing to their unwillingness to serve, to find a competent committee in whom the entire Craft would have confidence. For it is one thing to talk about a matter, it is another thing really to understand it, and we venture to believe that if there are any persons of whom our educated Craft have the greatest distrust it is the professional agitator, on the one hand, or the emitter of "bottled moonshine" on the other. Some of the reasons of the mover, which it is impossible to discuss in a paper, are too grotesque to dwell upon. If such abuses exist, which we venture to doubt, despite the obnoxious "ipse dixit" of Bro. Stevens, they constitute a grave reflection on the Provincial authorities, on the one hand, or those of Freemasons' Hall on the other. If proved to be prevalent, we fancy the action of the Board of General Purposes would be summary and decisive. And all these things tottled up at their very worst, if they do constitute a case for authoritative interference and disciplinary treatment, do not touch the real point at issue, and here was the fallacy of Bro. Stevens' whole speech. Admitted that all be true, as Bro. Stevens put it, what does it prove but the want of surveillance and control? The existence of stereotyped formulæ would only aggravate these evil symptoms and would enrich the brother or brethren who now deal in spurious rituals. It is this very "liberty of verbiage and ceremonial" which stands in the way of un-Masonic ventures and unhallowed gains. It is not likely, neither would it be reasonable, that the decisions of the Lodge of Reconciliation in 1813 should pass without review in 1879. These arrangements were the best then possible, but were not for all time, and we, the Masons of 1879, surely have a right, if the question be referred to a Committee, to ask to have the whole matter reviewed. And thinking that we are not ripe for any such movement, we venture to ask our brethren to "hold their hands," and to oppose the confirmation of that portion of the minutes at the next meeting of Grand Lodge.

THE BOARD OF BENEVOLENCE.

Some objections have been recently and forcibly made to the large grants made by the Board of Benevolence. There can be no doubt that for some time past the ratio of giving has been perceptibly increased, and cases which would have received £10 ten years ago are now receiving £40 or £50. We do not complain of this increase, "per se," because the old system of giving had this grave defect,—it did not sufficiently meet the strong case, it gave too much to the weak case. But there is a "golden mean" in all things; and as some worthy brethren are led away by the idea that because they have "plenty" to give away, they may as well give, we wish to remind them one and all of the irrefragable truth and wisdom of Bro. Clabon's remarks in Grand Lodge, that we do not give because we have plenty to give, but because the petitioners deserve it. If brethren will only keep this "canon" of true giving carefully before them, we shall soon hear the last of condemnatory complaining. Certainly the case debated in last Grand Lodge as to a brother only five years in Masonry receiving £50 is a "strong order." No doubt a great deal may be said on both sides. But we confess that our impression is strongly that such a grant is far too large, and serves only to encourage a delusion very prevalent at this moment apparently, that Freemasonry is a vast benefit Order. We, therefore, are anxious to call the attention of many worthy brethren to the subject, that they may learn to realize their responsibility and measure their gifts. The idea of our Masonic benevolence is noble and grand, and true in itself, for it is not only charity in name and deed, but if by any means it becomes subject to abuse or exaggeration, and fictitious sentiment, or unreasoning lavishness, it ceases to be true charity, and degenerates into a spurious form and mistaken illustration of that needful and excelling virtue. We wish we could think that all our votes at the Board of Benevolence were determined solely by the "merits of the case." Unfortunately, we fear that it is not always so, and personal influence and unwise sentimentality often affect votes, which ought ever to be governed alone by principle. But it is very difficult in a shifting Board to obtain uniformity of action or harmony of thought, and we can only express our hope that, by the good sense of our brethren who distribute our Masonic charity, care will be taken to make a full and clear discrimination between good cases and shaky cases, between the petitioner who has subscribed for long years and the brother who has subscribed only for a few years, and then left Masonry and died out of Masonry.

THE PURCHASE OF LYNDCOMBE HOUSE.

This purchase, which was unanimously approved of by a Special Court, as being in the best interests of the School, is, we understand, violently attacked by privately circulated statements, circulars, and petitions. We say nothing of the ingratitude involved in such proceedings towards that distinguished brother whose labours for the welfare of the Girls' School are beyond all praise; neither of the unworthy clap-trap displayed and the "bad form" manifested in such underhand proceedings, but we do protest openly as before the Craft, against a system of procedure which is unworthy of us as Freemasons and gentlemen, and which evidences lowness of mind as well as an utter forgetfulness of all Masonic teaching, alike in the motives it seeks to suggest, and the end it is apparently anxious to achieve. If any brethren object to any proceedings in our Courts, let them come forward in an open and manly manner and say so, and they will be patiently heard and fully answered. But, as Freemasons, let us set ourselves against all behind-the-back circulars, and surreptitious calumnies, and, as good men and true, properly in the proper place, and at the fitting time, assert our honest and rightful opinions. But let us avoid mischief makers and agitators of every degree.

THE VACANT GRAND SECRETARYSHIP.

We believe that we are right in our statement that up to the present no definite appointment to the vacant office has been made. Many names are circulating among the Craft of candidates for the post, but all such are merely suggestions—more or less interested. Two names are prominently mentioned, one a Grand Officer much connected with Golden Square, the other an active Craftsman, who is not a Grand Officer. We prefer to await the nomination of the Grand Master with Masonic deference. We reject one pure "canard," the somewhat current assertion that a sort of "clique" or "camarilla," or call it what you like, is seeking to promote the interests of a particular candidate. If it were really so, nothing worse for the present or future interests of the Craft can well be conceived. We have every reason and right to believe that H.R.H. the Grand Master is quite aware of the vast importance of the office for the progress and welfare of Freemasonry as well as in the world at large as our in own country.

On Tuesday evening, the 16th inst., at half-past six o'clock, the ceremonies of installation of Principals will take place at the Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement, Comp. William Stephens being the Installing Officer.

The Lord Mayor has consented to become a patron of the third performance in aid of the Printers' Dramatic Pension Fund, originally promoted and successfully carried out by Bro. George J. Dawson. The performance is arranged to take place in March next. £200 has been already realised for this highly deserving object.

THE LAST MEETING OF GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I must confess my feeling of disappointment at the very slight notice taken by you on the very important meeting of Grand Lodge last Wednesday; I cannot conceive how any much more important topics could be laid before you to dilate upon, for the edification of that body which you so ably represent. You certainly throw out your opinions on two out of the three important and interesting subjects brought before that meeting. They are thrown down somewhat like in ancient times they used to throw down a challenge or glove for some one to pick up. Now, though I may burn my fingers or get a rap over the knuckles for my pains, I fearlessly pick it up, for I consider that unless the several questions are opened out from both points of view, those members of Grand Lodge who were absent will not be able to form a correct estimate of the different matters at issue.

1st. Bro. Hervey's retiring pension. I yield to no one in the respect and esteem in which Bro. Hervey must be held by those who have had the pleasure of knowing him, and cordially reiterate the words of Bro. Monckton "that we may scarcely hope to look upon his like again," and yet I feel sure that could he express an opinion upon the discussion, and the result of that discussion, he, whose impartiality to one and all are so well-known, would say that the Craft were perfectly right in refusing to grant that abnormally large sum of £800 per annum, or full retiring pension, after being in receipt of that sum ten years, or only eleven years in all, and would feel that it was out of no disrespect for himself, or that he was unworthy of it, but that they had done wisely in not making an exception in his favour, thereby sacrificing principle on the altar of friendship, and forming a precedent that they would find it extremely difficult to depart from on future occasions. I can only finish with what I know to be the heartfelt prayer of all, "would to God that the occasion for his retirement had not been such as it is, and may the G.A.O.T.U. alleviate his sufferings and restore him to us if such be His Divine will."

2nd. Bro. Stevens' motion, or rather revised proposition, which was carried and confirmed ten years ago, but allowed to subside.

I am quite certain I speak the sentiments of every brother who was present and within hearing of our Prov. G.C., Bro. Woodford, when I express the great interest with which we listened to the short but explicit resumé he had culled from carefully studied researches into the ancient lore of Freemasonry, when he told us how that in a space of ninety years, i.e., from 1723 to 1813, when Freemasons, let alone lodges, were few and far between, the standard ritual put together by Desaguliers and Anderson in 1723 had been later on altered by Clare, and later still emended by Dunkerley, and yet again improved by Preston, with other exceedingly interesting matters of detail, but there, speaking for myself, my admiration ceases, for to my mind a more illogical deduction than his motion for a direct negation of Bro. Stevens' excellent and much needed proposition could not be brought forth. If the ritual required four revised editions, when Masons and their lodges were so few, how much more must a revised standard be required now after a lapse of seventy years, when lodges and chapters are numbered by thousands, and Craftsmen by hundreds of thousands, when the different workings are so varied, and as many as the weeks, I might almost say days, in the year, when our language even has undergone such great alterations; when we have no standard or recognised authority to guide us or to refer to; when Masters of lodges can work as they please for want of such authority, having no one to say them nay; when Grand Lodge's chief duty seems to be keeping an eye that the dues to Grand Lodge are paid, and an occasional insight into the way in which the books of individual lodges are kept, but keeping no check on the several manners of working, which, if I am not greatly in error, is one of their special and particular duties? When we here of such farce, mummeries, carried on as described by Bro. Stevens from both printed and oral evidence, with such painful and patent abuses of our beautiful liturgy before us, if now is not the time for the M.W.G.M. to step in, and, with the aid of some of the many eminent and learned brothers around him, cause a thorough and searching investigation into the different teachings, and from that investigation constitute an authority to which every Master of a lodge can refer who is desirous of fulfilling those duties so graphically laid upon him for the well ruling and governing of his lodge, and which he has solemnly declared he is able and willing to do, or to which if in doubt and anxious to prove himself correct in, or improve himself in his work, he might appeal with the satisfaction and certainty of knowing that he would be set right—I repeat if the time has not arrived, I unhesitatingly affirm that the time will never arrive, and shortly, instead of the beautiful teachings of which true Masonry consists, and ought to consist, we shall be like the builders of the Tower of Babel just before they left off, and be speaking to one another in unknown tongues. I therefore, earnestly and devoutly hope that every brother who has the good of our noble Order to heart will raise his voice, and so assist in this much and long needed work of reformation.

The third and last important notice of motion on the paper was Bro. Clabon's, and the purport of it was this—that out of the surplus revenue especially set apart for distressed Masons and their widows two-thirds were to be deducted, one-third for the boys and one-third for the girls, which spoliation, to use a mild term, was nipped in the bud, and I trust, not only as Vice-President of all the Institutions but upon principle, and by all that is just and upright, that such a deviation of monies from the legitimate direction of that fund will never be permitted. With all due deference to Bro. Clabon, whose goodness of heart, whose benevolence, whose zeal for Masonry no one can for a moment deny, I must say I do think his zeal has run away with him, that the handkerchief over the eyes of Justice must have slipped a bit when Bro. Clabon thus sought to rob Peter to pay Paul and Virginia; when he attempted to alienate two-thirds of a fund especially set apart for one purpose for that of another, when he sought to benefit the children at the expense of the parents, he must have left out of his reckoning the enormous increase of Masons without a corresponding increase of funds, and that there is no telling how soon a great and legitimate call may be made upon that fund which he seeks so ruthlessly to spoil.

As an amendment, I would venture to suggest that larger powers be entrusted to the existing Committees, both of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, who have hitherto discharged that trust faithfully and impartially, and instead of limiting their power to £20 extend it to say £50, to be left to their judgment to grant that or less, according to the peculiar circumstances of the case brought under their notice.

Fearing to bore you any more, I remain, yours fraternally,

CHARLES JOHN PERCEVAL.

[We really do not understand how our worthy correspondent can complain either of our report or our leader, but some people are very difficult to please. We say it without offence.—Ed.]

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS AND BRO. WILSON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Being unable to attend the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys to-day, I beg to forward you copy of a letter I have addressed to them with respect to my dispute with the House Committee.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

S. B. WILSON.

27, Walbrook, E.C.,
6th December, 1879.

"To the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

"Brethren and Gentlemen,

"Consequent on the seeming misunderstanding with respect to my account for business services in connection with the Institution at Wood Green, which were completed more than twelve months ago, I beg to lay before you a brief statement of the facts.

"The House Committee having refused to order payment of the balance due to me, I was obliged to apply for payment through my solicitors. Since such application I have received payment of £100, without prejudice, with the understanding that the balance was to be referred to arbitration. To this I agreed, and offered to refer the matter to Sir Henry Arthur Hunt, C.B., who is the arbitrator for the Office of Works in all such matters, than whom I considered there could be no better authority. The House Committee declined to accept Sir Henry Arthur Hunt as referee, having resolved that they would not refer the question at issue to any Freemason.

"My solicitors were, therefore, compelled to inform them that proceedings would be taken for the recovery. On this I was officially informed that Mr. F. Stanley, of 22A, Austin Friars, had been appointed by the House Committee, with full powers to settle with me. I, accordingly, immediately instructed my solicitors to stop all further legal proceedings, and requested a gentleman of my own profession to give Mr. Stanley any explanations he might require. It is now more than two months since my friend first endeavoured to make an appointment with Mr. Stanley, and he has made repeated endeavours since, but hitherto without avail. I may add that should I be compelled to recommence proceedings, all the professional gentlemen I shall call as witnesses on my behalf, who are of high standing, will give evidence that there are no overcharges in my account, but, on the contrary, that the usual professional rates are considerably higher than several of the charges on which I have based my account.

"I do not know where the blame lies, but I do think that I am not being treated at all fairly in the matter, and as I do not wish to take legal proceedings, I appeal to you with confidence to see me righted.

"I am, Brethren and Gentlemen, your obedient servant,
"S. B. WILSON.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Some time ago there was a lodge of Freemasons formed called ——— Lodge, which was to be held, according to warrant, at the ——— Hotel, ———, there being no other place in ——— suitable for a lodge of Freemasons. It was consecrated by the Grand Secretary and officers, and opened, as every one thought, with brilliant prospects, but, unfortunately, those prospects have been dashed to the ground. Our W.M., it appears, through some dispute with the proprietor of the ——— Hotel, who is also a brother Mason, has thought fit, without even consulting the lodge or even the officers, to move it from the ——— Hotel (a place where the lodge had every convenience and comfort, and where any member could invite a visitor to with pleasure, even our Grand Master himself) to a public house some distance from there, and which is not at all suitable for a lodge, not having the convenience in any shape or form when the comfort of the lodge is concerned. Now, sir, I want to ask you as an authority, has the W.M. of any lodge the right to move the lodge to where and when he thinks proper, without calling a lodge of emergency and stating the facts, simply because he may have a private dispute with the proprietor where the lodge is held, and which does not concern the lodge whatever? It has caused dissension and unpleasantness among the members of the lodge, and a great many members would not have joined the lodge had they known it was going to be moved. I think that out of courtesy the lodge should have been consulted by the W.M. in the matter.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

A MASON.

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I wish you would impress upon Worshipful Masters and Secretaries of lodges the importance, I had almost said the duty, of seeing that the dates of their lodge meetings are correctly announced in our Masonic papers, as the neglect of their doing so often causes annoyance to visiting brethren. If it be worth while to announce them at all—and I think it so—common courtesy claims that the announcement be not misleading.

Yours fraternally,

D. W. FINNEY, P.M. 148, 1250,

Prov. G.D. Cer. West Lanc.

Warrington, Dec. 10th.

OLD MASONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am much obliged to "P.M. and Treasurer." He is quite right in not considering me responsible for the parenthetical error, and I cannot understand how the figures 1635 could have been inserted. Of course I alluded to the United Industrious Lodge, No. 31, and no other.

Fraternally yours,

JOHN R. HALL, P.M. and Hon. Sec. 31.

Canterbury, Dec. 6, 1879.

Reviews.

THE CHURCHES OF YORKSHIRE. Vol. 1, No. 1.

By Bro. H. HATTON, F.R.H.S., and W. E. Fox.

London: W. H. Smith & Son, 186, Strand.

We highly approve of this publication, both as an archaeological and artistic production, and wish it much circulation and all success. The drawings are very good and true, as our own personal knowledge and memory can safely testify, and we think the idea an admirable one in itself, and deserving the patronage of all lovers of art, taste and archaeology. The churches of Yorkshire are really beautiful old structures, and built by the operative Guilds, with the Masons' marks still on many a "perfect ashlar," speak to Freemasons with special interest and meaning. We trust to hear that this praiseworthy attempt to make us acquainted with many of the specimens of the ecclesiastical building art may prove to be a thorough success in every respect. It has our hearty good wishes.

HISTORY OF THE HERTFORD LODGE, No. 403.

Stephen Hunter and Sons, Fore-street, Hertford.

This is a most interesting history of a distinguished lodge, and may be perused with profit by us all. If it be true that its history is uneventful in one sense, it is equally certain that it well represents the normal state of many a good English lodge, and is therefore full of information to the student of to-day who seek to gain a realistic glimpse of the Masonic life of the past, to ascertain precisely what were its actual conditions of practical existence. We have turned over its pages with infinite pleasure.

YOUNG FOLKS. James Henderson, Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

This monthly serial, much read by the young, comes before us with its thrilling tales and startling adventures. It is undoubtedly attractive to the youthful mind in the force of its narratives and the animation of its recitals.

CATHOLIC TIMES. (Christmas Number.)

This is a Roman Catholic serial and candidate for support, mainly, we apprehend, by the members of its own religious denomination. It is illustrated by a likeness of the late Cardinal Cullen, and is full of stories of incident, sentiment, and romance. On our Masonic principle of returning good for evil, though we are somewhat surprised to have it sent to us, we are glad to mention it with literary approval.

CHRISTMAS CARDS. Spottiswoode and Co., the Queen's Printers.

We are greatly pleased with the selection of these interesting Christmas souvenirs submitted to our notice. They are truly artistic in the highest sense, and deserve the notice and patronage of all who wish to give or return such pleasant memorials of a sacred season, or of personal attachment. As evidences of refined taste and skilful execution they are A1; as pleasant reminders of present or distant friends they constitute a most rational and enjoyable medium of coming closer to the near, and reminding ourselves of the absent. We, therefore, think it well to call the attention of our readers to them, for Freemasons, like other mortals, have sympathies to unfold, friendships to avow, and memories of living interest and fond affection to cultivate and confirm. Let our readers see them for themselves.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF MONMOUTHSHIRE.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Monmouthshire was held at the Masonic Hall, Newport, on Monday week, under the banner of the Keystone Lodge, and was opened by the P.G.M. in due form.

The minutes of the previous lodge were read, the by-laws of the province distributed, and the Treasurer's accounts passed. The returns of the P.G. Registrar were also received.

The P.G.M. then declared the whole of the offices vacant, and called upon the brethren to nominate a brother of eminence and ability to fill the position of P.G.M. for Monmouthshire for the ensuing three years, and to approve a petition to the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, in support of the recommendation made by the Provincial Grand Lodge, praying his confirmation.

Bro. William Williams, P.M. 185, then proposed the re-election of Bro. L. Augustus Homfray for the ensuing three years, and referred to the great ability that had been brought to bear on that high position during the past three years, and the immense strides made in Mark Masonry under his rule and able guidance. (Applause.)

This proposition was seconded by Bro. West, W.M. of the Keystone Lodge, 109, and put to the Provincial Grand Lodge by the Provincial Grand Senior Warden, who declared it unanimously carried amidst great enthusiasm.

The Right Wor. the P.G.M., Bro. L. Augustus Homfray, then rose to thank the Provincial Grand Lodge for the high compliment paid him, and promised that by the vote of this day he would be induced to give increased energy to the high position to which they had nominated him. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Treasurer, Bro. James Horner, was re-elected.

The Right Worshipful the P.G.M. then appointed the following officers for the succeeding year:—

Bro. Col. Lyne	Prov. D.G.M.M.
Capt. S. G. Homfray	Prov. G.S.W.
W. Watkins	Prov. G.J.W.
Capt. Perkins	Prov. G.M.O.
Nichol Bradley	Prov. G.S.O.
Thomas Harrhy	Prov. G.J.O.
Rev. J. W. C. Lindsay	Prov. G. Chap.
Crawshay Bailey	Prov. G. Reg.
Walter West	Prov. G. Sec.
T. H. Gage	Prov. G.A.S.
James Horner	Prov. G. Treas.
L. P. Gravenor	Prov. G.S.D.
Henry Richards	Prov. G.J.D.
J. A. Shepherd	Prov. G. In. of Wks.
E. J. Baker	Prov. G.D.C.
J. P. Fowler	Prov. G.A.D.C.
C. H. Rice Harris	Prov. G. Swd. Br.
William Tucker	Prov. G. Std. Br.
H. J. Groves	Prov. G. Org.
A. I. Sinclair	Prov. G.I.G.
Bro. W. S. Tait, T. G. Powell, and John Jones	Prov. G. Stewards.
Bro. Henry Fletcher	Prov. G. Tyler.

The Right W.P.G.M. then proposed that the warmest thanks of the P.G. Lodge be accorded to the W.M. and brethren of the Keystone Lodge for the cordial reception given them that day.

This was unanimously agreed to, and Bro. West, the W.M., most suitably responded.

The Right Wor. the P.G.M. then called attention to the report of the General Board, and expressed his satisfaction that their old, valued, and esteemed brother, General Doherty, C.B., had been nominated to the high position of P.G.W.M. of Somersetshire in the place of Lord Carnarvon, who had resigned, and invited the brethren of the province to accompany him to his installation at Bath, of which due notice would be given to them all.

The announcement was received with much acclamation.

Bro. Captain Perkins then proposed, and the P.G.M. seconded, "That the province send a Steward to the Mark Charity Festival, and that Bro. Watkins, P.G.J.W., be invited to act as Charity Steward for the province in the coming year."

This Bro. Watkins accepted, and hoped that the brethren would come forward and render him such assistance as would make his list second to none.

The other usual formal votes were given, when the P.G.M., after asking the necessary questions, proceeded to declare the P.G. Lodge closed in form, with solemn prayer.

The P.G.M. then invited the brethren to a banquet at the King's Head Hotel, when Bro. F. G. Gretton placed a magnificent spread upon the board.

There were present R.W. Bros. L. Augustus Homfray, P.G.M.M.; and Charles Lyne, D.P.G.M.M.; W. Bros. S. G. Homfray, P.G.S.W.; Wm. Watkins, P.G.J.W.; Capt. A. T. Perkins, P.G.M.O.; Bros. E. J. Baker, P.G.S.O.; T. Harry, A.G.J.O.; Thomas H. Gage, P.G.A. Sec.; James Horner, P.G. Treas.; J. P. Fowler, P.A.G.D.C.; C. H. R. Harris, P.G. Swd. Br.; L. P. Gravenor, P.G.S.D.; A. I. Sinclair, P.G.I.G.; Henry Fletcher, P.G. Tyler; J. Jones and T. J. Powell, P.G. Stewards; W. Williams, P.M. 185, G.S. Eng.; J. L. C. Hunter Little, P.P.G. Overseers; W. Pickford, P.M. 109; Alfred Taylor, P.P.G.S. Wks.; Rev. James Pugh, S.W. 214; W. P. Pugh, 214; T. Thomas, 109; Wm. Tucker, Treas. 214; S. D. Hallen, 109, and others.

At the conclusion of the banquet, at which the P.G.M. presided, the following toasts were given:—"H.M.G. Majesty the Queen," "The M.W.G.M. of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G."

Captain Perkins proposed "The M.W. the G.M.M.M. of England, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers, Present and Past," and coupled with it the name of Bro. W. Watkins, whom he congratulated on his elevation as Grand Officer.

Bro. Watkins responded.

Bro. Colonel Lyne proposed "The R.W.P.G.M.M. of Monmouthshire, Bro. L. A. Homfray," and referred to the ability with which he managed the affairs of the province, and felt that the G.M. of England would only be too pleased to confirm the unanimous recommendation made for his re-appointment.

The Prov. G.M., who was warmly received, responded, and said that by the reception and unanimity exhibited he felt that he was called upon still further to use his best energies for the success of this beautiful Degree in Freemasonry.

The P.G.M.M. then proposed "The R.W. the D.P.G.M., Colonel Lyne (R.W.P.G.M. of the Craft Mon.), and Prov. Grand Officers, Present and Past." He thanked them all for the valuable assistance rendered, specially referring to the D.P.G.M. and P.G.S.W. The toast was received with much acclamation.

Bros. Colonel Lyne and Captain Homfray most ably and suitably responded, and promised increased efforts in their respective positions.

Bro. J. L. C. Hunter Little proposed "The W.M. of the Keystone Lodge (No. 109)," who responded.

Bro. Pickford proposed "The Installing Master," who responded.

Bro. E. J. Baker proposed "The Mark Lodges of the Province," and coupled with it the names of Bros. Harry, W.M. (214), and T. G. Powell (185), who duly responded.

The P.G.M. next proposed "The Visitors," and feelingly alluded to the long career in Masonry of Bro. Hallen, Bros. W. Williams (185), Pickford (109), and Hallen (109), responded.

The P.G.S.W. proposed the next toast, that of "The Masonic Charities," and referred to the power and influence which this province secured at Grand Lodge by their exertions in appointing the various Stewards. He congratulated Bro. Watkins on his appointment as Charity Steward for the year, and felt satisfied that in his hands everything would be done to secure a good list.

Bro. Watkins responded, and said he felt the high compliment conferred upon him, and hoped he would be placed in that position which would enable the province to stand second to none in the list of contributions of the Grand Mark Lodge charities of the year, and by that means secure to the deserving cases a lasting benefit for the future.

The P.G.M. then thanked the P.G. Organist (Bro. H. J. Groves) for the musical arrangements of the day. His health was drunk, and duly responded to.

The P.G. Tyler was then called upon to give the last toast of the evening—"To all poor and distressed," &c. This brought to a close a red letter day in the history of Mark Masonry in Monmouthshire.

The company having sung the National Anthem, bade each other adieu until the meeting of next P.G. Lodge, which, we understand, will be held under the banner of St. John's Lodge, Abergavenny, where the P.G.M. will be re-installed most probably by the G.M. of England.

FREEMASONRY AND SAILORS.

On Sunday, November 30th, the Freemasons of Gravesend attended the festival service at St. Andrew's Waterside Mission Church, at the invitation of the vicar of the parish, the Rev. Bro. Scarth. There was a crowded congregation, one side of the beautiful church being filled by Freemasons. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Bro. Thos. Robinson, M.A., P.M., and P.Z., P.P.G. Chap. Camb. P.P.G.S.W., and P.P.G.H. Kent. The lessons were read by the W.M. of the Lodge of Freedom, No. 77, Bro. W. Barlow. Among the congregation we observed the Mayor of Gravesend and several members of the Corporation. The grand banner of the lodge and banners of the Royal Arch chapter were in conspicuous positions, and were referred to by the preacher.

The work of the St. Andrew's Waterside Mission is worldwide in its character, therefore, as a work of benevolence, could be well linked with Freemasonry. This the Rev. Bro. Robinson brought out clearly in his discourse. He also mentioned how the work had extended into so many ports and the good it had done by enabling the clergy at waterside parishes and at ports abroad to do more for sailors than had previously been done. One part of the mission work is supplying free libraries of entertaining, instructive, and devotional reading to ships, and in distributing periodicals, magazines, books, and illustrated papers freely on board emigrant and other ships, and, indeed, in every way to help and cheer both crew and passengers on their voyage. The offertory was devoted to the funds of the mission.

On the same day sermons were preached for the St. Andrew's Waterside Mission in the cathedrals of Salisbury and Rochester, and at many churches. The mission expends upwards of £2000 a year for the benefit of sailors, and distributes upwards of £2000 worth of books, &c., all free gifts; it has also supplied upwards of 3000 ships with libraries for the use of the crew. As there are many sailors who are Freemasons, some may be glad to know of this good work. Libraries can be had on application to the Secretary at the depot of St. Andrew's Waterside Mission, 36, City Chambers, Fenchurch-street Station, E.C.; contributions of books or of money may be sent there, or to the vicar of Holy Trinity, Gravesend, the Rev. Bro. Scarth.

The Rev. Bro. Robinson met a hearty welcome from the members of the lodge, and next day proceeded to Farningham to consecrate a new lodge there, of which particulars are given in our columns.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. J. Joyce Murray, Vice-Patron, presided, and there were also present Bros. C. F. Matier, Edw. B. Grabham, Rev. Richard Morris, LL.D. (Head Master), W. Maple, George J. Palmer, S. Rosenthal, W. F. C. Moutrie, Thomas Meggy, F. Adlard, F. Binckes (Secretary), and H. Massey (Freemason).

The Secretary reported the investment of £1500, ordered by the last meeting. He also reported that two boys were to be purchased into the Institution.

Six petitions were read and examined, and the petitioners' children placed on the list for the April election. One petition was postponed for further particulars for one month.

Bro. Binckes read to the Committee a letter which had been received from a boy to whom an outfit had been granted at last meeting, thanking the Committee for making the grant. Bro. Binckes stated that this was the more agreeable an acknowledgment, as it was but seldom the boys took any further notice after the grants were made.

The Committee adjourned after discussing some matters of detail.

WENTWORTH LITTLE MEMORIAL.

The Committee appointed on the 5th July, 1878, for the purpose of establishing a memorial to the memory of our deceased brother in the shape of a monumental stone over his grave and a perpetuation of his memory in the R.M. Institution for Girls having reported at their last meeting, on the 14th ult., that the memorial stone was completed, and that several members of the Committee had been to see it, it was resolved that one-half of the balance remaining after the payment of the monument should be handed to Mrs. Little, the widow, and the other half invested in the names of the trustees of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the interest to be devoted annually to a prize to be denominated "The Wentworth Little Memorial Prize."

A meeting of the subscribers was called on the 3rd inst., when Bro. Col. Creaton, G. Treasurer, the Vice-President, presided, and there were also present Bros. Peacock, Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, George Kenning, Herbert Dicketts, H. C. Levander, G. Tidcombe, jun., F. R. W. Hedges, and Wm. Dodd. The resolution of the Committee having been read, it was stated by the Chairman that great caution had always been taken by the School in not accepting gifts having a tendency to endow the Institution, and as he had been advised there might be a question on the construction of the resolution, if adopted in its present form, he should suggest it be altered.

Bro. Peacock said they were all agreed as to the substance of the resolution, the only doubt being as to its legal purport in creating an endowment, which would have the effect of placing the School within the reach of the Charity Commissioners of Endowed Schools. He read the resolution, and moved "That the resolution of the Committee be adopted, with such alteration, if any, as shall be deemed necessary by the legal advisers of the Institution, in order to carry out the terms of such resolution."

This was seconded by Bro. the Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, and carried unanimously.

Bro. Dicketts said he could not allow the meeting to pass over without recording his very great disappointment in the result of the memorial; he was ashamed to see the absence of so many well-known names of brethren who had been so intimately connected with Bro. Little's Masonic career, and who should have subscribed liberally; and that so many of the lodges in the Province of Middlesex which had been consecrated by him had not contributed anything. He also regretted the decease of Bro. Boyd, who did so much as a member of the Committee. He hoped even yet subscribers would be added to the list before the fund was divided.

Bro. Dodd read several letters from brethren who all agreed to the resolution of the Committee, in one of which the following remarks were made, and which were thought so apropos that it was hoped they would appear in print: "I am sorry to find that the well-directed efforts of the Committee have not resulted in a larger sum for our lamented friend's memorial. The fact is, that whereas 100 would gladly have attended a banquet in his honour when alive, at 1½ guineas per head, not more than twenty would be found of the number to contribute half that sum to a memorial of him. No doubt the object of the many is to please the living, that they may secure their own living. However, he will live in our memories apart from all memorials, and, on behalf of many of his friends, I thank you and the Committee for all you have done."

Votes of thanks were then unanimously passed to Bro. Col. Creaton, the Committee, Bro. Buss, the Treasurer, and Bros. Dodd and Hedges, the Secretaries.

The installation meeting of the Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1572, was held on Saturday last, the 6th inst., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, a large number of brethren being present. A report of the proceedings is in type, and will appear in our next.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold will be installed Knights of Malta at the meeting of the Studholme Priory this (Saturday) afternoon.

A general meeting of the Committee of the London Masonic Charity Association will be held at No. 1, Clifford's Inn, Fleet-street, on Tuesday next, the 16th inst., at 5 o'clock precisely.

THE GRAND LODGES OF SCOTLAND AND QUEBEC.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Can nothing be done to bring about a fraternal settlement between the Grand Lodges of Scotland and Quebec? All of us who have been trying, publicly and privately, have so far failed, but surely we are not to accept the present "dead lock" as final.

To begin at the beginning! I have before me the circular of Nov. 20th, 1869, announcing the formation of the Grand Lodge of Quebec 20th day of October, 1869, just ten years ago. It bears, amongst others, the respected signature of the M.W. Bro. Dr. J. H. Graham, who has, happily, again consented to wield the gavel of the Grand Master, notwithstanding his many years of service.

The Grand Lodge sprung into existence through the operation of the "British North American Act" of July 1st, 1867, which made the Province of Quebec as distinct from that of Ontario (formerly united as the Province of Canada, legally and Masonically) as New Brunswick from Nova Scotia. After much "heartburning" and many difficulties—in which generally Quebec was heartily supported by the Grand Lodges of the United States and elsewhere—the "Grand Lodge of Quebec" has become fraternally recognised and accepted as another polished stone in the Grand Lodge arch of the world. In 1866 Nova Scotia, and in 1867 New Brunswick, had also been formed, so there were abundant reasons for the action on all sides, since which period all has gone pleasantly, locally, but not so, however, with the authorities representing the Grand Lodge of Scotland. These Grand Lodges are "flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone," and if by any means, consistent with honour, usage, and Masonic rights, the claims put forth by Quebec can be agreed to, "the sooner the better."

Under its rule are sixty-four lodges, being thrice the number when first of all constituted, and all must agree that, as a Grand Lodge, Quebec has done its best to support its position with dignity and rectitude.

The claim, however, made and enforced as it has been of late, for "exclusive and undivided Masonic sovereignty in the Province of Quebec," cannot be recognised by the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland, because it would be unfair and injurious to any lodges preferring to continue their allegiance to either or all of those Grand Lodges. Why should a majority of lodges—not necessarily composing a majority of the members—have the right to coerce the remainder, and make them either join in the formation of a Grand Lodge, independent of the Grand Lodges to whom they owe their existence, or be characterised as irregular, and denied Masonic intercourse? I freely grant that the lodges in Quebec who formed the Grand Lodge in 1869, or who have joined since, had a perfect right so to do, according to Masonic custom or usage, but I deny that the new Grand Lodge so formed has any right to demand that all lodges (objecting to such a formation, and preferring to continue as heretofore) surrender or return their old warrants, and enter, whether they desire it or not, the new organisation. I claim for our lodges in Quebec the same freedom for those who prefer the allegiance of the Grand Lodges here as for those who have chosen the allegiance of the Grand Lodge there. Some difficulties, of course, will arise through the lodges continuing their independence of the new Grand Lodge, and doubtless in time, by proper management, the members will elect to join the Grand Lodge of Quebec, but until they voluntarily do so I submit they are as regular and as much entitled to the fraternal support and countenance of the Grand Lodge of Quebec as the latter organisation deserves recognition by other Grand Lodges.

There is a regular Grand Lodge of Egypt, recognised by the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland, but the English lodges at Alexandria, Cairo, and Ramleh are not objected to in any way by the Egyptian Grand Lodge, and so long as they prefer allegiance here, Egypt Masonically agrees thereto.

In Nova Scotia we have 398, Halifax, hailing from England, and yet why should we not be on the best of terms with that Grand Lodge? For a similar reason we have certainly the right to claim fraternal consideration from Quebec on behalf of our English and Scottish lodges at Montreal and St. John's, which were chartered before the Grand Lodge of Quebec was constituted.

I cannot, however, defend the action of the Grand Lodge of Scotland in granting warrants for 622 and 625, Montreal, after Quebec had regularly formed its own Grand Lodge, for it is this action which has so embittered the feeling between the two Grand Lodges. England and Quebec Masonically are on a firm footing, and if only Quebec would be content to wait until our lodges desire to transfer their allegiance, or if they never do, be ready to acknowledge them as regular Masons (which they are), there need be no fear of any new warrants being granted in that province by England. In fact, if our friends in Quebec will not hold out the hand of fellowship to the English lodges, working by right of their warrants dated long before the Quebec Grand Lodge came into being, they need not be under any apprehension of our invading their territory, as they are a regularly constituted Grand Lodge. The point between us being simply that they claim authority over our lodges in Montreal, &c., which we object to, but else there is practically no difficulty whatever between us, and under the general rule of Dr. Graham, English and Quebec Freemasons will realise their brotherhood more and more as time rolls on.

The Grand Lodge of Scotland, however, by warranting two new lodges in 1878 at Montreal, has treated Quebec as unoccupied territory, and has without doubt done more to create an ill feeling between these two Grand Lodges than all the efforts of Freemasons have done good hailing from the former Grand Lodge, and now resident in Quebec.

The excellent letter from Dr. Baynes, the District G.M. of Montreal, under the Scottish Freemasons, in the Freemason for November 15th, disposes entirely of the objections raised to the conduct of the lodges under his rule, and proves that in many respects his lodges flourish better in Quebec than on Scottish soil; but the real grievance is left untouched—the creation of the new lodges being a standing menace to the Grand Lodge of Quebec. If the "injurer will not forget and forgive, let the injured do so," for the sake of peace and harmony, and so long as no new warrants are granted let the "hatchet be buried," and may peace and concord be found cementing us to our provinces as Masons and brethren.

In conclusion, permit me to fraternally advise the Grand Lodge of Quebec, asking and accepting recognition, so long as its rights are respected, they not being of a retrospective character—by all means obtain the support of the English and Scottish lodges if possible, but if not, rest content to accept them as visitors, hailing from the "mother country."

THE BELL MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The members of this Society, which is conducted on sound principles, gave the third entertainment of their second season on Tuesday last at the Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street. The entertainment was most successful, upwards of 100 gentlemen being present, the programme being noticeably free from the vulgarities of so-called harmonic meetings. Visitors were admitted by ticket only, thus securing a most select and respectable assembly. The programme, which consisted of songs, duets, &c., was excellently rendered, the gentlemen worthy of special mention being Messrs. H. W. Goddin, Percy B. Todd, W. H. Pridham, E. C. Goddin (President of the Society), and G. Slaney (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer). During the evening Bro. E. W. Wheeler (1541), the Vice-President, announced that a special entertainment in connection with this Society would be given on Tuesday week, when it is intended that the first part of the programme shall be devoted to the members and the second to the visitors. Application for tickets of admission may be made by letter to Mr. G. Slaney, addressed to Masons' Hall.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

MASONIC RESEARCH.

Amidst so many discoveries of late, and suggestions, I cannot find that attention has been paid to the statement of Mr. Halliwell, F.R.S., in the "Masonic Poem" of the 14th century, to the effect that "Mr. Black possesses a minute book of the Freemasons of Chester, of the eighteenth century." Cannot Bro. A. F. A. Woodford hunt up this reference and add another to the many obligations we are under to him for his "happy finds." There was an old lodge meeting at Chester early last century (1724) and it might refer to the records. Who was the Mr. Black referred to? Now then, Bro. Woodford, at it again, and success to you on the part of

ANTIQUITY

THE NEW CONSTITUTIONS.

I have carefully collated Inigo Jones's MS., as I propose to term it, with most of the others, and I find that it is a peculiarly interesting MS., in that it differs from all known transcripts in many points and agrees with no one copy extant. It is more like Grand Lodge MS. in its Invocation, it is like the Harleian 1942, in some portions, and the Wilson MS. in others, but really is identical with none, as the following variations will show: It calls the "Land of Behest" the "Land of the Jebuaites;" it terms Hermes "Trismagestrus;" it refers to a place called Bubastis, in Egypt, in which Onias built a Jewish temple in the reign of Ptolemy and Cleopatra. It sets out the letters of Solomon to Hiram and Hiram to Solomon; it omits all reference to Charles Martel, or Amphibalus, or Maymus Græcus; its charges vary considerably from any other, in that the "King" is not mentioned—in the ten charges of Masters and Fellows—but these words: "that you be not disloyal nor confederates in treasonable plots." In the eighteen charges to be observed by Masters and Fellows we find some slight variations, but none of importance. At the end Hallidom is deliberately and carefully written Italidom. I thought at first that it was a clerical error, (and so it might be), but it is so plainly and beautifully written that the scribe clearly intended it—copying it, perhaps, from an older MS. "Ye" is written all through "yea," and all the capitals are floriated. Altogether it is one of the most interesting MSS. I have yet seen, and as I remarked last week, opens the door to many considerations and questions. Other points will no doubt "crop up" after closer collation.

Obituary.

R.W. BRO. SIR E. R. BOROUGH, BART.

In Sir Edward Richard Borough, Bart., Past Deputy Grand Master for Ireland, English as well as Irish Masonry has lost one of its most distinguished members. In the year 1820, Sir Edward, then an undergraduate at Christ Church, was initiated in the Apollo Lodge at Oxford. In the same year, the same lodge initiated amongst others Edward Coleridge, afterwards Lower Master at Eton, Richard Harington, afterwards Principal of Brasenose, and John Fawcett, the present Prov. G. Master for Durham. For fifty-nine years after this did Sir Edward live a keen and zealous Mason. As Deputy Grand Master for Ireland he spared neither time nor trouble in the service of the Craft. Irish Masons know how much his energy and exertions did towards obtaining for the Grand Lodge of Ireland her present high position amongst the Grand Lodges of the Universe. Nor did he forget his English brethren. Many English visitors to Irish lodges will remember the cordial welcome he gave them. He was himself a frequent guest at English lodges. Though his failing eyesight made it a matter of great practical difficulty he was present at the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, as Grand Master of England. The Isaac Newton University Lodge at Cambridge honoured itself by electing him a honorary member, and one of his last Masonic duties was to attend a meeting of the Studholme Chapter Rose Croix, and to accept the honorary membership of that body. Those whom he honoured with his private friendship will know that they have lost one whose kind and gentle heart made that friendship a pleasure which they will never cease to think of with affection.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The members of the Degree of Royal Ark Mariners will meet at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Cambwell New-road, at five o'clock this day (Saturday), when a number of Grand Mark Officers and other distinguished Masons will be elevated. By desire the ceremony will be performed by Bro. T. Poore, P.G.I.G., &c., with the permission of the W.C.N., Bro. H. Lovegrove.

The recently formed Hull Literary Club, of which Mr. William Andrews, F.R.H.S., a well-known local author, is Honorary Secretary, has resolved to form a library of works relating to the history of the East Riding of Yorkshire, and books written by natives of the district. The members propose to produce several local historical volumes.

Mr. Edward Bradbury will contribute to the January number of the "Magazine of Art" a paper entitled "Pictures in Trains," and dealing with the romantic side of railway realism.

An annual will shortly be issued in Hull under the title of the "Yule Log." It will contain contributions by several well-known authors, amongst them may be named William Andrews, F.R.H.S., author of "Historic Romance," Edward Bradbury, W. H. Hatton, J. Wilton Jones, Emra Holmes, J. W. Gould, Thomas B. Trowsdale, T. Tindall Wildridge, and other popular writers.

The National Coffee Palace Company (Limited) have taken the Royal Exchange Vaults for the purpose of carrying on a restaurant there.

We are informed that Prince Leopold is about to be created a duke, and that the county of Kent is to have the honour of claiming him as her own.

Bros. James and Thorne having gone to Nice, their places in the "Two Roses" at the Belford benefit performance on Saturday (this day) will be taken (the Echo says) by Messrs. Bradbury and Garthorne.

The Christmas double number of Brief will be ready on December 19th, and will contain, in addition to the usual epitome of the news and press opinions of the week, a mass of highly interesting and reasonable reading for Christmastide.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has sent a handsome present of game for the benefit of the patients of the Consumption Hospital, Brompton, and St. George's Hospital, also thirty pheasants for the patients in the Charing Cross Hospital.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. John Menzies, the Scottish publisher, which occurred suddenly in Edinburgh on Saturday last. Mr. Menzies was in his seventy-second year.

We regret to record the death of Mr. W. C. Amos, of the firm of Messrs. Gilbert and Co., of Old Court House-street, who expired Nov. 6th, after a very short illness. For many years Mr. Amos has been a zealous member of the Craft of Freemasonry, and has held various offices in connection with the fraternity. It was his expressed wish to be buried with full Masonic honours.—Indian Daily News.

On January 1st the Gas Light and Coke Company's price of gas will be reduced from 3s. 6d. to 3s. 4d. per 1000 cubic feet.

At a special meeting of the Court of Common Council, held on Tuesday last, it was resolved to vote £105 to the Sir Rowland Hill Memorial Fund.

During Bro. Toole's temporary absence from the stage Mr. H. J. Byron will appear in "Not Such a Fool as he Looks."

At this season of the year, when taste, ingenuity, and skill vie with each other in producing Christmas novelties, we hail with every feeling of pleasure any fresh feature which strikes out from the regular groove, and obtains a distinctive success. Amongst the many who have attempted, few have gained so complete and pleasing a result as Mr. W. Shury Marshall, the eminent photographer, of 34, Parliament-street, S.W., with his photo Christmas cards, which are resplendent in design, artistic in colouring, and poetical in expression; the Spécialité consists in the photograph of the sender being inserted in the card, adding much to the value of these Christmas gifts. When informed of this novelty, we at once repaired to Mr. Marshall's studio, and in less than five minutes we were the happy possessors of half-a-dozen Christmas cards, each one containing our portrait, which, owing to the rapidity of exposure, was a characteristic likeness. To those who delight in pleasing and gratifying their friends, go to 34, Parliament-street, and avail yourselves of the opportunity.

The installation meeting of the Creton Lodge, No. 1791, took place at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Thursday last. A report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

At a meeting of the members of the St. Cecilia Lodge, No. 1636, held at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Tuesday evening, the 25th ult., Bro. Councillor Nell was elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Payne was re-elected Treasurer. To Bro. C. Sandeman, the retiring W.M., was unanimously granted a Past Master's jewel. A good attendance of the members marked the important meeting.

We glean from the local papers that Bro. Alderman J. R. Bull, of Bedford, has given a supper, which was as much appreciated as it was excellent, to the Corporation of Bedford, of which he has been so many years a distinguished member. Amongst the guests of Bro. Bull (who is a member of the Stuart Lodge and Mount Sinai Chapters) were the following brethren:—Bro. Captain Polhill Turner, M.P., Alderman Hornford, Sergeant (Borough Treasurer), Barfield (P.Z. Mount Sinai Chapter), R. E. Roberts (Governor of the Gaol), Capt. Colbourn, H. Allen, H. Young, Lund, and Jarvis.

A new lodge of the Swedenborgian Rite has been warranted by the Supreme Grand Council, to be called the St. Hilda Lodge and Temple, No. 12, to meet on the first Tuesday in every month, at Lofthouse, in Cleveland. The first Worshipful Master of the lodge is Bro. John Monkman Collier, 1511; the first Senior Warden is Bro. Thomas Allen, 561; and the first Junior Warden is Bro. Robert Dyson Nutt, 1618. The lodge is started under very good auspices, and promises to be as successful as can be desired by the members of the Rite.

The M.W. Pro Grand Master has sanctioned the removal of the Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1524, from the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, to the Moorgate-street Station Restaurant, E.C., where the future meetings will be held.

We understand that another effort to provide high-class serial literature for boys is about to be made. Messrs. Griffith and Ferran, whose name since the time of Oliver Goldsmith, has been identified with the production of books for the young, intend to begin with the coming year the publication of a new penny weekly entitled "The Union Jack: Tales for British Boys,"—edited by the popular veteran W. H. G. Kingston. The venture will have the distinctive character of being devoted entirely to the publication of serial tales, and it will thus, it is hoped, enter more directly into competition with the pernicious literature supplied so liberally in that form to the rising generation. The authors who are already enlisted are known favourites, their names are a guarantee that the stories will be healthy and vigorous in tone, and while they will recount adventures by land and sea, life in the Colonies and foreign countries, hair breadth escapes, and scenes and events at home and abroad, they will always inculcate the right principles and manly virtues which characterise the true English gentleman.

Owing to unavoidable circumstances, the Bishop of St. Asaph is obliged to postpone his intended ordination, which was fixed for the 21st inst., to February 22nd next.

Bro. the Rev. Dr. Lee has commenced his duties as preacher at Gray's-inn Chapel.

Bros. Sir Francis Truscott (Lord Mayor), Woolton, and Bayley (Sheriffs) will attend the re-opening service of St. Sepulchre's Church, on Sunday, the 25th proximo.

The installation meeting of the Confidence Lodge, No. 193, was held on Monday evening last, at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. Owing to severe illness the W.M. elect, Bro. Footitt, was unable to attend. The installation ceremony was, therefore, postponed until the February meeting. At the suggestion of Bro. Samuel Webb, Past Master, the Wardens were invested to enable them to serve the proper period of twelve months. A full report of the proceedings is in type, but is unavoidably postponed until next week.

A meeting of the St. Alban's Cathedral Masonic Restoration Fund Committee will be held on Monday next, the 15th inst., at 4 o'clock "to consider a fresh form of circular drawn up by Bro. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., and for general business."

The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket-Book for 1880, price post free 2s. 1d. (London: Mr. George Kenning).—The object of the compiler of this neat little volume is to supply to the brethren of the "Craft" a correct and trustworthy calendar and pocket-book. A glance at the contents will convince the merest novice that wherever Freemasonry exists—and where does it not?—there the "Cosmopolitan Calendar" will guide and give definite information of distant spots, and of numerous bodies of whose very existence some of the "Craft" are probably altogether ignorant. A handy companion for the pocket, it will tell the wanderer of mystic councils and far-off lodges, and will keep alive that interest in the universal organisation which want of knowledge is apt to chill, and forgetfulness is likely to destroy. Besides being a comprehensive book of reference, it contains the names of officers in Great Britain and Ireland, the Continent of Europe, Canada, New Brunswick, British Columbia, United States, Central and South America, Egypt, and Peru, and full particulars of every Grand Masonic body throughout the globe. There is a calendar of notable days and meetings, and also a sheet of blanks for memos. and general information. No Mason should be without this compact and handy little pocket-book.—European Mail, Nov. 21st.

"H.M.S. Pinafore" reached its 500th representation on Saturday last at the Opera Comique, and appears to enjoy more success the longer it is performed. The performance by the juvenile company will commence on Tuesday afternoon next.

The Rev. Dr. S. Wainwright will preach a sermon at St. Bride's, Fleet-street, on Sunday morning next, on behalf of the Post Office branch of the Church Association.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CONFIDENCE LODGE (No. 193).—The installation meeting of this old lodge was held on Monday, the 8th inst., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, when a somewhat unusual circumstance occurred. The W.M. elect, Bro. Footitt, had been confined to his house for a time by a severe attack of gout, but had confidently hoped to be able to be present on this occasion. Only in the afternoon was he directed by his doctor not to leave his rooms, and in consequence had to telegraph to the Installing Master, Bro. Samuel Webb, to that effect. This announcement elicited many expressions of regret and sympathy among the brethren. The lodge was opened in due form at four o'clock, by the W.M., Bro. Thomas B. Biddle, who was supported by Bros. Walter James, J.W.; O. Shackell, P.M., Secretary; Henry Webb, P.M.; Hen. Leah, P.M.; W. D. Kershaw, P.M.; Dr. Bonney, P.M.; G. F. Warne, P.M.; Samuel Webb, P.M. 1287, P.M.; J. Shackell, P.M.; Bedford Lemere, S.D.; F. H. Clemow, F. J. Heale, James Smith, Frank Silvester, Walter Wood, B. P. Todd, R. Pye, J. J. F. Williams, C. H. Davis, E. J. Sugg, H. A. Woodwell, J. Wood, E. Butcher, E. A. King, W. Prickell, W. Cubitt, W. C. Grounds, W. Harding, James Hall, E. Symons, J. Roberts, George P. Nightingale, E. H. Walden, H. L. Alston, J. Passingham, G. Masters, J. Williams, S. Dicketts, G. Peachey, A. Stearn, J. J. Craske, W. Mager, E. V. Fithian, and the following visiting brethren: Bros. Emler, P.M. 879; C. W. Wise, P.M. 1158; T. W. Love, P.M. 1178; E. Bruin, P.M. 1575; H. T. Nell, 45; W. Skilleter, 483; W. D. Woodward, 548; George P. Gillard, 657; John Jones, 1227; Sep. T. Williams, 1261; W. J. Kennaby, 1420; A. H. Goggs, 1613; R. Clark, 1613; J. Thompson, 1693; A. E. Western, 1693; Lewis Solomon, 1732; and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). The first business before the lodge was that of raising Bro. Williams, which was followed by the initiation of three gentlemen, Messrs. Edward Alfred King, S. Dicketts, and G. P. Dicketts, both ceremonies being well performed by the W.M., ably assisted by his officers. Past Master Bro. Samuel Webb then announced to the brethren, that owing to Bro. Footitt's illness, as referred to above, the installation ceremony could not be proceeded with, and on his proposition, seconded by Bro. W. D. Kershaw, P.M., a vote of condolence with the W.M. elect was unanimously passed. To enable the Wardens to serve their proper term of office, the W.M., Bro. Biddle, by consent of the Past Masters, appointed and invested Bros. Walter James, as S.W.; and Bedford Lemere, as J.W.; the investment of the other officers remaining over until the meeting in February, when we hope Bro. Footitt will be well enough to be present. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the new banqueting hall, where dinner was served in Bro. Clemow's well-known first-rate style, and under that brother's immediate superintendence. The W.M. (who was creditably brief in his remarks) proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In proposing the toast of "The W.M., Bro. Biddle," the I.P.M. referred to the absence of the W.M. elect, which he was sure was a source of great regret to all present, but it was gratifying to know that in their present W.M. they had a brother as well able to perform the duties appertaining to that office. It was his pleasing duty to present him with a Past Master's jewel, and he sincerely trusted that he would live many years to wear it among them. In proposing "The Health of the Past Masters," the W.M. said it was a toast always received with acclamations, for the Past Masters of the Confidence Lodge so well attended to their duties that they gained the respect and admiration of them all. Bro. Samuel Webb in the course of his reply referred to the absence of Bro. Footitt, which no one regretted more than himself. He (Bro. Footitt) was a man deserving the respect of all, and he (Bro. Webb) was sure they all sympathised with him in his great disappointment at being absent that evening. The officers that had been appointed was a perfectly legal matter, as until a new Master was installed Bro. Biddle was still their head. He sincerely hoped Bro. Footitt would be well enough to attend the next meeting, when he would have the pleasure of installing him into the chair, which pleasure had been denied him that evening. In proposing the toast of "The Officers," the W.M. thanked those brethren for the very efficient manner in which they had supported him, and was very pleased, in the absence of their new Master, to have had the privilege of investing the Senior and Junior Wardens. Bros. Walter James Bedford Lemere, and H. Webb replied. The Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE (No. 534).—At a meeting held at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 11th inst., the following officers were present: Bros. Aspinall, W.M.; Ebner, I.P.M.; Dr. Jagirski, S.W.; Dr. Corrie Jackson, J.W.; Nowacowski, P.M., Treas.; Paas, P.M., Sec.; Lancaster, S.D.; Smith, J.D.; Runtz, I.G.; Beckett, Tyler, P.M. Cumming, and about twenty-five brethren, besides two visitors, were in attendance. The work, consisting of the initiation of a candidate, was carried out by the W.M., who also presented Bro. Jameson with the distinctive jewel which the members of the Polish National Lodge are allowed to wear by special permission of the Grand Lodge of England. The lodge was then closed, when the W.M. received the "Heartly good wishes" of the visitors. The banquet was held afterwards at the Freemasons' Tavern, and Bro. Best is to be complimented both on the repast and the way in which it was served. The cloth being cleared, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proceeded with, and during the evening the brethren were greatly entertained by the glee singing of Bros. Forster, Gordon, Lancaster, and Runtz, whose abilities are so well known to the visitors of this lodge. Bro. Neidliski, the celebrated violinist, who is also a member of this lodge, gave some magnificent performances on his violin, which brought down a perfect storm of applause. The Tyler's toast brought a pleasantly spent evening to a close.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—This lodge met on the 1st inst., at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. There were present Bros. T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx., W.M.; Kohler, S.W.; Speedy, J.W.; W. Stuart, P.M., Sec.; W. Mann, acting I.P.M.; Webb, S.D.; Marsden, J.D.; Stranger, W.S.; Koch, P.M.; Geo. Everett, P.M.; Higgins, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M.; and Longstaffe, Tyler. There were no visitors. In consequence of the recent death of Bro. E. Page, P.G.S., P.M. and Treasurer of the lodge, the brethren appeared in Masonic mourning. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Robertson was duly raised to the Degree of a M.M. by the W.M., who subsequently gave the traditional history of the Third Degree and the lecture on the Tracing Board. Upon the motion of Bro. William Mann, it was unanimously resolved that a letter of condolence should be forwarded by the Secretary, upon behalf of the lodge, to Mrs. Page, the widow of the late Treasurer. Several communications from absent brethren having been read, the lodge was closed according to ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. Upon the removal of the cloth the only toasts given were "The Queen and Craft" and "The W.M." The proceedings then terminated.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 13th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Bro. George W. Blackie, W.M., presided. The other officers present were Bros. Catchpole, S.W.; Hamer, J.W.; Taylor, S.D.; Kiffie, J.D.; Keeble, I.G.; Baber, D.C.; Jenkins, Org.; Freeman, I.P.M.; Headon, P.M. and Treas.; Moody, P.M. and Sec.; H. Thompson, P.M. 177 and 1158 (Freemason); a goodly muster of members, and the following visitors: Bros. G. Cutler, 212, P.M.; Jno. Hawkins, 25; A. Lefeaux, 30, P.M.; W. J. Illiffe, 78; Jno. Robertson, 144; Jos. Simpson, 539; Rossignol, 1216; W. B. Greening, 1572; W. Richardson, 1658; E. C. Burnett, 1673, J.D.; W. H. Barlow, 1777, Sec.; Geo. Cook, 1815; Lawrence, 1804. The minutes of the last lodge were read by Bro. Moody, the Secretary, and confirmed. Bro. Postans was introduced and questioned as to his proficiency in the science; he then withdrew. The first business really transacted was the candidature of Mr. Wm. Wood for initiation, who was proposed by Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., and seconded by Bro. N. B. Headon, P.M. and Treas., and the ballot being unanimous in his favour he was most impressively and carefully initiated by the W.M. into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. The lodge was then advanced to the Second Degree, and Bro. Postans was passed to the Degree of F.C. The lodge having resumed to the First Degree, the case of a brother belonging to a lodge in Nova Scotia was considered, and such action taken upon it as was deemed to be necessary. A proposition for initiation at the next meeting having been received, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the Pillar Room, where a good plain supper was provided. This having been disposed of, and grace said, the W.M. said the first toast he had the honour to propose was "The Queen and the Craft," and, in doing so, said that they as Freemasons were always ready to show their loyalty to the Queen, who was possessed of many good qualities, by Masonic honours. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was one that was always well received amongst Freemasons, as it was "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master." His Royal Highness, as they were all well aware, took great interest in everything appertaining to Freemasonry, and he congratulated the members on having such a ruler over them, and as long as he was so he was well assured that Freemasonry would flourish. (The toast was drunk with enthusiastic cheering.) The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was "The Right Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past." As regarded the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G. Master, a great deal of the work that came before the Grand Lodge devolved upon him, and he believed he might say that all who had witnessed the impressive manner in which he had occupied the chair in Grand Lodge would agree with him that he was a most excellent substitute in the absence of the Grand Master. As regarded the rest of the Grand Officers, he thought that they were very proper men and in their proper places. Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., said: Brethren, the toast I have now the honour to propose is that of "Our Worshipful Master." I am sure I feel like you do yourselves, glad to see him so well, and that he is able to do the work so well as he has done this evening. I have had to say some things about him over and over again, but I feel that Bro. Blackie is a most worthy brother, and that he will follow in the footsteps of those who have gone before him. (Cheers.) Bro. Blackie, W.M., said: Past Masters and brethren, I thank you very much for the kind manner in which you have received the toast of my health this evening. It is only what you have done before, not only since I have occupied the chair, but upon all other occasions. You placed me in the chair, and it is pleasing to me to know that I have given you satisfaction. I shall endeavour to perform my duties, not only in the lodge, but at the festive board, to merit your approbation, and to maintain the Masonic prestige of your lodge. The W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was a very important one, and that was "The Health of their Brother Initiate." They had the pleasure that evening of receiving into their assembly a gentleman who was well vouched for, and whom he was now proud to call brother. He hoped that the ceremony he had gone through that evening had been impressed upon his mind, and that he would go away with a good idea of what was Freemasonry. As in ancient times their brothers could hew, mark, and square stones, in every step he would learn something that was good, and by diligence in due time might arrive at the summit of his profession by the use of well tried and proper implements, and by observing the daily practice of secrecy and fidelity in all his actions. Bro. Wood said he sincerely thanked the brethren for the very kind manner in which his health had been proposed and received, and for the honour they had done him in admitting him into the mysteries of Freemasonry. From what he had gone through he felt assured that it would be fixed on his mind. At present he was only a very rough stone, but no doubt he should get smoother as he went on, and he really thanked them very much for the honour they had conferred upon him. The W. Master said the next toast he had to propose was that of "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and he was sorry there were so few of them present on that occasion. In their Immediate Past Master, Bro. Freeman, he felt he had a pillar of strength, and everything he undertook he discharged most efficiently, believing, as he did, that he was the right man in the right place. As to Bro. Headon, he had done good work as their Treasurer, and there was Bro. Stevens. He wished he could see all the Past Masters present, and, as they only met once a month, he thought they might strain a point to be present. Bro. Freeman, I.P.M., thanked the brethren very much for drinking his health, coupled with that of the Past Masters. He felt very proud of the position he held in the lodge, because he knew he held it from the confidence the brethren had reposed in him. When he first entered Freemasonry he thought the W. Master was most clever, never believing that he should ever rise to such a position, as there was so much to learn, however great might be his ambition to rise to the chair of W. Master. He thanked the brethren for having placed him in that position, and as I.P.M. he should do all in his power to promote the prosperity of the lodge. Bros. Stevens and Headon also returned thanks. The W. Master next gave "The Visitors," and said the Great City Lodge was always ready to receive them, for which several of the visitors returned thanks, expressing the satisfaction they had derived by their visit. The W.M. next gave "The Officers of the Lodge," which was responded to by most of them, and the Tyler's toast brought a most harmonious meeting to a close. Some very good songs were sung and recitations given during the evening.

CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1572).—A large number of brethren assembled at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, on Saturday week, the 6th inst., to witness the installation of Bro. George Briggs as W.M., which ceremony was most creditably performed by Bro. T. S. Hellier, I.P.M., Bro. Cowan, P.M., assisting as D. of C. There were present Bros. T. Stacy Hellier, W.M.; Nelson Reed, P.M. 1671, S.W.; George Briggs, W.M. elect, J.W.; James Cowan, I.P.M.; Henry Gustavus Busa, Hon. P.M., Asst. Grand Secretary; James Terry, Hon. P.M., Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; J. Clarkcoats, Treas.; W. S. Whitaker, P.M., Sec.; George A. Brock, S.D.; J. E. Burman, W.S.; L. Hopkins, Organist; Richd. Cotton, I.G.; A. Pearce, D. of C.; J. Steedman, P.M. 754, Tyler; W. White, W. Poole, Bullock, R. E. H. Griffin, W. Russell, R. Hobbs, J. W. Bennett, Z. H. Perkins, J. Russell, E. A. Packer, J. W. Mayett, J. Byles, T. Brown, J. C. Werring, Wm. Berry Greening, John C. Corris, John Garratt, S. Garratt, W. E. Leman, and the following visitors:—Bros. Maccrae Moir, P.M. 66; James Kew, P.M. 179; Charles G. Cutler, P.M. 212; J. S. Mutch, P.M. 706; H. A. Lovett, P.M. 1314; E. Terry, P.M. 1319; H. Bowman Speedy, S.W. 177; J. H. Williams, S.W. 1056; E. Hollandt, 22; J. H. Sassan, 742; Walter J. Nerlides, 463; J. Stedman, 902; R. Greening, 1426; James Brignall, 1586; W. H. Baker, 1641; Chas. Sisson, 1671; Percy Challwin, 1692; W. H. Gunningham, 1707; H. Lesser, W. Deiters, and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, ballot was taken for Mr. John Caesar Corris, which was unanimous in his favour. That gentleman having been properly prepared, was admitted and impressively initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by the W.M., Bro. T. S. Hellier. The brethren below the choir having retired, the ceremony of installation was then proceeded with. On the re-admission of the brethren, the newly-installed W.M., Bro. George Briggs, was proclaimed and saluted according to ancient custom. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bro. Nelson Reed, S.W.; G. Brock, J.W.; J. Clarricoats, Treas.; W. S. Whitaker, P.M., Sec.; F. Morgan (by proxy), S.D.; J. E. Burman, J.D.; R. Cotton, I.G.; A. Pearce, D. of C.; L. Hopkins, Org.; Bullock, W.S.; and W. Steedman, P.M. 754. Tyler. On the proposition of the Secretary, the audit report was taken as read, every member having received a copy with their summons. Letters were then read from Bros. F. Morgan and Munroe, the former apologising for his absence, and the latter brother resigning his membership of the lodge, owing to his leaving England for New Zealand on account of ill-health. The resignation was accepted, but with much regret, many brethren expressing their sincere sympathy with Bro. Munroe. Bro. Nelson Reed gave notice of motion, asking the sanction of the Carnarvon Lodge to a petition being made to Supreme Grand Chapter for a chapter to be attached to their lodge, and to be called the Carnarvon Chapter. The W.M. having consented to act as Steward at the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, it was unanimously resolved that the sum of twenty guineas from the lodge funds be placed upon his list. It was also resolved that the sum of £1 is. be taken from the same fund and given to Bro. Terry towards the annual Christmas treat to the inmates of the Institution at Croydon. Bro. Terry thanked the brethren, on behalf of the old people, for their kindness. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a most sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. W. G. Jennings, the indefatigable manager. On removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the first toast at all Masonic banquets, "The Queen and the Craft," remarking that he could say nothing that would add lustre to the name of her Gracious Majesty, for as Queen and an Englishwoman she had the respect of all. In proposing the toast of "The Grand Officers, Present and Past," which was coupled with the name of Bro. H. G. Buss, the W.M. referred to the illness of Bro. John Hervey, which they all deplored. All the brethren would remember his kindly presence at the consecration. His absence that evening they all regretted. Bro. Buss, in reply, thanked the W.M. for the high compliment paid to the Grand Officers. The Craft were fortunate in having at their head men of such standing, and it would be impossible to find men of such position who would devote more time than they did to the interests of Freemasonry. Bro. Buss then, in feeling terms, referred to Bro. John Hervey's illness, which was so universally deplored. He (Bro. Buss) felt that evening exceedingly at a loss through the absence of Bro. Hervey, who had always sat at his side in that lodge. If the members felt his loss, what must his feelings be? Bro. Buss, in conclusion, said Bro. Hervey would, he was sure, feel delighted at the kind compliment paid to his name when he (Bro. Buss) saw him next. The I.P.M. then gave "The Health of the W.M.," remarking from what the W.M. had done that afternoon he was sure he would carry out what all the preceding Masters of this lodge had, that was to do his own work. Bro. Brooks replied, after which he proposed "The Initiate," and hoped the ceremony he had recently gone through had impressed him as fully as it had the speaker. Bro. Corris thanked the brethren for electing him a member of this honourable lodge. He had for a long period been anxious to become a Mason. Many years back his father had shown him his certificate, and he made up his mind then to belong at some time to the fraternity. Obstacles to his joining had frequently occurred, but the very kind and hearty welcome that had been accorded him that afternoon had quite compensated him for the many delays. "The Installing Officer," was the next toast proposed by the W.M., who said that they had all had the pleasure of seeing Bro. Hellier perform the initiation and installation ceremonies, and they would all agree with him, he knew, that the work had been done admirably. He (Bro. Hellier) had impressed the initiate with a prouder idea of Masonry, it was on the first impressions, he considered that the interest of an initiate depended. The Installing Master had performed the ceremonies with credit to himself and pleasure to them all. He had the honour of presenting Bro. Hellier with a jewel, awarded him by the lodge, and he hoped he would live to wear it for many years, and that it would be transmitted to his children from generation to generation. Bro. Hellier thanked the W.M. for his kind remarks. Were it not, he said, for the assistance of the officers, the W.M. would make but a poor result. He was very thankful he had given so much satisfaction. Bro. Cowell ably responded on behalf of "The Past Masters." In introducing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. said he deemed it a most important toast. It was only by visiting that we saw our defects. They had many visitors present that evening (twenty-two in all); to one and all he gave a hearty welcome. Bro. Macrae Moir, in the course of his reply, said he had never risen in any lodge with more pleasure to respond to this toast. He had never seen the working of a lodge better carried out than that he saw in the Carnarvon Lodge that afternoon. It was very gratifying to see such a show of true Masonic feeling, and he congratulated the lodge upon the harmony and good feeling which existed among them. Bros. H. A. Lovett, Kew, Cutler, and Dr. Cunningham also briefly replied. The W.M., in giving the toast of "The Masonic Charities," gave the old maxim—"Charity blesseth he who gives as well as he who receives." They ought all to be very proud of their Charities. Their I.P.M., Bro. Hellier, intended to represent the lodge at the old people's festival, and he (the W.M.) was very pleased to learn that Bro. Hellier had already £65 on his list, which amount included a donation of ten guineas from the Tyler, Bro. Steedman, and a similar amount from himself. Between this and the 9th of February (the date of the festival) he hoped to collect as much again. Bro. Terry, in reply, thanked the brethren for their liberality, for not one year had passed without the lodge sending to one of the Institutions, concentrating their whole strength on that particular one. In May last Bro. Cowan represented this lodge, which stood fourth on a list of ninety-six Stewards, with the amount of £173. The highest on the list was Bro. Cattle, of the Creaton Lodge, No. 1791, who had taken up the extraordinary amount of £238 odd. He hoped the members of the lodge would enable Bro. Hellier to excel his predecessors, it being but human to endeavour to do so. Bro. Terry then referred to the munificent gift of Bro. Steedman, and after giving some interesting particulars respecting the Institution with which he is so closely connected, concluded by forcibly appealing to the brethren for a continuance of their support. Several other toasts were given, that of the Tyler bringing a most enjoyable evening to a close.

ROYAL KENSINGTON LODGE (No. 1627).—The regular meeting of the above lodge took place on Friday, the 5th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. B. F. Cramer, W.M., in the chair. The following were also present:—Bros. J. B. Stevens, S.W.; G. W. Zustin, J.W.; C. E. Soppet, Treas.; D. M. Dewar, Sec.; E. Delacoste, S.D.; J. B. Ball, J.D.; W. L. Harvey, I.G.; W. E. Gordon Leith, I.P.M.; J. Percy Leith, P.G.D.; C. Waters, G. T. Robinson, G. Masson, and Hy. Langridge. Visitors: Bros. E. P. Albert, P.G.P., 188; W. Shepard, W.M. elect 69; C. H. Paine, 162; G. H. Durrant, 441; H. G. Holt, 167; W. L. Thurgood, 1361; and E. S. Lintott, 1687. The business before the lodge consisted of initiating Messrs. Tanner and Hay, the ceremony being ably worked by W. Bro. Cramer, W.M. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to the banquet. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which being duly honoured, the W.M. briefly proposed "The Health of the Brother Initiates," which was heartily responded to by the brethren. The W.M. then mentioned how grieved the members of the lodge were at the news of the indisposition of W. Bro. Hyde Pullen, who for the first time since the formation of the lodge had been absent from his duties. W. Bro. Dewar, the indefatigable Secretary, undertook to convey to W. Bro. Hyde Pullen the regrets of the lodge. After proposing "The Health of the Visitors," coupled with the name of so distinguished a Mason as Bro. Sheperd, W.M. elect of Lodge No. 69, which was very happily acknowledged by him, he congratulated the lodge on its prosperity, which, he said, was unexampled in so young a lodge. The toast of "The Officers" concluded a very pleasant and harmonious meeting.

THE CRUSADERS LODGE (No. 1677).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 10th inst., at the New Market Hotel, West Smithfield. Bro. Thomas Goode, W.M., presided, and was supported by the following officers: Bros. Simmons, S.W.; Rothschild, J.W.; Maples, Treas.; Defrez, Sec.; Milward, S.D.; Caldernood, J.D.; Gay, D.C.; Rushton, Org.; and Piggott, I.G. The lodge having been opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, the minutes of the last lodge were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. Aynsley, Fletcher, Budden, and Lenard were introduced and questioned as to the progress they had made in Freemasonry. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and they were most impressively raised to the Degree of M.M., the whole ceremony being most ably rendered. The next business was to pass Bro. Augustus Thomas Buckingham to the Second Degree, and in this instance our worthy brother set a pattern to others who may have to pass a similar ordeal. He went through his preliminary examination without the slightest assistance, and answered every question put to him without hesitation, and it is a most needless to say that the interest he has taken from the earliest period of his entrance into the Order augurs well for his future devotion to the interests of Freemasonry. It was agreed, and passed unanimously, that the sum of £10 10s. be voted from the funds of the lodge to be placed on Bro. Dr. Hunter's list, who will as Steward represent this lodge at the festival for the benefit of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and from what was stated, this lodge will not be the lowest on the list on that occasion. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. In the course of the evening, Dr. Hunter, in acknowledging the toast of "The Past Masters," heartily thanked the brethren for the subscription they had placed on his list for the next festival, and it was also announced that five of the youngest brethren had each subscribed £5 5s to make themselves life subscribers of this Institution. The W.M. in proposing their healths congratulated the lodge on having such worthy members, who from the handsome subscriptions they had made showed the deep interest they felt in the prosperity of Freemasonry. Several other toasts were given, and a very harmonious meeting was spent under the presidency of the esteemed W.M.

CREATON LODGE (No. 1791).—The sixth regular meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 11th inst. The lodge was opened at 5.15, when, in the absence of the W.M., Col. Creaton,

Bro. J. J. Cattle, P.M., acted as W.M., supported by Bros. H. J. Johnson, S.W.; J. Williams, J.W.; E. Thurkle, P.M., Treas.; J. Nielson, S.D.; H. J. Buck, J.D.; W. Carrington, I.G.; J. Kift, Organist; R. G. Shute, D.C.; W. Williams, W.S.; John Woodstock, P.M. 723; Tyler; A. Wolter, G. F. Williams, T. T. Matthews, A. D. Renshaw, E. Austin, J. B. Colwill, R. H. Rogers, James P. Dee, J. W. Hancock, G. Slingsby, D. Ferguson, J. J. Johnson, and the following visitors: Bros. Aeneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar; John A. Rucker, P.G. D., P.M. 66; Peter de Lande Long, P.G.D.; John Sampson Peiree, P.G.S., P.M. 2; Wharton P. Hood, P.M. 2; H. A. Dubois, J. G. W. Midx.; W. Vincent, W.M. 1624; J. Finch, P.M. 173; S. J. Phillips, P.M. 173; H. M. Levy, P.M. 188; James Terry, P.M. 228, P.G.W. Herts; J. L. Coulton, P.M. 382; D. H. McLeod, P.M. 1624; George Davis, S.W. 167; S. Carrington, S.W. 1314; Thomas Cull, S.W. 1446; Thomas Cross, J.W. 1194; C. Thompson, J.W. 1769; F. Edgington, S.D. 1321; C. Taylor, J.D. 1624; J. Burden, 11; E. W. Collins, 25; W. E. Davies, 606; W. H. Munday, 1201; Seymour Lucas, 1441; W. G. Reynolds, 1441; R. Palowkar, 1527; J. W. Ray, 1624; H. Scott, 1624; A. S. Walmsley, 1624; and F. A. Kelly (Freemason). The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. J. J. Johnson and G. Williams having answered the questions efficiently, they were entrusted and retired. (In this lodge it is expected that all candidates should be thoroughly acquainted with what they have to do, and answer all questions without dictation.) The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when, being re-admitted, Bro. P.M. Cattle ably raised them to the Sublime Degree. The Worshipful Master (Col. Creaton) having arrived, the lodge was resumed to the First Degree, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, Bros. Hy. W. Hancock, Jas. O'Dea, and Thos. Pink having answered the questions in the same excellent manner, were entrusted and retired. During their absence the ballot was taken for Mr. Hensman, Mr. Long, Mr. H. J. Saul, and Mr. H. Johnson, which proved unanimous. The lodge was resumed to the Second Degree, when the W.M. passed Bros. Hancock, O'Dea, and Pink in his usual efficient manner to the Degree of F.C. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree, when Messrs. Hensman, Long, and Saul, were duly admitted to the light of Freemasonry. This being the night of election Bro. H. J. Johnson was unanimously elected W.M., and Bro. P.M. Thurkle, Treasurer. It was very satisfactory to notice that every member of the lodge was present, and although quite a young lodge their members are very numerous. Before the lodge was closed, permission was asked by the brethren to form a lodge of instruction. Bro. Cattle, P.M., in proposing this motion, said he was sure that those brethren who were interested in this would leave no stone unturned to do honour to the mother lodge. Every member he had spoken to had promised to join it, and he was quite sure from the zeal the brethren had already evinced the Creaton Lodge would be adding much to its usefulness by granting its permission. Bro. J. Williams, J.W., seconded the proposition, and, subject to the permission being granted, the lodge of instruction will be held at the Albert Hotel, Notting-hill Gate, on Wednesday evening. The Secretary then read a letter of apology for absence from Bro. Duke, a candidate for passing, but who could not arrive in time from Australia, also from Bros. Sir A. Woods, P.G.D., Erasmus Wilson, P.G.D., and others, who were prevented by severe colds from being present. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet, admirably served under the personal superintendence of Bro. Dawkins. On the removal of the cloth, grace was sung by Bros. Cattle and Collins. The W.M., Bro. Col. Creaton, in proposing the first toast, said at that late hour, owing to the great work that had been before the lodge, he should be very brief. The first toast was that of "The Queen and the Craft," followed by that of "Their Beloved Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales." The next toast was that of "The M.W. Pro Grand Master, Lord Carnarvon, the R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," with which toast the gallant Colonel coupled the name of Bro. Aeneas John McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar. That distinguished brother, in reply, said the Worshipful Master had had good means of judging of the merits of the various Grand Officers during the many years he had been among them, and recently he had had the pleasure of being unanimously elected by the Craft to the only office it was in the power of the brethren to elect a member to. Bro. J. J. Cattle then rose to propose "The Health of the Worshipful Master." They were all proud of having such a distinguished brother as their head. They all knew what an interest he took in Freemasonry, more especially in the Masonic Charities, and it was owing to his close connexion with these Institutions that he (Bro. Cattle) was enabled as Steward to take up to the festival of the Girls' School the enormous sum of 228 guineas, the highest amount of any of the Stewards. The amount collected was the more remarkable, as the lodge had hardly been formed three months. Bro. Cattle then drew the attention of the brethren to the fact that Bro. Johnson, S.W., W.M. elect, intended to represent the lodge at the old people's festival, in February next, and trusted they would give him all their support, as no other brother would represent the Creaton Lodge. Bro. Cattle then asked the brethren to drink to the health of their W.M., who was a light to the lodge and beloved by the brethren. Col. Creaton, in reply, said he felt very much flattered by the kind manner in which his health had been proposed and drank. He could assure the brethren that his reign had been one of continued sunshine. Since his first connexion with the lodge his heart had been with them. The Colonel then gave the toast of "The Initiates," wishing them, in the name of the lodge, a hearty welcome, and hoped that the ceremony they had that evening passed through had made a lasting impression upon them. The initiates neatly and briefly replied. The W.M. then proposed a toast which he said was very near and dear to his heart, he—referred to "The Masonic Charities," Bro. Terry, who was present, he had no doubt would find a few words to say in reply. Bro. Terry was sure that if there was one brother who could do more justice to the toast than another, it was Col. Creaton. This lodge was certainly to be congratulated for several reasons—having a Past Grand Deacon as their first W.M., and that during his year of office he elected to the office of Grand Treasurer. It was also the first time that a W.M. of a lodge had presided as Chairman at a festival, which Col. Creaton did at the festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls in May last. Bro. Terry then went on to say that Bro. Johnson, their S.W. and W.M. elect, would act as Steward at his festival in February next, when he hoped his Institution would again score a success. Bro. Johnson was desirous of obtaining as large a list as Bro. Cattle had secured. Bro. Terry thought a good opportunity presented itself to the brethren of paying a great compliment to the outgoing and incoming W.M. by sending the Steward to the festival with a large amount. The outgoing Master was the Treasurer of the Institution, and the incoming Master was the Steward. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Visitors," which was acknowledged in an amusing manner by Bro. J. A. Rucker, P.G.D. Bro. Col. Creaton next gave "The W.M. elect," remarking that the brethren would never, he was sure, regret electing him to the office, he having always paid so much attention to Freemasonry in all its details. Bro. Johnson thanked the brethren for the hearty manner in which his health had been drunk, and promised to do his best during his year of office. He had very much pleasure in announcing that he had already on his list sums amounting in all to £130, which, he thought, was a good foundation for his hoping to excel his Bro. Cattle's list of £138. Several other toasts were proposed, including "The Officers," acknowledged by Bro. Cattle, and "The Press," which was replied to by Bros. F. A. Kelly and Levy.

SUNDERLAND.—St. John's Lodge (No. 80).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, on Tuesday, the 9th inst., at four p.m. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Newton. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. Supported by a large number of P.M.'s and brethren the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. The ceremony of installation took place. Bro. Douglass, P.M., presented Bro. Hawdon to the Installing Master, Bro. Turnbull, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The Secretary read the Ancient Charges, to all of which he gave his unqualified assent. The lodge was raised to the Third Degree, when the ceremony was done in a beautiful manner. The lodge was regularly closed to the First Degree. The W.M. invested the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year: Bros. Newton, I.P.M.; Kinmond, S.W.; Yela, J.W.; Godfordson, Treas.; Curry, Sec.; R. Yela, S.D.; Wilson, J.D.; Robinson, I.G.; and Thompson, Tyler. All business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom.

SUNDERLAND.—Palatine Lodge (No. 97).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Park-terrace, on Thursday, the 11th inst., at four p.m. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Watson. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed. A large number of Past Masters and visitors were present. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree: the ceremony of the W.M. then took place. Bro. Davis presented Bro. Tonkinson, S.W., to the Installing Master, Bro. Watson, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation, the better to qualify him for the work. The Ancient Charges were read by the Secretary, to all of which Bro. Tonkinson gave his assent. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when the ceremony of installation was gone through in a highly Masonic manner. The lodge was regularly reduced to the First Degree. The W.M. then invested the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year: Bros. Watson, I.P.M.; Leech, S.W.; Watson, J.W.; Twizell, Treas.; Moore, Sec.; McNamara, S.D.; Fairclough, J.D.; Clay, D.C.; Deans, I.G.; Thompson, Tyler; Wake, Org.; Vincent, S.S.; Patterson, J.S.; Singleton and Nasbit, Auditors. Bro. Clay, P.M., moved that two guineas be given to the Infirmary, two guineas to the Orphan Asylum, and one guinea to the Widows and Orphans' Society. All business being done, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom.

IPSWICH.—St. Luke's Lodge (No. 225).—The installation ceremony of the W.M. for the ensuing year was performed on Wednesday evening, 10th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Soane-street, Ipswich. Bro. Wm. Goodwin Cunnold, S.W., was duly installed into the chair of King Solomon by his friend, Bro. Asher Barfield, W.M. Medina, 35, P.M. Zeland, 511, P.Z. Mount Sinai Chapter, 19, in his usual and impressive manner. During the Board of Installed Masters, Bro. Castley, W.M. 114, P.G. J.W. of Suffolk, acted as S.W.; and Bro. W. B. Jeffries, W.M. 376, P.G.S. of W. of Suffolk, as J.W. The retiring Master, Bro. T. J. Wentworth, P.G.S.D. of Suffolk, has during his year of office had the pleasure of seeing this good old lodge add many fresh laurels to its long and honourable career. It is the largest and one of the oldest in the province. During Bro. Wentworth's year of office the new Ipswich Masonic Hall has been built, owing its erection in a great measure to his energy. Bro. Cunnold was the first installed as W.M. for 225 in the new hall, and the way in which he was supported leaves no doubt of the old lodge keeping up its prestige under his presidency.

Bro. Cunnold, W.M., invested his officers as follows: Bros. Wentworth, I.P.M.; Napier, S.W.; Talbot, J.W.; Abbott, S.D.; Daniels, J.D.; Barber, P.M., Sec.; Clarke, P.M., Treas.; W. S. Westgate, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., as M.C.; Brooks, I.G.; Leathers, S.S.; Fisk, J.S.; Spalding, Tyler. Few lodges can boast of such an energetic and zealous Secretary as Bro. Barber, who is highly esteemed by every member. Letters of apology were read from the following brethren, who were absent from unavoidable causes: Bros. T. C. Cobbold, C.B., M.P.; Boby, P.M. 114, Whistock, Doric; Grimwood, P.M. Sudbury; Fraser, P.M. 376; Towensend, P.M. 959, P.P.S.G.W.; Elkington, 376; Smith, B.S.R.W.; Butcher, Star of the East, and others. Up to the last moment the Very W. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, D.P.G.M. of Suffolk, P.G.C. of England, and Bro. Lucia, P.G.S. of Suffolk, P.G.S.B. of England, were expected, but were unfortunately prevented from attending by unforeseen circumstances. The W.M. having closed the lodge (before which the offertory was appropriated to a Christmas dinner for the poor children of Ipswich), the brethren in strong numbers retired to the banqueting hall, and partook of the good things for the body, prepared in his usual able manner by Bro. Harrison, Bro. Cunnold, W.M., presided, supported right and left by Bros. T. J. Wentworth, I.P.M., S.G.D. of Suffolk; Garwood, P.M.; Barber, P.M.; Napier, S.W.; Talbot, J.W.; Abbot, S.D.; Daniels, J.D.; Brooks, I.G.; Westgate, D.C.; Leathers, S.S.; Fisk, J.S.; O. F. Gibbons, Orton, Crawley, Turner, Buckingham, Sealey, Hammond, Tye, Canham, Holt, Crannis, Hillyard, Smith, Cooke, King, Senton, R. Senton, White, and others. Among the visitors were Bros. Castley, P.G.J.W., W.M. 114; Rev. Sanderson, P.P.G.C., W.M. 959; Barfield, W.M. 35; Dr. Mills, P.P.G.S.W., P.M. 376; Tracy, P.P.S.G.W., P.M. 376; Dr. Staddon, P.P.G.S.D., P.M. 376; Barber, P.P.G.O., P.M. 114; Sidney, P.M. 376; R. S. Anness, W.M. elect, 376; W. G. Elliston, W.M. elect 114; W. Spalding, Sec., P.M. 114; B. P. Grimsey, S.D. 114; F. Hammond, Hon. Sec. Hall Trustees; Cooke, Graystone, Steele, 959. The usual Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. The manner in which "The Healths of the W.M. and I.P.M." were received by the brethren shows the confidence they have in and the regard they bear to the rulers of the lodge. Fine selections of music were given during the evening by the talented Bros. Cooke, Abbott, Steele, and Graystone. A very pretty piece of impromptu poetry was received from the I.P.M. on resigning his office by the W.M. This was one of the many happy meetings that prove a lodge may be old but very fruitful. If the good will and "Hearty good wishes" of the members of his own lodge, of the brethren of the other lodges in the town, and the Provincial Grand Officers of the province may be taken as a test, Bro. Cunnold sails forth with every hope of a happy and prosperous year of office, and the year 1880 will, as regards 225, stand out as a year of peace, concord, and prosperity.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. There was not a very large attendance. Bro. E. Cardwell, the W.M., occupied the chair of K.S., supplemented by Bros. Warbrick, S.W.; Croskell, J.W.; Atkinson, S.D.; R. Stanton, acting J.D.; Gregson, I.G.; and Bailey, S.S. The lodge was opened with the usual formalities, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Warbrick, S.W., was unanimously elected Worshipful Master; Bro. James Hatch, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer; Bro. A. K. Allinson, Tyler; and Bros. Bailey, Tbishlethwaite, and R. Bond, Auditors. On the motion of Bro. James Hatch, seconded by Bro. Duff, P.M., a vote of condolence was passed to Bro. R. Hartley, on the bereavement he had sustained through the sudden death of an only and much loved daughter. The installation meeting and festival of St. John was appointed to be held on Monday, the 29th inst. The usual proclamations were then made and responded to, and the lodge was closed in accordance with the custom observed among Masons.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, the 8th inst., the only business being the installation of the W.M., and the appointment of officers for the ensuing year, under new arrangements. Hitherto this lodge has been restrictive in its selection of candidates, admitting only those connected with the professions or otherwise of a high social grade. It may be doubtful whether such a course is in accordance with the principles of Freemasonry, and it is certainly undesirable in places where the absence of other lodges prevents opportunities of entrance into the Order on the part of gentlemen of undoubted character and ample pecuniary resources, such as to allow them to participate in the great charitable objects of the Institution. One might have supposed that a lodge of this exclusive character would flourish in such a city as Bath. This appears, however, not to have been the case, and it became a serious question whether the lodge should be closed, or thrown open under arrangements similar to those of the other lodges which are so prosperous. After due consideration the latter course was determined upon, and it is earnestly hoped, not only by its few members, but by those of the sister lodges in the city, that a more flourishing state of affairs will be the result. At five p.m. Bro. Capt. Dickenson, W.M., took the chair, supported by V.W. Bro. R. C. Else, D.P.G.M.; Bros. Phillips as I.P.M.; Johnston, S.W.; Rev. Sanderson, J.W.; H. Culliford Hopkins, P.M., Secretary; Luder, P.M.; Bush, P.M.; and other officers. Among the visitors present were Bros. Col. England, W.M. 53; Braham, W.M. 41; General Doherty, P.P.G.S.W.; Dill, P.M. 906; Dr. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire, &c. The lodge was opened in the First Degree by the W.M., and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The D.P.G.M. then took the chair, and having opened the lodge in the Second Degree, duly obligated Bro. Johnston as W.M. elect. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and the new W.M. was installed in an unusually pleasing and graceful manner, the brethren present heartily joining in the customary greetings and salutations. Bros. Capt. Dickenson was invested as I.P.M.; Rev. Sanderson as S.W.; Bush, P.M., J.W.; H. Culliford Hopkins, P.M., Secretary, &c. A vote of thanks was passed to the D.P.G.M. for his kind attendance and services, and his consent having been obtained, as well as that of Dr. H. Hopkins, who had repeatedly given assistance in the lodge, both were proposed as honorary members, to be balloted for at the next meeting. "Hearty good wishes" were expressed for prosperity under the new regime, and the lodge was closed at 6.30, when an adjournment took place to the Castle Hotel for the usual banquet.

HAMMERSMITH.—Ranelagh Lodge (No. 534).—The December meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 9th inst., at the Bell and Anchor Hotel, and, taking into consideration the miserable state of the weather, the attendance was good, showing the popularity of the Craft in this western suburb. Punctually to the time named on the summons Bro. Watson, W.M., opened the lodge, supported by Bro. Fisher, I.P.M.; Lines, P.M., Treasurer; Alais, P.M., Secretary; Shaw, S.W.; Warner, J.W.; Festa (acting), S.D.; Ellingford, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Oliver, Organist; Purdew, W.S.; and Church, Tyler. The P.M.'s present were Bros. Butt and Millis. The work of the evening consisted of raising two brethren, and initiating one gentleman into the mysteries of the Order. A warm discussion then took place as to the advisability of moving the lodge from its present quarters, and a Committee was appointed to gain some information of the capabilities of the buildings in the neighbourhood where they would be likely to meet with the requisite accommodation. The lodge being closed, the brethren dined together, and Bro. Mills (the host) is to be complimented on the able way he catered for his visitors. The loyal toasts were well received, and the W.M. from the lateness of the hour was obliged to only shortly preface the Masonic ones. The musical arrangements of the evening were under the direction of Bro. Oliver.

SALISBURY.—Elias de Derham Lodge (No. 586).—The regular monthly meeting was held on Thursday, the 11th inst., which was numerously attended. Bro. A. Tucker, W.M., presided, assisted by the following officers, viz.: Bros. Stokes, P.P.G.S.W. Wilts, as I.P.M.; Card, S.W.; Cross, J.W.; Futcher, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. Hants and I. of Wight, Treas.; Rumbold, P.M., Sec.; Hannan, S.D.; Bartlett, J.D.; Buttifant, I.G.; Silverthorn, Tyler; Goodridge, Asst. Tyler. The following were also present: Bros. Blackmore, P.M., P.P.G. Reg. Wilts.; Powning, Hulbert, Folliott, Larkam, Slader, Hall, Main, Harwood, Wiltshire, Moton, J. H. Dear, and R. Dear. Visitors: Bros. Clanter, 25; G. Parry, 195; and J. Ball, 1449. The minutes of the preceding regular meeting and lodge of emergency were read and confirmed, after which a letter was read from W. Bro. P.M. Ward, P.P.G.J.W. Wilts, who is now residing at Canterbury, resigning his membership, which was received with much regret, and it was proposed by Bro. P.M. Futcher, seconded by Bro. P.M. Stokes, and carried by acclamation, that Bro. Ward be elected an honorary member of the lodge. It may here be mentioned that no one has done more for the Craft in Wiltshire than Bro. Ward, during some fifteen years' residence in Salisbury, and his leaving the city has been felt in many ways. He was also well-known in the neighbouring provinces of Dorset and Hampshire as a good working Mason, and one always ready to do any ceremony he might be called on for. The ballot was then taken for Mr. C. C. Miles, which proving satisfactory, he was duly initiated into Craft mysteries by the W.M. in a manner which elicited the applause of the brethren. Mr. Fredk. Granville Christmas (who had previously been balloted for) was also initiated. The next business on the agenda was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, and the voting resulted in the S.W., Bro. Card, being chosen to fill the chair of K.S. for the coming twelve months. Bro. Card returned thanks in a few well-chosen words for the honour conferred on him. Bro. P.M. Futcher was again nominated as Treasurer, and Bros. Silverthorn and Goodridge were elected Tylers. It was then moved by Bro. P.M. Futcher, that a suitable Past Master's jewel be presented to the outgoing Master, Bro. Tucker, at the installation meeting in January, as a mark of approbation by the brethren for the able way in which the ceremonies and business of the lodge had been conducted during his year of office; this was seconded by Bro. P.M. Stokes, and carried by acclamation. The W.M. expressed his thanks to Bros. Futcher and Stokes for the very kind words which had fallen from them, and to the brethren for voting him the jewel, which he said he should wear with a great deal of pride and pleasure. "Hearty good wishes" having been given by the visitors, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 9.30 p.m. The brethren subsequently sat down to a bread and cheese supper, and on the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to.

LIVERPOOL.—Derby Lodge (No. 724).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Wednesday evening, the 26th ult. Bro. Asher Hart, P.M., was in the chair, owing to the absence of Bro. R. Crisp, W.M., in consequence of his father's illness. There were also present Bros. Henry Trevitt, S.W.; Maurice Hart, J.W.; Thos. Chesworth, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. for Cheshire, Treas.; George Gordon, Sec.; Jas. Pendleton, S.D.; J. Jacobs, J.D.; J. Comins,

I.G.; J. W. Ballard, P.M., P.G. Purs. West Lancashire, D.C. The members present were Bros. J. Humphreys, H. Ellis, D. Thomas, Sharples, McGauley, Beards, Eskine, and others. The visitors' list included the names of Bros. J. H. Burgess, P.M. 1325; J. Brotherton, 241; E. T. Hall, 241; R. Seddon, 1035; W. Whiteside, 203; R. Foote, J.W. 1505; L. Peake, 1035; Jas. Jack, 1013; and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and the ballot was then taken for Mr. William Stephenson, which proved unanimous in his favour, and then Messrs. Stephenson, Ramey, and Hall having been properly prepared were introduced, and initiated into the mystic Order, the ceremony being most impressively given by Bro. Asher Hart, I.P.M. Bro. Gordon, Sec., afterwards proposed, seconded by Bro. Asher Hart, I.P.M., "That the sum of £2 2s. be given to the widow of a deceased brother of 241," which was carried. This concluded the business of the meeting, and the lodge was closed in due form and harmony. The brethren then retired to the banquet, which was well served by Bro. Chaplin, the House Steward, and presided over by Bro. Asher Hart, I.P.M. The usual Masonic and patriotic toasts were duly honoured, interspersed by some capital singing by Bros. H. and J. Ellis, McGauley, M. Hart, Jacobs, Giram, and others.

MANCHESTER.—St. Thomas's Lodge (No. 992).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Griffin Hotel, Lower Broughton. There were present Bros. Peter Dow, W.M.; J. J. Meakin, S.W.; J. B. Broadbent, J.W.; Edwd. Hilton, Sec.; Thos. Ollerenshaw, S.D.; H. G. Rutten, J.D.; J. Hall, I.G.; J. Kirk, Tyler; H. Fisher, P.M.; J. Heifion, P.M.; J. Hancock, P.M.; Jos. Warren, P.M.; Jas. Johnson, P.M.; Wm. Cramblehome, S. P. Salkeld, Geo. Howarth, Schofield, Cronshaw, Wm. Sharples, John Faulkner, and W. T. Edwards. Visitors: Bros. J. A. Birch, P.P.J.G.W.; J. Beresford, P.P.S.G.D. of C. Cheshire; F. Hollins, W.M. 1009; John Pryor, 1534; A. E. McBeath, 190; Robt. Williamson, 1055; Michael Schofield, I.P.M. Ryburn Lodge; Wm. Parker, 993; Wm. Evans, 1055; Saml. Royle, 1730; John Cotterill, 1534; Robt. Leach, W.M. 1219; John Chadwick, Prov. G. Sec. E. Lanc.; T. Robinson, 1534; Thos. Shrier, N.Y., 103; Geo. Sharples, 1055; A. Morrison, 1055; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). The lodge was opened at 3.20, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The Auditor's report, which had been printed, was handed round to each member of the lodge, and, there being no objections raised to it, was adopted. With respect to this matter, we have much pleasure in stating that, notwithstanding the absence of a single candidate for initiation during the past twelve months, the financial condition of the lodge is in a very healthy position. The installing Master, Bro. J. A. Birch, then proceeded to instal the W.M. elect, Bro. J. J. Meakin, into the chair of K.S., which was done in that usually masterly manner for which this distinguished brother is noted; in fact, we have yet to see his equal. On the re-admission of the M.M.'s, the usual announcement was made to them of Bro. Meakin's installation being un fait accompli. The W.M. was saluted in the customary manner, after which Bro. Birch gave the addresses, and invested the newly-appointed officers as follows: Bros. J. B. Broadbent, S.W.; Thos. Ollerenshaw, J.W.; H. G. Rutten, S.D.; J. Hall, J.D.; S. P. Salkeld, I.G.; E. Hilton (re-appointed for fourth time), Sec.; George Howarth and Wm. Cramblehome, Stewards. The ceremony of installation having been completed, "Hearty good wishes" were expressed by the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at five o'clock. At six o'clock the brethren assembled in the lodge room, which had been gaily decorated with flags and bannerets, and sat down to a banquet, the serving of which, and the quality of the viands, being all that could be desired, and reflected great credit on the worthy host. The toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," "Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.," "Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, P.G.M. East Lancashire," and "Bro. George Mellor, D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," were proposed and duly responded to. Bro. John Chadwick, Provincial Grand Secretary, rose and said he did not know why he should be called upon to respond to the last toast, except it was that as one of the junior officers he was expected to do his share of the work. There was no doubt that our D.P.G.M. was the right man in the right place, as he was at all times willing to do what he could to benefit Freemasonry, and the same he thought might be said of the rest of the P.G. Officers, who were equally anxious to do their best, and there was no reason from what he knew to doubt their ability in the least. He thanked the brethren of the St. Thomas's Lodge for their kind reception and hospitable treatment. Bro. J. Beresford, P.P.S.G.D. Cheshire, also returned thanks on behalf of the Past Provincial Grand Officers. Bros. James Johnson, in proposing the toast of the evening, viz., "The W.M.," said the Worshipful Master elect was a brother highly esteemed by them all, and whom they all honoured and revered, and he had no doubt that Bro. Meakin would most creditably fill the position which he had attained; therefore, in asking the brethren to drink to "The Health of their New W.M.," he had no doubt the invitation would be heartily responded to. The toast was warmly received by all present, and accompanied by some excellent "fire." The W.M., in reply, said it was with feelings of very great pleasure that he returned thanks for so cordially receiving and responding to the toast of his health. He assured the brethren he should do his utmost to promote the interest of their lodge, and of Freemasonry generally. He liked Freemasonry, and considered, and firmly believed, that its teachings rendered us better husbands, fathers, and members of society, and in having the interests of the St. Thomas's Lodge thoroughly at heart, he trusted he might be spared to hand over the charter pure and unadulterated to his successor, as he himself had received it, and he felt very proud of the position to which he had been elected, and also for the kindly feeling the brethren had expressed towards him. Bro. Heifion, in proposing "The Health of their I.P.M., Bro. Dow," said he had the pleasure of knowing Bro. Dow for many years, and he thought that he had ably filled the W.M.'s chair during the past twelve months, and he had great pleasure in presenting him with a gold Past Master's jewel as a token of the regard and esteem in which the brethren held him. He regretted that Bro. Dow had not opportunities during his Mastership of exhibiting his ability as a worker, but if an opportunity had arisen he was quite sure that their I.P.M. had the inclination to do his best, and he hoped he might long be spared to be present amongst them, and to exhibit on his breast the testimony of regard which the brethren of St. Thomas's Lodge had that day presented him. The I.P.M., in reply, said he felt very grateful to the brethren for their kind token of esteem, and he assured them he should highly prize it. He could not help feeling regretful that he had not some work to do during his tenure of office, but this was more his misfortune than his fault, and if he had given the brethren satisfaction while in the chair, he assured them it was more than he expected. Bro. J. L. Hine, in proposing "The Health of the Newly-Invested Officers," dwelt at length on their respective duties and responsibilities, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Edward Hilton, the Secretary, to whom he said it gave him great pleasure, on behalf of the lodge, to present with a "Secretary's" jewel, for the assiduity and zeal he had shown while acting in that capacity three consecutive years. The jewel, which was a five-pointed star, enamelled, with the cross pens in the centre, and bore an appropriate inscription, was handed round for the inspection of the brethren, and was much admired. "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. James Arthur Birch," was next proposed, and responded to with the greatest enthusiasm, which clearly proved how popular this worthy brother is in the province. Bro. Birch, in a humorous and elaborate speech, returned thanks. Several other toasts followed, and the evening's entertainment was brought to a close shortly before 11 o'clock.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The monthly meeting of the brethren belonging to this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Atheneum, Lancaster, on the 1st inst., the W.M., Bro. N. W. Helme, presiding, supported by his respective officers. There was a fair attendance. The lodge having been open in the First Degree, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. On the motion of Bro. Moore, P.M., P.G.S.B. of E., &c., £5 5s. was voted from the funds of the lodge to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The next business was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. Taylor, S.W., was unanimously appointed. Bro. Sly, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., announced his intention of resigning the office of Treasurer of the lodge. The book work, he said, was not much, but he considered it the duty of the Treasurer to attend the lodge each meeting, and as he could not do this, owing to business engagements, he had latterly had to depute his work to the Secretary, Bro. Longman, P.M., consequently he felt it his duty to retire from the office. He had no hesitation in doing this, knowing that the lodge possessed many members who were well qualified to fill it. Bro. Hannah was unanimously elected to succeed Bro. Sly. Bro. A. K. Allinson was re-elected Tyler. It was also resolved that the installation meeting should take place on Tuesday, January 6th, Bro. Moore consenting to accept the office of Installing Master. The usual banquet will follow. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited "Hearty good wishes" from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

WARRINGTON.—Gilbert Greenall Lodge (No. 1250).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 9th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Sankey-street. There were present Bros. T. H. Sutton, W.M.; J. H. Galloway, S.W.; S. Wallhead, J.W.; Richardson, P.M., Treas.; D. W. Finney, P.M., P.G. D. of C. W. Lanc., Sec.; T. Hutchinson, S.D.; J. Jones, S.S.; J. Farrington, J.S.; Taylor, I.G.; Donville, Tyler; Woods, P.M.; Hawkins, P.M.; Edleston, P.M.; Grim, A. Potter, J. H. G. Potter, A. F. G. Potter, Bolton, Baird, Barlow, Houghton, Barber, Shilcock, Smethurst, Webster, Heaton, and others, and visitors: Bros. W. Sharp, P.M. 148, P. Prov. G.J.W. West Lanc.; J. R. Young, W.M. 148; Charles Skinner, 148; and A. T. Ireland, 484. The lodge was opened in the usual form, after which the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Finney, who had written a paper on "Some account of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys in London," was unable to read it from indisposition, and requested Bro. J. Farrington to do so. Bro. Farrington had great pleasure in doing so. Bros. Sharp, Wallhead, Richardson, Hawkins, the W.M., and others having spoken to the subject, at the end of the paper it was, on the proposition of Bro. Finney, seconded by the W.M., unanimously resolved to send a Steward to represent the lodge at the next annual festival of the Boys' School, on which occasion the D.G.M. of England, Lord Skelmersdale, will preside. Votes of thanks followed to Bro. Finney for writing, and Bro. Farrington for reading the paper. The brethren afterwards adjourned to refreshment, under the presidency of the genial W.M., Bro. Thomas H. Sutton.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—At a meeting of this lodge, held on Monday, the 8th inst., Bro.

C. G. Padel, W.M., presiding, a presentation consisting of a Charity jewel, and an elaborately illuminated address, was made to the I.P.M., Bro. J. S. Cumberland. The address, which was handsomely framed, was most appropriately designed, each initial letter forming a different Masonic emblem. It was executed from the designs of Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M. The address was worded as follows:—"Worshipful Bro. J. S. Cumberland, I.P.M. We, the Master, Wardens, and Past Masters of the Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, on behalf of the brethren of that lodge, beg your acceptance of the accompanying Charity jewel, the first gained by any member of the lodge, as a slight token of their appreciation of your services in the cause of the Masonic Charities, and of your unwearied exertions for the welfare of the lodge during your year of office. C. G. Padel, W.M.; J. T. Sellar, S.W.; G. Simpson, J.W.; T. B. Whythead, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; Geo. Balmford, P.M., P.P.G.O.; Wm. Lawton, P.M., P.P.G.R.; James Kay, Sec. York. Monday, 8th Dec., 1879."

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—This flourishing lodge met in excellent strength at the White Hart Hotel, on the 8th inst. Among those in attendance were Bros. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middx., I.P.M., acting W.M. in the absence of the Rev. C. De Crespiigny, P.P.G. Chap. Middx., W.M.; J. Bond, P.P.G. D.C. Surrey, S.W.; J. Baldwin, P.P.G.P. Middx., acting J.W.; T. W. Ockenden, S.W. 1512, &c., Secretary; J. Hurst, P.G.A.P. Middx., P.M. 1512, W.M. 1793, S.D.; T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx., J.D.; Featherstone, acting I.G. and Gilbert, P.G.T. Middx., Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. McIntyre, 144; Beauchamp, 1512; and Collier, 1793. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Mr. F. Smith was impressively initiated into Craft mysteries by the acting W.M. The investment of Bros. Featherstone as I.G., and Piller as W.S. then took place. Bro. John Hurst was elected to represent the lodge at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and a notice of motion given that a sum should be taken from the lodge funds to head his list as Steward. The Secretary having reported that, in compliance with the resolution passed at the last meeting, he had forwarded a letter of condolence to the widow of the late Bro. Scott, I.G., the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the dining-room, where an excellent repast, ably catered for by Bro. Andrews, awaited them. In consequence of the extreme lateness of the hour, and the absence of the W.M., the after proceedings were necessarily shorn of their accustomed formality. "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Grand Officers, Present and Past," and "The R.W. P.G.M." were briefly given and most heartily received. Bro. John Hurst responded upon behalf of "The P.G. Officers, Present and Past," and Bro. McIntyre for "The Visitors." "The Health of the Officers" followed, and was coupled with the name of Bro. Bond, S.W., who ably acknowledged the compliment. The remainder of the time at the disposal of the lodge was agreeably occupied by the vocal and dramatic contributions of Bros. Piller, Hurst, McIntyre, and others. The Tyler's toast at eleven terminated the proceedings.

LIVERPOOL.—Antient Briton Lodge (No. 1675).—The usual monthly meeting of the members of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on the 25th ult. There were present Bros. J. R. Bottomley, W.M. (in the chair); T. Evans, S.W.; W. E. Coxon, Treas.; R. Fairclough, Sec.; Dr. J. E. H. Pugh, S.D.; H. Jones, J.D.; H. Pritchard, I.G.; J. Hughes, S.S.; F. Walker, J.S.; and M. Williamson, Tyler. The members present were Bros. Cowan, H. Williams, H. Hughes, J. Lewis, G. J. Hughes, J. Lees, O. Evans, R. Parry, J. R. Jones, J. Lloyd, G. Charney, G. Neville, J. Davies, J. Ireland, J. Pritchard, and others. The visitors included Bros. Brotherton, 241 E. George, Sec. 1356; T. Delamere, 1620; W. Hesken, 1620; R. Bethel, 1094; R. Jones, 1182; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; E. Paul, Treas. 1356; R. W. Lowry, 1356; J. Potter, 1182; J. Hill, 1609; R. Roberts, W. Thomas, H. Gill, 1086; E. Walsh, 1145; and others. The lodge was duly opened, after which the minutes were read and confirmed, and the ballot was afterwards taken for Mr. Richard Firman, which proved unanimous in his favour. As the candidate was not present, the bye-laws were read and signed by several brethren who had not previously done so. A lecture on the first Tracing Board was delivered by Bro. R. Fairclough, Sec., in a most impressive and masterly manner. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by Bro. R. Wylie, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., a cordial vote of thanks was given to the lecturer. After a proposition had been made, the lodge closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshments, a pleasant evening being spent.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB (No. 58).—A meeting was held on Monday, the 15th inst., at the Club, 102, Queen Victoria-street, City. There was a good attendance, the following brethren filling the offices: Bros. Chapman, W.M.; J. S. Fraser, S.W.; Bookman, J.W.; Becton, J.D.; J. B. King, I.G.; and Pulsford, Preceptor. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The initiation ceremony was rehearsed, Bro. Haynes acting as candidate. Bro. Smallpeice proposed an addition to the bye-laws, viz., "That a fee of 6d. be imposed on brethren visiting the lodge." This was seconded by Bro. J. S. Fraser, and carried unanimously. Bros. Bookman and King were unanimously elected members of this lodge of instruction. After the election of Bro. Fraser, as W.M. for the next meeting, the lodge was closed.

Royal Arch.

ROYAL JUBILEE CHAPTER (No. 72).—A regular convocation of this old chapter was held at the Horns Tavern, Knington, on Thursday, the 11th inst., under somewhat melancholy circumstances, the M.E.Z. having died very suddenly three days after the last convocation, and the companions, in consequence, appeared in mourning. Ex. Cmp. Foxall, I.P.Z., occupied the chair of M.E.Z., supported by Ex. Comps. Nunn, H.; Lovett, J.; Webb, P.Z., Treas.; Comps. Dunn, S.N.; H. Lovegrove, P.S.; Salter, 1st Asst. S.; Potter, Janitor; Laakey, P.Z.; Dodson, P.Z.; Dean, Cox, Amis, Walker, and others, the only visitor being Ex. Comp. Thompson, P.Z. 507. After ballot, Bro. Rd was introduced, and duly exalted, the lectures being given by Comps. Foxall and Nunn in a very creditable manner. The installation of Principals was proceeded with by Ex. Comp. Foxall, the following being the complete list of officers:—Comps. Nunn, M.E.Z.; Lovett, H.; Dunn, .; Webb, Treas.; T. Foxall, Scribe E.; H. Lovegrove, 1st N.; Salter, P.S.; and Potter, Janitor. Comp. Sabr invested Comps. Amis and Walker as 1st and 2nd Assistant Sojourners. It was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, "That a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of Comp. Durkin, the late respected M.E.Z." After the transaction of some routine business the chapter was closed and the companions adjourned to the banquet, over which the M.E.Z., Comp. Nunn, presided.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Chapter (No. 1503).—A meeting of this provincial chapter was held on the 3rd inst. at the Albany Hotel. Among the officers present were Comps. J. Tomlinson, M.E.Z.; Cama, P.G.S.B. Middx, H.; Charles Horsley, P.P.G.S. of Middx., acting J. and Treas.; W. Taylor, S.N.; T. C. Walls, P.G.D.C. Middx., P.S.; and Rushworth, 1st Asst. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the subject of the bye-laws was fully discussed, and it was unanimously resolved that a Committee, consisting of Comps. Horsley, W. Taylor, Walls, Rushworth, and Saunders, should draw up the same, and submit them to the chapter for approval at the next regular meeting. The election of officers then took place with the following unanimous result:—Comps. Cama, M.E.Z.; S. H. Knaggs, H.; W. Taylor, J.; Charles Horsley, Treas.; Walls, S.N.; W. H. Saunders, S.E.; Rushworth, P.S.; and Harrison, Janitor. Comp. Rushworth having announced that he should appoint Comps. Saunders and Jefferys as his First and Second Assistants, the convocation was duly and formally closed, and the companions partook of a collation, which was well served. The only toasts proposed were "The Queen and Royal Arch Masonry," "The Principals," and "The Officers."

INSTRUCTION.

NORTH LONDON CHAPTER OF IMPROVEMENT (No. 1471).—This chapter of improvement held a convocation at the Jolly Farmers, 113, Southgate-road, N., on Thursday, the 11th inst. Present: M.E. Comps. Hobbs, Z.; Braine, H.; Cusworth, J.; Mather, Preceptor; McMillan, P.S.; Halford, Treasurer; Hunter, S.E.; Weston, N.; Comp. Edmonds, Fysh, Lee, Griggs, Brasted, and Cogan. The M.E.Z. declared the chapter open for the purpose of improvement, and the minutes of the last convocation were read and confirmed. The ceremony of exaltation was rehearsed, Comp. Brasted acting as candidate. Comps. Lee, Brasted, and Cogan were elected members. The chapter was then closed.

TRINITY COLLEGE LODGE (No. 244).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at Trinity College, Weymouth-street, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Dr. Passawer, Prov. G. Reg. of M., assisted by his officers. The visitors were Bros. Davison, Grand Treas., D. Prov. G.M.M.; Dewar, G. Asst. Sec.; Broadley, Prov. G.M. Tunis and Malta; J. Stevens, P.G.J.O.; H. Lovegrove, Prov. G.S. of Wks.; and a distinguished Scotch brother, representing the Grand Chapter of Scotland. Bro. Hoare, jun., son of one of the founders of the lodge, was duly advanced, the ceremony being performed with full musical accompaniment, the voices being led by Bro. J. Stedman, the fine organ and excellent singing producing an effect rarely experienced in Masonic ceremonies. After the conclusion of the ceremony the brethren dined together at the Bodega, Oxford-street, when the usual toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Broadley made an excellent speech on Masonry in Tunis and Malta; and, assisted by the excellent vocal exercises of the brethren, a pleasant evening was spent.

BRIXTON LODGE (No. 254).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Saturday last, the 13th inst. The W.M. being absent in the country, the lodge was opened by Bro. T. Poore, P.G.I.G., as W.M., supported by Bros. H. Lovegrove, P.G.S. of W., S.W.; G. Clark, J.W.; H. Baldwin, S.D. and Sec.; C. Oxford, I.G.; and R. Potter, Tyler; with visitors Bros. Thrupp, P.G.J.O.; Richardson, G.J.D.; Clifford Lehman Barrett, P.G. Org.; and Anderson. The ballot was taken for Bros. Clapham and Kipling, and the latter brother being in attendance was regularly advanced to the Honourable Degree. The seats of the Overseers were filled by the three visiting Grand Officers, Bros. Thrupp, Richardson, and Barrett, so that Bro. Poore's effective rendering of the ceremony was ably assisted. At the close of the proceedings the brethren separated.

WHITEHAVEN.—Fletcher Lodge (No. 213).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening last, the 12th inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, College-street. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Dr. Henry, P.P.G.S.W., supported by Bros. W. B. Gibson, P.G.M.O., S.W.; E. Tyson, P.G.I.G., Sec., as J.W.; W. White, M.O.; G. Sparrow, S.O.; J. W. Miles, J.O., J. 216, as J.D.; J. S. Wilson, I.G.; G. Fitzgerald, Tyler; W. Holloway, G. Dalrymple, W.M. 216, P.G.J.D.; C. H. Hodgson, 216; T. Atkinson, 216; and others. The lodge being opened, the minutes were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for the admission of Bros. Dalrymple, Hodgson, and Atkinson, as joining members, whilst Bros. W. Sandwith, P.M. 119, and J. Rothery, 119, were balloted for as candidates for advancement. Bro. M'Kelvie (who had been previously accepted) and Bro. Rothery being in attendance, were regularly advanced to the Honourable Degree. The W.M. having been re-elected to the chair of A., was duly installed, proclaimed, and greeted by the brethren, the whole ceremonies being ably conducted by Bro. Dalrymple, W.M. 216. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows: Bros. W. B. Gibson, S.W.; W. White, J.W.; John Barr, M.O.; E. Tyson, S.O.; George Dalrymple, Sec., and Reg.; J. W. Miles, J.O.; Jas. Robertson, S.D.; J. S. Wilson, J.D.; Geo. Sparrow, I.G.; Geo. Fitzgerald, Tyler. There being nothing more for the good and welfare of the lodge, it was closed, and an hour was spent in harmony.

COCKERMOUTH.—Faithfull Lodge (No. 229).—The monthly meeting of this Mark lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Station-street, on Wednesday evening, the 10th inst. There were present Bros. E. Robinson, W.M.; W. F. Lamonby, I.P.M. (Freemason); W. H. Lewthwaite, S.W.; R. W. Robinson, M.O.; T. C. Robinson, S.O.; H. Peacock, J.O.; W. Shilton, S.D.; W. Paisley, J.D.; T. Mason, I.G.; and J. Hewson, Tyler. Other members were unavoidably absent. The minutes being read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bro. Isaac Evening, Lodges 962 and 1002, which being unanimous, he was admitted, and regularly advanced to the Honourable Degree by the I.P.M. It having been intimated that the Provincial Grand Lodge meeting would be held at Carlisle on Tuesday, the 16th inst., under the banner of Cumberland Lodge, No. 60, the lodge was closed.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF CUMBERLAND AND WEST-MORELAND.

The annual meeting of this province was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Castle-street, Carlisle, on Tuesday, the 9th inst., under the banner of Cumberland Lodge, No. 60, Bro. C. G. Hayward, P.M., W.M., P.G. I.G. of England, who was, however, confined to his bed through a severe illness. Bro. Colonel Whitwell, M.P., R.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master, P.G.W. of England, presided, in the absence of the Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W. Provincial Grand Master; and amongst the others present were Bros. J. Nicholson, P.M. 151, P.P.G.S.W., as D.P.G.M.; G. J. McKay, P.M. 195, P.G.S.W.; Dr. Henry, W.M. 213, P.P.G.S.W.; G. Potter, P.M. 60, P.G. M.O.; W. B. Gibson, S.W. 213, P.G.S.O.; T. Mandie, P.M. 151, P.G.J.O.; J. A. Wheatley, P.M. 60, P.G. Treas.; P. de E. Collin, P.M. 151, P.G. Steward, P.G. Sec.; G. Dalrymple, W.M. 216, P.G.J.D.; J. Cook, P.M. 60, P.P.G.J.D.; J. C. Mason, 60, P.G. In. Works; J. Haswell, Sec. 60, P.G. Steward; J. Taylor, 195, P.G. Steward; J. Ewing, S.W. 60; R. Robinson, W.M. 229; W. H. Lewthwaite, S.W. 229; Capt. Sewell, J.W. 229; T. C. Robinson, S.O. 229; W. F. Lamonby, P.M. 229, P.P.G.A.D.C.; W. Cunningham, 60, P.G. Tyler; and others. The minutes of the last provincial meeting held at Keswick, in June, 1878, under the banner of the Bective Lodge, No. 147, having been read and confirmed, the Treasurer's statement of accounts, showing a balance of £6 11s. 6d. in the bank, was submitted and approved. The next business was the election of a Provincial Grand Master for the next three years, and Bro. Henry moved, Bro. Wheatley seconded, and it was unanimously resolved, that the Earl of Bective be re-elected. The officers were next appointed and invested; Bros. Nicholson and Cunningham being respectively elected by show of hands. The following is the list:—

- Bro. P. de E. Collin, P.M. 151 ... Prov. G.S.W.
" J. A. Wheatley, P.M. 60 ... Prov. G.J.W.
" W. Court, P.M. 60 ... Prov. G.M.O.
" T. Mandie, P.M. 151 ... Prov. G.S.O.
" B. Nelson, P.M. 195 ... Prov. G.J.O.
" J. Nicholson, P.M. 151 ... Prov. G. Treas.
" Capt. Sewell, J.W. 229 ... Prov. G. Reg.
" W. F. Lamonby, P.M. 229 ... Prov. G. Sec.
" J. Gardiner, P.M. 151 ... Prov. G.A. Sec.
" G. Dalrymple, W.M. 216 ... Prov. G.S.D.
" E. Tyson, J.W. 213 ... Prov. G.J.D.
" J. Godfrey, P.M. 195 ... Prov. G.I.W.
" J. C. Mason, 60... ... Prov. G.D.C.
" J. Haswell, Sec. 60 ... Prov. G.A.D.C.
" R. Robinson, W.M. 229 ... Prov. G. Swd. Br.
" Wilkinson, 195 ... Prov. G. Std. Br.
" W. H. Lewthwaite, S.W. 229... Prov. G. Org.
" Taylor, 195 ... Prov. G.I.G.
Bros. Walker, 216; Mills, 213; and Ewing, 60 ... Prov. G. Stewards.
Bro. W. Cunningham, 60 ... Prov. G. Tyler.

The R.W. Prov. Grand Master in the chair, in investing the Prov. Grand Treasurer, said there were now a sufficient number of lodges to make the province a reality, instead of a sham. They had now a balance in the bank, and this was going to be a Provincial Grand Lodge of which the Order might well be proud. Next year it was expected the provincial meeting would be held at Cockermonth, under the banner of Faithfull Lodge, when he hoped there would be a good report of the progress of the Order in the province. This was all the business, and the Provincial Grand Lodge was duly closed. Subsequently luncheon was partaken of at the County Hotel.

INSTALLATION OF THEIR ROYAL HIGHNESSES THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT AND PRINCE LEOPOLD AS KNIGHTS OF MALTA.

A Special Priory of the Religious and Military Order of Knights of Malta was held at the Masonic Hall, 33, Golden-square, on Saturday last, the 13th inst., at one o'clock, for the purpose of receiving into the Order their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught, Great Prior of the Temple for Ireland, and Prince Leopold, Past Preceptor of the Cour de Lion Preceptory, Oxford.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of the Order, was unavoidably prevented from being present and presiding, as he had intended doing, and the throne was consequently occupied by Lord Skelmersdale, the Great Prior of England and Wales, who was attended by the following Provincial Priors and Great Officers of the Order: Col. Shadwell Clerke, Great Sub Prior; W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Prov. Prior of Hants; Capt. N. G. Philips, Prov. Prior of Suffolk and Cambridge; Rev. H. Giddy, Prov. Prior of South Africa; J. M. P. Montagu, D.L., Prov. Prior of Dorset; Capt. C. Beswicke-Royds, Prov. Prior of Lancashire; W. Kingston, Brov. Prior of Mediterranean; Genl. Studholme Browrigg, C.B., Prov. Prior of Surrey; Col. J. W. Peard, Prov. Prior of Cornwall; C. Fendelow, Prov. Prior of Stafford and Worcestershire; H. D. Sandeman, P. Prov. Prior of Bengal; Col. Somerville Burney, P. Prov. Prior of Essex; S. Rawson, P. Prov. Prior of China; Maj.-Gen. H. Clerk, P. Prov. Prior of Kent; Col. G. N. Boldero, P. Prov. Prior of Mediterranean; J. L. Sim, P. Prov. Prior of Ceylon; J. E. Curtis, Arch Treas.; the Rev. Ambrose Hall, Prelate; Alex. Staveley Hill, G.C., M.P., Chancellor; Col. Francis Burdett, Constable; R. H. Thrupp, Reg.; Charles Gooden, Treas.; G. Lambert, Warden of Regalia; W. Tinkler, Vice-Chancellor; W. Spencer, Sub-Marshal; and the following Past Grand Officers, and others: Sir Patrick Colquhoun, G.C.; Sir Michael Costa, Genl. H. E. Doherty, C.B.; M. Genl. C. Randolph, Rev. T. Cochrane, James Gibbs, C.S.I.; Col. Haldane, Dr. W. B. Brodie, F. Richardson, J. Keene, Louis Desanges, Rev. W. R. Sanderson, Dr. M. B. Tanner, Magnus Ohren, Dr. C. J. Smith, Major J. Browne, C. Chandos Pole, E. Letchworth, Major C. Caldwell, W. H. Pullen, W. C. Willing.

Their Royal Highnesses arrived from Buckingham Palace precisely at one o'clock, and were received by the acting Marshals, Gen. Studholme Browrigg, C.B., and Capt. N. G. Philips, and were subsequently duly admitted, proclaimed, and installed "Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta;" the interesting and impressive ceremonial being conducted by Col. Shadwell Clerke, the Gt. Sub-Prior of the Order.

The hall, which, on this occasion, was fitted as a chapter house of the Knights of Malta, presented a beautiful and picturesque appearance, being entirely hung round with the banners of the knights, and otherwise decorated with the furniture peculiar to the Order, whilst the scarlet tunics and black cloaks, both charged with the eight-pointed white cross, in which the knights were habited, added a rich effect to the scene.

During the ceremony, Capt. N. G. Philips, Prov. Prior of Suffolk and Cambridge, made a very interesting presentation to their Royal Highnesses of two antique rings, which had in former times been worn by Commanders of the old Order of Malta, and which had come into Capt. Philips' possession when quartered in that island in 1857. These rings display the eight-pointed cross, in white enamel, surmounted with a crown (the badge of a Commander) in a oval of gold, pierced, and were two of the rings of profession, worn in former times by all members of the Order. Their Royal Highnesses expressed themselves as much gratified at receiving these rare souvenirs.

CONSECRATION OF THE DARLINGTON MARK LODGE, No. 250.

This event took place on Saturday, the 13th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Archer-street, Darlington, and was attended by about fifty brethren. A lodge having been opened at two p.m. by the R.W. Prov. G.M., Canon Tristram, fifteen candidates were advanced to the Degree by Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M. of the York Mark Lodge, T.L., at the request of the P.G.M.

The lodge was then consecrated by the Prov. G.M., and the W.M. designate, Bro. J. M. Meek (York Mark Lodge), of Darlington, was installed by the Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. J. Y. Strachan, of Newcastle.

The W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. J. Bailey, S.W.; S. F. Bousfield, J.W.; R. A. Look, M.O.; C. R. Fry, S.O.; H. E. O. Muller, J.O.; F. Parr, Sec.; W. Lear, Reg. of Marks; F. Tovey, Org.; J. C. Martin, S.D.; W. Hobson, J.D.; J. J. Wilkes, I.G.; T. Garget, Tyler.

The brethren and visitors afterwards dined together, the W.M. presiding, when the usual toasts were duly honoured.

Messrs. Puttick and Simpson sold by auction on Monday last the autograph score of Handel's opera "Amadigi" for £35 10s., and that of Mozart's Quintetto in D major for forty-three guineas. They were from the collection of the late Mr. F. Smece, of the Bank of England.

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1879.

We think it right in this our Christmas number of the Freemason to give our annual summary of Masonic sayings and doings in 1879. True it is that the old year has not yet quite disappeared from the Masonic Calendar, but in these anticipatory remarks we feel sure that we shall be consulting the wishes and interests of our readers as well as our own. We trust, too, that our view of the "situation" will be accepted by our patrons and friends. It is a mistake, in our opinion, to spin out with too great a detail and with verbose prolixity, records which none can remember and very few care to read. To enter into minute explanations of debates and difficulties which have only a passing interest, to load our pages with conclusions in which nothing is concluded, and statements in which nothing is stated, transactions in which nothing is transacted, always has appeared to us, we confess, the height of inane and worthless padding. All that the Masonic reader wants, in our opinion, is, though we admit we may be perfectly wrong, a clear and concise statement of leading facts, so as to refresh his memory and renew his interest when he is leaving an old year for a new one, and when Freemasonry is passing from a twelvemonths' struggle to face the labours, and difficulties, and animation of another year. It is with these feelings that we venture to commend our summary of Masonic life in 1879 to the notice of our many kindly and cultivated readers, seeking for it, what we know it will receive at their hands, sympathetic attention and fraternal criticism. The New Year began for us, as all New Years begin, with a mingled "yarn" of joy and sorrow, grief and glee, the normal skeins of life are ever partly bright and partly dark, and so with our Masonic Calendar—it witnesses always of the sorrows and joys of us poor mortals, and like our chequered floor-cloth tells in unmistakable witness of mingled scenes and memories—joyous and depressing. The last strains of rejoicing had scarcely died away which announced our Pro Grand Master's happy marriage, when we had to deplore the deaths of three distinguished brethren in Freemasonry; Bro. Capt. Duff, M.P., and Bros. Head and Boyd, the last two being most eminent and respected members of our Order, whose services to the Craft had been most meritorious, whose memory will long linger among the brethren. It is pleasant to remember that 1878 closed with this fact, announced by the Secretaries, that £40,312 4s. 3d. had been contributed to the Masonic Charities during the past year of light and grace. A goodly fact, my masters! The New Year opened properly enough with the annual New Year's Entertainment to the inmates of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Bro. Hobbs, Secretary of the Alfred Lodge, 340, Oxford-street, early in this month received a jewel and a purse of fifty guineas as an acknowledgement of his services as Secretary for twenty-five years. On the 6th there was the usual Twelfth Night Entertainment at the Girls' School. The monthly Lodge of Benevolence on the 22nd voted £970 in all for gratuitous aid to suffering and needy brethren. On the 24th a deputation waited on the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, with an address of felicitation on his marriage. And thus January passed away amid much activity of our London Lodges after the Christmas Holidays were over.

FEBRUARY.—On the 5th was the Quarterly Communication of Grand Chapter, at which warrants for three new chapters were granted, and the Hervey Chapter received permission to call itself the John Hervey Chapter. On the 12th the Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held, under the presidency of Bro. Lieut.-Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, P.G.M. E. Lancashire, before a crowded hall, and with 288 Stewards, Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, Chairman. The amount realized—the highest ever known on any similar occasion—was £13,926, which was greeted with deafening cheers when announced by the indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Terry. On the 19th the Lodge of Benevolence met, and granted £580 in relief of distressed brethren. The third annual ball of the Carnarvon and Morpeth Lodges took place at the Cannon-street Hotel with much success. The death was announced this month of Bro. Joseph Bowles, D.D., Archdeacon, P.G.M. for Oxfordshire since 1848.

MARCH.—The Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge took place on the 5th, when our distinguished Bro. Lieut.-Col. John Creaton was elected by an overwhelming majority Grand Treasurer. During this month Bro. Creaton received the presentation of his portrait by the Lodge of Antiquity for honorary services to the lodge. In this month the Lodge of Benevolence granted £667 in Masonic Charity.

APRIL.—In April the Craft heard with regret of the resignation of that excellent Mason, Bro. John Huyshe, of his office of Prov. Grand Master of Devonshire, through age and ill health. The elections for the Boys' and Girls' Schools took place in this month, the former electing eighteen out of a list of forty-seven applicants, the latter sixteen out of a list of sixty-eight applicants. The Lodge of Benevolence on the 23rd granted £639. The Grand Festival took place on the 30th, when the appointment of new Grand Officers was announced. The death of Bro. John Tunnah, the veteran Prov. Grand Secretary for East Lancashire, aged 72, occurred on the 27th of this month.

MAY.—May opened with the loss of our excellent and worthy Bro. Charles Bryant Payne, Grand Tyler. On the 7th Supreme Grand Chapter met, when the installation of new Grand Officers took place, and the warrants for five new chapters were granted. On the 14th of this month the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls took place, under the presidency of Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, Grand Treasurer. About 500 brethren and 300 ladies were present. The unusually large sum of £1171, 3s. 3d. was announced amid great cheering. The Lodge of Benevolence of May 21st granted £530 in benevolence.

JUNE.—Grand Lodge met in Quarterly Communication on the 4th, when Bro. H. Sadler was appointed Grand Tyler. Bro. Tyrrell Leith was appointed District Grand Master Bombay. On the 18th the Lodge of Benevolence granted £635; on the 25th June the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys took place, the Earl of Rosslyn, K.T. and P.G.M. for Scotland, presiding, at the Alexandra Palace, in the presence of about 900 ladies and brethren, when £0,534 10s. was announced.

JULY.—On the 2nd July Lord Tenterden, U.S. of State for Foreign affairs, was installed as Prov. G.M. for Essex before a numerous gathering by the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., who made a most excellent speech on the occasion. The 11th Annual Festival in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters took place in this month, Lord A. Hall presiding, when £528 16s. was reported to have been received. In this month a complimentary dinner was given at the Star Hotel, Richmond, to Bro. the Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, by the members of the Aldersgate Lodge, No. 1657, a compliment well deserved by our worthy brother. At the meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence in this month £700 was voted. In July the Prince and Princess of Wales paid a visit to Grimsby, when an address was voted to our Royal Grand Master by Lodge 792. During this month the second festival of the Peckham Lodge, 1475; Metropolitan, 1507; and Royal Savoy, 1744, took place.

AUGUST.—Grand Chapter met on August 6th, when charters for ten new chapters were granted. In this month the Lodge of Benevolence granted £425. The normal mode of Masonic initiation was varied in this month by the announcement that a profane had been initiated in a balloon called the "Captive of Paris," by a French lodge, under the Rite Eccosais. Some Masonic writers have affected to find fault with this proceeding—for our part we think the least said is the soonest mended; indeed, as a little variety to the disagreeable situation of French Masonic Officers, we are rather inclined to approve of this airy flight of Masonry.

SEPTEMBER.—The Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge took place this month. At a meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence a sum of £390 was voted to indigent brethren. On the 17th a meeting of the Wentworth Little Memorial Fund Committee was held, and subscriptions to the amount of £251 18s. 6d. announced.

OCTOBER.—Few events of importance to the Craft occurred in October—the usual half-yearly election to fill vacancies in the Girls' and Boys' Schools being the most noticeable. In the former eighteen were elected out of a list of forty-eight, and in the latter sixteen were successful out of a list of seventy-seven. At a meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence in this month the sum of £755 was voted in Charity. The Provincial Grand Lodge of Oxford was held on the 29th, and was presided over by Prince Leopold.

NOVEMBER.—In this month Masonry, especially in the metropolis, shows signs of returning life and activity. Summer lodges and holiday outings at suburban places of meetings are things of the past, and real earnest work begins, and the record of Masonic labour becomes fuller. On the 5th Supreme Grand Chapter met, and granted warrants for four new chapters. At Reading the foundation stone of the New Public Buildings was laid, with Masonic ceremony, by the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon. On the 19th the Lodge of Benevolence met and granted various sums, amounting to the large sum of £1035. A pleasant gathering took place on the 18th, when the members of the Board of General Purposes and Colonial Board dined together. An important matter came before the Governor and Subscribers of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls at their meeting on the 22nd. On the recommendation of the Building Committee the following resolution was unanimously carried: "That the sum of six thousand five hundred pounds (£6500) be expended in the purchase of Lyncombe House and grounds (freehold), the property of Wm. Evill, Esq., adjoining the grounds of the Institution, at St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise, S.W." Among Craft meetings may be noticed the installation of Bro. Edwin Swanborough as W.M. of the Asaph Lodge, on which occasion a complete set of Masonic clothing was presented by the W.M.'s mother, Mrs. Swanborough.

DECEMBER.—This month the Craft heard with grief and sorrow of the resignation of its most esteemed Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey. He had long been suffering from ill-health and a painful malady, but his services to Masonry never grew slack, and his zeal for Masonry was never extinguished. He discharged his important duties to the very last, until weakness overpowered him, with that assiduity, address, and amiability which have rendered the name of John Hervey a household word among Freemasons. At the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, held on the 3rd, his resignation was officially announced, and he was granted a retiring pension of £500 a year, and an immediate gratuity of £300. Among other matters of importance discussed at this meeting of Grand Lodge was the resolution of Bro. Stevens for an enquiry into "Uniformity of Working," which was carried, a numerous and most influential minority voting against it, and an alteration of the regulations with regard to Charity jewels. Bro. Clabon's motion for appropriating a portion of the funds of the Lodge of Benevolence for other objects was postponed until the next communication. In its present form it cannot, in our opinion, legally be passed. Warrants for thirteen new lodges were granted. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was again nominated as M.W. Grand Master, amid the plaudits of all the assembly. Grand Mark Lodge met on the 2nd, when Lord Skelmersdale was re-elected Grand Master for the year ensuing; and warrants for five new lodges were granted. Official information was received of the recognition of the Grand Mark Lodge by the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland. The records of this month would be incomplete without mention of the festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, under the Presidency of Lord Kensington, and the banquet and congratulatory address presented to our gallant Bro. Major Chard, by the members of his lodge at Exeter.

Thus have we gone through the somewhat dull and even tenour of our Masonic course during the last twelve months. If English Masonry has had nothing striking to record, no vexata quæstio to move it, no bone of contention to rend it in twain, happily for the peace of the Order, its historian can gladly proclaim to-day that its material prosperity has been great, and its advance in prestige and popularity unprecedented. One historical fact must, however, here be noticed, viz., the resignation of Bro. John Hervey, G.S., through ill-health. Of his labours for Freemasonry who can speak in fitting terms? of his actual loss to our Order who can venture to doubt? Kind and courteous, polished and urbane, accessible to all and difficult to none, he has left a mark on English Freemasonry which none of the brethren who witnessed his work or shared his labours can ever underrate or forget. During his tenure of office several hundred lodges have been added to our roll, and the office work at Freemasons' Hall has become both a heavy duty and a serious responsibility; and here we leave the matter, for it is not for us to indulge in conjectures as to whom the Grand Master in his wisdom shall confide the important office of Grand Secretary. We could not, however, leave the summary of 1879 in the Freemason without referring in heartfelt terms of sincerity and admiration to the Masonic services and engaging personal character of Bro. John Hervey. Our readers will perceive that our English Masonic life has sped away in 1879 in the quiet discharge of lodge routine and the warm support of Masonic charity, amid depressing difficulties of trade and agriculture. Never at any period were our lodges better attended; never at any time in our history has the great cause of Charity witnessed more abundant proofs of the large-hearted liberality of our English brotherhood, and so we leave 1879 and welcome 1880 with just confidence and pride in our good old Order, trusting that it may please the G.A.O.T.U. to preserve it in its unity, integrity, efficiency, and reality, for the welfare of the brotherhood and the happiness of mankind. Abroad we have very little to report, either what is interesting or satisfactory. The spirit of agitation and violent change which prevailed, unfortunately, in the Grand Orient of France a couple of years ago and led to a most hurtful and unsound revolution, which placed French Craft Masonry out of harmony entirely with Cosmopolitan Masonry, affected the Rite Ecossais to some extent in 1879. A proposal was made, supported by violent speeches and bitter pamphlets, ignoring the whole history and very principles of the "Rite Ancien et Accepté," to make it practically a second Grand Orient, and to render the whole body subservient to the ruling of Master Masons. Properly speaking, the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite ought not to meddle with Craft Masonry, for it is quite clear that its own principles are utterly antagonistic to the idea of a Craft Grand Lodge as its governing body. We were appealed to because we were Craft Masons, and had a Grand Lodge, to support this incoherent proposal, but as we "could not see it" in any form or light, we preferred to uphold what was just and right, even at the expense of a little popularity among some of the movers of this unwise and un-Masonic agitation. It only shows how sentiment overpowers right reason and logic. The Convent of the Grand Orient, 1879, witnessed, indeed, a certain spirit of calmness and conciliation, but we fear that such a happy change is to a great extent only on the surface. Bro. St. Jean has retired from the presidency of the Conseil as if he feared a coming storm, and that the comparative quietude of 1879 was but a prelude to other and more violent proceedings in 1880, for it must be borne in mind that a revision of the ritual has taken place, and, if we are correctly informed, the only result will be, and can be, that the name of the G.A.O.T.U. must ere long entirely disappear from all French Masonic ceremonial. The Grand Orient of Belgium has followed suit, and in some jurisdictions there seems an unhappy tendency to imitate the unwise example of the Grand Orient of France. Happily other jurisdictions stand firm to their duty and the true teaching of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, such as the Grand Lodge of St. John, in Hungary, the Grand Orient of Egypt, the Grand Orient of Italy, the Grand Lodges of Sweden and Denmark, the Grand Orient of Spain and Portugal, and, we believe, the majority of the lodges in Germany. In America and Canada and the Antipodes Freemasonry holds on its prosperous way, its loyal adhesion to the religious tenets of our Great Order; indeed, the simple fact that in the United States there are 700,000 Freemasons is a remarkable fact in itself, and one deserving the attentive notice of the opponents and calumniators of Masonry, for, strange to say, as if the Roman Catholic Church had nothing better to do, it has given itself up in 1879 to the amusement of cursing and persecuting Freemasonry wherever its influence extends. Like the famous Jackdaw, immortalized by Barham, Freemasonry seems to heed neither ban nor blessing, but moves on with unruffled feathers, uninjured and undaunted, and long may it so continue—may its beneficent and tolerating principles spread from pole to pole, proclaiming in unmistakable language the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

We have had to deplore during the last twelve months the melancholy loss of many excellent comrades and distinguished brethren from the ranks of Masonry. Among them we note Bros. Wm. Archer, P.G.D.W. Lanc.; W. H. Bartle; Bedford, W.M. 581; P. W. Benham; J. Wade Bennett; Sir E. R. Borough, Bart., Past D.G.M. Ireland; Rev. Dr. Bowles, P.G.M. Herefordshire; J. Boyd, P.G.P.; W. Brown; H. Browne; W. A. Butt; J. H. Cox, P.M., P.Z.; J. S. Cuthbert; Duff, M.P.; T. Durkin; J. S. Ellison; J. Francis; H. J. Frew, P.M. 825; R. W. Haynes; B. Head, P.G.D.; John Hegarty; E. Hughes, P.M. 249; John Johnson, 140; George Kelly King, P.M., &c.; Jno. Lazar, R.W.D.G.M. Westland, N. Zealand; R. Lister; E. Martel, P.M., &c.; T. S. Mortlock; E. J. Page, P.G.S., &c.; C. B. Payne, Grand Tyler; Payne, I.P.M. 342; G. Phythian, P.M. 22; Jos. Poore; C. H. Pulham; Alex. Riddell; R. Rodda, P.P.G. Reg. Devon; John Seager; Jno. Shaw, P.M. 79; W. Royal Arch Mariners—Brixton, 234; Pan-mure, 139; and United, 34.

THE APPOINTMENT OF GRAND SECRETARY.

Up to the present no appointment has been made. We have heard of seven candidates for the office, though, we confess, we somewhat doubt the propriety, Masonically speaking, of brethren putting themselves forward, and in any way canvassing for support. The appointment is purely within the prerogative of the Grand Master, who is responsible to Grand Lodge for a proper appointment, and all public anticipations of the brother ultimately selected by the Grand Master are we venture to deem alike inopportune and unwise. We will only venture to express our hope, as, indeed, we doubt not, that the appointment when made will tend to maintain the prestige and independence of the greatest Craft Grand Lodge in the world.

UNITY OF RITUAL.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

As Bro. Perceval has in a long letter mentioned my name in connection with a recent discussion in Grand Lodge, with reference to Bro. Stevens's motion, and has characterized my speech as "illogical," will you allow me in your crowded columns a little space, to point out how unreasonable, in good truth, are his remarks, and how much more fully the word "illogical" applies to his letter than to my speech?

It is quite clear to myself, and I fancy it will be equally so to many more, that Bro. Perceval has not yet clearly understood what my argument was! Simply and shortly stated, it was this. Bro. Stevens based the necessity of his motion, first on the old Grand Lodge resolution, secondly on diversity of ritual on many points, and certain alleged illegal practices, and thirdly on the desirability of having one authority for the ritual and ceremonial of our Order.

In answer to this argument, I ventured to submit that neither before the Union nor since the Union was that unity really attainable. Before the Union there were notoriously six or seven systems in vogue, and that, though at the Union a Lodge of Reconciliation was formed to endeavour to form one ritual, and a fresh ritual was drawn up, yet, as four systems at the very least still prevail in England, Grand Lodge, in its wise toleration, has never attempted to enforce what was at the best a compromise in 1813. There was an "established mode" of "working" alluded to in the Book of Constitutions, but most wisely Grand Lodge had simply required that the great "essentials" should be observed.

I illustrated the difficulty of the position of Grand Lodge by the fact of the difference about the "Star in the East," to point out, however willing Grand Lodge might be to attempt to enforce the particular injunctions of 1813, it failed to do so when they ran counter to the feelings and traditions of the Craft. I have, as you know, spent much of my Masonic life in the provinces, and, despite Bro. Bodenham's hasty remarks, I fancy that very few people know the depth of the feeling of the provincial lodges on such matters of old ceremonial.

I also pointed out, that such a motion, to be good for anything, must lead to a revision of the ritual of 1813, and we should soon then find ourselves in the face of unsurmountable difficulties. Therefore, it was that I recommended Grand Lodge "quieta non movere," and to leave the matter where the designed inaction of Grand Lodge since 1870 had left it. I may be wrong in my facts, but if my facts are right, I certainly am not illogical, my premises and my conclusion are equally sound. The word "illogical" however, very forcibly (though I always object to "tu quoque") applies to Bro. Perceval and Stevens, who assume that because they have, as they say, found certain irregularities in ritual, therefore, they prove the necessity of a uniform ritual. The whole argument rests upon a pure fallacy.

They have proved, if their statement be verified, the need of authoritative interference, but they do not touch the question of unity of ritual. Far from it. But have they proved these abuses? So far they rest on the sole authority of Bro. Stevens. I have been W.M. of three very distinguished lodges; I have been in many provincial and metropolitan lodges; I have never even heard of any such grotesque absurdities.

There are in many lodges little ceremonies which have been kept up from time immemorial, and which are in excess somewhat of our recognized ritual, but so long as they do not contravene it on any positive order of lawful authority I, for one, think they have no harm in them.

But I deny that in any respectable lodge any brother would be guilty of some of the practices so graphically described, I venture to think, with the pardonable exaggeration of "Puff," in the "Critic." Indeed, it is an insult to all our Worshipful Masters to say so. I have, indeed, heard of brethren offering books and jewellery and the like for sale, but though that, no doubt, is disagreeable it is not positively wrong. But, at any rate, it does not touch really in any way the question of ritual.

Unity of ritual at present can only land us eventually in a region of "cribs and crams," and will make the fortune of one or two accommodating brethren, and, therefore, I do most strongly urge on all the educated members of our Order, who have its lasting interests at heart, above fictitious sentimentality and excited rhodomontade, to leave things as they are, and put a stop to a foolish agitation, which can lead to no practical result, and may conduce to disastrous controversies and hurtful complications.

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,
A. F. A. WOODFORD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Is Bro. Stevens really correct in claiming Grand Lodge in favour of his resolution? No doubt he is right in stating, as he does so constantly, in Grand Lodge and out of Grand Lodge, (and especially in that remarkable and original book, price 3s. 6d., in which too, if I remember right, he quotes from Carlyle, that he got a resolution in his favour, December 4th, 1869, with little of discussion, however, as the reports will show.

In March, 1870, his proposal to appoint a Committee was deferred on amendment to next Quarterly Communication, and at the next Quarterly Communication, June, 1870, his reiterated proposal was again negatived on amendment by a majority.

He may, indeed, complain of the "masterly inactivity" of Grand Lodge, but has it not a sufficient vindication in the utter uselessness and impracticability of the propositions, in my humble opinion unwise and mischievous in the highest degree? Of course Bro. Stevens may fairly say, why did Grand Lodge pass such a resolution then? Simply because, as I read the reports of the meeting—because, I repeat it, the subject was not fully discussed. I am not going to contend that something may not be said for the motion, because, no doubt, there can be a good deal advanced, but for my own part, I do not think, despite an accidental majority, that Bro. Stevens can fairly say Grand Lodge has pronounced itself until last meeting strongly in favour of his motion. At any rate, whatever was the decision of December 4th, 1869, it was practically reversed in March and June, 1870, and if the decision of Grand Lodge ought to be respected, (as it ought to be,) in one case, it ought equally to be respected in the other two cases. The last vote of Grand Lodge was taken, in my opinion, on a false issue, for Grand Lodge had forgotten the proceedings in 1870.

In the recent debate, the main objection taken by the mover of the amendment, (with which some did not concur), was based on the inadvisability of change, on practical grounds of common sense, judging from the "history of the Craft." A good deal might fairly have been said on the reversal of opinion by Grand Lodge itself and its silence for ten years. But here I pause to-day, as I may recur to the subject on another occasion, and am, yours faithfully and fraternally,

ONE WHO WAS IN GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read your excellent article as to this in last week's number, also Bro. Perceval's letter, but I cannot agree with him, being convinced you published (if anything), far too much of what was stated on this subject in last Grand Lodge.

It often amuses me when I hear brethren advocating "Uniformity of Ritual" in non-essentials. I have never come across a strong advocate of this "myth" but I found he had never travelled, and knew nothing of any ritual save the working of the few lodges around where he lived, a Dublin brother lately going even so far as to insist "every lodge all over the world should adopt" what he called "True Irish Ritual," he being quite ignorant of the facts that one of the Cork lodges boasts of having received its ritual direct from Bro. Oliver, and a Belfast lodge is working nearly a pure Scotch ritual, and all this after our late V.W. Bro. John Fowler getting on 18th September, 1817, an order that "his" ritual, and none other, should "henceforth be observed or used," and he, even in 1822, offering prizes for the best worker of it.

One of our greatest safeguards are these small variations, as is well known to every one who has really looked into the matter.

Will our Bros. Stevens, Perceval, and others come and visit some of our Scotch, Irish, and American lodges, or even our English provincial lodges, before they go further with their useless undertaking? If they do they will go back wiser men, and give up following this "Will-o'-the-Wisp," and do their duty (as it is their duty, knowing the facts), as to the "farce and mummery" alluded to by Bro. Perceval in his letter, by bringing the members of the lodges where such is carried on before their Provincial Grand Master, under page 46, article 4, of Grand Lodge Constitutions, or before the Board of General Purposes, under page 109, article 8, when the Board will know how to deal with the lodges guilty (as they allege) of such strange, and, surely, most un-Masonic conduct.

These brethren not having done so long since is, to say the least of it, rather strange, and cannot be justified.

Yours fraternally,
JAMES H. NEILSON.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In my lodge we elected our W.M. on the first Tuesday in this month, and on the following Tuesday he consulted the Past Masters as to his officers, and they cordially approved his selections, including that of Secretary. For the latter office a very unpopular brother considered he had a strong claim, but the W.M. elect and the Past Masters preferred another brother, in consequence whereof, the disappointed brother has publicly stated that he and his friend will blackball every candidate proposed during the coming Mastership. My doubt is this. Will the Past Masters be doing their duty by quietly permitting this un-Masonic threat to pass, or should they submit a statement of the facts to Grand Lodge?

As a member of an old lodge in a cathedral city I shall feel much obliged by your publishing this letter in your excellent Freemason, and replying to it in a foot note.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, truly and faithfully yours, HOMO.

16th December.

[We are of opinion that, though the brother complained of acts most improperly and un-Masonically, it is very doubtful whether his foolish speech, supposing it was out of lodge, constitutes a direct Masonic offence. Is there any bye-law of the lodge relative to balloting, &c. ?—Ed. F.M.]

THE BOOK OF CONSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reading your valuable paper week by week I am often struck by the want of knowledge shown by some of your correspondents with regard to the Book of Constitutions.

Had "A Mason" been conversant with the laws of our Institution he would have known that a lodge cannot be removed by the will of the W.M. without the consent of a majority of the members, and not even then until after the matter has been properly brought before the lodge.

Whilst not disputing the facts as mentioned by "A Mason," I cannot conceive how any W.M. could have forgotten that he promised at his installation to submit to and support all laws laid down in the Book of Constitutions.

The case appears one which should be brought before Grand Lodge.

Fraternally yours,
A. TUCKER,
W.M. 586.

Reviews.

BRO. GOULD'S "ATHOLL LODGES."

Without presumption we think facts will warrant us in thanking Bro. Gould for his "History of the Atholl Lodges" (dedicated to dear Bro. Hervey, G. Sec.) on behalf of the Craft universal. It is not well for any one or more Masons generally to assume they represent the whole body, but in this case it can be legitimately done by those who are amongst the first to speak of this deeply interesting book. Ever since our initiation we have met on all hands expressions and desires for an authentic history of the "Ancients," and, indeed, in Bro. Hughan's "Masonic Register" (1879), he had promised to do his best to supply such a generally felt want. Happily Bro. Gould has supplied the lack in our historical volumes, and, what is more, has done it so effectually that now we are enabled to trace every "Ancient" or "Atholl" lodge from its original constitution, through all its various vicissitudes to the present time. Important and invaluable as we deem the "Four Old Lodges," the memorial of the "Atholl" Lodges is still more so, for whereas by dint of patient research we, as Masonic students, have from time to time been collecting the calendars and Engraved Lists of the "Moderns," or regular Grand Lodge, we have all utterly failed to obtain anything like an approximate register of the "Ancients" from 1753. True, our friend, Bro. Constable has done good service in his collecting and editing of the "Old Warrants," and to him Bro. Gould most fraternally refers, as he does to all sources of indebtedness in the compilation of his work. All such attempts, however, useful and invaluable as they are become superseded by the present volume, and though handy for reference, and especially for the preservation of the names of the founders of the original or revived lodges, yet by the side of this most handy and compact account of the "Ancients" they must always prove to be but a tributary stream to this ocean of information. The system Bro. Gould has adopted appears to us very easy of identification, and so are the notes appended to the various lodges, when any such are deemed necessary. Those still on the roll of the "United Grand Lodge of England" are immediately recognised by the present numbers being printed in conspicuous figures on the margin of each page, and the "Ancient" numbers follow in smaller figures, so that not only is the numeration preserved of 1863, but under each number of the "Atholls" are all the lodges which at various times were so distinguished on the roll. This Grand Lodge had no renumberings from 1753 to 1813, as with the "Moderns," but lapsed numbers were revived by new warrants, about 600 Charters thus issued for different lodges at the different periods being all exhibited throughout by the several numbers. Of course, some lodges never changed their numbers up to the "Union," whereas others by purchase or favour obtained much higher numbers than their dates of constitution alone warranted. As Bro. Gould points out, these purchases again left blanks, which were filled in by still younger lodges, their blanks thus created being again used by fresh warrants or for entirely new lodges. It will be seen, therefore, that to trace all these changes, which can alone be accomplished by a most careful scrutiny of the "Ancient" Records preserved in the archives of Grand Lodge, to place the lodges under the special numbers so affected, and to present the whole, from 1 to 359, arranged in chronological and numerical order, represents months, if not years, of labour, that can only be thoroughly appreciated by those who have attempted a similar work and failed, or have in an efficient manner accomplished for a small portion, what Bro. Gould has done so thoroughly for the whole. Whenever any military lodges have been chartered by other Grand Lodges—Ireland, Scotland, &c.—as well as by the "Ancients," these are also duly noted. In fact, all that can be done, or expected to be done, has been fully accomplished by Bro. Gould, and throughout all time or, at all events, so long as Freemasonry is studied, his "History of the Atholl Lodges" will endure, and prove to be a monument of accurate and well-directed researches, for which the Craft can never prove too ready or too grateful to appreciate and admire. The book has been handsomely printed, and, whoever has been the "reader," evidently the pages have been "proofed" by a master-hand, for we have failed to detect a single error as yet. In all heartiness and sincerity, for two such works as the "Four Old Lodges" and the "Atholl Lodges," we beg to thank our able Bro. R. F. Gould on behalf of our wide-spread Fraternity.

GREENHOUSE FAVOURITES, Part VI. London: Groombridge & Sons.

This number treats of that truly noble plant the Azalea, which fittingly finds a leading place among greenhouse favourites; indeed, for the decoration of the conservatory it is unsurpassed for beauty among all our flowering shrubs, and takes first rank. The most minute details are given as to its cultivation. Tricolour Pelargoniums, however, are the subjects for illustration, and we can say that anything more gorgeous in the way of flower painting we have never seen. The well-known L'Empereur and other tricolour-leaved varieties are shown to the life, and, unless greatly overdone, they show that Mrs. Pollock has at last been deposed from her sovereignty.

THE INIGO JONES' MS.

I have been much interested in reading the brief account of the MS. lately obtained by the indefatigable "Masonic Student," Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, my only regret being that the notice was such a short one. Undoubtedly, it is a most valuable discovery, and especially because of its omissions or differences from the ordinary MSS. (from the "Landsown" down to those of the last century). I daresay Bro. Woodford will oblige us with an exact transcript either in the Freemason or "Masonic Magazine."

In my "Old Charges of British Freemasons" is a reference to a MS. once in the possession of Nicholas Stone, a "curious sculptor under Inigo Jones," and the extract is reproduced as given in Dr. Anderson's Constitutions of A.D. 1738. Bro. Woodford has, doubtless, ere his compared the two, and it will be strange if his MS. and Stone's turns out to be the MS. in question, as Stone's is declared to have been destroyed at the "conflagration of 1720," of which so much has been made Masosically, but apparently without much cause. I have sent Bro. Vernon's excellent transcript of the "Melrose MS.," No. 2, for insertion in the "Masonic Magazine," and hope to see it in print ere long.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

The Kidderminster Masonic Hall and Club was opened under the auspices of Lodge Hope and Charity, No. 377, yesterday (Friday) by the R.W. the Prov. Grand Master, Sir E. A. Lechmere, Bart., M.P. We hope to give an account of the proceedings in our next.

A weekly edition of the Echo is shortly to be published, price one penny.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Rheumatism and Neuralgia.—It is sometimes difficult to determine which of these diseases is afflicting the sufferer, but this ignorance will not matter if Holloway's remedies be used. They alleviate and cure the muscular and nervous pains. In hereditary rheumatism, after bathing the affected parts with warm salt water, Holloway's Ointment should be well rubbed upon the spot, that it may penetrate and exercise its soothing and regulating properties on the deeper vessels and nerves which are unduly excited and cause both the pain and swelling. Holloway's treatment has the merit of removing the disease without debilitating the constitution, which was the inevitable result of the bleeding, mercury, and colchicum practice formerly adopted in these complaints.—[ADVT.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SOMERSETSHIRE.

The members of the Weston-super-Mare Lodge, St. Kew, No. 1222, had the honour on Thursday, the 11th inst., of receiving the members of Provincial Grand Lodge. The occasion was an eventful one in the local annals of Freemasonry, there not having been so large and distinguished a gathering in Weston of "the brethren of the mystic tie" since the laying of the foundation stone of the West of England Sanatorium, by the R.W. the P.G.M. of Somersetshire, the Earl of Carnarvon. The members of the St. Kew, justly proud of the honour of entertaining so august a body, determined to give their brethren in the Craft a truly fraternal welcome, and a reception befitting their Masonic dignity. The ordinary lodge-room being too small, the Town Hall was engaged, the hall itself being fitted up for the lodge, and the various offices furnished for the reception of the D.P.G.M. and the Provincial Grand Officers. The arrangement of the hall for the business of the lodge was most effective and comfortable. The throne was situated on the platform, surmounted by a canopy curtained with crimson drapery with golden Masonic emblem in the centre. A flight of steps led from the floor of the hall to the foot of the throne, stove and greenhouse plants being effectively grouped on each side. Both steps and dais were covered with crimson carpet of fleur de lis pattern. The room was also decorated with plants, and the banners of the various lodges added much to the general effect. Conspicuous among these latter was a very handsomely worked one belonging to St. Kew Lodge, representing the Saint in the act of imparting instruction. A portion of the lower end of the hall was screened, and formed a reception and clothing room for the general body of brethren.

It had been confidently hoped that the Provincial Grand Master himself would have been in attendance, but this hope at the last moment was doomed to disappointment, a letter being received from the noble earl conveying the unwelcome intelligence that he was confined to his room at Pitton-park, his Somersetshire seat, by an attack of the gout. In his absence, therefore, the V.W.D.P.G.M., Bro. R. C. Else, presided, and the gratification of the brethren was much increased by the presence of the most popular P.P.G.M., Bro. Col. A. W. Adair. The following brethren recorded their names:—Bros. J. J. Knox-Fletcher, P.G. Chaplain; B. Cox, P.M. 1222, P.G. Treas., pro tem.; J. C. Hunt, P.G. Sec., pro tem.; S. Toms, P.G.S.D.; Newington Bridges, P.G.J.D.; and J. Tompsett, W.M. 814, P.G.S. We have arranged the names as the members were arranged in Prov. Grand Lodge under their respective banners, with the exception of those wearing purple, or the Provincial Grand Officers, who were seated right and left of the D.P.G.M. The lodges are in the order of their seniority:—Bros. Philip Braham, W.M., F. J. Brown, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., T. B. Moutrie, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., Capt. Peel Floyd, P.M., and H. L. Brown, of Royal Cumberland Lodge, No. 41, Bath; Col. England, W.M., Cannings Collins, I.P.M., J. L. Stothert, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., Gen. Doherty, P.M., and Otto Sondermann, S.W., of Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 53, Bath; J. C. Small, W.M., James Leaker, P.M., P.G.J.D., J. R. Treliving, J.W., Rev. F. P. Seale, P.G.C., C. Ricks, P.P.G.J.W., and J. Rich, of Perpetual Friendship Lodge, No. 135, Bridgwater; W. Adams, W.M., A. Villar, P.P.G.S.W., F. Haynes, Secretary, L. H. Bonn, Thomas Meyer, P.P.G.R., W. Bidgood, H. Allen, G. Strawbridge, F. T. Elworth, and A. Lewis, of Unanimity and Sincerity Lodge, No. 261, Taunton; Rev. W. J. Mooney, Chap., and John Butler, P.M., of Love and Honour Lodge, No. 285, Shepton Mallet; B. S. Fisher, W.M., Robert Brodie, I.P.M., F. Vizard, P.P.G.S.W., J. B. Marwood, P.P.G.J.W., H. M. Kemmis, S.W., J. T. Dunsford, Secretary, Rev. J. C. Lyons, Chap., W. Kellaway, J. Matthews, E. Strove, F. A. E. Withers, W. Hickman, and W. Woodward, P.G. Tyler, of Rural Philanthropic Lodge, No. 291, Highbridge; R. J. Damon, W.M., F. Cox, P.M., W. Cox, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., J. K. Farley, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., W. S. Gillard, P.M., P.P.G.S.D., Dorset, H. T. Compton, and E. G. Grubb, of Eldon Lodge, No. 1755, Portishead; R. W. Thomas, W.M., W. Roberts, J.W., and A. W. Campbell, S.D., of St. Keyna Lodge, No. 1133, Keynsham. Visiting brethren: R. M. Worlock, P.G. Sec., Bristol; J. R. Shorland, 610, P.G.S.W. Bristol; H. Grath, 471, P.G.S.W. Monmouth; W. Blundell, 858; Gabriel Williams, 686; G. Glossop, P.M. 887; H. M. Tainsh, 482.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened shortly after twelve o'clock. The Provincial Grand Officers entered in procession, and were received with the customary honours by the assembled brethren. The D.P.G.M. took his seat on the throne, supported on the right by Bro. General Munbee, and on the left by the P.P.G.M., Col. Adair. The D.P.G.M. expressed his regret at the absence of the P.G.M., and read a letter of apology from the noble Earl assigning illness as the cause of his absence, and sending his "Hearty good wishes" to the brethren. The lodge was opened in due form, and with prayer by the P.G. Chaplain, Rev. J. J. Knox-Fletcher. The office of P.G. Secretary being vacant by the death of Bro. Prideaux, his place was supplied by Bro. J. C. Hunt. The P.G. Treasurer, Bro. E. T. Payne, was absent on account of illness, and Bro. B. Cox acted for him, submitting the accounts. These showed a total income of £240 3s. 2d., including a balance from last account of £75 3s. 8d.; the lodge dues amounted to £106 13s. 6d. The amount subscribed for the Masonic Charities was £52 10s. The account closed with a balance in hand of £69 10s. 5d. The accounts were unanimously passed, and upon the motion of Bro. Munbee, seconded by the P.G.J.W., Bro. Payne was re-elected P.G. Treasurer by acclamation.

The various offices having been declared vacant the appointment and investment of new officers were proceeded with, collars being bestowed upon the following:—

- Bro. Capt. Long, P.M. 1199 and 1750 Prov. G.S.W.
- " E. S. Blundell, W.M. 1222 ... Prov. G.J.W.
- " Rev. W. J. Mooney, 285, and } Prov. G. Chaps.
- " the Rev. J. C. Lyons, 291 ... }
- " E. T. Payne (Bro. Cox received the collar for him) ... Prov. G. Treas.
- " A. R. Baily, 973 ... Prov. G. Reg.
- " J. C. Hunt, 291 ... Prov. G. Sec.
- " R. Brodie, 291 ... Prov. G.S.D.
- " J. E. Jeffries, 1199 ... Prov. G.J.D.
- " C. E. Daniel, 1755 ... Prov. G. S. of W.
- " H. C. Hopkins, 379 ... Prov. G.D.C.
- " R. J. Damon, 329 ... Prov. G.A.D.C.
- " J. Butler, 285 ... Prov. G.S.B.

- " F. U. Wood, 291 ... Prov. G.A.P.
- " W. Woodward ... Prov. G. Tyler.
- " A. J. Salter (Bath) ... Prov. G.A. Tyler.
- Bros. J. S. Boyd, 976; J. Tuckey, 906; H. S. Brown, 41; F. T. Elworthy, 261; W. E. Perrett, 1222; and W. Reece, 1199 ... } Prov. G. Stewards.

In bestowing the Senior Warden's collar upon Captain Long, who received a most cordial greeting, the D.P.G.M. informed him that it was given by the P.G.M. to mark his appreciation of the services he had rendered to the province as the chief promoter and first Master of the Coleridge Lodge at Clevedon. The collar of J.W. was given to Bro. E. S. Blundell, as the W.M. of St. Kew, the receiving lodge.

Upon the motion of the D.P.G.M., a sum of £50 was unanimously voted to the widow of Bro. F. R. Prideaux, the late P.G. Secretary. Bro. J. L. Stothert, in the absence of the Treasurer, proposed that a sum of fifty-two guineas be paid to the Girls' School, in order to constitute the lodge a Vice-Patron of the Institution. Bro. C. R. Davy seconded the motion, which was carried. The D.P.G.M. said the Treasurer had ascertained that £21 more would be needed, but this must be deferred. The sum of £21 was, upon the motion of Bro. Reeves, seconded by Bro. Moutrie, voted to the widow of Bro. E. S. Appleby.

The P. G. Secretary read the report of the Charity Organisation Committee of the Province, which stated that the whole of the twenty-two lodges had appointed delegates, who performed their duties in the most efficient manner. The very gratifying statement was made that from the date of its inception to the present time the Committee had succeeded in carrying every case it had taken in hand. The report was received and adopted, upon the motion of Bro. Newington Bridges, seconded by Bro. Marwood. Bros. J. L. Stothert and Gen. Munbee spoke very highly of the efforts of the D.P.G.M. to promote the success of the scheme, and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to him for his zealous labours.

The alms collected at the lodge, amounting to £6 os. 8d., were, upon the proposition of Bro. J. J. E. Willmott, seconded by Bro. C. R. Davy, voted to the West of England Sanatorium.

At the close of the Prov. Grand Lodge the brethren adjourned to the Old Assembly Room, Railway Hotel, where the banquet took place. The menu was that of a high-class dinner, served à la Russe. The viands were of the choicest, the service was as efficient and satisfactory as it could well be, and the wines were of the best vintages. Great credit is due to Bro. J. R. Britton, as well as to Mrs. Britton, for the excellence of their entertainment.

The D.P.G.M. presided, being supported by some of the more distinguished brethren. Due honour having been paid to "The Queen and the Craft," and "The Prince of Wales, as Grand Master," "The Pro Grand Master and Officers of Grand Lodge" were toasted.

Bros. Col. Adair and Rev. C. R. Davy responded, the last-named brother expressing a hope that the much respected D.P.G.M. of this province (Bro. Else) would before long be elected a member of Grand Lodge—a hope that evoked a hearty "hear, hear," from every one present. In proposing "The Health of the P.G.M.," the D.P.

G.M. again adverted to the cause of his absence, and stated that his lordship requested him to assure the brethren that nothing but the distinct and positive orders of his physician would have kept him away.

In very warm terms the D.P.G.M. proposed "The Health of the late much beloved P.G.M., Col. Adair," who suitably responded, and proposed that "The D.P. G.M. and the rest of the P.G. Officers, Present and Past." He traced the rise of the D.P.G.M. from the time when he accepted the collar of Assistant Secretary, and testifying to his unwearied labours in the cause of Masonry he echoed the wish expressed by Bro. Davy. Acknowledging the services he received from the officers when he occupied the post of P.G.M., he mentioned that it was twenty-six years since he received the collar of the P.G.J.D.

The D.P.G.M., in returning thanks, assured the brethren that if any honour were conferred upon him he should consider it as bestowed upon the province. Reviewing the past year, he congratulated the brethren of Taunton upon the dedication of the Masonic Hall, the effect of which would, he said, elevate the tone of Masonry, and said that nothing tended more to contradict the idea that Masons were mere "knife and fork men" than the establishment of these halls, and the promotion of the cause of charity. The other events were the consecration of the Keynsham Lodge and the death of the P.G. Secretary, to both of which he alluded.

The P.G.S. Warden (Bro. Captain Long), Bro. W. A. Scott (in the absence of the P.G.J.W.), and Bro. General Munbee responded.

Bro. Grath, of the Province of Monmouth, replied for "The Visiting Brethren," as did also Bros. Worlock and Shorland.

Bro. J. L. Stothert submitted the toast of "The Masonic Charities," referring to the success which attended their candidates at elections, and acknowledging the co-operation of the Provinces of Bristol and Monmouth.

Bro. Bridges responded, and thanked the Somerset Charity Association for the assistance given to him in securing the election of a London candidate. He promised in future not only to place his votes in the hand of the D.P.G.M., but to represent the province as Steward for the Boys' School the festival after next.

In proposing "The Health of the W.M., Officers, and Brethren of St. Kew," the D.P.G.M. said he did not remember an occasion when the arrangements were more complete, more satisfactory, or more comfortably carried out than they were in the Town Hall, and the reception at the hospitable board was most handsome.

In the absence of the W.M., who was obliged to leave, the toast was responded to by the I.P.M., Bro. Sidney Lewis, and likewise by Bro. W. M. Forty and Bro. Willmott.

Bro. Villa, the I.P.M. of Taunton, in replying for the Masters and brethren of other lodges, said the hopes the brethren at Taunton entertained in providing a Masonic Hall had been more than realised, since the tone of Masonry had been raised and the number of members increased. The experiment he thought should encourage the brethren in other towns to follow their example.

"The Host and Hostess," with thanks for the dinner, was proposed, and the Tyler's toast completed the programme.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF NORTHUMBERLAND & DURHAM.

The annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Alnwick, on Thursday, the 11th inst., presided over by Bro. Canon Tristram, L.L.D., F.R.S., the R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M., supported by Bros. T. Y. Strachan, D. Prov. G.M.M.M.; Capt. Forbes, of Berwick, P.G.S.W.; Fisher, of Hartlepool, P.G.J.W.; Rev. W. G. Cooley, P.G. Chap.; and a large number of Prov. G. Officers.

Satisfactory accounts were given of the position of the various lodges, and £21 was voted to the educational branch of the Benevolent Fund.

On the motion of Bro. Rev. G. Selby Thomson, P.P.G. Chap., it was resolved with acclamation to again submit the name of Bro. Canon Tristram for re-election as Prov. G.M.M.M.

The following officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—

- Bro. T. Y. Strachan ... Prov. D.G.M.M.M.
- " W. Cockburn ... Prov. G.S.W.
- " Jeno. Jensen ... Prov. G.J.W.
- " H. H. Blair ... Prov. G.M.O.
- " Jno. W. Bowey ... Prov. G.S.O.
- " W. T. Tate ... Prov. G.J.O.
- " Rev. G. R. Bulmen ... Prov. G. Chap.
- " R. H. Holmes ... Prov. G. Treas.
- " W. J. Watson ... Prov. G. Reg. M.
- " T. J. Armstrong ... Prov. G. Sec.
- " R. L. Armstrong ... Prov. G.A. Sec.
- " T. Twizell ... Prov. G.S.D.
- " Christ. Hopper ... Prov. G.J.D.
- " Edwd. Hudson ... Prov. G.D.C.
- " Luke Armstrong, M.D. ... Prov. G. Ins. W.
- " J. W. Moors ... Prov. G. Org.
- " Adam Robertson ... Prov. G. Swd. Br.
- " Richd. Lorke ... Prov. G. Std. Br.
- " W. Brandt ... Prov. G.I.G.
- Bros. J. Wood and J. S. B. Bell ... Prov. G. Stewards.

A banquet was afterwards held at the White Swan Inn, presided over by the R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M.

Bro. John Hervey, for many years Past Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England, has been induced by his failing health to resign his office. Bro. Hervey is known and respected in America as well as England, and his retirement will be universally regretted.—The Keystone, Philadelphia.

PORTSMOUTH.—Naval Preceptory (No. 2).—A meeting of this preceptory was held on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at the Masonic Hall, High-street, at which Sir Knight R.W. Bradley, P.E.C., performed the ceremony of the installation of Sir Knight R. Loveland Loveland, E.P. for the ensuing year, in his usual able and impressive manner. Sir Knight Loveland then appointed his officers as follows: Sir Knt. Rev. G. H. De Fraine, Chaplain; Sir Knts. G. F. Lancaster, Constable; Henry Reed, Marshal; H. M. Green, Sub-Marshal; H. Reed, Registrar; and Sir Knt. Hayman, Capt. of Guard and Treasurer. The E.P. then proceeded to instal Comp. A. Platt Wilks, as a K.T. Among the visitors were Sir Knt. the Rev. G. N. Palmer, of Oxford, and Sir Knt. R. Osborne, of Royal Gloucester Preceptory. Sir Knt. F. H. Mc Calmont, the E.P. of the Royal Gloucester Preceptory, together with his officers, were invited to attend, but the M.E.P. having been suddenly called away from Southampton, he was unable to be present. After the work had been concluded the Sir Knights adjourned to a banquet, where a most enjoyable evening was spent.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

JORDAN LODGE (No. 201).—This old and flourishing lodge met in strength at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Friday, the 19th inst. Among those in attendance were Bros. James Smith, W.M.; Hyland, S.W.; Payne, J.W.; F. B. Davage, P.M.; Treas.; P. Robinson, P.M., Sec.; R. Elsam, P.P.G.D.C. Surrey, acting I.P.M.; Wallis, S.D.; Davcy, J.D.; Sibley, acting I.G.; Whitley, P.M.; Wagner, P.M.; Parkinson, Tyler. The visitors were Bros. Cummings, 1677; E. Walter, 459 (India); T. C. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx. (Freemason); and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken upon behalf of Messrs. C. G. Machysze, R. Smith, and Sydney Gibbs, and it proving to be unanimous, the two last named gentlemen were duly initiated into Craft mysteries. The W.M. then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Elsam, P.M., who proceeded to raise Bros. J. Harris, E. A. Harris, and S. T. Wickstead to the Degree of M.M., the ceremony being ably and impressively performed. Bro. J. B. Ottaway was on the agenda for passing, but was unavoidably prevented from attending. A communication from the widow of a deceased member of the lodge having been read, it was unanimously resolved that, subject to inquiries being made as to the correctness of her statement, the sum of five pounds should be given to her from the Benevolent Fund. The election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year resulted respectively in favour of Bros. Hyland, S.W.; Davage, P.M.; and Parkinson. The Audit Committee, consisting of the W.M. Past Masters, Wardens, and Bros. Bailey, having been appointed, Bro. P. Wagner moved, which was duly seconded and carried unanimously, that the usual Past Master's jewel should be presented to Bro. J. Smith, the outgoing W.M. A very prolonged and somewhat acrimonious discussion upon the subject of the last appointment of officers having taken place, the lodge was formally closed at ten o'clock, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. Upon the removal of the cloths, the customary toasts were quickly and briefly given, and as the time was rapidly approaching midnight, the respective replies were necessarily, but scrupulously and formally made.

STOCKWELL LODGE (No. 1339).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 6th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Cambeswell New-road. Bro. W. G. Brighton, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Howell, S.W.; Sawyer, J.W.; Francis, Sec.; Masters, G.; Klenck, P.M.; Pain, P.M.; Bassett, P.M.; Coe, I.M.; Roseblin, Moss, Salmon, McKay, J. Roseblin, Bowyer, and the following visitors:—Bros. Meek, 754; Ictober, 1567; Bartlett, 1753; Bonstead, P.M. 548; Fortene, 1555; E. Dodson, P.M. 70; Smith, 186; Newman, 185; Dondney, 145; Freeman, 1288; and H. Thompson, 1426, and P.M. 177 and 1158 (Freemason). The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes read, the first business was to ballot for Mr. Roseblin and Mr. H. J. Pao, who were candidates for admission into Freemasonry, the latter being the son of Bro. Pain, one of the highly respected Past Masters of the lodge. In both cases the ballot was unanimous, and they were introduced, and admitted into the Order by the W. Master. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Dakes was examined as to the progress he had made in the science. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. H. E. Francis, P.M. and Sec., presided, and Bro. Dakes was impressively raised to the Sublime Degree. The lodge was afterwards closed in the different Degrees, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where ample refreshments were provided. At its conclusion, the usual formal toasts having been disposed of, the W.M. said the next toast he had to propose was "The Health of their Brother Initiates," one of whom was the son of an esteemed Past Master, and he could assure him that he welcomed him with a great amount of cordially, and asked him to diligently follow in the footsteps of his father, for by so doing he would make himself esteemed, not only in Freemasonry but throughout his life. He was glad that Bro. Pain had come into the Order in that lodge, and could assure him that if he gave his heart to it the benefit would be returned to him a thousand-fold. As to Bro. Roseblin, he was a stranger amongst them, but he was brother to one of their members, who had stood by the lodge through good report and through evil report, and had come hundreds of miles to be with them over and over again. He trusted that, as they were now brothers two-fold, they would work together for the benefit of the lodge in particular and for Freemasonry in general. The toast was very cordially received, and Bros. Pain and Roseblin severally returned thanks for the honour that had been conferred upon them by their admission into Freemasonry in that lodge. Bro. Coe, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W. Master," who, he said, was one of the founders of the lodge, and asked the brethren to drink it with cordiality. Bro. Dodson sang "Shells of the Ocean" in exquisite style, and afterwards the W. Master said he was very much obliged to them for the hearty manner in which they had responded to the toast proposed by their Immediate Past Master. His year of office was drawing to a close, and he would, to the utmost of his power, endeavour to make the Stockwell Lodge a bonâ fide working lodge, and restore it to the happy position it formerly held. Bro. Klenck, P.M., then announced that they were about to draw for a Life Governorship of one of the Charities, but a small sum was required to make up the required amount, which was immediately supplied, and the lot fell to Bro. Bowyer, who was fortunate in obtaining another one on a former occasion. The next toast was that of "The Visitors," for which Bro. Thompson responded, referring to the time when he had the privilege and pleasure of being present at the consecration of the lodge, and he had a vivid recollection of the great and hearty welcome he, in common with others, then received from Bro. Bannister, their first W. Master, and he was glad to have the opportunity of revisiting a lodge in which he had received such kindness. He congratulated the lodge on that night initiating the son of Bro. Pain, one of their Past Masters, and an old friend of his own, and he thought that when a father proposed his own son for initiation it might be a good answer to those who were at all times ready to throw a stone at Freemasonry, and that was because they knew nothing of it. If the father was willing to introduce his son amongst them, Freemasonry could not be a very bad thing, and would fully answer the sneers of the vulgar that were sometimes levelled against them. Two or three other visitors also returned thanks. The W. Master then gave "The Past Masters of the Lodge," and extolled their good qualities, being always ready to render suit and service in any way in their power. Bro. Coe, I.P.M., thanked the brethren for the hearty, kind, and cordial manner in which they had supported him during his year of office, as he had endeavoured to carry out the duties of the lodge to the best of his ability. Bros. Pain and Klenck also returned thanks. Some other toasts were given, and a very pleasant evening was passed.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The December meeting of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday week, the 17th inst. In the absence of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Scales, the lodge was opened by Bro. J. J. Michael, P.M., Secretary, assisted by the following brethren:—Bros. W. Side, S.W.; W. M. Süles, J.W.; James Willing, P.M., Treas.; R. T. Kingham, P.M.; H. Lovegrove, D. of C., as Secretary; H. Süles, as S.D.; Raney, as J.D.; G. Clarke, I.G.; Brunwell, W.S.; J. Daly, Tyler; J. Fortescue, C. C. Cruikshanks, J. W. Little, C. F. Hall, Thos. S. Raney, D. Hatch, J. C. Edmonds, Chas. Carter, Wm. Wiltshire, Lewis Solomon, C. Rooks, G. W. Knight, Alf. Mellon, C. Killingback, P. H. Thorne, F. H. Parker, E. R. Freebody, J. Sheppard, W. Davcy, D. Morgan, F. J. Perks, R. Kearns, S. Hollingsworth, E. T. Henborn, H. H. Child, E. Van Camp, M. Conolly, John Jones, R. A. Fraser, A. Burstow, H. A. Dennisson, C. W. Blake, John R. Rogers, C. Sheath, and others. The visitors included Bros. A. J. Ireton, W.M. 1624; Alfred Tisley, J.D. 8; E. Storr, 167; W. H. Lee Davies, 192; F. Silvester, 193; F. E. Morris, 697; J. Godwin, 1556; Chas. B. Carter, 1662; C. B. Putland, 732; F. W. Sillis, 1744; and F. A. Kelly, 1524 (Freemason). The first business proceeded with, after the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, was the raising of Bro. C. Rooks and H. Conolly to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, the ceremony being ably given by the acting Master, Bro. Michael. Bro. Scales having by this time arrived, assumed the chair, and impressively initiated Messrs. A. A. Burstow, J. W. Boarne, R. W. Fraser, and John Jones into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. Bro. R. T. Kingham, P.M., then brought forward the following motion:—"That to Bye-law 12 the following words be added: 'and a permanent Committee, consisting of the W.M., the Past Masters, and officers of the lodge, shall be appointed to consider the matter of brethren in arrear, and see this bye-law properly carried out.'" Bro. Kingham said his main object in introducing this motion was to put a stop to the practice of mentioning the names of defaulting brethren in open lodge. He considered it a most uncharitable action, and the sooner it was abolished the better. Bro. Cruikshanks supported the motion, which was opposed by Bro. Willing, who, in the course of a somewhat lengthy speech, informed the brethren that names were never mentioned in open lodge until every means had been exhausted in endeavouring to induce the brother to pay his dues. When a brother was really unable to pay, and had the honesty and fairness to say so, his was not a name that was mentioned. It was only for those brethren who would not pay unless some force was used that they wished to retain the power they possessed, in threatening that, unless the dues were paid, their names must be mentioned in open lodge as defaulting members, and they would be excluded from attending the meetings of the lodge. Bro. J. J. Michael, P.M., also spoke in opposition to the motion, and cited, much apparently to the surprise of many young members of the lodge, several instances where it was of the utmost importance that those responsible for the well-doing of the lodge should hold some means of pressure, which was never wantonly used. The Senior Warden, Bro. W. Side, and the Junior Warden, Bro. W. M. Stiles, also opposed the motion, the latter brother stating that, having acted as Secretary to the lodge for several years, he was in a position to say positively that every brother in arrear had been written to over and over again, five or six times, and it was only those who would not reply in any shape or form who were threatened with exposure. In the majority of cases replies were received promising to pay. Of course, these were shelved for a time, and ultimately paid. The motion was then put to the lodge by the W.M., and was rejected by a large majority; in fact, there were only five held up their hands in favour of it. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, served by Bro. Clemow, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly responded to. Some excellent singing was given during the evening, special mention being due to Bro. F. Silvester for a most amusing, though difficult, song, very cleverly sung.

STOCKPORT.—St. John's Lodge (No. 104).—The installation meeting and celebration of the festival of St. John was held at Ashton House, Greek-street, on Monday, the 8th inst. There being a rather a full day's work to be got through, it was found necessary to hold a morning and afternoon session. The morning session, therefore, commenced at 10 a.m., when some 15 brethren were present. After the lodge had been opened with prayer, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Thomas Davis and Mr. A. G. Cumming, and these gentlemen having been duly elected, they were each singly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M., Bro. Wm. Harrison, P.S.G.D. On the retirement of the initiates, the lodge was raised to the Second Degree, when Bro. Major Preston, who was ready to be advanced to the Third Degree, was interrogated, and withdrew for preparation. The lodge was raised to the Third Degree, and on the re-admission of Bro. Preston he was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by Bro. Pearson, P.M. This ceremony being finished, Bro. Capt. Henry Turner, P.M. 62, P.P.S.G.W. Derbyshire, was balloted for, and elected a joining member of the lodge. The lodge was lowered to the First Degree. The financial and charity reports were next read and adopted. With respect to the latter report, a few particulars of the same may not be uninteresting. The Committee reported that they had during the year devoted £126 to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; £10 10s. to the Cheshire Educational Institution; £5 5s. to assist an aged brother in procuring an annuity to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; £23 in relieving local cases of distress; making a total of £164 15s., and towards this amount the lodge had only been taxed to the extent of twenty-five guineas, the remainder having been derived from the regular charity receipts, supplemented by voluntary contributions from the brethren. The lodge was called off from labour at twelve o'clock. At three o'clock the brethren, who had by this time assembled in good numbers, resumed their labours, the following being amongst their number:—Bros. Wm. Harrison, W.M., P.S.G.D.; Henry Collier, S.W.; R. W. Shelmardine, J.W.; T. Bullock, Sec.; Wm. Booth, S.D.; Geo. Balfe, Org.; H. Mather, S.S.; J. Fox, J.S.; Jos. Meadows, Tyler; John Bell, Thos. Taylor, Abel Gaskell, Thos. Torkington, Geo. Naylor, Chas. Pearson, Wm. Glearne, Herbert Finch, P.G.D. of C.; Jos. Stafford, Frances Preston, Henry Leet, Geo. Gaskell, Jos. Weed, Giles Hatherton, M. B. Sutton, H. Warren, A. G. Cumming, Thos. Davis, Wm. Raynor, H. Turner, P.M.; John Eaton, and Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson, P.M. Visitors: Bros. Edward Hardon, P.P.S.G.D. E. Lanc.; Thos. Brookes, P.M. 323, Prov. G.A.D. of C. Cheshire; J. Vaughan, P.M.; Chas. Booth, W.M. 287; Wm. Nukton, 322; Wm. Alcock, J.D. 322; Thos. Smith, P.M. 1126; P.P.J.G.D. Cheshire; Isaac Bailey, W.M. 322; J. T. Owen, W.M. 993; John Leigh, S.W. 287; Geo. Bowden, 336; G. Atkinson, W.M. 323, P.M. 1126; and R. R. Lisenden, 317 (Freemason). Letters of apology for non-attendance were received from Bros. the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, Prov. G.M. Cheshire; John Wood, P.G.S.W. Cheshire; E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Sec. Cheshire; J. H. Sillitoe, P.P.G.D. of C. E. Lanc., and others. The W.M. called upon Bro. Herbert Finch (the Installing Master) to take the chair, and that brother immediately appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. T. Brookes, D. of C.; Capt. Turner, S.W.; Edward Hardon, J.W.; G. W. Harrison and W. Hiction, Deacons; Dr. T. Smith, Chaplain; Chas. Pearson, Sec.; Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson, Org.; and Chas. Booth, I.G. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and the W.M. elect was presented to the Installing Master, Bro. Finch, by the Deacons. After the obligation had been taken, the lodge was raised to the Third Degree, when all below the rank of Installed Masters withdrew. A Board of Installed Masters was opened in due form, and Bro. Collier installed into the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. On the re-admission of the brethren the usual proclamation was made to them of Bro. Collier's installation, whom they saluted in the customary manner. The W.M. then presented to Bro. William Harrison, I.P.M., in the name of the lodge, a very handsome gold Past Master's jewel, and accompanied the same with a few well-chosen words of kindly feeling. Bro. Finch afterwards gave the lecture on the jewel to the I.P.M., and Bro. Harrison returned thanks for the present. The investiture of officers was then proceeded with as follows:—Bros. T. Burrows, S.W.; W. Booth, J.W.; R. W. Shelmardine, Treasurer (re-elected); G. Balfe, S.D.; T. Bullock, J.D.; H. Mather,

I.G.; J. Fox, S.S.; W. Bradley, J.S.; and Jos. Meadows, Tyler (re-elected). The appointment of Secretary was deferred. The Installing Master then gave the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, and "Hearty good wishes," having been expressed by the visiting brethren, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 5.45. The ceremony throughout was choral, and Bros. W. Alcock, G. Balle, W. Booth, E. J. Edmonson, G. Gaskell C. Pearson, P.M., and T. Wilkinson, P.M. (who were the executives) rendered valuable aid to what was unmistakably a treat to all those who were fortunate enough to be present, and it would be well for the honour and glory of Masonry if the practice of choral accompaniments at installation meetings was more frequent, as it undoubtedly attracts all lovers of music and gives additional charm to the proceedings. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson proved himself a most efficient accompanist on the harmonium. At six o'clock the brethren sat down to an admirably served banquet, and as soon as grace after meat had been sung by the musical brethren (Non Nobis Domine), the toast of "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen" was proposed by Bro. Finch, the D.C., and loyally responded to. The toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and H.R.H. the Princess of Wales" followed. The next toast was "The M.W. Pro Grand Master, Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, the R.W. Dep. Grand Master, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and the other Officers of Grand Lodge." The toast of "The R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Cheshire, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley," followed. In response to the toast of "The R.W. Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. the Hon. W. Egerton, M.P., and the rest of the Present and Past Grand Officers," Bro. Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson said he had responded to this toast so many times that he was afraid he had almost worn it threadbare; he would, therefore, simply content himself by thanking them heartily for the kind manner in which his health had been proposed as one of the P.P.G. Officers, and he thought that the recent election of Prov. Grand Officers had given great satisfaction in Stockport, at any rate. Bros. Dr. T. Smith, P.P.G.J.D., and T. Brookes, P.G.A.D. of C., also responded to the toast. The sixth toast proposed was "The Prov. Grand Officers of the Neighbouring Provinces." In proposing the seventh toast on the list, that of "The W.M. of St. John's Lodge, No. 104," Bro. Wm. Harrison said he felt it a great honour to be called upon to propose this toast, at the same time he was diffident in doing justice to it. He thought their W.M. well deserved the honour he had gained, as he had always been very attentive to his duties while sitting as S.W. in the lodge, and he thought that in their Worshipful Master's hands the interests of Freemasonry would assuredly be benefited, and would be handled by him with that prudence and forethought that experience alone gives. In placing upon Bro. Collier's breast the centenary jewel of St. John's Lodge, he trusted it would be handed to his successor with the same feelings of pleasure as it afforded him that evening. The W.M., in reply, said Bro. Harrison had given him such a text that he felt it rather difficult to preach from. He could only return his sincere thanks for what he felt to be the greatest honour the brethren of St. John's Lodge could confer upon him. He felt himself in a very responsible position, and he thought that a brother who had the responsibility of managing a number of brethren ought to be as equally capable of managing himself to begin with. As the brethren had, however, unanimously elected him to rule over them, it showed their confidence, but at the same time he trusted to their supporting him in his position. He could not help feeling a little nervous in undertaking such an important office, especially when he saw so many shining lights in Masonry around him, and it had been very gratifying to him to see that afternoon the presence of so many Provincial Grand Officers, who had formed the Board to instal him, and he especially thanked Bro. Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson for his great kindness in coming to support him. He thanked his officers for their assistance, especially Bro. Herbert Finch, the Installing Master, who, he was sure, the brethren owed a great deal to. Bro. Collier also spoke in the highest praise of the I.P.M.'s zeal and energy while presiding over them during the past twelve months, and concluded by asking the brethren to drink his health. The I.P.M., in reply, said he thanked the brethren for so cordially responding to his health. When first he presided over them he thought the duties of W.M. were very onerous, but he afterwards found they were not so difficult, and like most things, became easier when you thoroughly knew how to do them, and became a pleasure instead of being irksome. If he had given the brethren satisfaction it was all he could desire. Bro. Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson proposed "The Health of the Visitors," and said if this was not the toast of the evening, he considered it ranked next to it, and it always afforded him exceeding pleasure in seeing visitors amongst them. He thought that hospitality in Masonic lodges was one of their chief characteristics, and the St. John's Lodge was no exception to the rule. He trusted the visitors were pleased with the ceremony of installation, as he did not think the work could have been better done than it had been that day. They had that evening a large assembly of visitors, and amongst them many well-known brethren in rank, and as good Masons, and in asking the brethren of St. John's Lodge to drink their health in a bumper he was sure they would. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. The concluding toasts were "Past Masters of the St. John's Lodge," "The Newly-invested Officers," "The Newly-admitted and Newly-raised Brethren," "The Masonic Charities," "The Sister Lodges of Stockport," "All Poor and Distressed Masons." This concluded one of the most enjoyable and successful meetings in connection with this lodge, and great praise is due to Bro. Herbert Finch, who was perceptibly the moving spirit of the whole affair. The musical brethren and Bro. Lieut.-Col. Wilkinson also deserve warm eulogy for the manner in which the musical arrangements were carried out, and, although it is scarcely possible to particularise any one piece, we cannot help awarding the palm to the rendering of "The Soldiers' Chorus," from "Faust," which was well sung, and vociferously encored.

YORK.—York Lodge (No. 236).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday evening, the 15th inst., when Bro. W. H. Gainforth, was installed in the chair, the ceremonies being performed by Bro. J. Todd, P.M., P.P.G.R. The Worshipful Master appointed his officers as follows: Bros. A. Buckle, I.P.M.; M. Rooke, S.W.; J. S. Rymer, J.W.; Rev. A. B. Day, Chap.; J. Todd, P.M., Treas.; G. Kirby, Sec.; G. Garbutt, S.D.; W. Draper, J.D.; J. G. Hodgson, M.C.; Thos. Hopkins, Org.; W. Powell, I.G.; J. Young and W. Smith, Stewards; W. G. Calvert, Tyler. After the ceremonies, the brethren met at an excellent supper, the W.M. ably presiding. Amongst other members and visitors present were Bros. Sir James Meek, P.M.; W. Lawton, P.M.; G. Balmford, P.M.; Rev. J. E. M. Young, P.M.; T. B. Shaw-Hellier, P.M. 295 (I.C.); J. Hanly, W.M. 295; L. Murphy, W.M. elect 295; Rev. W. Valentine, P.M., and many other members and visitors. Letters were received from Bros. T. B. Whythead, P.M., J. S. Cumberland, P.M., and several others, regretting inability to be present.

JERSEY.—Mechanics Lodge (No. 245).—At the usual monthly meeting of this lodge, after the initiation of two candidates, Bro. O. Dodge, P.M., Sec., presented Bros. Past Masters Moss, Blampied, and Gray each with a Past Master's jewel, as a token of the high esteem in which they were held by the members of the lodge, and, in doing so, passed a high eulogium on the recipients. In conclusion, he hoped that what they had just witnessed would make a lasting impression on their minds, especially of the younger brethren, and serve to stimulate them to higher aims, and be the means of throwing fresh energy into their work, in the hope that they might ultimately become the recipients of like rewards. Bros. Moss, Blampied, and Gray returned thanks for the honour done them. We believe the above circumstance is unprecedented in the annals of Freemasonry in Jersey. The jewels were much admired.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Affability (No. 317).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, on Thursday, the 4th inst. The following brethren were present: Bros. John Roger Lever, W.M.; Mark Vickers, S.W.; William Nicholl, J.W.; Daniel Donbavand, I.P.M.; Tomlyn, S.D.; Halliday, J.D.; Cunliffe, Organist; John Bladon, P.M., D.C.; J. Dawson, P.M., Registrar; John Church, Sec.; J. Wilson, acting I.G.; John Smethurst, Treas.; J. Kirk, acting Tyler; J. Higginbottom, P.M.; J. H. Sillitoe, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; Sydney Henson, P.M.; J. L. Hine, P.M., P.P.G.; J. Howarth Clark, P.M.; J. W. Edwards, E. de Yongh, J. E. Elderton, P. Holmes, Ellis Jones, Ludwig Oppenheimer, J. E. Middlehurst, James Eckersley, J. Smith, Francis Hilton, H. Forshaw, E. H. Bates, H. Walmsley, and R. R. Lisenden (Freemason). Visitors: Thos. A. Ryder, W.M. 1357; James Cummins, 1633; J. A. Jowett, 1633; and W. J. Watson, I.P.M. 1496. The lodge was opened at 5.30 with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. At six o'clock the brethren were called from labour, and sat down to tea. At 6.45 they resumed labour, and Bro. David Wenham, who had been balloted for and elected at a previous meeting, was interrogated, and afterwards initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M. At the conclusion of this ceremony, and the retirement of the initiate, Bro. Gooden, who had been balloted for previously, was also initiated, the ceremony being also performed by the W.M. in the most creditable manner. Bro. Church gave the charge to both candidates collectively. This being the night for election of W.M. for the ensuing twelve months, the usual proceedings were gone through, when it was found that the choice of the brethren had fallen upon their S.W., Bro. Mark Vickers, the announcement of this fact being greeted with warm applause. Bro. Vickers, in a most eloquent speech, thanked the brethren for the trust reposed in him. Bro. John Smethurst was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. John Sly Tyler. This latter brother, whose extreme usefulness and knowledge in all the Degrees of Freemasonry is well known in Manchester and the suburbs, was, unfortunately, prevented by illness from attending his duties. The W.M., however, deputed the acting Tyler, Bro. Kirk, to acquaint Bro. Sly of his election as Tyler to the lodge, and also to express the "Hearty good wishes" of himself and the brethren for his speedy return amongst them. Some discussion ensued as to the day for celebrating the St. John's festival, but eventually a Committee was appointed to make arrangements for the same, and Bros. Walmsley, Wilson, Nicholl, and Lisenden were appointed Stewards. After the Auditors had been appointed, the visiting brethren expressed "Hearty good wishes," and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 8.45.

GOOLE.—Aire and Calder Lodge (No. 458).—On Friday, the 12th inst., this lodge celebrated the festival of St. John, Bro. J. Milne Bramwell being installed Worshipful Master of the lodge for the next year. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Slack, P.M. of St. Oswald's Lodge, Pontefract, and amongst the visitors present were Bros. Mathers, P.M., and Clark, P.M., from the same lodge. At the banquet subsequently held at the Sydney Hotel (when Bro. Brown placed a repast of no ordinary character on the table), Bro. Bramwell, the new Worshipful Master, presided, and was supported by several visiting brethren, the Past Masters of the lodge, and others. Bro. Gardiner, S.W., occupied the vice-chair. After the removal of the cloth, the Worshipful Master proposed the usual Masonic and loyal toasts, and a very agreeable evening was spent.

SALFORD.—Zetland Lodge (No. 852).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at the Albert Hotel, New Bailey-street. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. John Thos. Watts, I.P.M., and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed; after which Bros. J. Blackwell, Allen, Avison, and Jas. H. Bowden, who were present, having been examined as to their proficiency in the First Degree, were entrusted, and afterwards passed to the Second Degree, by Bros. T. Heathcote, P.M., G. A. Packwood, P.M., and R. Holland, W.M., assisted by the officers most efficiently. Bro. Joseph Hardy, S.W., was then unanimously elected W.M.; Bros. James Gibson Edge, re-elected Treasurer (for the fifteenth year); William Riddell, P.M., Tyler. Bros. Watts, Packwood, and Walker were appointed Auditors. All Masonic business being over, the lodge was closed in the usual form by Bro. R. Holland, W.M. The brethren then adjourned to a banquet, supplied by Host Coburn in his usual efficient manner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to in excellent style; the proceedings being enlivened with songs, recitations, &c., in which Bros. J. Corney, S.D., S. Balantyne, and others took part. The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

THIRSK.—Falcon Lodge (No. 1416).—The installation meeting took place on Thursday the 11th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Thirsk, North Yorkshire. There was a good muster of Past Masters, including Bros. Rev. W. C. Lukis, P.M. 837, P.P.G.C. West York; J. Richardson, P.M. 1001, P.P.G.P. West York; G. Balmford, P.M. 236, P.P.G.O.; A. C. Knowles, P.M. 940, P.P.G.D. Durham; J. Hutton, P.M. 940, P.P.G.D. Durham; P. Donaldson, P.M. 839; J. Walton, P.M. 1416, P.P.G.S.B.; G. Ayre, P.M. 1416, P.G.J.D.; C. Palliser, P.M. 1337; J. Fairburn, P.M. 1337; Rev. C. E. Camidge, P.M. 1416, P.P.G.C.; T. J. Wilkinson, P.M. 1416; W. H. Gainforth, W.M. elect 236; G. Kirby, 236; L. Payne Galloway, 1416; R. Bell, 1416; and others. The installation ceremonies were performed by Bro. T. B. Whythead, P.M. 1611, P.P.G.D.C., and the following is the list of the officers:—Bros. W. Coltman, W.M.; T. J. Wilkinson, I.P.M.; W. Hall, S.W.; C. Greenside, J.W.; Rev. C. E. Camidge, Chap.; Rev. W. C. Lukis, Lecture Master; Jas. Walton, Sec.; H. Smith, S.D.; J. Johnson, J.D.; R. Atkinson, M. of C.; Z. Wright, Org.; H. Longford, I.G.; J. S. Farmery, Tyler. The brethren afterwards partook of an excellent banquet at the Three Tuns Hotel, when the W.M. presided.

TWICKENHAM.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 20th inst., at the Albany, for the purpose of initiating a member, passing four, and raising one; unfortunately only two turned up, and the ceremony of passing was performed by the W.M. in his usual masterly manner. There were present Bros. E. W. Devereux, W.M.; John Thos. Moss, P.M., P.G.R. Middx.; J. W. Baldwin, P.M., P.G.D.C. Middx., Treasurer; A. Loos, S.W.; E. H. Thielley, P.G.P.; J. Faulkner, J.W.; Benj. Wright, Secretary; J. H. Pearson, J.D.; G. S. Elliott, I.G.; W. Hammond; W. A. Sims, and A. A. Sims. The correspondence was read by the Secretary, including a letter from J. T. Sabine, regretting his absence in consequence of illness, and requesting to be placed on the list of country members, also from Col. Burdett, P.G.M., in consequence of a prior engagement; and from the initiate, Mr. J. S. Fowler; also from Bros. Squire, Jenkins, Chipperfield, and Dr. Ryley for their absence. Bro. Sims was then interrogated by the W.M., and afterwards passed to the Degree of Fellow Craft. This being the whole of the business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, Bro. Moss, in his usual happy vein, responding for "The Grand Officers." Bro. Sims delighted the brethren with Othello's address to the Senators, and after a little harmony the brethren returned to town by an early train.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—This provincial lodge met at its headquarters, the Albany Hotel, on the 10th inst., when there were present among others Bros. W. Taylor, W.M.; Ashley S.W.; T. Walls, P.G.S.B. Middx., J.W.; Charles Horsley, P.P.G.R. Middx., &c., acting I.P.M.; the Rev. M. D'Osey, Chaplain; W. H. Saunders, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M. acting Sec.; Rogers, acting S.D.; and Harrison, Tyle. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the report of the Committee appointed to revise the bye-laws was read, and, after some discussion, was unanimously adopted. Previously to the lodge being closed, a vote of thanks was passed, nem. con. to Bro. C. Horsley, P.M., for the services rendered by him to the Committee in the revision of the bye-laws. The brethren having partaken of a collation, the usual toasts were duly honoured. Bros. Horsley and Saunders responded on behalf of "The Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past." "The Health of the W.M." was warmly proposed by Bro. Horsley, and, having been heartily received, Bro. Taylor modestly replied, and then gave "The Officers," which toast was acknowledged by Bros. Ashley, D'Osey, and Walls. The remainder of the time at the disposal of the brethren having been agreeably spent, the Tyler was called upon to discharge his duty, and the brethren separated.

LIVERPOOL.—Prince Arthur Lodge (No. 1570).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 23rd inst., at the Masonic Rooms, North Hill-street. There was a large and influential gathering of the brethren. Bro. Robert Roberts was installed W.M. by Bro. Thomas Evans, P.M., and the following officers were subsequently invested: Bros. Samuel Hinks, I.P.M.; Henry Worthington, S.W.; Ralph Webster, J.W.; Archibald Morrison, D.C.; Walter W. Thomas, Sec.; W. P. Vinis, S.D.; D. Morris, J.D.; Thomas Evans, P.M., Treas.; William Bennet, I.G. The following were amongst the visitors: Bros. W. Brakenbury, W.M. 673; G. E. Hanmer, P.M. 1086; Councillor Joseph Ball, 673; Edward Paul, Treas. 1356; J. R. Owen, 1356; Gill, 1086; Alfred Woolrich, W.M. 1356; J. W. Williams, P.M. 1366; Joseph Skeaf, P.G. Org.; J. Wilson, 249; Thomas Shaw, 1356. The banquet was supplied by Bro. Milburn, and during the evening several songs were given by the brethren, Bro. Gill's "Fairy Bells" adding greatly to the enjoyment of the company. During the evening a valuable Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. S. Hinks, I.P.M., as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren of the Prince Arthur.

CROYDON.—Old England Lodge (No. 1790).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 4th inst. at the Masonic Hall, New Thornton Heath, Bro. W. Foulsham, W.M., presiding, assisted by Bros. Sheadd, P.M., W.M. 720, as S.W.; Daniell, W.M., as J.W.; Whittaker, S.D.; Taylor, I.G., and others. The lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. W. P. Robinson, Sec., read the minutes, which were confirmed, after which Messrs. Thomas Young, H. Baber, E. W. Rees, and W. H. Rawson were balloted for and elected; Messrs. Baber, Rees, and Rawson presenting themselves for initiation. Bro. M. Taylor was passed to the Second Degree, and towards the close of the meeting two brethren were proposed as joining members and two gentlemen for election at the next meeting. The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned from "labour to refreshment."

INSTRUCTION.

FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1288).—A meeting of the above lodge was held at the Earl Russell, Isledon-road, Holloway, on Wednesday, the 17th inst. Bros. H. B. Dunn, W.M.; Edmunds, S.W.; Fenner, J.W.; W. Rowley, S.D.; Oldis, J.D.; Press, I.G.; and other brethren. The lodge was opened in ancient form in the First Degree, and the minutes read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Plowman candidate for raising. The ceremony of the Third Degree was rehearsed. Lodge was then closed in the Third and Second Degrees. Bro. P. Dickinson, Preceptor, worked the Second Section of the Lecture. Bro. G. D. Edmunds was elected W.M. for the next lodge meeting, and he appointed officers in rotation. Present: Bros. P. Dickinson, P.M.; Plowman, Walter Rowley, Press, Edmunds, Oldis, and Dunn, Secretary.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1514).—A meeting of this lodge of instruction was held at the Royal Edward, Mare-street, Hackney, on Wednesday, the 17th inst. There were present Bros. J. Lorkin, W.M.; F. Fleck, S.W.; W. Green, J.W.; A. R. Olley, S.D.; S. Crane, I.G.; W. Fieldwick, Preceptor; C. Lorkin, Treas.; J. Williams, Sec.; also several other brethren. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. C. W. Baker being the candidate, who, having answered the necessary questions, was raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. Bro. J. Lorkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the First and Third Sections of the Lecture. The lodge having been closed down to the First Degree, Bro. C. Lorkin, assisted by the brethren, worked the Fourth Section of the Lecture. Bro. W. Fieldwick proposed, and Bro. W. Green seconded "That Bro. F. Fleck be W.M. for the ensuing week." Carried unanimously. Bro. J. Lorkin proposed, and Bro. W. Green seconded, "That Bro. F. Fleck become a member of this lodge." Carried unanimously. Nothing further offering, the lodge was closed in due form.

Mark Masonry.

PLUMSTEAD.—Excelsior Lodge (No. 226).—The regular quarterly meeting of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 9th inst., at Bro. Tucker's house, the Lord Raglan, Burrage-road, the W.M.M., Bro. Chas. Coupland, P.G.M.O. Kent, presiding, supported by the following officers and brethren: Bros. W. Weston, J.W.; P.P.G.J.D. Kent; G. Kennedy, Sec., P.P.G.A.S.; H. Pryce, Treas., and P.P.G.R.M. Kent; A. Penfold, M.O., and P.P.G.I.G. Kent; D. Deeves, S.D., and P.G.S.B. Kent; Eugene Sweny, J.D., and P.P.G.A.D.C. Kent; H. Harding, Org., and P.P.G. Org. Kent; D. C. Capon, D.C., and P.P. G. Steward Kent; W. Watkins, acted as J.O.; Dr. Moore-Keys, P.G.J.D. Kent, as S.O.; G. Scully, R.H.A., P.I.G. Kent, as S.W.; Thos. Holleyman, P.P.S. Kent, as I.G.; J. Purnell, W. Moulds, Thos. Stevens, A. B. Chamberlain, Thos. Ovenden, E. W. Wilson, Thos. Kirkbride, and C. Jolly (Freemason). The work before the lodge consisted of the balloting for Bros. T. D. Hayes, I.P.M. 913, and J. Iron, P.M. of the Burdett Lodge, which being unanimous, those brethren were advanced in good style by the W.M. Some formal business was then transacted, and the lodge adjourned. At the refreshment table, after the usual and Mark Masonic toasts, Bro. Moore-Keys and Scully replied to the toast of "Bro. Robinson, G.M.M., and the rest of the P.G. Officers of Kent." The former said he felt very proud of the honour conferred upon him at the late Provincial Grand meeting by Bro. Robertson, and he thought that as a lodge they ought to be proud, seeing the number of Grand Officers, Past and Present, there was in it. Bro. Scully said he hardly knew what his duties in the province were, but whatever they were he would always fulfil them to the best of his abilities. Bro. Weston then, in the unavoidable absence of their I.P.M., Bro. Capt. Ritchie, R.A., proposed the toast of "The W.M.," and in so doing eulogised the manner in which he had worked the ceremonies that evening. He had shown them that he could work without that assistance so often used in Mark lodges, and he felt sure that every officer of the lodge would endeavour to imitate his example. Bro. Coupland said he looked with a great deal of affection upon Mark Masonry, and as long as he was Master he would always endeavour to carry out the duties without extraneous aid. No one could regret more than he did the absence of their Past Master, but he trusted that as he (Bro. Coupland) was resident among them, he should be able to render assistance to those who followed him. He was proud to see so many of his military brethren around him, and especially to see that Bros. Scully, Moore-Keys, and Deeves had been promoted to provincial honours at their last provincial meeting. He trusted to see the lodge increase in strength, and influence, and above all in brotherly love. The next toast was that of "The Initiates" and Bros. Hayes and Iron suitably replied. It having come to the ears of the W.M. that Bro. Wilson was about to proceed to India on military duty, he proposed "The Health of Bro. Wilson," and wished him a safe journey, happiness while in India, and a speedy return home should he desire it. The toast was drunk enthusiastically. Bro. Wilson, who holds an official position in the Royal Artillery, replied, and thanked the brethren most cordially for their good wishes, but the duty of a military life was to obey orders, and he did so cheerfully, although he could not help feeling the parting from such good friends and brethren as he had at Woolwich. He should hear of them through the columns of the Freemason, which he had arranged to have sent out to him, and he wished them all continued happiness and prosperity. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and was replied to by Bros. Weston and Penfold most eloquently. The toast of "The Masonic Press" was responded to by Bro. Jolly, and then the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings.

Royal Ark Mariners.

BRIXTON LODGE.—A meeting was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Saturday, the 13th inst., when several distinguished Masons—Bros. Thrupp, Barrett, Lehman, Richardson, Clifford, Bristow and Kipling,—were duly elevated, the ritual of this quaint and interesting Degree being given in excellent style by Bro. T. Poore, the W.C.N.; Bros. H. Lovegrove, acting as Deacon; G. Clark, J.; H. Baldwin, S.; Axford, G.; and Potter, W. The draft by-laws were read and approved, and the lodge was closed in ancient form.

Masonic and General Tidings.

On Wednesday, the 10th inst., at Coale's auction room Toronto, the oldest Masonic relic in the world was sold to J. Ross Robertson, of the Evening Telegram. The relic is the Masonic certificate of Souter Johnny, o Burns' Tom O'Shanter, and issued by St. James' Lodge, Ayr, in 1790. Pinned to the corner of the diploma is a lock of Highland Mary's hair. The relic brought $178. It is the oldest known Masonic relic, and a large number of relic hunters came to Toronto to attend the sale and buy it.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has signified his willingness to inaugurate the new Literary and Mechanics' Institution building which has just been erected at Windsor, at a cost of £5000, as a memorial to the Prince Consort. The ceremony will take place at noon on Saturday, Jan. 10th.

Le "Cosmopolitan Calendar" du Fr. Kenning vient de paraître. Rien n'a été négligé pour le rendre digne de notre Ordre. Le format de cette année nous paraît plus commode, le texte plus serré; il contient des matières utiles qui n'avaient jamais été publiées avant ce jour. Nous y trouvons, par exemple, une nomenclature complète des Corps Maçonnerie en France. En parcourant ce livre, on reste étonné de la quantité de faits et de renseignements qui s'y trouvent réunis. Toutes les Loges de France, d'Espagne, d'Allemagne y sont mentionnées, ainsi que les noms des Officiers principaux du Rite Ecossais dans le monde entier.—La Chaîne d'Union.

The Midmay Park Station of the North London Railway will be opened for passenger traffic on Thursday next, Jan. 28th. The fares to the City will be the same as from Dalston Junction.

Rear-Admiral the Duke of Edinburgh has, it is stated, withdrawn his name from the list of directors of the Royal Academy of Music.

The City Press of Wednesday, the 17th inst., contains a full report of the proceedings at the wardmotes for the election of Common Councilmen on Monday, and the results of the polling on Tuesday.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Old Wounds, Sores, and Ulcers.—Daily experience confirms the fact which has triumphed over opposition for thirty years—viz., that no means are known equal to Holloway's remedies, for curing bad legs, sores, wounds, diseases of the skin, erysipelas, abscesses, burns, scalds, and, in truth, all cases where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmities quickly is of primary importance, as the compulsory confinement indoors weakens the general health. The ready means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which heal the sores and expel their cause. In the very worst cases the Ointment has succeeded in effecting a perfect cure, after every other means has failed of giving any relief. Desperate cases best display its virtues.—[ADVT.]

On Monday next, December 29th, Bro. Chas. E. Hindley, S.W. of the Lodge of Light, No. 148, Warrington, will be installed as W.M. of the lodge. Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.P.G.J.W. Cumberland and Westmorland, will officiate as installing Master.

In our notice of the meeting of the Grand Masters' Council of the Royal and Select Degree, which appeared in our last impression, we omitted to state that the ceremonies of admission and reception were performed by Bro. T. C. Walls, the R.I.D.G.M.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy G.M., accompanied by Lady Skelmersdale, arrived at Lathom House, Ormskirk, on Friday, the 19th inst., from visiting the Earl and Countess of Derby at Knowsley.

His Serene Highness the Duke of Teck, the Right Hon. the Earl of Derby, K.G., Sir Frederick Leighton, P.R.A., Lady Goldsmid, the Hon. George C. Brodrick, Mr. Thomas Brassey, M.P., Mr. Isaac Pitman, the Hon. Lady Grey, Mr. W. Babington, F.R.C.S., the Hon. Evelyn Ashley, M.P., Mr. J. G. Barclay, Professors Michael Foster, Erasmus Wilson, and many other persons have recently forwarded donations to the Free Library, London-street, Bethnal Green, E. The Library is supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and the Committee require 10,000 volumes.

"In an account of the installation of their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold, as Knights of Malta, we inadvertently omitted in the list of the Sir Knights present to assist in the ceremony, the name of Bro. James Lewis Thomas, F.S.A., Past Asst. Grand D. of C., and Grand Aide-de-Camp in the Great Priory of the Order of the Temple and Malta."

The Sunday Times states that Lord Howe has presented Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain, who for many years was rector of St. Clement Danes, to the incumbency of Curzon Chapel. On taking leave lately of his old parishioners the reverend gentleman was presented with a silver candelabra, an oaken cabinet of exquisite design (a specimen of fine workmanship by the carver), a purse of 100 guineas, and other presents.

THE 2ND MIDDLESEX ARTILLERY.—The annual dinner of the No. 4 Battery of this excellent Volunteer Corps, was held on Saturday week, the 13th inst., in the Prince's Saloon of the Holborn Restaurant. The chair was occupied by Captain Greenwood, supported by the Adjutant, Capt. James C. Lowrie, late R.A.; Major Pearson, Capt. Sack, and many other officers. The usual toasts were given by the Chairman. Capt. Lowrie replied on behalf of the Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces, and, in doing so, said the Army was very dear to him, and thought England need have no fears while she possessed such men as those of the 2nd Middlesex. Major Pearson proposed "Prosperity to No. 4 Battery," and in doing so traced back his fifteen years' connection with it, and the pleasure it gave him to see among them that evening Sergeant-Major Rogers and Sergeant Cowley, who had completed twenty years' service, and who, along with other non-commissioned officers, had served faithfully and well. Sergeant-Major Rogers, who was loudly cheered, said that the efficiency of No. 4 Battery was fully proved by the fact that at every parade three sergeants were always present, and that they had had less resignations and more recruits than any other battery, and the largest muster at the annual inspection. Captain Williams, in giving the toast of "The Staff," dwelt on the fact of the corps possessing such skilful instructors as Captain Lowrie, Sergeant-Major Barry, and Sergeant Smith. Captain Lowrie briefly replied, as also did Sergeant Smith, whose reply was particularly neat and effective.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The pantomime at the Crystal Palace, which was produced on Tuesday, the 23rd inst., is on the favourite subject, "Jack the Giant Killer," its full title being "Jack the Giant Killer; or, Harlequin Fairy Spiteful and Good King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table." It has been written by Mr. R. Soutar, the ballets and pantomimic action are by Mr. John D'Auban, the costumes are by Mons. and Madame Alias, the music is by Herr Meyer Lutz, and the whole is produced under the direction of Mr. John Hollingshead, of the Gaiety Theatre. The story is based on the rival loves of "Jack" (Miss Lizzie Coote) and the "Giant Gorgibuster" (Mr. Clifford) for the fair "Sybil" (Miss Emily Muir). "Gorgibuster," aided by the Winds and other elements, incited by his mother, the "Fairy Spiteful" (Miss Rose Roberts), carries off "Sybil"; but "Jack," encouraged by "Good King Arthur," and assisted by the "Fairy Progress" (Miss Lily Lee), pursues the "Giant" to his home, and, after various and romantic adventures, slays "Gorgibuster" and releases the maiden, all ending happily with the Grand Transformation Scene, entitled "Our Empire in the East," specially painted by Mr. Charles Brew, from designs by Mr. Alfred Thompson. The harlequinade which follows is sustained by Clown (Mr. W. Orkins), Pantaloon (Mr. Bishop), Harlequin (Mr. W. Ward), and Columbine (Miss Rose Edmonds). Other attractions of the Christmas holidays will be the wonderful performances of Dr. Carver, the great American marksman; a daily variety entertainment by Mr. and Mrs. H. White, the Edmonds family, and the De Castro acrobats; Professor Bailey's "Punch and Judy"; the great annual fancy fair and bazaar; and the innumerable objects of interest which fill the Crystal Palace.

THE FREEMASON.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1879.

THE OLD YEAR.

The Old Year is on its "last legs," and a New Year is rapidly drawing near. Thus, as ever in the great reality of human life, age makes way for youth and youth presses upon age. Before we again greet our readers the old year will have gone to its many forefathers, and a new year will have dawned upon this struggling world of ours. With an old year passing away and a new one supervening there necessarily arise many thoughts, seasonable for us all. We have ourselves seen, though still here to-day in the good Providence of God, in the last twelve months, friends and comrades pass away, we have witnessed how sickness breaks down, and how weakness succeeds strength, how many are the disappointments, the grievances, the heartaches of life, how ephemeral its best possessions, how transitory its purest joys. Twelve months hence how many of us will still survive, nay, rather, how many of us may not have passed away amid the shadows of the past. It is useless to disguise from ourselves that as we march on year by year we, ourselves, grow weaker and older as each succeeding twelve months fleet over our heads, and that for us all the flight of time means too often the weakening of powers, the decay of intellect, the submergence of all those things on which we most count here often, on which we most set our hearts, which are bound with our sincerest and tenderest sympathies, in the dark and turbid waters of the great rolling river of time. Just now we are all of us rather indulging, (for extremes ever meet here), in an epicurean or a stoical philosophy, and to some of us all such thoughts as we have ventured to sketch out are alike unwelcome and out of place, unseasonable and uncalled for. Not that as a rule we care very much either for the criticisms of the critical or the objections of the antagonistic. But we would ask which is the best and truest teacher, he who points out things as they really are, proclaims that truth which is objective to us all, or he who "daubs the work with untempered mortar," and seeking only to please or to commend himself to the frivolous and the parasite, skims over what is real and of moment, and places before his readers what only, "subjective" at the best, is fraught by its perverted or sentimental use with the most evil consequences to our intellects and our hearts. And so we think it well always to remind ourselves that as Masons we profess to teach morality, and, therefore, we should never forget that after all our "seria mista jocis," mirth and sobriety combined, are the best mental food for us all. If any of our readers dislike our more serious tones, let them remember we cannot hope to please all, and that our best consciousness and reward will be that we have sought at the same time to improve and to amuse, to interest and gratify our many readers. May the old year now passing away leave us with grateful memories and reverent hearts, and may Masonry everywhere in the new year as in the old not be ashamed to proclaim its beneficent and religious and tolerating principles for the welfare of our brethren here below, and the material progress and the social peace, and fraternal concord, of a great and listening world.

UNIFORMITY OF RITUAL.

Another point in connexion with this subject it is necessary to consider now is—"how will it affect lodges of instruction?" We have every reason to believe that its effect will be most disastrous upon them one and all, and that the probability is that it will simply introduce a system of "cramming" most objectionable per se, and most injurious to an educated rendering of the ritual. It is one thing, (as we all perfectly well know), to deliver our ritual carefully and culturedly, and another to repeat it with parrot-like monotony, until its repetition palls on and pains the ears of the educated. Up to the present in London the Emulation Lodge of Improvement has maintained its high character, has done much good to Masonic ritual, and has sent from its bosom, many,—as we can testify,—most competent Preceptors and "bright Masons." What will be its position with a so-called Board of Preceptors? First of all, what is to be the ritual? Is it to be the ritual of 1813—now recognized by Grand Lodge—or is it to be one settled after full, and patient, and long revision, which will end the conflicting views and theories, not of 1813, but of 1880? Under the circumstances of an official Board such valuable centres of Masonic Instruction as the Lodge of Emulation must of necessity cease to exist—their use is ended, their value is gone. And then let us see what must and will follow. At present the gains of the unworthy brother who, despising the injunctions of his Order, trades in the unhallowed merchandize of an unlicensed and illegal "crib," will be increased, because he will profess, "mine is a copy of the one authorized ritual." At present, owing to a wise liberty of verbiage and ceremony, the great landmarks being rigidly observed, all such illicit works are comparatively useless, all such nefarious gains are comparatively limited. But the truth is—let us look at it fully—we are landing ourselves by this movement upon an undiscovered shore of doubt, vexation, trouble, and dispute. The only one point in favour of the motion is that in December, 1869, Grand Lodge passed a resolution in favour of the motion. But the fact that no action has been taken since shows the inherent difficulty of the question, in a much greater measure than those who have not studied the question can realize. It is a fact that Grand Lodge did pass the resolution, but under what circumstances? Clearly, as was well pointed out in our correspondence last week, hastily, and without sufficient discussion. In the report of the proceedings, besides Bro. Stevens, only Bros. Stebbing, Browse, and Cooke spoke, and the reporter especially adds,—they "made a few remarks," and the motion was carried. The Grand Lodge that night, owing to the reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, was too excited to listen to anything, as is often the case under similar circumstances and in similar meetings. In the Grand Lodge of March, 1880, it seems that the motion to appoint a Committee was lost on an amendment by Bro. Havers, to defer the appointment to next Grand Lodge, and at the Grand Lodge in June Bro. Horace Lloyd, then Grand Registrar, moved an amendment on Bro. Stevens' motion which was carried. We refer Bro. Stevens to the pages of the Freemason, which he has so often quoted, and which he claims as once friendly to his contention, for these very facts. What then becomes of the boasted sanction of Grand Lodge ten years ago?

THE APPOINTMENT OF GRAND SECRETARY.

No appointment has yet been made and may not be for some little time. We have heard several names mentioned, some of which we think must be "canards." It is no easy matter to find a suitable successor to Bro. John Hervey, on the one hand, or one who will uphold the prestige, position, independence, and cosmopolitan influence of the Grand Lodge of England on the other.

UNIFORMITY OF MASONIC RITUAL AND OBSERVANCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The result of Grand Lodge vote on my motion on the 3rd December last was so completely satisfactory to me that for a while I have taken breathing time, and, mirabile dictu, have not rushed into print on the subject for nearly a month. I should probably have still further proved my sanity in this respect but for the attacks made on the members of Grand Lodge who supported me and on myself personally.

But that I know the general impartiality and fairness of the press, I should not venture upon this letter, which, I know at the outset, must be a long one. To the editorial comment (Freemason, Nov. 29th), I take exception. It implies that I am "forgetful of Masonic duty, and insensible to the benefits of Masonic toleration," and it calls upon Grand Lodge to "affix its mark of reprobation thereon," and put a stop to a "senseless agitation," which the same writer had previously stigmatised as the outcome of "nonsensical bombast" and "childish ignorance." I dispose of this by referring to the Grand Lodge vote of 1869, the confirmation thereof in 1870, and the renewed vote of December 3rd, 1879, as a satisfactory and very sufficient token of approval instead of reprobation.

I pass from the proceedings of Grand Lodge, after the vote had been recorded, to the subsequent comments and correspondence on the subject.

There seems to be a great desire on the part of the writer of the editorial remarks in the Freemason (Dec. 13th), and of Bro. Woodford in his letter (Freemason, Dec. 20th), to lessen the force of Grand Lodge vote by contending that it was carried "after a very partial debate;" that the motion itself was "rash and ill-digested;" that the mover indulged in "vehement incriminations," is a "professional agitator," and an "emitter of bottled moonshine." What awful words! And yet I live and bear it! My stubborn conscience quite alarms me; whither am I drifting? And yet I find it said: "If such abuses exist (here comes another five-syllable expletive) they constitute a grave reflection," &c., and "if proved to be prevalent we fancy the action of the Board of General Purposes would be summary and decisive." Why, there's my case! I say these abuses do exist, and I can prove them, and neither Board of General Purposes nor any other authority interferes with their continuance. Again it is said, "Admit it that all be true as Bro. Stevens puts it, what does it prove but the want of surveillance and control?" Exactly so; what does it prove but that, and is that not quite sufficient to demand a remedy? As to the references made to the publishing of spurious rituals, and the unworthy imputation as to the enrichment of those who would prepare them (the article reads as though I contemplated such an outrage on my Masonic obligations), they are not worth my discussing. I learnt my Craft Masonry without a MS. or printed ritual, and others can do the same if they will. None need be published, but, if it be a necessity, let Grand Lodge alone give it to the brethren, and so circumvent the "un-Masonic ventures and unhallowed gains."

To Bro. Charles John Perceval (Freemason, Dec. 13th) I feel indebted for a plain and understandable explanation of my own argument on this subject, and his remark as to the apparent importance of "keeping an eye that the dues of Grand Lodge are paid," &c., over "keeping check on the several manners of working," exposes the blot in our present arrangement, whereby the Board of General Purposes does not control, as it should, the ceremonial and observance of a "standard ritual" throughout the several lodges under the English Constitution. I may have again to make casual reference to Bro. Perceval's letter. For the present I thank him, and hail his support most cordially.

It is of course a matter of regret to me that I have not the benefit of the Freemason's concurrence with my efforts. I know its power and influence are great, and such an ally would have been invaluable to me. Still, as I freely act according to my conscience, I cannot condemn the exercise of a similar faculty in another, and that other an exponent of public opinion; and, therefore, whilst I may contend against its arguments, I shall ever continue to respect its fair opposition. We shall, I hope, notwithstanding difference of opinion and journalistic warfare, retain our mutual personal esteem, and think of each other as only "our friend the enemy."

I do sincerely hope that the Provincial Grand Lodges will each find some earnest Past Master, imbued with the same sentiments on this subject as myself, to be their representatives on my Committee. The work I have undertaken so far has not only occupied my fullest leisure for a long period, but has occasioned me some expense, and I should prefer not to be obliged of necessity to be at more labour and cost in bringing the matter before the Provincial Grand Lodges by circuit and other means, if that object could be attained by the voluntary action of Provincial Grand Officers, or other Provincial Past Masters. Verbum sat sapienti! I shall be glad to hear from any such.

Bro. Bodenham, who thought fit to rise in his place and object to Bro. Woodford's statement that the lodges in the provinces would not conform to the directions of Grand Lodge as to working, &c., gets his epithet hasty, "hasty remarks!" as if there was always in Grand Lodge ample time allowed for the utterance of our thoughts in a deliberate and "don't hurry yourself" manner. Is there anything done in Grand Lodge which, if it takes more than a very limited amount of time to discuss, is not obstructed by cries of "Question" and "Vote" or "Divide"? How then can the necessary immediate denial of an assertion made in course of debate be properly designated as hasty? But, hasty or not, Bro. Bodenham is right. The provincial lodges are every whit as loyal as those of the metropolis, and Bro. Woodford does not do justice when he speaks in such general terms in regard to them. Even those who adopt the practices that others condemn err, I believe, more from the want of a reference to standard authority than from any intention to depart from what is recognised as fit and proper. And this remark brings me to a direct denial of the suggested inferences of both Bro. Woodford and Bro. John Neilson (Freemason, Dec. 20th) that I know nothing of the practices I have exposed in Grand Lodge. I repeat, and I cannot do more than again and again emphatically repeat, pledging my Masonic honour, and undertaking to name in proper place where I have witnessed some of them, and before which Provincial Grand Master, that, without any exaggeration whatever, pardonable or otherwise, I have represented facts within my own experience. Does Bro. Neilson think no man travels but himself? I have nothing to say about lodges under other Constitutions than that of England, and the English provinces have been enough for me without the trouble of crossing St. George's Channel to observe what I know would further raise my indignation. It is sufficient that malpractices are to be found here, and whatever may be Bro. Woodford's opinion as to the present agitation "landing us in a region of 'cribs and crams'" or helping to make the fortune of "accommodating brethren." (what are they?), I believe that those who took care to carry my motion will, despite all his beseeching and prayerful appeals, his denouncement of the enquiry to be made, and his hard words against all who do not agree with him, remain staunch, and see that the Committee is appointed in due course. "Nothing is done whilst aught remains to do!"

I fear I have greatly intruded on your space, and this letter has extended beyond even the anticipated length; therefore, I hasten to conclude. If no better arguments than those which have been hitherto advanced can be found to support the opposition to the measure I advocate, I have no fear for the result. When it becomes necessary to depart from logical deductions, to misrepresent facts, even to the extent of mendacity, and to suggest interested motives, in order to discredit a movement having for its object the reformation of acknowledged evils, the opponents thereof must be driven into a sad strait indeed. Such, I maintain, is the position of those against whose endeavours I now appeal to the general body of earnest Freemasons for continued assistance in making the resolution of Grand Lodge on the 3rd inst. complete, and aiding me in the formation of a satisfactory Committee to carry out the enquiry and present its report.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

JAMES STEVENS.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BO AND MR. WILSON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Sir,—

You having inserted in your paper a letter addressed by Mr. Wilson to the General Committee reflecting on the House Committee, I must ask you in fairness to insert in your next issue the enclosed copy of my reply.

Yours obediently, FREDK. STANLEY.

"22A, Austin Friars, London, E.C.,

"Dec. 18th, 1879.

"To the Chairman of the House Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

"Sir,—

"My attention having been called to a letter of Mr. Wilson, dated the 27th ult., addressed to the General Committee, and published in the Freemason of the 13th inst., in which he purports to give a brief statement of the facts, and complains that he is not being treated fairly, I think it right to record my view of the facts.

"Mr. Wilson sent in a large claim of a lump sum for professional services, enumerated in his account under upwards of twenty different headings or descriptions. The account was referred to your Committee for investigation. For this purpose you requested Mr. Wilson to state how the amount was arrived at, but instead of complying with this reasonable request, and although he had been paid upwards of £300 on account of a claim of a little over £400, he placed the matter in the hands of his solicitor, who threatened proceedings to recover the balance. Your Committee were, therefore, driven also to consult a solicitor, and I was instructed in the matter—this was in July last. I at once called upon Mr. Wilson's solicitors, and explained to them that a detailed account was required, showing what was charged for the different items, and that Mr. Wilson would be required to produce the plans and documents relating to the matter, and for which he had charged, with the view to the account being properly examined, and I stated that what (if anything) should be found due to Mr. Wilson would be paid without delay, but if we could not agree as to the amount the account should be referred to an architect of standing, but not, of course, to Mr. Wilson's nominee, or to the gentleman he suggests, who is not strictly an architect. Although I have repeatedly during the past five months applied for a detailed account Mr. Wilson has not attempted to furnish it—now he complains of delay. I may mention that I have only asked for that which Mr. Wilson will be compelled to give if he takes proceedings.

"With regard to Mr. Wilson's statement that he had requested a professional friend to give me explanations, and that that gentleman was unable to obtain an appointment from me, I may mention that I am at my office every day (except Sundays and during a portion of the vacation), and can be seen there. I have, however, informed this gentleman, both personally and by letter, that a detailed statement of account is required, and production of the plans and documents, and until this request is complied with explanations are useless. In reply to this Mr. Wilson's friend wrote me that Mr. Wilson had not the materials at command whereupon to frame a detailed statement, yet in Mr. Wilson's letter to the General Committee he states he can prove that the usual professional rates are higher than the charges on which he has based his account. You will observe this is precisely the information I have required, in order to ascertain how he arrived at the lump sum.

"I explained to Mr. Wilson's friend that the matter having been placed in the hands of solicitors I could only discuss the matter with them. Mr. Wilson states he has instructed his solicitors to stop further legal proceedings. Of this I am not aware, but I may mention that his friend in his letters to me threatens a continuance of proceedings unless, as I presume, Mr. Wilson's account is paid without proper investigation.

"You are, of course, aware that to enable contractors to tender for work they are supplied by the architect with a bill of quantities; for the work in question one per cent. on the contract price would be ample for the preparation of these quantities, but I am informed Mr. Wilson provided for a payment to him of five per cent., which was, of course, added to the contract price, and the contractor in due course would hand the amount at that rate to Mr. Wilson. If this be so, I have no hesitation in saying that it is an overcharge, and, being made without your knowledge, Mr. Wilson will be liable to account for the excess, and thus there will be nothing whatever payable to him; probably this explains Mr. Wilson's difficulty in rendering a proper account, and producing the papers—hence his desire to obtain payment without further trouble.

"Under the circumstances I am of opinion that the Committee, dispensing as they are the monies of other persons, will be failing in their duty unless they have a full investigation of the matter.

"I am, Sir, yours obediently,

"FREDK. STANLEY."

THE MASONIC AND MILITARY ORDER OF KNIGHTS OF ROME AND OF THE RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you inform me if there is at this time in existence a Grand Imperial Council of this body? I have written to the published address, and the letter was returned—answer: not known. I have written many letters during the past four years to this Council and have not received any reply. The letter returned through the post-office has since been forwarded through Bro. Kenning, and, I have no doubt, reached the proper party, who has not replied.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

Bro. Gould's interesting book, on the Atholl Lodge, reminds me that I have in my possession an old minute book of Lodge 194, of the Antients, now 143. It is marked No. 3, and begins in 1797, and ends in 1806. The Michael Corcoran mentioned by Bro. Gould was initiated on the 6th of January, 1803, and John Mark Goldsworthy was initiated January 30th, 1806. I shall be very happy to return to Lodge 143 this old minute book of the lodge.

INIGO JONES' MS.

I note all that my worthy confrère, W. J. Hughan, says, but the point he mentions had not escaped me. Inigo Jones' MS. is clearly not the same as Stones' MS. Indeed, the more I study the more I feel convinced how independent a MS. it is. I give a quotation in parallel columns.

INIGO JONES' MS.

First, that they should be true to the king and to the Lord that they serve, and to the fellowship whereof they are admitted.

GRAND LODGE MS. F.

The first is that they should be true to the king and to the lords that they serve, and that they should live well together, and be true every one to others.

As I have said before, there are many variations in the MS., which may be the variations of a scribe, but, I confess, they appear to me to be evidence of a distinct form. I hope in an early number of the Freemason in 1880, (D.V.), to compare the MS. with the Dowland and Lansdowne MS. I may have something to say more in our next issue.

CONSECRATION OF THE EWELL LODGE, No. 1851.

The Ewell Lodge, No. 1851, was consecrated on Saturday afternoon, at the Glynn Arms, Ewell, by Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, Past Grand Chaplain, Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Surrey, in the unavoidable absence through illness of the Provincial Grand Master, General Brownrigg, C.B.

The brethren present on the occasion were Bros. Arthur E. Taylor, E. A. Baber, George Moss, W. D. Paddle, G. W. Saul, J. Rush, George Joseph Dunkley, Rev. C. W. Arnold, P.G.C., D.P.G.M. Surrey; George B. Brodie, P.G.S.W. Surrey; John Castle Gant, P.G.J.W. Surrey; Charles Greenwood, Prov. G. Sec. Surrey; Rev. James Amos, P.G.C. Surrey; R. R. Davis, P.M. 256; Arthur Rule, P.M. 263 (I.C.); J. W. Maidwell, P.M. 1201; W. H. Barber, Sec. 1777; Alfred Lamb, P.M. 410 and 256; George Hall, 49; Henry Sibley, 201; E. A. W. Taylor, Sec. 302; R. G. Taylor, J.W. 144; W. Clegg, J.D. 1259; George W. Evans, Org. 1602; Arthur Millwood, 179; W. J. Dunkley, I.G. 1777; James Louth, 1338; and H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason).

The S.W. chair was occupied by Bro. Dr. Brodie, Prov. G.S.W. Surrey, and the J.W. chair by Bro. John Castle Gant, Prov. G.J.W. Surrey. Bro. Chas. Greenwood, Prov. G. Sec. Surrey, acted as D.C. for the Rev. J. Amos, Prov. G. Chaplain Surrey, as Chaplain. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. G. S. Graham, and were executed by Bros. A. Millward, R. J. Taylor, M. Clegg, W. S. Dunkley; Bro. G. Evans acting as Organist. Much of the lodge furniture was presented by founders. The W.M. presented the working tools; Bro. Baber, Treas., the tracing boards; Bro. Paddle the gavel; Bro. Moss the collars; Bro. Rush, S.D., the volume of the Sacred Law and cushion; Bro. Dunkley the Deacons' wands; and Bros. Bisset and Parker the candlesticks.

After the lodge had been formally opened, Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold said the brethren had met for the purpose of consecrating a new lodge in the Province of Surrey, and he was exceedingly sorry that the Prov. G.M., General Brownrigg, was not present to do the work he could perform so well. His intention was to have been present, and it was a great disappointment to that brother that he could not come. The state of his health, however, made it quite improper that he should go out. He (the Rev. C. W. Arnold) had but few observations to make. Masonry in the Province of Surrey was advancing with very rapid strides. It was but six years ago, or, at the outside, seven, that the present Prov. Grand Master was appointed, and in the same year the Weyside Lodge, at Woking, of which he (the Rev. C. W. Arnold) was still a member, was consecrated. That made, he believed, the twelfth lodge in the province. To-day they were met to consecrate the twentieth lodge, and all the brethren present must have the same opinion with regard to Free Masonry—that as it was increasing so rapidly it was necessary they should take the greatest care to admit only fit and proper persons among them. It was a very easy thing to get members to join a new lodge; but it was very difficult to get rid of a member if in any way he became obnoxious to the brethren. Therefore, in opening this new lodge he thought he could not do better than impress strongly on the minds of the brethren that it was far better not to seek to increase their numbers too rapidly, but to insure that good men and true were enrolled under the banner of Masonry—those who would honour the Masonic flag. To give another reason, in some of the large lodges members were hardly known to each other at all. It was a great advantage to a lodge that every brother should know every other brother, and be able to shake hands with him if he met him in the street. In some large lodges of the present day some members scarcely ever met each other. The Ewell Lodge was formed of brethren living outside the province; but he trusted, as they were coming into the province (to which he heartily bade them welcome), they would set the province the example of a good working lodge. The brethren of the province had been endeavouring during the last few years very earnestly to get the lodges into thorough working order, and to institute a system of uniformity by getting rid of some of that old-fashioned work which was occasionally met with here and there in the country. He hoped that by coming down from London the brethren who were mostly working Masons, and had had great experience in the Craft, they would make this lodge a great success, and one of the best working lodges in the province. (Hear, hear.)

After the usual formalities, the Rev. J. Amos, M.A., Prov. G. Chap. Surrey, and W.M. elect No. 256, delivered the following oration:—

Brethren, it falls to my lot to address to you a few observations. We have here a fresh temple about to be erected, where the rites and ceremonies of Freemasonry will be celebrated; where, to worthy men, and we trust to worthy men alone, will be entrusted the secrets and mysteries of our Order. Many are the topics to which your attention may be peculiarly and forcibly directed, but foremost amongst these I incline to the consideration of "the dignity and high importance of Freemasonry." I. In these days we are not all Operative, but rather Free and Accepted, or Speculative, Masons. There is an operative side still to Masonry, for you are to study such of the liberal arts and sciences as may be within the compass of your attainment, especially the science of geometry, which has been established as the basis of our art, but our leading principles are "brotherly love, relief, and truth"—and Freemasonry may be broadly defined as "a peculiar system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbol." It is her noble mission, therefore, "to guide our reflections into that most interesting and important of all human studies, the knowledge and the improvement of ourselves." It is hers to teach us what as good and upright men we ought to do, how we ought to feel—in a word, what we ought to be. II. And in the pursuit of this truly honourable design, how attractive is Freemasonry. The goodness to which she calls us has lofty summits, but she takes us to them by no rugged or repulsive paths. On the contrary, the attention is "particularly arrested," the imagination excited, the fancy pleased; and so the heart is warmed, and the will is won. Under her guidance our vessel is made to glide on as it were between sunny shores, amid fascinating scenery, while it is being steadily steered to the fair havens of moral worth. Her hand beckons to agreeable recreation, while it is indelibly imprinting on our hearts the sacred dictates of truth, of honour, and of virtue. III. I shall content myself with observing how far-reaching and all-embracing are the influences of Freemasonry. As you enter the lodge your eye cannot rest upon "a character, an emblem, or a figure but what has a moral tendency, and is calculated to inculcate the practice of virtue." As you leave the lodge, carrying with you, however, a mind purged from every baneful and malignant passion, and fitted alone for the reception of truth and wisdom, you cannot pass a stately and superb edifice without finding it from its very foundation to its highest pinnacle furnished with emblems moving to patience, piety, and perseverance, and even perfection, emblems suggestive of better life, of closer union, and of warmer love. You cannot glance upward to the canopy of heaven, surveying more especially that glorious luminary of nature which, rising in the East, regularly diffuses light and lustre to all within its circle, without there falling upon your opened ear stirring music of the spheres; a trumpet call to duty and devotion. I take it that the true Mason is the man who comes up to the poet's dream, finding, as he does, "Sermons in stones and good in everything." And, finally, R.W.M. and brethren, in these, the palmy days of our Order, and on this most auspicious occasion, may I be pardoned for giving expression to the sentiment that the erection of a new lodge, and the enrolment of a new member, do not necessarily constitute an extension of Freemasonry, an extension of Freemasonry being rather measured by the amount of conscientiousness, of candour, and of charity which it invokes, disengages, and sets free to permeate amongst the brethren, to circulate through our whole body, and, finally, to find its way out into the world at large. I cannot express—I shall not attempt to express—the feeling of joyful expectation (in which we all share) that the brethren of this proposed lodge will be signally true to the genuine principles of our ancient Institution, sensitively true to their obligations—in short, true to themselves; and so be seen, or rather felt, to form a true, vigorous, and beneficial offshoot from the grand old parent stem. And thus, after many, many years, having performed their allotted task here below, may they be enabled to give convincing proofs that they are not unqualified to pass up the mysterious ascent which leads to the utmost recesses of the celestial temple, there to receive their rest and their reward; being summoned to that Grand Lodge above, where the world's Great Architect lives and reigns for evermore.

The ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, and at its conclusion Bro. Arnold installed Bro. Arthur E. Taylor, W.M. The following brethren were appointed to office: Bros. George Moss, S.W.; W. H. Paddle, J.W.; E. A. Baber, D.P., J.D. Surrey, Treas.; G. W. Saul, Sec.; Joseph Rush, S.D.; George Bisset, J.D.; G. J. Dunkley, I.G.; and W. Parker, D.C. Bros. Arnold, Amos, Brodie, Gant, and Greenwood were afterwards voted honorary members of the lodge, and a vote of thanks was passed to them for consecrating the lodge. Propositions for joining and initiation followed, and the lodge was thereupon closed.

The brethren afterwards dined together, and honoured the usual toasts.

The W.M. in proposing "The Health of the Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, and the rest of the Prov. G. Officers," said the brethren of the Ewell Lodge, and the general body of visitors, highly appreciated the manner in which the ceremonies of the day had been carried out; and all felt a debt of gratitude was owed by them to the brethren who, at a great inconvenience to themselves, had assisted in bringing this new lodge into life. They had been elected honorary members of it, but he trusted that membership would be practical, and that they would frequently come and witness the style of work which was to be conducted there.

The Rev. C. W. Arnold, in reply, said he must first allude to the absence of the Prov. G.M., which he greatly regretted. From personal knowledge of that distinguished brother he could assure the brethren that the letter which the W.M. had received hardly expressed the full truth as to his health. When Bro. Greenwood and himself met him at a meeting in London, lately, they went away with the impression that he ought not to have been out of his house, and during the present inclement weather he should not expose himself to the severity of the climate. With respect to the ceremony of the day, it had given him and his coadjutors the greatest pleasure to be with the brethren. It was always a great blessing and privilege to be allowed to consecrate a new lodge. He believed in Freemasonry more and more every year he lived. When he was a young Mason he knew very little about it; but as time went on he became more and more impressed with its advantages, and he felt he had still much to learn. He read only the other day a very beautiful expression with regard to Masonry—that Freemasonry sought to bring together men of every political profession and every religious creed, weaning them from their isolation, their selfishness, and their sin, and uniting them together for their common good. He did not think they could have a more beautiful definition of Freemasonry than that, and if they were only to look upon it in that light they would make much more a reality of it. It always struck his mind very strongly when he uttered those beautiful words of the installation ceremony—"forcibly impress upon them the dignity and high importance of Freemasonry." Returning by train from London, it was said to him by a gentleman, to whom he had sent a Masonic sermon he had delivered: "What's the good of you Freemasons? You get all these things from Christianity; you cannot get any further good." I said: "Yes, I can; I can have things constantly brought before my mind by every object on which I turn my eye; and when every object on which I turn my eye is associated with some emblem in Freemasonry, it reminds me of some virtue I ought to pursue, and in that sense it helps me on the path of life." If, as Freemasons, they put these principles into ordinary practice, and carried out the duties they were taught in lodge in daily life, they would be making daily progress in Freemasonry, becoming better Christians, better men, better brothers, united more closely hand to hand and heart to heart.

The Rev. J. Amos, P.G.C. Surrey, said that Masonry being of a symbolical character he was much pleased to see the number of the lodge was 1851. It struck him at once that 1851 was the year of the Great Exhibition, and he thought if he had to make a speech he should say something about it. They had had a great exhibition that evening of good working and good feeling, which, he hoped, would be kept up along with a great display of Masonic virtues. (Hear, hear.)

The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, which was proposed by the Rev. C. W. Arnold, said he would do all he could to carry out the duties of his office to the satisfaction not only of the brethren of the lodge, but of the Deputy Prov. G.M. He fully appreciated the remarks of that brother as to uniformity of working. He knew that the different ceremonies could not be followed word by word, but with regard to the general principle of uniformity of working, he appreciated its value. He did not know what description of working was carried on in the Province of Surrey, but his own mother lodge, of which he was a P.M., had been, he might say without any egotism, celebrated for its work under the lines of the Lodge of Emulation, which they looked upon as the chief school of Masonry. The officers would support him in his endeavour to carry out his work properly. He must express his great gratitude to Bro. Greenwood, Prov. G. Secretary, for his kindness to the founders of the lodge, and for the hard work he had undertaken in the matter. He went as a perfect stranger to Bro. Greenwood, but they were brothers, and he immediately fell into his (the W.M.'s) views, and assisted the founders in a way which they little expected. He knew he was expressing the feelings of all the brethren of the Ewell Lodge when he said they were all deeply grateful to Bro. Greenwood for what he had done.

Bro. Lamb returned thanks for "The Grove Lodge—the recommending lodge," and Bro. A. Rule, 500, P.M. 262, Irish Constitution, held in 2nd Battalion, 20th Regiment, for "The Visitors;" and the other toasts having been proposed, honoured, and responded to, the brethren concluded the evening with the Tyler's toast, and then returned to town.

ENTERTAINMENT IN AID OF THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

The members of the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge, No. 1609, who have on several occasions shown that they have a ready hand and willing heart to work in the sacred cause of charity, gave fresh proof of their unabated anxiety in this direction on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst., when they gave a performance at the Royal Amphitheatre, Liverpool, on behalf of the Masonic Charities. While inaugurating and carrying out the scheme on their own account, the officers and brethren must acknowledge the exceedingly hearty support which they received from the brethren of nearly all the sister lodges in Liverpool, without which they could not have hoped to secure the success which attended their efforts on this occasion, even in the face of bad times, the dull season, and numerous opponents in the benefit field. The performance was under the distinguished patronage of His Worship the Mayor of Liverpool, Bernard Hall, Esq.; Bros. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.D.G.M., and Prov. G.M. W.L.; the Right Hon. F. A. Stanley, D. Prov. G.M. W.L.; the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, Prov. G.M. E.L.; the Provincial Grand Officers of West Lancashire, Present and Past; Bro. W. Robinson, Mayor of Salford; Bro. J. P. McArthur, Mayor of Bootle; and others. The lodge last year gave a performance at the Amphitheatre, which realised £100 in aid of the Decoration Fund of the Masonic Hall, Hope-street; and as there was a numerous attendance on this second occasion, it is hoped that a substantial sum will be realized towards the benefit of Charities which are the "glory and the beauty of the Craft." A grand Masonic overture, conducted by Bro. Round, No. 1609, played by a very full orchestra, and the National Anthem, inaugurated the programme, after which Buckstone's always welcome comedy "Married Life" was played by a strong cast, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Lynx being played by Bro. Lindo Courtenay, I.P.M. 1609, and Miss E. Rainbow; Mr. and Mrs. Coddle, by Bro.

W. J. Constantine, P.M. 1609, and Miss E. Rudd; Mr. and Mrs. Dismal, by Bro. F. J. Stimson, 1609, and Miss M. Weiss; Mr. and Mrs. Youngusband, by Bro. H. C. Sidney and Miss F. Courtenay; and Mr. and Mrs. Dove, by Bro. W. J. Hammond and Mrs. Lindo Courtenay. The comedy, which was most admirably played, was followed by a grand vocal and dramatic entertainment, in connection with which choice items were given by Bros. Webster Williams, 1609; John Hill, 1609; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; G. Martin, 1609; Dixon and Petrie, 1609; Professor Woodhead, J. P. Bryan, C. Waterson, Muir, H. Ashmore, Messrs. Keeling, Austin, Lewis, and Calder. Apologies were made for Bros. E. Saker and Harry Jackson, the latter, who was detained by business, giving two guineas for the Charities. The whole entertainment was greatly enjoyed, and frequent applause and numerous encores were given during the evening. Bro. J. Atkinson, J.W. 1609, the honorary Secretary of the performance, deserves special praise for his exertions in carrying out the arrangements, and he was enthusiastically aided by a staff of Stewards who are brethren connected with the Dramatic Lodge, amongst whom may be named Bros. W. Savage, I.G.; W. Sandbrook, J.W.; J. M. Boyd, J. Shrapnell, J. Renney, J. Pycr, J.D.; W. Sanderson, W. Avann, and others.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER — OF —

THE FREEMASON

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1879.

Christmas.

CHRISTMAS is here once more with all its sacred and social associations, and seems to bid us welcome once again as we journey on amid the cares and troubles of life. Christmas is an old friend to us all, and we always, if we are rightly constituted beings, hail its appearance with pleasant sympathies and pleasing memories. It is a period of religious association, domestic reunion, and social festivity all combined, which seems to speak full-voiced ever in most attractive tones to our worn and wearied humanity year by year. Remembering what Christmas proclaims from age to age, its message of peace, brotherhood, and goodwill, it seems to accord so thoroughly with every portion of our Masonic lore that words are useless to proclaim its blessedness, its reality, its appropriate teaching, and its elevating memories. Indeed, it is not so much to dilate upon Christmas, or to moralize on Christmas, that we pen these lines to-day, but simply to offer to all our readers and friends, and our kind patrons, many of them far, far away, our heartiest aspirations for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to them and theirs. Wherever Masons are found there the Freemason is read, and with this our Christmas number we are anxious to convey our most "heartily good wishes," as well for this festive season as for the new year, to all who peruse our pages or support our efforts to diffuse a sound, a readable, a healthy Masonic paper. To all associated in happy homes to-day, when the scattered surviving members of the family have gathered once again in time round the "old hearth stone," whether old or young, we tender our sympathetic congratulations and our warmest hopes that as Christmas Day, 1879, is leaving them in health, happiness, and peace, so their onward career in 1880 may be dimmed by no cloud and marred by none of the storms or tempests of life. As on Christmas Day they assemble from all quarters round the family dinner table or the Christmas Tree, may all of undimmed felicity be theirs, and with light hearts, rejoicing strains, and general greetings, and kinder memories, may they hail the precious hours of a transient Christmas season. A few years make a great havoc in loving circles and happy families. Some are missing, some are far away; those who constituted our pride and our grace are perhaps lying in their graves, and when we close up our ranks we see how many of our dearest comrades are missing, for the roll-call tells that, alas, they cannot be here to answer to their names or join in our harmonious and harmless revelry. Christmas has always two voices for us—a voice of cheeriness and sadness; a voice bidding us rejoice, a voice bidding us reflect. And we shall best enjoy the good things of our gay and genial gathering if we remember two points, most Masonic both in utterance and reality, that some are not so blessed as we, and that Christmas inevitably recalls to us the loved and the lost. But we do not wish to seem to sermonize or moralize to-day. We have thought it well thus lightly for the moment to touch upon obvious truths and solemn duties and sacred associations and tenderest memories, and we wish, with all unfeigned sincerity, to our readers for themselves and their families, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Our Christmas Freemason.

OUR Publisher has thought that a Special Christmas Freemason might be acceptable to our many readers at home and abroad. We feel sure that in this respect his expectations will be realised and his anticipations rewarded. Wherever the Freemason reaches on this wide earth to-day, wherever it is read, and liked, and cared for, as we have often flattering tokens and pleasant reminders, we trust that the Christmas Number will be Masonically hailed and kindly received. Indeed, we have ourselves no doubt whatever of its seasonable form and its opportune appearance, and therefore it is that the publisher wishes to commend it to-day to all his friends and patrons, as containing not only what is needful for the Masonic reader and student, but what is pleasing, amusing, and edifying to the general public. The Freemason is, of course, primarily and mainly intended for Freemasons, and "bright" Freemasons too; but at this special season of the year, the publisher very wisely conceives, in our opinion, that it may be made "for the nonce" equally acceptable to the members, old and young, of all Masons' families, and that even the outside world may be pleased and profited by its careful perusal. And so once more he begs to call the attention of his readers to this his Christmas number of his widely circulated Freemason, and asks for it the friendly criticisms of non-Masons, and the warm support of all Freemasons, not only up and down Great Britain, but everywhere where Lodges exist, Masonic principles prevail, and the good old banner of Masonry holds out its pleasant folds to friends and foes. The publisher begs to thank his many kind friends for their original tales, whose merit, from a literary point of view, is not a little striking, and also his Masonic contemporaries, such as the Key-stone, Masonic Advocate, and Voice of Masonry, from whom, "pace" their fraternal permission, he has ventured to reprint a few interesting stories for his Christmas number.

Ubiqu.

BY AN OLD MASON.

It has often struck me, in Masonic meetings, how very wonderful are two facts connected with Freemasonry, namely, its Antiquity and its Universality. I need not here dilate upon the former, for fear of making my little communication too prosy; and the more so, as I wish to illustrate the latter by a little incident of which I was an eye-witness, and which, though it happened many, many years ago, is as vividly impressed upon my tenacious memory as if the scene and the persons depicted were only of yesterday.

Someone has said, "As we grow old we forget, and oblivion steals gradually from a weakened memory the things that were;" but for my part, I find to-day how very retentive is the "silent warder of the mind" of old days and scenes and friends—how loth to forsake them and reluctant to part from them. And so I am able, in these friendly pages, to "point the moral and adorn the tale" by the narration of a fact, as clear, as certain, and as undoubted as anything well can be which is governed by the laws of human testimony as evidence.

Yes, the universality of Freemasonry is a wonderful thing, look at it which way you will, for there is Freemasonry in its mysterious adaptations and secret organizations "cropping up" from beneath your very feet, in the most unlikely places and in the most distant realms. Amid nations civilized and barbarous, among the houseless tribes of the desert, and the dwellers of crowded cities; there it is unmistakably, permanently, vitally, apparently testifying of that remarkable period in the world's history which we term to-day the "time of the mysteries," and which links us distinctly with the patriarchal ages and antediluvian truths! Of course, there is also the operative sodality side to this great feature of Universal History, and a most striking phenomenon it is, too, and the two combined make up that "perfect whole" of the real true history of Freemasonry, without which, perhaps, its wondrous annals at first sight appear to some an embarrassing enigma or a childish paradox.

It has been long known to many travellers that in the East especially, there lingers a secret fraternity, very much akin to Freemasonry, if not altogether identical, now, in aim and practice, but which has this great peculiarity, that it preserves the same great landmarks of Universal Freemasonry as we do, and we in England and they in the East are able, by the mysterious laws of Recognition to make ourselves known to one another. This fraternity exists equally among the Arabs and the Druses, the Turks and the Egyptians, the Maronites and the Ausayric, and extends all over Africa, and is to be found as well in the Sahara as at Fez and Mogadore.

Some years ago, when a very young Mason, and that is why the incident made so deep an impression on my mind, I went over from Gibraltar with a large party of English ladies and officers to Tangiers. Tangiers, as some of my readers well know, is in the Straits of Gibraltar, and once belonged to us, being part of the dowry of Catherine of Braganza, wife of King Charles II. It was afterwards abandoned by us. It is a curious town in some respects, and has an interest for travellers even to-day. Just before our visit to Tangiers, several outbreaks of fanaticism had occurred in Tangiers on the part of the "santons," or holy men of Africa, towards all Europeans—not English especially, but rather all "unbelievers," and our then respected Consul-General, Sir J. D. Hay, had officially warned the garrison to be very careful not to offend any of these unfortunately dirty and repulsive representatives of a dominant belief, when on casual visits or shooting excursions. One of the favourite proceedings of these aroused Mohammedans, aroused by the mere presence of an unbeliever, was to "spit in his face," and then to raise the people by accusing him of "insulting the religion of the Holy Prophet!"

"Mashallah!" as they say themselves, this was a very fine position of affairs. So, after many injunctions to be very careful, we started in high spirits for Tangiers.

The day was cloudless and the sea tranquil (which it is not always in these straits), and we soon made our "run" over to Tangiers, where we were met by the politest of consuls, and, after repeated good advice from him, and a "soldier" given us to take care of us, we started in a broiling sun to see Tangiers. Oh! happy days of youth. To-day, when we who survive are weak and shivering old men, what a bright memory of stalwart youths and gay and gracious dames comes before me as I write.

We held a "council of war" what we were to do, and the first point determined upon, especially by the ladies (dear, self-willed creatures that they are), was to see the mosque. In vain "caution" was preached and "danger" was pointed out—see it they would. So "Allons, enfant de la patrie," we said, and away we went.

"Beware," said Sir J. D. Hay, "of a santon." The writer of this was leading the joyous party, whose laughter made the staid soldier stare, and did not raise us, I fear, in his opinion, when we came full upon the mosque, and I saw to my horror a santon, sitting close to the door, counting his chaplet, for there are chaplets in the East as well as in the Roman Catholic Countries. Even the soldier seemed uneasy.

All of a sudden, I remembered the statement I had had from good authority, and, stepping forward, unperceived by the party, I made a Masonic sign to him, known to all my readers, dropping a small golden dollar piece into his lap! To my intense delight—he answered it, and made a bow with his head, and then without raising his head any more, he remained in a bowed attitude, and allowed the party and myself to file peacefully into the Mosque.

When we came out he was gone. The soldier was so astonished that he kept staring at me and him. And thus it is, believe me, explain it as we will, the Freemasonry is everywhere to-day! May we not see a great personage said of old, according to our tradition when we consider the actual existence of Freemasonry and realise its mysterious influence in the world, and position in all countries at the present time? "Oh, mighty brotherhood! oh, wonderful!"

The Ghost of Marney Castle.

THE CASTLE.

MARNEY Castle was a gloomy but magnificent ruin, lying on the borders of the New Forest. It had been practically uninhabited for years, with the exception of a few rooms in one of the farther wings, which had been fitted up for Lord Marney for shooting purposes. The remainder of the castle was a wonderful but discordant ruin, inasmuch as until the beginning of this century it had been occupied, and so had been repaired and restored. Thus you saw the debased ideas of the Caroline and Georgian period commingling with the older aspect and character of Mediæval architecture. Marney Castle had two courts—the outer and the inner. The outer, which was separated by a castellated wall and a moat from the village green, was almost entirely in ruins. In the inner court on one side were the rooms which still were occupied, and on the other was a great armoury connecting itself with an immense banquet hall, which again communicated with the eastern side, in which some old panelled rooms, as I said before, still were used from time to time. Under the great armoury were vaults, which no one had penetrated into for years, and as these vast structures were not professedly kept in repair, and many of the windows were blown in, and all the furniture and armour had long since gone to adorn Lord Marney's other place, Streighton Hall, in Wiltshire, they were as sad and desolate as well could be, dreary and disconsolate beyond description.

But such was the great castle which dominated the village of Marney, and of which, for the purpose of my story, I have given a sufficient description.

THE LEGEND.

Now this great castle had a legend, which was firmly believed in by the peasantry for miles around, and if not believed in by the upper classes as fully perhaps, it was said so deprecatingly and hesitatingly. The truth was, I believe, that everybody credited it, but did not like to admit it; for, say what we will, such is the innate credulity of man, that he is ready to believe anything, however incredible, per se. And in this, our age, we have witnessed the strange paradox or rampant absurdity that, whereas some affect to disbelieve the supernatural element of the Bible, simply because it is supernatural, they will believe greedily in any imposture of table-rapping or so-called spiritualism, and swallow with avidity the nauseous lies of the impostor, the swindler, and the charlatan!

But to the legend itself. A very wicked Lord Marney had a still more wicked wife. She was what someone has called an "out-and-outer," for she was credited not only with every possible crime, but even with witchcraft itself! Her main idea was to make herself as odious to the others generally, and particularly to her husband, as well could be! Accordingly, she led him a miserable life. She brought into the Castle a Confessor, who was said to be addicted to the "forbidden art." She fitted up a laboratory in one of the lower vaults to which she had access by a private passage, and there she carried on what the people about, in undertones, declared were her "sorceries and her devilries." At last, one day, the patience of her lord was exhausted. He found her preparing some horrible "philtre" or broth, and, supposing it was for himself, he drove her before him with a fearful iron belt, striking her until she screamed again,—until she jumped into the lake, and so ended her wicked life and the misery of the neighbourhood. The Church would not bury her, and so she lay in unconsecrated ground. Lord Marney lost his life before the walls of Ascalon.

Such was the legend; and the superstition of the neighbourhood had added to it the belief that the unquiet spirit of that most unquiet woman walked in the great hall or long gallery, uttering piercing shrieks, which were supposed to be still inflicted by the iron belt of Lord Marney. Indeed, such was the strong persuasion of all in the immediate vicinity that none would venture into the great hall or armoury at night, and as the family, for some reason or other, had left Marney Castle about the beginning of the century, under peculiar circumstances of haste and anxiety, it was further generally believed that to some such appearance might be attributed the non-residence of that noble house. With the exception of an occasional visit for shooting, even the rooms which still were inhabited were seldom visited, and it was stated that nothing but extra wages induced old John Hall and his wife Ann to keep them in order.

An explanation had been tendered by a bold constable officer that the alarm in the beginning of the century had been created by smugglers, but this explanation was generally scouted by the lovers of the marvellous as most unworthy of acceptance; and at the time my story opens the belief in the White Lady of Marney was widespread and firmly held.

THE FIRST APPEARANCE OF THE GHOST.

Mr. Goldsworthy had written to say that he was coming for the night, and therefore Mr. Goldsworthy, a respectable man, had gone over to see him, and to see that all the necessary and comfortable arrangements were made for his following day. Mr.

Goldsworthy lived a few miles distance from Marney, in the New Forest, and therefore drove over in his dog-cart, meaning to return home for his supper at nine; but as he often went from place to place, and from farmhouse to farmhouse, in his long rounds, his family never expected him after nine.

He reached the castle in the early afternoon, having dined at a friend's, "en route," and, putting up his horse in the stable, knocked at the door, which, after some time, was opened by old Hall.

Mr. Hall was evidently in a most uneasy state. "What's the matter, Hall?" said Mr. Goldsworthy. "Nothing, sir; nothing, nothing," stammered the old man.

"Ah, but there is something," replied the astute steward; "I see it by your manner and voice."

"Nothing, sir; nothing, nothing," again repeated Hall, in a tremble.

"Come, Hall, out with it," said Mr. Goldsworthy, laughingly; "you've seen the ghost!"

"I—I—I—sir," said Hall; "no, sir, but my missis has."

Mr. Goldsworthy burst out laughing.

"Where is your old woman?" he said, at last; "let's hear her wonderful story."

But when the old woman appeared she would say nothing. She only shook her head, and declared that her husband was an "old goose." It suddenly flashed across the steward's mind that there was a trick in all this, and he determined to try and find it out. So having dismissed the subject, apparently, and gone through the rooms, and seen that the fires were lighted, and the beds aired, and the servants' rooms got ready, and that the provisions were ordered in, as the cook and others were expected in the morning, he asked old Mrs. Hall to give him some tea; and after tea he quietly told her that, as he had some accounts to make up for Lord Marney, he would sleep there for the night.

Much to his astonishment the old woman seemed delighted, but she said nothing. And so, selecting a small panelled bedroom at the end of the passage nearest the old gallery, he lighted a pipe, took out his papers, and set to work. At nine Mrs. Hall brought him up a couple of mutton chops and a jug of Marney beer, and, with a bit of cheese, he made a very good supper, the old lady having offered him a curious old black bottle, which, she said, was one of many in the cellar, for old Hall had once been the butler, and still kept the keys, and which same bottle turned out to be Schiedam. Mr. Goldsworthy made himself a comfortable "night-cap," and at ten o'clock, as was his wont, turned in.

He was woke after some hours by a sort of grating noise. As he had a repeater, he struck it, and it sounded two. All of a sudden a door in the panel seemed to open, and a woman in white, uttering a shriek, appeared, and then vanished. There was a creaking of locks and as of chains, and then all was still again.

Poor Mr. Goldsworthy had fainted away. In the morning he was in a very depressed condition, and the old woman said triumphantly to her husband, "I said nothing yesterday, but I knew he would see her." When Lord Marney was told the story, he said, "It is quite clear to me that old Goldsworthy drank too much Schiedam."

THE SECOND APPEARANCE OF THE GHOST.

WHEN Mr. Goldsworthy got home next day, his family was not slow in finding out that something had happened. His eldest daughter, Julia, who was his favourite, soon extracted from the agitated Goldsworthy what had really taken place. She had engaged herself to the Reverend James Morley, the Curate of Marney, and, as he was staying at the house, she went at once to him for "spiritual" consolation. He was a very worthy young man, with too great a trust in his own powers of argument and persuasion, which were more limited in other people's opinion than he would have liked to think or to know. But he was not without "pluck," and so he volunteered to go and call on Lord Marney, and offer to sleep in the same room, as he felt sure that it was a gross imposture or Satanic agency.

Julia naturally objected on principle to this encounter of her "young man" with the "Woman in White," but her scruples were overruled, for, as Mr. Morley said heroically, "he had his duty to perform." Therefore, bold in a good cause, he started to pay his respects to Lord Marney and offer to endeavour to solve the mystery.

No sooner had he reached the castle, and seen Lord Marney, and told him his mission, than Lord Marney, who treated the whole affair as an excellent joke, and whose ladies were coming that very evening as well as some young officers from London, asked Mr. Morley to stay, and ordered Mr. Goldsworthy's room to be prepared for his reception. There was a sardonic smile on old Mrs. Hall's face when she heard the news, and she said, "I warrant me, the parson won't like the Lady in White when he sees her." Lord Marney told all his guests, when they arrived, the story, so that Mr. Morley was for once a hero. He was petted and pitied alternately, and when they all separated for the night Lord Marney said, "If you want help, Mr. Morley, wake up these idle nephews of mine, or my son, who will immediately come to your aid."

The Curate went to his room about half-past eleven or a quarter to twelve, and having looked carefully round the room and tapped the panelling to try if there was a secret door, after commending himself to God's protection, he went to bed. He had slept for some time, when he, too, was woke by a grating noise, and then again, all of a sudden, a door in the wainscot was thrown open and a female figure in white, shrieking loudly, appeared in the room of the startled Curate. The Curate knew nothing more until he opened his eyes and saw daylight streaming in through the windows. He got quietly up, examined the walls again carefully, and, finding nothing (by this time he had become comparatively composed) sat down and wrote his statement of what he saw until oblivion overcame him!

When he descended to breakfast his pale looks assured the company that something had happened, and when, after breakfast, Lord Marney asked him to come into his little study, and when the door was closed, he again asked him what he had seen, Mr. Morley showed him his statement, which made Lord Marney smile—for he believed that the young men, and perhaps the young ladies, had played a trick on a timid Curate.

Finding that the Curate was anxious to get home, he soon after let him go, expressing his conviction to his family that he had been frightened by old Goldsworthy, or perhaps by a trick!

"A trick," said Lady Lucy, his favourite daughter; "who could or dared play such a trick here, papa?"

Captain St. Denis, a gay Guardsman, who was present, said he had a mind to try and find out the ghost, and as Lord Marney's nephew, Charles Marney, offered to keep him company, it was settled that, without saying a word about it to the servants, these two should occupy the chamber after twelve.

THE THIRD APPEARANCE OF THE GHOST.

At twelve precisely, Captain St. Denis and Charles Marney proceeded to the haunted room. They took with them some cigars and B. and S., and two good sticks. They made a close examination of the room, but could discover nothing, except that two panels seemed to give, on minute inspection, a more hollow sound than the others.

"This, then, is the door," said Captain St. Denis, and he tried to open it, but all in vain.

One o'clock struck, and still the two young men sat talking and smoking. Soon after one, Charles Marney said, "I'm very sleepy, and will lie down on the bed," and soon after went to sleep; and Captain St. Denis, tired of keeping awake, soon followed his example.

The next thing Captain St. Denis remembered was finding himself surrounded by a flash of light, Charles Marney calling out, and a woman in white shrieking loudly, staring at them both. The unearthly appearance which had so unmanned Charles Marney seemed for the moment to have paralysed the bold Guardsman, for, before he could collect his scattered thoughts, a clanking of chains and a creaking of bolts were heard and the vision had disappeared, and they were both in utter darkness.

"By George," said Captain St. Denis, "we are in for it. Yet, after all, I believe it is a hoax."

A solemn voice was heard to say, "Madman, on the peril of your life, be silent," and then all was again quiet as the grave.

When Lord Marney heard the story in the morning he shook his head, and, leaving Marney in a few days, has never since returned to visit it. Captain St. Denis, who married Lady Lucy, never likes the subject mentioned; Charles Marney still turns pale when Marney Castle is mentioned; and the White Lady is a forbidden subject of conversation in the Marney family.

I am speaking of some years ago. Probably now these terrors have passed away from their minds, for, as science and civilisation spread their wholesome sway each year, more and more, "some dear delusion fades and dies." You will not wonder that all these events combined to create a deep impression in the neighbourhood of Marney Castle, and increased the belief of the "Woman in White."

L'ENVOI.

NOTWITHSTANDING the universal belief in the county of the ghost, there were those who had their doubts; but still, as credulity has its fanatics as well as unbelief, for some time, at any rate, he was a bold man who ventured to dispute the three appearances of the White Lady of Marney Castle. Indeed, I believe nothing would ever have shaken the more educated from their belief, or, rather, their doubts—and many firmly cling to the ghost still, despite everything—had not a curious trial at the county assizes induced many people to think, after all, that the White Lady of Marney Castle was a substantiality in the flesh, and therefore no ghost or spirit at all.

A trial before the Lord Chief Justice for "coining" took place, and the county police, assisted by some of the police of Scotland Yard, had broken up one of the most desperate gangs of smashers which had ever troubled either the metropolis or the provinces! It was then I made acquaintance with Detective Robinson—Inspector I believe he is now—who had been sent to assist the county police. After the trial I was talking to him of the ghost story.

"Ah," he said, "I think I can give you a clue to the Lady in White. Why, she was the wife of that chap we got fourteen years for."

"His wife," I said; "but how then do you account for her appearances and her screamings?"

"Well," he replied, "in this way. No doubt she dressed herself for the part, and it was their game to keep that portion of the castle free from intrusion, for they had, in those old vaults, a splendid place for their practical operations. When we were examining the old castle, we found a staircase from the vaults, which led up to a panelled room, the door of which was fastened outside by rusty chains and bars."

"Yes, but you know," I said, "the legend that the wicked Baron beats her for her intense wickedness, though, if the legend itself be true, he and she were six of the one and the half dozen of the other."

"Well," said Inspector Robinson, "it's all plain sailing after all. No doubt Jimmy, for that is what we always called Dodds, did beat his wife, and no doubt she really screamed when he beat her. The night, or rather the morning, those two officers saw her, he had been simply strapping her, and probably followed her upstairs, and no doubt her screams were real and piercing. Ah, sir, she's a bad one! Her name is Margaret—she goes by the name of Ramping Meg, and she has given me more trouble than a half-dozen men! She tried Jimmy very hard."

"And," continued the inspector with a gravity which impressed me deeply, as if he felt what he said, "there is no such aggravating thing for a man as a knagging woman. I know it against the law, and the Lord Chief Justice would say that it's a 'gross illegality and a grave impropriety,' but for all that, though you need not repeat what I say, there are some women for whom nothing on earth will do but a little judicious 'strap-oil.' Meg was the White Lady, and had these two young officers not been so scared by her screams and her white dress, the ghost would have been found out long ago. We don't believe in ghosts at Scotland Yard. The only ghost I ever saw was one who would walk into other people's bedrooms, but as that ghost always took articles of jewellery away, we took her at last. She was a fine, fat, bouncing ghost when we took her!"

"Well," I said, "you see they'll still believe in the ghost in the country, and so many to this hour declare that the 'White Lady walks in the ruins of Marney Castle.'"

"De Gustibus."

By BRO. S. POYNTER, P.M. AND TREAS. BURGONNE 902,
P.M. AND FOUNDER ATHENÆUM 1491.

PRIMA VIRUMQUE CANO, and as I propose carolling on a congenial subject, I mean to tane up lustily. The arms I sing about are offensive weapons, ex: gr: a knife proper grasped dexter, a fork proper, argent, displayed sinister; and the man I warble of is "a man and a brother," and wears a lambekin apron across that portion of his anterior anatomy which patrons of the P.R. term, or used so to phrase it, "below the belt." My brother, I am about to moralise musically upon you in "the fourth degree;" I mean to apply my title to you in its most material and even vulgar sense. I do not propose to discourse of the attribute of taste in its æsthetical or moral application; that is to say, I am not about to be didactical on the modern renderings of the famous proverb which runs in English—"Every one to his taste, as the old woman said when she kissed her cow," and in French—"Chacun à son goût." No; my psalm shall be of palpable physical enjoyment; the tangible sensation communicated to the animal palate; the enjoyment that is experienced in the actual reception, mastication, and deglutition of good food and drink. And why not? We have poetical authority for asserting that "good wine is a good creature," and the resplendent genius who is responsible for this proposition has not disdained to expatiate also upon "flawn and custards," and honest "beef and mustard." Another poet assures us that—

"In the Spring a livelier Iris changes on the burnish'd dove;
In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

And it seems to the mind of a writer whose feet, like Thackeray's, have been "under the mahogany of many men," that there is the same touching fitness of idea existing between Christmas and feasting that Tennyson and Shakespeare establish between youth and amorousness, and that the earlier poet also ascribes to the association of old age with covetousness.

Touching old age, was the "swan of Avon" quite accurate when he described the senile one in the immortal recapitulation of humanity's scenes as "sans taste?" I confess I have not yet qualified to give an opinion founded upon personal experience on this knotty question, but I am, alas! in process of doing so. I remember that once, many years ago, an octogenarian Alderman, with his serviette well tucked under his chin—as you see his predecessors represented in Hogarth's picture, "Master Goodchild elected Sheriff of London is entertained by his Company"—challenged me to join him in iced punch. His Worship's mouth was very full of callipash and callipee, almost too replete to enable him to gasp out, apoplectically, "Stick to the table, young sir—stick to the table; it's the only pleasure that lasts to the end—lasts to the end." I suppose the gourmand in that other picture of Hogarth's—in that pitiable state after the surfeit of oysters, you remember—held the same creed—but there, "something too much of this," as Hamlet says.

We have, all of us, been taught that Freemasonry is a peculiar system of morality veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols; and probably, from the very invention of the order—and by its invention I mean from the very inception of the idea of formulating a cult from the practice of operative Masonry—some method of communicating notions of rectitude, combined with technical skill, was desiderated by the craftsmen. From the necessity so experienced, I assume ritual originated, and I do not think it at all improbable that the most convenient opportunity for communicating the moral lessons this ritual was intended to convey, and at the same time perfecting the ritual itself, was found in the intervals when master and foremen and workmen assembled together for necessary refreshment after—or in the intervals of—labour. By imperceptible degrees—by a process extending over a long period—this mode of communicating instruction would develop or degenerate—call it which you please—into the easy and convenient practice of some learned and skilled brother discoursing, or reading in monologue, for the instruction and presumably the entertainment of his companions, while they recruited exhausted nature, the lector finding other opportunities for taking his necessary refreshment. This system, we know, prevailed in monastic communities. It was, until comparatively recent times, the practice in our Universities, and in the Inns of Court. In each of the latter to this day a reader is appointed once a year, and although his office has become a sinecure, he enjoys the kudos of beholding, at the end of his year of nominal services, his armorial bearings emblazoned on a panel in the hall of his legal alma mater. Most of us remember how the monastic lecturer is introduced by Longfellow, when the monks "are merry in hall, when beards wag all," and "The reader droned from the pulpit,

Like the murmur of many bees,
The legend of good St. Cuthbert,
Or St. Basil's homilies"— at that great feast, when the fathers toasted the whole of the hagiology, one by one—a bumper and no beel taps for each—and how my lord the Abbot succumbed at the last, and was found to have quietly departed for the "land o' the leal," as Lady Nairne has it; and how the hearty roysterers improved the occasion by improvising a canonization on the spot—

"But not for this their revels
The jovial monks forbore,
For they cried, 'Fill high the goblets,
Let us drink to one saint more!'"

A companion to this story is a yarn told by Sir Walter Scott, somewhere, of the astonishing composure evinced by an old Caledonian toper at the sudden death of one of his convives—we will call him "the laird o' Cairngorm." A party who had spent "a very wet evening," separating in the small hours of the morning, one of the number observed that a guest appeared to be sleeping, and remarked a very peculiar pallor upon his face. "Cairngorm's unco' gash," he whispered to his neighbour. "An' weel he may be," was the reply; "he's been gane these twa hours; I saw him pass awa', but I deed na' leeke to deesturb guid company."

I need not say that in College and University life, while the system of commons is still maintained, its accompaniment of the droning lector has become obsolete. Thoughtful observers have long been convinced of the moral utility of "keeping commons;" and there is extant a strong and not unreasonable proposition for those seats of learning where this mode of educational association is still practised, while there is an equal and equally not unreasonable prejudice existing in the minds of many against those institutions where this method of fitting their alumni for the battle of life by wholesome attrition with their fellows and future co-labourers has never been adopted, or has been allowed to fall into disuse. As to readers, their nominal appointment as such is not unfamiliar to us in certain ecclesiastical establishments of this day, in the pulpits of which those monologists constantly appear, although to modern minds in this connection the difference between a preacher and a reader is rather less explicable than the distinction between a crocodile and an alligator.

Something of the same feeling of veneration for ancient usages, I venture to assert, exists—notwithstanding how philosophers may theorise—among the convivial observances of Freemasonry. The day, thank Heaven, has long passed by when it behoved a brother to seriously buckle on his armour and defend the beloved Craft from the vulgar charge that it was only an excuse for feasting, for gormandizing, for indulgence in alcoholic excess. Excesses, either in meats or drinks, are now—and the fact is universally recognised—very much the exception rather than in any degree the rule in Masonic "refreshment;" while, on the other hand, slackness, slovenliness, inaccuracy, or lukewarmness in the performance and rendering of the beautiful "working" and ritual are also as conspicuously infrequent. We have nothing to apologise for, but little to defend; the charges involved in that little we may perhaps be sometimes put to vindicate, but the answer need be but brief, and I certainly do not propose to excite the ridicule of my readers by donning harness to repel the sprinkles of penny squirts.

There are so many things it is cheap and easy to laugh at. I personally enjoy the annual procession of Lord Mayor's Show, and shall continue to do so, call you it gimcrack gingerbread never so much. Perhaps to me it has some occult meaning, and its gilding goes deeper than the surface; but I am not necessarily a dotard because your ocular organs have not the same focus as mine. I roar at two or three pantomimes every year, and the spectacle of a fat, apoplectic looking middle-aged gentleman, choking with laughter until the tears run down his cheeks, once or twice per annum—at Mr. Clown purchasing a pound of butter in order to grease the pavement before the cheesemonger's door, so that, when that honest tradesman emerges, his slithery slide may culminate in an undignified sprawl—may be contemptible to you, dear reader; but then I may see in it "excellent fooling," and reflect, if permitted to philosophise over so puerile a subject, that it may not be altogether unwise to be sometimes for a brief minute or two in this world of woe "even as a little child."

And so with other things. When I dine, as I frequently have the honour of doing, with my noble friend the Right Honourable Geoffrey Plantagenet Fitz-Urse Stangate, Earl of Lambeth, Viscount New Cut, and Baron of Pedlar's Acre, K.G., etc., etc., I do not expect that exalted nobleman to take wine with me—it isn't done in society now, you know; that's information for you, dear reader, isn't it? I do not feel slighted if, in the presence of the two solemn be-faced ones, upright behind my chair, my noble host does not give his curiously cut tasse a knowing cock, and audibly announce that he "looks towards" me, or affectionately preface his draught, à la Gamp, with "here's wishin' you luck." I am perfectly aware that I can imbibe as much or as little as I please at my lord's mahogany, and that the decorous plain—the champagne—I mean the country not the liquor—"the lie of the land," to use a Cambridgeshire term—of talk in decorous subdued tone, will not be disturbed by acclivities of heartiness and volcanic eruptions of expressions of friendliness, affection, and goodwill. I say, I take my right honourable friend as I find him; I accept a sort of aristocratic pot-luck, as it were; I accommodate myself to princely circumstances, because I am not proud and don't pretend to look down upon peers of the realm, as some folks do. But then I also am found equal to the situation in a Freemason's lodge, and I do not, and I will not, denounce the continuance of the old hearty fashion of "Waes hael," of demonstrating openly the hospitality we are delighted to extend, the affection we are happy to be able to feel when we brethren meet, and amicably—and I hope we always all of us do so amicably—break bread together.

"Turkey and chine," "Roast beef and plum pudding," "Rum punch and sparkling hock!" "What an eulogiser of gourmandise you are!" I think I hear some of my readers exclaim. Read between the lines, my friends, and you shall see that this panegyric implies a deep concern for the good fellowship in its higher sense which these tangibilities symbolically represent. The glass of wine that I take at refreshment after labour with a brother whom I have never seen before, constitutes the recognition of the value of one of the great principles of our fraternity, emblematises the great virtue, whether displayed by savage or by civilised man, the ready and cheerful practice of hospitality. Again, over that glass of wine, sipped at the same moment with the friend of your heart, expressive eyes meeting in sympathetic glances, how many dear memories may not be evoked, our many tender chords may not be restruck—sounded anew? Nay, more. We of the esoteric can afford to admit that sometimes it may be derisively asked—even of us—Tantæ animis celestibus ira? but how often—do we not know, brethren!—how often an answer to this sneer is at lodge refreshment anticipated by a flask of Marcobrunner, quenching the flames of wrath as effectually as Captain Shaw's new India-rubber hose pipes squirt out the fire in an incandescent Metropolitan shop. Jones and Green eye the table-cloth between them as the lists, the tourney field—which, indeed, it is in the sense of being bounded by the selvages of the napery—wherein they two meet, not unwilling, to exchange wordy blows and tongue-banging battle, so far as the W.M. will allow them, and to reap up that old affair about the—well, never mind what—but somehow the pair of eyes of one of the combatants twinkles over the tall green flasks in the interval between soup and fish; and those sparkling orbs by chance, looking across the intended battle-ground, encounter another pair twinkling, by no means antagonistically, but contrariwise, opposite. "With you, old boy!" stammers Jones, the fierce foe, hesitatingly to Green, the implacable enemy. Retorts Green, the I. E., heartily, and as if immeasurably relieved, to Jones, the F. F., "With all the pleasure in life, brother Jones; what shall it be, hock or sherry?" and imagination need not be accused of being very extravagant if you fancy you can read, inscribed on the diaper, Amantium ira amoris redintegratio est, or, think you hear, in the clink of the weapons of these two doughty combatants—I mean in the clink of their encountering goblets—our good old English ballad rendering of Terence's famous adage, "The falling out of ancient friends renewing is of love."

"So mote it be!" And here let me conclude. I had purposed, gentle reader, to point out to you that our after dinner speeches, the which are not without their uses—let a flippant generation say what it will—uses of exhortation, of encouragement, of admonition, of explanation, are the survivals of the ancient fashion of employing an orator to "improve the occasion" of refection, but I forbear. Rien sacré pour un vapour; and if, as we have seen lately, even that—if not venerable, at all events, grave and solemn—institution, the wedding breakfast—is not sacred from the flippant sneer of the cynic, how can we expect that an apology for post prandial discourse "across the walnuts and the wine" will be gravely, or even patiently received? So, hoping that I have achieved the great success in composition indicated by that eminent literary authority, Mr. Samuel Weller, as "pullin' up short, and then you makes 'em wish for more," I very fraternally and respectfully bid my readers farewell and "Waes hael," and wish them all and each "A very merry Christmas, and a happy, prosperous New Year."

His Five Mothers-in-Law.

MOST husbands and wives, if we may credit all they say, find it difficult to live in the same house with a mother-in-law, but Old Sol B— (as he was commonly called), of Boston, dwelt in peace and comfort for several years with five ladies bearing that relation to him. When I first knew the old gentleman he appeared to be about fifty, but was in reality about sixty-eight, and had a charming wife who was then twenty-six, and two lovely children, a boy and a girl, one seven the other five. His children by his first wife were all married, and some of his grandchildren were also married, and themselves had children older than Mr. B—'s two youngest.

On the first day of my visit at his pleasant home, not many miles from Boston, as I took my place at the dinner-table with Mrs. B—, I was surprised to see five old ladies come into the room together, and to be introduced to each of them in succession as follows: "My own mother, Mrs. B—, senior; my next mother, Mrs. Henry; my third mother, Mrs. James; my fourth mother, Mrs. William; my fifth mother, Mrs. John."

Mrs. B—, senior, who seemed the youngest of the old ladies, laughed aloud at my look of consternation—a melodious laugh for one of her years—and everyone smiled but Mr. B—, who invoked the blessing with his usual air, and led the table-talk on indifferent topics. That evening, in the parlour, young Mrs. B— gave us some music, and the old ladies retired early, one after another, the "own mother" going last, when she was tenderly assisted upstairs by her son. On his return Mr. B— said to me, with a smile of amusement: "I see that you are, as the ladies say, 'dying to know' what all this means. I purposely did not tell you that I have five mothers-in-law, because I always like to see the effect produced by my household on other people. You, for instance, live so differently, all alone; how do we appear to you?"

"Harmonious and happy; but I have seen you together only a very short time. What is your every day experience?"

"Much the same, especially since my dear wife came into our household. I had all the old ladies when she arrived."

"But where did you get them all; they cannot all belong to you?"

"Yes, every one of them. I have four mothers-in-law, and as my own mother is my wife's mother-in-law, of course that makes five mothers-in-law in our house. Now, as my wife is just going to her little ones' nursery, I will tell you about my old ladies."

"When I married my first wife, her mother, who was a widow, came to live with us. She was a good creature, and had seen pretty hard times, having supported herself by school-teaching and sewing for several years, and she seemed greatly to enjoy my comfortable home—I was always a thriving man of business. So one day I said to her, 'Now, mother, there is no reason why you shouldn't make your home with us always while you live; you can bring your own furniture if you choose, or you need not; the room you now occupy shall be your own always, and, beside what my wife may do, I will give you fifty dollars a year for your clothes (that was an ample sum for a woman to have all to herself in those times). And if sometimes you are displeased, you must go to your room and put it out alone, and only join us again when you feel pleasant. For I won't be worried, and least of all will I have my wife worried by anybody. Now, mother, what do you say?'"

"She only said, 'You are a good man, Solomon B—, and the Almighty will reward you, and I thank you from my heart. I will do my part.'"

"So I never had any trouble with her."

We all lived together twenty years, and then my wife had an attack of pneumonia, and died; and soon after that my own mother was left a widow, and came to live with me. My mother is only sixteen years older than I am, and, being so lively and smart, she seemed quite like a younger sister to mother Henry, and they got on easily together. But after a while, when the children were all about grown, I got so lonesome that I coaxed a real, nice, sensible lady of Philadelphia, not handsome, but just as good as gold, to marry me. I told her all about my old ladies, and found she had two mothers living with her—her own mother and her husband's mother. They had neither of them any property, but she owned a house, and took boarders in it to support them all.

"Well, I made the same proposition to her old ladies that I made to my mother-in-law, and they both agreed. Then I went home and built an addition to my house, and soon brought my second wife and her mothers there. We had some occasional pouting at first, but I always held two points without yielding—I was the master in my own house and would never let anybody worry my wife. So, pretty soon, my four-in-hand learned to travel smoothly together."

"Ah, me! I looked forward to a happy old age with that dear wife, but in two years she was killed by a railway accident. I was with her on the train and was badly hurt, lying for weeks in a state of unconsciousness. When I recovered my dear wife's grave was green. I felt so bad and my health was so poor that I did not care for a woman again until all my children were married, and I was left alone with my four old ladies. Then I met a pretty little romantic widow, husband and oldest child died of contagious fever, three who was 'so sorry' for me. She wrote poetry and painted pictures, and was dying all the while of consumption, that scourge of our city; and I thought as she had a struggle to take care of herself and her husband's mother, I would smooth her passage to the grave.

"So I married her and her mother—I mean—well, you know what I mean. I treated her mother-in-law just as I did the other old ladies, and that wife lived seven years after all. I made her so happy that she adored me, and we had the sweetest baby you ever saw! Oh, what a lovely creature that child was—a little angel! She lived only three years, and then faded away. But I have several beautiful pictures of her, painted by her mother."

"And did you have no trouble with that mother-in-law?"

"Not while her daughter-in-law lived; she was always taking care of her sick child and grandchild. But when Emma was gone, and all seemed quiet again, the old lady wanted to marry me!"

"What! Emma's mother-in-law?"

"Yes. She was a handsome woman still, and she knew it; about my age, and no relation whatever; so she set her cap at me."

"And that made a commotion in the house?"

"Well, yes. Yes, it did. I never knew my mother to get into a real rage till then. She was mad! She told me to go right off and get a young wife—the younger the better! Then I got mad. I stormed away at all my old ladies together; threatened to break up housekeeping and turn them out upon the world, away from the pleasant home which they had enjoyed so long that they really believed to be theirs. Finally I declared I would leave them in it, to fight like Kilkenny cats, while I would live at an hotel in the city. And I kept my word. I lived at one hotel after another, but always went home on Saturday nights to go to church the next morning as usual, and take my old ladies for a drive in the afternoon as usual, so that the neighbours should not be gossiping about us. How good they were to me then! They lived together like a nest of kittens. But my mother assured me that peace would not last long if I lived at home without a wife; so when I met a pretty little orphan girl who had not a relative in the world, I told her all about my affairs, and the sweet creature, with tears of pity in her eyes, consented to marry me and be good to my old ladies. And she has kept her word, both letter and spirit, and I am thankful that life has given me so many blessings."

The story is from life, excepting that I have changed all the names. Sol B— has been dead some years; the will he left was as just and manly as his other acts.

A Wife's Appeal.

THE Wise people—those who manage their neighbours' affairs in theory much better than they do their own in practice—shook their heads in solemn conclave when Mr. Hepworth married the second time, but an added shade of venom was in their councils when the village paper noticed, in flowery paragraph, the birth of a son and heir at the great house. She was very beautiful, and many had thought it a great sacrifice when she married a man as old as her own father, yet in her sweet humility she only prayed to be worthy of the love bestowed upon her.

A low knock at the door aroused her, and rising to her feet, she answered the summons.

Upon the threshold stood a woman, a few years older than herself, who led by the hand a handsome boy, who had seen two summers only.

The woman was poorly dressed, in a shabby mourning, but the child wore dainty white garments.

"Did you wish to see me?" Mrs. Hepworth asked, smiling upon the child.

"May I come in?" was the woman's question in return.

"Certainly. You look tired."

The stranger accepted chair, and looked sadly round the room.

"Everything is altered," she said, in a mournful voice. "Perhaps I had better stayed away. Mrs. Hepworth, you have heard of Clarice Manderson?"

"I have not," was the reply. "I am almost a stranger here. We have been travelling ever since I was married, until a few months ago."

"And you never heard of me?" said the stranger, the tears rising in her eyes. "Then my errand here is indeed hopeless. If, in his new happiness as your husband, my father never even spoke of my name, it is useless to hope he will forgive me."

"Your father? Mr. Hepworth your father? He told me he had lost his only daughter."

"Not that I was dead; I was lost to him by my own disobedience. You love my father?"

Just a smile, proud, happy and tender, answered her.

"Then you will understand me," said Clarice, "when I tell you I loved my husband better than father, home or duty. Father would not hear of our marriage and sternly forbade me to speak to Lucien Manderson, assuring me that he was a fortune hunter, a gambler, and unworthy of my love. When the letter imploring forgiveness was returned to me by my father, with a few brief words casting me from heart and love, my husband proved what I had so fondly hoped was false. He had married the only child and presumed heiress of Hepworth, the millionaire, and found himself burdened with a penniless wife. I spare you the history of the four years of married misery that followed. Then my months later, on the very day this boy was born. I heard of my father's marriage. I returned here, hoping for pardon: but the house was shut up. When you came, I determined to make one more effort for forgiveness, hoping you would plead for me. Oh, by your love for your child, plead for me. Think if he was an outcast from his father's love, sorrowing, and penitent, and begging of a stranger the gift of his birth-right!"

"If my prayer will keep you here, Clarice, you shall not leave your father's house again. Mr. Hepworth is in the library, and I will speak to him at once."

She waited a moment to bathe the traces of tears from her face, and came again, smiling, to the anxious group.

"Cheer up, Clarice," she said, bravely. "What is your little boy's name?"

"Stephen. It was the name of my brother who died. My first boy was called after my father."

"Stephen," said Mrs. Hepworth, opening her arms. "Come here, darling, and kiss your grandmother."

The child sprang at once to the lovely grandmother, kissing her again and again.

Putting him into his mother's arms the young wife lifted her own baby from its cradle and left the room.

In the darkly-furnished library, Mr. Hepworth was leaning back in his arm-chair.

A light step roused him from his reverie, and his wife stood before him.

Her husband opened his arms to caress both, and laughed, as he said:

"Oh, those mothers! Do you suppose, Madame, that babies are admitted into the sanctums of legal gentlemen?"

"I do," said the mother, "if the legal gentlemen have the additional honour of being their papas."

"Did you know, Harold," said Meta, her lip quivering slightly, as she felt the deep import of her words, "that this is my birthday, and you have given me no gift?"

"You are impatient, little wife," he answered, thinking of the costly bauble that was to come without fail by noon.

"But I would like to choose my own gift," she persisted.

"What can I give my rosebud that she has not already?"

"Does your office include the power of pardon?" she asked, her sweet face pallid with earnestness.

"In a limited degree it does," he replied. "But dear one, I shouldn't like it to be known that I had shown clemency to a criminal upon your solicitation. You would be constantly annoyed by the loving relatives of scamps and rogues trying to move me to pity through your intercession?"

"But this is not a case of roguery, Harold—only a true penitent; one who erred in extreme youth, was led from a path of duty by a love as warm and true as our own, but mistaken. Oh, dear husband, do you not know for whom I would plead? Cannot you guess for whom I would beg your pity and forgiveness?"

"Clarice," he asked, hoarsely, "who has told you of her?"

"She has come herself to seek your forgiveness."

"She is here?"

"Yes. You will forgive her? For the sake of our own boy, Harold, let this be a home for her and Stephen."

"Stephen!" he cried, starting.

"Her son. Her husband is dead. She is widowed, poor and lonely. Let her return to your home and your love, Harold!"

There was a moment of silence, and the mother softly carried the strong, right hand of her husband in her own until it rested upon the head of the babe in her arms.

He looked down and said:

"I will grant your birthday wish, Meta. Take me to Clarice."

With a tender, loving kiss upon the hand that still rested upon her child's head, Meta led the way back to her pretty sitting-room, where Clarice waited the result of her errand.

As she heard the steps coming across the wide hall toward the room where she was seated, her agitation became too great for patient waiting, and she stood up, holding her child by the hand, her breath coming in quick, panting sobs, her eyes dilated with suspense, and her whole figure quivering with intense emotion.

It was this eager, flushed face that met the father's eye as he opened the door—the face of the child to whom he had given the entire strength of his love for years.

He forgot her waywardness, her disobedience, and the six years of absence.

He remembered only that she was his only daughter, the child of his dead Clarice, and he opened his arms, with a smile that carried love and forgiveness to the sore heart.

There was a cry of—

"Father, dear, dear father!"

And they were folded fast in each other's arms, while Meta drew wondering Stephen into an inner room and closed the door.

Not even for her ears, she felt, were those first words of reconciliation.

It was not long that Stephen was withheld from his grandfather's kiss, for father and daughter alike turned to the gentle influence that had united them once more.

The gossips are divided in their opinion as to the exact amount of hatred and jealousy existing between the young widowed daughter and the young wife at the great house, but it would be quite beyond the power of their narrow minds to understand such true sisterly love as exists between Clarice Manderson and Mr. Hepworth's second wife.

The Ghostly Compact.

"Can such things be,
And overcome us like a summer's cloud,
Without our special wonder?"—Macbeth.

IN the beautiful suburbs of the grand old city of London lived the happy and affluent family of the Pherwells. The father had been a successful merchant, and retired with his gains into the country, whither he took his wife. Their two sons' pretty residences were near them, where they had gathered round them small families. It is of these two we wish to treat more especially. They were twins,

"The one so like the other
As could not be distinguished but by names," and they have attained the age of twenty-five years. One is an eminent engineer, and the other a noted bookseller. From the cradle it had been hard to distinguish which was which, and they had always evinced a remarkable affection for each other. If it had not been for a slight mark on Hubert's shoulder (who was generally considered the elder), they would hardly have been able to have told him from Harry. Their parents had always been proud of their similarity, and had done all they could to preserve it, dressing them alike, parting their flowing black locks, in the same manner, and giving each of them the same instruction. The neighbours all marvelled at them, and they were general favourites, all agreeing they never saw two brothers so loving and kind. Thus they were brought up, and as they became older, instead of growing dissimilar, they seemed to get more and more alike, and many were the mistakes and ludicrous blunders made by their friends. Hubert would answer for Harry, or Harry for Hubert, and they were eternally getting mixed, until they almost thought of re-naming them. At school they did each other's lessons, got into one another's scrapes, and received each other's favours. One day Hubert broke a slate, and Harry got caned for it; the next day Harry knew his lesson the best, and Hubert got the marks. If Harry asked for a holiday, Hubert was sure to get it, and if Hubert had the headache, Harry was bound to be let off his lessons. Thus they were always confounded, and their schoolfellows called them "the boy and his shadow," though they didn't know which was the boy and which was his shadow. At the end of the session Hubert was at the head of the school, and the master congratulated him, but presented the prize to Harry.

The difficulties only increased when they left school, and were both placed in the book trade. But it was soon found impossible for them to work together; they were always making mistakes in orders from conflicting instructions. Imagine one of them bringing a bottle of ink filled with sand, and the other splashing ink over a valuable document. They really could not exist in the same place, and as it was absolutely necessary for them to be separated, Hubert was apprenticed to the hard life of an engineer. Even then they would be met in the streets, and the bookseller confidently asked his opinion upon technical points of machine construction, while the young engineer was similarly favoured with large orders for books; or some particular friend would meet the wrong one, and tender him the sovereign he had lent him, with an apology for forgetting it. It was well they had no secrets, or they would certainly have leaked out.

Singularly enough, at about the age of twenty, they became acquainted with two charming girls "as like as two peas," and also twins. They were named Cora and Constance Souvenir, and by a sort of simultaneous sympathy, became very much attached to Hubert and Harry Pherwell. But, though they sincerely loved, neither of them could tell which one had gained his or her affections. This complicated state of things could last no longer, and to avoid evident confusion and endless mistakes, Hubert married Cora, and Harry, Constance. Yet blunders still occurred, and Harry would meet Cora and give her his instructions, while Hubert would upbraid Constance with going out with her severe cold. The families were so attached to one another that they furnished their houses alike in every particular, and each imitated the other in anything new, and if Hubert were to subscribe to some charity Harry would too; or if Constance bought a new shawl Cora would do the same; so that you could never tell whose house you were in. This was all very well in its way, and certainly unique, but extremely puzzling, and they, at least, found it necessary to separate, in spite of their bosom friendship. Before doing so, the brothers made a solemn compact between themselves. They had always studied the same books, and even took an interest in each other's trades, and one of their favourite studies had been that of "Animal Magnetism," or "Sympathetic Influence," and "Spiritual Visitation." They had read many authentic accounts of dear friends being visited by the spirits of departed ones, and they determined to enter into an agreement between themselves. It was this: whoever died the first was to appear to the other in the spirit, if possible—even though he had to pass through imminent danger to do it, and they solemnly agreed to keep their vow. Hubert then exchanged his situation for one in Glasgow, and bade a tearful adieu to his brother and family.

So mutual was their attachment, and such an effect had their compact, that they both had horrible dreams that night, and simultaneously wrote to each other. The following letters show the similarity of their thoughts, a little differently expressed according to their trades:—

"Glasgow.

"Dear Harry,—We arrived all safe and well, and my little wife is considerably better; but last night I had an awful dream that has made me feel very uneasy. I know not what it portends, but it has caused me to be very anxious about you. I did not exactly see you, but dreamt that the mechanism of my life was thrown adrift, and that no earthly power could put it together again. Perhaps it is only a foolish idea, but write immediately and say if you are all right. The house we have secured seems to be a very nice one.—Much love to all yours, from yours very expectantly,

"HUBERT.

"P.S.—In haste. I will write again soon."

"London.

"Dear Hubert,—I hope you arrived all safe and well, and that your charming wife is better. Last night I had a terrible dream, which has quite unnerved me. I know not what it means, but feel very concerned for your sake. Your wraith did not appear, but everything seemed to have gone wrong, and got unbound, so that it was impossible to be put right again. I upbraid myself with it as a foolish idea, but let me know at once if all is well. I hope you have succeeded in getting a comfortable home. Much love to you and yours, from your very anxious brother,

"HARRY.

"N.B.—I have not time for more, but will write further."

Each on receiving these letters was astounded that they should both be similarly affected and write in the same tenor, and attributed it to the powerful influence of "sympathetic magnetism." Here was, indeed, corroboration of the mysterious principle, and now they felt satisfied that should anything happen to either of them the other would be immediately apprised. All their friends "pooh-poohed" the notion, but the brothers devoutly believed in the existence of this power.

Hubert soon established himself in Glasgow, and his situation was worth much more than the one he had held in London. Hardly a day passed but he had a letter from Harry, relating his success in business, or some London news; and he regularly wrote back again with a similar purpose from Glasgow.

Nothing of importance occurred until one foggy morning. Hubert was walking as usual to the works, but was in unusually depressed spirits. He could not tell why, but he felt that some calamity was close at hand, and he shuddered as he tried to shake off the feeling, and failed. Nothing had gone wrong; his wife and family were in their usual health, and nothing had arisen to cause discontent. He left them lovingly, and had no fear on their score. His business, too, was more prosperous than ever, and seemed on the increase. The news from London had been favourable that morning, and his breakfast had been good. All was well except himself; what could be the reason? he asked himself. True, the weather was dull and foggy, but something more than dullness oppressed his mind. He was thinking of his brother, and how he should feel if he died first, and his spirit appeared to him. The thought seemed to be haunting him, and he could not dismiss it. Was it some premonitory warning? He imagined his brother was following him, and that he should soon see his spirit, and he shivered with affright at the thought. He hardly dare look round from fear it should meet his gaze. Suddenly, he straightened himself, and said, "Fool, fool! why torture yourself with these fearful baby fancies! away with them! and he hurried onward. But no sooner did he turn his head round, than there, in the mist, but plain and distinct, was the form of his brother walking at his side. Horrors! then his brother was dead. There was his figure, perfect as in life, following him, looking fixedly at him with his face ghastly pale! He tried to escape it, but it noiselessly, and without any exertion, followed him. He stood still, and it became stationary at exactly the same moment. He felt himself in the presence of the supernatural, and, notwithstanding all his theories, he was afraid. In broad daylight, too; it was no spectre of the imagination—no simple hallucination. No; there, plain enough, was the departed spirit of his poor brother, perfect in every delineation as he had last seen him, and his forebodings had not been false. Perhaps he has passed through intense agony to appear thus to me and fulfil his compact. Coward and ingrate that I am, I will speak to it."

These were his thoughts as he perspired from every pore, and he imagined the spirit wore a reproachful countenance. In a husky, hollow voice he hoarsely said, "Are you dead?" But his voice was buried in the fog, and no answer was returned, the figure remaining as still as ever. "Speak!" he cried, but the sound seemed to cling to him, and never reach his brother. Intensely excited, he took a step forward; the figure retreated. He quickened his speed; the spectre did likewise. He rushed wildly at it, and clutched the hedge, whilst his brother vanished through it! This brought him to himself, and made him think. It was no phantom of the brain. No, it was too real for that. It was certainly the spirit of his brother, who must have at that moment departed this life. Was it not according to the agreement?

These thoughts tormented him, and he was now filled with grief for the death of his brother. The fog now lifted, and left the earth fair and beautiful, but it had no delight left for him. A labourer trudged past him with shuffling, noisy tread, and reminded him of the material world. But he had just come from the presence of the immaterial. He hurried home as though in a dream. He related the event of the morning in a tone of horror to his wife, who could not help believing with him that his brother Harry was dead. He prepared to depart immediately, and telegraphed his intention to London, but could not wait for a reply, as the express was ready to start. Oh, the strange thoughts that filled his brain as he was swiftly hurled along, but seemed to himself to be hardly moving at all. Where was his brother now? Was he in a state of coma, or unrest, or bliss? Oh, that the spirit might have spoken to him and revealed his situation. But such was impossible; he felt that it bordered upon the unknowable—the eternal.

Such harrowing thoughts occupied him the whole way, and he wondered if he should soon follow his beloved brother. He has at last arrived, and he mournfully hurries to the house, but what sounds greet his ears? dancing and music? and his brother's house one brilliant blaze of light? What can it mean? Are they keeping an Irish "wake" over his brother's body? He is bewildered, and rubs his eyes; no, he is not asleep. He hastens to penetrate the awful mystery, when, who should meet him at the door but his brother Harry himself!

"Well, my boy, how are you, and what's the hurry?"

Harry asked, jovially.

But the revulsion was too great for Hubert, and he fell down insensible. His brother, astonished and alarmed, procured immediate assistance. Nothing, however, could arouse him, and he was placed into a bed in a lethargic state, under the constant care of his brother. The doctors could not understand it. Harry telegraphed to his sister-in-law for his brother's reason for coming in such haste, and received the particulars in the morning. He was astonished at the extraordinary news, and could not comprehend it. Hubert showed signs of improvement, though at the same time symptoms of fever, and still remained unconscious. Harry could not help pondering over the vision Hubert had seen, and wondered if it portended his or his brother's death. He revealed the matter to the doctor, who, after careful consideration, explained the cause. It was this: Hubert had certainly seen the spectre, but it was his own shadow or reflection perfectly mirrored, and he and his brother being exactly alike, he had, under the circumstances, taken it for his brother's wraith. Such phenomena were a rare occurrence, and only happened in fogs, and then only under very peculiar conditions. It was one of these that had deceived Hubert, and his present illness was owing to the excitement he had experienced. The feelings he had gone through were enough to shake any man's nerves.

His illness lasted a long time, with periods of delirium, and at one time the doctors despaired of his life. But under the careful nursing he received from his poor little wife and friends, he slowly recovered, and the doctors advised a long sea journey as requisite to bring him back to health. He was very much altered, and almost worn to a skeleton, and there was no longer that striking resemblance between him and his brother. Cora, too, had altered greatly, and change of air and scene was quite as necessary for her health. Hubert had had the whole mystery explained to him, and, ashamed, he no longer believed in "spiritual visitation," and Harry quite concurred with him. Consequently, when they parted the vow was no longer mentioned or believed in, and Hubert and his family sailed in the Alexandrine for Australia.

Eighteen months had passed away, and Hubert had again arrived in London; but not the same Hubert or the same Cora. Travel had made a strange alteration in them. They were perfectly brown, and had become very stout, but were healthy and strong. They had been to Africa, Australia, and America, and it had this astonishing effect. When they got to their brother's residence nobody recognised them, and Harry and Constance could hardly be convinced that the two portly persons were once mistaken for themselves. There was now no danger of mistaken identity; climate and its effects had completely rubbed off all resemblance. Hubert's tour had quite restored him, and he, with his wife, had acquired an insatiable love of travel into foreign countries. He had no longer a situation, but his late employers offered him a tempting one with their agents at Bombay, and Hubert could not resist accepting it. There he rapidly succeeded, and increased his wealth; but the climate did not agree with him, and after six years of it he died of the fever so fatal to Englishmen. His distressed wife and children embarked for England, and Harry did not receive the news of his brother's death until three months after.

CHAPTER THE FIRST.

"The bubbling and loud-hissing urn
Throws up a steamy column."—Chaucer."Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come."—Byron.

"GOOD morning, my dear," said Mr. Richmond, as he entered the breakfast parlour and received his usual morning salute from his daughter, "Good morning. I see the letters are in; are there any for me?"

"Oh yes, papa, there are two or three for you, and only one for me," replied the young lady, as she handed her father those addressed to him.

"We will discuss their contents and our breakfast at the same time," said he, seating himself at the breakfast table. After invoking a blessing upon the meal, he leisurely opened the epistles and gave a hasty glance at their contents, putting aside those of a business nature; retaining one, he remarked to his daughter, "This letter is from your aunt, accepting of our invitation for Christmas."

"I am so glad aunt's coming," replied the young lady; "I was afraid she might have pleaded her late illness as an excuse. My letter is from Harry, saying he intends coming home in time to hear you preach on Christmas day, and—taste my pudding after the sermon."

"I suspect the pudding, or the maker of it, will have stronger attractions for him than my sermon," said her father; then, seeing his jocular remark had caused her, "blushing like the morn," to avert her head, he added, "however, I am glad old Harry is coming home again; it is but two short years since he went away, and yet it sometimes looks like ages."

This last remark of her father's found a ready response in the heart of the daughter, and for a brief period they were both silent, as their thoughts carried them back to the past. Presently the silence was broken by the clergyman asking, "By the way, Grace, does Harry say by what ship he sails, and when?"

"Oh yes, papa. He says—let me see," said she, referring to the letter; "he says, 'I have secured my passage home on board the Cumberland, which sails on the tenth, so I'm bound to be home long before Christmas.'"

"He can't very well be home long before Christmas if he sailed on the tenth; but, I suppose, he means a few days before. Well, if he sailed on the tenth he ought to be more than half way home now, as this is the fifteenth. We may expect him next week. You'll see to getting a room ready for him, I suppose."

"Of course, papa, you know I always attend to the household arrangements."

"Very well, my dear, and now we have finished breakfast, I'll go into the study and write some letters and have a peep at the Times, and when you have attended to the household arrangements aforesaid, you know where to find me if you feel inclined for a walk." Saying which he gathered up his letters and papers, and left the room.

The conversation with which we open our story took place at Grassvale Rectory, between Mr. Richmond, the rector, and his daughter Grace. Before going further, it will be necessary for us to describe the individuals who form "the head and front" of our little narrative.

The Rev. Reginald Richmond was the younger son of Squire Richmond, of Appletree Park, Cidershire. The estate, while it supported the squires of former days in somewhat luxurious style, had by subdivision, as each succeeding heir had been blessed with large families for the education and maintenance of which the estate had to be taxed, dwindled down to a comparatively small inheritance. Reginald's father had had six children, four daughters and two sons, all of whom had to be provided for. The elder son went into the army, while the younger, who was of studious habits, took holy orders after his University career, and after a probationary experience, as curate in charge, in a populous and poverty-stricken locality, he was presented to the incumbency of Grassvale. Mr. Richmond was what is called "middle-aged" before he married, nor did he enjoy his marital life for very long, for his wife died a year or two after their union, leaving him an infant daughter. The little Grace, by her winning ways and affectionate disposition, had almost filled her mother's place in her father's heart, and as she grew up she strove to supply it in the house by attending assiduously to household matters, and particularly to her father's comforts. In person she was rather petite, in temperament cheerful and good natured, and in manners lively and engaging. Her features were regular and pleasing without being beautiful, although by most of the young men about Grassvale she was considered a rare beauty, and no wonder, for her frank and genial nature won the hearts of all, and there were few amongst the poorer classes in the parish who did not think she was as beautiful as an angel, as she was useful in her ministrations. Many a hearty "God bless her" was uttered from the hearts of the villagers, as she tripped past their cottages on some errand of charity.

The aunt, whose letter announced her intention of spending Christmas at the Rectory, was Mr. Richmond's youngest sister, who had been left a widow with one son, some years previous to the date of our story. She had married a wealthy merchant of the name of Warburton, whose estate of Grassvale Grange was in the immediate neighbourhood of the Rectory. Her son Harry and his cousin Grace had been playmates when children, and it is not surprising that the childish affection they then felt for each other should have strengthened and developed, as they grew up, into a warmer and more lasting passion. Harry would have married his cousin when his collegiate course was finished, but Mr. Richmond suggested that, before settling down at the Grange, he should travel and see a little of the world; accordingly, for the last two years he had been rambling in the New as well as the Old World, picking up ideas of men and things from his own point of view, instead of trusting to the smoked glasses or rose-coloured spectacles of others. During his absence, the widow, finding the Grange too large and too dull for her residence, with his approval as heir to the estate, let it to an officer who had come over from India on furlough with his family, she herself residing occasionally at the Rectory, but for the most part in London.

Harry, when he left home on his travels, was a strapping, well-built fellow of about two-and-twenty, with fair complexion and laughing blue eyes. At college he was a noted athlete, famous at running, boating, and cricket, but he was more noted for another quality among his fellow-students, and that was his coolness or sang froid in any danger or difficulty, which had earned for him the sobriquet of "Old Harry."

The letter which we have seen had been received from him was from America, where he had been sojourning for the last year, and his intimation of returning home indicated to his cousin, with whom he regularly corresponded, that he was coming to claim her and settle down on his own estate. Although this was not expressed in the letter in so many words, yet it was understood, and the Rector, when he retired to his study, could not help feeling a slight pang at the prospect of soon losing his darling. The only objection he had to the match was now overcome, for, when Harry had asked her hand of him, the father pleaded her youth, she then being under twenty, but he promised that if they were both of the same mind after two years' separation he would give his unqualified consent; that period was now at hand, and the father could not but feel a pang of sorrow at the approaching loss of his daughter, whose bright smile and cheering presence had been to him and his house a ray of sunshine since his wife's untimely death.

When Mrs. Warburton wrote accepting the invitation to Grassvale Rectory she little knew at the time that her son purposed being there too, for her letter had been written and dispatched before she received her son's. When she read her son's letter she knew well what his coming home meant, and looked forward to his marriage with every satisfaction and pleasing anticipation; for she loved Grace as her own daughter, and felt that pride in her and her son which only mothers can feel in the happiness of their children. About a week before Christmas, a few days earlier than she intended at first, she went down to the Rectory, so that she might be present when her son arrived and assist in giving him a welcome home. We will not tire our readers with the conversations between Grace and her aunt in anticipation of the long-looked-for event; to them the one engrossing topic was—Harry. It was no matter what commenced the conversation, or how foreign any stranger might think the subject was to what it led to—the weather, the washing, the doctor, the dinner, the decorations, the poultry, the pigs—in fact, whatever they began to talk about ended always in the inevitable—Harry. They wondered if he had changed much in appearance during the three-and-twenty months he had been away, wondered what he was doing at that moment, wondered how many more miles he had to travel, wondered at what hour he would arrive, and if they would actually expect him when he did come, or be taken by surprise at last—in fact, they wondered a good many things which could not be satisfactorily answered or settled until the arrival of the expected one. They had counted the days, but now they summed up the hours, the hours flew by, and they were fain to allow a day or two longer for the arrival of the ship with its long-looked-for freight—that freight being composed, to them, of one individual only—Harry.

In answer to their frequent inquiries and numerous surmises at Harry's non-arrival, Mr. Richmond told them to have patience, for it was nothing unusual at this season of the year for a vessel to be several days overdue, owing to adverse winds and dense fogs which generally prevailed, which answer, while it silenced them for a time, did not altogether satisfy them, for their wonderings and questionings recurred at more frequent intervals as time sped on.

CHAPTER THE SECOND.

"O, I have passed a miserable night!

O Lord, methought what pain it was to drown!
What dreadful noise of water in mine ears!
What sights of ugly death within mine eyes!
Methought I saw a thousand fearful wracks—
A thousand men that fishes gnawed upon."

Shakespeare—"King Richard III."

THE year was fast wearing away, and now it wanted but three days till the great Christian festival came round. The scene is the same as the former one—the breakfast-table at the rectory, but the company is increased by one, viz., Mrs. Warburton, the rector's sister, and they were discussing, as usual, the expected arrival of Harry.

"I wonder if he'll be here to-day; I declare I'm getting quite anxious about him," said Mrs. Warburton.

"Master Harry will have to look sharp now," said the rector, "or else he will let Christmas get here before him."

"We counted upon his being here several days ago, so he can't be very long now, can he, aunt?" somewhat illogically reasoned the niece addressing her aunt; then seeing the rural letter-carrier pass the window she exclaimed, "Oh, here's the post; perhaps he brings us news!" and rushing from the room, she had opened the front-door before the postman could ring. Returning almost immediately she said, as she ran her eye over the addresses on the covers in her hand to see if she could detect the fond familiar handwriting. "What a lot of letters there are this morning, papa," and then, in a tone of disappointment, "but they're all for you!"

"Are they, indeed, my dear," remarked he, glancing at the correspondence she placed before him; "and to judge from the appearance of most of them, I think they will prove, on opening, to be begging letters or circulars from cheap wine merchants. But would you not like to see the papers?" added he, and suiting the action to the word he tossed over a number of newspapers and magazines towards the ladies, who, selecting what they fancied most, opened, and began to read in silence, seeing the rector was busily engaged in opening and perusing his correspondence. Suddenly both father and daughter were startled by a piercing scream from the older lady, followed by the words, "My child! my child!" Before they could collect their thoughts or run to her assistance she had fainted away. Placing her upon a couch, they endeavoured to restore her to consciousness, but without success. The clergyman, therefore, despatched a messenger for the doctor, and while continuing his efforts to restore his sister, he wondered in his own mind what could have caused the sudden fit. Associating the exclamation she had made with a newspaper she had dropped by the side of her chair, he picked it up, and, glancing rapidly over the summary of news, read the following:—

"The steamship Cumberland, from New York to Liverpool, some days overdue, is reported wrecked off Cornwall."

Running his eyes over the columns as an experienced newspaper reader generally does, he soon lighted upon the announcement, in large type, under the head "latest news," of "The foundering of the Cumberland off the coast of Cornwall; loss of crew and passengers." Grace was too much concerned about her father to observe her father, who, subduing his agitation as much as he could, leant upon the table to steady himself while he read the following particulars:

"We regret to announce that we have received the following telegrams from our correspondent in Cornwall with the news of the foundering of a large vessel which, there is too much reason to fear, is the missing Cumberland:—Last night, about eleven o'clock, the coastguard brought word to the life-boat station that repeated firing had been heard out at sea as if from a vessel in distress. The crew of the life-boat lost no time in proceeding in the direction indicated, but owing to the very heavy sea and dense fog were unable to fall in with her, and, after rowing about all night, returned this morning without any tidings of the ill-fated vessel, for there can hardly be any doubt as to its fate on such a coast and in such a night." Then followed a long description of the vessel; her age, tonnage, and capabilities, with other particulars furnished by the owners, and then in another column, just squeezed in at the top as the paper was going to press, was the following:—

"LOSS OF THE CUMBERLAND.

LATEST PARTICULARS.

BODIES WASHED ASHORE.

"Word has been brought to the coastguard station by a messenger from Bleakpoint that bodies have been washed ashore there, along with a number of broken pieces of timber and spars. He brought with him a broken piece of board, on which was painted 'ERLAND,' evidently a portion of one of the ship's boats, and there can scarcely be any doubt that it belonged to the Cumberland, from New York to Liverpool, now overdue. The bodies have been taken to the church to await identification and inquest." On perusing the above, Mr. Richmond quietly folded the paper, and, without a word to his daughter, for he could not trust himself to speak, or even look at her, he went straight to his study, where, falling upon his knees, he gave vent to his pent-up feelings, and poured forth his sorrow at the feet of the Great Consoler. We will leave him in his solitude and sorrow.

Grace found she had her hands full that day in attending to her aunt and obeying the doctor's instructions. He had considerably told her to pay no attention to her ravings, for over anxiety for her son, added to the delicate state of health she had been in for a considerable time past, had evidently affected her mind. This to some extent allayed the fears which had arisen in her mind in consequence of her aunt's sudden illness, and the extraordinary remarks she made. The poor lady, when she regained consciousness, alternately laughed and cried, and talked of going to see her dear boy, whom she wouldn't let them drown; she would alternately caress her niece, and ask her not to leave her, and then scold her for not going to save her son from the cruel waves. Under the influence of a composing draught which the doctor had administered she at last fell asleep, and the doctor insisted upon Grace going at once to her own room and taking a little rest, as she was harassed and agitated, and would be unfit, he said, to wait upon her aunt if she did not have sufficient rest and repose. Her father, too, added his persuasions to those of the kind physician, and alluded very tenderly to his sister's illness, and her over anxiety about her son, reminding his daughter that we were all in the Lord's hands, whose very word the winds and the storms obeyed, and that nothing could occur but at His pleasure. From this she had obtained some crumbs of comfort, for the bare thought of the loss of her lover, which was suggested to her by her aunt's ravings, added to her own fears for his safety on account of his non-arrival, made her wretched and miserable, and when she retired to rest she could not sleep for hours, as the idea of drowning was ever present in her mind. When at last she did fall asleep, her slumber was far from refreshing, as she dreamt of wrecks and drowning men, and again and again she thought she saw her Harry struggling for life with the cruel waves. Next morning she was so weak with prostration of mind and body that the doctor positively forbade her rising; he would see that her aunt was properly attended to, so she was not to be anxious on that score. Going to her father, he informed him of his daughter's state, and cautioned him not to say a syllable about the loss of the vessel, and to warn the servants not to allude to it.

"Do you consider Grace in a serious state of health?" asked the anxious father.

"Well, I would not exactly pronounce her health to be serious, but she is in such a low nervous state, that if she were to hear of this untoward news, it might affect her very seriously."

"I am very sorry to hear you say so," said Mr. Richmond, "but for the present you have relieved my mind; and my sister, you think she is progressing as favourably as can be expected?"

"Decidedly, for she unfortunately read the news, and we can scarcely expect her to recover from the stroke very rapidly; she is, however, calmer this morning, but still very agitated. It is a providence that Grace is unable to attend her; her continual allusions to her son would throw the girl into a fever."

"There is not much more to be gleaned from the papers this morning; there are suggestions that the vessel may not be the Cumberland after all, but some other ship—the Northumberland, for instance, or some vessel from Sunderland, the fragments of the name applying equally to the one as the other."

"Quite right, quite right; the news is by no means certain, and before your daughter is in a fit state to hear the news, there will be some more authentic information. I myself believe it is some other vessel than that Harry was aboard."

"You are more sanguine than I am; perhaps the nature of your profession leads you to be so, as faith and hope tend greatly towards the curative power. You wish your patients to have faith in you, and you naturally inspire them with hope; these virtues, along with the exhibitions of the proper remedies, complete the cure."

"Yes, with God's blessing," added the doctor. "Certainly," said the clergyman, "I meant that to be understood. Well, I trust your surmises may be correct, and that this vessel, which has undoubtedly gone down, is not the Cumberland."

"I fervently hope so, but without doubt some vessel has been wrecked, some lives lost, and doubtless many a home made desolate by the catastrophe. Poor souls! what a reception to meet with on their return to their native shores after, perhaps, a prolonged absence! A Cimmerian night, a driving gale, an angry sea, a treacherous coast, a watery grave!"

"Ah! poor souls, indeed, at such times it requires a firm faith in Him to believe that these calamities are for our good, and that these chastisements may be blessings in disguise. We cannot judge Him from our own standpoint, for we know 'His ways are not our ways,' and 'none shall say unto Him what doest Thou?' or, as Cowper has beautifully expressed it,

* Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust Him for His grace;
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face."

Then, after a pause, during which he seemed to be struggling with his feelings, he added, "poor Harry! poor Harry! But not my will, O Lord, but Thine be done."

"Ah, poor lad!" said the doctor; "I always liked Harry, he was so free, so generous, and so brave. I hope he has not met his fate; our sympathies, however, must be with the living."

"True," replied the doctor, "and my heart bleeds for my sister and my daughter."

"I can well believe that, but you must bear up in presence of the ladies; and, remember, on no account must you let your daughter know, either directly or indirectly, of the loss of this vessel and the supposed death of Harry till I give you leave to tell her. As for the mother, you may comfort her in any manner you please, but avoid the subject as much as possible."

"I place myself in your hands entirely, my dear doctor, and will be guided by you in the matter."

"Well, I advise perfect rest for both patients. In the meantime I would also caution Mrs. Warburton's maid and your daughter's attendant not to broach the subject. The news has spread all over the parish, and the gossips are full of it. I was questioned a dozen times about it this morning on my ride over here, and any injudicious tattle reaching my two patients upstairs might seriously endanger their lives. So much for the treatment of the ladies; now for yourself. You look ten years older within the last two days; this won't do. You must not brood so much over this business, my dear fellow, but set about some active work; go, dig your garden, it will be rather hard with the frost, by the way; or, better still, go down to the church and assist them there with the decorations; help weave the garlands, strip the holly, or something or other, and don't leave all the work to be done by your curate and half a dozen ladies; the change and occupation will do you much good."

"Thank you for your advice; I'll follow it."
"That's right. I'll look in again this evening to see how you are all getting on." According to promise he called the same evening, and found his patients certainly no worse, and the rector much more cheerful.

Next morning there was a decided improvement in Grace, thanks to the doctor's care and skill. She had had a good night's rest, and although she still felt a considerable amount of languor and lassitude, she was, on the whole, so much better that the doctor advised her to endeavour to get up during the day. "This is Christmas Eve, you know," said he, "and it would be very cheerless for your father to dine alone; he might begin to take melancholy fancies into his head, like some other fellow I know, and that would be a pretty business on Christmas Eve, wouldn't it, my dear? Take my advice, and go down to dinner; your presence will cheer him, and you yourself will be all the better of his company."

Grace, like a loving daughter and dutiful patient, followed the worthy doctor's advice, as will be seen if the reader will kindly turn to the next chapter.

CHAPTER THE THIRD.

"With such compelling cause to grieve
As daily vexes household peace,
And chains regret to his decease,
How dear we keep our Christmas Eve!"

* * * * *
"Rise, happy morn; rise, holy morn;
Draw forth the cheerful day from night;
O Father, touch the East and light:
The light that shone when Hope was born."
Tennyson—"In Memoriam."

In the course of the afternoon Grace rose and went downstairs, and, to the delight of the household, so far resumed her domestic duties as to give sundry orders and make certain arrangements connected with the economy of the establishment which had always come under her own immediate superintendence. By the advice of the doctor she was not allowed to wait upon her aunt; and her father entertained her during the afternoon by reading selections to her from some of his favourite authors. They dined earlier than usual, as the rector had to go to the church that evening to superintend the finishing of the decorations, and afterwards attend the practising of the new anthem by the choir; and before going he partook of a cup of tea in company with his daughter. As they were sitting, enjoying the social meal by the cheerful light of the fire, quietly conversing, they were startled by the sudden sound of wheels upon the frozen gravel in front of the house, and almost before either could exclaim, "Who can that be?" which they did simultaneously, there was a violent ring at the door bell; and Grace, her heart bounding with hope, rushed to the window, and, looking out, for the blinds had not been drawn, caught a glimpse of a figure entering the porch. The outer door opening at the same moment the light of the lamp in the hall shown upon the individual, and revealed him distinctly to the young lady, who rushed to her father, exclaiming, "Oh papa! papa! it is he! It is Harry!"

"I would to God it were, my child; but no, it cannot be. You mistake, or the darkness deceives you."

"No, indeed; there is no mistake—but why do you tremble so?"

"I—I cannot tell, a sudden faintness; hush, here comes some one."

The door opening at the same moment a young man rushed unceremoniously into the room, and caught the young lady out of the arms of her father, murmuring, "Grace! Grace! my own!" as he warmly embraced her.

"Oh Harry! Harry!" was all she could say as she leant her head upon his shoulder, and sobbed in the fullness of her joy.

"Harry! Bless my heart! exclaimed the rector, when he had recovered from the first shock of surprise and found the use of his tongue.

"I beg your pardon, sir; I scarcely observed you," apologised the young man.

"But tell me Harry, how did you escape? Was the Cumberland not lost after all?"

"Lost! ah, yes! But did you not receive my telegram?"

"Telegram? No, there has been no telegram."

"Why, you ought to have had it several hours ago. As soon as we reached the port and heard of the loss of the Cumberland I telegraphed at once to my mother in London, and to you, knowing what a state you would be in, supposing me to have been on board."

"Well, I assure you we have never received the message."

While he was speaking there was a knock at the door of the apartment, which the rector answered, and was handed a paper by the servant, who told him that the messenger waited in the kitchen. Going up to the fireplace he caused the coals to blaze brightly so that he was able to read the following:—

From H. Warburton, Liverpool.		To Rev. R. Richmond, Grasdale Rectory, Appleton, Cidershire.
Arrived	to-day	safe	and	well
Just	heard	of	wreck	of Cumberland	fear	you	have	given me	up	for	lost	will follow	by	first	train	and be	with	you	this	evening

"My telegram, by Jove!" said Harry. "Well, upon my word, that's the latest idea out; a fellow bringing his own telegraphic despatches! I picked up a poor fellow tramping slowly along the road, about a mile and a half from here, and gave him a lift in the dog-cart I hired at Appleton. I asked him if he had far to go, and he answered 'To the Rectory,' so I've no doubt he and the messenger waiting below are one and the same."

"Was the Cumberland lost, then?" asked Grace, tremblingly.

"It was, my dear!" answered her cousin; "not a soul escaped; at least, it is believed that the whole of the crew and passengers were drowned, none having turned up as yet."

While he was speaking he felt the little form of Grace trembling violently, and, but for his supporting arm, she would have fallen, having swooned on hearing of the narrow escape of her lover. "Water, quick!" he cried, placing her gently on the couch; "she has fainted with excitement!" And the rector bringing it immediately from the sideboard, they bathed her temples, and soon had the satisfaction of seeing her restored to consciousness. When she fully comprehended her situation, and felt her Harry's arm about her, and heard his cheery voice address her in sympathetic tones, she fell on his neck and relieved her heart, which had been for many days past over charged with anxiety, in refreshing tears.

Mr. Richmond, thinking it better to leave them alone, stole quietly out of the room, and, bethinking himself of his sister, whom they had entirely forgotten in the excitement of the moment, betook him to her apartment to communicate to her the joyful tidings. He found her, though much prostrated by grief and anxiety, comparatively tranquil. Speaking to her cheerily, he said he hoped she would soon be well again, and expressed a belief that she would find herself able to dine with them on the morrow—Christmas Day. At this the lady sadly shook her head, and, as if to change the subject, asked how her niece was.

"Much better—in fact, I may say quite well again," answered Mr. Richmond, watching the effect of his words upon his sister, as he added deliberately, "I left her downstairs with a friend, much happier than she has been for some time."

"A friend with her, and happier! Surely she cannot be so heartless as to receive visitors as such a time!"

"Well, I would not say she was heartless; her reception of him proved the contrary, I think."

"Him! Oh, I understand; you allude to the doctor."

"No, no, not to Dr. Goodman; but to one who will do her more good than the whole medical faculty put together. In fact, a visit from him would do you a great deal of good, too, I'm certain."

"You talk in enigmas, Reginald; I really cannot understand you. You know there was but one the sight of whom would have done me good; but he is—he is." She would have said "He is dead!" but her tongue refused to utter the word, for her grief broke out fresh and prevented her utterance. Her brother then seized the opportunity of saying, "Nay, Margaret, do not give way so; you only imagine that he is dead, you have no proof that he was drowned. You saw the report of the wreck of a vessel, on board of which you believed Harry to be; is it not possible that he might have been saved; try and think so if you can."

"No! no! no! I cannot! I know, Reginald, you ask me to believe this out of kindness."

"Well, suppose he never was on board the ill-fated vessel; suppose he has arrived safely in England; and suppose, if you can, that you will see him very soon."

"Do not torture me; you mean it in kindness, I know, but it is cruel to ask me to suppose anything of the kind. I wish, indeed—I wish I could—but I cannot! There can be no hope! oh, my poor, poor boy! and here the mother's grief broke out afresh."

"Well, Mag, Grace can believe that it is all possible; I will send her to you, and perhaps she will be able to inspire you with some of her faith, hope, and happiness," saying which he left the room and unceremoniously disturbed the lovers in a delightful tete a tete by sending Grace at once to her aunt, cautioning her not to tell her of Harry's arrival too suddenly. He had some difficulty in restraining the young man from accompanying her to prove by his presence that he was perfectly safe. Grace had informed her cousin that his mother was not in London but with them, and at that moment was suffering from overanxiety on his account; and she had begged him not to see her till Mr. Richmond should think her fit to stand the interview. Harry therefore curbed his impatience until he should be summoned into his mother's presence.

When Grace entered her aunt's room she flung herself into her relative's arms, and then in tears gave vent to her overwrought feelings. The elder lady, thinking that her agitation proceeded from grief, endeavoured to soothe her. But Grace told her that she was perfectly happy, that they all would soon see Harry, as he had promised to dine with them on Christmas Day.

"My child, my child! calm yourself; I know poor Harry was to dine with us on Christmas Day, as he purposed, but God has ordered otherwise; we shall never see him more."

"Yes, indeed, we will aunty, I know we will see him, and he will dine with us to-morrow; he is not dead, I know he is not."

"My poor child, has the shock been too great for you and unhinged your reason?"

"No, dear aunt, my reason, if affected, is not by grief, but by joy."

"Oh, poor, poor girl!" said the aunt, stroking the young lady's hair in evident sympathy at her mental aberration.

"But, aunty dear, I tell you I know he is safe; I know he has arrived in England and that he will dine with us to-morrow—see! here is a telegram from him."

The mother snatched at the document, as a drowning person is said to snatch at a straw, and almost devoured it with her eyes. Eagerly she read the few words that were written there, and over and over again she read them until at last she comprehended their import, then, clasping her hands together, she exclaimed with intense fervour, "My God, I thank Thee!" and buried her face in the pillow. Grace then quietly left the room, and allowing a short interval to elapse, returned with Harry. Knocking gently at the door, they were bade "Come in," but Grace remained outside while Harry entered alone. As she retired she heard a cry of "Mother!" and a gladsome exclamation of "My child!" But, as she wisely considered the meeting too sacred even for her presence, we will follow her example and not disturb its sanctity.

Christmas morning dawned bright and frosty. Through the night there had been the smallest possible fall of snow, just sufficient to freshen up the face of nature and make it look Christmas-like. Grace, looking as bright and as happy as the morning, was down early, and declared her intention of going to church, to which the doctor did not object as he found her, when he called that morning, as well as she had ever been in her life. He had been apprised by the Rector of the sudden turning up of Harry the evening before, for the worthy clergyman could not keep the joyful news to himself, but called upon his friend and physician with the good news when he went to the choir practice. The doctor, in his gladness, could not keep it to himself either, but went to the sexton, and giving him a sum of money told him to pay the bellringers for an extra half-hour's pealing after they had rung in Christmas; he also sent his servant with an abundance of refreshments for the men from his own cellar, so that they might not lack the means of making merry on the occasion.

Grace and Harry walked down to the church alone that morning—to the end of their lives they will never forget that walk—the hedge-rows were sparkling with rime and the tiny crystals of frozen snow were sparkling and scintillating in every direction, making the earth beautiful with their brilliancy; but whether it was the glittering of the frosty gems, the exhilarating effect of the air, their own supreme happiness, the happy holy feeling Christmas morning always brings to rightly constituted minds, or a combination of all these, it is not for us to say, but that Christmas morning's walk to church was indelibly impressed upon their minds, and come summer or winter, heat or cold, fair weather or foul, it will never be effaced.

The service was, of course, admirably suited to the frame of mind of our friends, and in his sermon the Rector, who was unusually eloquent that day, omitted not to enjoin upon them the practice of that heavenly virtue charity, with which they were to temper their reasonable thankfulness and mirth.

When Harry and Grace left the church they found most of the congregation waiting to say a word of greeting and congratulation, and not the least sincere in their welcome and good wishes were a number of the poorer parishioners, amongst whom Grace had been wont to minister, who pressed forward to shake hands with the cousins, wish them a merry Christmas and "God bless 'em." A kind word of recognition or enquiry as to the state of their bodily health, with a shake of the hand, sent many a poor old soul home brimful of happiness.

The dinner at the Rectory was quite a family affair; the only exception being Dr. Goodman, who, being a bachelor and a very old friend, was invited as he had been for many years to partake of their Christmas fare. Mrs. Warburton, although unable to go to church, was sufficiently recovered to come down to dinner, and the Doctor expressed his opinion that now she would get stronger every day and would require no more of his services. Dinner over, the conversation which had been fitful and desultory, naturally turned upon the great event of Harry's return.

"You have never yet clearly explained to me how it happened that you did not sail in the Cumberland after you had taken your passage in it," said the Doctor, addressing the lion of the day.

"Oh, it was simply this way. I happened to be taking an evening walk along the quayside thinking that on the morrow evening I would be far out to sea, when suddenly I heard a scream and a splash as if someone had fallen into the water. Slipping off my coat and boots I jumped in as near as I could to the spot the sounds seemed to come from, and perceiving someone struggling in the water I swam to the place and got hold of a child who had accidentally fallen off the quay and was being carried out by the current. Several boats put off to our assistance; the child was placed in one in which were its frantic friends, and I was hauled into another and soon got pretty stiff with the frost. There was a considerable crowd gathered by the time we landed, and I had scarcely got on shore than I was claimed by one individual whom I had never seen before. 'It's all-right, lads,' he said, 'the stranger's a friend of mine, and I guess you'd better leave me to take care of him. Here's your coat, brother, slip into it; I'll carry your boots; now sharp's the word,' saying which he took my arm and ran me as fast as possible to a house at no great distance off, opened the door with a latch key, hurried me up to a bedroom, and without giving me time to speak or protest, stripped me and dexterously rubbed me all over with coarse towels until from feeling half frozen I glowed with pleasant warmth. 'Now then,' said he, stripping the bed with the greatest celerity, 'jump in between the blankets and I'll fix you allright in a minute.' After covering me up he left the room, and in a few minutes returned with a huge goblet containing what he called 'a slap-up cocktail and no mistake,' which he insisted on my drinking. I was like a child in his hands and felt I must obey him in everything, so I swallowed the draught and remember nothing more till I awoke. It was sometime before I could recall my scattered ideas, but about the first thing I recollected was that I was to have sailed that day in the Cumberland. Jumping out of bed I seized my watch, which was lying on the dressing table, looked at it, but it was either run down or stopped by the water; my clothes I found nicely dried and folded, so performing a hasty toilette I rang the bell and asked what time it was of the attendant. 'It is past three o'clock sir, but I will get you a cup of coffee or anything else you would like sir; the doctoor is out just now, sir, but will be home to dine at six.'

"But I can't wait for the doctor or anyone else. I must—"

"All-right sir, I know sir, must be hungry. I'll fix you up a chop in no time, sir."

"It is not my eating I am telling of, but I must catch the steamer for England; she was to sail at noon, and I have already taken my passage in her."

"Then I guess you'll not sail in her, as she would slip when the tide served."

"This was what I feared; however, there might be a chance of her being detained an hour or two, and taking rather an unceremonious leave, I told the attendant I would write to the Doctor and thank him. In my hurry it did not occur to me that I did not even know the Doctor's name, and slipping a sovereign into the attendant's hand, I rushed down to the docks only to find the vessel gone some two hours before. Feeling considerable annoyance and chagrin I wended my way back to the house, which was not difficult to find, and noticed the name upon the door-plate, Dr. Washington J. Brown. The servant, upon my ringing the bell, saluted me with 'Ah! I guessed you'd be too late, them liners are pooty punctual; but there's no time lost sir, I've got yer lunch or yer breakfast ready to bring up; I got it ready so as not to keep you waitin'. Step into the dining-room and I'll have it up in no time.' I need scarcely tell you that I did ample justice to the meal, which I had scarcely finished when the Doctor returned. 'Well, how are we do to-day? none the worse of our bath I reckon,' said he, giving me a peculiar grasp of the hand, and then added in an undertone, as if to himself, 'Ah! not as I thought;' then he said aloud, 'well—yes—pulse good.' I of course thanked him heartily for his kindness, and explained who I was and my situation. His comment, as he helped himself to an enormous cheroot and pushed the box across to me, was this—'Sorry you missed the boat, but guess you'll get another to take you home before Christmas.' Then as he passed a light he looked askance at me, and at last gave vent to the following extraordinary remark, after emitting a double column of smoke from his nostrils, 'I guess stranger you've took me in consid'able; you're not what I took you for. How ever did you come to do it, and so natural too?'

"I really do not understand you," I said; 'I really don't know who or what you took me for, you gave me no time to explain—'

"That's allright as far as that goes; I'm glad I was able to do you a good turn, although it ain't much, only you might ha' got friz if I hadn't a run off with yer; but what puzzles me is how you came to give the sign of distress as neatly as if you were in a lodge, and you no Mason!"

"Sign of distress! I gave no sign of distress that I know of."

"Oh, but you did, and that brought me to your side quicker'n anything. You weren't in a fit state to examine last night, but I find out now you're not a brother. I guess I'm sold."

"I really am very sorry," I said.

"Well, if you are, say no more about it; but take the first opportunity of putting things right by becoming a Freemason, and when you get far enough advanced to know the sign of distress you'll know how I made the mistake last night.' I promised to think over it and to write to him should I ever become a Mason. I spent a day or two very pleasantly with my new friend, and another vessel sailing that same week, I took passage in her. The Doctor saw me off, and his last words were, 'Don't write till you sign yourself, Yours fraternally.'"

"My advice too," said Dr. Goodman, when Harry had concluded, "I'm an old P.M., and as I can vouch for you, I'll get you duly proposed whenever you make up your mind." It is almost needless to add that Harry and the American doctor regularly correspond, and that Harry distinctly remembers how he gave the sign of distress.

Harry's narrative was given with a quiet modesty that greatly charmed his hearers. He made the incident of saving the life of the child a subordinate feature, dwelling principally upon the peculiarities of the American doctor and his faithful servant; but had it not been for his gallantry and courage in saving the life of a fellow-creature, he himself would have perished in the luckless vessel in which he had arranged to sail.

Before concluding this little narrative, there is one circumstance we must mention. It is not the marriage of our friends, Grace and Harry, dear lady readers, that of course, took place in due time amidst great rejoicing, but we think our story would be incomplete if we omitted to narrate that Harry, in his happiness, did not forget those who were less happy, and, in thankfulness for his very providential escape, sought out and privately succoured, before he had been many weeks in England, some of the most destitute families whose only support and stay had perished in "The Wreck of the Cumberland."

Hannah.

THE Hannah of many long, long years ago comes before me as I write out this story to-day for my good friend George Kenning and the Christmas Freemason. Her portrait at sixteen is most charming to contemplate, and that striking face, with its inexpressible and unextinguishable grace, is almost speaking in the reality and power of its vivid contour. I think I see her even now; I fancy that I can hear her speak in her melodious voice of old, and the ancient witchery supervenes, and I feel as I once felt, and as many others like myself felt, humble captives in her golden chains. Look on that picture with me for a moment; you see at once what character there is in that vision of grace and youth and freshness, in that very "Beauté du Diable," of which Mons. le Baron likes to talk. And as there is a little history attached to that pleasant portrait, which appears to lighten up the dim and dusty surroundings of an old bachelor's den, I will try and tell it to you, kind readers, now, as it is both a suitable and reasonable tale for the Christmas number of the Freemason, to which I wish all prosperity, as a dignified and genial representative of true Freemasonry, both in its national and cosmopolitan character.

Will it surprise you to hear that Hannah was never married? Why not? you will ask. Pray listen; rather kind patrons read on; if you are sentimental, get your pocket-handkerchiefs ready; if you are not, well, then never mind; don't do anything of the kind, that is all!

Hannah More was the only daughter of a very worthy squire, Thomas More, and his good wife Mary More, born at Harden, who lived in an old house called Shenley Grange, in a certain good county nameless for the nonce. It was a curious old-fashioned Manor House, with its moat and its clift hedges, and its peacocks and its peahens, and its black oak and its tapestry, and its old hall and its broad staircase. It was a pleasant place of old, for relatives and friends and visitors, and its stately rafters have often echoed back the words of gaiety and the tones of love, and all those many-voiced utterances of joy and sorrow, grief and glee, love and hate, which make up the common tenour of our earthly and domestic life.

Shenley Grange was, indeed, to many a sojourner like myself, a harbour of refuge and a very pleasant loitering place; for, in addition to the warm welcome always of the kindly old folk, Hannah was a special attraction to many, and I'm not wrong in adding the most genuine friend to all. She herself was an heiress in a double capacity, in that she had inherited a considerable amount of both landed and personal estate from her old aunt and godmother, Miss Hannah Harden, whose homely name she bore; and then she was the Squire's only daughter, and would take, as the lawyers say, as the "next tenant in tail," the whole of her good father's broad acres. Failing her, however, the estate descended to the heir male of her father, the son of her first cousin. For her uncle, Jasper More, had predeceased her father, and his only son had also passed away, leaving a little boy and a widow to lament his early loss.

But in those days we little thought of such things. Hannah was with us, Hannah was amongst us, Hannah was active, blooming, graceful, trusting, tender; and the only question that interested us then was who should win the warm heart and claim that "fascinating party" (as our young men say), as his own, and only as his own. Ah! vain often are the hopes of youth, idle its painted "chateaux en Espagne," its happy bubbles, and its golden dreams. We seek, but we find not; we ask, but we have not; anticipations are seldom realised, and even fruition, when it does come, if ever it does come, hardly ever rewards the longings and the fears, the struggles, the weariness of years.

Among the many visitors who used to "make sunshine" in the rooms and gardens of the Grange was the son of a neighbour of the Mores, Charles Chelsey. He came from an old family fallen in worldly condition, and his father, an old soldier, had had much to contend with in respect of a large family and a small income. All that was left of the once large possessions of the Chelsey's was a small cottage, or rather manor farm, called Chelsey Lodge, in which the old colonel, with his half-pay, his wife's modest income, and the interest of a small sum in the Funds, had weathered the storms of life since the days of his old campaigning were over.

He was a kind and cheerful old man, who farmed a little, rode a little, and idled a little, and was fond of his rubber of whist, his pipe, and his glass of port wine. And thus, with an amiable family and small means, he had solaced himself amid the freaks of fortune in a position of worldly wealth, humbler far than those of many of the male and female Chelseys whose portraits still adorned the pannelled walls of the unpretending manor farm. Much of the old Chelsea land had been purchased by the Mores, though Chelsea Court itself had long since disappeared from the face of the earth and from the memory of man. One never knows here, and one never shall know, what is the secret of personal sympathy or individual interest, the "raison d'être" of those undying links of attachment which bind us closely to one another here. Why was it, for instance, that Hannah, with all her charms and prospects, should "take up" so distinctly and decidedly with Charles Chelsey, a lieutenant in a marching regiment? It seemed odd that when many a good match was to be found by that fair but wayward maiden, she should unequivocally avow her predilection for a young man who had nothing but his good looks and his good sense to recommend him.

However, so it was, and I, who tell this story, like many more, could only admit that, though Hannah was always kind and pleasant to us all, she was still more pleasant, and still more kind, when that gay "sub" was singing duets, or playing croquet, or even riding an old hunter of his father's at her side, with a pluck and a courage which were the theme of much honest admiration. For, curiously enough, in those days, though we were all rivals, we were all friends. Whether it was Hannah's simple grace or loyal truth which swayed us all alike I know not, but even the admitted favoritism of that self-willed young woman for that good-looking young representative of the British army was looked upon by us all, if a fact, simply as a fact, and after all only the "Fortune de la Guerre."

What Hannah's parents really thought of her choice I never heard, but at any rate they never interfered, and Lieutenant Chelsey came and went, and went and came, always welcome, ever smiling, the gayest of the gay, the happiest of the happy. But sunshine and blue skies do not always last for ever here, as we all of us well know, and the placid sea, still as a "millpond," may, ere long, be lashed by "half a gale" into stormy billows.

All of a sudden, as we remember, the Crimean war broke out in 1854, and Lieutenant Chelsey's regiment, one of the finest regiments of our fine army, went away for Varna. Poor Hannah! I remember well that change, so marked, that at once came over that sweet face and that happy grace. Hannah became even more touching and interesting than before in her stillness, her sadness, her anxiety. For she did not affect to conceal how much she felt the separation, how much she feared for what might be.

Well, Alma was won, and Lieutenant Chelsey was Captain by brevet, and good news came by each mail, and Hannah's radiant face after one of those long and loving letters was a thing to see, to realise, and to remember. Then came Inkerman and Balaklava, and sorties and skirmishes, and still all was well, happily for poor Hannah. I shall never forget when the news arrived of the attack on the Redan, and the failure, and the long list of killed and wounded. One of the first names that I saw was that of Captain Chelsey. Who told Hannah the dreadful news, or how she became acquainted with the fact, I never heard. Indeed, we were all afraid to call at Shenley Grange for some time, knowing well that there are some heart-wounds which time itself can never heal here. And then, all of a sudden, we heard that the Mores had gone to the South of France, thence to Italy and Algiers and Malaga and the Isle of Wight. And after a long, long time two old people came back alone, in deepest mourning, to Shenley Grange, to die one after another, and to be buried in the old More mausoleum, but she they loved so much, and who was so bound up with their innermost life, is lying, not in her own land amid the resting place of her fathers, but in a peaceful grave which she chose for herself at the east end of a little country church, so that the early gleams of the golden sun light up the grassy mound which covers her! Captain Chelsey's soldier's grave can still be seen in the "Vale of Gloom."

Thus are we all scattered in life and in death, and, as Mrs. Hemans sang so well of old, in her "Graves of a Household," some are here at home, some are far away in foreign lands, some are buried in the deep ocean beds, some are lying on the bloody battle plain, and never shall they again meet face to face until we all, at last, stand before "The Great White Throne." And this is why I cherish that tender portrait of the olden past; this is why I tell this humble story in the kindly pages of the Christmas Freemason. Surely, in these unquiet and dissatisfied days, when all society seems "out of joint;" when, as some one has perversely said, "all love is mercenary," and "married life itself a burden and a snare," it is good for us all to realise and ponder over this old, old story of man's honest love and woman's unbought constancy, and so feel deeply how, despite the glare and glamour of the world, its tinsel and its trappings, its fripperies and its follies, all that constitutes the best happiness of human life is to be found in that fond and faithful affection of us, poor mortals as we are, which, lasting through life and ending alone in death, outlives the separations of earth and the darkness of the grave, and shall yet bloom and bare precious fruit in another and a deathless scene.

Have I written with a too serious pen? If so, kind readers, forgive the writer, remembering the words of the Poet—

"Life is real, life is earnest
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul."

I venture to hope that some of the many readers of Brother Kenning's number of the Christmas Freemason may still be touched and edified by the story of Hannah More.

I may add that Shenley Grange has passed into the hands of the widow and the boy. But a deep melancholy seems to have settled "on the spot;" at least, I thought so when I wandered, a short time back, amid scenes and rooms once so familiar, and could all but re-people the old manor house with the bright faces and the loved voices of a sadly vanished part.

The Kiss of Death.

By EMMA HOLMES.

THE great earl stood in his place of power,
And told the tale—how a Princess died;
Whilst many a silent tear was shed,
And many a haughty noble sighed.

For she was dear to the English heart
Who tended her father's dying hours;
Always ready to take her part,
And always welcome as fragrant flowers.

As the gentle nurse, we know her well
Who sat by the bed of England's heir,
In all those grave and terrible days,
When he was saved by her loving care.

When England's prayer of might went up
To the King of Heaven to save our Prince,
And the throb of sorrow from every heart
Did our love to the Throne and him evince.

And the prayer was answered, and he was saved
To show the power of the mighty God;
And the Princess Alice we loved so well
Is dead and buried beneath the sod.

We heard the pitiful tale he told
To the peers assembled to hear him speak:
How the weary mother, who nursed her child,
In her warm embrace had kissed his cheek.

In that dreadful passage of fell disease,
"Kiss me, mother!" the child had cried;
Though she had been warned of the danger there,
She kissed her boy, and sickened and died.

She could not resist the pleading voice—
The eloquent glance in the mournful eyes;
So she had given the kiss of death,
And followed her bright one to the skies.

Was ever a story so sad as this,
Of one who could not her love suppress?
The mother was killed by the young lad's kiss,
And died through giving her soft caress.

The mothers of England all mourn her loss,
And Englishmen ever will sing her praise,
For she was gracious and good and sweet;
We loved her all for her winsome ways.

Oh! widowed mother! Oh! gracious Queen!
Who rulest over this empire vast,
Remember in all thy sorrow now,
As in thy joys that are gone and past—

Thy children ever will share with thee,
In joy or sorrow, come weal or woe;
For thou hast won thy people's hearts,
And reverent love to thee we show.

Old Pyramids' Christmas Lux in the Desert.

THE moon and stars were shining with that brilliancy which can only be observed in an Eastern sky. Not a breath of wind stirred the branches of the tall palm trees under which we had halted for the night, our shelter being a deserted mud hut in the midst of a knot of palms. My friend Foster, our engineer, and myself, with two Arab dragomen, comprised our party within, whilst five Arab donkey boys were without.

It was Christmas Eve; and no wonder, after a very frugal meal, as we sat around the wood fire smoking our "tehabouks" and sipping very indifferent coffee, that our thoughts and conversations should revert to our homes and friends in Old England—anecdotes and tales of past times and pleasures spent at this festive season in years gone by. A glass of toddy was brewed and quaffed to the health of the absent ones across the sea; and, at the time when all at home were in the height of their Christmas enjoyments, we wearied travellers were about to court sleep on the floor of our temporary abode.

A long donkey ride across the hot sandy desert had been sufficient to cause a curtailment of our impromptu festivities. Haasan and Ibrahim had already stretched themselves across the doorway, and preparations were soon made for our sleeping accommodation, which consisted of a single rug for each, whereon to wrap our tired limbs.

It was decided to keep watch in turns, and to my lot fell the first part of that duty. The wood fire had burnt low, and as we had no other luminant, the dying embers at intervals threw out ghastly shadows upon a small black travelling-case, in which was deposited a large sum in gold, the proceeds of the sale of several engines and pumps which we had been fixing on the banks of the Nile, some distance up the country. Our revolvers lay ready for immediate use (such precautions being necessary), for, although we were some distance from an Arab village, we were in close proximity to Bedouin encampments, some of which we had passed on our way.

The stillness of the night was at times broken by the screeching of the stork and the barking of wild dogs, while now and again large flights of wild ducks cast a dark shadow upon the sandy plain.

My companions slept soundly, and the dreariness of the situation caused my thoughts to run into some rather unpleasant channels. Momentarily, I conjured up all kinds of horrible scenes. I called to mind having seen one of our donkey boys in conversation with some Bedouins, and recollected hearing one of the latter say "sekeen" (knife), and the boy impressively used the words "keteer felors" (much money). I pictured to myself an agreement made between the boys, who were bivouacing a little distance from the hut, and the wild Arabs, to attack us with a strong hand and murder us for the sake of plunder. The ease with which this could be accomplished in that lonely spot, without the least chance of being traced, and the improbability of the perpetrators being brought to justice, was so apparent that its occurrence seemed in my imagination to become a certainty.

I stepped over the prostrate forms of the two natives into the open plain, disturbing a pack of hungry dogs who had been sniffing around us, and whose howling formed a kind of accompaniment to the wash of the water rolling down the distant Nile.

I visited the lads, who were sleeping soundly beside their wearied donkeys.

The cool night air tempted me to stroll a short distance from the hut, and, in doing so, I put to flight a number of birds of the quail species, startling me with the "whirr" of their wings. Almost immediately afterwards the tall figure of a Bedouin, carrying his gun across his shoulders, appeared striding with measured steps towards me, evidently in search of such game as I had just disturbed. Fearing that I had unintentionally deprived him of his chance of securing his game, thereby have aroused his anger, I took good care to get within earshot of the sleepers before he approached too near. As soon as he had arrived within speaking distance, I accosted him in Arabic, "Missa-alkher" (good night), and, to my agreeable surprise, he answered courteously, "Lelitikum Sideh" (good night to you all).

When, however, he had disappeared I could not help associating his presence with some such arrangement as I had before fancied. Why should he wish good night to all? Did he know that I was not alone? Perhaps he was one of a gang in possession of some knowledge of our treasure, and had been sent on to reconnoitre.

I had by this time worked myself up into an excitable state, when, suddenly, the "tinkle, tinkle, tinkle" of donkey bells smote upon my ear. Surely, thought I, this must be the main body of robbers. Although by no means a coward, I did not care to defend our mud castle single-handed; I therefore felt justified in arousing my companions. Gently shaking Foster's arm, he, in a moment, assumed a sitting posture, and grasped his revolver. The alarm was silently passed to the others, and our dragomen were put on the alert, in order, if possible, to distinguish the class of enemy we should have to contend with.

We listened a few moments, when voices were audible, although we could not ascertain whether they were natives or Europeans; then there was silence for a few moments.

Presently the small aperture in the mud wall, which served as a window, was darkened by a passing figure. In a moment our firearms were directed to that spot, and we were quite ready to receive the next intruder with a volley, when, fortunately, before we had the opportunity afforded us for so doing, we heard, in a somewhat familiar voice, "I'm sure this must be the place;" and another, even more familiar, replied, "I hope they're not gone on further, as I should like the old boy to spend Christmas with us."

It took but a short time to proclaim our presence and to drag the suspected robbers inside our shelter. Fresh wood was piled, and a bright fire revealed to us the welcome faces of three of my best friends, who had ridden over from a village in which they were stationed on learning of our whereabouts from a donkey-boy whom we did not further require, and who was returning homewards through the village instead of the route we had traversed.

After a short rest, and just as day was breaking, our donkey-mounted cavalcade started for the hospitable (though wooden) dwelling of our friends.

As we passed through some Arab villages, we hailed the dwellers with "Christian's Awake," though not one of them could appreciate the glad song, or even understand its meaning. It might have been the feeling that we were so near the land that gave rise to the subject of our song which gave so much earnestness and heartiness to our caroling.

We were minus the holly and mistletoe, nor had we the contents of the proverbial Christmas hamper, but our friends made ample provision for our enjoyment, and, with the aid of various concomitants, we were enabled to drink the old toast, "A merry Christmas and a happy New Year" to all friends at home.

Beauty in the Beast.

FANNY, what odd-looking tower is that, rising above the trees yonder?" I had only just arrived on a visit to my late schoolmate, Fanny Stannard, and was as yet unacquainted with the neighbourhood.

"That? Oh, that is the Beast's Castle," replied Fanny, absorbed in braiding her chestnut-brown hair, while her equally brown eyes gave a mischievous glance between their dark fringes.

"The Beast's Castle! What a strange name!"

"Oh, I don't say that that is the real name of the place. I believe it was properly christened Charnwood; but I call it the Beast's Castle, on account of its owner—a hateful, misanthropic old wretch, who lives there alone, and hunts everybody off his land."

"For shame, Fanny!" remonstrated her mother. "Don't notice what she says, Louise. Mr. Marsden is a most respectable gentleman, though somewhat eccentric. He spends very little time at Charnwood, and, being unsocial, is not popular."

"He's away now, thank goodness," said Fanny. "Somewhere in Germany or Switzerland; and if you would like to see the place, Louise, we will walk over there some evening soon. The grounds are worth seeing—such lovely sequestered nooks, and open sunny places, and a dear little stream running through a ravine—all rock and moss and waterfall."

"But will they allow us to trespass? Don't anybody live there in Mr. Marsden's absence?"

"Nobody but an old couple, to take care of the place, and they know us, and don't object to us, so long as we don't climb the trees, or steal the fruit, or break the 'scrubbery,' as they call it. The common rabble, however, are not allowed to enter, so we shall not be interrupted or disturbed."

A day or two after, accordingly, Fanny and myself walked over to Charnwood. It was not quite a mile distant, and the path led across delightful green fields and meadows.

The great house stood considerably back from the road, heavy and sombre, with one end surmounted by an odd-looking tower, in which, as Fanny assured me, the Beast was accustomed to sit and watch for trespassers on his estate.

There was a terrace in front, bordered by a heavy stone balustrade, which reminded one of a rampart; and, although despite an air of dignity and importance, the aspect of the mansion was not pleasing.

So, instead of approaching, we turned off by a little pathway which led to a terraced walk on a slope overlooking the ravine of which Fanny had spoken.

A delightful spot, truly, with graceful beeches drooping above the walk, and a clear stream below, alternately flashing and darkling in and out among the mossy rocks, and everywhere fragrant thickets of vines and wild flowers growing.

With the delight of a city-bred girl who loves nature, I threw off my hat and silently drank in the beauty around me.

Fanny reclined upon a bed of moss, and, looking upward, murmured snatches of poetry:

"His hoary arms uplifted he,
And all the broad leaves over me
Clapped their little hands in glee,
With one continuous sound."

"I say, Louise, isn't it a pity that all this beauty should belong to that cross, selfish Beast? Of course, he hasn't the soul to appreciate it; but why should he be such a dog in the manger as not allow it to be enjoyed by others? It is the loveliest spot in the country for picnics and walking-parties; yet no one is allowed to enter here—on cross that fence on the other side of the stream—on penalty of being 'prosecuted to the utmost extent of the law.' In my opinion it is simply a sin."

"How do you know that Mr. Marsden, whom you abuse so, hasn't the soul to enjoy his beautiful property? Do you remember that the Beast in the fairy tale, despite his unprepossessing exterior, possessed a gentle and chivalrous spirit?"

"Oh, fairy-tale heroes are of course different from people. Now—good gracious! what is that?"

There was a sudden rustling in the bushes on the other side of the stream, and immediately a great Newfoundland dog bounded out, rushed up the bank to where we were, and commenced a short bark while frisking around us.

I screamed, while Fanny took up a stick, prepared to bravely defend herself.

"Where does he come from?" she cried, looking around. "Who does he belong to? His master must be somewhere near."

"That dog belongs to me, ladies," said a man, stepping out of the thicket opposite, and leisurely preparing to cross the low stone wall. "He is perfectly harmless, and is only expressing his friendliness, and desires to make your acquaintance. Pray excuse him."

"And who are you, if you please, sir, who take the liberty of trespassing on this place in company with a big, fierce dog like that?" inquired Fanny, authoritatively.

"I beg pardon, but was really not aware that I was trespassing," he replied, pausing on the other side of the fence.

"But you are trespassing. This is private property, sir," she said, with dignity.

"I am very sorry," he said wistfully. "I am a harmless artist, and have already commenced a sketch of this spot, which I am anxious to complete—there, beneath those roses, just where the water falls over that rock."

"An artist? Oh, of course that makes a difference," Fanny responded, graciously; and, after an instant's hesitation, in which her glance measured him from head to foot, she added, "I think you may come across—provided you show us the sketch."

"Thanks! With pleasure."

He came up the bank, opened his portfolio, and took out a half-finished water-colour drawing, over which Fanny, who herself possessed some skill in the art, went immediately into raptures.

"How beautiful! What bold, effective touches! And the water, and the perspective. I can't conceive how so few lines can produce so much effect. But this is a thing which my master asserts a woman can never learn. We haven't the moral courage to handle a pencil boldly, he says."

"Permit me to say," remarked the gentleman, with a bow and a demure expression, "that if you handle a pencil with half the boldness and freedom that you did that weapon," glancing at the stick which Fanny had dropped, "there could be no lack of courage, either moral or physical."

Fanny bit her lip, coloured, and gave him a doubtful look.

"I wonder if he means to be impertinent?" she whispered to me.

"Certainly not. I am sure he is a gentleman."

"Yes—I suspect he is, despite his coarse gray clothes and big straw hat. Across the stream I thought him a rustic, and that is why I spoke so—so rudely to him. I suppose he is paying me off. Probably he takes me for some stray milk-maid or hay-maker."

Upon these cogitations the gentleman broke with a courteous offer of his portfolio, if the ladies would care to look over the contents.

We eagerly accepted it, and emptied the whole into our laps.

"I had no idea that so many pretty studies could be made out of this little ravine," Fanny said. "Have you made a sketch of the Hall?"

"Not yet; I should like to do so, with your permission."

"Oh, I'm not the owner," she returned, laughing and blushing, "the place belongs to a Beast; but, as he isn't at home, I daresay you may venture to the castle without danger of being eaten alive."

"A Beast?" said the artist, looking up from his sketching.

"I call him the Beast."

"Fanny!" I remonstrated.

"Well, he deserves the name—such a cross, misanthropic, selfish, stingy, disagreeable fellow as he is."

"Do you mean Mr. Marsden? I have heard that is the name of the owner of this estate."

"Yes, that is his family name," she replied, carelessly.

"What is the appearance of this monster, if I may inquire?"

"I have seen him but once, about two years ago, and that fortunately at a distance. He limps, and is hump-backed, and has immense green goggle-eyes, perfectly round, and he sets his dogs upon us—blood-hounds I have heard they were—because we presumed to pick a few blackberries from inside his fence. And—would you believe it?—the last time he was here he shot at and wounded a poor child who had innocently strayed within his boundaries! You need not look incredulous, Louise; I have heard it from the boy's own mother—a poor woman of the village."

"A Beast, truly," said the artist, gravely pointing his pencil. "Has he a family?"

"Of course not. Who would marry him?"

"Some women do marry even such monsters as he for the sake of wealth—and such a place as this."

"Such are not worthy the name of women. For my part I would starve to death before I would become Mrs. Beast," said Fanny, with energy.

"Not if he went down on his knees to you every day, and said, 'Beauty, will you marry me?'" inquired the gentleman, demurely, looking up into Fanny's pretty, half-laughing, half-hangry face.

"No, not even then; though I confess I should like such a home as his. However, if it were mine, I should set about improving it."

"How so?"

"Why, I should make the house more pleasant and cheerful-looking. I would clear away some of the ivy, and knock over that hideous tower, and also the grim battlement which they call a terrace; and I would out an opening here in the woods, so as to get a view of the distant mountain scenery; and I would have friends to enjoy it all with me. In short, I would make sunshine and happiness all about the place."

"I dare say you would," he remarked, thoughtfully, with a quick look into Fanny's animated face, which brought a blush to her cheek.

He wasn't exactly a handsome man, but we observed that his dark gray eyes were very earnest and expressive, and his smile rarely sweet.

Fanny remarked upon this, as, after bidding him good evening, and accepting a choice little sketch, of which he begged her acceptance, we walked slowly homeward across the fields.

"We'll come some other time to see the house, Louise," she said, "when we won't be troubled with stray artists. Some of them are down here every summer, for this neighbourhood is famous for picturesque scenery. I wonder what is the name of our new acquaintance. Wish I had enquired. I think I'll get Brother Tom to call on him, and, if he likes, invite him to our house. You see I want him to show me the secret of some of those wonderful effects in his sketches."

A week passed, and we neither saw nor heard anything of our artist friend. One day, in visiting the village, we stopped at the hotel, which was post-office as well; and Fanny inquired of the post-master whether there were any artists staying at his house this summer. There had been two, he said, but they were both gone; and I fancied I detected a shade of disappointment on my friend's bright face, and I wondered that she, who was not at all what is called impressible, should have become so much interested in this stranger on a first interview. But then, as she had remarked, "he looked as though he were poor and not happy; and he was, besides, a genius, as one could see from his sketches."

On our way home from the village we passed near Charnwood, and Fanny proposed that we should go up to the house, and get Mrs. Cox to show us the library and family pictures.

The place looked, on a nearer view, more sombre than at a distance. No one was visible, and nothing moved about save some poultry and a peacock, which was dearily sunning himself on the stone terrace. There were plenty of roses in bloom, and Fanny, in passing, gathered one or two. No answer being given to our repeated knocks at the side entrance, Fanny opened the door and looked in.

"There isn't a soul here," she said; "but I hear some one moving in the library at the end of the passage. I suppose Mrs. Cox is there." She tapped at the door within which we had heard the noise.

"Come in!" said a voice, and we entered.

Entered just within the threshold, and there stopped short. For, seated at a table covered with books and papers, was a gentleman—the artist whom we had met in the ravine.

On seeing us he arose.

"Dear me!" said Fanny, colouring, "I really didn't expect to find you—to find any one here. I was looking for Mrs. Cox."

"Mrs. Cox has gone to carry the haymakers their dinner. Will you permit me to entertain you until her return?" he said courteously.

"But—I did not know you were acquainted here. Are you sketching the hall, or copying the pictures?" said she, looking around.

"Not exactly. Only taking a list of the books."

She appeared still more puzzled.

"I see," he observed, "that you are surprised at finding me here, and lest you should take me for a burglar, I must explain. I am the owner of this gloomy castle—the Beast, of whom you have heard so much."

Her face became the colour of the roses in her hand.

"Are you really Mr. Marsden?" I inquired.

"That is my family name," he replied, glancing at Fanny.

"We did not know that you were at home," Fanny promptly responded, in an injured and indignant tone. "And if you are really Mr. Marsden, I consider your conduct in not telling us so when we first saw you as—extremely strange, to say the least of it!" with severe emphasis.

"Is it so extraordinary, Miss Stannard, that I should have hesitated to introduce myself as that dreadful monster of whom you expressed such horror? Would not you ladies have feared my devouring you alive, there in the lonely woods?"

I looked at Fanny and she looked at me. At first she bit her lip and tried hard to preserve her haughty look, but a sense of the ludicrousness of the situation overcame us, and we both broke into a laugh.

"Mr. Marsden," said she, "I know you will never forgive me, therefore I won't ask forgiveness."

"On the contrary, Miss Stannard, I owe you thanks. You have led me to see what a selfish and unamiable character I am."

"But you are not the man whom I saw two years ago, and described to you as the—the owner of this place."

"I think I am the same. I had met with an accident, and was using a crutch, which gave me, I don't doubt, an awkward, hump-backed appearance; I also wore blue glasses—blue, not green, if you please, Miss Stannard; and I must also most humbly plead not guilty to the charge of having set blood-hounds on your track. If I remember aright they were two small terriers—I love dogs, and have a number of them—and my shouting was merely to call them back, fearing you and your companions would be frightened by their harmless barking. It is true that I once shot at a clump of bushes where I fancied a hare was lying, and unfortunately shot a brace of partridges which had already been trapped by one of our poaching village boys, who, on seeing me, had hastily sought that place of concealment. I hope you will exonerate me from the wish or intention of taking the life of that innocent child."

"Oh, pray don't remember all the foolish things I said!" pleaded Fanny, looking distressed.

"You said some wise things, I assure you. I have been considering your suggestions, and have concluded that I shall be a happier as well as a more useful man if I adopt them, and let some sunshine into my house and life. I have been too much of a recluse, perhaps—less from choice than circumstances—but not quite the Beast that you imagined, ladies."

"I thought that you had done with these allusions," said Fanny, sharply.

"I wished only to remark that, now that Beauty has condescended to visit my castle, I am in hopes that the evil spell may be broken, and I become a transformed being."

He said this with such an air of demure gravity, mingled with latent humour, that it was impossible not to smile. Fanny, however, tossed her head as we rose to depart.

"I see you have stolen my roses," he observed; "but I will be generous, and beg your acceptance of more."

So we each went away with a lovely bouquet in remembrance of our visit to the Beast's castle.

I was only eighteen at the time, yet I could see plainly how this affair would end. I know Mr. Marsden would call to see us—as he did—and how he and Fanny would like each other more upon acquaintance—as proved the case; and when I brought my visit to a close I was as certain of the eventual result as though it had been already settled and arranged.

I went to Europe not long after for a six months' sojourn, and before my return I received from Fanny a letter, in which she said:

"You would hardly know the castle now, nor the dear old Beast, so entirely are they transformed, and it all came of his saying, 'Beauty, will you marry me?' and my replying, 'Yes, Beast—yes!' So we are very happy, and want you to hasten back and share in our happiness."—Saturday Night.

The Road Agent.

By CHARLES D. HILDRETH.

My route, which was the only road between the town of Ireton and Chester, lay for thirty miles through an almost unbroken wilderness. The track had been badly cut to pieces by recent rains, and my progress was much slower than was either safe or pleasant. Sunset found me still many miles from my destination, and I began to reflect on the probability of a night's lodging in the woods in no very comfortable frame of mind.

My horse stumbled so constantly in the increasing darkness that I was forced at length to allow him to pick his way at a slow walk. I had arrived at a particularly rough part of the road, and halted to make sure that no pitfall lay hidden in the obscurity beyond, when a form sprang out of the bushes and stood beside me. In the dull light I could perceive that it was a small, slightly built man, clad in shabby garments, with a broad slouched hat concealing his face, and that he held a pistol in unpleasant proximity to my head.

"What do you want?" I asked, with what composure I could muster.

"Your money," was the answer. "Fling it down in the road and ride on."

The voice was singularly sweet for a man—a ruffian at that—and there was a tremor in it that belied his threatening air.

"The man is a coward," I said to myself; then aloud, "Suppose I refuse to comply with your very reasonable request, what then?"

"I shall blow your brains out," was the reply.

"Throw me your money, and be quick about it." I raised my hand from my side as if to comply with his demand; but instead of doing so I suddenly lifted my riding whip and brought it down on the temple of my waylayer. The blow was a powerful one, and he rolled under my horse's feet without a sound.

Springing from my saddle to grapple with him, I found him prostrated and insensible, with the blood flowing copiously from an ugly wound in the forehead.

In the act of lifting his head upon my arm, his hat fell off, and a coil of luxuriant brown hair fell over my arm. Much astonished at this, I bent over the lifeless body, and beheld a pale, beautiful face, with small, delicate features, whose expression, even in unconsciousness, was that of mingled sadness and despair. My assailant was a woman, young, and bearing traces of refinement about her, despite her rough male attire.

After a little search I discovered the weapon with which she had threatened me. It was an old pistol, broken and unloaded. With an impulse that I did not stop to question, I thrust it in my pocket. Then I turned to examine the wound I had inflicted. It was a slight one, but would leave a life-long scar upon her temple.

What should such a woman be doing in this desolate region? What crisis of misfortune had driven her to an act so dangerous and unwomanly? There was no time to reflect upon the matter, for she stirred slightly, and a faint moan of pain came through her pale lips.

With a sense of deep remorse for the violence I had done the poor girl, I bound up her wound with my handkerchief and slipped a good portion of the money I had about me into the pocket of her coat. I felt that her need of it must be desperate indeed.

After a moment her eyes opened, and she gazed wildly round.

"What has happened?" she said confusedly. "Where is my father?"

Then she gazed at me wonderingly.

"Oh, I remember," she cried, in a heart-rending accent. "Oh, sir, if you knew why I did it! Let me go to my father—pray, pray, let me go!"

"You shall," said I soothingly; "I will take you to him, for you are not able to walk alone. Poor child! it was a mistake, and I was very brutal. Say no more, but lean on me."

She obeyed in silence, and, slipping my horse's bridle over my arm, I lead her down the road until she paused before a miserable hut, whose battered aspect and unlighted windows gave sorrowful evidence of the poverty of the inmates.

As I released her she suddenly seized my hand, and gazing up into my face appealingly, broke into a passion of tears.

"I understand you," I said. "No one shall ever know what has occurred to-night from my lips. No wrong has been done except through my hasty violence; that I hope you will forgive. Now go to your father."

Waving my hand in farewell, I sprang upon my horse and rode away.

Cautious inquiry in the next town elicited the fact that the hut I had seen was occupied by an old man of the name of Windsor and his daughter Julia. They had come from the East some three years previous, and had evidently seen better days. Even now, miserably poor as they were, they preserved a dignified aristocratic seclusion, so that their neighbours knew little about them, and cared less. How they lived my informant could not guess. The father had been in feeble health for a long time, yet the daughter, a fragile, delicate girl, had found the means to support him.

I had learned one of those "means," and I went away from the town with a deeper respect for Julia Windsor than I had ever felt for a woman.

Two years later found me permanently established in New York. I had nearly forgotten my adventure with the road agent, and should have forgotten it altogether but for the old pistol, which I still retained.

One evening during a reception at the house of a friend, I observed among the guests a lady whose face seemed strangely familiar to me. Where I had met her before I could not remember; but there was something in her appearance that I recognized rather by the heart than the mind.

On inquiring who she was, I learned that she had lately returned from the West with her father, who had experienced several reverses of fortune some years before, but had recently regained his property. Her name, they told me, was Miss Lee.

I had never known any one of the name, yet I certainly knew her. While I was puzzling myself for a solution of the mystery, one of the heavy braids which covered her forehead fell aside, and I saw a small red scar upon her temple. Then I knew her—it was my would-be robber, Miss Lee or Julia Windsor; I could not be mistaken in her identity.

As may be readily imagined, I was not long in seeking an introduction to her. If, on her part, she recognized me, she maintained her composure admirably. A small red spot, rising in her cheek and fading instantly, was the only sign of anxiety that I could detect.

If I had thought her beautiful in her ugly male attire two years before, I found her doubly so now. The expression of care and grief had passed out of her face, but it had left its traces in her soft eye and in the tremulous outline of her mouth. An air of quiet thoughtfulness—the repose of a soul heavily chastened with sorrow—had a supreme charm for me.

I had not been sitting near her ten minutes before it became painfully apparent to me that my solitary life was a very cold and selfish one. This beautiful girl had lived and loved and suffered for another. If her experience had been a sad one, it had likewise been noble. Somehow my adventure with her that memorable night seemed to give me a right to her regard. Perhaps it was because I had never forgotten her, and that the simple memory of her had kept her always close to me.

Be that as it may, when I left her that night it was in a very unhappy frame of mind. Emotions had been aroused in me that would not be put asleep again. For the first time in my life I knew what love meant—love for a large-hearted, noble woman.

I had hoped that I had secured the means of a familiar intercourse with Miss Lee, by which I might be enabled to enlarge my acquaintance with her. But I soon found that I was mistaken. Converse with her I might, but never freely. Enter her house when and so often as I choose, but her sympathy not all. She seem to hold me firmly at a distance. With all my efforts I could not even establish a cool friendship between us.

Did she remember me, then, and hate me for my knowledge of that one dark event in her past history? It seemed so, indeed. Yet was she blind? Or was it because, while sacrificing herself for her father's sake, I had inflicted the wound whose scar she would carry to the grave? Either way I was supremely unhappy.

Six months elapsed before I summoned up the courage to put her feelings towards me to the test. One afternoon I entered her presence firmly resolved to declare my love for her and abide the result. I could not be more wretched than I was, and my love might at least teach her to respect me.

She was alone when I entered. Something in my face must have alarmed her, for she arose hastily, and would have left the room had I not called her back.

"Julia Windsor," I said, calmly, "will you hear me?"

"That is not my name," she faltered, turning very white.

"No; but it was your name that night in the Far West, when you pointed a pistol at my head and demanded my money. Do you remember that night?"

She had no reply for a moment, but stood with her face averted; then she suddenly turned and confronted me with a gesture of contempt.

"Yes, I do remember," she answered, passionately. "Am I likely to forget it while this, inflicted by your hand, remains?" She pushed back her hair and laid her finger upon the scar upon her temple. "You struck me down, but to pay me for my wound you left your money in my pocket. It saved my father's life—for that I thank you. But you may cancel all. Go tell the world what you know. Wake the tongue of slander against me. Say that once upon a time I lived in abject poverty under an assumed name, and to succour a perishing father I robbed passengers upon the road in male attire. I do not fear you."

"You need fear nothing," I answered, quietly, "except that I shall love you too much for your noble sacrifice."

"Love me!" she echoed, looking at me suddenly with filling eyes. "I thought that you despised me for my unwomanly action."

"Then you wronged me deeply," I returned, approaching and taking her hand. "My remembrance of that night is full of admiration and respect. Since I have known you intimately I have learned to love you, how truly I have no words to say."

"But I threatened you with a pistol," she answered, demurely.

"It was harmless," I returned, smiling. "I kept it—I have it at home now."

"Do you remember the handkerchief with which you bound my head?" she asked, shyly. "More faithful to the spirit of that night than you, I have always kept it near me. I have it now."

"Julia," said I, earnestly, "answer me truly, why?"

"Because," she returned, lifting her soft eyes to mine, "I loved you from that hour. When I saw you again my love took new strength, and though I felt that you despised me, it remained unshaken, as it shall to my dying hour."

"My darling," I said, stooping to kiss her upturned face, "on that night you robbed me of more than my purse. You made wholly yours my heart, my life, my future happiness."

The Lebanon Robin.

By SAVARICUS.

[According to the New York Tribune, a robin lately paid a visit to the Methodist Church in Lebanon, Ontario:—"It perched itself on a rail opposite the pulpit, sang aloud when the people sang, was silent during prayer, but while the minister preached it chirped occasionally, as if to encourage him, remained until the congregation was finally dismissed, and then flew away."]—

ROBIN! Bird of ancient story,
I sing of thee, 'tis to thy glory.
Thy ways are quaint, as tales of yore
Do truly tell in fairy lore.
When our dear Lord was crucified,
The crimson stream thy breast then dyed;
In pity thou didst pluck a thorn
From out the crown by Jesu worn;
A sacred sign we see in thee,
Memento grave of Calvary's tree.
Thy music hath a solemn tone,
A dirge-like sound of one alone;
Thy name to goodness, love, and grace,
Is fitly linked; the human race
With chaste emotion speaks of thee,
Thou feathered friend, so spry to see.
What heartless tale of cheerless woe
That happened many years ago
Has such a sympathetic hold
As that of thee, so often told?—
Of ruffians twain, and uncle bad,
And "Children in the Wood," so sad.
A tale to read, with sobs and sighs,
To tender hearts and weeping eyes:
How Robin Redbreast, it doth state,
The children found, left to their fate,
All dead and cold upon the ground,
And strewn them with the leaves he found.

In nursery rhyme poor Robin's killed
By sparrow bold, who was self-willed;
And all the birds that clave the air
Came mourning to his funer'! there.

A modern tale I now will tell,
Of Robin Redbreast, loved so well:—
In Lebanon's commodious church,
Where saint and sinner scripture search,
This pious bird, with saint-like ways,
Betook itself to render praise:
There, perched on rail, with plumage gay,
It sang its little soul away;
But silent was when pastor prayed;
Its thrilling notes were timely stayed.
The good discourse, we're glad to find,
Was orthodox, and to its mind;
It gave assent, looked at the preacher,
And nodded like a human creature—
Nay, more: its chirp was gently heard
At head the first, again at third.
The sermon o'er, with grace of heart,
The bird devoutly played its part;
It stayed to see each empty pew,
Then pinions spread, and onward flew.

How Tom O'Flaherty Married the Widow.

TOM O'FLAHERTY the subject of this most veracious tale, was a Major on half-pay in Her Majesty's army. I need not mention the distinguished regiment to which he belonged, as it has nothing to do with our story; but I simply mention the fact that he was an "old soldier!" the life—and almost the pet—of his mess and regiment, the "soul of honour," and the child of mirth, blessed with good health and a fine brogue and a decent competence. He was one of the most cheery and pleasant "mates" a man could own—as good a specimen of an officer, a gentleman, and a friend, as you could find—as someone has put it—"in a day's march." Whether he was wanted for a cricket match or an eight-oar, whether he was required to "stand by" a friend or help a lady in a crush or a scrape, whether you sought his company, his advice, or his intimacy, he was alike agreeable to know, and one emphatically of the right sort. As Lieutenant Dawkins liked to say, he was "such deuced good foarm," that no one ever could be ashamed either of his looks or his companionship. He was a fine, good-looking fellow in himself, and boasted a moustache and a beard which had long been the admiration, and even envy, of countless beardless "subs" and unhirute heroes. And then, when you add to this that he was one of the most sincerely kindly, gallant, and loyal of men, who never deserted his friend and never turned his back upon his foe, and while full of fun and harmless gaiety of heart, was both serious and sentimental, and well read and well informed, the portrait before my readers is, I think, a pleasant one "for all," and the character I have sought to pourtray is invested with something even of the heroic.

Yet, strange to say, this good-looking major had remained unmarried, and, stranger still, some of his friends asserted loudly and boldly (a few female consins especially) that he never would marry. Indeed, it was once averred by his intimate crony and companion, Dr. Finucane, that Tom had been heard to say he would rather "lead a forlorn hope, or face a battery, or make a rush at infuriated Zulus, than have to encounter the serious responsibilities of married life or the angry reproaches of an incensed "faymale." And as Dr. Finucane was a married man of long standing and great experience, his unmarried brother officers always used to say there must be some reason in Tom's objections and Finucane's shakes of the head. It was the one thing the doctor resented to be asked after Mrs. Finucane. Whether it was that Tom was afraid of crying babies or heavy bills; whether it was he feared to face a female partner for life, or dreaded a matrimonial tête-à-tête deponent sayth and knoweth not; but this one fact was clear and certain, and patent to all as any fact can be in this sublunary scene, that at the mature age of forty-eight our friend was still unmarried.

When our story opens, Tom had for some time been the guest of his old friend De Visme, in his comfortable ancestral Manor Hall, and who was, as a prosperous squire and M.P., and Master of the Beaulieu Hounds (for Beaulieu Manor was Charles de Visme's habitation), delighted to welcome his old captain once again.

As a gay lieutenant in other days, Charles De Visme, M.P., like many another "good man and true," had vowed eternal friendship to that warm-hearted and pleasant "Paddy," whose deeds of gallantry in the field, and whose cheery sociability in barracks, and whose many good qualities of heart and head had endeared him to his brother officers, one and all, from the stiff old colonel down to the youngest and lightest-hearted subaltern. And so, one evening, when host and guest were sitting in the comfortable panelled dining room, and the old butler had thrown another log on the fire and replenished their glasses with good old port (mark that), Charles de Visme opened out her heart to his friend.

A fair postess in other days wrote some pleasant lines, which linger with me still, and which describe the situation so well that I must impart them to my readers:—

"Before a blazing fire,
Within an armchair snug,
His hands upon his bosom crossed,
His feet upon the rug;
His brow without a wrinkle,
And his heart without a load—
There sat a gallant gentleman,
The master of the node.

"He and his friend together
Had hunted all that day,
And o'er some very old port wine
Had washed all care away;
And o'er their sport conversing,
They sat them tête-à-tête,
And settled in their own wise heads,
'The ladies will be late.'"

For the truth was that Mrs. De Visme, a very charming and agreeable hostess, and her lady friends—including Mrs. Malcolmson, a very graceful widow, and one or two young men, brothers and consins—had gone off to a juvenile ball, from which the Master of the Hounds and Tom O'Flaherty had begged to be excused.

"Tom," said Charles de Visme, after a little pause, during which the smoke from their cigarettes seemed to wreath itself about them, "I wonder, old fellow, that you don't marry and settle. Henrietta was only saying to me yesterday (Mrs. de Visme, kind reader,) that it was such a pity that you hadn't a good wife, as no one could see you without wishing to know more of you, and no one could know you without liking you a great deal; and you know I always have a high opinion of my wife's good sense, to say nothing of her good looks. Now, old boy, listen to me. She and I have a little plan of our own. Why should you not marry Mrs. Malcolmson, that most agreeable widow, and become the squire of Combe Manor (for everything is in her own power), and live close to us for the rest of your life. By George, what fun it will be to see you a squire, with six thousand a-year, the most agreeable of hosts with the most kindly of wives. Why, we will have all the old fellows down here, and what pleasant gatherings we will have. Tom, let me speak seriously to you. I once laughed at matrimony like Eversley, or feared it like you do, or was disconcerted at its responsibilities like old Finucane; but I have come to find what it is to have a good wife, one who cares for you, loves you, likes you, is never in the way, never bothers you, never gets you into a mess, but is the best of friends, the truest of mates, and the most conscientious of advisers."

"Ah," replied Tom, "my dear Charles, your eloquence is as remarkable as your port; but, to say the truth, the advice you give is, I feel, indeed, very sound, yet the very word 'matrimony' always seems full of warning and peril to me. The charms of yon fair widow are great, but the liberty of bachelorhood is, in my eyes, a greater blessing, inasmuch as the probabilities and possibilities of matrimonial life always seem to me to counterbalance its attractions and its desirability. You will remember poor Michael O'Connor, the Captain of our Grenadier company. Until he was married, no happier mortal could be in Her Majesty's dominions, but after that he met that famous dragon whom he afterwards espoused, no more wretched spectacle of manly depression can be seen on this good earth of ours!"

"Never mind Mike," said Charles De Visme, "or any other illustration of matrimony. There is no rule, old fellow, without its exception, and you certainly are not likely to be a 'green goose,' or a 'mournful example.' Just listen for a few minutes. Mrs. Malcolmson is, as your eyes have told you, I rather suspect, pretty well already, a very charming person indeed. She is not only most well-to-do, but she is a woman of great cultivation and a most kindly and sociable being. If I am not mistaken, she is much impressed with your 'pleasant presence,' my dear Tom, and a little perseverance is only necessary on your part to carry off the prize from so many admirers and competitors. It is quite clear to me that she will have nothing to do with old Poulter, the rich but stupid Squire of Poulterby. He must go back, poor lonely widower that he is, to his broad acres and his prize pigs. Neither will she give any encouragement, wise woman as she is, to Sir Clement Newcomer, whose ancestors date from Richard the Second, at any rate, and Mounsey Hall must still remain for the present without a fair mistress; for the Baronet, though an excellent man, is a great bore. Neither has that good-looking vicar, Mr. Moleworth, the slightest chance, Broad Churchman as he is in all respects, for Mrs. Malcolmson told my wife in confidence that she would not marry a 'parson,' under any circumstances; and as for my rattling cousin, Harry de Visme, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, the truth is he will have to marry a certain Miss Carlton, an old flame of his, so that his incessant flirtation with that debonnaire widow must shortly cease. Therefore Tom, our own old Tom of old, screw up your courage, my boy, to the proposing point, and, like one of our own 'boys,' who were never known to flinch, march forwards! Widows, like women generally, like a little 'pressing,' and so let me live to congratulate you as a neighbour in our good county, and 'possessing one of the most prepossessing wives a man can boast of.'"

We need not pursue this touching dialogue further, deeply interesting as it is, further than to say that it seemed to make a visible impression on the cheery "major," and we must leave its result to the dénouement of this story.

It was observed by all next day, that for some reason or other the fair widow and Tom were thrown, accidentally of course, very much together. He was admitted to the ladies' sitting room after breakfast, when he sang a duet with Mrs. Malcolmson for the evening's entertainment. When they went to the dairy, he was with that most agreeable woman, who explained to him the whole process of butter making. After luncheon she rode with the party to her own stately mansion, of which she did the honours, and where all the company had tea, and in the evening, after sitting next to her at dinner, and making himself very pleasant to her, he was by her side nearly the whole evening.

Two days after they acted charades, and one of the charades was "matrimony."

"Ah," said the widow, archly, to Tom, "I wonder you are going to act to-night, for they say you are afraid of the married state."

What Tom's reply was no one ever knew, it was delivered sotto voce in the conservatory. Charles De Visme always declared that Tom kissed the widow; Mrs. De Visme declared, with a gleam in her eyes, that she would uphold her friend's unimpeachable propriety.

But be this as it may, very soon afterwards the public papers announced the marriage, and great was the rejoicing of Tom's many friends. Tom is now the best of husbands, squires, magistrates, fathers, the cheeriest of the cheery, and the happiest of the happy. He has constant visits from his old friends, and the tone of conversation at the "Mote" is very military indeed. Do any of the readers of the Christmas Freemason ask what is the moral?

Is it not plain enough? If any young man is hesitating on the brink of matrimony, fearing to take the plunge, and really has the chance of obtaining a good wife, do not let him vacillate between two opinions, but, like Tom O'Flaherty, make himself happy for life, either with the female of his choice, the woman of his heart, or some agreeable and pleasant widow who is possessed both of virtue and competence, and is not a mere adventuress, but a true and loving woman. Be bold, I say, and fear not!

Christmas.

CHRISTMAS comes once more to-day,
With song and carol and roundelay.
Christmas once again is here,
With pleasant memories, soft and dear;
As round the hearthstone of old days
We gather still from far and near.

If some are missing from our feast;
If some, from earthly cares released,
Are wanting to complete our score,
And tearful memory counts them o'er;
Ah! well-a-day! we all then say,
On earth we see them nevermore!

This is that twofold solemn tone which flings
A calm refinement on mirth's glad strings,
And in our Christmas revels nigh,
Touches our gladness with a sigh,
As we think of those no longer seen
When joy and merriment ask reply.

There is the soft face, calm and clear,
Whose presence cheered us many a year;
There is the grace, so glad and fair,
Which of old could charm us everywhere.
All, all, are fled, and we alone
To sounds of revelry repair.

Ah! memory, ever dear and true,
Which takes us back, kind hearts, to you,
Still whispers in our hearts your name—
Your gentle goodness—your growing fame,
And cheers us with the hope all bright
That you are saved from care or blame.

Ah! Christmas time, as upward swells
The merry chime of your sweet bells,
As songs and chants tell of the hour
Of joyous Faith's consoling pow'r;
I feel for one a solemn thought
Of faded scenes, of faded flower.

But silent, be, poor heart, and still,
Let pleasant faces with fragrance fill
These precious moments as they fly,
And youth's gay banter sound on high,
And bid all hail to Christmas day,
Which, in kind humour, hasteneth by.

Miss Dorothy's Thanksgiving.

By HELEN M. WHITNEY.

CAN'T see that I have much to be thankful for,' grumbled Miss Dorothy to herself, as she carefully polished the parlour stove, using, perhaps, a trifle more "elbow grease" than was absolutely necessary. "Of course, I always return thanks when I say my prayers at night and morning, that I'm kept well and out of trouble; but as for any special cause for thankfulness, I can't see it." Miss Dorothy didn't know she was talking slang, or she would have altered the construction of her last sentence. "I've half a notion not to cook any dinner to-day at all! The turkey and things will keep, and there's cold sweet potatoes, and a whole pumpkin pie, and here's—yes, here's a pan of pork and beans that I baked day before yesterday, and haven't scarcely tasted yet." Miss Dorothy had finished blocking the stove now, and was examining the contents of a little walnut cupboard that did duty as a pantry. "There's not much fun cooking a Thanksgiving dinner, anyhow, when there's nobody but me to eat it."

Here she glanced into the little old-fashioned looking-glass that hung over the cupboard, and heaved a sigh, as she thought of how different things would have been if she had not refused Jack Farris when he asked her to marry him, and if Jack had not taken her at her word and hurried off to China without giving her a chance to explain that, although she had said no, she had meant yes. She was pretty Dolly Digby then, and, though she had many other offers of marriage, somehow the memory of Jack Farris' blonde moustache and dark eyes always came between her and the eligible bachelors and widowers who sought her hand. And so it happened, that though ten long years had passed away, still she was Miss Digby, or rather, Miss Dorothy, as she was called by the village folks, both old and young.

"There's no one but myself to cook for now, though," she repeated to herself, with another sigh and another glance at the little mirror. Suddenly, this line of Scripture flashed into Miss Dorothy's mind: "The poor ye have always with you," and a faint blush suffused her somewhat faded cheek.

Just at this juncture a timid knock sounded on the door. At Miss Dorothy's invitation to enter, a little girl came timidly into the room. The child's dress of faded calico was both short and scant, and her little hands looked blue with cold. Her hair hung in tangled yellow curls over her shoulders, and her eyes showed signs of recent tears. "O, Miss Dorothy," she said, with a half-sob, "Mamma said we couldn't have any dinner to-day, 'cause she's sick, and Bessie hasn't got any money to buy any with."

"The poor ye have always with you!" Miss Dorothy thought again. "Come here, Minnie," she said, drawing the child to her. "Will you stay here and eat dinner with me? I'm going to have turkey, and mince pie, and ever so many nice things besides. Would you like to stay and eat dinner with me?" she asked again, having suddenly come to the conclusion that cold pie and baked beans would not do for a Thanksgiving dinner at all.

Minnie's eyes sparkled, but a wistful look shone in them, as he asked, "Will mamma and Bessie have some too?"

Miss Dorothy made another sudden resolution. "Yes," she said; "mamma and Bessie shall have some, too! But we must get dinner all ready first," she added, and in an incredibly short time a fire was roaring in the little cooking stove, the turkey was spluttering in the oven, and Miss Dorothy was busily rolling out the flaky pie-crust which was destined to entomb some of the richest mince-meat any prudent thanksgiver would wish to taste.

A hungry tramp, fortunately for himself, happened along, and was made the happy recipient of the cold beans, pie, etc., upon which Miss Dorothy herself had half intended to dine.

Little Minnie was helping and hindering her hostess all she could, and had already taken the edge off her own appetite by the consumption of a huge slice of fruit cake, which was frosted and ornamented with plump, home-made cupids, done in icing, and also stuffed as full of plums as was King Arthur's "bag-pudding" so justly celebrated in nursery lore.

At last, the huge turkey lay on his back, crisp, and brown, and savory. The pies looked ready to melt in one's mouth. The table was spread, the dainty service of china, and cut-glass, and here and there a bit of rare, old silver, setting off the turkey-red cloth and snowy napkins to great advantage. The turnips and squash were done, the plum-pudding was still steaming and spluttering over the fire. The celery was crisp and green, and the cranberry sauce and the currant jelly were quivering in cut-glass bowls of rare and antique pattern. Now, Miss Dorothy donned her wine-coloured merino dress, fastened up her hair with a high-backed silver comb, and pinned around her neck a ruffle of filmy white lace. She had already brushed out Minnie's long yellow curls, and tied a pretty blue ribbon round the child's head. Taking a large japanned tray, she spread over it a white towel and proceeded to arrange upon it the invalid's portion of the thanksgiving dinner. A china plate, which held a generous slice of the turkey's breast, was flanked by dishes of vegetables, saucers of currant jelly and cranberry sauce, sections of pie, both mince and pumpkin, and a slice of the fruit cake, with one of the over-grown cupids perched upon it. In addition to the well-laden tray, she carried a pitcher of hot coffee, enriched by real cream, for Miss Dorothy kept a cow. "If Mrs. Willis is too sick to eat it all, it will do for the children, afterwards," she thought as she spread a towel over the tray, and with Minnie at her side, crossed the street and knocked at the door of a very plain frame house.

Bessie, a pretty girl of fourteen, opened the door. She stared in astonishment at the unexpected visitor, but Miss Dorothy walked straight to the invalid's bed-side. "Mrs. Willis," she said, "I want to beg you to let Minnie and Bessie come and help me eat my Thanksgiving dinner; you know I'm all alone, and it will be a real charity to let them come. And to save time and trouble, I've brought your dinner along," and having placed the tray on the table beside the bed, she drew off the towel which covered it, and displayed the tempting viands.

At this unexpected kindness poor Mrs. Willis seemed to have lost her voice entirely, but she clasped Miss Dorothy's hand, and looked the thanks she could not speak. At this moment Miss Dorothy felt how much more blessed it was to give than to receive; but to make the favour seem as slight as possible, she turned away, carelessly and quickly; turned, to find herself confronted by a stranger, a man six feet high, with dark, handsome eyes and a blonde moustache.

"Dolly," cried the apparition, eagerly holding out his hand.

"Jack!" cried Miss Dolly, blushing to the roots of her hair, but giving her hand to be clasped in his.

Mrs. Willis suddenly found her voice. "Why, Miss Dorothy!" she asked "how did you come to know my cousin Jack?"

Miss Dorothy blushed again, and stammered, but Jack came to the rescue and told the whole story.

Afterwards, with Minnie and Bessie, he accompanied Miss Dolly to assist in disposing of the thanksgiving dinner; and it is but reasonable to suppose that the hostess was not sorry she had changed her mind about dining on the "cold vittles," as she had at first intended.

That night, as Miss Dorothy gazed upon the diamond engagement-ring which sparkled on her finger, she could scarcely decide which to be most thankful for: that Jack had come home, rich, handsome, and as much in love with her as ever, or that, through the grace of Providence, she had been enabled to read aright the simple text, "The poor ye have always with you."—The Voice of Masonry.

Under the Mistletoe Bough.

EMMA C. VOGELGESANG.

"HEAR, dear," said Aunt Lucy, wiping the moisture from her glasses, "what a time Christmas is! For the last six weeks there have been bits of silk and worsted, scraps of this and ends of that scattered all over the house. I wonder if the anticipation is not more pleasant than the reality."

Aunt Lucy and Uncle John had a large, comfortable home, in a pretty place, and never spared any effort to make it pleasant for guests. At Christmas time, particularly, relatives and strangers shared the most bounteous hospitality.

Aunt Lucy, though "aunt" only in name, was, as my little sister described her, "the darlingest woman," who always made one feel comfortable and perfectly at home, while Uncle John was as full of fun as a boy, and always led in our sports.

Their two daughters, Nellie and Gertrude, were as different as two girls could be, Nellie, the eldest, being tall, pale and quiet, with light hair and dark blue eyes, but Gertrude was small and dark, always in mischief and always saying something she did not mean to say or meaning something she did not say, a splendid match for her roguish brother Will.

The next morning after my arrival I skipped into the sitting-room in time to see Nellie thrust some work hastily in her pocket, while she sang in a careless voice, "I love to hear the ringing of Christmas bells ajar."

"I do not believe a word of it," said Gertrude, laughingly, "not a word Nellie Brooks, else you would not be so cool and indifferent to all that is going on. Just think of it, only one day more until Christmas, and so many coming, so much to do. Oh Nellie, do wake up and get just a little excited to keep me company!"

"Will has promised to put me up a mistletoe bough, and—"

"Yes, so I did," said Will, bobbing his head in at the doorway, "and, by the way, you can expect Robert Leicester here to-day. I met him at Lowpoint, and he said Christmas was such a bore; some one always expected something he did not want to give, and he always expected something he wouldn't get, so I invited him here to while away the dull time. A bean for you, May," he said, with a comical wink at me, "a lord from the Sandwich Islands; you will want to fix your cap, put on your best bib and tucker, and look your sweetest."

"Is he from the Sandwich Islands?" I asked, innocently.

Gertrude laughed but Nellie looked annoyed. "He is from the West Indies, a perfect gentleman, educated and refined, but rather odd and easy, and we take advantage of his good humour," she said, with more than usual animation.

"Now Nellie," said Gertrude, "did you not say there was a lazy climate in the land of his birth, and you thought it must have infected the people, and then the boys tell such stories about his being out of money and asking loans, and when you remember, May, that he has a splendid education, is a good musician, and has brains enough to really do something great in the world if he would only apply himself to work, that at times he has almost nothing; and yet in spite of all everybody likes him, you can judge that he is quite an uncommon mortal, but he would share his last cent with one in need, so I do not know but that the good and bad are equal. Lord Magnifico we call him, and I am so glad he is coming, aren't you?"

"The more the merrier," you know, and he makes fun enough for a dozen," said Nellie.

"I wonder if I can get him to compose some music for my rhymes—"

"At your service, ladies; without a doubt you can have what you wish, Miss Gertrude." A careless, easy tone, a slight drawl to the words, a careless easy-looking fellow, too. "I beg your pardon, ladies, for coming in so unceremoniously," he said, "but Will told me to walk right in and put my traps on the centre table for ornaments, or hang them on the chandelier, as I chose."

"We are very glad to see you," Nellie said, in her quiet, earnest way, and Gertrude, chasing away the annoyed look, burst out with, "What a surprise! Did you drop from the moon or come on a telegraph wire?"

"Neither, Miss Gertrude; I am indebted to the steam cars and a fast horse for the pleasure of being here, but I promised Will to return immediately and examine his new firearms, and, as they are indisputable arguments in his hands, I am afraid of rousing his anger, so if you will excuse me I will take a short leave of absence."

"Do you think he heard what I said?" asked Gertrude, when the door had closed after him. "What is the next scrape I will be in? We did not introduce you either. Nellie! Nellie! where were your thoughts? You know I am never expected to do anything right."

"Never mind," I said, "there will be plenty of time, and I do not think it will make any difference to him."

I cannot tell what my first impression of Robert Leicester was. He was not handsome, and I did not think he was either good enough or smart enough for Nellie; and yet, as Gertrude said, "in spite of all," liked him." His fun was irrepressible, and his wit bubbled up like a spring in the wild wood. He had a keen edge to his tongue, too—a bitter sarcasm—which he never used, however, except on rare occasions; and no speech of Nellie's could ever provoke anything but a pleasant reply.

"Do you believe in ghosts?" he said to me the first day I met him.

"Ghosts? No. How could I?"

"Well, I have seen one," he said, "and seeing is believing they say."

Whether it was only a sell for me, or whether he believed it, I could not tell. I looked straight into his eyes, and he looked straight into mine without smiling or moving a muscle. "Will it scare you to hear a ghost story?" he asked.

"Oh no," I said, "for no matter how strange, I know it can be explained by perfectly natural causes."

"Well, I will tell you. There was a little tumble-down shanty, in a grove quite near my father's place, that bore the name of being haunted. Nothing in the world could have induced a negro to go near the place at night, or in the daytime either for aught I know. One evening, three of us, eager for excitement, set out for the old place. 'De Debbil's dar, shua. Massa Robert, don't you go. Ise seen the light of the sulphur he carries mor'n once; you'll shua get kotched,' said one of the servants, rolling his eyes with fright.

"We laughed at his warning and started off. It did not take long to reach the place, and there was only one room below with a pair of rickety old stairs leading to a loft above. It was unsafe to ascend the stairs, so we halloed and shouted and told the ghost, if there was any ghost there, to come down and see us; but nothing made its appearance, so we just put out our lights and concluded to wait. We saw nothing, heard nothing, until, I think, it was sometime after midnight, I heard a whirring sound in the loft above. I gave my friend nearest me a nudge. 'Do you hear that, Al?' I whispered, but he did not answer. I saw something white come down the old staircase so lightly and easily they did not even creak; then I gave each of the boys a decided nudge, but neither moved a muscle. 'Heavens!' I thought, 'are they scared to death?' I had heard of people dying from fright. Miss May, you see how straight my hair now is; before that night it was curly, horror made it perfectly straight."

He looked at me so gravely and earnestly, and I looked so inquiringly at him that I am sure I must have appeared idiotic.

"It was coming nearer and nearer, and making a mournful sound," he continued. "I yelled to the boys if there was any breath in them to get a light, and then Joe raised up, but his hand shook so, the matches fell to the floor. I felt it touch me. I was frantic. I seized a match, had a light, and, Miss May, as true as I live, there was—as nice a looking cat as you ever saw."

The laughing that followed—the jests at my expense—I shall never forget; and to this day I am asked to give the "natural causes" for a cat ghost.

Will put up the mistletoe in the farthest corner of the library, "for safety," he said. I never go into that room during the holidays, it is too far from where the cooking is done, so I know I am safe.

Christmas Eve came with Christmas Eve sports, and the wildest set of school children could not have acted worse than we.

During the evening, I do not know how it came about, some of us were drawn into a discussion about Governments, and Mr. Leicester made some pointed remarks against American policy and American government, and spoke grandiloquently, to use Gertrude's term, of "Her Majesty the Queen" and "Her Majesty's Dominions." If there is one thing more than another that will rouse Nellie's anger it is a word against her country, and that evening she defended it with more than usual spirit. I watched him sharply as she made her keen retorts, but could not detect a shade of anger or annoyance. He waited until she had spoken, then walked leisurely to another part of the room, and in a few moments was singing a rollicking song of love, nonsense, and fun.

Nellie left the room before he had finished, and I knew he was going in search of her as soon as he went to the door. He looked in the parlour but she was not there, so he went quietly to the library, and there, under the mistletoe, the flush all gone from her cheeks, was Nellie, sitting in Aunt Lucy's easy chair. Before she was aware of his presence Robert Leicester was seated beside her. "Do you think all I am good for is to create laughter for some people and aggravate others?" he asked in a quick, passionate tone. "Oh Nellie, don't think me so utterly worthless and good-for-nothing; give me the right to prove to you that I can be a defender and supporter!"

I do not know what she said, but I know he asked her if it was not legal to claim a forfeit, and she granted the right to his claim.

The organ pealed out the grand music to—

"Shout the glad tidings, exultingly sing; Jerusalem triumphs, Messiah is King."

We wished each other good-night and a merry Christmas, with laughing and hand-shaking, and then, Aunt Lucy, Nellie, Gertrude, and I held a meeting just by ourselves. Why was I in that meeting? Oh, I forgot to tell you I helped Will to put up the Mistletoe Bough, and—well, we had a double wedding in June; and Nellie married, not a true and loyal subject of Her Majesty the Queen, but a naturalised American citizen.

I cannot see anything easy or careless about him now, "all owing," he says, with one of his merry laughs, "to the engagement I made with Nellie under the Mistletoe."—The Voice of Masonry.

A Friend and a Brother.

It was half-past five o'clock one dreary November afternoon that in a little cottage on the Harrow road a woman was sitting, in widow's weeds, in the small library or study, and in great grief! Sundry articles of dress scattered here and there seemed to point to the fact that some event had taken place that day special and trying, inasmuch as they were all black. Two children—a boy and a girl—were sitting on stools by the fire, poor little things, with their arms interlaced, and their thin white faces and tearful eyes were very mournful accessories to the reality of that sombre little room.

The truth must be told! Poor Mrs. Hilton was a young widow who had buried her husband that day, cut off in the very prime of manhood, and rising yearly in the confidence of his employers. Humanly speaking, there is no doubt, had his life been spared, he would in another twelve months have been a partner in the house. But, alas! such are the ups and downs of life, its melancholy vicissitudes and its most trying scenes! When all seems progressing happily with us and ours, when the sky is serene, when no storm is apparently impending—in a moment comes one of those fitful gusts of human trouble (like as you may have seen on our English lakes) and bears us down, and swamps and capsize the little bark in which all our choicest cargo was consigned. Nothing is so sad for us to realize how many mourners abound amongst us; how many loving hearts are sobbing bitterly, while the sights of Vanity Fair glare out so boldly, and excitement, laughter and frivolity, pleasure and gaiety, hold, as it were, an hourly revel! I do not wish to colour my canvass too highly, but great are the contrasts of life, always wonderful, often inexplicable.

And thus was it with Mrs. Hilton. She had lost her husband after a short, sharp illness—a bad attack of typhoid fever, and she found herself, after some years of unmingled happiness (except for one drawback, to which I shall advert later), a lonely woman upon earth. The husband of her youth and love was gone! She should listen for his manly step, hear his cheery greeting no more. Ended for her here below were happy hours of domestic peace and affection, as theirs had been a most happy home, and with similar tastes and simple joys, theirs had been a real heart-union, crowned with the full and golden enjoyment of home affection and conjugal sympathy. She had nothing left her but her two bright children, Maggie and Harry, who had been a source of joy as well as delight to her husband and herself.

Here was, indeed, a dark time and a trying dispensation, but Mary Hilton had been well brought up, her religious principles were firmly fixed, and as she had been taught to believe that there is no cloud without a "silver lining," and that behind a "frowning Providence" the Most High "hides a smiling face," she had that consolation in her moments of heartfelt anguish and trying tribulation, when all seemed "against" her here, which never fails those, be they who they may or where they may, those true-servants of God—I mean who put their trust in Him.

The evening of the funeral, a sincere friend, Mrs. Marston, looked in for a few moments, and added her homely but sincere mite of sympathy to what is often even unavailing in its best form at such times—the loving condolence of those who, heart to heart and soul to soul, share our joys and sorrows, our bright days and our dark days here on earth!

As she left she said, "By the way, Mary, two friends of poor Harry have intimated a wish to see you to-morrow, as they have a little communication to make to you."

"Two friends of Harry," replied the poor widow. "What can they have to say to me? I cannot see them, or anyone else, at such a time, except my very dear friends."

And as she said this, she returned to her room sorrowing, for the thought suddenly supervened she had quarrelled with her own immediate relations on her marriage, and her friends were simply those of her husband, who had but few.

The next morning her husband's solicitor called, who came to tell her, which he did with much kindness, that he feared that there was but little to come to her.

"Your husband has left a will in your favour," he said, "of all he died possessed of, and has left you sole guardian of the children, but when the liabilities are paid which he incurred for his brother, whose affairs are very complicated, there will be nothing left for you but this house and furniture, which are, luckily, your own, and about sixty pounds a year. Some day, perhaps, we may get something from his brother's estate," he added, "but for the present, with the exception of a small balance at the bank, after the funeral expenses are paid, we can find nothing coming to you which will not be swept away by these demands, which, luckily for you, in one sense, your husband's savings will pay off and leave enough for all expenses. Indeed, I may have a small balance to hand over to you. But that is all."

Poor woman! what a sad reality was before her now; what an awakening from the bright anticipations and golden dreams of early hours of married happiness! For herself she cared little, but what were to become of her children, and children, too, of such promise?

And so the next day passed in sadly recurring and anxious thoughts for the future, which a few kind visits of her husband's relatives served somewhat to allay and lessen. But one thing she did observe, which was this: though they were all full of present sympathy they none of them seemed to look on to the future, and those who did say anything seemed to assume that her husband had fully provided for her. They say "sorrow is selfish," but I have sometimes thought that condolence is often more selfish still, as that, ignoring the sufferer's position, it affects to pride itself on a Spartan virtue of resignation, which may be of stoic or philosophic school, but actually has little of true religion in it.

In the evening came a knock at the door, and Rhoda announced that "two gentlemen, Mr. Mitford and Mr. Petworth, wished to see Mrs. Hilton particularly, as very valued friends of her lamented husband."

The widow's first resolution was not to see them, but when Harry said, "Oh, Mr. Petworth is the gentleman who called to take our dear papa with him to lodge, a week before he was taken ill, Mrs. Hilton said at once, 'You are quite right, Harry, darling; I had completely forgotten that. Ask them to come in, Rhoda!'"

And soon after they were ushered in, with sympathy in their manner, and both in mourning, and the widow, without speaking, but with a wave of her hand, asked them, as it were, to sit down.

They were both men in the prime of life, well dressed, and most gentlemanly in deportment, and after casting a most kindly and beaming look on the two children, and speaking most deferentially to Mrs. Hilton, they thus began.

"Dear madam—or rather, dear sister, we should say, we have been deputed by the Lodge of Friendship, of which our lamented brother was an active and worthy member, to offer to you the expression of our heartfelt sorrow, and of our deep sympathy for your irreparable loss. We have also been desired—for our Lodge meeting took place after our respected brother's funeral—to offer to you some material assistance in this your time of great personal anxiety. Brother Lacon, your solicitor, has told us of your position, and the Lodge has requested us to say that it begs to offer you instant help, and will take upon itself the education of your two children, either in such way as you deem best, or by obtaining admission for them into our admirable Institutions. We do not wish to trespass upon your time and affliction." And after bowing to poor Mrs. Hilton gracefully, and shaking her hand warmly, they most kindly patted the poor little children's heads, who were sobbing out, and bowed themselves out of the room, leaving a small envelope on the table. When poor Mrs. Hilton had courage to open it she found a cheque for fifty pounds.

"Ah," she said, "Freemasonry, then, is a real thing. It seeks to assist the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to reverence God and love man."

But, as if the excitement was not to end that evening, shortly after, Rhoda entered and said "a lady wished to see Mrs. Hilton."

"A lady," said the widow, who was now crying too; "what lady?"

"She would not give her name, ma'am," said Rhoda, "but she is a lady, and in a carriage."

"Let her come in," said Mrs. Hilton.

"Yes, I will come in, Mary," said a clear voice, not without, however, a little tremble, hearing which poor Mrs. Hilton turned pale and stood still. "I am your aunt Mary, after whom you were called. Poor dear Mary, and these are your children;" and taking them in her arms she kissed them warmly, and then kissed Mary Hilton herself. "When we last met, my dear," she said, "you and I did not agree about your marriage, and we have never met since. But, hearing of your great affliction, and feeling that I may, after all, have been wrong, I have come to offer to you again my home and my heart, and I am only very sorry now that I have not been able to come to you before. I have, as you know, no children. I shall adopt yours."

What a change in a few short moments! Wonderful are the ways of Providence! Need my readers be told that poor Mary's troubles soon ended as far as earthly anxiety was concerned. Her sadness and her separation from one she loved and cherished have never left her.

To day, when she is peaceably prosperous in her old house again, when her boy is doing well at the University and her daughter is the ornament of the household and the pride of her good old aunt and herself, she often talks gratefully of that true fraternity of Masonry which did not forget a brother's widow in her dire grief and need, and she truly believes both in the mission and reality, the good and need of Freemasonry. A splendid "loving cup" graces the board of that good Lodge of Friendship, which had not lost sight of the golden rule, to practise what it professed!

Clarissa.

By A YOUNG MAN AND MASON.

I AM a young man and a young Mason, and I do not quite see why I should not have my say, especially in the Christmas Freemason, the more so, as I am told Brother Kenning wants a tale or two, and the stories I see in the Freemason and Magazine—when I do see them—are generally written by old men—a little too old for my taste and my money!

I made a joke at the Griffin Club, which I think I ought to put down first of all. Brother Pattle, of the "Iber" Lodge, was saying that Brother Kenning wanted some tales. "Ah, then," I said, instantly, "he will be a Bashaw not of three tails, but of many tales." Wasn't it good?

I said before I was a young man. Well, I know a young woman; she is my "particular mate," and her name is Clarissa. It is an odd name, but she had an aunt, a sentimental old maid, who had read "Clarissa Harlowe" (a story which I have never read), and so had that good looking and agreeable party called Clarissa. I call her Clary—she is so jolly. But the truth is, like all our young women, she knows such a lot! She's always talking of things I never heard of! She reads all sorts of books, and is quite "easy" with professors and all that sort of people. But I am always in awe of a professor. I once went up for the army, and I got "spun" by a Professor of something, so I have always gone in against professors ever since. Only think, he asked me to spell Constantinople! How could a "fellow" be expected to spell Constantinople?

But to return to Clarissa. Clarissa and I are going to marry some day, only just at present my governor won't give us enough to live upon! He says that we ought to live on much less than Clarissa says is necessary for two people to get on with. Clarissa says that it is nonsense to expect people to eat cold meat, even with salad; it's only a make-shift.

The governor says, when he married they used to have cold meat and salad continually.

Clarissa says she must have a nice little house.

The governor says that we must wait.

And we do wait.

But as Clarissa remarked the other day, "It's awfully slow waiting."

Clarissa's an awfully clever girl. I think she is just one of the best looking girls you ever saw; and then she is so cheery—nothing puts her out. She got thrown in the park the other day, and all she said was "I hope my back hair did not come down."

Fancy my feelings when I saw her thrown in Rotten Row. But the worst of it all was that a young man I don't like, and she does, was the first to help her up—and she was so civil to him. I did not get over it for several days!

I sometimes begin to think that, perhaps, it is as well that we don't marry. Marriage is a great lottery, it's a heavy trial; and then women's tempers are so uncertain! On the whole, I think one is just as well unmarried; indeed, I think, you cut yourself out of a good many things when you do get married. So I said to Clarissa the other other day—

"Heigho!" I said, "I wonder if we ever shall get married?"

"Oh," she replied, as quick as lightning, "Don't you want to get married?"

"Well," I said, "I don't see any chance just yet."

"Very well, sir," she said, "then it's all off between us."

You'll hardly believe it, that the very next day I heard at the Griffin Club that she had been "going on" for three weeks with the young man who had picked her up in the park.

What was I to do? So I consulted my friends and made up my mind to have it out with her.

So I went to tea.

(N.B.—If you want to have a row with your "engaged," always have it at tea; you don't spoil your dinner.)

She was looking uncommonly well, and she was so wonderfully "got up." And lo! and behold! there was that fellow who picked her up in the park close to her chair. So I pretended not to see him, but I commenced a tremendous flirtation with a girl I knew she disliked very much. That brought her to! The moment she saw that it was too much for her feelings; as she said afterwards, "she could stand anything but repulsion."

We made it up that evening, and, dear editor, we are going to be married the week before Christmas, and I will send you a bit of our wedding cake.

It's a beautiful affair—with two doves, all white sugar, pecking hard at each other. Is this typical of our married life? I hope not. Adieu. Ta, ta, dear boy.

How I Proposed to Matilda Moggs.

By THEOPHILUS TOMLINSON.

I AM a very old boy now, or else I should hardly dare to tell this "over true tale" in even Brother Kenning's Christmas Freemason. Indeed, I have been rather induced to narrate it by a persuasive "plant" on the part of my friend Pilkington, W.M. of the "Amphibious," that famous lodge which delighteth in "Fish Dinners" and "Roederer."

He said to me the other day, "Tomlinson, I know you can write. Don't I remember that touching lecture you gave on the 'Pros and Cons of Matrimony,' which had this great effect, it pleased the women and the men equally. Oh, astute Tomlinson! Brother Kenning wants a story for his Christmas Freemason, and, as I said to him the other day, 'You know, my dear boy, the man who can write the story for you;' and the same is yourself, most erudite Theophilus." Thus adjured, as the great Roman poet hath it, I plunged in "mediis res," and have written out this little domestic legend of the past for the Christmas Freemason.

As I remarked before, I am now an old boy—I may add, a very old boy—that is to say, I eschew late hours and moonlight walks. As Præd sung of old:—

"I never wish to raise a veil,
I never raise a sigh,
I never tell a tender tale,
I never tell a lie;
I never wander forth alone
Upon the mountain's brow;
I weighed last winter seventeen stone—
I'm not a lover now."

No, the sympathies and fears of old age are now mine in fruition and perfection, and that is why I think I am safe in telling the story which follows these introductory lines.

Matilda Moggs was the only daughter of my much-esteemed friends, Mr. and Mrs. Moggs. What "old Moggs," as he was irreverently called, had been I never knew, nor did I know any one who did. He was in some respects as mysterious as the Sphinx, as inscrutable as Junius, as dark as the man in the Iron Mask. He talked of everything, and knew most things well. He was quite an authority on "Stocks," and "Shares," and "Limited Companies," and "Co-operative Stores"; on plays and operas, on the "French Actors" and the English stage; and, above all, he was most knowing on wine, coals, and cigars! Whether he had been a "T. G.," or a "commission agent"; whether he was a prosperous stockbroker or a retired millionaire; whether he had much money in mines and minerals, oil and tobacco, spelter or corn, long cloths or short clothes, was a complete enigma. To say the truth, it mattered little to me then, and it matters little, I fancy, to you, kind readers, to-day.

He kept a good house and a better table. He was famous for his judicious entrées and his good wine. Mrs. Moggs was always smiling. He was always entertaining. And then—and then—there was Matilda, the charm of Woodbury Lodge for many a long day, and the cynosure of numerous anxious young men, who mixed up their admiration of Matilda, without much loss to their peace of mind, with intense anxiety about her prospects, and what the old boy meant to "settle" upon her.

In those days, when I was slim, active, and well dressed, and my tailor regarded my waist with complacency, and not as now, when he says, sadly, with a perceptible rise of his eyebrows, "forty-two three-quarters," I was a neighbour of the Moggses, always well received by the old people, and a great friend of Matilda's.

She called me her "dear friend," and wrote to me as her "dear friend," and was, in all respects, most artless, sympathetic, and confiding! And, to say the truth, Matilda was a very pretty girl in those days. I fancy now that she is a fat, comfortable, unsentimental-looking middle-aged (elderly?) female, who likes a good dinner, and has always, when she goes to bed at night, a glass of warm—well, "capillaire and water!"

"But then, oh then! and memory rises up before me," sighing and suing," so to say, I was (as I believed) the favoured suitor as well as the "dear friend" at Woodbury Lodge. I always sat near to Matilda; she always had a "sotto voce" speech, a kind glance, and a warm pressure of the hand for me, and I was basking, as Swinburne says in one of his fine classical ballads, on the

"Roseate sea and sunbeam of hope."

I think it is where he describes Venus rising in diluted attire from the sea. Venus Anadyome—Venus without much clothes—"ana," without; "dyomene," clothes. So I thought it all very pleasant, and, like a contented philosopher, smiled serenely on the scene.

No doubt it is sometimes difficult to know what a woman really means. A German courier I once met used to say "dat de most difficult matter he had ever to do wid in life, was to know wat was de real minds of de womans." For, as he used to put it, "you see, mein herr, de woman's naturally artful, and she never will exactly tell you wat she wants and wat she tinks. De woman like de little mysteries, and whenever she has to decide between two or three gentlemen, she very often does not care for any one of dem, but will take up wit a fourth."

The axiom of that travelled Confucius I found to be true as regarded my own Matilda. I had seen numerous young heroes pay attention to the "heiress," as she was called, without fear and without emotion.

But all of a sudden, one evening I found that a change "had come o'er the spirit of my pleasing dream."

I walked up to Woodbury Lodge, as was my wont, and when announced by old Timmins, the butler, with his customary suavity of reception, found that for once Matilda was cold and retiring. I soon perceived the reason of the change.

For some time past, a youth named "Podbury" had been a frequent visitor at the Moggses. He was a rising young solicitor, and had some amusing qualifications for a party, among others, that of conjuring. I had heard my Matilda laugh at bad puns and Joe Miller's jests. I had seen her interested in second-hand performances of Herr Herbyhisky's legerdemain, but I had said to myself, Matilda is young; Matilda is gay; Matilda is thoughtless; but how can she prefer the monkey-like tricks and insane jests of a seventh-rate Joe Miller to the conversation of a man of mind? But to-night Matilda was literally living on Poddy's words and tricks, so we called him. She seemed to have no eyes nor ears for anything or anyone else.

Mrs. Moggs, kind soul, had a few words of comfort for me. Old Moggs said something sarcastically (his wife was not near) of woman's fickleness and folly. But I remember well leaving Woodbury Lodge sad and savage, disgusted with womankind in general, and Matilda Moggs in particular, and rather wishing that football was in season, and that I might, as the captain, be heading the rush against the elate and elastic Podbury.

So, turning the idea in my mind, I determined to "clinch" it by proposing to Matilda herself forthwith, and asking her to be mine and only mine, and so cut out the prematurely confident representative of an uncurrent six and eightpence.

Accordingly, the next morning, dressing myself with great care, and, I may say, greater taste, I wended on my way to Woodbury Lodge. Admitted by old Timmins, with a sort of grin on his face—which I did not then understand—I was ushered into the drawing room, where I only found Mrs. Moggs. Whether it was that that good old dame had any suspicion of my unexpected appearance, or of my "get up," I knew not, but, after her usual hearty greeting, and saying that Matilda was in the conservatory, she sidled out of the room. Accordingly, I made for the conservatory, where I found Matilda, in a most becoming dress and a broad straw hat, tending her camellias with the greatest grace and solicitude. From the smile with which she greeted me I might have guessed, donkey that I was, what her response would be. But then, kind readers, men in love are always donkeys, that is, more or less. And so, after a little preliminary chatter, I came to the point nearest to my heart.

I fear that I did not say it properly or with due effect, or as it should be said, for Matilda only laughed and said, "Oh, Mr. Tomlinson, I never thought you cared for me" (and cruelest cut of all) "or thought of such things. I always supposed that as you said you were not a marrying man, and were merely my friend—my dear friend; and, if nothing else prevented me accepting your too flattering offer, I may as well tell you, in confidence, that I accepted Mr. Podbury's offer last evening, and my father and mother have given their approval." Mrs. Moggs used to say her Matilda was "all soul." I think my readers will agree that my Matilda was "all candour;" and though it was humiliating to be circumvented by Podbury, I had nothing to do but to look amiable, speak sweetly, and beat a retreat.

I need hardly continue this personally depressing narrative, nor would my readers wish me to add to the "anguish of my soul," or revive for a worthy brother Mason these painful memories of the past from the dusty recesses of his scriptore. It is but fair to add that since that time I have had several "fair friends," who took my advice and presents, but always threw me over at the last, and that I am still a dull and crabbed old bachelor, whose last idea is to advertise for a "domestic sewing machine."

When I saw old Moggs, he told me so different a story that I think it well to record it here, "truth" being one of those Masonic attributes for which Freemasons are always famous. I dined with him a few days after the interesting episode I have so fully detailed, when Matilda had gone on a visit to a maiden aunt of her Walter's, from whom he (sordid wretch) had "expectations."

"You see," said old Moggs to me confidentially, when we two were "in camerâ" alone and cheery, "Podbury dined the evening before you came, and he drank a lot of Roederer, 'Simpkin,' as my cousin from India calls it. You know, or at least there is no use concealing it now, he has been 'very bad' about Matilda for some time. He says, and she says, and the old girl says, it was 'love at first sight.' I don't believe it a bit. Old Podbury is a queer old fife, and has a keen eye for himself, for, you will hardly believe it, we had scarcely been three minutes together in private conclave, when he asked me what I was going to settle on Matilda. But never mind that" (my old friend used to wander a little in his conversation), "the fact is young Podbury 'popped the question' that very night in the conservatory." Here I started, and here the old rascal's face got red with laughter. "They tell me, Tomlinson, he was in the conservatory when you proposed, and heard all you said."

My readers will enter into my feelings. But as my friend offered me a glass of 1820 port—I was able to drink port in those days—I thought it better to treat the whole matter as a dignified philosopher.

And so I replied, assuming a very stately air and attitude, "Ah, well, Moggs, there is no promising how these affairs turn out. I admired your charming daughter deeply, and I am anxious to maintain a close connection with my old friends, but, as Horace has it, 'Sic fata non voluerunt,' and it is not to be. Let us still remain friends, and may Mr. and Mrs. Podbury be happy. Let us drink their health, and may you live to see the 'olive branches round about your table.'"

Could I say less, oh sympathetic young man? and could I say more, oh tender-hearted young woman?

I feel here that I shall rise in the opinion of my readers by my candid avowals and my explanatory peroration.

And if I be still unmarried, what then? As the old German courier used to say, "you never quite know what a womans is, or what a womans will be."

The Yule Log and the Christmas Tree.

THE YULE LOG.

Are sitting round the fire, dear hearts, all true and kind,
The friends we love are with us, though some are left behind;
And as the yule log flickers and its ashes flick and fade,
We feel the havoc in our ranks old Time has surely made.

But let us still be happy, and let us hope and trust
That those we miss so deeply, whose bright memories never rust,
Are in all rest and peace, while we in happiness to-day
Are marching on our journey and passing on our way;
And then the sparkling Yule Log can clearly tell us all
Of tender love and truth mid the trials which befall.

And all those scenes and mysteries which make up our short career
Still serve to call to memory kind the absent and the dear.

Oh! Yule Log of the heart, we welcome thee once more,
As hope grows dim, and friends are gone, and life grows older evermore.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

What sounds are those which greet my ear?
What are those shouts of joy,
Which nerve, in accents full and clear,
To make me once more a boy?
Why, 'mid that blaze of startling light,
And 'mid those shouts of youth,
And 'mid those fairies fair and bright,
I am young again in good truth.

Oh, Maggie, Minnie, Polly,
Bright Effie, Jane, and Fan;
Oh laughing Susie, Eva, Molly,
Gertrude and Mary Ann!
What mean you by your winning ways?
What want you with your eyes?
This scene recalls some happy days,
Soft visions,—How time flies!

And oh, you cheery heroes;
And oh, you happy boys;
What happy thoughts King Christmas throws
Over your radiant joys.
For yours are gifts of gladness,
And as if echoing from above,
Banished all care and sadness,
Yours is the revelry of love.

May all happiness attend you
In the year which lies before;
May nought of evil harm you,
In to-morrow's evermore.
But like as now you gather round,
In joy your Christmas Tree,
May all of happiness abound,
Dear child, for thine and thee.

A Student's Gal.

By SAVARICUS.

IN the days of Burke and Hare, resurrection men and tales of their doings were prevalent. London, we all know has grown very considerably during the last fifty years. Within this period what I am going to relate occurred.

In a village on the borders of Epping Forest, close to the highway, exactly opposite to the churchyard, were two small cottages. Each cottage was occupied by a man. The two men were seldom seen by day, and then only when driving a fast trotting black nag, well harnessed to a lightly-built market cart. These men were apparently always together, and oh! such men, rough spoken, shaggy looking, of surly mien.

One night, if any person had been on the look out, the horse and cart with three persons in it might have been seen leaving the back of the cottages and making its way to the high road, where it was driven towards London. After half an hour's hard driving it was brought up in front of a roadside inn at Stratford. Two of the men alighted, leaving the third, who occupied the middle of the seat-board.

The two men who alighted, after looking about in all directions, went into the public-house, evidently for the purpose of getting a "refresher," which, in this case, meant ardent spirits. Whilst they were absent a passer-by saluted the individual seated in the cart with the usual "good night." Receiving no answer, he turned his head and spoke again; a light streaming through a hole in the window shutters of the house shone on the face of him in the cart, and this face was so pallid—deadly-white, death-like, that the passer-by was fain to stop and ask the owner of it if he was ill, saying, "Are you ill, sir." Receiving no reply, he stepped nearer, and repeated his question; still getting no answer he ventured to get on the step of the cart. One glance revealed the truth; it was a dead body dressed as a man, and fastened to the seat in a sitting position. "The resurrection men," he muttered, and forthwith got into the cart, cut the cords, and removed the body, placing it at the side of the house. Then he removed the top coat from it, put it on himself, and took up the body's position in the cart.

The men very soon made their appearance, and looking to the right and left, one said to the other, "All right, Jack," to which the other responded "All right." The one addressed as "Jack" went to the off-side, and got into the cart taking the reins, the other got up at the near side.

The trio were comfortably jogging along, when the supposed body fell slightly, but stiffly, on one side against the man who was not driving. He jerked it up with his shoulder, and then it (the body) went over to the other side and leant against the driver. He very roughly jerked it back, and it fell rather heavily against the other man, who, in a quaking kind of way, stammered out, "Jack, I'm ble-e-est, if this fellow ain't warm."

The assumed dead man replied, in a voice most sepulchral, "Yes, and so would you be, if you had come from where I have."

Almost before the sentence was finished the daring body-snatchers jumped clean out of the cart; and the presumably resuscitated man took up the reins and drove off. The horse and cart were not claimed.

Not many years ago the occupants of the cottages had occasion to remove the floorings, and there, sure enough, beneath were human bones plentifully strewed about. The custom of these resurrectionists had been to wait and watch for interments; then crossing the road at the dead of night they proceeded to the new-made grave, disinterred the body, and concealed it in the cottage cellars. The next thing to do was to successfully convey it to a London hospital or anatomist's dissecting room. The facts made known by this short tale will tell the reader of one of the methods adopted, and how it terminated.

MARK MASONS.—Those entrusted with the restorations of St. Mark's, Venice?

"John, did you find any eggs in the hen's nest this morning?" "No, sir; if the old hen laid any she has mislaid them."

DOGERRY, (City Press), understands that a good-looking man is hired to stand at the entrance to a much vaunted spirit store in the City, and smack his lips violently at intervals. It must be very dry work.

"Is this Trafalgar-square?" asked a gentleman up for the day, with his wife on his arm. "Yes." "And was it here," inquired the wife, "where the Battle of Trafalgar was fought?" This is a positive fact.—May-fair.

ON a certain American railroad, a young man put his head out of the carriage window to kiss his girl good-bye, when the train went ahead so rapidly that he kissed an aged African female at the next station. This is supposed to be the fastest time ever made on a railway train.

A SACRAMENTO lawyer remarked to the court: "It is my candid opinion, Judge, that you are an old fool." The judge allowed his mildly beaming eye to fall upon the lawyer a brief moment, then, in a voice husky with suppressed emotion, said: "It is my candid opinion you are fined $100."

AN ubiquitous reporter rushed into the sanctum recently and breathlessly exclaimed, "I've just seen something that I never saw before, and, alas! shall never see again!" He spoke sadly, and the moisture of a tear began to glisten on his cheek. "What is it?" we exclaimed; "whence! why! speak!" "Ah, boys," he said, "I've seen the first of December, 1879." He has taken his hat home for repairs.

A YOUNG lady was sitting with a gallant Captain in a charmingly decorated recess. On her knee was a diminutive niece. In the adjoining room, with the door open, were the rest of the company. Said the little niece, in a jealous and very audible voice, "Auntie, kiss me too." Evidently something bad just happened. "You should say twice, Ethel, dear; two is not grammar," was the immediate rejoinder.

POPULAR FAVOUR.—How Colorow, the Ute chief, leading in the present war, came to be deposed and superseded is thus explained. Colorow, enraged at something, came to Governor M'Cook's office, presented a revolver, and said, "M'Cook liar!" The Governor went on writing. "M'Cook—liar!" said Colorow. M'Cook continued to write. "M'Cook—liar!" shouted the chief. M'Cook would not look at him. By this time Colorow had concluded that there was no fight in the Governor, and allowed the hand holding the revolver to drop to his side. The move was a fatal one. In an instant M'Cook seized his wrist, knocked the weapon away from him, and, catching the astonished Indian by the neck, kicked him downstairs and out into the street, where there were a number of Utes standing about. With great tact M'Cook pointed to the prostrate and humiliated form of Colorow, and, turning to the Utes, said: "No man to lead braves. Colorow an old woman. Get a man for a chief." Then, turning on his heel, he walked upstairs. The next day the mortified Utes deposed Colorow.—New York Tribune.

Marks on Freemasonry.

Early History and Antiquities of Freemasonry, The. As connected with the Norse Guilds, and the Oriental and Mediæval Building Fraternity. By GEORGE F. FOER. Third edition, revised and enlarged, 8vo, cloth. 15/-

The work is the result of years of labour, whose original and persistent design has uniformly been to arrive at truth. In no instance are traditions resting on unsubstantial ground adduced as corroborative testimony of the line of research which, after careful examination of facts, he has adopted. Mere legends or gildic tales do not appear in this book, unless produced in that portion of the treatise abandoned expressly to the traditional history of the Fraternity. In a word, the constant and invariable tendency of the author in the ensuing pages is to bring the history and antiquities of the Craft down to an undisputed historical basis; and, in the pursuance of this subject, he was frequently compelled to abandon the usual track followed by writers on this subject, and to rely upon authorities whose testimony—found noted in the margin—will be accepted without suspicion of impropriety or unmerited zeal. The immediate argument and scope of the treatise may be briefly stated as follows: To commence with a narrative of the state of fine arts at the decline of the Roman Empire, and also of the propagation of Architecture and its kindred Sciences by bodies of builders who developed into the Middle Age Freemasons, whose history is carried down to the formal extinction of this society as an operative brotherhood in the year 1717. Among the several appendices will be found a contribution to the History of the Lost Word, together with other valuable documentary evidence, which is added to make the same more acceptable to the public and Fraternity at large.—Author's Preface.

History of Freemasonry, from its Origin to the Present Day, The. By Bro. J. G. FINDEL. Drawn from the best sources and the most recent investigations. Second edition, revised and preface written by Bro. D. MURRAY LYON, R.W. Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. 800 pages, 8vo, with index, cloth gilt. 10/6

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Bro. Findel, who has written a sober, earnest, and elaborate history of Freemasonry in all quarters of the world, does not go to so remote a period for the origin of the Fraternity. We do not suppose that such a mass of material for a history of the Craft was ever gathered together as may be found in this volume, in which the author seems to have fairly exhausted the subject.—The Athenæum.

Herr Findel has brought together a large number of facts; his book is a valuable addition to the literature of Freemasonry.—The Builder.

The work seems to be generally correct and reliable; considerable information is given as to the customs and symbols of the "Guilds" of English, French, and German Stonemasons. The work is interesting as a novel. Masonic manuscripts have more than usual prominence given to them. The author is entitled to our warmest thanks, which are doubly due for so learned a contribution to Masonic literature.—The Devon and Cornwall Masonic Calendar. Ed. by Bro. W. J. HUGHAN.

By JOHN YARKEE, P.M., President and Commander of all Orders and Degrees in Craft, Mark, Royal Arch, Templar, and other English Rites; P.S.G.W. Greece; G.M. of the A. and P. Rites, &c. Crown 8vo., cloth. 3/6.

Kenning's Archæological Library.

Edited by Rev. A. F. A. WOODFORD, Past Grand Chaplain. Vol. I. contains Anderson's Constitutions of 1723, being the first complete reprint in England of that memorable book. It is admirably printed and illustrated as it was first issued, and will be found a work of the greatest interest to all Masons, and especially to those who like still to pore over the ancient records of the Craft. The Wilson MS. Constitution, which forms the second Part of Vol. I., is also of much value to antiquarians and the Craft. It is first mentioned in the manifesto of the "Lodge of Antiquity" in 1778, and the story of its discovery by the editor has been told in the pages of the Freemason. It is hoped that this will lead to the discovery of other missing MSS., and that the future volumes of the Archæological Library will lead Masonic students to a clearer conception of the real history of Freemasonry and the true bearing of its very curious and ancient MSS. Handsomely printed in antique type, large 4to, cloth. 7/6

History of the Lodge of Edinburgh,

Mary's Chapel (No. 1). Embracing an account of the rise and progress of Freemasonry in Scotland. By D. MURRAY LYON, Grand Secretary, Grand Lodge of Scotland, P. Prov. S.G.W. of Ayrshire, etc. This history is based upon the oldest Lodge records extant, and other manuscripts of unquestionable authenticity. It treats of the ancient laws and usages of the Operative Fraternity, and traces the development of that association into one of Theoretical Masons. It has been got up at great expense, and contains twenty-six beautifully-executed facsimiles, embracing the Masonic Statutes of 1598, the History and Charges of Masonry used by the Scotch Lodges two hundred years ago, the St. Clair Charters of 1600 and 1682. Mason Marks, Seals, etc.; also Authentic Portraits and Autographs of eminent Craftsmen of the past and present time, etc. Imperial 8vo, cloth gilt. 31/6

Antiquities of Freemasonry.

By Rev. GEORGE OLIVER, D.D. Comprising Illustrations of the Five Grand Periods of Masonry, from the Creation of the World to the Dedication of King Solomon's Temple. Folding Plate and Four Maps. London, 1823. 8vo, boards. 12/-

Encyclopædia of Freemasonry and its Kindred Sciences, An. Comprising the whole range of Arts, Sciences, and Literature as connected with the Institution. By Bro. ALBERT G. MACKAY, M.D., author of "Lexicon of Freemasonry," "A Text Book of Masonic Jurisprudence," "Symbolism of Freemasonry," etc. 4to, cloth, with illustrations. 38/-

Four Old Lodges, The.

The founders of modern Freemasonry, A.D. 1717, their history, statutes, and privileges, together with full histories (completed and connectedly arranged for the first time from the old records) of all regular lodges in England from A.D. 1717 to the Union in 1813, constituting an unique record of the progress of English Masonry, by presenting an outline of the history of every Lodge constituted by the Grand Lodge of England within that period. By ROBERT FREEKE GOULD, P.M., Barrister-at-Law. The five closings-up and alterations of numbers which occurred in 1740, 1756, 1770, 1781, and 1792, are shown in separate lists, each of them indicating in a distinct column the number which was borne by each lodge on the previous list, thus affording a key to its continuous historical identification. Demy 4to, cloth. 10/-

Israelites Found in the Anglo-

Saxons, The. The Ten Tribes supposed to be lost traced from the Land of their Captivity to their occupation of the Isles of the Sea. With an exhibition of those traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of the Hebrew prophets. By Bro. WILLIAM CAWLEY, P.M., P.Z., author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinæ," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the Bible," and editor of the fifth large edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and Abridgement of the same, etc. 208 pages 12mo, handsomely bound. 2/6
