 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

FRIDAY, AUG. 9.

Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.

Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298,) Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

GEORGE KENNING,
 198, Fleet Street, E.C.
WATCH & CLOCK MANUFACTURER
JEWELLER, &c.

Strong Silver Watches	from	1	1	0
Silver English Levers (own make)	from	3	10	0
Ladies Gold English Levers „	from	9	9	0
Gents Gold English Levers „	from	12	12	0
Gold Watches.....	from	2	12	0
Good Sound 8-day Clocks, in neat cases	from	0	10	0
Good Sound 8-day Clocks, with alarum	from	0	15	0

Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Medals, and Jewels, suitable for Presentation, &c., made to order with dispatch.
 All kinds of repairs done on the premises, at moderate prices, by experienced workmen.
 George Kennings' Ladies' Gold English Levers, unequalled £10 10s.
 Country orders will receive prompt attention.
Manufactory: 2, 3 & 4, Little Britain.

MASONIC MISCHIEF.—The new Masonic Song. Inscribed to the Worshipful Company of Masons by Gerald Grant. Post Free Eighteen Stamps.
 London: Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

THE NEW MASONIC SONG.—“Men of the Trowel” “An overwhelming answer to ‘Masonic Mischief.’”—Court Express. Eighteen Stamps, post free.
 London: Henry Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

WANTED, for the Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar and Pocket-Book, now being compiled for 1873, the names, numbers, place, and days of meetings of all New Lodges and Chapters consecrated during the years 1871 and 1872.
 Publishing Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

A M.M. is desirous of obtaining Employment in any Situation of trust. Unexceptional references.—Address, W. C. R., Post-office, North Woolwich.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOLINE. For the prevention of FEVER, AGUE, and Effects of MALARIA. An Entailing Remedy.
 These who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed unharmed through the Fever and Dysentery, that thinned the ranks. In Half, Quarter, and Pint Bottles. Prepared only by
THOMAS WILKINSON,
 270, Regent Street, London, W.
 May be had of all leading Firms in India and Colonies.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO-THORACIC LOZENGES.
 Prepared from the receipt of an Eminent Physician, experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in Irritation of the Throat, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Spitting of Blood, &c. To public speakers and vocalists they are invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from opium, and of an agreeable taste.
 In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC AND LIVER PILLS, composed of the Extracts of Dandelion, Turkey Rhubarb, and Jamaica Ginger.
 No Pill is so efficacious in promoting Digestion, strengthening the Stomach, correcting Acidity, preventing or removing Headache, Giddiness, &c., arising from Costiveness, Debilitated Stomach, or Torpid Liver. They require no change of Diet, and the most delicate may take them with safety.
 Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SASSAPARILLA with the greatest success.
 In Bottles, Small, Medium and Large. Prepared only by
THOMAS WILKINSON,
 270, Regent Street, London, W.
 May be had of all leading firms in India and Colonies.

M. A. VERKRÜZEN, (Growers' Agent),
 Invites attention to his Fine and Extensive Stock of PURE AND SELECTED GERMAN WINES
 Including the LIGHT REFRESHING DINNER SORTS, and all Grades up to the Greatest Growths.
 Certain of these Wines have acquired celebrity for their curative effects in cases of stone and gravel, they act beneficially on the liver and kidneys, counteract constipation, promote skin action, are invaluable in cases of dropsy, rheumatism and gout, tone and purify the blood, greatly assist digestion, and diffuse throughout the system, even in the coldest weather, an agreeable sense of gentle warmth.
Nothing is so refreshing, nothing gives such zest to a meal.

DELICIOUS DINNER SORTS.	DESSERT CLASS.	SPARKLING.
From 17s. 6d. to 36s. per doz.	VERY FINE. 40s. to 72s. doz. GRANDEST. 78s. to 150s. doz.	HOCK. 30s. to 78s. doz. MOSELLE. 30s. to 60s. doz.

 Packing and delivery within three miles radius free.
Wholesale Depot: 3, Fell-street, Wood-street, London, E.C.
 Can also be ordered through the Trade.
 Each bottle bears the name of M. A. VERKRÜZEN as a guarantee.
 “VERY FINE CHAMPAGNES” (by special contract) 34s., 40s., 46s., 58s., 70s. per dozen.
 SHERRIES 26s. to 96s. | PORTS. 30s. to 72s. | CLARETS. 12s. to 36s.
 Other Wines of Superior Quality, at lowest prices (the Wines may be tasted at the Depot).
 Detailed Price Current forwarded on application. Terms Cash. Cheques crossed “Bank of England.”
Wines for Invalids, specially selected according to the case.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d.
THE ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.
 The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, Traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the
ISLES OF THE SEA.

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of
THE HEBREW PROPHETS.
 BY WILLIAM CARPENTER,
 Author of “Scientia Biblica,” “Scripture Natural History,” “Guide to the Reading of the Bible,” “Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation,” “A Popular Introduction to the Bible,” “The Biblical Companion,” “Critica Biblica,” “Calendarium Palestinæ,” “An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible,” and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of “Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible,” and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.
 London:
 George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.
 Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.
 Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

CHARLES WATSON and Co., 30, Cornhill, opposite the Royal Exchange, invite attention to the CORNHILL SHERRY, as their speciality, pure elegant and recherche, and worthy of a place on any gentleman's table.
THE CORNHILL SHERRY, elegant, pale and dry, 30s. per dozen. Carriage paid.
 CLARET..... 16s. 22s. 28s. 36s. 42s. to Five Guineas.
 SHERRY 22s. 26s. 30s. 36s. 42s. 48s. to 84s.
 PORT 28s. 34s. 42s. 48s. 54s. to 120s.
 CHAMPAGNE ... 36s. 42s. 54s. 60s. to 84s.
WHISKY—the Ben Nevis—CHARLES WATSON and Co.'s Speciality, 20s. per gallon; the softest and most fascinating Whisky for Todd in the market.—30, Cornhill. Carriage free within 10 miles. Sample Bottles may be had.
THE CORNHILL SHERRY, rich gold, 30s. per dozen, carriage paid. 30, Cornhill. Sample bottles may be had Established 1798.

“MESSRS. CHARLES WATSON and Co., of 30, Cornhill, forwarded us samples of their ‘Cornhill Sherry.’ We have taken the opinion of competent judges and veteran wine consumers upon its merits, and pronounce it decidedly the best of the wines at a similar cost which we have tasted, and a great many came before us during the process of our analysis.”—Medical Press.
CORNHILL SHERRY.—CHARLES WATSON and Co., 30, Cornhill (opposite Royal Exchange), requests the favour of a visit to these old-established cellars, containing a large stock of the finest old Wines of every country, some curious and rare, to please the most critical connoisseurs. Descriptive list free. C. W. and Co. appoint Agents, with first-class references, in towns where not represented.

THE NEW FLOOR CLOTH.
THE NEW ASPHALTE FLOOR COVERING has been pronounced by our Customers the softest, warmest, and best Floor Cloth yet invented. It is a non-conductor of heat, and containing no Oil in its composition does not become frigid in Winter, or hot and blister in Summer, as does Floor Cloth, Kamptulicon, &c., and its durability is 100 per cent. greater than the usual coverings, although its cost is no more. Can be had in Tessellated Patterns. It is used in London Lodges. For Samples, &c., (post free)
 Address—Messrs. CHILES & Co., 57 & 60, Belmont-street, Chalk-Farm-Road, London, N. W.
GOODS CARRIAGE FREE, ANY DISTANCE.

FLOOR CLOTH TESTIMONIAL.
 8, Lower James-street, Golden-square, W., March 16th, 1871.
GENTLEMEN,—In reply to your inquiry, I beg to say that I am quite satisfied with your Patent Floor Covering. I think it the warmest and softest Floor Cloth of any, and the best yet invented.— am, Gentlemen, yours respectfully,
To Messrs. CHILES and Co.,
 CALIFE.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Review of G. M. Gardner's Address on Henry Price...	483
Grand Rose Croix Chapter of Ireland	485
Straight-laced Guardians and the Freemasons	486
CRAFT MASONRY:—
Provincial	486
ROYAL ARCH:
Metropolitan	487
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR—
Provincia!	487
RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE:—
Provincial	487
CORRESPONDENCE:—
Professor Rawlinson and the Ten Tribes.....	488
Our Ceremonies.....	489
Provincial Grand Officers	489
Renewal of Charters.....	489
Recognition of the Mark Grand Lodge.....	489
OBITUARY:—
Bro. Augustus Smith	489
Masonic Meetings for next week.....	490
Advertisements.....	481, 482, 490, 491, 492

REVIEW OF G. M. GARDNER'S ADDRESS ON HENRY PRICE.

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON, OF BOSTON, U.S.

In the third volume of the Freemason, pages, 68, 105, and 358, and more especially in the American Freemason, beginning in February, 1870, to August of the same year, I demonstrated that the claims of Henry Price having received a Deputation as G.M. of New England in 1733, and an extension of the said Deputation from the Earl of Crawford, in 1734, making him G.M. over all North America, was unknown to the G.L. of England, until 1768. Second, that the record of the Boston Provincial G.L., from July 30th, 1733, to January 1752, was manufactured by Chas. Pelham in the latter part of 1751, and have also shown that it was not even copied from any pre-existing record. Third, that a petition, signed by Gordon, Belcher, and sixteen others, asking Price to constitute them into a Lodge, in 1733, distinctly stated, that Price's Deputation was dated, "April 13th, 1732, and in the year of Masonry, 5732." But both dates were, evidently some years after the petition was written, altered into 1733, and 5733. Fourth, that while Price, in a letter to the G.L. of England in 1768, claimed to having paid to Thomas Batson, three guineas for his deputation, the said three guineas are not only not found in the record of the G.L. of England, but the R.W. Bro. Hervey assured me, that he could not find that any charge was made for a Provincial Deputation until October, 28th, 1768. Fifth, Oxnard's deputation in the Record, shows that he was appointed G.M. of all North America. After the death of Oxnard, Price wrote a letter to some one in London, in 1755, urging the party to use his influence to get Jeremy Gridley, of Boston, appointed G.M. of all North America, and the said Gridley was afterwards appointed G.M. of N.A. Yet in 1768, Price sent a letter to the English authorities, claiming that he never resigned his Grand Mastership for all North America. There is still another puzzle connected with one letter, viz., Henry Price's letter in the Record, makes no allusion to his not having resigned, so consequently we may infer, that while he had one letter put on the Record, he actually sent another one to London. Sixth. While in the Record, under date of June 24th 1734, it says, "About this time our W. Bro. Benjamin Franklin, from Philadelphia, became acquainted with one Right W.G.M. Mr. Price . . . and the said Franklin, on his return to Philadelphia . . . petitioned our Right W.G.M. for a constitution to hold a Lodge, (that Price) having this year received orders from the G.L. in England to establish Masonry in all North America," etc. The letter from Benjamin Franklin to Price was not dated until November 28th, 1734, and in that letter Franklin said, "We have seen in the Boston prints, an article of news from London, importing that at a G.L. held there in August last, Mr. Price's Deputation, and power was extended over all America," and in 1768, Bro. Price wrote to London, that he received the second Deputation, in, (not 1734, but) 1735, and to make confusion doubly confused, Bro. Hervey assured me that no G.L. was held, "between 30th of March, 1734, and the 24th of February, 1735," and of course, no Deputation could have been issued by a G.L. in August 1734. Now, if Price had had such a document from the Earl of Crawford, why did he not know its date? A similar blunder he made in his letter of 1768, by saying that he received his first Deputation from Viscount Montacute. Now if his Deputation had been genuine, he would have known that Montague, not Montacute, was G.M. in 1733.

Seventh. The very fact, that Price was a tailor, and very ignorant withal, so much so—judging by a solitary autograph letter I found among the old manuscripts, the man could neither indite spell, nor write a proper grammatical sentence, and could scarcely write. I think it therefore, very unlikely, that a man so ignorant could have received such Deputations from two successive English Grand Masters.

Eighth. It seems very strange, if Price really received such appointments, why he never wrote to an officer of the G.L. of England until thirty-five years after he received the said appointments, It was not until all parties supposed to have been connected with his Deputation, were evidently dead, then did Price, for the first time, make himself known who and what he was.

Ninth. The Deputation, as recorded, is dated, not April 13th, but the thirtieth day of April, 1733," and the signature of the J.G.W., instead of being James Moore Smythe, is simply, "James Smythe." In addition to this, the eighteen petitioners declare that they were all made Masons in Great Britain and Ireland, while Pelham informs us that eight out of the eighteen were made in Boston before the Lodge or G.L. was constituted.

And last, and not least, Grand Secretary, Tho. French, demanded of Price, in the name of the Duke of Beaufort, G.M. of England, in 1768, "an explanation relating to these points per first opportunity," but instead of furnishing the desired information, Price evaded the main question, and excused himself with, that "it would be too tedious to explain the matter of my resigning as Provincial G.M." . . . and, "but you cannot find that I ever gave up my appointment over all North America," but promised to be "in London next fall, when he would explain face to face," etc, and the same promise was repeated to G. S. Heseltine, the year following. Now supposing even that Price ever held such an appointment from the Earl of Crawford, (though he evidently could not tell the day nor the year it was sent to him), as Oxnard however was appointed, and served as G.M. for all North America from 1743 to 1754, and as Gridley was appointed to the same office with Price's consent, and served as such from 1755 to 1767, it is plainly evident, that Price's claim in 1768, of never having resigned, etc., was a premeditated fraud. Taking, therefore, these, and other facts together, I come to the conclusion, that Price came to Boston in 1732, that during the month of July, 1733, he exhibited an alleged deputation from Viscount Montague dated April 13th, 1732, but learning afterwards, from the second edition of Anderson, that Viscount Montague was installed on the 19th of April, 1732, he therefore altered the date on the petition, from 1732 to 1733, and it is not impossible, that on his so-called Deputation, he may in addition to that, also have altered the 13th into the "thirtieth day of April, as copied by Pelham into his record. In the same way we may also account for another discrepancy; thus in his letter of 1768, Price said that he received his Deputation, in 1733, from Viscount Montacute. Now, had he been conscious of possessing a genuine Deputation from Montague, I do not believe that he would, in 1768, have written the name of the G.M. different to what was on his Deputation, but knowing that the document was not genuine, and learning from Entick, and the succeeding edition of the English Constitution, that the name of the 1733 G.M. was Montacute, and supposing that Entick was a better authority than his so-called Deputation, he therefore copied Entick.

It is now rather more than two years ago, when Bro. Gardner informed me of his intention to defend the Masonic legitimacy of Price. I confess that I was somewhat staggered at the announcement, but on asking him whether he was in possession of any facts connected with this question, which was unknown to me, and receiving an answer in the negative, I respectfully endeavoured to dissuade him from his proposed undertaking, and assured him, that without additional facts, he must fail in his efforts. My advice was unheeded, and the result was, the address, delivered on the 27th of December last, and printed about three months ago, which I am about to review.

Bro. Gardner is a lawyer by profession, and in his defence of Henry Price, he displayed the peculiar method that lawyers resort to when they have a desperately bad case to defend, that is, to make the most out of little things, to bring forward as many witnesses as possible, to prove matter entirely irrelevant to the case at issue, and to ignore the testimony and arguments of his opponents. For instance, the petition is printed, and even a fac-simile of it is given with the address, but no hint was given of the two alterations of 32 into 33. Our brother frequently quotes from the record, but does not intimate that the record was manufactured in 1751 or 1752. Bro. G. also says:—"During all the years of his [Price's] Masonic life, he enjoyed the fullest confidence of the Grand Lodge in London." "That from 1733, down to the War of the Revolution, they were as familiar with his doings as with those of their Prov. G. Masters in their several districts in England." But the fact is, the Grand Lodge of England was utterly unconscious of Price or his pretensions, until 1768. He further said:—"No evidence has been adduced to prove the accusation, but the claim is made that because the absolute manual proof of the present existence of Price's deputation is not forthcoming." Now, the truth is, that none of the original deputations of the Boston Grand Masters are in existence, but I never doubted their appointments, and have never doubted Price's legitimacy on that account. Tomlinson, Oxnard, Gridley, Rowe, and Joseph Warren, are found recorded in England or Scotland, while Price's two deputations, most singularly, were never heard of in England till 1768. Bro. Gardner also appealed to the prejudices of his audience. Price, said he, was a Christian—as if a professed Christian was never guilty of forgery. Again, Price, when living in Boston, attended an Episcopal Church, but when he lived in Townsend, he owned pews in Puritan Churches. Price also sympathised with the American Revolution, because he dated a legal document from the time of the declaration of American independence. But the question is, does the espousing the politics of a majority, or conforming to the popular religion, prove either honesty or sincerity? With such method of argument, our Bro. Gardner succeeded in convincing the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. Be it further remembered, that probably not a half dozen of its members had ever read a word on the question at issue. It is, therefore, not surprising, that there was an exclaiming of "Price is vindicated," &c. As for poor Bro. C. W. Moore, he was almost frantic with delight. The only thing that probably marred his happiness was, that Price's slanderer is not held to account before somebody for unmasonic conduct.

The first proof of Price's honesty, offered by Bro. Gardner, is the portrait of Price. In addition to the portrait, the lecturer informed his audience that Price wore a wig, with a queue, straight-buttoned coat, &c. In short, Price appeared dressed for the character of Sir Peter Teazle, in the "School for Scandal." Beside which, Bro. G. eloquently and pathetically dilated on the beauty of his hero's forehead, eyes, &c., and concluded with a citation from Price's epitaph, viz., "An honest man the noblest work of God." But as the poet said:—

"When all is done, on the tomb is seen,

Not what he was, but what he should have been."

And as the most successful impostors can, when sitting for a portrait, put on innocent looks, the portrait and tombstone can neither prove Price's honesty or dishonesty.

The next testimony brought forward was the epitaph on the tombstone, from which it appears that Price was born "about 1696," that he came to Boston "about 1723," that he received a deputation appointing him G.M. of Masons in New England (with no date), "and in the year 1733, was appointed a cornet in the Governor's Troop of Guards with the rank of major," and "these statements," says Bro. G., "must be taken as true;" because "inscriptions on tombstones are admitted as original evidence in legal tribunals. If they have been publicly exhibited, and were well known to the family, the publicity of them supplies the defect of proof." But the question is, were these facts well known to the family? Was the information conveyed by the epitaph known to the family, or was it merely obtained by them from hearsay?

In 1762, Price removed to Townsend, situated about fifty miles from Boston. He came there wifeless and childless. In 1771, he married a widow, probably not more than half his own age. He died in 1780, and was buried in Townsend. Now, what evidence can Bro. Gardner adduce, that the Townsend widow had any personal knowledge about Price's early life. The tombstone, it is true, was publicly exhibited, but where? not in Boston, but in a remote corner of the State, where, probably, not a solitary acquaintance of Price had ever been to, to confirm, or to disprove, the statements of the epitaph. Bro. Gardner glibly tells us, that Price was known as a major since 1733; but by his own showing, it appears that he was never so designated in Boston among his associates, and it was only in 1764 and 1765, when Price served on a committee as representative of Townsend in the Provincial Legislature, that the clerk of the committee dubbed him Major Price. Even among the list or roll of members of the legislature, he was merely designated as "Henry Price, Esquire," not as major. It is rather singular that his majorship was as much known in Boston, till 1764, as his Grand Mastership was known in London before 1768. If Price had been known as a major in 1733, Franklin would have addressed his letter in 1734 not to Mr., but to Major Price. Besides which, Price joined a charitable society in 1750. He was married twice before he removed to Townsend. His name has been traced on deeds, buying and selling landed property. He has also had law suits, and he was variously designated as "Henry Price, Taylor," as Mr. Price, as Henry Price, gentleman, and as H. P., Esq.; but in no solitary instance, either in the Masonic record, or elsewhere, could Bro. Gardner discover Price designated as major before 1764 or 1765. And now, what did his widow know about the rest of the epitaph? "He came to Boston about 1723, was born about the year 1697, and received a deputation for G.M. of New England," &c. Now, if Price's widow or executors had found among Price's papers the deputations, is it not reasonable to suppose that the tombstone would not only have furnished the date of his deputation for New England? but it would also have informed us, when he was made G.M. of all America; but as we have neither the one nor the other, it is evident that his survivors had no positive knowledge, or positive evidence, regarding Price's Masonry; and the epitaph is, therefore, worthless as testimony.

The next argument of Bro. Gardner was, "how is it possible?" How was it possible for the Grand Lodge of England to have remained ignorant of Price's imposture for so many years? and how was it possible for Price to deceive the Bostonians for so many years. To sustain his supposed impossibility of such an event, he informs us that Tomlinson visited the Grand Lodge of England in January, 1739, where, he enumerates, there were present the Earl of Loudoun, Thomas Batson, John Revis, George Payne, and Dr. Desaguliers, upon which facts the lecturer was pleased to indulge himself with imaginings.

That Tomlinson must have been catechised and lionised, that all the dignitaries present must have questioned him, and that he must have told all he knew about Price, and to suppose that he concealed the truth is equal to an "accusation of complicity with Price." The fact, however, is, we know very little about the character of Tomlinson, but I do know that he was not over scrupulous in performing his masonic duties. Thus his deputation enjoined him to hold quarterly communications, to make an annual report to Grand Lodge of England, to pay two guineas for every lodge constituted by him, and it confined his jurisdiction to New England and its territories, but Tomlinson held no quarterly meetings, he made no annual returns, he constituted a lodge in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in 1738, and never made the fact known to the Grand Lodge of England, and when he was at Antigua, in the West Indies, he went to work and made Masons there (so says the record). Now it is true that Tomlinson did visit the Grand Lodge as above stated, but the question is, with a consciousness of his masonic shortcomings, is it not likely that he avoided being questioned, besides which, Bro. G. did not appear to know that among the dignitaries present at that meeting was also Dr. Anderson. If Tomlinson had felt desirous of being interrogated by the leading men present, Dr. Anderson would have been foremost in his thoughts to make acquaintance of.

Dr. Anderson was not only the author of the Masonic Constitution, but at that very meeting of the Grand Lodge it was decided to adopt Dr. Anderson's improved Constitution, which was printed in the month of June ensuing, and it is scarcely necessary to say that had Tomlinson been introduced to Anderson, and had he informed him about Price, that Anderson would have made a note on the very MS., which he must have then had in his possession, and Price would have appeared in the second edition of Anderson's Constitution, instead of which Anderson not only did not allude to Price, but he even did not allude to Tomlinson's presence at that meeting, and as Bro. Gardner has not the slightest proof to offer that Tomlinson was interrogated, etc., his mere imaginings are no evidence whatever.

(To be continued.)

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."

I had been afflicted nine years with rheumatism and gripping pain all over my body, so as to be, most of the time, unable to do any work, and had been confined to my bed several weeks, when I heard of your Pain Killer, and got a bottle. I began using it at once, and within twelve hours was free from pain, and able to walk.—G. HEWSON, Warrington, Aug. 1867.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

GRAND CHAPTER OF THE ROSE CROIX DEGREE FOR IRELAND.

Report of the Vice President to the Convocation of Prince Masons, held at Dublin, Monday, April 15th, 1872.

Having been re-appointed in November last to the Vice Presidency of the Grand Chapter of Prince Masons in Ireland, which had become vacant by the resignation of our respected Brother Sir Edward Borough, Bart., it has once more become my duty to report upon the state of our Fraternity of the Rose Croix Degree. For the information of those who have not been present at a Convocation until this occasion, I shall shortly state what the objects of a Convocation are, and why the Vice-President's Report is usually presented at each meeting.

It is now established as a general rule of the Rose Croix Order in Ireland, by the Constitutions of 1866, that a general assembly of its members shall take place in every third year. Triennial Convocations had previously been held only in compliance with a custom which had prevailed for many years before, while there were yet but a few Prince Masons in Ireland. Such Convocations have never been deemed to have any legislative authority. The government of our Order became vested, in 1836, in the Council of Rites, then newly established, which has since become, and is now better designated "The Grand Chapter of Prince Masons." The triennial meeting appears to have been originally more of a social character than otherwise; but as it afforded opportunity for suggestion, deliberation, and mutual communication, it gradually became more like a general committee; but it was found profitable in other ways, particularly as the Order became more widely extended. I would use the words of a masonic writer of great eminence, Dr. Mackey, to convey what I would express:—"Here," he says, "old attachments are renewed, and new ones are formed; good feeling is cultivated, and lasting friendships are established among men, many of whom meet for the first time as strangers; but who learn, before parting, to entertain mutual respect and kindness." And it is advantageous to the fraternity that opinions should be interchanged respecting it, and that younger and more energetic men should mingle in the discussions of those who have already felt the effect of years, and are apt to be tenacious of long cherished notions, and slow to adopt those minor changes which, however conservative masonic principles may be, must creep in with the progress of time and the gradual alteration of social habits. Nor is it the least of the advantages of these Convocations that they afford us an opportunity of paying the well-deserved meed of respect and duty to the estimable and venerable nobleman who has so long presided over us; whose presence never fails to diffuse universal satisfaction amongst us; and whose influence has so long bound us fraternally together. For all these reasons the Convocation has now very properly become a recognised institution of the Rose Croix degree in this country.

As the Vice-President is charged with the general administration of the powers of the Sovereign of the Order, and is, or ought to be in general, the Presiding Officer in the Grand Chapter, he was always expected to state to the Convocation whatever facts might be necessary to give them a general notion of the condition of the Order, and to suggest to them what he might deem advisable. Thus it became usual for him to present a report; usually a brief financial and numerical statement, and very much a matter of form, unless it might contain occasional hints for future guidance. It was never, in any case, deemed to be, if I may be allowed the expression, a ministerial document; no one but the Vice-President himself being at all responsible for its statements. I may take leave to remind some and to inform others that between my first appointment to the Vice-Presidency in 1854, and my resignation of it in 1866, I presented four reports, the last of which was laid before the Convocation of 1866. In each of these I extended my observations over a much wider range than had been usual with my predecessors in office, and went, in truth, far beyond my own humble province. The fact that I was then Deputy Grand Master of the Masonic Order, as well as Vice-President, will account for, and I hope will excuse, my having done so. Those reports were printed and circulated; whether they produced any effect I hardly like to consider; judging from the number of them which remain on the shelves of the Grand Secretary's Office, I do not think much concern or curiosity was felt about them. But as I did not then, and do not now think that our fraternity, in any Degree of it, can be served by affected mystery as to its objects, or by merely eulogising its principles or its members, I had no hesitation in making as fair and as candid statements respecting our institution as I could, neither depreciating its merits nor extenuating its defects. My present report shall be equally candid, but shall be restricted within much narrower limits. The general government of the Masonic Order at large is now entrusted to one perfectly competent to the duty of governing it, and I shall not encroach upon his province. With respect to the Rose Croix Order in particular, my former reports have exhausted my general observations about it; no subject can afford an endless supply of new matter; twice-told stories are proverbially tedious, and I do not think the lapse even of six years has given me any additional subjects on which I might address you with advantage. If the saying be true that it is a happy nation which has no history, I may congratulate you that the period that has passed since I addressed the Convocation six years since has, so far as this our Order is concerned, not been a very eventful one.

We have enjoyed our homes in peace, while a neighbouring nation has been convulsed with the struggle of a most terrible war, which crumbled an empire into dust. The subterranean fires of civil contention, though their startling sound has now and then been heard, have not burst forth to wrap our capitals in flames, or deluge our streets with blood. Events, so great that we still seem to gaze appalled upon the scenes so lately presented, in awful reality, to our eyes, have passed away; and we are here re-assembled, in tranquil fraternity, to renew our ties of brotherhood—not all of us, for many are gone hence and shall return no more—but we still, thank God, may recognize many well-known and loved friends, joyful to exchange the smile of recognition with old acquaintances, and ready to extend the friendly hand of welcome and of fellowship to those who have joined our ranks since we last met on a like occasion to the present.

It has been a sort of form to congratulate the members of the Order whenever its numbers had appeared to have increased, as if it were an axiomatic truth that the more Prince Masons we had, the better for all. Without pronouncing an opinion on that subject, I have to inform you that our numbers have increased to a rather startling amount. Statistics are, I fancy, a rather dry subject to most people; but let me ask your attention to a few figures which I am going to lay before you; we will postpone the congratulation until we see more clearly what is likely to be the end. This, I assure you, is no mere matter of form. It concerns not only the Order of the Rose Croix at large, but you and me, and every individual member of it.

Taking the subscribing members of the Order as its strength, and disregarding the small number of its members who do not subscribe to some Chapter or another, our numbers for the last twenty years have been nearly as follows:—

In 1854 they were	. . .	144
1857	. . .	160
1860	. . .	151
1863	. . .	178
1866	. . .	203
1872	. . .	256

I have no returns for 1869, as I was not then Vice-President, and I have no report for that year to which I might refer. These numbers are sufficiently near the exact truth for all our present purposes. I have no means of ascertaining how many retired Prince Masons there may be in addition.

From all this, you observe there has been a steady increase for 20 years, except in the interval between 1857 and 1860, when there was a temporary diminution of nine; too insignificant to need further notice. In twenty years our numbers have grown from 144 to 256. In the ten first of those twenty years the increase was about 40; in the ten last it has been nearly 80. Are we to go on doubling the increase every ten years? I cannot tell; but if we go on as we have done for twenty years past, the Prince Masons of Ireland will soon become a very numerous body; that is plain enough. I see no reason whatever to think that the increase will not continue. Now, I am sure it must, and will do so. But the result what it may, this Degree will soon be very widely disseminated. I hope—and it is quite likely to be so—that the Rose Croix Order in Ireland will long be a highly respectable body of men. But I think we may as well at once give up the idea that it will for long be any distinction to possess the degree.

I trust that none of us are so vain and so selfish as to desire to exclude men from the Rose Croix Order, merely that we may ourselves enjoy a sort of distinction by belonging to it. It would be a sad breach of trust and breach of duty if we were to allow such a mean motive to influence our conduct. If we were sure that each Chapter would be, as it ought, a bond of union amongst our best and worthiest, a school where the true principles of the New Law we profess to have adopted would be taught and learned, such heaven would soon produce an effect on public opinion which our society would feel to its advantage, and we should indeed make a wide step in the furtherance of the great design of every degree of the brotherhood, most of all of our own. But unless we try to make our Chapters approximate, in some sort, to that high standard, they will soon present a different aspect. And it is a fair and laudable object to make it a distinction, in the real sense of the word, to belong to the Rose Croix Degree. Do you think it any distinction to wear a scarlet ribbon? I trust none of us have so learned the objects, advantages, or duties of Prince Masonry. Would we refuse that outward decoration to those who deserve it? I would we could share it with thousands of such! But let us see how the case stands in fact.

Of our present total number (which we may call 260, as it is really 256) there are 180 members of Dublin Chapters, and but 80 members of country Chapters. Six years ago we had 74 members of country Chapters; so that there has been hitherto no extension of this Order since 1866 in the country; the whole increase has been in Dublin. The reason is obvious. There are now seven Chapters in Dublin; there have been but three in the country until very recently, when a warrant was issued to Limerick and another to the town of Boyle. Does it not seem plain that the more warrants we grant the more Prince Masons we shall have? That, I may be told, is a mere truism. So, perhaps, it is; but it is a truism worth attention. But are we, because this is so, to refuse to extend the Order by issuing new warrants? No; that, if it were possible, would be unjust: we have no right to exclude deserving men, merely because we have a great many such in our ranks already. What I want to impress on your minds is the actual duty of having regard, whenever an application is made for a new warrant, to the requirements of the district, and to the general advantage of the fraternity, as well as to the wishes of three or four individuals. There are now twelve separate Chapters in Ireland. I expressed, in a former report, an opinion which experience has confirmed, that Prince Masonry, in this country, is considered as a development of Ancient Craft Masonry, and is looked forward to by our best and most zealous brethren as the due reward of their zeal and merit. Masonry has made great progress in this country during the last thirty or forty years, and the Rose Croix Order is now sought for by great numbers. I have begun to think that most of those who take an active part, one way or another, in Freemasonry at large, not only make it an object to become a Prince Mason, but deem it almost their right to obtain that Masonic rank.

(To be continued.)

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s.	6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s.	6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s.	od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s.	od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers	2s.	6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The Office of THE FREEMASON is now transferred to 198, FLEET-STREET, E.C. All communications for the Editor or Publisher should therefore be forwarded to that address.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

G. C.—“The Freemasons’ Festival March, and Masonic Hymn,” or “the Freemasons’ March.”

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, AUGUST 10, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

STRAIGHT-LACED GUARDIANS AND THE FREEMASONS.

The proverbial cold charity of the world too often finds its most striking illustrations in the gentlemen who are entrusted with the guardianship of the poor; and the most recent freaks of thought expressed by several members of the Liverpool Select Vestry (a body of men constituted by a special Act of Parliament for the care of the poor, and thereby supposed to be elevated above the common run of guardians), would seem to indicate that ignorant prejudice may be added to their other characteristics.

The “selected” of the men entrusted with the conduct of the Liverpool workhouse, have more than once made themselves conspicuous by their determination to make those under their care feel that they have no right to participate in the world’s pleasure. Not long ago, several of the most prominent of this “select body” turned up their eyes in horror at an invitation sent by a kind-hearted circus proprietor, for the free attendance of the Industrial Schools’ children at one of his entertainments. Forgetting that they had ever been boys, several vestrymen spoke of the evil influences of such visits, thought it would lead to a desire for mild dissipation on the part of the lads, and curtly refused the well-meant kindness. The excursions of the lads in connection with the Industrial Schools, are, like “angels’ visits, few and far between,” and therefore all the greater praise is due to those kind-hearted individuals, who, impressed with their comparatively monotonous existence, invite them once and again to enjoy the fresh country air and the exhilarating influences of a day freed from the dull routine of institution life. In this spirit the band of the Industrial Schools was recently, by several prominent brethren invited to a Masonic demonstration at Crosby, but the very mention of Freemasonry seems to act in the most curious manner upon the antiquated and straight-laced vestrymen, who are appointed for the Government of affairs. A Freemasons’ demonstration to them, has the appearance of something “uncanny,” and therefore, at the last meeting of the vestry, several of the parochial lights spoke in no measured terms of the danger of accepting such invitations. It appears that the boys’ band had been present at the objectionable demonstration, that the little fellows, while discoursing sweet sounds to those who had the soul to appreciate their efforts, had been thoroughly delighted with their pleasant “out,” and one of the vestrymen had even the boldness and honesty to say that “nothing undesirable transpired” during the day, which announcement must have been an immense relief to the more than fatherly feeling of those who fancied the worst evils as the result of being a day with the brethren of the mysterious order. but still, while blessing their stars for this happy deliverance from something “undesirable,” the selected and elected representatives of parochial power querulously gave vent to one or two of their complaints. The chief of these was that the fete was held at an hotel, which, in the minds of these wiseacres, was apparently equivalent to certain ruin and lasting disgrace.

The question naturally arises, however, if such proceedings are so very dangerous, why the boys got the permission to be present from their tender guardians, and after getting this liberty, why such a rumpus should be made about it. Religious bigotry has not been the least characteristic of these gentlemen,—at least the majority of them—and this, the latest development of their peculiar notions, will not add much to their dignity and importance.

We do not hope to convince them of their stupid folly, but it is necessary to say to those who may be influenced by their dictum that no more harmless pleasure could have been furnished for the boys’ band than that which they found at the masonic demonstration. Masonry has many jewels, but the brightest of these is charity, and in giving the invitation of which complaint is made the brethren naturally thought they were carryings out legitimately the very spirit of that grace. The vestrymen of Liverpool apparently knew nothing about the matter, but the brethren connected with the demonstration must have the comfort of knowing that they were the means of giving at least one pleasant day to boys whose daily life, at the best, is not of the brightest, if the conduct and feelings of their guardians are to be taken as index.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

SURREY.

FREDERICK LODGE OF UNITY (No. 452).—(By our Special Reporter).—The last meeting of the year of this lodge, was held at the Station Hotel, Sutton, on Tuesday last, the 6th instant. There were present:—Bros. William Thomas Sugg, W.M.; W. C. Poole, S.W.; A. J. Dickinson, J.W.; John Robins, P.M., Treas.; Magnus Ohren, P.M., Sec.; Masterman, S.D.; J. W. Sugg, J.D.; H. E. Frances, P.M., D.C.; George Wright, Steward; H. J. Strong, P.M.; Newton E. Jennings, P.M.; and Bros. Jeffrey, Back, Zohrab, E. H. Sugg, Gilbert, Wilson, and Pollard, members of the lodge; whilst among the visitors we observed Bros. Charles Horsley, Prov. Grand Reg. for Middlesex, P.M. 69; J. W. Wright, Britannic 33; and Alexander Clark. As the number indicates, this lodge was founded many years ago, and, like many other lodges, has, at some periods, been extremely popular, while at others the members have been very few. Small lodges, when well directed, are, no doubt, very comfortable; but it must nevertheless, be far more gratifying to the successive Masters of a lodge, to see that their plan of management not only makes a lodge comfortable, but has the effect of spreading its reputation, and, as a consequence, bringing in new members. The Master and Past Masters of the Frederick Lodge of Unity, certainly have cause to feel gratified on this score, as the lodge which, as far as we could ascertain, has not of recent years been a very numerous one, is now rapidly acquiring new members. On Tuesday, the agenda embraced two raisings and five passings, and from the seven brethren whose names were on the paper, there was only one absentee. Bros. Edward T. Zohrab, and Frederick G. Gilbert, were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, and Bros. William Beck, Arthur Thomas Jeffery, Charles Henry Edmunds, and E. H. Sugg, were passed to the degree of F.C., both ceremonies being ably performed. It has long been the rule amongst lodges of instruction to have a convivial meeting once in each season, participation in which is, in many cases, extended to the female members of families of the brethren. The expense of these pleasant gatherings is of course defrayed by the sale of tickets, as these lodges have no fund on which they can draw for such a purpose. Many regular or mother lodges are also turning their attention in this direction by having recreations or festivals, or extra summer meetings, to which they can introduce their wives and daughters, the expenses being of course defrayed by such members as take advantage of them, and not out of the Lodge Funds. We are much in favour of these gatherings, as we believe they tend to the spread of Freemasonry, and therefore we were pleased to find that at the close of the business before the meeting we attended on Tuesday, the subject of a special meeting of the kind we have referred to was introduced by some of the members of the Frederick Lodge of Unity, and we should not be surprised to find that a friendly gathering of the brethren and their ladies will shortly be advertised to take place at the Crystal Palace. The Lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren, to the number of twenty, sat down to an excellent banquet provided by mine host, who is also a brother amongst us. The usual loyal and general masonic toasts having been proposed and duly honoured, Brother P. M. Ohren, the worthy Secretary of the Lodge, rose and said, “Brethren, I claim your attention for a toast of some importance: it is, ‘The Head of our Lodge, our Worshipful Master.’ You are perfectly aware that a Lodge must be governed by a head, and when a Lodge has at its head a brother who takes a deep interest in the Order, who is truly a Mason at heart, and who follows out the duties of Masonry with energy and zeal, then I say that that Lodge has reason to be grateful for the importance which such a Mastership bestows upon it. Our Brother Sugg.

since he has been elected to the chair, has taken a deep interest, not only in the duties that devolve upon him as Master, but also in seeing for himself that means are adopted for the efficient working of the Lodge by his principal and assistant officers. For this purpose he has held Lodges of Instruction at his own house, and I know that his officers have attended, for I have been there myself, and the beneficial result of such instruction has been shown to-night by the manner in which the work has been performed. The importance of efficient working cannot well be over-estimated, when we consider the important nature of the ceremonies, where every sentence is important, and where not a word can be dispensed with without marring the meaning of the rite. It is therefore most important that the ceremonies should be so perfectly rendered as to impress the candidate with the gravity of the occasion, and that, even while taking his first step, he should be able to perceive that there is really something in it. It is highly important also that both candidates and officers should be punctual in the time of attendance, as otherwise it may happen, as it did to-day, that we are forced to take candidates together instead of separately, to the great detriment of the effect which the proper working of the ceremonies should produce. Our W.M. has endeavoured, to the very best of his ability, to carry out his important duties, and I think, brethren, that we should all strive to the utmost to second his praiseworthy endeavours. You can now, at all events, signify an appreciation of his efforts by the cordiality with which you receive this toast. Brethren, "The Worshipful Master." The toast having been very heartily responded to, the W.M. returned thanks in a short but effective speech, and then proceeded to propose, "The Health of the Visitors," which was responded to by Bro. Horsley; after which "The Health of the Officers" was proposed and duly honored, the S.W. returning thanks; and lastly, Bro. C. T. Speight, the excellent Tyler to the Lodge, was called upon for the Tyler's toast; thus terminating a very pleasant evening at about a quarter past ten o'clock. Several excellent songs were sung in the course of the evening, one of which, written and sung by Bro. Ohren, in which the names of all the officers were very cleverly introduced, deserves special commendation.

Royal Arch.

METROPOLITAN.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No 176).—The Companions of this Chapter met at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, on Thursday, 1st, inst., Present, Comps. P. Brown, M.E.Z.; M. Scott, H.; P. A. Nairne, P.Z., as J.; F. Walters, P.Z., Treasurer. The elections for officers for ensuing year, taken by ballot, were unanimous in favour of M. Scott, Z.; R. S. Foreman, H.; T. Quinhampton, J.; F. Walters, P.Z., Treasurer; J. Hills, S.E.; W.A., Hinde, S.N.; W. S. Wyman, P.S.; C. T. Speight, Janitor. A P.Z. jewel was voted to Comp. P. Browne. It was resolved unanimously, that the future meetings of the Chapter be held at the Guildhall Tavern. One brother was proposed for exaltation. A banquet closed the proceedings.

Knights Templar.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Prudence Encampment.—The usual quarterly meeting of this encampment was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Wednesday, the 31st July. The E.C., Sir Knight Emra Holmes, Grand Provost of England, Prov. Grand Second Captain Suffolk and Cambridge, opened the encampment, when, upon the muster roll being called, the following Sir Knights answered to their names:—Dr. Mills, P.E.C.; J. Pitcher, P.E.C., Deputy Acting First Captain; G. S. Findley, P.E.C., Reg.; C. Davy, P.E.C., Acting Second Captain; J. Franks, &c. The minutes of last meeting having been confirmed, the ballot was then taken for Sir Knight the Rev. T. G. Beaumont, Rector of Chelmindistin, Prov. G.

Prelate Suffolk and Cambridge, as a joining member, who was unanimously accepted. It having been announced that the Eminent Commander would deliver his lecture on the "History of the Knights Templar," which he had been prevented giving at the last meeting, through indisposition, Sir Knight Emra Holmes proceeded to give the lecture, premising his remarks by saying that in consequence of the lateness of the hour, and the small numbers present, he should very much curtail the address; but he did not like to again disappoint the Sir Knights. The lecturer then proceeded to give his views on the interesting subject of the Masonic Knights Templar from the Crusading Knights, and quoted largely from Addison's valuable "History of the Knights Templar;" Mills' "History of Chivalry;" Knight's "London;" Laurie's "History of Scotland;" Bro. Woof's notes on the "Knights Templar," and other works, in support of his assertions. Sir Knight Holmes concluded as follows:—"The time has come when, if we wish to keep up our chivalric character, we must be more cautious in the acceptance of candidates, and in the election of Eminent Commanders; and, as in the former case, it has been found necessary to give the Provincial Grand Commander of each Province an absolute veto on all nominations, so now it is expedient that the same power should be given to him over the appointments of Eminent Commanders, since a majority of misguided or unworthy Templars (men who, yesterday, as it were, joined our Order, but who, to-day, would be rejected with contempt), may now, at any time, force upon their encampment a Sir Knight, whose very title makes him trebly a laughing stock, if not something worse, both inside and out the pale of Masonic chivalry, and who, probably, would be utterly scorned if he offered himself as a candidate for some public office, no matter how obscure, but who is permitted to wear, on his breast, the patriarchal cross of an Eminent Commander of Masonic Knights Templar. To the question as to who then should be admitted Templars, and who should be elected Commanders, I answer, him who you would feel honoured by receiving into your house as the friend of your wife, your sister, or your daughter; him to whom, and for whom, you feel you could truly keep those dread obligations you took when you received the accolade, and accepted the M.S.; him alone should be admitted to our Order. The Masonic Knights Templar are, or are not, a sham. If you believe in our ancient traditions, as I do, you will, at least, observe the same strict caution in the election of Eminent Commander, or the admission of candidates, as you would in appointing any one to a position of great trust; and as you show by your representatives some consideration for birth, education, wealth, and position, in electing the mayor of your borough, how much more should you be careful how you act, when you place in a position so prominent in your Order, and so intimate, if you remember your oath, as the Eminent Commander of an encampment of Knights Templar. If you believe the Masonic Knights Templar are a sham, a mere fancy degree of Masonry, and nothing more, that your obligations, most solemnly taken, are as nought, and that any one is good enough for the honours of our knighthood, I entreat you to leave us, and stick to the Craft, which you may live to adorn. We do not want lovers of tinsel and gewgaws, ambitious knights of the shears and cabbage, and cavaliers of the shaving pot. Let the shoemaker stick to his last, or join our spurious namesakes, the tea-totalers, who don a new name, a new creed, and call themselves Good Templars, admit women to their meetings, and strut about in regalia as pretentious and foolish as their ridiculous titles and self-assumed name. And now, Sir Knights, I must bring my lecture to a close. Somewhat discursive it must be, from the nature of the subject—original it can scarcely claim to be—since it is but a collection of other men's evidence. I have not, indeed, always shown what conclusions I have drawn, leaving it rather to yourselves to do so. For myself, however, let me say I believe profoundly in our great chivalric Order and its legitimate descent, since friends and enemies alike join in ascertaining the fact. Believing, as I do, I cannot but remind you, Sir Knights, of your duty.

I am thankful to say that the members of this encampment have always remembered it hitherto, and performed it faithfully, would it could it be said of others."

Sir Knight Mills in proposing a vote of thanks to the E.C. for his instructive lecture, begged at the same time to demur to some of the concluding remarks of the lecturer.

Sir Knight C. Davy had great pleasure in seconding the motion, which was carried with approbation.

The E.C. in acknowledging the vote assured Sir Knight Mills that the remarks to which he took exception, were not intended to apply personally to any member of the Encampment, as he must know,—but he was quite aware that applied generally, they were necessary, he regretted to say.

The eminent Commander announced that he had received two communications from the Grand Chantry, one announcing that at last Grand Conclave the fee for admission to the order was raised from three to five guineas, the other containing a notification that two were under suspension for unauthorized interference with the degrees under the control of the Supreme Council, 33°; and the Grand Mark Lodge and announcing the expulsion of another brother from the Order. There being no further business before the Encampment, it was closed and the Sir Knights retired for refreshment.

A Sir Knight enquired whether the lecture would be published, as he would like to have an opportunity of reading it quietly at home.

Sir Knight Holmes hoped it would be given in extenso in the Freemason, at an early date—when the Sir Knights would have an opportunity of reading, at length, what he had been obliged to considerably curtail that evening.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LANCASHIRE.

LIVERPOOL.—Skelmersdale Conclave (No. 77).—The second assembly of this newly-consecrated Conclave of the Masonic Order of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine was held on Monday evening last, at the Masonic Hall, Hope Street, Liverpool. Owing to the continuous downpour of rain, the attendance was not so large as was expected, but as the working was of a generally efficient character the limited presence of Knights Companions of the Christian Order did not detract from the interest of the gathering. The following Knights were present at the conclave:—Em. Sir Knight Thomas Ashmore, M.P.S.; Em. Sir Knight H. Nelson, V.E.; Sir Knights F. Hughes, S.G.; J. T. Callow, J.G.; Jesse Banning, H.P.; W. Cotterill, Rec.; M. Mawson, S.B.; H. Jackson, Orator; F. Day, Herald; P. Ball, S.; J. Skeaf, A.; W. Jackson, and W. Bradshaw. The visitors were Sir Knight H. James, S.G., 55; and Sir Knight J. B. Mackenzie, H. 55. The conclave was opened in solemn and ancient form. After the records of the previous assembly had been read and unanimously confirmed, Sir Knight Peter Ball, on the motion of Sir Knight J. Banning, seconded by Sir Knight Skeaf, was appointed Sentinel. Bro. J. McCarthy, of the Hamer Lodge, 1393, and Bro. H. Burrows, I.G. of St. John's Lodge, 673, were in attendance, and after being properly approved and prepared were duly installed Knights of the Order. Several propositions were then made, and the conclave was closed in peace and harmony. The Knights subsequently adjourned to refreshment.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The most popular, and the most effective medicine in the world, for the cure of female complaints. After many years' experience, it is proved that there is no medicine equal to Holloway's Pills, for the cure of diseases incidental to females. The invigorating and purifying properties of these Pills render them peculiarly valuable for fundamental disorders, implying delicacy of constitution. They may be taken by females of all ages, at any time, for any disorganisation or irregularity of the system. They speedily remove the cause, and restore the sufferer to robust health. As a family medicine, they are unequalled, and may be taken by old and young with perfect safety. They are as mild as they are efficacious.—ADVT.

Original Correspondence.

PROFESSOR RAWLINSON AND THE TEN TRIBES.

Professor Rawlinson, in laying a foundation for his anti-biblical theory of the absorption of the ten tribes, is necessitated to assume that only a small portion of the people were carried away by the Assyrian kings, and that the portion thus carried away were so widely scattered through the Assyrian dominions, that they never could have formed any considerable people, but only a few "small communities," who, perhaps, continued for a while, and were then lost. I call this an anti-biblical theory, because I believe it to be in utter contradiction to the plain and obvious meaning of a large accumulation of very emphatic passages, scattered throughout the prophetic writings, which, as "a light that shineth in a dark place," are intended to guide our footsteps in the course of duty, and to sustain our faith in God's manifold promises made to Abraham and his descendants, not only that they should possess "the land," but that they should become the progenitors of many nations, and, finally, heirs of the world. And hence it is, I take it, that throughout the prophetic Scriptures, Israel and Judah—that is, the Israelites or ten tribes, and Judah and Benjamin—that is the Jews—are so markedly distinguished, and so emphatically represented as separate from each other, until after the final gathering, Christianization, and restoration of "all Israel," as the mouth of the Lord hath said; for "ye shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah, from the four corners of the earth. . . . Ephraim, [i.e. Israel] shall not envy Judah, and Judah shall not vex Ephraim." (Isa. xi).

I think I have shown, in my former communication, that the first of the Professor's assumptions is plainly opposed to the text of the only authority to which he appeals, or can appeal; i.e. the Books of Kings and Chronicles; and I believe I can show that his second assumption is as baseless as his first—that it has no authority to rest upon, and that it is inconsistent with all the information and prophetic promises we have in relation to the captive tribes. He says:—

"In the second place, those who were carried away, instead of being massed together (as the Jews appear to have been about Babylon)—in which case there might have been a fair chance of their maintaining their ethnic unity—were at once scattered very widely. They were placed in Haran, i.e. in Osrhoëne, or Western Mesopotamia; in Halah, or Chalcitis, the country about Ras-el-ain; in Gozan, or Migdonia, on the River Khabour; and also in the cities of the Medes. (See 2 Ki. xvii. 6; xviii. 11; 1 Chron. v. 26). The tract over which they were spread extended twelve degrees (nearly 900 miles), from east to west, and was nowhere less than two degrees (138 miles) in breadth. In other words, it was at least fifteen times as large as the territory from which they had been taken. Distributed over this wide space, they can have formed at no time more than an insignificant element in the population."

I hope I may be pardoned for saying that the Professor could hardly hope, in making this statement, to "produce the slightest effect on the minds of those capable of forming an opinion." "Such effect as it may have, can be only on the ignorant and the unlearned."

The geography of the south-western region of Asia has certainly received much attention during the last few years, but that Professor Rawlinson, who undoubtedly holds a favourable position among the travellers and scholars who have devoted much time and labour in exploring the country watered by the Euphrates and the Tigris, and yielding some precious relics of Assyrian and Babylonian art, should be in a position to fix so absolutely the identity of the places of Israel's captivity, is more than I can understand. It might be fairly presumed, from the peremptory way in which the Professor thus fixes the several localities named, that there is no doubt upon the subject; and that their identity is as well known as is that of Tyre, and Sidon, and Beyrout, and other places of which there is no dispute; but it is far otherwise.

Leaving this point, for a moment, I must ask why the Professor multiplies the places of the captivity? Is it to make out as wide a dispersion as possible, to dissipate the idea, that the people were "massed together," so that they might, "in course of time," become a numerous people again? I can find no other reason for the introduction of "Haran, i.e., in Osrhoëne, or Western Mesopotamia." There is no such location of the captives mentioned in the authorities to which the Professor refers. How then comes he by it? The people of the first captivity were carried to Halah, and Habor, and Hara, and to the river Gozan, (1 Chron. v. 26); and those whom Tiglath Pileser had left were afterwards carried into Assyria, "and placed in Halah, and Habor, by the river of Gozan"—whither the northern tribes had previously been carried—and some of them in the cities of the Medes," (2 Kings xvii. 6.) There is nothing in either text, therefore, to justify the Professor in so extending the limits of the captives' location as to embrace a portion of Western Mesopotamia. As to the places really mentioned in the Kings and Chronicles, they have been the subject of controversy and speculation for ages. But this is all ignored by the Professor, who fixes the several localities as off-handedly as if there was not now, and never had been, the utmost uncertainty attaching to them.

As a specimen of the multiplicity of conjectures which learned men have put forth, I may state, that Halah, or Chalah, as it is in the Hebrew, is supposed, by Hyde, to be Holwan, and by Bochart to be the capital of Calacene, north of Assyria, while the editors of Cassell's Dictionary, though inclined to think it a Median city, conclude that it is "vain to speculate on its precise locality." Habor, or Chabor, is a river falling into the Euphrates, according to some, in the south of Assyria; whereas Major Rennel believes it to be a place in India; i.e., east of the Tigris, and near to the Caspian Sea. Bochart takes it to be Mount Chaboris, between which and the Caspian Sea is the city of Gozan. Boothroyd and others take Habor to be part of a word, and render what our version has "Habor by the river Gozan," Habor-nahar-Gozan. Gesenius makes Habor, the river Chaboris, a river that flows into the Euphrates, near Circësius. But where or what is Gozan? The editors of Cassell say, "A part of Mesopotamia. Its position is doubtful, though, to a certain extent, indicated by its connection with the Khabour, (Habor) the great tributary of the Euphrates, upon which it seems to have been situated, for it is probable, as Gesenius thinks, that, in the original, 'Habor' is separated from 'the river of Gozan' (1 Chron. v. 26), by a word which has been interposed only through the lax construction of the writer. Others, however, believe that what is termed 'the river of Gozan' was further east in India, and seek to identify it with the Kizil-ozen, which runs from the province of Ghilau into the Caspian Sea. From the passage in 2 Kings, 'the river of Gozan' would appear to have been the name of a district, situated on the Habor." Basnage, after noticing the speculations of Bochart, and others, says, "the Jews," as he designates all the tribes, without distinction, "were sufficiently numerous to form two colonies, and the Scriptures point out two different provinces to which they were carried captive. The first of these is Assyria, and the sacred historian mentions Habor, Gozan, and Halah, as the cities which were assigned to them in that country. The other colony inhabited the cities of the Medes. Then we must seek for the Ten Tribes in these provinces, which are indicated as the land of their captivity, both in the Chaldaic paraphrase and in the original Hebrew. The cities which were assigned to them in Assyria are easily pointed out. The river Chaboras, which is called by the Arabian geographers Alchabor, rises among the mountains, runs through Mesopotamia, and falls into the Euphrates. The city of Halah, the Chalchite of Ptolemy, was situated on one bank of the Chaboras, and Gozan (both the province and the city) on the other. Thus, then, the ten tribes inhabited both banks of the Chaboras, and were separated from each other only by the river, which flowed through their territories. The sacred historian has not named the cities of of Medea, which were assigned to the captives. But this colony probably settled in the mountains, because their population was not so dense as that of the level countries. Indeed, Ezra indirectly states this fact, for he says that they were carried to Hava, a province of India, which derived its name from the Hebrew word for mountain. . . . According to Strabo, a colony of foreigners was sent to people the mountainous part of India, which the ancients describe as a prosperous and happy country." Basnage thinks that the Israelites spread from this part of India into the provinces near the Caspian Sea; in this agreeing with Sir Isaac Newton, who places them in Colchis and Iberia.

Now, on a question about which there is so much uncertainty, as to the localities to which the captives were taken—a question upon which men of great learning and research so materially differ, and must continue to differ, there being no precise data that will bear a positive conclusion—it is rather too much to expect that we should unhesitatingly accept the authority of Professor Rawlinson, as settling, once and for ever, the question; wide away as his decision is from the more modest conjectures of others. The matter is too doubtful to justify the Professor in resting a theory upon it—a theory which is intended to help him to his second anti-biblical conclusion; i.e., that the Israelites were, after a time, absorbed in the gentile populations amongst whom they were placed, or became united with the Jews, who were carried into Babylonia; and so were ultimately "lost." In my book, on "Israel found in the Anglo-Saxons," I have, I believe, shown how baseless is this notion of Israel—the ten tribes—being lost; and I may not go over that ground again. It must suffice to say, that while the prophetic word foretels the dispersion, humiliation, and isolation of Judah, or the Jews, throughout the nations of the earth; Israel, or the tribes who adhered to Ephraim, who inherited the blessing and privileges of the first-born, were to become "honourable," "illustrious," and distinguished above all other people. See Isa. lxi. 9-11, where this is distinctly foretold of Israel, in contrast with Judah; as also in chap. xxvii. 6, where it is declared that "Israel shall bud forth, and fill the face of the world with fruit," a thing never promised to Judah, who are to be scattered abroad until the fulness of the Gentiles shall have been brought in, through the instrumentality of Israel—for "all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are a seed which Jehovah hath blessed." (Ch. lxi. 9). Hence the representatives of the two nations, are to be kept separate and distinct until the time of their restoration, when "Judah and the children of Israel, his companions"—the few who may have joined him—and "Joseph, or Ephraim—that is, all the house of Israel, his companions," shall be "joined one to another, and they shall become one." (Ezek. xxvii. 16-17).

I think I have said enough to show that the Professor's assumption, that the Israelites carried into captivity were so scattered as, after a time, to become one with the Gentile peoples amongst whom they were placed, is as destitute of proof, and is as much opposed to the whole tenor of the prophetic Scriptures as his other assumption, of only a partial deportation of the tribes forming the kingdom of Israel. The evidence is, in both respects, altogether against him.

Whatever uncertainty there may be as to the precise localities in which the captive Israelites were placed, the statement of their being so widely scattered is purely gratuitous, and not only is opposed to that of almost every other writer, but is not reconcilable with the many facts which warrant the opinion, that the Getæ, subsequently called Goths, were the descendants of the original captives, whom Sir Isaac Newton, Basnage, and others find in the western borders of Medea, between Assyria and the Caspian Sea, whence they gradually moved north into Coehis and Iberia, between the Caspian and the Euxine, along the northern shores of which they have been traced to their settlement in Morsia, whence they were driven by Alexander across the Danube into Dacia, B.C 329; but subsequently overthrew the Empire of the West, and are now peopling, civilising, and evangelising the world.

The Professor, however, has a third string to his bow; but it will, upon being put to the test, as assuredly fail him as the other two have done. May I ask for further space to shew this?

Yours fraternally,
WILLIAM CARPENTER.

THE RECOGNITION OF THE MARK GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—I notice you have inserted a letter from me to the editor of Pomeroy's Democrat, New York, and also the remarks by Bro. F. G. Tisdall, who is one of the best informed Masons in the United States. The subject is an interesting one, viz., the recognition of the Mark Grand Lodge, and its consideration has suggested an enquiry as to the origin and character of the Mark Master's degree, which Bro. Tisdall declares was formerly conferred in a Fellow Craft's Lodge. I have written to him for copies of the minutes, and if this degree was really given to Fellow Crafts, and not the "Mark Man," as I suspect, it will be for me to promptly acknowledge my error, so far as the United States are concerned.

Yours fraternally,
WILLIAM P. HUGHAN.

Truro, 3rd August, 1872.

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—Can you, or any of your numerous correspondents, inform me if a Warden in a Craft Lodge (recently appointed), and obliged to leave the Province, can, by paying up his arrears for twelve months, retain office, and at the expiration of his year of office, rank as a Past Warden; and if there is any law, constitutional or otherwise, to prevent his doing so?

The highest authority on this point will oblige,

Yours fraternally,
J. P.

OUR CEREMONIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—There is a question I wish to ask, and if you will be kind enough to answer it in your next impression, I shall feel obliged.

The different ceremonies, &c., we pass, from initiation to a M.M., are they ancient customs, or constituted in England in the year about 1715-18.

From a young beginner.

I beg to remain, Sir,
Yours fraternally,
E. J.

RENEWAL OF CHARTERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On the 1st. Nov., 1871, the Grand Chapter, on discussing an appeal of Comp. W. G. Laws, Z. of the De Sussex Chap., from the decision of the Prov. G. Superintendent for Northumberland, held in its judicial capacity as a final Court of Appeal, that the minutes of a chapter authorising its removal previous to such being carried out, required confirmation, and it was stated in the discussion that such was required by the Committee of General purposes in similar cases in the Craft.

Is this the law, or is it not? None such was required on the removal of the Lodge of which I am a member. On reference to the Craft Regulations I find, Page 92, art. 1. "The motion being regularly proposed and seconded, the Master shall appoint a day for hearing and deciding the question." And further on, "the majority shall decide the question." Nothing is here said of confirmation of minutes, nor is it, in my opinion, necessary to confirm any minutes, except where specially provided for, as in the election of Master. I take it the confirmation of a Lodge minutes is like that of any other minutes of a meeting, a mere affirmation to the effect that the proper entries of what took place have been made in the minute book. To secure this the minutes should be entered in the book at the time of meeting and confirmed before the meeting closes, as is the practice with some. If the law, in future, is to be that no resolution of a lodge or chapter shall be acted upon without subsequent confirmation, the effect will be to create a good deal of trouble and unpleasantness. It will be open to a minority, on the confirmation of the minutes of the previous Lodge, to rescind anything then done, no matter how many voted for it, or what precautions may have been taken to get the views of the majority of the members on the subject, by by summoning a special lodge or otherwise.

Thus, a Lodge of sixty, specially called together to consider some particular matter may have, by a vote of fifty to ten, determined "yea," but on the confirmation of the minutes at the next Lodge the minority of ten, having kept secret their intention, and finding themselves by chance in the majority, may, by rejecting the minutes, virtually make the Lodge vote "nay," and this is not an improbable case, for large musters can be got in Lodges on particular occasions, whilst small musters are the rule, especially in country Lodges, and it must be remembered that the notice of the meeting at which the minutes would be confirmed, would contain no special notice of the subjects discussed and voted on at the previous meeting, and requiring confirmation.

It is a pity Comp. Strachan, when moving the rejection of the part of Grand Chap. minutes referring to this matter, did not instead move a law to the effect that, except when confirmation of minutes is expressly enacted, no such should in general be requisite. A previous notice of his motion, however, would of course have been requisite.

X.

Hull, Aug. 6th, 1872.

Obituary.

BRO. AUGUSTUS SMITH,

The eldest son of the late John Smith, Esq. of Ashlins, Herts, by Mary, eldest daughter of Augustus Pechell, Esq. Receiver-General of Customs, was born 1804, and educated at Harrow and Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated B.A., in 1826. A magistrate for the counties of Herts, Bucks, and Cornwall, and a Deputy-Lieutenant for Herts, this gentleman belonged to an elder branch of the same very numerous family of Smith, which for a long period flourished as yeomen in Nottinghamshire, and subsequently rose to wealth and importance, soon after the civil wars, as bankers at Nottingham. That establishment still exists as the oldest provincial bank in the kingdom under the same name, and a branch of the same family, being identical with that of Smith, Payne, and Smiths in London. The families of Sir Robert Bromley, formerly Smith, Lord Carrington, and numerous others, still bearing the name of Smith, are all lineally derived from the same stock.

In early life the subject of this memoir first applied himself to public business by taking an active part in the administration of the Poor Laws, previous to the passing of the new Poor Law, and acted as the first chairman of the Berkhamstead Union. From that post he retired, in consequence of his not finding himself supported by other landowners in those ameliorating measures for the improvement of the labouring classes which he always contended ought to accompany the restrictions on indiscriminate relief, affected by the new Poor Law; of these, he considered a system of industrial education to be the most essential, and the objections to which he vainly endeavoured to meet by a pamphlet entitled "Apology for Parochial Education on Comprehensive Principles." This made some local stir at the time, and advocated a system which is in part now attempted to be carried out by what are called the "Conscience Clauses."

After the passing of the Reform Bill, which gave the county of Hertford three members, he was invited by a large requisition, without any asking on his part, to come forward as the third candidate for the county, but circumstances at the time did not allow of his availing himself of this early opportunity of entering parliament.

The next work of public utility undertaken by this gentleman was the opening of King Edward VI.'s Grammar School at Great Berkhamstead which had for more than a century been closed as a place of education. Its revenues, from the year 1735, had been in a chronic state of litigation, under the care of the Court of Chancery, through which, and the sinecure salaries of the master and usher, its whole receipts were annually absorbed. After several years' active prosecution of law proceedings, a decree was issued by Lord Chancellor Cottonham, in 1811, by which a scheme was sanctioned thereby, securing the teaching of grammar freely, according to the words of the original foundation, in conjunction with a general course of useful English instruction.

Bro. Augustus Smith's connection with the county of Cornwall began in 1834, when he became lessee on "lives" for the Islands of Scilly, under the Duchy of Cornwall, since which period he has been a constant resident there, personally engaged in and responsible for the various measures carried out for the improvement of the property, and the population inhabiting the same, which have resulted in great permanent and important changes, for the benefit of all concerned.

In 1852 he was invited to fight the battle for the Liberal party in the borough of Truro, which he only lost by some half-dozen votes, through certain support being withheld by a leading interest. In the two succeeding Parliaments, he, however, represented the borough in the Commons. In his political course he has proved himself a steady and constant supporter of the Liberal cause, independent of mere party and ministerial considerations, and has always contended, as a practical reformer, that it is of far more importance to correct the mismanagements and extravagance so prevalent in the various departments of the Executive Government, rather than encourage any speculative alterations of a doubtful and experimental tendency on the British Constitution. At the resignation of Sir Charles Lemon, in 1856, as President of the Royal Geological Society of Cornwall, he was selected as his successor, and continued to act in that honourable capacity until 1864, when he resigned. He was elected President of the Royal Institution of Cornwall, at its forty-fifth annual general meeting, on the 23rd Nov. 1863, and with considerable zeal and ability discharged its important duties. He also, in his addresses to the institution, brought to their notice various subjects of a scientific character, particularly in relation to meteorology and ethnology, evincing much exactness and intelligence during his term of office, which expired in Nov. 1862.

The R.W. Brother Augustus Smith, Provincial Grand Master for Cornwall, has long been a member of the craft, having been initiated as long ago as 1832, in the Watford Lodge, No 404 (late 580), where he was also raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. on the 4th Nov., 1834.

On the 17th of Jan. 1853, he became a member of the Phoenix Lodge, Truro, to the chair of which he was advanced and installed on the 19th January, 1857. His first appearance in the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall was in 1854, at Callington, on which occasion he was nominated to the office of Provincial Senior Grand Warden, by the Prov. G.M., R.W. Bro. Sir Charles Lemon, which office he was again called on to fill at the annual festival, the next year, at St Austell, the last occasion on which Sir Charles Lemon in person, presided as Grand Master. In the following year, he was duly installed at Helston as D.P.G.M., since which he was presided over all the meetings of the craft in Cornwall, viz., at Truro, in 1857; Liskeard, 1858; Chacewater, 1859; Launceston, 1860; Penzance, 1861; and at Lostwithiel, in 1862. On the resignation of Sir Charles Lemon, in 1863, Mr Augustus Smith was installed as his successor at Truro, to the high office of Provincial Grand Master, by the R.W. Brother the Rev John Huyshe, M.A., P.G.C., Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Devonshire, in the presence of the largest number of brethren ever assembled together in the province, who thus practically expressed their warm approval of the appointment by the G.M., the Earl of Zetland, K.T., &c. The patent was dated the 24th July, 1863, the P.G.M. having filled the office of D.P.G.M. for seven years, since which he has proved himself a zealous and efficient Mason, and his continued interest in the Masonic charities, as witnessed by his accepting the office of Steward, and acting as President at the sixty-seventh anniversary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and in many other more private ways, known and appreciated by many who feel proud to acknowledge his admirable qualities. In 1864 a series of resolutions were introduced by the P.G.M. at Falmouth, for establishing a county fund for aged and infirm Freemasons belonging to the province, which was most favourably and cordially received and adopted, the scheme for which was finally settled and confirmed at the special meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Truro, on the 29th of November in the same year, and is now in working order, depending upon the fraternity in Cornwall to render it alike worthy of its promoter and the Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons.

Since the year 1863, the P.G.M. continued to manifest that prudence, wisdom, and justice, which characterised him while acting as D. Prov. G.M., from 1855 to 1863, and during his Mastership, the Masonic body in the province has presented a course of ever-advancing success and prosperity; every year has witnessed an addition to the lodges, a spirit of friendly emulation, and a desire for a full Masonic interchange of brotherly love prevails amongst the members. Many are the gentlemen of education, wealth, and character, who are disciples of the Craft, and anxious to assist their Grand Master as officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge. Each annual festival becomes still more successful than its predecessor, and the "Three Grand Principles" and "Four Cardinal Virtues" of Freemasonry, by the Provincial Grand Master's precept and example, conferred an additional lustre and brilliancy to his rule; but now his untimely end has spoiled the happy spectacle, and the Province is now lamenting the decease of one of the best Provincial Grand Masters that was ever appointed. It will not be easy to find a successor to such a distinguished and worthy brother, and before doing so, no doubt the prominent officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge will be consulted.

ON THE PRINCIPLES OF MASONRY.

In early ages necessity taught the use of Society, and by the rapid progress made in Arts and Sciences, men were led to mark and contemplate the nature and properties of lines, figures, superficies, and solids, and thus by degrees were formed the sciences of Geometry and Architecture; sciences which have proved to be of the greatest utility in preserving the human race and animal creation on the face of the earth. These Arts being coeval with the rest of the sciences, were carefully handed down by Methuselah, who lived 255 years with Adam, by whom he was instructed in all the mysteries of these sublime sciences, and faithfully communicated them to his grandson, Noah. After the flood, the possessors of the Arts, according to ancient tradition, were first distinguished by the name of Noachidæ, or sons of Noah, afterwards sages or wise men, had understanding in their time, and who knew what ought to be done; such were those whom Moses instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and Chaldeans—for this kind of learning was a tribe set apart, the children of Issacher, who were "Masters in Israel." These, in more modern times, were called philosophers, and were ever venerated as sacred persons of the brightest parts and genius; such men as these, in all ages have been looked upon by the judicious as the greatest blessing to the communities where they dwelt, and the Arts they were in possession of esteemed "Royal," as practised by Kings and Princes.

Noah finding the superiority geometry and architecture had over the rest of the sciences, sent them to Asia, and Japhet to Europe, while he continued in the city he had built at the foot of Mount Ararat, and convened Lodges under them, with full powers and instructions in all the degrees of Masonry.—New Zealand Mail.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, August 16, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, AUG. 10.

- Lodge 176, Caveac.
- " 1328, Granite, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1361, United Service, Swan Hotel, Wimbledon,
- Mark Lodge, 104, Macdonald, Head Quarters First Surrey Rifles, Brunswick-road, Camberwell.
- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
- Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, AUG. 12.

- Chap. 720, Panmure, Balham Hotel, Balham.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
- West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, AUG. 13.

- Lodge 548, Wellington, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
- " 1269, Stanhope, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, Surrey.
- Committee of Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, at 3.
- Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cotebrune, Preceptor.
- Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
- Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
- Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
- Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
- St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 14.

- Lodge 1228, Beacontree, Private Rooms, Leytonstone.
- " 1306, St. John of Wapping, Gun Tavern, High-st. Wapping.
- " 1260, Hervey, Swan Tavern, Walham Green.
- Kent Mark Lodge, Freemasons' Tavern
- Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
- United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
- Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
- Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
- Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
- Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.

Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, AUG. 15.

- Lodge 1339, Stockwell, Duke of Edinburgh Tav., Stockwell.
- Chapter 742, Crystal Palace, Clarendon Hotel, Anerley.
- The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor. Ceremony, explanation of R.A. Jewel and Solids, part sections.
- Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
- United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188. Preceptor.
- Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
- Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

FRIDAY, AUG. 16.

- Lodge 975, Rose of Denmark, White Hart, Barnes.
- Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
- Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
- Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
- Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
- Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lec, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298,) Preceptor.
- Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
- Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
- Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
- Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
- Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
- St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
- United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
- Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
- St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

What better Theme than Masonry?"
MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
Post-free, 25 stamps.

Just Published. Price Sixpence.
MUSIC FOR THE CEREMONY OF INITIATION,
With Opening and Closing Hymns. Composed by Bro. EDWIN J. CROW, Mus: Bac: Cantab: W.M. 279 P. Prov. G.O. Leicestershire and Rutland, &c.
NOVELLO, EWER & Co., London; and may be had from the Composer, De Montfort Terrace, Leicester.

AN EX-CHAPLAIN, in great (present) distress, would be thankful if the Craft would aid him in a (free-interest) loan of (at least) £20. Full explanation given, but only on the square.—Address, "Clericus," Post-office, Bromley, Kent.

A M.M. is in want of Employment as Warehouseman or Watchman. Resident or otherwise. Age 36. First-class Certificates for eighteen years.—Address, J. A., Post-office, 170, Old Kent-road.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Review of G. M. Gardner's Address on Henry Price...	495
Freemasonry in Greece	497
Consecration of a Royal Arch Chapter at Tredegar...	497
CORRESPONDENCE:—
The Ballot for W.M.	499
Knight Templary v. Good Templary.....	499
American Royal Arch Statistics	499
Masonic Tidings	499
The Progress of Freemasonry and its Consequences	500
CRAFT MASONRY:—
Provincial	500
ROYAL ARCH:—
Metropolitan	502
ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE:—
Provincial	502
The Orders of the Temple and Hospital.....	502
Grand Rose Croix Chapter of Ireland	505
Masonic Meetings for next week... ..	506
Advertisements.....	493, 494, 507, 508

REVIEW OF G. M. GARDNER'S ADDRESS ON HENRY PRICE.

By Bro. JACOB NORTON, OF BOSTON, U.S.

(Continued from page 484.)

The next argument to support Bro. Gardner's "how was it possible" theory is Governor Belcher. Belcher was a native of Massachusetts; he claimed to have been initiated in England in 1704. In 1730, he became Governor of New England. The only Masonic act recorded of Belcher, was, that in 1736, he dined with the Masons in Boston on St. John's day; he however neither belonged to the Lodge, nor the Master Mason's Lodge. In 1741 he was succeeded as Governor by Shirley, and in 1743, he once more went to England office seeking; previous to his departure, the members of Lodge presented him with a "Buncombe" letter of recommendation thanking him for the many favours and protection to the Craft, etc. In 1744 he visited the G.L. of England, probably in order to become acquainted with the nobility that belonged to it, and from an extract from the Record, sent to me by the R.W. Bro. Hervey it appears, that after the cloth was removed, and the brethren had become jolly with drinking healths, Bro Belcher seized the opportunity to exhibit his letter, and at the same time presented a guinea (probably out of his own pocket) in behalf of the Boston Lodge, when Bro. Belcher's health "was drunk with ceremony". This is all the information Bro. Gardner knows about Governor Belcher's Masonry, and all the rest he gives us is mere imagination. This may suffice for the G.L. of Massachusetts, but no one outside of that G.L. will take imagination as evidence.

The next argument of Bro. Gardner which deserves notice is, that the Earl of Loudoun, who was Grand Master of England in 1736, when Tomlinson received his Deputation, that the said Earl was in Boston in January, 1757, and dined with the Masons. There we have the same imaginings repeated, as in the case of Tomlinson, thus, the Earl must have been introduced to Price at the banquet, and must have been told that he was appointed by Viscount Montague, and on the Earl's return to England he must have told the G.L. all about Price and the Boston G.L. etc. Now the plain matter of fact was this. The Earl of Loudoun was a Scotch nobleman, he had no seat in the House of Lords, and consequently did not visit London, except when he was after the Ministry for an appointment to some office. In 1736, the Earl was appointed Commander-in-chief of the American Provincial Army, and Governor of Virginia. In a recent publication issued by the Common Council of the City of New York, the Earl is described as having been very unpopular.

In January, 1757, he was in Boston on political business, when G.M. Gridley got up a dinner for him, at which dinner, Price, dressed in his wig queue, straight buttoned coat, etc, was no doubt introduced to the Earl, as having been appointed by Viscount Montague in 1733. Now what could the Scotch Earl have known what Montague did, or did not, in 1733? The Earl doubtless never heard of Price, nor of his appointment by Montague, and hence when Bro. Gridley introduced Bro. Price, as a P.G.M., the Earl took it as a matter of course. Price undoubtedly did not express himself in the best King's English, but what of it; did he not wear a wig with queue, and a fine straight buttoned coat, and the Earl undoubtedly must have seen more than one rich nabob in his day, whose English was paltry, there was therefore nothing in Price's appearance to excite the Earl's suspicion, and consequently he asked no question. Furthermore, there is no proof whatever, that after the Earl's return to England, that he ever again visited the G.L. or had ever seen any of the Grand Officers, or that he was ever again in London at all. In answer to Bro Gardner's question, "how was it possible that the G.L. of England, had never heard of Price, because about a dozen Masons had returned from Boston to England between 1733 and 1768, I would ask Bro. Gardner how was it possible for the Grand Lodge of England to have been acquainted with the misdoings of the Boston Grand Masters, without publicly having called them to account. An upright man will perform his obligations, not because he must, but because he regards it his duty to do so. Now every one installed into the office of G.M. obligated himself to fulfil the duties enjoined in the Warrant under which he acted. Among the duties of a Provincial G.M. was to render annually an account to the G.L. of the lodges constituted by him, and to remit for each new lodge two guineas to the charity fund. Whether the G.L. of England received anything for the first Lodge, I know not. It is evident, however, from Bro. Hervey's letter to me, that when the Lodge was printed in the Calendar in 1737, that the G.S. or whoever else suprintended the printing of the said work, did not know when the Boston Lodge was constituted. The probability is, that when Tomlinson's petition for a Deputation was received a letter may have informed the authorities that there was a Lodge in Boston. Such a thing was not uncommon in the early days of G.L. history, for instance, in 1732, there was already a Lodge in Philadelphia, and in 1734, Franklin called himself a G.M. I have no doubt, that had Franklin then petitioned the G.L. of England for a Charter, or for a Deputation, and stated at the same time that there was already a Lodge established in Philadelphia, that the G.L. of England would not have troubled itself to ascertain when, and by whom the Lodge was established, and would have granted the prayer of the petition, providing, of course, that the petitioner could give respectable references.

Then again, about 1751 or 52, a clandestine Lodge was established in Boston, who initiated persons into Masonry without the least authority from any G.L., and in 1756, the G.L. of Scotland granted these very clandestine Masons a charter.

Now, as already said, with Tomlinson's petition information may also have been conveyed of the existence of a Masonic society in Boston, without letting the G.L. know when or by whom it was established, and in next issue of the Calendar, the lodge of Boston, was mentioned without any date of its origin. Subsequently some one informed a G.S. that the lodge was organised in 1733, so he took his pen and wrote into the Calendar the above date. But be this as it may, between 1733 and 1768, Price and Co. have constituted no less than forty lodges, and all which time the G.L. of England was cognizant of the existence of one solitary lodge only, viz., that of 1733. Now, was this honest, or otherwise? Again, owing I suppose, to the visit of the Earl of Loudoun, in 1757, the Boston G.L. took a spasmodic fit, and issued circulars to all its lodges, demanding three guineas from each lodge, for the purpose of sending the money to England to have the lodges enrolled on the English register. How many lodges complied, I do not know. In 1760, or 61, similar circulars were again issued, when a lodge in Providence, sent back a receipt for three guineas, which it had paid in 1757, and expressed surprise that the money had not already been sent to England, but it was not until 1768 that Price remitted the money for that very lodge, and then pleaded in his letter that "accident had prevented sending the money before."

But that is not all. To the lodges here, it was represented that the G.L. of England demanded three guineas from each lodge, while in reality, there was but eight guineas paid in 1768 for the constitution of four lodges. Was that honest? Again, in 1772, a new lodge was organized in Boston, when the G.L. voted to send three guineas to England, which, of course, the new lodge must have paid before it was constituted, but that money was never sent to England. Now if the Grand Masters of England had known anything about the characteristics of the Boston leaders, Messrs. Price and Co. would have been rebuked as a pack of unprincipled dodgers. The very fact that every time a Boston G.M. died, the Grand Masters of England, sent new Deputations, is the best proof of the total ignorance of the English authorities about the characters of the Boston Masons, and of the state of Masonry in this country.

Nor can I see why Bro. Gardner should deem Price's imposition as impossible. A very similar case, Bro. Gardner knows, has occurred in Charleston, S.C., in 1768. A party of Masons headed by Frederic Dalcho, pretended that Frederick the Great added to the twenty-five degrees then practised in France, eight additional degrees and they further pretended having received a patent, signed by Frederick the Great, creating Messrs. Dalcho and Co, Sovereign Grand Commanders, etc. In 1802, the Charleston worthies issued a pompous document to that effect, and in 1804, the Grand Orient of France was compelled to adopt the eight additional degrees, with the Frederick the Great story, into its system.

But it was not until 1833 that a Bro. Maccornay, from New York was inspired with an idea to inquire of the G.L. authorities of Berlin if there was any truth in the Frederick the Great story, when an answer was returned that the Frederick story was "the grand lie of the order," and what is more, I am acquainted in Boston and New York with scores of 32nds and many 33rds, and I have never conversed with a member of those high degrees, who did not confess an utter disbelief in the said Frederick story.

Now, be it remembered, that in 1804, Frederick William of Prussia acknowledged Napoleon, and peace reigned between those two countries for about two years: communication between Paris and Berlin, was doubtless frequent, the time necessary to travel to or fro, did not exceed even in those days, three or four days; then again, after 1815, there is no doubt that hundreds of Masons crossed the borders, and interchanged Masonic visits, but yet, up to 1833, no French Mason ever inquired of the Berlin authorities whether Frederick the Great did or did not institute higher degrees, and it was only after 1830, that Bro. Dr. Kloss undertook to investigate the Frederick story, when, as already remarked, the Berlin authorities were able to reply to the New York enquirer, in the words of Kloss, that it was "the grand lie of the order." While on the other hand, between 1733 and 1768, intercourse between London and Boston, was, comparatively speaking, rare; perhaps as infrequent as it is to day between London and Japan, while the time occupied in crossing and re-crossing the Atlantic in those days, was equal to what it now requires to circumnavigate the globe. Now, if the Dalcho swindle continued unchallenged from 1786 to 1833, why then should we feel surprised at the Henry Price imposture being unknown to the Grand Lodge of England until 1768? True, the English authorities, though surprised at Price's claim, yet imagined that there might be some truth in it. But yet, while the Duke of Beaufort expressed confidence in Rowe's Deputation, of Henry Price's pretensions, the letter of Grand Secretary French, discloses that the Duke wanted full information "relating to this point," which as already stated, Price very smartly dodged and evaded, and promised to explain face to face in London, etc.

Now I come to "our record," "the record says so," etc. The preamble to Tomlinson's Deputation says "Whereas, a petition has been presented to us . . . humbly praying that we would please to nominate a new Grand Master," etc., and Bro. Gardner dwells on the word "new." New, he says, implies that the English Grand Master was conscious of there having been a Grand Master of the province before, etc. The record also says that Price resigned, and here is another point to harp upon. "To whom did he resign?" says Bro. G., "but to the Grand Master of England," and consequently, the Grand Master of England must have known all about it, etc. I have already stated that the record was manufactured by Chas. Pelham in 1751 or 2, consequently, the record is no evidence. Now, allowing Bro. Gardner all the comfort he can draw from the word "new," the question is, has he any proof that Pelham faithfully transcribed Tomlinson's Deputation. Now, in Pelham's record are embraced four documents, viz., the Deputations of Price, Tomlinson, and of Oxnard, likewise the petition for the constitution of the first lodge. Out of these four documents the original petition alone is preserved. I have copied both—the original and Pelham's transcript,—and placed them side by side, and I found the original to be not only considerably longer, but Pelham's transcript contains ideas that are not found in the original. Now, if Pelham could take such liberties with one document, he may also have garbled and altered the others, and if there is any weight in the word "new," or in "he having resigned," it is worthless, because Pelham manufactured the record, and was not accurate, even as a copyist.

The next question I shall discuss is, did the first lodge have an original record from 1733? Bro. Gardner assured the Grand Lodge that "the records of the first lodge gave a better account of Masonry in Boston than the proceedings [which means the record] of the Grand Lodge. The Deputation of Price was copied into the first lodge records, and a minute and full account of the progress of the Craft here were set out upon its pages. If the Grand Lodge had quarterly meetings, they were not recorded until after 1749."

Bro. Gardner can find among the MSS. a slip of Pelham's handwriting, dated Sept. 25th, 1751, wherein he says that on the 13th April, 1750, it was decided to hold quarterly meetings; he may therefore rest assured that no quarterly meetings were held before that date. The supposition of Bro. Gardner, that the lodge possessed an original record from 1733, rests upon the unsupported authority of Bro. Chas. W. Moore. Bro. Moore told Bro. Gardner that some years ago he borrowed the said record from Bro. Whiting, the Secretary of St. John's Lodge, now deceased, that he extracted therefrom the by-laws of the lodge, passed in 1733, that he returned the said book to Bro. Whiting, and that it was destroyed with the Temple in 1864. Bro. Thornton, late G. S., and successor to Bro. Whiting, as Secretary of St. John's Lodge, assured us, however, that he fetched away all the books and papers belonging to his lodge, from Mrs. Whiting's residence, that no such a book as that described by Bro. Moore was among the effects, and that no book whatever belonging to his lodge was destroyed with the Temple.

In the appendix to Bro. Gardner's address, we have the fourteen by-laws, but at the end of the thirteen laws, Bro. Moore informs us, in brackets, that the thirteenth article was not voted upon till Nov 14th. It is therefore evident that the fourteen laws could not have been inscribed on the record on the 14th of November. Bro. Moore also furnished the following certificate. "That the said record book commenced on the 30th of July, 1733, and that at the commencement of the said record book, a copy of the Deputation to R. W. Henry Price, Prov. G. M., from Anthony Brown, Viscount Montague, was set out in full."

But as Bro. Moore persisted in misprinting the name of Montague, and had even the hardihood to accuse me of "malicious misrepresentation," knowing all the while that I was right and himself wrong, and as he also misprinted Bro.

Hervey's letter in 1869 (see Freemason, June 19, 1869), and as in the Massachusetts proceedings for 1871, page 409, Bro. Gardner himself expressed much doubt about the genuineness of the copy of a charter which Bro. Moore furnished the brethren of St. John's Lodge as a substitute for the one destroyed in 1864. Now, if Bro. Gardner doubts Bro. Moore's veracity in one case, how can he expect that I shall put faith in his veracity regarding the lodge record? Besides, if we carefully examine the by-laws, we must come to the conclusion that some of them, at least were quite uncalled for and unnecessary for an entirely new society, of less than three months old. For instance we may imagine that, after the society had existed, say twenty years, that some of the members may have been reduced to poverty, when a permanent tax was found necessary to relieve the repeated calls of the unfortunates, such necessity did not exist in 1733, and therefore the brethren could not have taxed themselves with eight shillings per annum for charity. We may also imagine that in the course of time a number of Masons accumulate, who will contribute nothing to the institution, but will nevertheless persist in visiting lodges, and enjoying the company of the brotherhood, until at last it is found necessary to exclude them from the right of visit; but what necessity was there for such a law in 1733, when Governor Belcher may have been the only unaffiliated Mason in Boston. The truth, however, appears to be, that those by-laws were not adopted by the lodge until October, 24th, 1753.

My reason for that supposition is as follows:—In the record of the Grand Lodge, I found that on "Friday, October 12th, 1753," the Grand Lodge appointed a Committee of five, to draw up bye-laws for the Lodge. Bro. Gardner maintains that it meant, for the Grand Lodge. But besides that, the words "for the Lodge," are sufficiently significant. If the meaning had been as Bro. Gardner thinks, viz., for the Grand Lodge, then we may rationally expect that the said committee ought to have reported something at the next, or some subsequent meeting of the Grand Lodge, but as no such a report is alluded to, it strengthens my belief, that they were appointed to draw up the bye-laws for the Lodge, and having performed their duty, a verbal report to the Grand Lodge was all that was necessary. Now, according to my theory, the Committee were appointed October 12th, 1753. On the 24th of the same month, the Lodge adopted the said laws, and on the 14th of November following, the laws were re-considered, when another law was placed between the laws passed by the Committee, as subsequently recorded. My theory is further confirmed by the fact, that whereas the regular lodge-nights of the Lodge, were on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. Now it so happened that in 1753, the 24th of October, and the 14th of November, correspond with the regular lodge-nights of the Lodge, while in 1733, the said dates, fell on Tuesdays instead of Wednesdays. But lest some one should ask, "may not the Lodge have been too busy in October, 1733, to attend at its regular meetings to the consideration of the bye-laws?" I must here inform the reader that Charles Pelham compiled a list of the members of the Lodge from 1733 to December 1751; to each member's initiation, is annexed a date. I have no doubt that he compiled the said list from inquiry of the then acting members, in order to incorporate the said list into a record which he was contemplating to get up for the Lodge, similar to the Record which he made for the Grand Lodge. I have no doubt that some of the dates are incorrect, but nevertheless, it is the only indication I can judge by. Now, according to that list, it appears, that no initiation took place between September 12th and November 9th, 1733, and as the Lodge met twice a month, and as it then conferred but two degrees, and as the conferring of those degrees did not take up half the time to what they do now, I can therefore see no reason why the Lodge should have held special meetings for the adoption of the said bye-laws. Hence we may conclude, that previous to 1753, the Lodge kept no record that the bye-laws, were not adopted until October and November 1753, and that Bro. Moore altered the date from 1753 to 1733. It is further my opinion, that Bro. Moore is still in possession of the said Record book, and it is in his power to prove, or disprove, my theory.

In conclusion, I must point out that if the best Masonic scholar and most patient and indefatigable searcher of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, after two years diligent inquiry and investigation, could not meet the question fairly and squarely, but had to resort to the lawyer's inuendoes of exaggerating this, of ignoring that, of proving what no one wanted proved, and of bringing forward a witness whose veracity he himself doubted. However much we may admire his pluck in undertaking to lead the forlorn hope, however much we may feel amused at the ingenious method with which he handled the question, yet, it cannot be denied, that in the hundred and four pages of his pamphlet. Bro. Gardner has not attempted to disprove a solitary fact which I made known over two years ago, nor has he added a solitary fact relevant to the question at issue. Now if Bro. Gardner failed in establishing the claims of Henry Price, I think that it is high time that Henry Price should be given up as a hopeless case. Henry Price was neither appointed G.M. in England, nor Major in Boston, but was a mere pretender to both of these titles.

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated and varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water, October 14.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Somewhere or other disease is ever rife and everywhere its surest opponent, this purifying medicine is to be found, when symptoms of sickness first set in they may be easily subdued by this grand remedy, which gives great and prompt relief to every oppressed organ or disordered function. These Pills regulate and strengthen digestion more rapidly, efficiently, and with more certainty than any other combination of drugs, be it ever so scientifically prescribed. Nothing can exceed the ability of Holloway's medicine to secure natural functional action, whereby thousands of life-long maladies have been prevented at very trifling expense and no cost to the constitution. An acquisition so priceless should be at hand in every household.—ADVT.

"I am happy to inform you of the great benefit my daughter has derived from your Pain Killer. She was suffering from tic-douloureux and severe pains in the head. We used many remedies, but nothing eased her till we tried your Vegetable Pain Killer, which gave her instant relief. Two doses effected the cure.—JOSEPH LEWIS, Fenton, Staff., Oct., 1871.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

FREEMASONRY IN GREECE.

The social benefits of Freemasonry are so widely acknowledged, that we must all congratulate the Greeks on the recent auspicious consummation of their wishes, in the final and complete establishment of a Grand Lodge and Supreme Grand Council, 33°, and the unanimous election of a British naturalized subject as first Grand Master.

It is known that in the year 1867 the first step was taken towards the formation of the Grand Lodge in question, but owing to various causes its establishment, down to the present time, had remained imperfect, and it continued to be presided over by a Deputy Grand Master.

On the 18th October, 1869, (see Freemason Oct. 30th 1869) was regularly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, in Lodge St Andrew, No. 48, H.I.H. The Prince Rhodocanakis, now first Grand Master of Greece, and who, by his zeal in the cause of Freemasonry, no less than by the evidence of his claims, supported as they are by some of the most distinguished Greeks at Athens, amply merits our warm congratulations, and the hope that the success of an enterprise fraught with so much prospective good, in the cause of charity and good order, to the Hellenes may not fail to receive the warm recognition of the three Grand Lodges of these kingdoms.

We have also to congratulate the Greeks on the wisdom of their choice, in electing to the head of their Masonic body, one whose liberality and dignity of sentiment are well known in this country, and whose social eminence they uphold by their suffrages, while on the other hand, he has claims to such considerations which are known to none better than the Greeks themselves, who thus endorse them.

It appears that the following lodges are on the roll of the Grand Lodge of Greece, namely;

1. Children of Leonidas, at Syra;
2. Panellinion, at Athens;
3. Possidonia, at Piræus;
4. Skoufas, at Chalcis;
5. Coreyra, at Corfu;
6. Archimedes, at Patras;
7. Rhigas the Phereian, at Lamia;
8. Progress, at Argos.

From these the Grand Office-bearers have been elected (July 22nd, 1872) for the period 1872-5; and the festival of the Order will henceforth be held on the anniversary of the election of H.I.H. the Prince Rhodocanakis, as First Grand Master.

According to the official list, the rolls of the Grand Lodge, and Supreme Grand Council 33°, of Greece are as follows:—

Grand Master, H.I.H. the Prince Demetrius Rhodocanakis, G.C.G., &c.*

Dep. G. Master, Professor N. Damaskinos.*

Subst. G.M., Dem. Stef. Mavrokordatos.*

S. G. Warden, Professor J. G. Papadaces.*

J. G. W., Major Spiridion Karaiskakes.*

G. Orator, Nicholas Rhados.

G. Secretary, Reg. and Seal Keeper, Andrea Kalybas.*

G. Treasurer and Almoner, Athanasius Durutis.*

* Also members of the Supreme Grand Council 33°.

G. Director of Ceremonies, John Mindler.

G. Architect, Max. Rothschild.

We understand that Rose Croix Chapters are also in course of formation at Athens, Syra, &c., but at present we are not favoured with particulars.

In conclusion we may observe that it is just such an institution as the present that Greece requires. Eminently pacific, eminently charitable, and conserving the best elements of social integrity, it will, with the authority of such names as the above, give direction to the efforts which in common, all Masonic bodies make, to ameliorate the condition of our fellow men, and to inculcate a respect for religion and order.

CONSECRATION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES CHAPTER, AT TREDEGAR.

This chapter, attached to the St. George's Lodge, Tredegar, was consecrated on Wednesday, the 24th ult., at the Temperance Hall, in that town. Among the number of the brethren present were—Comps. George A. Brown, Z. Designate; John Lewis, H., and James Phillips, J. Designate of the new chapter; Excellent Comps., W. Pickford, P.Z. No. 471; T. G. South, P.Z. No. 36; E. J. Thomas, P.Z. 36; T. W. Goldsbrough, P.Z. 185; Egbert Horlick, D. P. Owen, No. 185; E. D. J. Tapson, N. Bradley, Llewellyn Gravenor, W. Watkins, W. Williams, W. Fletcher, Edward Esq., and others.

The chapter having been opened by the Acting Principals, the companions were admitted, and the ceremony of consecration was proceeded with, Comp. Tapson ably presiding as Organist. On the conclusion of the consecration, the companions below the rank of Installed Principals retired. The Principals designate were admitted seriatim, and installed in the respective chairs. The following Companions were elected and inducted into office:—Comp. Lewis, Treasurer; Comp. E. Bradley, S. E.; Comp. Horlick, S. N.; Comp. Tapson, P.S.

The M.E.Z. said he had a most pleasing duty to perform with reference to some of the companions, who had, at considerable personal inconvenience, honoured the Chapter by their attendance, and without whose kind assistance it would have been quite impossible to carry out the wishes of the companions, as far as regarded the consecration of the chapter and the installation of the Principals. The companions he alluded to were E. Comps. W. Pickford, P.Z. of Chapter 471; E. J. Thomas, P.Z. of Chapter 36; and T. South, P.Z. of Chapter 36; who had attended from Cardiff to render their fraternal assistance, and Companion Goldsbrough, who had attended from London. The M.E.Z. then proposed that the heartiest thanks of the chapter be voted to those companions, and that they be elected honorary members of the chapter.

The proposition was seconded by the E. Companion H., and unanimously agreed to.

Several candidates were proposed for exaltation and as joining members, after which the chapter was closed in solemn form.

The following members of the chapter and visitors partook of an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Spencer, of the Castle Hotel:

E. Comps. G. A. Brown, Z.; John Lewis, H.; Jas. Phillips, J.; W. Pickford, P.Z.; T. G. South, P.Z.; T. W. Goldsbrough, P.Z.; Comps. D. P. Owen, 185; Egbert Horlick, S. N. 1098; E. Bradley, S. E. 1098; E. D. J. Tapson, P. Soj. 1098; Llewellyn Gravenor 1st A. S.; W. Watkins, W. Williams, W. Fletcher, E. Esp, E. Jones, P. Prov, G. Chaplain; E. Surdenback, T. Spencer, W. Davies, A. Spencer, J. T. Morgan, J. Paretta, D. E. Williams, — Rogers, J. Rowlands, T. Anthony, J. T. Green, D. Dobbs, and others.

Grace having been said, the usual toasts were proposed and honoured.

In proposing "The Health of the Prince of Wales," the M.E.Z. said:—I claim an enthusiastic reception for this toast, firstly, as his being the eldest son of the lady who rules over his country so wisely and so well. This is a toast which cannot fail to be of the deepest interest to us all. In addressing masons, I address none but loyal men. I claim an enthusiastic reception for him as the heir to the throne of the mightiest nation upon earth, and I claim again this reception for him as having identified himself with us as a Mason. Our chapter is named after him, and if you will spare me a few moments, I will tell you the history of our thus christening it. You all remember last year, when it was whispered through the land that the Prince was ill. We were such believers in the excellent constitution of the Prince that we almost imagined no ill could happen to him; but it pleased the the Almighty to teach us a lesson. We all remember that Sunday morning, when the message was flashed from shore to shore that the Prince was sick nigh unto death. The prayers of the people throughout the world to the Ruler of Creation reached Heaven, and were answered, and our beloved Prince was spared to us. It was about that time that our Chapter was talked about, and we determined to call it the "Prince of Wales Chapter."

After the toast, Comp. Tapson, sung, with great taste and feeling, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," in the refrain of which the Companions heartily joined.

The M.E.Z.:—As for the former, so do I ask for an enthusiastic reception for the next toast is "The Health of the Marquis of Ripon, the Grand Z. of Masons, to whom he is an object of veneration and who is as well known as a mason as he is for his high standing in the councils of the land, he has recently been engaged in a matter of vital importance to our country, and the probability is that a firm and lasting friendship will be concluded with America, through his intervention, Without further comment, I propose to you "The Health of the Marquis of Ripon, the Grand Z. of the order:—

The Rev. Comp. E. Jones, in an eloquent and eulogistic address, proposed "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon."

The M.E.Z.:—The next toast is one which we cannot drink without enthusiasm, it is "The Health of the Right Worshipful Brother Colonel Lyne." I regret exceedingly he is not present here to day for two reasons, firstly because his visit would have been esteemed a distinguished honour on this occasion, Secondly he is always able to give us a good speech; under his rule, Craft Masonry in this province has prospered, and will continue to prosper, and I hope he will not forget Royal Arch Masonry also.

Excellent Companion H:—I have been entrusted with the toast of "The Deputy Prov. [Grand Master," who, we hoped, would be with us to day, but a sudden emergency called him away. I received a telegram from him to say he could not attend, as he at first hoped to have done. beg to propose his very good health.

Comp. Goldsbrough: I feel proud of the privilege accorded to me, to propose "The health of the M.E.Z. of the Prince of Wales Chapter," whom I have had the happiness of knowing for the best part of thirty years. Those of my companions here, who have had that pleasure for a far shorter time than myself, I have good reasons for knowing, can fully indorse the high opinion I entertain of the character, disposition, and ability of that excellent, most excellent companion. Whether I speak of him as a gentleman, a friend, a brother Mason, or in his professional character, he highly deserves the respect, the esteem, and the admiration of us all. Wheresoever he has been, he has earned for himself the warmest feelings of friendship, regard, and high appreciation of each, and of all who have had the advantage of associating with him. You all know him too well to require, I should say, one word more. I feel that this chapter must flourish under so good and able a ruler, and I call upon you to drink his very good health, and long life to him.

The M.E.Z.—Companion Goldsbrough, and brethren, I must, in the old fashioned way, say, words fail me to express the feelings of my heart. The best way of saying it, is, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the position in which you have placed me, I thank you for the kindness you have always extended to me. From the time when I first came as a stranger among you, to the present moment, I have received unqualified kindness and good fellowship, and from none more so than from the brethren of the St. George's Lodge, I should like to make this public declaration, that so far as I can, the best of my efforts are at the disposal of the chapter, and not only of the chapter but also of Craft Masonry throughout the Province. If I talk for an hour I cannot say more than, simply I thank you for the kind and hearty way in which you have received the toast of my health. The best I can, the best I'll do.

The M.E.Z. proposed "The Health of Excellent Comps. Lewis and Phillips, H. and J. of the Chapter," and said:—No one esteems those companions more highly than I do; two more worthy men do not live in this town, or own allegiance to Masonry. You all know that they are two cheery honest masons, who adorn Masonry as much as Masonry adorns them, and we will drink their good healths.

E. Comp. H.: I am extremely obliged to the Most Excellent for the warm manner in which he has spoken of me, and which it will always be my endeavour to deserve. I have the interests of Masonry at heart, and have always taken a lively interest in it, and have not missed a single meeting of my lodge since its consecration, and I consider it my duty to further the interests of the chapter to the utmost of my power.

E. Comp. J., in returning thanks, said: In my love and attachment to Masonry, I yield to none. I thank the companions for the honour they have conferred upon me by placing me in the third chair, and I will endeavour to discharge my duty to their satisfaction, and to the credit of the chapter. I had the pleasure of being one of the founders of the lodge, in attending which I have only missed one occasion, and I hope to be able, not only to do my duty to the chapter, but to Masonry at large also.

The M.E.Z.: Once more I address you, and I ask every one of you to charge your columns a bumper. The health I have to propose is that of Comp. Goldsbrough, who has conducted so much to the success of to-day. It is a source of regret to me that some of [the companions were not able to be present to witness the admirable way in which a very difficult ceremony was gone through to-day. I believe I am not unjustified in saying that the ceremony could not be surpassed by any, and equalled by few. The longer Comp. Goldsbrough is known, the more he is respected. A worthier and better man does not exist. Personally, I received the greatest kindness from him when I was a student, and when he held the high position of Professor in one of the London hospitals; but great as are my own obligations, the obligations of the Prince of Wales Chapter to him are still greater for the essential services he has rendered it.

Comp. Goldsbrough having returned thanks, the M.E.Z. said: The ceremonies of to-day could not have been got through, and the whole thing would have fallen through, and the ceremonies postponed sine die, had not some of the excellent companions of the sister chapters rallied around us as they have done. Other companions would have been here, had not a singular concurrence of circumstances rendered it impossible for them to attend. In our difficulty, Comp. Tapson said to me, "Why not go to Cardiff?" I did so, and Comp. Pickford said he would attend. We went to Comp. J. Thomas, who, not content with simply saying he would also come, said, "Go to Comp. South, he is a good fellow, I am sure he will attend also." We did so, and here they are. Should the Cardiff brethren ever require assistance (and I hope the occasion will only arise to show our gratitude), they may rely that the members of this chapter will be only too happy to avail themselves of it to render their services. Without more words, I propose, "Prosperity to the Sister Chapters, and to the Members of those Chapters," associating with the toast the names of the Excellent Comps. Pickford, South, and Thomas.

E. Comp. Pickford: Most Excellent Z., H., J., and brethren, I return our grateful thanks for the honour you have done us by proposing our healths, and for the kind way it has been received by the brethren. It has been a great pleasure to us to be here to-day. I never like to be absent from the duties of Freemasonry. The present is a very busy time with me, but I put my shoulder to the wheel, and here I am. Most Excellent, allow me to congratulate you, as an old Mason who has passed from the lowest to the highest rank, upon the very high position you have been placed in this afternoon, and upon the most exemplary and able manner in which you have been placed in that position by Comp. Dr. Goldsbrough. I have witnessed many ceremonies with very great pleasure, but I have never witnessed anything which has pleased me so much. I wish you every prosperity in the high position you hold, also to Comps. H., J., and the P. Sojourner, and other officers and members of the chapter, and I have no doubt, from what I have seen to-day, that you will have a prosperous year, surrounded by brethren who will enable you to carry out the duties of your high office with distinction and success. On behalf of the sister chapters, and my companion visitors, I beg to thank you, and also for the very kind vote you have passed to them and to myself.

E. Comp. South expressed the pleasure he felt in being present, and said he hoped the M.E.Z. would pay a visit to the lodge on the other side of the Romney, where he would find the same genuine feeling as had been shown to them in the Prince of Wales Chapter.

Comp. D. P. Owen: Though I can hardly understand my being associated with the visitors, I feel extreme pleasure in being present here to-day. I have often threatened to come to Tredegar, and my visit on this occasion is one of the greatest pleasures in my Masonic life. I recollect acting as Deacon at the initiation of the Most Excellent Comp. Brown, and I had the extreme felicity of installing him as my successor in the chair of W.M. of Lodge 998. I am sure this is an extremely proud day to the Most Excellent to see here present, out of two Past Masters of that lodge, one who was our joint instructor in Masonry. Now that Comp. Brown is the M.E.Z., I shall hope to see more of you; and if you ever come north, so far as our poor powers of 998 go, we shall be very glad to see you; though it is older than your mother lodge, it has not yet got a chapter attached to it.

E. Comp. H. proposed: "Prosperity to the Craft Lodges of the Province, coupled with the name of Bro. Davies, W.M., of the St. George's Lodge," to which Bro. Davies replied.

Ex. Comp. Thomas: I am intrusted with the next toast which commends itself to your notice, and I need have no anxiety in the matter. In this province we have always taken a deep interest in "The Masonic Charities," the very valuable home for aged Freemasons and their Widows, and the excellent Girls' School and Boys' School. In the latter institution, from among the number of candidates, a boy was admitted from this province, and one who, I have been informed, is the best boy in the school. Two or three other children of the province are enjoying the advantages of a good education, which they would not have been able to obtain otherwise. I will couple the name of Bro. Goldsbrough with this toast.

Comp. Goldsbrough, in replying to the toast, gave a brief description of the respective institutions, and advocated continuous support by the brethren.

The M.E.Z. proposed "The Health of the Reverend Bro. E. Jones, P. Prov. G. Chaplain."

The Rev. Bro. E. Jones: As time has been at a premium the whole of the evening, I shall follow the example which has been set before me, and will say briefly that I can fully confirm what has fallen from the excellent companion who has spoken of our excellent chief of the chapter. There is nobody in Tredegar who does not know him and respect him. I speak as a representative man, and I do represent the poor of Tredegar, and have ascertained their individual opinions, and that if their power could be enlisted in behalf of one man, it would be in his. I return you my thanks for drinking my health. As the minister of this town, I am anxious to stretch forth the right hand of fellowship, and there is no one more ready and willing than I am to shake hands with my brother ministers.

Ex. Comp. J. proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Chapter," to which Comps. Horlick, S.N., and Tapson, P.S., replied.

The M.E.Z. proposed "The Health of Bro. Spencer," and expressed the satisfaction of the companions as to the way in which he had provided for them.

Bro. Spencer returned thanks.

The final toast was given, and terminated the proceedings of the day.

Original Correspondence.

THE BALLOT FOR W. MASTER.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

I shall be glad to be informed, through the medium of your columns, the proper way of conducting the ballot for the election of W.M. in a Craft lodge.

In the lodge of which I am a member, the last election was conducted thus:—The Secretary having read a list of those eligible for the office, each brother wrote the name of the member for whom he voted on a slip of paper, folded and deposited it within the ballot box. The papers were then examined by the W.M., and he for whom most votes were thus recorded was declared elected. This method, however, is evidently open to grave objection, since a brother might be elected W.M. without obtaining anything like a majority of the votes present. It appears to me that it would be better to proceed by the method of exclusion—taking the ballot as many times as there are candidates, and each time excluding the candidate with the lowest number of votes. If one candidate obtained a clear majority of the votes present, it would, of course, be unnecessary to proceed further.

The book of "Constitutions" says simply, "Every lodge shall annually elect its Master and Treasurer by ballot." Mackey, in his "Masonic Jurisprudence," from which work one may generally glean full information on such matters, does not throw any light on this subject. He merely says, "the election of an officer may be taken by show of hands, if there be no opposing candidate." But what is to be done if there are opposing candidates?

I am, Sir,

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM DATE.

Crewkerne, August 10, 1872.

BRO. EMRA HOLMES, AND "KNIGHT TEMPLARY," v. "GOOD TEMPLARY."

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I be allowed to advise my friend and brother, Emra Holmes, in his earnest and zealous defence of Knight Templary to let Good Templary alone?

He may not be aware, but nevertheless it is a fact, that several worthy Knight Templars are also Good Templars. I am not a Good Templar myself, but I am well aware that all Knight Templars will agree in respecting the neutral rights of Freemasonry. We do not discuss social questions in the columns of the Freemason, and therefore I am not going to enter upon the defence of the society in question. I have been a total abstainer from all intoxicating liquors, from birth, (as a beverage) and no doubt Bro. Holmes and many others will agree with me in stating that a number of the Craft would have been all the better Masons had they acted in a similar manner! So much of my personal history would not have been thus introduced, were it not to declare that I am fully prepared and willing to prove that the Good Templars have as valid a claim to their title, as the Knights Templar have to theirs.

As it scarcely seems a suitable topic for discussion in the Freemason, I will be quite willing to pay for my defence as an advertisement if desired; and at any rate I must enter my protest against Bro. Holmes' description of the Good Templars, as being the supporters of "ridiculous titles, and self-assumed name," unless indeed we look upon all titles as ridiculous and self-assumed. With every respect for Bro. Holme's abilities and zeal,

I am fraternally yours.

K. T.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL.

SCOTLAND.

On Saturday, 10th inst., the inhabitants of the beautifully-situated town of West Kilbride, Ayrshire, held a general holiday in honour of laying the foundation stone of the new Parish Church, the ceremony of which was performed by Colonel Mure, Provincial Grand Master of Ayrshire. The following lodges were represented:—Mother Kilwinning; Irvine, St. Andrews, No. 149; Leven St. John, No. 170; West Kilbride, Royal Arch, Ardrossan, Neptune, Kilwinning, No. 442, No. 314; Dalry, Blair, No. 290; Largs, St. John's, No. 173; Stewarton, Thistle, No. 127; Beith, St. John's, No. 157; Stevenston, Thistle and Rose, No. 169; Commercial, Glasgow, No. 360. The lodges met in the Parish School about two o'clock, and, after being marshalled into procession, they proceeded through the principal streets, accompanied by the Beith and Dalry instrumental bands. On returning to the site of the building, the office bearers of the various lodges took up positions on the platform, the Mother Lodge members, of course, officiating at the ceremony. After the Chaplain (the Rev. A. Inglis, Kilmaurs) had engaged in prayer, Mr. H. C. Hyndman, of Springside, convener of the heritors of the building, presented Colonel Mure with a magnificent silver trowel with which to lay the stone. Colonel Mure having briefly returned thanks, the stone was duly laid according to the rites and ceremonies of the Masonic Order. The ceremony being finished, the Provincial Grand Master delivered an address appropriate to the occasion. The Hon. G. R. Vernon, and the Rev. Mr. King, minister of the parish, having both thanked the deputations, and especially Colonel Mure, for their attendance, the proceedings terminated by the band playing "Rule Britannia."

SPAIN.

"A villainous and odious crime has been committed on the night of the 18th ult., in one of the most central streets of this city. The Head of the Realm and his virtuous Consort were rudely assaulted by some miscreants, who, discharging their guns, tried to fill our noble country with sorrow and ignominy. The Spanish great Masonic Family protests against so iniquitous a crime; gives thanks to the G.A.O.T.U. for having frustrated the evil designs of cowardly assassins, and though the mercenary culprits are within the reach of the law, we exhort all our brethren abroad to help us, by the means of our wise organization, to facilitate the finding out of the true instigators of such an horrid crime."

Our Dep. G.M. Bro. Simon Gris Benitez lays on a bed of sickness, and notwithstanding a change for the better, he is yet unable to attend the several duties devolving upon the high position in the Government the G.M. has been called to. During his illness he receives incessant marks of the sympathy and of the esteem in which he is held by the brotherhood.—Boletin,

AMERICAN ROYAL ARCH STATISTICS.

The following tabular statement of the position of Royal Arch Masonry in the United States, and the Dominion of Canada, was compiled by Comp. Josiah Drummond, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence of the Grand Chapter of Maine:—

Table with 12 columns: GRAND CHAPTERS., Number of Subordinates., Ditto making Returns., Members., Exaltations., Admissions and Restorations., Dimissions., Expulsions., Suspensions., Suspension for non-payment of dues., Deaths., Rejections. Rows list states from Alabama to Wisconsin, plus a Total row.

* Including deaths. † Including suspensions for non-payment of dues.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

BETA (450 I.C.), Hamilton, Auckland.—Received from the Secretary of this Lodge, twenty-four shillings, his subscription.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 195, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

THE PROGRESS OF FREEMASONRY, AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

Who has not witnessed the wonderful spread of the Craft with mingled feelings of congratulation and alarm? To think that on the second decade of the last century, all the lodges known to be in existence could be counted on our fingers, and the membership probably did not exceed a few hundreds, whereas now it is estimated that there are about three millions of Freemasons scattered over the globe, and the lodges may be counted by thousands.

It was a maxim, we believe, of the great Duke of Wellington, that "where numbers are small, caution is necessary." In Freemasonry, we must quite reverse our distinguished brother's opinion, as caution is the more necessary as our numbers increase.

We should like for every member of our ancient and honourable fraternity, to feel that they had a most important duty to perform, viz., to guard carefully our portals from the intrusion of the unworthy; and that they who neglect the sacred trust thus reposed in them, fail in realizing the responsibilities of their position, and are actually indirect aids to inroads being made into the fair fame of our society.

The crying evil at the present time is the apathy of those who should be our best friends in seeking to purify our order, and render it wholly acceptable in a moral point of view. Such Masons generally profess great regard for the Institution, and express pleasure on hearing any time of the good achieved by our bond of brotherhood, but they do nothing themselves to increase the general prosperity of all that we hold dear and sacred, and in many cases actually do positive injury by "throwing cold water" on the exertions of those who are engaged in working for our charities, and in promoting the regularity of the work, the attendance of the members, and enquiry as to the characters of the gentlemen who desire to be initiated. The fact is, we are disgusted with the "big talk" of these great professors of morality, because they literally do nothing to ensure the triumph of the principles we all admire; and even when most unsuitable men are proposed for initiation, they never proceed to the lodge to record their adverse vote, though they could by a word, stop the entrance of some, who are plainly about to perjure themselves, and are only anxious to become Freemasons, as a matter of trade speculation, yet they never breathe an objection, and consequently they may be said, of themselves, to admit into the lodge those whose actions are known by them to be wholly foreign to every genuine principle of Freemasonry.

We have often heard such so-called Masons say, "I can't meet so and so in the lodge. You are not select enough for me and my friends. Bro. ———, in your ranks, is a disgrace to the Order. I think well of Freemasonry, but really of late members have been admitted who are no credit to us." We ask, as we have done before, whose fault is this misfortune? Who is to blame for such initiations? Who should be visited with contempt for such neglect? We reply, those who stay away from the lodge when they ought to black ball the men in question; those whose regard for Freemasonry, though professedly so strong, does not lead them to warn the members against receiving wolves into the fold, those, in fact, who knowingly suffer wrong to be perpetrated, when it is in their power to prevent it. Among reflective Masons, it is considered that a further increase of lodges, unless the characters of the petitioners are closely enquired into, is fraught with danger to the Craft. We could cite many instances where warrants have been granted on the strength of Provincial Grand Masters' recommendations, which were not really required, and where the districts contained even too many lodges before. In country places, frequently, lodges are in debt, and when candidates are proposed for initiation, the money is tempting, and men who, under normal circumstances, would not be admitted, are received as members without question! In other lodges, men who would be "black-balled" in their own towns, as utterly unworthy of the privileges of Freemasonry, are initiated because strangers, and quite unknown to the members, excepting probably, the brother who proposed him, and the "seconder!" We support, most heartily, the proposition that non-residents should not be initiated, without enquiry of the Master of the lodge in the town in which they reside.

Few London Masons have a correct idea as to how this system of initiating non-residents is carried on in the country, and though, of course, many good men are admitted under such circumstances, we lament to state that several who would be a disgrace to any society, which values "Truth, honour, and mercy," have thus been pitchforked into the Order.

Another time, we shall likely say a few words about the fees for initiation in England, Ireland, and Scotland, and the methods of enquiry adopted, as tests for membership, but at the present time we content ourselves with drawing attention to the laxity of many as to the admission of members derogatory to our institution, the professed regard of so-called Freemasons, for the society who are actually the "drones of the hive," the "drag" to our true prosperity, and the "eye-sore" of all active, earnest labourers, on behalf of all that is great and good, because they talk, talk, talk, and do nothing; and, finally, we raise our warning against the mere numerical increase of our lodges against even mere financial considerations in our lodges, and against the growing popularity of Freemasonry, leading many to join our ranks, who have nothing in common with the worthy of our fraternity, believing, as we do, that numbers, wealth, and popularity, will all prove more of a curse than a blessing to our Order, unless we aim to be truly Freemasons in thought, word, and deed.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CHANNEL ISLANDS.

JERSEY.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1003). This lodge was held on Wednesday, August 6th, at the Masonic Temple, and opened by Bro. Boullier, W.M., supported by Bros. Pallot, S.W.; Pitcher, J.W.; G. Grigg, I.P.M.; P. W. Benham, P.M.; J. Blampied, Sec.; Wm. Adams, P.M.; G. J. Renouf, P.M.; R. Binet, P.M.; E. Gilley, S.D.; G. Rogers, P.M. We noticed among the visitors Bros. A. Schmitt, P.M.; P. G. Binet, P.M.; A. Viel, P.M.; Jn. Oatley, P.M.; P. F. Le Marquand, W.M. 491; P. O'Bryan, W.M. 958, &c. After the confirmation of the minutes, Mr. Cole was initiated; the ceremony of his admission into the Great Masonic Family being admirably gone through by the W.M., ably supported by his officers. Bro. A. Schmitt, being deputed by Bro. L'Guillot, W.M. of Lodge La Parfaite Union, a l'Or. de Rennes (Brittany), who headed the French deputation, officially visiting the Province of Jersey in 1869, on the occasion of installation of the Prov. Grand Master, R.W. Bro. Col. Malet de Carteret, and inauguration of water-works, presented to the lodge a portrait of that highly-esteemed brother, who has occupied the chair of K.S. during the period of twenty-seven years in succession, as an affectionate souvenir of his fraternal attachment and gratitude for the cordial reception the French brethren received at the hands of the Jersey Craft. Bro. Benham immediately proposed, seconded by the W.M., that the portrait be fraternally accepted, and neatly framed. A resolution was also passed, requesting Bro. Schmitt to graciously acknowledge, on behalf of the lodge, the acceptance of the portrait. The business of the day being the presenting Bro. Benham with a testimonial expressive of the esteem in which he is held by his brethren, and an acknowledgment of his indefatigable services to the lodge, being its First Master, the W.M. deputed Bro. A. Schmitt to perform that pleasing and interesting ceremony. On Bro. Benham being presented, the officiating brother addressed the recipient in terms worthy of the occasion, briefly passing in review his long Masonic career, full of zeal, activity, and usefulness, gently alluding to the circumstances which have led him and several other brethren to form the Prince of Wales Lodge, enumerating his numerous services rendered to the Province, his faithful and untiring exertions in promoting the prosperity of the lodge, which has attained a proud position both in number and character. My esteemed Bro. Benham said, Bro. Schmitt, believe me I am highly gratified by the selection of the brethren of your lodge to convey to you, with this gold box, their united, most sincere, and heartfelt good wishes, thus appreciating and paying homage to true Masonic worth in your person. Let me assure you, that the object of this pleasing ceremony springs from a pure and high source. It is the most effective means your brethren have of conveying to you their fraternal regard and affection, and in so doing, we fervently hope that in your path through life, it will furnish you with the happiest reflections. I will now, Bro. Benham, read the inscription:—

“Prince of Wales Lodge, Lodge 1003.

“To W. Bro. P. W. Benham, founder, First W.M., Treas., P. Prov. G.S.W., P.G. Treas., P.Z., &c., as a token of esteem and regard for his untiring exertions in promoting its unprecedented prosperity.— Jersey, August, 1872.” Then he handed the box to Bro. Benham, saying:—“I shall only add an earnest prayer, that it may please the Grand Architect of the Universe to bless you with health and happiness long to enjoy the esteem and regard of your brethren, and the respect of all good men.” Bro. P. W. Benham, deeply moved, in feeling and appropriate terms, set forth the unexpected pleasure which had come to him in the presentation of the elegant testimonial he had just received. He felt assured, that his efforts, humble as they had been, were, at least, directed to one great point, the advancement of Masonry, the upholding of its dignity and prestige, the supporting of Masonic Charities, and the promotion of fraternal concord and affection. He also alluded to the gratification he felt at receiving the testimonial from so old and respected a Mason, as his esteemed friend, Bro. Schmitt. He concluded by stating how valuable and dear the token presented to him would ever be, and by heartily thanking his brethren, who had thus kindly marked their approbation of his conduct. The snuff box, made of chased gold, is one of the most elegant and neat pieces of workmanship of this kind. The lodge was closed in love and perfect harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the refreshment-room, where, notwithstanding the unpropitious state of the weather, about seventy brethren partook of an excellent supper, and the utmost good humour and good fellowship prevailed. They separated at a reasonable hour, highly delighted with the day's proceedings.

DEVONSHIRE.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Loyal Lodge of Industry (No. 421).—This lodge held its monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday last, under the presidency of Bro. Cole, W.M., when Mr. Richard Paige was balloted for, unanimously elected, and duly initiated. Bros. Reed and Traile were passed to the second degree, and Bro. Hannaford raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. In this lodge the whole of the ceremonies, charges, and lectures, are given to candidates on the conferring of every degree, which would cause a great amount of bodily and mental fatigue to the W.M., did he not call to his aid the services of the P.M.'s present. On this occasion, he was assisted by P.M.'s Shapland, Oram, Kingdon, and Furse. The division of labour makes the W.M.'s duties light and pleasant to him and the lodge.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The regular monthly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held in the Royal Hotel, High-street, on the 1st inst. The W.M., Bro. J. Fenn, occupied the chair of K.S., supported by the following officers:—Bros. C. Carnegie, G. Purst., Hants, I.P.M.; Capt. Richardson, R.E. S.W.; A. McKenzie, J.W.; T. W. Mayer, as S.; D. R. Bennett, J.D.; R. White, Sec.; F. Anderson, I.G.; U. Lucas, Tyler. There was a numerous muster of the brethren, including the following visitors:—Bros. Warren, Scadden, Phillips, and Turner, No. 491. and J. H. Webb, No. 45. The lodge was opened in form in the first degree, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Sergt. Thomas, 7th Hussars, and Sergts. Harper and Monrow, Control Department, which proved unanimous in each case. The candidates were then initiated by the W.M., the S. Warden giving the charge, and the

J. Warden presenting the working tools. Eight subscribers were obtained for the Masonic Charitable Association in connection with the lodge. Bros. Phillips and Scadden, No. 491, were proposed as joining members; and it was decided to meet on the 8th inst., to raise those brethren to the degree of M.M., should the lodge approve their admission. A resolution, expressing the hearty desire of the lodge for the future welfare of the brethren about to leave the division, was unanimously agreed to. The W. Masters, Wardens, and Secretary, were requested to attend the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge at Basingstoke, on the 16th inst. The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer, and the brethren sat down to supper, which was served up in Messrs. Goodacre's usual excellent style. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, to which Bros. White, Denison, and Webb, materially contributed by their good singing.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL.—St. John's Lodge (No. 673).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 7th inst., at the Royal Mersey Yacht Club Hotel, Duke Street, and was attended by a large muster of the brethren connected with the flourishing lodge. The following officers and brethren supported Bro. J. T. Callow, the W.M.:—Bros. H. Nelson, I.P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M.; G. Ladmore, P.M.; T. Clark, P.M.; W. T. May, P.M.; J. Hocken, P.M.; E. Kyle S.W.; C. S. Blood, J.W.; R. Pearson, P.M., Treas.; J. Ball, Sec.; T. Roberts, J.D.; H. Burrows, I.G.; J. Mealer, S.R.; W. Hulme, O.; W. M. Crawford, Tyler; J. Capell, W. Percival, L. Bramwell, J. Seddon, W. Morris, R. Holt, T. Hague, E. Lloyd, T. Williams, R. Lloyd, J. Carty, Y. Alvarez, W. Blackenbury, J. Harper, A. Trimble, T. Garrett, J. Bagott, T. Lawrence, E. Clements, C. Cooper, E. Imrie, J. B. Woods, J. Allan, W. Myers, J. Heggie, D. Smith, J. Bunting, F. Christensen, J. Donovan, and others. Amongst the visitors were, Bros. Larsen, P.M., 823; T. Shaw, S.D., 823; W. Boulton, S.W., 823; J. Hamer, P.P.G.T., P.M., 220; W. H. Lee, 383; Forgan Pormesjau, 1182; R. Holden, 1086; H. Worthington, 1356; J. Whitfield, 594; F. Macdonald, 757; and others. After the Lodge had been opened in due form, the minutes of the previous installation meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Callow, W.M., then proceeded to initiate two candidates, and no fewer than eight brethren were passed to the honourable degree of F.C., the whole of the work being performed by him in a manner which reflected the highest credit upon his Masonic ability and study. The W.M. afterwards presented a very splendid illuminated address to Bro. H. Nelson, I.P.M., and in doing so, alluded to the very valuable services which he had rendered to the “St. John's,” and Masonry in general. Bro. Nelson acknowledged the presentation in suitable terms, and assured the brethren that it would be an additional incentive for him to do his duty. The following is a copy of the address:—“This testimonial was presented to Bro. Henry Nelson, P.M., St. John's Lodge, No. 673, of Ancient Free and accepted Masons. We, your brother officers and brethren, beg you to accept this testimonial, together with a P.M.'s jewel voted you by the lodge, in testimony of the zeal and ability with which you have discharged the duties of your office during the last year. We sincerely trust the G.A.O.T.U. may, throughout a long life, enable you to enjoy the honours so deservedly bestowed upon you, and that during many generations may be handed down this token of brotherly affection and esteem in which you are held by the undersigned, and the brethren of the lodge generally.” The address was signed by all the officers, and between twenty and thirty brethren, who had all been subscribers. The testimonial was illuminated in an exceedingly artistic manner by Matthews Brothers, Thomas-street, and very handsomely framed and mounted by Bro. Burrows, Islington. The brethren subsequently adjourned to banquet, and during the evening happily proposed toasts, and excellent harmony made the time pass pleasantly.

PRESCOT.—Pic-nic of the Lodge of Loyalty (No. 86).—Summer festivals amongst the West Lancashire lodges are happily becoming the rule rather than the exception, and one of the most pleasant of all the present season's picnics, was that held by the members of the good old Lodge of Loyalty, No. 86, holding its meetings at the Royal Hotel, Prescott. The highly interesting excursion took place on Wednesday, the 31st ult., and as the fickle “clerk of the weather” was, for once favourable to the pleasure seekers, the day being dry throughout, with a pleasantly tempered heat, there was nothing, in this respect to spoil the days' doings. The picturesque village and district of Chirk, North Wales, was chosen as the locus of the picnic, and a party of about seventy brethren, with relatives and friends, hailing from Liverpool, St. Helen's, Widnes, Prescott, Chester, Wrexham, Gresford, and other places, joined in the days' festivities. The Lancashire contingent started in the morning from Birkenhead to Chirk, in saloon carriages, placed at their service by the London and North-Western Railway Company. After arriving at Chirk, a short halt was made for the purpose of refreshing the inner man, at the Castle Hotel, and the entire party then “made tracks” for Chirk Castle, the whole of which was thrown open for the inspection of the visitors, by Richard Myddelton Biddulph, Esq., the proprietor. The antique and magnificent pile of buildings was explored by the brethren and friends, from turret to dungeon, with all the minuteness of savans, nearly two hours being spent by the party in exploration and viewing the splendid Welsh scenery from the summit of the Castle. However interesting this pleasant pastime might be, the pic-nickers did not the less enjoy a sumptuous al fresco dinner, which was afterwards served in the lovely garden of the Chirk Castle Hotel. Bro. Dr. Morris, W.M. of the Lodge, presided at the head of affairs, supported by Bros. J. W. J. Fowler, T. Prescott, and Captin Birchall, P.M.'s. The repast was thoroughly enjoyed, and the remainder of the afternoon was spent in pursuits congenial to each section of the “outers. The return start was made at six o'clock, and the “Lancashire lads and lasses” arrived in Liverpool about half-past eight o'clock. The arrangements were principally carried out by Bro. J. W. J. Fowler, whose exertions were most untiring for the comfort of the party, and he deserved the warmest thanks for the complete success which crowned the affair. From the great pleasure derived by every one present, from this the first, pic-nic of the “Loyalty,” there can be little doubt that the festival will become an annual event, which many will anticipate with delight, especially after the highly enjoyable excursion to Chirk.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held at the Freemason's Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 31st ultimo. Bro. E. J. Crow, Mus. Bac., W.M.; J. M. McAllister, S.W.; R. W. Widdowson, J.W.; W. Weare, P.M., Treas.; J. W. Smith, S.D.; J. Halford, J.D.; C. E. Stretton, I.G., and a numerous attendance of members and visitors. Among the latter were Bro. Toller P.G.S., P.M.; W. Sculthorpe, P.M.; S. S. Parttridge, J.W.; and J. T. Thorpe, Sec.; members of the John O'Gaunt Lodge; and Bro. J. B. Hall, W.M. of the Commercial Lodge, who condescendingly rendered efficient services as Deacon in the ceremony of the third degree, thereby affording a highly commensurable example of emulation as to who can best work and best agree. Bros. Rev. J. H. Smith, S. Tebbutt, and J. Edmonds were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, and, although the ceremony was necessarily protracted, the Worshipful Master was quite equal to the occasion, and subsequently received for his impressive working the well-merited encomiums of Bro. Toller, P.G.S., and Bro. Hall, W.M., 1391. The Senior Warden mentioned the recent visits of Bro. C. E. Stretton, I.G., to the Lodges No. 47 and 384, Dundalk, and the great pleasure and gratification afforded by the courtesy, and fraternal regard shewn by Bro. Stretton, by the officers, and brethren of both lodges on those occasions. Bro. J. W. Smith, S.D., was appointed the representative Provincial Grand Steward, for the ensuing year.

MIDDLESEX.

HARROW.—Harrow Lodge (No. 1310).—The members of this lodge met on Tuesday, 6th inst., at the Railway Hotel. Present—Bros. W. H. Green, Prov. G.D.C. Middlesex, W.M.; S. Homewood, S.W.; J. Harrison, J.W.; F. Walters, P.M., Sec.; Capt. G. A. Smith, S.D.; F. Harrison, J.D.; J. Cox, I.G.; T. Hammond, D.C.; J. Smith, P.M., W.S.; Bro. W. Kipps was appointed and invested as Organist. Bro. W. Butler was raised, and Mr. W. Vine initiated. The visitors present were—Bros. G. Stacey, P.M. 209; Binder, 619. The following brethren were recommended for Provincial Grand Office in Middlesex, viz., Bros. G. Pynn and Capt. G. A. Smith; also Bro. W. Kipps as Organist. A banquet closed the proceedings.

Loyal Arch.

METROPOLITAN.

PANMURE CHAPTER (No. 720).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Horns Tavern, Kennington, on Monday, the 12th inst. In the unavoidable absence of the M.E.Z., the first chair was occupied by Comp. James Stevens, P.Z., and S.E. of the Chapter, who was supported by Comps. S. Davison, H.; Henry Smith, J.; Joseph Nunn, P.Z.; H. C. Levander, P.Z.; John Read, P.Z.; T. Pulsford, P.S.; W. Worrell, Larlham, Wagstaff, Jones, and several other members; Comp. Walter Gompertz, visitor. The only business before the chapter was that of the exaltation of two candidates, viz., Bros. George William Lay, and Thomas Poore, and the beautiful ceremony was rendered with the usual perfection for which the Panmure Chapter is celebrated. A pleasant supper followed business, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts being duly honoured.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Victoria Chapter Rose Croix.—The quarterly meeting of this Chapter was held Monday last, at the Masonic Hall belonging to the members of the Prince of Wales Lodge. The Chapter having been opened in the usual solemn form, the minutes of two Chapters of emergency, and of the last regular chapter were read by the Recorder and confirmed. Ballot was taken for the Excellent Brother Osborne Packard, of the Scientific Chapter, Cambridge, and he was unanimously elected a subscribing member. A notice, by Bro. Holmes, that he should propose that the Fee for admission to this chapter be six guineas, to include the proper clothing, was on the agenda paper, but as this brother was not in his place to make the proposition and the brethren having expressed their wishes that the question should be settled, it was proposed, seconded, and negatived, nem. con. After some other formal business, the chapter was closed in ancient form.

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Frateres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

By EMRA HOLMES, 31°.

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

Sir Knights,—I have taken the liberty of preparing a short lecture on the Knights Templar, which I venture to think may prove of interest to you. At all events, I have derived much benefit from its compilation. The history of this noble Order, in its pride and in its decay, is worthy of your attentive study and best consideration. Addison, in his valuable book on the "History of the Knights Templar," says:—"Born during the first fervour of the Crusaders, the Templars were flattered and aggrandised as long as their great military power and religious fanaticism could be made available for the support of the Eastern Church, and the retention of the Holy Land; but when the Crescent had ultimately triumphed over the Cross, and the religious and military enthusiasm of Christendom had died away, they encountered the basest ingratitude in return for the services they had rendered to the Christian faith, and were plundered, persecuted, and condemned to a cruel death by those who ought, in justice, to have been their defenders and supporters. The memory of these holy warriors is embalmed in all our recollections of the wars of the Cross; they were the bulwarks of the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem during the short period of its existence, and were the last band of Europe's host that contended for the possession of Palestine.

* Vide Preface.

The vulgar notion that they were as wicked as they were fearless and brave, has not yet been entirely exploded; but it is hoped that the copious account of the proceedings against the Order in this country, given in the ensuing volume, will dispel many unfounded prejudices still entertained against the fraternity, and excite emotions of admiration for their constancy and courage, and of pity for their unmerited and cruel fate." Addison goes on to say, in his introduction, that "a century after the death of Mahomet, the Moslems had extended their religion and their arms from India to the Atlantic Ocean; they had subdued and converted, by the power of the sword, Persia and Egypt, and all the north of Africa, from the mouth of the Nile to the extreme western boundary of that vast continent; they overran Spain, invaded France, and turning their footsteps towards Italy, they entered the kingdoms of Naples and Genoa, threatened Rome, and subjected the Island of Sicily to the laws and religion of their prophet.

But at the very period when they were about to plant the Koran in the very heart of Europe, and were advancing, with rapid strides, to universal dominion, intestine dissensions broke out amongst them, which undermined their power and Europe was released from the dread and danger of Saracen dominion.

In the tenth century of the Christian era, however, the ferocious and barbarous Turcomans appeared as the patrons of Mahomedanism, and the propagators of the Koran. These were pastoral tribes of shepherds and hunters who descended from the frozen plains to the north of the Caspian, conquered Persia, embraced the religion and the law of Mahomet, and became united under the standard of the prophet into one great and powerful nation. They overran the greater part of the Asiatic continent, destroyed the churches of the Christians, and the temples of the Pagans, and appeared, in 1084, A.D., in warlike array, on the Asiatic shore of the Hellespont, in front of Constantinople. The terrified Emperor Alexius, sent urgent letters to the Pope and the Christian Princes of Europe, exhorting them to assist him and their common Christianity in the perilous crisis. The preachings of Peter the Hermit, and the exhortations of the Pope, forthwith aroused Christendom; Europe was armed, and precipitated upon Asia; the Turkish power was broken; the Christian provinces of the Greek empire of Constantinople were recovered from the grasp of the infidels and the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem was reared upon the ruins of the Turkish Empire of Sultan Soliman. The monastic and military Order of the Temple was then called into existence for the purpose of checking the power of the infidels, and fighting the battles of Christendom on the plains of Asia. Suggested by fanaticism, as Gibbon observes, but guided by an intelligent and far-reaching policy, it became the foremost bulwark of Christianity in the East, and mainly contributed to preserve Europe from Turkish desolation, and probably from Turkish conquest."

Ancient, as well as modern historians, have brought grave, and, in most cases, unfounded charges against the Templars. For instance, William of Tyre, the Archbishop who was known to be hostile to the Order, relates how Nassr-ed-dun, son of Sultan Abbas, was taken prisoner by the Templars, became a Christian, and wished to be baptised; but the Templars were bribed with 60,000 pieces of gold to surrender him to his enemies in Egypt, where certain death awaited him; and that they stood by to see him bound hand and foot, and placed in an iron cage, to be taken over the desert to Cairo.

The Arabian historians, on the other, hand tell us that Nassr-ed-dun and his father murdered the Caliph, threw his body into a well, and then fled from Palestine; that the sister of the murdered Caliph wrote immediately to the Commander of the garrison of the Knights Templar at Gaza, offering a handsome reward for the capture of the fugitives; that they were accordingly intercepted, and Nassr-ed-dun was sent to Cairo, where the female relations of the Caliph caused his body to be cut into small pieces in the Seraglio.

William of Tyre, it should be remembered, was jealous of the Order, on account of its vast powers and privileges, and carried his complaints to a general council of the Church at Rome. He is opposed in everything that he says to the prejudice of the fraternity, by James of Vitry, Bishop of Acre, a learned and most talented prelate, who wrote in Palestine subsequently to William of Tyre, and has copied largely from the history of the latter. The Bishop of Acre speaks of the Templars in the highest terms, and declares that they were universally loved of all men for their humility and piety.

As this act has constantly been brought forward as a grave accusation against the Templars, it is worth knowing the Arabian account of the story.

The well-known Orientalist, Von Hammer, whose portrait has been given in "Hood's Own," brought forward many most extraordinary and unfounded charges, destitute of all authority, against the Templars; and Wilche, the writer of a German history of the Order, seems also to have imbibed all the vulgar prejudices against the fraternity. It is useless to deny that many grave and improbable charges have been brought against the Templars by monks and priests, who wrote in Europe concerning events in the Holy Land, and who regarded the vast privileges of the Order with aversion and indignation. Matthew Paris, the monkish historian, par exemple, tells us that they were leagued with the infidels, and fought pitched battles with the rival Order of Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem; but, says Addison, remembering that contemporary historians of Palestine, who, in describing the marvellous exploits of the Templars, and who, it must be borne in mind, were eye-witnesses of their career, fail to make mention of such occurrences; bearing in mind also that no allusion is made to them in the letters of the Pope, addressed to the Grand Master of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem shortly after the date of these pretended battles, one cannot but feel convinced, after a careful examination of the best authorities, that they never did take place.

This is Addison's opinion and that of others, and I cannot but feel that it is well founded.

That there were jealousies and heart-burnings between these rival Orders there can be no doubt, however. In an interesting little work on the History and Antiquities of the Round Church at Little Maplestead, in Essex, there is an admirable account of the Knights Hospitaller, in which we are told, amongst other things, that when Pope Innocent published a new crusade, Louis IX. put himself at the head of the troops and embarked at Aiguemortes for Cyprus, and "upon his arrival there he remained a short time, in order to arrange various disputes that had arisen between the Hospitallers and the Templars." From the same work we gather that during the seventh crusade, the Sultan of Egypt had made a descent upon Jerusalem and overthrown the Tower of David. "This was accomplished without difficulty, owing to the two military orders being again at variance with each other; the Hospitallers having entered into a treaty with the Sultan of Egypt, and the Templars with the Sultan of Damascus." The author again (quoting no doubt from Matthew Paris, or one of the monkish writers) says,* "as Richard, Earl of Cornwall, approached Jaffa with his troops, the Sultan of Egypt offered him terms of peace, which were accepted, the greater part of the Holy Land being given up to the Christians. In this treaty the Templars refused to be included, out of mere enmity to the Hospitallers." And again,† "the first attempt to suppress the military orders was made during this reign (Henry III., Circa 1252)." The duties of the Templars being of a more military character than those of the Hospitallers, it was considered that the former might be dispensed with, especially as the contests between the two orders had long proved their co-existence to be incompatible with the security of the Christian cause.

The similarity of their duties rendered it impossible at all times to prevent collision; and during the interval between the Crusades, a generous emulation frequently gave way to a spirit of envy and detraction; for, as Fuller justly remarks, "Active men, like millstones in motion, if they have no other grist to grind, will set fire to one another."

Neither the Templars nor the Hospitallers were however, finally suppressed until some years later.

In Knight's "London" there is so succinct and popular a history of the Order, that I feel I cannot do better than quote largely from that article, in order to give you some idea of that noble, illustrious but ill-fated Order, in the plenitude of its power and in its decay.

Knight, who, by the way, quotes largely from Addison and Dugdale, thus relates in graphic style, the origin of the chivalric order and the early achievements of the gallant Crusaders, the soldier monks who won so proud a name that it will be remembered unto all time:—

In the year 1128, Hugh de Payens, the head of a new and strange society, which had excited much notice among the pious and warlike of England, arrived in London to explain its objects and extend its scope and influence. We may imagine the interest with which his auditors (among whom were the King, Henry I., and his court) listened to the tale of the origin and progress of the Order. But a few years before, himself, and eight other Knights, pitying the sufferings of the Christian pilgrims to Jerusalem, recently recovered from the Infidels by the first Crusaders, entered into a solemn compact to devote their lives and fortunes to the defence of the highway from the inroads of the Mussulmans and the ravages of the numerous robbers who invested it. "Poor fellow-soldiers of Jesus Christ," they called themselves, but, as their services became conspicuous, and the heads of the Church lodged them within the enclosures of the Temple on Mount Moriah (the site of the great Jewish structure destroyed by Titus,) and amidst that magnificent assemblage of buildings, partly erected by the Christian Emperor Justinian, in the sixth century, and partly by the Mussulman Caliph, Omar, in the seventh, this new combination of the somewhat opposite qualities of the warrior and the monk, became known as the Knighthood of the Temple of Solomon. Their rise was as rapid as the growth of their ambition. They enlarged their object from the defence of the roads to the defence of the Christian kingdom of Jerusalem itself, and eminent men from various countries joined their society, and threw their whole possessions into the common stock.

Hugh de Payens was made Master, he having first succeeded in obtaining the sanction of the Pope in a personal visit, spread everywhere throughout Europe the knowledge of the actual purposes of the new Order, and sought assistance. He set out from Jerusalem with four brethren; he returned, after his visit to England, with three hundred, all chosen from the noblest families of Europe, and principally from France and England.

The days of the Order when two Knights (Hugh de Payens himself and a companion) were compelled to ride one horse, a memorable circumstance, commemorated on the seal of the Order, were at an end now; and an opposite danger, that of too much wealth, was, as subsequent events showed, the most to be guarded against.

Before Hugh de Payens's departure from England he placed a Knight Templar, called the Prior of the Temple, at the head of the society in this country, whose duty it was, in common with all the similarly appointed persons throughout Europe, to manage the estates and affairs of the Order, and transmit the revenues to Jerusalem. The Grand Prior afterwards assumed the title of Master of the Temple.

Numerous Templar establishments now sprang up in different parts of Great Britain, the chief of which was that of London.* The first metropolitan house was in Holborn, where Southampton House was afterwards erected, and subsequently the existing Southampton Buildings. Here a very interesting remnant was discovered, Knight says, an ancient circular chapel of Caen stone. This house Hugh de Payens saw formally established. As the Knights increased in number and wealth, they purchased the site of the present temple, and set about erecting their magnificent church and other buildings, employing the Freemasons, and taking them under their protection. To distinguish this house from that in Holborn, the one was called the New, the other the Old Temple."

Whilst these works were fast approaching completion, and the Templars were looking for some distinguished personage to consecrate and open their house with suitable honours and ceremonies, the misfortunes of their brethren in the Holy Land brought no less a personage than Heraclius, the Patriarch of Jerusalem, to England, accompanied by the Grand Master of the Hospitallers, now, in emulation of the Knights of the Temple, a great military, as well as a great religious order.

The Crusaders had been weakened in many engagements, and when Saladin came on the scene, nearly the whole of the Templars were destroyed or taken prisoners at a battle on the Jordan in 1179. The Crusaders, however, afterwards gave Saladin a serious check, and it was then, a four years' truce having been secured, that Heraclius, the Master of the Temple, and the Master of St. John's, proceeded to Europe. Their great hope was Henry II., who, on receiving absolution for Beckett's murder, promised to go himself, to Palestine.

When Godfrey de Bouillion was elected King of Jerusalem, the important services of the Principal of the Hospital during the siege of Jerusalem were not forgotten by him. He visited the Hospital of St. John, and expressed his warm approval of the manner in which the members treated the sick and wounded under their care. At that time they were truly Hospitallers, and nothing more.

There are no less than three manuscripts

Roger de Mowbray gave the Templars rich lands, for so smitten was he with admiration at their valour and piety, when with King Louis at the second Crusade, that on his return from Palestine, he gave them the manors of Kileby and Witheley, lands in the Isle of Axholme, the town of Balshall in the County of Warwick, and various places in Yorkshire, and so munificent were his donations that the Templars conceded to him and his heirs special privileges. King Stephen gave them the manor of Cressyne and the manors of Egle and Witham. Queen Matilda gave them the manor of Cowley in Oxfordshire, and other property. Ralph and Wm. de Hastings gave them the Temple Forest in Yorkshire. William Asheby gave them Temple Bruere, and charitable and pious Christians, throughout England, and indeed Europe, added greatly to their possessions. (See Addison's "History of the Knights Templar.") quoted by Dugdale, in his "Monasticon," in each of which a different origin is assigned to the Hospitals at Jerusalem. In one they are traced to Julius Cæsar; in a second, they are stated to have been coeval with the Maccabees, and Christ himself is said to have taken all things in common there with his disciples; and in a third, the generally received account of the order having been founded by certain merchants of Amalji, for the succour and support of the pilgrims to Jerusalem.

* Page 92.

† Page 99.

Godfrey de Bouillon conferred many privileges upon the order, and it was during his reign that their members entered the order of Augustine, and received the title of Hospitaller Brethren of St. John of Jerusalem. Raymond Du Puy applied to the Patriarch of Jerusalem for permission for the Hospitallers to become a military order, without relinquishing the duties to which they had previously attended. Pope Boniface gave permission to the members to assume the title of Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem. These facts account for the Master of St. John's accompanying the Patriarch to seek military succour from England. Henry had, as I have said, promised to proceed in person to Palestine, and he undertook to go with a great army, and to maintain two hundred Templars at his own expense. To fortify their position, Knight says, the trio obtained letters from the Pope, threatening Henry with the judgment of Heaven if he failed in his engagement.

The Master of the Temple died at Verona, on the way; the other two arrived in England in 1185. Henry met them at Reading, and listened with tears to their statements, as throwing themselves on their knees before him, they described the state of the Holy Land, and besought his assistance. Their reception was very encouraging, and Henry promised to bring the matter before Parliament, when it met, on the first Sunday in Lent.

Meanwhile, the English Knights Templar brought Heraclius to their house and church here (the round portion), now finished, and requested him to consecrate the latter. Familiar as he was, says Knight, with the gorgeous architectural splendours of Jerusalem, Heraclius must have examined with pleasure the beautiful house of the Templars in London, which was not merely beautiful, but replete with all that was suitable to so distinguished and wealthy a community, and every way fitted for the due performance of the discipline of the order. The church, with its circular, sweeping colonade and tessellated pavement below, and noble arches, stained windows, and painted and groined ceiling above; the peaceful looking cloisters; the separate residences of the Prior or Master, and the Knights, the Chaplains, and serving brethren, the retainers and domestics; the refectory, where they dined, and the chapter house, where they held their meetings; and lastly, the garden or pleasure on the banks of the Thames, where the Knights walked, trained their horses, and performed their military exercises: all this must have impressed the Patriarch with the wealth, dignity and station of the Order. Heraclius consecrated the church, and it is said that until 1695, when it was destroyed by some Vandals of workmen, there was an inscription recording the circumstance, placed over the little door leading from the round into the cloisters, granting an indulgence of fifty days to those yearly seeking the sacred edifice.

It was during this visit that Heraclius also consecrated the church of the Knights Hospitallers at Clerkenwell.

The noble Priory of St. John's at Clerkenwell was destroyed during the insurrection of Wat Tyler, in 1381. In Cromwell's "History of Clerkenwell," it is said, "This building, in its widely varied decorations, both internally and externally, is said to have contained specimens of the arts both of Europe and Asia, together with a collection of books and rarities, the loss of which in a less turbulent age, would have been a theme for national lamentation." Wat Tyler, after setting fire to the Priory of Clerkenwell, which burned for seven or eight days, until nearly the whole of the buildings belonging to the Hospitallers were destroyed, out of mere hatred to the religious orders, sent some of the rebels to the manors of the Hospitallers at Highbury, and other places, giving orders that everything of value should be utterly destroyed.*

A month after the performance of the ceremony at the Temple, the Parliament met at this Priory; when, among the distinguished persons present, were William, King of Scotland, and his brother David. An earnest discussion took place on Heraclius's demands for succour, the King expressing his desires to fulfil his promise, but secretly wishing, there is little doubt, to be spared its performance, whilst the barons, and others present, represented to him that he was bound by the solemn oath of his coronation, to stay at home and govern his dominions. They tried a kind of compromise, in offering to raise fifty thousand marks to defray the expenses of a levy of troops, and added their desire that all nobles and others desiring to join the Christian bands in Palestine, should be freely permitted so to do. The result is thus told by Fabyan, on the authority of a still older chronicler. "Lastly, the King gave answer, and said he might not leave his land without keeping, nor yet leave it to the prey and robbery of Frenchmen. But he would give largely of his own to such as would take upon them that voyage. With this answer the Patriarch was discontented, and said, 'We seek a man, and not money; well-near every Christian religion sendeth unto us money, but no land sendeth to us a prince. Therefore we ask a prince that needeth money, and not money that needeth a prince. But the King laid for him such excuses, that the Patriarch departed from him, discontented and comfortless, whereof the King being advertised, intending somewhat to comfort him with pleasant words, followed him unto the sea-side. But the more the King thought to satisfy him with his fair speech, the more the Patriarch was discontented, inasmuch that, at the last, he said unto him, 'Hitherto thou hast reigned gloriously, but hereafter thou shalt be forsaken of Him, whom thou, at this time, forsakest. Think on Him, what he hath given to thee, and what thou hast yielded to Him again; how first thou wert false unto the King of France, and after slew that holy man, Thomas of Canterbury; and, lastly, thou forsaketh the protection of Christian faith.' The King was moved with these words, and said unto the Patriarch, 'Though all the men of my land were one body, and spoke with one mouth, they durst not speak to me such words.' 'No wonder,' said the Patriarch, 'for they love thine and not thee; that is to mean, they love thy goods temporal, and fear thee for loss of promotion, but they love not thy soul.' And when he had so said he offered his head to the King, saying, 'Do by me right as thou didst by that blessed man, Thomas of Canterbury, for I had liefer be slain of thee than of the Saracen, for thou art worse than any Saracen.' But the King kept his patience, and said, 'I may not wend out of my land, for my sons will arise against me when I was absent.' 'No wonder,' said the Patriarch, 'for of the Devil they come, and to the Devil they shall go; and so departed from the King in great ire.' Such was the result of the mission of the great Heraclius to England, from which so much had been hoped and expected.

I suppose the consecration of the Temple Church may be said to mark the consummation of the establishment of the famous Order in England. The Templars were truly fortunate in getting so great a man as St. Bernard to become their patron and great supporter. Their greatest privileges were derived from Pope Alexander, who promulgated a bull in their favour in 1172.

Some of the rules of St. Bernard will interest, whilst others may amuse, by their austerity, the Sir Knights present. Rule 8th directs that the fellow soldiers of Jesus Christ, and of the Temple of Solomon, shall take their meat together, and it is recommended that their wants should be made known by signs, or they are to softly and privately ask for what they want—bearing in remembrance the injunction of the Apostle, "Eat thy bread in silence," and the Psalmist's words, "I have set a watch upon my mouth." Rule 20 directs that all the professed Knights, both in summer and winter, wear white garments, as an indication of a pure and chaste life, whilst rule 21 requires that esquires and retainers be clothed in black garments or brown. Rule 22 says, it is granted to none to wear white habits, or to have white mantles, excepting the above-named Knights of Christ. Pope Eugenius granted them the Red Cross in 1146, whence they were called Red Friars, and Red Cross Knights. By rule 55, although, in common with the other religious orders, they took the vows of poverty, obedience, and celibacy; they were permitted to have married brethren amongst them, provided they left them all their property, but they were not permitted to wear the white mantle. And, lastly, the 68th rule says:—"We hold it dangerous to all religion to gaze too much on the countenance of women; and, therefore, no brother shall presume to kiss neither widow, nor virgin, nor mother, nor sister, nor aunt, nor any other woman. Let the Knighthood of Christ shun feminine kisses, through which men have very often been drawn into danger, so that each, with a pure conscience and secure life, may be able to walk everlastingly in the sight of God."

This must have been a very hard law, especially in the days of chivalry, when all good knights and true fought for the love of the lady of their choice, and each knight errant wore her gage d'amour in his helm, in tilt or tourney; and especially hard when we remember many ladies went to the crusades.

I am afraid our present Knights Templar would scarcely like to adopt the harsh rule of St. Bernard, the holy abbot of Clairvaux.

The head of the house was now styled the Master of the Temple, and it was to distinguish the supreme head at Jerusalem from these minor potentates that it became a custom to call the latter the Grand Master.

The Master was elected by the Chapter or assembly of the Knights from among themselves. His jurisdiction extended not only over his own house in London, but over all the provincial Priors or Preceptors and their establishments. These houses the Master visited in succession. The main body of the Templars were persons who had been previously Knights (none other were admitted into their class). In this they differed from the Hospitallers, who were not necessarily Knights before joining, and whose fathers were or might have been Knights. On their entrance into the Order they had to declare themselves free from all obligations, that they were neither married nor betrothed, had never taken vows nor been consecrated in any other religious order, that they were neither in debt nor diseased, and that they possessed sound, healthy constitutions. On the south side of the Round there was to be found till the year 1827, Knight says, an ancient structure, called the Chapel of St. Anne, formerly enjoying a peculiar reputation, as making barren women, who resorted thither to pray, "joyful mothers of children." In this chapel, no doubt, according to the custom of the Templars generally, would take place the introduction of new candidates into the Order—a solemn and most impressive proceeding, during which the whole body of Knights were present. After a variety of preliminary questions, put to the candidate before his entrance into the midst of the assembly of the Knights, and satisfactory answers received, he was conducted to their presence, when kneeling before the Master with folded hands, he said, "Sir, I am come, before God, and before you and the brethren, and pray and beseech you, for the sake of God and our dear Lady, to admit me into your Society and the good deeds of the Order, as one who will be, all his life long, the servant and slave of the Order." To this the Master replied:—"It is only the outward shell which you see; that we have fine horses and rich caparisons—that we eat and drink well, and are splendidly clothed.* From this you conclude that you will be well off with us. But you know not the rigorous maxims which are in our interior. For it is a hard matter for you, who are your own master, to become the servant of another. You will hardly be able to perform, in future, what you wish yourself."

* Yet they were forbidden to wear gold or superb ornaments like other Knights.

* New edition, vol 6, part 3.

* Stow.

When you wish to sleep, you will be ordered to watch; when you will wish to watch, then you will be ordered to go to bed; when you will wish to cat, then you will be ordered to do something else," &c.

(To be continued.)

GRAND CHAPTER OF THE ROSE CROIX DEGREE FOR IRELAND.

Report of the Vice President to the Convocation of Prince Masons, held at Dublin, Monday, April 15th, 1872.

(Continued from Page 485.)

I am therefore perfectly certain that more and more warrants will be sought from the Grand Chapter. Most probably each application will be made by men whose request it must seem ungracious to deny; and it will always be an unpopular thing to appear to hesitate about establishing a new centre for the diffusion of this or of any Masonic Degree. But if we give a Rose Croix warrant, merely because a few zealous men would like to have one in their neighbourhood—depend upon it we shall soon have Rose Croix warrants plenty enough. If you scatter them over the various country towns, you may be perfectly certain that all other Masonry than Prince Masonry will soon lose its value and become insignificant; admissions to Prince Masonry will become more and more numerous; the Grand Chapter will lose its control over them, and when the Insignia of the Rose Croix are to be had for the mere asking—or, what is more likely still—are offered to any who choose to accept them, as a vanity or a novelty, Prince Masonry will cease to be even a novelty, and the name of Rose Croix will be as little regarded as are some other intermediate steps which it is not necessary for me to name. You may ask me, what would you then have us to do? That, unhappily, is just what it is impossible for me to define with any degree of certainty. I wish sincerely I could so define a course for you, or even for myself. I cannot, in reply, lay down a hard and fast rule to guide you in matters of discretion, on which it is not easy to form a fair opinion; but this I may say; I would have you grant new warrants with a very cautious hand having regard to a great many circumstances which would not be taken into account if you were to grant them, merely to gratify a few individuals, however estimable in character or anxious for the extension of the Order. We must not either withhold promotion from men who deserve it, nor make promotion too cheap, too easily had, too common to be thought very well worth having. I have stated thus much for your consideration, knowing, as I do, that I incur the risk of displeasing many who may hear me, because it is my duty to point out a danger, and it will be yours to avert it, if you can, by good sense, discretion, and circumspection.

The warrant long since issued to Lisbon is still in the hands of brethren there; I have observed in the printed statement of our last year's accounts that they appear to be a good deal in arrear for fees and dues. But I doubt very much whether they are aware of transgressing our rules. Those who originally took the warrant must, most of them at least, have passed away; it seems almost unaccountable that their successors should desire to retain it. I have always understood that at the time when it was granted, the political state of Portugal was such that it was necessary to have recourse to Great Britain or Ireland for a Masonic warrant, which the civil powers would not allow. But that necessity cannot still exist, for there were, for several years past, two rival Masonic Bodies in Portugal, each claiming to be supreme in all Masonic matters. Both were united, happily, on the 30th October, 1869, as were also the Councils of the 33rd degree, which existed in each of them, in some way so much at variance with our own usage that I am unable to explain it. That junction has now organised a single, regular, and supreme body for the government of Masonry in Portugal, the style of which is "Grandé Oriente Lusitano unido, Supremo Conselho da Maçonaria Portu-gez." I think it must follow, sooner or later, that the allegiance of the Rose Croix Chapter will be transferred to it. In fact, I wish it were so, because I think it an evil example to send warrants from one Masonic authority into the dominion of another. However, I think we must consult the wishes of our Portuguese brethren in the matter, and, for my part, I would give them the most respectful attention.

Some months ago, the Grand Chapter received an official communication from the Council of the 33rd Degree in Ireland to the effect that the Council of that Degree in England had officially notified to them that an assembly, purporting to be masonic, but not recognised by the Council of the 33rd for England, had assumed a right to confer certain degrees, that of Rose Croix included; and that the degrees so conferred could not be acknowledged. You may not all be aware that the Council of 33rd for England is the governing body of the Rose Croix Order there, as the Grand Chapter is the governing body of the Rose Croix here: it is so, however; and as Grand Chapter, recognising and reciprocating the amicable feeling which I am happy to say the Supreme Council of 33rd for England always evinces towards us here, at once resolved that they, for their part, would not recognize the degrees which had been conferred by what the Council of 33rd in England had pronounced to be an unauthorised and clandestine body, assuming, without any foundation of right, the powers properly exercisable only by the Council or by its authority. It was, you will observe, purely an abstract masonic question, not reflecting on, or inculcating any individual member of the Order, and I think the Grand Chapter decided perfectly in accordance with Masonic law in the matter, for it is a maxim of Masonic Law that no assemblage of Masons or other persons, has a right to constitute itself into an independent Masonic body, of any grade, in any country where there is an existing recognised Masonic power in that country, in which body the government of the grade is vested. It is also consistent with Masonic law, and with good sense likewise that the recognized exercise of authority is a presumption of a right to exercise it. It is not competent to any mason or number of masons to put a governing Masonic body upon proof of its authority, merely to endeavour to subvert it; and surely he who would question my title must found his claim on the validity of his own, not on the weakness of mine, if it be weak. Those are the rules of natural justice. Moreover, the edicts of a Masonic power, issued respecting a matter within its authority, are to be received without question, and presumed to be fair, well founded, and regular. The Council of 33rd in England would not question an order of our Grand Chapter, and our Grand Chapter is reciprocally bound to respect an order of theirs, or of any independent Masonic puissance.

Since that event took place I have found the resolution of our Grand Chapter, to which I have just alluded, has been confirmed by the authority of the Council of 33rd for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of America. I find in the official communication of that Council, published in December last, that notice had been received by them from the sister Council in England that a meeting had been held in Manchester, under a warrant alleged to have been given to a Mr. John Yarker, by two brethren named Seymour and Hyam, claiming to have some authority as members of the 33rd Degree belonging to, or deriving title from, some Council or Councils in America. The Council of 33rd at Charleston forthwith promulgated an edict, dated 18th September last, signed by the Commander, Albert Pike. It recites that certain bodies in England, not of the obedience of the Supreme Council of England and Wales and the Dependencies of the British Crown, claimed and exercised the right of conferring, in some manner and form, to the Charleston Council unknown, the Degrees of Rose Croix and Kadosh; and it mentions that Messrs Seymour and Hyam had constituted certain bodies in England; and it then proceeds to enjoin and caution all Freemasons owing obedience to the Council at Charleston to have no communication with, or in any manner recognize as lawfully in possession of the Rose Croix or other Degrees, any person coming from the jurisdiction of England and Wales and the dependencies of the British Crown, "unless he have evidence of his legitimate possession of such degrees by diploma from the Council of England and Wales, or some body of its obedience." Remembering that our Grand Chapter occupies here the same position with respect to the Rose Croix Order that the 33rd Councils do in the Southern States and in England, I think it plain that it acted in the matter with proper Masonic feeling. What is the use of a government that does not govern? Is it not the first duty of a government to protect its own subjects, who owe, and who pay allegiance to it? And I do not hesitate to pronounce our Bro. Albert Pike the greatest authority on Masonic matters that has ever appeared in any time, or in any country; and I think it must be satisfactory to us all to know that we have the sanction of the proceedings of the illustrious Masonic body whose councils he directs, as a guarantee for the propriety of our own.

I have gone somewhat farther than may be deemed necessary into this matter, not that I deem it necessary to vindicate our Grand Chapter from any imputation of personal jealousy or discontent, for no such feeling influenced its proceedings; indeed, it was impossible that such should be the case. I have been told, and I believe it to be the fact, that a few members of Irish lodges took the Rose Croix and some other degrees in the unauthorised body disclaimed by the English Council; but certainly no member of the Grand Chapter, so far as I can judge, intended the least disrespect or discourtesy to them, while yet the Grand Chapter felt bound to vindicate the honour of this Order and its own dignity, neither of which should be compromised, even if its decision should be likely to create a temporary feeling of dissatisfaction, which I think a little calm reflection should dispel, if it ever existed. We cannot, as the wise Dr. Johnson said, blow up half-a-dozen palaces because one cottage is burning. I mention it only to impress upon those members of the Rose Croix Order, who hear me, that it is a grave Masonic offence to hold Masonic communication with any clandestine body—the name given to any unrecognised Masonic assembly, no matter how public its meetings or how ostentatious its proceedings. I also desire to warn all my younger hearers against the incongruity of going beyond the Masonic jurisdiction of Ireland, to obtain Masonic Degrees elsewhere, merely with the idea of thereby attaining an equality with those who have attained them here. Such an experiment has been tried more than once in my time, and has uniformly failed. There are many men whom we all would gladly enough receive as visitors and friends, if they came to our hall doors in the ordinary way; but if we caught them creeping up the back stairs—I need not follow out the parallelism. What equality can there be where there is not sympathy? Of what value is a distinction, not conferred as an honour, but snatched against the will of those who should confer it? I have myself attained the highest Masonic grade, and I can most heartily, solemnly and sincerely assure my brethren of every degree, that no Masonic grade, no childish toys of ribbons, stars, or crosses, can ever compensate the person who attempts to introduce disunion and dissension, disorder and insubordination, into our admirably constituted, and, on the whole, admirably administered society. That is indeed a poor ambition—worthy of pity, but that its effects may be so calamitous to the welfare of the order, if the contagion of such sorry vanity and weak desire of distinction, at any price, should spread very widely amongst us.

Promotion is very good, and as a reward of service and of merit, very acceptable. But it may be too rapid. Give a man all the degrees he can attain—give them all in a day, or a week, and what will be their value in our eyes, or even in his own; Absolutely nothing: exactly what they would be worth.

Many years ago I suggested the revision of our Ritual; the subject was not taken up until recently, and as it is still under discussion, it would be premature for me to state what has been already done. This matter will not so far as I can discern from the feelings expressed by the Grand Chapter, be likely to influence or interfere with any of the old established principles on which our order is founded, both in this country and in England, whatever may be the case elsewhere.

Our financial condition should be noticed in this report. We appear to have a very small balance in hand, of about £40 to £50—the printed account gives the particulars. It seems to me extraordinary that we should be clear of debt, because not only have we to pay £50 per annum for Grand Lodge rent, but we have just finished the costly decoration of this hall. The satisfactory statement of the account is due to the valued and faithful Brother who has been our Assistant Secretary, Charles T. Walmisley, whose own Lodge has recently given him on retiring from the office of its Secretary a valuable and splendid testimonial of their appreciation of his long services, and I am sure all who know that truly high minded and honourable gentleman will concur in the expressions of regard and esteem embodied in the address presented to him by that old established and respectable Lodge.

If with so heavy a drain on our finances we have kept out of debt, it is to be hoped that by next meeting of the Convocation a considerable surplus will be in hand; it is too soon to consider what should be done with it; but I trust this great order will bear some fruit worthy of its Masonic rank, its professions, and its members.

I must also remind you that it is to our Brother Theophilus E. St. George we are indebted for taking the trouble of carrying out the details of all this splendid blazonry which surrounds us, on which he has bestowed more care and attention than any one would at first sight suppose the matter to require; but without that care and attention we could not have had, as we now have a Chapter Room not unworthy of the eminent fraternity after which it is named. Nor should it be forgotten that we owe the construction of the Masonic Hall mainly to the exertions of our late lamented Brother Thomas Mostyn. Three years have passed since he was taken from amongst us, but still his memory is fresh in our hearts. I do not speak of him thus merely because he was a dear friend of my own, whose loss has impaired the value of my own existence, but because he was the most remarkable instance I have yet known of a man who carried into the business of life the feelings of Masonic duty, not so as to interfere with his functions—very far from it;—no man was more rigidly exact in the righteous performance of those of his very important office; but I am not the only one of his brethren who has reason to testify to his readiness to recognize the ties of fraternal friendship and obligation, and to use for the benefit of those on whom he relied as worthy of his aid, the means of doing them service which his position afforded. But for his enterprise, courage, and perseverance, we should not now have this great building, to which we were not ashamed to invite even our illustrious Brother, the Heir Apparent of this Realm.

NEW ZEALAND.

TIMARU, CANTERBURY.—Messrs. Allan and Stumbles, the railway contractors, on behalf of the Government, formally handed over the foundation stone of the old Masonic Lodge to Mr. John King, Worshipful Master of the Lodge of St. John, for use in the new Lodge shortly to be erected. Not less than forty Masons, members either of St. John's Lodge, or of the Caledonian Lodge, were present, and the greatest interest was manifested in the proceedings. On the stone being removed, the Treasurer of the Lodge, Bro. R. Scott, removed the bottle from the cavity under the stone, and on detaching the surrounding cement, it was at once seen that the contents were all in as good condition as they were the day on which they were enclosed in the bottle. The stone now removed was laid with great ceremony on Thursday, July 30, 1866, by Dr. Donald, Acting District Grand Master, the day being observed as a public holiday in Timaru in honour of the event.

Obituary.

BRO. JOSEPH CATCHPOLE, J.D. 1306, Was buried at Highgate Cemetery, in the presence of about sixty brethren. Bro. Joseph Catchpole, J.D., 1306, J.D., 1326, was the proprietor of the Sugar Loaf Tavern, Wapping. He died on the 1st. inst., in his fortieth year. Rev. Bro. Gordon, Chaplain, 1306, officiated, and after the funeral service, gave a beautiful oration.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO A BROTHER.—On Sunday morning, the 4th inst., an accident of a somewhat serious nature occurred to Bro. H. Williams, P.M. of the Mariners' Lodge, No. 249, which will doubtless be regretted by the large masonic circle in and around Liverpool, who have the highest esteem for him. Bro. Williams resides in Seacombe, Cheshire, and it would appear that on the morning in question, he was informed there was a strong smell of gas in the sitting room. He went downstairs, opened the window, and, after the lapse of some time, proceeded to examine, with a light, the place where the supposed escape was taking place, while doing this, the gas exploded and scorched him severely about the face and hands, tore the paper off the wall, and did other damage; Bro. Williams has, since that time, been under surgical attendance, and, by the most recent intelligence, was progressing as favourably as could be expected.

Bro. ~~St.~~ MICHAEL COSTA, has left London for Naples, and will return in November, after visiting Germany.

By favour of Bro. Charles S. Titus, Grand Secretary, of Massachusetts, U.S., we have received the "proceedings" of that Grand Lodge for the year 1871. It is a handsome volume of over 700 pages, and contains much matter of interest, not only to the Masons of Massachusetts, but to the Craft all over the world. We shall take an early opportunity of making some extracts from it.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, August 23, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, AUG. 17.

Lodge 1185, Lewis, Nightingale Tavern, Wood Green.
Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, AUG. 19.

Lodge 720, Panmure, Balham Hotel, Balham.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, AUG. 20.

Board of General Purposes at 3.
Lodge 435, Salisbury, 71, Dean-st., Soho.
Chap. 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.

Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 21.

General Committee Grand Lodge, and Lodge of Benevolence, at 6.
Lodge 619, Beadon, Greyhound Hotel, Dulwich.
,, 1320, Blackheath, Crown Hotel, Blackheath
,, 1349, Friars, Cheshire Cheese, Crutched-friars.
,, 1365, Clapton, White Hart Hotel, Upper Clapton.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, AUG. 22.

House Committee Girls' School, at 4.
The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor. Ceremony, explanation of R.A. Jewel and Solids, part sections.
Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, BethnalGreen, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

FRIDAY, AUG. 23.

House Committee Boys' School.
Lodge 780, Royal Alfred, Star and Garter, Kew Bridge.
Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298,) Preceptor.
Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Spirit Agency 511
 The Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 512
 Masonic Tidings 515
 Masonic Notes and Queries 515
 The Royal Order of Scotland 516
 CRAFT MASONRY:—
 Provincial 516
 MARK MASONRY:—
 Provincial 519
 Grand Rose Croix Chapter of Ireland 519
 CORRESPONDENCE:—
 Professor Rawlinson and the Ten Tribes..... 520
 The Ballot for W.M. 521
 Masons at Public Meetings 521
 Bro. Emra Holmes and the Good Templars 521
 Our Ceremonies..... 522
 OBITUARY:—
 Bro. G. Fermor-Hesketh 522
 Masonic Meetings for next week... 523
 Advertisements..... 509, 510, 523, 524

SPIRIT AGENCY.

BY BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M.
 AND P.Z. 177.

EMINENT ROSICRUCIANS.—JEROME CARDAN.

The civilised world, says Mr. Morley, rang with the fame of the great Italian physician, who had read and written upon almost everything—Jerome Cardan. But, then, he adds, “he was hampered with a misleading scholarship, possessed by the superstitions of his time, and bound down by the church. Cardan, however, became the glory of his day.” Elsewhere, he says, having reference to Tiraboschi’s character of the famous Italian, as well, evidently, as uttering his own conviction, “but the man of profound genius sometimes wrote as if he were a fool. His folly may instruct us. It belonged—bating some eccentricities—not to himself alone. His age claimed part in it, and bought his books. He was the most successful scientific author of his time; the books of his that were most frequently reprinted being precisely those in which the folly most abounded. He was not only the popular philosopher, but the fashionable physician of the sixteenth century.” “Cardan obtained a splendid reputation, wholly by his own exertions; not only because he was a man of power and genius, but because he spent much of his energy upon ideas that, foolish as they now seem, were conceived in the true spirit of his age.” To me, it seems that Mr. Morley was perplexed by what presented itself to his mind, in the study of Cardan’s character. His admiration was evoked by the profound learning, unwearied industry, far-reaching genius, patient suffering, and unyielding love of truth, which he found in the man; but he was shocked by the folly which he perceived, or thought he perceived, in his belief in astrology and spirit agency. Having no belief in the foundation of the many narratives Cardan gives of the supernatural occurrences in his own life, although he doubts not the good faith with which he wrote them, his biographer has “not thought it worth while to collect all the stories of the kind.” “Cardan’s daily life,” he says, “was tortured by the morbid ingenuity of superstition into a long course of experience in magic. Every sight, sound, or smell, that was unusual, was likely to be received as an omen by the credulous philosopher. He believed that he received secret monitions from a genius or guardian spirit—sometimes they came from the spirit of his father. It was not strange to him that, when he contemplated marriage, the dog howled, and ravens shrunk together in his neighbourhood; the shadow of the warning spirit moved about his doors, and the brute animal gave token of the dread excited by its presence. Why, asked Cardan, should he enjoy the favour of especial warnings? Was it because, although hemmed in by poverty, he loved the immeasurable truth, and worshipped wisdom, and sought justice; that the mystic presence taught him to attribute all to the Most High? Or did the spirit come for reasons best known to itself? Again, why were its warnings so obscure? Why, for example, did it sometimes become manifest by noises that he was unable to interpret? He could not answer these questions, but he believed that the spiritual communications were made wisely, and lost significance by passing through the dull wall of the flesh into a mind not always well-fitted to receive them.

Mr. Morley, however, does give two or three of Cardan’s statements of these phenomena, with an explanation that really explains nothing, although it illustrates a state of mind which will catch at, and cling to, any outrageous supposition or frivolous assumption, in order to break away from what contradicts its preconceptions, or prepossessions. “At Pavia,” writes Mr. Morley, “one morning, while in bed, and again while dressing, Jerome heard a distinct rap, as of a hammer, on a wall of his room, by which he knew that he was parted from a chamber in an empty house. At that time died his and his father’s friend, Galeazzo Rosso.” Mr. Morley says he quotes the passage for the benefit of Rappists; and observes that “the disciples of certain impostors who, in our own day, have revived a belief in spirit-knockings, may be referred to the works of Cardan for a few enunciations of distinct faith in such manifestations.”

Let us now hear Mr. Morley’s explanation of this and such-like “superstitions.” He says, “It is enough,”—enough!—“for us simply to note how frequently the ear as well as the eye is deluded, when the nervous system is in a condition that appears to have been constant with Cardan. The sounds heard by him at Pavia portended no more than is meant by the flashes of light which sometimes dart before our wearied eyes.” The like explanation will suffice for another portent related by Cardan. “In that year, 1537, his mother, Clara, died. While she lay awaiting death, Jerome, of course, had all his senses open for the perception of some sign or omen. Once, in the night, he heard a mysterious tapping, as of the fall of water-drops upon a pavement, and he counted nearly one hundred and twenty distinct raps. He was in doubt, however, as to their significance, or whether they were, indeed, spiritual manifestations, for they appeared to proceed from a point at the right of him, in contradiction to all doctrine concerning portents of calamity. He believed, therefore, that ‘perhaps one of his servants might be practising on his anxiety.’ But for the purpose of assuring his faith in the genuineness of the supernatural communication that he had received, the raps were repeated—he supposed that they could have been repeated only for that purpose—on the next day, when the sun was high, and he, being up and awake, could assure himself that nobody was near him. There were then fifteen strokes; he counted them. Afterwards, he heard, in the night, a heavy sound as of the unloading of a waggon-full of planks. It caused the bed to tremble. After these events, his mother died; but Jerome adds, ‘of the significance of the noises I am ignorant.’” To me it seems plain, that howmuchsoever Cardan’s senses were all “open for the perception of omens sign or omen,” as his biographer alleges they were, he was not ready to “swallow, without questioning,” anything strange, or out of the ordinary way of things, as supernatural. He, in this case, says he “counted nearly one hundred and twenty distinct raps,” but being in doubt as to their significance, he thought they might have been produced by a servant “practising on his anxiety.” They were repeated the next day, however, when he was assured no one was near; and then, and not till then, he regarded them as something beyond the reach of nature, though of the signification of the phenomena he was ignorant. Cardan, unlike some pseudo-philosophers that might now be pointed to, did not make his reception of a fact depend upon his discovery of the eni bono. His ignorance of the latter was no obstacle in the way of his accepting the former. That is sound philosophy. But Mr. Morley deems a belief in such occurrences as these, “a portion of Cardan’s bodily infirmity.” “He had not a whole mind,” he says, “and the sick part of him mingled its promptings with the sound in all his writings.” These “weaknesses” and “superstitions” stagger him. We have seen how he writes of him, in one place, let us look at another passage: “It was in the lifetime of Cardan that the sap began to find its way into the barren stems of many sciences. The spirit of enquiry that begat the reformation, was apparent also in the fields and woods, and by the sick beds of the people. Out of the midst of the inert mass of philosophers that formed the catholic majority in science, there came not a small number of independent men who boldly scrutinized the wisdom of the past, and diligently sought new indications for the future. Cardan was one of these; perhaps the cleverest, but not the best of them. Though he worked for the future, he was not before his time. It was said, after his death, probably with truth, that no other man of his day could have left behind him works, showing an intimate acquaintance with so many subjects. He sounded new depths in a great many sciences, brought wit into the service of the dullest themes—wonderful episodes into abstruse treatises upon arithmetic, and left behind him, in his writings, proofs of a wider knowledge and a more brilliant genius, than usually went, in those days, to the making of a scholar’s reputation.” Such is the character given of this “dreamer” and “visionary;” and it may be added, that, while he has left upon record many narratives which show, as says Tiraboschi, that he “wrote as a fool,” he gave evidence of being “a true philosopher, in his 36th year,” says Mr. Morley, “by burning about nine books that he had written upon various subjects, because they seemed to him, on re-perusal, empty and unprofitable.”

There seems little reason to doubt that Cardan was sometimes misled by his imagination or fancy, in the interpretation of the signs, or omens, or dreams that arrested his attention. This would be almost inevitable. But in other cases, there is no room left for such a conjecture. Take the following, as related by his biographer: "One day (at Pavia), chancing to look into his right hand, Cardan observed a mark at the root of his ring-finger, like a bloody sword. He trembled suddenly. What more? That evening, it was on a Saturday, a person came to him with letters from his daughter's husband, telling him that his son was in prison, charged with murder. Cardan laboured night and day to save him; he was wretched, and covered with shame; but in an agony of excitement he pleaded for him in open Court, hoping that culpable as he may have been, he had escaped actual blood-guiltiness. One day, when Gianbatista (his son) had been imprisoned for about three weeks, during which Jerome had been straining all energies on his behalf, the old man was studying in the library of some friends, with whom he was then staying at Milan, the Palavicini, and while he was so sitting, there sounded in his ear some tones as of the voice of a priest consoling wretched men who are upon the verge of death. His heart was torn assunder, and rushing out of doors, he met his daughter's husband, who sorrowfully informed him that his son had made full confession of his guilt, and that his doom was fixed." But the mark on his finger? Mr. Morley tells us: "The red mark, like a sword, that seemed to be ascending Cardan's finger, on the fifty-third day after his son's capture, seemed to have reached the finger tip, and shone with blood and fire. Jerome was beside himself with anguish and alarm. In the morning, when he looked, the mark was gone. During the night his son had perished. He was executed by night in his prison, on the 7th of April, 1560." Now, let us hear Mr. Morley's rational explanation of this occurrence—an explanation which, it may be presumed, satisfies his own mind, and which he trusts will satisfy the minds of his readers. "Lines upon hands," he says, "differ, of course; but whoever looks into his own, probably will see that straight lines run down from the roots of the two middle fingers, and it is likely that one of them may have a short line crossing it in the place necessary to suggest a sword hilt. The blood implies no more than redness of the line, and it is not hard to understand how, as the case went on, while he was working for his son, in Milan, Jerome's excited fancy traced the growth of the sword upward along his finger." A man must possess a large amount of the imaginative faculty, and be satisfied with very far-fetched conjectures, if he receive Mr. Morley's explanation of the phenomenon as satisfactory. It evades the most noticeable points in the narrative,—the sudden appearance and disappearance, and the changed aspects of the mark, with the coincidence between its appearance, and his son's detection and arrest, and its bloody and fiery appearance and sudden disappearance with his son's execution.

Many of the extraordinary events in Cardan's life are referred by him to the intervention of spirit agency. "He had been long persuaded, he said, that he was attended by a presiding spirit, called, in Greek, an argel; such spirits had attended certain men, Socrates, Plotinus, Synesius, Dion, Flavius Josephus, and himself." In what way he was admonished by the spirit he could scarcely tell, but that he had been often secretly prompted he was unable to doubt. Of this, Mr. Morley relates some instances, although he, of course, pooh-poohs them—like a philosopher! Here are one or two instances in which Cardan recognised this spirit agency. "When walking one day in the streets of Milan, without any reason but this secret prompting, he crossed the road, and immediately afterwards there fell from the roof of a house under which he would have passed, had he not changed his course, cement enough to kill eight oxen." "Another time, when riding on his mule, he met a coach, and had an instinctive thought that it would be overturned, for which reason he passed on the wrong side of it, and as he was passing it did overturn, in the direction contrary to that which he had chosen." Again, "invited to a supper at Rome, Cardan remarked, as he was sitting down among the guests, 'If I thought you would not take it ill, I would say something.' 'You mean to say,' one of the company enquired, 'that one of us will die?' 'Yes,' the old man answered, 'and within the year.' On the first of December following died one of the party, a young man named Virgil." Why should it seem strange or impossible, that the same guardian-spirit from whom Jerome believed he received these warnings and monitions, should have caused the appearance on his finger of a bloody sword, as a symbolic warning that his son would perish by the bloody sword of the executioner, while its ascending from the finger-root to the tip, and its increasing redness, kept pace with the approaching nearness of his fate, and culminated at its catastrophe? The reader must determine for himself whether all these occurrences, and many others, of a like nature, in Cardan's life, are more rationally attributable to mere accident or imagination, than to the agency of such a power as Cardan recognised. Although Mr. Morley deplors his superstition, he affords striking evidence of his caution in not claiming as mystery or superhuman all things that might seem liable to be so regarded. For example, he said to an old pupil of his, "bring me a paper, I have something to write for you." The paper was brought, and the physician wrote under the young man's eyes, 'You will die soon, if you do not take care.' He was taken ill eight days afterwards, and died in the evening." What said Cardan to this? Did he attribute it to any supernatural revelation or suggestion of his attendant spirit? No. He writes, "I saw that in no mysterious way; it was plain to me as a physician."

Cardan gives the following reason for that to which he was much addicted:—Home solitude." He says, "for I am never so much in the company I like as when I am alone. For I love God and my good angel. These, while I am alone, I contemplate. The Infinite God, the Eternal Wisdom, the Fountain and Author of Science, the True Pleasure, which we need not fear losing, the Foundation of Truth, the Source of Disinterested Love, the Creator of all Things; . . .

and the angel who, by His command, is my guardian, a kind and compassionate counsellor and assistant, and comforter in adversity."

Jerome Cardan died at Rome, on the 20th of September, 1576, when he was 75 years old.

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMMA HOLMES, 31^o,

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 505.)

A renewed series of interrogations followed, in the course of which the candidate bound himself by the most solemn obligations to be obedient to the Head of the House and the Chief Head of Jerusalem, to observe the customs of the Order, to live in perfect chastity, to help, with all the strength and powers God had bestowed on him, to conquer the Holy Land, and never to be present when a Christian was unjustly and unlawfully despoiled of his heritage. He was then received, assured of "bread and water, and the poor clothing of the Order, and labour and toil enow," and the coveted habit placed on him by the Master—the famous white mantle with the red cross. The Master and Chaplain then kissed him; and the former, whilst the newly-made Templar sat before him, delivered a discourse, in which he admonished the listener not to strike or wound any Christian; not to swear, not to receive any attendance from a woman without permission, nor to kiss any woman at any time, even his mother or sister, not to assist in any baptismal ceremony, never to abuse or call names, but be ever courteous and polite. He was also directed to sleep in a linen shirt, drawers, and hose, and with a small girdle round his waist, to attend divine service punctually, to sit down to table and rise from it with prayer, and to preserve silence in the interim. Lastly, when he heard of the Master's death he was to repeat immediately, wherever he might be, two hundred paternosters for the repose of his soul. The ceremony over, the new member received clothes, arms, and equipments, and no longer appeared abroad but in his costume of a Knight Templar.* The new Knight was allowed also three horses and an esquire, who was sometimes a serving brother, sometimes a hired layman, and sometimes a youth of noble birth, proud to serve so distinguished a personage. Attached to the Knights were two other classes, the Chaplains and serving brethren, and somewhat more remotely the affiliated, and the Donates and Oblates. Through the class of serving brethren many found admittance into the Order, says Charles Knight, who not enjoying the honour of knighthood and knightly descent, must have been otherwise by the rules proscribed. Some distinguished men joined the Society, even in this comparatively humiliating position. The affiliated comprised persons of all ranks of society, and of both sexes, who, desiring to assist the Order, or to share in the advantages connected with it, such for instance, as the exemption from the effects of interdict enjoyed by the Templars, were permitted to join the Order, without assuming its habit, its hardships, and its dangers, on taking certain vows, as that of chastity, and engaging to leave their property to the Templars on their death. The great Pope, Innocent III., did not disdain to declare himself as standing in this position to the society, in one of his bulls. The Donates and Oblates were either children destined to the service of the Order, or persons who engaged to promote its welfare to the best of their power while they lived—princes were to be found among the last-mentioned class. The very duty of the Knight Templar to fight the enemies of his faith by compelling him to mix continually and largely with the world, prevented him from observing the strictness of the rules set down for his governance, and as a very natural consequence, his conduct was no doubt often sufficiently lax when he had no such excuses to plead.

* The Knights of the Garter I believe, are subject to a heavy fine if they appear abroad without the insignia of their Order. In Jennings' book on the Rosicrucians, there is a curious account of the Garter.

Wallen, in his book, which I have before quoted, admits that at the time of the suppression of the Templars the Hospitallers were become equally lax in their discipline. He says "it must be acknowledged that their increasing power and influence made them unlace themselves from the strictness of their first institution, and rendered them loose and licentious. Richard de Everton, in 1327, was appointed as a visitor, for the purpose of repressing the religious intolerance of the Knights, and enforcing a better observance of their spiritual duties. Indeed, a proposition was made to Benedict XI. to form a new military order, and to grant it the property transferred to the Hospitallers on the suppression of the Templars. To this he would not accede, but his successor, Clement VI., after having ascertained the truth of many of the accusations brought against the Hospitallers, wrote a letter to them, which had the effect of inducing a great reformation of manners in the Order. The two Orders, in fact, had the same faults in common, and there was no more reason for suppressing the one than the other. If they had remained poor, they would in all probability have been unmolested, but being rich, they were doomed.

It is not intended that this lecture (the substance only of which was delivered before the fratres of my own encampment) should be considered in any sense as exhaustive, in treating of the Knights Templar. I am only a student, a seeker after light, and I only desire to create the same feeling of interest in the Templars and ourselves, their successors, in the minds of your readers generally, in the hope that good fruits may follow—good results ensue.

If each Templar and each Mason would only contribute one fact to elucidate the history of our Order, and to open out the mysterious past, we should all be greatly benefitted, and in the hope that some abler brother may assist or correct me, I pen these lines.

Among the rules of of the Templars, which seem to have been most religiously observed were those of obedience, at least the punishment was very severe for any breach of such rules. We are reminded of this by the sight of the penitential cell of the Temple, which is formed within the solid thickness of the wall of the church, and measures only four feet and a half in length by two and a half in breadth, so that the unhappy prisoner could not lie down, except by drawing his limbs together. One act of mercy however, there was for him to be thankful for. During divine service, he could hear and participate in all that was passing, through one of "squints," as they are termed by architects, looking into the church. If the secrets of this prison house could be made known, they would be, doubtless, appalling, for the meagre facts that have oozed out in the light of day are sufficiently terrible. Here Walter le Bachelor, Grand Preceptor of Ireland, was fettered by order of the Master, till he died of the severity of his punishment. The corpse was then taken out at daybreak, and buried in the court between the church and the hall. Besides imprisonment, which was either temporary or perpetual, according as seemed expedient to the Master, the Templars were occasionally scourged on the bare shoulders by the Master's own hand, in the hall, or even whipped in the church on Sunday, before the congregation.

A knight of the name of Valaincourt once quitted the Order, but unable, most probably, to stifle the whisperings of his conscience that he did wrong, returned, and submitted himself cheerfully to whatever penance the Master thought fit to impose. He was accordingly condemned to eat on the ground for a year with dogs, to fast four days in every week on bread and water, and every Sunday to be scourged in the church before all assembled. A public exhibition such as this no doubt had a double effect, and edified the world as much as it punished the criminal.

The Order for a long time was, as it deserved, highly popular, for its piety, bravery, and humility, and the usual consequences of popularity in those days followed. Great men desired to be buried among them, which could only be accomplished by connection with their society, in one of the available modes already mentioned. Lands, manors, houses, privileges, were showered upon them, money was deposited with them in cases of peculiar danger; and one monarch at a critical time deposited himself in their community. I need hardly say I refer to King John, who during the period of the arrangements connected with the signing of Magna Charta resided here. Numerous documents of the King's are dated from the Temple. Among other distinguished visitors was one the Templars must have been glad to get rid of, Martin, the Pope's Nuncio, of whom Matthew Paris says "He made, whilst residing at London in the New Temple unheard of extortions of money and valuables. He imperiously intimated to the abbots and priors that they must send him rich presents, desirable palFREYS, sumptuous services for the table, rich clothing; which being done that same Martin sent back word that the things sent were insufficient, and he commanded the givers thereof to forward him better things, on pain of excommunication." The treasure deposited in the Temple must have been frequently immense, from the quality of the depositors or the circumstances of the deposit. Fully trustworthy, enjoying the privilege of sanctuary, and able so well to defend personally whatever was in their charge, the Templars became distinguished as the safest of guardians on all extraordinary occasions. The King, his court, and chief ecclesiastics, all made the Temple their bank when they pleased, and here too, were brought all monies collected for the Christian service in Palestine. The most remarkable record on this subject is connected with the great Earl of Kent, Hubert de Burgh, on whose disgrace and committal to the Tower the King began to look shrewdly after the captive's Treasures. Matthew Paris says, "It was suggested to the King, that Hubert had no small amount of treasure deposited in the New Temple under the custody of the Templars. The King accordingly summoning to his presence the Master of the Temple, briefly demanded of him if it was so. He indeed, not daring to deny the truth to the King, confessed that he had money of the said Hubert, which had been confidentially connected to the keeping of himself and brethren but of the quantity and amount he was altogether ignorant. Then the King endeavoured with threats to obtain from the brethren the surrender to him of the aforesaid money, asserting that it had been fraudulently substracted from his treasury. But they answered to the King, that money confided to them in trust they would deliver no man, without the permission of him who had intrusted it to be kept in the Temple. And the King, since the above mentioned money had been placed under their protection, ventured not to take it by force. He sent, therefore, the treasurer of his court, with his justices of the Exchequer, to Hubert who had already been placed in fetters in the Tower of London, that they might exact from him an assignment of the entire sum to the King. But when these messengers had explained to Hubert the object of their coming, he immediately answered that he would submit himself and all belonging to him to the good pleasure of his sovereign. He therefore petitioned the brethren of the chivalry of the Temple, that they would, in his behalf, present all his keys to his lord the King, that he might do what he pleased with the things deposited in the Temple. This being done, the King ordered the money, faithfully counted, to be placed in his treasury, and the amount of all the things found to be reduced to writing and exhibited before him. The King's clerks, indeed, and the Treasurer, acting with them, found deposited in the Temple gold and silver vases of inestimable price, and money, and many precious gems, an enumeration whereof would in truth astonish the hearers."

Of the eminent persons who caused their bodies to be here interred, some very interesting memorials are preserved, viz.: The two ranges of monumental effigies of great men reposing in their habits as they lived, one of five figures on the north side of the entrance to the oblong part of the church, the other of four, and a coped stone, the top of a coffin on the south. Knight informs us that the first figure on the left in the range here shown is that of Geoffrey de Magnaville, the bold bad son of the Norman baron of that name who distinguished himself at the battle of Hastings. This baron, after committing all kinds of excesses during the troubled reign of Stephen, died excommunicated by the church and abandoned by all but the Templars, who, finding him repentant, put their habit on him, and enrolled him among their Order. On his death, as they dared not bury him in the consecrated ground, they hung him up in a leaden coffin on a tree in the garden here, where he remained till absolution was obtained some years afterwards, when they buried him in the portico before the western door. Next to him is the effigy of the famous Protector, the Earl of Pembroke, to whom Henry III was indebted for the safety of his throne during his minority, and the people of England for healing, as far as they could be healed, the dissensions between the barons, and for driving the French from the country. He was buried here on Ascension day, 1219. The expressive and beautiful effigy which forms the third in the group represents the youthful looking Lord de Ros, one of the foremost of the memorable men who forced the Charter from John. None of the other figures in this and the following range can be distinguished with any certainty. It is known that two of the sons of the Protector Pembroke, William and Gilbert Marshal, were here buried, and the two effigies to the right, which have evidently a kind of correspondence (such for instance as the turn of the bodies in opposite directions,) are supposed to be theirs. William Marshal, another of the patriots of Runnymede, married king John's daughter and was therefore brother-in-law to Henry III, who was so grieved at his death that on attending his funeral he could not conceal his emotion. Of course all the cross-legged figures represent crusaders. Among other persons of eminence whose remains may yet lie beneath the floor are William Plantagenet, fifth son of the king just mentioned, and the Bishop of Carlisle, who was killed in 1256 by a fall from his horse, and to whose memory it is supposed the recumbent figure of a bishop in the recess in the south wall was erected. In the tomb beneath, which was opened in 1800, was found at the feet of the skeleton of the bishop, the skeleton of a very young infant. It may be noted, however, that the tomb had evidently been opened before. Here Selden and Plowden, the eminent lawyer, were both interred. In the church-yard of the Temple many stone coffins have been found, once filled, no doubt, by persons of distinction in their day, but whose very names are now lost in oblivion.

The extraordinary features, which from the first, characterised the Knights Templar, both in themselves and in their history, and made them so widely and popularly known, and which still invest their name with a thousand romantic associations, were to be equally visible in their fall and extinction. There is little doubt, Knight says, that the body grew more lax in their observance of many of the virtues for which they had at one time been so distinguished, but still it is only simple justice to say that, on the whole, they never lost sight of the object for which they had first banded themselves together, on the contrary, as the fortunes of the Christians in the Holy Land grew darker and darker, their spirits, throwing off much of the grosser corruptions, which their immense wealth and irresponsible power has generated, shone out the more clearly through the gloom. They showed by their heroic disregard of danger, sufferings, and death, that they were still the "fellow soldiers of Jesus Christ," if no longer the "poor." Their last great act, the defence of Acre in 1291, was a worthy close to their brilliant career. And if anything could add to our surprise as well as horror at the ultimate fate of the Order, it is the consideration that the period when the circumstances, to which we are about to allude, took place was not twenty years removed from this event, in which the great body of the Knights Templars perished, the last defenders of the last (with one exception) Christian stronghold. The throne of France, at the beginning of the fourteenth century, was occupied by Phillip the Fair, a man already distinguished for his avarice, and the unscrupulous means he was accustomed to use for its gratification. But all the evil deeds he had ever committed in this way, we might almost say that any powerful tyrant had ever committed from such motives, were thrown into the shade by the proceeding, which now took place. The Templars were known to be wealthy; they had houses in every portion of Christian Europe; their manors and lordships were reckoned at not less than nine thousand; the popular opinion estimated their annual revenue at six millions sterling—an exaggeration most probably, but there was quite truth enough in it for Phillip the Fair. He was not covetous; if it should turn out a million or so less, why he would be content. Such no doubt, was one of the directions his thoughts took. Then what an opportunity was afforded by circumstances! That long and expensive day-dream of the Crusades was evidently over; what could the Order want with its wealth? What could the world want with the Order? No doubt the monarch's answers to himself were perfectly satisfactory. Then the example of his brethren of England was before him, both Edward I, and Edward II, had been nibbling at the possessions of the English Templars, influenced most probably by similar considerations. The first monarch, on his victorious return from Wales, being short of money, was seized with a sudden desire to see his mother's jewels, deposited in the Temple. Filial piety found its own reward. Being admitted he was enabled to carry away ten thousand pounds to Windsor Castle, the Templars declared, by breaking open their coffers. Phillip's policy, Knight says, took a subtler—more sweeping course. The Pope, Benedict XI, fortunately died just at that moment. Phillip obtained the induction of a tool of his own, ready for any work, into the vacant chair of St. Peter. This was Clement V. Rumours, traceable to no particular source, now began to spread abroad through the world that the Templars were not what they seemed, that the Holy Land would not have been lost, but for their want of Christianity, and even blacker insinuations were heard. The way thus prepared, the next thing was to secure some base wretch to give these rumours shape by direct accusation. On the 14th of September, 1307, the necessary informations having been obtained from a condemned criminal, said by some writers to be an apostate Templar, Phillip struck the first and most important blow. Throughout France the proper offices of the different provinces received at the same time a communication commencing in the following portentous language: "A deplorable and most lamentable matter, full of bitterness and grief, a monstrous business," &c., had reached the king's ears; and then followed direct charges against the Templars, of the vulgarest as well as the most abominable kind of blasphemy against the Saviour, and of the committal of the worst crimes among themselves; and lastly, an order to seize the Templars suddenly, and place them under the power of an inquisition empowered to try them, and employ torture, if necessary, during the examination. Human nature recoils at the very mention of the sufferings inflicted upon these brave, and we may say, on the whole, innocent, but most unfortunate men. Of the one hundred and forty who were first put to the torture, no less than thirty-six actually perished in the hands of their tormentors. One of the Templars, who confessed what was desired, when subsequently brought before the commissary of police to be examined, revoked his confession, saying, "They held me so long before a fierce fire, that the flesh was burnt off my heels; two pieces of bone came away, which I present to you." These revocations occurred so often, in spite of the remembrance of what had been suffered, and what might in consequence be yet expected, that Phillip, like a wild beast who has tasted of blood, became half frenzied apparently at any opposition, and determined to take wholesale vengeance. In one decree fifty-four Templars, who had thus given the most decisive proofs of their innocence (for be it observed, a continued acknowledgment of guilt would have saved them), were sentenced to be burnt; and this atrocious act was performed at Paris, in the most barbarous manner. And by a continuance of the processes of the torture and scaffold in different parts of the country on one hand, and every kind of deceit, persuasion, and threat on the other, Phillip, having ultimately succeeded in clearing the body of all the most high-principled and bravest members, managed to make the remainder somewhat more tractable, among which, for the present, may be included the Grand Master, whom he had inveigled into France, though of him I shall have again to speak. Edward II. was then king of England; and this monarch at first turned a deaf ear to Phillip's letters and examples, and even wrote to some of the European princes, urging them to take care that due justice was done to the Templars in their dominions. But a papal bull soon ended the threatened opposition from this quarter; and Edward was convinced, or professed to be so, by the Pontiff's proofs, which consisted essentially of the confessions obtained in the manner already shown, by the most dreadful tortures, alternated with offers of free pardon to all who confessed. On the 8th January, 1308, the English Templars, who had been probably lulled into a sense of security by the king's earlier conduct in the matter, were suddenly arrested in all parts of England, and their property seized. Two hundred and twenty-nine of their number in all were thrown into the different prisons of the country, on similar charges; amongst them was William de la More, the Master of the Temple, and most of the other chief officers of the body in this country. Many escaped to Wales, to Ireland, and to Scotland.

Walter de Clifton, when examined before the Bishop of St. Andrews, as to the other brothers in Scotland, said that John de Hueflete, who was Preceptor of Blancradock, the chief house of the Order in Scotland, with the other brethren, having heard of the arrest of the Templars, threw off their habits and fled, and that he had not since heard aught concerning them. Bro. Thomas de Chamberkynne, in giving evidence before the inquisitors, admitted that the reception of Knights Templar into the order was secret, all seculars being excluded. In this other Templars agreed, but denied that there was anything wrong in the secrecy.

The principal charges brought against them were that they spat upon the crucifix; worshipped idols; believed that their Grand Master, who was a layman, could grant absolution; that they disbelieved in the sacraments; that they committed crimes amongst themselves too gross to name; and that they would not confess properly. This last crime, as my hearers know, was one of the charges brought against the Freemasons, and for which they are excommunicate; but the accusation generally is so strong, so violent, that as Voltaire justly remarks, "it destroys itself."

In Scotland, forty-one witnesses, chiefly abbots, priors, monks, priests, and serving men, and retainers of the Order in Scotland, were examined, but nothing of a criminal nature was elicited. The monks observed that the receptions of other Orders were public, and were celebrated as great religious solemnities; while the Templars, on the other hand, treated their proceedings in mystery and secrecy, and therefore they suspected the worst.

The serving men and the tillers of the land of the Order stated that the chapters were held, some times by night and sometimes by day, with extraordinary secrecy. Bro. Stephen de Raudenhall, one of the twenty-six Templars examined at York, refused to reveal the mode of reception, because it formed part of the secrets of the chapter, and if he discovered them he would lose his chamber, be stripped of his manors, or be committed to prison.

One little incident, which has been preserved in our records, will be of interest.

"The King, &c. Our beloved Valet, Peter Auger, the bearer of these presents, having made a vow that he would not shave his head till he had made a journey to a certain place in June beyond sea; and the said Valet being asked by some one, in consequence of his long hair, how he supposed him to have been a Templar, and for that cause may hinder or injure him; we being desirous to bear testimony of the truth, by these presents inform you that the said Peter is our Valet de Chambre, and that he was never a Templar, but permits his head to grow long for the cause above specified."

My readers will remember that the Normans shaved their faces; and it may have occurred to some Sir Knights that there was a certain anachronism in part of our ceremonies. The above explains it, and at the same time shows us how necessary secret signs and tokens would be to the poor persecuted Templars, to enable them to recognise each other.

Edward's conduct was weak throughout; he could not even abide by his first resolution, that no torture should be used; the Pope, and now induced him to change. In 1278-1279 the unfortunate Templars were here, too, giving up for some months to the unrestricted management of inquisitors, appointed by the Pontiff; and even then their energies failed. On being brought before certain examiners, sitting in the churches of St. Martin's, Ludgate, and St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, every individual, without exception, declared the innocence of the Order, with respect to the foul and monstrous accusations brought against it. It is probable the same was not carried to the other parts of England, as in France, if, indeed, it were carried to any extent. The hope, however, that the same confidence in the sanctity of the Order of human nature under the hesitating Edward, as under the reckless Philip. They changed their tactics, and were obliged to content themselves with what we should now think much better evidence, if trustworthy, than any torture could have given—the depositions of other parties. The Sir Knights may judge how trustworthy was the information, from the mere statement of its character. One witness had been told the Templars annually worshipped a calf; another, that a Templar had in his possession a brazen head, which answered all questions (was this the origin of Roger Bacon's talking head?); a third, that a Templar had confessed to him that, on his admission into the Order, he had been obliged to deny God and Jesus Christ, and to spit on the cross. This last was the favourite charge of the inquisitors, although, Knight says, not a single case was supported by so much proof as would induce a magistrate of the present day to detain a prisoner for a second examination. It moreover failed to satisfy the holy inquisitors themselves; they yearned, no doubt, for their accustomed method, and so were once more indulged with the rack and its kindred inducements. A splendid triumph at last was theirs. A Chaplain and two poor serving men were overcome, who confessed, publicly, the guilt of the Order as to its contemptuous denial of the Saviour; and, for so doing, were reconciled to the church. But the main body were as resolute as ever, and a kind of compromise was devised (Knight observes, it were worth knowing by whom) of an ingenious nature. The Templars, it appears, were guilty of believing that the Master had the power of absolution, and had always acted accordingly. It was now kindly pointed out to them that this was a grievous heresy; that the Master, as a layman, could have no such power; the Templars were too wise to quarrel about words, for as a thing it was evident it would never concern them again, so they said they were ready to abjure that and all other heresies. The admission seems to have been made as much of as if it alone had been the object of all the torture and suffering inflicted. The Templars, in successive bodies, made a public acknowledgment in accordance with what they had said, and no more; and they too, like their apostate brethren, were reconciled to the Christian community and its ecclesiastical head. And in this almost ludicrous manner, Knight adds, terminated the previously solemn and terrible proceedings against the Templars in England. Their property, in common with the property of the Order generally, was transferred, nominally, by the Pope to the rival Order of St. John, who, it is said, ultimately obtained about a twelfth part of their possessions, and the remainder made up by Philip, the Fourth, Edward II, and the other European Princes. As to the rightful owners, the poorest meanness was made to do all the other members committed upon them, many of the members were reduced almost to starvation, till some of the chief ecclesiastics interfered and procured their admission into different monasteries; it was at this period that it is supposed many sought the protection of the Hospitallers and Premonstrans. The Order was finally abolished, but illegally, by the Pope in 1312 (not more of this anon), and the site and buildings of the Temple, with the Church, went after that into the hands of the Knights Hospitallers, and on their suppression, temp. Henry VIII, to the students of the law, recently, and for the first time in England forced into a society. Still, speaking of the illegal manner in which the Pope suppressed the Order, in 1312, the Pope, Clement V, committed the glaring absurdity of issuing a papal decree to be executed in person, and to which he himself at the Council of Vienna, without asking the judgment of the assembled bishops and others, declares that although he cannot do right, consistently with the regulations and proceedings, pronounce a definitive sentence, yet by way of apostolical provision and regulation he personally prohibited people from entering into other Orders, and calling themselves Templars. The penalty of excommunication was held out as a punishment to those who disobeyed.

* History of Chivalry, vol. I, pp. 1549.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL.

It is the intention of Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.W.G.M.M., to hold a special Grand Mark Lodge at Manchester, on Wednesday, October 2nd.

G.I. OF MARK MASTERS.—The Grand Chapter of Maine, U. S., has recognised the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, &c.

CONSECRATION OF A LODGE AT ORMSKIRK.—On Wednesday, the 14th September, the West Lancashire Lodge of Antient, Free, and Accepted Masons, No. 1403, will be solemnly consecrated and added to the already long list of existing lodges. The consecration will take place at the Commercial Hotel, Ormskirk (where future meetings will be held), and Bro. Samuel Wylde will be the first W.M. As the chair will be supported by a most efficient and influential body of officers, there is every reason to believe that the lodge will prove one of the most prosperous in the West Lancashire division. As its name—"The West Lancashire Lodge"—indicates, its membership is intended to embrace many of the residents in the part of the county of which Ormskirk is the busy centre, and there is little doubt that the noble cause of Freemasonry will be greatly benefitted and advanced by the institution of No. 1403.

THE "REREDOS" IN GLOUCESTER CATHEDRAL.—It is now ascertained that it will be impossible to complete this beautiful work of art, the gift of the Freemasons of the province of Gloucestershire, by the 25th of September next, the time fixed by the Dean and Chapter for the ceremony of unveiling it, and for which great preparations were being made. It is therefore resolved to postpone the opening for the present.

We have to thank Bro. A. G. Goodall, S.G.I.G., 33°, of New York, for the "Proceedings of the Supreme Council of Sovereign Grand Inspectors General of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States.

At a banquet, served in the Masonic Hall, Toward-road, Sunderland, on Wednesday, 21st inst., E. C. B. Levy, P.Z., of Chapters Nos. 80 and 97, and P. Prov. G.P. of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Durham, was presented with a handsome and valuable silver epergne, subscribed for by about seventy companions of the chapters in the province, in recognition of his valuable services to the several chapters and Royal Arch Masonry generally. About thirty companions sat down to an excellent repast, which reflected great credit on the superintendence and taste of Comp. S. J. Wade, of Bridge-street. Comp. Thomas Riley presided, and Comp. G. Ford occupied the vice-chair. The presentation was made, in an appropriate manner, by Comp. W. H. Crookes, and Comp. Levy feelingly responded.

We are requested to state that Bro. Isaac Saqui is not an inmate of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. He is totally helpless, paralysed and bedridden, at 30, Carlton Road, Grafton Street, Mile End.

Galatians in Parbo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

May I ask my able Bro. Emma Holmes, where he obtained the portion of the Ritual of Reception of the Knights Templar, which he uses in the last number of The Freemason, in his very interesting paper.—A MASONIC STUDENT.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected COCOA, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicate and nourishing beverage which may save us many heavy doses of Dr. Bull's—Old Brand's Cocoa. Made simply and healthfully of pure Milk. For a packet is to be had of—JAMES EPPS & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, 1873.

Information wanted of the Names, Numbers, Place and Days of Meeting of all New Lodges and Chapters consecrated during the Years 1871 and 1872.

Secretaries and others will oblige by forwarding the above to the Publisher, 198, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

K. T.—We cannot insert your letter.

The following reports will appear next week:—Lodges No. 1331, 2 (S.C.), 1235, Chapter 106.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

BIRTHS.

NELSON.—August 13, at 217, West Derby-road, Liverpool, the wife of Bro. Henry Nelson, I.P.M. 673, and V.E. of the R.C.C., Skelmersdale Conclave, No. 77, of a daughter.

WOLPERT.—On the 14th inst., at 35, Buntou-road, Brixton, the wife of John Baptist Wolpert (P.M. 720), of a daughter.

DEATH.

FERMOR-HESKETH.—At Rufford Hall, near Ormskirk, on the 20th inst., Sir Thomas George Fermor-Hesketh, Bart., M.P., Prov. Grand Master of West Lancashire, Principal Superintendent of Royal Arch Province for that division, and President of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.
The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)
All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.
The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

THE ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.

By Bro. DAVID MURRAY LYON.

We noticed recently an interesting report of the "Royal Order of Scotland," one of the most select and ancient degrees adopted by Freemasons.

On looking up some old papers the other day we came across the following by our dear friend and Bro. D. Murray Lyon, of Ayr, Scotland (the accomplished Masonic historian) and as it mainly refers to that degree, and we know that our Brother has a strong preference for fact rather than fiction, we append his communication for the information of the numerous readers of the widely circulated "Freemason"

Having made a minute inspection of the masonic records at Kilwinning, we failed in obtaining the slightest trace of the Lodge of Kilwinning's reported connection with "The Scotch Rite," or any other of the so-called High Degrees. It was with a similar result that in 1843, through the medium of the late Dr. Arnot (an enthusiastic admirer of the high degrees), the resuscitators of the Royal Order at Edinburgh instituted a searching inquiry upon the following points: "(1) Whether there be any traditions, or documents, tending to shew that Robert Bruce had patronised Masonry, and sat as Grand Master. (2) Whether there be still preserved at Kilwinning any traces, traditionary or otherwise, of the Royal Order of Robert Bruce, of which the first step or degree is called H.R.D.M., of Kilwinning." It was afterwards thought that although the Order was not now known at Kilwinning by name, traces of it might be detected in some of the degrees—as Mark and Past—practised by the Mother Lodge;—but this test could not be applied, because the Speculative degrees mentioned had never been worked in Kilwinning.

We know not therefore upon what grounds Robert Bruce and the Royal Order of Scotland are associated with the Lodge of Kilwinning; and, in the absence of any tradition worthy of the name, local or national, or of authentic documents, corroborative of the legend pointing to Kilwinning as the source whence has sprung the Order from which foreigners have spun out the degrees of what they call "Scotch Masonry," we must continue to disbelieve the statement. Laurie, it is true, gives, in the last edition of his "History of Freemasonry" some degree of credence to the legend in question. His belief on this and kindred points is, however, based on the assumed "certainty" that Mother Kilwinning "possessed in former times other degrees of Masonry than those of St. John." But seeing that the fraternity of Kilwinning never at any period, practised or acknowledged other than Craft degrees, and have not preserved even the shadow of a tradition that can in the remotest degree be held to identify Robert Bruce with the holding of Masonic Courts or the institution of a secret Order at Kilwinning, the paternity of the "H.R.D.M." must be attributed to another than the hero of Bannockburn, and a birth-place must be sought for it in a soil more favourable to the growth of the high grades than Scotland has hitherto proved.

Another obstacle to its recognition as an ancient Order of native origin is the fact that Herodem de Kilwinning does not appear to have been known in Scotland at the date of the erection of the Grand Lodge of that country, or for twenty years after that event. It is alleged that about the year 1750 certain English records of the Royal Order found their way to the Grand Lodge of the system at Edinburgh. But that such a body existed in the Scottish metropolis at the date mentioned is highly improbable; for, speaking through the recently discovered letter of Bro. Manningham Lord Aberdour, a Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, expresses himself in 1757 as being "utterly unacquainted" with what was then on the continent denominated "Scotch Masonry."

In treating of the origin of the "High Degrees" Bro. Findel remarks: "Ramsay pronounces the famous word Kilwinning, and the promise which it held out of reviving the Order [Masonic Knights?], was in the then state of things, only too alluring... There can be no doubt that here we have the source of the high grades." The votaries of "Scotch Masonry" should, when pointing to the ancient bailiary of Cunninghame in Ayrshire as embracing within its boundary the fountain-head of that elaborate system of mystic rites, bear in mind that the place of Chevalier Ramsay's nativity was within a short distance (fourteen miles) of Kilwinning,—and that to this circumstance may be attributed his knowledge of the traditionary fame of that village as the ancient Scottish centre of the Mason Craft, and his subsequent use of its name in the promotion of his newly-promulgated masonic inventions; although at the time of his birth and even during the period in which he was engaged in the preparation of what has been termed "the corner-stone of the hautes grades," the Mason Court of Kilwinning was a purely Operative institution, and its members for the most part were composed of masons and wrights, whose education was not such as could have fitted them for the study or understanding of those ineffable and sublime, rites of which they were the alleged conservators. It is certain that Ramsay was not a member of the Kilwinning Lodge; nor is it likely that he ever had any communication with it.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

HAMPSHIRE.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

On the 16th inst., the Grand Lodge of Freemasons of the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight, assembled at Basingstoke by command of the Right Worshipful Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Grand Master. They met at the Town Hall, but adjourned to the Corn Exchange (both of which were kindly placed at the disposal of the Masonic body by the Mayor) to transact the general business. The following members were present to support the Grand Master of the province:—Bros. Wyndham S. Portal, P.G. Warden of England; J. R. Stebbing, D. Prov. G.M.; T. Best, P.M.; W. H. C. Plowden, F. Thoys (Oxford), R. Eve, P.G. Warden; H. Cawte; T. Giles, W.M. (Coves); W. Edmunds, P.M.; R. L. Loveland, W.M.; A. Portsmouth, P.M.; G. Figgins, P.M.; J. Maltby, S.D.; W. Barnes, Org.; S. R. Ellis, S.W.; F. J. Martin, J.W.; G. P. Arnold, J. W. Wilmott, W. Payne, J. Hare, J. Morgan, P.M.; H. Gilbert, A. L. Emanuel, S.D.; J. Harrison, S.D.; J. Buntles, C. F. Webb, Newman, Lumsden, H. Parsons, S.G.; F. G. Horder, H. Hacker, S.W.; W. Sowdon, P.M.; C. C. Gold, G. Vallence, P.M.; Richardson, S.W.; J. M. Fenn, W.M.; H. J. Thatcher, Junior Steward; B. White, Senior; T. Thornton; A. McKenzie, J.W.; C. Carnegie, J.P.W.; R. P. Lennox, J.D.; G. T. Kilpatrick; G. Parnell, Org.; F. Court, I.G.; H. Doman; H. Quintaneira (Pernambuco Lodge); F. Trower; H. S. Daniels, S.D.; F. W. Thoys, P. Prov. G.C.; Hooper, P. Prov. G.W.; P. H. Newnham, W.M. (Andover); C. R. Pettat, Chap.; J. Dew, W.M.; J. Naish, P. Prov. G.J.W.; C. Loxton, W.M. (Portsea); W. Bemister, P.M.; H. Fowler, P. Prov. G.R.; H. M. Green, W.M.; W. Webb, W.M.; H. Coles, W.M.; Lear, Prov. G.S.; J. T. Dorwell, Prov. G.S.; J. B. Thomas, Prov. G.S.; F. F. S. Harvah; H. M. Powell, Prov. P.G.O.; J. N. Pocock, Prov. G.J.W.; F. W. Whitbread, P.M.; W. Prince, S.W.; Tankerville Chamberlyne; Even Nepean, Prov. G.

Chap.; J. T. Burchett, I.G.; R. G. Spiers, D.P.G.M. (Oxford); C. Saunders; J. Adams, P.M.; H. J. Way; E. Snelling, W.M.; T. Pike; G. A. Green, P.M.; F. F. Hare, P.M.; G. A. Gale, P.M.; J. M. Palmer; G. H. de Fraine, P.M.; A. Serjeant, I.G.; W. Samoda; J. E. le Feuvre, P.M., Prov. G.S.; B. J. Fisher, S.B.; J. Watson, Tyler; J. Exell; G. Copeis; W. J. Parks; J. Hawkins; J. Wheeler, P.M.; J. H. Biggs, G. Tyler; T. Norwood; W. Kinsey; J. Smith; J. Hall, Tyler; T. Pelham; T. Cauvin, Tyler; F. Binckes, (Secretary of Boys' School); W. J. Hickman, P.G.A.D.C. or England, &c.

The lodge was opened in due form, and the business included the reception of the various reports and communications as to the business of the province, the election of officers, &c., for the year. Various sums of money were voted to distressed brethren or their families, and several votes of condolence to the families of deceased members were passed. One of the members pointed out that there was in the accounts a payment of £5 5s. made by the Provincial Grand Lodge to the Royal Gloucester Lodge, on behalf of the Masonic schools, and urged that the money should be vested in the province, and not in the hands of the lodge. It was replied that thirty guineas a year were voted for the Masonic charities—ten guineas in the name of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the other twenty guineas being divided amongst those who took the office of Steward of any of the Masonic charities in the province, the latter being enabled to place the five guineas to the benefit of his lodge, and by this means persons had been found to accept the office of Steward, whereas formerly there was a difficulty in filling the office. The charity was not at all impaired thereby. It further appeared that no notice of a motion to effect the proposed change of vesting the interest entirely in the Province had been given, and therefore the question could not be dealt with at this meeting. The balance-sheet of the Province showed a very favourable condition of the funds—a state of affairs which appears likely to continue. The Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year. They are as follows:—Bros. J. W. Lamb, 694, Prov. S.G.W.; J. N. Pockock, 130, Prov. G.J.W.; Rev. C. R. Pettat, 694, Rev. E. Y. Nepean, 1373, Prov. G. Chaplains; M. Frost, 487, Prov. G. Treas.; W. Hickman, J. E. Le Feuvre, 130, Prov. G. Secs.; F. F. Hare, 359, Prov. G. Reg.; Doman, 319, Prov. G. S.D.; Sowden, 723, Prov. G. J.D.; Horder, 195, Prov. G. S. of W.; H. Coles, 359, Prov. G. Dir. of Cirs.; E. Snelling, 76, Prov. G. A.D. of C.; Maltby, Prov. G. S.B.; J. Hall, 903, Prov. G. Purst.; W. Barnes, Prov. G. Org. Prov. G. Stewards:—G. Sales, 487; W. J. Hickman, 130; Stride, 1373; G. F. Lancaster, 903; J. Bunties, 694; F. Court, 257.

At half-past three o'clock nearly 70 of the brethren assembled at the Town Hall in order to be present at the customary banquet. It was presided over by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, and was very elegantly served. On the removal of the cloth—

The Prov. Grand Master gave the first toast at all Masonic gatherings—the “Health of her Majesty the Queen,” observing that Masonry taught obedience and loyalty as one of the laws binding upon all brethren.—The toast was loyally qualified, and the Masonic National Anthem was sung by the whole company.

The Prov. Grand Master, in proposing the health of the Grand Master of England, the Marquis of Ripon, dwelt on the ability and courtesy he had shown since his acceptance of the office, and alluded in gratified and gratifying terms to his recent visit to Southampton, which served to intensify the feeling of loyalty which all Masons would entertain for him under ordinary circumstances.—Drank with applause.

The Prov. Grand Master then proposed the “Health of the Earl of Zetland,” the Past Grand Master of England, who had presided over the Order with signal ability for upwards of a quarter of a century. He alluded to the attachment which the Prince of Wales had ever shown towards the principles of Freemasonry. He was ready to come forward to the assistance of its charities whenever he was asked, and prove himself a strong supporter and patron of the order [cheers].

The next toast proposed by the Prov. Grand Master was the “Health of the Deputy Grand Master of England” (the Earl of Carnarvon), congratulating the brethren on the fact that they had the Deputy Grand Master residing within the limits of the county. The very great interest he had taken in Freemasonry led him to attend all Masonic gatherings possible in which he could contribute to the benefit of the craft. He felt personally much indebted to their noble brother, because he went purposely to instal him on the occasion of his appointment as Prov. Grand Master of Hampshire, and had never failed to give him the benefit of his advice and assistance whenever he required it. The Grand Officers were always appointed with great judgment; and they evinced every anxiety to carry out with efficiency the work of the craft. They were happy in having amongst the company that evening the Past Grand Warden of England (Bro. W. S. Portal), and he hoped to see him again take that active interest in Freemasonry, which some years ago he was wont to do [hear, hear]. He proposed the toast with the addition of all the other Grand Officers of England (Bros. Stebbing, Prov. G.D.; Spiers, Dep. Prov. G.M. of Oxford; and Hickman, Prov. G. Deacon of Grand Lodge), coupling with it the name of the Past Grand Warden to respond [applause].

The Past Grand Warden of England responded at some length, observing that the Earl of Carnarvon had intimated to him by letter that he should have been present that day had it not been requisite for him to cruise about in the Channel for the benefit of his health. It was highly gratifying to all to hear that in this Province the knowledge and principles of the craft were likely to be further developed. They felt (those standing up in response to the toast) that they were only small stars revolving round the grand luminary, and that their noble brother might one day be called to rule over the craft and still further to develop the principles of Freemasonry [hear, hear]. The brethren present would not expect him, especially in the presence of a member of the Press, to talk to them of the secrets of Masonry. But secrets, and signs, and symbols they had, which must be kept sacred, yet there were some things which might be known to all the world. One of these was that they began their Masonic knowledge with prayer, and the word of God stood before them, and all Masons were instructed to read it and study it, and thus to learn their duty to God and their neighbour. He felt extremely pleased when able to be present at these gatherings, for it was one of the greatest pleasures they had of occasionally throwing off the trammels of life and come to such meeting as these, where they could see a number of brethren banded together for the good of others as well as for the good of themselves—in order to do the greatest amount of good in their power [hear, hear]. He hoped time and health in the future would be afforded him to meet his brethren of the Craft more frequently than he had done for some time past, for he had been obliged to give up business and pleasures also, and one of those pleasures of which he was obliged to debar himself was the meeting of his Masonic brethren [hear].

Bro. Spiers next gave the “Health of the Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire,” referring to Masonic experiences of the Worshipful Master in his own and in the neighbouring province of Oxford, where they presented him (the Worshipful Bro. Beach) with a magnificent testimonial of plate at a large public meeting. He (Bro. Spiers) had been Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Oxford for 16 years, and therefore knew something of the working of Freemasonry. He was therefore enabled to say with confidence that the present Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire was one who possessed every qualification for the office [hear, hear]. He congratulated the members of this province in possessing such a master, and the province of Oxford in giving to Hampshire a Master of whom they might justly feel proud [applause].

The Prov. Grand Master, in responding, admitted that he had acquired much of his Masonic knowledge in the neighbouring province of Oxford. He acknowledged that in those days he took a great interest in Freemasonry, and strove to fulfil the duties of any office which devolved upon him, and he attributed his subsequent elevation to the fact that he never neglected his Masonic duties in those days [hear, hear]. He had since been brought into the province of Hampshire, where he had received the highest honour which the Grand Master of England could bestow upon him. The Office of Prov. Grand Master was one that none could accept without feelings of responsibility attaching to it; for if he failed in his duty he would not be able to encourage and develop those principles which he ought to have at heart [hear, hear]. He would wish to see Freemasonry thrive under his care, or he would feel that he had not done his best to promote the interests of the craft. He had reason to congratulate himself and the members of this province that on all sides Freemasonry was flourishing. They saw it with respect to numbers, with respect to the attachment shown, and also in the financial condition of affairs [hear, hear]. He believed a vast amount of Masonic ability existed in the lodges of this province, and that there were many Masons zealously determined to carry out those great principles which they advocated. They saw, too, new lodges springing up, but he would rather check than increase the growth of lodges unless he saw there was a reasonable and firm prospect that any new lodge would be carried on in a satisfactory manner [hear, hear]. If a lodge were merely established to grant offices and honours to a few brethren, and if successors would not be likely to be forthcoming, and there would be a lack of officers to succeed them, he should regret the establishment of any new lodge; but where a desire was evinced to promote Freemasonry, and brethren were found anxious to succeed one another in taking office, which enabled them to propagate their principles, he rejoiced at their establishment, because they conduced to the prosperity of their glorious order [applause.] Since he had presided over this province several new lodges had been consecrated, all of which had succeeded well, and the Masons of this country had reason to congratulate themselves that they formed no insignificant proportion of the Masonic fraternity [hear, hear]. He felt anxious to do all that lay in his power to discharge his duty. He would willingly attend the meetings of every lodge when he had an opportunity of so doing, but they must remember that there were twenty-six lodges in the province and therefore it would be extremely difficult for a Prov. Grand Master to attend very frequently and as often as he might wish, but, unless he had an opportunity of seeing the working of the various lodges it was impossible for him to obtain a very extensive knowledge of the various requirements needed in every part of the province. He would, however, do the utmost in his power, hoping to receive that continued kindness and alacrity in affording him assistance which he had always hitherto experienced [loud applause]. Before resuming his seat, the Right Worshipful Bro. Beach proposed, in eulogistic terms, “The Health of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Stebbing.” When Bro. Deacon was compelled to relinquish the post, all eyes must have been turned towards Bro. Stebbing as one of the most energetic and properly qualified brethren to fill the vacancy, and he congratulated himself on having the privilege of appointing one so able as Bro. Stebbing to be his deputy [applause].

Bro. Stebbing responded in a most eloquent speech, dwelling on the grand principles promoted by Freemasonry—love to God and man, the protection it afforded to the family of members of the Order, on its universality, and on the sacred duties of charity which it advocates. He was a true model of a Freemason in principle, whether he was so in fact or not, who wrote the beautiful lines:—

“Father of all in every clime,
In every age adored
By saint, by savage, or by sage,
Jehovah, Jove, or Lord.”

Several other toasts followed; but, in consequence of the lateness of the meeting in the week, it is impossible for us to find room for any more lengthy report. We may add, however, that one of the subsequent speakers notified the fact that the Right Worshipful Prov.

G and Master had travelled from Germany especially to be present. The proceedings were enlivened by several good songs, well sung by members of the Craft, and the meeting terminated soon after eight o'clock.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL.—Pic-nic of the Mariners' Lodge (No. 249).—The annual summer festival excursions of the Mariners' Lodge, No. 249 (of which Bro. E. Hughes is now the respected W.M.), have always been regarded as amongst the most pleasant and thoroughly enjoyable of all the numerous "outs" in connection with Masonry in the large and influential province of West Lancashire, and that for 1872, which took place on Thursday, the 15th inst., deserves to be chronicled as one of the most successful of the series. The weather—always the most important element in the excursionists' calendar—looked anything but promising in the early morning, but as the day advanced, it cleared up, and proved of the most favourable character for out-of-door festivities, and in this important respect there was nothing whatever to detract from the complete enjoyment of the "Mariners" and their friends. About 120 of the brethren and fair friends started from the George's Landing-stage about ten o'clock, and upon their arrival at Woodside, on the "City of the Future" side of the river, four busses were in readiness to convey them to the recently re-opened Docks' Station of the Hoylake Railway, where the party "embarked" by special train for Hoylake, the scene of the day's merry meeting. As the vicinity was interesting to the curious, the village sights numerous, the kindness of some of the more prominent "citizens" liberal in every way, and the out-door amusements provided of the most varied and agreeable character, there was no hindrance to the complete enjoyment of the party, however diversified their tastes. By the generosity of Mr. John Ball, son, "the King of Hoylake," the race ground and grand stand, with its spacious enclosure, were thrown open for the free use of the "outers," and this generosity proved, in no small degree, a great help to the perfect enjoyment of the long summer day. Mr. Charles Cooke also extended his hospitality to the "foreigners," by inviting them to view his charming grounds, and further made himself agreeable and friendly by inviting the party to play croquet on his lawn—an offer which was gladly accepted by a number of ladies and gentlemen. The vicar of the parish (the Rev. Mr. Yedland) not only honoured the company with his presence at the dinner (his other reverend companions being the Rev. P. Haines, vicar of Wigan, and Chaplain of the Lodge), but he generously invited the physicians to view his church, where Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.M., played in fine style an admirable selection of sacred music on the recently opened organ, built by Conacher, of Huddersfield. The pieces selected were the "Pastoral Symphony," "Hallelujah Chorus," ("Messiah"), and "The Heavens are Telling," ("Creation.") Mrs. Skelton was also present, and delighted the audience by an artistic and spirited rendering of "O, rest in the Lord," ("St. Paul"), "Rejoice greatly, and He shall feed His Flock" ("Messiah"). It is not frequently the case at pic-nics, that such a rich musical treat is furnished, in addition to the other pleasures of the day. Dinner and tea were served in the enclosure of the grand stand, by Mr. P. T. Evans, "min. host" of Green Lodge Hotel, Hoylake, and he greatly enhanced his reputation as a liberal and efficient caterer by the admirable manner in which he supplied the "creature comforts." There was not only abundant provision, but everything was served in good style, and the efforts for the comfort of the visitors made by Mr. Evans, were worthy of the highest praise. During the afternoon, the time was pleasantly wild away by cricket, croquet, bowling, football, dancing, and many games, all engaged in with the greatest spirit and cheerily after nine o'clock the party started on their return for Liverpool, where they arrived about half-past ten o'clock, greatly delighted with the pleasant run to Hoylake.

MIDDLESEX.

POTTER'S BAR.—Acacia Lodge (No. 1309).—The brethren of this lodge met at the Railway Hotel, Potter's Bar, on Wednesday, the 14th inst. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. H. Batten, Prov. G. Steward, W.M. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. By the unanimous desire of the members, Bro. C. Horsley, Prov. G.R. Middlesex, took the chair, and in an able manner raised Bro. T. Aspinall, and then passed Bros. Fewtreas and Eymson to the second degree. The W.M. resumed the chair. After receiving several propositions for initiations, the lodge was closed. The usual good banquet followed. There were present, besides those named, Bros. G. Cattel, P.M. Sec. E. Sillifant, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.M.; Richardson, S.W.; Schollard, J.W.; Hughes, J.D., &c.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—The last regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Red Lion Inn, on Thursday, 15th inst. The W.M., Bro. J. T. Moss, P.G.S.D. Middlesex, and many Past Masters being absent, at the urgent request of the members, Bro. Frederick Walters, P.M. and Sec., occupied the chair of K.S. There being a large amount of work on the business paper, the lodge was opened punctually at 3 p.m. The following members were present:—Bro. J. C. Woodrow, P.M., as S.W.; H. A. Dabois, J.W.; S. Wickens, P.M.; Treasurer, W. Hammond, P.M., S.D.; C. W. Fox, as J.D.; J. W. Jackson, J.G.; H. Potter, W.S.; J. Bavin, P.M., T.M.; W. H. Lindt, R. G. Sprules, E. H. Thidley, H. Curran, W. E. Payne, J. W. Baldwin, G. Jones, W. Smith, W. J. Cox, T. Fallick, T. Barckhill, W. Taplin, Z. Duckworth, E. W. Thomson, and many others. The visitors included Bro. W. Smeed, P.G.J.W., Middlesex, W.M. 946; J. Beckitt, P.M. 875; R. T. Elsam, S.W. 889, 201; T. Price, 946; R. Hayward, 1306; T. Wheeler, 1275, &c. The minutes of the previous regular meeting, and the emergency meeting, were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot, taken separately, proved unanimous in favour of the admission as joining members of Bro. G. Z. Hillsland, 21; G. S. Haines, 21; Capt. W. T. Hayes, 1178; Capt. W. H. Hawkes, 525 I.C.; and as candidates for initiation, Messrs. T. Barriskill, C. Burgess, R. G. Sprules, F. W. Thompson, and L. Page. The experienced P.M., in the chair, showed by his careful, correct, and impressive working that he was not in any way rusty, and he passed Bros. R. Lawrence and W. J. Cox to the second degree. He having his secretarial duties to perform, vacated the chair in favour of the venerable W. H. Lindt, and the latter, in his turn, showed by the immediate ease with which he raised Bro. W. E. Payne and T. Wheeler, 1275, and initiated Messrs. T. Barckhill, R. G. Sprules, and C. W. Thompson into the order, and next raised the Order, that he could not do more in his capacity as a good worker in the chair. The candidates having been introduced respectively, rendered the ceremonies all the more impressive. The lodge was draped in mourning, and each member wore crepe on his badge, out of respect to the memory of the late Bro. Joseph Catchpole, J.D. Bro. J. Walters, P.M. and Sec. then, in a eloquent and appropriate address (want of space prevents us giving it in full), alluded to the great loss the lodge sustained by the death of Bro. Joseph Catchpole, J.D.; and it was unanimously resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to the family. A vote of thanks was unanimously voted to Bro. Rev. Gordon, Chaplain, 1306, for his labours and courtesy in officiating as Chaplain at the funeral of the late Bro. Catchpole. It was unanimously agreed that the name of Bro. Joseph Catchpole, J.D., be returned to the Grand Lodge, and that the name of the lodge in which the late Bro. Catchpole was a member of the Grand Lodge in 1855, be being one of the founders of the lodge. It was resolved unanimously, that the following brethren be elected as members: P. M. Sec. of this lodge, and of the Prov. G. Steward, J. C. Woodrow, P.M., Sec. of the Prov. G. Steward, W. W. Hill, J. C. Woodrow, P.M., Sec. of the Prov. G. Steward, and J. Hills, all three of whom and other privileges were conferred on them. The usual large number of propositions for joining members, and candidates for initiation, was received. Other important business matters being disposed of, the lodge was closed, and in consequence of the large amount of arrears in the work, declared adjourned until Thursday, September 19, at two o'clock, when no doubt a large muster will be present. The indefatigable host, Bro. R. Lawrence, proved his capabilities by the admirable manner he had served, under his personal superintendence, a first-class banquet and dessert. He exhibited the plan of his new suite of rooms, which, when finished, under the fostering eye of the architect, Bro. R. T. Elsam, will, in the banquetting hall, accommodate 150 persons. About sixty sat down to the festive board.

SUFFOLK.

SEBURY.—Stour Valley Lodge (No. 1224).—On Friday, the 15th inst., the annual meeting of this lodge was held at their new rooms, at the Literary and Mechanics' Institution, when the installation of Bro. J. P. Hills, Prov. G. J.W., as Worshipful Master, took place. The lodge was opened in the first degree by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Prov. G.C. of England, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. James was passed. The Worshipful Master elect was next presented for installation, and Bro. Hills having answered the necessary questions, was deemed duly qualified for the office of Worshipful Master. The lodge was opened in the third degree, when the brethren below the degree of Installed Master retired, and a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Hills was installed to the chair in ancient form by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, and the W.M. being regularly proclaimed and saluted, proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Parker, S.W.; E. Wheeler, J.W.; G. H. Grimwood, S.D.; W. Smith, J.D.; Henry Wellham, Secretary; C. Bannerson, Treasurer; A. O. Steed, Organist; R. Davies, J.G. The address to the Worshipful Master, Wardens, and brethren, was given most efficiently by the Installed Master, and before closing the lodge, the W.M. said he had a very pleasing duty to perform in presenting the Past Master with a jewel and a handsome emblazoned address to the retiring Master. The W.M. called upon the Secretary, who read the address as follows:—

"To the Very Worshipful Bro. the C. J. Martyn, P.G.C. of England, and Worshipful P.M. of Stour Valley Lodge, No. 1224. Dear Sir and Brethren,—We, the undersigned officers and members of the Stour Valley Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, avail ourselves of the occasion of your retirement from the chair, at the close of this your second year of office, and to testify to you our united and grateful acknowledgments, not only for the able manner in which you have conducted the duties of the Lodge, but also for the kindness and good feeling with which those duties in your hands have been ever associated. On behalf of the Lodge we have first to express our regret at your necessary retirement, and to assure you that you take with you our highest respect and esteem. We thank you for your kindness in coming to the assistance of the Lodge when it had so much need of your aid. We gratefully thank you for the many kind tokens of your regard, expressed by the gifts you have so kindly presented to the Lodge; for your prompt and unfailing attendance to its duties, no matter what obstacle or distance intervened; for the great interest and cheerful concurrence you ever evinced in all our proceedings; and, finally, we express our thanks for your continuous, energetic, and zealous support, to which the success and prosperity of the Lodge is mainly to be attributed. Individually we feel that we are deeply indebted to you for the many personal acts of kindness and courtesy extended to all and each of us, whenever an opportunity was afforded for so doing. Our regret at your leaving the chair is softened by the remembrance of your assurance that we shall neither lose your presence among us, nor your interest in the welfare of our Lodge, but that we shall still be able on all occasions to avail ourselves of your ready aid and kindly council. As a slight token of our esteem and regard and appreciation of your valuable services, we beg your acceptance of the accompanying jewel, which we hope you will many years live to wear; and that the Great Architect of the Universe may long continue to preserve you and all yours in health, happiness, and prosperity, is the united and earnest wish of all."

[The names of every officer and member of the lodge were appended.]

The jewel is set in gold, and bears the name and number of the lodge; on the blue ribband is a beautiful emblazoned medallion, with the Sudbury Borough Arms inscribed. After the presentation the immediate Past Master, in a few but feeling and appropriate words, thanked the lodge for their very handsome and unexpected present; and a vote of thanks to Bro. Brownlow for the ability displayed in the execution of the address, and a similar vote to Bro. Hills for the presentation of a set of gauntlets, brought the business of the lodge to a close.

After the banquet, toasts were given in the following order:—

"The Queen and the Craft;" "The M.W. the Grand Master of England, the Marquis of Ripon;" "The R.W. Past Grand Masters, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland;" "The R.W. Dept. Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon and the rest of the Grand Officers, past and present;" "The R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Col. Sir R. A. Shafiq Adair;" "The V.W. the D.P.G.M. the Rev. E. I. Lockwood and the Officers Past and Present of P.G.L. of Suffolk;" "The Worshipful Master;" "The Immediate Past Master, Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain of England, and Installing Master;" "The Visitors;" "The Officers of the Lodge;" "The Tyler's Toast."

Black Masonry.

MIDDLESEX AND SURREY.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

The third meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Greyhound, Richmond, on the 16th inst. In consequence of absence from town of several influential brethren, and other unavoidable circumstances, the apologies for inability to attend were more numerous than had been anticipated, and there can be no doubt that future meetings of the Provincial Grand Lodge must not be held in August. There were, however, several brethren from distant parts of the province.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened shortly after the hour announced by the R.W. Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, Provincial Grand Mark Master Mason, assisted by his deputy the V.W. Bro. E. Davison, and the business of the day, which was not of a very important nature, was proceeded with.

The minutes of the previous Provincial Grand Lodge, held at the Adelphi, London, in March last, having been confirmed, and the roll of lodges connected with the province called and reported, the R.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master proceeded to appoint, and in many instances invest, the following brethren as Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, viz:—

Bro. F. B. Philbrick, Prov. G.S.W.; Bro. William Roebuck, Prov. G.J.W.; Bro. Conrad C. Dumas, Prov. G.M.O.; Bro. George Neall, G.S. Works, Prov. G.S.O.; Bro. Drewett, Prov. G.J.O.; Bro. Rev. W. Biggs, Prov. G. Chaplain; Bro. Gilbert John Smallpiece, Prov. G. Treasurer; Bro. Cocks, Prov. G. Reg. of Marks; Bro. James Stevens, P.G.O., Prov. G. Secretary; Bro. Thomas R. Parker, Prov. G. S.D.; Bro. W. S. Webster, Prov. G. J.D.; Bro. Robert M. Edis, Prov. G. Inspector of Works; Bro. John Boyd, Prov. G. D.C.; Bro. John W. Dawson, Prov. G. A.D.C.; Bro. W. C. Hale, Prov. G. Swd. Bearer; Bro. Henry R. Hodger, Prov. Swd. Bearer; Bro. William Worrell, Prov. G. Organist; Bro. John Gilbert, Prov. G. Tyler.

Several Masonic matters of minor detail having been discussed, the R.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master announced that the next meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge would be held in London in November ensuing.

Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to an elegant cold collation, amply provided, and well served. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to, and the greatest unanimity prevailed amongst the brethren until the hour arrived when separation became inevitable.

GRAND CHAPTER OF THE ROSE
CROIX DEGREE FOR IRELAND.

Report of the Vice President to the Convocation of Prince Masons, held at Dublin, Monday, April 15th, 1872.

(Continued from Page 506.)

As I am addressing you on subjects of general interest, I can hardly, before I conclude, pass over an event unprecedented in the annals of Irish Masonry, the visit of the Prince of Wales, who came, not merely as a casual visitor to see a large public building, but to take his place in our Temple as a Brother. His manly and memorable address on that occasion proved that he felt the spirit of the fraternity which he professed. He identified himself with our society, and our society has not forgotten the fact. If ever, in the decrees of Providence, Albert Edward is to ascend the throne of Great Britain and Ireland, it will not be a merely lip-loyal welcome which will await him from the Freemasons of Ireland. The adventitious honours of rank and station have no weight in commanding our respect, but we can honour an honest, straightforward and masonic spirit, whoever evinces it; loyalty, in our hearts, is a rational attachment to law and order, and the due subordination without which government cannot exist, as well as a feeling of suitable respect for those whom our constitution makes the administrators and protectors of law and order. The fact that the Prince of Wales has identified himself with our body affords at once an answer and a rebuke to those assertions which have been so boldly made respecting its anarchical and irreligious tendency and objects; assertions, I say, boldly made; as stoutly denied; never proved; but still repeated with the same unblushing ostentation as before.

But our real offence is not that we are conspiring against the laws, the morals, or the religion of this country, or of any sect, party or denomination within it. It is that we have the courage to dare to adopt an opinion of our own, and to avow it. That is always a crime in the eyes of those whose standard of right is conformity with what they choose to dictate. But, believe me, the spirit of investigation, once raised, is not so easily laid. It is like the genius in the fable; he was pent into a little vessel for a long time; but when let out by removing the magic seal, he soon scaled between earth and heaven, a gigantic form. The story tells us how he was got back into the vessel, and stopped down again—but there the simile fails. The genius of inquiry will not go back, for any exercise that can be used, into his ancient limits. His searching eyes are busily prying into every subject—history, science, philosophy, religion itself—and what cannot stand the light of his touch of truth must be contented to be soon thrown aside as having done its work. Let us take care that we too be not found to be the shadow of a name! Great names and venerable names will not always save those who bear them from collapse—"this was once a paradox, but now the time gives it proof."

When I congratulate you all, as happily I am able to do, on the peace and prosperity which have prevailed hitherto within our Order at large, and the highly satisfactory state of our Rose Croix Chapters in particular, it is right that I should state what, in my opinion, has been the reason why that peace has been so long preserved amongst us, and why it is that our Chapters, like different members of the same great family, seem to be all equally anxious to maintain its reputation abroad and their own amicable and fraternal relations among themselves. I think our peace, and the absence of jealous rivalry and civil strife attributable mainly to the good organization, by means of which the government of the fraternity is carried on, by means of the Grand Chapter. It is an elective body, to a great extent, and a numerous one. To control it by mere individual influence would be impossible; to entertain jealousy of it would be absurd. To disregard its authority would be simply to dishonour the rules chosen by ourselves. I regard it as a most fortunate circumstance in the history of the Masonic Order in Ireland, that the governing bodies of its several subdivisions mutually acknowledge each other's authority, and respect each other's edicts. It used to be a sort of stock phrase formerly in masonic discussions that the Grand Lodge had nothing to do with the Grand Chapter, or the Grand Conclave, and vice versa; that was a mere mode of expression, meaning only that neither body interfered with the administrative duties or powers of the other. But to shut our eyes to the fact that different degrees exist—that the higher degrees are, year after year, more anxiously and generally desired, or that the whole is one vast system which cannot suffer in one member without injury to the rest—would be unworthy of men who pretend to common sense. Long ago the compact was ratified by which the governing bodies, honourably and cordially, agreed to recognise each other's sentences; and what, let me ask, would be the fatal consequence if that compact were to be annulled? Where would be our boasted unity of action? What sanction could any masonic body give to its decrees, say of suspension or expulsion, if the person suspended or expelled was to be welcomed by other masonic powers as a faithful subject—as a brother entitled to all the honours they had to bestow? If we cannot be ruled by a Supreme Imperial Chamber, call it what you will, let us at least preserve our federal governments in their integrity, and not dishonour them by refusing to recognise in one degree of masonry, the very same authority we are bound in another, to uphold and maintain. The one believe me, cannot say to the other "I have no need of thee." We cannot undo, by a single resolution, the results which have been the effect of the silent and unobserved progress of years, hitherto adopted and approved by all. Theories are very well,—but not when they are contradicted by plain facts.

As to our interior state, within the several Chapters, it of course depends on the due care and choice of those whom we admit to participate in the benefits of the society. Our present condition is good proof that such care and such choice have been, in general, wisely and cautiously exercised. No exhortation of mine could be so powerful an inducement to preserve in that wise and cautious course as the contemplation of such a brotherhood, sustained and affiliated by our mutual exertions; such a noble union, carried on in so generous, cordial, harmonious, and fraternal a spirit.

It is time to close these observations, which have run to greater length than I intended. I can hardly do so without strong feelings of emotion. Looking back upon the past, I cannot but think of the many gaps left in the circle of friends I once met here; and perhaps the predominant feeling of my mind at this moment should be gratitude to that Almighty Power, which has so long spared me, and has indeed recalled me as it were from the gate of the grave, and permitted me to address you here once more. Yet I must not omit to express, so far as I can do so, my thanks for your kindness and attention. I did not expect to stand before you again as the Vice-President, after once that high office, has become entrusted to other hands. But my honoured friend Sir Edward Borough found its duties to interfere too much with his own arrangements and avocations, and so was forced to resign it, regretted, no doubt by all who have experienced his high-bred courtesy and appreciated his manly character. I cannot but claim it as a very high honour to myself that it was again offered to me, who had for some time retired from masonic life, and from duties which had become too heavy for me to bear; and if, as is possible, the offices of Deputy Grand Master and Vice-President should hereafter be borne by distinct individuals, I trust you will find between those important officials hereafter—as at present the same intimate friendship and mutual respect that unite the present Deputy Grand Master and myself, with no fiercer rivalry than that which becomes men who are anxious, by all lawful and honourable means, to carry out a lawful and honourable object in their respective departments, and that without imperilling a friendship which the lapse of years has rather augmented than impaired.

Original Correspondence.

PROFESSOR RAWLINSON AND THE TEN TRIBES.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If Professor Rawlinson cannot extinguish the Ten Tribes by an intermixture and absorption of them by "the former population of Mesopotamia and India," in his attempt to shew, which I think I have proved him to have failed, he must find means of extinguishing them in some other way. They must be got rid of somehow, no matter how. Why it should be so, it is difficult to see, for there are few things more clearly foretold, in fulfilment of God's promise to the Fathers, than the preservation, exaltation, enlargement, and final restoration to "the Land of Israel or Ephraim." As the Tribes, after the death of Solomon, had divided and formed themselves into two distinct nations, always in hostility towards each other, so they were to be preserved as separate and distinct peoples, until the termination of their captivity or dispersion. It is Israel and Judah that are finally to return to the land given to their fathers (Jer. xxx. 3). "The words of the Lord are spoken concerning Israel and concerning Judah" (ver. 4); and it is of the former that it is said, "Though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee [not Judah, for they were in Babylonia, whereas Israel was scattered, according to the Professor, through countries 'nearly 900 miles from east to west, and not less than 138 miles in breadth—that is, at least fifteen times as large as the territory from which they had been taken,] yet will I not make a full end of thee" (Jer. xxx. 11). But, as I have said, they are not only to be preserved; they are to become illustrious—a distinguished people; for Jehovah has said, "An everlasting covenant will I make with them: and their seed shall be illustrious among the nations; and their offspring in the midst of the peoples. All they that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are a seed which Jehovah hath blessed" (Isa. lxi. 8, 9; Lowth's translation). But they are to be blessed not only in themselves; they are to be made an instrument of blessing to others. "And He saith unto me, thou art my servant, Israel, in whom I will be glorified" (Isa. xlix. 3). For "Behold I will lift up mine hand to the nations, and set up my standard to the people; and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried on their shoulders. And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their face towards the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah; for they shall not be ashamed that wait for me" (ver. 22-3).

The promises to the effect, made to Israel in contradistinction to Judah, abound in the prophetic books; and while these remain, which is to be as long as the heavens and the earth remain (Jer. xxxi. 35-37), it is "kicking against the pricks," to strive, as Professor Rawlinson does, to extinguish them, by "an inextricable intermingling with the former population of Mesopotamia and India;" or by a coalescing with the Jews of the dispersion," who returned to their land, under the permissive decree of Cyrus, B.C. 536.

It is by force of this latter assumption, that Professor Rawlinson attempts to make good his theory of the extinction of the Ten Tribes, as a separate people, in the event of his former assumption that they were assimilated with and lost in the populations of Mesopotamia and India failing, let me look at it a little.

That the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, is referred to by the Professor, afford evidence of the return of some of the Israelites, with the Jews, from Babylonia to Palestine, there is no doubt. During the period of the 70 years' captivity of Judah, it is not unreasonable to suppose that some of the Israelites, who had been carried further north, found their way into Babylonia, and upon the publication of Cyrus's decree, returned with the Jews, and afterwards formed with them one people. It is not pretended by those who, relying upon the many divine promises to that effect, the many historical facts, which seem so fully to sustain those promises, believe that Israel maintained itself as a people, separate from Judah, after the era of the captivity, as it had done between the revolt and the overthrow of the kingdom, but not of the tribes of Israel joined those of Judah, and Benjamin in Babylonia, and with them returned to their own land. As there was "a remnant" left in Israel when the great bulk of them were carried away, so there was "a remnant," who returned with the Babylonian captives. But it is a fine assumption, without even a shadow of evidence to sustain it, that that the Israelites, who had been turned into Assyria and India, returned in such numbers, with the Jews, from Babylonia, as to "make the returned peoples representative, not of the curtailed Jewish kingdom of Rehoboam, but of the original kingdom of Saul, David and Solomon." The improbabilities of this are manifold; I notice two or three of them.

(1) There is an absence of all mention by Ezra and Nehemiah of a return of any number of the Assyrian captives (Israel) with those of Babylonia (Judah), which was not likely to have been the case, if, as the Professor assumes "many Israelites" took advantage of Cyrus's decree. It was "the chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin," not of Ephraim or Israel, "and the priests and the Levites, with all whose spirits God had raised to go up to build the House of the Lord, which is at Jerusalem," who rose up to return to the land, so in chap. ii, 1, we read, "how these are the children of the province that went up out of the 'captivity,' of those which had been carried away, whom Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylonia, had carried away into Babylonia (that is of Judah and Benjamin) and came again unto Jerusalem." In like manner, in chap. iv. 1. "When the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the children of the captivity builded the Temple," they took steps to "weapon the hands of the people of Judah," (verse 4). And when Darius issued his decree in favour of the resumption of the building, Ezra and his companions, who are spoken of as "the children of the captivity," (Ez. x, 7), are afterwards said to be "the men of Judah and Benjamin," (verse 9). In point of fact, so far as any conclusion can be formed from what is said of those who returned from the captivity, the number of Israelites among them was so inconsiderable, and so insignificant a portion of the whole, that they are passed over in silence, while those of Judah and Benjamin are constantly spoken of, as "the children of the captivity."

(2) Professor Rawlinson agrees that "the elaborate genealogies of the sons of Reuben, Gad, Manasseh, Issachar, Naphtali, and Asher," in 1 Chron. ix. 2, 3, "can only be accounted for by the supposition that persons of those tribes were included among the Israel of his day," i.e., of the writer of the First Book of Chronicles—Ezra or Nehemiah. By being "included among the Israel of his day," the Professor intends us to understand that they had come up with the other captives, and again possessed the land. But he has evidently overlooked the fact, that these genealogies are not given with any purpose of shewing which of the people had returned. They had nothing to do with that. The Jews were always most careful to preserve their genealogies, for civil purposes as well as for others; but those to which he refers were the genealogies of all Israel, going back, indeed, to Adam, Seth, and Enos, as "they were written in the books of the Kings of Israel and Judah" (1 Chron. ix. 1), the preservation of which had been carefully looked to in Babylonia, and were now restored to their proper place. Jarchi considers them to have been given by Ezra, the compiler of the book, as if he had said, "I have given the genealogies of the Israelites as I have found them in the book which was carried into Babylonia, when the people were carried thither for their transgressions; and this book which I found is that which I have transcribed in the preceding chapters."

(3) Nor does Professor Rawlinson strengthen his case by reference to three or four cities or other places which he finds in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, as amongst those that became occupied by the returned captives. In fact, he startles one by the serious blunders he makes. He says, (1) "Jericho, for instance, was an Israelite town," (2) "So was Nebo," (3) "So was Bethel." It is said "Homer sometimes nods," and some of the great men of our day seem to do the same thing. Jericho was not an Israelite town; it was the second principal city of Judah, the original metropolis of the tribe, and where David for some time dwelt, after he had received the submission of all the tribes (2 Sam. vi. 5). Nebo was also a city of Judah, believed by Eusebius and Jerome to be the same as Nabau, which was situated eight miles south of Lebanon. Bethel, originally called Nujath-Arba, was also in the tribe of Judah, as we read in Josh. xv., where is a description of the allotment of the tribe: "And unto Caleb he (Joshua) gave a part among the children of Judah even the city of Arba, the father of Anak, which city is Hebron" (ver. 13).

The Professor lays some stress upon the fact, that the people are called Israelites, after the return from Babylonia; but that was the ordinary appellation, and it is used, whenever there is no apparent reason for making a distinction between Israel and Judah. They are also called "The Twelve Tribes," he says (Acts xxvi. 7; Jas. i.); but this is another ordinary appellation of the whole people, in like manner as "The Twelve Apostles," was of Christ's chosen ones, who are still called "The Twelve," after the death of Judas, and while they were only eleven. It should be noted, too, that James, who wrote before the dispersion of the Jews, on the final overthrow of the Temple and kingdom by the Romans, addresses himself to the Twelve Tribes "scattered abroad;" as we say, the tribes of Israel were. Be it observed, however, that all this is compatible with the presumption, that some of Israel, though not the great body of them, returned with the Jews from Babylonia. But the presence of even some of Israel was not necessary to induce the offering of twelve bullocks for all Israel, and twelve he-goats for a sin offering (Ezra viii. 35). This might surely have been done for the great family, albeit, a large portion of them were still scattered abroad, without a sacrifice and without an apahad (or priest). Hos. iii. 4. But if we are to accept loose inferences against many and striking facts, what shall we infer from the circumstance of the returned tribes having feasts in remembrance of the taking of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans, of the siege of Jerusalem, of the burning of the city, and of the murder of Gedaliah (Zach. viii. 19), all calamities pertaining to Judah; while we do not read of anything commemorative of the invasion and partial depopulation of the land by Tiglath-Pileser, of the siege of Samaria, of the taking of the capital, and of the extinction of the kingdom,—all calamities pertaining to Israel. The inference from these facts would be, that it is the men of Judah and Benjamin, and the rites of Judah and Jerusalem, to which the narrative of Ezra, to which the Professor refers, appertains, and not to Israel and the kingdom of Samaria, as, indeed, we see in Ezra x. 7, 9.

I think I may now say that Professor Rawlinson completely fails in his attempt to shew (1) that the carrying away of Israel by Tiglath-Pileser and Shalmaneser or Sargon, was but partial; so partial, indeed, that the foreign colonists, though said to have been sent into the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel, were "lost in the remnant of the Israelitish people;" (2) that the captive Israelites were scattered over so wide an expanse of country that a large portion of them "became inextricably intermingled with the former population of Mesopotamia and India," and were absorbed by them; (3) that such as escaped this swallowing up by the heathen, took advantage of Cyrus's decree, and returned with Judah to their own land, wherein the two people, so long living in enmity, formed one, under the common name of Jews, or Israelites. In these opinions of his,

the Professor stands almost alone, for how much sower those who have made the history of the Hebrew race the object of study may differ as to the destiny of the ten tribes, after they were carried into captivity, there are very few who hold that they were extinguished, either in absorption by the people amongst whom they were placed by the Assyrian kings, or in amalgamation with the tribes of Judah and Benjamin; or partly by the one and partly by the other. On the contrary, they have been sought for, and found everywhere. As the Professor himself says, "the lost tribes have been found a hundred times by a hundred different travellers, and in a hundred different localities. Elaborate articles have been published to shew that they are identical with the people of Malabar, with the Mashmeerees, with the Affghans, with the Kards, with the Anglo-Saxons, and with the Red Indians;" and quoting on with, he adds, "There is scarcely any human race so abject, forlorn, and dwindling, located anywhere between the Chinese and the American Indians, who have not been stated to be the Ten Tribes, which disappear from history, during and after the Babylonian captivity.

That a man should stand alone is nothing to his disparagement; it may be much to his honour. But then he must be able to show good reason for it. He must show that all, or nearly all, who have given attention to the subject on which he is at variance with them, are wrong—that they read the "lessons of history" inaccurately—and that many as there may be of them, and painstaking and capable of forming a sound judgment, as they may seem to be; they have spent their strength for nought, and occupied their time in "idle and unprofitable exertions," spinning "arguments of the most flimsy and unprofitable kind," which are, in "a short time, forgotten," not "having been adopted by any writer of any (or even of no) reputation."

Professor Rawlinson has done nothing of this; but he expects us to accept his peremptory decisions as decisive of the question; or, when he condescends to argue, or to produce what he deems proofs, he builds upon false premises, or draws false conclusions. But, indeed, any such attempt as this of Professor Rawlinson to answer the question, "Where are the Ten Tribes?" must fail. It demands a careful and patient investigation. It must be shown that we misinterpret scores of prophecies and promises which seem to be so plain and explicit as to be almost incapable of misinterpretation, and that we imagine obvious correspondences between those prophecies and promises, and numerous facts in history, where no such correspondences exist. It must be shown, for example, that the Getæ found, where they had been traced to, from the place of Israel's captivity, in the neighbourhood of the Caspian and Euxine, subsequently known as the Goths, who overran the Roman Empire, planted themselves in the chief countries of Europe—branches of whom, as Saxons, Angles, and Jutes, occupied these islands, and are now colonising, civilising, and evangelising the world, do not present very striking evidences in their history, of being the direct descendants of representatives of that people whose punishment, mission, achievements, and position amongst the nations of the world, occupy so prominent a place in the role of prophecy, as Israel or Ephraim, who, thought to be scattered were to be gathered,—were to be saved "from afar off;" and from "the land of captivity,"—were to "build vast cities and inhabit them," were to plant vineyards and drink the wine thereof, were to be "sifted among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet without the least grain falling upon the earth," were to obtain possession of "the islands in the midst of the sea," were to possess "the blessings of the heavens from above, the blessings lying in the deep beneath, with the blessings of the eternal mountains, with the innermost bonds of the everlasting hills;" so extending their habitations by conquest and colonization as to encompass the earth, giving birth to powerful nations, and "filling the face of the earth with the fruit of righteousness, as the missionaries of good tidings in almost every island of the ocean, as elsewhere; so that the uttermost parts of the earth have heard songs, even glory to the righteous," the land being "glorified in the valleys; even the name of the Lord God of Israel in the isles of the sea." When any fair attempt may be made to show this, those who believe that they trace "our origin" to stock of Israel must pause, and review the ground they have taken up. But towards this Professor Rawlinson's contribution is nil.

Yours fraternally,
WILLIAM CARPENTER.

BRO. EMRA HOLMES AND THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My good friend, Bro. K. T., finds fault with me in your last issue, for speaking as I have done, in my lecture on the Order of the Temple, of the Good Templars. May I be allowed to say that I felt bound to speak as I did, not because I am an enemy to the Total Abstiners, but because I object, as many more object to them, when they assume titles to which they can have no possible claim, and so bring into contempt a time-honoured name.

When the Temperance folk organised Bands of Hope, we, as Masons, could make no objection. When they called themselves the "Ancient Order of Rechabites," or some such name, we might smile, perhaps, at the oddness of the title; but there was a significance in it, which those who knew who the Rechabites were, admitted, and acknowledged the name was a good one, and suitable to those who professed their principles.

But when "K. T." says the Good Templars have as good a claim to their title as the Knights Templar, I join issue with him at once, and challenge the proof of his statement.

Admitting, for the sake of argument, that the Knights Templar possess no proofs of their descent from the Red Cross Knights, who were persecuted by Clement V.; admitting that they claim only to be Knights, by adoption, as some of our Scotch brethren teach; still, I suppose, "K. T." will allow that we have records of our existence for the past hundred years. Can the Good Templars claim so great an age as this, or even a fifth of it?

It is unpleasant to see a statement in the newspapers to the effect that the Prince of Wales was installed as Commander of the Good Templars in the Faith and Fidelity Encampment, and with all due respect to the Tetotallers, I would say—leave our names and titles alone.

What had the Templars to do with total abstinence—I mean from intoxicating drinks?—A total abstinence of another sort they shared with other monastic orders; but why a new crusade should be preached against drink by respectable mechanics, in gaudy crimson collars, and Sister Right and Left Supporters, whatever that may be, I am at a loss to know?

Those who know me best will not, I think, accuse me of favouring the publicans. I have refused to join a lodge before now, because it was held at a public house, and have always warmly advocated the meeting of masonic bodies in their own halls. At the same time I must protest against the Tetotallers calling themselves Good Templars, as strongly as I should if they took it into their heads to call themselves Good Masons.

Fraternally yours,

EMRA HOLMES,
A Knight Templar,
And I hope a Good Templar, too.

MASONS AT PUBLIC MEETINGS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I observe by the Suffolk Chronicle of last week, that a series of lectures have been given in Ipswich lately, against the Roman Catholic Church.

At the last of these lectures it was stated that the Rev. C. Woodward, Chaplain to the Masonic Institution, offered up prayers, and then the lecturer, a Mr. Owens, proceeded to say all that was unpleasant and priuriently suggestive about convents and nunneries. Now, Sir, I am not a Roman Catholic, and I certainly am not a particular friend of the Catholic religion, but I strongly object to brethren bawling their Masonic ware at political or religious meetings. The Rev. C. Woodward (who I believe to be a thoroughly amiable man in private life) is quite at liberty to preside, if he likes, at anti-papal or Orange meetings, if he pleases; but I deny that he has any right to do so in his Masonic capacity.

What has Masonry to do with rabid Protestantism, and men who preach down Ritualism as if it were of a Satanic origin? Why, as a writer in the Shipping Gazette once said, when speaking of the Dedication of the Masonic Temple in London,—Masonry is full of Ritualism. Besides we are liberal, or profess to be, and as Masons, all religions founded on morality, and especially all Christian forms of religion should be treated with respect.

Masonry should not be in antagonism to religion, nor should it be allowed to interfere with it, any more than with politics.

Yours fraternally,
VECTIS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have seen with regret in the Suffolk Chronicle of Tuesday the 13th inst., an account of a meeting here got up against the Roman Catholics, when an itinerant lecturer abused the monastic systems. The proceedings were opened with prayer by the Rev. C. Woodward, described in the paper as Chaplain to the Masonic Institution for Boys. If the Rev. C. Woodward, in his private capacity, or any other clergyman, thinks fit to attend a meeting got up antagonistic to their fellow Christians, I have no objection; but I must protest against Masonry and Masonic Institutions being drafted into the quarrel. Freemasonry has an equal respect for all religions which acknowledge a Supreme Deity.

Yours fraternally,
A PAST MASTER.

Ipswich, 19th, Aug. 1872.

THE BALLOT FOR W. MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I do not think that there is much difficulty in answering the query, in your last number, of our worthy brother, W. Date. He must either be a very young Mason, or not have attended much to Lodge business for some years, or he would not have suggested as an amendment on the present system, a method of procedure, whose only merit appears to be that it is certain to entail the greatest amount of hopeless confusion, and give the greatest amount of trouble to the officers of the lodge, which it is in truth possible to conceive.

The usage of the Craft has long been to elect the W.M. and those other officers whose annual election is imperative, by scroll, and not by the pure ballot.

I cannot conceive a more simple, fair, or convenient system in itself, it has all the sanction of recognized law by custom and use, and any change would act most detrimentally to the interest of the Craft, and the convenience and comfort of the lodges themselves.

Sir and Brother, I am,
A MASONIC STUDENT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am glad Bro. William Date has directed our attention to the above subject, as there appears to be in many quarters great laxity and irregularity respecting the election of a W.M. We should know nothing of what he terms "opposing candidates," for there never should be any necessity to justify to the use of of such a description in a Masonic Lodge. All Past Masters of the lodge, as also all Past Wardens, in addition to the present W.M. and Wardens, are eligible for election to the first chair, and it is their decided right to be considered as candidates for that office without any seeking on their part. The method of proposing a W.M., say in November, and electing in December, is open to objection, because then those not proposed would be considered ineligible for election in December; whereas they would be quite as eligible as those proposed in the previous month. To avoid all misconception, and to prevent any exhibition of unmasonic feeling at the nomination, I recommend the following for adoption: "The mode of electing the W.M. shall be as follows:—The Secretary shall supply every member present qualified to vote, with a printed or written list of all the brethren eligible for the office of Master; every member shall place a X, or other distinctive mark opposite the name of the brother for whom he intends to vote, and drop the paper (when folded) in the balloting box; the brother having the minority of votes shall be withdrawn, and the voting shall proceed as before, until some brother obtains a majority of the votes of the members present, when he shall be declared duly elected by the presiding officer."

This has been found to work well in several lodges, where it has been adopted, and I am persuaded it is far superior to any other plan yet suggested. In fact it is a union of several bye-laws on the subject, and is rendered as short and simple as possible, to render errors in its working almost impossible.

In the election of Treasurer, it is well for each member just to write the name of the Brother he intends to vote for, on a slip of paper, and place it (when folded) in the balloting box.

As I have made a study of the bye-laws for lodges, I shall be happy, on receipt of those adopted by Bro. Date's lodge, (or any other brother's lodge) to point out any improvements or additions which might be made.

Yours fraternally,

W. J. HUGHAN.

Truro, Cornwall, 17th Aug., 1872.

[I leave town for a fortnight, so it will be desirable for Brethren to postpone their communications until the 31st inst.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I fancy the above heading should have been "Officers of the Lodge." If so, in answer to J. P., I would refer him to the Constitutions (1871), head "Master and Wardens," Art. 9.

Unless the Lodge remove him for non-attendance at the end of the twelve months, J. P. will be entitled to rank as a Past Warden, whether he has attended or not.

Yours fraternally,

X.

OUR CEREMONIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think it is admitted, that prior to 1717, when the first Grand Lodge was formed, there were no degrees as we now have them; at least, there is no evidence to support the contention.

A very simple ceremony, viz., that of initiation, was in being prior to this time.

Yours fraternally,

X.

Obituary.

BRO. SIR T. FERMOR-HESKETH, BART.,
M.P., P.G.M. W. LANCASHIRE.

The whole Masonic fraternity in the United Kingdom, and especially the brethren in West Lancashire, will hear, with the deepest regret, of the death of Bro. Sir Thomas George Fermor-Hesketh, Bart., M.P., Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of the western division of the county of Lancaster, President of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, and Principal Superintendent of Grand Royal Arch Chapter, West Lancashire, which took place at Rufford Hall early on Tuesday morning last. As the head of an important province, the deceased baronet fulfilled the duties of his Masonic office with great impartiality, showed a constant willingness to assist in any benevolent effort, rarely failed to be in his place at the meetings in connection with the P.G.L., and as President of the Masonic Institution, he displayed many virtues, which will make his loss all the more deeply felt by those who must deeply mourn his departure. His death will cast a gloom over the whole province, as well as the high social circles in which he moved, and amongst all ranks and political parties.

The deceased baronet lost his wife in 1870, so that he has not long survived her. While in London attending to his parliamentary duties, he was seized with inflammation of the liver, the illness which caused his death, and he arrived at Rufford from the metropolis on Tuesday week. A fatal result was not then anticipated, but on Thursday his ailment began to assume a serious aspect, and, notwithstanding the assiduous attentions of his medical advisers, he gradually sank, and died on Tuesday morning, in the forty-seventh year of his age, and, therefore, in the very prime of life.

The Hesketh family date from the time of the Conquest, and take their name from the parish of Hesketh, in the hundred of Leyland, about nine miles N.E. of Ormskirk. The Hesketh pedigree is regularly deduced from Richard de Haskaythe, who lived in the thirteenth century, and whose descendants, for several generations, were knights. Deceased was the sixth baronet, born in 1825, his father being the fifth baronet, Sir Thomas Henry Hesketh, and his mother, Annette Maria, daughter of the late Mr. Robert Bonford, of Rakinstown, county Meath. Our brother was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, and in 1843 succeeded to the title and estates on the death of his father. In 1846, he married Lady Arabella Fermor, eldest sister and heiress of the fifth and last Earl of Pomfret. In 1868, with the authority of a royal license, he assumed for himself, and his second son, the additional name of Fermor, prefixing it to his surname. He leaves three sons and three daughters.

Sir Thomas's connection with Freemasonry has been highly honourable to the fraternity, and creditable to himself. In 1859, he received the appointment of Deputy Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire, from the hands of the late Bro. Le Grand Nicholas Starkie, of Humroyd (father of the present Prov. G.M. of the Province of East Lancashire), who was, at that time, the Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire. In the year 1865, Sir Thomas was appointed to the office of Prov. G.M. of the West Lancashire province, and in 1868 he was appointed Prov. G. Supt. of Royal Arch Masons. At that time, the Chapter for Lancashire was divided into two divisions, similar to those of the Craft Lodge, the eastern including Manchester, Bolton, and all towns east of the great north road from Stockport to Burton, in Westmorland; and the western division, comprising all the towns on the west of the north road, excepting Manchester and Bolton. In pursuance of his general desire to further the interests of Craft Masonry in his province, it was anticipated that the deceased Prov. G.M. would, in the course of a few weeks, lay the foundation stone of the new Masonic Hall in Liverpool, but death has rudely disturbed the pleasant prospect of again seeing the Masonic chief at the head of what was expected to be one of the most influential gatherings of Masons which have taken place for some time.

The deceased baronet fulfilled many and highly important social offices, with quiet and steady application, if not with the noise which too frequently does duty for efficiency. He represented Preston in Parliament since 1862, in the Conservative interest; was a Deputy-Lieutenant and Justice of the Peace for the counties of Lancaster and Northampton, being greatly respected by the benches of both shires. In 1848, he was High Sheriff for the county of Lancaster, and at his death, was Lieut.-Colonel of the 6th L.R.V., and Colonel of the Duke of Lancaster's Own Militia. He was also one of the Vice-Presidents of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

There is a general desire amongst Masons that they should have an opportunity of paying a last tribute of respect to their departed Prov. G.M., but it is not yet definitely decided whether the funeral will be of a public or private character.

As a token of respect, the flag was hoisted on Wednesday and following days, half-mast high, at Bro. G. Kenning's, Masonic Depot, Monument-place, Liverpool, and at the business premises of several other leading Masons in town.

VISIT OF BRO. ALBERT G. GOODALL TO ENGLAND.—On Wednesday, June 10, Ill. Bro. Albert G. Goodall, General Foreign Representative of the Grand Commandery of New York, and of the Supreme Council of the A. and A. Rite for the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States, departed for Europe in the steamer Java. The Knights of Morton Commandery, No. 4, of which he is Commander, resolved to give him a "send off," for which purpose they chartered the steamer Seth Low to accompany their Commander down the bay. Among those present on board the steamer were M. E. and Illustrious Bro. John W. Simons, Grand Treasurer of the Grand Encampment K. T. of the United States; Illustrious Bro. Daniel Sickles, Secretary General, Thirty-third Degree, H. E. for the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States; R. E. Sir John A. Lefferts, Past Grand Commander, and the following eminent Commanders: Sirs Charles Akman and Ralph W. Kenyon, No. 27; Sir George Van Vliet, No. 18; Sir George W. Southwick, No. 31; Sir Thomas C. Cassidy and W. Edwards, No. 4; R. E. Sir Charles Roome, Grand J.W.; E. Sir Samuel Stevens, P.G.C. of New Jersey; M. E. Comp. M.C. Tomlin, H.P. of Zealand Chapter; Sir George Scott, Treasurer of St. Omar Commandery, No. 13, New Jersey, and a large number of prominent representatives of the Grand Commandery of this State. The sail down the bay was most delightful. Old Father Neptune having been propitiated for the occasion, made the water as smooth as a mirror, while Boreas went somewhere to see a man, and took the stormy winds with him. The Low kept alongside the Java, and within speaking distance, clear down to the lightship, and when the steamer halted to discharge her pilot, the Knights gathered in the bow of the consort, and after singing "Auld Lang Syne," gave nine hearty cheers, a tiger, and the grand honours. The boats were then parted, the Java upon the mysterious ways of the mighty deep, and the Low to return to the metropolis. On the way up the time was in part occupied by addresses, in which the Dispatch, John A. Lefferts, Dan Sickles, Fitz Gerald Tisdell, Dr. Peters, Joe Costa, and others, participated, and there was a most pleasant and enjoyable time. But one serious accident occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion, and that is one to be regretted for years to come. A sudden lurch of the boat carried away the hat of the Dispatch, which, being an editorial hat, contained matters of vast and preponderating influence to the fraternity at large, now, alas, forever lost in the waters of the bay. We respectfully ask that if any fisherman or other person should recover the lost tile, it be borne in procession to this office, where it will be embalmed and preserved as a precious relic.—New York Dispatch.

[Ill. Bro. Albert G. Goodall will leave England for America on the 24th.]

"For a long period I have been subject to frequent attacks of lumbago, at times so severe as to totally unfit me for business. After trying many medicines for it, to little or no purpose, I was induced to use your Pain Killer, and the result was surprising, for in a few days the pain left me entirely, and has not since returned.—J. J. Honnox, New Mills, Derby, Nov. 1869.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabel's Cornice Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cremish-square, London, where they practice their unique system of painless dentistry.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—HEALTHY HOMES.—How melancholy to a sensitive mind is the reflection that in addition to a pale face and painful illness, the pecuniary means of himself and family are rapidly becoming exhausted. Ninety per cent of our ailments might be altogether prevented, or directly cured, if the first faulty action were set right. This great end is accomplished with wonderful certainty and safety by Holloway's Pills, which are adapted to the stout as well as the frail, and are equally suited to every constitution and climate. They purify the blood, that seat of life and source of health; and in its revivifying streams, diffuse regularity and vigour throughout the system, and give every organ its proper natural function.

NEW ZEALAND.

We extract the following items from the New Zealand Mail, which has a regular Masonic department:—

"It is surprising that in Wellington, the capital of New Zealand, where two Masonic Lodges exist, no steps are as yet taken to celebrate St. John's Day, although in several minor towns, the initiative is taken for having a supper and ball.

"The Red Cross Knights of Rome and Constantine are now busily engaged in Wellington in opening a Conclave under a special and direct dispensation from the Grand Sovereign of England.

"A special meeting was held on the 23rd ult., in Otago, of the Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of Kilwinning 417, St. Andrew's 437, and Celtic Lodges 477, for the extension and welfare of the Order, as well as other matter connected with St. John's Day.

"It is hoped that at the next annual Grand Lodge of England a representative for New Zealand will be present on behalf of this colony. This step could be easily accomplished, if the District and Provincial Lodges were to have a preliminary meeting at some central town or city accessible to the majority of the Masonic body. This plan of direct representation would benefit the Order, and bring our isolated body prominently before the Grand Lodge and the Masonic world at large. If this arrangement could not be accomplished, surely some active and distinguished member in England could be easily induced to act for us. Unity is strength, and unless every part of the circle is strongly cemented, no uniform action or harmonious working can be attained.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, August 30, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, AUG. 24.

- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dille, Preceptor.
- Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, AUG. 26.

- Lodge 831, British Oak, Beaumont Hall, Beaumont-square, Mile-end.
- " 905, De Grey and Ripon, Angel Hotel, Great Ilford.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
- West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, AUG. 27.

- Lodge 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1348, Ebury, Morpeth Arms Tavern, Millbank.
- Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
- Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
- Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
- Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.

- Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
- Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
- St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 28.

- Lodge 507, United Pilgrims, Horns Tavern, Kennington-park.
- " 754, High Cross, Seven Sisters Tavern, Page-green, Tottenham.
- " 898, Temperance-in-the-East, 6, Newby-place, Poplar.
- Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
- United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
- Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
- Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
- Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
- Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
- Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, AUG. 29.

- General Committee Girls' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 4.
- The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor. Ceremony, explanation of R.A. Jewel and Solids, part sections.
- Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.

- United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188. Preceptor.
- Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
- Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

FRIDAY, AUG. 30.

- Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
- Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
- Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
- Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
- Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lec, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298,) Preceptor.
- Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
- Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
- Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
- Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
- Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
- St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
- United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
- Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
- St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M. Preceptor.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled,

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.
LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d.

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, Traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA.

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

By WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinae," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.
Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.
Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

MASONIC ASSURANCE COMPANY,
9, NEW BRIDGE-STREET, LONDON
ESTABLISHED 1868.

THE ADDRESS recently issued by the newly appointed Chairman, Bro. J. RANKIN STEBBING, P.G. D., may be obtained on application at the offices of the Company.

FREDERICK BIGG, P.M., Manager.

Active Agents will be treated with liberality.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,
ESTABLISHED 1845.

Conducted under the official supervision of the State of New York.

$100,000 have been deposited with Trustees in England.

Life Assurance only. Purely Mutual. All Profits annually to Policy Holders.

Accumulated Funds, December 31st, 1870 ... £3,172,244
Surplus over all Liabilities, and Reserve Fund 389,322
Income for Year 1870 ... 1,317,271

Bro. M. X. COHEN,
SPECIAL AGENT,
76 & 77, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.

Norwich and London ACCIDENT INSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

ESTABLISHED 1856.

SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL £100,000.

For Insuring against

ACCIDENTAL DEATH,
With

Compensation for Personal Injury,
Caused by Accidents

CHIEF OFFICES—ST. GILES'S STREET, NORWICH.

LONDON: 49, MOORGATE-ST.

Secretary: CHARLES R. GILMAN, Esq.

London Manager: Mr. GEORGE POWELL.

Mr. JAMES STEVENS,
AUCTIONEER AND SURVEYOR,
House and Estate Agent, &c.,
CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duties. Agent to the Imperial Fire and Life Insurance Offices.

TESSELATED CARPETING,

FOR

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.

Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

MASONIC FLAGS
FOR HIRE.

Knights Templar Arms	15ft. by 12ft.
Freemasons' Arms	15ft. by 12ft.
Red Cross of Rome and Constantine Arms	15ft. by 12ft.
City of London Arms	10ft. by 7ft.
Square and Compasses, with Prince of Wales's Feathers in Centre.....	12ft by 9ft.
Union Jack

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,
Little Britain, Fleet Street and Liverpool.

THE NEW FLOOR CLOTH.

THE NEW ASPHALTE FLOOR COVERING has been pronounced by our Customers the softest, warmest, and best Floor Cloth yet invented. It is a non-conductor of heat, and containing no Oil in its composition does not become frigid in Winter, or hot and blister in Summer, as does Floor Cloth, Kamptulicon, &c., and its durability is 100 per cent. greater than the usual coverings, although its cost is no more. Can be had in Tesselated Patterns. It is used in London Lodges. For Samples, &c., (post free)

Address—Messrs. CHILES & Co., 57 & 60, Belmont-street, Chalk-Farm-Road, London, N. W.

GOODS CARRIAGE FREE, ANY DISTANCE.

FLOOR CLOTH TESTIMONIAL.

8, Lower James-street, Golden-square, W., March 16th, 1871.

GENTLEMEN,—In reply to your inquiry, I beg to say that I am quite satisfied with your Patent Floor Covering think it the warmest and softest Floor Cloth of any, and the best yet invented.—I am, Gentlemen, yours respectfully,
To Messrs. CHILES and Co. CALIPE.

THE BIRKBECK

Is the only Building Society whose Annual Receipts exceeds ONE MILLION!

How to Purchase a House for 700 Guineas per Month, With immediate possession and no Rent to pay. Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 & 30, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.

How to purchase a Plot of Land for Five Shillings per Month, With immediate possession, either for Building or Gardening purposes, apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 & 30 Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.

How to Invest Money with safety at 4 per cent Interest, Apply to the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK.

All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current accounts opened similar to Ordinary Bankers. Cheque Books supplied. Office hours from 10 till 4 daily, on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 2. A small pamphlet, containing full particulars, may be obtained gratis, or sent Post-free on application to FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by

MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT
CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district.

Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

THE LONDON MIRROR.

Published every Saturday; price 4d.

The object of this journal is to set forth the claims of the many Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Prudential Institutions of the United Kingdom, and week by week to report their proceedings, whether as Meetings, Sermons, Anniversaries, or Elections, so as to present these National Institutions to the favour of the Public. Office, 59, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C.

"THE FREEMASON" OF ST. LOUIS.

—The Largest Masonic Monthly in the World. Published at St. Louis, Mo., by George Frank Gouley, Grand Secretary and Recorder of the four Grand Bodies of Missouri.

The Freemason contains tidings from every quarter of the world, and will be found of great advantage to all Masons, especially those interested in American affairs. Terms $2 per annum, and to those who subscribe for the London Freemason the price will be $1.50 currency. Postage free.

Subscriptions received at the Office of the London "Freemason," 198, Fleet-street.

TRUTH MUST PREVAIL.—Common Sense.

Lamps, Baths, Cutlery, Brushes, Fenders and Fire Irons Electroplate and Nickel-Silver Goods.

R. D. PARR,

General House Furnishing Ironmonger,
42, BLACKMAN STREET, BOROUGH.

OFFERS nothing extraordinary, but REALLY GOOD Articles at fair and reasonable prices. He does not keep an "Immense Stock," but sufficiently large for any person to select from. He does not sell "cheaper than every other house in the Trade," but quite as cheap as any. A visit will, at all times, be very much appreciated.

THE NEW MASONIC CANDLES,

Ionic, Doric and Corinthian, Emblematially Arranged for Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens.

6s. per set of 3 one-pound Candles. Packing Cases 6d. each

BRO. GEORGE KENNING'S

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

CAUTION.

In calling the attention of the Trade to a recent decision in the House of Lords, in the case of "Wotherspoon v. Currie," whereby our exclusive right to the use of the word "Glenfield" in connection with Starch is indisputably established, would also intimate that this decision renders the sale of the starch made by the defendant illegal, and will subject the seller of it to a Penalty of £10,000. We beg to intimate to those who may have been induced to buy it, that to save them from total loss we will allow 20/ per cwt. for it, at the Glenfield Starch Works, Paisley, in exchange for the genuine article, at the current price. This will entail a loss upon ourselves, as the packets will be broken up and sold for Waste Starch, but it will at the same time be the means of rendering the Article useless for further deception. Any information that will lead to conviction will be rewarded. R. WOTHERSPOON & Co.

BRIDGE HOUSE HOTEL,

LONDON BRIDGE,

Opposite the South Eastern, and London, Brighton, and South Coast Railways.

THIS Hotel has great facilities for Meetings

Charitable Institutions, Wedding Breakfasts, Public Dinners, Balls, Soirees, and is allowed to be in real domestic comfort, one of the Best in the Metropolis, the tariff on application to JOSEPH H. SPENCER.

THE GREAT WESTERN HOTEL
(SNOW HILL STATION)
BIRMINGHAM.

"One of the most elegant, comfortable and economical Hotels in the three kingdoms.—The Field, July 31, 1869."

"From experience gained by repeated visits, we are happy to be able to testify to the exceeding comfort of this Hotel. We have much pleasure in recommending it.—The Engineer, October 14, 1870."

"An establishment remarkable for its able management, reasonable charges, and general comfort.—Bell's Life, June, 31, 1871. Good Accommodation for Lodges, Chapters, &c."

City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, LONDON.

WELL adapted for Banquets, Balls, Amateur Dramatic Entertainments, Public Meetings, and Arbitrations. The large Hall is capable of seating upwards of Twelve Hundred people. SYDNEY SPENCER, Manager.

Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st., E.C.

SPACIOUS Dining-rooms, Chop and Steak-rooms, Luncheon-bars, and Smoking Rooms. Rooms of all sizes, suitable for Auction Sales, Consultations, Arbitrations, Building Societies, &c.; also for Freemasons' Lodges and Banquets, Private Dinners, &c. Guildhall Tavern Company (Limited), 32 and 33, Gresham-street, GEORGE CRAWFORD, Manager and Secretary.

Masons' Hall Tavern,

MASONS' AVENUE, BASINGHALL-STREET, CITY.

THE above old-established Tavern is NOW OPEN, newly decorated, by Bro. CHARLES GOSDEN, late Manager of the Freemasons' Tavern Company. Every accommodation will be found for Lodges, Chapters, Mark and other degrees, for their Meetings, Dinners, Suppers, &c., and every attention will be paid to their comfort and enjoyment by the new Proprietor.

The Alexandra Restaurant,

7, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET.

Public and Private Dining Rooms
First-class Cooking and Wines.
Open for Suppers after the Theatres.

Bro. F. HILFREICH, Proprietor.

Second Edition, revised and enlarged, with a Copious Index. Bound in Cloth and Lettered, 10s. 6d.

HANDY-BOOK FOR INVESTORS.—Second Edition, 530 pages.

A HISTORY of the National Debt.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

A REVIEW OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

REVIEW OF INDIAN FINANCES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY of the BANK OF ENGLAND.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

STOCKBROKERS and the STOCK EXCHANGE.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY and STATISTICS of the COLONIES and their Debts.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

FOREIGN STATES and their DEBTS.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY of JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY of BRITISH RAILWAYS.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

INDIAN, COLONIAL, and FOREIGN RAILWAYS.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY and POSITION of JOINT-STOCK BANKS.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY and POSITION of FINANCIAL COMPANIES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

SHIPPING and MERCANTILE COMPANIES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

HISTORY and POSITION of INSURANCE AND ASSURANCE COMPANIES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

POSITION, PROFITS, and PROSPECTS of MINING COMPANIES.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

THE METALLIFEROUS DISTRICTS of the KINGDOM.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

MINES in Cornwall, Devon, Shropshire, Isle of Man, and Ireland.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

COMPARATIVE PROFITS of INVESTMENTS.—See Handy-Book for Investors.

Bartlett & Chapman, 36, Cornhill, E.C.

Printed and Published by the Proprietor, Brother GEORGE KENNING, at his Offices, 198, Fleet-street, and 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, in the City of London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool, in the County of Lancaster.—SATURDAY, AUGUST, 24, 1872.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Masonic Musings 527
 The Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 530
 Masonic Notes and Queries 531
 Reviews 531
 Masons at Public Meetings 522
 CRAFT MASONRY :—
 Metropolitan 532
 Provincial 533
 Provincial Grand Lodge of Devonshire..... 533
 ROYAL ARCH :—
 Provincial 355
 Funeral of Bro. Sir G. Fermor-Hesketh 535
 CORRESPONDENCE :—
 Professor Rawlinson and the Ten Tribes..... 536
 The Ballot for W.M. 537
 Prohibition of Masonic Processions 537
 OBITUARY :—
 Bro. Wm. Billington 538
 Masonic Tidings 538
 Masonic Meetings for next week... 538
 Advertisements..... 526, 527, 539, 540

MASONIC MUSINGS.

BY BRO. J. BALFOUR COCKBURN, P.Z. 278,
 PAST INSTALLED MARK MASTER 43.

In the following remarks which I now lay before your readers, I propose to myself the investigation, so far as can consistently be done with a due regard to our secret rites and hidden mysteries, of the nature and objects of our craft—to demonstrate that Freemasonry is no empty name—that its foundations are strengthened by principles deserving of universal approbation—that its attentive study and diligent pursuit are well worthy of general consideration, and that no time or labour can be deemed misapplied or wasted by the patient and persevering enquirer, who delves deeply into that mysterious mine of truth and science, shadowed o'er by our solemn rites and ceremonies. I would prove that, according to the eloquent words of De Witt Clinton, its principles are based on pure morality; its ethics are the ethics of Christianity; its doctrines the doctrines of patriotism and brotherly love; and its sentiments the sentiments of exalted benevolence.

Fully aware am I that this subject must appear to many an oft told tale, and though the tiny rivulet of hesitating words and possibly obscure phrases, which is now permitted to merge into the open, and trickle on its course, can bear no comparison with the impetuous torrents of fervid eloquence which, inspired by this glorious theme, have so frequently roused the wonder and excited the admiration, not alone of the brethren, but of the world at large. Still would I fondly hope that my remarks, however feeble, may not altogether fall on stony soil, gaining encouragement from this.

“Not all who seem to fail have failed indeed;
 Not all who fail have therefore worked in vain;
 For all our acts to many issues lead;
 And out of earnest purpose, pure and plain,
 Enforced by honest toil of hand or brain.”

Within the last few years no subject has made more general progress and advanced further into all ranks of life than education, and of the various branches of education not one is more universally popular or in reality more desirable of general diffusion than that of the history of mankind from the earliest to the latest ages. General history, consequently, holds a very prominent position in all educational schemes, not alone a necessary qualification for society, but as a means of expanding the intellectual faculties, and of adding valuable and precious treasures to our mental stores. Unhappily, alas, profane history holds up to our view little more than a mirror, reflecting but the rise, decline, and fall of nations and empires, sustained, induced, and effected by brute force, violence, and lawless usurpation—by tyranny, extravagance, and luxury, by overweening pride and demoralising pursuits. Thus many of those whom the world has semi-deified as heroes have in reality been the most ruthless oppressors and terrible destroyers of their fellow-men—many of the mightiest monarchs “have shut the gates of mercy on mankind,” and “waded through slaughter to the throne”—and most of those great political revolutions which have convulsed the countries of the earth and occupied the pages of the historian, sprang forth, and proceeded, under divine permission, and for the accomplishment of the divine decrees from the operation of causes more frequently disgraceful than honourable to our nature. And it was, no doubt, with all these facts well before his mind, for no riper scholar of history ever existed or one who had more wisely drawn therefrom the rule and conduct of his blameless life than the good prince whose sad loss we still deplore, used the expression, “with how little morality the world is governed.” It must therefore be with feelings of unalloyed satisfaction that the student of the volume of Masonry finds that it is comparatively free from this painful retrospect—that it treats of the effects and fruits produced by the best qualities of the human heart and mind—by religion and by science, and if sometimes this bright picture is dimmed by clouds of grievous error and self delusion, of fanatical zeal and talents misapplied, if the actors of the moment prove but men, who “professing themselves wise became fools, and vain in their imagination,—if, I repeat, such a scene has unfortunately to pass before him, it is because no faithful representation of human nature can be exempt from blemishes, no virtue secure from being carried to an excess, which, beyond a certain limit becomes sinful, and cannot fail to give rise to misery and moral evil,—that, in fact, no man or woman born can escape the primæval curse

“Of man's first disobedience, and the fruit
 Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste
 Brought death into the world, and all our love.”

No, not even the greater Man, of whom sang
 Deckard in bold yet religion breathing strain.

“The best of men.”
 That e'er wore earth about Him, was a sufferer;
 A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit:
 The first true gentleman that ever breathed.”

Published works on Masonry, and under this category I would include only authentic and genuine works, are, and to a certain extent must necessarily be rare,—for many years those of Bro. Preston, and Bro. Oliver might be regarded as the sole guides to those employed in Masonic researches:—within a more recent period however the indefatigable labours of Findel, Hughan, Carpenter, and a host of others have thrown a flood of literary light on the path of the Masonic student, guiding him onwards to that bright goal of all our exertions, the discovery of that great truth in which our everlasting salvation must depend. These works and publications may without doubt be consulted with advantage in their several branches of science;—but with all due deference to these great luminaries of our Order, I hold that they fail in giving a connected view of it,—such as every intelligent Freemason should always keep clear and distinct before his eyes, and be enabled to point out with promptness and perspicuity to those brethren who may desire to partake with him in the enjoyment of its beauties.

Masonry is usually divided into “speculative” and “operative”—A division sufficient perhaps for ordinary purposes, but too indefinite to form a basis of clear arrangement, and liable to great objection as permitting the inference that a speculative is not an operative Mason in any sense, and vice versa, a position which to the initiated cannot fail to be regarded as very foreign to the truth. I take it that it would be better to consider Freemasonry as one great whole, as one entire system, resolving itself into various branches; and to endeavour to explain and demonstrate the intimate union that exists, so that in the well-known words. “The mutual connection of the whole system and the relative dependency of its several parts” may be completely illustrated,—and thus an opportunity would be afforded to every good Mason to become more or less acquainted with most of them, though perhaps it would be expecting too much for any brother to make himself master of them all:—indeed in such a case it might well be said that

“The wonder grew,
 That one small head should carry all he knew.”

Freemasonry, then, may be likened to a vast and goodly tree, spreading forth into six branches, all growing from the same root, all emanating from the same stem; that root—the Fear of God—that stem, the Love of Man. These six branches may be thus classified.

- 1st. The Religion of Masonry.
- 2nd. The Polity or Constitution.
- 3rd. The History.
- 4th. The Literature.
- 5th. The Science; and
- 6th. The Art.

Firstly, then, we must direct our attention to the contemplation of the religion of Masonry—its theology and morality combined—the former regarding the doctrines it upholds with reference to the Deity, His nature, attributes, dispensations, and worship; the latter regarding the precepts it inculcates, and the lessons it teaches with reference to our duty towards God, our neighbours, and ourselves.

We must, in the second place, carefully investigate and fathom to its lowest profundity, its constitution on civil and social polity, founded on its peculiar character as a secret body. We must clearly understand the system of discipline of each individual lodge, and its connection with other lodges, as well as its subordination to the Grand Lodge from which it derives its charter and authority; and, finally, the constitutions, charges, landmarks, and mysteries of the Order, the ceremonies, rites, signs, symbols, and modes of working, must all be diligently studied, and in our memory locked.

No one who pretends to be a good Mason, and a fortiori, no one possessing the natural desire of becoming a ruler in the Craft, should remain in ignorance of any of these particulars, or refuse to draw aside the mantle which shrouds the glimmering star which may illumine his path onwards to improvement and knowledge. For, failing a competent acquaintance with these important points, he is prone to think and speak lightly, and to permit the diffusion of an erroneous impression, through the minds of others, with respect to the fundamental principles of his profession.

We must, thirdly, direct our regards to the history of Masonry under all the aspects which it has necessarily and unavoidably assumed in different ages, and amongst different people—from its earliest origin to the present day—more especially must we carefully note all that has been handed down by oral tradition and otherwise. Marking its progress during certain Masonic periods in our country, and in those nations, the lodges of which have derived their constitution from us.

No branch, however, opens to us a wider or more luxuriant field in which to prosecute our researches, than the literature of Masonry. That illustrious band of learned men, amongst whom the names of Champollion, Young, Ernest Renan, Le Normand, Rawlinson, Layard, Hinckes, Lubbock, M'Causland, and Ferguson, stand pre-eminent, have disclosed to our astonished view, antiquarian, philological, and ethnographical curiosities, which they have discovered in the archives of the Egyptian and Assyrian dynasties, midst the mighty works which once adorned the banks of the Nile and the Euphrates, and buried deep in the undoubted Hamitic remains of Central America—evolving thereby the precious sparkling brilliants of truth from the crust of ignorance and mythical superstition in which it had laid embedded for countless ages. Then there is the Sacred Volume, every page of which is stamped with the impress of Divine authority—every word of which, if we rightly read it, conveys irrefragable truth. To this Book of Books we must have recourse for a thorough acquaintance with that mode of Masonry and those sublime and significant representations which were adopted by God's chosen people, and have, with little alteration, been transmitted through Christian hands to the lodges of our own country; and as we, in a spirit free from cavil or contentiousness, study Holy Writ side by side with the researches of those who have so recently opened to us the key of prehistoric archæology, we cannot but give a warm assent, and yield a ready acquiescence to that which has been so clearly and firmly laid down by one of the most philosophic of the writers on this subject, and that is, that any addition to our knowledge of prehistoric events, come whence it may, must contribute to a better understanding of the primæval history in Genesis, and must tend to mitigate the evils that have arisen from the unnatural state of hostility that has prevailed throughout all ages of Christendom, between the religionist who disregards science, and the philosopher who ignores revelation.

But to descend to comparatively more recent periods, and to date our researches from that epoch, when history, in its ordinary sense of the authentic history of mankind commences, which admittedly has its starting point at the first Olympiad, we can discern the traces of our mysterious science on the classic ground of Greece and Rome, and in the writings of those antient days from the fall of Troy to the end of the Augustan age, on the Acropolis of Athens, by the sunny shores of the Ægean Sea, on the Capitol of the once proud mistress of the world, and by the banks of the Tuscan Tiber. We can likewise trace its footsteps amongst the Chinese and Druids, the erring followers of Confucius, and the bloody Hierophants of the Celtic tribes. To the man before whom this intellectual banquet is spread, and who still complains that all is barren and bare, we would say:—

“Croire tout découvert est une erreur profonde, C'est prendre l'horizon pour les bornes du monde.”

Fifthly, we must regard the science of Masonry, strictly speaking, as embracing the whole circle of abstract demonstration and experimental knowledge, constituting the studies of natural philosophy, arithmetic, and mathematics, and through all the various branches over which this letter reigns dominant; the application of the same to the government of the universe, as well as to the comfort and refinement of social life. In this section we may, with all propriety, also include the theory of those arts which are so intimately connected with science itself as almost to deserve being included under the same division, viz., architecture, design, and sculpture.

And now, finally, we come to the art,—that is, operative Masonry—which we must consider with special reference to the form in which it has existed in the lodges of our country from Roman, or perhaps, more strictly speaking, from Saxon times, till that glorious period, when the grand-daughter of the celebrated Chancellor Hyde, afterwards Earl of Clarendon, ruled the land, and of whom Dibdin sang—

“No reign than Anne's in war more justly crown'd,
No reign for learning justly more renown'd.”

These lodges were composed, in all probability, on the Semitic model of the days of Solomon, chiefly, if not exclusively, of working Masons, instructed and governed by architects of higher mental attainments, and deeper views of science than the community in general. The whole fraternity, however, being, as a rule, subject to a Grand Master of noble birth, or high rank and influence, whose qualifications it may with all correctness be assumed, were not those of an operative Mason; but whose zeal and ability in the prosecution of the more elevated branches of general knowledge were undoubted, and whose high moral character marked him as worthy to occupy so high and so exalted a post—a leader, guide, and judge, to whom the words of Wordsworth might apply, one possessing “Temperance proof

Against all trials, industry severe
And constant as the motion of the day;
Stern self-denial round him spread, with shade
That might be deemed forbidding, did not there
All generous feelings flourish and rejoice;
And resolution competent to take
Out of the bosom of simplicity
All that her holy customs recommend.”

To these operative Masons, so wisely taught, so judiciously guided, and so munificently patronised, we owe the splendid edifices which adorn our country, and which, when time shall have passed his destroying hand over them, and they are gradually sinking away into crumbling ruins, when perchance the oft quoted Antipodean will be driving down shafts to discover and trace out the foundations of Westminster Abbey, as we are now doing at Jerusalem and at Ephesus, will still have their historical remembrance, and afford a convincing proof that the British Empire, at its zenith, had a just and overwhelming claim to be enrolled amongst, and to hold a commanding position amidst the most cultivated nations of the earth. Our cathedrals and our colleges bear witness to the progress of the Craft during the several periods of what is usually denominated Gothic architecture; and when another style was introduced, and its proudest monument, St. Paul's, had been completed by Sir Christopher Wren—our Arch Architect, and at that time Acting Grand Master of the Order—there was an importance and a prominence given to the tenets of the Craft, such as it had possibly never before received, and the portals of Masonic lodges were thrown open to all who were qualified by birth and character, and who were desirous of penetrating into the adyta, let their profession and their pursuits be what they might.

From this era may be dated a great accession to the number and respectability of our lodges, by the admission of persons of education and independence as accepted masons—brethren who possessed the necessary talents and leisure to investigate the true objects of the science, and bear powerful and convincing testimony to its innocence and utility.

From the foregoing survey, superficial as it is, it appears to me that we may be enabled to collect data for the construction of a sound definition of masonry, and although it is always one of the most difficult, and often one of the most unsatisfactory things to decide on the terms of a definition, more especially where many subjects are to be embraced, I am not aware that the one which I shall now propose is liable to any objection but that of being too long. I should affirm then, that “Freemasonry” is a secret combination of the Arts and Sciences, and especially of Architecture, which implies a knowledge, and requires a practical application of them all, with religion under every modification, whether true or false.”

This mysterious combination has been kept secret by the establishment of a social compact, into which none have ever been admitted, but upon certain inviolable conditions; the terms of which none have ever been at liberty to reveal, the basis of which is a beautiful system of morals, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols; The genuine fruits and proper outcome of which tend necessarily and powerfully to promote Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, goodwill toward men. That the mysterious terms under which this secret compact exists have been handed down to us from ages past in a condition inviolate, is one of the proudest boasts of our Order, and that it will still for ages to come be so handed down, we have no reason to doubt. Woe to him, if he should e'er arise, who fails in this important item of his obligation; with but slight paraphrase, every brother may then apply the words of Horace to the outcast:—

Est et fidei tuta silentio
 Merces: vetabo qui Cereris Sacrum
 Volgarit arcanæ, sub isdem
 Sit trabibus, fragilemve mecum
 Solvat phaselon.

Hence it is evident that an acquaintance with the nature, mysteries and obligations of the Society into which we are admitted at our initiation, does not necessarily imply more than a very slight knowledge of the religion and intellectual combination, for the extension, preservation and transmission of which, that Society has been formed and has carried out its secret duties from generation to generation. Both these, the combination and the compact, ought to be made respectively the object of attention and serious investigation in every well instructed Lodge:—but as the rites and ceremonies, the signs and symbols of our convention, constitute the theme of the regular lectures, my observations shall be confined on the present occasion, and probably on any future one, should time and circumstance permit me to resume my musings, to the great end for which the various means of instruction have been adopted. It will be obvious to every reflecting Mason that the proper order to be followed in our researches will be that in which the novice receives his first instruction, and in which it is afterwards communicated to him in his passage to the higher degrees of Fellow Craft and Master Mason,—beginning with the most simple elements and cautiously developing the sublime object of the science. I propose therefore to invest the order which the superior dignity of the moral and religious investigation would prescribe and then having laid a firm foundation, it may be more easy to work upwards, cementing and adorning each successive course of Masonry by which we gradually raise our structure, till at length by the favour and permission of the Great Architect of the Universe, we may erect a tower of strength, crowned with a Holy Temple, pointing at least if not reaching to the Heavens—and dedicated to the honour and glory of Him who from His throne beholds all the dwellers upon earth, and graciously accepts their sincere, earnest, though humble endeavours to magnify His Name—and into which all may enter freely, for therein is neither Greek nor Jew, Barbarian, Seythian, bond nor free—but Christ is all and in all.

Let us begin then with the act of building, our sixth branch or division—and let us contemplate Architecture, or the knowledge of practice of the best modes of constructing every kind of edifice or fabric without restriction as to purpose or material,—on the principle of Wisdom, Strength and Beauty. Architecture includes the rules and methods of forming every description of temple, dwelling or monument, with their accessories and decorations, of fortifications or muniments of war, of ships or floating vessels. And it is therefore commonly divided into Civil, Military and Naval.

To one class of buildings our attention must be particularly directed, as being more dependent on that which is, in its strictest sense, Masonry—the craft of a Mason in stone. An obstacle, we may observe, is found on the very threshold of our Temple of Mystery, which none but the Mason's foot can clearly overstep, and this is the question—How came Architecture, or Masonry, as a part of Architecture, to be connected in so intimate, so peculiar a manner with Religion, as to constitute by any process of amalgamation, that which is now denominated Freemasonry? The complete solution of this enquiry is the keystone of our noble Arch, the glorious corner stone which the builders refused, the sublime subject of many intricate and mysterious speculations which must be gradually and carefully approached in a Master Masons' Lodge. In the meanwhile I will endeavour to reply to this important question in terms which may sufficiently demonstrate the fact, and account for the origin of this connection between Religion and Architecture, without improperly disclosing its main object, the extraordinary means by which it has been effected, or all the purposes to which it has been applied.

In every age since the Flood, nay, proofs are now rapidly accumulating that even at a period long antecedent to this great opening of the floodgates of divine wrath, and in all nations which have attained to any degree of civilisation, a very few excepted, the skill and ingenuity of man have been exercised in the design and erection of some kind of sacred edifices, that is, of buildings dedicated and consecrated to the honour or worship of the Celestial Being, or beings supposed to control his destiny; and this rule applies with equal force to the worshippers of the One God, Jeovah, to the votaries of Polytheism and Idolatry, to the Holy Patriarchs, to Jews, Christians, and those who adored the personified attributes of Divinity, or fell down like the stiff-necked Israelites of old, and worshipped the molten calf which Aaron had fashioned for them.

The motives for this general practice might be various, and in a multitude of cases, let us hope, that it was more or less praiseworthy. It might arise from true and genuine piety, which suggests that whatever we do, we should do all to the Glory of God; that our best talents and faculties should be devoted to His service, from whose bounteous hand we have received them; and that although He, Invisible and Incomprehensible dwelleth not in temples made with hands, yet that His honour is magnified, and our reverence exhibited, by raising to the glory of His Name, the most august and most perfect works of which the limited powers of man are capable.

The practice of which I speak might also spring from that "last infirmity of noble minds," which perhaps has been more correctly described by one of our most elegant and philosophic writers, one whom the gracious lady who sways so wisely the sceptre of this realm has recently delighted to honour, as the first infirmity of minds ignoble as well as noble—"the desire for fame, which displayed itself on the Plain of Shinar, and which has been, with results not always too satisfactory, the great incentive to daring actions, arduous undertakings, and, unhappily, also to terrible crimes, but which, nevertheless, could be more fully satisfied by contributing to the splendour of public monuments than by any other means. Or it might be that the heads of nations regarded the solemnities, and therefore the places of religious worship and observance as possessing a powerful influence over the character and disposition of their people, as effective instruments of rule and government. They were possibly on this account more solicitous about the forms and decorations of their temples, which appealed directly and at once to the æsthetic tastes of the assembly, than about the purity of their religion, or the morality of their lives.

Whatever may have been the cause, such unquestionably has been the fact, that both Jewish and Pagan, Suranian, Semitic, and Aryan history abounds with notices of sacred architecture, while little is said of any other kind, and existing ruins of the art confirm the belief that this sacred architecture was the principal object of attention. Now it must be remembered that true religion had its traditions, its types, its symbols, its figurative language, its sublime mysteries unfolded by degrees, its deep recesses and dark sayings, not to be illuminated till the sun of righteousness should arise with healing on its wings. Its manifold corruptions plunged their authors into deeper and deeper darkness, dimmed though they could not extinguish that light which shineth in darkness, and for a long period left the whole world, with the exception of one favoured race in profound obscurity. Human philosophy, the outcome of schools void of the guiding influence of true religion, mingled with the dregs of heaven-born truth, produced a compound of falsehood, trickery, and folly, in which scarcely the faintest lineaments of the original divine doctrine, whereon the happiness of the human race depended, was to be traced.

Still it was there—the rough casket in which the brilliant gem was encased, could not restrain its gorgeous rays from bursting into light, and it was occasionally discovered, and joyously hailed, by highly-gifted men, whose eyes were not blinded by the clouds of prejudice or passion.

Still it was there, rousing admiration and wonder in those permitted to witness its splendour, resembling in its unlimited magnificence the glorious orb of day, sinking to rest beyond the boundless prairies of the western world, tinging the whole universe with its golden hue, awaiting but the master-spirit to explain its mysterious beauties, and powerfully recalling to the reflecting mind the never-to-be-forgotten lines of Longfellow, wherein he has adapted the beautiful myth of the Red Swan to a sunset picture:—

"Can it be the sun descending
 O'er the level plain of water?
 Or the red swan floating, flying,
 Wounded by the magic arrow,
 Staining all the waves with crimson,
 With the crimson of its life-blood,
 Filling all the air with splendour,
 With the splendour of its plumage."

Still it was there, and to its inspiring influence we owe not less the massive pyramids of Egypt, the ruins of Thebais and Juxor, the colossal buildings of Sicilian Pæstum, and the cyclopean structures of Greece, than the Temple of Solomon, and the Cathedral of St. Paul. But though this precious principle was preserved, it was concealed; though it stimulated the ardour, and rewarded the search of true philosophers in every age, it could only be communicated to those who were qualified to embrace it. Hence arose that otherwise unaccountable precaution that nearly all the sacred edifices of Pagan countries, and also of the Hebrews, till the Christian era, should contain a secret chamber or adytum, not to be approached but by certain privileged individuals, while the Temple itself was open either entirely, or partially to the people without distinction. To the initiated, after many an awful trial of competency and fortitude, the lesser, and then the greater mysteries, were sparingly disclosed; and in the dark or barely lighted penetralia of the heathen temple, the traditionary lore of an antediluvian world, was figuratively or enigmatically dispensed.

Having thus taken a general view of the materials of which Freemasonry is composed; having laid down to the best of my ability, a definition of it and entered to some extent upon the consideration of that branch which we call the Art, as it has been applied especially to sacred buildings. I have only to express the hope that I have succeeded in the aim I had in view and shewn at least that Masonry is not a mere empty name:—if so, then would I fondly trust that those members of the Craft who may peruse these lines, may be induced to regard the Order to which they belong in its highest point of view; may carry out into the world those lessons which are so beautifully illustrated within the tiled portals of his lodge; that they may

Bear and forbear with their brothers
If they would be happy here;
Bear and forbear, loving others
If they would be loved and dear;—

that the charge delivered to them with the badge on their entrance into the mystic rites, may not be confined to its mere literal significance, but bear with it a wider and ever-extending import; and that

Those hearts that have been long estranged,
And friends that have grown cold,
May meet again, like parted streams
And mingle as of old; and that finally they be further urged on to study its true nature and to trace its sublime and salutary operation, not alone in the history of man at large, but also in the utmost recesses of that Temple, the human heart, whose adytum is open alone to themselves and to God. And should there remarks fall perchance in the way of one without the pale of the 'mystic tie,' let no foolish scoff or flippant jest, at the expense of the Order, rise on his lips;—let him learn, if he knew it not before, and bear in his mind, that, as excellently expressed by an eloquent Divine— "Freemasonry teaches us to be what Christianity would have us be, imitators and followers of all that is great, and noble, and good, and excellent, and true." And if he is a man and worthy of of acceptance as a brother, his creed will be

'Tis only noble to be good:
Kind hearts are more than coronets
And simple faith than Norman blood.

The ceremony of installation will be worked by Bro. E. Gottheil, P.M., on Wednesday, September 11th, 7.30 p.m., at the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Forster's Railway Tavern, Fen-church-ereet, E.C. Brethren desirous of becoming proficient in the above ceremony, are solicited to attend, especially as it is so seldom rehearsed in a Lodge of Instruction, more particularly by one so well able to perform the duty as Bro. Gottheil.

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMMA HOLMES, 31°,

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 515.)

Jaques de Molay and three other of the most illustrious of the Templars were at this time kept in close imprisonment in Paris, and in March, 1313, they were brought out on to a great scaffold, erected opposite the Cathedral of Notre Dame, to renew their confessions before the eyes of the world. Two of the four did whatever was required of them, but not so the Grand Master.

When he had first appeared before the Pope's Commissioners in 1309, I gather from Bro. A. O. Hays's most interesting account of the Templars, published in the Freemason's Magazine, 1868 and 1869, (which, if it had been as full and exhaustive as to the Masonic Order, as it was of the old Knights, would have been invaluable)—he cried out at once against the avowals which had been inserted in the apostolic letters and solemnly denied them; and in regard to these apostolic letters one circumstance required some little consideration.

The confessions which were imputed to De Molai and which he stated were fabrications were inserted in the bull Faciens Misericordiam addressed to all the courts in Christendom. This bull is dated 12 August, although the Festival of the Assumption, the 16th Aug., is given as the day on which the Grand Master is declared to have made them; in fact four days after the bull was issued. This very important circumstance was first noticed by Fleury. It was therein declared that the heads of the Order had confessed and been absolved, yet before the Commissioners we find De Molai still treated as a heretic and unreconciled to the Church, and as such sent back to his prison at Paris, and denied both pecuniary and spiritual aid, being a heretical and unreconciled Templar. When De Molai was again brought before the Commissioners, after relating all that the Templars had done for Christendom he added "In fact there is no order that has spent so much blood for the Church and made themselves so redoubtable to the enemies of the Catholic faith.

The Commissioners admitted the praiseworthiness of their actions, but said without faith they were as nothing.

The Grand Master replied, says Bro. Hays, in these noble words, "We acknowledge the truth of what you state, but in faith the order has never been wanting. I attest that I believe in God, in the persons of the Trinity, and in all the other Articles of the Catholic Faith. I believe that there is but one God, one Faith, one Baptism, one Church, and that in death when the soul is separated from the body, there is but one Judge of the good and evil. This is the belief of the Order of the Temple."

Subsequently, however, after a long term of imprisonment, and the use of torture as well, Jaques de Molai did make some sort of confession but when brought with his companions on to the scaffold, to the astonishment of all present the Grand Master advancing and raising his chain-bound hands on high, and, addressing the mighty multitude assembled, said in a loud voice:—It is just that, in so terrible a day, and in the last moments of my life, I should discover all the iniquity of falsehood, and make the truth to triumph, I declare then, in the face of heaven and earth, and acknowledge, though to my eternal shame, that I have committed the greatest of crimes; but it has been the acknowledging of those which have been so foully charged on the Order. I attest, and truth obliges me to attest, that it is innocent. I made the contrary declaration only to suspend the excessive pains of torture, and to mollify those who made me endure them. I knew the punishments which have been inflicted on all the Knights who had the courage to make a similar confession; but the dreadful spectacle which is presented to me is not able to make me confirm one lie by another. The life offered me on such infamous terms I abandon without regret." The other Templar followed the grand example set him when both were hurried back to prison. So maddened was Philip by this unexpected overthrow of all his precious schemes to leave the evidence of the head of the Order on record against it, that that very same evening he and his companions were burnt to death by small fires of charcoal, which protracted their agonies to the last possible moment. No traces of the former weakness or indecision were visible; the two died as greatly, as they had determined to do, Hays says that while the executioners were pushing the preparation for their deaths

De Molai, addressing the people, said "I declare, Sirs, before heaven and in the sight of God who hears me, and before whom I am this day to appear, and I declare by the most solemn and sacred oaths of our Holy Religion, that we are innocent of the crimes imputed to us, and that the Holy Order, which has honoured us beyond our deserts in admitting us into it sacred brotherhood, is not at all guilty; it is pure, and infinitely useful to our Holy Religion. But we have been guilty of the most execrable crimes in charging ourselves in our depositions, and in charging our Order with impieties and abominations which never existed but in the hearts of our traducers and murderers."

To the last they endured their awful torments with admirable calmness, neither cry nor groan escaped them. They implored the mercy of God, and although their bodies were half burnt away, they sang songs of rejoicing, and still maintained the innocence and holiness of their Order.

It has been said that the last words of De Molai were "Clement, false judge and cruel butcher, I summon thee to appear within forty days before the tribunal of the Sovereign Judge; and thou Philip, infamous and wretched king, before the same tribunal within a year." The Dauphin, who died with him, expired repeating the devout motto which the Templars bore on their standards—"Non nobis Domine, non nobis, sed nomine, tua ad glorium."

Knight mentions this legend, which is well known, and which Bro. Hays thinks may have arisen after the event.

Be that as it may, the Pope did die within the time; in fact, precisely forty days after De Molai, and of dysentery. The church in which the body was placed took fire, and the corpse was half consumed before it could be removed. The chroniclers cast reproaches upon Clement's morals, and accuse him of entertaining a criminal passion for Brunisand de Foix, Countess of Talleyrand, the daughter of the Count de Foix, who was considered to be in her time the most beautiful woman in France. She is said to have had the greatest power over the Pope, and when she wished any petitions granted, she was wont to place them on her naked bosom before him.*

Philip, after De Molai's death, fell ill of fever, and died 29th Nov., 1314, in the forty-sixth year of his age. Some suppose that the fever was the result of poison.

Raynourd says that all those who were leaders in the persecution of the Templars, came to an untimely end. Every one knows the horrible end of Edward II. in Berkeley Castle, and some of us have seen the room where he was murdered.

Bro. Haye says the people believed in the innocence of the Order, and received the last words of the Templars in the light of oracles. They abandoned themselves to the liveliest grief, and shed abundant tears. Looking upon the Knights as martyrs in the cause of truth, a judgment confirmed by posterity, many gave money for masses for the repose of their souls.

Bro. Haye adds:—"Upon the whole question, there can exist but one opinion regarding the Order of the Temple, that while innocent of every crime brought against it, it was hunted to the death on account of its wealth and growing power."

Reviews.

The Old Charges of British Freemasons. By WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN. Simpkin, Marshall, and Co., London.

We have frequently placed upon record an expression of our profound appreciation of Bro. Hughan's Masonic labours, and, to some extent, we can now only repeat our judgment upon his merits as a Masonic student and archaeologist. But the most recent example of his zealous researches, is of too great importance to the Craft in general to be quoted merely in that formal style of complimentary notice, which seems to be stereotyped, however well bestowed.

Probably no subject has of late excited more interest in the minds of many thoughtful brethren, than the veraxa questio of the antiquity of the Craft. All kinds of theories have been broached, some plausible enough, although resting upon frail foundation; others utterly baseless, because at variance with our traditional history and customs. That coincidences have been construed into proofs "strong as Holy Writ," is a fact none will gainsay. That resemblances and affinities to ancient rites have been cited as evidence of identity between those rites, and the existing ceremonies of Freemasonry, is patent to all who have considered the question.

Notwithstanding,—or should we not say rather in consequence of,—their mistaken efforts and misdirected zeal, the real records of the Craft lay buried in obscurity, so that as a reaction from the fables of antediluvian Masonry, we have actually witnessed, in the present day, attempts to refer the creation of speculative Freemasonry to the revivalists of 1717, and to brand the memories of our Andersons and Desaguliers' with the stigmas of imposture and fraud. Fortunately, however, sufficient evidence is extant to attest the existence of the Craft long before the advent of the Georgian era in British annals; and it is to such painstaking and discriminating Masonic students as Bro. Hughan undoubtedly is, that we are indebted for many interesting and invaluable facts as illustrations of Masonic progress in the olden time. Bro. Hughan avows himself a believer in the theory that "the present association of Freemasons is an out-growth of the building corporations and guilds of the middle ages, as also the lineal descendants and sole representative of the early secret Masonic sodalities"—a theory comprehensive enough to comprise, within its ample area, nearly all the accepted traditions of the origin of the Craft. He, as a natural sequence, disavows the so-called "1717" theory, repels and refutes it by a few well-chosen examples of the working of "speculative" Masonry long before that memorable year of revival. He then proceeds to lay before the reader a sketch of the several MS. "Constitutions," commencing with "Halliwell's," approximate date, 1390, down to Krause's MS., printed 1810. Transcripts of all the original MSS. of note, with the exception of two which have already been published, are given in this valuable work, and it is further adorned with a fac-simile of portions of the York MSS., 1704, and also of the "Antiquity" MS., A.D. 1686, at present in possession of the celebrated time-immemorial lodge of that name, now No. 2 on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England. This unquestionably authentic document was never printed in extenso until the publication of Bro. Hughan's "Charges." Inasmuch as a family likeness runs through all the "Constitutions," we need scarcely quote any part of the curious regulations which have been handed down by our predecessors in the Craft, but we can bear testimony to the fidelity with which the various transcripts are rendered, and to the general value of the compilation as a whole. It is, in short, a work of reference with which every Masonic antiquarian should be provided—presenting, at one view, in a compendious form, all the data upon the subject that can be traced by diligent enquiry and patient research.

It would be unjust were we to omit alluding to the very masterly preface, from the pen of our accomplished brother, the Rev. Adolphus F. A. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain, rector of Swillington, Leeds. As a scholar and an antiquarian, Bro. Woodford has long been favourably known beyond Masonic circles, as well as by the numerous brethren who love and esteem him; and although he has set up a high standard of literary perfection as his exemplar, we may safely say that his "preface" to Bro. Hughan's book will, in no way, detract from his well-earned fame. It is a capital resumé of the entire subject, and as a scholarly contribution to Masonic literature, is fully commensurate with the importance of the theme. Bro. Woodford's "guild" theory, is not ventilated now for the first time, inasmuch as we well remember hearing his instructive oration in support of the theory at the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of Freemasons' Hall, in 1864, and our learned brother has sustained the assumption in many a friendly controversy since that time; but we do not hesitate to add that time and truth are fighting on his side, and that every recent addition to our Masonic stores of information, confirms his ideas, and justifies his conclusions.

Masonic Emblems.—Stevens and Richardson, Great Queen-street.

We have great pleasure in directing the special attention of our readers to a very beautiful work of art in photography, which represents the Sacred Volume, opened at the sixth chapter of the 1st Book of Kings, together with the appropriate emblems of the Craft.

The execution of the work leaves nothing to be desired, and the price at which it is produced, 1s. 6d. plain, or chastely coloured, 2s., brings it within the reach of every Mason. We trust it will command a rapid and extensive sale, as such a specimen of artistic skill deserves the utmost encouragement. Messrs. Stevens and Richardson, Stationers and Steam Printers, 5, Great Queen-street, are the publishers of this really choice Masonic morceau.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

BRO. EMRA HOLMES AND "A MASONIC STUDENT."

"A Masonic Student," is directed to Knight's London, and to Addison's Knights Templar for the information he seeks. I hope to make use of some of his valuable notes on the order contributed to your contemporary.—After I have done my task, however, I hope my brethren, and particularly such learned and esteemed contributors to the Freemason, as a Masonic Student will remember that I merely write to inform the younger members of our Order, and that I do not seek to instruct brethren so much better able to instruct me. My sole desire is to awaken curiosity into the origin of the Masonic Order of the Temple, whose traditions I think are as much entitled to respect as those of the Craft, but I think that the history of the Knights Templar has yet to be written.—EMRA HOLMES.

BRO. LYON'S NEW WORK.—We understand that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, P.G.M., the Royal Patron of the Craft in Scotland, has been generously pleased to place his name among the subscribers to Bro. D. Murray Lyon's "History of the Lodge of Edinburgh, and of Freemasonry in Scotland." We are informed that His Royal Highness will extend his patronage generally to the work. The interesting volume will be published in October by the well-known firm of Blackwood and Sons, Edinburgh and London. Already a large proportion of the limited edition has been subscribed for by the fraternity, and the Most Noble the Marquis of Ripon, (M.W., Grand Master of England) and other eminent Masons have signified their intention of subscribing. From what we have heard we fear the whole edition will be exhausted before anything like publicity has been given to the work. We therefore, venture to suggest that the number should be increased, and every opportunity be embraced to make the forthcoming history known throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The Crystal Palace, on the occasion of the Foresters' great fête on Tuesday, was visited by 84,950 persons, a rather larger number than has ever before attended on one day.

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated and varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water, October 14.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Negligence always inexcusable, becomes altogether unpardonable when a pestilence, such as Fever threatens to stalk throughout the land, and relentlessly claim all ages for its victims. Have these remedies handy.—At certain seasons, when the very air seems foul with infection, and the water provokes disease, it becomes the paramount duty of all invalids to keep themselves and their families in full health and vigour. No wound or sore should now be permitted to run its destructive course; no skin disease should be allowed to depress the nervous system; when all such predisposing causes of danger may be effectually removed by this healing ointment and these purifying pills, without enervating or irritating the constitution.—ADVERT.

"There is no medicine at the present day I value so highly as the Pain Killer. I have used it in my family for years, and in every instance it has proved a sovereign remedy. I tested its virtue to-day on a severe burn, and found it all that could be desired.—A. D. MILNE, Editor of the Evening News, New York.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C.C."

* M'Leam's "Latin Christianity," Vol. vii., p. 324.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, 1873.

Information wanted of the Names, Numbers, Place and Days of Meeting of all New Lodges and Chapters consecrated during the Years 1871 and 1872.

Secretaries and others will oblige by forwarding the above to the Publisher, 198, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

J. G.—An E.A. cannot hold office in a lodge, but he has as much right as any other member to vote or to propose candidates and joining members. These rules are applicable to all English lodges; but in the United States, none but Master Masons can exercise the privilege of voting, &c.

The following stand over till next week:—Review of "Shakespeare a Freemason," by Bro. J. C. Parkinson; Reports of Lodges, 1224, 2 (S.C.); Mark Lodge 143; Girvan Encampment; Laying Foundation Stone of Masonic Hall at Liskeard.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

DEATH.

BILLINGTON.—On the 22nd inst., at his residence, 72, High-street, Deptford, Bro. W. Billington, No. 871, well and deservedly respected.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early train.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

MASONS AT PUBLIC MEETINGS

Our attention has been called by two correspondents to a circumstance which requires the attention to be drawn to it of the whole Masonic community,—as well as that of the individual whose name is brought so prominently into notice:—

The letters alluded to will be found in our last week's issue, under the above title,—and are called forth in consequence of our Rev. Bro. Woodward, Chaplain to the Boy's School, attending a public meeting at Ipswich, called for the purpose of hearing a lecture by a Mr. Owens, against the Roman Catholic Church.

It appears that a series of lectures have been delivered in Ipswich, recently, by the itinerant lecturer we have named, and that they have been given in the various chapels of the town, got up we presume by the dissenting bodies, in order to create a feeling of hostility towards the High Church and Catholic party, as we learn that they have been aimed equally against Ritualism and Romanism.

The Suffolk Chronicle, an able liberal county paper, in reporting the meeting to which we more particularly allude, mentions the fact that the proceedings were opened with prayer, by the Rev. C. Woodward, Chaplain to the Masonic Institution for Boys,—from which we are led of course to infer that Bro. Woodward was present in his Masonic capacity, for how otherwise could the reporter know he was a Mason at all?

We have not the pleasure of Bro. Woodward's personal acquaintance, and therefore we hope he may take in good part what we have to say. We should have thought that an old Mason like Bro. Woodward, would have known that it is contrary to Masonic law, to take any part, as Masons, in political or religious discussions. The reason Masonry has stood so long in England, and is now the only secret society allowed and protected by the law, is that it disallows all interference on the part of its members with politics and religion. Masonry abroad has frequently interfered in a most unbecoming manner, with political and religious feuds and as a consequence it has grievously suffered in the estimation of all good men and peaceable subjects.

In England, on the contrary, we have always boasted that we have kept free of all quarrels of State or sect, and so long as we continue to do so, and so long only, can we expect to remain unmolested. As "A Past Master" very pertinently says, "If the Rev. C. Woodward in his private capacity, or any other clergyman, thinks fit to attend a meeting got up antagonistic to his fellow Christians, I have no objection, but I must protest against Masonry and Masonic Institutions being dragged into the quarrel. Freemasonry has an equal respect for all religions which acknowledge a Supreme Deity."

Bro. Woodward must be aware that Masons are of all creeds, all climes—Hindoos, Parsees, Mohamedans, Greeks, and Roman Catholics, We admit them all. We ourselves have known excellent Catholics as excellent Masons.

It is true that Freemasons are now under the ban of excommunication by the Pope, himself a Mason, (he was initiated at Florence when only Count Mastai Feretti, and before he ever aspired to wear the triple diadem), but what of that? We can surely afford to return good for evil, and the papal excommunication does not hurt us. At all events, we beg to draw our reverend brother's attention to the first of our ancient charges, in which it says:—

"Let a man's religion, or mode of worship, be what it may, he is not excluded from the Order, provided he believe in the glorious Architect of Heaven and Earth, and practice the sacred duties of morality. Masons unite with the virtuous of every persuasion in the firm and pleasing bond of fraternal love; they are taught to view the errors of mankind with compassion, and to strive, by the purity of their own conduct, to demonstrate the superior excellence of the faith they may profess."

As "Vectis" very properly observes, "What has Masonry to do with rabid Protestantism, and men who preach down Ritualism, as if it were of Satanic origin? Why, as a writer in the Shipping Gazette once said, when speaking of the dedication of the Masonic Temple in London, Masonry is full of Ritualism."

Masonry and Masonic pretensions should never be flaunted at public meetings.

If, in our private capacity, we hold strong sectarian or radical views—as citizens, we have a perfect right to air them when we please; but we have no right to put on our Masonic garb, literally or figuratively, and obtrude ourselves amongst political or religious opponents.

METROPOLITAN.

ROYAL OAK LODGE, (No. 871).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, 22nd inst., at the White Swan Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford. Bro. John William Reed, W.M., opened the lodge. There were present during the evening Bros. W. Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Secretary; H. A. Collington, P.M.; J. Hawker, P.M.; J. Truelove, P.M.; W. Myatt, S.W.; S. O. Lewin, S.D.; R. Harman, D.C.; F. G. Skinner, W.S.; C. C. Kilsby, R. Cox, W. A. R. Harris, W. J. Sievey, R. Killick, J. H. Wilson, L. Lemon, R. Mason, E. Good, and others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Lightfoot, P.M., Treasurer, 147; S. Hoare, S.D., 1155; W. B. Smith, 1326; and G. Montgomery, 1326. The ballot was taken for Mr. Lemon Lemon, and proved unanimous in favour of his admission. The W.M., in his usual fluent, correct, and impressive manner, raised Bros. W. A. R. Harris, E. C. Kilsby, and W. J. Sievey to the third degree. He then initiated Messrs. E. Good, R. Mason, and L. Lemon into the mysteries and privileges of Ancient Freemasonry. In consequence of the large arrears of business, and the propositions received for initiation, it was unanimously resolved that an emergency meeting be held on Thursday September 26th, at five o'clock, p.m. It was announced that Bro. William Billington, a Past Steward of the Girl's School, (1869), and an old member of this lodge, had died that evening, also the death of Bro. M. J. Simmons was announced. It was unanimously resolved that letters of condolence be sent to their families, also that the lodge be placed in mourning. The lodge was then closed.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

CUMBERLAND.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The first regular meeting of this promising lodge, took place on Tuesday, the 20th. The lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. Rodger Dodgson, supported by the other officers. The minutes of consecration, and emergency for initiation of Tyler, were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for the following joining members:—Bros. Rev. G. Brown, St. Andrew's Lodge; John Bell, S.W. 1353; John Barrow, W.M. 1353; Reuben Pearson, W.M. 995; W. Whiteside, S.W. 1398; John Case, P.M., P.Z., P.G.J., West Lancashire; James Postlethwaite, J.W. 1398; Thomas Brown, 872; W. B. Atherston, 113; Henry Atkinson, 119; which proved unanimous in their favour. The following were balloted for as honorary members:—Bros. John Whitwell, M.P., Grand Warden of England D. Prov. G.M. of Cumberland and Westmoreland; Edward Busher, Prov. G.S.B. Eng., Prov. G. Sec.; Capt. A. C. Mott, R.N., P. Prov. G.D., West Lancashire; and Henry Barber, P.M., P.M. 995. As in the former cases, the ballot was unanimously in their favour. The following candidates were then balloted for, viz.:—Mr. Walter Crook, engineer, Millom; Thomas Massicks, Esq., ironmaster, ditto; Mr. H. Myers Meakin, solicitor, Broughton-in-Furness; Mr. John Holloway, schoolmaster, Millom, and they were unanimously accepted. Messrs. Crook and Holloway being in attendance, they were severally admitted and initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M., in a very impressive manner, the working tools being given by the S.W., Bro. T. Dodgson, P.M. 995; and the charge by the J.W., Bro. Mills. The W.M. then proposed that letters of thanks be forwarded to the following brethren for their kind presents to the lodge, viz. :—By Bros. Whitwell, D. Prov. G.M., a very handsome bible; Busher, Prov. G. Sec., a very complete box of working tools; R. Pearson, W.M. 995, of square and compasses for bible. The W.M. also announced the following presents:—by himself, a perfect ashlar and windlass; by the S.W., polished oak ballot box; by the J.W., a pair of globes. The W.M. then invested the Bro. Rev. G. Brown, Chaplain; and Bro. Whiteside, Steward. Business being over, the lodge was finally closed at ten p.m. with solemn prayer.

DERBYSHIRE.

BUXTON.—Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann (No. 1235).—On the 8th of August the brethren of this lodge, with several friends from other lodges, had a pic-nic party at Wormhill Vicarage, at the residence of Bro. A. A. Bagshawe, Prov. G. Chaplain of Derbyshire, S.W. and Chaplain. Mrs. Augustus Bagshawe and her daughter, Miss Vale Bagshawe, gave them a hearty welcome. The health of both ladies was given amidst true, hearty, Masonic cheering, and responded to by Bros. A. and V. Bagshawe who assured the brethren that their wives entertained the highest opinion of the value of Freemasonry. Though the weather was rather showery the games of croquet, and other amusements were kept up till 8 p.m., when, after tea, the brethren took their departure. We trust that such gatherings may promote goodwill, and keep up the sincere brotherly feeling which exists in that young and flourishing lodge.

DEVONSHIRE.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Province of Devon was held yesterday, at the Bath Saloon, Torquay. Business commenced at 10.30 a.m., when the Committee of Petitions for the Province assembled in the ante-room of the saloon.

The Secretary read a record drawn up by the executive of the committee of the proceedings of the committee during the past year. Five pounds each had been voted to two distressed brethren, one Bro. from Tavistock, and the other a Bro. from Exmouth. Five pounds had also been advanced by the Chairman towards defraying the funeral expenses of a brother, who for many was a member and Tyler of No. 159, who was nearly 90 years of age when he died. The committee now recommend the Grand Lodge to grant the widow of a brother residing at Newton £5, whose husband was initiated in No. 223 in the year 1813, and died 36 years since. This widow had maintained herself without relief until the present, but was now become very aged, and needed assistance. The committee also recommended the further grant of £5 to a widow at Devonport, whose husband was late a member of No. 202; £10 to a brother, a member of 164, a farmer who, by misfortune, had been placed in distressed circumstances; and a further £5, to the assistance of the brother at Exmouth that the committee had previously relieved. In this case the brother had been placed in distressed circumstances through an attack of paralysis, and the committee thought his case very deserving of relief. The record and recommendations read were unanimously adopted by the general body of the committee for the presentation to the Grand Lodge, and a recommendation added that in future all petitions should be sent to the Chairman or Secretary seven days before the next meeting of the committee.

The Prov. G. Lodge assembled at noon in the noble ball-room of the Saloon, which was tastefully fitted up for the occasion. The Prov. G.M., R.W., Bro. the Rev. J. Huyshe, M.A., Past G. Chaplain of England, presided, assisted by the following officers:—R.W. Bros. L. P. Metham, D. Prov. G.M., Past G.J.D. of England; W.D. Moore, Past G. Prov. G.M.; V.W.; Bros. Major Clerke, Prov. S.G.W.; Captain J. Tanner Davey, Prov. J.G.W. pro tem.; the Rev. C. R. N. Lyne, the rector of St. John's, Exeter, P.G. Chaplain; J. Way, Prov. G. Treas. urer; W. G. Rogers, Prov. G. Secretary; S. Jones, Prov. S.G.D.; J. Greenfield, Prov. J.G.D.; L. D. Westcott, Prov. D., Supt. of Works; H. Miller, Prov. G.D.C.; J. B. Price, Prov. G.S.B.; H. B. Starke, Pro. G.O., pro tem.; J. Brown, Prov. G. Purst. pro tem.; J. Gregory, Prov. G. Tyler; J. M. Hiffley, E. Aitken Davies, S. S. Tremayne, H. W. Hooper, W. Littleton, J. H. Westlake, Prov. G. Stewards. V.W. Bro. Encas J. M'Intyre, the G. Reg. of England, also attended, and was introduced by the Prov. G.M., and was received with the usual honours. A few other visitors and a large number of the brethren of the province were also present. On the roll of the lodges being called the following were found to be representvd:—Nos. 39, 70, 105, 106, 156, 159, 164, 189, 202, 223, 230, 248, 251, 282, 333, 328, 372, 666, 710, 797, 847, 254, 1,099, 1,205, 1,212, 1,247, 1,254, 1,332, 1,358, 1,396, 1,402. The Prov. G.M. explained that he had received a letter from the Prov. J.G.W. Captain Shanks, R.M., absent on recruiting duty at Greenock, regretting his inability to attend that meeting, and enclosing a donation of £5 towards the Fortescue Fund of the Province.

The minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge held at Paignton, August 3rd, 1871, and the special lodges held at Plymouth, February 22nd, 1872, and at Newton Abbott, June 25th, 1872, were read and confirmed.

The Secretary's report was read and adopted. From this it appeared that all the lodges but two had sent in their returns, Nos. 489, and 1,284. Of those who had sent in their returns, No. 954 had returned the largest number of subscribing members, 95; and No. 1,135 the lowest, 15. The whole of the subscribing members returned were 1,780. To these were to be added the brethren of the two lodges that had not made their returns. With those it was believed that the subscribing brethren in the province bordered close upon 2,000.

The Treasurer's report was read, received, and adopted. This showed a balance in hand of £216 os. 3d.

The committee of petitions' report was read, received, and adopted. The grants it recommended were ordered to be paid.

A recommendation was urged by the chairman of the committee for the brethren to support their local hospitals and asylums. The benefit of these establishments he showed had been recently largely shared in the case of the Royal Albert Hospital by some of the brethren. R.W. Bro. Metham threw out a suggestion of the advantage of this province at some future time adopting a plan now carried out in Lancashire and Lincolnshire, whereby brethren's children were assisted in their education without removing them from their parents' homes. The report of the Treasurer of the Fortescue Fund was read and adopted. During the past year that fund had increased by £105 3s. 1rd., amounting now to £1,644 6s. 3d. funded and banked. Votes were made of £10 to the Masonic Institution for Aged and Decayed Masons; £20 to the Institution for Masons' Widows; fifty guineas to the Masonic Boys' School; ten guineas to the Royal Albert Hospital; fifty guineas to the Fortescue Fund.

R.W. Bros. Moore and Metham proposed and seconded an address of condolence being forwarded to the brethren of Cornwall at the loss they had sustained in the death of their much respected Prov. G.M., the late Bro. Augustus Smith. Both the R.W. brethren very warmly eulogised the eminent Masonic qualities the lamented brother had exhibited in his general conduct, as well as in connection with his brethren. The proposition was supported by the Prov. G.M., and carried with the unanimous affectionate regret of the brethren at the loss of their distinguished brother, with whom many of them had frequently, with much pleasure to themselves, joined in the Masonic duties of his Province.

The new lodge, the Jordan, No. 1402, was consecrated in ancient form by the R.W. the Prov. G.M., assisted by his officers and the whole of the brethren present. At the close of the ceremony, Bro. T. Perry was installed its W.M. for the ensuing year. The following brethren were appointed its officers:—Bros. C. J. Harland, I.P.M.; J. Chapman, S.W.; J. Murray, J.W.; F. M. Sawe, Treas.; F. Hinton, J.D.; W. A. Goss, P.M., D.C.; the other offices were left open for the present.

On the proposition of V. W. Bro. J. T. Davey, seconded by V.W. Bro. Major Clerke, W. Bro. V. Bird was elected the Treasurer.

The P.G.M. appointed the following brethren his officers for the ensuing year:—R. W. Bro. L. P. Metham, Past G.J.W., D. Prov. G.M.; V.W. Bro. W. Cann, 39, Prov. S.G.W.; W. Bro. Capt. Keyworth, 164, Prov. J.G.W.; V.W. Bro. the Rev. C. N. Lyne, 105, and Bro. the Rev. John Matthews, 444, Prov. G. Chaplains; W. Bros. V. Bird, 954, Treas.; W. H. Hooper, 1,254, Prov. G. Regis.; W. G. Rogers, 1,284, Prov. G. Sec.; R. H. Rae, 189, Prov. S.G.D.; C. J. Harland, 1,402, Prov. J.G.D.; E. Aitken Davies, 1,099, Prov. G.S.Wks.; F. R. Tomes, 1,255, Prov. G.D.C.; J. M. Hiffley 223, Prov. C.A.D.C.; T. Daud, 39, Prov. S.B.; G. E. Alexander, 666, Prov. G.O.; W. Cole, 421, G. Purs.; J. Gregory, Prov. G. Tyler. During the consecration of Jordan Lodge an eloquent oration was delivered to the brethren by the R. W. the D. Prov. G.M. Bro. Starke presided at the organ, and the choral services were rendered with great taste by a choir of the brethren under the superintendence of Bro. T. Goodall, J.W. 954, assisted by other brethren.

At the close of the business a large party of the brethren dined together in the handsome supper-room of the Bath Saloon. The P.G.M. presided. At the dinner V.W. Bro. J. R. Collins, the G.S.B. of Cornwall, was commissioned to convey orally to the brethren of his Province the sympathy of the Devon brethren at the decease of Bro. Augustus Smith.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held in the Royal Hotel, High-street, on the 8th inst. The chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. C. Carnegie, I.P.M., G. Purst., Hants (the W.M., Bro. J. Fenn, having been prevented by duty from attending), and was supported by the following officers:—Bros. Capt. Richardson, R.E., S.W.; A. McKenzie, J.W.; J. Osmond, P.M.; R. White, Sec.; J. Denison, as S.D.; W. A. Hanley, as J.D.; A. Swann, as I.G.; U. Lucas, Tyler. The lodge was opened in form in the 1st degree, and Bros. Phillips and Scadden, 30th Regiment, who had been proposed as joining members, were severally balloted for, and unanimously accepted. The lodge was then opened in the 2nd degree, and those brethren were examined respecting their proficiency in that degree, which, proving satisfactory, they were entrusted with a test of merit, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the 3rd degree, and Bros. Phillips and Scadden were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, the S. Warden presenting the vryking tools. The lodge was then closed down to the 2nd and 1st degrees, and ultimately adjourned to the 5th September.

HERTFORDSHIRE.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

The Provincial Grand Lodge for Herts, held its annual meeting at Hitchin, under the banner of the Cecil Lodge, No. 449, on Monday last. The following brethren were present:—The R.W. Bro. W. Stuart, Past Grand Warden of England, Prov. G. Master; the W. Bros. H. B. Heath, F. H. Wilson Iles, G. Lambert, H. Lloyd Thomas, and J. Sugars, Past Prov. G. Wardens; H. B. Hodges and J. Shillcock, P.G. Wardens; Rev. G. Finch, Prov. G. Chaplain; J. D. Medcalf and E. West, P.G. Deacons; W. Rogers, Prov. G. Treas.; J. Sedgwick, P.G. Sec.; S. Austin, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works; T. S. Carter, Prov. G. Supt. of Works; W. Wilson, Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.; the Rev. L. Deedes, Chaplain; J. Boatwright, S.D.; E. Salisbury, P.M. Steward; H. Campkin, I.G.; J. E. Cussans, P. Page, Abel Smith, M.P.; F. Roberts, W. J. Morris, and G. W. Martin, P.M., &c. (Hertford Lodge, No. 403); J. Neale, W.M.; R. R. Shillitoe, P.M.; G. Mickleby, S.D.; R. Shillitoe, J.D.; Edwards, Wade, Groom, F. Shillitoe, and others (Cecil 449); W. C. Barnes, W.M. 809; E.

West, P.M.; E. Parker, S.W. 1327; E. H. Edwards, S.W.; Gladsmuir, H. Cribb, W.M. 409; and others.

The lodge was opened in due form.

The Treasurer's accounts were passed.

The P.G. Master then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the ensuing year, as follows, viz.:—Bros. J. Neale, W.M. 449, P.G. S. Warden; H. Cribb, W.M. 409, P.G. Junior Warden; the Rev. Lewis Deedes, Chaplain, 403, Prov. G. Chaplain; W. C. Barnes, W.M. 869, Prov. G.S. Deacon; G. Mickley, S.D. 449, Prov. G.J. Deacon; W. Wilson, P.G. Dir. of Cers.; H. C. Finch, P.M. 404, Prov. G. Registrar; W. Rogers, 404, Prov. G. Treas.; J. Sedgwick, P.M. 404, Prov. G. Sec.; Boatwright, S.D. 403, Prov. G. Supt. of Works; R. Shillitoe, J.D. 449, Prov. G.S. Bearer; E. Parker, S.D. 1327, Prov. G. Purst.; G. W. Martin, Prov. G. Org.; E. Salisbury, P.M. 403, &c., 1st Prov. G. Steward; Hill Smith, 449, 2nd Prov. G. Steward; and Thomas, Prov. G. Tyler.

Five guineas were voted out of the Provincial Grand Lodge funds to the Hitchin Infirmary.

Nearly sixty brethren afterwards dined together in a large room at the Sun Hotel.

The dinner was very well served by the host.

The usual loyal and customary toasts were given.

The proceedings were enlivened by some capital glees and songs by Bros. Ransford, Wilby Cooper, and Baxter.

We must congratulate the Cecil Lodge on the great success of the meeting.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL.—Stanley Lodge, (No. 1325).—On Thursday evening, the 22nd inst., the brethren of this lodge were summoned to attend their Masonic duties at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, the principal business being to instal the W.M. elect for the ensuing year. Bro. John Horburg, W.M., presided at the opening of the lodge, and was supported by Bro. J. Hamer, P.M., and P.P.G. Treasurer: Bro. Wylie, P.P.G. Reg.; Bro. Pemberton, P.M., 1264; and Bro. Peter M. Larsen, P.M., 394, &c. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and the ballot was afterwards taken for the candidates for initiation, as well as for a number of joining members. Bro. Horburg and Bro. Larsen then presented Bro. Thomas Leighton, W.M. elect, for installation, and Bro. Homer proceeded with the ceremony, assisted by Bro. Wylie. The newly installed W.M. subsequently invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. C. Leighton, S.W.; W. H. Hamlyn, J.W.; J. Horbury, I.P.M., Treasurer; J. M. Eccles, Secretary; H. Sears, S.D.; H. Ashmore, J.D.; H. Bell, I.G.; and D.R. and J. W. Davies, Stewards. A cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bros. Homer and Wylie for their presence and services. The brethren subsequently banqueted at Bro. Simpson's, under the presidency of the W.M., and during the evening the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to with enthusiasm.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Lodge, (No. 1094).—As the day upon which the general annual picnic of this lodge was held this year, proved of the most stormy, wet, and disagreeable character, a member of the leading Masonic spirits connected with No. 1094, determined to have a supplementary day's outing in the country, as a kind of solatium to the ladies for disappointed hopes and dripping be-muddled dresses on the previous occasion. The day chosen was Thursday, the 22nd inst., and the place selected was the pleasant Village of Hale, situated at a convenient distance from Liverpool. Utwards of thirty brethren and ladies started in the morning from London road in a splendidly appointed omnibus, while others followed at a later period of the day in private vehicles. The weather was gloomy and threatening, but fortunately only one slight shower in the afternoon was all that came to damp the spirits of the party. Bros. D. W. Winstanley, I.P.M., and Yelland, J.D., made satisfactory arrangements for the comfort of the "outers," and Bro. F. Marsh, P.M. Sec., and P.P.A.D.C., West Lancashire, gave valuable help in the way of carrying out the day's programme. A substantial repast was provided by Mr. W. Bell, "mine host" of the Wellington Hotel, and every one seemed to enjoy the day's trip with the greatest zeal. The usual out-of-door amusements, with dancing as a special feature, were engaged in, and the party returned to town at seasonable hour, highly gratified with their excursion to Hale.

WAVERTREE.—Installation Meeting of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, (No. 1182).—No better evidence of the genuine progress of Freemasonry in the province of West Lancashire could be quoted than the prosperity which has marked, and continues to mark the existence of the suburban Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, No. 1182. Consecrated under circumstances of a highly favourable character, and supported by brethren to whom Freemasonry was something more than a mere name, it has gradually increased in numbers, and upheld the quality of its members, which prevailed at the beginning. During its short life there have been no fewer than 130 initiations, and as earnest zeal and application have characterised the majority of the initiates, the working of the lodge has been worthy of its position. Very much of the success attending the Duke of Edinburgh must be attributed to the steady and self-sacrificing efforts of excellent officers, who, by their example and precept, have done much to stimulate and encourage the "rank and file" of the lodge. The anniversary of the consecration, which took place on Wednesday afternoon, the 21st inst., at the Coffee House, Wavertree, near Liverpool, was highly interesting and eminently successful. It was interesting, as the business paper contained the always impressive ceremony of the installation of the Worshipful Master elect; and most successful, because there was not only a large muster of the brethren of 1182, but an unusually imposing array of P.M.'s of other lodges, who attended out of respect for the W.M. and W.M. elect. The brethren were summoned for two o'clock, and shortly after that time the lodge was opened, according to the ancient and approved form, in the first degree, by Bro. Philip Richards Thorn. The officers present during the afternoon were: Bros. S. Cookson, I.P.M.; W. Woods, P.M.; Thornton, P.M.; William Pughe, S.W.; J. W. Williams, J.W.; William Brown, Treasurer; J. G. Bales, Secretary; J. Edginton, S.D.; B. Myers, S.; R. Martin, junior, S.; and W. Crawford, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. J. C. Brew, E. Gibson, J. Williams, A. Vaughan, W. Thomason, G. Williams, J. York, J. Bullock, J. Hope, G. Collings, L. Simmons, C. Jones, T. Ward, M. Bennett, C. Llewelyn, T. F. Jones, R. S. McDona, R. Hargreaves, J. Curlender, D. Kaye, J. Jacobs, T. Wilcox, G. McCoy, &c. Special invitations had been issued to a large number of visitors, and amongst the number of those who accepted and were present were:—Bros. J. Hamer, P.P.G. Treas., J. T. Callow, W.M. 673; R. Ing, W.M. 594; H. Pearson, P.M. 1035; F. Sargent, P.M. 694; J. Fozzard, P.M. 694; J. Hocken, P.M. 673; C. Leedham, P.M. 220; S. Johnson, P.M. 673; Peter M. Larsen, P.M. 594; H. Syred, 142; A. Saqui, 205; D. Jackson, 673; R. Washington, 220; S. Kirkpatrick, 249; C. Munro, 823; R. R. Martin, 249; W. Veale, 1356; J. Dawson, 673; G. Budd, 673; J. Roberts, 673; J. W. Williams, 1356; W. Lewis, &c. After the minutes of previous meetings had been read by the Sec., and unanimously confirmed, the lodge was opened in the second degree. Bro. W. Woods, P.M., then took the chair as Installing Master, and Bro. William Pughe, the W.M. elect, was presented to him by Bros. P. R. Thorn, I.P.M., and J. Hamer, P.P.G. Treas., for installation. The ancient charge having been read by the Secretary and cordially assented to, the lodge was opened in the third degree. All brethren below the rank of P.M. withdrew, and Bro. Pughe was duly chaired as W.M. by the board of Installed Masters. The other brethren were then re-admitted, and the newly-installed W.M. was initiated in the third degree, according to ancient form. The W.M. afterwards invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. P. R. Thorn, I.P.M.; J. W. Williams, S.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. C. Bales, Sec. (re-elected for the fifth time); B. Myers,

S.D.; R. Martin, jun., J.D.; J. C. Brew, I.G.; C. Llewelyn, S.S.; J. Williams, J.S.; and G. Scott, Org. Bro. W. Crawford was unanimously re-elected and invested as Tyler of the lodge for the year. The installation ceremony was performed in a highly efficient and impressive manner by Bro. P.M. Woods, assisted by Bro. J. Hamer, who gave the charges to the different officers in that complete style for which he has so long been well known. Before the business of the afternoon terminated, the W.M. said he could not allow Bro. Hamer (who was on the point of starting for Prescott, to attend chapter duties) to leave the lodge without expressing his personal thanks to him for his presence and services that day. His (Bro. Hamer's) name was as a "household word" amongst Masons, and he was sure everyone present must have felt that he had done them an honour, and conferred a privilege, by being amongst them that afternoon. Bro. Hamer, who was evidently delighted with this expression of opinion by the W.M., briefly thanked him, and promised that he would again, on an early occasion, visit the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge. On the motion of Bro. P.M. Woods, seconded by Bro. I.P.M. Thorn, a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Hamer by the whole lodge for his valuable assistance in the installation ceremonial, and this vote will be put on the minutes. The brethren then adjourned from labour to a sumptuous banquet provided by the fair hostess of the Coffee House, which was laid in the large and splendid lodge-room. About 60 brethren sat down, under the presidency of the W.M., who was well supported right and left by a strong force of his own and other Past Masters. The dinner was of the most recherché character, and the wines of the best brand. After dessert had been placed on the table, the W.M. gave the toasts of the "The Queen," "Bro. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, Past G.M.," "The Princess of Wales," and "The Rest of the Royal Family." "The Marquis of Ripon, M.W.G.M.," and the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W.D.G.M.," each of the toasts being responded to with great enthusiasm. The W.M. then said;—"The next duty, brethren, which I call upon you to perform is a very serious one, and I ask you to drink the sentiment in solemn silence. I ask you to the 'The Memory of Our Late Provincial Grand Master, Sir Thomas George Fernor Hesketh.'" The whole of the brethren, standing, drank the toast amidst the most profound silence, and the intense feeling of sympathy which marked the impressive proceeding, showed the deep regret cherished by every brother at the sudden loss of their head of the Province, the W.M., next gave the late officers of the P.G.L. of West Lancashire, this toast being received without any demonstration, out of respect for the loss so recently sustained in the death of the P.G.M.—Bro. P. R. Thorn, I.P.M., then said, Brethren the gavel has been placed in my hands, and I must claim your attention for a few moments for the next toast, which is "The Worshipful Master." It has been placed in my keeping as a matter of right, but I wish it had fallen into better hands for the purpose of submitting this important toast. I have fulfilled the duties which are now laid upon our W.M. for the last twelve months, and I am quite sure you will appreciate my successor, as a true and zealous Mason, and one anxious to do his duty. To me it is a source of the greater pleasure to find him in the proud position which he now occupies, to which I trust all the senior and junior officers and brethren will seek to aspire. A position not easily filled, but one of which every Mason ought to be proud. (Hear, hear.) I am certain, brethren of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, it must be a source of the greatest satisfaction to Bro. Pughe, to find he has been unanimously elected, without the slightest opposition,—without a single dissentient voice,—elected in recognition of his zealous and indefatigable exertions, out of pure love for the order which he has ever displayed, since he "saw the light" in his his mother lodge. Brethren, I feel confident in my own mind he has taken upon himself a task which he will discharge with ability and honour, and credit to the lodge; and I trust that, though he is now held in the highest estimation by every one in the lodge at his installation, he will leave the chair better beloved, and even more appreciated, than he is to-day. Brethren, I will give you the toast of "The W.M.," and I ask you to drink it in bumpers. The toast was received with the utmost enthusiasm and Masonic honours. In reply, the W.M. said: I must candidly confess, brethren, I rise, under great difficulty, because I feel I cannot do sufficient justice to the honour you have done me. As to my present position, I must tell you that I am very proud of it, and all the more, that it has been given me with thorough good will, without a single dissentient, and with the assurance that every one has placed me here with hearty good feeling. I assure you I appreciate the office, not only because it is a distinguished one, but because I was one of the first five initiated in this lodge, and the only officer amongst those five. I have gradually worked my way up, and gained my present position by an honest endeavour, at all times, to do my duty; and, therefore, while I feel proud of the honour conferred upon me, I shall endeavour to requite your kindness by faithfully discharging every duty appertaining to the office of the Master of this lodge. I must also thank the P.M.'s for their advice and assistance, which have been of the greatest value to me. Brethren, I again thank you for the honour conferred upon me, and for the manner in which the toast was received. The W.M. next gave "The Installing Master," referring to Bro. Woods as a worthy mason, and one who needed no eulogy. Bro. Woods, in acknowledging the toast, which was very cordially received, said it was a great honour to have the esteem and appreciation of so many brethren, from whom he had received nothing but favours since the formation of the lodge. He believed that he was the first, with Bros. Bales and Thornton, proposed the formation of that lodge, and when they looked back and witnessed the success which had attended it they must each feel the greatest satisfaction at the result of their efforts. The lodge had commenced with very few members, but during the first two years there had been the greatest number of initiations. When he was elected W.M. of the lodge his idea was that there would be nothing to do except to get into the chair, but he quickly found his mistake. He worked diligently and with all the ability he possessed, and happily he found his efforts crowned by the approbation of his brethren. With regard to the installation ceremony, he had worked late and early to master it, and if he had satisfied them he was amply repaid. "The Past Masters" (proposed by the W.M.) was acknowledged by Bro. Thorn, I.P.M., who thanked the brethren for the cordiality with which the toast had been received. The Worshipful Master, in giving the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge," he said he hoped no one would find fault with the selection he had made because he had done his best to create no ill-feeling. He had great confidence in the brethren he had chosen, and no W.M. ought to feel greater pride in his officers than he did. The toast was suitably acknowledged by Bro. Williams, S.W. Bro. Woods proposed "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution" which was responded to by Bro. H. Perason, P.M. 249. "The Visiting Brethren," given in happy terms by Bro. Thorn, was acknowledged by Bros. Fozzard, P.M. 1035, Callow, W.M. 673; Ing, W.M. 594; and Syred, No. 148. The "Tyler's toast" brought a most enjoyable entertainment to a close. Excellent songs were contributed by Bros. Parry, Edington, Washington, Jacobs, Myers, and Collings. Bro. Veale not only played the accompaniments, but at the installation ceremonial did good service by his musical ability.

Royal Arch.

DEVONSHIRE.

EXMOUTH.—San Chapter. (No. 106).—The annual meeting for the installation of Principals took place on Monday, the 19th inst. The companions met according to summons at high twelve. The chapter was opened in due form by the Principal. The companions were then admitted, and officers were ballotted for. Subsequently a conclave of Past First Principals was formed, when Comp. D. Mackenzie, was installed Z., Comp. John Way, H. and Comp. Walter Keyworth, J. by P.Z. N. Bickford, assisted by I.P.Z. Maynard. On the return of the companions to the chapter, the following were appointed officers for the year:—Comp. Dr. Atkins, Scribe, E.; Comp. W. E. Stone, Scribe, N.; Comp. Proctor Sherwin, P.S., Comp. Maynard, P.Z., Treasurer, Comp. Bickfield, P.Z., Registrar; Comp. Carter, Secretary; Comps. Bastin and Lacey, A.S.; Comp. Dr. Hodge, P.Z., D.C.; Comp. Melhuish, Janitor. After the investiture of the officers, the newly installed Z. proceeded to exalt Bros. Robertson and Loran to the sublime degree, performing his duties most satisfactorily. The lectures were delivered respectively by Comps. Way, Bickford, P.Z., and Hodge, P.Z., 33°. The First Principal then proposed a resolution expressive of sympathy with the widow and family of the late Comp. B. B. Bastin, P.Z. Treasurer, &c. The chapter also voted a sum of money for a memorial tablet over the remains of the late Comp., W. Shrimpton, S.E. The chapter having been closed by the Principal in due and ancient form, the Companions adjourned to a banquet, which was presided over by the Z., at which between 20 and 30 Companions were present. The banquet reflected great credit on Mrs. Bastin. The usual loyal and masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the Companions, most of whom reside a long distance from the chapter, separated at an early hour.

LANCASHIRE (WEST.)

LANCASTER Rowley Chapter (No. 1,051).—The regular meeting of the chapter was held at the Masonic rooms, Lancaster, on the 19th inst., when there were present Comp. Hall, M.E.Z.; Dr. Moore, Grand Standard Bearer, P.Z.; Simpson, H.; Whymper, J.; J. M. Moore, Scribe E.; Heald N.; Ayrie, P.S.; Saul and Taylor as A. S. Watson, Jan. A vote of thanks was proposed by Comp. Moore, P.Z., seconded by Comp. Simpson, H., to the M.E.Z., for the present to the chapter of a handsome kneeling stool, and the same was carried unanimously. There was a candidate for exaltation, but he was unable to be present. The companions, however, worked the ceremony, Comp. Dr. Moore kindly taking the arduous duties of preceptor, which he filled with his well-known ability.

FUNERAL OF BRO. SIR T. G. FERMOR-HESKETH.

The last sad offices towards the late Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire, were performed on Friday, the 23rd inst., when his remains, without worldly show, and with becoming solemnity, were interred in the family vault underneath the chancel at the west end of St. Mary's Church, in the quaint village of Rufford. Many of the brethren in the province desired to attend the funeral, to show their respect for their departed chief; but at the request of the deceased baronet, and by the desire of the family, the obsequies were made as private as possible, the attendance being confined to the family and friends, the tenantry of Rufford, and only a limited number of Freemasons in the immediate neighbourhood. The Masonic brethren, without wearing any distinctive clothing, except that of mourning, lined the road from Rufford Hall to the church, and there was, besides, a large gathering of the general public, all anxious to do respect to their late landlord, patron, and parliamentary representative. Much respect was shown for deceased by the villagers, who made it a day of mourning, the blinds of all the houses being drawn down until after the funeral.

The "sad array," which consisted of a hearse, four mourning coaches, and several private carriages, left Rufford Hall, the Lancashire seat of the late Prov. G.M., shortly after eleven o'clock, and proceeded to the church in the following order:—The school children, the boys wearing black rosettes; the tenantry residing in Rufford, numbering about fifty. The hearse followed, and the mourning coaches were occupied as follows:—The first contained Mr. T. G. Fermor-Hesketh, the deceased baronet's second son, and heir to the Fermor estates in Northamptonshire; Mr. Lawrence Rawstorne, of Penwortham, who married Miss Hesketh; Sir Lawrence Palk, Bart., and Lieut.-Colonel Mansergh, relatives. The second carriage contained Colonel Ogilvye, Bro. Captain F. A. Stanley, M.P.; Mr. R. Townley Parker, Cuerden Hall; and Mr. Edmundson, Gresgarth Hall. The third carriage contained Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.D.G.J.W., Latham House; Colonel Wilson Patten, M.P.; and Rev. W. Seymour, Whatford vicarage, Rugby. The fourth carriage was occupied by Sir Henry Edwards, Bart.; Mr. E. Wilson, deputy high sheriff and solicitor to the family; Dr. Hammond, of Preston, Sir Thomas's medical adviser; and Mr. Williams, solicitor, London. The private carriages of the following gentlemen followed in the procession:—Mr. L. Rawstorne, Lord Skelmersdale, and Mr. R. T. Parker. Major Goodair and Captain Pedder, of the 6th Administrative Battalion of Rifle Volunteers, Preston District, as well as some non-commissioned officers, were in the procession.

At the entrance to the churchyard the funeral cortege was met by Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G.C., W.L., rector of the parish, and the Rev. R. Falls, curate. As the body was borne along the pathway the opening sentences of the Burial Service were read with great impressiveness by Bro. Goggin. The church was filled with villagers, and the rector having read the service appointed by the Church, the body was conveyed to the entrance of the vault below, where the service was continued. The coffin was then placed upon a carriage, conveyed to the interior, and placed beside that which contains the remains of Lady Arabella, the deceased baronet's wife, who died about a couple of years ago, and the service was then concluded in the presence of the mourners. The outer coffin, which was of oak, with brass panels, and covered with flowers, bore the following simple inscription on the shield:—"Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Thomas George Fermor Hesketh, Bart., M.P. died August 20, 1872, aged 47 years." The funeral arrangements were carried out by Messrs. Bannister and Son, of Preston.

The Masonic brethren present at the funeral subsequently dined at the Hesketh Arms Hotel, Rufford. They afterwards adjourned to an upper room, where Bro. Lambert, P.M. Nos. 613, 296, and 580, and P.G.D., of East Lancashire, presided. Addressing the Brethren, he said:—

We have assembled ourselves, together not only as Freemasons, but as persons warmly attached to him whom we have deposited in the silent grave. We have now assembled in our usual numbers, in consequence of a telegram received yesterday, although the lodge at Croston did not receive notice—otherwise there would have been at least 400 present. Our motive for appearing to-day was in general unison with the principles of the craft. It has always been customary from time immemorial amongst the Society of Free and Accepted Masons, on the death of a deceased brother, but especially for one distinguished and well beloved amongst the brethren, to assemble together to accompany his remains to the tomb, and there to inter him with the usual solemnities. I will give you a history of the deceased as a brother Mason, as he was a Provincial Grand Officer of his province. He was initiated in No. 32 Lodge (Adelphi), Liverpool, and I had the honour to assist at his installation with Bro. Kilpin, who was then the Worshipful Master. He was appointed Deputy Grand Master of the Province, and in 1859, he was raised to the superior degree of Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire. I need not name to the brethren here the kind and noble manner in which he has performed the duties, and his friendly feeling to the brethren at large. The great Architect of the Universe having been pleased out of his mercy to remove our brother from the cares and troubles of this transitory life to a state of eternal duration, and thereby weaken the chains by which we are united man to man, may we who survive him anticipate our approaching end; and may we be more strongly cemented in the ties of union and friendship, and mutually promote the friendship and happiness of each other. Our deceased brother was deeply beloved by his family, tenants, and neighbours, who have suffered an irreparable loss, and his kind and genial feeling towards the craft will never be forgotten.—There was scarcely a dry eye during the delivery of the address.

It is generally understood and desired that Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.P.D.G.M., will succeed the deceased as P.G.M. of West Lancashire; and that Bro. the Hon. F. Stanley, P.P.G.S.W., will succeed Lord Skelmersdale, as Deputy. These appointments would be certain to prove generally popular in the province.

Original Correspondence.

PROFESSOR RAWLINSON AND THE TEN TRIBES.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am almost ashamed to ask for any more space, to add to what I have already written on Professor Rawlinson's attempt to shew that the Ten Tribes are extinct, after he had raised our expectations of a satisfactory answer to the question "Where are the Ten Tribes?" I would not ask for further indulgence were it to add anything of my own, but if I am permitted to give the opinions of three or four writers, in reply to the Professor's question, I think your readers will find the matter of some interest, if only as pertaining to an historical question. But it will show, furthermore, to those who take an interest in the subject on which the Professor writes, that "we're nae that fou" as to have taken up an opinion on which we can find no one capable of thinking and of investigating, who entertain convictions similar to our own, and able to give reasons for them.

Doctor Abbadie, a well-known writer and antagonist of Bossuet, whose works were published at Amsterdam in 1723, thus writes: "Unless the Ten Tribes have flown into the air, or been plunged to the earth's centre, they must be sought in that part of the North which in the time of Constantine was converted to the Christian faith, namely, among the Iberians, Armenians, and Scythians, for that was the place of their dispersion, the wilderness where God caused them to dwell in tents, as when they came out of the land of Egypt. Perhaps (he adds) were the subject carefully examined, it would be found that the nations who, in the fifth age, made irruption into the Roman Empire, and whom Procopius reduces to ten in number (he wrote "De Bello Gothico," and died about A.D. 560), were in fact the Ten Tribes, who, kept in a state of separation up to that time, then quitted the Euxine and Caspian, the place of their exile, because the country could no longer contain them. Everything fortifies this conjecture, as the extraordinary multiplication of this people, marked so precisely by the prophets, the number of the tribes, the custom of those nations to dwell in tents, according to the oracle (see Poesek: Hosea xii. 9), and many other usages of the Scythians, similar to those of the Children of Israel." He concludes that the Ten Tribes, separated or not from other peoples, could not fail, in their circumstances, to multiply exceedingly, and that they found God again in their dispersion.

The famous antiquarian, Speed, who wrote towards the close of the sixteenth century, elaborately discusses the origin of the name Saxon, and examines several of the theories that have been advanced as to the country from which they originally came. He refers, among other authors, to Albinus, the friend of Bede, who lived in the eighth century. Albinus, he says, believes the Saxons to have been descended from the Sacæ, a people in Asia, and that afterwards, in process of time, they came to be called Saxons, as if it were written Sax-sones, i.e. the sons of the Sacæ. To this opinion," says Speed, "Master Henry Ferrers, a gentleman of ancient descent, great reading, and a judicious antiquary, agreeth, whose judgment for any particular, I have always honoured, and from his 'Progeny of the English Monarchs' I have taken my principal proceedings in these Saxon successors.

The old English chronicler proceeds,—“As touching the ancient place of their abode, Ptolemy, the Alexandrian, placeth the people, Sasones, in the inner Scythia, betwixt the mountains Alani and Tapuri; and Amianus Marcellinus citeth the Sacæ (no doubt the very same) a fierce and savage nation, who inhabited overgrown places, commodious only for cattle, at the foot of the mountains Ascamimia and and Comedus, near unto which the city Alexandra, Tribatra, and Drepsa were adjoining, and are so set by Ptolmey. Neither is it less probable that our Saxons descended from the Sacæ, in Asia, than the Germans from those Germans in Persia, of whom Herodotus writeth. . . . Of the Sacæ, Strabo writeth, that they made invasions into countries afar off, as namely, Armenia, where they left the memory of their success in a part of that country by calling it Sacacena, after their own name. From these parts of Asia, as Scythia and the rest, one band of them, consisting chiefly of their youth, proceeded by degress into Europe, and passed the Ness or Foreland, which the Romans called Cimbrica Chersonesus, being at this day the continent part of the kingdom of Denmark, in which place they were first known by the name of Saxons, and here, also, they, among themselves, began first to be distinguished into other tribes, but, more properly, we may say into Saxons, Angles, and Jutes. From hence, afterwards, they departed, and passing over the river Elbe, divided themselves into two companies, whereof the one taking into the upper parts of Germany, by little and little obtruded themselves into the ancient seat of the Suevians, which now of them is called Westphalia, and Saxony; and the other encroached upon Friesland and Holland (then called Batavia), with the rest of those countries that lie along the German seas. . . . Most certain it is, by Eutropius and Bede, that before the year 300, when Diocletian swayed the Roman sceptre, the Saxons out of Cimbrica Chersonesus sore offended the coasts of Britain and France with their many piracies, and were fearful even to the Romans themselves. These multiplied in number and strength, seated in the maritime tract of Jutland, Sleswick, Alsatia, Ditmarse, Breime, Oldenburgh, all Friesland, and Holland; and indeed, according to the testimony of Fabius Quæstor, 'wholly all the seacoasts, from the river Rhine unto the city Donia, which now is commonly called the Denmark.' And whither Henry of Erfurd affirmeth Saxon-land to stretch from the river Albis unto the Rhine: 'the bounds of no one people of all the Germans extending any way so far,' saith he." He adds, "These Gete (no doubt the Jute) Ptolmey likewise placeth in the Island Scandia, lying very near the coasts of Germany, upon whose uttermost promontory—as said an ancient MS.—the Jutes did for certain inhabit, which unto this day of the Danes, is called Jutland. These Jutes, Gutes, Getes, Goths, or, as Bede calls them Vites, gave names to those parts of Britain which they inhabited. . . . This may suffice for the originals of these three people; who, as Cisner affirmeth, retained still the same manners after they were settled in Europe, as they had formerly done in Asia. (Speed's Chronicles, 1660).

Mr. Wilson, who speaks of Speed as "one of the most learned, earnest, honest, and successful of our English antiquaries, and quotes the preceding exertions, with some others, from him, observes thereupon, that it is curious, Speed, amidst all his gropings, should have entirely overlooked the real and very simple origin of the name "Saxon," upon which origin of the name he thus writes. "There was a name which it might be expected they (Israel) would retain, for by it the promised seed of Abraham were to be called; and that is the name of his son Isaac. By this name the house of Israel was being called a little time before their captivity: "Now therefore hear thou the word of the Lord; thou sayest, Prophesy not against Israel, and drop not thy word against the house of Isaac." (Amos. vii. 16.) The name of Isaac means 'he shall laugh.' Sarah said at his birth, the Lord hath made me to laugh, so that all people shall laugh with me. But the name may also be taken in an evil sense; and in this it seems to have been deserved by the Ephraimites, when bitter weeping was about to be their portion. They laughed to scorn, and mocked the messengers which King Hezekiah sent to call them to repentance. Of two kinds of laughter the Jewish remnant were warned to beware: 'Now, therefore, be ye not mockers' (Isa. xxvii. 22.) It is as rejoicing in God's salvation, and as making known that joy to others, that we were to bear the name of Isaac. The first syllable of that name; it may be noticed, is no original part of the Hebrew word 'to laugh,' and would naturally be dropped, when compounded with the word 'son,' or 'sen,' meaning a repetition or copy of his father. 'Isaac's son,' naturally becomes Isaac-son or Saxon." (Watchmen of Ephraim, vol. ii. p. 121.)

Professor Piazzi Smyth, the Astronomer Royal for Scotland, whose works, "Our Inheritance in the Great Pyramid" (1864), and "Life and work at the Great Pyramid in 1865" (1867), are spoken as monument of patient research; and are referred to as of scientific authority, thus writes in the third volume of the last named work.—"At present we all appreciate the name, Saxons, as applying to a majority of the inhabitants of Great Britain and the United States, with their roots among the Scandinavian, German, and Gothic populations of the Continent; but the Anglo-Saxons are no more the aborigines of these European than of the American countries, where they are now found. They came, indeed, confessedly, according to all history, to these regions from the eastward, within the last eighteen hundred years; and if we enquire of the ethnologist what all the Anglo-Saxon, Scandinavian, German, and Gothic nations are called in their science, we are told, 'Indo-Germanic; or that they all had an eastern and southern origin. This subject has been followed up more particularly by Mr. John Wilson, of Brighton, for the English-speaking races of the Anglo-Saxon, with some remarkable results, one of the first being, that, though in the dark ages, constituting a part of the Gothic immigrating hosts, and in so far Goths, (with whom we are accustomed to connect everything barbarous and savage) they, the Anglo-Saxon portion, and some others, too, of the Goths, were not savages, but had, on the contrary, the physiological testimony, in large, well-formed brains and fine hair, of a race long nurtured in superior intellectual and social culture; besides political proofs of the same, in the possession of very complete and wisely-devised systems of laws, with orderly manners and customs. That all Goths were necessarily barbarians, is an idea that has grown up from our first descriptions of them having been unfortunately written chiefly by their enemies, whom they were conquering, viz., the pampered and enervated sons of Rome, in her decline and decrepitude. To such luxurious debauchees, the simple and regularly-living Goths were, of course, mere so-called savages, and yet might be more highly appreciative of moral virtue. While, as for artistic feeling, and in architecture, where the Romans did little else than servilely follow the Greeks, the Gothic peoples produced an entirely new variety of the art, and so exceedingly exquisite, as to oblige all the present world to use the name of Gothic in connection with the beautiful, just as systematically and frequently as erroneous literary, and Roman-derived prejudices had hitherto made us inclined to appropriate it also to everything the very opposite of beautiful. What was the country, then, whence the Anglo-Saxons started on that occasion? This is the second point on which Mr. Wilson has reached some most noteworthy results, and by the method of language, applied in a very safe and thoroughly inductive manner; for he distinguishes the traces of the original foundation of a language, from the often very numerous facts, and sometimes preponderating mass of substance, introduced into it at subsequent times. The chief importation of this nature which Mr. Wilson finds in the Anglo-Saxon, is from the Persian or Median. In this conclusion he was, indeed, preceded, as he acknowledges, by Sharon Turner, and many other writers on the Germanic and Scandinavian languages and peoples. In so far, indeed, there is nothing contradictory, either to ancient tradition or modern science, in deriving the Anglo-Saxons, with some portion of Selavonians, Scandinavians, and Germans, from Persia, or Media, as one station, merely, of a more extensive journey, by either the southern or northern route from thence. In fact, the generally acknowledged theory of the German philologists, given expression to in Burzen's third volume of 'Egypt's Place in Universal History' (p. 459), brings the modern Germans from still further east than Persia or Media, or from what he terms the 'primæval land,' Iran proper, Airyana Vaego, or the high land about the sources of the Oxus and Jaxartes, between the 40th and 37th degrees of north latitude, and the 86th and 90th of east longitude, or in Eastern Central Asia; that, says he, was the aboriginal Iran proper, inhabited by the fathers of the Aryans (and, consequently our own, as we speak the same language.)" Having observed that Mr. Wilson has shown satisfactory indications, after eliminating the Persian and Median imported additions into the Anglo-Saxon language, that there is a small portion of Egyptian or Coptic, similarly imported, but that the structure and foundation of the language is Hebraic; in fact, that the basis of the English language may, to a remarkable extent, be found in the Hebrew, many of our most common words and names of familiar objects being almost pure Hebrew—the Hebrew of the Ephraimite or Israelite, and not of the Jewish portion of the tribes, Professor Smyth proceeds to say, "This is, without doubt, a very capital point; because as clearly as linguistic connections can make them so, and agreeably with all the principles of language, applied to ethnological science, and which, indeed, seldom has such broad and ample foundations to work upon in its ordinary discussions and conclusions—the Anglo-Saxons are shown to be compounded of the very Israelite people of old; in fact they are the representatives of those Israelites, or may be said to be themselves of Israelite descent, and, therefore heirs of whatever portions of Hebraism were retained when the more particular religious rites of Mosaicism were abolished and superceded, under king Jeroboam." ("Life and Work at the Great Pyramid," vol. 3, p. 581., &c.)

I must not trespass farther on your space. It would be gratifying to many of those who take a deep interest in the subject upon which Professor Rawlinson had now employed his pen, to hear that he had reconsidered the subject; and in the light of such promises as those of Jeremiah had discerned, not the extinction, but the preservation of Israel—"He that scattereth Israel will gather him and keep him as a shepherd doth his flock." "I will sow the house of Israel and the House of Judah with the seed of man, and with the seed of beast. And it shall come to pass that like as I have watched over them, to pluck up and to break down, and to throw down, and to destroy, and to afflict, so will I watch over them to build and to plant, saith the Lord." (Jer. xxxi.)

Yours fraternally

WILLIAM CARPENTER.

[I am sorry to be obliged to append a long list of corrections, required in my letter which was printed in the last Freemason (August 24th), without which certain passages in that letter will remain unintelligible, and others more or less difficult to understand.]

In page 520, col. 1, line 3 of the letter, for by read in—line 4, for India read Media—in par. 2, line 1, for the effect read this effect—in line 9, for India read Media—in par. 4, line 1, for is read as—in col. 2, line 8, after "effect" insert and—line 13, for but read that—line 14, for not read none—line 20, for fine read pure—line 22, for turned read carried—line 23, for India read Media—line 13, for how read now—line 22, for weapon read weaken—in par. 3, line 1, for argues read argues—in col. 3, par. 2, line 7, enclose the words, "The Ten Tribes" in inverted commas—line 28, for aphad read ephod—line 44, for rites read cities—line 60, for India read Media—in page 521, col. 1, line 17, 18, for Mashanecres read Kashmircres—line 19, for Kards read Kurds—line 20, for "quoting on with," read quoting Dr. Kitto—line 24, for disappear read disappeared—in par. 3, line 18, take away the comma, after found—line 28, for of read or—line 32, for thought read though—line 44, for with read unto; and in the next line for innermost read utmost—in col. 2, line 1, for land read Lord.

In page 520, col. 3, all the lines after 13 to the end of the par. should be struck out, and the following take their place—Israelite town; It was a town in the tribe of Benjamin, part of the Kingdom of Judah. Nebo was a city of Judah, believed by Eusebius and Jerome to be the same as Nabau, about eight miles south of Hebron. Bethel, though once an Israelite city, was taken by Abijah, King of Judah (2 Chron. xiii. 19); and I do not find that it was ever retaken by Israel. In the time of Asa, that and other towns of Ephraim were still in the possession of Judah (Ch. xv. 8), as they were at a still later period (Ch. xix. 4). In fact, at the time spoken of by Professor Rawlinson, Bethel was not an Israelite city, but a city of Judah.

In the first letter, in Freemason (Aug. 3rd), the following errata occur:—p. 471, col. 1, line 30 from the bottom, for and, after Tiglath-Pileser, read or by—line 3 from the bottom, for on Sargon read or Sargon—col. 2, line 5, for Korsaban read Korsabad.]

PROHIBITION OF MASONIC PROCESSIONS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir and Brother,—

I met a brother from Ireland a few days ago, who seems to be well posted in Masonic matters, who told me, that previous to the 24th of June last, a circular was issued by the Grand Lodge of Ireland prohibiting Masonic processions on that day. I thought that through your columns and other sources of information I have, that if anything of that kind had occurred I should have known it. I therefore doubted his statement.

Could you, Sir, or any of your numerous readers enlighten me?

Scotland, 19th Aug., 1872. ENQUIRER.

THE BALLOT FOR W. MASTER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your correspondent, "A Masonic Student," must forgive me if I frankly tell him that I have not gathered very much "light" from his communication. He thinks I must be a very young mason, or I should not have suggested any amendment to the present very perfect system of electing a W.M. Although it really has nothing to do with the point at issue, I may relieve "A Masonic Student's" doubts by informing him that my G.L. certificate is dated several years ago, and that I have always given as much attention and study to Masonic matters as my professional avocations would allow. Your correspondent fails to seize the point which I presented for solution, viz.:—that under the present system of voting a brother might be placed in the chair without having the majority of the votes present. In order to make more evident my meaning, I will suppose a lodge of twenty members met to elect a W.M. There shall be five brethren eligible for the office, whom we will call respectively A, B, C, D, and E. Each brother of the twenty present recording his vote for his favourite candidate, the result shall be as follows:—A, 5 votes; B, 4 votes; C, 4 votes; D, 4 votes; E, 3 votes. Thus A, having five votes will be elected W.M.; although, if his name were placed singly before the lodge he might not obtain another vote beyond the five already given in his favour.

Your other correspondent, our learned brother W. J. Hughan, does not think my question so very frivolous, and I thank him for the attention which he has devoted to it. The expression "opposing candidates" in my letter, to which he justly objects, was merely a slip of the pen and not intended to convey the meaning that there should be any "seeking for the office" on the part of those brethren eligible for election. I deprecate as strongly as our talented brother does, any unseemly opposition, and especially the bickerings and complaints that one unfortunately sometimes hears after an election of W.M. It is precisely for this reason that I think some authoritative rule required.

The mode of election proposed by Bro. W. J. Hughan, is in principle the same as that suggested by myself last week; but to the working details of his plan there appears one objection. The preparation of the lists of eligible candidates (of which a considerable number might be required if the voting were even) would entail either trouble in writing or expense in printing. And this trouble or expense, be it remembered, must be repeated every year. I see no reason why, instead of putting a X against the name in list, the voter should not himself write the name of the brother for whom he votes on a slip of paper, fold it and deposit it in the ballot box. The W. M. could count the number of slips to see that they corresponded with the number of voters. I suggest then that the bye-law should stand somewhat as follows:—

ELECTION OF W. MASTER.—"The Secretary having read out the names of all the brethren eligible for the office of Master, every member shall write the name of the brother for whom he intends to vote on a slip of paper, which he shall place, folded, in the Ballot Box. The brother having the least number of votes shall be withdrawn; the Secretary shall again read out the remaining names, and the voting shall proceed as before, and shall be repeated in like manner until some brother obtains a majority of the votes of the members present, when he shall be declared duly elected by the presiding officer."

It is, I believe, important that there should be uniformity of working in this, as in all other matters, within our lodges, and I shall be glad to elicit the judgment of some of our leaders and rulers.

I am, Dear Sir,

Fraternally yours,

WILLIAM DATE.

Crewkerne, August, 26th, 1872.

GIBRALTAR.

LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP.—The regular meeting of this Lodge took place on the 7th inst., a goodly muster of the brethren had gathered together within the walls of the Masonic Hall, as it had transpired that although no business appeared on the summonses, the W.M. would in all probability seize this opportunity of presenting the immediate Past Master with the Testimonial which had been voted to him some months back and which it was generally known had arrived out from England by the last mail. Punctually at 9 p.m. the W.M. Bro. Carver opened the lodge, being supported by Past Masters Balfour Cockburn, Salmond, Dautez, Henry and Mc Loughlin, Bro. Price, S.W. Bro. Marshall J.W. &c. After the usual preliminaries, the W.M. stated that as no business had presented itself, he considered this a most favourable occasion to carry out, what was at all times, but more especially in this instance, a most interesting and gratifying ceremony, and with a few graceful and appropriate words he proceeded to present Past Master Bro. Balfour Cockburn, with a singularly chaste and handsome silver claret jug on which was engraved a long and highly complimentary inscription. Bro. Balfour Cockburn returned his acknowledgements for this very magnificent gift in suitable and expressive terms, adding that the many pleasant and instructive hours he had spent in the Lodge of Friendship had made too deep and too lasting an impression in his heart, to need any reminder such as the beautiful cup now before him, nevertheless he accepted it with the highest personal gratification and he would be even proud of exhibiting it, and perhaps it might prove an incentive to lukewarm brethren to devote their energies to the service of the Craft, confident that honest industry and devoted service, must always bring with it some pleasing and tangible proof of general approbation.

Prior to closing, the names of Captain Collings and Lieutenant Preston, Royal Engineers, were announced as candidates for initiation at the next regular meeting. The Lodge was then closed according to ancient custom and the brethren retired to refreshment.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE HON F. WALPOLE, D.P.G.M., FOR NORFOLK.—Early on Tuesday morning, a yacht riding at anchor in Holkham Bay, on the Norfolk coast, was seen to be making signals of distress. A heavy gale, which had lasted all night, was blowing from the North, and the sea was running tremendously high. The Penny Readings Lifeboat, Eliza Adams, which belongs to the National Lifeboat Institution, and is stationed at Wells, was immediately manned and rowed down to the Bar, where she was joined by a steamer, and proceeded towards the yacht, which proved to be the Stella. The lifeboat with difficulty succeeded in getting alongside, and saved those on board, consisting of Bro. the Hon. Frederick Walpole, M.P. for North Norfolk, and his young son, two friends, and four of the crew

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL.

POSTPONEMENT OF CONSECRATION.—In consequence of the death of Sir T. G. Fermor Hesketh, late P.G.M., W.L., the Consecration of the West Lancashire Lodge, No. 1403, has been postponed from the 4th Sept., till the 30th, when it will take place at the Commercial Hotel, Omskirk.

We have much pleasure in informing our numerous readers and subscribers that the Stability Lodge of Instruction, will re-open for the session 1872-73, under the preceptorship of Bro. Henry Muggeridge, on Friday, the 6th of September, from 6 to 8 o'clock, at the Guildhall Tavern, No. 33, Gresham Street, City.

PRUSSIAN FREEMASONRY AND THE JEWS.—At the Quarterly Communication to the Grand Lodge of England, which will be held on the 4th proximo at Freemasons' Hall, the Most Worshipful Grand Master will inform the brethren that a letter has been received from the representative of the Grand Lodge of England at the Grand Royal York Lodge of Friendship at Berlin, announcing that upon a revision of the laws of that Great Body it has resolved in future to initiate Jews and men of all religious denominations.

The Friends of Bro. W. Foster White, P.S.D., will be glad to be informed that he is recovering from his severe illness.

Bro. Alderman and Sheriff Truscott has resigned his seat as a director of the Freemasons' Tavern Company; and Mr. William Lawley has been unanimously elected in his stead.

A complimentary dinner was given at the Star and Garter, Richmond, on Thursday evening, under the presidency of Sheriff Sir John Bennett. There were present about sixty ladies and gentlemen, and during the evening Bro. Beard was presented with a time-piece, a candelabra, and a vase, which were accompanied with a handsome folio, in which were inscribed words of eulogy in favour of the recipient.

PORTUGAL.

The grand lodge met in solemn form on the 5th July, to celebrate the happy event of the union of the two Masonic bodies at Brazil, the greatest joy and Taternity reigned throughout the festive meeting. Portuguese Freemasonry is so closely alluded to that of Brazil, as to make it impossible not to rejoice of the act union which will give the greatest lustre to the United Grand Orient of Brazil. We congratulate our brethren of the other side of the water on this glorious event, and they have our sincere wishes for prosperity to the new Masonic body sprung by the union of the Grand Orient of Lavradio, and of the Benedictins at Rio de Janeiro.—Boletim.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

Obituary.

BRO. WILLIAM BILLINGTON.

Bro. Wm. Billington was initiated in Wellington Lodge, No. 548, on January 12th, 1864, and continued a subscriber to it until October 11th, of same year. He became a joining member of the Royal Oak Lodge, 871, on July 25th, 1866, and continued a subscriber until his death, which melancholy event took place on Wednesday, 21st inst., the immediate cause being that insidious and fatal disease, consumption. During his membership of the Royal Oak Lodge he greatly distinguished himself by the prominent part he took in advocating the Masonic Charities. He was a Past Steward and Life Governor of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Girls. He served some of the minor offices in the Lodge. He was a Mark Master Mason, having been advanced in the Southwark Lodge of Mark Masters No. 22. It is sad to add that his wife died the following Saturday, 24th inst., and we hear (but hope it is not true) one of his children have since died. From a circular we we have seen it appears the members of the Royal Oak Lodge are invited to attend his funeral, which, with that of his wife, will take place on next Saturday, 31st inst., at Brockley cemetery, at half-past three. He has, to use a homely phrase, lived respected, and died regretted, and that too, by a large family of sorrowing children.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, September 6, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, AUG. 31.

Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, SEPT. 2.

Lodge 144, St. Luke's, Masons' Hall, Basinghall-street.
" 1319, Asaph, Freemasons' Hall.
Mark Lodge 1, St. Mark's, Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street.
" 139, Panmure, Balham Hotel, Balham.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gatheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 3.

Colonial Board at 3 o'clock.
Lodge 167, St. John's, Holly Bush Tavern, Hampstead.
" 1257, Grosvenor, Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi.
" 1259, Duke of Edinburgh, New Globe Tavern, Bow-road.
" 1261, Golden Rule, Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue.
" 1298, Royal Standard, Marquess Tavern, Canonbury, Chap. 169, Temperance, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tavern, Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cotterbone, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.

Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 4.

Quarterly Communication Grand Lodge at 6 for 7 p.m.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 5.

Lodge 554, Yarborough, Green Dragon, Stepney.
" 822, Victoria Rifles, Freemasons' Hall.
" 1155, Excelsior, Sydney Arms, Lewisham-road.
" 1351, St. Clement Danes, 265, Strand.
" 1360, Royal Arthurs, Duke of Edinburgh Hotel, Wimbeldon.
Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 6.

Lodge 1275, Star, Marquis of Granby, New Cross Road
Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

What better Theme than Masonry?"

MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.
Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.
George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
Post-free, 25 stamps.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

The Orders of the Temple and Hospital.....	543
Laying the Foundation Stone of a Masonic Hall at Liskeard.....	545
Consecration of the Southwell Lodge, No. 1405.....	546
Presentation to Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C.	546
CORRESPONDENCE:—
■ Masons at Public Meetings.....	547
The Ballot for W.M.	547
Prohibition of Masonic Processions.....	547
Provincial Grand Officers.....	547
Freemasons' Calendars, 1814—1820.....	547
OBITUARY:—
Bro George Barnby.....	547
Masonic Tidings.....	538
United Grand Lodge.....	548
CRAFT MASONRY:—
Provincial	549
Scotland.....	549
District Grand Lodge of Bengal.....	550
South Africa.....	551
ROYAL ARCH:—
Scotland.....	554
MARK MASONRY:—
Provincial.....	551
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR:—
Scotland.....	557
Reviews.....	552
Was Shakspeare a Freemason?.....	553
Ancient Templar's Song.....	554
Masonic Meetings for next week.....	554
Advertisements.....	541, 542, 555, 556

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Freres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMRA HOLMES, 31°.

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 531.)

Dugdale, in his "Monasticon," gives a copy of one of the deeds of accusation against the Knights Templar, in which they are charged with the foulest crimes, as before related. He has elsewhere, in his "History of Warwickshire,"* referred to another manuscript, from the contents of which it would appear that among other things they were charged with having treacherously gone over to the side of the infidels during an engagement, and completely routed and destroyed the Christian army to which they had previously been attached.

Whatever may have been the crimes actually committed by the Templars, "It was as far from charity as sound logic," says old Fuller, "from the induction of some particular delinquents to infer the guiltiness of the whole body." It must be evident that the sovereigns of Europe were influenced by interested motives in wishing the suppression of the Order, and the conduct of Edward II. was highly consurable, as he carried into execution the decrees of the Pope, although secretly acknowledging his firm belief of the innocency of the Templars of many of the charges made against them.

There were two strong reasons why Philip le Bel sought the destruction of the Templars. They had sided with the Pope, Boniface,† his great enemy and the predecessor of his great tool Clement; and they were rich whilst he was always needy—or as the penny-a-liners would say, a victim to impecuniosity. In the "Retrospective Review," quoted by Wallen, there are the following judicious remarks upon the subject of the suppression of the Order. They will be found in a review of a work entitled Nicolai Gutleri Historia Templaliorum, (Amstelodam, Svo., 1703).

* Vol. ii.

†The following was the respectful mode in which one of her most Christian sons addressed the head of the Holy Catholic Church:—"Philip by the grace of God, &c., to Boniface, the pretended Pope, little greeting or none.

Be it known to your Supreme Foolship, &c.' (Sicut maxima tua fatuitas, Raynouard vii.)

"The quarrel of the French King with the sovereign Pontiff, Boniface VIII, is the first circumstance of his reign which seems in any degree to elucidate this question. The imperious obstinacy, and the unappeasable rancour of the French monarch gave this contest a character of personal animosity which raised in the mind of Philip an insuperable feeling of hatred towards all those who had rendered any assistance to his great enemy. The Templars, it seems, had been guilty of this offence.* Although possessed of considerable revenues, Philip was always poor, and to supply his wants he resorted to means alike disgraceful to himself, and injurious to his subjects. But to accomplish the destruction of a noble and gallant order, whose riches and influence were alike to be dreaded, and who reckoned among their numbers some of the highest and proudest of the land, was a task which required the most subtle contrivance. The golden reward, however, was sufficient to tempt the avarice of Philip, and his unfeeling and obstinate temper was a guarantee for his success. It is true that by the decrees of the council of Vienne, the estates of the Templars were all conferred on the Order of St. John of Jerusalem; but it was nearly ten years before the French King could be prevailed upon entirely to yield them up. It required the utmost exertion of the joint influence of the Pope and Philip to induce Edward II. of England to unite in this foul conspiracy. Strongly convinced of the innocence of the accused, he applied to the Pope in their behalf. He even addressed letters to several of the sovereigns of Europe, beseeching them not to give ear to the injurious aspersion which had been cast on the characters of this faithful and valiant soldiery. But the malignity of Philip would not be thus disappointed. He despatched ambassadors to the court of England, and his son-in-law, yielding at last to his repeated instances, consented to investigate the conduct of the Order.

The English Templars were cast into prison; but the atrocities which marked the proceedings against the Order in France were not committed here, though the Pope, in the plenitude of his fatherly affection, mildly censured the English monarch for having forbidden the use of the torture.

The following extract from the Popular Cyclopædia will prove of interest. Under the head of Templars, the writer says:—

"From the class of the knights, who were required to be of approved nobility, and who were the actual lords of the possessions of the Order, the officers were chosen by the assembled chapters, viz. —Marshals and Bannerets, as leaders in war; Drapiers, as inspectors over their ward-robes; Priors, as superiors of single preceptories or priories; abbots, commanders and Grand Priors, as rulers over provinces, (similar to the provincials of the Monastic orders), and the Grand Master as the chief of the whole order.

*Ventura Chron. Astense, c. xxvii t. xi, p. 192, cited by Sismondi, Rep. Ital. Vol vi. c. 26.

The latter had the rank of a prince, and considered himself equal to the sovereigns of Europe, since the Order, like the Jesuits in later times, by virtue of the papal charters, acknowledged the Pope alone as its protector, being independent of any other ecclesiastical or secular jurisdiction." The author of this article, in speaking of the suppression of the Order by Clement, which he endeavoured to justify by the horrible crimes and heresies of which the Order had been accused, says that historical records represent the the accusers as expelled Templars, who calumniated the Order at the instigation of its enemies. "The charge of apostacy from the Catholic faith could not be substantiated. The other allegations, such as that they worshipped the devil, practised sorcery, adored an idol called Baphomet, contemned the sacrament, neglected confession, and practised unnatural vices, were, according to the general opinion of historians down to the present day, malicious representations, or absurd calumnies. A gold box of relics which the Templars used to kiss according to the custom of the Catholics, was what gave origin to the story of Baphomet; and because in an age previous to the general reception of the doctrine of transubstantiation, they practised the ancient manner of celebrating the mass, (viz., without the elevation of the host,) this was called contempt of the sacrament; their confessing exclusively to their own members was the ground of the charge that they received absolution from their temporal superiors, and the friendship by which they were united, gave rise to the imputation of unnatural practices." The writer in the Popular Cyclopædia says also, that "In England, Spain, Portugal, Italy, and Germany, the Templars were arrested, but almost universally acquitted, and adds that at the council of Vienne, the Pope solemnly abolished the Order, not in the legal way, but by papal authority (per provisionis quam condemnationis oram)." It is also stated in the article quoted that the Templars maintained themselves longest in Germany, where they were treated with justice and mildness. At Störlitz some were found as late as 1319. Can the author mean 1519?

This writer also states that the members who were discharged entered the order of St. John, and this is no doubt true as to the majority, especially in Scotland. The very fact of their doing so proving their innocence of the gross crimes imputed to them, as a great Order like the Hospitallers would never have received them had they been guilty.

A writer in the "Encyclopædia Metropolitana," in an article on the Templars, quoted in Dr. Oliver's "Historical Landmarks," speaks thus of their connexion with the brethren of the mystic tie. "These Knights were much connected with the Masons, and are supposed to have been frequently initiated among the Syrian fraternity. On the dissolution of their Order in the fourteenth century, the Provincial Grand Master of Auvergne, Pierre D'Aumont, with two Commanders and five Knights, fled, disguised as Masons, to one of the Scottish isles, where they found the Grand Commander, Hampton Court, and other members of their Order; and they resolved to preserve the institution, if possible, although in secret, and adopted many of the forms of the Freemasons to conceal their real designs. They held a chapter on St. John's Day, 1313, when D'Aumont was chosen Grand Master, and in 1361, their seat was removed to Aberdeen, and by degrees the Order spread, under the veil of Freemasonry, over great part of the continent, though its rank and power were at an end."

Hypercritical brethren have objected to this writer's statement, because there was no such title as Provincial Grand Master, or Grand Commander at the time alluded to, and because the names of D'Aumont and Hampton Court cannot now be traced with accuracy.

But as a writer in the *Freemasons' Magazine very pertinently says, in reply to one of these captious critics,—“Much confusion existed at the time of the suppression of the Order with regard to titles. I am perfectly well aware that Grand Prior or Preceptor were those most in use; but I gather from my small reading on the subject, that Great Priors, Great Preceptors, or Provincial Masters, were synonymous terms; under these were Priors, Bailiffs, and under these Preceptors.” De Molay, in urging his objections to the union of the Templars and Hospitallers, admitted that one good result would probably follow, inasmuch as many Commanders might be suppressed, and some saving affected thereby. It would appear, therefore, that the writer in the “Encyclopædia Metropolitana” spoke erroneously of the Grand Prior of Auvergne as Grand Master.

Signor Rosetti also strongly asserts that the Knights Templar were a branch of the Freemasons.

It is only fair to state that at the time of the inquisition into the Order, amongst the Knights who were imprisoned in England were, according to Addison, Bro. Himbert Blanke, Knight Grand Preceptor of Auvergne. How he came to be imprisoned in England we do not know, and it is still not impossible that Pierre D'Aumont may have preceded or succeeded him in office, as Himbert Blanke was imprisoned for some years in England.

Addison elsewhere describes Bro. Himbert Blanke (page 250) as one of the veteran warriors who had fought to the last in defence of Palestine, had escaped the slaughter at Acre, and had accompanied the Grand Master from Cyprus to France, whence he crossed over to England, and was rewarded for his meritorious and memorable services in defence of the Christian faith with a dungeon in the Tower. Here, Addison says, Blanke was confined in the Tower with William de la More, the Master of the Temple, and Grand Preceptor of England, and in another part of the book (page 280), he says he was not confined in the Tower, but was confined in Newgate.

It may be that Bro. Blanke himself escaped, and that Pierre D'Aumont may have been the name of one of the companions of his flight.

* Vol. xvii., page 9.

At all events, he could better have escaped into Scotland from England than from France, and the story is not so improbable after all.

As to the difference of titles, Addison speaks in one place of the Grand Prior or Preceptor of Rome, and in another, of the Grand Preceptor of England.

I have read somewhere that there are traces of a Masonic lodge meeting in Aberdeen so far back, at least, as about the year 1500, and we know that some Scotch lodges claim to have existed hundreds of years before that.

Our learned and highly-esteemed Bro. Hughan, in his analysis of ancient and modern Masonry,* makes mention of a Charter granted by David I. to a lodge in Stirling in 1147, in which the following occurs:—“And that you mack, instruct, and teach the Masonry of St. John in all its pairs and secrets, and as ilk belted knights and cross-legged knights with armour, for the cause and keeping of our holy religion, and all times of meeting so there be no scurrility or banning among you in the lodge, and such offending shall forfeit and pay five pound Scotts, the one-half to the lodge, the other half to the altar of St. Mary's, to say mass for their souls.” Bro. Hughan thinks, however, that too much stress is laid on this Charter, and thinks that the term belted knights is used only as an illustration.

Addison says, † “The Grand Master of the Temple ranked in Europe as a Sovereign Prince, and had precedence of all ambassadors and peers in the general councils of the church. He was elected to his high office by the chapter of the kingdom of Jerusalem, which was composed of all the Knights of the East and of the West, ‡ who could manage to attend. The western nations or provinces of the Order were presided over by the Provincial Masters, otherwise Grand Priors, or Grand Preceptors, who were originally appointed by the Chief Master at Jerusalem, and were, in theory, mere trustees, or bare administrators of the revenues of the fraternity, accountable to the Treasurer-General at Jerusalem, and removeable at the pleasure of the Chief Master. The superior at the Temple at London is always styled Master of the Temple, and holds his chapters, and has his officers corresponding to those of the chief Master in Palestine. The latter, consequently, came to be denominated Magnus Magister, or Grand Master. The titles given, indeed, to the superiors of the different nations or provinces into which the Order of the Temple was divided, are numerous, and somewhat perplexing. In the east, these officers were known only in the first instance by the title of Prior, as Prior of England, Prior of France, Prior of Portugal, &c., and afterwards Preceptor of England, Preceptor of France; but in Europe they were called Grand Priors and Grand Preceptors, to distinguish them from the Sub-Priors and Sub-Preceptors, and also Masters of the Temple. The Prior and Preceptor of England, therefore, and the Grand Prior, Grand Preceptor, and Master of the Temple in England, were one and the same person. There were also at the new Temple at London, in imitation of the establishment at the chief house in Palestine, in addition to the Master, the Preceptor of the Temple, the Prior of London, the Treasurer, and the Guardian of the Church, who had three Chaplains under him called Readers. The Master at London had his General and Particular, or his ordinary and extraordinary chapters. The first were composed of the Grand Preceptors of Scotland and Ireland, and all the Provincial Priors and Preceptors of the three kingdoms, who were summoned once a year to deliberate on the state of the Holy Land, to forward succour, to give an account of their stewardship, and to frame new rules and regulations for the management of the temporalities.*

* Freemasons' Magazine, Vol. xviii., page 244.

† History of the Knights Templar, page 61.

‡ Where could Addison have got this phrase, and does it point in any way to the degree of Knights of the East and West, which is said to date from the Crusades?

The ordinary chapters were held at the different preceptories, which the Master of the Temple visited in succession. In these chapters new members were admitted into the Order; lands were bought, sold, and exchanged; and presentations were made by the Master to vacant benefices.

I have quoted a statement from the “Encyclopædia Metropolitana,” to the effect that the Knights Templar were supposed to have been initiated into the Masonic mysteries whilst in the east. Laurie, in his admirable “History of Freemasonry in Scotland,” † distinctly states that the principal reason for suppressing the Order was its connection with Freemasonry. “It was the discovery, indeed, of their being Freemasons,” he says, “of their assembling secretly, and performing ceremonies to which no stranger was admitted, that occasioned those calamities that befel them.”

He goes on to say, “it may be interesting to some readers, and necessary for the satisfaction of others, to show in what manner the Knights Templar became depositaries of the Masonic mysteries. We have already seen that almost all the secret associations of the ancients either flourished or originated in Syria and the adjacent countries. It was here that the Dionysian artists, the Essenes, and the Kassideans, arose.

From this country, also, came several members of the trading community of Masons, which appeared in Europe during the dark ages; and we are assured that, notwithstanding the unfavourable condition of that province, there exists, at this day, one of these Syriac fraternities on Mount Libanus. ‡ As the order of the Knights Templar, therefore, was originally formed in Syria, and existed there for a considerable time, it is no improbable supposition that they received their Masonic knowledge from the lodges in that quarter. But in this case we are fortunately not left to conjecture, as we are expressly informed by a foreign author, § who was well acquainted with the history and customs of Syria, that they were actually members of the Syriac fraternities. In my lecture, “Random Notes on Freemasonry,” I called attention to the fact that my learned and valued friend, Canon Tris-

* Concil. Mag. Brit., tom. 11, p. 335, 339, 340, 355, 356. Monast. Angl., p. 818.

† Page 43.

‡ “Authologia Hibernica” for April, 1794.

§ Adler de Drusis Montis Libani, Rome, 1786.

tram, in his interesting work, "The Great Sahara," had stated that he found Freemasonry existing amongst the Arabs; but that though their signs were almost identical with ours, the words were different. I wondered at this until I came across the accompanying extract the other day. To us who believe in the antiquity of our degrees, it is significant. I refer your readers to the Jewish Chronicle, June 14th, 1872. In an article entitled, "Is Darwinism Anti-Biblical," the following passage occurs:—

"The resemblance of the modern Arabic to Hebrew is so striking, that there can scarcely be a doubt that both are derived from the same parent language; yet the utmost confusion would result from an attempt to give to Hebrew words in the Bible the exact meaning now attached to the corresponding words—words absolutely identical in sound and etymology in modern Arabic."

Admitting that the Arabs of to-day possess our Freemasonry of the time of Solomon, we can readily understand that though they have handed down the signs as they received them, and as they were communicated to the Crusaders who joined the Syriac fraternities, yet, as the language has changed, the meaning of the words has changed also. This we know to be the case in our own language.

(To be continued.)

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A NEW MASONIC HALL AT LISKEARD.

The brethren of St. Martin's Lodge (510), Liskeard, who at present meet for the transaction of their business at the London Inn, in that town, some time since determined that they would erect at their own cost, aided by the subscriptions of brethren and friends from other places, a new Masonic Hall, and a piece of land suitable for the purpose having been obtained, the necessary arrangements were rapidly made, and recently the foundation stone of the new hall was laid by Bro. Reginald Rogers, D.P.G.M. of Cornwall, in the presence of a large number of Masonic brethren, and of hundreds of spectators. The work of construction has been entrusted to Bro. Thomas Lang, of Liskeard, and the stone-cutting to Mr. James Nicholls: the building will cost about £850, will consist of a large Masonic Hall, and offices, and is to be completed in about six months from the present time. It will be erected on a capital site on the Parade, almost immediately opposite the Hotel.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the brethren assembled at the London Inn, and headed by the band of the Liskeard Volunteers, they marched to the site, a distance of about a hundred yards only. Amongst those present were Bros. Lorenzo Metham, D. Prov. G.M. of Devon, and P.G. Deacon of England; Reginald Rogers, D. Prov. G.M. of Cornwall; Ross, P. Prov. G. Chaplain of Cornwall; Christopher Childs, P. Prov. G.S.W.; J. Ough, P. Prov. J.W.; Rich, P.M. 350, Prov. G.J.W.; E. Aitken Davies, Prov. G. Supt. of Works, Devon; Hele, Mus. Bac., J.W. 333, P. Prov. G.O.; G. Kerswill, P. Prov. G.J.W.; J. B. Kerswill, P.G.S.; J. Crossman, J.W. 970; G. Bate, S.W. 557; O. Colmer, 406, St. Austell; and the following members of St. Martin's Lodge:—Bros. R. A. Courtney, W.M.; White, S.W.; Gerry, J.W.; R. Coath, Treasurer; Botterell, S.D.; J. George, J.D.; Nancarrow, I.G.; Penwarden, Tyler; J. Skin, P.M.; W. Skin, P.M.; G. Welsh, P.M.; W. Richards, P.M.; R. Hooper, P.M.; R. Clogg, Beaglehole, Ham, and others.

Arriving at their destination, the brethren at once formed round the stone, and the interesting proceedings were commenced by a prayer from P.P.G.C. Ross. The stone was then lowered into its place, corn, wine, and oil, having been thrown upon it by one of the officiating brethren—as a symbol of prosperity and abundance. Following this came the usual brief address, which was read by the D.P.G.M., who, with a small silver trowel, had already passed it slightly over the mortar, and declared the stone to be properly adjusted by plumb, level, and square, which were delivered in succession by the officers to whom they belonged, and the address concluded, the architect placed himself in front of the D.P.G.M., "who whispered something which all Masons know," and thereupon the architect produced the plan of the building. This was duly exhibited and examined, and various formal questions were then put to, and answered by the W.M. of St. Martin's Lodge, relative to the object and purposes of the new Masonic Hall. One or two other formalities were gone through, after which the D.P.G.M. of Devon read from an official book some remarks on the custom of putting corn, wine, and oil, on the foundation stone, and having performed this task.

Bro. Metham delivered the following oration:—Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren,—It gives me great pleasure to be present on this auspicious occasion, in compliance with the invitation of the brethren of St. Martin's Lodge, and I esteem it a compliment to the Province of Devon to be so invited. They are your brethren, neighbours, and friends, and therefore, equally with myself, take an interest in whatever interests you. And so with the Grand Lodge itself, as a very humble member, I can assure you that nothing that concerns the well-being of the Craft is indifferent to them. For they must consider it a favourable omen that the members of a Lodge are so impressed with the importance of Freemasonry that they come forward, and by their individual efforts, erect in its honour a suitable temple, and notably when they do so to clear themselves from the imputation that they are actuated by convivial rather than by purely Masonic feeling. To do this is a proof that brethren are prepared to make a sacrifice not only of time and money, but of old association. But, Right Worshipful Sir, before proceeding further, let me take this opportunity of conveying to your Province, through you, an expression of sincere condolence from your brethren of Devonshire on the occasion of your late great—I was going to add, irreparable loss. Your P.G. Master, Bro. Smith, was our frequent visitor, and was well known to many of us individually. He was in my estimation, a good specimen of the true Englishman, for no man had a greater horror of wrong, or a stronger determination to resist it. He used the talents which the Great Architect of the Universe had given him, of time, money, and intellect, for the good of his fellow creatures. He converted the physical waste into a productive and beautiful garden, and the moral waste, created by over-crowded dwellings, filth, and ignorance, which was rapidly deteriorating the population of the Scilly Islands into a race only to be equalled in degradation, physical and moral, by the Swiss Cretins; he converted, by firmness and sound legislation, into an equally productive garden of cleanliness, decency, manliness, and intelligence. He was far-seeing, for he was the first in all England to apply the principle of compulsory education to his tenants, and the consequence is that nowhere is to be found a more intelligent, thriving, and contented race of people than that which now inhabits the Scilly Islands. It may gratify you to inform you that at our P.G. meeting on Thursday last a unanimous resolution of condolence with your Province on their great loss was cordially carried. One of your own Grand Officers was present, and will tell you how sincerely this was expressed. Returning to the subject of our meeting to-day, I would venture to beg my brethren of St. Martin's Lodge to consider well the importance of the task they have undertaken. Better would it be for them to turn back, although they have put their hands to the plough so far, than to persevere in a light or unbecoming spirit. I entreat them to reflect that a Temple, however gorgeous, is in itself no proof of genuine Masonry; it is but the ark in which Masonry is to be enshrined. I entreat them to remember that the solemnity of our most sublime ceremonies is only of value, so far as the moral principles they inculcate are practised within and without the lodge. I entreat them always to keep before their eyes and impressed in their deepest memory that "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth," cordially adopted and faithfully applied, are the brightest and most fitting jewels and most enduring furniture of a Freemason's lodge. Again, I entreat the brethren of St. Martin's Lodge to reflect that by the ceremony of to-day, by coming as it were out of the shade into the broad light of day, they have challenged the regard of all their fellow townsmen, and that they must be prepared to know that every word and action will be more strictly scrutinised than when they remained in comparative obscurity. And what steps ought to be taken to meet this most justifiable and wholesome examination? If this temple be indeed erected to true Masonry, you, brethren, of St. Martin's Lodge, must take the greatest care that none are permitted to enter its portals but men who can carry themselves erect among their fellows, and who are able to prove that they have done no dishonourable action which would disentitle them to take their place among "just and upright men." You must take care that you admit none whose domestic conduct will not bear the strictest scrutiny, whose life is not temperate, and whose disposition is not averse to quarrel; for one litigious spirit would spoil the harmony which should at all times be the leading characteristic of a Freemason's lodge. Make sure that no candidate seeks initiation without sufficient thought or consideration, for the presence of such induces a listless indifferent tone in the lodge at those moments when it is most desirable that an attentive, earnest interest should pervade the members. Rigidly exclude every one who appears, after due enquiry, to be seeking admission for the purpose of retrieving a ruined fortune; such men have for years been the great bane of Masonry. Nor is it right that any, on whom even undeserved misfortune has fallen, so that they cannot pay their just debts, should continue in active communion with the Order. Masonry is a luxury which all who enjoy should be able to pay for with their own means, leaving something which can be spared for the necessities of others, without doing injury to themselves or their connections. He who cannot satisfy the just demands of his creditors should not be allowed to spend either time or money in the lodge, or on Masonic objects, both time and money are due to his creditors, are needed by his family, and should be diligently applied to retrieving his embarrassed affairs. But when that end is accomplished, and to which all true Masons should lend their best aid, then might the brother take his old accustomed place, welcomed with all the respect due to the integrity and perseverance which had waged a successful battle with misfortune. One word more, brethren, and I have finished. Let this foundation stone be to you as an altar, around which to renew your mutual pledge, with a solemn resolution to observe it under all circumstances, change, temptation, and trial, and to practise charity, that great watchword of our order. In every relation of life towards each other, towards your relatives, towards your friends and neighbours, and towards strangers of every language, creed, and colour, practice always charity; not only the charity of alms-giving, enjoined on us, as that is by our obligation, and blessed by the command and practice of the Great Architect of the Universe himself, but that more precious charity which thinketh no evil and speaketh no evil. Do this, and not only shall the world see how dearly Masons love each other and their fellow man, but you will indeed be living that true Masonic life which is but darkly shadowed forth by the emblems, secrets, working tools, lectures, and temples of our Order, beautiful as they are; and which are as nothing when compared with the bright warm reality of Masonry fulfilled—(applause).

This concluded the ceremony at the stone, and the brethren then returned to the London Inn, where a substantial dinner was provided for them. Various toasts were proposed, and a pleasant evening was spent.

CONSECRATION OF THE SOUTHWELL LODGE, No. 1405.

This lodge, to be held at the Scaracen's Head Inn, Southwell, was inaugurated by consecration on Thursday, the 18th inst. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. Evelyn Hardolph Harcourt Vernon, Prov. G. Chaplain; John Charles Nixon, Prov. G.S.W.; Samuel Richard Parr Shilton, Prov. G.J.W.; Frederick William Parsons, Prov. G.D.C.; John Comyn, P.Prov. G.S.W.; Henry Alfred Attenborough, P.Prov. G.S.B.; Thomas William Robinson, P.Prov. G.S.B.; Matthew Vowles, P.Prov.G.P.; Richard Fitzhugh, Prov. G.P.; James Turpin, Prov. G.O.; Charles George Wragg, W.M., 411; Charles Huthwaite, 411, 402; Joseph Thompson, 411; John Taylor, 47; William Michael Rook, 47; William Henry Gee, 47; John Cumming Bauwell, 47; John Samuel Dobson, 47; John Varley, 47; John Wartnaby, 47; Henry Glover, 47; Edward Tinley, 1085.

The brethren having entered and proceeded in procession three times round, Bro. J. C. Nixon, the Consecrating Officer appointed by the Provincial Grand Master) took the chair, and having appointed his officers pro tem., he opened the same in ancient form.

Brother S. R. P. Shilton then informed him that the brethren then present desired to be formed in a new lodge, and that a petition had been duly presented, which he proceeded to read, and which the W. Grand Master had approved, and granted a warrant in consequence of it, which he now presented.

The warrant having been read, and been approved, and declared valid and constitutional,

Bro. Nixon then took the warrant in his hand, and requested the brethren to approve or disapprove the officers nominated therein, which was unanimously approved.

The ceremony of consecration then proceeded, all the implements of masonry being covered with white, and the brethren kneeling, the Prov. G. Chaplain gave the preparatory prayer, and anthem, "Hail, Universal Lord." The lodge tools were then examined, and were found complete. Incense was then scattered over the lodge, and the grand honours given.

The usual procession then took place, the Masters and Wardens carrying the vessels of corn, wine, and oil; these elements of consecration were then sprinkled upon the lodge in ancient form.

The Provincial Grand Chaplain then gave the prayer of consecration, and the lodge was duly dedicated according to ancient form.

The lodge was then formed, and opened according to ancient custom by Bro. J. C. Nixon. The lodge was raised to the Fellow Craft degree, and afterwards to the third degree. All the brethren below the rank of Installed Master having retired, a board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. S. R. P. Shilton was presented at the pedestal as the Master designated in the warrant to be Installed Master of this new lodge, Bro. Nixon, remarking that Bro. Shilton was P.M. of several lodges, duly installed him in the chair. The board of Installed Masters was then closed by the newly installed Master. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and the W.M. saluted by Master Masons. The W.M. then appointed his officers. The lodge was then lowered to second degree, and the W.M. saluted by Fellow Crafts. The lodge was lowered to the first degree, and the W.M. saluted by Masons in that degree. The W. Master proposed six joining members, and nine for initiation, which were seconded by the various brethren present.

The lodge was then closed in ancient form with solemn prayer.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doses of the most powerful medicine."
JAMES EPPS & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, London.

PRESENTATION TO BRO, THE REV. C. J. MARTYN, P.G. CHAPLAIN, I.P.M., No. 224.

Masonry for a long number of years appears to have undergone many vicissitudes in the town and neighbourhood of Sudbury, and it is therefore with pleasure that we hail anything like its permanent resuscitation. We believe the first lodge was established in the town about 200 years ago, but there are no authenticated records of its transactions now in existence. However, there was a very good lodge established some years since in Clare, which was removed to the Rose and Crown Hotel, Sudbury, but owing to the lukewarmness of the members and a lack of proper "working," it in time ceased to exist, and was struck off the rolls by the Grand Lodge of England—no meetings having been held for years. Many years since there was also a lodge held at Long Melford,—there are still Freemasons alive who were initiated there; the books of this lodge were at one period in the possession of the late Mr. John Purr, and contained some magnificent specimens of calligraphy,—the writing being quite equal to copperplate, with the flourishes and initial letters, so much admired in those days. It is to be regretted that these books were not preserved. About five years since a few "good and true" Masons met, and after overcoming many obstacles, obtained "a warrant" to open the Stour Valley Lodge (No. 1224), the meetings being held at the private lodge room at Mr. Bridgman's, bookseller, Market Hill. This stood its ground for over two years, but misfortunes overtook the W.M. and the Immediate Past Master, so that there was every indication that the lodge would be broken up, but a few of the other officers stuck manfully to the work, and as it fortunately happened that the rector of Melford, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, was then acting as Grand Chaplain of England, and not only distinguished by his position, but well known for his love of Masonry, and active benevolence, it was determined to apply to him to assist the brethren in their distress. This he at once most courteously acceded to, and the members of the craft were once again in the height of prosperity, Bro. Martyn being elected to fill the Worshipful Master's chair, which he has done for two years in succession. It was not only as a brother Mason that the Rev. C. J. Martyn proved himself a true friend to the lodge, but by his kind and cheery demeanour, and his invariable courtesy he quickly endeared himself to every member. On his retirement from office, the brethren determined to show their appreciation of his valuable services, by presenting him with a Past Master's jewel. This, which was supplied by Mr. Joseph F. Hills, jeweller, the present W.M., is a most handsome specimen of the goldsmith's art. The Past Master's emblem, the square, is beautifully chased, with a pendant, on which is represented, masonically, the figure of the forty-seventh Problem of the first book of Euclid. The ribbon portion contains the name and number of the lodge in relief burnished, also the arms of the borough of Sudbury, heraldically emblazoned in colours, and finely enamelled. It also bears the following engraved inscription:—

"Presented to the Very Worshipful Brother, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain of England, by his brethren of the Stour Valley Lodge, No. 1224, August 16th, 1872."

Accompanying the jewel was the following address, written on vellum, most artistically illuminated in colours, by Bro. G. Washington Brownlow, an artist of some eminence, and a member of the lodge:—

"To the Very Worshipful Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C. of England, and Worshipful P.M. of Stour Valley Lodge, No. 1224.—Dear Sir and Brother—We, the undersigned officers and members of the Stour Valley Lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, avail ourselves of the occasion of your retirement from the chair at the close of this, your second year of office, and to hereby express to you our united and grateful acknowledgments, for the able and successful manner in which you have conducted the affairs of the lodge, and also for the kindness and good feeling to which those duties in your hands have been ever associated. On behalf of the lodge, we have first to express our regret at your necessary retirement, and to assure you that you take with you our highest respect and esteem. We thank you for your kindness in coming to the assistance of the lodge when it had so much need of your aid. We gratefully thank you for the very kind tokens of your regard expressed by the gifts you have so kindly presented to the lodge, for your prompt and unfailing attendance to its duties, no matter what obstacle and distance intervened, for the great interest and cheerful concurrence you ever evinced in all our proceedings, and finally we express our thanks for your continuous, energetic, and zealous support, to which the success and present prosperity of the Lodge is mainly to be attributed. Individually, we feel that we are deeply indebted to you for the many personal acts of kindness and courtesy extended to all and each of us whenever an opportunity was afforded you of so doing. Our regret at your leaving the chair is softened by the remembrance of your assurance that we shall neither lose your presence among us, nor your interest in the future welfare of our Lodge, but that we shall still be able on all occasions to avail ourselves of your ready aid and kindly council. As a slight token of our esteem and regard, and appreciation of your valuable services, we beg your acceptance of the accompanying jewel, which we hope you will many years live to wear, and that the great Architect of the Universe may long continue to preserve you and all yours in health, happiness, and prosperity, is the united and hearty wish of us all."

The lodge was held in the new lodge-room at the Literary Institution, where besides those who signed the address were present, Bro. Stoor, P.M.: Bro. Postle, I.G. 1008; Bro. Long and Bro. J. J. Harding, South Suffolk. The Lodge having been opened in the first degree by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C. of England and W.M.; the ballot was then taken for Bro. Lamb, 1008, as a joining member; who was unanimously elected. Lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. James was passed. The W.M. elect Bro. J. S. Hills, P.J.G.W. for Suffolk, was presented for installation, and having answered the usual questions was declared to be duly qualified for the office. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and the brethren below the degree of Past Master retired, and the Board of Installed Masters installed Bro. Hills in the Worshipful Master's chair, according to ancient form (the installing officer being Bro. Martyn), and he was duly proclaimed and saluted in the north, south, east, and west. The new W.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest his officer as follows:—Bro. J. T. Barker, S.W.; Bro. F. Wheeler, J.W.; Bro. G. H. Grimwood, S.D.; Bro. W. H. Smith, J.D.; Bro. H. Welham, Sec.; Bro. Charles Emerson, Treas.; Bro. A. O. Steed, Org.; Bro. R. Davis, I.G.; Bro. H. Sholl, Tyler. The address to W.M., Wardens, and Brethren was given most impressively by the installing Master. Before closing the Lodge the W.M. said, he has a most pleasing duty to perform in presenting the P.M. with a jewel and emblazoned address. Quoting from a Masonic writer, we are told that to be invested with jewel of a W.M., as an emblem of its office, is the highest honour that the lodge can confer upon any of its members. So it is in a certain sense: but as the authorities of the Grand Lodge permit the wearing of honorary jewels, in my estimation the highest honour that can be conferred, is not the investiture of an untried Worshipful Master with the insignia of his office, but is it to be found in the lodge decorating the breast of a worthy and Worshipful Past Master who can perform the important duties appertaining to the chair of the lodge with zeal, courtesy, integrity and assiduity, so as justly to have earned the respect and approbation of the brethren; one who spared neither time nor trouble in promoting the study of our ritual, and who, like some of the Past Masters of this lodge, including our I.P.M., have by their conduct and judgment, won the gratitude and brotherly affection of all who have worked under their rule; and whose qualifications, I think, cannot be more fully acknowledged than by decorating the breast of such a Past Master, with the

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, 1873.

Information wanted of the Names, Numbers, Place and Days of Meeting of all New Lodges and Chapters consecrated during the Years 1871 and 1872.

Secretaries and others will oblige by forwarding the above to the Publisher, 198, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

C. M.—We do not recognise masonic meetings held on Sundays.

Review of "Shakspeare a Freemason," by Bro. J. C. Parkinson, will appear next week.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early train.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance).

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The Quarterly Communication to Grand Lodge, was made on Wednesday evening last, in the Temple, Colonel FRANCIS BURDETT, Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex, on the throne. Grand Lodge was well attended, there being about 200 brethren present. Among the Grand Officers, were the Rev. Sir J. Warren Hayes, P.G.C.; Horace Lloyd, Q.C., President of the Board of General Purposes; A. J. McIntyre, G. Reg.; Thos. Fenn, P.A.G.D.C.; L. Evans, Past President of the Board of General Purposes; Rev. A. B. Fraser, G.C.; H. Browse, P.G.D.; Jabez Hogg, P.G.D.; Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, G.C.; E. S. Snell, Joshua Numm, P.G.D.; Conrad C. Damas, J. M. Clabon, C. A. Cottebrume, Geo. Cox, P.G.D.; J. Cooper Forster, P.G.D.; W. Pulteney Scott, P.G.D.; W. Raynham Stewart, P.G.D.; Major Creaton, P.G.D.; S. Leith Tomkins, P.G.D.; W. Ough, P.G.P.; T. A. Adams, P.G.P.; Jos. Smith, P.G.P.; Jas. Brett, P.G.P.; Hyde Clarke, P.G.D., and John Boyd, G.P. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, also attended.

After the Grand Lodge had been formally opened, and the minutes read, the Grand Master on the throne directed Grand Secretary to read the letter which had been received from the representative of this Grand Lodge at the Grand Royal York Lodge of Friendship at Berlin, announcing that upon revision of the laws of that Grand Body, it had resolved in future to initiate Jews and men of all religious denominations. This was accordingly done, and the letter was directed to be entered on the minutes.

The report of the Board of Benevolence for the last quarter, which was taken next, contained a recommendation for the following grant, viz.:—A Bro., (W. B.) of the Crystal Palace Lodge, No. 742, Sydenham, £150.

In moving the confirmation of this grant,

Bro. J. M. Clabon said that the grant appeared to be large, but under the circumstances, it was not too large. Having been in the chair when the grant was recommended, he had the fullest means of knowing that it was a deserved grant, and it was for that reason he moved its confirmation. The brother had been in Masonry twenty-seven years, and had been of great service to the Craft. If the brethren were now in Grand Chapter instead of Grand Lodge, he believed they would hear more of the merits of this brother than they did in this place. He desired to say one more word about the amount being excessive. The Board of Benevolence had now £6000 or £7000 a-year, and they were laying by out of that £1000. They had now £31,000 collected together as capital. Grand Lodge would remember that some years ago he asked them to advance the money to apprentice the children, but it was not thought desirable. That was so, but he thought the time would come when they would have to consider the application of that surplus. They were laying it by, but were not doing good with it. In the case of the old Mason before them, who had been twenty-seven years in the Craft, living for it, and doing all he could for it. £150, £200, or £300 drawn from the accumulated fund, would be doing good; and if so, he would say, for Heaven's sake, do it; it was better than giving dribblets of £5 to mere paupers. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. George Cox, P.G.D., seconded the motion.

The Grand Master on the throne said that, from all he had heard and all he knew, this was a most urgent case and one that really deserved their most earnest and sincere support. He felt confident they would not be doing wrong. As far as he was concerned, from what he knew of the case, and from what had fallen from Bro. Clabon, they would not be doing wrong in granting this sum on the first application.

The motion was carried unanimously, and with every demonstration of satisfaction.

The following is the report of the Board of General Purposes which came next in order:—

"The Board of General Purposes have to report that they have suspended Brother N——— H——— B———, of the Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017, for contumacy, under the following circumstances: on the 20th February last it was ordered by the Board that Brother B——— should be summoned to attend their next Meeting to shew cause why he signed the Grand Lodge Book and the Scrutineers' Sheet as W. Master, his election not having been confirmed, and he not being an Installed Master. Brother B——— was summoned accordingly, but did not comply with the summons, and thereupon a peremptory summons was issued. Brother B——— again failed to attend or to give any reason for non-compliance, and on the 16th July, upon due proof of the service of such peremptory summons, he was suspended by the Board as above-mentioned."

To the Report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last Meeting of the Finance Committee, held on the 16th August, 1872, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3,310: 17: 0, and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for Petty Cash £75.

The report having been agreed to be taken as read,

Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C., said, I have now to move that the report which has been taken as read, and which is before the brethren, may be received and entered on the minutes; and I call attention to the fact, that on a full consideration of the matter, we prefer that form of motion to that which was used at one time; "that the report be adopted and entered on the minutes, inasmuch as it appeared to some, at any rate right to suggest that by adopting the report, Grand Lodge was pledged to any recommendation or suggestion the report might contain. I do not say it was so, but by using this form of words we satisfy everybody. The report states matters within the province of the Board to deal with. If they confine themselves to that, they have a right to ask that it should be received for what it is worth. If they go beyond their proper province, then their report ought not to be received. On the present occasion, however I have a few words to add with respect to some what a singular matter. It is that Bro. B. on being summoned before the Board of General Purposes for a Masonic offence, thought fit to treat the summons of the Board with entire contempt, and did not present himself. Thereupon, a peremptory summons was issued, and again he omitted to attend. The Board then had nothing further to do but to suspend him at once, and to report him for contumacy. It is not a matter of choice; our duty is prescribed by the Book of Constitutions. Generally, however, when anything of this sort has happened, although the Board of General Purposes has no power at all to remit the contumacy when it has once taken place, and the brother has failed to attend at the proper time, the President of the Board in bringing the matter before the Grand Lodge, as it is his duty to do—he has no choice about it—has himself suggested that, probably, on due explanation by the brother and his making submission, there will be no objection to the suspension being remitted and the original matter inquired into; and I am sure it would have given me the most unfeigned pleasure if that course had been taken upon the present occasion. Now, what happened I will endeavour in a few words to put before Grand Lodge. Bro. B. not choosing to attend on the original summons, he was summoned several times afterwards, and we had good reason for believing the summonses reached his ears; but we could not say the summons was served with that formality and effect which would enable us to treat him as if it were a properly served peremptory summons, and to follow it up by suspension; and we adjourned it from time to time, till at last a peremptory summons was served in a complete manner, and we hoped he would free himself of the charge of contumacy. We suspended him as we gave him notice. At the next meeting he did attend, having previously written to the Grand Secretary. He was admitted before the Board of General Purposes, and I stated to him, I hope with all proper courtesy, that the matter had gone out of our hands, that we should have been extremely glad if we had the power to go into the matter without troubling Grand Lodge with it, but we had no choice, that the law bound us, and forbade us to do anything of the kind, that the matter must go before Grand Lodge; but that if he or any friend was present on the occasion, he could plead the cause. He left the room, as we thought satisfied, but he returned and said he should withdraw from Masonry. I will read his letter, which he wrote afterwards to Grand Secretary, if it is thought necessary, but I do not think it is necessary to do so; but I will read one paragraph:—"Inform the Grand Lodge I am very glad I treated the Board with contempt." As he is very glad he did so, I do not see why he should not be contented with that satisfaction, or why I or any of the members of the Board should try to set him right in a matter in which he has from first to last acted wrong. Therefore, I move that this report be received and entered on the minutes.

Col. Cole, P.G.D., was much obliged to the President for such a lucid and satisfactory statement. The form he had put the reception of the decision of the Board in, was exactly what it should be, and it would remove a great deal of misunderstanding, and cause a great deal of satisfaction. There had always been, and was on the last occasion, though he was not present, a strong feeling against a certain report made among certain people. If it had been distinctly understood that the mere reception of it in that way, was the expression of the Board of General Purposes he knew there were those who would not have entered on it. Many believed that it committed Grand Lodge to what was said in it, when many in Grand Lodge disagreed. He was glad this decision had been come to. There was one remark he would make about the minutes. It would be better for the satisfaction of all present that the Master's own order had been read out to them now. He supposed that the proceedings would have to be carried further than the mere reception. He would like to understand, because if this report was merely a recommendation, it would be necessary to carry it further.

Bro. M'Intyre, Q.C., G. Reg.: There is no further motion necessary, because by the Book of Constitutions the decision of the Board is final, unless appealed against; therefore, the brother being suspended for contumacy, the suspension remains.

Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C.: If we had been obliged to ask Grand Lodge to confirm the suspension themselves to suspend him, then there would have been a reason for our brother suggesting that it would be carried further. We had no course to follow but to suspend him, and our decision is final, unless appealed against.

Bro. F. Bennoch wished to ask a question with regard to this very important matter. He apprehended the decision merely related to the question before Grand Lodge. Now, in the event of any similar report coming from the Board of General Purposes, would the new idea be carried out in its entirety?

Bro. M'Intyre must rise to order. That had nothing to do with the question now before Grand Lodge. The question before Grand Lodge was, whether this report should be received and entered on the minutes, and there was no other question. If any brother objected, he could, but he was not to ask Grand Lodge to say what, at any time hereafter, might be the construction to be put upon any other motion.

Bro. Bennoch begged pardon. He understood that it had been the custom on previous occasions to move—(No, no). Then that being explained, he had nothing more to say.

The motion of Bro. Horace Lloyd was then put, and carried unanimously.

Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, said the next business on the paper was a motion by Brother MATTHEW COOKE, P.M. in No. 23, to add to section 6, "Of the Board of General Purposes," Book of Constitutions, page 109, small edition, after the words "by the authority of the President," "Every Meeting of the Board is open to the Craft, and any brother may, on the production of his Grand Lodge Certificate, attend, but shall take no part whatever in the matters under discussion or adjudication," but that unfortunately it so happened that the lodge of which Bro. Matthew Cooke was a member, had not made its returns. Hence that brother was not admissible to Grand Lodge, and could not carry out the motion of which he had given notice.

Bro. Conrad C. Dumas, A.G.D.C., having been requested by Bro. Cooke to give notice on his behalf of a renewal of his notice of motion at next Grand Lodge, begged to do so.

Bro. T. Fenn, P.A.G.D.C.,—He must give notice at the Board of Masters.

Grand Lodge was then closed in due form.

In the absence of Bro. Ganz, Grand Organist, Bro. E. T. Barling, Organist, of Sheerness, officiated.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

DEVONSHIRE.

SOUTH MOLTON—Loyal Lodge of Industry (No. 421).—This Lodge held its monthly meeting on Tuesday last, at the Freemasons' Hall, Bro. William Cole, W.M., in the chair, Bros. Traill and Reed were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The sum of one guinea was voted to a distressed brother that had been initiated in this Lodge some 30 years ago, but had never been a subscribing member to this or any other Lodge.

SEATON—De La Pole Lodge (No. 1181).—The fifth annual meeting of the brethren of this lodge, was held on Wednesday, the 28th inst., at the Pole Arms Hotel, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. George Evans. The lodge was summoned for three p.m., and the ceremony of installation was conducted by Bro. Sam. Jones, P.M. 112, 1135, 1332, P. Prov. S.G.D. of the province. On this occasion the lodge was honoured by the presence of the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. the Rev. J. Huyshe, P.G.C.; and V.W. Bro. Aeneas J. Mc Intyre, Grand Registrar; also the following visiting brethren:—Bros. Samuel Jones, P. Prov. S.G.D., Installing Master; J. J. Mackenzie, P. Prov. S.G.D.; J. Dand, Prov. G.S.B.; S. S. Moore, P. Prov. S.D., Dorset; F. G. Sutton, P.M. 847; J. Murch, E. Murch, Burrows, R. Ellis, J. Hussey, R. Radford, W. Roberts, A. Field, R. Haresford, E. Meadon, C. Langley, J. Martin, J. Roberts, J. Hussey, &c. The ceremony of installation being concluded, the W.M. appointed his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. Dr. Pattenson, I.P.M.; J. Brown, S.W.; W. Salter, J.W.; Captain C. C. Dick, P. Prov. G.S.D., Secretary; J. Harris, S.D.; L. Loveridge, J.D.; W. Newberry, I.G.; J. Arbery, Tyler. This having concluded the business of the meeting, the brethren adjourned to a well-served banquet, which reflected credit on the worthy host and hostess. The cloth being removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured and responded to, and the brethren separated after a most pleasant reunion.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL—Hamer Lodge (No. 1393).—Bro. W. T. May, W.M., occupied the chair of K.S. at the monthly meeting of the Hamer Lodge (No. 1393), which was held at the Breck Hotel, Windermere-street, on Tuesday, the 27th ult. The officers present were:—Bros. J. Jones, S.W.; J. Harriman, Sec.; T. Berry, S.D. (who acted as J.W.); R. H. Evans, J.D.; H. Jackson, I.G.; T. Dilcock, J.S.; W. G. Veale, M.C.; T. H. Dobson, Org.; and W. Williamson, Tyler. The members present were:—Bros. J. Hamer, P. Prov. G.T.; R. Cain, W. Walsh, T. Ramskill, C. Tyler, E. Lowenthal, G. T. Freeman, J. Bluck, A. Rigmaiden, G. Dutch, R. Parry, E. Parry, W. S. Hart, J. Cassidy, J. Roberts, E. Wilson, H. Burrows, &c. Amongst the visitors were—Bros. J. H. Johnston, P.M. 1350; F. Day, W. Mott, T. Pennington, H. Parry, W. Crane, &c. Immediately after the lodge had been opened, the W.M. said he could not proceed with the business until he had referred to the loss which the province had sustained in the death of their Prov. G.M. He had sat under Sir Thomas both when he was D. Prov. G.M., and also as head of the Province of West Lancashire, and he (the W.M.) had always found him do his work well, thereby meriting the admiration of the brethren. He moved that a letter of condolence should be framed by that lodge, and forwarded, through Bro. Alpass, P. Prov. G. Sec., to the family of the deceased Baronet. This was seconded by Bro. J. Jones, S.W., and at once agreed to. Bro. Lowenthal was then passed to the degree of F.C., and Mr. Hugh Davidson was subsequently initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by Bro. J. Hamer, the respected "father" of the lodge. In acknowledging a vote of thanks for his services, Bro. Hamer expressed the warmest hope that the lodge would greatly prosper, and said he would at any time be glad to attend, and give the brethren any, or all, of his Masonic lectures. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. It may be stated that, as a mark of respect for the departed Provincial Grand Master, the lodge clothing was mounted with mourning, and many of the brethren appeared in suitable "black." During the evening, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. "The Memory of Bro. Sir T. Hesketh" was drunk in solemn silence, after having been proposed in highly eulogistic terms by the W.M. There was no singing during the evening, out of respect for the memory of the deceased.

SCOTLAND.

EDINBURGH—Cannongate Kilwinning Lodge (No. 2).—This lodge assembled for "initiation" in its old historic Chapel of St. John, (Edinburgh), on the 15th inst., when proceeding from labour to refreshment, a few select toasts were given and warmly responded to with full Masonic honours. Amongst these were "The Queen" (so beloved by her Scottish subjects for her eminent virtues and gracious acts)."

"The Army, and particularly the Royal Scots Grays—Nulli Secundis—and the 93rd Sutherland Highlanders." Bro. Archer then proposed, as a personal toast, "The Grand Lodge of Greece, and its first Grand Master—a Scottish Mason, initiated in Lodge St. Andrew, of Edinburgh," &c., which, like the toasts preceding it, met with a warm response.

BENGAL.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE.

A quarterly communication of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal, was held at the Freemason's Hall, Calcutta, on Saturday, the 22nd day of June, 1872. There were present:—The R.W. Bro. Hugh David Sandeman, District Grand Master; W. Bros. John Pitt-Kennedy, Deputy District Grand Master; J. B. Roberts, Past Deputy District Grand Master; I. L. Taylor, as Dist. S.G.W.; W. E. Jellicoe, as Dist. J.G.W.; D. J. Zemin, Dist. G. Registrar; W. B. Mactavish, Dist. G. Treasurer, and Offg. Dist. G. Secretary; H. B. Lewis, as Dist. S.G. Deacon; W. G. Amos, as Dist. G. Director of Ceremonies; W. H. Fitze, as Dist. G. Sword Bearer; C. H. Compton, Dist. G. Organist; J. C. McGregor, as Standard Bearer; R. C. Sterndale, A. J. Ferris, M.D., A. Le Franc, W. Hay, J. Blackburn, Dist. G. Stewards; G. Alexander, Dist. G. Tyler.

The following lodges were represented:—Star in the East, No. 67; Industry and Perseverance, No. 109; True Friendship, No. 218; Humility with Fortitude, No. 229; Marine, No. 232; Anchor and Hope, No. 234; Courage with Humanity, No. 392; St. John, No. 486; Excelsior, No. 825; Temperance and Benevolence, No. 1160; Sandeman, No. 1374.

The visitors were:—Bros. A. B. Mitchell, W.M. 401, S.C.; W. C. Bishop, 1374; and W. Boroughs, unattached.

The District Grand Lodge was opened in due form at 6-45 p.m.

Apologies were read from several brethren for unavoidable non-attendance.

The Grand Secretary stated that a mistake had been made in the printed proceedings of the last Quarterly Communication, the name of Worshipful Brother D.G. Liebenhals having been omitted from the list of exclusions from Lodge "Courage with Humanity," No. 232, and the initials of Bro. Vangricken being given as "T." instead of "J."

The Minutes of the Communication of the 21st March, 1872, having been printed and circulated, were, with the alterations above referred to, on the motion of the District Grand Master, taken as read, and on being put to the vote, were confirmed.

The District Grand Master then addressed Grand Lodge as follows:—

Worshipful Brethren.—We have this evening to consider the usual reports on the working of our funds during the past quarter. The District Grand Lodge fund has decreased owing to an excess of disbursements over receipts, and the Committee of General Purposes again complain of a non-receipt of certain returns and dues. The proposition of this Committee, that three of its members be authorized by District Grand Lodge to audit the Treasurer's Accounts previous to the usual quarterly meetings of the Committee, in order to avoid unnecessary delay at such meetings, seems to me to involve a question of executive detail with which it is scarcely necessary for us to interfere, as it is one that the Committee can well decide for themselves; but I can, of course, have no sort of objection to such formal authority being given, if you think it advisable that the District Grand Lodge should pass an order on the subject. The Committee express a hope that the proposition by the District Grand Secretary, Captain Murray, will meet with favour; and it is with much pleasure that I draw your attention to the liberal donations made by Bros. Sagriell and Atkinson towards the desired restoration of our Benevolent Fund. I think that the Committee have acted prudently in not yet writing off the cash balance locked up with the Administrator-General on account of the estate of the late District Grand Master. By keeping the amount in our books we avoid losing sight of the claim, however small the hope of ultimate recovery may be.

The District Grand Lodge will, I am confident, cordially concur with the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence in their expressed feeling of regret at the departure from Calcutta of W. Bro. Farr, who took such an active interest in our charitable funds. It is well known to that excellent Brother that we all regret his absence on our own account, and that we heartily desire his return to Calcutta, if such return be advantageous to himself. It is satisfactory to see that the Committee, with the small funds at their disposal, have been able to do so much good. The disbursements during the quarter have slightly exceeded the receipts. Referring to the proposition before the Benevolent Fund Committee by W. Bro. Roberts, I do not observe that the required statement was placed before the Committee of General Purposes as determined. I would venture to suggest that all vested funds be, for the future, held in the joint names of three persons, and the book debt certificates of promissory notes produced at every quarterly meeting of the Committees. If held in the names of three Grand Officers in their official capacities for the time being, there will be no difficulty in realizing when it is desirable to sell the notes, while complete safety will be fully secured.

Complaints are very frequent from Lodges as well as from individual masons, of an inability to procure Grand Lodge certificates; and I desire to call the attention of Masters to the circumstance, as it is, in the great majority of cases, due to the non-submission by private Lodges of their periodical returns to the Grand Lodge of England. These returns are altogether distinct from those which are rendered to the District Grand Lodge, and a reference to No. 40 of our By-laws will show that "the returns of the Grand Lodge of England are to be sent direct to the Grand Secretary in London." The form of return for the Grand Lodge does not correspond with that required by the District Grand Lodge, and this circumstance alone should show that a single return is not of the work done in private Lodges under its jurisdiction, the Grand Secretary in London is obviously not in a position to issue certificates until he has received the returns which should be submitted to him direct. I need scarcely dwell upon the great desirability of the observance of punctuality in the submission of such returns, as a matter of justice to brethren who are entitled to receive certificates, and who may be put to great inconvenience by their non-receipt. Until a brother is duly registered, he cannot of course be recognised as a member of our body by the Grand Lodge in England; and it frequently so happens that petitions for the establishment of new Lodges are returned from home on the score of informality, inasmuch as the names of the petitioners are unknown in the Grand Secretary's Office for want of returns overdue.

I will make my remarks on the motion in the Agenda Paper by W. Bro. E.H. Lloyd at the proper time, and will content myself with saying at present that the motion as it now stands would, if carried, involve a breach of our constitutional law, as laid down in pages 19 and 69 of the Constitutions.

I have received a report from the District Grand Secretary, Captain Murray, regarding the Lodge "Chota Nagpore" at Hazareebaugh, which he visited on his way to the Hills in April. Our Very Worshipful Brother, assisted by a deputation from this District Grand Lodge, dedicated the Masonic Temple which has been erected by the local Freemasons, and of which architectural plans have been deposited among our archives. Bro. Murray took the opportunity of inspecting the books, and speaks generally of the Lodge as being in a very satisfactory position. He mentions especially that the banquet charges were kept separate from the monthly subscriptions of members to the Lodge itself; that the fees due to District Grand Lodge are placed every month in the hands of the Master by his Treasurer; that arrears of subscriptions are unknown; that the attendance is punctual and regular; and that the registers are complete and kept well up to date. Irregularities and such heads are so frequently permitted to exist in Masonic Lodges, that I make no apology for noticing thus prominently points which ought to be rigidly observed; in every well-regulated body of Freemasons, but which are none the less creditable to the small but influential number of Craftsmen who have lately evinced so much zeal for the good of our Order at Hazareebaugh.

A further report from the same Brother informs me that he has recently inspected the books of Lodge "Dalhousie" at Mussourie. He reports very favourably on the state of this Lodge, which is working very prosperously under the present Master, W. Bro. T.H. Clarke, District Grand Assistant Director of Ceremonies, who is well supported by Brothers H.G. Scott, Trotter, and others. Bro. Murray, in reporting on this Lodge also mentions that the expenses of entertainment are kept wholly distinct from the funds of the Lodge, which are entirely devoted to Masonic objects.

The Report of the Committee of General Purposes was then read.

After some remarks from W. Bro. Roberts, to the effect that the general funds of Grand Lodge should be kept completely and absolutely separate from each other, and that the monies belonging to the Fund of Benevolence should never be diverted from their legitimate object on any plea or pretext, it was proposed by W. Bro. Taylor, and seconded by W. Bro. Zemin, that the accounts be passed, and they were passed accordingly.

W. Bro. Roberts proposed that a detailed statement of the vested funds of the Fund of Benevolence, showing all the payments of interest made by the District Grand Lodge on account of the loan of Rs. 2,000, as well as of the interest realized from the Bank of Bengal on the balance of the securities—viz. Rs. 1,600—be prepared by the District Grand Treasurer and submitted at the next convocation of District Grand Lodge. The proposition was seconded by W. Bro. Kennedy, and carried.

The District Grand Treasurer reported that Lodge No. 218 had, since closing of the accounts, submitted their returns for the quarters in arrear, and had deposited money on account of their dues.

W. Bro. Lloyd proposed, and Bro. Turner seconded, that the cash balance of Rs. 223-9-6 appearing in the Treasurer's accounts as being locked up with the Administrator-General on account of the estate of the late Bro. J.H. Linton, be written off. The motion was put to the vote and carried.

The Report of the General Committee of the Fund of Benevolence was read.

The proposal of W. Bro. Murray, to the effect "that as the vested assets of the Fund of Benevolence in the hands of the late District Grand Treasurer were not forthcoming, it was the duty of the Members of the District Grand and Calcutta Lodges to subscribe amongst themselves a sufficient sum to place the Fund in its former position," was, in the absence of Captain Murray put to Grand Lodge by W. Bro. Zemin, and being warmly approved was carried, when the District Grand Master requested the District Grand Secretary to address all Lodges in the district by circular on the subject.

It was proposed by W. Bro. Roberts, and generally approved, that the appeal thus to be made to Lodges should embrace the whole sum of Rs. 3,823-2-6 which was now really owing to the Fund.

W. Bro. Lloyd, in pursuance of notice moved "that the Master and Wardens (or substitutes for such Wardens) of a private Lodge be empowered to appear at the Meetings of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal, and be admitted, on the Master of such Lodge vouching to the District Grand Tyler and Assistant Director of Ceremonies that such Brethren as appear with him are his Wardens, or are such other Brethren delegated to appear as representatives for his Wardens, and are Members of the Lodge under his rule."

The District Grand Master explained that the Master and Wardens of a private Lodge were empowered to appear in Grand Lodge as Members, provided that their names had been returned to the District Grand Secretary, and that in order to give every facility to Masters who desired to send substitutes in cases when the Wardens themselves could not appear, the Grand Tyler's book was generally kept open till 5 o'clock on the day on which Grand Lodge met, and that the District Grand Secretary held from the District Grand Master a general power to admit such substitutes. The District Grand Master further pointed out that none but Members of Grand Lodge had a right of admission, and that he was the only officer of Grand Lodge with authority to admit visitors. While therefore he was anxious and willing to do everything in his power to promote the public convenience, he could not admit the right of the mover to lay down the terms upon which visitors might be admitted. The matter then dropped.

Bro. Compton intimated his wish to resign his post as Organist to the District Grand Lodge.

A collection was made for the Fund of Benevolence, amounting to Rs. 121-4, which were handed over to the District Grand Treasurer.

There being no further business, the District Grand Lodge was closed in due form at 8-45 p.m.

SOUTH AFRICA.

PORT ELIZABETH.—On the festival of St. John, the installation of the W.M. and the investiture of officers of the Lodge of Good Will, No. 711, took place at the Masonic Temple, on the Hill. Between fifty and sixty brethren were present, and took part in this interesting ceremony. Among those present were:—Bro. McIntyre, W.M. of the British Kaffrarian Lodge; Bro. Wheelwright, W.M. of the Lodge of Good Hope; Bros. P.M.s' J.C. Kemsley, Tonks, and Bain, and several visiting brethren, amongst whom was the late Mayor, Bro. J. Miller. After the brethren had retired, and the Board of Installed Masters had duly placed the W.M. Elect, Bro. S. Bain, in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, the W.M. proceeded to the investiture of his officers, as follows:—Bro. J. A. Bell, S.W.; Bro. C. W. Frames, J.W.; Bro. W. Armstrong, Treasurer; Bro. P.M. H. E. Tonks, Secretary; Bro. A. Hill, S.D.; Bro. J. Riches, J.D.; Bro. H. Frost, I.G.; Bros. J. W. Clark and J. Horton, Stewards; and Bro. J. Morley, Tyler. The addresses were delivered with great pathos and feeling by the Installing Master, Bro. H.E. Tonks; and the Lodge being then closed in form and harmony, the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall, where a most sumptuous repast had been prepared by Bro. W. Phillips, of the Club, than whom a more successful caterer can scarcely be found. After the solids had been disposed of, the W.M. rose and proposed the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," which was responded to with the accustomed enthusiasm. The W.M., in proposing the next toast, said he had the happiness of proposing "The Health of Bro. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Past Grand Master, and he felt sure this toast would be responded to most heartily, the more especially as it had pleased Providence to restore our Brother to health, after a very severe and dangerous illness, and he sincerely trusted he might be long spared to us, both as a brother Mason and as our beloved Prince. (Drank most enthusiastically). Then followed in their order, the M.W.G.M., The Marquis of Ripon; the Earl of Zetland, P.G.M. of England; Bro. R. Southey, P.G.M. of South Africa; and following these came the toast of the evening, by the I.P.M., Bro. Tonks, who, in a few kind words, expressive of his confidence in the able government of the W.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M., Bro. S. Bain," which was drank with all the honours. The W.M., in responding, said he thanked them sincerely for the cordial and hearty manner in which his health had been proposed and received by them. The dearest wish of his heart was to see Masonry flourish amongst them; it was to his mind one of the noblest institutions extant, and was well worthy of both their zeal and attachment, and that they might depend upon his best efforts being directed to filling the chair of the Lodge both with credit to himself and, he trusted, with satisfaction to them all. It was peculiarly pleasing to his feelings that his former occupancy of the chair of the Lodge should have merited this additional mark of their favour, and that no objections on his part should be wanting to sustain that good opinion of the brethren, of which he felt at that moment justly proud, and his sole aim should be to further the interests of their venerable institution. Other toasts then followed, including "The Retiring Officers," "The Newly-elected Officers," "The I.P.M., Bro. Tonks," "The W.M., Officers, and Brethren of the Sister Lodge," "The Visiting Brethren," and "Prosperity to the Lodge of Good Will." This toast was given by Bro. John Miller, the late Mayor, who said that, although he confessed to his short-coming as a working member, still he had the prosperity of the Order at heart, and felt sure that under the able management of the present Worshipful Master the Lodge could not fail of being prosperous. The W.M., in response, said he felt it his duty to reply to the last toast, and in doing so would take that opportunity of stating, more especially to those brethren who had honoured them with their company as visitors, that they had it in contemplation to alter the present building, by putting another storey on it, and that he hoped on the next occasion of their annual festival they would be received in a building much larger than the present, more commodious for the purposes of Masonry, and a very great ornament to the town. The toasts were interspersed with some capital singing, among the latter Bro. Signor Abecco sang two delightful ballads, accompanied on his harp. The Tyler's toast and "God save the Queen" concluded a agreeable evening.

Royal Arch.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.—The Caledonian Unity Chapter, (No. 73).—The companions of this chapter met on Tuesday, the 27th ult., in their hall, Buchanan-street. D. Gilchrist, M.E.Z., presided; assisted by Comps. McDonald, H; G. W. Wheeler, J.; T. Findler, Scribe, E., and other officers. The work consisted of the advancing to the Mark and Chair degrees of Bros. Thomas Potter of St. Mary's, No. 27; and John F. Flambridge, of the Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73. The nomination of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, all the superior officers being unanimously re-nominated. The election will take place on the 23rd inst. The M.E.Z. then, in the name of a few of the companions of the chapter, presented to T. Findler, S.E., a Royal Arch jewel, as he was about to take his departure for Barrow-in-Furness, stating that had time permitted, he had no doubt that the rest of the companions would have gladly have joined in the same. Comp. Findler said he was so surprised at the unexpected gift, that it had really deprived him of speech, for he had not received the slightest intimation that anything of the kind was in contemplation, but the spontaneity of the gift would enhance its value in his eyes, and while a rich ornament to adorn his person he should never be able to wear it without thinking of the happy hours he had spent with the companions of the Caledonian Unity. On the clasp of the jewel is inscribed "Presented to Comp. Thomas Findler, for his services to Chapter 73, as P.S., J., and Scribe E.; August 27, 1872."

Mark Masonry.

LANCASHIRE.

PRESTON.—Birchall Lodge (No. 143).—The regular meeting of the members of the above prosperous lodge, was held on Monday, the 19th inst., at the Bull Hotel; Bro. Lieut.-Col. Thos. Birchall, W.M., P.G.J.W., in the chair, supported by Bros. Major Thomas Wilson, S.W.; R. Robinson, J.W.; J. J. Greaves, M.O.; Capt. Lockart, S.O.; R. Wilborne, J.O.; Geo. Galloway, P.M., S.D.; J. Green, J.D.; Jno. Cockshott, Registrar; Cuff, Secretary; W. Bro. Jas. Porter, P.M. 60, G.S.D. England; W. Bro. Thos. Hargreaves, P.M. 141, G.J.D. England; Capt. Whitehead, Clegg, R. Robinson, Janitor, and several others. The lodge was opened at 7.30, and after the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. Rawley, Cottam, Johns, and Atherton, for advancement; also for Bro. Rev. F. A. Cave-Brown-Cave, University Lodge, 67, Oxford, as a joining member, and in each case proved unanimous. Bros. Soulby, Sykes, and Cottam, being present, were introduced and advanced, and this being the whole of the business, the lodge was closed according to antient custom with solemn prayer at 9.30, after which the brethren adjourned to an excellent repast, provided by the Worshipful Master, and a pleasant, profitable, and agreeable evening was spent. It was announced during the proceedings that the Most Worshipful Grand Master would hold a special Grand Lodge at Manchester, on Wednesday, Oct. 2nd.

LIVERPOOL.—West Lancashire Lodge of Mark Masters (No. 65).—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday evening last at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. Bro. Thomas Clarke, who occupied the chair of W.M., opened the Lodge shortly after six o'clock, supported by Bro. T. Ashmore, S.W.; Bro. J. Taylor, J.W.; Bros. Hamer, Larsen, and Leedham, P.M.s. The minutes of the previous meeting, held on the 1st July, having been read and confirmed, various communications were read, and other business transacted. The ballot was taken for Bro. W. S. Barker, of the Derby Lodge, and Bro. S. May, of St. John's Lodge, No. 673, and both brethren were unanimously elected. The brethren then proceeded with the election of W.M., there being twelve brethren eligible for the office, and on the vote being taken Bro. T. Ashmore was declared elected by a majority. Bro. J. L. Goepel, P.M. and P.G.S.O., was unanimously and by acclamation re-elected the Hon. Treasurer for the seventh or eighth time. There being no other business of interest, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren subsequently adjourned to a capital banquet.

Knights Templar.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.—Girvan Encampment.—Monday, August the 19th, will be a day to be long remembered in the annals of the Girvan Encampment, No. 32, as on that occasion no less than eleven came forward to be created Knights of that religious and military Order. The encampment met at 22, Struthers-street, the M.N.C. Sir Knight R. Bell, presiding, assisted by J. Park, D.C.; T. Clanachan, P.N.C.; M. Clanachan, C.C.; Thos. Chatfield, S.C.; D. Butler, J.C.; and G. W. Wheeler, Recorder, who also acted as Prelate. Petitions for reception into the Order were then read from the following companions, viz.:—J. Findler, of Lodge 13, Chap. Scribe E. 73 and 104; J. Hay, Lodge 73, Chap. 73; J. Hughes, Lodge 39, Chap. 73; H. Nevill, Lodge 6, Chap. 73; J. Thompson, Lodge 28, Chap. 73; G. Pollard, Lodge 11, Chap. 12; G. B. Adams, Lodge 360, Chap. 50; R. J. Smith, Lodge 6, Chap. 67; D. B. Fleming, Lodge 437; H. and Chap. 69, J. Dardie, Lodge 219, J. and Chap., 67; and E. A. Green, Lodge 178, Chap. 87; the votes being unanimous in favour of their reception, they were then introduced, and after passing through the solemn ceremonies of this rite, were duly created Knights of the Temple. A Priory was then opened, and the same two gentlemen, along with Sir Knights T. Scott and P. Hepburn, were dubbed Knights of Malta, and entrusted with the secrets of that degree, the whole of the ceremonies being impressively rendered. Refreshment were then served, and the following, amongst other toasts, were given and responded to:—"The Queen and the Craft;" "The Royal Arch and Supreme Council of Scotland;" "Knight Templarism, and our Illustrious Frater, the Prince of Wales;" "Our Visitors from America and England," responded to by Sir Knights A. Bryson, of No. 1, Providence Commandery, Rhode Island, U.S., and D. Gilchrist, of the Royal Kent Encampment, Bengal, both of whom spoke highly of the very efficient work they had witnessed, and eulogised the N.C. and his staff of officers, and their pleasure at being present on so interesting an occasion. The next toast was "The M.N. Commander," proposed in an elaborate speech by Sir Knight J. O. Park. Sir Knight Bell briefly replied, expressing his pleasure that their work had been such as to meet the approval of their visiting brethren, who, as travellers, had a better chance of judging than those of the encampment, who had never seen any other body at work. He then gave the health of "The Treasurer," Thos. Clanachan, one of the old Girvan Knights, without whose labour in past years the encampment would not now be in existence. Drunk with enthusiasm. Sir Knight Clanachan replied, and a collection being made in aid of a distressed frater, this truly interesting meeting was brought to a close.

Reviews.

The Israelites found in the Anglo-Saxons. By WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z. London: George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.

Mr. Carpenter is truly a veteran and an indefatigable author. During a long and laborious life-time, he has been a constant contributor to newspaper and periodical literature, and has edited and conducted some of our most advanced independent and popular journals; and yet, at the same time, he has found opportunity to contribute to Biblical literature well nigh a score of volumes, several of them of great labour and merit, and all of them evincing great painstaking and research. He has, indeed, given a whole library to the Biblical student. Now ripe in years, and apparently not satisfied with the retrospect of a life of so much labour and usefulness, he has caught the contagion and enthusiasm of Wilson, Glover, and Hind, who have sought to impress on the Anglo-Saxon mind the idea, that the ten tribes of Israel have never been really lost, but that, during a long course of centuries, they have been specially hidden away, as Israel, but at the same time protected and developed by the Almighty Providence, which rules the world and regulates the history of man; and that now, in the fulness of time, the veil being removed, we are, by infallible signs, to recognise those ten tribes, so long regarded as lost, in the stirring, pushing, prosperous, dominant Anglo-Saxon race. Traces of this thought are to be found in the works of some old writers, but it is only during the last few years that it has been brought out with clearness and positiveness, and enforced upon us by successive students of the question, as a distinct article of belief—"A truth so strange, 'twere bold to think it true;" though, undoubtedly, it is a belief that will find willing acceptance among the Anglo-Saxon people, whether in England, America, Germany, or elsewhere, if its advocates can only support their theory with anything like plausible argument. Those who have long been familiar with the Protestant Bible, have grown up with a high esteem for the special privileges of the Israelitish people, as depositors of religious truth, and the chosen instruments of the world's enlightenment; and if they are now taught, on what assumes to be the joint authority of scripture and history, that they are the true descendants of that favoured people, the doctrine will harmonise with the idea, that they have, in this modern era, a mission to mankind, somewhat analagous to that which was given to the Jews in ancient times. It will be very easy and agreeable further to persuade themselves that the missions are not only analagous, but identical, and that they are sharers in the exalted privileges, and heirs of the promises given to Israel. We have been taught to believe in Abraham, and follow him as our spiritual father; but if, in addition, we are to believe that we have Abraham for our natural father—our progenitor, according to the flesh—this must at least be flattering to the prejudices of our early religious training. What a pedigree is ours, if we are to trace our descent direct from that venerable patriarch, who stood on the plains of Mamre, pleading, face to face with God, for the apostate and doomed cities—from Abraham, who was the friend of God, the father of the faithful, and the type and model of spiritual character! We cannot wonder, if the few writers who have hitherto ventured on this topic, have been led away by a lofty and contagious enthusiasm; nor shall we wonder if their readers should yield themselves readily to the fascination of this belief, and adopt it even with more decisiveness than their teachers.

On entering upon the examination of this question, it is important to the student to clear his mind of all identity between the Israelites, (the ten tribes) and the Jews, (Judah and Benjamin).

It is a common opinion, arising principally from want of precision of thought, that the Jews are the only remaining representatives of the once distinguished seed of Abraham, and that the promises of restoration to Palestine, and future aggrandisement, are all to be realised in their experience, and in their's alone; in fact, that the Ten Tribes are lost for ever to the comity of nations. Our reading of prophecy does not bring us to this. So far, we are one with our author, as to believe there still remains a destiny for the ten scattered tribes, distinct from that of Judah, who have hitherto been so remarkably preserved as a separate people, amid all their persecutions and wanderings.

Mr. Carpenter thus expresses himself on this branch of the subject—"The sure word of prophecy depicts a glorious destiny for Israel, as the messengers or missionaries of God's grace and mercy to mankind, through whom Judah is to be regenerated and restored, and the fulness of the gentiles to be brought in; and if the identity of the Saxon race with the Israelites is shown to be highly probable, many passages of Scripture and history, hitherto doubtful or perplexing, will become clear.

That the Jews (Judah) will be restored to their own land, is the general belief of Jew and Gentile, as the necessary fulfilment of the Divine promises given in the Hebrew prophecies; but Mr. Carpenter maintains that Israel (the Ten Tribes) must likewise, and, indeed, must first be restored to their inheritance, in fulfilment of promises given by God, and recorded by the same prophetic authorities. This is the very basis of his arguments—Israel, as well as Judah, has been carried away; and Israel as well as Judah must be restored. Anything less will fall short of a complete fulfilment of prophecy, and no one who believes his Bible, can reconcile himself to the persuasion, that the Lord will be slack concerning his promises. In support of this view the prophet Amos is quoted:—"I will sift the house of Israel among all nations like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth. Behold, saith the Lord, I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities and inhabit them, and they shall plant vineyards and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them. And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land, which I have given them." (Amos ix.)

Mr. Carpenter further argues that the promised land was given to the seed of Abraham "for ever," as an "everlasting possession," and, accepting these terms in their fullest significance, he contends that the land cannot be permanently alienated from the sons of Jacob and their descendants—a conclusion which would seem irresistible from the stand point indicated.

Where, then, is this ancient and interesting people to be found? It has been said they have been discovered in Russia, Tartary, China, Japan, Turkey, Afghanistan, Burmah, Malabar, and Abyssinia, the customs or traditions of small communities leading to their identification with Israel. No doubt small numbers may have found their way to these several places, but these small and scattered fragments of a people that once was truly great, can never represent the national aggregate.

Having thus prepared his readers, by a series of arguments, to show that the ten tribes are not absorbed, or lost, as a nation, and that though carried away and unrecognised for centuries, they are yet to be restored, according to the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, Mr. Carpenter proceeds to trace the history of the tribes, and to identify them with the Saxon race. Their deportation is thus described:—

"The kingdom was first made tributary to Assyria, and the principal inhabitants were transported to the river Kur, which mingles its waters with the Araxes, and empties itself into the Caspian Sea. After the lapse of a few years, during which the sufferings of the remaining people, occasioned by the siege of Samaria, appear to have been horrible in the extreme, Sargon carried away the rest of the tribes into Asshur—that is Assyria—and to Halah, to the river Habor, or Chebar, and to Gozan, north-west provinces of Assyria and Media. Thus, Ephraim, or the kingdom of Israel, was utterly extinguished, 722 B.C."

It was, indeed, a complete national annihilation, as the writer of the Second Book of Kings says: "The Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of His sight; there was none left but the tribe of Judah, only." Nor are we of those who believe that the Ten Tribes returned with Judah, when she went up from the Babylonish captivity. A few may have done so, but there was no national return of the Ten Tribes to the land of their forefathers. Indeed, Samaria, the capital, continued in the possession of Gentile people, who had been sent thither from the north-east, and who had united the worship of Jehovah with that of false Gods, and between whom and the Jews there ever existed a complete alienation. "The Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans."

As to the chief locale of Israel's captivity, our author, following Sir Isaac Newton and other authorities, places it on the east of the Black Sea, in Georgia and Circassia, the inhabitants of which, as Herodotus states, practised circumcision. Philo describes the Jews as being very numerous in the East, under the empire of the Persians, and Josephus says that in his time the Ten Tribes were in great multitudes beyond the Euphrates.

The chapter devoted to this point is very interesting, but we cannot enlarge on the discussion. Equally interesting is the chapter about the Getae, or Goths, from whom the descent of the Anglo-Saxons is traced. Here the authority of Sharon Turner is pressed into service. He says, "The most authentic facts that can now be gleaned from ancient history, and the most probable traditions that have been preserved in Europe, concur in proving that it has been peopled by three great streams of population from the East, who have followed each other. (1.) The Kimmerian, Keltic or Celtic race. (2.) The Scythian, Gothic, and German tribes, from whom most of the modern nations of continental Europe have descended. (3.) The Sclavonian and Sarmatian nations, who established themselves in Poland, Bohemia, Russia, and other vicinities."

"This able writer," says Mr. Carpenter, "who has set aside many fanciful and fallacious theories on the origin of the Saxon race, has shown that the Scythians or Goths drove their predecessors, the Celts, towards the northern and southern extremities of Europe, and not only reached the Rhine, but crossed it into France; and from the branches of the latter stock, our own immediate ancestors, as well as those of most of the celebrated nations of Europe, have unquestionably descended—as the Anglo-Saxons, lowland Scotch, Normans, Danes, Norwegians, Swedes, Germans, Dutch, Belgians, Lombards, and Swiss. Europe changed her inhabitants, as it were, the new race issuing from the Danube, whence, as we have seen, they had made their descent on the Roman Empire."

To sum up, in the language of Mr. Carpenter himself, "The probabilities, I think, are very striking, that the Getae of Mœsia and Dacia were of the Ten Tribes who were carried by the Assyrians into upper Media and the countries between the Caspian Sea and the Euxine, and who thence pursued a westward course, along the shores of the latter sea, peopling the north of Germany and the Cimbrian Chersonesus; and who, under the name of Goths, overran the western Roman Empire, the great branch of them being now known as Anglo-Saxons."

The whole theory rests on the soundness of these arguments, and we must recommend our readers carefully to study them.

There are, however, many collateral arguments on which Mr. Carpenter, more or less relies, and which he urges with great skill, and in a manner that cannot fail both to please and to profit.

Thus, a chapter on Israel's migration from the East to the West, recalls to our recollection, many interesting memorials of their sojourn there, among others, many sepulchral monuments, evidently of Hebrew origin. And we are also reminded that several rivers on the Euxine are called after Israelitish names. Much stress is laid on the similarity between the Israelitish and Gothic character and institutions. Thus we see in all the institutions of the Saxons, the principle of self-government; and, what is somewhat remarkable, ten was an adopted number. They chose one from every ten men amongst them to sit in the council of their little community, generally consisting of ten compartments or wards. Ten of these wards formed a tything or parish, and ten of these tythings formed a hundred. It will be remembered that by the Mosaic institutions, the people were placed under rulers of thousands, of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens. And a Jewish synagogue, corresponding to a modern parish, appears, at a subsequent period, to have been put under the direction of ten elders. The Saxon county, which was more extensive than the hundred, corresponded to the Tribe in Israel.

Nor should we overlook the fact, that the Saxons had the Israelitish division of the day, The ancient Egyptians, Babylonians, Persians, Syrians, and other Eastern nations, reckoned their day as we do, from sunrise to sunset. The Saxons, however, retained the Israelitish reckoning."

The Saxon language is said to yield proof of Israelitish origin, to some considerable extent. Sharon Turner has collected two hundred and forty-seven Saxon words, which are undoubtedly derived from Hebrew, and the cognate Arabic; and some have maintained that 95 per cent. of Saxon words are derived from the Hebrew. A careful examination of Saxon proper names is said, by Mr. Carpenter, to disclose the Hebrew custom, which, as is well known, gave names that were significant.

A whole chapter is devoted to show that Getæ is a name given to Israel, and means a down-trodden vine—a figurative expression that may well be applied to a crushed and down-trodden people, especially when we bear in mind the fact, that Israel is often represented under the symbol of a vine, or a vineyard.

The latter part of the work is devoted to the consideration of the prophecies that identify Israel and the Anglo-Saxon race, and are thus classified:—

- I. Israel's localisation.
- II. Their Christianization.
- III. Their original possessions.
- IV. Their giving birth to nations or kings.
- V. Their diversified works.

Their principal localisation is fixed in "the ISLANDS," in the midst of the sea, the authority of 41st chapter of Isaiah being cited to justify this; and the British isles are identified as those indicated in prophecy, while Ezekiel is made to connect Tarshish and Sheba, or England and India in such a manner as to fix the prophecy unmistakably on England, with her Indian possessions. We should have been glad to see this chapter enlarged a little, for its arguments, as they stand at present, appear to us somewhat crude and inconclusive, though, probably, had they been more amplified, they might have been more convincing.

This same remark will apply to some of the succeeding chapters. To us, indeed, the latter part of the volume does not appear to be so fully argued out as the former; nevertheless, it abounds with interesting matter, and will well repay a careful perusal. Upon the whole, Mr. Carpenter's is a much more readable and popular book than others that we have seen on the same subject.

The argument is better sustained, and the reader is more thoroughly carried away by the views and hypotheses of the author. He will, indeed, often be tempted to take as demonstrated, what even the author admits to be only shown to be plausible and highly probable. Perhaps we may justly say, that a case of high probability is fairly made out on behalf of the theory in question; but we should certainly require some further light on prophecy, and some fuller evidence from history, to absolutely convince us that the Anglo-Saxons are truly the descendants of the ten tribes which revolted under Rehoboam, and were, about 250 years afterwards, extinguished as a nation, and carried away into captivity.

It is but just to add that the volume is a revised and enlarged publication of a series of papers originally published in the Freemason, and that the compact between Jews and Christians precluded the author from adducing arguments from the New Testament. Mr. Carpenter thinks he could have sustained his theory by even stronger proofs, if he had been permitted to do so. It might be well to prepare another and a larger edition, free from this restraint, if these stronger proofs are really forthcoming, for the subject is worthy of exhaustive treatment.

We might further suggest, that should another edition be published, a map, showing the migrations of the Ten Tribes would be a valuable illustration, and a useful aid to readers. A copious index, too, of the numerous Scripture quotations and illustrations, would be very acceptable to those who really wish to study a question which is fraught with so much interest.

The Family Friend. S. W. Partridge and Co.

This illustrated monthly magazine is fast increasing in popularity, and deservedly so. We are bound to recognise the excellence of this unpretending, but really most useful publication, and hope that as the aim of the editor is to assist in arresting the progress of pernicious literature, which is now, to a fearful extent, finding its way to the homes of our country, the members of our ancient and honourable society will support him in his good work.

The magazine will be found to be worthy of its title, and pre-eminently a friend to the British workman, and to all lovers of unsensational reading.

The People's History of Cleveland. Tweddell and Sons, Stokesley, Yorkshire.

Again, another work from the inexhaustible and most fertile brain of the veteran man of letters, Bro. Geo. M. Tweddell. This time it is of such a character, that we predict a speedy and large sale of its several parts, and hence we have faith in its completion in a few months. We are sorry to find, however, our friend's experience has not been always of this pleasurable character, for we possess parts of several most excellent publications of his uncompleted, and have been so for months, and some for years. We wish him heartily all the success he deserves.

WAS SHAKSPEARE A FREEMASON?

(From the Royal Cornwall Gazette.)

I wonder whether Shakspeare—Charles Knight will have it to be Shakspeare, and I believe him to be correct, for surley Shakspeare knew best how to spell his own name—was a Freemason: Two or three months ago I read that Mr. Parkinson said he was; and I have surmised a hundred times since, off and on, whether the asserter of the statement was right or not. Mr. Parkinson is, I think, prominently connected with the London daily press. At any rate he is the newly-elected Master of a Lodge recently formed at no great distance from the metropolis under somewhat peculiar circumstances. As well as I remember, a Bard of Avon Lodge, whose appropriate site would be renowned Stratford, had been neglected in its properest home, so some men of taste, who love both Masonry and Shakspeare, were authorised to rebuild the lodge nearer London. It was at its installation that Mr. Parkinson asseverated that England's greatest writer was a Mason. He referred, in very chaste language, to Shakspeare's qualities as author, playwright, actor, and man; but, when he would have spoken of his proofs that the immortal William was a Brother (had the newspaper report continued) the veil was drawn between the sons of light and the profane, and, as one of the last, I have been groping about ever since. That Shakspeare was a butcher, farmer, woolstapler, deerstealer, and ostler, and that he was neither, has been well discussed. More recently he has been claimed for some of the learned professions, especially for the law. That, in heart and soul he was a musician, painter, philosopher, lover, botanist, and naturalist, all of us, even the most casual reader, must admit. And so, Mr Parkinson may mean that, in thought and sentiment, he was a speculative Mason—that he has enshrined in undecaying monuments, though they be but of words, some of the richest treasures of the Masonic creed. But you will remember that one of the most telling arguments of those who have laboured to prove that the poet was of their calling, was that none but a professional—none but a man versed, nay steeped, in the technicalities of his trade—could say the things he has said in such words as he has used. The argument told until some other writer used it to shew that Shakspeare was of his craft. And then the on-looker saw that both were wrong and both were right—that the bard's knowledge of minutest details were almost as wondrous as his grasp of Nature and Truth; and that, as he is for all time, so he was of no particular trade. However I guided my inquiry by this argument. If Shakspeare was a Freemason, surely he would use the terms, the symbolisms, of his Order. They are most expressive. They seem to be cherished by every modern brother. He uses them daily and hourly. Did Shakspeare employ them? Upon this hint I—looked. Here is the result. Shakspeare never wrote such a word as "Freemason." I thought I had him when I came to "The singing masons, building roofs of gold;" but this beautiful phrase belongs to the little honey bees—instinctive masons, whose association, loyalty, building skill, industry and provision for the future make them worthy our best study and deepest admiration. The clowns, in Hamlet, who fun and joke in the churchyard about Christian burial and crowners' quest law, ask "What is he that builds stronger than the mason? We know the answer too well. The Count of Rousillion has to stay with the King of France (in All's Well) much against his inclination; but his complaint that he will be able to do nothing nobler than "creak his shoes on the plain masonry" is not redolent of the tessellated pavement. A term much used by Masons, in these times and in some of their oldest documents is, "Master." It was a favourite word of Shakspeare's. He uses it no less than five hundred and ninty-two times. The master of the vessel; the master of the Tiger; master doctor (frequently); master guest; master parson; master tapster; master constable; master schoolmaster; "my very noble and approved good masters," as addressed by Othello to the duke and senators sitting in the Venetian council-chamber; but never does it come as master Mason or as the master of a lodge. Ah! Lodge! Shallow accuses Falstaff: "You have beaten my men, killed my deer, and broken my lodge." That is not the lodge we want. The fantastic Don says to the country wench, Jaquenetta, "I will take thee to the lodge," but hardly means the place where woman is not permitted. Indeed our author speaks of lodging as much as lodge, and both words are used in the same sense. Nowhere does he use "craft" as a Mason would. The word "apprentice" is never employed by him; though once only he speaks of "apprenticehood." In Richard II., Bolingbroke speaks of serving a long apprenticehood to banishment—so long that when his freedom comes he will be able to boast of nothing but that he had become a journeyman to grief. Pretty talk, but unmasonic, that is not specially masonic.

"The triple pillar of the world transformed." Ah! here is a clue to something. It is a clue; but to one of the finest pieces of scorn in the English tongue. Philo says of the once noble Antony, "He becomes the bellows and the fan, to cool a gipsy's lust—the triple pillar of the world, transformed into a strumpet's fool!" Surely Shakspeare was not overfond of architecture. How significant, how full of meaning, is the column. Shakspeare never availed himself of the word "Architect." How often other writers employ it—the architect of his own fortunes, the Divine Architect of the Universe, &c. He uses it but once, and then it is as "an architect and plotter." "Corner-stone" he refers to once; to copestone or topstone, never. "Yond, corner-stone" is pointed at by one of the characters in Coriolanus, as being as difficult to move as the heart of the banished patriot. Arch he only uses nine times. I can find no special meaning in any phrase in which it occurs. Banners he knows all about, but not as an internal decoration; banneret he only uses once; it was too Frenchified. He makes the "banquet ready" the privy chamber," but that apartment was then, as now, of the State, and not of any section of it. Shakespeare, however, gives the Mystic Brethren a capital motto for the entrance door of their secret apartment:—"All dedicated to closeness!" In the Tempest, Prospero tells Miranda the cause of their misfortunes. He had been all dedicated to closeness and the bettering of his mind, having previously said that he was "wrapt in secret studies." The arts with which those studies led to, all readers of the Tempest well know.

"Act on the square," boys, is a favourite modern maxim; and Shakespeare, or I greatly err, used the word "square" in that sense. In Timon of Athens we have it that it is not square (equitable or just) to take revenge on the innocent for the crime of the evil-doer. But he also employs it to denote a quarrel. In the Midsommer Night's Dream, Oberon, king of the fairies, and his queen never meet in the grove or green, by fountains clear or spangled starlight sheen, but they do square or quarrel. Autolycus, in the Winter's Tale, as a pedlar, is described by a servant as chanting to the sleeve-band of an article of lady's attire and the work about the square on't. I don't think there were feminine Masons in those days. "Compass," too, is a favourite word, but is not employed as Mr. Parkinson, I dare say, would like to find it. When Julia, about to array herself in the weeds of some well reputed page, is asked by Pucetta, "What compass will you wear your farthingale?" And when the merry wives of Windsor speak of the garter's compass, in neither is it Masonically; indeed Shakespeare mainly applies the word in the meaning of to embrace or comprise. Cube, and gavel, and triangle are not once mentioned. Apron and rule are. Flavius rates the mechanics of Rome for walking abroad without the implements of their calling; but "Where is thy leather apron and thy rule?" is addressed to a carpenter and not a Mason. Corn, wine, and oil he does combine. When Gonzalo, in the Tempest, would reduce the island's inhabitants, to a state of idleness, he would have "no use of corn, or wine, or oil;" but the combination of these products of the earth was older than the days of Shakespeare, or of any English writer. When Dogberry gave the charge to "comprehend all vagrom men," or crook-backed Dick, on the eve of bloody Bosworth, directed Norfolk to hie him to his charge, it was hardly in the Masonic sense of the word. So we may go on until all are tried. Our great writer used language such as Masons and all who speak at times figuratively, must use. Darkness for ignorance; light in the sense of truth; darkness as symbolical of what is untrue; and a thousand other symbolisms might be quoted, all apt and beautiful in any system which aimed at inculcating the purest morality and the highest beneficence. But now comes, probably, the most curious fact of all. We know how Masons now, and in times so remote that their history is lost in mist, loved their Bible. Those great cathedral and bridge builders of the middle ages loved unity and brotherhood, but they revered their Bible. The divine may find prayer recommended by Shakespeare. He mentions the name of God more than a thousand times. But in not a single instance, in all the tens of thousands of phrases he has penned, has Shakespeare used the word Bible. So, putting it all together, I doubt, though Mr. Parkinson has asserted it, the internal evidence of the great man's great works that he was a Freemason.

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.—Since the Crusaders no less than thirty-four princes of the Imperial House of Comnenes have been Grand Masters of this Order, and the most illustrious men in England, including the Royal Successors, and his Lordship the Earl of Beech (Lord Kenlis is the present G. Sov.) have been found amongst its rulers and sovereigns, an order which the Abbé Giustiniani declared, in 1692, to be the most ancient in the world.

ANCIENT TEMPLARS' SONG.

The following, for which we are indebted to Bro. EMRA HOLMES, Grand Provost of England, and Eminent Commander of the Prudence Encampment of Knights Templar at Ipswich, is a MS. found amongst some old papers belonging to the Encampment, and will prove of interest to the members of the chivalric degrees.

ANCIENT TEMPLARS' SONG.

Copied for the Encampment of Prudence.

BY BRO. JOHN SANSUM.

God bless the noble band,
Who grace this happy land
With valiant knights!
May the United Three
Of the blest Trinity
Cement the unity
Of all great lights.

Twelve men were highly loved,
But one a Judas prov'd.
Put out his fire!
May Simon haunt all fools
Who vary from our rules.
May the heads of such tools
Rest high on spires.

'Gainst Turks and Jews we fight,
And in religious right
We'll breathe our last.
Poor pilgrims begging we Will our Jerusalem see;
All steps, Sir Knights, have ye
Gloriously past.

Enter'd, pass'd, rais'd, arch'd,
And then like princes march'd
Through rugged ways.
At length great lights we view,
And poor old Simon too,
Also the word so true,
Glory and praise.

God in his rainbow* gave
Colours which now we have,
Black, Red and Blue.
These colours emblems are
Of royal love most rare;
We are in soul sincere,
Just, good and true.

Sir Knights clap (sic) hand in hand,
None but Knights Templar stand
In circle round.
May we all live in love,
And every comfort prove.
May manna from above
Fall on this ground.

This ancient song is quoted in a Masonic document belonging to the Royal Order in Edinburgh, bearing date 1720 or 1730.—J. S.

Bro Emra Holmes vouches for the fact that this manuscript has been in the possession of G. S. Findley, P.E.C., the Registrar of the Encampment, for many years. Bro. Findley lent it to Bro. Holmes a short time since to copy.

* Natural philosophy does not seem to have been much studied when these quaint verses were written. At all events the author evidently knew nothing of the prismatic colours.

NEW ZEALAND.

An emergency meeting of the Masonic body under the Scotch constitution took place on the 24th May, at the Masonic Hall, Dunedin. The following brethren were duly installed:—Bros. W. H. Reynolds, as R.W. Substitute Prov. G.M.; T. Hislop, as W.Prov. G.S.W.; T. Gore, as W. Prov. G.J.W. The ceremony of Installation was performed by the R.W. Prov. G.M. of New Zealand, S.C., Vincent Pyke, in his usual impressive manner. At the conclusion of the mystic ceremony, the brethren adjourned for refreshment. The first toast of the evening was "The Queen and the Craft," which was received and acknowledged with all the Masonic honours.

COMPENSATION TO A BROTHER FOR PERSONAL INJURIES.—At the Summer Assizes, lately concluded at Liverpool, Bro. Thornton, P.M. of 673 and 1182, brought an action against the Liverpool Omnibus and Tramways Company (Limited), to recover damages for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained by him through the negligence of the company's servants. Mr. Temple, Q.C., and Mr. Segar, were counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. Russell, Q.C., and Mr. Gully, for the defendants. Mr. Temple said plaintiff was a licensed victualler, and master joiner and shipwright in Liverpool, and on the 20th February last, he was going to attend a Masonic meeting at Preston. He hailed a bus in St. James's-street, and it crossed the road to the side on which he was standing, where it stopped. He ascended to the roof, and was just going to take his seat, when, suddenly, the conductor whistled, and the horses made a jerk forward. The jerk threw the plaintiff over the rails, and he fell to the ground. He was, so seriously injured, that he had been unable to attend to business as formerly, and it would be some time before he would be able to go about as usual. Bro. Thornton was called, and stated he had been confined to bed for eight weeks, and could not now walk without a crutch. Other evidence having been called, Mr. Russell, who had no witnesses, urged that there was contributory negligence by the plaintiff, who, he said, ought to have held on by the rail until he had taken his seat. The jury found for the plaintiff, damages £80.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, September 13, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 7.

General Committee Boys' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 4.
Chapter 975, Rose of Denmark, Star and Garter, Kew Bridge.
Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, SEPT. 9.

Lodge 1366, Highgate, Gate House Hotel, Highgate.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 10.

Lodge 548, Wellington, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
" 1269, Stanhope, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, Surrey.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.

Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
 Domatic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
 Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P. M., Preceptor.
 Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
 Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
 Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
 Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
 St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 11.

Committee of Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, at 3. Lodge 13, Union of Waterloo, Freemasons' Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
 " 87, Vitruvian, White Hart, College-st, Lambeth.
 " 1228, Beacontree, Private Rooms, Leytonstone.
 " 1306, St. John of Wapping, Gun Tavern, High-st., Wapping.
 Chapter 1260, Hervey, Britannia Hotel, Walham Green.
 Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
 United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
 Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
 Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
 Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
 Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
 Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 12.

Lodge 1076, Capper, Marine Hotel, Victoria Dock, West Ham.
 " 1227, Upton, Spotted Dog, Upton, Essex.
 " 1288, Finsbury Park, Finsbury Park Tavern, Holloway.
 " 1321, Emblematic, Tulse Hill Hotel, Tulse Hill.
 Chapter, 72, Royal Jubilee, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
 " 619, Beadon, Greyhound Hotel, Dulwich.
 Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
 United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188. Preceptor.
 Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, at 8; Comp. T. J. Earnes, Preceptor.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 13.

Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

Agent for the Freemason.

BRO. CHAS. MAGGS, 25, George-st., Swansea.
 A large stock of Aprons, Jewels, Clothing, and every requisite for all Degrees of Freemasonry.
 Agent for Kenning's Masonic Note Paper, Envelopes, Books, Candles, Perfumes, &c.
 Advertisements received for "The Freemason."

What better Theme than Masonry?"

MASONIC SONG.

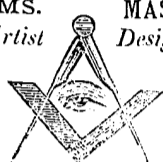

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.
 Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
 Post-free, 25 stamps.

MASONIC EMBLEMS.
A BEAUTIFUL WORK OF ART, in Photography, for framing, representing a volume of the Scripture, opened at Chapter 6 of the 1st Book of Kings' surrounded by symbols of the Craft.
 Plain, 1s. 6d.; richly coloured, 3s.
 To be had wholesale and retail of STEVENS & RICHARDSON, Stationers and Steam Printers, 5, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

CHURCH SERMONS.

By EMINENT CLERGYMEN.
WEEKLY NUMBERS contain two Sermons.
 Price One Penny; Monthly Parts, Fivepence.
 Published by REEVES, SON, and Co., Playhouse-yard Ludgate-hill, London, and may be had of all Book-sellers.

Bro. WILLIAMS. MASONIC EMBLEMS
Lithographic Artist Designed and Engraved
 AND ENGRAVER ON  WOOD.
 ON STONE, WOOD,
 or VELLUM.
CROSS RD., N.
48, KINGS

PIANOS
 FOR ALL
 CLIMATES

MESSRS. BORN & Co.,
 13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.
 MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled,

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.
 LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d.

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, Traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA.

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

By WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinae," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.
 Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.
 Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Aids to Study..... 559
 The Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 560
 CORRESPONDENCE:—
 Masons at Public Meetings 562
 Provincial Grand Officers 562
 Bro. Hughan and Grand Lodge 562
 Reviews 563
 Masonic Tidings 563
 Canterbury Cathedral 564
 CRAFT MASONRY:—
 Metropolitan 565
 Provincial 566
 ROYAL ARCH:—
 Provincial 566
 RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE:—
 Metropolitan 566
 South Africa 566
 Western Australia 567
 Masonic Notes and Queries 568
 OBITUARY:—
 Bro. John Donkin 569
 Bro. J. C. Relph 569
 Bro. Chas. Wigan 569
 Masonic Meetings for next week... 569
 Advertisements..... 557, 558, 570, 571, 572

AIDS TO STUDY.

BY BRO. WM. CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z. 177
 XII.

In the brief glance which was taken of the old Assyrian empire in my last paper, Pul was spoken of as the Assyrian monarch who invaded Israel and exacted tribute from Menahem, about 760 B.C. But there is some doubt as to the identity of this monarch, and some difficulty in harmonising the Assyrian annals with the chronicles of the Hebrew monarchy. The former, in their series of kings, give no one which resembles Pul, and various conjectures, more or less plausible, have been hazarded, for the purpose of removing the difficulty. As it is the only one that presents itself in comparing these two sets of records, considerable anxiety has been felt about it. Pul is certainly an abbreviation, for no Assyrian name consists of a single element; and the simplest thing is to identify Pul and Tiglath-Pileser. In the Assyrian annals the receipt of tribute from Menahem, king of Israel, is mentioned. The middle element of Tiglath-pal-zira, might, as Mr. Smith suggests, give the name Pul, but he, at the same time, suggests that it is quite inconceivable that the Hebrew chronicler, who gives the full name of Tiglath-Pileser so accurately, should just before corrupt it into Pul; and he refers especially to 1 Chron. v. 26. Probably, then, the conjecture of Professor Rawlinson, i.e., that Pul was a branch of the Royal family reigning in Babylonia, and not improbably over Assyria, also, as Suzerain; and Smith thinks we may even have the name of this Babylonian king in the legendary Belesys of Ctesias.

From this point we can follow both the history and chronology of Assyria to nearly its close, with tolerable certainty. It lasted about 120 or 140 years, under a succession of known Kings, among whom we recognise the well-known Scriptural names of Tiglath-Pileser, Shalmaneser, Sargon, Sennacherib, and Esar-Haddon; while, of the sixth, Asshur-bani-Pal, we at length, probably, find the name of the Greek Sardanapalus. Of the conquests of Tiglath-Pileser, against the Kings of Israel and Syria, when he took Damascus, subdued the Syrians, and carried away a portion of the ten tribes of Israel, we have an account in 2 Kings, xv. 29, 37; xvi. 8, 9; 1 Chron. v. 26, by which the prophecy of Amos was fulfilled, and from which it appears that the Assyrian empire had now become great and powerful. The next King was Shalmaneser (B.C. 729), who invaded Phœnicia, and laid siege to Samaria, but dying before the fall of the place, the siege was continued by Sargon, who carried the rest of the people away, replacing them by men from Babylon, &c. Whence it appears that Babylon, at that time, at least, was ruled by the King of Assyria (See 1 Kings, xvii. 6, 24).—The son and successor of Sargon (whose existence was doubted, until the discovery of his palace at Khorsabad, by M. Botta, in 1842), was Sennacherib (B.C. 719). It was in the reign of this Prince and his successor, Esar-Haddon, that, according to Sir Isaac Newton, the Assyrian Empire reached its greatness, being united under one monarch, and containing Assyria, Media, Apolloniaris, Susiana, Babylon or Chaldaea, Mesopotamia, Cilicia, Syria, Phœnicia, Egypt, Ethiopia, and part of Arabia; and, reaching eastward to Elymais and Paratacena, a province of the Medes—with Colehis and Iberia, the two Armenias, Pontus, and Cappadocia, as far as to the river Halys. It would appear that Esar-Haddon, who brought the Babylonian empire under his dominion, at first suffered it to be governed by princes or viceroys; but his successor united it with Assyria.

In the reign of Ahaz (B.C. 743), Judah became tributary to Assyria; but Hezekiah, who succeeded him in the throne (B.C. 728), encouraged, probably, by the circumstance of Mardoc-Empadus of Babylon, throwing off the yoke, rebelled against Assyria, and incurred the resentment of his Suzerain. In the fourteenth year of his reign, Sennacherib, the new King of Assyria, came with a large army, to reduce Judah to obedience, and to conquer Egypt, Hezekiah submitted to this potent conqueror, and paid the three-hundred talents of silver and twenty talents of gold, which were demanded. In the meantime, Sennacherib had obtained possession of Ashdod, the key to Egypt, but deeming it unsafe to leave unsubdued, in his rear, the kingdom of Judah, which had once thrown off the yoke, he resolved to subdue it, and three of his chief officers were sent, with a great host, against Jerusalem, to invite the people to accept a complete transplantation, similar to that which had befallen Israel. These officers were Tartan, the chief-general; Rab-Saris, the chief eunuch; and Rab-Shakeh, the chiefcup-bearer (2 Chron. xxxii). In an insolent address to the people of Jerusalem, the "great King of Assyria" defied the great God of Israel—"How much less shall your God deliver you out of my hand?" (ver. 15).—The piety of Hezekiah obtained the promise, that Jehovah would accept the challenge; and no answer was given to the Assyrian envoys. Rab-Shakeh hastened to the King, who was warring against Libneh, on the frontier of the Jewish territory, towards Egypt (2 Kings, xix, 8); but Sennacherib, hearing that Tirhakah, King of Ethiopia, who was in alliance with Egypt, was advancing against him, sent other messengers to Hezekiah, with a letter of open defiance to the God of Israel, which called forth the final promise of the destruction of the Assyrians, and the deliverance of Jerusalem; and, on the same night, a miraculous pestilence, as "the angel of the Lord" swept away a vast portion of the Assyrian host. Sennacherib returned to Nineveh, and as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch, his god, two of his sons smote him with the sword, and escaped into the land of Armenia, leaving the throne to Esar-Haddon, his other son, who reigned in his stead (2 Kings, xix, 37; Isa. xxxvii. 38).

Esar-Haddon (B.C. 680) renewed the wars with Phœnicia, Syria, Armenia, Susiana, Media, Babylonia, and Asia Minor; and he also describes himself as "conqueror of Egypt and Ethiopia." He is probably the king who carried Manasseh to Babylon, (2 Chron. xxxiii. 11). Asshur-bani-pal, (B.C. 663,) who appears to have furnished the Greeks with the name of Sardanapalus, undertook a campaign against Susiana, but was otherwise unknown for martial deeds; nevertheless, in the whole history of Assyria, says Mr. Smith, we have no stronger evidence than under this king of that prosperity which the prophet describes in his celebrated parable;—"The Assyrian was a cedar in Lebanon, with fair branches, and with a shadowing shroud, and of an high stature. . . . Under his shadow dwelt all nations; . . . nor was there any tree in the garden of God like unto him in his beauty." (Ezekiel XXXI. 3—8).

From this point, the course of the empire is involved in uncertainty. Most of the authorities agree, however, in representing the son (Asshur-emit-ilin) of the last named monarch, as succeeding him on the throne. This was either the last, or the last but one of the Assyrian kings; it being doubtful whether he is identical with the Saracus of Berossus or not. With the latter monarch, the Assyrian Empire terminated, Nineveh being destroyed by the conjoint forces of the Medes under Cyaxares, and the Babylonians under Nebo-Pelassar. It is vain to endeavour to recover the true history of the fall of Nineveh, however, by piecing together the few extant fragments of writers who lived after the event. "After all, says Mr. Smith (Ancient History of the East, p. 300,) "the real picture of the fall of Assyria (as of Babylon), and of the utter destruction of Nineveh, never to rise again, is drawn with the most literal truth, as well as poetic colouring, by the Jewish prophets, one of whom (Ezekiel) is, in fact, writing the history of Nineveh's fall as the type of Babylon's." (See Ezekiel xxxi., 11, 12; Nah. iii. 12—15; Zeph. ii. 13—15). It is scarcely necessary to add, that the precise date of Nineveh's fall cannot be fixed. The choice lies between B.C. 625, and B.C. 606. The old writers give the latter date, but the English school of Assyriologists, represented by Sir Henry and Professor Rawlinson, adopt the former, which is fixed by the Canon as that of Nebopolassar's accession at Babylon.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMRA HOLMES, 31°.

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 545.)

Apropos of the Arabs and their masonry, I came across the following significant quotations the other day:—

"All the secrets of Masonry are concealed in the Hebrew or Chaldee language."*

"Your popular societies are an emanation from the lodges of the Freemasons, in like manner as these proceeded from the funeral pile of the Templars."†

The following curious document is to be found in Lemming's "Encyclopædie der Freimaurerei," in German. The original is in French, and is in the possession of the Grand Lodge of Sweden at Stockholm, and has been thought to be the groundwork of the Swedish higher degrees of masonry;—the degrees into which our brother Sir Knight the Prince of Wales was initiated, and first saw the light.

Be that as it may, there are many allusions to the decorations of the Lodges, Chapters, &c., of those degrees which will be readily perceived by those who have been admitted under the Swedish system, if not by others, and as it is believed that the account given has never been published before for the benefit of English Freemasons, it is thought it would not be out of place inserting it here, though I would express no opinion as to its being historical, except in part:—

"The Testament of Jaques de Molay.

"Jaques de Molay saw at last from the course that the process against him began to take that there was nothing further to hope, either for himself or for the order, and as no opportunity was afforded him of consulting with the other Knights of the Temple, some of them being like himself in prison, and the greater part concealed after having escaped from the fury of their persecutors, he cast his eyes upon his nephew, the young Count Francis de Beaujeu, who was also the nephew of Molay's predecessor, the Grand Master, Pierre de Beaujeu,‡ with the intention of making him the means of transmitting the secrets of the Order and the proofs of his innocence to posterity. With this purpose he, shortly before the final close of the process, sent for him, and addressed him in the following terms:—'My son, I have summoned thee to me in this prison to ask thy advice in a very difficult matter. I allude to the process against me, in which the final sentence will very soon be pronounced. They promise to spare my life, yes, they promise me pardon—and even a great reward, on condition that I acknowledge the dishonourable calumnies that wicked men have invented to the destruction of the Order to be true and worthy of belief; and, on the other hand, if I maintain the innocence of the Order, I place my freedom and even my life in certain danger.' Beaujeu, without hesitating an instant, answered that it was to be sure his most ardent wish that the life of the Grand Master should be spared. It was, however, his opinion, and which he must proclaim without concealment, that in this case honour and integrity demanded that the voice of truth alone should be listened to, and that he ought therefore to defend the Order, and rather to sacrifice freedom, nay, even life itself, and become a martyr in the cause of religion and truth. Molay, beside himself with joy, tenderly embraced his nephew, and said to him—'My dear son, this is the answer, and this the advice I had expected from thee, but would'st thou thyself, if placed in like jeopardy, be capable of thinking and acting only as truth and honour might demand?' To which Beaujeu answered that he had given him the same advice as he himself would certainly follow in a like situation. Molay proceeded therefore—'Thou hast at all times appeared a zealous admirer of the Order, and hast always shown an inclination to enter into it; but dost thou still discover in thyself the same zeal, dost thou cherish the same wish, although all hope that the Order will ever be restored to its pristine perfection hath vanished? Hast thou the courage, determination, and fortitude to defy persecution and endure every vexation and humiliation?' 'Yes, answered Beaujeu, and it is even at this moment my wish to become a member of the Order, and whatever may be the trials to which I may subject myself, I feel strong enough to overcome every difficulty, and zealously and constantly to maintain truth and propagate the holy Order.'

"It is well, my son," said Molay, and thus speaking he drew from under his inner garment a cord* to which three keys were attached, loosened them and burnt the cord. 'Thou seest,' proceeded he, 'how this cord consumeth. A similar fate will soon, perchance, be our lot. Hast thou the courage and the strength to sacrifice even thy life in defence of thy brethren, and to shed thy blood in the cause of truth?' Count Beaujeu declared his readiness to do all this, and in consequence Molay proceeded—'Thou must give me a proof of thy courage, and for that purpose he handed him the three keys, with the words—'The first of these keys openeth the smaller portal of the vault of the Grand Masters. Into it must thou descend at the hour of midnight, wrapped in a cloak, and provided with a dark lantern; then must thou raise up the coffin of thy uncle the Grand Master Beaujeu, and draw forth from under it a triangular casket of crystal, then ascend, look behind the door which leadeth to the vault, and bring me the casket.†

*Every Knight Templar received at his initiation a cord, which he was constantly to wear under his dress, and on no account to lay aside. At the trial much was made of this cord, and various uses were assigned to it; but it is believed now that it was only worn as a perpetual reminder of the vows of chastity taken by the Knights Templar in common with other monastic bodies. The three keys are still used in the Swedish rite. There are three degrees in which a key is worn attached to the riband, with the motto "Claudentem quis aperit, aperientem quis claudit."

†A reference is here made, it is supposed, to the 4th degree of the Swedish system, Scottish Apprentice and Fellow Craft.

Count Beaujeu performed the orders of the Grand Master with the utmost exactitude, and brought to him the triangular silver-mounted casket. As soon as Molay saw it, he took it in his hands, and covered it with kisses; he then said to Beaujeu—"My dear son, this basket containeth the most sacred relic that the Order received from King Baldwin, namely, the forefinger of the right hand of St. John the Baptist* The coffin from under which thou hast drawn the casket containeth not the remains of thine uncle, but a large silver coffer; as soon as thou enterest thou wilt find thyself in a spacious subterraneous chamber, in the middle of which thou must dig up another coffer, which containeth all the ancient papers and documents that belong to the Archives of the Order, together with the Crown of the Kings of Jerusalem,† the Lamp that once burned at the Holy Sepulchre, the seven branched Candlestick, the four Gospels, the Sword, the Square, and the Standard of the Order.‡ With the third key thou mayest open the coffer, under the pretence that thy uncle, the Grand Master Pierre de Beaujeu, had ordered his remains to be brought from the East to the sepulchre of the Grand Masters in Paris. I caused all these precious things which I had saved from the hands of the Infidels to be brought thither, and yet every one is firmly persuaded that they have all become the booty of the Infidels. The two pillars with which the vault of the Grand Master is adorned are hollow, and in them is a treasure which hath been for some time collected there; it hath been saved of the remains of the Order, and by degrees placed there after removing the capitals of the pillars, which may be taken off" Promise now, and swear unto me that thou wilt preserve this treasure to the use of

*We learn from Addison that on the 21st August, 1191, the Templars joined the standard of Richard Crur de Lion, at Acre, and fought with him against Saladin. In a letter he wrote to Saladin, 16th October, exhorting him to put an end of the war, King Richard demanded as the price of peace the restitution of Jerusalem, of Palestine, and the true Cross. This Cross had been captured at the battle of Tiberius, where it was borne by the Bishops of Ptolemais and Lidda, the former of whom was slain, and the other, together with the King of Jerusalem and the Grand Master of the Temple were taken captive. One of the Arabian authors, speaking of it says—"They say that it is the identical wood to which the God whom they adore was fastened. They had adorned it with fine gold and brilliant stones; they carried it before their armies; they all bowed towards it with respect." Saladin, in his reply to Richard, refused his conditions of peace, saying—"As to the cross, the reverence you pay to that bit of wood is a scandalous idolatry, disrespectful to the Most High, and hateful in the sight of God. We will, therefore, not give it to you, unless by so doing we can secure some great and manifest advantage to Islam.

†The Crowns (for there were two) of the Latin Kingdom at the death of Baldwin IV., King of Jerusalem, were kept in a large chest in the Treasury, fastened with two locks. The Grand Master of the Temple kept the key of one of those locks, the Grand Master of the Hospitallers the other. Heraclius, supported by the Grand Master of the Templars, and against the wish of the Grand Master of the Hospital, crowned the Countess of Jaffa, sister of the late King, Queen of Jerusalem. The G.M. of St. John at first refused to give up the key to get the Crowns.—Addison.

‡All these are still used, it is said, in the 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th degrees of the Swedish rite.—

*Jennings Rosicrucians, page 264.

†Castle of Tuilleries, year VIII, quoted at page 265 of the Rosicrucians.

‡Described in Addison as William de Beaujeu, the hero, who died so gloriously at the head of his Knights at the siege of Acre; Gaudin succeeded him, then De Molay.

the Order alone, and that thou wilt make use of it to the support of those wretched brethren that have been scattered over the world by the late mournful events, and who, fearful of discovery, are now enduring the severest privations. Promise me further to propagate the Order until it may reckon nine perfect architects* amongst its numbers. For myself, I beg of thee that thou wilt, if it be possible, lay my bones in the sepulchre of my fathers, clothed in the habit of the Order,

This de Beaujeu promised, and swore to do his utmost to perform all that he had undertaken.

Molay, satisfied of the good intentions of his nephew, said to him—"I shall demand of thee before God, at the last Judgment, whether thou hast fulfilled thy promise. Farewell, my dear son, I embrace thee for the last time. From this hour I shall give myself wholly up to preparation for my end."

Hereupon de Beaujeu left him.

The rest of that day Beaujeu passed at home in solitude, for he could not at first determine with himself what he had to do, nor what course he had to pursue in order to keep his promise and fulfil his obligations, and the approach of night alone put an end to his meditations.

He then put on a travelling dress, took the cloak that he wore at his first descent into the Grand Master's Vault, together with the dark lantern and the three keys, and gave his domestics to understand that he was going a journey into the country.

Exactly at the hour of midnight he entered the Grand Master's Vault by the small Portal which Molay had pointed out to him and came to the coffin supposed to contain the remains of his uncle Pierre de Beaujeu from thence he passed through the niche as he had been instructed into a dark vaulted-chamber, and having dug in the spot his uncle Molay had told him, found the coffer. This he opened with the third key, and as it was too heavy for him to carry away at once he bound linen cloths round his body and thus brought out at several times the most important papers and documents of the order. The Crown, Lamp, seven branched candlestick, Ring of the Grand Master, &c, the sight of which caused him no small amazement, he locked the coffer and covered it up again.

The papers, &c, he could not carry out of the vault at once, but was obliged to descend several times till he had brought them all up.

He then went out of the Temple, and left Paris the same night, and went to and resided at a small vineyard in the neighbourhood of the City that belonged to him. Here he remained six days and read over repeatedly the documents respecting the former possessions of the order, at the perusal of which he was greatly astonished; at the end of this time he returned to Paris, not forgetting his promise that he would do his best to bury Molay's body in the tomb of his ancestors, and clothed in the habit of the order. He sent for his two Instructeurs and discovered to them how he had been employed for the last six days, and that he had undertaken to bury Molay in the habit of a Knight Templar, and sworn to propagate the Order until it should be able to reckon nine perfect architects upon Earth. Hereupon the two Instructeurs acquainted him circumstantially with all that had happened at the execution of the Grand Master, of which they had been eye witnesses, and that he had with his last breath summoned Pope Clement V. and King Philip the Fair, the former within 40 days, the latter within one year, to appear before the Judgment seat of God. They told him further that they had so accurately remarked the spot in which the remains of the Grand Master had been hastily interred, that they could easily find it again, that in fact, with the assistance of seven other Templars they had discovered the exact spot upon a small hillock and had placed upon it as a mark a small branch so that when they could do it with safety the half-burnt body might easily be distinguished. Moreover they had collected the ashes of those parts of his body that had been entirely consumed, and placed them in an urn. The Count De Beaujeu hearing this, sent for the Knights Templar, communicated to them what the last Grand Master had enjoined him to perform with regard to the propagation of the Order, and received from them a solemn promise to assist him in this undertaking. To make this obligation still more solemnly impressive, de Beaujeu revived an ancient custom of the Knights Templar, according to which they all pledge each other in a goblet of wine into which each knight shed a few drops of his blood. They then at the command of de Beaujeu admitted eighteen other brethren to their confidence, disguised themselves as Masons, and provided themselves with shovels, dark lanterns, and bells.* Nine of these brethren were to disinter de Molay's remains, whilst the other knights were to keep watch at the bottom of the rising ground, and at the slightest noise to give the signal of alarm with the bells.

*An allusion, probably, to the Elected Knight of nine—the 9th degree in the A. & A. Rite.

They were also to arm themselves with swords in order to offer resistance if attacked. Having disinterred the body, they were to wrap it up in their aprons, and if asked who they were and what they were about, they were to answer that they were coming from work, and were carrying one of their comrades, a mason, who had met with an accident.†

All this they performed with the greatest exactitude, and disinterred without the least confusion or difficulty, the remains of the Grand Master, whose hands they found still bound together with the cord, and carried him into the Church of the Temple.

De Beaujeu went first, and entered exactly at midnight, and through the large portal into the vault of the Grand Masters, where he made the necessary preparations, and dug up the coffer, in which the crown and the other precious things were laid. In this coffer they then laid De

*A reference to the 4th degree, Swedish system.

†This union of the trowel and sword will be understood by members of the Royal Order of Scotland. Laurie expresses his belief that on the suppression of the Order, many of the Templars took refuge with Robert the Bruce. They ranged themselves under the banner of that Prince, by whom they were formed into a new Order, the observations of which were based on those of the Templars.—"Laurie's History of Freemasonry in Scotland," page 93.

Molay's remains, in the habit of the Order, together with the ashes that the nine Templars had before collected; the coffer was then placed in the sarcophagus or coffin, supposed to be that of the Grand Master de Beaujeu, in which, too, a large chest of treasure was contained. To these they then added the treasure concealed in the two pillars that adorned the vault of the Grand Masters, and which they were able to take out by removing the capitals.

Satisfied with the success of their undertaking, they left the church of the Temple before daylight, betaking themselves to Beaujeu's vineyard, where they renewed their obligations, and solemnly swore to propagate the Order, and to remain faithful to Beaujeu, and pledged each other once more in the above-mentioned goblet.

After this ceremony de Beaujeu exhibited to them all that he had brought out of the vault.

What was their astonishment to find that these precious things were still in the possession of the order, for they had until then been firmly persuaded that they had fallen into the hands of the Infidels at the time that Palestine was lost to the Order, and the knights were obliged to withdraw themselves from the East.

De Beaujeu now petitioned King Philip to be allowed to remove the coffin of his uncle, the former Grand Master, from the Temple Church, which was granted; whereupon he, and his nine brethren, whom he had first associated with himself, with the assistance of the other eighteen, raised the coffin containing De Molay's body, the treasures, &c., out of the Grand Master's vault with cords, and bore it to De Beaujeu's vineyard, where they interred the body of the Grand Master afresh. De Beaujeu wished to place the crown with De Molay's remains in the coffin, but the brethren would not suffer him, and the nine Templars, setting it upon his head, proclaimed him lawful king of Jerusalem.

But De Beaujeu deprecated this honour, and said:—"Assist me rather, my brethren, in preserving this sacred pledge in a secure place, so that it may be retained in the Order for ever."

This they then promised, and elected him unanimously Grand Master of the Order, under the name of Solomon.* The two "Instructeurs" and the first seven brethren were then elected councillors of Solomon.†

After that De Beaujeu replaced the papers and documents of the Order, together with the remains of De Molay, in the coffin, and had it brought to Carpentaras, whither he followed, accompanied by the twenty-seven Temple brethren. They arrived there on the forty-second day after De Molay's, and the second after the decease of Clement V., and heard that the corpse of the Pope had that morning been brought thither, and was lying in state in the Cathedral. On one and the same day, therefore, there were lying in the same church the bodies of Molay, and of Clement V.

The remains of the latter were to be carried to Uzes on the morrow, and there interred.

De Beaujeu penetrated with the desire of revenging the abominable and unjust deeds of the

*Still the denomination of the Grand Master of the Swedish system.

†Another reference to the Swedish system.

Pope upon his lifeless carcase, observed that the soldiers who should guard the body were not upon their post. He therefore, with the brethren, drew near the body and broke a lamp that was hanging over it, so that the oil ran over the papal habit and set it on fire*.

They extinguished the fire, however, after a time, took the body of the Pope out of the coffin, and placed the remains of De Molay in its stead. They then tore the tongue out of the head, and the heart out of the bosom, and struck off the head, burnt the body, and scattered the ashes to the four winds of heaven.

The next morning when the followers of the Pope saw what had happened they hastily put upon De Molay's remains, (supposing them to be those of the Pope,) another papal habit, and went on to Uzès in grand procession, where they interred the remains with all the pomp of a papal funeral.

De Molay's body remained here a whole month, at the expiration of which Beaujeu, under the pretence of visiting the vault, disinterred the corpse, clothed it in the habit of the Order, laid the precious remains in the coffin of the Grand Master, and placed upon the lid a triangular plate with the inscription, "J.B.M.B. A.D.N.J.C., M.C.C.C.X.IV., 11 Martii.†

De Beaujeu remained, according to the best accounts, in France. The two Instructeurs, however, one of which in all probability was Peter of Boulogne, (Petrus de Bonomia), the other's name is not known, left France and betook themselves first to Beinhelm, and from thence to Scotland, where they propagated the clerical branch of the Order in the Isle of Mull, and Harris and his successors have continued it even unto this day under the name of Freemasonry.

Peter of Boulogne died in the Isle of Mull at the advanced age of more than one hundred years. Thomas Wharton, otherwise called Bro. Edmund, was his successor.

On the evening of Molay's execution the gaoler who had the guard over the three knights, who were awaiting the same fate, having been an eyewitness of the execution, and the circumstances attending it, had compassion on them, and connived at their escape, and softened by their entreaties, even allowed them to carry off documents of the highest importance, as well as the sacred vessels of the Order, which they had concealed in one of the altars of the Temple Church.

Two of these brethren escaped into Scotland, taking with them the sacred fire, the third, it is supposed, took refuge in the north of Sweden.

*Historical, but whether it was purposely brought about as in the text, would be perhaps, difficult to prove. Addison says the dead body was transported to Carpentras where the Court of Rome then resided; it was placed at night in a church which caught fire, and the mortal remains of the holy pontiff were almost entirely consumed.

†Jacobus Burgundus Molanus Bustus (sic) Anno Domini, Nostra Jesu Christi 1314. These initials have another secret meaning known to those who have the 6th degree of the Zimmendorf system, and are to be seen on the sword of the Grand Master, as well as on the cross worn by the officers of the Chapter or Conclave.

‡This is said to be historical.

This narrative I had lent me in manuscript, by my worthy friend, Sir Knight G. S. Findley, P.E.C., Registrar of the Prudence Encampment. I have copied it verbatim et literatim, and have only added one or two footnotes of my own by way of commentary. I should state that this lecture, originally given before the members of my own encampment, has since been elaborated and almost re-written for the Freemason. I shall have to say more anon concerning the Swedish system.

(To be continued.)

Original Correspondence.

MASONS AT PUBLIC MEETINGS,

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Our Rev. Bro. Woodward's short and succinct statement confirms my own anticipated view of the case. Reporters are in the habit of placing appendages to the names of those who speak on a platform—"So-and-So, J.P.," then addressed the meeting."

It need not be imagined that such a one was there in his magisterial capacity. But Bro. Woodward's appointment is really a public one also, just like a chaplaincy to any public institution whatever. Whether placing the appendage to Bro. Woodward's name was his own act or that of the reporter seems to me to signify nothing. Our Rev. Bro. on the recent occasion, merely performed an ordinary ministerial duty, when suddenly called upon. There was no mixing up of Masonry with the objects of the meeting.

What's in a title?

Yours fraternally,

WILLET L. ADYE, R.A., 30^o & C.
Ryde, 7th Sept., 1872.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. Woodward in attempting to exonerate himself from blame for attending in his Masonic capacity, or at all events, allowing himself to be reported as so attending a public meeting at Ipswich, got up for the purpose of abusing the Roman Catholics and their religion, fails to see the point of the complaint made against him.

He asks why he is singled out of more than a thousand persons present for rebuke, when the same offence had been committed by others at several previous lectures, and my reply is simply because he went as a Mason, and they did not.

Ipswich is a great place for Masonry, there are four Craft Lodges, three Royal Arch Chapters, one Mark Lodge, two Knights Templar Encampments, and one Rose Croix Chapter, and the Ipswich Masons do not like to see one of their number figuring at public meetings, either of bigoted Catholics or rampant Protestants.

I hope Bro. Woodward will bear this in mind, and not offend again.

VECTIS.

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to your correspondent, an "Old P.M.," I beg to state that in this Province (one of the largest under the English constitution) the Prov. G.M. has hitherto selected his officers "on the recommendation of brethren having influence with him;" for instance, the P.G. Registrar and P.G. Secretary (I believe the former in particular), and that unless a P.M. can make acquaintance and get into favour with these brethren, he has not the slightest chance of being nominated for "the purple." He may have been a subscribing member in the Province, and to its charities for many years, probably passed through the chairs of various lodges and chapters, be competent to give all the degrees and lectures, notal his successors, be equal in standing in society and in the lodge to the best of us, have received all the honours his lodge or chapter (for as one of the selected, I am proud to say the same glorious system prevails in our Prov. G. Chapter,) can bestow, and yet not be considered eligible. Further, should he presume to compete for the only office in the election of the brethren, the Pro. G. Reg. is prepared with a nominee of his own from amongst ourselves (of course holding past or present rank) for whom he will canvas and use all his influence, and we, his staunch supporters and protégés, as in duty bound, will vote accordingly.

Should a P.M. adopt the line of conduct suggested, I venture to promise that notwithstanding that he may never have given us a degree in his life, or (being probably quite competent in this respect, for any of us challenge comparison with any outsider) be a very young Mason in years as well as experience, he is morally certain to be appointed, and may retain office year after year, regardless of the seniority, Masonic standing, or qualifications of the large number of P.M.'s who have been passed over.

It has often been urged by those who object to what they are pleased to term the unsatisfactory state of things, that if the Prov. G.M. would visit lodges and judge for himself as to the qualifications of "Old P.M.'s" deserving or seeking for Prov. G. honours (or sometimes consult with members not in the Prov. G. Lodge at all), instead of relying on advisers who invariably recommend their own relations or friends only, more fair and equitable, or at all events more frequent changes in these appointments would certainly be made, but I do not believe in this, and sincerely hope that such a time will never arrive for us.

Yours fraternally,

W. L.

9th September, 1872.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

If an old "P.M." had watched carefully the proceedings of "Provincial Grand Lodges," he could not have failed to see "the way the cat jumps." I beg to inform him that it matters not how he may work in the Craft, how much time he has bestowed upon Masonry, how much money he has expended, it is of no avail, there is "a clique" who keep the gate closed to all comers, and none is allowed to scale the barrier unless basking in the sun of their influence. Why should it be so? Are we not all supposed to be in the same crib? Do we not all stand on the same square? Are we not all guided by the same great lights? Are we not all linked together by that great chain of bonds which we we accepted at our initiation? If these be our principles why cannot we all be allowed the same privilege of attaining the summit of the mason's ambition, providing they are fully qualified. Away with that great bane of Masonry "Cliquesism," that is the lotus tree that has blighted many a good man's hopes—it is the rock upon which his fragile barque has foundered, it has snapped asunder the silver cord which many an anxious hour has woven, and has caused disension where all should be brotherly love. Such being the case, I would propose that each Grand Lodge officer should only hold office for two years, and that he be not eligible again until the expiration of at least five years. This would act as a stimulant to the Craft generally, and would promote a healthy spirit of competition. Some of the officers in West Lancashire have held office for a vast number of years, and show no sign of relinquishing their iron grasp, but rather strengthen it. In conclusion I would advise a banding together of the craft generally and see if we cannot lop off some of those cankerous branches which tend to make the tree withers and bear so little fruit.

Yours fraternally,

VELOX.

Liverpool, Sept 10th, 1872.

BRO. HUGHAN AND GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with great pleasure your scathing review of Bro. Hughan's "Old Charges of the British Freemasons" in last week's Freemason, and I venture to suggest to the powers that be, that now would be a fitting time to testify the approval of the Craft to our learned brother's efforts in the cause of Masonry.

Few men have done so much to elucidate the knotty points, to solve the difficulties, and to write the real history of Masonry, as Bro. Hughan, and since Dr. Oliver's time there are but one or two names that could be mentioned with our brother's for deep research into the mysteries of the Royal Art. I submit that Grand Lodge would honour itself by rewarding Bro. Hughan, as he deserves, with an office worthy of his acceptance.

Yours fraternally,
VECTIS.

Reviews.

Music for the Masonic Ceremonies. By Bro. E. J. Crow, Mus. Bac. (Cantab). London: Novello, Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 35, Poultry, E.C.

We have much pleasure in drawing the attention of the Craft to the really useful little publication by Bro. Crow. The words selected, and the music arranged and composed by our able brother, will be found especially suitable in the various portions of our ceremonies, where a judicious and appreciative organist renders such service to the impressiveness and success of the whole proceedings.

Bro. Crow is already favourably known to the fraternity by his "Music for the Ceremony of Advancement to the Mark," but for ourselves we give the preference to the present compilation, and trust that the brethren who are fond of the bewitching influences of music, and advocate the organist of a lodge being something more than a name, will extend their support to the Prov. Grand Organist of Leicestershire, by subscribing liberally for copies of the above publication.

Every member of a lodge should possess a copy, and certainly our vocalists in the Craft should be invited to make our meetings as attractive and agreeable as possible.

Part 1, now under review, is published at the nominal charge of 6d., and can be had direct from Bro. Edwin J. Crow, 73, London-road, Leicester, or from the undermentioned. No doubt, if the Masters of lodges were disposed to subscribe for a quantity, Bro. Crow would still further lessen the cost; but we can conscientiously recommend his excellent musical pamphlet, because it is a most meritorious production, and offered for the outlay of a trifle. We anticipate that as soon as Part 1 becomes generally known, the demand for it will become general, and then the remaining portions of the work will be issued.

The Israelites Found in the Anglo-Saxons. By WILLIAM CARPENTER. George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.; 2; Monument-place, Liverpool. Price 2s. 6d., post free 2s. 8d.

Bro. William Carpenter, although "old in years," is mentally as active as ever, and has ably treated a confessedly difficult subject in the work now before us. In a neat little volume we find that our aged friend and respected Craftsman has traced the Ten Tribes (supposed to be lost) from the land of their captivity to their occupation of the "Isles of the Sea." In the compass of some two hundred pages of closely printed matter, the various passages bearing on the question in the sacred volume, and in other books, are most learnedly, and yet simply considered, so as to present to the Biblical student and to all whom it may concern, a concise and most entertaining account of the Hebrew race from the days of their troubles to the present time.

We are not aware of any work which so lucidly and fully affords an insight into all the considerations involved in such an extensive, and apparently so difficult, subject as the theories of such men as the late excellent Mr. John Wilson, and the indefatigable Mr. Hine, must of necessity receive a large amount of examination, and may be incorporated in the work, the domian of facts has not been neglected, and we can truly say that until Bro. Carpenter's valuable and handy volume appeared, we never thought the whereabouts of the Ten Tribes at all likely to be discovered.

As it is, we have been led step by step by our careful brother, who on every hand surrounds us with evidences as he proceeds, and gradually and clearly the whole of his important plan was revealed, and we were enabled to see, not only an exhibition of those traits of character and national characteristics assigned to Israel in the books of the Hebrew prophets, but actually to follow the migrations of the "favoured nation" from one part to another, then to their settlement in these our islands, and finally, to notice in this, the fulfilment of the mission, which it was predicted should be that of Israel—viz., to occupy the isles, to raise up a standard for the nations, and to make known the true God, and his salvation to the ends of the earth.

We predict a large sale of this work, for the like of it cannot be obtained elsewhere, when the small sum per copy, and the mass of information are taken into consideration; and we hope that Freemasons especially, who should naturally feel much interested in the subject, because of the Jewish character generally of their ceremonies, will support Bro. Carpenter in his endeavours to elucidate difficult parts of Holy Writ.

We venture to remark that no student of our Masonic history could possibly peruse the pages of this unpretending little volume without feeling still more impressed with the importance of the inquiry, and we cordially invite the fraternity to aid us in seeking to place a copy of "The Israelites Found" in every religious home in this country.

On the part of the publisher we may state that if this attempt to issue, in a portable form, a series of articles which previously appeared in the Freemason, is at all likely to cover the cost, other contributions from the many valued contributors to the British organ of the Craft, shall also be published in a similar manner.—A PAST MASTER.

Shakespeare a Freemason; or The Bard of Avon Lodge. A Record by J. C. Parkinson, W.M. 778, P.M. 181; P.Z. 259; author of "Places and People," "The Ocean Telegraph to India," &c., &c.

A few weeks back we had the pleasure of chronicling in the Freemason the successful revival of the Bard of Avon Lodge, under the auspices of Bro. Parkinson and other eminent brethren, and our readers cannot have forgotten the eloquent speech in which the newly installed Master of No. 778 paid homage at the shrine of Shakespearean thought, and at the same time claimed the "Bard of Avon" as a brother.

The internal evidence upon this point, which Bro. Parkinson had discerned in the works of the great dramatist, and which he so aptly and forcibly set before a limited circle of brethren upon the occasion of the transfer of the Bard of Avon Lodge to Middlesex, is now, we are happy to say, presented in a concentrated form, and with such an aspect of completeness, and an array of authorities, as cannot fail to gratify, even if it does not entirely convince the most critical student, or even sceptical enquirer. Doubtless the undertaking is a great one, and Bro. Parkinson fully recognises its magnitude by quoting in a most interesting collection of notes to the present publication, the various theories as to Shakespeare's supposed trades or occupations, which have been broached and maintained by certain learned commentators, and supported by reference to the works of the Poet. It is unnecessary, in this connection, to do more than glance at those theories, our business being mainly with the Masonic part of the question, but it is important to bear in mind that, whereas Shakespeare could use legal phraseology, or technical trade terms, in the most free and copious manner, he would naturally be restricted, as a Mason, from employing other than obscure hints to convey his knowledge of Masonic science. Bro. Parkinson most skillfully grasps this fact, and makes it plain to the dulcist comprehension, even while he places before us indications and allusions which conclusively prove to a Masonic perception that Shakespeare was one of the mystic tie, a Mason and a Master!

"Non sans droit." "It is in this spirit that the Bard of Avon Lodge adopt the motto of Shakespeare. It is "not without right" it bears its name, if it, as a Masonic organisation, succeeds in establishing the fact that the Poet was a Mason."

Such are the modest words by which Bro. Parkinson's work is prefaced, and few can read the accumulated evidence of Shakespeare's Masonic lore, without feeling that the case which Bro. Parkinson undertakes to establish, is logically and incontestably proved.

We honour the man who devotes the powers of a cultivated intellect to so worthy a research. We should admire him, even if his well-meant arguments appeared somewhat weak and inconsequent, but when the brilliancy of success crowns laborious zeal, we are surely justified in awarding the highest meed of praise.

We shall revert to the subject in next week's Freemason.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL

The "Knole" Lodge, No. 1414 will be consecrated at the Masonic Hall, Sevenoaks, on Wednesday, the 25th instant, by Brother R. Wentworth Little, P.M. 975 and 1293, Provincial Grand Secretary for Middlesex, the officer nominated for the purpose by the R.W. Brother Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., Provincial Grand Master for Kent. A large number of Masonic notables is expected; and the South Eastern and London, Chatham, and Dover railway companies have agreed to convey the brethren at single fares for the return journey from London, and the principal stations in Kent.

The marriage of the Right Hon. the Earl of Jersey, Past Grand Warden of England, to the Hon. Margaret Elizabeth Leigh, eldest daughter of the Right Hon. Lord Leigh, Provincial Grand Master for Warwickshire, is appointed to take place on the 19th inst.

Bro. George Lambert, 30^s, has been unanimously re-elected President of the Goldsmiths' and Jewellers' Annuity and Asylum Institution for the ensuing year.

From our able contemporary, the Daily News, we learn that the proceedings of the Scientific Congress were brought to a close at Brussels, on the 30th ult. On the 29th, Professor Virchord, of Berlin, presided. M. Dupont, of the Belgian Museum, traced the connection of the various populations in Belgium among each other at the different ages of stone. A very lively debate arose on the question of the descent of the present race of men from the troglodytes, and on the causes in the difference of types. In the afternoon the problems of the tertiary age and of the age of bronze, occupied the Congress on the 30th ult.; the question of determining the relative remoteness of the ages of bronze and of iron, led to many valuable disquisitions, and an admirable summary of the recent anthropological discussions at Brighton was given by our esteemed and learned Bro. Hyde Clarke, 33^s, of France.

"After the long'ly testing it, I believe your Vegetable Pain Killer to be the best medicine for diarrhoea I have ever known. It gives speedy and permanent relief without any shock or causing constipation. It is a most useful and valuable family medicine.—E. T. BARRATT, Surrey Chambers, Strand, July 1869.—To Perry Davis & Son, London."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Truthful Experience.—The unsolicited and united testimonial of thousands who have received enduring benefits from Holloway's medicine extended over more than a quarter of a century, most strongly recommends these Pills as the best purifiers, the mildest aperients, and the surest re-ventives. They never prove delusive in fulfilling the most sanguine wishes of the sufferers, they are not content with affording merely temporary relief, but attack all ailments of the stomach, lungs, liver, head and bowels in the only permanent and safe way, by depurating the blood and removing the impurities of action which are the foundation and support of almost every disease. The medicinal principle of these Pills (see Pills) is wonderful in renovating enfeebled constitutions.—ADVT.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, 1873.

Information wanted of the Names, Numbers, Place and Days of Meeting of all New Lodges and Chapters consecrated during the Years 1871 and 1872.

Secretaries and others will oblige by forwarding the above to the Publisher, 198, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

W. J.—A W.M. elect is presented and obligated as such in the second degree, and all below the rank of Installed Master are requested to retire. A Board of Installed Masters, consisting of three or more, is then formed, and the W.M. elect is installed in their presence according to ancient custom.

SCOTLAND.—The Report of the visit of the Prov. G. M. of Roxburghshire to Lodges 111 and 420 will appear next week.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

DEATH.

DONKIN.—On the 9th inst., 5, Thorburn-square, Fort-road, Bermondsey, Bro. John Donkin, P.M. and Secretary, Mount Lebanon Lodge, 73; aged 49 years, respected by all.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopenny per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL.

A serious fire took place in Canterbury Cathedral on Tuesday, the 3rd inst.

It appears that at about half past ten in the morning, so we gather from our contemporary the Daily News, a plumber was at work on the roof at the east end, when from some cause his coke fire got upset and set light to the dry timbers of the roof. When assistance could be procured, the fire had got such hold as to defy all efforts to get at it. Bell Harry was rung, and smoke and flames were soon seen issuing in volumes from that part of the east end of the roof, nearest to Becket's Crown, and at one time the total destruction of the glorious old cathedral was seriously threatened.

It appears that two or three years ago some very excellent waterworks were established in Canterbury, computed to supply the citizens with about 180,000 gallons per diem from a reservoir on St. Thomas's Hill, and from which the service is continuous at a pressure of 70lbs. to the square inch. Our readers will scarcely credit it, but it is nevertheless a fact, that though this safeguard has been within the reach of the cathedral authorities for rather more than two years, it was only at the last June audit that they gave their surveyor instructions to have the hydrants of the company fixed around the building. The question is, who is to blame?

We learn that the Dean and Chapter have had for centuries a water supply of their own, which, though quite sufficient for domestic purposes, was, as the Daily News, says, utterly useless when it had to cope with such a fire as took place on Tuesday week, and which ordinary common sense must have seen might at any time have taken place.

"As it was," our contemporary observes, "even the tardy order of the Dean and Chapter has not, for some inexplicable reason, been carried out by their surveyor up to the present moment." Had the hydrants been in the cathedral yard with a proper supply of hose at hand, the fire might have been extinguished in half an hour, as it was, it was some hours before the conflagration was got under, and all danger was over, but not until damage to the extent of £5000 had been sustained. Again we ask, who is to blame?

Thanks to the local Volunteer Fire Brigade, and its brave member Mr. George Delasaux, who at considerable personal risk, broke his way through one of the small windows of the clerestory, and dragging his hose after him, brought a strong stream to play upon the flames; thanks, also, to the active exertions of the military and others, as well as to the Phoenix office, whose hose was the first brought to play upon the burning pile, the fire was at length got under;—and the magnificent edifice reared by the piety of our ancestors was saved.

As Freemasons, we have a special interest in our glorious Cathedrals,—those monuments of the skill of the old Craftsmen, and especially this one of Canterbury. When Henry V. succeeded to the throne, Henry Chicheley, Archbishop of Canterbury, obtained the direction of the fraternity of Freemasons and under his auspices, so Preston informs us, Lodges and communications were frequent. As many of our readers are aware in the reign of Henry VI.* an act was passed, forbidding the assemblages of Freemasons, and this Act curiously enough has never been expressly repealed, we believe, although Coke gave it as his opinion that all the statutes concerning labourers were repealed by the Act 3 Eliz., cap 4.

However that may be, Preston says, the Act was never put in force, nor were the fraternity deterred from assembling as usual under Archbishop Chicheley, who still continued to preside over them.

Preston, in a foot note, quotes the Latin Register of William Molart, Prior of Canterbury, in manuscript, page 88, entitled Liberatio generalis Domini Gulielmi Prioris Ecclesie Christi Cantuariensis, circa Festum Natalis Domini, 1429, which informs us that in the year 1429, during the minority of this Prince, a respectable Lodge was held at Canterbury under the patronage of Henry Chicheley the Archbishop, at which were present Thomas Stapylton, the Master; John Morris, "custos de la lodge lathomorum" (sic) or Warden of the *Act 3 Hen. VI., cap. 1.

Lodge of Freemasons; with fifteen Fellow-Crafts and three Entered Apprentices, all of whom are particularly named. Henry Chicheley built the Western Tower of Canterbury Cathedral at his own expense, so Maude, in his Biographical Treasury, informs us.

There are, however, two Western Towers, but we may conclude that the older of the two is Archbishop Chicheley's noble work.

Chicheley was not however the first great Freemason whose name is connected with Canterbury cathedral, for it is said that it was founded by St. Augustine, first Archbishop, "under whom Masonry flourished, and many foreigners came into England, who introduced the Gothic style of building." Preston says "Austin seems to have been a zealous encourager of architecture, and appeared at the head of the Fraternity in founding the old cathedral of Canterbury in 600." This structure of St. Augustine's was not the building of to-day, we need hardly remind our readers, for it was merely commenced, not completed, in his lifetime, and it was burnt by the Danes, and afterwards restored in 1023 by Canute.

It was again burnt, and rebuilt shortly after the Norman conquest by Archbishop Lanfranc and his successor, Anslem, partly under the direction of Prior Conrad. It was afterwards considerably enlarged, and frequently improved, and enriched by succeeding Archbishops. At the east end is Becket's Crown, the scene of the recent conflagration, which was completed in the lifetime of Thomas A' Becket, who was murdered here. Trinity chapel formerly contained the splendid shrine of St. Thomas. There are no less than ten tombs of Archbishops, most of them patrons of the Freemasons, and one of them is the original tomb of St. Thomas, to which Henry II. came barefoot to do penance, and where Louis VII. of France, afterwards canonised as St. Louis, watched a whole night. Amongst the most splendid and interesting memorials of the past are the tombs of Edward the Black Prince, (whose armour and helmet, which had hung over it for centuries, had to be removed the other day during the fire). Henry IV. and his Queen, Archbishop Chicheley, Archbishops Bourchier and Courtenay, Cardinal Pole, the Earl of Somerset, and the Duke of Clarence.

A building so full of memorials of the past must be very dear to antiquarians, to Freemasons, to Englishmen, and its safety ought to be the first consideration of its custodians.

We trust that the Dean and Chapter will take immediate steps to prevent a recurrence of the sad catastrophe of the 3rd. A loss such as might have been sustained through the carelessness and neglect of those to whom the custody of this grand and venerable pile was entrusted would be simply irremediable. We are told the edifice is only insured for £20,000, and again we are forced to inquire, in the interests of the Craft, and the public, Who is to blame?

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated and varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and a nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water, October 14.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Thursday, the 29th ult. Bro. J. Harris, W.M., in the chair, supported by the officers, as follows:—Bros. F. Pratt, S.W.; G. Abbott, J.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; George Newman, S.D.; T. Cohen, J.D.; Charles Arkell, J.D.; also Bro. George Kenning, I.P.M., and Bro. Ebenezer Roberts, P.M. The lodge was opened in the first degree. Bro. J. W. Michael having passed the usual examination, and the lodge having been opened in the second, was duly passed to the degree of F.C. The lodge was resumed in the first degree. The following gentlemen having been unanimously elected by ballot, viz., Messrs. A. G. Manks, F. Fellows, and E. Follett, were regularly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. This being the only business before the meeting, the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then sat down to an excellent refreshment, which was ably presided over by the W.M., and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and which resulted in the termination of a very pleasant evening. Amongst the members present were—Bros. W. Figu, H. Davis, B. Marsland, S. Haynes, T. Fisher, S. Edwards, R. E. Bright, F. Scott, Charles Cann, W. Done, A. G. Putnam, J. Cook, W. Ramsey, J. Kent, W. F. Bates, J. G. Chillingworth, F. Jarvis, and W. Cotter; and Bros. H.S. Richards 145, William Worrell, W.M., 1339, Charles Jardine, S.D., 140.

HIGH CROSS LODGE (No. 754).—Between forty and fifty members of this prosperous and flourishing lodge met at Bro. Oddy's, Seven Sisters Hotel, Page Green, on Wednesday, the 28th ult. The lodge was called at the very early hour of one o'clock, on account of the quantity of business and pleasure to be gone through. The lodge having been opened in due form, Mr. H. A. Fowler, journalist, Mr. James Powell, and Mr. Henry Stevens, having been duly approved, were initiated by Bro. David Roberts, P.M., the ceremony was conducted in his usual impressive and pleasing style. After the raising of two brethren came the installation of Bro. J. Linzell into the chair, in ancient form, the installation ceremony being performed in the most perfect manner by Bro. Joseph Driscoll, P.M., United Mariners (No. 30). The W.M. then proceeded to appoint his officers as follows: Bro. T. E. Cunningham, S.W.; J. Maller, J.W.; J. Green, S.D.; Bro. T. Hughes, J.D.; Bro. S. Lance, I.G., and Bro. C. Copland, Secretary. A gloom was cast over the day's proceedings in consequence of the death of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Geo. Christie, at the early age of 39. The great loss the lodge has sustained was deeply felt; his many virtues and great zeal to promote the interests of the High Cross Lodge, had endeared him to all of the brethren. That some mark of respect should be shown to his memory was the predominant feeling of all; but it was thought that full justice could not be done to it then, and the consideration of what form it should take was, on the suggestion of Bro. Phillips, P.M., supported by Bro. H. Ballantyne, P.M., adjourned to the next lodge meeting. The W.M. then directed the lodge to go into mourning for the next three months. The lodge was then closed in due form, and upwards of forty brethren sat down to a banquet, served in splendid style, with all the delicacies of the season, and Bro. Oddy received, as he was entitled to, the hearty thanks of the brethren. After the usual toasts, an interesting part of the day's proceedings commenced, viz., the presentation to Bro. William Steedman, P.M., of a testimonial, consisting of a gold watch and chain, a Bible, and an illuminated vote of thanks on vellum, executed in Bro. Cunningham's best style. Bro. David Roberts, P.M., in presenting the testimonial said—"Worshipful Sir, and Brethren—Independent of the honour attached to filling the chair as Master of this Lodge, it confers upon those who have enjoyed that honour, a position in the lodge of occasionally being called upon to perform some agreeable and pleasing duty in connection with it; that agreeable duty has devolved upon me to-day, and it would be still more agreeable if I had the inward conviction that I could do justice to it; but what I lack in words I know I can make up for in sincerity. As this is an occasion when I know that you are anxious that its enjoyment should not be marred by long speeches, I shall be as brief as the nature of the subject will admit. We have among us a Past Master of this lodge, and its first initiate, a brother who, by his worthy, upright, and conscientious conduct during the many years that he has been connected with the lodge, has secured the good will and brotherly love of all the brethren; his willingness at all times to adapt himself to circumstances, and render himself useful where the good working and harmony of the lodge is concerned, is well known to you all; he has served every office in the lodge from Chair to Tyler, and has generally so devoted himself to the interests of this lodge, that it was thought these services should receive some substantial recognition. Brother Past Master Steedman, it is my pleasure to be the mouthpiece of the lodge, and to present to you, in the name of the lodge and the brethren here assembled, this gold watch and chain, Bible, and illuminated vote of thanks. I have little doubt that you will know thoroughly how to appreciate this mark of respect and brotherly love, the more so when I remind you that this is the first presentation of a testimonial in connection with this lodge (though, let us hope, it won't be the last); it is no meaningless tribute. We desire you to look upon these articles as a memento of our hearty appreciation of your many excellent qualities. And now, Bro. Steedman, allow me on my own behalf to say that I hand you these tokens with the sincere conviction that they are well deserved. I hope you may live for many years to wear this watch and chain; this volume of the Sacred Law will not be neglected in your hands; and this beautiful Vote of Thanks (executed by Bro. Cunningham as his contribution to your testimonial) will speak (years after you have thrown off this mortal coil) to your posterity, words that cannot fail to make them proud, not only of your name, but of the Craft that know so well how to appreciate your worth." Brother Steedman, who on rising to reply, was perceptibly affected, said—"Worshipful Sir, P.M. Roberts, and Brethren—All the years most of you have known me you never found me guilty of making a speech, what then can you think are my feelings at the present moment? I, who desire in every word the dictionary, and my own heart, could suggest to thank you; I feel entirely unable, even decently, to express to you how deeply moved I am at this mark of your kindness. It has been, and always will be, the greatest pleasure of my life as lodge night comes round, to meet you all, brethren, and contribute my mite to promote good fellowship and assist in the working of the lodge; and I hope my energy may never slacken, or my zeal ever cool, but that it will always be, as it always has been, a labour of love. Bro. Roberts, in his desire to please, has showered upon me so many kind words that I feel he must have exceeded his instructions, and expressed more his own feelings than the feelings of the lodge. You will believe me, when I tell you that this is by far the happiest day of my life. I have had, perhaps, more than my fair share of the trials and troubles of this life; but a day like this makes me think light of them all, and lends to make me believe that my life has not been spent uselessly, when in declining years my heart is thus gladdened by these tokens of your kindness. Worshipful Sir, and Brethren, I will not further encroach upon your time than to thank you, you don't know how heartily, for this mark of your favour, and you, Bro. Roberts, for your kind expressions towards me; may we all be spared for many years to uphold and support the dignity of the Craft, and this lodge in particular, and may the G.A.O.T.U. ever preserve fresh in my memory this day. Among the visitors were Bro. John J. Wilson, P.M., Enfield, No. 1237; Bro. Charles Eye, P.M. do.; Bro. John Turner, P.M. do.; Bro. George Townsend, P.M. Lily of Richmond; Bro. W. H. Main, P.M. New Concord, 813; Bro. John J. Clarke, P.M. High Cross; Bro. John Wright, P.M. Duke of Edinburgh, 1349, &c., all of whom must have left with feelings of pleasure and delight, after an evening spent amidst so many pleasant surroundings.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE (No. 1178).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 5th inst., at the Gregorian Arms tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey. The lodge was opened by Bro. George Jolly Grace, W.M. There were present during the evening Bro. F. H. Ebsworth, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Secretary; J. W. Avery, P.M., W.S.; J. W. Dudley, S.W.; J. Harnsworth, J.W.; J. Ruse, D.C.; G. Drapper, J. G. Tanyer, A. Lewis, W. J. Barber, A. Goodman, W. Batchelor, G. Mabbs, J. R. Johnson, S. Butcher, E. Lawrence, J. S. Hood, J. Rambert, G. Free, T. Jones, J. A. Smith, and others. Amongst a large number of visitors were Bros. A. L. Dussek, J. W., 73; T. Ball, S.D. 145; H. Dalby, W.S. 1194; G. Cattle, P.M., 1309; W. B. Smith, 1326; R. Gower, 1326; R. Godfrey, 1326. The minutes of the meeting held on Tuesday, June 6th, were read and unanimously confirmed. The work, done in a good style, comprised the passing of Bro. E. Lawrence, W. B. Smith, 1326; R. Gower, 1326; and R. Godfrey, 1326; to the second degree. After the bye laws had been read, the ballot was taken, and proved unanimous in favour of J. W. Dudley, S.W., as W.M.; F. Ebsworth, P.M., as Treasurer (re-elected). W. Y. Laing, P.M., Tyler, was unanimously re-elected. The audit is arranged to be held on Wednesday, 25th inst., at 7. p.m. A Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to Bro. G. J. Grace for his efficient services rendered to the lodge during his year of office. Messrs. F. Brett, A. Palmer, and G. Salt, were proposed as candidates for initiation at next meeting. The lodge was then closed.

STAR LODGE (No. 1275).—Installation Meeting.—The members of this flourishing and prosperous lodge, finding their quarters too small at New Cross, petitioned the M.W.G.M. to allow them to remove to Greenwich. Good reason having been given, leave was obtained. The first meeting at the new quarters "The Ship Hotel," Greenwich, was held on Friday, 6th ult. Precisely at three o'clock, the W.M., Brother C. J. Hogg, P.G.S., P.M., opened the lodge. During the afternoon there were present—Brothers H. Keeble, S.W.; W. Ough, P.G.P., P.M.; J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Sec.; T. R. Darke, S.D.; G. Pymm, P.M., J.D.; G. F. Guest, D.C.; W. Mock, T. Whiteman, T. Hobson, W. B. Tustin, W. Okey, S. Homewood, W. F. Wetten, J. J. Limebeer, W. M. Bull, G. S. Elliott, R. F. Duff, W. Kipps, J. Fox, C. Saunders, E. Townshend, W. Avill, W. Bell, T. Wheeler, R. Gutteridge, and others. The visitors were—Brothers J. Boyd, G.P.; F. Finch, G.S., S.W. 33; T. Parker, P.M. 34; F. Frampton, P.M. 87; J. Kew, P.M. 179; W. Hopkins, P.M. 179; A. Lackner, 179; T. Taylor, 554; H. Massey, P.M. 619; P. Parsons, W.M. 749; J. H. Roberts, 700; C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155; D. Betts, 1351; W. Hilton, 1351; F. W. Parsons, 1361, with very many others, whose names we were unable to ascertain. The minutes of the meeting held on Friday, June 7th, were read and unanimously confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was read, adopted, and entered on the minutes. It showed that after every liability had been met, the Grand Lodge dues paid to September 30th, 1872 (including a supplementary amount), that there was nearly as many pounds in hand as there were members in the lodge, viz., forty-one members, which showed what a sound financial state the veteran and experienced Treasurer had brought the lodge to in the short space of three years. The ballot was unanimous in favour of Mr. W. Meek, who being present, was initiated. Bro. R. Gutteridge was passed to the second degree. This completed the work done by the W.M., who had proved himself a careful, painstaking, correct, and admirable worker. Bro. J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M. and Treasurer, took the chair, and in his usual able manner installed Bro. H. Keeble, W.M., who appointed as his officers C. J. Hogg, I.P.M.; T.

R. Darke, S.W.; G. Pymm, P.M., J.W.; J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treasurer (re-invested); F. Walters, P.M., Sec. (re-invested); G. F. Guest, S.D.; J. J. Limebeer, J.D.; W. Kipps, I.G., and Organist; S. Homewood, D.C.; J. Gilbert, Tyler. The address to the W.M. was given by the Installing Master; to the Wardens and brethren, by Bro. W. Ough, P.G.P., P.M. One gentleman was proposed for initiation. The lodge was duly adjourned until Friday, December 6th, at three o'clock. The banquet was served up punctually at half-past five o'clock, p.m., which gave universal satisfaction; it was of the usual first-class style. After the banquet, and during dessert, the W.M., on behalf of the lodge, presented Bro. C. J. Hogg, P.G.S., P.M. 58, and I.P.M., with a handsome Past Master's jewel, who, in a suitable speech, acknowledged the gift. The harmonium was well played by the Organist, Bro. W. Kipps, some good songs sung, and recitations given. The lodge was opened at New Cross on September 3rd, 1868. There were but seven founders, six locals and one from town. Two founders resigned before second meeting was held, and one died, leaving but four members on October 1st, 1869, to make the lodge. How they succeeded is proved by the fact that forty-two members are on the list, furniture paid for, and good funds in hand.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

GLOUCESTER.—The Royal Gloucestershire Lodge (No. 839).—This young and flourishing lodge held its first meeting this session, on Friday, the 6th inst., in the lodge room of the Bell Hotel, in this city, T. W. Nelson Foster, W.M., presiding; Bro. T. Taylor, P.M. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, Brother Foster proceeded to initiate four candidates, which he did in his easy and perfect manner, affording much pleasure to all who heard him. The lodge being closed, twenty-two of the brethren sat down to banquet and passed a most delightful evening. This lodge took the initiative in the restoration of the "Reredos" in the Cathedral, during the Mastership of Brother Taynton, and subscribed £100, one-third of the cost then estimated; but when it was understood that this did not include the figures, and that the cost of those would be an additional nearly £600, and the brethren resolved, rather than not complete the work, they would endeavour to raise the sum required; this lodge has again come forward with over one hundred guineas. The "Reredos" is now fast approaching completion, but there is much to be done; and the Dean has decided the ceremony of unveiling shall not now take place until the whole shall be finished. So that, as the days are drawing in, and will be shorter, which would render it difficult for many of the brethren residing at a distance to attend, the event may not take place till the spring of next year.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Royal Hotel, on Thursday, 5th inst. In the absence of the W.M., who, with a great many of the brethren, was absent at the autumn manoeuvres, the chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. C. Carnegie, I.P.M., P.P. G. Purst, Hants, supported by the following officers:—Bros. Capt. Richardson, R.E., S.W.; A. McKenzie, J.W.; J. Marversley, as S.D.; J. Smith, as J.D.; W. J. Osmond, P.M., as Secretary; F. Anderson, I.G.; U. Lucas, O.G. The lodge was opened in form in the first degree, and the minutes of the last regular and emergency meetings were severally read and confirmed. Bros. Munro and Thomas, candidates for the Fellow Craft degree, were questioned respecting their knowledge of the previous degree, which, proving satisfactory, they were entrusted with a test of merit, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and those brethren were passed to that degree, the S. Warden explaining the working tools. The lodge was closed down to the first degree. The resignation of Bro. Swain, 107th Regiment, who has left Aldershot, was accepted. Subscriptions having been received for the Charitable Association, and other business transacted, the lodge was closed in peace, harmony, and brotherly love.

LANCASHIRE (EAST).

ROCHDALE.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 298).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Anne-street, Rochdale, on Wednesday evening last, the 4th inst. The lodge was opened at 6.30, by the W.M., assisted by Bro. P.M. William Ashworth, as S.W., and Bro. P. M. Roberts, as J.W. The minutes of the last regular meeting and lodge of emergency having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bros. Crossley, Hudson, and Schofield answered the usual questions to the W.M., and were afterwards raised to the degree of Master Mason by Bro. P.M. Holroyd, by the kind permission of the W.M., assisted by the Rev. Alfred Salts, Vicar of Littleboro', and Chaplain to the Lodge. The lodge was then closed to the first degree, when Mr. William Scholes was initiated into the mysteries of Masonry by the W.M. Bro. Jessie Forth, Bro. Oakden, S.D., having assisted in each ceremony. After some other business had been transacted, the lodge was duly closed, with hearty good wishes from several of the brethren. The brethren then adjourned to refreshments, after which the usual toasts were proposed and responded to most heartily, the brethren, one and all, requesting Bro. John Higgin, of St. Chads, 1129, a dear friend of Bro. Collingwood's, who has recently left for Canada, to convey to him, Bro. Collingwood, their kind regard and best wishes for his happiness and prosperity, and that he may meet nothing but friends in the country of his adoption. The brethren on this occasion seemed unusually happy, and kept together long beyond the time allowed by Bruce's Act, without being any the worse for remaining.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum, Lancaster, on Monday, 2nd September. In the absence of the W.M., the lodge was presided over by Bro. J. Daniel Moore, M.D., P.G.S.B. England, who was supported by the following officers and brethren:—William Hall, I.P.M.; W. J. Sly, S.W.; John Hatch, P.M. 281, as J.W.; James Taylor, S.D.; James Bolton, J.D.; R. Harger, John L. Bradshaw, E. Airey, E. Simpson, P.M., 281; R. Taylor, and J. Watson. After the usual business had been transacted, the ballot was taken and proved clear in favour of W. Thomas Jackson, of Lancaster, book-keeper, who being in attendance was duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry, by Bro. Moore, the acting W.M., the working tools being presented by Bro. Sly, S.W. As a mark of respect to the memory of the late Provincial Grand Master, Sir Thomas George Fermor Hesketh, Bart., M.P., the lodge was put into masonic mourning for three months, and a resolution expressive of condolence and sympathy with his relations was passed in open lodge.

Royal Arch.

LANCASHIRE (EAST).

LITTLEBOROUGH.—Chapter of Benevolence (No. 226).—The regular meeting of this Chapter was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Littleborough, on Thursday evening last, the 5th instant. The chapter was opened at 6 p.m., by Comps. William Briggs, P.P.Z., as Z.; Abraham Rigg, H.; J. W. Kershaw, J. The other officers present being—Comps. Robert Whitworth, Scribe E.; Stephen England, Scribe N.; William Ashworth, P. Soj.; William Peacocke, 1st Asst. Soj.; John Ashworth, 2nd Asst. Soj.; James Midgley, Janitor. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bro. George Rothwell, of Lodge Probity and Freedom, who was duly elected, and afterwards exalted to the degree of Holy Royal Arch Masonry, by Comp. William Roberts, P.P.Z., P.G.P., Soj.; assisted by Comps.

Briggs, Rigg, and William Ashworth, P.Z. Chapter of Unity 298, Provincial Grand 1st Asst. Soj. The business of the evening being ended, the chapter was duly and solemnly closed, with hearty good wishes from Companions Roberts, Barker, and Ashworth, representatives from neighbouring Chapters. The Companions having refreshed themselves, the usual Masonic and other toasts, which were duly honoured, amongst which was the health and prosperity of Comp. Collingwood, a member of his chapter, who had recently left for Canada, the country of his adoption, and where it is hoped he will make his mark, and gain the esteem of all with whom he has to do. His health was proposed by Comp. Roberts with very great feeling, and very heartily responded by the Companions. The "Visitors" was proposed by Comp. Briggs who thanked Comps. Roberts and Ashworth, for the ready assistance they were always prepared to give. The toast was heartily received by the Companions, and responded to by the First Principal of Unity Chapter, 298, who complimented the officers upon their efficient working, and expressed a hope that they would continue to work harmoniously together, and they need not fear being visited by any Arch Mason. The companions then separated at about 10.30, p.m.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Royal Sussex Chapter.—The quarterly convocation of the Royal Sussex Chapter of Perfect Friendship was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich when there were present Comps. S. B. King, P.Z., Acting First Principal; J. Pritchard, P.Z., Acting Second Principal; and G. S. Findley, P.Z., Acting Third Principal; J. Franks, P.Z., Scribe E.; N. Tracy, Scribe N.; P. Cornell, Prin. Soj.; Dr. Mills, P.Z. Visiting Bro., Emra Holmes, St. Lukes Chapter. The minutes of the last chapter having been read and confirmed, the companions proceeded to ballot for the officers for the ensuing year, with the following result:—Comp. Long, elected Z.; S. D. King, P.Z., H.; P. Cornell, J.; J. Franks, Scribe E., re-elected; — Townsend, Treasurer, do.; N. Tracy, Prin. Soj.; — Fraser, Scribe N.; — Syer, Janitor. Telegrams from the 1st and 2nd Principals, who reside at a distance, regretting their inability to attend, and a letter from Comp. Wright to the same purport were read; and there being no further business, the Companions shared the secrets of the Holy Royal Arch, and the chapter was closed.

Red Cross of Constantine.

METROPOLITAN.

PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND.

This conclave met at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on Monday, the 2nd inst., under the presidency of Sir Knight George Kenning, M.P.S., who was supported by Sir Knights Colonel Burdett, Levander, Cubitt, Little, Sillifant, Yeoman, Kingston, Scott, Hobson, Adams, and others. Two joining members, and one candidate were elected, and a committee, consisting of the M.P.S., Treasurer, Recorder, Sir Knights Levander, and Yeoman, was appointed to report as to removal to another place of meeting. The conclave was then closed, and the knights dined together at the Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi, where an elegant repast was provided at short notice by Bro. George States.

SOUTH AFRICA.

The following is from the Diamond News, published at Klipdrift, the principal of the Diamond Diggings at the Cape of Good Hope.

In all the calendar of Saints there is not one who has so many devotees as St. John, the patron Saint of the Freemasons. No Saint's day is so well remembered as St. John's day, or so well kept. It is frequently urged by those who either will not become, or cannot become Masons, that there is nothing in Masonry which is not to be found in Christianity, and that Christian brotherhood is quite as strong as that of Masonic.

These are points which others may debate. I assert the fact, patent to everyone who has eyes to see, that there is no spot in the whole wide world in which a Masonic Lodge has been founded where the members do not keep up with all their hearts and souls their aprons, sashes, and jewels on St. John's day. Visit any city or town in the United Kingdom on the 24th of June and you hear the Freemasons' March. Go to the Western Continent, or the Eastern Continent, and the same soul-stirring sound greets your ear. To India go and see with what splendour that day is celebrated. Throughout the Colonial Empire of great Britain, it is the same, and in that Dutch possession—coffee-growing Java—where every man who is not a Mason, is looked upon with suspicion, the day is a general holiday. In that beautiful "Isle of the Sea," Mauritius, St. John's Day festivities are kept up for a week at least. East, west, north or south—go which way you like, and the same Masonic enthusiasm prevails on this auspicious day. In Greenland, where they "Dance the twilight all away," as well as at Mecca and there are Masonic Lodges in both these places, St. John's day is kept up. "Turks, infidels, heretics," as well as Jews and Christians, are to be found doing suit and service to Saint John on the 24th of June. Is there any other Saint who has a "day" that is so honoured? I know of none. Certainly neither St. Peter, nor St. Paul, nor St. Mark, nor St. Luke, great as was their labours for the good of human kind, are so well remembered on any day in the year.

This being the case, it is but fair to say that there must be something in Masonry which none but Masons understand, feel, and enjoy. Mark! Here in these fields, where neither town—no, nor camp, was known two years ago, there are already two lodges established, and both of them celebrated St. John's Day with a fervour not surpassed in any part of the universal world. I was present at the festivities of one—the Octahedron, and I am bound to claim sufficient space of you to let the world know how the gay and festive members of that well-regulated lodge did honour to their patron saint. I venture to say that no Masons in any part of the globe did more honour to St. John on Monday last than did the Octahedrons. This was their manner of doing it.

They assembled in their temple at high noon, and went through "the usual ceremonies." What they are, it is not for any one of the uninitiated to guess at. All I can say regarding that is, that the following officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—Bros. I. S. Gordon, W.M.; J. W. Harsant, S.W.; A. R. Gooch, J.W.; Du Toit, S.D.; Read, J.D.; Webster, Treasurer; Maxwell, Secretary; Robinson, Chaplain; Rens, I.G.; Giani, Tyler. That they are all known to be "true and accepted Masons," is a sufficient guarantee that the affairs of the Octahedrons will be well administered during the next twelve months.

The morning service was all solemnity, the evening was all festivity. The Masons are renowned for their hospitality, indeed hospitality is one of the prominent virtues of the Craft. It is not the fashion of Masons to confine the enjoyments of St. John's Day within the limits of their own circle. A ball is considered the correct Masonic ticket. The Octahedrons never do anything but the correct thing, and they, therefore, decided to give a ball, and they gave it as Masons should, to as many of their friends and neighbours as they could accommodate.

The hall was most tastefully decorated. Over the main entrance was that all-seeing eye, without which no Masonic gathering could be tolerated. On the walls were Masonic emblems in silver and gold transparencies, interspersed with these were inscriptions in Greek, Latin, and English, expressive of the sentiments and objects of the Craft. Glittering stars formed of bayonets well placed, added brilliancy to the hall. Festoons worked in with evergreens of red, white, and blue, hanging gracefully from the cornice over the other decorations, and the effect, when the room was lighted, and the company had arrived, was dazzling. At nine o'clock the Grand Master of the Lodge—I. S. Gordon, Esq.—surrounded by his colleagues in office, officially opened the ball, and welcomed the company. The musicians struck up, and the ball was all life and animation. The hall had the appearance of a living kaleidoscope. The patterns changed every minute. Sashes, head-dresses, necklets, and neck ribbons, were one minute blended with red, blue, and white Masonic scarfs and aprons, and the next minute the whole were in contrast.

It was a charming sight, and I stake the word and honour of a "special" upon it, that there never was a ball in which the ladies were more tastefully dressed. The dresses were unexceptionable. There was not an ill-dressed lady in the hall. The dancing was quite equal to the dressing. Beauty conspired with fashion to bring gallantry to the test, and they succeeded. The gentlemen of the Craft, and the gentlemen innocent of craftiness, yielded to the blandishments of the conspirators. "As merry as marriage bells" would ill convey the merriment of the evening. Quadrille, galop, and waltz, followed each other in succession. Not a minute was lost. Bros. I. S. Gordon and A. R. Gooch, were Masters of the Ceremonies, and they deserve great credit for the manner in which they did their work. There was not a hitch anywhere. Mr. Commissioner Campbell, who has been half a century in the Queen's service, and who is a Mason of forty years' standing, tripped it with the youngest. His face shone with as much glow as his shoe buckles. I don't believe he is a day older than when I knew him first, and I doubt if he ever will be. Mr. Commissioner Bowker, the valiant and venerable, did good wall flower business, for he is as charming in his conversation as his brother Commissioner is at dancing. The ladies know best how charming our able Public Prosecutor is, and the belle of the room is my authority for saying that what Mr. Commissioner Campbell said at the supper table was quite correct. It is impossible to name all the heroes of the evening, it must be sufficient for your readers to know that every single Mason threw his whole heart into the festivities.

At midnight the ladies were, after a parade with their partners around the hall, the band playing the "Freemasons' March," taken to the supper-room, where a most elegantly arranged supper was ready for them. That prince of caterers, Davis, of the "Sir Henry Barkly Hotel," excelled himself on this occasion. There was nothing wanting. The turkeys were done to a turn, the jellies were firm and good, and the table groaned under every delicacy of the season.

The Grand Master filled the chair, and was well supported by Bros. Harsant, S.W.; A. R. Gooch, J.W.; Du Toit, S.D.; Read, J.D., and the other officers present, who served the ladies. Before the ladies left the table, the Grand Master proposed first "The Queen and the Craft." That toast having been responded to, he called upon the company to fill their glasses, and do honour to "The Guests of the Evening and the Commissioners."

After speaking generally to the toast, he took occasion to pay a compliment to the Commissioners, who, he said, he believed, were anxious to do all they could to serve the people, and to promote the prosperity of the Fields. The Grand Master concluded by expressing a hope that all present had enjoyed themselves, and that they would have many more such merry meetings.

Mr. Campbell was called upon to respond. He did so, although he said he thought Mr. Commissioner Thompson better qualified to speak to Ladies than he was. The Commissioners were desirous to do all in their power to promote the welfare of the Fields, and he thought such gatherings as these calculated to do good. There must be more of them (loudly cheered). His concluding expression was, "We are but a small community, and must try to live in harmony together. I do think the very best feeling exists amongst us at present, and I hope it will always so continue." The honourable gentleman resumed his seat amidst loud applause. Dancing was kept up until several of the small hours had passed away, the last dance being "Sir Roger de Coverley," in which twenty couples fluttered their fantasies charmingly.

The ball will be long remembered. It is the talk of the day. The Masons are glad they gave it—the guests are delighted they were there. Mr. Davis is praised most deservedly for the catering; and the musicians Messrs. Haygarth, Richards, and Bands, will be in request as long as there is a piano, violin, and cornet in Klip-drift.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

ANNIVERSARY OF FREEMANTLE LODGE.— (No. 1,033.)

The Brethren of the Freemantle Lodge celebrated their anniversary by a banquet, on Monday, June 24th, 1872, St. John's Day, one of the patron saints of the Order, at Bro. Herbert's Freemasons' Hotel. The occasion was marked by the brethren with much heartiness. Previous to the banquet, the brethren assembled in their Lodge-room, in William-street, for the purpose of installing the Worshipful Master Elect, and his colleagues in office, for the ensuing year.—Bro. D. K. Congdon, W.M., presided, and opened the Lodge in regular form. There were present—Bro. G. B. Humble, S.W.; Bro. G. Pearse, J.W.; Bro. Sampson, Treas.; Bro. J. H. White, Sec.; Bro. E. F. Duffield, J.D.; Bro. T. Wardle, I.G.; Bro. H. Jarvis, Tyler; Past Masters Bro. T. F. Stone, Bro. W. Jose, Bro. W. Snook; Bro. F. Sherwood, W.M. of Lodge 485; together with about a dozen more of the brethren of the lodge, and other visitors from Perth, Bros. Summers, Tymperley and Dean, who attended along with their Worshipful Master, at the special invitation of the brethren of the Freemantle Lodge. After various business had been transacted, the brethren proceeded to the installation of Bro. Geo. Bland Humble as Worshipful Master; Bro. Jno. F. Stone, P.M., taking the duties of Installing Master on the occasion, and conducting the ceremony in a manner which won the admiration of the brethren. Having been duly installed into office,

Bro. G. B. Humble, the newly-elected Master, said—Brethren, it is only just that I should express to you how deeply sensible I am of the honour conferred on me, in being placed in the high and honourable position of Worshipful Master of the Lodge—the highest rank of esteem you can confer on a brother. Although deeply sensible of the honour, and very grateful to you for your election of me to that high office, yet I am deeply sensible of the duties and responsibilities that will devolve upon me in connection with that office. I have, for some time past, been connected with that lodge, and served the offices of Junior and Senior Warden respectively, and have great pleasure in thinking that my election to the Master's chair in this lodge, is in some measure to be regarded as a recognition of the faithfulness with which I have already filled the former offices. Perfection, you all know brethren, is unattainable, and I am certain, therefore, that you do not look for that in me, but that every allowance will be made for any shortcoming or deficiencies that may appear. I can promise, however, that no honest and persistent effort will be wanting on my part to attain to a knowledge of the right discharge of the duties of the office; and I am happy to think that I shall have the very efficient assistance of the Wardens and other office-bearers in the lodge. I trust that I may be enabled faithfully to perform its duties to the satisfaction of my conscience, and with what next to this I most of all desire, the approbation of the brethren of the lodge.

The W. Master then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bro. G. Pearse, S.W.; Bro. E. F. Duffield, J.W.; Bro. Jno. De Mansfield Absolon, Treas.; Bro. Sam. T. Solomon, Sec.; Bro. T. Wardle, S.D.; Bro. L. Henderson, J.D.; Bro. G. A. Forsyth, I.G.; and Bro. H. Jarvis, Tyler.

The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment, at the Freemasons' Hotel, where about thirty sat down to one of the most, if not the most, excellent spread ever prepared there on similar occasions. It was served in Bro. Herbert's usual excellent style, and reflected great credit also on the caterer, Mr. H. Albert. The W.M.,

Bro. G. B. Humble, occupied the chair, and was supported on his left by the Immediate Past Master, Bro. D. K. Congdon, and P. M. Sherwood : on the right, by P.M.'s J. F. Stone, W. Snook, and J. N. Croke. The vice-chair was occupied by the Senior Warden, Bro. G. Pearse. A "Masonic grace" (as it was styled afterwards), having been said by the W.M., and responded to by the brethren, the very agreeable labour of doing ample justice to the good things provided was well performed by all present. The dishes being removed,

The W.M., after a few appropriate remarks to the brethren, gave the toast of "Her Majesty the Queen." Loyalty, he said, was a prominent feature of Freemasonry, and he felt certain that loyalty was not wanting in the Masons of Western Australia. They all knew, that in the person of her Majesty, they had a Queen, who, from her kindly and affectionate nature, was endeared to the hearts of all her subjects (cheers).

The W.M. next gave the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family." There was one thing, he said, in regard to the Prince, which they were all proud of, that is, they could think of the Prince as a "Brother Mason." He believed that the Freemasons of England regretted that H.R. Highness did not enter the Order under the jurisdiction, originally, of the English Constitution. That might arise from a knowledge of the fact, that his good and honoured father, the Prince Consort, had been rejected, which may have induced the Prince to be initiated in a foreign lodge. H.R. Highness had, however, become affiliated with the English Order, and had therefore become amenable to English jurisdiction. He occupied at present a very prominent position in the Craft, that of Past Grand Master of England, and was also, he believed, the patron of the Freemasons of Ireland. They all knew of his somewhat recent and severe illness, and how a nation feared with sad and anxious suspense his removal from this sublunary abode. If the nation had lost H.R. Highness by death, the unfortunate and melancholy circumstance would, in all probability, have changed the aspect of politics in England. But, happily, such a calamity in the Divine arrangements was averted; the Prince was restored again to the nation, and the whole country—and Masonry was represented in the throng—paid their adorations and thanksgivings to the Great Architect of the Universe, on that recent and memorable occasion—"The Thanksgiving Day."

The W.M. next proposed "The health of the Grand Master Mason in England, the Marquis of Ripon K.G., &c." He referred to the honourable position he occupied among the Craft, and also made reference to his recent mission of peace to America, where he had brought about a peaceful way of the differences of nations being settled and adjusted by arbitration, without having recourse to the horrors and calamities of war.

The I.P.M., Bro. D.K. Congdon, then proposed "The health of the new W.M." He regretted that the toast had not fallen into better hands, he said that he had the honour of proposing Bro. Humble as a member of the Lodge, and that since then, they had nearly always been together in office. He testified to his attention and zeal in the cause of Masonry, and to this Lodge in particular. He also referred to the custom that now prevailed in the Fremantle Lodge,—leaving the highest offices of the lodge to be conferred on those, only who would qualify themselves for the office. The toast was greeted with "Lodge honours."

The W.M., in reply, said he thanked Bro. Congdon for the very flattering way he had spoken of him, and the brethren for the heartiness in which they responded to the toast. It had been not only his duty but pleasure to fulfil several important offices in lodge, since he joined them; it was, he said, a sense of duty which impelled him, when appointed to an office, to discharge those duties faithfully, and to the best of his ability. He had been raised step by step, following as Bro. Congdon expressed it "in his footsteps," until he arrived at his present position in the lodge, and he expressed a hope that the present officers would emulate those who had preceded them in office. He spoke at length, giving his impressions and experiences of Freemasonry, and concluded by again thanking the brethren for their expressions of confidence and brotherly kindness, and he trusted that he would ever deserve and merit their esteem and approbation.

Bro. E. Newman then very ably proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. G. Pearse, Senior Warden.

Bro. Stone, P.M., next proposed "the health of the Immediate Past Master, Bro. D. K. Congdon, and in very eulogistic terms referred to Bro. Congdon's labours during the past twelve months, and to the efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of his office.

Bro. Congdon, in reply, thanked the brethren very kindly for their expressions of regard, and gave a short account of the work of the lodge during his term of office, giving a tribute of praise, very justly, to the officers who had worked so well with him,

The W.M. then gave as the next toast, "the health of the Installing Master, Bro. Jno. F. Stone, P.M.," which was well received, and briefly responded to by Bro. Stone.

The following complimentary toasts followed, and were proposed and responded to by the following brethren, in brief, pithy, and in some instances, amusing speeches: "The W.M. and brethren of Perth Lodge, No. 485," by P. Master J. N. Cooke, and responded to by the W.M. 485; "The Visitors," by Bro. Elias Solomon, and responded to by Bro. W. Snook, P.M., and Bro. E. C. C. Dean, of Perth; "The Stewards," by Bro. W. S. Pearse, and responded to by Bro. S. J. Solomon; "The Ladies," by Bro. J. De M. Absolon, and responded to very facetiously by Bro. M. Samson,

Besides the foregoing arranged toasts, the following were added: Bro. S. J. Solomon proposed "The Host and Hostess," to which Bro. Herbert replied; and the W.M. added "The Health of the Oldest Member of the Freemantle Lodge, Bro. Past Master Jose," and mentioned some of the many acts of Bro. Jose, in connection with the formation of the Freemantle Lodge. Bro. E. C. Dean replied for Bro. Jose, and gave a short history of the days and doings of the lodge, and the many difficulties they had to encounter at its formation; and added, that although not now a member, yet he still felt proud of the position they had attained unto, and wished "continued prosperity to Lodge 1033."

During the evening one or two Masonic songs were given, which added to the enjoyment of the brethren, and tended to make the proceedings thoroughly enjoyed by all. Thanks being returned by the W.M., he vacated the chair, and the meeting separated, all highly gratified with their evening's enjoyment.

Mullum in Parbo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

FREEMASONRY IN THE SCOTS GREYS A CENTURY AGO.

Few know that of the Military Lodges, of which in former times Scotland was so prolific, that originally attached to the Royal North British Dragoons was erected by the Mother Lodge,—neither is there any record of the fact preserved at Kilwinning. It is impossible now to fix the date of this charter; but seeing that the lodge had existed "for a very great length of time" prior to 1770, it is not unlikely that it was one of the oldest of the speculative daughters of the Mother lodge, and it can be no great stretch of imagination to suppose that among its original members would be found some of the heroes of Dettingen, where in 1743 the Greys are said to have covered themselves with glory. The "Scots Greys Kilwinning" having through the perils of war become dispossessed of its warrant of constitution, Colonel the Honourable William Master of Napier (afterwards 6th Lord Napier) and other officers (their regiment being then quartered at Edinburgh), petitioned for a charter from the Grand Lodge of Scotland—compliance with their prayer being urged on these grounds, viz., "that they for a very great length of time had held a regular lodge in the said regiment under the authority of the ancient lodge of Kilwinning; that through the many hazardous enterprises in which they had been engaged in the service of their king and country, they had not only lost their charter, but their whole records; and that they were willing still to associate together for the true end of Masonry in a regular Lodge" to be held in the regiment. The following minute while showing the success which attended the efforts to resuscitate under new auspices this old military lodge, is interesting from the glimpse it affords of the proceedings in connection with its reconsecration within the hall of a sister lodge, the story of whose origin was also the only existing link of its connection with the ancient centre of Scottish Masonry:—

"Lodge of St. Andrew's Royal Arch in the Scots Greys or Royal Regiment of North British Dragoons, held in the lodge of Cannongate Kilwinning at Edinburgh, 12th March, 1770:

"In consequence of an application made to the Grand Lodge of Scotland on Tuesday last, 6th inst., by the Honourable Col. William Napier, in name of himself and several other gentlemen in the above regiment, craving to have a Charter of Constitution and Erection under their authority, the same was ordered, and this day appointed by the Grand Lodge to meet with the several Brethren to deliver them their Charter and consecrate their lodge. The Grand Lodge being duly met and constituted by the Most Worshipful His Excellency General Oughton, the Grand Master, and several other officers of the Grand Lodge, his Excellency, after a most suitable lecture on Wisdom, Strength, and Beauty of the Royal Craft to Col. Napier, whom he received as Master of the Lodge, delivered him their Charter; and received Capt. Basil Heron as Depute Master; Sir John Nisbett, for Senior, and John Nisbett, Esq., for Junior Warden; John Christy, Esq., for Treasurer; and James Colquhoun, Esq., for Secretary. When after the same the lodge was consecrated by solemn prayer under the stile and title of The St. Andrew's Royal Arch in the the Scots Greys or Royal North British Dragoons. Then the evening was concluded with that mirth and harmony known among the Brethren."

To this minute (which is signed by the Grand Officers and those of the newly constituted lodge) is appended a note by the Grand Clerk, certifying that the same is recorded in the books of the Cannongate Kilwinning and of the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

The propriety of admitting private soldiers to the privileges of the Craft has never been challenged under the Scotch constitution: so with every desire for promoting the principles of Freemasonry as widely as possible among his fellow-soldiers, Colonel Napier gave his sanction to a code of by-laws which fixed the fees for initiation at a rate moderate enough to suit the means of any well-conducted soldier, however humble his military rank. The by-laws—which are engrossed in the records as having been adopted by the lodge on 14th March, 1770, and possess several features that ought to commend themselves to the favourable consideration of some of our existing lodges—are as follow:

"That all officers and stranger gentlemen are to pay the following fees:—Entered Apprentice, £1 3s. 6d.; Fellow Craft, 7s. 6d.; Master Mason, 6s.

Quarter-Masters, E.A., 15s. 6d.; F.C., 6s. 6d.; M., 3s. 6d.
Sergeants " 8s. 6d.; " 4s. 6d.; " 2s. 6d.
Corporals and " " 6s. 6d.; " 2s. 6d.; " 1s. 6d.
Trumpeters " " 6s. 6d.; " 2s. 6d.; " 1s. 6d.
Private Dragoons " 2s. 6d.; " 1s. 6d.; " 1s. 6d.

"As the lodge has as yet no fund for charity, it is proposed that every officer of the regiment shall pay monthly 2s. 6d., each quarter-master 1s. 6d., each sergeant 1s., each corporal and trumpeter, 9d., each private dragoon 6d.,—which will in time become a fund that will enable the lodge to give some money, to a discharged brother to carry him home, to the widow and children of a deceased brother, and likewise to assist distressed brethren in other matters, such as sickness and the like. But this charity is to be entirely confined to the regiment, except in very extraordinary cases, unless the lodge shall become so rich that they can do it without hurting their own brethren; for in that case it is the duty of every lodge to help a distressed brother, be he of what religion, country, or profession whatever.

"That the Lodge of St. Andrew's Royal Arch in the Scotts Greys do meet the first Monday after the 14th of every month, and oftener if necessary, at which time the monthly fees are to be paid into the Treasurer for the time being, he settling his accounts twice in every year, viz., the first Mondays in March and October.

"The officers of the lodge to be chosen on the first Monday after the 14th of March for the year to come, as at that time, in all probability, most of the members will be with the regiment.

"That no person belonging to the Royal North British Dragoons, after the date hereof, that shall be made a Mason in any other lodge than that of St. Andrew's Royal Arch in the Scotts Greys, shall be assumed into the above lodge, until they pay full fees according to their degree in Masonry.

"That at all times after the lodge is open'd all manner of decency to be strictly observ'd. No politicks, no swearing or bandy songs to be allowed of; and that Masons' songs be most encouraged, as they promote good humour, brotherly love, and universal benevolence more than any other songs, and are certainly the most proper for a Mason lodge.

"Be it also understood that the necessary expenses of the charter, jewels, and other disbursements on account of the lodge, shall be paid before any charity can be issued from their funds."

The subsequent minutes of the lodge contain little else than a mere record of its intrans. On the 10th of May, 1770, the lodge having been opened in Coventry, received an accession of strength in the affiliation of several brethren belonging to the regiment, and the initiation of 1 quarter-master, 6 sergeants, 1 trumpeter, and 1 private. The scene of the Grey's next Masonic labour was in Lichfield, where in the course of twelve communications 32 candidates were made. These included one lieutenant-colonel, a captain in the Royal Horse Guards, a captain in one of the regiments of Royal Foot Guards, a surgeon, a clergyman, and other civilians. At his entry the then lieutenant-colonel of the Greys was accompanied by a corporal and a couple of trumpeters. In October 1770, the lodge was "adjourned till 27th March, '71, in consequence of the Rt. Worshipful Master and most of the other officers of the lodge being dispersed in different quarters on the duty of the regiment." In April 1771, the regiment being then quartered at Newbury, Bro. Thomas Dunkerley, P.G.M. of Hampshire,—a name of historical note in connection with the Craft in England—was assumed as a member of the lodge; and at its next communication, held at Canterbury on the 14th September, '72, the lodge was visited by Bro. W. Aitken, writer, Edinburgh, (of the Canongate and Leith and Leith and Canongate Lodge), who at a subsequent meeting received honorary affiliation. Bro. Aitken afterwards removed to Ayr, where, associated with other intimate friends and patrons of Scotia's Bard, he continued to take a lively interest in Masonic affairs. It was to Bro. Aitken that "The Cottar's Saturday Night," was inscribed. Col. Napier having in 1773 relinquished the gavel, was succeeded by Sir John Nisbett, Bart.; but in consequence of the "divided situation of the regiment" the lodge stood adjourned from March 24, '73, till April 23, '74, at which date it was congregated in Colchester. At this meeting the Treasurer was authorised to aid in conveying to their homes such brethren as should be discharged after the review that was then in contemplation. We next find it upon record, under date, "York, Nov. 15, 1774," "that an attempt would, on the Regiment's arrival in Scotland next spring be made to get the fees we now pay to the Grand Lodge taken off." Another meeting was held at York on the 30th November of the same year, at which the Master, Capt. Heron, Sir John Nisbett, and other officers were present; but between that date and the 17th of April 1778, the trowel seems to have given place to the sword.

Capt. Heron presided at the lodge's revivification in the town of Reading, April 1778, when new officebearers were elected. From the other minutes we learn that communications of the lodge were held at Canterbury in May, 1779; at Marlborough in February, March, and May, '80; at Worcester in March and May, '81; at Durham in January, '83; and at Newcastle-upon-Tyne on 14th April, '83, at which date Major Heron was recalled to the orient. With the record of this communication, which is notable as having been that at which Deacons were first introduced as officers of the lodge, the minutes terminate; and nothing farther is known of the "St. Andrew's Royal Arch in the Greys," save that in 1799 it ceased to make returns to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and was along with other dormant lodges cut off the roll in 1816.

Its charter, which is now in the possession of Mr. F. White, Thornhill, came to him through his maternal grand-uncle, Robert Cowan, who enlisted into the Scots Greys about the year 1765, and subsequently rose to the rank of captain. After a service of forty-three years he retired to Tarbolton, his native village, where he died about the year 1825. Capt. Cowan, when a private dragoon, was made at Lichfield in September, 1770; and being the only Freemason in the regiment when he left it, he carried along with him the relics of its connection with Freemasonry. To the Past Master of No. 252 (Bro. Hislop) we are indebted for the temporary use of these interesting memorials.

Obituary.

BRO. JAMES CAMPBELL RELPH, D.G.M.

This distinguished brother died at his residence, Campomoto, on the 26th August, 1872, and was buried in the North Front Cemetery, Gibraltar, on the 28th. Bro. Relph was a barrister-at-law and notary public, and for very many years had been leader of the Gibraltar bar. Brought up from earliest youth amidst the warm blooded Andalusians, an earnest sportsman and a celebrated pedestrian, he had mixed much with the native population, had become thoroughly acquainted with their character and habits, appreciated their good qualities, was at home in their language and ideas, and had completely won their love and esteem, and in troublous times, nothing rare, alas, in Spain, when no stranger dared to move beyond the immediate confines of Gibraltar, the stalwart form of Don Diego Relph might to be seen wandering at will over the wild tierras or plunging into the vast solitudes of the Almoraina forest district, secure from robber or brigand, for none would have dared to injure or annoy him to whom it was known that no appeal for charity or help was even made in vain, and who was ever practically proving that his life was one long and faithful service in the welfare and advancement of his fellow men. Bro. Relph was the oldest mason in Gibraltar; upwards of 30 years ago he was appointed Deputy District Grand Master by Archdeacon Burrow, Doctor in Divinity and Grand Master of the District, and on the demise of that venerable divine, Bro. Relph was appointed, with the general approbation of the whole masonic community, to the vacant chair. Of his career as District Grand Master it is unnecessary to speak, we have lost him: he is gone, we know him no more: all narrow jealousies are silent. And years must roll by ere the memory shall fade of him who now lies at peace under the shadow of that mighty fortress, wherein he had laboured for so many years, and with the welfare and happiness of whose inhabitants he was so deeply interested.

BRO. JOHN DONKIN.

On Monday, 9th inst., at his residence, Thornburn Square, Fort Road, Bermondsey, Brother John Donkin, P.M., Sec. Mount Lebanon Lodge, died. He was initiated into Masonry in the Union of Malta Lodge, in the early part of 1852. After taking his degrees there, he returned to England, and at once became a joining member of Mount Lebanon Lodge, where he passed the Chair in 1858. In due course he became Secretary, which important position he held until his death. He was the founder and the first Worshipful Master of "Perfect Ashlar" Lodge. He was advanced to the Mark Degree in the Southwark Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 22, where he was Secretary, besides filling several other offices. He was a Past Steward of the Girls' School and a subscriber to the Masonic Charities. He has been an invalid for nearly two years. He had a severe attack of paralysis, which incapacitated him from attending to any business early in 1870. Other attacks of the same painful disease at last terminated his existence at the comparatively early age of 49 years. No brother could have been more beloved and respected than he was; his amiable, kind and gentlemanly conduct to all made his acquaintance prized by those who knew him. So much was he respected that although incapacitated by illness from attending to the duties of Secretary, yet many of the Past Masters volunteered to act for him until he was able to resume his position, all being anxious and hopeful to see him at his post again. However, their hopes were never realised. He was an engineer by profession, and manager at the well known firm of Messrs. Bryan Donkin and Co., engineers, Bermondsey. He leaves a widow and one son to mourn, with his other friends and relatives, his loss. During the recess the Mount Lebanon Lodge has lost by death three good and useful members, viz. two Past Masters, Bros. M.A. Loewenstak, who died in April, and W. Billington, whose death we chronicled at the time it occurred last month. All were Past Stewards and subscribers to the Charities. Their well known faces will be sadly missed when the lodge resumes its labours next month. The funeral will take place about 2.15 p.m., Saturday, 14th inst., at Nunhead Cemetery.

BRO. CHARLES WIGAN.

We very deeply regret to announce the death of V.W. Brother Charles Wigan, which occurred on Tuesday, the 3rd inst., at his residence, near Rhuabon, Denbighshire. Bro. Wigan was a Past Master of No. 262, and Provincial Grand Secretary for North Wales and Shropshire, which appointment he held from the year 1852, to the time of his death.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, September 20, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 14.

- Lodge 176, Caveac, Westminster Palace Hotel.
- " 1328, Granite, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1361, United Service, Swan Hotel, Wimbledon.
- Mark Lodge, 104, Macdonald, Head Quarters First Surrey Rifles, Brunswick-road, Camberwell.
- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dille, Preceptor.
- Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, SEPT. 16.

- Lodge 720, Panmure, Batham Hotel, Batham.
- " 901, City of London, Guildhall Coffee House, Gresham-street.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-Hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 17.

Board of General Purposes at 3.
 Lodge 73, Mount Lebanon, Bridge House Hotel, Southwark.
 " 95, Eastern Star, Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leadenhall-st.
 " 435, Salisbury, 71, Dean-st., Soho.
 " 704, Camden, York and Albany, Gloucester-gate, Regents-park.
 " 857, St. Mark's, Duke of Edinburgh Tavern, Brixton.
 Chapter 19, Mount Sinai, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 " 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
 Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
 Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
 Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
 Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
 Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
 Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
 Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
 Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
 St. Marybone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18.

Lodge 700, Nelson, Masonic Hall, William-st., Woolwich.
 " 1044, New Wandsworth, Spread Eagle Hotel, New Wandsworth.
 " 1320, Blackheath, Crown Hotel, Blackheath.
 " 1349, Friars, Cheshire Cheese, Crutched-friars.
 " 1365, Clapton, White Hart Hotel, Upper Clapton.
 Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
 United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
 Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
 Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
 Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
 Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
 Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anclty, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 19.

House Committee Girls' School, at 4.
 Lodge 1278, Burdett Courts, Approach Tavern, Victoria Park.
 " 1339, Stockwell, Duke of Edinburgh Tav., Stockwell.
 Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Steam, Preceptor.
 United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
 Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, Bethnal Green, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Milbank.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 20.

House Committee, Boys' School.
 Lodge 975, Rose of Denmark, White Hart, Barnes.
 Chapter 176, Caveac, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.

Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

ELECTION, OCTOBER, 1872.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers are earnestly solicited on behalf of

ETHEL IDA MARGARET SEATON, AGED 8 YEARS.

Her Father, Bro. George Seaton, formerly Master Mariner and Ship Chandler at Hull, was, for 10 years, a Subscribing Member of the Humber Lodge, No. 57, Hull, (also a Companion of the Humber Chapter,) and after a very short illness, died on the 19th February, 1868, leaving his Widow with five Children, three of whom are entirely dependent upon her for support, and with very small and inadequate means to educate and maintain them.

The case is strongly recommended by the following Brethren:—
 *Chris. Sykes, 57, M.P., P.S.P.G.W. North and East York, Brantingham Thorpe.
 James Clay, 57, M.P., London.
 G. M. Norwood, 57, M.P., London.

*J. P. Bell, 57, M.D., D.P.G.M. North and East York, S.G.D. of England, Hull.
 *M. C. Peck, P.M., 1040, P.G. Secretary North and East York, Hull.

R. T. Vivian, W.M. 57, Hull.
 *John Thompson, W.M. 250, Hull.

*Geo. Chris. Roberts, W.M. 1010, P.P.G.R. North and East York, Hull.
 Thos. Smurthwaite, W.M. 256, York.

J. Kemp, Jun., W.M. 294, Constitutional, B. erley.
 W. H. Rose, W.M. 600, Camalodunum, Alton.
 R. G. Smith, W.M. 754, Lowdesbro', Biddington-Quay.

Jon. Turner, W.M. 1020, Sykes, Duffield.
 *H. W. Longstaff, P.M. 1010, P.J.P.G.W. North and East York, Hull.

*Wm. Tesseyman, P.M. 57, P.G. Supt. Wks. North and East York, Hull.
 Nathaniel Easton, 57 and 1010, Hull.

George Hardy, P.M. 250, P.S.P.G.D. North and East York, Hull.
 *J. W. Woodall, P.M. 200, P.S.P.G.W. North and East York, Scarborough.

*J. J. Forrester, P.M. 222, 66, Mark-lane, London.
 Those marked thus † are Governors or Subscribers to the Institution.

The Brethren marked thus * will be happy to receive Voting Papers: which, with any communication or assistance will be thankfully received, or Boys' Votes for exchange, by Bro. JOHN WALKER, P.M. 57, P.P.G. Supt. Works, North and East York, 50, Lister-street, Hull.

ROSE CROIX TRACING BOARDS, Five Guineas the Pair.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-STREET.

Mr. JAMES STEVENS, AUCTIONEER AND SURVEYOR,

House and Estate Agent, &c.,

CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duties. Agent to the Imperial Fire and Life Insurance Offices.

TESSELATED CARPETING.

FOR

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.

Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

HATS! HATS! HATS!

The best in London.

JACKSON, from Christy's, Practical Hatter, 3, Dove Court, Old Jewry, E.C., begs to return his best thanks for past favours and in soliciting future orders assures all who may favour him with their patronage that he can confidently guarantee all his goods to be of the best workmanship and material.

Hats thoroughly done up, 6d.
 Mourning Hat Bands 6d.

EPILEPSY OR FITS.

A SURE CURE for this distressing complaint is now made known in a Treatise (of 48 octavo pages) on Foreign and Native Herbal Preparations, published by PROF. O. PHELPS BROWN. The prescription was discovered by him in such a providential manner that he cannot conscientiously refuse to make it known, as it has cured everybody who has used it for Fits, never having failed in a single case. The ingredients may be obtained from any chemist. Sent free to any address on application to PROF. O. PHELPS BROWN, 2, King-Street, Covent-Garden, London.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only,

THE PEOPLE'S HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lanbaugh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect,

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each, containing 40 pages of crown quarto double columns, thus giving for 16s. 1,280 pages, or about 2,560 columns of letter-press, being twice as much matter as is given in any other History of Cleveland at three or four times the price.

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ord's History, the Work is Illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by TWEDDELL and SONS, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

POTTLE & SON, 14 and 15, Royal Exchange.

City Agents for "THE FREEMASON"

AND "The Israelites found in the Anglo-Saxons," Just published, price 2s. 6d.

What better Theme than Masonry?"

MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1210; P.M. 720; G. J. G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool. Post-free, 25 stamps.

MASONIC MISCHIEF.—The new Masonic Song. Inscribed to the Worshipful Company of Masons by Gerald Grant. Post Free Eighteen Stamps. London: Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

THE NEW MASONIC SONG.—"Men of the Trowel" "An overwhelming answer to 'Masonic Mischief.'"—Count Express. Eighteen Stamps, post free. London: Henry Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

CHURCH SERMONS.

By EMINENT CLERGYMEN.

WEEKLY NUMBERS contain two Sermons. Price One Penny; Monthly Parts, Fivepence.

Published by REEVES, SON, and Co., Playhouse-yard Ludgate-hill, London, and may be had of all Booksellers.

Agent for the Freemason.

BRO. CHAS. MAGGS, 25, George-st., Swansea,

A large stock of Aprons, Jewels, Clothing, and every requisite for all Degrees of Freemasonry.

Agent for Kenning's Masonic Note Paper, Envelopes, Books, Candles, Perfumes, &c.

Advertisements received for "The Freemason."

J. E. PETERS, ORNAMENTAL ENGRAVER AND FANCY ENAMELLER, 42, Howard-place, Northampton-road, CLERKENWELL.

Writing, Engraving of every description, Masonic Emblems Engraved or Enamelled; old enamelled Work repaired; Country Orders attended to with despatch.

NOW READY.

VOL. IV. of THE FREEMASON, from January to December, 1871. Bound in cloth, with richly embossed device on cover.

Price 15 shillings.

The above forming a first-class reference and chronology of the leading events in Masonry during the past year.

OFFICE: 198, Fleet-street.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Aids to Study..... 575
 The Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 575
 Hints to a Masonic Student 577
 Reviews 579
 OBITUARY:—
 Bro. R. W. Widdowson..... 579
 Grand Mark Lodge 580
 CRAFT MASONRY:—
 Provincial ... 581
 ROYAL ARCH:—
 Provincial 581
 MARK MASONRY:—
 Provincial 581
 Presentation of the Lady Leigh Lifeboat 582
 CORRESPONDENCE:—
 Masons at Public Meetings 515
 Masonry in the Scots Greys..... 585
 The Ballot for W.M..... 585
 Scotland..... 585
 Poetry 586
 Masonic Tidings 586
 Masonic Meetings for next week... 586
 Advertisements..... 573, 574, 587, 588

AIDS TO STUDY.

BY BRO. WM. CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z., 177.

XIII.

The slight sketch of the history of Assyria, as it is to be gathered from the pages of sacred and profane history, given in preceding papers, may suggest to the young student, who has time and opportunity, that in the history of the early eastern empires, as they have been presented by several modern writers, there is a vast fund of useful and interesting matter; and that though that history is, in many respects, imperfect and uncertain, it is sufficiently full and minute to enable us to see something of God's providence in His dealing with nations, which He so evidently uses as instruments in carrying on and developing His great and beneficent purposes towards the human race. One generation passes away, and another follows; the earlier preparing the way for the later, which inherits the results of such discoveries in art and science as have been already made, and such means and appliances for pushing investigation still further, as enable men in successive ages to attain to higher grades of knowledge and civilisation than those possessed in the twilight of history. As with men, so with nations, which are but aggregates of men, united together by some social compact, or held together by some despotic power. In early times the latter was in most cases the governing power; and as its foundation was necessarily narrow, and it had no hold on the affection and respect of the ruled subjects, it was destined, sooner or latter, to be swept away, and give place to a state of things of an advanced and improved condition.

We have seen to what an extent the empire of Assyria dominated in the time of Esar-Haddon; and have noticed Ezekiel's symbolical description of it, as a cedar in Lebanon, under whose shadow all the nations of the earth were gathered. But its fall was certain. There was no organised administration, held together by the central power. It was even liable to a sudden collapse. To quote Mr. Philip Smith, "Its conquests were mere raids, attended by slaughter, plunder, and the imposition of tribute; and followed by no attempt to unite the conquered provinces with the central power, or to gain the goodwill of the subject population. The empire had no internal cohesion; and each successive king had to master it anew by his own exploits. The first attempt to lead a quiet life at home, would give the signal for a general revolt. From all that we can gather of the condition of Babylon, that kingdom stood up beside Assyria, ready to seize the abandoned empire; or, at least, to resume its independence." (Ancient History of the East, p. 264).

Babylon, though comparatively insignificant, during the growth of the new Assyrian empire, had its own monarchs, with whom the Assyrians frequently carried on war. The era of Nabonassar, B.C. 77, seems to mark a political change, but what it was is quite uncertain. One of his successors, Mardoc-empadus, is, no doubt, the Merodach-baladan of Scripture, who sent ambassadors to Hezekiah. He was expelled from his throne by Sargon, and a second time by Sennacherib, who appointed Belibus as his viceroy, from B.C. 702, to B. C. 699; and afterwards, Assher-nadin, from B.C. 699, to B.C. 693. Esar-Haddon, the Assyrian monarch, assumed the crown of Babylon himself, and held his court there, occasionally; but he appears, in the latter part of his reign to have appointed a viceroy, Saoduchinus, (from B.C. 667, to B.C. 647) who was succeeded by Ciniladanus, B.C. 647-625. Nabopolassar was the last of these viceroys, or subject kings, and he aided Cyaxares in the overthrow of Nineveh, and established himself on the throne of Babylon, which he occupied from B.C. 625 to B.C. 604. The Babylonian territory under him consisted of the valley of the Euphrates as high as Carchemish, Syria, Phœnicia, Palestine, and probably a part of Egypt. He carried on war in conjunction with the Medes against the Lydians, and afterwards against the Egyptians, who aided the Lydians. His son Nebuchadnezzar gave the Egyptian king Necho, a total defeat at Carchemish. Nebuchadnezzar, B.C. 604-561, was equally distinguished for his martial achievements and for the gigantic works which he executed in his country, and particularly at Babylon. He reduced Tyre, after a siege of thirteen years, sacked Jerusalem and carried off its inhabitants, and invaded Egypt. There is little to record of his successors, Evil-merodach, Neriglissar, and Laborosoarchod. Nabonadius commenced his reign just as Cyrus was entering upon his Lydian war; he entered into alliance with Cræsus, and fortified his own territories against the Medes. Cyrus commenced his invasion of Babylonia B.C. 540, and having defeated the enemy in the open field, he laid siege to Babylon, which was then under the care of Bil-sharuzun, the Belshazzar of the Bible; and entering by the dry bed of the Euphrates, he captured the city, and henceforth Babylonia formed a portion of the Persian empire (Bevan's Ancient Geography, p. 215).

Thus fell these two great monarchies, to make way for the third, and their fall had been clearly and minutely depicted long before the events, by the Hebrew prophets, whose countries had often been invaded and brought into subjection by them, by whom, also, Judah and Israel were ultimately destroyed.

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Frateres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMRA HOLMES, 31°.

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 562.)

Touching the Swedish system already alluded to, Findel, of course, attaches no value to the document which I have introduced to the notice of the readers of the Freemason.

But then it is difficult to discover to what part of our history he does attach any value.

He says, for instance, in speaking of the Grand Lodge of Germany,* "The legend of the Order of the Grand Lodge follows the error of most of the Masonic systems which arose about that period, from 1735 to 1770, viz., that the origin of genuine Masonry is to be found not in England, but in Scotland. Without taking into consideration that this hypothesis is disputed by the Grand Lodge of Scotland herself, and has no reliable authority upon which to rest, it is completely refuted, as may be seen by anyone who will take the trouble to study the accredited history of Freemasonry in England and Scotland."

Here, however, I must join issue with Bro. Findel, and state my belief that the attentive and unbiassed student will come to directly opposite conclusions to our author, as it certainly must be admitted on all hands that the Scotch lodges have charters, many of them of a date long anterior to anything in England.

But then, in his work, Findel speaks of the Henry VII. MS., copied by Locke from Leland, as a spurious document;—Mother Kilwinning and her claims are utterly repudiated; the Hereditary Grand Mastership of the Rosslyn family is, in his eyes, a cunningly devised fable; and Masons Marks are all moonshine. He says (an original idea, indeed, and worthy of the author) "the so-called Masons Marks are not thing but biting caricatures introduced into their (the Masons') buildings, in which they intended to express the tyranny of the Romish Church, and the immoral lives of the priests."†

I now proceed to show the various sources from whence our modern Knights Templar are derived, the various channels through which the great stream of chivalry has flowed down to modern times.

These are the Swedish system of Templars already alluded to, and that of Zinnendorf and Baron Von Hunde, of whose Rite of Strict Observance I shall have occasion to write,—the Scotch Templars, the English Immemorial Encampments, from whence the American Order derives, and the Ordre du Temple of France.

I am fully aware that the whole of these traditions anent the Templars have been repudiated by some sceptical brethren, who want historic proof for every statement brought forward in support of the pretensions of the present Order of the Temple, and its claims to be considered a legitimate descendant of the original Order. But I am also aware that the majority of the brethren who dispute the validity of our descent and the reality of our Knighthood, also dispute the claims of our Craft brethren and their ancient traditions. I merely claim for the Knights Templar that their traditions should be treated with as much respect as those of the Craft.

Bro. Findel, for instance, ridicules the pretensions of the Knights Templar, but damages his cause very much by bringing up against them again those infamous charges which almost all historians have admitted were false, as I have shown in the preceding four articles, at the same time that he repudiates the Masonic Order of the Templars, he also equally objects to the Royal Order of Scotland, the Royal Arch, and the high degrees generally; declares the charter of Cologne a forgery, and Prince Edwin's charter a myth.

A well-known brother, a redoubtable opponent of the Templars, from disbelieving their claims, lost faith in the Craft, pooh-poohed the charters of the ancient Scotch lodges as forged and utterly unworthy of credence, grew sceptical as to the whole of the Craft traditions,—disputed the inspiration of the Scriptures, and finally became an avowed Atheist, and disappeared from Masonry. Another brother wrote a great deal against the Templars and the other high degrees in Scotland and in England. The reason of his animus was not known for some time, until it was discovered that he himself was conferring spurious high degrees, and pocketing the fees.

That brother became a Masonic beggar, and has also now disappeared from Masonry.

There are, of course, honourable exceptions, and we have foemen, like a "Masonic Student," worthy of our steel,—brethren whom we, as Templars, should be proud to welcome into our ranks, but who, hitherto, have held aloof; but it is to be regretted that in many instances the Templars have been attacked (as have the other high degrees) by men who have quarrelled with the constituted authorities, or who have been influenced by personal, and I am sorry to say, most unworthy motives.

But I am digressing, and must come back to my notes as to the German Templars.

From Findel* we gather that Baron Von Marschall, who had been initiated in London, was afterwards at St. Germain-en-Laye, in France, consecrated by the adherents of the Pretender in the Masonic Order of the Temple. It was this brother who transplanted this Order to Germany. After an adventurous life, chiefly passed in foreign countries (France, England, and Denmark), he, in 1749, established in Nuremberg the Lodge of "The Three Hammers," to which he imparted the high degrees, as he received them. Von Marschall was nominated Provincial Grand Master of Upper Tuscany, by Lord Darnley, Grand Master. He afterwards transferred the care of the lodge to the Baron Von Hunde, the originator of the Rite of Strict Observance.

Findel,† speaking of the simplicity and homeliness of the fundamental rules of the Craft degree, says that it gave occasion to the supposition that a great secret must be involved in them, which was only to be revealed to a very select few amongst the initiated.

This supposition, he says, was greatly strengthened by Ramsey's well-known speech and its reference to the Crusades, and it was further heightened by the close intimacy kept up between Germany and France.

Findel says that French influence first began to show itself in the German lodges through the introduction of the Scotch lodges, of which the first was founded in Berlin, in 1742, from members of the Lodge "Three Globes."

Another was formed by Count Schmettau in Hamburg, in 1744; another at Leipzig, in 1747, and another at Frankfort, in 1753. From this period, he says, we may date the use of the word "nochwurdig" (Right Worshipful) in the rough minutes of the lodges, instead of the more simple one of "chrwurdig (vénérable).

Surely, Bro. Findel will hardly say that vénérable, which is of distinctly French origin, and is the title of the W.M. in French and Belgian lodges, is more ancient or more Masonic than that of Right Worshipful.

The latter title was formerly used in the old lodges, and is even now adopted by the Master in Scotland, but is very properly, being the style, heraldically speaking, of a Knight, restricted to Prov. Grand Masters in England. Esquire, as every one knows, is a title of worship, to use heraldic language; and thus Justices of the Peace being Esquires by virtue of their office, are properly styled "Your Worship." A "Masonic Student," in a recent communication to the Freemason, says that the old Freemasons ranked as gentlemen (generosus). One of the objections made to the theory that the Knights Templar ever joined the Masonic body, has been that a chivalric body which, obliged the candidates for the white mantle to be Knights previous to investiture, and exacted proof of coat armour, would scarcely admit handicraftsmen like Freemasons; but if a "Masonic Student" is correct, there would not have been anything out of the way in their admitting into their ranks the Freemasons, if they ranked as gentlemen, possibly through the ranks of esquires and serving brethren, as many distinguished people joined them in this way.

Does Bro. Findel know that the title Venerable is in England confined to Archdeacons, and does he, I wonder, immediately trace clerical influence or Jesuitry in the appellation, as applied to foreign lodges, as he seems to do elsewhere?

By the way, the address of the Chevalier Ramsey, alluded to by Findel, is, like most other things in Masonry, repudiated by some very worthy people.

Mr. Pinkerton, a rabid anti-Mason, in writing to Notes and Queries some time since, asserted his belief that Ramsey, who, he says, was a good Catholic, "was never a Mason at all."

Amongst others who propagated the High degrees in Germany, was the Marquis de Lerne, who went to Berlin as a prisoner of war, taking with him documents from the Chapter of Clermont. He succeeded better than Baron Von Marschall, as he established a chapter of his own.

Of Baron Von Hunde, before alluded to, it is said that he declared that in 1743 he had taken the chair in a foreign lodge in Paris, and had there become acquainted with several Scotch brethren and adherents of the Pretender, and that from them he had received his first idea of the higher degrees in Freemasonry. Lord Kilmarnoch, in the presence of Lord Clifford, had made him a Templar, and introduced him to the Pretender.

Findel, speaking of him, says that he was indisputably the most active instrument in spreading the Masonic Order of the Knights Templar in Germany. He describes him as a rich nobleman from the Lansitz, an upright and well-meaning man.*

He was admitted, so Findel tells us, as a Mason at Frankfort-on-the-Maine, it appears, in 1741, probably by French brethren, and thus brought into contact with the English refugees living in France. While residing in Paris he received intimation of the existence of the Order of Knights Templar in the Scottish islands, and firmly believing in their genuineness, permitted himself to be nominated Grand Master of the seventh province. After his second residence in Paris he returned to his estates, and there in 1743, with several of the brethren who were well known to him, he began to work, and on June 24th, 1751, he established the lodge of the "Three Pillars" in Kittlitz, which forthwith became associated with Nuremberg Lodge. Many brethren of rank were made Knights, and his system, which was called the Rite of Strict Observance, became the system of Masonry adopted by the Grand Lodge of Germany.

By the way it has often struck me that if Bro. Findel and his friends are right, and if we as Freemasons, are descendants of the Craftsmen, and never had any connection with the chivalric bodies, how comes it we that give our Provincial Grand Masters the title of Knight? How comes it that so many members of Heralds' College, including the present Garter King at Arms have joined us? How comes it that our Grand Masters, Grand Wardens, and Provincial Grand Masters wear chains of gold like knightly collars of S.S.? and we have such heraldic titles in our Grand and Provincial Grand Lodges as Poursuivant? How comes it that works like Hutchinson's "Spirit of Masonry" which claims a distinct chivalric origin to Masonry, (which it dates from the Crusades), should be written in the last century, and dedicated by permission to the then Grand Master, Lord Petre? How is it that our Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand clothing should be Garter blue in England, whilst in Scotland it is green, the colour of the Order of the Thistle? Why is it that the Provincial Grand Masters there wear golden chains of office formed of thistles linked together, and fastened by green ribbon, and the Grand Master wears a magnificent jewel set in diamonds with the figure of St. Andrew and his cross upon it? St. Andrew, be it remembered, being the Patron Saint of Scotland and of the Order named, whilst Masonry in Scotland is called St. John's Masonry? If a chivalric connection with Masonry is so absurd, why is it allowed to be symbolised in this way? Findel says that the breast of the members of the higher degrees in Sweden is adorned with St. Andrew's cross, because St. Andrew was the first disciple who followed the true Master.

I merely put these queries for the benefit of the curious enquirer in Heraldic and Masonic anomalies, and must apologise to the readers of the Freemason for again digressing. But to return to our subject. Findel* thus speaks of the Grand Lodge of Germany, which adopted the Swedish system under Zinnendorf, who was Grand Master in 1774 and 1775, when Frederick the Great was Protector.

*Page 254.

†Page 251.

*Page 274.

"The Grand Lodge of Germany further assumes that in the Building Fraternities of the middle ages, besides their art, a secret science was carried on, the substratum of which was a real Christian mystery, serving as a preparatory or elementary school and stepping stone to that and the St. John's Masonry, which latter was not a mere system of moral philosophy, but closely allied and connected with this mystery. It was conceded that the Freemasonry of our days (St. John's Masonry) sprung from the Building Fraternities of the Middle Ages, but at the same time asserted that in the early ages there existed a secret society which strove to compass the perfecting of the human race, precisely in the same manner, and employing similar means, as did the Swedish system, which, in fact, only followed in the wake of its predecessor, being concealed in the Building Fraternities, so that our society did not rise from them, but made itself a way through them. The secret science, the mystery, was very ancient indeed. The mystery formed the secret of the Higher Degrees of the Rite, which were not merely kept hidden from the rest of the confederation, but also from the members of the inferior degrees of the system itself. This mystery was fully confirmed by documents, which the Grand Lodge of Germany had in its keeping. Among these documents was the supposed testament of Molay, the last Grand Master of the Knights Templar.

This secret legend is the same as that of the Carpocratians, which is, that Jesus chose some of the Apostles, and confided to them a secret science, which was transmitted afterwards to the priests of the Order of Knights Templar, and through them to the Building Fraternities, down to the present Freemasons of the Swedish Rite. The legend of this propagation is poetic and garnished, Findel says, with a few historical facts, but is, of course,—if we accept his ipse dixit—on the whole, untrue.

"The Swedish system," Findel continues, "teaches that there have been men of all nations who have worshipped God in spirit and in truth, and surrounded by idolatry and superstition, have yet preserved their purer faith. Separate from the world, and unknown to it, this wisdom has been preserved by them, and handed down as a mystery. In the time of the Jews they made use of the Essenes, in which sect our Lord was brought up, and spent the greater portion of his life. Having been instructed by him in a more perfect knowledge of holy things, they had, amidst persecution, taught in silence that which had been committed to their keeping.

At the period of the Saracens and the Crusades they were so greatly oppressed that they must ultimately have sought for protection from without. As fate however, would have it, seven of them, Syriac Christians, pursued by unbelievers near Bastrum, were rescued by the Knights Templar, and afterwards taken under their protection. When they had lived there for a certain time, they begged for permission to dwell with the Canons or Prebendaries of Jerusalem, as the life there led agreed better with their own inclinations and habits. This was accorded them, and Andreas Montebarrensis effected a union of these Syrians with the Canons to whom, out of gratitude, they imparted all their science, and so completely did they make the priests of the order the depositaries of their secrets, that they kept them and handed them over to others under certain conditions. Thus this secret knowledge which was continually being added to, lived on in the very heart of the Order of Knights Templar till its abolition, the clergy were dispersed with the persecution that ensued, but as the secular arm did not touch them, as it did the Knights, they managed to rescue many of their secret writings, and when the Knights sought repose in Scotland, they founded a chapter at Aberdeen, the first Prior of which was Petrus de Bonomia. The science was disseminated from this place, but very cautiously, first to Italy, then to the extreme north—Sweden, and Russia, and France. In Italy the Abbot Severin had been the guardian of the true science."

Findel further observes that an attempt made by Henry von Nettersheim previous to this (the middle of the last century) to found a spiritual chapter in Germany, had been unsuccessful, till at last it was brought about at the end of the eighteenth century.

The Swedish system, Findel continues, both on account of its supposed origin and its doctrine and constitution, differs in many respects from genuine Masonry, in other words, in the Masonry Bro. Findel approves.

He thinks he finds striking and most convincing proof that this system originated in the middle of the eighteenth century in the French high degrees, especially in the order of Heredom. By the way, it is stated that the ancient Order of Harodim, or Heredom is now nearly extinct, and that, in fact, our learned Bro. Dr. Beaumont Leeson is the last surviving member of the Order.

To be continued.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—These celebrated Pills are especially useful in preventing the bad effects of luxurious living. They purify the blood, cleanse the stomach, gently stimulate the kidneys, and act as mild aperients. Without some such corrective as Holloway's Pills, the festivity of one day often debars us from all enjoyment for a week. A few doses of this purifying medicine set the foulest stomach right, restrain biliousness, steady the circulation, give strength to the muscles, and composure to the brain and nerves. The Pills are incapable of doing mischief to the most delicate constitutions. The Hypochondriac will find this medicine to comfort his miserable nerves; it will increase the appetite, exhilarate the spirits, fill the vessels with pure healthy blood, and regulate excretory organs.—ADVT.

"I have one more word to say before I close of Perry Davis's Pain Killer—a most valuable medicine. I have travelled a good deal since I have been in Kansas, and never without taking a supply of it with me, I used it freely in my practice for cholera in 1849 and in 1855, and with better success than any other medicine.—A. HENNING, M.D., Manhattan, Kansas, April, 1866.—To Perry Davis & Son, London."

HINTS TO "MASONIC STUDENT."

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON.

"Tradition," said an author of a history of the Popes, "is a convicted liar. You may, however, hear what it has to say, as a liar may sometimes tell the truth, but do not believe it, unless it is supported by reliable testimony." In the recent discussion in Rome between Catholic and Protestant ecclesiastics about the Popeship of St. Peter, the former relied wholly on tradition, while the latter discarded it as evidence. Now the tradition about St. Peter's Popeship was proved to have been in vogue within a century, after the supposed event, yet the evangelical party would not receive it; but here, Bro. Student, wants me to believe Masonic traditions of which no trace can be found until five hundred, or even a thousand years after the period of its supposed origin. It is my intention here to analyse the so-called Masonic tradition, but as Bro. M. Student tried to correct, in the Freemason of August 3rd, the doubt I expressed in a communication to the New York Dispatch, printed in the Freemason of July 27th, relative to the Athelstan York Grand Lodge, of 926, and called my attention to the word "sety" or "city," mentioned in the Halliwell MS. It is necessary to remind him that the said MS. was written nearly five centuries after 926, and the author, after describing the "dyvers lordis, dukys, earlys, barns, knythys and sqwyers" who were present at the Athelstan assembly, added "And the grete burges of that syte." Now, in the first place, we know that there were neither dukes, knights, or squires, in existence in England in Athelstan's time, but as the poet took a poet's liberty by describing the supposed nobility of the realm, it is very natural to mention also the supposed burgesses. But the question is, do the words "that syte" necessarily imply York? Where there not other cities in existence when the poem was written? May he not have alluded to some other city? And in the next MS., viz., Matthew Cooke's—even the word "city" is not mentioned. The York legend was discredited by Laurie, and I cannot therefore see, that the evidence derived from "syte" amounts to anything.

The fact is, Protestants discard Catholic legends, because they originated in ages of craft on one side, and ignorance on the other. Our Masonic traditions are liable to similar charges. They were developed in precisely the same manner; that is, they began with a few curt legends, and were afterwards increased in number and demension. Thus, Halliwell's poem contains the story of "clerky Euclid," and the children of nobility whom he taught, but the location of that school was unknown to him; likewise that "some were born by other men's wives." This last addition was made afterwards, also that of fixing the location of operation to Egypt. Euclid, he says, taught the seven sciences, but the term "seven sciences" was comparatively a modern jargon, first introduced about the sixth century. (Hallam's Literature, Chap. 1). Next, it gives the story of Athelstan, in whose time Masonry was brought into England; but as already remarked, the word "York" is not there. And last, he gives the four crowned martyrs. These were all the legends then existing, to which he added from his own erudition, "Noees flod," and Nabogodonezer's tower of Babylon, seven miles high. The next author, viz., of Matthew Cooke's MS., lived after printing was invented. He omitted the martyrs, and "Mudder Mary bright;" and this inclines me to believe that the author wrote after the Reformation. But be that as it may, the additional fables which he introduced, were drawn from the Bible, with which he was but imperfectly acquainted; from the Policricon, Isodorus, &c.; whether he did not pervert the materials he drew from these sources, the same as he did with those of the Bible, I know not; and from Cooke's MS., the MSS., which I have no doubt, were the rituals of initiation, each beginning with an invocation, and followed with "Brethren, I will tell you how this worthy Craft was begun," and after giving the same legends as in Cooke's MS., (only here and there with additions and variations), the elder is then requested to lay the candidate's hand on a book, during which time the charges and laws were recited, and which winds up with an oath, "So help you God," &c. These MSS., thanks to our assiduous Bro. Hughan, are now printed, and as some of them bear dates when written, (the latest is dated 1714,) we may be very sure that those legends were all in all. That was known to the Masonic fraternity up to the eve of the formation of the Grand Lodge of England; and whatever legends we now possess which are not found in that MSS. have been added since 1717.

*Page 299 to 301.

The author of Matthew Cooke's MS., among other legends, introduced for the first time King Solomon and his Temple into his history of Masonry; and all his additions were copied into the MSS. which I call the rituals with additional improvements. That his knowledge of Bible history was faulty, is evident from his statement (lines 548 to 572). "And the making of Solomon's temple, which King David began," &c. Bro. Student I am sure, cannot believe that David began to build the temple, though it continued a Masonic tradition, and was doubtless firmly believed by the old Masons from the 16th century to 1714, the date of the last ritual. And why? because the book of Kings, &c., in the Bible, was written nearer the time of David than the Cooke's MS., or the sources whence its author may have derived his information. The same reasoning must lead me to reject York as the location of the supposed Athelstan assembly, and for the same reason, I must also believe that the "widow's son," with the degree in which that personage plays so prominent a part, was unknown to the Masons until 1717. As already stated, the author of Cooke's MS. was the founder of the Solomonic Masonic theory, and here is another instance of his ignorance of Biblical history. He says, "And the king's son of Tyre was his (Solomon's) Master Mason." But putting his Biblical knowledge aside, if the Master Mason was the king's son, he might have been the son of a widower, but not of a widow. And that is all the Cooke's MS. has to say about King Hiram, and of the chief architect of the temple, he did not profess to know even the name of the king's son, or Master Mason. But the author of Dowland's MS., who copied the traditions collected by the author of Cooke's MS., informs us that the name of Iram's son, the chief Master Mason, was Aynon, and nearly all the succeeding rituals, or MSS., printed by Bro. Hughan, vary the name. Thus Anon, Amon, Dion, &c., and in the ritual dated 1714, the said son of King Hiram is called Benain. Now, as the old Masons knew nothing of H.A., "the widows son," as late as 1714, and as that personage is not alluded to in any Masonic record previous to 1721, we must come to the conclusion that the legend, and the degree in which, as already said, that individual plays so prominent a part, were invented after 1714.

I shall not attempt to do injustice to the intelligence of "Masonic Student" by supposing that he believes in all the traditions communicated in the old rituals, such as the two pillars, one of which could not burn, and the other could not sink; or that Abraham taught Euclid the sciences; and that Euclid taught David in Egypt, geometry; or that Nymus Grecus, who was one of the builders of King Solomon's temple, went afterwards to France and initiated Charles Martel, &c. But as my worthy brother professes to believe in the Masonic St. Alban legend, because the said legend is given in Cooke's MS. I took some trouble to investigate the origin of the said legend; but before entering upon the subject. I must pause to relate an anecdote.

"Tom, an apprentice in a manufacturing establishment in London, brought the news one morning into his workshop, that the lion at the top of Northumberland House, in the Strand, had the day before wagged his tail three times. Of course some of the men laughed at the story, but others showed an inclination to believe him. To be brief, the working men in the shop took opposite sides, viz., wagers, and anti-wagers. John Smith, the leader of the former, argued that he himself had once seen a crowd extending as far as Nelson's monument, and he heard many declare that somebody had seen the said lion wag its tail quite plainly; and what is more, his father told him that when his grandfather was a boy, thousands of persons believed in the phenomenon. "Now, what advantage," he argued, "would it have been to any one to invent such a tale, and is it possible to suppose that thousands of people for several generations, would have credited the wagging of that lion's tail, if there had not been some foundation at the bottom? What Mr. Robinson, you say it is impossible; I deny it, as there may be a mechanism inside the animal, connected with an invisible spring on the surface, which spring is operated upon by the wind when it blows from a certain point of the compass. Mr. Jones says that the animal, tail and all, is made out of one piece of stone, but has a microscopic examination ever been made of the lion and tail in all its details? True no joints have as yet been discovered in the tail; but that is no reason a priori that its jointures may not be discovered hereafter." Here the speaker was interrupted by shouts of laughter from the anti-wagers, when Mr. Smith denounced his opponents as skeptics, who will believe nothing they do not see; and he continued "but it is unmanly on your part to insult a helpless boy. Here, Tom, yes, honest Tom says, that he saw the lion wag." "No, sir, said Tom, "I did not say I saw the lion wag, but Dick told me of it. When Dick appeared, he stoutly denied in the face of honest Tom, of having said three times. "The lion wagged its tail twice," he said, "but not three times;" and when questioned whether he saw the wagging, he answered in the negative; but young Harry (so called to distinguish him from a senior of that name) told him that he saw it wag twice. When Harry appeared, he in turn accused Dick of exaggeration; he did not say twice, nor how many times it wagged; it may have wagged only once, &c. And after a good deal of prevarication, he finally admitted that he did not see the wagging, but that somebody told him, that somebody said, that somebody saw the lion wag its tail. It is scarcely necessary to add that the examination terminated with a burst of laughter, in which even the wagers joined.

And, now, I will examine my St. Alban's Tom, Dick, and Harry. I will begin with the most improved version of the legend, and then trace it backward to its nucleus. Thus Anderson tells us that "Carausius encouraged the Craft, particularly at Verulam (or St. Alban's), by the worthy Knight Albanes, who afterwards turned Christian, and was called St. Alban Proto-martyr in Britain under the Dioclesan persecution, whom Carausius employed to environ that city with a stone wall, and to build him a fine palace for which that British king made St. Alban the steward of his household and chief ruler of the realm. . . ." St. Alban loved Masons well, and cherished them much, and he made their pay right good, viz., two shillings per week and three pence to their cheer; whereas, before that time through the land a Mason had but a penny a day and his meat, until St. Alban mended it. He also obtained a charter from the king, gave them charges," &c.

As Anderson refers to the old constitutions as his authority, I took up Dowland's MS. Therein, I could find nothing about Carausius, the Dioclesian persecution, or the building of a palace for a British king. It mentioned all the rest, including the two shillings and three pence; but how the saint could pay the Masons in shillings and pence at a period when no such coin circulated in England, is more than I can tell.

Having now examined my Tom and Dick, I must next call upon Dick's Harry, viz., Matthew Cook's MS., from which, as already said, those legends were copied into Dowland's MS. &c. But I found that the Cooke MS. knew nothing about Carausius, Dioclesian persecution, &c. In short here is all that that authority furnished about St. Alban,—“And soon after that” (after Charles the 2nd of France was made a Mason by Nymus Grecus, one of Solomon's Masons employed at the building of the temple, after that event) “came St. Adhabell into England and converted St. Alban to Christianity, and St. Alban loved well Masons, and he gave them first their charges and manners, first in England, and he ordained convenient times to pay for their travail.” We have nothing here about steward of the king's household, &c.

Having pointed out how that Masonic legend gradually swelled in size, with each successive manipulation, the next question I ask, what authority have we for the very existence of such a Proto-martyr? Here, again, I found Tom, Dick, and Harry differ in the narrative. The first author I consulted was "Butler's Lives of the Saints." He, of course, gives the longest account; but as he refers to Bede as his Dick, I examined Bede's account.

Bede's account, though not quite so long as Butler's, is very circumstantial. He relates very minutely the dialogue between St. Alban and his judge; how the judge requested the saint to sacrifice to devils, and for refusing to do so was doomed to die; that when the saint was led to the place of execution all the people followed him, and the judge was left all alone in the court, even without any servants; that, as the party had to cross a river, and there were not sufficient boats to float the whole crowd across, so the river dried up Jordan fashion, and the crowd crossed on dry land, but here the executioner was converted, and would not execute. So another executioner was sent for; but in the meantime the saint became thirsty, so he prayed, and a spring of pure water gushed up from the ground, and refreshed him. At last executioner No. 2, arrived, and when he performed the deed, his eyes fell out of his head upon the corpse of the saint; all which, Bede says, took place in 286 A.D., and as the Dioclesian edict of persecution was not issued until February, 303, A.D., it proves that Anderson pretended to know about the saint more than Bede. Indeed, there are difficulties in the way which could not be reconciled; so Anderson adopted Usher's chronology.

My next inquiry was—who was Bede's Harry? As Bede wrote in the 8th century, and as Saint Alban died in the third century, the question was, how was that story transmitted to Bede? After some hunting, I found his Harry. He may be called "Old Harry," the first monkish historian of England, viz., "Gildas the Wise." His account of the saint is shorter than Bede's. He knew nothing of the dialogue between the saint and the judge, about all the people leaving the town to witness the execution, or about the spring of water gushing up, nor about the eyes of the executioner No. 2, falling out of his head; and he gives no date whatever when it happened. But here came the question—Who was "Gildas the Wise?" Gibbon answers in his Dec. and E. of the Roman Empire, chap. 38,—“A monk, who in the profound ignorance of human life, has presumed to exercise the office of historian.” But as Gibbon's opinion may be objected to, because it is said that he did not believe in the whole, or some, of the thirty-nine Articles, so I made further inquiry. Now, listen (Knight's English Cyclopædia, Biog. Div., Article "Gildas"), Mr. Stephens, in an introduction to the Latin text of Gildas's works, says—"We are unable to speak with certainty as to the parentage of Gildas, his country, or even his name, the period when he lived, or the works of which he was the author," says the commentator of Gildas; but Mr. T. Wright attempts to show that Gildas is a fabulous person, and his history the forgery of an Anglo-Saxon or a foreign priest of the seventh century, I find in the same article, that two other Gildases lived in the sixth century, but that the three seem to have been one and the same person. Anyhow, beyond the sixth or seventh century, the St. Alban's story was unknown; no previous martyrologist or writer has alluded to St. Alban before Gildas. When, therefore, I arrived at this stage of inquiry, I was forcibly reminded of "somebody that somebody said, that somebody saw the lion wag its tail."

Next, I found in Roger De Wendover, a monk of the thirteenth century, that Offa, King of the Mercians, had a visit from an angel in heaven in 793 to disinter St. Alban. The memory of the martyr had perished, and the place of his burial had been forgotten for about 344 years. So after a light came down from heaven, seen by thousands, the people fasted and prayed, and then went to the spot indicated by the heavenly light, and of course the body of the martyr was found, the people rejoiced, a church, etc., was built, and Roger assures us that miracles were constantly wrought by the bones, even to his time, the lame walked, the blind saw, &c., &c. Add to all which the account given by Mosheim (Ecclis. part 2, chap. 3), a very orthodox D.D., of the rage prevailing among the early monks for manufacturing fabulous saints, &c., I came to the conclusion, my dear Bro. Masonic Student, that there never was such a personage as St. Alban Protomartyr. I have other reasons to support my belief, but at present this will suffice.

And now a few more hints to Bro. Student. In the Freemason, August 3rd, he said that the Masons in the fourteenth century had higher wages than other mechanics. I wish him to inform me, first, how much higher wages did Masons receive than, say, carpenters; second,—How long did that last; and third, his authorities, title and page, if possible, so that I can judge for myself. I would also respectfully recommend him to consult the authorities mentioned in Matthew Cooke's MS., such as the Polycricon, Isidorus, &c. A new edition of the former was recently published in Oxford. I also learn, that "Wilkinson's Anglo-Saxon Laws," and "Thorp's Ancient Laws and Institutions of England," make mention of Athelstan's regulations for guilds. I suspect that this fact of Athelstan having sanctioned some laws for guilds, may have been the cause of the invention of the Athelstan story. We know that about 140 years ago, a Masonic genius was inspired with the idea that as Masons have secrets, and as the Templars, also, had secrets, that the Templars must have been Masons, &c., and this has not only passed as Masonic history, but thousands of Masons were induced to put on cocked hats, with feathers, crosses, and swords, and put themselves into a terrible passion, swearing vengeance against Philip IV. and Pope Clement V., for having killed their G.M., De Molay. That is the way Masonic history was manufactured. In a similar manner, the fact of Athelstan having given laws for some guilds becoming known to a priest, who took an interest in the Masonic fraternity, perhaps it was the very author of Halliwell's MS. So he jumped at the conclusion that as well as Athelstan gave laws to some fraternities, he must also have given laws to Masons, and so he made history of it. Now, I want Bro. Student to examine carefully the works of Wilkinson and Thorp, and to follow up their authorities as far as possible. If Athelstan did ever give Masons a charter, Bro. Student will surely get a clue to its whereabouts in the path indicated, or he may find at least some allusion to it. Should he, however, after diligent search fail to discover any allusion, then, he must join me in placing the Athelstan story side by side with the fables of the "Four holy crowned martyrs," with Abraham teaching Euclid the seven sciences, with Nymus Grecus imitating Charles Martel, &c.

Masonry teaches truth, true morality, and justice, accompanied with means of enlightening the mind, purifying the heart, and strengthening the understanding.

Reviews.

Shakespeare a Freemason; or The Bard of Avon Lodge. A Record by J. C. Parkinson, W.M. 778, P.M. 181; P.Z. 259; author of "Places and People," "The Ocean Telegraph to India," &c., &c.

Having expressed our opinion upon the soundness of Bro. Parkinson's views with reference to Shakespeare's connection with the Craft, we may now glance at the literary and artistic merits in the medium through which he makes known his convictions. In the first place we find a very handsomely bound volume, which is fit to grace any drawing room table, judging merely by exterior appearance, and we learn, upon opening the book, that we are indebted to the judicious suggestion and characteristic liberality of Bro. George Elliott (M.P. for North Durham) S.W. and W.M. elect of the Bard of Avon Lodge, for this admirable contribution to Masonic literature. The history of the Lodge from its formation in 1857, down to the very successful revival meeting at Staines in 1872, is collected from the records, nothing of importance being omitted. We are then favoured with a full report of the proceedings and speeches at Staines, which duly appeared in the Freemason at the time, and certainly while all the speeches are far above the average of post-prandial utterances, Bro. Parkinson's own oration upon the "Bard" and Freemasonry is the gem of the of the collection. The "Notes," as we have already intimated, are exceedingly interesting, and they are followed by an article, from the pen of Bro. Parkinson, entitled "At Stratford to-day" description of a pilgrimage undertaken by the writer to the tomb of Shakespeare with a view to the elucidation of a certain doubtful but important incident in the history of the lodge. The work, for work it is in every sense of the word, and also a fitting tribute to the greatness of the Poet and of Freemasonry, concludes with graphic account of the several Shakespeare Festivals at Stratford, in which are embodied the splendid speeches delivered by the late Lord Carlisle, and Mr. Creswick the tragedian, at the Tercentenary Celebration in 1864. In fine, Bro. Parkinson has worthily fulfilled a very difficult task, and has imperishably associated the Bard of Avon Lodge with the name of Shakespeare. It is an honour of which not only the members of that distinguished lodge, but the whole Craft, may justly be proud, and we derive intense satisfaction from the fact that we are able to express in some measure, the thanks of a large circle of brethren to the talented author for his labours in the good cause.

Obituary.

BRO. R. W. WIDDOWSON, J.W. 279

To mourn for the departed is an instinct of our nature. It is also becoming. We who remain, to grieve for those who have received the final summons, cannot divest our mind of the feeling of brotherhood, and the expression of grief for them is, in every well constituted mind, the expression of our own humanity, and submission to the lot, which is appointed for every living thing.

It is our melancholy duty to record the sudden death, on Monday morning, of our much esteemed Bro. P. W. Widdowson, J.W. St John's Lodge, No. 279, Leicester.

On Saturday evening our brother attended a meeting of the Commercial Lodge, 1321, and although although complaining on Sunday, nothing serious was apprehended. On Monday morning, after issuing the the necessary instructions to his men, he suddenly obeyed the summons to the presence of the Great Architect of the Universe.

During a period four years, since his initiation, he has filled various important offices in the Craft Lodge, and also in the Provincial Grand Lodge, and Provincial Grand Mark Lodge, and while mingling with his brethren of the Mystic Craft, he was always cheerful, energetic and happy.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

A.B.C.—There is no law in the Book of Constitutions to prohibit the proceedings to which you allude, but all the authorities in Masonry whom we have consulted on the subject agree in opinion that candidates should be raised separately, as otherwise the solemnity of the ceremony becomes grievously impaired.

ERRATA.—In the report of the Royal Gloucestershire Lodge last week, in the 6th line, Bro. T. Taylor, P.M. should be Trayton, and in line 16, for "£100, one-third the cost," it should be £200. In the letter of "Veloxy," 17th line for crib read craft, and for withers read wether.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

DEATH.

RIDER.—On the 14th inst., aged 70, Bro. Thomas Rider, of the Borough, and Newington Butts. Bro. Rider was an eminent builder, and was the contractor for the erection of Freemasons' Hall, and the other property of the Craft in Great Queen-street.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Two-pence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

THE MARK GRAND LODGE.

If a Masonic prophet had arisen and predicted in 1870 the success which has gratified and delighted the members of the Mark Grand Lodge of England in 1872, many would then have been most incredulous.

Looking however, at the facts—and in this instance they are as pleasant as they are "stubborn"—we suppose that under no previous Grand Master has such rapid advancement been made, and the Mark Master's degree been so popular, as under the gavel of the M.W. Bro., the Rev. George Raymond Portal, M.A.

Everywhere the Mark Grand Lodge has prospered, its certificates are now acknowledged by the Grand Chapters of Ireland, Canada, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Maine, &c.; and already representatives have been appointed to, and from, three of the foregoing Grand Bodies.

The lodges and members of the Provincial Mark Grand Lodge of Lancashire, constituted by the Grand Chapter of Scotland, have left that powerful organisation en masse, and are now enrolled under the English constitution. Arrangements are also being made for the reception of the few remaining lodges who have not yet given in their adhesion, and no doubt before many months have elapsed, the Grand Chapter of Scotland will most cordially extend the right hand of fellowship to English Mark Masters, and peace and prosperity will reign in Capitular Masonry throughout Great Britain and Ireland.

The fraternity are principally indebted to the Grand Mark Master, M.W. Bro. Portal; R.W. Bro. Binckes, P.G.W., (and Grand Secretary); R.W. Bro. Hughan, P.G.W.; and R.W. Bro. Matier, G.W., for this desirable consummation.

We should also state that during the term of office of the Grand Mark Master Mason, the treaty has been signed which recognises the Grand Mark Lodge as the legitimate Mark Governing Body in this country, by the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar, and the Supreme Grand Council of the Ancient and Accepted Rite for England.

The question of representation from American Grand Chapters must be considered as a secondary matter by the Mark Grand Lodge, and the one of recognition as primary.

We scarcely believe that the General Grand Chapter of the United States will exchange representatives with the Mark Grand Lodge of England, but we feel morally certain that the latter will be recognised by the former as the only lawful governing body in this country for the Mark Masters' degree.

We commend the following to the notice of the brethren. It is copied from the published proceedings of the Grand Chapter of Maine, U.S., and is written by M.E. Comp. J. H. Drummond (General G.H. Priest of the G.G. Chap. of the U.S.), one of the highest Masonic authorities in America:—

"Whether the original organisation of this Grand Lodge by only three lodges, when there were at least five times that number in existence in England, was masonically regular, so that its exclusive authority in that country would have been sustained, has now become of no consequence, inasmuch as all the lodges have voluntarily given in their adhesion to it. We are clearly of opinion that it is the legitimate Supreme Masonic Authority over the Mark Degree in England, and that all Mark Master Masons made in England under its authority, or recognised by it as regular, are entitled to recognition as such everywhere.

"Some Grand Chapters have exchanged representatives with it, but we are not prepared to advise this Grand Chapter to do so. Recognition does not necessarily imply exchange of Representatives. This Grand Chapter recognises the Grand Lodge of Maine as the Supreme Masonic Authority over Craft Masonry in this jurisdiction, and the Grand Lodges of other States as Supreme in the same manner in their respective jurisdictions; but an exchange of Representatives would be universally deemed absurd. This case is not absolutely parallel, it is true, because the Grand Lodges do not recognise the Grand Chapter; but the difference in grade seems to us a sufficient reason for not exchanging Representatives. However, if, upon further consideration, it is deemed proper to exchange Representatives, it may be done, there being no necessity for finally deciding that question at the present time."

We quite think with Bro. Drummond that there is no hurry to decide the point as to Representation, so we will not enter fully into the matter now, but were it necessary to do so, we feel quite certain to make out a case for both Recognition and Representation.

In addition to "Pomeroy's Democrat," which has opened its columns in a most fraternal manner to Bro. Hughan (who for sometime has taken part in the discussion in that paper on the Mark Grand Lodge), the Evergreen, under the editorship of Brothers Parvin and Langridge, and the Freemason's Monthly Magazine (Charles W. Moore, the Masonic veteran editor), have also, in the most straightforward and friendly style, considered Brother Hughan's plea on behalf of the English Mark Masters, who may visit or locate in the United States, and whose Grand Mark Lodge, therefore, desires and deserves recognition.

Brothers Moore and Parvin are decidedly opposed to Representation, but Bro. Langridge, in a temperate and well argued article in the Evergreen for May, advances many reasons why the both favours should be granted.

Bro. Moore, in the Freemason's Monthly Magazine for August, commences with an article entitled "The Grand Mark Lodge of England." We cannot quite follow that talented Mason in some parts of his paper.

The article is mainly a courteous reply to our learned Brother, William J. Hughan, the distinguished Masonic archaeologist of England, on some few points which were not quite cleared up by the worthy Masonic editor of "Pomeroy's Democrat" (Bro. F. G. Tisdall).

Much of the article has a value quite independent of the present fraternal controversy, as the editor supplies some most valuable details respecting the early history of the Mark degree.

The pith of Bro. Moore's objection to Representation lies in the following:—

"The Grand Mark Lodge of England does not ask representation of bodies of inferior rank, in its own grade, for this would be inconsistent with its dignity and official status, but it does ask that the Grand Chapters of this country, its superiors in grade and position, should recognise and interchange representatives with it, their inferior in rank and position; and here lies the principal difficulty to the proposed arrangement. There is an absence of equality between the parties, and where there is no equality there can be no reciprocity of representation."

This extract may be taken as a fair exponent of the intelligent brethren in the United States who oppose Representation. And as we have now given a view of both sides of the question, we shall simply await the issue before we entirely give up hope that ere long a satisfactory settlement will be aimed at, as all the parties to the discussion are actuated by the best of motives, and each are advocating what to them seems just and proper.

When the Grand Chapter of Scotland sees fit to recognise the Mark Grand Lodge of England, all the difficulties will be practically at an end, and while we sympathise with the impatience manifested in this part of Great Britain as to the delay and slowness of such an official act, we must remind them that England, as a Masonic country, has not always been free from the charge of "invasion of jurisdiction."

Even this century there were Royal Arch Chapters meeting in Scotland; which were on the roll, (and warranted) by the Grand Chapter of England, and hence, the latter actually did in Scotland, what the Mark Grand Lodge complains the Grand Chapter of Scotland has done in England.

We cannot do better in concluding our remarks by quoting the admirable finale to Bro. Charles W. Moore's article.

"The Mark Masters of the United States, whether as individuals, or in their lodges, will always be most happy to reciprocate fraternal courtesies with their brethren of the Mark Grand Lodge of England," to which we reply, "Thank you, Bro. Moore, a hearty welcome always awaits American brethren in English lodges and chapters."

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

CUMBERLAND.—The Whitwell Lodge, (No. 1390).—This lodge held its usual monthly meeting on Tuesday, the 17th inst. The lodge was opened at 2 p.m. by the W.M., Bro Roger Dodgson, supported by Bro. Whiteside, acting S.W.; Mills, J.W.; Bro Rev. G. Brown, Chaplain, and others; Bro. Rev. G. Brown very ably presiding at the harmonium. The minutes of last communication were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for two joining members, which proved unanimous in their favour. H. Myers Meakin, Esq., solicitor, being in attendance, was regularly initiated into Freemasonry, by the W.M. Bro. Meakin then retired, and Bros. Scott, Crooks, and Holloway, being present, and proving the proficiency, were entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when the three brethren above named were severally passed to the degree of F.C. by the W.M., the working tools in each degree being given by the Acting S.W. A very pleasing letter was read from Bro. Whitwell, D.P.G.M., expressing his approbation of the arrangement and furniture of the lodge. The W.M. announced that the Right Worshipful P.G.M. had signified his intention of appointing him P.G.S.B., at a Provincial Grand Lodge to be holden at Wigton, on the 20th inst. One candidate for initiation, and a brother as joining member were proposed, and the lodge was finally closed, according to ancient custom, and with solemn prayer, at 4.45 p.m.

HERTFORDSHIRE.

WALTHAM.—King Harold Lodge (No. 1327).—The regular meeting of the above lodge was held on the 17th inst., at the Britannia, Waltham New Town. Bro. James Terry, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Herts, very ably occupied the chair. The Wardens' chairs were filled by Bros. E. Parker, S.W., P.G.P. Herts, and Bro. Young, J.W. The minutes of the last regular and emergency meetings were read and confirmed. Bro. E. Parker, S.W., P.G.P. Herts, was elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. James Barwick was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. William Allison, Tyler. There was a good muster of the members, and after the transaction of the remaining business, the lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren retired for refreshment.

LANCASHIRE (WEST.)

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 282).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 11th September, at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum. The W.M., Bro. William Hall, was supported by the I.P.M., Bro. J. Daniel Moore, M.D., P.G.S.B., England; Bro. W. J. Sly, as S.W.; E. Airey, J.W.; James Hatch, P.M. and Treasurer; Edmond Simpson, P.M. and Secretary, J. J. Whimpray, P.M.; T. Hargreaves, and a number of brethren. After the formal business had been transacted, the W.M. announced the death of the Grand Master of the Province, Sir Thomas George Fernor Hesketh, Bart., M.P., on which account the lodge had been put into Masonic mourning for three months; a resolution was passed, expressive of the regret of the brethren at his untimely death, and of sympathy and condolence with his family. A vote of similar character was passed to Bro. Bagwell, P.M., on the death of his wife. After the proclamation had been made, the lodge was closed in due form.

PRESCOT.—Lodge of Loyalty (No. 86).—The ordinary meeting of the brethren of this ancient lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 11th inst., at the Royal Hotel, Prescott. The brethren present were Bros. S. Morris, W.M.; J. T. Birchall, P.M., J.W.; J. Fowler, P. Prov. A.D.C., P.M. Treas.; Jas. W. J. Fowler, S.W.; Henry Scott, J.W.; Reginald Young, Sec.; R. D. Simpson, J.D.; C. Corke, I.G.; W. Jameson, S.; W. Tyner, M.C.; T. Septibon, Tyler; Bros. W. Mercer, T. V. De Denne, J. Ellis, J. Kitchin, G. H. Turner, N.B. Vidiano, and H. S. Gurney, No 897. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. P.M. Fowler, after which the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. S. Morris W.M., and P.M. Fowler stated their intention of attending the meeting of the committee of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution at the Masonic Hall, 22, Hope-street, Liverpool, on the 13th inst., for the purpose of supporting the application of the Lodge of Loyalty in aid of the education of David Webster, son of an old member of "86." Subscriptions were then received from the brethren in aid of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, and a considerable sum was raised, the brethren expressing their desire to stand as well on the list of subscribing lodges as in previous years. A circular was read by the Secretary from Bro. T. Wylie, P. Prov. G. Reg., West Lancashire, suggesting the desirability of the members wearing crape on their masonic clothing as a mark of respect for the memory of the Prov. G.M. (Sir Thomas George Fernor, Hecketh). The lodge unanimously agreed that the request should be acceded to; Bro. P. M. Fowler paying a high tribute, in the course of a short speech, to the many excellencies of the distinguished brother. It was also agreed to record on the minutes of the lodge an expression of the deep regret which the members felt at the loss of their P.G.M. The lodge was afterwards closed in solemn form, and the brethren adjourned to a well served and excellent repast, provided by the host of the "Royal." During the evening the brethren cordially drank the health and happiness of their newly married Bro. Sec. (R. Young), proposed in happy terms by Bro. Fowler, P.M., and acknowledged with much warmth by Bro. Young, who spoke of his continued attachment to his mother lodge. The brethren of "86" parted after spending an exceedingly pleasant evening.

YORKSHIRE (WEST).

BRADFORD.—Penthalpa Lodge (No. 974).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Goodwin-street, Bradford, on Thursday, the 29th ult., Bro. Robert Richardson, W.M., presided. There was not any, except the usual routine business to transact. This evening being fixed for receiving visits from the Hope Lodge, 302, and the Eccleshill Lodge, 1034, the lodge was opened in the first degree, the minutes of last lodge meeting read and confirmed, business transacted, and the lodge closed, the W.M. going through the work in admirable style; after which he invited all present to partake of supper, which was served in the refreshment room. The W.M. occupied the chair at supper, being supported on his right by Bro. Evans, I.P.M.; Bros. W. W. Barlow, W. M. Hope, 302; Edward Smith, W. M. Eccleshill, 1034; A. Hunter, P.M. Hope, 302; A. M. Matthews, P.M. Hope, 302; H. O. Lawson, P.M. Hope, 302; S. Walmsley, P.M. Penthalpa, 974; J. Leeson, P.M. 974; and on his left by Bro. Rev. J. Thomas, Chaplain of the lodge, and Prov. G.C.; Bros. T. Hill, P.M. Hope, 302; M. Rhodes, P.M. Hope, 302; J. Shaepi, P.M. Hope, 302; Prov. S.G.D. W. Ibbitson, P.M. Hope, 302; Prov. J.G.D.; J. Armitage, P.M. Hope, 302; C. H. Taylor, P.M. Hope, 302; J. D. Sugden, P.M. Hope, 302. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, after which he proposed in very eulogistic terms, what he designated the toast of the evening, the "Health of the Visiting Brethren," coupling with it the names of W. W. Barlow, W.M. of the Hope, 302, and Edward Smith, W.M. of the Eccleshill, 1034. Bro. Barlow, W.M., replied on behalf of the brethren of the Hope Lodge, so well represented by the presence of ten P.M.'s, and some fifteen other brethren. He took occasion, in thanking the brethren of the Penthalpa for their kind reception and hospitable entertainment, to compliment them upon the high standing which the lodge had obtained in the province during its short history, and expressed the hope and belief that it would not only continue to maintain that high position, but attain one still more elevated. He also invited the W.M. and brethren of the Penthalpa, to favour the Lodge of Hope with a return visit, when all would be done to make their visit enjoyable. Bro. Edward Smith, W.M., made a few happy remarks in acknowledging the toast on behalf of the brethren of the Eccleshill Lodge, 1034, stating this was his first visit to the Penthalpa, but hoped to pay it another visit, he had been so much pleased by all that he had witnessed that evening, and trusted the brethren of the Penthalpa would pay his lodge a visit. Several other speeches were made, interspersed with excellent harmony, by members of the Penthalpa, Hope, and Eccleshill Lodges, which greatly enhanced the pleasure of a very enjoyable evening.

Royal Arch.

LANCASHIRE,

WARRINGTON.—Chapter of Elias Ashmole (No. 148).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held at the Chapter Rooms, on Monday last. The M.E.Z., Comp. Finney, was supported by Comps. Monop, H.; W. Richardson, J.; John Bowes P.Z., Prov. G.S.B.; W. S. Hawkins, E.; James Dickson, N., and a goodly number of members. The ballot was taken for Bro. J. W. Thorp, 148, and J. L. Wihon, and being in their favour, they were exalted by Comp. Bowes, the Symbolic Lecture being delivered by the M.E.Z. A brother having been proposed for exaltation, the chapter was closed.

Mark Masonry.

LANCASHIRE.

CONSECRATION OF THE MOORE LODGE AT LANCASTER.

We have of late had frequent opportunities of noticing the increased popularity of the Mark Master Mason, notably so in the northern provinces, and have now to report the formal consecration and constitution of a lodge in Lancaster styled the Moore Lodge, in compliment to its founder and first W.M., Bro. Dr. Moore, whose zeal and energy in the cause of Freemasonry is so well known. The meetings of the Moore Lodge, are proposed to be held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum, Lancaster, on the third Mondays in the months of March, June, September, and December, and the lodge itself was consecrated on Thursday September 12th inst., by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of the County Palatine, Bro. W. Romaine Callender, who was attended on the occasion by the following Grand and Provincial Grand Officers. Bros. Frederick Binckes, G.S. and P.G.S.W. of England; Lieut.-Colonel Thomas Birchall, P.G.J.W. England; Thomas Hargraves, J.G.D. England; W. R. Goepel, P.G.S.O.; W. O. Walker, Prov. G.M.O.; John Duffield, Prov. G. Treasurer; John Chadwick, Prov. G. Secretary; W. H. Prince, Prov. G.S.D.; William Roberts, P. Prov. G.S.D.; William Ashworth, Prov. G. J.D.; John Watson, Prov. G.S.B.; and others.

The brethren having assembled in the lodge room, received the R.W. Prov. G.M. in due form, who commenced the duties of the day by calling upon the W.M. designate, Bro Dr. Moore, to state what proceedings had been taken with reference to the formation of the lodge, and what was the desire of the brethren upon the present occasion. The W.M. designate, having replied to the directions of the Prov. G.M., requested in the name of the petitioners that he would formally constitute the lodge according to ancient custom.

The warrant of constitution was read by Bro. Chadwick, Prov. G. Secretary. The petitioners signified their assent to the officers named therein, and the ceremony was proceeded with, the duties of Chaplain being ably and effectively rendered by Bro. Duffield, Prov. G. Treasurer, and Bro. Roberts officiating as Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.

When the ceremony of consecration was completed, the R.W. Prov. G.M. requested Bro. Binckes G.S. and Prov. G.S.W. of England, to officiate as Installing Officer, when that distinguished brother took the chair of A, and the W.M. designate having been duly presented to him for installation, in due time a board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Dr. Moore formally invested and placed in the chair of the lodge to rule over it until the next regular period of election within the lodge, and until a successor should have been regularly elected and installed in his stead.

The salutations and greetings were duly observed and acknowledged, and the W.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. W. J. Sly, S.W.; E. Airey, J.W.; J. L. Whimpray, M.O.; R. Dean, S.O.; W. Hall, J.O.; James Worsley, Secretary; E. E. Simpson, S.D.; J. L. Bradshaw, J.D.; R. Taylor, I.G.; J. Watson, Tyler.

Bro. Binckes concluded the business of the lodge by delivering the addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, which were rendered in that telling and accurate manner for which he is justly celebrated.

The best thanks of the Moore Lodge were awarded to the R.W. Prov. G.M., and to Bro. Binckes, for the important services they had rendered; also to Bros. Lieut.-Col. Birchall, Hargreaves, Chadwick, Duffield, Roberts, and others, for their kind presence and assistance on the occasion.

After the lodge had been closed, the brethren adjourned to the King's Arms Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet had been provided. The chair was occupied by the W.M. Bro. Moore, who was supported by Bros. Callender, Binckes, and the distinguished brethren whose names have already been mentioned, as being present at the meeting of the lodge.

When the cloth was drawn, the loyal Masonic toasts were given and received; and the brethren separated, well pleased with the day's proceedings.

On Wednesday, the day previous to the Consecration of the Moore Lodge, the brethren met at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum, under a special dispensation, Bro. Thomas Hargreaves, P.M., G.J.D. England, occupying the chair, when Bros. Edmund Simpson, P.M., Sec. 281; John Lever Whimpray, P.M. 281; William Hall W.M. 281; Frederick Dean, P.M. 281; John Jenning Bradshaw, 1071 and 281; Richard Taylor, 281; and John Watson, P.M. 281, were regularly advanced to the degree of Mark Master Mason. After the ceremonies had been ably rendered by the acting W.M., a hearty vote of thanks was awarded to him for his valuable services to the lodge.

PRESENTATION AND LAUNCH OF THE "LADY LEIGH" LIFEBOAT AT SCARBOROUGH.

Scarborough was on Wednesday, the 11th inst., the scene of a demonstration of an imposing character, and one which will not easily be forgotten by the inhabitants of the "Queen of Watering Places." The grand ceremonial to which we refer, was the presentation and launch of the new Lifeboat, the "Lady Leigh," which will henceforth be stationed at that port to assist in that noble and humane work, the saving of life from the beleaguered vessels which may suffer mishap on this our rugged Yorkshire coast. We need only repeat that the Lifeboat and its equipments are the gift to the Institution of the Freemasons of Warwickshire, the fund having been raised chiefly through the exertions of a committee formed at Birmingham, of which Lord Leigh, the Provincial Grand Master, was the President, Colonel Machin, D.P.G.M. Chairman; J. T. Collins, Esq., P.G.T., Treasurer; and Capt. Salt, P. Prov. G.S.B., the Honorary Secretary. The boat, at the request of the donors, is named the "Lady Leigh." It was expected that Lord Leigh, the Grand Master of the Province which has just performed so laudable an act, would have been present, together with Lady Leigh, to take part in the ceremonial; but, as will be seen by a perusal of our report, they were unavoidably prevented from attending. The proceedings were announced to be inaugurated by a grand procession, which was to start from the Railway Station at 2:30 p.m. Considerably before that hour the streets in the vicinity of the Station, and particularly the thoroughfares along which the procession would pass, were crowded to excess. The object of assembling at the Station was with the view to meet the following deputation of Freemasons from Warwickshire:—Bros. Capt. Salt, P. Prov. G.S.B., Birmingham; Rev. R. H. Baynes, Coventry; G. P. Wragge, P. Prov. G.P., Birmingham; Rev. P. S. Harris, P.G.C., Warwick; J. Tomkinson, Coventry; T. Oldfield, Birmingham; Charles Lee, P. Prov. G.S.D., Thomas M. Lee, Henry Smith, Thos. Vaughton, Birmingham; The Honourable and Rev. James Leigh, P. Prov. G.C.; A. E. Fridlander, P. Prov. G.P.; M. Smart, P. Prov. G.D.C.; T. H. Smith, Birmingham; Charles Read, Coventry; Capt. Vaughton, Warwick;—Quilter, Westwood; George Beech, P.G.S., Birmingham; Booth Mason; R. Croydon, P. Prov. G.S.W., Leamington; W. Treaddell, Rugby; J. R. Harris, Daventry; H. Levy and J. B. Joseph, Birmingham. There were also present on the occasion Charles Leedham, P.M. 200, Liverpool; Alfred Kirk, W.M. 422, Gainsborough; Poulter and Beck, P.M.

The "Lady Leigh" lifeboat arrived at Scarborough on the 9th inst. She is 35 feet long, 9 feet wide, rowing 10 oars double-banked. The boat, which was built by Messrs. Forest, of Limehouse, had its harbour trial a few days since in the Regent's Canal Dock, London, when the usual qualities of stability, self-righting, and self-ejecting of water were fully and satisfactorily tested. The water shipped, when the boat was capsized by means of a crane, was self-ejected in about 25 seconds. The transporting and launching carriage of the boat was also tried on the occasion, and was found to act admirably. The boat can be readily conveyed on it along the coast, when necessary, and when manned by the crew, can be launched into the surf, thus giving the men time to obtain headway on the boat before it is beaten back on the beach by the breakers. The estimated cost of the boat, carriage, &c., is £780. The total weight of the boat, carriage, and appliances is about seven tons. The boat alone weighs three tons.

A few minutes after the appointed hour, the procession moved off from the Station down Westborough in the following order:—The Borough Police, preceded by Supt. Pattison, who was mounted.

The Band of the Sixth North York Rifle Volunteers, Coast Guard, with Rocket Apparatus, in their vehicle.

Sergeant-at-arms, and Mace-bearer. His Worship the Mayor in his robes of office, accompanied by the Rev. Canon Blunt, vicar of Scarborough, and A. W. Simpson, Esq., the Borough Recorder.

The Town Clerk (J. J. P. Moody, Esq.), and the Clerk to the Magistrates, (W. E. Woodall, Esq.) Magistrates of the Borough. Members of the Corporation. Clergy and Ministers.

THE LIFEBOAT decorated with banners, and mounted on her transporting carriage, with the complement of her crew on board, all fully equipped. The boat was drawn by a noble team of eight grey horses, six of which were kindly lent by Mrs. B. D. Nestfield, and the other by Mr. J. Ward and Mr. R. Tindall.

Carriage of John Woodall, Esq., containing the Hon. James Leigh, the Hon. and Rev. James Leitch, the Hon. and Rev. and Mrs. Woodall.

The Freemasons of Warwickshire and Scarborough, in lines, the brethren of the Scarborough lodge forming the outer files of the column, one on each side of every row of four, with two of their visiting brethren at each end.

Capt. Ward, R.N., of the National Lifeboat Institution, with members of the Local Committee and other gentlemen.

A long cavalcade of carriages followed. The procession passed down the railway station along Westborough, Aberdeen Walk, Castle Road, Queen-street, Newborough-street, St. Nicholas-street, Falconer's-road, and the New-road to the South Sands near the Cliff Bridge. Arrived on the Sands the scene was an animated one. On every available point—on the slopes at the base of St. Nicholas Cliff, on the Spa Bridge, on the Spa itself, on the South Cliff, on the Piers, and wherever the eye turned was a dense mass of people who were evidently taking a deep interest in the proceedings. Assembled on the Sands were many thousands of spectators, many of whom were, of course, residents of Scarborough, and were apparently justly proud of the part their town was playing in the imposing ceremony, and proud also of the gentlemen who represented them as the chief citizens of their ancient borough. The procession having being brought to a standstill at a point facing the Cliff Bridge, the company gathered up around the boat. From her stern was suspended a bottle of champagne tied with blue ribands, and a large medallion bearing the following inscription:—"The Lady Leigh lifeboat was presented to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution by the Freemasons of Warwickshire, and was first launched at Scarborough on the 11th September, 1872. Chairman, Colonel Machin, D.P.G.M.; Treasurer, J. T. Collins, Esq., P.G.T.; Honorary Secretary, Captain Salt, P. Prov. G.S.B." All being duly arranged,

Capt. Salt ascended a waggon to address the assemblage. He said as the Honorary Secretary of the fund he had been requested to address to them a few remarks as to the origin of the movement which had resulted in their presenting a lifeboat to the port of Scarborough that day. The brethren in Warwickshire were desirous of testifying their high esteem and regard for their worthy Provincial Grand Master, Lord Leigh, who would shortly complete his 20th year of office as head of the Freemasons of Warwickshire. There was, however, a difference of opinion as to how this should be done, because it was known that his Lordship had an antipathy to anything like a public memorial. They knew that it would be better appreciated by and more acceptable to his Lordship if they associated their testimonial with some work of charity. At that time the report of the National Lifeboat Institution was placed in their hands, and it was felt that if, as stated in the report, notwithstanding the fact that the institution possessed a fleet of upwards of 200 boats, 700 lives were lost annually along our coast—it was felt that if this loss of life was taking place every year, help was wanting. (Applause.) They also felt as Freemasons, that if, in accordance with masonic precepts it were right to help, it was also right to serve. (Applause.) The money having been raised, they placed themselves in communication with the institution, and he must say that every suggestion offered was received by them with that kindness, courtesy, and consideration which had won for that noble institution the esteem and respect which it so largely enjoyed. He hoped this was only the first of many lifeboats which would be given by Freemasons and other kindred orders: for so long as 700 lives were lost annually for want of help, they could not say the Masons had got to the end of their work. (Applause.)

The next step would be to make a presentation of the boat to the Institution, and, through it, to the town of Scarborough! He might state that when the choice of a place was left to the committee they at once selected Scarborough as the station for the boat. There was no place where more people came from Warwickshire than to Scarborough, and no place from whence they returned with a better opinion of the kindness and generosity of the inhabitants. (Loud applause.) He concluded by intimating that the noble boat, which they saw before them would be named the "Lady Leigh," after the wife of their concerned Provincial Grand Master. He prayed that God might bless this movement in saving lives in danger, and said—

God bless this boat—the "Lady Leigh,"
And speed her safely through the angry sea.
Protect her crew, who risk their lives to save
A fellow-creature from a watery grave.

The Hon. and Rev. Jas. Forrest then ascended the waggon, and said: Mr. Mayor, Captain Ward, Ladies and gentlemen, and people of

Scarborough,—Before I proceed to present this lifeboat formally to the people of Scarbro', I would wish to say to you how much my brother the Provincial Grand Master of Warwickshire, regrets not being able to be present here this day. Nothing, I assure you, but a severe attack of illness and the strict orders of a doctor would have prevented him from being here amongst you. I may say this, that although he is absent from you in body, we may be quite sure he is present in spirit, and that he is at this moment thinking of the good work which you are engaged in, and wishing you God speed. I would wish, Mr. Mayor and gentlemen, to read his letter to the brethren who were to be here to-day excusing himself for his unavoidable absence. The letter referred to was then read. It will not be necessary for me to add many words to those contained in the letter written by my brother, but I cannot omit expressing to the brethren of Scarboro' and the people generally our best thanks for the kind way in which you have received us to-day. I assure you it has been a great pleasure to us to be able in any way to contribute to the happiness of mankind. (Applause.) We consider it is the duty of the Freemasons to think always of, and assist, not only the brethren of their own Lodge, but all their brethren throughout the world. (Applause.) And if any one would ask,—if any of those who do not belong to us would wish to know what we do (and I know there are those who speak lightly of our order), I would point to our noble institutions, to our Boys' and Girls' Schools, and to our Institution; for the Decayed and Aged. (Applause.) And I hope before long, if our example is followed, we may be able to point to a new institution as belonging to us—the Masonic Lifeboat Institution—end all along our coast we may see them scattered and doing their good work. It is somewhat curious that Warwickshire, the most inland Masonic Province, should be the first to send a lifeboat to sea. This shows that although we cannot see the dangers of the sea, we can appreciate it; for those who do not see the danger often appreciate it more than those on the spot. And when we read in the newspapers of the calamitous loss of life so frequently occurring on our shores, we felt deeply for the sufferers; and now we feel proud that we have been the instrument of saving many a life, and of affording comfort and relief to many a home that must be rendered destitute but for the aid thus given. As Warwickshire is the central province of England, so we have begun the movement, and hope that as we are the centre, others will follow our example, and that soon every province in England will contribute its lifeboat. (Applause.) Mr. Mayor, Capt. Ward, allow me to present to the National Lifeboat Institution this boat, the "Lady Leigh," and through that excellent institution, to the town of Scarbro'. May God speed it; may the men who man this boat be actuated by noble motives, as I know they will be, and set an example to those among whom they live of temperance, sobriety, and chastity. (Loud applause.)

Captain WARD, R.N., said it was his happy privilege to be deputed by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution to accept the present of this boat at their hands. They had now 233 of these noble boats, many of which had been given by public institutions. He mentioned that both the Foresters and Oddfellows had contributed boats. They had received fourteen boats from Manchester alone. Some had resulted from legacies, and some, again, had been presented as memorial boats. They owed their noble fleet to public generosity, and they certainly should not have half the number if the people had not come forward in this noble manner. He only knew of two stations, where lifeboats could be worked, that were yet unsupplied. He earnestly appealed to the public for support in the maintenance of the Lifeboat establishments; as it was to such places as Scarbro', and Brighton, and Hastings that they must look to make up the deficiency of the small village stations, where hardly anybody could be said to represent the Institution. In calling for the extended support of the public, he shewed that last year the boats of the Institution saved 640 lives; and in the year before, above 800 were saved through their agency. On the part of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, he now expressed his most grateful thanks to the Freemasons of Warwickshire for this their splendid gift; and in handing the boat over to the town of Scarbro', he felt sure the local committee and the crew would do their best to maintain the station in efficiency and readiness for the saving of life. He could promise them that if they did their duty the boat would do hers.

The Mayor of Scarboro' (Alderman Dr. Rooke), next rose and was received with immense cheering. When it had subsided, he said: Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Leigh, officers and brethren from Warwickshire,—I have very great pleasure indeed, on behalf of the inhabitants of Scarboro', in accepting this magnificent testimonial of your kindness and benevolence to this town. In presenting this splendid boat you have given us a token of your esteem and regard which not only the people of Scarbro' but the brethren themselves in all parts of the kingdom will long appreciate. It has been asked to-day, what is the great distinguishing characteristic of Freemasonry. In reply I would say—practical charity. We believe in doing deeds of benevolence, but we believe in doing it practically—and our benevolence takes a practical form to-day when we present a lifeboat to the exposed North-East coast. I do not know that I need say more, except once more to thank you kindly and sincerely on behalf of the inhabitants for your magnificent gift.

Capt. SALT, at this stage of proceedings, read a letter from Lady Leigh, apologizing for her absence, and deputed her daughter to perform the ceremony of naming the boat.

The Hon. Agnes Leigh then stepped upon the platform, to which she was handed by Capt. Ward, and taking the bottle in her hands, she dashed it against the boat and said, "I name this boat the Lady Leigh. May God prosper her." The boat was then launched amid renewed cheering. She was greatly admired, and appeared to be perfectly under the control of her crew. The rocket apparatus was also worked from a point beyond the Spa wall, under the direction of Capt. Evans. His worship the Mayor and his official friends, together with the Freemasons present, and other gentlemen, adjourned to the refreshment room at the Spa. A short time was spent in complimentary toasts. Amongst those given were "Success to the Lady Leigh Lifeboat," "Health, Wealth and prosperity to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire," "The Health of Lord and Lady Leigh" (which was responded to by the Hon. Gilbert Leigh), "The Health of the Mayor and Mayoress of Scarborough."

The Brethren of the Warwickshire deputation were entertained at dinner in the evening by the Brethren of the old Globe Lodge, No. 200, at the Railway Hotel, Westborough Street.

About 120 sat down to an admirable dinner, served by Mr. Shaw, and a most pleasant evening was spent with true Masonic sociability.

A Ball at the Grand Hotel on Friday evening, given by the Brethren of the Denison Lodge, 1248, at which about 160 were present, concluded the Masonic celebration of the presentation and launch of the Lady Leigh Lifeboat.

KNIGHT TEMPLARISM IN CANADA

The following address was delivered by the Grand Prior of Canada at the Annual Grand Conclave, held on the 14th of August, 1872, at Toronto, Province of Ontario.

Fratres of the Christian Order of the Temple and Hospital for Canada:

Another year with its many hopes and fears, its mercies and trials, has passed away, and we are once more permitted to assemble together and renew our bonds of Christian union. Gratitude for the blessings we enjoy should pervade our hearts, and prepare us to improve our meetings. Here, as Brethren engaged in one common cause, and having at heart one object, we ought to strive by a mutual interchange of fraternal feelings, and harmonious action on all matters connected with the prosperity of our purely Christian Order, to make this and every annual assembly an opportunity for the renewal of Unity, Friendship, and Harmony. It is with pleasure I can state that the Order of the Temple and Hospital in England was never in a more prosperous condition than at present, and in every part of the wide extent of jurisdiction of the Supreme Grand Conclave, it is yearly increasing in numbers and influence. Since the last meeting of Grand Priory, four new Encampments have been added to our roll in Canada, with one under Dispensation, all in the Province of Ontario. The "Gondemar" at the Village of Maitland, where I had the pleasure of installing a most enthusiastic and well informed Brother as Eminent Commander, Frater C. Longley. At Whitby, the "St. John the Almoner," under Eminent Commander George Henry Frewen Dartnell; and the "Palestine," of Port Hope, of which Frater James M. Irwin is Eminent Commander. In Toronto, from the representations made to me that there was sufficient scope in so large and influential a city, I was induced to accede to a petition and recommend a warrant being granted for a second Encampment, the "Odo de St. Amand," having received the assurance of the Eminent Commander Elect, Frater Nelson Gordon Bigelow, that the relations between them and the existing old Encampment, the "Geoffrey de St. Adlewar," would be of the most courteous and cordial character, and tend to the establishing of a lasting friendship. The Deputy Provincial Grand Commander, V. E. Frater S. B. Hartman, in his accustomed able and impressive manner, performed the beautiful ceremony of installation and consecration. All these Encampments will now receive their warrants from the Dominion Grand Chancellor.

In London, where I regretted last year having to report the arrest of the "Richard Cœur de Lion" Encampment, I have granted a Dispensation to hold another Encampment, and the Eminent Commander, Frater Alfred George Smyth, has been duly installed by the Dep. Prov. Grand Commander, with every prospect of a successful and harmonious result. I am glad to announce that Frater Thomas MacMullen, who was suspended by me for contumacious conduct, has delivered to the Grand Chancellor the Minute and Cash Books of the old Encampment, so very improperly retained by him; and having expressed his regret, and forwarded me a written apology, requesting to be allowed to retire from the Order in good standing, I have withdrawn the suspension, with the understanding that he does not continue to be an active member of the Order.

The announcement that H. R. H. the Prince of Wales had honoured the "Faith and Fidelity" Encampment of London, by being installed its Eminent Commander, will be hailed with sincere pleasure by the whole Templar body of England and no where more enthusiastically than in this Dominion. The deep anxiety and regret caused by the late protracted and dangerous illness of His Royal Highness, and the subsequent rejoicings at his recovery, called forth from the hearts of all classes of Her Majesty's subjects feelings of the most intense loyalty to the throne, and devotion to himself; and may we thus ever, whether in prosperity or adversity, prove loyal to our vows and professions as Templars. With the Heralds, then, who lately proclaimed His Royal Highness Eminent Commander of the "Faith and Fidelity" Encampment let us, too, heartily exclaim,— "Long life, honour, and prosperity, to His Royal Highness Albert Edward Prince of Wales, Eminent Commander of the Temple and Hospital, and may God prosper and bless our illustrious and Royal brother!"

The relations between ourselves and the sister Encampments of the United States, I am happy to say, continue to be of the most cordial and fraternal nature. The Encampment from Portland (Maine) paid a visit to Montreal in the month of June, and the Eminent Commander, with some twenty-four of his Knights, honoured me with a visit at the Camp at Laprairie. I only regret that my time was so occupied with the duties of the military camp as to prevent my visiting them, in Montreal, and assisting to pay them, with the Montreal Encampment, that attention I should have felt it a pleasure to offer.

At our last meeting of Grand Priory I made some appointments of Representatives at State Grand Commanderies in the United States, my object being to promote a closer and more intimate feeling of friendship between the members of the sister jurisdictions and our own. It appears however, that the Grand Encampments of the United States, claiming absolute and exclusive power over Foreign relations does not follow the same to be exercised by their State Grand Commanderies, and issued an edict to that effect, and restricting this interchange of representatives; regretting that I should in any way trespass upon the privileges of the Grand Encampment of the United States, I have directed the Grand Chancellor to notify the fratres to whom rank in the Grand Priory was thus accorded, that we hope, if it does not interfere with their allegiance, that will consider themselves still Honorary Members of this Grand Priory.

With regard to myself and the Grand Officers appointed Canadian Representatives of the State Commanderies, as a matter of course our functions and duties as such must cease.

The visits of Encampments from the United States to Canada has given rise to a wish on the part of several of our fratres for a change of costume to admit of their taking part in processions and masonic demonstrations. For my own part I cannot agree with the necessity of this change. The order of the Temple as now constituted was never intended for the public gaze or street display, and the modern innovations of a military uniform and drill, so much thought of in the United States, does not convey to my mind the dignified position we ought to assume as successors, although by adoption, of our predecessors, the Knights of old, and although I have no wish or intention to disparage the feelings which actuate the order in the United States, it does not follow that we should approve of or adopt their views; and however consistent may be the military dress with the cocked hat adopted by them as memento of the dress worn by the soldiers of the revolution, it certainly is not an appropriate one for us. I am always glad to entertain and recommend any proposition for the good of the Order, or that would gratify the members, but I fail to see any good in this contemplated change, about which am in receipt of several communications. Our costume, assimilating as it does to that worn of old, is emblematical of the Order, and at the installation of an aspirant the beautiful ceremony of initiation fully explains it,—the white mantle and overcoat is to represent a pure life, with a red cross as a symbol of martyrdom.

The argument used, that it is not a suitable one to assist at the laying of foundation stones or other masonic demonstrations, cannot be applicable to the Temple—such ceremonies being entirely within the province of the Craft degrees of Freemasonry, and never could have formed any part of the duties of the Knights Templar. I am myself strongly opposed to all public displays, and deprecate them most strenuously. There is too great a desire to blazon forth all our doings, which neither can be understood nor appreciated by the public at large. The following quotation from a recent masonic address at New Orleans, by Bro. the Rev. W. V. Tudor, conveys all I could wish to say:—"Secrecy is a peculiar feature of masonry; and the meaning and power of masonic secrecy lies in another word, and that is—silence, and may be read in these words:—"When thou doest thine alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right doeth;" or this, "He shall not cry or lift up, nor cause his voice to be heard in the streets."

One argument adduced in favour of the proposed change is, "that it is the only way in which the success of the Order in Canada can be secured." It is a matter of much regret to me that the principles of the Order of the Temple, its history and antecedents, is so little understood as these sentiments would seem to imply. If the opportunity of exhibiting themselves in public with an attractive costume be really the principal inducement for persons wishing to join the Order, such accessions to our ranks would do us but little credit, and there are surely enough of other distinguished societies where they might readily obtain the opportunity of the public display they covet, and without being hampered with the vows of the Templar.

I have already appointed a Committee to inquire into, and report upon, such matters as may be thought conducive to the prosperity of the Order in Canada, with a view to the removal of every possible cause of difference, and the strengthening the ties that bind us to our English allegiance, and although so entirely opposed to any alteration in the costume, will request that this desire for an out-door dress be also taken into consideration for submission to the Supreme Grand Conclave in England. To the same Committee, I would also specially refer the consideration whether, as we have now so many Encampments formed, it would not be expedient at once to establish one or more Provincial Grand Conclaves, the formation of which would, I strongly feel, be the means of advancing the prosperity of the Order, which depends so much on unity of action and a strict adherence to the principles by which we profess to be governed.

I have to announce to you that I have directed credentials to be made out, conferring the rank of a Past Deputy Provincial Grand Commander and Honorary Corresponding Member of this Grand Priory on Sir Knight Richard Woolf, F.S.A., of Worcester, England, Past Commander of the "St. Amand" Encampment, Worcester, a member of the Supreme Grand Conclave, and one of the Committee now engaged in revising the Statutes of the Order. Frater Woolf is well known as the writer of several able treatises, among them a most excellent and interesting little work, which I strongly recommend for the perusal of all Templars, intitled, "A Sketch of the Order of Knights Templar and Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, with notes on Masonic Templars." (London: Robert Hardwick, 192, Piccadilly, 1865).

It would appear an impression is entertained by some Encampments in the United States that there are other Degrees in Masonry considered as a necessary pre-requisite to the Templar. As I have been instrumental in introducing several of those degrees and orders into Canada, it may not be out of place to allude to them, and state that no other degree is required for a novice of our order than that of the Royal Arch, as practised in England. The Order of the Red Cross of Constantine, although a Christian one, has no connection whatever with that of the Temple, and is held under quite a separate jurisdiction. The historical notice, in the Statutes of that Order, has unintentionally been the means of disseminating a very great error, which was contradicted by a declaration from the Grand Sovereign of that order last year, namely, that this Masonic Red Cross was the actual representative of the ancient and still existing public Order of that name, supported by a wild fiction that Abbé Giustiniani, who was attached to the Venetian Embassy in London, and was himself a Grand Cross, had conferred the novitate cross on certain Freemasons. It is clearly shewn that this is not the case, and it merely claims to be a revised branch of the masonic brotherhood which formed part of the system of the Baron Hunde, about 1759, and is the same Order as that over which the late Duke of Sussex presided from 1813 to 1845, for reception into which the degree of Master Mason is a necessary qualification.

By the last mail I am in receipt of a communication from the Grand Vice-Chancellor, informing me that an Encampment, known in London as the "Holy Cross and Beaumont," is not on the Roll of Grand Conclave, the committee having declined to recommend the granting of a warrant of confirmation of an old warrant dated in 1793. The holder of this warrant, Brother Morton Edwards, not a Knight Templar on Grand Conclave Register, and who claims to be the Commander by virtue thereof, has been suspended by the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters, of which body he was a Grand Officer, on the complaint of the authorities of Grand Conclave, under the Tripartite Treaty of 13th March, 1871, between the supreme authorities of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital, and Malta, the 33rd Degree, and the Grand Lodge of Mark Master for pretending to confer the Degrees of Knight Templar and Knight of Malta in England. The Grand Chancellor will read a circular, also received in connection with the Treaty above named.

Since writing the above, I very much regret to say that our valued friend and V. E. Frater, T. D. Harrington, the Deputy Grand Prior of the Dominion, has written me to say that his health for some time past, has been so impaired as to render it impossible for him to attend Grand Priory, and as he has been recommended to avoid all exertion and excitement, he finds it necessary to tender me his resignation as Deputy Grand Prior. I know I express all your feelings in saying with what pain on the one hand we receive this intelligence of his indisposition, and with what gratification on the other, we will hail his restoration to health and his appearance again amongst us. I am further sure of meeting your fullest and most hearty approbation in nominating as his successor our valued and esteemed V. E. Frater Samuel B. Harman, one of the oldest of the Grand Officers and members of the order in the Dominion, who will now be proclaimed and saluted as Deputy Grand Prior of the Dominion.

And now, Fratres of the Temple, let me thank you for the kindness you have always manifested towards me, and the respect you have been pleased to entertain for my opinions in all matters connected with the Order—giving me credit for motives of active zeal to advance the interests add ensure the prosperity of the Canadian Branch of the Temple, and I remain ever,

Your faithful Frater,
 † W. B. MACLEOD MOORE,
 Grand Prior of the Dominion of Canada.

Scotland.

ANNUAL VISIT OF THE PROV. G. MASTER OF ROXBURGHSHIRE, TO THE LODGES OF ST. JOHN AND ST. JAMES, HAWICK.

On Friday night the 6th inst., the Lodges St. John, No 111, and St. James, No. 424, Hawick, received the annual visit of the Grand Master, Henry Scott Inglis, Esq., of Torsonce.

The worthy gentleman was received at the Railway Station by a deputation of the brethren, headed by Bro. William Irvine, manufacturer, Hawick, Substitute Prov. Grand Master that was to be. From the station they wended their way to the Tower Hotel, where the honorable gentleman received further deputations from both lodges. From this favourite hostelry, after dressing, they bent their steps to St. John's Lodge Room, where the brethren were assembling in goodly numbers, among which were deputations from the Hawick Lodge, "Journeyman," No. 8, Edinburgh, also from the "Flowers of the Forest," Selkirk, No. 32, while the lodge from the city of "Sour Plums," Galashiels, put in an appearance, among whom were distinguished the stalwart form of Councillor Thomson. Lodge Jedburgh, No. 14, was not wanting, and again was heard the ancient slogan, heard in many a well-contested border fray of "Jetharth's here." Last of all came a deputation from the worthy P.M.'s own Hall Gates, Stow, and the manner in which it acquitted itself proved that the light of Masonry did not burn lonely in the distant village.

In due time the brethren formed into procession, preceded by sword-bearers, marshalled by I.P.M. Bro Kyle, and stepped blithely forward, on their way to St. James Lodge in the Exchange, to the enlivening strains of the old Masonic march, "The Merry Masons," played by the Hawick Saxhorn Band. Here a goodly company, upwards of one hundred, sat down to a most rechere banquet, furnished by Brother Pakison, of the Bridge Hotel. After discussing the good things set before them amidst an incessant flow of wit and repartee, business was proceeded with, the books were examined, and everything being found in excellent order, both lodges received the hearty commendations of the P.G.M., after which the fun and hilarity of the evening began, and soon grew fast and furious.

The first toast of the evening, "To the Memory of the Holy St. John" by the Prov. G. M., was drunk in solemn silence, after which followed "The Queen," with all the honours, Bro. Lawson leading off with the anthem in his usually happy style, in which he was assisted by the whole company.

The Prov. G.M. then "gave the Patron of the Scottish Craft, the Prince of Wales," pre-facing the toast by a smart appropriate speech. The toast was hailed with applause and drunk with all the honours till the roof and rafters of the baronial hall rung again.

The Prov. G.M. followed, informing the company that Bro. Irvine had been appointed Substitute Prov. G.M. Thanks were returned by Bro. Irvine in his own racy style, accepting the high office cheerfully, and stating that he would do all in his power to work the Craft to advantage, and increase the brethren in the South of Scotland.

The next toast was "Lodge of St. James," coupled with the name of Brother Bruce, the Master," the Prov. G.M. stating the pleasure and gratification it afforded him to meet so many intelligent, well-dressed brethren; he considered it an honor to preside over them.

Thanks were returned by Bro. Bruce, who, in winding up his remarks, proposed the health of the Prov. G.M., the man beloved by all, the large hearted, finely cultivated, genial, Scottish gentleman. The toast was drunk with three times three, in ancient Masonic form, and finished off with "He's a jolly good fellow" by the whole strength of the company. The enthusiastic applause brought the Prov. G.M. to his feet, who assured the brethren that he was always glad to meet the men of the Border; on these occasions he was always sure of a hearty welcome; they never did things by halves; their whole history showed that, whether it was in defending their rights, inspiring their ancient enemies of England, or in welcoming a brother, there was no half-heartedness; it was done with all their might, it was thorough, and he was at all times proud and happy to meet them.

The Prov. G.M., in a good introduction, next proposed the health of "Lodge Journeyman No. 8, Edinburgh," characterising it as a lodge that he regarded with fond affection, and it was well worthy of all the affection he could bestow upon it; it was staunch, ever ready and ever true.

Bro. Henry, of Journeyman Lodge, returned thanks in an excellent speech, in which he gave the Prov. G.M. full and deserved credit for his geniality and urbanity, and excellent qualities as a Chairman.

The "Health and Prosperity of Lodge Selkirk, No. 52," was then proposed, coupled with the name of Bro. Clapperton.

Bro. Clapperton then returned thanks in a spirited speech, pointing out that though the "Flowers of the Forest" were a wide away, the Sutons of Selkirk were left and were near, who would never stain their reputation, and never be the last in the fray.

The Prov. G.M. then gave the health of Lodge No. 104, Jedburgh, coupled with the name of Bro. Scott.

Bro. Scott returned thanks, in a happy speech, for Lodge No. 104, Jedburgh.

Lodge St. John's, No. 111, Hawick, was the next to receive attention at the hands of the worthy Prov. G.M. The subject was neatly and appropriately introduced, coupled with the name of Bro. Noble.

Bro. Noble, in a vigorous speech, returned thanks for the kind and gracious manner in which the Prov. G.M. had spoken of Lodge No. 111. After all, he thought they were deserving of all that had been said of them, as they claimed to be real Teribus men, the sons of heroes; and any faintheartedness or halfheartedness must not and never would be found amongst them; like their fathers, who "rallied up by Teribus," they would always be found in the van. The telling remarks he made provoked a hurricane of applause, and were cheered to the echo.

The Prov. G.M. then gave the health of Stow Lodge, No. 216, coupled with the name of Bro. Carr, which was drunk with great cordiality.

Bro. Carr returned thanks in a happy pointed speech, short and pithy.

Bro. Scott, Sec. of St. James's, No. 424, proposed the health of Proxy Master of their lodge, Bro. Davidson, making graceful allusions to his tact, energy, and business qualifications.

Bro. Davidson then returned thanks.

Bro. Heeney proposed the Provincial Grand Lodge of Selkirk and Peebles, coupled with the name of Bro. Thomson, in a smart speech, after which Bro. Thompson replied in his rich, racy, humorous manner. By this time the dial indicated low twelve, and the proceedings were brought to a close in the ancient Masonic manner.

Each, then, took off his separate way, happy and well pleased. Altogether it was a night never to be forgotten. The Prov. G.M. is admirably fitted for the chair, courteous and pleasant, good at a speech, happy and apt in his quotations, and smart in repartee. The speeches were good, and the songs were the choicest and sung with great spirit, and nothing was said or done that the most refined and cultivated could not have listened to. As usual, the Teetotallers and Good Templars mustered in strong force, and proved conclusively that the inspiring jug is not necessary to enable one to spend a good happy night.

Original Correspondence.

MASONS AT PUBLIC MEETINGS,

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

But few Masons sympathise with the uncalled for attack made by two or three un-discerning brethren, against our Rev. Bro. Woodward, on account of his late attendance at a public lecture on Papacy, held at Ipswich. If your correspondents are Masons, they can scarcely have sufficiently cultivated the virtue of charity, which Masonry so strongly upholds and which thinketh no evil and teaches us to admonish an erring brother privately or, they would hardly have made this groundless charge. In becoming a mason, a brother neither gives up his individuality nor curtails his liberty as a subject, and a death blow would be dealt to Masonry, if our Rev. Brethren were debarred from doing what is their strict duty, viz., at all times and in all places to protest against the errors of the Romish Church. Our Rev. Brother attended the Ipswich Meeting solely as an individual and a Minister of the Gospel. He neither wore Masonic clothing, nor announced himself as Chaplain to our Schools, nor offered nor was asked to offer up a prayer as such. Masonry had nothing whatever to do with the meeting or lecture, and it is simply unmasonic, unjust, and moreover indecorous to pretend to hold him responsible, because the reporter of the Suffolk Newspaper identified and described him Masonically. Our Rev. Brother may rest assured of the sympathy of a very large majority of Masons, and can well afford to treat this attack with the only notice it deserves, viz., silence. We shall next see some recognised brother attacked for attending a Conservative or Liberal Meeting. Masonry takes no part in religious or political demonstrations, but neither does it uphold such tyranny as "Vectis" states to be predominant in Ipswich. I should like to know in what degree a Mason surrenders his liberty of thought, action or opinion, whether, in religion or politics, in order that I may avoid it. A Mason and a younger man in age and Masonry, than our Rev. Brother, I feel indignant at the presumption which recommends, him who has committed no offence, "not to offend again." As Chaplain to our Schools our Reverend Bro. belongs to us in London as much as to the Ipswich section and we should much regret to see him toadying to them, in opposition to his freedom and duty. Prove him guilty of having compromised Masonry and then we will unite in reproof.

Yours fraternally,
N. R.

THE SCOTS GREYS AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The interesting sketch of the Scots Greys a century ago, in relation to Freemasonry, was by my friend and Bro. D. Murray Lyon, the historian of "Mother Lodge, Kilwinning," and the "Lodge of Edinburgh."

His name has been omitted from the article, and I now write to let your numerous subscribers know that the graphic sketch was by him.

You will excuse my thus troubling you, but having forwarded the paper for publication, it seemed to me incomplete, without a signature.

W. J. HUGHAN.

THE BALLOT FOR W.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It seems that I have been in error, in advising a second ballot to be taken for the W.M., provided an absolute majority of the members be not obtained in the first vote.

In the absence of any definite rule being laid down in our Book of Constitutions, many Lodges and Past Masters, in common with myself, have considered that it was very desirable to secure a majority of the brethren present in favour of the W.M. Elect, but I am told positively, on good authority, that it has been ruled otherwise at "Head Quarters," and that the first Ballot is final. Whatever may be our individual opinions as to such a course, I at once withdraw my suggestion of a second ballot, as recommended at page 522 of the Freemason, although it still appears to me the better plan.

W. J. HUGHAN.

NEW ZEALAND.

TIMARU.—St. John's Lodge. (No 1137 E.C.).—The annual meeting for the Installation of W.M. and officers of the above lodge took place at the Oddfellow's Hall, Barnard-street, on the 27th of June, the ceremonial being conducted by Brother C.W. Bishop, Deputy District Grand Master, assisted by P.M. Brother Henry Thompson, of Christchurch. Among the visitors were Brothers E. Price, R.W.M., and C. Jacobs, P.M. of the Caledonian Lodge, S.C., the Rev. L. L. Brown, Chaplain of St. John's Lodge; about fifty brethren of the local lodges being also in attendance. The D.D.G.M. having first installed Brother G.H. Wildie as W.M. for the ensuing year, then installed his officers, as follows:—Bro. J.W. White S.W.,; Brother G. W. Wade, J.W. Brother R. Scott, (re-invested) Treasurer; Bro. W.M. Sims (re-invested) Secretary; Brother W. Ziesler, Organist; Brother F. J. Wilson, (re-invested) D. C.; Brother W. Hobbs, S.D.; Brother John Macintosh, J.D.; Brother H. Fieldwick, I.G.; Brother Exley, (re-invested) Tyler. The D.D.G.M. then addressed the Master and officers severally in the duties of their respective offices in eloquent and impressive terms. The W.M. said he had a pleasing duty to perform, which was, to present their late Master, who had so ably discharged the duties of his office, with a P.M. jewel and a purse of sovereigns in recognition of his valuable services to the Lodge. He hoped Brother King would live many years to wear it. The W.M. then invested Brother J. King with the jewel, which is a very handsome one, bearing the appropriate emblem of the rank of P.M. in gold relief upon a surface of blue enamel, framed with gold, the head of the framing bearing a square, compass and five pointed star from which, by means of a ring it is a joined to a blue ribbon and attacher, the back of the jewel bearing the following inscription:—

To Bro. John King, from
S. John's Lodge, 1137. E.C.
Brother J. King, in feeling terms, returned thanks. He never expected so great an honour, for he was not aware that he had done anything to deserve it. He assured them he should ever value their present, not so much for its intrinsic worth, but as being a mark of their friendship and esteem, business of the Lodge being concluded, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, to which full justice was done. The usual loyal and masonic toasts were drunk, the proceedings being enlivened by some capital singing. Altogether, the large party of brethren assembled spent a most happy time, which lasted until the small hours next morning, the lateness of the hour being through the fact that the banquet did not commence until nearly midnight, owing to the lateness of the arrival of the Grand Officers who came by coach from Christchurch.

Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishops-gate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
 St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 25.

Lodge 507, United Pilgrims, Horns Tavern, Kennington-park.
 " 753, Prince Frederick William, Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood.
 " 754, High Cross, Seven Sisters Tavern, Page-green, Tottenham.
 " 898, Temperance-in-the-East, 7, Newby-place, Poplar.
 " 1056, Victoria, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 Chap. 820, Lily of Richmond, Greyhound Hotel, Richmond.
 Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
 United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
 Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
 Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
 Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
 Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
 Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 26.

General Committee Girls' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 4.
 Lodge 65, Prosperity, Guildhall Coffee-house, Gresham-st.
 " 766, William Preston, Cannon-st. Hotel.
 Mark Lodge 118, Northumberland, Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street.
 Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
 United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
 Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, BethnalGreen, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsoby-st., Milbank.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 27.

Lodge 780, Royal Alfred, Star and Garter, Kew Bridge.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (753) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsfield, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

THE GREAT SECRET of modern success lies in the art of Advertising. JOHN BAPTIST WOLPERT ensures a general saving, and wide-spread publicity to all who advertise through his agency. Translations in all languages. Offices, 24, Austin Friars, City.

NOW READY, PRICE £4/4 THE PAIR, OR £2/10 SINGLE.
SIZE 32in. BY 26in.

PHOTOGRAPHS

BRO. SIGISMUND ROSENTHAL'S CELEBRATED PAINTINGS,

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master,

At Freemasons' Hall, on December 1st, 1869, containing upwards of 120 Figures and Portraits.

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar,

May 13th, 1870, containing nearly 100 Figures and Portraits.

Sold by BRO. G. KENNING, 2, 3, & 4, Little Britain, E.C.

Branches: 198, Fleet-street, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

IRON PIANOS FOR ALL CLIMATES

MESSRS. BORN & Co., 13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.

MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Qaires, emblematically labelled,

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.
LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, Traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA.

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

BY WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinæ," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.

Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.

Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

The Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 591
 Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts... 593
 Grand Lodge of Scotland 595
CORRESPONDENCE:—
 Masons at Public Meetings 595
 The Ballot for W.M..... 595
 The Spurious Rite of Memphis 596
CRAFT MASONRY:—
 Metropolitan 596
 Provincial 596
 Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland 596
 Masonic Tidings 600
 Masonic Meetings for next week... .. 600
 Advertisements..... 589, 590, 601, 602 603, 604

NOTES ON THE “UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.”

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st. July, 1872.

BY EMMA HOLMES, 31^o,

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 577.)

Mackey, quoting from Clavel, thus speaks of the Rite of Strict Observance, before alluded to.*

“The Rite of Strict Observance was a modification of Masonry, based on the Order of Knights Templar, and introduced into Germany in 1745 by its founder, the Baron Hunde. It was divided into the following seven degrees:—
 1. Apprentice; 2. Fellow Craft; 3. Master; 4. Scotch Master; 5. Novice; 6. Templar; 7. Professed Knight.

According to the system of the founder of this Rite, upon the death of Jacques Molay, the Grand Master of the Templars, Pierre d’ Aumont, the Provincial Grand Master of Auvergne, with two Commanders and five Knights, retired for purposes of safety into Scotland, which place they reached, disguised as operative Masons, and there finding the Grand Commander, George Harris, and several Knights, they determined to continue the Order.

Aumont was nominated Grand Master at a chapter held on St. John’s Day, 1313. To avoid persecution the Knights become Freemasons. In 1316 the Grand Master of the Temple removed his seat to Old Aberdeen, and from that time the Order, under the veil of Masonry, spread rapidly through France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, and elsewhere. These events constituted the principal subject of many of the degrees of the Rite of Strict Observance. The others were connected with alchemy, magic, and other superstitious practices. The great doctrine contended for was “that every true Mason is a Knight Templar.”

He also says that the Clerks of Relaxed Observance were a schism from the Order of Strict Observance. They claimed a pre-eminence over not only the latter Rite, but over all Masonry. The Rite was divided into ten degrees, called Apprentice, Fellowcraft, Master African Brother, Knight of St. Andrew, Knight of the Eagle,

*Lexicon of Masonry, pp. 235-6.

Scotch Master, Sovereign Magus, Provincial Master of the Red Cross, and Knight of Light. This last degree was divided into five sections, comprehending Knight Novice of the third year, Knight of the fifth year, Knight of the seventh year, Knight Levite, and Knight Priest. To be initiated into the mysteries of the clerks, it was necessary to be a Roman Catholic and to have taken all the military degrees of the Rite of Strict Observance. Alchemy was one of the objects of their secret instruction.

Findel says* “Towards the end of the year 1778, the Scotch directories in Auvergne and Burgundy invited to a Convent National des Gaules, in Lyons, which assembly was actually convened in November and December.

The name of Templar “was exchanged for that of Chevalier Bienfaisant de la Sainte cité,” and some important changes in the ritual of the Strict Observance were made, without, however, causing any breach with this latter.

It appears that Bro. Von Weiler had in 1774, received from Baron Von Hunde, Grand Master of the Strict Observance, a warrant to establish the Order in France. He was very successful, and the Grand Orient, whose chief officers secretly belonged, Findel says, to the Strict Observance, resolved in 1755, to unite themselves to those directories formed by Weiler, and in the following year a treaty of union was approved of by a very large majority.

I have before noted the tradition about D’Aumont, which is quoted again from Mackey, in relation to the Rite of Strict Observance, and have mentioned some of the objections to it.

The readers of the Freemason will, I dare say, pardon me, if I return for a moment to the subject of these traditions. I dare say many will take a greater interest in the subject, when they learn that Jacques de Molay was intimately connected with the Order in England.

Addison informs us that Jaques de Molay succeeded the Grand Master Gaudini, 1293; that he was of the family of the Lords of Louvic and Raon, in Burgundy.

This illustrious nobleman was at the head of the English Province of the Order at the period of his election as Grand Master. He was first appointed Visitor General, then Grand Preceptor of England. During his residence in Britain he held several chapters or assemblies of the brethren at the Temple at London, and at the different preceptories. He stood as sponsor to the son of Philip le Bel, and visited France for that purpose.

He also informs us at that time Bro. Himbert Blancke, Knight, Preceptor of Auvergne, who was one of the Knights examined when the Order was suppressed, had been in the Order thirty-eight years. He was received at the city of Tyre, had been engaged in constant warfare against the Infidels, and had fought to the last in defence of Acre.

When he was asked why they had made the reception and profession of brethren secret, he replied “through our own unaccountable folly.”

Bro. Thomas le Chamberleyn, in his examination, said the reception was the same in England as beyond the sea, that all seculars were excluded, and that when he himself entered the Temple

*Page 234.

Church to be professed, the door by which he entered was closed after him. On being asked why none else were present but the brethren, he said he knew of no reason, but that it was so written in their book of rules.

Addison states that the Templars were imprisoned over three years in England; so that it is not at all impossible that Himbert de Blancke may have been succeeded by D’Aumont during his imprisonment, or D’Aumont may have been his deputy, and acted as Grand Prior of Auvergne during his absence in England.

One of the rack-extorted confessions of Templars which was exhibited in London, and which had been obtained in France, was from Robert de St. Just, who had been received into the Order by Brother Himbert, Grand Preceptor of England*; one would be glad to know what, if any, connection there was between the Grand Preceptor of England and the Grand Prior of Auvergne. It has been objected that the names mentioned in the traditions of the Knights who perpetuated the Order cannot be traced. It would be surprising if they could.

From the “Student’s France,” edited by Dr. Smith,* I gather that at the time of the suppression of the Order the Templars formed a body of 15,000 veteran warriors. Dr. Smith says “no less than 546 Templars appeared before the Royal Commission, formed to try them, from different parts of the Kingdom, all of whom agreed in declaring that the accusations against them were utterly false and calumnious,—that the faith of the Order was and always had been immaculate,—that its original rule had been faithfully and strictly observed,—that all statements to the contrary were base and infamous perjuries.”

The Archbishop of Sens, one of Phillip’s creatures, assembled a Provincial Council, and condemned fifty-four of the Templars. The sentence was carried into effect on the 10th May, 1310, in the Faubourg St. Antoine, at Paris. The unhappy sufferers died with the utmost constancy, and protested with their last breath their entire innocence.”

The editor, speaking of Clement V.’s suppression of the Order, which the Pope pronounced 22nd March, 1312, mentions that two-thirds of their moveable property was claimed by the French Crown, “by way of compensation for the expenses of this iniquitous prosecution.”

He goes on to say that the Grand Master, Jaques de Molay, and his three brethren, the Preceptors of Normandy, Aquitaine, and Poitu, remained still to be disposed of. They were then kept two years longer in confinement in Paris, and on the 11th of March, 1314, were brought forth before a Commission, named by the Pope, to hear their final sentence, which condemned them to perpetual imprisonment.

The presiding Cardinal had no sooner ceased than the Grand Master and the Preceptor of Normandy suddenly stood up, and, in energetic language, recanted the confessions formerly extorted from them, and called Heaven to witness that they were wholly guiltless. The commission was adjourned till next day, but Philip caused the two prisoners to be conveyed the same night *pp. 186, 187, 188.

*Addison’s Templars, page 273.

to a small island in the Seine, close to his palace, where they were burnt to death.

"They persisted to the last in asserting their innocence," Dr. Smith adds, "and suffered with a constancy which moved the admiration of all beholders."

The author of "The Student's France" names Ferretti of Vicenza as the historian who mentions the incident already adverted to of the Grand Master summoning the Pope and Philip to appear before the throne of God to answer for their heinous crime.

I have before alluded to Wileke's attack on the Templars, quoted with such unction by Bro. Findel, whose bête noir is the Order of the Temple, I believe.

Let us see what a great author of our own says, and what his estimate is of Wileke's book.

In Milman's Latin Christianity,* the learned Dean says, "Wileke asserts (page 342), that Moldenhauer's publication of the proceedings against the Templars (now more accurately and fully edited by M. Michelet), was brought up by the Freemasons as injurious to the fame of the Templars. If this were so the Freemasons committed an error; my doubts of their guilt are strongly confirmed by the process. Wileke makes three regular gradations of initiation. First, the denial of Christ; second, the kisses; third, the worship of the idol. This is contrary to all the evidence; the two first are always described as simultaneous. Wileke has supposed that so long as the Order consisted only of Knights, it was orthodox. The Clerks introduced into the Order, chiefly Friar Minorites, brought in learning and the wild speculative opinions. But for this he alleges not the least proof."

Wileke, in his history of the Knights Templar, reviews the accusations made against them on their suppression, but repudiates the claims of the modern Templars to be their successors.

He supposes that the secret form of worship amongst them was introduced about 1250-1270.

He speaks of them as Gnostics, and says that following the bent of their age, they revered astrology and alchemy.

The heresy of the Templars, he says, was displayed at first only as a private opinion. "What previously had only been the belief of a few, now became general doctrine," says Findel in the appendix to his History of Freemasonry, who quotes Wileke as his authority, "their customs were turned into a ritual, their simple unassuming chapter was formed into a lodge, a secret teaching in dogma and ceremonial was inculcated, which most probably originated with the clergy."

The secret doctrine of the Order has been a matter of perpetual strife, and has awakened much speculation.

In the last century, says Findel, when Freemasonry erroneously supposed herself to be a daughter of Templarism, great pains were taken to regard the Order of Knights Templars as innocent and free from all taint of mysticism.

"Several centuries ago," he adds, "the Freemasons, in their eagerness to obtain historical facts, permitted false statements to be palmed upon them."

It would appear, then, according to his own statement, that this tradition of the connection of the Templars with Masonry was several centuries old.

Bro. Findel (or Wileke, for we hardly know whether the author is quoting Wileke, or only giving a digest of his views), alluding to the report in the eighteenth century, that the Knights Templar were still in existence, denies the possibility of such being the case, because when the Order was abolished, its power was annihilated, and "it was impossible to wake it from the dead."

He continues,—“Besides those members who were executed, many were in prison, and many had taken to flight and perished; some of the Knights, after the abolition of their Order, were set at liberty, and either entered other Orders, or were provided for by different convents, and not a few wandered about in an abject state of want and poverty. The fugitive Knights could not of themselves re-establish the Order (Why not Bro. Findel?) and still less those who have recognised and obeyed the superior powers; neither could they affect anything in their own favour in the Order of the Knights of St. John, or in the building fraternities, for it is probable many joined these communities, and the new confederacies which were sought to be instituted, never boasted of any vitality, and soon fell into oblivion. If the Order had continued to exist until the year 1459, it would most surely have incorporated itself with the new Order of Chivalry, which the Pope endeavoured to establish on the island of Lemnos, as no better opportunity could have been offered it of becoming known. If it had still existed in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, it would have been discovered and betrayed by the Jesuits. It could not have remained even a score of years concealed, still less centuries.”

For a violent opponent of the Masonic Knights Templar, it is rather an important admission to make the probable absorption of the Knights into the Order of Hospitallers, and amongst the Masons; but does Bro. Findel think for one moment that the Hospitallers would have admitted them, had they been guilty of the dreadful crimes imputed to them?

It is true, I dare say, that, as Findel elsewhere says "Not the Templars alone, but many other spiritual Orders of Knighthood were suspected of being addicted to heresy"; but if the truth were known it would simply come to this, that the Templars, like the Freemasons, were, in consequence of their long connection with the East, less bigoted in their religious views than quite suited the fancy of the Ultramontanes of that day, that they were more tolerant of the opinions of others, and in fact were liberal Catholics, or, more properly speaking, what we should now call Latitudinarians.

We all know the old lawyers' advice—"If you have a weak case, abuse the plaintiff's attorney."

Findel must have a very weak case against the Templars of to-day, when he rakes up against them all the foul calumnies which impartial historians have long ago consigned to the dust of oblivion.

Is it likely, we ask, that a body which had been so persecuted, which was under the ban of excommunication when excommunication meant something more than it does now, should seek to incorporate itself with a new Papal Order of Chivalry?

And as to the statement that it could not have remained concealed for any length of time, because of the Jesuits, why, by parity of reasoning, it might as well have been said that Freemasonry itself could not so exist, and with equal show of logic and common sense.

No truths are so dangerous as half truths. One of the charges brought against the Templars was that they were Gnostics, heretics in fact, just as the old Catholics of to-day will, no doubt, be termed, because they do not believe in the infallibility of the Pope. Well, it is not impossible that there was a shade of truth in this, that in fact they believed in the Creeds, that is in the form of belief which the Church of England, for instance, accepts for true. See Jacques de Molay's confession, quoted in a previous article.

He confessed all that the Catholic Church holds to be true, though not enough, perhaps for the Church of Rome. If the Templars were the depositaries of Masonic lore, as Laurie suggests, the Hospitallers, from their intimate connection with them, could scarcely avoid the contamination, as their enemies would have said.

The Templars, as men of world, would hardly be bigoted Catholics, and would be naturally disposed towards the reception of "Light."

I have already drawn attention to the probable initiation of the Templars into our mysteries, taught and practised as they were by the Syrian fraternities. Why may not the Templars have got their Masonry through the Saracens?

It has been objected that if we admit this, we admit the charges brought against them. But this I emphatically deny. We all know that to be a good Mason, one must be a good man, and I am yet to be informed that it was otherwise in "the days of old."

Bro. Haye, in his History of the Knights Templar,* says "It was stated by De Clifton that when the arrest of the English Templars was known in Scotland, John de Husflete, Preceptor of Blancradioch, and the others, threw off their habits, fled, and dispersed themselves "propter scandalum exortum contra ordinem," and we are told by a learned French author that, having deserted the Temple, they ranged themselves under the banner of Robert Bruce, and fought with him at Bannockburn.

Reynouard excuses himself from speculating on the fate of the Scottish Knights in these words:—"Que devinrent ils? Ce n'est pas à moi de soulever le voile mystérieux de ces infortunés; l'histoire publique se tait; mon devoir est de me faire comme elles."

Legend states that after the decisive battle of Bannockburn, when Scotland drove the usurping English from her soil, Bruce, in return for their eminent services, formed these Templars into a new body,† with rules based on those of the original Order."

(To be continued.)

* Freemason's Magazine, vol. 19, page 485.

† The Royal Order of Scotland.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GRAND LODGE OF MASSACHUSETTS, 1871.

BY BRO. WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

The Grand Lodge of Massachusetts may be said to be a literary as well as a Masonic organisation. Its proceedings increase in interest every year, and the volume lately issued for those of 1871, surpasses in value and importance any previous publication of that flourishing Grand Lodge. To do justice to such a massive work of some 750 pages, a long and extended review would be necessary, which we have not the time at present to prepare, and we are anxious not to delay our friendly notice of so extraordinary an edition.

The frontispiece is a finely engraved portrait of William Sewall Gardner, Grand Master from A.D. 1868 to 1871, a bright Mason, a ripe scholar, and perfect gentleman. Possessing these qualifications, we can understand the progress of the Craft in Massachusetts under his rule, and are thus enabled to appreciate the motives of the editor of this grand volume in placing Bro. Gardner's portrait as the frontispiece, although at the time of its issue, he had become Past Grand Master.

A quarterly communication of the Grand Lodge was held at Masonic Temple, Boston, March 8th, A.D. 1871. A communication was read from the Grand Lodge of Chili, respecting the Aconcagna Lodge, at Valparaiso, working under a dispensation from the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts from A.D. 1869, and which it was asked may be transferred to their allegiance, because it was in their jurisdiction. The Committee, to whom was entrusted the consideration of this question of privilege, reported that the Grand Orient of Chili having adopted what is known as the Scottish Rite, had been recognised in 1862, as a co-ordinate independent body, but certainly not one to whom the Lodges, long previously established in the Republic under the "York" Rite, would naturally turn, and acknowledge its authority, when it was a foreign rite, with the esoteric formula, of which the members were comparatively unacquainted.

The Committee cited several precedents for such co-ordinate action—England with its District Grand Lodge at Buenos-Ayres, within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of the Argentine Republic; Scotland and its Provincial Grand Lodge within the precincts of the Grand Lodge of Venezuela, and its lodges at Callao and Lima, in the Peruvian Republic; Ireland and its Provincial Grand Lodge under the Grand Orient of Portugal, &c.

The recommendation that the prayer of the lodge under dispensation be granted, and that a charter be issued for the permanent organisation of the Aconcagna Lodge at Valparaiso.

The address of the Grand Master was mainly taken up with purely local matters. He opposed the introduction of what is known as "Female Masonry," under the designation of the Eastern Star, and lodges were forbidden, accordingly, any connection with it.

A special communication was held on March 15th, for the purpose of constituting Temple Lodge of East Boston. The Grand Master read an admirable charge by Paul Revere (Past Grand Master), written and delivered about 1795, and in his address to the new lodge, gave an address, respecting Sir Thomas Temple, who first went to New England in 1657. Sir John Temple was the first consul general from England to the United States, and died at New York, A.D. 1798.

The second quarterly communication was held on the 14th day of June, 1871. Several letters were read by the Grand Master in his address, which were of an important nature, one had reference to the initiation of maimed candidates, from the Grand Lodge of South Carolina, which the M.W. Bro. Gardiner answered in a fair and liberal manner, and another from Grand Committee of Nevada, raising the question of "making Masons at sight," was answered by the Grand Master to the effect that "There can be no doubt of the existence in the Grand Master to this right and power. . . . I doubt very much whether the Craft of Massachusetts would sustain a Grand Master in the exercise of this prerogative, unless it was apparent that an absolute necessity existed therefor, and not then unless the making was in a regularly organized lodge, and according to the forms and ceremonies required by our ritual.

We quite think with Bro. Gardiner, and believe that the time is entirely past when making "Masons at sight" could be either desirable or justifiable. On the 8th April, Bro. Solon Thornton tendered his resignation of the office of Recording Grand Secretary (Grand Secretary virtually) which having been accepted, with sincere regret, Bro. the Rev. Charles H. Titus was subsequently elected to that office, and also Clerk to the Board and Corporation, as it is called, the Grand Lodge being formally chartered by the commonwealth of Massachusetts. Out of 410 votes, Bro. Titus received 340, and we wish him every success and prosperity in his new sphere of usefulness.

At the special Grand Lodge, opened in ample form, at Nantucket, 27th June, the Festival of St. John the Evangelist was celebrated, in connection with the centennial anniversary of Union Lodge, originally chartered May 27th, 1771. The Grand Lodge was escorted by members of the De Molay Commander of Knights Templar, and marched in procession with the Masonic bodies to the festival dinner. At the conclusion of the post-prandial speeches the Grand Lodge proceeded to the Methodist Church, "where an oration was listened to by a large number of Masons, citizens, and ladies, after which the Grand Lodge was closed."

At a Deputy Grand Lodge, Sept. 6th, under the gavel of the R.W. Past D.G.M., Bro. C. W. Moore, corresponding G. Sec., the Ezekiel Bates Lodge was constituted and its Hall formally dedicated.

The third quarterly communication (13th Sept., 1871) was one of special interest. The Grand Lodge having been opened in ample form, with prayer, by the R.W. and Rev. Charles H. Titus, acting Grand Chaplain, the following hymn was sung.

Music.—Auld Lang Syne.
Come, Brothers of the mystic tie,
Our social work begun,
We'll raise a opening song on high,
To Him, the Holy One.

With hearts united, firm and free
We round our altar stand
Who best can work, and best agree,
Are dearest in our band.

Come kindle at our holy fire
Fraternal thoughts, and laud
Each worthy act, and pure desire
Shall kindred wishes bind.
With hearts united &c.

The preliminary business having been transacted, R.W. Bro. C. L. Woodbury presented the report of the committee on the petition of Bro. Samuel Evans. It consists of a most elaborate resumé of the whole subject of sectarian matters in Freemasonry, and in the main seeks to show that certain portions or features of a theological character, which exist in the ritual and work of the Order, are not contrary to the letter as well as the spirit of Freemasonry, as Bro. Samuel Evans, and 225 others state, but actually form an integral part of our ceremonies, incidental to the Christian origin of the Fraternity. The committee declare that as an historical question it cannot longer be contended that the institution of Freemasonry is due to the London Grand Lodge.

We quite agree in this statement ; but certainly, if not the institution, at all events the constitution of Grand Lodges is due to the London Grand Lodge, as it was the first of that style of organisation, and, directly or indirectly, the mother of all others.

In speaking of our ancient documents, the Committee observe—"Some eight or nine of these manuscripts have been unearthed by the labour of students, among whom the historian of old York Masonry, Bro. Hughan, has been eminently successful." We may state that there are now some twenty original MS. Masonic Constitutions, existing in public and private archives, ranging in date from the fourteenth to the eighteenth centuries, and they are all evidently written and intended for Christians, and there cannot be a doubt that these early MSS. (of which the latter versions are merely free copies) prove that Freemasonry lived in accord with the established Christian religion of England of that period.

The Committee remark "It has been distinctly put to us by an acute and learned Israelite brother that the Christian usages found among our Craft in our traditions, are offensive to him, we ought to exclude them. If that is a sufficient reason, what will become of our society? A Christian may ask that allusion to King Solomon shall be expunged, because he was a Jew. Another may ask all allusion to Hiram to be effaced, because he was a Pagan. The Trinitarian may ask that the Grand Architect of the Universe shall only be addressed in his triune character. The resurrection from the dead stands no better. Every particle of our religion, ritual and symbols, must fall under the same axe, and the Masonry we have received be extinguished. . . . We can have no Hebrew, no Episcopal, no Presbyterian lodges, because one of our objects is the social mingling of good men of various sects. The orthodox and the heterodox must meet in the lodge on the same level, and learn mutual esteem through good Masonry. In this diversity of creeds lies one important field of our labour, and we should deplore the alienation of any respectable sect from among us." These sentiments will be approved by the English Craft. As Masons, we are tolerant to all religious sects, and all are welcome to our lodges, irrespective of creed, colour or country, so long as of sound judgment, strict morals, and bear the tongue of good report. We have no desire to radically change our ritual. It is now about as little offensive to men of various creeds as it can be made, consistent with its character and origin, and so long as its universal and unsectarian platform be maintained we cannot see there is any cause of complaint, either in a religious or social point of view.

The report having been read, the recommendation of the Committee was put that "The Petitioners have leave to withdraw," which the Grand Master declared to be unanimous in the affirmative, whereupon Bro. Samuel Evans arose, and requested that his name might be recorded as voting in the negative, so that our zealous brother retained his courteous opposition to the last.

The Grand Master read the official documents relating to the magnificent reception of the Grand Master of England, the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., by the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia, and at which were representatives from nearly all the Grand Lodges in the United States. The M.W. Bro. W. S. Gardner, being unable to attend, the distinguished Mason, John T. Heard, P.G.M., was deputed to attend. In a capital letter, Bro. Heard concludes by stating that "both at the reception and banquet, the Grand Master of England returned thanks, eloquently and warmly, for the attention he had received. At the table many brethren from various parts of the Republic made short but appropriate addresses, which were received by the company with great favour."

A copy of the letter signed by our respected Grand Secretary, containing particulars of the vote of our Grand Lodge, holden at Freemasons' Hall, London, on the 7th June, in appreciation of the hearty and enthusiastic reception of the Earl De Grey and Ripon, was also read, and the resolution was duly forwarded by the next mail, signed and sealed by the Grand Master and the Grand Secretary.

On the arrival of the Marquis of Ripon at the city of Washington, U.S., a very kind invitation was extended to his Lordship by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, "as the oldest of those instituted on the Continent. We have thought that it would be a source of extreme pleasure, could we meet, for the first time in near a century and a half, the representative of our Masonic mother."

Lord Tenterden replied, by request of our Grand Master, who had much pleasure in receiving this gratifying proof of the feelings of fraternal union with which the brethren of the Order in Massachusetts are actuated towards the members of the Craft in England, over whom he has the honour to preside; and who much regrets that he sees so little prospect of his visiting Boston as to render it impossible for him to appoint any day on which he could have the pleasure of accepting the friendly and fraternal invitation.

The thoroughly hearty manner in which the Marquis of Ripon was received by the members of the mystic tie in the United States, and particularly at the Grand banquet, given in his honour at the city of Washington, must ever prove a source of pleasing remembrance to his Lordship; and historically, it will be noted as one of the most prominent and valuable evidences in favour of the happy and genial influences, as well as the international and universal character of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masonry.

The corner-stone of the Army and Navy monument at Boston Common was laid by the Grand Lodge, on the 18th September, under the acting Grand Mastership of Bro. C. L. Woodbury, D.G.M. (The structure is to be erected in memory of those soldiers and sailors, citizens of Boston, who lost their lives in the recent civil war). The Grand Lodge was conducted to carriages furnished for their use by the City Government, and the procession was composed of a large number of military organisations, the Government of the Commonwealth, the Mayor and other officers of the city, and others. The entire procession numbered over 5,000. On the conclusion of the ceremony, an artillery salute was given.

The corner-stone of the new post-office and sub-treasury building was also laid in the same city, on the 16th of October, by the Grand Master. It must have been a grand sight, indeed, to witness, for the spectacle was, in one respect at least, quite unique. It was the first time in their history when the President of the nation had requested the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts to lay the corner-stone of a public edifice, and himself been present at the ceremony. More than one hundred lodges were very fully represented in the procession, and no doubt it was as numerous as it was effective. All the Commanderies of Knights Templar in Massachusetts and Rhode Island were called out, and Boston Commandery was detailed as the Body Guard to the Grand Lodge. Four carriages were provided for the Grand Master and his chief officers. Able and interesting addresses were delivered by Past Master General Creswell, Ex-Mayor Shusteff of Boston, General Bust, (Postmaster of Boston), and especially by the Grand Master. A beautiful hymn, composed by Bro. William T. Adams, was sung to the tune "America," all present uniting, and the band accompanied them.

On the return of the brethren to the Grand Lodge the handsome sum of one thousand dollars was voted for the relief of our Masonic brethren in Chicago, and that the said amount be transmitted to the Grand Master of Illinois for distribution. The President received, expressly by his desire, the Grand Master, the same evening at St. James's Hotel, and also the members of the Grand Lodge, about 200 in number, who after shaking hands with that distinguished personage, and enjoying a few minutes in social intercourse, dispersed without formality.

The annual communication was holden 13th Dec., 1871. The annual report of the Grand Master showed that there were 21,506 members, and the lodges generally were in a flourishing condition. The Grand Treasurer had paid the sum of £100,000 (circa) and received about £110,000. The debt of Grand Lodge still amounts to upwards of £80,000, which, however, we are glad to notice, is being reduced annually by three to four thousand pounds. There is a "Sinking Fund" of some £35,000, which appears to be formed from the Fees receiveable from the initiates as dues from lodges.

The expenses of printing during 1870 was so great (viz. nearly £900) that a Committee was appointed to have charge of that department.

The "Committees" in United States Masonry may be said to do everything. When any matters of consequence arise, petitions presented, or anything important is to be done, a Committee is always appointed to prepare a report. This common sense plan should be adopted in all Grand Lodges, because a great deal of unnecessary discussion and waste time would be saved, as the committee really investigate all matters thoroughly, and the members of the Grand Lodge having sound data, are enabled to arrive, speedily and quietly, at an intelligent decision.

A report was presented by the Grand Secretary, of the contributions received from the lodges in Massachusetts, for Chicago, from October 18th to December 11th, 1871. The total contributions were considerably over £1,000.

Bro. Findel's letter, received September last, was read, and as his suggestions relative to the Grand Lodges being unlimited in number in any state or country, were utterly opposed to the usages of Craft in America, the Grand Master acted as the mouthpiece of some fifty Grand Lodges in saying that the acknowledgment of any Grand Lodge in Massachusetts, other than our own, would lead to the most disastrous results to the institution of Freemasonry.

We rather wonder of our talented Bro. Findel's anxiety to promote the establishment of more than one Grand Lodge in each country, seeing that such a course would inevitably be followed by an unwholesome rivalry and party manifestations, quite foreign to the genius of Freemasonry. One Grand Lodge in each state or country is, in our opinion, much better than many, and even preferable to two; hence we are obliged to disagree with our friend Findel's action in this matter.

The valedictory of the Grand Master is a pleasure to read, because in it he shows that although the commencement of his official duties was not under propitious circumstances, because of the large and unwieldy debt, a taxation irritated many of the brethren, and by others the Grand Lodge was looked upon as a monopoly; yet, in concluding his eventful term of office, he was able to declare that "no administration of the Grand Lodge within his memory had received more encouragement from the Craft at large, or been in closer sympathy with all the brethren than this." One of the mornings occupied by the Grand Lodge meetings was devoted to a "Grand Lodge of Instruction," wherein the work and lectures of the three degrees were fully exemplified by the three Grand Lecturers, assisted by several Past Masters. "A very large number of the members were present, and great interest was manifested in the ritual of the Craft." At the stated communication for the installation, Grand Master Gardner delivered an elaborate address on "Henry Price, first Grand Master of Masons in America." It is quite impossible for us to do justice to this most exhaustive history in the present friendly review. The readers of the Freemason will be familiar with the subject, through several pages already having been devoted to the enquiry, and we also some time ago alluded to it at length.

An excellent portrait is given of M. W. Bro. Price, and various copies of seals and facsimiles of documents have also been engraved and placed in the book. These have an interest of their own, and are quite as valuable, whether Price was or was not what he claimed to be, unless some other papers are discovered of a more definite nature, we do not think the doubts will all be effaced. If such were possible we know of no brother so capable of clearing Price's character as this worthy historian. The Constitutions of the Grand Lodge, containing the Amendments to March 1872, are printed as an Appendix, and are very appropriately prefaced by a most "speaking" steel engraving of M. W. Bro. Winslow Lewis, the second eldest Past Grand Master of Massachusetts, and one universally respected and beloved throughout the Commonwealth.

We should state that M. W. Bro. Sereno Dwight Nickerson was installed Grand Master, and he has for his principal officers Bros. Everett, of Boston, D.G.M.; Kimball, of Lowell, D.G.W.; Cheever of Chelsea, J.G.W.; John McClellan, of Boston, Grand Treas.; C. H. Titus, Recording Grand Sec.; and C. W. Moore, Corresponding G. Sec. They one and all have our best wishes.

In conclusion we propose to christen the proceedings of 1871-2, Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, "The Extraordinary" Edition, for nothing to be compared with it has hitherto appeared under the wing of Freemasonry, and no matter how great a future may be before us, the volume must ever be regarded as a monument of the industry, research, and ability of the leading Masons in that community.

Scotland.

GRAND LODGE.

A Meeting of Grand Officers and members of the Grand Lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, George Street, on Wednesday evening, 17th September, for the purpose of presenting the Earl of Rosslyn a requisition for his Lordship's continuance in office as Grand Master for the ensuing year. The meeting was presided over by Brother Henry Inglis, of Torsonce, substitute Grand Master, who was supported by Major Hope, of Luffness, Provincial Grand Master for East Lothian; Captain Colt, of Gartsherrie; Major Ramsay, William Mann, Past Grand Warden; John Laurie, Grand Clerk; John Coghill, Grand Director of Ceremonies; Alexander Hay, Grand Jeweller; M. M'Kenzie, Chief Grand Marshal; and T. Abthorpe, Grand Marshal. There was also present a large number of the Grand Stewards and members of the Grand Lodge.

The Grand Clerk read the requisition, which set forth that there was but one opinion in the Craft as to the manner in which his lordship had discharged the duties of his exalted position, and the active interest he had taken in the management of the affairs of Grand Lodge, and the promotion and extension of its benevolent institutions, and that, duly impressed with these considerations, and by the necessity existing, under present circumstances, of the government of the Craft being again confided to the noble, dignified, and impartial guidance which they now possessed, the requisitionists most respectfully and earnestly request his Lordship to allow himself to be put in nomination for the Throne of Grand Lodge for the next ensuing year. The Grand Clerk stated that the number of signatures to the requisition was 7027.

The Chairman, in addressing his Lordship said—I am no implicit believer in ordinary requisitions and testimonials, because I am aware that many times they can be got up by the acre, and signed by the careless and unthinking for purposes that are not always praiseworthy; but this is no ordinary requisition, and these are no ordinary requisitionists. Freemasonry is in this country a vast republican brotherhood within a monarchy, where each brother is equal to the other, whatever the social rank or standing of that other may be; and the only aristocracy which we admit, subject to our reverence to God and our allegiance to the throne, is the aristocracy of ancient Greece—the aristocracy of the Best. We have no prejudices. Our discussions on matters of Masonic law, and justice, and expediency, are not unattended often with that fervid heat which is the attribute of Scotchmen. (Applause.) We do not hesitate at times boldly to state our opinions in opposition to the very leader we have chosen. But because we may differ from him now and then, we are not on that account blind to the qualities which have placed him at our head, and it is that very independence of thought and expression which is the guarantee of our honest unanimity, when we attain it. That the thousands of names appended to this requisition recognise in you, in all honesty and truth, a chief worthy of your predecessors, and worthy of the ancient craft of Free and Accepted Scottish Masons, your own knowledge and experience will at once enable you to hold as an undoubted fact.

The Earl of Rosslyn, in replying, said—I must feel impressed by the honesty of this requisition, because I have found in presiding over you an independence of thought and of expression, which, of themselves, were guarantees for the honesty of your feelings, and far distant be the day when an assembly of Freemasons will be ashamed or afraid to say that which is honestly their opinion. But I claim a right on behalf of the chair, at least equal to your own, of independently expressing my opinion. (Loud applause.) It is that feeling that the Grand Master of the Craft must be independent, which partially induced me on a late occasion, to declare that I would not again allow my name to be put in nomination; but I acknowledge to you that in the face of a requisition of this magnitude, and of the flattering terms in which you have been pleased to speak of any humble services I have rendered to the Craft, I am fain to withdraw my declaration. (Loud cheers.) And I will venture to promise to you, not only the strictest endeavours to allow the most free and full declaration of your opinions on all subjects brought before you, but I shall endeavour to limit my own language and my own conduct within the most courteous and the strictest bounds that are consistent with thorough independence of opinion. (Applause.) In the course of some further remarks his Lordship said—When I endeavour to point out the means by which matters connected with the Grand Lodge may be improved, I hope you will individually not consider it matter for discord, but that every Mason will make it a point, as far as possible, to help the Grand Master, if he really means doing good to the Craft. (Applause.) I have no doubt that I am looked upon at the present moment very much as if I were on strike. (Laughter.) Well it is the fashion in these days to be on strike? and I may be regarded as being pretty much in the fashion. But now that I have agreed to come back to work—(applause and laughter)—I hope you will do your best to make Freemasonry a positive good that will be well understood by the outer world—that will redound to the credit of Scotland, as well as to the credit of ourselves as Masons. (Applause.) Let us be able to point to our schools and to our orphanages; and to say that we had so much money that we had spent, and have so much money that we are spending, for the benefit of our fellow-creatures. (Applause.)

Before the meeting separated, Lord Rosslyn said he was happy to tell them that he had been requested to lay the foundation-stone of the Watt Institution and School of Arts, on the 9th Oct. Feeling that the brethren would naturally take a great interest in an institution which had done so much to promote the study of subjects interesting to all Scotchmen, he asked for their support on the occasion. (Applause.)

Three cheers having been given for the Grand Master, the meeting separated.

Original Correspondence.

THE BALLOT FOR W.M.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I am pleased to find that Bro. W. J. Hughan, although he is a man who "consents against his will," has withdrawn his suggestions for the ballot of W.M. (Page 522 of the Freemason); there should be no doubt on the subject, the ballot should only pass once round, and the brother who then has the majority of votes should be declared elected; and I must say that if the S.W. of the lodge has worked his way to that position, it is unjust of the brethren not to place him in the chair, unless, indeed, the tongue of bad report has been heard and vouched against him, in which case I should vote for the J.W., as, in my opinion, no P.M. of the lodge should be re-elected (although he must be nominated) while there are Wardens ready and willing to serve in the chair.

Sometimes, I know, there is a slight difference of opinion; but let us hope, for the sake of brotherly love, not so often as some may suppose, from the correspondence which you have printed on the subject, for the members of a lodge cannot be said to work with love and harmony, where there is so little unity as to require a Bye Law, such as Bro. William Date suggests in page 537 of the Freemason.

Yours fraternally,

MAGNUS OHREN,

P.M. 452; W.M. No. 33.

MASONS AT PUBLIC MEETINGS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I beg to thank you on behalf of a large section of the Masonic fraternity, who are no friends of religious bigotry and intolerance, for your able article on the above subject, and at the same time to express my entire concurrence in the sentiments expressed by "Vectis."

"J. R.," writing to exonerate Bro. Woodward, insinuates that the Suffolk Reporter was alone to blame for inserting his office as Chaplain to the Boys' School. I take the liberty of asking how does "J. R." know, writing in London, that the Reporter at Ipswich if the innocent origin, of this, as I think, in the interest of Masonry, justifiable attack upon and censure of our Reverend Brother? "J. R." admits that he is a younger Mason than the Chaplain, and I should judge by his letter, that he is a very young Mason, indeed.

Like "Vectis," I am compelled to say that I hope Bro. Woodward will not offend again.

Yours fraternally,

A Mason, of fifteen years standing.

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated and varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and a nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water, October 14.

H. J. SMYTH, of Salisbury Cottage, Walworth, writes, May, 1871:—"I had had the lumbago so bad for eight days that I thought I should have to give up entirely my business; but thanks to Perry Davis's Pain Killer, I felt quite a new man by the following afternoon. I sat by the fire the previous night, and had it well rubbed into the small of my back, and then took some internally. The effect was almost magical, and the cure complete.—To Perry Davis & Son, London."

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

G.F.S.—The degree of Master Mason is the qualification for reception into the Order of Red Cross of Rome an Constantine.

THE following reports stand over for want of space:—Mark Lodges, 9, 50, 60, 70, 158; and Gwent Red Cross Conclave.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

MARRIAGE.

PAIGE—PEARSON.—Sept. 17th, at Brighton, Bro. Richard Paige, of Lodge No. 421, South Molton, to Sarah, daughter of Bro. Pearson, of Brighton.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

THE SPURIOUS RITE OF MEMPHIS.

With singular lack of judgment a tribe of Masonic impostors have recently selected England as the theatre of their ridiculous exploits, for whether we consider the past history of Freemasonry in this country, or simply study the peculiar idiosyncracies of the English people, we shall equally arrive at the conclusion that a more unpromising field than Great Britain, for a Masonic chevalier d'industrie cannot possibly exist. Have not these gentry yet learned the well-known lesson of experience, that history repeats itself? or do they, the brainless, wooden images of effete and impious rites, hope to rival those pagods of a by-gone day, who dazzled with their tinsel trumpery the minds of certain weak and thoughtless Masons. Where Ramey failed and Cagliostro juggled in vain, the Burts and Hyams of the Memphis abomination madly strive to win. Truly "fools rush in where angels fear to tread," and after a century of comparative calm, we find that the most illustrious Harry Seymour, Grand Master General of America, deems it a fitting time to make a descent upon England, and to enlighten the poor idiots who foolishly fancied that we were already in possession of pure ancient Freemasonry. "Nothing of the kind," says Mr. Seymour, "Solomon and Hiram, and all the other traditions of the Craft which cluster round their names, must be set aside, and the worship of old Egypt must be re-established, for am I not Osiris, and are not my satellites, Isis, and Apis and Horus, and Borus? And have we not derived our titles from Marconis de Negre—a youth of unblemished renown, and are we not proud of our Calvin Burt, despite his larcenous propensities, and of our precious Hyam, notwithstanding his unclean Californian record. Nay, am not I, myself, known to fame as a wig-maker, and therefore, qualified to be "head" of the Masonic Order." Such in effect is the meaning of the presumptuous attempt now being made by a Mr. Seymour of New York, to propagate in England his spurious Rite of Memphis. This personage appears to have chosen Manchester as the first scene of his preposterous folly. We should hardly have thought it congenial soil, as our Lancashire brethren are good Masons, and quite alive, as men of the world, to the modern shams which usurp the name, and would fain appropriate the place, of genuine Freemasonry. Still, strange to say, aided by some malcontents, who suffer personal piques to obliterate whatever common sense they may possess, we find that Mr. Seymour has succeeded in making a few proselytes, and that a "great" banquet of Memphites has been held in Cottonopolis, presided over by one Pipe, who was supported by one Leather, for "there's nothing like leather," you know, with a Fox as K.M., whatever that means; "Kind Man," we presume; and the inevitable Binns, (of Sherry it is to be hoped) as "Standard Bearer!" At this pleasant gathering, we are informed, on the authority of the Manchester Courier, illustrious Bro. Yarker was nominated Grand Master, and will hereafter be installed in London, and the officers appointed. This is good news for the metropolis, as no doubt the ceremony will be well worth seeing, especially if the "Most Illustrious" Harry Seymour condescends to perform it in propria persona. It is also gratifying to learn upon the same high authority, that "the legality of the appointment of Brother Yarker was unanimously acknowledged," although the "unanimity" of some twenty obscure Masonic nonentities is, after all, no very alarming matter for the rest of the Craft. In fact, if it were not for the damaging impression which the farcical proceedings of these men is likely to create in the minds of friends and well-wishers of the fraternity, we might safely allow them to pursue their puerile proclivities unheeded; but in the public interests of the Masonic Order, we are bound to enter a protest, and to proclaim emphatically that the so-called "Rite of Memphis" is an impudent travesty of our time-honoured observances, originally generated by fraud, and since perpetuated by misrepresentation and guile. That wherever, and whenever, its pretensions have been tried, they have been found hollow as husks, and consequently no Mason who respects his obligation can acknowledge, or have communication with, the supporters of so flagrant an innovation on the genuine Masonic system. More especially, we would remind the Masters and Past Masters of the Craft, of the regulations to which they have yielded their unqualified assent in open lodge, and warn them, in the words of the text, not to countenance "impostors or dissenters from the original plan of Freemasonry." If we once permit these followers of Memphis to settle down in our midst, the unwary may be innocently led astray, and melancholy consequences may ensue. However, we can safely assert that, so far as the brethren in London are concerned, laughter and contempt will be the only harvest reaped in the metropolis by the propagators of the bogus Rite of Memphis.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

CLAPTON LODGE (No. 1365).—The members of this lodge held their first installation since the foundation, last September, on Wednesday last, at the White Hart Inn, Clapton, when the W. M., Bro. J.D. Taylor, very ably installed Bro. W. Stephens, Vitruvian, No. 87, the S.W., who had been unanimously elected as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The W.M. having been duly invested, proceeded to appoint his officers as follows, viz.:—Bro. Miles, S.W.; Lutwyche, J.W.; Batchelor, Treas.; R. Buller, P.M., Sec.; Saunders, S.D.; Cattlin, J.D.; Wyatt, I.G.; Webber, D.C.; and Paul, Steward. The W.M., in investing each officer, delivered a charge explanatory of the nature and duty of his office in such happy and appropriate terms that the delighted auditory were at once convinced that they were in the presence of a true master of the mystic art. The ballot was then taken for the following gentlemen:—Messrs. Ayton, Howarth, Edwards, Bruce, and Burnell, all of whom, with the exception of Mr. Burnell, were duly initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry by the new W.M., in a manner that reflects great credit on the Clapton Lodge, and argues well for the good working of the lodge during his year of office. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bro. Jas. Brett, P.G.P.; Dr Barringer, P.P.G.S. Herts; Jas. Terry, P.P.G.W. Herts; Lundy, P.M. 45; Laing, P.M. 45; Gompertz, P.P.G.P. Herts; Lloyd, W.M. 780 and 1,278; and Bros. Roberts Holden, Klenck, Pinder, Hubbard, and others. At the banquet, which was served in Bro. Bryant's best style, consisting of every delicacy of the season, the W.M. gave the ordinary Masonic toasts, and in proposing the health of the retiring master presented him with a P.M.'s jewel of the value of 7½ guineas, which had been voted by the lodge for his able working during his year of office, and also a very handsome gold ring, embossed with the square and compasses in diamonds, subscribed by several of his most intimate friends and admirers. The toast of the W.M. was received with the greatest enthusiasm, and also that of the officers. Bros. Dr. Barringer and Gompertz replied for the 'Visitors.' The pleasures of the evening were much enhanced by the good singing of Bros. McDavitt, Organist, Pierpoint, Miles, and Hubbard. We cannot conclude this notice without calling the attention of the craft to the almost unprecedented success of this flourishing lodge, which at the end of the first year numbers 55 subscribing members, of whom over 30 have been initiated, a result showing an amount of zeal exhibited by the founders, and mainly owing to the exertions of the Immediate P.M., the present W.M., and the officers, all of whom have spared no pains or expense to render the Clapton Lodge, No. 1365, one of the greatest successes that the craft has had for years. Masonry in general has likewise been greatly benefited by the establishment of this lodge, the Grand Lodge dues paid by it during the past year having amounted to within a fraction of £46, and upwards of thirty guineas was also subscribed to the Girls' School on the occasion of the present W.M. acting as Steward at the Festival in May last.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

For the first time during the greater part of thirty years, perhaps, the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Cumberland and Westmoreland took place at Wigton, on Friday, 20th inst. Having been so long since so unusual and interesting an event had taken place at Wigton much interest was felt in the meeting of the "brethren of the mystic tie" of the year. The Province, of which the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P., is the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master—comprises fifteen lodges, viz. No. 119, Whitehaven; No. 129, Kendal; 310, Carlisle; 327, Wigton; 339, Penrith; 371, Maryport; 412, Longtown; 812, Appleby; 962, Workington; 1002, Cockermouth; 1073, Keswick; 1074, Kirby Lonsdale; 1220, Silloth; 1267, Egremont; 1390, Millom.

The brethren first met at the Lodge room, at the Lion and Lamb, or at the Mechanics' Institute, where luncheon was provided. The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in the Mechanics' Institute, the whole of which had kindly been lent for the use of the brethren.

The Grand Lodge was then opened in due form by the P.G.M., when a vote of condolence was passed to Bro. Busher, on the death of his father, proposed by Col. Whitwell, D.P.G.M., seconded by Bro. the Rev. W. Williams, P.G.C.

The following is a list of Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

Earl of Bective, M.P., 1074 Prov. G. Master.
John Whitwell, M.P., 129 D. Prov. G. Master.
Lieut. A. C. Mott, R.N.P.M. Prov. G. S. W.
E. W. Henry, M.D., P.M. Prov. G. J. W

119.

Rev. A. Curwen, M.A., Prov. G. Chaplain
P.M. 962.

R. Rutherford, 1002 " " "
John Lemon, P.M., 327. Prov. G. Treasurer
Rt. Hon. Lord Muncaster, ... Prov. G. Registrar
M.P., 119.

Edward Busher, P.M., 129 Prov. G. Secretary
James Porter, P.M. 327..... Prov. G. S. D.
J. R. Tickle, P.M. 371 Prov. G. J. D.
W. Tattersall, 129 Prov. G. S. of W.
H. Fearon, P.M. 119 Prov. G. D. of C.
P. de E. Collin, 371 Prov. G. A. D. C.
Roger Dodgson, 1390 Prov. G. Swd. B.
John Wood, 1002, Prov. G. Organist
G. Brooker, P.M. 962 Prov. G. Pursuivant
A. Taylor, 310 Prov. G. Steward
H. Bewes, 327 " " "
G. Shannon, M.D., 327 " " "
George Carrick, 327 " " "
John Mills, " " "
J. Norman Hodgson, 327 ... " " "

The following Past and present Provincial Grand Officers were present:—the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, Prov. G. M.; Bros. John Whitwell, D.P.G.M.; E. Busher, Prov. G. S. B. and Prov. G. Sec.; John Lemon, Prov. G. T.; John Gate, Prov. G. R.; Jesse Banning, Prov. G. S.; W. Kirkbride, Prov. P. G. S. and P. L.; Thomas Richardson, Prov. A. D. S.; T. B. Arnison, P. Prov. S. B.; S. W. Rowland, P. Prov. G. O.; Aaron Routledge, P. Prov. G. T.; J. Wood Prov. G. S. D.; E. Fearon, Prov. G. S. B.; W. Shilton P. Prov. G. S. B.; C. Martin, P. Prov. S. G. W.; P. Quin, Prov. G. S. W.; F. Hayward, P. Prov. G. S. W.; J. Tyson, P. Prov. J. W.; R. Baxter, P. G. T.

There was also a large attendance of brethren from the various Lodges in the Province.

On the closing of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the brethren met in proper form on the bowling green adjoining, and, headed by the excellent band of the Wigton Volunteer Rifle Corps, marched down West Street, through the Market Place and along King Street, turning at the Market Hill, and back to the Parish Church, along King Street, the whole way being lined with crowds of spectators, and the windows of the houses were well filled. The Church was much crowded, the arrangement being that the brethren were to sit below and others in the galleries. The service was a full choral one, and was intoned by Canon Whitmore, of Carlisle Cathedral. The first lesson was read by Canon Porteous, and the second lesson by Bro. Rev. A. Curwen of Harrington. The musical service was more than good; it was most impressive and effective, and Mr. Metcalfe, who presided at the organ was much extolled for the very efficient style in which he played. The sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. W. Williams, of Cockermouth, P.G. Chaplain, from the text, Mark, chapter 15, verse 38, "And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom," from which he preached a most appropriate and Masonic address, inculcating upon the brethren that they must be both material and spiritual builders.

The brethren, to the number of about 180, sat down to a very excellent banquet at about 4 o'clock. It was prepared by Bro. Martin, of the Lion and Lamb, and from the style in which it was prepared and served, well deserved the commendations bestowed upon it. It took place in the Diocesan marquee, which was erected in the Flosfield grounds, through the kindness of Mr. Carrick. The dinner tables were very elegantly decorated with flowers and evergreens from Flosfield.

The Chair at the dinner was taken by the Right Worshipful the Earl of Bective, Provincial Grand Master, supported by Bro. Colonel Whitwell, the Rev. W. M. Schnibben, Bro. Canon Porteous, Bro. Iredale, Bro. Lemon, Bro. Carrick, Bro. Jackson Gillbanks, Bro. the Rev. W. Williams, Bro. E. H. Henry, M.D., Bro. Dr. Jones, Bro. Captain Mott, Minor Canon Whitmore, and the Rev. J. A. Scott.

On the withdrawal of the cloth, the Chairman proposed "The Queen," followed by the toast of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," after which the Chairman gave "The Bishops and Clergy of the Diocese," each of which was received with much enthusiasm. After some of the speeches the band played appropriate airs.—The Rev. W.M. Schinibben was the first called upon to respond for the Bishop and Clergy, and cordially welcomed the brethren to Wigton. He said he had much pleasure in placing his church at their disposal, pleased to think that in their festivities they remembered the service in the Parish Church although he did not expect that his Church was to be turned into a Cathedral. (Cheers.)—The President then proposed "The Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces," to which Colonel Whitwell, M.P., Lieutenant A. C. Mott, R.N., and Ensign Carrick returned thanks.—Mr. Metcalfe then sang his celebrated song "John Peel," with much applause. The room was then "close tyled," and the various masonic toasts were given according to the toast list.

CARLISLE.—Union Lodge (No. 310).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 24th inst. The W.M., Alex. Taylor, presided, Bro. W. Court, P. Prov. G. P., S.W. This being the first meeting after the Grand Provincial gathering lately held at Wigton, Bros. Taylor and Court appeared in their new Provincial regalia, each brother "bearing his blushing honours thick upon him." Bro. George Hetherington was passed, and Mr. George Thorpe being balloted for, approved of, and duly initiated. The good attendance of the old brethren, and the enthusiasm of the recently admitted members, are causing this lodge to be of power in the city of Carlisle.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL.—Ancient Union Lodge (No. 203).—The ordinary periodical meeting of this exceedingly harmonious lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 19th inst., at the Masonic Hall. Bro J. Parsons, W.M., presided, and amongst his supporters were the following officers and brethren:—Bros. H. James, W.P.M.; T. W. Sergeant, S.W.; H. Glover, S.D.; G. Bromley, Treas.; P. M. F. Neill, Sec., E. Phillips; B. W. Rowson, P.G.S.W.; W. H. Ball, J. Birtles, E. Johnston, Jesse Wood, T. Armstrong, M. Aroneberg, M. Clarkson, J. W. Peters, T. Crompton, W. Wilson, and W. Japha. The visitors present were Bros. J. C. Angus, G. Reg., New Zealand, W.M., 1048; S. Haynes, P.M., 823; T. Shaw, S.D., 823; J. Holland, W.M. 823; J. Winson, 241; J. Evans, S.W., 1356; W. Myers, 1264; W. F. Roberts, 1295; E. T. Jones, 1264; J. Ellis, 667; W. G. Veale, O. 1356; J. Skeaf, P. Prov. G.O., P.M. 216, &c. The second and third degrees were given during the evening by the W.M. in the most striking and impressive manner. Four candidates were proposed for initiation, after which the lodge was closed. After the repast which followed, the W.M. gave the usual toasts in a very excellent manner, and during the evening Bro. Angus gave highly interesting and valuable details respecting the position and prospects of Freemasonry at the antipodes.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Lodge (No. 823).—The usual monthly gathering of the members of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 18th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. There was one of the largest meetings which has been seen for some time, there being no fewer than about 100 brethren present. Bro. J. Holland, W.M., occupied the chair of K.S., supported by Bros. Thomas D. Pierce, I.P.M.; Thomas Ashmore, P.M.; George Turner, P.M.; Samuel Haynes, P.M.; J. Banning, P.M.; W. Boulton, S.W.; W. J. Lunt, Treasurer; Wm. Cotterall, Secretary; Thomas Shaw, S.D.; Wm. Wilson, Acting J.W.; J. G. Veale, O.; A. T. Lowe, I.G.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; J. Holden, H. Ashmore, Stewards. The members present were Bros. A. C. Mott, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Service, J. Brooksbank, E. Kelly, R. Warriner, E. H. G. Benedict, J. W. Cave-Brown, G. H. Bryson, P. W. Oglesby, C. Tyren, R. Cox, J. Pugh, R. H. Evans; W. H. Cooper, John Davies, I. W. Robinson, H. Hall, T. H. Careful, S. Milikin, J. C. Dixon, R. Carson, T. R. Granby, J. T. Webster, J. S. Cuthbert, I. Lucas, T. Grant, G. Chapman, W. Johnson, G. Cumer, J. Goodman, J. Duncan, junr., S. M. Guire, R. Price, G. E. Farmer, P. Ashmore, W. Holden, J. Marshall, E. Morgan, T. Evans, L. Bagnall, W. Atherton, R. W. Jex, G. Lowe, W. H. Allen, C. Birchall, R. Wilde, J. Lloyd. Amongst the visitors were Bro. T. Summers, 241; J. C. Augur, W.M. 1049; J. J. Rose, S.W., 249; J. Ball, Secretary 673; E. Kyle, S.W., 673; J. Ellis, 667; J. Pye, 203; J. S. Cunningham, 22; C. H. Hill, P.M., 724 and 1276; J. T. Callow, W.M., 673; G. B. Fithain; 1003; W. W. Walsh, 1393; J. Wood Treasurer, 1094; J. McCarthy, 191; D. Fraser, 477; C. Hocken, P.M., 673; W. Hythe, 1380; C. Hyde, 249; J. Parsons, W.M., 203; H. Jackson, 673, 1393; C. Leedham, P.M., 220; J. M. Davies, 1393, and others. As a mark of respect for the late P.G.M. the brethren appeared with the tassels and rosettes of their aprons in srape. One candidate was initiated, and three F.C.'s were raised to the sublime degree of M.M, the work being performed in an excellent manner by the W.M. Bro. Shaw, S.D., deserves much credit for the admirable manner in which, by the request of the W.M., he gave the ancient charge. Liberal donations were made on behalf of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, and afterwards the lodge was closed in peace and harmony. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent repast, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts being proposed during the evening, and after business, proceedings being greatly enlivened by some excellent singing.

WAVERTREE.—Duke of Edinburgh Lodge (No. 1182).—The brethren of this lodge assembled for the performance of their Masonic duties, at the Wavertree Coffee House, Wavertree, near Liverpool, on Wednesday evening, the 18th inst. There was a good attendance of the brethren. Bro. Pughe, W.M., opened the lodge in due form, supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. P. R. Thorn, I.P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M.; S. Cookson, P.M.; W. Woods, P.M.; J. W. Williams, S.W.; J. H. Edginton, J.W.; W. Brown, Treasurer; J. G. Bales, Secretary; R. Martin, jun., J.D.; J. C. Brew, I.G.; C. Dewellyn, S.; J. Williams, Steward; G. Scott, O.; W. Crawford, Tyler; L. Simmon, J. H. Wilson, T. F. Jones, J. Hope, J. York, J. Keeping, W. H. Dean, E. Gibson, J. Jacobs, W. Thomason, M. Bennett, J. B. Macdonald, and J. S. Bullock. The visitors present during the evening were—Bros. T. R. Cooper, 1356; R. R. Martin, 1094; L. Hickson, 554; C. McNab, 1035; and B. Willis, 1035. After the minutes of the previous installation meeting had been read and confirmed, Messrs. Walker, Barrett, and Millage, were solemnly initiated into the mysteries of the Order, and Bros. Bennett, and Thomason were passed to the honourable degree of F.C.. The accounts of the lodge for the past year were presented, and unanimously passed, showing that the "Duke of Edinburgh" was in a highly prosperous and satisfactory position. Subscriptions, amounting to a considerable sum, were received on behalf of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. After the transaction of some formal business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren retired for refreshment.

CROSTON.—Hesketh Lodge (No. 986.)—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge took place on Tuesday last, Bro. Roger Rigby, W.M., presiding; Bro. Goggin, S.W.; Bro. Fletcher, J.W. The lodge being opened in due form with solemn prayer, Rev. Thomas Abbot Peters, Principal of Alston College, was duly initiated into Freemasonry in a most efficient manner. On the motion of Bro. Athelstone, a letter of condolence was ordered to be sent to the family of the late Sir T. F. Hesketh, Bart., Prov. Grand Master. The lodge being further opened, Bros. Topping and Howarth were, after answering the several questions put to them, advanced to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The lodge was then closed down with solemn prayer, several visiting brethren were present, Past Master Dr. Smith, and Bro. Dr. Haldane, of 314; Bros. Harding, and Dixon, of 314; Bro. Rev. Taylor, J.P., J.W., of 343; Bro. Wilson, J.W., 333, and sundry others. The brethren having adjourned for refreshments, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the brethren dispersing at an early hour.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Hindpool Lodge, (No. 1225).—On Tuesday last, the 17th September, the brethren of the Hindpool Lodge of Ancient, Honourable, Free, and Accepted Masons, met at their Lodge-room, the Hartington Hotel, Duke-street, Barrow-in-Furness, to instal their Worshipful Master elect, Bro. R. W. Graham, S.W. The assembly was very numerous, and amongst the visiting brethren were Bro. Wylie, Grand Registrar of the Province of West Lancashire; Hamer P. Prov. G. Treasurer; Relph, P.M., 1021, Hartington Lodge; Pearson, W.M., 995, Furness Lodge, Ulverston, &c., &c. Many prominent neighbouring brethren sent apologies for unavoidable absence through previous engagements. The recent decease of the Provincial Grand Master of the Province of West Lancashire, Sir Thomas Fermor Hesketh, Bart., M.P. for Preston, required that the lodge room and brethren should be in deep mourning, which was duly observed, and several additional Masonic devices appropriate to the occasion were added to the other decorative appendages, giving the lodge the appearance of sombre gracefulness, tending to devout contemplation; and in keeping with the policy of the lodge, that of constantly maintaining their meeting place in a state of arrangement calculated to form those solemn impressions on the mind which the practice of the art is intended to foster. The brethren entered the lodge room in slow time, to the funeral music of the "Dead March." The lodge having been opened in the 1st and 2nd degrees and the usual business gone through: the Provincial Grand Registrar rose and said; Worshipful Master, Wardens and brethren, it will be in the recollection of some of you that we met a short time ago in this district upon a momentous and solemn, but a very joyful occasion, when I, along with other Provincial Grand Officers, were appointed to consecrate the lodge at Dalton-in-Furness. As the representatives of our late highly esteemed and deeply lamented Provincial Grand Master, Sir Thos. Fermor Hesketh, Bart., who was then in his usual health and strength—alas! how soon are we called to meet you, brethren, in North Lonsdale with your lodge decked in, and our costume exhibiting, the emblems of mourning. How true it is that "in the midst of life we are in death," for these mournful signs are in acknowledgement of the grief we feel at the decease of our Provincial Grand Master, who has been so early in life called away. We can have no doubt, for our Provincial Grand Chaplain, whose address at Dalton, all who heard him will long remember as the pious effusions of a noble Christian clergyman, as well as the faithful exponent of our true Masonic principles, informed me that he was in the service of his Divine Master, attending at the bed side of our departed brother, and that his end was peace, and he is now joining the assembly of the Grand Lodge above, where all is peace and joy for ever, and where he is now illustrating the great teaching of Master Masons, who contemplate death not as the end of affliction, but as the entrance of a better state, because an enduring unchanging of life. Brethren, let the sudden removal of our Provincial Grand Master lead us to contemplate our inevitable destiny; work while it is day in all the services of the order; never let us meet without endeavouring to fulfil the great duties and obligations which we are taught to cultivate. Not only do we meet as brethren, but also beyond the precincts of the lodge; and now, when we look around and view these mournful emblems, "we raise our eyes to that bright morning star whose shining brought peace and salvation to the faithful and obedient of the human family," and enable His faithful followers to ascend to that Grand Lodge above where the World's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever.

The chair was vacated by the Worshipful Master, Brother John Stanley Ormandy, who, in ancient form, introduced his successor to the W.M. presiding, Brother Past Master Cornfield, whereupon the Provincial Grand Registrar put the usual interrogations, which, upon being satisfactorily answered, the obligation of a W.M. was taken, when the brethren below the rank of Master left the lodge and a Board of Installed Masters was formed. On returning to the lodge the ceremony of congratulation was gone through, and the new W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Morris, Senior Warden; Jeavons, Junior Warden; Woodhouse, Treasurer; Eckersley, Secretary; Turvey, Senior Deacon; Hadley, Junior Deacon; Morgan and Wells, Stewards; Hill, Organist; Hillier, Tyler. The installation ceremony was for the first time performed by Bro. P. M. Cornfield, and elicited from those brethren who were competent to judge, the highest commendation for correctness of style and propriety of action. The brethren then adjourned to the banquet, leaving the lodge room in processional order, to the march of "The Israelites," from "Costa's Eli." The music was most effectually rendered by the organist, Bro. Hill. After grace, the loving cup was passed round, and the brethren having regaled themselves with the well-served viands, and been well attended to by an efficient staff of waiters, the tables were cleared, and the toast list was commenced with. The toast on the list was given by the W.M., as follows:—"The Queen, the daughter, niece, and mother of Masons." The W.M. next gave—"Bro. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, P.G.M.; the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." The W.M. then gave—"The Most Worshipful the Grand Master, the Marquis de Grey and Ripon, the Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon; and the Officers of the Grand Lodge of England." The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Wylie, P.G.R. Bro. Wylie heartily thanked the brethren for the manner in which the toast had been received. Those who knew the Grand Master, and had been privileged to sit in Grand and Provincial Lodges with him must have been struck with the manner in which he conducted the business, and could not but conclude that the combination of the Christian, nobleman, and Mason was to be found in the Marquis de Grey and Ripon. (Applause.) He was grieved to hear that the Deputy Grand Master was not so well as was desired, and this, together with the absence from London of the G.M., might in some measure account for the fact that the Provincial Grand Master had not yet been appointed. But it was a principle with the Grand Master never to give to the subordinate officers carte blanche, or in other words, never to sign a document without seeing that it was filled up in proper form. For himself, he thanked them for receiving the toast so cordially. As Masons, they were desirous that the principles of Masonry should be carried out in purity and integrity, and it was gratifying to the Provincial officers to have seen lodges springing up—not ephemeral lodges, but such as the one now met, which had been careful in the selection of their officers and companions, and doing honour to the grand principles they were all so wishful to disseminate. His earnest wish was that they might never forget the first principles of Masonry, brotherly love and truth, for as they were good Masons so would they be good Christians. Thus, if they would all be true to the principles of the Order, Christian benevolence and Masonic charity would resound throughout the globe. (Applause.)

The W.M. then gave:—"The immortal memory of our beloved brother the late Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master Sir Thomas George Fermor Hesketh, Bart., M.P." The toast was drunk in solemn silence. Other toasts followed, when the W.M. next gave the toast of "The Immediate Past Master of 1,225," of whom he spoke in highly complimentary terms as a consistent and energetic Mason. It was his pleasing duty to present, in the name of the brethren, to Bro. Ormandy, a P.M.'s gold jewel, and also a beautifully engrossed scroll in frame. He had great pleasure in presenting him with these marks of the esteem of his brethren, and trusted that they would be handed down to his children's children, unsullied, as they were now given into his hands. (Applause.) He concluded by proposing the toast, which was drunk with full Masonic honours. The following is a copy of the testimonial:—

"Ancient, Honourable, Free and Accepted Masons. At a regular meeting of the Hindpool Lodge, No. 1225, at the Hartington Hotel, Barrow-in-Furness, in the County of Lancaster, on Tuesday the 17th day of September, A.L. 5872, A.D. 1872, it was moved by Bro. Graham, S.W., seconded by Bro. Morris, J.W., and resolved that the lodge congratulate their Worshipful Master, Bro. John Stanley Ormandy, on the successful termination of his eventful year of office and in recognition of the constant attendance to his important duties zeal, and assiduity in performing the same, and for the fraternal courtesy he has ever exhibited to the lodge. His brethren have very great pleasure in presenting him with a Past Master's gold jewel, and a copy of this resolution, illuminated on vellum, and appropriately framed.

"(Signed)

"R. W. Graham, W.M.

"John Morris, S.W.

"John Jeavons, J.W.

"W. M. Eckersby, Secretary."

Bro. J. S. Ormandy, P.M., in responding to the toast, said he could not express all he felt on the occasion. He could only say that he was extremely obliged to them for the kind manner in which they had drunk his health, and also for the handsome jewel they had presented to him. He felt that he scarcely deserved such a present, for he had not often done anything to merit such regard at their hands. It had been great pleasure to him to perform the duties of his office, and had they been fifty times as arduous he would still have done them, for there was a pleasure in working the lodge, when there were such excellent officers to assist in the work. He could only hope that the new W.M. would have the same pleasure as he had experienced during his year of office. He again thanked them, and assured them he would treasure the gifts they had been so kind as to present to him as long as he lived. Bro. Worrall, P.M., gave the next toast, which was—"The Past Deputy Provincial G.M., Lord Skelmersdale;" and Past Provincial Officers of West Lancashire." The brethren were all well aware that since the introduction of Freemasonry into Barrow-in-Furness, the provincial officers of the Grand Lodge had been ever ready to give all the help they could. The brethren had been very energetic in the advancement of the Order in Barrow, but all their efforts would have been but very moderately successful had it not been for the ready and able assistance thus rendered to them (applause). The toast was drunk with Masonic honours. Bro. Wylie responded to the toast, and said that his brethren of the Grand Lodge would at all times do what they could to assist lodges, and said he had to propose the toast of the Worshipful Master of Hindpool Lodge, No. 1225, who had been that day installed, and he hoped that all who sat round that board might feel a desire the fill the W.M.'s chair, and if so, they must cheerfully fill the subordinate offices of the lodge. He trusted they would support the Master during his term of office and strengthen his hands. If this was the case, there was no doubt their lodge would prosper. The toast was drunk with full Masonic honours. The W.M. said he felt it would be the height of egotism for him to speak of himself, but he could not help saying that this was one of the proudest moments of his life. He felt it a very high honour, indeed, to have such a toast proposed by the P.P.G.R., whom he heartily thanked. He could only say that, if the brethren supported him as they had done the Past W.M., he would do his best (applause). Bro. Morris, S.W., proposed the toast of "The Installing Officers," and said he was proud to be able to say they had now one of their own members who could claim the title, and he had no doubt that the Provincial Officers were also glad that such was the case. This was as it should be, for he thought it was high time that the Past Masters should begin to qualify themselves to go through the ceremony, and it was especially gratifying to him to see Bro. Cornfield perform the solemn ceremony in the able manner he did. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. George Cornfield, the Installing Officer of the day. (Drunk with honours). Bro. Cornfield felt proud in having to respond to the toast for the first time. It was not long since he was initiated in Lodge 1021, and he did not then think of occupying the position in which he had been placed that afternoon. They might think he was but a young Mason and a young man, and he might be thought to have a little vanity (no, no) in aspiring to the high office he had held. Such was not the case, for it was his greatest aim and desire to propagate the principles of Freemasonry. He hoped to see it become the rule in this lodge for the retiring Master to instal his successor. Although he had performed the ceremony that day, yet he must acknowledge that he had been greatly indebted to the Provincial Grand Officers for the able assistance they had given him. They were ever ready to give that assistance. It was a great honour to him to be able to say that he was the first P.M. in Barrow to instal a successor. It should be the aim of all, and, if any brother was wishful, he would be glad to give him such instruction that he could to enable them to do so. Bro. Relp, P.M., next gave "The Past Officers of No. 1225," to which Bro. McKnight briefly responded. Bro. Leary, P.S., also responded and gave "The Past Masters of No. 1225," responded to by Bro. Worrall, P.M., Bro. Cornfield, P.M., Bro. Silver, P.M., and Bro. Ormandy. The occasion was well filled up with other complimentary speeches, toasts, Masonic applause and vocalism, and the feeling amongst the brethren was that they had passed a pleasant and happy day.

LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

MARKET HARBOUROUGH.—St. Peter's Lodge (No. 1330).—This lodge held its first meeting since the summer recess at the Assembly Room, Three Swans Hotel, on Friday, the 20th inst., when, in the absence, in Scotland, of the W.M., Bro. Sir H. St. John Halford, Bart. (High Sheriff), the chair was occupied by the I.P.M., Bro. Kelly, W.Prov.G.M. Among the other brethren present were the Rev. John F. Halford, S.W.; Francis Kemp, J.W.; R. Waite, P.M. and Treasurer; — Lawrence, as Secretary; T. Macaulay, M.R.C.S., S.D.; Dr. Grant, J.D.; Freestone and Fuller, Stewards; Harrison I.G.; Shovelbottom, Whitehead, Ellis, Holloway, and others. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the last meeting read and certified, Grand Lodge certificates were delivered to several of the brethren. This being the time for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, a ballot took place, which resulted in the unanimous appointment of the worthy Senior Warden, the Rev. John F. Halford, M.A., Prov. G. Chaplain, who expressed his thanks to the lodge for the honour conferred upon him. The ballot for Treasurer resulted in the re-appointment of the present officer, Bro. Robert Waite, P.M. Bro. Kelly, P.G.M., the first W.M. of the lodge, was nominated for election as an honorary member. The rector of a neighbouring parish having been proposed as a candidate for initiation, and three brethren as joining members, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The festival of the lodge was fixed to take place on Friday, October 11th, and the P.G.M. announced that the Bishop of the diocese had fixed Thursday, November 14th, as the day for laying, with Masonic honours, the foundation stone of the Memorial Church to the late Earl Howe, P. Prov.G.M., and that the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge would be held on the same day.

NORTH WALES.

CARNARVON.—Segontium Lodge (No. 606).—This lodge held its usual monthly meeting on Thursday, 19th inst. The lodge was opened at 2 p.m., by Bro. Robert Humphreys, assisted by all the officers of the lodge. The minutes of the previous lodge meeting having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Mr. T. P. Copeland, which proving unanimous, he, together with Mr. Hugh McKie, previously accepted, were introduced into the mysteries of Masonry. The W.M. being compelled to leave for a short period, the chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. M. Emanuel, W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, 205, also a member of this lodge, who raised Bro. John Jones to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, in a manner which elicited the approbation of the brethren of the lodge. This being the night for election of officers, Bro. Poole, the S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Webb was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Charles Foulkes re-elected Secretary. A petition to the First Grand Principal, for a dispensation for the opening of a chapter in connection with the lodge, was then read, when it was resolved that the said petition be recommended by the lodge to the First Grand Principal. The three Principals recommended in the petition are Bro. M. Emanuel, first; Bro. Humphreys, second; and Bro. Hayworth, third. The lodge was then closed in due form and solemn prayer. As a proof of the interest of our Provincial brethren in Masonry, and their desire to receive instruction, we mentioned a few months since that Bro. Emanuel gave the lectures on the Tracing Boards, and it being known that Bro. Emanuel would again visit Carnarvon, at the wish of the brethren, the W.M. called a lodge of emergency for Monday last, when there was a large muster of the brethren, including several visitors. The lodge having been opened at seven, p.m., Bro. Emanuel first worked the first and second sections of the first lecture, and then gave the Tracing Board lecture, including extracts from the third, fourth, and fifth sections, at the conclusion of which the sixth and seventh sections were worked. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and the lecture on the Tracing Board in that degree given, including the Masonic illustrations of the seven periods of the Creation. As the questions and answers in the various sections were asked and replied to by Bro. Emanuel, some idea of the nature of the work may be gathered by those intimate with the working of the sections. The lodge being then reduced to the first degree, an especial vote of thanks was carried to Brother Emanuel, and the Secretary requested to convey the same to him in a letter. The lodge was then closed in due form and solemn prayer. Our correspondent writes in the highest terms of the completeness of the fittings and furniture of this lodge, and which has lately removed to a room, fitted up for the express purpose, in Carnarvon Castle, and as regards the proposed new chapter, no less than seventeen brethren have already signified their intention of being exalted, should a dispensation be granted by the First Principal, and with such Principals as those proposed, viz., Bro. M. Emanuel, W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, 205, also a member of the Carnarvon Lodge; Bro. R. Humphreys, W.M. of the Segontium Lodge, 606, and Bro. Hayworth, P.M. of the Llandudno Lodge, the chapter cannot fail of being equally as prosperous as the lodge itself, and as if the dispensation is granted, it will be the only one working in the Principality, it will very shortly be likely to be as numerous in number as any existing chapter.

YORKSHIRE (WEST).

BRADFORD.—Lodge of Hope (No. 302).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 16th inst. The W.M., Bro. William Barlow, presided. There was no business of importance before the lodge, but official visits, on the invitation of the W.M., were paid by the lodges of Eccleshill, 1034, and Pentalpha, 974. The lodge was opened in the first degree, the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the usual routine business transacted, the lodge closed according to ancient custom, and the visiting brethren invited by the W.M. to partake of refreshment. The cloth had been laid for 60, and a little over that number sat down to an excellent repast, the W.M. receiving the congratulations of the visiting brethren for the admirable style in which he had catered for their creature comforts. Bro. Wm. W. Barlow, W.M., was supported at the supper table on his left by Bros. J. D. Sugden as I.P.M., (in the unavoidable absence of Bro. J. Green, I.P.M.); Robert Richardson, W.M. Pentalpha, 974; Edward Smith, W.M., Eccleshill, 1034; Captain Wordsworth, P.M., P.Prov. G.S. of W.; W. Banister, P.M., 1018, P.G.S.B.; C. F. Matier, P.M., 1355, G.S. of Scotland, and and P.G.S.W.; W. H. Evans, P.M. 974; S. B. Walmsley, P.M., 974; J. Schaeppi, P.M., 332, Prov. G.S.D.; Frederick Broughton, W.M., 151, Prov. G.R. and P.Prov. G.S.W. South Wales; M. Rhodes, P.M., 302, A. Hunter, P.M., 302; and on his left by Bros. Rev. J. Oddy, Chaplain of the lodge, and Prov. G. C.; H. Inchbold, P.M. Fidelity, Leeds, 289; W. Beck, W.M., 289; W. Ibbetson, P.M., 302, P.G.J.D.; S. Blakey, P.M., 387; W. Beanland, P.M., 1034; H. O. Mawson, P.M., 302; C. Pratt, P.M., 1034, P. Prov. G.J.D. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. W. Banister, P.G.S.B., responding on behalf of the G.M. and Officers of Grand Lodge, expressed a hope that he should have the pleasure of meeting Bro. William W. Barlow, the W.M., as well as other brethren of the Hope, in Grand Lodge; and expressing his admiration of the way in which the proceedings of the evening had been conducted, and his thanks for the hospitality shown him. Bros. Rev. J. Oddy, P.G.C., J. Schaeppi, P.G.S.D.; and W. Ibbetson, P.G.J.D., respectively responded on behalf of Prov. G.M., and Provincial Grand Officers, expressing their pleasure in being able to take part in such an agreeable and numerous attended meeting as this; and in thanking the brethren on the part of the Prov. G.M. and officers, wished the brethren would consider the honour conferred by their appointment as Provincial Grand Officers a compliment paid to the Lodge of Hope, and not to them individually. The W.M. called upon Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.S.W., to propose "The Clergy," which he did in his usual complimentary, earnest, and excellent manner. Bros. Revs. W. J. Flynn, and J. Vaile, responded, never feeling, as they said, the least out of place when attending lodge meetings, the principles and precepts of the Craft being calculated, if acted up to, to improve the minds of men, and make them better citizens. The W.M. proposed the health of the W.M., P.M.'s, Officers, and Brethren of the Pentalpha, 974, speaking in eulogistic terms of all connected that lodge, and of the rapid strides it had made during its short life, prognosticating that it had a brilliant prospect, and must take high standing in the Province. Bro. Robert Richardson, W.M., 974, responded, thanking the W.M. for the complimentary way in which he had introduced the toast, and the brethren for its hearty reception. He, on the part of the brethren of his lodge and his own, begged to tender their heartiest thanks for the very handsome manner in which they had been entertained. The W.M. then proposed the W.M., P.M.'s, Officers, and Brethren of the Eccleshill, 1034, praising them for the great progress made during their short history. Bro. Edward Smith, W.M. 1034, responded in his usual hearty and real Yorkshire fashion. The W.M. then, as he said, for the first time in this lodge, so far as the oldest member knew, proposed the G.M. of Scotland, and the rest of the Grand Officers," being favoured by the presence of one of the Grand Officers of Scotland. Bro. C. F.

Matier, G.S. of Scotland, responded, saying that if, as the W.M. had stated, this was the first occasion on which this toast had been proposed he trusted it would not be the last, for he had been so much delighted by all he had seen, and the great hospitality displayed towards him, that he quite intended, should opportunity offer, to pay another visit to the Hope. The W.M., in giving "The other Visiting Brethren," said how much it pleased him to be favoured by the visit of Bro. Frederick Broughton, Prov. G.R. of South Wales, and brother, by consanguinity, as well as Masonry, to his able S.W. and coadjutor, Bro. B. Broughton, who was alike esteemed and respected in the commercial as the Masonic community. Bro. Fred. Broughton might be assured that his name alone would be a sufficient passport for him in Bradford without bringing with him, as he did, such high credentials. The name of Bro. G. Althorp, S.W., of Pentalfa, 954 was also coupled with the toast. Bro. Frederick Broughton replied, modestly stating that it was well known the members of his family were not gifted with the power of speech; but his elegant and concise remarks only seemed to confirm the prior opinion of the brethren that for good speaking and writing few could surpass them. Bro. G. Althorp, S.W. Pentalfa, 974, also, on the behalf of the other visitors and himself, tendered to the W.M. his hearty congratulations on the admirable way in which the business of the lodge was conducted, and for the courteous, at the same time, rather flattering, mention of them; and to the brethren of the Hope for their cordial and enthusiastic reception of this toast. He could only say that he looked up to the Hope Lodge as a grandson does to his grandfather, and he assured the brethren that his affection was sincere, and he trusted it would be lasting. The W.M., in proposing the health of the P.M.'s, tendered to them his thanks for all their assistance, and wished the lodge would continue to have the advantage of their co-operation and advice. Bro. J. D. Sugden, P.M., thanked the W.M., on the part of the P.M.'s, for the way in which he had introduced the toast, assuring him of every assistance and support they could give, and concluded by proposing the health of the W.M. in flattering terms. Bro. William W. Barlow, W.M., briefly replied, being desirous, as he said, of concluding the business at the usual hour. He thanked all for their kindness and courtesy, and for attending in such numbers, and looked forward to many equally pleasant gatherings. He then proposed "The Officers of the Lodge," coupling with the toast the names of Bros. B. Broughton, S.W., and George Richardson, Treasurer, and complimented them, one and all, on the able and punctual discharge of their respective duties, which had so much assisted him, and conduced to the well working of the lodge. Bros. B. Broughton and George Richardson, respectively responded in their accustomed fluent and happy style, tendering to the W.M., on their part, and that of the rest of their officers, their thanks for the complimentary manner in which he had alluded to them, and to the brethren for their kind and enthusiastic reception of the toast. At 11 o'clock (according to the W.M.'s custom) the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated, after spending a most agreeable and profitable evening. The proceedings were enlivened by harmony from Bro. F. C. Atkinson, Mus. Bac., Cantab, Organist of the Lodge, and other brethren, and by an admirable recitation by Bro. Frederick Broughton, which greatly added to the pleasure of all present.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Perfect Friendship Lodge.—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on the 18th inst. Present—Bro. J. B. Fraser, W.M.; S. B. King, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D., Secretary; N. Tracy, P.M., P. Prov. J.G.W.; G. S. Findley, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; Dr. Mills, P. Prov. G.S.W.; J. Pitcher, P. Prov. J.G.W.; W. T. Westgate, P. Prov. G.D.C.; W. A. Smith, I.P.M., P. Prov. G.D.C.; J. Franks, P. Prov. G. Registrar; Bros. A. Gamman, S.W.; J. A. Pettit, P.M., P. Prov. G. S.W., P.M., Sec. Visiting, Bro. Emra Holmes, P.G. Registrar, Suffolk, of the British Union Lodge; and Bro. Moses Cohen, of the Prince of Wales Lodge. The lodge having been opened, the ballot was taken for a candidate from London, who was unanimously accepted, but who, through indisposition, was prevented attending to be initiated. The usual routine business of the lodge having been disposed of, and Bro. Casey having called the attention of the brethren to the Lodge of Instruction, the brethren retired for refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, the W.M. called upon the brethren to drink to the Visiting Brethren. One of them, Bro. Emra Holmes, they knew very well; they had seen him before amongst them, and hoped they might often see him again; the other brother, he believed, had never been amongst them before; but he, the W.M. cordially welcomed him amongst them. In reply, Bro. Emra Holmes thanked the brethren very warmly for the kind way in which they had responded to the toast. He had heard it said in Ipswich that brethren should stick to their own lodges (no, no), and that they should not go visiting about (no, no). It had not been said in the Perfect Friendship Lodge, which was well known for its hospitable reception of visitors (hear, hear), but he would venture to submit that it was desirable that brethren should visit each other's lodges, in the interest of Masonry. In some places, he did not say it was so in Ipswich, but in some places, where there were many lodges, there were little differences of opinion, bickerings, as well as possibly a want of uniformity in working. Those differences could be best reconciled and that uniformity could be best attained by frequent visiting at each other's lodges; unanimity would be obtained by frequent intercommunion, so to speak. He, Bro. Holmes, remembered well that the first lodge he visited when he came to Ipswich, three years ago, was the Perfect Friendship. He was so kindly received there, that he would have asked to have been allowed to join that lodge, but for the objection that at that time it was held at a public house. He would not say that he wished he had joined it now, since that would seem disloyal to his own lodge, the British Union, but he would say that it gave him very great pleasure to come amongst them, and he was very glad to accept the invitation to so popular a lodge as the Perfect Friendship. Bro. Cohen briefly responded. In giving toast of the "Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers" the W.M. coupled with the Past Officers the name of Bro. Pettit, who had recently recovered from a severe illness, and who they were very glad to see amongst them again. With the present officers we coupled the names of Bro. Emra Holmes, P.G. Reg. Bro. Pettit replied in feeling terms, expressing his gratitude to the G.A.O.T.U. for restoring him to them once again. Bro. Holmes replied briefly; he said he believed he was the only P.G. officer present, and he would only say that he trusted the present officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Suffolk would endeavour do their duty as well as those who had gone before them. Bro. Smith, Cohen, Pettit, King, and others, ably contributed to the harmony of the evening and a very pleasant social meeting was brought to a close.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Billiousness, Dyspepsia are in Autumn, frequently the forerunners of dangerous diseases known as Typhus, Typhoid, Enteric Fever, Dysentery and Cholera. There is no organ in the human body so liable to derangement as the liver, none which requires earlier correction to prevent mischief, pain, and danger. Food, fatigue, climate, and anxiety all disorder its action, and render its secretion, the bile, more or less depraved, superabundant or scanty. The first symptoms should receive attention. A pain in the side, on the top of the shoulder, a harsh cough, and difficulty in breathing are signs of liver disease, which are removed without delay by friction with Holloway's mercurial Ointment. The Pills should be taken early.—ADVT.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND CO LONIAL

The Earl of Jersey was married, on the 19th inst., to the Hon. Margaret Elizabeth Leigh, eldest daughter of the Right Honorable Lord Leigh, of Stoneleigh Abbey, Prov. Grand Master of Warwickshire.

The Masonic Lodge of Strasburg, having been informed that it could not be allowed to keep up its connection with the Grand Orient of France, has resolved to break up rather than be affiliated to a German superior.—Echo, 25th September.

The Knole Lodge, No. 1414, was duly consecrated at the Masonic Hall, Sevenoaks, on Wednesday, the 25th instant, by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, in the presence of more than one hundred brethren, including thirty or forty Grand Officers of Kent. A full report will appear in our next.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, October 4, 1872

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 28.

Red Cross Conclave No. 3, Rose and Lily, Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street.
Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, SEPT. 30.

Lodge 79, Pythagorean, Ship Hotel, Greenwich.
" 831, British Oak, Beaumont Hall, Beaumont-square, Mile-end.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), the Horse and Groom Tavern, Wimsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-Hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, OCT. 1.

Colonial Board at 3 o'clock.
Lodge 7, Royal York of Perseverance, Freemasons' Hall.
" 9, Albion, Freemasons' Hall.
" 101, Temple, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 167, St. John's, Holly Bush Tavern Hampstead.
" 172, Old Concord, Freemasons' Hall.
" 217, Stability, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
" 705, St. James's.
" 1257, Grosvenor, Calonian Hotel, Adelphi.
" 1259, Duke of Edinburgh, New Globe Tavern, Bow-road.
" 1261, Golden Rule, Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue.
" 1298, Royal Standard, Marquess Tavern, Canonbury.
Chap. 169, Temperance, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. 2., Coatebrune, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.

Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 2.

Lodge 511, Zetland, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, OCT. 3.

Lodge 27, Egyptian, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
" 45, Strong Man, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell.
" 136, Good Report, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
" 192, Lion and Lamb, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street.
" 227, Ionic, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 538, La Tolerance, Freemasons' Hall.
" 554, Yarborough, Green Dragon, Stepney.
" 822, Victoria Rifles, Freemasons' Hall.
" 1155, Excelsior, Sydney Arms, Lewisham-road.
" 1178, Perfect Ashlar.
" 1351, St. Clement Danes, 265, Strand.
Mark Lodge 3, Keystone, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall.
Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Pannure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
Doric Chapter of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, BethnalGreen, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsonby-st., Milbank.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 27.

Lodge 706, Florence Nightingale, Masonic Hall, William-st., Woolwich.
" 742, Crystal Palace, Crystal Palace, Sydenham.
" 890, Hornsey, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
Mark Lodge 8, Thistle, Freemasons' Tavern.
Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st.
Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298,) Preceptor.
Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsfc, Preceptor.
Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

NOW READY, PRICE £4/4 THE PAIR, OR £2/10 SINGLE.

SIZE 32in. BY 26in.

PHOTOGRAPHS

BRO. SIGISMUND ROSENTHAL'S CELEBRATED PAINTINGS,

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master,

At Freemasons' Hall, on December 1st, 1869, containing upwards of 120 Figures and Portraits.

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar,

May 13th, 1870, containing nearly 100 Figures and Portraits.

Sold by BRO. G. KENNING, 2, 3, & 4, Little Britain, E.C.

Branches: 198, Fleet-street, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

IRON
PIANOS
FOR ALL
CLIMATES

MESSRS. BORN & Co.,

13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.

MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled,

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.

LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, Traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA.

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

By WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinae," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.

Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.

Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

ELECTION, OCTOBER, 1872.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers are earnestly solicited on behalf of

ETHEL IDA MARGARET SEATON,
AGED 8 YEARS.

Her Father, Bro. George Seaton, formerly Master Mariner and Ship Chandler at Hull, was, for 16 years, a Subscribing Member of the Humber Lodge, No. 57, Hull, (also a Companion of the Humber Chapter,) and after a very short illness, died on the 19th February, 1868, leaving his Widow with five Children, three of whom are entirely dependent upon her for support, and with very small and inadequate means to educate and maintain them.

The case is strongly recommended by the following Brethren:—

†Chris. Sykes, 57, M.P., P.S.P.G.W. North and East York, Brantingham Thorpe.
James Clay, 57, M.P., London.
C. M. Norwood, 57, M.P., London.

†J. P. Bell, 57, M.D., D.P.G.M. North and East York, S.G.D. of England, Hull.
*M. C. Peck, P.M., 1049, P.G. Secretary North and East York, Hull.

R. T. Vivian, W.M. 57, Hull.
†John Thompson, W.M. 250, Hull.

†Geo. Chris. Roberts, W.M. 1010, P.P.G.R. North and East York, Hull.
Thos. Smurthwaite, W.M. 236, York.

J. Kemp, Junr., W.M. 204, Constitutional, Beverley.
W. H. Rose, W.M. 600, Camaldunum, Malton.

R. G. Smith, W.M. 734, Londesbro', Bridlington-Quay.
Jon. Turner, W.M. 1049, Sykes, Driffield.

†H. W. Longstaff, P.M. 1010, P.P.G.W. North and East York, Hull.
†Wm. Tesseyman, P.M. 57, P.G. Supt. Wks. North and East York, Hull.

†*Nathaniel Easton, 57 and 1010, Hull.
†*George Hardy, P.M. 250, P.S.P.G.D. North and East York, Hull.

†J. W. Woodall, P.M. 200, P.S.P.G.W. North and East York, Scarbro'.
†J. J. Forester, P.M. 222, 66, Mark-lane, London.

Those marked thus † are Governors or Subscribers to the Institution.

The Brethren marked thus * will be happy to receive Voting Papers: which, with any communication or assistance will be thankfully received, or Boys' Votes for exchange, by

Bro. JOHN WALKER, P.M. 57,
P.P.G. Supt. Works, North and East York,
56, Lister-street, Hull.

J. E. PETERS,
ORNAMENTAL ENGRAVER AND FANCY ENAMELLER,
42, Howard-place, Northampton-road,
CLERKENWELL.

Writing, Engraving of every description, Masonic Emblems Engraved or Enamelled; old enamelled Work repaired; Country Orders attended to with despatch.

What better Theme than Masonry?"

MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1210; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool. Post-free, 25 stamps.

TESSELATED CARPETING.

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.

Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.
MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

MASONIC MISCHIEF.—The new Masonic Song. Inscribed to the Worshipful Company of Masons by Gerald Grant. Post Free Eighteen Stamps.
London: Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

THE NEW MASONIC SONG.—"Men of the Trowel" "An overwhelming answer to 'Masonic Mischief.'"—Court Express. Eighteen Stamps, post free.
London: Henry Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

SECOND EDITION.—NOW READY.

Price One Shilling, Post-free, Revised and Enlarged.
Freemasonry in Relation to Civil Authority and the Family Circle,

By BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.

THIS work is a perfect handbook of the principles of Freemasonry, founded on the Ancient Charges and Symbols, and will be found to be eminently practical and useful in the vindication and support of the Order.
Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THIRD EDITION.—JUST READY.

REFLECTED RAYS OF LIGHT UPON FREEMASONRY:

The Freemason's Pocket Compendium,
With an Emblematical Frontispiece.

A Hand-Book of the Principles of Freemasonry, and Pocket Vade Mecum and Guide to the various Ceremonies connected with Craft Masonry, so far as the same are allowed to be communicable, in accordance with the principles of the Order.

Price One Shilling, Post-free for Thirteen Stamps.

Sold by Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST
of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by

MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT
CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district.

Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

THE LONDON MIRROR.

Published every Saturday; price 4d.
The object of this journal is to set forth the claims of the many Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Prudential Institutions of the United Kingdom, and week by week to report their proceedings, whether as Meetings, Sermons, Anniversaries, or Elections, so as to present these National Institutions to the favour of the Public.
Office, 59, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C.

"THE FREEMASON" OF ST. LOUIS.

—The Largest Masonic Monthly in the World. Published at St. Louis, Mo., by George Frank Gouley, Grand Secretary and Recorder of the four Grand Bodies of Missouri.

The Freemason contains tidings from every quarter of the world, and will be found of great advantage to all Masons, especially those interested in American affairs. Terms $2 per annum, and to those who subscribe for the London Freemason the price will be $1.50 currency. Postage free.

Subscriptions received at the Office of the London "Freemason," 198, Fleet-street.

TRUTH MUST PREVAIL.—Common Sense.

Lamps, Baths, Cutlery, Brushes, Fenders and Fire Irons Electro-plate and Nickel-Silver Goods.

R. D. PARR,

General House Furnishing Ironmonger,
42, BLACKMAN STREET, BOROUGH.

OFFERS nothing extraordinary, but REALLY

Good Articles at fair and reasonable prices. He does not keep an "Immense Stock," but sufficiently large for any person to select from. He does not sell "cheaper than every other house in the Trade," but quite as cheap as any.

A visit will, at all times, be very much appreciated.

THE NEW MASONIC CANDLES, ionic, Doric and Corinthian, Emblematically Arranged for Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens.

6. per set of 3 one-pound Candles. Packing Cases 6d. each

BRO. GEORGE KENNING'S

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only,

THE PEOPLE'S

HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lambaugh, and the Boroughs of Whithy and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect.

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL,
Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each, containing 40 pages of crown quarto double columns, thus giving for 16s. 1,280 pages, or about 2,500 columns of letter-press, being twice as much matter as is given in any other History of Cleveland at three or four times the price.

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ord's History, the Work is illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by TWEDDELL and SONS, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

BRO. E. WATKINS,

BOTTLE MERCHANT,
ETC.,

12, Jewry-st, Aldgate.

Wines housed and bottled. Wine Baskets on hire.
Contracts made for any time or quantity.

ROSE CROIX TRACING BOARDS,
Five Guineas the Pair.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN
AND 198, FLEET-STREET.

BRIDGE HOUSE HOTEL,

LONDON BRIDGE,

Opposite the South Eastern, and London, Brighton, and South Coast Railways.

THIS Hotel has great facilities for Meetings, Charitable Institutions, Wedding Breakfasts, Public Dinners, Balls, Soirees, and is allowed to be in real domestic comfort, one of the best in the Metropolis, the tariff on application to JOSEPH H. SPENCER.

THE GREAT WESTERN HOTEL
(SNOW HILL STATION)

BIRMINGHAM.

"One of the most elegant, comfortable and economical Hotels in the three kingdoms.—The Field, July 31, 1869."

"From experience gained by repeated visits, we are happy to be able to testify to the exceeding comfort of this Hotel. We have much pleasure in recommending it.—The Engineer, October 14, 1870."

"An establishment remarkable for its able management, reasonable charges, and general comfort.—Bell's Life, June, 31, 1871.

Good Accommodation for Lodges, Chapters, &c.

City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, LONDON.

WELL adapted for Banquets, Balls, Amateur Dramatic Entertainments, Public Meetings, and Arbitrations. The large Hall is capable of seating upwards of Twelve Hundred people.

SYDNEY SPENCER, Manager.

Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st., E.C.

SPACIOUS Dining-rooms, Chop and Steak-rooms, Luncheon-bars, and Smoking Rooms. Rooms of all sizes, suitable for Auction Sales, Consultations, Arbitrations, Building Societies, &c.; also for Freemasons' Lodges and Banquets, Private Dinners, &c.

Guildhall Tavern Company (Limited), 32 and 33, Gresham-street,
GEORGE CRAWFORD, Manager and Secretary.

Masons' Hall Tavern,

MASONS' AVENUE, BASINGHALL-STREET, CITY.

THE above old-established Tavern is NOW OPEN, newly decorated, by Bro. CHARLES GOSDEN, late Manager of the Freemasons' Tavern Company. Every accommodation will be found for Lodges, Chapters, Mark and other degrees, for their Meetings, Dinners, Suppers, &c., and every attention will be paid to their comfort and enjoyment by the new Proprietor.

The Alexandra Restaurant,

7, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET.

Public and Private Dining Rooms

First-class Cooking and Wines.

Open for Suppers after the Theatres.

Bro. F. HILFREICH, Proprietor.

BALL FAVOURS,

NEWEST DESIGNS.

MASONIC DEPOTS 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Mr. JAMES STEVENS,

AUCTIONEER AND SURVEYOR,

House and Estate Agent, &c.,

CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duties. Agent to the Imperial Fire and Life Insurance Offices.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC DINNER PILLS.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the Stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing Headache, Giddiness, &c., arising from a Costive Habit, Debilitated Stomach, or Torpid Liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution can take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with Wilkinson's Sarsaparilla with the greatest success.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S ESSENCE, OR FLUID

EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for PURIFYING THE BLOOD, DEBILITY, LIVER COMPLAINTS, and freeing the system from effects of Mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to Tropical diseases.

"Superior preparations that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend yours as the best."—Medical Review.

In Quarter, Half, and Pint Bottles.
CAUTION.—Spurious and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that Bottle and Label have the Name and Address, "T. Wilkinson, late Wilkinson, Bridge, and Co., No. 270, Regent-street, London."

QUINTESENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER and CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S Preparation of Ginger and Camomile has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient Stomachic Tonic, and the best remedy for Flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion, and is not affected by climate.

No European in India or Tropical Countries should be without it. In one-eighth, quarter and half-pint Bottles.

EPILEPSY OR FITS.

A SURE CURE for this distressing complaint is now made known in a Treatise (of 48 octavo pages) on Foreign and Native Herbal Preparations, published by PROF. O. PHELPS BROWN. The prescription was discovered by him in such a providential manner that he cannot conscientiously refuse to make it known, as it has cured everybody who has used it for Fits, never having failed in a single case. The ingredients may be obtained from any chemist. Sent free to any address on application to PROF. O. PHELPS BROWN, 2, King-Street, Covent-Garden, London.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

The Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 607
 Reviews 609
 Grand Lodge of Scotland 610
 Grand Lodge of Mark Masters..... 610
 Charles XV. of Sweden..... 612
CRAFT MASONRY:—
 Metropolitan 613
 Provincial 2
 Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire..... 613
MARK MASONRY:—
 Provincial 615
RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE:—
 Provincial..... 516
CORRESPONDENCE:—
 The Spurious Rite of Memphis 616
 The Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution
 for Girls 616
 Prov. Grand Officers 616
 Masonic Meetings for next week... 617
 Advertisements..... 605, 606, 617, 618 616, 620

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

By EMMA HOLMES, 31^o,
 Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 592.)

Professor Aytoun evidently shared this opinion, and believed in the present Knights Templar as the legitimate descendants of the Crusading Red Cross Knights, or he would not have penned the stirring lines which I now proceed to quote.

THE RAISING OF THE BEAUSEANT.
 BY PROFESSOR AYTOUN.

Fling out the Temple as of old !
 Age hath not stained the whiteness of its fold,
 Nor marred the ruddy Cross, salvation's sign :
 Once more we lift the sacred standard up—
 Companions, fill the cup—
 We pledge the Beauseant in this sparkling wine !
 Oh ! what a valiant host have fought and bled
 Beneath that banner, to the wind outspread,
 Since first it moved against the infidel !
 Who knows not how it waved in Salem's Towers,
 When Acre, Ramla, Nazareth, were ours,
 And at Tiberias fell ?
 Fell, with the Knights who bore it to the field,
 When foulest treason broke the Christian shield,
 And bade the Turkish crescent sign advance—
 Fell, but to rise again, with triple pride,
 When bounding o'er the tide,
 The armies came of England and of France.
 And who is he, the leader of that band,
 Who first sets foot upon the Holy Land ?
 Move on, unrivalled champion that thou art !
 Shout, brethren, shout ! aloft your banners fling—
 'Tis he, the Christian's hope, the Islam's King—
 Richard, the Lion-heart !
 Then Acre fell, the Moslem foe went back,
 And still our brethren followed on their track,
 And ever in the van of battle flew
 The sacred Beauseant, like a meteor star
 Shedding its wath afar
 Upon the foul and unbelieving crew.
 Unvanquished still—till fraud, not force, combined
 With basest envy in a despot's mind,
 Dragged from its staff that glorious emblem down,
 And poured, like water, forth the guiltless blood,
 When Jacques Molay, the valiant and the good,
 Received his martyr crown.
 Then perished all—yet, no ; on Scottish ground
 Some remnant of the Templars still was found,
 Whom even treason did not dare to quell.
 Walter de Clifton ! honoured be thy name !
 Who, braving death and shame,
 Did'st vindicate thine Order's truth so well.

Years passed away ere yet the warring world
 Beheld again the Templars flag unfurled ;
 But England saw the rosy Cross return
 Once more to light, and scattering dismay
 Within their ranks upon that glorious day
 When Bruce won Bannockburn !

Then raise it up, Companions, once again,
 Though now it wave not in the battle plain ;
 True hearts are here to guard its spotless fold,
 For ever honoured be the Templars' name,
 For ever dear their fame,
 Fling out the Beauseant banner, as of old !

Bro. Haye, however, adds, "The more probable account is that they joined, on an equal footing, the knights of St. John in Scotland ; James the IV. gave a charter, confirming grants by the Kings, Malcolm IV., Alexander II., Alexander III., James II., and James III., to the Knights of the Hospital and Temple.

Bro. Haye further observes, "The Order, as in England, was found innocent, and it is a curious circumstance, no act was passed suppressing them in Scotland, as was done in every other State in Europe. This renders all the more probable the idea that they joined the Order of St. John."

It appears also from his history, that on the persecution of the German Templars, they were told that the Order was dissolved, and they were to be incorporated with another Order. They chose that of the Teutonic Knights. The Pope had previously absolved them, and declared them innocent. The Order of St. John and the Temple in Scotland, became extinct at the Reformation. Bro. Haye asserts, when Sir James Sandilands, the Grand Prior, turned Protestant. At the same period the same fate in a manner, befel the Teutonic Knights ; but instead of giving birth to a Torphichen family, as in Scotland, the successors of the Templars in Germany founded the Prussian kingdom.

By the way, the present Lord Torphichen is, or was, a member of the Supreme Council A. and A. Rite in Scotland. He is so noted in the Calendar for 1866.

In the proceedings of a conference of delegates from the Grand Lodge of Scot and, the Grand Chapter of Scotland, the Grand Chapter of Ireland, and the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters, touching the Mark Degree, and which is annexed to the published proceedings of Grand Mark Lodge for 1871, I find Bro. Kerr making the following observation :—

"In reference to the existence of what is termed "speculative" Masonry, I may mention the Secretary of the Royal Order of Scotland, informed me that he had documents in his possession, upwards of 200 years old, belonging entirely to what is called the "Speculative" portion of Freemasonry, not the "Operative" at all ; and which is very much akin to our Third Degree.

Bro. Kerr also stated that the Glasgow St. John Lodge, No. 3 lis, on the Roll of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, holds a charter from Malcolm Canmore, against which some objections have been stated, but they have another of William the Lion, which is indisputable, dated 1174. They also state that, as representing the builders of Glasgow Cathedral, they only practice the traditional Masonry received at that early period.

St. Mary's Chapel Lodge, went so far back in her history as to say that the lodge was originally brought to this country by David Ist, and as a travelling lodge, erected the Chapel of Holyrood, in 1128, also Melrose Abbey, and various other buildings, and came back and settled in Edinburgh.

From this body rose the incorporation of Masons.

Bro. Kerr stated, also, that from the unwillingness of members of the old lodges to commit anything to writing, it was difficult to find direct evidence of the speculative, as well as the operative character of their teaching.

"However," he says, "under date 1559, on the sill of one of the windows of the Choir of Glasgow Cathedral, we find the Square and Compass engraved, the All-seeing Eye above, the sun, moon, and stars, and a finger pointing to the three steps. In those times, when the secrets of the Craft were very much looked to and preserved with jealous care, it was not to be expected that very much explanation of the system then practised could be found, but it would be seen by these symbols that speculative Masonry did exist."

If this is so, and if these charters are of the age they claim to be, Bro. Findel's objections to Scotland, and Scottish Masonry must fall to the ground, since we have nothing in England of a like antiquity.

"Rosa Crucis," in a letter to the Freemason's Magazine, on the Rose Croix Degree, which appeared 22nd August, 1868,* says—"Some years ago, I called the attention of your readers to a passage in Sir Walter Scott's novel of "Woodstock" ; it is from the speech of Colonel Haïsson, in the first scene :—"Down on your right knees, front rank ; spare not the spoiling of your blue aprons, Zerubbabel ! aye, that is the word."

"To this, I received no response ; but can there be any connection between the blue apron and the curious description of the Blue Blanket, or Craftsmen's banner, for which we are indebted, amongst other valuable extracts, to Bro. Hughan ; the same article also supports the tradition, that a large number of our brethren joined the first Crusade."

The Blue Blanket, to which Rosa Crucis alludes, was the name given to the banner of the Craftsmen in Edinburgh, and in original writs was called the banner of the Holy Ghost.

Our esteemed Bro. Hughan, quoting Pennecuik's historical account, published 1722, says, "The Blue Blanket had its rise about the year 1,200 of God, when the Crusade was carried on by Pope Urban the Second ; and so is older than any of the Orders of Knighthood in Europe, save that of St. Andrew on the Thistle, which had its origin about the year 800. Vast numbers of the Scotch mechanics having followed this holy war, taking with them a banner, bearing the inscription out of the 51st Psalm, "In bona voluntate tua edificentur muri Jerusalem" (sic), and from its colour was called the Blue Blanket.

On the occasion of laying the foundationstone of the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, the 24th June, 1858, the real original Blue Blanket, which had long been in a very tattered condition, but which had been repaired by lining one of its sides with blue silk was displayed in the Ma nic procession by the Lodge of Journeymen Free-masons, No. 8, the privilege being accorded to them, in consequence of their original connection with the Masons of St. Mary's Chapel, one of the fourteen incorporated trades of the city.

It is said that the banner was borne before the Craftsmen, who rallied under the Earl of Angus, the Lord Provost, to accompany James IV. to the field of Flodden. It was displayed to assemble the incorporated trades to protect Queen Mary, when she was insulted, and her life placed in jeopardy by the incensed populace, after her surrender to the confederate nobles at Carberry Hill, and it went up to the rescue of James VI. from a rabble that assailed him at the Old Tolbooth, Edinburgh, for refusing to listen to a petition presented by the Presbyterian ministers, complaining of his undue leaning. In King James's work, the Basilikon Doron, addressed to his son, Henry, Prince of Wales, he says, "The Craftsmen think we should be content with their work, how bad soever it may be; and if in anything they be controlled up goes the Blue Blanket."

I have read somewhere that the Rev. Charles Kingsley gave up the Professorship of Modern History at Cambridge because he found history such a mass of lies.

Masonry, which is founded on tradition, which, until recent years, had very little about it committed to writing, much less to print, would be something more than a human invention, if it could lay claim to greater veracity in its historical statements than history itself.

Masonic history is no more and no less infallible than ancient or modern history.

There would seem to be some foundation for the tradition that the Masons joined in the Crusades, and I am not aware that the author of the History of the Blue Blanket was a Mason, and therefore, interested in making the statement.

We now come to the present descent of the Knights Templar, and to their connection with the Free-masons and the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, through the Order in France.

The author I have quoted so freely from, Charles Knight, speaks of the suppression of the Order of Knights Templar, forgetting, or more probably, not knowing that they never have been suppressed.

Strange as this statement may seem to some, it is, I believe, nevertheless, true, and for the benefit of my readers, I shall proceed to quote from Mills's History of Chivalry on this subject.

Mills says in his interesting work on Chivalry* "In their origin all the military orders and most of the religious ones were entirely aristocratic, proofs of gentility of birth were scrupulously examined, and no soldier by the mere force of his valiancy could attain the honours of an order, though such a claim was allowed for his admission into the general fraternity of Knighthood. These requisites for nobleness of birth kept pace with the political state of different countries; for the sovereigns of Europe, and chivalroy did not accord upon any particular form. Thus a French candidate for the knighthood of Saint John of Jerusalem must have shown four quarters of gentility on his coat armour but in the, severer aristocracies of Spain and Germany, no less than eight heraldic emblazonings were requisite. In Italy, however, where commerce checked the haughtiness of nobility, it was not expected that the pedigree should be so proud and full, and at length the old families conceded, and the new families were satisfied with the concessin that the sons of merchants should be at liberty to enter into the religious orders. It would be tedious and unprofitable to detail the history of all these chivalric societies, and were I to repeat or abridge the usual books on the topic I should in many cases be only assisting to give currency to fraud, for the title, a religious order of knighthood was often improperly bestowed on an establishment, while in truth it was only a fraternity of monks, who maintained some soldiers in their pay; other associations obtained a papal sanction, but they were small and insignificant, and their history, did not affect the general state of any country, not so, however, the noble fraternities of Saint John and the Temple, and next, though the intervening space of dignity was considerable, the Teutonic knights. These religious orders of Chivalry, by their principles and conduct, are strongly marked in the political history of the world, for they formed the firm and unceasing bulwark of the Christian kingdom in Palestine during the middle ages. They were its regular militia, and maintained the Holy Land in the interval between the departure of one fleet of Crusaders and the arrival of another. Generous emulation sometimes degenerated into envy, and the heats and feuds of the Knights of Saint John and the Temple violated the peace of the country; but these dissensions were usually hushed when danger approached their charge, and the atabel of the Mussulmans was seldom sounded in defiance on the frontier of the kingdom without the trumpets of the military orders in every preceptory and commandery receiving and echoing challenge. The valiance of the Templars was particularly conspicuous in the moments of the kingdom's final fate; for when the Christians of the Holy Land were reduced to the possession of Acre, and two hundred thousand Mameluke Tartars from Egypt were encamped round its walls, the defence of the city was entrusted to Peter* de Beauveau, Grand Master of the Templars. And well and chivalrously did he sustain his high and sacred charge. Acre fell, indeed, but not until this heroic representative of Christian Chivalry and most of the noble followers of his standard had been slain.

*History of Chivalry, Vol. 1, page 336.

The memory of the Templars is embalmed in all our recollections of the beautiful romances of the middle ages, for the Red Cross Knights were the last band of Europe's host that contended for the possession of Palestine. A few survived the fall of Acre and retired to Sis in Armenia. They were driven to the island of Tortosa, whence they escaped to Cyprus, and the southern shore of the Mediterranean no longer rang with the cry of religious war.†

* Described as Pierre or Peter in the "Testament of Jaques de Molay," but as William by Addison.

† Mill's "History of Chivalry," pages 336 to 339.

"But the persecution of the Templars in the fourteenth century does not close the history of the Order, for though the knights were spoiled, the Order was not annihilated. In truth, the cavaliers were not guilty, the brotherhood was not suppressed, and, startling as is the assertion, there has been a succession of Knights Templars from the twelfth century down even to these days; the chain of transmission is perfect in all its links. Jacques de Molai, the Grand Master, at the time of the persecution, anticipating his own martyrdom, appointed as his successor, in power and dignity. Johannes Marcus Lamenius of Jerusalem, and from that time to the present there has been a regular and uninterrupted line of Grand Masters. The charter by which the supreme authority has been transmitted is judicial and conclusive evidence of the Order's continued existence. This charter of transmission, with the signatures of the various chiefs of the Temple is preserved at Paris, with the ancient statutes of the Order, the rituals, the records, the seals, the standards, and other memorials of the early Templars. The brotherhood has been headed by the bravest cavaliers of France, by men who, jealous of the dignity of knighthood, would admit no corruption, no base copies of the orders of chivalry, and who thought that the shield of their nobility was enriched by the impress of the Templars' Red Cross. Bertand du Guesclin was the Grand Master from 1357 till his death in 1380, and he was the only French commander who prevailed over the chivalry of our Edward the III. From 1478 to 1497 we may mark Robert Lenoncourt, a cavalier of one of the most ancient and valiant families of Lorraine.

Philippe Chabot, a renowned captain in the reign of Francis I., wielded the staff of power from 1516 to 1543. The illustrious family of Montmorency appear as Knights Templar, and Henry the first Duke, was the chief of the Order from 1574 to 1614. At the close of the seventeenth century the Grand Master was James Henry de Duras, a marshal of France, the nephew of Turenne, and one of the most skilful soldiers of Louis XIV. The Grand Master from 1734 to 1776 were three princes of the Royal Bourbon Family. The names and years of power of these Royal personages who acknowledged the dignity of the Order of the Temple were Louis Augustus Bourbon, Duke of Maine, 1724-1737; Louis Henry Bourbon Conde, 1737-1741; and Louis Francis Bourbon, Conty 1741-1749. The successor of these princes in the Grand Mastership of the Temple was Louis Hercules Timolean, Duke de Cossi Brissac, the descendant of an ancient family long celebrated in French history for its loyalty and gallant bearing. He accepted the office in 1776 and sustained it till he died in the cause of royalty, at the beginning of the French Revolution. The Order has now its Grand Master, Bernardus Raymundus Fabre Palaprat, and there are colleges in England and in many of the chief cities in Europe."

Thus the very ancient and sovereign Order of the Temple is now in full and chivalric existence, like those orders of knighthood which were either formed in imitation of it, or had their origin in the same noble principles of chivalry.

It has mourned as well as flourished, but there is in its nature and constitution a principle of vitality which has carried it through all the storms of life.

Its continuance, by representatives, as well as by title, is an indisputable fact as the existence of any other chivalric fraternity. The Templars of these days claim no titular rank, yet their station is so far identified with that of the other orders of knighthood that they assert equal purity of descent from the same bright source of chivalry. Nor is it possible to impugn the legitimate claims to honorable estimation, which the modern brethren of the Temple derive from the antiquity and pristine lustre of their Order, without at the same time shaking to its centre the whole venerable fabric of knightly honour."

Mackay, in his "Lexicon of Masonry," quotes this statement, and gives a list of the Grand Masters of the Order down to the present day.

Lawrie, in his History of Freemasonry in Scotland, gives the charter of transmission in full.

This charter has been declared to be a clever forgery from beginning to end, and of which all the members have been dupes, but Bro. Woof very justly remarks in his valuable little work on the Order,* that though it is advanced in support of the allegation that Bertrand du Guesclin signed his name to the charter as Grand Master, when history says he could not write; yet this of itself would not be sufficient to prove it a forgery. Moreover, it appears from Bro. Woof's account, that Guesclin's name is signed with a cross on the charter, and some of the signatures have been identified, notably that of the Duc de Duras, in 1681.

A portion of the charter of Mark Larmenius, who succeeded Jaques de Molay as Grand Master, translated from the original Latin, runs as follows:

"Lastly, with the decree of the Grand Convent of the brethren, by my supreme authority, I will declare and decree the Scotch Templars deserters of the Order, cast off with an anathema, they and their brethren of St. John of Jerusalem, despoilers of the dominions of the militia to whom may God show mercy without the pale of the Temple, now and for ever.

*A sketch of the Knights Templar and the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, with notes on Masonic Knights Templar, by Richard Woof, F.S.A.

*Before receiving the vow of profession, which is still administered to all chevaliers, the candidates makes a solemn declaration, either that he does not belong to the Order of Malta, or that he abjures the spirit of rival hostility which actuated the Knights of St. John in former days against the Templars.

To be continued.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

Reviews.

The Old Charges of English Freemasons. By WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN, with a Preface by the Rev. A. F. A. WOODFORD, M.A.

For some time past we have hailed, with heartfelt pleasure, a growing tendency in our excellent Order, carefully to consider, and criticisingly to study, those traditions and legends which form so striking, and in some respects, so peculiar a feature in its existence and history—

Like the poet, we are tempted to say, to many pseudo-critics now-a-days, of Masonic history generally

Spare the legend for its beauty
Carp not, what is it to you?
If the letter is a fable
In its spirit it is true?

Not that we at all wish to imply that we deem the Masonic Legend a fable in any sense, but only that their words seem to contain a truth, which we shall all do well to bear in mind.

As a general rule, it is to be feared, that we English Masons content ourselves with the now time-honoured records of the Craft, contained in the earlier works of our brethren, J. Anderson and W. Preston, and the later productions of Bro. Laurie and Bro. Dr. Oliver.

Beyond their range of investigation and of research, many worthy brethren seem to dislike to stray, believing apparently, that if we do so, we are wandering into some "terra incognita" altogether, and that in this respect, as in many others in this world, the good old adage is still, on the whole, both true and trustworthy, which bids us "quieta non movere."

But several influences have combined to render any such stationary views almost untenable at the present day, and to open out before us, on the contrary, a wide and progressive field of inquiry and investigation. There has been, for instance, that Germanic Masonic movement, which has been going on practically ever since the end of the last century, and which has culminated, so to say, in the very interesting and admirable history of German Freemasonry, regard being also had to its history in general, recently put forth by our learned brother, J. Findel, and which has been already translated into English, for our brethren in this country.

It is not too much really, to say, that we owe to a great extent, to our German brethren, and not the least to Bro. J. Findel, the great impetus, and the clear direction, which have been given to a more accurate and critical examination of our Masonic annals, and of our Masonic archaeology.

Much attention has also lately been paid to the antiquities and claims of what are termed, sometimes, the Chivalric Orders in Freemasonry, and Bro. Leeson, and Bro. Yarker, have both contributed more than one interesting paper and able essay on the subject. They both, if we understand their views aright, build up the whole fabric of Freemasonry, or some mystic Order or Rosicrucian Confraternity, and though we cannot pause now, to point out the utter helplessness of any such theories, on any safe grounds of authentic history, as it seems to us, yet we can, as Freemasons, anxious for inquiry, and always ready to hear both sides, gladly welcome all such contributions to the common store of Masonic Archaeology generally. And happily too, of late years, our Craft history has been more carefully sifted and studied, than of yore, and very praiseworthy efforts have been made to give a more intellectual tone to our literature and discussions on the subject.

Curiously enough, a non-mason, Mr. J. O. Halliwell, may be said to have led the way, some years ago, by the publication of that very interesting Masonic poem, of the latter part of the fourteenth century, among the King's MSS. in the British Museum, and our Bro., M. Cooke, published also some few years back, the earliest prose "Constitution," among the additional MS. in the same great repository of national literature, and which has ever seemed to us quite a landmark, if we may use the word, in our Masonic investigations.

Bro. W. J. Hughan, to whom our Craft is greatly indebted, for his untiring energy, has contributed more than one most interesting Constitution, from time to time, and printed each, separately or conjointly with others, for the use of the brethren, while Bro. D. Murray Lyon, Bro. J. Mackay in America, as well as anonymous correspondents like "Lupus," "A Masonic Student," &c., have called the attention of the brethren repeatedly of late years, to many subjects of interest and importance. Nor can we forget Bro. W. P. Buchan, who has upheld his favourite theory, and vindicated his peculiar explanation of our Masonic history, with his wonted earnestness and tenacity, and let us say, in all fraternal friendship, sometimes with a little more zeal than discretion. All these, and in some respects, opposing influences have compelled us, as it were, to reopen the whole question of Masonic history, and to endeavour to substantiate the claims we have put forward, and the statement that all were in the habit of making as Freemasons.

This has entailed a great deal of controversy, because, as a general rule, we are in the habit of relying with comfortable complacency or tranquil indifference, on the assertion and opinions of our earlier writers.

Our German brethren, with that closeness of historical research, and that patient investigation so peculiar to themselves, have for a long time subjected all Masonic documents, and historical Legends, and antiquarian claims, to the crucible, so to say, of a calm and careful criticism.

And thus, as these investigations have proceeded, we have found it necessary to see, whether some of our anachronisms might not be corrected, some of our conflicting statements might not be reconciled, and some of the occasional errata of our traditionary legends, might not be removed, which the lapse of time or unavoidable mistakes have occasioned, so that, no longer upholding what a modern writer has termed too hastily, "the fables of the Freemasons," we can, at any rate, offer to the Craft, and to the world, a reasonable and trustworthy history of our world-wide association, whose continuance and preservation in the world, constitute in themselves one of the most marvellous facts in the annals and progress of mankind.

But in order to arrive at such a consummation, so devoutly to be wished for by all lovers of our good old Craft, we naturally require both evidences and authorities, which can meet alike the most searching criticism, and the most accurate investigation. And in these two points, some of our Masonic writers appear to us somewhat at times to be deficient.

They often do, as it seems to us, what a learned judge once said of a barrister, pleading before him, "You assume the point, and then argue upon it, and in both you are wrong."

We have often ourselves, for instance, favourite views and preconceived theories to uphold, and we accordingly try to square facts to our own theories, or make the evidence dovetail in with our own views.

Hence, it has been considered, and we think both wisely and seasonably, that the best and safest way is, to use a military term, as it were, to "break ground" afresh, and following a metaphor, derived from the same fine profession, to make our "advances" and "covered ways," and "connecting parallels," before the great fortress of historic truth, and by careful compilation and collation of all known and existing sources of evidence and information, manuscript or printed, to collect data, reliable in themselves, and on which, like the "faithful sojourners," we can build up a lasting fabric on sure and safe foundations.

But to do this thoroughly, necessarily, of course, will and must entail much studious comparison of available documents, both untiring research and honest criticism, and above all, should ever be marked by a scrupulous regard for Truth quâ Truth, as without this last and abiding characteristic of our enquiries, they never can really tend to any good purpose, or satisfactory conclusion.

If we go to work in this spirit, we may, without much difficulty, as it appears to us, prove to our many opponents and satisfy ourselves, that our Masonic history is after all, not only in the main authentic, but, that, there is in it much, not only calculated to interest our own Craft but those who are not Masons.

Now, we do not mean to say for one moment, that our greater historians like Anderson, or Preston, or Lawrie, or Oliver, or writers like Mackay, and others, have ever intentionally sought to deceive us, or have in truth fallen into errors of any serious importance, but what we would wish to convey to the minds of our readers is, that, we have now MS. authorities to refer to, which were apparently unknown to them, and that sources of information are open to us, from which they were unfortunately debarred.

With the view, then, of laying the basis, as it were, of still further publications of a similarly interesting kind, and of paving the way for other and later archaeological contributions, Bro. W. J. Hughan has thought well to publish a collection of the Masonic MS Constitutions, many of which, hitherto, have never been yet in print, or at any rate only in part.

The preface of Bro. Woodford gives us a succinct account of the general history of the Masonic Constitutions, and the claims to antiquity and authority of the individual MSS, while Bro. Hughan's able Post-Preface supplies us with a very interesting resumé of the special history of each particular MS.

Bro. Hughan has, in this present volume, printed eleven constitutions, including Krause's tripartite Constitution, about which so much controversy has arisen.

Of the constitutions now published, some are very interesting, not only on account of the associations attaching to them, but of several very important facts which they serve to illustrate and explain.

No attempt has, however, been made in the present volume, as time would not permit, to arrive at any conclusion, from their careful collation but that is, no doubt, left to a later work.

There are, it seems, as Bro. Woodford tells us, and as Bro. Hughan agrees, thirty-five so far known Masonic Constitutions, including the Masonic poem, Bro. M. Cooke's MS, and Bro. Krause's Form!

Most of these, indeed all, are in Great Britain, as the original of Krause's Form "hails," as the Americans say, from this country.

But if from this list we deduct the duplicates, and those which, though alluded to by competent writers, have so far evaded discovery, and one or two which may be considered as made up, we have, in truth, twenty-seven actual MSS Constitutions.

Not that these are all independent MSS., for many are only copies, or that all are of equal value or interest.

Bro. Woodford speaks of all of them, which we will refer to in another opportunity.

The work is so interesting and admirable in every respect, that the Faustades of the Antiquity MS., 1680; York MS., No. 4, 1692; the York MS., No. 2, 1704.

The whole arrangement and compilation of the publication is in the great credit on our Bro. W. J. Hughan, and still, we feel sure, be alike appreciated and supported by the Craft.

Had I had the time, I might have been able to obtain a copy or a book of reference, and we are glad to hear that the best impression is nearly exhausted.

We can only conclude this somewhat lengthy notice of Bro. Hughan's valuable work, with the expression of the hope, that we may have to welcome the long, laborious and laborious production all testifying to the increasing interest amongst ourselves in such useful and important works as these.

Thus we shall best evidence to ourselves, and to the world, that our Order is not only increasing in numbers year by year, but also in that intellectual appreciation and earnest study of our history and antiquities, which can alone render us adequately sensible of its real position and wonderful progress in the world!

This higher view both of our annals and our antiquities, seems to be characteristic of the age in which we live, as regards society generally, and the study of archaeology particularly, and as it appears to us, should ever distinguish a body of men like ourselves, who prize Truth above all things, and who naturally wish to possess, in these doubting and questioning days, an authentic history and trustworthy annals of our venerable and valuable brotherhood.

GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTERS.

Freemasons' Hall, Cooper-street, Manchester, will be quoted hereafter for the proceedings of Wednesday last. The Rose and Thistle, or the Mark Masons of Scotland and England, are henceforth united, and the Lodge of Reconciliation which has just been celebrated marks a fusion which it has taken years of patient toil to bring about. It is difficult to overrate the importance of this without seeming grandiloquent to outsiders; but Freemasonry in Lancashire is a living force. The Provincial Grand Master here, Brother Romaine Callender, has, by virtue of his position, substantial power; and nothing could prove this more unmistakably than the gathering from all parts of the United Kingdom which has been brought together at the summons of the Grand Master of Mark Masons. The Rev. Raymond Portal was among those who accepted the invitation; and among those who were present from first to last were—Lord Leigh, Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P., the Earl of Limerick, Lord Skelmersdale, the Earl Bective, Sir Frederick Williams, M.P., Colonel Burdett, and a long list of Grand Officers, whose names are more or less known to the general public. Let it be noted that the proceedings commenced at noon, and continued almost without a break until twelve at night, and it will be understood that the 200 Freemasons engaged in them (several of whom had travelled 300 miles to be present) were thoroughly in earnest.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Lancashire was opened punctually at 1 p.m., when the English Mark Masons composing it transacted the business of their province under the presidency of Bro. Romaine Callender. Half an hour later the Lancashire Mark Masons, who have been until to day under the jurisdiction of the Grand Chapter of Scotland, opened their Grand Lodge for the last time in Lancashire. Then followed the real business of the day, the business which had called so many men together from distant parts. The Grand Master of Mark Masons took the chair, the articles of union between the two sets of Masons were read, and their fusion under one head, and with one code of constitutional regulations, formally agreed to and adopted by the consenting parties. Bro. Romaine Callender was re-installed as Grand Master of the United Province. Lord Skelmersdale was appointed his deputy, and the other offices were regularly filled. Lord Skelmersdale addressed the brethren upon the duties he had undertaken as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and pledges were entered into by Bro. Portal and Bro. Callender to the same purport. It would be unseemly to enter into details. The meeting has been of public importance by reason of the position and earnestness of those taking part in it, and it is enough to say that the purely Mark-Masonic business lasted till after four o'clock, and the greatest satisfaction was expressed by all who took part in it.

The Masonic Hall in Cooper-street was erected a few years ago by the Freemasons of Lancashire, and consists of many chambers and accommodation for the Masonic Club, which is in full working order here. It was in one of its many spacious rooms that the banquet was held, and I only wish that all those who, like myself, are weary of the dreary repetition which are all but inseparable from public dinners in England, could have been present to hear what can be said and done by men thoroughly in earnest, who believe themselves to have accomplished a great work. Whatever the typical Lancashire man takes in hand he pursues his whole heart in, and prosecutes with his whole strength. In the portion of the country which is for convenience sake called East Lancashire, there are 76 Craft lodges, giving a result of some thousands of Freemasons. Bro. Romaine Callender is one of the constitutional chiefs of all these, and it was easy to see that his rule is popular. Where there was much oratory of an exceptionally high character, it would be invidious to single out particular speeches for praise. The chief speakers were Bro. Callender, who presided, Bro. Portal, who as Mark Grand Master gave eloquent testimony to the rapid progress and enduring influence of the degree; and Bro. J. R. Stobbing, who, in proposing the Provincial Grand Masters of the Mark Degree in England diverged into a review of Freemasonry in England, which was remarkable for its eloquence, no less than for its evidence of antiquarian research. Bro. J. C. Parkinson, to whom was entrusted the toast of the Past Grand Mark Masters of England, traced in the persons of the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Holmesdale, W. B. Beach, M.P., the Earl of Limerick, and Lord Leigh, the indissoluble connection between the reorganized leaders of the Mark Degree and Craft Masonry.

THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND

As an addenda to page 595 of the "Freemason" we append the following.

Motions regarding the Grand Master's Scheme for liquidating the debt of Grand Lodge, to be considered at the Quarterly Communication on 4th November, 1872.

1. Moved by The Right Hon. The Earl of Rosslyn M. W. Grand Master Mason of Scotland, and seconded by Brother William Mann, Past Senior Grand Warden.

The motion anent a project for reducing debt &c., having been unanimously carried, it is moved.

"That all Lodges, holding of this Grand Lodge shall pass a Bye-Law exacting from each of their Members an annual payment as a test of Membership.

"That this payment in no case be less 2d. per month, or 2s. per annum, and that this sum be collected quarterly by the Treasurer of each Lodge, and paid over by him, with a detailed list of Members contributing, to the Provincial Grand Secretary, who will remit the same to Grand Lodge. Should the test of Membership imposed by an individual Lodge exceed the sum specified, the balance may be appropriated by the Lodge itself, and from and after the passing of this bye-law, only those Members who have contributed their test of Membership can have power to vote or take part in any business of the Lodge."

2. Moved by Brother William J. Cranfield Abbott, R.W.M., No. 1, and seconded by Major Ramsay, V.W. Junior Grand Deacon.

"That Grand Lodge Laws, Chap. XXI. Sec. VI., be altered by adding after the word 'a Warden,' in twelfth line of said Section, the following:—

"And that each Candidate so passed or raised shall pay to the Treasurer of the Lodge an additional fee of 10s. 6d. for each degree given within the prescribed time of two weeks, one half of said additional fee to be paid over to the Grand Lodge, and one half retained by the daughter Lodge."

"That each daughter Lodge pass a corresponding bye-law immediately after passing of the above."

3. Moved by Brother L. Mackersy, Representative Grand Lodge of Canada, and seconded by Brother W. Hay, Fr. M., 36.

"That with the view of carrying out the resolutions adopted by Grand Lodge at last Quarterly Communication, and for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the Grand Lodge, providing additional charity funds, and bringing the Grand Lodge still more in harmony with the Sister Grand Lodges of England and Ireland, it be enacted and declared—

1. That the members of all subordinate Lodges shall be divided into two classes, viz.:—Honorary and Subscribing Members.

2. That Honorary Members may attend all meetings of the Lodges to which they belong, but shall have no right to speak or vote therein or to become members of Grand Lodge, or to derive any benefit from the charity funds of the Order.

3. That the Subscribing Members shall pay to the Grand Lodge of Scotland 2s. per annum, to be collected quarterly, such payments to be collected by the Treasurer or Secretary of the Lodge, and transmitted to the Grand Secretary.

4. That the names of all Subscribing Members shall be entered by the Grand Secretary in an appropriate register to be kept for the purpose, and any Brother leaving Scotland shall, if all his dues be paid up, be entitled to a certificate to that effect from the Grand Secretary, and upon getting such certificate, the payment of dues shall cease until the brother receiving it join another Lodge.

5. That nothing herein contained shall prevent any Lodge laying on a private assessment for its own purposes.

5. That these regulations shall come into operation on the 27th of December, 1872.

4. Moved by Brother Alex. Hay, Grand Jeweller, seconded by Brother Officer, Pr. M. No 11, and Senior Grand Deacon.

"That with a view to the extinction of the debt of Grand Lodge, and the application of its surplus revenues to charitable purposes, the Fee payable to Grand Lodge for each Diploma shall hereafter be five shillings; and that each daughter Lodge shall hereafter annually pay, on the 24th day of June, to Grand Lodge, the sum of One Pound sterling; that these sums shall be collected by the Grand Secretary, and under deduction of the actual expense of the Diplomas, shall be deposited in Bank, in an Account to be kept in name of Trustees, of whom two shall be nominated by each Provincial Grand Lodge, at home and abroad, and two by the Grand Committee, with the Substitute Grand Master for the time being, as an ex officio Member and Chairman of the said Board of Trustees;—that the said Trustees shall annually apply the sums so deposited in extinction of the debt of Grand Lodge; that on the total extinction of said debt, or in the discretion of Grand Lodge on its partial extinction, the surplus revenues of Grand Lodge shall be applied to charitable uses by the Grand Committee and the said Provincial Grand Lodges, in sums proportional to the Intrans annually recorded by the Lodges within their respective districts.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

At the General Committee of the Freemasons' Girls' School, held on Thursday, at Freemasons' Hall, Major Creton in the chair, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, one of the Vice-Presidents of the institution, made inquiry into the state of health of Bro. E. H. Patten, its Secretary, and as to the probability or the reverse of his being able to resume his duties. Attention was drawn to the fact that Bro. Patten was smitten with paralysis in January last, and that he is considerably over seventy years of age; and the necessity for declaring the office vacant, and of appointing a successor was strongly urged. Mr. Parkinson expressed the deep sense of obligation with which the supporters and authorities of the institution regarded the faithful and zealous services of Bro. Patten, and expressed an earnest wish that the latter gentleman should have granted to him a pension equal in amount to his full salary, as well as a most liberal compensation for the other emoluments pertaining to his official position. But the Freemasons' Girls' School had now been practically without a Secretary for nine months, and a strong feeling was entertained that its interest would suffer unless the duties of the post were discharged actively, and without further delay. The period of the year is now at hand when it is customary for the representatives of the Masonic charities to pay official visits to urge the claims of their respective institutions upon the craft; and the energy and ability with which, as the committee knew, the interests of the Boys' School would be advocated, made it incumbent that the sister institution should not suffer by contrast. After a brief discussion, it was agreed unanimously that the certificate of Bro. Patten's medical attendant should be obtained at once; and that, if it be found necessary, immediate steps shall be taken for securing a liberal pension, and for appointing a new Secretary to the Freemasons' Girls' School.

As the above paragraph has already caused several candidates to appear in the field, we may state that, in the event of a vacancy being declared, Bro. R. Wentworth Little, of the Grand Secretary's office, will be a candidate for the Secretaryship of the Girls' School.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a judicious application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

BOMBAY MASONIC CHARITY FUND.

The following rules of the above fund offer suggestive hints to the founders of similar Institutions in this country:—

RULES

The relief of destitute Freemasons and the education of children of poor and distressed Freemasons, and to contribute its aid towards any act of benevolence and charity.

In conformity with the above objects this Society was instituted 1st January, 1872, and is called "Bombay Masonic Association," registered under Act XXI of 1860.

The Fund is under the patronage of the District Grand Lodge, Bombay Council 30th Degree of the Antient and Accepted Rite, Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, Provincial Grand Conclave Masonic Knights Templar, and Provincial Grand Council of Red Cross of Rome and Constantine.

A Council of six Directors is elected from the subscribers at large, who retire annually at the General Meeting, but are eligible for re-election. The election to each is made by means of printed voting lists, which are to be circulated to each subscriber in the Presidency of Bombay, at least one month before the General Meeting, and the votes shall be scrutinised, and the result declared at such Annual Meeting.

The heads of the ruling bodies of Freemasonry in this Presidency shall be ex-officio Directors.

Any Director quitting Bombay shall ipso facto cease to be a Director from the date of such departure.

Meetings of the Directors will be held quarterly, or from time to time, as needed, on the requisition of any two Directors. The Meeting is competent if two members be present.

The Directors are competent to fill up the vacancies which arise during the year until the Annual Meeting.

Benefactors to the amount of 50 rupees or monthly subscribers of 20 rupees are qualified to vote at any General Meeting of the Fund.

The report delivered at the Annual Meeting is published for the use of subscribers.

No General Meeting of the subscribers can act unless ten members be present.

The capital stock of the charity is lodged in the Bank of Bombay.

Within ten days after a meeting of Directors the proceedings should be circulated for the information of those Directors who could not attend.

All applications for relief shall be circulated for the information and opinion of the Directors, and the Directors shall meet, if necessary, for their disposal.

Temporary relief shall be granted at the discretion of the Directors to such applicants as may seem to them proper objects of Masonic charity, not exceeding 100 Rupees, unless specially sanctioned by the President of the Board of Directors.

Parties relieved under the foregoing Rule shall not receive any further assistance from the Fund until after the lapse of a year from the last relief being granted.

Permanent pensions shall be regulated according to the state of the Fund and the circumstances of the applicants.

To entitle a brother or his family to permanent relief, the former must have been a contributing member to some warranted Lodge, Chapter, Encampment, or Conclave in this District for the space of at least two years immediately preceding the date of application, or date of death, as the case may be; unless it shall appear that he had left his Lodge, Chapter, Encampment, or Conclave from necessity, or there are other circumstances to justify a departure from this rule.

The Directors shall be at liberty to reject any application for relief without assigning any reason.

Relief shall be given in no case unless satisfactory proofs be afforded of worth and merit, and parties enjoying the benefits of the Fund shall forfeit the same for misconduct proved to the satisfaction of the directors.

The cases of Pensioners shall be reviewed periodically, and allowances shall cease, or be reduced, at the discretion of the Directors.

All surplus Funds at the close of the year, after reserving a sufficient sum for emergent expenses, shall be invested in Government Paper, at the discretion of the Directors.

The Accounts, Correspondence, and Proceedings of the Fund shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Subscribers.

A Report of the Accounts and Management of the Fund shall be submitted to all the District Grand Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, or Conclaves, at each of its Regular Communications.

The funds of the Association are to be devoted partly to the board and education of children.

In all cases when the Association defrays the school expenses of a child, whether part or whole, periodical certificate of character shall be required and when such certificates are unsatisfactory, it shall be the duty of the Directors to enquire into the subject, and, if necessary, withdraw the allowance or remove the child.

A general meeting of subscribers is held twice in the year, viz., on the first Wednesday in the months of June and December, at the Freemasons' Hall, Mazagon, at 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Committee may at any time convene an extraordinary meeting of Subscribers.

It shall be compulsory upon the Committee to call an Extraordinary Meeting upon a requisition signed by a least ten Subscribers of Rs. 50 each.

The business shall be stated in the requisition, and no other shall be entered upon at the same meeting.

In all cases of Extraordinary Meetings, whether convened as provided for in Art. 25 or in Art. 26, a week's notice shall be given to all Subscribers, and the business to be transacted shall be stated.

Proxy papers require to be stamped with a one-anna stamp, and are valid only for the meeting specified above, or for any adjournment thereof. Special Proxy papers can only be given under power of attorney, and require a stamp of Rs. 4.

Major-General Sir James E. Alexander, K.C.B., of Westerton, Provincial Grand Master for Stirlingshire, has agreed to lay the Foundation-Stone of the New Municipal Buildings of the Burgh of Alloa, on Thursday, the 17th October, at Half-past One o'clock. The Provincial Grand Lodge will assemble in the Lodge Room, Royal Oak Hotel, at twelve noon. The lodges will form into procession, at half-past twelve p.m. A banquet will take place in the Corn Exchange, at half-past three.

A Council of the Illustrious Knights K.H. 30° will be holden at the Masonic Hall, Golden Square, on Wednesday 9th inst., when a large number of candidates, many of whom are distinguished Masons, will be admitted and installed as Grand Elected Knights K.H.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE, ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND; The Knights Companions of the R.S.Y.C.S. are to meet in Council at the Provincial Grand Lodge, 10th inst., at Golden Square, when several candidates are to be admitted to the Ancient Order of Robert the Bruce.

Bro. Seymour Smith, Organist 742, announces his Annual Benefit Concert to take place at the Camberwell Hall, Grove Terrace, Camberwell, on Monday, 7th inst. when he will be assisted by several eminent artists.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Culpable Negligence.—At certain seasons, when the very air seems foul with pestilence and the water provokes disease, it becomes the paramount duty of all invalids to keep themselves and their families in full health and vigour. No wound or sore should now be permitted to run its destructive course, no skin disease should be allowed to depress the nervous system, when all such predisposing causes of danger may be effectually removed by this healing ointment and these purifying pills, without enervating or irritating the constitution. Everybody must in his own person fight the battle for health, and he will surely be victorious who when illness shows itself, handles Holloway's weapons conformably to their instructions.—ADVT.

"For a year and a half I suffered so much with rheumatism in my arm as to deprive me of all rest, and as I could get no relief from the faculty, my daughter persuaded me to try your Pain Killer. The first bottle convinced me that it would restore the use of my paralysed arm, as well as relieve the pain, and before I had finished the second I had got the cure I had so long sought in vain.—ELIZA MARKS, Milkham, Oct. 1868.—To Perry Davis & Son, Lowell, V.C."

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

ESQUIER.—The meeting of the Spurious Rite of Memphis (now re-named Ancient and Primitive Rite), to be held on the 8th inst., is decidedly illegal, inasmuch as its promoters have presumed to call the brethren together in Craft clothing. No assemblage of Masons, attired as such, can be held, without the sanction of the Grand Master or his Deputy. After this repeated warning to avoid the "unclean thing," brethren will have themselves to thank, if they get into trouble.

Press of matter compels us reluctantly to hold over the following Reports:—Lodges, 1398, 699; Consecration of Knol Lodge, 1414, Sevenoaks; Consecration of West Lancashire Lodge, 1403, at Ormskirk; Provincial Grand Lodge of Aberdeenshire East; Chapter 73, S.C; Mark Lodges, 19, 70; Albert K.T. Encampment.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

BIRTH.

MACNAIR—At 11, West Nile-st., Glasgow, on the 27th ult., the wife of J. B. Macnair, Artist, R.W.M. Union, No. 332, of a son.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

CHARLES XV. KING OF SWEDEN AND NORWAY.

Our readers would share, no doubt, with the European public the surprise which was expressed at the intelligence which the telegraph flashed across to us that His Majesty of Sweden was no more. Our brother the King of Sweden died about nine o'clock on Wednesday the 18th ult., at Malmo, on his return from the baths at Aix-la-Chapelle. Charles XV of Sweden was born on the 3rd May 1826. He was the son of King Oscar, and grandson of Napoleon's famous General Bernadotte, who was elected to succeed Charles XIII. as King of Sweden and Norway.

The late King was a warm supporter of Masonry in his dominions. He was the Masonic Sponsor of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in 1869 when our illustrious brother first "saw the light", at Stockholm, when he was introduced by the King himself in person.

At that time much dissatisfaction was expressed that the Prince of Wales did not honour English Masonry, by being proposed and initiated in this country, but after all, as was shown at the time, many of the Royal personages who joined the Order, did so abroad, and not in England. Charles II was initiated in Flanders, the Duke of Cumberland, who was elected G.M. in 1782, as, we believe, initiated abroad. On the other hand the Duke of Clarence was initiated at Plymouth in 1786, George the 4th, then Prince of Wales was initiated in London at an occasional lodge held at the Star and Garter, Pall Mall, in 1787, where also the Duke of York was initiated. The Duke of Kent became a Mason at the Union Lodge, at Geneva, either in 1789 or 1790, and soon afterwards the Duke of Sussex was introduced into Masonry at a lodge in Berlin.

The Kings of Sweden have long been supporters of Masonry. Gustavus the Fourth, we learn from Preston was initiated into the Order at the Grand Lodge of Stockholm, on the 22nd March, 1793, under the auspices of Charles Duke of Sudermania, afterwards Charles XIII Regent of the Kingdom, who presided as Grand Master on the occasion.

This unfortunate but gallant Prince was the son of Gustavus the Third and grandson of Adolphus Frederic II. and Louisa Ulrica, sister of Frederick the Great (who was Grand Master in Germany and the presumed head of the A. and A. Rite.) On the assassination of his father, in 1792 he ascended the throne. When the Duke of Enghien was so unjustifiably seized, and, after a mock trial, shot by the orders of Napoleon, Gustavus resolved upon an eternal hostility to the French Emperor. He ordered his ambassador to leave Paris, and dismissed the French ambassador from Sweden, while at the same time he returned to the King of Prussia the Order of the Black Eagle, with which Napoleon had been invested, nobly saying, "that he never could, according to the laws of Knighthood, consent to be brother companion to an assassin." After this he continued to join every party opposed to, and to wage war with every party in alliance with, the Emperor. His hostile proceedings, however, became at last so fraught with danger to his country, that a Council of State entreated him to make peace.

This he refused to do; a revolution in Sweden was the consequence; Gustavus was imprisoned, and afterward abdicated. His uncle, the Duke of Sudermania, who had initiated him into Masonry, was then raised to the throne, by the title of Charles XIII., and Christian Augustus of Holstein Augustenburg was invested with the title of Prince Royal of Sweden, or heir apparent to the throne. This Prince dying soon after, the the succession was transferred to Marshal Bernadotte, who, in 1818, ascended the throne, as Charles John XIV. After his abdication, Gustavus was for years known as a mere wanderer over Europe, sometimes bearing the name of Count Gottorp, sometimes that of Duke of Holstein. His latter years were spent in poverty, his small annuity being less than £100. From his relations and friends he would receive nothing, and his son, Prince Gustavus Vasa, a general in the Austrian service, naturally desirous of mending his father's position, and rendering it less miserable, was compelled to adopt various devices to assist him. Bro. Gustavson, for by that humble name he was often known, the descendant of the great Gustavus Vasa (who reigned gloriously for nearly 40 years, and died in 1560), and even greater Gustavus Adolphus, who twice defeated Tilly, and led an army of 60,000 men into Germany, for the noble purpose of rescuing the Protestants from the tyranny of the House of Austria,—not to mention the renowned Charles XII. Bro. Gustavson died in abject poverty, in 1837.

His successor, Charles XIII., was a great patron of the Freemasons, and so greatly did he esteem them, that he instituted an Order of knighthood which bore his name, and which was to be conferred only on distinguished Masons.

Frequent mention has been made of this Order, and much interest now attaches to it, because the late King conferred it upon the Prince of Wales.

How different was his career and that of his grandfather, the great Bernadotte, to that of the unfortunate Prince, whose life we have just sketched. Bernsdotte himself was the son of a lawyer, and enlisted as a private in the Marines. He was only a sergeant when the French Revolution broke out, but in 1792 he had risen to be a colonel in the French army. He greatly distinguished himself on the Rhine, and in Italy, and although Napoleon hated, if he did not fear him, such was his ability, that he was compelled to recognise it, by making him a marshal on the establishment of the Consulate, and afterwards he was created Prince of Ponte Corvo, in 1806.

He was so greatly esteemed, both abroad and at home, as a soldier and statesman, that he was nominated to succeed Charles XIII. on the throne of Sweden.

Napoleon, by that time Emperor, could with difficulty be induced to consent to Bernadotte becoming Crown Prince and heir to the throne.

"What!" said Bernadotte, "will you make me a greater than yourself, by making me refuse a crown?"

The sarcasm told, and Napoleon merely replied, "Go, our fates must be accomplished."

From the moment that he became Crown Prince of Sweden, the fortunate soldier showed a determination to give all his energies to his adopted country, and never, during half a century before his accession, had Sweden known the peace or the prosperity in which he left her, in the hands of his son Oscar, in the year 1844.

The late King was born on the 3rd May, 1826, and was married on the 19th June, 1850, to the Princess of Orange, daughter of the Prince of the Netherlands. She died about a year and a half ago, leaving only one child, a daughter, who was born in October, 1851, and was married in July, 1869, to the Prince Royal of Denmark. She, however, is excluded from the throne by the Salic law which prevails in Sweden. The late King came to the throne on the death of his father, Oscar, in July, 1859, and he and the Queen were crowned at Drontheim, early in August of that year. Among the principal events of his reign, are the reform of the national representation of Sweden, in 1866, the abolition of capital punishment in 1868; and the suppression, in 1869, of the forum privilegiatum by virtue of which the nobles could be summoned, in certain cases only, before the Superior Courts, and not before the Courts of First Instance. He will be succeeded by his brother, Prince Oscar, who was born in January, 1829. Prince Oscar inherits the literary capacity by which his family have been distinguished, and has written various prose and poetical works, indicating considerable power, and high culture.

The late King occupied the position of Master of the Order in Sweden, while Prince Oscar, Duke of Ostro-Gothland, now king, is Grand Master. Charles XV. was also a honorary member of the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

As a sovereign, a man, and a brother, he was revered, esteemed, and beloved; and we can only express a fervent hope that the same prosperity which Sweden enjoyed in his reign, may yet continue during that of his worthy successor.

Our contemporary, the Daily News thus alludes to the late Monarch. If the world had been told a week ago that death was about to render vacant one of the Thrones of Europe, few would have thought of turning to Sweden. The death of Charles XV. is a misfortune to his country. He was an able and enlightened ruler. The vigour, promptitude, and wisdom which raised Napoleon's Field Marshal to the Swedish Crown remained with his successors; and the recent history of Sweden is a history of continual improvement, reform, and skilful guidance. Indeed, since the accession of the most famous of the Bernadottes, in 1818, the world has heard little of Sweden, except in the way of social advancement. Canals have been cut, roads constructed, liberty in religious matters granted, commercial intercourse with foreign nations furthered, and free trade adopted. It is true that when Austria and Prussia, apparently acting as the agent of the bewildered Diet of Frankfort, forcibly occupied the Duchies, Sweden was at once alarmed and indignant, and even made some show of preparing for war. But, very prudently, she kept out of a conflict, which, as it merely preceded the inevitable strife for mastery in Germany between Prussia and Austria concerned her little; and by and by she saw the Diet that had decreed "Federal Execution" laughed to scorn by the two big Powers that had their own affairs to settle. Sweden, indeed, has mixed little in European politics during the past half-century; and when we have heard of the last King it has been more as an amiable, happy and sport-loving Monarch, than as the possible agent in any political complications likely to occur on the Continent. Charles XV., indeed, was a most picturesque Monarch. Belonging to a family equally gifted in physique and in powers of mind, he devoted his serious moments to a useful and prudent oversight of his country's affairs, and his leisure time to the most arduous of out-of-door sports. He had a splendid constitution. He loved every sort of active exercise, whether it was that of hunting the fiercer denizens of the Swedish pine forests, or that of dancing till dawn at a courtly festivity. His energy was untiring, and a handsome, daring, good-humoured Monarch was certain to be popular. With his love of active exercise, he cultivated several accomplishments of a milder nature; and it is but a few months since attention was called to certain pieces of verse which, appearing in a public journal, were generally attributed to him. Indeed, he dabbled in painting as well as in poetry; and, altogether, was as notable a figure as any to be found in our modern circle of Monarchs. It is strange to find such a man, in the prime of health and youth, and with all the results of years of healthful exercise ingrained into his constitution, suddenly snatched away from his place, while such rulers as the Emperor of Germany and President Thiers show no signs of feebleness or fatigue at an age when most men naturally seek repose.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—In consequence of the unanimous wish expressed by vote at the last meeting of the lodge (an emergency), it was resolved to hold an emergency meeting on Thursday, September 26th, at the "White Swan" Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford, and it was duly held. Bro. J. W. Reed, W.M., took the chair, and opened the lodge at a few minutes before six o'clock. During the evening there were present Bros. W. Myatt, S.W.; G. Andrews, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Secretary; S. O. Lewin, S.D.; H. J. Tuson, J.D.; J. J. Pakes, I.G.; R. Harman, D.C.; J. Hawker, P.M.; J. G. Vohmann, H. J. Dawe, W. A. R. Harris, G. Harvey, R. G. J. Harriss, F. R. Hood, L. Lemon, P. C. H. Wilkie, R. Mason, C. Letton, R. Killick, E. C. Kilsby, W. H. Hawkins, J. Woollett, J. Baxter Langley, and many others whose names we were unable to ascertain. The long list of visitors included Bros. J. Lightfoot, P.M., Treasurer 147; G. Chapman, P.M., Sec., 147; A. B. Church, 137; F. F. Allison, 825; J. Hayward, S.D. 946; W. Mock, 1275; T. Pallett, 1306, and others whose names and lodges we did not learn. The ballot for Capt. W. H. Hawkins, as is usual in this lodge, proved unanimous in favour of his admission. Bro. P. C. H. Wilkie, was raised to the third degree. Bros. L. Lemon and R. Mason were passed to the second degree. The event of the evening was the initiation of Dr. John Baxter Langley, which took place in the presence of the largest number of members and visitors who were ever present at any one ceremony, (not excepting even the installations), since the lodge has been in existence, proving beyond all doubt the great popularity of the candidate, also the high estimation he is held by those who know him. It was not generally known, beyond the members of the lodge, that he would be present, or else a much larger attendance of visitor would have taken place. As it was, the attendance made the lodge appear as if it was an installation to take place instead of an initiation. Captain W. H. Hawkins was initiated. The case of the destitute children of a deceased member was taken into consideration, and it was resolved unanimously to recommend their case, and petition to the Lodge of Benevolence for relief, which was immediately done. An important notice of motion was given by a Past Master, which stood over for discussion at the next regular lodge meeting. The lodge was closed, and declared adjourned until the 24th October, to meet at five o'clock, p.m. There not being any banquet, refreshment followed labour. After a few hours, spent in social intercourse, the brethren separated, well pleased with the happy reunion which they all had enjoyed.

LEBANON LODGE.—On Thursday, 19th September, at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion-square, Thames-street, Hampton, this, one of the most prosperous lodges in the Province of Middlesex, held its meeting at the appointed hour, two o'clock, p.m. Brother Frederick Walters, P.M., Secretary, opened the lodge. The W.M., Bro. J. T. Moss, P.G.S.D. Middlesex, being out of town, was unable to be present. There were present Bros. H. A. Dubois, J.W.; S. Wickens, P.M., Treasurer; J. W. Jackson, I.G.; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; E. Hopwood, P.M.; E. Gilbert, W. H. Livett, F. Bouts, R. G. Sprules, F. W. Thompson, F. Moon, J. W. Baldwin, J. Symes, C. F. Payne, J. Richards, J. W. Richardson, J. M. Jackson, R. Lawrence, J. Hayward, C. Bremerkamp, E. H. Thielley, T. Barriskill, G. E. Wood, J. Marsh, and others. The visitors were Bros. J. Triptree, 13; W. Vire, 1310, &c. The minutes of the meeting held on Thursday, August 15th, were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots, taken separately, for Brother John Mackey Jackson, late a member of Mount Lebanon Lodge, as a joining member, and Messrs. Richards and J. Symes, as candidates for initiation, were in each case declared to be unanimously in favour of admission. The long list of work on the agenda paper was begun, by raising Bro. E. Lawrence to the third degree, passing Brothers T. Barriskill, J. W. Richardson, and W. Vine 1310, to the second degree, initiating Mr. James Richards, Brother S. Wickens, P.M. and Treasurer, took the chair, and presided over the meeting for the rest of the day. He passed Brothers J. Marsh, R. G. Sprules, F. Moon, and F. W. Thomson to the second degree. He initiated Mr. J. Symes into the secrets and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The work, as is usual in this young lodge, was well and ably done. The propositions for initiations and joining members, were as large and numerous as usual. One old, respected member of the lodge resigned his membership, which was accepted and with great and deep regret. It was resolved unanimously, that in consequence of there being eleven raisings, eight passings, and over five new names on the list for initiation, that in order to have the proper amount of time, the lodge be summoned to meet at one o'clock on Thursday, October 17th, which will be the next regular lodge meeting. The indefatigable Secretary, Brother F. Walters, P.M., secured the services of one brother as its Steward, for one out of the three Masonic Charity Festivals, to be held in 1873. The lodge was closed. A first-class banquet and dessert followed, Brother R. Lawrence, the host seeing to the comfort of all his guests. The wines were excellent.

CHESHIRE.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

By command of the Right Honourable Lord de Tabley, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of the Province of Cheshire, the Worshipful Masters, Past Masters, Wardens, and brethren connected with the different lodges under his Masonic government were summoned to attend the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, holden at the busy town of Crewe, on Wednesday, the 25th September, for the purpose of transacting the annual business of the Province. A ready and cordial response was given to the command, showing a sincere attachment to the chief Masonic ruler of the Province, who is himself, the embodiment of true Masonic courtesy and zeal, and an earnest desire for the prosperity and progress of the noble Order. The rain poured incessantly from morning till night, but the miserably bleak and blustering weather did not damp the Masonic ardour of the Cheshire brethren, who gathered from all parts of the Province, even the most distant, to support their esteemed R.W.P.G.M. The meeting was held at Town Hall, under the more immediate auspices of the two local lodges, the Four Cardinal Virtues, No. 979; and the Unity, No. 321; each of whom respectively sent 27 and 21 representatives.

The gathering was perhaps one of the most numerous and influential which has been seen for some time, the attendance of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and officers of Craft Lodges being unusually good. Out of the 37 lodges comprised in the important Province, only one, (the Lodge of Loyalty, Mottram, No. 320), failed to send any representative, and the aggregate attendance may be set down at no fewer than 250.

The arrangements for signing the Tyler's books were anything but pleasant or satisfactory, and therefore we can only give an approximate list of the brethren present, obtained after much difficulty and labour. The book was unwisely placed in the vestibule, leading from the street, and here quite a crowd of little folks "looked in at the open door," with open-mouthed astonishment at the shivering brethren, awaiting their turn to sign the book. It would be well if this unpleasantness were avoided at future Provincial Grand Lodge meetings. Moreover, the book was so inconveniently placed, that many brethren did not sign, as they did not care about again facing the cold and stormy weather after going upstairs to the cloak-room. So far as could be ascertained, the following were amongst the past and present Grand Officers of Cheshire, and other provinces, who accompanied the P.G.M.: Bros. Captain Cope, P.G.S.B. of England, and P. Prov. G.S.W. of Cheshire; C. Dutton, P.G.S.W.; Captain C. J. Howard, P.G. J.W.; J. Bland, P.G. Treasurer; E. H. Griffiths, P.G.

Secretary J. Wood, P.G. Registrar; R. Hodgson, P.G. Chaplain; J. T. Lea, P.G. Superintendent of Works; F. Stevenson, P.G. S.B.; Hon. William Egerton, P. Prov. J.G.W.; Major Hitchen, P. Prov. G.S.B.; H. Howard, P. Prov. G.J.D.; T. Smith, P. Prov. G.J.D.; W. Platt, P. Prov. G.J.W.; G. W. Latham, Past G.D. of England; J. Twiss, P. Prov. G.O.; G. A. Fernley, P.G.J.W.; W. J. Bates, P.G.J.D.; T. Wainwright, P.G.S.D.; W. Bulley, P. Prov. G.J.D.; J. Ingham, P.G.S.; T. Platt, P. Prov. J.G.D.; J. Swindels, P.G. Tyler; T. Armstrong, P.G. Treas. West Lancashire; E. Willoughby, P. Prov. J.G.W.; F. Jackson, P.G.D.C., &c.

The brethren of the Craft lodges, ranged in proper numbers began to assemble in the lodge room shortly before 12 o'clock, but it was on the stroke of one before the Provincial Grand Lodge entered and the proceedings commenced. After the P.G.M. had been saluted with the royal sign, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in due form and solemn prayer, offered by the P.G.C.

The P.G. Sec. said the first communication he had to read was a letter of apology for non-attendance from Bro. George Cornwall Legh, R.W.D.P.G.M., who stated that he regretted he unable to be present, in consequence of the illness of Mrs. Cornwall Legh, and also because, as advised by his medical attendant, he feared that the inclement weather might affect his health. Bros. Dr. Crauswick and D. D. Gavin also sent notes of apology for their unavoidable absence.

After calling the muster roll of the lodges within the province, Bro. Griffiths read the minutes of the previous annual Provincial Grand Lodge meeting at Stalybridge; an especial P.G.L. meeting held at the same place on the 13th July last, when Lodge No. 1408 was duly consecrated by Bro. Capt. Cope; and another especial meeting of the P.G.L. on the 3rd of August, at the same place, when the N.E. corner-stone in connection with the extension of St. Paul's Church was solemnly laid. The minutes were unanimously passed. The minutes of a meeting of the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence were also read and confirmed without alteration.

The P.G. Treas. then submitted his annual accounts, and before doing so he thanked the P.G.M. and brethren for their warm expression of sympathy with him in his illness at the last annual Provincial Grand Lodge meeting. He was glad to inform the brethren of the province that affairs were progressing very satisfactorily, showing a good balance in their favour. The accounts had been carefully examined by three brethren belonging to Lodges Nos. 1166, 295, and 477. The balance to the credit of the Fund of Benevolence amounted to £1276 1s. 4½d., of which £1200 was invested. The balance of the P.G.L. amounted to £261 4s. 3d. Since their last meeting two bonds had run out, and in consequence of the death of Bro. Smith it was necessary to appoint a new trustee. The vacancy had been filled in a very satisfactory manner. The transfer of the other bond was not yet completed, but this would doubtless be carried out also in a way which would be an honour to the Craft. The accounts were passed by acclamation.

The P.G.M. said at their last meeting he expressed his feeling of confidence that when he submitted the name of Bro. Bland for re-election to the important office of P.G. Treas. it would receive the cordial assent of the brethren. They then also expressed their most sincere hopes that they would see him soon amongst them again in improved health. Thanks to the G.A.O.T.U. they had him once more in their midst with a satisfactory statement of accounts, and ready to give all necessary help in the sacred cause of charity. He moved that Bro. Bland be re-elected P.G. Treasurer, and was certain the proposition would meet with the unanimous approval of the the brethren. (Applause.)

The motion was seconded by Bro. C. Dutton, P.G.S.W., and carried by acclamation.

The P.G.M.: Bro. Bland, you have fulfilled your duties at great sacrifice of time, personal inconvenience, and risk to your health, but I hope to see you in the position to which you have been unanimously re-elected for many years to come.

The Prov. Grand Master then invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—
G. Cornwall Legh, M.P.,... D. Prov.G. Master.
C. Dutton, Prov.G.S.W.
Capt. C. J. Howard Prov.G.J.W.
Rev. R. Hodgson, Prov.G. Chaplain.
J. Wood, Prov.G. Registrar.
J. Bland, Prov.G. Treasurer.
E. H. Griffiths, Prov.G. Secretary.
J. Beresford, Prov.G.S.D.
E. Friend, Prov.G.J.D.
G. Whale, Prov.G.S. of W.
F. Jackson, Prov.G.D. of C.
T. Bowers, Prov.G.A.D.C.
J. Tomlinson, Prov.G. Swd. B.
T. H. Kirk, Prov.G. Organist.
S. Gilbert, Prov.G. Pursuivant.
J. Swindells, Prov.G. Tyler.
H. A. Irwin, Prov.G. Steward.
J. Martin, " " "
J. W. M'Gill, " " "
J. Blackhurst, " " "
S. Heath, " " "
G. Watson, " " "

The P.G.M. said they all owed a very great debt of gratitude to the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence, and the result of their labours had hitherto been of the most satisfactory character, they all knew how very efficiently the chairman of that Committee had done his share of the work, and therefore he had the greatest pleasure in re-appointing their worthy brother, Capt. Cope, to that position.

The Provincial Grand Master said it would be in the recollection of the brethren that, by the unanimous vote of the Provincial Grand Lodge, it was resolved a jewel should be presented to the brethren who fulfilled the responsible office of steward to the two charities. He therefore, had much pleasure in presenting Bro. Simpson and Bro. Wood, P.G. Reg., with these jewels, having each fulfilled the duties of that office, hoping their example would be followed by other brethren.

Bro. Dr. Evans then came forward and said: Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, I have the honour to offer for your acceptance the trowel used in laying the north-east corner stone of St. Paul's Church, Stalybridge, as a remembrance of that interesting event, and trust you will look upon it as an expression of true Masonic regard in which you are held by the brethren of your Province. The foundation stone of that church was laid in 1838, by your illustrious predecessor, Viscount Combermere, and when you look upon this trowel, we respectfully trust you will bear in mind the circumstances connected with it, (applause).

The Provincial Grand Master: Bro. Dr. Evans, I accept with feelings of gratitude and sincere satisfaction this trowel, which you have presented in such flattering terms. I assure you brethren, it will always remain treasured in my house, in recollection of the most important ceremony which has taken place during my Masonic rule, and in remembrance of the work commenced by my predecessor. I can only sincerely regret my unavoidable absence from Stalybridge on the interesting occasion, and hope that if on any future occasion the Provincial Grand Lodge should visit that town, they would be favoured with better than weather.

Bro. Captain Copethen moved "That in order to make the R.W.P.G.M. of Cheshire a vice-patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys and Girls, the sum of one hundred guineas be voted from the funds of the P.G.L. for that purpose, viz., fifty guineas to the Boys' School, and fifty guineas to the Girls' School." He felt certain, he said, that Cheshire fully intended to honour their P.G.M., and held in the same estimation as other provinces held theirs. There were eight provinces in which the P.G.M.'s had been raised to the rank of Vice-Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution, and therefore they would be only acting in a becoming manner by unanimously approving of this motion.

Bro. Bulley, P. Prov. J.G.W., in seconding the motion, said it would be a slur upon Cheshire if their P.G.M. were not a Vice-Patron of the institution, especially when they had been so successful in getting their candidate admitted.

They should endeavour, by all the means in their power, to maintain this noble institution, which was so well worthy of their support.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The P.G.M.:—Masters, Wardens, and brethren, I must commence my usual address, by expressing my extreme satisfaction with the manner in which you have voted the money just proposed by Bro. Cope, and my extreme gratification for the flattering remarks with reference to myself. This is only an additional proof of your confidence in me, and I feel the only way in which I can repay your kindness, will be to strive even more anxiously than ever to faithfully perform the most important office which I hold. The progress of charity has indeed been most satisfactory in this province. Even since our last Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, I am happy to state that, thanks to the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence, we have again been successful in getting our candidate elected, the result of united effort. Let this unity of action continue, and we shall always be able to carry one candidate. We have now one for the Boys' School, and I have every hope that, with the efficient help of the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence, we shall also secure his election. Since the last meeting of the P.G.L., the progress of Masonry within the province of Cheshire has been highly satisfactory. The spirit of the brethren, so far as I know, has been most harmonious, fraternal and hospitable. One new lodge has been consecrated—viz: that at Stalybridge, No. 1408, a lodge to which I sincerely wish all prosperity, and I only regret that I had not the honour of consecrating it, although I have the satisfaction of knowing it was efficiently done by my representative. The P.G.L. was also summoned for a peculiarly interesting purpose in connection with the extension of St. Paul's, and sincerely hope that excellent work will produce all the good which is intended. The number of brethren in the province is steadily increasing, but I would once more, with reference to this subject, call the attention of all W. Master's within my province to the address issued by Lord Zetland several years since, impressing upon the brethren the necessity of looking to the respectability rather than to mere numbers of those admitted into the Order. (Applause). I must also impress upon you the necessity of not seeking to countenance the starting of a new lodge, unless you are certain it will be respectable and well supported. I am well aware that every new lodge kindles a spark of Masonry in the district, but the principal thing is to see that that spark rises into a steady flame. Then it is your duty to recommend the granting of the charter, but not till then. I trust Masonry will continue to flourish as it has done, and I assure you it is my intention to do my duty, as far as I can, with the view of promoting its best interests. (Hear, hear, and applause). It is my intention, with the blessing of the G.A.O.T.U., to hold my Provincial Grand Lodge next year at the town of Altrincham.

At the conclusion of the Provincial Grand Lodge business, the brethren, in full Craft Masonic clothing and jewels, were marshalled in due order, and proceeded to Christ Church.

On arriving at the door of the church, the procession halted, divided to the right and left, and allowed the P.G.M. to pass up the centre, preceded by Standard and Swordbearer, the P.G. officers and brethren followed in succession from the rear. After the numerous brethren had taken their seats, worship commenced. Full cathedral service was the order of the day. As the brethren entered the church, an appropriate voluntary was played by the P.G.O. (who also efficiently presided at the organ during the whole of the musical service).

A collection was made in aid of the Fund of Benevolence, which amounted to £14 10s. 6d.

The brethren afterwards returned to the lodge-room, where the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

THE BANQUET.

Shortly after four o'clock, about 200 of the brethren sat down to a banquet, provided by Messrs. Bolland and Sons, of Chester, in the great hall of the building. Lord de Tabley presided, and he was supported on either side by a strong muster of his own, and other Provincial Grand Lodge officers. The musical performances of the pleasant gathering were under the direction of Bro. Thomas Henry Kirk, P.G. Organist, who presided at the pianoforte, assisted by Bros. Edmondson, Stafford, Dumville, Cuzner, and Hamilton. After dinner,

The Provincial Grand Master gave the toast "Her Most Gracious Majesty," and in doing so said he would not waste precious time by enumerating the numerous public and private virtues displayed by the illustrious lady to whom the toast related. She ruled one of the freest and happiest countries in the universe, and he called upon the brethren to drink the toast with enthusiasm. The call was cordially responded to, the Masonic version of the national anthem being sung as a solo, trio, and chorus.

The next toast was "The W.M., the Patron of the Order, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Earl of Chester, the Princess of Wales, and the Rest of the Royal Family." It was never too early, his lordship said, to do a good thing, and therefore, he must ask the brethren to drink the health of one who will do the greatest possible benefit to the Craft, both as a man, a mason, and heir apparent to the throne of England. The toast was received enthusiastically. Solo and chorus, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," (solo by Bro. Dumville).

The Provincial Grand Master said he knew the brethren had drunk the two previous toasts with all the loyalty, affection, and attachment to the throne and dynasty which was always manifested, but he now came to the throne and dynasty which more especially concerned them as Masons. He gave the health of "The M.W.G.M., the Marquis of Ripon, and the other Officers of Grand Lodge." The Marquis of Ripon now occupied the throne after a long array of G.M.'s, but there was no doubt he would transmit it to posterity with increased lustre. In modern times, at all events, very few had exceeded their present Grand Master, in his public services to his country and the Craft, (Hear, hear). As one of the most distinguished servants of the Crown, he has ever shown his willingness and ability to do his duty well and manfully; and as the occupant of the chair of K.S., he has proved himself one of the most zealous servants of the Craft. He (the P.G.M.) had many opportunities of meeting him, and never failed to be struck by the fidelity and zeal with which he fulfilled the work of his distinguished office. With reference to the Officers of Grand Lodge he might state that when he was appointed to the office of Master of that Province, there was not a single Grand officer in the county, but now he was happy to say they had two, Bro. Latham, and Bro. Cope, with whose name he would couple the toast.

Song: "Our Grand Master," Bro. Stafford.

Bro. Latham, in responding to the toast, assured the brethren that he felt quite as much oppressed as he was gratified, in being selected to return thanks for the G.M. of all England and the Grand Officers, past and present. To have to combine in his humble self, and take upon his incompetent shoulders such an amount of Masonic and Craft wisdom almost overpowered him, but still he felt it his duty to reply to the toast. If the G.M. had been present that day, he would have been very much gratified with the true Masonic spirit displayed by the brethren. Despite of the elements, their ardour had not been damped, and it had been shown that it would take something more than a shower of rain to put down Masonry. Other powers had tried to do so, but their noble Order had survived all, and he believed Masonry all over England was now in a more flourishing condition than ever it was before. One thing, he believed, which the G.M. would have told them, if he had been present that day, was that they should remember the caution given them by their P.G.M., viz., to think more of the quality than the quantity of their members. (Cheers). They should remember that when they made a Mason, they were not only making that individual a member, but also giving him a vote in the management of their lodge, and if he proved unworthy, he might be the means of introducing other unworthy men. In addition to what the P.G.M. had said that day, he, Bro.

Latham, would remind the brethren that however brightly the light of a new lodge might burn, it should never be lighted when it puts out some more ancient light which burns near it. (Hear, hear, and applause.) As the quasi representative of the Grand Master he thanked the brethren for the cordial manner in which they had received the toast. Before sitting down he wished to give the health of "The Right Honourable Lord de Tabley." (Loud cheers.) Amongst all the duties the G.M. had to perform, the most responsible and most difficult was to appoint the Provincial Masters throughout the country, knowing he has to select men who will uphold the credit of the Craft, prudent and not rash, men who will give satisfaction to the provinces over which they rule. By the manner in which you have received this toast, you have shown that the G.M. was right in his appointment in this case. (Applause.) If the province of Cheshire had to decide by plebiscite who should be its P.G.M., it would unanimously fall upon him whom the Grand Master chose for them. Lord de Tabley had often appeared amongst them when he might have been excused. If he consulted his own wishes, he would even that day have shrunk from appearing in public, but he felt it to be his duty to be amongst them, and therefore they ought to be all the more grateful to him for leaving his seclusion. His Lordship attended their private lodges gave them his private advice, honoured them by his public countenance, and therefore he, Bro. Latham, thought the very best way in which they could show their gratitude would be to attend to the very slightest hint he gave.

The toast was received with genuine enthusiasm and Masonic honours. Ode, "Prosper the Art," by the musical brethren.

The R.W.P.G.M., who, on rising, was greeted with tremendous cheering, said—Brethren, the kindness and cordiality of your reception of my name, is at all times so affectionate and loyal, that it puts it out of my power to return thanks in what I would conceive fitting terms. More especially do I feel touched by your kindness on the present occasion, after the remarks made by Bro. Latham on the tender subjects upon which he has dilated. He has referred to the events of the past year, which have been fraught with weal and woe, more woe than weal; but in the midst of all, I felt I had your sympathy and support through it all. (Cheers). I am also greatly comforted on this, my first public appearance, by the countenances of so many brethren of the Craft. I is one of the great comforts of Freemasonry that, when put out by the cares, troubles, and afflictions of this life, one has only to come to the lodge and open his heart, pretty sure to find comfort. (Applause). I count upon so many friends in the Provincial Grand Lodge, that I look upon it as a private lodge. I have received so many proofs of your kindness and confidence, I now look upon you all as personal friends in a great degree. (Loud cheers). The first thing you did when I assumed the command of the Province, was to make me Vice-President of the charities, and to day have made me Vice Patron of the Masonic Institution, an honour which I take as a personal compliment. When I assumed the reins of office we had not a single child on the Institution, now we have ten; we had not a single vote on the charities, but now we have a most creditable influence on all the charities. Our numbers and lodges in the Province are increasing, and with the exercise of due caution, I hope the Province will take and maintain the rank to which it is justly due. I thank you, brethren, for the many favours you have conferred upon me, I thank you for your constant support, and I know that in the future, if it pleases the G.A.O.T.U. to spare me, I may always reckon upon your constant efforts in support of Masonry, and sympathy with myself. (Loud and prolonged cheering).

The remaining toasts on the list were "Bro. George Cornwall Leigh, M.P., R.W.D.P.G.M., the P.G. Wardens, and other Provincial Grand Officers of Cheshire;" "The R.W. and P.G.M.s of the neighbouring Provinces;" "The Visiting P.G. Officers;" "The W. Masters of Lodges Unity, 321, and Four Cardinal Virtues, 279;" "The Visiting Brethren;" "The P.G. Stewards."

and "All Poor and Distressed Masons." A pleasant evening terminated with the ever popular "Auld Lang Syne," sung with the greatest heartiness.

Mark Masonry.

CUMBERLAND.

CARLISLE.—Cumberland Lodge (No. 60).—A meeting of emergency of this prosperous lodge, was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Carlisle, on the evening of Friday, the 20th ult., for the purpose of advancing Bro. John Whitwell, M.P., D.P.G.M. for Cumberland and Westmoreland. The ceremony of advancement was well worked by Bros. G. G. Hayward P.M., P.G.J.G., as W.M.; W. Coast, S.W.; W. Pratchitt, J.W.; T. G. Horder, J.O. 99, S.W. 125, M.O.; W. Murro, P.M. 60, as S.O.; T. Blacklock, P.M. as J.O.; F. W. Hayward, P.M. as S.D., and other brethren. This being the whole of the business of the lodge of emergency, the lodge was duly closed at 9.30, and the brethren adjourned to the house of Bro. F. W. Hayward, where they spent a very pleasant evening.

DEVONSHIRE.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—The regular monthly meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday last; Bro. Edwin Furze, W.M., in the chair, supported by Bro. E. J. Galliford as S.W.; and Bro. J. T. Shapland as J.W. Bros. Arden, A. Shapland, and Thomas Grove, of the Constitutional Lodge, No. 55, were balloted for, unanimously elected, and advanced to the degree of Mark Masters. The business of the lodge being ended, all the brethren present supped with the W.M. at his private residence, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

LANCASHIRE.

BOLTON.—Consecration of the Rose and Thistle Lodge (No. 158).—In the year 1856 a warrant was obtained from the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland for establishing a lodge to be named the St. John's Lodge of Mark Masters, to meet at Bolton, the first Master being Bro. George Barker Brockbank. Since this time the lodge has been prosperous to such an extent as its most sanguine promoters could never have anticipated, and now numbers nearly 100 members. As is well known the divided jurisdictions in the Mark degree have, until lately, prevented it from being worked in Lancashire, to the same extent that would otherwise have been the case, but fortunately there is now a prospect in the future, of a great success for this degree, in consequence of the fusion between the lodges holding under the Grand Chapter of Scotland, and these holding under the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England and Wales, and the dependencies of the the British Crown. Amongst those who have anxiously and zealously worked to accomplish this fusion is Bro. George P. Brockbank, upon whom the distinguished rank of Past Grand Warden has been conferred by the Mark Grand Lodge, and under whose auspices, as first W.M., a warrant for the Rose and Thistle Lodge, (so named to commemorate the fusion above referred to) has been obtained. The meetings are to be held in Freemasons' Hall, Church Institute, Bolton, on the first Thursday in the calendar month, and the lodge was consecrated on Monday, September 23rd, by the the R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Lancashire, Bro. W. Romaine Callender, who was attended by the following Grand, and Provincial Grand Officers; Bros. Thomas Entwistle, Prov. G. Supt. of Works, Lancashire; Lieut. Col. Thomas Birchall, Past G.W.; Capt. W. O. Walter, Prov. G.M. O.; J. R. Goepel, Prov. G.S.O.; John Tunnah, P.Prov.G.O.; William Roberts, A.Prov.G.O.; John Duffield, Prov.C. Treasurer; William Ashworth; Prov. J. G. Deacon; Richard Seed, Prov. G. Organist. The brethren having assembled in the lodge room, received the R.W. Prov. G.M. and officers by whom the ceremony of consecration was performed, Bro. Roberts officiating as Director of Ceremonies. The installation of Master and investiture of officers by the R.W. Prov. G.M.; followed, the officers appointed being, Bros. G. P. Brockbank, W.M.; Bro. J. Tunnah, S.W.; Thomas Hall Winder, J.W.; Egerton C. Gilbert, M.O.; Thomas Wilson, S.O.; J. Martin Rutter, J.O.; John Sharples, Treasurer; Robt. Harwood, P.M., Registrar; James Newton, Secretary; James Brown, Conductor; James Horrocks, S.D.; George Ferguson, J.D.; Thos. Morris, P.M., Inner Guard; William Dawson, Tyler. The best thanks of the lodge were awarded to the R.W. Prov.G.M., Bro. Callender, and to the Grand and Prov. Grand Officers present for the important services rendered on the occasion. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and suitably responded to.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Albert Victor Lodge (No. 70)—The usual quarterly meeting of the Albert Victor Lodge, was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Monday, the 16th ult., when there were present, Bros. Emra Holmes, W.M.; the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, M.A., Past G. Chaplain, P.M., Acting J.W.; C. T. Townsend, P.G.D. Secretary; E. J. Robertson, S.W.; Dr. Beaumont, R.M., M.O.; W. T. Westgate, M.C., Acting S.D.; W. Cuchon, Acting Registrar of Marks; J. T. Townsend, Acting S.O.; G. Abbott, Acting I.G.; C. Davy, Acting J.O.; M. Cohen, &c. The W.M. having opened the lodge in ancient form, and the minutes having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. Frederick Bennett, of the Prince of Wales Lodge, who was unanimously accepted. Bro. Atkin, another candidate, already balloted, for being present, both brethren were admitted, and advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master, the impressive ceremony being performed by Bro. Sanderson, to whom the W.M. had resigned his chair. This being the meeting for the election of W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, for the ensuing year, and the W.M. having resumed his gavel, the ballot was taken for the brethren, when Bro. Westgate was unanimously elected W.M.; Bro. Cuckord was elected Treasurer, by a large majority, and Bro. G. Spalding, the worthy and much respected Tyler, was again unanimously elected as Tyler. The lodge having closed the brethren retired for refreshment. The usual toasts having been given, the W.M. called upon the brethren to drink the health of their newly elected W.M., Bro. W. T. Westgate. He, the W.M., knew Bro. Westgate to be a very worthy and energetic Mason, and he felt sure he would be able to fill the chair far better than he himself had done. He was elected unanimously, which he must feel was a great compliment, and he was sure Bro. Westgate would do credit to the lodge in his capacity as W.M. Bro. Westgate briefly and modestly responded, stating at the same time that whatever he was deficient in knowledge of the ceremonies, he was sure he might call Bro. Sanderson for his assistance. He begged to thank the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him. One or two of the brethren present contributed to the harmony of the evening, and the brethren separated.

Red Cross of Constantine.

MONMOUTHSHIRE.

PONTYPOOL.—Gwent Conclave (No. 23).—The bi-monthly meeting of this conclave, was held at the Masonic Hall, on Pontypool, on Thursday September 19th, at 2 p.m. This being the meeting for the enthroning of the new Sovereign and V. E., and the investment of officers, a considerable number of the companions of the Order were present. The Illustrious Sir Knight W. Williams, Intendant General for Monmouthshire, was present, and occupied the throne, he being supported by the Eminent Sir Knight T. Waite, M.P.S.; Eminent Sir Knight J. D. Thomas, P.S., and Eminent Sir Knight J. R. Jenkins, V.E. The Conclave was opened in the several degrees, and the Illustrious Sir Knight W. Williams admitted Eminent Sir Knight J. R. Jenkins to the degree of Sovereign of the Order, and enthroned him as M.P.S., and elevated the Eminent Sir Knight J. C. Sladen to the chair of V.E. for the ensuing year. The new M.P.S. then invested the officers as follows:—Eminent Sir Knight H. W. Haskins, as H.P. Eminent Sir Knight Waite, P.S., as Recorder; Sir Knight W. Sandbrook, as Treasurer; Eminent Sir Knight G. W. Davies, as S.G.; Sir Knight E. Howler, as S.B.; Sir Knight D. Davis, as H. Eleven brethren were proposed as fit and proper persons to be admitted into the Order. The conclave was closed in imperial form and with solemn prayer, at 4.10, p.m. The companions of the Order then assembled at a very excellent banquet, prepared at the Clarence Hotel, at which the new M.P.S. presided, supported by the Illustrious Sir Knight W. Williams, Intendant General, and the Eminent Sir Knight J. D. Thomas, the Vice President being the Eminent Sir Knight J. C. Sladen, V.E., supported by Eminent Sir Knight T. Waite, P.S. The usual toasts were proposed and cordially received. The companions separated at about 8.30, p.m., having spent an instructive afternoon, and a pleasant and harmonious evening.

Original Correspondence.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the Daily News, Telegraph, Standard, and other newspapers, paragraphs have appeared with reference to the probable retirement of Bro. Patten, from the office of Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; which he has so worthily filled for many years. All the subscribers to this most excellent Charity will regret the necessity for Bro. Patten's retirement, but under present circumstances we see no other prospect in view.

Such being the case, and not knowing whether any publicity will be given to make the vacancy generally known, I think it right to announce that at the suggestion of a large number of Vice Presidents and Life Governors of the Institution, Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, P.M., Prov G.Sec. Middlesex, &c., has decided to become a candidate for the Secretaryship, when the proper time arrives.

Bro. Little is well-known as a most zealous, intelligent, and learned Mason, and therefore I need not at the present time say aught in his praise, especially when he was lately presented with a purse of some hundreds of pounds in appreciation of his through Masonic qualities, and London Masons are as familiar with his name as any I know of, I may say, however, that a great deal of Bro. Little's literary productions in aid of the spread of a knowledge of our ancient History and beautiful ceremonies, not having seen the light other than anonymously, few, but his most intimate friends are at all able to estimate the services he has rendered to the Craft generally, not only as a diligent and painstaking Preceptor, but also as an accurate investigator of our more hidden mysteries and able Masonic student. Lest it should be thought presumptuous of me thus to write, when in reality there is no vacancy at present existing, I beg to enclose one of the paragraphs in question (from the Daily News), and hope you will kindly publish it.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Truro, Cornwall, Oct. 1, 1872.

SPURIOUS RITE OF MEMPHIS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having read your leader on the above subject in the Freemason of Saturday, the 28th ult., you will, no doubt, permit me to correct your impression as to the importance of the meeting held in Manchester, on Saturday, September 7th, a notice of which, purporting to be a report, appeared in the Manchester papers of the 9th September, giving an array of names, some of which not only stand well in the Craft, but hold important positions in the Mark, Arch, or Temples, &c., &c.

Now, although you do not seem to apprehend any serious results from the meeting, though there is "nothing like leather," yet you have put a more serious aspect before your readers than the meeting really assumed.

Although there were only a few present to meet the Illustrious Seymour, the President hoped to see more, and that they would stick to and stand by him better than leather.

The bark of Yarker and his pups is worse than their bite.

I am informed on good authority that there are the names of several of the brethren in the list, as reported in Manchester papers, who were not present at the meeting.

"I know for certain," so my informant says, "that at one time there were forty or fifty, who had in some way or other become connected with the Rite, but in consequence of the underhand, dogmatical, and unsatisfactory manner in which things were done, and the bad, ill-tempered, cantankerous disposition of our leader, there are not now one-half that number, that in fact all who have any self-respect have resigned, and declined any further connection with the Rite, or communications with its leaders as such."

If Yarker and his satellites make use of, and enrol the name of every brother (at the installation of of Illustrious Brother Yarker, which, according to the Manchester papers, is to come off in London) whom they have asked to join, or with whom they have conversed on or about the Rite, won't they make a grand show, and seem more than is real—eh?

HARRY.

October 1st, 1872.

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was very pleased to read the correspondence that has appeared in your paper under the above heading, which clearly shows that some reform is wanted in Provincial Grand Lodges, and I think the first and best that could be adopted, would be to give the Provincial Grand Lodge (as all other lodges have,) the right to elect their Master, and that this should be done yearly. And further I think that every Lodge in a Province, should yearly recommend one or more brethren to the Provincial Grand Master from whom he should select his officers; this would do away with the favouritism that now appears to govern their election.

I should be glad to have your opinion, and that of your subscribers, on these suggestions of mine, which would oblige,

Yours fraternally,

P.M.

Oct. 1st 1872.

A NEW DEPARTURE.—During many years' acquaintance with the Masonic press of Europe, we do not recollect ever to have seen any notice taken of American Grand Lodge transactions, beyond an occasional acknowledgment of printed transactions received. In a late number of the London Freemason, however, we find a very full report of the proceedings of our Grand Lodge at its late annual communication, copied from an American journal. We cannot say how far our English brethren may be interested in our doings, but we regard the act of our esteemed contemporary in affording them the opportunity to know something of our mode of transacting business, and the nature of the business transacted, as a welcome indication of a growing nearness towards us, and the beginning, let us hope, not only of closer relations, but of a nearer approach in esoteric matters than has prevailed since our Masonic, like our national allegiance, was withdrawn from the mother country. It is especially desirable that in the questions now pending between the Masonic powers of the United States and those of Europe, England should stand on the same ground as we do, and lend her powerful aid in maintaining the right. If the press wields the same influence in Europe that it does in this country, an opportunity now offers to do the craft yeoman service, and we trust that the Freemason will be heard in the matter—New York Dispatch.

ELECTION, OCTOBER, 1872.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers are earnestly solicited on behalf of

ETHEL IDA MARGARET SEATON,

AGED 8 YEARS,

Her Father, Bro. George Seaton, formerly Master Mariner and Ship Chandler at Hull, was, for 10 years, a Subscribing Member of the Humber Lodge, No. 57, Hull, (also a Companion of the Humber Chapter,) and after a very short illness, died on the 19th February, 1868, leaving his Widow with five Children, three of whom are entirely dependent upon her for support, and with very small and inadequate means to educate and maintain them.

The case is strongly recommended by the following Brethren:—

†Chris. Sykes, 57, M.P., P.S.P.G.W. North and East York, Brantingham Thorpe.

James Clay, 57, M.P., London.

C. M. Norwood, 57, M.P., London.

†J. P. Bell, 57, M.D., D.P.G.M. North and East York, S.G.D. of England, Hull.

*M. C. Peck, P.M., 1040, P.G. Secretary North and East York, Hull.

R. T. Vivian, W.M., 57, Hull.

†John Thompson, W.M., 250, Hull.

†Geo. Chris. Roberts, W.M., 1010, P.P.G.R. North and East York, Hull.

Thos. Smurthwaite, W.M., 236, York.

J. Kemp, Jun., W.M., 294, Constitutional, Beverley.

W. H. Rose, W.M., 660, Camalodunum, Malton.

R. G. Smith, W.M., 734, Londresbro', Bridlington-Quay.

Jon. Turner, W.M., 1040, Sykes, Driffield.

†Ll. W. Longstaff, P.M., 1010, P.J.P.G.W. North and East York, Hull.

†Wm. Tesseyman, P.M., 57, P.G. Supt. Wks. North and East York, Hull.

††Nathaniel Easton, 57 and 1010, Hull.

††George Hardy, P.M., 250, P.S.P.G.D. North and East York, Hull.

†J. W. Woodall, P.M., 200, P.S.P.G.W. North and East York, Scarbro'.

†J. J. Forrester, P.M., 222, 66, Mark-lane, London.

Those marked thus † are Governors or Subscribers to the Institution.

The Brethren marked thus * will be happy to receive Voting Papers: which, with any communication or assistance will be thankfully received, or Boys' Votes for exchange, by †Bro. JOHN WALKER, P.M., 57, P.P.G. Supt. Works, North and East York.

56, Lister-street, Hull.

J. E. PETERS,

ORNAMENTAL ENGRAVER AND FANCY

ENAMELLER,

42, Howard-place, Northampton-road,

CLERKENWELL.

Writing, Engraving of every description, Masonic Emblems Engraved or Enamelled; old enamelled Work repaired; Country Orders attended to with despatch.

What better Theme than Masonry?"

MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 455; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool. Post-free, 25 stamps.

TESSELATED CARPETING.

FOR

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.

Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

MASONIC MISCHIEF.—The new Masonic Song. Inscribed to the Worshipful Company of Masons by Gerahd Grant. Post Free Eighteen Stamps. London: Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

THE NEW MASONIC SONG.—“Men of the Trowel” “An overwhelming answer to ‘Masonic Mischief.’”—Court Express. Eighteen Stamps, post free. London: Henry Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

SECOND EDITION.—NOW READY.

Price One Shilling, Post-free, Revised and Enlarged.

Freemasonry in Relation to Civil Authority and the Family Circle,

BY BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.

THIS work is a perfect handbook of the principles of Freemasonry, founded on the Ancient Charges and Symbols, and will be found to be eminently practical and useful in the vindication and support of the Order.

Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THIRD EDITION.—JUST READY.

REFLECTED RAYS OF LIGHTUPON FREEMASONRY:

OR,

The Freemason's Pocket Compendium,With an Emblematical Frontispiece.

A Hand-Book of the Principles of Freemasonry, and Pocket Vade Mecum and Guide to the various Ceremonies connected with Craft Masonry, so far as the same are allowed to be communicable, in accordance with the principles of the Order.

Price One Shilling, Post-free for Thirteen Stamps.

Sold by Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

NOW READY, PRICE £4/4 THE PAIR, OR £2/10 SINGLE.

SIZE 32in. BY 26in.

PHOTOGRAPHS

OF

BRO. SIGISMUND ROSENTHAL'S CELEBRATED PAINTINGS*The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master,*

At Freemasons' Hall, on December 1st, 1869, containing upwards of 120 Figures and Portraits.

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar,

May 13th, 1870, containing nearly 100 Figures and Portraits.

Sold by Bro. G. KENNING, 2, 3, & 4, Little Britain, E.C.

Branches: 198, Fleet-street, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

IRON PIANOS FOR ALL CLIMATESMESSRS. BORN & Co.,

13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.

MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine. Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled,

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.

LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d.

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, Traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA.

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

BY WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of “Scientia Biblica,” “Scripture Natural History,” “Guide to the Reading of the Bible,” “Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation,” “A Popular Introduction to the Bible,” “The Biblical Companion,” “Critica Biblica,” “Calendarium Palestinae,” “An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible,” and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of “Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible,” and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.

Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.

Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Aids to Study..... 623
Grand Lodge of Mark Masters..... 624
Consecration of a New Lodge at Ormskirk 625
Consecration of a New at Lodge, Sevenoaks 626
The Grand Orient of France and the Supreme Council
Lodge of Emulation and its History..... 628
CRAFT MASONRY :—
Metropolitan 628
Provincial ... 629
ROYAL ARCH :—
Provincial 630
Scotland 630
MARK MASONRY :—
Provincial 631
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR :
Provincial 631
Scotland 631
RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE :—
Provincial..... 632
CORRESPONDENCE :—
The Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution
for Girls 632
Bro. Perkins, Sheriff of London 632
Masonic Meetings for next week..... 632
Advertisements..... 621, 622, 633, 634, 635, 636

AIDS TO STUDY.

BY. BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER.
XIV.

It will have been noticed by those who have read what I have written, in outline, of Egypt, Assyria, and Babylon, that the Old Testament writings have furnished much of the materials towards it. In point of fact, the continuous histories of those countries, and their relations to others, must be obtained from that source, although the recently discovered remains of the three, fit in with, or corroborate, these biblical annals. As Sir Isaac Newton, as I have already noted, avers, in his judgment, the Bible contains the only reliable or authentic history of these early ages.

There is, therefore, no doubt of the fact, that the Hebrew history, and some parts of the Hebrew Prophets, are most precious documents. These writings, however, do not purport to give us the history of nations or empires, further than as they were connected with or had some special relation to the history of the chosen people. But so far at least, the sacred writings are to be regarded as most precious memoirs of the history of the ancient world. And this thing is to be noted, namely, that no discovery has been made amongst the long buried monuments and ruins of Egypt, Assyria, or Babylon, that offers a contradiction to the Hebrew Annals. On the contrary, they have been thereby abundantly verified, and, in some particulars, those discoveries are only to be fully understood by a reference to the facts and circumstances these annals record.

But the sacred writings go far beyond that which I have assigned to them, for there we find not only recorded history, but prophetic fore-warnings, precise and detailed in their particulars, of some of the great events which came to pass, hundreds of years subsequently. The downfall and destruction, and final extinction of Egypt, Assyria, and Babylon, are there distinctly and impressively written upon the prophetic scroll; and we may read there, the state and condition of those countries at the present day. Let us glance at some of these striking proofs of the Divine Prescience, and not less of the Divine Government of the world.

First, look at Egypt. This was, at one time the mightiest kingdom in the ancient world, which is to be partly accounted for from its position. Situated mid-way between the continents of Asia and Africa, it was the gate, as it were, through which all intercourse between those two countries was carried on. With the Mediterranean on one side, and the Red Sea on the other, it held easy communication with the southern peninsulas of Europe, and with the coasts of India; and was, even in early times, the link to connect the west with the east. With a fertile soil and a salubrious climate, it was capable of supporting an immense population, which was supplied with the material wealth and comfort that are conducive to civilisation. Herodotus states the number of its towns at 20,000; and in the Thebais, the most southerly division, some of the towns were not only magnificent, but attained to the highest importance. Thebes (the No Ammon of the Bible) was the metropolis of Upper Egypt, and the seat of the most magnificent temples and palaces. Coptos was the entrepot of Indian commerce.

Egypt changed masters many times, and its history has been divided into four periods: (1) the Pharaonic down to 525 B.C., and which included the monarchy, or monarchies of the early kings, but about which there is much doubt and uncertainty; and the Hyksos Kings, a nomadic horde of Canaanites which expelled the former dynasty, made their capital, Memphis (the Noph of the Bible), the Pantheon of Egypt, possessing temples of Isis, Proteus, Apis, Senapis, the sun, the Cabeiri; and particularly of Pthah, or Hephæstus; and the dynasties known as the 18th to the 30th, which, having expelled the Hyksos, or Shepherd Kings, carried their expeditions over the whole of western Asia, and southwards into Soudan, and amassed vast treasures, which were expended on public works, including the rock temples of Aboo-simbel, as well as of Nepata, Tanis, Thebes, and Memphis. The twenty-fifth dynasty consisted of Ethiopians, always closely connected with Egypt, the second of whom was the So, with whom Hoshea, King of Israel, made a treaty (2 Kings, xvii, 4), in whose reign Egypt came into collision with Assyria. Psammeintus, who came to the throne just as Cambyses was advancing on his country, was defeated at Pelusium, and afterwards besieged and captured at Memphis; and from that time (B.C. 525) Egypt formed an integral part of the Persian Empire.

(2) The Persian era extended from the year 525 to the year 332 B.C., and numbers eight kings, who were Satraps of the Persian empire. One of these reigned over the whole land, and his sarcophagus is preserved in the British Museum.

(3) The Hellenic era was commenced with the conquest of Egypt, by Alexander the Great, B.C. 332; and on the dissolution of the Macedonian empire, it fell into the hands of Ptolemy Soter, the founder of the dynasty of the Lagidæ, who were engaged in frequent wars with the kings of Syria, and conquered Phœnicia and Cœle-Syria. The disputes and insurrections that prevailed, opened the door for the interference of the Romans, and the last of the Auletes was restored to his throne by Agabinius, proconsul of Syria. In the reign of his successors, Ptolemy and Cleopatra, the Alexandrian war arose, in which Cæsar took the part of Cleopatra, and Ptolemy perished, A.D. 47. Thenceforth, Cleopatra reigned, in conjunction with another brother, and her eventful life was terminated by her own hand, in A.D. 30, and the dynasty of the two Ptolemies ended.

During this era, however, the internal condition of Egypt was prosperous. Commerce was fostered, not only by the foundation of Alexandria, but subsequently by the opening of the Indian trade, through the Red Sea, by Philadelphus; literature flourished greatly at Alexandria, where the Hebrew Scriptures were translated into Greek; the old Egyptian edifices came in for a share of royal patronage, and many of the temples were either restored or enlarged.

(4). The Roman era extended from B.C. 30, to A.D. 640, and for a long period the country enjoyed peace and prosperity. From 269, however, troublesome times set in, and in A.D. 640 it was conquered by Amron, the general of the Caliph Omar; and it has ever since been under the dominion of the Moslem stranger.

As Dr. Keith observes, the previous experience of 2000 years, during which Egypt had never been without a prince of its own, seemed to preclude the possibility of its subsequent overthrow and slavery. It had often tyrannised over Judea, and the neighbouring nations; and had more than once encouraged the Jews to rebel against the other two great empires, and then deceived them in their reliance on its aid, and the Prophets again and again foretold its downfall, and declared that that country of kings would be reduced to a condition in which it would never have a prince of its own, would be laid waste by the hands of strangers, and become the basest of nations. Under the bold image of a lion and a crocodile, that had committed awful devastation among the nations, but which had been taken and slain, the Prophet Ezekiel strikingly exhibits the prowess and downfall of the monarch and kingdom of the Nile: "Thou art like a young lion of the nations, and as a sea-monster in the seas; and thou didst break forth in thy rivers, and puddle the waters with thy feet, and befoul thy rivers. Thus, saith the Lord Jehovah, "I will spread my net over thee, in the collection of many peoples; and they shall draw thee up in my net; and I will dash thee on the ground, and cast thee headlong in the open field; and will make all the fowls of Heaven to settle upon thee; and I will satiate the wild beasts of the whole earth with thee. . . . And in extinguishing thee, I will cover the Heavens, and make the stars thereof dark; I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light. All the shining lights of the Heavens I will clothe with darkness on thy account, and make it dark over thy land," saith the Lord Jehovah (Ezek. xxxii, 2, 8).

The boldness of the figures, and the terrible character of the symbols, vividly portray the utter overthrow of the government and kingdom, and the desolation that was to follow. Many other prophecies, placed upon record when no such extraordinary change in the fortunes and condition of the country could have been imagined, might be quoted, as "I will lay the land waste, and all that is therein, by the hands of strangers. I, the Lord have spoken it, and there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt. The sceptre of Egypt shall pass away. . . It shall be a base kingdom; it shall be the basest of kingdoms."

*Philistines, Ethiopians, Assyrians, Babylonians, Persians, Macedonians, Romans, Saracens, and Ottomans.

How has all this been fulfilled? In the middle of the thirteenth century, the Mamelukes deposed their rulers, and usurped the dominion of the country, establishing such a mode of government as has no parallel. Each successive ruler was raised to the supreme authority, from being a stranger and a slave. No native of Egypt ascended the throne, but a chief was chosen from among a race of imported slaves. During subsequent times, any attempt made to emancipate the country, or create a prince of the land, has proved abortive. Gibbon remarks, that a more unjust and absurd constitution cannot be devised than that which condemns the natives of a country to perpetual servitude, under the arbitrary dominion of strangers and slaves. Yet, such has been the state of Egypt for centuries.

The Copts, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians, are a degraded race. They fast long, and are almost constantly drunk. They are, indeed, fulfilling the word of prophecy: "They shall be a base kingdom. It shall be the basest of kingdoms. Neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations. For I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations. The pride of her power shall come down. . . I will sell the land into the hand of the wicked [or vile]. . . And there shall be no more a prince of the land of Egypt" (Ezek. xxix. 14, 15; xxx. 6, 7, 12, 13; xxxii. 15).

GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS.

We gave last week a condensed report of the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons at Manchester. We are enabled this week to give a more detailed account of the proceedings.

On Wednesday, October 3, a Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England, Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, for the purpose of carrying into effect the fusion of the two Provincial Grand Lodges hitherto existing under the English and Scotch Constitutions. There was a large attendance of brethren.

The Provincial Grand Lodge, E.C., having been opened, the Provincial Grand Lodge S.C. was next opened, and after that the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England, by the M.W. Grand Master, the Rev. G. Raymond Portal, M.A., the following Grand Officers being present:—The Right Worshipful Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.S.W.; F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., G.S.; J. Porter, G.S.D.; T. Perkington, P.G.S.O., and P.G.M., West Yorkshire; Rev. D. Shaboe, P.G. Chaplain; Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, P.G. Chaplain; Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain; J. C. Parkinson, P.G.J.W.; J. R. Stebbing, G.T.; C. F. Matier, G.J.W.; G. P. Brockbank, P.G.J.W.; T. J. Lancashire, P.S.B.; J. Copley (Todmorden), P.G.S.B.; T. Hargraves, G.J.D.C.; J. Stevens, P.G.C.; Magnus Ohren, P.G.M.O.; J. P. Goepel, P.S.G.O.; F. Davison, P.G. Org.; Captain Burgess, G. Reg.;

Colonel Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex and Surrey, and others. .

The Provincial Grand Officers present were: Bros. W. R. Callender, P.G.M.; Thomas Birchall, P.J.G.W.; W. O. Walker, P.G.M.O.; J. Duffield, P.G.T.; W. H. Prince, P.G.S.D.; Joseph Handley, P.G.I.G.; R. Seed, P.G.O.; W. Roberts, P. Prov. G.S.D.; A. Milne, P.G.S.; W. Walker, P. Prov. G.I.G.; E. Hartley, P. Prov. G.S.; T. Oakden, P.G.Swd.B. West Yorkshire; G. Galloway, P.G.T.; L. Booth, P.G. Supt. Works; Thomas Entwistle, P.G.S.; D. Stansfield, P.G.S.B.; James Holroyd, P.G.S.B.; Dr. H. Hopkins, P.G.J.W., and others.

Letters of apology were read from Lord Leigh, Past G.M.; Lord Holmesdale, Past G.M.; Lord Carnarvon, Past G.M.; Earl Percy, G.M. Elect; Lord Bective, P.G.S.W.; W. Beach, M.P., Past G.M.; Sir F. Williams, Bart., P.G.M., &c.

The business of the Grand Lodge was then proceeded with. The arrangements and conditions for the fusion of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge, hitherto under the Scotch Constitution, with the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge under the English Constitution, were ratified and confirmed.

The Provincial Grand Masters of both jurisdictions resigned their patents into the hands of the Grand Master, who gave the lodges under the Scotch Constitution new warrants.

Bro. W. R. Callender was then proposed for appointment as Provincial G.M. by Bro. Entwistle, and seconded by Bro. Matier, and recommended by the unanimous vote of the Provincial Lodge, and he was then duly installed by the Grand Mark Master, who expressed his great gratification in acceding to the request of the P.G.L., and his deep sense of the Masonic good feeling which had induced the brethren under the Scotch Constitution to unite with their English brethren in forming one Provincial Grand Lodge. The G.M. then invested Bro. Entwistle, P.G.M. (S.C.) as P. Prov. G.M.; Bros. Birchall, Brockbank, Wike and Binckes were invested as P. Prov. J.G. Wardens, and the charity medal was presented to the brethren who served the Stewardship on the last occasion, by the Mark Benevolent Fund.

The following Provincial Grand Officers for Lancashire were then appointed:—Bros. Lord Skelmersdale, D.P.G.M.; G. Mellon, P.S.G.W.; G. Galloway, P.J.G.W.; H. S. Alpass, P.M.O.; J. Handley, P.S.O.; T. J. Lancashire, P.J.O.; Rev. J. L. Figgins, P.G. Chaplain; Thomas Radley, P.A.G. Chaplain; J. Duffield, P.G. Treasurer (re-elected by the Province); T. B. Ashworth, P.G. Reg.; John Chadwick, P.G. Sec.; W. G. Turner, P.S.D.; C. Davis, P.J.D.; Dr. Moore, P.G. Supt. of Works; W. Walker, P.G.D.C.; G. Cornfield, P.A.D.C.; W. Morris, P.G.S.B.; J. Brandwood, P.G.S.B.; R. Seed, P.G. Org.; T. Chambers, P.G.I.G.; D. Mitchell, W. Davis, and W. Mountcastle, P.G. Stewards; and W. Dawson, P.G. Tyler.

When the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge was brought to a close, about 150 brethren sat down to a banquet, at which the Provincial Grand Master, W. R. Callender, presided, supported on his right by the Rev. G. R. Portal, the Grand Master, and on his left by Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.W.

After the banquet the Chairman gave "The Health of the Queen," and then of "The Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family."

In proposing the next toast, the Provincial Grand Master said it was often a matter of regret to them that, except on some few and far between occasions, they had to drink the health of the distinguished brethren who ruled over the various degrees of Masonry in their absence. Many were the privileges which they, as Mark Masons, enjoyed. The Province of Lancashire had twice within the last two years, had the pleasure of seeing the chief of their Order, Bro. Portal. They were assembled in a three-fold character. The Moveable Grand Lodge had been held; it had been their Provincial Grand Lodge meeting; and more than all, they had consummated that day the union of the Rose and the Thistle (cheers), banding together those sister constitutions which ought for ever to be united. He thought they must all admit that had it not been for the conciliatory manner and tactics of their Grand Master, they would not have obtained the union which they now consummated. He gave them "The Health of Bro. Portal, the Grand Mark Master of England and Wales." (Cheers).

The Grand Master (the Rev. G. R. Portal,) in response, said that upon an occasion such as that he felt they had a right to expect from him more than common thanks. When he succeeded to the throne four years ago, their admirable and ancient Order stood in a position of regrettable isolation. His first duty was to make alliances and obtain recognition where available, and he had had the satisfaction of obtaining recognition, in the first place, from the Grand Chapter of Ireland, and in the next place from the Grand Chapter of Canada, and next from the Grand Chapters of Pennsylvania and Iowa. As there were several important bodies acting independently of the Craft in this country—the 33rd degree, the Knights Templar, and the Red Cross of the Order of Constantine—he thought it important to get a recognition of the Mark Grand Lodge being the legitimate head of the Mark Degree. That had been accomplished, and there had been an acknowledgement which had surpassed in importance any of those which he had named, and for this reason. In every state of the United States there was a Supreme Grand Chapter, and of these bodies there was composed a representative Grand Body, called the General Grand Chapter of the United States, the head of which was called the Grand High Priest of the General Grand Chapter, who had written him a letter, which he would now read to them:—

"General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the
"United States of America.

"June 16, 1872.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—I avail myself of the visit to England of Bro. A. G. Goodall, your special representative, near the capitular bodies in this country, to acknowledge the receipt of your several favors, including the printed documents, and to reply thereto. After the most careful examination of the papers submitted, I am clearly of opinion that your Grand Body was regularly organised, and is the supreme Masonic authority in England, &c., over the Mark Degree, and that all Mark Master Masons, regularly made under authority of your Grand Lodge, are everywhere entitled to recognition as such. I have the pleasure to further assure you, that I shall advise the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States, at its next triennial convocation, to extend to you formal recognition.

"Yours fraternally,

"JOSIAH H. DRUMMOND,

"Gen. Gr. High Priest Gen. Gr. Chap., U.S.A."

He thought that recognition had placed them in an impenetrable position. No one could regret more than he did that the Grand Chapter of Scotland was the only body which had refused them recognition. But the feeling he should otherwise entertain was enormously modified by what had taken place that night. He was sure that it added very much to the credit of their Scotch brethren in Lancashire, that in spite of the refusal to extend recognition, they had said "We will no longer be parties to extend this disunion, and our determination henceforth is that Lancashire shall act under one banner." (Applause). When he reflected that St. John's Lodge, at Bolton, had minutes dating as far back as 1790, a date far anterior to the Grand Chapter of Scotland itself, he could only suppose they were misinformed as to the position of the Mark Degree in England. The time would come when they would recede from the step they had taken, and extend that recognition which other chapters had done. (Applause). He was anxious to express his thanks, and he was sure they would all do the same, to the Past Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Scotch Constitution, Brother Matier, for the pluck he had shown in bringing a motion before the Grand Chapter of Scotland that this Order should be recognised, when he was only defeated by a majority of one—a majority which rendered them perfectly certain they would obtain the recognition they desired.

The G.M. resumed his seat amid loud cheers.

Bro. Parkinson, P.J.G.W., proposed, "The Health of the Past Grand Masters of the Order," and pointed out that Lords Carnarvon, Leigh, and Holmesdale, as well as Bro. Beach, M.P., all held the office of Prov.G.M. in the Craft.

The Grand Master, in proposing "The Health of the Grand Master of the Province," believed he was the only man who could have been found under whom both sections of Mark Masonry would be content to work, because he represented that which, from his slight knowledge of Lancashire men, he thought might be taken to represent their characters, a warm heart and the sound knowledge of a man of business. (Applause.) When some two years ago he found that the Scotch Royal Arch Chapter was obtaining a very powerful hold over Lancashire, while the lodges under their banner were not in so flourishing a condition as could be wished, he at once applied to his friend in the chair to take charge of this province in the interest of English Mark Masonry. It was only right to tell them of the advance of Mark Masonry which had been made in the past two years. Two years ago there were six lodges in the province with 147 members. These six lodges now contained 294 members, and nine new lodges had been consecrated, containing 232 members, owing to the personal character of their Chairman, and the pleasure which all Lancashire felt in having him as their chief. (Applause.) Three Scotch lodges had now been added, making a total of 18 lodges and 688 members. This was a fact of which all might be proud. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Callender, who was received with great applause on rising to respond, said they had in Lancashire an enthusiastic and increasing body of Mark Masters. It was to him a source of the highest satisfaction that there was no longer any hindrance between the English and Scotch working in this province. (Applause.) He concluded by proposing the health of Bro. Entwistle, P.Prov.G.M. of Lancashire, to which Bro. Entwistle very feelingly responded.—Among the other toasts which followed was that of the Masonic Charities, proposed by Bro. J.M. Wike, to which Bro. Binckes responded, and in the course of his able remarks said that Mark Masonry had often been charged by its enemies with drawing money from the Masonic Charities, and he should like to see a practical refutation of their jesuitical slanders by the subscription that evening of fifty guineas to the Boy's School so as to make their Prov. G.M. a Vice President. (Cheers.)

Bro. Callender P.G.M., rose and said that he would gladly contribute that sum himself, if the Mark Lodges in the province would contribute a similar sum, to qualify the D.Prov.G.M. as a Vice President.

Numerous brethren hereupon rose and pledged themselves that their lodges would respond to the challenge.

Thus ended the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of Mark Master Masons ever held in England.

Previous to the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the degree of Royal Ark Mariner was conferred on several Mark Masters.

On Thursday the Grand Mark Master, the Deputy Grand Mark Master, the Grand Registrar, the Grand Secretary, and Bro. Davison, besides several Provincial Officers, attended a meeting of the "Old Mark" at Blackburn; when the ceremony was ably performed by Bros. Clough and Thomas. It was stated that a Mark Master's Lodge would very shortly be opened in that town.

[In the report which appeared in our last issue the words, "present from first to last," should have been, "prevented coming at the last," and applied to Lord Leigh, Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P., Earl Bective, Earl of Limerick, and Sir Frederick Williams, Bart., M.P.]

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated and varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and a nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water, October 14.

FOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Heavy and Healthy.—The experience of thousands has amply demonstrated the power possessed by these healing and purifying remedies of removing cutaneous eruptions and relieving fistulas and abscesses. These hidden evils frequently rob life of every comfort through the reluctance of the sufferer to expose his infirmity. Followay's Ointment dispenses such dreaded publicity by placing within the reach of all plain instructions for curing themselves, without any danger and without the necessity of mentioning their infirmity to anyone. The most beneficial need only send to a chemist for the remedies, read their "directions for use" set forth in clear, precise and pertinent language, and cure their own infirmities.—ADVT.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE AT ORMSKIRK.

Monday, the 30th ult., was a "red letter day" day in the Masonic history of Ormskirk, and the gathering of the brethren on the interesting occasion was both numerous and influential. The consecration of the West Lancashire Lodge, No. 1403 on the register of the Grand Lodge, will not only add greater strength to the already strong list of lodges in the province, but, from the auspices under which it is started, will doubtless, add increased lustre to Masonic light in the town where it has been established. The Lodge of Harmony, No. 580, has hitherto been the only lodge in Ormskirk, but as the cause of Masonry has increased rapidly in the district, a necessity has been felt for the addition of the West Lancashire Lodge. As its name implies, the new lodge is intended to accommodate not the brethren in Ormskirk merely, but also those in the district surrounding the town, where the spirit of Masonry has greatly increased within the last few years. Much of this success is doubtless due to the legitimate influence of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.S. W. of England, and D.P.D.G.M. of West Lancashire, whose country seat is in the neighbourhood. His lordship's presence on this occasion for the purpose of performing the consecration ceremony, again proved the deep interest he takes in the progress and prosperity of the Craft, and his willingness at all times to submit to any sacrifice so that he may faithfully fulfil his Masonic duties. It should be mentioned that his lordship will entertain royal visitors, the Prince and Princess Teck, at Lathorn House next week, but even in the midst of the preparations for this distinguished visit, which might well have afforded Bro. Lord Skelmersdale an excuse for absence, he generously gave up his valuable time to attend and consecrate the new lodge. The ceremony took place at the Commercial Hotel, in which a handsome lodge room has been found and furnished.

His lordship was supported by the following P. Prov. G. Officers:—Bros. J. F. Goggin, P. Prov. G. Chaplain; T. Wylie, P. Prov. G. Reg.; H. S. Alpass, P. Prov. G. Sec.; R. Wylie, P. Prov. S.G.D.; J. Skeaf, P. Prov. G.O.; A. C. Mott, P. Prov. G.D. and P.G.S.W. of Westmoreland and Cumberland; S. E. Ibbes, P. Prov. G.S.P.; J. Baxendale, P. Prov. G. Purst.; J. B. Lambert, P.G.S.D. East Lancashire; and P. Ball, P. Prov. G. Tyler. There was also a large attendance of brethren from the various lodges in the Province.

The brethren assembled at two o'clock, and shortly afterwards the Craft Lodge was opened in the three degrees, by Bro. A. C. Mott, as W.M.; Bro. R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.S.D., as P.M.; Bro. T. Jackson, W.M. 580, as S.W.; Bro. T. Ashmore, P.M. 823, as J.W.; Bro. W. Jones, W.M. 220, as S.D.; and Bro. G. Morgan, W.M. 1035, as J.D.

The Provincial Grand Lodge Officers then entered, and the D.P.G.M. was greeted with the usual honours, after which he immediately proceeded with the ceremony, which he performed in the most complete and impressive manner.

The D.P.G.M. addressed the brethren on the nature of the meeting, and called on the Acting P.G. Sec., to state the wishes of the brethren, and read the petition and warrant. After the brethren of the new lodge had signified their approval of the officers nominated in the warrant, the Past Prov. G. Chaplain delivered an eloquent and impressive oration on the moral and religious teachings of Freemasonry, which was listened to with the greatest interest by the assembled brethren. After an anthem, the brethren turned towards the East, while the presiding officer pronounced the invocation. The lodge was then uncovered, and the corn, wine, and oil were borne three times round the room, by Bros. T. Wylie, R. Wylie, and S. Ibbes, solemn music being performed by Bro. Skeaf. The P.G.C. then carried the corner three times round the lodge, offered the Consecration prayer, and the D.P.G.M. constituted the lodge in ancient form.

The music of the ceremony was furnished by Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O., being of a most impressive character, and was rendered with fine effect by Bros. J. Busfield, D. Jones, C. Haswell, and J. Jones. Bro. H. S. Alpass, acting G. Sec., then duly and effectively installed Bro. Samuel Wylde as the first W.M. of the new lodge; and the following brethren were subsequently invested as the officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. T. Alty, S.W.; W. C. Edge, J.W.; J. B. Forshaw, Treas.; I. Simms, Sec.; P. B. Forshaw, S.D.; J. Goodman, J.D.; J. J. Nunnerley, I.G.; J. B. Lambert, D.C.; J. E. Evans, S.; and W. Smith, Tyler. The officers were addressed, according to ancient form, by Bro. A. C. Mott. Six candidates and six joining members were proposed before the lodge was closed.

The J.W. proposed and the S.W. seconded a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Lord Skelmersdale for his valuable help and presence in connection with the consecration ceremony. In acknowledging the compliment, his lordship expressed his pleasure at being present, and wished the greatest success to the new lodge, which would have his countenance and support.

The lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony.

It may be interesting to know that the following presentations were made to the lodge:—A fine and compact box of working tools, quite a multum in parvo of Masonic furnishing, presented by Mrs. J. B. Forshaw (supplied by Bro. G. Kenning, of London and Liverpool); a handsome cushion, by Mrs. S. Wylde; a fine Tracing Board, by Bro. P. B. Forshaw; a Bible by Bro. J. Lambert; a ballot box, by Bro. I. Simm; W.M.'s jewel by Bro. S. Wylde; S.W.'s jewel by Bro. T. Alty; J.W.'s jewel, by Bro. W. C. Edge; S.D.'s jewel by Bro. P. B. Forshaw; J.D.'s jewel by Bro. J. Goodman; the Sec.'s jewel by Bro. I. Simm; and the Treasurer's jewel by Bro. J. B. Forshaw, all of whom hold these offices respectively in the new lodge. The jewels, which were all handsome specimens of workmanship, were also supplied by Bro. Kenning.

A sumptuous banquet was served in the evening by Bro. Brown, "mine host" of the Commercial Hotel, to which about 50 brethren sat down, under the presidency of Bro. Wylde, W.M., who was supported on either side by a number the "purpled" visitors. After dessert had been placed on the table, the toasts of "The Queen," "H.R.H. Prince of Wales, M.W. Past G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Marquis of Ripon, M.W. G.M.," were proposed by the W.M. in fitting and appropriate terms.

In giving "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale, W. D. Prov. G.M., and the Provincial Grand Officers," Bro. Wylde spoke in high terms of his lordship's kindness in being present that day to consecrate the new lodge, and referred with pleasure to the promise he had given of his cordial support. He need not expatiate upon the many good qualities shown by his lordship, as these were all well known to the brethren, but he could not help referring specially to the admirable manner in which the consecration ceremony had been performed, which must have led every one to respect and value Masonry more than ever he did before.

Bro. Alpass, who responded, said he felt very grateful for being associated with the name of Lord Skelmersdale, who was so deservedly popular in that and other parts of the province. He (Bro. Alpass) had had the pleasure and honour of meeting his lordship for many years since his appointment as D.P.G.M., and he could speak with cordiality of the zeal and interest he had invariably displayed in the progress of the Craft. He was quite certain that if the brethren of West Lancashire were canvassed they would be quite unanimous in their desire that he should be appointed to the important office of R.W.P.G.M. He (Bro. Alpass) had no wish that this opinion should go outside that room, nor did he desire for one moment to trench upon the prerogative of their Grand Master in making his selection; but he did not think he was out of order in saying that the appointment of Lord Skelmersdale to the vacant chair would be highly acceptable to the brethren in the province. (Applause.)

The W.M. then gave in happy terms "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers." The toast, which like the others, was received with enthusiasm, was acknowledged by Bro. Captain Mott and Bro. Captain Turner.

Bro. Alpass then proposed "The Health of the Worshipful Master," and said that when the application was made to him, as P.G. Sec., with regard to the warrant of the West Lancashire Lodge, he was very much pleased to see the high character of the brethren who were moving in the matter. The office of W.M. was a responsible one at any time, but especially so when in an entirely new lodge, but he had no doubt Bro. Wylde would perform his duties in a manner which would prove satisfactory to his brethren and a credit to the Craft. (Hear, hear.) The numbers in West Lancashire were increasing very fast, as in other parts of the country; and although from time to time they were cautioned as to those whom they admitted into Masonry, yet, from what he knew of the Ormskirk brethren, he thought the warrant had been safely given into their hands. The old Ormskirk lodge had been a credit to the order, and highly respected in the province. There was room for both lodges, and he hoped and expected there would be a healthy rivalry for the maintenance of the dignity of the order and the progress of the craft in that part of the province.

The W.M. thanked the brethren for the enthusiastic manner in which the toast had been received, and assured them that, his heart being in Masonry, he would spare no effort to fulfil his duties with zeal and efficiency. With reference to the rivalry spoken of, he assured the brethren that there had hitherto been no display of feeling except that of which they might be proud. The West Lancashire Lodge had been formed only because there was a necessity for it, and he had no doubt that before the end of the year they would have initiated 50 "good men and true"—men who might safely be entrusted with the privileges and secrets of Freemasonry. Another point in the history of the new lodge to which he felt bound to call attention, were the exertions made by Bro. Simm, their Secretary, as it was to his endeavours they were principally indebted for the existence of No. 1408. The formation of a new lodge was, long ago, seen to be inevitable, but it was only when Bro. Simm brought his influence to bear upon the movement that the new lodge was brought into existence.

Bro. Lambert proposed "The Visitors," and the other toasts were "The Officers of the Lodge," "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," and "All Poor and Distressed Masons." Excellent harmony was contributed by Bros. Ibbes, Turvey, Mott, and others.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE AT SEVENOAKS.

On Wednesday, Sept. 25, the grand and interesting ceremony of the consecration of the "Knole Lodge," No. 1414, took place at the Masonic Hall, the old Sevenoaks Scientific and Literary Institute.

The rareness and importance of the proceedings attracted a large number, not only of the brethren of the province, but also from the neighbouring provinces.

The brethren assembled in a tent which had been erected for the occasion close to the building, and there formed in procession, and, headed by Bro. Lacy, D.C., proceeded to the new lodge room, when the ceremony of consecration was performed in a most impressive manner by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, P.M., Prov. G. Sec. for Middlesex, the officer nominated by the Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M. for Kent, assisted by the present P.G. officers, Bro. Stone, P.G.S.W., Bro. Emmerson, P.G.J.W., and Bro. E. Wates, P.G. Sec., &c.

The P.G. Chaplain, Bro. Hill, P.M., offered up prayer, and subsequently an oration on the nature and principles of the institution. The usual anthems, omnes, sanctuses, &c., were admirably rendered by Bros. Thos. Distin, Thos. Baxter, and G. Carter, Bro. Smith accompanying on the harmonium.

The usual Masonic ceremonies consequent upon the consecration of a new lodge were then gone through, terminating with Haydn's beautiful anthem, "The spacious firmament on high."

After the consecration service, Bro. Edward Palmer was installed as the W.M. of the new lodge by Bro. Little, Bro. W.L. Barnes, P.S.D. 906, having read the ancient charges.

The W.M. appointed the officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. G.F. Carnell, S.W.; C.C. Petley, J.W.; B.J. Morrell, Treas.; W.L. Barnes, Sec.; W. Pawley, S.D.; H.H. Sutton, J.D.; Charles Carnell, I.G.; Thomas Lyell and G. Morrell, Stewards.; William Whitehead, Tyler.

The W.M. then proposed Bro. Little and Bro. Hill as honorary members. Several brethren were proposed and duly seconded as joining members, and several gentlemen proposed as candidates for admission. The lodge was then closed with hearty good wishes from several of the brethren.

The founders of the lodge are Brothers Edward Palmer, G. F. Carnell, C.C. Petley, W.L. Barnes, H. H. Sutton, C. Carnell, and B. J. Morrell. After the business of the lodge was ended, the majority of the brethren adjourned to the banquet at the Crown Hotel, and did ample justice to the sumptuous repast, served in Bro. Pawley's usual excellent style, on occasions similar to the present.

The W.M. presided, supported on the right by Bro. Little, and left by Bro. Parkinson.

The usual loyal and masonic toasts were given and warmly received.

The W.M., in giving the toast of "The Prince of Wales," said that the Freemasons were proud that they could think of the Prince as a brother mason, and were all rejoiced at his recovery, and he sincerely trusted that he would live many years to enjoy the health so happily restored to him.

Bro. Parkinson, in a neat and appropriate speech, proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and expressed the great pleasure he felt in being present at the opening of a lodge of which Bro. Palmer was the first W.M.

The W.M., in responding, said that he felt exceedingly proud at being the first W.M. of the youngest lodge, and that honour should be rendered to those to whom honour was due. The labour in founding the lodge had rested on Bros. Petley and Barnes, who had worked incessantly for some months in endeavouring to bring about what they had that day witnessed. But for those two he was convinced that the Knole Lodge never would have been founded; he begged to thank Bro. Little and the officers assisting him in performing the interesting ceremony of consecrating the lodge, and to propose "Bro. Little's Health" in a bumper.

Bro. Little, in responding, said he felt great pleasure in opening the Knole Lodge, and thus extending the social advantages and moral benefits which Freemasonry must ever confer on those brought within its influence, and at the same time expressed his great approbation of the admirable manner in which the business of the day had been conducted by Bro. Palmer.

"The health of the visitors" was then proposed and responded to by Bro. Bird.

The W.M. next gave "The health of the Wardens," which was responded to by Bros. Carnell and Petley.

Then followed "The health of the Secretary and the rest of the officers of the lodge," to which Bro. Barnes briefly responded.

Several songs and glees were sung in the course of the evening by Bros. Distin, Baxter, and Montem Smith, Bro. Smith accompanying on the pianoforte.

Great praise is due to the Stewards and Secretary for the admirable arrangements and decorations of the lodge-room, which was very tastefully draped and laid out.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes and washes in general use have no effect upon these Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box.) completely destroy and remove these animalcules, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 50, Harley Street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practice their unique system of painless dentistry.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE, AND THE SUPREME COUNCIL OF ENGLAND AND WALES.

The following correspondence between the Supreme Council of England and Wales, and the Grand Orient of France, has been forwarded to us for publication :—

Grand Orient de France
O. de Paris le 5 Octobre, 1872, (E.V.)
Au. Ill. F., J. M. P. Montague, Grand Secrétaire du Suprême Conseil d'Angleterre.

Cher Monsieur et T. Ill. Frère,
Ayant été consulté par l'Ill. F. John Hervey, Grand Secrétaire de la Grande Loge d'Angleterre, sur les agissements du F. Harry J. Seymour, je lui ai répondu à la date du 30 Septembre, 1871, dans les termes suivants.

"J'ai la faveur de répondre à votre lettre du 22 de ce mois, en regrettant de ne l'avoir pas pu faire plutôt.

"Ni en 1866, ni à aucune époque le Grand Orient de France, n'a reconnu le Rite Ancien et Primitif de la Maçonnerie, dont vous m'entretenez, et qui se serait récemment introduit dans le Lancashire. A un moment donné, et dans le but de faire disparaître la pluralité de rites, le Grand Orient de France, s'est annexé et a absorbé le rite de Memphis, sous la condition expresse que les Ateliers de ce rite, qu'il admettait sous son obédience, ne pourraient conférer, d'après leurs rituels spéciaux que les trois premiers grades symbolique d'apprenti, de compagnon, et de maître, ne reconnaissant aucun autre grade ni aucun titre de ce rite.

"Nous avons vu à Paris le F. Harry J. Seymour, l'époque de ce traité passé avec le Chef Suprême de ce rite, le F. Marconis de Nègre, mais aucun pouvoir ne lui a été donné par le Grand Orient de France concernant ce rite. Du reste le Grand Orient de France, ne donne, et n'a jamais donné à une personne isolée le droit de faire des Maçons ou de créer des Ateliers.

"Plus tard et par la mauvaise foi du F. Marconis de Nègre, qui prétendait n'avoir cédé son rite au Grand Orient de France, que pour la France seulement, le F. Harry J. Seymour s'entitula Grand Maître du rite de Memphis en Amérique, et fonda à New York un Souverain Sanctuaire de ce rite. Des correspondances furent échangées entre ce nouveau pouvoir et le Grand Orient de France; le nom de ce Souverain Sanctuaire figura même à notre Calendrier de 1867. Mais lorsque le Grand Orient de France apprit que ce pouvoir dépassait les trois grades symboliques, et que sa bonne foi avait été surprise, il rompit avec ce pouvoir et personnellement avec le F. Harry J. Seymour; depuis cette époque, en effet, on ne trouve plus au Calendrier Maçonique du Grand Orient de France, ni le nom du F. Harry J. Seymour, comme Grand Maître, ni la puissance Maçonique qu'il avait fondée. Votre lettre me porte à croire que le F. Harry J. Seymour cherche, je ne sais dans quel but, à introduire un nouveau rite en Angleterre, dans ce pays de la primitive et seule vraie Maçonnerie, une des plus respectables que je connaisse. Je considère ce fait comme un malheur. Le Grand Orient de France a fait les plus grands efforts pour anéantir le Rite de Memphis; il y est parvenu, les ateliers de ce rite qu'il avait d'abord accueillis ont tous abandonné le Rite de Memphis pour travailler au Rite Français. Je fais des vœux pour qu'il en soit ainsi dans le Royaume Uni, et vous me trouverez toujours disposé à vous seconder."

"Me référant à cette lettre, je n'ai, T. Ill. F. qu'un mot à vous ajouter. C'est que la Constitution du Grand Orient de France lui interdit de fonder des Ateliers dans les pays où il y a déjà une puissance Maçonique régulière; et s'il ne peut y fonder des Ateliers, à plus forte raison il ne saurait donner des chartres pour fonder des Grandes pouvoirs maçoniques; en d'autres termes, jamais le Grand Orient de France n'a donné au F. Harry J. Seymour, ni à aucun autre, pouvoirs de constituer soit un atelier, soit de créer un rite, ou de faire des maçons. Le F. Harry J. Seymour peut parfaitement bien avoir sur un Diplôme les signatures du Grand Maître et du Chef du Secrétariat du Grand Orient de France, à titre de visa fraternel; mais à coup sur il n'a ni une Charte, ni un Pouvoir. Aussi vous prierais-je de faire tous vos efforts pour avoir la copie textuelle des documents dont se prévaut le F. Harry J. Seymour. C'est sur le vû de cette pièce qu'il faut juger la question, et j'attends, à ce sujet de votre fraternelle bienveillance des nouvelles communications.

Agréé, cher Monsieur et T. Ill. Frère, l'assurance de ma haute considération et de mes sentiments fraternels.

Le Chef du Secrétariat, THEVENOT.

Grand Orient of France.

Paris, 5th October, 1872.

To the Very Illustrious Bro. J. M. P. Montague, Grand Secretary of the Supreme Council of England.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having been consulted by the Illustrious Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of England, concerning the proceedings of Bro. J. Seymour, I replied to him, in the following terms, on the 30th September, 1871.

"I have the pleasure to reply to your letter of the 22nd of this month, and regret not having been able to do so sooner. Neither in 1866, nor at any other period, has the Grand Orient of France recognised "the Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry," concerning which you inquire, and which has been recently introduced in Lancashire.

"At a particular time, and with the intention of causing the plurality of rites to disappear, the Grand Orient of France annexed and absorbed the Rite of Memphis, under the express condition that the lodges of that rite, which were received under its jurisdiction, should confer only the Three Symbolic Degrees of Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master, according to its special rituals, and refused to recognise any other degree, or any other title, belonging to such rite.

"At the period when this treaty was negotiated with the Supreme Chief of this rite, Bro. Marconis de Nègre, Bro. J. Seymour was at Paris, and seen by us, but no power was conferred on him by the Grand Orient of France, concerning this rite, and what is more, the Grand Orient of France does not give, and has, never given, to any single person, the right to make Masons, or to create lodges.

"Afterwards, and in consequence of the bad faith of Bro. Marconis de Nègre, who pretended he had ceded his rite to the Grand Orient of France, for France alone, Bro. Harry J. Seymour assumed the title of Grand Master of the Rite of Memphis in America, and founded in New York a Sovereign Sanctuary of this rite. A correspondence ensued between this new power and the Grand Orient of France, and even the name of this Sovereign Sanctuary appeared in our Calendar for 1867. But when the Grand Orient of France learned that this power went beyond the Three Symbolic Degrees, and that its confidence had been deceived, the Grand Orient broke off all connection with this power, and personally with Bro. Harry J. Seymour, and in fact, since that period, neither the name of Bro. Harry J. Seymour, as Grand Master, nor the Masonic power which he founded, have any longer appeared in the Masonic Calendar of the Grand Orient.

"Your letter leads me to believe that Bro. Harry J. Seymour is endeavouring, I do not know with what object, to introduce a new Rite into England, in that country of the primitive and only true Masonry, one of the most respectable that I know of. I consider this event as a misfortune.

"The Grand Orient of France has made the strongest efforts to destroy the Rite of Memphis, it has succeeded. The lodges, of the Rite, which it at first received within its jurisdiction, have all abandoned the Rite of Memphis to work according to the French Rite, I sincerely desire that it may be the same in the United Kingdom, and you will ever find me ready to second your efforts."

Referring to this letter, I have, very Illustrious Brother, but one word to add, and that is that the Constitution of the Grand Orient of France interdicts its founding lodges in countries where a regular Masonic power already exists, and if it cannot found lodges, à fortiori, it cannot grant charters to establish Grand Masonic Powers, in other terms, the Grand Orient of France never has given to Bro Harry J. Seymour, nor to any other person, powers to constitute a lodge, or to create a rite, or to make Masons. Bro. Harry J. Seymour may perfectly well have the signatures of the Grand Master, and of the Chief of the Secretary's office of the Grand Orient of France on a diploma, as a fraternal visa, but certainly he has neither a Charter nor a power. I also beg you to make every effort to obtain the textual copy of the documents of which Bro. Harry J. Seymour takes advantage. It is by the inspection of this document it will be necessary to judge the question, and I await new communications on this subject from your fraternal kindness.

Receive, dear Sir, &c.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL

The Doric Chapter of Instruction, which has hitherto been announced in our columns as meeting at the Rising Sun Tavern, Bethnal Green Road, will on and after Thursday evening, October 17th, assemble at Comp, Yetton's, the Three Cranes Tavern, Mile End Road, at 8 o'clock precisely. Comp. Thomas Barnes, Preceptor.

The foundation stone of a new building for the Watt Institution and School of Arts in Edinburgh was laid on Wednesday by the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, Grand Master Mason of Scotland, the old building having been removed in connection with the city improvements. The Grand Master was accompanied by the members of the Grand Lodge and upwards of 1,000 brethren from the various Masonic lodges in Edinburgh and other parts of the country. The proceedings were completely successful in every respect.

The Freemasons in the province of Kent have have determined upon raising a memorial to their late Provincial Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Dobson, of Gravesend, and, having discarded proposals for a monument and a stained window, have resolved to found a scholarship at Cambridge University at the cost of £1,000, to be given for ever to a Kentish lad from the Masonic school.

The Aden Conclave, No. 89, of the Red Cross Order has been formed at Aden, Arabia. Colonel S. W. Penn, C.B., Commanding the Royal Artillery at the Station, is the first M.P.S.

We are informed that the Alpha Crucis Conclave, No. 86, recently established at Wellington, New Zealand, is progressing favourably. Grand Councils of the Order have been organised in Illinois and New York.

The marriage scene of the Princess Louise and the Marquess of Lorne, exquisitely carved on an enormous pipe bowl, has just been imported by Bro. Posener, of the Upton Lodge. So unique a work of art is not often seen, every figure is solid and the likenesses of the various Royal and other personages are marvellously accurate. Bro. Posener will be very pleased to exhibit it to any brother who may take interest in such matters, at his warehouse in Mansell-street, Aldgate, before it is forwarded to its destination.

"For several years I have suffered from repeated and severe attacks of lumbago, and I can truly say that I have never found such effectual relief as I have recently from the use of your Vegetable Pain Killer. Its effects are truly marvellous.—John Longley, 16, Chapel-st. London, Jan., 1870.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

MARRIAGE.

SANDERS—FURSE.—October 2nd, at Hampstead Church, Bro. Thomas Sanders, surgeon of South Molton, S.W. of Lodge 421, to Lucy, youngest daughter of the late Robert Furse, Esq., surgeon, of South Molton, and sister to Bro. Edwin Furse, P.M. of Lodge No. 421.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

"LODGE OF EMULATION" AND ITS HISTORY.

By BRO. BRACKSTONE BAKER, P.M., P.G.D.

The early history of the Lodge of Emulation, No. 21, is a remarkable one, and in many respects of a much more interesting character than the ordinary run of "Centenary Lodges," which are now rapidly increasing in number. Its original warrant of Constitution, bearing date 15th May, 1723, was lost many years ago, but the fact of its antiquity is duly acknowledged in a warrant of confirmation, issued on the 15th March, 1810. We are at a loss to know why the members have so long delayed their application for a "Centenary Jewel," especially when it is evident from the careful History, compiled by Bro. Baker, that the lodge has been active for a century and a half. We should like very much to transfer the whole of this capital sketch of No. 21 to our columns, but in the absence of any authority so to do, we must be contented with a rapid survey of its chief points of interest.

The lodge appears to compose in reality three Lodges, viz "Mourning Bush," No. 19, of A.D. 1723; "Constitution," No. 390, A.D. 1767; and "Emulation," No. 324, A.D. 1772. The latter however was virtually a revival of the second on the list. The Constitution Lodge met for a little more than three years, and throughout this brief period was not a very popular, or even a very harmonious one. Its connection with the present lodge, and with the Mourning Bush was owing to the efforts of Bro. William White, the Grand Secretary, who, with some few others, rescued it, from oblivion, and having altered its name to Emulation, the Constitution disappeared from the Roll, and its more fortunate successor has flourished unto this present time.

The first officers of the Emulation No. 324, were S. Hill, W.M., William White, S.W.; and Dowdall, J.W. Grand Secretary White, served the office of Master for 1771-2-3 and 7. His son, William Henry White, (born November 10, 1777) was initiated 15th April, 1799, and passed the same evening. In December, 1800, he was elected W.M., and was re-elected 1804 to 1809. These two Grand Secretaries, father and son, for so many years members of the lodge, and each in his time regularly attending its meetings, contributed in no slight degree to its prosperity and popularity.

Bro. William Preston, author of the "Illustrations of Masonry," became a joining member in A.D. 1772, the same year in which the first edition of his famous work appeared. James Heseltine, Grand Secretary, also joined the lodge at the same time. In April, 1773, a Lodge of Instruction was founded, in connection with the lodge, in order to promote a knowledge of Masonry among the members, and we suppose tobacco was freely provided at the meetings for the use of the brethren, as a payment is noticed in the Treasurer's accounts, October 20th, 1777, for herb tobacco.

The lodge was a contributor to the Freemasons' Hall Loan Fund, and subsequently resigned its claim to repayment, for which handsome donation the Grand Lodge passed a vote of thanks, and presented a medal to the lodge, as a mark of distinction, to be worn ever afterwards by the Master for the time being.

In 1780 the lodge united with the "Mourning Bush," and it is from this union that the Emulation derives its antiquity, the name of the younger lodge being continued, but the number 12 was retained, and the place of the Mourning Bush on the roll of lodges was accordingly occupied by the Emulation, representing lodges of A.D. 1723 and 1767 respectively.

The right of a lodge to return a Grand Steward is considered to be a very valuable privilege. Eighteen exercise that right annually at the present time, but prior to the Union of A.D. 1813, only twelve did. This distinction was possessed by the Mourning Bush Lodge, and for 140 years (with the Emulation) in uninterrupted succession this privilege has been retained. Bro. Fotherly Baker represented the lodge as Grand Steward, 30th March, 1734, and in 1747 was appointed Deputy Grand Master. Another member, Bro. John Jesse, Grand Steward in 1756, was Grand Treasurer from 1738 to 1752. Bro. Rowland Berkely, Grand Steward for the Lodge 1760, was elected Grand Treasurer from 1756 to 1785. Other Masons of note, members of this ancient Lodge, might be mentioned, such as Bro. W. P. Norris, Treasurer, 1799, on the death of his father-in-law, Bro. S. Clark, who had held that office from 1775. The office of Treasurer was held in the same family for a period of 32 years.

The Grand Secretary initiated his brother, Thomas Edward White, in 1813, who served all the lodge offices, and continued a member until his death, in 1835. His son, Bro. Thomas Reynolds White, P.G.D. is still a member of the lodge, as is also Bro. Thomas W. White, the son of the last named; some representative of the family being thus on the roll of members from 1770 to the present time.

Bro. James Deans, who distinguished himself by the prominent part he took in promoting the Union of the two Grand Lodges, was initiated in the Emulation Lodge, 20th October, 1783, was Grand Steward in 1801, W.M. in 1811 and 1812, and was appointed J.G.W. in 1811. In November 1813, he initiated his son into the lodge, who was afterwards Grand Sword Bearer.

Many of the minutes quoted by Bro. Baker are most interesting, and we are sorry the excellent little book has been printed for "private circulation" only, as it has a value far beyond the limited circle of actual friendship.

The minute books of the Mourning Bush commence 24th December, 1756 (the earlier records being unfortunately lost), and those of the Emulation comprise all the years from the beginning of the Constitution Lodge in 1767, its absorption in 1770, and from then, to its union with the Mourning Bush, in 1780. The minute books from 1780, to the present, are, we are glad to say, happily preserved, and long may they be kept as an evidence of the career of one of the most successful early lodges which yet exist.

There are only ten lodges older than this lodge, viz., Nos. 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, the Grand Steward's being several years its junior, and the odd numbers from the Grand Masters' Lodge, No. 1, to the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, have all been warranted since A.D. 1750, by the ancients. Hence, in point of age, it should now stand as No. 11.

We hope to see more of such histories of lodges, as many should, we think, contain much of a valuable and instructive character, illustrative of the progress of Freemasonry, during the last century, and if every centenary lodge is fortunate to possess so able a writer as No. 21, there is yet much pleasure in store for us all.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The half yearly election of this Institution took place at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday last. Bro. J. Symonds, V.P., presided. The following were the successful Candidates:—

Durant, Pauline Le Clerc	1183
Broadbent, Lucinda.....	1089
Gardner, Frances E.	1052
Wilson, Edith Ann.....	969
Harryman, Ellen.....	905
Nash, Edith Mary	898

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The first regular meeting of this lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Thursday, the 3rd inst., Bro. J. Harris, W.M., in the chair, fully supported by his officers as follows;—Bros. F. Trott, S.W.; George Abbott, J.W.; W. Goodyear, P.M., Treasurer; J.G. Marsh, P.M., Secretary; George Newman, S.D.; Thomas Cohe, J.D.; Charles Arkell, I.G.; E. Jones, D.C. The lodge was opened in the first degree. The minutes of the last regular meeting, and that of the emergency subsequent thereto were read and confirmed. The W.M. then opened the lodge in 2nd and 3rd degrees. Bro. J. W. Michael was then raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The Lodge was then resumed in the 1st and opened in the 2nd degree, Bros. David McVicar, A. G. Manks and F. Fellows, were duly passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge having been again resumed in the 1st degree, Bro. William Waring was initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, the ceremonies being worked by the W.M. in a very able manner. The Secretary, (Bro. Marsh) informed the brethren that since the meeting in March last, the lodge had lost two of its members, Bro. John King, and Bro. Walter Putnam. The lodge passed a vote of condolence to Bro. E. King, P.M., in the melancholy loss he had sustained by the decease of his father, who was an old member of this lodge, and ordered the same to be entered on the minutes. A few notices of motion having been given, the lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned to the next regular meeting. The remainder of the members present were—Bros. George Kenning, I.P.M.; E. King, P.M.; E. Roberts, P.M.; S. Lucas, F. Jackson, S. Edwards, T. Fisher, W. Figs, George Parker, J. Anderson, H. Davis, Charles Cann, T. Gardner, J. Cook, S. Haynes, F. Scott, W. Cotter, F. Baker, W. R. Baker, J. Kent, W. Donne, W. Harwood, A. J. Garnett, H. Legg, W. F. Bates, and B. Marsland. The brethren then repaired to a sumptuous banquet, well served by Bro. S. Spencer (the proprietor of the hotel), under the management of Bro. W. F. Bates, at which Bro. J. Harris, W.M., presided. The cloth being removed, the W.M. (during the evening) gave the customary loyal and Masonic toasts in the most efficient and appropriate terms, which were amply and heartily responded to, not excluding that of "The Visitors," of which there were several present. Each returned thanks in excellent speeches, thanking the W.M. and brethren for the kind and genial hospitality they always received from the Lion and Lamb Lodge. The well-known summons of the Tyler to the back of the Master's chair, brought a very pleasant gathering to a close. The visitors present on this occasion were—Bros. W. Worrall, W.M. 1339; W. E. P. Carter, S.D. 211; G. A. Archer, 407; H. Dyne, J.W. 396, J. Linsdell, J.W. 311; G. E. Quinton, 473, Ireland.

INSTRUCTION.

STRONG MAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—The usual meeting of this ancient Lodge of Instruction was held on Monday last at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, Bro. Hames, W.M.; Reuters, S.W.; Owens, J.W., and several other brethren were present. Bro. Beckett, the Preceptor, gave the assemblage the benefit of his knowledge of Masonic lore, and at the close of the business Bro. Defries presented the lodge with a beautiful pair of compasses, and Bro. Davies presented a handsome square. Both jewels are of silver and bear a suitable inscription, these handsome presents will complete the jewels of the lodge in silver. Some of the working tools are very old, dating so far back as 1797, and we doubt if any other lodge of instruction has such ancient implements of labour.

CORNWALL.

BODMIN.—One and All Lodge (No. 356).—The members of this lodge assembled at their Hall, on the 23rd ult., for the purpose of practically showing their appreciation of two of their oldest and most esteemed brethren. Bro. John R. Collins, W.M., Prov. G. Reg., was in the chair, and in a few introductory observations, explained the object of the meeting. The W.M. then, in a most appropriate speech, presented two Gold Past Master's Jewels to Bro. Captain Hugh G. Colvill, P.G.W. of Cornwall and R. Rich, G.W. of Cornwall. Bro. Colvill, the W.M. remarked, had been of great service to the Craft, not only in this country, and especially at Bodmin, but also in India, where on his leaving, even greater honours had been paid him than the One and All Lodge was able to perform. What the members however had unanimously agreed agreed to do, was done with the best of feeling and with the greatest of pleasure. To Bro. Richard Rich, a Past Master of the lodge of some twenty-two years standing, the lodge was considerably indebted, and having been their Secretary for several years, and though old in the service of the Craft, still continued to discharge the onerous duties of that office, it was no wonder that the lodge had carried, with acclamation, the proposition to present the jewels to two such worthy and distinguished brethren. The W.M. also stated that the members feel that the election of the widow of the late Bro. White, as an annuitant of the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and of Bro. Harvey as a member of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund, was mainly due to their exertions. Bro. Captain Colvill, in a neat speech, thanked the W.M. and members for the compliment paid to him, and referred to the time when he joined the lodge, some twelve years since, and the warm greeting he received then, which, together with their present kindness, would ever be cherished most warmly by him. Bro. Rich spoke in most grateful terms of the flattering acknowledgement his humble services had received at the hands of No. 330. As an old Past Master, he took a great interest in the welfare of the lodge, and he considered he had done no more than his duty in seeking to attain the objects so ably mentioned by the W.M. in his speech. He was very glad to state that the lodge was never in such a fit condition as at the present time. It was formed 73 years ago, and at no period of its history had it been financially and numerically so prosperous as now. The brethren were highly pleased with the whole of the proceedings, which were brought to a close amidst the plaudits of the brethren. The ex-Prov. G. Secretary, Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.M. 113, was specially invited to attend, and as honorary member of the lodge, would have been delighted to do so in honour of the occasion, but a prior engagement prevented his doing so. The jewels were selected from the stock of Bro. George Kenning, (London and Liverpool), and were much admired for their excellence of workmanship and beauty of design.

CHACEWATER.—Boscawen Lodge (No. 699).—The usual monthly meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Monday last, Bro. Rev. G. L. Church, P.G. Chaplain, W.M. The business of the evening was to ballot for a joining member, to pass Bro. Lenkin, and raise Bro. Symons; there were a large number of the lodge present. After the lodge had been duly worked up, and brought back to the first degree, Bro. Ninnes, P.M., P. Prov. G.R., after a few appropriate remarks, proposed—"That this lodge having heard with the deepest regret, of the decease of the Prov. G. Master, Bro. Augustus Smith, do record on the minute book, its sense of the very great loss the Province of Cornwall, and the fraternity at large has sustained thereby, that the unvarying kindness, sympathy, and ability of the Prov. G. Master, evinced towards the brethren, and in the successful administration of the affairs of the Province, had so endeared to the hearts of one and all, that his memory will not soon be forgotten." This was seconded by Bro. Paull, P.M., P. Prov. G.S. Supt. of Works. Bro. P.M. Paull proposed that the brethren of this, the largest lodge in the province, invite their W.M. to draw up a petition to be signed by himself and the Past Masters of the lodge, to the Most Worshipful G.M., the Marquis of Ripon, in favour of the appointment of Bro. Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., P.J.G.W. of England, as Prov. G. Master of Cornwall. This was seconded by Bro. Hughan, P.M., P.G. Steward, and supported by the W.M., Bro. Hall, P.M., P.G.S.D., and carried with applause. The following is a copy of the petition:—"To the M.W.G.M., the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., &c., &c. The undersigned, W.M. and Past Masters of the Boscawen Lodge, No. 699, Chacewater, desire to address your Grace under the following circumstances. The Province of Cornwall has, by the fiat of the G.A.O.T.U., been deprived by death of the guidance and governance of its late P.G.M., Bro. Augustus Smith, It would sorely become us to do more than recall to your Grace's remembrance the many valuable services which our late P.G.M. rendered to the cause of Masonry, especially in his own Province, as we are well assured those services were not unknown to your Grace. Passing on from this, we look forward with anxiety, and at the same time with confidence, to the appointment of our future P.G.M., and we humbly beg to draw your Grace's attention to the very deep interest which Bro. Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., P.G.J.W., and Past Prov. G.S.W., has always shown to Masonry in Grand Lodge, as in his own Province, but most especially to his munificent assistance to all Masonic institutions.

We beg to conclude, by assuring your Grace, that whoever may be appointed by the M.W.G.M. as the P.G.M. of Cornwall, will receive from the brethren of this lodge that dutiful allegiance which should at all times characterise the fraternity. Signed, George Lemon Church, W.M. No. 699, Prov. G. Chaplain; Samuel G. Moyle, P.M. 699, P. Prov. G.S.; John Ninnes, P.M. 699, P. Prov. G. Reg.; William Bray, P.M. 699; John Paull, P.M. 699, P. Prov. G. Wks.; John Hall, P.M. 699, Prov. G.J.D; W. PHugoe, P.M. 699, Prov. G.S.; William Buckingham, P.M. 699; Samuel Mitchell, P.M. 699; James Bryant, P.M. 699.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—The Baldwin Lodge (No. 1398).—The first regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 12th August, in the lodge-room, the Castle, Dalton-in-Furness. In the absence of Bro. W. J. A. Baldwin, W.M., the lodge was duly opened by Bro. R. Pearson, W.M. of Lodge of Furness, 995, Ulverston, who was supported by Bros. J. Case, P.M. 995; W. Whiteside, S.W.; J. Postlewaite, J.W.; and other officers, and a full lodge of brethren. The minutes of the Consecration and Installation were read and confirmed. A proposition was received for the admission of a candidate as serving brother, to perform the office of Tyler. Five candidates for initiation, and four brethren as joining members, were proposed. The proposed bye-laws were taken as read, and the lodge was finally closed by the acting W.M. A lodge of emergency was held on the 27th Aug., when, under a dispensation obtained for the purpose, Mr. Thomas Cooper was duly initiated as serving brother, by Bro. Pearson, W.M., who announced that in respect to the memory of the late Prov. G. Master, Sir Thomas George Fernor-Hesketh, Bart., M.P., the lodge would assume mourning for the ensuing three months. The second regular meeting was held on the 9th ult., under the presidency of Bro. R. Pearson, acting W.M. The ballot was taken for four joining members, and was unanimous in their favour. The ballot was also taken for five candidates, which proved favourable in two cases. Mr. James Harrison was duly initiated by the W.M., the charge being given by Bro. W. Whiteside, S.W. Two propositions for admission, and one as joining member, were received. A motion was made by the S.W., and seconded by the J.W., that a letter of thanks be forwarded in the name of the lodge to Edward Wadham, Esq., the local agent of His Grace the Duke of Buccleuch, for his great kindness in granting the use of the ancient castle for the purposes of Masonry. The lodge was closed at 8:30 p.m. At a lodge of emergency held on the 25th ult., presided over by Bro. Pearson, acting W.M., one candidate was initiated, and the serving brother, having proved his proficiency was passed to the Fellow Craft Degree. The lodge was afterwards closed in due form.

ULVERSTON.—Lodge of Furness (No. 995).—The usual monthly communication was held at the Masonic Temple, on the 1st instant. There was a large attendance of brethren. The lodge was opened in due form, by the W.M., Bro. R. Pearson, whose officers were all in their places. After the usual formal business, Mr. James Spedding, being in attendance, was duly initiated by the W.M., in his usual impressive manner. The working tools were admirably explained by W. Bro. T. Dodgson, I.P.M., and the charge by W. Bro. Barber, M.D., P.M. The votes of the Masonic Charities, requiring attention, were, as usual, placed at the discretion of the Master and Wardens. Considering the age of this lodge, the position it holds by virtue of the votes it has secured in the London and Provincial Masonic institutions, offers a praiseworthy example to young lodges. W. Bro. Barber, M.D., P.M., the founder and first W.M. of this lodge, rose, and said he wished to bring before the brethren a subject which he knew would recommend itself to every brother present, he referred to the appointment of their Worshipful Bro. Roger Dodgson, 86, S.W. 995, and W.M. 1390, to an office, in the P.G. Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland, and remarked that the honour conferred upon their brother, was in his opinion, a very proper testimony to merit and ability, and he was sure every brother in the lodge would take it as a compliment to No. 995. He had watched the Masonic career of their distinguished brother, and from the zeal, ability, and energy he had displayed, he considered that the P.G. Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland had, in his case, maintained the grand landmarks of the Order, "merit and ability," in the selection of the W.M. of No. 1390, as P.G.S.B. He hoped the lodge would convey to Worshipful Bro. R. Dodgson, their sincere and hearty congratulations. The W.M., in seconding the proposition, expressed his entire concurrence in the testimony borne by P.M. Barber, to the zeal, ability, and perseverance manifested by Bro. R. Dodgson in Masonry, and in submitting the resolution to the brethren, suggested that their acquiescence might be testified by heartily joining in that Masonic chant, "Prosper the Art," which was rendered in a joyous and spirited manner. Bro. R. Dodgson said he replied with much diffidence, and in thanking the brethren for this additional mark of their esteem, remarked that he looked upon the appointment more as a compliment to the Whitwell Lodge, No. 1390, than a reward for any services he had been able to render to Masonry. W. Bro. Quartermaster Sergeant Case, P.M., P.G.J. 86, 995, 1390, 1398, and Bro. Sergeant-major Paxton, Sec., testified to the profuse hospitality and fraternal greeting they had received during their recent visit to Belgium from the Lodge of Liberty at Ghent. Bro. W. B. Atherstone, who was proposed as a joining member, addressed the W.M. and brethren, bestowing high praise on the excellent manner in which the working of the lodge was carried out. He thought it did them great credit, and proposed hearty good wishes from lodges 113, 950, 986, and 1390. Bro. A. W. Orr, in tendering the good wishes of No. 986, said he had often heard of the handsome Hall at Ulverston, and the correctness of the working; but he had never witnessed the fine ritual of the Order so effectually and musically rendered. Bro. Hunt, of the Joppa Lodge, London, expressed himself highly gratified that he had an opportunity of visiting the lodge. It was his privilege to attend several London lodges, and he could say that in the whole of his Masonic experience he had never seen a better appointed or more richly decorated Temple, neither had he been present on any occasion where the ceremonial had been more correctly rendered. He thought the arrangements of the choir were of such a perfect character as to greatly enhance the work of the evening. The whole business reflected great credit upon the W.M. and his officers, and it would afford him great pleasure to report to the lodges with which he was connected, the agreeable surprise he had met with. He concluded with good wishes. The choir mustered in good force, and rendered most substantial aid during the proceedings. The lodge was closed in ancient form, and with solemn prayer.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Royal Hotel, High-st., on the 3rd inst. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. J. Fenn, who has been removed to Dorchester, the chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. C. Carnegie, I.P.M., P.G.Purst. Hants, who was supported by the following officers: Bros. J. Osmond, P.M.; Capt. Richardson, R.E., S.W.; A. McKenzie, J.W.; R. White, Sec.; T.W. Mayer, as S.D.; R. Bennett, J.D.; F. Anderson, I.G.; U. Lucas, O.G. There were several visiting brethren from the regiments lately arrived in camp. The lodge was opened in form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Sergt. W. Drew, A.S. Corps, a candidate for initiation, and for Bro. Edmond, 1066, as a joining member, which proved unanimous in each case. Bro. Harper a candidate for the F.C. degree, was examined respecting his proficiency in the former degree, which proving satisfactory, he was entrusted with a test of merit, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bros. Thomas and Munro, candidates for the M.M. degree, were examined respecting their proficiency in the F.C. degree, which being satisfactory, they were intrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and Bros. Thomas and Munro were raised to the sublime degree; the S.W. explaining the working tools in his usual effective manner, and the W.M. pro tem. giving the Charge, and putting round the questions appertaining to the degree, for the information the newly raised brethren. The lodge was closed down to the second degree, and Bro. Harper passed to the F.C. degree, the J.W. presenting the working tools. The lodge was closed down to the first degree, and Sergt. Drew, A.S. Corps, was initiated into Masonry by Bro. Osmond, P.M., the S.W. presenting the working tools. The brethren then proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. Capt. Richardson, R.E. was unanimously chosen; Bro. C. Carnegie, I.P.M.; was unanimously elected Treasurer, and Bro. Marversly, O.G. Bro. Dillon of the Goderich Lodge, Leeds, signed his Grand Lodge Certificate, which was then presented to him by the W.M. pro tem. It was proposed by Bro. Osmond, P.M. seconded by Bro. Bennett, J.D., and unanimously agreed to, that the outgoing W.M. Bro. J. Fenn, he presented with a Past Master's jewel, suitably inscribed. Two brethren were proposed as joining members, and some other business transacted, the lodge was closed in peace, harmony, and brotherly love.

SCOTLAND.

CONSECRATION OF ST. ANDREW'S LODGE, ABERDEEN.

This lodge was consecrated on Wednesday, the 18th September, by the R.W. Bro. Capt. Hunter, F.R.S. and F.S.A. Scotland, Prov. G.M. of Aberdeenshire East, and his officers, their was a large assemblage of the brethren of the province, every lodge being represented, besides brethren from the Aberdeen City province, with the R.W. Bro. Dr. Beveridge, the P.G.M. of that province.

The Craft Lodge was opened at six o'clock at the St. Andrew's Hall, and the P.G.M. and his officers received at seven. The impressiveness of the consecration was much enhanced by the P.G. Chaplains, the V.W. Bros. John Stewart and McLean. Bro. McLean, of Fraserburgh, delivered an able address on the History of Freemasonry in Scotland from an early age. The music was led by Bro. Skakle of St. George's Lodge, Aberdeen, and was well executed.

After the ceremony was over the brethren adjourned to refreshment at the Episcopal School room, kindly given up to them by Bro. the Rev. Webster, of the St. Andrew's Lodge. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, the meeting broke up at an early hour, as many of the brethren had great distances to go. The spirited way in which the St. Andrew's Lodge has been conducted since it was started received as it well deserved the warmest commendations from the Provincial Grand Master.

Royal Arch.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

CONSECRATION OF A NEW CHAPTER AT BLACKPOOL.

Last Friday afternoon, the 4th inst., there was a large assembly of Royal Arch Masons at the Clifton Arms and Pier Hotel, Blackpool, for the purpose of assisting at the consecration of the Clifton Chapter, No. 703.

The interest in the business was greatly increased by the fact that Comp. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale had consented to take the chair as First Principal, thereby giving fresh evidence of his zeal for the Masonic cause, and his willingness to give active help in the furtherance of its prosperity and standing.

By appointment, the ceremonies of consecration and installation were performed by Comp. A. C. Mott, 32, 129, 143, 178, 341, 680, 823, 1086, P.Z., P.Prov.G.S.N., (whose working was of the most efficient and impressive kind), valuable assistance given by Comp. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain of England; T. Ashmore, P.Z., as H.; S. Forrest, Z. 823, and P.M. 241, as J.; Fryer, P.Z. as S.E.; R. Robinson, P.Z., as S.N.; and Steib, as H. The following were also present:—Comps. Lord Skelmersdale, H.; W. Johnston, Z. 113; J. Skeaf, P.Prov.G.O., J. 216; D. Jones, P.Z., J. Jones, E.; T. Nevett, E. 113; R. Landless, W. Smith, J., 314; Wilson, 333; Heap, J., 333; Ware 333; Collis, 345; Greaves, 113; Poole, E., 333; Crossley, 333; J. Wood, 1094, Treasurer 249; C. Haswell, and others.

In the course of the consecration ceremonial, an admirable oration, written by Comp. Young-husband, now of London, was delivered with impressive effect by Comp. S. Forrest. Comp. Skeaf presided at the organ with his well-known ability, and his anthem, "Behold how good," and other incidental pieces written by him, received fine rendering by Comps. J. Jones, D. Jones, and C. Haswell.

After the chapter had been constituted in ancient form, Comp. Mott proceeded with the installation of Principals. Comp. Lord Skelmersdale was installed and invested as Z.; Comp. Ralph Landless as H.; and Comp. James Porter as J.

The First Principal then duly installed the following as his officers:—Comps. Thos. Nevett, S.E.; R. Robinson, P.S.; Capt. Whitehead, S.N.; and Steib, J.

At the conclusion of the business a sumptuous banquet, tabled in splendid style was served in the large dining hall of the "Clifton," Comp. Lord Skelmersdale, Z., presiding.

During the evening, the health of his Lordship was proposed by Comp. C. J. Martyn, who said he had heard with pleasure at the M.M.'s meeting in Manchester that his esteemed friend, Lord Skelmersdale, was to be installed First Principal of the new chapter at Blackpool. Having been present at his initiation into Masonry, he (Comp. Martyn) had watched with great pleasure his career in the Craft, and it had given him unbounded delight to be present that day. He had travelled to Blackpool specially for that purpose. He had been very much impressed with the efficient manner in which Comp. Mott had performed the ceremonies of consecration and installation, which, in the whole course of his experience he had never seen excelled. He was also very much pleased with the oration which had been delivered by Comp. Forrest. He concluded by wishing the greatest prosperity to the new chapter.

In response, Lord Skelmersdale said the principles of the Craft were very dear to him, and for that reason he had endeavoured to promote its interests in every way. It had given him great pleasure indeed, to see his esteemed friend, the P.G. Chaplain, present on that occasion. Above all, his thanks were due to his Excellent Companion Mott, as well as Companion Landless, for their exertions in establishing that chapter, and the former, for the impressive manner in which he had performed the ceremonies of Consecration and Installation. He had no doubt that, from what he had seen that day, the chapter would become one of the most successful in the Province.

"The Queen," "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Army, Navy, and the Auxiliary Forces," "The Marquis of Ripon, M.E. Grand Principal, and the rest of the Officers of the Supreme Grand Chapter," "The Consecrating Officer," "The Visiting Companions," and "All poor and distressed Masons," were the other toasts on the list.

We have great pleasure in announcing that there is every prospect of a successful career in store for the new chapter, as fourteen members of Lodge 703 were proposed by the First Principal for exaltation. Great praise is due to Comp. Landless, H., for promoting the new chapter, as it is through his exertions it has been established.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.—The Caledonian Unity Chapter (No. 73).—This chapter met at the Masonic Hall, on September 24th, for the election and installation of officers, Companion David Gilchrist, M.E.Z., presiding, who, in a feeling speech, announced his regret at having to leave them, after their kindness in having unanimously re-nominated him to that high office; but as he was about very unexpectedly to sail for Canada, he must ask them to elect some one else in his place. Companions Wheeler and Balfin moved that a committee be appointed to get up a testimonial, to mark their approval of his conduct, not only in that chair, but for the service he had rendered to Arch Masonry throughout the Province; carried unanimously. The election was then proceeded with, and the following were unanimously elected:—Companions George McDonald, M.E.Z.; George William Wheeler, H.; Robert Mitcher, J.; James Balfin, Scribe E.; J. M. C. Thyle, N.; Robert Bell, Treasurer; George McLeod, First S.; John Kay, Second S.; John McMurray, Third S.; Wm. Jackson, Janitor. Companion D. Gilchrist then proceeded with the installation of those officers, after which he conferred the degree of Excellent Master upon Brothers T. Patter, D. Berral, William Macgregor, R. Guthrie, and J. F. Lanbridge; and also Brothers J. B. McNair, and William Thomson, 69, at the request of Comp. T. Humphreys, Z., of that chapter; the same seven gentlemen were afterwards duly exalted into the Royal Arch Degree, each of the ceremonies being conducted with that precision that has always distinguished Comp. Gilchrist's working. On Monday, the 30th ult., the Companions of this Chapter, and their friends, met, to present a testimonial to J. Gilchrist; it consisted of a very handsome P.Z.'s jewel, manufactured by Comp. G. Kenning, of London, on which was a suitable inscription, and which reflected great credit on the manufacturer of the jewel. There were also a set of gold earrings and brooch, for Mrs. Gilchrist. The chair was occupied by G. McDonald, Z. of 73, and P.G.S.B.; the vice-chair was filled by Comp. R. Mitchell, J.S. 73. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, and duly honoured, the Chairman presented the jewel, alluding in grateful terms to the services rendered to Arch Masonry by their esteemed friend, Gilchrist. The committee, who had only five days to get up the testimonial, had worked with a will, and he had no doubt that, as it was the result of a private subscription, it would be more prized than anything that could have been voted from the Chapter fund. Comp. Gilbert said that he was really so surprised by the beautiful gift, as well as by the manner in which his name had been received, that it had really deprived him of the power of thanking them properly; he could only say that it would stimulate him in the future. Several other toasts were given and responded to, which want of space prevents us giving in extenso.

INSTRUCTION.

THE ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER OF IMPROVEMENT.—This chapter of instruction resumed its meetings after the recess, on Thursday, the 3rd inst. at Freemasons' Hall, and amongst the companions present were Comps. J. Self, M.D. (who officiated as E. in the unavoidable absence of Comp. Brett, the Preceptor); F. C. Trowers, H.; J.T.V. Hardy, J.; R. Wentworth Little, S.E.; T. W. White, Asst. S.E.; A. A. Richards, S.N.; Major E. Finney, P.S.; P. Wayner and Griffiths Smith, Asst. Sojs., and others. The ceremony of exaltation was ably rehearsed, after which the bye-laws were read for information, and the officers duly elected for the ensuing fortnight. The committee for the ensuing year will be composed as follows:—Comps. John Boyd, Chairman; G. S. States, Deputy Chairman, Major E. H. Finney, James Lewis Thomas, James Self, M.D. We earnestly recommend all Royal Arch Masons who desire to attain proficiency in the beautiful ceremonies of the Order, to attend this chapter of improvement, as better teachers, and more correct teaching cannot be found in the metropolis.

Mark Masonry.

DEVONSHIRE.

PLYMOUTH.—Temple Lodge (No. 50).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 17th ult., at the Hayshe Masonic Temple, Plymouth, when there were present a large number of members, including W. Bro. Andrews, W.M., P.G.S.B.; W. Bro. J. B. Gover, P.M., P. Prov. D.C.; W. Bro. J.D. Westcott, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; Bro. S. Jew, S.W., P. Prov. G.M.O.; Bros. H. F. Hearls, M.O.; R. Pengelly, J.D.; H. H. Arnold, J. Rendle, G. V. Hilson, R. Stribbling S.O.; and visitors V. W. Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 104, 129, 139, Prov. G. Sec. Middlesex and Surrey, and P.G.J.O. England; V. W. Bro. Vincent Bird, P.M. 64, P.G.M.O. England; V. W. Bro. R. H. Rae, P.M. 35, P. Prov. G.T.; V. W. Bro. J. Montgomery, P.M. 76, P. Prov. G.D.C.; W. Bro. Brown, P.M. 96, P. Prov. G.P.; Bro. Adams, 91; Bro. Hearle, S.W. 96; The whole of the ceremony of advancement was gone through, under the superintendance of Bro. Stevens, whose lucid explanations of the lectures and ritual were listened to with deep attention and warm admiration. At the conclusion a vote of thanks, moved by Bro. Gover, seconded by Bro. Hearle, and supported by Brothers Rae, Bird, Jew, and Montgomery, who all warmly eulogised Bro. Stevens for his Masonic kindness and ability, was unanimously adopted, and eloquently replied to. The lodge then nominated their new Master, in the person of Bro. S. Jew, S.W., who was unanimously adopted. A committee was appointed to audit accounts, and the brethren retired to a collation, for which however there was little time, owing to the length of the lodge business.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

LEICESTER.—Fowke Lodge (No 19).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall on the 26th ult. Bro. S. S. Partridge, W.M.; A. M. Duff, P.M.; W. Wear, S.W.; Rev. Dr. Hayeroft, J.W.; C. Stretton, Treasurer; J. Rowlett, R.M.; J. M. McAllister, Secretary; G. Toller, M.O.; W. Sculthorpe, S.O.; L.L. Atwood, J.O.; R. Barber, S.D.; E. J. Crow, J.D.; J.T. Thorpe, I.G.

The Lodge being opened, the ballot was taken for Bro. Rev. J. Spittal, W.M. No 30, as a joining member, and Bro. J. Edmunds as a candidate for advancement.

The result of the ballot having proved unanimously favourable in each case, Bro. Edmunds was admitted and duly advanced.

The ceremony was conducted by the worthy representative of Adoniram, with the strictest attention to all details, and evinced that zealous, and enthusiastic spirit, which, on all occasions characterizes the working of Bro. Partridge in any capacity connected with the various degrees of Masonry.

The W.M. is also to be congratulated on having the assistance of a staff of officers, comprising some of the most eminent masons in this province, who are thoroughly acquainted with their various duties, and effective in the discharge of the same.

Bro. Rowlett ably presided at the organ, and added greatly to the impressiveness of the ceremony by rendering the very appropriate music for this degree, composed by Bro. E. J. Crow, Mus. Bac. Cantab.

On the lodge being closed, the brethren retired for refreshment, and spent the remainder of the evening in harmony and good fellowship.

Knights Templar.

LANCASHIRE.

ROCHDALE.—Albert Encampment.—The regular meeting of this encampment was held in the Masonic Rooms, Anne-street, Rochdale, on Thursday, the 26th September. The encampment was opened in form by the Eminent Commander, Sir Knight William Ashworth, Provincial Grand First Captain of Lancashire, assisted by his officers, after which, the minutes of last regular meeting, and two meetings of emergency were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Companion Simeon Lord, of Chapter 266, who was unanimously elected, installed, and proclaimed a Sir Knight of the Order. Amongst the Sir Knights present, were Sir Knight William Roberts, P.G.C., P. Prov. G. Chamberlain; James Holroyd, P.E.C., P.G. Almoner, C. M. Jones, P.E.C.; Herod Turner, P.G. First Herald; and Sir Knights Fothergill Woodcock, Davies, Firth, Gorton, Midgley, Briggs, Mills, Lord and Ashworth. The E. C. reported the receipt of a large copy of bye laws, for the use of the encampment, and a supply of smaller ones for the use of the Sir Knights, to each of whom a copy was presented. He also reported the Prelate's Ritual, beautifully got up, and presented to the encampment, by the indefatigable and Templar loving Companion, Eminent, Sir Knight William Henry Wright, Deputy Provincial Grand Commander, to whom a vote of thanks was accorded for the presentation, which was ordered to be recorded in the minutes. A circular letter from the Prov. Grand Chancellor, was read, calling the attention of the E.C. and Sir Knights, to the proceedings of the Grand Conclave, wherein it was resolved and ordered, that the minimum fee for the installation of a Companion into the Order of the Temple, be £5 5s. The proceedings were approved. The labours of the evening being ended, the encampment was duly closed by the E.C. The Sir Knights adjourned to banquet, at which the Eminent Commander announced that the Very Eminent Prov. Grand Commander, Sir Knight Albert Hudson Royds, had written to say he would not be able to attend the meeting that evening, and hoped the fact of his daughter's marriage being fixed for that day, might be considered a sufficient reason for his absence. The Eminent Commander stated that Miss Royds had that day been married to Colonel Scobell, the High Sheriff of Worcester, and called upon the Sir Knights to join him in wishing health, long life, and happiness to the newly married pair, which was honoured in a bumper, and with applause. The cloth having been removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, were duly honoured. "Our Prov. Grand Commander," proposed by the E.C., which is always received with applause, being on this festive occasion specially honoured. That the day may ever be remembered with pleasure and pride by the P.G.C., is the wish of every Sir Knight of the encampment which bears his honoured name, and in which name they truly rejoice.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.—St. Mungo Encampment.—The installation of the officers of the St. Mungo Encampment of Knights Templar took place in the Masonic Hall, Buchanan street, Glasgow, on Wednesday, when a deputation from the Supreme Grand Chapter of Edinburgh attended, together with the members of the English Grand Conclave. The encampment was opened in St. Mark's Hall, when the Acting Grand Master, Major Ramsay, expressed the pleasure it gave him to confirm the old charter of the Girvan Knights, and empower them to work under the new name of St. Mungo Encampment. The accession of so large and influential a body, he trusted would influence the other independent bodies of the Knights of the Temple existing in Scotland to come and join them, that they might again become one united body. He then proceeded to instal Sir Knight Robert Bell as the Eminent Commander of the St. Mungo Encampment, together with 20 office-bearers. The E. C. having thanked the deputation, the Knights adjourned to St. John's Hall, where a banquet had been provided. After full justice had been done to the excellent repast, provided by Comp. Middleton, the chair was taken by R. Bell, and the Croupier's seat by J. E. Spiers, Generalissimo.

The Chairman was supported by Major Hamilton Ramsey, Sir Knight A. Hay, J. Lawrie, D. Dickson, J. Lewis and R. Brice of the Supreme Grand Chapter, and Sir Knight R. Pollen and E. C. Smith, C.E. of the English Constitution. On the dais were also the Rev. J. C. Stiratt, Prelate; and J. A. Fergus, S.B.; the Croupier was supported by Sir Knt. Butler, P.C.; J. Tweed, D.C.; R. Mitchell, S.C. and F. Clamachan, Treas.; while the south was occupied by M. Clamachan, C.C., and G.W. Wheeler Sec.

The Chairman gave the toast, "The Queen and the Craft," and "The Prince of Wales and Knights Templarism all over the world," which were loyally and enthusiastically received.

The next toast was, "The Supreme Grand Priory of Scotland," coupled with our General Grand Master, Sir Knight Whyte Melville, to which Major Ramsey, as Acting Grand Master, on behalf of Sir Knight White, Prelate, and the Grand Chapter General of Scotland, replied. Sir Knight Frank Gibb Dugal gave "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," and coupled with it the name of Sir Knight Major Ramsay, who appropriately responded.

The next sentiment "The Grand Commanderies and Encampments of America," was given in a very excellent speech by Sir Knight G. W. Wheeler.

Sir Knight the Rev. J. C. Stewart, responded.

Sir Knight Ramsey, G.R., and Grand Prior of Lothian, then proposed "Prosperity to the Saint Mungo Encampment."

Sir Knight T. Clanachan, P.E.C., responded.

The Chairman then gave "The Grand Conclave, and Knights Templars of England," to which Sir Knight Pullen responded.

The Croupier then gave the "The Clergy of Glasgow."

The Rev. J. C. Stewart, Prelate of Mungo, responded.

Sir Knight J. Scott, in glowing terms, proposed "The Lord Provost and Magistrates of the city."

Sir Knight A. Neilson, Town Councillor, replied.

Sir Knight Patterson proposed the "Absent Knights of the Encampment."

G. W. Wheeler, Secretary, replied.

Sir Knight G. B. Adams proposed the health of the Croupier, who acknowledged the toast in a suitable manner.

Red Cross of Constantine.

METROPOLITAN.

ST. ANDREW'S CONCLAVE (No. 15.)—An assembly of the Knights of this conclave was held at the Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-st., on Wednesday, the 25th ult., V.E. Sir. Knt. Frederick Binckes, M.P.S., on the throne, supported by his Viceroy, E. Sir. Knt. W. Jones; Sir. Knt. S. Rosenthal, S.G.; Sir. Knt. Wm. Roebuck, A.P.; and Sir. Knt. J.G. Marsh, Recorder. The conclave having been opened in imperial form, the minutes of the last assembly were read and confirmed. The Sir. Knts. then proceeded to the election of a M.P.S., for the year ensuing, which resulted in the unanimous election of Sir. Knt. Wm. Jones, V. Sir. Knt. S. Rosenthal, was also elected Viceroy, and Sir. Knt. Robt. Kenyon, P.S., was re-elected Treasurer. The Permanent Council for the year were then appointed. There being no further business the conclave was closed. The Sir. Knts. then retired to an excellent dinner served Bro. by Gosden, ably presided over by M.P., S., Sir. Knt. Binckes, who performed all the duties of the evening, with his well-known ability. Amongst the companions present were Sir. Knts. D.M. Dewar, W. Figes, and Tanner.

BRO. PERKINS, SHERIFF OF LONDON.

It will gratify our reader to learn that one of the newly elected Sheriffs of London, Bro. F. Perkins, is a member of the Craft, being Past Master of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, No. 130, and P. Prov. G. W. Hants.

Bro. Perkins was born at Southampton in 1826. He is a son of Mr. Richard Hopkins Perkins and Sarah Perkins, of Cumberland Hall Southampton. He was married to Isabella Bloomfield, eldest daughter of Joseph Rodney Croskey, Esq., late American Consul at the above-named port. The Perkins family have long held a leading position in the town. Bro. Sheriff Perkins is not new to public life, having been Mayor of Southampton no less than five times. He was first chosen in 1859, his year of office, like the four subsequent ones, being characterised by a display of public spirit, energy, and lavish hospitality, which won for him golden opinions. In his first year of office he entertained Captain Allen Young and the officers of the Arctic exploring vessel "Fox," sent out from Southampton by Mr. Croskey on the Atlantic Telegraph Expedition, together with a distinguished company of savants, including Sir Roderick Murchison, at a grand banquet, and Bro. Perkins was subsequently elected a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, Haying had a child born during his mayoralty, he was presented with a costly and magnificent piece of plate, in the form of a silver cradle or candelabra, weighing over six hundred ounces. In 1861 Bro. Perkins was again elected Mayor of Southampton, and was re-elected in November of the following year. During the former of these periods the Hartley Institution was opened by the late Lord Palmerston, to whom a magnificent public reception was accorded by Bro. Perkins, on behalf of the people of Southampton, his Lordship being entertained at a grand banquet, and the town brilliantly illuminated in his honour. In March, 1863, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins, as Mayor and Mayoress of Southampton, had the honour of receiving the Prince and Princess of Wales, upon the occasion of the marriage of their Royal Highnesses. In the same year the inhabitants gave a grand ball to the Mayor and Mayoress, presenting the former with a full-length portrait, and the latter with a handsome gold necklace and diamond pendant. In November, 1868, Bro. Perkins was, for a fourth time, elected Mayor. On the returning 9th of November, in 1869, Bro. Perkins was chosen or the fifth time Mayor of the borough, and in 1870 gave a magnificent fancy dress ball in honour of the then approaching marriage of the Princess Louise. Bro. Perkins presented a handsome statue of the late Prince Consort (by Theed) to the Bishop's Waltham Infirmary, which was unveiled by the Princess Helena, accompanied by the Princess Louise. In the last named year, the Mayor and Mayoress had again the honour of receiving the Prince and Princess of Wales in passing through Southampton; and again, to mark their sense of the public spirit and liberality which Bro. Perkins had displayed, especially in connection with the festivities of the Bath and West of England Agricultural Society's Show in 1868, the town presented him with a magnificent dessert service of silver gilt—the presentation being made by the Right Hon. Russell Gurney, Q.C., one of the Parliamentary representatives of the borough. During his several mayoralties Bro. Perkins lost no opportunities of promoting the commercial and maritime interests of Southampton, and he has taken a foremost place in all municipal, social and educational matters.

Bro. F. Perkins appointed as his Chaplain the Rev. G. Bradshaw, D.D., LL.D., of Southampton; a well deserved compliment to one who has long laboured in two important chaplaincies in Southampton, in which he has given great satisfaction. As Sheriff's Chaplain in London, the rev. doctor will have an opportunity, in a large and influential sphere, of exhibiting his great talents as a reader and preacher.

Original Correspondence.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think it the duty of every Mason to assist a worthy Brother in his legitimate attempt to obtain any office of position his ambition may prompt him to aspire to, should they consider him qualified to fill the office he seeks to obtain.

I am therefore pleased to find a brother of so high a standing as Bro. Hughan pointing to one who I know is desirous of showing his ability on behalf of the Girls' Institution, I mean Bro. Wentworth Little, one who I feel convinced will be a worthy successor of our poor dear friend Bro. Patten, should it be found necessary to appoint another in his stead.

I am Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally

MAGNUS OBREN.

W.M. No. 33, &c.

SCOTTISH RITE MASONSRY.—Scottish Rite Masonry, is said to be making considerable progress on the Pacific coast. During the months of March and April fifteen Lodges representing that branch of Masonry, were organized in Paget Sound.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, October 18, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, OCT. 12th.

- Lodge 1328, Granite, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1361, United Service, Swan Hotel, Wimbledon.
- Mark Lodge 104, Macdonald, Head Quarters First Surrey Rifles, Brunswick-road, Camberwell.
- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
- Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, OCT. 14.

- Quarterly Meeting Boys' School, at 12.
- Lodge 59, Royal Naval, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 193, Confidence, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 879, Peckham, Maismore Arms Tavern, Park-road, Peckham.
- " 957, Leigh, Freemasons' Hall.
- Chap. 22, Mount Zion, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
- Mark Lodge 69, United Service, Red Lion Hotel, Brompton.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
- West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-Hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, OCT. 15.

- Board of General Purposes at 3.
- Lodge 30, United Marines, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
- " 73, Mount Lebanon, Bridge House Hotel, Southwark
- " 95, Eastern Star, Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leaden-hall-st.
- " 435, Salisbury, 71, Dean-st., Soho.
- Chap. 11, Enoch, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 19, Mount Sinai, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
- Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper, Norwood.
- Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
- Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
- Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
- Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
- Florence Nighungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
- Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
- St. Marybone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 16.

- General Committee of Grand Chapter at 3.
- Lodge 140, St. George's, Trafalgar Hotel, Greenwich.
- " 174, Sincerity, Guildhall Hotel, Gresham-st.
- " 619, Beadon, Greyhound Hotel, Dulwich.
- " 700, Nelson, Masonic Hall, William-st., Woolwich
- " 1044, New Wandsworth, Spread Eagle Hotel, New Wandsworth.

" 1349, Friars, Cheshire Cheese, Crutched Friars.
 " 1365, Chapter
 Chap. 192, Lion and Lamb, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street.
 " 217 Stability, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
 Mark Lodge, Bon Accord, Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-st.

Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
 United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8. Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
 Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
 Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
 Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
 Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
 Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30. p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY OCT. 17.

Lodge 49 Gihon, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
 Lodge 55, Constitutional, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
 " 169, Temperance, White Swan, High-st., Deptford.
 " 179, Manchester, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 " 181, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 733, Westbourne, Lord's Hotel, St. John's Wood.
 " 1139, South Norwood, South Norwood Hall, South Norwood.
 " 1287, Great Northern, Great Northern Hotel, Kings Cross.
 " 1339, Stockwell, Duke of Edinburgh Tav., Stockwell.
 Chap. 79, Pythagorean, Ship Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.

The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall, Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
 United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188. Preceptor.
 Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Milbank.

FRIDAY, OCT. 18.

House Committee, Boys' School.
 Lodge 143, Middlesex, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
 " 813, New Concord, Rosemary Branch, Hoxton.
 Rose Croix Chapter, Invicta, Masonic Hall, William-st. Woolwich.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298,) Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M. Preceptor.

Advertisements.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION
 FOR GIRLS.

St. JOHN'S HILL, BATTERSEA RISE, S.W.

At a Quarterly General Court of this Institution, held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, on Thursday, the 10th day of October, 1872, John Symonds, Esq., in the Chair, after the general business was disposed of, the Governors and Subscribers proceeded to the election by ballot of Six Children into the Institution, from a list of twenty-four approved candidates when the following were declared duly elected:—

No. on List:	Notes.
7 Durant, Pauline Le Clerc.....	1183
10 Broadbent, Lucinda	1089
6 Gardner, Frances, E.	1052
13 Wilson, Edith Anne	969
24 Harryman, Ellen	905
9 Nash, Edith Mary	898

The votes of the following unsuccessful Candidates will be carried forward to the Election in April next if eligible:—

No. on List,	Votes.
1 Chapman, Ada G.	664
2 Greene, H Minotti	220
3 Tippet, Anne G	314
4 Bindon, B. A.	414
5 Senger, Ellen Augusta	707
8 Simpson, Frances C.	859
11 Norris, Mary	120
12 Day, Mary Ann.....	73
14 Reeds, Lillias E.....	192
15 Faithful, Florence C.....	127
16 Oates, Louisa C.	—
17 Duke, Jessie	720
18 Moore, Laura	506
19 Emery, Katharine	417
20 Nash, Florence	683
21 Seaton, E. Ida M.	375
22 Hill, Florence M. E.....	641
23 Jay, Charlotte A.....	541

For EDWARD HENRY PATTEN, Secretary,
 W. LANE.

Office 5, Freemason's Hall Great Queen-street, W.C.
 10th October, 1872.

THE BIRKBECK

Is the only Building Society whose Annual Receipts exceeds ONE MILLION!

How to Purchase a House for Two Guineas per Month, With immediate possession and no Rent to pay. Apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK BUILDING SOCIETY, 29 & 30 Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.
How to purchase a Plot of Land for Five Shillings per Month, With immediate possession, either for building or gardening purposes, apply at the Office of the BIRKBECK FREEHOLD LAND SOCIETY, 29 & 30 Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.
How to Invest Money with safety at 4 per cent Interest, Apply to the Office of the BIRKBECK BANK.
 All sums under £50 repayable upon demand. Current accounts opened similar to Ordinary Bankers. Cheque Books supplied. Office hours from 10 till 4 daily, on Mondays from 10 till 9, and on Saturdays from 10 till 2. A small pamphlet, containing full particulars, may be obtained gratis, or sent Post-free on application to FRANCIS RAVENSCROFT, Manager.

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE.
 THE "WORCESTERSHIRE."

Pronounced by Connoisseurs "THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE." Its use improves appetite and digestion. Unrivalled for piquancy and flavour.
ASK FOR 'LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE.
 BEWARE OF IMITATIONS,
 to avoid which, see the names, LEA & PERRINS, on all bottles and labels.

Agents—CROSE & BLOWELL, London, and sold by all Dealers in Sauces throughout the world.

MONEY.—LOANS granted immediately. from £100 to £2,000 at 5 per cent., repayable over Three, Four, or Five Years, on Personal Security and Life Policy effected with the WEST OF ENGLAND INSURANCE CO., (Established 1807.)
 Apply to the Superintendent of Agents,
 J. CROCKER, Neville Street, Newcastle.
 Agents Wanted.

J. W. SCOTT & Co.,
 DEALERS IN FOREIGN STAMPS,
 (ESTABLISHED 12 YEARS.)

The above firm beg to inform collectors that they have a large stock of scarce Stamps and Essays, any of which will be sent on approval.

J. W. SCOTT & Co. wish to call particular attention to their justly celebrated POSTAGE STAMP ALBUM.

which can be obtained of all the principal book-sellers in the world, and sold wholesale and retail by

J. W. SCOTT & Co.,

46, LEADENHALL-ST., LONDON. E.C.,
 AND
 75 & 77, NASSAU-ST., NEW YORK, U.S.A.,
 or will be sent post free on receipt of price.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

"Special care has been taken to leave plenty of room for those Governments that are still in existence, so as to accommodate future issues, and blank pages are left at appropriate intervals for the reception of Stamps from any countries that have not at present issued Postage Labels; but should any one desire additional leaves, specially designed pages, to correspond with the body of the book, are prepared for all new issues, as soon as they are received. These are supplied by the Publishers at a nominal rate, and can easily be inserted in their proper order by gumming them to the guards bound with the book for that purpose, thus making the Album perfectly permanent, and as good after ten years as one just published."

It is bound in the strongest manner, by the most skillful workmen, with the best materials.

The following styles and prices now ready :

Boards, beautifully illuminated in black and gold.....	2 6
Half cloth, ditto	3 6
Cloth, gilt lettering, back and sides ..	5 6
" extra, thick paper, clasp, &c.	10 6

Other styles of binding ready shortly, or for sale unbound in four qualities of paper, or bound in any style to order.

ALBUM FOR BEGINNERS.

The third edition of this popular Album, combining all the necessaries for anyone commencing a collection of postage stamps. Amongst the prominent features of this album may be mentioned an accurate description of every postage stamp, together with dates of issue, monetary value, &c. Carefully prepared engravings of over one hundred stamps, printed in colours, and spaces for twelve hundred varieties.

Good paper, boards, 1/3; Half cloth 1/3; Cloth gilt lettering, 2/.

All our publications sent post free on receipt of price.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only,
THE PEOPLE'S
 HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS
 VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lanbaugh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect,
 BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL,
 Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each, containing 40 pages of crown quarto double columns, thus giving for 16s. 1,280 pages, or about 2,560 columns of letter-press, being twice as much matter as is given in any other History of Cleveland at three or four times the price.

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ord's History, the Work is Illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by TWEDDELL and SONS, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

J. E. PETERS,
 ORNAMENTAL ENGRAVER AND FANCY
 ENAMELLER,
 42, Howard-place, Northampton-road,
 CLERKENWELL.

Writing, Engraving of every description, Masonic Emblems Engraved or Enamelled; old enamelled Work repaired; Country Orders attended to with despatch.

What better Theme than Masonry?"
 MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
 Post-free, 25 stamps.

TESSELATED CARPETING,

FOR

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.

Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
 AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

MASONIC MISCHIEF.—The new Masonic Song. Inscribed to the Worshipful Company of Masons by Gerald Grant. Post Free Eighteen Stamps.
 London: Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

THE NEW MASONIC SONG.—"Men of the Trowel" "An overwhelming answer to 'Masonic Mischief.'"—Court Express. Eighteen Stamps, post free.
 London: Henry Stead & Co., 19, Piccadilly, W.

SECOND EDITION.—NOW READY.

Price One Shilling, Post-free, Revised and Enlarged.
Freemasonry in Relation to Civil Authority and the Family Circle,
 BY BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.

THIS work is a perfect handbook of the principles of Freemasonry, founded on the Ancient Charges and Symbols, and will be found to be eminently practical and useful in the vindication and support of the Order.

Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THIRD EDITION.—JUST READY.

REFLECTED RAYS OF LIGHT UPON FREEMASONRY:

OR,

The Freemason's Pocket Compendium,
 With an Emblematical Frontispiece.

A Hand-Book of the Principles of Freemasonry, and Pocket Vade Mecum and Guide to the various Ceremonies connected with Craft Masonry, so far as the same are allowed to be communicable, in accordance with the principles of the Order.

Price One Shilling, Post-free for Thirteen Stamps.

Sold by Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

NOW READY, PRICE £4/4 THE PAIR, OR £2/10 SINGLE.

SIZE 32in. BY 26in.

PHOTOGRAPHS

OF

BRO. SIGISMUND ROSENTHAL'S CELEBRATED PAINTINGS

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master,

At Freemasons' Hall, on December 1st, 1869, containing upwards of 120 Figures and Portraits.

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar,

May 13th, 1870, containing nearly 100 Figures and Portraits.

Sold by BRO. G. KENNING, 2, 3, & 4, Little Britain, E.C.

Branches: 198, Fleet-street, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

IRON
 PIANOS
 FOR ALL
 CLIMATES

MESSRS. BORN & Co.,
 13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.

MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

*Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners,
 Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.*

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled.

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.
 LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d.

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA,

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

By WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinae," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.

Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.

Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Masonic Musings 639
 An Ancient Charge 641
 Grand Chapter of Canada 642
 Masonic Notes and Queries 643
 CORRESPONDENCE:—
 Instruction in South Wales 643
 Legality of Lodge Meetings 643
 The Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution
 for Girls 643
 The Duke of St. Alban's Visit to Lincoln..... 643
 The Spurious Rite of Memphis..... 644
 CRAFT MASONRY:—
 Metropolitan 644
 Provincial 645
 Consecration of a New Lodge, at Sunderland 645
 Provincial Grand Lodge of N. and E. Yorkshire ... 646
 ROYAL ARCH:—
 Provincial 647
 Consecration of a New Chapter at Derby..... 647
 Grand Lodge of Scotland..... 648
 Royal Masconi Institution for Boys..... 648
 Masonic Meetings for next week... 649
 Advertisements..... 637, 638, 649, 650, 651 . 652

MASONIC MUSINGS.

BY. BRO. J. BALFOUR COCKBURN, P.Z. 278,
 Past Installed Mark Master 43.

When last I addressed your readers, I ventured to call attention to the true origin and fundamental principles of our Craft, and I endeavoured, so far as could be done without infringing on our Masonic caution, with regard to matters which may not meet the eye, or reach the ear of those who are not initiated in our mysteries, to sketch out such a general view of the nature and character of our society, as might at least be accepted as a sufficient guarantee or proof of that which I undertook to establish, namely, that Masonry is not merely an empty name, that it is not confined to the sole purposes of social and fraternal union, or to the still higher operations of the spirit of charity and benevolence, by which it is generally and most favourably known to the world at large.

I wished to impress those brethren, who might be induced to peruse what I had written, with the conviction which the study of its history has for many years fixed upon my own mind, not only of what it is not, but of what it actually is. I desired to demonstrate as plainly as possible the many and cogent reasons for believing that Freemasonry is a secret combination of the arts and sciences, and especially of architecture, which implies a knowledge, and requires a practical application of them all, with religion under every modification, whether true or false.

The great end I held in view in submitting this representation, was not alone to satisfy the minds of the brethren upon certain points, touching which, as Masons, they could not fail to be much interested, but equally to sustain the honour of the Craft, and promote its welfare by encouraging its extension amidst men of high culture and liberal attainments, who would be unable to avoid being persuaded and convinced that our secrets are worth knowing, inasmuch as they are connected with, and essential to, the maintenance of a system of the most sublime and precious character.

If then, with these principles in our remembrance, we should be asked "What is Masonry?"—a question often put and seldom answered, we may safely reply—Sacred Science.

What its origin? The same Divine will which has preserved it.

What its object? The benefit, temporal and spiritual, of mankind.

What it means? The union of those who are capable and ought to be instruments of promoting piety, charity, and peace on earth.

Again should it be enquired in what more particularly this Sacred Science consists, what are its elements, what its subjects, or what its fruits? This answer may be given without fear of contradiction: It is a knowledge of those curious recondite, manifold modes of representation, by which the most sublime and important discoveries of heavenly wisdom have been impressed on material structures, a knowledge of those oral traditions by which the earliest records of infinite goodness have been transmitted from generation to generation, illustrated by certain emblems, figures, and geometrical combinations; it may justly be added that it thus forms a collateral but independent testimony to the great truth and doctrines of religion. That it has preserved them, by its secret constitution and symbolic system, from the perversion or injury to which all merely written works are liable; and it corroborates, by its never-failing evidence, the authority and authenticity of those Holy Writings, which have escaped the desolating hand of barbarism, the ignorance and fanaticism of the dark ages, and the contaminating influence of those wild idolatries, which have overspread the earth. Under the surface of these very abominations you will find, indeed, on further investigation, what is easily discoverable by those who possess the proper means of investigation, that the precious gem of primæval truth has been carefully, though often dishonourably concealed; to be revived by sincere and enlightened Masons, at different periods of the world's complicated history, to be cherished and cultivated by us and our successors in the Craft, till that happy day when all human knowledge shall be absorbed in the plenitude of earthly wisdom, and for this end let the words of Addison be engraved on our hearts—

Remember, O! my friend, the law delivered down,
 From age to age, by your renowned forefathers;
 O never let it perish in your hands!
 But piously transmit it to your children,

From all that I have now said, and everything which the records of antiquity, as well as modern daily observation, can furnish for our guidance, it is evident that we are chiefly indebted to architecture, as employed in sacred buildings, for the visible and tangible evidence of the real and influential existence of Freemasonry, under different names and modifications, from the creation of man to the present time. It may, therefore, be not unacceptable, if our attention is now directed to the illustration of an instance of the manner in which we may avail ourselves of history, sacred and profane, to elucidate and apply those principles to which I have already adverted, as the solid basis of our Society, no less than its proud distinction, and most beautiful ornament. In order to exemplify the mode in which the studious and enquiring Freemason may, with the key of our Science in his hand, obtain admission to the various depositories of valuable information, which still exist, and which have multiplied exceedingly within the last fifty years, it is necessary to say a few words with regard to the actual state of architecture, as it is discovered in the ruins and remnants of former ages, as well as in the many noble works of our more modern Fellow Craft. We will then consider what proofs are to be sought and found in the one unerring Book which we have the happiness to possess, of the subsistence and operation of the combination of religion with science, in the one period of history, which is common to all nations, that of 1656 years before the Flood.

Did space and time permit the digression, much instruction and delight might be found in tracing the similarity or dissimilarity which has obtained in the architectural style of different people and ages, up to its probable origin, that is, the circumstances of climate, situation, or materials, the degree, greater or less, of civilization, and proportionate advance in science, the peculiarities of character, temperament and constitution, affecting the body politic. All this, however, though strictly subservient to our purpose, would demand too great a trespass on time and space. I must, therefore, content myself with mentioning, in the first place, the different styles of architecture of which we have specimens or authentic notices, and, perhaps, on some future occasion the most obvious characteristics of each, illustrating them by reference to the edifices of the several countries in which they are to be found, if our inquiries can be carried out to an extent which may allow of so large a prospect.

We have then, at least, these twelve distinct modes, kinds, or styles of architecture.

1. Hebrew.
2. Egyptian.
3. Phœnician.
4. Etruscan.
5. Greek.
6. Roman.
7. Persian.
8. Indian.
9. Chinese.
10. Arabian.
11. Saxon.
12. Gothic.

In this classification, a simple glance will suffice to notice that no attempt is here made to give either a chronological or a purely topographical arrangement, or to take it as in any way granted, that in constructional knowledge one country took precedence of another in point of early cultivation. An arrangement of the different styles of architecture is, according to our greatest living authority, the first and most serious difficulty which the student has to encounter, and this same author has himself, in his classical handbook, very successfully adopted, the combination of the chronological and topographical methods. In the opinion of the same voluminous and experienced writer, the most obvious and convenient arrangement would be the division of all architectural objects into Christian and non-Christian; the latter might be called heathen or pagan, if these were not, as he very justly observes, generally used as terms of reproach. As the Christian styles in every instance arose out of the pagan, which, as a rule, are the older, the pagan, of course, take priority of position; and if antiquity alone were considered the Egyptian ought perhaps to hold first rank; but granting this, the Assyrian would come next, with the Greek and Roman following; but now the list must be interrupted by the introduction of the Indian, Mexican, and some others, which have no connection either with those which preceded or which followed in other parts of the globe. In the classification, therefore, which has been given above, I have placed together, in four divisions, consisting of three countries each, those which may be supposed to have had some considerable affinity, on account of the contiguity or probable intercourse of their respective nations.

And now recollecting our original definition of Freemasonry, and bearing in mind that our main object at the present stage of the enquiry is to show that sacred buildings have always been designed, erected, or decorated in such a manner as to represent symbolically the Divine truth and holy mysteries which had been imparted to our first parents, and by them transmitted, orally or figuratively, to their posterity. That, in fact, in the construction of all the altars, shrines, temples, and cathedrals of which history, sacred and profane, makes mention, the builders of the same, whoever they might be, were not solely heapers up of stone, mere Babel raisers; but that they had all thoughts and ideas which they meant to embody and illustrate in their labours. It is true, as well expressed by How, that the proper display of purpose, the immediate expression of feeling, are indeed denied to this eldest and most sublime of all the arts. It must excite the feelings through the medium of thought; but, perhaps, the feelings which it does excite are on that account only so much the more powerful. All architecture is symbolical, but none so much as the Christian architecture of the middle ages. The first and greatest of its objects is to express the elevation of holy thoughts, the loftiness of meditation set free from earth, and proceeding unfettered to heaven. It is this which stamps itself on the spirit of the beholder, however incapable he may himself be of analysing his feelings, that mysterious mélange of awe, bewilderment, and self humiliation, when he gazes on those far stretching columns and dizzy domes. But this is notable; every part of the structure is as symbolical as the whole. The altar is directed towards the rising of the sun and three great entrances are meant to express the conflux of visitors from all regions of the earth. Three towers express the Christian mystery of the Triune Godhead; the choir rises like a temple within a temple, with redoubled loftiness, the shape of the Cross is in common with the Christian churches even of the earlier times.

The round arch was adopted in the earlier Christian Architecture, but laid aside on account of the superior gracefulness supposed to result from the crossing of the Arches. The rose is the most essential part of all the ornaments of this architecture: even the shape of the windows, doors and towers may be traced to it, as well as the accompanying decoration of flowers and leaves. When we view the whole structure from the crypt to the choir, it is impossible to resist the idea of Earthly death, leading only to the fulness, the freedom, and the solemn glories of Eternity.

Again, also in many of the styles we have named, more especially in the Roman, Persian and Indian, beauty was the chief aim sought after, and gifted as the people were, who affected these methods, with the keener perception of the beautiful, they attained this object by means of a degree of taste and refinement which seemed natural and inborn, and in fact the nations amongst whom these styles originated appear to have been led by their exuberance of fancy and impatience of all restraint to try every form, to attempt to fix every floating idea, and to take advantage of every suggestion, either of art or nature. And thus has arisen, as so truly and graphically described by Ferguson, that boundless multiplicity of detail which Saracenic architecture presents, and the innumerable hints it affords to those who know that art is not confined to one or two forms, and is not to be confined by figures or by rules, but is everywhere and in everything for those who seek it honestly and for its own sake. Bearing, then, in mind these important considerations, I would begin with the investigation of Hebrew architecture, because it is in fact the most intimately connected with our present purpose, and because we derive from the Books of Moses the only genuine written account of the progress of the arts previous to his birth, that is, for a period of 2433 years.

Antediluvian and Patriarchal science cannot, strictly speaking, be denominated Hebrew science, but as we learn all that is to be learned upon the subject from the Hebrew legislator and historian, we may be allowed to include under one head whatever the Bible records of each, and when we reflect on the very small number of hands through which primæval tradition had to pass in its transmission from Adam to Abraham, from the Father of Mankind to the Father of the Faithful, we may feel assured that nothing very important had been either forgotten or neglected. Adam, who was created, according to common computation, 4004 years before the Christian era, lived 930 years, that is till within 726 years of the Flood. Noah was 600 years old when "the fountains of the great deep were broken up, and the windows of heaven were opened, and the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth, and the mountains were covered." The interval, therefore, between the death of Adam and the birth of Noah was only 126 years, or in other words, Adam died b.c. 3074, and Noah was born b.c. 2948. Now Methuselah lived 343 years with Adam, and 599 with Noah; there was therefore, but one link between Adam and Noah, but Noah survived the Deluge 350 years, till within two years of the birth of Abraham, and Shem, the son of Noah, remained alive 150 years after Abraham's birth, and no doubt saw the children of Israel, ere he was gathered to his fathers.

There were, then, only three persons between Adam and Abraham, namely Methuselah, Noah, and Shem. From Abraham to Moses the time was comparatively short, only 251 years, and the chain consisted only of Jacob and Levi, Jacob having been born before the death of Abraham. Thus there were but five persons between Adam and Moses. Whatever statement, narrative, allusion, figurative expression, or symbolical representation we may meet with in the writings of Moses, must consequently be in perfect accordance with all that had been handed down by direct oral communication, through the families above-named. And in these families it was that the knowledge and worship of the Great Creator were continually preserved for the accomplishment of those divine oracles on which the fate of the whole human race depended. The authenticity of primæval tradition may indeed be inferred from the foregoing chronological abstract, but we have also to take into account the inspiration of the author of the Pentateuch, which would itself be infallible authority under any circumstances.

From the creation of the world to the Flood, a period of 1656 years, according to the Hebrew version, a considerable progress must have been made in the arts and sciences, but the intimations of it afforded us in Scripture are few and slight, although we may find, on investigation, that they imply more than at first appears to be included in their terms.

Let us see how this matter stands. We know, for instance, that Cain offered an oblation, and Abel a sacrifice unto the Lord; the latter, no doubt, according to divine appointment, that is, in obedience with regard to the mode, and in faith with regard to the object, else would not Abel's offering have been accepted, and Cain's rejected. Now, we find no mention of any burnt offering or sacrifice in after time which was not offered upon an altar, as I may probably demonstrate when we come to speak of the altar of Noah. It is reasonable, therefore, to conclude that the sacrifice of Abel, at least, was burnt according to express command, or perhaps by fire from heaven, upon an altar of some description. That this altar was constructed of unhewn stone, is equally probable from the analogy which shall hereafter be adduced.

If Abel did, as we have now supposed, make use of an altar on the one occasion recorded by the Sacred Historian, it was unquestionably the first erection for sacred purposes of which we possess undeniable written proof. It was, likewise, not less symbolical than the sacrifice offered with faith upon it.

Cain, we read, builded a city and called it after the name of his son Enoch. Here in all probability, domestic architecture took its rise. Josephus tells that the children of Seth, the son of Adam, after having invented astrology and divers other arts, because they had heard it told by Adam that the world would undergo a two-fold destruction, once by a great deluge of water, and again by fire, they erected two columns, one of brickwork, and the other of stone, on both of which they wrote the precepts of the several arts invented by them, because that in case the column of brickwork should fail to resist the force of the water, that, at least, of stone might preserve to posterity the remembrance of those arts by what was written upon it. Whether this tradition be well founded or not, it proves the general belief that the arts attained in the very earliest ages to some degree of perfection. To this must also be added, that with the tradition is connected the "Vision of Enoch," on which is founded one of the most important narratives in the history of our Craft.

In the days of Enos, the son of Seth, began men to call upon the name of the Lord, or to be called by the name of the Lord.

Now, it is very clear that calling on the name of the Lord is worship, which must be either private or public. That private adoration is not here meant, [appears to] me equally obvious. It was, therefore, public worship by which these descendants of Adam sought openly to declare themselves on the Lord's side.

Now the inference is natural that public worship requires, more especially in towns and cities, a place or edifice for its celebration; and we may presume that the common supposition of there being no place of public worship except hills and groves, before the building of the Tabernacle, to be incorrect, or at least, improbable. In what divine worship consisted is a different question, and one plainly belonging to another branch of our system.

Of the two sons of Lamech, the seventh in direct descent from Adam, Jabel, the son of Adah, is said to have been the father of such as dwell in tents, leading a wandering nomadic life, surrounded by flocks and herds, and moving hither and thither to obtain the pasturage and water supply, necessary for that which, no doubt, formed no small item of their earthly possessions, for it is distinctly added that that Jabel was the father also of such as have cattle, and the brother of Jabel, by the same mother, was Jubal, and he is described as the Father of all such as handle the harp and organ. Of Tubal Cain, the third son of Lamech, by Zillah, we read that he was an instructor of every artifice in brass and iron. Hence we learn first that the general mode of life in those days was social, in more or less fixed habitations, such as to necessitate a knowledge and practice of building; for it may with good reason be inferred that Jabel was the first to make use of tents, or of such dwelling places as could be hastily erected and easily removed; and secondly, [we learn that Jubal cultivated the science of music, and employed his skill in the construction of musical instruments. The original names given to the instruments handled by the followers of Jubal, are probably generic, and not specific denominations, indicating the two classes of stringed and wind instruments, each of various kinds. But a knowledge of the laws of harmony and modulation, and the invention of musical instruments, bespeak no small advance in science, while the formation of such as would answer to the terms employed, implies no inconsiderable proficiency in manual art and mechanical dexterity; and thirdly, we learn that Tubal Cain was an instructor, or rather according to the metaphorical expression of the original, a whetter or sharpener of that class of workmen, by which not only many of the conveniences, but many also of the necessaries and ornaments of life are chiefly fabricated. We cannot, indeed, doubt that much more is meant than that Tubal Cain merely accomplished the reduction of the metal, and the application of copper, zinc, and iron to rough and common uses and purposes, because the same identical words are employed to express the extraordinary talents of Hiram of Tyre, the most eminent artificer mentioned in Holy Writ; and Hiram himself was the son and pupil of one who was cunning, "endued with understanding, and skilful to work in gold and in silver, in brass, in iron, in stone, and in timber, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen and in crimson."

It is worthy of remark, that each of the names of the three brothers, Jabel, Jubal, and Tubal Cain, is derived from the same root, meaning "to lead," or "to bring," implying that they were all eminent leading men, fathers in their day; hence was derived also Jubilee, and the Hebrew Jobel, signifying a "trumpet," indicating, in no obscure manner, that connection of the arts and sciences with religion and public worship, even in the infancy of the human race, which, according to our definition, is Freemasonry.

In this short review of the antediluvian period, we may discover, if I may so speak, the elements of our Sacred Science, and in the further investigation of this still unexplored domain a brief specimen of the mode of going to work is thus offered to all intellectual Freemasons, and this pursuit I would most earnestly recommend to all. The jungle of falsehood, the pitfalls of superstition, and the huge boulders of ignorance, have already been removed and levelled by the labours and exertions of those illustrious pioneers of science, whose names I have before mentioned; but a rich vega of knowledge must be reaped ere we enter the Alhambra of our desires; a wide and fruitful plain of research lies before us, which we must boldly traverse ere we can reach the glittering star which beckons us on in our path of enquiry, and whensoever exhausted and overpowered by our exertions, or alarmed and disheartened by the streams of mistrust or the hedges of scepticism, which cannot fail at times to beset and oppose us in our progress, we shall ever find renewed strength and inspiration by falling back on the assistance and support of our only true and safe guide, and diligently pursuing the course traced out for us in the Book of Truth, for

"There springs

From that same book that lustre, and those rays,
Of light, that turns our darkest nights to days."

AN ANCIENT CHARGE.

A Charge delivered to a Constituted Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, at the King's Arms, in Helston, Cornwall, on Tuesday, 21st April, Anno Domini, 1752, V.A.L. 5752.

Friends and Fellow Brethren.

As I have the honour of being distinguished by a badge of office in this regularly constituted Lodge, I beg to make my best choice of this opportunity to assure you that I will use my best endeavours to execute the trust which you have reposed in me with freedom, fervency, and zeal; and here I beg the favour of your attention for a few minutes while I exhort you to consider, with a becoming seriousness, some useful hints which concern all of us. And first, I beg leave to recommend an unwearied diligence and assiduity in the great work wherein you are immediately concerned, to be upon your guard at all times, and on all occasions, especially before strangers, who will certainly watch every opportunity to extract from you that secret which has for ages and generations been hid from those who are unqualified to receive it. The proper observance and diligent execution of this part of your duty will recommend you to the notice of the world in general, and the regard of the lodge in particular. Be ye also careful, my brethren, to avoid every action which has the least tendency to brand you with the odious name and character of a covetous man, which our holy brother the apostle Paul has with great reason, declared to be idolatry. For what, my brethren, can be expected from the man who makes gold his hope, and places his confidence in his riches? What, but that he will be deaf to the cries of the destitute orphan, and entreaties of the distressed widow. Let the contrary disposition prevail with us, and let not our charity be circumscribed within a narrow circle, but like that glorious luminary which opens the day, dispenses its kindly influence to all around us, indeed, if we are good Masons, we can not be capable of abusing the means with which Providence has supplied us to do good unto all men, as opportunity shall offer, and in a more especial manner, the miserable and distressed. These are objects which not only deserve our commiseration, but also claim relief at our hands. Let the grand principle of brotherly love, relief, and truth, at all time distinguish us in this world, and ever prevail amongst us. This compassionate temper cannot fail of obtaining the love and esteem of all good and wise men; and what is of infinitely greater importance, the approbation of that Gracious Being whose favour is better than life.

Let us also be resolutely fixed in the great duty of sobriety, and not suffer liquor to get the ascendancy of our reason. It is reason, my brethren, informs us that we are creatures every way adapted to, and fitted for society; and that God has given us knowledge and understanding superior to other beings on this inhabitable globe, who all tend by a natural impulse to answer in their respective spheres the end of their Creation; and shall the creatures thus fulfil with the great regularity, the different purposes to which Providence assigned them; and men, the glory of this lower world, pervert the gracious designs of his Creator in appointing proper liquors to satisfy his thirst and exhilarate his heart. By abusing the means, and forgetting the end of their appointment, use them beyond the bounds of moderation, and thereby render himself equal, I had almost said inferior, even to the beastly swine. Did we but rightly and seriously consider the many mischiefs to which this vice exposeth us, we should certainly be very cautious of drinking to excess, well-knowing the fatal consequences which attend it, that it lays our reason asleep, and rouses the many, too often, predominant passions which disturb the mind of man. As we are careful to avoid the shameful sin of drunkenness, let us at the same time remember, that we are in duty bound to abstain from another vice, which is too common in the present age; I mean the detestable practice of swearing by, and invoking the solemn name of the great and glorious God, on the most trifling occasions. This vice, my brethren, has not one motive or inducement, that I know of, to support the practice of it. It is practised by the vulgar, it is forbid by the positive command of an Almighty God, who is ever jealous of his honour, and will not hold any guiltless who take his holy name in vain. This vice is a scandal to society, and disgraces the man below the level of the brutal tribe, who all join with the feathered choir in the praises of their great Creator. Let us, therefore, keep a constant watch upon the door of our lips, let us, if possible, live peaceable with all men, let us keep our passions in constant subjection. By this means we shall be enabled to demonstrate to the world that we are good men and true, that we aim at no other character than that of piety towards God, and unfeigned love to one another. Love, my brethren, is the bond of perfectness; it is the divine temper, which enables us to preserve the unity of spirit in the bond of peace, and makes us like Him, who is the pure and inexhaustible origin of it, stand fast in one spirit, and be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment; let us consider that this is a duty incumbent on us, that it is recommended to our notice a d imitation by our Great Leader and Exemplar, who came to seek and to save that which was lost, and laid down His life, even for His enemies. What a powerful motive and inducement have we in this unparalleled instance of Divine love opened to our view, for our instruction and government in this state of trial, unto which we shall do well if we take heed as unto a light shining in a dark place. And I hope there is not one member of this community, who does not endeavour to the utmost of his power, to discharge this duty, as it behoves every good and wise man; and that there are not any amongst us who are not truly sensible of the necessity we lie under to fulfil this great, this important part of an obligation which is an indissoluble bond by which the particular members are united and cemented in one body, Let us support and recommend this great and laudable virtue by examples, worthy the imitation of mankind. This is the most effectual method we can pursue to silence the the ill-natured suggestions of the proud, the wicked, and the vain part of our species, who, though they are by no means proper to be members of our well governed community, yet must by this means be induced (as it were forcibly) to own, and secretly, the benign influence of that love and unity, which naturally produce peace and harmony amongst brethren.

I must also beg leave to recommend a proper regard to be paid to the laws, constitutions, and orders of our most ancient and honourable Fraternity, and due deference and respect to the particular officers thereof in their respective places, whose business it is to carry them into execution; and I hope the only contention among you will be a laudable emulation in cultivating the Royal Art, and striving to excel each other in everything which is great and good. Let us convince the unbelieving multitudes that no pride, sordid or lucrative views can ever prevail upon us to admit into the number of those who are acquainted with the knowledge of our Mysteries, the unworthy, the profane, or contentious part of mankind; but that we will stand fast in that liberty with which God hath blessed us, and join with one heart, and one voice, in excluding such wolves from our peaceable fold. In a word, let all of us endeavour, in our respective stations, so to regulate our whole conduct, as not to give just occasion of offence in anything. Let us be submissive to superiors, courteous and affable to equals, kind and condescending to inferiors; and let our whole deportment testify for us that we have formed our lives upon the perfect model of God's revealed will, exhibited to us in the Holy Bible; that this Book is the basis of all our Craft, and that it is by this piece of Divine furniture, so essential to our society, we are taught wisdom, to contrive in all our doings, such means as may conduce to His honour, and the salvation of our immortal souls, strength to support us in all difficulties and distresses, and beauty to polish the rough un-hewn block of the mere natural man, and bring it into the likeness of our Maker. Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, with an unwearied perseverance in well-doing, put to shame the ignorance and malice of the foolish, and the wise and great will think it no disparagement to be influenced by our example, when we shall let our light shine before men, that they, by seeing our good works, may be also induced to glorify the Supreme and Almighty Architect of the Universe. Let us approve ourselves faithful stewards of those things committed to our charge, that whensoever it shall please our great Creator to demand of us an account of those talents, which He, in His infinite wisdom, has thought fit to bestow upon us, we may be found ready to render it up with joy, may have our loins girded up, and our lights burning, and we ourselves be as men waiting for the Kingdom of God, and on that morning, when the Sun of Righteousness shall arise, with healing in His wings, we may be allotted to a house not made with hands, in the happy region of eternal day, may hear his welcome salutation of the Redeemer in the presence of men and angels, well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful in a few things, I will make thee a ruler over many things, enter into the joy of thy Lord. O happy day! when the faithful shall outlive the world, and all its fading glories, shall see the sun, moon, and stars obliterated from the concave of Heaven, and Himself employed, swallowed up in the never fading glories of boundless eternity; these ardent wishes for your welfare, both here and hereafter, flow from the honest heart, zealous in the cause of Masonry; and that every attempt for completing this great work may meet with proper encouragement, is the sincere wish and unfeigned desire of

Your true and faithful brother,
ISAAC HEAD.

GRAND CHAPTER OF CANADA

The Fifteenth Annual Convocation of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Canada was opened at the Masonic Hall, Toronto, on Wednesday, the 14th August, at noon, present, M. E. Comp. Capt. Thompson Wilson, as Grand Z.; R. E. Comp. S. B. Harman as Grand H; R. C. Comp. W. B. Simpson, as Grand J.; and about 80 officers and members. The Grand Scribe E. having read the rules and regulations for the government of the Grand Chapter during business, and the usual motion accepting the minutes of last convocation as read, having been adopted, R. E. Comp. Harman, on behalf of the M. E. the Grand Z., read the following address.

To the Most Excellent The Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Canada, Greeting.

Companions,—I greatly regret that I am prevented being with you at this the fifteenth Annual Convocation of Grand Chapter. For some weeks past I have not been in my accustomed good health, and I am advised not to risk the probable excitement, consequent upon attending, at this warm period of the year, more than one Masonic assemblage to take place at Toronto, and the re-union with old friends, companions, and brethren after a year's separation from each other, and I confess freely that my heart warms at such meetings, and drives away thoughts of consequences! Although absent in body I shall be with you in spirit, and no member of our order more sincerely wishes continued and increasing prosperity to Grand Chapter than I do and will.

With this brief preliminary I can but repeat here, what I told you last year, that Royal Arch affairs have afforded so little material to which to call your attention, on account of the general harmony that has reigned, that any address cannot be of lengthy dimensions.

I have granted dispensations for the following new Chapters during the past year, and which I recommend Grand Chapter to confirm by Warrant, viz:—St. John's, at Cobourg, Ontario; Elora, at Elora, Ontario; Sauguen, at Walkerton, Ontario; St. Charles, at Montreal, Quebec; Prince Rupert, at Winnipeg, Manitoba; Bruce, at Petrolia, Ontario.

I hope these new Subordinates will prove worthy of your trust. But as to this, and all other information referring to local matters, the Reports of the several Grand Superintendents of Districts will be your sure guide, and as regards the financial affairs of Grand Chapter, which are satisfactory, your own excellent officers, Grand Treasurer and Grand Scribe, are your standard and reliable references. The disbursements authorised by Grand Chapter have all been defrayed, upon the requisite vouchers.

And here it will not be out of place to state that your Grand Treasurer R. E. Companion Noel having left to become a resident of Manitoba, delivered over his books and papers, and I appointed R. E. Companion J. W. Murton, of Hamilton, to be Acting Grand Treasurer until this Convocation, who has very kindly and willingly performed the duties, and I have much pleasure in thus making known to Grand Chapter the assistance that Companion Murton has hereby rendered.

"R. E. Companion Noel I nominate Grand Superintendent of Manitoba, as a slight token of recognition and appreciation of his services to Grand Chapter.

"Notices of motion were given last year,—First, For holding the Annual Convocation permanently at Toronto,—and Second, For the recognition by Grand Chapter of certain Rites and Degrees not at present included in the Constitution; and these, if not allowed to fall through, will need your consideration.

"The Grand Scribe E. has received copies of the Proceedings of various Grand Chapters, with all which Bodies the Grand Chapter of Canada is in very friendly relationship. A Report will be presented by the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, which will doubtless prove interesting, for these proceedings are full of valuable information, contain many statistics, and also numerous decisions, in every way inviting notice, for our Companions of the United States are by no means niggardly in dispensing light and knowledge, on the contrary, they appear to delight in so doing.

The Representative system is evidently gaining ground and popularity. During the past year I have been advised of the appointment of R. E. Companion Henry Robertson as Representative of the Grand Chapter of the District of Columbia near this Chapter, and I am led to believe that he has likewise been so nominated by the Grand Chapter of the State of New York. R. E. Companion Robert Ramsay is nominated Representative of the Grand Chapter of Illinois near this Grand Chapter. I have, on good recommendation, appointed as Representative of the Grand Chapter of Canada, R. E. Companion John Edwin Mason, near the Grand Chapter of the District of Columbia, and R. E. Companion James H. Miles near the Grand Chapter of Illinois, all which are of course subject to your approval.

I received a communication, through R. E. Companion Co'onel McLeod Moore, from a body styling itself "The Grand Royal Ark Lodge of England," seeking recognition and an exchange of representatives with us. Although aware of the existence of this body in England, I failed to understand its connection with Royal Arch Masonry, and therefore contented myself with promising to submit the matter to Grand Chapter at this Convocation, leaving Companion Moore to proceed with it or not, as he might think proper. I may here remark, the "Grand Royal Ark Lodge of Canada," has since been organized.

"The Grand Mark Lodge of England," which was recognized by Grand Chapter in 1870, also sought an interchange of Representatives. I requested the Grand Scribe E. to write and state that any Representative must necessarily be a Principal or Past Principal of a Chapter, and could of course act only upon matters relating to the Mark degree. The subject is attended with some little difficulty, because here the Mark is quite subordinate to the Royal Arch, and it should have the careful consideration of Grand Chapter.

Since this application was received, I understand that the Grand Mark Lodge of England is trying to assume some control over the Mark Degree here, by granting or proposing to grant warrants for conferring the same. I requested the Grand Scribe E., through whom the information reached me, to write to England to the effect that the Mark Master, Past Master and Most Excellent Master Degrees, commonly styled Intermediate, in Quebec and Ontario, belong to the jurisdiction of the Grand Chapter of Canada, exclusively; that any Mark warrant issued from and by England could not be recognized, and ought to be withdrawn and cancelled; and that any other course could not fail to seriously imperil the friendly relations now existing between the two bodies.

A warrant is said to have been asked for by the St. Paul's Royal Arch Chapter, Montreal, on the registry of England, and one of those Chapters still working in Canada, but retaining its allegiance to the Grand Chapter of England by sufferance and good faith on the part of the Grand Chapter of Canada. The transaction has anything but a pleasant look, and betrays a seeming want of courtesy towards us, which may not, however be intended. I know of nothing to prevent St. Paul's Chapter applying to this Grand Chapter for all requisite authority to the Intermediate Degrees, which are not recognized by the Grand Chapter of England as necessary to be conferred preparatory to a candidate's exaltation to the Royal Arch. It is very advisable for Grand Chapter to place on record an opinion on this entire subject, so that its propriety or otherwise may not be left to linger in uncertainty.

There is a subject to which I feel it to be my duty, as well as my happiness, to invite your special attention. I mean the merciful restoration to health and the British Empire of our Most Illustrious Brother and Companion His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the joy and glad relief thereby afforded to our good and gracious Queen, the amiable and lately sorrowing Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family, in whose natural anxiety the whole nation has borne its loyal share. We have indeed great reason to return our heartfelt thanks to the Giver of all Good for this, one of his manifold mercies, in thus giving back from the very brink of the grave the "Hope of the British Dominion," and over which the sun never sets! I hardly need, I think, suggest a loyal address of congratulation and warm sympathy to be prepared and sent to England. I see by a published document that the Grand Lodge of Canada has already performed its part of this grateful duty, and I regret that their address is not made a joint one, emanating from our two bodies. We belong to the same time-honoured institution, are actuated by the same loving loyalty and devotion to the Crown, and we are in close communion one with another. Perhaps Grand Chapter may see the propriety of this joint action, and probably it is not too late to send a communication to the Grand Lodge, expressive of our desire to write in this course. Their address speaks your sentiments most fully, I am very sure, and most appropriately and cannot do otherwise than insure your cordial co-operation. It is for you to decide.

"After suffering many years from indigestion and biliousness, for which I could find no remedy, I was at length induced by a friend to try your Vegetable Pain Killer for it, and the first bottle I used cured me of this and permanent relief."—J. L. Harvey, Manchester, July 15, 1867.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

Before concluding, I must state that there is one unfortunate cause of difficulty which Grand Chapter in its wisdom will, I trust, arrange. Discord is at work in Prevoist Chapter, No. 14, Durham, and I fear that it owes its origin to what we all understand as the "Quebec Difficulty," to which, however, I need not further allude. I am afraid that Companions have suffered their feelings to find entrance into their Chapters. I thought I had successfully prevented this, but seem, to my sorrow, to have failed. The papers relating to this matter are with the Grand Scribe E., and will enlighten you sufficiently, without my occupying more of your time than I now have by entering into details. I hope most sincerely that this outstanding grievance and masonic scandal will be removed by your action.

And now I will conclude by reminding Grand Chapter that new officers have to be elected. You have given me your confidence, by choosing me for eleven years to be your Grand First Principal. I cannot sufficiently express my grateful sense of your kindness; but have endeavoured, to the best of my judgment, to repay your trust, by fulfilling my duties zealously, faithfully, and impartially, and trying to promote the welfare of Grand Chapter. The period has now arrived when I must seriously ask to be relieved from my high office. I have not nearly so much leisure now to attend to the details of Freemasonry as I had, although I shall ever take an earnest interest therein, and in our Order generally. I therefore invite you to select from among the many good and true men you have among you, one to succeed me as your presiding officer. However little I may care to spare my own self, I feel that I can no longer do full justice to Grand Chapter, though quite as much devoted to you as ever. I will therefore offer my farewell, except as an individual member and companion. My best thanks are due, and I tender them to my companion officers, for their attention and kindness. Your Grand Scribe E. I cannot sufficiently praise. He is a treasure to Grand Chapter; and fortunate it is for the Grand First Principal to be able to have such a valuable officer at his elbow. R.E. Companion T. B. Harris and I have never had one single difference since we have been, for so long a period, brought into official and friendly contact with each other.

I pray that the Great I Am will spare us to meet together next year in health and happiness, and may He preserve our Order, and protect and protect and care for you all. So mote it be.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Depression of Spirits, Debility.—Some defect in digestion is generally the cause of mental depression. On rectifying the disordered stomach, the long list of gloomy thoughts retire and is succeeded by more hopeful and more happy feelings. Holloway's Pills have been renowned far and wide for effecting this desirable change, without inconveniencing the morbidly sensitive or most delicate organism. They remove all obstructions, regulate all secretions, and correct depraved humours by purifying the blood and invigorating the stomach. Their medicinal virtues reach, relieve, and stimulate every organ and gland in the body, whereby the entire system is renovated. No medicine ever before discovered acts so beneficially upon the blood and circulation as Holloway's celebrated Pills.—ADVT.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

BRO. HOLMES AND HIS NOTES (PAGE 607).

The Lodge of Edinburgh, Mary's Chapel, No. 1 on the roll of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, is assigned as having been the builders of Melrose Abbey, in 1136, while the Lodge Mother Kilwinning, No. 0, only claims date 1140. The Lodge Mary's Chapel, No. 1, never had in any Masonic publication any other date than 1518 assigned to it. The fact is a Masonic lodge still exists at Melrose, claiming its origin from the building of the Abbey, and having records of of very ancient date. This lodge is self-supporting, and independent of all others, and in no way recognises the authority of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, but admits as visitors Freemasons, from wherever they come. There is no doubt that this was one of the several lodges or bodies of Freemasons engaged in the erection of ecclesiastical structures in Scotland, of an earlier date than either Mother Kilwinning or Mary's Chapel. The fact of this lodge never having joined the Grand Lodge of Scotland, its existence has always been attempted to be ignored, but a more prosperous or rich lodge is not under the Scottish jurisdiction. On strict examination, it will be found to date at least four years older than any lodge in Scotland.

ONE WHO OFTEN VISITS IT.

LEGALITY OF LODGE MEETINGS.

An Act passed in the 39th George III., chap. 79, (12th July, 1799) intituled "An Act for the more effectual suppression of societies established for seditious and treasonable purposes, and for better preventing treasonable and seditious practices."

Freemason lodges are exempt from its provisions, provided that the 6th section is complied with, a portion of which is as follows:—

"That this exemption shall not extend to any society or lodge, unless the name or denomination thereof, and the usual place or places, and time or times of its meetings, and the names and descriptions of all and every the members thereof be registered with the Clerk of the Peace of the county or borough in which such lodge is situate, within two months after the passing of this Act, and also on or before the twenty-fifth day of March in every succeeding year.

Original Correspondence.

INSTRUCTION IN SOUTH WALES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

My attention has been directed to a paragraph in your journal of the 21st ult., headed "Instruction in South Wales," but which, in truth, chronicles the proceedings of one lodge only in this Province, viz., the "Indefatigable Lodge, No. 237, Swansea."

If, as stated, the brethren of the Indefatigable Lodge have not held any Lodges of Instruction for a number of years I assume that some good and efficient reason exists for not holding them, but the reason is certainly not a lack of ability on the part of its members, many of whom are skilful Masons, quite competent to perform any work they undertake.

The paragraph states, however, "That the members of the Craft in South Wales have now an opportunity of becoming thoroughly acquainted with the beauties of Freemasonry, as contained in the Lectures," the inference being that no such opportunity had ever been afforded in the past or permitted in the present.

What are the facts? Let them speak for themselves.

In the year 1864, Lodges of Instruction were held at the Indefatigable Lodge, Swansea, in the months of April, May, June, July, August, and September. At each of these meetings the Sections in either First, Second, or third Degree were worked; and notably, at the September meeting, the Fifteen Sections were worked throughout, for the first time in South Wales. These Lodges of Instruction were presided over by the then Worshipful Master, Brother Edward J. Morris, our present Deputy Prov. G.M.

The example thus set, was followed in a short time by the other lodges in the Province, to the great advantage of Freemasonry in South Wales. I have kept no register of the dates, but, I may state, that I have, since the period above referred to, attended Lodges of Instruction at the Cambrian Lodge, No. 364, Neath; at the Afan Lodge, No. 833, Aberavon; at the Bute Lodge, No. 960, Cardiff; and at the Talbot Lodge, No. 1323, Swansea, at which the Sections have been excellently worked.

At my own lodge, the Cambrian, No. 364, the Sections have been frequently worked; and, I may add, were last worked on Monday evening, the 7th inst., on the occasion of a friendly visit from the officers and members of the Afan and Talbot Lodges, when the W. Deputy Prov. G.M. favoured us by presiding.

At the recently established Talbot Lodge, at Swansea, the Sections have been repeatedly worked; they were last worked, I am told, most admirably, on Wednesday, the 2nd inst., the W.M., the Rev. Charles T. Heartley, M.A., presiding on the occasion with marked ability.

On Monday next, the officers and members of the Cambrian and Talbot Lodges, will pay a friendly visit to the Brecknock Lodge, No. 651, Brecon, when it is, I believe, intended to work the Seven Sections of the First Lecture, and when the W. Deputy Prov. G.M. will preside.

That the members of the Indefatigable Lodge should have desired their efforts to improve themselves to be known and appreciated, is but natural; but the credit could have been earned, and the praise won, without ignoring either the past history of the lodge, or efforts similarly put forth by other lodges in the Province.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

WALTER WHITTINGTON, P.M. No. 364.

Prov. G. Secretary.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have noticed with pleasure the cordial tone of the letters of two of your esteemed correspondents, recommending our worthy Bro. Wentworth Little for the office as Secretary, (about to become vacant, as I learn), to the Girl's School. The prizes in Masonry are few, and they should be conferred on those who live in and for the Royal Art.

Bro. Little has now for some years distinguished himself as a Masonic student, and the Craft generally owes a great deal to him. As an able exponent of our mysteries, an erudite Freemason, and an energetic officer, Bro. Little would honour the post to which it is hoped he may be appointed. My influence is nil, and my opinion, I dare say, of little weight, but if I had a hundred votes, I should give them to Bro. Little.

Yours fraternally

EMMA HOLMES.

P.G.Reg. Suffolk.

THE DUKE OF ST. ALBANS VISIT TO LINCOLN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I perceive by Saturday's issue of the Freemason you have been misinformed with reference to the Duke of St. Alban's visit to Lincoln, (vide page 617).

The Duke has kindly consented to preside at the opening ceremony of the new Masonic Hall Buildings in this City, on Tuesday, the 29th inst., when it is intended to transfer the Witham, 297, and St. Hugh Lodge, 1386, from the present lodge rooms in Grantham-street, to the New Hall in Newland. The foundation stone of these new buildings was laid on Thursday, 17th August, 1871, and it is looked forward to the works being completed by the above date. The buildings consist of a large concert hall, capable of accomodating upwards of 700 persons; small hall for sales, &c.; lodge, banquet and clothing room, with suitable accessories. The programme of arrangements for the opening day is not yet fully decided upon.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother, yours truly,

HENRY WATSON.

J.W. 1386

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Public Amusements.

THEATRE ROYAL SADLERS WELLS.

On Saturday and Wednesday, October 19th and 23rd, "William Tell." William Tell, Mr. T. C. King; Gesler, Mr. F. Shepherd; Michael, Mr. Rainbow; Furst, Mr. Evans; Verner, Mr. Lacy; Rudolf, Mr. Hamilton; Melchtal, Mr. Dudley; Erne, Mr. Cullen; Albert, Miss M. Cooper; Emma, Mrs. Stephenson. After which, a Grand Ballet Divertissement, entitled "Love;" Mademoiselle Rosine, and efficient Corps de Ballet. To conclude with "Black-Eyed Susan." William, Mr. T. C. King; Captain Crosstree Mr. Rainbow; Susan, Miss M. Cooper; Mayflower, Miss Carlyle. On Monday and Thursday, "Ingomar." Ingomar, Mr. T. C. King; Myson, Mr. Dudley; Polydore, Mr. Hudspeth; Timarch, Mr. F. Shepherd; Alaster, Mr. Sydney; Trinobantes, Mr. Parkes; Parthenia, Miss M. Cooper; Actea, Mrs. Stephenson; Theano, Miss Rainbow. After which a Grand Ballet Divertissement, entitled "Love." To conclude with "Black-Eyed Susan;" characters as above. On Tuesday and Friday, "Richelieu." Richelieu, Mr. T. C. King; De Mauprat, Mr. M. Shepherd; Joseph, Mr. Dudley; De Bringham, Mr. Hudspeth; Francois, Mr. Sydney; Julie de Montemar, Miss Cooper; Marion de Lorme, Miss Carlyle. After which, a Grand Ballet Divertissement. To conclude with "The Goose with the Golden Eggs;" Mr. Hudspeth and Mrs. Stephenson. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

THEATRE ROYAL VICTORIA.

On Saturday evening, October 19th, and during the week, Betsy Baker; Mr. J. Fawn and Miss Bramah. After which, "The Duke's Daughter." Legardiere, Mr. C. Sennett; Gonzague, Mr. C. Power; De Nevers, Mr. Vaughan; Cocardasse, Mr. J. Fawn; Passepoil, Mr. G. Skinner; Peyrolles, Mr. Leigh; Regent, Mr. Bousfield; Chaverney, Mr. Prescott; Staupitz, Mr. Parker; Petite, Miss Allen; Blanche De Nevers, Miss M. Henderson; Blanche De Cayles, Mrs. C. T. Burleigh. To be followed by "The Lady of the Lake." Roderick, Miss Pattie Goddard; Malcolm, Miss Maude; James Fitzjames, Miss Bramah; Malise, Miss Allen; Ellen, Miss H. Farren; Douglas, Mr. C. Power; Family Bard, Mr. Leigh; Blanche, Mr. J. Fawn. To conclude with a Grand Ballet Divertissement, entitled "Love;" Mademoiselle Rosne and a numerous and magnificent Corps de Ballet. Stage Manager Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

E. B. C.—1. It is no part of the ritual to read a portion of Scripture at the opening of a Lodge. 2. Yes, the Immediate Past Master has no claim; the W.M. can deputize any Past Master to assist him. 3. Such a proceeding is irregular; the compasses should be used.

The following reports are deferred for want of space:—Royal Visitors at Lathom House; Villiers Lodge, Twickenham; Prov. G. Lodge of Jersey; British Union Lodge, Ipswich; Baldwin Lodge, Dalton-in-Furness; Commercial Lodge, Leicester; De Mowbray Chapter, Melton Mowbray; Macdonald Mark Lodge; Howe Mark Lodge, Melton Mowbray; William de la More K.T. Encampment, Prescott; Byzantine Red Cross Conclave, Leicester.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

MARRIAGE.

PLIMSAL.—WEBBER.—October 12, at Christ Church, Albany-street, Bro. W. S. Plimsal, of the Villiers Lodge, No. 1194, Twickenham, to Maria, the daughter of the late M. J. Webber, of Covent Garden.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.
The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)
All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.
The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

THE SPURIOUS RITE OF MEMPHIS.

We take no credit to ourselves for having recently exposed the hollow sham, yclept the "Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry," inasmuch as we conceive it to be simply the duty of an honest Masonic journalist, and, indeed, of any Mason, within the sphere of his influence, to discourage every "organised hypocrisy," which dares to assume the hallowed name of Freemasonry.

But we do congratulate ourselves upon the result of our solemn warning to the Craft. Notwithstanding the extensive circulation of speciously worded invitations amongst the Metropolitan brethren, and, notwithstanding the personal entreaties of one or two Memphite notables, the meeting convened in honour of the "illustrious Seymours and Yarkers," on the 8th inst., was nothing but a miserable fiasco.

About fifteen individuals "assembled and gathered themselves together," to enact the wretched farce of installing a new Grand Master General of Masons for the United Kingdom!

Of those present on the occasion more than one third were members of a profession for which we have great regard, and we are sure that the theatrical gentlemen to whom we allude will forgive us for expressing an opinion that they might have been better employed in rehearsing a genuine stage performance, than in participating in so indecent a burlesque on Freemasonry.

Possibly, however, they may have attended, as a compliment to Mr. Harry Seymour, ci-devant wigmaker and actor, and in this case we are ready to make every allowance for their esprit-de-corps, even though we may feel inclined to damn the play—and the players.

The pretensions of Seymour and his coadjutors are not made known now for the first time. In the United States, he has secured some adherents, but the vigilance of the legitimate Masonic authorities has even there "scotched the snake." Added to which, the misdeeds of certain prominent "Memphites" in America have brought discredit upon the remainder, and although we hold that Mr. Seymour, personally, is a harmless individual, we cannot say so much for some of his associates, who are, even now, expiating their guilt in a felon's cell. Beyond all doubt, a Rite of Memphis, which assumed to supersede all other rites in Freemasonry, was founded by one Marconis de Nègre, about 1839, and it is equally indubitable that this rite obtained some sort of recognition from the Grand Orient of France, because the latter body desired to absorb it, and so wipe out what it considered an anomaly and a disgrace to the Craft. But the noxious weed, uprooted in France, reappeared in the New World, with Harry Seymour as its Farmer General. And now, such is the Memphite faith in human credulity, the spurious plant is specially imported into this country for the benefit of English Freemasons. It is important to note, moreover, that the Grand Orient of France emphatically repudiates the whole affair, and asserts, through the Chief of its Secretariat, that Mr. Seymour has "neither a charter nor a power." Well, our friends have played their parts, and we fear they will leave the shores of Albion sadder, if not richer men. The good sense of the English Craft has simply ignored Apis and Serapis, and the stupendous tomfooleries of this new Masonic revelation. We had hoped to have enjoyed a good side-splitting laugh, but the "piece" has been withdrawn so suddenly, that our hopes are blighted. The "illustrious" invaders came; they saw, but have scarcely conquered; and now, like phantoms they have gone, never, we devoutly trust, to return. If there be in this land of ours, any who are emulous of Seymour's glory; any who burn to achieve his renown, we will give them a word of homely but invaluable advice—'Ne sutor ultra crepidam.'

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the head quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, at Camberwell, on Wednesday, the 9th instant, when were present—Bros. G. Waterall, W.M.; S. H. Wagstaff, I.P.M.; James Stevens, P.M., as S.W.; W. J. Messenger, J.W.; Dr. Eugene Cronin, Treasurer; J. J. Curtis, Sec.; F. J. H. Hastie, S.D.; M. S. Larllham, J.D.; H. Hammond, I.G.; F. H. Cozens, Org.; W. Elliott, Walter Gray, T. W. Carnell, and other members. At the request of the W.M. of St. John's Lodge, No. 70, Plymouth, Bro. W. P. Collins was passed to the degree of F.C., and was subsequently proposed as a member of the lodge. Mr. John Henry Alexander having been duly balloted for, and approved, was initiated. Candidates for raising were, from unavoidable circumstances, prevented from attending, in one case, to the great regret of the members of the lodge, in consequence of serious accident. The only other important business before the lodge was that of alteration of date of meetings, it being found necessary to meet the requirements of the corps to which the members belong, to change the same from the second Wednesday in the month to the second Thursday, and the necessary notice of motion having been previously agreed, was now confirmed, subject to the approval of Grand Lodge. The ensuing meeting of the Macdonald Lodge will, therefore, be held on the second Thursday in December. A vote of condolence with an esteemed brother, whose ill health compels a long absence in southern climes, was unanimously passed, with earnest wishes for his convalescence and return in due time for installation as next W.M. Propositions for initiation at ensuing meeting were then taken, and the lodge was closed in due form.

CHESHIRE.

ROCK FERRY.—Rock Lodge (No. 1289).—On Friday evening, the 11th inst., this lodge held its usual meeting, at Rock Ferry Hotel, attended by the following brethren:—Edward Friend, P.J.G.D., Cheshire, P.M. 1289, in the chair; F. R. Stevenson, P. Prov. G.S.B., P.M. 537, Treasurer; P. J. Pearson, Secretary; Simon Lewis, S.W.; F. C. Bolton, J.W.; Charles Sayer, S.D.; Pattison, J.D.; Eugene Wigdahl, I.G.; Owen Wooliscroft, Dr. Paton, A. Lowe, Stanton, Westbrook, and Bro. C. Barclay, 537, visitor.

The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the Acting W.M. explained the absence of Bro. Moore, W.M., whose wife and child were taken from him by the hand of death since the last meeting of the lodge, and a cordial vote of sympathy with him in his sad bereavement was recorded on the minutes. Bro. Friend then proceeded with the raising of Bro. Owen (Bro. Barclay ably presiding at the harmonium during the time the lodge was open), after which the lodge was closed down, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and a very harmonious evening was spent by all.

DURHAM.

CONSECRATION OF THE FENWICK LODGE, No. 1389, SUNDERLAND.

A new Lodge of Freemasons was consecrated and opened at the Masonic Hall, Park Terrace, This will increase the number of Craft Lodges now at work in Sunderland, to five. Of the other lodges three have had an existence of upwards of a century, but the fourth is of recent formation.

The Phoenix Lodge, which holds its meetings at the Freemasons' Hall, in Queen-street, was opened in 1755, with Bro. John Thornhill as first W.M. It had not at that time any name, being only known by the number, which was then 207, and met at an inn in Church-street. After many fluctuations Captain Geo. Thompson became W. Master, and remained in that position for seven years. During his term of office a hall was built, and the Lodge adopted a distinctive name, viz., that of "The King George's Lodge." The hall was dedicated to Masonry on July 16th, 1778, but only existed a little over five years, having been burnt to the ground on Nov. 19, 1783. The foundation stone of a new hall was laid on the 5th of August following, and the new building was solemnly dedicated on the 5th of April, 1785. The name of the lodge was then changed to that of the "Phoenix Lodge," which it still retains.

In 1757 the Lodge now known as the Palatine Lodge was opened, Bro. W. Scolly being first W. M. Like its predecessor, it had then no distinctive name, but afterwards it adopted that of "The Sea Captains' Lodge." After this name had been kept up for a considerable number of years, it was changed to the "Palatine Lodge," which is still its appellation. The first meetings of the Palatine or Sea Captains' Lodge were held at an inn in the High-street, known as the "Marquis of Carnarvon's Head." We afterwards find it meeting, between fifty and sixty years ago, at the Queen's Head Inn, in Queen-street, and subsequently, until its removal to the new Masonic Hall in Park-terrace, a little over two years ago, the meetings were for a long time held at the Bridge Hotel.

The St. John's Lodge has had an existence of something like a hundred years, having been opened as a military lodge, attached to an Infantry regiment, under a warrant granted by the Duke of Athole, then (in 1770 and following years) Grand Master of one of the two Grand Lodges of Freemasons which exercised jurisdiction in this country during the 18th century, and which were eventually united in 1813. The warrant was left in this town in the first decade of the present century, and the lodge continued to meet at different places in the town until it took possession of its present quarters (the Masonic Hall, Park-terrace) in 1870.

The Williamson Lodge was opened at the Royal Hotel, Monkwearmouth, in 1863, with Sir Hedworth Williamson as its first W.M., and it still continues to hold its meetings at the same place.

Another lodge had at one time flourished at Monkwearmouth, called the St. Paul's Lodge, but it ceased to exist some years ago. A hall was built specially for a lodge room on the Ballast Hills, at Monkwearmouth, nearly opposite the foot of Lambton-street. This was afterwards purchased (in 1794) by a congregation of Independents, who seceded from what was then called the Park-lane Chapel, and turned the building into a chapel, which was known for many years as "Lodge Chapel." A large room in Maling's-ring, which had been a Masonic lodge room, was also converted into a chapel in 1814 by the Unitarians.

The history and transactions of Masonic bodies more than a century ago are very difficult to trace, and other Masonic lodges may have flourished in this town or neighbourhood and traces of them have been lost. We have ourselves seen a certificate, bearing date, Monkwearmouth, 1776, issued by the Lodge of Harmony, No. 475, but whether this lodge was the same as the St. Paul's—and its name was afterwards changed to that of the Apostle—or whether it was a separate lodge that long before the union in 1813, ceased to exist, we are unable to say. The foundation stones of some of the principal public structures in the town have been laid with full Masonic honours.

On Sept 24, 1793, a lodge was opened by Bro. William Henry Lambton, Esq., Provincial Grand Master for the Province of Durham, and the brethren walked in procession to the river, when the foundation stone of the bridge was laid by Rowland Burdon, Esq., a P.M. of the Sea Captains' Lodge, with full masonic ceremony. The bridge was declared open on the 9th of August, 1796, by H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester, after a very splendid masonic ceremony (Bro. Burdon acting pro tem. as Provincial Grand Master) in the presence, Garbutt says in his History of Sunderland, of 80,000 spectators. The foundation stone of the Exchange was also laid with masonic honours by Sir Henry Vane Tempest, on August 10, 1812, and on November 12th, 1839, the foundation stone of the Athenæum was laid masonically by H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex.

Returning now to the proceedings of this afternoon when the youngest of the existing masonic lodges was declared duly constituted, the brethren were present in large numbers on the occasion, and the lodge, which is named after the late Bro. Henry Fenwick, Esq. (M.P. for Sunderland for some years), who for a considerable period filled the office of D.P.G.M., of the Province, was consecrated and formally opened by the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master (John Fawcett, Esq.) assisted by a large gathering of Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers, Worshipful Masters, and Past Masters, and the W. M. Designate Bro. W.H. Crookes, P.M. No. 80, and Prov. G.S. was installed as the first W.M.

Among those present were Bros. Sir Hedworth Williamson, D.Prov. G.M.; C. Rowlandson, P.J. G.W.; Rev.—Trotter, P.G.C.; Rev. G. R. Bulman, P.Prov. G.C.; B. Levy, P.Prov. J.G.W.; J. Potts, P.Prov. G.S.D.; A. Clapham, P.Prov. S.G. W. (Northumberland); the W. Masters of the Palatine, Williamson, Fawcett, Marquis of Granby, and Earl of Durham Lodges, &c., &c.

The consecration banquet was held afterwards at the Queen's Hotel, the W.M. (Bro. Crookes) in the chair, supported by the R.W.P.G.M., the R.W.D.P.G.M., &c., &c.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Philanthropy Lodge of Instruction (No. 940).—The annual meeting of the Philanthropy Lodge of Instruction took place on Thursday evening the 10th inst., in the Lodge room, at the Freemasons' Hall, Wellington-street, Stockton. The Lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. J.H. Jackson officiating as W.M., Bro. J. Broome as S.W., and Bro. J. Boothroyd as J.W., and the ordinary business having been disposed of, the Treasurer, Bro. Thos. Walton, submitted his financial statement, which showed there was a small balance in hand. The Secretary (Bro. Thos. Bradley) then read the report for the year, which showed that although the total number of members on the roll was rather less than in the preceding year, the average attendance had been greater; taken altogether the lodge was in a very satisfactory and progressing condition. Both these reports were received and adopted with marked approval. The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year:—Preceptor, Bro. J.H. Jackson; Assistant Preceptor, Bro. A. Fowler; Treasurer, Bro. Thos. Walton; Committee, Bros. J. H. Jackson, A. Fowler, and W. J. Watson; Secretary, Bro. Thos. Bradley; Organist, Bro. Thos. Preston. Cordial votes of thanks were passed to all the officers for the very commendable manner in which they had discharged their duties and conducted the business. At the close of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to the banquetting-hall, and sat down to supper, the chair being occupied by Bro. J.H. Jackson, and the vice-chair by Bro. J. Broome. At the repast, the company was considerably augmented and amongst those present were Bros. J. Trotter, A. Fowler, R.S. Hooper, W. J. Watson, J. Boothroyd, T. Bradley, T. Walton, J.G. Walton, J. Walton, T. Bowron, — Scarth, J.F. Mann, G. Herbert, W. Lightfoot, J. Trenholm, W. J. Usher, S. Gordon, J. Fowler, T. Preston, G. Hooper, G. Ellis, &c. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave in succession the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, P.G.M., the Princess of Wales, and rest of the Royal Family;" "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Marquis of Ripon, and the Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge of England Past and Present." The next toast was given from vice-chair and was "The Provincial Grand Master and Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and P.G. Officers, Past and Present," to which Bro. J. Trotter responded, and gave "Success to the Philanthropy Lodge of Instruction," coupled with the name of the Secretary. Both these brethren spoke highly of the value of lodges of instruction, and warmly commended this lodge to the support of the brethren. Bro. G. Ellis then proposed the health of the "Preceptor, Assistant Preceptor, and Officers of the Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. A. Fowler. Bro. G. Hooper, in giving the toast of "The Lodge of Philanthropy," expressed a warm appreciation of the fraternal feeling which existed between the members of that and the Tees Lodge, and hoped there would be even a still more frequent interchange of visits amongst them. Bro. J.F. Mann acknowledged the toast, and was followed by Bro. Usher, who gave "The Tees Lodge," which was suitably responded to. The speeches were agreeably interspersed with vocalism by several of the company, and the evening was spent most enjoyably.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude No. 281.—The regular meeting of this old established and prosperous lodge was held on Wednesday evening last, the 9th inst. The chair of K.S. was occupied by the W.M., Bro. William Hall, who was supported by Bro. J. Daniel Moore, M.D., P.G.S.B. England, I.P.M.; William Fleming, S.W.; Edward Airey, J.W.; James Hatch, P.M. and Treasurer; Edmund Simpson, P.M. and Secretary; John Hatch, P.M.; James Taylor, Organist; W. Sey, S.D.; John Bell as J.D.; R. Taylor, I.G., and several other brethren. The ordinary business of the lodge was transacted, and several communications read. Bro. Moore, on behalf of the Moore Mark Lodge, asked for the use of the lodge room on equitable terms, for the purposes of Mark Masonry. The consideration was deferred until the next meeting of the lodge. The bye laws were read by the Secretary, and after the usual proclamations, the lodge was closed. It was announced that at the next meeting of the lodge Bro. Moore would deliver a short lecture on the Three Grand Principles of our Order.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge No. 1051.—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, on Monday, the 7th inst. There were present the W.M., Bro. Wilson Barker; Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. England, and I.P.M.; Bros. W. J. Sly, S.W. Edward Airey, J.W.; James Taylor, S.D.; J. L. Bradshaw as J.D.; Richard Taylor, I.G.; John Hatch, P.M., 281; Thomas Jackson, E.A.P.; and John Watson, Tyler. After the usual preliminary business had been transacted, and Bro. Jackson had given proof of his proficiency as an E.A.P., Bro. Dr. Moore took the chair of the lodge, and in due form passed Bro. Jackson to the degree of F.C., the working tools being presented by Bro. John Hatch, P.M. Bro. Moore delivered the lecture on the second tracing-board, and some other instruction having been afforded, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom.

LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

MARKET HARBOUROUGH.—St. Peter's Lodge (No. 1330).—The second annual festival of this young and flourishing lodge, was held at the Assembly Room, Three Swans Hotel, on Friday, the 11th inst., and was well attended by members and visitors. Of the members the following brethren, among others, were present:—W. Kelly, R.W. Prov. G.M., I.P.M.; Sir H. St. John Halford, Bart. (High Sheriff), P.G.S.W., W.M.; Albert Pell, M.P., Prov. G. Reg.; Rev. A. A. O'Neill, (P. Prov. G. Chaplain, Lancashire), Chaplain; Rev. John F. Halford, P.G. Chaplain, S.W., and W.M. elect; F. Kemp, J.W.; J. H. Douglass, Sec.; T. Macauley, M.R.C.S., S.D.; Dr. Grant, J.D.; Freestone and Fuller, Stewards; Dixon, Organist; Harrison, I.G.; Rev. F. M. Beaumont, M. H. Lewin, Lawrence, Whitehead, Shovelbottom, Platford, Ellis, and others. Amongst the visitors, were—Bros. the Revs. John Spittal, and William Langley, P. Prov. G. Chaplains, and P. Prov. G.S.W.'s; and W. Targett Fry, Chaplain No. 523; C. Stretten, P.M. 279, and P. Prov. G. Reg.; Dr. Hunt, P. Prov. G.A.D. of C.; Atwood, P.G.A.D. of C.; Johnston, No. 523, P.M. and P. Prov. G.S.W. Westmoreland and Cumberland; C. E. Stretton, I.G. No. 523; J. B. Hall, W.M. No. 1391; Dr. Clifton, Sec. No. 1391, and several others. The W.M. having opened the lodge, and the minutes having been read, and the election of the W.M. for the ensuing year (confirmed, the First Master of the lodge, Bro. Kelly, P.G.M., was balloted for as an honorary member; Bros. William Harry Arkwright, of the Apollo University Lodge, Oxford, and William Atkins, of the Illoe Lodge, Spalding, as joining members; and the Rev. William Berry, Rector of Little Peatlong, as a candidate for initiation, the election being unanimous in each case. The Treasurer's report having been passed, the chair was taken by the Provincial Grand Master, and, the lodge having been opened in the second degree, the Rev. John Frederick Halford was duly installed as W.M. for the ensuing year, and saluted in the several degrees. The W.M. then proceeded to invest the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year, viz., Sir Henry St. John Halford, Bart., I.P.M.; F. Kemp, S.W.; Thomas Macauley, J.W.; Rev. A. A. O'Neill, Chaplain; J. H. Douglas, Secretary; Dr. Grant, S.D.; Harrison, J.D.; Dixon, Organist; Freestone and Fuller, Stewards; M. H. Lewin, I.G.; Clarke, Tyler. A letter was read from the W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Leicester, bringing under the notice of the brethren the attempt now being made by that lodge, to raise a fund for purchasing admission, in the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, of the eldest of the eight children of one of the members, who died recently, after only two hours illness. The sum of five guineas was voted to the fund by the lodge, and that amount was more than doubled by private subscriptions amongst the brethren. After some other business had been transacted, and votes of thanks accorded to the P.G.M. as Installing Master, to the I.P.M. for his services as W.M. during the past year, and to the Stewards, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, alternating with songs; and the brethren finally separated, after enjoying a very pleasant and harmonious re-union. In proposing the health of the W.M., the Prov. G.M. referred, in high terms of eulogy, to the admirable oration delivered by the W.M., in his capacity of Prov. G. Chaplain, at the consecration of the Commercial Lodge, Leicester, and which has just been printed for that lodge.

MELTON MOWBRAY.—Rutland Lodge (No. 1130).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the George Hotel, on Thursday, the 10th inst., the W.M. Bro. J. E. Bright, in the chair. The lodge was attended by the R.W. Prov. G.M., Bro. Kelly, Bro. the Rev. W. Langley, P.M., and P. Prov. G.S.W., and by a considerable number of members. The business was chiefly of a private character, consequent upon the decease of the late Tyler, the change in the tenancy of the hotel &c. It was unanimously decided that this lodge should continue its meetings at the George Hotel, a cordial vote of thanks being unanimously passed to Bro. Selby, the late landlord, for his liberality and attendance to the brethren. A committee was appointed to recommend a Tyler, and a vote of five guineas was made to the late Tyler's widow, out of the lodge funds, in testimony of the satisfaction of the members with the manner in which he performed his Masonic duties. A similar sum was also voted, and a like amount subscribed amongst the brethren present, towards a fund for purchasing admission into the Masonic Boys' School, of the eldest of the eight orphan children of the J.W. of St. John's Lodge, Leicester, who recently died very suddenly. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

STOKESLEY.—Cleveland Lodge (No. 543).—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of this lodge (then numbered 795) was celebrated in the lodge room, at the Golden Lion Hotel on Monday, October 7th, when an excellent banquet was furnished for the occasion, which did much credit to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson. At the request of the officers, the chair was taken by Bro. George Marwood, of Bushby Hall, J.P., the late Prov. G.M., who first saw the light in this lodge shortly after it was opened; and Bro. J. H. Handyside, P.Prov. G.J.W., one of the principal founders of the lodge, occupied the vice chair. Both the chairman and vice-chairman, we may remark, have occupied the chair of K.S. in the lodge, and never ceased to take an active interest in its prosperity. Owing, we presume, to the stormy weather, several visitors who had been expected from neighbouring lodges, were absent, but the attendance of lodge members was above the average. The following toasts were given, all with Masonic honours:—"The Queen and the Craft;" "Bro. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," in proposing which, allusion was made to the recent death of Bro. the late King of Sweden. "The Army, Navy, and Auxillary Forces," responded to by Bro. Wilcox, lieutenant of the Stokesley Rifle Corps, of which the chairman was for several years, the beloved captain, and in which he still takes a warm interest. "The G.M. Earl de Grey and Ripon," "The Prov. G.M., the Earl of Zetland," "The D. Prov. G.M., Bro. Dr. Bell," whom the chairman characterised as one of the most skilful and energetic Masons in the North of England." "Prosperity to the Cleveland Lodge," in proposing which the chairman alluded to the undisturbed harmonious working of the lodge during the quarter of a century which it had that day been in existence, and expressed a fervent wish that it might long continue so. He felt, as he had no doubt most of those who sat around him did, that he was a better man through having become a Mason; for Freemasonry had a strong tendency, not only to cause their hearts to warm towards brother Masons, but to all mankind. He paid a brief, but well-merited compliment, to the vice-chairman, for his unwearied services to the lodge during the whole term of its existence, and thought he might justly be considered the father of Freemasonry in the district. Bro. Handyside feelingly responded to the toast, alluding to the many faces who had once delighted to meet in the lodge, but who were now absent for ever; many of them, he sincerely trusted, gone to that lodge above where the Almighty Architect of the Universe lives and reigns for ever. He had no doubt that the success of the Cleveland Lodge had given an impetus to Freemasonry round about, as it had led to several other lodges being opened in the district. "The Chairman," proposed by the vice-chairman, and suitably acknowledged by Bro. Marwood. "The W.M. of the Lodge," responded to by Bro. Henry Fawcett, B.A. "Bro. Weatherill, the first candidate initiated in the Lodge," which was feelingly responded to by that brother. "The Wardens and Assistant Officers of the Lodge," proposed by the W.M., who bore testimony to their punctual attendance and good working; to which Bro. Richardson, S.W., responded. "Bro. George Markham Tweddell," proposed by Brother Hunter, P.M., who alluded to Bro. Tweddell's long literary labours, both in connection with Freemasonry, antiquities, and history. Bro. Tweddell, in reply, had felt with the Chairman that he was a better man through having become a Mason, for in Freemasonry he found all his own yearning for the good of mankind; and in writing the History of Cleveland and its Vicinity, on which he had so long been engaged, it was his earnest desire to do it in the true spirit of Freemasonry, by not looking upon any sect, or any party, as having a monopoly of wisdom or goodness, but by striving to do justice to others, however their opinions might have differed from his own. "Bro. Harrison," who had faithfully discharged the duties of Tyler from the first year of the lodge's existence; which that brother suitably acknowledged. A number of excellent songs were given during the evening by the Chairman, Bros. Wrighton, Richardson, Wilcox, Rontree, and recitations by Bro. Harrison, and the proceedings of a most harmonious meeting terminated with the usual toast—"To all Poor and Distressed Masons," &c. Many of the brethren before parting, expressed a strong conviction that ere another quarter of a century had elapsed, most of them would be gone to account for the deeds done in the body.

YORKSHIRE (NORTH AND EAST.)

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

A meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge was held, by special appointment, in the Cleveland Hall, Middlesborough, under the auspices of the North York Lodge, No. 602, on Wednesday, 2nd October, 1872.

There were present:—W. Bros. John Pearson Bell, M.D., S.G.D. of England, D.P.G.M., as R.W. Provincial Grand Master on the Throne; George Marwood, Esq., J.P., P.D.P.G.M. 543, as D. Prov. G.M.; S. H. Armitage, M.D., 1248, S. Prov. G.W.; H. Onslow Piersy, 1040, J. Prov. G.W.; Rev. V. H. Moyle, M.A., P. Prov. G.C. 602, as Prov. G. Chaplain; Richard Welch Hollon, P.G.S.B. Eng., 536, Prov. G. Treas.; Walter Reynolds, P. Prov. G.D.C., 250, as Prov. G. Sec.; Harrison Groves, 1244, Prov. G.S.D.; John N. Scherling, 250, Prov. G.J.D.; William Tesseyman, 57, Prov. G.S.W.; Andrew Farmer, 602, Prov. Dir. of Cer.; J. S. Walton, M.D., 1337, Prov. G. Swd. B.; Charles Willman, 602, Prov. G. Org.; Bros. John Ward, 236, Prov. G. Pur.; William Johnson, 57, Prov. G. Tyler; Bros. Henry E. Voight, 250, Isaiah Wilkinson, 312, Thomas Unthank, 543, George Page, P.M. 561, Prov. G. Stewards.

The visitors were:—Bros. W. Best, P.M. 509, P. Prov. J.G.W., Durham; James Groves, P.M. 774, P. Prov. J.G.W., Durham; W. M. Watson, W.M. 509 Prov. J.G.D., Durham; F. S. Jackson, P.M. 940, P. Prov. J.G.D., Durham.

Many Past Provincial Grand Officers, and the Worshipful Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens, of the various lodges in the Province, were also present.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in form and with solemn prayer, the Acting Prov. Grand Secretary read the Minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held at Bridlington Quay, on the 4th, October, 1871, and the Minutes of the Especial Provincial Grand Lodge, held at York, on the 23rd May, 1872, which were confirmed.

Letters of apology for non-attendance were received from the R.W. Prov. Grand Master; Bros. Rev. H. V. Palmer, M.A., P.G. Chap.; C. J. Todd P.G. Reg.; M. C. Peck, P.G. Sec.; A.B. Brockwell, P. Prov. G.D.C.; G.E. Harding, P. Prov. G.O.; T. S. Camidge, P.Prov. G.O.; and Bro. Smurthwaite, W.M. 236.

The Acting Prov. Grand Secretary then read the acknowledgements received, to the loyal addresses, presented from the Provincial Grand Lodge to Her Majesty the Queen and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

The W. Prov. Grand Treasurer then read his annual Financial Report, which having been audited by the W. Masters of the Humber and Lennox Lodges, and found correct, was unanimously adopted.

The Acting Prov. Grand Secretary read the Report of the Board of Benevolence, showing that the Board had that day voted £10 10s. to the widow of the late Bro. D. P. H., of the Humber Lodge, and £10 10s. to Bro. H. A. D. of the Royal Lodge. It was recommended that the support of the Province be given, and the votes of the brethren solicited in behalf of Ethel Ida Margaret Seaton, aged 8 years, of Hull, whose late father was a Member of the Humber Lodge, a candidate for the Masonic Girls' School. The Prov. Grand Treasurer's account shewed a balance of £193 9s. 8d. in favour of the Fund of Benevolence.

The report of the Board of Benevolence was then adopted and confirmed.

The various lodges in the Province, all of which were represented, then communicated. The returns shewed a total of 1,401 subscribing members.

W. Bro. Woodall, P.S.P.G.W., then, in accordance with notice given, moved:—"That rule V. of the Prov. Grand Fund of Benevolence, be amended, by substituting the word 'representatives' in lieu of 'Masters,' which was seconded by the W. Senior Prov. Grand Warden.

W. Bro. G. Smurthwaite, P. Prov. J.G.W., moved as an amendment, "That the following be added to rule V. of the Prov. Grand Fund of Benevolence:—"If the actual Master of the year of any lodge cannot attend, the immediate Past Master may supply his place; should that brother be unable to attend, some other Past Master of such lodge may act for him; but in every case the Past Master must be a subscribing member of the lodge." This amendment was seconded by the W. Prov. Grand Treasurer, and carried unanimously.

The W. Prov. Grand Treasurer then, in accordance with notice given, moved:—"That the expenses of any brother who may be deputed by the Provincial Grand Lodge to proceed to any place on business connected with the Province, be paid by the Prov. Grand Treasurer." This was seconded by the W. Master of the Humber Lodge, and carried unanimously.

Bro. Theo. Smith, P.M. 250, in accordance with notice given, then moved:—"That a member of this Province be appointed to represent those candidates for the various Masonic Charities whom the Board of Benevolence of this Provincial Grand Lodge recommends to be supported at the respective elections; and that such representative be paid his necessary expenses in connection therewith; which are to be audited by the Board of Benevolence, and paid by the Provincial Grand Lodge." This was seconded by W. Bro. Jones, P. Prov. J.G.D., and carried unanimously.

The W. Senior Prov. Grand Warden then moved:—"That Bro. John Walker, P.M. 57, be appointed Assistant Secretary to the Board of Benevolence, in the place of the late Bro. R. J. Chaffer, P.M. 57, at an annual salary of £10 10s., and that in the event of his occasional inability to attend such charity elections in London, as he may be deputed by the board to attend, the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, or his Deputy, shall have power to appoint a brother to act for him." This was seconded by the W. Junior Prov. Grand Deacon, and carried.

Bro. Theo. Smith, P.M. 250, gave notice of the following motion:—"That it is desirable the Board of Benevolence meet half-yearly, at such time and place as the Prov. Grand Master, or his Deputy, may appoint, previous to the elections for the Masonic Charities in London, to consider the applications for those Charities, to decide which candidate the Province shall be recommended to support, and on other business. That a report of the proceedings at such meetings be printed, and a copy forwarded to every member of the Board. That every Lodge and Chapter in the province, and all members of the same, and others having votes for any of the Masonic Charities, be requested to place such votes at the disposal of the Board of Benevolence, by signing their voting papers, leaving the candidate's name blank, and forwarding them to the brother elected to go to London to represent the selected candidates."

The Acting R.W. Prov. Grand Master then appointed and invested the following brethren as Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, with the exception of the Prov. Grand Treasurer, who was unanimously re-elected by the Provincial Grand Lodge.

- Frederick Bell, Prov. G. S. W.
- Charles Wells, Prov. G. J. W.
- Rev. John Gardner, LL.D., Prov. G. Chaplain.
- Richard Welch Hollon, ... Prov. G. Treasurer.
- James Ingram, Prov. G. Registrar.
- Michael Charles Peck, Prov. G. Secretary.
- Richard Thos. Vivian, Prov. G. S. D.
- Edward Mason, Prov. G. J. D.

- George William Smales, ... Prov. G. S. of W.
- George H. Walshaw, Prov. G. D. of C.
- William G. Long, Prov. G. Swd. B.
- John Wilkinson, Prov. G. Organist.
- John Ward, Prov. G. Purst.
- William Johnson, Prov. G. Tyler.

The six Provincial Grand Stewards are to be nominated by the following Lodges, viz.:—The St. Germain's, North York, St. Cuthbert's, Royal, Camalodunum, and Londesborough.

The Acting R.W. Prov. Grand Master then addressed the brethren, expressing in the first place the extreme regret he felt (and which he doubted not was fully shared in by all present) at the inability of the revered Prov. Grand Master to attend. He trusted that his Lordship's valuable life might yet be spared for many years, and that we should long have the benefit of his governance and counsel. The harmony and prosperity which exist in the Province was a cause for congratulation, and it was exceedingly gratifying to find by the Prov. Grand Treasurer's account that our financial condition was so sound, as regards both the Provincial Grand Lodge and the Fund of Benevolence; by means of the latter we had again been enabled to afford acceptable relief to deserving cases. He concluded by exhorting the brethren in these days of innovation and change, strictly to adhere to the antient landmarks, and to practise in their fullest sense the genuine tenets of Freemasonry. He had received invitations from the three Hull Lodges, and also one from Scarborough, but considering that there had been no Provincial Grand Lodge held in Scarborough since 1865, he should, with the concurrence of the Prov. Grand Master, accept the invitation to hold the Provincial Grand Lodge at the latter place, under the auspices of the Denison Lodge.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in form, and with solemn prayer.

The annual Banquet, at which the Acting R. W. Prov. Grand Master presided, was held the same evening at the Town-Hall, when a large number of brethren dined; due honours to the Craft were observed, and true Masonic feeling prevailed.

Royal Arch.

DERBYSHIRE.

DERBY.—CONSECRATION OF THE CHAPTER OF TRUTH.

On Wednesday, a new Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, denominated "The Chapter of Truth," was consecrated at the Arboretum Hotel, Derby, in connection with Lodge 731. Comp. Jas. Terry, P.Z. 174 and 975, attended to perform the ceremony of consecration, and was supported by Companions T. Cox, P.Z., and J. Crossley, P.Z. The Chapter was duly opened, and Companion the Right Hon. the Marquis of Hartington, R.W.P.G.M. of Derbyshire, was duly installed as first Principal, Companion Houghton Chas. Okeover, R.W.D.P.G.M., as second Principal, and Companion Charles Robert Colville, R.W.P.D.P.G.M., as Third Principal. The Chapter elected Companion Wright, Treasurer; Companion Campion, S.E.; and Companion Burn, S.N.; and Companion Iltie, P.S.

A banquet of the members of the Chapter and the Aboretum Lodge, united, afterwards took place in the Lodge-room at the Hotel, which was very tastefully decorated, and a choice repast was provided by Brother Baldock. The chair was taken by Brother the most Noble the Marquis of Hartington, supported by Bros. Colville; R.W.P.D.P.G.M.: J. Smith, W.M.; Wright, T. Cox, G. Treasurer: Campion, S. G. W.; Terry, P.Z.; Crossley, P. G. S. W.; Naylor, G. Secretary; and Iltie, P.M., 253. The vice chairs were filled by S.W. Gee and J.W. Merry, and there were also present Bros. S. Leech, Hillam, Broughall, T. Roe jun., R. Eastwood, Humphreys, Burn, Sheffield, G. Woodiwiss, Speight, Marsden, Dusautoy, A. Taylor, T. Merry, T. Hall, J. Harpur, Winter, Worsnop, Burton, Carr, Brookhouse, Hackett, Witton, Holland, Holbrook, Warner, Carson Fowke, Burnett, J. Brown, J. Thompson, Merchant, Jackson, Knight, Dod, Low, Major, Foster, McCombe.

The repast over, the Chairman proposed in graceful terms, "The Queen and the Craft," alluding with much feeling to the outburst of loyal affection which was called forth last year by the illness of the Queen, followed by the still more serious illness of the Prince of Wales, which taught the country how deeply loyal it is.

The Chairman, in proposing "The most noble the Marquis of Ripon, M.W. Grand Master of England," observed that they all knew how active, zealous, and energetic their Grand Master, the Marquis of Ripon, had proved himself to be. Personally he had the greatest satisfaction in giving that toast, for he had long had the happiness and privilege of the acquaintance of Lord Ripon, who was almost the first political chief under whom he (Lord Hartington) had the honour of serving, and he then formed a high opinion of his talents and abilities, and had never since seen reason to alter that opinion. He had still the happiness of being one of Lord Ripon's colleagues, and it had been to him a source of continued satisfaction to enjoy his friendship and official communication with him. (Applause.) But it was not Lord Ripon's qualities as a friend or as a statesman that formed the reason why they drank his health on that occasion, but his merits as the head of their craft, and, as he had said before, he did not believe they had ever had a more active, zealous, and energetic Grand Master than Lord Ripon had proved himself. (Applause.) He hoped to see the noble Marquis to-morrow, or at any rate very shortly, and was sure that when he told Lord Ripon that he had, for the first time for some years past, been doing a small part of his duty as a Mason he should be better received by him than before. (Cheers.)

The toast, as those which followed, was drunk with Masonic honours.

The Chairman next gave the toast of "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Dep. Grand Master of England," observing that although he had not the pleasure of the personal acquaintance of Lord Carnarvon, and though politically they were not associated, still in Masonry that did not make the slightest difference, for one of its greatest boasts was that however separated they might be in politics or in matters of opinion, they were equally united as members of one common craft. (Applause.)

Bro. T. Cox then proposed, amidst loud applause, "The Health of the Chairman, the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire, the Marquis of Hartington." Bro. Cox expressed the great satisfaction it afforded himself and all his brethren to see their Grand Master amongst them. (Applause.) They had not enjoyed that pleasure for some years, but they well knew that whether present or absent the Grand Master had the interests of Freemasonry at heart. (Cheers.) It was a great satisfaction that the noble Lord had attended that night at considerable inconvenience to take the position of First Principal of the new chapter connected with that lodge, and he hoped what had been done that day would form a new era, not only in Arch Masonry, but in Craft Masonry in the province, and that the brethren would heartily rally round their Grand Master. (Applause.)

Lord Hartington, in responding, said the reception given to the toast made him wish that he had been able to be with them oftener than it had been his privilege to meet them for some years past, and he could only trust to their kindness to make excuses for him better than he could make for himself. They probably knew that he had not been altogether unoccupied for the last few years,—(hear, hear)—indeed it had been his fate to fill one perhaps of the hardest worked posts in the Administration of this country, and though they were not equally engaged all the year round, it had not happened to him to be in this part of the country lately during the parliamentary vacation, and he could not have been except at considerable inconvenience. (Hear, hear.) It was, however, a great satisfaction to him that his Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Okeover, to whom, by the indulgence of the Grand Lodge, he was able to delegate all his powers, was so eminently able, and so earnestly desirous to do everything possible for the promotion of Freemasonry in the Province, and that he was so admirably supported by the other officers. His lordship concluded by alluding to the rapid extension of the Craft in the Province, and by proposing the health of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the officers of the Grand Lodge.

Brother Campion, G.S.W., appropriately responded, the D.P.G.M. having been compelled to leave after the meeting of the Chapter.

Brother J. Smith proposed in cordial terms the health of Bro. Colville, P.P.D.G.M., who also had been compelled to leave after dining with the company, and who on retiring had received quite an ovation.

Brother Crossley gracefully proposed the health of Bro. Terry, who had that day attended to consecrate the new Chapter, which was duly acknowledged.

Brother Wright gave the health of the W.M., Bro. J. Smith, in very cordial terms, and Bro. Smith, in responding, proposed his officers, which S.W. Gee acknowledged.

The Chairman connected the name of Bro. Leech with "The visitors," and alluded to his important service as Mayor of Derby.

The toast having been acknowledged by Bro. Leech with his usual eloquence.

Bro. Terry proposed "Success to the Chapter of Truth," and shortly afterwards the company separated.

Several excellent songs agreeably enlivened the evening, which was a very pleasant one, and the grace and courtesy with which the P.G.M. presided added to the general regret that his responsible duties so seldom permit him to attend the meetings of the Craft in the Province over which he presides.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE WATT INSTITUTION AND SCHOOL OF ARTS, EDINBURGH.

The foundation-stone of the new School of Arts in Chambers-street, was laid on Wednesday 9th inst. As usual in such cases, the business of the day commenced with a Masonic procession.

About one o'clock the Masonic lodges which had resolved to take part in the ceremony began to assemble in Charlotte Square, where as they successively arrived, they were ranged in due order by Grand Marshal Mackenzie and his assistants. Apart from the lodge banners, some of which were resplendent in new silk or velvet, while others bore traces of having seen service on many similar occasions, the most notable feature of the display consisted in the strange costumes of the Tylers. In the parade dress of those functionaries some lodges indulge a playful humour; others seek to commemorate circumstances connected with their early history. Thus the lodge Trafalgar, rejoicing in a Tyler who fought under Nelson, presented the old salt in the uniform of our naval heroes. A similar costume not inappropriately distinguished the Tyler of the Neptune. The Edinburgh Defensive Band, which dates its origin from the days of Paul Jones, offered a curious historical study in the shape of a Royal Edinburgh Volunteer of that period. A light blue coat with yellow epaulets and facings, white corduroy breeches and black gaiters, formed the costume, which was crowned by a cocked hat with cockade of black, white, and yellow, and set off with white cross belts, bearing a large brass badge engraven with the city arms and the name of the redoubtable corps. The worthy citizen thus transformed into the similitude of his grandsire, seemed quite alive to the picturesqueness of his appearance; and no one could deny him the palm in that respect over a modern volunteer, albeit his old flint-lock would make a poor figure beside the Snider. Hardly less curious than its Tyler was the banner of this lodge, a piece of elaborate embroidery on crimson velvet, bearing date 1782. The Lodge Kirkcaldie, mindful of old commercial relations with the Saltmarket, had its champion rigged out as Bailie Nicol Jarvie. Attired in blue coat with white facings, plush breeches over red stockings, and three-cornered hat, the Bailie brandished a formidable claymore, which was said to have done duty at Culloden. Still more interesting was a beautifully-carved horn, which the Kirkcaldie brethren facetiously declared to have been at the siege of Jericho, and for which, as well as a Breeches Bible now in their possession, the lodge was indebted to the late Captain Wemyss. Only less notable than the Kirkcaldie horn was one borne by a Leith Lodge, and which displayed on five-and-twenty silver rings with which it was encircled the names of the Masters, since 1806. The Roman Eagle had its emblem carried by a stalwart trooper of the Scots Grèys, in strange contrast to whom was the Tyler, mounted on horseback and encased in mail and visored helmet, after the fashion of the middle ages.

The members of Grand Lodge had assembled in the Freemasons' Hall, George Street, to the front of which a considerable crowd was attracted. At half-past one the lodge was opened by the Earl of Rosslyn, the M.W. Grand Master, who was supported by John Whyte Melville, Past Grand Master; Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart., Depute Grand Master; Henry Inglis, Substitute Grand Master; Colonel Campbell, S.G.W.; the Right Hon. the Earl of Kellie, J.G.W.; Sir James Alexander, Prov. G.M. Stirlingshire; Major Hope, Prov. G.M. East-Lothian; Capt. Charles Hunter, Prov. G.M. Aberdeenshire East. There were also present—the Rev. G. V. Faithful, G. Chap.; the Rev. Mr. Grant, acting G. Chap.; Alexander J. Stuart, G. Sec.; John Laurie, G. Clerk; William Officer, acting G. Treas.; William Mann, P.S.G.W., acting G.D.; D. Rhind, acting G. Architect; Alexander Hay, G. Jeweller; John Coghill, G. Dir. of Cers.; Capt. Colt, acting Grand Sword-Bearer; William Barton, G. Bible-bearer; Charles W. M. Mutter, G. Dir. of Music; Robert Davidson, G. Org.; M. McKenzie, Chief G. Marshal; W. M. Bryce, G. Tyler; and others. Before proceeding to join the procession, the Grand Master thanked the brethren for the large turn-out they had made to support him.

Including Grand Lodge, at least 1,100 members of the Craft took part in the procession. By the time the lodges had defiled in front of the Freemasons' Hall, the brethren who had assembled there were prepared to take their places. Immediately behind Mary's Chapel the band of the 93rd Highlanders fell in. Then came the members of Lodge Journeymen, who, in virtue of the privilege claimed by that fraternity, were entrusted with the implements to be used in the forthcoming ceremony. After these came the officers of Grand Lodge, some on foot, the others in four carriages, which brought up the rear of the procession. The last carriage of all conveyed the Grand Master, with whom rode Bro. Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bro. Whyte Melville, and Bro. Henry Inglis.

The leading lodge arrived at the new building about a quarter to three o'clock, and, a halt being called, the ranks were opened up, forming a line on either side of the street, from College Wynd through Brown Square, and for some distance along George IV. Bridge. The Grand Master and other officials of Grand Lodge now alighted from their carriages, and, preceded by the bearers of the working tools, as also by the band of the 93rd Highlanders, playing "Hey, the Merry Masons," defiled through the Masonic line, to the new building. The other lodges followed up in rear of the Grand Lodge, in the reverse order to that in which they had marched from Charlotte Square.

At the site of the new building a large and substantial platform had been erected, capable of accommodating about 500 persons. The platform was, for the most part, reserved for the Freemasons, the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Councillors, the directors and teachers of the Watt Institution, and a number of well-known citizens—a gallery to the west being set apart for those of the general public who had procured tickets of admission.

The directors and teachers of the institution, together with several well-known citizens, made their appearance on the platform shortly after two o'clock, and took up the places allotted to them.

Lord Rosslyn came upon the platform shortly after the Lord Provost, and was received with hearty cheers by the large concourse of spectators which had by this time assembled. The noble Earl was followed by the office-bearers of the Grand Lodge, who took up positions near their chief.

The Grand Master called upon the Rev. Bro. Faithful, Grand Chaplain, to open the proceedings with prayer, which having been done, the Grand Master called upon the Grand Treasurer and Grand Secretary to place the coins, &c., in the cavity of the stone, the architect to bring forward the necessary workmen, and the Grand Clerk to read the inscriptions on the plate to be placed over the cavity.

The Grand Treasurer and Secretary having obeyed his lordship's call, the Grand Clerk (Bro. John Laurie) read the inscriptions referred to.

The Old Hundred having been played by one of the bands, the Grand Master covered the lower stone with mortar, using for the purpose a beautiful silver-gilt trowel.

The Grand Master directed the R.W. Substitute Grand Master to cause the various implements to be applied to the stone, that it may be laid in its bed, according to the rules of Masonry, which having been done, the Grand Master gave the stone three taps with the mallet, saying, "May the Almighty Architect of the Universe look down with benignity upon our present undertaking, and crown the edifice, of which we have now laid the foundation, with every success.

Three lusty cheers having been given, "Where, Oh! where does my Hieland Laddie dwell," was played by the band. During this performance, a cornucopia, and vases with oil and wine were handed to the Grand Master, who, in accordance with ancient custom, threw their contents upon the stone, saying:—"Praise be to the Lord, immortal and eternal, who formed the heavens, laid the foundations of the earth, and extended the waters beyond it, who supports the pillars of nations, and maintains in order and harmony surrounding worlds; we implore thy aid, and may the continued blessings of an all-bounteous Providence be the lot of these our native shores; and may the Almighty Ruler of events deign to direct the hand of our gracious Sovereign, so that she may pour down blessings upon her people; and may her people, living under sage laws, in a free government, ever feel grateful for the blessings they enjoy."

The Grand Master then delivered an appropriate address; another followed, by Rev. Dr. Gray, on behalf of the President and Directors of the school, in the course of which he formally presented to the Grand Master the trowel, with which the stone had been laid.

The brethren then retired to the hall, when Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

A banquet took place in Freemasons' Hall, George-street, which was attended by upwards of two hundred members of the Craft and friends of the institution.

Lord Ardmillan presided, and was supported right and left by the Earl of Rosslyn, M.W.G. M. Mason of Scotland; Bro. J. Whyte-Melville of Bennoch, P.G.M. Fifeshire; the Earl of Kellie; Major-General Sir James Alexander, P.G. M. Stirlingshire; Bro. Walter M. Neilson, of Queenshill, P.G.M. for Glasgow; Bailie Miller; Capt. Colt, of Gartsherrie; Bro. Wm. Mann, R. W.S.G.W. The Rev. Dr. W. H. Gray, Vice-President of the Watt Institution, was croupier.

The general company included Bailie Tawse, Professor Balfour, Dr. Donaldson, Rector of the High School of Bedford (Heriot's Hospital), Mr. Marwick, Town Clerk; Mr. Adam, City Accountant; Mr. Morham, Depute-city-clerk; ex-Bailie Skinner, Mr. Thomas Knox, Master of the Merchant Company; Mr. George Harrison, Mr. Thomas Ivory, advocate; Dr. George Lees, Mr. J. R. Dymock, Mr. W. S. Fraser, Mr. Rhind, architect; Mr. R. T. Scott (secretary of the school), Mr. Jamieson, curator; Messrs. Crombie, Matheson, and Bryson, and the following lecturers—Dr. Stevenson Macadam, Prof. Davidson, Mons. Schneider, Herr Schopp, Mr. Lees, and Mr. D. Pryde.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The quarterly court of the governors and subscribers to this school was held on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. John Symonds, V.P., in the chair.

It having been found inconvenient to many brethren living in the provinces that the quarterly meetings of this school and those of the Girls' School should be held, as at present, on separate days, an alteration was proposed by Bro. Captain Wordsworth and Bro. Hime, who had given notices of motion to alter the existing laws on that point.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart moved the completion of the agreement for the purchase of a perpetual presentation of one boy to the School by the Province of West Yorkshire, which was agreed to; and the election of ten boys out of a list of 64 candidates was then proceeded with.

The following are the successful candidates:—

- Martin, Stanley John 1276
Whyatt, J. G. 1210
Stead, Charles Frederick 1196
Sparke, William Hugh 1162
Sawtell, W. Edward 1154
Lang, George V. 1141
Booser, William Alfred 1122
Hazelard, John J. 1086
Roberts, J. L. E. J. 1074
Goodier, L. 1057
Heaviside, P. K. B. 997
Christie, John Edward 976
Hodge, Frederick 902
Prentice, John Edward 843
Graygoose, Charles S. 655

THE LODGE OF EDINBURGH (MARY'S CHAPEL), No. 1.—We have pleasure in announcing that the name of Bro. William James Hughan, of Truro, now graces the roll of members by Honorary Affiliation, of this distinguished Lodge.

A CORRECTION.—Boscawen Lodge (No. 699.) Chacewater. The seconder of the petition to the M.W.G.M., was Bro. W.P. Hugoe, P.M., P. G. Steward, Cornwall, not Bro. Hughan, P.M. 131, P.G. Secretary, Cornwall, who is not a member of the Lodge.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS. For the Week ending Friday, October 25, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, OCT. 19th.

- Audit Committee Boys' School.
Lodge 1297, West Kent, Forest Hill Hotel, Forest Hill.
1329, Sphinx, Stirling Castle, Church-st, Cambewell.
1364, Earl of Zetland.
Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. S. Dilley, Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7.30; Bros. Thomas and Worthington, Preceptors.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London Street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, OCT. 21.

- Lodge 21, Emulation, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
58, Felicity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
185, Tranquility, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
720, Panmure, Balham Hotel, Balham.
862, Whittington, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
901, City of London, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
907, Royal Albert, Freemasons' Hall.
1201, Eclectic, Freemasons' Hall.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile End, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street; (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Willey, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 7; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-Hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, OCT. 22.

- Lodge 14, Tuscan, Freemasons' Hall.
92, Moira, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street.
145, Prudent Brethren, Freemasons' Hall.
186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
205, Israel.
1158, Southern Star, Montpellier Tavern, Walworth.
1196, Urban, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell.
1348, Ebury, Morpeth Arms Tavern, Millbank.
Chap. 7, Royal York Chapter of Perseverance, Freemasons' Hall.
29, St. Alban's, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domatic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30. Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
Florence Nighlungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's Wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 23.

- Lodge of Benevolence, at 6.
Lodge 212, Euphrates, Masons' Hall, Basinghall-street.
507, United Pilgrims, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
754, High Cross, Seven Sisters Tavern, Page-green Tottenham.
871 Royal Oak, White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford.
1056, Victoria, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
Chap. 13, Union of Waterloo, Freemasons' Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
753, Prince Frederick William, Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's Wood.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's Road, Kentish Town, at 8. Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.

- Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8. Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY OCT. 24.

- House Committee Girls' School at 4.
Lodge 60, Peace and Harmony, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
65, Prosperity, Guildhall Tavern Gresham-st.
66, Grenadiers, Freemasons' Hall.
Chapter 73, Mount Lebanon, Bridge House Hotel, Southwark.
177, Domatic, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
534, Polish National, Freemasons' Hall.
The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall, Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, at 7.30.
Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsonby's st., Milbank.

FRIDAY, OCT. 25.

- Lodge 509, Fitzroy, Head Quarters Hon. Artillery Company, City-road.
861, Finsbury, Jolly Anglers, Bath-st., St. Lukes.
Chapter 749, Belgrave, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
Stability Lodge of Instruction, No. 217, Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6. Bro. Henry Muggerridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st.
Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria road, Deptford, at 8.
Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee, (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom Winsley-street, Oxford-Street, at 8.
Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M. Preceptor.
Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Br. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

THE GREAT SECRET of modern success lies in the art of Advertising. JOHN BAPTIST WOLPERT ensures a general saving, and wide-spread publicity to all who advertise through his agency. Translations in all languages. Offices, 24, Austin Friars, Cit

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W. A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district. Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only,

THE PEOPLE'S
HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS
VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lanbaugh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect,

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDELL,

Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each, containing 40 pages of crown quarto double columns, thus giving for 16s. 1,280 pages, or about 2,560 columns of letter-press, being twice as much matter as is given in any other History of Cleveland at three or four times the price.

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ord's History, the Work is Illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by TWEDELL and Sons, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

J. E. PETERS,
ORNAMENTAL ENGRAVER AND FANCY
ENAMELLER,
42, Howard-place, Northampton-road,
CLERKENWELL.

Writing, Engraving of every description, Masonic Emblems Engraved or Enamelled; old enamelled Work repaired; Country Orders attended to with despatch.

What better Theme than Masonry?"
MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
Post-free, 25 stamps.

TESSELATED CARPETING,
FOR

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.
Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

SECOND EDITION.—NOW READY.

Price One Shilling, Post-free, Revised and Enlarged.

Freemasonry in Relation to Civil
Authority and the Family Circle,

By BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.

THIS work is a perfect handbook of the principles of Freemasonry, founded on the Ancient Charges and Symbols, and will be found to be eminently practical and useful in the vindication and support of the Order.

Bro. Geo. Kenning, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THIRD EDITION.—JUST READY.

REFLECTED RAYS OF LIGHT
UPON FREEMASONRY:

OR,

The Freemason's Pocket Compendium,

With an Emblematical Frontispiece.

A Hand-Book of the Principles of Freemasonry, and Pocket Vade Mecum and Guide to the various Ceremonies connected with Craft Masonry, so far as the same are allowed to be communicable, in accordance with the principles of the Order.

Price One Shilling, Post-free for Thirteen Stamps.

Sold by Bro. Geo. Kenning, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

MONEY.—LOANS granted immediately.
from £100 to £2,000 at 5 per cent., repayable over Three, Four, or Five Years, on Personal Security and Life Policy effected with the WEST OF ENGLAND INSURANCE CO., (Established 1807.)

Apply to the Superintendent of Agents,
J. CROCKER, Neville Street, Newcastle.
Agents Wanted.

NOW READY, PRICE £4/4 THE PAIR, OR £2/10 SINGLE.

SIZE 32in. BY 26in.

PHOTOGRAPHS

OF

BRO. SIGISMUND ROSENTHAL'S CELEBRATED PAINTINGS

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master,

At Freemasons' Hall, on December 1st, 1869, containing upwards of 120 Figures and Portraits.

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar,

May 13th, 1870, containing nearly 100 Figures and Portraits.

Sold by BRO. G. KENNING, 2, 3, & 4, Little Britain, E.C.

Branches: 198, Fleet-street, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

IRON
PIANOS
FOR ALL
CLIMATES

MESSRS. BORN & Co.,
13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.

MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled.

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.

LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d.

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA,

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

By WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinæ." "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.

Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.

Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Notes on the Orders of the Temple and Hospital ...	655
Royal Visit to Lathom House	656
Melrose Abbey	657
CORRESPONDENCE:—
Obituary	658
Provincial Grand Officers	659
Consecration of a New Lodge at Anerley	659
Freemasonry at the Cape of Good Hope	659
The Supreme Council of the Northern Jurisdiction, U.S.	660
CRAFT MASONRY:—
Metropolitan	661
Provincial	661
Scotland	663
ROYAL ARCH:—
Metropolitan	664
Provincial	664
MARK MASONRY:—
Provincial	665
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR:—
Provincial	666
RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE:—
Provincial	666
Masonic Meetings for next week	666
Advertisements	653, 654, 667

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMMA HOLMES, 31°.

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 609.)

"Therefore I have appointed signs unknown to and out of the reach of the false brethren, to be orally delivered by fellow soldiers, and in the manner that in the Grand Convent it has already been pleased to deliver them.

"But which signs are only communicated, after due profession and consecration as a Knight, according to the statutes, rites, and usages of fellow soldiers of the Temple, transmitted by me to the aforesaid Eminent Commander, as I have had them delivered into my hand from the Worshipful Master, and most holy Martyr."

Sir Sidney Smith, the modern Cœur de Lion, as he has been called, became Grand Master in 1838, and he appointed the Duke of Sussex, who, as you know, was Grand Master of the English Masonic Knights Templar, Grand Prior of England; conferring upon the Earl of Durham (Prov. Grand Commander of Durham, and, I believe, a P.E.C. of the Royal Kent Encampment at Newcastle-on-Tyne), the rank of Grand Prior of Scotland.

Napoleon recognised it as a public order of Chivalry in France, and some authors say he joined the Order (Bro. Woolf says not), but it never recovered the Papal sanction to be enrolled amongst the surviving Orders of religious military character.

Barrow, in his life of Sir Sidney Smith, says that Don Pedro of Portugal, Emperor of Brazil, was desirous of being elected Grand Master of the Order, but in spite of Don Pedro's magnificent offer to re-establish the Order in Portugal in all its former splendour, with lands and houses as the seat of a Grand Prior, declined to put his Majesty in nomination, averring that he could not regard rank as having any claim per se in an Order where promotion should be based solely upon the merits of the candidate.

The Duke of Sussex accepted the office of Grand Prior of England about 1824 or 1825, says Bro. Woolf, and in doing so stipulated that no Englishman should be admitted into the Order without his special sanction.

This condition the Grand Master subsequently sought to set aside, and in consequence, a coolness, which soon amounted to a total breach of official intercourse, followed.

A convent existed in London, and another was founded in Liverpool (the latter without the Duke's sanction, who would not recognise the members). No chapter has been held in this country since 1836, and the two convents have long been extinct.

Amongst the names Bro. Woolf gives us as members of the Metropolitan Convent of London are Henry, Duke of Beaufort, K.G., Lord William Cholmondeley, General Sir Hugh Davison, George, Marquis of Donegal, K.G., the Earl of Durham, Sir James Fellowes, Colonel Kemys Tynte, afterwards Grand Master of the Masonic Knights Templar, Charles Mills (the author of the History of Chivalry), the Duke of Leinster, Grand Prior of Ireland, (Grand Master of the Masonic High Knights Templar of Ireland), the Earl of Hamilton, Lord Dorrington, and others.

In the Grand Priory of Scotland we observe the names of William Alexander Laurie, (some-time Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and the author of the History of Freemasonry); and in the Grand Priory of India we see the name of Sir James Outram.

Of the Metropolitan Convent, only eight members were living in 1865, and only four remained of the Liverpool Convent.

Wikeke, who of course disbelieves in the Charter of Larmenius, and quotes against its genuineness the fact of Du Guesclin signing his name when he could not write—an objection of which I have already disposed—adds:—

"From 1705 the signatures are all of historical persons—for instance, Philip, Duke of Orleans till 1724; Lewis Augustus, Duke of Marne, till 1737; Louis Henry, Duke of Bourbon Condé till 1741; Lewis Francis of Bourbon Conti, till 1766; the last were Grand Masters of French Freemasonry; but under the last mentioned Grand Master the Templars separated themselves from the lodges, and under Cossé Brissac first formed an independent society."

This is important, since it connects the "Ordre du Temple" with Freemasonry.

It is now time that I should briefly note the connection between the Templars and Hospitallers of modern date, as well as their union with the Freemasons.

The readers of the Freemason are, no doubt, perfectly aware that the Hospitallers, as such, were not originally a military body—indeed, I think I have already adverted to this fact at an early stage of this lecture.

Addison informs us* that Gerard, the head of the Hospitallers in 1118, had the title of Guardian of the Poor. What would our workhouse authorities say to that?

Pope Innocent, in 1130, issued a bull, exhorting the bishops and clergy to minister to the necessities of the Hospitallers, as they maintained at their own expense a body of horsemen and foot soldiers.

The Hospitallers became from this time a military body, though it was not till 1168, when Gilbert D'Assalit succeeded to the guardianship of the Hospital, that they became organised, much against the wishes of the senior members of the Order, as a great military order.

I have before alluded to the curious similarity of Chivalric and Masonic titles, and, perhaps, I ought to apologise to my readers for again referring to the subject. But whilst speaking of the Knights of St. John, I am reminded that among the Cottonian MSS. is preserved a letter from Clement West (dated at Malta) to Sir William Weston, the Prior of England, from which we extract the following, as likely to interest your readers.

"Right Worchyppfull,—After all hearty, &c. It may be your pleasure to undystond, the whych is the xvii. of the last past dep'ted thys lyff the good Lord Master Pryn de Pount; and xxii of the same the elections was chosen the Priour of Tholoze ya Ffrance, gret master of our relygyon, and that elxyon during, yet pleased them by her to schoose me ffor Regent, whych onor hath . . . (never before) byn gyffen to an Englishman."

This Clement West was one of the Knights to whom an annuity was granted upon the suppression of the Priory at Clerkenwell.

The Order of Knights Hospitallers of St. John was suppressed in 1540 in England and Ireland, when a bill was brought before Parliament for that purpose, by order of Henry VIII., and the Knights belonging to the various establishments were enjoined no longer to use the habit or their former titles. "The suppression of the Hospitallers," observes Fuller, "deserveth especial notice, because the manner thereof was different from the other religious houses; for manfully they stood it out to the last, in despite of several assaults. The Knights Hospitallers (whose chief mansion was at Clerkenwell, nigh London) being gentlemen and soldiers, of ancient families and high spirits, would not be brought to present to Henry the Eighth such puling petitions and public recognitions of their errors, as other Orders had done. Wherefore, like stout fellows, they opposed any that thought to enrich themselves with their ample revenues, and stood on their own defence and justification. But Barnabas' Day itself hath a night, and this long lived Order, which in England went over the grave of all others, came at last to its own."^{*}

Sir William Weston did not survive the suppression of the priory, "but was himself dissolved by death on the day of the dissolution of his house†" He was buried in the chancel of the church belonging to the suppressed nunnery of St. Mary, Clerkenwell, where it was discovered, April 27, 1788, in a leaden coffin, with the cross of the Hospitallers on the lid. This was the cross pattée, the same as is worn upon our Templar cloaks, and borne upon the banner of the Agnus Dei in the Templar seal, found at Bristol, to which I shall refer.

From Stow's Annals, we learn that at the suppression of the nun Hospitallers, to whom Henry II., in 1180, gave the Preceptory of Buckland, in Somersetshire, but whose chief house had been at Jerusalem, and who were ladies of distinction, various pensions were granted to them as had been allowed to the Knights. Catherine Bower, the Prioress, was granted £50 per annum; Joan Hylbere, Thomasina Huntingdon, Katherine Popham, Anne Mawncedfield, and others, £4 each; and to William Mawndesley, clerk (no doubt the Chaplain and Confessor attached to the Preceptory), £4.*

*Fuller's Holy War.

†Seymour's Survey, Fuller.

*History of Knights Templar, page 34.

Though the greater number of the Hospitallers remained in England during the proceedings connected with the suppression of their Order, some retired to Malta. Upon the death of the Grand Master, Wallen says† "Care was taken to make a permanent provision for the English Knights in the principal places of residence of the Order. John D'Omedes succeeded Villiers de L'isle Adam, and during his Grand Mastership, Mary ascended the throne of England, and restored the Hospitallers to their former consequence;‡ Sir Thomas Tresham, Knight, being elected the Prior of Clerkenwell; but within a twelve month afterwards the establishment was again suppressed by Queen Elizabeth."

From the indistinctness of the words on Prior Weston's monument, an engraving of which was given in the Gentleman's Magazine (Vol. 58 page 101), and a copy of which may be found in Wallen's excellent little work, much difference of opinion has arisen as to the exact import of the motto borne by the Priors of Clerkenwell. Cromwell says that if we consider the words to be "Sane Baro," and translate them "truly a Baron," or "a Baron indeed," the motto is then reconcilable with the well-known dignity of the Prior of the Order, who were said to be the first Barons of England. Supposing the above to be the correct words of the motto, we subjoin the following extract from 24 Henry VIII., chap. 13, which is entitled, "An Act for the reformation of excesses in apparell," in order to prove the dignity of the Priors of the Hospital, "No man under the state of an earle, shall use, or weare in his apparell of his body, or upon his hors, mule, or other beaste, or harneis of the same beaste, any cloth of gold, or of silver, or tynseldsaten, or any other silke or cloth mixed or embroidered with gold or silver, nor also any fures of sables; excepte that it shall be lefull for Viscountes, the Pryour of Seint John Jherusalem, within this realme, and barons, to weare in their doublettes or slevles cootes, cloth of gold, silver, or tynsell."

This Act was repealed by James I., chap 25.

As I have said before, Henry VIII. suppressed the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem in 1540, but the Order was revived in England in 1557.

Queen Elizabeth again suppressed the Order, it is said, by Act 1, chap., 24, but Bro. Woolf is of opinion that this Act did not actually dissolve the Order of St. John.

In 1798 Buonaparte destroyed the sovereignty of the Order by taking Malta, which had been given to the Knights by Charles V. when they lost Rhodes.

The French, Spanish, and Portuguese

*History of Abbeys: Vol. 11., page 196.

†History of the Round Church, at Little Maplestead, page 124.

‡Newcourt.

languages seceded from the Order, and the sixtyninth Grand Master, Hompesch, retired to Trieste.

A considerable number of knights proceeded to Russia, and elected the Emperor Paul as Grand Master in the same year, and he was publicly invested on the 10th December with the insignia of office.

(To be continued.)

ROYAL VISITORS AT LATHOM HOUSE.

The Right Hon. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.S.W. of England, D.G.M. of the Province of West Lancashire, D.P.G.M. of M.M. Masons, &c., has just been honoured with a visit from his His Serene Highness Prince Teck, and Her Royal Highness Princess Mary of Cambridge, at Lathom House, his country seat, near Ormskirk. The august visit was made the occasion of general rejoicing in the neighbourhood, and the enthusiasm displayed by the people was as much a compliment to his lordship, who is an extremely popular landlord and neighbour, as an evidence of loyalty towards the representatives of the "blood royal." The arrival of their Highnesses at Ormskirk railway station took place on Tuesday afternoon, the 8th inst., and the whole town, especially the route to Lathom House, was gay with flags and decorations. One arch bore the inscription, "Welcome to the ancient and loyal town of Ormskirk," while another had inscribed upon it, "Health, happiness, and prosperity to Lord and Lady Skelmersdale."

In connection with the Royal visit, an emergency of the recently consecrated West Lancashire Lodge, No. 1403, was opened at twelve o'clock, at the Commercial Hotel, Ormskirk. Bro. S. Wylde, W.M., was supported by the following officers and brethren of his own and sister lodges:—Bros. W. C. Edge, J.W.; J. B. Forshaw, Treas.; I. Simms, Sec.; P. B. Forshaw, S.D.; J. Goodman, J.D.; J. B. Lambert, D.C.; E. Rimmer, R. Chamberlain, J. Gaskill, J. Winnard, D.C.; H. Hill, P.M. 724, 1296, and 321; P. G. Gee, W.M. 1264; J. Hotchen, P.M. 673; T. Ashmore, P.M. 823; C. Davies, P.M. 84; J. R. Fowler, S.W. 86; T. Chuck, S.W. 1013; J. Kenyon, P.M. 42; J. Lunt, P.M. 1086; R. S. Holden, P.M. 1086; W. C. Connell, P.M. 137; John Knowles, P.M.; T. Jackson, W.M. 580; T. Yeatman, 667; C. Leighton, 249, 594 and 1094; W. Roberts, J.D. 1264; J. Hayes, J.D. 249; J. Wood, 249, Treas. 1094; J. Thompson, S.D. 1013; H. Ashmore, 823; E. Ramson, 249; M. Mawson, D.C. 1013; J. Raw, S.S. 220, &c.

After the lodge had been duly opened, five candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Order, the work being efficiently performed by Bro. T. Ashmore. During the proceedings, a dispensation was read from the M.W.G.M., allowing the brethren and visitors to appear that day in public in full Craft Masonic clothing. The lodge was afterwards closed, and the brethren proceeded to the scene of assembly for the day's procession.

About 3 o'clock a procession, headed by the band of the 1st L.R.V., in which the Freemasons formed the most conspicuous feature, formed in the Market-place and proceeded to the railway station, where they were accommodated as far as the limited space would permit. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale arrived about ½ past 3 o'clock, and awaited the arrival of his distinguished visitors, meanwhile conversing familiarly and freely with several of the Masonic brethren, and expressing his regret that he could not appear amongst them and with them in his Masonic clothing. When the approach of the royal visitors' train was announced by fog signals, there was immediate, long continued, and stentorian cheers until the Prince and Princess alighted and were received by Lord Skelmersdale. Bro. Alty, 1403, S.W., the constable of the Court Leet, then presented the following address, on vellum, which was read by Bro. Wareing, Steward of the ancient court.

"To His Serene Highness the Duke Teck and Her Royal Highness the Princess Mary of Cambridge, Duchess of Teck.

"May it please your Royal Highnesses,—We, the members of the Earl of Derby's Court Leet, the inhabitants of the ancient town of Ormskirk, desire to approach your Royal Highnesses with an expression of welcome befitting the occasion, which has called you so far from home, to perform a gracious act to the neighbouring borough, Southport. Our welcome associates itself with past royal events, and past royal visits. We allude to the visit of Henry VII., A.D. 1495, to his stepfather, Thomas, first Earl of Derby, at Lathom House, the house which, besieged for two years (1644-5) was so heroically defended against the Parliamentary forces by the renowned Countess Charlotte de la Tremouille, wife of James, seventh Earl of Derby, who sacrificed his life in defence of a royal cause. Other events might be mentioned, but we do not wish to delay your Royal Highnesses longer than is necessary to receive that which we beg you graciously to accept, both on your own account, and also on behalf of her Most Gracious Majesty, our beloved Queen, this expression of our gratitude for your royal presence amongst us. With these words of hearty welcome, which we ask your Royal Highnesses graciously to accept from the people of Ormskirk, we say 'God speed,' Lathom House, whose noble owner we very highly esteem and love."

Her Royal Highness, Princess Mary, whose evident kindness of disposition and affability were generally remarked during this short interview, briefly, but feelingly replied. Her Royal Highness said:—

"I am very much obliged to you for so loyal and kind a welcome. It is always a pleasure to me to find myself amongst Englishmen, and wherever I see bright, smiling, and loyal faces about me. Anything I can do, as at Southport, I shall always be charmed to be able to do."

The Princess was then led by Lord Skelmersdale to the open carriage in waiting, and the Royal party was driven in the direction of Lathom House, his lordship riding on horseback by the side of the vehicle. They were accompanied along the route by a detachment of forty of his lordship's troop of Lancashire Hussars, under the command of Bro. Sergeant-major Nunnerley. The school children lined portions of the route, and they cheered lustily as the royal carriage passed.

Lathom House, which for centuries formed the principal seat of the Stanleys, is believed to have been erected by Robert de Lathom, and was several times enlarged from the time of Henry IV., when Sir John Stanley married Isabella, daughter and heiress of the famous Sir Thomas Lathom, and thus the estate passed into the hands of the Stanley family; but during the civil wars the mansion had been so much damaged that the family seat was transferred to Knowsley. The estate afterwards became the property of various owners successively, until it came into the possession of the Wilbraham family, represented by the present Lord Skelmersdale.

In the evening, the dinner party at Lathom House included, besides their Highnesses, the following, who were also guests during the royal visit:—The Earl of Clarendon, Lord and Lady Edward Cavendish, Sir Robert and Miss Gerard, Captain the Hon. George Villiers, the Hon. Norman Grosvenor, M.P., Colonel Wilson-Patten, M.P., and Miss Patten, the Hon. Frederick Cadogan, and the Hon. Miss Cadogan, and Mr. Augustus Lumley.

On Wednesday, their Royal Highnesses laid the foundation stone of the Cambridge Hall, Southport, amidst the most general rejoicing. On Thursday evening they were present at a ball, given by Lord and Lady Skelmersdale at Lathom House; and on Friday they paid a visit to Liverpool, where they were entertained, along with a distinguished company, at luncheon, by Bro. J. Pierson, the Mayor, at the Town Hall. On Saturday they left Lathom House for Manchester.

On Tuesday evening the whole of the visiting brethren were entertained at a banquet by the W.M., officers, and members of the West Lancashire Lodge, No. 1403, at the Commercial Hotel, Ormskirk. During the evening the loyal toasts, including that of "Prince Teck and Princess Mary of Cambridge," were drunk with more than ordinary enthusiasm. A number of other toasts were given and responded to with Masonic cordiality, and the highly enjoyable gathering was greatly enlivened by the excellent singing of Bros. Glover, Raw, Chuck, and others. During the evening warm thanks were given to the following gentlemen and firms for lending their national flags, collections of banners, and ensigns, which had added greatly to the striking character of the day's display: the Brazilian Consul, Mr. Anders, Messrs Bahr, Behrend & Co.; Mr. J. Lacey, Redcross-street, Liverpool; Bro. Chuck, Bro. Williams, Gorce-piazas, Liverpool; and Messrs. Roper, sail makers, James-street, Liverpool.

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated varied processes the Cacao bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cacao and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and a nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water October 14.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—It is indispensable that the dark and dreary days of winter depress the mind and disorder the body, the most certain incentives of sickness, which will assail those who disregard at such times the all-predominating necessity of purifying, regulating, and strengthening the various organs of the body, whose functions are deranged. Holloway's remedies present the most safe and effectual means of attaining these ends. They cleanse the blood from any taint, the body from every noxious matter, and exert such a general good effect upon the system, that indigestion, biliousness, headache, dimness of sight, loss of appetite, debility, and nervousness disappear under their influence. These Pills may be relied upon by both sexes, under all climates and circumstances.—ADVT.

MELROSE ABBEY.

Sir Walter Scott, whose name and fame are synonymous terms in all climes where Literature and Poesy are not wanting in votaries, on one occasion, prompted by the local inspiration, said—

"If thou would'st view fair Melrose aright,
Go visit it by the pale moonlight;
For the gay beams of lightsome day
Gild, but to flout, the ruins gray.
When the broken arches are black in night,
And each shafted oriel glimmers white:
When the cold lights' uncertain shower
Streams on the ruined central tower;
When buttress and buttress, alternately,
Seem framed of ebon and ivory;
When silver edges the imagery,
And the scrolls that teach thee to live or die;
When distant Tweed is heard to rave,
And the owlet to hoot o'er the dead man's grave,

Then go—but go alone the while—
Then view St. David's ruined pile;
And home returning, soothly swear
Was never scene so sad and fair!

Whether our Ill. Bro. Major Edward H. Kent, 32°, of this city, visited "the beautiful ruins," he certainly considered his pen powerless to describe them; the solution of this problem our readers will readily establish. "Our voyage out," says Bro. K., in his letter, dated London, July 27th, "was but a repetition of all pleasant sea voyages, we having splendid weather all the way, and, individually, no sea sickness. The Fourth of July was duly celebrated by both Americans and foreigners, if I may so call those upon our English ship who have the misfortune not to be born upon American soil. There was quite a Masonic gathering in the evening, your correspondent being the only 32° present. Upon our arrival at Cork we went to the Royal Hotel, kept by Bro. Wilson, a M.M., who treated us very kindly; from there we went to Killarney, stopping at the Railroad Hotel, kept by Comp. P. Curry, who extended to us all Masonic hospitalities; from thence to Edinburgh, via Dublin and Belfast, visiting everything of note upon the way. After viewing the lakes, highlands, and trossacks of Edinburgh, we started for Melrose Abbey, where every Mason can find objects of interest to the fraternity. We first visited Abbotsford, once the residence of Sir Walter Scott, then to the abbey, of the Masonic beauties of which I find my pen powerless to describe. The building of Melrose Abbey dates back to the year A.D. 640, since which it has been several times destroyed and rebuilt, the only antiquated remains of the old monastery now to be seen being a rudely carved head and cowl of a monk in stone—a mutilated head, of very coarse workmanship, symbolic of the Pascal Lamb, and the letter B cut in most antique character upon what appears to have been the head-stone or tablet of a tomb. On the left side of this letter are two cross-bars with four Masonic points, surrounded with a single fleur-de-lis at their terminations. The old monastery was built of red sandstone, obtained in the quarry of Dryburgh, the peculiarity of which was that it cut soft in the bosom of the strata, but afterwards, on exposure, became so hard as to preserve indelibly the lines of the chisel, and even now exhibits but few traces of decomposition after the lapse of centuries. In the tenth century the wages paid for lifting this stone was only one penny per man per day.

"Newstead, close by Melrose, is famous for its Roman relics and antiquities, immense foundations of Roman buildings having been ploughed up; several arched vaults, substructions and arches for the support of upper works, have been laid bare, also of Roman origin, for only to the Romans at that early period could be known the key and mystery of the Arch.

"Newstead was early noted for a society of Masons settled there. Their craft was in high repute, and what they bequeathed us, although in ruins, sustains their ancient reputation. The early Masons were chiefly of French extraction, and were probably sent from rising continental countries to build the monastery of St. Mary, Melrose, and other monasteries of Teviotdale. The institution of St. John's Lodge of Freemasons, Melrose is said to be as ancient as the building of Melrose Abbey in 1136—one John Mordo, who, by the chronicle of Melrose, had in keeping all Mason work, at the building of St. Mary's Monastery, having been the first Grand Master. Near Melrose are the ruins of Red Abbey, which seems to have no connection with the neighbouring institutions. If it was a hospital of the Templars, as some suppose, their distinguishing badge was a red cross, and the Red Cross Knights were all of the Masonic fraternity. The Masons of Newstead might have given vitality to such an institution. The Chapel of Melrose abounds in Masonic allegory. It is said the arrangement represents a human body—the chancel being the head; the transepts, the hands and arms; the nave and aisles toward the west, the rest of the body; the sacrifices of the altar, the vows of heart; the length of the church, fortitude; the breadth, charity; the height, hope of future retribution; the door, obedience; the pavement, humility; the transepts stretching out crossways tell of atonement; the communion of saints is set forth by the chapels clustering round choir and nave; the union of many members is shadowed forth by the multiplex arcade; the duty of letting our light shine before men, by the pierced and flowered parapet that crowns the whole. In the other decorations the Resurrection is set forth by the phœnix rising from its ashes; the meritorious passion of Christ, by the pelican feeding its young; the sacrament, by grapes and wheat ears; strength, by the eagle; purity and innocence, by the dove. Outwardly the hideous forms that seem hanging from the eaves, speak the misery of the hardened and impenitent who have been cast out. The figures of the blind carrying the lame, saints, martyrs, and apostles, have each their proper and peculiar meaning.

"None of these things are by chance, but design, and being such, admit of unequivocal interpretation, and have been conveyed from age to age with unimpeachable fidelity. I would like very much to send you a full description of this Masonic monument, but time and space forbid. Mr. Lockhart, writing on the subject, says: 'There is one cloister, along the whole length of which runs a cornice of flowers and plants, entirely unrivalled, to my mind, by anything extant, in architecture whatever. Roses and lilies, thistles, ferns and heaths in all their varieties, oak leaves, ash leaves, and a thousand beautiful shapes beside, are chiselled with such inimitable truth, and grace, and nature, that the finest botanist in the world could not desire a better hortus siccus, so far as they go. So beautiful and accurately chiselled is the foliage upon the capitals of the pilasters on each side of the arched doorway, that a straw will pass through the interstices between the leaves and stalks. Triple arch keystones of moulded ribs of groined arches are numerous, each having some unique carving upon it. The stone spouts to carry water from the roof are carved in the form of animals and monsters with gaping mouths. One of these represents a sow playing on bagpipes. Over the south door is the mutilated figure of St. John the Baptist, with eyes directed upward, bearing the inscription, 'Behold the Son of God!' while in nearly every carving may be discovered some Masonic tradition or allusion, nearly all of which have been wantonly mutilated and broken down. Heavy instruments have been in requisition, as in some places ornamental stones have been broken or cut clean away, and many removed out of the very face of the wall by dint of strength and suitable tools. The building was built for eternal duration, and but for the sacrilegious hand of man, would still be standing one of the noblest monuments of the operative mason's skill and art. In what still remains there is sufficient for the initiated to easily see that the builders were free as well as operative Masons, the figures in many cases being placed in such a position that for several of the lower degrees one tell at a glance what degree it is meant to represent.'—New York Dispatch.

"MR. JAMES BARNETT, Chemist, Birmingham, writes, June 18:—'Your Pain Killer is gaining many friends in this section. Among the many cures effected by it which have come under my notice, I may mention the case of a lady, who, after suffering from long neuralgia, and trying many reputed remedies without benefit, was at length cured, and that almost instantly, with the first application of your Pain Killer.'—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

Obituary.

BRO. SIMON GRIS BENITEZ, D.G.M. OF SPAIN.

On the occasion of the death of the Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Spain, Bro. Simon Gris Benitez, we read in the Bulletin Official of the 15th ult., the following:—

THE LAST HOMAGE.

Spanish Freemasonry is in mourning. The mystic chain is broken, one of its links is missed, and nobody can restore it. Its name has been given for three times to the wind, which has not returned the beloved name.

We have traversed our valleys, and the Craftsman whom we seek has not sheltered anywhere.

We have asked Apprentices; they could not give us any information.

We have asked the Masters, and they knew nothing.

We have walked in the night as well as by day, from Degree to Degree, from Temple to Temple, from East to West, between North and South, and our clamours have been lost in the mist of the unknown.

We stumbled over broken pillars, and dumb attributes; tears lined our cheeks, and the wind of desolation met our faces.

In our most abject pilgrimage we have only found the sacred word.

Some wearied and mournful Craftsmen came and showed the empty Chair of the Lodge Charity.*

We then understood why there was a Lodge without a Master, and why a link lost.

We then turned our sight toward that eternity which springs forth, and we read a name in the standard of the Rose Croix.

We looked farther, and we perceived a blazing sword under the sash of the 33°.

The Angel of Predestination who keeps the threshold of Futurity with imposing attitude, has inscribed a name on the sacred pedestal of Immortality: it is SIMON GRIS BENITEZ.

His voice will no more resound in our Conclaves, his words will no more be heard within the vaults of our Temples, and his love will no longer touch our hearts.

His life was a task, his death is a rest, neither labour crushed him, nor adversity extinguished the enthusiasm of his soul.

He struggled in the wilderness of adversity with doubt and scandal, crime and infamy, dismay and apostacy, and he repelled them, and went forward to the mansion of love, doubtless and faithful, fearless and unblamable.

He wrought in our Royal Art as an enthusiast and good worker. He obeyed the maxims of brotherly love, and raised temples to Virtue, crowning them with emblems of liberty.

His wife was his joy, his children his constant adoration, and humanity the dream of his life.

He shared his couch with the pilgrim, his table with the hungry, he clothed the naked, and his home was the shelter of the helpless.

He loved God in spirit and reality, was a brother to his brethren, was a protector to the downtrodden, a comforter to the forsaken, a supporter to the feeble, and exercised charity to all mankind.

He excelled greatly in his profession, but much more at home; the profane respected him, and he was beloved by all his brethren.

Old by maturity and young by age, he has disappeared from amongst us, and his body, hidden by the darkness of destruction, illumines itself by the splendence of Predestination.

His task is finished, and his working tools are laid beside his work.

He wrought his stone, and received his wages. The emblems of mourning now cover the chair he once filled.

The Lodge "Charity" mourns him, and Masonry misses him.

Beloved brethren! let us turn our eyes towards the starry region, the mystic arch, the brilliant square, and the luminous compass are there. The soul of our brother has ascended above Spanish Masons. Do not forget his name.

*Bro. Gris Benitez was at the same time W.M. of the Lodge Charity, No. 14, Madrid.

ample; let us follow the footsteps which he has delineated, and let us contemplate the architectural work he has executed. Let us inspire ourselves with his plans and designs, and when the thorns of disenchantment shall destroy our feet, the gall of persecution embitter our souls, and the trial of martyrdom crush us, let us elevate our thoughts to heaven, and remember Simon Gris Benitez. Comforted and fortified, let us return to our daily tasks.

Let us remember that our work is indestructible, and lastly, let us imitate the virtues of him who travelled with us.

Peace, peace, and honour to those who have passed!

Peace, peace, and love to our Deputy Grand Master.

FREEMASONRY AT THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

At Grahamstown Lodge Albany, No. 589, the annual festival of St. John was celebrated by this ancient lodge. The business of the day included the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year, and the investiture of officers. The effectiveness of the occasion was happily enhanced by the joint meeting, at high noon, on that day, of Albany and St. John's, No. 828, both performing the like solemn ceremony simultaneously, rendered, in fact, almost necessary, as both lodges hold their place of assemblage in the same room. The number of brethren was exceedingly numerous, gathered from lodges far and near. Past Masters Maynard, Waller, Solomon, and Smuts (St. John's) assisted for both lodges in the ceremony of installation, with their usual tact and ability; Bro. P.M. R. Curran being duly installed as W.M. of Albany, since 1863 for the third time, and Bro. H. Linton W.M. of St. John's. This ceremony completed, the venerable and esteemed W.M. of Albany invested the following brethren with their respective insignia of office, viz:— Bro. E. B. James, S.W.; W. A. Smith, J.W.; J. S. Wilson, Treasurer; J. Vials, Secretary; W. Wedderburn, S.D.; F. W. Hepburn, J.D.; O. Lester and G. C. Goodwin, Stewards; W. T. Moore, I.C.; and A. Will, Tyler.

Instead of a banquet, a grand ball was given by the brethren of the Craft to the citizens of Grahamstown, which was, in every sense, a brilliant success. The ball room was tastefully decorated with festoons of drapery and flags, and a variety of ornaments symbolic of the Craft, while the stage at the end of the room was occupied by a very unique model of the R.A. Chapter St. Andrew's (S.C.). Before dancing commenced, the brethren entered the room in procession by two doors, and marched in parallel lines—Albany on the right, and St. John's on the left—and faced each other according to rank, and with hands uplifted, formed an arch. On being complete, there was a pause, and the officers of the R. A. entered, and proceeded to their place on the dais, when one of the principal officers thanked the company for their attendance, and wished them all a pleasant evening. A grand salute terminated the Masonic ceremonies, and dancing commenced, which was kept up to the usual orthodox small hours of the morning.

This lodge is the oldest but one in the colony, its charter being dated in 1828, and, of course, is in its forty-fourth year. If a jubilee medal was granted to lodges of half a century, this lodge would shortly become entitled to one.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NERBIN.

The Provincial Grand Lodge and General communication of Masons of the Province held its annual meeting on Thursday, 10th October, at the Masonic Temple, St. Helen. It was opened in form just at 4 o'clock p.m., by the Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. Dr. J. Le Cromer acting P.G.M., supported by Bro. Schmitt, acting Deputy Prov. G.M. James Durck, S.W.; Ed. A. Lott, J.W.; W. T. Pugsley, Reg.; P. W. Benham, P. Prov. G.S.W., Treasurer; John O. Le Saur, Secretary; G. D. G. S.D.; Abraham Niel, Supt. of Works; H. L. Manuel, Dir. of Cers.; E. Hinckman, S.B.; G. Walden, Pursuivant; M. Gallichan, P. Prov. G.S.W.; S. Jewell, P. Prov. G.S.W.; C. Kingsworth, P. Prov. G.S.W.; T. W. Dunill, P. Prov. G.J.W.; Rev. Charles Maritt, P. Prov. G. Chaplain; the Stewards, Masters, and Wardens of the several lodges of the Province.

The Prov. G. Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, which were confirmed.

The Prov. G. Treasurer presented his balance sheet, duly audited, which was also approved.

The reports of the several meetings in reference to the Local Fund of Benevolence were read and adopted, as were also those of the Local Board of General Purposes.

Bros. S. Jewell and P. W. Benham were candidates for the office of Treasurer. A ballot was taken, when Bro. Benham was re-elected by a small majority.

The following appointments of Prov. Grand Officers were made, and duly invested:—

J. G. L. Scott,	Prov. G. S. W.
W. T. Pugsley,	Prov. G. J. W.
Charles Marrett,	Prov. G. Chaplain.
Frederick Cooke,	Prov. G. Treasurer.
P. W. Benham,	Prov. G. Registrar.
John O. Le Saur,	Prov. G. Secretary.
George J. Renouf,	Prov. G. S. D.
R. Barrow,	Prov. G. J. D.
Ellis A. Owen,	Prov. G. S. of W.
H. L. Manuel,	Prov. G. D. of C.
D. Le Geyt,	Prov. G. As. D. of C.
Joseph Gregg,	Prov. G. Organist.
Major Woodall,	Prov. G. Swd. B.
John Outley,	Prov. G. Purst.
E. P. Le Marquand,	Prov. G. Steward.
P. O'Brien,	" " "
G. Grigg,	" " "
Maribel,	" " "
Taylor,	" " "
Bennett,	" " "
William Toms,	Prov. G. Tyler.

A ballot was then taken for members of the Local Board of General Purposes, when the following were chosen:—Bros. G. J. Renouf, P.M. 590; A. J. Bouiller, W.M. 1003; E. P. Le Marquand, W.M. 491; Joseph Grigg, W.M. 590; Abraham Viel, P.M. 590; O. Dodge, W.M. 245. To these, in accordance with the bye laws, the Acting P.G.M. added Bro. O'Brien, W.M. 958, and named Bro. A. Schmitt, as President. On the proposition of Bro. Benham, duly seconded, a donation of £5 5s. was voted to the Masonic School for Girls.

The Prov. Grand Lodge was closed with the usual forms, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, presided over by the Acting P.G.M.

THE BERKEBECK LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC INSTITUTION, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane.—This Institution has just issued its prospectus for the Winter Session. Numerous and well organised classes in Art, Language, Mathematics, Physical and Mental Science, are open to both ladies and gentlemen. A Legal Department has been added, comprising Equity, Conveyancing, and Common Law. Arrangements have also been made by which a complete course of technical instruction can be obtained. This will be most valuable for students preparing for the Examinations for the Whitworth Scholarships. The hours at which the classes meet will be found to be very convenient to those engaged in business during the day, while the fees are so moderate as to be within the reach of all. The list of lectures contains the names of several of the most eminent occupants of the platform. The library has been greatly improved, and the reading room is well supplied with current literature.

After careful investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Genuine Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 6s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these parasites, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 69, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley Street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practice their unique system of painless dentistry.

CONSECRATION OF ANERLEY LODGE,
NO. 1397.

The consecration of the above lodge took place at the Thicket Hotel, Tuesday, 22nd inst., there being present—Bro. W. Locock Webb, P. Prov. G.S.W., W.M. designate; Bro. G. C. Ring, S.W. designate; Bro. Bennett, J.W. designate, and the following brethren, members:—Bros. Dr. Cantrill, Dommett, P.G. Registrar, Sparks, and others.

The visitors were—Bro. C. Locock Webb, P.G.D.; Bro. H. Frances, P.M. 857, Consecrating Master; Bro. Honeywell, S.D. 889; Bro. Ingliss, 776; Bro. Lossam, 1269; Bro. J. Ringwell, 1269; Bro. Ring, W.M. 1269; Bro. Dr. Gibbs, 742; Bro. Williams, 19.

The ceremony of consecration was most impressively performed by Bro. Frances, aided by the musical abilities of Bro. Honeywell, R.A.M., who presided as Organist. At the conclusion of the ceremony, Bro. Frances installed Bro. W. L. Webb into the chair of K.S., in a manner which gave the greatest delight to all present, while the worthy brother whom he inducted into the chair, was greeted with the utmost enthusiasm.

The W.M. then appointed his officers, viz., Bros. C. Ring, S.W.; Bennett, J.W.; Dommett, S.D.; and Sparks, J.D., while Bro. Dr. Cantrill was duly elected and invested as Treasurer.

A vote of thanks was most cordially returned to the Consecrating Master and Organist for their services, and the brethren adjourned to banquet.

This part of the evening's pleasure was a great success and gave unqualified satisfaction, and the worthy host, Bro. Lossam was much complimented. The banquet was à la russe, and the tables were set out with exquisite taste, charming the eye, while the more substantial part of the entertainment was equally gratifying.

After the cloth was removed, the Masonic toasts were given, and received with acclamation.

Bro. C. Locock Webb, P.G.D., in replying for the Grand Officers, in the course of an able speech, alluded to the excellent example set by those noblemen who held the highest rank in the Craft, and who, from their political positions, must be necessarily greatly engaged, and yet found time to attend to their Masonic duties, and did those duties in a manner that set an example to all. He thanked the brethren for their cordial greeting to his name, when coupled with the Grand Officers.

Bro. C. L. Webb proposed "Prosperity to the Anerley Lodge."

The W. Master's health was then proposed in eulogistic terms, by Bro. Dr. Cantrill.

Bro. W. L. Webb, in reply, said he thanked the brethren most sincerely for their kindness. They must excuse any rustiness they might find in him in working the ceremonies. He had attained high honours in F.M., and, as he thought, retired from active duties; but the wishes of the brethren of the Anerley Lodge had brought him into life again, and he believed he was serving the interests of the Craft, and the happiness of the brethren, in accepting the honour they gave him of presiding over the Anerley Lodge as its first Master.

The W.M. then gave the health of the visitors, reminding the brethren of the valuable aid his brother, C. Locock Webb, P.G.O., had given the lodge in their attempt to procure their charter. Of Bro. Frances' solemn and impressive ceremony of Consecration, which he should remember, and he thought it wise of all the brethren to remember it, as it not only reminded them of their duty in this life, but would help them in that which was to come. He had been much delighted with the ceremony of installation, likewise, and thanked Bro. Frances, for himself and the lodge, for his kindness and trouble. Bro. Honeywell, the Organist, had also merited their best thanks, while Bros. Williams and Adams had also materially assisted by their taking an active part in the duties of the evening. He had to thank their neighbouring lodge, the Stanhope, represented by Bro. Ring, W.M., for its able assistance.

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm.

Bro. Frances, in reply, said he thanked the brethren for their cordiality, and was glad to find that his attempts to give satisfaction were successful. It was the first time he performed the ceremony of consecration, and he hoped the brethren would excuse all imperfectness. The ceremony they had heard, was his own composition, and he had not departed in the least from ancient form. In that little essay, dignified by the name of an oration, he had not so much endeavoured to find historical evidence of the origin of Freemasonry as to inculcate its vital principles, which, if rightly understood and practised, they might then truly build a Tower of Babel, whose foundation would be on the earth, but whose topmost storey would be in the highest heavens, for the foundation stone and the cape stone would have but one inscription, understood by all nations—that of brotherly love. He, Bro. Frances, had not penned one line in that oration that he did not sincerely feel, and thoroughly mean. He had been happy to have the pleasure to place his old friend, Bro. Webb, in the chair, and should always be pleased to be of service to this lodge.

Bros. Honeywell, Williams, and Ring, also returned thanks in happy terms.

The toast of "The Officers" was duly responded to by Bro. Dommett, P.G.R., and the Tyler's toast was the finale to a most agreeable evening.

MARK MASONRY IN CHESHIRE.

On the occasion of the late visit of the M.W.G.M.M. to Manchester, a deputation of brethren from Cheshire and North Wales waited on the Chief of the Order, and represented the benefit that was likely to result from the appointment of a Prov. G.M.M. for that district. The M.W. Bro. Portal promised to take the matter into his immediate consideration, and we understand that the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, J.P., has, at the G.M.M.'s request, consented to take charge of the new Province.

Original Correspondence.

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Will you allow me to make, through your valuable paper, a few queries, which I should be glad to have answered by any brother in possession of the requisite information. The replies should be found in the Constitutions as the only legal reference book of the Craft.

First, concerning Grand Stewards. There are 18 nominated annually, by as many Lodges. If these were the 18 oldest lodges (Nos. 1 to 18) we might understand their right, but this is not so. When was the right of nomination given to these particular lodges, and why to them in preference to all other lodges? What, also, are the qualifications, duties and privileges of the Grand Stewards.

Second, concerning Grand Standard Bearers. We find in the Constitutions (p. 41, edit. 1871) "They are not, however, by their appointment, members of the Grand Lodge, nor are they to wear the clothing of a Grand Officer." (sic). Why then, if not members of Grand Lodge, are they called Grand Standard Bearers? Again, "Any Grand Officer entitled to have a standard may appoint a standard bearer." What Grand Officers are entitled to have standards.

Third, are Prov. Grand Masters entitled to appoint assistant Prov. Grand Officers? Some decision was, I believe made on this subject lately. In the bye laws of an important province now before me I find Assistant P.G. Director of Ceremonies, and Assistant P.G. Pursuivant, and I have also seen Assistant P.G. Secretary.

Fourth, whence is derived the authority for wearing gauntlets? They are entirely unnoticed in the Constitutions, which are very minute respecting the other regalia, yet we find them worn in Grand Lodge, all Prov. Grand Lodges, and by the W.M. and Wardens of most private lodges.

These little things are trifles, no doubt, but where so much exactness is found upon other points, surely the Constitutions should not omit these.

Yours fraternally,

LATOMUS.

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have noted with much interest the letters which have appeared in your valued columns respecting the appointment of Provincial Grand Officers, a subject which, if duly ventilated, would doubtless lead to a more satisfactory distribution of provincial honours, but a report of a petition from Lodge 699 exceeds all bounds of Masonic propriety, and to the regret of many leading Masons in the Province of Cornwall, paragraphs have appeared in the Plymouth and Cornwall papers, also in your journal, assuming, unwarrantably, that the unanimous vote of the fraternity would be in favor of one therein named. The impropriety, to say the least of it, of such assumption, as well as of the petition alluded to, must be evident. Masons are not required to profess a willingness to submit to any appointment made by our G. Master, since we are bound to do so by our O.B. Fortunately, we have no voice in the selection, but confidently rely on the wisdom of our G. Master to appoint as his representative in Cornwall, an independent brother, uninfluenced by local ties or interest, whether social or political.

PAST P.G.O.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday and Wednesday, October 26th. and 30th, VIRGINIUS. Virginius, Mr. T. C. King; Appius Claudius, Mr. Rainbow; Icilius, Mr. Sidney; Siccius Dentatus, Mr. Dudley; Numetorius, Mr. Parkes; Caius Claudius, Mr. Lacy; Lucius, Mr. Evans; Titus, Mr. Guest, Virginia, Miss M. Cooper; Servia, Mrs. Stephenson. After which, a ballet entitled LOVE. Mademoiselle Rosine, and full Corps de Ballet. To conclude with THE LOTTERY TICKET. Wormwood, Mr. Hudspeth; Capias, Mr. Dudley; Charles, Mr. Evans; Mrs. Corsette, Mrs. Stephenson; Susan, Miss Leigh. On Monday and Thursday THE MERCHANT OF VENICE. Shylock, Mr. T. C. King; Bassanio, Mr. Sidney; Gratiano, Mr. Shepherd; Portia, Miss M. Cooper; Nerrissa, Miss H. Farren, Jessica, Miss Hastings. After which, the Ballet; to conclude with THE LOTTERY TICKET. On Tuesday, the LADY OF LYONS. Claude Melnotte, Mr. T. C. King; Damas, Mr. Shepherd; Glavis, Mr. Hudspeth; Pauline, Miss M. Cooper; Madame Deschappelles, Mrs. Stephenson; Widow Melnotte, Miss Allen. After which, the Ballet; to conclude with THE LOTTERY TICKET. On Friday Mr. T. C. KING'S BENEFIT. HAMLET, and a variety of entertainments. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday, October 26th, and during the week, the performance will commence with THE GOOSE WITH THE GOLDEN EGGS. Messrs. Bousfield and Skinner; Mesdames Bramah and Allen. After which, THE DUKE'S DAUGHTER. Legardiere, Mr. C. Sennett; Gonzague, Mr. C. Power; De Nevers, Mr. Vaughan; Cocardasse, Mr. J. Fawn; Passepoil, Mr. G. Skinner; Peyrolles, Mr. Leigh; Regent, Mr. Bousfield; Chaverney, Mr. Prescott; Staupitz, Mr. Parker; Petite, Miss Allen; Blanche De Nevers, Miss M. Henderson; Blanche De Caylus, Mrs. C. T. Burleigh. To be followed by THE LADY OF THE LAKE. Roderick, Miss Pattie Goddard; Malcolm, Miss Maude; James Fitzjames, Miss Bramah; Malise, Miss Allen; Ellen, Miss H. Farren; Douglas, Mr. C. Power; Family Bard, Mr. Leigh; Blanche, Mr. J. Fawn. To conclude with a Grand Ballet Divertissement, entitled LOVE; Mademoiselle Rosine and a numerous and magnificent Corps de Ballet. Stage Manager, Mr. C. F. Burleigh.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Claimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King;" and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee Mr. E. Saker. Mr. J. S. Clarke on Monday next in "The Widow Hunt."

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. Mr. Barry Sullivan in a round of Legitimate Characters.

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Mrs. Goist's Readings.

THEATRE ROYAL, William-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Frece. Miscellaneous Entertainment.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hugue. Performances by the Slave Troupe.

COOKE'S CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Proprietors, Messrs. Cook and Weldon.

NEWSOME'S CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. Newsome.

NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, William-square.—Manager, Bro. Saunders.

TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Anderson and Family.—World of Magic.

Answers to Correspondents.

A NORTH COUNTRY P.M.—The toast of "The Queen and the Craft" should always be given with Masonic honors. After the Grand Master, the Past Grand Master, the Earl of Zetland and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, should be given, and then the Earl of Carnarvon, D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers.

W. S. 759.—No person can be made a Mason unless he is 21 years of age (unless by dispensation). The initiation fee varies in many Lodges, but four or five guineas is the average amount in country lodges. Propositions for membership must be made through a member of a lodge, and seconded by another. Apply to any friend who may happen to be a Mason.

A CRAFTSMAN.—Declined with thanks.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1872.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains. The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.) All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C. The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SUPREME GRAND COUNCIL 33°, NORTHERN JURISDICTION, UNITED STATES.

We have been favoured with a copy of this really useful publication, through the medium of the Illustrious Bro. Albert G. Goodall, of New York. (The General Foreign Representative.)

The volume for 1871-2 does not appear to us quite equal to the former, issued 1870-1, but for all that, it possesses much to recommend it to the notice of the thinking members of our Fraternity. We cannot speak too highly of the manner in which the editorial duties have been performed. All who have the honour of knowing the Ill. Bro. Daniel Sickels, and are acquainted with the Masonic Publishing Co., of No. 52, Blecker-street, will be aware that perfection is written in unmistakeable character on all their typographical productions.

The Annual Assembly was presided over by that accomplished Mason, Josiah H. Drummond, M.P. Sov Grand Commander. A very excellent Masonic feeling appears to have pervaded the minds of the Illustrious Brethren who met in honour of the occasion, and we are gratified to notice that those who could not attend, sent letters of apology to the Sec. General, and they were formally excused.

The respected Chief, in his address, remarked that peace and prosperity throughout, wholly un-mixed with disaster, had taken up their abode with the Supreme Grand Council. He paid a long tribute to the memories of the various members deceased since the last session, and then proceeded to chronicle the numerous subordinates which had been constituted during the previous term.

The 33° was conferred whilst the recess was being enjoyed upon some twenty-five brethren. This degree, it must be remembered, is the highest degree in the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and Masonically, apart from the Craft, is the acmé of official distinction; although such is the case, we are astonished to find that 33° brethren are quite numerous in America. In the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States alone, there are now upwards of 40 active members 33°, 4 emeritus members, and two hundred honorary members, 33°, making some two hundred and fifty in all, so that in all America it is probable there are not far short of a thousand legitimate members of the 33°! Surely such an extension was never intended by the originators of the system, less than a century ago? In this country our Supreme Grand Council favours a much more conservative and restrictive policy, and a new 33° is quite a grand event in the experience of that body.

Our article entitled "A Body without a Head," which appeared in The Freemason some time since regarding Freemasonry in France is quoted, and is endorsed as the American opinion in general.

We notice in the correspondence, that the suspension of the Bath Rose Croix Chapter (Anti-quity) was formally communicated to the United States Grand Councils, and a list of the members thereof was furnished, to render their admission to any chapters abroad, almost an impossibility. The expulsion of a well-known brother, who was an 18°, is also notified.

In a letter dated 25 February, 1871, signed by the Sec. Gen. 33° (Bro. J. M. P. Montagu), the opinions of the members here are correctly expressed respecting the negro race. We prefer to let each Grand Council be perfectly free in its action, and decide each for itself as it seems best. Some of our supporters of the Rite in this country however will be astonished to find that in the same epistle it is expressly stated that "abstractedly we entirely agree with the views held by the Grand Orient of France, with regard to all who recognise a Supreme Being, being eligible for initiation into our Rites and Ceremonies." We never supposed it was intended for Brethren of religious persuasions, other than Christian, to become members of the A. and A. Rite. Surely some of the degrees are so obviously Christian in their Rituals, that the presence of any brethren opposed to the Christian religion would be most unseemly.

We have heard the A. and A. Rite defended and supported because of its being Christian Freemasonry, and we are aware that many have joined it on that ground. We are told, however, virtually, that a Deist is eligible for the degrees, and are certainly surprised thereat. The introduction of the Rite of Mizraim into this country is mentioned by Bro. Montague, 33°, in far from a complimentary manner, and certainly neither flattering nor just to these who were concerned in the matter.

However we have no desire to again stir up this vexatious subject, and as peace reigns at the present time, we would be the last to throw in a "bone for contention."

Bro. Goodall's elaborate report, as General Foreign Representative, is to our mind the chief attraction, and well repays a careful study.

Bro. Stocker, 33°, presented from Brothers Charles Eugene Myer 33°, John Harrold 33°, and M. R. Muckle, an original copy of the balustré issued by the Supreme Grand Council, Charleston, U. S., dated 1872. The thanks of the members were of course unanimously voted for the same.

The Grand Commander stated that the Grand Secretary had found in an old book store in the City of York, the original record of the Cerneau Consistory.

This reminds us of one of Bro. Hughan's adventures, who is always in quest of Masonic curiosities. Entering a shop lately in Plymouth he was offered a copy of the Grand Lodge of Scotland Regulations, and at once purchased it. On examining the Book it turned out to be a scarce edition, the property the "Lodge of Edinburgh", and our zealous masonic student at once relinquished his prize, and presented it to the rightful owners.

The Supreme Grand Council extended a warm invitation to the members of the English Supreme Grand Council, should they visit the Dependencies of the British Crown in North America, in 1872, as was intended.

The session was mainly taken up with devising charitable bequests, in conclusion, and right masonically did the members perform that duty.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

MOUNT LEBANON LODGE (No. 73).—The winter season of this well-known old lodge commenced on Tuesday, the 15th inst., by the lodge being held at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, Southwark. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. G. Free, the lodge was opened by Bro. F. H. Ebsworth, P.M., who presided in an admirable manner, and did all the work in his usual first rate style. There were present during the evening, Bros. D. Rose, P.M.; T. J. Sabine, P.M.; F. Walters, P.M.; E. Harris, P.M., Treasurer; G. J. Grace, S.W., P.M. 178; A. Dussek, J. S. Goinne, J. D.; C. Rayden, W.S.; H. Keeble, W.M. 1275; J. M. Spindler, F. E. Cooper, W. Herbert, R. G. Chipperfield, T. Sutton, W. Charlesworth, W. Gregory, G. Austen, W. Arnold, G. W. Muskett, J. F. Timms, and others. The visitors were—Bros. R. W. Little, P.G. Sec. Middlesex, P.M. 975; T. Robins, 25; B. Isaacson, 23 American Constitution. The minutes having been read and unanimously confirmed, the work done was passing Bros. W. Arnold, G. W. Muskett, and W. Arnold to the second degree. Ten guineas were unanimously voted to the widow of a deceased member, from the lodge charity fund. Other business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed. It was ordered to meet on Tuesday, November 19th, at five p.m. There was not any banquet, out of respect to the memory of two P.M.'s who had died since last meeting, viz., M. A. Loewenstark and J. Donkin.

STOCKWELL LODGE (No. 1339).—This lodge met at the Duke of Edinburgh Hotel, Brixton, on Thursday, the 17th inst., Bro. William Worrell, W.M., in the chair. Also present—Bros. J. Pain, S.W.; W. J. Brighton, J.W.; J. M. Klenck, S.D.; Sidwell, I.G.; C. Hammerton, P.M. and Treasurer; H. Frances, P.M. and Sec.; C.H. Benham, D.C.; Price, Hinckman, Bowyer, Coe, and visitor Bro. E. Draper, of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The business of the evening was the passing of Bro. Bowyer, the raising of Bro. Hinckman, and the initiation of Mr. John Coe. The three ceremonies were worked by the W.M. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper, the W.M. giving the usual Masonic toasts, and a very agreeable evening was passed.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

MILLOM.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge, took place on Tuesday, the 15th inst. The lodge was opened at seven o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Roger Dodgson, Prov. Grand Swd. Bearer, supported by the S.W., Bro. T. Dodgson, P.M. 995, Bro. Mills, J.W., P. G. Steward, and others. The minutes of last regular communication were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. Henry Waiting, as a candidate for Freemasonry, and for Bro. Milner, of Whitehaven, as a joining member, which proved in each case unanimous in their favour. Mr. Waiting being in attendance, was initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M. Bro. Waiting having retired, Bro. Meakin, a candidate for the second degree, was entrusted. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when, at the request of the W.M., the S.W., Bro. T. Dodgson, P.M. 995, assumed the chair, and passed Bro. Meakin who withdrew. Bros. Scott, Crook, and Holloway being present, were examined as to their proficiency as F.C.'s, and were each entrusted, and retired. The W.M. again took the chair of K.S., and raised Bro. Scott, Bro. Crook being raised by the S.W., the work being performed throughout with great care and ability. The W.M. then closed the lodge down to the first degree, when hearty good wishes were given from 119 and 343, the lodge being closed at 10.50 p.m. with solemn prayer.

ESSEX.

HARWICH.—Star in the East Lodge (No. 650).—On the 14th inst. the members of this lodge held their annual meeting for the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Edward Jervis White Jervis, M.P. A large muster of the members of the lodge assembled, besides several visitors from the Prince of Wales Lodge, Ipswich, amongst whom were Bro. C. T. Townsend, P.Prov. G.S.W. Suffolk; Bro. Westgate, P.Prov. M.C. for Suffolk; Bro. Barber, P.Prov.G.O.; Bro. Dr. Barton, P.Prov.G.M. for Western India, and others. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. John Heseldine, and the minutes of the last lodge were confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when the W.M. called upon Bro. Townsend to perform the ceremony of installation, the W.M. elect having been presented in due form, and the necessary part of the Installation having been gone through, the lodge was opened in the third degree, when those brethren below the rank of Installed Master retired, and a Board of Installed Masters to the number of ten, being formed, Bro. Edward Jervis White Jarvis, Colonel in H.M. Army, and Member of Parliament, was duly installed into the chair of K.S., and saluted with high honours by the Installed Masters. The Board having been closed, the Master Masons were re-admitted, when the W.M. was proclaimed and saluted, according to ancient custom, and there being no business in this, the Master Masons' Lodge was closed in the name of the Most High. The Installing Master then proclaimed the W.M. for the second time, and in the West, and called upon the brethren to salute him as Fellow Crafts, and the lodge was closed in the second degree. The W.M. was again proclaimed in the South, and saluted. The usual ceremony on such occasions was concluded by the Installing Master presenting the Warrant of Constitution to the new Worshipful Master, expressing the great pleasure he had experienced by handing the same to Bro. Jervis, observing that this was the sixth year he had had the honour of Installing the W.M. of the Star in the East Lodge; that it had passed through the hands of true and trusty brethren; that he now committed it to the care of the newly installed Master, not fearing that he would duly appreciate the importance of the charge; and, in conclusion, expressing a hope that the Great Architect of the Universe would grant him a year of office, creditable to himself and beneficial to the lodge. The W.M. then invested the I.P.M., and appointed the officers for the ensuing year. Two gentlemen were proposed for initiation, a vote of thanks passed to the retiring W.M., and the lodge was closed in harmony. The whole of the ceremony passed off without a hitch, and to the gratification of those present. P.M. Westgate, of the Prince of Wales Lodge, acted as Master of the Ceremonies in his usual excellent style. At the banquet, to which the brethren retired to the number of 30, they were honoured with the presence of the R.W. Bro. Bagshaw, P.G. Master for Essex. After dinner, which was served in the usual splendid manner, for which Bro. Price, of the Pier Hotel, is so celebrated, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The W.M., in proposing the Health of their P.G.M. and thanking him for his attendance, expressed his regret that their worthy chief had been unable to give them his attendance in lodge. The P.G. Master returned thanks in a long speech, in which he expatiated on the principles of the Order, stating that he was now seventy years of age, and that he owed all his success in life to Freemasonry, concluding by calling upon the brethren to charge their glasses, and drink in bumpers to their new Worshipful Master. The W. Master rose, and responded to the toast. He said the R.W.P.G.M. has put the principles of Freemasonry so clearly before you, brethren, that I cannot enlarge upon them. I trust that we shall ever meet as brethren, and when we separate to part in harmony, concluding with other remarks suitable to the occasion, and proposing the health of their eminent Bro. Dr. Barton, P. Prov. G.M. for Western India. Bro. Barton acknowledged the compliment, stating that he had seen Masonry in many parts of the world, that he had met men of all colours and creeds in Masonic lodges, but never met with anything but the greatest kindness and fraternal friendship. He could endorse all their P.G.M. had said, and could also say with him that he was indebted to Freemasonry for the great success in life he had enjoyed. The health of the Acting Master of Ceremonies was given, and responded to by Bro. Westgate, who expressed the great pleasure he had in being allowed to assist on the present occasion. The jewel he wore, which was presented to him by the members of the Star of the East, reminded him that his duty was to do all he could for the lodge. Bro. Dr. Barton rose, and, with the permission of the W.M., proposed that before they separated there was a toast they ought to have brought to their notice; it was that of the health of Bro. Townsend, who acted that day as Installing Master. He considered that they were very much indebted for the admirable way in which he had performed the ceremony, especially as that brother was not aware, on his arrival an hour previous to the opening of the lodge, that he would be called upon to fulfil the high post of Installing Master. It proved to the brethren how well Bro. Townsend kept up his work. The Installing Master acknowledged the toast in suitable terms, expressing the high honour he felt they had paid him, by allowing him to install so eminent a person, for there were very few humble individuals like himself, on whom the great honour had been conferred of installing into the chair of a lodge a Member of Parliament. The health of the Wardens and Officers was given, and responded to. Several Masonic songs, by Bro. Cohen, enlivened the evening, and the brethren parted at an early hour.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Panmure Lodge (No. 723).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held on the 8th October, inst., in the lodge room, at the Wellington Hotel. In the absence of Bro. Grover, W.M., the lodge was duly opened and ruled by Bro. R. Eve, P.G.S.W. and I.P.M., supported by Bro. J. Hickley, P.M. After the formal business of the evening, Bro. Bridger was passed to the second degree. Bros. Martin, Crozier, Johnson, and Rinsey, having passed a satisfactory examination, were each duly raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. After the ceremony of raising had taken place, Bro. Eve called the attention of the brethren to the Bible upon which the obligations had been taken, and stated that it had been kindly entrusted to him by Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Catty, commanding the 46th Regiment, for the purpose of raising three officers of his regiment, Bros. Martin, Johnson, and Crozier. The Bible was the property of the regiment, and highly prized as an interesting relic of the lodge, formerly attached to the regiment, called the Lodge of Social and Military Virtues. On that sacred volume, General Washington received a degree in Masonry. Afterwards, during the American war of independence, when the corps, for its courage and gallantry, obtained the "Red Feather," the Bible fell into the possession of the enemy, and was generously returned to the regiment in a true, fraternal spirit, by General Washington, under a flag of truce. At the attack on Dominica by the French, in 1805, the Bible again fell into the hands of the enemy, together with the lodge and mess plate. The Bible was returned under a flag of truce, but the plate was lost. On the motion of Bro. Eve, seconded by Bro. Hacker, S.W., the thanks of the lodge were unanimously voted to Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Catty, for his kindness in allowing the Bible to be used by the lodge on the occasion of raising three of the officers of the regiment to the sublime degree. At the close of the lodge, the Bible was examined with much interest by the brethren. It is in excellent preservation, and bears the date of its publication, 1712, with many Masonic symbols on its cover. Inside are particulars of many interesting occasions on which the Bible has been used in Masonic ceremonies at several places where the regiment has been stationed. The regiment has never left any station without taking with it the kindest wishes of the inhabitants, and the most cordial feelings of all those who have been brought in contact with the corps, which the excellent qualities of the officers, and the good conduct of the men have amply merited. When the time for quitting Aldershot shall arrive, the absence of the regiment will be deeply regretted.

HERTFORDSHIRE.

WALTHAM.—King Harold Lodge (No. 1327).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held at the Britannia Hotel, Waltham New Town, on the 15th inst., when Bro. Edward Parker, P.G.P. Herts, was duly installed as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was very ably performed by Bro. Edward West, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D. Herts. The appointment and investiture of officers followed. Bro. C. Lacy, P.M., was appointed S.W., pro. tem.; Bro. J. W. H. Evans, J.W.; Bro. J. Barwick, Treasurer; Bro. T. Reilly, Secretary; Bro. W. Gilbert, S.D.; Bro. Etherington, J.D.; Bro. F. Copeland, I.G.; Bro. Auber, Organist, and Bro. W. Allison, Tyler. Messrs. John Brown and John Cole were initiated. There was a good muster of members, and several visitors, amongst whom were Bro. Wilson, P. Prov. J.G.D. Middlesex; Bro. Tye, P.G.P. Middlesex, and W.M. of the Enfield Lodge, No. 1237; Bro. Brayshaw, W.M. elect Capper, No. 1076; Bro. Henderson, P.M. and Secretary 1076; Bro. Park, Treasurer 1076, and Bro. Wyatt. When the business of the meeting was concluded, the lodge was closed down, and the brethren, numbering about forty, retired to a splendid banquet, provided by the worthy host, Bro. John Sheldon. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were heartily responded to, and the brethren separated at an early hour, after spending a very pleasant evening.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—Baldwin Lodge (No. 1398).—The usual monthly communication of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the 14th inst., in the Masonic Temple, the ancient Castle, Dalton-in-Furness. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. W. J. A. Baldwin, who is at present abroad, the lodge was ably presided over by Bro. Reuben Pearson, W.M. of Lodge of Furness (No. 995). Ulverston, who was supported by Bro. W. Whiteside, S.W., and Bro. James Postlethwaite, J.W. The attendance of members was very full, and included several visiting brethren, amongst whom we may mention Bro. James Porter, St. John's Lodge, 327, P.G. S.W., P.G.S.; Bro. Roger Dodgson, S.W. 995, Lodge of Furness, W.M., 1390, Whitwell Lodge, and P.G.S.B. Cumberland and Westmoreland; Bro. John Case, P.M. 995; Bro. John Barron, W.M. 1353, Duke of Lancaster Lodge, and others. The minutes of the previous meetings having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for two candidates and one joining member, and proved in each case favourable. Bro. James Harrison, having proved proficiency, was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. William Dalzell, of Dalton, was afterwards duly and solemnly initiated by the acting W.M., the initiation charge being delivered by the S.W., and the working tools presented by the J.W. The ceremonies were much enlivened by the presence of the musical brethren of Lodge of Furness, 995, Bros. Matthews, Harper, and Parker, the latter of whom presided at the harmonium, with marked effect upon all present. Two candidates were afterwards proposed for initiation. Lodges of Instruction and Emergency were fixed upon, and the hearty good wishes of lodges 1353 and 995 having been expressed by Bros. John Barrow and J. H. Matthews respectively, and the questions put in the first degree, the lodge was duly and formally closed at 9.5 p.m., all present having thoroughly enjoyed the evening's proceedings.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

LEICESTER.—Commercial Lodge (No. 1391).—The ninth meeting of this young lodge was held on the 12th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall. Officers present—Bros. J.B. Hall, W.M.; S. P. Ekin, P. P. C. Northants and Hunts, as I.P.M.; J. Halford, J.W.; Rev. W. T. Fry, M.A., Chap.; L. L. Attwood, P.G. Dir. of Cers., D.C.; Dr. Clifton, Sec.; R. A. Barber, jun., Treasurer; A. Chamberlain, J.D.; Alfred Chamberlain, Assistant Org.; James Henry Ward, Steward; and Bros. J. Wright, J. G. Crofts, F. Sketty, E. Mason, as I.G.; R. W. Sheppard, B. Moore, Henry Hitchman, Thomas Turner, J. M. Brown. Visitors—Bros. R. Waite, P.M. 1330, P. Prov. D.C., Lincoln; John Walker, P.M. 57, Humber Lodge, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works, North E. Riding, York; G. Foller, jun., P.M. 523, P. Prov. G. Reg. Leicester and Rutland; S. S. Partridge, 523, Prov. G. Sec.; W. Weare, P.M. 279, P. Prov. G.D.; Edwin Crow, W.M. 279, P. Prov. G. Org.; J. M. McAllister, P.G. Supt. Works, Secretary 279; S. Tebbatt, 279; T. A. Wykes, 523. The lodge was opened in form, in the first degree, and the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bro. Rev. J. Halford, P.G. Chap., as honorary member; and for Mr. George Matts, and Mr. J. H. Hunt, candidates for initiation, which proved unanimous in each case. The lodge having been opened in the second degree, Bro. Brown, a candidate for the sublime degree, was examined as to his proficiency as a Craftsman, which proving satisfactory, he was entrusted with a test of merit, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, when Bro. Brown was raised to the sublime degree of a M.M., Bro. S. P. Ekin, P.M., explaining the Tracing Board, and presenting the working tools. The lodge was then lowered to the first degree, when Mr. George Matts was initiated. The music, arranged and combined by Bro. Crow, P. Prov. G. Org., W.M. 279, was effectively rendered by Bros. Wykes, Tebbatt, Chamberlain, Moore, &c., adding greatly to the impressiveness of the ceremony. We trust Bro. Tebbatt's scheme of forming a choir, consisting of members of each of the town lodges, may be carried out, for by that means the vocal part of the ceremonies would be most efficiently rendered. The W.M. having risen for the first time, the sum of five guineas was voted to the fund being raised by the brethren of the Province, to purchase into the Boy's school the son of the late J.W. Widdowson, J.W. 279, who visited the lodge at its last regular meeting, and died the Monday following, very suddenly, casting a gloom upon the fraternity, for he had won the respect and esteem of every brother who knew him. Upwards of eighty guineas had been already subscribed, and it is the earnest wish of the brethren that the whole amount will soon be raised. The W.M. then rose for the second time, after acknowledging hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren. The Master rose for the third and last time. Nothing further offering itself for the good of Freemasonry, the lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

LEICESTER.—John o' Gaunt's Lodge (No. 523).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, the 17th inst. Bro. Rev. Nathaniel Haycroft, D.D., W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported by the following officers:—Bros. W. Scalthorpe, I.P.M. F. J. Baines, S.W.; S. S. Partridge, J.W.; W. B. Smith, P.M., Treasurer; Rev. W. T. Fry, S.D.; Alex. Ross, I.G.; John T. Thorpe, Secretary. The following brethren were also present:—Bros. G. Toller, jun., P.M.; E. J. Crow, W.M. 279; James B. Hall, W.M. 1391; Charles Johnson, P.M.; T. A. Wykes, J. F. Smith, Charles Whittaker, Thomas Charlesworth, William Bunney, C. B. Lange, Richard Taylor, C. S. Thompson. Bros. Alfred Chamberlain, E. Mason, F. J. Petty, John Halford, J.W.; Arthur Cooper, Benjamin Moore, W. Wilkinson, S.D., all of No. 1391; Bros. J. M. McAllister, Secretary; H. T. Kirby, Thomas Scampton, of 279; Bro. Fred Kingston 502; Robert C. Podmore, of Oneida Lodge, No. 207, New York, U.S.A.. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the former meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Bro. John Lorriner and Hugh Atkins, who were initiated at the last meeting, having passed their examination in a very satisfactory manner were passed to the degree of F.C.; the charge and lecture of this degree were given in an efficient manner by the W.M. Bro. William Ingram and Bro. H. S. Gee were initiated into the mysteries of the Craft, the ceremony being conducted by the W.M. in his usual faultless style. The brethren were reminded by the W.M. that a subscription list had been opened for the object of buying into the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys a son of the late Bro. R. W. Widdowson, J.W. 279. The sum of 105 guineas was required, and he was pleased to say a considerable amount had been already promised. The sum of 10 guineas was unanimously voted from the lodge funds, and various private subscriptions from the brethren present brought the list up to nearly £100. Hearty good wishes having been given by various brethren, the lodge was closed in due form.

MIDDLESEX.

TWICKENHAM.—Villiers Lodge (No. 1194).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th instant, at the Groth Hotel, Twickenham. Bro. Arliss was raised to the third degree, and Bro. Gambri 1 was initiated by the W.M., Bro. Allman, who afterwards installed the W. Master elect, Bro. Osbaldeston; the whole of the ceremonies were carefully and correctly performed. Bro. Allman is the second Master, who has installed his successor in the Villiers, and has thus set a good example in the Province of Middlesex, which now consists of twelve or fourteen lodges, about half that number being junior to the Villiers. The following is a list of the officers for the ensuing year:—Bro. E. T. Osbaldeston, W.M.; Frederick J. Lancaster, S.W.; Thomas Small, J.W.; R. A. Steel, S.D.; William Harvey, J.D.; Thomas L. Green, I.G.; Thomas Verity, Treasurer; William Dodd, P.M., Secretary; E. H. Dalby, C.S.; G. R. Ridge, D.C.; T. Woodbridge, W.S. The brethren adjourned to a banquet, and enjoyed themselves till time warned them to depart for the iron road to town. It is proposed to hold a lodge of emergency in January, should there be any business. Amongst the members present were—Bro. Cubitt, P.S.G.D., Middlesex; Bro. Buss, Grand Treas. Middlesex; Bro. Pendlebury, Bro. Bailey, Bro. Cross, Bro. Fisher. This is evidently one of the lodges that make a proper selection of candidates for initiation, without resorting to the practice of blackballing.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Red Lion Hotel, on Thursday, 17th inst. Punctually at one o'clock, p.m., the lodge was opened by the Secretary, Bro. Frederick Walters. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, for Messrs. G. Arnold, C. H. Dye, and B. Lindsey, proved unanimous in favour of their admission, and in the order named, they were initiated into the privileges and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. Brothers W. J. Cox, R. Gower, R. Godfrey, F. Moon, T. Barriskill, R. G. Sprules, J. Marsh, F. W. Vine, 1310, having given proofs of their proficiency, were introduced, and raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, the entire ceremony being given, including the lecture on the Tracing Board. Bros. J. Symes and J. Richards were put through the usual examination, and having acquitted themselves creditably, were duly passed to the Fellow Craft degree. The members and visitors were unanimous in their thanks and praise to the well-known hard working Secretary, for the great treat he had given them by rendering every portion of the work. The event of the meeting was the return from Margate, of the ever-esteemed and highly popular W.M., Bro. J. T. Moss, Prov. G.S.D., who received quite an ovation and a hearty welcome on his return to London, more especially to this lodge, where he is so deservedly popular. Some routine business having been disposed of, the W.M., in a feeling speech, informed the members of the cause of the absence of the popular Senior Warden, Bro. D. D. Beck, W.M. 1306, which was caused through ill-health. Great sympathy was expressed for the S.W., and heartfelt hopes expressed for his speedy recovery. Four propositions for joining members were received, and five for initiation. It was decided unanimously to meet on Thursday, November 22nd, at one o'clock, so as to get through the heavy amount of work on the agenda paper. Business being ended, the lodge was closed. The usual banquet was served, under the personal superintendence of the host, Bro. R. Lawrence, which, as usual, gave great satisfaction. Some good songs, recitations, and music, brought a successful meeting to a happy close. There were present, besides those above named, Bros. E. Hopwood, P.M.; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; W. Hammond, P.M., S.D.; J. W. Jackson, I.G.; J. Hayward, J. W. Baldwin, J. Craven, H. Cutress, J. Duckworth, E. Gilbert, H. Stevens, J. McRitchie, J. M. Jennings, and some others. The visitors were—Bros. G. Stuart, 140; W. Vine, 1310; Smith, Keeling, Mabbs, and others.

NORTH WALES.

CARNARVON.—Segontium Lodge (No. 606).—This lodge held its annual meeting at the Masonic Hall, Carnarvon Castle, on Thursday last, when there was a large muster of the members to do honour to their new Master, including Bros. Potter, P.M.; Arthur Jones, P.M.; Humphrey, P.G.S.B. for North Wales; Carter P.M.; and the following visitors: Bro. Dr. Roden, P.M. and P. Prov. G.S.W. Warwickshire; Michael Emanuel, W.M. 205; Roberts, W.M. 384; George Jupp, 261; John Thomas Jones, 360. The lodge was opened at 2 pm. by the W.M., Bro. Robert Humphreys, assisted by all his officers. The minutes of the previous lodge and lodge of emergency having been read and confirmed, Bro. Emanuel stated that with regard to that portion recommending the petition for the new chapter he had much pleasure to inform the lodge that he had that morning received a letter stating that the petition had been recommended by the Board of General Purposes, and would be laid before the Grand Chapter for confirmation on Nov. 6th. The Auditor's report was then read, by which it appeared that the lodge now numbered 85 members, and that during the past year 21 have been initiated, and 6 had joined the lodge, and that the receipts had been £180 18s. 5d. The report was received and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The W.M. then presented Bro. Roden, P.M., with his portrait, painted in oil by Bro. Mercer, and stated he had great pleasure in being the medium of conveying to him this token of their appreciation of his long services to the lodge and for his travelling so many years such a distance to install the new W.M. Bro. Roden, who on rising was received with marks of applause, stated he could not find words to express his thanks for the great surprise they had in store for him; that he always considered it not only a duty but a pleasure to assist the lodge in any capacity, and returned his sincere thanks to the brethren for the mark of their friendship, and desired them to convey to Bro. Mercer, who had painted the picture, his high appreciation of the value of the portrait as a work of art. A testimonial of a Past Master's jewel was then voted by the lodge to the I.P.M. Bro. Roden, P.M., who acted as Installing Master, then assumed the chair, and the W.M. dect having taken the obligation, all below the rank of Installed Master retired, when a Board of Installed Masters was formed, no less than seven being present, and Bro. Poole was installed in the chair of K. S., according to ancient custom, in a manner which Bro. Roden is so competent to fulfil. The brethren were then re-admitted, and the newly installed

Master having been proclaimed, greeted, and saluted in the three degrees, he invested the following brethren as his officers:—G. Bradbury, S.W.; T. H. Webb, J.W. and Treasurer; Charles Foulkes, Sec.; Reet, S.D.; R. Halahan, J. D.; W. Harwood, I.G.; W. Hayden, Organist; S. Griffiths and W. Owen, Stewards; J. Hawkrige, Tyler. The lodge then adjourned to the Sportsman's Hotel, where a banquet was served in Bro. Pugh's usual liberal style. After the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and masonic toasts having been given, the health of the W.M. was proposed by the I.P.M., who stated that no words of his were required to enhance the value of the present toast, as the W.M. was known by all the brethren to be a painstaking and attentive brother, and he would therefore merely propose his health. The W.M., in reply, thanked the brethren for the cordial manner they had responded to his health, and that, as brevity was the soul of wit, he would merely add that he should do his best for the future prosperity of the lodge. The W.M. then proposed "The Past Masters of the Lodge," saying that in Bro. Roden they had still a most zealous officer; that much of the success of the lodge during the past year was due to the I.P.M.; that Past Masters Bros. Jones and Potter were ever ready to do duty when required, and Bro. Emanuel had shown his intelligence to give instruction in Masonry, as he had so lately given the lectures on the Tracing Boards and worked several of the sections. The I.P.M., in reply, thanked the brethren heartily for the cordial manner in which they had responded to the toast, and although he admitted the labour during the past year had been arduous, it was fully repaid by finding he had given satisfaction. The past year had been a most prosperous one, and the new lodge was nearly out of debt, although it had lost nearly £300. Past Masters Roden, Lewis, and Potter, briefly returned thanks. Bro. Emanuel replied as follows:—W. M. and brethren, with more than ordinary feelings of pleasure do I return you my thanks for so cordially responding to my health, not alone from its being the first time as a member of the lodge I have had to do so, but also for the very flattering way in which the W.M. has spoken of my giving the Tracing Board Lectures, but let me assure you nothing at any time affords me, or any other good Mason, greater pleasure than to impart to others what we may have learnt of the beauties of Masonry. Brethren, you have this evening commenced a new year, under a new Master, whom I doubt not will prove equally as proficient as the former. Your other officers are also working up, in due course of time, also to fill that important office, and here let me assure you that, however good, however proficient a master may be, unless he has good officers to second his endeavours, the various ceremonies cannot have the same effect; and as I am in Carnarvon twice a year for a week, I shall be only happy if the officers will meet me during that period, when I may be able to give them some advice and example as to the method of working in the London lodges. Brethren, but a few weeks since, in working the sections, I endeavoured to explain the three Grand Principles of the Order, brotherly love, relief, and truth. I gave you the Masonic illustration of the four Cardinal Virtues, Temperance, Fortitude, Prudence, and Justice. I pointed out the characteristics of a Freemason, Virtue, Honour, and Mercy; by other extracts I showed you, what were the precepts which Masonry teaches, now I will prove to you the practice. Let me ask you to look round this table and contemplate the countenances of those present. Where are now those cares, those harassing anxieties of which we all have a portion? Forgotten as soon as we enter the portals of a lodge. A second time look round, and observe the various politics of the several brethren. Where are now those politics? Outside the door of the lodge. A third time look round, and note the various religious beliefs of those assembled. Where are now those religious differences? Left to keep company with politics, its sister blessing or curse, according as they are properly or improperly applied. Here we have but one religion, to adore the same Almighty Father; but one politic, to honour the same beloved Queen. It is this that enables me, the only member of the Hebrew faith present, not only to know I am welcome amongst you but to feel that the same good feeling I entertain towards you is reciprocated by all present. It is this that teaches us, when we grasp each other's hands, not to consider it as a matter of form, but as the genuine expression of the heart's feelings. It is this that has given energy and permanency to the constitutions of Masonry, enabling it to survive the wreck of mighty empires and to resist the destroying hand of time; and finally it is this that enables us to extend the benefit to others, not members of the Fraternity, as we proved by our munificent donation to the Patriotic Fund during the Crimean War, to the Persian Famine Fund, and to the relief of the sick and wounded during the Franco-German War. Brethren think of all these things, recall to your memory that Masonry teaches morality and goodfellowship, support firmly and truly the great pillars of the order, practise the four cardinal virtues, impart to others the characteristics of a Mason, and instil into the minds of your fellow creatures, that all men are created by the same Almighty Father, and sent into the world for the mutual aid, support, and protection of each other. By these means you will not only create friendship amongst all men, but will hasten the arrival of that prophesied time when all the scattered nations of the earth shall be gathered together and abide in love and harmony, all worshipping the same Almighty Creator. Once more accept my thanks, and I feel sure that as the First Principal of your new Chapter I shall, in the various ceremonies, show you still more the beauties of Masonry, and incite in you a still greater veneration for the principles it teaches. The health of the Architect of the lodge, Bro. R. J. Davies, was proposed by the W.M. as a toast worthy of being responded to, as Bro. Davies had provided the whole of the plans and specifications gratuitously, and also superintended the same. Bro. Davies replied, saying he had done the best he could with the amount at his disposal, and there were other brethren who had also greatly assisted, among them Bro. Capt. Morgan, who was prevented by business from being present, and he (Bro. Davies) would always be delighted to assist to the extent of his power in any object for the good of the lodge. The toast of "The Visitors," responded to by Bro. Jupps, and "The Officers of the lodge," responded to by the various brethren; the Secretary, in his reply, stating that a certain Roman Emperor boasted that he found Rome brick and left it marble, and so it was with the I.P.M., who had proved that he was the right man in the right place, brought the proceedings to a close. The hilarity of the evening was considerably increased by songs from many of the brethren, and at a seasonable hour the last toast, "All Poor and Distressed Masons," having been drunk, the brethren departed to their several homes.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The first monthly meeting, after the summer recess, of this exclusive but prosperous lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Friday, the 11th inst., when there were present Bros. C. F. Long, W.M., Dr. Beaumont, R.N., S.W.; C. Wright, J.W.; Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P. Prov. G. Chaplain; Emra Holmes, P.M., P.G. Reg., M.C.; W. Roby, P.M.; W. Spalding, Sec.; P. Cornell, I.P.M., P.G.S.D.; A. J. Barber, P.G.O.; Rev. E. I. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; A. D. George, S.D.; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, I.G.; the Rev. T. G. Beaumont, and others. Visiting Bros. Captain Saxton, R.A., 150, and Lieut. Fairtlough, R.A., D.G. Deacon Malta, No. 155. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bros. R. B. Barton, LL.D., P. Prov. G. M. for Western India (S.C.), and P. De Lande Long, W.M. Buckingham and Chandos Lodge, No. 1150, who were both accepted as joining members. The ballot was taken for the Rev. J. Barthorp Tweed, Rector of Chapel St. Mary, who was a candidate for the mysteries of Masonry, and who was unanimously accepted. The candidate being present, he was admitted, obligated, and initiated as an E.A., the impressive ceremony being ably performed by Bro. Sanderson, who afterwards delivered in admirable style the lecture in the first degree, the usual charge not being given. Bro. Emra Holmes gave notice that at the next regular meeting he should move that the subscription of non-resident members should be reduced to 10s. per annum. His reason for making this motion, was that many Masons, from a distance, would probably wish to join this lodge, especially as a centenary jewel were granted to it, and, in his opinion, the introduction of eligible brethren residing at a distance from Ipswich, would be a positive advantage to the lodge, and ought to be encouraged. At the same time, it was hard upon those who could but seldom attend, on account of the considerable distance they had to travel, to expect them to pay the same as brethren who were always present. Bro. Barber hoped the brethren would hesitate before reducing the subscription of members. Bro. Cornell gave notice that he should move at next meeting, that steps be taken for the formation of General Lodge of Instruction. After the business of the lodge had been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren retired to the dining hall, where a substantial supper, in Bro. Spalding's best style, was served, to which ample justice was done. After the usual toasts had been given from the chair, Bro. Bobby proposed "The Masonic Charities" in his usual pleasant and emphatic style, and strongly recommended the formation of a subscription society, within the Masonic community here, to assist the noble objects entertained by the Masonic institutions, and immediate steps were taken to carry out the scheme proposed by the worthy and esteemed brother. A very pleasant evening was spent by all present.

YORKSHIRE (WEST).

BRADFORD.—Lodge of Hope (No. 302).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held under the presidency of Bro. Will. W. Barlow, the W.M., on Monday, the 15th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Godwin-street. There was the unusually large number of 54 visiting brethren present, and rarely is witnessed such a gathering in a private lodge. The W.M. must have felt complimented and honoured by the presence of so many visitors and brethren of his own lodge, an evidence that although his year of office is nearly ended, it is not so with the interest taken in his proceedings by his brethren. After lodge business the W.M. invited all present to adjourn to the refreshment room and partake of supper. Upwards of 80 brethren accepted his invitation, and although the number of visitors was much larger than usual, it was gratifying to see that the elasticity of the commissariat department was quite equal to the occasion, and that all had ample provision in the shape of fish, flesh, fowl, &c., moistened, as in the days of the monks of old, by flagons of claret. The W.M. was supported on his left by Rev. Bro. J. Oddy, Prov. G.C. and Chaplain of the lodge; Bros. J. A. Unna, P.M. 600, P. Prov. G.R.; M. Rhodes, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.S.W.; John White, W.M. Scientific, 439; J. J. Schaeppi, P.M. 302, Prov. G.S.D.; John Taylor, P.M. 387; S. B. Walmsley, P.M. 974; and on his right by Bros. F. W. Booth, W.M. Airedale 387; C. F. Unna, W.M. Harmony, 600; A. Nicholson, W.M. Airedale, 1018; Thos. Peel, P.M. 600, P. Prov. G.R.; C. J. Banister, P.M. 1018, P.G.S.B. of E.; John Sutcliffe, King Solomon 422, Australia; Thos. Renton, P.M. 387; N. Walker, P.M. 387; Isidor Ahrens, P.M. 600; J. R. Riley, P.M. 387; S. O. Bailey, P.M. 600, P. Prov. S. of W.; James Wright, P.M. 600, Rob. Johnson, P.M. 600. The cloth being drawn, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, referring in graceful terms of condolence, in proposing the health of the Queen, to her recent affliction in the death of her beloved sister. Bros. the Rev. J. Oddy, Prov. G.C., and Chaplain of the Hope Lodge, and J. J. Schaeppi, Prov. G.S.D. responded on the part of the Prov. G. Officers. The W.M. then called upon Bro. M. Rhodes, P. M., P. Prov. G.S.W., to propose the "Masonic Charities," which he did, urging the brethren the desirability of completing the second £1000 for the De Grey Presentation Fund, announcing that it was very nearly so, and during the week he had (in addition to the large sum previously subscribed by the brethren of the Hope Lodge) received further donations amounting to £36. The W.M. then proposed respectively the healths of the W.M's. P.M's., officers and brethren of the Airedale, 387, Scientific, 439, Harmony, 600, and Shakespeare, 1018, there being no less than 51 visiting brethren from these lodges present. The W.M. of these lodges responded, as did also Bro. J. A. Unna, P.M., 600, P. Prov. G.R., who some 20 years ago was a constant attendant, along with the present W.M. of the Hope Lodge, at its meetings. Bro. John Taylor, P.M. 439, also responded, referring to the time, long ago, when he too was an active member of the Hope Lodge. Bro. F. W. Booth, W.M. of the Airedale Lodge, 387, then, speaking in flattering terms of the mode of working the Lodge, and the general conduct of business by the W.M., proposed his health, congratulating him on the great gathering that evening, and on his admirable arrangements for the pleasure and comfort of his guests: and heartily thanking him on, their part, for the excellent entertainment they had enjoyed, and expressing the hope that, before his term of office expired, he and his brethren would again have the pleasure of his company in the Airedale Lodge. Bro. W. W. Barlow, W.M. responding heartily thanked Bro. Booth, W.M. for the too kind manner in which he had proposed the toast, and the brethren for the cordial way in which they had received, it assuring them that he felt more than repaid for any little efforts on his part in catering for their enjoyment, and before resuming his seat begged to propose "The Health of the Past Masters of the Lodge," to whom they were so much indebted, and on whom they relied for advice in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the lodge. Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.W., responded on behalf of the P.M., taking occasion to congratulate the W.M. on the great honour done him by the presence of so unusually large a number of visiting brethren from other lodges, at the same time assuring him of all the assistance in the power of the Past Masters to render. The W.M., in proposing the health of the other visiting brethren, coupled with the toast the name of Bro. John Sutcliffe, 422, King Solomon Lodge, Australia, expressing to him the gratification afforded by his presence amongst them. Bro. Sutcliffe in responding spoke in high terms of the the flourishing state of the Craft in Australia, and promised the brethren that if they would only pay a visit to his lodge, they would meet with a most hearty reception. The W.M. in proposing the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge of Hope," referred in highest terms of praise to their co-operation in carrying out the working of the lodge, and expressed his deep obligation to them for their valuable assistance, coupling with the toast the names of Bros. B. Broughton S.W.; and T. G. Andrews, L.S. Bro. Broughton, S.W., in responding, thanked the W.M. for the very flattering and complimentary manner in which he had been pleased to introduce the toast, and to assure the brethren that it had been a labour of love on his part and that of the officers to serve them. Bro. T. G. Andrews also thanked the W.M. for his recognition of the junior officers, assuring him that it had given the officers very much pleasure to serve under him during the past year, and trusted that now their term of office was drawing to a close they would receive recommendations to higher situations. The W.M. then brought this exceedingly agreeable meeting to a close by proposing the Tyler's Toast. We ought not to omit to say that the enjoyment of the evening was much increased by harmony from Bros. Robert Richardson, Unna, Sutcliffe, Muller, and Meyer, an apology being given for the absence of the Organist.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.—St. John's Lodge (No. 3, bis.) met in their hall, 123, Buchanan-street, on Tuesday, the 15th October, to hear a lecture from Bro. McTaggart, M.A., P.G.S., on the "Order of Masons." The lecturer, in a very able manner, proceeded to consider the Order historically, examining the various theories that have been advanced by its origin, stating, as his own conclusions, that in its present form it only dates from the building of the Cathedral of Strasburg. He then considered the Order in its social aspect, promising in the next lecture to treat of it morally and intellectually. There was a large assemblage of the members of this ancient lodge, as well as a number of visiting brethren; and at the close of the proceedings, on the vote of the lodge, Bro. McMillan affiliated the worthy Provincial Secretary as an honorary member of St. John's, not only on account of the highly instructive lecture he had delivered, but also on account of the great services he had rendered the Province since he has fulfilled the arduous office of P.G.S.

Royal Arch.

METROPOLITAN.

LION AND LAMB CHAPTER (No. 192).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st., on Thursday, 16th October. Present Comps. Kenning, M.E.Z.; Roberts, H.; King J.; S. Muggeridge, S.E.; Harris, S.N.; Newman, P. J.; Ridley, 1st A.S.; Birdseye, 2nd A.S.; F. D. R. Copestick, D.C.; and Comps. Arkell, Kent, Sidney, Spencer, Jones, Figes, W. E. Newton, Cann, and Henry Muggeridge. The chapter was opened in solemn form, and Comp. Henry Muggeridge Past Grand Standard Bearer of England, exalted Bros. Chapman and Hooton to the supreme degree of Royal Arch Masonry, in his usual impressive manner. Comps. Dyer and Kain were elected joining members. The officers elected for the ensuing year were Comp. Roberts, M.E.Z.; Comp. King, H.; Comp. Harris, J.; Comp. Kenning, Treasurer; Comp. S. Muggeridge, S.E.; Comp. Newman, S.N.; Comp. Birdseye, P.S.; and Gilbert Janitor. The visitors were Comps. A. Bryant, M.E.Z. 22; John Gale, 22; and W. Palmer, S.E. 177. The chapter was then closed in due form and adjourned to the 3rd Wednesday in January, 1873. The Comps. afterwards partook of a very nice supper, supplied in Comp. Spencer's usual style of excellence.

BERKS AND BUCKS.

WINDSOR.—Windsor Castle Chapter (No. 771).—An important convocation of this chapter was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Windsor, on Thursday, the 17th inst.—Amongst the numerous companions present were the M. E. Z., Comp. James Stevens, P.Z.; E. Comp. R. Harvey, M. E.Z. 720, H.; E. Comp. Joseph Devereux, I.P.Z. 771, J.; E. Comp. Past Principals Capt. John Godwin, P.Z. No. 1, Cork, and J. Bolingbroke Ribbans, P. Z.; Comp. J. S. Tolley, S. E.; H. H. Hodges, S.N.; Ed. Grisbrook P.S.; F. Fleck, Welham Clarke, Caleb Holden, Peter Watson, Richard Martin, John Fuller, Nowell, &c. The chapter having been, after a considerable interval, resuscitated by the exertions of Comp. Devereux, Stevens, and Tolly, a preliminary convocation had been held in July, at which the installation of Comp. Stevens as M.E.Z. took place, and subsequently a dispensation was granted by Grand Chapter, authorising the installation of Companions Martin and Fuller as H. and J. respectively. The present convocation therefore became the first installation meeting of the newly resuscitated chapter, and the proceedings of the evening were consequently of considerable interest. The chapter having been duly opened and the previous minutes confirmed, the dispensation from Grand Chapter was read, and Comp. Martin was then installed as J. and subsequently as H. Comp. Fuller was at the same time installed as J. The M.E.Z. then, with suitable addresses, invested the officers of the chapter in the following order, viz:—Comp. Tolly S.E.; Hodges, S.N.; Devereux, I.P.Z. Treasurer; Grisbrook, P.S.; Fleck, 1st A.S.; Welham Clarke, 2nd A.S.; Nowell, Janitor. The chapter having been thus duly perfected, the exaltation of brethren in attendance was proceeded with, and Bros. Captain Cutler, Captain Avery Tyrrell, and

Alf. Kirby were severally admitted to the degree of the Holy Royal Arch, with perfect ceremony, the effect of which was greatly enhanced by the performance of members of the Choir of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle. The beautiful appointments of the Chapter, and the manifold accessories of the Hall in which it was held, gave great satisfaction to the visiting companions, which was increased by the excellent working of all the officers. Propositions for the exaltation of Bros. Lord Ruthven, John Cross, B. Nathali, and J. C. Freemantle, at the ensuing convocation in January, were taken, and after the disposal of other Masonic business, the Chapter was duly closed. The members and visitors soon after assembled at the Castle Hotel, where a well served dinner awaited them. The cloth having been cleared, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the M.E.Z. and duly honoured. Comp. Devereux, I.P.Z., in proposing the health of the M.E.Z. took occasion to express, on behalf of the chapter, the warm thanks of its members for the valuable assistance which had been rendered by Comp. Stevens in securing the resuscitation of the chapter, and eulogised the energy and perseverance which had resulted so successfully. In reply the M.E.Z. observed that he could not so entirely take credit for the present position of the chapter as Comp. Devereux appeared to desire he should, as all his efforts would certainly have been fruitless, but for the indefatigable endeavours of Comp. Devereux himself and Comp. Tolley. Now, however, the members might all look forward to a prosperous career; the muster roll was reasonably large; the place of meeting specially adapted for their work; the furniture and appointments costly and perfect of their kind; and, what was of more importance than all, their officers anxious to acquit themselves with credit in the performance of their respective duties. If, with all these advantages, the Windsor Castle Chapter did not in the future hold its own with any provincial chapter in the kingdom, it would be a great disappointment to all concerned, but he entertained no apprehension that such would be the case. He thanked the companions for the honourable position in which they had placed him, and assured them that continued efforts on his part should not be wanting to promote the influence and prosperity of the chapter. The healths of the newly-installed H. and J., the I.P.Z., and other officers of the chapter, were drunk with much cordiality, and ably responded to in each case, and the companions separated, pleased with the entire proceedings, and sanguine as to the complete success of the Windsor Castle Chapter.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL.—Walton Chapter, (No. 1086).—A regular convocation of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, on Friday, the 4th inst. There were present Comps. Thos. Chesworth, M.E.Z.; J. C. Lunt, H.; Geo. de la Perrelle, J.; Wm. Archer, P.Z., Treas.; Jno. Lunt, P.Z.; J. P. McArthur, P.S.; P. Armstrong, S.E.; and a number of other companions. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bro. Lieut. Walker, of the Walton Lodge who was unanimously elected, and was subsequently exalted to the supreme degree of R.A.M. by this M.E.Z., the Historical and Symbolic Lectures, being given respectively by Comps. J. C. Lunt, and Geo. de la Perrelle. Two candidates were proposed for exaltation at the next meeting. The chapter was then closed in due form.

LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

MELTON MOWBRAY.—De Mowbray Chapter (No. 1330).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the George Hotel, on Thursday, the 10th inst. Amongst the companions present were William Kelly, Prov. G. Supt.; Henry Douglas, M.E.Z.; J. J. Past, H. elect.; Henry Deane, J.; Rev. W. Longley, P.Z.; Duncombe, E.; Adcock, N.; Oxford, P.Z.; Bright, P.S.; Oldham, Lead-beater and others. A conclave of Installed Principals was held, and the P.G. Supt. installed Comp. Past into the second Chair, he having been unavoidably absent at the previous chapter. Bros. MacKinder, W.M. of the Spilsby Lodge, and Jas. King, of the Rutland Lodge, were balloted and elected for exaltation, but both were unable to attend on this occasion. There being no further business, the chapter was closed in solemn form and with prayer.

Mark Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

MACDONALD MARK MASTER MASONS LODGE (No. 104).—A numerous meeting of this lodge was held at the head quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, at Camberwell, on Saturday, the 12th instant, the V.W. Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.O., P.M., &c., in the absence of W. Bro. C. Hamerton, W.M., presiding. The V.W. Bro. James Stevens, P.G.O., P.M., Provincial Grand Mark Secretary Middlesex and Surrey, assisted the Acting W.M. in the working of the lodge, in exact accordance with the newly revised ritual of the degree, the considerable improvement in which gave great satisfaction to the many earnest brethren, who are so thoroughly united in the endeavour to make this lodge a perfect exponent of Mark Masonry. Nothing was wanting to render the ceremony of advancement most impressive, and the candidates admitted to this honourable degree on this occasion were unanimous in their expressions of satisfaction and admiration. Amongst the many brethren present, were, in addition to the above, Bros. T. Poore, as J.W.; W. Bro. Edgar Drewett, Prov. G.O. Middlesex and Surrey; W. Bro. W. Worrell, Prov. G. Org. Middlesex and Surrey, J.W.; W. Bro. W. S. Webster, Prov. Grand Deacon Middlesex and Surrey, M.O.; Bro. Thomas White, S.O. and Secretary; Bro. G. Newman, J.O.; Bro. North Ritherden, I.G.; W. Bro. W. C. Hale, Prov. G.S.B. Middlesex and Surrey; and Bros. A. Southam, A. Anderson, G. Motion, F. H. Cozens, H. A. Graham, S. W. O'Neill, and others. Five candidates, out of seven proposed, were in attendance, and were severally introduced and advanced with full musical ceremony in each case, and the lecture of the degree was delivered by Bro. Stevens, in completion of the working. Several propositions of candidates and joining members were taken, and some further Masonic business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper, after which the usual and loyal and Mark Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Members and newly advanced brethren were unanimous in their expressions of satisfaction with the proceedings of this most successful and agreeable meeting. We are requested to state that the next meeting of the lodge will be held on Saturday, the 14th December, and that the members will be pleased to meet such members of other lodges who may desire to become acquainted with the now recognised working of the degree.

LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

MELTON MOWBRAY.—Howe Lodge (No. 21).—The members of this lodge assembled at the George Hotel, on Thursday, the 10th inst., for the installation of the W.M. elect, the appointment of officers, and other business. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Fast, and the R.W. P.G.M., Bro. Kelly, being present, was saluted in due form by the brethren. The chair was then taken by the P.G.M.M., for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. the Rev. W. Langley, P.M. and Past D.P.G.M.M. The whole ceremony, however was not performed, the Rev. brother having been some years since installed as W.M. of the lodge. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers, all of them, with one exception, being the same brethren who occupied the same posts under him during his previous Mastership. The Treasurer's report was received and passed, and some further business having been transacted, the lodge was closed and adjourned until December next.

SOMERSET.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

By command of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master of the province of Somerset, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Prov. G. Officers, W. Masters, Past Masters, Wardens and Overseers of various lodges under his Lordship's Masonic government, were summoned to attend a Prov. Grand Mark Lodge of Emergency at the Masonic Hall, Frome, on Tuesday, the 15th inst., to assist in the consecration of the new Mark Lodge, No. 155, named after the M.W. Grand Mark Master of England, Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal.

The Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Mark Master being unable to attend, the Prov. G. Mark Lodge was opened by the V.W. Deputy Prov. Grand Mark Master, Bro. Capt. Francis George Irwin, assisted by the following Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers and brethren: Fred. Vizard, Prov. Grand Mark Senior Warden, and W.M. of Mark Lodge 102; William S. Gillard, Prov. G.J.W., and W.M. of Mark Lodge 128; Richard Charles Else, Prov. G.M.O., W.M. of Mark Lodge 155; Edwin T. Inskip, P. Prov. G.S.O., W.M. of Mark Lodge 119; W. H. Davies, Prov. G.S.O.; Rev. J. E. Percy, Prov. G. M. Chaplain; E. Turner Payne, Prov. G. Treas.; B. Cox, Prov. G. Sec.; Ernest Walker, Prov. A.G. Sec.; Thos. E. Jelley, Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.; B. Atwell, Prov. G.S.B.; C. E. Benthall, Prov. G.S.B.; J. Mantell and J. Fry, Prov. G.S.; J. Coles, Prov. G.T.; R. Skinner, Prov. A.G.T.; Bros. R. De M. Lawson, G.S.O. of England; Bros. R. Taylor, W. Swaggett, T. H. Holroyd, and others.

Excuses were read from Bros. W. Thomson, Prov. J.O.; A. W. Witter, Prov. S.D.; S. Jones, Prov. J.D., for their absence.

The warrant having been read by the Provincial Grand Mark Secretary, the brethren expressed their wish that the lodge might be consecrated.

The V.W. Deputy Prov. G. Mark Master proceeded to consecrate the Portal Lodge, No. 155, according to ancient form, scattering corn, P.M. Bro. Vizard, Prov. G.S.W., pouring wine, and P.M. Bro. Gillard, Prov. G.S.W., pouring oil.

After the completion of the consecration, the Prov. G. Secretary, Bro. W. Cox, presented for installation the W.M. designate, Bro. Richard Else, Prov. G. Mark M. Overseer, P. Prov. G.S.W., and Prov. Grand Secretary of the Craft Prov. of Somerset, when he was installed and placed in the chair of Adoniram, by the Installing Master, the V.W.D.P.G. Mark Master, Bro. Captain Irwin.

The W.M. thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him by making him the first W.M. of this new lodge, which promised to be so successful and prosperous, and appointed Bro. E. T. Inskip, the I.P.M.; Bro. Rev. W. Spragget, S.W.; Bro. R. De M. Lawson, J.W.; Bro. R. Holroyd, M.O.; and T. Taylor, S.O. The W.M. then informed the brethren that he would make the other appointments at the next meeting of the lodge.

The W.M. proposed, and Bro. Inskip seconded, a vote of thanks to the V.W.D.P.G. Mark M., and all Prov. Grand Officers, for their attendance on this occasion; and Bro. Rev. W. J. E. Percy, Prov. G. Chaplain, expressed, on behalf of the Wincanton Lodge, No. 128, their readiness to assist in the working of the Portal Lodge, should the W.M. require their services at any future time.

The W.M. having closed the lodge, the brethren adjourned to the George Hotel, where a substantial banquet was provided by Bro. Marston. After the usual toasts having been given and responded to, the brethren separated at an early hour, some of the brethren travelling more than one hundred and twenty miles to take part in the day's proceedings.

Knights Templar.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

PRESCOT.—William de la More Encampment.—The Knights of this influential encampment were summoned to attend a conclave of the Order at the new Court House, Prescott, on Friday, the 11th inst. The conclave was opened at five o'clock by Sir Knight J. W. J. Fowler, E.C., who was supported by Sir Knights R. Young, P.; G. Turner, Second Captain; J. K. Smith, Almoner; W. Doyle, Expert; T. Clark, S.B.; J. E. Jackson, C. of the Line; there being also present Sir Knights W. Cranshaw, P.E.C.; J. S. Robertson, R. Brown, J. Wood, and M. Mawson. After the transaction of some formal business, Sir Knight George Turner was elected E.C., and Sir Knt. Joseph Wood, Treasurer. A communication was read from the P. G. Chancellor, intimating that the initiation fee should not be less than five guineas. The conclave was then closed, and the Sir Knights of the encampment sat down to an excellent banquet at the Royal Hotel.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LANCASHIRE.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Conclave (No. 55).—The periodical meeting of this conclave was held on Friday evening, the 18th inst., at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool. Eminent Sir Knight J. R. Goepel, M.P.S., occupied the throne during the evening's business, supported by the following principals:—Ill. Sir Knight G. Turner, Int. Gen. for West Lancashire; Ill. Sir Knight J. K. Smith, D. Int. Gen. for West Lancashire; E. Sir Knight H. M. Molyneux, V.E.; Sir Knights H. James, S.G.; R. Washington, H.P.; J. Wood, Treasurer; W. Doyle, Recorder; J. E. Jackson, Prefect; S. Hague, Orator; J. Skeaf, Organist; R. Young and M. Mawson, Stewards; G. H. Turner, D.C.; and P. Ball, Sentinel. The other members present were:—Em. Sir Knight T. Ashmore, M.P.S. 77; Em. Sir Knight H. Nelson, V.E. 77; Sir Knights G. H. Wilson, I. W. Robinson, W. Crow, R. Brown, and others. The visitors were:—Sir Knights H. Jackson, Orator 77; H. Burrows, 77; and C. Leighton, 77. After the conclave had been duly constituted, the records read, and the muster roll called, the following brethren were admitted and exalted with all the solemn ceremonial of the illustrious order:—Bros. C. M. Thomas, 1299; J. W. Kelly, 1299; W. H. Shakespeare, and Colin McNab, 1035. An excellent banquet was subsequently served in the large handsome dining hall of the hotel, and the assembled Knights enjoyed one of the most pleasant evenings since the consecration of the now highly influential conclave.

LIVERPOOL.—Skelmersdale Conclave (No. 77). The usual assembly of the Knights of this conclave was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Monday evening, the 7th inst., V.E. Sir Knight T. Ashmore, M.P.S., occupied the throne, supported, at their respective posts, by Em. Sir Knight H. Nelson, V.; Sir Knight J. Callow, I.G.; Sir Knight J. Banning, H.P.; Sir Knight W. Cotterill, K.; Sir Knight J. J. Rose, P.; Sir Knight M. Mawson, S.B.; F. Day, H.; and Sir Knight H. Jackson, O. V.E. Sir Knight J. K. Smith, D.I. Gen. for West Lancashire, was present during the assembly, and the other members of the conclave were:—Sir Knights J. McCarthy, W. Bradshaw, H. Burrows, and J. Wood. The conclave was opened at half-past six o'clock by the M.P.S., assisted by the various officers of his conclave, when the minutes and muster roll were read. Bros. Raniskill, 249; C.

Leighton, 249; and Thomas Josephs, 1264; were balloted for, and duly exalted. Sir Knight S. Hague, Orator of the Liverpool Conclave, No. 55, was also admitted as a joining member. Two brethren were proposed for exaltation, after which, the conclave was closed in peace and harmony.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

LEICESTER.—Byzantine Conclave (No. 44).—An assembly of this conclave was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, the 9th inst, under the presidency of the M.P.S., the V.E. Sir Knight George Toller, jun., K.G.L., nearly all the officers being at their respective posts. The Ill. Int. Gen. for the Province, Sir Knight W. Kelly, honoured the conclave with his presence. The business on the agenda paper comprised the installation of three candidates, but from various causes they were all prevented from attending. The ceremony of installation was worked by way of instruction, the musical accompaniments, composed by Sir Knight Belcher, Mus. Doc. Oxon, Organist of the Rose of Sharon Conclave, Birmingham, adding greatly to the beauty and impressiveness of the degree. A hearty vote of thanks to Sir Knight Belcher for his kindness in presenting a copy of the musical accompaniments was duly passed. Some business of a routine character having been disposed of, the conclave was closed.

INTERESTING TO THE MEMBERS OF THE ORDER OF ST. LAWRENCE.—The Escorial, in Spain, which was nearly burnt the other day, is one of the most remarkable buildings in the world; it was commenced by Philip II. in 1563, but was not completed until 1586. It is in the form of a gridiron, and was nearly getting into the condition of one, that shape having been selected in honour of St. Lawrence. According to a calculation which has been made, the total length of the rooms is upwards of one hundred and twenty English miles.

THE OYSTER FISHERIES OF IRELAND.—Major Hayes, one of the Inspectors of Irish Fisheries, held an inquiry at Passage Courthouse on Monday, into the state of the oyster fisheries in Cork harbour, particularly as regarded the destruction of oysters under two and a half inches in diameter. Having taken evidence which tended to show that the quantity of oysters in the beds in the river had decreased during the past twenty years, and also that the capture of spat was carried on to a considerable extent, he warned the fishermen that if they did not desist from their illegal practices it might be found necessary to close altogether the oyster fisheries in the river.

THE QUEEN OF THE NETHERLANDS IN LIVERPOOL.—Her Majesty the Queen of the Netherlands and suite, who are present the guests of the Earl and Countess of Derby at Knowsley Hall, paid a visit to Liverpool on Wednesday last. They arrived at the Town Hall about half past one, accompanied by Lord and Lady Derby, and were received by the Mayor (Mr. John Pearson).

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, November 1, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, OCT. 26th.

Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor. Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor. Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, OCT. 28.

Lodge 28, Old King's Arms, Freemasons' Hall.
" 79, Pythagorean, Ship Hotel, Greenwich.
" 183, Unity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street.
" 831, British Oak, Beaumont Hall, Beaumont-square, Mile-end.
" 902, Burgoyne, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
" 905, De Grey and Ripon, Angel Hotel, Great Ilford, Chap. 25, Robert Burns, Freemasons' Hall.
" 188, Joppa, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor. Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor. Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor. British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8. St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor. Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155; Preceptor. St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor. West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, OCT. 29.

Lodge 141, Faith, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor. Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor. Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel) at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor. Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor. Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor. Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor. Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30. Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton, (W.M. 1227), Preceptor. St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's-wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 30.

Lodge 898, Temperance in the East, 6, Newby-place, Poplar.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor. United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor. Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor. New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8. Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30. Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor. Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor. Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar. Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY OCT. 31.

General Committee Girls' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 4. Lodge 22, Neptune, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street.
The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall. Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st. Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor. Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor. Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stenn, Preceptor. United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor. Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188. Preceptor. Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30. Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor. Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Milbank.

FRIDAY, NOV. 1.

Lodge 706, Florence Nightingale, Masonic Hall, William-st., Woolwich.
 „ 890, Hornsey, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 Chapter 3, Fidelity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-si.
 Stability Lodge of Instruction, No. 217, Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggeridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
 Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8. Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733) Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

What better Theme than Masonry?"
 MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.
 Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435; Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
 Post-free, 25 stamps.

TESSELATED CARPETING.

FOR

Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, &c.

Four Feet wide, 4/3 per Yard.

MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
 AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

SECOND EDITION.—NOW READY.

Price One Shilling, Post-free, Revised and Enlarged.

Freemasonry in Relation to Civil Authority and the Family Circle,

By BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.

THIS work is a perfect handbook of the principles of Freemasonry, founded on the Ancient Charges and Symbols, and will be found to be eminently practical and useful in the vindication and support of the Order.

Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THIRD EDITION.—JUST READY.

REFLECTED RAYS OF LIGHT UPON FREEMASONRY:

OR,

The Freemason's Pocket Compendium,

With an Emblematical Frontispiece.

A Hand-Book of the Principles of Freemasonry, and Pocket Vade Mecum and Guide to the various Ceremonies connected with Craft Masonry, so far as the same are allowed to be communicable, in accordance with the principles of the Order.

Price One Shilling, Post-free for Thirteen Stamps.

Sold by Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

MONEY.—LOANS granted immediately from £100 to £2,000 at 5 per cent., repayable over Three, Four, or Five Years, on Personal Security and Life Policy effected with the WEST OF ENGLAND INSURANCE CO., (Established 1807.)

Apply to the Superintendent of Agents,
 J. CROCKER, Neville Street, Newcastle.
 Agents Wanted.

NOW READY, PRICE £4/4 THE PAIR, OR £2/10 SINGLE.

SIZE 32in. BY 26in.

PHOTOGRAPHS

OF

BRO. SIGISMUND ROSENTHAL'S CELEBRATED PAINTINGS

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Past Grand Master,

At Freemasons' Hall, on December 1st, 1869, containing upwards of 120 Figures and Portraits.

The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of Knights Templar,

May 13th, 1870, containing nearly 100 Figures and Portraits.

Sold by BRO. G. KENNING, 2, 3, & 4, Little Britain, E.C.

Branches: 198, Fleet-street, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

IRON PIANOS FOR ALL CLIMATES

MESSRS. BORN & Co.,
 13, BERNERS-STREET, W.,

Beg to call attention to their IRON COTTAGE PIANOS, celebrated for their power and beauty. These Pianos are unsurpassed in elegance of design and brilliancy of tone, are unequalled for the elegance of their construction, and for the musical effect which they produce. The Manufacturers pay special attention to the peculiarities of various climates, and construct their instruments accordingly. Persons proceeding to India and the Colonies are specially invited to inspect these Pianos.

MANUFACTORY: BERLIN. EIGHT PRIZE MEDALS.

MESSRS. DARLOW & Co.,

INVENTORS, PATENTEES, AND SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF THE ORIGINAL SKEUASMA MAGNETIC APPLIANCES,

Solicit the attention of the Public to their recently patented and greatly improved article,

MAGNETINE.

Which, from its extreme lightness and perfect flexibility, will commend itself for Hot Climates, Summer Wear, and for Persons of delicate constitution.

As a curative agent, the original SKEUASMA appliances have been remarkably successful in the relief and cure of ailments hitherto deemed almost unapproachable. The new article, MAGNETINE, whilst possessing an equal amount of curative properties, has the additional advantages of softness, lightness, and entire flexibility, combined with a permanent unchangeable Magnetic influence.

The most successful cases hitherto treated for having been Spinal, Liver, and Kidney Affections; also Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, General Debility, and the various forms of Nervous, Rheumatic, and Bronchial complaints.

The Magnetine substance is encased in Silk, Jean, Flannel, and other soft articles, and is made up into appliances to meet the various local ailments. It does not contain any sharp-cutting material, and cannot by any possibility do injury to the wearer.

Messrs. DARLOW are in constant receipt of Testimonials of the curative effects of these gentle, soothing, and vitalising appliances for the relief of human suffering.

DARLOW and Co., Inventors and Patentees, 63, North Woolwich-road, E.

Illustrated Pamphlets Post Free.

COMMUNICATIONS RESPONDED TO WITHOUT ANY CHARGE WHATSOEVER.

TEMPORARY CITY DEPOT, 29, FARRINGTON-SREET, E.C.

Also at 28, PATERNOSTER-ROW; and upwards of 150 established Agents in the United Kingdom.

Now ready. Demy 12mo, 208 pages. Handsomely bound in Cloth, price 2s. 6d. Post free, 2s. 8d.

THE

ISRAELITES FOUND IN THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

The Ten Tribes supposed to have been Lost, traced from the Land of their Captivity to their Occupation of the

ISLES OF THE SEA,

With an Exhibition of those Traits of Character and National Characteristics assigned to Israel in the Books of

THE HEBREW PROPHETS.

By WILLIAM CARPENTER,

Author of "Scientia Biblica," "Scripture Natural History," "Guide to the Reading of the Bible," "Lectures on Biblical Criticism and Interpretation," "A Popular Introduction to the Bible," "The Biblical Companion," "Critica Biblica," "Calendarium Palestinæ," "An Introduction to the Reading and Study of the English Bible," and Editor of the Fifth Large Edition of "Calmet's Dictionary of the Bible," and of the Abridgment of the same, &c., &c., &c.

London:

George Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, & 2, 3, 4, Little Britain.

Liverpool: 2, Monument Place.

Macintosh & Co., 24, Paternoster Row.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only,
THE PEOPLE'S
 HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS
 VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lanbaurgh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect,
 BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL,
 Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each, containing 40 pages of crown quarto double columns, thus giving for 16s. 1,280 pages, or about 2,560 columns of letter-press, being twice as much matter as is given in any other History of Cleveland at three or four times the price.

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ord's History, the Work is Illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by TWEDDELL and Sons, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

J. E. PETERS,
 ORNAMENTAL ENGRAVER AND FANCY
 ENAMELLER,
 42, Howard-place, Northampton-road,
 CLERKENWELL.

Writing, Engraving of every description, Masonic Emblems Engraved or Enamelled; old enamelled Work repaired; Country Orders attended to with despatch.

CARPETS, MATTING & FLOORCLOTH.

THE Newly-Invented Solid, Non-fading, DUST-PROOF, DRAUGHT-PROOF, WATER-PROOF, and WASHABLE CARPETS and MATTING are the best Floor Coverings extant for Libraries, Bedrooms, Offices, &c. No other so Healthy, Clean, and Economical. Patterns can be had, Post Free, and Goods Carriage Free, of
MESSRS. CHILES & CO.,
 57 AND 60, BELMONT STREET,
 CHALK FARM ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

TESTIMONIAL (No. 41).

St. Andrew's Street, Cambridge, June 29th, 1872.
 SIR.—Your note was forwarded to me here, and I am happy to inform you that the Dust Proof and Washable Carpets have given me great satisfaction. They require no scrubbing; merely to be washed with soap and water and dried with a cloth. I have not found the colours to wear off, even where most used.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
 To J. E. JARRETT, Esq. M. SWANDALE.
 The original letter of Mrs. Swandale can be seen in our Office, and others of a similar character from all parts of England.

The above Testimonial refers to The "Washable and Dust-Proof" Carpets laid down in Bedrooms.
 N.B.—Patterns must be returned within four days post free—Postage 4d.

THE NEW MASONIC CANDLES,
 Ionic, Doric and Corinthian, Emblematially Arranged for Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens.
 6s. per set of 3 one-pound Candles. Packing Cases 6d. each.

BRO. GEORGE KENNING'S
 MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
 AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

SHARES in New Undertakings of a bona fide character successfully INFLUENCED and PLACED. Address, in perfect confidence, O.B., care of r. Marriage, 16, Blomfield-street, City.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by

MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT
 CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district.
 Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

ROUGH WEATHER HATS—12/6.

THE best Hat for Winter wear; thoroughly waterproof, at Bro. W. R. JONES, Hat Manufacturer, 73, Long Acre. Sent carriage free on receipt of P.O.O. for 12/6 payable to WILLIAM JONES, Long Acre office. N.B. Send number of inches round the head.

For Cheap Watches, Clocks, Gold Chains and Jewellery, go to KIBBLES',

22, GRACECHURCH STREET
 (one door from Lombard-street).
 Gold Watches £2 15s.
 Silver Watches £1 5s.
 Timepieces... .. from 9s. 6d.
 Every article warranted. Plate, Watches, and Jewellery bought or exchanged. List of Prices post free.

MASONIC EMBLEMS.

A BEAUTIFUL WORK OF ART, in Photography, for framing, representing a volume of the Scripture, opened at Chapter 6 of the 1st Book of Kings, surrounded by symbols of the Craft.
 Plain, 1s. 6d.; richly coloured, 3s.

To be had wholesale and retail of STEVENS & RICHARDSON, Stationers and Steam Printers, 5, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

THE ENTR'ACTE,

A MUSICAL and THEATRICAL REVIEW,
 Price One Penny. Used as a programme at the principal London and Provincial Music Halls. The Entr'acte enjoys an extensive circulation, and gets into the hands of every theatrical and music-hall artiste. It contains a splendid cartoon every week. First rate medium for advertisers. Subscribers can be supplied by post at 1/8 per quarter. Published every Saturday at 3, Brydges St., Covent Garden, W.C.

THE LONDON MIRROR.

Published every Saturday; price 4d.
 The object of this journal is to set forth the claims of the many Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Prudential Institutions of the United Kingdom, and week by week to report their proceedings, whether as Meetings, Sermons, Anniversaries, or Elections, so as to present these National Institutions to the favour of the Public.
 Office, 59, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C.

"THE FREEMASON" OF ST. LOUIS'

—The Largest Masonic Monthly in the World. Published at St. Louis, Mo., by George Frank Gouley, Grand Secretary and Recorder of the four Grand Bodies of Missouri.
 The Freemason contains tidings from every quarter of the world, and will be found of great advantage to all Masons, especially those interested in American affairs. Terms $2 per annum, and to those who subscribe for the London Freemason the price will be $1.50 currency. Postage free.
 Subscriptions received at the Office of the London "Freemason," 198, Fleet-street.

HATS! HATS! HATS!

The best in London.
JACKSON, from Christy's, Practical Hatter, 3, Dove Court, Old Jewry, E.C., begs to return his best thanks for past favours and in soliciting future orders assures all who may favour him with their patronage that he can confidently guarantee all his goods to be of the best workmanship and material.
 Hats thoroughly done up, 6d.
 Mourning Hat Bands, 6d.

Mr. JAMES STEVENS,
 AUCTIONEER AND SURVEYOR,

House and Estate Agent, &c.,
 CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.
 Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duties. Agent to the Imperial Fire and Life Insurance Offices.

EPILEPSY OR FITS.

A SURE CURE for this distressing complaint is now made known in a Treatise (of 48 octavo pages) on Foreign and Native Herbal Preparations, published by PROF. O. PHELPS BROWN. The prescription was discovered by him in such a providential manner that he cannot conscientiously refuse to make it known, as it has cured everybody who has used it for Fits, never having failed in a single case. The ingredients may be obtained from any chemist. Sent free to any address on application to PROF. O. PHELPS BROWN, 2, King-Street, Covent-Garden, London.

TRUTH MUST PREVAIL.—Common Sense.

Lamps, Baths, Cutlery, Brushes, Fenders and Fire Irons, Electro-plate and Nickel-Silver Goods.

R. D. PARR,

General House Furnishing Ironmonger,
 42, BLACKMAN STREET, BOROUGH.
OFFERS nothing extraordinary, but REALLY Good Articles at fair and reasonable prices. He does not keep an "Immense Stock," but sufficiently large for any person to select from. He does not sell "cheaper than every other house in the Trade," but quite as cheap as any.
 A visit will, at all times, be very much appreciated.

EVANS, SON, and COMPANY respectfully announce that in consequence of the sole surviving partner retiring from the business, the WHOLE of the EXTENSIVE STOCK of STOVES, KITCHEN RANGES, FURNISHING IRONMONGERY, &c., must be cleared forthwith, as the entire PREMISES are let, and immediate possession must be given. From this date all GOODS sold must be paid for at the time of purchase.
 No. 16, Arthur-street is let to the London and South Western Railway Company. The ground floor, basement floor, and sub-basement of 34, King William-street, are let to Messrs. Fairbanks & Co., of the Broadway, New York. The four upper floors of No. 34, King William-street, are let to Messrs. J. G. Rollins & Co., of Old Swan Wharf; and the whole of the house, No. 33, King William-street, is let to Messrs. J. G. Rollins & Co., as above.

BRIDGE HOUSE HOTEL,
 LONDON BRIDGE,

Opposite the South Eastern, and London, Brighton, and South Coast Railways.

THIS Hotel has great facilities for Meetings, Charitable Institutions, Wedding Breakfasts, Public Dinners, Balls, Soirees, and is allowed to be in real domestic comfort, one of the Best in the Metropolis, the tariff on application to
JOSEPH H. SPENCER.

City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street,
 LONDON.

WELL adapted for Banquets, Balls, Amateur Dramatic Entertainments, Public Meetings, and Arbitrations. The large Hall is capable of seating upwards of Twelve Hundred people.
SYDNEY SPENCER, Manager.

Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st., E.C.

SPACIOUS Dining-rooms, Chop and Steak-rooms, Luncheon-bars, and Smoking Rooms. Rooms of all sizes, suitable for Auction Sales, Consultations, Arbitrations, Building Societies, &c.; also for Freemasons' Lodges and Banquets, Private Dinners, &c.
 Guildhall Tavern Company (Limited), 32 and 33, Gresham-street,
GEORGE CRAWFORD, Manager and Secretary.

Masons' Hall Tavern,
 MASONS' AVENUE, BASINGHALL-STREET, CITY.

THE above old-established Tavern is NOW OPEN, newly decorated, by Bro. CHARLES GOSDEN, late Manager of the Freemasons' Tavern Company. Every accommodation will be found for Lodges, Chapters, Mark and other degrees, for their Meetings, Dinners, Suppers, &c., and every attention will be paid to their comfort and enjoyment by the new Proprietor.

The Alexandra Restaurant,
 7, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET.

Public and Private Dining Rooms
 First-class Cooking and Wines.
 Open for Suppers after the Theatres.
Bro. F. HILFREICH, Proprietor.

NOW READY.

Vol. IV. of THE FREEMASON, from January to December, 1871. Bound in cloth, with richly embossed device on cover.

Price 15 shillings.

The above forms a first-class reference and chronology of the leading events in Masonry during the past year.
OFFICE: 198, Fleet-street.

"THE FREEMASON"

Supplied by
T. DRISCOLL, Wholesale Newsagent, 87, Farringdon-st., E.C.
 South London Branch, 416, Wandsworth-road, S.W., eight doors from the London Chatham and Dover Railway Station.
 Wholesale Publisher to the Trade.

DUBLIN.

Bro. CHARLES HEDGELONG,
 NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKSELLER,
 26, GRAFTON STREET, DUBLIN.
 AGENT FOR "THE FREEMASON."

SWANSEA

Agent for the Freemason.
BRO. CHAS. MAGGS, 25, George-st., Swansea,

A large stock of Aprons, Jewels, Clothing, and every requisite for all Degrees of Freemasonry.
 Agent for Kenning's Masonic Note Paper, Envelopes, Books, Candles, Perfumes, &c.
 Advertisements received for "The Freemason."

CITY.

POTTLE & SON, 14 and 15, Royal Exchange,
 City Agents for
"THE FREEMASON"
 AND

"The Israelites found in the Anglo-Saxons,"
 just published, price 2s.6d.

 BRO. E. WATKINS,
BOTTLE MERCHANT,
 ETC.,
12, Jewry-st, Aldgate.

Wines housed and bottled. Wine Baskets on hire.
 Contracts made for any time or quantity.

BALL FAVOURS,
 NEWEST DESIGNS.

MASONIC DEPOTS 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
 BRANCHES: { 198, Fleet-street, London.
 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

Printed and Published by the Proprietor, Brother GEORGE KENNING, at his Offices, 198, Fleet-street, and 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, in the City of London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool, in the County of Lancaster.—SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1872.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Bro. Hughan's Old Charges 671
 Prov. Grand Mark Lodge for Kent 672
 History of Britannic Lodge 672
 Knight Templar Excursion to Europe..... 673
 Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania 674
 Madras Masonic Orphan Fund..... 674
 Laying the Foundation Stone of a new Church at Pontefract 674
 Secretaryship of the Girls' School 676
 The Escorial 676
 CRAFT MASONRY :—
 Metropolitan 678
 Provincial 678
 Gibraltar 678
 ROYAL ARCH :—
 Prov. G. Chapter of Cheshire 678
 Gibraltar 678
 MARK MASONRY :—
 Gibraltar 679
 KNIGHTS TEMPLAR :—
 Provincial 679
 District Grand Lodge of Trinidad 679
 Royal Masonic Institution for Girls 679
 Masonic Tidings 680
 Masonic Meetings for next week..... 681
 Advertisements..... 669, 670, 682 683, 684

BRO. HUGHAN'S "OLD CHARGES OF BRITISH FREEMASONS."

By Bro. JACOB NORTON (BOSTON U.S.).

To our German brethren, especially to Bro. Findel, we are mainly indebted for the first genuine effort to clear Masonic history from the mysticism and fables engrafted upon it, by Anderson, Preston, Ramsey, Oliver, &c. The next brother to whom the Craft is greatly indebted is our worthy brother, W. J. Hughan, whose publication of old MSS. cannot be over-estimated. True, the Dowland's, Cooke's, and Halliwell's MSS. had been printed long since, but so long as they formed mere isolated fragments, they suggested nothing of importance.

As an illustration, I must remind my readers that fossils were undoubtedly excavated hundreds, or may be, thousands of years ago. These were, doubtless, always admired as curiosities by the antiquarians, but as isolated specimens, produced no results. It was only after learned societies and museums were established, and large quantities of those "medals of creation" were collected and exhibited, that a new light began to dawn; then the scientist, for the first time, began to suspect a connection between those curious fragments; and by arranging them in due order, he was enabled to reveal to our view forms of the vegetable and animal kingdoms, which have disappeared from the earth's surface many, very many ages past. Our Bro. Hughan's publication of the old charges, or MSS., rendered the same service to Masonic history which museums have done to geological science. Halliwell's and Cooke's MSS. possess now a value in my estimation, which they could not have possessed so long as they remained buried in their places of deposit. The Halliwell and Cooke MSS. are now no longer isolated, meaningless curiosities, but are seen to be parts of a great whole. By arranging all the known MSS. in due order, we get, for the first time, an insight into the origin of nearly all the fables, handed down to our time by the operative Masons of old. And we can also perceive whence the materials were derived, which Anderson wove and diffused into his "History of Freemasonry."

But however much we may deplore Anderson as an historian, we must not overlook his merit as a humanitarian. He found society divided into sects, nationalities, etc., in which each member was brought up to hate or despise all others who were not of his sect or nation. Anderson and his compeers took up the old Masonic society, and remodelled it into a system of what we know as "Speculative Masonry." His chief aim was, undoubtedly, that of uniting the good and true of all nations, sects, races, etc., into an universal brotherhood, and to afford all an opportunity of learning, by observation and experience, that morality and goodness are not the peculiar heritage of any sect, nation, or race. Fortunately, society was then, in a measure, ripe for the experiment, and Masonry soon spread far and wide over the habitable globe.

That modern Masonry did establish a better feeling in society cannot be doubted by any one, except the extreme bigot, but that it has not accomplished all the good that it might and ought to have done is equally certain. Its shortcomings I believe to be mainly due to the want of moral courage on the part of Anderson, and those associated with him, truckling too much to the prejudices of the time, flattering the ignorant with a history of his society, to which it had no pretension; and this, in its turn, gave rise to Charlatanism, which has ever formed the bane of Masonry. Thus, every mystic or human being, who possessed a smattering of learning, and who had read something about the Cheops, Palmyra, the Olympiads, &c., set himself up as a great Masonic light, and every dreamer, who became half crazed with pondering over Isaiah, Daniel, and the Apocalypse, endeavoured to make others equally crazy, by confounding Masonry with Sectarianism; filling the Masonic Press with ridiculous speculations about the "old dispensation," and "new dispensation;" and one of our Boston luminaries went even so far as to assert that the Sabbath was changed by the Apostles from the seventh to the first day in the week, in a Masonic lodge.

The phrase, "ancient landmarks," which Anderson retained or introduced into his constitution and ritual, gave rise to another class of charlatanism, equally mischievous, viz., "Masonic jurisprudence." Anderson himself was certainly the greatest innovator in the Masonic fraternity; he engrafted upon the Craft principles and ideas which would have thrown the authors of the Halliwell and Cooke MSS. into convulsions of rage. He modified the constitution, and his second constitution differs from the first. What those ancient landmarks were, Anderson either would not, or could not define. Here, however, it means this—that obsolete laws or customs, and every usage whose origin may be traced to no very remote period, must be retained, because the candidate at initiation is told "as he received it, so he must impart it." The result is that while all manner of absurd, mischievous practices were suffered to creep into our ceremonies with impunity, no one found fault with removing landmarks when charlatans undertook to deteriorate the work of the lodge; but if an effort is made now to bring Masonry into conformity with its professions, it is immediately encountered with the pompous phrase, "ancient landmarks." Take, for instance, the dedication of lodges. The pre-1717 rituals and MSS. are utterly silent about the Saints John. Anderson, who, as already said, truckled to the] prejudices of the age, dedicated lodges, first to one Saint John, and afterwards both Saints of that name; but he never claimed that the Saints John were Grand Masters, or even Masons.

The dreamer, Dunckerly, who was as ignorant of history and chronology as the author of Matthew Cooke's MSS., first introduced the symbol of "the parallel lines," with the Saint Johns' as "Masonic parallels." Having made the saints into Masonics, the next thing was the invention of the legend, how the Evangelist became G.M., when upwards of ninety years of age, all which tended more and more to a departure from the principles laid down in Anderson's first charge. In England, however, where the origin of all that nonsense was known and understood, the mode of dedication was, in 1814, made less objectionable than Anderson made it. On the other hand, in America, if I ask our charlatans (who generally rule our Grand Lodges), to imitate the example of the Grand Lodge of England, Charlatan, No. 1 immediately writes an article to prove that St. Alban held his Masonic assembly on St. John's Day. Charlatan No. 2 enlightens us with the information how the Druids, clothed in white aprons and gloves marched in public procession on St. John's Day. And Charlatan No. 3 gets up a learned oration on the antiquity of Masonry, showing that the Kabbalistic, Rosicrucians, Ruchlin, Cornelius Agrippa, the Knights Templar, Moisen Nacham, Albertus Magnus, St. Thomas Aquinas, Dante, and others, were all Masonised luminaries. The following is a fair specimen of his mode of reasoning, thus, Ashmole dabbled in alchemy, and he was a Freemason; Messrs. Lilly and Booker, both noted alchemists, were known to Ashmole. Here, then, is a link, and he reasons thus—if Ashmole, the Freemason, dabbled in alchemy, then Messrs. Lilly and Booker, the alchemists, must, in addition to alchemy, also have dabbled in Masonry. Besides which, did not alchemists and astrologers swear to keep their knowledge secret; and how could any one have got the idea of swearing to secrecy, without previous initiation into the three first degrees of Masonry? And, of course, Messrs. Lilly and Booker were also Masonised, and the Grand Lodge passed a vote of thanks to the learned lecturer, and recorded the lecture for the edification of future noodles. When I contemplate on the cartloads of similar trash which abound in our so-called Masonic literature, I feel inclined to exclaim—Oh Masonry! how many absurdities have been propagated in thy name!

Again, operatives, for obvious reasons, excluded the maimed from learning their trades. Anderson retained that law in the constitution, yet the Grand Lodge of England wisely expunged that law. Anderson also retained the law of "Freeborn," which the English Grand Lodge also very properly discarded in 1845. Here, however, in most of our Grand Lodges, "sound limb" is a sacred landmark, and a pious Grand Master went even so far as to disqualify a man from initiation because the said man had a defect in one of his eyes. True, he could see better with the other eye than the very Grand Master could with two eyes. True, that he was in every way, morally and socially, qualified, "But the Bible," said the Grand Master, "ordained that an animal with a blemish should not be brought as an offering to the Lord's altar;" therefore, the man with a blind eye must not be offered to the Lord at the Masonic altar. Now, if that is not superstition, I ask what is superstition?

(To be continued.)

INAUGURATION OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF KENT.

On Tuesday, the 22nd instant, the inauguration of the Provincial Grand Lodge for Kent took place at the Royal Hotel, Ramsgate, under the auspices of the Holmesdale Lodge, No. 129.

The M.W.G.M.M.M., the Rev. George Raymond Portal, M.A., was present on the occasion, and performed the ceremonies in the masterly manner for which he is justly celebrated. He was supported by a numerous company of Grand Officers, among whom were Bro. Colonel Burdett, the Prov. G.M. for Middlesex and Surrey; Bro. F. Davison, the D. Prov. G.M. for Middlesex and Surrey; Bro. Captain Burgess, G. Reg.; Bro. Neall, G.I. Works; Bro. Captain Barlow, P.J.G.W. Middlesex and Surrey; and Bro. James W. Smith, G. Steward.

A lodge of M.M.M. was opened at a little before five o'clock, p.m., by the officers of the Holmesdale Lodge, assisted by a goodly array of brethren from the United Lodge of Benevolence, No. 69, Chatham, and of the Dover and Cinque Ports Lodge, No. 152, Dover.

The M.W.G.M. was shortly afterwards announced, and entered the lodge, preceded by the Grand Officers. Bro. Lewis Finch, the W.M. immediately surrendered his gavel to the G.M., who took his seat on the throne, and was enthusiastically saluted with "Seven," in the manner peculiar to Mark Masons. He then very briefly stated the object of the meeting, and called on Bro. James W. Smith, the Acting Prov. G. Secretary, to explain what had been done in furtherance of the constitution of the Prov. G. Lodge.

Bro. Smith then stated that, in order to promote the interests of Mark Masonry in the Provinces, it had been desired that a Prov. G. Lodge should be constituted. The members of the Holmesdale Lodge and the Dover and Cinque Ports Lodge had thereupon conferred together, and presented to the M.W.G.M. a joint petition to that effect, and nominating Bro. the Rev. George W. Sicklemore, M.A., Vicar of St. Lawrence, Chaplain of the Holmesdale Lodge, for the office of Prov. G.M. It was explained that, at that time, it was supposed that it would not suit the convenience of the G.M. to constitute the P.G. Lodge, except on a very early date, and therefore the concurrence of the United Lodge of Benevolence could not be obtained soon enough for its members to join in the petition, though the co-operation of that lodge had since been given. Bro. Smith concluded by saying that the prayer of the petition having been granted, and Bro. Sicklemore appointed Prov. G.M., the brethren had then assembled in order that the act of constitution might be performed, and Bro. Sicklemore was present to receive the benefit of installation, having provided himself with officers, selected from the three lodges named, for the purpose of carrying on the duties of the Prov. G. Lodge during the ensuing twelve months.

The M.W.G.M. complimented Bro. Smith on the succinct account which he had given of the preliminary proceedings, and stated his intention to constitute a Grand Lodge for the Province of Kent, appointing, with feelings of great pleasure, Bro. Sicklemore to the office of Prov. G.M.

The Holmesdale Lodge was then declared closed, and the Provincial Grand Lodge opened.

An alarm being given, and it being declared that Bro. Sicklemore sought admission as R.W. Prov. G.M. designate, the Grand Registrar, by command of the Grand Master, read the patent of appointment. A deputation of five M.M.M.'s, accompanying the acting Prov. G.D.C., introduced Bro. Sicklemore.

The Grand Master then addressed him as to the duties of his high office, and administered to him to the O.B. of a faithful discharge of those duties, with Masonic allegiance to the Grand Mark Master of England.

The G.M. then placed the Prov. G.M. on the throne, declaring him duly installed, and he was saluted with "Five."

Psalm cxxxiii. was then sung as an anthem, and the Prov. Grand Master invested with the regalia of his office.

Bro. Lewis French, W.M. 129, well known as a most zealous Mason, was, by ballot, unanimously elected P.G. Treasurer.

Bro. George Meagre, 129, was unanimously elected Prov. G. Tyler.

The Prov. G.M. nominated, as his Deputy, Bro. Snowden, who was obligated, invested, and saluted with "Three."

The following brethren were then appointed Prov. Grand Officers, and invested by the R.W. Prov. G.M., viz. :—

R. Jones Emmerson, 129...	Prov. G. S. W.
Fairtlough, P.M. 152.....	Prov. G. J. W.
George Watson, 69.....	Prov. G. M. O.
D. L. Osment, W.M. 152...	Prov. G. S. O.
Henry Wootton, 129.....	Prov. G. J. O.
Lewis Finch, W.M. 129...	Prov. G. Treasurer.
Thomas A. Terson, 152.....	Prov. G. R. of M's.
James W. Smith, 129.....	Prov. G. Secretary.
Thomas S. Clarke, 129.....	Prov. G. Asst. Sec.
J. J. Darby, 129.....	Prov. G. S. D.
W. T. C. Harrison, 129.....	Prov. G. J. D.
W. Foster, 152.....	Prov. G. I. of Wks.
Edward T. Smith, 129.....	Prov. G. D. of C.
John Finch, 129.....	Prov. G. Asst. D.C.
George Page, 129.....	Prov. G. Swd. B.
James D. Terson, 152.....	Prov. G. Stand. B.
G. S. Iggesden, 152.....	Prov. G. Organist.
W. A. M. Valon, 129.....	Prov. G. Purst.

The Prov. G.M. stated that he had received a letter of apology from Lord Holmesdale, Past G.M.M.M., regretting his inability to be present, and letters to the like effect from Bro. Stevens, Past G. O., Prov. G. Mark Secretary for Middlesex and Surrey, and Bro. Osmond G. Phipps, were read.

The G.M.M. then gave a few useful hints with respect to future bye laws, especially suggesting that Provincial dues should be kept as low as possible, so as not to be burdensome. He thought that sixpence per annum from each member would be found sufficient for the few expenses of Prov. G. Lodge; but, if not, he would rather that the fees of honour than the dues should be increased.

The P.G.M. then proposed that a vote of thanks to the M.W.G.M., for his kind attendance of this occasion, should be recorded on the minutes, and it was carried by acclamation.

The Prov. G. Lodge was closed in due form.

The brethren then sat down to a most recherché banquet, served by Bro. Hiscocks, in the fine coffee room of the Royal Hotel. We need scarcely add that the whole of the arrangements in Bro. Hiscocks' department were perfect.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which prevail among Mark Masters, were drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Cozens, of the Macdonald Lodge, 104, presided at the piano, and sang several songs, in which his fine, well-cultivated tenor voice gave the greatest pleasure to the company. He was well assisted by some of the Prov. G. Officers, who are amateur vocalists.

The Mark Master Masons of Kent must congratulate themselves on the favourable inauguration of this Provincial Grand Lodge, and particularly on their good fortune in having obtained the services of two such zealous, influential, and highly esteemed Masons as Bro. the Rev. G. W. Sicklemore, and Bro. T. H. Grove Snowden, under whose rule, as R.W.P.G.M. and D.P.G.M., it may confidently be expected that Mark Masonry in Kent will make still more rapid progress than that which has been recently observed in the Province.

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE BRITANNIC LODGE, No. 33.

Owing to what we conceive to be a mistaken notion, the history of our ancient lodges are generally printed for private circulation only, because it is considered that they concern the members alone, and that the fraternity in general do not care to read them? It is our firm conviction that the real history of our society is to be found in the lodge records, and therefore, the more widely we circulate authenticated extracts from these valuable books, the better for the Masonic student of every country, and the more likely that ultimately a really accurate and complete history of Freemasonry in this country will be written by one or more competent brethren. It is idle to theorise when the facts lie around us, in many cases unheeded, and in every instance, certainly never examined with the care and attention they deserve at the hands of the Craft. We predict a new career for our Order, now that these records are being exhumed and published, and ere long we hope to have the satisfaction of reviewing many more sketches similar to the one whose title is given above. Our Scottish brethren are alive to the value of such documents, and in a week or two we shall be able to inform our readers of a grand work, illustrative of the history of the "Lodge of Edinburgh" from the sixteenth century to the present time. Let us not be behind in such a labour of love, but at once seek to make known all facts of interest connected with the progress of Freemasonry in England for the last three centuries.

In The Freemason for October 12th will be found an appreciative notice of Bro. Brackstone Baker's sketch of the "Emulation Lodge," No. 21, London. In this number we intend to refer to one which, though but a few pages in extent, is, to say the least, an excellent little book of reference, and, as far as possible, a correct account of the famous Britannic Lodge. It is written by Bro. Francis Webb Shields, P.M., whose name is a sufficient guarantee of its worth and readable character. Bro. Shields was the W.M. in 1870, when the centenary celebration was held, and the history now under review was read in the course of the ceremony to a large and delighted audience of some hundred members and visitors, including several officers of the Grand Lodge.

The Britannic Lodge was constituted by warrant dated July 17th, 1730, His Grace the Duke of Norfolk being then Grand Master. The original charter is unfortunately lost, as also its minutes, prior to the year 1833. The comparatively scanty materials thus available necessarily render its history somewhat meagre, and but but for the high position held by the lodge, little information could possibly have been obtained respecting it beyond the mere fact of its existence.

Its records then do not supply the proof of its uninterrupted existence for the period of one hundred years, which is the necessary condition of obtaining the right to wear the centenary jewel; but from other sources this sine qua non for a centenary lodge is to be found in profusion.

No calendar or list of lodges in England (moderns) from the year of its institution to the present time can be produced, wherein the Britannic Lodge is not to be seen either, by name or the house in which the meetings were held. Bro. Shields states that the number was 75 in the English list, and that it is alluded to in the minutes of the Grand Lodge of August 28th, 1730. The names of its first members, 62 in number, are also preserved in the regular official register. In 1740 we are informed it became No. 62, in 1756, No. 37, and in 1770, No. 33, soon after which latter date it was known by its present name.

On reference to the constitutions of A.D. 1738, we find that the lodge was chronicled as No. 46, and in a printed list of A.D. 1774, the number was altered to 25. We cannot explain why the numbers given by our esteemed Bro. Shields are lower than those we mention, but of course the matter of a number is not of much moment, only that it is as well to make sure of the right one, because often a lodge can be traced by such means. The Britannic Lodge is the only one now in existence in London of the many granted from 1728 to 1733 (inclusive), and at the "Union of 1813" there were two others warranted, during the same year as the Britannic, for London, which have since become extinct. To be the only representative left in London of lodges warranted from 1728 to 1733, is an evidence not only of the changes effected in a century, but also of the vitality of the lodge itself, and a proof of the thorough Masonic zeal of its numerous and influential members.

The Britannic Lodge was honourably distinguished by its large contributions to the "Masonic Hall Fund," as well as for its aid to the Masonic charities. No less than £450 was devoted to the former object by the members up to 1813, and it was one of four lodges which were the first in Grand Lodge to contribute to the "Hall Loan Fund," A.D. 1783, as also one of five lodges which were the first to resign their claim to the repayment thereof, A.D. 1787. For so generous a present, the lodge received a jewel which is appended to the Master's collar, and is thus inscribed—"Grand Lodge of Freemasons of England to the Britannic Lodge, in grateful testimony of a liberal subscription towards completing their Hall." The Emulation, No. 21, enjoy a like distinction, and we suppose others.

The lodge removed to the "Star and Garter," Pall Mall, in 1784, as No. 29, at which house a meeting of the Grand Lodge is recorded to have been held shortly afterwards, for the initiation of H.R.H. George, Prince of Wales, who became Grand Master, A.D. 1792. This lodge is unique as respects its connection with royalty, for it is the only one which has had the honour of imparting the "Light" to two members of the Royal Family.

On November 21st, 1787, H.R.H. the Duke of York was initiated, and on the 12th May, 1795, H.R.H. Prince William of Gloucester (afterwards Duke of Gloucester), was admitted under the Presidentship of the Earl of Moira, afterwards Marquis of Hastings. These two auspicious events are duly recorded in the books of the Grand Lodge, and it was resolved unanimously that, "In testimony of the high sense the Grand Lodge entertains of the great honour conferred on the society by such initiations, their Royal Highnesses be presented with aprons, lined with blue silk, and in all future processions do rank as Past Grand Masters." It will be remembered that a similar distinction was conferred on H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., a few years ago.

At the Blessed Union of A.D. 1813, the lodge became, by the alteration in numbers 42, in 1832, No. 38, and in 1863 No. 33, as it now stands.

In 1840, on representing that its original warrant was lost, it received a warrant of confirmation from the M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, duly authorising its continuance.

We need not record its several removals, for, like all old lodges, its meetings were held but a few years in one place, until at last, in 1868, it found a "resting place" at the Freemasons' Hall. Neither need we chronicle the distinguished list of members, composed of H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, Grand Master, and a most brilliant assemblage of learned and noble Freemasons, because these are well known to London Masons, as also, in an especial manner, to the readers of Masonic literature for the last fifty years.

We conclude the rapid sketch of this lodge with the valedictory of Bro. Shields, simply adding that we are indebted to the present W.M. of the lodge (our respected Bro. Magnus Ohren) for the copy of the history, and we shall be glad to acknowledge a like favour from other brethren who are in possession of similar interesting accounts of old lodges.

In 1855, the lodge received a considerable accession of members, chiefly belonging to the railway world, of whom many have since filled its chair. Since that time a large proportion of its members have been connected with railway, engineering, scientific, or other kindred pursuits.

The lodge at present contains one hundred and twenty-one subscribing, and three honorary members, a larger number, it is believed, than at any previous period of its existence.

It is hoped that this history may be acceptable to the brethren. It proves, at least, that the Britannic Lodge has not failed hitherto, in the discharge of its duty, and in its devotion to the cause of Freemasonry. May the Great Architect of the Universe enable it to maintain, through the coming century, the position of eminence and career of usefulness which it has held in the Craft during the last.

EXCURSION OF AMERICAN KNIGHTS TEMPLAR TO EUROPE.

The Sir Knights of Cyrene Commandery, of Columbia, Pennsylvania, are organising another excursion to Europe. We have received a circular, from which we extract the following particulars. The Committee have made arrangements with Messrs. Cook and Son, of London, through their American firm, Cook, Son, and Jenkins.

The tour proposed will be from New York across the Atlantic, landing at Cork. From there by rail to Macroom, thence in jaunting cars to Glengarriff, Kenmare, and Killarney, passing through the loveliest portion of the County Kerry. At Killarney a stop of two or three days will be made to view the famous lake and mountain scenery. From thence cars will be taken to Dublin, Balbriggan, Drogheda, Dundalk, Enniskillen, Omagh, Londonderry and Portrush, where a trip will be made to the Giant's Causeway—the wonder of the world, returning to the handsome city of Belfast. From Belfast across the Irish Channel to Greenock, the great shipbuilding city of the Clyde, then on to Glasgow by rail. From Glasgow through Loch-Katrine, Loch-Lomond, and the Trossachs, to Stirling, a place of great antiquity, famous for its old castle; passing through the handsomest part of the Scottish Highlands, and the scenes of the renowned Rob Roy's exploits. From Stirling to Edinburgh, one of the handsomest cities in Europe. Leaving Edinburgh, the route will be to London, stopping at Melrose to have a look at its grand ruined Abbey, and to pay a visit to the old home of Sir Walter Scott, at Abbotsford; and on via Leeds, Sheffield, and Derby, viewing by the way the famous Peak district of Derbyshire, Staffordshire and Nottingham—the finest and most romantic scenery in old England. After some days stay in London, the Sir Knights will proceed to Harwich; thence across the Channel, and up the river Scheldt, to Antwerp, that renowned Dutch City. From Antwerp, through Belgium, to Brussels, where a visit will be paid to the battle-field of Waterloo; then to Cologne, Prussia, passing through Liege, Verviers, and Aix-la-Chapelle. Then up the river Rhine to Mayence, passing Bonn, Ahrweiler, Linz, Coblenz, with its immense fortifications, Johannisberg, famed for fine wines, the residence of the Crown Prince of Prussia, and having a splendid view of its picturesque scenery. From Mayence, to Frankfort-on-the-Maine, then to Leipzig, Berlin, and Dresden, on to Prague and Vienna, where a few days will be spent at the Great International Exhibition; from Vienna into Bavaria, visiting Munich, then on to Innsbruck, over the snow-clad Alps, by the celebrated Brenner Pass, to Verona in Italy; leaving Verona a few days will then be spent at Venice. From Venice to Milan, then to Turin, and under the Alps by Mount Cenis Tunnel, to Chambery, Culoz, and on to Geneva, Lausanne, and Berne; thence by lake and rail to Interlaken; Interlaken to Giesbach, with its illuminated waterfalls, and across the lake to Breinz, over the Brunig Pass, for Alpnach and Lucerne

After a short stay at Lucerne, the ascent of the Rhigi will be made, some seven thousand feet, by one of the most wonderful inclined railways in the world, for a night's sleep among the clouds; descending to Lucerne and Bale; then passing over some of the late famous battlefields, to Paris, for a week's stop at the Grand Hotel. Leave Paris for London via Rouen and Dieppe. From London to Liverpool, stopping at Haddon Hall, one of the oldest castles in England, and at Chatsworth, the Palace of the Duke of Devonshire, and grandest in all Great Britain; then to Manchester and Liverpool, where steamship will be taken for New York.

The only feature in the last Templar excursion that detracted from its pleasure was the absence of ladies. It is therefore proposed to admit ladies as members of this excursion, and any who wish to take their wives or daughters are at perfect liberty to do so.

The Committee do not wish the impression to go abroad that Cyrene Commandery goes on this excursion for the purpose of exhibiting to the world its drill, uniforms, and fine banners. When in the Old World, they expect to visit, to meet with, and to mingle among their Masonic brethren of all degrees. Under these circumstances, they are not selfish enough to confine its pleasures exclusively to Templars. They extend a free and hearty invitation to any member of the Masonic fraternity to accompany them, that being the only passport required, and a sufficient guarantee to the committee that its applicants are gentlemen.

All letters in relation to the excursion are to be addressed to A. M. Rambo, Courant office, Columbia, Pa. U.S.

GRAND COMMANDERY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

We have before us the "Proceedings" of 1872 of the Grand Commandery for the State of Pennsylvania, of which R.E. Sir Knight C. E. Howel is Grand Commander, and E. Sir C. E. Mayer, the Grand Recorder. We unhesitatingly pronounce it to be one of the best accounts of the progress of the Order we have ever had the pleasure of reading. Such a work, in the hands of an intelligent Knight, cannot fail to be exceedingly useful, and of itself is sufficient to afford even a foreign member quite an accurate and most interesting history of that flourishing Order of Masonic Knighthood in the "Keystone State."

The minutes of the nineteenth annual Conclave of Pennsylvania, held at Reading, June 11, 12 and 13, 1872, were written by the Grand Recorder, Sir Charles Eugene Mayer, than whom a more painstaking and enthusiastic Mason could not be found. Our brother is also Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, and is officially connected with several other Masonic bodies, and yet everything is done well, in order, and even fuller in detail than could reasonably be expected.

We should think that the prefix Sir Knight, adopted in this country, is dropped for that of Sir, which is certainly correct, as Sir Knight is an absurd title. "Sir W. S. Gardner, Knight," is all very well; but "Sir Knight W. Tinkler" is decidedly wrong, for there is not any evidence that we know of for such a prefix in the annals of knighthood.

Sir Grant Weidman presented the report on behalf of the Committee of Correspondence, which embraced the proceedings of twenty-two States or Commanderies. The report is worth a careful perusal, and the compilers, as they state, "in the path of duty plunged boldly into stream, and proceeded at once to gather the floating gems which have come down to them." As they also felicitously observe they have done this without following the example of the Mutual Admiration Society, or as outsiders term them, the "Mutuals."

The Constitutions of the Grand Encampment of the United States are appended to the "Proceedings," likewise that of the Grand Commandery in question, and various ceremonies and charges of constituting and dedicating a Commandery. Altogether it is a most excellent publication.

MADRAS MASONIC ORPHAN FUND.

Projected by R.W. Bro. Col. A. J. Greenaw, Hon. P.S.G.W. of England, P.D.S.G.W. Madras, P.P.G.D. Devon, &c., &c.

RULES.

1. That there being a general wish that the Masons of India should come prominently forward in the work of charity, it is proposed that a Fund be formed in the Masonic Province of Madras, specially for the support and education of the orphans of Masons, and for the education of the children of distressed Masons, to be styled

"THE MADRAS MASONIC ORPHAN FUND."

2. That this Fund be kept separate and distinct from all other funds or charities.

3. That its administration be conducted by a Board of Trustees, the R.W. Provincial Grand Master as President, the R.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master as Vice-President, and the Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of Lodges in the Province as members.

4. That the Governor of Madras be requested to become Patron of the Institution, and should he decline, the request to be made to the Lord Bishop.

5. That the sums received go to placing the children as wards at such schools as the Trustees may select, in communication with the relatives and guardians of the children, and in accordance with their religious opinions.

6. That the following subscriptions and payments be fixed on:—

For every Initiation.....	Rs.	2
" Joining	"	1
" Passing	"	1
" Raising.....	"	3
" Installation of Master ..	"	10
" Appointment of Wden ..	"	5
" Member monthly.....	"	1
" Lodge annually, if able ..	"	50

Collection—St. John's Day.
It is also proposed that each Mark Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter, and Templar's Encampment should contribute, say as follows:—

Mark Lodge.
For every Advancement.....	Rs.	1
For each Joining	"	1
" Installation of W.M.	"	5
" Appointment of Warden ..	"	2
" " of M. Overacer ..	"	2
Each Lodge, yearly, as able.
Royal Arch Chapter.
For each Exaltation	Rs.	2
" Joining	"	2
" Installation of Principals ..	"	10
K. T. Encampment.
Each Installation of Comp.	Rs.	2
" Joining	"	1
" Installation of E. C.	"	10
" Appointment of Captain ...	"	5

and one rupee monthly for every member of a degree that does not contribute the rupee in some lodge or degree in the Province.

7. That if this Fund be established, the detail be left to the Trustees, subject to the approval of the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, in open P.G. Lodge.

8. That vacancies be filled up by orphans, and if there are no claimants, the children of distressed Masons to be elected.

9. That the above be submitted to each Lodge (with the permission of the R.W.P.G. Master) for the opinions and suggestions of each, and with the request that if they agree to the payments to state their concurrence, that the same may be embodied in the Provincial Grand Lodge by laws, so that if once established, the good work may not fall to the ground for want of funds.

10. That the accounts of the fund and the report of the progress of the wards be published in the proceedings of the P. G. Lodge annually.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and waxes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs Gabriel's Coralline Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice, sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box, completely destroy and remove these animalcules and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 54, Ludgate Hill, and 50, Harley Street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practice their unique system of painless dentistry.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A NEW CHURCH AT PONTEFRACT.

On Wednesday, the 23rd ult., the foundation stone of a new church at East Hardwick, near Pontefract, was laid by the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, the Marquess of Ripon, in his capacity of Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire.

His Lordship was assisted in the ceremony by Deputy Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire, the W. Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.L., P.G.D. of England, and the officers and brethren of the Order, dressed in Masonic costume, and accompanied by their banners and regalia. The church has been designed by Mr. J. A. Davies, of Leeds. It will be cruciform in shape, and have regular transepts. In it there will be accommodation for about 230 worshippers, and the total cost, it is estimated, will be about £2100. Towards this sum about £1700 has already been obtained, between £500 and £600 having been raised last October, by means of a bazaar, and £163 having been granted by the Diocesan Church Building Society, in addition to which several handsome subscriptions have been given by the leading residents in Pontefract and the district. The proceedings in connection with the ceremony commenced at Pontefract in the morning, when a Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Town Hall. This was attended by members of the order from Wakefield, Halifax, Huddersfield, Bradford, Holmfirth, Heckmondwike, Dewsbury, Doncaster, Goole, Leeds, and other places. The officers of the St. Oswald Lodge, No. 910, Pontefract, opened the lodge in the three degrees, and at noon the R.W.P.G.M., the W. Deputy Prov. G.M., and the Provincial Grand Officers entered. Immediately after closing the Provincial Grand Lodge, the brethren, of whom there was a very large attendance, formed in front of the Town Hall, and marched to the end of Ropergate, and thence they went in conveyances to East Hardwick. The unusual procession was the cause of much interest amongst the residents in the ancient borough, and there was a large gathering in the streets to witness the assembly and departure of the members of the Craft. The two miles lying between Pontefract and East Hardwick having been traversed, the members of the Order left the conveyances and walked in procession to the site of the new church, accompanied by the clergy and residents of the neighbourhood. For the accommodation of the spectators, the number of whom were large, a temporary gallery had been erected, and this was occupied for the most part by ladies. For this Masonic ceremony there was a special musical programme, the pieces composing which had been extracted from the "Freemasons' Liber Musicus," edited by Bro. Dr. William Spark, of Leeds; and under that gentleman's direction, the vocal music was contributed by an efficient choir, including Mr Archibald Ramsden, Mr. Dodds, and others, of Leeds, and the members of the choir of East Hardwick Church. The Marquess of Ripon and the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge having taken their places at the site of the church, the choir sang "All people that on earth do dwell," after which Lord Houghton, addressing the Marquess of Ripon, said, in the name of the parish and of the neighbourhood, he had to request his lordship to do them honour by laying the first stone of that church. (Hear, hear.)

The Marquess of Ripon said it was with great pleasure that, on behalf of the brethren and members of the Provincial Grand Lodge in this province, he undertook the duty he was asked to perform. (Cheers.)

The Mayor of Pontefract (Bro. Richard Moxon) presented the Marquess of Ripon with a mallet for the purpose of the ceremony.

Mr. E. Lord (W.M. of the St. Oswald's Lodge) next presented to his lordship a silver trowel, bearing a suitable inscription. He said the occasion was one of great moment to the interests of this village, inaugurating, as they hoped and believed, a new state of things greatly superior to those of the past. That auspicious day had been eagerly looked forward to for many years past. For seven long years have they worked and waited for this Rachael of their desires, and well they might rejoice to see their hopes and purposes so nearly accomplished. No small labour has been incurred to bring the work to its present stage. They had stimulated one another to exertion, and the repeated efforts they had made, and the kind encouragement they had so amply received, had kept them warm in the work. Their earliest aspirations were limited to an enlargement of the very plain building across the way; but the work had grown on their hands, and now they begged his lordship to lay the foundation stone of a new church that is to be the centre of a new ecclesiastical district, with all the advantages, spiritual and temporal, of a village church and burial ground. The ground on which they stood will prove the richest garden of blessings to many generations in this village. Recent events have already given some of them an inalienable freehold in the soil. Five weeks ago an interment took place here, the first on record in licenced ground at East Hardwick. In that event was laid a foundation that made that ground a hallowed spot,

A spot on earth supremely blest;
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest.

The affectionate interest that they had hitherto felt in this church and churchyard had been deepened by that event. The few drops from their hearts, laid deep down with the beloved child, had bound them indissolubly to it, and their right hands might sooner forget their cunning than their hearts forget this sacred ground. He had extreme pleasure in presenting the trowel to his lordship, on behalf of his (Mr. Lord's) dear wife, as a further proof of her efforts to promote the work. He had the honour, in the name of the committee, through whose untiring energy the work had been brought to its present state, and of the St. Oswald Lodge, of which he had the honour to be W.M., to request his lordship to lay the foundation of the Church of St. Stephen. Might the superstructure to be raised on that stone be perfect in all its parts, and honourable to the builders! Might the symbol on which it was built—the symbol of our holy faith—ever preserve it from desecration! They trusted that all who would wish to convert that sacred house of God into a building for secular purposes might be frustrated in their impious designs, and brought to a better state of mind. (Hear, hear.) There they trusted the pure Word of God might be ever preached, and the sacraments rightly and duly administered; that that sacred temple might be the spiritual birthplace of thousands yet unborn. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Davies then handed to the G. Master a set of the plans of the proposed church, and begged his acceptance of them. He afterwards presented a similar set to Mr. Bentley Shaw.

The choir having sung the ode "Round the Spot," composed by Dr. Spark,

The Rev. J. Oddy (Provincial Grand Chaplain) offered prayer.

The upper stone had, previous to this, been raised, and in the cavity of the lower stone was now deposited a bottle containing papers and documents, and over it was placed a brass plate on which was an inscription setting forth the name of the church, the date of its commencement, and other particulars connected with the ceremony. The upper stone was then lowered and laid in the customary manner, after which the Marquess of Ripon sprinkled upon it, from a cornucopia, a quantity of corn, as an emblem of plenty; from an ewer he poured wine, as an emblem of joy; and from another ewer, oil, as an emblem of harmony.

The Rev. Dr. Bisset, vicar of Pontefract, and the Rev. Lumley Cator, incumbent of East Hardwick, next offered prayer, after which the P.G. Master inspected the plans of the intended building, delivered the same to the architect, and desired him to proceed without loss of time to the completion of the work in conformity with the plan, and then addressed the assemblage.

The Marquess of Ripon said it now became his pleasing duty to offer to those present his hearty congratulations upon the success of the completion of the work which had brought them together. (Hear, hear.) He was sure they would agree with him that it was a subject for congratulation to the inhabitants of that neighbourhood and to all who felt an interest in the welfare of that work, which, as he understood, had been so long in contemplation, and at length had been brought to the period of its actual commencement. It was a work of the highest and noblest description to raise a new church for the sacred worship of Almighty God, and to substitute for a building, which he understood to be now ruinous, and, if report spoke truly, an odious structure, one which in its outward appearance would be more worthy of the sacred object to which it was in the future to be dedicated. (Hear, hear.) We need not dilate upon the advantages which would follow, as they all humbly trusted, under the blessing of God, to that neighbourhood from the completion of the work; but they would perhaps allow him to detain them for a moment, in order that he might express on his own behalf, and on that he was confident he might say, of all the brethren of West Yorkshire who surrounded him—(hear, hear)—the great satisfaction which they felt in being permitted to take part on that most interesting occasion. (Hear, hear.) It was true, doubtless, as most of them were aware, that in Freemasonry they did not make any inquiry of those whom they admitted to their Order as to the religious opinion which they might entertain, but people greatly erred, if any such there were, who thought that this rule of that ancient world-wide Craft arose from any indifference upon religious subjects. (Hear, hear.) They knew well that the principles of their Order, high and noble as they believed them to be, could only be fully carried out by those who were aided by a higher motive than any human institution could supply, by those who looked upward from this earth and its mortal fraternities to the heaven which was above them all. The principles of their Order were those which he was proud to say most commended themselves to everyone who believed the Christian faith, and for himself he could not doubt that those principles could only be fully applied by those who had the great blessing of Christian privileges. Although all religious differences were banished from the lodges of Freemasons, they felt themselves fully free to come forward upon an occasion of that kind to aid in a work which they knew was calculated to confer the highest blessings, spiritual and temporal, upon those in that neighbourhood for whose benefit the new church was designed. Therefore it was that they rejoiced to come to the ancient town of Pontefract, where their ancient Craft numbered so many members, and was held, as he ventured to believe, in general respect, for a work which must command the sympathies of all, whether Masons or not, would, he trusted, prove to those who were not Masons the soundness of their principles and the real character of their Order. (Cheers.)

Another ode, composed by Dr. Spark, "Great Architect of Earth and Heaven," was sung by the choir, and the ceremony was brought to a close by the Rev. Wm. Barton pronouncing the benediction.

Before the spectators dispersed cheers were given for the Marquess and the Marchioness of Ripon.

A banquet (the purveyor of which was Mr. C. Furze, of Leeds) was afterwards held in a temporary, but substantially-erected building near the site of the new church, and it was attended by the majority of the ladies and gentlemen present at the stone laying, including the Marquess of Ripon, Lord Houghton, the Right Hon. H. C. E. Childers, M.P., Major Waterhouse, M.P., the Mayor of Pontefract, the Hon. and Rev. P. Yorke Savile, the Rev. Sir Thomas Bloomfield, Bart., the Rev. Dr. Bisset, the Rev. L. Cator, the Rev. W. Barton, Mr. Bentley Shaw, Mr. T. W. Tew, Mr. L. R. Starkey, Mr. E. Lord, Dr. Spark, Mr. C. Grabham, M.D., Mr. S. Freeman, Mr. E. Freeman. In the intervals between the toasts the choir sang part songs and glees, and several solos were also given. After the usual loyal toasts had been given from the chair (which was filled by the Marquess of Ripon), and warmly acknowledged,

Mr. Bentley Shaw proposed, in very complimentary terms, "The M.W.G.M. of England and P.G.M. of West Yorkshire, the Right Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, and the rest of the Grand Officers." (Cheers.)

The Marquis of Ripon, responding, again expressed the pleasure it had been to the officers and members of the order to attend and take part in the proceedings of the day. From what he had since heard he was afraid he had spoken in somewhat disparaging terms of the existing church at East Hardwick, but he wished it to be understood that he had no intention of casting the slightest discredit upon the benefactor of that district—Mr. Cawood—who erected the old church in times when the Church of England was in a state of great depression, and when architectural taste in England was at a very low ebb. In these days we had learnt to believe that it was our duty when we built churches for the worship of God, to make them as beautiful as we could; that it was our duty to give our best to God; and that there was no nobler use to which the means at our disposal could be put than the service of the Church. (Hear, hear.) They must ever feel grateful for the benefaction, and it was to the credit of the present time and that neighbourhood that, acting in the spirit which had distinguished their patriotic benefactor, the people had come forward to second his work and improve upon it by raising, as he trusted there would be raised before long in that neighbourhood, a really beautiful church suited to the requirements of the district. (Cheers.)

The Mayor of Pontefract proposed "The D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire, Bro. Bentley Shaw, and the rest of the P.G. Officers."

Mr. Bentley Shaw replied.

Mr. Childers, M.P., proposing "The Archbishop and Clergy of the District," referred to the suspicion with which secret societies were regarded some parts of Europe, and to the manner in which the society of Masons, whose purpose was beneficent, had been confounded with secret societies, whose objects were very different. This feeling had extended in countries on the continent to the Church, but fortunately in England no such antagonism existed. Here the Masons recognised the great truth of the Divine saying, "Except the Lord build the house, he labours in vain who builds it"—(hear, hear)—and the Church recognised them as a part of that great people to whom the message was given of "peace on earth and goodwill to men." (Hear, hear.) While, as their Grand Master had already said, on laying the stone, they were anxious to be free from all those discussions which had so much divided Christendom, they were at the same time most happy, in this country, especially, to connect themselves and their objects with the Church, which was so ready to connect herself with them. (Hear, hear.) In asking them to drink the toast, he asked to be allowed to connect with it the name of Dr. Bisset, to whom the district was indebted for the manner in which he had promoted the arrangements for the new church. (Cheers.)

The Rev. Dr. Bisset responded. This, he said was an age of progress. Their own church was undoubtedly making great progress among the people—(hear, hear)—but it would be very unbecoming of him if he did not acknowledge the great zeal that was now manifested by other denominations of Christians. (Hear, hear.) He spoke of the interest that was now taken in the question of lay co-operation, and said that for the building of the new church they were mainly indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Slack, and Mr. Tew. (Cheers.)

Lord Houghton proposed "The Cawood Trustees and the Building Committee of St. Stephen's Church"—(cheers)—and in doing so he expressed his gratitude to his noble friend (the Marquess of Ripon) for coming amongst them on that occasion. His lordship was the eighth or ninth subject of the realm, and he was the president of a Cabinet Council which had the government of the British Monarchical Republic. (Laughter.) His name had lately been identified with one of the greatest events in the history of the world—the arbitration between England and America—which had settled by the skill of statesmanship that which at other times had been only settled by misery and war, and with that arbitration his name would go down to posterity irrevocably associated. (Loud cheers.)

The remaining toasts on the list having been duly honoured, the proceedings were brought to a close.

"After suffering many years from indigestion and biliousness, for which I could find no remedy, I was at length induced by a friend to try your Vegetable Pain Killer for it, and the first bottle I used of it gave me entire and permanent relief."—J. L. HARRISON, Manchester, July 15, 1867.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

A DEACON.—A brother having only served the office of Warden ten months is not eligible for election as W.M.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday evening, November 2, and during the week (Wednesday excepted), THE DUKE'S DAUGHTER. Le-gardiere, Mr. J. H. Allen; Duke de Gonzague, Mr. Power; Duke De Nevers, Mr. W. Lacy; Regent, Mr. Wilson; Co-cadasse, Mr. Shepherd; Passepoil, Mr. Hudspeth; Peyndes, Mr. Dudley; Blanche De Nevers, Miss M. Cooper; Blanche De Caylus, Mrs. Stephenson; Papity, Miss Hastings. After which, the CORSICAN BROTHERS. Fabian and Louis, Mr. C. T. Burleigh; Chateau Renaud, Mr. Shepherd; Montgiron, Mr. Power; Alfred Maynard, Mr. Lacy; Martelli, Mr. H. Dudley; Orlando, Mr. Bousfield; Colonna, Mr. J. Hudspeth; Emilie De Lesparre, Miss M. Cooper; Madame De Franchi, Mrs. Stephenson; Estelle, Miss Bramah; Celeste, Miss Hastings; Corille, Miss Hayes. During which, a Ballet Divertissement, entitled LOVE, will be performed; Madame Rosine and full Corps de Ballet. On Wednesday for the Benefit of the Clerkenwell Benevolent Society. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday evening, November 2nd, and during the week, James Anderson's Great Drama, in 4 Acts. Edgar and Henri, Mr. C. Sennett; Marcell, Mr. Rainbow; Roquefeuille, Mr. Guest; Lasignan, Mr. Evans; Richelieu, Mr. Parkes; David Leslie, Mr. Leigh; Antonio, Mr. Vaughan; Francois, Mr. Parker; Countess Diana, Miss M. Henderson; Countess Florian, Mrs. C. T. Burleigh; Clemence, Miss H. Farren. After which, a ballet Divertissement, Madmoiselle Rosine, and full Corps de Ballet. To conclude with THE WILL AND THE WAY. Old Martin, Mr. C. Sennett; Miran Hafiz, Mr. Skinner; The Khan, Mr. Parkes; Joe Beans, Mr. Fawn; Red Ralph, Mr. Skinner; Will Sideler, Mr. Rainbow; Henry Ashton, Mr. Evans; Farmer Ashton, Mr. Parker; Sir Wm. Mowbray, Mr. Leigh; Colonel Mowbray, Mr. Vaughan; Sarah the Ayah, Mrs. C. T. Burleigh; Susan, Miss Farren; Ellen, Miss Allen; Dame Ashton, Miss Rainbow. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Buckland, assisted by Misses Abce Bath and Florence Hunt. COAL, AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell and many other Entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Columbus," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King;" and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week commencing November 4.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee Mr. E. Saker. Mr. Bandman in "Narcisse."

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street. Lessee, Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. Mr. J. Tabbot in "Macbeth," "King of Scots," &c.

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Closed, but will be opened shortly by Mr. S. Barry.

THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square. Lessee, "Bio." De France. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Carnival Carnival."

T. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hugue. Performances by the "Slave Troupe."

COOKE'S CIRCUS, William Brown-street. Proprietors, Messrs. Cook and Weldon.

NEWSOME'S CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome.

NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, William-square. Manager, Bro. Saunders. Mr. George Leybourne and a talented company.

TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street. Professor Anderson and Family. World of Magic.

QUEEN'S HALL, Gillard's Great American Panorama.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1872.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The following letter, which has been addressed to the Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls having been forwarded to us for publication, we have great pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the claims of Bro. Little, which are ably set forth therein:—

Collier's Wood, Merton, S.W.,

November 1, 1872.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

Bro. R. Wentworth Little has consented, at the request of several Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of the Freemasons' Girls' School, to be put in nomination for the Secretaryship of that Institution, which has just become vacant by the retirement of Bro. Patten.

In the belief that Bro. Little combines in a remarkable degree the qualifications it is our duty to insist upon in any Secretary we may appoint, I am acting as Chairman of a Committee for promoting his election. This Committee deems it important in the interests of the Charity that the new Secretary should not be of an age which would, in the common course of nature, render his retirement necessary in a few years, and so burden our funds with another pension. Bro. Little is 34. We consider it essential that the new Secretary should be a man of liberal education and varied experience, fitted by maturity of judgment, habit of mind, and special acquirements, to urge the claims of the Charity upon the brethren. The history and statistics of the Masonic Boys' School furnish convincing testimony, were any needed, as to the imperative duty of securing these qualifications for the sister Institution, and of so promoting a generous rivalry between the two. Bro. Wentworth Little was originally educated for the church, under Bro. the Rev. P. Gibbs, M.A.; but deciding upon a secular career, he entered the Civil Service of the Crown in the Emigration Department at Dublin, and holds testimonials of the highest character, both from his reverend tutor and his official chiefs. Bro. Little has been an active Freemason ever since he was initiated into our Order, twelve years ago. He is P.M. of two lodges; P.Z. of two chapters; honorary member of some thirty lodges and chapters; and Provincial Grand Secretary for Middlesex. Bro. Little's extensive connection among Freemasons, and his wide reputation for knowledge and zeal, are in themselves, we consider, an earnest that the duties of this Secretaryship would be efficiently discharged by him. For the last ten years he has filled a responsible appointment in the Grand Secretary's Office, and during the greater part of this time he has been cashier and accountant to the Grand Lodge and the Grand Chapter—positions which he still fills.

I venture to lay these facts before you, in the hope that you will agree with me that the appointment of Bro. Little would be of real benefit to the Charity, and I ask you, ON THIS GROUND ONLY, to give him your interest and support.

I am,

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

J. C. PARKINSON, V.P.

P.S.—Bro. Little has served the Stewardships and is a Life Governor of the three Masonic Charities.

THE ESCURIAL.

In the beginning of October we learnt that the famous palace of the Escorial was in flames, and fears were expressed lest this gigantic edifice—which some people look upon as one of the architectural wonders of the world—should share the fate of many historic fanes, and be burned to the ground. Happily these fears were groundless, and the conflagration, which had threatened to extend to the whole building, was confined in its limits, and only two of its towers and some of its roofs were destroyed, which, however, it will cost three million reals to make good.

The building was struck by lightning, and it appears that, though standing in a most exposed and lofty situation amongst the bare crags of the Sierra de Guadarrama, some 2,700 feet above the sea, it has never been thought necessary to supply it with lightning conductors.

It might perhaps strike our Spanish friends, however, when asked how it was that so necessary an adjunct to a lofty and isolated building should have been neglected to be placed upon the great towers of the Escorial, to protect the vast palace from the electric fluid, that we might look nearer home for the neglect of those wise precautions against the elements which threatened to destroy the wonder of all Spain.

How long since was it that we read of the spire of a well known London church having been struck by lightning, and how often have we observed in the columns of provincial newspapers of buildings which had been struck and burned to the ground, simply because, as it afterwards appeared, no lightning conductor had been attached to the edifices—churches, farm houses, barns, or what not—and which by sheer neglect of the most simple appliances of modern science are needlessly sacrificed?

Our well informed contemporary, the Daily News, says that the Escorial was built by Philip II., the half monkish husband of our Queen Mary—known in Protestant history as Bloody Mary—in the year 1563, that the architect was Juan Bautista de Toledo (Lady Herbert gives the architect another name), and that the foundation stone was laid on St. Lawrence's Day, April 23rd, 1563. Twenty-one years were occupied in the building, and it was finished Sept. 13th, 1584.

Philip had made a vow at the battle of St. Quentin that if he beat the French, St. Lawrence, on whose day the battle was fought, should have the most splendid monastery the world had ever seen.

Thanks to 8,000 English under Lord Pembroke, and Flemish infantry, and German cavalry, the battle was won, and Philip went home to perform his vow.

When the building was finished Philip at once retired to some humble apartments in it, and there, with his monkish advisers, ruled the world for 14 years—and there he died.

Visitors are still shown his chair and stool, his writing table and letter book, and the crucifix which he held in his hand when he died, and which had belonged to Charles V.

Philip expired on the anniversary of the completion of the Escorial in 1598. His successor added to the building, in which it was the etiquette of the Court that the Royal Family should spend six weeks of every year. They built the magnificent mausoleum in which ever since the dead sovereigns of Spain have been entombed on one side, and the consorts on the other. Only two kings are not buried here, so our contemporary observes—"Philip V., Ferdinand VI., and Ferdinand VII., the father of the exiled Queen Isabella, was the last carried thither, and the empty niche under him would have received his daughter, had she died on the throne of Spain."

The famous crypt beneath the church, is the last resting place of the Sovereigns of Spain, and the bodies of the monarchs are arranged in niches round the octagonal chapel, each in a black marble sarcophagus. Here mass is always said on All Souls' Day and on the anniversaries of their deaths. It is said that the Queen, now in exile, came once and looked at the empty urn waiting for her, but did not repeat the experiment."

"I have come once of my own free will," she said, "but the next time I shall be brought here without it."

It is a dismal resting place, and in fact the palace altogether, vast as it is, and grand from its very vastness, is still sombre, gloomy, and funereal.

Lady Herbert, of Lea, in her charming work about Spain, thus speaks of the celebrated Spanish palace.

She says that on leaving Madrid they were soon carried away from the cultivated environs of the city to a country which, for desolation, wildness, and grandeur, resembles the scenery at Nicolosi in the ascent of Etna.

In the midst of this rugged mass of rocks and scrubby oak trees, the large gloomy Escorial rises up under the shadow, as it were, of the snowy jagged peaks of the Sierra Guadarrama which forms its back ground. There is a picture of it by Rubens, in the gallery at Longford Castle, which gives the best possible idea of the complete isolation of the great building itself, and of the savage character of the whole of the surrounding country.

Lady Herbert describes it as a gigantic pile of masonry, built by Philip II. as a thanksgiving for the success of the battle of St. Quentin, and in the shape of a gridiron, being dedicated to St. Lawrence, on the day of whose martyrdom the vow was made. "Celui qui faisait un si grand vœu doit avoir un grand péché!" was the saying of the Duke of Brabant, and the cold grey character of the whole place is but the reflex of the King's temperament. He employed the famous architect Herrera, whose genius was, however, much cramped by the King's insistence on the shape being maintained. It was finished in 1584.

We learn from the work quoted, Lady Herbert's "Impressions of Spain," that the Jeronimite works have been scattered to the winds, and the convent has been turned into a college, where there are about 250 students; for the Escorial is at once a monastery, a college, a palace, and a royal mausoleum.

It is, in truth, a wonderful place, especially for relics and works of art. Here is the famous white marble figure of our Lord, the size of life, by Benvenuto Cellini, and here the skull and winding sheet of St. Lawrence, not to mention the iron bars of his gridiron.

Here, also, is the head of St. Hermengilde, sent to the King from Seville, and the arm and head of St. Agatha; four MS. books of St. Theresas, written by her own hand; a veil, worked by St. Elizabeth of Hungary, and sent by her to St. Margaret; a Greek missal, beautifully illuminated, once belonging to St. Chrysostom; a pot from Cana of Galilee (Lady Herbert, from whom we are quoting, does not say whether it was one of those from which the water was made wine), and the body of one of the Holy Innocents, sent from Bethlehem.

Altogether, as there are more than 7000 relics, it must be a sight to see. We, ourselves, have seen the skeletons of the 11,000 virgins of Cologne, and are prepared to believe anything.

Some idea of the size of this vast edifice may be gathered from the following description, taken from the Daily News :—

"The Escorial is some thirty miles from Madrid, and is visible soon after leaving the city. It stands some 2,700 feet above the level of the sea, and in a most exposed and inclement situation. The body of the gridiron is represented by seventeen ranges of buildings, which cross each other at right angles, and thus form four-and-twenty square quadrangles or courts. These buildings are all of the grey granite stone from the hills on which they stand; they are about sixty feet high, and with a number of small windows and leaden roofs, look more like a barrack than a palace. Rumour says that the King would have 11,000 windows in compliment to the virgins of Cologne. The pile thus forming the body of the gridiron is 744 feet long by 380 wide, and has a tower at each corner 200 feet high, the four representing the upturned feet of the instrument of St. Lawrence's martyrdom. The handle of the gridiron is the Royal Palace, a building some 460 feet in length, and, like the rest, of the Doric order of architecture. It is evident from these details that the building has at least the magnificence of size. A royal palace and chapel, a monastery with 200 cells, two colleges, three chapter-houses, three libraries, six dormitories, three hospital halls, 27 other halls, nine refectories, five infirmaries, and eighty staircases, form a catalogue which bewilders the imagination.

The central structure, around which all this vast aggregate of buildings spreads, is the magnificent temple built on the model of St. Peter's at Rome. It stands in the centre of the parallelogram which forms the gridiron, and is in the shape of a Greek cross, with a splendid dome 330 feet high in the centre, and lofty towers at the ends. All the wealth of Spain was lavished on this church. It is 374 feet long and 230 broad, is divided into seven aisles, paved with black marble, and the walls are everywhere covered with porphyry, jasper, and marbles of infinite variety, and with statue portraits of the Kings of Spain. This Church forms one side of the central Court of the building. On the other side is the grand central Doric and Ionic portal which opens twice for every Spanish Monarch, first when he is carried to his baptism, last when he is borne to his grave by three nobles and three monks. The Patio de los Reyes, where the present conflagration is said to have broken out, is so called because it is surrounded by six statues, 17 feet high, of the Kings of Judah, who were connected with the temple of Jerusalem. They were all cut, it is said, from one solid block, and enough still remains of it to complete the dozen. The Church itself contains 40 chapels, each with its altar; the ceiling is covered with the frescoes of Giordano, forming a pictorial history of Christianity; and of the 42 pictures which adorn the sacristy, each one is said to be a masterpiece. The Church is described by Ford as "the triumph of architecture; it takes away the breath of the beholder from its majestic simplicity. All is quiet, solemn, unadorned; no tinsel statues or tawdry gildings mar the perfect proportion of the chaste Christian temple; the religious sentiment pervades the whole of this House of God, everything mean or trivial is forgotten." This part of the edifice has, according to the telegrams, been destroyed by the present fire.

We are glad to believe that our contemporary was wrong, however, in supposing that the results of the fire were so disastrous as at first supposed.

We can hardly claim the Escorial as a building erected, like our own noble Gothic Cathedrals, by the Freemasons, since it was built at a time when the decadence of architecture had begun, and the Craft as a building fraternity had almost ceased to be.

During the Bourbon dynasty, in truth, Freemasonry had very little chance of success in Spain—the only Prince of the house who favoured the Craft was the late unfortunate Don Henrique, who was killed, as our readers will remember, in a duel with Duc de Montpensier.

Let us hope that under the new regime Freemasonry may flourish under institutions at once more liberal in their truest sense, and more in consonance with the spirit of the age; and we cannot but be assured that the introduction of Masonic light will prove beneficial to Spain and Spanish institutions, even to such evidences of the bigotry, superstition, and yet the grandeur of Spain, as the wonder of the land, the Escorial.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS'

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

EUPHRATES LODGE (No. 212).—The periodical meeting of this lodge took place on Wednesday evening, 23rd October, at the Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street, at six o'clock precisely. The minutes of the previous meeting being read and confirmed, the W.M., Bro. William Field, proceeded with the business of the evening. Bro. Stein was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, and Bro. Goodall passed from his Apprenticeship and became a Craftsman. A ballot having proved unanimous in favour of Mr. C. H. Evans, as well as for Mr. A. Bergman, and for Mr. R. Gore, the two former gentlemen were initiated in the mysteries and were made eligible to partake of the many privileges pertaining to ancient Freemasonry. The latter gentleman was unable to attend through indisposition. The three ceremonials were admirably worked, and great praise is due to the W.M. and his officers for the calm perseverance and patient study evinced in acquiring so early a proficiency in the Masonic art, the correctness of this opinion was strengthened before the final closing of the lodge, by the eulogistic encomiums proffered by Bro. Swabe, and loudly acquiesced in by many of the brethren. Business being concluded, the little party of sixty sat down to a sumptuous banquet, served in Bro. Gosden's excellent style, the loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received with a true Euphratesian enthusiasm, and the happy evening concluded as it had continued and had begun—in peace, in harmony, and in brotherly love. Amongst the numerous visitors we noticed Bro. Smith, W.M., and Bro. McDonald, P.M. of the United Mariners, No. 30; Bro. Austin, S.W. of the Doric, No. 933; and Bro. English, W.M. of the Upton Lodge, No. 1227.

HIGH CROSS LODGE (No. 754).—At one time and that "within the memory of men still living," this lodge may have been said to have been under a cloud. It is not for us to enter into the causes for such a state of things; we need only congratulate the members upon the fact that every trace of former misfortune has passed away, and to express our satisfaction that the lodge is now one of the most prosperous and efficiently worked within the Meproplitan district. The greatest desire is evinced by gentlemen living in the locality to become members; individuals living at a distance have also shown much anxiety to join; and one or more are initiated at every meeting. The future, therefore, may be regarded as full of promise for the happiness of the brethren. The regular meeting of the lodge was held on Wednesday, the 23rd October, at the Seven Sisters' Hotel, Page Green, Tottenham. On account of the large amount of business to be transacted, the brethren were summoned for five o'clock, when the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. Linzell, assisted by his officers, as follows; Bro. Cunningham, S.W.; Bro. Maller, J.W.; Bro. Roberts, Treasurer; Bro. Copland, Secretary; Bro. Hughes, J.D.; Bro. Lance, I.G.; and many Past Masters, brethren, and visitors. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken separately for W.F. Stevenson, W.F. Mattocks, and J.W.H. Wharton, resulting in unanimous votes in favour of each. Bros. Stephens and Macaulay, candidates to be passed to the second degree, having given proofs of their proficiency were entrusted and withdrew. The Lodge then opened in the second degree. Bros. Fowler and Powell being candidates for the third degree, and having answered the usual questions, were entrusted and withdrew. The Lodge then opened in the third degree, when Bros. Fowler, and Powell were raised to the Sublime degree of Master Mason in solemn form, the whole of the ceremony being rendered in an unusually perfect and impressive manner. The Lodge then closed in the second degree, and Bros. Stephens and Macaulay were passed. The Lodge then resumed to the first degree, and Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Mattocks, and Mr. Wharton, being in attendance, were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The Committee afterwards brought up their report, recommending that a suitable testimonial be presented to the widow of the late esteemed W.M., and it was unanimously agreed to. No other Masonic business offering, the Lodge closed in solemn form at 8.15, and then adjourned to a banquet, served up in Bro. Oddy's usual effective style.

LANCASHIRE (WEST.)

LANCASTER.—Duke of Lancaster Lodge (No. 1353).—The regular meeting of this young and flourishing lodge took place in the Masonic Temple St. Leonard-gate, Lancaster, on the 16th ult., when the following officers and members were present:—The Chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. J. Barrow, W.M., supported by Bro. J. Hatch, P.M. 281, as I.P.M.; J. Bell, S.W.; W. Heald, J.W.; W. Barrows, Secretary; J. Acton, S.D.; J. Coulon, J.D.; R. Wolfenden, I.G.; J. H. Williams, S.S.; J. Taylor, Org.; and J. Watson, Tyler; Bros. Banister, Carr, Ellershaw, Foster, Gardner, Eastwood, Redwood, and visitors Bro. Joshua Blamfield, 491, Quebec, of the dominion of Canada, and Bro. W. H. France, 302. The lodge having been duly opened in the first degree, the minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed, and an answer read from Bro. Wolfendale to a letter of condolence, sent to him on the death of his son, who was drowned by accident in the river Seine. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bros. Eastwood and Reedwood gave proof of proficiency as F.C.'s, and were then entrusted by the W.M., and retired, when the lodge was raised to the third degree, and Bros. Eastwood and Reedwood were consecutively raised to the sublime degree by the W.M. and P.M., J. Hatch. The lodge was closed down to the first degree, when the usual propositions took place, and Mr. John Harrison, of Lancaster, builder, and Mr. James Gerrard, of Glasson Dock, hotel-keeper, were proposed as candidates. Hearty good wishes having been given, by P. M. Hatch, from 281; Bro. Blamfield, 491, Quebec; and Bro. France, 302, the lodge was closed in due form.

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—Baldwin Lodge (No. 1398).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening last, the 28th ult., in the lodge room, the Castle, Dalton-in-Furness. The lodge was opened at 6.45 p.m., by the Acting W.M., Bro. Reuben Pearson, W.M. of the Lodge of Ulverston, 995, supported by Worshipful Bro. Roger Dodgson, W.M. of Whitwell Lodge, Millom, 1390, and Prov. Grand Sword Bearer, Cumberland and Westmoreland; the S.W., Bro. W. Whiteside; and the Acting J.W., Bro. John Case, P.M. 965, P. Prov. G.J., and others. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Cooper, serving brother, having passed a satisfactory examination, was afterwards duly and solemnly raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The work was admirably executed by the Acting W.M., and the working tools presented by the S.W. The lodge was then closed in the third degree, and Bro. Spark having proved proficiency, was entrusted and passed to the degree of F.C., by W.M., Roger Dodgson. The musical part of the ceremonies was effectively rendered by Bros. Harper and Matthews, of Lodge of Furness, 995, and added greatly to the impressiveness of the working of the lodge. The hearty good wishes of the Whitwell Lodge, 1390, having been expressed, the lodge was closed in due form at 9.10, p.m.

MIDDLESEX.

HAMPTON COURT.—Burdett Lodge (No. 1293).—The October meeting of the above lodge was held on Saturday last at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court. Present, the R.W. Prov. G.M., Colonel Burdett; the Deputy, Bro. R. W. Stewart; Kenyon, W.M.; Still, J.W.; Little, P.M.; and Treas.; Kenning, Hon. Sec.; Phythian, S.D.; Dr. Self, Keily, Saunders, Hobson, Rosenthal, Smethurst, Owen, Buss, Doyle, Boucey, Kotzenberg, and others. Visitors, C. Horsley, P.G. Registrar; Burdett-Yeoman, and others. Bro. Bevie was passed to the second degree, Bro. Evans raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The election of W.M. and Treasurer was then proceeded with, the ballot being unanimous in favour of Bro. Still as W.M., and Bro. Little as Treasurer. The application from Bro. Farnfield for a Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons being read by the Secretary, was responded to by the W.M. elect, Bro. Still. It was resolved that the initiation fee be raised from five to eight guineas, and the joining fee from three to five guineas. The lodge was then closed, after which dinner was served in Mr. Sadlers usual satisfactory manner.

GIBRALTAR.

LODGE OF ST. JOHN (No. 115).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the evening of the 8th October. Punctually at the hour named in the summons, the W.M., Bro. J. J. R. Morgan, took the chair, being supported by Past Masters Balfour, Cockburn, Cavana and Henry, with Bro. Haynes as S.W., Bro. Valarino, J.W., Bro. Ashton, S.D., Bro. Avellano, J.D., and Bro. Clemente, Secretary. The business consisted in admitting to the mysteries of the Craft Signor Varvaro, primo tenore of the Italian Opera Company, and raising to the sublime degree Bro. G. Thomas. The first portion of the evening's work was conducted in Spanish; and we would strongly commend to those brethren who may at any time have the opportunity offered to them, not to fail to visit a lodge where the degrees are given in Spanish, the impressive and beautiful ritual gains, if possible, an increased value when rendered in the sonorous and grandiloquent lingua Castellana. The ceremonies of the evening were conducted throughout by the W.M., in a most excellent manner. In truth, we cannot omit to bestow the highest meed of praise on Bro. Morgan, for his unwearied exertions since his occupation of the chair of this lodge. From a variety of adverse and entirely fortuitous circumstances, all culminating about the same period, the condition of the lodge of St. John, at the time Bro. Morgan accepted the Mastership, was so sadly unsatisfactory, that many of his friends and several of the warmest supporters of Masonry on the Rock, strongly counselled a temporary suspension of the working. Nothing daunted, the W.M. commenced operations, and by a happy selection of officers and unceasing exertions, the Lodge of St. John is on firm ground again, and bids fair to secure for itself, at no distant period, the proud distinction of being one of the best and most flourishing, as it is the oldest, of all the lodges in Andalusia.

Royal Arch.

CHESHIRE.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER.

The Provincial Grand Royal Arch Chapter for the Province of Cheshire, was held at the Town Hall, Macclesfield, on the 24th ult., when about seventy-five companions responded to the summons of the Grand Superintendent, amongst whom were E. Comp. Captain Cope, P. Prov. G.H.; Henry Bulley, P.G.H.; Dr. Evans, P. Prov. G.J.; E. G. Willoughby, P. Prov. G.J.; I. P. Platt, T. Platt, P.G. Soj.; G. W. Lathom, P.G.S.E.; Siddeley, P.G.S.N.; Ferdinando Jackson, P.G.D. Ceremonies; Companions R. W. Worrall, Z. 721; William Brown, H. 721; J. L. Cunnah, Robert Morris, W. Weare, William Jones, S.E. 721; Stephenson, P. S. Zion Chapter; Gracie, Harbord, and others.

The Provincial Grand Chapter was opened at 2.30. The roll of the chapter was called, when only two were found to be absent.

The report of the Committee of Benevolence was then read and confirmed.

The Treasurer's report was afterwards read, and showed the province to be in a flourishing condition as regards its funds.

Comp. Captain Cope, pursuant to a notice of motion, then proposed that, in consideration of the great success of this province in again carrying their candidate into the Boys' Institution at London, a vote of twenty-five guineas be given from the funds of the Prov. G. Chapter to that Institution, giving five more votes to the Province. It was seconded by Comp. J. L. Platt, P.Z., 537, and carried unanimously.

The P.G. Superintendent then proceeded to appoint his P.G. Officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—

J. P. Platt.....	Prov. G. H.
J. Birch.....	Prov. G. J.
G. W. Lathom.....	Prov. G. S.E.
J. Siddeley.....	Prov. G. S.N.
Cornelius Goddard.....	Prov. G. Prin. Soj.
Bates.....	Prov. G. As. Soj.
Richard Worrall.....	Prov. G. As. Soj.
Stephens.....	Prov. G. Stand. B.
Ferdinando Jackson.....	Prov. G. D. C.
Bland.....	Prov. G. Treas.

Nothing more appearing for the good of R.A. Masonry, or this Provincial Grand Chapter in particular, it was closed in ancient and solemn form.

The Companions, to the number of seventy-three, adjourned to the Macclesfield Arms Hotel, when the banquet was held after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and enthusiastically received, the Companions separating a little after seven o'clock.

GIBRALTAR.

CALPEAN ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER (No. 278).—The usual monthly meeting of this chapter took place on Wednesday, October 9th. It having been notified that the business of the evening would conclude with the installation of the Principals and officers elected last meeting, there was a strong muster of the companions; and it afforded as strong evidence of the good feeling existent, to notice the presence of the Irish Chapter, represented by its most worthy First Principal, Comp. Beal, attended by Comps. Leslie, Ross, Seath, Cunningham, and several others. We have more than once alluded to the friendly sentiments and goodwill existing between these two chapters, and we sincerely trust that such a satisfactory and truly Masonic condition will long continue. After the chapter was opened, the M.E.Z. proceeded to have a ballot taken for Bro. Lackland as a candidate for exaltation, and for Comp. Mowroe as a joining member. The candidate not being present, and some charitable motions having been discussed and disposed of, the M.E.Z., Comp. Balfour Cockburn, rose and stated that he would now proceed to instal the First Principal elect, Comp. Major McLoughlin. Before doing so, however, he wished to record his highest approval of the choice the chapter had made, and also to congratulate Comp. McLoughlin in his election to fill the chair of so distinguished a chapter. He did not wish to say it in any spirit of boasting, but he must candidly confess that it was a subject of great personal gratification that as retiring First Principal he was able to hand over his charge in such a flourishing condition to his successor. At no time in the past history of the chapter, had the number of companions been so large, and the amounts of exaltation during the past year had been nearly five times more than the usual average, and, which was of far more importance than actual numbers, all these recent addition to the strength of the chapter were good Masons and true men, and of the highest respectability and social status in Gibraltar. The companion below the rank of Principal having retired, Comp. McLaughlin was duly inducted with the 1st chair, Comp. Morgan into the 2nd chair, and the retiring Z., at the particular request of the majority of the companions, accepted the 3rd chair. The companions having been admitted, the M.E.Z., Comp. McLoughlin, invested with the collars of their office, Comps. W. Brown, as S.E.; Marshall, as S.N.; Wall, as Principal Soj.; and Peterkin Janeytor. The chapter was then closed in due form, when the companions retired to the banquet hall, where an excellent collation had been prepared, under the surveillance of Comp. Marin, the excellent Treasurer of the chapter, to whose unremitting attention to the interests of the chapter and the comfort of the companions, the retiring M.E.Z. paid a well deserved eulogy.

Mark Masonry.

GIBRALTAR.

GIBRALTAR MARK LODGE (No. 43).—A meeting of this lodge was held in the premises of the St. John's Lodge on Tuesday, the 1st October. This being the first meeting after the hot season, it was, as usual, numerously attended. We regret, however, to observe that the present rooms are by no means equal to those in which this lodge used to meet, being too small, and in no way adapted for the the correct performance of the impressive and interesting ceremonies of this degree. We are informed that the present arrangements are of a purely temporary character, and that in all probability before the winter is over, the St. John's and the Inhabitants' Lodges will have succeeded in obtaining the accommodation they require. Whilst on this subject, we may, en passant, remark, that the erection of a building for the special use of Masons, in fact, a regular Masonic Hall, is a great desideratum at Gibraltar. The Lodge of Friendship is well housed, but at the expense of a heavy annual rental. We are confident that if the matter was taken up strongly by the native residents, that they would meet with the most firm support of their naval and military brethren, and that looking at the matter from a purely commercial point of view, it would most certainly pay in the end. The lodge having been duly opened the Secretary proceeded to read the cash accounts for the past half year. At the conclusion of the same, the W.M. called the attention of the lodge to the minute of the Grand Mark Lodge, bearing reference to the appeal for a diminution of the annual subscription of this lodge, which had met with an unfavourable reception, whilst bowing to the decision of supreme authority, and fully recognising the absolute necessity that existed for the Grand Mark Lodge, maintaining intact its legitimate sources of income, he could not but desire that the Grand Mark Lodge, which was now assuming so very high and influential a position, and exerting so powerful and so universal a sway over the lodges in the distant possessions of the United Kingdom, should establish a Colonial Board, similar in constitution to that now existing in the Grand Lodge of England for the ventilation and discussion of all colonial subjects. The W.M. then notified that he would proceed to exalt Bros. Thorndike and Hall, as also Bro. Lamas as a serving brother, whose candidature for the office of Tyler, vacant by the decease of the lamented Bro. Cele, had been favourably received by the members of the lodge. The exaltation of the candidates was conducted by the W.M., Bro. Balfour Cockburn, in his usual felicitous manner, ably supported by Bro. Morgan, as S.W.; Bro. Brown, as J.W.; Bro. Wall, M.O.; Bro. Seath, S.O.; Bro. Hepper, J.O.; and Bro. Marshall, S.D. The lodge was then closed in the usual manner.

Knights Templar.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

PRESTON.—Prince of Peace Encampment.—The regular conclave of this encampment was held on Monday, 21st October, at the Bull Hotel, Preston. There were present the Em. Com., Sir Knight J. Daniel Moore, M.D., G. Standard Bearer of England; the Em. Sir Knights, L. Colonel Birchall, P.G. Chamberlain of England; Em. Sir Knight John Walker, P.E.C., Prov. G.S.B.; Em. Sir Knight James Warsley, P.E.C. Prov. G. Capt. of Lines; Sir Knights Captain Lockhurst, Sey, Helme and others. The encampment was opened in due form by the E.C., and preliminary business transacted. Some communications from the Grand Conclave of England were read and discussed, and in consequence, a notice of motion for the alteration of the bye-laws of the encampment was given by Sir Knight Walker, P.E.C. A copy of the bye-laws of the Prov. Grand Conclave, handsomely bound, was presented to the encampment from the Prov. Grand Conclave. Several Grand Conclave certificates were given, and other matters of importance to the encampment considered. Two candidates were proposed for Installation as Knights of the Order in the encampment, and the alms collected, after which the encampment was closed in due form, and the Knights companions present adjourned to a banquet, to which ample justice was done, and where the usual loyal, chivalric, and harmonic toasts were regularly proposed and duly honoured.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF TRINIDAD.

On the 20th October, the District Grand Lodge, holding under the Registry of the Grand Lodge of England, met at Mount Moriah, for the purpose of installing Bro. Robert Scott, as District Grand Master for the District of Trinidad.

The lodge was opened in due form by the Senior District Grand Officer, Bro. A. M. Cook, and the business commenced with the reception of the Masters, Past Masters, Officers and Members of the English Lodges, in the following order:—Lodge Royal Prince of Wales, No. 897; Lodge Royal Phoenix, No. 911; Lodge Royal Trinity, No. 572, San Fernando; Lodge Royal Philanthropic, No. 405. The Masters and Past Masters took their seats on the right of the Throne, the other brethren outside the rails on the north. The Masters, Past Masters, Officers and Members of the Scotch Lodges were next announced, and admitted as follows:—Lodge Athole, 438, San Fernando; Lodge Eastern Star, 368; Lodge United Brothers, 251. The Masters and Past Masters took their seats on the left of the Throne, the other brethren outside the rails on the south. The Provincial Grand Lodge of Scotland having formed in procession at the residence of Bro. P. J. Delisle, marched from thence to Mount Moriah, and were then announced, and admitted and received with honours and music. The P.G.M. was conducted to the east of the Presiding Officer, who received him and placed him in the Chair; and such of his Officers as are entitled thereto, were placed within the rails, the other members outside of the rails, on the south.

The District Grand Master, properly accompanied, was next announced, and admitted and received, with ample honours and music. He was conducted to the east, and seated in front of the Throne, when he was presented by the Senior Officer of the late District Grand Lodge, to the Right Worshipful in the Chair.

The patent, appointing Bro. Scott District Grand Master, was then read aloud by Bro. C. H. Phillips, District G. Secretary, after which the brethren who have not passed the chair retired; then followed the installation, which was proceeded with in the presence of the W. Masters and Past Masters of the several lodges in this Island.

The brethren who had retired were now admitted, when, after taking their seats, the R. W. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Tench, declared Bro. Robert Scott duly installed as District Grand Master for the district of Trinidad, under the Registry of the Grand Lodge of England, according to the usual Masonic form.

The procession formed and the District Grand Master saluted in the usual manner,—the Orchestra performing during the procession. The District Grand Master then proceeded to appoint and invest his Officers for the ensuing year, after which the Addresses from the several lodges to the D.G. Master were read—

1st. From the Prov. Grand Lodge of Scotland, read by Bro. Wilson. 2nd. From Trinity Lodge, San Fernando, read by Bro. Corrie. 3rd. From the English Craft, read by Bro. Cook.

The replies were read by Bro. C. H. Phillips, D.G. Secretary.

The business of the evening having terminated, the brethren retired to the banquet, to enjoy the good things prepared for the occasion. There were upwards of 120 brethren present, but the table being inadequate to hold that number, about 90 sat down, the others forming themselves in groups in the gallery, where they were well served by the Stewards.

The customary toasts being given and responded to, the brethren separated shortly after midnight, every one expressing his entire satisfaction of the evening's entertainment.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday afternoon in the Board Room, Freemason's Hall, Bro. Joshua Nunn, V.P., in the chair. The meeting was very numerously attended, above 120 brethren being present. The only business before the Committee was the consideration of Bro. Patten's state of health, and the steps to be taken for providing a new Secretary for the Institution.

Bro. W. Lane, Bro. Patten's clerk, having read the minutes of the various meetings since the last assembling of the Committee, read by the direction of the Chairman, the certificate of Dr. Nicholl as to the health of Bro. Patten. It stated that for some years Bro. Patten had been afflicted with diabetes, and that in the course of the present year he had had a paralytic stroke, that his health was greatly impaired, and that he would never again be able to perform the duties of Secretary.

The Chairman said that such was the certificate of the medical man which at the last meeting of the Committee had been directed to be obtained, and he might add the observation of his own, that himself and several brethren had, during Bro. Patten's illness, visited him, and they had all seen but too plainly that he would never again be in a fit state to resume his duties.

Bro. H. Browse, P.G.D., V.P., then rose, and said that it was patent to all the brethren that Bro. Patten, since his attack in January last, was incapable of attending to business. The attack had much weakened his constitution. In consequence of that, it would be necessary to relieve him of his duties. But it was right to mention that Bro. Patten had always taken a great interest in the welfare of the Girls' School, even long before he became its Secretary. (Hear, hear). He was a great supporter of it in the time of the Duke of Sussex, and was one of those who, at that time, performed very great services to it. When, therefore, the Secretaryship was vacant, he was the one man sought among all the supporters of the institution to fill the place. How he had fulfilled his duties while he had occupied the post of Secretary, the flourishing condition of the Institution at the present time was the best proof. He (Bro. Browse) had no hesitation in saying that the Institution was a credit to Bro. Patten's management; and he would now move, and he trusted his motion would be carried unanimously, that Bro. Patten be superannuated from Christmas next, with an income of £200 per annum, during his life. He thought that, looking to the fact that the late Bro. Crews, his predecessor, had a similar sum voted to him, this Committee would not be going far wrong in voting that sum to Bro. Patten. (Cheers.)

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., V.P., wished to bear his testimony to the great activity displayed by Bro. Patten. The great advantage derived from his secretaryship was manifested by the additional number of children in the school since he had taken office, and he had very great pleasure in seconding the motion of Bro. Browse.

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., V.P., could only support all that had been said by the other Vice-Presidents, and he should not like their resolution to pass without joining in the expression of sorrow at the circumstances in which Bro. Patten was placed. From the first Bro. Patten had evinced the greatest interest in this Institution. Bro. Patten had been working hard for the Institution long years before he became its Secretary, on the different Committees, at the Quarterly Courts, and at the festivals, at a time when he had no idea that his circumstances would so alter as to render it probable that he would become the Secretary of the Girls' School. If Bro. Crews happened to be absent, Bro. Patten was always ready to supply his place. Therefore they had cause to be deeply thankful that such a man as Bro. Patten was to be found. He was sure it was a source of regret to the whole Craft that he was now struck down by sickness. He had not heard what course it was proposed to take with reference to the matter before the proposal of Bro. Browse, that Bro. Patten be superannuated; but he felt that the Committee had no alternative but to accept the proposal. In reference to the emolument he should receive, he presumed it would be equivalent to his full salary; but this the Committee had nothing to do with, as the amount would have to be fixed by the Quarterly Court. In that respect Bro. Symond's motion must be amended by filling in the words "that it be a recommendation to the Quarterly Court that he receive on his superannuation the amount stated in Bro. Browse's motion. He thought they must declare the office vacant at once, for this reason, that until the office was actually vacant the House Committee could not proceed to examine the qualifications of candidates for the office, and there was a resolution of this General Committee against anyone canvassing for the appointment until the vacancy was declared. Therefore they should declare the vacancy to-day, otherwise there would be great delay in examining the qualifications and testimonials, and electing Bro. Patten's successor; but he thought that whatever date they fixed for Bro. Patten's superannuation allowance to commence from, the Quarterly Court would at once accede to it. He would put it to Bro. Browse whether it would not be best to adopt his suggestion as to making the amount to be granted a recommendation to the Quarterly Court, and it would, he thought, be acceptable to Bro. Patten in the circumstances in which he was placed to know that he had the sincerest sympathy of all the brethren. (Cheers.)

Bro. Browse said his object was to give to Bro. Patten a few more pounds than if the resolution was otherwise worded he would get. Bro. Patten had been put to very great expense during the year. His recommendation was that Bro. Patten should receive his full pay till Christmas, and that the retiring pension be granted from that time.

Bro. Dr. C. H. R. Harrison would like to know more about Bro. Patten's state of health, and whether he was in such a condition as to be unable to send in his resignation. As he understood the medical certificate, he thought the superannuation was premature. The certificate only went to show that Bro. Patten was not at present capable of discharging his duties; but if he was capable of doing anything, the Institution should have his formal resignation.

The Chairman said that, from the personal observation of himself and many other brethren, the state of Bro. Patten's health for some months past had been such that it was evident he could not come back again to his duties as Secretary. Bro. Patten was a very sensitive man, and as a sensitive man he did not like to sever his connection with the Girls' School by any act of his own. He had always said he never would, and it would be much more pleasing to him to learn the vote of the Committee than to send in his resignation.

Bro. J. Parkinson, V.P., thought the brethren would be interested to know that two hours ago he had received a letter from Miss Patten, thanking him for what he had said on the last occasion of the General Committee meeting. She said that all the family were looking forward with great pleasure to the result of this day's meeting. They felt that it would give Bro. Patten peace of mind, and when the question was once settled they had no doubt it would be beneficial to his health.

Bro. Gurney said he had watched Bro. Patten day by day, and hour by hour, during his illness, and he felt quite sure that he would take the act of the Committee, and the numerous expressions of kind feeling by all the brethren, in such a way as would bring him comfort. As far as he (Bro. Gurney) was concerned, he felt sure Bro. Patten would tender his resignation as soon as the Committee were desirous that he should do so.

The Chairman said the only motion before the Committee was—"That the vacancy be declared to-day, that the emoluments of Secretary be allowed till the end of the year, and that afterwards the superannuation allowance be £200 a year.

The motion declaratory of the vacancy in the office of Secretary to the Girls' School was then put and carried unanimously.

The other motion "That the fees and emoluments as at present be continued to Bro. Patten till Christmas as a gratuity, and that afterwards a superannuation be granted him of the amount of £200 per annum," was also put and carried unanimously.

The Chairman said that that would be a recommendation to the Quarterly Court.

Bro. Browse suggested that there should be a special Quarterly Court on the 14th inst. at twelve o'clock to consider the gratuity to be given, which was carried unanimously.

Bro. Symonds said it must be obvious to every one that there ought to be no great delay in filling up the vacant office of Secretary; at the same time they were not prepared to proceed hastily. The duties and emoluments of the office should be clearly defined. As soon as this was done, invitations to persons to become candidates should be published, and when candidates offered themselves, the House Committee would examine their testimonials and qualifications, and then report thereon to the General Committee. This was one of the laws of the Institution. But as time was an object, although no one was more competent than the House Committee to perform this duty, he would move that it be referred to a sub-committee to consider and settle the duties of the Secretary, and report to the General Committee on the 28th November.

Bro. Kenyon thought this was rather too long a time, and that the report should be made to the meeting of the 14th.

Bro. Symonds had no objection to this, if the sub-committee thought they could make their report by that day.

The Chairman said he had consulted some of the brethren near him, and they were of opinion that fourteen days would not be sufficient.

Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., reminded the brethren that the Committee had only to report on the duties they fixed as Secretary's duties. This could very easily be done. The Quarterly Court could not elect; they would only decide on the emolument. Any business man could settle it in a few hours.

Bro. Symonds would alter his motion to the 14th, instead of the 28th.

Bro. Parkinson wanted to know when the election would be held.

The Chairman replied that if Bro. Parkinson could say how many candidates there would be, and how many testimonials, then, perhaps, he could answer his question.

Bro. Symonds said they could name the day as soon as the report was made, they would get to the election as early as possible.

Bro. Parkinson would then propose an amendment which he thought would clear the air a good deal. He would propose that this Committee do adjourn to Thursday, the 28th November, for the purpose of proceeding with the election. He would propose that the election of Secretary be conducted at the next regular meeting.

The Chairman then put Bro. Symond's motion for the adjournment of the General Committee till the 14th, which was carried unanimously.

The Chairman then put Bro. Parkinson's motion, "That this General Committee do proceed to the election on the 28th November," which was seconded by Bro. S. Rosenthal, and carried.

A long and animated discussion here took place on matters of detail, but the result was that on the report of the sub-committee, on the duties of Secretary, being received, and the remuneration being settled, advertisements for candidates should be issued, and the election of Secretary be at once proceeded with.

The Committee then adjourned.

At a meeting held at the Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi, on Thursday evening, October 31, 1872, at 7.30, it was resolved that Bro. Wentworth Little become a candidate for the vacant Secretaryship to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the following brethren then present formed themselves into a committee, with the power to add to their number, for the purpose of securing his election.

J. C. Parkinson, P.M. 181, W.M. 778, in the Chair

J. T. Moss, P.M. 169.

Herbert Dicketts, P.M. 25.

Robert Kenyon, W.M. 1293.

E. H. Finney, W.M. 1361.

F. W. Ramsay, F.R.C.S., J.D. 778,

Rudolph G. Glover, P.M. 181.

Thomas J. Barnes, P.M. 933.

Charles Lacey, P.M. 174.

George Kenning, P.M. 192.

Charles A. Cottebrune, A.G.P., P.M. 733.

William Mann, P.M. 144.

John Boyd, G.P., P.M. 145.

E. Sillifant, P.M. 217.

J. W. Butten, W.M. 1309.

F. H. Ebsworth, P.M. 73.

D. R. Still, W.M. elect 1293.

Thomas Cubitt, P.M. 157.

James Self, M.D., P.M. 214.

John W. Barrett, P.M. 169.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GENTEEL AND COMFORTING.—"It is a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

"More than a year ago one of my children was attacked with bronchitis, and, after a long illness, was given up by all physicians as 'past cure.' I was then induced to try your Vegetable Pain Killer, and from the time I began the use of it the child rapidly got better, and it is now strong and healthy."—JOHN WINSTANLEY, 10, Whittle-street, Liverpool, 1869.—To P. D. & Son."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—With these remedies in each, persons suffering from disorders arising from atmospheric impurities, are without excuse if disorder did eventuate in disease. High and low, rich and poor, old and young, have availed themselves of Holloway's treatment, and have in gratitude testified to the success, which has followed their employment. Few maladies can befall mankind, which do not admit of alleviation, relief, or cure, by their healing, soothing, and purifying preparations. The action of the Ointment and Pills is wholesome in the highest degree, and never can be harmful in either external or internal ailments. Holloway's remedies cure bruises, diphtheria, chest complaints, and digestive derangements, and are reliable antidotes to rheumatism and rheumatic gout.—ADVT.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL.

On Monday evening last, a highly interesting gathering took place at the Alexandra Hotel, Dale-street, Liverpool, viz., the celebration of the jubilee of Mr. Wm. Thompson, of the Sandown Hotel, Wavertree. The chair was occupied by Bro. H. Danson, Senior Trustee and Hon. Treasurer of the Liverpool Licensed Victuallers' Association, and the vice-chair by Bro. G. Dyke. Amongst those present were Bro. Capt. Berry (Sec. to the Licensed Victuallers' Association), Bro. George Rigby Smith, Bro. Marples, &c. During the evening a magnificent illuminated address, executed in the highest style of art by Bro. J. O. Marples, of the Liverpool and London Chambers, was presented in eloquent terms by the Chairman to Mr. Thompson, in recognition of his services for twenty-five years in connection with the Liverpool Licensed Victuallers' Association, for many years as a member of the Wavertree Local Board, seventeen years as overseer of that township, and also in remembrance of the visit of Prince Arthur to Wavertree. Mr. Thompson acknowledged the testimonial in feeling and pointed terms.

AN INTERESTING PICTURE.—As a work of art "The Reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the Grand Conclave of the Knights Templar, May 13, 1871," is worthy of a high place, but added to this, it possesses a deep historical and Masonic interest. The picture is dedicated to the noble Knight Templar to whom it is designed to do honour, and was composed and painted by S. Rosenthal, P.M., printed in permanent colour by Sarony and Smith, Scarborough, by the new and admirable autotype process, and published by Bro. Kenning, of London and Liverpool. The grouping of Knights in the distinguished conclave is highly artistic, the portraits graphic and life-like, and the tout ensemble of the most striking character. The picture ought to be in the collection of every Mason.

The ceremony of Installation will be worked by Bro. C. Lacey, P.M. 174, at the Railway Tavern, London-street, Fenchurch-street, City, on Monday, November 18th, at 7 o'clock.

SCOTLAND.

ABERDEENSHIRE EAST.—INVERURIE.—Re-opening of St. Anthony's Lodge.—At a meeting of Freemasons, held in the Kintore Arms Hotel, on Monday night, Right Worshipful Brother Captain Hunter, F.R.S. and F.S.A. (Scot.) Provincial Grand Master of Aberdeenshire East presiding, the Lodge of St. Anthony was re-opened. The R.W. Prov. G.M. having opened the lodge, a number of candidates were admitted by Bro. Skakle, Worshipful Master elect of the new lodge. Captain Hunter then addressed the brethren on Freemasonry, complimenting them on the thriving condition of the Province, and thanking them for their individual support. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to another room, where an excellent supper had been laid. Captain Hunter occupied the chair, and there were present:—Bro. Shakle, W.M.; Bro. John Annaud, Provost of Inverurie; Bro. J. S. Fraser, St. George's, Aberdeen; Bro. James Davidson, Inverurie; Bro. John Gordon, W.M. St. Ternan's Lodge; Bro. Wyllie, Inverurie; with deputations from the St. Nicholas and St. George's Lodges, Aberdeen. The usual Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and a very happy evening was spent. The lodge was originally founded in 1784, and has been dissolved about thirty-five years, only four or five of the old members surviving.

*METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, November 8, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, NOV. 2ND.

General Committee Boys' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 4. Lodge 142, St. Thomas's, Caledonian Hotel, Strand.

Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dille, Preceptor. Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.

Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, NOV. 4.

Lodge 12, Fortitude and Old Cumberland, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.

" 25, Robert Burns, Freemasons' Hall.
" 72, Royal Jubilee, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
" 83, United Lodge of Prudence, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
" 144, St. Luke's, Masons' Hall, Basinghall-street.
" 171, Amity, Ship Hotel, Greenwich.
" 188, Joppa, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
" 256, Unions, Freemasons' Hall.
" 1319, Asaph, Freemasons' Hall.

Mark Lodge 1, St. Mark's, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue Basinghall-st.
" 139, Panmure, Balham Hotel, Balham.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.

Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7.

Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.

British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.

St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Staacy, Preceptor.

Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dille, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.

St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mottlock, Preceptor.

West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, NOV. 5.

Colonial Board, at 3 o'clock.
Lodge 7, Royal York of Perseverance, Freemasons' Hall.

" 9, Albion, Freemasons' Hall.
" 18, Old Dundee, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
" 101, Temple, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 172, Old Concord, Freemasons' Hall.
" 217, Stability, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
" 765, St. James's.
" 1257, Grosvenor, Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi.
" 1259, Duke of Edinburgh, New Globe Tavern, Bow-road.

" 1261, Golden Rule, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue.
" 1298, Royal Standard, Marquess Tavern, Canonbury. Chap. 169, Temperance, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.

" 507, United Pilgrims, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.

Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.

Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.

Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.

Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.

Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.

Florence Nighmgale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.

Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Boltqn (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.

St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's-wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 6.

Grand Chapter, at 7.
Lodge 511, Zetland, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.

Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.

United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.

Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.

New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.

Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.

Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.

Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, NOV. 7.

Lodge 27, Egyptian, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.

" 45, Strong Man, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell.

" 136, Good Report, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.

" 192, Lion and Lamb, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street.

" 227, Ionic, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.

" 231, St. Andrew's, Freemasons' Hall.

" 538, La Tolerance, Freemasons' Hall.

" 554, Yarborough, Green Dragon, Stepney.

" 822, Victoria Rifles, Freemasons' Hall.

" 1155, Excelsior, Sydney Arms, Lewisham-road.

" 1351, St. Clement Danes, 265, Strand.

Mark Lodge 144, Grosvenor, Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi.

The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Pannure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.

Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.

United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.

Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.

Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsoby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, NOV. 8.

Lodge 33, Britannic, Freemasons' Hall.

" 134, Caledonian, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.

" 157, Bedford, Freemasons' Hall.

" 177, Domestic, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.

Mount Calvary Rose Croix Chapter, Freemasons' Tavern St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.

Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggerridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.

Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.

Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.

Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.

Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.

Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.

Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.

Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.

Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.

Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.

Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.

St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Gladstone Tavern, Brompton-road, S.W.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.

Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.

St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

BIRTHS.

Amos.—On Friday, September 6th, at Callao, Peru, South America, the wife of Henry C. Amos, Esq., of a son.

Reed.—Oct. 25th, at South Molton, the wife of Bro. Francis J. Reed, Org. of Lodge 421, of a daughter.

Advertisements.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only,
THE PEOPLE'S
HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS
VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lanbaugh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect,

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL,

Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each, containing 40 pages of crown quarto double columns, thus giving for 16s. 1,280 pages, or about 2,560 columns of letter-press, being twice as much matter as is given in any other History of Cleveland at three or four times the price.

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ord's History, the Work is Illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by TWEDDELL and SONS, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

ROUGH WEATHER HATS—12/6.

THE best Hat for Winter wear; thoroughly waterproof, at Bro.

W. J. JONES,
HAT MANUFACTURER,
73, Long Acre.

Sent carriage free on receipt of P.O.O. for 12/6, payable to WILLIAM JONES, Long Acre office.—N.B. Send number of inches round the head.

HATS! HATS! HATS!

The best in London.

JACKSON, from Christy's, Practical Hatter, 3, Dove Court, Old Jewry, E.C., begs to return his best thanks for past favours and in soliciting future orders assures all who may favour him with their patronage that he can confidently guarantee all his goods to be of the best workmanship and material.

Hats thoroughly done up, 6d.
Mourning Hat Bands, 6d.

Extension of the People's Market.

93 AND 94, BISHOPSGATE-STREET
WITHOUT.

The above Premises are now OPENED by JAMES GRANT, CITY POULTERER, CITY CHEESE-MONGER.

CAUTION TO FAMILIES AND ALL LARGE CONSUMERS.—In consequence of the high prices charged for meat, and the enormous inconvenience caused thereby to Families, JAMES GRANT has placed himself in immediate connection with several large Farmers and Bacon Curers, who will consign all their Goods direct to him, thereby saving a cost of from Ten to Fifteen per cent. which it is his determination to give the public the advantage of Low Prices, High Quality, Large Stock, Large Premises, Civility and Expedition. Wants of the age here satisfied, from the Public Benefactor.

J. GRANT, CITY POULTERER.
Agent and Salesman of all

F A R M P R O D U C E,

93 AND 94, BISHOPSGATE-STREET,
WITHOUT

FOR FISH.

Try GOW.

FOR POULTRY.

Try GOW.

FOR GAME.

Try GOW.

FOR BARRELLED OYSTERS.

Try GOW.

J. GOW.

1, HONEY-LANE MARKET, CHEAPSIDE.

Special quotations to large consumers, Hotels, Caterers, &c.

Country Orders promptly executed.

ONE ORDER WILL SECURE FUTURE PATRONAGE.

Knights Templar.

WANTED, to Purchase the Second-hand Furniture of an Encampment. Send full particulars to THOMAS LANE, Percy Cottage, Eastbourne.

MASONIC NOTE PAPER AND ENVELOPES,

MADE EXPRESSLY FOR THE

Craft, Royal Arch, Mark, Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, Knights Templar, Ark Mariners, Rose Croix, and 30th Degree.

Stamped in Relief in Correct Colours, and with Proper Emblems.

The Paper is of very SUPERIOR MANUFACTURE, packed in boxes, containing Five Quires, emblematically labelled,

Price Three Shillings.

ENVELOPES TO MATCH, SIXPENCE PER PACKET.

Every Freemason should order a sample, either direct, or through any stationer.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,

LONDON:—2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN, AND 198, FLEET-ST., E.C.
LIVERPOOL:—2, MONUMENT-PLACE.

For Cheap Watches, Clocks, Gold Chains and Jewellery, go to KIBBLES',

22, GRACECHURCH STREET
(one door from Lombard-street).

Gold Watches £2 15s.

Silver Watches £1 5s.

Timepieces... .. from 9s. 6d.

Every article warranted. Plate, Watches, and Jewellery bought or exchanged. List of Prices post free.

THE ENTR'ACTE,

A MUSICAL and THEATRICAL REVIEW,
Price One Penny. Used as a programme at the principal London and Provincial Music Halls. The Entr'acte enjoys an extensive circulation, and gets into the hands of every theatrical and music-hall artiste. It contains a splendid cartoon every week. First rate medium for advertisers. Subscribers can be supplied by post at 1/8 per quarter. Published every Saturday at 3, Brydges St., Covent Garden, W.C.

THE LONDON MIRROR.

Published every Saturday; price 4d.

The object of this journal is to set forth the claims of the many Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Prudential Institutions of the United Kingdom, and week by week to report their proceedings, whether as Meetings, Sermons, Anniversaries, or Elections, so as to present these National Institutions to the favour of the Public. Office, 59, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C.

"THE FREEMASON" OF ST. LOUIS.

—The Largest Masonic Monthly in the World. Published at St. Louis, Mo., by George Frank Goutley, Grand Secretary and Recorder of the four Grand Bodies of Missouri.

The Freemason contains tidings from every quarter of the world, and will be found of great advantage to all Masons, especially those interested in American affairs. Terms $2 per annum, and to those who subscribe for the London Freemason the price will be $1.50 currency. Postage free.

Subscriptions received at the Office of the London "Freemason," 198, Fleet-street.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST

of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by

MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT
CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district.

Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

CARPETS, MATTING & FLOORCLOTH.

THE Newly-Invented Solid, Non-fading, DUST-PROOF, DRAUGHT-PROOF, WATER-PROOF, and WASHABLE CARPETS and MATTING are the best Floor Coverings extant for Libraries, Bedrooms, Offices, &c. No other so Healthy, Clean, and Economical. Patterns can be had, Post Free, and Goods Carriage Free, of
MESSRS. CHILES & CO.,
57 AND 60, BELMONT STREET,
CHALK FARM ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

TESTIMONIAL (No. 41).

St. Andrew's Street, Cambridge, June 29th, 1872.
SIR.—Your note was forwarded to me here, and I am happy to inform you that the Dust Proof and Washable Carpets have given me great satisfaction. They require no scrubbing; merely to be washed with soap and water and dried with a cloth. I have not found the colours to wear off, even where most used.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

To J. E. JARRETT, Esq. M. SWANDALE.

The original letter of Mrs. Swandale can be seen in our Office, and others of a similar character from all parts of England.

The above Testimonial refers to The "Washable and Dust-Proof" Carpets laid down in Bedrooms.

N.B.—Patterns must be returned within four days post free—Postage 4d.

BRIDGE HOUSE HOTEL,

LONDON BRIDGE,

Opposite the South Eastern, and London, Brighton, and South Coast Railways.

THIS Hotel has great facilities for Meetings, Charitable Institutions, Wedding Breakfasts, Public Dinners, Balls, Soirees, and is allowed to be in real domestic comfort, one of the Best in the Metropolis, the tariff on application to
JOSEPH H. SPENCER.

City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street,
LONDON.

WELL adapted for Banquets, Balls, Amateur Dramatic Entertainments, Public Meetings, and Arbitrations. The large Hall is capable of seating upwards of Twelve Hundred people.
SIDNEY SPENCER, Manager.

Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st., E.C.

SPACIOUS Dining-rooms, Chop and Steak-rooms, Luncheon-bars, and Smoking Rooms. Rooms of all sizes, suitable for Auction Sales, Consultations, Arbitrations, Building Societies, &c.; also for Freemasons' Lodges and Banquets, Private Dinners, &c.
Guildhall Tavern Company (Limited), 52 and 53, Gresham-street,
GEORGE CRAWFORD, Manager and Secretary.

Masons' Hall Tavern,

MASONS' AVENUE, BASINGHALL-STREET, CITY.

THE above old-established Tavern is NOW OPEN, newly decorated, by Bro. CHARLES GOSDEN, late Manager of the Freemasons' Tavern Company. Every accommodation will be found for Lodges, Chapters, Mark and other degrees, for their Meetings, Dinners, Suppers, &c., and every attention will be paid to their comfort and enjoyment by the new Proprietor.

The Alexandra Restaurant,

7, CONDOTT-STREET, REGENT-STREET.

Public and Private Dining Rooms

First-class Cooking and Wines.

Open for Suppers after the Theatres.

Bro. F. HUBERICH, Proprietor.

"THE FREEMASON"

Supplied by

T. DRISCOLL, Wholesale Newsagent, 87, Farringdon-st., E.C.

South London Branch, 416, Wandsworth-road, S.W., eight doors from the London Chatham and Dover Railway Station.

Wholesale Publisher to the Trade.

DUBLIN.

Bro. CHARLES HEDGELONG,

NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKSELLER,

26, GRAFTON STREET, DUBLIN.

AGENT FOR "THE FREEMASON."

SWANSEA

Agent for the Freemason.

BRO. CHAS. MAGGS, 25, George-st., Swansea,

A large stock of Aprons, Jewels, Clothing, and every requisite for all Degrees of Freemasonry.

Agent for Kenning's Masonic Note Paper, Envelopes, Books, Candles, Perfumes, &c.

Advertisements received for "The Freemason."

CITY.

POTTLE & SON, 14 and 15, Royal Exchange,
City Agents for

"THE FREEMASON"

AND

"The Israelites found in the Anglo-Saxons,"
Just published, price 2s.6d.

SHARES in New Undertakings of a bona fide character successfully INFLUENCED and PLACED. Address, in perfect confidence, O.B., care of Mr. Marriage, 16, Blomfield-street, City.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

SO CALLED "ANCIENT LANDMARKS."

In my communication headed "Bro. Hughan's Old Charges," I hinted that Dr. Anderson first introduced "Ancient Landmarks" into the Masonic nomenclature. Since the above was mailed, I have reperused the pre-1717 MSS., and am now satisfied that my surmise was correct. I could not find the word "Landmarks" either in Halliwell, Matthew Cooke, Dowland, or any other of the early MSS. that have come under my notice; and what is more the brethren had no idea of Landmarks in olden time.

That the Operatives entertained no notion of Landmarks as far as their ritual was concerned, may be proved from the fact, that not only have they discarded "Moder Mary Bright" from the invocation, the legend of the four martyrs from their history, and substituted a new batch of legends unknown to the author of the Halliwell Poem, but they even substituted a new form of oath (Harleian MS. No. 1942). That they had no idea that Masonic laws, like those of "the Medes and Persians," were unalterable, can be equally proved from the language of the poem, thus: "They ordered their assembly to be held every year wheresoever they would, to amend the faults if anywhere found." Besides which, the constitution in Halliwell's MS. contains fifteen articles and fifteen points, while the constitution in Bro. Cooke's MS. has but nine of each, and all the subsequent constitutions differ more or less.

Supposing, now, for the sake of argument, that King Athelstan gave the Masons the first code of laws; I am, nevertheless, satisfied that all the laws in Halliwell's MS. could not have been sanctioned by Athelstan. For instance, King Athelstan was an illegitimate. The law in Halliwell! "So that the prentes be of lawful blod," would have been a direct insult to the king's parentage, and he never would have sanctioned it.

That the Operatives changed and altered their charges and laws may be seen by comparing the 7th point in Halliwell's MS. with the 7th point in Matthew Cooke's. Thus, the former, after forbidding intercourse with the Master's wife, goes on—"Ny by thy fellows concubyne, no more than thou wouldest he dede by thyne;" while in Cooke's MS. the charges, "That he covet not the wife, nor the daughter of his master's, neither of his fellows, but if it be in marriage, nor hold concubines, for the discord that might fall amongst them." Writers who have painted "our ancient brethren" as superior in morals, will be rather shocked to learn that concubinage was common amongst them, and that the subsequent prohibition thereof, did not arise from higher motives of religion or morality, but on account of the jealousies and discord which the system engendered among the brotherhood. But I am not now treating of the morals of the Operatives, but of a superstition engrafted on modern Masonry, viz., "Landmarks," from which the the ancients were quite free.

I now come to the American Landmark of Landmarks, which, when abolished by the Grand Lodge of England in 1845, brought forth such a torrent of invectives from our jurisprudence landmark sticklers—I mean the law of "free born." Assuming, now, for the sake of argument, that King Athelstan gave the identical fifteen articles and fifteen points in Halliwell's MS. to the Masons in 926, and that those articles and points must for ever be regarded by Masons as equal to those recorded in Holy Writ, the question will then be, whether the compound word of "free-born" can be found in Halliwell's MS.? To this I answer in the negative. The poem merely says, "That he no bondman prentys make."

Two reasons are assigned for that law. The first reason is, because the owner of the bondman was entitled to take his bondman away wherever he found him; and he might even take him out of the lodge; and in that case the brethren might feel disposed to take sides with the unfortunate bondman, and would thus be brought into collision with the law of the land. The second reason is based on the fable of the "Lord's children" that Euclid organized into the original fraternity. This, however, is too fanciful and frivolous to deserve notice. In Matthew Cooke's MS., written about a century after that of Halliwell, I find the phrase altered thus; "That no master, for no profit, take no apprentice for to be learned, that is born of bond blood." For which law, he gives substantially the same reasons as the Halliwell MS. To make this perfectly clear, I herewith give the whole paragraph from Matthew Cooke's MS.: "That no master, for no profit, take no apprentice, for to be learned, that is born of bond blood, for because of his lord, to whom he is bond, will take him as well he may from his heart and lead him with him out of the lodge, or out of his place that he worketh in; for his fellows per-adventure, would help him, and debate for him, and thereof manslaughter might arise—it is forbidden." Putting aside the second reason as worthless, it is evident that the main reason is not applicable to being born in bondage, but merely to the condition of bondage at the period of his apprenticeship. And as the author of Cooke's MS. furnishes no reason why he changed the phraseology, and admitting the theory of "irremovable Landmarks," he had no right to change the phrase under any circumstances. By substituting, therefore, the word "freemen" for "freeborn," the Grand Lodge of England very properly restored the legitimate Ancient Landmark, instead of removing one.

The plain matter of fact, however, is, the Operative Masons had no notion of Landmarks. This, and many other notions, have been fastened on modern Masonry by learned dreamers, who, believing in Anderson's history of Freemasonry, and being puzzled about some phrases, forms, and usages retained or introduced by Anderson into his constitution, history, or ritual, set themselves to work to solve those riddles; and imagining that the man in the moon wore a white apron and gloves on St. John's eve, the lunars were of course Masonized. This may be deemed by my reader a little too far fetched, but in reality it is not more ridiculous than many other theories. Thus, Oliver seriously assures us that "God Himself communicated the secrets of Masonry to Adam in Paradise." Such being his belief, he began to seek for the early history of Freemasonry in the land of Shinar, the Egyptian Pyramids, the Old Dispensation, the New Dispensation, and in every other kind of dispensation. Thus he and his like rambled among the Pagan mysteries, Christian mysteries, Templar mysteries, alchemists mysteries, and all other kind of imaginary mysteries; in short, they sought for information anywhere and everywhere, except in the right place. And being puzzled about the origin and reason of the law of "freeborn," instead of seeking for information in the old Masonic MSS., they rushed to Cruden's Concordance and finding there a reference to a passage, namely, "send away the bondwoman and her son," they exclaimed, "Aha! here we have it, freeborn, is certainly a Masonic Landmark, because Grand Master Abraham was commanded to send away the bondwoman" etc. With such dreamers for our guides, it is not surprizing that our fraternity is placed in a ridiculous position. Instead of transmitting a true history, and a consistent system of Masonic philosophy, our historians were justly denounced by Hallam as mendacious. And as to our philosophy, what is it? If Masons may lay claim to the idea of Landmarks, Universality ought to be deemed the landmark of Landmarks! This universality is clearly defined in the earliest constitutions of modern Masonry, thus: "Masons are now only charged to adhere to that religion in which all men agree (leaving each brother to his own particular opinions), that is, to be good men and true, men of honour and honesty, by whatever religious persuasion they may be distinguished." But Masons now pretend to be more holy than their brethren, not because they are more honest, or more honourable, but because they are Knight Templars, and are illumined by higher degrees, Christian degrees, and what not.*

The principle of Masonic universality is further enjoined, thus: "we are of all nations, tongues, kindreds, and languages." Thus teaching us to divest ourselves of the vanity and conceit of race or country. But learned English brethren now set themselves to work to prove that the Anglo-Saxon race stands in higher favour with the G.A.O.T.U. than the Celtic and other races, because, Isaiah said something, and Micah something, and these somethings and other somethings prove to their satisfaction that the Anglo-Saxons descended from the ten tribes of Israel! Now I want to know how all this is compatible with our boasted universality? What has Masonry to do with Knight Templars, or Christian degrees? Or what difference does it make to us, as Masons, whether a brother is a descendant of Shem, Ham, or Japhet; no rational man will undertake to maintain that Celtic, Scotch and French intellect, has not conduced its share towards the advancement of science, art, and philosophy. Why! the very origin of modern Masonry is mainly indebted to men of Celtic birth. Anderson and Dessaguliers, the authors of the earliest constitutions of the Grand Lodge of England, were both of Celtic descent. But anyhow, Masonry deals not with races or religionists, but with the characteristics of individuals. As long as a candidate believes in the universal religion—the religion in which all agree—and is a good man, and true, a man of honour and honesty, let his religion be what it may, let him be descended from any race or kindred, he is nevertheless fully entitled to receive the treatment of an equal and brother. To bolster up the superiority of certain religionists, nationalities, or races, over others, is certainly tending to sap the foundation of the whole Masonic system. Those brethren, therefore, who propagate notions tending to bring Masonry into conflict with religionists or races, are furthering anti-Masonic doctrines. And this brings me to another illustration of the result of those false teachings.

In my review of Bro. William Sewell Gardner's address on Henry Price, (Freemason, August 17th and 24th,) I proved that in 1733 Price established an illegal lodge in Boston; and that in 1752 some clandestine Masons established another lodge in Boston. Those lodges were subsequently legalized; the former by the appointment of Tomlinson by the G.M. of England in 1736, and the latter by a charter from the G.L. of Scotland in 1756. In 1784, Prince Hall, and other coloured Masons, petitioned for, and obtained from the G.L. of England a charter for the "African Lodge." No one then objected to the right of the G.L. of England to grant the said charter. The Masons of English origin had at that time taken no steps to declare themselves independent, and I have indubitable proof that the African Lodge was then repeatedly visited by white brethren. In 1792, the white Masons of English and Scotch origin united and formed the present G.L. of Massachusetts, of which no formal notice was given to the G.L. of England. After that event, the African Lodge (whose origin was certainly more legitimate than that of either of the whites) was tabooed by the white lords. After the death of Prince Hall, the Africans imitated the example of the Caucasians, that is, they set up a G.L. of their own. Many attempts have, however, been made by the coloured Masons to unite with the white, without avail. When the anti-slavery feeling began to gain strength in the Northern States, enquiries began to be made in some of the Grand Lodges as to the origin and legality of the Negro organizations, and committees were appointed to investigate; the result was, in one quarter, it was reported, that the Negroes did receive a charter at one time from the G.L. of England, but that the G.L. of Massachusetts afterwards cheated the Negroes out of it. Another report was circulated, that the Grand Lodge of England itself cheated the Negroes out of the said charter; and since which time they worked under a copy only of the original, and were therefore illegal. In 1869 I published in the American Freemason, that I saw the African Lodge charter, and pronounced it genuine. Subsequently a Committee of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts confirmed my statement, but quibbles and dodges were used to defeat union or acknowledgment. Among the objections raised was, a doubt whether Prince Hall and his associates were legally made Masons when they received their charter. Again, it was urged what right had the Grand Lodge of England to encroach on the Massachusetts jurisdiction in 1784? The charter was, therefore, illegal, and every one made under it was clandestine. And still again, what right had the Africans to secede from the Grand Lodge of England? And still again, what right had one Lodge to form a Grand Lodge when all the jurisprudence luminaries declare, that the Ancient Landmark requires three Lodges to form a Grand Lodge? All these objections have been met one by one. The jurisprudence-mongers have been driven from all their lines of defence, so that the old arguments are no longer repeated. But now they have entrenched themselves within their last fortification—the Landmark of Landmarks, namely, “freeborn.” They claim now that their tender conscience alone debar them from doing justice to the coloured Masons. “What will become of Masonry,” say they, “if we suffer the Landmark of freeborn to be trifled with?” etc.?

[* We beg to differ from our worthy Brother, as we have not been able to discover any evidence of such questionable distinction on the part of Masonic Knights. —Ed. F.]

I therefore hope that this communication will not only serve to dispel a number of errors and superstitions that have unfortunately crept into Masonry, but that it will also tend to remove unfounded scruples from the minds of those conscientious worthies. I trust, they will be satisfied now, that a good man and true, a man of honour and honesty, whose skin is a few shades darker than their own, may be acknowledged as a brother Mason, without the least fear of violating any Landmark whatever.

Respectfully and Fraternally yours,
JACOB NORTON.

Boston, U.S. September 26th, 1872.

[We have inserted Bro. Norton's letter with pleasure, and beg to assure our American friends that as far as possible we are anxious to place the columns of the Freemason at their service. We publish not for England alone, but for the world, and the more cosmopolitan its articles the better.—ED. F.]

MASONRY A NEED OF MANKIND.

BY WILLIAM ROUNSEVILLE.

We confidently state it as an axiom, that no great social or co-operative association was ever successful and permanent unless it was imperiously demanded by the wants and necessities of mankind, in the place where and the time when it originated. Allowing this to be true, we prove the necessity of Masonry as a social and co-operative society at once, for it has, by its success and permanence, proved its claim to that appellation.

But it may not be amiss to examine the subject more in detail. When a man is about to traverse a dangerous route which is beset by robbers and assassins, he seeks to associate with him such other persons as may have the journey to perform, and in whom he may confide, that the combined strength of all may be sufficient to meet and overcome the dangers and difficulties that may be met by the way. The circumstances demand such an association of power, and it springs into existence. The dangerous pathway becomes safe—the object of the association is gained—the necessity is supplied—the society has been successful.

In this world, men are the travellers on that dangerous route. The evils and obstacles which they encounter are the robbers and assassins by which it is beset. These are such that a single individual, unaided and alone, must succumb to their overwhelming force. Many are the places on his life journey that he cannot defend himself with his own right arm alone. He needs the assistance of others, and this he must have or miserably fail. He can no more safely travel the journey of life alone, than the traveller over the dangerous, robber-frequented, lonely road can pass his enemies unscathed.

Mankind are selfish. Each individual cares more for himself than for his neighbour; in fact, it may be said he cares all for himself and none for his neighbour. This is emphatically the case in the earlier stages of society. It would scarcely be too strong an expression to call them all Ishmaelites, and to say of each, “his hand is against every man, and every man's hand is against him.” But even Ishmaelites may combine their strength for common safety. That very selfishness that possesses the human mind indicates the benefit of social organization, and leads to a concentration of individual power. In the light of these facts, we can realize how, in the dim ages of a remote antiquity, such an association as that now called Masonry could spring into existence. It was a union of strength, social influence, and fraternal assistance for the benefit of the members, which should, while it did no man injustice, give aid and support to all those who had given their promise to be faithful to the laws of the institution; which should enable those within its circle to avail themselves of the power and influence of all to overcome the difficulties that they might meet in their life journey; which should give to one the strength of all, and to all the influence of every individual member.

It was one of the most natural things in life that such an institution should be established, for it was a necessity to mankind. It would have been much more wonderful had not that want of man culminated in an organization to meet it. Man needed Masonry, therefore Masonry was created. It has been successful, and permanent. It has been successful, for it now prevails over every part and in every division and country of the globe. On Masonry the sun never sets. An institution established in all climes, and possessing members under all governments, could hardly be called a failure. It is permanent. History does not record when the corner-stone of the first Masonic Lodge was laid. But away back in the dim and darkening aisles of the past, history speaks of it as existing—then an ancient society, and wielding an influence that was respected by Popes and potentates.

At no time does the memory of man run to the contrary of the existence of Masonry. It is now acknowledged to be the oldest human organization on the globe. It ante-dates the Germans' reformation—the Christian religion itself—the great improvements in architecture of the middle ages—in fact, all other institutions known to man. China and Japan, Greece and Egypt, may not boast of existing institutions of as high antiquity. During all this time it has stood calm and unshaken; sometimes the pet and favourite of imperial power and religious favour, and at others the butt and target for priestly anathema and kingly edict. We may positively claim for it permanency. Thus it has the two elements which prove it to be a want—a necessity—of the human race.

There are those who are willing to admit that in past ages Masonry was a necessity, who will not concede the point that is now needed. Now we have religion of a more practical character—one that is made up to a more practical pattern than when Masonry first existed: there are other social enterprises, founded on liberal principles, that ought to supercede Masonry. So these opponents of the institution argue. But do these do away with selfishness? do they possess a superior influence to Masonry in making men virtuous and charitable? and do not these objectors know that Masonry has often wrested the sword of persecution from the red hand of professed Christianity, and saved the lives which that sword was raised to destroy? Do they not realize that Masonry has softened the asperities of religious enthusiasm, and that even Christianity owes something of a spirit of mildness and toleration which happily now prevails to the benign influence of an institution that teaches that virtue and justice are the only true criterions of merit, and that he is a brother who has charity for all mankind.

Masonry will be a need of mankind as long as selfishness prevails—as long as other instrumentalities fail to influence communities to a perfect and practical morality—as long as religionists are intolerant, society exclusive, and the poor and weak are unprotected. As it is a need of this age as well as of those which have preceded it, we have no fears of its demolition by the puny arms of superstition, fanaticism, and intolerance that are raised against it. It has met and withstood heavier shocks than these. When it is no longer needed—when its work is done—whether that period comes in ten or ten thousand years, Masonry, honoured in life and crowned with glory for its noble charities in death, will sink calmly to rest. Then, and not until then! And no effort of intolerant priest or ignorant layman will hasten the period by a single hour.—Trowel.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS FOR CUMBERLAND & WESTMORELAND.

Thursday, the 7th November, 1872, will be long remembered as a “Red Letter Day” in the annals of Freemasonry in the above Province, the occasion being the Inauguration of the newly formed Province of Mark Masters, and the Installation of its highly respected and popular Chief as Provincial Grand Master.

The ceremony was performed by the Right Worshipful P.G.M.M. Mason for Lancashire, Wm. Romaine Callender; assisted by the R.W.P.G.M.M. Mason for Aberdeenshire, Capt. Hunter; Very Worshipful Bro. C. F. Matier, G.J. Warden; Worshipful Bro. James Porter, G.S. Deacon; Worshipful Bro. Thomas Hargreaves, G.J. Deacon; Jno. Chadwick, Prov. G. Sec., Lancashire; W. O. Walker, P.G. Prov. M.M.O., Lancashire; Prince, P.P.G.S. Bearer; W. Roberts, P.P.G.S.O., Lancashire; T. Walker, Prov. G.D.C.; J. Whitwell, M.P., D.P.G.M.M. Mason; George Galloway, Prov. G.J. Warden, Lancashire; F. W. Hayward, P.G.S. Deacon; G. G. Hayward, P.G. Purst.; T. Blacklock, P.G.S. Warden; Rev. W. Cockett; Edward Busher, P.G.S. Bearer, W.M. 60, Court S.W. 60; Pratchitt, J.W. 60; J. A. Wheatley, M.O. 60; D. Bell; J. R. Tickle, 151; Jos. Nicholson, W.M. 151; Carter; Rev. Rutherford, Chaplain, 147; G. Horder, M.D.; W. Henry, M.D., Whitehaven; Geo. Carrick; Geo. Shannon, M.D., Wigton; W. Thornton; W. B. Abrahams, T. B. Arnison, Barnes, Bewes, Fearon, etc., etc., etc.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the “Cumberland Lodge, No. 60,” Carlisle.

The Lodge was opened at high twelve, when Bros. Lord Bective, P.G. Master-elect, and Whitwell, D.P.G. Master-elect, were installed Worshipful Masters by special dispensation from the Grand Master.

Grand Lodge was opened at one o'clock by Bro. Callender as Grand Master; Capt. Hunter, Grand Senior Warden; George Galloway, Grand Junior Warden; and the rest of the offices by the Provincial Grand Lodge Officers of Lancashire.

The Right Worshipful Bro. the Earl of Bective was then announced, and having been admitted, the patent of his appointment from the Grand Master was read. He was then presented by V.W. Bros. Capt. Hunter, and C. F. Matier to the acting Grand Master, and by him installed and invested and proclaimed, with Grand Honours, Provincial Grand Master for Cumberland and Westmoreland. The Earl of Bective then appointed his officers as follows:—

John Whitwell, 60, M.P. D.P.G.M.M.
Edward Busher, P.G.S.B., 60 P.G.S.W.

F. W. Hayward, P.G.S.D., 60 } P.J.W.
 Rev. J. Simpson, 60, L.L.D. } P.G. Chap.
 Rev. Wm. Cockett, 60 } Asst. G.C.
 Joseph Nicholson, 151 } P.G. Treas.
 P. de Egglesfield Collin, 151 } P.G. Regis.
 James Porter, G.S.D., 60 } P.G. Sec.
 George Carrick, 60 } Assistant Sec.
 Wm. Pratchitt, 60 } Prov. G.M.O.
 E. W. Henry, 151, M.D. } Prov. G.S.O.
 Jas. A. Wheatley, 60 } Prov. G.J.O.
 E. H. Fairclough, 147 } P.G.S. Deacon
 George Shannon, 147, M.D. } P.G.J. Deacon
 John R. Tickle, 151 } P.G. Dir. Cers.
 T. B. Arnison, 60 } P.G. Asst. Cers.
 John Wood, 147 } P.G. I of Wks.
 William Thornton, 147 } P.G.S. Bearer
 Edward Fearon, 151 } P.G. Stnd. B.
 G. P. Abrahams, 147 } P.G. Organist
 James Robertson, 60 } P.G. Purst.
 John Barnes, 60 } P.G. Tyler
 William Court, 60 }
 Thos. McMechan, 60 } P.G. Stewards
 James Gardiner, 151 }

The Secretary next stated that he had received letters, expressive of regret, from Bros. the Earl of Carnarvon, Prov. G.M.M.; Lord Skelmersdale, D. Prov. G.M.M. Lancashire; Banister, P.G.M.O., England, and others.

It was then proposed by Bro. Busher, S.W., and seconded by Bro. Whitwell, D.P.G.M.M., and carried by acclamation, that the heartiest thanks of this Provincial Grand Lodge be accorded to the Right W.P.G.M.M. Mason, William Romaine Callender and his Provincial Grand Officers for their presence and assistance on this occasion, and the same was ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge.

The whole of the business being finished, and hearty good wishes having been given, the lodge was duly and solemnly closed according to antient custom, at two o'clock, p.m.

The whole of the brethren then adjourned to an excellent Banquet, prepared under the auspices of Bro. F. W. Hayward, at the "Crown and Mitre" Hotel, and gave the greatest satisfaction.

The Earl of Bective, M.P., presided, and was supported right and left by Bros. Capt. Hunter, W. Romaine Callender, John Whitwell, Chadwick, etc. The Vice-chair was occupied by Bro. Busher, supported by Bros. Dr. Henry, Dr. Shannon, Dr. Horder, Porter, Galloway, etc., etc.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed, and a most successful, numerous, and influential gathering was brought to a close at six o'clock p.m.

We feel convinced that under such an auspicious beginning Mark Masonry in this province will soon rank second to none.

GRAND LODGE OF CANADA.
 ANCIENT FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS.

To all to whom these Presents shall come:
 Greeting

WHEREAS, official information has this day been received that, at the last Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of the State of Vermont, the following resolution was adopted, viz.:—

"Whereas, The Grand Lodge of Canada still refuses recognition of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and is asserting jurisdiction over lodges located in the Province of Quebec; and

"Whereas, Such assertion of jurisdiction violates the well-settled principles of Masonic law, applicable to such cases; therefore,

"Resolved, That the Grand Master is hereby instructed (unless the Grand Lodge of Canada at its next session withdraws from and ceases to assert any jurisdiction over any lodge or Masons in the Province of Quebec) to issue circulars to the different Grand Lodges, as well as to the subordinate lodges of this State, that the Grand Lodge of Vermont and its subordinates have suspended all Masonic intercourse with the Grand Lodge of Canada and Masons under its jurisdiction until the wrong is made right."

AND WHEREAS, the Grand Lodge of Canada, since its establishment in October, 1855, has claimed and exercised exclusive Masonic jurisdiction and authority over the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, which claims to masonic SOVEREIGNTY have been recognized and admitted, not only by the Masons of Quebec and the Grand Lodge of VERMONT, but also by Grand Lodges in every quarter of the globe; and

WHEREAS, While we readily admit the right which our sister Grand Lodges have (in accordance with their knowledge of the facts and of Masonic law) to recognize and to establish friendly relations with any body of Masons whom they may deem worthy of that honour, WE, at the same time, most emphatically deny the right of any Grand Lodge to dictate to us as to the course we are to follow in such cases; and we therefore at once indignantly repel the attempt thus made by the Grand Lodge of Vermont to coerce this Grand Body into the recognition of a body of Masons who, without the assent of this Grand Lodge, and in contempt of all Masonic law and precedent, have thus attempted to wrest from us a portion of our lawful territory and authority. The Grand Lodge of Canada, while jealous of her own honour, and careful at all times not to encroach upon the rights or prerogatives of others, will permit no INTERFERENCE, and will submit to no DICTATION from any quarter whatever.

NOW THEREFORE, for the reasons above stated, and by virtue of the powers vested in us as Grand Master, WE do hereby order and direct that all official correspondence and communication between this Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodge of the State of Vermont shall now cease and terminate; and we do hereby charge and command all our worshipful and loving Brethren within our jurisdiction to refuse admission into our Lodges, and to hold no Masonic communication with any Mason hailing from the jurisdiction of the said Grand Lodge of Vermont. WE also further order and direct that this Edict shall remain in full force and effect until the Grand Lodge of Vermont shall rescind the unfriendly and unjustifiable resolution above recited.

Done and passed at the Office of the Grand Master, at Simcoe, this twenty-fourth day of October, A.D. 1872, A.L. 5872.

WM. M. WILSON, Grand Master.

SOUTHAMPTON.

THE NEW MAYOR.—The dignity of chief magistrate was on Saturday last, November 9th, unanimously conferred by the Town Council, upon Bro. Alderman Wm. Hickman, one of our most worthy and enterprising townsmen. Bro. Hickman was born on the 9th November, 1824, and is the second son of Mr. John Hickman, of Nottingham. He has been a resident in Southampton since 1831, and commenced his professional career in the office of the well-known solicitor of this town, Mr. Charles Davies, who was for several years a member of our Corporation. Having been admitted as an attorney in 1854, a partnership was effected with Mr. Davies, now long since dead, and for many years subsequently Bro. Hickman had the sole direction of what is well-known as one of the most distinguished legal firms. He has held many legal appointments, including that of solicitor to the Pier and Harbour Board, to which he was appointed in 1859; honorary solicitor and clerk to Bishop's Charity; honorary solicitor to the Ragged School since its formation; and has been twice under-sheriff, being appointed to that position by the late Mr. John Carter and Mr. G. S. Brinton. But though his professional engagements have been so numerous Bro. Hickman has never lost an opportunity by his presence and aid of promoting every object for the good of his fellow men. The Friendly Societies have found in him a warm and active supporter; and no movement has ever been originated for succouring the poor in a time of prevailing distress, for carrying out objects for the general good, or for recognizing praiseworthy efforts in a right direction that Bro. Hickman has not been the first to countenance, both by generous assistance and by the wisest counsel. He has been a vice-president of the Polytechnic Institution for many years, and as to Freemasonry, the positions he has occupied shows the high estimation in which he is held by those with whom he is thus actively associated. He is Past Officer of the Grand Lodge of England and Past Senior Grand Warden of the Province of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight; Past Grand Principal of Royal Arch Masons of the same province; W. Master of the Royal Gloucester and Southampton Lodges (the latter two years successively); First Principal of the Royal Gloucester Chapter (two years following), and of the Chapters of Concord and New Forest; a member of the 30th degree of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and the Sovereign of the "Canute" Rose Croix Chapter 18th, which was principally established by his exertions in Southampton; Commander of Knight Templars Encampment in the same town, and Master of the St. Andrew's Mark Lodge; and he has undertaken the duties of steward to the three great Masonic Charities for Girls, Boys, and the Aged and Decayed, and is himself a Life Governor of each Institution. His political opinions have always been pronounced and unmistakable; he was the agent of Mr. Moffat, one of the Liberal candidates at the last election, and has been one of the recognized leaders of the Liberal party. In that capacity he has fought many a good fight in contesting the various wards in the Liberal interest, and though for a time unsuccessful, the advancing waves of progress and enlightenment at length swept back the obstructiveness of Toryism, and he was chosen with but faint signs of opposition for the ward of St. Mary, which he continued to represent till an opportunity was afforded for bestowing upon him, in recognition of past services, the honour of the Aldermanic gown. At the last election of the School Board he was the selected champion of the Liberal Association of St. Mary, and gaining a seat in that important Board he has been a member of it ever since its formation. He was also recently unanimously elected chairman of the Hartley Council. In every public capacity his career has been marked by untiring industry, enlightened convictions, and indomitable perseverance, and we predict that under his rule our good old town will find that the character which it has achieved for public spirit and hospitality will be maintained, and that it possesses in its chief magistrate one who will preserve the dignity of the chair, and efficiently perform the high and important duties devolving on the occupant of that honourable position.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—

In your report of the Third Anniversary Banquet of the Star Lodge of Instruction (No. 1275), held on Tuesday, the 29th ult., at Bro. Hobson's, New Cross-road, Bro. R. W. Little is therein stated to have returned thanks on behalf of the Grand Officers, which, if allowed to pass unnoticed, might possibly put him in a wrong position with the Craft.

The speech made by Bro. Little was in acknowledgment of the compliment paid to him by the W.M. but disclaiming all right thereto, he being only an Officer of Grand Lodge.

While writing, allow me also to correct the figures which I am reported to have given as to the strength of the lodge, &c., instead of 600 members on the books say 300. The joining members last year were only 65 and not 200, and the average attendances 22 weekly.

The lodge has been so prosperous, that I feel we may rest perfectly satisfied with the facts as they stand.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,
 Yours very fraternally,
 CHAS. J. DAVIDGE.

Hon. Sec. to Star Lodge of Instruction (No. 1275).

"ANCIENT YORK AND LONDON
GRAND LODGES," BY BRO. LEON HYNEMAN.

A REVIEW BY BRO. W. J. HUGHAN, OF TRURO, CORNWALL.

We intend to write a review of Brother Hyneman's latest work in the same spirit that the author states actuated him, viz: "Plain, outspoken, and severe, which some may consider too much so; but, in our judgment, the subjects merited all and more than we have expressed. The investigation we consider a duty," and although not a pleasant one, having the means at hand to answer many of Bro. Hyneman's reckless statements, we should be culpable if our respect and esteem for our brother's Masonic labours acted as a deterrent to exposing his errors; and moreover, we are persuaded that he would himself be the last to desire our silence, just as he will be the first to acknowledge the unfortunate blunders he has made in his great anxiety to uphold the pure and ancient Freemasonry which, like him, we strongly believe in, and in such alone.

We come fresh from the city wherein Freemasonry flourished during the last century, and which many in America are so proud—without the slightest reason—to be called after, namely, York. We have examined all the ancient records existing in the archives of the "York Lodge," (now the representative, it may be said, of the extinct "Grand Lodge of England,") and also those in the Grand Lodge, London, and have carefully transcribed from them everything of value to the present inquiry, and, therefore, we are in a position to speak positively on the subject, supported as we are by authentic documents, many of which are but little known, and some not at all, beyond the threshold of a few antiquaries in England.

Bro. Hyneman has written his work "in the interest of pure, legitimate Masonry, * * * not in the view of what Masonry is as expressed in these days, but what it should be." We are sorry, however, to find that he considers the "popular Masonic writers of the past and present time have created, through their publications, a literature inimical to every feature and principle of legitimate Masonry, which, as historical, is mainly mythical; if traditional, fabulous; if symbolical, sectarian, and destructive of universal catholic Masonic principles." In some respects his sweeping censure has been merited, but surely not so of all, or even of the generality of our able historians.

"We are opposed," he says, "to all sectarian allusion or illustration in Masonry." So are we, excepting so far as such may truly be said to be an integral part of Freemasonry, and so we have been led to believe are many in Europe and America, whose sympathies are for actual Freemasonry. Bro. Hyneman states his "review does not take in the union of the two bodies of Masons, but reaches to the time when it was above being consummated." It is also "confined chiefly to Anderson's two Books of Constitutions and Preston's Illustrations." So much by the way of preface. We are glad to confirm the careful and exact quotations made by Bro. Hyneman, and can assure our readers the little book is worth more than its trifling cost, did it contain nothing else but these valuable extracts from works which few possess, excepting the author aforesaid, and others like ourselves, who are Masonic students. Now, then, to our task.

We cannot too strongly express our regret to find Bro. Hyneman, at the outset, stating so unequivocally "We affirm that Anderson is not to be credited. The Books of Constitutions were written purposely to deceive, to mislead, and misrepresent facts as they existed; and if his reports of Grand Lodge proceedings are true copies of Grand Lodge records, then the records were corrupted with the design to mislead the reader." (!) The Rev. Dr. Anderson, (perhaps we had better omit the "Rev.," as some have such strange antipathy to so honourable a title,) in his history of the Grand Lodge of England, (and also the Rev. Dr. Entick, and others who followed him,) mainly copied from the records of the Grand Lodge of England, which were written by the Grand Secretaries, and duly confirmed by the members as faithful narratives of the proceedings. Unless, indeed, we except the traditional histories prior to the last century, which usually were free renderings of the ancient MSS. that we have just published in our "Old Charges of British Freemasons," and which, in some instances, Dr. Anderson unwisely, we think, altered.

This being the case, we feel compelled to object most strongly to Bro. Hyneman's assertions, especially when his ipse dixit is, in the language of the Keystone, "strongly tinted with acerbity and personal rancour." We honour the author for his "bold advocacy of pure and unadulterated Freemasonry," and we gladly admit that he has done a good work for the Craft in publishing so many excellent and accurate reprints of our old and scarce Masonic volumes, which otherwise would have been but little known by thousands of our institution, who now read and study them with profit; but we must enter our protest against such wholesale denunciations and exposures of men who acted according to their knowledge, and did their best generally for the welfare of the society. We do not look upon Anderson's Constitutions "as of divine authority," and we make bold to say that, beyond the fancies so prolific in Brother Hyneman's brain, no one else ever has, or ever heard of anyone so doing; but we do say, that these Constitutions are our guides, if we wish to understand the past history of the Craft, and if not all that we wish, they are, at all events, most useful as illustrative of the proceedings of the early members of the first Grand Lodge in the world. "The 1717 movement was not a revival, as Anderson has it—revolution is the proper term." Suppose we grant the point, and call the doings of 1716-7 revolutionary, what then? We have still the ancient MSS. to light us in our explorations, and many pre-1717 records of Lodges are also in existence. In many respects the transactions of the second decade of the last century were masonically, intensely, and expressly, revolutionary; and advisedly so, for, without many radical alterations, there would have been no Freemasonry of to-day.

There never was a Grand Lodge prior to 1716-7, and neither the York Grand Lodge, nor any other Grand Lodge, has "a record prior to 1717," although Bro. Hyneman says otherwise. We challenge the production of any Lodge minute or record of any kind whatsoever, of a trustworthy character, which mentions the institution of a Grand Lodge antecedent to 1716-7. Records of individual Lodges exist before then, but not of Grand Lodges. This should be always remembered in this inquiry. Bro. Hyneman proceeds to explain the motives which actuated Dr. Anderson and others in organizing the New Grand Lodge of 1717. These we will next notice. He states that prior to 1717 the "Craft in the south of England still held their relation to the York Grand Lodge;" that there were "Lodges in London and other parts of the south of England which did not join the revolutionists, but retained their connection with the Grand Lodge at York, and that ambitious Masons in London, effected "a long pre-entertained purpose" in thus organizing the Grand Lodge of 1717. "Hence the ignoring the existence of the York Grand Lodge, and their silence in regard to everything concerning the revolutionary movement." These assertions are wholly untrue, and opposed to every scrap of information preserved in this country, and especially antagonistic to all the documents still in existence at York. In the first place, there never was a Grand Lodge until 1716-7, so the Craft in the south of England could not be related to a Grand Lodge at York prior to 1717, for the "Grand Lodge of all England" held at York was not in existence until a few years later than that period, and never before. For information on this point, we beg to refer our readers to our "Masonic Sketches and Reprints," published by the "Masonic Publishing Company," 626 Broadway, New York; also "History of Freemasonry at York," "Masonic Annual," M. C. Peck and Son, Hull, Yorkshire, wherein we have given quotations from the records of this Grand Lodge, and proved the early origin of a Lodge in York, and the modern character, so to speak, of the Grand Lodge. In proof also of our position, we may refer Brother Hyneman and others to the Master of York Lodge No 236, or to Bro. William Cowling, Past Master and Treasurer, who will be happy to confirm my extracts, as they were made in the presence of the latter accomplished Mason. Bros. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., Past Grand Chaplain of England, (Swillington near Leeds,) and J. G. Findel, of Leipsic, have also made similar copies of these documents. The Grand Lodge of all England, held at York, never granted a warrant to any Lodge in London or the south of England until A.D. 1779, when the Lodge of Antiquity, in consequence of a dispute with the Grand Lodge of England, (styled by some the "Moderns,") left its first love and came under the York branch, as a "Grand Lodge South of the River Trent." It had, however, but a short history, authorized at least but two Lodges to work in London, and in the next decade of that century again joined its mother Grand Lodge. Soon after its secession there were thus four Grand Lodges at work in England, viz.: (a) the Grand Lodge of England, ("Moderns," so-called); (b) Grand Lodge of all England, (York); (c) the Grand Lodge of England according to the old Constitutions, (styled the "Ancients," and erroneously the York Masons, but they never had any connection with the Grand Lodge at York); and (d) the Grand Lodge South of the Trent, (Lodge of Antiquity.)

We challenge Bro. Hyneman to produce one single document even in support of his affirmation of any long pre-arranged plan of reviving or revolutionizing Freemasonry A.D. 1717. It was the work mostly of Dr. Dessaguliers and Dr. Anderson, initiated early in the last century, and certainly nothing has yet been submitted at all indicative of any long pre-arranged plan of action by Masons to form the Grand Lodge of England. That being so, we are at a loss to know what justification there is for Bro. Hyneman's statement. Our brother does not like the allusion to the "old Lodge at York city" by Dr. Anderson; but, in all probability, that was all Bro. Anderson knew of it at the time. It was but an old Lodge until the 27th December, 1725, when Bro. Charles Bathurst was chosen Grand Master. The year 1725 to York was what the year 1717 was to London. Before these years neither had Grand Masters nor Grand Lodges, and York followed London some eight years after the former's revival or revolution, (whatever term is preferred.)

Before A.D. 1725, at York, the presiding officer was called President,* and the next in office Deputy President, and until August 10, 1725, the offices of Master and Wardens never once occur, so that it was but an old Lodge in York city for some time after the institution of the first Grand Lodge in London, A.D. 1716-7.

Bro. Hyneman remarks that the Masons at York considered as foreign to Masonic propriety "the use of printer's ink for the purpose of bringing the Fraternity prominently before the public." Whatever they may have considered, we know that, in the second year of their existence as a Grand Lodge, a speech by the Junior Warden was printed, viz, December 27, 1726, and that it went through several editions.

We are told that there is a "meanness in the intended inferences to be drawn in Anderson's Constitutions discredit to the Masonic institution, and disreputable to the author and all who sanctioned the publication," (page 24.)

*So that all the brethren styled Grand Masters at York, prior to 1725, were simply described in the records as Presidents.

(To be Continued.)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Aids to Study	687
Bro. Hughan's Old Charges	688
Grand Lodge of Quebec	689
Bro. Pearson and the Mayoralty of Liverpool	690
The Canadian Masons and the Great Fire at Chicago	691
Reviews	691
House Committees and their Rights	692
CRAFT MASONRY:—
Metropolitan	692
Provincial	694
India	694
MARK MASONRY:—
Metropolitan	694
Provincial	694
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR:—
Provincial	695
Royal Masonic Institution for Girls	695
CORRESPONDENCE:—
An old Masonic Print	696
Non-resident members of Lodges	696
Masonic Meetings for next week	697
Advertisements..... 685, 686, 697, 698, 699,	700
SUPPLEMENT (Eight Pages):—
NOTES AND QUERIES:—
Our Ancient Constitutions	701
Notes on the Orders of the Temple and Hospital... ..	701
Secretaryship of the Girls' School	701
Grand Chapter	702
Imposing Masonic Ceremonial in Liverpool.....	704
Consecration of the Oxford University Rose Croix
Chapter	705
Masonic Hall for Dalkey.....	706
Grand Lodge of Scotland	706
Provincial Grand Lodge of Derbyshire.....	707
List of Bro. Little's Committee	708

AIDS TO STUDY.

BY. BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER.

XV.

Wonderful as were the ancient predictions of the downfall of Egypt, as placed upon record at a time when such an event seemed to be amongst the most improbable of things, quite as wonderful are the prophecies of the fate of Assyria and Babylon, promulgated about the same time as those concerning Egypt, and when these great empires were the most powerful and dominant of States, and were receiving homage and tribute from almost all other nations. There are writers who affirm that all these prophecies were written after the events, and that it has been only by a pious fraud that they have been assigned to inspiration from Him who seeth the end from the beginning, and has made it a test of His omniscience as against the pretensions of false gods, that He foretells things before they come to pass, as, also, that He directs or makes them subservient to His great purpose in the final happiness of the human race, and in the manifestation of His own glory. But if it fell within the compass of probability that the overthrow of these great empires could have been foreseen by an astute politician, looking narrowly into the foundation on which they respectively stood, and the principles at work within them, as well as into the character of their external relations, how, I would ask these wise critics, can they account for the predictions which portray the condition of the empires in all time to come? We live in the year A.D. 1872. Ezekiel prophesied of Egypt about 590 B.C.—that is about 2,500 years ago—that it should be laid waste and desolate, from the tower of Syene even to the border of Ethiopia—that her cities should be laid waste—that she should become a base kingdom, even the basest of kingdoms—that she should no more have a prince of her own to sway the sceptre. How should all this have been foreseen, if even the overthrow of its great power could have been? Its geographical position, its great resources, and its large civilised and ingenious population combined to render such events as those foretold, in the highest degree improbable. Nevertheless, as we now see, they have all literally come to pass. The greater part of the country remains desolate and waste, her magnificent cities are no more, and the few of her ancient inhabitants who remain are the most degraded or basest of the land, the slaves of the Moslem slaves who rule. In like manner, the prophecies relating to Assyria and Babylon have been literally fulfilled, though their present condition could never have been foreseen by the most astute and penetrating politician or philosopher, looking through the vista of 2,500 years. The man, who after due deliberation, and having a fair knowledge of facts, can bring himself to believe they could have done so, must possess a strangely formed mind, or his predilections and prejudices must hold his judgment in a fearful state of thralldom.

But we have now to take a glance at the prophetic intimations upon record, touching the destiny of the once great empire of Assyria.

The very slight sketch I have given of the Assyrian empire is sufficient to show that it was one of great extent, and of mighty power. Its capital, Nineveh, was one of the wonders of the world. Strabo intimates that the city was much larger than Babylon. According to Diodorus, it was of an oblong shape, of more than 54 miles in circuit; 1,500 towers, each 200 feet in height, crowned its walls, and rendered its defence so strong that it was deemed impregnable. The walls themselves were 100 feet high, and so broad that three chariots might have been driven abreast upon them. The prophets have reference to its magnificence and vaunted security, when they speak of it as "the famed place," and "the stronghold"; and also as "the rejoicing city, that sat in security, with its silver and gold, its carved lintels and cedar-wood, its pleasant furniture, and its valiant men and chariots." It would appear that the population of the famed city bore no proportion to its magnitude. In the time of Jonah, about 860 B.C., there appears to have been six score thousand young children amongst the inhabitants. Suppose these to have been of the age of three years and under, this would give, according to the usual rate of calculation, about 600,000 souls for the entire population, which we may increase to 700,000, as the number of those that "could not discern between their right hand and their left hand" is said to have somewhat exceeded the number specified.

This leads to the conclusion, that the dwellings were far from being in that close proximity which is the rule in modern cities; but that they were apart from each other, with, probably, ample and magnificent gardens attached; which idea seems to be favoured by the present aspect of the site, in which the great mounds of Nimrod, Kouyujik, Karanles, and Khorsabad, represent some principal centres. About 120 years after this, the prophet Isaiah writes of the Assyrian as boasting of his extensive conquests and wide possessions, and vaunting his princes as being altogether kings (Isaiah x.). But the prophet declares that because of his pride and his arrogance, and the cruelties he had inflicted on other people, the Assyrian should be punished, and the glory of his high looks be brought low (verse 12).

But the prophecies relating to Nineveh involve its utter and perpetual desolation; not only its overthrow as a mighty empire, but its utter ex-tingtion. Let us look at two or three of these Divine utterances of judgment:—"He will stretch out his hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation and dry like a wilderness. Flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, and all the beasts of the nations, both the cormorant and the bittern shall lodge in the upper lintels of it; desolation shall be in the thresholds; for He shall uncover the cedar work. This is the rejoicing city that dwelt carelessly; that said in her heart, I am, and there is none beside me; how is she become a desolation, a place for beasts to lie down in." (Zeph. ii. 13, 15). This prophecy was uttered about the year B.C. 630; and although the empire was at that time threatened by both the Medes and the Babylonians, it was still a mighty empire; and was not conquered until some years afterwards, when Nabopolasser, the first of the eighth (Chaldean) dynasty of Berosus, acceded to the throne, according to many eminent authorities, about B.C. 606. The districts of the upper and middle Tigris, however, fell to the share of the Medes, Babylon being enlarged by a union with Susiana, and that part of the Assyrian empire which lay along the west of the Euphrates.

Assyria, after this conquest and division, seemed no more likely to fulfil in her condition the terms of Zephaniah's prophecy, above quoted, than she did when she was revelling in the might of her power and pride. Why, merely because she changed masters, should Nineveh become a desolation, a place for beasts to lie down in, for the cormorant and the bittern to lodge in the upper lintels of her magnificent dwellings? But other prophets gave utterance to the like judgments. Thus, Nahum, more than a hundred years before the fall of the empire, declared that "the bloody city full of lies and robbery," "the mistress of witchcrafts, that selleth nations through her whoredoms, and families through her witchcrafts," should be stripped naked, that the kingdoms should see her shame, that abominable filth should be cast upon her, that she should be made vile, and should be set as a gazing stock, so that all they who looked upon her should flee from her, and say "Nineveh is laid waste" (See Nahum i., 8—10, 14; ii., 6—10; iii., 5—8 15—19).

But, unlikely as all this was, when the prophecies were uttered, and for many years afterwards it has come to pass, and we, read in the present condition of the country their literal fulfilment. So long ago as the days of Herodotus, about 440 B.C., we learn from that historian that though the memory of the fame of Nineveh was living, no vestige was to be met with of the once proud city. And Xenophon, who passed over its site, does not even mention its name; but speaks of only two cities which he describes as deserted, being Larissar and Mespila, conjecturally identified by Mr. Layard with Nimroud and Kouyujik.

But, striking as the prophecies we have quoted are, and literally as they are fulfilled in the present condition of Assyria, they are not the most striking as to particularity, and the incident of the taking of the great city. The prophet Nahum, whose book abounds with predictions touching the fate of Nineveh, describes the exact means by which it should be brought about as well as the precise circumstances that should exist at the time. Seeming to refer to the confidence which the Assyrian had in his strength and impregnability, the prophet says, "The Lord is good, a strong hold in the day of trouble, and he knoweth them that trust in him. But with an overrunning flood he will make an utter end of the place thereof, and darkness shall pursue (or go with) his enemies. What do ye imagine against the Lord? He will make an utter end" (Nah. i., 7-9). And again more precisely:—"He shall recount his worthies: they shall stumble in their walk; they shall make haste to the wall thereof, and the defence shall be prepared." But "the gates of the river shall be opened, and the palace shall be dissolved. Nineveh is of old like a pool of water; yet they shall flee away." (Chap. ii., 5-8.) Diodorus Siculus relates that the king of Assyria, after the complete discomfiture of his army, confided in an old prophecy, that Nineveh would not be taken unless the river should become the enemy of the city; and that after an ineffectual siege of two years, the river, swollen with tempestuous and long continued torrents, inundated part of the city, and threw down the wall for the space of twenty furlongs; so that the King, deeming the prediction accomplished, despaired of his safety, and erected an immense funeral pile, on which he heaped his wealth, and with which, himself, his household, and his palace were consumed, (Lib. ii). But the prophet adds the precise circumstances under which this fatal flood should burst in upon the confiding and self-assured king and people: "While they be folded together as thorns, and while they are drunken as drunkards, they shall be devoured as stubble fully dry" (chap. i. 10). Now, in the same book of Diodorus to which reference has just been made, we read that the king of Assyria, elated with his former victories, and ignorant of the revolt of the Bactians, had abandoned himself to scandalous inaction; had appointed a time of festivity, and supplied his soldiers with abundance of wine; and that the general of the enemy, apprised by deserters of their negligence and drunkenness, attacked the Assyrian army while the whole of them were fearlessly giving way to indulgence, destroyed the great part of them, and drove the rest into the city, (Diod. b. ii). And notwithstanding that the King, when he was driven to despair, attempted to destroy his great wealth of gold and silver, &c., the historian adds, that many talents of gold and silver, preserved from the fire, were carried to Ecbatana. The promise of the prophet, that there should be much spoil for the enemy, was thereby fulfilled: "Take ye the spoil of silver, take the spoil of gold; for there is none end of the store and glory out of all the pleasant furniture, (Nah. ii., 9).

I have not space to refer to the descriptions which modern writers give of the country once possessed by this mighty empire. It has become "the field of Nineveh." So completely has the great capital and other once celebrated cities been swept away, that, of a large space which the plough has passed over for ages, it is said that what part was covered by ancient Nineveh it is now nearly impossible to ascertain. No more of its name is sown, as the prophet predicted. The town near to its site is called by another name. "But," says Dr. Keith, "its name, written in the word of God, shall not pass into oblivion till tongues shall cease and prophecy fail."

[On the subject of this paper, the student may refer to Rawlinson's Five Monarchies; Layard's Nineveh and Babylon; Smith's Ancient History of the East; and, I have no doubt, to his Dictionary of the Bible, but as I have not an opportunity of referring to it, I do not speak positively.]

BRO. HUGHAN'S "OLD CHARGES OF BRITISH FREEMASONS."

BY BRO. JACOB NORTON (BOSTON, U.S.).

(Continued from page 672.)

As to the law of "freeborn," that is here universally regarded as the landmark of landmarks, and our jurisprudence luminaries affect horror at the sacrilege committed by the Grand Lodge of England in its removal. When questions of that nature are sometimes brought to the notice of any of our Grand Lodges, it is amusing to see the G.M., or some other local celebrity, seize the opportunity of displaying his knowledge of Masonic jurisprudence, by citing from the 926 Constitution, the Edward 3rd Constitution, besides glibly enumerating the dates of a dozen or so other old constitutions. If I venture to inquire of that oracle, where those constitutions were to be found:—he will either put on bluffing airs, or he may condescendingly say, "in the British Museum," and that somebody said, that somebody said, that it was so. Of course that settles the question. Who would dare to doubt it? Thus, as long as those MSS. remained unpublished, charlatanism could carry its head defiantly. The publication of these documents by Bro. Hughan, in his "Old Charges of British Freemasons," must tend to dethrone that class of pretenders. Henceforth, sectarianism "freeborn," and kindred anti-Masonic practices, laws, or usages, can no longer be defended with the charlatans' plausible plea of "ancient landmarks." We are certain now, that there are no such constitutions as of 926, Edward 3rd, &c. We are also satisfied now the old operatives were an ignorant and credulous body of men; that the biblical, historical, and chronological knowledge of even their most learned men, would be laughed at by our school misses of a dozen years of age. We know, now, that their Masonry is not our Masonry; that their laws are not necessarily our laws; and that we are indebted to the old society merely for the name, and a few antiquated phrases and forms in our ceremonies. Their object and aim was mutual protection, similar to those of our modern trade-unions; but our aim is, or should be, to unite the good and true of all denominations, races, and nationalities into a brotherhood; to inculcate the glorious doctrine of the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man, to teach and enforce ethical principles, such as "brotherly love, relief, and truth." In short,

Our "blazing star" should ever be
How best to work, and best to agree.

But opposed, as I am, to set up the ideas of the old organisation as a model for our imitation, yet, the very fact that our society is a development of the old fraternity of builders, should induce us to dig further and deeper, and endeavour rationally to ascertain how far the old Masonic fraternity differed in ideas, customs, laws, superstitions, &c., from kindred sodalities, who have co-existed and flourished side by side with the Masonic fraternity of the mediæval times. This, I believe, can be accomplished by a little exertion on the part of our Masonic students, by exploring and excavating from the old English writers the information they possessed relative to the old guilds, and make The Freemason our British Museum, wherein to deposit for exhibition our new species of fossils; and when a sufficient number shall be collected and arranged, I am certain that many points in Masonic history, and many phrases in our ritual, which are now obscure, will become clear and comprehensible. Agreeable to the above suggestion, I herewith send the first specimen for examination, in which certain resemblances to the old fraternity of Masons may be noticed therein; such, for instance, as the names of its officers, the attachment of a priest, or priests; and although they did not pretend to be in possession of any speculative something, yet those societies were patronised by nobles and bishops. It also shows that the taking of an oath, to observe the laws and regulations, was not exclusively peculiar to the Masonic fraternity. But here it is:—

"Lady Margrate Bedingfeld, by will, dated 12th January; 1513, gives to the gilds of the Holy Trinity, St. Thomas and Corpus Christi here 6s. 8d. each, and legacies to the High Altar of several neighbouring churches."

They were called gilds from the Saxon word gild, or geld, which signifies money; because a gild is a society or fraternity, associating themselves either upon the account of charity, religion, or trade; and they contribute money, goods, and often lands, for the support of their common charges, and are said to be common, even in the Saxon times. These gilds had their frequent meetings, and their grand annual, on the day of the saint to whom they were dedicated, and maintained a priest, or priests, to sing mass and celebrate divine service, for the souls of the King and Queen, and for the souls of the living and dead of their fraternity; from hence, the several companies in cities and corporations had their beginning, and the chief hall of the city of London, and that of Norwich, is called at this day Guildhall. Licence was generally granted from the Crown to found them. They consisted of Custos, Alderman, or Master, and as many persons, men and women, in the township or neighbourhood, as thought fit to be of the fraternity; and the Warden or Alderman, with the major part of the society, were empowered to choose annually a Warden and other officers for the government of the same; they, as a body corporate, had power to purchase lands, &c., for the maintenance of their chaplains, who were to pray at the altar belonging to them in the parish church. Divers of the nobility, bishops, and other eminent persons thought it no dishonour to be admitted into them, which admission was sued for with great reverence, and an oath was taken to be good and true to the masters of the guild, and to all the brethren. We have an account of the festival of the gild of the Holy Cross at Abingdon, in Berkshire. This fraternity held their feast yearly on the 3rd of May, the invention of the Holy Cross, and then they used to have twelve priests to sing a dirge, for which they had given them fourpence a piece; they had also twelve minstrels, who had 2s. 3d., besides their dyet and horsemeat. At one of these feasts, 23rd of Henry 3rd, a piece of 80 geese, 2d. ob a piece, 800 eggs, which cost 5d. the hundred, and many marrow-bones, creame and floure, besides what theyre servants and others brought in; and pageants, plays, and May games, to captivate the senses of the zealous beholders, and to allure the people to the greatest liberality (for they did not make their feasts without profit, for those that sat at dyner pay'd one rate, and those that stood pay'd another) These plays were histories of the Old and New Testament, the persons therein mentioned being brought upon the stage, whom the poet, according to his fancy, brings in talking to one another. A specimen of one of these plays called Corpus Christi may be seen in Stephen's edition of the Monasticon. These gilds also gave annual charity stipends to poor persons; found beds and entertainment for poor people that were strangers, and had people to keep and tend to the said beds, and did other works of charity. The houses where these entertainments were held, were generally near the church; and the house on the south side of the Church of Oxburgh belonged to one of the gilds there, and is called in the old writings "Gild Hall"; and the house on the east side of the said church was another Guild Hall, and belonged to that of Corpus Christi, the ceilings being painted and beautified with the portraiture of our Saviour, the five wounds, &c., as may be observed at this day.—(Bloomfield's History of Norfolk, vol. 3, page 494: Lynn, 1769.)

GRAND LODGE OF QUEBEC.

The following is the annual address of the Grand Master.

Officers and Brethren of the M. W. the Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of Quebec.

Our annual Convocation occurring so near the autumnal equinox, and almost in conjunction with the great annual gathering of our brethren from whose ancient, sacred records are derived so many of our principles and traditions,—are considerations well calculated to remind us of the increasing march of time, and of our bounden duty to be mindful of past mercies, and present favours, and to lead us to seek the blessing of T.G.A.O.T.U. in all our future undertakings.

The Grand Lodge of Quebec has been signally favoured by the Most High during the year that is just gone, and it behoves us all fervently to pray for his Divine direction in the days to come.

Let us now gratefully review the past, and with the guidance of the Grand Geometrician, carefully draught our plans on the trestle-board of the future.

Fraternal correspondence has been established with the nine following Grand Lodges during the eventful year just closed, namely:—West Virginia, Belgium, Alabama, Brazil, Idaho, Louisiana, Montana, the Argentine Republic, and South Carolina. Thirty-one Grand Lodges have now recognised this Grand Body as the only sovereign Masonic authority in and for the Province of Quebec. Important communications are now being had with other Grand Lodges, both in the old world and the new,—reports of which will be made to Grand Lodge at an early day.

The following eminent brethren have been appointed, or named, as Grand Representatives of their respective Grand Bodies near this Grand Lodge, namely:—R. W. Bro. Dr. H. W. Wood Knowlton, from West Virginia; R. W. Bro. D. Thomas, of Sherbrooke, from Alabama; R. W. George Thompson, of Quebec, from Brazil;

V. W. Bro. J. Alexander, of Quebec, from Idaho; R. W. Bro. Hon. Thomas Wood, of Durham, from Louisiana; R. W. Bro. M. M. Tait, of Montreal, from Montana; V. W. Bro. Dr. A. W. Hamilton, of Melbourne, from South Carolina; R. W. Bro. Geo. O. Tyler, of Three Rivers, from Georgia; R. W. Bro. H. M. Alexander, of Montreal, from the Argentine Republic; V. W. Bro. C. A. Rice, of Bedford, from Arkansas; R. W. Bro. H. J. Pratten, of Quebec, from North Carolina, and M. W. the G. M. of Richmond, from Iowa. It is anticipated that Grand Representatives will be appointed near most of these and other Grand Bodies at an early day.

During the year I have granted dispensations for the formation of Mount Oxford Lodge, Georgeville, in the St. Francis District; Burland Lodge, at St. Johns, in the Bedford District, and the Prince Consort, in the Montreal District. I trust that these may be found worthy of receiving warrants during the present Annual Communication of Grand Lodge.

In accordance with the terms of the resolutions passed by Grand Lodge at its last annual communication, Garrison Lodge, in Quebec, No. 160, R.C., have declared their allegiance to this Grand Lodge. Their action was constitutional and praiseworthy, and I have no doubt will receive the sanction and approval of Grand Lodge.

Grand Lodges have been recently formed in the Province of British Columbia, and in the Territory of Utah. The documents pertaining thereto will be submitted for your consideration. I am of the opinion that they have been regularly constituted, and that, in accordance with their request, they are entitled to fraternal recognition.

The Ancient Charges and Book of Constitutions having been carefully translated into the French language by an excellent officer of La Loge des Cœurs Unis, I beg to submit to the Grand Lodge whether some assistance might not be extended towards aiding in its publication. Very much good would probably result therefrom, especially when we remember how much misapprehension exists among our French speaking fellow citizens concerning our ancient and honorable fraternity.

I desire most kindly, but most urgently to enforce upon the lodges and brethren generally the necessity of exercising the greatest care in the selection of materials for the erection of our moral edifice. I beseech you, brethren, by every consideration to guard well the outer door.

Next to carelessness in the admission of candidates, stands the error of insufficient instruction. On no account should the lectures be omitted, and if from necessity they are temporarily deferred, they should always be delivered at the first subsequent meeting. Thorough and extensive examinations should also be rigorously maintained. There should be no ill-informed and badly instructed Freemasons.

Both observation and experience have led me to the conclusion that very many disadvantages result from holding lodge meetings until too late an hour. This important matter is urgently submitted for the consideration and action of the various lodges. Would it not be far better that meetings should be held semi-monthly when necessity arises, than that they should be monthly and be too prolonged? Officers and brethren, close your lodges, as a rule, at an early hour.

It seems to be very desirable that as soon as is practicable the Grand Lodge should cause to be prepared for the use of brethren and lodges under our jurisdiction, either as a separate manual or as an appendix to the Constitution, all convenient and necessary forms and instructions for conducting the installation of officers, consecration and dedication of lodges and Masonic halls, forms of charges, appeals, proxy, directions for conducting trials in a Masonic and constitutional manner, and much other such like necessary information, not now easily accessible to many officers and brethren.

I cannot too strongly urge upon all the lodges the adoption of the goodly custom of having a fund of benevolence, kept separate from the ordinary funds of the lodge. The setting apart of a percentage of fees, and of annual or other contributions for this noble object, which is one of the chief characteristics of our fraternity, is better than to depend wholly upon ordinary funds, or the special contributions, for the relief of urgent, or even prolonged cases of need. Brethren, consider well the advisability of having a large Benevolent Fund. The poor and suffering are always with you. The two hundred pounds raised by you for the relief of our Chicago brethren were duly forwarded for distribution to the Grand Master of Illinois, who is also Grand Representative of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, near that Grand Body.

Our worthy Grand Chaplain, the Chairman of the Committee, will lay before you the first report of Foreign Correspondence, submitted to this Grand Lodge. You will, no doubt, anticipate its perusal with great interest, and I am sure that you will find it worthy of his well-known ability, and full of information anent the general affairs of the Craft throughout the world. The reports of the foreign correspondence, received from many Grand Lodges, are exceedingly valuable documents. They are often prepared by the ablest men in the fraternity, and are freighted with rich and varied learning, and laborious research. The Grand Lodge of Quebec is deeply indebted to many of these learned brethren, who have made known and defended its claims as a regularly constituted Grand Body.

While heartily thanking all the executive officers of Grand Lodge for their courtesy and faithful co-operation, I cannot do otherwise than make especial mention of our Grand Secretary. His urbanity, efficiency, and fidelity, are well known to you all, and he may rest assured that his valuable services are highly appreciated by every member of this Grand Lodge. Fortunate, indeed, is this Grand Lodge with such a Grand Secretary. Nor should we be unmindful of the very arduous labours of our first Grand Secretary, during his brief but important term of office. The office of Grand Treasurer is also one of the greatest importance, and I need not assure you that it could not be more worthily filled, or its duties more carefully and faithfully performed, than by the excellent brother who now occupies that responsible position.

It will, I am sure, be a source of profound satisfaction that I am enabled to inform you that negotiations are now in progress which promise the speedy settlement of all existing difficulties with the Grand Lodge of Canada. A happy combination of circumstances has arisen, and all the great constitutional questions involved having been substantially settled, everything seems to indicate that peace and harmony will soon reign supreme in all our temples. To this every true Masonic heart will fervently respond—So mote it be.

In the month of June last, I directed the Grand Secretary to forward to M.W. the Grand Master of England, a copy of the resolutions passed by the Grand Lodge at its last annual communication, relating, among other things, to the existence within our jurisdiction of private lodges holding allegiance to that Grand Body. On the 29th of August, a communication in reply thereto was received from R.W. the Hon. Bro. Badgely, of Montreal containing a lengthy extract from a letter received by him from His Lordship the Marquis of Ripon, the M.W.G.M. of England. These documents are herewith submitted for consideration. You will observe that the Grand Lodge is therein reminded by the Grand Master of England, "that when the Grand Lodge of Canada was formally recognised by this Grand Lodge (England), it was agreed that all such lodges as desired to remain under the English constitution, were to be at liberty to do so, and that all their rights and privileges were to be retained, but no other warrants would be issued by the Grand Lodge of England to lodges in Canada," &c.

The R.W., the acting D.G.M. of England for Montreal, in the same communication, inter alia, says:—"Believing that the agreement referred to escaped the attention and consideration of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and was not present to the mind of the Grand Master of Quebec, when he directed your letter with its enclosures to be forwarded to His Lordship, I take the liberty of recalling it to the notice of the Grand Master and Grand Lodge of Quebec," &c.

In reply thereto, the following extract will show that this important subject "has not escaped the consideration of the Grand Lodge or its Grand Master." In our address, in the year

1869, to the Grand Lodges of the world, asking recognition, occurs the following:—"And not only was the continued existence in the Province of Quebec of Private Lodges under the jurisdiction of three Grand Lodges, namely, England, Scotland, and Canada, and the consequent joint occupation, directly and indirectly, of the same Province by these three separate lodges, deemed and held to be contrary to the laws, usages, and customs of our ancient and honourable fraternity, respecting the establishment and jurisdiction of Grand Lodges, but all so much painful experience had shown and convinced the majority of the brothers in the Province of Quebec, that such a state of Masonic affairs was wholly incompatible with the peace and welfare of our beloved fraternity."

In my address to the Grand Lodge in 1870, the same subject is thus alluded to:—

"Among the many favours vouchsafed by the Most High to the Grand Lodge of Quebec, the fraternal union and the voluntary adhesion thereto of three English lodges and one Scotch, has been the cause of great satisfaction, lively gratitude, and immense good."

"The union with this Grand Body of the three remaining lodges, namely, the St. Paul's, the Elgin, and the St. Lawrence, would be hailed with great rejoicing. We know that these lodges are composed of many excellent men and good Masons; and we earnestly desire their union with this Grand Lodge. The honour which their adhesion would confer, the efficient aid which they would give to it, and the perfect unity of the Craft throughout the Province, which would be the result, are such weighty considerations as must have great influence with every enlightened well-wisher of the Craft of every registry," &c.

In my address to Grand Lodges in 1871, are enunciated, among others, the following fundamental principles having direct reference to the same important matter:—

"A Grand Lodge thus regularly formed in unoccupied, or dissevered territory, possesses the inalienable right of exclusive jurisdiction over all symbolic lodges of Freemasons within said territory; and no other Grand Lodge can lawfully form new private lodges, or reconstruct old ones, from and after the formation of the new Grand Lodge; and it is incumbent on any private lodge, which through inadvertance or otherwise, was not represented at the Convention, which formed the new Grand Lodge, to secure enrolment on its registry at the earliest period practicable; and not only all private lodges, but also all unaffiliated or other individual Freemasons, official or other, sojourning within the territorial jurisdiction, are constitutionally amenable to her authority for any Masonic acts which are in contravention of her sovereignty. Any arrangements which may have been entered into prior to the formation of the new Grand Lodge by any other Grand Bodies, in violation of the continuance of any lodge against its own will, under the authority of some other Grand Lodge, yet within the territory of the newly-formed Grand Body, are contrary to the constitutions of the fraternity, injurious to the unity, harmony, and prosperity of the Craft, subversive of Grand Lodge sovereignty, and, consequently, of no binding force on the new Grand Body."

The resolutions alluded to as passed last year by the Grand Lodge are of the same import:—

"Whereas—The Grand Lodge of Quebec has been for the last two years the supreme Masonic authority in and for the Province of Quebec, and has been recognised as such by twenty-three Sovereign Masonic Bodies, &c.

"Resolved—That this Grand Lodge re-assert her supremacy as the Sovereign Masonic authority in and for the Province of Quebec," &c.

Also, of the thirty Grand Lodges which have hitherto recognised the Grand Lodge of Quebec, the following resolution, passed by the Grand Lodge of Louisiana, may be taken as an illustration:—

"Resolved that the Grand Lodge of Louisiana recognizes the Grand Lodge of Quebec as a just and legally constituted Grand Lodge, and as such entitled to sole and exclusive Masonic jurisdiction in and over the Province of Quebec; and hereby extends to her a cordial welcome into the family of Grand Lodges."

I have directed the Grand Secretary to reply to His Lordship, the Grand Master of England, the more fully to acquaint him with the position of this Grand Lodge and its claims to undivided jurisdiction within the Province of Quebec, believing that of all others, the Grand Lodge of England should be the foremost to recognize and uphold the principle of exclusive Grand Lodge jurisdiction. It is therefore; confidently anticipated that at an early day these important matters between the Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodges of England and Scotland and their subordinates in this Province will be constitutionally settled.

A communication will be laid before the Grand Lodge received from the G.L. of Louisiana, submitting for consideration the necessity of combined action by all regular Grand Lodges anent those Grand Bodies refusing practically to acknowledge and maintain the jurisdictional rights of Sister Grand Lodges. Unless this grave evil referred to is speedily removed, I am sure that the Grand Lodge of Quebec will heartily cooperate in all proper and constitutional ways to vindicate the right of every Grand Lodge to sovereign jurisdiction within its own territory. The initiatory action of several Grand Lodges anent the invasion of our own territory, calls for our liveliest gratitude, yet we trust that the early removal of the causes which have led thereto may avert the necessity for its exception.

The perfect period of seven years has now transpired since the annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada, held in the city of Toronto, in the year 1865, when the then approaching political disseverance of the old Province of Canada, and the consequent Masonic changes, were first publicly brought forward for the consideration of the Craft. During the four succeeding years, the question of forming an independent Grand Lodge for this Province was carefully and anxiously considered. Three years ago, on the 20th of October, 1869, the Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of Quebec was duly formed. There are now nearly forty private lodges on our registry, with an affiliated membership not far from two thousand. We have already been recognised by upwards of thirty Grand Lodges. We are in the enjoyment of peace and prosperity at home, and of not unhonoured prestige abroad. Nearly all the great constitutional questions involved in our action are substantially settled—the more arduous labours attendant on the formation, recognition, and inauguration of a new Grand Lodge, under such circumstances, have been performed—and having received from you three successive unanimous elections as Grand Master, I beg, with the heartiest thanks and profound gratitude, to return to you the high authority with which you have so long invested me. Other brethren eminently deserve to enjoy the honours, and will cheerfully share the labours of this exalted station. And now, brethren, let me commend you, and all the varied interests of our Grand Lodge, and of our whole fraternity, to the care of "Him who doeth according to His will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of earth." Amen, and amen.

JOHN H. GRAHAM,
Grand Master.

"A VISIT TO EPP'S COCOA MANUFACTORY.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and a nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water October 14.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Cleas, Burns, Sprains.—Bad legs, old wounds, and sprains, whether recent or chronic, yield with surpassing celerity to the cooling, healing, and curative properties of this invaluable Ointment. It may be relied upon in all such cases as have baffled the skill of our best hospital surgeons. No matter the length of time the malady has endured, this Ointment, assisted by a course of Holloway's Pills, will quietly, but certainly reach the core of the complaint, and thoroughly eradicate it without any impediment to pleasure or to business. These remedies will overcome the worst forms of disease, and fustiest state of the blood. They never fail in extirpating noxious humours, the first step towards renewing soundness.—ADVT.

"I cannot express to you my gratitude for the care your Pain-Killer has wrought on me. I had rheumatism all over my body accompanied with headache, so severe that I could get no sleep. As my doctor seemed to do me no good, my friends induced me as a last resort, to try the Vegetable Pain-Killer, and I am thankful to say that I am now in perfect health, and again at business.—JAMES ALSTON, Guomanagh, September, 1871.—To Ferry, Davis & Son, London, W.C."

THE MAYORALTY OF BRO. PEARSON.

Few mayors who have occupied the civic chair of the important town of Liverpool have fulfilled their duties in a more honourable, and munificent manner than Bro. John Pearson, who will resign his office on the 9th inst. At the closing meeting of the Town Council on Wednesday the warmest thanks of that body were voted to his worship for the efficient manner in which he had discharged the onerous duties of his distinguished position, and a tribute of praise to one who has done much for the Craft cannot be out of place in these columns. While upholding the dignity of his office he has ruled as chief magistrate in a manner which was at once even-handed and courteous. He has been ever ready of access to all classes of the community, giving his countenance and valuable support to all movements which had for their object the relief of suffering humanity and the promotion of religion and morality, while his hospitality has been the admiration of both townsmen and strangers great and small. Perhaps no Mayor of Liverpool has ever been honoured with a greater number of royal and distinguished visitors, and in all his arrangements and civic entertainments he has fully upheld the reputation of the "good old town." In March, Bro. Pearson entertained at luncheon at the Town Hall, the Marquis of Westminster and a select party of 50 of the gentry and clergy in connection with the movement for the restoration of Chester Cathedral.

At the meeting of the Town Council held in March, Mr. Pearson was presented with a magnificent gold chain of the value of £250, which was first worn by his worship when, in obedience to the command of the Queen, he, in common with the Mayors of other towns, attended the Thanksgiving Service in St. Paul's Cathedral, on the occasion of the restoration to the health of the Prince of Wales. The chief public event of the Mayor's term of office was the visit of his Royal Highness Prince Arthur to Liverpool, to open the New Southern Hospital, and to inaugurate Sefton Park.

In connection with this royal, visit Bro. Pearson gave a banquet to no fewer than 280 were invited, besides entertaining H.R.H. at luncheon in Sefton Park. To his exertions, aided energetically by Mrs. Pearson, much of the brilliant success attending the fancy fair at Sefton Park was due, and his noble efforts were recognised by an expression of the highest admiration given by Prince Arthur on his departure from Liverpool. In June his worship entertained the First Lord of the Admiralty and the officers of the Channel Fleet; in July, the society of Mechanical Engineers, who held their sittings in Liverpool; and at subsequent and different periods he exercised his munificence as a host still further by entertaining the Burmese and Japanese Ambassadors, Duke Teck, and Princess Mary of Cambridge, Count de Wimpffen, and the Queen of the Netherlands. Last week, in his Masonic capacity, he gave a magnificent banquet to about 70 of the leading brethren in the Province of West Lancashire, and as an evidence of his interest in the Craft there is every probability that he will honour with his presence the interesting proceedings, to day (Saturday), in connection with the laying of the corner-stone of the new Masonic Hall in Liverpool. It is likely that the very last public act of his official year will be to entertain Mr. Stanley, the heroic discoverer of Dr. Livingstone, at a banquet on the 7th inst. These are but a few of the many acts which have distinguished the mayoralty of Bro. Pearson; and therefore, when he resigns his office, it will be with the honest consciousness of having discharged his duties, and with the thanks and administration of the whole community.

St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction, No. 144, has been removed to the "Two Brewers" (Bro. John Elliott), 33, Brompton-road, S.W.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

THE GREAT FIRE IN CHICAGO.

It will be remembered that shortly after the great Chicago fire, considerable sums of money were sent to the afflicted city by Masons in various parts of the world, to be used as a Masonic relief fund. It appears that more money was sent than the needs of Chicago Masons required, and the surplus has been returned—not exactly to the donors, but to the Grand Lodges, an amount of the surplus in proportion to the sums contributed by lodges in their several jurisdictions. The following is the correspondence on the subject between the Grand Master of Illinois and the Grand Master of Canada.

Office of the Grand Master.

Chicago, Aug. 24, 1872.

To the Grand Lodge of Canada A. F. and A. Masons, Hon. Wm. M. Wilson, Grand Master, Simcoe, Canada.

M.W. Sir and dear Brother,—The Board of Relief organized for the purpose of distributing the funds, etc., donated by the brethren throughout the country for Masons rendered needy by the great conflagration of Oct. 8th and 9th last, having transferred the duty of relieving those in distress to the several city lodges, adjourned sine die on the 24th day of June, 1872.

In addition to the disbursements by the Board, the several city lodges were apportioned an amount of the surplus funds, in order to meet the demands referred to.

This arrangement left a considerable amount of funds unexpended. Believing that we have carried out the instructions of the generous donors, it has been deemed proper to return pro rata the surplus of the funds. It would be impracticable to make this return to each lodge; indeed, such an amount would be quite insignificant. Hence the amount due to each State has been aggregated for the benefit of the "Charity Fund" of the Grand Lodge, or to such other use as the Grand Lodge may apply it. We are persuaded that the several lodges and brethren will heartily indorse this disposition of the surplus.

Therefore, in behalf of the contributing lodges in your jurisdiction, I take great pleasure in enclosing a draft in New York for 994 dols.

It is not deemed necessary at this time to give a detailed explanation of the basis of our action in this matter. The forthcoming printed report, which will be sent you in due time, and in which will be found a list of the lodges in your jurisdiction, contributors to the fund, will show everything in connection with the proceedings of the late Board of Masonic Relief in detail.

Sincerely hoping that our intentions and acts may meet the approval of you and your Grand Lodge, I have the honour to be,

Truly and Fraternally Yours,

Dewitt C. Cregier,

Grand Master of Masons, Illinois, late President of the Masonic Board of Relief.

Grand Lodge of Canada,

Office of the Grand Master,

Simcoe, Ont., 16th Sept., 1872.

Most Worshipful Sir and dear Brother,—I hasten to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated 24th August (but post-marked Chicago, 13th Sept.) covering a draft on New York for 994.00, being the share pro rata of unexpended funds contributed by the Masons of Canada, in aid of the fund raised for the relief of those Masons who suffered from the great fire in Chicago in October last, and I now inclose you the receipt of our Grand Treasurer for that amount.

I most heartily approve of the decision of your committee, in returning funds not required for the purposes for which they were contributed, and their act in this matter will hereafter be cited as a noble precedent for our guidance in all time to come.

This money is now placed to the credit of our Grand Lodge, and that amount, and every dollar in our treasury, is at all times available in response to the call of suffering humanity, and as a practical exemplification of our appreciation of the great cardinal virtues of brotherly love, Relief and Truth.

I continue, Most W. Sir and dear brother,
Yours truly and fraternally,

Wm. M. Wilson,

Grand Master G.L.C.

To the M.W. Bro. Dewitt C. Cregier, Esq., Grand Master Mason of Illinois, and late President of the Masonic Board of Relief, Chicago, Illinois.

Reviews.

Die Bauhütte (Leipzig).

This weekly paper, the organ of the German Order of Freemasons, continues to maintain its character for independence and research. The number for October 12th is especially valuable for an article by the Editor on the "Exposures" and Rituals of Freemasonry, from Pritchard, of 1730 to the present time. Bro. Findel's name is one familiar to all Masonic students, and his labours on behalf of the literature of the Fraternity should endear him to the Craft universal.

The Michigan Freemason.

Although a Monthly Magazine of some fifty pages, we find that its aim is not originality, but mainly to afford its subscribers an insight into the contents of other Masonic papers. At least such appears to be the Editor's plan of operation, for out of some dozen articles, nearly all have previously appeared in contemporaries. The Editor is very ready to acknowledge the papers wherein they first appeared, and so far we commend him, but for our part we should welcome a little more from his own pen.

The Freemason (St. Louis, U.S.A.).

Our namesake is one of the largest and cheapest Masonic Magazines in the world, and enjoys a most extensive circulation. Bro. G. F. Gouley has long "made his mark" as the Editor, and is now, as formerly, the staid champion of the privileges and rights of our universal Fraternity.

In an article entitled "Masons at Sight" Bro. Gouley, in his vigorous style, opposes the infraction of laws by any officials, and opposes the Grand Master of Connecticut for so doing in his mistaken proceeding of making two gentlemen "Masons at Sight." We say success to The Freemason. We notice our article "Freemasonry and its Consequences" is quoted in the September number.

Proceedings Grand Lodge of Texas, 1872 (U.S.A.).

A massive volume, but interesting as bulky. The address of the Grand Master is practical and earnest. In some respects, however, it would startle many of our brethren to hear such read at our Grand Lodge. The M.W. Bro. Brandette asks "Is the retailing of spiritous liquors a legitimate business for a Mason?" He says all must admit that its baneful influences are felt and seen resting upon the community, mentally, physically, and morally. The committee report that they fully approve the moral of the Grand Master's address, and remark that "while they had no right to prescribe a Mason's vocation, they recommended all lodges to look well into the character of material presented for their work."

About 50 Grand Lodges are in communication with this Grand Lodge, but we are sorry to find that England, Ireland, and Scotland are not included in the list.

The complete roll of all the 360 lodges is given as an appendix. This occupies upwards of 100 pages of very small type, for not only are the names, locations, Masters, Secretaries, number of members, initiations, deaths, expulsions, suspensions, rejections, applications, dues, charity fund, &c. are given, but also the names of every officer, Past Master, and of every member in each individual lodge, and the Entered Apprentices and Fellow Crafts, are also carefully enumerated! We are of opinion that the office of Grand Secretary cannot be a sinecure in the Grand Lodge of Texas. No drones need apply.

"The Masonic Trowel" (Springfield, Illinois U.S.A.)

The number for October 1st lies before us and on the whole is fairly representative of the general fare provided by Bro. Reynold for his numerous readers. The articles by Bro.s William Rounseville have become quite an institution of the "Trowel," and we have got to look for them as naturally as possible.

A "Masonic History of Illinois," is being written from week to week, we presume by the editor, and in this issue is brought down to 1859. The leader on "Registration" is a racy one, and evidently much needed in the United States; for, according to Bro. Reynolds, in several Grand Lodges in America the names of the brethren are not registered by the Grand Secretary at all. Even in a large Grand Lodge like Illinois no registry exists! We hope soon to hear of a regular Grand Lodge registration throughout America, for we are persuaded it is the only security lodges can have, in the event of their records being burnt or lost, and we know of instances where lodges have only been able to prove their antiquity by reference to a Grand Lodge registry.

We do not like the following paragraph at all, and think the editor must have allowed its insertion without remembering the motto, "Audi alteram partem." We open our columns to any brother who will write according to the rules of Freemasonry; and being independent of any party, and alone anxious to elucidate truth, we cannot see why our admission of Bro. Norton's articles should be so spoken of. Let Past Grand Master Gardner reply to Bro. Norton's argument, or any who differ from the latter. The Freemason, is impartial, and is the organ of the Craft, not of a section, or of a few, but we hope of the whole. The remark runs thus which we complain of:—"Jacob Norton, a miserable mountebank, is taking a tilt at Past Grand Master Gardner, of Massachusetts, through the London Freemason, by the use of anti-Masonic arguments." Bro. Reynolds, no doubt, is aware that Bro. Norton is a respected member of the Craft, resident in Boston, personally known to Past Grand Master Gardner (who would be ready to give a vastly different character to his friendly opponent), and certainly neither a mountebank, nor anything derogatory to a Freemason.

Gaceta Maçonica De Venezuela.

We cannot afford the space to quote all we should like to from these bi-monthly papers. The statistical information appears to be carefully prepared, and the subject matter well arranged.

La Vérité (Journal Mac. de la Suisse Romande).

We continue to receive this useful little paper periodically, and notice that of late a translation of the able "Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital," by Bro. Emra Holmes, is being published in its pages.

Nob Bus: Vickers, Strand.

Nob Bus (Nobody's Business) is the strange title of a book intended to be a legal guide for the million, and is redundant with promises which, in many cases, we have not been able to find fulfilled. However, many grievances connected with the administration of the law are clearly made known, and their abolition intelligently advocated, and the definitions of legal phrases excellent, and withal curious and frequently amusing.

Unless our readers are suffering from a disorder most unusual at present, and known as Plethora of Silver, we advise them not to try Nob Bus at 2s., but to speculate on the Penny Pagina, by the same author, which answers the purpose equally as well as the more pretentious edition. Mr. Marcus declares that this brochure, which can be had for the outlay of "two baubees," "is a luxury whose juice is sweeter than the rare pine, and more refreshing than the compressed grape into the golden waters of champagne."

If our readers find it impossible to resist this most thrilling appeal, they are not likely to repeat the circumstance, as in our opinion the work is worth much more to the author than to anybody else.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 108, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

All communications for The Freemason should be written legibly on one side of the paper only, and, if intended for insertion in the current number, must be received not later than 10 o'clock a.m. on Thursdays, unless in very special cases. The name and address of every writer must be sent to us in confidence.

"So-called Ancient Landmarks" will appear next week.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday evening, November 9, and during the week, THE KNIGHT OF ARRA. Connor, Mr. J. H. Allan; Volpene, Mr. Dudley; Baron Chiambourne, Mr. Power; Count Offenboer, Mr. Lacy; Manuel, Mr. Bousfield; Jose, Mr. J. Hudspeth; Captain, Mr. Cullen; Princess Marian, Miss M. Cooper; Baroness, Mrs. Stephenson. After which THE ARTFUL DODGER. Mr. Hudspeth, and Miss Braman. To be followed by a Grand Ballet Divertissement; Madame Rosine and full Corps de Ballet To conclude with THE DUKE'S DAUGHTER. Legardere, Mr. J. H. Allen; Duke de Gonzague, Mr. Power; Duke De Nevers, Mr. W. Lacy; Cocadasse, Mr. Shepherd; Passepoil, Mr. Hudspeth; Peyndes Mr. Dudley; Staupitz, Mr. Bousfield; Blanche De Nevers, Miss M. Cooper; Blanche De Caylus, Mrs. Stephenson; Papity, Miss Hastings. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday evening, November 9th, and every evening during the week, the Performance will commence with THREE RED MEN. Otto, Mr. C. Sennett; Albert Mr. Prescott; Guely, Mr. Parker; Moses Geld, Mr. H. Leigh; Reinhault, Mr. Rainbow; Colonel Yanos, Mr. Evans; Doctor Mira, Mr. Parkes; Polyte, Mr. F. Fawn; Hans Dr. Orn, Mr. Guest; Frans, Mr. H. C. Sidney; Blasius, Mr. Vaughan; Noenuil, Miss M. Henderson; Lorra, Mrs C. T. Burleigh; Batailleur, Miss Allen; Gettrude, Miss Lee. To be followed by a Grand Ballet Divertissement, Madmoiselle Rosine, and full Corps de Ballet. To conclude with THE BRIDAL OF THE BORDERS. Red Ronald, Mr. Rain-bow; Adam, Mr. Leigh; Albert, Mr. Evans; Glenbrae, Mr. Vaughan; Guy of the Gap, Mr. F. Fawn; Steenie, Mr. C. Sennet; Brand o' the Brae, Mr. Parkes; Black Wylie, Mr. Guest; Laurette, Miss Allen; Jessie, Miss Lee. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Burdland, assisted by Misses Alice Barth and Florence Hunter. COAL, AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell and many other Entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Claimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King;" and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week commencing November 11.

- ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee Bro. E. Saker. Mr. Bandman in "Dead or Alive."
- ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee, Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. Mr. H. Talbot in "King of Scots," "Man of the World," &c.
- PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Chayton-square.—Closed, but will be opened shortly by Mr. S. Perry.
- THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De France. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Can-can Carnival."
- S.T. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hugue. Performances by the Slave Troupe.
- COOKE'S CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Proprietors, Messrs. Cook and Weidon.
- NEWS-OME'S CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome.
- NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, William-square.—Manager, Bro. Saunders. Mr. George Leybourne and a talented company.
- TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Anderson and Family.—World of Magic.
- QUEEN'S HALL.—Gillard's Great American Panorama.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1872.

SECOND EDITION.

HOUSE COMMITTEES AND THEIR RIGHTS.

A point of principle is involved in the forthcoming election of a Secretary to the Masonic Girls' School, which it is important should be clearly understood. The extent of the powers and influence which it is expedient to entrust to the House Committee, and the stage at which its governing body, the General Committee, ought to assert its rights, were the two problems which really prompted the animated discussion of Thursday week, reported fully in another column. A reference to what took place will make it obvious to the meanest understanding that the representative of the House Committee, who presided officially over that discussion (Bro. Joshua Nunn), played the part of an advocate rather than a judge; and his arbitrary enforcement of a purely suppositious and fictitious law will be of substantial service, if it lead independent supporters of the Institution to review their position by the light of his conduct in the chair.

Let it be understood that the duties of the House and General Committees are clearly defined by the laws of the Institution. First as to the House Committee:—This consists of twelve members elected from and by the General Committee; and its "proceedings shall be properly registered, and reported monthly to the General Committee." The limit of the functions of the House Committee, with respect to the officers of the Institution, is clearly laid down. They shall define the duties of, and appoint the Matron, Head Governess, and Assistant Governesses (the latter in conjunction with the Head Governess); and they shall have power to suspend the Matron, Head Governess, Assistant Governesses, or any person employed in the establishment, and appoint others to discharge their duties, until the next meeting of the General Committee. The careful omission of the Secretary from these regulations, shows that the law, both in spirit and in letter, excludes the appointment of that officer from the jurisdiction of the House Committee, and that the intention is to place him in a more independent position, as the representative of the general interests of the Institution, than would be possible if he were the mere nominee of its domestic managers. Indeed the care with which it has been thought desirable to limit the powers of the House Committee is one of the chief lessons to be derived from a careful study of the Institution's laws. The Finance and Audit Committee is to consist of nine members drawn from the General Committee, "not more than three of whom shall be members of the House Committee," and the election and dismissal of the Secretary, Collector, and all paid officers (other than the Matron, Head Governess, and Assistant Governesses) shall rest with the General Committee, who shall determine the amount of the various Salaries. The only passage in the laws which can by any possibility be construed into giving the House Committee any sort of control over the appointment of Secretary is that which says

"They shall inquire into the character and qualifications, and examine the testimonials of candidates for any vacant office, except that of Treasurer, and report thereon to the General Committee." It is for the reader to say how far the impaction contained here, weighs against the omission of the Secretary from the list of officers the House Committee is empowered to appoint, or against the specific law which places the election, dismissal, and emoluments of the Secretary, exclusively in the hands of the General Committee.

But in truth analogy and common sense both point to the extreme desirability of upholding the Secretary as an independent officer, and in keeping his appointment, in practice as well as theory, in the hands of the general body. The original Railway Acts show that Parliament has guarded with considerable jealousy, the independence of a railway secretary. While a board of railway directors has almost unlimited power over the rest of the finances of the Company they represent, the salary of the Secretary is left to the shareholders, and determined at their general meeting. The theory is that a Secretary should always represent the interests, of the general body, and that if the Secretary were the nominee or creature of the directors, those interests might be less jealously guarded than is desirable. It is plain that the laws governing the two Masonic Institutions were framed in this spirit; and it is to be regretted that any section of the Craft should think it expedient to give them a different reading. This was the real point at issue between Bro. John Symonds, and Bro. J. C. Parkinson on Thursday week, when the Chairman of the meeting, Bro. Joshua Nunn, (a House Committeeman) threw the weight of his official authority into the scale, and by refusing to allow Bro. Parkinson to put the amendment he proposed, ensured the passing of Bro. Symonds's resolution.

Bro. Parkinson attempted to move this amendment to the resolution proposed by Bro. Symonds,

That this General Committee do proceed to the election of a Secretary at its meeting of the 28th November.

The object here was precise and definite. The principle affirmed was that the General Committee preferred to retain its power of adjudicating on all points connected with the office of Secretary, to delegating its trust in a lump to the House Committee. Bro. Symonds, as the advocate of the latter course, objected, like a shrewd tactician, that Bro. Parkinson's proposal was not an amendment, and could only be brought forward later as an original motion, an objection which was endorsed with suggestive eagerness by Bro. Nunn as Chairman. So far no great harm was done. It is what followed which calls for explanation or reproof. Bro. Parkinson "to make his motion an amendment" then proposed to move

That the duties, &c., of Secretary be not referred to the House Committee, but that this Committee do proceed to the election of a Secretary at its meeting on the 28th November.

A proposal for a Sub-Committee with instructions to report, but to be composed of a fair proportion of House and General Committeemen, would of course have followed; had the amendment been carried; an eventuality which Bro. Nunn prevented effectually by refusing, as Chairman, to allow it to be brought forward, on the ground that it was "against the laws."

We ask emphatically, and we trust the Craft will repeat the question, What laws? Not the printed laws by which the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls is supposed to be governed, for we have quoted these fairly and fully wherever they bear upon the question, and they do not contain a word to show that the House Committee has the faintest control, as such, over the more important of the points entrusted to it by Bro. Symonds motion and Bro. Nunn's ruling. Were these laws of Thursday week evolved out of the internal consciousness of the Chairman of the day? Or are they laws which he intends to create at some future period yet unfixed, and which he holds himself justified in acting on before the formalities of framing and passing them are gone through? If there are such laws as Bro. Nunn professed to be guided by, why is the knowledge of them restricted to the House Committee? If there are no such laws, why was Bro. Parkinson's amendment suppressed without discussion? Pending an answer to these questions, we may remark that it happens fortunately, that this strange exercise of the "giant's strength," which our English reverence for constituted authority places in the hands of every chairman of a public meeting, is not likely to have any pernicious effect, for it is impossible to doubt that the existing House Committee will present an able and unbiassed report. But the precedent is dangerous and the example bad, and the thoughtful and moderate spirits among the House Committee, will agree that no abiding strength or influence is obtained by snatching at greater powers than the Constitution assigns, or by such questionable ruling as signalled the Chairmanship of Bro. Joshua Nunn.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

LODGE OF ASAPH (No. 1319).—This dramatic and musical lodge met on Monday, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Charles Coote, W.M., presiding. There were no candidates for any of the degrees of Freemasonry, and as it was the day for the installation of a new Master, the ceremony was at once proceeded with. Bro. Coote, following the example of all energetic Masters, proceeded in the usual form to instal Bro. J. M. Chamberlain, the W.M. elect. in the chair of K.S. The ceremony was ably performed and called forth expressions of approval when it was concluded. The new W.M. then appointed as his officers, Bros James Weaver, P.M., 862, P.P.G. Org., Middlesex, S.W.; E. Frewin, J.W., Charles Coote, Jun., Treasurer; E. Stanton Jones, P.M., Secretary; J. S. Jekyll, S.D.; W. A. Tinney, J.D.; W. H. Stephens, I.G.; H. J. Tinney, Org., E. Terry, D.C., J. Gilbert, T. The brethren afterwards adjourned to an excellently arranged banquet at the Freemasons' Tavern, provided by Bro. C. E. Francatelli, the manager. When the toasts were proposed Bro. John Hervey replied in very lively terms to the toast of the Grand Officers, and Bro. F. Binckes made a short, apt and happy reply that of the visitors. Bro. C. Coote, P.M., was presented with a valuable P.M. jewel, and a testimonial written on vellum in the following words, and framed and glazed:—"Lodge of Asaph, No. 1319. This testimonial, accompanied with a P.M. jewel is presented to Bro. Charles Coote, as a token of esteem and appreciation of the abilities evinced by him as W.M., during his year of office, 1871-2, by the members of the above lodge, trusting that the Great Architect of the Universe may grant him health, happiness and long life to watch the prosperity of the lodge, of which he is one of the founders and second Master signed on behalf of the members the 4th day of November, A.L., 5872, A.D., 1872. John Martin Chamberlain, W.M., James Weaver, S. W., Edward Frewin, J.W." Bro. Coote made a suitable reply in acknowledgment of the gift, and expressed the gratification which both he and the members of his family felt for such a recognition of the services he had rendered the lodge. During the evening there was a beautiful selection of vocal and instrumental music, in which Bros. Geo. Buckland, W. T. Wrighton, John Hodges, Baxter, Tinney, Lazarus, and Charles Coote took part, and the third year of this musical and dramatic lodge was entered upon under the most favorable circumstances.

STAR LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 1275).—The third anniversary banquet of the above flourishing lodge was held at Bro. Hobson's, Marquis of Granby, New Cross Road, on Tuesday evening, 29th Oct., and was a complete success. Over 50 brethren sat down to a first-rate spread, among whom were the following:—Bros. Hogg, P.M., P.G.S., I. P. M. 1275; Keeble, W. M. 1275; Pulley, P.M.; C. G. Dille, P.M.; Brown, P.M., Sisson, P.M.; Darke, S.W. 1275; G. F. Guest, S.D. 1275; Shaw, J.D. 79; Green, 216; Kipps, I.G. and Org. 1275; S. Org. 79; Roper, P.M.; Lomax, T. Hobson, Hills, David Rose, P.M.; Sadler, Treverton, Stevens, 1275; Moriarty, Jobson, Macdonald, Myatt, 79; Daniels, Bolton, Munyard, Lewin, Chapman, C. Davidge, Sec. and many others. Visitors.—Bros. R.W. Little, P.G. Sec. Middlesex, and Elton Glover. After the removal of the cloth, Bro. Hogg, who presided, supported by Bros. Keeble and Sadler, proposed the various loyal and patriotic toasts in that exceedingly happy manner so familiar to all who know him, and which were duly responded to by the brethren. Bro. R. W. Little, who responded on behalf of the Grand Officers, in a neat and fluent speech, congratulated the lodge on the evident success it had attained, in so short a period of time. Bro. Davidge (the Sec.) informed the brethren that there were 600 members' names upon the books, many of whom held high positions in the Craft. They had had nearly 200 additions to their number during the past year, and they rarely opened the lodge with less than 30 present. The event of the evening was, however, the presentation of a very handsome silver teapot to the esteemed and beloved Preceptor, Bro. Dille, P.M., for the eminent services he has rendered the lodge since its formation. Bro. Dille, in an affecting manner, returned an eloquent reply to this mark of his brethren's appreciation of his services, which from want of space we are unable to give in extenso. During the evening the musical portion of the brethren delighted their hearers by their various performances, and among them we must particularly mention Bro. Elton Glover, who was specially engaged for the occasion. He was in excellent voice, his singing was simply magnificent, and his rendering of Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith" and "The Sea is England's Glory" received a perfect ovation from the brethren, to whom it was a source of marvel that a professional possessing such a wonderful compass of voice should be but comparatively little known amongst the Craft. Bro. Daniel caused much amusement by his funny song, "Poor Mr. Wood," and Bros. Munyard, Shaw, &c., contributed their quota to the evening's entertainment, which wound up in perfect peace and harmony.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No 1331).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on the 31st October, in the lodge room,

Royal Hotel. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. J. Fenn, W.M. the chair of K.S., was occupied by Bro. C. Carnegie, I.P.M., P. Prov. G. Purst. Hants, who was supported by the following officers: Bros. J. Newman, 697, as P.M.; Capt. Richardson, W.M. elect, S.W.; A. McKenzie J.W.; M. Lucas, as Sec.; A. J. Edmond, as S.D.; R. Bennett, J.D.; F. Anderson, I.G.; J. Marversly, as O.G. There were several visitors, among whom were Bros. Gold, 723, and Warne, 1046. The lodge was opened in form in the first degree, and a report from the Committee of Reference was read, stating that the accounts for the past year had been audited and found correct, upwards of £23 standing to the credit of the lodge, £5 have been given to the Masonic Benevolent Institution, by which two votes have been secured to the lodge for 15 years. The association for assisting the Masonic Charities numbers 14 members, and is steadily progressing. The report was unanimously adopted. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. E. Harper, a candidate for the M.M. degree, was examined respecting his proficiency in the F.C. degree, which, proving satisfactory, he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bro. Harper was raised to the sublime degree, the S.W. explaining the working tools, and the W.M. pro. tem. giving the charge, and putting round the questions appertaining to the degree. The lodge was closed to the second degree, and resumed in the first degree, when Bro. Drew, a candidate for the F.C. degree, was examined respecting his proficiency in the former degree, which proving satisfactory, he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then resumed in the second degree, and Bro. Drew was passed to the F.C. degree, the J.W. presenting the working tools. The lodge was then closed down to the first degree, when a letter was read from the Secretary of the Royal Sussex Lodge, Jersey, thanking the W.M. for raising Bro. Phillips and Scadden, members of that lodge, to the sublime Degree, and enclosing their Grand Lodge certificates, which were then presented to them by the W.M. pro. tem. Bro. Capt. Richardson, R.E., W.M. elect, presented a pair of elegantly carved columns to the lodge for the Senior and Junior Wardens. On the motion of Bro. C. Carnegie, W.M., seconded by Bro. A. McKenzie, J.W., a vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. Richardson for his appropriate gift. Bro. Martin R. Art., was proposed as a joining member. Some other business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in peace, harmony, and brotherly love.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum, Lancaster, on Monday, 4th November, 1872. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. Wilson Barker, who had been summoned from town on account of the serious illness of a near relation, Bro. Dr. Moore, P.M., P.G.S.B. of England, occupied the chair, there being also present Bros. W. Hall, L.R.C.P., as I.P.M.; W. J. Sly, S.W.; Edmund Simpson, P.M. 281, as J.W.; James Taylor, S.D.; Robt. Harger, as J.D.; Richard Taylor, I.G.; J. L. Bradshaw, Thomas Jackson, F.C.; Visitors, Bro. James Porter, P.M. 327, Prov. G.S.D. Cumberland and Westmoreland; John Hatch, P.M. 281; William Hall, W.M. 282; J. H. Williams, 1353; James Elleshan 1353; James Conlan, S.B.; and John Watson Tyler. After the lodge had been opened and regular business transacted, Bro. Newman Jackson underwent a satisfactory examination, and was in due time raised to the degree of Master Mason, by Bro. William Hall, P.M. 1051, and next Henry Longman and George Sutton were respectively initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by Wor. Bro. James Porter, and W. Hall, W.M. 281, the working tools being presented by Bro. W. J. Sly, S.W. A vote of thanks was passed, on the motion of Bro. Moore, to Bros. Porter and Hall, for their services, and after the proclamation, which elicited hearty good wishes, on behalf of lodge 327, 343, 281, and 1353, the lodge was duly closed.

INDIA.

BOMBAY.—Lodge Concord (No. 757, E.C.).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Mazagon, on the 17th August, 1872. Present: Wor. Bros. B. Robinson, W.M., Sorabjee Frommurze, P.M.; Bros. F. Burdett S.W.; J. Anderson, J.W.; J. H. Burritt, Treas.; G. R. Henderson, Secretary; J. Smale, as S.D.; C. Lowe, J.D.; R. Ballard, I.G.; J. W. Seager, Tyler.—Members: Bros. R. Taylor, B. Sorabjee Ashburner, J. Luke, T. Snuggs, J. Rotchell, F. Freeborough, G. Macdonald, J. Spiers, T. G. Sweeney, C. Blight, J. Middleton, and Wor. Bro. J. N. Dady. Visitors: Bros. C. Rowe, R. Cooper, J. MacDougal, J. Hartley, S. B. Jones, S. Wooden, Bomanjee Okerjee. The lodge was opened with solemn prayer in the 1st Degree. The W.M. intimated that as there was no work before the lodge, he would take the opportunity of delivering the Lecture on the Tracing Board in the 1st degree, which he did in a very able manner, and was deservedly applauded. Bro. Geo. Macdonald proposed that Wor. Bro. A. Edginton, P.M. of Concord, be written to and requested to sit for his photograph, so that the brethren may have it framed and placed in the lodge in a similar manner to that of Wor. Bro. A. King; and further that the necessary funds be given from the general fund of the lodge to enable him to do so. The proposition was seconded by the W.M. and carried unanimously. The W.M. then brought to the notice of the brethren the application of Bro. John Sandford, for payment of Debenture claims. The Secretary read the correspondence referring to it, and it was unanimously resolved to remit the case to the Permanent Committee for their decision in the matter. One Brother was proposed for affiliation, and one candidate for initiation. This terminated the business of the lodge, which was closed in peace and harmony. The regular meeting of lodge Concord was held on the 21st September, 1872. Present: Wor. Bro. B. Robinson, W.M.; Bros. F. Burdett, S.W.; J. Anderson, J.W.; J. H. Burdett, Treasurer; G. R. Henderson, Secretary; J. Smale, as S.D.; Geo. Macdonald, as J.D.; R. Ballard, I.G.; J. W. Seager, Tyler. Members: Bros. J. Luke, A. Miller, J. Middleton, J. Surgent, J. Spiers. Visitors: Bros. Hopewell, Cooper, Martin, Ainsworth, Bomanjee Okerjee, Dougall. The lodge was opened with prayer. Bro. Edwin Layzell, of Lodge Perseverance (S.C.) was elected a joining member, and welcomed by the W.M. on behalf of the lodge. Mr. Robert Edmiston was initiated into the secrets and mysteries of Freemasonry in the first degree. The W.M. then drew attention to the fact of his having received a circular from Bro. Spencer, asking for the number of brethren who would be willing to take the Masonic Register for 1873. It was ordered that all who wished to do so should leave their names with the Secretary. The W.M. said he had received an appeal for assistance from the Secretary of the Indo-British Institution. He thought the Institution a very worthy one; he would propose that the sum of Rs. 100 be given towards its support. This was seconded by Bro. Anderson, J.W.; but before being put to the vote the W.M. invited discussion on the subject; whereupon Bro. Smale said he thought it behoved us to look well after our Charity Fund, as we had had a great many calls upon it lately; he was quite willing to give the sum, if the brethren thought we could afford to do so. Bro. Geo. Macdonald spoke in behalf of the Institution, and he felt assured that the brethren of Concord would give that sum cheerfully towards such a good and deserving Charity. Upon its being put to the vote, it was carried unanimously. The W.M. then drew the attention of the brethren to one part of the minutes of the Standing Committee, wherein it referred to the case of Bro. J. W. Seager, Tyler, who had been a long time out of employ. He thought we might help this brother with a little from our Charity Fund, and he would leave it for some brother to propose the sum. Eventually the W.M. proposed that the sum of Rs. 50 be presented to Bro. Seager to help him in his difficulties. This was seconded by Bro. F. Burdett, S.W., and carried unanimously. The W.M. then mentioned that he had received a letter from Wor. Bro. Hussey, D.G. Secretary, asking if any of the brethren could do anything towards helping a distressed brother to some employment; but as the profession of the brother was not known, nothing could be done. One candidate was proposed for initiation. There being no other business, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

BOMBAY.—Lodge Emulation (No. 1110, E.C.).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 15th August, 1872. Present: W. Bro. C. Beard, I.P.M., as W.M.; Bros. T. A. Hopewell, as S.W.; Rev. T. Horsfall, J.W.; W. J. Rand, Treasurer; W. Richardson, Secretary; T. Horsfall, Organist; H. Ainsworth, S.D.; R. Cooper, I.G.; R. Raymond, Steward; J. W. Seager, Tyler. Members: Bros. E. Barnett J. Aspin, W. H. North, J. Hartely, J. McDougall. Visitors: Bro. J. B. Jones, R. Taylor, S. Burjorjee Cooper, J. J. Barrett, J. B. Robinson, J. Hammond, F. Otto, H. Long, P. Eginger. The lodge was opened with solemn prayer. Mr. W. C. Taylor was initiated into the mysteries of the 1st degree. Bro. G. Bridge was passed to the F.C. degree. Bro. W. H. North was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. C. Beard for his continued valuable services to the lodge, and the admirable manner in which he conferred the three degrees that evening. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. T. Horsfall for his valuable services to the lodge as Organist, and great regret expressed on his resigning his office on account of proceeding to England. The regular meeting of lodge Emulation was held on the 19th September, 1872. Present: W. Bro. E. Hewett, W.M.; W. B. Johnston, S.W.; Bro. T. A. Hopewell, as J.W.; W. S. Rand, Treasurer; W. Richardson, Secretary; H. Ainsworth, S.W.; James Aspin, as J.W.; Bro. R. Cooper, Inner Guard; Bro. J. W. Seager, Tyler. Members: Bros. W. Cottrell, E. Barnett, A. C. Monohan, G. Yardley, J. McDougall, S. Wooden, F. Biers, R. Raymond, C. Dumper, W. C. Taylor. Visitors: Bros. Tudor G. Trevor, J. Smale, Geo. Cardwell, J. B. Robinson, R. Livingston, F. Otto, E. DeSouza, W. H. Harper. Letter read from W. Bro. C. W. Ashdown, W.M. Lodge "Capper," No. 1076, England, asking the W.M. of Lodge "Emulation" to give Bro. R. J. Middleton, who was initiated in Lodge "Capper," the 2nd and 3rd degrees, and promised to return the compliment should any member of Lodge "Emulation" be in England and require a similar favour. After some discussion, the W.M. agreed to give the brother the degrees mentioned free of all cost, after first ascertaining that he had paid for the whole of the degrees in England. Read letter from W. Bro. D' Emden, Poona, who enclosed a letter from Bro. F. W. Bedford in England, soliciting subscriptions for the father of the late Bro. H. F. Fell, of Lodge "Emulation," who he said was in very poor circumstances, and also requested that we would communicate with W. Bro. Robinson, of Lodge "Concord," so that he might raise a small subscription also. Bro. Hopewell proposed that the letter be referred to the Permanent Committee, and also to Lodge "Concord." Bro. W. C. Taylor was passed to the 2nd degree. Two candidates were proposed for initiation. There being no other business, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

Mark Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—The November meeting of the St. Mark's Lodge of Mark Masters was held on Monday last at Masons' Hall, present, Bros. Church, I.P.M.; George Kenning, S.W.; Davison, J.W.; Levander, P.M., and Treas.: Little, P.M., and Sec.; Boyd, Powell, Yeoman, Dr. Brett, Edmands, Walters, and Colonel Burdett; visitors, Dr. Harrison. Bros. Charles Horsley and Cutress were advanced to the degree of Mark Master. The lodge was then closed, after which the brethren sat down to one of Bro. Gosden's usually good suppers, the customary toasts being proposed and responded to.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

MARYPORT.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 151).—An emergency meeting of the above lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Maryport, on Friday, the 1st November. The Worshipful Master, Bro. Nicholson, occupied the Chair and he was supported by W. Bro. James Porter, P.M., Grand Senior Deacon, England; W. Bro. Fred. W. Haywood, P.M., Past Grand Junior Deacon, England; W. Bro. Geo. G. Hayward, P.M., Past Grand Pursuivant; Bros. W. Court, Hodgson, W. H. Tickle, J. R. Tickle, P. D. E. Collin, Lawson, E. W. Henry, M.D.; Wood, Price, Bell, Carter, Wallis, Gardiner, Adair, G. M. Tickle, Dodgson, Abbott, Beely, and others. The lodge was opened at 4 o'clock p.m. and the ballot was taken for thirteen candidates, and in each case proved unanimous. W. Bro. G. G. Hayward having assumed the chair, the following brethren being in attendance were admitted and advanced to the degree of Mark Master in a very impressive and creditable manner, viz., Bros. Dr. Horan Barr, Fearon, Wood, Robertson, Paterson, Alsop, Dodgson, McKelvie, White. After which hearty good wishes having been tendered, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer, according to ancient custom, at 6.30.; the brethren then adjourned to refreshment, and a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent to the satisfaction of all participants.

Knights Templar.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Encampment of Prudence.—A chapter and conclave of this old encampment was held on Wednesday, the 30th ult under the banner of Sir Knights Emra Holmes, Grand Provost of England, Eminent Commander. There were present Sir Knights J. Pitcher, P.E.C.; Dr. Mills, P.E.C., Actg. 1st. Captain; G. S. Findley, P.E.C., Registrar; S. B. King Actg. 2nd Captain; C. Davy Actg. Captain of Lines. The muster roll having been called and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, the E.C. stated that he had received a letter from Dr. Beaumont, R.N., 2nd Capt., expressing his regret at being unable to attend. Sir Knt. Golding, it also appeared, was prevented through illness attending to his duties as 1st Capt., and much regret was expressed at the cause of his absence. This being the evening for the election of E. C., the ballot was taken and Sir Knt. Golding was unanimously elected. Sir Knt. Pitcher was re-elected by unanimous vote Treasurer to the encampment. The E.C. proposed and the Registrar seconded the motion that Frater Spalding should be re-elected Equerry, which was carried unanimously. It was decided that a Priory of Malta should be opened at an early date for the installation of Sir Knt. Emra Holmes as Eminent Prior, and the reception of candidates into the Order of Malta. There being no other business before the encampment, it was closed in ancient chivalric form, and the Sir Knights retired for refreshment. An excellent repast was laid in the adjoining banquetting hall, Frater Spalding catering with his usual skill, and the Sir Knights, though few in number, did ample justice to the viands. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and chivalric toasts were given from the chair, the E. C. expressing a hope that on the occasion of their next meeting he might be able to propose, in connection with the toast of "The M. E. and S. Grand Master," the name of a most distinguished personage. (Hear, hear.) In giving the toast of the D.G.M. and Officers of Grand Conclave, Sir Knight Holmes spoke in eulogistic terms of Sir Knight Huyshe, a very distinguished Mason and Knight Templar. Sir Knight Pitcher responded on behalf of the Past Grand Officers. The toast of the Provincial Grand Commander, Sir Knight Capt. Philips, was very well received. The E.C. took occasion to remark on the eminently chivalric and courteous bearing of their esteemed P.G. Commander, who was deservedly popular amongst the Sir Knights. He greatly hoped to hear of another encampment being opened shortly in the province, which was as yet but a small one, so far as numbers went, but he believed, in point of dignity, and rank of its members, it would hold its own against other provinces of greater pretensions. At all events they were fortunate in their Provincial Grand Commander, of whom they were justly proud. The toast was drank with honours.

Some of the Sir Knights present gave in their names for installation as Knights of Malta at the forthcoming meeting. A very pleasant evening was spent and the Fratres separated at an early hour.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A desire to give exceptional prominence to the handsome and feeling tribute paid to the services and estimable qualities of the late Secretary to the Masonic Girls' School, Bro. E. H. Patten, prompted us to give that portion of the proceedings of the General Committee which referred to him at length last week, and to abstain, from motives of delicacy, from reporting fully in the same number the discussion which followed, respecting his successor. We now continue and complete our report of what was declared by common consent, to be the most animated and vigorous debate which has ever taken place at the meetings of any of our Masonic Charities. In the numbers who attended it, in liveliness of retort, and in the evidence it furnished of a strong divergence of opinion on matters of principle and points of order, the last General Committee meeting of the Girl's School was more like a Grand Lodge Quarterly Communication on a "field night," in the old days, than the staid and tame proceedings which ordinarily characterise the afternoons of the last Thursday in the month at Freemasons' Hall. At the close of the discussion on Bro. Patten's retirement and pension, Bro. Symonds Vice Patron, proposed in the speech reported last week, that the nature, duty, and emoluments of the office of Secretary be referred to the members of the House Committee, also the mode of election to the same office.

This having been seconded,

Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.M. 181, V.P., at once moved as an amendment, "That this General Committee do proceed to the election of a Secretary at the meeting of the 28th November."

Bro. Symonds said that it was not an amendment at all. If put, it must be put as original motion.

Bro. Joseph Smith: Yes, it may be put afterwards as an original motion.

Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., as Chairman of the meeting, agreed with Bro. Symonds, and ruled that Bro. Parkinson's motion could not be received as an amendment.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson: Then to make it an amendment, I will move that the nature, duty, and emoluments of the Secretary, and the manner of election be not referred to the House Committee, but that this General Committee do proceed to the election on the 28th November.

Bro. Symonds: Bro. Parkinson must be aware that he cannot alter the laws of the Institution now, and that this Committee has no power except to act as the laws dictate. His amendment would be contrary to the law, which says that these matters must be referred to the House Committee, and I submit that it cannot be put.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson: Surely I may move an amendment to a motion now brought before the Committee? (Cries of "Yes, yes;" "No, no;" "Put the amendment;" "You can't;" "You can;" "Bring it on afterwards as an original motion;" "Don't give it up;" (during which Bro. Parkinson kept standing until Bro. Nunn ruled, as Chairman, that the amendment could not be put, as its terms were contrary to the law, which provides that the matters embraced in Bro. Symonds's resolution shall be referred to the House Committee.) Bro. Parkinson then resumed his seat, under protest, and not until he had been informed by the Chair that he could only bring forward his proposition later, and as an original motion.

Bro. Symonds's motion was then put, when Bro. Parkinson and a great number of the brethren abstained from voting, and it was carried.

Then followed a brisk discussion upon the day at which the House Committee (now appointed as a Sub-Committee) ought to present their report. One party among the brethren, held that a few hours would suffice to enable them to inform the General Committee of what they (the House Committee) had had ten months (since the time of Bro. Patten's seizure) to think over; while another section of the meeting, foremost among whom were Bro. Nunn, the Chairman, Bro. Symonds, Bro. Browse and other House Committeemen, maintained that the duty entrusted to the House Committee could not be performed under 28 days as a minimum. Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., wound up a somewhat desultory discussion, with a few shrewd and humorous remarks, ridiculing the alleged necessity for a month's consideration, and assuring the meeting that any business man could settle all the points referred to the House Committee in a few hours.

Bro. Symonds eventually agreed to alter his motion for the day of receiving the House Committee's report from the 28th, at which it originally stood, to the 14th November.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson: My one anxiety is to see this vacant Secretaryship efficiently and promptly filled; and I therefore ask the Chairman formally when the day of the election will be. Let us, at all events, know something definite. There has been, surely, enough procrastination and delay (Hear, hear), and I can see no good reason for the strangely dilatory policy which has been and is being pursued.

The Chairman: Bro. Parkinson asks me to answer his question when will the day of the election be? If Bro. Parkinson will tell me how many candidates will apply, and how many testimonials we shall have to consider, then, perhaps, I might be able to give him what he asks, a definite answer. As it is, I cannot.

Bro. Symonds thought it would not be practicable to name any day for the election now. The wiser course would be to leave that in the hands of the Sub-Committee, with the understanding that there should be no unnecessary delay; but that the General Committee should receive and consider their report, and proceed to the election as early after that as possible.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson: Under these circumstances I shall propose a motion which will, I hope, have the effect of clearing the air. I regret, Bro. Chairman, to have risen so frequently before, and to have given you so much trouble by my importunity. The amendment you refused to put had been carefully considered, and I can only hope that the motion I am about to propose will meet with a better fate, for I must protest against this election being delayed unnecessarily upon any plea whatever. I have listened attentively to the reasons advanced for the course of vagueness recommended to us, and the arguments which have been urged with so much ability by Bro. Symonds, and none of them seem to me to weigh appreciably against the plain hard fact that our Girls' School is to day without a Secretary, legally, just as it has been without one, practically, for ten long months. I do not care to make this matter for blame or regret. I am not here to censure, or even to criticise what I have heard animadverted on as the procrastination of the House Committee, in not bringing matters to a conclusion earlier, and in allowing the best part of a year to glide away without making any sign. I prefer to take a different view, and to admire the delicacy which shrank from bringing the cruel truth home to an aged friend, that for him life's business is over; and to sympathise with the kindness which, doubtless, prompted our House Committee to hope even against hope that Bro. Patten would once more take his place in their midst, and so spare them, for the time, the pain of declaring that his infirmities made his superannuation imperative. But after making full allowance for such generous and disinterested considerations, it is impossible to close one's eyes to the fact that ten months have gone, that for a great portion of that time the House Committee has been perfectly aware of the impossibility of Bro. Patten's return—indeed they told me so with the utmost frankness this day month, when I carried the motion, which has resulted in his retirement, and that the House Committee's views, and plans, and schemes, concerning the emoluments, the duties, the conditions—perhaps even the candidates—for this office, must be by this time pretty well matured. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) We have, most of us heard, at all events, of brethren who have been named as likely to become candidates for this office. I confess freely that I have considered the subject a good deal, and that I have made up my mind as to which candidate I shall feel it my duty in the interests of the Charity—for I have no other motive or feeling—to support. I venture to say that if the heart of every man in this room were open to us, we should find that he, too, had formed some opinion, and that the judgment he has arrived at will not be sensibly affected by what he will learn from any report, however long considered, and however long delayed. So far as the House Committee is concerned, such is my confidence in their knowledge and experience, that I am positive they could retire into an adjoining room, and in half an hour present us with an admirable report upon all the subjects it is proposed to entrust to them. But brethren, I demur to the inference that we are not at all able to form an opinion concerning the qualifications for this Secretaryship, or that the right of private judgment is to be given up. The duty of a Secretary is, I imagine, to discharge secretarial functions, and while it will be necessary to have some technical guarantee that the brother selected is so far capable; we, the General Committee, the Life Governors of the Charity, the men charged with the solemn trust of appointing the best man we can secure, are, I submit, bound to exercise our judgment upon qualities on which no number of reports from Sub-Committees and no multitude of adjournments could by any possibility satisfy us. (Loud cries of Hear, hear.) What have we to gain then, what would the Charity profit by deferring the election? (Cheers.) Delays are proverbially dangerous, and never more so than in a case of this kind, when candidatures and rumours of candidatures crowd upon each other, and where every day seems to make the gossip more extravagant. It is an old story that bystanders see most of the game, and the House Committee and the proposers of this resolution would be astonished if they could hear the strange and incredible inventions as to motives and policy which mendacious wise-acres have been setting afloat, and which have been forced upon those who have, or are supposed to have, any influence on this election. I will not quote one of these gossiping imputations—I repudiate them utterly. But I do venture to warn all concerned that any unnecessary delay in filling up this appointment will be followed by another crop of mares' nests, the product of that feverish uncertainty, which I maintain to be as unhealthy for candidates as it is beneath the dignity of the Craft. Moreover, who can look at the period of the Masonic year, or the state of the Girl's School Stewards' list without feeling convinced that it is high time an active Secretary were up and doing, if he would retrieve lost ground, and follow, at ever so humble a distance, in the wake of the indefatigable representative of the Boys' School. Why, brethren, I hear that our brother Binckes has by his unrivalled energy brought together a list of several thousand pounds for his next festival, and I say all honour to him for it, and may he soon find in a new Secretary to the Girls' School a foeman worthy of his steel, and may the generous rivalry between the two Institutions soon flourish with increasing vigour. (Hear, hear.) Emoluments, office hours, conditions of service!—these are details which we can settle later. Our pressing duty is to secure the very best man we can find, and to bid him God-speed on his holy mission without an unnecessary delay of a single hour. (Cheers.) Let the General Committee elect a Secretary with the understanding that the terms of his appointment will be subject to revision, and I have no sort of doubt but that the best men in the field will be willing to accept the post on these conditions and without inquiry as to terms—(laughter)—satisfied that they will be equitable and just. But don't let us it be said of us hereafter that we wasted more precious time in reference to this committee or to that; for I foresee every sort of difficulty and evil in delay and every kind of blessing in prompt action. Remember the poor helpless children who are knocking and who will knock at our doors, and that their admission must greatly depend upon the ability and promptitude with which the claims of the Institution are advocated by an official representative, who will know when and how to speak comfortably the word in season. (Hear, hear.) We really do not need instruction or reports from committees, save of the most simple character, for I am satisfied that plain sense and honesty of purpose will enable us to select aright. Our own hearts tell us that we ought not, dare not, treat this most important office as if it were a bit of patronage to be jobbed, that it is not a boon to be conferred on any man however deserving, not a refuge for the unfortunate, not an asylum for the old, not a training place for the immature. (Cheers.) No, brethren, upon us lies the grave responsibility of acting with singleminded aim for the good of the Charity, and in filling up this vacant Secretaryship, depend upon it.

"If 'twere done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly."

(Cheers.) To secure this I beg to propose that this Committee do proceed with the election of Secretary, on the 28th November, and if any brother approves of this sufficiently to second it, I shall be much obliged to him, for I have conferred with nobody. And I urge you to vote for thus securing a speedy election, because I believe it to be expedient and right, and I pray that we may in this matter be granted wise and understanding hearts, that we may discern between good and bad, and be guided to a just decision. (Loud cheering.)

Bro. Rosenthal seconded the motion.

Another animated conversation followed. Bro. Binckes, after paying a feeling tribute to the virtues of Bro. Patten, in which he was robustly supported by Bro. Sabine, asked whether it would be quite fair to candidates for the vacant Secretaryship to make the day of the election so early as the 28th November. The friends of some brethren had, it was well known, already advocated their claims to the Secretaryship, and announced that they would become candidates. Other brethren who might become candidates now that the vacancy was declared, had scrupulously abstained from avowing their intentions of canvassing the brethren, out of deference to the wish of the House Committee, that no canvassing should take place until the vacancy was reported. Would it be fair, therefore, to place these last at a disadvantage?

Bro. Browse (who was imperfectly heard) was understood to move as an amendment that the election should take place on the 12th December, in place of the 28th November, as proposed. Bro. Browse's proposition having been seconded,

Bro. Symonds rose, and expressed an earnest hope that Bro. Parkinson was in error in supposing that any brother present could have made up his mind, as Bro. Parkinson imagined, as to the claims of possible candidates for the vacant Secretaryship, and explaining that such pre-judgment would be in contravention of a law of the Committee, which decreed that no canvassing should take place until after the vacancy was declared. Each brother present, Bro. Symonds trusted, regarded the matter before them with a perfectly unbiassed mind, and would be content to wait the report of the Sub-Committee upon the testimonials, before committing himself to any fixed opinion. Bro. Symonds felt persuaded that Bro. Parkinson would, on reflection, see that he had been mistaken, and the brethren would agree with him (Bro. Symonds) that if any judgment had been passed upon the merits of candidates already, that it was much to be regretted. Bro. Symonds went on to say that, under all the circumstances, he should be disposed not to vote for either the original motion or the amendment. He would rather leave the Sub-Committee unfettered. Let them present their report, and then have the election fixed at some later period to be determined subsequently. He would appeal therefore to Bro. Parkinson to withdraw his motion, and to Bro. Browse to withdraw his amendment, with the understanding that no unnecessary delay should take place. (Hear, hear.)

After some more desultory conversation, in which several speakers took part, and some playful badinage with Bro. Symonds, which created considerable laughter (in which Bro. Symonds himself joined heartily,) Bro. Parkinson said:—In reply to my friend, Bro. Binckes, to whom I owe many Masonic favours which I am glad to acknowledge, I can say honestly that I have never thought of this matter from the candidates' point of view at all. (Hear.) I have only considered it in one light—of what would be best for the interest of our Charity. Believing as I do, that further delay in filling up this appointment would do our Institution grievous injury, I shall certainly not withdraw my motion, but shall press for a division. (Cheers.) If I succeed in fixing the day of the election, I am satisfied I shall have done good; and if I fail, I shall at least enjoy the priceless satisfaction of feeling I have performed what I felt to be a duty to the Charity, irrespective of every other consideration. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Browse attempted to speak again, but was called to order, it being against the rules of debate to permit the proposer of an amendment to reply.

The Committee divided, when Bro. Parkinson's motion was carried amid loud cheering, and the election of Secretary fixed for the 28th November. The House Committee will therefore present their report to the adjourned general meeting on the 14th; and the election will take place a fortnight later.

Some conversation followed upon the best mode of making the vacancy public; when Bro. Kenyon proposed, to obviate all difficulty on this score, that advertisements should be inserted in the newspapers at once. This was seconded and opposed. Two divisions were taken, the Chairman and the House Committee, with one exception, voting against Bro. Kenyon's motion, which was lost by a majority of three.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman, proposed by Bro. Gurney, and seconded by Bro. J.C. Parkinson, concluded the debate, which was of unexpected liveliness throughout.

The next stage in these animated proceedings will be the adjourned general meeting on Thursday, the 14th November. This will commence at 12 (noon) to 12.30 p.m. or immediately after the close of the Special Court, called for the same day.

Original Correspondence.

NON-RESIDENT MEMBERS OF LODGES.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was much pleased to notice in your report of the British Union Lodge in The Freemason of the 26th Oct. that the principles of interesting our outlying members in the prosperity of the Order and its Charities, by lower fees for non-resident members, and the formation of societies to assist the Masonic Charities, is steadily progressing.

I will briefly state what has been done in both these respects by my own lodge.

The founders of the Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331), with the view of inducing members who leave the Camp to keep up their interest in the lodge and Order, determined to fix the subscriptions of brethren removed beyond twenty miles from the station at 7s. 6d. per annum; which sum pays their Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge dues, and leaves a small balance for other expenses. The result has amply justified their anticipations; for though the lodge has not been two years in existence, there are twenty-two members who have taken advantage of this bye-law, many of whom would probably not have joined other lodges for years.

An association in aid of the Masonic Charities has also been formed, the object of which being to interest all classes of our members in this laudable work, the subscription has been fixed at one shilling per month; fourteen brethren have already joined, and we confidently look forward to enlisting the great majority of our brethren in the support of our Charities by means of the association.

I will be happy to send a copy of our rules to any lodge about to form a similar association.

In conclusion, I may also state that a portion of every initiation fee, and the collections at our suppers, &c., are devoted to the Charities.

Yours fraternally,

C. CARNEIGE, P.M. 697.

1331, E.C.; 311, I.C.; P.G. Purst Hants.

BRO. R. W. LITTLE AS SECRETARY OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I thought that, so soon as it was known that Bro. Little was a candidate for the Secretaryship of the R.M. Inst. for Girls, with every prospect of success, the brethren who before then thought of applying for the office would thereupon gracefully retire, but I am told it will be otherwise. I think it a pity for candidates to be started who have no chance whatever of succeeding, and therefore trust that a selection will be made of eligible and likely brethren who have fair prospects of being chosen, so that we may be spared the annoyance of being "bored to death" by many anxious for the honourable position about to be vacated by our old and tried friend, Bro. Patten, than whom a better Mason cannot be found. I think myself an eligible candidate, and can assure the electors that the position would be a proud one for me to fill, and I would do my best to fulfil its duties. But what of that? I know well the brethren would not elect me, though several would vote for me, so I shall not announce myself as a candidate, but support Bro. Little, as

A LIFE GOVERNOR.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Will you kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper for the purpose of directing the attention of brethren to the following subject.

As the time is fast approaching for the Annual Banquet of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, I wish that some more able Brother than myself would lay before the notice of the Committee the present pecuniary condition of the annuitants of that Institution, so that the Committee may see the necessity of doing more for them this year, and not let it go forth to the world again that (in the words of Earl Percy at the last Annual Banquet) £26 per annum is "amply sufficient" for their wants. It might do for the widows, and provide a bare subsistence for the males, but is quite inadequate for a married couple to live upon and support them in those afflictions which they are all (single as well as married) liable to at their age viz:—from sixty to eighty years. They are expected to appear respectable, and attend a place of worship, but notwithstanding their desire to do so, how is it possible they can provide the necessary clothing out of so small an income? especially in times like the present, when almost every article of food and clothing has increased in price to the extent of 50 per cent. It should also be borne in mind that they have, in their time, been large contributors to the funds and therefore they should surely not be kept in a state of privation, when the Committee have so large an accumulating funds at their command.

Hoping the Committee will take the matter into their serious consideration, and not let it appear that they are indifferent to the necessities of their poorer brethren, but make them an increase sufficient to meet their wants.

I remain your fraternally,

A MASTER MASON.

Nov. 4th 1872.

AN OLD MASONIC PRINT.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I observed some time since at a marine store dealer's among some lumber an old print, in rags and tatters, and so defaced by age and dirt as to be scarcely distinguishable; but on one of the figures I perceived a Masonic jewel, so I struck a bargain, and secured the prize.

I have since had the print restored, and I discover that the subject is, as I imagine, a representation of some important incident connected with the history of the Masonic Girls' School.

The central figure is a venerable old gentleman, leading by the hand two small girls; about forty more are following in procession, and ranged on each side (of the old Freemasons' Hall, I believe,) are a great number of Masonic notabilities of the time, evidently portraits, among them one in an eastern costume, and one in Russian or Tartar dress. Standing prominently in the foreground are, I believe, one or more members of the Royal Family.

I should feel obliged if any brother having knowledge of other copies of this print could inform me of the date of the incident represented, and the names of the prominent personages, as the margin of my copy is removed, and with it the descriptive lettering.

Yours etc.,
J. H. G.

BURDETT COURTS LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

—The 15 Sections will be worked by the members of this Lodge of Instruction on the 4th Friday of the present month. The members of the Doric Lodge will assist in working the sections. Bro. G. M. Verry, the Preceptor, will preside.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, November 15, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, Nov. 9th.

- Lodge 108, London, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
- " 173, Phoenix, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1328, Granite, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1361, United Service, Swan Hotel, Wimbledon.
- Mark Lodge 104, Macdonald, Head Quarters First Surrey Rifles, Brunswick-road, Camberwell.
- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dille, Preceptor
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

MONDAY, Nov. 11.

- Lodge 59, Royal Naval, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 90, St. John's.
- " 193, Confidence, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 222, St. Andrews, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
- " 1366, Highgate, Gate House Hotel, Highgate.
- Chap. 22, Mount Zion, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
- " 720, Panmure, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
- Red Cross Conclave 2, Plantagenet, Caledonian Hotel, Robert-street, Adelphi.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. James Terry, Preceptor.
- Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dille, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mottlock, Preceptor.
- West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, Nov. 12.

- Lodge 46, Old Union, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 96, Burlington, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
- " 166, Union, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.

- Lodge 180, St. James's Union, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 198, Percy, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
- " 211, St. Michael's, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
- " 228, United Strength, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St John's Gate, Clerkenwell.
- " 235, Nine Muses, Clarendon Hotel, Bond-st.
- " 548, Wellington, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
- " 917, Cosmopolitan, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 933, Doric, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
- Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Domatic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
- Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
- Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
- Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
- Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
- Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
- St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's-wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 13.

- Committee of Masonic Benevolent Institution, at 3 o'clock, Lodge 3, Fidelity, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 11, Enoch, Freemasons's-hall.
- " 13, Union of Waterloo, Freemasons' Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
- " 15, Kent, Guildhall Coffee House, Gresham-st.
- " 87, Vitruvian, White Hart, College-st, Lambeth.
- " 147, Justice, White Swan, High-st, Deptford.
- " 238, Pilgrim, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
- " 749, Belgrave, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
- " 781, Merchant Navy, Silver Tavern, Burdet-rd, Lime house.
- " 820, Lily of Richmond, Greyhound Hotel, Richmond,.
- " 1017, Montefiore, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1228, Beacontree, Private Rooms, Leytonstone.
- " 1306, St. John of Wapping, Gun Tavern, High-st Wapping.
- Chapter 1260, Hervey, Britannia Hotel, Walham Green.
- Mark Lodge, Kent, Masons'-hall, Masons'-avenue, Basing-hall-street.
- Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
- United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
- Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
- Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
- Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
- Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
- Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, Nov. 14.

- Special General Court, Girls' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 12. See Advertisement.
- Lodge 19, Athelstan, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 91, Regularity, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 206, Friendship, Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leadenhall-st.
- " 263, Bank of England, Albion Tav., Aldersgate-st.
- " 534, Polish National, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 860, Dalhousie, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 1076, Capper, Marine Hotel, Victoria Dock.
- " 1288, Finsbury Park, Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sisters Road, N.
- " 1321, Emblematic, Tulse Hill Hotel, Tulse Hill
- Chap. 554, Yarborough, Green Dragon, Stepney.
- K. T. Encamp. 117, New Temple, the Inner Temple, E.C.
- " 45, Temple Crossing, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
- The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall-Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams Preceptor.
- Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
- United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
- Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
- Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, Nov. 15.

- Lodge 143, Middlesex, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street
- " 201, Jordan, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 813, New Concord. Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton.
- " 975, Rose of Denmark, White Hart, Barnes.
- " 1118, University, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 1364, Earl of Zetland, St. Thomas's-road, Hackney.
- Chapter 92, Moira, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
- K. T. Encamp. 48, Kemys Tynte, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
- St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
- Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Mugggeridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
- Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
- Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
- Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
- Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
- Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
- Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
- Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
- Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
- Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
- Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
- Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
- St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 33, Brompton-road, S.W.
- United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
- Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
- St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

GRAND RESTAURANT,
"THE LONDON,"
191, FLEET STREET, TEMPLE BAR.

Dinners from the Joint, at 2s. Dinners a la Carte.
Fish Dinners served daily from 1 till 8.
"The London" Dinner, five courses, 3s. per head, served from 4 till 8.
Ladies' Dining Rooms.
Smoking and Billiard Saloon.
Open on Sundays from 4 till 8.

THE NEW MASONIC CANDLES,
Ionic, Doric and Corinthian, Emblematically Arranged for Worshipful Master, Senior and Junior Wardens.
6s. per set of 3 one-pound Candles. Packing Cases 6d. each.

Bro. GEORGE KENNING'S
MASONIC DEPOTS, 2, 3, & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
AND 198, FLEET STREET, E.C.

Wanted in every Home.

WHIGHT & MANN'S SEWING MACHINES.
UNEQUALLED FOR FAMILY USE.
LOCK-STITCH, 5 Guineas.

The "ALBERTA" { Silent Lock-Stitch, Complete 6 Guineas.
The "EXCELSIOR" { Knotted Stitch, Complete 6 Guis. Hand Machines 3s.
The "PRIMA DONNA" { Lock-Stitch Shuttle Machine, Eclipses all yet introduced. Complete 4 Guineas

145 HOLBORN BARS. LONDON, E.C.

DEATH or INJURY from ACCIDENT

With the consequent
LOSS OF TIME AND MONEY,
Provided for by Policy of the Railway Passengers' Assurance Company
AGAINST ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.

An Annual Payment of £3 to £6 5s. insures £1,000 at Death, or an Allowance at the rate of £6 per week for injury.
£650,000 have been paid as Compensation.
One out of every 12 Annual Policy Holders becoming a claimant each year.
For particulars apply to the Clerks at the Railway Stations, to the Local Agents, or at the Offices.
64, CORNHILL, and 10, REGENT STREET, LONDON.
WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

OUR ANCIENT CONSTITUTIONS.

I have perused with much interest Bro. Norton's able paper in your last number, anent the old charges of English Freemasons, and heartily concur in his laudatory remarks on Bro. Findel's efforts and Bro. Hughan's services, in the cause of, what may be termed not inaptly, scientific Freemasonry. But I think, that, Bro. Norton in his praise of recent writers unjustly deprecates our older authorities.

Neither can one fail to be struck with Bro. Norton's very incongruous grouping of "Anderson, Ramsey, Preston, and Oliver," as the authors and propagators of, what he terms, "Masonic mysticism and fables."

"Always look carefully to your facts before you deduce assumptions from them; which, if the facts are incorrect, are critically valueless," is a piece of advice which may be tendered, as well to Bro. Norton, as to many other writers now-a-days, in all kindness of feeling. We are rather apt, just now, to indulge in hasty and crude generalities without having paid sufficient attention to these minute particulars, and what a lawyer would term the facts of the case, which go so far to make criticism valuable and history reliable.

With Ramsey, Anderson and Preston had nothing whatever in common; and I confess I do not understand why Bro. Norton should in any way mix up Ramsey's views and theories with Anderson's publications, or Preston's history. There does not seem to be the slightest connection between Ramsey and these other oldest Masonic writers, except that they were all Freemasons.

From Bro. Norton's words one would almost arrive at the conclusion that he believes Anderson, and Ramsey, and Preston, and Oliver, all, to use a rowing term, "pulled in the same boat;" all were engaged in some mystical development of Masonic teaching, which he alike rejects and repudiates. Now Anderson was, in truth, the first writer who attempted to collect and systematize the "disjecta membra" of the Masonic legends, and to harmonize the old traditions and ancient constitutions of the Operative Guilds.

All that Anderson did, was to put into his own language the legendary annals of the the Order, as contained in the ancient charges and constitutions of the Brotherhood.

Where he obtained the historical legend he mainly uses is not quite clear, neither is it as yet certain which particular formulary or constitution he derived the leading features of his epitome from.

It seems to me, that he had seen and used some original MS., from which both he and Bro. Krause had derived their mutual identity and agreement. It may be that Anderson drew up his statement, which is on the face of it a compilation from more MSS. than one; but to him, at any, rate belongs the credit of being in truth the Masonic pioneer in the pathway of historical study and forgotten archaeology.

It has been, and still is, the fashion to deprecate Anderson; but I confess, this disparagement of his labours and efforts always seems to me very unjust, considering the age he lived in, the peculiar prejudices existing on the subject of such publications at all, the confessed difficulty of separating the historical and the authentic from what was but an ancient legend, or a confused tradition in the constitutions themselves. Anderson's work is not only a very valuable contribution and a very praiseworthy beginning of Masonic literature, but is, in truth, a great landmark in the annals of the Craft. All that can fairly be alleged against Anderson is, that he, in his reverence for the old ways and older traditions, shrunk from applying that fair criticism to the traditionary statements, which German and English Masons, have, since his time, thought well to uphold and develop.

With regard to W. Preston, I can only say, that having spent many years over my contributions under the pseudonyms of "Ebor" and a "Masonic Student," in verifying his statements, I have been astonished at the great trustworthiness and punctilious accuracy, both as regards the authorities he quotes and the facts he makes use of. Indeed, later studies and more critical research have only served to bring into greater prominence, his entire truthfulness and honesty of purpose, and praiseworthy diligence in the collection of data and authorities.

Manuscript authority may still be found for almost all his statements; and making allowance for one or two hasty assumptions from his manuscript authorities, which closer investigation have found to be untenable, it is wonderful how very little of revision would be found necessary, by an editor to-day, of his valuable and well-known history. With Ramsey, Preston—like Anderson—had nothing whatever in common; and I cannot profess to understand why Bro. Norton couples his name with their's.

They are historians of our order. Ramsey, though an able man and versatile writer, is best known, after all, as the ingenious manipulator of fancy degrees.

With respect to Dr. Oliver, in his earlier and better works he had nothing in common with Ramsey. In his later works he seemed to lean to the "mysticism" of the "hautes grades." But surely, historically, and as a matter of precise and accurate statement, Ramsey and Oliver ought not to be classed together.

To Ramsey, no doubt may be attributed, I believe, the main arrangement and propagation of the "Rite Ecossais" and all the numerous and fantastic progeny which have sprung from the same interesting parentage.

But I do altogether protest, on every ground of historical accuracy and Masonic justice, against Anderson and Preston and Oliver, being in any way identified—as they seemingly are by Bro. Norton—either with Ramsey's views or Ramsey's peculiarities. We owe, masonically, a great debt of gratitude, especially to Anderson and Preston; who pointed out, in the last century, what the present century has accepted and have clearly established—that speculative Freemasonry is but the lineal descendant of the Operative Guilds.

I think it is a pity also, that Bro. Norton calls Dunckerly a dreamer, and declares that he was ignorant both of history and chronology.

Dunckerly was, on the contrary, an able man; and all that can be alleged against him is, that he was a great favourer of the High Grades.

Others have been the same, and been very good Freemasons notwithstanding; and, I think it a great pity that Bro. Norton uses such severe words, as he should remember the old saying, "hard words butter no parsnips;" and if we seek to write history, we should avoid as far as we can, all partizan theories and all "calling of names." I say this in all good-will to Bro. Norton, as I am anxious his interesting communications should not be rendered less valuable than they are by anything like useless personalities and historical inaccuracies.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

November 5th, 1872.

"NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

I have been reading the "Notes" by Bro. Emra Holmes upon the above subject, and with your kind permission, I would make a few observations upon them, and confining my remarks to his statements at page 607.

As to Professor Aytoun, having believed "in the present Knight's Templar, as the legitimate descendants of the Crusading Red Cross Knight," I may observe that a conversation I lately had with an Edinburgh Brother, led me to believe otherwise, and although he wrote that fine song—"The Raising of the Beauseant"—that does not necessarily prove it.

As to the statement that the Secretary of the Royal Order of Scotland had documents upwards of 200 years old, belonging entirely to our "speculative" Freemasonry, that, I fear is either a mistake or a misprint, as one hundred years' old would be a more reliable antiquity. The statement also that Lodge No. 3 bis, Scottish Constitution, have an indisputable charter from William the Lion, dated 1174, is another mistake, as they neither have, nor had, any such document. The charter referred to is one granted about A.D. 1190 by William the Lion to Bishop Joceline, for the encouragement and protection of a fraternity which had been constituted for the purpose of rebuilding or repairing the Cathedral which had been lately burned. And as to whether or not this "fraternity" meant a company of operative Masons, Professor Innes says, "I think not, for many reasons, I think they were a body of zealous Churchmen, zealous Glasgow men, not operatives. But a good guess might be made if you find other such fraternities about that time over Europe, and I think there were some." However, whatever the character of the "fraternity," No. 3 bis never held the charter, nor, so far as I am aware, did any of its members ever see it. It was lost long ago, and the only knowledge we have of it, is from a copy taken about 600 years ago, and preserved in the Register of the Bishopric, which Register belonged to the Catholic Church, and is at present, or lately was, in the possession of one of its members. I may also observe, here, that although No. 3 bis has an old sash with the date "1600" upon it, yet in the opinion of Professor Innes, who examined it, that date was not put on before the last century.

The statement also is wrong, that on the sill of one of the windows in Glasgow Cathedral, we find the "Square and Compass engraved, the All-seeing Eye above, the sun, moon and stars, and a finger pointing to the three steps;" for there is no sun there, and the ladder has five steps, the finger does not point to the ladder. The date 1556 is there, but that date does not appear to be the date of the cutting or scratching of the emblems on the stone sill, for as is shown by the style of the composition and grouping of the emblems, their proper date is nearer 1756. At page 505 of the late Freemason's Magazine—which appears to have departed this life upon the 4th November, 1871—under date December 25th, 1869, I gave a sketch of these emblems. At page 151, February 19th, 1870, I gave a sketch of other emblems dated 1605. Now while these latter had all the characters of their era, those with the date 1556 near them, had not. As to the statement that "The Blue Blanket had its rise about the year 1,200 of God," that is a mere fancy, as it was presented to the trades of Edinburgh by King James III, in 1482.

In conclusion, I hope that Bro. Holmes has been more fortunate as regards his other statements than in those referred to, for upon examination, we again see, that England—not Scotland—led the van.

I am yours fraternally,
W. P. BUCHAN.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The following letter, which has been addressed to the Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, having been forwarded to us for publication, we have great pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the claims of Bro. Little, which are ably set forth therein:—

Collier's Wood, Merton, S.W.,
November 1, 1872.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. R. Wentworth Little has consented, at the request of several Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of the Freemasons' Girls' School, to be put in nomination for the Secretaryship of that Institution, which has just become vacant by the retirement of Bro. Patten.

In the belief that Bro. Little combines in a remarkable degree the qualifications it is our duty to insist upon in any Secretary we may appoint, I am acting as Chairman of a Committee for promoting his election. This Committee deems it important in the interests of the Charity that the new Secretary should not be of an age which would, in the common course of nature, render his retirement necessary in a few years, and so burden our funds with another pension. Bro. Little is 34. We consider it essential that the new Secretary should be a man of liberal education and varied experience, fitted by maturity of judgment, habit of mind, and special acquirements, to urge the claims of the Charity upon the brethren. The history and statistics of the Masonic Boys' School furnish convincing testimony, were any needed, as to the imperative duty of securing these qualifications for the sister Institution, and of so promoting a generous rivalry between the two. Bro. Wentworth Little was originally educated for the church, under Bro. the Rev. B. Gibson, M.A.; but deciding upon a secular career, he entered the Civil Service of the Crown in the Emigration Department at Dublin, and holds testimonials of the highest character, both from his reverend tutor and his official chiefs. Bro. Little has been an active Freemason ever since he was initiated into our Order, twelve years ago. He is P.M. of two lodges; P.Z. of two chapters; honorary member of some thirty lodges and chapters; and Provincial Grand Secretary for Middlesex. Bro. Little's extensive connection among Freemasons, and his wide reputation for knowledge and zeal, are in themselves, we consider, an earnest assurance that the duties of this Secretaryship would be efficiently discharged by him. For the last ten years he has filled a responsible appointment in the Grand Secretary's office, and during the greater part of this time he has been cashier and accountant to the Grand Lodge and the Grand Chapter—positions which he still fills.

I venture to lay these facts before you, in the hope that you will agree with me that the appointment of Bro. Little would be of real benefit to the Charity, and I ask you, on this ground only, to give him your interest and support.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,
J. C. PARKINSON, V.P.

P.S.—Bro. Little has served the Stewardships, and is a Life Governor of the three Masonic Charities.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Without attempting to advocate the claims of any particular candidate for the Secretaryship of the Masonic Institution for Girls, I cannot help calling attention to the fact, that upon receiving a circular from one brother, who is an applicant, I enquired who he was and what he had done, and to my utter astonishment was told he is a mere stripling in age, and has actually not been two years a member of the Craft. Surely an inexperienced lad like this cannot adequately represent the great interests at stake in the development and furtherance of our Masonic Charities. I was also informed that the candidate in question is utterly deficient in the gift of speech; being quite unable to address even a few consecutive words to an audience with decent effect; and I submit, therefore, that the election of such a tyro in years and Masonic experience, would be eminently disastrous to the future of the Institution.

Let us be warned in time.
Yours fraternally,
A VICE-PRESIDENT.

GRAND CHAPTER.

The Quarterly Convocation of Grand Chapter was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Col. Burdett occupied the Z. chair; Comp. W. Pulteney Scott, the H.; and Comp. Benjamin Head, the J. Comp. John Hervey, E., took his usual place. Comps. John Savage was N.; Geo. Cox, P.S.; N. Bradford, 1st A.; C. A. Murton, 2nd A.; H. J. P. Dumas, S.B.; Dr. J. Daniel Moore, S.B.; and W. Ough, D.C.

The others Companions who attended were:— Andrew Holman, P.G. S.B.; Joshua Nunn, P.G.D.C.; Thos. Fenn, P.G.S.B.; H. Browne, P.G.S.B.; Joseph Smith, P.G.D.C.; H. Mugeridge, P.G.S.B.; James Brett, P.G.D.C.; Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.S.B.; John Savage, P.G.S.B.; the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C.; C.

J. Mercik, P.Z. 534; A. H. Tattershall, H. 140; A. Bryant, Z. 22; A. J. Duff Filer, P.Z. 259, 28; J. R. Sheen, P.Z. 185; H. Dicketts, J. 145; H. Massey, Z. 619; John Boyd, P.Z. 534; Jas. Terry, P.Z. 174, 975; S. Rosenthal, Z. 410; F. Adlard, P.Z. 214; H. G. Buss, P.Z. 177; T. Mortlock, Z. 186; Dr. Goldsbro', 1098, P.Z. 185; R. W. Little, P.Z. 177, 975; H. M. Levy, J. 188; and C. B. Payne, G.J.

The G.S.E. having read the minutes after Grand Chapter had been formerly opened, Comp. W. Pulteney Scott, President of the Committee of General Purposes moved, that the Committee's Report be taken as read, and received and entered on the minutes, which motions were unanimously agreed to.

The report opened with the following statement of Grand Chapter's accounts from the 17th July, 1872, to the 15th October, 1872, both inclusive, which the Committee found to be:—

To Balance 17th April.....	£455 16 5
.. Subsequent Receipts	183 18 6
	£639 14 11
By Disbursements during the Quarter	£140 3 0
.. Purchase of £200 Consols, at 92½, and Commission ...	135 5 0
.. Balance	314 6 11
	£639 14 11

which balance the Committee further stated is in the hands of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., Bankers of the Grand Treasurer.

Comp. W. Pulteney Scott, President of the Committee of General Purposes then moved the granting of the prayers of the following petitions:—

1st. From Companions John Massey as Z., Edward Haggis as H., George Wilderspin as J., and nine others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of the Three Grand Principles, No. 441, Cambridge, to be called "the Chapter of Fidelity," and to meet at the Red Lion Hotel, Cambridge.

2nd. From Companions Horton Yates as Z., Alfred Patterson as H., Francis Septimus Wright as J., and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Etruscan Lodge, No. 546, Longton, to be called "the Etruscan Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Longton, Staffordshire.

3rd. From Companions Michael Emanuel as Z., Robt. Humphreys as H., Thomas Hathaway as J., and nine others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Segontium Lodge, No. 606, Carnarvon, to be called "the Segontium Chapter," and to meet at Carnarvon Castle, Carnarvon, North Wales.

4th. From Companions Thomas William John Goldsbro' as Z., David Pryce Owen as H., William Henry Spaul as J., and six others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Welchpool Lodge, No. 998, Welchpool, and to be called "the Welchpool Chapter," and to meet at the Board Room, Railway Station, Welchpool, Montgomeryshire.

5th. From Companions the Rt. Hon. Sewallis Edward, Earl Ferrers as Z., Henry Deane as H., William Kelly as J., and eight others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Howe and Charnwood Lodge, No. 1007, Loughborough, and to be called "the Charnwood Chapter," and to meet at the Bull's Head Hotel, Loughborough, in the County of Leicester.

These motions were seconded by Comps. Savage, Cox, Head and Moore, and were carried unm. unm.

Comp. Scott was sorry to say that the next portion of the Committee's report related to matters which were not quite so much in form as the foregoing petitions, and he thought he should best put the Grand Chapter in possession of all the circumstances, on which the report was made, if he read the words of the report.

The report proceeded as follows:—

The Committee regret to report, that an irregularity appears to be gaining ground on the part of District Grand Superintendents, of granting to the Petitioners applying to the Supreme Grand Chapter for a Charter for a new Chapter, a dispensation to open and work as a Chapter and exalt brethren to the degree of Royal Arch Masons, pending the transmission of the petition to England, the consideration of the same, decision thereon, and grant of the Charter; this is manifestly improper, inasmuch as it might and does frequently happen that the petition is irregular and has to be referred back for explanation and amendment. Besides inconvenience arises from Companions being exalted before the date of the Charter. The Committee had occasion to bring this subject forward in their report to the Supreme Grand Chapter, holden on the 7th February, 1866. They are compelled to revert to it in consequence of two cases having occurred since the Grand Chapter in August last.

In the one case, that of the Excelsior Chapter, No. 1285, attached to the Lodge Faith Hope and Charity, No. 1285, Ootacamund, Madras, the Charter for which was granted on the 2nd August, 1871, a letter was received on the 21st August last (dated 10th July), inclosing the first return of the Chapter and stating: "that the delay has been caused by our having worked for more than a year under a temporary warrant from the District Grand Chapter of Madras; pending the arrival of the Warrant from England, and this, through some delay at Madras, did not reach us until a short time ago." In this case it is clear that the brethren exalted are not to blame, and that the Chapter has been working irregularly through the fault of the District Grand Superintendent. The Committee, therefore, following the course adopted in February, 1866, recommend, that the Supreme Grand Chapter should so far sanction the proceedings that took place whilst the Chapter was holding meetings under the dispensation, improperly granted by their District Grand Superintendent, as to allow Certificates to be made out for those brethren who were thus exalted to the Royal Arch Degree.

It must be evident to the minds of the Companions that this was a very great irregularity and might cause much inconvenience. The Committee, therefore, thought it their duty to bring it before the notice of Grand Chapter, and in a paragraph which he would have to read presently, he should ask Grand Chapter to sanction an alteration in the Royal Arch Regulations. He would, however, at present content himself with moving the adoption of the recommendation of the Committee, "that the Supreme Grand Chapter should so far sanction the proceedings that took place whilst the Chapter was holding meetings under the dispensation, improperly granted by their District Grand Superintendent, as to allow certificates to be made out for those brethren who were thus exalted to the Royal Arch Degree."

Bro. Joshua Nunn seconded the motion, which was thereupon put and carried.

Comp. Scott said the second case was very similar. The Committee had received a petition from Companions Thomas Curran as Z., John James Beresford Bowman as H., John Tudor Ambrose as J., and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of St. John, No. 728, Beechworth, in the Colony of Victoria, to be called "The Chapter of St. John," and to meet at Freemasons' Hall, Lock Street, Beechworth, Victoria.

The Petition being in all respects regular, the Committee would not have hesitated in recommending that the prayer thereof should be granted, but that the approval of the District Grand Superintendent is supplemented by the words "and dispensation granted." Nevertheless, the Committee being apprehensive that the proposed Companions named in the Petition may have worked under this dispensation pending the transmission and consideration of the Petition, and previously to the grant of a Charter, recommend that the prayer of the Petition be granted; and, in order to prevent inconvenience to Companions exalted in a distant colony, that certificates may be made out for such brethren, if any, as may have been thus inadvertently exalted under such dispensation.

He begged to move that the recommendation be adopted.

Bro. Joseph Smith seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

Comp. Scott drew attention to the next paragraph of the Report which bore upon this question.

The Committee also recommend that the Royal Arch Regulations be altered by the addition of a rule or rules prohibiting District Grand Superintendents from giving such powers and granting such dispensations, and thereby avoid error, and prevent misconception in future.

He thought it necessary that there should be no more mistakes upon this subject; and that the District Grand Superintendents, if they were not now aware of what their powers were for granting dispensations, should be prohibited by the regulations of Grand Chapter from carrying out such supposed grants. Therefore he would move in terms of the recommendation contained in the report.

Comp. John Savage seconded the motion. It was prudent to make some alteration, in order that the District Grand Superintendents might see that they exceeded their powers if they followed the course of the Superintendents mentioned in the Report. It was with great regret he had heard, that in two cases since August last they had had intelligence of the powers conferred on District Grand Superintendents having been exceeded. They had exercised a power which they did not possess; but he was of opinion, as Comp. Scott and the rest of the Committee were, that the brethren who had been exalted should not suffer for the wrongful acts of the Superintendents. He thought it was a proper thing to do—that certificates of exaltation should be granted to those Companions; but it should be made to be clearly understood by the District Grand Superintendents what their powers were.

Comp. T. Fenn asked in what language the proposed alteration was to be made. If the Committee recommended that there should be an alteration in the rules, it seemed to him proper that the precise wording of the alteration should be placed before the Companions. The alteration ought to have been put in the recommendation, unless it was to be followed by something of the kind, and he did not see how this could be done at the present Grand Chapter.

Comp. Scott did not propose that the alteration should be made at this Grand Chapter. The Committee only sought the affirmance of a principle, and in that affirmance they would act and submit to Grand Chapter at next meeting a regulation meeting the case.

Comp. Fenn thought that was all very right, but still it was not in accordance with the principle observed in Grand Lodge, where, when any resolution was proposed for the alteration of the Constitutions it was proposed definitely in so many words. The same ought to be done in Grand Chapter.

Comp. Dr. J. Daniel Moore supposed that a notice of motion to that effect would be given at this meeting to be made at the next.

Comp. Scott replied, that it was a recommendation of the Committee that an alteration should be made, and if the Grand Chapter agreed in the recommendation, the Committee would bring the alteration forward at next Grand Chapter. It did not seem to him that the Committee need have taken the trouble to bring the alteration forward in terms until their recommendation was approved of.

Comp. T. Fenn did not see why the Committee should have taken the trouble to bring the present recommendation forward, as it was of no use practically till the alteration of the laws was made.

Comp. Scott said, it was of use, because the Committee could proceed to the considerations of the proposed new rule if the recommendation was sanctioned.

The Acting G.Z. apprehended that nothing could be done until the Grand Chapter confirmed the alteration which the Committee proposed to make in the regulations.

Comp. Scott reminded the Companions that if the Committee had brought forward a form of regulation they would have laid themselves open to the imputation of taking upon themselves a power which they had not.

The G.S.E. said, the intention of the Committee was merely to seek the affirmance of a principle, and they would propose something at next Grand Chapter for its adoption.

Comp. John Savage could see it very clearly in that light. If this motion were carried, it would not of necessity follow that the laws of Grand Chapter would be altered. The recommendation must be followed by something more; and if they affirmed the principle that night, they were told that on the next occasion a form of words would be brought in carrying out that principle. If the Grand Chapter said to-night, "We do not approve of this at all," then the Committee would not bring in any form of words to alter the regulation; but if Grand Chapter approved of the recommendation, then the Committee would lay a regulation before next meeting.

Comp. T. Fenn could not see what was the use of the recommendation at all, as it was not a regulation and would bind no one to a course of conduct.

Comp. C. A. Murton said, it would have been advisable to settle the matter at once; but they would now have to wait three months before the Committee could bring up the alteration, and it seemed a great loss of time.

Comp. Joseph Smith thought it ought to be a recommendation to carry the rule out. He presumed it was intended to take the opinion of Grand Chapter and leave it to the Committee to settle the detail: but if the proposed alteration were brought up at next meeting, there was no necessity for Grand Chapter to pass it. They were just in that awkward fix.

Comp. Joshua Nunn said, that the Committee were powerless to make the alteration which they saw was needed. All the Comps. could see that an alteration was necessary, and the Committee felt that Grand Chapter would be of that opinion; consequently they laid the circumstances of the case before Grand Chapter, and in order to prevent the irregularities complained of occurring again, they proposed that an alteration should be made in the laws.

Comp. Raynham W. Stewart would move as an amendment, "that there be no special resolution taken upon this subject, but that the report be adopted." When they had adopted the report it would go up to the Committee, and they would bring in what they proposed.

Comp. Joseph Smith would move that it be referred back to the Committee to carry it out.

Comp. Joshua Nunn, as the matter had gone so far, would move an amendment. Grand Chapter must either carry the resolution or drop it altogether. It appeared to him that they must carry the resolution. It did not alter the law: it did not compromise any member of Grand Chapter at all. It was only to ask of Grand Chapter their opinion or the views they entertained with respect to the acts and deeds of District Grand Superintendents; and he thought, if they took that view, they were acting very wisely and justly. If, afterwards they were called upon to alter the law, they would all look on the matter as they had looked upon it, and would assist the General Committee to check what they found were improprieties.

Comp. H. Browse thought the Grand Chapter should adopt the report and request the Committee to carry it out.

Comp. Joshua Nunn would agree to that.

Comp. Browse then moved, "That the report be adopted and the Committee be requested to carry it out."

Comp. Raynham W. Stewart seconded the motion, which was then put and carried unanimously.

On the motion of Comp. Scott, seconded by Comp. Browse, the following item in the Committee's Report was carried:—

The Committee have also received a Petition from the Principals and other Members of the St. John's Chapter, meeting at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon Street, which is at present attached to the St. John's Lodge, No. 167, meeting at the Holly Bush Tavern, Hampstead, praying that the Chapter may be detached from the aforesaid Lodge, No. 167, and be henceforth attached to the Old Union Lodge, No. 46, London, and be called "The Old Union Chapter," and to meet at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon Street, in the City of London.

Both Lodges having given their consent, the Committee recommend that the prayer of the Petition be granted.

Comp. Browse, in accordance with his notice of motion, moved:—"That the sum of £1,500 Stock be taken from the invested funds of Grand Chapter, and be divided in equal parts between the three Masonic Charities; £500 to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, £500 to the Girls' School, and £500 to the Boys'. £2,400 stock now stood to the credit of Grand Chapter, besides £300 in hand. He could not but believe that this was the best use that could be made of the funds of Grand Chapter. The money was subscribed for charitable purposes, and he was sure they would be doing what was right to the Masonic Charities if they distributed it amongst them. Two out of the three charities were in a flourishing condition and did not need money; but Masons were anxious to extend the benefits of their charities, and were desirous that no applicant for admission to them should be refused. Unfortunately they were obliged at present to refuse a good many. Out of 20 applicants for relief at the Benevolent Institution they could only relieve 15; out of 30 at the Girls' School they could only admit 20, and out of 70 at the Boys' School they could only admit 12. He could not help thinking that the best use they could make of the money, was to render all the assistance in their power to those who were dependent upon them for help and support.

Comp. James Brett seconded the motion.

Comp. Savage, not wishing to perform so unpleasant a task as opposing a work of charity, nevertheless wished Grand Chapter to consider a little before they voted so large a sum as £1,500—two-thirds of their funds. They were largely in debt for the building in which they were assembled, and he had a motion on the paper for applying £1,000 towards the reduction of that debt. He did not desire to move this as an amendment to Comp. Browse's motion, but he would call the attention of Grand Chapter to the fact that a few years ago a similar sum was voted to the charities. He would merely call attention to the fact that it was getting rid of their funds, and if carried it was as well they should remember they ought to be just before they were generous. He did not rise for the purpose of moving an amendment, because he felt the great propriety of supporting, to the utmost of their power, their charities, but he hoped if it was carried they would for some time allow the funds of Grand Chapter to lie fallow.

Comp. Joseph Smith thought the £1,500 should be divided into four equal parts, giving a separate fourth-part to the two divisions of the Benevolent Institution, the old men and the old women.

Comp. Browse replied, that the Benevolent Institution had such large funds, that they really granted all the petitions that came before them. He was greatly pleased at the support of Comp. Savage, and he felt sure the Comps. would carry the motion.

Comp. Scott thought that if the Benevolent Institution was so well off, it did not want assistance. The Girls' School was in the same position. But the Boys' School was not; it wanted money; and he should move as an amendment that £500 be given to the Boys' School only.

Comp. Raynham W. Stewart said, that this Grand Chapter gave very large subscriptions to the old men and women, and ten guineas to the Boys' and ten guineas to the Girls' Schools. He thought if £500 were given to the Boys, and another £500 were divided between the other Institutions, it would meet the necessities of the case.

Comp. Joshua Nunn did not think it would be proper for Grand Chapter to contribute to one Institution only to the exclusion of the other. It was certainly true, as Comp. Scott had said, that the Boys' School was more in want of the money than the other Institutions, still, when he was taking from Grand Chapter a large sum of money, it ought to be divided in equal proportions. He did not think they would be doing their duty if they were to cut out two of the charities, and give all the money to the Boys' School. The Grand Chapter had a large sum of money lying dormant, and it would be better used by the charities than employed in the funds. The money should be divided equally.

Comp. Scott would move another amendment, "that the whole £1,500 be given to the Boys' School." (Laughter and No, no.)

Comp. Browse having replied, the original motion was put and carried unanimously. (Cheers.)

Comp. John Savage then said, he did not wish to take up the time of Grand Chapter, but he wished to know what was to be done with the debt for the building; as they had voted £1,500 in charity there would not be sufficient funds left to justify his proceeding with his motion now, but he would bring it forward in six months time, at the meeting in May.

The Grand Chapter was thereupon formally closed.

IMPOSING MASONIC CEREMONIAL IN LIVERPOOL.

LAYING THE CORNER-STONE OF THE NEW MASONIC HALL.

One of the most impressive and striking Masonic Ceremonies which has ever taken place in the Province of West Lancashire, was witnessed at Liverpool, last Saturday afternoon, when the Right Honourable Lord Skelmersdale, Past Grand Warden of England, and Very Worshipful Past Provincial Deputy Grand Master of the Western Division of Lancashire, assisted by Masonic brethren of high standing and great influence in the Craft. The vitality and increasing power of the Order in this province—and in Liverpool especially, as the heart and head-quarters of Masonry within the division—were never for a moment doubted except by those who, while ignorant of the progress of the Order, professed a kind of supercilious contempt for that which they could not understand; but even to these the very numerous and highly influential gathering of brethren must have carried to them the conviction that Freemasonry is not only a living power, but an Order worthy of the attention and study of the wisest. Not only was the gathering the most numerous which has ever taken place in this district, but it was also one of the most influential representative meetings, comprising as it did nearly all the leaders of the Order within the province. So great has been the increase in Liverpool of brethren of the "mystic tie" and kindred Orders—Royal Arch, Mark Masons, Knight Templars, Red Cross of Constantine, &c., that the erection of a new hall has long been looked upon as an absolute necessity; and the building of which the corner-stone was laid on Saturday, will prove not merely a credit to the Craft and an architectural ornament to the town, but a convenient and capacious meeting place for all the lodges in the district. The arrangements in connection with the interesting ceremony were of the most complete character. Bro. J. K. Smith, P.M. 249, being the chairman of this Committee, and therefore the proceedings passed off without the slightest hitch. The building has already made considerable progress, and advantage was taken of this to erect a platform and galleries capable of accommodating 600 or 700 brethren, and as nearly all the available space was fully occupied, there could not have been fewer than 600 Masons present. In view of the risky and changeable weather, a huge tent completely covered the scene of the ceremony, but fortunately this protection was little needed, as the sun shone during the whole of the afternoon. Bro. G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., superintended, like a skilful general, the ceremonies of the day, and Bro. R. Wilson, P.M. 241, Hon. Sec. to the Masonic Hall Committee, with several prominent members of that body, lent valuable help in carrying out the general arrangements.

The following is the Architect's description of the building, which will occupy a place in front of the old hall:—The design for the new hall is of Italian character, and was selected in competition. The front to Hope-street will be built of white stone, and set back from the line of street. The principal entrance in the centre of the front is approached by a broad flight of steps, and protected by a spacious projecting porch, flanked by columns and pilasters with carved capitals. The internal arrangements of the design are complete in every respect, and display careful study to meet the requirements peculiar to a Masonic Hall. The edifice will not only be of an important addition to the public buildings of Liverpool, but will give such accommodation to the Masonic fraternity as cannot be obtained in any building in the kingdom erected for Masonic purposes. The basement is devoted to two club-rooms, each 25 feet by 20 feet, with ante-rooms, store-rooms, wine cellars, &c.; a corridor, 10 feet wide, running from the front to rear. The ground floor consists of library, 25 feet by 20 feet, and committee room of similar dimensions, each with ante-room adjoining; house steward's office; principal and second staircases. Lavatories are placed on this and all other floors of the building. The lodge-room is placed at the back, and is 51 feet 6 inches long by 30 feet wide. This will be approached from the entrance by a corridor, 10 feet wide, and will have preparation, ante and paraphernalia rooms attached. An organ gallery is placed on the east side of the lodge room. On the first floor will be the chapter room, 51 feet 6 inches by 25 feet, fronting Hope-street, with three ante-rooms, and the dining hall, 51 feet by 30 feet, at the back, with ante-rooms, serving and dressing rooms, and a spacious ladies' gallery extending over the ante-rooms on the east side of the dining room. The upper floor is devoted to kitchen purposes, and is connected with the various floors by means of a lift. The Architects are Messrs. Danson and Davies of Liverpool (Bro. Danson, W.M. 1094, being the author of the successful design); the sole contractors being Bro. Joshua Henshaw, and the sub-contractors Messrs. Nicholson and Ayre for Carpentry and joiners' work, Mr. James Leslie for stonemasonry, Mr. Thomas Jones for slating and plastering, and Mr. Crosby for plumbing, painting, and glazing.

The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale was assisted and supported by the following Provincial Grand Officers:—Bros. T. Wylie, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Baxendale, P.P.G.P.; P. Maddox, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Hamer, P.P.G. Treas.; W. Laidlaw, P.P.G.S. of W.; H. S. Alpass, P.P.G. Sec.; T. Armstrong, P.G. Treas.; R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Skeaf, P.P.G.O.; G. de la Perelle, P.P.G.S.; B. W. Rowson, P.P.S. of W.; S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B.; S. P. Brabner, P.P.G.S.W.; W. Doyle, P.P.G.S.; J. B. Lambert, P.G.D.; E. Lan.; A. C. Mott, P.G.S.W.; Cumberland and Westmoreland; E. Friend, P.G.J.D., Cheshire; T. Birchall, P.P.G.J.W.; T. Wilson, P.P.G.J.W.; J. W. J. Fowler, P.P.A.D.C.; J. H. Johnston, P.P.G.S., Cheshire; and P. Ball, P.G. Tyler.

Amongst the more prominent brethren who also "assisted" on the interesting occasion were:—Bros. his Worship the Mayor, J. Pearson, S.D. 680; J. I. Knight, W.M. 241; E. Hughes, W.M. 249; J. N. B. Newton, W.M. 680; W. Stidifor, W.M. 724; J. Devaynes, W.M. 667; R. W. Holt, W.M. 1276; R. Ing, W.M. 594; R. Danson, W.M. 1094; C. H. Hill, P.M. 724; T. S. Jones, P.M. 1276; J. T. Callow, W.M. 673; H. Nelson, P.M. 673; J. Kenyon, W.M. 1013; F. Sergeant, P.M. 594; S. Wylie, W.M. 1403; D. W. Winstanley, P.M. 1094; T. Ashmore, P.M. 823; G. Turner, P.M. 86; J. Taylor, P.M. 1264; T. Leighton, W.M. 1325; S. Johnson, P.M. 673; D. Cunningham, W.M. 32; R. Pearson, P.M. 673; G. Morgan, W.M. 1035; P. B. Gee, W.M. 1264; J. Holland, W.M. 823; J. McKune, P.M. 216; J. T. Hall, P.M. 86; S. Morris, W.M. 86; W. T. May, W.M. 1393; R. Robinson, P.M. 241; J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; W. J. Lunt, P.M. 241; J. Sillitoe, P.M. 241; H. Williams, P.M. 249; A. Davies, S.W. 1264; J. Healing, P.M. 1264; W. Pugh, W.M. 1182; R. Martin, jun., J.D. 1182; E. Pierpoint, P.M. 680; I. de Frece, 594; R. Washington, S.D. 1094; J. H. Buley, J.W. 680; G. N. Blundell, P.M. 786; J. Fowler, S.W. 86; E. Ramson, 249; R. R. Martin, S.W. 1094; E. Kyle, S.W. 673; J. Pemberton, P.M. 1264; T. Berry, S.D. 1393; J. J. Rose, S.W. 249; A. Cohn (Grand Orient Paris); J. Wood, Treas. 1094; D. Campbell, 216; T. H. Ward, S.W. 1276; J. Jones, S.W. 1393; W. C. Connell, P.M. 137; C. Leighton, S.W. 1325; J. Parsons, W.M. 203; J. Peters, P.M. 597; J. Lloyd, J.W. 249; T. Evans, S.W. 1356; J. Pelham, junr., P.M. 292; J. S. Dixon, J.W. 1264; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594; J. Tabley, 594; J. Thornton, P.M. 1182; A. Collins, 241; M. de Frece, 241; A. Vandyke, 241; R. Brocklebank, jun., Sec. 32; W. Horner, Treas. 32; R. C. Yelland, J.D. 1094;

P. B. Forshaw, S.D. 1403; J. B. Forshaw, Treas. 1403.

Punctually at three o'clock—the hour fixed for the commencement of the ceremony—a large number of the brethren and members of the Merchant's Lodge, No. 241, under whose auspices the gathering took place, and by whom the requisite dispensation was secured, assembled in the large room of the old hall. The lodge was opened in the first degree by Bro. J. T. Knight, W.M., supported by Bros. J. Halton, as S.W.; W. M. Chudley, J.W.; T. Mercer, Sec.; R. Brown, S.D.; G. Hutchin, J.D.; A. C. Mott, D.C.; G. Peet, I.G.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. After the lodge had been duly opened, the W.M. handed the Gavel to Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, the S.W.'s chair being then occupied by Bro. Birchall, P.P.J.G.W.; and the J.W.'s, by Bro. T. Wilson, P.P.J.G.W.

The business was of a routine character, and the P.G.L. with other brethren were speedily marshalled in procession by Bro. Broadbridge. There was but a short journey from the lodge-room to the platform where the other brethren had assembled. The following was the order of the procession.

Tyler, bearing banner.
The Trustees of the Masonic Hall, Past Provincial Grand Officers (Bros. T. Wylie and P. Maddox).
Three W.M.'s of Lodges, bearing the cornucopia and the vessels containing oil and wine (Bros. J. I. Knight, 241; J. R. Goepel, P.M. 155; and Bro. Hamer, P.P.G. Treas.).
The Builder, bearing the trowel (Bro. J. Henshaw).
The Architect, bearing the plans (Bro. R. Danson).
The Chairman of the Masonic Hall Committee (Bro. Alpass, P.P.G. Sec.), bearing the inscription, &c.
The Treasurer of the Masonic Hall Fund (Bro. T. Armstrong, P.G.T.), bearing the phial containing the coins.
The Corinthian Light, borne by a W.M. of a Lodge (Bro. Laidlaw).
The Column of the Junior Warden, borne by the W.M. of a Lodge (Bro. S. Haynes, 823).
The Junior Warden with the Plumb Rule (Bro. T. Wilson, P.P.G.J.W.).
The Doric Light, borne by the W.M. of a Lodge (Bro. J. T. Callow, 673).
The Column of the Senior Warden, borne by the W.M. of a Lodge (Bro. Cunningham, 32).
The S.W. with the Level (Bro. Colonel Birchall).
The Junior Deacon (Bro. J. B. Lambert).
The Chaplain, bearing the sacred volume (B., R. Wylie).

A Past Master with a square (Bro. Mott).
The Ionic Light, borne by the W.M. of a Lodge (Bro. Stoddart, 32).

A P.M. bearing a mallet (Bro. his Worship the Mayor, J. Pearson, 680).
The P. Prov. Grand Sword bearer (Bro. S. E. Ibbs).
The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, P.P.D.G.M.
The Senior Deacon (Bro. E. Friend).
Tyler.

As the procession came on the platform the orchestra played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." Afters his lordship had taken his place beside the corner-stone, silence was proclaimed, and the proceedings commenced with solemn prayer, offered by Bro. R. Wylie, in the absence, through illness, of the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.P.G.C. "The Spacious Firmament on High" (arranged by Bro. J. Skeaf, P.P.G.O., in the most effective manner,) performed by the band and choir, after which,

Bro. H. S. Alpass, Chairman of the Masonic Hall Committee, said it was with much pleasure he addressed his lordship on that occasion. The land upon which they were about to build was purchased by the Masons of Liverpool about fifteen years ago, and the building which then stood on the ground, with certain additions, proved sufficient for the Fraternity until about three or four years ago. As his lordship well knew, however, Masonry had so greatly increased that the building now proved quite inadequate to accommodate the lodges. These had become so numerous that every working day throughout the year was occupied by some Masonic meeting or another, and he believed he was right in saying that there were several other lodges and other Masonic bodies ready to come to the new building when it is erected. Without further observation he would, on behalf of the Masonic Hall Committee, ask his lordship to proceed with the laying of the corner-stone of the new building. Bro. Alpass then read the following inscription on the plate to be placed over the cavity in the stone:—"The corner-stone of this Masonic Hall was laid with full Masonic honours by the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.W. of England, and V.W.D.P.M. of the Western Division of Lancashire, assisted by the Masons of the Lancashire Lodges, on the 2nd November in the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, A.L. 5872, A.D. 1872. Bro. Richard Danson, architect; Bro. Joshua Henshaw, builder."

Bro. Armstrong then read a list of the two complete sets of current coins of the realm, placed in an hermetically sealed case showing the obverse and reverse side of each coin. These were the gift of Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.M. 155, and the splendid collection comprised, amongst others, a dragon sovereign, Gothic crown, "godless" florin, and other remarkably interesting coins. Along with these were placed a programme of the day's proceedings, a list of Liverpool lodges, the report of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution for 1871, copy of trust deed, scroll, the Freemason of that day, bye-laws of the Masonic Hall, list of the Committee, with the Liverpool Mercury, Daily Post, Courier, Albion and Weekly Mercury.

After the case had been placed in the cavity of the lower stone by Bro. Armstrong, and the plate had been fixed, the builder delivered the silver trowel to Lord Skelmersdale. The trowel, which was exceedingly chaste, was manufactured by Messrs. Elington and Son, and bore the inscription:—"Presented to the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, V.W.P.D.G.M. of West Lancashire, on the occasion of his laying the foundation-stone of the Liverpool Masonic Hall, Nov. 2nd, A.L. 5872; A.D. 1872." On the trowel was a beautifully engraved view of the front elevation of the building, along with the Masonic emblems.

After his lordship had spread the cement, the upper stone was slowly lowered, with three distinct stops, the band meanwhile playing appropriate music. The noble lord then proved the just position and form of the stone by the plumb rule, level, and square, delivered to him respectively by the J.W., S.W., and P.M. Having satisfied himself in these particulars, he gave the stone three knocks with the mallet (handed to him by Bro. Pearson), and pronounced the following invocation:—"May the Almighty Architect of the Universe look down with benignity upon our present undertaking, and crown the edifice of which we have now laid the corner-stone with every success." Lord Skelmersdale then strewed Corn as an emblem of Plenty, poured Wine and Oil as emblems of Joy and Harmony, and pronounced the second invocation:—"Praise be to the Lord, Immortal and Eternal, who formed the heavens, laid the foundations of the earth, and extended the waters beyond it; who supports the pillars of nations, and maintains in order and harmony surrounding worlds. We implore Thy aid, and may the continued blessings of an all bounteous Providence be the lot of these our native shores; and may the Almighty Ruler of events deign to direct the hand of our Gracious Sovereign, so that she may pour down blessings upon her people; and may her people, living under sage laws in a free government, ever feel grateful for the blessings they enjoy."

Hargreaves' ode "Prosper the Art," was then performed with splendid effect by the band and choir, and Bro. R. Wylie offered a second prayer. Lord Skelmersdale then inspected the plans submitted by the architect, whom he instructed to proceed without loss of time to the completion of the work.

Bro. Lord Skelmersdale then got on the top of the stone, being received with immense cheering, and said it had given him infinite pleasure to have been present at the good work which had been done that day. There was only one regret, and that was, that their late P.G.M. (Sir Thomas Fermor-Hesketh) had not been there to take that duty, for he (Lord Skelmersdale) knew how his heart was set upon it—how he wished that work to be completed. Such a hall had long been wanted in Liverpool, because there Masonry had greatly progressed, and the numbers of brethren had increased, as in other parts of the province. It was only right for the brethren of this "good old town," to build a hall worthy of themselves, and worthy of the Craft. (Cheers.) He trusted the hall might prove satisfactory to the brethren, and that peace and harmony might long reign within its walls. Another source of gratification was, that the corner stone had been laid during the year of office of a worthy brother, if he might call him so—brother, his Worship the Mayor—(loud cheers)—and it had given him the greatest pleasure to see him present that day. His lordship concluded, amid loud applause, by wishing the brethren God-speed in the work until it came to a happy conclusion.

The ceremony concluded with the "National Anthem," admirably arranged by Bro. H. C. Cooper, the solos being sung with remarkable power and effectiveness by Madame Tonnelier. The procession, in reversed order, returned to the lodge-room, where the lodge was closed in due and solemn form, by Bro. Knight, W.M. 241, and his officers.

The special musical programme provided for the ceremony by Bro. D. Saunders, 1299, of the New Star Music Hall (by kind permission of the proprietors), was in every way worthy of the occasion, and the general performance of a character which contributed in a great measure to the imposing and impressive character of the afternoon ceremonial. Bro. Saunders most generously gave the free services of about 40 instrumentalists and vocalists, the latter being headed by Madame Tonnelier, Mrs Saunders, Mr. Hodgson, and himself, and the thoroughly efficient manner in which the whole of the music was rendered, was the subject of general commendation. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale also expressing himself highly delighted with the musical portion of the programme. Bro. H. C. Cooper conducted, with rare tact and ability, and he received valuable help in the general musical arrangements from Bro. Skeaf, P.P.G.O. It may be mentioned that it was a source of great regret to the Committee, that ladies could not be admitted to witness the ceremony, owing to the limited space at their command.

THE BANQUET.

On the conclusion of the ceremony, a banquet was provided at the Adelphi Hotel, where about 100 brethren sat down to a sumptuous banquet in the large and handsome dining hall of the Adelphi Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, who was supported by Bro. Pearson (mayor of Liverpool), and a large number of distinguished brethren. The banquet was provided by Mr. Ludlow, the manager, in a superior manner, the waiting and quality of the wines being especially good. In the intervals, between the toasts, Bros. Saunders, T. J. Hughes, and Evans sang a number of songs, glees, &c., in an excellent manner, Bro. Skeaf presiding at the Pianoforte.

Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, in giving "The Queen," said that was a toast which was always received with enthusiasm in Liverpool, and never more cordially than in their Masonic Lodges.

In proposing "Bro. the Prince of Wales, P.G.M.," his lordship said he knew personally that His Royal Highness took the greatest interest in the Craft, had every intention of working his way up in Masonry, and at that time he showed his devotion to Masonry by personally doing the work of a private lodge as W.M.

The noble Chairman, after giving "The Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," submitted the toast of "The Marquis of Ripon, M.W.G.M.; the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W.D.G.M.; and the officers of the Grand Lodge." He remarked that whenever the Grand Lodge paid Liverpool a visit it would be gladly received, and he might state that before long the Masons of Liverpool would have cause to bring it here—(immense cheering)—he meant to open the new Masonic Hall (Laughter and renewed cheering).

His worship the Mayor, who was received with enthusiastic applause, proposed "The Health of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, V.W.P.D. P.G.M.," and in doing so said he could not express the pleasure it gave him, as Mayor of Liverpool, to propose that toast, because he was one of those British noblemen, of whom he was proud to say they had so many—(cheers)—who recognized the duties as well as the privileges of his high position. In every walk of life his lordship was esteemed by all who had the pleasure of knowing him; and whether they looked upon him as a member of the House of Peers, a landlord, or a neighbour, they had reason to be proud of him. But it was as a Mason they especially esteemed him. ("Hear, hear," and cheers.) The admirable manner in which he had performed his duties that afternoon showed his heart was in the good cause, and he (the Mayor) was sure he would meet with the most enthusiastic approval of the whole of the brethren in that district if they heard it announced that his lordship had received the appointment of Provincial Grand Master. (The brethren rose to their feet and cheered for some time.) After that demonstration he need not say anything more, but ask the brethren to drink the toast in true Masonic fashion. After this had been done with the greatest heartiness,

Lord Skelmersdale, in acknowledging the toast, said he was quite overwhelmed with the enthusiasm of the brethren. He looked upon Liverpool as his foster place in Masonry, for, although he was initiated into the Craft in Oxford, it was only after he came to live near his own home that he fully realised the value of their Order by joining a lodge here. He thanked the Mayor for his kind wishes, and if they ever came to pass he hoped the brethren would always find him at his post. (Cheers.)

Bro. Lord Skelmersdale proposed "The Mayor of Liverpool, Bro. John Pearson," and said that though he had known him for a very short time he had heard of Bro. Pearson long before, and all he had heard led him to cherish the highest esteem for their brother. He (Bro. Skelmersdale) had had the pleasure of enjoying the hospitality of many mayors of this town, but he assured the brethren that he had never received hospitality like that of the present Mayor. (Cheers.) They must all regret that his term of office was nearly expired, and asked if it was not possible to have him re-elected. (Cheers.)

The Mayor in reply, said it was a source of great thankfulness to him that he had been able to go through his year of office so as to give satisfaction. It had been a pleasure to him, as it had been an honour to the town, to have the presence of so many distinguished visitors, but upon no occasion had he greater pleasure than when his lordship entertained the Princess Mary and Prince Teck. He could assure the brethren that he retired from office with a grateful remembrance of many kindnesses he had received at the hands of his fellow townsmen.

Bro. Alpass proposed "The Trustees of the Liverpool Masonic Hall," which was acknowledged by Bros. T. Wylie and Maddox.

"Success to the new Masonic Hall," given by the noble chairman, was acknowledged by Bro. Alpass, who gave some interesting details regarding the progress of Masonry in the province. They had now twenty-seven lodges against nine in 1856, and 1,800 members against 567 at the same period.

Bro. R. Wilson, Honorary Secretary, to the Masonic Hall Committee, also responded, and spoke in terms of congratulation, of the spirit and energy with which the work had been carried out.

Bro. J. K. Smith, Vice-Chairman of the Masonic Hall Committee, proposed in excellent terms the toast of "The Architect and Builder," and paid a high compliment to those brethren, referring also to the valuable services which had been given by Bro. R. Wilson.

Bro. Henshaw acknowledged the toast, and the proceedings then terminated.

CONSECRATION OF THE "OXFORD UNIVERSITY" CHAPTER OF ROSE CROIX.

Friday, the 1st of November, having been fixed for the consecration of the above-named Chapter by the Supreme Council of the 33° for England and Wales, a considerable number of brethren of the Ancient and Accepted Rite assembled on that day, at the beautiful Masonic Hall attached to the Clarendon Hotel, Oxford, for the purpose of witnessing this imposing ceremony.

Amongst those present were the following members of the Supreme Council:—Ill. Bros. C. J. Vigne, M.P.S. Grand Commander; Capt. N. G. Philips, V.P. Lieutenant Grand Commander; the Rev. E. H. H. Vernon, Chaplain-General; and Ill. Bro. W. H. Pullen, 33°, Secretary to the Council; together with Ill. Bros. Major Shadwell Clerke, 32°; C. Chandos Pole, 32°; the Rev. W. F. Short, 31°; C. A. Newnham, 31°; the Earl of Limerick, 31°; C. Fendelow, 31°; J. Oxley Oxland, 30° (32° of Portugal); the Rev. T. F. T. Ravenshaw, 30°; Captain Annesley Phayre, R.N., 30°; Captain A. Nicols, 30°; A. F. Godson, 30°; the Rev. A. Bruce Fraser, 30°; J. F. Starkey, 30°; and Bros. R. T. Caldwell, 18°; H. H. Riach, 18°; R. N. Miller, 18°; Philip Montagu, 18°; A. Akers, 18°; T. F. Dallin, 18°; and C. L. F. Edwards, 18°.

The Meeting was honoured also by the presence of a distinguished visitor from America,—Bro. E. Hamilton Shaw, S.G.I.G. 33° of the Supreme Council, S. J. U.S.A.

A Grand Chapter of Sovereign Princes of Rose Croix of H.R.D.M. having been opened, six candidates for admission to the Order (viz: Bros. E. Chapman, J. Robertson, S. F. Flood, H. R. Cooper Smith, D. Hunter Blair, and C. W. Kennedy.) being in attendance were duly perfected; the ceremony being performed by the Ill. Bro. Hyde Pullen in that impressive and able manner for which he is so justly noted.

At the conclusion of this portion of the proceedings, the members of the Supreme Council having withdrawn, re-entered the hall in formal procession, attended by their Grand Marshals and brethren of the 30°, bearing the Sword of Justice and the Banner of the Order; the brethren forming the Arch of Steel, while the organ pealed forth solemn music.

The Supreme Council having assumed their seats, the M.P. Sov. Grand Commander called on the Grand Marshal to read the dispensation authorizing the formation of the Chapter, which being done, it was solemnly constituted, and declared to be duly enrolled in the Archives of the Supreme Council under the title of the "Oxford University Chapter."

Ill. Bro. the Rev. Arthur Bruce Fraser, 30°, the M.W. Sov.-Elect., having been presented by the Grand Marshal, was next installed in proper form by Ill. Bro. Hyde Pullen, as M.W. Sov. of the Chapter for the ensuing year, and proceeded to appoint the following brethren as his officers:—

The Rev. W. F. Short, 31°	Rev. Prelate.
T. F. Dallin, 18°	1st General.
E. Chapman, 18°	2nd General.
Hugh H. Riach, 18°	Recdr. and Treas.
C. L. F. Edwards, 18°	Grand Marshal.
Aritas Akers, 18°	Raphael.
J. Robertson, 18°	Chamberlain.
S. F. Hood, 18°	Almoner.
H. R. C. Smith, 18°	Herald.
J. W. Kennedy, 18°	Capt. of the Guard.

A cordial vote of welcome was tendered by the Chapter to their distinguished visitor the Ill. Bro. E. Hamilton Shaw, 33°, S.J.U.S.A.; and votes of thanks were unanimously accorded to the Supreme Council for their presence that day, and to Ill. Bro. W. Hyde Pullen for his admirable rendering of the various ceremonies, as well as to Ill. Bro. the Rev. E. H. H. Vernon, 33°, for his handsome present of a silver chalice, and to Ill. Bro. A. F. Godson, 30°, for his expressed intention of endowing the Chapter with a Life Governorship of the Masonic Boys' School.

At the conclusion of the day's proceedings, the Supreme Council and Visitors were entertained at dinner at the Clarendon Hotel by the members of the new chapter, which promises speedily to take a prominent position amongst those of the Order in England and Wales, under whose banner are now ranged fifty Chapters of Rose Croix.

DALKEY.

Dalkey, Tuesday Evening.

MEETING OF TOWN COMMISSIONERS.—The meeting of the Town Commissioners, to be held to-morrow morning, is regarded with much interest. A number of influential gentlemen are desirous of establishing a Masonic Lodge in Dalkey, and, it is understood, intend requesting the Town Commissioners for the use of the Town Hall for this purpose. A section of the inhabitants object to the Town Hall being lent for any purpose save for the sole use of the township. A lively scene is, therefore, anticipated.—Irish Times, Wed., October 30th, 1872.

THE TOWN HALL.

The following letter from J. D. Cope, Esq., was read:—

"Islington-avenue, Kingstown, 29th Oct., 1872.

"Dear Sir—At a meeting of gentlemen who are desirous of establishing a Masonic Lodge in the township of Dalkey, I was requested to act as hon. secretary, and received instructions to apply to your board to know the terms on which the Town Commissioners will let them have the use of the Town Hall for that purpose. A deputation will attend the board on the 30th inst. . . . I should mention that the brethren are of opinion that a sum not to exceed £12 per annum is a liberal amount to offer, and they consider that that sum should include fire and gas light, with permission for the lodge not to meet oftener than twice in each month."

The application on behalf the Masonic Body created quite a stir in the usual peaceful town of Dalkey, and the vicinity of the building was thronged at an early hour by numbers who expected "a scene to take place."

The following gentlemen, being all ratepayers in the township, attended in support of the application:—

J. J. Wilson, George J. Alexander, John Boon, Wm. Bonis, Robert Morrow, John Flynn, J. R. Ryan, J. D. Fitzgerald, and J. D. Cope, Esqrs.

On making their application, it was moved by Henry Parkinson, Esq., T.C., and seconded by Thos. Wright, Esq., T.C.—

That the use of the Town Hall be given for the purpose of a Masonic Lodge—the terms to be £12 per annum, to include gas only, and the number of meetings each year not to exceed eighteen.

Here a town deputation, headed by Mr. George Kelly, Mr. John Carr, and some working men, entered the room evidently with the object of protesting against the application, and it was moved by Alderman Hugh O'Rorke, J.P., and seconded by William Murphy, T.C.—

That this board declines letting our Town Hall for a Freemason Hall, or any such purpose.

For the amendment there were—Alderman O'Rorke, M. Casey, John Fleming, David Beggs, Gregory Kane, Wm. Murphy—6. For the original resolution—H. Parkinson, Dr. Parkinson, Thomas Wright, Gerrard Tyrrell, Edward Harrison—5.

The chairman declined to vote, and expressed his fear of creating a disunion of feeling in the township between the ratepayers and the board. Personally he was not against the Masonic brethren, but thought that the Town Hall, being given by the board for such a purpose, might create an ill will amongst some.

The application then fell to the ground, and the deputations withdrew.

A MASONIC HALL FOR DALKEY.

Subsequent to the refusal of the application, by a majority of one, a meeting was held, and it was determined to appoint a committee and honorary secretary, who should immediately take the necessary steps either to purchase a suitable house to be converted into a Masonic lodge for the township of Dalkey, Killiney, and Kingstown; or to purchase a piece of ground for the erection of a building. The feeling was unanimous that the rebuff which had been given that day to the gentlemen comprising the deputation, would only encourage them to more strenuous exertions; and a subscription list having been opened, it was headed with handsome amounts.—Saunders's News Letter, October 31st, 1872.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland was held yesterday in the Freemason's Hall. In the absence of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, the Earl of Rosslyn, the throne was occupied by Henry Inglis, Esq. of Torsonce, the Right Worshipful Substitute Grand Master. The throne was supported by Col. Campbell of Blythswood, Senior Grand Warden; the Right Hon. the Earl of Kellie, Junior Grand Warden; Wm. Mann, Esq., Past Senior Grand Warden; Captain Hunter, Prov. Grand Master of Aberdeenshire, East; Wm. Officer, Esq., Senior Grand Deacon; Major Ramsay, Junior Grand Deacon; Alexander Hay, Grand Jeweller; D. Robertson, Grand Bible Bearer; R. Davidson, Grand Organist; A. J. Stewart, Grand Secretary; John Laurie, Grand Clerk; Murdoch Mackenzie, Chief Grand Marshal; Albert T. Apthorpe, Grand Marshal; F. S. Melville, President of Grand Stewards; Captain Gordon of Craigmyle, &c., &c.

The Grand Lodge was opened in usual form, and after the passing of the minutes, a subject of the utmost importance to the Masonic body was introduced by the Grand Master.

It had been agreed, on the proposition of the Earl of Rosslyn, that energetic steps should be taken to clear off the very heavy debt at present hanging over the Grand Lodge, and with a view to support the generous ideas of his lordship, the following motion was proposed by Alexander Hay, Esq., and seconded by William Officer, Esq.:—"That with a view to the extinction of the debt of Grand Lodge, and the application of its surplus revenues to charitable purposes, the fee payable to Grand Lodge for each diploma shall hereafter be 5s.; and that each daughter lodge shall hereafter annually pay, on the 24th day of June, to Grand Lodge, the sum of £1 sterling; that these sums shall be collected by the Grand Secretary, and, under deduction of the actual expense of the diplomas, shall be deposited in bank, in an account to be kept in name of trustees, of whom two shall be nominated, by each Provincial Grand Lodge, at home and abroad, and two by the Grand Committee, with the Substitute Grand Master for the time being as an ex officio member and chairman of the said board of trustees; that the said trustees shall annually apply the sums so deposited in extinction of the debt of Grand Lodge; that on the total extinction of said debt, or in the discretion of Grand Lodge on its partial extinction, the surplus revenues of Grand Lodge shall be applied to charitable uses by the Grand Committee and the said Provincial Grand Lodges, in sums proportional to the entrants annually recorded by the lodges within their respective districts."

This motion, after very considerable discussion, was carried by a large majority. Other motions of grave importance were postponed till a future meeting. Intimation being made of the demise of His Majesty Charles XV., King of Sweden, honorary member of the Grand Lodge, and of Brother F. D. McCowan, M.D., Representative of the Grand Orient of France, the Grand Master expressed the sorrow of the Grand Lodge at the death of so distinguished a member of the Craft as Charles XV., and paid a very high tribute to the memory of Brother Dr. McCowan, a brother who, while living, had rendered eminent services to Scottish Masonry, and who had left a substantial token of his benevolence and affection towards the Craft. The office-bearers nominated for the ensuing year are—

M.W. Grand Master—The Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn.

R.W. Past Grand Master—The Right Hon. the Earl of Dalhousie.

R.W. Depute Grand Master—Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart.

R.W. Substitute Grand Master—Henry Inglis, Esq., of Torsonce.

R.W. Senior Grand Warden—Col. A. C. Campbell of Blythswood.

R.W. Junior Grand Warden—The Right Hon. the Earl of Kellie.

R.W. Grand Treasurer—Samuel Hay.

R.W. Grand Secretary—Alex. J. Stewart.

R.W. Grand Clerk—John Laurie.

V.W. Grand Chaplains—The Rev. Y. G. Faithfull, M.A., and Rev. W. H. Gray, D.D.

V.W. Senior Grand Deacon—Major W. H. Ramsay.

V.W. Junior Grand Deacon—F. A. Barrow.

W. Architect—David Bryce.

W. Grand Jeweller—Alexander Hay.

W. Grand Director of Ceremonies—John Coghill.

W. Grand Bible-Bearer—D. Robertson.

Grand Bard—James Ballantine.

Grand Sword-Bearer—The Right Hon. Lord Rosehill.

Grand Director of Music—C. W. M. Muller.

Grand Organist—R. Davidson.
Chief Grand Marshal—M. Mackenzie.
Grand Marshal—A. T. Apthorpe.
Grand Tyler—W. M. Brycc.
Outer Guard—James Baikie.

GRAND STEWARDS.

- President—F. S. Melville. Vice-President—J. Haig.
Br. J. Turner, junior. Br. E. W. Nightingale.
" A. N. Clarke. " J. Goodsir.
" Wm. Mann (No. 137). " J. Macduff.
" David Bryce, jun. " R. P. Bowden.
" Charles Mackenzie. " Capt. M'Casland.
" George Bryce Brown. " F. W. Niblett.
" D. Murray Lyon. " M. M'Nab.
" A. Mitchell. " Henry Lewis.
" Dr. Middleton. " Capt. Gordon.
" W. Grant. " W. G. Roy.
" Thomas Pearson. " T. Field.
" Duncan Monteith. " A. Thomson.
" Henry R. Kay. " G. Farie.
" Dr. John T. Loth. " G. Miller.
" Chas. E. Hope-Verel. " H. Munro.
" Christopher Thomson. " John Logic.
" Alex. Ballantine. " A. J. Henry.
" William Hay. " J. J. Muirhead.
" A. Addison. " D. Thomson.
" J. Wallace. " R. Dudgeon.
" F. L. Law. " J. H. Bostock.
" H. Y. D. Copland. " R. S. Brown.
" Wm. Smith (No. 444). " J. Berry.
" Colonel Guthrie. " A. M'Taggart.
" David Kinnear. " J. Fraser.
" William Barton. " A. M'Connachie.
" Geo. M'Lean. " T. G. Mansfield.
" Geo. Lyon. " Capt. Skene.
" W. P. Buchan. " A. Henry.
" Richard Wilson. " A. Livingstone.
" David Small. " Dr. Hammond.
" Dr. Dickson. " J. M'Laren (as Director of Travelling Arrangements.)
" Thomas Swinton " " "
" Dr. Geo. Shaw. " " "
" C. F. Matier. " K. J. Anderson.
" Dr. Cairns. " G. Robertson.
" Dr. J. G. S. Coghill. " T. Halket.
" J. Taylor.

A petition for a Charter for a new lodge to be called "The Rajpootana, Neemutch, Western India," was granted; and a petition for a new lodge, the "Spey Kingussie," was remitted to Grand Committee, with power to grant a charter, when the application had been put in proper form. The arrangements for the festival of St. Andrew, to take place on the 2nd December, were left in the hands of the Committee of Grand Stewards. At the conclusion of the business a very interesting presentation took place. The Grand Master intimated that a letter had been received from the Lodge Cosmopolitan of Shanghai, requesting that a gold watch and a silver tea service, subscribed for by members of the lodge, should be presented in Grand Lodge to their Past Master, Bro. Charles Melville Donaldson, as an expression of their esteem and in recognition of his services to that lodge and on behalf of Scottish Masonry in general. Grand Lodge unanimously agreed to the request of the foreign lodge, and thereupon the Grand Master, in an able and appropriate speech, presented the gift to Brother Donaldson, who made an eloquent and effective reply. The various costly and handsome articles which composed the Testimonial, were manufactured by Brother Alex. Hay, Jeweller to the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The proceedings being terminated, the lodge was closed according to Masonic ceremonial.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DERBYSHIRE.

On Tuesday last, the Provincial Grand Lodge of Derbyshire Freemasons was held in the Assembly-rooms, Derby, under the presidency of Bro. H. C. Okeover, as A.P.G.M., Bro. J. Crossley officiating as D.P.G.M. There was an unusually large attendance of members of the Craft from various parts of the province. The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in ample form at two p.m., prayer being offered by Bro. the Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, Vicar of Wormhill, Buxton, R.D., Provincial Grand Chaplain. The minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodges held in September, 1871, and February, 1872, were confirmed. The P.G. Secretary also read letters he had received in answer to congratulatory addresses that had been sent to the Queen and the Prince and Princess of Wales on the recovery of Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. A characteristic letter was also read which had been received from Chicago, acknowledging with gratitude the subscriptions received from the Derbyshire brethren for the relief of brethren in that city who had suffered by the great fire last year. The next business was to receive the annual reports of worshipful masters of lodges. These were of a most interesting and gratifying character, and elicited some well-timed remarks from Bro. Okeover, upon the steady progress masonry was making throughout the province of Derbyshire.—Bro. J. Smith, P.G.S.D., read the report of the Masonic Ball Committee, of which he is chairman, which was eventually adopted, after a long and animated discussion, in which Bros. C. R. Colville, Waite, C. F. Roe, H. Casson, T. Cox, J. Crossley, T. Hall, H. Hillam, G. T. Wright, A. Bagshawe, R. Darwin, Foulds, and others took part. It was stated that the Masonic Hall Committee intended to call in the subscriptions promised and get the foundation stone laid as quickly as possible. The site is at the corner of Gower-street, Green-hill.—After Bro. T. Cox had been re-elected Prov. Grand Treasurer and Treasurer of the Masonic Hall Committee, Bro. Colville alluded to the valued and gratuitous services rendered to the Hall Committee, by Bro. John Gadsby, P.P.G.S.W., and moved a vote of thanks to him, which was carried with considerable applause. Bro. Colville expressed his deep regret at the absence of Bro. Gadsby that day, and expressed a hope that he would again take an active part in the furtherance of Freemasonry.—The A.P.G.M. then proceeded to appoint the following as his grand officers for the ensuing year:—Brothers William Naylor, P.S.G.W.; J. Smith, P.J.G.W.; A. A. Bagshawe, P.G. Chaplain; Hazlehurst, P.G.R.; W. H. Marsden, P.G. Secretary; T. A. Jackson, P.S.G.D.; J. M'Adam, P.J.G.D.; G. Sheffield, P.G.S. of W.; Dr. Webb, P.G.D. of C.; W. L. Dodd, Organist; W. M. Lacey, P.G.S.R.; Garnham, P.G.P.; Whitham, P.G.S.B.; Stone, Tyler. Stewards—Bros. Welborne, Hirsch, Bennett, Dusautoy, Headland, and Rateliff.—By permission of Bro. Okeover, Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Boys' School, Wood-green, London, addressed the brethren upon the subject of the Masonic Charities, and expressed the gratitude of the Committee of that noble Institution for the handsome support they had received from the province of Derbyshire.—The remaining business having been disposed of, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in form, and with solemn prayer, after an unusually protracted sitting.

The brethren then adjourned to the St. James's Hotel, where an excellent dinner was provided by Bro. Plock in the large hall. Bro. Okeover, A.P.G.M., presided during dinner, but as he had to leave by an early train, Bro. Colville, P.D.P.G.M., was unanimously called upon to preside, and it is scarcely necessary to state that under his genial presidency a most thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent. Eighty brethren sat down to dinner. The repast over, the room was tyled, and Bro. Colville gave the usual Masonic Toasts, which were duly honoured, Bro. Dodd presiding at the Organ. In the course of the evening Bro. J. Crossley, P.P.G.S.W., proposed the health of Bro. Colville, Past Deputy Prov. Grand Master, in an excellent speech, in which he reviewed the long connection of Bro. Colville with the Craft in Derbyshire, the interest he took in the promotion of Freemasonry, the high estimation in which he was held by the brethren, the pleasure it gave them to see him again amongst them in such excellent health, and the hope that it might please the G.A.O.T.U. long to spare him to aid them with his council and advice.—Bro. Colville replied in a telling address, in which he alluded to the invariable kindness he had always received at their hands. He began to feel himself a very old Freemason, for it was in the year 1830 that he donned the Entered Apprentice's apron. (Hear, hear.) What progress masonry had made in Derbyshire since that time! Then there were only two lodges in the province, although mysterious rumours went about to the effect that there was one in existence in the remote part of the Peak of Derbyshire. There were no railways in those days, so the few brethren then at Derby chartered a couple of chaises to go and try to find out where this lodge existed. (Laughter.) How different to-day when no fewer than sixteen masters of lodges in the province advanced to the pedestal and read those interesting reports which delighted them all, as showing the rapid advance of masonry and the great interest that was being taken in its promotion! Bro. Colville concluded by urging upon the brethren to be careful to preserve the ancient landmarks of the craft, and resumed his seat amidst loud cheers.—Other toasts followed, and Bro. Binckes made an appeal on behalf of the boys' school.—The Tyler's Toast brought the proceedings to a close.

The following amongst others were present in Grand Lodge:—Bros. H. C. Okeover, D.P.G.M.; James Crossley, P.P.G.S.W.; C. R. Colville, P.D.P.G.M.; F. Campion, P.S.G.W.; Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, P.G.C.; S. Taylor, P.G.R.; G. T. Wright, P.S.G.D.; R. R. Duke, P.G.D. of C.; J. Worsnop, P.G.P.; Thos. Hall, P.G. Steward; J. M. Moore, P.G. Steward; J. Foulds, P.J.G.W.; Thos. Cox, P.G.T.; Wm. Naylor, P.G.S.; G. H. Sheffield, P.G.S. of W.; W. H. Marsden, P.G.O.; Thomas Slinn, P.G. Tyler; Frank Witton, P.G.S.; J. W. Webster, P.G.S.; Thos. Horsley, P.P.S.G.W.; H. Hillam, Past Prov. Senior Grand Warden; H. Carson, P.P.J.G.W.; R. Waite, P.P.G.S. of W.; F. Illiffe, P.P.G.D. of C.; C. Slack, P.P.G.A.D. of C.; Jos. Pegg, P.P.G.S.B.; W. H. Burton, P.P.G.P.; J. W. Fearn, W.M. 681; T. A. Jackson, W.M. 353; G. Small, W.M. 787; John Hancock, W.M. 1179; Geo. Garnham, W.M. 1324; Fredk. Turner, W.M. 1237; W. M. Lacey, W.M. 1028; J. Howell, P.M. 850; R. J. Smith, S.W. 681; John Barrowby, J.W. 654; Fred. Wright, J.W. 1324; Josiah Taylor, S.W. 1235; J. C. Merry, J.W. 731; W. M. Hewitt, P.P.S.G.W.; R. Darwin, P.P.J.G.W.; J. Farnsworth, P.P.J.G.D.; Wm. Booth, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; —Kinder, P.P.G. Dir. of Cers.; J. W. Casson, P.P.G. Org.; J. H. Newbold, P.P.G. S.B.; John Smith, P.P.S.G.D.; J. McAdam, W.M. 654; C. Parkin, W.M. 884; C. Brentnall, P.M. 253; John Lowthin, P.P.J.G.D. Prov. W.M. 506; Wm. Bramall, W.M. 625; J. S. Whitham, W.M. 850; C. F. Roe, W.M. 802; John Varley, P.M. 506; S. Whitehead, S.W. 654; J. L. Gibbons, S.W. 353; J. D. Calder, S.W. 625; and W. H. Humphreys, S.W. 506.

There were also present the following visitors:—F. Binckes, W.M. Grand Stewards' Lodge; Edwd. Gindred, 654; C. C. W. Ferguson, 654; J. D. Scally, 353; R. S. Pender, 506; Wm. Dawson, 625; Philip Wright, 1324; T. L. Gentles, 253; R. Rateliffe, 1085; Wm. Goodwin, 1235; Richard Bennett, 731; Edwd. Dusautoy, 731; T. Roe, jun., 731; E. Haggitt, 850; W. L. Dodd, 731; J. T. Wright, 654; Thos. Saxton, 654; Robert McCannabe, 731; Geo. Turner, 506; J. Allen, 1324; J. W. R. Hirsch, 253; W. Welbourne, 253; H. Turner, 353; W. Knight, 731; J. W. Hackett, 731; H. Fowkes, 731; T. Gadsby, 1085; J. F. Baldock, 731; E. Peach, 731; and H. Brookhouse, 1085.

Derbyshire Advertiser, Nov. 1st, 1872.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This medicine has resisted every test which time, prejudice, and vested interest could impose upon it, and it at length stands forth triumphant as the most reliable remedy for those derangements of the system so common at the change of seasons. When the functions of the skin are retarded, an occasional dose of Holloway's Pills will call on the liver and kidneys for greater activity, and compensate the system for diminished cutaneous action. As alteratives, tonics, and aperients, these Pills have no equal. To every aged and delicate person, whose appetite is defective, digestion inferior, and tone of health low, this medicine will be a precious boon, conferring both strength and ease, with activity and cheerfulness. —[Advt.]

To the Patrons, President, Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors of the
ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

YOUR ROYAL HIGHNESS,
MY LORDS, LADIES, AND GENTLEMEN,

The retirement, through ill-health, of Mr. EDWARD H. PATTEN, having caused a vacancy in the Secretaryship of the above-named Institution, I beg most respectfully to offer myself as a Candidate for the appointment, and to solicit the favor of your vote and interest.

Having held a position of trust in the Grand Secretary's Office during the last ten years, I can confidently refer to the Grand Secretary's testimony as to my character, and qualifications.

The accompanying letter from J. C. PARKINSON, Esq., a Vice-President of the Institution, who is acting as Chairman of a Committee for promoting my election, furnishes full information upon other points, and I need simply add that if elected to the post of Secretary, I will devote my best energies to the performance of the important duties confided to me, and in every way endeavour to promote the prosperity of our noble Institution.

I have the honor to remain,

Your most obedient Servant,

R. WENTWORTH LITTLE, P.M., P.Z.,

Prov. Grand Secretary, Middlesex, a Life Governor of the Institution.

7, St. Martin's Road, Stockwell, S.W., November, 1872.

List of Committee for Promoting the election of BRO. WENTWORTH LITTLE.

Bro. JOSEPH CHAS. PARKINSON, W.M. 778; P.M. 181; P.Z. 259, V.P., Chairman.

- | | | | |
|--|--|---|---|
| The Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P. , Prov. Grand Master for Cumberland and Westmoreland. | Richard Boney, P.M. 79, Prov. A.G.P., Middlesex. | William Hamilton, P.M., P.Z. 554. | Wm. Palmer, as W.M. 27, V.P. |
| Col. Francis Burdett, Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex. | Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette. | S. Harman, as S.D. 73. | William Patient, as W.M. 44. |
| Col. George Aug. Vernon, Past Prov. Gr. Master for Staffordshire, V.P. | Thos. W. Boord, P.M. | Joshua Howes, P.M. 765. | William Roebuck, P.M. 465, P. Prov. G.S.B., Surrey. |
| Col. Alex. W. Adair, Past Prov. Gr. Master for Somersetshire. | Robert Bateman, P.M. | William Howell, P.S.W. 157. | Sigismund Rosenthal, P.M. 435, Prov. S.G.W., Middlesex, V.P. |
| The Right Hon. the Earl of Jersey, Past Grand Warden of England. | John H. Batten, W.M. 1309. | Fredk. Hockley, P.M. 8, Past G.S. | John Read, P.M., P.Z. 720. |
| Sir Frederick M. Williams, Bart., M.P. , P.G.W. of England, V.P. | Alfred Bryant, as Z. 22. | Louis Hirsch, P.M. | Arthur A. Richards, P.M. 8, P.Z. 382, Past Grand Steward. |
| Col. John Whitwell, M.P. , P.G.W. of England, as D.P.G.M., Cumberland and Westmoreland. | D'Oyley S. Bayfield, as W.M., 1158 | Edward T. Inskip, P.M., Prov. G.S. Bristol. | W. Sargent, 255. |
| Ernst E. Wendt, Grand Secretary for German Correspondence. | Abel F. F. Birch, P.M., 144. | Rev. W. Taylor Jones, P.M. 181, 708, Prov. Gr. C., Middlesex. | Henry A. Stacey, P.M., P.Z. 180. |
| Brackstone Baker, P.G.D., Representative from Grand Lodges of Nova Scotia, Alabama, Missouri, Oregon, and Tennessee. | Major Gen. H. Clerk, P.M., P.Z. 11. | David H. Jacobs, P.M. 27. | J. R. Stacey, P.M. 172. |
| W. Romaine Callender, P.G.D., D.P.G.M., East Lancashire. | Henry Carter, P.M. 228. | Robert Jones, P.M. 157. | James Self, M.D. , P.M., P.Z. 214. |
| Lewis Crembie, Past Grand Deacon. | George Cockle, P.M. 4, 10, P.G.S. | George Kenning, P.M., P.Z. 192, P. Prov. Gr. D., Middlesex, V.P. | Edwin Sillifant, P.M., P.Z. 217. |
| John B. Monckton, P.G. Deacon. | Antonio J. Colner, P.M., P.Z. 25, P.P.G. Reg. Middlesex, V.P. | Robert Kenyon, W.M. 1293. | Thomas J. Sabine, P.M. 73. |
| George Plucknett, Past Gr. Deacon. | Charles Coote, P.M. 205, 1319. | Philip Kirke, P.M. 144, V.P. | Edward A. Sacre, W.M. 463. |
| Thomas Fenn, P.A.G.D. of C., V.P. | T. Cubitt, P.M. 157, P.P.G.D., Middlex. | Rudolph Kotzenberg, 1293. | William Smeed, P.M. 778, Prov. J.G.W., Middlesex. |
| Hyde Pullen, Past G. Sword Bearer. | Daniel Cronin. | C. F. Kemp, P.M. 211. | William Stuart, P.M., P.Z. 742. |
| Edward Busher, P.G. Sword Bearer. | G. Collier. | George Lambert, P.M. 198, P.Z., P. Prov. Gr. W., Herts, V.P. | Joseph Stohwasser, P.M. 435. |
| J. D. Moore, M.D. , P.G.S. Bearer. | H. M. Collier. | Rev. W. Langley, P.M., P.P.G.W., Leicestershire. | Griffiths Smith, as W.M. 21, V.P. |
| Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist. | John Dixon, M.D. , P.M., P.Z. 73. | Charles Lacey, P.M. 174. | Lionel Spielmann, 435. |
| John Boyd, Grand Pursuivant. | Rev. J. Sydney Darvell, P.M. 108. | Joseph Last, 145. | John Smith, P.M. 157. |
| Charles A. Cottebrune, A.G.P. | Frederic Davison, P.M. 708, Past Prov. Gr. W. Middlesex. | William Long, P.M. 435. | Henry J. Smith, P.M. 946. |
| James Brett, Past Grand Pursuivant. | Herbert Dicketts, P.M. 25. | Charles A. Long, P.M. 25. | John M. Stedwell, P.M. 788, P.Z. 946, Past Prov. G.W., Middlesex, V.P. |
| John Coutts, Past Grand Pursuivant. | Dr. Samuel C. Davison, P.M. 167. | Alfred T. Layton, P.M. 181. | John Todd Swainston, P.M. 91. |
| William Ough, Past Gr. Pursuivant. | Henry Dubosc, P.M. 156. | J. B. Lemaitre, P.M. 12. | Wm. R. Swainston, P.M. 172. |
| Henry Radcliffe, P.M. 858, P.Z. 11, Grand Steward. | John W. M. Dosell, P.M. 55. | George Littlewood, P.M. 780. | Edward W. Stanton, P.M. 181. |
| Frederick Adlard, P.M. 7, Past Prov. G.D.C. Essex. | John Dyer, 22. | Charles Lee, P.M. 9. | Chas. H. Sinclair, as W.M. 255. |
| Wm. H. Absolon, P.M. 34. | Stephen C. Dibdin, P.M. 181. | Henry G. Lake, P.M. 186, P.Z. 820. | David R. Still, W.M.-Elect, 1293. |
| Thomas Anslow, P.M. 141. | Henry Dearsley, P.M. 3. | P. H. Lawrence, P.M. 181. | Ralph M. Smith, P.M., Past Grand Steward. |
| Joseph Alsopp, P.M. 879. | A. L. Dussek, P.M., J.W. 73. | William Mann, P.M., P.Z. 186. | Joseph Taylor, P.M. 18, P. Prov. Gr. W., Middlesex. |
| J. S. Adam, P.M. 90. | S. E. Donne, W.M. 181. | Benjm. C. Marshall, 66. | Henry T. Thompson, P.M. 742. |
| Henry M. Arliss, P.M. | G. Elliott, M.P. , W.M.-elect 778, V.P. | John T. Moss, P.M. 169, 1326, Prov. S.G.D., Middlesex. | B. P. Todd, P.M. 27, P.Z. 382. |
| Hilary Albert, W.M. 9. | Mark Ebersheim, P.M. 957. | Thomas Mason, P.M. 186, P.Z. 820. | John Trickett, P.M. 1194, P. P. G.D.C., Middlesex. |
| John S. Banning, P.M. 4, P.G.S. | Capt. Robert H. Evans, P.M. 1139. | Robert C. Mansfield, S.D. 7. | William A. Tharp, P.M. 49. |
| Wm. C. Barlow, P.M. 174. | F. H. Ebsworth, P.M. 73, 1178. | Arthur Macnamara. | Richard Tanner, P.M. 177. |
| Thomas J. Barnes, P.M., P.Z. 933. | T. Herbert Edmands, P.M. 8, P.G.S. | Thomas Meekham, P.M. 619. | John E. Walford, P.M. 177. |
| J. Woodward Barrett, P.M. 169, Prov. G.S.B., Middlesex. | Joseph Freeman, P.M. 18, Prov. Gr. Supt. Works, Middlesex, V.P. | George de Maid, J.W. 1328. | Frederick Walters, P.M., P.Z. 73. |
| Edward Baxter, P.M. 8, P.G.S. | Major E. H. Finney, W.M. 1361, William J. Ferguson, as W.M. 177. | Thomas Mortlock, P.M., Z. 186. | Richard S. Warrington, P.M., P.Z. |
| George Bolton, P.M., P.Z. 169. | George Free, as W.M. 73, V.P. | Whiffen Montague, 1269. | Major Jacob W. C. Whitbread, P.M. 319, P.P.G.S.B., Hants. |
| George P. Brockbank, P.M. 37, Past Prov. G.D. East Lancashire. | Edward Friend, P.M. 1013, 1289, Prov. J.G.D., Cheshire. | T. R. McIlwham, P.M., P.Z. 946. | William Robert Woodman, M.D. , P.M. 66, P.Z. 33. |
| John Bertram, P.M. 742, 813, V.P. | James Glaisher, F.R.S. , P.M. 33, P. Prov. G.W., Middlesex. | Albert Neate, P.M. 66. | William Wrenn, P.M. 1056. |
| | William Goodyer, P.M. 192. | Percival A. Nairne, P.M., P.Z. 176. | John J. Wilson, P.M. 1237, P. Prov. G.D., Middlesex. |
| | George J. Grace, as S.W. 73. | C. W. Noehmer, as W.M. 186, V.P. | Henry D. Wood, J.D. 181. |
| | Augustus Great-Rex, P.M. | Thos. Norris, P.M. 865. | F. E. Wilkinson, M.D. , P.M. 181 |
| | C. W. C. Hutton, (Ex-Sheriff) P.M. 96 | Magnus Ohren, W.M. 33. | Nicholas Wingfield, P.M., P.Z. 169 |
| | C. H. Rogers-Harrison, P.M. 857, P.Z. | Richard P. Odell, P.M. | T. Wingham, as W.M. 25, V.P. |
| | William B. Heath, P.M. 198, P.Z., P. Prov. G.W., Herts. | Capt. N. G. Phillips, P.M., P.P.G.W. | Thos. Burdett Yeoman, 715. |
| | Chas. F. Hogard, S.W. 205. | Rev. G. Raymond Portal, P.M., P. Prov. G.W., Oxon. | |
| | John J. Harris, W.M. 192. | Fred. A. Phillbrick, P.M. 18. | |
| | William J. Hughan, P.M. 131, P. Prov. Gr. Sec., Cornwall. | George Powell, P.M. 142, P.Z. 975. | |
| | | Edward Palmer, W.M. 1414. | |
| | | John B. Poole, P.M. 27. | |

JOHN BOYD, G.P., P.M. 145, 538. } Honorary Secretaries.
EDWIN SULLIFANT, P.M. 217 }

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Notes on the Orders of the Temple and Hospital...	711
Nortonian Amenities.....	712
CORRESPONDENCE :—
Secretaryship of the Girls' School	713
The Recent Royal Visit to Lathom House.....	714
The Songs of Masonry	714
Masonic Notes and Queries	714
Don't Stay Late.....	715
Masonic Tidings	715
Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham	715
The Qualifications of Masonic Representatives	716
Royal Masonic Institution for Girls	716
CRAFT MASONRY :—
Metropolitan	718
Provincial	718
Masonic Meetings for next week	719
Advertisements..... 709, 710, 719, 720, 721, 722,	723
List of Bro. Little's Committee	724
SUPPLEMENT (Four Pages) :—
So-called Ancient Landmarks	725
Prov. Grand Lodge of Mark Masters for Cumberland and Westmoreland	726
Masonry a Need of Mankind	726
Grand Lodge of Canada.....	727
Ancient York and London Grand Lodges. By Bro.
L., Hyneman	728

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Freres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMMA HOLMES, 31^o,

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from page 656.)

A general dispersion of the Knights followed, but a considerable number took refuge in Russia, where they were favourably received by the Emperor Paul, who at a chapter of the Order, held subsequently at St. Petersburg, was elected Grand Master, and formally notified the fact to all the courts of Europe.

This measure was never approved by the Italian Knights, who accordingly requested the Pope to nominate one of their number as the head of the Order, with the express stipulation that the pherent right of the cavaliers to chose their own chief, was not to be considered as in any way surrendered or abrogated by this temporary abandonment of their privileges.

While the Congress of Vienna held its sittings several Knights formed a General Chapter in Paris, under the Prince de Rohan, and petitioned the Congress to grant them the sovereignty of some small island, in lieu of Malta, which the British, who had expelled the French in 1799, were determined not to relinquish. This attempt on the part of the Knights was, however, unsuccessful, and their influence, as a political or ruling body, seems destined never to be restored.

The same writer, in speaking of the connection of the Hospitallers with the Freemasons, says:—In an old diploma granted at Dominica, on the 10th March, 1785, the following statement is expressly made in the preamble :—

"Whereas, by virtue of a dispensation, dated in the East, the 6th March, 5785 of Light, signed J. R. S. Galley, Secretary; and in virtue of the power given us, as faithful servants of our Lord Jesus Christ, as Knights of the Temple of St. John of Jerusalem; and in virtue of letters patent of Encampment dated at Gozzo, the 8th January, 1757, under the seal, &c., of the Grand Master, Dom Emanuel Pinto, and the Bailiff's Pinto and Facs, and the Commandant Sylva, &c., granted to us from the great knowledge, goodness of heart and integrity of our trusty and well beloved brother, John Campbell, being Master of all Orders and degrees, and has taken the mass of the St. Esprit, to congregate, work, and with the brethren to grant certificates; and whereas our trusty and well-beloved brother, James Barclay, being unanimously and duly elected and installed Grand Master of all Orders under the said dispensation, &c."

The writer adds "From the tenour of this document it would appear that the Knights of St. John not only encouraged the rites of Freemasonry, but admitted the Masonic brethren to their own mysteries, Goza or Gozzo, the place alluded to in the diploma, being an appendage of the Maltese possessions of the Knights."

He adds that "if the dispensation granted by Dom Emanuel Pinto in 1757 be genuine, it certainly establishes a very satisfactory basis for the assertion that the Masonic order is identical with the ancient one. Findal makes an important admission concerning this in his attack on the modern Order of Knights Templar, for he says,*

"The Order of Knights Templar had been abolished 1311, and to that epoch they (the Freemasons) were obliged to have recourse when after the banishment of several Knights from Malta in 1740, because they were Freemasons, it was no longer possible to keep up a connection with the Order of St. John, or Knights of Malta, then in the plenitude of their power under the sovereignty of the Pope."

Between the years 1825 and 1831 an English Langue had been reorganised, under the authority of the French Knights, and the Duke of Manchester (Provincial Grand Master of Notts), is now Grand Prior. Amongst the members of this Order we note the names of the following distinguished Masons :—

Bros. Lord Leigh (P.G.M. Warwickshire); Lord Torphichen, whose ancestor, the first peer, was the last Lord of St. John's, Prior of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital in Scotland at the time of the Reformation; William Alexander Laurie, Grand Clerk of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and author of the valuable History of Freemasonry, from which I have had occasion to quote; Bro. Richard Woolf, 31^o, E.S.A., well known as a Masonic writer; and Lord Eliot, 30^o, Provincial Grand Commander for Cornwall (United Orders of the Temple and Hospital).

The Baliwick of Brandenburg separated itself from the Order of St. John in 1719, assumed an independent existence, and elected a Grand Master of its own. It subsequently became in part allied with the general Order, but in 1810 the estates were, by Royal edict, incorporated with those of the Crown, and in 1812 Frederick William III. remodelled this branch under the title of the Royal Prussian Order of St. John. A new Constitution was given to the Order in 1852, and the King became Sovereign Protector, the Crown Prince Grand Master.

Of the branch settled in Russia, two Grand Priorates still remain, under the protection of the Emperor.

The Grand Priorate established in Poland in 1776, was for a long time connected with the English and Bavarian branches, but is at present united with the Russian Priorates.

The Portuguese and Spanish Langue (Aragon and Castile) separated from the Order after the Peace of Amiens in 1802, formed a college of their own, and are known as the Spanish Royal Order.

Thus it will be seen that the Order of St. John is split up into several independent bodies, and I suppose the Masonic Knights of Malta have had as good a claim to the title as the others.

It has been objected to the Masonic Templars and Knights of St. John that they had no power to perpetuate themselves, without the papal sanction, that, in fact, like the Anglican church, they could not have, as it were, an apostolical succession without an acknowledgment of the Pope's supremacy.

This difficulty is solved, however, in the case of the Knights of Malta, by their own conduct. They are seeking to perpetuate themselves in this and other countries without the papal authority. In this country, for instance, we have a Catholic body under Sir George Bowyer, appointed Grand Prior by the Pope, and a Protestant body, under the Duke of Manchester, appointed by themselves. Neither body, of course, recognises the other, and they both, I suppose, ignore the Masonic Order. Said Masonic Order existed in England, however, previous to the revival of the English Langue, and the Emperor of Russia, whose predecessor, Paul, the Knights themselves chose as Protector of the Order, appointed the Duke of Sussex (who was Grand Master of the Masonic Orders of the Temple and Hospital, and who sought the recognition from the elected head of the Order) Grand Prior of England for the Orders of Knights of Malta and Knights Templar.

Howe, in his Freemasons' Annual, mentions this fact, which is quoted by Bro. Woolf in his most interesting little work, and Bro. Yarker in his valuable Notes of the Temple. Bro. Woolf, however, is not satisfied that the Emperor Alexander ever made this appointment, and, indeed, speaks of the election of the Emperor Paul as an illegal one. As he is a member of the branch of the Order which was re-established in this country under the authority of the body of the Knights who met in Paris in 1813, and who repudiated the act of their brethren in Russia, we can understand that the English Langue, which we suppose would not be recognised by the Emperor Alexander, would object to the proceedings of the brethren in Russia.

The objection, however, to use a common phrase, cuts both ways.

That the election of the Emperor Paul was satisfactory to many of the brethren, we may gather from the following extract from Taaffe's History of the Knights of Malta.

The book is in the library of the A. and A. Rite at Golden-square, together with a very large collection of other most valuable works, many of which bear upon the Templar and other high degrees.

I might here state that, anticipating an objection made by many brethren that granted the Emperor's appointment of the Duke of Sussex, he had no right to confer upon him authority over the Templars; the Knights of St. John also considered themselves as Templars.

For a proof of this, I need only direct the reader's attention to the title page of the book to which I allude, where it is described as the History of the Holy Military Sovereign Order of St. John of Jerusalem, or Knights Hospitallers, Knights Templar, Knights of Rhodes, Knights of Malta, by John Taaffe, Knight Commander of the Order.

The author, in mentioning the abdication of the last Grand Master Hompesch, says that on this event taking place, "The Protector* (the Emperor Paul), or locum tenens, having been already legalised by a Grand Master, had no need of the election of a council, as would have been instantly the case otherwise; but assumed his vicarious power at once, as naturally as the Camerlengo at Rome enters into office as soon as the Pope dies; and in the Order at least, to die and to abdicate are the same thing. Then completely was it in rule that on the 26th June Paul took the Protectorship, and on the 27th October the Knights then present at St. Petersburg elected him to the Grand Mastery, as they had a perfect right to do; and offered him the magisterial cap, &c., in a public audience, which, after mature reflection, he accepted, on the 13th November, the Russian Vice-Chancellor pronouncing the act of acceptance, and all the Knights taking the oath usual on such an occasion; so that up to Paul's death, for that short time it appears he was really Grand Master, for any little variation in form may be excused from the urgency, and in substance there was none. Therefore it is to be supposed future historians of our Order will give him a place in the magisterial roll."

Taaffe says also that until the Emperor became Protector of the Order, the Order's only Protector had been the kings of England. Neither France nor Germany, however friendly, had that distinguished title. It was, like Turcopolier, belonging to England alone.

Vice notre protector was said even to Henry VIII., who suppressed the Order in England. By the way, we find no mention in Taaffe of the revival of the English Language, as related by Bro. Woof.

I shall have to say more anon concerning the Hospitallers.

Turning to our own Order of Masonic Knights Templar, you are doubtless aware that of the 123 Encampments now in existence, five claim a descent from time immemorial—the Baldwyn, Bristol; the ancient York Conclave of Redemption, of Hull, removed from York; the Abbey Chapter, Nottingham; the Observance, London; and the Union, or Rougemont, Exeter).

The Baldwyn, it is said, has been in existence since the time of Richard, Cœur de Lion, who, as you know, was said by some to be a Templar. There is no doubt a preceptory of the Order existed at Bristol, as the Temple Church and parish still testify, and curiously enough whilst I was in Bristol in July last, Sir Knight Powell, the worthy and esteemed D.P.G.C. of Bristol, showed me the seal of the Order, which had just been picked up near the river, and which was discovered in making some excavations there about 20 feet below the surface.

The characters which surround the Agnus Dei, which was the usual seal of the Order in England, are believed to be of the 14th century, but how the seal came there no one can tell.

Some local antiquarians had long supposed that on the persecution of the Order, the Knights left their quarters in Bristol, and crossing over at Rownham Ferry, which is known to have been in existence for hundreds of years, took shelter at Abbot's Leigh.

They may have lost their seal in the river in their hurried escape; at all events its discovery is a curious and interesting fact.

Mackey and other authors say that it is believed the Bristol Knights still retain the costume and ancient ceremonial of the Order. Thanks to the courtesy of Sir Knights S. E. Taylor and W. Bowden, both distinguished members of the Baldwyn, I was allowed to see many curious and valuable MSS., seals, rituals, &c., but time did not permit of my making that careful examination of them which their antiquity deserved.

Amongst other things I saw a history of the Knights of Malta in two large volumes, written, not printed, in French, and embellished with portraits of the Grand Masters of St. John of Jerusalem—a valuable work.

The jewel of the Baldwyn Encampment is curious, since it shows a connection with all the degrees practised under this body, the Knight Rosæ Crucis, Knight of Kilwinning, and K.H. The Kilwinning, I daresay, once had some connection with the Royal Order of Scotland, and the Rosæ Crucis with the Rose Croix. The K.H. we know was given as a Templar degree, and there is little doubt that these degrees or Orders were given in the last century in other Encampments beside the Baldwyn. They are not now recognised by Grand Conclave; indeed, I have understood that Colonel Kemeys Tynte, when Grand Master, gave up control over these degrees to Dr. Leeson, the Supreme Commander of the 33°. At all events, they are no use now, except when given under the legitimate authority of the Supreme Grand Council A. and A. Rite, as every Supreme Council in the world refuses to admit the brethren without certificates from the S.G.C., 33°.

(To be continued.)

NORTONIAN AMENITIES.

The sight of Bro. Jacob Norton's tomahawk, after it had been so long laid aside, was somewhat startling, but the sound of its blows, laid about with such heartiness and seeming sense of enjoyment, must have made those among us who had not very strong nerves, look about with some terror. If men are to be converted from error or from the pursuit of evil ways by the employment of hard words, or by the force of dogmatism, Bro. Jacob Norton is the man to be of use to them, especially if they have a liking for contemptuous epithets and personal sarcasm. But those who look for fair proof or dispassionate reasoning, must go elsewhere.

Bro. Jacob Norton's papers—the first one especially—on Bro. Hughan's "Ancient Charges," present a striking contrast, in both style and substance, to everything that which brother has written. Bro. Hughan is evidently desirous of pushing his investigations in every direction for the attainment of truth, without any overweening desire to establish or uphold a theory. Bro. Norton is as evidently desirous to overturn a theory, if he does not aim to establish one; or to get rid of what he, for very obvious, and, indeed, avowed, reasons, dislikes. And he is not at all nice in the epithets he applies to those who do not see or think as he does.

He scatters his flowers of speech with a profuse hand, and furnishes us with a vocabulary which any one ambitious of excelling in the use of opprobrious phrases may profitably refer to "Dreamers," who "become half crazed with pondering over Isaiah, Daniel, and the Apocalypse, endeavouring to make others equally crazy," "men possessing a smattering of learning because they have read something about Cheops, Palmyra and the Olympiads, filling the Masonic press with ridiculous speculations." "Charlatans, who rule our Grand Lodges," "noodles, who in our Grand Lodges pass votes of thanks to charlatans for talking nonsense," and "record his lecture for the edification of future noodles," "mystics, who set themselves up as great Masonic lights, confounding Masonry with sectarianism." These are amongst the complimentary forms of speech which Bro. Jacob Norton delights in, when writing of those whom he places amongst "the Masonic luminaries," who have been the bane of Masonry, and have thrown "cartloads of trash" into "our so-called Masonic literature."

If I might take such a liberty, I would, in all seriousness, ask Bro. Jacob Norton whether he really thinks that such a mode of treating questions upon which some of the best men of the Craft differ in judgment, is calculated either to subserve the interests of truth, or to induce the outside world, who are not Masons, to regard Masons or Masonry with much respect? Surely not; and I have reason to say that many brethren think with me, that an exhibition of good temper, toleration, and brotherly love are of more importance than the establishment of any theory, touching the age or origin of speculative Masonry, however interesting that may be in itself, and when dispassionately and discreetly handled.

Our "Masonic Student," whose pseudonym we are always glad to recognise in the columns of The Freemason, has, in his own quiet, and I would fain hope, effective, way, rebuked Bro. Norton for the injustice of which he has been guilty in writing of Anderson and other early labourers in Freemasonry, to whom the Craft is so greatly indebted, but whom he charges with "truckling to the spirit of the age," or "the prejudices of the time," exhibiting "a want of moral courage," "flattering the ignorant," while one of them, at least, was "as ignorant of history and chronology as the author of Matthew Cooke's MS." This sort of thing exhibits itself as Bro. Jacob Norton's infirmity, and it greatly mars, if it does not destroy, his usefulness. While he is ever imputing sectarianism, and intolerance, and superstition to others, he exhibits a vast amount of these weaknesses in his own person. It has been well said by one who wrote the "History of Toleration," that "intolerance has not resulted from any particular system, but from the prevalence of ignorance, and the force of those illiberal prejudices which are natural to the mind of untutored men;" and an acute critic in the Edinburgh Review, adds, without any such qualification, "In fact, it may be laid down as a fundamental principle, that intolerance is natural to man in every state of society." Hence it is I presume, that we find quite as much "intolerance" in those who fancy they are quite free from "superstition" and "sectarianism," as in any other class of men, and that while they write with horror of the things that have been done by "sectarians," in the name of religion, they exhibit a spirit or a state of feeling towards those who differ from them in opinion, which looks as if it would, if it could, put them down with a very heavy hand. They "speak daggers," if they "use none."

WILLIAM CARPENTER.

Original Correspondence.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The following letter, which has been addressed to the Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, having been forwarded to us for publication, we have great pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the claims of Bro. Little, which are ably set forth therein:—

Collier's Wood, Merton, S.W.,
November 1, 1872.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. R. Wentworth Little has consented, at the request of several Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of the Freemasons' Girls' School, to be put in nomination for the Secretaryship of that Institution, which has just become vacant by the retirement of Bro. Patten.

In the belief that Bro. Little combines in a remarkable degree the qualifications it is our duty to insist upon in any Secretary we may appoint, I am acting as Chairman of a Committee for promoting his election. This Committee deems it important in the interests of the Charity that the new Secretary should not be of an age which would, in the common course of nature, render his retirement necessary in a few years, and so burden our funds with another pension. Bro. Little is 34. We consider it essential that the new Secretary should be a man of liberal education and varied experience, fitted by maturity of judgment, habit of mind, and special acquirements, to urge the claims of the Charity upon the brethren. The history and statistics of the Masonic Boys' School furnish convincing testimony, were any needed, as to the imperative duty of securing these qualifications for the sister Institution, and of so promoting a generous rivalry between the two. Bro. Wentworth Little was originally educated for the church, under Bro. the Rev. B. Gibson, M.A.; but deciding upon a secular career, he entered the Civil Service of the Crown in the Emigration Department at Dublin, and holds testimonials of the highest character, both from his reverend tutor and his official chiefs. Bro. Little has been an active Freemason ever since he was initiated into our Order, twelve years ago. He is P.M. of two lodges; P.Z. of two chapters; honorary member of some thirty lodges and chapters; and Provincial Grand Secretary for Middlesex. Bro. Little's extensive connection among Freemasons, and his wide reputation for knowledge and zeal, are in themselves, we consider, an earnest assurance that the duties of this Secretaryship would be efficiently discharged by him. For the last ten years he has filled a responsible appointment in the Grand Secretary's office, and during the greater part of this time he has been cashier and accountant to the Grand Lodge and the Grand Chapter—positions which he still fills.

I venture to lay these facts before you, in the hope that you will agree with me that the appointment of Bro. Little would be of real benefit to the Charity, and I ask you, on this ground only, to give him your interest and support.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,

J. C. PARKINSON, V.P.

P.S.—Bro. Little has served the Stewardships, and is a Life Governor of three Masonic Charities.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

Dear Sir and Brother

We have great pleasure in calling the special attention of our brother Life Governors to the following testimonial in favor of Bro. Little from Bro. Hervey, the Grand Secretary of England.

"Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.,
"November 12, 1872.

"Having been asked to express my opinion of the qualifications of Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, I beg to say that, during the period I have held the appointment of Grand Secretary, I have found his conduct such as to merit my warmest approval.

"I have the utmost confidence in saying that to 'abilities of a very high order, he unites the indispensable attributes of accuracy, attention and trustworthiness, and I believe him to be well fitted for carrying out the duties of any office, however confidential, to which he may aspire.

"(Signed) JOHN HERVEY, G.S."

We also desire in the interests of truth, to notice a statement that the revenue of the Institution has not materially suffered during Bro. Patten's illness; this no doubt is true, but the statement is incomplete as it stands, inasmuch as a large proportion of the Stewards at the last Festival were Bro. Little's personal friends and some at least undertook the Stewardships and qualified as Life Governors at his request, just as we find now that brethren are coming forward almost daily with their ten guineas each and qualifying to vote and ensure his election.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN BOYD, G. Purst., P.M. P.Z.
EDWIN SILLIFANT, P.M.

Hon. Secretaries, Wentworth Little Committee.
13th, November, 1872.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I learn from Bro. Parkinson's letter, published in your Supplement last week, that Bro. Little is 34 years of age, that he has had a liberal education, that he has been a Mason 12 years, that he has served the Stewardship and become a Life Governor of all the Masonic Charities, that he is P.M., of two lodges P.Z. of two Chapters, &c.

I know him to be a most enthusiastic Mason, and although not intimately acquainted with him, am so familiar with his name that I am led from an inquisitive spirit to put a few questions, which I trust you will not think impertinent.

I want to know the age of Bro. Lane, who has been six years in the Grand Secretary's Office, and two years on the permanent Staff?

I want to know how long he has been a Mason, his name not being familiar to me?

I want to know how long he has been a Life Governor of the school (as he advertises himself), for I can't find his name in my list?

I want to know what Bro. Lane has done for the Charities, or otherwise prominently in Masonry? Has he passed the chair?

I am quite disinterested as to the result, for I have not the honour to possess a vote, suave des circonstances, but I have the welfare of the schools so much at heart that I would urge upon all who have a vote to investigate, and give their support to him who is most likely to further the interests of the Charity, even as our esteemed Bro. Binckes has the Boys' School.

As Bro. Parkinson has kindly put us au courant to the qualifications of Bro. Little, perhaps one of Bro. Lane's committee, or I should say one of the House Committee, will kindly enlighten us.

I remain,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

P.M.

BRO. FINDEL ON MASONIC RITUALS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At page 691 you state that the Die Bauhütte for October, 12th contains an interesting article by Bro. Findel the Masonic historian, on our rituals. May I ask if you could manage to get a translation of it made and published? I am sure that many Masonic students would like myself, be very glad to pay extra for it.

I am yours fraternally,

A CONSTANT READER.

A MISTAKE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At page 576 of The Freemason for Sept. 21st, a "well-known brother" is styled an "avowed atheist." Now, as it appears to me, it is surely a mistake to speak, much less to write, in such terms of any "brother" who is, and has ever been ready to reply in the affirmative to the query: Do you believe in the existence of God, the Great Architect of the Universe?

I am, yours fraternally,

W. P. B.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly rectify an error in your report of the anniversary festival of the Star Lodge of Instruction. The report in question appears in this day's edition, and states that Bro. Little responded to the toast of the Grand Officers, a statement which is incorrect, for although the worthy brother who presided inadvertently connected the name of Bro. Little with the toast, that brother distinctly declined the honour of returning thanks for the Grand Officers, not being a member of that distinguished body, although he was always pleased to bear testimony to the excellent way in which they performed their various duties.

I am, yours faithfully,

H. SADLER, W.M. 147.

Obituary.

BRO. BAINBRIDGE, JUN.

With a sad heart we record the death, from consumption, of a zealous member of the Craft of Liverpool and Chester, Bro. W. R. Bainbridge, junior. Although only twenty eight when death summoned him, on Saturday, the 9th inst., to leave this sublunary sphere, he was a P.M., P.Z., K.T., &c., and P.Prov. G. Sec., having been initiated at an early age by dispensation.

His decease will be sincerely lamented by a large circle of friends, and especially by the Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, to whom he was most ardently attached, and was a devoted member and active worker in the various degrees. He was the only son of the esteemed Bro. W. R. Bainbridge, P.M., &c., of 28, Castle-st., Liverpool, an old and tried friend of our Order and who, like the deceased, has been a most useful and energetic Freemason. We sympathise with the afflicted and bereaved, and hope that they will be supported under their severe blow by the G.A.O.T.U., "who is too wise to err, and too good to be unkind."

BREAKFAST.—EPH'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—No medicine can surpass these Pills in their purifying and correcting powers, over every organ of the body. Stomach, liver, lungs, heart and kidneys soon display subjection to this influence, by which all diseases of those organs are cured, all obstructions removed, and every function is healthily performed. The digestion is by this influence so improved that scarcely any food disagrees; acidity and flatulency alike are checked, nausea and biliousness disappear, firmness is given to every muscle, and tone to every nerve; the mind becomes exhilarated, and the thoughts become cheerful. These wonderful Pills correct dyspeptic habits, whether resulting from residence in hot climates, or over indulgence; they secure by night, sound, refreshing sleep, which fits the body for renewed exertions.—ADVT.

"A few months ago I was suffering from inflammation of the throat, brought on by a severe cold, so that I could scarcely speak, and only with great difficulty swallow any food. I could get no permanent relief from any source until a friend induced me to try your Vegetable Pain Killer, a few doses of which completely cured me.—J. MACK, 11, Gordon-street, Liverpool.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

GLEANINGS BY AN OPERATIVE AND SPECULATIVE MASON.

The term "Freemason" appears formerly to have signified no more than the present name of mason—a stone-cutter—who worked with a chisel, as distinguished from one who could only dress stone with an axe or hammer, and build walls, in which sense it is still used in some parts of the kingdom, it is not improbably a contraction of "Free-stone-mason." During the middle ages the Craftsmen of almost every trade formed themselves into societies or guilds; and prescribed rules for their governance, which were recognized by the higher powers, who also, sometimes, conferred particular privileges upon them. The Masons in some parts of Europe were early united in an association of this kind; for they are found to have been established as a free Guild or Corporation in Lombardy, in the tenth century, but whether this society was descended from Dionysiasts of Antiquity, or originated in a later age, has not been ascertained. In Normandy they appear to have become associated in 1145, when, as in the middle ages, architects, as distinct practitioners, were scarcely known, and but little more than the general form and arrangement of a building were prescribed by those who superintended its erection, much of its beauty must have depended on the skill of the workmen to whose control the subordinate parts were entrusted; the Masons therefore must have had the power of largely influencing the appearance of the structures on which they were employed, hence it might be expected, that at a time when the greatest architectural splendour was sought after in ecclesiastical edifices, the artificers, on whom so much depended, should have been especially patronized by the dignitaries and friends of the Church, and this is found to have been the case; some Popes are recorded as having issued bulls conferring especial privileges upon them.

Although the Guilds of most other trades have been abrogated, the Society of Freemasons has preserved its existence, and in modern times has been spread over the greater part of the civilized portion of the world, and its laws are recognized by Kings and Princes.—W. L.

NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

I have read Bro. Buchan's criticism on my "Notes," and am flattered at his condescending to note them at all. At the same time, I am bound to state that he hardly seems to have noticed, in objecting to the statements I have put forward, that I quote chapter and verse for every assumption, and that when he speaks of my mistakes, he really is accusing others, and not myself, of erroneous assertions. For instance, we are coolly told that because Bro. Buchan had a conversation with a brother in Edinburgh, "who believed otherwise," we are to assume that though Professor Aytoun wrote the famous Templars' Song I have quoted, he did not believe what he wrote. Who is the wonderful brother Bro. Buchan had the conversation with? For my part, I prefer taking Professor Aytoun and his own words, to Bro. Hughan's ipse dixit. Bro. Buchan objects to my statements as to the antiquity of the Scotch lodges, and speaks of my mistakes as to the Glasgow lodges and the emblems in the cathedral there. If he refers to my lecture, he will see I am merely quoting Bro. Kerr. If Bro. Buchan will only read the last published Grand Mark Lodge papers, he will find almost word for word the passages I quote, and I am yet to learn that he is a better or more reliable Masonic authority than Bro. Kerr. It is a question how long ago speculative Masonry was practised, and we all know our erratic brother's pet 1717 theory, but I have reason to believe that there is no misprint as to Royal Order documents being 200 years old. Bro. Buchan says that Bro. Pemecnick's statement as to the Blue Blanket having its rise about 1200 "is a mere fancy." So are a great many things else in our friend's eyes. The whole of our most distinguished Masonic traditions are mere fancies; and even the volume of the Sacred Law is, in Bro. Buchan's eyes, little more than a mere fancy.—EMMA HOLMES.

THE RECENT ROYAL VISIT TO LATHOM HOUSE.

It will be pleasant news to the whole masonic body, especially those within the Liverpool district, to know that the munificent hospitality shown to Her Royal Highness the Princess Mary of Cambridge and his Serene Highness the Duke of Teck during their visit recently to Lathom House and Liverpool, as detailed in The Freemason, by Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, V.W. P.D.P.G.M. of W.L., and Bro. John Pearson, S.D. 680, when Mayor of Liverpool, has not been forgotten by the Royal Visitors. The following letter from Bro. Lord Skelmersdale was received by Bro. Pearson, on Friday last, on the eve of his retirement from office as chief magistrate of the principal seaport in the world, and its contents will doubtless give the highest satisfaction to all classes in the important county more immediately interested:—

Panshanger, Hertford, Nov. 7, 1872.

"Dear Mr. Mayor,—

"I have this day received a most gracious letter from H. R. H. the Princess Mary, of which by her desire, I send you the following copy:—

"I must ask you to convey to the Mayor of Liverpool our heartfelt acknowledgments for the gratifying reception we met with at his hands, as well as at those of the inhabitants of his town. I can never forget the welcome Lancashire has given me and my husband; and I never felt more proud and happy to be an English Princess than on this occasion, when I once again had before me so striking a proof of the loyalty and deep-rooted attachment that exist for the Queen and the Royal House. I need scarcely assure you that I shall not fail to let the Queen know how enthusiastically loyal Lancashire is.

"I have great pleasure in thus conveying to you H. R. H.'s most kind expressions."

Believe me yours truly,

SKELMERSDALE.

"The Worshipful the Mayor."

THE SONGS OF MASONRY.

The songs formed in early times show a striking feature in what may be called the domestic manners of the Masonic institution. Nor has the custom of festive entertainments been yet abandoned. In the beginning of the eighteenth century songs were deemed of so much importance, that they were added to the Books of Constitutions in Great Britain and on the continent, a custom which was followed in America, where all our early monitors contain an abundant supply of lyrical poetry. In the constitutions published in 1723, we find the well-known Entered Apprentice's song, written by Matthew Birkhead, which still retains its popularity among Masons, and has attained an elevation to which its intrinsic merits, as a lyrical composition, would hardly entitle it. Songs appear to have been incorporated into the ceremonies of the Order at the revival of Masonry in 1717. At that time, to use the language of the venerable Oliver, "Labour and refreshment relieved each other like two loving brothers, and the gravity of the former was rendered more engaging by the characteristic cheerfulness and jocund gaiety of the latter." In those days the word "refreshment" had a practical meaning, and the lodge was often called from labour, that the brethren might indulge in innocent gaiety, of which the song formed an essential part. This was called harmony, and the brethren who were blessed with talents for vocal music were often called upon "to contribute to the harmony of the lodge." Thus in the minute-book of a lodge at Lincoln, in the year 1732, which is quoted by Dr. Oliver, the records show that the Master usually "gave an elegant charge; also went through an examination, and the lodge was closed with song and decent merriment." In this custom of singing there was an established system. Each officer was furnished with a song appropriate to his office, and each degree had a song for itself.

Thus in the first edition of the Book of Constitutions we have the "Master's Song," which, says Dr. Anderson, the author, is "to be sung with a chorus, when the Master shall give leave—either one part only, or all together, as he pleases;" the "Warden's Song," which was "to be sung and played at the Quarterly Communication;" the "Fellow Craft's Song," which was to be sung and played at the grand feast; and lastly, the "Entered Prentice's song," which was "to be sung when all grave business is over, and with the Master's leave." In the second edition, the number was greatly increased, and songs were appropriated to the Dep. Gr. Master, the Secretary, the Treasurer, and other officers.

For all these provisions were made in the Old Charges, so that there should be no confusion between the hours of labour and refreshment; for while the brethren were forbidden to behave "Indiculously or jestingly while lodge is engaged in what is serious or solemn," they were permitted, when work was over, "to enjoy themselves with innocent mirth."

The custom of singing songs peculiarly appropriate to the Craft at their lodge meetings, when the grave business was over, was speedily introduced into France and Germany, in which countries a large number of Masonic songs were written and adopted, to be sung by the German and French Masons at their "table lodges," which correspond to the "refreshment" of their English brethren. The lyrical literature of Masonry has in consequence of the custom assumed no considerable magnitude, as an evidence of which it may be stated that Kloss, in his Bibliography of Freemasonry, gives a catalogue—by no means a perfect one—of two hundred and thirteen Masonic song books, published between the years 1734 and 1737, in the English, German, French, Danish, and Polish languages.

The Masons of the present day have not abandoned the usage of singing at their festive meetings after the lodge is closed, but the old songs of Masonry are passing into oblivion, and we seldom hear any of them, except sometimes the never-to-be-forgotten Apprentice's song of Matthew Birkhead. Modern taste and culture reject the rude but hearty stanzas of the old song makers; and the more artistic and pathetic productions of Mackay, Cooke, Morris, Dibdin, Wesley, and other writers of that class are taking their place.

Some of these songs cannot be strictly called Masonic, yet the covert allusions here and there of their authors, whether intentional or accidental, have caused them to be adopted by the Craft, and placed among their minstrelsy. Thus the well-known ballad of "Tubal Cain," by Charles Mackay, always has an inspiring effect when sung at a lodge banquet, because of the reference to this old worker in metals whom the Masons fondly consider as one of the mythical founders of their Order, although the song itself has in its words or its ideas no connection whatever with Freemasonry. Burns' "Auld Lang Syne" is another production not strictly Masonic, which has met with the universal favour of the Craft, because the warm fraternal spirit it breathes is in every way Masonic, and hence it has almost become a rule of obligation that every festive party of Freemasons should close with the great Scotchman's invocation to part in love and kindness.

But Robert Burns has also supplied the Craft with several purely Masonic songs, and his farewell to the brethren of Tarbolton Lodge, beginning—

"Adieu! a heart-warm, fond adieu,

Dear Brothers of the Mystic tie," is often sung with pathetic effect at the Table Lodges of the Order.

As already observed, we have many productions of our Masonic poets which are taking the place of the older and coarser songs of our predecessors. It would be tedious to name all who have successfully invoked the Masonic muse. Masonic songs—that is to say songs whose themes are Masonic incidents, whose language refers to the technical language of Freemasonry, and whose spirit breathes its spirit and its teachings—are now a well-settled part of the literary curriculum of the Institution. At first they were all festive in-character and often coarse in style, with little or no pretension to poetic excellence. Now they are festive, but refined; or sacred, and used on occasions of public solemnity; or mythical, and constituting a part of the ceremonies of the different degrees. But they all have a character of poetic art which is far above the mediocrity so emphatically condemned by Horace.—National Freemason.

DON'T STAY LATE.

This was the parting admonition of the wife of one of our worthy brethren to him as they parted at their door a few evenings since. Out of curiosity we kept the aforesaid brother in view through the evening. He attended the lodge, was social with all, laughed and talked, and gave himself up wholly to pleasure. The lodge closed early, but he lingered until the last, and when the Tyler turned off the lights he seemed unwilling to go. We still kept him in view: with a small party of brethren he called at a saloon to refresh the inner man. He sat chatting with his companions until the hands of the clock pointed upwards, when he arose and laughingly said my wife told me not to stay late to-night. Never mind, he added, "Its lodge night, and I can make it all right with her."

We saw him leave for home, but we thought to ourself that this excuse is often made to the lonely wife who sits waiting anxiously, hour after hour, for her husband's return, who carelessly says that the lodge kept him late.

Brethren, this is not right. A man's place is at home, and if he attends his lodge, let him return as soon as possible, that the lodge will not have to bear the odium of keeping the husband from his family until the small hours of night. It is for reason like this that we not unfrequently hear complaints of the wife and children, that the lodge takes up all the time of the husband and father, so much so that he is never at home. It is also for reason like this that some wives speak harshly of a Masonic lodge, when if the true cause was known, the fault would be in another direction.

Except in extraordinary cases, lodges do not hold later than ten o'clock, and even then, the members, officers excepted, are not required to stay until closed. Let brethren who have families drop in and have a few minutes social conversation during refreshment, and then go home. No reasonable woman could or would object to her husband leaving her for an hour or so once a week. Do this, and we shall hear less complaints from ladies, and they will soon learn to love instead of detesting the Order.—Masonic Monitor.

DURHAM.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE.

On Tuesday the 12th inst., the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham was held in the Masonic Hall, Durham, the R.W.P.G.M. John Fawcett, Esq., in the chair. There was a large attendance of brethren from the different lodges in the province, and of present and past Provincial Grand Officers, among whom were Sir. Hedworth Williamson, Bart., D. Prov. G.M., C. Rowlandson, Prov. J.G.W., Rev. C. D. Trotter, Prov. G.C., Rev. Jno. Cundill, Prov. G. Treas., Rev. G.R. Bulman, P. Prov. G.C., Alderman Groves, P. Prov. J.G.W., and others.

Prior to the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, a meeting of the Fund Committee was held, at which it was resolved, (in addition to the grants for relief,) to recommend the lodge to vote £52 10s. to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; £52 10s. to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; £25 to the Royal Institution for Aged Freemasons; and £25 to the Royal Institution for the Widows of Freemasons. These grants were afterwards confirmed by the lodge.

After the transaction of the usual business, the R.W.P.G.M. appointed and invested the following officers, viz.

- Sir H. Williamson, Bart. ... D. Prov. G.M.
Major Monks ... Prov. G. S. W.
J. S. Denham ... Prov. G. J. W.
Rev. John Cundill, ... Prov. G. Treasurer

- W. H. Crookes..... Prov. G. Secretary.
Rev. C. D. Trotter Prov. G. Chaplain.
John Trotter..... Prov. G. Registrar.
John Morrell..... Prov. G. S. D.
W. Liddell..... Prov. G. J. D.
R. Hudson Prov. G. D. of C.
W. Foster Prov. G. S. of W.
J. Young Prov. G. Swd. B.
J. H. Marshall Prov. G. Organist.
J. Riseborough Prov. G. Purst.
G. Young Prov. G. Steward.
R. Humphrey " " "
T. Brunton " " "
J. J. Sawyer " " "
J. Probert " " "
G. Hopper " " "
J. Thompson..... Prov. G. Tyler.
The brethren to the number of nearly 140 afterwards dined together.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL.

LIFEBOAT SERVICES.—At Scarborough, on the 10th of November, while a heavy gale from the north-east was blowing, the brig Palestine, of Whitby, D. Steel, master, bound from Hartlepool to London, with coals, attempted to enter the harbour. She was suffering from loss of canvass, and was in fact, in a sinking condition when she stranded on Ramsdale Scar, to the south of the harbour. When her perilous position was observed, the Warwickshire Freemasons' lifeboat, Lady Leigh, belonging to the National Institution, was got out, and was fortunately enabled to save the shipwrecked crew, six in number. This lifeboat was only placed on this station about two months since.

THE NEW MAYOR OF LIVERPOOL.—On Saturday, Bro. Edward Samuelson was elected Mayor of Liverpool, to fill the place so honourably filled during the last year by Bro. Pearson.

RICHMOND ELECTION.—Lieut. Lawrence Dundas, of the Royal Horse Guards Blue, nephew and heir presumptive to the Earl of Zetland, was elected for Richmond on Wednesday, in room of the present Lord Chancellor. The successful candidate, who is in his 28th year, received 314 votes, against 228, which were given to Mr. Cooke, barrister.

At the municipal elections at Rochester on Friday, of Town Councillors for the several Wards of the City, Bro. Richard Fry, P.M. 1050 (Gundulph), P. Prov. G.J.D. for Kent, was elected as the representative in the Town Council for the Ward of Strood.

We understand that Bro. Edmund Yates has arranged to contribute "A Bad Lot," an original story, to the Birmingham Morning News.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW KNIGHTS' TEMPLAR ENCAMPMENT.—The Alpass Encampment—named after the esteemed P. Prov. G. Sec. for West Lancashire, will be consecrated at the Masonic Temple, Hope street, Liverpool, on Friday, the 29th inst. Sir Knight Alpass will be the first E.C., and it is expected that arrangements will be made for holding the future conclaves of the new encampment at the Masonic Temple. Great interest attaches to the forthcoming ceremony, and it is fully expected that the Alpass encampment will take a leading place in the roll of the Knights Order.

Bro. Sigismund Rosenthal, the eminent artist, has, by permission of the M.W. Grand Master, presented a life-like portrait of the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., to the Grand Lodge of England, as a companion picture to the portrait of the Earl of Zetland, K.T., M.W.P.G.M., which was also presented by Bro. Rosenthal.

At the Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction, held at the "Approach Tavern," Approach Road, Victoria Park, the Fifteen Sections will be worked by the members of the Doric Lodge of Instruction, on Friday, the 22nd inst., commencing at 7 o'clock, at the above address. Bro. Geo. W. Verry, the Preceptor to this lodge of Instruction, will preside upon the occasion.

CONFIDENCE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—Bro. Constable, S.D. 185, has given notice of the following motion to come on for discussion on Wednesday evening, 20th November:—"That an opportunity be afforded to the members of the Confidence Lodge of Instruction of becoming Life Governors of the Charitable Institutions. That this object would be best attained by means of a ballot, when the sum required for that purpose shall have been subscribed, and shall not be required for any other specific charitable purpose. That any of the members of the Confidence Lodge of Instruction who may have attended its meetings for 30 evenings during the year, be entitled to participate in the ballot, and that this motion take effect from the time of the resolution being carried."

The Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, No. 975, has commenced its winter meetings at the Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday evenings, at 7 o'clock. On the 17th inst. the ceremony of exaltation will be rehearsed and the R.A. jewel explained. Comp. James Brett is the Preceptor, and Comp. John Rumsey Scribe E.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

METROPOLITAN.

THE SAINT GEORGE CHAPTER met at 33 Golden Square, on the 6th inst., when there was a full attendance, comprising Captain N. G. Philips, V.P. Lieutenant Grand Commander, 33°; Ill. Bro. W. Hyde Pullen, 33°, Secretary to the S.C.; Capt. C. J. Burgess, 30°, M.W.S.; Capt. George Barlow, 32°; Major Shadwell Henry Clerke, 32°; Capt. W. Portlock Dadson, 32°; J. Read, 30°; H. Dubosc, 30°; E. J. Castle, 18°; T. H. Edmands, 18°; James Stevens, 18°; and other members of the chapter. There were also present as visitors, Ill. Bro. E. Hamilton Shaw, 33°, Grand Prior of the S.C. of the Southern Jurisdiction U.S.A.; Ill. Bro. Colonel de Lasala, 33° of Portugal; Ill. Bro. Lord Limerick, 31°; Henry Kingsmill, 30°; J. F. Starkey, 30°; A. B. Fraser, 30°; J. Oxley Oxland, 30°; Hugh H. Riach, 18°; Aretas Akers, 18°; The Rev. C. J. Martyn, 18°; and others. Bro. M. B. Tanner, W.M. 811, and Bro. R. S. Houghton, of Lodge No. 354, were perfected, the ceremony being impressively performed by Ill. Bro. W. Hyde Pullen, assisted by Major Clerke and Bro. James Stevens. Bro. E. Hamilton Shaw read a valuable and instructive paper on the degrees from the 4th to the 17th inclusive, as worked in America, and after receiving thanks of the chapter, was voted by acclamation an Hon. member of the Saint George Chapter. Lord Limerick expressed, on behalf of the visitors, the pleasure they felt at being present in a chapter which, although young, gave evidence of a most promising future. Bro. Read presided at the organ and was assisted in the vocal arrangements by Bros. Carter, de Lacy, Hedges, and Jekrll.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 53 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 19, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

The following are in type, but were crowded out; they will appear next week:—Reports of Craft Lodges No. 279, 526, 1394, 1398; Mark Lodge No. 65; also communications from R.B., W.W.B., F.D.F., E.H.H.V.

ERRATUM.—The name of Bro. F. A. Phibrik, P.M. 18, was by error inserted in the list of Bro. Little's Committee, last week.

Public Amusements.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday and Friday, November 16th and 22nd RICHARD THE THIRD. Messrs. J. H. Allan, Dudley, Rainbow, Leigh, Sidney, Fawn, Power, and Guest, Mesdames M. Henderson, Burleigh, Allen, and Lee. On Monday, THE WIFE. Messrs. J. H. Allan, Sidney, and Fawn. Mesdames, M. Henderson, and Allan. On Tuesday, PIZARRO. Messrs. J. H. Allan, Sidney, Fawn, Dudley, and Power; Mesdames Rainbow, M. Henderson and Burleigh. On Wednesday, THE LADY OF LYONS. Messrs. J. H. Allan, Rainbow, Leigh, Fawn, and Power; Mesdames M. Henderson, Burleigh, and Rainbow. On Thursday, LOVE'S SACRIFICE. Messrs. J. H. Allan, Dudley, Leigh, Fawn, and Sidney; Mesdames M. Henderson, Burleigh, Allen, and Lee. To be followed each evening by a PAS SEUL, Mademoiselle Rosine. To conclude with THE WRECK ASHORE. Messrs. Dudley, Rainbow, Sidney, Skinner, Fawn, Power, Guest, Parks, and Vaughan; Mesdames, M. Henderson, Burleigh, Rainbow, and Montague. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday evening, November 16, and during the week, THE FLOWERS OF THE FOREST. Ishmael, Mr. C. Sennett; Phasos, Mr. Lacy; Hugh Lavrock, Mr. Shepherd; Alfred, Mr. Evans; Kinchin, Mr. Hudspeth; Cheap John, Mr. Bousfield; Leybourne, Mr. Hamilton; Lemuel, Miss Rosine; Cynthia, Miss M. Cooper; Starlight Bess, Miss Bramah; Hagar, Miss Rochester. To conclude with THE BLACK DOCTOR. Fabier, Mr. C. Sennett; Andre, Mr. Lacy; St. Luce, Mr. Shepherd; Briguet, Mr. Hudspeth; Pierre, Mr. Evans; Christian, Mr. Bousfield; Pauline, Miss M. Cooper; Madame de Reynerie, Mrs. Stephenson; Countess Aurelia, Miss Hastings. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Buckland, assisted by Misses Alice Barth and Florence Hunter. COAL AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell; and many other entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Claimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King"; and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week commencing November 19.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee, Bro. E. Saker. Variety of Musical Dramas.

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee, Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. Popular Pieces.

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee, Mr. Scitton Parry. "Le Petit Faust."

THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Frece. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Can-can Carnival."

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Performances by the Slave Troupe.

COOKE'S CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Proprietors, Messrs. Cook and Weldon.

NEWSOME'S CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome.

NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager Bro. Saunders. Miscellaneous Entertainment by a talented Company.

TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Anderson and Family.—World of Magic.

QUEEN'S HALL—Gillard's Great American Panorama.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1872.

THE QUALIFICATIONS FOR MASONIC REPRESENTATIVES.

It would be idle to conceal that the crowded meeting of Thursday at Freemasons' Hall was a trial of strength between those members of the House Committee who have been credited with favouring a particular candidate for the Secretaryship, and the party of which Bro. J. C. Parkinson is the leader. Unfortunately, Bro. Joshua Nunn's engagements prevented his being present, and Bro. Symonds was compelled to visit the continent, so that the chief speakers at the former meeting were not able to take part in last Thursday's debate. Thus, the strong feeling of dissatisfaction which Bro. Nunn's conduct in the chair has aroused, found no vent; and that brother is in the unsatisfactory position of being censured by implication, and without the opportunity of reply. It is a thousand pities for his own sake, that he did not come. We may, however, in disposing of a distasteful subject, assure Brother Nunn that the moral law which binds the Chairman of a meeting to supreme impartiality is as immutable as the physical laws which govern the movement of the heavenly bodies. In ancient times a prophet Joshua succeeded in making the sun stand still, but we take leave to assure the Chairman of the 31st October, that the circumstance recorded in Holy Writ was in every way exceptional, and that he will not, if he be wise, attempt to exercise, in the future, miraculous authority at Freemasons' Hall.

The chief business of the Special Quarterly Court was soon disposed of. Bro. Patten's pension of £200 per annum, ("free of income tax," as was gracefully suggested and carried by Bro. Raynham Stewart,) was voted by acclamation. Bro. Parkinson had wished to increase the amount by £50 per annum, but was advised that it was not within the province of a Special Court to increase the sum proposed to be voted; and the original proposition was therefore carried by acclamation, and with an unanimous expression of sympathy and good-will towards the late Secretary.

When the report of the House Committee came to be read, Bro. Parkinson, as will be seen from our report, at once objected to the clause that Master Masons should be eligible for the Secretaryship, as not going far enough. Tracing the history of the Girls' and Boys' Schools, he proved conclusively that the Secretaries of those Institutions had always been men of authority, position, and long standing in the Craft, and argued from this data that the General Committee would stultify itself if it opened the door to candidates possessing none of the qualifications of their predecessors. In this view Bro. Parkinson had the advantage of being seconded by Bro. Hutton Gregory, P.G.D., who, in a speech of great moderation and power, expressed the feeling of those independent brethren who believe that the Charity would suffer if any but an experienced Mason were elected to be its official representative. Bro. Parkinson's first proposal was, that no candidate should be eligible who was not a Mason of seven years standing. Bro. Joseph Smith objected that this, if carried, would exclude a candidate already in the field who had only been a Mason six years. Bro. Parkinson replied that he would, in that case, make the limit five years; when Bro. Savage, P.G.D., in the course of some common-sense remarks, said the principle was sound, but that perhaps even five years was too long a limit, as in rare and exceptional instances men of great ability and application might obtain the necessary knowledge of the Craft in a less time. Bro. Savage appealed on this ground to Bro. Parkinson to make his limit three years, upon which the motion should have Bro. Savage's support. Bro. Dr. Ramsay spoke with great ability in the same spirit; after which Bro. Parkinson once more gave way, and substituted three years for the original seven, when his amendment was carried by an overwhelming majority.

It is satisfactory to know that there can be no pretence hereafter, that the principle at issue was not fairly and fully considered by the largest meeting ever assembled to consider the affairs of any of our Masonic Charities. If the result seem to press hardly upon any candidate, the plain inference is, that he has been ill advised in coming forward. It would have been a sheer mockery if it had gone forth to the Craft that the General Committee had agreed to permit a Mason of one, two, or three years' standing to enter himself for a position of this overwhelming importance, and the repeated concessions made by Bro. Parkinson prove that he and those who act with him, were actuated by a sincere desire to meet the general wish of the brethren—always with the proviso that the essential qualifications of Masonic experience, and knowledge could be secured. The only other points upon which the Report of the House Committee was amended, were the amount of the Secretary's salary, which Bro. Gregory moved, and Bro. Parkinson seconded, should be £300 per annum, instead of £250; and the retention of the office of clerk, which the same brethren appealed to the meeting not to abolish. Both these amendments were agreed to, and the other portions of the Report passed.

It is to be earnestly hoped, now that the general feeling of the supporters of the Girls' School has been ascertained, that the two sections which were so actively represented on Thursday, will see their way to a common course of action. This stage in the struggle is over, and we are satisfied that it has not left a shadow of bitterness behind. If then, the friends of a particular candidate consider themselves aggrieved by the success of Bro. Parkinson's affirmation of a principle; and are willing to act with the party which was triumphant on Thursday, there need be neither doubt nor difficulty about providing satisfactorily and fittingly for a deserving and estimable young man. The occasion is at hand, and we are encouraged to hope for an amicable settlement of differences of opinion, (concerning which there has been enough of agitation and misunderstanding,) by the courteous and scrupulously impartial conduct of the representative of the House Committee who filled the chair on Thursday. In the few pregnant sentences in which Bro. Gregory proposed a vote of thanks to Major Creaton for his presidency over the meeting, and in the cordial endorsement those words received from Bro. Parkinson, might be traced an earnest wish to acknowledge the qualities which were, unluckily, proved to be wanting on a former occasion. As the House Committee and the General Committee have but one wish and aim—the permanent good of the Charity, there ought to be no difficulty in arriving at an harmonious understanding; and for our part, we trust it will not be necessary to have many such “ordeals by combat” as was fought out honestly and energetically last Thursday.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

SPECIAL QUARTERLY COURT AND GENERAL COMMITTEE.

There were the old signs of unusual and abnormal interest in the discussion on the Secretaryship of the Masonic Girls' School on Thursday. After Bro. Patten's pension had been settled unanimously, the meeting waited till half past twelve, when it was constituted a General Committee, and the report of the House Committee was read. At the reading of the first clause, describing as a qualification for the Secretaryship that every candidate must be a Master Mason.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.M. 181, V.P., rose and said:—Brother Chairman—Before the motion for the adoption of the report is put to the meeting, I wish to say a few words respecting it. First I must congratulate our House Committee upon having achieved what they declared a fortnight ago to be impossible; and upon being safely delivered of a Report, after a labour of only fourteen days (laughter). We thought it was only their modesty which asked timidly for a little further delay (hear, hear), and their happy and conscious smiles this morning prove that we knew the constitution of our House Committee better than it did itself—that our prognosis was correct, and that it would have been cruel kindness, after they had undergone ten months' gestation, to have further prolonged the pangs of parturition. (Loud laughter.) On examining their offspring we may congratulate them, moderately, upon its proportions. If it is not quite so strong and perfect as we could wish, we must remember that its parents are all officially related, and that its defects are attributable to what agriculturists call “breeding in and in.” (Laughter. A mixed parentage, an infusion of other thought into their deliberations, would have produced a more vigorous child, but, like many other distinguished people, they were bent on keeping all the dignities in the family, and the result is that we have a well-featured and well-meaning, but not an altogether strong Report. Referring to its various heads, it is pleasant to find so much we can agree with, and so little that is absolutely bad, and I am sure that if the House Committee will submit to our guidance, we shall effect permanent improvement in the stamina of their child. (Hear, hear.)

I beg to propose, therefore, that no candidate shall be eligible for this Secretaryship who is not a Mason of seven years' standing, (Oh! oh!), and to thus remedy an omission on the part of the House Committee, which I confess fills me with dismay. (A laugh). There is no word in their report as to the Masonic standing of the brother we may appoint to the Secretaryship. Are we to understand that there is no restriction here? Would a non-mason be eligible? or what is pretty much the same thing, a brother who has been initiated, passed, and raised for the sole purpose of becoming qualified for this vacancy? (Bro. Rucker protested against any such interpretation.) The House Committee cannot mean us to understand this. (No, no.) But if it is not to be an outsider, and not to be a mush room Mason of yesterday, why have they not met this part of the question openly, and told us the shortest time a man should, in their judgment, have been a Mason, what is the narrowest limit of Masonic experience which fits a brother for the discharge of duties which more than any other call for a minute knowledge of our customs and traditions, our sympathies and tastes? We may judge somewhat by analogy. The late Secretary, Bro. Patten, was a Past Master in the year 1833, and had been an active zealous Mason for many many years before, had been made a Grand Officer, and had devoted himself actively to the Charities for a generation before he became a candidate for the office he filled so well. Before him was Bro. Crewe, whose pleasant social talents, zeal, knowledge, and wide connection among the brethren were his title of eligibility. The Boys' School furnishes similar examples. Bro. Binckes, long before he ever dreamt of applying for the post of Secretary, was known far and wide as a zealous Mason and accomplished worker; while as a member of Grand Lodge he was one of the acknowledged leaders of a strong party with whom I seldom acted, and of whose policy I did not always approve, but who undoubtedly infused great intellectual vigour into our debates. (Hear, hear.) I well remember that at the first Quarterly Communication after Bro. Binckes was elected Secretary, his appointment made a sensible difference in our proceedings for he withdrew an important motion which stood in his name, not thinking it consistent with his new position to take any longer his accustomed part in our discussions. Before Bro. Binckes, was Bro. Thistleton, who was Secretary to the Lodge of Antiquity, who came of a Masonic family, and who had as I may say been born, bred, and dandled into Masonry. (Laughter.) His godfather was the Duke of Sussex, and he was christened Augustus Union after the Grand Master and the Act of Union of the two Grand Lodges of England. (Laughter.) These men were all, in their several ways, powers in the Craft before they applied for the Secretaryship we have now to fill (hear, hear), and the advantages accruing to the Charities have been very great. They spoke with the authority of Masonic experience and knowledge to the inexperienced and ignorant, and they set examples, in their own persons, of a life's devotion to the interests of Masonry, quite irrespective of the posts they occupied. Let me illustrate this by a fragment of personal experience, which has greatly affected my Masonic action, and which is the direct cause of my being here to-day. Twelve years ago, a certain lodge had fallen into decay. The Secretary had hypothecated its funds, the Treasurer was threatened with legal proceedings by its creditors, its members had dropped off, its meetings were not held, dry rot had taken possession of it; and advice was taken as to the best means of giving up the warrant. Instead of doing so, we put a man of rare accomplishments into the chair. He had not been a Mason very long, but his popularity filled the lodge on his installation night, and we had a most successful gathering, memorable to me for one incident. We had a visit from the then Secretary of the Girls' School, Bro. Crewe, who made a speech without being asked to do so, and who obtained a Steward for this Charity. He told us, in his quiet way, of the good the Institution had done, and warned us solemnly of the obligation we were under to look at the serious as well as the joyous side of Masonry. We had never heard of the Masonic Charities, we didn't quite understand him, and we thought it rather a tax, but we knew that the man addressing us was “high up” in the Order we had just entered, and we did not presume to do aught but listen with respect. My friend, the Master, didn't like it, though he didn't interfere; and when I asked him afterwards why he didn't stop that inopportune appeal for charity his reply was that it was only the respect he felt bound to pay to a Mason, as distinguished and experienced as the strange brother appeared to be, that prevented his exercising his authority to put off the appeal for this Institution to a more convenient season. Brethren, before the next meeting of the lodge, my friend, in the hey-day of early manhood, prosperous, courted, witty, and beloved, was smitten down when on a visit of professional inspection for the Government, and we had to mourn over his grave. In a few months more two of his children were inmates of this School. (Hear, hear.) The lesson I have described to you has never left me; and I now wish to enforce the principle of securing a Secretary who shall be able to speak with all the authority of Masonic experience to the brethren. I beg therefore to propose, that no candidate be eligible for this appointment, who is not a Mason of seven years' standing.

Bro. Gregory, P.G.D., seconded the amendment in an eloquent speech, and was satisfied that the principle of securing experience and knowledge was so sound, that it must meet with the approval of all supporters of the Charity.

Bro. Joseph Smith objected that the course proposed by Bro. Parkinson would cut out a particular candidate; and a most animated discussion followed, in which Bro. John Savage P.G.D., Bro. Dr. Ramsay, Bro. Raynham Stewart, and many other brethren took part.

Eventually Bro. Parkinson offered to alter his proposed limit of Masonic standing to three years; and this was carried amid great cheering, and by an overwhelming majority.

Bro. Gregory proposed and carried resolutions, making the salary of the Secretaryship £300 per annum, instead of £250; and retaining the clerkship, which it had been proposed to abolish.

Bro. Raynham Stewart proposed that the election of a Secretary should be fixed for the 5th December, instead of the 28th November, as was agreed at the last meeting; and Bro. J. C. Parkinson wished it to be distinctly understood that he offered no objection to this course. It was decided however that the day as fixed, must stand, and the election will consequently take place by ballot on the 28th November next.

The proceedings, which were again of the most animated character, terminated by a vote of thanks to the Chairman, Major Creton, which was carried by acclamation, and such a vote was never better earned by a Chairman who had delicate and difficult duties to perform, and who discharged them to a nicety.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS:

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Thursday, the 7th instant, Bro. J. Harris, W.M., in the chair, supported by his officers, as follows:—Bros. F. Trott, S.W.; George Abbott, J.W.; George Newman, S.D.; T. Cohe, J.D.; Charles Ankell, I.G.; E. Jones, D.C. The lodge was opened in the first degree, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The following gentlemen were initiated:—Mr. John Curle, Mr. George Taylor, Mr. Thomas Perrin, and Mr. Charles E. Montague Selby; and the following brethren were raised to the degree of M.M.:—Bros. D. McVicar, A. G. Marks, and F. Fellowes. The sum of ten guineas was voted from the Charity Fund of the lodge to the widow of the late Bro. Davis, late assistant manager of the Cannon-st. Hotel. Sundry other business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned. The lodge then retired to the usual banquet, at which nearly sixty brethren sat down, and which was ably presided over by Bro. Harris, W.M. The Past Masters present were—Bros. William Goodyer, Treas.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Secretary; E. Roberts, and E. Key, P.M. The visitors present were—Bros. Charles Jardine, 140; J. Fuller, 645; H. Coles, W.M. 359; J. R. Brading, 78; J. H. Weedon, 715; W. Stone, 19; W. Buck, J. Bance, 574; A. Judd, 574; H. Braund, 752; F. Knight, 1017; and J. A. Turner, 144.

CUMBERLAND.

CARLISLE.—Union Lodge (No. 310).—The last few weeks have been profitably spent in a course of lodges of instruction, which have been well attended. One evening was devoted to examination in opening and closing in each of the three degrees. At another time Bro. Cooke delivered the charge of the first degree, and received the compliments of the brethren for the effective manner in which this was performed. Bro. Hack also occupied one evening in giving a lecture on the first tracing board; and Bro. G. Hayward has kindly promised to explain the second tracing board. On the evening of the 29th, Bro. Geo. Thorpe was passed by Worshipful Master, Bro. Taylor, to the degree of Fellow Craft. On this occasion, Bro. James Porter, P.M., 327, P.G.S.D., was a visitor, and presented the working tools, at the request of the W.M. The W.M. then delivered the charge in the second degree, to the candidate, in a very impressive manner. Bro. Porter was good enough to give the lodge an earnest word of praise; he especially remarked that the ceremonies of the evening had been well and impressively conducted. The brethren, in return, felt thankful for Bro. Porter's remarks; the visits of such Masons as Bro. Porter tend greatly to enliven and improve a lodge, and should therefore be encouraged as one of its best helps. The lodge was closed and the brethren separated in harmony.

HAMPSHIRE.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The regular Meeting of this lodge was held at the Royal Hotel, on the 7th inst. The Chair of K.S. was occupied by the W.M., Bro. J. Fenn, who was supported by the following officers. Bros. C. Carnegie, I.P.M.; Capt. Richardson, R.E., (W.M. elect) S.W.; A.

McKenzie, J.W.; A. J. Edmond, as S.D.; R. Bennett, J.D.; J. Marversly, as I.G.; W. Lucas, O.G.; R. White, Sec. There was a numerous attendance of members and visiting brethren, among the latter were Bros. Eve, P.M.; Hickley, P.M.; Sowdon, P.M.; and Fold, 723; Vine, P.M.; Anderson, 1046; and Bodding, Royal Alfred Lodge. The lodge was open in form in the first degree, and the minutes of the last regular and emergency lodges were severally read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Coleman, P.M. 413, and Sheridan, 1341, as joining members, which was unanimous in each case. The lodge was opened in the second degree, when the W.M. requested Bro. C. Carnegie, I.P.M., P. Prov. G.P. Purst. Hants, to assume the chair for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Capt. Richardson, R.E. The installing officer having taken the Chair, the W.M. elect was presented by the W.M., Bro. Fenn, and the preliminary part of the installation having been gone through, the lodge was opened in the third degree, when the brethren below the degree of Installed Master having retired, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, at which nine were present. Bro. Capt. Richardson, R.E., was then duly obligated, and installed in the chair of K.S., after which he invested Bro. Fenn, as I.P.M. The Board having been closed, Master Masons were readmitted, when the W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in ancient form, and the working tools explained. The lodge was then resumed in the second degree, when the F.C. were readmitted. The Installing Officer then proclaimed the W.M. for the second time in the West, the brethren greeting him as Fellow Crafts, and the working tools being presented and explained, after which the lodge was resumed in the first degree. The Installing Master proclaimed the W.M. for the third time, in the South, and he was saluted by the brethren as Entered Apprentices. The working tools were presented and explained, and the warrant of Constitution, Book of Constitutions, and bye-laws of the lodge presented. The following brethren were appointed and invested by the W.M. as officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. A. McKenzie, S.W.; R. White, J.W.; C. Carnegie, P.M., P. Prov. G. Purst. Hants, Treas. (third time); W. Lucas, Sec.; R. Bennett, S.D.; F. Anderson, J.D.; T. W. Mayer, I.G.; J. Marversly, O.G.; W. Hopkins and A. J. Edmond, members of Committee of Reference. The Installing Master then delivered the customary addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren. The W.M. proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Carnegie for the excellent manner in which he had performed the duties of Installing Master; seconded by Bro. Osmond, P.M. and carried unanimously. The W.M. then presented Bro. Fenn with the P.M.'s jewel which had been voted to him by the lodge, and in expressive terms referred to the services performed by Bro. Fenn in the formation of the lodge, and also to the efficient manner in which he had performed the duties of S.W. and W.M., and trusted that the G.A.O.T.U. would spare him many years to wear it. Bros. Kirker, R. Art. and Mason, A.S. Corps, were proposed as joining members. A vote of thanks was given to the Prov. Grand Officers for their kindness in attending the installation. Some other business having been transacted, the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to dinner, at which about forty were present. After dinner, which was served in unexceptionable style by Bro. Kuce, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Eve, P. Prov. G.S.W. answered for the visitors, in his usual happy manner, and a most enjoyable evening was spent, to which the excellent singing of Bros. Eve, White, Bennett, and Harper materially contributed.

SUFFOLK.

WOODBIDGE.—Doric Lodge (No. 81).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, November 6th, at the Masonic Hall, Doric Place, and was attended by a goodly number of brethren connected with this flourishing lodge. The lodge was opened by Bro. T. Grimwood, W.M., supported by Bros. B. Gall, S.W.; Phillips, J.W.; Fitzgerald, I.P.M.; Bays, Sec.; Breckles, Treas.; Brad-brook, I.G.; Dr. Gissing, P.M.; Wilmshurst, P.M.; Allen, Gall, Man, and others. Amongst the visitors were Bro. W. T. Westgate, P.M. 225, 376, and 959, P. Prov. G. Dir. of Cers.; Bro. Moses Cohen, J.D. of the Lodge Prince of Wales, 959, Ipswich; Bro. Pepper, of the Lodge Fidelity, No. 555, and others. The lodge having been opened in form in the first degree, on the confirmation of the minutes of last meeting, the lodge was opened in the second and third degrees. No business offering, the lodge was closed in the third and second degree, when Bro. Dr. Gissing, gave a most instructive lecture on the first tracing board, his beautiful exposition of it, thoroughly concentrating the attention of all present. At its conclusion Bro. Westgate craved permission of the W.M. to thank Bro. Gissing, on behalf of the visitors, for the great treat they had enjoyed, which fully repaid them for the little sacrifice of time they had made in coming hither for the purpose. It was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that the thanks of the lodge be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Dr. Gissing, P.M., for the lecture, delivered in so eloquent a manner, which reflected the greatest credit on the Masonic ability and study of that brother. Bro. Gissing, in acknowledging the compliment, promised at no very distant date to give an illustration of the second and third tracing boards. The correspondence having been read, and two gentlemen proposed for initiation, the W.M. proceeded to close the lodge, which having been done, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, supplied by Bro. Grout, of the Bull Hotel, in his usual excellent style, to which ample justice was done by all present. On the removal of the cloth the loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. The toast of the P.G. Master of Suffolk, Col. A. T. Adair, was most heartily received. The W.M. then gave the healths of the R.W.D.P.G.M. and the Past and Present P.G. Officers, coupling with it the name of Bro. Westgate, P. Prov. G. Dir. of Cers. which toast was very warmly received. Bro. Westgate in rising to return thanks, said he could not but feel flattered by the remarks that had fallen from the W.M., at the same time he did not deserve one half that had been said in his favour. However, his desire was to further the interests of the Masonic Order, and he never lost an opportunity of attending a meeting where there was anything to be learned, and hearing that Bro. Gissing was about to deliver a lecture, he had availed himself of the occasion for paying a visit to the Doric Lodge, which, under the able guidance of so worthy a Master was bound to be prosperous, more especially when surrounded and supported by so many intelligent Masons, who had made a life-study of the working of the Order. He felt a greater degree of pleasure on this than on many other occasions, through having had the honour of being initiated in the same lodge, and on the same evening as Bro. Greenwood, their W.M. and he trusted soon to see a Provincial Grand office conferred on that worthy brother. On behalf of the Past and Present Grand Officers he tendered his best thanks. The W.M., in giving the toast of "the Visitors," expressed his great satisfaction at seeing so many illustrious brethren present, and begged to couple with that toast the name of Bro. Moses Cohen. Bro. Cohen, in responding, said:—W.M. and Brethren: It is with no ordinary feelings of gratification that I rise to thank you for the courteous welcome you have given us this evening. I well recollect, before I was initiated into Freemasonry, hearing our Craft compared to secret societies whose end it was to overthrow the systems of justice and order, but it was only necessary to become initiated into its mysteries, to see that Masonry had in view the support of all that was good, noble, charitable and just. We all know the beneficial results that accrue from the practice of Masonry. It extends the hand of fellowship to a brother in distress, alleviates the sickness, the troubles, and the toils of life, and when a brother is incapable of supporting himself or his family, Freemasonry steps in to educate those children and fit them for the duties and responsibilities of life. Allow me again to thank you and to remark how well you have, by your cordial reception of us this evening, exemplified those virtues, benevolence and hospitality, two of the greatest ornaments that can possibly adorn the garland of Masonic art. (Applause.) The W.M. then gave the health of Bro. Dr. Gissing, P.M., to which toast high honours were accorded. Bro. Gissing responded in suitable terms, advising all young masons to pay especial attention to the early training of their masonic career. Bro. Gissing, having permission to use the gavel of the W.M., called on the brethren to charge their glasses and toast the W.M., which was heartily received and suitably acknowledged. Bro. Westgate then gave the healths of the S. and J. Wardens, Bros. Gall and Phillips, being proud to acknowledge Bro. Gall as one of his earliest acquaintances, and hoped soon to have the privilege of seeing him occupy the Chair of K.S. Bro. Gall and Phillips briefly returned thanks. During the evening some excellent songs were given by Bros. Westgate, Wilmshurst, and Cohen. At parting there was but one opinion as to the very enjoyable evening passed by all the brethren present.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, November 15, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, Nov. 16th.

- Lodge 715, Panmure, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 1297, West Kent, Forest Hill Hotel, Forest Hill.
- " 1329, Sphinx, Stirling Castle, Church-st., Camberwell.
- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor.
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.
- Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle-Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, Nov. 18.

- Lodge 8, British, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 21, Emulation, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
- " 58, Felicity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
- " 185, Tranquility, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 720, Panmure, Balham Hotel, Balham.
- " 862, Whittington, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 901, City of London, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
- " 1201, Eclectic, Freemasons' Hall.
- Chapter 12, Prudence, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. Beckett, Preceptor.
- Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7. Ceremony of Installation by Bro. C. Lacey, P.M.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155. Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
- West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, Nov. 19.

- Board of General Purposes at 3.
- Lodge 30, United Mariners, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
- 73, Mount Lebanon, Bridge House Hotel, Southwark
- " 95, Eastern Star, Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leadenhall-st.
- " 162, Cadogan, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 165, Honour and Generosity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
- " 194, St. Paul's, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 435, Salisbury, 71, Dean-st., Soho.
- " 704, Camden, York and Albany, Gloucester-gate, Regents-park.
- " 857, St. Mark's, Duke of Edinburgh Tavern, Brixton.
- Chap. 19, Mount Sinai, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
- Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
- Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
- Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
- Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.

- Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
- Florence Nighungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
- Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
- St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's-wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 20.

- General Committee Grand Lodge and Lodge of Benevolence, at 6.
- Grand Stewards' Lodge, Freemasons' Hall.
- Lodge 140, St. George's, Trafalgar Hotel, Greenwich.
- " 174, Sincerity, Guildhall Hotel, Gresham-st.
- " 190, Oak, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 700, Nelson, Masonic Hall, William-st., Woolwich.
- " 1044, New Wandsworth, Spread Eagle Hotel, New Wandsworth.
- " 1150, Buckingham and Chandos, Freemasons' Hall
- " 1349, Friars, Cheshire Cheese, Crutched Friars.
- " 1365, Chapter
- Chap. 217, Stability, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
- Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
- United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
- Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
- Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
- Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
- Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
- Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, Nov. 21.

- House Committee Girls' School at 4.
- Lodge 23, Globe, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 49, Gibon, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
- " 55, Constitution, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 63, St. Mary's, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 169, Temperance, White Swan, High-st., Deptford.
- " 179, Manchester, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 181, Universal, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 657, Canonbury, Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-st.
- " 733, Westbourne, Lord's Hotel, St. John's Wood.
- " 1139, South Norwood, South Norwood Hall, South Norwood.
- " 1287, Great Northern, Great Northern Hotel, King's Cross.
- " 1339, Stockwell, Duke of Edinburgh Tav., Stockwell.
- The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall-Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Steam, Preceptor.
- United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
- Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
- Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, Nov. 22.

- House Committee, Boys' School.
- Lodge 197, Jerusalem, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 569, Fitzroy, Head Quarters Hon. Artillery Company, City-road.
- " 861, Finsbury, Jolly Anglers, Bath-st., St. Lukes.
- St. George's Lodge of Instruction (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
- Stability Lodge of Instruction (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Mugeridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
- Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
- Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
- Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
- Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
- Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
- Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
- Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
- Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
- Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.

- Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
- Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
- St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 33, Brompton-road, S.W.
- United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
- Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
- St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M. Preceptor.

Advertisements.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

ESTABLISHED 1845.

Conducted under the official supervision of the State of New York.

$100,000 have been deposited with Trustees in England.

Life Assurance only. Purely Mutual. All Profits annually to Policy Holders.

Accumulated Funds, December 31st, 1870 ... £3,172,244
Surplus over all Liabilities, and Reserve Fund 389,322
Income for Year 1870 1,317,271

M. X. COHEN,

SPECIAL AGENT,

76 & 77, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.

BRITISH EQUITABLE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

4, Queen-street-place, London, E.C.
SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

New business, 1,934 policies for £320,319.
New annual income, £9,820.
172 death claims paid for £28,487 18s. 1d.
20 claims for matured policies, £2,155 8s. 4d.
Paid for surrenders, £1,777.
Laid by in year, £36,307.
In force 17,009 policies for £2,930,210.
Annual premium income, £93,998.
Paid for death claims in 17 years, under 1,173 policies, £187,558.
Accumulated fund increased to £273,073.
W. S. GOVER, Managing Director

Norwich and London ACCIDENT INSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

ESTABLISHED 1856.
SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL £100,000.
For Insuring against

ACCIDENTAL DEATH,
With
Compensation for Personal Injury,
Caused by Accidents

CHIEF OFFICES—ST. GILES'S STREET, NORWICH.
LONDON: 49, MOORGATE-ST.
Secretary: CHARLES R. GILMAN, Esq.
London Manager: Mr. GEORGE POWELL.

MONEY.—LOANS granted immediately. from £100 to £2,000 at 5 per cent., repayable over Three, Four, or Five Years, on Personal Security and Life Policy effected with the WEST OF ENGLAND INSURANCE CO., (Established 1807.)
Apply to the Superintendent of Agents, J. CROCKER, Neville Street, Newcastle.
Agents Wanted.

 BRO. E. WATKINS,
BOTTLE MERCHANT,
ETC.,
12, Jewry-st, Aldgate.

Wines housed and bottled. Wine Baskets on hire. Contracts made for any time or quantity.

GENERAL FUNERAL ESTABLISHMENT, 81, City-road, E.C., opposite the Finsbury Schools, and 24, Southgate-road, De Beauvoir Town, N.

 Bros. SINCLAIR & SON
beg to call the public attention to their Scale of Charges to suit all classes, to any of the Metropolitan Cemeteries, or other places. For further information, see Illustrated Book and Estimates, forwarded on application, No connection with any other establishment.

MASONIC MUSIC IN STOCK AT Bro. KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS.

Table listing Masonic music items such as 'The Red Cross Knight', 'Masonic Harmonia', and 'Masonic Trials' with prices.

MASONIC BOOKS IN STOCK AT Bro. KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS.

Table listing Masonic books such as 'Masonic Gatherings', 'Book of Illustrations of Clothing and Jewels', and 'Sickel's Ahiman Rezon' with prices.

Now Publishing, supplied to Subscribers only, THE PEOPLE'S HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS VICINAGE;

Being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lanbaugh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with Copious Pedigrees of the principal Families, Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect.

ROUGH WEATHER HATS—12/6. THE best Hat for Winter wear; thoroughly waterproof, at Bro. W. R. JONES HAT MANUFACTURER, 73, Long Acre.

HATS! HATS! HATS! The best in London. JACKSON, from Christy's, Practical Hatter, 3, Dove Court, Old Jewry, E.C., begs to return his best thanks for past favours and in soliciting future orders...

Extension of the People's Market. 93 AND 94, BISHOPSGATE-STREET WITHOUT. The above Premises are now OPENED by JAMES GRANT, CITY POULTERER, CITY CHEESE-MONGER.

BRIDGE HOUSE HOTEL, LONDON BRIDGE, Opposite the South Eastern, and London, Brighton, and South Coast Railways.

THIS Hotel has great facilities for Meetings, Charitable Institutions, Wedding Breakfasts, Public Dinners, Balls, Soirees, and is allowed to be in real domestic comfort, one of the Best in the Metropolis, the tariff on application to JOSEPH H. SPENCER.

City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, LONDON. WELL adapted for Banquets, Balls, Amateur Dramatic Entertainments, Public Meetings, and Arbitrations. The large Hall is capable of seating upwards of Twelve Hundred people. SYDNEY SPENCER, Manager.

Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st., E.C. SPACIOUS Dining-rooms, Chop and Steak-rooms, Luncheon-bars, and Smoking Rooms. Rooms of all sizes, suitable for Auction Sales, Consultations, Arbitrations, Building Societies, &c.; also for Freemasons' Lodges and Banquets, Private Dinners, &c. Guildhall Tavern Company (Limited), 32 and 33, Gresham-street, GEORGE CRAWFORD, Manager and Secretary.

Masons' Hall Tavern, MASONS' AVENUE, BASINGHALL-STREET, CITY. THE above old-established Tavern is NOW OPEN, newly decorated, by Bro. CHARLES GOSDEN, late Manager of the Freemasons' Tavern Company.

The Alexandra Restaurant, 7, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET. Public and Private Dining Rooms First-class Cooking and Wines. Open for Suppers after the Theatres. Bro. F. HILBRECHT, Proprietor.

"THE FREEMASON" Supplied by T. DRISCOLL, Wholesale Newsagent, 87, Farringdon-st., E.C. South London Branch, 416, Wandsworth-road, S.W., eight doors from the London Chatham and Dover Railway Station. Wholesale Publisher to the Trade.

DUBLIN. Bro. CHARLES HEDGELONG, NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKSELLER, 26, GRAFTON STREET, DUBLIN. AGENT FOR "THE FREEMASON."

SWANSEA Agent for the Freemason. BRO. CHAS. MAGGS. 25, George-st., Swansea. A large stock of Aprons, Jewels, Clothing, and every requisite for all Degrees of Freemasonry.

CITY. POTTLE & SON, 14 and 15, Royal Exchange, City Agents for "THE FREEMASON" AND "The Israelites found in the Anglo-Saxons" Just published, price 2s.6d.

CARPETS, MATTING & FLOORCLOTH. THE Newly-Invented Solid, Non-fading, DUST-PROOF, DRAUGHT-PROOF, WATER-PROOF, and WASHABLE CARPETS and MATTING are the best Floor Coverings extant for Libraries, Bedrooms, Offices, &c. No other so Healthy, Clean, and Economical. Patterns can be had, Post Free, and Goods Carriage Free, of MESSRS. CHILES & CO., 57 AND 6c, Belmont STREET, CHALK FARM ROAD, LONDON, N.W. TESTIMONIAL (No. 41). St. Andrew's Street, Cambridge, June 29th, 1872. Sir.—Your note was forwarded to me here, and I am happy to inform you that the Dust Proof and Washable Carpets have given me great satisfaction. They require no scrubbing; merely to be washed with soap and water and dried with a cloth. I have not found the colours to wear off, even where most used.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Ancient York and London Grand Lodges, By Bro. L. Hyneman	731
Consecration of a Lodge at Harrington	732
Consecration of a K.T. Encampment at Stockton ...	733
Consecration of the Vane Chapter	733
Masonic Notes and Queries	734
CORRESPONDENCE :—
Secretaryship of the Girls' School.....	734
An Old Masonic Print	735
A Mistake	735
Provincial Grand Officers	735
The Coming Struggle	736
CRAFT MASONRY :—
Metropolitan	737
Provincial	737
ROYAL ARCH :—
Masonic Tidings	739
Provincial	739
MARK MASONRY :
Provincial	739
Masonic Meetings for next week	740
Advertisements.....	729, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743
List of Bro. Little's Committee	744

ANCIENT YORK AND LONDON GRAND LODGES.

BY BRO. LEON HYNEMAN.

A REVIEW BY BRO. W. J. HUGHAN.

(Continued from page 728.)

We are really sorry that the author of so many useful works has thought fit to speak of Dr. Anderson in such terms, especially when we know he cannot be in possession of any evidence to warrant such a strong description of the character of the work in question. If there is any meanness, it must be in Bro. Hyneman's own inferences. The London Masons never assumed that the light of Masonry only shone in their metropolis; that its rays radiated from that centre, and that the privilege to exercise the rights and franchises of Masonry was solely vested in the London Craft, in the Grand Lodge they had instituted. We think, also, that before any one is authorised to state so, he should be ready to produce satisfactory evidence of its truth. The pretty story about York and Queen Elizabeth, A.D. 1567, may be accepted as authentic by those who are ready at all times to swallow anything apocryphal, but for our part, and in common with Masonic students generally, we desire some proof at least of the truth of the "1567 story" before receiving it as a true description of the Craft at that period. Preston quotes it, and we note his authority is sufficient for Bro. Hyneman then, if not at other times. There has, however, been no confirmation offered of the statement, and in the records of the extinct Grand Lodge such an occurrence is not once mentioned; neither is it noticed in the celebrated speech by the Junior Grand Warden, A.D. 1726, which we had reprinted in our "Masonic Sketches and Reprints" (page 106).

At page 31 Bro. Hyneman characterizes an action, the import of which he misunderstands, as "a most wicked and malicious deception, a vile, dishonourable, and contemptibly mean resort to further their selfish, ambitious designs." Such a grave accusation from some men would be serious indeed; but in this case, as the writer perpetrates several more quite as grave and quite as unfounded, we simply notice the fact, and express regret that the author of the calumnies had not examined the matter a little more before committing himself to libel good and useful men who, with all their faults, endeavoured each in his own way to advance the interests of the Fraternity; and who, though in their misguided and misdirected zeal did often go astray, yet on the whole are entitled to our regard and esteem for their honorary and arduous labours. The six regulations quoted by Bro. Hyneman (page 33) have no force, as the term Grand Master is not in the original MSS., and no reference whatever is made to any part of England; but evidently the laws were for the whole body. The MSS. is quoted in full in our last work ("Old Charges of British Freemasons"). An inference, supposed to be fairly drawn from Dr. Anderson's work, is styled "most malicious" (page 39). The purity of Sir Christopher Wren's life, Bro. Hyneman tells us, "was never tarnished, and, with the exception of Anderson, no reflection was ever cast upon his fair fame." The fault we find with Dr. Anderson in this case is not according to Bro. Hyneman's view at all. As to Sir Christopher Wren's neglect of the office of Grand Master, he never held such an office; nor, indeed, did any one, until Bro. Sayer, A.D. 1717; and so it is inaccurate to declare he did. We get Bro. Hyneman's special view of the subject at page 44, wherein he states most emphatically that the "real cause of the difficulties, the reference to illegal assemblies of Masons in subsequent years, of lodges not meeting, &c., was that there were lodges and Masons in London holding their allegiance to the York Grand Lodge that would not countenance the new London Grand Lodge. There was no actual schism in 1738, as Anderson, Preston, and recent writers assume." These absurd statements convince us that Bro. Hyneman does not understand the true state of the case, and is quite ignorant of a few facts respecting this period, which are known to all Masons in this country and the United States who study the history of the Craft. Until A.D. 1779 there were no Masons working in London under the authority of the Grand Lodge of all England held at York, and the schism of 1738 was an actual occurrence, recorded in the minutes, and palpably to be traced from that time to the "Union of 1813." The "York Grand Lodge," or the successors thereof, did not form the Union in 1813, for such a body was not in existence; but the successors of the "seceders" of 1738 did unite with the Grand Lodge of England instituted A.D. 1717.

Bro. Hyneman next declares (in italics, to render it more emphatic) that "the story of a third Grand Lodge is wholly mythical." What can we say to this assertion? If Bro. Hyneman will call at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, Bro. Hervey, the able Grand Secretary, will show him the minutes of this mythical Grand Lodge from A.D. 1752, and he will find that in 1753 its first Grand Master was installed! If more evidence is required, we have printed Constitutions of this Grand Lodge from A.D. 1756 to A.D. 1813; and in the United States he can find several warrants issued under its sanction, such as at Philadelphia, (for Pennsylvania), during the same decade of that century. In neither of the Constitutions (or "Ahiman Recons") is there any mention of a connection with the Grand Lodge of all England held at York. In fact, it never had any dealings with the York Masons, although such has often been claimed. The York Grand Lodge never granted or issued any warrants to work lodges out of England; never constituted a Provincial Grand Lodge, either in England or elsewhere; and never published any edition of the Constitutions whatever, all its laws being in MS., copies of which may be found in our "Masonic Sketches and Reprints;"* so that neither Pennsylvania, nor any other Grand Lodge, can claim to be descendants of the "York Masons," but only of the seceding Masons of 1738, (and their successors,) who found a rival Grand Lodge in London A.D. 1753, (not in York, for a Grand Lodge was already actively engaged there,) or of the Grand Lodge of 1717.

It will thus be seen that there are now no lineal descendants of the Grand Lodge of all England held at York. The "York Lodge," No. 236, now existing, was warranted by the regular Grand Lodge of England, (London,) A.D. 1777, and was formerly called the "Union Lodge," but lately altered to "York," by permission of the Grand Master. This lodge has possession of the records of the extinct "Grand Lodge of all England," and never had any connection with the "Ancients." The fact is, that when the Lodge of Antiquity was constituted into a Grand Lodge for a few years, it made the fourth Grand Lodge in England at that time; hence, so far from a third Grand Lodge being mythical, there were actually four Grand Lodges. That such is a fact we pledge our Masonic reputation, and can produce evidence to satisfy the most exacting and most incredulous in proof of all the foregoing statements advanced by us. A great deal has been written on this subject that is wholly erroneous, and so we have devoted much of our spare time to unravel the mystery, in which attempt we have been most ably supported by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, in this country; J. G. Findel, in Saxony; and other well-known authors in Europe and America.

We will not stop to prove that there was an actual schism in 1738, as we presume the foregoing is quite sufficient to render that fact certain. And the "Ancients" were in reality the schismatics, hence their secession. As Bro. Hyneman construes all the peculiarities of the period of the revival into so many proofs of collusion or deceit on the part of the promoters thereof, we cannot answer half of his apparent objection. e.g., the election of Anthony Sayer as Grand Master, by "show of hands," is twisted to mean it was not unanimous? The summons of the first Grand Master being a command, it is considered "not to speak well for the fidelity of the Craft who inaugurated the revolution;" and, in consequence of these and similar usages, Bro. Hyneman "smiles at the observations of Laurence Dermott on the subject of the kind of Masonry worked by these early revolutionists." If Bro. Hyneman had only smiled, we would not have cared; but to put his thoughts into print is quite a different matter, and hence this article.

The next passage which is wholly wrong in Bro. Hyneman's work, is the following: "Preston

* We cannot forbear mentioning this work frequently, as we wrote it to supply a want long felt for light in York Masonry; and, as we have no pecuniary interest in its sale, the brethren will see our motives are for their good alone.

is the only authority that the York Grand Lodge ever claimed, much less 'retained,' the title of 'the Grand Lodge of all England.' All that Preston had written in regard to the distinctive titles of the York and London Grand Lodges is the mere imagination of his own brain, to give interest to his book." We might retort by asking why Bro. Hyneman has written his book; but we will not, as we are well aware he has published it to communicate what he believes to be the truth, but which we believe as firmly to be mainly untruth.

The foregoing paragraph by him is so clearly opposed to facts, that we can only excuse its publication on the plea of ignorance in relation to the subject. Bro. Preston knew well what he was writing about when he quoted the title, "Grand Lodge of all England," held at York, because the records had been submitted to his examination in which such a title often occurs. In a letter written by the Grand Secretary, at York, to the regular Grand Lodge of England, held at London, we read:—"That the Grand Secretary do inform the Grand Lodge in London that the lodge heretofore held under their Constitution, No. 259, at the Punch Bowl, in Stonegate, has been for some years discontinued, and that the most ancient Grand Lodge of all England, held from time immemorial in this city, is the only lodge held therein." * * * "It is not doubted but the Grand Lodge in London will pay due respect thereto, and to all brethren praying instruction or relief by virtue thereof, as this lodge has ever had a very great esteem* for that in London, and for all brethren claiming privilege under its authority." * * * * * "This Grand Lodge will readily concur with that in London, and will pay all proper respect to any information that shall be communicated by it. The Grand Master, Grand Officers, and the other brethren present, join in brotherly respects and hearty commendations to the Right Worshipful and Most Noble Grand Master, the Grand Officers, and other brethren of the Grand Lodge in London, with "Your faithful and affectionate brother,

"D^D. LAMBERT, Grand Secretary.

"To Samuel Spencer, Esq., Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons in London."

We may say now, "Is it answered yet," Bro. Hyneman? The foregoing letter is dated 14th December, 1757, and the full epistle is to be found on pages 69 and 70 of "Masonic Sketches and Reprints." The Grand Master of all England (York) at that time was Seth Agar, Esq., and of the Grand Lodge of England (London) His Grace the Duke of Beaufort. It is evident from this that the two Grand Lodges were on friendly terms, and therefore, a priori, we should expect the York authorities would not countenance the seceders, or "Ancients."

There is a list preserved at York "of the members' names, who revived the Grand Lodge of all England in 1761." It languished for a few years before then, and hence the revival under the historian, Francis Drake, F.R.S.

*This is clearly evinced from this Grand Lodge actually adopting as their own the London Constitutions of 1723, and since, in addition to their special laws which passed occasionally.

The Grand Commandery of the Knights Templar for all England was also worked at York under the wing of the Grand Lodge of all England, as also Grand Chapter, during the latter part of the last century, but not before. There is a certificate of date 26th January, 1779, (to 29th November), of five degrees of Freemasonry under the Grand Lodge of all England, and signed by the Grand Secretary, "John Brown." There is (1) a "Schedule of the Regalia, &c., of the Grand Lodge of all England," Sept. 15th, 1779; (2) a Royal Arch Minute Book commencing 8th February, 1778; (3) a Minute Book from 27th December, 1774, to 31st July, 1780, of the Grand Lodge; (4) an advertisement in the York papers of the Annual Festival, A.D. 1777; (5) a letter to the Lodge of Antiquity, 19th October, 1778; (6) a funeral notice of 4th February, 1780; (7) a Warrant to Companions at Rotherham, 6th July, 1780; and (8) another to Freemasons at Hollingwood; beside numerous other documents, on the whole of which "The Grand Lodge of all England" is invariably the title used. We hope after this statement (we feel sure, in fact) that Bro. Hyneman will withdraw his inaccurate statement. Bro. Hyneman keeps on reiterating the charge that Preston wrote in the interest of the London Grand Lodge, and yet the edition of Preston's Illustrations, from which he quotes, was originally written when Bro. Preston was not a member of that Grand Lodge, he being, with others, expelled, and not reinstated until A.D. 1790. Bro. Hyneman does not state the edition he refers to, but we know it from two quotations, which he says "it was as reprehensible as it was dishonourable" in Dr. Oliver to omit from his reprint. Now, these were omitted in the subsequent edition by Preston and Jones, which edition Bro. Oliver reprinted, and not the earlier ones, because naturally the latter were selected, after being perfected by Preston and his friend Stephen Jones. If Bro. Hyneman will refer to the edition of A.D. 1821, he will find the two paragraphs are omitted, just as they are by Dr. Oliver, A.D. 1829, and since; so we have again to ask Bro. Hyneman to withdraw the serious charge of imposition he brings against so learned and good a divine and Mason as the Rev. Dr. George Oliver.

Bro. Hyneman, in speaking of the unmasonic invasion of the rights and jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge at York, observes that "There are no words in any language that can properly express the flagrant enormity of the conduct of the London Grand Lodge in a moral or Masonic point of view," especially as the "York Grand Lodge displayed a most Masonic and fraternal policy in giving no umbrage." Well, now; so much for fancy! No language can accurately describe the foregoing production of Bro. Hyneman; and why? Simply because it is purely apocryphal. What the Grand Lodge at London did, the one at York did, viz: they both invaded each other's jurisdictions; hence, each "living in glass houses, neither should throw stones."

That the "illegal conventions of Masons" from about A.D. 1734 were not those of "regular bodies of Masons holding under the York Grand Lodge," is evident from the records of both Grand Bodies; but these Bro. Hyneman ignores, so it is for the Craft to choose the authority, Grand Lodges of "All England" and "England" v. Leon Hyneman. There can be but one opinion. Because Dr. Anderson spoke of the Freemasons at York, Scotland, Ireland, France, Italy, &c., as "effecting independency," (or claiming to be independent,) Bro. Hyneman styles the "arrogance to be of so insolent and impudent a character, that if it were not of so serious a nature he could smile at the bold effrontery in stating such audacious falsehoods." We could smile at the author of this calumny, were he unknown, and his works unread; but as it is otherwise, we deeply lament so respected and talented a member of our Masonic society has thought fit to malign the character of Dr. Anderson.

(To be continued.)

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE AT HARRINGTON.

On Tuesday, 12th November, a new Craft Lodge was opened at Harrington. The brethren assembled shortly before twelve o'clock at Eller Bank (kindly placed at their disposal by Bro. Bain), where luncheon was served.

At twelve o'clock they were formed into procession by Bro. Edward Fearoon, P.G. Dir. of Cers., and proceeded thence to church, where divine service was performed, the Rev. E. H. Curwen reading the prayers, and Bro. Alfred Curwen, M.A., P.G.C., preaching from Ecclesiastes, 4th chapter, 9th and 10th verses:—"Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labour. For if they fall, then one will lift up his fellow; but woe to him that is alone when he falleth, for he hath not another to help him up."

Divine service being concluded, the brethren were then re-formed in procession in the same order as before, and proceeded thence to the lodge-room, formerly used as a schoolroom, but now placed at the disposal of the brethren through the kindness of the Rector.

Here the ceremony of the consecration of the new lodge was most efficiently performed (in the unavoidable absence of the Earl of Bective, M.P., P.G.M. C. and W.) by Bro. John Whitwell, M.P., P.M. 129, &c., W.D.P.G.M. of Cumberland and Westmorland, and R.W.P.G.W. of England, assisted by Bro. Edward Busher, P.G.S.B. of England, and P.G.S. of Cumberland and Westmorland; Bro. A.C. Mott, R.N.R., P.G.S.W.; Bro. E.W. Henry, M.D., P.J.G.W.; Bro. Rev. Alfred Curwen, M.A., W.M. Designate, and P.G.C.; Bro. W.B. Gibson, P. Prov. G.W.; Bro. C. Morton, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Bro. Nicholson, of Maryport, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Bro. Edward Fearon, P.G.D. of Ceremonies; Bro. Rev. H. L. Puxley, P. Prov. G.C.; Bro. Rev. W. Williams, P. Prov. G.C.; Bro. John Lemon, P.G.T.; Bro. John Spittal, P.G.S. of W.; Bro. Greer, Belfast, and others.

The new lodge is called the Curwen Lodge, as a mark of respect to the family who bear that honoured name, some of the members of which have for ages past ranked amongst the foremost Freemasons in Cumberland.

Immediately after the consecration service,

Bro. Rev. Alfred Curwen, M.A., was duly installed as W.M. of the Curwen Lodge, No. 1400, and he thereupon appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year. The lodge was then formally closed, and the brethren adjourned for a short time in order to allow of tables being laid in the lodge-room for a banquet.

At four o'clock they re-assembled, when a sumptuous dinner was well served by Bro. Hullo, of the Station Hotel, Workington. The chair was occupied by Bro. Whitwell, M.P., W.D.P.G.M. of Cumberland and Westmorland, supported right and left by Bro. Rev. Alfred Curwen, W.M. 1400; Bro. Edward Busher, P.G.S.B. of England, P.G.S.; Bro. Rev. Joshua Tyson, P. Prov. G.C.; Bro. Weir, and others. The vice-chair was filled by Bro. A. C. Mott, R.N.R., P.S.G.W., supported by Bro. W. B. Gibson, P. Prov. G.W.; Bros. Pearson, Cocker-mouth, and others. Besides a large gathering of the brethren, there were present the Rev. E. Curwen, Bro. Bain, and others unconnected with the Craft, and a number of ladies.

Grace before and after meat was said by the Provincial Grand Chaplain.

Dinner being over, the Chairman proposed the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, and the Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese, responded to by the Rev. E. Curwen; Bro. the Rev. Alfred Curwen, W.M. 1400, proposed "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," to which the Chairman and Vice-Chairman responded; the Chairman then gave the Lord-Lieutenant (Lord Lonsdale), which was cordially drunk; and the "Friendly Visitors," which was responded to by Bro. Bain, jun. The ladies and those not Freemasons then withdrew, and the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Bro. Busher, and a large number of others were obliged to leave, in order to catch the last train home.

On their retirement, which was the signal for repeated rounds of cheering (those remaining much regretting that the brethren from a distance were obliged to leave so early), the chair was ably filled by Bro. Rev. Alfred Curwen, W.M. 1400, when the usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured.

The health of the Grand Master and Deputy Grand Master of England, and the Provincial Grand Master and Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmorland were proposed from the chair; as was also the health of the Provincial Officers, to which Bro. Rev. W. Williams, P.P.G.C., responded.

The health of the Chairman (Bro. Rev. Alfred Curwen, W.M. 1400) was proposed by Bro. W. B. Gibson, P. Prov. G.W., who, in doing so, stated that he had peculiar pleasure in proposing the toast, not only on account of the proceedings of that day, but from the fact that he had had the honour of initiating Brother Curwen as a Freemason many years ago. He believed that the work in which they had that day been engaged would be the means of disseminating the glorious principles of Freemasonry, and that the establishment of a lodge at Harrington would give additional impetus to the spread of those principles throughout West Cumberland.

Brother Curwen responded in appropriate terms, expressing his gratitude to Brother Gibson, and the rest of the brethren present, or who had been present during the day, for their attendance.

The Chairman next proposed the health of Bro. Rev. H. L. Puxley, P. Prov. G.C., who responded.

Bro. Gibson, P. Prov. G.W., gave "The officers of Lodge 1400," coupled with the names of the Senior and Junior Wardens, Bros. Young and Carlyle, Bro. Dr. Dick (Secretary), Bro. Rev. Joshua Tyson (Chaplain), and Bro. Gambles, all of whom responded.

The Chairman then gave "The Workington Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. Brown, and the "The Whitehaven Lodges," coupled with the name of Bro. Henry, P.M. 119, P.J. G.W., both of whom responded.

He then proposed "The Press," coupled with the name of Bro. Alsop, who responded; and afterwards the Tyler's toast, when the proceedings terminated.

CONSECRATION OF AN ENCAMPMENT OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR AT STOCKTON.

On Tuesday, the 29th ult., the Mount Grace Encampment, No. 118, of the Royal, Exalted, Religious, and Military Order of Masonic Knights Templar in England and Wales, was consecrated at the Freemasons' Hall, Wellington-street, Stockton.

Amongst the visitors present were the following Sir Knights:—C. I. Bannister, Bradford, Past Grand Captain; Wm. Foulsham, P.E.C.; Anthony Clapham, Newcastle, P.E.C.; William Brignal, jun., Durham, P.E.C.; Edward Heffernan, Spennymoor; J. S. Trotter, Newcastle, and others.

The encampment was summoned for one o'clock, and on the arrival of the Grand Chancellor, Sir Patrick Colquhoun, Q.C., LL.D., accompanied by the Grand Vice-Chancellor, Sir Knight William Tinkler, the encampment was opened by the Grand Chancellor in due form, after which the Grand Chancellor addressed those present on the nature of the meeting, and called upon the Registrar to read the warrant, after which, and the usual ceremonies, the Grand Chancellor dedicated and consecrated the encampment, and called upon the Knights present to promote its prosperity.

Then followed the installation of Sir Knight John Trotter, as Eminent Commander. The ballot was then taken for the following companions, who were unanimously accepted:—Anthony C. Knowles, Joseph Morrell, James W. Marshall, John E. MacNay, John Jones, Christopher Jackson, Henry George Faber, Charles G'Anson, jun., William M. Watson, Lord Ernest M'Donnell Vane Tempest, Thomas Vaughan, Charles A. Head, James Bowron, jun., Thomas Wrightson, John Ross, Robert A. Luck, John Morrell, and John Trenholm.

The above were duly installed Knights Templar by Sir Knight C. I. Bannister, assisted by Sir Knight W. Foulsham.

The bye laws of the encampment, which had been carefully prepared, and approved by the Grand Chancellor, were then taken as read, and approved and confirmed.

Sir Knight the Rev. James Milner, M.A., of Beauseant Encampment, 105, and Sir Knight William C. Ward-Jackson, of the Royal Kent

Encampment, 20, were then balloted for, and admitted members of the Encampment.

The Eminent Commander nominated the following officers:—Prelate, Sir Knight the Rev. J. Milner; First Captain of Columns, Sir Knight the Rev. V. H. Moyle, M.A.; Second Captain Sir Knight J. S. Walton, M.D., Registrar and Treasurer pro tem., Sir Knight C. A. Head; Almoner, Sir Knight Joseph Morrell; Expert, Sir Knight Lord Ernest Vane Tempest; First Standard Bearer, Sir Knight John Jones; Second ditto, Sir Knight Christopher Jackson; Captain of Lines, Sir Knight James Bowron, junior; Herald, Sir Knight John Ross; Equerry, Sir Knight John Trenholm.

The encampment was then closed by the Eminent Commander, when a Priory of the Order of Malta was consecrated by the Grand Chancellor, Sir Patrick Colquhoun, and the following Sir Knights were installed by him:—The Rev. V. H. Moyle, J. S. Walton, Edward Heffernan, — Palliser, Joseph Morrell, J. Jones, Christopher Jackson, H. G. Faber, Lord E. V. Tempest, C. A. Head, James Bowron, John Ross, R. A. Luck, John Morrell, and J. Trenholm. The priory was then closed, and an adjournment made to the banqueting hall, where the company sat down to an excellent repast.

CONSECRATION OF THE VANE CHAPTER No. 538.

On Thursday the 14th inst., this new Chapter was consecrated at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, by Comp. R. Wentworth Little, P.Z., Prov. Grand Scribe E. Middlesex, assisted by Comps. J. Terry, P.Z., as H.; J. W. Reed, P.Z., as J.; H. G. Buss, P.Z., Prov. G. Treas. Middlesex, as Dir. of Cers.

The chapter having been duly opened, the ceremony of consecration was performed with the customary solemnities, after which Comp. Little installed Comps. the Right Hon. the Earl Vane, James Kench, and Henry W. Linders as Third Principals, Earl Vane and Comp. Kench as Second Principals, and finally installed the noble Lord as M.E.Z.

Some formal business was then transacted, and the rank of honorary member was conferred upon Comps. Little, Terry, and Buss, together with a vote of thanks for their services on the occasion.

Each of these worthy companions acknowledged the compliment, and congratulated the noble M.E.Z. upon the inauguration of the chapter under his auspices.

The chapter was then closed.

Among the companions present, besides the founders, we noticed Comps. J. Boyd, P.Z., and E. Silifant, P.Z.

Owing to severe domestic affliction in Lord Vane's family, the opening of this chapter has been delayed, and his lordship feelingly alluded to the fact in a few well-chosen sentences.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable particles, and that the tooth powder, per se, and water in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Cheerer's orange tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove the accumulation, and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 62, Ludgate Hill, and 20, Hatfield-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

OLD CHARGES OF ENGLISH FREEMASONS.

One or two obvious misprints in my last communication on this subject, such as "deprecafe" for "depreciate," and "ecossais" for "ecossaise," need hardly be pointed out by me. Since then, I have seen a continuation of Bro. Norton's essay in The Freemason of November 9th. What does Bro. Norton mean by "the Edward III. Constitution?"

I have heard of many "Constitutions," but never heard of this one before?

Does Bro. Norton allude to the Act of Parliament, tempore Edward III., relating to the Masons?

When Bro. Norton goes on to say—"We are also satisfied now the old operative Masons were an ignorant and credulous body of men," is he not speaking very wide of the mark, very much at random?

Is Bro. Norton aware that Master Masons, for instance, in the 13th and 14th centuries, received very high salaries indeed, ranked very often as "Generosi," and were men of education and position?

As regards the operative Masons generally, there is also evidence to prove that they received wages considerably above the average of other Crafts.

Bro. Norton seems to base a portion of his argument on the confused chronology and erroneous historical traditions contained in the old Masonic Constitutions. But does he realize how inevitable after all it is that merely oral tradition should, after the lapse of time, be always characterized by mistakes and anachronisms?

Mr. Wallbran used to say that, in such Legends as ours, as long as the main facts were correct and consistent, we could not expect minute particulars to be so, or the names of persons, or the dates of events to be absolutely historical. "Traditions are apt," he used to say, "to become confused after a time, and to blend persons and events together, often in what seems hopeless anachronisms."

Bro. Norton seems to forget that the compiler and transcriber, both of the Masonic poem, and the Additional MS., our so far two oldest Legends, were Ecclesiastics, not Operatives, and that they only repeated and handed down what they had seen in older MSS., or heard from older members of some Masonic Guild. Were I to write the history of the operative Masons of England, and even of other countries, I should, judging from their works, speak far more respectfully of them than Bro. Norton does, and I think it a great pity that he imparts to such archaeological discussions such needless attacks upon others on such insufficient grounds, and with such an entire absence of evidence to justify his statements. When Bro. Norton says, again, "We know now, that their Masonry is not our Masonry," what does he, what can he mean?

It is, in truth, a very startling statement.

Let me respectfully ask him, has he ever considered, when he says this, the evidence arising from the Masonic poem as regards this very point? What does he consider that to be?

If he says that it belongs to the speculative Order then that Order was in existence in this country considerably before the close of the fourteenth century.

If he says that it is an operative mythical Constitution, thus transcribed by a priest, then the operative Constitution is identical with our own, as that is the basis of all the later ones.

He is free to accept either "horn" of the dilemma, but one or other he must accept and abide by.

The simple truth is that the history of Freemasonry, is after all only like many other histories, a history of continuation and development. To ignore the operative connection is, as it seems to me, to cut away completely the ground from beneath our feet, historically.

Indeed, Bro. Norton goes so far as to say that "we are indebted to the old society merely for the name and a few antiquated phrases and forms in our ceremonies."

This is indeed the 1717 theory, with "a vengeance," as people say. How Bro. Norton can boldly propound anew such an hopeless theory, in the face of Bro. Hughan's opening passage in his preface, Bro. Findel's history, and the discussions which myself and others have carried on so long both in the Freemasons' Magazine and The Freemason, I am at a loss to understand. Indeed, if there is one fact which educated Freemasons now agree upon, I believe it is this, that Speculative Freemasonry is the lineal descendant and development of the operative guilds.

I cannot admit that "guild" is derived from "geld."

It is derived from the Saxon word "gildan" to pay, and was used in several meanings.

It was sometimes employed, for instance, to describe a tax or tribute.

It also meant a "mulet" or penalty, a composition or "amercement." It also signified an enfranchised division or soke.

The "wards" of London and of other municipalities were sometimes called "gilds." It was also used in its evident meaning to denote an "associated brotherhood," because its members were "gildar," bound to pay something towards the charge or support of the whole body.

Gilds have been defined to be "fraternities contributing sums towards a common stock" as well as a "fraternity or company combined together by orders and laws made among themselves, by their Prince's license." Gilds were of two kinds, "Ecclesiastical Gilds," for "devotion and almsdeeds," "Secular Gilds," for "trade and almsdeeds."

Secular gilds, which at one time included in themselves all the "Craftsmen" of the various operative bodies, in town and country, were often called in later times, "gilda mercatoria," or "gilda mercatorum."

They, no doubt of Roman origin, were originally derived from the Anglo-Saxon "Frith-gild."

Frith-gild is defined in the preface to the laws of Athelstan, to be a college or brotherhood (sodalitium), from the two Saxon words "peace" and "to pay," because "these societies enter into a collective payment for the common good, and confer as to their own affairs."

Herbert in his "History of the Livery Companies," quotes, apparently from Fosbrooke's "Encyclopedia of Antiquities," a passage from "Gervase of Canterbury," whose chronicle begins at 1174 and ends 1199. He says that, "both French and English, skilled in stone and woodwork, travelling in gilds or societies for the purpose of building."

If it be true, as no doubt it is, that other trades had their "secrets" and "mysteries" and "points," as well as the Freemasons, no guild that I know of had "Constitutions or Legends," dating as far back as 1390 admittedly, and no other guild had an elaborate ritual and symbolical signs, or tokens, or marks, known only to the initiated, except the Freemasons. I believe that Bro. Buchan claims something like what the German Masons called the "handgruss," for other operative Crafts, but the evidence in that case was very slight, and in no way affected the question as against the Freemasons.

With regard to "free born," there can be no doubt that the usage is in itself a proof of the great antiquity of our Order. As in the old times no slaves could be admitted into the sodalities of Greece and Rome, so in the early times of this country the freemen of the guild were distinguished from the serfs and "villani" of feudal times.

A serf, a "villanus," the "adscripti glebæ," in the early times, to become "free," must be "enfranchised," either by purchase or favour, by the King, or the lord of the soil or manor. Such a person, after twelve months' honest labour in those early days in a town, could, if accepted, become free of his particular guild.

As time ran on, the privilege was confined to the children of the freemen, and then, no doubt, none but the "free born" children of the members of the guild could be admitted members of it.

Apprentices could be admitted, after proper servitude, but they must also be children of free guildmen. Then, however much Bro. Norton may object to such a law, it is a very old law, and is unmistakable evidence in itself of the great antiquity and unchanging traditions of our Masonic Order.

The compiler, or transcriber of Bro. Cooke's MS., gives a very good practical reason for the law, a reason, which in itself, proves the usage and custom.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

"A CONSTANT READER."

The suggestion of "A Constant Reader," shall be carried out, if we can manage it, and a translation of Bro. Findel's interesting article be presented to the Readers of The Freemason.—ED. F.

BROS. EMRA HOLMES AND W. P. BUCHAN.

I am at a loss to know why Bro. Holmes alludes to Bro. Hughan in the manner he does at page 714 of The Freemason.

I have read the correspondence by the above two brethren most attentively, and have not been able to discover any ipse dixit of Bro. Hughan's to warrant Bro. Holme's curt observation, neither do I think the former is or the habit of making assertions on his own authority alone.

C. B.

NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

Erratum.—Page 714, line 18 of paragraph, read, Bro. "Buchan's" ipse dixit, and not Bro. "Hughan," as printed.

Original Correspondence.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The following letter, which has been addressed to the Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, having been forwarded to us for publication, we have great pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the claims of Bro. Little, which are ably set forth therein:—

Collier's Wood, Merton, S.W.,

November 1, 1872.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. R. Wentworth Little has consented, at the request of several Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of the Freemasons' Girls' School, to be put in nomination for the Secretaryship of that Institution, which has just become vacant by the retirement of Bro. Patten.

In the belief that Bro. Little combines in a remarkable degree the qualifications it is our duty to insist upon in any Secretary we may appoint, I am acting as Chairman of a Committee for promoting his election. This Committee deems it important in the interests of the Charity that the new Secretary should not be of an age which would, in the common course of nature, render his retirement necessary in a few years, and so burden our funds with another pension. Bro. Little is 34. We consider it essential that the new Secretary should be a man of liberal education and varied experience, fitted by maturity of judgment, habit of mind, and special acquirements, to urge the claims of the Charity upon the brethren. The history and statistics of the Masonic Boys' School furnish convincing testimony, were any needed, as to the imperative duty of securing these qualifications for the sister Institution, and of so promoting a generous rivalry between the two. Bro. Wentworth Little was originally educated for the church, under Bro. the Rev. B. Gibson, M.A.; but deciding upon a secular career, he entered the Civil Service of the Crown in the Emigration Department at Dublin, and holds testimonials of the highest character, both from his reverend tutor and his official chiefs. Bro. Little has been an active Freemason ever since he was initiated into our Order, twelve years ago. He is P.M. of two lodges; P.Z. of two chapters; honorary member of some thirty lodges and chapters; and Provincial Grand Secretary for Middlesex. Bro. Little's extensive connection among Freemasons, and his wide reputation for knowledge and zeal, are in themselves, we consider, an earnest assurance that the duties of this Secretaryship would be efficiently discharged by him. For the last ten years he has filled a responsible appointment in the Grand Secretary's office, and during the greater part of this time he has been cashier and accountant to the Grand Lodge and the Grand Chapter—positions which he still fills.

I venture to lay these facts before you, in the hope that you will agree with me that the appointment of Bro. Little would be of real benefit to the Charity, and I ask you, on this ground only, to give him your interest and support.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,

J. C. PARKINSON, V.P.

P.S.—Bro. Little has served the Stewardships, and is a Life Governor of three Masonic Charities.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

We have great pleasure in calling the special attention of our brother Life Governors to the following testimonial in favour of Bro. Little from Bro. Hervey, the Grand Secretary of England.

“Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C.,
November 12, 1872.

“Having been asked to express my opinion of the qualifications of Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, I beg to say that, during the period I have held the appointment of Grand Secretary, I have found his conduct such as to merit my warmest approval.

“I have the utmost confidence in saying that, to abilities of a very high order, he unites the indispensable attributes of accuracy, attention, and trustworthiness, and I believe him to be well fitted for carrying out the duties of any office, however confidential, to which he may aspire.

“Signed) JOHN HERVEY, G.S.”

We also desire, in the interests of truth to notice a statement that the revenue of the Institution has not materially suffered during Bro. Patten's illness; this no doubt is true, but the statement is incomplete as it stands, inasmuch as a large proportion of the Stewards at the last Festival were Bro. Little's personal friends, and some at least undertook the Stewardships and qualified as Life Governors at his request, just as we find now that brethren are coming forward almost daily with their ten guineas each and qualifying to vote and ensure his election.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN BOYD, G. Purst., P.M. P.Z.

EDWIN SILLIFANT, P.M.

Hon. Secs. Wentworth Little Committee,
13th, November, 1872.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have received several letters from brethren respecting the above appointment or election, and, in anticipation of receiving more, will you permit me to make a few remarks in The Freemason, and thus save me a deal of unnecessary correspondence. Few read the “laws,” I presume, hence their ignorance of what they contain. Allow me to draw attention to the following:—

1. The day of election is fixed for Thursday, 28th November, particulars of which are duly advertised.
2. The election will be by ballot of the Governors and other members of the General Committee, from 12 (noon) to 5 (p.m.).
3. Any brother can become a member of such Committee on payment of a donation of ten guineas (or more), and be entitled to vote at the election of Secretary, on Thursday, the 28th inst.
4. A “Life Subscriber” who has already paid five guineas in one sum to the Institution cannot vote, unless another five guineas are donated prior to the 28th inst.
5. These conditions apply in like manner to the official representatives of “Lodges, Chapters, and Societies.”
6. The friends of Bro. R. W. Little have thus an opportunity to show their appreciation of his Masonic zeal, trustworthy character, and general efficiency, by becoming “Life Governors” (if not already so), thereby qualifying themselves to vote on his behalf on the 28th November, at noon, and at the same time be aiding a most useful and excellent Institution.

7. The friends of other candidates (should there be any) will do well to qualify themselves in like manner.

Wishing Bro. R. W. Little every success,
Fraternally yours,
W. J. HUGHAN.

Truro, Cornwall, Nov. 20th, 1872.

(To the Editor of The Freemason.)

Dear Sir and brother,

If all the candidates for the vacant Secretaryship of the Girls' School would do as Bro. Little has done, advertise a list of their Committees or supporters, what a deal of trouble would be saved in unnecessary canvassing and annoyance to Life Governors and others.

Yours fraternally,
L.G. and P.M.

Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am glad to see that several members of our Fraternity have testified, through the medium of your columns, so warmly in favour of Bro. R. Wentworth Little as a candidate for the Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Allow me, a resident in Lancashire, to assure you that his claims are not unrecognised or undervalued in the northern provinces. I am favoured in having been during nine years past acquainted with that distinguished brother, who has worked so energetically for the benefit of our Craft, and quite qualified to state that, in addition to his great business tact and many Masonic acquirements, he is possessed of very superior literary abilities which, should he succeed in obtaining the appointment he now seeks, would be capable of being turned to excellent account in advocating the claims of that noble Institution, whose Secretaryship is now vacant by the lamented serious illness of Bro. Patten, P.G.S.B.

With every desire for the united success of the Schools and Bro. Little's candidature,

I am, yours fraternally,

J. DANIEL MOORE, P.G.S.B., of England.

AN OLD MASONIC PRINT.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to “J. H. G.,” whose letter of inquiry is inserted on page 697 of your number of the 9th inst., I am able to inform him that the engraving referred to is by Bro. Bartolozzi, R.A., engraver to his late Majesty King George III., from a painting by Bro. Stothard, R.A., and published in London, June 1st, 1802, by Wm. Jeffryes & Co., Earl-street, Blackfriars.

The print representing “the Distinguishing Characteristic of Masonry—Charity exerted on proper objects” was “by permission, most respectfully dedicated by their obedient servant and brother, Wm. Jeffryes, to the Grand Lodge of England.”

I am Sir, yours, &c.,

C. DUFFIELD FAULKNER, P.M., 1036,

Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

Doddington, Oxon, 18th Nov., A. L. 5872.

P.S.—I have a fine copy hanging in my hall.

(To the Editor of The Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,

Complying with the request expressed by your correspondent, J. H. G., in his letter inserted in the last number of your publication, I beg to inform him that we have suspended in our lodge an engraving such as he describes, and also to state that it represents the celebration of the Annual Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

The “venerable old Gentleman leading by the hand two small girls,” in the foreground alluded to, is, I believe, a likeness of the Treasurer of the Institution, as it was his custom to head the procession, leading the two smallest children; the other principal figures depicted are also portraits of notable Freemasons of the time. His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, afterwards George the Fourth, was the Grand Master at the time of the publication of the engraving.

There is a key to the engraving, I believe.

The inscription on our copy shews that the engraving was executed by Bro. Bartolozzi, R.A., Engraver to His Majesty, from a painting by Bro. Stothard, R.A., and was published by Wm. Jeffryes and Co., of Earl St., Blackfriars, 1st June, 1802, and is subscribed “To the Grand Lodge of England; this print representing the distinguishing characteristic of Masonry, Charity exerted on proper objects, is, by permission, most respectfully dedicated, by their obedient servant and brother, Wm. Jeffryes.”

Should J. H. G. wish for further information he may doubtless obtain it on application at the Institution.

Truly and fraternally yours,

WILL. W. BARLOW,

W.M. Lodge of Hope, 302.

Bradford, 13th Nov., 1872.

[We have received from Bro. B. Broughton, S.W. 302, a communication of similar import.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND OFFICERS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have observed from time to time that in reports of the proceedings of Provincial Grand Lodges, and on other occasions when Provincial Grand Officers have been present, titles of honour have been prefixed to their names, such as V.W., to which they are not entitled. It ought to be known that no Provincial Grand Officer, as such, has a right to any designation beyond that of “W.,” except the Provincial Grand Master, who is “R.W.” I am warranted in writing positively on this subject, inasmuch as two years ago I had occasion to write to the Grand Secretary about it, and he sent to me a printed circular to the above effect. I have not the circular at present to refer to, but I remember its contents well, and I think it was stated in it that the matter had been thus decided by the M.W.G.M., Lord Zetland.

I am, yours faithfully and fraternally,

A PROV. GRAND OFFICER.

A MISTAKE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

“W. P. B.,” in your last issue, calls attention to the statement at page 576, where “a well-known brother” is styled “an avowed atheist,” a statement which W.P.B characterises as a mistake.

Many brethren will share with me the pleasure of this correction, though at the same time they will agree that, judging by the language used by the brother alluded to in your columns, the inference to be drawn from them would be that the term used was correct.

E. H.

The Golden Grape Cognac is a pure grape spirit of the greatest strength, exceedingly agreeable to the palate, whilst the high encomiums passed upon it by the most eminent of the trade, leave no doubt as to its being the finest brandy in the market.

“A Visit to Epps's Cocoa Manufactory.—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated varied processes of making cocoa which it is sold for public use, and being particularly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory. I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and a nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Local and Rural.—See Article in Local and Rural October 14.

“Three years ago this autumn I had a severe attack of cold, to which I had been subject 22 years. After being treated to my usual under treatment two weeks, I was induced to try your vegetable Pain Killer, and in little more than a week was able to be at business. Two years hence I had a similar attack, or worse, which under the best of care, did not improve until four months. Three years (since, Red Lion-square, London, Nov., 1869.—To Percy Davis & Son, London.”

HOLLWAY'S Pain are the best medicine for people whose faculties are paled, and whose energies are exhausted. By trying temperatures, too much work, or over indulgence. A few doses of these Pills always prove a simple, safe, and cooling treatment for all stomach or liver complaints; a longer course will set right every organ who suffers from indigestion, every structure whose tone is dimmed, and restore to the blood whose purity is dimmed. Giddiness, headache, nausea, flatulency, and all other dyspeptic symptoms, yield with surprising rapidity and celerity to these corrective Pills, which by selecting the most distressing sensations, and eradicating without any pain or disagreeable drawback those recent habits which are detrimental to the entire human machine. An.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early mails.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

SNATCHES.—Declined with thanks.

W. T.—An English P.M. has no rank in a lodge, under another jurisdiction, except by courtesy. He can, of course, be present at a Board of Installed Masters, but at that point his privileges cease.

The following communications have been received, and will appear next week:—"Nortonian Amicities," E.H.; "Notes on the Orders of the Temple and Hospital," W.P.B.; "Welcome to St. Mungo," G.A.V.V.; "Ancient York and London Grand Lodges," Masonic Student; Reports of Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicester and Rutland; Craft Lodges 33, 129, 209, 890; Mark Lodge 83, 127, 122, 125, 130; K.T. Encampment No. 4.

Public Amusements.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday, November 23rd, and during the week, the performance will commence with THE FIREMAN. Frederick, Mr. Allen; Wealthy, Mr. Dudley; Stubbs, Mr. Power; Cincinnatus, Mr. Fawn; Press, Mr. Sidney; John Smith Gun, Miss Maud; Alice, Miss Henderson; Mrs. Waddletonque, Mrs. Burleigh; Lucretia, Mrs. Burleigh. After which, CHARACTER DANCES, Miss Maud and Miss Rosine. To be followed by THE SEA. Captain Mandeville, Mr. Power; Captain Sturdy, Mr. Parkes; Old Curious, Mr. Guest; Poulitice Peter, Mr. Skinner; Dennis O'Tro, Mr. Fawn; Mary Helm, Miss Henderson; Kate, Miss Allen; Dame, Mrs. Rainbow. On Saturday, the Infant Vance in his unique performance. On Friday for the Benefit of the Lessees, MACBETH, and a Miscellaneous Entertainment, which will be duly announced. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday November 23, and during the week, the performance will commence with THE TICKET OF LEAVE MAN. Bob Brierly, Mr. C. Sennett; Melter Moss, Mr. Leigh; Jem Dalton, Mr. Shepherd; Hawkshaw, Mr. C. T. Burleigh; Mr. M. M. Cooper; Mrs. Willoughby, Mrs. C. Stephenson; Sam, Miss Kerridge. To conclude with THE FLOWERS OF THE FOREST. Ishmael, Mr. C. Sennett; Patros, Mr. Lucy; Hugh Laycock, Mr. Shepherd; Alfred, Mr. Evans; Kinchin, Mr. Hudspeth; Cheap John, Mr. Bousfield; Cynthia, Miss M. Cooper; Starlight Bess, Miss Bramah; Lemuel, Miss Fatten. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Dalchini, as fitted by Miss Alice Bath and Florence Hunter. COAL AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell; and many other entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Champion," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King;" and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week commencing November 25.

- ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee B. E. Baker. Italian Operas.
- ROYAL AMERICAN THEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. "Haunted Houses."
- PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee Mr. Sutton Barry. "Le Petit Faust."
- THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square. Lessee, Bro. De Frece. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Canaan Caravan."
- ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Performances by the Slave Troupe.
- CORNER'S CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Proprietors, Messrs. Cook and Weldon.
- NEW OMBES CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newcome.
- NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager Bro. Saunders. Miscellaneous Entertainment by a talented Company.
- TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Andree and Family.—Ward of Magic.
- QUEEN'S HALL.—Gillard's Great American Troupe.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1872.

THE COMING STRUGGLE.

Before the next issue of this journal the election of a Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls will be a thing of the past. The ballot will take place, as publicly advertised, on Thursday, the 28th November, at Freemasons' Hall; and will commence at 12 noon and close at 5 p.m. precisely. In accord with the resolutions passed at the last General Committee meeting, candidates must be Master Masons of three years standing, and be less than forty years of age. So much for the legal limits of qualification declared to be necessary. But over and above these, as all who have the welfare of the Institution at heart must feel, are other and more recondite qualifications, which the Governors and other members of the General Committee are morally bound to insist upon in their new Secretary. In the first rank of these must be placed Masonic experience and a wide connection, personally and by repute, among the brethren. The claims of Bro. Wentworth Little, in these particulars, are so well known and have been advocated so recently, that we make no apology, at this stage of the proceedings, for declaring formally in his favour, and expressing our sanguine hopes for his success. It will be remembered that up to this date The Freemason has been content to argue upon general principles, and has refrained from pronouncing for or against any possible candidate for this important post. The time, as it seems to us, has now arrived for speaking out; and in assuring Bro. Little's numerous supporters of our sympathy, we beg to impress upon them that they must be prepared to put forth their full strength on the day of the election. What that strength is, and how conclusively it may be exercised, we have some means of knowing, and we have full confidence that we shall be able this day week to congratulate Bro. Little and his friends upon their success.

This being so, it may be asked if it be not possible to avoid a contest altogether, and by a union of forces between those who have been hitherto supporting a candidate now excluded, and the friends of Bro. Little, the latter may not be elected unanimously to a position he is sure to fill well. Rightly or wrongly, the House Committee has been credited with acting in the interests of a particular candidate; and though we firmly believe this opinion to be a mistaken one, so far as the bulk of the members of the Committee are concerned, it is impossible to deny that their acts, as a body, have been susceptible of this interpretation. The strongest claim put forward by the brother they were supposed to favour, and of whom we desire to speak with all respect, was the length of time he had discharged Bro. Patten's duties to the satisfaction of the House Committee—such length of time and hypothetically contingent claim being due to the absence of action on the part of the House Committee itself. Then came the unfortunate demand for more than fourteen days in which to make a Report, which it is admitted now, could have been made in a few hours; the ill-judged suppression, without discussion, of an amendment which Bro. J. C. Parkinson had drawn by counsel before he attempted to bring it before the meeting; and the abortive effort to leave the day of the election of a Secretary unfixed and indefinite. These were all, we submit, errors of judgement; and while we are satisfied that the House Committee as a whole, did not intend these several acts to operate exclusively in the interests of an individual, it does not seem a very extravagant conjecture to suppose that some of its members may have remembered that their operation would not be prejudicial to the man they favoured. If it be true that the House Committee actually carried a resolution at one of their meetings, of similar purport to Bro. Parkinson's, with respect to the Masonic standing of candidates, and rescinded it subsequently, for the express purpose of not excluding an individual, it is obvious that the principle affirmed by the General Committee cannot be altogether distasteful.

But arguing from the standpoint of Bro. Little's assured success, will not the House Committee let bye-gones be bye-gones, and agree to co-operate with his supporters in not merely electing him to the Secretaryship of the Girls' School, but in making a graceful compensation to a late candidate, who has served them faithfully and well? Is it worth while to put up, or to encourage in putting up, new candidates for the mere sake of preventing a "walk over," in name as well as in reality? Bro. Little's supporters are strong in numbers, in organization, in influence, in determination, and in faith. Is it fair to brethren, who are less known than he, and who are without his connections and claims, to put them to the needless expense and fruitless anxiety of a contest? Is it worth while, for the mere sake of "showing fight to the last," to invite hostility from men who are now honestly anxious to land one of Bro. Little's late opponents in a position nearly equal in emoluments to the Secretaryship to the Girls' School? We ask the friends of this brother, in all earnestness, to weigh the situation well, and we call upon Bro. Little's supporters with equal earnestness to come to the poll on Thursday, the 28th, precisely as if there were a really dangerous rival in the field. It is desirable on every ground that each section of opinion should be adequately represented on that occasion; and in the choice of scrutineers, in the appointment of officers for the day, and in every arrangement pertaining to the ballot, the Committee will, we are satisfied, be scrupulously careful to give each candidate's supporters full and fair representation.

Bro Little's friends will do well to remember that their votes, and their influence, will be of the highest import to him next Thursday; and that the numbers who come to the poll will be quoted hereafter as a really significant expression of popular opinion. We will impress upon them further that the earlier in the day they vote, the greater will be the favour conferred, and that as the election of next Thursday is the crowning effort in a gallant struggle, and the final claim which will be made upon their time, they will best serve the cause they have at heart by bringing as many of their personal friends among the Life Governors as they can influence with them to Freemasons' Hall. They will find Bro. J. C. Parkinson and other leading members of Bro. Little's Committee on the spot, and ready to afford information to voters during all the hours of ballot; and we trust that we shall have to record next week, not merely that "the best man has won," but that he has done so by an overwhelming majority, and with the approval and co-operation of those under whom he will have to work, as well as of those who were his opponents until the other day. The House Committee will in all human probability have to receive Bro. Wentworth Little as Secretary to the Masonic Girls' School in a week from this date; and this wholly irrespective of any action they may think fit to take. But there is time left to tender him the right hand of fellowship, voluntarily and gracefully, and for the sake of the Institution we trust they will accept the suggestion which Bro. J. C. Parkinson, the Chairman of the Little Committee is known to have offered them, and which would prevent the possibility of disappointment in one quarter, while infusing a spirit of general satisfaction in all.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

CAPPER LODGE (No. 1076).—This prosperous and flourishing lodge held its installation meeting on Thursday, the 14th inst., at the Marine Hotel, Victoria Docks, West Ham, E. The chair was occupied by Bro. Ashdown, the retiring W.M., supported by the following officers, viz.:—Bros. I. Gaskell, I.P.M.; H. G. Sisley, P.M., as S.W.; B. B. Brayshaw, J.W. (W.M. elect); G. Park, Treasurer; J. Henderson, P.M. and Secretary; Sherwin, Org.; A. Knox, S.D.; Priestley, J.D.; and Alison, Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form, with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the former meeting, and also of a lodge of emergency, were read and confirmed. The balance sheet and accounts for the past year, duly audited, were then read, showing a large balance in favour of the lodge. There were two candidates for initiation, but from unforeseen circumstances, neither were able to attend. The W.M. then called upon the Secretary to read the bye-laws of the lodge, which having been done, the W.M. elect, Bro. Brayshaw, J.W., was presented by Bro. E. West, P.M., and P. Prov. G.S.D. Herts, to the W.M. to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The ceremony was then proceeded with, and a Board of Installed Masters formed, consisting of the following brethren, viz. I. Gaskell, I.P.M., E. West, S. Watkins, H. G. Sisley and Henderson P.Ms. of the lodge, Bro. Chas. Lacey P. M., 174 (W.M. designate Langthorne Lodge) Bro. W. C. Barlow, 174; E. Parker, W.M. 1327; G. English W.M. 1227; and R. Bolton, I.P.M. 1227. Bro. Brayshaw was installed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom, and having invested his I.P.M., the board was closed. The brethren were then readmitted, and the newly installed W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees. He appointed his officers as follows viz. Bro. C. W. Ashdown, I.P.M.; A. Knox, S.W.; I. Priestly, J.W.; G. Park (re-elected) Treasurer, J. Henderson, P.M., Secretary; M. W. Nott, S.D.; Rhill, J.D.; Holliday, J. G.; Sherrin, Organist; and Allison (re-elected) Tyler. The addresses to the W.M.; Wardens, and brethren, were delivered in a most impressive manner by the Installing Officer, who on resuming his seat was warmly congratulated by the P.M.'s present. On the proposition of Bro. Sisley, P.M. it was unanimously resolved that an address, framed and engrossed on vellum, be presented to Bro. Ashdown, at the next meeting of the Lodge, in recognition of the efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. during his year of office, and also for his excellent rendering of the installation ceremony that day. The lodge was then closed and the brethren (number-over 100) adjourned to an excellent banquet, which was well served, considering the very limited resources in the shape of accommodation, at the disposal of the worthy host, Bro. Old. The chair was occupied by the newly installed W.M. who fulfilled his duties in a very efficient manner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured and a very pleasant evening spent by the brethren, who having thoroughly enjoyed themselves, separated in perfect peace and harmony at an early hour. During the evening a very handsome P.M.'s. jewel, voted at the last meeting of the lodge, was presented to Bro. Ashdown, I.P.M., in recognition of his services as W.M. during the past year. Amongst the visitors present, besides the P.M.'s. enumerated above, were Bros. Carruthers, S.D. 65; Slee, I.G. 1227; Owen, 1227; and several others.

KENT.

CANTERBURY.—St. Augustine Lodge (No. 972).—The brethren belonging to this rising lodge held the usual annual installation gathering on Monday last, the spacious madrigal-room adjoining the theatre being kindly placed at their service by the brethren of No. 31, Canterbury. There was a large attendance of members and visitors, including several W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and P. and P. Prov. G.O.'s from No. 31, Canterbury; No. 199, Dover; No. 1208, Dover; No. 133, Taversham; and No. 153, Gibraltar. The ceremony of installing Bro. Walter James White, S.W., into the chair of King Solomon, was ably and impressively performed by Bro. W. Ellenor, after which the newly-elected W.M. made the following appointments:—Bros. Geo. Pilcher, S.W.; Frederick Walker, J.W.; Arthur Cannon, S.D.; William Plume, J.D.; James Welch, I.G.; Charles Sendell, D.C.; John Secra and William Henry Vile, Stewards; William Harnett, Hon. Tyler;—Cannon, Organist; and William Ellenor, P.M., Hon. Secretary. In the evening, about fifty members of the Order sat down to a splendid banquet, provided by Messrs. Shaxby Brothers, of the Guildhall Hotel, who were warmly eulogised on the general excellence of the arrangements. The W.M. elect presided, and after the removal of the cloth, proceeded to give the usual toasts, which were acknowledged in the manner usual among Masons. After "The Queen and the Craft," followed "The Health of H.R. Highness the Prince of Wales, P.G.M.," and the W.M., in submitting the toast, said that his Royal Highness was a true lover of Masonry might be evidenced from the fact that after obtaining honours as a P.G.M., he was now actually working in a Craft Lodge. "The Earl de Grey and Ripon, Grand Master," "Lord Carnarvon, Deputy Grand Master," and the rest of the Deputy Grand Officers" having been suitably proposed, and otherwise properly dealt with, "Lord Holmesdale, next Grand Master for Kent," followed, the next in order being "To the memory of Bro. Dobson, Deputy Past Grand Master of Kent." The proposer (the W.M.) passed a very feeling and appropriate eulogium upon the memory of the deceased brother, whom he described to maintain Masonry in its purest character. The company drank the toast in silence and subdued light. Bro. Wilson, P.G. Sword Bearer, and P.M. 199, Dover, acknowledged the next toast, "The Health of the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," and in the course of his remarks spoke very highly of the W.M. elect, who, he remarked, merited and deserved the position he now occupied by having at all times carried out the true principles of Masonry. He was a Master of which St. Augustine's Lodge might well be proud, and he was sure that he had the hearty good wishes of every lodge in Kent. The W.M. of the Corinthian Lodge, Dover, responded for "The Visitors," and in the course of a practical speech, pointed out the advantage of members of lodges in their own and neighbouring towns exchanging visits. Bro. Paul, P.M. 32, in submitting "The health of the W.M. elect," said that as the oldest member of the Masonic Order in Canterbury, and in consequence of his having assisted at the consecration of St. Augustine's Lodge, he had very much pleasure at being present on this occasion, and taking part in the installation of Bro. White. He had known him for many years, and he (Bro. Paul) could bear testimony to the fact that he had established a character for probity and honour of the highest class, and he felt that his elevation to the chair he now occupied was not only an honour to St. Augustine's Lodge, but to Masonry throughout the county of Kent. The W.M., in acknowledging the compliment, pointed out that a successful year of office to him was mainly dependent on the assistance he received from his officers; and he had reason to believe they would give him their hearty co-operation. He was most anxious to point out to the brethren of his lodge, that the proper disposal of honours should be made not by the mere fluctuation of time, but according to merit. Bro. Beer, P.M., next gave "The Installing Master, Bro. Ellenor, P.M.," observing that it was a good and grand thing to be a Mason, but it was something better and nobler to be possessed of so extended a knowledge of it as Bro. Ellenor had. Several other toasts applying to the officers succeeded, and were appropriately acknowledged, the reply of the S.W. being particularly appreciated. Among the later toasts was that of "The Press," proposed by Bro. Hart (one of the Aldermen of Canterbury), in replying to which, Bro. Sendell referred to the fact that Freemasonry and the Press had always gone hand-in-hand, and that many Masons were to be found in the ranks of newspapers. He cited, as an instance, the journal with which he was connected (The South Eastern Gazette), the majority of the literary staff of which, he said, were members of the Order. It should be added that the large attendance of visitors, attired in the regalia of P.G.O.'s, and members of 972, upon whom had been conferred the honour of wearing the purple, combined with the capital appointments of the lodge-room, contributed to make up a splendid effect; and also that the success of the day's proceedings is in no small degree attributed to the popularity of the new W.M.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—The monthly communication of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 6th inst. The following officers and brethren present:—Bros. E. J. Crow, Mus. Bac., W.M.; Stretton, P.M., P. Prov. G.R.; J. M. McAllister, S.W.; J. Halford, J.W.; W. Weare, P.M., Treasurer; T. A. Wykes, 525, as Secretary; J. W. Smith, S.D.; R. Goodman, 354, Glasgow, as J.D.; C. E. Stretton I.G.; J. Edmunds, H. T. Kirby, S. Tebbut, G. W. Statham, and the R. W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Kelly, honoured his mother lodge by his presence. Among the visitors were Revd. Dr. Hayeroft, W.M.; G. Toller P.M.; F. J. Bains, S.W.; S. S. Partridge, J.W., P.G.S.; W. B. Smith, P.M., Treasurer; J. T. Thorpe, Secretary; W. T. Rowlett, J.D.; E. Mace, J. Lorimore, and R. Taylor, members of the John O'Gaunt Lodge, and Bro. S. P. Ekin, P.M.; and E. Mason represented the Commercial Lodge, 1391. On the lodge having been opened in due form, and the routine business disposed of, Bro. W. H. Marshall was passed to the degree of Fellowcraft, and at a subsequent period of the evening Mr. George Billings, a candidate for initiation, regularly proposed and approved of, was duly admitted to a participation in the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The R.W. Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Kelly, in the name of our eminent Bro. J. Hughan, Hon. Mem., presented a number of interesting books to the Masonic Library. The brethren testified their high appreciation of the generous gift, by unanimously according a cordial vote of thanks to the esteemed donor. During the evening's proceedings the exercise of that truly Masonic virtue was pleasingly evidenced by the announcement of liberal subscriptions received towards the fund now being raised to purchase the admission of a "Lewis," to the Masonic Institution for Boys, and in recommending and adhibiting the required signatures to a petition in favour of the candidature for admission to the kindred Institution of a daughter of a late Brother, Past Master of the lodge. With the view of utilizing the musical talent for which a number of our local brethren are distinguished, Bro. Tebbutt, Organist pro tem., submitted the following notice of motion:—"That considering an effective rendering of the ceremonies as highly important in imparting an additional impressiveness to the services, as well as inducing an increased interest and improved attendance on the part of the brethren to the duties of the lodge, it is desirable to form a Masonic choir of not less than twelve members in connection with the local lodges. After the customary fraternal greetings from the visitors, the lodge was closed in ample form.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—Baldwin Lodge (No. 1398).—The regular monthly meeting of this young and flourishing lodge was held on Monday evening, the 11th instant, in the Masonic Temple, the Castle, Dalton-in-Furness, when the following officers were present:—The chair was occupied by Bro. R. Pearson, W.M. of Lodge of Furness, Ulverston, 995, supported by Bro. J. Case, P.M. 995; W. Whiteside, S.W.; J. Postlethwaite, J.W.; F. F. Clark, Treasurer; J. Tyson, Secretary; W. Horn, S.D.; F. Bell, J.D.; Rev. J. W. Morgan, Chaplain; J. Walker, I.G.; and T. Cooper, Tyler. The visiting brethren present were Bros. J. H. Matthews, P.S.W., and R. Casson, both of 995, the latter of whom very ably presided at the harmonium. The attendance of brethren, members of the lodge, was very good. The lodge was duly opened by the Acting W.M., in the first degree, and the minutes of the two former meetings were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for the admission of two candidates, in one case proving favourable, and in the other unfavourable. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bro. J. Harrison gave proof of proficiency as F.C., was entrusted by the W.M., and retired, when the lodge was raised to the third degree, and Bro. Harrison was duly raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The lodge was then closed to the first degree, when Bro. W. Dalzell having proved proficiency as E.A., was entrusted and retired, the lodge resuming the second degree. Bro. Dalzell was passed to the degree of F.C. The lodge was again closed to the first degree, when Mr. George Bellas Moses, of Dalton-in-Furness, iron ore merchant, and Mr. Frederick Atkinson, of Dalton-in-Furness, commercial traveller, were consecutively initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The working tools in each degree were presented by the S.W., and J.W. respectively, and the S.W. delivered to the newly initiated brethren the initiation charge. The questions in the first degree were then put round. The bye laws of the lodge having been confirmed, and some other formal business disposed of, the lodge was duly closed at 10.30 p.m. The lodge, which may yet be said to be in its infancy, is much indebted to the watchfulness and nurturing care of the officers and brethren of the lodge of Furness, 995, the W.M. attending on each occasion to conduct the lodge.

PRESCOT.—Lodge of Loyalty (No. 86).—The brethren of this old and highly prosperous lodge were summoned to their Masonic duties on Wednesday afternoon, the 13th inst., and as the principal business was the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. J. W. R. Fowler, there was an unusually large muster of members and visitors. The ancient Loyalty is amongst the most popular of lodges in the province of Lancashire West, and it fully maintained its proud position by the success which attended the interesting meeting on this occasion. The assembly took place at the Royal Hotel, where the lodge was duly opened by Bro. Dr. S. Morris, W.M., who was supported by the following past and present officers and members of No. 86:—Bros. J. E. Birchall, P.M.; J. T. Hall, P.M.; T. Wylie, P. Prov. G. Reg., P.M.; G. Turner, P.M., Treas.; R. Young, Sec.; J. Williams, S.W.; R. D. Simpson, J.D.; R. Cork, I.G.; W. Jamieson, S.; W. Tyrer, M.C.; T. Sephton, Tyler; J. Hamer,

P. Prov. G. Treas., J. Vaughan, J. V. Van Denne, G. H. Turner, J. Ellis, C. R. Hall, jun. W. Cron, J. Kitchen, S. Marsh, G. Stead, J.; Knight, R. S. Reynolds, H. S. Oppenheim, J. S. Robertson, T. Ambler, A. J. Galloway, and T. Swift. Amongst the visitors present during the afternoon were Bros. J. Skeaf, P. Prov., G.O.; J. K. Smith, P.M. 249; W. Harrison, W.M. 897; W. J. Newman, J.W. 786; C. C. Wilson, 897; I. De Zouch, 249; D. Saunders, 1299; W. Thomison, 314; J. Busfield, 216; T. Evans, 1023, and others. The lodge having been opened in due form by Bro. Morris, W.M., the minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Bros. T. Wylie and J. Hamer then presented Bro. J. W. J. Fowler, W.M. elect, to his father (Bro. J. W. J. Fowler) for installation, and he proceeded with the ceremony in an impressive and efficient manner. The spectacle of a son being installed by his father is so rare as to be always interesting; but when an installing Master enjoys so high a Masonic reputation as that honestly earned by Bro. P.M. Fowler, the interest is greatly increased. After the lodge had been opened in the third degree, a board of Installed Masters was held, and Bro. Fowler, jun., was duly placed in the chair. The other brethren were then re-admitted, and the newly installed Master was saluted, according to ancient custom, in the three degrees. The working tools were presented by Bro. T. Wylie, and the charges to the following officers, appointed for the ensuing year, were given by Bro. J. Hamer:—Bros. S. Morris, I.P.M.; H. Scott, S.W.; R. Young, J.W.; J. W. J. Fowler, P.M., Treas.; W. Tyrer, Secretary; R. Cork, S.D.; G. H. Turner, J.D.; W. Cron, I.G.; C. R. Hall, S.S.; J. Kitchen, J.S.; R. D. Simpson, M.C. Bro. T. Sephton was unanimously re-elected Tyler. The musical portion of the ceremony, which included Skeaf's admirably written anthem, "Behold how good," was rendered in the most striking and effective manner by Bros. D. Saunders, J. Busfield, and T. Evans, Bro. J. Skeaf presiding at the harmonium. The lodge was closed according to ancient form. The brethren subsequently sat down to a magnificent banquet in the Court House, under the presidency of the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and cordially responded to. The health of "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, V.W.P. D.P.G.M., and the P. Prov. G. Officers," was acknowledged by Bro. Wylie, P. Prov. G. Reg. "The West Lancashire Institution for the Education and Advancement in Life of Children of Distressed Masons, and the Masonic Charities," was acknowledged by Bro. J. Hamer, P. Prov. G. Treasurer. "The Worshipful Master," proposed by Bro. S. Morris, I.P.M., was acknowledged by Bro. Fowler, W.M., in a suitable manner. Bro. Wylie then gave "The Worthy and Worshipful Past Master," and in the course of a highly appropriate speech, he presented a very chaste and valuable Past Master's jewel to Bro. Morris, I.P.M., who acknowledged the gift from the brethren in a few but pointed words. "The P.M.'s and Officers of Lodge of Loyalty, No. 86," and "The Visiting Brethren" were the other toasts on the list. After spending an exceedingly pleasant evening, the brethren separated at an early hour.

LEIGH.—Marquis of Lorne Lodge (No. 1354).—The first installation since the consecration of this lodge was celebrated on Wednesday, at the Masonic Rooms Newton-street, Leigh. The brethren assembled about four o'clock in the afternoon, and the installation of the Worshipful Master was proceeded with, after the usual lodge business had been transacted. The choice of the brethren having fallen upon Bro. James Jackson, the worthy superintendent of the Warrington Division of County Police, that gentleman was installed according to ancient custom, by Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.Z., P. Prov. G. Reg. The brethren visiting from other lodges were Bros. Enos Andrew, Waverley 1322, P.S.S.E.Z.; P. Mills, 300 and 1088, P.M.; J. Marland W.M. 330; P. Ashforth J.W. 300; William Lewis, 484; D. W. Finney 148, 1250, P.M.; William Missip P.M. 1250; Thomas Bowers, 1088 and 1144, P.G. A.D.G.G.; J. Howe, 300, James Kerslaw 300, and J. Fother-gill, P.M. 1129. The members of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge present were:—Bros. T. J. Lancashire, W.M., J. Jackson, S.W.; R. Neild, S.D., W. Duncan, J.D., T. Smith, I.G.; G. Dickenson, Secretary, R. W. B. Sanderson, T. T. Hayes, C. E. Wright, James Kirkpatrick, N. Molyneux, John Hall, G. H. H. Evans, J. Rose, J. Yales, and H. Heap, Tyler. The newly-installed W.M., after having been saluted by the brethren, invested the following gentlemen as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Robert Neild, S.W.; William Duncan, J.W.; C. E. Wright, S.D.; Thomas Smith, J.D.; N. Molyneux, I.G., J. Ashton, Tyler. Bros. Bryce and Dickenson were re-elected as Treasurer and Secretary. The lodge was finally lowered and closed by the newly-installed Master. The members and visiting brethren afterwards celebrated the Festival of St. John the Evangelist by a banquet at the Boar's Head Inn, Market-place. The W.M. in giving the first toast, "The Queen—the Mother of a Mason," said that the toast of our Sovereign was the first given, when ever Englishmen were gathered together, and more particularly when Masons assembled, as on that occasion. The Queen was the mother of a Mason, and therefore they should receive the loyal toast with more than usual heartiness. In proposing the toast of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. P.G.M.; H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family," the W.M. said they no doubt were well aware that the Prince of Wales was Brother Wales, and that other members of the Royal Family were Masons. He would not eulogise them, but he sincerely believed that if the example of the royal household was imitated, it would make many better men, and better Masons. The W.M. trusted they would duly honour the next toast, which was the "Army, Navy, Militia, Volunteers, and Royal Navy Reserve," with which he coupled the name of Bro. Molyneux. Bro. Molyneux responded. The W.M. said all Masons knew that the two gentlemen at the head of the Masonic body, the Marquis of Ripon and the Earl of Carnarvon, were second to none who have ever occupied that position; either as diplomatists, as statesmen, as noblemen, or as gentlemen. He gave, with unusual pleasure, the health of "The M.W.G.M., the R.W.D. G.M., and the Grand Lodge of England." The toast having been enthusiastically honoured, the W.M. said that he was sorry to say that at present they had no Provincial Grand Master, and, therefore, in proposing "The R.W. Prov. G.M., the R.W.D.P.G.M., and the Prov. G.L. of West Lancashire," he asked them to drink to the memory of the late Sir Thomas G. F. Hesketh, Bart., to whom a successor has not yet been appointed. In giving the toast of the evening, Bro. Lancashire, the retiring W.M., said that there was great difference between talking upon a subject without interest, and upon one fraught with interest from beginning to end. He had to propose a toast, which was the health of Bro. James Jackson, W.M. of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge, No. 1354. (Applause.) In doing so he did it with the firm belief, that it would be received with that warm appreciation which should characterise every Mason. After referring to Bro. Jackson as no new resident in Leigh, he said that whether their new W.M. remained in Leigh for a long or a short period, and whatever future was in store for him, the name of James Jackson, the W.M. of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge, would be respected by all persons in the town—non-Masons or Masons—but particularly by those who were Masons. Bro. Jackson, W.M., acknowledged the toast of his health, which had been most enthusiastically drunk. He thought that his brother, Mr. Lancashire had made use of rather too complimentary language. (No, no) He, however, thanked him for proposing, and the brethren for receiving so enthusiastically, the toast of his health. He had great hopes for the future of Masonry in Leigh. He was not an old Mason, but still had held the office of W.M. in an old lodge at Warrington. This he considered to be a great honour; to which was now added that of succeeding Bro. Lancashire to the chair of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge. He thanked them for the honours they had twice conferred upon him that day. (Applause.) Bro. Sanderson proposed "The I.P.M. of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge, Bro. T. J. Lancashire." (Hear, hear.) He passed a high eulogium upon the first Master of the lodge, whom he said was, in many respects, his conception of a true Masonic gentleman. (Applause.) Bro. Lancashire, in replying, humourously thanked the previous speaker. Bro. Sanderson was the first child borne to the Marquis of Lorne Lodge (laughter), and he was pleased to find he was an obedient child, and had spoken so well of his parent. (Laughter.) With regard to the lodge, he had done all he could for the last two years to establish and maintain it, and should not relax his efforts, but continue to do his best for it in the future. Bro. Duncan proposed the toast of "The W.M., Officers, and Brethren of the Lodge of Lights, 148." Bro. Bryce replied. The W.M. proposed "The Officers of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge." Bro. Hayes proposed "The Visiting Brethren." After the toast of the "Masonic Charities" had been honoured, Bro. Sanderson, in a short and effective speech, gave "The Ladies." He said he approached the task of giving the toast with considerable diffidence, and yet with great pleasure. The slightest frown from the ladies darkened our joy; and the slightest smile soothed our woes. He would like to dilate on the subject of his toast, but would refrain. He could say in the words of the poet—

"Oh woman! whose form and whose soul
Are the spell and delight of each path we pursue;
Whether sunn'd in the Tropics, or chill'd at the Pole,
If woman be there—there is happiness too."

He believed that compliment and gallantry were essentially appreciated by the fair sex; but apart from that, all his ideas of beauty had been more than surpassed by the ladies of Leigh. (Applause.)

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 28).—A regular meeting of the Lodge of Instruction, in connection with this lodge, was held on Wednesday last, the 13th instant. The Worshipful Master, Bro. W. Hall, occupied the chair, and was supported by Bro. Dr. Moore, I.P.M., and P.G.S.B. England; Bro. W. Fleming, S.W.; John Hatch, P.M., as J.W.; E. Simpson, P.M., Secretary, and a number of brethren and visitors. After the usual lodge business had been transacted, Bro. Moore delivered a short lecture on the Three Grand Principles of Freemasonry, for which a hearty vote of thanks was proposed and carried by acclamation. Good wishes were offered from brethren representing several lodges, and ultimately the lodge was closed in due form.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The usual monthly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 14th. There was not a large muster of the brethren, owing no doubt to the inclemency of the weather. This being the night for the election of Worshipful Master, Treasurer, and Tyler. Bro. Dr. Beaumont R.N., Senior Warden, was unanimously elected W.M.; Bro. Schulen re-elected Treasurer and Bro. Geo. Spalding Tyler. Bro. Emra Holmes P.G. Reg. pursuant to notice rose, to speak on his motion respecting the reduction of subscriptions of non-resident members, and called attention to an able letter in The Freemason on the subject. He had intended to move that brethren residing beyond twenty miles should pay half the usual subscription, but finding through the courtesy of the Secretary, Bro. W. Spalding, that a large proportion of the brethren resided beyond that distance he was willing to make the limit 50 miles. In view of this alteration in the motion, and there being so few present he would venture to submit the matter for the consideration of the brethren, and would, if they saw fit, postpone the motion, until the next regular meeting. Bro. Bobby, P.M., remarked that anything brought before the lodge by so well-known a Mason as Bro. Emra Holmes was worthy of their attention and he thought that his motion had better stand over till next meeting, so that the brethren might have an opportunity of considering it in its altered form. The W.M., Bro. Long, said that he was at first disposed to oppose Bro. Holmes motion as it originally stood but after the remarks he had made, he thought it was well worthy of consideration. Bro. Cornell's motion for the formation of a Lodge of Instruction in connection with this lodge was carried. An Officer of the Dragoons having been proposed for initiation, and the other business of the lodge having been transacted, it was closed with solemn prayer, and the brethren retired for refreshment.

Royal Arch.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

WARRINGTON.—Chapter of Elias Ashmole (No. 148).—A regular convocation of this chapter was held at the chapter rooms on Monday, 11th. Sept., present, Comps. D. W. Finney, M.E.Z.; W. Monop, H.; W. Richardson, J.; John Bowes, P.Z., Prov. G.S.B.; W. S. Hawkins, E.; James Jackson, N., P.J.; Edelsten as P.S., and a large number of companions. The chapter was opened in due form, and the minutes read and approved. The ballot was then taken for Bros. Reid, Barlow, Wright and Sanderson, which being favourable they were exalted by Comp. John Bowes, the symbolic and historic lectures being given respectively by the M.E.Z. and H. There being no further business, the chapter was closed.

Mark Masonry.

LANCASHIRE (WEST).

LIVERPOOL.—West Lancashire Lodge (No. 65).—The usual two-monthly meeting of this lodge of Mark Masons was held on Monday evening, the 4th instant, at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. Peter M. Larsen, P.M., acting as W.M., supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. J. R. Goepel, P.M. and Treas.; T. Ashmore, S.W.; J. Taylor, J.W.; J. Wood, Secretary; H. Nelson, M.O.; W. Doyle, J.O.; J. C. Lunt, S.D.; M. Mawson, J.D.; J. E. Jackson, I.G.; P. Ball, Tyler; C. Leighton, Organist, and a full attendance of brethren. The lodge was opened at six o'clock, after which the minutes were read and confirmed unanimously, and a brother was ballotted for. Bro. T. Ashmore, W.M. elect, was then presented to Bro. Larsen, by Bros. Hamer and Goepel, for installation, and the ceremony was performed in a highly effective manner. The W.M. afterwards appointed the following as his officers:—Bros. J. Taylor, S.W.; H. Nelson, J.W.; J. R. Goepel, P.M. as Treas. (re-appointed); J. Wood, Sec. (re-appointed for the third time); W. Shortis, M.O.; J. C. Lant, S.O.; M. Mawson, J.O.; J. E. Jackson, Chap.; C. H. Hill, Reg. of Marks; R. Dawson, I.G.; J. Hayes and C. Tyrer, Stewards; J. K. Smith, P.M., as Dir. of Cers.; and P. Ball, re-elected as Tyler. The officers were severally addressed by Bro. Hamer, and the brethren generally by Bro. Larsen, the installing Master. Bro. Plaw, being in attendance, was admitted, being properly prepared and duly obligated, the interesting ceremony being performed by the newly installed W.M. A letter of condolence was adopted and ordered to be sent by the Sec. to Bro. T. Clark, I.P.M., as a mark of sympathy with him upon the death of his wife. After four brethren had been proposed for exaltation, the lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet. Harmony and good feeling were the order of the evening.

In the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, held at the Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-street, the fifteen sections will be worked, Bro. Hawkins, P.M. Doric Lodge, in the chair.

Mr. T. G. Fermor Hesketh, second son of the late Bro. Sir Thomas G. Fermor Hesketh, Bart. M.P., R.W.P.G.M. for W.L., of Rufford Hall, has been placed on the Commission of the Peace for the county of Lancaster.

Masonic Tidings.

The Suffolk Chronicle thus speaks of the late Mayor of Ipswich, Bro. G. G. Sampson, who has been four times Mayor of the old town, dignified as the birthplace of the great Cardinal Wolsey, to whom, by the way, no statue has yet been erected:—"This day witnessed the usual municipal ceremonies. The outgoing Mayor retired with eclat—the incoming was greeted with applause. Mr. Sampson has for two years been a most industrious, painstaking, devoted public servant. His ubiquity has been something patriotic. It involved more than a dashing drive, for time is money, and Mr. Sampson is a professional gentleman whose time is, apart from official duties, pretty well taken up. The highest office in the town he has worthily, loyally, and honourably discharged; and we should not do our duty did we withhold this testimony to the value of his services." Bro. Sampson (who is one of the oldest medical practitioners in Ipswich, and so famous in this neighbourhood as a whip and owner of fine cattle, "that a certain well-known novelist introduced him, it is said, into one of her novels as the doctor with the unprofessional high-steppers," has been a Freemason a great many years, but has latterly almost withdrawn from Masonry. He was dubbed a Knight Templar in the Encampment of Prudence some years since.

GALLANT CONDUCT OF A NOBLEMAN.—We learn from the Peterboro Advertiser that shortly after midnight on Sunday, the inmates of and persons residing in the neighbourhood of Duncricht-house were awakened by the ringing of the alarm bell on the house. On going out they heard that the west wing of the building was on fire. Supplies of water were got from the cisterns on the tower and a fountain, and efforts were made to subdue the flames. Lord Lindsay was one of the first at the scene of the disaster. When the fire was at about its worst, it became known that a lady's-maid was sleeping in the part which was on fire. Lord Lindsay made his way through fire and smoke to where she was, and they had both just reached a safe position when the roof fell in with a loud crash. Had it not been for Lord Lindsay's courageous conduct, the maid would have perished. After raging for upwards of four hours the flames were subdued, but not before the wing was reduced to a total wreck. The part of the building destroyed was three stories high, and consisted of the ladies'-maids' rooms, the butler's rooms, and pantries; fortunately it contained nothing of special value. The damage done is estimated at about £1,000. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been over-heating of the warming pipes in the wing, and the crackling of the wood by the flames was the first indication that the butler had of the presence of fire. Duncricht-house is the beautiful Scottish residence of Lord Lindsay, and is situated about 11 miles west of Aberdeen. Lord Lindsay, as many of our readers know, is a distinguished Freemason. He has been appointed Senior Grand Warden of England, is a member of the 31° A and A Rite, holds the high office of Grand Sub-Prior of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital, and is also one of the highest officers in the Masonic Order of Rome and Constantine.

We recently noticed, in connection with the Mark Masons of Cheshire, that a new Mark Lodge called the Stamford, No. 148, had been opened at the Town Hall, Altrincham, and we are glad to record it has met with great success under the able Mastership of Bro. James Arthur Birch, who is well supported by his officers, Bros. Captain Robert McDonald Smith, as S.W.; Captain James Walker, J.W.; and Richard Newhouse, Secretary. In furtherance of the new province the brethren of the Stamford Lodge held an emergency meeting on Saturday last for the purpose of advancing Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., R.W.P.G.M.M. elect for Cheshire, and on Friday the 15th, the brethren of the Joppa Lodge, Birkenhead, met and elected Bro. Egerton as a joining member, and at the same time elected him W.M. of that lodge for the ensuing year. As soon as possible after his installation, the officers of the new province will be chosen. We are glad to learn that Bro. Newhouse has been offered and accepted the Secretaryship.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, November 29, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, NOV. 23.

- Red Cross Conclave, No. 3, Rose and Lily, Masons' Hall Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street.
- Surrey Masonic Hall Company (Limited), Green Coat Schools, Camberwell; meeting of Shareholders at 7, p.m.
- Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor.
- Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.
- Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Bridge House Hotel, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, NOV. 25.

- Lodge 4, Royal Somerset House and Inverness, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 26, Castle Lodge of Harmony, Willis' Rooms, St. James's.
- " 28, Old King's Arms, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 79, Pythagorean, Ship Hotel, Greenwich.
- " 183, Unity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street.
- " 831, British Oak, Beaumont Hall, Beaumont-square, Mile-end.
- " 902, Burgoyne, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- Mark Lodge 5, Mallet and Chisel, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
- Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. Beckett, Preceptor.
- Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7. Ceremony of Installation by Bro. C. Lacey, P.M.
- Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
- British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
- St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
- Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 11.55. Preceptor.
- St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
- West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, NOV. 26.

- Lodge 14, Tuscan, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 92, Moira, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
- " 141, Faith, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 145, Prudent Brethren, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 205, Israel, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
- " 259, Prince of Wales, Willis' Rooms, St. James.
- " 1158, Southern Star, Montpellier Tavern, Walworth.
- " 1196, Urban, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell.
- " 1348, Ebury, Morpeth Arms Tavern, Millbank.
- Chap. 21, Cyrus, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
- " 180, St. James' Union, Freemasons' Hall.
- Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
- Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
- Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
- Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
- Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
- Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
- Florence Nighlungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
- Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
- St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's-wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, (50), Wheat-sheaf Hotel, Hand-cou's, Holborn, at 7; Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M., 180, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27.

- Lodge 2, Antiquity, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 212, Euphrates, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue Basinghall-st.
- " 507, United Pilgrims, Horns Tavern, Kennington-park.

- Lodge 754, High Cross, Seven Sisters Tavern, Page-green, Tottenham.
- " 898, Temperance in the East, 6, Newby-place, Poplar.
- " 1056, Victoria, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
- United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
- Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
- Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
- Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
- Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
- Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerly, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, NOV. 28.

- General Committee, Girls' School, Freemasons' Hall at 12; see advt.
- Lodge 22, Neptune, Guildhall Tavern.
- " 34, Mount Moriah, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 65, Prosperity, Guildhall Tavern Gresham-st.
- " 66, Grenadiers, Freemasons' Hall.
- " 766, William Preston, Clarendon Hotel, Anerley.
- " 858, South Middlesex, Beaufort House, North End, Fulham.
- " 871, Royal Oak, White Swan Tavern, High-st., Deptford.
- Chap. 5, St. George's Freemasons' Hall.
- " 177, Domestic, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
- " 657, Canonbury, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street.
- " 834, Andrew, Royal Sussex Hotel, Hammersmith.
- The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall.
- Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
- Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
- Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
- United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
- Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
- Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
- Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, NOV. 29.

- Annual Festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement See advertisement.
- K. T. Encampment, No. 26, Faith and Fidelity, Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-st.
- St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
- Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggenidge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
- Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
- Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
- Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
- Burdett Courts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
- Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
- Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
- Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
- Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
- Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
- Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel Springs-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
- Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
- Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
- St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 33, Brompton-road, S.W.
- United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
- Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
- St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

Advertisements.

MASONIC FLAGS FOR HIRE.

- Knights Templar Arms 15ft. by 12ft.
- Freemasons' Arms 15ft. by 12ft.
- Red Cross of Rome and Constantine Arms 15ft. by 12ft.
- City of London Arms 10ft. by 7ft.
- Square and Compasses, with Prince of Wales's Feathers in Centre 12ft. by 9ft.
- Union Jack 10ft. by 6ft.

KENNING'S MASONIC DEPOTS,
Little Britain, Fleet-street and Liverpool.

BRO. E. WATKINS,
BOTTLE MERCHANT,
ETC.,
12, Jewry-st, Aldgate.

Wines housed and bottled. Wine Baskets on hire.
Contracts made for any time or quantity.

GEORGE KENNING,
LATE JOHN MOTT THEARLE.
198, Fleet Street, E.C.
WATCH & CLOCK MANUFACTURER
GOLDSMITH AND

JEWELLERY OF ALL KINDS

SUITABLE FOR PRESENTATION.

Strong Silver Watches	from	£	1	0
Silver English Levers (own make)	from	3	10	0
Ladies' Gold English Levers	from	9	0	0
Gent's Gold English Levers	from	12	12	0
Gold Watches.....	from	2	12	0
Good Sound 8-day Clocks, in neat cases	from	0	10	0
Good Sound 8-day Clocks, with alarm	from	0	15	0

Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Medals, and Jewels, suitable for Presentation, &c., made to order with dispatch.

All kinds of repairs done on the premises, at moderate prices, by experienced workmen.

George Kennings' Ladies' Gold English Levers, unequalled £10 10s.

Masonic Signet Rings, Scarf Pins, Lockets, Studs and Links.

Masonic Charms for every degree in 9 ct. 15 ct. and 18 ct. Gold.

Watch Glasses 6d. and 1/- Watch Keys 6d.

Ladies' Ears pierced 1/-

Country and Shipping Orders receive prompt attention.

Manufactory: 2, 3 & 4, Little Britain.

S. YARDLEY,
ESTABLISHED 1830.
SHOP FRONT BUILDER, SHOP FITTER,
AND
Air Tight Show Case Manufacturer,
8, LOWER WOOD STREET, CLERKENWELL,
LONDON, E.C.

Every description of fittings manufactured for Jewellers, Cutlers, Stationers, Offices, Drapers, Musicians, Banks, Libraries, Outfitters and Hosiers, Fancy Trades, &c.
Plans and Estimates provided for shop fronts and internal fittings, in Town or any part of the Country.
Outside Lamps (silver plated) with arms and fittings complete from facia, from 42s.
Superior Jewellers' ditto, with extra illuminating power, and fittings complete, from 50s.

BALL FAVOURS,
NEWEST DESIGNS.

MASONIC DEPOTS 2, 3 & 4, LITTLE BRITAIN,
BRANCHES: { 198, Fleet-street, London.
 { 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Ancient York and London Grand Lodges. By Bro. L. Hyneman	747
The Electro-Chymical Substance	748
Reviews	749
Masonic Meetings in Town Halls	750
Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire and Rutland	750
Mark Masonry in Lancashire	751
The Humours of the Election	752
Agenda of Business in Grand Lodge, Dec. 4.....	752
CRAFT MASONRY :—
Provincial	753
CORRESPONDENCE :—
Ancient Grand Lodges of York and London.....	755
Masonic Meetings for next week	755
Advertisements..... 745, 746, 756, 757, 758, 759	760
SUPPLEMENT (Eight Pages) :—
Royal Masonic Institution for Girls—Election of Secretary.....	761
CORRESPONDENCE :—
Royal Masonic Institution for Girls	761
Bro. Lane and the Masonic Benevolent Fund	761
Surrey Masonic Hall.....	761
Bro Findel's Article	761
Obituary.....	761
Masonic Notes and Queries	762
The Surrey Masonic Hall Company	762
MARK MASONRY :
Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Northumberland	763
Provincial	763
KNIGHTS TEMPLAR :—
Provincial	763
Fine Arts in Liverpool	763
Masonic Female Orphan School, Dublin.....	764
Grand Orient of France	766
Provincial Grand Lodge of Northumberland	768

ANCIENT YORK AND LONDON GRAND LODGES.

BY BRO. LEON HYNEMAN.

A REVIEW BY BRO. W. J. HUGHAN.

(Continued from page 732.)

At page 69 we read : "Preston, in his qualified statement, 'they instituted a new Grand Lodge in London, professedly on the ancient system,' subsequently remarks in same paragraph—'The irregular Masons in London having thus acquired a nominal establishment, noblemen of both kingdoms unacquainted with the origin of separation honoured them with their patronage, &c. That fully agrees with our views, that no third Grand Lodge was formed in London."

How can this be, when Preston distinctly affirms "they instituted a new Grand Lodge?" Surely this cannot harmonise with Bro. Hyneman's views, as he believes there was no third lodge. The Grand Lodge of 1717 at London and the York Grand Lodge of course existed long before the period mentioned by Bro. Preston, consequently the new Grand Lodge is the third in England, and is simply the fresh organisation of the "Ancients," established just when the Rev. John Entick issued the 1756 edition of the Constitutions, and hence he could not be expected to refer at length to its formation.

We fail, therefore, to see the "ingenuity and deceit" in Preston's remarks, which our brother professes to discern.

Another instance of this wonderful discernment is to be found at page 73, because Dr. Anderson states No. 94 was held at the "Gun Tavern" in A.D. 1738 and in 1756. The Rev. John Entick says it was held at the "Ben Johnson's Head." Bro. Hyneman remarks, "One or the other or both must be false." How strange it never occurred to our brother, who is so quick to "jump to conclusions," that No. 94 removed from the one inn to the other. This is really the explanation of an occurrence quite common in the experience of lodges then, as now, who are so unwise as to meet in "public houses," and yet the author of the work we are reviewing sees in it proof of falsehood:

Bro. Hyneman is in error in declaring there is no authority "in any authorized Grand Lodge publication," that there was a third Grand Lodge. The report of the "Union of A.D. 1813" refers at length to the union of the Freemasons under H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, Grand Master of the older Grand Lodge, and H.R.H. the Duke of Kent, of the younger Grand Lodge in London, known respectively as the "Moderns" and the "Ancients." The latter was the third Grand Lodge of all England (the 2nd Grand Lodge in point of age was extinct,) and the fourth was finally closed about A.D. 1790, by the members again being received as members of the first Grand Lodge.

Bro. Hyneman is quite correct in stating that whenever Preston mentioned the York Grand Lodge, it was never "in connection with irregular lodges or Masons." Hence, to our minds, it is clear, that inasmuch as Preston mentions one Grand Lodge in London as a regular body, a Grand Lodge at York, and an irregular Grand Lodge, the author of the Illustrations evidently believed in the existence of a third Grand Lodge. We are quite content to leave this point to any competent Mason or non-Mason to decide.

Notwithstanding these plain facts, Bro. Hyneman will still persist in declaring that the so-called "irregular meetings were Lodges of York Masons!" and in spite of the acknowledgment that Preston never connects the York Masons with the irregularities in London, (who is by far the best writer we have ever had in the past to defend the York Grand Lodge, to which Bro. Hyneman is so devotedly attached). Bro. Hyneman is so completely in "wandering mazes lost" over the study of the numeration of the lodges by Anderson and others, that we despair of ever seeing him clear of the labyrinth, unless indeed he admits his ignorance of the road, and submits to be guided!

His plan of accounting for the fancied discrepancies is again the old plea of "falsity," so we must again answer—shame!

A change of language, but the same false estimate, is visible at page 89 of Bro. Hyneman's work. "Their secession was from a body guilty of the grossest moral and Masonic wrong, and uniting with those in whom the pure principles of Masonry were conserved, the Masons holding under the York Grand Lodge." We are prepared at any time to disprove the foregoing, and will submit to the award of the Grand Masters of the United States, or indeed of any one of them!

It has occurred to us that as Bro. Hyneman objects to the account of the progress of Freemasonry during the whole of the last century by Anderson, Entick, Preston, and others, and says the records of the Grand Lodge of England are unreliable, it would be interesting to know from whence he derives his information, seeing these are the only known channels on the subject! Bro. Hyneman actually acknowledges that the Duke of Atholl was Grand Master of the Ancients, so-called by the London Masons." Every Mason knows, (or should know,) that his Grace never presided over the Grand Lodge of all England held at York, and moreover the letters of recognition sent by the Grand Lodges of Scotland and Ireland were not addressed to the Grand Lodge of York, but at London, under the so-called "Ancients."

Bro. Hyneman's remarks at pages 104-5 are sound and clear, but in the next page the old fault is visible again, and Preston is soundly rated for not doing the very thing which he did!

The paragraph in 12th edition of Preston's "Illustrations" being omitted in Dr. Oliver's reprint, that brother's conduct is said by Bro. Hyneman "to be unjustifiable under any circumstances, especially by a minister of the Gospel;" and yet in the 13th edition of the same work, published A.D. 1821, and from which no doubt the reprint by Dr. Oliver was taken, the same paragraph was also omitted!!!

The culmination of Bro. Hyneman's glaring and unfounded attacks on Masonic worthies is his statement that the Earl of Moira "did not tell the truth," saying that the "Grand Lodge of Scotland expressed the desire that the strictest union and most intimate communication should subsist between this Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodge of Scotland," than whom a brighter Mason never existed, and whose every statements are abundantly confirmed by numerous independent testimonials. We are glad to find that Bro. Hyneman admits that the so-called Ancient Masons "never published any of their transactions; in accordance, no doubt, with positive rules governing the Grand Lodge, save the Ahiman Recons, published by Lawrence Dermott," (page 129,) and for the following reasons: (1) The "Ahiman Recons," from A.D. 1756 to A.D. 1813, never once state that the Grand Lodge of which Dermott was once the Grand Secretary was the Grand Lodge held at York; (2) Dermott often declares his Grand Lodge was held in London; (3) And it was his Grand Lodge which united with the other Grand Lodge, both of which existed in London from A.D. 1753 to A.D. 1813, and happily united in December in the latter year, but neither had any connection with York Masonry.

Bro. Hyneman informs his readers that "The London Grand Lodge was not a legitimate body of Masons; it had no regular Masonic existence, nor were the persons made Masons under its constitutions perfect and regular Masons," &c. It is idle to discuss this point, as we suspect no brother anywhere, except the writer of the foregoing, could be found to indorse such an absurd statement! All the old Grand Lodges, directly or indirectly, emanated from this Grand Lodge! Those which were not constituted as Provincial Grand Lodges by its authority, were formed by virtue of warrants issued by the "Ancients," which Grand Lodge was an offshot, or secession from the former, and so clearly all the old Grand Lodges are virtually the offspring of this body styled illegitimate by Bro. Hyneman, not only in the United States, but in all the world. The "Grand Lodge of all England," held at York, and the "Grand Lodge South of the Trent" held at London, as we remarked before, never issued warrants to hold lodges out of England. Bro. Hyneman wishes it to be understood that his "preceding remarks, in regard to the London Masons and London Grand Lodges, cannot in any sense apply to the Masons of England since the Union, nor to the United Grand Lodge of England;" and we are anxious to let this fact be known wherever our review may travel, as our brother has said sufficient about Masonry before A.D. 1812 to answer for, without being mixed up with any subsequent period.

Several pages are taken up in discussing purely religious questions, so these we pass over, because wholly unsuitable to such a publication.

Bro. Hyneman declares Dermott to have been "Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge at York." This we deny emphatically, and positively declare Bro. Hyneman is not in a position to produce one iota of evidence in proof of his assertion, either from the several editions of Bro. Dermott's "Ahiman Rezon," or from the ancient records still existing at York. The statement is simply untrue. We thank Bro. Hyneman for his kind reference to, and recommendation of, our "Masonic Sketches and Reprints," and we regret exceedingly that duty compels us to refer in such strong terms of objection to his latest volume. We have always had the highest respect for Bro. Hyneman's labours, and sincerely hope that he will rewrite his work, and produce a book worthy of his name.

The following is a list of the Grand Masters of the "Ancients," sometimes called the "Atholl Masons," and "according to the old Constitutions." 1st. Robert Turner, elected A.D. 1753; 2nd. Edward Vaughan, A.D. 1755; 3rd. Earl of Blessinton, A.D. 1757; 4th. Earl of Kelly, A.D. 1761; 5th. Honourable Thomas Matthew, A.D. 1767; 6th. John, 3rd Duke of Atholl, A.D. 1771; 7th. John Murray, 4th. Duke of Atholl, A.D. 1775; 8th. Earl of Antrim, A.D. 1782; 9th. John Murray, 4th. Duke of Atholl, re-elected A.D. 1791; 10th. H.R.H. Duke of Kent, A.D. 1813. The Grand Secretaries were John Morgan, Laurence Dermott, Robert Leslie, and Edward Harper, respectively.

In conclusion, we recommend these facts to the notice of Bro. Hyneman and the Craft in the United States, feeling assured that we appeal to a class of readers who will do us justice.

THE ELECTRO-CHYMICAL SUBSTANCE.

BY BRO. CRYPTONYMUS.

Although personally absent for some time from the pages of The Freemason, from various reasons, I have not failed to read and profit by the many valuable papers which have appeared upon subjects more or less recondite. I therefore, on the present occasion, for the special benefit of some of your readers who delight in the occult, to present them with a curious treatise, suggestive to brethren who have taken certain degrees, and worthy of preservation, at any rate, as a singular record of what some few students still think on alchemical philosophy. That however the Hermetic Mystery is connected with an anterior form of Freemasonry, as I shall have to show in the continuation of my papers on Lessing's Conversations, there can be no doubt, when this is read by those who understand; and therefore it may well take its place between the continuation papers of that series and those which have already preceded it. It has also the advantage of requiring no comments at my hands, but may be taken either literally and scientifically, or symbolically and masonically, as the reader may think most desirable.

In the first sense it may be said that the science of electrical dynamics is guiding us to the shores of a new scientific world; in the latter acceptation it may be read with profit in conjunction with well-known Rosicrucian and Hermetic books. I give the whole as I found it in its manuscript and hitherto unpublished form; I refrain even from significantly italicising certain passages. —CRYPTONYMUS.

In observing the prodigies brought forth by science, art, and industry throughout the three kingdoms of Nature, one is surprised to learn nothing of the problem of organic animation. Man has, in fact, arrived at the power of animating, comparatively speaking, mineral matter, by the employment of steam, air, and electricity, and other like agents, so as to produce for him any mechanical movements he may desire. He knows how by light, caloric, and liquid or solid manures to increase the vital activity of the vegetable kingdom; yet he remains unable to vivify animal matter.

Are the causes of life for ever to escape the researches of science, and is man to reign only over inert matter? If so, it might be affirmed that human intelligence is as finite and non-progressive as matter is limited, and the various combinations we are able to produce necessarily finite. But would not such a final limit be in essential contradiction to the special and supreme indefinite character of the human intellect. What! it may be exclaimed, can our intelligence perceive immortality and infinitude, and yet be unable to conceive animal vitality? Is that which swims in life for ever to be disinherited from the power of knowing its vital centre? Where, then, would be that logical connection of creation which never contradicts itself; which everywhere and in all that exists, reveals the Supreme might and omniscience of the Divinity?

Such considerations lead to the thought that it is possible for man to vivify animal matter; and the following theoretical principles may be indicated as to the nature of the experiments desirable to be undertaken with such an object. And let it be added that the existence of an Electro-Chymical Substance, ignored in modern science as yet, has been materially and physically proved to the writer, by the experiments indicated in a manuscript of the seventeenth century, and which have been actually undertaken. They, however, occupy two years in their process, and although the Electro-Chymical Substance is then recoverable, the expense and attention requisite is very considerable indeed.

THEORETICAL PRINCIPLES.

When the Electro-Chymical Substance is united to the vegetable or animal substance, there ensues conjunction, generation, and organic formation, in consequence of which, it is possible, with the Electro-Chymical Substance, to vivify the Animal Substance and to obtain the corresponding physiological phenomena. Now, all the phenomena manifesting the activity of the world of organisation of species and of individuals, reveal the vitality of organic matter. Therefore, the phenomena of life in vegetable and animal species are the result of the combinations of the Electro-Chymical Substance, either with the vegetable or animal substance. In order completely to justify the term Electro-Chymical, given, not without reason, to this substance, and to prove the verity of the principles we have put forth, it is necessary experimentally to realize the following results.

RESULTS REQUIRED IN THE VEGETABLE KINGDOM.

It is sufficient to keep, in a liquid containing the Electro-Chymical Substance, the roots of plants or cereals for a period appropriate to their respective forces of development; then to place such plants or cereals in the ordinary conditions of their vegetation, in order to obtain proofs of the vital energy acquired. These proofs, although correlative to the nature of each plant, should manifest in every case an excess of chemical vigour. The phenomena of this increase of vegetation may be explained by the simple fact that the Electro-Chymical Substance once absorbed by the vegetable, causes it to draw as well from the soil as from the atmosphere, the requisite complementary to the vital energy previously imparted to it. With solid or liquid manures by greenhouses, or even with electricity, science and industry do no more than render more active the natural energy of the plant, but cannot augment it; while the Electro-Chymical Substance, becoming co-organic, to the plant, potentially increases the vitality of its economic system, in augmenting, for instance, the fragrance of the perfume, and the richness in the colours of the flowers, the savour and the volume of the fruits. Such are the results which experience and logic permit us to hope of the vegetable kingdom.

RESULTS DEMANDED OF THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

The polypi should show us a series of successive formations of an animal nature in progressive developments, of which the serpent and skate seem to offer the two inverse types of form, being subjected, as it may be conceived, to the influence of the Electro-Chymical Substance which must be intelligently graduated; and combined with the animal or vegetable substances, or with both together, in order to obtain the desired results.

INFUSORIA.

It would be found necessary to introduce the Electro-Chymical Substance before the fermentation of the liquid which is to generate infusoria. Otherwise the vivifying substance may destroy such infusoria by substituting other animal organic formations. The infusoria should next be fed by the addition of new animal and vegetable substances, so that, ceasing to be microscopic, they might become visible to the eye, this last condition constituting the result required from that order.

Indeed, the so essentially electro-chymical character of this substance allows us to anticipate a multitude of other results more consonant with our wants and pleasures. By its aid the art of medicine will gain a power of causing an exuberance of strength in the medicinal properties of substances—supervivifying, in fact, the plants and flowers.

The pharmacopœia would attain the possession of means whereby to neutralize the ravages of time, denuding our crania and furrowing our countenances. The Electro-Chymical Substance mingled with milk would have the desirable effect in restoring the vitality of the pile. As to its effect upon the skin in general it must be remembered that the brilliancy and freshness of youth is nothing but the consequence of the vital energy which, in radiating to the periphery of the body, introduces electro-galvanic action into the epidermic tissue. Therefore to obtain the same results as in nature, baths should be taken, or the face and body bathed with water or milk containing the Electro-Chymical Substance, to re-establish in the epidermic tissue, notwithstanding an advanced age, the action of animal vitality appropriate to the body and specially active in youth.

In indicating such experiments it will be seen that no pretensions have been advanced towards the creation of animal or vegetable forms, but only towards an increase in the natural power of individual kinds. But it is considered possible to facilitate the development of individuals, taken in their primitive condition, and so to aid in the solution of the complete problem of vital progression. Chemical science, it is known, is unable completely to analyse organic matter; it is incapable of indicating the chemical causes of the varieties of animal species. Now, by the experimental method we propose, it is possible that some approximation might be found which would account for the parts that animal and vegetable matter play in the specification of the diverse kinds of organisation in living beings. Finally, it may lead to very important results in reference to the health and the normal longevity of man as a species.

Modern science, in its representative, M. Flourens has lately shown us by incontestible calculations that the mean normal duration of human life, has been, in historical times, one hundred years, instead of thirty-five years, as at present. Consequently, we must attribute the causes of the brevity of actual existence to the morbid virus (original sin) transmitted through generations. Now, by means of the Electro-Chymical Substance, we may perceive the possibility of cleansing ourselves from that great sin truly original to our material organisation. For if we attentively consider nature in reference to its powers of conservation, and in the incessant efforts which it makes to combat disorganizing causes, one might be led to the conclusion that it is only from a privation of power that it does not always triumph. It would seem, therefore, that the Electro-Chymical Substance, in ceding its virtue to our economy will determine in each instance sufficient electro-galvanic and magnetic force sufficient to cause the conserving instinct or organic intelligence to draw thence a profit for our advantage, and would reject by energetic fluidic currents the morbid causes of infection.

In this necessarily hypothetical explanation, we do not even pretend to the cure of diseases, but by the right use of the Electro-Chymical Substance, to give the organic intelligence strength by which to disembarrass itself of the causes which, in destroying the health and beauty of the body, oppose themselves to the normal duration of our lives, as well as to the complete development of our intellectual faculties.

Indeed, it is undoubted that vital energy alone endows us with the power of extension in regard to our intellectual faculties, either in their interior or exterior acceptation. Vital energy, on the other hand, is restrained within the limits of individual organization, as the efficient result of the latter, unless, indeed, as argued by the mesmerists, vital energy can be communicated in various ways from organisation to organisation. It is therefore necessary to conceive how the Electro-Chymical Substance, in virtualising our vital energy, extends our intellectual and moral faculties. Now, to enlarge the area of the activity of these, is to fortify the cerebral statism and dynamism—that is to say, it is to augment memory, attention and reflection, to extend the powers of perception, prevision and induction; in fact, to determine precisely the intellect, and facilitate the logic of psychological relations. In a word, to give liberty to our intelligence.

In conclusion, chemistry at present, in its ignorance of the Electro-Chymical Substance, is obliged, in its quest after truth, to disunite, divide, and decompose the constituent principles of the body, thus losing in fact that which should be collected. The Electro-Chymical Substance, in its liquid or solid state, is identical with the subtle essence of electro-vital force. And it is precisely because it unites that identity to its materiality, that it can become co-organic in transforming the systems which it vivifies into as many piles, or electro-galvanic and magnetic elements, which henceforth, in performing their functions, endow youth with beauty and longevity with health.

In our desire to present a complete conspectus in the briefest matter.

1. We have demonstrated by moral considerations the possibility for man to vivify organic matter—

2. We have next explained the theory of the experiments which would justify this new scientific pretension amidst our era of renovation.

3. We have subsequently shown to the intelligent how, why, and by what power it is possible to eliminate from human organisations the morbid causes destroying health, beauty, and longevity.

4. We have concluded by explaining the reason of the marvellous power of the Electro-Chymical Substance.

The Hermetic mystery, then, is not a fallacy, but a positive physico-chymical reality, placed and kept by the arrangement of Divine Providence within the limits of man's attainment. In the new state "men do greatly err, not knowing the Scriptures or the power of God." Of the advantages which the attainment confers, alchemy is the least in the estimation of the wise. The practice of the art is by a lengthy process, requiring scientific skill.

C. D. J. G.

I shall be glad if accomplished readers will communicate their ideas on the preceding document, of no mean importance in the eyes of

CRYPTONYMUS.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable particles, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these accumulations and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old and rich fabricators, 69, Fenchurch-lane, and 20, Harcourt-street, Chancery-lane, London. We are they practice their unique system of painless dentistry.

Reviews.

The Evergreen (Davenport, Iowa).

We are always delighted to receive this neat, well-written periodical, for as respects freshness and vitality it is "ever green," and full of the heart and life of Freemasonry. There is an "Editor," and an "associate Editor." The baton is wielded by Bro. T. S. Parvin, Grand Secretary of Iowa G.L., but better known as the Grand Recorder of the United States Knights Templar. His worthy associate is Bro. W. B. Langridge, Grand Secretary of the Grand Chapter of Iowa, and representative from the Grand Mark Lodge of England. Both these brethren are careful, discriminating writers, and they appear determined to do their part towards making The Evergreen the Organ of the Craft in their State. We have frequently noticed articles from their pens of more than average merit, and what adds to the interest of the publication is the fact that the Editors, though generally in agreement, do not hesitate to re-edit the thoughts of each other whenever friendly differences arise. Had we more space at our command we would certainly present a few extracts from the interesting issues now before us of August and September. Bro. Langridge writes a most appreciative article on "Hughan's Old Charges of British Freemasons," and as a "porch to the book itself (the Editor observes) and of great value and interest we have a preface by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford."

Bro. Langridge then notices the curious clause in the York MS. of A.D. 1693, respecting the admission of women, and considers that the fact of "Dame" being mentioned also in other MSS., "does not seem to agree with Bro. Hughan's theory" (namely, non-participation in the "mysteries" although received as members on the decease of their husbands, fathers, &c., with the privilege of carrying on the Trade). "Master and Dame" are placed together, as if the apprentice were equally under their authority, and bound to serve them both." All this we think may be true, and yet the women may not have been made Freemasons. Not one of the minute books of any ancient lodge has been discovered which contains even an allusion to females being present at the eoteric meetings of the Craft, and our belief is they never were. Bro. D. Murray Lyon, of Ayr, the popular Masonic historian, we know supports Bro. Hughan on this subject, and although we would be the last to dogmatize, it appears to us that to maintain otherwise would be in opposition to the known customs of the Fraternity for centuries.

Mackey's National Freemason. City of Washington, U.S.A.

Our excellent co-worker, Dr. A. G. Mackey, has just completed his first volume of the National Freemason, and we can truly say it surpasses all the Masonic magazines hitherto issued, for its racy articles, learned contributions, and general accuracy respecting the archæology, history, and laws of Freemasonry.

It is the most readable and valuable of all the many Masonic monthlies published in the United States; and the first volume contains more important information relative to the early customs and constitutions of the fraternity than can be met with in a dozen ordinary Masonic publications. The first number of the second volume came out in October, and we have much pleasure in reproducing the editor's introduction. We hope his most sanguine expectations will be realised, and if he obtains his deserts, we feel sure the learned doctor will have no reason to complain. It is our intention to reprint a few of the articles which appear in the National Freemason, whenever they are especially valuable; and are now reproducing Bro. Hughan's able article on Freemasonry at York. The following is the preface to the second volume:—

"When the promoter of fun in those amphitheatrical exhibitions which constitute the delight of the boys and the boy-like men of America first makes his appearance in the circle, he accompanies his advent with the cheerful, but perhaps unnecessary explanation of "Here I am!" Without in the slightest degree desiring to usurp the functions or compare ourselves in character to the genial spirit to whom we have adverted, we feel that in resuming our labours we, too, should at the commencement of our second volume announce our presence to our friends and patrons, as a token of our desire and willingness to cater in the future, as we have done in the past, for their amusement and instruction.

"Here then, we are! embarked on the second volume of the National Freemason, with the determination, if aided by prosperous gales, which means a goodly list of subscribers, to make a voyage which shall redound to the pleasure and profit of all who will venture on board of our Craft.

"If we give our patrons a second volume as good as was the first, we are sure they will be content with our bill of fare. For our part, we have no compunctions of conscience on account of the passage money that we have received. We really believe we have given the money's worth.

"That we are not singular in this opinion of the work may be judged from the commendations we are daily receiving. Just while we are writing the present article comes to us a letter from one of the most intelligent and best-read Masons of the West, who says to us, when sending his subscription for another year:—"I would as soon do without my dinner as miss your invaluable magazine. I consider it as decidedly the ablest Masonic magazine ever published. I devour every word of it as eagerly as a child does a sugar plum, and then long for more. The wonder to me is how you are able to go through the herculean labour of writing so many articles as you do."

"We could fill many pages with extracts like this from our pile of letters. But we abstain, and will let the Freemason speak for itself.

"And now we begin the second volume with a disposition to do as well, and an endeavour to do better. We think the present number is a fair specimen of what we intend to do. The article of Bro. Hughan, to which we specially invite attention, is itself worth all the money that will be paid for the whole number.

"From the same and from other sources we hope for future contributions that will continue to adorn and enrich our pages. We shall do our part. Will our friends and patrons do their part?"

"And, now, what is it that we ask them to do? Simply to interest themselves in the circulation of the National Freemason; to drop at their convenience a good word in our behalf, and with a very little labour, a very slight amount of trouble, for each one to secure us an additional subscriber. An effort successfully made in this direction by every one of our friends would soon double the list of our subscribers. And in that case we promise to—well, not to be ungrateful. We will not say what we will do, but we may assure our readers that they will find no room to reproach us at the close of the volume.

"Come, friends, therefore, to our assistance. Send us your clubs of ten or more at reduced rates, and where it is inconvenient or impossible to accomplish this much, send us what you can. The smallest favours will be accepted. We want to please you, and we want you to help us. Nelson, went going into battle, gave the signal to his fleet that, 'England expects every man to do his duty.' And in starting on our second year's voyage, we hoist as our signal, 'The National Freemason expects its friends to do their duty.'"

The proprietor of The Freemason, London, will send the above magazine, post free, for 15s. per annum, prepaid.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS' COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS will be found to be the most reliable remedies when winter checks, to a considerable extent, the natural exhalations of the skin, and an alternative is required to transfer them entirely from the body through some other channel. These Pills can be confidently recommended as the easiest, surest, and safest means of attaining this desirable end, without weakening the most delicate or incommencing the most feeble. When from frequent chills or impure air the blood becomes foul, and the secretions vitiated, these Pills present a ready and efficient means of cleansing the former, and correcting the latter. It may fairly be said of this celebrated medicine that it radically removes all corrupt and disorganising elements from the system.—Adv.

MASONIC MEETINGS IN TOWN HALLS.

We give the following lines willing insertion, as apart from their historical value in reference to an event said to have occurred in the far past; they singularly enough, in more than one leading point, remind us of the refusal within the last few weeks, as recorded in our Journal, of an Irish Board of Town Commissioners to rent their Assembly Hall for use as a Masonic lodge, and the uncouth and ungenerous manner in which the proposal of the brethren was received by some members of the Corporation in question on that occasion:—

In Bletherim Town in Ireland,
The Township Fathers all,
'Mongst other things met to decide
If they should rent their hall
At a sum for space, and fire, and light,
To be considered fair
To some brethren in attendance,
Of the plummet, rule, and square.
Three hundred years or more have pass'd,
Since this event occurred,
The place is now called Talkee,
And I've oft heard word for word
How these Masons were deputed,
Their case to fairly state,
And on that morn in all due form,
On the Township Fathers wait.
The Township Fathers all were met,
From breakfast freshly sped,
And ready for the day's debate,
By chosen chieftans led.
And some were high and some were low,
Some wise, and some lack'd sense,
As in assemblies still we see,
Of greater consequence.
The Chair that morn was taken,
By Milo, man of might,
With worthy Doctor Parkinson
Close by him on the right;
Close by the Chair the Doctor sat;
As V. C. at the end
Sat his noble son, the barrister,
The people's steadfast friend.
And all round about the table,
Themselves the others ranged,
That their views on township matters
Might there be interchanged.
That lamps at night they might not light,
Nor roads put in repair,
But in stuck-up pride the cock-horse ride,
O'er those who sent them there.

The deputation soon appear'd,
And then the talk began,
CHAIR said:—"To let them have the hall,
Would be a useful plan;
Some official's paltry salary
The Board could then augment,
Or poor men employ who find it hard
To live and pay their rent."
Outspoke the doctor like a man.
"Hard times," he said, "I fear
Are coming on, for aught we know,
They may be very near;
Let us like just representatives,
By right and truth abide,
And should want assail the township,
Have the Masons on our side."
"Think of our poor," the V.C. said,
"Think of the ills they bear,
As by chill misfortune broken
They sink down in despair;
And that Masons oft are foremost found,
Ere their last hopes give way,
Their wants and sufferings striving
To soften or allay."

Thereon another Father said
(Could I but learn his name,
Herein I'd place it on the roll
Of never-dying fame),
"In plain numerals or fractions
I can compute aright,
And I find the sum we're offer'd
Comes to sixteen bob a night."

Then said O'Rook, a man of wealth,
"For such a paltry sum
Must our mediæval Town Hall
A Masonic lodge become?
What signifies their rent to us,
Whose coffers all are filled,
Let them go elsewhere, and hire a house,
Or lease a plot and build."
"That here in friendship men should meet,
United hand and heart,
And of ev'ry creed and party!—
Why at the thought I start;
My royal ancestor of yore
Would not [this prank allow,
To it, as chip of of the old block,
I refuse my sanction now."
Uprose another orator,
Who said "I'll second dat;
Dis point I'll ne'er consent to yield
(Says Hardstuff—that's the chat),
Don't talk to me of saving, sir,
Is'nt de trick before my eyes,
Its far from my object here dis day,
Rates to economise."
Then his bristles bold uprearing,
And waxing wroth, he said,
"To speak my mind out freely
I was never yet afraid.
And my mind is, Mister Chairman,
Dat deese Freemasons all,
Should peg slick off, for here 'gainst me
Demselves dey shan't instal."
So did this vain and angry man
Of shoemaking renown,
Grasping at higher fame, aspire
To dictate to the town,
But fame his grasp eluded, for
On hearing his tirade,
Ne sutor ultra crepidam,
Was what most people said.
Then the Chairman put the question,
Which was one, he said, to try,
"Should they to the Masons rent their hall,
Or let it useless lie."
But in dividing 'twas found out
That "Orrell" had turned coat,
And clink went the resolution,
Lost by a single vote.
And so the faction triumphed,
The Hall would not be let;
Dissensions were created, which
All good men should regret.
But such quarrels now we seldom see,
For, as I've said before,
This thing took place long, long ago,
Three hundred years, or more.

B.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

CEREMONY OF LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF THE EARL HOWE MEMORIAL CHURCH.

The annual general communication of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on the 14th instant, under the auspices of the John of Gaunt Lodge, No. 523.

The meeting was summoned for the transaction of the general business of the Province, and also for the purpose of laying, with Masonic honours, the foundation stone of a new church, to be erected as a memorial to that honoured and beloved nobleman and worthy Mason, the late Earl Howe.

The attendance of P.G. Officers, visitors, and other brethren, was very large. Amongst the members present were—The R.W. Bro. William Kelly, F.R.H.S., Provincial Grand Master; the W. Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, D.P.G.M.; Bros. Sir H. St. John Halford, Bart., P.S.G.W.; Revs. J. Denton, J. Spittal, W. Langley, and Bro. L. A. Clarke, P. Prov. S.G. Works; H. Deane, P.J.G.W.; the Revs. J. F. Halford and P. H. Phelps, P.G. Chaplains; the Rev. Dr. Haycroft, P. Prov. G.C.; William B. Smith, P.G. Treasurer; Albert Pell, M.P., P.G. Registrar; C. Stretton and G. Toller, jun., P. Prov. G. Registrars; S.

S. Partridge, P.G. Secretary; J. C. Duncombe, P. J. G. D.; J. M. Allister, P.G. Superintendent of Works; J. J. Fast, P. Prov. G. S. of Works; J. Hunt, P. Prov. G. A. D. C.; C. P. Newcome, P. G. S. B.; C. Johnson, P. Prov. G. S. W. Jersey, P. Prov. G. O.; E. J. Crow, P. Prov. G. O.; F. J. Baines, P. G. Purst.; J. F. Bright, P. Prov. G. Purst.; E. Mace and P. P. Goodchild, P. G. Stewards. The list of visitors included Bros. Samuel Inns, D. P. G. M. Norths and Hunts, F. Binckes, Grand Stewards Lodge, Sec. R. M. I. B.; Rev. C. Stopford, P. G. Chaplain Norths and Hunts, J. Denton P. Prov. Purst. West Yorks, and many others.

The John of Gaunt Lodge was opened at 10 a.m., after which the R. W. Provincial Grand Master and the Provincial Grand Lodge were received in due form, and the Prov. G. M. was saluted with the customary honours.

Bro. Inns, the D. P. G. M. for Norths and Hunts, was received and saluted.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened, the roll of lodges and roll of P. G. Officers called, and the minutes of the last annual meeting and of two subsequent lodges of emergency were read and confirmed, after which the report of the Committee of General Purposes was submitted and adopted.

The report, besides referring to the very satisfactory state of the Grand Treasurers account and congratulating the P. G. Lodge upon the prosperous condition of the several lodges under its control, contained a review of the principal events connected with Freemasonry in the Province during the past year, prominent amongst which were the installation of Bro. the Earl of Ferrers as D. P. G. M. in February last, and the establishment of the Commercial Lodge at Leicester, now in a most flourishing state, under the leadership of a most zealous W. M., and possessing an efficient staff of officers. Reference was also made to the loss the Province had sustained by the deaths of two members of the P. G. Lodge: Bro. Williams G. Palmer, Senior P. Prov. G. S. W. one of the oldest Masons in the Province; and Bro. R. W. Widdowson Prov. G. Purst., a young Mason of great promise.

The lodge was then adjourned, and at noon the brethren went in procession to St. George's Church, where Divine service was held.

A most able and eloquent sermon was preached by the Right Rev. Bro. the Lord Bishop of Peterborough, in the course of which he made a most gracious allusion to the memory of the late Earl Howe, and to the great loss Churchmen and others had sustained by his death.

At the close of the sermon the Masonic procession was reformed, and, followed by a procession of the Bishop and the Clergy of the district, proceeded to the site of the Memorial Church.

The Old Hundredth Psalm having been sung and an appropriate service conducted by the Vicar of St. George's, the Provincial Grand Master addressed the spectators according to ancient custom, and the foundation stone was laid with full Masonic honours, the ceremony being completed by H. L. Powys Keck, Esquire, who, after striking the stone three times with the mallet, declared it to be laid in proper form.

Mr. Keck then said he should not detain them long, but he wished to say a few words on the occasion which had brought them together; and he must first express his thanks to the honourable Craft of Freemasons for having permitted him to lay that stone, although uninitiated in the mysteries of their Craft. He was glad the stone was laid with proper Masonic ceremonies, as no doubt it would have been the wish of the nobleman whom they had met that day to commemorate. They had met to give practical effect to the wish which had been so long prevalent in this town and country, to erect a substantial, and he hoped a beautiful memorial to the memory of the late revered, and honoured, and beloved Earl Howe. He trusted that it needed no word of his to recall him to their memories, or to bring to mind the kind heart, and willing and generous hand, and liberal spirit, and warm sympathy with everything that affected the well-being both of this town and county, both those qualities would be all present with them on this occasion. Nor did it require words of his to recall in this town the high respect and gratitude, and esteem, and love, in which that name was held for years. It had been a great pleasure to him to lay that stone, and he trusted that the work which they had begun would go on, and that it might be a worthy memorial of the nobleman who had been so long and highly esteemed among them.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the Masonic and clerical processions were reformed, the former returning to Freemasons' Hall, when the business of the lodge was resumed.

Bro. W. B. Smith was unanimously re-elected Treasurer.

The R. W. Provincial Grand Master then addressed the brethren at considerable length, announcing his intention of resigning his office early next year, on the completion of the third year of his rule over the Province, and, after reviewing the principal events of his long and active Masonic career, concluded by thanking the brethren for the great courtesy and kindness he had invariably received from every brother in the province, and assuring them that although their official connection might be severed, his heart would still be, as it had ever been, in Masonry, and that such service as might be in his power to render would at all times be readily accorded, not only to his successor in the chair of Prov. G. M., but wherever they might be required in any of the private lodges in the province over which he had felt so much pride and pleasure in presiding.

The address was listened to with the greatest attention, and the intimation of the intended resignation of the esteemed Prov. G. M. was received with expressions of profound regret, which was increased by the fact that one of the chief causes of his retirement was that of failing health.

The D. Prov. G. M., the Right Hon. Earl Ferrers, said that he was sure every one present on that occasion would concur with him in expressing the regret he felt at the announcement they had just heard. The retirement of Bro. Kelly would be felt to be a most serious loss, the flourishing state of Masonry in the province and the great progress made being mainly due to the untiring exertions of their worthy Prov. G. M.

The report of the Committee of General Purposes, recommending that a stained glass window be placed in the intended new church, as a Masonic memorial to the late Earl Howe, P. Prov. G. M., was then discussed, and it was resolved that the recommendation of the Committee be adopted, and that the question as to the design, &c., of the proposed window be referred back to the Committee for further consideration, the brethren expressing a hope that the memorial would be one worthy of the province.

The Prov. G. M., referring to the resignation of the Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. G. Toller, jun., P. Prov. G. Reg., moved that the best thanks of the lodge be given to him for his zealous and highly efficient and valuable services during the past three years, and that as a slight recognition of those services a sum of money be voted from the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge for the purchase of a suitable testimonial for presentation to Bro. Toller. The motion was seconded, by Bro. the Rev. Wm. Langley, P. Prov. S. G. W., and carried unanimously.

Bro. Toller said he was entirely unprepared for the very handsome compliment paid to him, and felt somewhat at a loss for a suitable expression of his thanks for their kindness. He resigned the office with regret, as he had always received the greatest consideration at the hands of all with whom his official duties had brought him into communication, and for that consideration, and also for the honour they had conferred upon him in passing the foregoing resolution, he tendered his most sincere thanks.

The sum of ten guineas was voted as a donation to the fund now being raised by St. John's Lodge, No. 279, for the purpose of purchasing the admission into the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys of one of the sons of a deceased member of that lodge.

The R. W. P. G. M. then appointed and invested his officers, as follows:—

J. J. Fast, P. M. 1130 Prov. S. G. W.
C. Stretton, P. M. 279 Prov. J. G. W.

Rev. P. H. Phelp, W. M. 50 Prov. G. Chaplain.
Rev. W. T. Fry, S. D. 523 Prov. G. Chaplain.
J. H. Douglass, Sec. 1330 Prov. G. Registrar.
W. B. Smith, P. M. 523 ... Prov. G. Treasurer.
S. S. Partridge, J. W. 523 Prov. G. Secretary.
E. J. Crow, W. M. 279 ... Prov. G. S. D.
E. Ison, W. M. 779 Prov. G. J. D.
T. Barnard, 1130 Prov. G. S. of W.
J. B. Hall, W. M. 1391 ... Prov. G. D. of C.
J. Halford, J. W. 1391 ... Prov. G. A. D. C.
Capt. H. B. Burnaby, P. M.
1007 Prov. G. Swd. B.
W. T. Rowlett, J. D. 523 Prov. G. Organist.
F. Amatt, Sec. 1007 Prov. G. Purst.
F. Kemp, S. W. 1330 Prov. G. Asst. Purst.
T. G. Bennett, S. W. 1265 Prov. G. Stand. B.
J. W. Smith, 279 Prov. G. Steward.
J. T. Thorp, 523 " " "
S. E. Johnson, 779 " " "
J. M. Kew, 1265 " " "
F. Grant, M. D., 1330 " " "
G. Clifton, M. D., 1391 ... " " "
Charles Bembridge Prov. G. Tyler.
Thomas Dunn " " "

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, and the Provincial Grand Master and his officers retired, after which the Craft Lodge was closed.

On the conclusion of the business the brethren sat down to a most excellent banquet, which had been provided under the superintendence of the Stewards, whose efforts gave the greatest satisfaction. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and in the intervals between the speeches the proceedings were enlivened by the singing of Bros. Rowlett, P. G. Organist, Crow, P. Prov. G. Org., Wykes, Tebbutt, Atwood, Taylor, and others, and also by the instrumental performances of Bros. Rowlett, Wykes, and Crow, on the oboe, bassoon, and pianoforte.

MARK MASONRY IN LANCASHIRE.

The rapid strides which Mark Masonry is making in Lancashire, especially, and in the North of England generally, is something to be wondered at. During a period of a little over two years, say two years and a half, no fewer than ten Mark Lodges have been opened in the County Palatine, besides the resuscitation of some two or three lodges which had been lying almost dormant for some time. During that time, the Provincial Grand Lodge has been established, and that, in its turn, has been instrumental in assisting at the formation and constitution of two other Provincial Grand Lodges, those of the West Riding of Yorkshire, with Bro. Thomas Perkington at its head; and Cumberland and Westmoreland, with Bro. the Earl Bective as its head. And very shortly we may expect to see (for we suppose such is the case) the Provincial Grand Lodge of Lancashire once more exercise the functions of Grand Lodge, in assisting at the forming and constituting a Provincial Grand Lodge for Cheshire. These results cannot but be gratifying to all who have the prosperity of the degree at heart. On Tuesday the number of Lancashire lodges was increased by the opening of the Starkie Lodge, No. 159, at the Red Lion Hotel, Accrington. The meeting was held under a dispensation from the Prov. G. M., Bro. Callender, pending the arrangements for the consecration and inauguration of the lodge, to enable a sufficient number of candidates to be advanced to the degree, so as to be able to take part in the above-named ceremonies. Bro. Thomas Hargreaves, P. M. 113, J. G. D., occupied the chair temporarily, and was supported by the officers of the Blair Mark Lodge, 113. After the lodge had been opened, and the dispensation read, Bro. Thomas Hindle, the W. M. designate, proposed, and Bro. John Royston, the J. W. designate, seconded, a number of brethren as joining members, and for advancement. Twelve of the brethren being present, eight were affiliated as Mark Masters, under the English Constitution, and four were advanced to the degree by the W. M., Bro. Thomas Hargreaves. The lodge was afterwards closed, when the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and a pleasant evening was spent. Bro. Hargreaves, in responding for the Grand Officers, gave a very interesting history of Grand Mark Lodge from its formation.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance. The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains. The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.) All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C. The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

W. J. P.—We have no books containing the working of a R. A. Chapter. The two books you refer to are American, therefore would be of no assistance to you. The following reports are unavoidably left over:—Lodges 63, 215, 890, 1365; Chapter 1045; Mark Lodges 86, 136, 159.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

BIRTHS.

BROADBRIDGE.—Nov. 14th, at Hazelwood Villa, Great Crosby, near Liverpool, the wife of Bro. George Broadbridge, P. Prov. G.D.C., W.L., of a son.

Public Amusements.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday Evening, November 30th, and during the week, Wednesday excepted, FATAL CURIOSITY. Mortimer, Mr. J. H. Allen; Wilford, Miss Henderson; Winterton, Mr. Dudley; Fitzharding, Mr. Sidney; Rawbold, Mr. Power; Samson, Mr. Fawn; Orson, Mr. Rainbow; Helen, Miss Allen; Judith, Mrs. C. T. Burleigh; Blanche, Miss Bramah; Barbara, Miss Rainbow. To conclude with THE FIREMAN. Frederick, Mr. Allen; Mrs. Weatherby, Mrs. Allen; Ananias Stubbs, Mr. Rainbow; Cincinnatus Tom, Mr. J. Fawn; Press, Mr. Sidney; Alice, Miss Henderson; Mrs. Waddletongue, Mrs. Burleigh; Lucetia, Miss Allen. On Wednesday, for the benefit of Mr. James Mace, THE CARPENTER OF ROUEN. After which James Mace will appear in his Grecian Statues. To conclude with GOOD FOR NOTHING. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday November 30, and during the week, HENRY DUNBAR. Henry Dunbar, Mr. C. Sennett; Clement Austin, Mr. Evans; Arthur Lovell, Mr. Lacy; Henry Carter, Mr. Bousfield; The Major, Mr. Shepherd; Lenams, Mr. Roberts; Baldwin, Mr. Leigh; Margaret, Miss M. Cooper; Lama, Miss Hastings; Mary, Miss Furren. To conclude with THE TICKET OF LEAVE MAN. Bob Brierly, Mr. C. Sennett; Jem Dalton, Mr. F. Shepherd; Hawkshaw, Mr. C. T. Burleigh; Melter Moss, Mr. Leigh; Green Jones, Mr. Haspeth; Mr. Gibson, Mr. Lacey; Sam, Miss Keridge; May Edwards, Miss M. Cooper; Emily, Miss Hayes; Mrs. Willoughby, Mrs. Stephenson. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George B. Khan, assisted by Misses Alice Barth and Florence Hunter. COAL AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell; and many other Entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Chimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Raidway King"; and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 0d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.
Week commencing December 2.

- ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee B. O. Baker. Italian Operas.
- ROYAL AMBLESIDE THEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. "Haunted Houses."
- PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee Mr. Seton Perry. "Le Petit Faust."
- THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Frece. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Carnival Carnival."
- ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Performances by the Slave Troupe.
- CIRQUE, William Brown-street.—Now Closed, but will be re-opened in a few weeks for Holden's Marionettes.
- NEWSOME'S CIRQUE, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome.
- NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager Bro. Saunders. Miscellaneous Entertainment by a talented Company.
- TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Anderson and Family.—World of Magic.
- QUEEN'S HALL.—Gillart's Great American Panorama.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1872.

THE HUMOURS OF THE ELECTION.

Now that the hurly-burly is over and Bro. Wentworth Little has been elected by an overwhelming majority to the Secretaryship of the Masonic Girls' School; we may review a few of the comicalities which the recent contest has brought to light. First however let us congratulate the Province of Middlesex and its Grand Master upon the gallant way in which they have made their strength and influence felt. The members of that Province, with one inglorious exception (Et tu Brute!) have rallied round their Grand Secretary gallantly, and none of Bro. Little's numerous friends have been more indefatigable in their exertions than those who, having cast in their lot with Middlesex, were resolute upon backing up its chief administrative officer. It is this esprit de corps, this honourable devotion to the flag, which makes all organizations strong; and the Grand Officers of Middlesex (all but "one of the twelve"), and the members of their Lodges have the satisfaction of knowing to-day that as a collateral advantage to "putting the best man in," they have, by their unity of purpose and loyalty to themselves and to each other, lifted their Province into the first rank, by consolidating and exhibiting its cohesiveness, importance, and power. An event like Bro. Little's election does more to dissipate any atmosphere of newness which may linger round a recently created Province, and to give the latter maturity and influence than a half-century of still life. Middlesex is no longer new.

It is a remarkable fact that during the recent agitation Bro. Little's friends have been the only people who avowed openly a definite purpose. Everybody else has been too full of abstract virtue to admit that they had opinions, or wishes, or ideas respecting candidates for this Secretaryship. Who can fail to sympathise with the difficulty many excellent people have experienced in distinguishing the hare from the hounds? Who will refuse their thanks for the amusement this uncertainty has afforded? Always shout with the crowd, remarked Mr. Pickwick at another election. "But if there are two crowds!" asked his poetic follower. "Then shout with the largest," was the reply, and the historian adds, volumes could not say more. It was before the relative sizes of the two crowds had been ascertained; that many ingenious minds were most severely exercised. Others had such a keen regard for the welfare of the Institution and the rights of man, that they proudly avowed themselves unfettered to the last. The Admirable Crichton might turn up as a candidate, and then where would their consciences be if they had promised their vote? Moreover, the delicious sense of self importance to be acquired and retained by enveloping your intentions and opinions in mystery is a distinct addition to human pleasures, to say nothing of the stony dignity involved in playing the Sphinx. The people who pronounce it "bad taste," "to run to win;" the people who maunder about its being "cruel" to strike a decisive blow, and "kind" and "humane" to play with a rival as a cat does with a mouse, to encourage his struggles and swell his expenses with the fore-knowledge that you will beat him, and that mortification will be his only reward; the people who are all for "principle," and who would not have a personal predilection for the world:—all these have played their parts with much unconscious humour. The beaming brother who, out of sheer kindness of heart, or the infirmity which besets some noble minds, promises two people at once and who conceals his real wishes so skilfully that his hidden advocacy takes the form of public hostility, is a distinct, though not new variety. "Mr. Facing-Both-Ways" is as old as the Pilgrim's Progress, and human nature has not altered materially since Bunyan's day. The only marvel is that a bluff and knowing man of the world could be found to play the ostrich with his head in the sand for the general amusement, and in the innocent belief that his underhand proceedings were not fully appreciated and understood, and made merry over by those it was intended to hoodwink and cajole. If we imagine an amateur and self-appointed "Man in the Moon," who endeavours to arrange matters sub rosa, and who takes infinite trouble to play the unauthorised wire-puller and go-between; brethren who pronounce ex cathedra upon acts and policy which are not submitted to them, in the bland belief that their opinion possesses some inherent value because it is theirs; and brethren who fear the Masonic world will come to an end because the all but invincible pettiness of their own clique has been broken up and routed, we shall have grouped together the most grotesque of the unconscious comedians who have figured in this amazing play. The nine days wonder is over, but its lessons will last, and now that Bro. Wentworth Little is secure in the saddle, the chief matter for astonishment is that his paramount claims and superior fitness did not place him there by acclamation; and without the necessity for the bold front and determined tactics by which his supporters have led him on to victory.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The following is the agenda of the business to be transacted at the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, on Wednesday, 4th December, 1872:—

1. The Minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 4th September, 1872, for confirmation.
2. Nomination of a Grand Master for the ensuing year.
3. The M.W. Grand Master will move an Address of Condolence to the Grand Lodge of Sweden on the lamented decease of its late Grand Master, His Majesty Charles the 15th.
4. The M.W. Grand Master will move that the thanks of Grand Lodge be offered to the V.W. Brother John Llewellyn Evans for the valuable services he has rendered to the Craft while presiding over the Board of General Purposes during the last ten years.
5. Appointment of a President of the Lodge of Benevolence.
6. Election of a Senior and Junior Vice-President of the Lodge of Benevolence.
7. Election of twelve Past Masters to serve on the Lodge of Benevolence for the year ensuing.
8. Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz.:—

Brother H. M., of the Bedford Lodge, No. 157, London, £50.

The widow of the late Brother J. S. K., of the Adams Lodge, No. 158, Sheerness, £100.

9. Report of the Board of General Purposes. To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes beg to submit a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last Meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 15th day of November instant, shewing a balance in the of the Grand Treasurer of £3,496 11s., and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for Petty Cash, £75.

(Signed) HORACE LLOYD, President.

18. Proposed Motions.

By Bro. J. Rankin Stebbing, P.G.D.

1.—That it shall be competent for any Lodge to declare that any one of its members has ceased to be a subscribing member, providing the following rules be strictly observed:—

That a proposition to that effect be handed to the W. Master or Secretary, in writing, signed by any member of the Lodge, at least fourteen days before the then next regular meeting of the Lodge.

That notice is given to the member to whom it refers, by a registered letter, that such a proposition has been made, and which letter shall contain also his regular Lodge summons.

That notice is also given in the summonses for the next regular Lodge that it will be proposed to remove a brother from the list of members at that meeting.

That a ballot shall take place on the proposition being read in open Lodge, and if there shall appear to be a majority of two-thirds of those present in favour of the same, the W. Master or brother presiding shall declare the same to be carried; and on the confirmation of minutes of proceeding at the next regular Lodge, so far as relates to the said proposition, the brother shall cease to be a member of the Lodge accordingly.

By Bro. Francis Bennoch, P.M., No. 1.

2.—That the question of the propriety of reducing the rent of Tavern be referred to the Board of General Purposes to consider and determine.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

CHIPPING SODBURY.—Tyndall Lodge (No. 1363).—On Wednesday, the 20th inst., the annual banquet and installation of W.M. of this lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Chipping Sodbury. Bro. Samuel Davis, S.W., was the W.M. elect, and the installation ceremony was performed by the W.M., Bro. G. Rennie Powell, P. G.P. Glo., assisted by Bros. C. Partridge, P.M., P. Prov. G.J.W. Glo.; Osborne Dauncey, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D. Glo.; Benham, P.M., P. Prov. G.D.D. Bristol; Compton, P.M., P. Prov. G.D. C. Bristol; H. Bennett, P.M., P.G.S.B. Glo.; and Hazard, P.M., in the presence of upwards of 40 brethren, among whom were many visitors from Bristol. The following brethren were then appointed to office by Bro. Samuel Davis, W.M. I.P.M.; Bro. G. R. Powell; S.W., Bro. F. J. Vizard; J.W., Bro. J. D. B. Trenfield; Treasurer, Bro. J. Trenfield; Steward, Bro. Wincombe Henry Howard Hartley; Secretary, Bro. Daniel Besley; S.D., Bro. Bush; J.D., Bro. E. O. Limbrick; Organist, Bro. Hes; D.C., Bro. W. Taylor; I.G. Bro. J. C. Wallop; Tyler, Bro. Holliday. The brethren then went in procession to the George Hotel, where they sat down, to the number of between 40 and 50, to a most recherché repast, under the presidency of Bro. Samuel Davis, W.M. After the dinner, which was amply served by Bro. Higgs, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and drunk with great enthusiasm. The health of the "The Officers of the Grand Lodge of Gloucestershire," was responded to by Bro. C. Partridge. "The W.M. of 1363" was received with much enthusiasm, as was also that of "The W.M.'s and brethren of the other Lodges of the Province," proposed by Bro. J. Trenfield, and responded to by Bro. Bennett, P.M. No. 270. "The Visiting Brethren" was proposed by Bro. Taylor, and responded to by Bro. Benham, P. Prov. G.D.C. Bristol. The toast of "The Immediate P.M." (Bro. Rennie Powell) was proposed by Bro. H. H. Hartley, and that of "The Officers of the Tyndall Lodge" by Bro. Compton. "The health of the Lord of the Manor" (Bro. H. H. Hartley) and of "The Balif Burgesses of Chipping Sodbury" (coupled with the name of Bro. J. Trenfield) having been proposed and responded to, the final toast of the evening brought the proceedings to a close.

LANCASHIRE (WEST.)

WAVERTREE.—Duke of Edinburgh Lodge (No. 1182).—The usual monthly meeting of the brethren connected with this lodge was held on Wednesday afternoon, the 20th inst., at the Coffee House, Wavertree, and as the after proceedings were of more than ordinary interest there was a large gathering of members and visitors. Bro. W. Pughe, W.M., opened the lodge shortly after five o'clock, supported by Bros. P. R. Thorne, I.P.M.; Williams, S.W.; Edginton, J.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. G. Bales, Sec.; and R. Martin, jun., S.D.; amongst the visitors were Bros. P.M. Larsen, P.M. 594; Sargent, P.M. 594; J. Scott, P.M. 594; and H. Pearson, P.M. 249. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, Mr. Ellison, being in attendance, was duly prepared and admitted into the Order. About thirty brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent repast, and during the evening Bro. Pughe, W.M. presented in most fitting terms a very handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Thorne, I.P.M., in recognition of his services during his long connection with the lodge, and especially during his year of office. Bro. Thorne acknowledged the gift in an eloquent speech, and remarked that the true brotherly feeling which had been shown towards him would never be forgotten, but would incite him still more to the faithful discharge of his Masonic duties. After spending an exceedingly pleasant evening the brethren separated at an early hour.

MIDDLESEX.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—The usual monthly meeting of this young and prosperous lodge was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion Square, Thames Street, Hampton, on Thursday, 21st inst. At the appointed hour, one o'clock pm., the lodge was opened by Bro. S. Wickens, I.P.M. and Treasurer; Bro. F. Walters P.M., Sec., as S.W.; H. A. Dubois, J.W.; W. Hammond, P.M., S.D.; and some dozen others being present. The minutes of the meeting of October 17th were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Bros. W. H. Cox, 87, and George Black, 840, as joining members. Messrs. Harry Thomas, Joseph Rose Thompson, Joseph Thompson, Henry Goodman, Charles Heitzmann, Thomas Walkley, Alfred William Dray, Edward Fielding, and William Partridge, as candidates for initiation. The heavy agenda paper of business was relieved by the presiding officer passing Bros. W. H. Dye, and G. Arnold, to the second degree, raising Bros. J. Symes; and W. Mocks (1275) to the third degree, and initiating Messrs. T. Walkley and A. W. Dray into Freemasonry. Immediately the lodge was opened the dispensation was read which granted permission for seven candidates to be initiated if they attended, that number having been at previous lodge unanimously elected. Bro. S. Wickens, I.P.M. and Treasurer, having conferred the ceremonies on all the candidates who were present, called the lodge off from labour to refreshment, awaiting the arrival of the next train due from London. Only a few minutes elapsed before it came, and by it arrived a large number of the brethren. Bro. John Thomas Moss, P.G.S.D. Middlesex, W.M., having arrived, took the Chair. He initiated Messrs. Harry Thomas, J. R. Thompson, Joseph Thompson, Charles Heitzmann, and Henry Goodwin into the secrets and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. It is needless to add that with two such experienced Past Masters who presided that the work was well and ably done. On the proposition of the indefatigable Secretary, Bro. F. Walters, P.M., and seconded by the Treasurer Bro. S. Wickens, P.M., it was unanimously resolved that the W.M., Bro. John Thomas Moss, P.G.S.D., Middlesex be elected the Steward to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Benevolent Institution, to be held on Wednesday, January the 29th, 1873. When the W.M., arose to acknowledge this vote he received quite an ovation. He in a feeling good speech thanked the brethren for this mark of their approbation. He assured them he should do all in his power to support the charity and the lodge he represented. He trusted every member would subscribe to the charity, so that he might have a good list. He alluded in forcible terms to the approaching elections of the Secretaryships of the two Masonic Charities, and urged all who had votes to attend, expressing hopes to see Bros. J. Terry and R. Wentworth Little, as the successful candidates. He intended, should their Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro R. Wentworth Little, get elected as the Secretary of the Girls' School, to serve as Steward to represent the lodge at the next festival, which would be held in May, 1873, and he anticipated seeing a large number of Stewards on that occasion. He hoped to secure the services of at least a dozen of the members as Stewards on that occasion. He intended the Lebanon Lodge to rally round their Provincial Grand Secretary if he were elected to that important position. He anticipated being able to state at next lodge meeting that their P.G. Sec. was successful. He felt sanguine about it. The usual large number of propositions were then received. Finding so much work to do and so many anxious to be initiated, it was unanimously resolved to have an emergency meeting on December 18th, at one o'clock p.m. The vacancy caused by the lamented death of Bro. Joseph Catchpole, J.D., was filled by promoting Bro. J. W. Jackson, I.G., to J.D., and Bro. E. Gilbert, I.G. Some other business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed. There were present, besides those already named, Bros. H. Gloster, J. W. Baldwin, G. Reynolds, H. Cutress, T. Clarke, E. Gilbert, R. Lawrence, E. H. Thiellay, J. Wells, E. Hopwood, P.M.; W. H. Hawkes, W. Lyons, G. E. Wood, W. P. Saunders, J. Hayward, and many others. The large list of visitors included—Bros. W. Smeed, P.G.J.W. Middlesex; E. W. Mackney, W.M. 134; S. Homewood, W.M. 749; W. J. Laing, P.M. 45; E. Triptree, 13; H. Barrett, 244; E. Mallett, I.G. 141; R. T. Elsam, S.W. and W.M. Elect 889; S. Brown, 780, and others. The lodge room having been, since the last meeting, enlarged, from the designs of the eminent architect, Bro. R. T. Elsam, and carried out under his superintendence, by Bro. H. Cutress, was approved of by all present. Great credit is due to both of those brethren; the architect, for so skillfully arranging the plans, and the builder for so promptly and successfully carrying out the designs. The new room was well filled, and the banquet, as usual here, was first-class. Every one seemed to enjoy himself. The brethren separated early. Bro. R. Lawrence, the energetic young landlord, by his careful attention to the wants of all, pleased and made comfortable all who were present.

NORTHUMBERLAND.

ALNWICK.—Alnwick Lodge (No. 1267).—A most successful meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, in the ancient town of Alnwick, on Wednesday, the 6th instant, on the occasion of Bro. Edward Thew Turnbull, S.W. and Treasurer, being installed as W.M. of 1167. The Installing Officer was Bro. W. Davidson, P.M., P.G.J.D. Northumberland, whose rendering of the beautiful ceremony was most effective. Bro. Turnbull invested his officers as follows:—Bro. Blair, I.P.M.; Bro. G. W. Bushby, S.W.; Bro. H. Heatley, J.W.; Bro. Rev. George Selby Thompson, Vicar of Aeklington, M.A., Chaplain; Bro. J. W. Bowey, Treasurer; Bro. A. Robertson, Secretary; Bro. J. Davidson, S.D.; Bro. George Simpson, J.D.; Bro. Edward Allen, I.G.; Bro. W. Walters, Tyler; Bros. Johnson and Hall, Stewards. After the appointment of Committees, the proposition of a brother as joining member, of an applicant for initiation, and other business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Queen's Head, where a most sumptuous banquet was prepared and done justice to. The Worshipful Master was also supported on his right and left by his worthy Chaplain, the esteemed installing officer, Bro. Rev. E. L. Marrett, P.C. 1167, and P. Prov. G.C. Northumberland; Past Masters Blair, Burn, Heatley, Biggs, and others. The vice-chairs were suitably filled by the S. and J. Wardens. One of the most agreeable and harmonious evenings was spent, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts being succeeded by exquisite singing by various members. The Rev. Chaplain, in a telling speech, proposed "The Prov. Grand Master of Northumberland, Earl Percy," who is also a P.M. of Alnwick Lodge, and gladdened the hearts of all present, by assuring them that he had only recently heard of his lordship's health being almost fully re-established. This was followed by a burst of cheering and Masonic honours; then the stirring notes of "Chevy Chase," and "The Campbells are coming," rang from the Northumberland pipes of Bro. Mulvaney, a master of the art. The Installing Officer, in proposing the health of the W.M., congratulated the lodge on its selection, and paid a high compliment to the officers of the lodge for their careful working, &c.

STAFFORDSHIRE.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Lodge of Honour (No. 526).—Friday, the 8th November, A.L. 5872, will be remembered as a red letter day in the annals of this lodge, as then the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, P.G.M. Staffordshire, was installed as W.M. for the ensuing twelve months, and until a successor shall be appointed and installed in his stead. The lodge on this occasion was held in the News-room of the Exchange, it being anticipated that the popular character and truly Masonic bearing of the noble Lord, would attract a much more numerous concourse than could conveniently be accommodated in the regular lodge room, an expectation which was amply realized, for on the opening of the lodge a few minutes after 3, it was at once seen that careful management would be required to enable the different parts of the ceremonies to be performed with the proper effect. The chair was taken by the W. Bro. G. S. Tudor, W.M. and D.P.G.M. of the province, who went through the whole of the work in a most admirable and effective manner, that left nothing to be desired. The Board of Installed Masters was one of the largest ever seen in this province, there being no fewer than thirty-two present. After the new W.M. had been placed in the chair of K.S., the Board of I.Ms. declared closed, and the lodge regularly worked down to the first degree, the officers for the current year were invested by the W.M. as follows:—Bros. G. Higham, S.W.; Steen, J.W.; Rev. J. H. Key, Chaplain; C. A. Newnham, Treasurer; J. H. Love, Secretary; A. S. Hill, Q.C., M.P., S.D.; W. Y. Brevitt, J.D.; H. Cope, I.G.; Colenzo, Tyler. The Treasurer, in presenting his annual report, made the gratifying announcement that after discharging all liabilities, a handsome surplus was in hand, and likewise that there were no arrears, every subscription being paid up, an announcement we are sorry to say not heard so often as it ought to be in lodges which we have been called on to report. The labours of the day being over, the lodge adjourned for refreshment to the large room at the Swan Hotel, where a banquet, comprising the delicacies of the season, was laid before the brethren. A most enjoyable evening was passed, a feast of reason and a flow of soul, the party breaking up directly after 9, thus practically obeying the ancient charge "to consult your health by not continuing together too late or too long from home after lodge hours are past." Among the brethren present, were—Bro. G. S. Tudor, D.P.G.M.; C. A. Newnham, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Kitson, P. Prov. G.R.; F. Turton, P.S.G.D.; H. Lewis, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Foster Gough, P.D.P.G.M.; W. Flewker, C. Matthews, P. Prov. J.G.W.; B. Hicklin, P. Prov. G. D.; and Rev. J. H. Iles, P. Prov. G.C., all P.M.s of 526; also, Bro. John Stone, 726; J. Dales Hewson, 726; George Baldwin, 280 and 560, P.G.R.

Worcestershire; William Dallow, 419 and 601; S. J. Fellows, 419; C. H. King, P. Prov. S.G.D. 419; Thomas Whittles, 966; John Bodenham, 726; Arthur Britton, 419, 601; H. Sheppard, 601; E. Bagaley, 419; W. Maskew, 98, 637, P. Prov. G.S. of Works; F. K. Ryles, 98, P.G.P.; H. Wodehouse, 726, P.G.S. of Works; T. Stanford, 347, and others. Most of the above mentioned brethren are members of P.G.L., but we are not able in all cases to give them their proper rank, they themselves not having entered it in the Tyler's book.

YORKSHIRE (WEST).

BRADFORD.—Harmony Lodge (No. 600).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 21st inst., at the Masonic Hall, Salem-street; Bro. C. F. Unna, W.M., in the chair, when Bro. Captain Mackintosh, P.M. Caledonian, 134, was elected a joining member, and Mr. Bernard Nathan was initiated. There was a large attendance of the brethren of this flourishing lodge, as well as visiting brethren, the W.Ms. and brethren of the lodges of Hope, 302, and Pentalpha, 974, having received invitations to pay an official visit. The W.M. went through the entire working in a most impressive and telling manner. After the completion of business, the W.M. invited all the brethren, numbering over 50, to adjourn into the refreshment room to supper, over which he presided, supported on his right by Bros. Will. W. Barlow, W.M. Hope, 302; M. Rhodes, P.M. 302; J. A. Unna, P.M. 600, P. Prov. G.R.; C. H. Taylor, P.M. 302; S. O. Bailey, P.M. 600, P. Prov. G. S. of W.; Captain Mackintosh, P.M. Caledonian, 134; Isidor Ahrens, P.M. 600; Thomas Peel, P.M. 600; J. Beanland, P.M. 600; J. Dewhurst, P.M. 600; and on his left by W. Wright, P.M. 600; J. J. Schaeppi, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.S.D.; J. Leeson, P.M. 974; J. Johnson, P.M. 600; J. Goldstein, P.M. 600; John Ambler, P.S.W. 302, W.M. elect of Pentalpha, 974. On the cloth being drawn, the W.M. gave all the loyal and Masonic toasts, interspersed by racy and very appropriate remarks. Bro. Schaeppi, P. Prov. G.S.D., replied on the part of the Provincial Grand Master and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, thanking the brethren present for their very kind reception and entertainment, at the same time paying a high compliment to the W.M. for the way in which he went through the work in the lodge. The W.M., in proposing what he termed the toast of the evening, namely, "The Visitors," coupled with it the name of Bro. Will. W. Barlow, W.M. of the Lodge of Hope, 302 (Bro. Richardson, W.M. of the Pentalpha, having apologized for leaving,) whom he was glad to see visiting their lodge, and referring to the time when he was a boy and his father was a regular attendant as a member of the Hope Lodge, said he often wondered what it was that induced him, such an ardent business man, to leave his warehouse at an earlier hour than usual to go to lodge meetings, and it was not until he became a Mason that he divined the cause. He concluded by proposing the toast in highly eulogistic terms. Bro. Barlow, W.M. 302, responded, thanking the W.M. on the part of the members of the Hope Lodge and himself for the kind and at the same time complimentary, terms on which he had introduced the toast to the meeting, and also expressing his obligation to the brethren for the hearty manner in which it had been received, thanking them, too, for their hospitable entertainment and expressing the wish that they would, whenever they could, pay frequent visits to the Hope, when he could promise them an equally hearty reception. Bro. Leeson P.M. Pentalpha, 974, acknowledged the toast (in the absence of his W.M.) on the part of that lodge, expressing the pleasure it had afforded him in being present, and regretting that Bro. Richardson, W.M., had been compelled to retire after the business of the lodge was concluded. Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M. 302, also made a few exceedingly happy and humorous remarks in thanking the W.M. for his entertainment, expressing the pleasure it had afforded him to witness the admirable manner in which he had gone through the work in the lodge. And alluding to Bro. I. A. Unna, P.M., P. Prov. G.R., the respected father of the W.M. who sat by his side, said he was reminded of what he heard the other day, namely, that a son of his had been making a speech, and the friend who related it to him remarked that when the young ones could do so well it was time for the old ones to give up; and he thought he might say the same to his dear friend sitting by him. He concluded by again thanking them for this evening's enjoyment. Bro. Will. W. Barlow, W.M. Hope, 302, then proposed health, long life, and prosperity to Bro. C. F. Unna, W.M. of the Harmony Lodge, stating that he well remembered the time to which he had alluded when his father was one of the most efficient P.Ms. of the Hope Lodge, and expressed the gratification it had afforded him to see so venerable and highly respected a brother still taking an active part in Freemasonry, and trusting that he would be long spared to do so. He was extremely glad to see the son treading in the footsteps of his estimable father, and spoke in the highest possible terms of the way in which he had conducted the business of the evening. The W.M. thanked Bro. Barlow very much for the kind words he had uttered, as he felt them very keenly, and expressed his thanks also to all the brethren for the way in which they had received the toast. Before resuming his seat he begged to propose the health of the P.Ms., who had been the mainstay of their lodge; they had from time to time been likened to the ribs of a ship and other such similes, but he should say (to make a homely allusion) they were like the warp in a piece, for they might change the weft (i.e., the officers) according to fancy or fashion, but if they had a good warp (i.e., the P.Ms.) the piece would be lasting and durable. Bro. I. A. Unna, P.M., responded, stating that he was glad to see so many visiting brethren including several P.Ms. from his mother, Lodge of Hope. He regretted that Bro. Beanland, P.M., had not responded to this toast, as he felt they were so much indebted to him for assisting in the working of the Harmony Lodge. They might, however, always rely upon any assistance the P.Ms. could give. And he thanked them very much for the way in which the toast was received. Bro. Bernson proposed the health of the newly initiated Bro. Bernard Nathan, who replied in a few, elegant yet, modest sentences expressive of his admiration of the principles of the Craft, and of his desire to become an exponent of them. Bro. Peel, P.M., proposed the health of their newly joined Bro. Capt. Mackintosh, P.M., who responded expressing his desire to make himself useful in the Lodge of Harmony, and making slight reference to his military services in India. The W.M. then brought this exceedingly agreeable evening's proceedings to a close by giving the Tyler's Toast. We must needs refer to the very excellent songs with which the brethren were favoured by Bros. C. F. Unna, W.M.; Sutcliffe, King Solomon, 422, Australia; Whaley, Mitchell, Granham, Bro. Whitley presiding at the piano.

BRADFORD.—Lodge of Hope (No. 302).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Godwin-street, on the 18th instant; Bro. Will. W. Barlow, W.M., presiding. There was no business of importance beyond the election of officers for the ensuing year. That done, the brethren adjourned to the refreshment room to partake of supper. The W.M. occupied the chair, having on his right Bros. Sugden, P.M. 302, (as I.P.M. in the place of Bro. Green, who was prevented being present by indisposition); J. White, W.M. Scientific, 439; C. H. Taylor, P.M. 302; H. O. Mawson, P.M. 302; C. Pratt, P.M. 1018; Armitage, P.M. 302; J. Rhodes, P.M. 974; and on his left Bro. Rev. J. Oddy, P. Prov. G.C. and Chaplain of the lodge; Bros. M. Rhodes, P.M. 302; Hill, P.M. 302; Rutterworth, P.M. 387; J. J. Schaeppi, P.M. 332, P. Prov. G.S.D.; W. Ibbetson, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.J.D.; W. Beanland, P.M. 1034; Gaunt, P.M. 302. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bros. Rev. J. Oddy, P. Prov. G.C. and Chaplain of the lodge, and J. J. Schaeppi P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D., in excellent addresses, replete with kindly expressions and good counsel, thanked the brethren for their kind recognition of their services. The W.M. then gave the toast of the evening, "The health of Bro. Geo. Richardson, the W.M. Elect of the Lodge of Hope," in most eulogistic terms, speaking particularly of the services rendered the lodge in the different offices he had already filled, and wishing for him, as he was certain he would have, a most happy and prosperous year as W.M., and called upon the brethren to drink his health in the heartiest manner. Bro. Geo. Richardson thanked the W.M. for proposing his health as he had done, and the brethren for so kindly receiving the proposition. In speaking of the coming year he could only say that it would be his earnest endeavour to perform the onerous duties devolving upon him as he had hitherto done those of the offices he had held. He looked forward to a prosperous year, and referring to the presence of Bro. Ambler, the W.M. elect of the Pentalfa, felt that they would be able to work together for the advantage of both lodges. The W.M. gave the P.Ms., which was responded to by Bro. Thomas Hill, P.M., who proposed the health of the W.M., expressing the pleasure it afforded him to do so. The W.M. shortly replied, and called upon Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M., who proposed the health of Bro. J. Ambler, the W.M. Elect of the Pentalfa, speaking of him in the most complimentary terms. Bro. Ambler responded, alluding to his long connection with the Hope, and expressing the belief that the W.M. elect of that lodge and he would work most harmoniously together in the interests of both lodges, and thanking all for their very cordial reception. The W.M., in the warmest and most cordial manner, proposed the health of the Visitors, trusting to seeing them there again whenever opportunity would allow. Bros. S. B. Walmsley, P.M. 974; and J. White, W.M. Scientific, 439, responded, expressing to the W.M. the pleasure it had afforded them to be present and thanking the brethren for their hearty reception and hospitality. The W.M., in proposing the health of his officers, spoke of the manner in which they had discharged the duties of their several offices in highest terms of praise, and coupled with the toast the names of Bro. B. Broughten, S.W.; H. Farrar, S.D.; and M. S. Rhodes, J.D., who severally responded, the S.W. shortly, as he said he should have an opportunity at a future time, expressing their thanks for the way in which the toast had been proposed and received. At 11 o'clock the Tyler's Toast was proposed, bringing the evening's proceedings to a close. The following brethren's efforts to enliven the proceedings by harmony were much appreciated, namely, Bro. M. Rhodes P.M. (who kindly presided at the piano in the absence of the Organist) Rob. Richardson, W.M. Pentalfa; Taylor, P.M.; Hunter P.M.; W. Beanland, P.M.; and Granham.

LEEDS.—Fidelity Lodge (No. 289).—A pleasing duty devolved upon the W.M., officers and brethren of this lodge on Thursday, the 21st inst., when their new building, situate in Carlton Hill, was formally opened. It has been erected from designs by Bro. Bakewell, J.D. 289, and contains on the ground floor a banqueting room 34 ft. by 27 ft. 8 in., smoke room, lavatory, tiler's pantry, &c. The kitchen and tiler's residence are entirely isolated from the lodge. On the first floor are the Instruction and Lodge rooms, the latter is 40 ft. by 27 ft. 8 in. and 16 ft. high. The lodge having been formally opened with solemn prayer, Mr. Geo. B. Scott was duly initiated an E.A.P., and no doubt felt highly honoured in being the first to be initiated in the new hall. At the close of the lodge a beautiful prayer was delivered, composed by Bro. the Rev. T. C. Smythe, D.D., P.D.P.G.M. and P. Prov. G. Chaplain of the Eastern Archipelago. Amongst those present were Bros. W. J. Beck, W.M.; A. Horsfall, I.P.M.; Watson, S.W.; Stretch, J.W.; Kirby, Sec.; Rowbotham, S.D.; Bakewell, J.D.; Dr. Sparke, Organist; Bro. James Walker, I.G. The W.M., was supported on his right by Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire; Bro. Henry Smith, P.G. Sec.; Bro. Eagland P.M., 289 and P. Prov. G.W.; Bro. Moore, P.M., 1221; Bro. Powoluy, W.M., 1211; and Bro. Atkinson, P.M., Sphinx Lodge (12 Lancers); and on his left by Bro. Horsfall, P.M., 289; Bro. John Horsfall, P.M., 162; Bro. M. Scott, P.M., 566; Bro. J. Cawthorn, P.M., 458; Bro. Blackburn, P.M., 306; and Bro. Smithson, W.M., 1001.

There were also present Bro. John Wikinson, P.G. Organist, N and E. Ridings; Bro. Poulter, Bro. Dixon, Bro. Jackson, Bro. Stead, 1042, Bro. Pegler, 304, as W.M., and several brethren of the Sphinx Lodge No. 179, (12th Lancers) and representatives from various lodges. Afterwards a banquet took place, at which nearly 50 brethren sat down, and a very enjoyable evening was spent, auguring well for the future of 289, which is the senior lodge of the town. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were heartily proposed and responded to, those of "The Marquess of Ripon, G.M. of all England," and "Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire," being received with rounds of applause. Unfortunately Bro. Bentley Shaw was obliged to retire prior to his health being proposed, but before doing so addressed a few words to the brethren, congratulating them on the beautiful lodge they had that night opened and thanking them for the hearty reception he had received; in concluding he impressed upon them in the words of the prayer he had just heard read, in the lodge, to be ever imbued with the sacred principles of brotherly love relief, and truth. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Dr. Spark, P. Prov. G. Organist, West Yorkshire.

Original Correspondence.

ANCIENT GRAND LODGES OF YORK AND LONDON.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read the interesting discussion between Bros. Hyneman and W. J. Hughan very attentively. I entirely coincide with Bro. W. J. Hughan in the statement he has made respecting the Grand Lodge. No Grand Lodge did, or could exist before 1717 under such name, though I am not prepared to say that we may not yet discover the minutes of the "Grand Assembly." As to revolutionizing Freemasonry in 1717, and the existence of a "long pre-arranged plan" for such a purpose, I cannot understand what Bro. Hyneman means.

I have many years studied the evidences relating to Freemasonry, and I am sorry to see an able brother like Bro. Hyneman, putting forward what is in truth a "parody" on all the known facts of the case. It is very ungrateful, to say the least of it, for Masons to-day to attack Anderson and Preston, to whom we owe a great debt of gratitude.

I really must ask my able Bro. Hyneman, as a great statesman once did a very powerful opponent, "to amend his vocabulary" when next he treats on the history of our English Grand Lodges. Where Bro. Hyneman has found the slightest evidence in support of his startling statements I do not profess to know, but, sure I am, that he has not the slightest warrant for the attack he has made on our Masonic forefathers of 1717.

I am sorry to see him apparently endorsing Bro. Norton's wild and chimerical attacks on Anderson and on Preston, who, instead of censure, deserve the admiration of every Masonic student and every lover of our good old Craft.

It is no doubt true, as Brother Hughan well puts it, that the History of the two Great Grand Lodges, is in fact, at one time the history of four separate jurisdictions.

The "Antiquity lodge" was undoubtedly made by the "York Grand Lodge," a co-ordinate Grand Lodge, "South of the Trent," and Dermott's Grand Lodge was independent of, and separate from the Grand Lodges, both of York and of 1717.

Though it may be true that the privileges of the Lodge of Antiquity in this respect, if ever fully accepted by the Lodge itself, have ever remained dormant, yet the fact remains, and requires to be treated and acknowledged as such, when we seek to write Masonic History.

The Ancient Grand Lodge of York died a natural death, inasmuch as its great Southern Rival of 1717, flourished the more it decayed in "prestige" and power, and Lodges in Yorkshire and even in York itself, accepted warrants, from it, in preference to their own original Grand Lodge.

From that moment, the extinction of the Grand Lodge of York, was only a question of time.

I think, therefore, that Bro. Hughan is quite right, and Bro. Hyneman quite wrong, in the present discussion.

A. F. A. WOODFORD, P.G.C.
10, Upper Porchester Street,
Hyde Park Square, W.,
November 18th, 1872.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, December 6, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, NOV. 30.

Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, DEC. 2.

Lodge 12, Fortitude and Old Cumberland, Ship and Turtle Leadenhall-st.
" 25, Robert Burns, Freemasons' Hall.
" 69, Unity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
" 72, Royal Jubilee, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
" 144, St. Luke's, Masons' Hall, Basinghall-street.
" 188, Joppa, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
" 256, Unions, Freemasons' Hall.
" 1319, Asaph, Freemasons' Hall.
Chap. 174, Sincerity, Cheshire Cheese, Crutched-Friars.
" 1056, Victoria, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue.
Mark Lodge 22, Southwark, Bridge House Hotel, Southwark.
Red Cross Conclave, Premier, Freemasons' Tavern.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. Beckett, Preceptor.
Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7. Ceremony of Installation by Bro. C. Lacey, P.M.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, DEC. 3.

Colonial Board, at 3 o'clock.
Lodge 7, Royal York of Perseverance, Freemasons' Hall.
" 9, Albion, Freemasons' Hall.
" 18, Old Dundee, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
" 101, Temple, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 172, Old Concord, Freemasons' Hall.
" 217, Stability, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
" 765, St. James's, Bridge House Hotel.
" 1257, Grosvenor, Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi.
" 1259, Duke of Edinburgh, New Globe Tavern, Bow-road.
" 1261, Golden Rule, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue.
" 1298, Royal Standard, Marquess Tavern, Canonbury.
Chap. 145, Prudent Brethren, Freemasons' Hall.
" 169, Temperance, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8; Bro. C. A. Cotterburne, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
Florence Nighthungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's-wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, (50), Wheatsheaf Hotel, Hand-cour, Holborn, at 7; Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M., 180, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 4.

- Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, at 6 for 7 p.m. Lodge 511, Zetland, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tavern, London-street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, DEC. 5.

- Lodge 10, Westminster and Keystone, Freemasons' Hall.
" 27, Egyptian, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
" 45, Strong Man, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell.
" 192, Lion and Lamb, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street.
" 227, Ionic, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 231, St. Andrew's, Freemasons' Hall.
" 538, La Tolerance, Freemasons' Hall.
" 554, Yarborough, Green Dragon, Stepney.
" 822, Victoria Rifles, Freemasons' Hall.
" 1155, Excelsior, Sydney Arms, Lewisham-road.
" 1178, Perfect Ashlar, Gregorian Arms, Bermondsey-road.
" 1351, St. Clement Dames, 265, Strand.
" 1360, Royal Arthur, Duke of Edinburgh Hotel, New Wimbledon.

- Chapter 2, St. James, Freemasons' Hall.
" 9, Moriah, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
Mark Lodge 144, Grosvenor, Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi.
The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall.
Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Steam, Preceptor.
United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, DEC. 6.

- Lodge 706, Florence Nightingale, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
" 800, Hornsey, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
" 1275, Star, Marquis of Granby Tavern, New Cross-road.
Chapter 8, British, Freemasons' Hall.
" 259, Prince of Wales, Willis's Rooms, St. James.
Mark Lodge 8, Thistle, Freemasons' Tavern.
St. George's Lodge of Instruction (1409), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggenidge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Abchurch-lane, at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tavern, Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1208), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pinfold, Preceptor.
Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 23, Brompton-road, S.W.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh, Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.

Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

MASONIC MEETINGS IN LIVERPOOL, &c.

For the Week ending Friday, December 6, 1872.

MONDAY, DEC. 2.

- Skelmersdale Lodge, Blundell-sands Hotel, Great Crosby, at 6.
De'Tabley Chapter, Seacombe Hotel, Seacombe at 6.
Eveton Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 7.30.

TUESDAY, DEC. 3.

- St. John of Jerusalem Chapter, Masonic Temple, Liverpool, 6.
Merchants' Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Temple, 6.
Downshire Lodge of Instruction, 90, Duke-street, 7.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 4.

- Chapter of Fidelity, 1, Hamilton-square, Birkenhead, 6.
St. John's Lodge (673), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, 6.30.
Royal Victoria Lodge (1013), Masonic Temple, 6.
De Grey and Ripon Lodge of Instruction (1356), 140, North Hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool, 7.30.

THURSDAY, DEC. 5.

- Mariners' Lodge (249), Masonic Temple, Hope-street, 6.
Cestrian Lodge (425), Grosvenor Hotel, Chester, 4.
Bridgewater Chapter, Masonic Hall, Runcorn, 6.

FRIDAY, DEC. 6.

- Selton Lodge (680), Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, 4.30.
Walton Chapter, Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, 6.
Neptune Lodge (1264), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, 6.

"Every mother and housekeeper must often act as family physician in the numerous illnesses and accidents that occur among children and servants. For many of these cases I have used Davis's Pain Killer with such eminent success, that I consider it indispensable in my family medicine box."—Editor N. Y. EXAMINER.

Advertisements.

ROYAL

MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

St. John's Hill, Battersea Rise, S.W.
Office: 5, Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C.

At a meeting of the General Committee of the above Institution, held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, W.C., on Thursday, the 28th day of November, 1872, for the purpose of electing a Secretary, Bro. Major John Creaton, Vice-President, in the chair, after the preliminary business, the Governors proceeded to the election, which terminated with the following result:—

Table with 2 columns: Name and Votes.
Bro. W. Howley Burder 12
" H. W. Dumford Green..... 2
" Robert Wentworth Little 217
" Joseph Lockington Potter 1

And the Chairman declared Robert Wentworth Little duly elected.

W. LANE,

Acting Secretary.

28th Nov. 1872.
Caledonian Hotel, ROBERT STREET, ADDELPHI TERRACE, STRAND.
GENTLEMEN and Families visiting London will find every requisite for their comfort and moderate charge at the above Hotel.
Dinner from 2 to 4 P.M. Rooms from 7 to 10 Bachelors from 28; Table d'Hote 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.
Every accommodation for Messrs. and Families and Banquets.
At 10 o'clock and 12 o'clock, Rooms reserved for the Ladies.
BRO. GEORGE STANES, Manager.

BRO. E. WATKINS, BOTTLE MERCHANT, ETC., 12, Jewry-st, Aldgate.

Wines housed and bottled. Wine Baskets on hire. Contracts made for any time or quantity.

KENNING'S NEW BALLOT BOX,

Price Thirty Shillings.

MASONIC ASSURANCE COMPANY, 9, NEW BRIDGE-STREET, LONDON.

Chairman J. Rankin Stebbing Esq.
Standing Counsel Horace Lloyd, Esq., Q.C.
Solicitors Messrs. Heritage, Evans, & Heritage.
One per cent. of the new Premiums annually appropriated to Masonic Charities.
FREDERICK BIGG, P.M., Manager.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, ESTABLISHED 1845.

Conducted under the official supervision of the State of New York.

$100,000 have been deposited with Trustees in England.

Life Assurance only. Purely Mutual. All Profits annually to Policy Holders.

Accumulated Funds, December 31st, 1870 ... £3,172,244
Surplus over all Liabilities, and Reserve Fund 389,322
Income for Year 1870 1,317,271

M. X. COHEN, SPECIAL AGENT,

76 & 77, CHEAPSIDE, E.C.

BRITISH EQUITABLE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

4, Queen-street-place, London, E.C. SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

New business, 1,934 policies for £320,319.
New annual income, £9,820.
172 death claims paid for £28,487 18s. 1d.
20 claims for matured policies, £2,155 8s. 4d.
Paid for surrenders, £1,777.
Laid by in year, £36,307.
In force 17,009 policies for £2,930,210.
Annual premium income, £93,998.
Paid for death claims in 17 years, under 1,173 policies. £187,558.
Accumulated fund increased to £273,073.
W. S. GOVER, Managing Director.

Norwich and London ACCIDENT INSURANCE ASSOCIATION.

ESTABLISHED 1856.
SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL £100,000.
For Insuring against ACCIDENTAL DEATH, With Compensation for Personal Injury, Caused by Accidents.
CHIEF OFFICES—ST. GILES'S STREET, NORWICH.
LONDON: 49, MOORGATE-ST.
Secretary: CHARLES R. GILMAN, Esq.
London Manager: MR. GEORGE POWELL.

MONEY.—LOANS granted immediately. From £100 to £2,000 at 5 per cent., repayable over Three, Four, or Five Years, on Personal Security and Life Policy effected with the WEST OF ENGLAND INSURANCE CO., (Established 1807.)
Apply to the Superintendent of Agents, J. CROCKER, Neville Street, Newcastle. Agents Wanted.

GENERAL FUNERAL ESTABLISHMENT, 81, City-road, E.C., opposite the Finsbury Schools, and 24, Southgate-road, De Beauvoir Town, N.

Bros. SINCLAIR & SON beg to call the public attention to their Scale of Charges, to suit all classes, to any of the Metropolitan Cemeteries, or other places. For further information, see Illustrated Book and Estimates, forwarded on application. No connection with any other establishment.

GRANT'S MORELLA CHERRY BRANDY.

SUPPLIED TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN. This delicious Brandy, from the famous Kent Morella, super-exceeds wine in many households. It is much favoured by sportsmen, and is also recommended by the medical profession as a valuable tonic in cases of weakness. Order of any Wine Merchant, or direct of T. GRANT, Distillery, Maidstone. 42s. per dozen, Cash. Carriage paid.

BOTTLED, Capsuled, and Cased in the Vine. Sold in France. Imported by the Grant family. Sold by retail merchants, 3s. 6d. each bottle, at three, six, nine, and twelve year old, 42s., 50s., 60s., and 70s., each one dozen case, by C. C. BASSON, the sole importer, 18, Fenchurch-buildings, Fenchurch-street, London. Cash with order.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

ELECTION FOR SECRETARY,

Thursday, November 28th, 1872.

Bro. Robert Wentworth Little	317
Bro. W. Howley Burder	12
Bro. H. W. Durnford Green	2
Bro. Joseph Lockington Potter	1

Original Correspondence.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I take the earliest opportunity of returning my warmest thanks to the Life Governors who supported my candidature at the poll this day;—to the Committee under Bro. J. C. Parkinson and to all the brethren—and their name is legion—who have worked so energetically to secure my election as Secretary of the Institution.

I need only add that I shall endeavour to retain their confidence and goodwill, as well as to co-operate with my brethren of the Craft for the promotion of the good cause in general.

My special acknowledgements are also due to The Freemason for the able manner in which it has advocated my claims.

Yours fraternally,
R. WENTWORTH LITTLE,
28th November, 1872. Secretary-Elect.

BRO. WILLIAM LANE & THE MASONIC BENEVOLENT FUND.

[The following correspondence has been forwarded to us for publication.]

The Manor House, Collier's Wood,
15th Nov., 1872.

MY DEAR BROTHER SHEEN,—I desire to repeat in writing a suggestion I made to you before the General Committee Meeting of yesterday.

There appears to be a probability of the Collectorship to the Masonic Benevolent Fund becoming vacant at an early day; and from all I have heard there seems to be no doubt that Bro. Lane would be an extremely eligible candidate for the position.

If Bro. Lane's friends think it desirable to promote his candidature for the position, I shall have very sincere pleasure in doing my utmost to promote his election.

I write this without consulting anyone, and this letter must be understood to be binding only on myself; but if you and Bro. Lane's other friends, and Bro. Lane himself, think the post would suit him, I will bring the subject before a forthcoming meeting of Bro. Little's Committee, and will do my best to secure to Bro. Lane a warm and active support.

In a matter of this sort it is desirable no time should be lost, and I will not fail to attend promptly to any communication I may receive.

You may make any use you think proper of this letter.

Believe me,
My dear Bro. Sheen,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,
J. C. PARKINSON.
J. R. Sheen, Esq.

Upper St. Martin's Lane, W.C.
November 16, 1872.

MY DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and to thank you for the suggestion respecting Bro. Lane and the Collectorship of the Masonic Benevolent Institution.

I have seen Bro. Lane in consequence, and he requests me to express to you his grateful appreciation of your kindness.

As the vacancy could only be consequent on Bro. Terry's election to the Secretaryship; I do not know that I can say more at present than to thank you individually (but no less sincerely) on Bro. Lane's behalf for your kind sympathy and generous offer of assistance.

Believe me to remain,
My dear Sir and Brother,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,
J. RICHMOND SHEEN.

J. C. Parkinson Esq.,
&c., &c., &c.,

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A few days ago I noticed an advertisement in your valuable paper, inviting the shareholders and supporters of the Surrey Masonic Hall Company to a meeting on Saturday last at the Green Coat Schools, Camberwell, and having experienced the great benefit and comfort that provincial brethren enjoy through having halls of their own, I determined to attend. On entering the building (the foundation-stone of which, by-the-by, I afterwards learned was laid with Masonic honours, about twelve months ago,) I was somewhat disappointed at there not being a more numerous assembly; but I was, afterwards pleased to find, that those brethren who were present, were evidently much interested and determined to render every assistance to carry out the objects of the company. The chairman (Bro. Worthington) made a long and comprehensive statement of the intentions and position of the company, which was highly approved of; and it appeared to me that the undertaking was formed on so safe and practical a basis, that if properly supported it could not fail to be both a Masonic and commercial success, and I at once determined to do my part and become a shareholder; for although I cannot afford to invest much, still I thought every little would help; and it is in the hopes of aiding the company, by inducing my brethren on the other side of the water, as well as this, to follow my example that I write this letter. I say the other side of the water as well as this, because every true brother ought to be glad to further such a good work. I have been taught that Freemasonry is universal; and as they have a splendid hall in which to hold their meetings, built out of the General Funds of our Order, I think it is not asking too much that they should help us to obtain the same advantages.

I must add, that after the chairman had made his practical address on the business of the company, Bro. Stevens forcibly called the attention of the brethren to the many Masonic advantages that would be obtained by the separation of Freemasonry and taverns; stating that in his opinion (an opinion received with the warmest approval) that the present connection was not only inconsistent with the principles of our Order, but derogatory to the dignity of Freemasonry; and it annually absorbed an enormous amount of the income of our lodges, which would otherwise be devoted to our noble charities. I should like to suggest to the Directors the advisability of their causing a full copy of their prospectus to be inserted in your extensively circulated paper, that every brother in the provinces as well as London, may have an opportunity of aiding in the good work.

Apologizing for trespassing so much on your valuable space, and trusting you will excuse me as it is in such a good cause.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother,
Yours fraternally,
"EXCELSIOR."

Camberwell, Nov. 26, 1872.

BRO. FINDEL'S ARTICLE.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In my own name, and I am sure in the name of all who take an interest in the rise and progress of our Order, permit me to return thanks for the promise which you have so kindly and readily made at page 734, to present us all with a translated copy of Bro. Findel's Article. Your kind condescension also proves that you are ready by deed as well as by word, to do what lies in your power to assist Masonic students in gaining a proper knowledge of the literature of the Craft.

I am, fraternally yours,
A CONSTANT READER.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

SIR AND BROTHER,—In answer to J. H. G's letter, published in your paper of the 9th inst., in reference to an Old Masonic Print, I beg to say I have one of the same in my possession; it is 70 years old, and the lettering is as under, "To the Grand Lodge of England." This print representing the distinguishing characteristics of Masonry—charity exerted on proper objects—is by permission respectfully dedicated, by your humble servant

BRO. W. JEFFREY'S.
Sherborne, Nov. 20th, 1872.

Obituary.

The Late BRO. RICHARD MORLEY,
No. 1094.

Another blank in the Masonic circle in Liverpool has recently been made by the death of Bro. Richard Morley, an esteemed member of No. 1094, after a painful illness and at a comparatively early age. Our late brother was very well-known and highly respected by a large number of the Masonic Fraternity, as well as others, in the "good old town" of Liverpool; and his unobtrusive works of charity and disinterested friendly assistance given to many a needy brother, will cause his loss to be all the more severely felt. Although most successful in his business as a fruit and spice merchant, carried on for many years in Slater-street, Liverpool, he was painfully unfortunate in his closest domestic relationships, and this, no doubt, weighed heavily upon his mind. Within the last four years or so, he had lost his wife and four children—and, most striking to state, his four children in the short period of one week. The funeral of our departed brother took place on Tuesday morning, the 19th inst., at Smith-down-lane Cemetery. Besides relatives and friends who followed the body, we noticed the following brethren who had assembled to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of one who was so highly esteemed:—Bros. Dr. R. H. D. Johnson, P.M. 1094; E. Holmes, Keightley, Yorkshire; Macbeth, Jackson, G. Dyke, Raynor, G. Fowler, 216; Gilbert, H. Newman, J. Wood, Treas. 1094; C. Campion, &c.

The magnificent and solemn service of the Church of England, prescribed for such occasions, was most impressively read by the Rev. Mr. Woodward under whose ministrations the deceased brother had sat. Before proceeding to the grave, the Rev. Gentleman made a short and feeling oration alluding to the uncertainty of life as exemplified in the present instance (the deceased being only 43 years of age) and earnestly exhorted those present to prepare for that great change which must come upon all, so that when the last trumpet should sound they might be ranked amongst the "just made perfect." The coffin which was of polished oak, beautifully finished with solid brass mountings, and the entire funeral arrangements were executed under the care of Bro. Deacon. The cause of Bro. Morley's death is attributed to heart disease. He leaves two daughters of tender age to mourn his loss.

Masonic Notes and Queries.

"NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

In reply to Bro. Holmes's remarks, at page 714, I find that in again perusing the words of Professor Aytoun's song, at page 607, there is nothing in the said song to support Bro. Holmes's idea that Professor Aytoun "evidently believed in the present Knights Templar as the descendants of the Crusading Red Cross Knights," or he would not have written those "stirring lines" referred to. The Templar historical references in the song close with the battle of Bannockburn, A.D. 1314, consequently so far as the song is concerned it rather goes to show non-belief in the supposed legitimate descendancy of the present Knights Templar from the 14th century Templars. The idea reiterated, at page 592 that, Bruce formed the Bannockburn Templars into the Royal Order of Scotland, is but a modern "legend." No proof to the contrary has ever yet been published that I know of. If either Bro. Holmes or anyone else can produce satisfactory evidence, why let them do so, the pages of The Freemason will, I have no doubt, be open to receive it. As to the Royal Order having documents 200 years old, I am quite ready to admit it, nay, they may even have them 400 years old; only I cannot admit, as yet, that any documents older than the second quarter of last century, if even so old, either mention or refer to it. In reference to the emblems in Glasgow Cathedral, Bro. Holmes says he merely copied Bro. Kerr's remarks as given in the published report of the late Grand Mark Lodge Conference; now he should not have done so, because his doing so was perpetuating error. There is also the less excuse for Bro. Holmes in this matter, seeing that the many mistakes contained in this Grand Mark Lodge report were shown up by Bro. Hughan at pages 489 to 491 of The Freemason for August 5th, 1871, and also by myself at pages 474, July 29th, and 522, August 19th, 1871. Whether or not there be certain emblems in Glasgow Cathedral is not a matter of mere opinion but a matter of fact. To settle the question I went up to the Cathedral and looked with my own eyes, and so saw that Bro. Kerr was wrong. Bro. Kerr possibly was only speaking from memory, and his memory played him false. Bro. Holmes's closing taunt about the "Volume of the Sacred Law" is not a Masonic remark, neither is it at all to the point. I believe the said volume to be a grand old book, just as I believe the Parthenon to be a grand old building; and supposing I consider the Rig-Veda to be older than the Bible, that does not cause me to disrespect the latter any more than allowing the Rameseum to be older than the Parthenon causes me to think little of the Parthenon. There is much to admire in all, while each has some special beauties and noble characteristics of its own.

W. P. BUCHAN.

NOTES ON THE TEMPLARS AND NORTONIAN AMENITIES.

I have read with pleasure the replies of a "Masonic Student" and Bro. Carpenter to Bro. Jacob Norton's diatribes. But really I don't see that we have much to complain of. Our American friends are rather given to strong language—some people would call it coarse—and Bro. Norton has himself been called some rather hard names by his Yankee brethren. Bro. Norton has only called us "Charlatans" as yet, and hard words break no bones.

Charles Dickens writing to John Forster about the time of the publication of his "American Notes," mentions the fact of a forged letter, purporting to come from him, and which appeared in one of the American papers. "You are to understand," he writes, "that it is not done as a joke and is scurrilously reviewed. Mr. Park Benjamin begins a lucubration upon it with these capitals:—'Dickens is a Fool and a Liar.'" After this Bro. Norton's remarks are quite gentlemanly.

EMRA HOLMES.

SURREY MASONIC HALL COMPANY (LIMITED).

A meeting of the members and others interested in this Company was held at the Green Coat Schools, Camberwell-green, on Saturday last, and was attended by a number of influential members of the Craft, who took part in the proceedings with enthusiasm. The chair was taken shortly after seven o'clock by Bro. Edward Worthington, and the platform was occupied by the Directors, amongst whom we observed:—Bros. John Thomas, Dr. Pinder, H. C. Levander, James Stevens, J. L. Green, M. Larlham, C. Dunbar, &c.

The Chairman opened the business of the evening with a very lucid statement as to the objects and expectations of the Company, and congratulated those present upon the considerable success which had thus far attended the exertions of the Directors. The Company had been formed to raise a capital of £2,500 in £5 shares, for the purpose of erecting a building which, whilst more especially affording accommodation for lodges and chapters, might nevertheless be applied to public uses in respect of meetings, concerts, and other entertainments, in a district of the metropolis at present very much in need of such convenience. Nearly £800 of these shares had been already subscribed for, and so far without much publicity. A very suitable site, being a plot of ground between the Post Office and the County Court in Camberwell New-road, close to the Railway Station, having been secured, plans had been prepared which were now submitted to the meeting. Those plans had been prepared by Bro. John Thomas, who, in common with the other Directors and the Secretary, had given his valuable services gratuitously, and in consequence all preliminary expenses had been kept down to the lowest limit. The present object of the Directors was to ascertain, by a series of meetings to be held in the several localities in the southern district of the metropolis, the disposition of their Masonic brethren and the public generally towards the undertaking, and to afford an opportunity for full explanation of their plans. He would now call upon Bro. Stevens to propose the first resolution.

Bro. James Stevens (Director) said that it gave him great pleasure to move the resolution, with which he would conclude a few remarks having reference to the necessity for such a building as that for which this Company was formed. There could be no doubt, that for many years a feeling had been gaining ground amongst Freemasons, that for the good of their Order as well for their own personal benefit the meetings of their various lodges should be dissociated from tavern accommodation; and it was certainly a very healthy sign that the objections to the continuance of that practice were so strongly on the increase. If only regarded in this respect, the present Company deserved the strongest support, not only from those who were connected with the lodges in this district, but from all other members of the Order who desired to see its sublime teachings unimpaired by temptations which, to say the least, could not but militate in some degree against the standard of morality upon which Freemasonry is based. To all such it would be a matter of indifference whether or not the small investment in shares they might be disposed to make, returned them other interest than that of a consciousness of having assisted in a good work. At the same time, if it could be shown—as he was bold to say the Directors of this Company could show—that in a commercial sense other advantages to investors were likely to arise, a still further argument in favour of the Masonic Hall existed. In many provincial towns the experiment had been tried with considerable success, and whilst he hailed with satisfaction the result of the enthusiastic efforts of our brethren in such places, he could not help contrasting such results with the apathy of members of the Order in the several metropolitan districts. If Masonic Temples and Institutions can be erected in second rate towns and prove good investments, why should such a large district of London as that south of the Thames, be wanting in similar accommodation? The want of such kept many and many good and influential men from entering the Order, and whilst Freemasonry is worked in public-houses nothing else could be expected. Although many other arguments in favour of the present proposal could be adduced, he would confine himself now to the principle of severance from tavern accommodation as the most important reason for this undertaking, and move, "That in the opinion of this Meeting the erection of a Masonic Hall for the purposes of Freemasonry in the Southern District of the Metropolis is necessary and advantageous; that the scheme now submitted by the Directors of the Surrey Masonic Hall Company appears to be reasonable and capable of being carried out; and the meeting hereby pledges itself to support the undertaking."

Bro. Smale fully endorsed the arguments of the proposer, and seconded the resolution.

Bro. E. Frances also supported the motion.

Bro. Brittan, whilst he acknowledged the powerful argument with which the proposer had submitted the resolution, could not fully support it without being supplied with further information. However much he agreed, with probably all present, in the sentimental view of the question, namely that of meeting elsewhere than at taverns, he still thought that it would be necessary to ensure success, that the merits of the undertaking in a commercial sense should be thoroughly understood. He already, he must confess, saw a great deal to be commended both in the scheme submitted by the Directors and in the elaborate plans which now lay before them, but still he desired to see further, and to know whether the thing would pay. He did not for one moment suspect that a large interest would be obtained by shareholders, and should say that probably no Mason present either expected or desired any, but would the estimate building prove sufficient, and those who supported the undertaking have reason to believe they would not be required to dip further into their pockets beyond the cost of their shares. He put this question at once to the Directors as their reply would materially influence himself and many friends as to the course they should pursue.

Bro. Dr. Pinder (Director) assured Bro. Brittan that very careful estimates had been made both in regard to the first cost of building, and also as to the probable receipts and expenditure subsequent to its erection.

Bro. John Thomas (Director) stated, that he had no hesitation in assuring the meeting that the erection of the building in accordance with the plans he had prepared would be amply covered by the proposed capital.

Bro. James Stevens (Director), at the request of the Chairman, then read a statement of the estimates which had been prepared, the particulars of which he desired, for obvious reasons, not to have published at present, although they appeared to give the greatest satisfaction to the meeting generally, and were admitted to have been carefully and fairly framed. (We may state that if the Directors estimates are realised, dividends of from 8 to 10 per cent. may be anticipated by shareholders.)

Bro. Brittan thanked the Directors for their information, and after a few general remarks in favour of the undertaking, expressed his willingness to take five shares therein.

The resolution was then put and carried unanimously; and several brethren in the body of the hall having spoken in support of the Company, also agreed to become shareholders.

Bro. Noehmer congratulating the Directors and the meeting generally upon the unanimity of the entire proceedings, which augured well for the success of the undertaking, moved, "That the thanks of the meeting be given to P. A. Nairne, Esq., and the Committee of the Green Coat Schools, for the use of the room."

Bro. Parsons seconded the resolution, which was carried with acclamation.

Thanks were also voted to the Directors, and to Bro. Allman for his zealous services as Secretary, and after the usual compliments to the Chairman, the meeting separated.

Mark Masonry.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

The Annual Meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held in the Town Hall, Stockton-on-Tees, under the banner of the Percy Mark Lodge, No. 122, E.C., on Tuesday, 19th November, 1872.

In the absence of the Earl Percy, M.P., the R.W.P.G. Master of the Province, who is on the Continent on account of his health. Prov. Grand Lodge was presided over by Bro. Anthony Clapham, D.P.G.M. as P.G.M., supported by Bro. S. Gourley, M.D., P.P.G.S.W. as D.P.G.M. Bros. Benjamin Levy, P.G.S.W.; H. G. Faber, P.G.J.W.; William Foulsham, P.P.G.J.O., G.J.O. as P.G.M.O.; R. B. Harpley, P.G.S.O.; R. H. Stafford as P.G.J.O.; Rev. James Milner, P.G. Chap.; Rev. Canon Tristram, L.L.D., P.P.G. Chap.; Rev. E. L. Marrett, M.A., P.P.G. Chap.; R. F. Cook, M.D., P.G. Reg. M.; J. Y. Strachan, P.G. Sec.; C. P. Anson, P.G.S.D.; Thos. Whitwell, P.P.G. Reg. as P.G.J.D.; Jno. Trotter as P.G.D.C.; J. S. Byers as P.G. Org.; Thomas Walton as P.G.I.G.; the W.M.'s, Wardens' and Overseers of the Lodges in the Province.

The acting P.G.M. feelingly explained the cause of the absence of the R.W.P.G.M., and while regretting the cause expressed a hope that it would now soon be removed.

A very satisfactory report was read from the Committee of General Purposes on the position of Mark Masonry in the Province, and the Masters of the various Lodges handed in reports from them to the same effect.

Bro. Richard Henry Holmes was unanimously elected Prov. G. Treasurer for the ensuing year.

The D.P.G.M., in the name of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, invested the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year:—

D.P.G.M., Bro. Anthony Clapham, of the Northumberland and Berwick Lodge; P.G.S.W., Bro. Rev. Canon H. B. Tristram, L.L.D., W.M. Eclectic Lodge, 39; P.G.J.W., Bro. Rev. E. L. Marrett, M.A., W.M. Hotspur Lodge, 135; P.G.M.O., Bro. Chas. P. Anson, Junr., W.M. Percy Lodge, 122; P.G.S.O., Bro. Robert Dixon, W.M. Union Lodge, 124; P.G.J.O., Bro. R. F. Cook, M.D., Northumberland and Berwick Lodge; P.G. Chap., Bro. Rev. Vyvyan H. Moyle, Percy Lodge, 122; P.G., Treas. Bro. R. H. Holmes, Northumberland and Berwick Lodge; P.G. Reg. M., Bro. John Trotter, Percy Lodge, 122; P.G. Sec., Bro. T. V. Strachan, Northumberland and Berwick Lodge, and Hotspur Lodge, 135; P.G.S.D., Bro. Robert Humphrey, Union Lodge, 124; P.G.J.D., Bro. A. C. Knowles, Percy Lodge, 122; P.G.I.W., Bro. C. T. Casebourne, Eclectic Lodge, 39; P.G.D.C., Bro. Benj. Levy, P.P.G.S.W. Union Lodge, 124; P.G. Org., Bro. Joshua S. Byers, Percy Lodge, 122; P.G.I.G., Bro. R. H. Stafford, Eclectic Lodge, 39; P.G. Tyler, Bro. Jno. S. Trotter, Northumberland and Berwick Lodge.

The Right Hon. Earl Percy's Patent as Prov. G. Master expiring in February next, it was unanimously resolved to recommend his Lordship to the M.W.G.M.M.M. for re-election as P.G. Master.

The Prov. G. Registrar and Secretary were directed to draw up an expression of the lodge's regret at the illness of the R.W.P.G.M., and hopes for his speedy restoration to health, and forward the same when signed by the D.P.G. Master on behalf of the Lodge.

The Auditors were re-elected and four brethren on the Committee of General Purposes, after which Prov. Grand Lodge was duly closed.

The brethren afterwards partook of a very recherche Banquet in the Hall attached to the Lodge. The chair was occupied by Bro. Clapham, D.P.G.M., supported by Bro. Foulsham, G.J.O.; Bro. D. Gourley, P.P.G.S.W.; Bro. Faber, P.P.G.J.W.; and the vice-chair was filled by Bro. the Rev. Canon H. B. Tristram, L.L.D., P.P.G.C., P.G.S.W.; supported by Bro. Lord E. Vane Tempest; Bro. Rev. E. L. Marrett, M.A., P.P.G.C., P.P.J.W., and other brethren of eminence in the Province.

After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk, and the evening enlightened by many excellent songs from the Stockton brethren, accompanied on the piano by the P.G. Org.

During the course of the evening it was announced that the R.W.P.G.M., the Earl Percy, M.P., Grand Master-elect, was much improved in health, and although ordered by his medical attendants to winter in Italy, yet there was every prospect of his Lordship being restored to complete health with the new year.

DEVONSHIRE.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—The regular monthly meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday last, the chair of adoniram was occupied by Bro. Furse, W.M. After the lodge was opened and the minutes of the last lodge night were read and confirmed, Bro. J. Tanner Davy, the W.M.-elect, was duly installed in the chair as W.M. for the year ensuing, he then appointed and invested the following brethren, officers of the lodge for the year ensuing:—Bros. Furse, I.P.M.; Bryant, S.W.; J. T. Shapland, J.W.; Ponsford, M.O.; Riccard, S.O.; J. E. Galliford, J.O.; J. Galliford, Treas.; J. E. Galliford, Sec.; Widgery, Reg. of Marks; Higgins, S.D.; Wood, J.D.; A. A. Shapland, I.G.; and Kingdon, O.G. After voting £5 to the Funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and a further sum to the Tyler, who was suffering from a very severe affliction, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren then adjourned from labour to refreshment, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

DORSETSHIRE.

BRIDPORT.—St. Mary's Lodge of Mark Masons (No. 121).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 31st Oct., when there was an excellent muster of brethren present. The chair was occupied by the W.M. Bro. the Rev. P. H. Newnham, Grand Chaplain. The lodge having been opened in ancient form, a ballot was taken for Bro. Robert Leigh, of Beaminster, solicitor, which proved unanimous in his favour; and the brother being present, was forthwith advanced to the honourable degree of a Mark Master; the W.M. for the first time introducing the improvements in the arrangement of the interesting ceremony which have been sanctioned during the present year. After the ceremony of advancement, the explanatory lecture was delivered in a somewhat novel and extended form, which appeared to excite much interest, and to give much satisfaction to the brethren. A ballot was then taken for the W.M. for the ensuing year; when Bro. Joseph Gundry (Provincial Grand Master for Dorset), was unanimously elected. Bro. B. P. Gundry was re-elected Treasurer. The W.M. then, pursuant to notice, called the attention of the brethren to the desirability of obtaining a warrant to work the Royal Ark Mariner Degree, in this lodge. He explained that Mark Lodges had been accustomed to work this degree from time immemorial; but that an attempt had been made by a body, styling itself the Grand Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, to invade this undoubted privilege of the Mark Degree; and that he therefore deemed it highly desirable that every properly constituted Mark Lodge in the county should apply for a Warrant authorizing it to work the degree, and thereby vindicate its old established rights. After this explanation, a resolution was unanimously carried, empowering the W.M. to apply for the Royal Ark Mariner Warrant, the expense of which, it was understood, was merely nominal. The lodge was then closed in ancient form.

HAMPSHIRE.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Hengist Lodge of Mark Masters (No. 125).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms on Tuesday, the 12th inst. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M. Bro. the Rev. P. H. Newnham, G.C., (who was detained elsewhere upon other Masonic business,) the chair was occupied by Bro. Edsall, the much esteemed W.M. of the Mark Lodge of Amity, No. 132. The principal business of the evening was the election of the W.M. for the ensuing year; and, on the ballot being taken, Bro. E. W. Rebbeck, J.W., was unanimously chosen. The other needful business of the evening being transacted, the lodge was closed in solemn form; and, this being professedly a "working" and not an "eating" lodge, the brethren separated without remaining to partake of refreshment.

Knights Templar.

YORKSHIRE.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Hope Encampment (No. 4).—The regular meeting of this Encampment took place at the Freemasons' Hall, on Friday, the 8th inst., for the election of E.C. for the ensuing year. Sir Knt. Thomas Burgess, 1st Captain for 1872, was unanimously elected to the post of E.C. for 1873. The following names are part of the Sir Knts. present:—Sir Knts. John Fisher, P.E.C., Prov. Grand Com. of West Yorkshire; Bentley Shaw, P.E.C., D.P.G.M. of West Yorkshire; J. Perkington, P.E.C., Prov. Grand Mark Master of West Yorkshire; Jonas Craven, P.E.C., Prov. G. Reg. of West Yorkshire; Henry Smith, P.E.C., Prov. Grand Sec. of West Yorkshire; Jowett, P.E.C., &c.; J. Riley, P.E.C.; and several other Sir Knights. The encampment was opened at 7.15, closed at 8.15 in peace and concord. During the evening the Prov. Grand Commander of West Yorkshire gave notice that he intended holding his first Provincial Encampment in the above rooms on the 28th inst., it being the first Provincial Conclave since his installation as Provincial Grand Commander, if it met with the feelings of the Sir Knights belonging to the No. 4 Encampment. The notice was received with pleasure, and they gratefully accepted the honour. The Provincial Grand Conclave will be opened between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, exact time not stated (prelim).

FINE ARTS IN LIVERPOOL.

PROPOSED PRESENTATION TO THE MAYOR AND MR. P. H. RATHBONE.

We understand that a very graceful presentation will shortly be made to his worship the Mayor (Bro. E. Samuelson) and Mr. P. H. Rathbone, both of whom have taken a very important part in the work of fostering a love of the Fine Arts in Liverpool at a time when the public taste in this direction had reached a very low point. The efforts of the above-named gentlemen in originating, establishing and carrying out an annual Fine Arts' Exhibition at the Free Library, William Brown-street, having been crowned with the most signal success, and this has not been unobserved or forgotten by the artists who are more immediately interested in these exhibitions. We hear that two folios of sketches are being got up, to which the most prominent metropolitan and provincial artists represented at the present exhibition are contributors, and these will be presented in the course of a few weeks to Bro. his worship the Mayor and Mr. P. H. Rathbone, in recognition of their valuable services in connection with these Fine Art Exhibitions.

GRAND MASONIC FETE.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES TO THE PUPILS OF THE MASONIC FEMALE ORPHAN SCHOOL, DUBLIN.

This most interesting and brilliant ceremonial took place last evening in the Exhibition Palace. The theatre of this enchanting spectacle was fittingly chosen amid the collected products of the arts and sciences which Masonry has, from the foundation of the world, fostered and promoted. Both the useful and ornamental everywhere met the eye—the silent, instructive poetry of the picture, or the statue and the appliances for daily use in the various departments of handicraft—while the ear was charmed by the enlivening strains of music, and the playing of the cascades emitting a million jets of spray. The base of the orchestra, or platform, was adorned by shrubs and rare exotics, which were also deposited in other parts of the building, contributing to complete the harmonious whole. The proceedings were of the most animated and attractive character, and reflected the highest credit on the members of the grand and venerable Order whom they were organized. If proof were required of the excellence of the Ancient Order of Free and Accepted Masons, it was admirably furnished last evening in the immense crowd of ladies and brethren who had assembled in such a benevolent cause as in support of the orphan daughters of their deceased brethren. The array of respectably clad, intelligent-looking young girls, who occupied the front seats on the platform of the great Concert Hall, and for whose support the assembly of last evening was convened, proved that the members of the Masonic Order not only felt themselves bound together during life, but were not at liberty to forget the orphans of brethren who were unable to leave means of subsistence to their children. Nothing could be more encouraging to the members of the Order than the happy faces that were ranged along the platform enjoying to the full the pleasure of their patrons. The hall was thronged to excess with ladies and brethren—the latter wearing the imposing insignia of the Masonic Order, and the effect was really very pleasing to the eye, whatever way it turned. The brilliant costume of the ladies mingled admirably with the no less bright decorations of the brethren, over their otherwise sombre attire. The Exhibition Committee kindly threw open the entire building for the ceremonial; but they felt themselves bound to limit the number of visitors. It is, however, satisfactory to know that the full quota of 4,500 tickets were taken up, and that fully half as many more might have been disposed of, so numerous were the applications. From very small beginnings, the annual meetings of the supporters of this excellent institution have so increased in dimensions that even the Exhibition Palace can scarcely contain them all. We may state, and truly, that no institution can summon together so many and so influential patrons as the Masonic Female Orphan School, and we trust that soon we can say that the Masonic boys' Orphan School will be on the same footing. From about a dozen or so the girls have quadrupled in number, and from being taught so much as would be necessary to remove them very little above the lower ranks in life, as formerly; the present inmates of the institution are fitted for higher spheres, and many who have recently left it are in positions above which, had their parents lived, they could hardly have aspired. The school is admirably managed, and we were glad to see by an incident that occurred last night, that not merely school discipline but fatherly kindness and tenderness are brought to bear on the young orphans. Bro. Samuel B. Oldham, secretary of the school, was surprised as well as, we are sure, delighted, at being made the recipient of a beautiful ormolu clock, the gift of the pupils, as a testimony of his kindness and attention to them. The gift was graceful, and, well deserved, besides being admirably calculated to maintain the confidence of its supporters in the management of the institution. We trust soon to see an annual meeting of the kind for both the Masonic Female and Boys' Schools. Before the proceedings commenced, the meeting was enlivened with the performance of admirable programmes of music by the bands of the 1st Royal Dragoons under the direction of Mr. Heidlemann, and of the Royal Irish Constabulary, under Bro. J. P. Clarke, both bands performing both before and after the ceremonial, while the company enjoyed an agreeable promenade. The doors were opened at seven o'clock, and we rarely witnessed any edifice filled so speedily as was the Concert-hall and the Palace itself on this occasion, the managers having kindly thrown open the Picture Galleries Loan Museum, and entire building for inspection. At eight o'clock the brethren to occupy places on the platform, about 250 assembled in the corridor off the Leinster Hall, and a procession having been formed, it conducted the Grand Master from the Leinster Hall to the Grand Concert-hall in the following order along a raised platform in the centre of the hall:—

Stewards.

Grand Steward.

Officers of Country Lodges.

Officers of Dublin Lodges, according to seniority, the junior first.

Officers and Members of the Grand Master's Lodge.

Provincial Grand Officers.

Past Grand Officers.

Representatives from Foreign Grand Lodges. The Vice-Presidents, Honorary Officers, and Committees of the Orphan School.

Grand Inner Guard. Grand Organist. Grand Superintendent of Works.

The Grand Deacons, with their Wands.

The Grand Chaplains.

The Grand Treasurer. The Grand Secretary.

The Grand Wardens.

The Grand Sword-bearer, carrying the Sword.

The Deputy Grand Secretary, with the Book of Constitutions.

THE GRAND MASTER.

The Deputy Grand Master. Past Deputy Grand Masters.

The Grand Director of Ceremonies, with his Wand.

Stewards.

On ascending the platform the brethren filed off, according to lodges, and occupied the positions assigned to them by the stewards, the chair having been taken by the M.W. his Grace the Duke of Leinster, Grand Master.

The Grand Master was then saluted, according to ancient custom, by eleven on the third coming down. His reception was cordial in the extreme, and so it should be after a reign of sixty years, during which he has been re-elected every year. In that period the progress of Masonry in this country has been marvellous, not only as to numbers, but with regard to the social position of its members. The pupils of the school then entered the room, two by two, conducted by Bro. Edmund La Touche (hon. sec.), and Bro. Samuel B. Oldham (assistant sec.), and accompanied by Miss Wood, matron, and Miss Cuthbert, resident teacher. The girls were neatly attired in blue, with white opera cloaks, and looked, healthy, bright, and cheerful, and were accommodated with seats on either side of the chair. A portion of the Hundredth Psalm was then sung by the entire assembly, with truly grand effect.

The R.W. Robt. William Sheekleton, Deputy Grand Master, rose and said:—My Lord Duke, Ladies, and Brethren—Holding by virtue of my office as your grace's deputy, the position of Senior V.P. of the Masonic Female Orphan School, I come forward to initiate the proceedings this evening. It has been our custom for some years past, as most of those who hear me are aware, to hold a meeting annually, and at a more seasonable period, for the purpose of presenting the pupils with the prizes which they had been awarded at the examinations. When that system was inaugurated our assemblage was small, our Grand Lodge-room in Dame-street, being sufficient for our requirements. By degrees our proceedings became invested with so much interest, not merely to the members of the Order but to the general public, that of late the number of those desiring to take part in or be present at our ceremonial has become so great that we were unable to procure any edifice sufficiently capacious, except the one in which we are now assembled. During the earlier part of the year the executive of the Exhibition could not accord us permission to hold an annual gathering, and it was only at the beginning of this month they were in a position to promise us the use of the building for this one evening, on the condition, however, of our restricting the number of our tickets of admission far below our usual average, from an apprehension of injury to some of the inestimable works of art entrusted to their care if the building were overcrowded in its present limited available space. It was at first suggested to abandon the holding of any meeting this year, in consequence of the inclement season; but knowing from past experience that such assemblies are attended with signal benefit, financially and otherwise, to the school, and also operate most advantageously on the Order itself by bringing it and its principles so prominently before the public, the Board of Governors determined to brave the consequences of incurring the displeasure, mayhap, of some of the fair sisterhood, who might be unable to procure tickets, owing to the limit placed on our powers of admission, and to hold our reunion at all hazards. I may mention, as resulting from one of our meetings, that a donation of £250 was made to each of the schools recently by a lady who was present at one of these celebrations. (Loud applause). I have thought it but fair to that Board of which I am now the spokesman, to set it right with those who may be unaware of the difficulties it has had to contend with, and to bespeak, if such be necessary, the cordial support of all whom I have the honour to address. On former occasions it devolved on our respected Honorary Secretary to read the annual report; but as that report has been in circulation amongst the Governors for some months, we have omitted that feature from our programme—an omission most acceptable, as I know, to the worthy brother to whom I have alluded. For those who have not had an opportunity of seeing that report I shall very briefly summarise it. The Governors have good reason to congratulate themselves, not merely on the continued prosperity of the institution in a monetary point of view, but also on the marked progress in education of their adopted children. The health of the pupils has, as indeed their looks betoken, been remarkably good. During the fell scourge that visited our city in the early part of this year, and spread terror through all ranks and classes, our orphan charges, by the Divine protection of the Great Architect of the Universe, enjoyed, with one exception, immunity from that loathsome malady, and in that one instance the attack was of a very mild type, and passed away many months since, leaving no ill-effects behind. The answering of the pupils at the examination was marked by singular proficiency, as testified to by all the examiners; and from a perusal of the question-papers, and the number answered, I may frankly admit that very many of the Governors, myself, too, among the number, despite my early training in Alma Mater would have fared badly in the way of prizes in a competitive examination against our pupils. We continue to have the most satisfactory reports of the former inmates of the school, and from time to time we receive the most gratifying communications from those who have left the shelter of its walls and entered on the battle of life. There is only one circumstance which causes us regret, and that is our inability to admit all the helpless ones appealing to us for admission in the names of our departed brethren, an inability, too, caused not by want of means, but by want of accommodation. The enlargement of the Institution engages the anxious attention of the Board; and though we are at present hampered by some legal difficulties, I trust that we shall ere long be in a position to open our portals wide for all who claim our aid; and that, instead of being obliged, as at present, to select a limited number from the list of candidates, we can cheer each widowed mother's heart by the assurance that a home is secured for her fatherless ones. I have spoken more at large than I intended on behalf of our Girls' School, and although this meeting is peculiarly set apart for it, I do not think it amiss to solicit the kind support of the Order on behalf of the Masonic Boys' School—not to withdraw one fraction from the subscriptions to the Girls' School, but, by calling attention to the admirable working and success of the older institution, to invite those who have subscribed to it to double their work of charity and subscribe also to the Boys' School, in order to establish it on an equally firm basis. (Loud applause.) Bro. Lord Powerscourt requested that I would apologise for his absence, which I regret to say is caused by the serious illness of a very near relative. We also received an apology from Bro. Maxwell Close who was to have addressed the meeting. Bro. Lord Athlumney, at a moment's notice, has kindly consented to take his place. (Applause.)

One of the pupils, Lizzie Williams, then played a pianoforte solo—"Carnaval Espagnol" (Delieux)—in a style displaying an amount of proficiency that created much surprise, and gained for her the warmest plaudits of the immense audience.

Lord Claud John Hamilton, M.P., who was received with loud cheering, again and again renewed, proposed the first resolution, which was as follows:—

"That the thanks of this meeting are due to the members of the several committees of the institution, and also to the honorary officers of the School for the zealous and efficient manner in which they have discharged the duties devolving upon them."

When silence had been restored his lordship said:—My Lord Duke, Ladies and Gentlemen,---Amongst the many public duties which men are called upon to perform there is none more pleasing than to be the medium of conveying to those who undertake positions of trust and responsibility the thanks of large bodies of their fellow creatures for the manner in which they have performed the trust confided to their charge. I feel it to be an especial pleasure to-night, upon this, the first opportunity upon which I have ever been able to attend one of your grand Annual Masonic Meetings, to be, myself, the means of conveying to those who have given their time and labour gratuitously to the welfare of our Masonic Orphan School, the resolution which has been placed in my hands as follows:—"That the thanks of this meeting are due to the members of the several committees of the institution, and also to the honorary officers of the School, for the zealous and efficient manner in which they have discharged the duties devolving upon them." I believe that resolution would be passed unanimously by you here present this evening without any further words of recommendation from myself, but perhaps you will allow me, in consideration of the few opportunities which I have of meeting the citizens of Dublin, amongst whom for three years I found my home, and from whom I, as well as other members of my family, always received a generous hospitality, if I trespass upon your attention for a few moments for a few words in support of this resolution. Amongst the many institutions connected with the mighty Order to which it is our pleasure to belong, I believe there is not one that fills a position of greater utility than does our Dublin Masonic Orphan School. No doubt, it is hardly capable of meeting all the requirements of the present day, of the vastly increasing wants of the Masonic Order in Ireland; but so far as its capabilities go I believe it is conducted upon principles of the highest efficiency, and in as perfect a manner as possible. Its expenses are also administered in the most economical manner and at a very small outlay. And how is this great result effected? I believe it is mainly due to those gratuitous services which are received from the honorary committees in connection with the institution, and to whom I am now standing here to move a vote of thanks on your behalf. We have in the first instance the education committee whose care it is to decide what instruction these tender children beneath me should receive, each according to her station and her wants. We have then the astute committee of gentlemen who receive the subscriptions to our funds, and who decide how those funds had best be controlled and administered. We then come to a committee to which I for one say our deep respect and our homage is due. Where would the Masonic Orphan School be were it not for the Ladies' Committee? (Applause.) To their energy, to their judgment, to their punctual attendance, to the assiduity with which they perform the onerous duties of the committee in their charge, is I believe, to a great extent, the cause of the present efficiency of our school. To their care and kindness, to the tender solicitude which they show to everyone of these little children who hardly feel the want of what we who have been more favoured, perhaps, by Providence can feel and appreciate to its full extent—the want of a mother's love.—(applause)—that want these ladies fulfil to the best of their power. Little do these poor children know what they miss in the early training in those first great principles of morality which generally are inculcated to us in our early youth by the tender care of a mother. This want indeed is, I believe, supplied to a great extent by this ladies' committee. I believe I shall not be accused of flattery even, if I, in the presence, of this assemblage of ladies, who shed a brilliant lustre to this meeting by the grace of their presence, if I quote those—and as a bachelor I may quote any lines without labouring under the imputation of dedicating these lines to any one lady in particular—(laughter)—lines of the well known song—

Where'er there's the smile of a woman,
As bright as the beam from above,
There's a rose looking in at the window,
And filling that dwelling with love.

(Applause.) To the ladies, therefore, of that committee I tender my homage, and I am sure every gentleman here present, in this great assemblage, will agree with me in according to them our earnest and our heartfelt thanks for their services rendered during the past year. But, ladies and gentlemen, I said just now that the funds of our institution are hardly equal to the increasing demands upon us—the great increase of the Masonic Institution in Ireland. And surely when there is such need of extending the Masonic School, an appeal in this age of riches and luxury, when the material wealth of this country is increasing week after week, and year after year, an appeal for an increase of the subscriptions to our school ought not to be made to you and the Masonic Order in Ireland in vain. We are, indeed, doing the most that our funds enable us, but there is still a great work to be performed, and I appeal to you present this evening, and also to the Masonic body in Ireland, to meet with a hearty response the appeal which will be made to you to-night to increase your subscriptions to the Masonic School. I have now merely to express in the terms of the resolution which I moved, that to those four committees our thanks are due to-night, for having during the short time at their disposal been the additional means of increasing the scope of the work, and the utility of their operations, and of expressing a hope that they may soon be, under the blessing of Providence, instrumental in securing to us additional advantages conferred on the Masonic body by this Dublin Masonic Orphan School. (Loud applause.)

Lord Athlumney, Senior Grand Warden, in seconding the resolution said that after the eloquent address they had just heard, he had very little to say. There was nothing that he would not do within his means, and within his power to help forward the interests of so deserving a charity as the Masonic Female Orphan School. Nothing could be more painfully interesting than the particulars of the applications which were periodically laid before the board for admission to fill up the vacancies which occurred in the school. They would be sufficient to melt the heart of any Christian. They talked of destitution, of misery, and wretchedness, but these were general terms, and it was not until the misery, wretchedness, and destitution were brought, so to speak, into the focus of their own eyes, that they knew what destitution, misery, and wretchedness really meant. Having spoken of the charity, he must say a word for those who gave them their time and labour for the institution. Money would not be sufficient, unless kind and charitable individuals were found who would devote their time and labour to the furtherance of the institution; and to these kind people their warmest thanks were due. How could those who had leisure and opportunity better display their thankfulness than in using them in the furtherance of such a charity as this (applause).

The resolution having been passed by acclamation, a solo was played on the pianoforte by another pupil of the school in an equally creditable manner compared with the previous performance, and well deserving of the abundant applause it received.

The R.W. Judge Townsend said he had to propose a resolution which he was sure everyone of the Masonic Order, and everyone who knew anything of the Order would think, ought to pass by acclamation. It was an expression of their gratitude to their noble Grand Master, for his presence that evening (loud and prolonged applause), and for his long continued kindness in supporting the institution. His Grace, perhaps, as he himself and many present would well remember, when the assemblies of the institution were very different indeed, in material and in aspect from that which he had now the honour to address. It was not more than twelve or thirteen years ago when they found some trouble in persuading a few friends to look on at the distribution of the prizes after the annual examination, while now the difficulty was to exclude everybody. Having been for many years in constant communication with the Grand Master he felt many ought surely to know how deep an interest the Noble Duke had taken in the welfare of an institution of which he had been for more than half-a-century a munificent supporter (hear, hear, and applause). Now, it had plenty of friends; but at the time he alluded to there were many members of the Masonic Order, even in Dublin, to whom the existence of the Orphan School was actually unknown. He was sure it would be an ignominy and disgrace to any Mason who should be ignorant of its existence—aye, or not contributing to its support directly or indirectly. As a consequence, instead of the institution maintaining only 10 or 12 children and affording an education that would fit the pupils for comparatively humble positions, there were now in it treble the number who received a very high education. They had now a flourishing school, and it would be more so still; for why should they not have means when he considered what the Order was over which the Duke of Leinster so long presided, and he firmly trusted would long continue to preside. How did they want influence? They had been opposed here and there; but as far as he could judge from appearance, the opposition had not been very successful (hear, hear, and cheers). He felt assured that the resolution, which proposed voting honour to one who was so dear to the heart of every Irishman, and who recommended himself to them not more by his high station and long services than by his brotherly kindness and affection—would be carried by acclamation (applause). It only remained for him to read the resolution:—

"That the thanks of the Governors of the Freemasons' Female Orphan School are due, and hereby tendered, to His Grace the Duke of Leinster for his kindness in attending this present meeting, and for his long-continued support of the institution."

The Hon. David R. Plunket, Q.C., M.P.,—Right Worshipful Sir, Ladies, and Brethren all, mine is a very easy task, only to second what has been so ably proposed to you—that the thanks of this meeting be given to the Duke of Leinster, our Most Worshipful Grand Master. (Hear, hear.) I shall have little difficulty in urging that upon you. But, before I say a word in that respect, I am sure His Grace will pardon me, and will join with me whilst I perform a task which has been reserved until now, and left to my unworthy hands—kept, I believe, as a bonne bouche, as the pleasantest of all our tasks; and that is to thank the ladies who have honoured us by their presence here this evening. (Hear, hear, and applause.) I should like to tell you a Masonic secret if I could. (Laughter.) But all the secrets I know I must not tell you, and the secret which I would tell you if I could I don't know—(renewed laughter),—and that is the secret that our Court has of gathering together in this hall the most beautiful ladies, I believe, in all Ireland. (Cheers.) When my noble friend, our brother, Lord Claude Hamilton—(applause),—tendered his homage to the ladies here present, he said that he was sure he would escape the imputation of being particular in his attentions. (Laughter.) That was a gallant speech coming from the late candidate for Derry. (Renewed laughter and applause.) But I have no notion that the late candidate for Dublin should yield to him in gallantry in his own city. (Laughter, and loud applause.) Therefore I say I hope I may not escape the imputation of tendering my homage to every lady in particular. (Laughter and cheers.) You see I am not daunted, but I confess I am bewildered, for—

“Thick as stars that lighten
 Von airy bowers—yon airy bowers;
 The countless eyes that brighten
 This hall of ours—this hall of ours.”

(Cheers.) Ladies and brethren, an idea occurred to me just now which I was thinking of tendering to our Grand Master, though it is hardly necessary. Yet, in this day of confusion in all trades, we do not know what may happen to us. It may be that some day—I do not believe it will, at least, under our present Grand Master—there may be a strike among the Freemasons. (Laughter.) But if there ever is, I will venture humbly to suggest to our Grand Master a means of getting over the difficulty. I think it will be more successful than a similar operation lately performed at Geneva. I advise him to adopt the principle of arbitration—(laughter),—and to call in as his arbitrators the ladies who are here to-night. (Laughter.) I have no doubt that we should be in the wrong, and, that being so, the ladies will very properly decide with the Grand Master. But, at all events, we can never impugn the impartiality of their judgment, for to the end of time, I am sure, we will all admit that these arbitrators are, in every sense of the word, the most fair. (Great laughter, and applause.) Ladies and brethren all, I have no intention of entering here on what I may call general topics—that is to say, I am not going to defend this Order against the accusations so often brought against it—solely brought, though ridiculous. We are accused of being inimical to the safety of the State on account of our politics, and to religion. Well, I will not waste your time pronouncing defences to such charges. All I know is this, that in Freemasonry we have no politics (hear). We have no party save that one party which is ever loyal to the Government (hear). And as to religion, I say it with all reverence, whilst Masonry is founded on religion in its best and broadest sense—whilst Masonry holds with open eyes to look stedfastly to the fountain of all light and of all religion—to the differences which so often dissever Christians, so often mar Christianity—to such differences I say Freemasonry is colour-blind (cheers). But though I will not dwell on these general topics, I will take leave to say a word about that for which we are gathered here to-night. This is the Annual Festival of the Masonic Female Orphan School, and I will ask you how could Masonic charity be better engaged? What can be more truly charitable? I believe that charity can be best measured in its extent by the smallness and helplessness of the object upon which that charity is lavished. And if that be a true definition of charity, I ask you to picture to yourselves, in all the wide world, an object more helpless and pitiable than a little orphan girl (cheers). Again, I say, it is truly “Masonic” charity, because the essence of Masonry is to come unto the assistance of a brother—a deserving brother, for in Masonry there are undeserving brothers, as there must be undeserving men in all classes of society, in all gatherings of men. But I say to come in to the aid of a deserving brother is the task of Masonry in its uttermost hour of need. Let me put it to you—what is the deepest hour of distress at which a man can arrive? I will try to realize to you what may have been the circumstances; I will ask you to realize, in all solemnity, what must have been the circumstances when each of these little ones first became an orphan; I will ask you to realize it that you may see whether that was the right moment for Masonic charity to step in and do its office. You must suppose that a good and faithful Mason has come to his last hour—

“The Master on high from his star-studded dome,
 His great mandate has issued to summon him home;
 And the Brother was found to be duly prepared,
 In the Grand Lodge on high to receive his reward.”

But though he was prepared and willing to obey the mandate of the great Master, he was not prepared, and he was unwilling to leave behind him his little girl that was so helpless and so pitiful. Then, I say, there must have come to his recollection this thought, that when first he saw the light of Masonry he became aware of what was unknown to him till then—that the right hands of fellowship were extended to him all round, and that then and for ever he was a Mason. Then again, I say, at that awful moment, when the greater light of a grander Masonry must in a few moments roll in endless volumes on his astonished sight—in that awful moment, in the darkness of death, he felt that the old scene was being repeated, and that the right hands of the Brotherhood were eagerly stretched out to grasp the tender fingers of his little girl—strong hands eagerly stretching out to guide carefully the little tottering footsteps, and he knew the little life so dear to him would be handed to the care of good women, that she might be lovingly tended and purely taught, till in her turn again she might become the wife and mother of a good and faithful Mason. (Cheers.) Now, I say that I believe that this, as completely as anything, I could say, would realize to you the true office, object, idea, and theory of the schools we are here to-night to support. And now, ladies and brethren all, it only remains for me to add my humble tribute to what has been so well said by our brother, the Past Deputy Grand Master, and that is to ask you to offer a tribute of thanks to our Right Worshipful Grand Master. (Cheers.) We cannot wish him any happiness or any dignity that he does not already enjoy. He has all that should attend upon old age—honour, love, obedience, troops of friends. We can wish him no more. All we can wish him is, that he may long live to enjoy them. (Loud and prolonged cheers.) I will venture to close what I have said to you with words far better than any I could coin, for they are written by Shakespeare. He wished to describe the office and the merits of a great public servant, who loved the people of his country well:—

“May he long continue
 In his high office, and do justice
 For truth's sake and his conscience, that he,
 When he has run his course and sleeps in blessedness,
 May have a tomb of orphan's tears wept on him.”

(Applause.)

The resolution was carried, amid the most cordial demonstrations.

Judge Townsend, on behalf of the children, presented Bro. Samuel B. Oldham (assistant secretary) with a handsome drawing-room time-piece, as a testimonial of their affection, esteem, and gratitude, accompanying it with a most laudatory encomium on Bro. Oldham, for the manner in which he had performed the duties devolving on him, which was endorsed by the hearty demonstrations of the brethren.

The testimonial was then presented to Mr. Oldham, who in acknowledging the gift, said he felt unable to express his thanks to the dear children for their kind expression of regard. He assured them it was quite unnecessary to add this golden link to the chain that had bound them together so many years to convince him of their esteem (applause).

The procession then reformed, and conducted the Grand Master to the dais in the glass building, where he presented the pupils with the various prizes and certificates awarded to them at the examination.

Shortly after eleven o'clock the assemblage began to separate.

GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

The Grand Orient of France in conformity with the decision of the last General Grand Orient Meeting, assembled at their Grand Orient Rooms, 16, Rue Cadet, Paris, on Monday, the 9th September last, at 9 a.m.

The Grand Orient was opened by Bro. de St. Jean, Vice-President of the Council of the Order, assisted by the following members of the Council:—Bros. Roche, Senior Warden; Moreane, Junior Warden; Caubet, Orator; Bemond, Assist. Orator; Pouille, Secretary; Galbert, Expert; Jehan, Almoner; Ferdine, Master of Ceremonies; and several other members of the Council.

The Grand Orient having been declared open, the President read a letter from Bro. Baband Lanbiere, President of the Council of the Order.

The letter was dated the 27th August, from Perpignan. Bro. Lanbiere expressed regret that he was unable to assist at the present meeting, as he wished to take part in the important discussions that would necessarily take place, but he especially wished to render homage to two eminent members of the Council who had left during the winter for the Grand Lodge above, Bros. Montanier and Bataille. He knew Bro. De St. Jean would fully replace him, and that his absence would not be noticed. He desired to express his thanks to the members of the Council and assembly for the marks of friendship and confidence he had met with while President of the Order. He, however, while refusing to become again a candidate for the Presidency of the Order, assured them that he was not the less entirely devoted to the general principles of Freemasonry, and that he would always take a lively interest in the proceedings of the Council and assembly.

Bro. St. Jean expressed his regret that the assembly was deprived of the clear and intelligent direction of Bro. Lanbiere, but that he would do his best to fill the office until the nomination of a President; in doing so he was sure he could rely upon the assistance and indulgence of his brethren.

Letters of excuse from several brethren were next read.

The Vice-President next called upon Bro. Thevonot to call the roll of the members of the Council and delegates of lodges; 255 brethren were found to be present representing 261 lodges of different degrees. They were all sworn in as members of the assembly.

Nine different Boards were then appointed, after which the Vice-President asked if the members intended to proceed at once to the election of President, or if they wished the members of the different Boards to consult on the subject.

Bro. Hubert proposed to postpone the nomination until the next meeting, which Bro. Lonba proposed be held the same evening at 4 o'clock: adopted. The members of the several Boards were requested to assemble at 2 o'clock p.m.

The Grand Orient was opened at 4 o'clock, and forty-four fresh members admitted and sworn, after which the election of President was proceeded with, there being 231 voters present, thus making 116 an absolute majority. The result of the ballot was as follows:—

Bro. de St. John Jean	...	128
„ Duncane	27
„ Lonba...	19
„ Calfarim	16
„ Massol	14

There were eleven others named, three of them had only 1 vote each, four 2 votes, two three votes, and two 4 votes each.

On the completion of the ballot Bro. De St. Jean vacated the President's chair, which was filled by Bro. Grain, who announced the result, and proclaimed Bro. De St. Jean President of the General Assembly of the Grand Orient of France for the session of 1872, and called upon the brethren to signify their approval by a triple fire. This having been done in almost hearty manner, Bro. Grain handed the President's G. to Bro. St. Jean and gave him the fraternal embrace, and expressed his sincere congratulations.

Bro. St. Jean expressed himself much moved by the confidence which the assembly placed in him, in appointing him to that high office; he thanked them and assured them he would endeavour to prove himself worthy of the honour and confidence.

When the assembly of the Grand Orient of France met last year they had been separated for months by the cruel events which had desolated the country; at this moment it would be presumptuous to predict the future destinies of France, but few would have imagined that in such a short space of time she would have presented to the world the spectacle of a people that had been brought to the lowest possible point, drawing fresh will and energy from the frightful disasters which appeared about to crush her. Today hope has re-entered our hearts, and we are able, without to much presumption, to look the future in the face with calmness.

It belongs not to us in this circle to ask for and to proclaim the course of events during the war, unknown perhaps in the history of nations, but nothing hinders us from verifying them, and we rejoice to be able to do so.

It is not forbidden us to point out the part taken by Masons in this overflow of generous sentiments which has pervaded the bosoms of all the people of France during the late contest, and how many were the great sacrifices which were imposed on all our people. Without doubt, my brethren, it would be superfluous—before you, above all, who have been the witnesses and actors of the scenes—to recall here the bright proofs of devotion to country which French Masons have given during these years of misfortune.

The Masonic documents preserved by the Grand Orient fully show with what patriotic ardour lodges and Masons of all rites have responded to the call of our country. These documents which are augmented day by day will be published under the title of the Book of Gold of Freemasonry; it will testify to future Masonic generations that their ancestors were faithful to their engagements and duties as Masons and citizens.

On this occasion, my brothers, I may be permitted to express our heartfelt thanks to those foreign brothers whose sympathy for France and the cause she defended was not confined to expressions only, but who perilled their lives in hastening with admirable generosity to our succour. They have given us a noble example in acknowledging the duty that unites men of the same way of thinking; this sentiment has ever assisted the march of progress and civilization. You will be able to comprehend, my brothers, that it is not without a great injury to their resources that our lodges has been able to face the sacrifices which their patriotic feeling imposed upon them; the consequence is many of them have been disastrous; in short, during this epoch a few lodges (four only) have returned their Warrants, the dispersion of their members, and the expenditure of all their funds have rendered it impossible for these lodges to continue their work, the Council of the Order have under these circumstances, acceded to their request: a greater number more than fifty have shown no signs of life during the past two years, and we fear that the same causes will have for those lodges the same consequences as those which have recently been struck off our roll.

Let us, however, hope that for the former and the latter all hope is not lost, and that when circumstances improve they will not delay in resuming the labours which imperious necessity alone interrupted. We know the Masonic faith of the small number of members which remain to represent these lodges; we know with what ardour they are animated; and we doubt not, that when the time arrives (the Columns of their Temples, which to day are deserted) they will be assured that the Grand Orient of France will do all in their power to second their efforts.

To the losses which we have enumerated, my brothers, it is now my painful duty to speak of others, the loss of which wrings my heart. You are all aware of the agitations which exist among the lodges in Alsace and Lorraine—lodges which the Grand Orient of France considered as among the number of her most solid columns. To the last moment we hoped that these lodges would be permitted to remain with us, and we deluded ourselves with the hope that the German Masonic governing power would, inspired by the true sentiments of Freemasonry respect the traditions, and the laws which to this day have governed our institution, comprehending how heartbreaking it is to separate against their will, the children from the mother; but the Germans have not been animated by these feelings, and it would be purile in us to be astonished at any outrageous act they may commit.

Our lodges in Alsace and Lorraine have received positive instructions to discontinue all relationship with the Grand Orient of France after a certain period, the time allowed being very short indeed. I have no need to tell you the reply made by our brethren of these provinces, faithful to their oath, and not less faithful in their attachment to the mother-country, our brothers have replied that if their lodges cease to belong to the Grand Orient from whom they derived their existence, they will close their lodges and terminate their labours in Masonry. Thanks! a thousand thanks to them, my brothers, for the sentiments which has inspired this response—sentiments which softens the pain, and regret we naturally feel when we think of the separation with which we are menaced.

This separation my brothers, will it be for ever—Ah! that is for the future to determine; but let us determine to be unceasing in our efforts; let us devote all our will and energy to bring them again back to our fold.

To complete the enumeration of those lodges which have ceased their work under the Grand Orient of France, we must mention the seven lodges that we have recently constituted in Hungary; but this separation to which we have willingly consented, is both honourable to our Grand Orient and to these lodges which have constituted themselves into a Grand Orient for Hungary; having requested our permission to do so, in terms which demonstrate their attachment to the Grand Orient of France and the regret they feel at the separation.

We have not hesitated to enter into their views and to contribute to the foundation in that beautiful country of a Grand Orient composed of elements the most recommendable, and with which we entertain relations the most affectionate and fraternal.

With regard to the pictures we have drawn of the losses sustained by the Grand Orient of France, and of the disasters of our country—all calculated to try our fidelity,—you will I am certain, experience a lively satisfaction in learning that the greatest number of our lodges have not succumbed, and that their work has only been interrupted for a time—without doubt many of them will be under the necessity of asking you to exonerate them from charges which at this moment they are unable to support. The Council of the Order with the advice of the commission of finances, have recommended that they should be released from all liabilities—for two reasons—first, that as citizens they were subjected to losses in common with others and so have little to spare for the purpose of making good the funds of their respective lodges, and second that their work may not be interrupted and that they may not be prevented from rendering us assistance at this important general assembly—we hope you will give your consent to the arrangement.

We have now, my brothers, to convey information likely to inspire legitimate satisfaction, and give us hope for the future. During the last few months, the Council of the Order has constituted ten new lodges in France and other countries, others are applied for, and we trust the progress so happily recommenced may continue to flow steadily onward.

At this moment the Grand Orient of France, in spite of the misery of our country and the losses we have met with, has under her authority three hundred and forty lodges in full activity, besides chapters and councils; we are therefore, my brothers, in a position which permits us to hope well for the future.

And now we must turn from these cheering prospects and examine the circumstances which has reduced the funds of our Order, and consider some means by which our affairs may be amended. The report of the Commission of Finances will give you full information on these points, and shew that reduction was principally caused, by exonerations of the different lodges, without which they could not have continued working; the consideration of the means by which our finances may be increased will be a subject for deliberation by this assembly at our future meetings.

The work of the Council of the Order, has not during the past year been very interesting; they however have met thirty-two times for the purpose of deciding upon questions submitted to them by the Masters of different lodges—we are happy to say their decisions have been well received and generally adopted.

The Council of the Order has given marked attention to all complaints relative to irregularities in elections and initiations held contrary to the rules of the Order—that initiations took place without due enquiry having been made as to the fitness of the candidate; these irregularities are calculated to create divisions in lodges where such neglect of the general statutes of the Order are exhibited.

In an institution like ours, in which reigns a democratic spirit, the first and most imperious duty of those in office or anxious for the welfare of our Order is to obey the law.

You have obliterated from your constitutions all laws and customs which appears to you not in accordance with modern ideas; you should therefore the more readily uphold and respect the rules and regulations framed by yourselves. Doubtless our laws has not always responded to our ideas or aspirations, there are sometimes points not met by them as you might wish, but you should remember that they are the result of the deliberations of your own general assembly, the violations of which only serve to produce confusion and anarchy. Our doors are ever open to any matter which time or experience may demonstrate to be useful—they will be favourably received and carefully considered.

It now remains, my brothers, to inform you how our relationship with Foreign Grand Lodges stand; we are happy to be able to inform you that with one exception they are all we could desire; and during this as well as the preceding year a fraternal and sympathetic character, calculated to inspire us with the most lively hopes for the future, and give great satisfaction at the present time.

Two Grand Lodges, those of Canada and New Caledonia, have requested acknowledgement from the Grand Orient of France, and wish to establish official relationship with us. We have in our usual fraternal manner agreed to their request, and have nominated as our representatives at their respective Grand Lodges, brethren whose Masonic qualities are such as recommend them to our choice, and we now call upon you to ratify these appointments made by the Council of the Order.

Before terminating these few imperfect remarks on our past work permit me to make a few observations.

It is hardly becoming in me I know, to offer advice to an assembly like this, composed of the elite of the Masonic Order; however, my brothers, I cannot resist the desire to offer you a few words of Masonic advice, the value of which has been demonstrated to me by past experience.

If we desire to preserve to our Institution the important position we have acquired; if we wish our Order to be considered of importance to society, its members should be fully agreed as to its duties. Love to our fellow men should induce us to exclude from our lodges all topics calculated to disturb the union of its members. As citizens, we have a right to give our opinion upon all political subjects which are of interest to our country; but as Masons, it is our duty within the bosom of our lodges, to maintain our discussions within the limits traced by the traditions of our Order. Unless we do so the character of Freemasonry will be changed, and there will be little to distinguish us from the societies of the profane—in our re-unions the spirit of concord and fraternity should always reign. If the spirit of discord be once introduced, it will engender feelings of hatred between men who have sworn to love and aid each other, then the inevitable consequences will ensue—the dispeopling of the lodges and ruin of our Order.

To-day, my brothers, that all dissensions which are not purely Masonic should not be permitted at our meetings, would be as far from my thoughts as from my wishes. I know, too well, the salutary influence which our Institution exercises to desire to limit your field of thought or examination.

Freemasonry is an Institution essentially philosophic, progressive, and philanthropic, so that nothing of interest to humanity should be excluded: this ground, my brothers, is vast enough to occupy all those whose generous sentiments and love for humanity prompts them to engage in the labour.

It is a difficult matter to decide between a discussion speculative, and a controversy political; but as a last word, let me ask you to guard our lodges from all discussions contrary to the rules of our Order, and make them a temple in which the candidate not only receives light, but also temples in which reign fraternity and peace.

This speech was loudly applauded on its termination, as well as frequently interrupted by plaudits of the assembly. A short abstract of the remainder of the proceedings of the General Meeting as well as the closing speech of the Orator will be given next week.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

The Annual Meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Northumberland was held on Thursday, the 21st inst., at the Assembly Rooms, Newcastle-on-Tyne, under the banner of the Northumberland Lodge, No. 685. In the absence of R.W.P.G.M., the Right Hon. Earl Percy, through indisposition, the W.D.P.G.M., L. W. Cockcroft, Esq., presided, who was supported by a large number of P.G. officers and brethren of the Province. In opening the Lodge the D.P.G.M. expressed his great regret at the absence through illness of Earl Percy, a regret which he was sure would be shared in by all the brethren present, and he hoped his Lordship would soon be restored to health. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read by the Prov. G. Sec., Bro. B. J. Thompson, and confirmed. The P.G. Treas., Bro. Thomas Anderson, presented a most favorable financial statement.

The reports of the various committees were read, after which the W.M.'s of the different Lodges in the Province presented their reports of the condition of their respective Lodges, which proved to be of a highly satisfactory nature. The figures given showing the total number of subscribing members in the Province to be 996. The D.P.G.M., on behalf of Earl Percy, then invested the following Officers for the ensuing year: P.G.S.W., Bro. Thomas Anderson, 541; P.G.J.W., Bro. John Straker Wilson, 481; P.G. Chaplain, Bro. Rev. R. Broughton, 481; P.G. Treas., Bro. T. B. Winter, 541 (elected); P.G. Reg., Bro. Addison Potter, 991; P.G. Sec., Bro. B. J. Thompson, 481; P.G.S.D., Bro. T. C. Clarke, 431; P.G.J.D., Bro. T. Blenkinsopp, 541; P.G. Supt. Works, Bro. J. Cook, 1342; P.G.D.C., Bro. E. D. Davis, 685; P.G. Assist. D.C., Bro. Jas. Ingledew, 685; P.G.S.B., Bro. W. S. Hughes, 406; P.G.O., Bro. R. Watson, 541; P.G.P., Bro. Jno. Edminson, 24; P.G. Tyler, J. S. Trotter, 685. The business of the Lodge being concluded the brethren dined together in the Assembly Rooms under the presidency of W.D.P.G.M., Bro. L. W. Cockcroft. The dinner was provided by Mr. Thos. Grey, of the Adelphi Hotel, and gave great satisfaction. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk after dinner, interspersed by glees, etc., sung by a party of glee singers, which were highly appreciated, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

FREEMASONRY IN QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE.—Prince of Wales' Lodge, (No. 908.)—At the regular meeting of this lodge, held at the Masonic Hall, Brisbane, on October 1st, 1872, a letter was read from Bro. George Hope Verney, of the Cedars, Esher, Surrey, England (who had been Worshipful Master during the year 1871), advising a gift of a set of plated working tools, and further stating his desire to withdraw from the lodge at the end of the present year; upon the question of the consideration of this letter being brought forward, the Right Worshipful Deputy District Grand Master (Bro. Manning), after adverting to Bro. Verney's zeal for Masonry and his kind consideration of this lodge in particular, as evidenced by his large munificence during his year of office, when he defrayed the working expenses from his private purse, as well as this unlooked for and much valued gift, expressed his regret that Bro. Verney should retire from the lodge, in which he felt sure all the brethren would join, and proposed that he should be elected an honorary member. It was not at all a usual thing for the Prince of Wales' Lodge to have honorary members, indeed Bro. Verney would only be the second who had been so honoured; he had no hesitation in saying "honoured," for he was sure it was so esteemed when conferred by that lodge, and Bro. Verney would consider it so. The motion was seconded by the S.W., and carried unanimously. Bro. Captain Verney who was A.D.C. to His Excellency the late Governor Blackall, of Queensland, was elected W.M. for the year 1871, but on the decease of His Excellency he had to rejoin his regiment, and therefore leave the colony without actually working his whole year of office; he did so regretfully, and it will be seen he has not ceased to feel a deep interest in the lodge to which he had attached himself whilst residing there.

Masonic Tidings.

Bro. the Right Hon. E. Bootle-Wilbraham, Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.D.P.G.M. for West Lancashire, has been appointed Honorary Colonel of the 6th Administrative Battalion of Lancashire Volunteer Rifles.

THE ROYAL NAVAL VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT IN LIVERPOOL.—On Wednesday, the 20th inst., a meeting for the furtherance of this laudable movement, with which several leading Masons in Liverpool have identified themselves, was held at the Mercantile Marine Association Rooms, Tower-buildings, Water-street, but as there were nothing but preliminary business before the meeting, the proceedings were private. Mr. S. R. Graves, M.P.; Mr. W. Rathbone, M.P.; Mr. C. Aspinall (Borough Coroner); Bros. H. Scott, J. K. Smith, W. Crane, and J. Lloyd were amongst those present; and we understand that after a long and friendly conversational discussion a provisional Committee was appointed to carry out arrangements with the view to the speedy enrolment of the Royal Naval Volunteers as a branch of our coast defence. Already a goodly number of names have been received, and there is every prospect that the movement will speedily be an accomplished fact.

YARBOROUGH LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 554. "Green Dragon Tavern," Stepney.—The Annual Festival of this, one of the oldest lodges of Instruction in the East End of London, will take place on Tuesday next, the 26th inst., Bro. Geo. W. Verry, the W.M. of the parent lodge will preside on the occasion.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital 771
 The Surrey Masonic Hall Company 771
 Consecration of the Faith Chapter, No. 141..... 772
 Consecration of a Chapter at Abergavenny 77
 Grand Lodge of Florida 773
 Masonic Tidings 773
 Welcome to St. Mungo..... 774
 CORRESPONDENCE :—
 Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital 775
 An Old Masonic Print 775
 Reviews 775
 United Grand Lodge 776
 Grand Mark Lodge 778
 CRAFT MASONRY :—
 Metropolitan 778
 Provincial 778
 ROYAL ARCH :—
 Provincial 779
 MARK MASONRY :
 Metropolitan 779
 Provincial 779
 KNIGHTS TEMPLAR :—
 Provincial 780
 Obituary 780
 Provincial Masonic Lodges and G. Lodge of Scotland 781
 Masonic Meetings for next week 781
 Advertisements..... 769, 770, 781, 782, 783, 784

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Freres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMRA HOLMES, 31°,

Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.

(Continued from Page 712.)

Bro. Yarker, in his valuable and interesting "Notes in the Temple," I see, asserts positively that Colonel Kemeys Tynte, as Grand Master of the Templars, gave up all control over the degrees Rosæ Crucis and others, and that the same were then taken up by the recently-established Supreme Council. For my own part, whilst I think there is a connection between the Rose Croix and Templar degrees, and whilst I agree with many old members of the Hautes Grades that the former is made too cheap now-a-days, and that it ought to be restricted to Masons who have been installed Knights Templar and Knights of Malta, and not conferred at random, as has too often been the case, upon Masons of no standing and no education, I am strongly of opinion that the Rose Croix, and other high degrees, are best separated from Templary, and placed under the control of the Supreme Council 33°. I venture to express a hope, however, that the time will come when the names of all candidates for the Rose Croix will be submitted to the Supreme Council, or the deputies appointed by them, in the same manner as is now required to be done in the Order of the Temple. By this plan, I am persuaded, will worthy men and worthy men alone be admitted to those degrees which are necessarily restricted, and the chief value of which is in their exclusiveness.

As a very worthy Craft Mason said to me the other day, "What is the use of your high degrees unless they are conferred as the reward of merit? How can I value them when they are given to men whose sole claim is their inordinate ambition and loose cash? Is it right that I, as a hard-working Mason, a ritualist and preceptor, should have no more chance of getting them than A.B. or C.D., who drop their h's and murder the Queen's English?"

A "Masonic Student," writing to "The Freemason's Magazine," 17th August, 1867, disputes the statement made by a "Knight Templar" in a previous number, to the effect that the Baldwin Encampment at Bristol was established by the Templars, who returned with Richard I. from Palestine, and which is mentioned by Mackey in his Lexicon of Masonry, and by other writers.

A "Masonic Student" says, "Historically, too, this connection of Richard I. with the Templars seems very questionable, as it is well known how opposed to him on all occasions were the soldiery of the Temple, and how serious were the dissensions between them."

A "Masonic Student" is one of the most learned and impartial Masonic writers we have, but I venture to think he would hardly have penned the lines he did had he studied—I have no doubt he had perused—Addison's book attentively. Contrast his statement with that of the historian of the Templars. Let it be remembered, too, that Cœur de Lion had many enemies in the East—notably the French—with the Duke of Burgundy at their head, and the Marquis of Montferrat, who was at the head of a strong party.

Says Addison, "The Templars faithfully adhered to the standard of Cœur de Lion. At last, however, after long and weary fighting, the health of King Richard and Saladin gave way." Addison states that their health was in a declining state. "Peace was declared on terms favourable to the Crusaders, who were to retain Tyra, Acre, Jaffa, and the coast between. Immediately after the conclusion of peace, King Richard, being anxious to take the shortest and speediest route to his dominions, induced Robert de Sablè, the Grand Master of the Temple, to place a galley of the order at his disposal, and it was determined that whilst the royal fleet pursued its course with Queen Berengaria, through the straits of Gibraltar to Britain, Cœur de Lion himself, disguised in the habit of a Knight Templar, should secretly embark and make for one of the ports of the Adriatic. This plan was carried into effect on the night of the 25th October, 1192, and King Richard set sail, accompanied by some attendants and four trusty Templars. The habit he had assumed, however, protected him not, as is well known, from the cowardly vengeance of the base Duke of Austria."*

It is only fair to "A Masonic Student," however, to say that Bro. Hughan, quoting "The Freemasons' Magazine" of 1862, † says that Dr. Beaumont Leeson declared that the Baldwin was founded by French Masons, who had brought it from Canada towards the close of the last century, a fact of which he was certain, as the original books were in his own possession.

Bro. Hughan says, "None of the time-immemorial encampments under the present Grand Conclave can or have produced minutes of their meetings before 1770 or 1780." He goes on to say that the Grand Conclave of London was not established till 1791, but that the encampments existed in either Scotland or Ireland at an earlier date.

Bro. Yarker, in his "Notes," ‡ says,* "Even with conclaves of the British system, that of Baldwin had been revived by French Knights, and the Edinburgh Conclave had organised themselves on the plan of the Ordre du Temple."

If I remember right, there was a Temple Lodge established in Bristol in 1759, or thereabouts, and which is included in a list of old lodges, published in the "Freemasons' Magazine" some years since. I believe it is now extinct, but one would be glad to know what, if any, connection there was between it and the Baldwin.

Bro. Woof, in his admirable little work, which I have before quoted, says, "The records of the Baldwin Encampment, Bristol, in 1780, have reference to a long previous existence, evidenced by a vellum document, wherein the encampment is styled as of the Order of Knights Templar of St. John of Jerusalem, Knights Hospitallers, and Knights of Malta. This document refers to other then existing encampments. That the early Templars had considerable property in Bristol is well known, the importance of their possessions in that city being attested by the parish of Temple and the Temple Church. A tradition exists that the Baldwin Encampment is the lineal successor of an institution, founded in Bristol by the warrior monks, whose order there dwells in name, though its glory has passed away."

In a circular letter from the Baldwin, in which it assumed the title of "Supreme Grand and Royal Encampment," a reference is made to the document alluded to by Bro. Woof, and which itself refers to a previously existing document, therein called a "Charter of Compact." After citing some passages from the document, which is dated 1780, bearing upon this charter, the circular goes on to state "It is impossible to desire evidence more clear and satisfactory of the existence in 1780 of a Supreme Grand and Royal Encampment of the Masonic Knights Templar, holding its meetings in Bristol, and presiding over subordinate encampments which acknowledged its authority."

(To be continued.)

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

A meeting of shareholders in this Company, and of others interested in the erection of a building for the purposes of Freemasonry in the Southern District of the Metropolis, was held at Mr. Stevens's Auction Rooms, at Clapham, on Friday, the 29th inst., Bro. Edward Worthington in the chair. The Chairman having explained to the meeting the objects of the Company and detailed the particulars of estimated cost, the means for raising the necessary funds, and the anticipated receipts and expenditure subsequent to the erection of the building, (the site of which he stated, had been secured adjoining the Post Office in Camberwell New-road), Bro. Stevens proposed the first resolution.—viz., "That in the opinion of this meeting the erection of a Masonic Hall for the purposes of Freemasonry in the Southern District of the Metropolis is necessary and advantageous; that the scheme now submitted by the Directors of the Surrey Hall Company appears to be reasonable and capable of being carried out; and the meeting hereby pledges itself to support the undertaking." After expatiating at some length on the evils and discredit which resulted from the present unavoidable connection of most of the Surrey-side lodges with hotels and taverns, and the great injury thereby inflicted upon the dignity and social influence of Freemasonry, Bro. Stevens forcibly directed the attention of the meeting to the fact that in many small provincial towns the brethren had emancipated themselves from the thrall of "mine host," and built for themselves, and for purposes of public good, temples and halls which were alike creditable to them as members of Freemasonry, and profitable as individual stakeholders in the construction thereof. If such laudable efforts could be undertaken by small communities with such perfect results, why, he would ask, with surprise not unmixed with regretful indignation, should there have been for so many years great hesitation amongst the brethren in this district in adopting the proper means for securing like success. The necessity was everywhere acknowledged, and yet, great as the number of lodges were, powerful and influential as so large a proportion of the members of such lodges are known to be, it became an absolute matter of difficulty to enlist that sympathy and support without which the best and most perfect scheme could not hope to succeed. However, he was pleased to say, there was reason to believe that now the Freemasons of this district were thoroughly awakened to their position and the necessity to take steps to preserve their dignity. One or two lodges he could name, because they would not, to the injury of their purses and persons, continue that expenditure on "banquet and refreshment" which had hitherto been the rule instead of the exception, had been within the past month sent to the "right about" by their respective "hosts," and just now would be very glad to have such local habitation as the proposed hall, if built, would have afforded them. To these lodges might be added several others very desirous of emulating the good example of moderation which the former had set, but which they hesitated to follow lest they also should have "notice to quit." Could Freemasonry stand this? Forbid it the dignity of the Order! Let it not be said that we, who profess morality in all our works, and especially enforce on our novitiates the practice of "temperance," are but the serfs of others, whose interest lies in a very different direction. Bro. Stevens continued by submitting that what he had already said might fairly suffice for the necessity for building the contemplated hall, but that in this practical age it might be as well that he should add a few words on the probability of commercial success, and show that the "thing would pay." He therefore "went into figures" at once, and would read certain estimates which he was prepared to maintain had been very fairly made, and which showed that the shareholders of the Company might reasonably expect at least 8 to 10 per cent. on their investments. Having done this, Bro.

* Addison's Knights Templars, page 147. Addison probably quotes this from Vinsauf, lib. 6, chap. 14.

† "Freemason's Magazine," Vol. xviii., page 409.

* Transactions of the Provincial Grand Conclave of Lancashire, 1869, page 68.

Stevens concluded by expressing a hope that the meeting would see fit to adopt his resolution, and his confidence that the support to be pledged thereby would be liberal and earnest.

Bro. Dr. Harrison rose to second the resolution, which he considered to be in every respect worthy of adoption. There could be no doubt that this proposal was a move in the right direction, and although former attempts had failed, probably from bad management, and possibly from their not having those elements of success in their respective schemes which this so assuredly contained, the Surrey Masonic Hall Company, he thought, had now the ball before them, and would certainly attain the goal they sought. Bro. Stevens's exhaustive remarks had left scarce an argument with which to support a resolution in the terms of which he felt sure a perfect agreement would be expressed by those present. He could only say that, although it appeared the hall would be necessary, to secure the commercial success of the Company, he wished that it could become a purely Masonic Hall, for Masonic purposes only, and looking to what had been done elsewhere, he did not see why ultimately it might not become so. This proposal he considered ought to be taken up by the principal Masons, both in this locality and elsewhere, if only to prove the sincerity of their desire for the welfare of the Order, and whether they themselves ever used the building or not, they should help those who appeared to be earnestly and arduously working to secure so great a benefit for Freemasonry generally. For his part he might say, so satisfied did he feel with what he had heard on this occasion, he was certain the Company would have the support of his lodge, both collectively and individually, and promising his personal support, he seconded the resolution with great pleasure.

Bro. E. Frances agreed with Bro. Dr. Harrison in the desire that the proposed hall should be only for Masonic purposes, but feared that the directors were quite right in their belief that to make a commercial success the public use of it at times must be permitted. He would like to ask whether any lodges had yet taken shares, and if not what prospects there were that shares would be applied for by lodges.

The Chairman stated that no lodge had yet, in its collective capacity, applied for shares, but that the subject would be brought forward at once in many lodges, with a view to their becoming shareholders. He might say however that the individual members of one lodge had taken above 50 shares amongst them. There were a very large number of Masons, he regretted to add, who promised support at some indefinite period, say, "when the foundation stone was laid,"—"when the material for the building was on the ground," and so on. Now, if all were like that, no foundation stone would ever be laid, no material ever needed. What was now asked for was confidence and a readiness on the part of those who really had Freemasonry at heart to risk a few shillings, if need be, in the attempt to carry out the undertaking. He could not say if the scheme succeeded,—so many shares having been already allotted it was bound to succeed,—but supposing what was most unlikely to occur, the expenses had been so kept down that all deposits could be returned, minus but a small fraction; so that brethren who meant support ought not to hesitate further about rendering it at once.

Bro. Dr. Goss supported the resolution and wished the Company success.

Bro. R. Lacey also supported the views of the Company, and would at once take ten shares, as an expression of his confidence in the proposed undertaking.

Bro. Wisby and others having spoken in favour, the resolution was put and carried unanimously.

Votes of thanks to Bro. Stevens for the use of his room, and to the Chairman, having been cordially proposed and respectively acknowledged the meeting separated.

CONSECRATION OF THE FAITH CHAPTER, No. 141.

A warrant having been granted by Grand Chapter, for the above, to be attached to the Lodge of Faith, 141, the companions assembled on Friday, the 29th ult., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, for the purpose of consecrating the same. Comp. J. Terry, P.Z. 174 975, having been elected as consecrating officer, occupied the chair of Z.; Comp. T. S. Mortlock (Z. Sincerity) as H.; S. Gluckstein (J. 51, Colchester) as J.

The chapter having been opened and the companions admitted, the acting Z. addressed them on the nature of the meeting; the acting S.E., Comp. W. E. Gompertz, read the petition and the warrant on which was inscribed the following: E. Gottheil as Z. designate; A. E. Harris, H. designate; C. C. Taylor, J. designate, who were duly approved, upon which the acting Z. delivered an oration. The anthems were then chanted and the consecration prayer given with great solemnity. The ceremony of carrying the cornucopia, wine, and oil three times round the chapter having been performed, the second portion of the consecration prayer was delivered.

The Z. then declared the chapter duly constituted. Comp. E. Gottheil was then inducted to the chair of Z., and Comps. A. E. Harris and C. C. Taylor were respectively installed into the offices of H. and J. by the M.E.Z. The following Comps. were then invested, viz:—W. E. Gompertz, S.E.; N. Gluckstein, S.N.; C. F. Hogard, P.S.; J. Kennett, 1st Asst. S.; J. Constable, 2nd Asst. S.; J. S. Mortlock, Z. 186, Treasurer; J. H. Ross, W.S.; Longstaff, Janitor; J. H. Pinder, D.C.

Comp. J. Terry was unanimously elected an honorary member, and the M.E.Z. expressed his high appreciation of Comp. Terry's abilities and more particularly for the efficiency with which he had discharged the onerous duties of the evening. In this the companions most heartily joined, and then proceeded to arrange their future meetings, viz., the last Thursday in January, April and October, the fees as follows: exaltation, three guineas; joining, two guineas; and annual subscription, one guinea and a half. A committee was then appointed to frame the by-laws. The following were proposed for exaltation: Bros. J. Sheldon, 1027 and 1327; Jackson, 141; S. Abrahams, late 141. The chapter was then closed in due form, after which the companions sat down to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Clemow, and ably superintended by Comp. Smith.

The M.E.Z. gave the usual loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. J. Terry rose and proposed the toast of the M.E.Z., and was received with vociferous cheering; he said that the M.E.Z.'s Masonic qualifications were well known, appreciated, and most highly esteemed by both craftsmen and companions, and those assembled might well be congratulated upon having so able a Principal to preside and govern; his abilities must indeed have been of more than an ordinary nature, for the Grand Chapter to award their sanction for the consecration of the Faith Chapter (cheers) while being M.E.Z. of 1056. (Hear). The toast was received with great enthusiasm. Upon the subsiding of the cheers, the M.E.Z. arose, and thereon another outburst of applause greeted him, when in tones of apparent affected emotion, he expressed himself in grateful terms for the honour that had been conferred upon him, and assured the companions of his future exertions in promoting the interests and prosperity of the chapter, and resumed his seat, thanking them for their hearty and kind reception.

The visitors' toast was given, to which the following companions responded:—C.B. Payne, G.T.P.Z.; Stewart, 742; Wagstaff, 720; and H.M. Levy, J. 188. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of the Consecrating Officer, Comp. J. Terry (cheers), and paid him some very high and just encomiums for the very admirable and perfect manner of rendering the consecration ceremony, and doubted if any companion could have rendered it with greater force, eloquence, and precision. Comp. Terry, upon rising, was heartily cheered, and in his usual Masonic style and volubility, thanked the companions for their kind reception. The toasts of H. and J. followed, in which the M.E.Z. complimented them for their zeal and assiduity in being instrumental in the founding of the chapter, and had no doubt that with their united exertions that the Faith would soon be second to none in R.A. Masonry. Comps. A. Harris and C. C. Taylor replied to the toast.

The toasts of the Treasurer, S.E., Officers, and Janitor were given and responded to.

Thus an agreeable evening was spent, productive of unquestionable good, inasmuch as those who have laid the foundation of the Faith Chapter, and perfected it, are Masons worthy of the order, and whose hearts and hands are united in the one grand aim in view, viz., charity; long may they continue in unity and brotherly love, and may they live to know that their fame and good works will be perpetuated, and that the rising generation will emulate their good example.

The following were present:—Comp. W. E. Gompertz, 1056; J. Pindar, 933; M. Bamberger, 1056; J. Constable, and J. H. Ross, 185; J. Kennett, 1956; S. H. Wagstaff, 720; C. E. Hogard, 1056; H. Gluckstein, 141; C. C. Taylor, 141; H. M. Levy, J. 118.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers: 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Hatley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

CONSECRATION OF A CHAPTER AT ABERGAVENNY.

(From the Star of Gwent.)

The consecration of a new Royal Arch Chapter, a ceremony seldom seen in the provinces, took place at Abergavenny on Thursday, 14th ult. The companions mustered in force on the occasion.

Such is the progress of the Craft in this good old town that the brethren are building unto themselves a temple wherein to work after their own fashion. Abergavenny is to have a new Masonic Hall. At present, however, Masonry is lodged at the Town-hall, in apartments spacious and comfortable enough.

On Thursday, the room had been metamorphosed, according to ancient custom, in the Royal Arch degree, a beautiful degree truly, the perfection, the acmé of Craft Masonry. Shall we say more in description? The seal of secrecy is on our lips, the weight of solemn obligation upon our conscience. Yet that degree is beautiful, pure and simple—most beautiful in its simplicity; it captivates strong men, it enamours everybody by its grandeur and truth, and—let us tell the whole secret of Masonry at once—it links in one indissoluble bond all good men and true, a brotherhood the universality of which has been the greatest boast of this great institution. Go to the wilds of Mexico, and claim a Mason amongst the savages. They acknowledge a God! By some subtle influence the Craft has found its way there. Mystic signs have arrested, even in the haunts of the red man, the scalping knife. In India, everybody who knows anything of Masonry, knows that its signs are recognized by Hindoos and Mahomedans. Those who give the signs are allowed to pass into the most sacred places. How is this? Truly, Freemasonry is a wonderful institution, is it not? Even at Abergavenny we had a companion from France, whom nobody knew personally, but who, as a member of the R.A., was welcomed right fraternally. The Principals appointed were Comps. S. George Homfray, M. E.Z.; Henry Higginson, H.; and W. Williams, J.

The consecration was done by Comp. J. Middleton, M.E.Z. St. Woolos Chapter; assisted by Comp. Hillyer, Silurian Chapter. It was a solemn ceremony, interpolated with music, which Comp. H. J. Groves discoursed with his well-known ability. There were "anthems," "chants," and so forth in great profusion, and the Masonic "So mote it be," came in for a good share of vocalisation.

Not fewer than twelve Installed Principals were present at the first mysterious rites of installation, after which some fifty companions were re-admitted to hail the newly-installed Principals according to ancient custom, martial music being performed the while. The M.E.Z. nominated as his officers, Comps. L. A. Homfray, Scribe E.; W. H. Wickey Homfray, Scribe N.; and B. Lawrence, Principal Sojourner. Votes of thanks were passed to Comps. Middleton and Hillyer for their services, and on the motion of the M.E.Z., their names and that of Dr. Brown, of Tredegar, were recorded as honorary members of the Philanthropic Chapter, 817.

Companions Wm. Williams, J., proposed 27 members of the Philanthropic and St. George's Lodges for exaltation. The proposition was seconded by the M.E.Z., and recorded.

The following were present at the consecration:—S. G. Homfray, Z., 471; R. B. Evans, J., 683; R. J. Chambers, J., 683; Thomas Williams, H., 683; Wm. Williams, S.E., 683; C. H. Oliver, P.Z., 471; Wm. Watkins, E., 471; Alfred Taylor, 471, 683; Charles Lyne, P.Z., 471; John Middleton, P.Z., 471 and 683; G. A. Brown, M.E.Z., 1098; Egbert Herbert, 471 and S.N., 1098; Edward Jones, 471; Richard Spencer, 1098; Wm. Pickford, P.Z.; 471; Benjamin Lawrence, P.S. 471 and 683; Henry John Groves Organist, 684; John Lewis, H., 1098; P. A. F. Villiers, 471; James Straker, 471; Edward Sweedenbank, 1098; John Evans, 1098; L. Gravenor, 1098; E. J. Tapson, P.S., 1898; William Davies, 1098; Evan Phillips, 1098; Henry Fletcher, Janitor.

The chapter having been closed in due form, the companions went from labour to refreshment.

The banquet was held at the Angel, and right well did Host Morgan sustain his reputation as a caterer. It has been said that there never was a bad dinner at this celebrated hostelry. On this as on other Masonic occasions, Brother Saunders's nurseries and hothouses were made to pay tribute. The table was beautifully decorated with pot-flowers, and the dessert was really magnificent. One bunch of grapes, weighing nearly 4lbs., was placed before the Chairman.

The toasts were of the usual genial, social, fraternal character. There was "the Queen," followed by the "M.E.Z.," "The Most Hon. the Marquis of Ripon," the head of Royal Arch Masonry.

The M.E.Z., Comp. S. G. Homfray, was proposed by Comp. Colonel Lyne, D.P.G.M., in very complimentary terms, and acknowledged very appropriately.

The M.E.Z. gave "The Health of the E. Comp. Wm. Williams, jun., J." In doing so, he took the opportunity to state that the formation of this chapter was due to the exertions of Comp. Williams.

Comp. Williams returned thanks.

By the M.E.Z. "Comp. Middleton, P.Z., as Consecrating Officer."

By the M.E.Z.: "The officers of the Chapter, coupled with the name of Comp. B. Lawrence, P.S."

By Comp. W. Williams, "The Chapters of the Province."

Dr. Brown, as P.Z. of the Tredegar Chapter, Comp. Hellyer for the Silurian, and Comp. Middleton for the St. Woolos, returned thanks.

By the M.E.Z., "The P.G.M., Colonel Lyne, and the Craft Lodges of the Province."

Comp. Lyne delivered a most excellent address, referring to Craft Masonry as distinguished from the "Chivalric" degrees, as to which a question had been very spiritedly mooted by Dr. Brown. He (Colonel Lyne) said that it had been suggested that a Provincial Grand Royal Arch Chapter should be formed in Monmouthshire. The post of Principal had been offered to him. There were four Chapters now formed in this province, and he should hesitate no longer. He would accept that post (hear, hear).

By Comp. Price, "Visiting Companions," responded to by Comps. R. J. Chambers, and W. Pickford.

By the M.E.Z., "The Press," responded to by Comp. Thos. Williams, of the Star of Gwent.

By Comp. Middleton, "The Host," responded to by Bro. Philip Morgan.

At the banquet many members of the blue lodges joined the purple, and the numbers at the dinner table were not short of 50. It was a genial and right fraternal meeting, and we regret that want of space precludes us from giving in detail the excellent speeches that were delivered.

GRAND LODGE OF FLORIDA.

We are happy to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Florida, for the 42nd Grand Annual Communication. It makes a neat pamphlet of 93 pages. Among the periodicals received at the office of the Secretary, in exchange for proceedings, we observe due mention of the "Freemasons' Repository," monthly, Providence, Rhode Island. The Report on Foreign Correspondence alludes to the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of this State for 1871, as follows:

"This nice little pamphlet gives us the records of a Festival Grand Communication at Providence, on the 24th of June, 1870, the semi-annual Grand Communication, November 21, 1873, and the Annual, at the time first above stated. The festival occasion was devoted to laying the corner-stone, at the Legislature's request, of a monument to be erected to the memory of the soldiers and sailors of Rhode Island who fell in the late war."

The following rulings of Grand Master Pasco, on the physical disqualifications of a candidate, will be interesting to brethren in this jurisdiction:

CANDIDATE—PHYSICAL DISQUALIFICATIONS.

1. The casualties of war are no reason for changing the ancient landmarks of Freemasonry. The candidate must be hale and sound, not deformed nor dismembered, and must be able to perform the work required in the first three degrees of Masonry.

2. An artificial substitute will not qualify a dismembered applicant.

3. After a candidate has been duly elected to take a degree he should not be estopped for light reasons, and the lodge has a right to hear and consider those reasons and decide whether they are sufficient. The lodge may waive this right and accept the statement of an officer or brother, or of a committee, that the objections are well founded, but are of such a nature that they should not be made known in the body of the lodge.

4. It is a safe rule in these days, though I greatly doubt its antiquity, that a candidate should be able to read and write.

The first paragraph in the Grand Master's opening address is deserving of a place in our columns.

In the ancient days of Masonry, the Grand Master used to sketch from day to day upon his trestle board, beautiful designs to be imitated and shaped by the hands of his cunning workmen into rich architectural monuments, which afterwards excited the wonder and admiration of succeeding generations for centuries. And he made it the duty of certain officers to inspect the work of each craftsman as it came from his hands, and mark it with the signet of approval or throw it among the rubbish.

The days of operative Masonry have long passed. We no longer raise shapely pilasters and massive pillars, nor adorn cornice and architrave with richly ornamented mouldings, nor shape costly vessels for the service of the Great Jehovah; our mission is higher and nobler; it is to work out the moral architecture of man, and it becomes us, in humble imitation of our ancient brethren, to try our work from time to time and see that it conforms to the rich teachings of the past, and to lay down plans to keep active the industry of the Craft in the future. It is with this object in view that we are now assembled, my brethren, and it is proper that we should appreciate the responsibility that rests upon us as the representatives of the Free and Accepted Masons of Florida, and meet that responsibility manfully. Masonry is not a mere theory of morals made attractive by its symbolic lessons; its end is not to enable the initiated to understand a few fraternal greetings and to impart to the neophyte the traditional teachings of our ritual; these are but as the letters of the alphabet compared to the accumulated treasures of a nation's literature, and when we have become acquainted with them, we have but grasped our working tools, and made ready to enter upon our new field of labour, a field that will yield a rich harvest to the industrious workman. We work under the sacred teachings of the Great Architect of the Universe. Truth is engraved upon our signet, and brotherly love and charity are our chief characteristics. We are patrons of the liberal arts and sciences, and in all ages our brethren have been foremost in promoting plans for the moral and intellectual elevation of our race.—The Freemason's Repository.

Masonic Tidings.

BRITISH, FOREIGN, AND COLONIAL.

PROPOSED NEW MASONIC HALL AT BIRKENHEAD.—This thriving town—"the city of the future"—has up to this time been greatly in need of a Masonic Hall there being at present no great central meeting-place for the Brethren of the Mystic Tie. If report speaks correctly, however, this want is likely soon to be supplied. It is rumoured that the Masonic Fraternity at Birkenhead, where there is a large and highly influential body, contemplate the establishment of a company with the view of erecting a handsome and commodious hall in that township. As there are several lodges in Birkenhead and the immediate neighbourhood, a suitable building, situated in a central part of the district, would certainly be a great advantage to the members of the Order and give the cause a great impetus throughout the province of Cheshire.

WE gather from the leading Conservative county paper the Ipswich Journal, that at the general examination of candidates for certificates on being called to the Bar, which is just over, the three certificates of honour of the first class were awarded to a young but very promising Mason, Bro. Christopher Venn Childe, B.A., L.L.B., of the Inner Temple. Bro. Childe was a member of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, where he took his B.A. degree in June, 1869, being senior in the law special examination. He was also placed in the first class of the Law Tripos in Dec., 1869; obtained the Chancellor's gold medal for Law, Feb., 1871; and was proxime accessit for the Whewell International Law Scholarship, June, 1871. Bro. Childe is a member of the University Chapter, Rose Croix, and promises to distinguish himself as much in Masonry as in those other pursuits in which he seeks advancement. We are always glad to hail the accession to our ranks of intellectual Masons—and we shall expect great things of our justly esteemed Bro. Childe.

"WELCOME TO SAINT MUNGO."

The following was composed and recited by G. W. Wheeler, on the occasion of Major Hamilton Ramsay, Grand Registrar and Prior of the Lothians, and deputation from the Supreme Chapter General of the Religious and Military Order of the Temple, visiting Glasgow, to confirm the union of the old Girvan Encampment with that body, install its officers, and sanction the adoption of the new name of "Saint Mungo's Encampment."

Welcome, to one and all, to night;
Welcome, to all the sons of light;
Saint Mungo, patron of this city,
Welcomes the good, the wise, the witty.
Welcome, the Grand Registrar;
Welcome, to all who've come from far,
To the Supreme Chapter Knights
That come to grace our solemn rites.

To all who are assembled here,
Saint Mungo offers of his cheer;
His tent is open as his heart;
Freely refresh ere you depart.
To night he meets you in his pride,
His bread and water laid aside;
He will not ask his friends to share
His usual plain and frugal fare.

He welcomes, too, his English guests;
For them he'll strive to do his best;
Right proud and glad is he to see
All stranger Knights of this degree.
Two ceremonies now we view,
A wedding and a christening too;
A union happily now arranged
Between a pair too long estranged.

Lang-syne, the Knight of Edin's tower
Wood the fair maid in Girvan's bower;
The country maid was full of pride,
Nor would consent to be a bride.
Long years have past, but still the flame,
Though flickering oft, still burnt the same;
Judicious friends a meeting brought,
And now the consummation's wrought.

The best and bravest of the land,
Edin's sons—a noble band—
Have come to claim the bonnie bride,
And wed her on the banks of Clyde.
They come with all the pomp and power
That well befits the marriage hour;
They come full of Masonic fire;
They come, with Lothian's noble Prior.

And no undowered damsel she,
Who weds to 'scape from poverty,
For in her train, and at her side,
Full eight score Knights in armour ride.
Then welcome to this marriage feast,
This union 'twixt the West and East,
We'll pass the loving cup around—
"To Lawful Love, by Union crowned."

Another ceremony see,
A christening of no mean degree;
Not of a puny new-born boy,
His doating mother's only joy,
But of a full-grown stalwart man,
Who's a long course of triumph ran;
Achieved success in many a fight,
By boldly battling for the right.

And now, upon the battle field,
Where many a one he's forced to yield,
The Supreme Commander, for his might,
Gives a new name, and dubs him Knight.
A name bestowed for victories won,
A name of honour for his son,
A name revered in many climes,
A name to hand to future times.

And this reflects no shade of shame
Upon his birth or former name;
But is a higher title, given
To mark where he has nobly striven;
Where he's gained honour and renown,
Here in Saint Mungo's ancient town,
By fighting 'neath the broad Beauseant,
So named him after the good Saint.

All precedence they used to yield
To him, who knighted on the field,
His honour as his armour bright,—
No namby-pamby carpet Knight.
This honour we have now obtained,
A noble object, nobly gained;
And humble Girvan sinks its name,
In great SAINT MUNGO'S higher fame.

Accept this welcome to our feast,
From one the humblest and the least
Of those brave, struggling Girvan men,
Whose sharpest sword has been his pen—
A pen he never dipt in gall,
But wrote in kindness unto all,
Though still maintaining he was right—
A Constitutional Girvan Knight.

Defending her from vile attacks
Of those brave, struggling Girvan men,
Repeating calumnies so vile,
At them he can afford to smile.
He still urged Union as the best,
The noblest, truest, surest test
Of Christian Virtue, Charity,
With all our brethren to agree.

And now this union's taken place,
Your presence nobly doth it grace,
For at this marriage-christening feast
We have the Wise men from the East.
Yes, the Chapter General of the land
Has sent a noble, chosen band
To install us here with solemn rites.
And recognise the Girvan Knights.

The name we've chosen serves full well
The nature of our work to tell;
The parallel you will confess,
For he's oft drawn in Templar's dress.
From humble village on the coast
He came, to be proud Scotia's boast;
We from a weaving hamlet sprung,
And Scotland with our work has rung.

He was of simple birth and fame,
A proud Cathedral bears his name;
A few poor men, but Masons true,
We're raising a proud Temple too.
To Clutha's banks Saint Mungo came
To spread his Holy Master's fame,
So we, in humble manner too,
Have the Great Master's work to do.

A humble, pious Christian he,
Such as Knight Templars ought to be;
For at the altar we have sworn
To worship Christ, the lowly born;
To aid the widow in distress,
Bring comfort to the comfortless,
And helpless maidens still to shield,—
For them our swords we'll freely wield.

To save a young and virtuous lass,
Fight till we gain the warrior's pass;
Our Pagan foes shall humbly kneel;
While we pass through the arch of steel.
For as Knight Templars we must fight,
Must still do battle for the right;
Must not remain as we are now,
But add fresh laurels to our brow.

'Gainst Infidels must draw the sword,
Nor spare a Judas who'd betray his Lord;
Strike bold, at once put out his light,
Nor keep a traitor in our sight.
Be ours the humble, trusting soul
That presses straight unto the goal:
Like Simeon, we His Cross must bear,
If we'd His future triumphs share.

To prove our love unto the Lord,
As pilgrims we must go abroad,
With staff, and scrip, and sandled shoon,
And travel on for many a noon;
Through the world's desert freely go,
With weary footsteps, sad and slow,
And when our bread and water's spent,
Refresh in any friendly tent.

To all the world we should appear
Like tapers, burning bright and clear,
Shedding a calm and holy light,
Till morn shall quite dispel the night.
As Templars, we have sworn to serve
The Christian faith, nor from it swerve;
To wield our swords in its defence,
Yet live a life without offence.

When sailing o'er life's troubled sea,
Though rich and rare our cargo be,
Lighten the ship, cast riches overboard,
Ere we'd make shipwreck of the Lord.
Our vigilance must never tire,
E'en when seated by our own camp fire;
Shake from our hand each venom'd beast
Would mar the quiet of the feast.

When once created and dubbed here,
Our duty and our course is clear,
To always act as loving brothers,
And do what we'd have done by others;
Reverence the Saviour of all men—
In his name we shall conquer, then,
Gain peace of heart and length of days,
Emmanuel getting all the praise.

Nor to be like Thomas, in our pride
Doubt till we feel the wounded side,
The print marks of the nails to see,
That nailed Him to the cursed tree.
A nobler, holier, faith is ours,
A firm belief in higher powers,
A trusting faith, that won't refuse
JESUS OF NAZARETH, KING OF JEWS.

Faith that can kiss the chastening rod,
And say, My Saviour and my God,
Till faith is swallowed up in sight,
In yon bright Temple's glorious light.
To hasten on that happy day,
Let each one work as well as pray:
That I may meet you all up there,
Is this Knight Templar's earnest prayer.

Original Correspondence.

NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to Bro. Buchan, I can only say I took my notes respecting the antiquity of Scotch lodges from this year's published report of the Grand Mark Lodge, and until I see for myself to the contrary I prefer to accept Bro. Kerr's authority to his own. We all know our brother's scepticism on all matters Masonic and sacred, and attach an importance or non-importance to his statements accordingly. Bro. Buchan asserts that "so far as the song is concerned, it rather goes to show more belief in the supposed legitimacy (sic) of the present Knights Templar from the 14th century Templars."

Well my opinion happens to be diametrically opposed to Bro. Buchan's, and I prefer leaving your readers to judge for themselves.

The tradition that Bruce formed the Bannockburn Templars into the Royal Order, may or may not be a modern legend, but as I have said before, I prefer my own authority to taking Bro. Buchan's ipse dixit.

Yours Fraternally,
EMMA HOLMES.

AN OLD MASONIC PRINT.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have thought that some of your correspondents would give a list of the principal personages represented in this fine, but not very ancient print, but as none of them offer the information, I venture to trouble you with this communication. The print is not allegorical, as seems to have been suggested, but was at its publication described as "The Freemasons' Charity Children being Presented to the Trustees and Governors on their Annual Festival at Freemasons' Hall. The principal portraits are those of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master; H.R.H. the Duke of York, H.R.H. the Duke of Clarence, the Earl of Moira, Lord Raneliffé, the Prince of Orange, Sir Peter Parker, Sir William Addington, Sir John Eamer, John Heselstine, Esq., the Chevalier Bartholomew Ruspini, William Forssteen, Esq., Adam Gordon, Esq., George Downing, Esq., James Galloway, Esq., William Birch, Esq., and Anthony Tenbrocke. I believe other of the figures are portraits, but I have no means of giving further names.

Fraternally yours,
LUCAS.

Reviews.

Curability of Cancer. (Wyman and Sons, Great Queen-street.)

The popular notion is that the dreadful affliction, cancer, is incurable, or at least, that unless it is dealt with at an early stage, and even then, only by surgical operation, no one reasonably hopes for a cure. The perusal of the above pamphlet, by Dr. G. Schmitt, will, we think, tend to dispel such an illusion, and for the sake of suffering humanity we hope that this brochure will be widely circulated and generally read. As an epitome of the various treatments by the faculty, and also by the natives abroad Dr. Schmitt's little work is most valuable, and certainly the plan adopted by him, and most intelligently advocated, is at least worthy of a trial. The testimonials appended appear to be of a high order.

The Little Dressmaker. (S. Miller, Tavistock-street, W.C.)

We were quite in a fix as to how we could notice this magazine, not having been let into the secrets of a child's wardrobe, and the correct clothing for—dolls! Happy thought! Show it to one of your lady friends! No sooner considered than adopted. Accordingly I submitted it to one whose judgment on such a most vital and important subject is well nigh infallible. After allowing a fair time for investigation, we called, and found the verdict to be "A capital magazine, patterns novel and well explained, and altogether a most useful publication." We cannot do better than make such a recommendation known to our brethren who are blessed with "little cherubs" at home.

Enoch, the Second Messenger of God. (Trübner and Co. London.)

We cannot recommend this book, and its contents are so varied that unless we wrote on subjects unsuitable to the columns of The Freemason, we could not make known our objections to it. We grant the author must have spent a lifetime in its production, but yet we wish much had remained unsaid which we find in these two volumes.

The Lifeboat. (Quarterly Journal.)

The number for Nov., 1872, is before us, and presents a sad picture, on the one hand, of wrecks and loss of life at sea, and on the other hand heroic deeds, and the valuable and efficient aid rendered by the "National Lifeboat Institution." In 1871 there were nearly one thousand lives saved through the instrumentality of this most humane and benevolent organization. From its formation no less than 21,076 lives have been rescued from a watery grave, for which services 91 gold medals, 829 silver medals, and £37,814 in cash have been paid in rewards. It costs the society £22,000 to maintain the 233 lifeboats scattered over the country, and on an average over £2,000 in each year for rewards. The indefatigable Secretary, Richard Lewis Esq., at the offices, 14 John-street, Adelphi, London, W.C., will be glad to receive subscriptions. In The Lifeboat for this quarter there is a capital account of the launch of the "Lady Leigh" at Scarborough, presented to the Institution by the Freemasons of Warwickshire. All honour to them for their truly Masonic spirit. In the summary of the meeting of the Committee we notice the following payments acknowledged. Thursday, 4th, July, 1872, "Masonic Lifeboat Fund, per W. Smith, Esq., C.E. and Hyde Clarke, Esq. additional £63 18s od."

The Craftsman. (Hamilton, Ontario.)

This useful record of the progress of Freemasonry in Canada is now in its sixth volume, and the September number we have just examined is not the least interesting of the series. From it we learn that the Supreme Grand Council 33° for England and Wales, "has forbidden the Masons of its obedience from recognizing the body established by the Supreme Council of Scotland at St. John, New Brunswick." It appears that both Grand Bodies for the A. and A. Rite, were formed in 1846, Scotland by the Grand Orient of France, and England by the Northern Jurisdiction of the Supreme Grand Council, United States. In Canada the former has exercised exclusive jurisdiction for years, until August, 1871, so the matter is now being discussed by our learned brethren, and we hope the dispute will be amicably settled.

The Masonic Mirror. (San Francisco.)

With an editor, an assistant, and a corresponding editor, this little organ of the Craft in California, should certainly prove worthy of its name! It is a well arranged publication, and withal carefully written. Originality and research do not seem to be the editors' aim, but evidently they are anxious to present as good a fare as possible to their readers, from any source that suits their views, always however admitting from what papers the articles were taken.

We see Dr. Bedolle's "Footsteps of Freemasonry" are being reprinted from The Freemason.

The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, 1873.

(By a Past Master and an Editor of Masonic Calendars.)

We have just carefully examined Bro. G. Kenning's "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar," 1873, and, without any hesitation, pronounce it to be the best of the three issues now published.

It is compact, well arranged, and full of most useful and interesting information indispensable to the intelligent Freemason, and illustrative of the progress and wide-spread influence of the Craft. The low price places it within the reach of all, and no one who wishes to be well posted as to the whereabouts of our lodges, chapters, &c., can afford to be without it. In 1874, we hope to see the lodges arranged, according to the towns, in alphabetical order, just as now they are arranged according to their names. Both tables would be invaluable, and though the first-mentioned would add slightly to the bulk of the volume, we think its increased advantages would amply compensate.

The addresses also of the Prov. G. Secretaries would be a boon to many, and especially to each of the brethren holding such a responsible office. For convenience of reference the Grand Lodge of Ireland is very fully reported in these particulars, and indeed all the Grand Lodges, wherever located, appear to be well attended to, and as fully represented as the size of the publication will allow.

The handy little volume should sell by thousands, and the Secretaries of lodges should introduce it to the members, and by so doing assist in circulating information that concerns all the Fraternity.

"A VISIT TO EPS'S COCAINE MANUFACTORY." Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated varied processes the Cocaine bears through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocaine and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water. See Article in Land and Water October 14.

"I was suffering greatly a few weeks ago from severe pains about the kidneys and excessive weakness in the back, accompanied with a malarious sickness, and had been confined to my bed some weeks, when a friend who had long known and experienced great benefit from the use of your Vegetable Pain Killer brought me a bottle of it, which I used with the most successful results." A. SUTHERLAND, Windsor, Scotland, Oct., 1867.—To P. DAVIS & Son, London, W.C.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

Communications from the following are unavoidably deferred till next week:—Bros. Binckes; H. T. Bobart; C. D. Faulkner; J. H. Hughan; A Masonic Student. Also Reports of Craft Lodges Nos. 310, 871, 1051, 1348, 157, and 1283; Chapters 176, and 1051. Prov. Grand Mark Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland; Rose Croix Chapters, Canute and Palestine; Red Cross Conclaves, Premier and No. 77.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday, December 7, and during the week, ROY ROY, Mr. C. T. Burleigh; Raleigh, Mr. Parkes; Francis, Mr. Rainbow; Bailie, Mr. Leigh; Thornton, Mr. Evans; Dougal, Mr. Lacey; Galbraith, Mr. Fawn; Owen, Mr. Bousfield; Sir Frederick, Mr. Cullen; Hamish, Miss Nelly Maud; Helen McGregor, Miss M. Henderson; Diana Vernon, Miss Bramah; &c. To conclude each evening THE SERPENT ON THE HEARTH. Sir Simeon Sykes, Mr. Rainbow; Captain Trevor, Mr. Lacy; Claude Ruby, Mr. Evans; Mildmay, Mr. Leigh; Mark Measley, Mr. Bousfield; Slobberboski, Mr. J. Fawn; Lady Sykes, Mrs. Stephenson; Mary Magrath, Miss Henderson; Barbara, Miss Rainbow; Blowsebella, Miss Farren. Stage Manager, Mr. S. C. Burleigh.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday, Dec. 7, and during the week, TICKET OF LEAVE MAN. Bob Brierly, Mr. C. Sennett; Hawkshaw, Mr. Shepherd; Dalton, Mr. Power; Melter Moss, Mr. Hudspeth; Green Jones, Mr. Sidney; Mr. Gibson, Mr. Dudley; Brunton, Mr. Parkes; May Edward, Miss Allen; Mrs. Willoughby, Mrs. Burleigh; Sam, Miss Kerridge; Mrs. Green Jones, Miss Hastings. To conclude each evening with MARIANNE, Sir Nicodemus Sefton, Mr. Vaughan; Captain Sefton, Mr. Power; Mr. Mansfield, Mr. C. Sennett; Mr. Grubwig, Mr. Dudley; Charles Gayeaud, Mr. Sidney; Job Scraggs, Mr. Hudspeth; Night-shades, Mr. Shepherd; Miss Todd, Miss Kerridge; Marianne, Miss Allen; Bridget Cormar, Mrs. C. T. Burleigh. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Buckland, assisted by Misses Alice Barth and Florence Hunter. COAL AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell; and many other Entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Claimant," Sir Roger Tielborne; Hudson, the "Railway King;" and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week commencing December 2.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee, Bro. E. Saker. Variety of Dramatic Performers.

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. "Haunted Houses."

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee Mr. Seton Parry. "Le Petit Faust."

THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Frezee. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Can-can Carnival."

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Closed for re-decoration.

CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Now Closed, but will be re-opened in a few weeks for Holden's Marionettes.

NEWSOMES CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome.

NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager Bro. Saunders. Miscellaneous Entertainment by a talented Company.

TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Andersson and Family.—World of Magic.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Gillard's Great American Panorama.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1872.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

Grand Lodge Quarterly Communication was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. The Grand Master, the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., presided, having Lord Tenterden, in the S.W. chair, and Col. Lowry Cole as J.W. The Rev. J. Huyshe, Prov. G.M. Devon, acted as D.G.M.; and the Earl of Limerick as Past G.M.

The other Grand Officers were in their places, and there was a strong attendance of Past Grand Officers; Grand and Past Grand Stewards were very numerous, and the Masters, Past Masters, and Wardens of private lodges made up an exceptionally full Grand Lodge. The entry of the Grand Master, accompanied by his Grand Officers, to the music of the Organ, performed by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, G.O.; was the signal for a hearty burst of applause.

Grand Lodge was opened with the necessary observances, and Bro. John Hervey, G.S., read the minutes of last Grand Lodge. These having been put and confirmed, the nomination of Grand Master for the ensuing year was undertaken by Bro. F. A. Philbrick, P.M., No. 8, who said:—Brethren, I beg to nominate as M.W.G.M. of the Craft for the ensuing year the Most Hon. the Marquis of Ripon, our present G.M., a nomination which I trust will secure, as I know it deserves, the unanimous assent of this Grand Lodge and of the Craft in general. (Great applause.)

The W.G.M.:—The next business which stands on the paper, is a motion which I am desirous of submitting to this Grand Lodge, and which I feel confident will meet with the approval of every brother who is present on this occasion, because it is entirely consistent with the great principles of our Craft, that the brethren of one country should sympathise deeply with all which concerns the interest and welfare of the Craft in any other portion of the world. Now, brethren, as you are aware, the Craft in Sweden, had for many years the great advantage of having at its head the late monarch of that country, His Majesty King Charles XV. a sovereign whose private and public character, whose abilities and intellectual acquirements were of a nature to secure for him the respect and admiration not only of his own subjects but all, as I understand, who had the good fortune to be brought into contact with him. But it happens that we have a greater and a nearer interest in him, because his Majesty was at the head of the Craft of Sweden, and gave to Freemasonry the important sanction of his sovereign name and office. It would therefore be natural that we should express to the Grand Lodge of Sweden our sympathy, and that we should offer them our condolence upon the great loss which they have sustained by the death of their eminent sovereign. But there is one circumstance which would make it, I think, highly unbecoming if we English Masons did not take some step of this kind upon this occasion, because it was through the instrumentality of the King of Sweden that our Past Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, was initiated in the Craft. (Hear hear.) I know, brethren, that there have been many amongst us who have regretted that H.R.H. was not initiated in England. (Hear, hear.) But we must all remember the peculiar fitness that there was in the heir to the crown of this country receiving his initiation from a European Sovereign (hear, hear); and I think we must all bear in peculiar reverence the memory of the illustrious sovereign who was thus the Masonic parent, if I may be pardoned the expression, of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who initiated him into the Ancient Order, and who implanted in him, as we have had since such ample proofs, the most pure and perfect Masonic principles, and who inspired him with a love for Freemasonry which I am able to say, and which indeed you all know from what you yourselves have seen, has increased more and more, as H.R.H. has become more and more acquainted with the principles and working of the Craft. I say therefore, brethren, that we should be wanting in that sympathy which is due to our Swedish brethren if we did not upon this occasion evince the interest which the brethren of England have in the brethren of Sweden by expressing to them our heartfelt sympathy and condolence. I believe these feelings find an echo in the breast of every one here present. I will therefore not detain you longer, but will read to you the address which I propose. His Lordship then read the formal address to be sent to the Grand Lodge of Sweden.

The Rev. John Huyshe, Prov. G.M., Devon, seconded the motion, which was then put by the M.W.G.M., and carried nem. con.

In moving the next resolution, "that the thanks of Grand Lodge be offered to the V.W. Bro. John Llewellyn Evans, for the valuable services he has rendered to the Craft while presiding over the Board of General Purposes during the last ten years," the M.W.G.M. said: "It is, as you are aware, not my custom to offer you, nor would it be, indeed, consistent with the position which I have the honour by your favour to hold, that I should offer to you very frequent resolutions in Grand Lodge, and therefore it is somewhat singular to find myself in the position to propose two resolutions to you in the same night, but I felt that I could not consent to leave in the hands of any other brother to propose that which I am confident if I had not proposed would have been proposed by some one else, viz., a vote of thanks of this Grand Lodge to our V.W. Bro. John Llewellyn Evans, the late President of the Board of General Purposes (cheers). Brethren, our Brother was, as I find, initiated in the Craft in the year 1831, and he was appointed a Grand Officer in the year 1842, by his late Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex. He has been ten years President of the Board of General Purposes. He has devoted himself earnestly and energetically to the duties of his important office, and he has rendered in that capacity great services to the Craft (hear, hear). Now, brethren, I believe it to be good policy in every society, whether it be a national society represented by its government, or whether it be a body of Freemasons, to know well both how to reward and how to punish. There are some people who think that it is very right to punish, but that it is not very right to express praise where praise is due. I do not hold with that opinion, and I believe that where good service has been rendered it is right, proper, and good policy that honest thanks should be given; and, therefore, believing the service to have been thoroughly good, I ask you to agree with me in this resolution that the best thanks of this Grand Lodge be hereby offered to the V.W. Bro. John Llewellyn Evans for the valuable services he has rendered to the Craft while presiding over the Board of General Purposes during the last ten years (cheers).

Bro. John Havers, P.G.W., on rising to second the motion, said he was not sure that he would not be doing a little wrong where he earnestly desired to do a great right. He had been asked by Bro. Huyshe, who was acting as Deputy Grand Master, to second this resolution. He had told Bro. Huyshe how much more honourable it would appear, that the motion moved by the Grand Master should be seconded by the Deputy Grand Master, but it had been urged upon him that one of Bro. Evan's fellow workers, one of those who had for 20 or 30 years worked with him, should second it. He could not add one word to the eloquent speech of the Grand Master, but he could say this that having watched Bro. Evans's career, who had enjoyed the esteem and confidence of the late Grand Master, the Duke of Sussex, he for one thought they would be doing a mere scant act of justice in giving him the heartiest vote of thanks which this Grand Lodge could give to any man who had honestly, faithfully and zealously served it. (Applause).

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. J. L. Evans, P. President of the Board of General Purposes, rose to acknowledge the vote, and on doing so was received with several rounds of applause. When they had subsided he said:—I have to tender to your lordship my hearty thanks for the honour you have conferred upon me in proposing the resolution that has just been passed, and that honour has been enhanced in my mind by the very kind terms in which the proposition had been brought forward. I assure you, my lord, it will live for ever in my recollection, and I can also assure Grand Lodge that the honour which has been conferred by passing a vote of thanks to me is a very high and distinguished honour indeed. I am well aware of my own shortcomings; but I may say this, that whether in the office of President of the Colonial Board, which I held for some time, or whether in the more important office of the president of the Board of General Purposes, I endeavoured to do my duty to the best of my ability, and to further the interests of this Grand Lodge and the Craft in general. M.W.G.M. and brethren all, I thank you. (Cheers).

Bro. McIntyre Q.C., G.R.:—The resolution which has now been passed by Grand Lodge, must of course be very gratifying to the feelings of Bro. Evans, but that resolution may be lasting that and may go forth to the Craft as the feeling of Grand Lodge, I would, with your lordship's permission move, "That the vote of thanks be engrossed on vellum and presented to Bro. Evans." (Hear, hear.)

Bro. J. B. Monckton, P.G.D., I second it No doubt some brethren are more competent than myself, from their knowledge of Bro. Evans, to do so, but I can bear my own testimony, and I do bear my most humble but grateful testimony, at the same time that I give him my thanks for the services he has rendered the Craft. All who sit at the Board with him acknowledge his services, and I have great pleasure in seconding his motion of Bro. McIntyre. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

The M.W.G.M. announced that he now appointed Bro. Clabon President of the Lodge of Benevolence. (Cheers). The next business would have been the election of S. and J. V.P. of the Lodge of Benevolence, but as there were only the proper number of brethren proposed, there was no difference of opinion on the subject, and a very excellent selection was made. Those proposed were Bros. Joshua Nuan, as S.V.P.; and James Brett, as J.V.P. (Applause). The next business was the election of twelve Past Masters to serve on the Lodge of Benevolence; but twelve only had been named, and therefore there was no necessity for an election.

Grand Secretary here read the names of these brethren, and afterwards read the following report:—

Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz.:—

Brother H. M., of the Bedford Lodge, No. 157, London, £50.

The widow of the late Brother J. S. K., of the Adams Lodge, No. 158, Sheerness, £100.

Bro. Joshua Nunn moved and Bro. Clabon seconded both these grants, which were unanimously confirmed.

Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C. moved that the report of the Board of General Purposes be taken as read, which was carried.

The report which appeared in The Freemason of last Saturday, was as follows:—

Report of the Board of General Purposes To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes beg to submit a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last Meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 15th day of November instant, shewing a balance in the hands of Grand Treasurer of £3,496 11s., and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for Petty Cash, £75.

(Signed) HORACE LLOYD,
President.

Bro. H. Lloyd, President of the Board of General Purposes, said it would not have taken much longer time to read the report as it was very short; but instead of apologizing he ventured to congratulate the brethren. "Happy is the nation," it had been said, "whose annals are dull," and he thought this might be applied to Grand Lodge on this occasion. A great deal of the work of the Board had been very easy. But there was one matter of great interest, not of Masonic business, which did not appear in the report. Bro. Rosenthal had presented to the Craft a portrait which he had painted, of the M.W.G.M., and that was in their possession at the present moment, in the board-room. He hoped, however, they would be able to find some place for it where the members of the Craft in general, would be able to see it. He did not venture to say it did full justice to the G.M., but it was a picture they were all very glad to have. It was a good likeness, and in his (Bro. Lloyd's) view, it possessed additional merit in this respect,—it called upon the Craft to recognise the G.M. by his features and expression, and not by the outward insignia of rank, whether social or Masonic. He would ask them to accept the proposition and the report which, as a financial report, was a very satisfactory one, he received and entered on the minutes.

Carried unanimously.

Bro. J. R. Stebbing, P.G.D., then came forward to propose:—

That it shall be competent for any Lodge to declare that any one of its members has ceased to be a subscribing member, providing the following rules be strictly observed:—

That a proposition to that effect be handed to the W. Master or Secretary, in writing, signed by any member of the Lodge, at least fourteen days before the then next regular meeting of the Lodge.

That notice is given to the member to whom it refers, by a registered letter, that such a proposition has been made, and which letter shall contain also his regular Lodge summons.

That notice is also given in the summonses for the next regular Lodge that it will be proposed to remove a brother from the list of members at that meeting.

That a ballot shall take place on the proposition being read in open Lodge, and if there shall appear to be a majority of two-thirds of those present in favour of the same, the W. Master or brother presiding shall declare the same to be carried; and on the confirmation of minutes of proceeding at the next regular Lodge, so far as relates to the said proposition, the brother shall cease to be a member of the Lodge accordingly.

To explain this motion he would just say that he proposed that only one brother should be removed on one night, and the reason for not inserting his name in the summons was that his name should not be needlessly paraded about the town or district to which he belonged. It would always be known who was meant. Having made the proposition, he ventured to say, with very great respect, though with very great earnestness, yet with, he hoped, becoming modesty, that he believed this motion was one of the most important propositions which had been made in Grand Lodge since the union in 1813. It had this novelty that it proposed to declare that a brother shall cease to be a subscribing member without referring to any specific or general charge. (A brother behind Bro. Stebbing suggested that it would be an innovation.) That was the alteration he proposed, and it would give a more facile mode of dealing with objectionable brethren. The Book of Constitutions laid down the rule that every lodge should make bye-laws for its own good government. He was inclined to believe that every brother might do that which he (Bro. Stebbing) now proposed, though on this there seemed to be some difference of opinion; but if they looked at the Book of Constitutions, they would find it was extremely difficult to get rid of a brother from a lodge. Having first fixed him with an offence, the next thing was to find the law applicable to it. Then, if he was thoroughly caught, another clause in the Constitutions only declared he should be suspended.

(To be continued.)

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. Dismiss your Doubts. Let no one be longer oppressed with the notion that his malady is incurable till these purifying pills have had a fair trial. Where ordinary preparations have failed these pills have been used with the most marked success. A course of this admirable medicine, clears the blood from all impurities, and improves its quality. The whole system is thus benefited, through the usual channels, without the reduction of strength, shock to the nerves, or any other inconvenience; in fact, health is renewed by natural means. For curing diseases of the Throat, Windpipe and Chest, these pills have pre-eminently established a world-wide fame; and in complaints of the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, they are equally efficacious.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The half-yearly communication to Grand Mark Lodge of England was held on Tuesday evening, at Freemasons' Tavern. Prior to the assembling of the brethren as Grand Lodge, a lodge of improvement was held for the working of the ceremony of advancement. In this lodge Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.O., presided as W.M., and performed the ceremony according to the new ritual, in faultless style, for which he obtained the thanks and applause of the brethren. The lodge was full. On the assembling of the brethren in Grand Mark Lodge, Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., M.W.G.M., presided, having the Earl of Limerick, D.G.M., on his right. Col. Burdett, G.M. for Middlesex and Surrey, as S.G.W.; Bros. J. C. Parkinson, G.J.W.; Magnus Ohren, G.M.O.; J. Stevens, G.S.O.; The Rev. D. Shaboe, G.J.O. The other Grand Officers in attendance were:—Bros. W. Mortimer Heath, G. Chaplain; J. R. Stebbing, G. Treas.; Chas. J. Burgess, G. Reg.; Fredk. Binckes, G. Sec.; James Porter, G.S.D.; Thomas Hargreaves, G.J.D.; George Neale, G. Insp. Wks.; T. J. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C., as G.D.C.; S. Rosenthal, P.G.D.C., as G.A.D.C.; R. Spencer, P.G. Swd. Br., as G. Swd. Br.; A. D. Loewenstark, P.G.I.G., as G.I.G.; James W. Smith and Henry W. Binckes, G. Stewards; Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, P.G. Chaplain; Morton Edwards, P.G.J.D.; S. M. Lazarus, P.G. Org.; D. M. Dewar and Henry Massey, P.G. Stewards. Grand Lodge was also attended by a very numerous gathering of Mark Masters, the idea having somehow got abroad that Earl Percy, who was elected G.M., but was too ill to attend for installation in June, would be present for that purpose on this occasion. His lordship, however, as will be seen from the following report, has not yet so far recovered as to make his presence, in our uncertain climate, an advisable step during the winter months. The G.M.'s announcement that his lordship's health had so much improved as to promise a speedy and effectual recovery, was received with every mark of satisfaction by the brethren assembled.

Grand Secretary having read the minutes of last Grand Lodge in June, and of the moveable Grand Lodge, lately held in Manchester with so much éclat, the same were put by the M.W.G.M., and carried unanimously.

The M.W.G.M. afterwards said that before calling on the G. Secretary to read the report of the General Board, there were one or two words he should like to say to Grand Lodge. First of all, he had great pleasure in stating that the M.W.G.M. nominate, had derived very great benefit from his residence in the South of France, and that there was every reason to believe he would return to this country at the end of the winter, entirely restored to health. (Cheers). There had been published in the Masonic newspapers a statement that at the last meeting of the Grand Chapter of Canada, the Grand High Priest, or First Grand Principal, as we should call him here, had said that communication had taken place between him and ourselves relative to the granting of a Mark warrant from us to a lodge at Montreal, and he had added that he had remonstrated with us for granting the warrant, and he also added that no answer to his remonstrance had been received by him. Now, as Grand Lodge had entrusted to the Grand Master the conduct of its foreign correspondence, he felt it was due to Grand Lodge to say that such a communication had never been received by Grand Mark Lodge of England from Grand Chapter of Canada. He (the M.W.G.M.) thought, moreover, that the Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter of Canada ought to have made himself better acquainted with the facts before submitting such a statement to the companions, because, of course, if the statement had been true that a communication had been made to this Grand Mark Lodge, the not answering it implied that we had been guilty of negligence in not attending to it. He (the M.W.G.M.) might now say that the Mark Lodge, about which complaint had been made as stated, was one attached to a Craft lodge still holding under Craft Grand Lodge of England. It would be in the recollection of those brethren who were present, and who took an interest, that at the time of the Canadian Declaration of Independence it was agreed between them and Grand Lodge of England, that any lodges that liked might hold under Grand Lodge of England, and should not take a warrant from Grand Lodge of Canada. Amongst those which desired to retain their allegiance to our Grand Lodge was this lodge at Montreal. It applied to us, and we granted it a warrant. He could only repeat that we had had no communication from Grand Chapter of Canada whatsoever, and that as soon as a communication arrived it would receive the most deliberate consideration such a letter demanded.

The Secretary then read the report of the General Board, which was received and entered in the minutes.

The following recommendations were adopted:—

1. "That the sum of £300 stock be purchased on account of 'The Benevolent Fund,' and that it be invested in the names of the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.W.G.M.; Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick, R.W. Dep. G.M.; and Rt. Hon. the Earl Percy, M.P., M.W.G.M. elect, as Trustees for the same," and the same was ordered to be invested in Canadian Government Stock.

The next recommendation, "That the sum of £31 10s. be voted to 'The Royal Masonic Institution for Girls,' to complete the amount necessary to qualify the Grand Mark Master for the time being, as a Vice-President of the said Institution, and that such amount be placed on the list of Brother Sabine, who has offered to represent the Order as Steward at the next Festival," was also carried unanimously, and Bro. Sabine returned thanks.

Bro. A. D. Loewenstark nominated Earl Percy as G.M. for the ensuing year.

Capt. Burgess said: M.W.G.M., as one of those who were present recently at the working of Grand Lodge as a Lodge of Improvement, I beg to say that the new form of ritual, so far as I could learn from the brethren present, was very much approved of, especially as comments were made upon it from time to time as we went through the ceremony by the brother who was in the chair on that occasion, Bro. James Stevens.

Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.O., suggested that a full set of working implements and an harmonium were necessary to the proper working of the ceremony, and hoped they would be at hand on a future occasion.

The M.W.G.M. thought notice should be given of this subject, if it was intended to be a motion.

Grand Mark Lodge was thereupon closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet.

Bros. John Read, Chaplin Henry, J. Hodges, and Mr. J. Jekyll, afterwards entertained them with some beautiful music.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

MOUNT LEBANON LODGE (No. 73).—The regular meeting of this ancient lodge was held on Tuesday, the 16th, ult., at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, Southwark. Bro. Geo. Free, W.M., opened the lodge. There were present during the evening Bros. F. Walters, P.M.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M.; D. Rose, P.M.; T. J. Sabine, P.M.; E. Harris, P.M., Treasurer; G. J. Grace, P.M., S.W.; A. L. Dussak, J.W.; J. S. Gomme, J.D.; T. J. H. Wilkins, J.G.; R. G. Chipperfield, W. Arnold, G. W. Musket, G. Austin, H. Keeble, W.M., 1273; W. Charlesworth, A. P. Stedman, A. J. Triton, J. M. Spindler, H. Stephens, W. Bullin, F. E. Cooper, J. Mercer, T. S. Hill, W. Hunter, S. Frankenberg, G. E. Williams, J. Well, H. Bageley, T. Sutton, and others. The large number of visitors included Bros. T. J. Robins, 23; W. Palmer, W.M., 27; W. Binnie, P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks, W.M., 209; R. Welsford, P.M. and Treasurer, 348; B. James, Adelphi Lodge, New York; H. C. Tyler, 1320;

C. Deakin, S.D., 1178; W. Batchelor, D.C., 1178, Treasurer, 1365; and G. H. Mason, 753. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Ballots taken for Bros. W. Klingenstein, 1017, and B. Isaacs, Adelphi Lodge, New York, were in favour of their admission. The work, done in a very creditable manner, was the raising of Bros. W. Arnold, G. W. Musket, and G. Austin. A Committee was appointed to revise the bye-laws. The usual Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. G. Free, W.M., from the lodge funds, for his efficient services rendered to the lodge. Business being ended, the lodge was closed. Bro. J. H. Spencer, the host, had provided one of his usual first-class banquets, which, as usual, gave great satisfaction to all. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given.

HORNSEY LODGE (No. 890).—This popular lodge held a regular meeting on Friday, 1st ult., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. The W.M., Bro. Macpherson, presided throughout the evening, and all his officers were in attendance at their respective posts. One brother was passed to the second degree, and two gentlemen were initiated into the Order. The working was witnessed by a numerous body of visitors, amongst whom were Bros. Rogers, sen., P.M., 193, and F. Walters, P.M., 73, who expressed the opinion that it was simply perfect. Any brother about to be placed in office will do well to pay a visit to the Hornsey Lodge, where he will find the working a perfect study. The elections took place, and proved a very harmonious business. The S.W. was unanimously chosen to preside for the ensuing year, Bro. P.M. Webb unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Radford, Tyler.

CLAPTON LODGE (No. 1365).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 20th ult., at the White Hart, Clapton. The W.M., Bro. William Stephens, presided. The lodge having been opened and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, Bro. Stephens proceeded to confer the third degree upon two candidates, Bros. Dr. Simons and Horncastle, which ceremony was performed in the most accomplished manner, the W.M. not only discharging the ordinary duties of his office, but also giving the traditionary history of that degree, and a full and clear explanation of the tracing board. The ballot was then taken in favour of five gentlemen, all of whom were then initiated into the mysteries of the Craft; two were also passed to the second degree. A motion stood on the paper for alteration of the initiation fee to ten guineas and the joining fee to four, which was carried unanimously. The brethren then sat down to a plain dinner, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. There were present as visitors, Bros. Jones, P.G.D.C. for Northampton and Huntingdon Somers, P.G.D. for Westmoreland; Terry, P.G.S.B. for Herts; Benet, of Manchester Lodge, and a numerous attendance. A handsome charity-box, of peculiar form, representing the five points, was then formally presented to the lodge, the gift of Bro. Lutwych, J.W., its contents to be presented annually to one or more of the Masonic Charities; and from its reception we hope the founders of the lodge may be spared for many years to witness its beneficial results.

On Friday, the Lodge of Instruction, in connection with this lodge, held its first anniversary meeting, and at the conclusion of the work Bro. W. Stephens, of the mother lodge, was elected chairman. The Auditors' report was received and adopted, showing a balance in hand. Four guineas was then voted to the Masonic Charities, and one guinea to a distressed brother (from America), who had claimed their assistance. Bro. J. Saunders, P.M., was elected Preceptor; Bro. W. Stephens, W.M., Treasurer; and Bro. R. Buller, P.M., Secretary. A banquet was then served in Bro. Bryan's best style; the usual toasts followed, harmony and good-fellowship prevailed until a late hour, when the members separated highly delighted with the result of not only the first year's success, but the evening's entertainment.

CONYNGHAM LODGE (No. 193).—This lodge met at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Monday, the 11th Nov. Bro. W. Williams, W.M., in a painstaking manner passed Bro. J. F. Weatherhead to the second degree, and initiated Messrs. H. Murphie and Woodwell into the secrets and mysteries of the Order. The election for W.M. resulted in favour of Bro. J. Shakell, J.W. The Treasurer, Bro. Vaughan, P.M., was unanimously re-elected, as was also T. Riley, Tyler. The audit meeting was arranged for Wednesday, December 4th. Business being ended, the lodge was adjourned to Monday, December 9th. There were present—Bros. W. Cutting, S.W.; J. Shakell, J.W.; Vaughan, P.M., Treasurer; J. Rogers, P.M., Secretary; J. King, S.D.; W. Thomas, P.M.; S. Webb, P.M.; W. F. Rogers, P.M.; Birch, P.M.; Renshaw, P.M.; J. Smith, W. Cubitt, &c. The visitors were Bros. F. Walters, P.M., 73; G. Andrews, J.W., 87, &c. The Secretary Bro. J. Rogers, P.M., announced his attention of resigning his office at the end of this year. He has served the lodge faithfully and well for 25 years, and all the members wish him to retain that office which he has so well filled. The banquet was well served under the able superintendence of Bro. William Smith, whose energy and perseverance to please all is rewarded with success.

LANCASHIRE (EAST).

MANCHESTER.—Strangeways Lodge (No. 1297).—On Wednesday, 27th ult., one of the most splendid gatherings of the Masonic body ever held in this province, assembled at the Albion Hotel, Manchester, to celebrate the installation of Bro. Councillor Thomas Muirhead, as Worshipful Master of the Strangeways Lodge, which event had been deferred in consequence of the death of Bro. John Start, P.M. of the lodge, near the date of the election. Amongst those present were: Bros. W. R. Callender, D. Prov. G.M.; John Wike, G.D.E.; R. H. Hutchinson, Prov. G.S.W.; J. L. Hine, P. Prov. G.S.W.; with many other provincial dignitaries of East Lancashire, Cheshire, and Scotland, many members of the City Corporation, and about 100 Worshipful Masters and Past Masters of other lodges. The banquet was of the most recherché character, and reflected the utmost credit on Bro. Adams, who personally superintended its production. After the usual loyal and complimentary toasts, the W.M. gave the "Healths of the Grand Master of England, the Marquis of Ripon, the Deputy Grand Master and Members of Grand Lodge," which was ably responded to by Bro. Wike. After which, "The Provincial Grand Master of East Lancashire," was given by Bro. Potts; when in a most feeling manner the W.M. proposed "The health of Bro. W. Romaine Callender, D. Prov. G.M. of East Lancashire, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers," which was duly responded to by Bro. Callender, who was received with the utmost enthusiasm, dilating on the practical value of Freemasonry, gave much valuable instruction to all present upon its objects and attainments. The W.M. in proposing "The health of the Immediate P.M., Bro. E. Hardon," spoke warmly of his many services to the lodge, and in the name of the brethren thereof, presented him with a very handsome Past Master's Jewel, as a recognition of their respect for his character and services. Bro. Hardon gratefully responded in thanking them for not only this, but many former kindnesses the brethren had displayed towards him. Bro. Callender next gave "The health of the Worshipful Master," detailing his many private virtues, and his often practically manifested love of the Craft, by heart and hand. The toast was drunk amid the warmest applause with three times three cheers and one cheer more. Bro. Muirhead replied with much emotion, for the enthusiasm with which his name had been given and received, assuring them he would never fail to render to their noble Craft that honour due to it. "The Officers of the Lodge," "Mayor and Corporation," "Visiting Brethren," and "Masonic Charities," were severally given and responded to, and a most enjoyable evening spent, which will long be remembered by every brother present. The proceedings were enlivened by a glee party presided over by Bro. R. Seed, Prov. G.O. Bro. Brandon discharged the duties of D.C. in a manner that gained him the highest encomiums.

HASLINGDEN.—Commerce Lodge (No. 215).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 21st of November, at the Commercial Hotel, Haslingden, Lancashire, and was well attended, indeed we do not remember ever seeing a more numerous meeting except on the occasion of the annual festival. The principal business being the balloting for and initiating of two candidates, both sons of the W.M., Bro. Holt, and the election of W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year. The ballot for the two candidates, having proved unanimous in favour of their election, the elder son was then initiated into Masonry by the I.P.M., Bro. James Rawstron, and the second son by Bro. Collinge Moorhouse, P.M. Tranquility, 274, Newchurch. Thus two Lewises, natural brothers, were made into Masons on one evening, and became members of the same lodge equally with their father, the present W.M. The next business was the election of W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year. We feel proud in being able to state that the S.W., was elected by ballot without a single dissentient, notably a fact which has not been known to occur for a many years past. The S.W., Bro. Thomas Hargreaves, later on in the evening, in returning thanks for having been unanimously elected W.M., for the ensuing year, referred to the interest he had taken in other degrees, and wished the brethren to accept that as an earnest of what he would endeavour to do during the coming year. The Treasurer, Bro. James Maxwell, P.M., having been unanimously re-elected Treasurer, the lodge was closed in form and with prayer. The brethren afterwards adjourned to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were gone through in the usual manner.

Royal Arch.

CHESHIRE.

ALTRINCHAM.—Stamford Chapter (No. 1045).—The usual monthly meeting of this young and prosperous chapter took place on Wednesday, the 20th inst. There was a large muster of the companions. Punctually at the hour named on the summons, 6.30, the chapter was opened in due form with solemn prayer, every officer being present except Comp. Hardy, H., and Comp. Studd, P.S. Comp. C. H. Coates having been unavoidably absent at the last meeting, was now prevented to be installed into the third chair as J. A Board of Installed Third Principals was opened, and Comp. James A. Birth, P.Z., installed Comp. Coates into the third chair. The Board of Installed Third Principals was closed, and declared an open chapter. The companions having been admitted, the minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved. The ballot was taken for Bros. Samuel Thompson, Stamford Lodge, 1045, and was in his favour. Bro. John Lowton Owen was admitted and exalted to the degree of a Holy Royal Arch Mason by Comp. John Mort, M.E.Z. Bro. Thompson was admitted and exalted by Comp. R. Weston, P.Z. The historical lecture was given by Comp. Coates, J.; the symbolical by Comp. Sudven, 12, as H.; and the mystical by Comp. J. A. Birch, P.Z., each lecture being rendered in a manner unusually perfect and impressive. Bro. William Taberer, Stamford, 1045, Bro. John Davenport, sen., and Dr. Tabley, 941, having been proposed for exaltation, the chapter was closed in peace and harmony, with solemn prayer, at 8.40.

Mark Masonry.

METROPOLITAN.

SAMSON AND LEON LODGE (No. 86).—This lodge met on the 6th ult., at Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street. Bro. Sigismund Politzer, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Littaur, S.W.; Emanuel, J.W.; M. D. Loewenstark, Secretary; Volon, Lazarus, Tippet, Falcon, and other officers and brethren. One candidate for advancement appeared in the person of Bro. R. B. Glyde, of the Joppa Lodge, No. 188. The ceremony was ably rendered by the W.M. and acting officers. Various reports were read and confirmed, and several alterations were made in the bye-laws. The lodge was then closed. The brethren sat down to a banquet, prepared by Bro. Myers, the Jewish chef, which was done ample justice to. The usual toasts were afterwards proposed and effectually responded to, more especially by Bro. Littaur, S.W., and Emanuel, J.W., the latter brother giving an interesting account of the springing into life of Royal Arch Masonry in South Wales, which has been mainly due to his exertions. A very agreeable evening was spent, the only drawback to which was the knowledge of that, through the interdict of the Grand Mark Lodge, the brethren had been temporarily deprived of the active and valued services of their founder and first W.M., Bro. A. D. Loewenstark, P.G.P., P.M., &c.

LANCASHIRE (EAST).

BURY.—Alfred Lodge (No. 136).—On Thursday, 14th ult., the annual festival of the Alfred Mark Lodge took place at the Bridge Inn, Bury, Lancashire. There was a very good attendance of members. In the absence of the W.M. at the time of opening (5.0 p.m.) the chair was filled and the lodge opened by Bro. Thomas Hargreaves, P.M. 113, Junior Grand Deacon. After the minutes of the last lodge had been read and confirmed, several of the brethren signed and received their certificates in open lodge. The W.M., Bro. Joseph Handley, having now arrived, Bro. Henry Maiden was duly installed as W.M. for the ensuing year according to ancient custom, Bro. Thomas Hargreaves being the Installing Master. Under the able and experienced mastership of Bro. Maiden, we are sure that the prosperity and stability of the lodge, which is only in its second year of existence, will be fully maintained and increased. After the appointment and investiture of the officers, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony at 6.10. The brethren then adjourned to a banquet, provided by the host, Bro. Whittam, which was of an excellent character, and to which proper justice was done by the brethren assembled. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed, being given and received with that fervour and enthusiasm which is such a truly distinguishing characteristic of the Lancashire Mark Masons. To the toast of the Grand Master elect, Deputy G.M., and Grand Officers present and past, Bro. Hargreaves responded at considerable length. The Prov. G.M., Deputy G.M., and rest of Prov. G. Officers, and a many other toasts were afterwards given, including the healths of the W.M. and the I.P.M., Bro. Handley, both of whom suitably responded.

LEICESTERSHIRE.

LEICESTER.—Fowke Lodge of Mark Masters, (No. 19).—The bi-monthly communication of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday evening, the 28th ult., the following officers and brethren being present:—Bros. S. S. Partridge, W.M.; C. Johnson, P.M.; Wm. Weare, S.W.; A. Duff, P.M., as J.W.; George Toller, jun.; M.O.; Wm. Sculthorpe, S.O.; L. L. Attwood, J.O.; C. Stretton, Treasurer; W. T. Rowlett, R.M.J.M.; McAllister, Secretary; R. A. Barber, S.D.; F. J. Crow, J.D.; J. B. Hall, I.G. The R.W.P.M. Master, Bro. W. M. Kelly, F.R. H.S.; Bro. Rev. J. Spittal, D.P.G.M.M.; Bro. Rev. W. Longley, P. Prov. D.G.M.M. and V.W. Grand Chaplain of England. Dr. J. Hunt, Dr. G. Clifton, G. B. Atkins, G. W. Stathom, J. T. Thorpe, W. B. Smith, J. W. Smith, I. Charlesworth, F. J. Baines, and influential deputation of brethren from the Bedford Lodge, No. 115, Birmingham, consisting of Bros. E. Worrall, W.M.; H. Sanderson, W.M. elect; E. A. Webster, T. O. Leary, T. Parkes, W. Price, and D. Rose. The lodge was opened in due form, and the distinguished brethren, according to their respective rank, were saluted under the able direction of Bro. J. B. Hall as Director of Ceremonies.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the following candidates for advancement—viz., S. P. Ekin, J. Young, T. A. Wykes, E. Mason, G. Crofts, A. Cooper, and C. J. Wilkinson were duly balloted for, and approved. The W.M., with ability commensurate to the importance of such a numerous "levy of work men" anxious to submit their materials for inspection, and ably assisted by his principal officers, conducted the ceremony throughout with that careful attention to perfect working which is unquestionably the best and most effective means of awakening a lively interest in this degree, and rendering the duties of the lodge attractive to the brethren. The musical portion of the ceremony was admirably sustained by Bro. W. T. Rowlett, R.M. The sum of three guineas from the lodge funds having been voted towards a charitable object, and the continued prosperity of the lodge further evidenced by several propositions, the S.W. was commanded to close the lodge in due form, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The Stewards, Bros. G. B. Atkins, and G. W. Statham had made ample provision for the comfort and enjoyment of the brethren, and the aoles were gaily decorated with plants and flowers from the extensive conservatories of Bro. T. Charlesworth. The W.M., in proposing the health of the much esteemed R.W.P.G.M.M., Bro. Kelly, alluded in complimentary terms to the untiring zeal and assiduity of that veteran chief in his labours to resuscitate Mark Masonry in this province, and in raising this lodge to the high state of proficiency in working it has now attained. The R.W.P.G.M.M. having replied, the W.M. proposed the health of the Visiting brethren from the Bedford Lodge No. 115, and expressed in warm fraternal terms the pleasure enjoyed by the members of the lodge in entertaining such esteemed visitors, and the honour conferred upon himself individually by their visit. Bro. Worrall, W.M., in replying, complimented Bro. Partridge on his excellent working, kindly renewed the invitation to visit them at the Bedford Lodge on the 3rd December, and hoped that, such intercourse being conducive to extending the ramifications of this degree, they should see more of each other in future. The harmony of the evening was considerably enlivened by the musical performances of Bros. Rowlett and T. A. Wykes, and by the excellent songs of Bros. Attwood, H. Sanderson, A. Palmer, and the "catch," "Prosper the Man" by J. B. Hall and others. The final toast terminated a truly happy and delightful meeting.

Knights Templar.

SUFFOLK.

IPSWICH.—Priory of Prudence (Knights of Malta).—It having been decided to open a priory under the warrant of the Prudence Encampment, which dates from 1810, and the requisite authority from the Grand Vice-Chancellor having been obtained, a meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Wednesday, the 27th ult., for the purpose of installing the E.C., Sir Knight Emra Holmes, Grand Provost of England, as Eminent Prior, and for the admission of candidates for the Order of Malta. Among those present on the occasion were Sir Knights the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.E.C., P.E.P., Plantagenet Priory, D.P.G.C. Suffolk and Cambridge; Emra Holmes, P. 2nd G. Captain Suffolk and Cambridge, Act. Cap. Gen.; J. Pitcher, P.E.C., Act. Lieut.-Gen.; P. Cornell, Act. 1st Lieut., &c. Letters of apology regretting their inability to attend were received from Sir Patreik Colquhoun, Grand Chancellor; Sir Knights Captain Phillips, P.G. Commander Suffolk and Cambridge; J. M. F. Montague, Past Grand Captain; C. C. Townsend, P.E.C., P.P.G.C., P.E. Chancellor Suffolk and Cambridge; J. H. Townsend, E.P., Plantagenet Priory; E. Dorling, E.C. elect, Plantagenet Encampment; and Dr. Beaumont, R.N. The priory having been opened by Sir Knt. Sanderson, the following candidates presented themselves for installation:

—Sir Knts. W. P. Mills, M.D., P.E.C.; S. B. King, J. Franks, and G. S. Findley, P.E.C. Having been accepted, they were conducted to the guard-room, where they were entrusted with the Mediterranean Pass. They were then admitted to the Chapter House and severally dubbed Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta, the impressive historical ceremony being conducted in the well-known admirable style of Sir Knt. Sanderson. The newly-installed Sir Knights having taken their place in their stalls, Sir Knt. Sanderson proceeded to install Sir Knt. Emra Holmes as Eminent Prior of the Prudence Priory, who proceeded to appoint and invest his officers, (some of whom were unfortunately absent,) as follows:—Sir Knts. the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, Prelate; J. Pitcher, Capt. Gen.; Dr. Mills, Lieut.-Gen.; P. Cornell, 1st Lieut.; S. B. King, 2nd Lieut.; G. S. Golding, Marshal; Dr. Beaumont, R.N., Hospitaller; J. Franks, Admiral; Capt. Terry, Conservator; A. J. Barber, Baillic; Rev. G. T. Beaumont, Turcopolier; G. S. Findley, Chancellor; J. Pitcher, Treasurer; Vacant, Captain of the Outpost; Frater Geo. Spalding, Guard. The Eminent Prior desired Sir Knt. Sanderson to convey the best thanks of the Prudence Priory, as well as his own, to Sir Knt. J. Townsend, the Eminent Prior of the Plantagenet Priory, for his kindness and courtesy in placing the whole of the regalia of the priory at their disposal that evening. Sir Knt. Sanderson kindly undertook to convey the sentiments of the Frater to the E.P. and Sir Knights of his encampment. The Sir Knights then retired to partake of one of Frater Spalding's excellent repasts; and on the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and chivalric toasts were given and duly honoured. In proposing "The Queen," the E.P. reminded the Sir Knights that Her Gracious Majesty was the daughter of a Knight Templar. In giving the toast of the M.E. and S.G.M., Sir Knt. Holmes expressed a hope that when next they met and drank this toast, the object of it would be the most illustrious personage in these realms, or, he would say, the most illustrious subject. The toast was received with all the honours. In giving the toast of the D.G.M. and the Officers of Grand Conclave, the Eminent Prior spoke most highly of Sir Knt. Huyshe, to whom the Order of Malta owed so much, and coupled with it the name of Sir Knt. Sanderson, who briefly responded. The name of the Prov. Grand Commander gave the E.P. an opportunity to expatiate on those many good qualities which endeared Capt. Philips so much to them all. Sir Knt. Franks proposed "The health of Sir Knt. Sanderson," and spoke in terms of great praise of the manner in which he had conducted the beautiful ceremonies that evening. Sir Knt. Sanderson modestly responded. An animated discussion arose as to the new statutes of the Convent General of the Order, and the E.P. explained the new regulations to the fratres. A very agreeable evening was spent by the members of this ancient chivalric Order.

Obituary.

BRO. THE HON. BARON DIMSDALE.

We have, with much regret, to announce the death of the Hon. Baron Dimsdale, which took place on Tuesday morning, at his residence, Essendon Place, near Hertford, at the age of 71. Although the Baron had been for some time in failing health, the mournful news of his death came upon his friends somewhat suddenly and unexpectedly.

The late Baron was the second son of the Hon. Baron Robert Dimsdale, of Camfield Place, by Finette, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Charles Pye, of Wadley House, Berks, and was the fifth Baron in succession. He was born on the 12th of July, 1801, in the house then occupied by his father in St. Andrew Street, Hertford. He received his early education at Hackney School, from whence he proceeded to Wadham College, Oxford. His father, the third Baron, died in 1825, and was succeeded by Thomas Robert, the only brother of the late Baron, who died in 1865. He left four daughters, but his two sons died before him, and the title consequently devolved upon the subject of this notice, Charles John Dimsdale. This was the second time, since the creation of the Barony in 1762, that it had passed from one brother to another in default of male issue.

The present Baron Dimsdale was born 4th of July, 1828, was educated at Eton, and at Corpus Christi College, Oxford. He graduated B.A. 1848, and M.A. 1852, and married in 1853 Cecilia Jane, daughter of the Rev. M. R. Southwell, Vicar of St. Stephen's, St. Alban's. He is a Deputy-Lieutenant and a Magistrate for the county, and is also a Justice of the Peace for Middlesex and Westminster. He was first elected for Hertford, June 30th, 1866, in the Conservative interest, having in August 1859, been an unsuccessful candidate.

The history of the origin of the Barony is a singular and interesting one.

The first Baron was the son of John Dimsdale, a surgeon, who lived at Heydon Garnon, in Essex, and was the grandson of the Robert Dimsdale who, in 1684, went to America with William Penn, the Quaker. After studying the science of medicine under his father, he became a student at St. Thomas's Hospital. In 1734 he settled at Hertford, and carried on the practice of his profession, in which he soon acquired a high reputation. Five years later he married. His wife died in 1744, and in the following year he became a voluntary unpaid assistant of the Medical Staff attached to the military expedition under the Duke of Cumberland, sent to suppress the Scottish Rebellion. He continued in this post until the surrender of Carlisle to the Royal Forces, when he received the public thanks of his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief for his services. On his return from this expedition he married again, and being in affluent circumstances, he relinquished his practice. He resumed it, however, in 1761, when he took the degree of M.D.

Thomas Dimsdale was a man of great ability and independence of mind. At a time when small-pox was making fearful ravages among the population of Europe, he became celebrated for his success in inoculating for that disease, and in endeavouring to remove the popular prejudices which were entertained on the subject. In 1766 he published his memorable treatise called "The Present Mode of Inoculating for the Small-pox," a work which was translated into the Russian, German, French, and Italian languages, and circulated all over the Continent. But "the favourable results of his experiments" (we are now quoting from Tarnor's "History of Hertford") "tended more than his pen to confirm the truth of his theory":—

"The fame he derived from his discovery was not confined to this country; it reached the ears of the Empress Catherine of Russia, who invited Mr. Dimsdale to pay a visit to her court, to inoculate herself and her son, the Grand Duke, for the small-pox. The offer was accepted; and in the Imperial Court, where learned foreigners always met with a gracious reception, Mr. Dimsdale's career was not undistinguished. Independently of the ample presents which were made to him, he was appointed a counsellor of state and physician to her Majesty, and afterwards created a Baron of the Russian Empire (the title being limited to the eldest of his descendants in succession), with permission to add to the family arms a black wing of the spread eagle of the Imperial Russian arms in a gold shield placed in the centre, with the customary helmet on the shield, adorned with the baronial coronet. At the desire of her Imperial Majesty, the Baron went to Moscow, where he inoculated the children of the nobility and the chief inhabitants, as well as many of their parents. The Empress strongly solicited him to take up his residence in Russia, but the Baron's anxiety to revisit his native country induced him to decline the honour. On his way to England through Berlin he was invited to the palace of Sans-Souci, by the King of Prussia, who received him in the most flattering manner. In 1779 Mrs. Dimsdale died, leaving him with seven children; and a few months afterwards he married Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph Dimsdale, of Bishop Stortford, in this county, who died in 1812. In 1780 he was chosen a representative for the borough of Hertford; but in the next year he returned to St. Petersburg, at the request of the Empress, to inoculate the two sons of the Grand Duke. Here he met with the kindest treatment from the Empress and her son, whose generosity greatly increased the Baron's private fortune. In 1784 he was again elected to represent the borough; and having retired from public business, at the general election in 1790, he had the satisfaction of seeing his son, Nathaniel Baron Dimsdale, returned in his room. He died, after a few week's illness, on the 30th of December, 1800, in the eighty-ninth year of his age; and was interred in the burial ground of the Society of Friends, at Bishop Stortford.

"Nathaniel Baron Dimsdale, the second son of Thomas Baron Dimsdale, was born at the Priory, Hertford, on the 11th of April, 1748. In 1768, he accompanied his father to Russia, on which occasion the Empress Catherine conferred upon him the title of the Russian empire, with limitations similar to those contained in the grant to his father. He was an Alderman of the borough, and served the office of Mayor of Hertford in 1790 and 1804; he also represented the borough in Parliament the thirty-first, thirty-sixth and forty-first of George III. He died unmarried on the 3rd of July, 1811, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, and was interred in the parish church of St. Andrew, in Hertford, where a monumental inscription was placed to his memory on the south wall in the south aisle."

We may add that the heirs in succession are authorized by Royal license to assume in England the Russian title of Baron with the prefix of Honourable.

PROVINCIAL MASONIC LODGES AND THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

At the last quarterly communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland it was enacted that the registration and diploma of entrants shall be 10s. 6d. each, instead of 8s. as hitherto; also that on the 24th of June annually the contribution of one pound sterling must be remitted in addition to the fee of 5s. for the annual certificate. This has been done with a view to the extinction of the debt of the Grand Lodge and the application of its surplus revenues to charitable purposes. I do not know how far the lodges throughout Scotland have been consulted by their respective proxy-masters before such a motion was agreed to, but I will venture to affirm that the Grand Lodge has legalised an assessment that will be sure to give rise to great dissatisfaction, and will not be heartily responded to. The effect will be to cripple and impede the efforts which many lodges are now making to carry out projects of education and beneficence. In all the experiments of the Grand Lodge in the science of legislation we seldom or never hear of any assessment being imposed exclusively on the members of that venerable guild. It might be better if now and then it were to exemplify the salutary aphorism, that charity and deeds of self-denying virtue, should begin at home. Probably the present Grand Master, the Earl of Rosslyn, was fully aware that any proposal of this kind would not be well received by many of the members. I cannot but admire his ardent desire that the debt of the Grand Lodge should be wiped off; and (from what is known of his kind and generous disposition) if a subscription had been set on foot by the more wealthy brethren of the Craft, his name would assuredly have stood second to none for liberality and munificence. It is to be hoped that this additional impost upon the lodges will awaken a spirit of inquiry, in order to ascertain if the expenses of the Grand Lodge cannot somehow be reduced to a practical minimum. Much more honour would accrue to the society from works of benevolence and mutual aid than from having a highly paid class of officers, or from prodigal expenditure in banquetings and gatherings for parade and pleasure. The foundation-stone of the Masonic Hall was laid on the 24th of June, 1858, and at what cost the structure was raised, or what may be the present amount of debt upon the property, are matters on which I regret to find that "the Grand Lodge of Scotland's Reporter, April, 1872," is singularly silent. The sums which the Grand Lodge receives from the affiliated and daughter lodges throughout the country must add up every year to a very large total, and yet there is little or no apparent good done by this opulent income. I am not of opinion—and in this I differ from some whom I highly esteem, and to whose authority I should in many cases defer—that there ought to be no paid officers. The secretary's work is most laborious; but I am unable to perceive any necessity for two paid officials—the secretary and clerk. One of these might be dispensed with; and in saying so, I only express the opinion of many good and true Masons, held at the time of the death of the late lamented secretary. While thus urging the desirability of retrenchment, it would be unfair not to acknowledge in the most emphatic terms, the eminent services which Lord Rosslyn has rendered to the Craft generally. But I believe that he has no wish to make the terms of membership onerous throughout the country, in order to extinguish the debt on the Metropolitan Lodge, over which he so ably and honourably presides.—The Courant, Dec. 2, 1872.

The Star Lodge (No. 1275) now meets at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on the 1st Friday in March, June, September, and December.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, December 13, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, Dec. 7.

Gen. Com. Boys' School at Freemasons' Hall, at 4.
Lodge 142, St. Thomas, Caledonian-hotel, Adelphi.
Chap. 975, Rose of Denmark, White Hart, Barnes.
Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, Dec. 9.

Lodge 5, St. George's and Cornerstone, Freemasons' Hall.
" 29, St. Alban's, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
" 59, Royal Naval, Freemasons' Hall.
" 90, St. John's, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 193, Confidence, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
" 222, St. Andrew's, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
" 879, Peckham, Maismore Arms Tavern, Peckham-road, Peckham.
" 957, Leigh, Freemasons' Hall.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. Beckett, Preceptor.
Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Finchurch-street Station, at 7. Ceremony of Installation by Bro. C. Lacey, P.M.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gotthel, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, Dec. 10.

Lodge 96, Burlington, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
" 166, Union, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
" 180, St. James's Union, Freemasons' Hall.
" 198, Percy, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
" 211, St. Michael's, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
" 228, United Strength, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell.
" 235, Nine Muses, Clarendon Hotel, Bond-st.
" 548, Wellington, White Swan Tavern, Deptford.
" 834, Ranelagh, Clarendon Hotel, Hammersmith.
" 933, Doric, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
Chap. 185, Jerusalem, Freemasons' Hall.

Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domatic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8; Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood; Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
Florence Nighungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marylebone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's wood, at 8 Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, (50), Wheatsheaf Hotel, Hand-courr, Holborn, at 7; Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M., 180, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 11.

Committee of Masonic Benevolent Institution, at 3 o'clock.
Lodge 3, Fidelity, Freemasons' Hall.
" 11, Enoch, Freemasons' Hall.
" 13, Union of Waterloo, Masons' Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
" 15, Kent, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
" 87, Vitruvian, White Hart, College-st., Lambeth.
" 147, Justice, White Swan, High-st., Deptford.
" 238, Pilgrim, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st.
" 781, Merchant Navy, Silver Tavern, Burdett-rd., Limehouse.
" 1017, Montefiore, Freemasons' Hall.
" 1228, Beacontree, Private Rooms, Leytonstone.
" 1260, Hervey, Swan Hotel, Walham Green.
" 1305, St. Marylebone, Eyre Arms Tavern, St. John's Wood.
" 1306, St. John of Wapping, Gun Tavern, High-st. Wapping.
Rose Croix Chapter, Grand Metropolitan, Freemasons, Tavern.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, Dec. 12.

Lodge 19, Athelstan, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
" 263, Bank of England, Albion Tav., Aldersgate-st.
" 534, Polish National, Freemasons' Hall.
" 860, Dalhousie, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
" 1076, Capper, Marine Hotel, Victoria Dock.
" 1288, Finsbury Park, Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sister's Road, N.
Chap. 72, Royal Jubilee, Horns Tavern, Kennington.
" 619, Beadon, Greyhound Hotel, Dulwich.
Knights Templar Encampment, 117, New Temple, The Inner Temple, London.
The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall-Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Pensonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, Dec. 13.

Lodge 134, Caledonian, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
" 157, Bedford, Freemasons' Hall.
" 177, Domatic, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
Knights Templar Encampment, 26, Faith and Fidelity, Freemasons' Tavern.
" Templar Encampment, Mount Calvary, Freemasons' Tavern.

St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
 Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggenridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
 Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 33, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Edinburgh Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

MASONIC MEETINGS IN LIVERPOOL, &c.

For the Week ending Saturday, December 14, 1872.
MONDAY, DEC. 9.
 Lodge of Sincerity (No. 292), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 4.
 Mersey Lodge (No. 477), 1, Hamilton-square, Birkenhead, at 6.
 Lodge of Unity (No. 613), Masonic Hall, Southport, at 6.45.
 Gilbert Greenall Lodge (No. 1250), Masonic Rooms, Warrington, at 6.30.
TUESDAY, DEC. 10.
 Merchants' Lodge (No. 241), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 5.
 Zion Chapter, 1, Hamilton-square, Birkenhead, at 6.
 Bridson Chapter, Masonic Hall, Southport, at 7.
 Grosvenor Chapter (No. 721), Barr's Hotel, Chester, at 6.
 Lodge of Loyalty (No. 897), Fleece Inn, St. Helen's, at 6.
 Hesketh Lodge (No. 986), Grapes Inn, Croston, at 4.
 Downshire Lodge of Instruction (No. 594), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 7.
WEDNESDAY, DEC. 11.
 Lodge of Loyalty (No. 86), Royal Hotel, Prescott, at 6.
 Lodge of Harmony (No. 580), Wheat Sheaf Inn, Ormskirk, at 5.
 St. John's Chapter, 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 6.30.
 Ellesmere Lodge (No. 758), Masonic Hall, Runcorn, at 6.
 The Temple Lodge (No. 1094), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.
 De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 1356), 140, North-hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool, at 6.
 St. John's Lodge of Instruction (No. 673), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 8.
 Neptune Lodge of Instruction (No. 1264), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 7.
THURSDAY, DEC. 12.
 Harmonic Lodge (No. 216), Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, at 4.
 Croxeth United Service (No. 786), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.
 Prince of Wales (No. 1035), Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, at 6.
 Lodge of Equity (No. 1384), Sims' Cross Hotel, Widnes, at 6.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction (No. 1182), 150 Park-lane, Liverpool, at 7.
FRIDAY, DEC. 13.
 Lodge of Perseverance (No. 155), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.
 Rock Lodge (No. 1289), Rock Ferry Hotel, Rock Ferry, at 7.

Advertisements.

S. YARDLEY,
 ESTABLISHED 1830.
 SHOP FRONT BUILDER, SHOP FITTER,
 AND
 Air Tight Show Case Manufacturer,
 8, LOWER WOOD STREET, CLERKENWELL,
 LONDON, E.C.

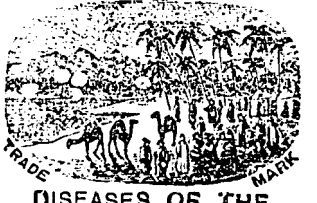

Every description of fittings manufactured for Jewellers, Cutlers, Stationers, Offices, Drapers, Museums, Banks, Libraries, Outfitters and Ho-stiers, Fancy Trades, &c.
 Plans and Estimates provided for shop fronts and internal fittings, in Town or any part of the Country.
 Outside Lamps (Silver plated), from 28s.
 Ditto, with arms and fittings complete, from 42s.
 Superior Jewellers' ditto, with extra illuminating power, from 35s.
 Ditto, with arms and fittings complete, from 50s.

GEORGE REES'
 MAPLE and ROSEWOOD
 MOULDINGS, best in London.
GEORGE REES'
 GILT MOULDINGS, cheapest
 in the Trade.
GEORGE REES'
 100,000 feet of GILT ROOM
 BORDERING in stock, from
 1d. per foot.
GEORGE REES'
 First-class ENGRAVINGS, from 2s. each.
GEORGE REES'
 CHROMOS, from the Best
 Masters, at reduced prices.
 57, DRURY-LANE, W.C., opposite Drury-lane Theatre.

RAYNHAM STEWART AND CO.
 COAL MERCHANTS AND COLLIERY AGENTS,
 NORTHERN WHARF, YORK ROAD, KING'S CROSS, N SUPPLY BEST WALLSEND COAL
 only, as supplied to HER MAJESTY, 30s. PER TON CASH.
 The CLEANEST burning, and the most DURABLE of any Best
 Coal brought into the PORT OF LONDON.
 N.B.—Commands the HIGHEST MARKET prices on the LONDON COAL EXCHANGE.
 Real Old Silk-stone Coal, 29s. 6d. Best Derby 27s. 6d.
 Wallsend International " Nuts 25s. 6d.
 Prize Coal 28s. 6d. " Small 17s. 6d.
 Coke (10 large Sacks), 16s. 6d.
 N.B.—LOWER PRICE COALS are simply FURNACE COAL.
 Welsh Smokeless Coal, Powell's Duffryn, 31s; Nuts, 29s.
 Hard Steam, 28s; Smokeless Hartleys, 25s 6d.
CHIEF OFFICES:—NORTHERN WHARF, YORK ROAD,
 KING'S CROSS, N.
 North London, 262, Caeldonian Road, N.
 South Office, 27, Methley-street, Kennington-park-road, S.E.
 East Office, 5, Clarence-street, Waterloo Town, E.

W. FIGES,
 80, CANNON-STREET, LONDON, E.C.,
 MANUFACTURER OF THE NEW ÆGIS UMBRELLA,
 Combining increased shelter with increased strength, an elegant shape, and a convenient walking length.
RIDING AND DRIVING WHIPS, &c.

THE
LOMBARD EXCHANGE,
 LOMBARD STREET, LONDON, E.C.
TERMS:
 Entrance Fee £. s. d.
 Annual Subscription 3 2 0
 Members residing and carrying on business at a distance of fifty miles and upwards from London, Merchant-Captains, and Clerks to Subscribers (no entrance fee) 1 1 0
 The Room is well supplied with newspapers, telegrams, and books of reference. It includes a Post-office, Poste
 Restante, Telegraph-office, Reading and Writing Room, Restaurant, Lavatories, &c.; also copying machines for the use of subscribers.
 Bro. JOHN H. YOUNGHUSBAND,
 P.M., P.Z., P.E.C., P.P., J.G.W., &c., Manager.

CROSBY'S
BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.
CROSBY'S
BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.
 Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S
 BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
 Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."
 "This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Croup, Influenza, Night
 Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough.
 * * * Invaders should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had gratis of all Chemists.

YOUNG'S ARTICATED CORN AND BUNION PLAISTERS are the best ever invented for giving immediate ease, and removing those painful excrescences. Price
 6d. and 1s. per box. May be had of most chemists.
 Observe the trade mark.—HY—without which none are genuine
 Be sure and ask for YOUNG'S.

THE ENTR'ACTE,
A MUSICAL and THEATRICAL REVIEW,
 Price One Penny. Used as a programme at the principal London and Provincial Music Halls. The Entr'acte enjoys an extensive circulation, and gets into the hands of every theatrical and music-hall artiste. It contains a splendid cartoon every week. First rate medium for advertisers. Subscribers can be supplied by post at 1/8 per quarter. Published every Saturday at 3, Brydges St., Covent Garden, W.C.

THE LONDON MIRROR.
 Published every Saturday; price 4d.
 The object of this journal is to set forth the claims of the many Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Prudential Institutions of the United Kingdom, and week by week to report their proceedings, whether as Meetings, Sermons, Anniversaries, or Elections, so as to present these National Institutions to the favour of the Public.
 Office, 59, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C.

"THE FREEMASON" OF ST. LOUIS.
 —The Largest Masonic Monthly in the World. Published at St. Louis, Mo., by George Frank Gouley, Grand Secretary and Recorder of the four Grand Bodies of Missouri.
 The Freemason contains tidings from every quarter of the world, and will be found of great advantage to all Masons, especially those interested in American affairs. Terms $2 per annum, and to those who subscribe for the London Freemason the price will be $1.50 currency. Postage free.
 Subscriptions received at the Office of the London "Freemason," 19S, Fleet-street.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST
 of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by
MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT
 CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.
 A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district.
 Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

THE COSMOPOLITAN.
 AN INTERNATIONAL NEWSPAPER OF
NEWS, POLITICS, COMMERCE, LITERATURE, ART, SOCIETY.
 ONE POUND A YEAR.
THE ONLY NEWSPAPER IN EUROPE OWNED AND EDITED BY AN AMERICAN.
FIRST-CLASS WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.
PUBLISHED IN LONDON, PARIS, AND NEW YORK

SCALE OF ADVERTISEMENTS.
 Single Advertisements..... 1s. per line.
 Thirteen insertions and upwards..... 6d. per line.
 All advertisements must arrive at the London Office before One o'clock on the Wednesday preceding the day of Publication.
 For single insertions payment must be made in advance, for which postage stamps may be sent at the rate of thirteen to the Shilling.
 All Advertisements payable after First Insertion.
 Cheques and Post Office Orders (Somerset-house) to be made payable to H. FULLER, No. 111, Strand, W.C.

THE COSMOPOLITAN
 Is independent of Party, Sect, and Nationality. Its circulation is WORLD-WIDE, and chiefly among the highest classes—statesmen, diplomats, bankers, clubs, hotels, &c.
ONE POUND A YEAR. SINGLE COPY FOURPENCE.

A NEW VOLUME.
 VOLUME XV. of THE COSMOPOLITAN commenced
 on the 3rd October, 1872. SUBSCRIPTION ONE POUND
 A YEAR, Postage (penny) Included.
 Handsomely Bound Volumes for Sale at 20s each.
The Cosmopolitan.

"It is a newspaper in every sense of the word, selecting from its daily contemporaries nearly everything that is of interest to the general reader, and supplying what is really wanted in this country—a thoroughly impartial reflex of public opinion."—Standard.
 "The editor is a gentleman well-known to the readers of Fraser's Magazine, as well as to the Transatlantic world, and wields a ready, graceful, and fluent pen."—Morning Post.
 "It is gaining great praise here from its thoroughly independent tone."—Dorset Chronicle.
ONE POUND A YEAR.

MELLIN'S EXTRACT
 For preparing
LIEBEG'S FOOD FOR INFANTS.
THE only genuine substitute for Mother's Milk, and recommended by the highest Medical Authorities, as the best Food for Infants and Invalids. Sold at 55, Charing Cross opposite Nelson's Monument.

CAUTION.
GENERAL FUNERAL ESTABLISH-MENT (Established upwards of 35 years.)
Bros. SINCLAIR & SON,
 FURNISHING UNDERTAKERS and FUNERAL
 FEATHERMEN.

 51, City Road, Finsbury Square, opposite the Finsbury Schools,
 E.C., and 27, Southgate-road, Dowdham-road, near the Rosemary Branch Bridge, N. (No connection with any other establishment of the same name.) Only at the above addresses. Every Funeral at stated charges—See Illustrated Prospectus.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital 787
 Grand Lodge of Scotland..... 787
 Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland 789
 So called Ancient Landmarks 789
 Emulation Lodge of Improvement 790
 CORRESPONDENCE :—
 United Grand Lodge..... 790
 Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution 790
 Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital..... 791
 Bro. Morton Edwards and Grand Mark Lodge ... 791
 The Vote of Thanks to Bro. Ll. Evans 791
 Masonic Notes and Queries 791
 Masonic Tidings 791
 United Grand Lodge 792
 CRAFT MASONRY :—
 Metropolitan 794
 Provincial 794
 ROYAL ARCH :—
 Provincial 795
 Metropolitan 795
 Masonic Meetings for next week 796
 Advertisements..... 785, 786, 797, 798, 799, 800
 SUPPLEMENT (Eight pages) :—
 Show Masons 801
 MARK MASONRY :
 Provincial 801
 Aids to Study, by Bro. W. Carpenter 802
 On Freemasonry, by Bro. H. T. Bobart 802
 Lodges of Instruction 803
 Red Cross of Constantine..... 804
 KNIGHTS TEMPLAR :—
 Scotland..... 805
 Consecration of a Knights Templar Encampment at Liverpool 806
 Correspondence 806
 The Grand Lodge of Scotland..... 807
 Poetry..... 808

NOTES ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

A Lecture delivered before the Fratres of the Prudence Encampment of Masonic Knights Templar, at Ipswich, on the 31st July, 1872.

BY EMRA HOLMES, 31^o,
 Eminent Commander of the Encampment, Grand Provost of England, Provincial Grand Banner Bearer of the Royal Order of Scotland, &c.
 (Continued from Page 772.)

Bro. Yarker says that "the History of the Jerusalem Encampment, the oldest in Lancashire, commences in 1786, but many old Freemasons believe that long prior to the issue of warrants the Chivalric Orders were practised under the sanction of the Blue Lodges." He seems to think that it is in 1686, under the sanction of the Scottish Chivalric Order of the Temple and St. John that our traditions point for the revival of the Knights Templar.

Dom Calmet records, that Viscount Dundee was at this period Grand Master of the Order of Templars in Scotland, and states that he had received from the titular Viscount the Grand Cross his brother wore when he fell at Killiecrankie in 1689. Certain it is, however, that the Grand Lodge of all England at York recognised the Order previous to 1780, and at the union of the two Grand Lodges in 1813, as I have elsewhere stated, it was expressly stipulated that the article referring to what should be considered pure Ancient Masonry was not intended to prevent any lodge or chapter from holding a meeting in any of the degrees of the Orders of Chivalry, according to the constitution of the said Orders. This was no doubt in consequence of the Dukes of Sussex and Kent (both being heads of the Order, the one as Grand Master the other as Grand Patron) being also Grand Masters in the Craft. The present prosperous condition of the United Orders of the Temple and the Hospital is no doubt due to the great exertions of its present Grand Chancellor,

Sir Patrick Colquhoun, as well as to the support of noblemen like the Earl of Limerick, Lord Skelmersdale, Lord Eliot, and others, to whom we, as Knights Templar, owe a debt of gratitude we cannot easily repay. In Scotland the Order, which during the last century had accepted charters from the High Knights Templar in Ireland, whose origin I believe is not very well known, but who are now under the Grand Mastership of the Duke of Leinster, and hold a high social position in their own country; but these charters were discarded, Laurie tells us when they accepted a charter from the Duke of Kent.

The United States Knights Templar owe their origin to England, tracing their descent from the Baldwyn and York, and other immemorial Encampments, I believe, as stated in Mackey's Lexican and Cross Chart.

The three independent bodies of Knights, in the United Kingdom are shortly, I believe, to be under one sceptre, that of the Prince of Wales, when we may confidently look for a new raising of the Beauseant, and the Templars will take their proper position as a great chivalric body before the world.

That we are the legitimate descendants of the Crusading Knights I have no manner of doubt and as, I have said before, both friends and enemies have admitted that great fact.

In Barruel's history of Jacobinism the author, citing the frightful charges against the Templars, which as a Jesuit of course he believes says, "Such nevertheless are the men from whom the Masons glory in being descended. Yes, and their descent is real. Their pretensions are no longer chimerical. Were they to deny it, we should force them to recognise as their progenitors not the whole of the Order, but that part whose ancient corruption and obstinate hatred against the altar and the throne, when added to their thirst of revenge, must render them still more formidable to both kings and pontiffs.

"Were we to trace the descent of the Freemasons by the Templars we should not have the assurance of those who suppose the Grand Master Molay, when in the Bastille creating the four lodges, that of Naples for the East, of Edinburgh for the West, of Stockholm for the North, and of Paris for the South. Yet following nothing but the Archives of the Freemasons themselves, and the apparent affinities which subsist between them and the Knights Templar, we are entitled to say to them :—Yes, the whole of your school and all your lodges descend from the Templars. After the extinction of their Order a certain number of criminal Knights, who escaped the general proscription, formed a body to perpetuate their frightful mysteries."*

very insufficient grounds, but I have already, for the most part, disposed of that question. He says:—"Another reflection, which strikes me as being of weight, though I do not know that any one has made it, is that between thirty and forty thousand Knights not only survived the condemnation of the Order, but also survived Philip le Bel and Clement V. The greater part of these had only been condemned to canonical penance, to so many days fasting and prayer, or to a short imprisonment. They lived in different parts of the world, where they had nothing to fear from their persecutors and tyrants."

Barruel thinks therefore that if they had been innocent they would have asserted their innocence after the death of Philip le Bel.

His argument, however, is in favour of the probabilities of our descent, whatever it may be as to our innocence, and when our brethren in the craft ridicule our pretensions I am reminded of what was said some time back in the Freemasons' Magazine touching the High Grades. Our venerable Brother, Charles Purton Cooper, who may be called the Martin Tupper of Masonry, in speaking of the High Grades to a brother says, "if, as you assert, the high grades are useless, valueless, how do you account for their having existed amongst us so many years, and for their being more flourishing now than at any former time? English common sense rarely tolerates, much less favours what has no value, no use * * * * * you make obscurity of origin the foundation of an argument against the high grades. If you are consistent you must, as it seems to me, equally make obscurity of origin the foundation of an argument against modern English Freemasonry."*

There is much wisdom in our learned brothers remarks.

(To be concluded in our next.)

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

PRESENTATION OF BUST TO LORD DALHOUSIE.

On Monday, the 2nd inst., the Grand Lodge of Scotland met in their hall, George-street, the Earl of Rosslyn, Most Worshipful Grand Master Mason of Scotland, in the chair. There was a large attendance. The following office-bearers, who had been recommended for election by the Grand Committee, were elected accordingly, and duly installed into office, viz. :—

- Rt. Hon. Earl Rosslyn ... G. Master.
- Rt. Hon. Earl Dalhousie P.G. Master.
- Sir M. Shaw Stewart, Bart. D.G. Master.
- Henry Inglis, Esq S.G. Master.
- Col. A. C. Campbell S.G. Warden.
- Rt. Hon. Earl of Kellie ... J.G. Warden.
- Samuel Hay G. Treasurer.
- Alex. J. Stewart G. Secretary.
- John Laurie G. Clerk.
- Rev. V. G. Faithful, M.A. G. Chaplain.
- Rev. Dr. Gray "
- Major W. H. Ramsey ... S.G. Deacon.
- F. A. Barron J.G. Deacon.
- David Bryce Architect.
- Alexander Hay G. Jeweller.
- John Coghill G. Dir. of Cers.
- D. Robertson G. Bible-Bearer.
- James Ballantine..... G. Bard.
- Right Hon. Lord Rosehill G. Sword-Bearer.
- C. W. M. Müller G. Dir. of Music.
- R. Davidson G. Organist.
- M. Mackenzie..... Chief G. Marshal.
- A. T. Apthorpe G. Marshal.
- W. M. Bryce G. Tyler.
- James Baikie Outer Guard.
- F. S. Melville Pres. G. Stewards.
- J. Haig Vice-President.

During the installation of the M.W. Grand Master, the chair was occupied by the Past G. Master, the Earl of Dalhousie. The Earl of Rosslyn, on again taking the chair, briefly returned thanks for that renewed expression of their confidence. After this formal business had

* History of Jacobinism, part 2, pp. 376—8. Barruel assumes the guilt of the Order from been gone through, the grand officers proceeded to the great hall, which was filled by a company of about 250 brethren, including deputations from all the lodges in the province, and several from a distance—Glasgow, Kilmarnock, &c. The National Anthem was played on the organ as the grand officers entered, and they were received with loud cheers. The chair was taken by the Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Earl of Rosslyn; on his right and left respectively being the Earl of Dalhousie, Lord James Murray, Lord Burleigh, Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Mr. Whyte Melville of Mount Melville, Mr. Henry Inglis of Torsonce, Mr. Oswald of Dunnikier, Mr. Hope, Luffness, Mr. Mann, &c. Major Ramsay, and Colonel Campbell of Blytheswood, officiated as croupiers.

* Freemason's Magazine Vol. xvii. 90.

The banquet finished, thanks were returned by the Rev. A. S. Muir, of Leith. The toast of "The Holy Lodge of St. John" was then given from the chair, and drunk in silence, followed by that of "The Queen," which was cordially responded to, and followed by the National Anthem, played on the organ and by the string band in the orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. R. B. Stewart, while the chorus was heartily joined in by the company. In proposing "The Grand Steward of Scotland, Patron of the Grand Lodge," the noble Chairman said that he had recently personally asked his Royal Highness to become the patron of a History of Freemasonry in Scotland that was soon to be in the press, and to that request his Royal Highness had willingly acceded (loud applause). The M.W. Grand Master next gave "The Princess of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the rest of the Royal Family," which was received with loud applause; followed by that of "The Navy, Army, Militia, and Volunteers"—Lord James Murray replying for the army, and Colonel Guthrie, Brechin, for the volunteers. "The Craft and Freemasonry over the World" was next given from the chair, and suitably received. "The Grand Lodge of England and Marquis of Ripon" having been proposed by the M.W. Grand Master, was cordially received, and responded to by the Earl of Dalhousie; and it was followed by "The Grand Lodge of Ireland and the Duke of Leinster," which was also received with cordiality.

The Earl of Dalhousie, on rising to propose "The Health of the Most Worshipful Grand Master, the Earl of Rosslyn," was received with prolonged cheering. He said he was quite certain he only required to name the subject of his toast to ensure for it an enthusiastic reception. They had that day re-elected their Most Worshipful Grand Master for the third time. (Cheers.) That, he said, is not only gratifying to me as a personal friend of the noble Grand Master, but it is also gratifying to me to find that he who succeeded me on the throne has received the same kindness, and that his endeavours to promote Masonry have received the same appreciation from the brethren as those of the Grand Masters that have gone before him. (Cheers.) I am quite certain that you could have elected to that office no other individual who had the interests of Freemasonry more sincerely at heart than he has—(cheers)—as an individual who might be supposed, from his descent from the St. Clairs of Rosslyn—(loud cheers)—to have a determination to uphold the rights of Masonry, not only in Scotland but throughout the world. (Cheers.) That Lord Rosslyn has succeeded in gaining the respect and admiration of the Craft, is sufficiently shown by the fact of their having elected him a third time to the throne; and I add to my congratulations on his having succeeded for a third time to this office, my most earnest wish, as I am sure it is the wish of the brethren, that he will long be spared to be an ornament to Masonry, and an ornament, as he is, to society at large. (Loud cheers.)

The Earl of Rosslyn, who was received with prolonged applause, after returning thanks for the toast, said—I can assure you, brethren, from the bottom of my heart, that I was at one time loath to accept again this very high position. You have again done me the honour to place me in that position, my diffidence to occupy which arose partly from the fact that I have occasion to reside a great deal of the year out of Scotland, and have not, therefore, the opportunity of paying that attention necessary to the proper discharge of its duties; but during the last two years I think I have so far mastered the details of Grand Lodge and brought them prominently before your notice—(applause)—and I have no hesitation in saying that the cloud which at one moment seemed to overshadow our prospects has burst and disappeared. I think that the sunshine is breaking through, and that we shall see at no distant day a complete cessation of those difficulties that threatened us. (Applause.) And I believe I may almost say that before my reign is over, you will find that Grand Lodge is really on the high road to entire freedom from debt. (Cheers.) However closely we may be linked together, it is necessary that we should have our opinions ventilated and given utterance to, as that is done at the quarterly meetings of Grand Lodge; and while that is the case, it is my duty, as occupying the chair, to ascertain what is the voice of the greater number—to assist in ascertaining and declaring that the larger amount of sentiment shall prevail in the decisions arrived at. (Applause.) But I have to-day seen sentiments expressed in a public journal which, however kindly they have been meant towards myself, and however favourably they may have referred to my efforts, have been founded on misconception of the facts of the case. (Hear, hear.) I know that the charge of the Grand Lodge being the last to assist in working the Fund of Benevolence is wholly and totally unfounded, (applause) and it shows that the writer can have no acquaintance with the origin of our Fund of Benevolence. It owes its origin to the Grand Lodge; and those who best know its history are aware that the subscriptions it receives from it are given by office-bearers and by members of Grand Lodge in behalf of Scottish Masonry. (Applause.) And as to the charge that is made against us of spending our funds in festivities instead of giving them away in charity, I think that 3s. 6d. paid by us for a dinner scarcely calls for any fault-finding remark (hear, hear, and laughter), especially, as I am reminded by the Substitute Grand Master, when we pay that out of our own pockets. (Applause.) But I will not longer trespass upon your patience. I do really like to bring the outer world into communion with Masonic sentiments as far as possible; and I do believe that the more that is done, the more reason will those in the outer world have to praise and uphold our institution rather than decry it. (Loud applause.) Let me turn from this subject to a subject that will be interesting to all the brethren. I have the honour to propose the health of a warm friend of Masonry, a Scottish nobleman and a Scottish landlord, Lord Dalhousie, (prolonged cheering) one who has endeared himself to all ranks and classes in the country, (cheers) one who has attended to and promoted Masonry in other ranks than our own, and whether we reckon him as a Masonic official or a great statesman (loud cheers) one you will find who has in his life realised the words of the Poet Laureate, and shown that the path of duty is the way to glory. (Applause, the marble bust of his lordship being uncovered amid a renewed round of cheering.) This work, continued his lordship, is presented by the committee who organised the subscriptions from the Grand Lodge of Scotland, to be kept in perpetuity and handed down so long as Masonry itself shall exist. (Cheers.) This work is one that I feel sure will be greatly prized by us all, and I am allowed to inform you, that handsome as it is, and beautifully executed as we see it to be, yet the subscriptions raised for it have vastly exceeded the cost of the work. (Applause.) It is customary in such cases to present a replica of the bust, but in this instance the noble earl has declined to receive it, and is to devote the surplus funds to objects of benevolence—an example which I think is worthy of all praise and of imitation. (Loud applause.)

The Earl of Dalhousie briefly returned thanks for the gift, and, in reference to the surplus funds, said that his intention was that, instead of devoting them to obtaining a replica, he had decided on placing them in the hands of the Grand Committee, in order to be made into an annual fund for the relief of any distressed brother who might have failed in business through no fault of his own. (Loud cheers.)

A number of other toasts appropriate to the occasion were proposed and responded to, and in the course of the proceedings a song, composed for the occasion by Bro. James Ballantine, Grand Bard, was sung, and received with great applause.—Edinburgh Courant.

STOCKWELL LODGE (No. 1339) will meet next time and for the future at the Half Moon, Herne Hill.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage, which may have us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Never neglect a Cold.—From gross contravention of this very simple advice, thousands of persons contract chest complaints, which might be altogether prevented by the use of these harmless yet effectual and reliable remedies. It is painful to hear of the many fatal cases which commenced with the ordinary symptoms of a common cold. Holloway's Ointment rubbed upon the back and chest; after rubbing in the Ointment for a few days the pectoral irritation and the tightness of breathing diminish, the cough becomes looser and less frequent, and the phlegm is expectorated with less difficulty, till the lungs become free and respiration natural.—ADVT.

W. ELLIS WALL, Esq., of Salcombe Hill House, writes, March 31, 1871:—"I have used your Pain Killer for rheumatic gout inwardly, and on nearly every joint in my body. In about half-an-hour after I had used it I was perfectly free from pain. Taken internally, I have found it cure headache, griping pains in the stomach, and many other similar disorders. My only object in writing this is to express my gratitude, and with the hope that it may be for the good of the public,—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C., Proprietors."

SO CALLED ANCIENT LANDMARKS.

I have read Bro. Norton's long communication in The Freemason of the 16th ult., but have failed to discover the slightest ground for his sweeping and mistaken charges against Anderson.

I admit that the actual term, "Ancient Landmarks," is not to be found in any of the early MSS., and supposing that its use may be limited to the beginning of the 18th century in our Masonic Parlance, there is in this fact no real innovation in the nomenclature and phraseology of Freemasonry.

Words often arise, "ex necessitate rei," as it is said, and it is just possible that this very convenient and appropriate expression may have been most frequently and extensively used by Anderson! I do not say that this is so, but even supposing it were so, how can it possibly affect Anderson's character for veracity and trustworthiness as a Masonic historian, or how does it support the charge that he "revolutionised Freemasonry?"

As regards the changes generally in the Constitutions, they are only such as the lapse of time and altered circumstances rendered necessary; above all, the necessary prevalence of the speculative element, and what we should, in truth, expect when we remember that in their main features, at any rate, those prose Constitutions are derived from the Poetic Formulary.

Bro. Norton bases a portion of his argument against the reality apparently of the Poetic, as well as Matthew Cooke's Constitutions, on the alleged illegitimacy of Athelstan. Now, modern researches and later study do not accept it as historically proved that Athelstan was illegitimate.

At least, a great deal may be said in favour of his legitimacy.

I am aware that Hume and Millar, and other writers say so, and, therefore, Bro. Norton is in very good company, but William of Malmesbury does not say so, and the "Anglo-Saxon Chronicle" does not relate it as a certain truth.

On the contrary, William of Malmesbury, from whom our later historians all derive their account, gives us the names of Edward's three wives, namely, Egwina, Elflada, and Edgiva, with the names of all their children, but he places them all on the same level.

He mentions, indeed, that there was a popular belief to the contrary, and relates a very peculiar story, but he nowhere himself either assumes or asserts the fact. On the contrary, he mentions that Alfred the Great made Athelstan a knight, and had him educated at the court of his daughter Ethelfled, in the expectation of succeeding to the kingdom.

He records the opposition which arose on this very ground by some at his succession, but asserts that he had the unanimous assent of the nobility! As much, therefore, may be said in favour of his legitimacy as against it, and I am inclined to think that the story is a popular error.

But if it were so, it would not affect the customs of the guilds or their ancient regulations.

Bro. Norton alludes to the "morals" of our earlier brethren, a matter which has really nothing to do with the discussion, the more so when we call to mind the date at which these regulations were in force.

Bro. Norton "harks back" to "Freeborn." I think that our operative Masonic forefathers gave a very sensible reason for the law.

Unless a serf was "manumitted" in those days, his children were born "serfs" too, and the Lord had the same claim on the children that he had on the father.

Had the guilds received "serf" members, or "serf" apprentices, the consequence would have been that the Lord would have intervened at any moment, even in the midst of the most important works, and taken the "serf" away.

And hence the law, universal as far as Masonic Guilds were concerned, that no one should be admitted who was not "freeborn," and that no one should be taken as an "apprentice" who was not the son of free, emancipated parents. Whatever reason may have induced the English Grand Lodge, in this, our epoch, to substitute "freemen" for "freeborn," it is quite clear that historically and Masonically "freeborn" is the universal law of the Craft, and Bro. Norton cannot produce the slightest trustworthy evidence to the contrary.

With regard to Dr. Oliver, I think that it is a great pity that Bro. Norton uses such derogatory language in respect of one who was an able writer, a good Mason, and a painstaking historian of our Order. It is impossible not to remark, and still more not to regret, Bro. Norton's wonderful proficiency in, and copiousness of, unworthy personalities, which are quite opposed to the genuine teachings of Freemasonry.

To call brethren "dreamers," and "credulous," and "ignorant," and "mendacious," and to employ constantly many other choice epithets to those who stand in the way of a fantastic hobby, is not to improve our Masonic literature, or advance the cause of Masonic inquiry! Neither does it even subserve the particular view Bro. Norton seems so anxious to put forward and proclaim. Angry vituperation, and puerile aspersions on the motives and character of others, never yet helped any good cause in the world, or advanced in any way the great claims of truth, quâ truth.

If Bro. Norton really wishes to give an impetus to archaeological studies and historical accuracy, let him eschew anything henceforth like those hopeless and unreasoning personalities which have reduced his essays to the low level of partizan theories and angry assertions. I am, like Bro. Norton, a simple "Craftsman," that is to say, I accept, "ex imo corde," the Universality of Freemasonry, and therefore adhere solely to the three degrees and the Royal Arch. But, though I cannot see my way clear to accept, either Masonically or historically, what are technically termed the "High Grades," I feel bound to protest once for all against Bro. Norton's violent and unjustifiable attack, especially on the Masonic Knights Templar. I know many very worthy men and most excellent Freemasons who do see their way, though, as I say, I do not, to accept the claims and the position of the "Christian Degrees," and they have as much right to their opinion as I have to mine. At the proper time and in the proper place I shall always be prepared to uphold what I deem to be the unchanging landmarks and "universal" principles of Ancient Free and Accepted Masonry, but I utterly repudiate Bro. Norton's unwise complaints and unfounded assertions.

Indeed, Bro. Norton's communications too plainly evince that, while he is complaining of the intolerance of others, he has only seen the "mote" in their eyes and forgotten the "beam" that is in his own, and that he has got a good deal to learn, alike in courtesy of language and correctness of statement, before he can profess to become a teacher of our Order, or above all to level to the ground, with a sort of "Happy Despatch," the fair character and historical accuracy of our best writers, offering us nothing in their stead, as he seemingly does, but untenable assertions, illogical conclusions, and idle personalities.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

Dec. 2, 1872.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

On Friday, the 20th ult., a Provincial Grand Lodge was held of the Antient Free and Accepted Masons of Cumberland and Westmoreland, at Wigton, under the auspices of St. John's Lodge, No. 327.

From the fact that nearly thirty years have elapsed since such an occurrence took place in Wigton, it may be imagined that no little interest was excited in the neighbourhood. The Province of which the Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, M.P., is the Provincial Grand Master comprises fifteen lodges, all of which are in a flourishing condition, and it speaks well for the progress of Masonry in the "sister counties" when we state that another lodge will shortly be opened at Harrington.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in the large room of the Mechanics' Institute, the whole of the spacious building having been kindly lent to the brethren for the occasion.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Bective, Prov. G.M., presided, and he was supported by numerous influential brethren of the Province, amongst whom were the following Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers:—

Bros. John Whitwell, M.P., D. Prov. G.M.; E. Busher, Prov. G.S.B. England, and Prov. G. Sec.; John Lemon, Prov. G.T.; John Gate, 327, Prov. G.R.; W. Kirkbride, P.M. 339, P. Prov. G.S.; Thomas Richardson, Prov. G.A. D.C., 327; T. B. Arnison, P.M. 339, P. Prov. G.S.B.; S. W. Rowland, P.M. 339, P. Prov. G.O.; Aaron Routledge, P.M. 1,220, P. Prov. G.T.; J. Porter, P.M. 327, 343, 1,256, P. Prov. A.G. Sec.; John Pearson, W.M., Prov. G.S.D. 1,002; I. Nicholson, P. Prov. G.S.W.; E. Fearon, P.M. 119, P.G.S.B.; F. Hayward, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Martin, W.M. 872, 1267, P. Prov. S.G.W.

A vote of condolence, moved by Bro. Col. Whitwell, M.P., D. Prov. G.M. and seconded by Bro. the Rev. W. Williams, Prov. G. Chap., was passed to Bro. Busher, P.G.S.B. England, Prov. G. Sec., on the death of his father.

The following is a list of the Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

- Earl of Bective, M.P., 1074 Prov. G.M.
- John Whitwell, M.P., 129.
- 1074..... Prov. D.G.M.
- Lieut. A.C. Mott, R.N.P.N. Prov. G. S. W.
- E. W. Henry, M.D., P.M.
- 119..... Prov. G.J.W.
- Rev. A. Curwen, M.A.,
- P.M. 962..... Prov. G. Chaplain.
- R. Rutherford..... Prov. G. Asst. Chap.
- John Lemon, P.M. 327... Prov. G. Treasurer.
- Right Hon. Lord Muncaster, M.P., 119..... Prov. G. Registrar.
- Edward Busher, P.M. 129,
- 962, 1074, Prov. G.S.B.
- England..... Prov. G. Secretary.
- James Porter, P.M. 327,
- 343, 1256..... Prov. G. S. D.
- Jno. R. Tickle, P.M. 371 Prov. G. J. D.
- W. Tattersall..... Prov. G. S. of W.
- H. Fearon, P.M. 119..... Prov. G. D. of C.
- P. de E. Collin, 371..... Prov. G. A. D. C.
- Roger Dodgson, 1390..... Prov. G. Swd. B.
- John Wood..... Prov. G. Organist.
- Geo. Brooker, P.M. 962... Prov. G. Steward.
- A. Taylor, 310..... Prov. G. Steward.
- H. Bewes, 327..... " " "
- G. Shannon, M.D., 327... " " "
- George Carrick, 327..... " " "
- John Mill's, 1390..... " " "
- J. Norman Hodgson, 327 " " "

On the closing of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the brethren met in proper form on the bowling green adjoining, and, headed by the excellent band of the Wigton Volunteer Rifle Corps, marched down West-street, through the Market Place and along King-street, turning at the Market Hill, and back to the Parish Church, along King-street, the whole way being lined with crowds of spectators, and the windows of the houses were well filled.

The Church was much crowded, the arrangement being that the brethren were to sit below and others in the galleries. The service was a full choral one, and was intoned by Canon Whitmore, of Carlisle Cathedral. The first lesson was read by Bro. Canon Porteus, and the second lesson by Bro. Rev. A. Curwen, of Harrington. The musical service was more than good; it was most impressive and effective, and Mr. Metcalfe, who presided at the organ, was much extolled for the very efficient style in which he played. The beautiful and appropriate anthem, by Clarke Whitfield, "Behold how good and joyful a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," was capitably sung by the choir, and seemed to make a great impression on the brethren assembled. The sermon was preached by Bro. Rev. W. Williams, of Cockermouth, P.G. Chaplain, from the text Mark, chapter 15, verse 38, "And the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom," from which he preached a most appropriate and Masonic address, inculcating upon the brethren that they must be both material and spiritual builders.

The brethren, to the number of about 180, sat down to a very excellent banquet at about 4 o'clock. It was prepared by Bro. Martin, of the Lion and Lamb, and from the style in which it was prepared and served, well deserved the commendations bestowed upon it. It took place in the Diocesan marquee, which was erected in the Fioshfield grounds, through the kindness of Mr. Carrick. The dinner tables were very elegantly decorated with flowers and evergreens from Fioshfield.

The Chair was taken by the Right Worshipful the Earl of Bective, Provincial Grand Master, supported by Bro. Colonel Whitwell, the Rev. W. M. Schuibben, Bro. Canon Porteus, Bro. Iredale, Bro. Lemon, Mr. J. Carrick, Bro. Jackson Gillbanks, Bro. the Rev. W. Williams, Bro. E.H. Henry, M.D., Bro. Dr. Jones, Bro. Captain Mott, Minor Canon Whitmore, and the Rev. J. A. Scott.

On the withdrawal of the cloth, the Chairman proposed "The Queen," followed by the toast of "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family" after which the Chairman gave "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," each of which was received with much enthusiasm. After some of the speeches the band played appropriate airs. The Rev. W. M. Schuibben was the first called upon to respond for the Bishop and Clergy, and cordially welcomed the brethren to Wigton. He said he had had much pleasure in placing his church at their disposal, pleased to think that in their festivities they remembered the service in the Parish Church, although he did not expect that his church was to be turned into a cathedral. (Cheers.) The Chairman then proposed "The Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces," for which Colonel Whitwell, M.P., Lieutenant A.C. Mott, R.N., and Ensign Carrick returned thanks. Mr. Metcalfe sang his celebrated song "John Peel," with much applause. The room was then, in the language of the brethren, "close styled," and the various Masonic toasts were given, according to the toast list.

The weather throughout the day was all that could be desired, and contributed very much to the success which has crowned the labours of the brethren of No. 327.

THE EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.

The members of the Craft in London at the present day are so amply furnished with the means of attaining a correct knowledge of the ceremonies and lectures of Freemasonry, that it is difficult for brethren whose "Boas have fallen in such pleasant places" to realise the fact that Lodges of Instruction were all but unknown fifty years ago. It is true that the Grand Stewards' Lodge was generally recognised as the custodian of the authorized working, and to some extent the able brethren of that distinguished lodge supplied the Masonic wants of the metropolitan brethren. But the growing popularity of Freemasonry, and the consequent increase of the Craft, soon rendered it expedient to make further provision for teaching the numbers and officers of lodges those duties which they would be called upon to perform. Accordingly we find that about the year 1823, certain zealous brethren conceiving that the Masonic lectures were not worked upon a properly regulated system, resolved to meet together for mutual instruction. The names of these brethren deserve to be recorded, inasmuch as they were the founders of the now celebrated "Emulation Lodge of Improvement" for Master Masons. They were Bros. John Smyth, of the Burlington Lodge; Joseph Dennis and E. Whittington, of the "Unions"; John Wilson, of the "Percy," and Gervase Margerison, of the "Constitutional."

They advertised their intention to meet at a house in Wardour-street, Solo, and on the appointed evening the room was crowded. Many members of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, who fancied that their immemorial right to "rule and teach" was about to be infringed, and also many Grand Officers, including the Grand Secretary, attended to watch the proceedings. Every office in the new Lodge of Instruction was ably filled by experienced Masons, and so admirably were the lectures and ceremonial illustrated, that all opposition, if such were intended, was at once and for ever silenced. Among the visitors at this inaugural meeting was the famous Peter Gilkes, who subsequently became the Preceptor of the lodge, an office which he held up to the time of his decease. It is almost needless to add that the Emulation Lodge of Improvement has not only sustained the high promise of perfection which it gave in 1823, but is now regarded as one of the great exemplars of Masonic ritualism in England, and with the "Stability," its sister Lodge of Instruction, the "Emulation" divides the allegiance of every earnest worker in the Craft. A practical proof of this supremacy was afforded at the anniversary meeting of the lodge, on Friday, the 27th November, when more than two hundred brethren assembled under its ægis at Freemasons' Hall, to listen to as perfect a rendering of the sections in the first lecture as it has ever been our good fortune to hear. The chair was occupied by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who, in accordance with custom, put the questions to the sectionists, a duty which he discharged most ably and impressively. The first section was worked by Bro. J. F. Huggins, W.M. 18; the fourth by Bro. G. E. Wainwright, S.W. 370; the fifth by Bro. W. Smallpiece, S.W. 1395; the sixth by Bro. H. Wood, and the seventh by Bro. J. A. Rucker, P.M. 66. The earnest delivery and the eloquent ability of these brethren were most marked, and richly deserved the enthusiastic applause with which their efforts were received, and the thanks which were awarded them at a later period. After the lodge had been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Freemasons' Tavern, where the festival was held under the presidency of Lord Tenterden, C.B., Senior Grand Warden, who was supported by Bros. R. Scott, Dist. Grand Master Trinidad; A. J. McIntyre, Q.C., G.R.; H. Lloyd, Q.C., Pres. B.G.P.; J. L. Evans, P. Pres. B.G.P.; J. Hervey, G. Sec.; J. F. Leith, Q.C., M.P.; J. B. Monckton, S.G.D.; E. E. Wendt, G. Sec. G.C.; T. Fenn, P.A.G.D.C.; C. A. Murton, J.G.D.; J. A. Rucker, V.P., B.G.P.; J. Brett, P.G.P.; J. Boyd, G.P.; C. A. Coitebrune, A.G.P.; R. Wentworth Little, Sec. R. M. Inst. for Girls; H. J. P. Damas, J.G.D.; W. C. Bacon, P.G. Steward; A. A. Richards, P.G. Steward; H. Mugeridge, and other well-known brethren.

Original Correspondence.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with much pleasure and interest a Master Mason's remarks in your edition of the 9th November, respecting the condition of the pensioners, and certainly felt surprised at Earl Percy's remark at the last Festival, for he is always considered a most benevolent man, and could not have fully considered the subject when he stated that £26 per annum, or 10s. per week was amply sufficient for a man and his wife to live upon. If the funds were low they might consider "a half loaf better than no bread," but when such liberal collections are announced, an increase might be made, particularly when food and coals are so frightfully dear, and age and infirmity render it impossible for a poor brother to earn a trifle to add to his annuity. I happen to know a case in point, a brother who was much reduced succeeded in being elected to the fund, at that time he could earn a little extra and so make it do, but now having had much affliction is unable to follow any employment being 72 years of age. His family, that might be supposed to assist him, have large families and feel the pressure of the times, and cannot. He is living in the country on account of being able to get house rent tolerably cheap, and better accommodation than the two rooms of the alms house afford, although the inmates have gifts of coal and other things which the out pensioners have not.

I cannot help thinking that as age advances, the pensions ought to be increased, a man naturally becoming more helpless and infirm.

Those who do not experience affliction many agree with his Lordship, but let us come to facts. Suppose a man and wife on an allowance of ten shillings weekly, their expenses on the lowest estimation, say rent 3s. 6d., groceries, &c. 2s., bread, 2s., meat, 3s., coals, 1s. there is 11/6. then nothing is left for shoes, clothing and medicines. This shows the necessity of practically benevolent men doing something to promote an increase of the pension and render the close of their days happy and comfortable.

I remain your's fraternally,

P.Z. P.M.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see by my last week's Freemason that the Most Honourable the Marquis of Ripon has been, on the motion of Bro. F. A. Philbrick, P.M., unanimously re-elected Grand Master for the year ensuing.

Now Sir, I want to know why the Provincial Grand Masters are not elected yearly by the Provincial Grand Lodges in a like manner.

I see by the report, that Bro. J. R. Stebbing, P.G.D., has made a very excellent motion, which (if carried, as I have no doubt it will be) will enable any lodge to get rid of an unworthy member in a very short and easy manner.

I should be very pleased if Bro. Stebbing, or some other member of Grand Lodge, would move that all Provincial Grand Lodges should annually elect their Masters, as all other Masters of lodges are annually elected, which I cannot think would meet with any opposition.

By giving this a place in your next paper you will oblige.

Yours very fraternally,

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

BRO. MORTON EDWARDS AND THE GRAND MARK LODGE.

Office of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters,
5, Red Lion Square, High Holborn,
London, 5th December, 1872.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am desired to request the favour of the insertion of the enclosed letter in your next issue,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

FREDERICK BINGKES, P.G. J.W.

Grand Secretary.

(COPY.)

To the President, Vice-President, and Brethren of the General Board of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters, Masons of England and Wales.

Brethren,

Referring to the communication addressed to me by your authority by the Grand Secretary, under date 13th July last,

I hereby express my regret for having conferred the degree of Knights Templar, and promise not to confer such degree again, unless with the authority of the Grand Conclave of K.T. of England, and Wales, &c.

I also hereby withdraw the Resolution No. 3, as printed at page 41 of the Statutes of Royal Ark Mariners, and purporting to have been adopted unanimously at a meeting of that body, held on the 9th August, 1871. "That having the power by Royal Warrant of 1793, to confer the original and genuine degrees of Mark Man, Mark Master, Excellent and Super Excellent Master, these be at once added to the working of any lodge of Royal Ark Mariners that may desire to work them," and promise and undertake to insert such withdrawal in any future edition of the Statutes that may be published, at the same time exonerating the brethren named in the minutes of the said meeting from having knowingly taken part in passing such resolutions. I also disclaim all power, from and after this date, to grant warrants for the degrees of Mark Man and Mark Master.

I further authorise the publication of a copy of this letter in the next number of The Freemason.

I am, brethren,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

(Signed)

MORTON EDWARDS.

THE VOTE OF THANKS TO BROTHER L. EVANS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Permit me to make a slight correction in your report of my few remarks at Grand Lodge. I said that "few brethren," and not "some brethren," were more competent than myself to speak of Bro. Evans's services, the fact being, as I stated, that I not only have served on the Board of General Purposes with him for several years, but during the last three years of his Presidency was his Vice-President. To have assumed to second the resolution of the Grand Registrar on any less ground than this would have been the reverse of complimentary to Bro. Evans, and for this reason I ask the favour of your inserting my note.

I am, faithfully yours, Bro. B. MONCKTON, Senior Grand Deacon.

NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As Bro. Holmes would make it appear that he is still sceptical as to the accuracy of my statements anent the Grand Mark Lodge report, and states that he holds by Bro. Kerr's remarks until he can judge with his own eyes, perhaps you will kindly oblige by forwarding to Bro. Holmes for his inspection the enclosed rubbing which I have just taken of the Masonic emblems slightly cut or scratched on the stone sill of one of the windows in Glasgow Cathedral. As this rubbing will distinctly prove that I have been correct in certain particulars, I do not consider it necessary to take any special steps in the meantime to prove that I have also been correct in other particulars.

I am, yours fraternally, W. P. BUCHAN.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

MASONIC SUMMONSES, NOTICES, &c.

One of my oldest and best Masonic friends, Bro. Capt. F. G. Irwin, Brisslington-crescent, Bristol, has been making a collection of everything interesting relating to Freemasonry—in fact, I may say an indiscriminate collection of Masonic documents—which has been increasing rapidly of late, and is fast becoming a curious and valuable record of the Craft in a way not usually attempted. Bro. Irwin is anxious to add still more to his store, and will be glad to receive any contributions of lodge circulars, certificates, &c., &c., from members of the society, and will reciprocate such kindness to the best of his ability. Of course the whole of his collection will eventually become the property of the Fraternity, so that the brethren who add to Bro. Irwin's Masonic Museum will, after all, be benefiting the Order. Any expenses attending the transit of packages will be most willingly defrayed by our friend, or by Bro. W. J. Hughan.

GRAND COMMANDERY OF MASSACHUSETTS AND RHODE ISLAND (KNIGHTS TEMPLAR).

We commend the following to the notice of those who are always exclaiming against the gustative propensities of Freemasonry, and who think we are only brethren for the sake of eating and drinking.

No doubt there is a deal too much of the latter often at banquets, and we only wish that every lodge would pass a resolution to prohibit the funds being used for any purpose other than connected with the necessary expenses of the meetings and charitable bequests.

The paragraph in question we extract from the "Proceedings of the Grand Commandery of Minnesota, U.S.A." (our Bro. G. D. B. Porter, being the Grand Recorder). Nov. 18th, 1870. Resolved:—

"Whereas, Templarism is an institution founded upon the Christian religion, and the practice of the Christian virtues: and

"Whereas, Temperance is one of the chief Christian virtues, and is enjoined upon us by the Christian religion: and

"Whereas, The spreading indiscriminately before the companions who assemble at the banquets customary in our Order, wines and intoxicating liquors, may tempt to excess and intemperance,

"Be it therefore Resolved, 'That henceforth no wines or intoxicating liquors shall be furnished, or permitted to be introduced, at our banquet, given by this Grand Body.'

We say all honour to the framers and passers of such a law.

NOTES ON THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

In last week's paper you have it that Bro. Buchan asserts that "so far, as the song (Professor Aytoun's raising of the Beauseant) is concerned it rather goes to show more belief" &c., instead of non belief, &c., which is required to make sense of the context. Further I am made to say that I prefer my own authority, instead of my own authorities (a very different thing) to taking Bro Buchan's ipse dixit.

Masonic Tidings.

The Supreme Grand Council, 33° A. and A. Rite, have issued instructions to the Recorders of the various Rose Croix Chapters to inform the E. and P. Princes that, in consequence of the death of the Most Illustrious Brother, Dr. Henry Bertram Leeson, 33°, F.R.S., Past M.P. Sovereign Grand Commander of the Order, the members are requested to appear in mourning for a period of sixty days, as a mark of respect for that illustrious brother.

We understand that a grand Masonic ball is to be given at Bury St. Edmunds during the ensuing month, and that Colonel Sir Sholto Adair, the Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk, has granted a dispensation to appear in full Masonic clothing. The ball is to be under the auspices of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge (No. 1008), and the Worshipful Masters of the whole of the lodges in the province are invited to act as Stewards. There is every promise, as the affair is in good hands, to make this the county ball of the season.

By the death of his half-brother, the Marquis of Londonderry, without issue, Bro. Earl Vane, Past Grand Senior Warden of England, succeeds to the marquise. The deceased nobleman had been for a long time in a precarious state of health.

Our enterprising and well-informed contemporary, the Civilian, announces that the Earl of Zetland, our excellent and esteemed Past Grand Master, is to receive the Order of the Garter, but that he gives up his rank as Knight of the Thistle. This, the Civilian says, is not intended to convey that the former Order ranks higher than the latter (though, by the way, it undoubtedly does), but that the Order of the Thistle is to be for Scotland what the Garter is to England, and Her Majesty wishes it to be so understood. We presume by this it is intended that no one shall be a knight of both Orders at one time, though it is something new in the annals of chivalry to give up one knighthood to take another. We await further light from our antiquarian and heraldic brethren.

PANMERE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 720).—The fifteen sections will be worked by the members of this lodge, on December 15th, at the Balham Hall, Balham. Bro. Poore W.M., and Assistant Preceptor, will open the lodge at 6 o'clock, and will be glad to receive the visit of brethren seeking instruction. This lodge is held every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

Minor notices:—The London has just published a series of works which... (faded text)

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).

PERMANENT LOCATION IN LONDON.

The above lodge met at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st., on Thursday, the 28th ult., under very interesting circumstances. This lodge, originally held at Putney, was consecrated in 1859, by the present G. Secretary, Bro. John Hervey, who installed its first W.M., Owen Bowen, a great benefactor to the lodge and to the craft. Bro. Hervey's name has ever since been retained on the books as Hon. Member, and he occasionally favours the lodge by attending. It was called the "Preston Lodge," so named after a great and well known masonic luminary. It being afterwards found that his surname without his Christian name, gave rise to some confusion, there being a well known town of that name in Lancashire, the M.W.G.M. gave his consent to the alteration of name. From a combination of untoward circumstances the lodge gradually dwindled away until the autumn of 1868, when the only acting members left were Bro. John Newton, its then W.M., Bro. Benjamin Abbott, the I.P.M.; Bro. Dr. Whiteman, one of its earliest and most energetic W.M.'s; Bro. Kain, a Past G. Sec. of Warwickshire, who acted as W.M. in the halcyon days of the lodge; and Bro. George Cox, P.G.D., who was for many years the Treasurer. Under these adverse circumstances a proposal was made by a number of energetic brethren, residing at Norwood and Anerley, to remove the lodge to the Clarendon Hotel, in that neighbourhood. Accordingly, the following brethren joined the lodge; viz., Bros. Dr. Eachus Wilkinson, W. J. Miller, W. H. Harper, G. Jackson, G. Newman, Braun, and others. The lodge increased and multiplied in its new locality, but unfortunately the proprietor of the hotel came to grief, and again the lodge had to seek fresh fields and pastures new, which was a matter of very great difficulty, there being no other house suitable. The M.W.G.M. then gave permission to hold the lodge temporarily at the City Terminus Hotel, where it gained a great accession of members from other parts of London, and lost some of its old members. The local tie thus loosened, the members unanimously petitioned the M.W.G.M. to allow the lodge to remain, which petition was ultimately granted, under the very peculiar circumstances of the case, it being well known that the powers that be decline to permit urban lodges to remove to London unless very strong reasons be shewn. The meeting, therefore, was held under joyful circumstances, the members feeling that at length they had a local habitation, as well as a name, well worthy of the lodge. Three gentlemen were initiated, two of them were sons of that worthy Bro. Roberts, who is so well known as the successful caterer at the Crystal Palace; the other was Dr. Cutmore, of Norwood. The ceremony was most perfectly and most impressively rendered by the well-beloved W.M., Bro. G. Newman. Two brethren were passed, Bros. Ewins and Drake. After such labour, nearly forty brethren sat down to a much needed and well served banquet, which did credit to the proprietor of the hotel, Bro. Sidney Spencer, who was one of the fifteen invited guests of the evening. Another of the visitors was the W. Bro. George Cox, P.G. Deacon, one of the founders of the lodge before mentioned. The loving cups (which were presented by Bro. Owen Bowen, the first W.M.), were passed round. The usual toasts were eloquently given and responded to. The charities were not forgotten, a liberal collection have been made; and the W.M. consented to become a Steward of the Boys' School at the approaching festival, on the 13th March. Altogether a most enjoyable evening at length came to a happy conclusion. Happy did the brethren meet, happy did they part, and happy they herd to be in meeting again. It should be added that the William Preston Lodge is one of the few banner lodges; each W.M. on his installation sitting under his own banner, on which is emblazoned his arms, crest, and motto, and which banner he presents to the lodge on his retiring from office. The room was ablaze with heraldic devices of its Past Masters, amongst which were the banner of the Craft itself, and the banner of the before-named great illustrator of Freemasonry, William Preston.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Answers to Correspondents.

EMMA HOLMES.—Answer from "Masonic Student," next week.

J. B.—1. As I.M.'s five times. 2. As M.M.'s three times. 3. As F.C.'s five times. 4. As E.A.'s three times.

M. H. F.—Enquire at the Grand Secretary's office, Freemasons' Hall, Gt. Queen-street, and if your name is registered in the Colonial Lodge, and you can give proof of your identity, you will be furnished with a F.C. certificate.

F. M.—The W.M. cannot take rank as a P.M. unless he has served the chair; neither will the J.W. be eligible for the Mastership under the circumstances, presuming that he has not been a Warden previously. Infringements of the Book of Constitutions are not lightly passed over now by the authorities.

Report of Lodges 1010, 1283, 1248 and 1389, stand over till next week.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Saturday and Monday, December 14 and 16, DEBORAH. Messrs. Sennison, Sidney, Bousfield, Leigh, Hudspeth, Evans, and Power; Mesdames Henderson, Farren, Hayes, and Stephenson. To conclude with LOST IN LONDON. Messrs. Sennison, Evans, Leigh, Roberts, Power, Bousfield, Hudspeth; Mesdames Henderson, Hayes, and Bramah. On Tuesday, December 17, for the benefit of the Lessees, RICHELIEU. Messrs. T. C. King, Sennison, Rainbow, Hudspeth, Leigh, Sidney, Power, and Georges; Mesdames Bessie King and Stephenson. After which, a Grand Miscellaneous Entertainment. To conclude with TWO TO ONE. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Victoria Theatre.

On Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday, December 14, 16, and 17, BEN THE BOATSWAIN. Captain Acton, Mr. Parkes; Ben Bowling, Mr. C. Sennett; Edwin Gage, Miss Allen; Mark Rediff, Mr. Shepherd; Wilford Somerton, Mr. Dudley; Hans Kelt, Mr. Rainbow; Dionysius Dabblerton, Mr. J. Fawn; Rose, Miss Hastings; Dame Outfield, Mrs. Burleigh. To conclude with THE TICKET OF LEAVE MAN. Messrs. Sennett, Shepherd, Leigh, Hudspeth, Evans, Bousfield, and Power; Mesdames Allen, Kerbridge, Hastings, and Burleigh. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Buckland, assisted by Misses Alice Barth and Florence Hunter. COAL AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell; and many other Entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Claimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King"; and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week commencing December 16.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee, Bro. E. Saker. Mr. James Bennett in "Louis XI," "Richelieu," "Merchant of Venice," &c.

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. "The Octoroon," and other Popular Dramas.

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee Mr. Seton Pary. "Le Petit Faust."

THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Frece. Miscellaneous Entertainment, and "Canaan Carival."

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Closed for re-decoration.

CIRCUS, William Brown street.—Now Closed, but will be re-opened in a few weeks for Holden's Marionettes.

NEWSOME'S CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome.

NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager Bro. Saunders. Miscellaneous Entertainment by a talented Company.

TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Anderson and Family.—World of Magic.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Gillard's Great American Panorama.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1872.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

(Continued from page 777.)

Bro. Stebbing in proposing the motion standing in his name, continued:—

It had been said that he (Bro. Stebbing) would fix a stigma upon some brother by removing him from a lodge without a distinct charge. Why in most lodges one member, and in any lodge two or three members, could fix that stigma now upon a gentleman who sat down with them. One or two unhappy spirits might do so by blackballing; but if they admitted him, and had had him with them six months, and knew him, this motion provided that only a majority of two-thirds of the members should do it. So zealous was Masonry as to the admission of a candidate that he must be proposed in open lodge, his name inserted in the summonses, and be balloted for at the next lodge meeting. So careful was it that they should not have a disagreeable brother among them, that he could not be admitted a member without a nomination; and yet having taken these precautions before having him as a member, when in six months his conduct had become intolerable, the whole lodge could not remove him unless he did some scandalous act which came within the Book of Constitutions. Now, it was only when a brother put his legs under their mahogany, as the phrase went, that they got really acquainted with him; it was only by mixing with him some time that they knew what manner of man he was. How constantly did a lodge find itself taken in! In the most important step in life, a man taking a wife, he was often mistaken. Before marriage he thought her a divinity, and within twelve months he had reason to wish that she was a divinity in heaven. Not to weary Grand Lodge with instances, he would yet give reasons why a brother should be removed. Lodges had to put up with many disagreeables because they could not get rid of a brother without fixing on him a specific or general charge. He knew of two or three instances in which it was very difficult, or at all events inconvenient to bring a general charge. It was not a very pleasant thing to mention, but they had better have the truth if they were to apply a remedy. There was a brother, who was worth £20,000, entered a lodge and was incapable of conducting himself respectably; he was not indeed fit to sit in proper society; and when banquet came on table, if he had anything on his plate which he did not like he would spit it out on his plate before the whole company. That brother would not hesitate to use his fork for a purpose which he (Bro. Stebbing) would not refer to; and his ablutions were so seldom performed that no one could sit near him in any comfort. How were they to frame a law to meet such a case as that? (Interruption.) He might state his case as he thought proper, and begged he might not be interrupted. These were disagreeable things to utter, and it was not very pleasant to have to refer to them; but he could tell the brethren that in entering the Grand Lodge that night he had dozens of kind expressions made to him, with requests that he would persevere in his motion, and he intended to do it. The things were true, and truth was like gold refined, which was still gold. They could not get rid of the truth. There was another case, where a brother was so exceedingly active and zealous on behalf of Masonry that he liked the law, observed to a tittle; the ceremony must be exact; "by" must not be used where "with" is prescribed; and everything must be conducted strictly according to pattern. Such a brother was a perfect nuisance to a lodge. He would not give all the instances where this had occurred, but he would give one in the presence of a Right Worshipful brother who could himself vouch for the fact. In a lodge within 100 miles of London the brethren were desirous to celebrate the conclusion of the W.M.'s year with some extra splendour, and invited the Prov. G.M. and the Masters of all the lodges in the province to a grand entertainment. The Master who had distinguished himself during the year by his working thought to do so again by performing the ceremony of initiation, in which he was exceedingly skilful. The lodge assembled in goodly numbers, and the Provincial G.M., who was much loved, was there among them, to meet the brethren from various parts of the country. In this lodge was a brother who was a precise man. He came into the lodge, and when the candidate's name was read over before being balloted for, he rose and expressed his great sorrow and regret that he should make any observation that should interfere with the arrangements; he had no objection to the ballot taking place; but he thought it right to draw the attention of the Master to the fact that the Book of Constitutions had not been followed, as although the brother's name and profession had been given, his residence had been omitted; all the brethren looked at one another in blank astonishment and despair. The brother said he would not urge the objection, but would allow the ballot to take place. The Master consulted with the Provincial G.M., and the magnates from different lodges consulted together, and they could not, it appeared, advise the Master to break the law. He (Bro. Stebbing) did not object to men observing the law, but to men who picked out the time and the opportunity to press forward a thing of that kind. The candidate could not be initiated under those circumstances, according to law, and the brethren had no work to do, and there was yet an hour to spare before the banquet would be ready. The ballot was not had, there was nothing to do for an hour; they looked at one another and wished the precise brother anywhere but a member of the lodge, and there was a miserable evening instead of an agreeable one. Would any of the brethren like to have such a brother in their lodges? Would not it be a most intolerable nuisance? Yet how should they get rid of him? How could they charge him with an offence? How could they frame the indictment against him? Yet they would all wish him out of the lodge, if those were the tricks he played. One more instance, a gentleman is admitted a member of a lodge, who thinks more of himself than others think of him. He wanted promotion, did not get it, became disagreeable, and took the coward's revenge by blackballing every candidate, taking care not to say he should, because that would be considered a Masonic offence, but he took care to let it be known that every new candidate ought to be blackballed. How was an indictment to be preferred against such a brother; or even a general charge to be made: It had been urged as an objection that it seemed an unfair thing that 20 men should be able to ballot out 12 men; but he was prepared to say that rather than the whole 30 should be made miserable together, and what was too often the case, the success and happiness of the lodge completely destroyed by the quarrel going on from year to year, he would have it so. There was a lodge within 120 miles of this place where there were 13 men on one side and 12 on the other. They had been like the Kilkenny cats, and he really believed that before long, like them, there would be nothing left but their tails. Would it not be better for the good of the lodge that the 13 should be able to turn out the 12? Or if they expelled one only, the remainder would see what would soon be their fate, and would conduct themselves differently. He (Bro. Stebbing) proposed that only one brother should be removed at a time, and when the ringleaders were got rid of, depend on it the others would come to a sense of their duty. When the people on the hustings were tormented by some one in the crowd if they got him to come on the platform how quiet he became! He was immediately a man of order. To compare Masonic with political matters, there were brethren on the dais in Grand Lodge who were quite well conducted and quiet while there, but who had been rather turbulent before they had Grand office. Since he had been in Grand Lodge a letter had been placed in his hands, concerning a lodge at Liverpool. A man in a seaport town, who had been convicted of felony, received 12 months' imprisonment; he was afterwards proposed in a lodge, but objected to and blackballed. The matter was persevered in, and some friends of his proposed him in another lodge, where the same result occurred. He was brought to another lodge and by some adroitness—he (Bro. Stebbing) had seen a similar thing done at a punctual meeting, where the business was done quickly—he was passed in. The brethren of that lodge had to sit with a convicted felon. That lodge ought to have the privilege of appealing from "Philip drunk" to "Philip sober;" they ought to have the opportunity of rehearing and reconsidering the case, and by a decided majority remove a brother, if his conduct was of that kind that he ought not to be associated with them. Then, as to the majority, although he thought two-thirds was sufficient to compel the removal of a brother, the brother who wrote from Liverpool thought two-thirds too much, it ought to be a majority of one-third. He was not wedded to his own proposition; let it be three-fourths or five-sixths, but let it be a substantial and decided majority. He was sure no injustice would be done, because in all cases where expulsion was endeavoured to be effected for personal feelings, there would be found a sufficient number of brethren to stand by an oppressed brother. It was our weakness to stand by those who were unjustly charged, or charged with offences in general terms; and a man must be a very black character indeed to get three-fourths of his brethren to vote for his exclusion. There was a feeling of sympathy among people for the oppressed; we could not even see two boys quarrelling in the street without sympathising with the little one. He would give one more case, in which he had had to sit in judgment upon a man who got the Treasurer's books, the Secretary's books, and blackballed every one. He would call on Grand Lodge to be masters of the position; not to be a body of slaves, but to take the power into their own hands: they were stong enough to do it. In their lodges, as in their houses, let them be masters, and if there was a disagreeable fellow in a lodge that ought to be turned out, let them rise in their majesty and do it. (Great cheering.)

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., in order to give the brethren an opportunity of discussing the question, seconded the motion.

Bro. James Mason, P.G.S.B., opposed it, and felt that Bro. Stebbing had made out no case. His facts were exceedingly weak, and if they tended at all to anything, it was to convince the brethren that they were wrong. The speech was altogether illogical and most inconclusive. The Book of Constitutions provided for many of the evils Bro. Stebbing had pointed out. It said that no lodge should exclude any member without giving him due notice of the complaint made against him, and of the time appointed for its consideration. The name of every brother excluded, with the cause of exclusion, shall be sent to the Grand Secretary, and if a country lodge, also to the Prov. G.M. It was a high privilege to be a Freemason, not to be foregone at the whim and caprice of any private member. (Hear, hear.) He for one would be very sorry to be excluded from any lodge by such whim and caprice. Many men, he knew, had taken wrong views, and it was not always the case that the majority were right. (Hear, hear.) It was not always the majority in a private lodge that took a sound and proper view of the conduct of an individual, or of the propriety of his proceedings, of its consistency with the bye-laws of his lodge, or with the Book of Constitutions. It had, indeed, been his experience to find it quite otherwise. He had never, in this Grand Lodge, heard of anything so monstrous or unconstitutional as to turn a brother out of a lodge without bringing a specific charge against him. If they could bring a specific charge against a man, there was the Book of Constitutions, and let them do it. Bro. Stebbing had brought forward a case where the brethren, he said, had been compelled to sit down with a felon. Now, there was no such compulsion. The brethren had a right to exclude such a brother, and he had the right to appeal to Grand Lodge. He begged Grand Lodge to reject the motion.

Bro. John Havers, P.G.W., opposed the motion, and moved as an amendment "That it should be referred to the Board of General Purposes to examine and report," on the ground that the matter required careful consideration, that no injustice might be done. He reviewed the cases brought forward by Bro. Stebbing, and contended that they really proved the soundness of Lord Zetland's circular, advising brethren to be very careful about men whom they initiated.

Bro. L. Alexander, P.M. 188, seconded the amendment:

Bro. Col. Cole, acting J.G.W., supported the amendment, and argued that where a brother found the feeling of the lodge against him, if he were a right-thinking brother, he would resign. He would not be deprived of Masonic privileges, he could join another lodge. But at the same time he thought that lodges should have more power than they now have of getting rid of offensive members.

The Earl of Shrewsbury, Prov. G.M. for Stafford and Worcester, said that in his Province a matter was brought to his attention, and he took counsel with Masons of position and influence, and they came to the conclusion to recommend the recalcitrant brother to send in his resignation to his lodge. If a brother was contumacious, some power should be given to a lodge to exclude him, and he thought the matter might be referred to Grand Lodge in the metropolis. Let the brother retire from the lodge, but God forbid that there should be an arbitrary power of getting rid of a man. Happily, politics were not recognised in Masonry, but in some country places there might be a feeling against a brother on account of some step he had taken politically. Do not let a lodge have the power of turning a brother out on this account. Bro. Stebbing's instance of the man whose digestion was bad might have been got over by the lodge subscribing to purchase him a set of false teeth. (Laughter.)

After a few words from Bros. H. J. P. Dumas, G.J.D., and Bro. F. A. Philbrick, P.M. 18,

Bro. Horace Lloyd said that neither himself nor the Board would at all shirk any duty Grand Lodge might impose on them, and if Grand Lodge thought it was one of their functions to lick into shape this crude and ill-digested proposition, in which there might be a grain of good sense, some suggestion of improvement in Masonic legislation to find out for themselves what that was and recommend it to Grand Lodge, all he could say was the Board would cheerfully undertake that duty; but he would ask permission for a few minutes to suggest to them that that scarcely fell within the fair ordinary class of their duties, and that the way to deal with the ill-considered motion was to dismiss it altogether. At the same time they were properly prepared to conduct any reasonable alteration in the same direction when it was brought forth. He had used strong words, "crude and ill-digested," but he thought they were deserved. Bro. Stebbing talked of lodges as if they were clubs, places in which they would blackball a man for the way he tied his cravat, or for the cut of his coat. It was an old joke that standing the blackball of a club when you wanted to become a member was nothing; but what a good thing it was that members had not got to come up for ballot three years after, for how little chance they would stand of going in again! A man had to go up for ballot, and he was successful; he was afterwards excluded from his lodge. What did exclusion mean? Exclusion from that lodge only? A great deal more than that. No brother excluded from a lodge could enter another lodge without a certificate as to the circumstances under which he left the first; and, therefore, a brother would be absolutely excluded from entering another lodge. The same rule would apply to a Master or Past Master of a lodge, so that he might be excluded from being a member of Grand Lodge by the improper action of a clique who happened to get an accidental majority in his own lodge against him. It might naturally apply to a Past Grand Officer, a member of the Colonial Board, or Board of General Purposes, or Board of Benevolence; and for what? For no cause assigned at all. He quite agreed it might be sometimes impossible to put one's finger upon the one single action complained of, and one that you might not be able to make a specific complaint of; but you could always make a definite complaint; you could say what it was you found fault with, which made a man not fit or worthy to be a Bro. Mason in your lodge; and yet this precious proposition suggested that in an underhand sneaking way, without the mention of a name, for it was supposed that it would be a sort of thing that would not bear the light, and the name might not be mentioned on the summons, you were to whisper away a man's character, and find it bad, and on that he was to be brought before his lodge. You were to get hold of a brother, and say

"I do not like thee, Dr. Fell;
The reason why——"

—not "I cannot"—but "I will not tell," and then you were to turn him out, without any knowledge on his part that certain influential members of the lodge bore him a grudge, and they used that influence over others. He ventured to say it was an ill-considered motion, as Grand Lodge would entertain appeals already from the decision of lodges. The motion afforded an opening for improvement. The amendment would give an opportunity to the Board to bring a report to Grand Lodge on this subject. That was not its office. Its office was to enquire into all matters of detail to obtain information, to work a thing accepted on principle into satisfactory shape, but not to take up any motion that might seem to have in it some opening for improvement, and so become the law makers of the Craft. He hoped Grand Lodge would reject both the motion and amendment.

Bro. Havers said the resolution which he had ventured to move was not that this resolution be referred, but that the subject be referred. Those were the words, which they would find he used "that the subject be referred to the Board to examine and report upon."

Bro. John Symonds, P.G.D., and Bro. Macrae Moir, having addressed a few words to Grand Lodge.

Bro. Stobbing replied, and complained of the very scant courtesy he had met with at the hands of the President of the Board of General Purposes. He did not think it was kind or wise to treat him so, when he had brought forward his motion in good temper and good spirit. He strongly expressed his dissatisfaction at such treatment, but said he should bring forward his motion again. In the meantime he accepted the amendment.

The M.W.G.M. advised the brethren to be very cautious whom they initiated, and then put Bro. Havers' amendment, which was carried.

Bro. Bennoch, P.G.S., moved "That the question of the propriety of reducing the rent of the Tavern be referred to the Board of General Purposes to consider and determine;" to which Bro. McIntyre moved an amendment, "That this matter be referred to the Board of General Purposes to consider, and report to Grand Lodge," which amendment was carried, and Grand Lodge was formally closed.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BOLTON.—Anchor and Hope Lodge (No. 37).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Bolton, on the 2nd Dec., when there were present: Bro. R. W. Knowles, W.M.; Bros. Jas. Pilkington, S.W.; Wm. Slater, J.W.; G. P. Brockbank, Prov. S.G. Deacon, Sec.; Jno. Sharples, Treas.; Jas. Walker, S.D.; Wm. H. Horrocks, J.D.; Saml. Isherwood, P.M., D. of C.; R. K. Freeman, I.G.; Thos. H. Winder, P.M., P. Prov. G.P.; Robinson and Newton, P.M.'s; Brown, Crowther, F. A. Winder, E. Ainsworth, and Visiting Brother Bridson, of Lodge 357. The lodge being opened the minutes were read and confirmed. This being the meeting for the election of Master, a ballot was taken, the result being the unanimous election of Bro. Jas. Pilkington, the present S.W. Arrangements were made relative to the ensuing festival of the lodge. Two brethren were proposed as joining members of the lodge, and the business being then concluded, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

BEDFORD LODGE (No 157).—On Friday, the 8th November, at Freemasons' Hall, this select and prosperous lodge held its usual meeting. Bro. W. Holland, North Woolwich Gardens, W.M., opened the lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot for the candidate for initiation was unanimous in favour of his admission, and he being in attendance was in an admirable manner admitted to the privileges of Ancient Freemasonry. The ancient ceremony having been gone through in all its details, and business being ended, the lodge was closed. The banquet and dessert were served, the W.M., who proved his devotedness to his lodge by coming up from Nottingham, presided with his usual grace and urbanity at the festive board. There were present, Bros. T. Cubitt, P.M., as S.W. Briggs, P. Prov. G.D. Middlesex; J. W. Levander, P.M. Treasurer; Hill, P.M. Secretary; J. Hills, I.P. M.; Millis, P.M.; and other members. The visitors were Bros F. Walters, P.M. 73, and G. S. Ayres, P.M.

KENDAL.—Union Lodge (No. 129).—A private meeting of a few brethren of this lodge was held on Saturday last in the lodge-room, by the kind permission of the W.M., to present Bro. John Holme, P.M. 129, P.G.J.W., with a Past Master's jewel, as a small token of their regard and high appreciation of his worth as a Mason, and the talents he displays in performing the work of the lodge. The presentation was made in suitable and appropriate terms by Bro. R. J. Nelson, S.D. 129, a young Mason; who had been put through the degrees by Bro. Holmes during his year of office, and by whom the testimonial had been got up. Bro. Hotmes briefly responded, and the brethren separated.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—At the ordinary meeting of this lodge, held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday evening the 4th inst., under the presidency of Bro. E. J. Crow, Mas. Bac., W.M., P.G.S.D., there were present Bros. C. Stretton, I.P.M., P.G.J.W.; J. M. McAllister, S.W.; H. Deane, J.W., P.P.G.J.W.; W. Weare, P.M., Treasurer; T. A. Wykes, 523, as Secretary; J. T. Thorp, Secretary, 523, as S.D.; J. Halford, J.D.; C. E. Stretton, I.G.; L. A. Clarke, P.M.; A. Palmer, J.W.; S. Tebbutt, Organist, pro. tem.; H. T. Kirby, G. W. Statham, R. Blankley, S. Cleaver, and G. Toller, Jun., P.M., P.P.G.S.; S. S. Partridge, J.W., P.G.S.; F. J. Baines, S.W.;

A. M. Duff, P.M. of 523; also R. Waite, P.M., 1330, and A. Chamberlain, J.D.; E. Mason, and B. Moore, of the Commercial Lodge 1391. The usual lodge forms having been complied with, and other unimportant business transacted, the W.M. proceeded to pass Bro. Billings to the degree of Fellow Craft, and to raise Bro. Marshall to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The W.M., who is thoroughly conversant with the established forms and customs of the order, conducted the ceremonies in a manner impressive to the candidates, and interesting to an auditory of eminent and experienced Masons. It was, therefore, with a feeling of regret that the brethren received the intimation that, owing to professional engagements, he must decline to be nominated for re-election. In consequence of the recent lamented death of the Junior Warden, and the resignation of the Senior Warden, owing to a change of residence, the brethren had to look to the Past Masters for one to preside over them, and direct their labours. Their combined solicitations met with a gracious response from Bro. C. Stretton, I.P.M., P.G.J.W., who kindly consented to accept the honoured seat which he vacated only a year ago, after completing a term of office, remarkable for an unusual accession of members to the Craft, and the harmony and geniality which pervaded all the communications of the lodge under his regime.

CARLISLE.—Union Lodge (No. 310).—We are glad to be able to report favourably of the progress of our Order. Our last regular meeting, on the 26th ult., was very encouraging. The members assembled well, and considerable business was gone through. Bros. Hetherington and Thorpe were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason; the former by the P.M., Bro. Slack, and the latter by the W.M., Bro. A. Taylor. Afterwards the balloting took place for the W.M. and Treasurer, for the ensuing year; the result being almost unanimously in favour of Bro. Court. P. Prov. G.P., for both offices.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862).—This prosperous lodge held its installation meeting on the 18th ult., and was numerously attended, sixty members and visitors being present. The business of the evening comprised three initiations, and the installation of the W.M. Elect, Bro. W. J. Hargrave Jones, both which ceremonies were performed by W. Bro. James Brett, P.M.P.G., Pursuivant, with his accustomed ability. The officers for the ensuing year were then appointed or invested as follows:—Bros. W. F. Smith, P.M. 177 S.W.; B. Seeleg, J.W.; W. F. H. Quilty, P.M., Treasurer; J. Weaver, P.M., P. Prov. G.O. Middlesex, Treas. Benevolent Fund; R. Wentworth Little, P.M. 975, 1293, Prov. G. Sec. Middlesex, Secretary; A. Rhodes Haley, S.D.; T. Kingston, J.D.; W. M. Anderson, I.G.; F. M. Whitehead, D.C.; G. C. Pritchard, Organist; J. Gilbert, Tyler. Bro. Brett resumed his post as Wine Steward. The audit report of the lodge, shewing a balance of £103 in hand, exclusive of the Benevolent Fund, Bro. Weaver proposed, Bro. Brett seconded, and it was unanimously resolved, that the sum of ten guineas be voted to constitute the W.M. for the time being a Life Governor of the Masonic Institution for Girls. Invitations having been sent to all the Grand Officers to attend this meeting, the Secretary reported that several had by letter regretted their inability to be present. A candidate was then proposed, and the lodge was closed. After an excellent banquet, the cloth was cleared, and the usual loyal and fraternal toasts were given. Bro. Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B., responded for the Grand Officers; Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.M., 181, for the Visitors, and every toast was proposed and welcomed with truly Masonic cordiality.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—On Thursday, 28th November, at the White Swan Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford, the usual monthly meeting of the lodge was held. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. J. W. Reed, and during the evening there were present Bros. W. Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Sec.; H. A. Collington, P.M.; J. Hawker, P.M.; W. Myatt, S.W.; George Andrews, J.W.; S. A. Lewin, S.D.; H. J. Tuson, J.D.;

J. J. Pakes, I.G.; R. Harman, D.C.; and a numerous attendance of brethren. The usual large number of visitors were present. They were Bros. J. J. Pitt, 147; J. Alford Smith, 548; H. Collett, 548; James Porter, 548; C. H. Porter, 147; F. F. Allison, 825; J. Hayward, S.D. 946; W. B. Smith, 1326. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots, taken separately, were declared to be unanimous in favour of the admission of Messrs. George Porter (son of the hostess and a Lewis), and Charles Henry Stables. Bros. Dr. John Baxter Langley, Edward Good, and Captain William Henry Hawkins were raised to the third degree. Messrs. G. Porter and C. H. Stables were initiated into Freemasonry. It was, on proposition duly made and seconded, unanimously resolved that three Stewards be sent from this lodge to represent it at the festivals to be held in 1873—viz., Bros. Henry Alfred Collington for Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons, on Wednesday, January 29th, 1873, when H.R.H. the Prince of Wales will preside; John William Reed, W.M., for Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; William Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; and Dr. John Baxter Langley for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The news of the election of Bro. Robert Wentworth Little by such a large majority was received with unbounded delight and enthusiasm, that event having taken place on the same day as the lodge was held. One proposition for a joining member, and two for initiates, were given. Five guineas were voted from lodge funds to help the daughters (who were in distress) of a deceased member. The usual banquet was served under the superintendence of the Bros. Porter. Songs and recitations were given between the toasts. The members separated at an early hour.

CARDIFF.—Bute Lodge (No. 960).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, December 3, 1872. Present, Bros. S. Weichert, W.M.; Jas. Hurman, I.P.M.; I. C. Shelper, S.W.; W. H. Davies, J.W.; W. H. Martin, P.M., Treasurer; S. W. Hurford, Sec.; J. Tamplin, S.D.; T. W. Jacobs, J.D.; E. Quelch, D.C.; F. Atkins, Organist; W. Ellis, J.D.; and a large number of brethren. Bros. M. J. Almond, W.M. 36; S. Cooper, P.M. 36; Fisher, P.M. 36; Blessley, J.W. 36, and Bro. Rogers, Indefatigable Lodge, were among the visitors. The lodge was opened at 7.30 p.m., and Messrs. Thomas Matthews and Thos. Thomas having been duly balloted for and accepted, were initiated in due form. The brethren then proceeded to elect a W.M. for the ensuing year, which resulted in the unanimous election of Bro. T. C. Shelper, S.W. to that honourable office. Bro. Shelper returned thanks for the great confidence reposed in him, and declared his intention of following as nearly as possible in the steps of those who had preceded him, and trusted that, with the assistance of his I.P.M. and P.M.'s, he might be enabled to discharge the duties of that high office with credit both to the lodge and himself, and concluded by again thanking the brethren for the unanimous vote in his favour. The W.M. then said "Worthy and Worshipful Past Masters, Officers, and Brethren, twelve months ago when, owing to your choice and confidence, I found myself elected W.M. of this lodge, I accepted that very honourable position not only without evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation of any kind, but also with a firm determination to discharge the important duties of that office to the best of my ability, in perfect harmony with all our laws and regulations, and abiding by the ancient usages and customs of our Order, I will further add that I had the honourable ambition to perform such duties with credit to myself and brethren, as far as possible, to your entire satisfaction. How far I have succeeded in my endeavours it is not for me to say, but, brethren, it is a fact respecting which there cannot be any difference of opinion—viz., that my best endeavours, my untiring zeal and earnestness to uphold the honour and promote the prosperity and reputation, and also the perfect harmony of this our lodge must have been in vain had I not been aided by your kind co-operation; it is, therefore, my privilege to thank you now most heartily and sincerely, not only in my own name, but what is more important still, in the name of Freemasonry in general, and of this lodge in particular, for your prompt attendance, and the kind and fraternal assistance you have rendered me upon all occasions. Brethren, we have, during the year, had 29 lodges, at which we have initiated 28 gentlemen, passed 23, and raised 17 brethren, and have received, exclusive of subscriptions, the sum of upwards of £152. The number of distinct ceremonies performed were, initiations, 19; passing, 11; raising, 7; total, 37. I trust the day is not far distant when when we shall have, conjointly with our sister lodge, the Glamorgan (No. 39), a temple of our own, worthy of the Craft, and in conformity with the general progress our town has made; we must, therefore, brethren, be strictly economical, but at the same time faithfully discharge all claims made upon us in the name of charity. In conclusion, I beg you to give our W.M. elect the same cordial support, so that at the expiration of his year of office he may be able to declare, as I now do most emphatically, that I shall never cease to remember this year, to look back upon it with feelings of great pleasure, as being the year (1872), in which I had the honour to occupy the chair of the Bute Lodge (No. 960). Thanking you again, brethren, accept my most fraternal salute." The W.M. was then elected Treasurer for the ensuing year, and Bro. H. Wills as Tyler. A cordial welcome was given to the visiting brethren, and responded to by Bro. Almond, W.M., Glamorgan Lodge. The lodge was closed at 10.15 p.m.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of the Rowley Lodge was held on Monday, the 2nd December, at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum, Lancaster. There were present the W.M., Bro. Wilson Barker; Bros. Dr. J. Daniel Moore, P.G.S.B. England, I.P.M.; William Hale, P.M.; W. J. Sly, S.W.; E. Airey, as J.W.; James Taylor, S.D.; J. L. Bradshaw, as J.D.; Richard Taylor, I.G.; Thomas Jackson, J. Sly, R. Harger, H. Longman, E.A.P.; G. Sutton, E.A.P.; J. Watson, Tyler. Visitor, Bro. John Hatch, P.M. 281. After the general business of the lodge had been transacted, the ballot was taken for the election of a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, which resulted in the unanimous election of Bro. William J. Sly to that important office; the installation was decided to take place on Friday, 20th December, the ceremony to be conducted by Bro. Dr. Moore. Bros. W. Barker, W.M., and J. Watson, were respectively elected to fill the office of Treasurer and Tyler. Bros. H. Longman and G. Sutton, were duly passed to the degree of F.C. by Bros. Moore, P.M., and Hall, P.M.; the working tools being presented by the S.W. A candidate for initiation into the mysteries of Freemasonry was proposed, and the lodge closed in due form.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Royal Hotel on the 5th inst. The Chair of K.S. was filled by Bro. Captain Richardson, R.E., W.M.; who was supported by the following officers:—Bros. C. Carnegie, P. Prov. G. Pursuivant. Hants, P. M.; A. Mc. Kenzie, S.W.; A. W. Edmond as J.W.; U. Lucas, Secretary; R. Bennett S.D.; H. Anderson, J.D.; J. Smith, as I.G.; J. Marversly, O.G. The lodge was opened in form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bros. Kirker, 400, and Mason, 1245, as joining members, and for Sergeant D. Mc.Sweeney, 7th Hussars; Quarter-Master-Sergeant Collett, A.S. Corps; and Sergeant W. Brown, 46th Regt., candidates for initiation; which was unanimous in each case. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and Bro. Drew, a candidate for the Sublime Degree was questioned respecting his knowledge of the F.C. degree, which proving satisfactory he was entrusted, and retired. The lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bro. Drew was raised to the M.M. degree. The lodge was closed to the second and first degrees. Quarter-Master-Sergeant Collett, and Sergeant Mc. Sweeney, were then initiated into masonry. Some other business having been transacted, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer about nine p.m.

Royal Arch.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—Installation meeting on Thursday, the 7th November, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, City. This well-established chapter was opened by Comps. P. A. Nairne, P.Z., as M.E.Z.; M. Scott, H.; J. Lacey, P.Z., as J.; and F. Walters, P.Z., Treasurer, was also present. The companions were then admitted, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The report of the audit committee was read, it showed, after every liability had been met, that a good balance remained in the hands of the Treasurer. The ballot proved unanimous in favour of Bro. T. White, P.M. 102, and he being present, was, in an admirable manner, exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry. The Comp. Frederick Walters, P.Z., installed Comp. M. Scott, M.E.Z. The other Principals were absent. The officers for the ensuing year were Comps. R. T. Foreman, H. elect; T. Quihampton, J. elect; F. Walters, P.Z., Treasurer; J. Hills, S.E.; J. C. Hall, S.N.; W. S. Wyman, P.S.; W. A. Hinde, 1st A.S.; T. White, 2nd A.S.; C. T. Speight, Janitor. The M.E.Z., in an excellent speech, presented, on behalf of the chapter, to Comp. P. Browne a splendid P.Z.'s jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him from the chapter funds. The jewel was made by Comp. George Kenning. Some brethren were proposed for exaltation at the next meeting. The chapter was closed. The work was well done by the two P.Z.s. who undertook it. The usual banquet and dessert followed. Visitors, Comps. George Kenning, M.E.Z. 162; and H. R. P. Hooton.

THANET CHAPTER (No. 329).—The regular quarterly convocation of this chapter was held at the Royal Hotel, Ramsgate, on Thursday, the 5th instant. The companions assembled at 5 p.m., and the chapter was opened by Comp. T. H. Grove Snowden, P.Z. as. Z.; Comp. Neall, H.; and Comp. J. J. Darby, J., in the presence of the following P.Z.'s—viz., Comps. Lewis Finch, H. Curtis, J. C. Twyman, Bedford L. Hiscocks, and the Rev. Sir John Hayes, Bart. The other companions, numbering about twenty, were then admitted, the offices of Scribe E., Scribe N., P.S., and the A.S., being filled respectively by Comps. B. L. Hiscocks, W. Winch, J. C. Cunningham, W. Bowler, and R. T. Rolfe. The minutes of the last regular chapter held in June, and of the chapter of emergency (at which four companions, who had been initiated, passed, and raised together in the Lewises' Lodge, 1209, were exalted), held in July, were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bro. Jarman, S.D. 428, the well-known gallant ex-coswain of the Ramsgate lifeboat, and the result was unanimously favourable. After some little delay, owing to Bro. Jarman having been unexpectedly called away to London on business and unable to return by as early a train as he had anticipated, the candidate attended the chapter, and was duly exalted to the supreme degree of the H.R.A. The historical lecture was delivered by Comp. Twyman, P.Z., and the mystical lecture by Comp. Finch, P.Z. The chapter was closed in ancient form, and the companions adjourned to the banqueting-room, where an excellent dinner was served by Comp. Hiscocks. The three toasts peculiar to R.A. Masonry were drunk with the usual ceremonies, and Comp. Sir John Hayes proposed the health of the three Principals of the chapter, complimenting the officers in the excellent manner in which the ceremonies of the evening had been performed. The acting Z. rose to respond, and announced, with deep regret, which was shared by all the companions, that their M.E.Z., Comp. Atholstan Harvey Boys, was in bad health and had been obliged to go Cheltenham for change of air. They all knew that, if he had been well, nothing would have given him greater pleasure than to be among them. The health of the other officers of the chapter, of the newly-exalted Comp. Jarman, and a few other toasts, were drunk, and the companions separated.

THE ROYAL SPURIA CHAPTER OF PERFECT FRIENDSHIP (No. 376) met at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Wednesday, the 4th inst.; present, Comps. E. B. Marriott, M.E.Z.; E. Long, H.; and Wright, J.; J. Franks, P.Z.

Scribe, E.; N. Tracy, Scribe N.; P. Cornell, S.B.; King, P.Z.; W. A. Smith, P.S. Visitors, Comps. Emra Holmes, St. Luke's Chapter, and Sidgwick. The chapter having been formally opened, the following were appointed as officers for the ensuing year, all who were present being invested accordingly:—F. Long, M.E.Z.; S. B. King, H.; P. Cornell, J.; N. Tracy, P.S. s J. Franks Scribe E. Comp. Emra Holme; brought forward a proposition to hold a grand Masonic County Ball, at Ipswich, shortly, but on learning from Comp. Wright that it was contemplated to hold one at Bury St. Edmunds during the ensuing month, he immediately withdrew his proposal. The companions afterwards retired for refreshment, when, after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, the M.E.Z. proposed the P.Z. in flattering terms. Comp. Marriott very modestly responded. Other toasts followed.

VANE CHAPTER (No. 538).—The new chapter attached to Lodge La Tolerance, 538, held a convocation at Freemason's Hall, on Thursday, 5th Dec. inst. There were present the M.E.Z., the Marquis of Londonderry (late Earl Vane), Comp. James Kenet, H., and Comp. Lindus, J., the other members of the chapter, and many distinguished visitors, among whom were Comps. James Brett, P.G.P.; John Boyd, G.P.; Merze, K., &c. Several brethren were exalted to the R.A. degree in a very able manner, three of the candidates being members of Loge La Tolerance. This being the first meeting since the consecration of the chapter, the M.E.Z. invested Comp. Burmeister as Treas., and appointed Comp. Reed Scribe E., and Comp. Underhill, P.S. Comps. W. J. Thicke and Flower were also appointed S.'s. The M.E.Z. then rose, and in handing the Treas. a cheque for £100, expressed the great gratification he derived from being placed in the position of 1st Principal, and said he should always remember with pride the small share he had been privileged to have in the formation of a chapter named after himself, and which he believed would attain a large amount of prosperity, and reflect honour on the lodge to which it was attached. He thanked the companions for the distinction they had conferred upon him as one of the founders, and would watch with great interest the progress of the Vane Chapter. A vote of thanks was moved by Comp. Kenet, H., duly seconded and carried unanimously, to his lordship for his munificence, which was ordered to be entered on the minutes. Propositions were made for the exaltation of several brethren at the next convocation, and the chapter was then closed, and adjourned to the first Thursday in February next; after which the members sat down to a banquet in the Freemasons' Tavern.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Chapter (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of the Rowley Chapter was held on Monday, 18th Nov., 1872, at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. The three Principals occupied their various chairs as follows:—Comps. William Hall, L.R.C.P. M.E.Z.; Edmund Simpson, H.; and J. L. Whimpray, J. There were also present Comps. Dr. Moore, P.Z., Prov. G.H., G.S.B. of England; W. Herald, N.; W. Barker, Treas.; E. Airey, P.S.; R. Taylor, Janitor; J. Watson, Serving Comp. After the chapter had been opened and other business transacted, the ballot was taken for Bro. James Taylor, S.D. 1058, who was declared to be unanimously elected. This brother, with Bro. Geo. Kelland, P.M. 281, were duly exalted to the Royal Arch degree by the M.E.Z., after which the mystical, symbolic, and historical lecture were delivered by the Principals.

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS ANSLOW.

Bro. Thomas Anslow was born December 22nd, 1804, and died November 19, 1872. He was interred at Nunhead Cemetery, December 2nd. He was initiated in the Lodge of Faith, No. 141, in 1842; was Secretary to the lodge for the last twenty years, and a member to the date of his death. He was well-known in the Masonic world for his knowledge of Masonry, and was an honorary member of many lodges. At a meeting of his lodge, held on the 26th ult, the lodge-room was draped in black, and all the brethren appeared in Masonic mourning.

An inaugural banquet was given at the opening of Bro. S. Friend's Tavern, "The Cock," at the Highbury Station of the North Railway, on Thursday, 28th ult, under the Presidency of Bro. Ex-Sheriff Sir John Bennett, F.R.A.S., the Vice-Chair being occupied by H. J. Brown F.R.C.S., supported by nearly one hundred gentlemen of rank and influence in the locality. Bro. Friend, who is a Past Master of the Albion Lodge, No. 9, was well supported by many members of the Craft. The toast of "The Chairman," was in very eloquent terms proposed by Bro. Binckes, the energetic Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and responded to by the worthy knight, in his usual cheerful and jocose vein of humour. The new and magnificent tavern thus inaugurated forms the southern end of the front of the station (one of the most beautiful intermediate stations in the kingdom), erected by the North London Railway Company at the Junction of the Holloway and Islington Roads, in lieu of the ancient and celebrated "Cock" Tavern of which Bro. Friend and his father were, in succession, owners for upwards of fifty years.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, December 20, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, Dec. 14.

Lodge 108, London, Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street.
 " 173, Phoenix, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 1328, Granite, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 1361, United Service, Swan Hotel, Wimbledon.
 Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor.
 Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
 Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.
 Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, Dec. 16.

Lodge 1, Grand Masters', Freemasons' Hall.
 " 8, British, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 21, Emulation, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-st.
 " 58, Felicity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
 " 185, Tranquility, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
 " 720, Pannure, Balham Hotel, Balham.
 " 862, Whittington, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 " 907, Royal Albert, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 1201, Eclectic, Freemasons' Hall.
 Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro Beckett, Preceptor.
 Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7. Ceremony of Installation by Bro. C. Lacey, P.M.
 Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
 British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
 St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
 Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.
 St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
 West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, Dec. 17.

Board of General Purposes at 3.
 Lodge 30, United Mariners, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
 " 73, Mount Lebanon, Bridge House Hotel, Southwark.
 " 95, Eastern Star, Ship and Turtle Tavern, Leadenhall-st.
 " 162, Cadogan, Freemasons' Hall.
 Chapter 7, Royal York of Perseverance, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 11, Enoch, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 19, Mount Sinai, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 " 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
 Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
 Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
 Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8 Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.

Yarborough: Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
 Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
 Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
 Florence Nighungale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
 Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
 St. Marybone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's wood, at 8 Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, (50), Wheatsheaf Hotel, Hand-cour, Holborn, at 7; Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M., 180, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 18.

Lodge of Benevolence at 6 precisely.
 Lodge 140, St. George's, Trafalgar Hotel, Greenwich.
 " 174, Sincerity, Guildhall Hotel, Gresham-st.
 " 700, Nelson, Masonic Hall, William-st., Woolwich.
 " 969, Maybury, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 1044, New Wandsworth, Spread Eagle Hotel, New Wandsworth.
 " 1349, Friars, Cheshire Cheese, Crutched Friars.
 " 1365, Clapton, Old Town Hall, Hackney.
 Chap. 217, Stability, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
 Mark Lodge, Bon Accord, Freemasons' Tavern.

Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
 United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
 Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
 Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
 Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
 Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
 Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, Dec. 19.

House Committee Girls' School at 4.
 Lodge 23, Globe, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 49, Gihon, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-st.
 " 169, Temperance, White Swan, High-st., Deptford.
 " 179, Manchester, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-st.
 " 657, Canonbury, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
 " 1139, South Norwood, South Norwood Hall, South Norwood.
 " 1287, Great Northern, Great Northern Hotel, King's Cross.
 " 1339, Stockwell, Duke of Edinburgh Tav., Stockwell.
 Chap. 79, Pythagorean, Ship Hotel, Greenwich.
 Mark Lodge, Carnarvon, Freemasons' Tavern.
 Knights Templar Encampment, Observance, 14, Bedford-row.

The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall-Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Pannure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
 United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
 Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, Dec. 20.

House Committee Boys' School.
 Lodge 6, Friendship, Willis's Rooms, St. James.
 " 201, Jordan, Freemasons' Hall.
 " 813, New Concord, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton.
 Chap. 176, Caveac, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street.
 Knights Templar Encampment, St. George's, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
 Rose Croix Chapter, Invicta, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich.
 St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
 Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Mugeridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
 Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-5, Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.

SHOW-MASONS.

By Bro. W. BURROUGHS, A.M., M.M.M., S.E., R.A.

EDITOR Masonic Herald, CALCUTTA.Fruges consumere nati.—HOR.

Sterne in his "Sentimental Journey" gives an account of different kinds of travellers, each moving with an object in view. In religion there are also different kinds of thinkers, each impelled by notion of his own. According to Plato there are "three sorts of Atheists," one class absolutely denying the existence of God; another while admitting existence, deny interference, consequently disbelieve Providence; the third class while admitting existence and Providence are independent of wrong on the ground of absolution—"the greatest crime for the smallest supplication" being remissible upon consideration. The strangeness of these doctrines fortunately does not require much acumen to discover that they are fallacious.

In Masonry we have also a similar classification. It is composed of the live-mason, the show-mason, and the dead-mason. The live-mason is actuated by two lofty principles—FAITH and WORK; by these he establishes his worth. The show-mason is vain and ostentatious. He is the barren fig tree. His heart is in show and not in usefulness. We shall exhibit him here as gibbeted criminals are exhibited, not in revenge, but for example. At a future time we shall endeavour to describe the live-mason, who like gold possesses a virtue which envy cannot detract nor calumny traduce. The dead-mason has already been described by a better hand.*

The show-mason is a rara avis. He is not an ordinary being, yet he is not extraordinary. He is sham without a particle of substantiality in him. To the wants of the poor he gives regret—not relief. He has alms on his tongue, but none in his bosom. The fountain there is dry; no milk of human kindness flows from it:—

"A man like this within his heart provides
A filthy corner where the fiend resides;
If to this saint some wretch presents his suit,
Out starts the fiend and strikes the suppliant mute."

If there is a charity to be bestowed, the show-mason sends in his quota with a long note of regret saying, that owing to a sudden call he could not give more, but at some other time he will not fail to do so. Thus anticipating evil which is an evil. Were he however present, he could not say half as much and for good reason, that it would awaken a titter against him. Charity by flourish of trumpet is reprehensible.

If there is a demonstration, bedecked in hues of the rainbow with pendants of degrees as numerous as there are signs in the zodiac, the show-mason is foremost in the van. These "blushing honours thick upon him" he has purchased and not earned, and the meaning of which he does not know, and if told, he could not understand; his head like frosted glass is opaque, no light of knowledge can come out of it or penetrate into it. He is the veritable "Mundane Egg" with primeval darkness around him; nothing "dove like" can sit "brooding o'er his vast abyss," and make it pregnant.

The show-mason is a pretender. He is the claimant of a right, without a right to it. To gain suffrage as the conceited pay for mourners, he scatters money, and on the plea of supporting the liberal arts he has his photo taken in Masonic costume, which he pays for in silver, frames it in gold, and with brass on his face exhibits it to all around, telling them that it is himself and none other, and so it is. It is the show-mason and not the bona fide.

*London Freemason, No. 125, July 29th, 1871.

Masonry is the perpetual talk of the show-mason, and talk only. His doors and windows, books and papers, even clothings and ornaments, are marked with, or covered over, with symbolic representations. These are what they are and no more—the visible signs of something without, but of no invisible grace within. There is no reality or materiality in him. He is a mere nominal; but were we to dive deeper we should see better—we would see him in his true character—a traitor in the camp—a wolf in the fold.

In private life the show-mason is as strange. His table groans inside, and the poor outside, yet he neither eats himself nor gives it to others. The game he delights in is a scouted one. It is that of "the dog and the manger." He cannot eat because he is a dyspeptic; he will not give to others because he is selfish.

The show-mason keeps sometimes a library. A book with a sounding title or written by a blazing character, is his hobby. Though on the subject it is written he may not understand, still he buys it for show; and keeps it for show; but an organ of the Order which he should support, he does not, because it does not come up to the standard of his mind, which is grovelling. He is all for gossip. He likes to know what takes place here and there, and nothing more. History and philosophy have no value in his estimation; they are to him as the gem was to the cock which he had found on a dunghill—a bauble at best. He entered the Order with an object—morbid curiosity; that satisfied, he cares no more for it. Such a person should be shunned. He is "a wilfully perjured individual, void of all moral worth, and unfit to be received in the society of men who prize honour and virtue above all the external advantages of rank and fortune."—Masonic Record of Western India, July, 1872.

MARK MASONRY IN CHESHIRE.

On Friday afternoon, the 6th inst., an interesting ceremony took place in connection with the periodical meeting of the Joppa Lodge of Mark Masters, which was held at the Masonic Chambers, Hamilton-square, Birkenhead. The proceedings embraced, amongst other items of business of a pleasant nature, the installation of Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, A.P., R.W.P.G.M.M., Cheshire, designate, as W.M.M. of the Joppa Lodge. The brethren assembled in the lodge-room shortly after three o'clock, and amongst those present, besides the Hon. brother, were the following:—Bros. T. Ambler, R.W.M.; W. Bulley, P.R.W.M.; S. Mattison, P.M.; W. P. Mills, P.M.; J. Sillitoe, S.W.; E. Friend, J.W.; G. H. Wilson, J.O.; H. Platt, Treas.; P. J. Pearson, Sec.; T. E. Hignett; T. W. Lightband, J.D.; G. Morgan, J. M. Radcliffe, T. Fozzard, F. K. Stephenson; and amongst the visitors were Bros. C. F. Matier, G.J.W. of England and P.D.P.M.M. Lancashire; R. W. Morrell, P.M.; 721; G. Owen, S. Spratley, &c. After the lodge had been duly and solemnly opened by the R.W.M., and the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, Bros. Demetrius, Jones, Worrall and Davies, were advanced to the rank of M.M.M. Bro. C. F. Matier, then proceeded to instal Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton as W.M.M., the ceremony being performed in a highly effective and deeply impressive manner. The W.M.M. subsequently invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. Sillitoe, S.W.; E. Friend, J.W.; J. M. Radcliffe, M.O.; G. Morgan, S.O.; G. H. Wilson, J.O.; P. J. Pearson, Sec.; J. Platt, Treas.; T. E. Hignett, Reg.; T. H. Mills, S.D.; J. W. Peters, J.D.; —Hughes, T.K.; and —Gracie, Conductor. Bro. Roden was unanimously re-elected Tyler. Before the lodge closed, a very handsome Past Master's jewel was presented to Bro. Ambler, in the name of the lodge, by Bro. Stevenson, who referred in eulogistic terms to the excellent services which had been rendered by Bro. Ambler during his year of office. The gift having been suitably acknowledged by Bro. Ambler, the lodge was closed.

At the conclusion of the business the brethren adjourned to Thomas's, Woodside Ferry Hotel, where they sat down to an excellent dinner under the presidency of the R.W.M. Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P. Ample justice having been done to the repast, the following toasts were given:—"The Queen and the Craft," by the R.W.M.; "The Earl and the Countess of Chester and the rest of the Royal Family." In proposing this toast the R.W.M. said, in Cheshire they always liked to recognize Brother the Prince of Wales by the more familiar title of the Earl Chester, but on the present occasion they would drink his health also as a brother whose interest in the progress of Masonry had never flagged since the day he was first initiated into its mysteries by another illustrious brother whose death they had recently to deplore, and although they hoped the day was far distant when he would be called on to reign over this mighty empire, till they feel confident that he would do so to the satisfaction of the public generally, and the Craft in particular. (Applause.) The W.M. then gave "The Grand Mark Lodge of England, and Bro. Portal, M.W.G.M.M., and Earl Percy, the W.M.-Elect."

He said it had been his good fortune to be personally acquainted with Bro. Portal for a long time, and was well assured that no man could more worthily fill the post he now occupied. Bro. the Earl Percy was he was sorry to say obliged to go to a warmer climate to spend the winter, but he sincerely trusted he would return restored to health, and then he had no doubt he would continue to take that active interest in Masonry he had hitherto evinced. With this toast he would couple the name of Bro. Matier, Grand Mark Junior Warden. Of him he need say very little; his name was well-known, and they had all an opportunity that day of witnessing the admirable manner in which he had performed his work. The toast was drunk with all the honours. Bro. Matier replied.

Bro. John Platt then proposed the health of the W.M., in doing which he reviewed the history of the Joppa Lodge, from the time of its first formation till the present, when it had the honour of being presided over by the future Provincial Grand Master of Cheshire—whom he felt satisfied would be a credit to the Craft, and an honour to the Joppa Lodge. The W.M. in reply, thanked Bro. Platt and the other brethren present for the flattering manner he had spoken of him, and the manner in which they had received it. He was also very much indebted to the Joppa Lodge for appointing him W.M., and thus enabling him to qualify for the important office of Prov. G.M.M. Whatever he could do for Mark Masonry he would do, and if at any time he was not present with them, they might rest assured some of his other multifarious duties had detained him. He felt satisfied that Mark Masonry would flourish in Cheshire, but there was one thing he should like, and that was that they should always be careful whom they admitted to this degree. He would prefer quality to quantity, but from what he had seen of the Joppa Lodge he was well pleased, and he hoped that the other lodges of the province would follow their example. "Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution," was proposed by Bro. Stevenson. Songs were given by Bros. Hignett, Friend, Smith, Stevenson, &c.

AIDS TO STUDY.

By BRO. WM. CARPENTER, P.M. & P.Z. 177.

No. XVI.

It has been written, not more eloquently than truthfully, that on entering the temple of revelation one of the first objects that has attracted the attention of all ages, and which constitutes a grand support, is the pillar of prophecy. Like the celebrated obelisks of Egypt, it is covered with hieroglyphics, which the wisdom of man, and the skill of science, in their combined efforts attempt in vain to decipher. There is one interpreter, however, whose elucidations never fail to render the inscriptions intelligible. It is Time. His hand retraces all the figures before the eyes of succeeding generations; this interpretation is recorded by the pen of faithful, impartial history; and by comparing the commentary with the original, we are able to comprehend both the one and the other. This pillar is adamant, and resists the impressions of age. Its inscriptions were written by hands which have long since mouldered into dust; and by persons who did not themselves always understand what they wrote, nor were able to explain the characters which they formed; but the substance of them was dictated by God Himself, and the column is His own workmanship. There have been many fruitless efforts made to shake this monument of infinite wisdom, and to erase the lines of inscrutable knowledge; but the pillar remains unmoved; the lines unimpaired, and the whole uninjured either by malice or by years. The parts of this singular elevation which stand nearer the roof of the temple, are covered by an impenetrable cloud. The whole pillar was once equally involved: but Time, who has rolled away the mist from its base, shall, at the destined period, unveil the remaining part of it; and while we shall be able to read the writing, he shall announce, with unerring perspicuity, the interpretation.

We have seen how far this description of Scripture prophecy has been realised in the histories of Egypt and Assyria, both mighty and civilised, but poisoned with the dregs of idolatry, and deeply infuted with its cruelties. Egypt was renowned for its learning and opulence; Assyria for its conquests and the magnitude of its dominions. They have both passed away, and their glory is trodden in the dust, as was written when nothing seemed more unlikely. So, in like manner, with Babylon—the "Great Babylon"—"the glory of kingdoms," "the beauty of the Chaldee's excellency." When in the plenitude of its power, and, according to the most accurate chronologers, 160 years before the foot of an enemy had entered it, the voice of one had made itself heard there—the voice of prophecy pronounced the doom of the mighty and unconquered Babylon. A succession of years brought it gradually to the dust, and the degradation of its fall is marked till it sinks at last into utter desolation. At a time when only magnificence was around the great city,—emphatically called "THE Great" fallen Babylon was delineated by the pencil of inspiration, exactly as every traveller now describes its ruins. It departed not, however, on its first conquest, nor on the final extinction of its capital; one metropolis of Assyria, rose after another in the land of Chaldea, when Babylon had ceased to be "the glory of kingdoms."

It seems almost undeniable that the vast region known as Babylonia, and as described in modern times, should have been, at one time, the most fertile region of the whole East. It was one vast plain, adorned and enriched by the Euphrates and the Tigris, from which, and from the numerous canals that intersected the country from the one river to the others, water was distributed over the fields, giving rise in that warm climate and rich apparently exhaustless soil, to an exuberance of produce over so extensive a region without a known parallel, in either ancient or modern times. Herodotus says he knew not how to speak of its wonderful fertility, which none but an eye-witness would credit. And we have the like testimony from Strabo, Ammianus, Marcellinus, and others; the latter of whom states, that from the point reached by Julian's army to the shores of the Persian Gulf, there was one continuous forest of verdure. What is it now? Many modern travellers have supplied the answer. I quote one (Loftus) "Long lines of mounds mark the courses of these main arteries which formerly diffused life and vegetation along their banks; but their channels are now bereft of moisture, and choked with drifted sand; the smaller offshoots are wholly effaced. All that remains of that ancient civilization—that 'glory of kingdoms,' 'the praise of the whole earth,'—is recognisable in the numerous mouldering heaps of brick rubbish which overspread the surface of the plain. Instead of the luxuriant fields, the groves and gardens, nothing now meets the eye but an arid waste—the dense population of the former times has vanished, and no man dwells there." As to the former greatness of the empire or of its capital, the only real traces to be found of it are in the large mysterious-looking mounds which meet the eye of the traveller, as he wanders over the plain. Each mound has a name, handed down from ancient times, and preserved by the country people; and some of them are to be identified with names found in the Bible. But no certain remains of the walls of Babylon have hitherto been identified so as to indicate their precise limits, though assiduously sought for. Nebuchadnezzar, having shaken off the fear which seems to have possessed him for the time given to him to "break off his sins by righteousness, and his iniquities by showing mercy to the poor, if it might be a lengthening of his tranquility," (Daniel iv., 27,) became repossessed of his arrogance and defiant will, and dwelling upon the great works he had accomplished towards rendering Babylon impregnable, exclaimed, "Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?" (Ibid.) Similarly he exalts over the works he had thus accomplished, in the famous inscription which modern research has recovered from the ruins:—"I strengthened the city. Across the river to the west I built the wall of Babylon with brick. . . . Behold, besides the Ingur-Bel, the impregnable fortification of Babylon, I constructed on the eastern side of the river, a fortification such as no king had ever made before me. . . . Against presumptuous enemies who were hostile to the men of Babylon, great waters, like the waters of the ocean, I made use of abundantly. . . . Thus I completely made strong the defences of Babylon."

But it was all in vain. Babylon was doomed, because of its idolatry, tyranny, oppression, pride, covetousness, drunkenness, falsehood, and other wickedness. More than a century before the country had attained to the meridian of its glory—a time, therefore, when human sagacity would have foretold her increasing greatness, rather than her complete desolation, Isaiah uttered his "burdens of Babylon," (chaps. xiii., xiv., xlv.) in the former of which he names the Medes as the victorious enemies, and in the latter, Cyrus as the victorious commander, as did also Jeremiah (chap. li.); and both of them its utter overthrow, and perpetual desolation, (Isaiah xiii., 4, 5; xiv., 23; Jeremiah l., 13, 15.) also the means and the manner in which it should be taken (Isaiah xlv., 1-3; Jeremiah li., 31.)

There are many other and very expressive predictions that I might cite, but time and space fail. The Student may easily refer to time, by the aid of a concordance; and one only conclusion can he come to—that which is intimated at the commencement of this paper. The fulness and simplicity of the Bible, as therefore recording the facts of history, cannot fail to impress a thinking mind more deeply than the littleness visible in the inflated records of mere mortal men. The unadorned truth is less doubted, more unreservedly depended upon, than it is when dressed up in the needless ornaments of human eloquence. The record is felt to be true, and we receive it as a substantial and super-human reality. To the sceptic and the infidel the whole case is abundantly monetary.

ON FREEMASONRY.

By BRO. HENRY T. BOBART, P.P.G.S.B.

Dr. Watts says, "religion or virtue includes duty to God and our neighbour; religion then is a system of practical duties and thus stands opposed to theology which is a system of speculative truths. The moral duties, which a man commits to practice in this probationary state with a view to pleasing his Creator, are acts of pure religion. Freemasonry was revealed by God himself to the first man; placed in the garden of Eden, Adam would certainly be made acquainted with the nature of his tenure, and taught with the worship of his Maker, that simple science of morals which is now termed Freemasonry. This constituted his chief employment in Paradise, and his only consolation after his fall; for speculative Masonry is nothing else but the philosophy of the mind and morals founded on the belief of a God, the Creator, Preserver and Redeemer, which instructs mankind in the sublimities of science, inculcates a strict observance of the duties of social life, and inspires in the soul a veneration for the author of its being, who would reveal nothing but what had a tendency to encourage the practice of those precepts which were given to preserve the newly created man in the strict line of moral duty, therefore, Masonry must be closely interwoven with the practice of religion. Its operative portion proceeded from the effects of human necessity after the fall, so far as was conducive to man's comfort and convenience in this life. Hence originated the two great divisions of Masonry; operative Masonry was of human institution, speculative Masonry of Divine. It is for want of bearing in mind this distinction that so many errors arise respecting the nature and tendency of Freemasonry.

Before the introduction of the Art of Printing, it is evident the preservation of Eternal Truth in the family of man, pure and unadulterated, was a more precarious task than it can ever now be.

But it was guarded by type, figure and allegory, its essence lay concealed in parables, the most incomprehensible truths were shadowed forth under similitudes; in order that the mind might lay hold of them, and that the impression of common objects might be stamped upon the memory without danger of erasure. The teaching of religious truth was necessarily oral, it was preserved for the most part by the tradition and the maintenance of this system is the Masons' Craft. We teach in the same way, we inculcate doctrine by the same method. We work out our moral virtues in the same pleasing form; our science however, under whatever name and in whatever country it has been known, has always been understood to have reference to the worship of the one living and true God, and to the moral and intellectual improvement of the human race.

A very common objection urged against the ancient and honourable institution, is the secrecy entailed upon its members, it is stated that if our objects are indeed right and proper, if our tendencies are to make men wiser and better, everything ought to be made public, so as to produce the greatest good to the greatest number.

At first sight this appears sound and feasible, but it is evident, this would destroy our unity as a body, and that while we have many traditional histories which are not disclosed to the external world; many of the reserved points consist merely of recognition and of testing membership which is clear must be kept sacred. I may also add that according to the obligations which all must take on their admission; no Master of a lodge can initiate a person without administering the same obligation, and hence it is impossible that any one since the establishment of the institution, in the early ages of the world, could reveal that which he had solemnly sworn to lock up in the safe repository of his heart, in fact, that there can be no one willing to take on himself the awful responsibility of the first step in violation of his serious promises and engagements.

We have Scripture authority for the injunction. "Discover not a secret to another lest he that heareth thee put thee to shame, and thine infamy turn not away." It is much to be lamented that the causistry of the present day should be used to sever the connection between Freemasonry and Religion. It arises out of the mistaken notion that Freemasonry entertains the ambition of superseding Religion altogether, which is as wide of the truth, as the poles are asunder.

Its most enthusiastic defenders never dreamt of such a result. That which Christianity cannot effect will in vain be attempted by Freemasonry. It is not in itself religion but the handmaid and assistant to religion. It is a system of morality inculcated on scientific principles, and morality is not the ground work but the result and fruit of religion. Freemasonry recommends the practise of morality to its members, and illustrates the respective duties which they owe to God, their neighbour, and themselves, and these duties constitute an evidence of religion which the adversaries of Freemasonry can neither gainsay nor resist; therefore let the moral and intellectual atmosphere of our Order be proclaimed by the course of our lives, while we pass through the intricate windings of our mortal existence, regulating our actions by the rules of rectitude, squaring our conduct by the principles of morality, guiding our reflections, even our very thoughts, within the compass of propriety, in meekness, humility and resignation, in fidelity to our God, our country and our laws; in peace and goodwill towards all mankind, and, lastly, let us invariably act as having a practical sense that we are at all times and in all places under the immediate superintendence of that "All-seeing eye," whose emblem forms so prominent a feature in our Masonic lodges.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

Every instrumentality designed to promote a knowledge of, and increase the interest of the members in, Freemasonry, merits encouragement. Experience proves that the more men know of the Order, the better its members understand its nature, its peculiar aptitude for good, and the power of its mystical influence over men, the more do they appreciate its benign principles. Its magical powers is not alone in its ritualism, but in its peculiar form of social organism, and the means by which it gathers men around a common altar, and moves them by a common interest. The chief reason why some do not take a deeper interest in Masonry, why they are not more frequently at the Lodge, why they do not more extensively patronize its literature and study its philosophy, is because they know so little about it. Ignorance, gross, wilful and inexcusable ignorance, is the great difficulty.

Either they do not know of the rich mine they may work, and from which they may gather rarest gems, or they are so absorbed in more material matters that they have no desire for purer and better things, or they are too indolent to endure the labour, or too penurious to make the small needed expenditure.

But, whatever the cause the fact is apparent to the most casual observer; many of the members know but little about Masonry, and as a consequence are but little about it. Rarely at the Lodge, they are ignorant of its internal workings; fond of grosser enjoyments, the excitement of passion and pleasure is more congenial than the higher and nobler influences of Masonry. This is lamentable, and yet it is true; if it were not, our lodges would be filled with earnest, interested members; instead of which, frequently not half, and often not one-fourth of the members of the lodge attend its meetings regularly. They prefer the theatre, the club-room, or the political caucus, rather than the pure teachings, exalted fellowship, and noble charities of the lodge-room.

The question is presented—how may this evil be remedied? And this question is worthy of consideration by all who wish well to the Order, and especially by those who govern and influence our lodges. Men must be thorough Masons, or they will be very indifferent ones. In this Institution we must "Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian Spring;

Here small draughts intoxicate the brain,
But drinking largely sobers us again."

In this city we have what is called a Lodge of Instruction for the special benefit of our younger members, who desire to become familiar with the ritualism of the Order. It has been in operation for a number of years, but suspends its meetings during the summer months. By invitation we recently attended its closing meeting for the summer, and found, greatly to our surprise, not over thirty members in attendance, out of some fifteen hundred Masons in the city. The labours of the organization are chiefly directed to acquiring a knowledge of the work, and the ability to perform properly the duties of the several offices of the lodge. In this, the members have realized success, and our best workmen in the lodges are found among its members. There is a laudible ambition among them to excel in this accomplishment, and the Lodge of Instruction furnishes the means and opportunity for success.

It is not enough, however, to have the verbiage of the work committed to memory. The manner of doing the work is of far more importance than mere verbal accuracy; a parrot can be taught to utter words and phrases, but it requires human intelligence and human culture to utter them properly. The time, circumstances, surroundings, style, manner, emphasis—all enter into the estimate of excellence, and all combine to make the work effective and impressive. All this requires study and practice,—such as the actor on the stage, or the vocalist on the boards, requires to attain eminence. Every Mason has not the ability—the natural talent—to secure success in these duties; but many have, and in such especially, the gift should be cultivated and improved by study and effort. The presentation and working of the different grades should be easy, graceful, serious, impressive and above all, natural. There should be as little of the fanciful or imaginary about the work as possible; and in the legend of the third degree, especially, it should appear to be reality. It is this which makes the degree impressive; without this, it is all a failure, if not a farce.

But these Lodges of instruction are capable of more extended usefulness, as a means of Masonic culture. There is no reason why their efforts should be limited to the knowledge of the rituals. The philosophy of the rituals, the reasons for them, and the objects to be attained by them; the symbolism of the degrees, its origin and end; the history of the Order in different countries, and its different Rites; the nature and power of Grand, as well as subordinate Lodges; the jurisprudence and government of the Order; the constitutional or fundamental law; the Old Charges and Regulations; the legislative, executive, and judicial functions of Masonic government—all these, or most of them, should be on the curriculum of the Lodge of Instruction. The Lodge should be a thorough school for Masonic culture; and the best minds and ablest Masters in the Royal Art should furnish the instruction. By the law of most Grand Lodges, candidates for our mysteries are required to be examined in the degree taken, before they are allowed to advance to higher positions. But when the candidate has mastered all that is required in such examinations, he has only attained the rudiments of a Masonic education. He has the alphabet, and may blunderingly read, but he has not yet penetrated beyond the surface.

In ascertaining the results of these efforts, there should be tests and examinations. The members should be required to write essays on different subjects connected with the Order—and read them. How few—very few of the Masters of Lodges can read or repeat the charge in conferring a degree. Those charges are beautiful, appropriate, impressive, and full of meaning and instruction; but as they are often delivered, they are a jingling mass of unmeaning verbiage. We have listened to some with positive agony, and wondered that the candidate had patience to "endure to the end."

The Lodge of Instruction should be encouraged and sustained by the approval and frequent presence of the Masters and officers of the different Lodges, and especially by the old and more influential members. The Masters of each Lodge should frequently call the attention of his members to this means of acquiring Masonic knowledge, and urge the younger brethren, especially, to attend it. In fact he should go with them, and give attention himself to the objects of study.

The government of the Lodge of Instruction should be in competent hands—a learned, experienced and zealous craftsman. He should watch over it as a Master watches over his lodge, or the President of a college guards the interest of the school and labours for the improvement of his scholars. No outside matter should be permitted to intrude; no dogmatism should be allowed. Over the East should be written, "WHO CAN BEST WORK AND BEST AGREE." There should be fostered among its members an esprit du corps, and an honorable ambition to excel in a knowledge of Masonry. There should be monthly examinations, when "specimens of work" should be presented, essays and dissertations read, and a general examination as to improvement and progress.—Review, Cincinnati.

Mark Masonry.

MANCHESTER.—Union Mark Lodge, No. 46.—The usual quarterly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Manchester, on Thursday, the 28th ult. There was not so large a gathering as we should have wished to see, in consequence of other attractions in the city. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. John M. Wike, who was unable to be present, the chair was occupied by Bro. Thomas Hargreaves, P.M. 113. The principal business of the evening was the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year. After the lodge had been opened and the minutes of last lodge read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. the Rev. Augustus A. Bagshawe, of the time Immemorial Mark Lodge, Nottingham, which proving unanimous in his favour, and he being present at the time, he was accordingly affiliated a member, under the English Constitution of the Union Mark Lodge. A Board of Installed Masters having been formed, the S.W., Bro. John Gibb-Smith, was then duly installed into the chair, Bro. Hargreaves being the Installing Master. Bro. John Duffield having been duly elected as Treasurer; the officers for the year were then appointed and invested, and included amongst other well-known Bros.; Bro. G. A. Birch as S.W., and Bro. Robert Mc D. Smith, as J.W. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were gone through and a pleasant evening spent.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—The Skelmersdale Lodge of Mark Masters.—On Monday, the 2nd inst., the above lodge met to celebrate their annual festival. The lodge was opened at 4 p.m., and the minutes of last lodge, and lodge of emergency, having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for four brothers to be advanced, and three to be affiliated from the Ashton Old Mark Lodge, which was unanimous in their favour. Only two of the latter being present, they were duly affiliated by Bro. T. Hargreaves, P.M. 113, who also acted as Installing Master. Bro. Joseph T. Lancashire, the S.W., was afterwards duly installed as Master for the ensuing year, when he proceeded to appoint and invest his officers. The lodge being duly closed, the brethren afterwards sat down to dinner. The various toasts being given and received in true Lancashire style.

SOUTHAMPTON.—St. Andrew's Lodge, No. 63.—The brethren of this lodge held their annual meeting on the 29th ult., the W.M. Bro. W. Hickman, presiding. Bro. Sheppard, P.M., having taken the chair, Bro. J. P. Payne, S.W., the W.M.-Elect for the ensuing year, was presented to him for installation, and a Board of Past Masters having been formed, Bro. Payne was installed into the chair of Adoniram. The brethren having been re-admitted, the W.M. was saluted by them in the manner customary amongst Mark Masters. The W.M., then appointed, invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. Le Feuvre, S.W.; Weston, J.W.; Coles, M.O.; Watson, S.O.; Dyer, J.O.; Cross, Reg. of M.; Abraham, Treas.; Pearce, Sec.; Stroud, S.D.; Wilkins, J.D.; W. J. Hickman, I.G.; Bemister, D.C.; and Biggs, Tyler. The lodge was then closed and the brethren sat down to a banquet, after which the usual toasts were ably proposed and responded to.

BIRMINGHAM.—Bedford Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 115.—The members of this lodge met on Tuesday, the 3rd inst., in the Masonic Hall, New-street, the following officers and brethren being present:—Bros. E. Worrall, W.M.; H. Sanderson, W.M.-elect, S.W.; J. L. Kennedy, M.O.; F. N. Leyde, S.O.; A. Hodgetts, J.O.; Horrocks, Sec.; D. Rose, S.D.; Belcher, O.; J. B. Hall, E. A. Webster, W. White, J. G. O'Leary, A. Harris, J. Lakin, T. Parkes, J. Norris, J. Stevens, &c. The lodge was opened in due form at 5 o'clock prompt. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Partridge, W.M. of the Fowke Lodge, Leicester, accompanied by several brethren, then entered the lodge and were greeted by the W.M. and members of 115, and according to their respective rank were saluted under the able direction of Bro. E. A. Webster as D.C. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Partridge, W.M. (Fowke,) then occupied the chair, and Bro. Sanderson was presented and duly installed as W.M. for the ensuing year according to ancient custom. Under the able and experienced Mastership of Bro. Sanderson, we are sure that the prosperity and stability of the lodge, which is only in the third year of its existence, will be fully maintained and increased. After the appointment and investiture of his officers, the following brethren Silveston, Levi, Pringle, Sale, Matthews, Ferguson and Powell, being in attendance were admitted and duly advanced by the W.M., ably assisted by his officers. A vote of thanks was cordially passed to Bro. Partridge for his kindness in conducting the installation ceremony. The W.M. then, in feeling terms, presented to Bro. Worrall a P.M.'s jewel as a slight token of esteem from the members of the lodge, and in recognition of his able services during the two years he ruled over the lodge. Bro. Worrall (evidently taken by surprise) thanked the brethren for their handsome present, and assured them he should always look back with pleasure to his two years of Mastership, he had received so many kindnesses from them that it was a labour of love, and if called upon they would always find him ready. Several brethren were proposed for advancement, and the W.M. being greeted with hearty good wishes by the distinguished visitors present, the lodge was closed in due form and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The Stewards, Bros. White, Webster, Rose and Parkes, had made ample provision for the comfort of the brethren. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts being given and received with applause. Bro. Partridge, W.M., Fowke Lodge, proposed the health of Bro. Sanderson, W.M. and success to the Bedford Mark Lodge. The W.M. responded and in feeling terms, alluded to the great kindness shown towards him by the officers and members of the lodge, and hoped the same feeling might exist at the close of his year of office. The W.M. proposed the health of the Visiting brethren from the Fowke Lodge, No. 19, Leicester, and expressed the pleasure enjoyed by the members of the lodge in entertaining such esteemed visitors, he was proud of the brotherly feeling which existed between the two lodges, regretting the distance between them, and thanking them for their presence, assured them the members of the Bedford would always be proud to see them, and would exert themselves to promote their comfort. The toast was enthusiastically received, and followed by Bro. Pringle singing in admirable style, "Auld Lang Syne." The toast was responded to by Bros. Partridge, James, Colthurst, Wilkinson, &c., all speaking in the highest terms of the fraternal greeting accorded to them. The Installing Master, proposed by the W.M., stated the members of the Bedford fell under a deep debt of gratitude to Bro. Partridge for undertaking the work at very short notice, notwithstanding which the ceremony was conducted throughout in a perfectly faultless style. Bro. Partridge in returning thanks said, he had accepted the invitation with pleasure, and was glad to think he had been enabled to assist Bro. Worrall who was unfortunately daily expecting the loss of a dear relative. The final toast terminated a truly happy and delightful evening.

LANCASHIRE.

BOLTON.—Rose and Thistle Lodge No. 158.—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 5th inst., in Freemasons' Hall, Bolton, when there were present; Bros. Thos. Entwisle, Prov. G. Superintendent, Lancashire; G. S. Brockbank, Past G. Warden, W.M.; John Turmah, P. Prov. G. Overseer, S.W.; T. H. Winder, J.W.; Gilbert, M.O.; Sharples, Treas.; Robt. Harwood, P. Prov. G. Deacon, Reg. of Marks; James Newton, Sec.; Brown, Conductor; J. Horrocks, S.D.; Ferguson, J.D.; Thos. Morris, Inner Guard; also two visiting brethren, viz.: Bros. Chas. Fitzgerald Matier, Junior Grand Warden of England, and Bro.

Wm. Hamer, W.M.-Elect, St. John's Mark Lodge. The lodge was opened in form with prayer at half-past six o'clock. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for eleven candidates for advancement and one joining member, the whole being unanimously elected. Bro. the Rev. Geo. Raymond Portal, M.W. Grand Mark Master, and Bro. Chas. Fitzgerald Matier, R.W. Grand Junior Warden, were unanimously elected honorary members. Five of the candidates for advancement, viz.: Bros. W. H. Horrocks, R. K. Freeman, Samuel Crowther, Frank Ainsworth, and F. A. Winder being in attendance, were duly advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master by Bro. Matier, J.G. Warden. It was agreed that the regular meetings of the lodge for 1873 should be held on first Thursday in April and October. A committee was appointed to frame Bye-laws for the government of the lodge. The lodge was closed in form at nine o'clock.

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

ORIGINAL AND PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND.

This conclave met at the Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi, on Monday the 2nd inst., Sir Kt. G. Kenning, M.P.S., presided, supported by Sir Kts. J. T. Moss, V.; E. Sillifant, S.G.; J. T. Barret, I.G.; R. Wentworth Little, P. Sov., Recorder; W. H. Hubbard, P. Sov.; J. G. Marsh, P. Sov.; G. Powell, P. Sov.; W. R. Woodman, M.D., G.R.; H. Parker, Org., J. S. Banning, Prefect; W. H. Scott, Herald; Col. Burdett, G.S.G.; Rev. Dr. Brette; P. R. Hobson; H. C. Levander, G.H.A.; H. A. Dubois; J. L. Thomas, G.A.; F. Walters, P. Sov. 3; and C. Parker Ward, M.D., V. 2.

The conclave having been duly opened and the minutes confirmed, Bros. the Rev. Arthur Bruce Fraser, Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of England, and William Le Hunte Doyle of the Burdett Lodge, (No. 1293) were dubbed Knights of Rome, and subsequently installed with the usual formalities as Knights of the Red Cross Order. Owing to the absence of Sir Kt. Cubitt, Treasurer, the Audit report was not read. It was intimated that a noble brother, holding the rank of Marquis in the peerage, would probably be a candidate for installation at the next meeting. A committee was then appointed to report as to future place of meeting, and the conclave was closed. The Knights then set down to an excellent dinner, and the evening passed in the enjoyment of the kindly and social feelings which so eminently distinguish the meetings of the Premier Conclave.

SKELMERSDALE CONCLAVE, No. 77.

An assembly of the Masonic Order of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine, connected with this conclave, was held on Monday evening last, the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Hall, 22, Hope-street. The throne was occupied by Em. Sir Knight Thomas Ashmore, M.P.S., and amongst the others present were Ill. Sir Knight G. Turner, Int. Gen. for West Lancashire; Em. Sir Knight H. Nelson, V.E.; Sir Kts. J. T. Callow, J.G.; Jesse Banning, H.P.; W. Cottrell, Rec.; M. Mawson, S.B.; W. Bradshaw, H. Burrows, J. Atkinson, J. McCarthy, C. Leighton, T. Ramskill, W. M. Elliott, &c. After the records of the previous conclave had been read and confirmed, the heavy installation business of the evening was proceeded with. The following approved candidates being in attendance, the M.P.S. proceeded to instal them in a highly effective manner:—Bros. W. Corbin, No. 673; P. Forshaw, No. 1403; J. H. Plaw, No. 823; H. Jones, No. 1094; Eben. Clements, No. 673; H. Morris, No. 673; and T. Lawrence, No. 673. Sir Kt. Edward Dutch, of the Liverpool Conclave, No. 55, was also admitted as a joining member. After the transaction of some routine business, the conclave was solemnly closed, and the Sir Knights adjourned to refreshments.

ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE.

PALESTINE CHAPTER, ROSE CROIX, H.R.D.M.

This chapter met for the first time at the new Masonic Hall, Golden Square, on Tuesday, the 26th ult., Bro. R. Wentworth Little, 30° M.W.S., duly opened the chapter, which was attended by Ill. Bros. Capt. N. G. Phillips, 33°, Lieut. Grand Commander; Hyde Pullen, 33°; E. Hamilton Shaw, 33°, Grand Prior S.C. Southern Jurisdiction, United States; I. D. Bateman, 33°, S.J.U.S.; R. Costa, 32°; Major Shadwell H. Clerke, 32°; John Hervey, 30°, Past M.W.S.; George Kenning, 30°, First Gen.; H. Dubosc, 30°; J. Read, 30°, G. Org.; H. C. Levander, 18°; J. T. Moss, 18°; J. W. Barrett, 18°; T. B. Yeoman, 18°; C. Hammerton, 18°; E. Stanton Jones, 18°; P. J. Marin, 18°; S. Leith Tomkins, 18°; W. R. Woodman, M.D., 18°; T. Lewis Fox, 18°; T. Cubitt, 18°. The ceremony of perfecting Bro. Edwin Sillifant, P.M. 217, Prov. G.D. Middlesex, was ably performed by Ill. Bro. Hervey, assisted by Bro. Pullen, and Bro. Read as Organist, the other officers also sustaining their various parts. The M.W.S.-elect, Colonel Burdett, being in France, was unable to attend for installation—but having authorised the appointment of officers they were named accordingly—Bro. Kenning, being H.P., and Bros. Levander and Fox, Gens. Votes of thanks were then passed to the distinguished brethren who honoured the chapter with their presence, and upon the conclusion of the business, the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Caledonian Hotel, Adelphi, where they spent a pleasant evening.

ROSE CROIX.

CANUTE CHAPTER, SOUTHAMPTON.

A highly successful meeting of this newly established chapter was held on Monday, the 25th November, at the Masonic Hall, Bugle Street. The brethren present were Ill. Bros. W. Hickman, 30° M.W.S.; J. E. Le Fenore; J. N. Pocock; G. Harpe; R. Welch; H. W. Ball; J. R. Stebbing; R. Sharpe. Visiting brethren, G. Langley, 18°, P.M.W.S., Royal Naval Chapter; P. H. Newnham, 30°, P.M.W.S., Vigne chapter. The chapter having been opened in ancient and solemn form, the M.W.S. requested Ill. Bro. Rev. P. H. Newnham, 30°, to assume the chair, in order to conduct the ceremonies of the evening. Bros. T. P. Payne, P.M. 130, P.P.G.R. Hants, and R. S. Pearce, P.M., 394, P.P.G.R. Hants, were then balloted for as candidate for perfection; and having been unanimously accepted, and having duly received the Intermediate Degrees, were admitted to the solemn rites of perfection; the acting M.W.S. also discharging the duties of H.P. Ill. Bro. Hickman, on resuming the chair after the ceremonies, proposed a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Newnham for his kindness in travelling some distance in order to assist him in the duties of the evening. The Rev. Bro. in acknowledging the compliment, took occasion to make a few observations upon the genuineness and antiquity of the Rose Croix Degree; and argued that if, as he believed, modern Freemasonry was an attempt to collect together all the ancient religious symbols under which all ancient nations expressed their faith in the one God; then Craft Masonry was imperfect without the Rose Croix, and other Cross degrees, to supplement its symbolism; not merely because the faith of the Cross was an integral portion of the religious belief of the world, but rather, from a purely Masonic point of view, because the Cross was essentially a Masonic symbol, and was used as a religious emblem hundreds, or even thousands of years, before Christianity existed. Bro. J. R. Stebbing begged to thank the Rev. Bro. for the interesting remarks which he had made, and expressed himself entirely prepared to yield his general assent to the truth of the statements brought forward. Four brethren were then balloted for, and accepted, as joining members; the third point was given, and the chapter closed at 7. 30 p.m. The brethren afterwards dined together, and after a pleasant conversation, separated at an early hour, apparently much impressed and delighted with the working of the degree, and determined that the Canute Chapter shall be "second to none" in the South of England.

KNIGHT TEMPLARISM.

GLASGOW.—The St. Mungo Encampment met on the 6th inst., in the St. Mark's Masonic Hall, Robert Bell, Most Noble Commander, presiding, assisted by T. Clanachan, P.C.; G. W. Wheeler, Recorder, Acting Prelate; J. Balfour; W. N. Nolan, 1st A. de C.; T. Perkins, 2nd A. de C.; J. Dindabor, Marshal; A. Mc Taggart and B. Adams, 1st and 2nd Capt. of the Line. Captain D. McKenzie, who was about to proceed to South America, and Comp. T. Potter having been unanimously appointed by the Knights present, were created Knights of the Temple in due form. At the special request of the newly created Knight, McKenzie, the Sir Knights adjourned to Comp. McKenzie's at the Athol Hotel, to an excellent repast, after the cloth was cleared the usual Knight Templar toasts were done full justice too, and the company separated, wishing a successful voyage to Captain Sir Knight McKenzie.

VALUABLE PRESENTATION TO A WORTHY BROTHER.

For a period of nearly six years, Bro. Daniel Saunders has occupied the post of Manager of the New Star Music Hall, Liverpool, and by his energy, zeal, tact, and courtesy, he has not only raised it to be one of the best—if not the very best—places of entertainment of the kind in the provinces, but he has also made it one of the most prosperous and popular. Wisely making good music the strong point in his programmes—operatic selections, with talented prima donnas invariably occupying a chief place. Bro. Saunders has done that which very few Provincial Managers have unwisely neglected, and therefore the "Star" in Williamson-square, occupies a very high reputation for the substantial character of its entertainments. Moreover, Bro. Saunders has earned an excellent name for his professional integrity, and by his suavity and kindness of disposition he has secured the warmest friendship of an extensive circle. As an evidence of the estimation in which he is held, his friends crowded the New Star Music Hall to its utmost capacity on Thursday evening, the 27th, on the occasion of his Sixth Annual Benefit. Doubled and trebled prices of admission did not deter one of the largest audiences ever present in the hall, from honour of Bro. Saunders on the occasion, and the proceedings were invested with more than ordinary interest, by the fact that his friends availed themselves of the opportunity of presenting Bro. and Mrs. Saunders with a very handsome and valuable testimonial, to prove the reality of the esteem in which he is held by both private and professional friends. The presentation to the Manager consisted of a solid silver tea and coffee service, valued at 140 guineas, and an illuminated address; while Mrs. Saunders received a very handsome gold necklet, with pendant and locket, set in diamonds, turquoises and pearls, which will be supplemented in the course of a few days by splendid earrings en suite. The massive solid tea and coffee service is designed in the Grecian style of art, the outline being excessively classical and ornamented with bas reliefs repoussé in frosted silver from original frescoes discovered at Pompeii, representing leopards and cupids entwined with foliage, treated in a conventional manner. It is in all respects a beautiful and chaste specimen of silversmith work. The address was as follows:— "This address, together with a solid silver tea and coffee service valued at 140 guineas is presented to Daniel Saunders, manager of the New Star Music Hall, by a few of his private and professional friends, in recognition of his invariable courtesy, superior business talents, professional integrity, Masonic worth, and fine spirit of charity which he has shown so frequently in connection with local benevolent institutions for the last 20 years, and especially during his six years' management of the above-named establishment. (Signed) Bro. J. R. Goepel, chairman; Bro. A. Collins, vice-chairman; Bro. J. Busfield, treasurer; and J. Golding, secretary." The illuminated address was executed by Mr. J. O. Marples, of the Liverpool and London Chambers, Dale-street, Liverpool, and deserves a first place as a genuine work of art. The illuminations are in strict harmony with the spirit of the address, while the pictorial illustrations, symbolical of pastoral and lyric music, charity, the Masonic lyre, &c., are exquisitely executed, the colouring being exceedingly artistic. The presentation of the testimonial was made on the stage by Bro. J. R. Goepel, chairman of the committee, who referred in eulogistic terms to the high character for courtesy, charity, and good business talent which Bro. Saunders had so long possessed, concluding by a reference to the excellent qualities, possessed by Mrs. Saunders. In acknowledging the testimonial, Bro. Saunders expressed his heartfelt thanks, and assured the audience that the presentation of that evening would still further incite him to make the "Star" one of the best Music Halls in the kingdom. The programme provided for the occasion was of the most attractive character, the specially engaged artists being M. Prevost (whose cornet playing was artistic and finished), Jolly Nash, Dan Lowrey, Mackney, Mrs. Phillips, and Mark Alberts, all of whom were received with enthusiastic applause. A selection from "Maria Stuart" was the chief musical feature, with Madame Tonnelier as the prima donna; and the present strong "Star" company also contributed a varied and interesting selection of amusements. An excellent champagne supper was provided on the establishment by Bro. R. Abrahams, Mount-pleasant, for the committee and their friends.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FOR AGED FREEMASONS.

At a meeting held on Wednesday the 11th, Bro. Terry was selected Secretary in the place of Bro. Farnfield, resigned. Bro. Lane was also elected collector in the place of Bro. Terry, resigned.

CONSECRATION OF A KNIGHT
TEMPLARS ENCAMPMENT AT LIVERPOOL.

The progress of Masonic and kindred Orders within the province of West Lancashire, during the past two or three years, has been both marked and encouraging. The Consecration of several new Lodges, two Red Cross Conclaves, more than one Chapter, &c., giving evidence of this interesting progress. The solemn and imposing ceremonial of Consecration of the Alpass Encampment of the Royal, Religious, and Military Order of Knights Templars, which took place at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Wednesday, the 4th inst., attended as it was by an imposing muster of great K.T.'s, gave another proof of the vitality and enthusiasm cherished by those in West Lancashire, who are attached to the Craft and kindred Orders. The ceremony had been anticipated with considerable interest, and as the new Encampment was to bear the name of a brother who has done good service for years to the Craft as P.G. Sec.; the compliment of title was still further enhanced by a numerous attendance of those who also deserve "honourable mention in Masonry, Knight Templarism, &c. From the clat attending the initiatory ceremonial there is no doubt that the new Encampment will prove worthy of the name which it bears.

Amongst the Provincial Grand Officers and others present were Sir Knights A. H. Royds, V.E.P.G.C. for West Lancashire; W. M. Wright, D.P.G.C.; G. P. Brockbank, P.G. Chancellor; W. Ashworth, E.C. and Prov. G. First C.; A. C. Mott, G. St. B., and E.C. 36; T. Berry, P.E.C.P. Third G.S.B., and P.P.G. Captain; J. W. J. Fowler, P.G.S.C. and E.C. of William de la More Enc.; H. Bulley, P. First E. of Eng., and First P.G.C. of Cheshire; S. Morris, First S.B.; T. R. Williams, P.G. Hospitalier; W. Blain, W. of Regalia; W. H. Hopkins, P.G.D.C.; W. H. Prince, G. Ex.; R. H. Hutchinson, G.S.B.; E. Pierpoint, P.E.C., and P. Second G.C. of L.; R. C. Radcliffe, P.G. of L.; T. Beswick Royds, Prior; J. T. Tweedale, Sub-Prior; W. A. Clayton, Jacques de Molay Enc.; G. Turner, E.C.-Elect, William de la More Enc.; S. Spratley, 2nd H., Jacques de Molay Enc.; W. H. Grimmer, Almoner, do.; J. M. Johnson, Second C. do.; C. H. Hill, do.; W. Crankshaw, do.; J. T. Hall, P.G.C., William de la More Enc.; R. Young, Prelate, do.; J. C. Lunt, J. Procter, Hugh de Paynes, Enc.; W. C. Connell, No. 37 (I.C.); J. K. Smith, A., William de la More Enc.; J. Wood, do.; G. de la Perelle, Jacques de Molay; J. Maybrick, do.; C. Leedham, St. John of Jerusalem; G. Hutchin, S.C.

The Sir Knts. assembled in the Conclave Chambers, at 3 o'clock, and received the P.G.C., his D.P.G.C. and the other Prov. Grand Officers under the Arch of Steel. The P.G.C. ascended the throne, and shortly addressed the Sir Knights on the nature of their auspicious and interesting gathering. The D.P.G.C. then took his place on the throne, and called upon the members of the new Encampment to approve of the selection of E.C. This call having been responded to, he proceeded to constitute the encampment. The P.G.C. went round the conclave with corn, wine, and oil, and when the consecration ceremony had concluded all Sir Knights below the rank of E.C. and P.E.C. were requested to retire. Sir Knt. H. S. Alpass, First G. St. B., and P.P.G. Supt. (after whom the new Encampment is named) was then duly presented by Sir Knights Mott and Balley, and installed E.C. by the P.D.G.C., and upon the general body of Sir Knights being readmitted they saluted their newly enthroned chief according to ancient form. The E.C. then appointed the following as his staff of officers:—Sir Knights J. E. Jackson, Prelate; T. Clark, First C.; W. Doyle, Second C. and Treasurer; M. Mawson, Reg.; J. Lloyd, Expert; J. T. Parkinson, C. of L.; while Sir Knight P. Ball was unanimously elected Equerry. Previous to the solemn close of the conclave, Bros. Shakespeare, Bullen, F. Jeffery, Shortis, W. Crane, Dobson, and Kenyon were duly proposed for exaltation.

It may be interesting to know that the petitioners for the new Encampment were Sir Knights Alpass, Berry, Clark, Parkinson, Lloyd, Doyle, and Jackson. The V.E.P.G.C., Sir Knight A. H. Royds presented a very handsomely bound set of books for the use of the Encampment, consisting of By-laws, Treasurer's, Registrar's, Declaration, Almoner's, Subscribing Members', Prelate's and Equerry's books; and in making the presentation Sir Knt. Royds expressed his warmest desire for the prosperity of the new Encampment. Sir Knight Doyle, Second C., also presented a very beautiful Cup, in case, for the use of the conclave, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented to the Alpass Encampment of Knights Templars, by W. Doyle, on the day of the Consecration, 4th Dec. 1872.

The Sir Knts. afterwards adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, at the Adelphi Hotel.

Sir Knight Alpass, E.C. presided, and he was supported by nearly all the Illustrious Knights who had assisted at the ceremonial of the afternoon. After full justice had been done to the splendid banquet, provided by Mr. Ludlow, Manager of the Hotel, the E.C. gave in short and apposite terms the toasts of "The Queen," "The Prince and Princess of Wales," and "The Grand Conclave," the last named being replied to by Sir Knight T. Beswicke Royds, Jun., 1st Captain. "The V.E.P.G.C., and P.G. Officers" was also given by the E.C., and E. Sir Knight Royds, in responding, expressed the great pleasure he had had in being present at the consecration of the new Encampment, to which he desired the greatest prosperity and harmony. He also paid a high compliment to Sir Knight Wright, D.P.C., to whose assistance in connection with the ceremony he felt himself greatly indebted. He also referred in highly eulogistic terms to the efficient manner in which the P.G. Reg. had fulfilled the duties of that office. "The E.C., Sir Knight Alpass," was given by E. Sir Knight Royds, P.G.C., and in replying to the toast Sir Knight Alpass, said, he did so with more than ordinary diffidence and difficulty, because the fact of that Encampment being named after him, made him somewhat shy in speaking of it. The promoters of the conclave, however, had insisted upon it being so named, and this having been done, he assured the Sir Knights that the Encampment would have all the greater claim upon his time and attention as long as he lived—in fact, would demand the whole of his sympathy and support. The E.C. then gave the toast of "The Officers of the Encampment," and referred with much satisfaction to the energy which had been displayed by the promoters of the Encampment. Sir Knights Clark, Doyle, Jackson, Mawson, Parkinson, and Lloyd responded, and after the usual closing sentiment had been given the pleasant proceedings terminated.

Original Correspondence.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

2, LEIGH TERRACE, ANFIELD,
Liverpool, 11th Dec., 1872.

SIR AND BROTHER,—I am pleased to find in your publication of Saturday last, a statement, that the money collected some time ago for the "Masonic Life Boat Fund" has at last been appropriated to the purpose for which it was so generously given. Having interested myself in the matter at the time, by collecting, and remitting to the Trustees £24 3s., viz.: £7 10s. on the 5th April; £5 15s., 29th April, 1869; and £10 18s. on the 10th April, 1870. Receipts for which I am in possession of, and acknowledgements with list of subscribers inserted in the Freemasons' Magazine, April 10th, and 1st May, 1869, and 16th April, 1870.

I shall feel obliged by your inserting the above in the next issue of the Freemason, in order that the subscribers may be relieved from further anxiety.

I am, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

JESSE BANNING, P.M., 822.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The cutting from our local paper containing the history of the Dimsdale family and the notice of the death of the Hon. Baron Dimsdale, was most accurately reprinted in the Freemason, but as you omitted to print the note I sent with it, the history fails to be so interesting to the fraternity as it might have been. The late Baron was not a Freemason, but the present Baron is and was initiated by me in the Hertford Lodge last year. I may add that on the same occasion Bro. Abel Smith, M.P. and Bro. the Rev. Lewis Deedes (now Prov. Grand Chaplain for Herts), were initiated, and the Hertford Lodge and the Craft generally have just reason to be proud of those three gentlemen as Masons.

Fraternally yours,

P.M. HERTFORD LODGE.

Saturday, Dec. 7th, 1872.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

SIR,—I have just picked up an old engraving in good condition, representing a tall elderly person with grey hair, in a standing position, dressed in a frock coat, over which is a long cloak with large cape and fur collar, fastened with a thistle, suspended by a long chain from the shoulders over these is a square and compass with the letter G in the centre. Under the print is the following inscription of which I send an exact copy—

W. Mathews, Scupt. CHRISTOPHORUS LEE SUGG, Professor of Internal Elocution.

This Print is (by permission) dedicated to His Grace the Most Noble George Duke of Marlborough, &c.

By His Grace's most grateful and most humble servant,

THE PROFESSOR, C.L.S.

Would any of your readers be good enough to inform me, through the medium of your next issue, what history (if any) is attached thereto. By so doing they would greatly oblige

Yours fraternally,

C. DUFFELL FAULKNER,

P. Prov. G.D., Oxon; P.M. 1036, Bowyers.
Hon. Mem. de la Loge Esperance et Cordialeté a l'ir. de Lausanne, Suisse.

Deddington, Oxon,

St. Andrew's Day, 1872.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

The letter which we published from a "Past Master" brings to the surface a very important point in connection with Scottish, and also particularly with English, Freemasonry. To many persons the mysteries of the craft are but another means for occasional opportunities of extra self-indulgence. There is, indeed, a too common heresy abroad that Freemasonry has no other meaning than the inauguration of fanciful shows and secret festivities, the true nature of which are hidden under the pretence of a wide-spread spirit of benevolence. The opinions of people who are not Masons have, naturally and very properly, not the slightest influence with those who, besides being members of the Mystic Brotherhood, hold—some from personal experience, others from convictions based upon well and easily-ascertained facts—that the vulgar belief is very far from being well founded. Writing simply as journalists, and without any pretence to previous or future initiation in Masonic secrets, we believe that a society which has so long existed with the special object of spreading abroad a love of philanthropy and a desire to benefit unfortunate, though well deserving members, of society cannot but have founded an immense claim on the respect of the world in these particulars. We may perhaps put aside remarkable anecdotes, the staple commodity of which consists in the manner in which on the battle-field, and in other scarcely less probable circumstances, the mere revelation of brotherhood has unnerved the arm of the assailant, and, as a consequence, caused the life of a gallant soldier to be spared even in extremis. We do not deny the truth of these evidences in behalf of the all pervading influence of Freemasonry. But without rejecting these, we believe that the simple annals of every day life will suffice to prove, if proof were necessary, that Freemasonry is a vast and beneficent power in the community.

That being so, we regret to find that in Scotland, at least, the Grand Lodge, and, as such, the Grand Centre or very Mecca, of Freemasonry, is likely to lose its hold upon the affections and loyal feelings of the "daughter lodges." That the Grand Lodge is, and has for some time been, deeply, if not hopelessly, in debt, appears to be undeniable. Indeed, in so far as the provincial lodges are concerned, the fact has made itself painfully and materially apparent. We have not the slightest desire to accuse "Grand Lodge"—(we understand that in Masonic parlance the definite article is seldom, if ever, used)—of over-indulgence in social or ceremonial observances. We quite admit that a vast and powerful society such as that of Freemasonry must have certain well defined centres, from which not only the authority but the dignity of the Craft emanates. We do not in any sense desire to accuse "Grand Lodge" of neglecting the interests of Freemasonry as an above all charitable institution, in favour of mere display and extravagance. On the contrary, we believe that, especially under the régime of the present noble Grand Master, the real objects of Masonry are being steadily kept before the brotherhood, even perhaps to a greater extent than has hitherto been the case. But the question for immediate consideration, and that which is raised by the letter of a "Past Master," is whether the obligations of "Grand Lodge," for whatever purpose they may have been incurred, form necessarily a legacy of debt to be discharged by the participation of every Freemason throughout Scotland? No doubt the problem for the decision of Lord Rossllyn and his advisers was a difficult one. It is right to be just before you are generous, and although charity and philanthropy are virtues eminently characteristic of Freemasonry, it was clear that before they could be indulged in with a clear conscience, the weight of debt must be got rid off. We believe that the amount of debt standing for clearance is something like £13,000, which, in one shape or another, falls to be liquidated by 30,000 Scotch Freemasons. Now, if the payment of debts incurred by "Grand Lodge," for the incurrence of which, be it observed, provincial masons are in nowise responsible, being, indeed, for the most part entirely ignorant of the fact that they are responsible for any debts but their own, were the only impost placed upon individual Freemasons throughout Scotland, we should have little or nothing to say. But this is not the case, as appears from the following sentence quoted from a Past Master's letter:—"At the last quarterly communication of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, it was enacted that the registration and diploma of entrants shall be 10s. 6d. each, instead of 8s. as hitherto; also that on the 24th of June annually the contribution of one pound sterling must be remitted in addition to the fee of 5s. for the annual certificate. This has been done with a view to the extinction of the debt of the Grand Lodge and the application of its surplus revenues to charitable purposes." Now, we take leave to say that such an impost as this—every penny of which must, in one shape or another, come out of the pockets of individual masons, many of whom are poor, hardworking men—colliers, weavers, artisans, and so on—must tend not only to diminish the influence of "Grand Lodge," but of Freemasonry generally. As a matter of fact, in half the villages of Scotland, especially those remote from the capital, "Grand Lodge," is but a myth, or, if something more, then another name for a gigantic debt which poor Freemasons, who profit nothing from processions and banquets, are expected to pay. The first idea of "Grand Lodge" which presents itself to the neophyte is that she is a beneficent mother; the second, that instead of, like the pelican, wounding her own breast to sustain her young, she freely bleeds her progeny in order to clear herself of her pecuniary difficulties.

Provincial lodges are asking very freely—and it is as well that the truth should be known—where does the money which we annually send to Edinburgh go to? We agree with our correspondent, "A Past Master," in holding that whatever work has to be done by "Grand Lodge" in a purely business direction, should be well and duly paid for. But we cannot help thinking, without the least reflecting on last night's proceedings, that if "Grand Lodge" has lived beyond its income in times past, a circumstance which, if true, clearly shows that the true and pious objects of Freemasonry have been strangely neglected, it is rather hard that innocent working men throughout Scotland should be expected to pay the expense of feasts and ceremonies in which they have never participated except in the most vaguely vicarious manner. Considering that there are some 30,000 Masons throughout the length and breadth of Scotland, all paying not only their own lodge fees but those of "Grand Lodge" into the bargain, it is evident that the latter must be a corporation which may fairly be called rich. It is certainly high time that some distinction should be drawn between expenses in the benefits arising from which all Freemasons participate and those which are purely personal to the holders of office in Grand Lodge. That Freemasonry in Scotland should not suffer in comparison with the Craft in England or elsewhere, in the matter of suitable accommodation, et cetera, we cordially admit. But even on this point "A Past Master's" letter affords little satisfaction. He says—"The foundation-stone of the Masonic Hall was laid on the 24th of June 1858, and at what cost the structure was raised, or what may be the present amount of debt upon the property, are matters on which I regret to find 'the Grand Lodge of Scotland's reporter, April, 1872,' is singularly silent." Thus at last the real question presents itself, and will not suffer evadement. The debt exists—who is to pay it? We answer without scruple, those persons, or their immediate representatives, who incurred it. The idea of spreading the debt over a wide community, and thus making it appear smaller than it really is, was an ingenious one, but it has failed to deceive the vast majority of workingmen Masons throughout the country. Retrenchment may no doubt do much, but if Grand Lodge is to start with a clean slate, it can only be by the richer members of the Craft paying off the debt, assisted by such contributions as provincial lodges may be in a position voluntarily to subscribe without unduly visiting the sins of unknown fathers upon equally unacknowledged children. We speak in the interests of Freemasonry itself, and we trust that under the truly wise rule of the present Grand Master, other means of extinguishing Grand Lodge's debt may be devised than that which is at present pressing so unfairly upon Freemasons in every corner of Scotland.—Edinburgh Courant.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.—Thistle and Rose, No. 73.—This old and flourishing lodge held their annual meeting on Tuesday last; the chair being occupied by G. McDonald, R.W.M., who proceeded to initiate, in his usual careful manner, three candidates, Messrs. James McCulloch, Alex. Cammen and Thomas Yule. The election then took place, when the following brethren were unanimously chosen to fill the respective offices:—Bro. George McDonald, R.W.M.; W. Donaldson, S.W.; A. McLeod, J.W.; W. Walton, Treas.; J. Ambridge, Sec.; J. Kay, S.D.; J. Richardson, J.D.; S. Young, Chaplain; W. Cullen, S.S.; J. Hamblug, J.S.; J. Amsden, Jeweller; J. McGregor, Standard-Bearer; T. Murray, E.G.; John Kay, Tyler. The W.M. then appointed Bro. McHie as D.M., and Bro. Palantine as S.M., the lodge being resumed in the second degree, Bro. Halket, P.M. of 102, took the chair as Installing Master, when Bro. Jordan, P.M. of 73, presented the re-elected Master for obligation, thereafter a board of Installed Masters was formed, and afterward the Master was regularly proclaimed in the East, West and South. The ceremonies were very impressively rendered by Bro. Halket, to whom great praise is due for his careful rendering of the ceremony; this being the first time that the chair degree has been given in the lodge by the authority of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, the ceremony being adopted after a conference with the Grand Lodges of England and Ireland. The newly-installed Master thanked the brethren for having thus for the third time placed him in that chair, and this time with reverend solemnity. A hearty vote of thanks to the Installing Master concluded the business.

DUNBLANE.—On Friday evening a meeting of lodge No. 9, St. John's, was held in the Stirling Arms Hotel, here. There was a very large attendance of brethren from Bridge of Allan, which is in this district. The business consisted principally in affiliating and initiating members, and in nominating a Deputy Master for the ensuing year—Gilbert Farie, Chemist, Bridge of Allan, being re-elected. This lodge is in a very prosperous condition at present, having received a large accession to its roll of members during the past year.

LAUDER.—The centenary of the lodge of Freemasons at Lauder was celebrated on Friday last, by a large assemblage of members of the craft from various districts. The lodge was opened in due form in the ball-room of the Black Bull Hotel; and after the transaction of business, a procession was formed, which proceeded through the town, and passed Thirlstane Castle. In the evening, a banquet was held in the Volunteers' Hall, at which about 150 of the brethren dined together. Bro. Hinks, of the Black Bull Hotel, was the purveyor. The banquet was presided over by the acting G.M.M. of Scotland, Bro. Officer, who was supported by his Grand Office-bearers, and several influential craftsmen. After the banquet a ball took place, which was numerously attended. The music was furnished by the band of the volunteer corps.

KESWICK.—Bective Lodge, No. 147.—A meeting of the above lodge was held on the 9th inst., at the Keswick Hotel. Bro. George Hayward of the Cumberland Lodge, No. 60, P.M.L.P.G.I.C., taking the chair in the absence of the W.M., supported by Bro. Hinks, S.W.; Bro. Wood, J.W., and other officers of the Bective Lodge. Bro. Robert Bailey of the Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002, was ballotted for and accepted as a candidate for advancement. Bros. T. F. Taylor (Skiddaw Lodge, 1002), John Pearson (Skiddaw Lodge, 1002), Frederic Gadsby (Pomfret Lodge, 360), and R. Bailey were then regularly advanced to the degree of Mark Master. Bro. Wood proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Hayward, for the very able and impressive manner in which he performed the ceremony of advancement. Bro. Hinks seconded the proposition. Bro. Hayward briefly responded; and the newly advanced brethren wishing to return to their homes by the evening train, the lodge was closed at an early hour.

A FREEMASON'S ADVENTURE ABROAD.

FREEMASONRY has, we are glad to say, been steadily advancing in the estimation of the world, notwithstanding the opposition it has from time to time received from those unacquainted with its principles and beauties. There cannot be the slightest doubt that as the masses become more enlightened, the prejudices against the art will be gradually removed and fully appreciated. The benefits the Order has conferred upon mankind in general, no one, unless governed by a cynical mind, can call in question. Its moral doctrines and charitable tendencies have, times out of number, been amply illustrated in the innumerable deeds of its members in all parts of the globe. The area of its operations is indeed great, and is unequalled by that of any other institution. Freemasonry, it must be allowed, has considerably modified the sufferings of poor humanity, succoured the disabled and unfortunate, and given other substantial proofs of its goodness. Whether in the almost impenetrable depths of an Australian bush, the deep jungles of an Indian forest, upon the arid plains of the desert, in the wilds of South America, in the snowy tracts of Siberia, or, in fact, in any remote part of the earth, Freemasonry has made itself known, and exercised its mystical and kindly influences. It would be a task pleasing to the writer to prepare from authoritative sources an account of a few of the many interesting incidents associated with the Masonic profession, and would be a graceful tribute to an art with which royalty has not thought it infra dig. to identify itself. The following will, we think, be read with interest by the fraternity at large, and by the friends and acquaintances of the unfortunate adventurer:—Bro. A. F. Forrest, who is a member of the Vitruvian Lodge, No. 87, in travelling recently through France and Spain met with a serious mishap, which nearly involved the loss of his life. It appears that our brother was compelled by professional engagements to undertake a journey with his two sons in a diligence from Gerona to Pampeluna in Spain, between which places many lawless characters are pursuing with impunity their nefarious practices upon travellers and others. Having passed the second station on the road from Gerona the diligence was stopped by an armed band of Chulists, and the passengers plundered of everything they possessed. The remonstrances of the travellers were in vain, and only aggravated the case, for the ruffians in the most cowardly manner threatened them with violence if they did not quietly submit to the indignities to which they were subjected. Bro. Forrest endeavoured to conceal a large amount of money with which he had provided himself for personal expenses during his tour, but was detected in his design, for one rascal seized the property instantly and conveyed it to his own pocket. He pleaded hard for a part of the sum to assist him on his way, but to no purpose, for the plunderers were too eager to secure every article they could discover. Deeming silence to be the most prudent course to adopt in getting out of the dilemma he ceased to parley any further with the insolent robbers. Bro. Forrest did not estimate the great danger he was in, for one of the band suddenly taking hold of the barrel of a gun aimed a terrific blow at our brother's head. The butt end struck Bro. Forrest upon his forehead cutting a frightful wound and felling him to the ground. He was thereby rendered insensible for a time. The ruffian offered no further violence and soon after retired with his comrades. Bro. Forrest managed to reach Pampeluna, and found himself in a very unenviable position—with no money or friends except his family. Pained by the wound, and perplexed by events he scarcely knew how to surmount the difficulty that had so unexpectedly overtaken him. Having been informed of the benevolent character of the mayor of the town, he determined to make application to him for advice and assistance. He went. Judge the thrill of joy he experienced upon discovering that this official belonged to the "mystic tie." The result was that his newly-found brother behaved in the most handsome manner possible by rendering him such pecuniary aid as enabled him to discharge a greater part of the expenses incurred by his return to England, besides giving him words of good counsel. Our brother during his temporary stay in the town, was introduced to several members belonging to the lodge of which the mayor is a member. The name of the lodge is

Les Amis de la Parfait Union. His reception was cordial in the extreme, and will never, so he informed us, be effaced from the tablet of his memory. Well done! good Mayor! we say. Your kindness has already been communicated to the lodge to which Bro. Forrest belongs, and is appreciated as it deserves to be by every member. Our brother on his way to England secured an audience with Lord Lyons, the English consul in Paris, and was treated by that functionary with great courtesy. Bro. Forrest having narrated his misfortunes, received very material assistance in a financial point of view from his lordship. Such is a Englishman's Masonic experience abroad.—Norwich Argus, Dec. 7, 1872.

P o e t r y .

LINES

Presented to the Right Worshipful District Grand Master, BRO. ROBERT SCOTT, on the eve of his departure from the Island of Trinidad for Europe, 8th November, 1872, by BRO. JAMES FRASER.

You're leaving us now, Right Worshipful Sir,
To some may appear at first a disaster;
But reflection and patience must show you intend
To act for your Craft, as a brother and friend.

Your mission at home (at least so we judge)
Will be an appeal to England's Grand Lodge;
For assistance to erect our Temple again,
On a site most convenient, within Port of Spain.

Your Brothers of Scotia all wish you God's speed—

Who are ruled by Brothers John Tench and James Reid—
And unattached brothers too, wish you success;
That your zeal in our cause may kind Providence bless.

To him who you leave here, in charge of your flock,
The brethren will stand by him firm as a rock;
And many a sheep, which has strayed from the fold,
In returning amongst us in lodge you will behold.

Circumstances, o'er which I could have no control,

Have disturbed of late my true Masonic soul;
But let that descend to the Capulet's tomb:
That utter forgetfulness may be its doom.

May the Great Architect take you under His care,
That you meet naught but friends on the Level or Square;

May our noble Grand Master be pleased with his choice;

That your Trinidad brothers in their hearts may rejoice.

Right Worshipful Master, I bid you adieu;

Final, perhaps, for my days are but few:

I soon may be where the wicked from troubling cease,

And where weary souls there may rest in peace.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

United Orders of the Temple and Hospital	811
Grand Priory of Malta	813
Grand Mark Lodge	813
CORRESPONDENCE:—
Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution	814
Bro. Morton Edwards and Grand Mark Lodge ...	814
Surrey Masonic Hall	814
Bro. Stebbing's Proposition	814
Masonic Tidings	814
Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution	815
Masonic Notes and Queries	815
A Masonic Song	815
Reviews	815
Live Masons	816
CRAFT MASONRY:—
Metropolitan	817
Provincial	817
MARK MASONRY:
Metropolitan	819
ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE:
Provincial	819
Freemasonry at Ballarat	819
Masonic Meetings for next week	820
Advertisements.....	809, 810, 821, 822, 823, 824

UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.
GRAND CONCLAVE.

On Friday, the 13th inst., the usual December meeting of Grand Conclave was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, when the following Sir Knights were present:—The V.H. and E. Deputy Grand Master Sir Knt. the Rev. J. Huyshe on the throne; the V.E.P.G. Commanders of Cornwall (Lord Eliot), Stafford and Warwick (J. Lloyd Foster), Dorsetshire (C. J. Vigne), Suffolk and Cambridge (Capt. Phillips), Kent (Major-General Clerk), and China (S. Rawson). The following Grand Officers, on the muster-roll being called, answered to their names:—Sir Knts. the Earl of Limerick, Grand Prior; Sir Patrick Colquhoun, Q.C., LL.D., Grand Chancellor; the Rev. E. Moore, Grand Prelate; C. A. N. B. Royds, 1st Grand Captain; W. Tinkler, Grand Vice-Chancellor; J. Lavender, Grand Registrar; C. Goolden, Grand Treasurer; Dr. Ramsay, Grand Constable; Hyde Pullen, Grand Superintendent of Works; J. Lambert Sim, Grand Director of Ceremonies; J. F. Starkey, Asst. G.D.C.; Emra Holmes, Grand Provost; G. Lambert, Grand Warden of Regalia; S. Rosenthal, 2nd Grand Expert; R. H. Hutchinson, 2nd Grand Standard Bearer; Dr. H. D. Moore, 3rd Grand Standard Bearer; A. C. Mott, 4th Grand Standard Bearer; W. R. Maby, 1st Grand Herald; J. R. Poulter, 2nd Grand Herald; and Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist. The following were also present:—Sir Knts. Rev. C. H. Spencer Stanhope, Past Grand Almoner; R. Spencer, P.G.B.B.; Capt. Whitbread, P.G. Herald; S. Jones, P.G.S.B.; J. E. D. Jameson, P.G.A.D.C.; Major Clerk, P.P.G. Commander, West Indies; R. J. Spiers, D.P.G.C., Oxford; C. Chandos Pole, P. 2nd Grand Captain; Capt. Barlow, P. 1st G.A.D.C.; J. Birchall, P. Grand Chamberlain; J. M. P. Montague, P. 1st G.B.; R. B. de Burgh, Grand Marshal (Ireland); R. Costa, P. 1st G. Capt.; W. E. Gumbleton, P.G. Constable; J. H. Younghusband, P.G. Constable; Capt. Phayre, P.G. Almoner; E. Hutton Gregory, P.G.A.D.C.; W. H. Prince, Past Grand Expert; M. D. Sim, P.G. 1st Capt. of Lines; the Honourable W. Warren Vernon, Rev. I. Downes Hawkesley, Gen. Munbee, and other Sir Knights.

The Knights having arranged themselves, and formed the Arch of Steel, the Acting Grand Master, preceded by the Grand Officers, then entered in procession, properly marshalled by the Grand Director of Ceremonies, in the usual order.

The acting Grand Master having taken his seat on the throne, opened the Grand Conclave in ample form.

The Grand Registrar called the muster roll.

The minutes of the last Grand Conclave were read and declared to be correctly recorded.

The following report of the Committee of Grand Conclave, printed copies of which were in the hands of the Grand Officers, was taken as read:—

Your Committee has the honour to report: That since the last meeting of Grand Conclave, four warrants for new Encampments, signed by yourself, have been duly passed under the Great Seal of the Order, viz:

The Worlebury Encampment of St. Dunstan, at Weston-super-Mare, in the Province of Somerset, dated the 17th May.

The Palestine Encampment, at Port Hope, Ontario, in the Dominion of Canada, dated the 31st May.

The Alpass Encampment, at Liverpool, in the Province of Lancashire, dated the 1st November, and

The Royal Mysore Excelsior Encampment, at Bangalore, in the Province of Madras, dated the 14th November.

And that the Royal Gloucester Encampment, at Southampton, has been revived.

In accordance with your commands, the Grand Chancellor, accompanied by the Grand Vice-Chancellor, proceeded to Stockton-on-Tees, on the 29th October last, for the purpose of consecrating the Mount Grace Encampment in the Masonic Hall, lately constructed there, installing the Eminent Commander, Sir Knight J. Trotter, and opening a Priory of Malta; all which having been done, with the assistance of the Knights of the Royal Kent Encampment of Newcastle, the Grand Chancellor informed the Knights that Northumberland and Durham would thenceforth form one Province, under the command of Sir Knight William Punshon, who was prevented by illness from attending to receive formal charge of the enlarged Province. Your Grand Chancellor has, therefore, on account of the great distance, been compelled to delegate his office in this respect to Past Eminent Commander C. J. Bannister, who has undertaken to perform this duty, on a fitting occasion, at Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

Certain differences having arisen in the Province of Bombay between the Provincial Grand Commander, G. S. Judge, and some of the Knights of that Province, five appeals have been lodged with the Grand Vice-Chancellor, but as they are so intimately connected as to be incapable of severance, and some of them are still incomplete, it has been found impossible to deal with them previous to the meeting of this Grand Conclave. Your Committee therefore recommends that the suspensions decreed by the Provincial Grand Commander be continued till the next Grand Conclave.

In conformity with the stipulations of the Tripartite Treaty of the 13th day of March, 1871, the Grand Chancellor, in the execution of his office, and at the instance of Bro. Savary, complained to the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of the conduct of Bro. Morton Edwards, a Junior Grand Deacon of that body, for that he had, at Cambridge, within the Province of Suffolk and Cambridge, pretended to admit by communication Bro. Savary, an undergraduate of that University, into the Order of the Temple, without warrant or authority, and had received from Bro. Savary a considerable sum of money for the same, he, Bro. Morton Edwards, not being recognized as a member of the Order. The Grand Lodge of Mark Masters thereupon suspended Bro. Morton Edwards, and no appeal was lodged against this judgment within the prescribed period.

The Statues of the Convent General, drawn up by the Commission under the Treaties of 1867 and 1869, between England, Scotland, and Ireland, have been ratified by the Grand Masters of England and Ireland. In effect these Statutes make no material alteration in the internal organization of the Order in the respective kingdoms, nor otherwise beyond the nomenclature, which has been taken from historical authority. Great advantages are anticipated from this federative combination. These Statutes which have already been circulated, are laid on the table of Grand Conclave, for the information of that body. Motions for giving effect to the various provisions thereof will be made.

In announcing the fact of the agreement between England and Ireland, it is with deep regret that your Committee makes known the position assumed by the Order in Scotland, which has not only neglected to take part in the consultations provided to be held by their own solemn act, but refuses to accept the decision come to by their colleagues.

On the other hand, it is with feelings of the greatest satisfaction that your Committee announces the desire of the Grand Encampment of the United States to enter into negotiations for a Treaty of Amity and Alliance with our Branch of the Order; and has appointed, as its Plenipotentiaries, Sir William Sewall Gardner, Past Grand Master, Sir John W. Simons, and Sir George S. Blackie; one of whom (Sir G. S. Blackie) visited London in the autumn, during the recess, with his credentials. It will be therefore necessary to meet this courteous advance by the appointment of plenipotentiaries on the part of the Order on this side of the Atlantic. Your Committee cannot doubt, by the friendly animus evinced by our Transatlantic brethren generally, and more especially by the compliment paid to yourself in inviting you to attend the meeting of their triennial Grand Encampment in September, 1871, and, still further, by the unanimous vote of that body, by which you were made an honorary member of the Grand Encampment of the United States, with the rank and authority of a Past Grand Master, that a Convention of the Order proposed will lead to the most important and beneficial results to the Order of the Temple in whatsoever part of the globe it may exist.

Your Committee recommends that an address of condolence to His Majesty the King of Sweden, now Grand Master of the Temple in that country, on the death of his brother, the late King, be signed by yourself, on behalf of the Order, and forwarded through the regular official channel to His Majesty.

Your commands for general mourning in the Order for his late Majesty the King, Grand Master of Sweden, have been duly carried into effect by the Grand Director of Ceremonies.

The Judicial Council, under the Tripartite Treaty, held its first meeting on the 4th inst., for the purpose of regulating its procedure, and other matters.

The Committee on Grand Officers, re-appointed by Grand Conclave in May last, suspends its report pending action on the new Statutes of the Convent-General.

With a view to affording those members of the Order who are unable to attend Grand Conclave earliest authentic information of the proceedings of the meetings, your committee has authorised the Grand Chancellor to issue, by anticipation of the "Calendar," through the Eminent Commanders of each encampment, for the use of the members of right entitled to attend and vote, a procès of those proceedings, as soon as practicable after the meeting.

The Committee, having decided the question referred to that body at last Grand Conclave as to the investment of the Benevolent Fund, in some safe interest-bearing securities, preferred Indian Guaranteed Railway Stock as the most advantageous, and directed the Grand Treasurer to invest £300 on the security of shares or debentures of any East Indian Railway Company paying a dividend of 5 per cent., or interest of the like amount guaranteed by the Anglo-Indian Government, in the names of himself, of the Grand Chancellor, and the Grand Vice-Chancellor. The Grand Treasurer, in exercise of this discretion, purchased £350 Guaranteed Five per Cent. Stock in the Oude and Rohilcund Railway Company, but in so doing necessarily exceeded his mandate by £3 18s. 11d., and therefore seeks the indemnity of Grand Conclave. The Grand Treasurer, considering the Banker's balance unnecessarily large, purchased at the same time, on account of the General Fund, £450 Guaranteed Five per Cent. Stock in the Bombay, Baroda, and Central Indian Railway Company. The reserve formerly possessed by Grand Conclave in Exchequer Bills had gradually melted away, until its funds were again placed on a solvent basis by the vote of Grand Conclave in May, 1870. Your Committee not only approves of the conduct of the Grand Treasurer, but congratulates Grand Conclave on the re-habilitation of its financial position—at one period so severely threatened—and recommends that the indemnity sought be granted to the Grand Treasurer. Resolutions for carrying into effect the recommendations of this Report will be submitted to Grand Conclave.

The Grand Treasurer reports that the Fund standing to the credit of the Grand Almoner amounts to—

Invested	£350	0	0
The General Fund of Grand Conclave to—
Invested	£450	0	0
At Banker's ...	249	3	3
		699	3 3
		£1,049	3 3

The Acting Grand Master read with deep feeling a letter from Sir Knt. William Stuart, Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master, resigning his office, and recommending the new Statutes for the approval of Grand Conclave, and spoke with some emotion on the subject of the retirement of their venerable chief. Sir Knt. General Clerk moved that the letter be entered on the minutes, which was seconded by Sir Knt. C. J. Vigne, and carried. An address from Grand Conclave to Sir Knt. Stuart, on his retirement, was read by the Grand Chancellor, approved by Grand Conclave, and ordered to be inscribed on vellum. Sir Knt. Chandos Pole moved, and Sir Knt. Gumbleton seconded the motion, that the Report of the Committee be received and entered on the minutes, which was carried.

Sir Knt. Chandos Pole and Sir Knt. Young-husband seconded the motion that the Report be adopted.

Sir Knt. General Clerk rose with regret to oppose the motion, and to move an amendment to the effect that the new Statutes of the Convent General should be referred back to the Commissioners. He said that they could not be accepted by Grand Conclave, as the changes proposed in the Constitution of the Order were not only radical, they were revolutionary. In the first place, he objected to the title Convent General, which was the title of the Order in France; he objected to the introduction of the titles Grand Cross and Knight Commander; the Order of Malta was under the Duke of Manchester, what had we to do with it except as Masonic Knights? Who had ever heard of the Grand Cross of the Masonic Knights Templar? He objected to the elimination of the title Masonic; and to the Royal Arch qualification which, under the new Statutes, would be done away with.

Sir Knt. Holden, E. C. Ancient York Encampment, Hull, seconded the amendment.

Sir Knt. the Earl of Limerick rose to defend the Statutes, and in an able and exhaustive manner disposed of the various objections which had been raised to the Statutes. He admitted that there were one or two things which they might have liked altered, but the Sir Knights must remember they had to give and take; the term Masonic was not used, he believed, in Scotland, and as to the Royal Arch qualification, it was thought better to give that up and to require candidates to be Master Masons of two years' standing instead. The sole object of the Commissioners was to effect a union with the other bodies of Scotland and Ireland, and it was most important that, as the Prince of Wales had seen and approved of these Statutes, which had been ratified and confirmed by the Grand Masters in England and Ireland, that they should be accepted in their entirety. The noble lord sat down amidst a applause.

Sir Knight Emra Holmes, Grand Provost, said he rose with great diffidence to oppose the amendment of General Clerk, and to support the noble lord who had just spoken. Sir Knt. Gen. Clerk had objected to the style and title of the new governing body as the Convent General of the Order, and spoke of the existence of another body bearing the same name. Well, he (Sir Knt. Holmes) would venture to ask whether that body, the Convent General of the Ordre du Temple of France, did not become extinct in 1834, or thereabouts? At all events he was of opinion that it did not now exist. The Sir Knights no doubt knew that when the Duke of Sussex was Grand Master he was appointed Grand Prior of England by Sir Sidney Smith, the Grand Master of the Ordre du Temple of France. Some other Knights amongst them were also members of that body, notably Bro. Woolf, one of the Commissioners, and now that it was extinct we had a perfect right to assume the title. The Duke of Sussex had also sought and obtained from the Emperor Alexander of Russia the title of Grand Prior of the Order of Malta in England. The Sir Knights would remember that his predecessor, the Emperor Paul, was elected Grand Master of the Knights of Malta, soon after the taking of Malta, when a large number of the Knights fled to Russia, and were taken under his protection. Taaffe, in his History of the Order, stated this, and admitted the right of the Knights to elect him. As to the title Masonic, he thought it a matter indifferent as to whether it was retained or not, but certainly they had as great a right to call themselves Knights Templar, and Knights of Malta, as the body who were under the sway of the Duke of Manchester. A body of Knights met in Paris, and revived the English langue of the Order, but as Protestants, and bearing in mind it was a Papal Order, they had no more right to call themselves Knights of Malta, than the Sir Knights present had. He regretted for one that the Royal Arch qualification was not going to be retained, but the Sir Knights must remember that as the Earl of Limerick had said, they had to give and take, and he supposed, although no longer necessary, no one would be debarred from taking the Royal Arch who cared to do so. In Scotland at one time it was not necessary to be a Mason at all to become a Knight Templar. General Clerk had asked who ever heard of Masonic Knights Grand Cross. He, the speaker, had. The Grand Cross was given in Scotland, and in his old encampment, the Royal Kent at Newcastle-on-Tyne, they also gave it. Where they got it he did not know, but he thought most probably from Scotland. Of course the old Knights Templar had no such thing, any more than the Order of the Garter, but the Knights of Malta had both grades, and he saw no objection to the introduction of the same into the statutes of the United Orders. The great thing to attain was unity; he should like to see the three Orders in England, Ireland, and Scotland united under one head; and why should not the whole body throughout the world join under one Grand Master? The object of the statutes was to bring this about, and then, instead of three or four bodies, mutually repudiating each other, and looked upon, as a matter of course, by outsiders, as shams, we should have one great united body—an order of Chivalry, in reality. In the Craft we assert the universal brotherhood of men; in the Order of the Temple the object of the new Constitution was to bring about and assert a universal brotherhood of gentlemen. He should most strongly support the statutes.

Sir Knt. Hutton Gregory said he had listened with patience to what the well-known brother who had just sat down had said, but he was at a loss to know how to follow his reasoning that three shams would make a reality. He gathered from the statutes that there would be no such thing as Past Rank, which was to be done away with, and he for one should naturally oppose a Statute which did away with his rights and privileges as a Past Grand Officer.

Sir Knt. Holmes rose to order. He did not say that we were shams, or that the union of three shams would make a reality; what he did say was this, that whilst the various Orders of Templars were separated and repudiated each other, the world outside would look upon them as shams, but once united, they would be recognised as a great reality. (Hear, hear.)

Sir Knt. Lord Eliot rose to support the motion, and said that if they read the Statutes it must be plain to all that all rights and privileges of Past Grand Officers were reserved. The noble lord spoke with considerable force, and warmly advocated the acceptance of the statutes, as they could scarcely expect the Prince of Wales, who had approved of them, to accept office as Grand Master, if they were not passed, and the union not effected.

Sir Knt. Lambert asked why Scotland had refused to come in, and was informed that all that could be said was that she had refused.

Sir Knt. Jones was in favour of the amendment, and thought it best to have time to consider the statutes. Sir Knt. W. H. Wright, D.P.G.C., Lancashire, also spoke in support of the amendment. Sir Knt. Holden thought there would be a difficulty in getting the loan of Masonic Halls if the Masonic qualification was in any way interfered with. Sir Knt. Montague also spoke in favour of the amendment. He thought the Preceptors in the Convent-General would be swamped by the officers appointed by the Grand Master. Lord Limerick stated in explanation that Past E. Commanders, having once attained the rank of Preceptors, would always retain their right to sit and vote in the Convent-General. The statutes were entirely prospective. Grand Officers would enjoy no past rank, however, as such. The Grand Chancellor, Sir Patrick Colquhoun, entered into a luminous explanation of the statutes, and spoke with great ability against the amendment. All Sir Knights who were not Grand Officers, past or present, or E.C.'s, and Captains commanding columns, here retired, and a division was taken, when the votes were:—

For the amendment.....	19
Against	28
<hr/>
Majority in favour of Statutes	9

Sir Knt. Hutton Gregory then rose to move that the further consideration of the question be deferred to the next meeting of Grand Conclave, regular or special. Sir Knt. Capt. Barlow seconded the motion.

Sir Knt. General Clerk rose and said he should accept the decision of Grand Conclave, and thought that the election had better proceed.

Sir Knt. Gregory then withdrew his motion on suggestion from the chair.

The motion that the Report be adopted was then put and carried nom con.

Sir Knt. Huyshe, Deputy Grand Master, then proposed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Order, which was carried by acclamation.

Lord Limerick moved the reading of the supplementary article to the Constitutions, signed by the Duke of Leinster, and Sir Knt. Stuart, Grand Masters, which was accordingly done. It was stated that the Duke had now retired in favour of the Prince of Wales.

It was then proposed by Sir Knt. W. H. Wright, D.P.G.C., Lancashire; seconded by Lord Eliot. "That in so far as the consent of the Grand Conclave be necessary, consent is hereby given to the Statutes of the Convent General framed in accordance with the treaties of 1867 and 1869, and signed by the Grand Master, and they are hereby declared and are valid and binding on the Order and all members thereof, and are to be read with and as part of the Statutes of the Order but so that when there are any differences the Statutes of the Convent-General shall prevail and have effect.

The Grand Chancellor then read an address of condolence to the King of Sweden, which was approved by Grand Conclave.

The Grand Almoner then proceeded to collect the alms which amounted to £2 15s. 3d. and Grand Conclave was closed in ample form.

Thus ended one of the most important meetings of the ancient brotherhood of the Temple that has ever been held in this country. The election of His Royal Highness to the post of Grand Master will raise the Order in public estimation, both at home and abroad, and this result has without doubt been accomplished through the untiring exertions of such distinguished members of the Order, as Sir Patrick Colquhoun, the Earl of Limerick, and Lord Eliot.

We heartily congratulate them on the success of their labours.

GRAND PRIORY OF MALTA.

At the conclusion of the meeting of Grand Conclave, on Friday, the 15th inst., a Grand Priory of Malta was held. The Knights having formed the Arch of Steel, the Grand Prior, the Rev. J. Huyshe, entered, accompanied by his Grand Officers, clothed in the black mantle of the Order. The Grand Prior was assisted in the East by the following:—Sir Knts. Major S. H. Clerke, Captain-General; the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick, Lieutenant-General; J. Lavender, 1st Lieutenant; Hyde Pullen, 2nd Lieutenant; Rev. E. Moore, Prelate. The officers at the Octagon were Sir Knts. W. Tinkler, Mareschal; Emra Holmes, Turcopolier; S. Rosenthal, Admiral; S. Lloyd Foster, Conservator; R. J. Spiers, Hospitaller; Hutton Gregory, Bailie; Sir Patrick Colquhoun, Q.C., LL.D., Chancellor; R. B. de Burgh (Grand Marshal of Ireland) as Treasurer. Sir Knts. A. J. Riach, R. A. Akers, T. Sampson, Capt. Barlow, and G. Lambert, guarded the Five Banners.

The following candidates were submitted for the approval of Grand Priory, and were accepted.

Sir Knights J. T. Griffith, M.D., of the Faith and Fidelity Encampment; J. H. Paul, M.D., and J. C. Parkinson, of the New Temple; J. D. Moore, M.D., Grand Standard Bearer; E. Drewett, of the William Stuart, and J. Webb, of the Kemeys Tynte Encampments.

The candidates were conducted by the Grand Mareschal to the guard room, where they were received, obligated, and admitted to the Order of St. Paul, or the Mediterranean Pass, by the Grand Prior, who was assisted by the Grand Prelate.

They were afterwards received into the great Chapter Room, and duly installed with the ceremonial of the Order as Knights Hospitaller of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes and Malta, taking their seats accordingly amongst the Sir Knights. Before closing the Priory Sir Knight Emra Holmes, Turcopolier, begged permission to make a suggestion as to what had just taken place in Grand Conclave—viz., the unanimous election of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of the Order. Sir Knt. Holmes thought that upon the installation of the Prince it would be well if Grand Conclave could obtain the sanction of the Benchers to go in procession to the Temple Church, and get some great dignitary—a Bishop, if possible, and a member of the Order—to preach on the occasion.

Sir Knt. the Earl of Limerick, whilst approving of the suggestion thrown out by Sir Knt. Holmes, said that of course His Royal Highness's feelings would have to be consulted in the matter, and it could only be done in accordance with his wishes.

To this Sir Knt. Holmes cordially agreed with the noble lord, and the subject was then dropped, with the understanding that the necessary steps would be taken to carry out the views of the Order. There being no other business before Grand Priory, it was closed in ample form, and the Sir Knights afterwards banqueted together.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

[We have been requested to insert the following report of the General Board, presented to the Mark Grand Lodge at its recent meeting, reported in The Freemason of the 7th inst.]

In the six months ending 30th September, 1872, 404 certificates were issued, giving a total of 6,349 Mark Master Masons, as enrolled on the Register of this Grand Lodge. During the same period the following warrants have been issued:—

- No. 151. Whitwell, Cumberland and Westmoreland.
- „ 152. Dover and Cinque Ports, Dover.
- „ 153. Wellington, Wellington, New Zealand.
- „ 154. Union, Auckland, New Zealand.
- „ 155. Portal, Somerset.
- „ 156. County Palatine, Manchester.
- „ 157. Russell, Madras.
- „ 158. Rose and Thistle, Bolton, Lancashire.

Since the last meeting of Grand Lodge, two new Provinces have been constituted, viz., Cumberland and Westmoreland, under the rule of the Earl of Bective, M.P., as R.W.P.G.M.M.M., assisted by Colonel Whitwell, M.P., as Dep. Prov. G.M.M.M., both of whom hold distinguished positions in Craft Masonry.

Done, with Bro. Rev. George Wilson Fieldmore, as R.W.P.G.M.M.M., and Bro. T. H. Grove Snowden, as Dep. Prov. G.M.M.M., whose services in support of Freemasonry have been, and continue to be, such as to warrant the most sanguine expectations of success for the Order under their guidance.

R.W. Bro. Wm. Romaine Callender, Prov. G.M.M.M. of Lancashire, accompanied by a large number of his Provincial Grand Officers, attended at Carlisle to install the Earl of Bective.

The M.W.G.M.M.M. installed Bro. Sicklemore, at Ramsgate, in the presence of a considerable number of visitors, including several Grand Officers.

Though, strictly speaking, not occurring exactly within the time up to which the report of the Board would ordinarily refer, yet so exceptionally important must be considered the events in connection with the Moveable Grand Lodge, held at Manchester on the 2nd of October last, that the Board feels justified in introducing a notice of them here, which, however, need be but brief, inasmuch as they are fully recorded in the Grand Lodge Minutes read to-day, and will be duly published.

The Board has every confidence that the proceedings of that auspicious occasion will be a source of unmixed gratification, as bringing to a happy issue negotiations which have for so long a time occupied the attention of the Executive, as well as of Grand Lodge.

While, however, congratulating the Order on the acquisition of influence and numerical strength thus obtained with the benefits of union so long earnestly sought, the Board has still to regret that the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland has not yet seen fit to enter on terms of amity with this Grand Lodge, by according to its members even the modified recognition of an acknowledgment of the validity of their certificates, and their reception as legally-advanced Mark Master Masons when offering themselves for admission as visitors to Scotch Lodges.

Considerable progress has been made with the very arduous task of revision of the Rituals—that of the ceremony of advancement may be considered as completed—save only the explanatory Lecture on the Tracing Board, the delay in which is attributable to causes which cannot be explained in a public Report.

The new edition of the Book of Constitutions is ready, in which are contained the "Regulations for the Government of the Degree of Royal Ark Mariner." Warrants are ready for issue, and also certificates, and, therefore, there need be no further delay in working this Degree by those Mark brethren to whom it may appear desirable, and who may petition for a warrant in the terms prescribed by the regulations.

The Board is pleased to be able to congratulate Grand Lodge on the continued addition to the "Benevolent Fund." The festival held in July last was most successful, especially in a pecuniary point of view, the largest amount yet produced having been realised, mainly due to the liberality of the Earl of Bective, who generously sent a donation of fifty guineas. His lordship's inability, from indisposition, to preside, as he had intended, having been a source of regret to all present.

The balance at the banker to the credit of this fund amounts, to the 30th September, to £275 15s. 5d., which, with amount since received, would allow of an investment of £300, and the Board recommends the purchase of £300 in Canadian Government Securities.

The Board recommends that the Rev. G. R. Portal, Rt. Hon. the Earl of Percy, M.P., and Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick, be appointed Trustees of Grand Lodge.

It is with sincere regret that the Board communicates, for the information of Grand Lodge, that it has been found necessary to put in operation the provision of the Tripartite Treaty, and to suspend two members of Grand Lodge. In each case the brethren have made their submission, and the suspension has therefore been withdrawn.

Reports of Proceedings from Grand Chapters of Pennsylvania and Iowa have been received.

The Board recommend that the sum of £51 10s. be voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to complete the amount necessary to qualify the G.M.M. for the time being as a Vice-President of the said institution, and that such amount be placed on the list of Bro. Sabine, who has offered to represent the Order as Steward at the next festival.

The Grand Treasurer's Accounts are presented herewith, showing—

Balance from last Account	£212	18	4
Receipts—Six Months to 30th Sept., 1872	285	13	4
	498	11	8
Expenditure—Six Months to same date	211	14	11
Balance in favour of Grand Lodge... Fund of Benevolence.	286	16	9
Balance from last Account	187	2	0
Donations received to 30th Sept., 1872, "Benevolent Fund Festival"	123	15	0
	310	17	0
Disbursements to 30th Sept., 1872	35	3	7
Balance	275	13	5
	£310	17	0

Examined and found correct,
THOS. MEGGY, Auditor.

28th Nov., 1872.

Original Correspondence.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am pleased to observe by the report of meetings held in reference to the proposed erection of a Masonic Hall at Camberwell that its promoters have good prospect of success.

It is a scheme worthy of consideration and support by every member of the Order, whether resident in the locality or elsewhere, and I trust that the Directors of the Company will take care not to prejudice their present favourable position by unnecessary delay.

For my part, I believe that if it could be stated that the site for the building was secured, and that preparations for the laying of the foundation stone were made, the support they have already received would be increased tenfold.

I shall look anxiously for further publicity being given to the undertaking, and I am,

Yours fraternally,

P.M.

BROTHER STEBBING'S PROPOSITION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with much interest your admirable report of the proceedings in Grand Lodge, and as I have a strong opinion on the subject in question, I venture to ask your permission to bring the matter forward in your pages.

I am aware that it may be said the question is still sub judice, but I think a little careful and temperate discussion of the whole subject may tend to assist the Board of General Purposes in their somewhat anomalous position, and still more difficult duty. I have been now enrolled in the Order 30 years, and have presided over two large and important lodges, and the point at issue, a great veritas queritur in itself, has come before me more than once!

I agree with Bro. Stebbing, who is worth as a man, and whose zeal as a Mason we must all acknowledge and admire, that there are times and seasons when many lodges are distressed and disturbed by the presence among them of unwelcome members. But, in my humble opinion, the remedy he proposes will be worse than the disease. For, as far as one can see now, it will land our Order in a troubled sea at once of personal feeling and clique manoeuvres, from which our present regulations happily have kept, and still keep the Craft perfectly free.

The great object of the present regulations of the Book of Constitutions is, that every one shall have fair play; that nothing like individual feelings or personal considerations shall avail; that Masonry is not to be governed by our likes or our dislikes, or by what we think convenient or expedient, but by what is legally befitting, and equitably maintainable in itself.

If by any process more power is vested in the W.M., or a bare majority will suffice to remove some unpopular or recalcitrant brother, I am afraid that we shall have inaugurated the commencement of a great deal of personal feeling and hopeless heartburnings in Freemasonry.

Admitted that, in some lodges, unpopular and unworthy members are to be found, the Constitutions provide a fully sufficient remedy, and "non constat," that we should be at all improved by the adoption of our excellent Bro. Stebbing's proposals.

In the three cases mentioned by him, I find little ground to warrant the serious change he advocates. In the first case, the W.M. had been strangely remiss as to his known duty, and the "precise brother" only did his duty to the lodge and to Freemasonry. If there is one point we ought scrupulously to maintain, it is particularly as to the description and designation of all candidates.

With regard to the Liverpool case, I feel sure that, if the lodge had at once appealed to the Board of General Purposes, on the ground of "surprise" as to the antecedents of the brother who "had been wanted" which had been carefully suppressed, and had they passed a resolution by two-thirds, that in consequence of such a deception, he was ineligible for Freemasonry, the Board of General Purposes would have upheld their resolution. With regard to the "Kilkenny Cats," the sooner they learn the great Masonic lesson of forbearance, unity, and brotherly consideration the better. One can have no pity for them.

I see nothing in these cases to require a change of the law, only a still stricter rule as regards the admission of candidates. I fully agree with Bro. W. Lloyd, the able Chairman of the Board of General Purposes, that the motion should have been met with a distinct negative. The Board of General Purposes has nothing to do with abstract resolutions, but is intended to deal only with concrete facts. I am therefore sorry, for one, that it will have to make a Report on the subject at all. Giving to Bro. Stebbing every credit, for the earnestness of his opinions, and his true Masonic zeal on all occasions, I feel persuaded that the policy he has suggested, and the alterations in our Constitutions which he proposes, will be fraught with serious and lasting evil to the Craft at large.

I am dear Sir and brother

Yours fraternally,

AN OLD P.M.

BRO. MORTON EDWARDS AND THE GRAND MARK LODGE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

One is really quite anxious to ascertain from Bro. Morton Edwards, and our excellent Bro. E. Binckes, the meaning of those two interesting communications, signed respectively by them, which appear in your impression to day.

In the first place, Bro. Binckes's short note, in which he falls into that common mistake of using "enclosed" in a sense it cannot bear, seems to point to some very remarkable fact which is contained in Bro. George Morton Edwards's larger letter!

In the second place, what power has Bro. Morton Edwards, one feels constrained to ask, in the interest of common custom and common sense, on what authority does he profess to withdraw the resolution No. 3, &c.

Has Bro. Morton Edwards been invested with some peculiar and unaccustomed authority, by which he and he alone can withdraw and remove a portion of the "statutes" adopted unanimously at a meeting of "Royal Ark Mariners"? As a point of Masonic archeology, the "Royal Ark Mariners" seem to be an old development of the system, and one would really like an explanation on archeological grounds of what seems both a very peculiar and a very remarkable proceeding.

London, Dec. 13, 1872.

NOAH, P.M.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

OFFICE, No. 4, FREEMASONS' HALL,
LONDON, W.C.

17th December, 1872.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It affords me great pleasure to announce that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., M.W. P.G.M., &c., has graciously consented to preside at the Anniversary Festival of this Institution, on a day to be named by H.R.H. in the second week of February 1873; and in doing so, permit me to say that I shall be happy to receive the names of Brethren to act as Stewards upon this auspicious occasion.

The Committee have already determined to increase the amount of the annuity allowed our aged brethren to £36 per annum, and intend to increase the Widows' Annuity to £28 per annum, this alone will necessitate the raising of an additional £1400 yearly; and the Committee confidently rely upon the liberality of the Craft to support them in their efforts to render the closing days of our aged brethren happy and comfortable.

If you will kindly allow me space for the insertion of this you will greatly oblige.

Yours truly and fraternally,

JAMES TERRY.

Secretary.

Masonic Tidings.

A Masonic Ball at Bury St. Edmunds is fixed for the 17th January.

By command of the Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital, the Sir Knights are to go into mourning for six months, for his late Majesty the King of Sweden, Grand Master of the Temple in that country.

A Lodge of Instruction, held under the warrant of the British Union Lodge at Ipswich, but intended if possible to become a general lodge for the town, has just been formed, and promises to supply a want felt there for some time past of attaining to greater uniformity of working. Bro. the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.Prov. G.C. and P.M. Prince of Wales Lodge; and Bro. N. Tracy, P.Prov. G.D.C. and P.M., Perfect Friendship Lodge, are appointed Preceptors. The working of the Emulation Lodge is to be taken as a guide, and as both the brethren are expert Masons and ardent ritualists, the Ipswich Masons may fairly expect to be second to none in the working of the beautiful ceremonies appertaining to Craft Masonry.

THE P.G.M. FOR WEST LANCASHIRE.—It is currently reported that the office of Provincial Grand Master for West Lancashire has been offered to, and accepted by Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, P.D.P.G.M. There is no doubt the appointment will give the liveliest satisfaction to every brother in the extensive province, and it is to be hoped that the already long-delayed installation will take place at an early date.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY IN LEICESTERSHIRE.—We are informed that the Provincial Grand Chapter of Leicestershire and Rutland, which has been in abeyance for some years, is about to be reconstituted on the occasion of the consecration of a new chapter at Loughborough, for which a warrant has been granted. The meeting will take place early in January, when the E. Comp. William Kelly will be installed as P.G. Supt., and Provincial Grand Officers will be appointed.

Whilst Mr. Dent, M.P., and some friends were shooting in Ribstone Park, on Saturday, one of the party accidentally shot Mr. Dundas, M.P., nephew of the Earl of Zetland, in one of his eyes. The best medical aid was called in, and Mr. Dundas was removed to Swarell Hall, the seat of Mr. Greenwood, where the hon. gentleman is staying.

THE "CITY OF LONDON" MASONIC LIFE BOAT.—The committee have now about £460, in hand. At their last meeting they determined to give a ball at the London Tavern, on Friday, 24th January, the proceeds of which they hope will be sufficient to make up the required amount for the life-boat. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs have promised their patronage. The committee have also obtained permission from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter for the brethren to appear in Masonic clothing.

MASONIC CONCERT AT SUNDERLAND.—On Monday evening (Dec. 16), a grand concert was given in the Victoria Hall, Sunderland, under the auspices of the Freemasons of that town, the net proceeds to be equally divided between the two Masonic Schools, and two of the local charities. Notwithstanding the rather unpleasant state of the weather, there was a good attendance, both of the members of the Craft and of the general public. The proceedings of the evening passed off with considerable éclat, several of the songs receiving a warm encore. The artistes were Miss Lord, Bro. John Hunter, jun., P.M., St. Helen's Lodge, Hartlepool; Bro. C. H. Bastow, Palatine Lodge, Sunderland; Bro. J. H. Forster, Williamson Lodge, Sunderland; Bro. W. Walker, P. Prov. G.C., Marquis of Granby Lodge, Durham; assisted by Mr. Grice, Miss Penman, and Miss Sweet.

Bro. Emra Holmes's "Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital" will be completed in our next number.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

BRO. EMRA HOLMES.

I have read Bro. Emra Holmes's able paper, as I read all his contributions to The Freemason, with great attention and interest, and have, with the help of a friend of mine in the British Museum, looked into the question to which he has so courteously called my attention.

There is no evidence in "Vinsauf" to support Addison's statement that Richard I. left the Holy Land, disguised as a Knight Templar. In lib. vi., cap. xiv., we are told how Richard, then about to relieve Joppa, left Acho (Acre) for Baruth (Beirut), with the leave and blessing of the Templars and Hospitallers.

We are told that there accompanied him the Count of Leicester, Andrew de Chavagni, Rogerus de Satheya, Jordanus de Hamey, Radulphus de Malo Leone, Achus de Foy, and some other good Knights, Genoese and Pisans.

We are told how he first waded to the shore, followed by Galfudus de Boseo, and Petrus de Pratellis.

Some of these may have been Knights Templar or Hospitallers. After the action before Joppa, the king falls sick, a three years truce is arranged, and permission is given to part of the army to visit Jerusalem. Richard I. eventually leaves for England, but it is nowhere said, disguised as a Templar.

Hume, as Bro. Holmes may remember, says that he was disguised as "a Pilgrim," and Walter Hemingford, p. 535, seems to state that he was in a "Pallium."

My remarks as to the antagonism existing between Richard I. and the Knights Templar are based on a common statement of historians that Richard I. was not on friendly terms with that great Order. But I have a still stronger objection against the "Baldwin Encampment," both on historical and archaeological grounds. In the times of the actual Knights Templar, all their Preceptories were named from places, not persons. There is no example of a Preceptory ever being called after a person, and hence, historically, the "Baldwin Encampment" is, and must be, a misnomer, and betrays its modern origin. Indeed, the word "Encampment" belongs purely to the Masonic Knights Templar, and is not of earlier date than about 1760.

I am afraid, therefore, that with every respect for Br. Emra Holmes and the Masonic Knights Templar, I cannot admit that they have anything, historically or lineally, to do with the famous soldiers of the Temple. It is quite pleasant, however, to have to discuss such matters with Bro. Emra Holmes, as he is not only very able, but very fair, and is, as I am, simply anxious to discover historical certainty and reliable facts. Like myself, he is also endeavouring in his way, as I am in mine, to reach the great Temple of Masonic Truth.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

December 13, 1872.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The usual monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday, the 11th Dec. last, Major John Creation, V.P., P.G.D., in the chair, supported by upwards of 30 influential members of the Committee.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and verified.

The report of the sub-committee appointed at the last meeting to inquire into the duties and emoluments of the Secretary, was received and adopted.

The Secretary pro tem. reported the death of three annuitants. The Secretary pro tem. then read a letter from the M.W.G.M., announcing that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., M.W.P.G.M., had graciously consented to preside at the anniversary festival of this institution, on a day to be named by H.R.H. in the second week of February next, an announcement which was received amidst great cheers.

Several petitions were placed on the list of candidates for election in May next.

Bro. R. W. Steward, P.G.D., then, with evident emotion, moved, "That a retiring pension of £200 per annum be granted to Bro. Wm. Farnfield for his faithful and efficient services for the last 30 years as Secretary, which being seconded, and supported by several members, was carried with acclamation.

Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G. Purst., moved "That an additional £10 per annum be granted to each male annuitant," which was seconded, and carried unanimously, the Committee thanking the worthy brother for having brought the subject before them. The effect of this will be to give £36 per annum to the old men.

The next business was the election of Secretary, in the place of Bro. Farnfield, resigned, when Bro. James Terry, who has filled the office of Collector for the past eight years, was unanimously elected to that position.

Bro. Terry, on being called in, was cordially received by the Committee, and the Chairman, in their name, congratulated him on his appointment, and wished him long life and health to discharge his duties.

Bro. Terry briefly returned his grateful thanks for the honour conferred upon him, and in doing so, resigned the position of Collector, the duties of which have been so zealously and efficiently discharged by him.

The Collectorship being thus vacated, four candidates presented themselves, when Bro. Wm. Lane, S.D. Old King's Arms Lodge (No. 28), was, by a very large majority, elected to that position.

Bro. Major Creation gave notice of motion for the next meeting, "That the annuity payable to the widows be increased from £25 to £28 per annum," a motion which, we have no doubt, will be as unanimously agreed to as the one for the increase to the men.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. —Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with Boiling Water or Milk. Each packet is labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Healthy and Healthy.—The experience of thousands, both at home and abroad, has amply demonstrated the power possessed by these healing and purifying remedies of removing cutaneous eruptions, repairing ulcerations, and relieving fistulas and abscesses. These hidden evils frequently rob life of every comfort, through the reluctance of the sufferer to expose his infirmity. Holloway's Ointment supersedes such dreary publicity by placing within the reach of all plain instructions for curing themselves without any danger, and without the slightest necessity of mentioning their malady to anyone. The Ointment and Pills will likewise cure bad legs, scabs, rashes, and those blemishes which arise from the abuse of mercury, and from the use of other deleterious drugs.—ADVERT.

"Some months since, my wife was suffering with a bad cough and severe pains in the chest, and totally unable to attend to her ordinary duties. She was sent to try your 'Fairy Dream,' and after a few doses of it was restored to perfect health, which she still enjoys. I have not been free from a cold, from which I have long suffered, and on being taken internally invariably gives me entire relief.—JAS. BRADSHAW."

A MASONIC SONG.

FOR ST. JOHN'S DAY, 1872.

We've met as brethren all,
Bound by our mystic sign,
Which cowans and the world without
Can never near divine.
Oh! let us part as well,
When all our labours cease,
In friendship and in sympathy,
In harmony and peace.

For here, within our lodge,
In all heart-felt goodwill,
True friendship binds us all,
'Mid earthly good and ill.
And in fraternal trust
We Masons all unite,
Whatever else betide,
Our hearts are in the right.

Our secrets still we keep
A mystery profound,
From those who vainly seek them
Outside our sacred ground.
But here in fullest sight,
All candidates confined,
In wondrous grace and power,
Who search with loving mind.

The storms may rage without,
And sorrow dim the way;
A Mason's heart is open,
And genial as the day.
Should fortune's frowns appal,
Or trial bend us low,
What brother feels for brother
Only Freemasons know.

So in our lodge to-night
Let unity prevail;
Obedient to our Master,
Let's bid Masonry all hail!
Oh kindly Craft and true,
Which makes all brethren here,
Fair emblem ever new,
Of a far brighter sphere.

Yes, on a better day,
When Masons meet at last,
Their trials gladly o'er,
Their dangers safely past;
When all at length assembled,
Join the Grand Lodge above,
They meet no more, to close that lodge,
For their's is endless love.

A. F. A. W.

Reviews.

Buds and Blossoms. Groombridge and Sons, Paternoster Row.

An interesting book, which, placed in the hands of young people, will not only amuse but instruct.

Anecdotal and Descriptive Natural History is that kind of book which a boy or girl will take to at sight, and not put down until the whole is perused. The illustrations are good, the anecdotes well told, and having been read will undoubtedly lead the young mind to desire a fuller knowledge, and to follow up, in times of greater scientific pretention, the Science of Natural History.

The Ivy, its History, Uses and Character; by Shirley Hibberd.

The name of this highly accomplished author is so well known that praise of new works from his pen is unnecessary; suffice it to say that those who are such tyros in plant-lore as to imagine there is the old green ivy and that only, should take up this well illustrated volume and at once be undeceived. It will doubtlessly lead many to cultivate this hitherto much neglected but beautiful plant.

Fairy Mary's Dream, is, as the title indicates, a child's book in rhyme, well suited for a Christmas present, although treating of "Fields and flowers and brooks." The concluding lines well express the moral of the tale:—

O! yes, it was a dream, dear maid,
A passing spirit sweetly said;
But it may teach you that your state,
Though humble, may be very great,
And if you read the dream's int'at,
You'll cheerful strive and live content.

Answers to Correspondents.

The following stand over:—Lupas, Anonymous, C.S.; Consecration of Laythorn Lodge, No. 1421; Consecration of a R. A. Chapter at Carnarvon; Consecration of a Rose Croix Chapter at Brighton; Reports of Lodges 397, 1289, 879, 408, 1035, 339, 281, 104, 323; Chapter 273; Mark Lodge 146.

ERRATA.—The name of Bro. Moses Mansell was omitted in our list of petitioners to the Warrant of the Alpass Encampment.

In last number the Bective Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 147, E.C., was placed under the head of Scotch Lodges.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Boxing night, Thursday, December 26th, and following evenings, will be produced the Grand Christmas Comic Pantomime, entitled, GOODY TWO-SHOES; or, Harlequin King Gold and the World of Coins. Written and adapted by J. Strachan from the late W. Brough's Barlesque opening. Supported by Messrs Hudspeth, Leigh, Evans, Skinner, Cullen, Belasco, Howard, Sidney, and Power; Mesdames Bramah, Rainbow, Kerridge, Newton, Cross, Fenton, Durham, French, Jones, Davis, Thompson, and Wilkes; Masters Holland and Steyne. "The Enchanted Wood." "Cottage of Goody Two Shoes." "Beauty's Boudoir." Grand Ballet, by Mademoiselle Rosine, supported by an extensive troupe of coryphees, "The Realm of Toys (Peace)." "English Homestead in the Olden Time." "The Pavilion of King Gold in the World of Coins." "The Realm of Toys (War)." "Capital City of the Counterfeits." "A Fairy Glade." "Down Among the Coals." The Magnificent and Dazzlingly Brilliant Transformation Scene, the "Judgment of Paris." Designed and Executed by R. M. Hyde. Clown, Mr. G. W. Gale; Pantaloon, Mr. Housfield; Harlequin, Mr. Baker; Columbine, Miss Florence; Harlequina (by desire), Madlle. Rosine; Sprites, the Carlo Troupe; Policeman, Mr. J. Wilson. Doors open at half-past 6, commence at 7 o'clock. Stage Manager, Mr. C. J. Barleigh. Gallery, 4d.; Pit, 6d.; Pit Stalls, 1s.; Boxes, 1s. 6d.; Reserved Circle, 2s. 6d.; Private Boxes, One Guinea. Half-price:—Boxes, 9d.; Reserved Circle, 1s. Private Entrance.—Open on Saturdays and Mondays at half-past 5, Gallery 7d., and all other parts of the house 6d. extra.

Victoria Theatre.

On Christmas Eve, December 24th, 1872, and every evening until further notice, will be produced at an enormous expense, and on a scale of unparalleled splendour, a Grand, Glittering, Gorgeous, Comic Christmas Pantomime, entitled GUILLIVER and the Fair Persian; or, Harlequin King Lilliput and the Magic Balm! Written by Frank W. Green, Esq. "The Retreat of Past Pantomimes, Illuminated by the Light of Other Days." Messrs Prescott, Swift, and Parker; Mesdames Maude, Collins, Mumford, Elton, Montague, Collier, Fisher, and Barleigh. "Hall in the Palace of King Rampageous, the Reckless." Messrs Shepherd, Dudley, and Jackson; Mesdames Harrington, Earren, Cooke, Maitland, Tuskey, Leonard, Ellen Leonard, and Brian. "Haunt of the Witches." "Diana's Hunting Grounds in Jimmistan." Mesdames Allen and Empson. Grand Ballet, by Madlle. Rosine and Corps of Coryphees. Mesdames Mountford, Leonard, and Smith. "Country Road Leading to the City of Brobdingnag." Messrs Fawn and Skinner. "Kitchen in the Giant's House." Messrs Jean Lemaire, Lacy, and De Vere; Master Magrath. "Gates of the Lilliputian City." "Imperial City of Lilliput." Mesdames K. Henderwick, L. Henderwick, and Hayes; Master Mat Henderwick. "On the Road." Mr. Biss-Marque. "Fortress of the King of Brobdingnag." "Chamber in the Palace of King Rampageous the Reckless." "Shades of Evening." Glorious Transformation Scene—"The Temple of Jupiter." Designed and Painted by R. M. Hyde. Clown, Jean Lemaire; Pantaloon, Harry C. Parker; Sprites, by the Fling Wonders, Brothers de Vere; Harlequin; W. W. Lacy; Harlequina, Miss Lottie Mountford; Columbine, Miss Rose Fuller. No. 999 of the N.T.C. Force, Mr. Hicks. To conclude with the drama of DOMINIQUE THE DESERTER; supported by the Company. Prices:—Private Boxes, £2 2s., £1 1s. 6d., and 10s. 6d.; Stalls, 2s.; Promenade, 1s.; Pw, 6d.; Gallery, 3d. (Mondays and Saturdays, 4d.). Half-price to Stalls only at 9 o'clock. Doors open at half-past 6, commence at 7.

Royal Polytechnic.

Open at 12 and 7. Admission 1s. New Ghost, THE WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, by Mr. George Burkhart, assisted by Misses Alice Barth and Florence Hunter. COALS, AND HOW TO SAVE IT, by Professor Gardner. Lectures on Natural Philosophy by Mr. King; the Diver and Diving Bell; and many other Entertainments.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Claimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King"; and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.

Week ending December 28.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee, Bro. E. Saker. On Boxing Night, Grand Christmas Pantomime, "Cinderella, or the Prince, the Phoenix, and the Pumpkin."

ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee, Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. Christmas Eve, Annual Pantomime, "Prince Bluecap, or the Enchanted Rose of the Coral Isle."

PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee, Mr. Setton Parry. "Endymion."

THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Frece. Boxing Day, Grand Pantomime, "Lucie-Land, or Harlequin Sir Bruno the Brave, or the Fairy Casket of Phantom Castle."

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Special Christmas Programme.

CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Holden's Comic Minniekins, with Pantomime.

NEWSOMES CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome. Special Programme.

NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager, Bro. Saunders. Ballet, Opera, and Special Holiday Attractions.

ROUNDA THEATRE and MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Grannell. Christmas Pantomime, "Babes in the Wood," and Miscellaneous Entertainments.

TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Azzarini and Family.—World of Magic.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Oillard's Great American Panorama.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. od.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. od.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

Births, Marriages and Deaths.

BIRTH.

On Monday, the 9th inst., at Parkfield, New Ferry, the wife of Bro. E. Friend, P.M. 1013 and 1289, P.J.G.D., Cheshire, of a son.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1872.

LIVE MASONS.

By BRO. W. BURROUGHS, A.M., M.M.M., S.E., R.A.

Editor "Masonic Herald," Calcutta.

Non sibi sed toti gentim se credere mundo.

A live-mason is living fire—warm, genial, and glowing; there is no sham in or about him; but all "sober truth" and "right earnestness." He is the reverse of the dead-mason as that of the show-mason, and is no paradox. "Unbiassed by the improper solicitation of friends, against his own inclination, and uninfluenced by mercenary or any other unworthy motive, he freely and voluntarily offered himself a candidate for the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry." He was prompted to enter the Order "from a favourable opinion pre-conceived of the institution, a desire of knowledge, and a sincere wish to render himself more extensively serviceable to his fellow creatures;" and not as many have done, with deceit in the heart and perjury on the tongue, promising to do what they never intended to do. Could the inside of such "wilfully perjured individuals" be examined, it would show a mass of corruption really abominable.

But the live-mason is a different being. He is life, and not death. He is substance, and not shadow. He is reality, and not mockery. Like a certain king, as history records, he does not keep a host of retainers about him to warn him that he is mortal—nor like the Egyptians of old, does he keep a skull before him to remind him not to forget himself that he must die. These important truths the emblems of the Order have declared to him, and he remembers them and abides by them. They are engraved upon his heart, and he does not forget their teaching—LOVE TO GOD AND LOVE TO MAN. The philosophy and philanthropy of Masonry are his sole study. Like the blessed man mentioned in Holy Writ, he "walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful; but his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night."

If there is a Charity to support, the live-mason freely gives what he has freely received, often giving twice over in happy forgetfulness; as his left hand is ignorant of the action of his right hand. He is no Pharisee, nor like the Sadducee, disbelieves a resurrection, consequently future reward and punishment. Nor does he, like the hypocrite, tell his "brother man" "be ye warned and filled," but gives not "those things which are needful to the body." Nor is he a Levite, to pass by unconcernedly "on the other side," rather than render any assistance to the maimed, the stricken, and the halt. But he is the "good Samaritan," ready to aid and assist the wounded, to relieve the oppressed, to succour the distressed. His is not an idle or ostensible charity; but true and real, flowing from his bosom, which is the fountain of kindness, mildness, and long-suffering.

If the live-mason has a good book, he reads it, and inwardly digests it, and then with a kind word gives it to his neighbour, so that he may also study it and be benefitted by it. He considers the light of Knowledge, as that of the Sun, should not be confined to any spot nor be restricted to any person. "We are all descended from one stock," he says, "we are dwellers of one place—earth, which is God's footstool; we are hoping for one hope—heaven, which is God's throne. Why, therefore, should we draw distinction? The level has annihilated it." He thinks well!

If a person has fallen into a ditch, he runs immediately to his rescue, unmindful that in doing so he will stain his clothes or soil his boots. If one is sick, he readily visits him, unmindful that in doing so he imposes extra labour upon himself. If one is in distress, he cheerfully relieves him, unmindful that in doing so he empties his purse. JEHOVAH-JIREH is the motto on the escutcheon of his heart; he moves under its impulse and lives under its influence, and he does well!

If a Masonic periodical is started, and though it be an acorn, the live-mason takes it up in the hope that in time it may become an oak. It is a disseminating organ of the Order, and he protects it against the raging winds of thought and the contending waves of opinion. He feeds it with means as matter. If wanting in worldly possession or in mental acquisition, like Wotton, he becomes "a gatherer of other men's stuff," to fill a wallet, not for himself, but for those who may be wanting in knowledge to think better, or in means to live happier. The good of others is happiness to him. He is charity personified. He "suffereth long and is kind; he envieth not; he vaunteth not; is not puffed up; doth not behave himself unseemly; seeketh not his own; is not easily provoked; thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but in the truth. Beareth all things; believeth all things; hopeth all things; endureth all things." But how few there are as such? How few there are—

"Whose soul with ev'ry lovely virtue fraught,
Who feed the hungry with a heart benign,
Who give refreshment when the thirsty pine,
Who grant the stranger shelter from the storm,
Who clothe the naked and the frost-nip warm;
The sick who visit with human intent,
And seek the cottage where the poor lament."

If the picture here drawn be correct, should it be a speaking likeness—a true portrait and not a caricature of the live-mason; then to the beholder it may well be told, as it had been told to "a certain lawyer"—"Go and do thou likewise." "Oh! Heav'n send bounty back from where she's fled!

Let eyes relenting tears of pity shed!
Let the soft voice to sorrow comfort give!
The heart be melted and the hand relieve!
Then will of wretches the most wretched own;
That Charity on earth hath fixe'd her throne."

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

SUNDERLAND.—Palatine Lodge (No. 97.—The annual meeting of this old and flourishing lodge was held at the New Masonic Hall, Sunderland, on the afternoon of Thursday, the 12th inst., when there was a large assemblage of Past Masters, members, and visitors, to witness the installation of the W.M., and the appointment of the officers for the ensuing twelve months. The ceremony of installation was ably rendered by Bro. J. J. Clay, the outgoing W.M., and he, having placed the W.M. elect, Bro. Robert Humphrey, in the chair of of K.S., that brother invested the following officers, viz.:—Bros. J. J. Clay, I.P.M.; S. P. Austin, S.W.; T. Younger, J.W.; F. Hanson, Treas.; H. Fryer, S.D.; A. Currie, J.D.; F. Sharp, I.G.; J. Thompson, Tyler; C. W. Robson and T. Twizell, Stewards; H. Tonkinson and C. H. Bastow, Auditors. After the lodge was closed, the brethren to the number of nearly 80 adjourned to the Palatine Hotel, where the annual festival was held the same evening, the newly installed W.M. in the chair. Justice having been done to the dinner proposed the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and in proposing that of "The Queen," expressed the great pleasure they all felt that this year they had not, as on the occasion of their last festival to sympathize with the sovereign in moments of domestic anxiety, and trusted it would be very long before, sickness again invaded the Royal household "The Health of the newly installed W.M." was proposed by Bro. J. J. Clay, I.P.M., who referred in warm terms to the very able manner in which Bro. Humphrey had filled the other offices in the lodge, and expressed his conviction that a more skilled brother had never been elected to the chair of the Palatine Lodge. The W.M., in responding, thanked the brethren for the uniform kindness he had always received at their hands, and assured them he would strenuously endeavour to discharge the duties appertaining to the chair faithfully, zealously, and assiduously, and expressed the hope that nothing would happen during the ensuing twelve months to sully the warrant that had that afternoon been entrusted to his keeping, and which had for upwards of 115 years passed through the hands of different masters without a stain upon it. Bro. W. Skelton, P.M., in proposing the toast of "The I.P.M.," referred to the very able and satisfactory manner in which the affairs of the lodge had been conducted during the past twelve months. Bro. Clay, in responding, thanked the brethren for the support he had received, and assured them he should still continue to take the same warm interest in the affairs of the lodge as he had hitherto done. "The Present and Past Officers," "The Visiting Brethren," and other toasts followed. Among the brethren present (most of them at both the installation and festival) were:—Bros. W. H. Crookes, W.M. 1389, P.M. 80, P.G.S.; G. W. Smales, W.M. 312 (Whitby), P.G.S. of W. (N. and E. York); Jas. H. Coates, W.M. 949; J. S. Pearson, W.M. 94; J. Davison, W.M. 80; W. Forster, W.M. 661 (Seaham), P.G.S. of W.; Ald. Candlish, M.P., 661 and 97; J. Potts, J.P., P.M. 94, P.P.G.S.D.; E. D. Davies, P.P.G.J.W. Durham, P.G.D. of C. (Northumberland); P. Huistendahl, P.M. 80, P. Prov. G.P.; F. Elwen, P.M. 80, P. Prov. G.S.D.; M. Douglass, P.M. 80, P. Prov. P.G.S.D.; S. J. Wade, P.M., 80, P. Prov. G. D. of C.; R. Dixon, P.M., 89, P. Prov. G.P.; J. Riseborough, P.M., 94, P. Prov. G.P.; R. Hudson, P.M., 949, P. Prov. G.D. of C.; J. Stainsley, P.M., P. Prov.

G.S.B.; G. Lord, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; W. Skelton, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; T. Hanson, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D.; J. J. Clay, I.P.M.; J. Forster, J.W., 949; T. Riley, J.W., 1389; R. B. Lutert, P.S.W., 94; W. Walker, 124, (Durham) P. Prov. G.C.; C. C. Corfield, 1050, (Rochester).

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The annual meeting for the celebration of St. John's Festival, and installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Dr. Beaumont, R.N., came off with great éclat at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 12th inst., when the following brethren were present:—C. F. Long, W.M.; Rev. E. I. Lockwood, D.P.G.M.; R. B. Barton, L.L.D., D.P.G.M., Western India (Scotch Constitution); B. Monckton, S.G.D. of England; Clement Cobbold, 33°, of Brazil; F. G. Fairclough, R.A., P.S.G.D. Malta; Emra Holmes, P.G. Reg., Suffolk; P. Cornell, P.P.G.S.D.; Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.P.G. Chaplain; R. W. Beaumont, R.N., S.W.; S. Wright, J.W.; C. Schulen, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., Treasurer; W. Spalding, P.M., Sec.; A. D. George, S.D.; J. J. Burton, J.D.; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, I.G.; W. Boby, P.M.; A. J. Barber, P.G.O., P.M.; P. de Long; W. Elliston, M.D., P.M., &c. Lodge having been opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, Lieut. Edward Chadwick, 7th Dragoon Guards, was balloted for, elected, and initiated into the mysteries of the Order, Bro. Barber performing the ceremony with his customary ability. Lodge being opened in the second degree, Bro. the Rev. J. B. Tweed, Rector of Chapel, was duly passed as a Fellow Craft, Bro. Cornell having assumed the gavel, on the Worshipful Master's invitation, and conducted the ceremony. Bro. Emra Holmes introduced his motion for the reduction of the subscription of non-resident members, and observed that he had received a letter from an officer in the army, at Winchester, whom he named, on the subject, an extract from which he would venture to read:—"It was my intention," the writer said, "to have withdrawn my name, as the subscription is too heavy for an absent member, but seeing your notice of motion in The Freemason, I decided not to do so until I heard the result, and it will be such as to enable me to continue on the books of a lodge whose membership I much value." Bro. Holmes remarked that the opinion he had quoted, he believed, was shared by many absent members, but he should not trouble the brethren with a speech on the occasion, as he had already, in giving notice of his motion, laid the matter before the lodge. He believed it would be to the advantage of the lodge to adopt his motion. Bro. Lockwood regretted very much that he should have to dissent entirely with Bro. Holmes in this matter, but he could think of no advantage the lodge could gain by accepting Bro. Holmes' motion, but rather the contrary. The wearing the centenary jewel was a privilege they could not guard too jealously, and it would be a pecuniary loss to the lodge to accede to the motion to reduce the subscription of non-resident members, who might still wish to wear the jewel as bona fide subscribing members of the lodge. Bro. Schulen also opposed the motion, and was followed by the W.M. The opinion of the lodge being generally against the motion, and no one having seconded Bro. Holmes, his proposition fell to the ground. The installation of Bro. R. W. Beaumont into the chair of K.S. was then proceeded with, all brethren below the rank of Installed Master having retired. The ceremony was very ably performed by Bro. Monckton, S.G.D. of England. The brethren having been admitted, the W.M. was saluted and proclaimed, and the usual charges were given with considerable elocutionary power by the Installing Master. The W.M. then proceeded to appoint, and the Installing Master to invest and to charge, the following officers for the ensuing year:—S. Wright, S.W.; A. D. George, J.W.; J. Burton, S.D.; Rev. A. W. G. Moore, J.D.; C. Schulen, Treas.; W. Spalding, Sec.; Rev. T. G. Beaumont, Chaplain; Emra Holmes, M.C.; H. Miller, I.G.; G. Spalding, Tyler. The usual routine business of the lodge having been disposed of, the brethren, numbering about 35, dined together in clothing, a recherché banquet being prepared by Bro.

Spalding, to which no exception, except on the score of attendance, could well be taken. The viands were good. Several brethren contributed to the harmony of the evening by giving selections of both vocal and instrumental music. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and the W.M., in giving the toast of "The Grand Officers, Past and Present," coupled with it the names of Bro. Monckton, S.G.D. (who had so kindly come from town on purpose to install him, and had performed the ceremony so admirably) and Bro. Barton, P.P.G.M., Western India. Bro. Monckton, on rising to respond, was received with great cordiality and warmly applauded. In a speech which was excellent and pithy, Bro. Monckton thanked the brethren for the kind way in which they had drunk his health. As to the ceremony, he disclaimed the praises of the W.M.; he had no doubt there might be little differences in working, but he had worked by the rule of the Emulation Lodge, which many brethren would admit was the best. Bro. Barton also responded in a neat and happy speech. The learned brother is a practised speaker, and is always listened to with great pleasure. Bro. Clement Cobbold, 33°, of Brazil, responded on the part of the visitors, and expressed the pleasure he felt at being amongst them that evening. Several other toasts followed, and it was at a late hour the brethren separated, well pleased with the proceedings, which had been characterised throughout by a thoroughly Masonic spirit of love and harmony.

HULL.—Kingston Lodge (No. 1010).—The annual installation ceremony of this lodge took place at the Masonic Hall, Worship-street, on Wednesday, Dec. 4th, when a large number of its brethren with visitors from the Humber Lodge, Hull; Minerva, Hull; Sykes, Driffield; Londesbro', Bridlington; Metham, Stonehouse; and the Aurora, Valparaiso, were present. In the absence of the Worshipful Master, Bro. G. C. Roberts, P.P.G.Reg., N. and E. Yorks., the chair was occupied by the Rev. C. J. Todd, I.P.M., P.P.G.Reg., N. and E. Yorks., supported by several W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and P. and Prov. Officers of N. and E. Yorks. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the last regular lodge were read and confirmed. The W.M. Elect, Bro. James Pyburn, M.D., was then presented by Bro. C. J. Todd, I.P.M., P.P.G.Reg. to Bro. Simeon Moseley, P.M., P.J.P.G.W., N. and E. Yorks., for installation as W.M. for the ensuing year. The Secretary having read the usual obligations, and the W.M. elect having assented thereto, the ceremony of installation was proceeded with. The Board of Installed Masters consisted of the following brethren:—T. Mosely, P.M., 1010, P.J.P.G.W.; L. W. Longstaff, P.M., P.J.P.G.W.; C. J. Todd, I.P.M., 1010, P.P.G.Reg.; Copland, P.M. 1010, P.P.G.S.B.; R. A. Maullier, P.M. 1010, P.P.G.Sup.Wks., N. and E. Yorks.; Vivian, W.M., 57; Tesseyman, P.M., 57; Keyworth, P.M., 57, P.P.G.S.Wks.; Thompson, W.M., 250; Turner, W.M., 1040; Smith, I.P.M., 734. The ceremony was most impressively performed, according to ancient custom, by the Installing Master. After the brethren had been re-admitted, the newly-installed W.M. was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees, and the following brethren were appointed and invested as officers for the ensuing year—viz.: G. C. Roberts, P.Pr.G.R., I.P.M.; E. W. Garforth, S.W.; F. A. Hopwood, P.Pr.G.S.B. (South Wales), J.W.; J. L. Seaton, P.M., P.J.Pr.G.W., Chaplain; R. A. Marillier, P.M., P.Pr.G., Supt. Wks., Lecture Master; C. Copland, P.M., P.Pr.G.S.B., Treas.; L. W. Longstaff, P.M., P.J.Pr.G.W., Orator; James Kay, Sec.; H. E. Hulbert, S.D.; H. P. Cator, J.D.; C. J. Todd, P.M., P.Pr.G.R., Director of Ceremonies; W. D. Keyworth, P.M., P.Pr.G. Supt. Wks., Almoner; P. C. E. Strömer, Organist; W. H. Wheelwright, Inner Guard; S. Walliker, J. S. Moss, and T. B. Johnson, Stewards; John Norton, Tyler. The addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren were effectively given by the Installing Master, who on resuming his seat received, on the motion of the W.M., a hearty vote of thanks, which was carried by acclamation. Bro. Copland, P.M. Treas., presented the annual balance sheet, which showed a good financial result. The lodge was then closed in due form, and with solemn prayer, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent and well served banquet at the Royal Station Hotel. The W.M. presided, and was supported by the whole of his officers, and a goodly number of visitors. The whole of the arrangements were admirably carried out under the superintendence of Bro. C. J. Todd, D.C. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed, and some excellent speeches elicited in response thereto. Bro. J. L. Seaton, P.M., P.J.P.G.W., in eulogistic terms proposed the health of the W.M., and in doing so, alluded to Bro. Pyburn's Masonic career, commencing as I.G., and working through the whole of the offices to the chair. He anticipated a successful year for the lodge under his rule. The toast was heartily received; and the W.M., in replying, assured the brethren that the business of the lodge should be conducted with thoroughness, and that when he vacated his chair at the end of the year, he trusted the brethren would not find him unworthy of the high honour they had conferred upon him. The toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by the S.W., and was ably responded to by Bros. Vivian, W.M. 57; Thompson, W.M. 250; Smith, I.P.M. 734; Turner, W.M. 1040; and Captain Pena, of the Chilian Navy, Aurora Lodge, Valparaiso, and a joining member of the Kingston Lodge. Bro. Pena stated that on leaving the Aurora Lodge, the brethren had specially requested him to convey hearty good wishes to the English brethren. On this, the first opportunity, presenting itself, he had great pleasure in delivering the message, and intimated that it was his intention during his stay in England to study English Masonry in all its details.

ABERYSTWYTH.—Aberystwith Lodge (No. 1072).—The installation (and 7th anniversary) meeting of this flourishing lodge (numbering 70 members) was held at the Masonic Rooms, Belle Vue Royal Hotel, on Monday, the 2nd inst. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. J. W. Szlumper, W.M., supported by his officers and a large muster of members and visitors, among the latter of whom were the distinguished Bro. Capt. S. G. Homfray, D. Prov. G.M. Monmouthshire; Bro. Jesse Baker, and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. stated that at the request of Bro. G. T. Smith, P.M., Prov. G. Sec., he should vacate the chair; and Bro. Smith having taken the gavel, initiated into Freemasonry, Messrs. W. A. Davies, Arthur J. Hughes, and John Kitto, subsequently delivering the charge and the lecture on the tracing board in his usual faultless style. We may be allowed here to draw attention to our W. and W. Bro. Geo. T. Smith's services in Freemasonry. He was one of the founders of 1072, in 1865; occupied the W.M.'s chair three years in succession (on the last occasion by dispensation): has up to the present anniversary installed the subsequent Masters of the lodge, has been at all times willing to wear any collar, from I.G. upwards as necessity might require, and to his instruction the P.M.'s and members of the lodge owe in a great measure their proficiency. Bro. Szlumper having resumed the chair, the lodge was opened in the 2nd and 3rd degrees, when Bro. William Williams, F.R.C.S., S.W., had the honour of being presented to the installing Master (Bro. C. Rice Williams, M.D., P.M.) by the D. Prov. G. M., Bro. Major J. A. Lloyd Philipps, of Mabws, to receive the benefit of installation. A Board P.M.'s of having been duly formed Bro. W. Williams, who has nearly completed his 76th year, was installed into the chair of K.S. by the Installing Master, after which the brethren, having respectively been admitted, he was saluted in the three degrees. We congratulate Bro. Dr. C. Rice Williams on two grounds: first, for the manner in which he performed the ceremony of installation, and for the accuracy and nerve with which he delivered the various addresses, and second upon his good fortune in having the honour of installing his father into the chair he (the I.M.) so worthily occupied two years since. The W.M. then resumed the lodge into the second, and first degrees, and invested his Officers as follows:—J. W. Szlumper, I.P.M.; J. Pugh Jones, S.W.; Stanley J. Balcombe, J.W.;

Rev. John Jones, Chaplain; John Vaughan, Treasurer; C. Rice Williams, Secretary; Edward Hamer, S.D.; Jonathan Pell, J.D.; George Careswell, I.G.; E. V. Rees, Tyler. It was unanimously resolved that the day of meeting be altered to the first Thursday (in lieu of the first Monday) of the month. Votes of thanks were carried by acclamation to the I.P.M. and to the Installing Master, and the lodge was closed in ancient form. The brethren (to the number of about 50) then adjourned to a banquet served in first class style.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the headquarters of the 1st Surrey Rifles, Camberwell, on Thursday, the 12th inst., Bro. George Waterhill, W.M., being supported by Bros. W. J. Messenger, J.W.; J. H. Hastie, S.D.; M. S. Larlham, J.D.; H. Hammond, I.G.; T. W. Carnell, Steward; and by Bros. S. H. Wagstaffe and James Stevens, P.M.'s. Amongst those present were Bros. Alexander, Willis, Eldridge, Peckham, Hale, Gray, Fountain, Garland, &c.; and visitors, W. P. Collins, No. 70, Plymouth; E. Hughes, W.M. 217; A. W. Lilley, W.M. 12; G. Phythian, 22; W. Rees, 22; T. Wilkins, 33; E. Tinley, 1085; H. W. Gompertz, 1364; and T. Hubbard. The lodge having been opened, ballots were taken for Bro. W. P. Collins, of St. John's Lodge (No. 70), Plymouth, as joining member, and for Mr. William Dudin, as candidate for initiation, and which proved clear. To the great regret of the large majority of the brethren, the ballot for another candidate was adverse, a circumstance which has not hitherto occurred in this lodge, and at which there appeared to be an almost general expression of surprise. This untoward occurrence naturally detracted from the customary comfort and regularity with which the working of this lodge is conducted, and it was the outspoken opinion of most of the members that the objectors could have secured the withdrawal of the proposal without disturbing the unanimity of the proceedings. The lodge having been opened in the second degree, Bros. Peckham, Eldridge, and Collins proved their F.C. proficiency and retired. Bros. Peckham and Eldridge were then raised to the degree of M.M. by the W.M., and Bro. Collins by Bro. Stevens, P.M., his personal friend and introducer. Bro. H. T. Alexander was passed to the degree of F.C., and subsequently Mr. William Dudin was introduced and initiated into the Order. Propositions for initiation at ensuing meeting were made, and the lodge was closed, the brethren adjourning to a frugal supper, and separating with every confidence that the exceptional circumstance which had somewhat clouded the pleasures of the meeting would not again occur to disturb their harmony.

HALIFAX.—Ryburne Lodge (No. 1285).—The festival of St. John the Evangelist was celebrated on Wednesday, Nov. 27, by the brethren of this lodge, held at the Royal Hotel, Sowerby Bridge, Halifax. After the transaction of the lodge business, Bro. J. Marshall was duly installed W.M. for the year by Bro. Dr. Elliott, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D., and Bro. Isaac Booth, P.M., P. Prov. G.S. of W., Bro. Tasker, P.M., acting as S.W., and Bro. Perkinson, P.M. and P. G.M.M. as J.W., Bro. Kendall P.M. as D.C., and Bro. Wilkinson W.M. as I.G. At the close of the installation ceremony, the W.M. proceeded to invest his officers, taking the opportunity of expressing his deep obligation to the lodge for placing him in the honourable position of W.M. The following were then invested:—Bro. J. Nicholl, S.W.; Bro. J. Wells, J.W.; Bro. J. D. Wilson, Treasurer; Bro. J. H. Shaw, Secretary; Bro. B. Wood, S.D.; Bro. J. Stansfield, J.D.; Bro. J. Greenwood, I.G.; Bro. T. Lloyd, Chaplain. Subsequently an excellent banquet was served by Mr. Marsh. The chair was filled by Bro. E. W. Crossley, the Immediate Past Master, in the absence of Bro. Marshall, in consequence of recent severe domestic bereavement, with whom all the brethren deeply sympathised. The loyal toasts were given from the chair, the Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces being proposed by Bro. Ebb P.M., and responded to by Bro. Kendall, P.M. The Most W.G.M. and Prov. G.M. of West Yorkshire, the Marquis of Ripon, was proposed in complimentary terms by Bro. Booth,

P.M. The Deputy G.M. and P.G. Officers was given from the chair, and responded to by Bro. Perkinson. The W.M.'s and Past Masters of lodges was introduced to Bro. Wells, and responded by Bro. Tasker, P.M. The toast of the evening, the W.M. of Ryburne Lodge, was given from the chair, Bro. Crossley remarking that one of their duties was to afford consolation to their brethren in the hour of affliction. The reason he presided on that occasion was from a circumstance which in the providence of God had fallen to their Bro. Marshall—in the death of his wife—a circumstance which all present deeply regretted; and the pleasure which he otherwise would have enjoyed on such an occasion, was mixed with much sorrow, in which he was sure all present shared. A man better suited and better qualified to fill the position in which Bro. Marshall was placed it would be difficult to find, or one more devoted to the interests of the Craft in general. The toast was received without the usual demonstration of feeling, in consequence of the circumstances named. Bro. Boothroyd proposed the Wardens and other Officers of Ryburne Lodge, the response being given by Bros. Nicholl and Wells, the two Wardens. The Visiting Brethren was proposed by Bro. J. Gaukroger, J.W. of Probity, and responded to by Bro. A. Walshaw, of St. James's Lodge, 448. The Masonic Charities was proposed by Bro. A. Matthewman, and responded to by Bro. Fisher, P.M. of Probity. Other toasts, including "Poor and Distressed Masons," were given and honoured. An excellent glee party was present, and sang at intervals glees and part songs with much credit. Altogether a very pleasant evening was spent by the company.

EBURY LODGE (No. 1348).—The first anniversary meeting of this well established and prosperous lodge, was held on Tuesday, 26th November, at the Morpeth Arms Tavern, Pensonby Street, Millbank. Bro. John Coutts, P. G.P., P.M., W.M., at three o'clock p.m., opened the lodge. There was a large number present to support him. The minutes of the last regular lodge were read and unanimously confirmed. The report of the audit committee was read; it showed a good balance in hand after every liability was met; it was received and adopted. The work done was raising Bro. J. Gildersleeve to the third degree, passing Bros. Brooke, Jackman, Burnett and Dunn, to the second degree, and initiating three gentlemen into the Order. Then followed the installation of Bro. W. Bourne, S.W. and W.M. elect, P.M. 749, of which lodge he was once a member. The whole of the ceremonies were well and ably rendered. The officers for the ensuing year are Bro. J. Summers, S.W.; T. Verity, J.W.; J. Elliott, Secretary; Roberts, S.D.; J. Verity, J.D.; A. J. Ireton, I.G. Three brethren were admitted as joining members. It was, on the motion of Bro. A. J. Ireton, unanimously resolved, that the initiation fee be increased to seven guineas, and the joining fee to four guineas. The banquet and dessert were well served by the host, Bro. J. Palmer, which gave universal satisfaction; nearly one hundred sat down to it. The great event of the meeting was the presentation to the esteemed first W.M., of a ten-guinea Past Master's jewel, solid gold, from lodge funds, to which was supplemented a beautiful gold watch and a gold neck chain, given from the voluntary subscriptions of the members, as a slight recognition for valuable services rendered, and of esteem and gratitude. We read with pleasure the following inscription which is on the watch, viz: "Presented to Bro. John Coutts, P.M., P.G.P., by the brethren of the Ebury Lodge, No. 1348, as a mark of esteem, and in recognition of his valuable services as first W.M. of the lodge, November 26th, 1872." Bro. J. Coutts, in a sensible good speech, acknowledged the gifts. The routine toasts were given, and the brethren separated early.

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—Baldwin Lodge (No. 1389).—The ordinary monthly communication of this lodge was held on Monday evening last, in the Masonic Temple, The Castle, Dalton-in-Furness. Bro. Reuben Pearson, W.M. of Lodge of Furness, Thornton (997), presided, supported by Bro. John Case, P.M. 997; W. Whiteside, S.W.; J. Postlethwaite, J.W.; F.

H. Clark, Treasurer; J. Tyson, Secretary; W. Horn, S.D.; F. Bell, J.D.; H. Kendal, S.S.; J. Walton, I.G.; and T. Cooper, Tyler. The other brethren of the lodge present were Bros. J. Fisher, R. Blake, P. Wurzberger, T. Grieve, F. Postlethwaite, J. Hartley, and J. Harrison. The visiting brethren present were Worshipful Bro. Roger Dodgson, W.M. of Whitwell Lodge, Millom (1390), and Prov. G. Sword Bearer, Cumberland and Westmoreland; Bro. Thomas Dodgson, P.M. 995; Bro. J. H. Matthews, P.S.W. and W.M. elect 995; and Bro. James Robinson 995. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Thomas Dodgson, P.M., proceeded to confer the third degree upon Bro. Dalzell. The third degree was also duly conferred upon Bro. Spark, by W. Bro. Roger Dodgson, W.M. Bros. Moses and Atkinson were then consecutively passed to the F.C. degree, by the presiding W.M., Bro. Pearson. The several ceremonies were performed in an accomplished manner, and the working was witnessed with great interest by all present. Two candidates were proposed for admission. Hearty good wishes from lodges 1390 and 995 were expressed. The questions in the second degree having been put round, the lodge was finally closed at 9.45 p.m.

UNITED PILGRIMS' LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 507).—We are requested to notice the intended removal of this well-known lodge of instruction from its hitherto place of meeting at Shepherd's-lane, Brixton, to the Antelope Tavern, Lorn-road, Brixton, where its meetings will be resumed on Friday, the 3rd day of January, 1873. The members of this lodge of instruction, in common with many brethren on the Surrey side, are greatly interested in the proposed erection of the New Masonic Hall at Camberwell, and had hoped that the necessity for a removal might have been avoided until the anticipated accommodation the new hall will afford could have been secured. Their new quarters are, however, very commodious and convenient, and they hope to be enabled to carry on their work there with comfort, and until a final removal to private rooms is possible. Their first meeting at the Antelope will be devoted to the working of the Fifteen Sections, under the presidency of their esteemed preceptor, Bro. John Thomas, P.M., &c., and we have no hesitation in recommending brethren desirous of Masonic improvement to support the lodge on that occasion.

Mark Masonry.

MACDONALD MARK LODGE (No. 104).—This lodge held its regular meeting at the head quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, Camberwell, on Saturday, the 14th inst., when were present the W. Bro. Charles Hammerton, G.D.C., &c., W.M.; W. Bro. Dr. Eugene Cronin, G.S.D., P.M.; V.W. Bros. Thomas Meggy, P.G.O.; and James Stevens, P.G.O., &c., P.M.'s; Bros. A. Wolton, S.W.; W. Worrell, J.W.; Berridge, M.O.; T. White, S.O.; Ritherdon, I.G.; White, Sec., and W. C. Hale. The very unfavourable weather, and other circumstances, prevented the attendance of numerous other brethren, from whom apologies were received. The candidates for advancement were likewise unfortunately unable to attend, and there being in consequence no work before the lodge, advantage was taken of their absence to rehearse in full detail the new ritual, which has lately been perfected by the Board of General Purposes, and approved by the M.W.G.M.M. The alterations and improvements in the working of the degree were fully explained during the rehearsal, and met with the approval of all present. Propositions for advancement at ensuing meeting were taken, and the lodge was closed in due form.

BOLTON.—St. John's Mark Lodge.—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 11th December, at the lodge room, Commercial Hotel, Bolton, when there were present:—Bros. R. Harwood, P. Prov. G. Deacon, W.M.; Wm. Hamer, S.W.; Jas. Newton, J.W.; John Alcock, J.O.; W. H. Jones, Secretary; G. P. Brockbank, Past Grand Warden, Treasurer; Jas. Horrocks, Conductor; John Rutter, S.D.; John Harwood, J.D.; Thos. Entwistle, R.W. Prov. Grand Superintendent, Lancashire; C. F. Matier, J.G. Warden of England; Geo. Galloway, Prov. J.G. Warden; John Brandwood, Prov. J.G. Deacon; Thos. Morris, Prov. G. Sword Bearer; Robert Whitaker, P. Prov. G.A.D.C., and others. The lodge was opened in form at half past six o'clock, in the evening. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Bro. Isaac Simeon, of Lodge 1403, Ormskirk, as a candidate for advancement, the result being that he was unanimously elected and he being in attendance, together with Bro. E.W. Dawson, of Lodge 343 Preston, previously elected was advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master by the W.M., Bro. Harwood. Bro. the Rev. Geo. Raymond Portal, M.W. Grand Mark Master, was unanimously elected an honorary member of the lodge. This being the meeting for installation of Master, the W.M. Elect. Bro. William Hamer, Past Master of the Lodge of Charity, No. 350, Stoneclough, and P.Z. of the R.A. Chapter of Meribah, No. 350, was duly installed as Master of St. John's Mark Lodge by the R.W. Bro. Thos. Entwistle. The W.M. made the following appointments of officers for the ensuing year, and the brethren appointed were severally invested with their jewels of office by Bro. C. F. Matier, J.G. Warden, viz:—Bros. Jas. Newton, S.W.; John Alcock, J.W.; W. H. J. Jones, M.O.; Jas. Horrocks, S.O.; John Harwood, J.O.; G. P. Brockbank, (elected) Treasurer; J. W. Taylor, Registrar of Marks; John Rutter, Secretary; Jas. Richardson, Conductor; Jas. Markland, S.D.; Job H. Greenhalgh, J.D.; Jas. Allen, Inner Guard; Wm. Dawson, Tyler (elected). A committee was appointed to consider the present bylaws of the lodge with the view to their revision. The lodge was closed at nine o'clock and the brethren then adjourned to the refreshment table.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

IPSWICH.—Victoria Chapter Rose Croix.—The usual meeting of this chapter was held on Monday, the 9th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, when there were present M. Ex. Bro. W. T. Westgate, M.W.S.; Ill. Bros. Rev. R. N. Sanderson, 30°, P.M.W.S., and Emra Holmes 31°; Ex. Bros. C. T. Townsend, P.M.W.S., Recorder; Dr. Mills, 1st General; Rev. T. G. Beaumont, Prelate; E. Robertson, 2nd General; P. Cornell, G. Cresswell, and others. Ill. Bro. Sanderson, as usual, assumed the chair at the request of the M.W.S. This being the meeting for the election of M.W.S. for the ensuing year, the ballot was taken, and the Rev. T. G. Beaumont was unanimously elected to that high office. The announcement was received with applause, and we may now confidently look forward to a return of that prosperity which visited the chapter two years ago, when, in numbers and importance, it was second to few under the beneficent ways of the Supreme Grand Council. Ex. Bro. Crechon was elected, by a large majority, Treasurer to the chapter, and serving Bro. Spalding was duly nominated by the M.W.S., and accepted as Janitor. Ill. Bro. Sanderson, moved that a record should be made on the minutes of the deep regret felt by the chapter at the death of our Past Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander, Dr. Beaumont Leeson. He had died, it was true, full of years, but nevertheless his loss must be lamented, and they were that evening, in obedience to the commands of the Supreme Council, met together in the garb of mourning for the illustrious brother. Ill. Bro. Emra Holmes cordially seconded the motion, asserting that, in his estimation at least, there had never been and never would be a greater Mason than Dr. Beaumont Leeson. The motion was thereupon put and carried. A brother was proposed for installation and perfection at the next regular meeting, and the question of the status of honorary members having been raised, it was ordered to be submitted to the S.G.C. for decision with reference to Ill. Bro. Emra Holmes's motion, made some time since, to confer that honour upon the founders of the chapter, at the same time reserving to them all their rights and privileges as private members. The third point having been given, and the cup of memory passed round, the chapter was declared closed, and the E. and P. Princes retired for refreshment.

CONSECRATION OF LA LOGIA DE LA IBERIA No. 1411.

The consecration of the above lodge took place at Bro. Wetherell's residence, Hill Road, St. Johns' Wood, on Thursday, December 12th. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Henry Muggerridge, P.M., the officer appointed by the M.W. Grand Master, the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., in a most solemn and impressive manner, Bro. Henry Muggerridge then installed Bro. Nathan Wetherell as first Master of the lodge, and invested the following brethren as the officers, viz:—Joseph K. Rumford, S.W.; Edward T. Foord, J.W.; Gilchurst, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to Bro. Pau's and partook of a most elegant banquet. Bro. James Clemmans of the Panmure Lodge, 715, discharged the duties of Organist in an admirable manner. Among the visitors present were Bros. Eglese, P.M. 90, S. Muggerridge, 192; J. Griffin, P.M.; T. P. Griffin, F.M.; Bro. Kennedy, and others.

FREEMASONRY IN BALLARAT.

The annual installation of the W.M. and officers of the Yarrowee Lodge, No. 713, E.C., was celebrated at the British Queen Hotel, on Thursday, 12th September. The lodge was opened at 6 p.m., when the following brethren were installed in their respective offices by Bro. Wm. Scott, P.M., who conducted the ceremony of installation in a very efficient and impressive manner:—Bro. W. Little, W.M.; Bro. Geo. Spencer, S.W.; Bro. Sam. J. Morgan, J.W.; Bro. Joseph Izod, S.D.; Bro. Robert T. Wrexford, J.D.; Bro. Thomas White, I.G.; Bro. Richard Gibbings, Treasurer; Bro. Henry H. Peake, Secretary; Bro. Isaac Dean, Steward; Bro. Thos. King, Organist; Bro. John Rae, Tyler. The banquet commenced at nine o'clock, when about sixty brethren sat down to a most recherche repast, provided by host O'Meara, who really excelled himself on this occasion. The hall was beautifully decorated with garlands of evergreens and shrubs in pots, the walls being hung with flags of all nations, and Masonic emblems, painted for the occasion, by Bro. Brunn. Among the many visitors who honoured the lodge with their presence may be particularly mentioned, Bro. J. R. Trevor, W.M., and officers of the St. John's Lodge; Robt. C. Lindsay, W.M., Havilah Lodge, Creswick; Edward Bradshaw, W.M., Buninyong Lodge; Joseph Morgan, W.M., Orion Lodge; D. McMillan, P.M., Sebastopol Lodge; J. F. Weickhardt, W.M., All Nations Lodge, Clunes; Henry Cuthbert, P.M.; W. Robertson, P.M.; D. Oliver, P.M.; E. J. Bateman, P.M.; Thos. Purves, P.M.; Jno. McCartney, P.M.; Thomas Cowan, Robert Lewis, C. M. Watson, Charles Salter John Cuthbert, and F. M. Claxton.

Having partaken of the good things provided, the following toasts were given by the W.M.—“The Queen,” with musical honours and three cheers; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the Earl of Zetland, Past Grand Masters of England—musical honours and three cheers. The three Grand Masters—The Marquis of Ripon, Earl of Rosslyn, and Duke of Leinster. Masonic fire. Song by Bro. Bardwell—“Pilgrim Fathers,” accompanying himself on the piano. Bro. Sleep proposed the health of “the District Grand Master, under the English Constitution, and the Provincial Grand Masters under the Irish and Scotch Constitutions.” Bro. Robertson, P.M., proposed the health of the W.M. of the Yarrowee Lodge, and complimented the lodge upon the very excellent selection it had made in the choice of such a good and enthusiastic worker in the cause of Masonry.

The W.M., Bro. Little, responded in very feeling terms, and thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him, and trusted that his year of office would be marked as one of prosperity, and before sitting down proposed the health of the Sister Lodges.

The W.Ms. of the Havilah Lodge, Buninyong

Lodge, St. John's Lodge, Orion Lodge, Mc-Millan, Sebastopol Lodge, responded on behalf of their respective lodges, and complimented the Yarrowee Lodge on the energy displayed, and all regretted that such re-unions were not of more frequent occurrence.

Bro. Josephs, P.M., proposed the health of the Immediate Past Master Bro. Henry Davies, complimenting him upon the efficient manner in which he had conducted the lodge during his term of office.

Bro. Davies, in responding, stated that he felt afraid, on taking the chair after so many good Masters, who had each left the lodge in a prosperous condition, that his term would not be so successful, more particularly seeing the commercial depression which had taken place; but he was happy to say that, with the assistance of his officers, he had succeeded in leaving the lodge in a more prosperous condition, the receipts having been a trifle larger and the expenditure less than in former years.

Bro. Oliver, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Wm. Scott."

Bro. Scott responded in suitable terms for the kind manner in which the toast of his health had been received, and stated that he was proud to see that the young Masons of the present day were likely to succeed where the old Masons of sixteen years ago had failed, viz., in the erection of a Masonic Hall, and called upon the brethren to exert themselves so as to free the hall from debt by the time they received the key from the architect.

Bro. Davies, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Newly-installed Officers."

Bros. Geo. Spencer, S.W.; Morgan, J.W.; and Izod, S.D.; responded on behalf of the officers, for the honour conferred.

Bro. John Cuthbert proposed "The Health of the Past Master and Past Officers of the Lodge."

Bro. Sleep, P.M., and Bro. Josephs responded.

Bro. Gibbings, P.M. proposed "The Health of the Visitors," and stated that as the new hall would be for the use of the district, the brethren generally would rally round the two lodges, and assist by their contributions in freeing the hall from any liability, and that by the next installation the brethren would meet in their own building.

Bro. Daniels, from New Zealand, responded on behalf of the visitors, and stated that in all his travels, although he had the opportunity of visiting many lodges, he had never been better entertained.

Bro. Henry Cuthbert, P.M., proposed "Success to the New Masonic Hall," and was proud to see so many old faces whom he had seen many years ago, and thought that the reason the old Masons had not succeeded in their endeavours to erect a hall, was that their ideas in those days were so extravagant that they thought £5000 to £6000 necessary; but now they found that about £1200 would be sufficient to meet all their present requirements, which included the sum of £200 paid for the land in Camp-street; and hoped that the brethren would aid in the endeavours of the lodges in completing what had been so energetically commenced. (Three cheers.)

Bro. Radcliffe proposed, in a very humorous and affecting manner, "The Health of the Ladies."

Bro. Robert Lewis responded on behalf of the ladies.

Bro. Davies proposed "The Health of the Host and Hostess," who had catered for the lodge in a very handsome manner during their occupation of the house.

Bro. Scott, P.M., at the request of the host Bro. O'Meara, responded on his behalf.

The Tyler's toast of "Poor and Distressed Brethren, wherever they may be dispersed over land and water," which was drunk in solemn silence, brought the evening to a very agreeable termination.

The brethren who assisted so ably by their musical abilities in rendering éclat to the occasion were Bros. Thomas King, D. Oliver, W. Bardwell, Thos. White, Brunn, Daniels, Holmuth, and J. R. Trevor. These gentlemen also sang some very appropriate music during the installation, Bro. King officiating at the piano and organ.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, December 27, 1872.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, DEC. 21.

Lodge 1364, Earl of Zetland, Old Town Hall, Hackney.
Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dilley, Preceptor
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.
Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, DEC. 23.

Chapter 188, Joppa, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. Beckett, Preceptor.
Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7.
Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottheil, Preceptor.
British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.
St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (180), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.
Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dilley, P.M. 1155; Preceptor.
St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.
West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, DEC. 24.

Audit Committee Girls' School, at 2.30 p.m.
Lodge 92, Moira, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-st.
" 186, Industry, Freemasons' Hall.
" 205, Israel, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-st.
" 1348, Ebury, Morpeth Arms Tavern, Millbank.
Chapter 29, St. Albans, Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street.
Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.
Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.
Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8. Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.
Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.
Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.
Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.
Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.
Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.
St. Marybone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's wood, at 8 Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, (50), Wheat-sheaf Hotel, Hand-court, Holborn, at 7; Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M. 180, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 25.

Lodge 212, Euphrates, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-st.
" 507, United Pilgrims, Horns Tavern, Kennington-park.
" 754, High Cross, Seven Sisters Tavern, Page-green Tottenham.
" 898, Temperance in the East, 6, Newby-place, Poplar.
Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Maismore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, DEC. 26.

General Committee, Girls' School, Freemasons' Hall, at 4.

Lodge 34, Mount Moriah, Freemasons' Hall.
" 65, Prosperity, Guildhall Tavern Gresham-st.

The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall.
Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London, st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Panmure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.

United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.

Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.

Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.

Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsoby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, DEC. 27.

St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.

Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggenridge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.

Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.

Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.

Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.

Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.

Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.

Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.

Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.

Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.

Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.

Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.

Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.

St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 33, Brompton-road, S.W.

United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Antelope Tavern, Lorn-road, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.

Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.

St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

MASONIC MEETINGS IN LIVERPOOL, &c.

For the Week ending Saturday, December 28, 1872.

MONDAY, DEC. 23.

Chapter of Friendship, Masonic Temple, Liverpool.

TUESDAY, DEC. 17.

Everton Chapter, Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.
Hamer Lodge (No. 1393), 2A, Windermere-street, Bick-road, Everton, Liverpool, at 6.

Merchants' Lodge of Instruction (241), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.

Downshire Lodge of Instruction (594), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 7.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 25*.

St. George's Lodge (No. 32), Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, at 4.

Derby Lodge (No. 724), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.

Stanley Lodge (No. 1325), Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, Liverpool, at 6.

St. John's Lodge of Instruction (No. 673), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 8.

Neptune Lodge of Instruction (No. 1294), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 7.

De Grey and Ripon Lodge of Instruction (No. 1356), 40, North-hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool, at 6.30.

THURSDAY, DEC. 26.

Chapter of Sacred Delta, Masonic Hall, Liverpool, at 6.

Lodge of Harmony (No. 220), Wellington Hotel, Garston near Liverpool, at 5.30.

Downshire Lodge (No. 594), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 6.

Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction (No. 1182), 150, Park-lane, Toxteth-park, Liverpool, at 7.

FRIDAY, DEC. 27.

Sefton Chapter, Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 5.

* Being Christmas it is probable these meetings will be adjourned.

Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs Gabriel's Coralite Tooth-paste and Royal Dentifrice sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box, completely destroy and remove these animalcules and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs Gabriel, the old established dentists, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Barbey-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Bro. Emra Holmes's Lecture 827
 Consecration of a Lodge at Stratford 827
 Consecration of a Rose Croix Chapter at Brighton 828
 Consecration of a Chapter at Car narvon 829
 CORRESPONDENCE :—
 Bro. Holmes's Notes..... 829
 CRAFT MASONRY :—
 Provincial 830
 Poetry..... 832
 Reviews 832
 Masonic Meetings for next week 832
 Advertisements..... 825, 826, 833, 834, 835, 836
 EXTRA SHEET :
 Title Page and Index to Vol. V.
 MARK MASONRY :
 Provincial 837
 Masonic Ball at Darlington..... 838
 Masonic Ball at Rochdale 839
 Grand Lodge Affairs..... 839
 Interesting Art Presentation at Liverpool..... 840
 Grand Orient of France 842
 CORRESPONDENCE :—
 A Correction..... 842

BRO. EMRA HOLMES'S LECTURE ON THE "UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL."

NOTES BY LUPUS.—No. 1.

I venture to trouble the readers of The Freemason with a few remarks upon statements made in recent portions of Bro. Holmes' lecture, and to offer for consideration such additional historic facts as appear to me necessary to prevent erroneous inferences on the points to which I propose to refer.

I much appreciate the labour of Bro. Holmes, and I pen these lines with a full conviction that he will read them as being published with a complete absence of any discourtesy to himself.

I will first address myself to the existence of the present English langue of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, of which His Grace the Duke of Manchester is Grand Prior; with a view to its being known to your readers, once for all, what this body is. Bro. Holmes says, at page 711:—"Between the years 1826 and 1831, an English langue had been re-organised under the authority of the French Knights;" and he subsequently refers to it as "a Protestant body, under the Duke of Manchester, appointed by themselves." These brief notices constitute the main references to it. At the same page Bro. Holmes tells us that during the congress of Vienna, "several knights formed a General Chapter at Paris under the Prince de Rohan" and petitioned the Congress for the sovereignty of an island in lieu of Malta, but without success. Let me now call attention to the fact that these "several knights" were appointed by a Chapter General assembled at Paris in 1814, and formed a commission, which was confirmed by Pontifical Bull of Pope Pius VII. on the 10th of August in that year, and was recognized by the then Sacred Council of the Order by an instrument dated the 9th of October following, and addressed to seven distinguished Baillis and Commanders of the Order, including the Prince de Rohan. This commission treated on behalf of the whole Order at the Congress of Vienna in 1814; with the French King and Chambers in 1816; again at the Congress of Verona in 1822. On many other important occasions it exercised powers of a fully representative character, and its numerous and important services met the approval of the Order. It will thus be seen that instead of "several knights" the French Commission was an important and authorised body, treating on behalf of the Order with congresses of nations and with royal governments. The English langue, as it now exists, was revived by deeds, or articles of convention dated the 11th of June, 1826, and the 24th of August and 15th of October, 1872, made by the knights then composing the French Commission, at chapters representative of five out of the eight divisions of the Order, and the Langue has pursued an unobtrusive career to the present date; it has no connection with Freemasonry in any shape, and therefore, offers no rivalry to any Masonic body.

The roll of the English Langue probably does not record more than 150 names, but amongst the number may be found very many which are historically distinguished, as well as representatives of the highest attainments in the world of science. The revenue of the Langue is devoted to the relief of convalescent patients of some of our hospitals, as well as to other objects, having for their intention the benefit of our suffering fellows, whilst its aid in the cause of the sick and wounded during the recent calamitous war, and the brave and indefatigable exertions of many of its members, both abroad and at home, have been before the public and are well known. The additions to the ranks of the Langue may generally be seen in the Times, and no secret is sought to be made of its operations.

There are no doubt members of the Order in England who are of the Roman Catholic Faith, and who derive their appointment from the Roman Council of the Order, but whether a Priory of these Knights has been established, or not, I am unable to say. There is room for all, and I shall gladly learn that difference of faith can, at all events, make no difference in work pro utilitate hominum. I have written this article only in reference to that body, of which the members mostly belong to the Church of England and I express my conviction that the Langue which they compose has still before it a future of much social importance in the country, and, let us hope, of advantage to its suffering poor.

CONSECRATION OF THE LANGTHORNE LODGE (No. 1421), AT STRATFORD, E.

That the cause of Freemasonry is making rapid progress in the East-end of London, is a fact too well known amongst the members of the Craft to admit of a single doubt, and which a perusal of the Masonic Calendar will at once establish, as year after year we find new lodges added to the long list of those already flourishing in and around this vast metropolis.

Thursday, the 12th of December, 1872, will be a day long to be remembered by the Freemasons of Stratford and the surrounding neighbourhood, it being the day on which the Langthorne Lodge was ushered into existence, with more éclat than the most sanguine of its promoters could have anticipated. In so populous a town as Stratford, containing, as it does, many zealous and painstaking members of the Craft, the want of a "local habitation" has long been felt by them, and several difficulties have had to be overcome ere the promoters of the new lodge felt they could present a petition likely to find favour with the Grand Master and his officers. Happily, their efforts have been crowned with success, and the new lodge was solemnly consecrated and dedicated on Thursday last, at the Strand Hotel, Stratford, E., by the very Worshipful Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary (the officer appointed by the Grand Master), assisted by Bros. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain; the Very Worshipful John Boyd, Grand Pursuivant; the Worshipful James Brett, Past Grand Pursuivant; R. Wentworth Little, Prov. Grand Secretary Middlesex; and Bro. James Terry, P. Prov. G. S.B. Herts. The ceremony was fixed to take place at 3 o'clock, by which hour not less than 150 brethren had assembled to meet the Grand Officers, and to witness the beautiful ceremony of consecration. The Grand Officers having arrived, and assumed the regalia of their several offices, a procession was formed, which marched to the lodge room under the direction of Bros. R. Wentworth Little, and Thos. Mortlock, Acting Directors of Ceremonies.

Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, (as consecrating officer) then assumed the chair, and appointed as his Wardens pro. tem.; Bros. James Brett, P.G.P., S.W.; and James Terry, P.P.G.S. B. Herts, J.W.

The lodge was opened in the three degrees, and an address on the nature of the meeting delivered by the presiding officer. Prayer was then offered by the Chaplain; after which Bro. R. Wentworth Little, on behalf of the brethren of the new lodge, addressed the presiding officer, praying him to constitute them into a regular lodge. The brethren of the new lodge, were then arranged in order, and the petition and warrant having been read by the Acting Secretary, the brethren signified their approval of the officers named therein in Masonic form. The Presiding Officer then formally constituted the lodge, and a beautiful oration on the nature and principles of the Institution was delivered by the Chaplain, which was listened to with rapt attention, and gained for the reverend brother the ecomiums of all present. The anthem (133rd Psalm) "Behold how good and joyful" was then sung, and the first portion of the dedication prayer offered by the Chaplain, followed by the Sanctus "Glory be to thee Oh Lord" by the Choir. A portion of Scripture (2nd Chron., 2nd Chap. v. 1 to 16.) having been read by the Chaplain, the Lodge board was uncovered, and the Elements of Consecration carried three times round the lodge by the presiding Officer and Wardens pro. tem. The lodge was then solemnly dedicated, and the Anthem "Glory be to God on High" sung, after which the censer was taken three times round the lodge by the Chaplain, who delivered the second portion of the dedication prayer. The lodge was then constituted by the presiding Officer, and the Anthem "Glory to God in the Highest" brought the ceremony of Consecration to a close. The lodge was then resumed in the second degree, and Bro. Charles Lacey, P.M., 174. (W.M. designate) was presented by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, to the presiding Officer, for installation as the first W.M., which ceremony was also performed by Bro. Hervey. No fewer than thirty-eight Installed Masters were present, and witnessed the induction of Bro. Charles Lacey into the Chair of the lodge. The newly installed W.M. appointed and invested the following as his officers viz., Bros. G. T. W. Mugliston, S.W.; Geo. E. Slee, J.W.; Geo. Levick, Treasurer (pro. tem.); C. W. Ashdown, P.M., Secretary; R. G. Owen, S.D.; B. Cundick J.D.; Geo. Hollington, I.G. T. Mortlock, P.M. (in the absence of Bro. Stevens) D.C. pro. tem.; and H. Carter, W.S.; The address to the W.M. was delivered by Bro. Hervey; that to the Wardens by Bro. Jas. Brett, and that to the Brethren by Bro. Terry. Bros. Hervey, Rev. R. J. Simpson, Boyd, Brett, Terry and Little, were unanimously elected honorary members of the lodge, and several propositions for brethren as joining members made, and the lodge closed in due form.

The brethren then adjourned to the banquet-room, where about 50 sat down to a most sumptuous repast, served in a style that reflects the highest credit upon the worthy host, Bro. Kirby, and gave the greatest satisfaction to all present. The attendance was good, and the wines of excellent quality. The chair was occupied by the W.M., supported by the whole of the Grand Officers, with the exception of Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, who, through a prior engagement, was unfortunately compelled to leave after the closing of the lodge. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured. "The Health of the W.M." (Bro. Lacy) was proposed by Bro. Hervey, who expressed the great pleasure it afforded him, as representative of the Grand Master, to have consecrated the Langthorne Lodge, and he trusted that, under the management of so experienced a Mason as Bro. Lacey, it would become a prosperous and flourishing lodge, and take a very high rank in the Craft. The toast of "The Masonic Charities" was responded to by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, on behalf of the Girls' School, and by Bro. Jas. Terry on behalf of the Benevolent Institution for Aged and Distressed Freemasons and their Widows. The speeches of these brethren were delivered with that force and persuasiveness for which they are so justly renowned when pleading the cause of these or any other charities, and the result, as might be expected, was that a goodly sum was added to the list of the W.M., who has undertaken to represent the lodge as Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution in February next.

Altogether, a most pleasant and enjoyable evening was spent, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close, shortly after 11 p.m. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. G. T. Carter, assisted by Bros. Lawler, Hodges, and Jeckyll (of Westminster Abbey), who sang several songs, glees, &c., during the evening.

The banqueting-room was most tastefully decorated with flags, evergreens, shrubs, &c., and reflected the highest credit upon the taste and skill displayed by the Stewards, Bros. Mortlock and Owen, who undertook this portion of the labour. The furniture and jewels were much admired, as was also a beautiful banner bearing the arms of the ancient Abbey of Langthorne, and presented to the lodge by Bro. Jno. G. Stevens, one of the founders, whose absence on the occasion, through severe indisposition, was greatly regretted by the brethren.

CONSECRATION OF A ROSE CROIX CHAPTER IN BRIGHTON.

On Friday, the 6th December inst., the Supreme Council 33° of the Ancient and Accepted Rite for England and Wales and the Colonial Dependencies of the British Crown, visited Brighton for the purpose of consecrating and establishing the Eureka Chapter, Rose Croix, which will henceforth hold its regular meetings at the Masonic Rooms in the Pavilion.

The following members of the Council were present on the occasion:—The M.P. Sovereign Grand Commander of the Order, Bro. Charles J. Vigne, P.G. Commander of Dorset and P.P. Senior Grand Warden of Somerset; the V.P. Lt. Grand Commander, Capt. N. G. Phillips, P.G. Commander of Suffolk and Cambridge and P.P. Senior Grand Warden; the Grand Chancellor, General H. Clerk, P.G. Commander of Kent; the Secretary General, J. M. P. Montagu, Deputy Prov. Grand Master of Dorset; accompanied by Bro. W. Hyde Pullen, 33°, P.D.P.G.M. of Isle of Wight, Secretary to the Council, and P.G.S.B. of England. The remaining members—viz.: The Earl of Carnarvon, Deputy Grand Master of England; Sir Michael Costa; Col. A. W. Adair, Past Deputy Prov. Grand Master of Somerset; the Rev. E. H. H. Vernon; and Dr. R. Hamilton, District Grand Master and Superintendent of Jamaica—were unavoidably prevented from attending.

The following Brethren, members of the Order, on whose petition the Chapter has been granted, were present to receive the Supreme Council:—Ill. Bro. Major Shadwell Clerke, 32°, P.M.W. Sov., (P. Prov. G. Com. West Indies and P. Prov. Sen. Grand Warden, Devon); Ill. Bro. Charles Horsley, 30° (Pro. G. Reg. Middlesex); Ill. Bro. Jabez S. Gower, 30°; Ill. Bro. Capt. J. R. Molyneux, 30°; Ill. Bro. H. Dubosc, 30°, M.W. Sov. Huyshe; Ex. Bro. Capt. Edward Walker, 18°; Ex. Bro. M. B. Tanner, M.D., 18°, M.W. Sov. Nominate; Ex. Bro. J. Lucas Allen, 18°; Ex. Bro. Charles J. Smith, 18°; with Ex. Bro. T. Lane, 18°, Metropolitan Chapter.

The Supreme Council having entered the Chapter Rooms in procession, and having taken their seats, a Chapter of the Order was, by their command, opened by Bro. W. Hyde Pullen, 33°, and the following candidates for admission to the Order, being in attendance, were duly perfected and received therein.—Bros. J. Lanson, W. R. Wood, J. Wood, H. G. Kennedy, the Rev. E. Walker, T. H. Mosely, T. J. Sabine,

T. Trollope, M.D.; M. D. Sayers,—the ceremony being most impressively performed by Bros. W. Hyde Pullen, and Major Shadwell Clerke. At its conclusion, the Supreme Council, having retired, shortly after re-entered the Chapter Room in procession, attended by their principal officers, and were received by all the brethren under the Arch of Steel, and having called on the Grand Marshal to read the Patent of Constitution, the M.P.S.G. Commander proceeded to constitute the "Eureka" as a lawful Chapter of Rose Croix, and declared it regularly enrolled as such in the archives of the Order.

Bro. Dr. M. B. Tanner, 18°, the M.W. Sovereign Nominate for the ensuing year, was next installed in his high office, with the customary ceremonies, by Bro. W. H. Pullen, and thereupon appointed the following as his officers:—Bros. the Rev. E. Walker, H.P.; C. Horsley, 1st General; Captain Molyneux, 2nd General; T. J. Sabine, Recr.; J. S. Gower, Treas.; C. J. Smith, Grand Master; T. Trollope, R.; W. R. Wood, C. of G.; J. W. Lanson, H.; H. Dubosc, D. of C.; and J. Hughes, O.G.

The M.W. Sovereign, having appropriately acknowledged the kindness of the chapter in electing him as its first M.W. Sovereign, then, in the name of the chapter, thanked the members of the Supreme Council for the honour they had that day done them by being present, to which the M.P. Sovereign Grand Commander replied in suitable terms.

Votes of thanks were then proposed and carried unanimously to Bro. W. Hyde Pullen, for his admirable rendering of the various ceremonies of the day; to Bro. Major Shadwell Clerke, for the great assistance and service he had rendered in the establishment and fitting of the chapter; to Bro. Capt. Edward Walker, for similar services; and to Bro. J. S. Gower, for his handsome promised gift of a loving cup.

A committee was appointed to draw up by-laws, and the usual concluding ceremonies having been performed, the chapter was duly closed. The brethren subsequently dined together at Markwell's Royal Hotel.

A unanimous feeling of gratitude was most warmly expressed by all the brethren for the great kindness shewn to the chapter by Mrs. M. B. Tanner, the wife of its M.W. Sovereign, in having at a short notice undertaken the preparation of the handsome and elegant fittings of the chapter, a task of which she acquitted herself with the greatest success.

We congratulate the Masons of Brighton on the introduction amongst them of "The Ancient and Accepted Rite of Masonry,"—a long-established Order, which is universally known and is esteemed in all quarters of the world, and which is extending itself in England most rapidly, a result not to be wondered at, considering its nature and merits, and the social position of its members, many of whom hold the highest positions in Craft Masonry, to which it is not only unantagonistic, but is in strict accord therewith. We take this opportunity of mentioning that the beautiful Chivalric Degrees of the Orders of the Temple and Malta are also about to be established in Brighton, a preceptory being in course of formation. These Orders are on the eve of receiving additional éclat from the circumstance of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales being about to assume the active Grand Mastership of the United Orders; in the three kingdoms.

CONSECRATION OF A ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER AT CARNARVON.

Nothing is more pleasing to the Fraternity than to see Masonry flourish in all parts, and nothing affords us greater gratification than to be able to announce in these columns that another "Red-letter day" has taken place, for when this term is used it is understood that another lodge or chapter has been opened. It is but a few weeks since that, in our report of the meeting of Grand Chapter, the brethren may have observed that a charter had been granted to certain companions to open a chapter to be attached to the Segontium Lodge at Carnarvon, and Tuesday week was the day fixed for its consecration, and the choice of a consecrating officer having been left by the members to Comp. Emanuel, M.E.Z. designate, he prevailed on Comp. W. Littaur, P.M. and P.Z., who had previously installed him as W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, and with whom he has been and is still associated, in the several degrees of Masonry, to accompany him to Carnarvon, as well to consecrate the chapter as to instal him as First Principal.

The companions, consisting of Littaur, P.Z. Joppa Chapter; Worrall, M.E.Z. Grosvenor Chapter; Jones, M.E.Z. Zion Chapter; the Hon. Love-Jones Parry, M.P.; M. Emanuel, P.S., No. 188; Humphreys, Hathaway, Poole, and others having assembled at 2 p.m., a chapter was opened, Comps. Littaur, Worrall, and Jones filling the three chairs, Comp. Poole acting as S.E., and the Hon. Lloyd Parry as D.C. The S.E. having read the warrant, the chapter was duly consecrated and dedicated by Comp. Littaur, in a manner which elicited the hearty approval of the companions present, and after the usual three circuits with corn, wine, and oil, Comp. Littaur delivered the following oration:—

Companions:—King Solomon, when he determined upon building the temple at Jerusalem, sent word to Hiram, King of Tyre, saying: "Behold I build an house to the name of the Lord, my God, to dedicate it to him." In like manner, in our humble way, we have this day consecrated the Segontium Chapter to the honour and glory of the Most High, for henceforth will be taught in it that there is in the world but one master, whose name is J——. Freemasonry in general teaches us we are all children of the same father, and ought consequently to love one another. Hence it is that Masons, without being personally acquainted, at once become friends; and without being relations, at once become brothers. It also tells us that our individual happiness is inseparably connected with that of all our fellow creatures, whether Masons or not Masons, and therefore, if it depended upon us Masons, the whole world would form but one single and happy family. As in Craft Masonry, so are we inspired in the Royal Arch by that Book of Books which serves to guide us Masons as the compass the mariner. Considering the doctrines of the R. A. in particular, I have no hesitation in saying that they are identical with those of the ancient mysteries, of which Plato, in his Phaedo, says, "that their object was to restore the soul to its primitive purity, and to bring it back again to that state of perfection whence it had fallen." The R. A. therefore, forms, so to speak, a mystic ladder, by means of which, like on another Jacob's ladder, we may ascend from perfection to perfection, and, let us hope, finally, to God, the centre and universal centre of all that exists. In the R. A. we gain a better knowledge of that most extraordinary mortal who had stamped on the chosen people its original character and imperishable nationality, to whom we are indebted for Genesis and the Tables of the Law—viz., Moses. We also gain a better insight of those two personages who could do all manner of work, and who were appointed by the Lord for the work of the tabernacle; who made the Ark, the mercy-seat with the two cherubims, the table of Shittimwood with the vessels of pure gold; the candlestick with the seven lamps of pure gold; the altar of pure gold, that of burnt offerings; the laver of brass, and the holy priestly garments. The more, therefore, we penetrate into the R. A. Masonry, the more we find its rites most sublime, its ethics stern and severe, and its promise supremely consolatory.

In the Campo Santo, or cemetery, at Brescia, in Lombardy, stands an immense lighthouse, the top of which is illuminated both day and night by a most brilliant light. This light concerns not the mariner on the watery ocean, for Brescia has no seaport, but it concerns all of us, who are still floating on the ocean of this life. The fact is this beacon is constantly pointing to the grave. It is a kind of memento mori, incessantly reminding us of the inevitable destiny awaiting us. Now I consider the doctrines contained in the . . . with respect to a future state of existence, do not go beyond what is intended to be conveyed by the Brescia lighthouse, for even the . . . foreshadowed but dimly the doctrine of the Resurrection. It is in the H.R.A. only where the momentous question of the hereafter is thoroughly taken up and satisfactorily solved, for it tells us in forcible and unmistakable language we shall live, and thus impresses on death itself the seal of immortality. I therefore consider the R.A. to be the ne plus ultra of Masonry. This being so, I think only those ought to be allowed to partake of its mysteries whose moral and religious character will bear the strictest investigation. Should we therefore ever become guilty of introducing into this earthly R.A.—intended to become an Arch of Alliance between heaven and earth—we most assuredly shall have to account for it hereafter. The Egyptians, to intimate that anything heard or seen in their mysterious celebrations might never be divulged, set up the statue of Harpocrates with his right hand on the breast, his left pendant by his side, the whole statue being full with eyes and ears, but without a tongue. The Greeks had at Athens a statue of brass, without a tongue; and finally, the Romans had also their goddess of Silence, depicted with the forefinger on her lips. In like manner, and following the illustrious example of . . . who rather . . . let us constantly set a watch over that unruly member, the tongue, that it may never utter what we were so solemnly cautioned never to reveal, and let our motto always be: "Prius mori, quam fidem fallere."

The companions having signified their approval of the three Principals as named in the warrant, Comp. Michael Emanuel, W.M. Lodge of Israel, Robert Humphreys, I.P.M. Segonitum Lodge, and Thomas Hathawaze, P.M. Bangor Lodge, were presented to the installing officer to receive the benefit of installation, and all companions below that rank having retired, they were installed in the several chairs with the usual formalities. The companions were then re-admitted and having saluted, the M.E.Z. returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him, not alone for being the head of the first working chapter in the Principality, but also for his name being attached to the warrant as such, and that long after he had gone to the Grand Lodge above his name would be handed down as one who had been earnest in his endeavours to promote the prosperity of Masonry and the happiness of the brethren. It was then resolved that Comps. Littaur, Worrall, and Jones, the three acting Principals at the consecration, be elected honorary members of the chapter. As no candidates can be exalted on the day of consecration an equally as pleasing a matter as the consecration took place. The Hon. Love-Jones Parry and Major Platt being proposed as joining members, and no less than 18 brethren, nearly all members of the Segontium Lodge, being proposed for exaltation, a number which fully promises stability to the chapter, and we have no doubt under the careful guidance of the three Principals, who appear to be proficient in Masonry, the chapter will soon prove as prosperous as any in the Craft, and having as their M.E.Z. Comp. Emanuel, W.M. of Lodge of Israel, and P.Z. of Joppa Chapter, they will have the advantage of being instructed in the working of the London chapters, a task for which he appears fully fitted, and we trust that now he has arrived at the top of the ladder he will not rest contented until he has by instruction assisted others to the same position.

The regalia, furniture and the whole of (which was of oak to correspond with the fittings of the room) was supplied by Comp. George Kenning, of London, and as usual gave entire satisfaction

Original Correspondence.

BRO. EMRA HOLMES'S NOTES.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hope you will kindly permit this letter to follow the article I have contributed on "The Order of St. John," so that I may explain that it was written and sent for insertion in the week preceding the Grand Conclave (where I was unable to be present), and not after I had seen the very positive statements which were there made. I am glad that General Clerk has put on record his very proper objection to what has the appearance of attempting to interfere with an existing body.

The Duke of Sussex was, no doubt, Grand Prior in England of the French Ordre du Temple (which was not a Masonic body), but this did not convert the English Masonic Templars into members of the French Order. I do not know that the French Order is extinct, but (without offering any opinion upon objections which have been made to the French Order) I entirely deny that, if it be so, the Masonic Order has a right to assume its title. There have been nearly 170 public Orders of Knighthood in Europe which are now extinct. Can it be said that Freemasons may select, and assume the title of, any one of these? I deny that the Duke of Sussex was ever appointed by the Emperor of Russia, or by any constituted authority, Grand Prior of the Order of Malta in England. I further venture to state that the Duke of Sussex was not a member of any branch of the original Order, as I will show, if I have the opportunity to contribute the few articles I at present propose to do. If the Duke had been ever appointed Grand Prior of the genuine Order, it could have no effect whatever upon any Masonic body to which he belonged.

I have shown, in the foregoing article that the knights who met in Paris were an authorised body of distinguished and honoured members of the Order, and if it is a matter of consequence in the estimation of any who join in these discussions, I may state that they were not a Protestant body; but I would further add that the documents relating to the revival of the English Langue declare that no departure from the laws of the institution shall take place "but for the modifications required for the religion of the United Kingdom," as the Langue "must be in harmony, in respect of religion, with the Anglican church, and with the Grand Priorities of the reformed and Greek religion of Brandenburg and Russia." The body thus revived, and now under the rule of the Duke of Manchester, continues an unostentatious existence, has never interfered with any Masonic institution, and it does not appear to me seemly that it should be dragged into a discussion for the purpose of making comparisons upon the right of a Masonic body to appropriate a name or title. Surely these assertions of such strange claims can be made without the addition of observations reflecting upon a fraternity whose efforts are unobtrusively directed only the amelioration of human ills. An official publication of this body says; "No one can interest himself with the state of our poorer brethren and especially with those of them reduced to inactivity by accident or disease, without feeling the absolute necessity of something more suitable to the exigency than what is afforded by public charity; especially, perhaps, in the case of convalescents, where, through lack of timely and easily administered aid, many valuable lives are daily sacrificed, and those dependent on them are reduced to hopeless pauperism." Again: "The precise objects which the Order had before it no longer exist for modern workers, but others sufficiently like them cry aloud for our sympathy, and moreover enable us to show that our profession is not an empty phantom, a mere thing of sentiment and romance, but that in the varied needs around us it sees an enemy to be attacked, and in its own position and power a means of attacking the same with good hope of success."

Fraternally yours,

LURUS.

Answers to Correspondents.

The following Reports and Communications stand over:—Notes on the Orders of the Temple and Hospital, by Bro. Emra Holmes. Mark Lodge No. 102; Moore Mark Lodge; Reports of Lodges 302, 1353; Chapters 279, 17 s.c., 175 s.c.

Public Amusements.

Sadler's Wells Theatre.

On Monday evening, December 30th, 1872, and following evenings, will be produced the Grand Christmas Comic Pantomime, entitled, GOODY TWO-SHOES; or, Harlequin King Gold and the World of Coins. Written and adapted by J. Strachan from the late W. Brough's Burlesque opening. Supported by Messrs Hudspeth, Leigh, Evans, Skinner, Cullen, Belasco, Howard, Sidney, and Power; Mesdames Brunah, Rainbow, Keridge, Newton, Cross, Fenton, Durham, French, Jones, Davis, Thompson, and Wilkes; Masters Holland and Steyne. "The Enchanted Wood." "Cottage of Goody Two Shoes." "Beauty's Boudoir." Grand Ballet, by Mademoiselle Rosine, supported by an extensive troupe of coryphees, "The Realm of Toys (Peace)." "English Homestead in the Olden Time." "The Pavilion of King Gold in the World of Coins." "The Realm of Toys (War)." "Capital City of the Counterfeits." "A Fairy Glade." "Down Among the Coals." The Magnificent and Dazzlingly Brilliant Transformation Scene, the "Judgment of Paris." Designed and Executed by R. M. Hyde. Clown, Mr. G. W. Gale; Pantaloon, Mr. Bousfield; Harlequin, Mr. Baker; Columbine, Miss Florence; Harlequina (by desire), Madlle. Rosine; Sprites, the Carlo Troupe; Policeman, Mr. J. Wilson. Doors open at half-past 6, commence at 7 o'clock. Stage Manager, Mr. C. T. Burleigh. Gallery, 4d.; Pit, 6d.; Pit Stalls, 1s.; Boxes, 1s. 6d.; Reserved Circle, 2s. 6d.; Private Boxes, One Guinea. Half-price:—Boxes, 9d.; Reserved Circle, 1s. Private Entrance—Open on Saturdays and Mondays at half-past 5, Gallery 7d., and all other parts of the house 6d. extra.

Victoria Theatre.

On Monday, December 30th, 1872, and every evening until further notice, will be produced at an enormous expense, and on a scale of unparalleled splendour, a Grand, Glittering, Gorgeous, Comic Christmas Pantomime, entitled GULLIVER and the Fair Persian; or, Harlequin King Lilliput and the Magic Balm! Written by Frank W. Green, Esq. "The Retreat of Past Pantomimes, Illuminated by the Light of Other Days." Messrs Prescott, Swift, and Parker; Mesdames Maude, Collins, Mumford, Elton, Montague, Collier, Fisher, and Burleigh. "Hall in the Palace of King Rampageous, the Reckless." Messrs Shepherd, Dudley, and Jackson; Mesdames Harrington, Farren, Cooke, Maitland, Tuskey, Leonard, Ellen Leonard, and Brian. "Haunt of the Witches." "Diana's Hunting Grounds in Jinnistan." Mesdames Allen and Empson. Grand Ballet, by Madlle. Rosine and Corps of Coryphees. Mesdames Mountford, Leonard, and Smith. "Country Road Leading to the City of Brobdingnag." Messrs Fawn and Skinner. "Kitchen in the Giant's House." Messrs Jean Lemaire, Lacy, and De Vere; Master Magrath. "Gates of the Lilliputian City." "Imperial City of Lilliput." Mesdames K. Henderwick, L. Henderwick, and Hayes; Master Mat Henderwick. "On the Road." Mr. Biss-Marque. "Fortress of the King of Brobdingnag." "Chamber in the Palace of King Rampageous the Reckless." "Shades of Evening." Glorious Transformation Scene—"The Temple of Jupiter." Designed and Painted by R. M. Hyde. Clown, Jean Lemaire; Pantaloon, Harry C. Parker; Sprites, by the Flying Wonders, Brothers de Vere; Harlequin; W. W. Lacy; Harlequina, Miss Lottie Mountford; Columbine, Miss Rose Fuller; No. 999 of the X.T.C. Force, Mr. Hicks. To conclude with the drama of DOMINIQUE THE DESERTER; supported by the Company. Prices:—Private Boxes, £2 2s., £1 11s. 6d., and 10s. 6d.; Stalls, 2s.; Promenade, 1s.; Pit, 6d.; Gallery, 3d. (Mondays and Saturdays, 4d.). Half-price to Stalls only at 9 o'clock. Doors open at half-past 6, commence at 7.

Royal Polytechnic.

Great Programme for Christmas. 1. The History of a PLUM PUDDING, with striking experiments, by Professor Gardner. 2. A Christmas Tale; or, HOW JANE CONQUEST RANG THE BELL; an Illustrated Poem, with remarkable effects. 3. The "ZOO" AT THE "POLY," an anecdotal discourse about the Zoological Gardens, by Mr. J. L. King, with Photographs by Mr. York. 4. The THREE ROSES; or, the Invisible Prince in a New Light: a fairy tale, musically narrated by Mr. George Buckland, assisted by Miss Alice Barth, Miss Pulham, and Miss Lillie Bartlett. 5. The WHITE LADY OF AVENEL, the new and beautiful Ghost Illusion. 6. New CHARACTER ENTERTAINMENT, by Mr. Percy Vere. 7. The wonderful SWIMMING FEATS of Marguis Bilbero in the Great Tank. 8. The MAGIC TUB, full of Toys, to be distributed on specified occasions, to good Children. Many other Entertainments. Open daily, at 12 and 7. Admission 1s.

Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

On view a Magnificent Marriage Group of H.R.H. THE PRINCESS LOUISE and the MARQUIS OF LORNE, also a new portrait Model of DR. LIVINGSTONE, the great AFRICAN EXPLORER; the "Chaimant," Sir Roger Tichborne; Hudson, the "Railway King"; and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES in the Robes of the Order of the Garter. Open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Admission 1s., Children under 10, 6d. Extra Rooms 6d.

LIVERPOOL THEATRES, &c.
Week ending January 4.

- ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE, Lime-street.—Lessee, Bro. E. Saker. Grand Christmas Pantomime, "Cinderella or the Prince, the Phoenix, and the Pumpkin."
- ROYAL AMPHITHEATRE, Great Charlotte-street.—Lessee, Mr. H. Leslie; Manager, Mr. Arthur Garner. Annual Pantomime, "Prince Bluecap, or the Enchanted Rose of the Coral Isle."
- PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE, Clayton-square.—Lessee, Mr. Semon Parry. "Endymion," and "Vesta's Temple."
- THEATRE ROYAL, Williamson-square.—Lessee, Bro. De Freece. Grand Pantomime, "Lucifer-land, or Harlequin Sir Brano the Brave, or the Fairy Casket of Phantom Castle."
- S. JAMES'S HALL, Lime-street.—Proprietor, Bro. S. Hague. Special Christmas Programme.
- CIRCUS, William Brown-street.—Holden's Comic Manii kins, with Pantomime of "Blue Beard."
- NEWSOMES CIRCUS, Whitechapel.—Proprietor, Mr. James Newsome. Special Programme and Pantomime, "Jack the Giant Killer."
- NEW STAR MUSIC HALL, Williamson-square.—Manager, Bro. Saunders. Opera, and Special Holiday Attractions, including Grand Ballet Extraraganza, "King of the Peacocks."
- ROTUNDA THEATRE and MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Grannell. Christmas Pantomime, "Babes in the Wood," and Miscellaneous Entertainments.
- TEMPLE OF MAGIC, Camden-street.—Professor Anderson and Family.—World of Magic.

NOTICE.

The Subscription to THE FREEMASON is now 10s. per annum, post-free, payable in advance.

Vol. I., bound in cloth	4s. 6d.
Vol. II., ditto	7s. 6d.
Vol. III., ditto	15s. 0d.
Vol. IV., ditto	15s. 0d.
Reading Cases to hold 52 numbers ...	2s. 6d.

United States of America.

THE FREEMASON is delivered free in any part of the United States for 12s. per annum, payable in advance.

The Freemason is published on Saturday Mornings in time for the early trains.

The price of the Freemason is Twopence per week; annual subscription, 10s. (payable in advance.)

All communications, letters, &c., to be addressed to the Editor, 198, Fleet-street, E.C. The Editor will pay careful attention to all MSS. entrusted to him, but cannot undertake to return them unless accompanied by postage stamps.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1872.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

STOCKPORT.—Lodge of St. John (No. 104).—On Monday, the 9th instant, the Installation of the Worshipful Master of this lodge, and Festival of "St. John's," as it was Masonically termed, took place at the Old Admiral, Hillgate. Upwards of 50 Brethren were present including Bro. Kirk, W.M. 1045, P.G.O.; Bro. Beresford, P.M. 104, P.S.G.D.; Bro. Fleming, W.M. 322; Bro. Sudren, P.M. 1045; Bro. Sykes, P.M. 104; Bro. Wood, P.M. 104, P.G.O.; Bro. E. T. Plews, P.M. 1161; Bro. S. P. Bidder, P.M. 104; Bro. R. Jackson, P.M. 104; Bro. J. Bladon, P.M. 317; Bro. Aspinall, W.M. 287; Bro. W. Greatorex, P.M. 287; Bro. W. C. Fleming, W.M. 322; Bro. J. H. Sillitoe, W.M. Business commenced at half-past three o'clock; the installation ceremony being very ably performed by Bro. Goodacre, the retiring W.M., assisted by Bros. Beresford, and Sykes. The W.M. elect was Bro. Charles Pepper, of Moss Side, Manchester. The following brethren were invested with the insignia of their respective offices by Bro. Beresford, P.S.G.D.:—Bro. W. H. Wakefield, S.W.; Bro. J. Moore, J.W.; Bro. W. Goodacre, P.M., Treasurer; Bro. H. Finch, Secretary; Bro. C. Cooke, S.D.; Bro. J. Swindells, J.D.; Bro. G. Shaw, I.G.; Bros. T. Potts, R. K. Payne, G. Barber, Stewards; Bro. W. Gee, Tyler. At the close of the lodge business the names of three candidates for initiation were announced, and after the usual expressions of goodwill from the members of other lodges present, the lodge was closed in due form at six o'clock. At the subsequent banquet the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed; the speeches being chiefly of a complimentary and congratulatory character. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Collier, with Bros. Edmondson, W. Dumville, and Lovatt as vocalists. In proposing the toast of "The Provincial Officers," Bro. Goodacre referred to the fact that the lodge had made its mark in the province, as was evidenced by the recent appointment of one of its members, Bro. J. Beresford, P.M., to an important office in the Provincial Grand Lodge. The toast of the evening. The health of the newly installed W.M. was very favourably received, and suitably responded to. The health of the I.P.M. was proposed by the W.M., who referred to the excellent management of the lodge during the past year, which was mainly owing to the assiduous efforts of Bro. Goodacre. The working of the lodge had been such as he (the W.M.) should try to emulate. On behalf of the members of the lodge he had to present Bro. Goodacre with a Past Master's jewel, as a token of the high regard in which he was held by every member of the lodge. The jewel was of very chaste design, of 18 carat gold, and bore a suitable inscription. Bro. Goodacre, in thanking the brethren for this expression of their esteem, and of their appreciation of the manner in which he had fulfilled his duties, congratulated them on the prosperous condition of the lodge. They had during the year initiated no than 25 new members; they had cleared off the adverse balance which had appeared in the Treasurer's annual account for some six or seven years; and they had been able to contribute to the masonic charities the sum of fifty guineas. There was every reason to believe that the lodge would go on and prosper, and that it would make its weight felt in the province. Other toasts followed, and the concluding toast, "All poor and distressed Masons," was given by the Tyler shortly after ten o'clock, when the brethren dispersed.

DURHAM.—Marquis of Granby Lodge (No. 124).—On Tuesday week, Henry Lawrence, Esq., of the Grange Ironworks, was duly elected Worshipful Master of the Marquis of Granby Lodge, No. 124, Durham, and Bro. James Raine was re-elected Treasurer.—On Wednesday evening week, Bro. William Coxon, of the firm of Johnson and Coxon, Durham, was duly elected Worshipful Master of the Earl of Durham Lodge, Chester-le-Street, and John Crawford, Esq., of Lumley Thicks, was re-elected Treasurer.

SWANSEA.—Indefatigable Lodge (No. 237).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Carr Street, on Tuesday, 10th inst. About 50 brethren were present, including five Past Masters, the W.M. of Lodge Prince of Wales, Llanelly, and a few visitors. The lodge was opened at 7 o'clock, and the minutes of the last regular meeting read and confirmed. Bros. Thomas, Struthers, and Gregor, having passed the necessary examination, were raised to the sublime degree by W. Bro. Geo. Bradford, W.M. The brethren then proceeded to elect a W.M. for the ensuing year. The result was unanimously in favour of Bro. W. E. Brown, S.W., who acknowledged the honour conferred upon him in a very appropriate manner. The election of a Treasurer also proved unanimous; W. Bro. Powell, P.M., being elected to that responsible office for the sixteenth time. Bro. Symonds was also re-elected Tyler by show of hands. There being no further business before the lodge it was closed in perfect harmony at 10 p.m.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The regular meeting was held on Wednesday, the 11th inst., at the Masonic Room, Athenaeum. There were present Bros. William Hall, W.M.; Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England, I.P.M.; W. Fleming, S.W.; E. Airey, J.W.; and about forty Past Masters and brethren. After other business had been transacted the ballot was taken for the election of a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, which resulted in the election of Bro. William Fleming, S.W. Bro. James Hatch, P.M., the energetic Treasurer of the lodge, was re-elected to that important office, and Bro. John Watson was re-elected as Tyler. The installation was fixed to take place on Monday, the 30th inst., the ceremony to be conducted by Bro. Dr. Moore, I.P.M., &c. Some communications were made respecting proposed improvements in the accommodation, and the lodge was closed in due form.

STOCKPORT.—Lodge of Concord (No. 323).—The brethren of this lodge on Wednesday evening, the 11th inst., held their annual meeting—their "St. John"—at which Bro. John Hopwood Tatton was installed W.M. for the ensuing year in a very able manner by Bro. Beresford, P.M. No. 104; and P.S.G.D. Cheshire, after which the following brethren were respectively placed in their positions—namely, Bros. John Slack, S.W.; George Roy, J.W.; Josiah Hill, S.D.; Spedding, J.D.; Pritchard, I.G.; Swindells, Sec.; Fearn and Hargreaves, Stewards; Ross, Organist. After labour, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which in this case meant an elaborate banquet, got up by Mrs. Gleave, at the Golden Ball Inn, Millgate, where the lodge meets, in her neat and efficient way, not to be excelled in any particular. The evening passed, as such evenings should, in a particularly pleasant manner. Of course the usual patriotic and Masonic toasts were done ample justice to.

PENRITH—Lodge of Unanimity (No. 339).—On Thursday last the members of this lodge met in their lodge room at the Crown Hotel. The lodge was opened in due form and the ordinary business transacted. The installation of the W.M. elect., Bro. C. J. Smith, was then proceeded with. The solemn and impressive ceremony was performed by Bros. W. T. Greaves, P.P.D.G.M. according to antient usage, in a full lodge of Installed Masters, after which the W.M. appointed and invested his principal and assistant officers for the ensuing year. At 5 o'clock the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet provided by Host Bro. Wagstaff, at which the newly installed W.M. presided. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and most heartily received, and the evening was spent in a truly pleasant and harmonious manner.

HAWORTH—Lodge of the Three Graces (No. 408).—On Monday, the 16th inst., the festival of St. John the Evangelist was celebrated by the Lodge of Three Graces, at the Black Bull Hotel, Haworth. After the lodge business had been transacted, Bro. Frank Hebden, of Halifax, was duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year, according to ancient custom, by Bro. James Charnock, P.M. of the Lodge of St. James, No. 448, Halifax; Bro. Rhodes, of the Royal Yorkshire Lodge, Keighley, acting as S.W.; and Bro. Edward Taylor, P.M. No. 448, acting as J.W.; Bro. Taylor, P.M. of the Scientific Lodge, No. 439, Bingley, as S.D.; Br. Land, P.M., as J.D.; Bro. James Whitham, P.M., as I.G. At the close of the installation ceremony, the W.M., Bro. Frank Hebden, invested his officers, as follows:—Bros. Robert Riley, of the Prince George Lodge, No. 508, S.W.; Thomas Ogden, Halifax, J.W.; W. Wood, P.M., Treasurer; W. Brown, P.M., Secretary; Arthur Woodhouse, Halifax, S.D.; J. Leach, Bradford, J.D.; W. S. Lerrill, Halifax, I.G.; Joseph Whitham, P.M., O.G. The W.M. at the same time took the opportunity of expressing his deep obligation to the lodge. Subsequently an excellent banquet was served by Mrs. Sugden in her usual first-class manner. The W.M. presided, and gave the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, which were heartily received, that of "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces" being responded to by Bros. James Charnock, P.M., Halifax; Granham, Bradford; and Captain Williamson, of the Royal Yorkshire, Keighley. In very complimentary terms, the W.M. proposed the health of "The M.W.G.M. of England, the Right Hon. the Marquis of Ripon, the R.W.D.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and the officers of the Grand Lodge, past and present;" also "The R.W. the Provincial G.M. of West Yorkshire, P.G.M., and Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present." These toasts having been duly honoured, the W.M. proposed "Masonic Charities," which was responded to by Bro. Taylor Bingley. Bro. E. Pawson, the immediate P.M. 408, proposed "The W.M. of the Lodge of Three Graces," which was responded to by Bro. Frank Hebden. "The Senior and Junior Wardens of the Lodge" having been proposed, the toast was responded to by Bro. R. Riley, and Bro. T. Ogden, of Halifax. The health of "The Installing Officer, Bro. James Charnock, P.M.," was proposed by the W.M. in very complimentary terms, thanking him for the honour done in being installed by a brother so very much devoted to the interests of the Craft. "The Visiting Brethren" was proposed by the W.M., and responded to by Bro. Joseph Nichol, of the Ryburn Lodge, Sowerby Bridge, and others. The concluding toasts were "The Marchioness of Ripon, and the Ladies," and "Distressed Masons," both of which were proposed by the W.M.; the former being responded to by Bro. T. Ogden, and the latter by Bro. F. Taylor, P.M. Songs were given by Bros. Charnock, Morley, Asquith, Whitham, and others, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

STOURPORT—Vernon Lodge (No. 560).—This small, yet flourishing lodge, celebrated its annual festival on Tuesday, 17th inst. Originally founded as the Clive Lodge, at Bromsgrove, it was removed in a few years to Dudley; when the name was altered to the "Vernon," so called in honour of the much respected then Prov. G.M. of Worcestershire, Brother H. C. Vernon; but there being already two lodges there, it was found that a third was more than could be adequately supported. At that time several brethren living at and near Stourport, in a quiet country district, miles away from the nearest lodge, determined on having one nearer home, and negotiations were entered into to transfer the Vernon, which in June, 1866, was happily accomplished. Since then the lodge has been steadily prospering. A goodly muster of the brethren assembled at the annual festivity, among whom were Bros. W. Woods, P.M. 280, P.S.G.W.; C. C. W. Griffiths, P. M., W.M. 280, P.P.S.G.W.; Thomas L. Smith, P.M. 280; Fitzgerald, P.M. 377, P.P.G.O; Southall, P.M. 377; J. R. Wood, P.M. 377, P.G.P.; Robins, P.M. 377; Billitzy, P.M. 377, P.P.G.S.B.; and the following Past Masters of the Vernon Lodge:—George Baldwin, Enoch Baldwin, John Blundell, and W. L. Fawcett. Brother G. W. Grosvenor's election having been confirmed in the manner directed by the Book of Constitutions, he was duly installed in the chair of K.S. by Bro. G. Baldwin, the senior P.M., different parts of the ceremony being performed most admirably by Bros. G. Woods, Griffiths, Fitzgerald, and Fawcett. The officers for the current year were invested as follows:—Bros. G. W. Grosvenor, W.M.; W. L. Fawcett, I.P.M.; E. A. Broome, S.W.; Jas. Morton, J.W.; E. Baldwin, P.M., Treas.; J. T. Bedford, Sec.; C. J. Dixon, S.D.; G. W. Naylor, J.D.; G. Cartwright, D.C.; E. Barton, I.G.; W. Mills, Tyler. After business the brethren adjourned to refreshment; a most enjoyable evening was passed; the greatest cordiality of feeling was manifested, not only among the members of the lodge, but also by the numerous visitors present; a hearty determination being expressed to maintain the proud motto on the banner of the lodge, Vernon semper vivet.

ST. HELENS—Lodge of Loyalty (No. 897).—On Tuesday, the 10th inst. the annual festival of St. John was celebrated by the brethren of this lodge at the Assembly Rooms, Fleece Hotel, St. Helens. Among the visitors present were Bros. J. W. J. Fowles, P. Prov. G.A.D.C.; J. Hamer; P.P.G.T.; Capt. Geo. Turner, P.M. 86 and 823; W. Woods, 148, P.M. 1250; J. W. R. Fowler, W.M., 86; S. Wylde, W.M., 1403; R. Young, J.W. 86; R. Cork, S.D., 86; J. W. Wareing, I.G. 86; W. Jameson, Treasurer, 1384; J. Newsome, 86; I. Jones, 148; W. Savage, 148; W. B. Thompson, 180; R. D. Simpson, Secretary, 1394; W. R. Robinson, 1325. The W.M. having opened the lodge, and the minutes having been read, the installation of the W.M. elect. (Bro. William Leather) was proceeded with, the installing officer being Bro. J. Hamer, P. Prov. G.T., by whom the ceremony was performed in his usual efficient manner. The W.M. then proceeded to invest the following brethren as officers for the ensuing year viz:—Bros. W. Harrison, I. P.M.; A. Hanson; S.W.; J. Wolfenden, J.W.; J. G. Dunn, Secretary; H. S. L. Gurney, S.D.; C. C. Wilson, J.D.; Knowles, Org.; J. Kenyon, and W. J. Warren, Stewards; J. Harry, M.C.; J. Appleton, I.G.; and J. Taylor, Tyler. Some other business having been transacted, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. During the evening a very handsome Past Master's jewel was presented by Bro. Hamer, P. Prov. G.T., on behalf of the lodge, to Bro. Harrison, I.P.M., as a cordial recognition of his valued services in the Chair of K.S. during the past two years; this elicited a warm and hearty response from the recipient who took occasion to congratulate the brethren on the present highly gratifying condition of the lodge, and confidently anticipated continued prosperity under the presidency of the newly elected W.M. The brethren finally separated, after having enjoyed a very pleasant and harmonious evening.

LIVERPOOL—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1035).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 12th inst. at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, Bro. G. Morgan, W.M., presiding. There was a large attendance of officers, P.M.'s and visiting brethren, some from Ireland and London. The lodge was opened at 6 o'clock, and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, three brethren were balloted for and elected unanimously. Messrs. Peake, Osborne, and Williams, being in attendance, were solemnly initiated by the W.M. into the sublime mysteries of the Order, and entrusted with the sacred secrets of the first degree. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when four brethren were carefully examined in their Masonic knowledge, and as they proved apt scholars, the lodge was opened in the third degree, when they were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The lodge then proceeded to the election of W.M., when Bro. Sculthorpe, S.W., was declared elected by a large majority. Bro. P. M. Bunting, was also unanimously and by acclamation re-elected Treasurer. It was also agreed that P.M.'s jewels should be presented to Bro. Morgan, W.M., and Bro. Williams, P.M. The widow of a deceased seafaring brother was voted five guineas from the funds of the lodge, and a guinea was granted to a French brother to enable him to return to his native country, the case being supported by Bro. Bucknall. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshments to the "Black Bull." It deserves notice that Bro. Holdens, proprietor of the hall, has made valuable improvements in the interior gas arrangements, the effect of which was especially noticeable in the course of the ceremony of giving the third degree.

LANCASTER—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The meeting for the celebration of the Festival of St. John the Evangelist, and installation of the W.M. elect, took place at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, on Friday, 28th December. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. Wilson Barker, the chair of K.S. was occupied by the I.P.M., Bro. J. Daniel Moore, M.D., P.G.S.B. of England, who was supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. W. Hall, as I.P.M.; W. J. Sly, S.W.; Edward Airey, as J.W.; James Taylor, S.D.; James Bolton, J.D.; J. L. Bradshaw, as I.G.; John Watson, Tyler; Thos. Jackson, Robert Harger, Henry Longman, F.C.; George Sutton, F.C.; visitors, Bros. John Hatch, P.M., 281; Edmund Simpson, P.M., 281; William Hall, W.M. 281; William Fleming, W.M. Elect 281; Charles Dunn, 859; James Ellershaw, 1358. After the minutes had been confirmed and other business transacted, the W.M. Elect, Bro. W. J. Sly, was presented to the installing officer by Bros. W. Hall, P.M., and W. Hall, W.M. 281, to receive the benefit of installation. The qualification for the Master's chair were rehearsed and agreed to by the candidate, who afterwards gave his consent to the ancient charges, which were read by Bro. E. Simpson, P.M. The ceremony was proceeded with, and in a Board of Installed Masters, consisting of Bros. Moore, W. Hall, 201; W. Hall, 1051; Simpson, and Hatch, Bro. William John Sly was duly installed into the chair of the lodge, according to ancient custom, and received greetings and salutations from the brethren in the several degrees. He then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Wilson Barker, I.P.M., and Treas.; Edward Airey, S.W.; John L. Bradshaw, J.W.; J. Daniel Moore, P.M., Sec.; James Taylor, S.D.; Robert Harger, J.D.; John Watson, Tyler. The charges were delivered to the W.M. by the installing officer, and to the Wardens and brethren by Bro. John Hatch, P.M., the working tools in the various degrees being presented by Bro. W. Hall, P.M. 1051; Bro. W. Hall, W.M. 281; and Bro. Hatch. A vote of thanks was awarded by acclamation to Bro. Moore, for his services as installing officer, and the lodge was closed in due form. A number of the brethren afterwards accepted the conjoint invitation of the retiring and newly installed Worshipful Masters, Bros. W. Barker and W. J. Sly, to a supper at the King's Arms Hotel, which was of a most sumptuous and recherché description, and after the cloth was drawn the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured; that of the W.M. and I.P.M. being enthusiastically received. The Installing Officer, Wardens, Officers of the Lodge, Visitors, &c., were not forgotten, and the proceedings of the evening terminated with the reception of the Tyler's toast, proposed by Bro. Moore, each brother leaving the room with a pleasant recollection that he had passed a most enjoyable evening.

HAMPDEN—Letam Lodge (No. 1325).—On Wednesday, 18th inst., this flourishing lodge met at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion Square. Bro. F. Walters, P.M., Sec., opened the lodge at one o'clock. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Bros. H. Tozer and J. Hopkins as joining members, and Messrs. H. Jones, J. Deekes, T. Archer, J. Thompson, M. Mildred, J. Newton, and B. Hall. Messrs. B. Hall, H. Jones, J. Deekes, T. Archer, were initiated, Bros. A. W. Dray, T. Walkley, J. R. Moore, C. Heitzmann, H. Thomas, and H. Goodwin were passed to the second degree. Bro. J. W. Richardson, was raised to the third degree, Bro. J. T. Moss, P.G.S.D. Middlesex, W.M., initiated Mr. J. Thompson. The work was well done. These gentlemen who attended for initiation viz: Messrs. M. Mildred, J. Newton and Partridge had to be deferred until another meeting, in consequence of the legal number, five, having been initiated. A large number of propositions for initiation and some joining members were proposed. All business being ended, the lodge was closed. Banquet and dessert followed. There were present besides those named Bros. H. A. Dubois, J.W.; W. Hammond, P.M., S.D.; E. Gilbert, I.G.; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; J. Hammond, P.M.; E. Hopwood, P.M.; R. Lawrence, J. F. Woodley, H. Gloster, J. W. Baldwin, E. H. Thically, W. J. Cox, J. Symes, and others. Visitors:—Bro. W. J. Laing, and J. Hopkins.

CUMBERLAND—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—This lodge held its usual monthly communication, on Thursday, the 17th. The Chair of K.S. was occupied by the W.M., Bro. Roger Dodgson, P.G.S.B.; supported by the whole of the officers. The lodge was opened at seven o'clock by the W.M., the minutes of last regular lodge, were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. William Bell, which proved to be unanimous in his favour. Mr. Bell being in attendance was initiated into the mysteries of the Order by the W.M., the working tools being presented by the J.W., Bro. Mills, P.G. Steward. At the request of the W.M., Bro. T. Dodgson, S.W., P.M., assumed the Chair, and opened the Lodge in the second degree, when Bros. Meakin, and Waiting, being in attendance, answered the usual questions, and were then entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and Bro. Meakin being admitted, was raised to the Sublime degree of M.M. He retired and the W.M. again resumed his place, and raised Bro. Waiting, who retired, and being re-admitted, the W.M. gave the historical lecture to both the candidates. The lodge was then closed in the third and second degrees, when the W.M. read a letter he had received from Bro. Lord Muncaster, P.G. Reg., expressing regret that he was unable to be present, on account of being in London. One candidate was proposed for initiation, and the lodge was finally closed at 10.30 p.m. with solemn prayer.

Reports of Meetings continued in Extra Sheet.

Bro. Hyde Pullen, 33°, a member of the Secretary's staff of the Supreme Council of England, has engrossed in chaste and beautiful style, a patent creating Ill. Bro. Sickels an honorary member of that body. We do not recall an instance where good taste in the arrangement and display of the text of such a document form so great a part and where a simplicity has properly taken the place of elaborate adornment. Our English cousins well understand how to make a compliment truly valuable.—New York Dispatch.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Blood to the Head, with Symptoms of Apoplexy.—Holloway's Pills are undeniably the finest medicine in the world for biliousness and indigestion. In all cases of deranged stomach, determination of blood to the head, biliousness, sick headache, liver complaints, which frequently end fatally by producing apoplexy or paralysis, there is no medicine known that will give such immediate relief as these renowned Pills. Young and old, rich and poor, patronise them, and so many cures are effected by their use that their praise is sounded from the torrid to the frigid zone. In truth, persons who travel consider them a necessary requisite. Frequently the blood becomes overheated, the liver torpid, the skin irritated by prickly heat, and the whole system languid and exhausted. Nothing so soon gives relief as Holloway's Pills.

ALPHA AND OMEGA.

For us, who are: all Nature is a Law.
Our first and last undeviating Teacher,
Ever in Time's predestinative maw
Digesting, reproducing every feature
Sooner or later.
We live within it's circles, and obey
The force centrifugal that all impels,
Atoms of radii, we bear His sway
To whose rapt Harmony the great whole swells,
Nature's Creator!

Rejoice with me! to know that all Creation
When ripened to its prime, must all decay.
Mourn not at all for buried Civilisation;
From Night infallibly will issue—Day
In contrast splendid.
We die—to enter into Life again,
To higher ends our elements combine;
No atom ever lived and died in vain,
For we the heirs, in an unbroken line
With it are blended.

Though forms are changing, Matter is the same
In quantity and indestructibility,
Since with the primal generative flame
TIME set to work to mould perfectibility
Of the Grand Scheme.
Our Earth with all it comprehends to day,
Is still the self-same elements evolving
Which the first Adam, by the Solar ray
Perceived around. And periods revolving
Pass like a dream.

The Solar rays impinge upon the Earth,
Responsive gases work throughout the orb.
Its latent powers are quickened into birth
For ever to emit and re-absorb
In known mutation.

Precipitated waters, to and fro
By a diurnal and resistless spell
Are driven, vivifying as they go;
The atmospheric zones close up or swell
With like sensation.

The currents of the wind fill up contractions
Where Solar influence displaces Air,
And violently lash up passive fractions
Till ocean-surfaces are shattered there
In waves and surges.

Plants throughout Earth and Sea develope still,
With animated shapes in sequence certain,
Obedient to th' inexorable Will
That aye through Space, through whatsoever curtain,

On all converges,
Whence? From the Sun's inspiring Light and Heat,
Which liberate all elements, which enter
Into the plant and animal, and beat,
The hills and waves from surface into centre
And glorify.
For this did erst, the ancient Magians bend
In adoration to that disc of Day
On which all our existences depend,
Which on to Matter sheds its glowing ray
To vivify.

Behold! That Sun, a unit is, of millions,
Of which each rules its planets in their station
Our vision fails before those massed quadrillions.
And yet—that infinite illumination

Law weighs and measures
Chaldea and Egypt knew the mystic bond
Our Newtons and our Keplers rediscover;
And the recondite Arcanum beyond
Their Sages' minds could unlock and pore over,
Spending its treasures.

Were the keys lost? Why did the human Mind
Hailing the seven lesser Glories, view them
As Deities, and fondly deem Mankind
Might claim their influence, and Priests endue them

With fancies flighty?
The ancient symbols seem but Myth and Fable
Hid in the darkened intervening Ages.
But now! We, who the time old Keys enable,
Unveil the MACROCOSM OF THE SAGES.—
INFINITUDE'S ALMIGHTY !!!

By Him alone, all Nature is alive.
He bade the new developments arise,
The debris recreate, the ashes thrive;
He makes each Sun to rule its vaulted skies
By Law's high Mystery.
Through him, we Men perpetuate, obeying,

Our attributes transmitted, are the same;
Each atom reproducing and decaying
In ceaseless course, bequeaths to us His name;
And that is History!

Progressive culture speeds around the World,
Germs in the van and Wonders in the rear.
Where brightest human records are unfurled.
Time circles o'er,—and Marvels disappear
In deserts hoary.
Wonders arise in other lands and seas,
In turn to the same barren deserts tending;
From East to West the transformation flees
In time—Eternal: in Place—Ever-ending.
An Arc of Glory.

Reviews.

Almanack and Diary for 1873, issued by E. Moses and Son, of Minorities, &c., &c., at the low price of one penny, is a handy little book for the pocket, full of information, and with plenty of space for memoranda.

Music in the Western Church, by WILLIAM A. LEONARD, Bristol (London: F. Pitman, Paternoster-row), traces the history of music from the earliest time. This is an interesting little volume, and will doubtless prove acceptable to the very many who take an interest in psalmody.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, January 3, 1873.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

SATURDAY, Dec. 28.

Star Lodge of Instruction (1275), Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, at 7; Bro. C. G. Dille, Preceptor.
Mount Sinai Chapter of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-street, at 8; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.

Manchester Lodge of Instruction, Yorkshire Grey, London-street, Fitzroy-square, at 8; Bro. Ash, P.M., Preceptor.

Sphinx Lodge of Instruction (1329), Castle Tavern, Camberwell-road, at 7; Bros. John Thomas and E. Worthington, Preceptors.

MONDAY, Dec. 30.

Lodge 79, Pythagorean, Ship Hotel, Greenwich.
" 831, British Oak, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Bancroft-place, Mile-end.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (45), Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell, at 8; Bro. Beckett, Preceptor.

Sincerity Lodge of Instruction (174), Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street Station, at 7.

Camden Lodge of Instruction (704), Adelaide Tavern, Haverstock-hill, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction (95), Royal Hotel, Mile-end-road, at 7.30; Bro. E. Gottlieb, Preceptor.

British Oak Lodge of Instruction, Bank of Friendship Tavern, Mile-end, at 7 for 8.

St. James's Union Lodge of Instruction (185), Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street (opposite the Pantheon), Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. J. R. Stacey, Preceptor.

Wellington Lodge of Instruction, White Swan Tavern, Deptford, at 8; Bro. C. G. Dille, P.M. 1155, Preceptor.

St. John of Wapping Lodge of Instruction (1306), Gun Tavern, High-street, Wapping, at 8; Bro. T. Mortlock, Preceptor.

West Kent Lodge of Improvement (1297), St. Saviour's College, Stansted-road, Forest-hill, at 7.30; Bro. B. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

TUESDAY, Dec. 31.

Sydney Lodge of Instruction, Cambridge Hotel, Upper Norwood.

Metropolitan Chapter of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet-street, at 7; Comp. Brett, Preceptor.

Domestic Lodge of Instruction, Palmerston Tav., Grosvenor-park, Camberwell, at 8; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.

Faith Lodge of Instruction, Refreshment Rooms, Victoria-st. (opposite Westminster Palace Hotel), at 8. Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, Preceptor.

Yarborough Lodge of Instruction, Green Dragon, Stepney, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., Preceptor.

Prince Fredk. William Lodge of Instruction (753), Knights of St. John Tavern, St. John's-wood Bro. F. G. Baker, Preceptor.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, King Edward, Triangle, Hackney, at 7.30; Bro. J. Saunders, Preceptor.

Florence Nightingale Lodge of Instruction, Masonic Hall, William-street, Woolwich, at 7.30.

Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, Gladstone Tavern, Bishopsgate-st. Within, at 7.30; Bro. Bolton (W.M. 1227), Preceptor.

St. Maryibone Lodge of Instruction (1305), British Stores Tavern, New-street, St. John's wood, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.

Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, (55), Wheatsheaf Hotel, Hand-court, Holborn, at 7; Bro. J. R. Stacey, P.M. 180, Preceptor.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 1.

Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction (79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich, at 8; Bro. J. Robt. Nash, Preceptor.
 United Strength Lodge of Instruction (228), the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, Kentish-town, at 8; Bro. J. N. Frost, Preceptor.
 Israel Lodge of Instruction, Rising Sun Tavern, Globe-road, at 7.30; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 New Concord Lodge of Instruction, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, at 8.
 Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Railway Tav., London-street, City, at 7.30.
 Royal Union Lodge of Instruction, Horse and Groom Tavern, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams, Preceptor.
 Peckham Lodge of Instruction, Malsmore Arms, Park-road, Peckham, at 8; Bro. David Rose, Preceptor.
 Temperance in the East Lodge of Instruction, George the Fourth, Catherine-street, Poplar.
 Stanhope Lodge of Instruction, Thicket Hotel, Anerley, at 7.30 p.m.; Bro. H. W. Lindus, Preceptor.

THURSDAY, Jan. 2.

45, Strong Man, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, Clerkenwell.
 192, Lion and Lamb, City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street.
 231, St. Andrew's, Freemasons' Hall.
 538, La Tolerance, Freemasons' Hall.
 554, Yarborough, Green Dragon, Stepney.
 1155, Excelsior, Sydney Arms, Lewisham-road.
 1351, St. Clement Dances, 265, Strand.
 1381, Kennington, Surrey Club House, Kennington.
 The R.A. Chapter of Improvement, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Fidelity Lodge of Instruction (3), Yorkshire Grey, London-st., Tottenham Court-road, at 8; Bro. T. A. Adams' Preceptor.
 Paumure Lodge of Instruction (720), Balham Hotel, Balham, at 7.30; Bro. John Thomas, Preceptor.
 Finsbury Lodge of Instruction, Jolly Anglers' Tavern, Bath-street, City-road; Bro. Stean, Preceptor.
 United Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Whittington Lodge of Instruction (862), Crown Tavern, Holborn, at 8; Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M. 188, Preceptor.
 Chigwell Lodge of Instruction, Bald-faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst-hill, at 7.30.
 Doric Chapter of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Comp. T. J. Barnes, Preceptor.
 Ebury Lodge of Instruction, Bro. Palmer's, 12, Ponsonby-st., Millbank.

FRIDAY, JAN. 3.

Lodge 890, Hornsey, Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street.
 Chapter 3, Fidelity, London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street.
 St. George's Lodge of Instruction, (140), for Master Masons, Globe Tavern, Royal Hill, Greenwich.
 Stability Lodge of Instruction, (217), Guildhall Tavern, 33, Gresham-street, City, at 6; Bro. Henry Muggidge, P.M. 192 and 715, Preceptor.
 Robert Burns Lodge of Instruction, Union Tavern, Air-st., Regent-st., at 8; Bro. W. Watson, P.M.
 Unions Emulation Lodge of Improvement for M.M.'s, Freemasons' Hall, at 7.
 Temperance Lodge of Instruction, Victoria Tav., Victoria-road, Deptford, at 8.
 Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction (1278), Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, at 8; Bro. Geo. W. Verry, Preceptor.
 Clapton Lodge of Instruction, White Hart, Clapton, at 7.30; Bro. John Saunders, Preceptor.
 Royal Standard Lodge of Instruction (1298), The Castle Tavern, Holloway, at 8; Bro. R. Lee (P.M. 193, W.M. 1298), Preceptor.
 Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction (No. 79), Prince of Orange, Greenwich-road, at 8; Comp. W. West Smith, Preceptor.
 Westbourne Lodge of Instruction (733), Horse and Groom, Winsley-street, Oxford-street, at 8.
 Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, Portugal Hotel, Fleet street, at 7; Bro. Brett, Preceptor.
 Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, Duke of Wellington Hotel, Spring-gardens, Charing-cross; Bro. Pulsford, Preceptor.
 Doric Lodge of Instruction, Three Cranes Tavern, Mile-end-road, at 8; Bro. Isaac Saqui, Preceptor.
 Burgoyne Lodge of Instruction, Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales's-road, N.W., at 8.
 St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction (144), Two Brewers, 33, Brompton-road, S.W.
 United Pilgrims Lodge of Instruction, Antelope Tavern, Lorn-road, Brixton, at 7; Bro. J. Thomas, P.M., Preceptor.
 Duke of Edinburgh Lodge of Instruction, Silver Lion, Penny-fields, Poplar, at 7; Bro. D. S. Potts, Preceptor.
 St. James's Lodge of Instruction, Gregorian Arms Tavern, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, at 8; Bro. Howes, P.M., Preceptor.

MASONIC MEETINGS IN LIVERPOOL, &c.

For the Week ending Saturday, January 4, 1873.

MONDAY, DEC. 30.

Lodge of Lights (148), Masonic Rooms, Warrington, at 6.30.
 TUESDAY, DEC. 31.
 Merchants' Lodge of Instruction (241), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, at 6.
 Downshire Lodge of Instruction (594), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, at 7.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 1.

St. John's Lodge (673), 90, Duke-street, Liverpool, 6.30.
 Royal Victoria Lodge (1013), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, 6.
 De Grey and Ripon Lodge of Instruction (No. 1356), 40, North-hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool, at 7.30.
 THURSDAY, JAN. 2.
 Mariners' Lodge (249), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, 6.
 Cestrian Lodge (425), Grosvenor Hotel, Chester, 4.
 Bridgewater Chapter, Masonic Hall, Runcorn, 6.
 FRIDAY, JAN. 3.
 Sefton Lodge (680), Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, 4.30.
 Walton Chapter, Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, 6.
 Neptune Lodge (1264), Masonic Temple, Liverpool, 6.

Advertisements.

THE COSMOPOLITAN.
 AN INTERNATIONAL NEWSPAPER OF
 NEWS POLITICS, COMMERCE, LITERATURE,
 ART, AND SOCIETY.
 ONE POUND A YEAR.

THE ONLY NEWSPAPER IN EUROPE OWNED AND EDITED BY AN AMERICAN.
 FIRST-CLASS WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.
 PUBLISHED IN LONDON, PARIS, AND NEW YORK.

SCALE OF ADVERTISEMENTS:—
 Single Advertisements 1s. per line.
 Thirteen Insertions and upwards 6d. per line.
 All Advertisements must arrive at the London Office before One o'clock on the Wednesday preceding the day of Publication.
 For single insertions payment must be made in advance, for which postage stamps may be sent at the rate of thirteen to the Shilling.
 All Advertisements payable after First Insertion.
 Cheques and Post Office Orders (Somerset-house) to be made payable to H. FULLER, No. 111, Strand, W.C.

THE COSMOPOLITAN

Is independent of Party, Sect, and Nationality. Its circulation is WORLD WIDE, and chiefly among the highest classes—statesmen, diplomatists, bankers, clubs, hotels, &c.
 ONE POUND A YEAR. SINGLE COPY FOURPENCE

A NEW VOLUME.

VOLUME XV. of THE COSMOPOLITAN commenced on the 3rd October, 1872. SUBSCRIPTION ONE POUND A YEAR, Postage (Penny) included.
 Handsomely Bound Volumes for Sale at 20s. each.

The Cosmopolitan.

"It is a newspaper in every sense of the word, selecting from its daily contemporaries nearly everything that is of interest to the general reader, and supplying what is really wanted in this country—a thoroughly impartial reflex of public opinion."—Standard.
 "The editor is a gentleman well-known to the readers of Fraser's Magazine, as well as to the Transatlantic world, and wields a ready, graceful, and fluent pen."—Morning Post.
 "It is gaining great praise here from its thoroughly independent tone."—Dover Chronicle.
 ONE POUND A YEAR.

THE ENTR'ACTE,

A MUSICAL and THEATRICAL REVIEW
 Price One Penny. Used as a programme at the principal London and Provincial Music Halls. The Entr'acte enjoys an extensive circulation, and gets into the hands of every theatrical and music-hall artiste. It contains a splendid cartoon every week. First-rate medium for advertisers. Subscribers can be supplied by post at 18 per quarter. Published every Saturday, at 3, Bridge-street, Covent Garden, W.C.

THE LONDON MIRROR.

Published every Saturday; price 4d.
 The object of this journal is to set forth the claims of the many Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Prudential Institutions of the United Kingdom, and week by week to report their proceedings, whether as Meetings, Sermons, Anniversaries, or Elections, so as present these National Institutions to the favour of the Public.
 Office, 59, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C.

"THE FREEMASON" OF ST. LOUIS.

The Largest Masonic Monthly in the World. Published at St. Louis, Mo., by George Frank Gouley, Grand Secretary and Recorder of the four Grand Bodies of Missouri.
 The Freemason contains tidings from every quarter of the world, and will be found of great advantage to all Masons, especially those interested in American affairs. Terms $3 per annum, and to those who subscribe for the London Freemason the price will be $1.50 currency. Postage free.
 Subscriptions received at the Office of the London "Freemason," 198, Fleet-street.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOLINE

For the prevention of FEVER, AGUE, and EFFECTS OF MALARIA.
 An Unfailing Remedy.
 Those who during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed unharmed through the Fever and Dysentery, that thinned the ranks. In Half, Quarter, and Pint Bottles. Prepared only by

THOMAS WILKINSON,

270, Regent Street, London, W.
 May be had of all leading Firms in India and Colonies.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO-THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an Eminent Physician, experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in Irritation of the Throat, Catarrhal Coughs, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Spitting of Blood, &c. To public speakers and vocalists they are invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from opium, and of an agreeable taste. In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC and LIVER PILLS, composed of the Extracts of Dandelion, Turkey Rhubarb, and Jamaica Ginger.

 No Pill is so efficacious in promoting Digestion, strengthening the Stomach, correcting Acidity, preventing or removing Headache, Giddiness, &c., arising from Costiveness, Debilitated Stomach, or Torpid Liver. They require no change of Diet, and the most delicate may take them with safety.
 Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPARILLA with the greatest success.
 In Bottles, Small, Medium and Large. Prepared only by
 THOMAS WILKINSON,
 270, Regent Street, London, W.
 May be had of all leading firms in India and Colonies.

EIGHTEENTH SEASON.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL ART UNION,

Under the sanction of
 HER MAJESTY'S MOST HON. PRIVY COUNCIL.

Head Office, Union-street, Glasgow.

ONE SHILLING PER SHARE.

Subscription List closes 31st December, 1872,
 Drawing takes place 9th January, 1873.

Patrons:

The Right Hon. the EARL OF GLASGOW.
 The Most Noble the MARQUIS OF LORN.
 Sir ARTHUR EDWARD GUINNESS, BART.
 MAJOR LAURENCE, E. KNOX, D.L.

Presidents:

WILLIAM GRAHAM, ESQ., M.P.,
 Sir ROBERT CHARLES SINCLAIR, BART.

Nearly 3,000 Choice Works of Art were issued between Prizes and Presentation Plates during the last Twelve Months.

The Prizes will consist of Choice Paintings, Fine Chromos,
 Framed Engravings, &c.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL ART UNION
 Gives to Subscribers of Five Shares—
 An Engraving after David Wilkie, R.A., entitled
 "THE ERRAND BOY,"
 As well as
 Five Chances in the Drawing of Prizes.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL ART UNION
 Gives to Subscribers of Ten Shares—
 An Oleograph Chromo, after Armfield, entitled
 "LEFT IN CHARGE."
 As well as
 Ten Chances in the Drawing of Prizes.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL ART UNION
 Gives to Subscribers of Twenty Shares—
 An Engraving after Ansdell, A.R.A., entitled
 "PICKING OUT THE LAMBS,"
 As well as
 Twenty Chances in the Drawing of Prizes.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL ART UNION
 Gives to Subscribers of Forty Shares—
 A Proof Copy of an Engraving, entitled,
 "PICKING OUT THE LAMBS,"
 after Ansdell, A.R.A.,
 As well as
 Forty Chances in the Drawing of Prizes.

SHARE TICKETS, ONE SHILLING EACH,
 Can be had from all respectable Stationers, Fine Art Establishments, and Newsagents throughout Ireland, or on application, by letter, to

W. H. HILLSWORTH,
 SECRETARY FOR IRELAND;
 AND AGENT FOR

The City of Glasgow Assurance Company,
 The Manchester Fire Insurance Company,
 The Accident Insurance Company,
 The Guardian Plate-Glass Insurance Company
 Belgrave Terrace, Rathmines, Dublin.

GANN, JONES & Co., TAILORS, SHIRT MAKERS, HOSIERS, AND OUTFITTERS, Retail Depot, 171, FENCHURCH-ST., Wholesale and Commission, 21, BURY-ST., LONDON, E.C.

Freemasons require CLOTHING.—As Tailors, Gann, Jones & Co. make first-class Suits in Diagonals, Tweeds, and Scotch Tweeds, at 40/ 50/ and 60/ per Suit.

Freemasons require DRESS SUITS.—As Tailors, Gann, Jones & Co. supply Black Superfine Frock or Dress Suits at 58/ 63/ 68/ and 75/ per Suit.

Freemasons require OVERCOATS.—As Tailors, Gann, Jones & Co. make warm and durable Garments, in Frock and Chesterfield Styles, in Witneys, Beavers, Irish Frieze, &c., at all prices.

Freemasons require TROUSERS.—As Tailors, Gann, Jones & Co. have always in stock a capital assortment of shrunk Tweeds, Angolas, and Cheviots in three qualities, the fit and wear guaranteed. A quality, 15/6 per pair; B quality, 17/6 per pair; C quality, 19/ per pair. Also a variety of goods at other prices.

Freemason's require SHIRTS.—As Shirt Manufacturers, Gann, Jones & Co. keep ready made in all sizes, or make to measure, their perfect-fitting "Imperial" Long-cloth Shirts in six qualities. No. 1, Six for 27/; No. 2, Six for 30/; No. 3, Six for 33/; No. 4, Six for 36/; No. 5, Six for 39/; No. 6, Six for 42/. The fit, wear, and work of every shirt guaranteed.

Freemasons require FLANNEL SHIRTS.—Gann, Jones & Co. supply, at following prices, Flannel Shirts, warranted thoroughly shrunk. Quality A, Three for 24/; quality B, Three for 27/; quality C, Three for 30/; other makes and qualities at 5/6 6/6 and 7/6 each.

Freemasons require DRESS SHIRTS.—Gann, Jones & Co. have always in stock very choice designs at 6/6 7/6 8/6 and 10/6 each, and in addition keep a good and select variety of French Embroidered Fronts, &c., and make Dress or ordinary Shirts to order at one day's notice, when necessary.

Freemasons require UNDERCLOTHING.—As Hosiers, Gann, Jones & Co. supply Lamb's Wool Pants and Drawers at 2/9 3/6 and 4/6 per pair.

Lambswool Vests, White and Shetland, 2/9 3/6 and 4/6 each.

Warm Merino Pants, 3/6 4/6 and 5/6 per pair.

Warm Merino Vests, 3/6 4/6 and 5/6 each.

Stout and Strong Cotton Pants and Drawers, 3/6 4/6 5/6 and 6/6 per pair.

Warm and Serviceable Lambswool Half Hose, 1/ 1/3 and 1/6 per pair.

Ditto Merino ditto, 1/ 1/3 and 1/6 per pair.
Stout Cotton ditto, 9d. 1/ 1/3 per pair.
Silk Hosiery, Fleecy Hosiery, Children's Hosiery, Football Suits. Clubs supplied at Wholesale Rates.

Freemasons require COLLARS AND WRISTBANDS.—As Collar Manufacturers, Gann, Jones & Co. can supply really good Linen Collars at 6/6 7/6 and 8/6 per doz. Linen Fronts with Collars, 1/ each; Linen Wristbands, 9d. and 1/ per pair.

Freemasons require OUTFITS.—As Outfitters, Gann, Jones & Co. supply Outfits for all climates from £5. For full particulars of Outfits for all classes, see the "Outfitter," published by Gann, Jones & Co., and forwarded on application.

Freemasons require POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS.—Prices 6d. 9d. 1/. Silk ditto, 3/ 3/6 and 4/ each.

Freemasons require BRACES.—Prices 1/ 1/6 and 2/ per pair.

Freemasons require SCARFS.—Prices 2/ and 2/6. All Shapes.

Freemasons require GLOVES.—Gann, Jones & Co. keep Ladies', Gentlemen's, and Children's Gloves, in Kid, Cloth, Driving, &c., all sizes.

Freemasons require RUGS.—Prices 6/6 to 45/. Ditto Mauds, 17/6 to 50/.

Freemasons require TRUNKS.—Prices 6/6 to 80/; all Varieties.

What better Theme than Masonry? MASONIC SONG.

Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 720 and 1216; P.M. 720; G.J.G. Mark; W.M. 104 Marks; M.P.S. 14, etc.

Music by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, Grand Organist; P.M. 435 Organist No. 4, and of British Chapter, No. 8.

George Kenning, 2, 3, and 4, Little Britain, and 198, Fleet-street, London, and 2, Monument-place, Liverpool.
Post-free, 25 stamps.

SECOND EDITION.—NOW READY.

Price One Shilling, Post-free, Revised and Enlarged.

Freemasonry in Relation to Civil Authority and the Family Circle, By BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.

THIS work is a perfect handbook of the principles of Freemasonry, founded on the Ancient Charges and Symbols, and will be found to be eminently practical and useful in the vindication and support of the Order.

Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THIRD EDITION.—JUST READY.

REFLECTED RAYS OF LIGHT UPON FREEMASONRY:

The Freemason's Pocket Compendium, With an Emblematical Frontispiece.

A Hand-Book of the Principles of Freemasonry, and Pocket Vade Mecum and Guide to the various Ceremonies connected with Craft Masonry, so far as the same are allowed to be communicable, in accordance with the principles of the Order.

Price One Shilling, Post-free for Thirteen Stamps.

Sold by Bro. GEO. KENNING, 198, Fleet-street, London, E. C.

TRUTH MUST PREVAIL.—Common Sense.

Lamps, Baths, Cutlery, Brushes, Fenders and Fire Irons, Electroplate and Nickel-Silver Goods.

R. D. PARR,

General House Furnishing Ironmonger,
42, BLACKMAN STREET, BOROUGH.

OFFERS nothing extraordinary, but REALLY Good Articles at fair and reasonable prices. He does not keep an "Immense Stock," but sufficiently large for any person to select from. He does not sell "cheaper than every other house in the Trade," but quite as cheap as any.
A visit will, at all times, be very much appreciated.

For Cheap Watches, Clocks, Gold Chains and Jewellery, go to

KIBBLES',

22, GRACECHURCH STREET
(one door from Lombard-street).

Gold Watches £2 15s.
Silver Watches £1 5s.
Timepieces... .. from 9s. 6d.

Every article warranted. Plate, Watches, and Jewellery bought or exchanged. List of Prices post free.

CHURCH SERMONS.

By EMINENT CLERGYMEN.

WEEKLY NUMBERS contain two Sermons.
Price One Penny; Monthly Parts, Fivepence.

Published by REEVES, SON, and Co., Playhouse-yard, Ludgate-hill, London, and may be had of all Booksellers.

KENNING'S NEW BALLOT BOX,

Price Thirty Shillings.

ROUGH WEATHER HATS—12/6.

THE best Hat for Winter wear; thoroughly waterproof, at

Bro. W. R. JONES
HAT MANUFACTURER,
73, Long Acre.

Sent carriage free on receipt of P.O.O. for 12/6. payable to WILLIAM JONES, Long Acre office.—N.B. Send number of inches round the head.

Established 1852—Enlarged to 8 pages 1872.

THE LEIGH CHRONICLE: TYJ DESLEY, ATHERTON, & DISTRICT, & SOUTH LANCASHIRE ADVERTISER. Published every Saturday, 8 pages, Price One Penny.

The Chronicle is a First-class Local and Family Newspaper; takes no prominent part in Political or Religious Controversies. Original Papers of great interest appear weekly in its columns. No effort is spared to maintain for the Chronicle the high position it has held for years. The Chronicle is read by all; it is supported by nearly every person of influence in the district; circulates largely among the tradespeople; and receives the support of the operative classes. Its Columns offer one of the BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUMS in South Lancashire.

Office, Victoria Place, Leigh. Pro. and Ed. JOSIAH ROSE.

CARPETS, MATTING & FLOORCLOTH.

THE Newly-Invented Solid, Non-fading, DUST-PROOF, DRAUGHT-PROOF, WATER-PROOF, and WASHABLE CARPETS and MATTING are the best Floor Coverings extant for Libraries, Bedrooms, Offices, &c. No other so Healthy, Clean, and Economical. Patterns can be had, Post Free, and Goods Carriage Free, of

MESSRS. CHILES & CO.,
57 and 60, BELMONT-STREET,
CHALK FARM ROAD, LONDON, N.W.
TESTIMONIAL (No. 41).

Sir,—Your note was forwarded to me here, and I am happy to inform you that the Dust-Proof and Washable Carpets have given me great satisfaction. They require no scrubbing; merely to be washed with soap and water, and dried with a cloth. I have not found the colours to wear off, even where most used.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
To J. E. JARRETT, Esq. M. SWANDALE.
The original letter of Mrs. Swandale can be seen in our office, and others of a similar character from all parts of England.
The above Testimonial refers to "The Washable and Dust-Proof" Carpets laid down in Bedrooms.
N.B.—Patterns must be returned within four days, post free—Postage 4d.

THE SOUTH-WESTERN INDEX LIST

of Furnished and Unfurnished Houses to be let, and of Estates for sale in the South-west of London, is published Monthly by

MR. JAS. STEVENS, AUCTIONEER & ESTATE AGENT,
CLAPHAM COMMON, S.W.

A useful work of reference for those seeking Residences, and saving much trouble in obtaining information of properties for disposal in the S.W. district.
Send post-card with your address, and a copy will be forwarded by return post.

LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE. THE "WORCESTERSHIRE."

Pronounced by Connoisseurs "THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE." Its use improves appetite and digestion. Unrivalled for piquancy and flavour.

ASK FOR LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS,
to avoid which, see the names,
LEA & PERRINS,
on all bottles and labels.

Agents—CROSSE & BLACKWELL, London, and sold by all Dealers in Sauces throughout the world.

GRANT'S MORELLA CHERRY BRANDY.

SUPPLIED TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
This delicious Liqueur, from the famous Kent Morella, supersedes wine in many households, is much favoured by sportsmen, and is also recommended by the medical profession as a valuable tonic in cases of weakness.—Order of any Wine Merchant, or direct of T. GRANT, Distillery, Maidstone. 42s. per dozen, Cash. Carriage paid.

BOTTLED, Capsuled, and Cased in the Vineyard in France—is pronounced the finest brandy imported. Sold by retail merchants from 3s. 8d. each bottle, at three, six, nine, and twelve years old; and at 42s., 50s., 60s., and 70s. each one dozen case, by C. C. BENSON, the sole importer, 18, Fenchurch-buildings, Fenchurch-street, London. Cash with order.

Bro. WILLIAMS. MASONIC EMBLEMS Lithographic Artist

AND ENGRAVER ON
WOOD. Stone, Wood, or VELLUM.

48, KINGS

CROSS RD., N.

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough.

* * * Invaders should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

GAS CONSERVATORY APPARATUSES,
Gas Ovens, Gas Baths, £6 15s. 0d. (10 per cent. advance)
Ornamental Coils for Offices (Patented). G. Shrewsbury, Lower Norwood, and 59, Old Bailey.

Mark Masonry.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE AT FALMOUTH.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

On Tuesday, the 17th inst., we left the Truro station at half-past one, in company with our well-known Bro. Fredck. Binckes, Grand Mark Secretary, (P.G.W.) and a goodly number of Mark Masters, representing the various lodges in the Province. Until 1865, there was not a Grand Lodge in Cornwall, but now there are five, and many more might be found, if the leading spirits in this degree in the far West, had more time at their disposal. To show what can be done by a few determined and zealous brethren we may mention that Bro. Hughan, the Senior Past Master in the county has advanced upwards of 200 brethren, and feels quite certain that as many more would offer themselves in different parts of the Province had he but leisure to visit them. But to proceed with our sketch. We arrived duly at Falmouth, and some in busses, some in cabs, and some on foot, we all eventually reached the Royal Hotel, and having been duly marshalled we entered the Lodge of Love and Honour, No. 94, when the Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form by the Prov. Grand Mark Master, the R.W. Bro. Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P. Unfortunately the friends at Falmouth had made no provision for recording the names of the brethren present, so as the number was large we only managed to jot down a few. We noticed at the right of the Prov. G.M., Bros. Reginald Rogers, D. Prov. G.M.; the Rev. G. L. Church, Acting Prov. G. Chap.; John Ninness, Grand J.O.; E. T. Carlyon, P.M. 78; Major Law, F. E. Remfrey, (No. 112 Isaac University Lodge,) J. Bray, W.M. nominated 78; and on the left of the chair sat the Grand Mark Secretary, Bros. W. J. Hughan, Past Grand Warden, &c.; Thomas Solomon, F.P., P.M. 78, Prov. G. Registrar; Thomas Chirgwin, Prov. Grand Secretary; R. John, W.M. 78, Prov. Grand D.C.; Geo. Brown, Prov. G.M. Overseer, Leicestershire and Rutland; W. J. Johns, P.M. 98, Prov. J.G. Warden; and others. Bro. W. Tweedy, P.G.W., occupied the west chair as Senior Prov. G. Warden. There was a capital muster from the Cornubian Lodge, Hayle, including Dr. James Mudge, P.M. 87, Past G.M. Overseer; J. H. Burrall, P.M. 87, Prov. S.G.D.; N. J. West, W.M. 87, G.S.B.; F. H. Pool, P.S.W., Prov. G. Herald; J. P. Smith, J.W. 87; all tried and proved friends as Mark Masters.

The lodge had been opened prior to this assemblage, so the Prov. Grand Officers having taken their positions as the regular lodge officers, the Prov. Grand Lodge was opened as we have just said, and the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ordinary business was regularly transacted. Bro. J. P. Smith, J.W. 87, then made a few observations respecting the desirability of holding the Prov. Grand Lodge meetings more frequently as they tended greatly to promote the progress of Mark Masonry, and certainly once in three years was nothing like often enough in which to meet. The Prov. Grand Master explained the cause of the delay, and pledged himself to hold another Prov. G. Lodge in 1873, and Bro. John Ninness, P.M. 101, having extended a hearty invite to the Prov. Grand Lodge, supported by the Rev. G. Church, the Boscawen Lodge, Chacewater, was selected by the Prov. Grand Master for the next meeting, when no doubt a very successful gathering will be held.

The Prov. Grand Master very warmly welcomed the Grand Secretary, Bro. Binckes in the Prov. Grand Lodge, and expressed his high appreciation of the honour conferred upon him individually, as well as on the Prov. Grand Lodge, by the attendance of so able and distinguished a brother. The G. Secretary responded in his usual able and eloquent manner, and stated how delighted he was to find that the general progress of the Mark degree had been fully sustained in Cornwall.

Bro. Hughan, P.M. 78, &c., proposed that the sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and be placed on Br. G. Brown's list as Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in the name of Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P. Bro. Hughan explained that his reason for so doing was that their esteemed Prov. Grand Master, by virtue of having been so large a donor to the Boys' School had now 98 votes at each election, and the sum now proposed would change the number to 100, which would be a most graceful act on their part to one who had done so much on behalf of the Masonic Charities second only in England as respects his contributions to this particular Institution, and excelled by none on the warmth of his interest in all that concerns the welfare of Freemasonry, Bro. Hughan having been informed by the indefatigable Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, that Sir Frederick stood third in the list of contributors, remarked that he desired to alter his statement, to a Masonic number, viz., three, and felt quite sure that the province would carry the proposition by acclamation. The prophecy was quickly realised, for the brethren "one and all" testified their approval in the most enthusiastic manner, and carried the proposition so heartily, that the Prov. Grand Master was visibly affected, in thanking them for their kindness, and promised the members that he would always be ready in the future as heretofore, to aid them in helping the "widow and the fatherless."

The Prov. Grand Lodge was soon after closed, but before leaving the ancient lodge room, the Prov. Grand Master appointed the following brethren for his officers during the ensuing year:—Bros. Reginald Rogers, P.M. 94, D. Grand Master; W. F. Newman, P.M. 94, Senior Grand Warden; John Ninness, P.M. 101, Junior Grand Warden; N. J. West, W.M. 89, Grand Master Overseer; John Paull, P.M. 101, Grand Senior Overseer; W. H. Dunstan, S.W. 97, Grand Junior Overseer; Rev. G. L. Church, M.O. 101, Grand Chaplain; Richard, John, P.M. 78, Grand Registrar; Dr. James Mudge, P.M. 87, Grand Treasurer; Thomas Solomon, F.P., P.M. 78, Grand Secretary; F. H. Pool, P.S.W. 87, Senior Grand Deacon; J. P. Smith, J.W. 87, Junior Grand Deacon; John Hall, P.M. 101, Grand Supt. of Works; John Bray, S.W. 78, Grand Dir. of Cers.; —Michell 94, Asst. Grand Dir. of Cers.; Michael Little, J.W. 94, G. Sword Bearer; James Pool, J.O. 87, Grand Organist; Saml. Harvey, 78, Grand Pursuivant; Dr. Hugoe W.M. 101, W. Middleton J.O. 78, C. Trenchick J.D. 78, Grand Stewards; John Langdon, Grand Tyler.

The brethren were also particularly gratified to find their old brother Henry Griffin was able to attend. He is Tyler of No. 94, and was initiated in 1820 at Falmouth, and is one of the oldest Masons and Mark Masters in England. Although he has survived over eighty winters, he is still wonderfully active and takes as much interest in Mark Masonry as ever. It seems to be his favourite degree, out of the many he has taken one time and another in the days of his prosperity, at home and abroad.

At four we adjourned to the banquet, and we must say it was worthy of the name, not for the mere gratification of the "good things of life" so bountifully supplied, but for the "feast of soul," for a more hearty, agreeable, and truly Masonic Festival we never attended. The toasts were few but important, and when we mention that Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., presided, we say enough to guarantee a goodly attendance of choice speakers and excellent replies to the sentiments which so gracefully fell from the lips of the Prov. Grand Master. The usual loyal toasts having been given and received according to the fashion of Freemasons, the Prov. Grand Master proposed the Grand Master and the Grand Officers.

Bro. Binckes, P.G.W. and Grand Secretary, responded, and in his own happy way did justice to the many excellent qualities exhibited by the present Grand Master, to whom we are chiefly indebted for the wonderful spread of the degree, not only in this country, but also in the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown. Bro. Binckes then alluded to the Province of Cornwall, and congratulated the members on having so worthy a Mason to rule over them. He knew that much of the success of Mark Masonry in the far West of England, was owing to Sir Frederick being the Prov. Grand Master, and it was no wonder so many Masons rallied round him, and so numerously supported him at all the provincial gatherings, when he was second to none in this country in his desire to aid in every possible way the great objects of the Craft, and even went out of his way in seeking to find more ways of doing good, and of benefitting those who through misfortune, were unhappily in reduced circumstances. We cannot do anything like justice to Bro. Binckes eloquence, and must therefore simply state that the brethren heard his magnificent eulogium of Sir F. M. Williams (their Prov. Grand Master) with delight, and most rapturously applauded his most graceful tribute to a Mason, held in high esteem, wherever he is known, and universally beloved and respected throughout the province. The worthy Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, did not forget the cause of Masonic charity, and we feel sure the stirring words which fell from his lips, in the advocacy of its peculiar claims at the present time, will result in Bro. G. Brown's taking up with him a goodly list of contributors at the next Festival from Cornwall.

Bro. E. T. Carlyon, P.M. 78, the Craft Grand Secretary for Cornwall, then proposed the health of the Prov. G. Master. This excellent brother, who is a most careful discriminator of character, and one of the oldest and best Masons in the province, spoke so much to the point in favour of Sir F. M. Williams' claims to be considered the most liberal Mason of all others in the far West of England, that those present who knew the truth of such a statement were delighted, and most enthusiastically endorsed all the words so sincerely uttered by Bro. Carlyon, who not content even with acknowledging his belief in Sir F. M. Williams being the most fitting successor to the late esteemed Prov. Grand Master of Cornwall, expressed his regret that for the present his claims had been set aside. Bro. Carlyon however most strongly expressed his high sense of the many good qualities possessed by the distinguished brother appointed to succeed the lamented Bro. Augustus Smith, and felt sure he would to his utmost be found a Mason worthy of the name, only that the brethren had so long looked upon Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., as their future Prov. Grand Master, that naturally they could not help being disappointed at seeing all their hopes for the present frustrated.

Sir Frederick thanked the brethren for the kind way in which they had received the hearty proposition made by his friend Bro. Carlyon. Whatever good he had been able to do, had been cheerfully rendered, and he hoped to do still more on behalf of an Institution which he was so warmly attached to. He hoped also, that the Grand Secretary, Bro. Binckes, would find Cornwall ready to support him in his desire to raise a goodly sum for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys during the ensuing year, and he trusted that as Mark Masters, all present would do their utmost to aid the Stewards with their subscriptions. Relative to Bro. Carlyon's remarks respecting himself, and the Craft Prov. Grand Lodge, he felt bound to say that the Grand Master's appointment was to him one he highly approved of from the bottom of his heart, and would have his most thorough support, for a more excellent nobleman could not be selected, he knew him intimately, and felt sure that his many virtues had only to be known to secure for him the hearty good wishes of all the Freemasons in Cornwall. He hoped the brethren would rally round their new Prov. Grand Master, and as he intended to do, be present on all occasions, and strive to show their appreciation of the appointment made by the M.W. the Grand Master.

The brethren cheered these words as they deserved, though the brethren were in no wise responsible for the introduction of so irrelevant a matter to the meeting in hand. We may say, it entirely resulted from the statement made by the D. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Rogers, (who is to be the Deputy of the new Prov. Grand Master,) when in Prov. Gr. Mark Lodge, and hence it was quite natural that he and they should say a few words on the subject. It had one good effect. It showed us still brighter characters. The thorough unselfishness of Sir F. M. Williams, and how delighted he was to obey his lawful superiors in the Craft, irrespective of his own claims to preferment. The other toasts we cannot now stay to describe. Bro. Hughan then pronounces his interesting observations on the Mark Degree which will be given in an ensuing number of the FREEMASON, and so for the time we say Adieu!

MASONIC BALL AT DARLINGTON.

On the 13th inst., a Grand Full Dress Masonic Ball, promoted by the brethren of Restoration Lodge (No. 111.) took place in the Central Hall, Darlington. The Restoration was founded about 113 years ago, and now enjoys the distinction of holding a centenary jewel granted by the Grand Lodge in virtue of having attained its hundredth birthday. During its long lease of life, the Restoration has passed through many vicissitudes, but it has all along held a high rank in Masonic circles, both for its attainments and for its respectability. Its register has always contained the names of some of the most influential inhabitants of the town, but it never was in a more healthy and vigorous condition than at present. The brethren, some time ago, acquired the old Baptist Chapel in Archer-street as a lodge-room, the cost of the purchase being about a £1,000, raised by shares among the brethren. The work of reconstructing the building to adapt it for the purposes of the lodge, involved a considerable outlay. This work was carried out with such thoroughness that the lodge is now one of the most handsome and convenient in the North of England. There is still a trifle of debt remaining to be cleared off, and it was resolved to apply the proceeds of the ball to this purpose. One of the primary objects of the ball was to do honour to W.M. John Morrell, who has been most zealous and attentive in the discharge of his duties during his year of office. It is, indeed, largely due to his efforts that the Restoration Lodge has made such exceptional progress during the past year, and it will be difficult to find one who will occupy the chair with greater difficulty.

The ball was held under the most distinguished auspices, and was in all respects a signal success. Although the severity of the weather doubtless interfered with the attendance from neighbouring towns, the élite of Darlington was well represented. The Masters of the Ceremonies were Bros. Robert Hudson, Grand Director of Ceremonies for the Province of Durham; J. E. Mac Nay, P.P.J.G.G.; and J. W. Marshall, P.G.O. The Stewards were:—Bros. F. Mewburn, Dr. Arrowsmith, Dr. Watt, R. A. Luck, John Morrell, J. H. Greaveson, Christopher Jackson, W. Bell, B. Boulton, Mr. J. S. Trotter, Charles Willman, Dr. Canney, Mr. William Nelson, Mr. T. C. Davidson, Dr. Blackett, and Mr. Charles Ianson, jun.

The Central Hall was tastefully, although not profusely decorated. The most prominent object in the room was the orchestra, which occupied the middle of the floor, and was octagonal in shape, with a canopy of evergreens. From either side and from the ends of the hall banners and flags of different nations were suspended, and gracefully relieved here and there by a judicious distribution of evergreens. The form of the hall does not otherwise afford much cope for ornate treatment. On the platform, which was arranged and furnished as a drawing-room, there were a number of plants in bloom,—there were other decorative accessories that arrested attention. Among these was the portrait of Bro. Blackett, one of the oldest Masters of the lodge, which is justly regarded as one of the best works of the artist—Bewick. This picture is the property of the Restoration Lodge. On either side of the platform and in the centre, were the tracing boards of the lodge, which, doubtless, served to whet the curiosity of those unacquainted with the mysteries of Speculative Masonry. Over the centre of the platform, a noble banner, bearing the inscription "audi, vide, tace," was suspended, and at the other end of the hall over the doorway, hung another banner of the late Prince Consort.

The company began to arrive about nine o'clock, and by half-past that hour the ball-room wore a gay and animated appearance, the brethren present wearing their insignia of office, which relieved the otherwise sombre appearance of full dress, while the ladies appeared, as usual, in nearly all the colours of the rainbow.

Dancing was begun about half-past nine o'clock, to the excellent music of Thrush's (of York) excellent band, which merits special praise for the finished and artistic character of its performance.

Shortly before twelve o'clock, an adjournment was made to the supper-room, which was seated to accommodate fifty. Supper had thus to be taken by instalments. Afterwards Terpischorc resumed the sway, and retained it until an advanced hour. There was no hitch in the arrangements—for which Mr. Mewburn, Mr. R. A. Luck, and Mr. Morrell are chiefly responsible. From first to last, and altogether, the Restoration Lodge has reason to congratulate itself on the results of the first Masonic ball in Darlington.

MASONIC BALL AT ROCHDALE.

The Masonic Ball, in aid of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, was held in the Town Hall, Rochdale, yesterday evening, when there was a large muster of members of "the craft" residing in Rochdale and the immediate neighbourhood, together with members from a distance, and a number of non-masons. The arrangements for the ball were most excellent. The large hall, in which the ball was held, was very handsomely decorated by Mr. Snowden, cabinet maker, of this town. In the refreshment department, the purveyor was Bro. John Rostron, of the Black Horse Hotel, Farnworth, near Bolton, and the refreshment rooms at the Southport and Bolton Railway Stations, and who deserves unqualified praise for his admirable catering, the bill of fare being most complete. It may be interesting to our readers to know that the Harmony Lodge, No. 298 (Rochdale), is one of the vice-patrons of the school, and that two Rochdale boys are now being educated there, whilst four have left the institution. The ball was under most influential patronage, the names of titled personages being prominent on the list. The local committee of management consisted of Bro. Ralph Collingwood, W.M. 363, president; Bro. D. Richardson, S.W. 1129, vice-president; and Bro. James Holroyd, P.M. 298, P.G.S.B., treasurer. Secretary Bro. W. Ashworth, Prov. First Grand Captain, Lancashire and representatives from the following lodges—Hope, Harmony, Keystone, Probity and Freedom, and St. Chad's. The dancing commenced shortly after nine o'clock to the strains of Bro. Goodwin's quadrille band. Mons. Paris officiated as master of the ceremonies. The brethren were in full dress craft clothing until eleven o'clock, after that hour the brethren appeared in the various dresses of Mark, Royal Arch, Knights Templar, Rose Croix, 30°, &c., and wore the jewels and insignia of their rank and office. Their appearance with the gaily coloured dresses of the ladies served to make quite a brilliant scene. The Stewards being distinguished by a beautiful Badge or Favour from the establishment of Bro. Geo. Kenning. Shortly after the ball commenced there were 200 dancers in the hall, and the number continued to increase up to eleven o'clock. The dancing was kept up with unflagging spirit until an early hour this morning.

"A VISIT TO EPPS'S COCOA MANUFACTORY."—Through the kindness of Messrs. Epps, I recently had an opportunity of seeing the many complicated and varied processes the Cocoa bean passes through ere it is sold for public use, and being both interested and highly pleased with what I saw during my visit to the manufactory, I thought a brief account of the Cocoa and the way it is manufactured by Messrs. Epps, to fit it for a wholesome and nutritious beverage, might be of interest to the readers of Land and Water.—See Article in Land and Water, Oct. ber 14.

"I have much pleasure in stating that through using your Pain Killer I have had, and am still having, wonderful relief from a long and painful illness, arising from rheumatic gout and nervous convulsions, which have extended over a period of seven years, causing paralysis of the limbs. But I feel sure from what I have already experienced that your medicine will entirely restore me.—W. ALLEN, Hoxton, May, 1872.—To Perry Davis & Son, London, W.C."

GRAND LODGE AFFAIRS.

SIR,—I have delayed taking any notice of the letter written by "A Past Master" in the Courant of Monday, December 2, and of your article following on it, in the hope that "A Past Master" would have acknowledged the correctness of the statements of the Grand Master, and of the Grand Clerk, since published. "Past Master's" letter has been widely circulated, and has given rise to misapprehension. In these circumstances I beg to request the insertion of the following remarks.

The debt of Grand Lodge amounts as stated to about £13,000. That sum is heritably secured on property of Grand Lodge, and that property belongs exclusively to the whole members of the Scotch Craft, and not, as one would infer from the statements in the Courant, to any section of the order resident in Edinburgh or elsewhere. Lord Rosslyn's propositions gave shape to a desire which had long existed, that this debt should be extinguished, and that charities should be founded for the benefit of the order.

At the time Grand Lodge acquired its present subjects, it was possessed of a sum of about £3,000 only, and the property was acquired, and the hall and other buildings erected, by the consent of all. These buildings are situated in one of the best and most improving parts of the city, and are valued by experienced valuers at about £17,000. Debt was thus necessarily contracted; but Grand Lodge has an equivalent for it, and more, in the value of the buildings themselves. In these circumstances the question really comes to be—Is this property to be retained, or sold? If sold, Grand Lodge must again hold its meetings in hotels, or other similar places. This is undesirable, as the craft would injure its influence and position, and many necessary facilities would be lost in the working of the order, both as regards Grand Lodge itself, and daughter lodges. I believe the universal wish is to retain the property. If this be so, the balance of its price must be paid.

Now, how is this to be done? The subjects are the common property of every individual member of the Scotch constitution, and these members, rich and poor, are alike benefited by them, and are thus in reality the debtors.

Some years ago the fees of diplomas were 4s. 6d. each, and were then reduced to 2s. 6d. Grand Lodge has again increased the fee to 5s. In making this increase, Grand Lodge has virtually re-enacted its former charger; and this charge is paid by entrants only on their admission, and once for all. Grand Lodge also some years ago recommended daughter (we have no "affiliated") lodges to pay £1 annually towards liquidation of the debt, but which is in reality the balance of the price, which is secured to the persons who advanced that balance by the bonds over the subjects. This recommendation has in some instances been given effect to, and all that Grand Lodge has now done is to make the recommended payment compulsory.

There is nothing out of the way or oppressive in all this; and if these payments are made the result will be that in nine years or thereby the whole debt of Grand Lodge will be extinguished, and its whole annual surplus revenues, which will be then upwards of £2,000, devoted to charitable purposes.

Grand Lodge has resolved to apply this annual surplus by distributing it among its several Masonic Provinces, according to the number of their annual entrants. In place of crippling the efforts of lodges in "the projects of education and beneficence," these exactions will benefit very greatly our provincial brethren; and in provinces already having a benevolent fund, the money which will be thus allocated will form an invaluable aid; and in other districts, where no benevolent efforts have yet been made, the brethren there may apply the money towards any charitable objects they may select.

Grand Lodge has further provided, in order to secure the proper application of the money to be thus raised, a board of trustees, consisting of three members of each Provincial Grand Lodge, the Substitute Grand Master, and two members of Grand Committee.

Of this scheme all members of Grand Lodge had intimation; and not only so, but the Grand Secretary, in order to ascertain the views of leading members of the Craft, did what is unusual—communicated the various motions on the subject to them. Of the brethren so consulted one only disapproved of the scheme, and while doing so he agreed to the propriety of the liquidation of the debt, but propounded another scheme which did not meet with acceptance.

The Metropolitan Lodge, as "A Past Master," terms Grand Lodge, is common to all, and its existence is essential to the wellbeing and good government of the whole Craft. Like the Houses of Parliament, and other national institutions, its maintenance is derived from the contributions of the body of which it is the common head; and it cannot be said that the increase on the diploma fee, and the small annual payment of one pound yearly by daughter lodges, will "make the terms of membership onerous throughout the country." It is well known that the entrance fees in Scotch lodges are very small, and that they are considered so by members of other Grand Lodges; and it is certainly undesirable to admit any man to the privileges of the Order who is unable to pay so small an increase as half-a-crown on these fees. As to the small annual payment by the lodges, I cannot believe that any lodge exists which has twenty members who will hesitate to contribute one shilling yearly towards its payments.

If, therefore, the balance due on the price of Grand Lodge property is to be paid, it is scarcely possible to conceive any scheme more simple, which would fall more lightly on the members of lodges, and which would be more easily collected.

The suggestion "Past Master" makes to raise the money by subscriptions was taken into consideration by the Substitute Grand Master, and others, and these experienced brethren and men of business, after deliberation, arrived at the conclusion that although a most liberal subscription were obtained it would be wholly inadequate in amount for the purpose.

"Past Master" states that Grand Lodge has seldom or never made any assessment imposed exclusively on its members, and that it sanctions "prodigal expenditure in banquetings and gatherings for parade and pleasure." These statements are unjust and incorrect, and ought not to have been made without enquiry. The brethren attending banquetings and gatherings bear their own charges; and the members of Grand Lodge do have exclusive imposts made on them; and from that source, and the annual payments of the lodges in Edinburgh alone, is derived the income of the Fund of Scottish Masonic Benevolence; and that fund is chiefly, as is well known, applied in relieving the necessities of brethren in places other than Edinburgh, whose lodges do not contribute one sixpence towards the fund. Apart from the Benevolent Fund, members of the Grand Lodge contribute an annual payment of considerable amount towards the common funds of the Order; and I may mention that so anxious were the members of Grand Lodge to facilitate the liquidation of its debt, that by a majority of something like 200 to 12 it renounced its interest in the diploma fees, and resolved that the expenditure of Grand Lodge must be restricted by the sum thus surrendered.

I may observe, as showing a curious inconsistency, that it was the proxy master of a leading Ayrshire Lodge (Kilwinning) who objected to this enforced economy in Grand Lodge expenditure, and that the Provincial Grand Master of East Renfrew and the Depute Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow were among the few who voted with him.

As regards the conjunction of the offices of Grand Secretary and Grand Clerk, "A Past Master" must, or at least ought, to know that repeated motions within the last seven years have been made to conjoin these offices; and that these motions have not been carried, chiefly through the opposition of west county members. This motion has been again repeated, and I hope that your correspondent will attend next Grand Lodge communication, and use his influence to carry it.

I quite concur with "Past Master" in his just acknowledgment of Grand Master's zeal and services; and in the hope that a spirit of enquiry will be awakened in the minds of our brethren which would ensure a more active supervision of Grand Lodge affairs, for to the apathy which has hitherto existed on the part chiefly of provincial members, our present position is mainly indebted. Speaking, as I may do, for the leading members of Grand Committee, I can assure "Past Master" of their thorough support in securing any object for the better administration of the Craft, and of their sincere desire that he would continue to aid them in that object.

Since writing the above I have seen in your to-day's issue the letter of a member of St. Mark's Lodge, Glasgow. He has fallen into the same error regarding the non-publication of Grand Lodge's accounts as "A Past Master." A vitimus of these accounts is published annually in the Grand Lodge Reporter; but, although the Grand Lodge financial year ends on 30th April, and its accounts are said to be audited monthly, for an unsatisfactory reason, the auditor has not yet handed the vitimus of last year's accounts to the Grand Secretary, and the publication of the Reporter for last year has been thus unfortunately delayed. The Grand Committee at its last meeting resolved that the auditor should be requested to return the accounts, audited or unaudited, within a month from that date, and the brethren may thus hope soon to have them.—Your obedient servant.

ANOTHER PAST MASTER.

Edinburgh Courier, Dec. 9th, 1872.

Sir, you did me the favour of inserting my letter on Grand Lodge affairs in your impression of Monday's evening, and as you deemed it a subject of sufficient importance for editorial comment on the day following, perhaps you will think proper to say one word in reply to the Editor of the Grand Clerk which appeared in your issue of Wednesday last? The same day the observations in your journal are "fair, exact, and founded on indisputable facts." However, instead of pointing out the inaccuracies and glaring omissions, he invites "any Master, or other member of a lodge, or other duly qualified person" to call on his office and inspect a statement of the financial affairs of Grand Lodge of Scotland. I am a little that few Masons in Scotland would undertake journey to Edinburgh in order to ascertain the "sources of annual income and expenditure, as well as the particular amount of debt and the exact time when the means taken for its reduction were not an in-strict of the persons of Grand Lodge, published in the Reporter for April 1872, was done in the Reporter for April 1872. I presume that the latter was circulated among the daughter lodges. On referring to it I find that there was a deficit of £7,438, in consequence of the outlay on account of St. Andrew's festival. This does not quite agree with the Grand Master's statement in depreciation of censure:—"It scarcely calls for any fault-finding when we pay that (the dinner) out of our own pocket." But this is a matter of no moment compared with the charges for paid officers. I find, under the head of salaries, the following items:—20 successive Grand Secretaries, £315; Grand Clerks, £212; Grand Tyler, £75; Chief Grand Marshal, £44s.; Grand Marshal, £22s.; Outer Guard, £22s.; Auditor and Accountants—1868-69, £265s.; 1869-70, £265s.—£660 13s. in all. Total income of 1870-71, £2,489 3s. 3d. For charities during the year—8 was voted by the committee to fifty applicants, £206 10s.; casual charities, £12 13s. 3d.—to other, £219 3s. 3d. We already know how Grand Lodge has arranged to pay off its debt—namely, by a requisition of

2s. 6d. more from each entrant, and by an assessment of one pound in addition to the five shilling certificate annually.

Will the Grand Clerk venture to contradict this statement, or to say that it is "inaccurate and a misrepresentation?" I deem it my duty to say that, however much we may differ, I have personally a very great respect for the Grand Clerk; and it is known to me that he performs the duties of his office in a manner which is highly satisfactory to the Scottish brotherhood. Nor have I any doubt, whatever, that the Grand Secretary is altogether worthy of the confidence which Grand Lodge has reposed in him; but I repeat that I can see no necessity for having two highly-paid officers.

Furthermore, if Grand Lodge is to continue its course under peaceful and happy auspices, it must devise some other means of wiping off its debt, than by levying tribute from the Provincial Lodges.

I do not write in a captious spirit, nor am I (as some may think) finding fault because I have not the honour to hold office in the Grand Lodge. I have enjoyed the privilege of occupying the position in a lodge which a king might covet and which the Bard of Ceila was proud to commemorate:—

"Oft honour'd with supreme command, Presided o'er the Sons of Light."

And so convinced am I of the benignant influence of Masonry, that I only wish I had the power to enfold the whole human race in its bonds of brotherhood. I have many a time and oft seen its beneficent and fraternal services dry up the tears of the widow, gladden the heart of the orphan, and call down the blessing of the otherwise forlorn and indigent craftsman.

My desire is therefore, for the prosperity of the communion to which I belong, and in whose welfare I am deeply interested, I hope that Lord Rosslyn will see the propriety of giving the point I have alluded to his unbiassed consideration.

I trust the honour is reserved for him, in addition to his many other claims to our esteem, of amicably arranging a matter which might otherwise breed alienation between the Grand Lodge and daughter lodges of Scotland.

I am, &c.,

A PAST MASTER.

Edinburgh Courier.

INTERESTING ART PRESENTATIONS IN LIVERPOOL.

The closing of the Corporation Exhibition of Paintings at the Free Library and Museum, Liverpool, on Saturday last was marked by an interesting presentation to Bro. his Worship the Mayor (E. Samuelson, Esq.), and P. H. Rathbone, who have done so much in an efficient way to advance the cause of Fine Arts in Liverpool. As was stated in the Reporter a few weeks ago, a large number of metropolitan and provincial artists resolved to present each of these gentlemen with a handsomely-bound folio of water-colour sketches, all of which are the production of the contributors. Amongst the artists who thus contributed were Messrs. E. Deane, F. W. Topham, H. B. Roberts, J. Finney, Mole, Kerry, Bishop, S. Pratt, Marples, Fairweather, Grouse, Collingwood, Huggins, Oakes, Moffor, Hite, and Burton. Each folio contained no fewer than 51 sketches—all, it is needless to say, beautiful specimens of the particular branch of the painter's art to which they belong—and had on the inside of the case an illuminated inscription, which was executed by Mr. J. O. Marples of the Liverpool and London Chambers, Dale-street. The folio presented to the Mayor was inscribed as follows:—"This folio of sketches is presented to Edward Samuelson, Esq., Mayor of Liverpool, by the following artists, in appreciation of his energetic, judicious, and valued labours in the promotion of art in Liverpool, as Chairman of the autumn exhibition of pictures." The inscription on the folio given to Mr. Rathbone was, "This folio of sketches is presented to P. H. Rathbone, Esq., treasurer of the autumn exhibition of pictures, by metropolitan and provincial artists, in recognition of his earnest efforts in the encouragement of art in Liverpool." The interesting ceremony was attended by a large number of ladies and gentlemen, the chairman of the library and museum committee, Mr. J. A. Picton, occupying the chair.

The Chairman gave an interesting sketch of the history of art exhibitions in Liverpool, the first of which was held about 100 years ago and in the course of his remarks he said it was principally owing to the efforts of Mr. Edward Samuelson and Mr. P. H. Rathbone that they were at length revived after many years cessation. The first of the new exhibitions was held last year, and on the whole proved a great success, inasmuch as the value of the pictures sold was £6,300, and the exhibition so far paid its way that all expenses were defrayed and a surplus of about £600 remained, which had been appropriated by the corporation to the purchase of pictures for the benefit of the town. Last year, £500 worth of pictures was purchased for that purpose, and this year £600 had been expended in the same manner. This year's exhibition had also met with very satisfactory success. (Applause.) The value of the pictures sold was about £6,000, which was within £300 of the amount last year, when one picture obtained £1,350.

After some reference to the patronage bestowed by the public on that season's exhibition, the Chairman said that the number of pictures sold both this year and last was larger than in any other provincial town. It was also gratifying to know that there were being gradually accumulated in that building pictures and other works of art such as would eventually form for the town a very creditable collection. He next alluded to the fact that Mr. P. H. Rathbone had recently presented to the town a picture which cost £400—(applause)—and announced that at the next meeting of the town council one of the merchants of Liverpool would present his fellow-townsmen with a valuable work of art. (Cheers.)

Mr. Bishop, senior artist in Liverpool, then made the presentations in suitable terms.

The Mayor, in returning thanks, said he should always regard the folio they had presented to him as one of the happiest reminiscences of his public career. (Applause.) He had long felt that something should be done to promote the cause of art in this town, and but for the assistance he had received from Mr. Picton and a number of artists, his efforts to establish an art collection would have failed. In this attempt to resuscitate art in Liverpool he was aided by Messrs. Roberts, Bishop, Kerry, and Finney. Now that the plan had been so far successful, nothing would satisfy him but a permanent gallery of art, and it would afford him the greatest satisfaction to lay the foundation-stone of such a building during his Mayoralty. He believed that the desired object could be effected without trenching on the pockets of the ratepayers, and he hoped he might rely upon the assistance of the library and museum committee in this matter. Why should we not have an art congress here periodically? He believed it would be the means of engendering a much greater love of the Fine Arts, which was an object that every one interested in the cause of education should desire to promote. (Applause.)

Mr. P. H. Rathbone also thanked the contributors, who had given something which would in the future speak messages of sympathy and encouragement to the Mayor and himself in the work on which they had entered.

The interesting proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

It is extremely probable that the Fine Art Gallery in Liverpool, above referred to, will be an accomplished fact before long.

It may be also interesting to state that during Bro. Samuelson's year of office, a three days' musical festival will be arranged and carried out in Liverpool. The Mayor's musical abilities are well-known, and this festival would be a prominent feature, as well as a becoming compliment to him during his Mayoralty.

GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.
ADDRESS BY BRO. BREMOND, ORATOR.

My Brethren:—

Called by the Council of the Order to replace our very dear Bro. Lagache, whose illness has forced him to relinquish the duties of the office which I now fill, I will give you a short resumé of the work performed during the present session.

A happy modification in the order of our work has permitted us rapidly to organise the assembly and its several committees. We had the first day time to nominate the committees, and to repeat the reports submitted for discussion during the session, so I hesitate not to say that the present assembly has shown more practical spirit and knowledge of affairs than its predecessor has done; this we have already been able to verify, for we talk less and work more. Is this not a step in the right direction?

You, my brothers, have recompensed labours and services rendered by conferring the Presidency of this assembly upon our very dear Bro. De Saint Jean. You know him, therefore there is no necessity for me to speak of his merits; besides, it is customary for the Grand Orient of France to refrain from eulogizing a brother until after his death. Long may that event be postponed is, I am persuaded, the desire of every member present.

I will now bring to your notice, and ask you to devote a few minutes to the important question of instruction, which has caused you to be called upon for a small personal contribution. You have liberally met the question and renewed the offering made in 1870, which you have charged your President to present to the Minister of Public Instruction, and to inform him that Freemasonry has ever been in favour of gratuitous and obligatory instruction, and to tell him also that in 1870 the Freemasons signed by thousands, and transmitted to M. Jules Simon, the petition which they renew to day by the voice of their representatives, and in short to tell him that as lovers of order, of the Republic, and of peace, we wish by the diffusion of light, by the influence of intelligence and of labour, and by the pressure which French sentiment has exercised on the world, we wish to take the only revenge worthy of us, that of making Germany comprehend that hearts yield not to force, and that sooner or later the arrival of the hour of justice will be marked on the dial of time.

But we must leave politics alone, my brothers, and return to the affairs of the Masonic Order. A serious disagreement has separated French and American Masons. Before asking the continuance of a separation so grievous you have charged your representatives to convey to the American Grand Lodges our fraternal representations and hopes that all that has awakened the just susceptibilities of the American people will disappear with the proclamation of a Republic in France, and the relationship momentarily interrupted be renewed. The cause of the rupture was a question as to the regularity of a new Supreme Council A. and A. Rite in Louisiana. You have submitted judgment in the matter to a tribunal composed of delegates from all the Supreme Councils of A. and A. Rite, and it will be for them to decide upon the establishment of the Council of Louisiana.

The next question brought before the assembly was, should a profane initiated, contrary to our regulations, be considered as a Mason, or should he be considered as one initiated in an irregular lodge. You have, by a severe but just application of the law, declared that you could not consider him as one regularly initiated, but that the door of our Temple would be opened to him if he applied a second time in a proper and regular manner. The person concerned should not complain of the decision, but draw from it advantageous lessons. It is in scrupulously observing our statutes that we are enabled to keep up the dignity of our Order, and you have wisely reminded the lodges that they should not initiate a profane without being well assured that he had not been previously admitted in another lodge, or without attending to the directions issued by the Grand Orient of France for guidance in like cases.

The examination of the votes deposited at the last convention has caused us to discuss the question of the desirability of suppressing all Masonic grades superior to that of Master. Our Constitutions oblige all members of chapters to belong to a symbolical lodge, so that each year they are represented first by the Master, and a second time by the President of the chapter to which they belong. This double representation has long been an anomaly and a mistake. You have now, by a wise and prudent measure, decided that these chapters, without ceding their rights, shall cease to send representatives, and shall participate only through their lodges in the active administration of Grand Orient.

In short, my brothers, you have terminated this laborious session by a careful examination of the financial resources of the Grand Orient, and you have ascertained that if our position is not so flourishing as we deemed at first, yet it is sufficiently prosperous to cause us to have no fear for the future of our funds.

I was right, then, to say at the commencement of my speech, that you had usefully employed the time devoted to this session. In returning to your lodges, you will bear to our brother's testimony of the utility and advantage of these annual re-unions, which unites in one common interest all the Masons under the Grand Orient of France. Strangers one to the other at first, we have learned to know and esteem each other in working together.

Work is the bond which unites all classes of the people. It is the origin of exchange and commerce, both of which we should be proud to be connected with; for these necessitate labour, by means of which the intellect is sure to be expanded. Study well Article 3 of our Constitutions; it contains the great principles to be found in the declaration of rights and duties of the year III., and you will comprehend the importance of the following formula:—"Masonry considers the obligation to work as one of the imperative laws of humanity, and requires from each, according to his strength, and condemns voluntary idleness. We set aside at once traditions which treat work as undignified, or considers it a punishment. The church tells us that mankind were placed in a terrestrial paradise; in the midst of his joys he was cast out for having disobeyed God, and God punished man by condemning him henceforth to gain his bread by the sweat of his brow. Thus noblemen assert that labour was not originally intended, but was the consequence of crime, and that all work is undignified, so all who work forfeit their claim to nobility; and when, in 1789, Mirabeau, repulsed by his peers when he wished to enter the States General, presented himself as a candidate for the suffrages of the people. Before doing so, however, he opened a shop in one of the streets of the town of Aix, and placed on his sign "Mirabeau, Cloth Merchant."

For us, my brothers, who believe that man elevates and ennobles himself by work, we can have no hesitation in saying that each person owes to society all that their intelligence and strength can perform. It is the exchange of services which constitutes our social compact. The poor man, who works all the week in order to earn a modest salary wherewith to support his family and pay his proportion towards the support of the State, is far more noble than the courtier, who struts ostentatiously, but uselessly, through the Courts of Europe.

Our last Grand Master (whose absence from our midst this year we much regret) was transformed into our President, and the members of the Council of the Order by their zeal have obliterated the stain imposed by a former assembly.

We have, I am sorry to say, suffered a grievous loss; two members of the Council have been snatched by death from the bosoms of their families and their friends, two good Masons, two citizens, and two good men; have left us all to deplore their loss, and their absence from our midst during the deliberations of the Grand Orient. We would neglect our duty did we not give official expression to our grief and regret at their loss.

We are now about to part, my brothers. To Masons so jealous, so devoted, I say (while wishing you good-bye for the present) return next year to our circle and assist us in our fraternal labours.

The President thanked the Orator for his able speech, which was frequently interrupted by the applause of the brethren.

The following officers were appointed at the third meeting:—

Bros. Douc, W.M. Lodge Reunion O. de Toulon, Senior Warden; Rieauc, W.M. Lodge Union and Confidence, O. Lyon, Junior Warden; Lagache, member of the council, Orator; Messiewis, W.M. Lodge of Knowledge, Chambéry, Assistant Orator; Pouille, member of the council, Secretary; Ansant du Tresnet, W.M. Lodge Friendship, Boulonge, sur-Mer, Assistant Secretary; Rediand, Delegate, Rouen, Grand Expert; Ponzin, Delegate, Mantes, 1st Expert; Limon, W.M., Delegate, Paris, 2nd Expert, Bros. Dislire, Olszewski, Izembart, Lequarte, Cammas, and Ichau were appointed to the remaining offices.

[We have to thank Bro. Thévenot the courteous and talented chief Secretary for the last number of the Bulletin, from which we have taken the foregoing extracts.]

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.
(CONTINUED).

BRADFORD.—Pentatpha Lodge (No. 974).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 5th inst. Bro. Robt. Richardson, W.M., presided, and there was no business beyond the installation of Bro. John Ambler, P.S.W. 302, as W.M., and the investiture of his officers. This done the brethren adjourned to the room, held in such high repute after the labours of the day, to refresh and re-invigorate themselves by partaking of the excellent dinner there served in the style for which this lodge is famous, the wine flowing freely as a river. Bro. Ambler, W.M., presided at the dinner, being supported on his right by Bros. C. F. Unau, W.M. 600; D. Salmond, P.M. 302; J. White, W.M. 439; A. Briggs, P.M. 974; Will. W. Barlow, W.M. 302; J. D. Sugden, P.M. 302; Sefton, P.M. 680, P. Prov. G.S.B., West Lancashire; T. Murgatroyd, P.M. 387; I. Evans, P.M. 974, and on his left by Rev. Bro. R. A. King, Chaplain of the lodge; M. Rhodes, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Thos. Hill, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.J.W.; Henry Smith, P.M. 387, P.G. Sec; S. B. Walmsley, P.M., 974; W. Ibbatson, P.M. 302, P.G.J.D.; A. Hunter, P.M. 302; I. Gaunt, P.M. 302; J. B. Armitage, P.M. 332; H. O. Mawson, P.M. 974; and C. H. Taylor, P.M. 974. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Evans, P.M., in apt and curt terms gave, "The Clergy," which was responded to in a rather long speech by Rev. C. L. Thomas, P. Prov. G.C. The W.M. then gave "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces." Bro. A. Briggs, P.M. (Captain Artillery) in response, alluded to the great Battle of Waterloo, being won by a force mainly of raw recruits, but that the glory of arms was mainly owing to small battles, and that the most scientific war ever waged was that of Abyssinia. He considered that the commander of that exploit would compare favourably with Moltke in the recent war with France. He had every confidence that the military and naval forces of our country would be ever ready for any emergency, and on their behalf he begged to thank them for the honour done them. Bro. D. Salmond, P.M. (Major Volunteers), endorsed all Bro. Briggs had said, and could add still more, he thought, of officers and commanders of former times, such as the Duke of Marlborough, the memorable Nelson or Blake, and saw our navy, instead of tiers of guns, with walls of steel, such as the "Woolwich Infant," they would be astonished; and it was quite likely the implements of war would come to something quite annihilating. Bro. Barraclough, P.M. (Captain Volunteers), when called upon, said he could not make a speech—great commanders never could make speeches (much laughter). Nelson never could, nor Wellington, whose most famous speech was, "Up lads and at them." A brother suggested "guards," but Bro. Barraclough said history had it "lads." He would conclude by thanking them for the opportunity that had been afforded him of making a soldier's speech. Bro. Rev. R. A. King, Chaplain, felt that after the speech of Bro. Captain Barraclough, it was somewhat an inappropriate opportunity to propose "The Immortal Memory of St. John the Evangelist." Brethren, you all know the special claim the Evangelist has upon the veneration of Freemasons; you all know that that charity, which is the very soul and centre of his Epistles, is so also of Freemasons, and that a nearer approach has been made by Freemasons to that universal brotherhood preached by St. John than by any other society of men. As I looked round me to-night in this hall, and saw so many brethren of different callings and professions, with different interests and different tastes, all brought together and held together in harmony by the mystic bond of our brotherhood, I could not help feeling proud of the thought that Freemasonry has solved the problem of which other societies of men in all ages, and especially in our age, have sought a solution in vain—the problem which International Societies, Peace Societies, Societies of Socialists or Communists, have striven to master in vain—the problem of uniting together, by a bond at once strong and elastic, not only men of the same race or language, religion or country, but men of all races, languages, countries, and creeds, without any regard to external, accidental, or temporary differences, but with every regard to that difference which is spiritual, essential, and external, the difference between that man whose pride in life is truth, uprightness, and charity, and that man who is the slave of selfishness and falsehood; and this word "slave," worshipful sir, reminds me of another claim that the Christian Evangelist St. John has upon the love and veneration of Freemasons. It is, you know, in his Gospel that these words occur, which I consider to be the charter of our Craft:—"You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." You know, fellow Freemasons, that this word "free" is the most English word in the English language; for the idea of freedom is the one thing which the world owes to England, and England to herself alone. Yes, England may owe the origin of her literature to Greece and Rome, of her art to Italy, of her science and invention to France; she may owe her greatness in part to her commerce, in part to her Geographical position. But her freedom, on whose soil and in whose atmosphere alone Art, Science, Literature, Commerce, and Empire can reach their utmost perfection. Her freedom is especially her own, she has won it for herself, she is winning it for the world. Therefore it is I say that the word free is the most English word in the English language, that the idea of freedom is the one thing the world owes to England and England to herself alone, and that the love of freedom has grown amongst us into an instinct strong as the love of life itself. As the poet puts it nobly "we must be free or die, who speak the tongue that Shakespeare spoke: the faith and morals hold which Milton held." But remember this, fellow Freemasons—and the very word Freemason should recall it to you. This freedom of which you are so proud—this freedom which is the special birthright of Englishmen and the special glory of England—which you have bought with the blood of revolutions, and which you hold as sacred and as inseparable from yourselves as your life—this freedom, I say, is but the type, the shadow, the mere faint and feeble figure of another, a higher and a happier freedom—freedom not of the body but of the soul—not from the tyranny of an absolute master or monarch, or government, but from the baser tyranny, the more abject slavery, the more bitter bondage of a soul enslaved to ignorance and superstition, to ignoble passions, to degrading vice, or to sordid self-seeking and selfishness. It is to this freedom Freemasonry calls you, and the words of the first preacher of this freedom are recorded by the Evangelist, whose memory you honour by your presence here to-night. I propose, therefore to you the memory of St. John, as having the twofold claim on the veneration of Freemasons of being the Evangelist of love, and the Evangelist of freedom of the truth—the true freedom of Freemasonry. Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M., proposed the health of "The Retiring Master," first expressing the pleasure he felt in seeing the present W.M. placed in the chair, and he was certain he had the best wishes of all that he might have a good year. He had during the day asked a kind brother if he could give him a text for this toast he had to propose, and he said, "Yes, he's a trump," and I say he is a trump. The qualifications for that chair are such as require great judgment, and Bro. Richardson had that. He shook hands with him on being shelved. He has been a trump, enlisting the sympathies, love, and esteem of every brother. But we have to leave and get into the shade, and other bright spirits come in, and every Master seems to excel the other, and I don't know where it will end. I am glad to see the Pentalpha attain such high honour. I congratulate Bro. Richardson on his year of office, and welcome his successor. Bro. Robt. Richardson, I.P.M., in responding, said I rise with feelings of pride and pleasure, but feel that I have nothing new to say, having so often had to respond on similar occasions. However, I assure you I appreciate the honour bestowed. I have endeavoured to do all I could during my year, and the lodge has continued to prosper with the assistance of the Past Masters. I regret I am not a speaker, I regret leaving the Chair; still there is a pleasure on retiring in taking my place with the Past Masters. Before I sit down I will propose the next toast, the toast of the evening, "The Worshipful Master" his good qualities are so well known that it would be quite superfluous on my part to say anything on his behalf, I can assure him we shall do all we can to support him in his position. The W.M. said I have a significant sign given to me that a little music would be agreeable, I will rest therefore until our Organist favours me. After an excellent song the W.M. again rose and said there are times in men's lives when they should be both happy and proud, it has been my ambition, when it should be my opportunity, to accept this position. It has come soon, as being a young man, but when told another brother did not wish it, I was glad to accept I will do all I can to cement that harmony which should adorn every lodge, and belonging, as I do, to another lodge, it will be my aim and hope to do all I can for both looking on the Lodge of Hope, as a foster brother, rather than as my mother lodge. I feel the responsibilities of office and shall never forget the duties of promoting the charities of our order. The W.M. then proposed the "Visiting Brethren," expressing the great thankfulness he felt to those brethren who had honoured them with their company. He said, I am afraid of making invidious selections to respond, the brethren might consider the number we have, and they whose names are not mentioned will kindly excuse. He would couple with the toast the names of Bros. George Richardson, W.M. elect of the Lodge of Hope, and O. White, P.M., of Liverpool, and leave the rest as may be thought proper. Bro. Richardson in responding said he acknowledged he had been ambitious for the post of W.M. of the Hope, to which he had been elected. Position gave a man opportunity for doing good, and he hoped to do some in his day. He thanked the brethren very cordially for the compliment paid to the visitors. Brother S. White, P.M., also shortly thanked the brethren for the honour done him, and the rest of the visitors. Brother C. F. Unna, W.M. Harmony, 600, also thanked the brethren and hoped that good feeling might exist between the various lodges. Brother Barlow, W.M. Hope, 302, being called upon, congratulated the W.M. as a P.S.W. in the Hope on his election to the chair in the Pentalpha, and on the part of the old lodge of Hope to thank him for omitting to allude to the W.M. of that lodge in proposing their toast. The W.M. proposed "The Past Masters" in very complimentary terms, to which Bro. A. Briggs, P.M., shortly responded, as the evening was far advanced. Several other toasts were given, but we have already occupied more space than usual in the reports of proceedings of private lodges in order to give a lengthy report of Bro. Rev. R. A. King's excellent speech, we regret not being able to insert them.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.—His Grace the Duke of St. Albans, R.W.P.G.M. Lincolnshire, will preside at the Annual Festival.

Stockwell Lodge (No. 1339).—This lodge met for the first time at its new place of meeting the Half Moon, Herne Hill, on Thursday, the 19th. Present, Bros. W. Worrell, W.M.; W. G. Brighten, J.W.; H. E. Frances, Sec.; I. Klenck, S.D.; C. H. Benham, D.C.; I. Sidnell, I.G.; also Bros. Coe, Bowyer, Hincksman, and Price. Visitors, Bros. Sprague, W.M. 190; W. Withall, J.D. 720; G. Cragg, J.D. 766; N. I. F. Bassett, 22; and T. H. Clarke, of Chicago. The business of the evening was the passing of Bro. Coe, and the raising of Bro. Bowyer. Bro. Brighton, J.W., was elected W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. Hammerton re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Dolan, Tyler. Bros. Price, Benham, and Bowyer were elected to serve on the Audit Committee, in addition to the W.M., P.M.'s, and Wardens. Two candidates were proposed for initiation, and Bro. Bassett for joining at the ensuing meeting, and the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a very excellent supper, presided over by the W.M., who gave the usual Masonic toasts. The visitors each expressed themselves very pleased at their first visit to the Stockport Lodge.

Original Correspondence.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me, by way of preamble, to say that I have been a regular reader of The Freemason ever since that journal was launched upon the rough waters of newspaper enterprise, and am pleased to mention that I have invariably found in its pages much matter of an interesting, instructive, and suggestive character to the Masonic student.

Occasional inaccuracies, both typographical and otherwise, are incidental to the press, and are quite unavoidable, as every one will readily admit who has a knowledge of the onerous duties of an editor and the eccentricities of that universal scapegoat, "the printer." To a generous mind, these defects, however great or trivial, do not detract one iota from the merits of a publication, for

"Errors, like straws, upon the surface flow
He who would search for pearls must dive below."

In perusing the last number of your estimable print, I discovered in page 808 an article describing a Freemason's adventure abroad. The Norwich Argus, I find, is credited with being the original source from which the account was copied. The inference naturally drawn from this statement by the reader is that the particulars were primarily conveyed to the paper named. Such, however, is not the case, for the notice first appeared in the columns of the Sunday Times newspaper.

I feel convinced that you will allow me to correct this erroneous impression by affording room for the insertion of this letter in an early number of The Freemason. It may be interesting to your readers to hear that Bro. A. F. Forrest, with whom I am personally acquainted, has quite recovered from the maltreatment, received during his late sojourn in Spain, and that he fully appreciates the solicitude and sympathetic expressions evinced towards him by the Craft since he returned to England.

Yours fraternally,

THE AUTHOR OF THE ARTICLE.

* Microscopical investigation has proved that the substances which accumulate between the teeth contain animal and vegetable parasites, and that the tooth powders, pastes, and washes in general use have no effect upon these. Messrs. Gabriel's Coralite Tooth Paste and Royal Dentifrice (sold by all chemists and perfumers at 1s. 6d. per box) completely destroy and remove these animalcules and also preserve and beautify the teeth. Prepared only by Messrs. Gabriel, the old established dentist, 64, Ludgate Hill, and 56, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London, where they practise their unique system of painless dentistry.