 thousands of spectators were also on the scene.
 The weather was fine, and the ceremony was both impressive and imposing. The new edifice will cost some £3,500, and will accommodate 644 people, one half the sittings being free and unappropriated. £2,200 have already been raised by subscriptions. Mr. W. T. Carr, barrister-at-law, gave the site, worth £300, in addition to a subscription of £100. One special circumstance deserves to be noticed, to show the interest the working-men of the district take in the movement. A number have subscribed £5 each, which they will pay at 2s. 6d. per week. Eight bands of music played in various parts of the procession.

St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, has been sold by the present proprietor, Bro. S. Wickens, to the English Order of the Knights of St. John, who thus regain possession of the fine old hall after centuries of other occupancy.

CROSBY'S
BALSAMIC

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.
CROSBY'S

BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN AND BUNION PLAISTERS are the best ever invented for giving immediate ease, and removing those painful excrescences. Price 6d. and 1s. per box. May be had of most chemists.
Observe the trade mark—HY—without which none are genuine be sure and ask for YOUNG'S.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

GIBRALTAR.—St. John's Lodge (No. 115).—The evening of the 18th June, 1873, will be long remembered by the members of this old and well-known lodge, for seldom or ever had there been such an enthusiastic mustering of all the brethren to do honour to and welcome the installation into the chair of K.S. of Bro. Thomas Haynes, worthy brother of a large family of Masons, and worthy, thrice worthy descendant of a venerable and much respected member of the Craft; one who, many, many years ago, elected to settle down at Cadiz, and there established a firm of practical engineers which is known far and wide throughout the Peninsula. Well, indeed, may England be proud of those sons, who, in the country of their adoption, opened up a most successful career; and by their own unaided energy, integrity, and perseverance, carved themselves out a position of power and authority, which will inscribe their names indelibly on the scroll of the history which records the progress of that country with which they have associated themselves. And well may we accept with fraternal embrace, and glory in placing amongst us, as rulers in the Craft, brethren who have already so clearly demonstrated that they possess executive energy, and administrative ability. Punctually at 8 p.m. the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Morgan, who was supported on the dais by Bros. P. M. Beale, Cavanna, Balfour Cockburn, Price, Franceri, Holliday, and Weir; with Bros. T. Haynes, as S.W.; Valerius, J.W.; Ashton, S.D.; Avellano, J.D.; S. de Luque, M.C.; Apancio, Organist; Clementi, Secretary. We also noticed as present:—Bros. Evjenth, Clavarez, Gomez, C. Haynes, J. T. Haynes (who arrived from Cadiz just in time for the ceremony), Marshall, Cortez, Levy, Lopez, Bassano, Gimenez, Benhayon, Recano, Hepper, Seath, and others. The minutes having been read and confirmed, and the W.M. elect presented by Bro. P.M. Cavanna and Cockburn, Bro. Morgan proceeded to instal him, conducting the ceremony, in every way, most creditably, the different charges being delivered in a very careful and impressive manner. W.M. Haynes, having been duly proclaimed and saluted, at once nominated the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. Ashton, S.W.; M. Gomez, J.W.; Evjenth, S.D.; Recano, J.D.; Clementi, Master of Ceremonies; Lopez, I.G.; Haynes, Secretary; Cavanna, Orator; Aparicio, Organist; Peterkin, Steward. After a few general remarks, and the transaction of some affairs of minor importance, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren retired to the banquetting-hall, where a splendid collation had been provided by the liberal W.M., and to which full justice was done by the numerous brethren and visitors. The usual toasts were given and responded to, the oratorical powers of Bro. Cavanna being fully tried. The enthusiasm of the evening reached its climax when P.M. Cockburn proposed the health of "the Father and Brothers Haynes." Bro.

J. T. Haynes, who with difficulty and at some personal inconvenience, had left Cadiz that very afternoon to be present at his brother's installation, responded on behalf of his father and himself, both in the Spanish and English language. Shortly after, the brethren retired.

WHITEHAVEN.—Sun, Square and Compasses Lodge (No. 119).—Wednesday, July 3rd, was one of the red letter days chronicled amongst the archives of the oldest lodge in the Masonic Province of Cumberland and Westmoreland, it being the St. John's festival for the installation of Lord Muncaster, M.P., as Worshipful Master of Sun, Square and Compasses Lodge, No. 119, Whitehaven. Many are the vicissitudes that the lodge—founded upwards of a century since—has undergone; but it is now gratifying to state that, in this particular year of Masonic grace, 5873, no other lodge in the province is more flourishing, or counts a greater number of members on its roll—members withal, whose names and titles amply testify the staunch and valuable services they have rendered the Craft, not only particularly as regards the important province of Cumberland and Westmoreland, but generally as regards Masonry under the sway of the Grand Master of the English Constitution. The brethren met at the lodge-room, College-street, at five o'clock. The muster was unusually large. Amongst the Prov. G. Officers and officers of the lodge present were:—Bros. W. Sandwith, W.M.; Lord Muncaster, M.P., S.W., P.G. Reg.; Rev. F. W. Wicks, Chap.; W. Alsop, Hon. Sec., P.P.G.S.; E. Tyson, S.D.; I. Hartness, J.D.; Jas. Cooper, Org., P.P.G.O.; J. Rothery, I.G.; I. Wilson, S.; P. Quin, P.M., T., P.P.G.S.W.; E. Fearon, P.M., P.G.D.C., P.P.G.S.W.; H. Cook, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; W. White, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. Barr, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; Major Spencer, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; E. W. Henry, P.M., P.G.J.W.; G. W. Kenworthy, P.M., P.P.G.J.W.; W. B. Gibson, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; and others. The visiting brethren turned up in great force. Bro. Sandwith, Worshipful Master, took the chair at half-past five, and the lodge was then opened in form. Bro. Alsop, Hon. Sec., read letters of apology from several brethren. After the lodge had been opened in the second degree, the Installing Master, Bro. Kenworthy, P.P.G.J.W. with Bro. Lord Muncaster, M.P., W.M. elect, were announced. Bro. Sandwith, the retiring Master, thereupon vacated the chair, Bro. Kenworthy taking his place. The W.M. elect was now presented to the Installing Master, and the charge and obligation having been delivered, the lodge was opened in the third degree and a Board of Masters and Past Masters convened, which, we may observe, numbered over a score. The noble lord was then duly installed in the chair, and the brethren subsequently saluted him thrice, in accordance with ancient custom. The new officers of the lodge were lastly invested by the newly installed Worshipful Master as follows:—Bros. E. Atter, S.W.; Alsop, J.W.; E. Tyson, Hon. Sec.; W. Gibson, Treas.; Rev. F. W. Wicks, Chaplain; I. Hartness, S.D.; J. Rothery, J.D.; T. Dawson, I.G.; I. Wilson, D.C.; J. Milner and J. Milligan, Stewards; and P. Quin, Tyler. The Installing Master's charges, delivered in a most impressive manner, to the Worshipful Master and Wardens, brought the actual business of the day to a close. Lord Muncaster, prior to closing the lodge, appointed Bro. M'Kelvie as his deputy. We must not omit to mention that the onerous work of the Installing Master was most efficiently rendered by Bro. Kenworthy, who has officiated in the same capacity for some years past. At the conclusion of the lodge proceedings an adjournment was made to the banquetting hall, which was appropriately decorated, and in which a splendid refection was spread by Mrs. Todhunter, of the Albion Hotel, in her very best style. Bro. Lord Muncaster, the newly-installed Master, presided, supported right and left by Bros. Major Spencer, G. Kenworthy, W. B. Gibson, Dr. Shannon, Dr. Henry, J. Porter, Rev. T. R. Holme, Rev. F. W. Wicks, Rev. M. Labarte, Dr. Clarke, and Henry Cook. The vice-chairs were filled by Bro. E. Fearon, (in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Atter) and Bro. W. Alsop. Grace before and after meat having been said by Bro. the Rev. F. W. Wicks, the Chairman proposed the "Queen and the Craft," which was cordially drank. The Chairman next gave the "Prince and Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family." The Prince of Wales had always taken a very great interest in Masonry, and he was a Mason who was likely to take a still deeper interest in the Craft hereafter. The toast was drunk with Masonic honours. The Chairman, in proposing the health of the Right Hon. Earl de Grey and Ripon, Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, said that he had the pleasure of his lordship's acquaintance, and had often heard him express the great interest he took in Masonry. The toast was drunk with all the honours. The Chairman next proposed the health of Earl of Carnarvon, Deputy Grand Master of England, and, in doing so, said his lordship was a nobleman universally esteemed by all Masons in England. The Chairman proposed the health of the Earl of Bective, M.P., Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master. He alluded to the great interest which Lord Bective took in Masonry in general, and particularly in the province of Cumberland and Westmoreland. (Drank with Masonic honours.) Bro. Cook, in submitting the next toast—the health of a worthy brother, who was always doing good, and pleasing them with his delightful speeches—paid a high tribute to the Masonic worth of Bro. Whitwell, M.P., the Deputy Prov. G. Master. He called on the company to drink Bro. Whitwell's good health. With respect to the other officers of the province, they were very well known to most present, and he would ask them to cordially respond to the toast. (Drank with full honours.) Bros. Henry and Porter briefly responded. Bro. Major Spencer proposed the health of the present Worshipful Master of Lodge 119, Bro. Lord Muncaster. His Lordship had come before them a comparative stranger to begin with, but now he came amongst them as a Mason, and was received with open arms as a man and a brother. It was unnecessary for him to say much about Lord Muncaster's abilities; but His Lordship had appointed an able brother to officiate for him in his absence from the country, and he was sure they would always welcome Lord Muncaster amongst them whenever his duties permitted him to be present. (Loud applause, after which the toast was drank with all the honours.) The Worshipful Master, on rising to respond, was received with renewed cheering. He said it was not very easy to respond to the toast, because he was so thoroughly aware how little he was capable of filling the responsible post to which he had that day been appointed. He had been so recently initiated into Masonry, that he thought any other brother had as much right to sit in the chair as he had. (No, no.) At first when the office was offered to him he did not know whether to accept it or not, but upon second consideration he thought it was his duty to accept it, as, in so doing, he had an opportunity of furthering the interests of Masonry in the district. He had not been able to give that attention to the affairs of the Craft which he could have wished, owing to his frequent unavoidable absence from the country. He considered himself very much indebted to Bros. Kenworthy Gibson, and Sandwith, for the able assistance they had given him. As Bro. Spencer had remarked he believed that he had appointed a very worthy Deputy in Bro. M'Kelvie; in fact, it was his opinion he could not be more worthily represented. This was his native county, and it was a great source of pleasure and honour to him to be made Master of Lodge 112; and he hoped that he might be permitted to attend the lodge during the ensuing year more frequently than he had been able to do in the past. He begged to thank the visiting brethren, and more especially the members of the lodge of which he was now Master, for the very cordial manner in which they had drunk the toast of his health. Bro. F. W. Wicks gave the "Immediate Past Master, Bro. Sandwith." He thought they should ever remember the gathering of this evening as one of the greatest events ever held in connection with the Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge. It was assuredly characteristic of that lodge that each and every member was striving to make it the best in the province. He proposed the toast of Bro. Sandwith, Immediate Past Master. The toast was warmly received. Bro. Sandwith, in returning thanks, said he hoped that the jewels that had been transferred from him to his noble successor were transferred in the same pure and unimpaired state in which he (Bro. Sandwith) received them twelve months ago from his predecessor. Bro. Clarke, in complimentary terms, proposed the health of the newly-elected officers, which was duly honoured. Bro. Alsop, on behalf of Bro. Atter and himself, thanked Lord Muncaster for the honour conferred upon them in selecting them his Wardens for the ensuing year. He (Bro. Alsop) regretted Bro. Atter's absence, but could assure his lordship and the brethren that the absence of Bro. Atter was due solely to professional engagements at the sessions. He (Bro. Alsop) could only say, on behalf of Bro. Atter and himself, that it would be their study to discharge the duties of their respective offices to the satisfaction of the Worshipful Master and the brethren, and to promote, in every possible way, the harmony of the lodge during their year of office. He concluded by congratulating the brethren upon having elected Bro. Lord Muncaster as W.M. of Lodge 119, and expressed a hope that they would often have the pleasure of his lordship's company amongst them. Bros. Gibson, Rothery, E. Tyson, J. Hartness, Milligan, and T. Dawson likewise briefly responded. At this stage of the proceedings, the W.M., Bro. Lord Muncaster, having to drive to Muncaster Castle, vacated the chair. Before leaving, his lordship deputed Bro. Kenworthy to fill his place. His lordship, on retiring, was greeted with a most enthusiastic demonstration on the part of the brethren. The Chairman proposed "The Visiting Brethren," to which Bros. Porter, Shannon, Brooker, Labarte, Mills, Steward, J. W. Young, and Lamony responded. Bro. Gibson proposed the "Masonic Charities." Lodge 119 was, he was proud to say, one of the vice patrons of the Boys' School, in fact, they had 20 votes, which was more than any other lodge in the province could boast of. It was only right they should go in and accomplish the same thing in regard to the Girls' School. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Henry, who had perhaps done more for the Masonic charities than any other member. Bro. Henry, in reply, hoped that next year, as Bro. Gibson had remarked, the lodge would be in the same position with regard to the Girls' School as it now stood with regard to the Boys' School. Bro. Gibson, in complimentary terms, proposed the health of the "Installing Master, Bro. Kenworthy," who briefly replied. The Tyler's toast was then given from the chair, and this brought the proceedings to a close shortly before eleven o'clock. The festival was the most important held in connection with the lodge for some years past, and undoubtedly reflected credit on all concerned in the management. The musical arrangements were under the supervision of Bro. Cooper.

EGREMONT.—Kenlis Lodge (No. 126).—The installation of Bro. Muncaster as Worshipful Master of the Kenlis Lodge, No. 1267, of the ancient and honourable fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, took place in the new lodge room, Egremont, on Wednesday. The brethren assembled at 5 o'clock, under the presidency of Bro. Lawson, the retiring W. Master. Bro. Muncaster, was installed by Bro. Crowther, Morton, P.M. of lodges 872, 1002, and 1267, P.Prov. G.S.W., in his usual efficient and masterly manner. At the close of the ceremony, the newly-installed Master, who was greeted by all the brethren in a most cordial and enthusiastic manner, invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows:—Bros. J. Eilbeck, S.W., J. Fearon, J.W.; W. Towerson, Hon. Sec.; E. Chapman, Treas.; Rev. H. A. Creeny, Chap.; R. Baxter, S.D.; J. B. Mossop, J.D.; G. Douglas, I.G.; and W. Selkirk, Tyler. After the lodge had been closed in due form, the brethren, 40 in number, repaired to the Wheat Sheaf Hotel, where a most sumptuous banquet awaited them, provided by Mrs. Jones, the worthy host's newly-appointed housekeeper, whose catering was the theme of praise. Bro. Muncaster occupied the chair, supported right and left by Bros. Morton, Lawson, Postlethwaite, Creeny, Lamb, Gill, W.M., and Brown, S.W. 72, and others. The vice-chairs were filled by Bros. Horsman, E. Chapman, and J. Eilbeck. Bro. Matthews presided at the piano. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts, interspersed with songs, admirably rendered by Bros. Biggs, Matthews, Charleton, Baxter, &c., were duly honoured, and a most happy and convivial meeting was kept up until 11 o'clock, when

"Each took off his several way
Resolved to meet some other day."

Rosse as W.M. of the "Mariners'" for the ensuing year. The whole of the ceremony of installation, and charges to the officers, was given by Bro. Dr. Smith in a manner which, while reflecting the highest credit upon his Masonic zeal and aptitude, must have given the greatest delight, by its efficiency and impressiveness, to even the oldest Mason present. The following brethren were subsequently invested officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. J. Lloyd, S. W.; J. Hayes, J.W.; J. K. Smith, P.M., re-appointed Treas.; R. Collings, re-appointed Sec.; H. Price, S.D.; W. Hamilton, J.D.; H. W. Nicholas, I.G.; E. Ramson, Foster, Parker, and Gordon, Stewards; W. H. Veale, Bro. W. H. Ball was unanimously re-elected Tyler of the lodge, and invested accordingly. At the conclusion of the installation ceremony, the newly-chaired W. M. commenced his year's work by initiating Messrs. William Jones and James Woods into the mysteries and privileges of the order, and the highly effective way in which he did this work augured well for the success of his year of office. Before the lodge was closed, the W.M., in the name of the lodge, presented a very handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Edwin Hughes, I.P.M., in recognition of his Masonic zeal and the excellent services he has rendered to the Mariners' Lodge. Bro. Hughes, in the course of an excellent speech, thanked the brethren for their kindly acknowledgment of his labours, and assured them he would continue to endeavour to do what they could for the Craft generally and that lodge in particular. After the labours of the afternoon, about sixty brethren and visitors sat down to a splendid banquet, under the presidency of the W.M., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in terse and happy terms. The toast of the P.G.M. and P.G. Officers of West Lancashire was responded to by Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O. In giving the toast of "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," the W. M. alluded to the present value of the benefits conferred upon those who were connected with it, and he hoped every member of the lodge would consider it his duty, as it was a privilege, to become a governor. The W. M. next gave the toast of "The Installing Master, Bro. Dr. Smith, P.M.," and said it must have afforded every brother the greatest delight at having witnessed the exceedingly efficient way in which he had performed his onerous duties that afternoon. After the toast had been honoured with the greatest enthusiasm, Bro. Smith replied in excellent terms, and spoke hopefully of the continued prosperity of the lodge. In conclusion he proposed the health of the W. M., who replied in appropriate terms. The toast of "The Newly Initiated Brethren," and "The Visitors" was also given by the W. M., the latter being responded to by Bros. Woodward, McGeorge, Ashmore, Doyle, Jackson, &c. Several other toasts were given during the evening, and the pleasantness of the gathering was greatly enhanced by the vocal efforts of Bros. H. W. Nicholas, Fisher, Veale, &c.

The business of the Lodge being ended, the brethren adjourned to banquet, supplied in Bro. Potter's usual excellent style, the tables being well furnished with all that could be desired, and decorated with plants and flowers from the Sutton nursery. It is intended to hold at the Sutton Hotel, Sutton, on the 26th of this month, at the invitation of the Frederick Lodge of Unity, the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey, Major-General Brownrigg, Provincial Grand Master, when a large gathering of the Masons of the Province is expected.

The handsome gift was acknowledged in well-chosen and appropriate terms by Bro. Dallow. About 170 of the brethren and their fair friends subsequently took steamer at St. George's landing-stage and proceeded to New Ferry, on the Cheshire side of the Mersey, where they pic-nicked at Mills' Great Eastern Hotel and Pic-nic Grounds, which at present are a model of loveliness and beauty. A sumptuous banquet was served to the whole company during the afternoon, and about 90 ladies partook of tea. The afternoon and evening were pleasantly spent in dancing and various other pastimes, and the party returned to Liverpool at a late hour per special steamer, thoroughly delighted with the masonic "out."

BELVEDERE.—Cornwallis Lodge (No. 1,107).—The installation meeting of this prosperous and flourishing lodge was held at the Public Hall, Belvedere, on Wednesday, the 2nd inst. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. G. Harvey, W.M., the lodge was duly opened by Bro. F. W. Knight, P.M. and P.G.D.C. Kent, who was supported by the officers and a large number of the members of the lodge. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. Rev. J. W. Wood, P.P.G. Chaplain, Oxfordshire; A. Russell, P.P.G.S.W. Puzey, J.W.; F. Wyatt, Treasurer; J. Henderson, Secretary; J. G. Michael, S.D.; J. Henwood, J.D.; T. Puzey, I.G. A cordial vote of thanks, and the same to be entered on the minutes, was given to Bro. The lodge being closed in due form, the brethren drove to the Bull Hotel, Darford, where about eighty sat down to a magnificent banquet, supplied by Bro. Bray in the most perfect manner. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were ably given by Bro. Storey in short but happy terms. The "Visitors" was responded to by Bros. G. Snow and Rev. J. W. Wood, who expressed their pleasure and admiration at the superior manner in which Bro. Knight performed the ceremony of installation, and praised the reception given to them at the festive board, and the laudable way in which everything was served. The principal event of the evening was the presentation to Bro. Knight of a handsome silver cup which had been unanimously voted to him by the brethren of the lodge as a mark of their testimony, esteem, and fraternal regard, and for his zeal in the interest of the lodge during the past year over which he had been called unexpectedly to preside, owing to the W.M., Bro. Harvey, removing to a distant part of the country just after his installation last year. On it was the following inscription, viz.: "Presented by the brethren of the Cornwallis Lodge, No. 1,107, to Bro. T. W. Knight, P.M. and P.G.D.C. Kent, for services rendered during the year 1873." The W.M., in a neat speech, made the presentation, and the recipient, Bro. Knight, in an appropriate speech expressed his gratitude for the handsome and costly present, which he had no doubt would be kept as an heir-loom in his family for generations to come, and anything he could do to further the interest of the lodge or the comfort of the brethren would at all times have his utmost energy and attention. Tea and coffee having been served, the brethren took their departure, all well-pleased in having spent such a happy reunion.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Royal Hotel, Aldershot, on the 3rd instant, the chair of K.S. being occupied by the W.M., Bro. Capt. Bro. the Earl of Zetland; also of the departure from among them of Bro. Carnegie, P.M., and late Treasurer; as well as the election of Bro. Capt. Richardson, W.M., as Treasurer, in succession to Bro. Carnegie—were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for two candidates for initiation, which in each case proved unanimous, and one being present, he was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bros. Mc Kenny and Carter, candidates for the third degree, were entrusted and retired, having given proof of proficiency in the former. The lodge was opened in the third degree, when Bros. Mc Kenny and Carter were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The lodges of the third and second degrees were closed. A set of large Craft tracing boards having been beautifully executed in oil painting, and furnished to the lodge by Bro. Austin, R.E., a member, the brethren voted a sum of money to that brother in payment of the expenses connected therewith. Hearty good wishes having been announced by Bro. Cole, Prov. G. Pursuivant, Kent, on behalf of the "Brownrigg Lodge of Unity," No. 1424, of which he is the W.M., the Camp Lodge was closed with solemn prayer about 9 p.m.

The lodge having been closed with solemn prayer, the brethren adjourned to Bro. Longmire's, West View Hotel, Morecambe, to celebrate the anniversary of St. John the Baptist. The banquet was splendidly served, and gave great credit to the host and Scotland.

GLASGOW.—St. Mungo Encampment held an emergency meeting on June 28th, for the purpose of receiving into the Order two of the American Masons who had not attained that degree. The encampment was opened at 12 noon by Sir Knt. Bell, M.N.C. There were also present—Sir Knts. T. Clanachan, P.N.C.; J. Tweed, Deputy C.; G. W. Wheeler, Sec., Acting Prelate; M. Clanachan, C.C.; G. B. Adams, Acting J.C.; J. Crabb, Acting M.; J. Douglas, A.D.C.; J. Johnson, W.; and several other knights. Comps. Cecil S. Spates of West Virginia, Colonel Le Grand Benedict, of Columbia, and Robert Fraser, of Glasgow, were then introduced, and duly exalted Knights of the Temple; and after a Priory of Malta had been formed, they were also dubbed Knights of Malta. C. S. Spates, on behalf of the American fraters, expressed the gratification they felt at so many gentlemen leaving their engagements at midday to confer on them these degrees; and though, by stopping, they had lost the opportunity of accompanying their own party through the Trossachs and some of the finest scenery in Scotland, yet, on returning home, one of their proudest boasts would be that they had been created Knights Templar in "Bonnie Scotland;" where the remnant of the Order had found shelter from the relentless persecutions of its enemies in days of yore; and they would convey back to the New World, enshrined in their hearts, the lessons they had that day received, and never forget the kindness they had received at the hands of Sir Knt. Bell and his officers. R. Bell, M.N.C., briefly responded, and the whole body of knights escorted their new-made fraters to the railway, with hearty wishes for a safe pilgrimage to them on their tour through Europe, and prosperity to them on their arrival in their own land, feeling that these interchanges of international amenities will all help to hasten on the time when the principles of Masonry shall be more widely diffused, and its influence permeate the minds of the enlightened of both hemispheres.

A BOON TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD.—Boots, with the celebrated wire-quilted soles, wearing twice as long as ordinary leather, for all ages; and children's boots with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A CHURCH AT BLACKBURN.

The church people of Blackburn, with that indomitable energy and liberality which so pre-eminently distinguish them—and we are sure that the work they have done of recent years in the cause of education and religion far outrivals that of any other town of equal population—are building school after school, church after church. No sooner is one finished than another is commenced. The town itself being amply provided with churches and capital schools, they forthwith turn their attention to the outskirts and to the populous and increasing villages about. The new church at Rishton is now progressing, and ere long the top stone will be put on with rejoicing. A church is building at Livesey, and this we may hope to see completed in the course of twelve months; and on Saturday we witnessed in common with thousands, the grand, impressive but somewhat novel ceremony of laying the corner stone of St. James's, Peckgate, with full Masonic honours, by Bro. Major Le-Gendre Nicholas Starkie, P.S.G.W. of England, and R.W.P.G.M. of East Lancashire, assisted by the Provincial Grand Officers. The Building Committee of this church never did a more sensible thing than when they invited the honourable Order of Freemasons of the province of East Lancashire to come and help them to take the a prominent part in the day's proceedings, and to lend to them not a mystic but an exceeding emblematic charm, a pleasing significance which even the most uncultured can comprehend and appreciate. And who more fitting to lay the corner stone of a beautiful temple to God than those who are fraternally united in an Order—the cardinal principle upon which it is founded being charity? This is the fundamental, and all other principles radiate from and revolve round it.

This district crowns a lofty eminence, on the right hand of the beautiful Park, approached by Limbrick and Shearbrown, and familiarly known by the unepithet name of The Hole with Wall. The air in this part is bracing, and within its area there is a population of 2,200, who mostly belong to the operative and industrial classes, and who, consequently are not blessed with too much of this world's goods, but they have contributed nobly towards the project. It is now 18 long years since their excellent and commodious school was built, in the time of the Rev. J. H. Marlen, and from that day to this it has been used as a day and Sunday school, and also for the purpose of holding divine service twice on every Sabbath.

The Rev. G. Whalley accepted the appointment of curate in charge of the district four years ago, and during the time he has been in this little colony he has laboured with unflagging zeal, and it is mainly due to his great exertions that the aspirations of the churchmen over whom he has pastoral care are about to be realised. The new structure will cost over £3,500, exclusive of site, and towards this £2,400 have already been raised by subscription. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners have made a grant of £500 out of the Church funds at their disposal—the Diocesan Church building Society has made a grant of £350, and the Incorporated Society, London, one of £200.

The style of architecture of St. James' Church, now in course of erection, is Gothic of medieval times. The external measurements are 119ft. by 56ft. The main entrance porch faces north, and at some future time, funds permitting, a handsome tower will be erected over it. The other entrance will be by the vestry. It will be of coarse broken rubble stone, with dressings of Yorkshire and Longridge stone, whilst the internal masonry will be of the famous Bath stone. The sacred edifice, when finished, will consist of nave, two side aisles, chancel, organ gallery, vestry, and cellar for heating apparatus. It will have simple tracery windows—trefoils and quatrefoils, and that in the chancel will be a fine one. The plan shows an open pitched roof, open pitched sittings (which will accommodate about 644 persons), half of which will be free and unappropriated.

The procession was announced to leave the Town Hall at half past three. St. John's Sunday scholars assembled at their large school in Altom street; Peckgate Sunday scholars met at their school and proceeded to St. John's. They were marshalled in order, and left at three o'clock for the Town Hall, taking the following route:—Down Limbrick, along Richmond-terrace, Tackett-street, the south side of Town Hall-street, to the front to meet the clergy and Freemasons. The latter met in the Assembly-room of the Town Hall, where a special Craft lodge was opened and formal business transacted. As the hour approached for the procession to leave a large concourse of people had assembled to witness its departure. Shortly after half-past three the strains of music were heard, and in a few minutes the whole procession moved to the site.

The whole route was lined with spectators, who viewed the various costumes and curious insignia with evident interest and pleasure.

The proceedings were commenced by the singing of the Hundredth Psalm. The Rev. J. Baker offered up prayer, after which Bro. Le-Gendre Nicholas Starkie, P.S.G.W. of England, and R.W.P.G.M. East Lancashire, who was received with applause, said: Rev. Sir, ladies and gentlemen, and brethren,—By the kind invitation of those who wish to do God's service, we have been invited, as Masonic brethren of this province, here to-day, to perform this very interesting and very touching ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of one of God's temples for the benefit of society to come hereafter. From time immemorial we, a small body of men, have by prescriptive right, performed many of these ceremonies of laying foundation-stones of glorious buildings, which acted their part in the time when they existed, and have left memorials of greatness, of goodness, of charity, of intellect behind them. May this stone, which we thus, by our rights lay, to-day, be the foundation of love, unity and charity, and within the walls of the Church, amongst the members of the congregation, may there be peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety. You must know that while we admit religious creeds within our society, and always advocate religion and morality, we are more or less a secret society; but we wish to sanction religion and religious instruction in every respect, which we believe to be essential for every community, and nation, and people. It is therefore most willingly that we come here to-day to lay the foundation-stone of this Church in the presence of the Sunday school scholars, teachers, and others connected with the district; one of those temples to God which I hope may redound to His honour, praise, and glory. Without religion and morality, we could not, as a nation, have risen to pre-eminence in the world. Man is composed of two parts—the intellectual and moral—and religious instruction is as essential for the cultivation of the intellect as it is for the soul. Each individual stone will form part of this building, and this reminds us that we have each a duty to fulfil in the place in which God has placed us; and our creed as Freemasons teaches us the same. I hope, ladies and gentlemen, after the inauguration of to-day, you will have a building which may be a benefit to your town, and that it will spread its benign influence over all who may come within the shadow of its walls. May God speed the work we are about to undertake.

The Provincial Grand Chaplain (Bro. E. W. Gihert, M.A., vicar of Falinge, Rochdale), offered up a prayer, and the Masonic Choir sang the glee—"When the Temple's first stone was slowly descending."

Bro. Robinson presented to the Prov. G.M., a very handsome trowel, silver gilt, with polished oak handle, pointed at the junction of the handle and blade with five amethysts. The inscription upon it was—"Presented to Bro. Le-Gendre Nicholas Starkie, P.S.G.W. of England, and R.W.P.G.M. of East Lancashire, on the occasion of his laying the corner-stone of St. James' Church, Peckgate district, in the Deanery of Blackburn, June 28th, 1873."

Bro. E. Lewis presented a mallet of polished oak, with inscription and pointed with amethysts in a similar manner to the trowel.

The Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. J. Tunna) read the inscription on the brass plate:

—"St. James' Church, Peckgate District, in the Deanery of Blackburn. To the eternal glory of God, the Great Architect of the Universe, and in the faith of Jesus Christ, the corner stone of this church was laid with the formalities of Craft Masonry by Le Gendre Nicholas Starkie, Esq., P.G.S.W. of England, and R.W.P.G.M. of East Lancashire, assisted by the Prov. Grand Officers, on Saturday, the 28th day of June, A.L. 5873, A.D. 1873, and in the 37th year of Queen Victoria.—James Fraser, D.D., Lord Bishop of Manchester; William Thomas Carr, Esq., donor of the site—Building Committee: Rev. John Baker, Vicar of St. John's, Chairman; Rev. George Whalley, Secretary, Curate in charge; Thomas Parkinson, Treasurer; Richard Edmundson, Thomas Clough, Richard Pemberton, Christopher Parkinson, Joseph Callis, William Pomfret. Architect, Stevens and Robinson, Derby; builder Edward Lewis, Blackburn."

A bottle containing coins of the realm, a copy of the Herald, and other newspapers, was then placed in the cavity of the stone, the brass plate placed over it, and the corner-stone lowered. Whilst the stone was being lowered the Masonic choir sang the first verse of the glee over again. When the stone was properly adjusted, Bro. C. Tiplady, P.P.G.T., in the absence of Bro. the Deputy Provincial Junior Warden, applied the plumb to the stone, and said: Right Worshipful Sir,—I find the stone perfect and trustworthy.

Bro. Beswicke Royds, Senior Grand Warden, applied the level, saying: Right Worshipful Grand Master,—I find this stone well founded.

Bro. T. Clough, P.P.G.R., in the absence of the D.P.G.M., Bro. Romaine Callender, similarly applied the square, observing: Right Worshipful Sir,—I have applied the square, and find the stone perfectly true.

The Right Worshipful P.G.M. having tested the stone, said: I declare this stone properly and truly laid. May the Almighty Architect of the Universe look down with benignity upon our present undertaking, and crown the edifice of which we have now laid the foundation with every success.

Bro. W. H. Cunliffe, W.M., of Lodge 269, then presented Bro. Major Starkie with une bourse of corn—the emblem of plenty—and laid it upon the stone.

Bro. G. Duerdeen, W.M. of Lodge 345, presented a silver goblet, containing wine, the emblem of gladness, and also placed it upon the stone.

Bro. Thomas Sourbutts, W.M. of Lodge 346, similarly presented a silver cup, containing oil—the emblem of peace—and laid it also upon the stone.

The Right Worshipful P.G.M. next poured a little oil and wine upon the corn on the stone, and the Masonic ceremony was concluded.

Three cheers were called for Bro. Major Starkie, and they were given most enthusiastically.

The Right Worshipful Grand Master, Bro. Major Starkie, in responding said he hoped they would all take deeply to heart the very earnest and very kind words which the last speaker—the vicar of St. John's—had addressed to them. It was a most pleasing matter that they had met together cordially and fraternally, and in every respect harmoniously, to carry out a good work; and a most gratifying sight to him on that occasion to see assembled around him the respectability of that town of Blackburn. They had cause to be thankful that the Vicar of St. John's had so kindly done his duty, and so kindly aided one of his brethren in the church to further the interests of religion for the benefit of the people. Acts and not words were what were wanted in the present generation—and he hoped the act they had performed that day would be long remembered. When they had put their hands to the plough they should not turn back, and he trusted the people of Blackburn, having commenced that building, would complete it; that it would stand a humanising Christianising temple for generations to come, and would be a benefit to the people around.

The Rev. G. Whalley, curate in charge of Peckgate, then addressed the assemblage.

The National Anthem was then sung, coin was deposited on the stone—about £60—little girls strewed flowers upon it, the Masonic body at once left for the town.

OUR OBLIGATIONS.

BY BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z.

The Lodge is clos'd, not so our duty,
That remains while life shall last;
Our obligations ever bind us:
The time to keep them's never past.—

How wide the circle of that duty,
Imposed alike on age and youth;—
They're ever active, ever fruitful, Alike in Love, Relief, and Truth.

The world must find us always upright,
The Square and Level our regard;
No words profane, no acts awry,
Must rob us of our great reward.

We'll look for that bright morning star
Whose rising cheers the soul depressed,
And guides us on the chequer'd way
That leads to our eternal rest.

WELCOME TO THE AMERICAN MASONS.

Occasional lines written for and spoken at the Festival held in the City Hall, Glasgow, 27th June, 1873, in honour of a visit of American Masons on their European Tour.

Welcome to all the Sons of Light,
We bid you welcome here to night;
What'er your status or degree,
As Masons here we welcome ye.

We greet you on this friendly trip,
And joyful give the Mason's grip.
As Masons here we meet each other,
Hailing each true man as a brother.

Though seas our birth place may divide,
Here heart to heart we stand allied,
No matter what our land or name,
Our FAITH, our HOPE, is still the same.

While, greatest of the blessed three,
We all unite in CHARITY.
That Charity that thinks no ill,
But doth respect a brother still.

A Charity naught can estrange,
That neither place nor time can change;
That still shines constant as the sun
On every faithful Widow's Son.

Thousand of miles may intervene,
But all are brethren here I ween;
In unity we all combine,
Alike our password and our sign.

St. Mungo's Sons are met once more
To greet you from Columbia's shore.
And all Masonic Grades are here.
To join in giving hearty cheer.

The Royal Order's here to night
The Ancient and Accepted Rite,
Knights of the Temple firm and true,
And those of Malta too I view.

Both pledged to still keep watch and ward,
All pious pilgrims still to guard;
Ark Mariners are here I see
With Knights of the Red Cross degree.

To welcome you upon your march,
Here are companions of the ARCH;
As you're sojourners, here they bring
The Priest, the Prophet, and the King.

To greet you and your wives so pretty,
From every Lodge within the City,
See here to night to welcome you,
Hundreds of Masons known as blue.

They're the foundation of the whole.
Of the Masonic body, they're the soul.
Without their aid we could not be,
Nor e'er obtain an high degree.

No matter what our rank is now,
Each had to take the self-same vow;
As humble 'Prentice bow the knee,
E're he a ray of light could see.

The badge of Innocence each had to wear,
E're he could don the Level, Plumb, or Square
But all, whate'er their rank, are here
To welcome you with friendly cheer.

To prove to age as well as youth,
That Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth,
Are passports to Masonic fame,
And Brother more than a mere name.

And now on their behalf I say—
May our God speed you on your way,
And keep you ever in his hand
Till you return to your own land.

G. W. WHEELER.

THE ORDER OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM

The annual general assembly of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England was held on the 24th ult. (St. John Baptist's day). Services were held previously, as usual, at the Royal Chapel of the Savoy, at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m., the preacher being the Rev. A. T. Whitmore Shadwell, one of the brother chaplains. At the general assembly a report of the work during the past year was read by the Secretary, by which it appeared that the Order is steadily progressing in numbers and influence, and carrying out its avowed objects and purposes "pro utilitate hominum." The Council was then appointed for the ensuing year, and afterwards, papers on nursing were read by Dr. E. H. Sieveking and Dr. T. W. Rumsey. A resolution was passed forming a committee with the view of practically carrying into effect the suggestions contained in the papers. The following members and associates of the Order were then nominated for the committee:—The Duke of Manchester, Lord Leigh, Lord Eliot, Sir Edward Lechmere, Sir John St. George, K.C.B., Major-General Sir Jas. Alexander, Mr. C. J. Burgess, Lieut.-Colonel Gould Weston, Mr. J. Furley, Mr. C. Pemberton Carter, Rev. G. R. Portal, Rev. T. Hugo, Rev. D. Cosens, Mr. R. Woolf, Mr. E. L. O'Malley, the Countess of Mount-Charles, Lady Lechmere, Lady St. George, Mrs. Burnes, Frailein Rumpff, the Lady Superior of St. John's House, London, the Lady Superintendent of St. John's House, Ashford, Dr. E. H. Sieveking, D. F. W. Headland, Dr. A. Julius Pollock, Dr. Lionel Beale, Surgeon Beale, V.C., Dr. Frank, Mr. W. Mac Cormack, Sir R. Wallace, with power to add to their number. It appeared by the almoner's report, that upwards of 3,000 diets had been distributed by the Order during the past year to poor convalescents of the Charing-cross and King's College Hospitals, and of the Worcester Dispensary, also that an arrangement had been concluded with Charing-cross Hospital by which non-professional gentlemen, recommended by the Order of St. John, can undergo a six months' training in medicine, surgery, and hospital practice, the first course of which will probably commence in October next.

The next examination of candidates for admission to the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, will commence at the London University on Tuesday, the 10th September, 1873, the medical inspection taking place on the previous day at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich.

Nearly £50,000 has been raised for the decoration of St. Paul's Cathedral. More than £11,000 of this amount, however, has been expended in salaries, in the re-erection and enlargement of the organ, and upon various alterations, all of which were made before Mr. Burgess was appointed architect.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY.—The returns up to the present time show that the sum of £27,000 has been received as the result of the collections.

The British and Foreign Bible Society, have presented to the Shah a magnificently bound Bible in the Persian language.

MASONIC VETERANS.—The second annual re-union of this select body of Masons, which was recently held in the city of New York, was very largely attended, and the proceedings were replete with great interest. The address of the President, Daniel Sickles, presented in a terse and concise form the present prosperous condition of the Association, and gave a brief resumé of its history from the beginning. John W. Simons, from the Committee on Ways and Means, fully explained the situation on secular matters, while the report of the Committee on Deceased Members (Henry C. Banks chairman,) was elaborate and complete in its narrative of the interesting matter committed to their charge.

The officers of the past year were re-elected by acclamation, after which the venerable brethren partook of the usual feast. There was a magnificent display of the choicest flowers on the table, the considerate gift of Bro. Fred. Thompson, not a member of the Association, but entitled to its warmest thanks for his liberality. After the cloth was removed, the "feast of reason and flow of soul" was initiated, wherein the distinguished brethren participated with infinite relish. The regular toasts were duly honoured in a style peculiar only to the "Vets," succeeded by voluntary sentiment, song and innocent merriment. Among those present were John L. Lewis, James W. Husted, John W. Simpson, John Moon, James M. Austin, Albert P. Moriarty, James A. Reed, John S. Perry, Frank L. Stowell, Stephen H. Johnson, Charles D. Brown, Edward E. Thorn, Charles Roome, Robert E. Roberts, James B. Bensels, Eugene Valet, Royal G. Millard, Thomas Forsyth, N. B. Mountfort, O. P. Quintard, L. H. Ilsey, William W. Withs, Henry B. Shaphoff, James Parish, Judge Suffern, James Jenkinson, Henry D. Walker, Hiram Hyneman, S. Percy Ellis, Adolphus Andreas, Theophilus Pratt, J. Brown, and a host of others. "The convivial festivities continued 'til the wee sma' hours ayent the twal," and the proprieties of the occasion terminated the second annual re-union by the Masonic Veterans of the State of New York.

Great preparations are being made for laying the corner-stone of the Masonic Temple at Memphis. It is expected that the day will be made a general holiday in the city. The ceremonies and the music will be mostly new, and the speakers will comprise the most learned and distinguished in the Masonic Order. The proceedings will terminate with a grand picnic, to which everybody is invited.

The British Medical Journal states that the Shah has expressed a desire to give diplomatic adhesion to the convention for neutralising the sick and wounded in war, and the persons and materials provided for their succour. The Convention of Geneva, has already been signed by all European monarchs, including the Sultan of Turkey, who gave his adhesion in 1865. The adhesion of the Shah will be addressed to the High Federal Council of Switzerland.

Another of the choice reprints by Mr. John Pearson, of York-street, Covent-garden, is in the press, and will shortly be issued. It consists of "The Dramatic Works of Thomas Dekker" (1600—1638), now first collected, with illustrative notes, and a memoir of the author.

The park and pleasure grounds with the world-renowned Monastic ruins of Fountain Abbey (which by the kindness of the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., are fully thrown open to ticket holders, are now in the full glow of their unrivalled summer beauty.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Experience before Authority.—For nearly the third of a century have these remedies stood in the foremost rank in overcoming ulcers, sores, swellings, rashes, and all descriptions of skin diseases. At first the faculty denounced these medicaments but the experience of sufferers soon overthrew all interested opposition. Those whom Holloway's medicine had cured told other invalids the benefits they had derived from their use, these in their turn tried them and found equally satisfactory results. Old and new stores of knowledge were ransacked to discover the surest and simplest method of meeting and conquering sickness. The issue was the invention of Holloway's curatives, which the testimony of patients universally endorses as indisputable defence against disease.—ADVT.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

SUMMER FESTIVAL AT WOOD GREEN, DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES TO PUPILS, AND PRESENTATION OF TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. BINCKES, SECRETARY.

This festival, distribution, and presentation took place at the Institution, Wood-green, on Tuesday last; the distribution of prizes being made by Bro. Sheriff Perkins (in the absence of the Lord Mayor), in the presence of a large assemblage of brethren and ladies.

We purpose giving an extended report of the day's proceedings in our next number.

The presentation to Bro. Binckes consisted of a handsome silver salver, accompanied by a purse containing a cheque representing the amount collected. On the salver was the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. Frederick Binckes, P.M. Lodges 11, Grand Steward, 60, 788, 1185, and P.G. Steward, with a Purse of One Thousand Guineas, by his Masonic Friends, in testimony of their appreciation of his exertions as Secretary, in promoting the Institution's prosperity, and especially his earnest and successful advocacy of the erection of the New School Buildings. Wood Green, July 8th 1873."

TALK ABOUT MASONRY.

Human institutions are but the outgrowths of human nature. They have permanency and influence in proportion to the completeness with which they reflect the human soul. Those that grow out of an evanescent wave of human thought or feeling, rise, serve their temporary purpose, and pass away. Forms of government, dynasties, religious creeds, systems of philosophy, political dogmas, theories of science, social customs, when they cease to keep pace with the growth of the great body of human character, or to respond to its essential and unchangeable elements, are discarded, and fall into oblivion. That only is permanent which answers to some thing in the human heart which time cannot change.

Adam was the epitome of the human race. There was nothing in Adam that is not in kind in us. There is nothing generic or essential in us that was not in him. Deep down, below all varieties of race, language, individual characteristics, culture, growth, circumstances, is the common humanity derived from our first father. There, indeed, men meet upon the level. The institution that finds an echo in that deep is for all time.

Our inquiry is, Is Masonry founded in, and does it appeal to, any such universal principles of our common nature?

Its high antiquity, its steady, unchecked progress, and its present position might serve as a sufficient answer to that question. Except the Church, no institution survives which can count so many centuries of life. And even the Church has not been so unchangeable in form. The opposition of governments, absolute acts of suppression, religious anathemas, social ostracism, the sneers and denunciations of society, the rage of partisan violence and fanatic hate, have all beaten against the grand old structure in vain. It still stands serene amidst the failure of its enemies, and rears its head to heaven crowned with the triumphs of the ages,—a monument of a wisdom scarcely less than divine.

As some tall cliff, that lifts its awful form,
Sweils from the vale, and midway leaves the storm;
Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head!

Every man is conscious in his own heart of a sentiment of fear; more or less developed and pronounced, according to the degree of his intelligence. It is the necessary co-relative and concomitant of hope. We fear evil; we hope to escape it and secure good. There is no reason why we should be unwilling to admit the existence of this feeling, for the fear of which I speak is not the negation of courage, but rather the foundation and animating principle of prudence; a virtue which looks out for danger on every side and endeavours to provide against it. It takes no long experience in life to convince us that we are surrounded by dangers from the cradle to the grave. Of these none are more dreaded than those which arise from the coldness, hatred, and falsehood of men, toward each other. We all dread the aversion, indifference, and treachery of our fellow men, and those adverse turns of fortune which we observe to be so often beyond the control of individual foresight and effort.

I recall in this connection those charming verses of Burns addressed to a field mouse, whose carefully-prepared nest and stores of food he had turned out with his ploughshare, and scattered to the cold blasts of the winter. It is full of a poet's tenderness and sympathy. But from the consideration of the short-lived misery of his poor little victim, he turns to the contemplation of his own weightier and more permanent sorrows, and exclaims:

"Still thou art blessed, compar'd wi' me!
The present only touchet thee;
But, Och! I backward cast my e'e,
On prospects drear!
An' forward, tho' I canna see,
I guess an' fear."

It is this looking forward with doubt and dread that constitutes most of the misery of life, and makes it man's most cherished wish to secure to himself all possible guarantees for the future. Safety is the longed for haven of rest to every tempest-tossed soul.

The apprehensions of fear are tempered by the sentiment of hope which is implanted in every soul, and which bears a direct relation to the amount and kind of fear. The balance between these affections in the individual consciousness gives character to life—as wretched, tolerable, or happy.

Lastly, every man finds in his heart a well-spring of love. I know that this is sometimes denied. I have heard it repeatedly declared from an eloquent pulpit here, that men are haters of God and haters of each other. It may be, my brethren, that the God who is held up to us in many pulpits as the object of love and worship, bears little resemblance to the real "Father of Lights, from whence cometh every good and perfect gift." And it may be that the man we hate is the creature of our own creation, differing from every real man. That men may come to hate God and their fellows, I will admit; but that they naturally and spontaneously do so, I cannot believe. In blindness, in error as to the true nature of his fellow-man, in misunderstanding of his acts and motives, a man may come to hate his fellow. He hates because he first supposes himself hated, and hated without a cause. How often has it happened that some unexpected and unmistakable revelation of love has broken down the malicious and even murderous purpose, and instantly turned the current of animosity into a flood of tenderness and affection?

No; we love our fellow-men. We pity their sorrows; we long to relieve their distress; to pour in upon their ignorance the light of truth; to correct their prejudices; and to secure them against the contingencies of life; to avert the consequences of their errors. We want to do this without offending their pride or wounding their sensibilities. We want to open up a certain avenue to our brother's heart, by which we may securely enter for his good. We want to give him such a key to our own.

If conscious of these sentiments, we find ourselves repelled with coldness, misunderstood, even injured and traduced, our disappointment may turn to hatred. But this is but the subversive development of a feeling, whose normal exercise tends only to practical beneficence.

The establishment of the desired relations is not possible with all men. Many natures have been so perverted, subverted, cramped by early neglect, ignorance, want of education, false education, bad example, wrong moral training, that they are incapable of sustaining these relations, however they may unconsciously and secretly long for them. We are driven, therefore, to seek the objects of our fraternal affection by selection.

And this brings me to the last branch of my subject. Masonry, my brethren, gives us the means of making this selection. Masonry responds to the nature and wants of man, by casting out fear, cherishing hope, and giving free scope to the full tide of fraternal love.

Within the walls of our Masonic asylums, gathered around our common altar, we find the longed-for assurance of safety. If we are in danger, no matter how that danger may have arisen, we know that an army of brethren is pledged and ready for our rescue and protection. If we are in want we know that the hand of Masonic charity is always and everywhere open to minister to our necessities. If we fall into vice or error, the whisper of good counsel is ready to recall us in gentle admonition to duty. and the outstretched arm to raise to us uprightness again. If we die, we know that brotherly hands will close our eyes and bear us tenderly to the tomb, and that the loved ones we leave behind will never be forgotten or suffered to perish. In all this, we find that security for the future which tends to calm our fears and give hopefulness to life.

But lastly, here we find the proper objects of fraternal love, in brethren culled with jealous care from the promiscuous ranks of men, and entering voluntarily into our sacred union. Love is the controlling sentiment of the institution. It is not repelled, misunderstood, or betrayed. It is rather expected and welcomed as the legitimate fruit of our doctrines and practice. How many of us are there who have known, and still know, brethren whose Masonic lives have been beautiful illustrations of its growth and power, under the fostering influences of Masonic association.

This sketch, hasty and imperfect as it is, still presents Masonry to us in what we regard as its most glorious light—as an institution answering to the universal wants of human nature, and helping man upwards to a higher plane of courage, hope, and love. The full realisation of this theory demands that every brother should understand and faithfully perform his Masonic obligations. It rises far above all question of rites and ritual. These may indeed change in the uncertainty of human traditions and the mutations of human thought. Its forms may vary, but the spirit of our institution is eternal.

MASONRY IN TEXAS.

The Grand Lodge of Texas on June 14th, met in Annual Grand Communication, M.W. Bro. Wm. Bramlette, Grand Master, presiding. On the following Monday morning the New Masonic Temple, at Houston, was dedicated in ancient and solemn form. We take the following extract from the address of the Grand Orator, Past Grand Master F. B. Sexton, from the Texas Masonic Mirror of June 11th.

The ceremonies of this day, my brethren cannot fail to bring our minds a consideration of the history and progress of Freemasonry in Texas. Little less than forty years ago, five brethren, whose names deserve to be repeated—Anson Jones, John A. Wharton, Asa Brigham, James A. E. Phelps, and Alexander Russell—whose names are on record in our Grand Lodge—names that are historic with the Republic and State of Texas—and which I hope will never fade from the memory of Texas Masons, met in a laurel grove in Brazoria County to concert measures to organise the first Masonic Lodge in Texas. They subsequently organised Holland Lodge, No. 1, which now meets in this city, and in this Temple, is the oldest, the most prosperous, and the most respected lodge in the state including among its members distinguished gentlemen, enterprising and public spirited citizens, devoted Christians, worthy, ingenuous and faithful Craftsmen, who are constantly doing good unto all men—albeit, they may "remember it more especially to the household of the faithful." A little later, on the 20th of December, 1837, the Grand Lodge of Texas was formed in the town of Houston. The five who met in Brazoria, and those who organized the Grand Lodge, have all been gathered to their fathers; but "their works do follow them." They have laboured, but we have "entered into their labours." The laurel grove in Brazoria has been exchanged for the splendid apartments now occupied by Holland Lodge in this building, while the Grand Lodge, which formerly was glad to beg accommodation in the counting-rooms of country storekeepers, now meets in this magnificent Temple, which we have to-day in the name of God, set apart to purposes for His glory and the good of man. Instead of meeting with members not enough to fill its official stations unless by borrowing from a subordinate, or from non-affiliates, it now numbers over three hundred lodges subordinate to its jurisdiction, while three hundred or more brethren representing morally, socially, and intellectually the very best elements of Texas population, the high and the humble, the distinguished and obscure, rich and poor, old and young, the blacksmith who forges, and the farmer who drives the plough, the carpenter who drives the plane, merchants, members of learned professions—men of all creeds and all vocations are eager to receive its instructions, to do its work, enjoy its social pleasures, and wear its high honours. From the small beginning to which I have referred, we have grown, until incense now arises from more than 300 Masonic altars in Texas, and more than 10,000 faithful brethren now minister in the duties of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth.

Whatever may be said of Masonry in the past, or whatever may be its future fate, we know, that in Texas, it has put out the fires of discord, dried up the tears of distress, given food and clothing to the hungry and destitute, encouraged the orphan, cleared up the gloom from the pathway of struggling merit, and kept back the maddening torrent of passion which would precipitate man in deadly conflict with his fellow man.

With such a record of the past, with so much prosperity in the present, our hearts should be filled with gratitude to our merciful and Supreme Grand Master for his mercies and blessings, and should be incited to more diligence and greater exertions for the future.

This Masonic Temple, grand in its architecture elegant in finish, and complete in its appointments, reflects great credit upon those who first projected it, as well as upon those who have so faithfully devoted their time to superintending its erection and completion. It is worthy of the Craft for whose use it has been built. It is an ornament to this city, whose reputation for enterprise, public spirit, hospitality, and social courtesy is the pride of the state.

With this splendid house for our annual assemblies, in the midst of such pleasant surroundings, then my brethren let us be encouraged for the future; let us preserve and and transmit to our children, enlarged and improved, if possible, the heritage which our fathers, amid so many difficulties, and after so many and such great sacrifices, prepared for us. We know how vast and extensive are the capabilities of Freemasonry for usefulness. We know that it is founded on the immutable laws of truth and justice, and that its grand object is to promote the happiness of the human race. Let us illustrate this, brethren, in our lives and conduct. Let us prove that it is intended to assist good men in all that is right, to protect them against the vicious and unprincipled. Let us establish a standard of intelligence and excellence in the practice of the social and moral virtues, which shall be worthy of emulation—our enemies themselves being judges. Let our Masonic life be —in deeds, not years, in thoughts, not breaths; In feelings, not in figures on a dial.

We should count time by heart throbs. He most lives,

Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best; And he whose heart beats the quickest, lives the longest.

And now may the Lord, the giver of every good and perfect gift, bless the brethren here assembled in all their lawful undertakings, and grant to each one of them, and to all good and true men and Masons everywhere, in needful supply, the corn of nourishment, the wine of refreshment, and the oil of joy.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF SUFFOLK.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk took place on Wednesday, the 2nd of July, at Woodbridge. It is not often—only once in 14 years—that the Provincial Grand Lodge pays any particular place a visit, excepting only Ipswich, which having, four lodges, is favoured more frequently—and one result of the infrequency of the visits is that the welcome given them by the local lodge is always most hearty. In this respect Woodbridge was in no way an exception to the general rule. The "Doric" Lodge (the oldest, with one exception in the province) left nothing undone which could add to the comfort of the brethren or to the success of the proceedings—and Bro. W. P. Phillips, the W.M., was indefatigable in his exertions to make everything pass off harmoniously. The arches and decorations which had been put up for the visit of the Suffolk Agricultural Show had been suffered to remain, and Masonic emblems had in many places been added to make them appropriate for the occasion. Messrs. Wilson and Co., wine merchants in the Thoroughfare, had a new and very elegant device, made for the occasion, suspended across the street. It consisted of seven catenarian arches inverted, intersecting each other, composed of roses and laurels. In the centre arch were a pair of compasses and sextant, with all-seeing eye irradiated between the legs of the compasses of stained wood. Three gonfalons crowned the device, the centre one having a point within a circle between two parallel lines, red on a white ground. The two side ones were, one a level the other a plumb rule, of the same colours. This very beautiful device, which was fastened with fine wire, and appeared to hang on nothing, was designed, executed, and fixed by Mr. Thomas Simpson. At the entrance of the Lecture Hall was a Roman arch of evergreens, the crown surmounted by a blue banner with the Freemasons' arms in the centre, and Masonic emblems on each side. Over the keystone of the arch were a pair of gilt compasses and sextant, with a irradiated eye, being the symbol of the Provincial Grand Master. The day was beautifully fine, and as the brethren had a considerable distance to walk to church, this was an advantage by no means to be despised.

The finance board met at the Lecture Hall at noon, under the presidency of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Lord Waveney. Bros. S. H. Wright, P. P. G.R., and W. Boby, P.P.G.S.B., were appointed auditors, and proceeded at once to check the accounts of the Treasurer and Secretary, which they found to be correct, and showed a balance in hand of £64 10s. 8d.

Bro. S. H. Wright expressed the thanks of the widow of the late Bro. Stagg for the donation of £10, granted to her at the last Provincial Grand Lodge. Bro. Jennings, P.S.G.W., proposed, and Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain of England, seconded, and it was unanimously agreed, that £5 be given to the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons, £5 to the Institution for Freemasons' Widows, and ten guineas each to the Masonic Boys' School and the Masonic Girls' School.

Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in the large room of the Lecture Hall at half-past one. There was a very large attendance, considerably in excess of that of many years past. This, coupled with the noticeable fact that, with one exception, the whole of the lodges present were represented by their W.M., is certain proof that year by year, in Suffolk, as elsewhere in this country, Masonry is becoming more and more appreciated, and Masons are becoming more and more diligent in the discharge of their duties as Craftsmen. The various lodges were represented as follows:—Unity, 71, Lowestoft, by the W.M., Bro. Thomas F. Marks; Doric, 81, Woodbridge, by the W.M., Bro. W. P. Phillips; British Union, 114, Ipswich, by the I.P.M., Bro. C. F. Long; St. Luke's, 225, Ipswich, by the W.M., Bro. Thomas Prentice; Apollo, 305, Beccles, not represented; Virtue and Silence, 332, Hadleigh, by the W.M., Bro. A. B. Woods; Perfect Friendship, 376, Ipswich, by the W.M., Bro. A. Gamman; Prudence, 338, Halesworth, by the W.M., Bro. W. H. Young; Phoenix, 516, Stowmarket, by the W.M., Bro. C. H. Woods; Fidelity, 555, Framlingham, by the W.M., Bro. G. E. Jeaffreson; Waveney, 926, Bungay, by W.M., Bro. H. R. Campling; Adair, 936, Aldborough, by the W.M., Bro. William Hayward; Prince of Wales, 959, Ipswich, by the W.M., Bro. George Cresswell; Royal St. Edmund's, 1008, Bury St. Edmund's, by the W.M., Bro. W. E. Bailey, P.G.A. Secretary, Suffolk; and Stour Valley, 1,224, Sudbury, by the W.M., Bro. J. F. Hills, P.J.G.W. Suffolk. The Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers present were—the R.W. Lord Waveney, P.G.M.; the Rev. E. I. Lockwood, M.A., Deputy Prov. Grand Master; Bros. J. F. Hills, P.J.G.W.; Emra Holmes, P.G. Registrar, and P.G.D. of C.; Bro. Thomas Newman, P.G.P.; Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G. Chaplain, Eng.; Bro. Rev. A. Tighe Gregory, P.P.G. Chaplain; Bro. W. H. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons; Bro. J. Townsend, P.P.S.G.W.; Bro. P. Helsby, P.P.S.G.W. and W.M., designate of a new lodge at Lowestoft, for which a dispensation has been granted by the P.G.M., Lord Waveney, but which is not yet consecrated; Bro. C. H. Woods, P.G. Steward; Bro. W. Wilmshurst, P.P.G.S.D.; Bro. E. S. Downs, P.G.S.W.; Bro. S. Jennings, P.P.G.S.W.; Bro. E. B. Powell, P.G.S. of W.; Bro. J. S. Gissing, P.P.J.G.W.; Bro. S. Freeman, P.G. Treasurer, P.P.J.G.W.; Bro. the Rev. T. G. Beaumont, P.G. Chaplain; Bro. N. Tracy, P.P.J.G.W.; Bro. S. H. Wright, P.P.G.S.D.; Bro. W. Body, P.P.G.S.B.; Bro. E. Fitzgerald, P.P.G.S.B.; Bro. F. B. Strathern, P.P.J.G.W.; Bro. W. T. Westgate, P.P.G.S.D. of C.; Bro. S. B. King, P.P.G.S.D.; Bro. W. Chambers, P.P.S.G.W.; Bro. W. Gardiner, P.P.G.P.; Bro. G. Findley, P.P.G.A.D.C.; Bro. A. J. Moore, P.G.J.W.; Bro. W. Armstrong, P.G. Steward; Bro. Prentice, P.G. Steward, &c. There was also a large attendance of the officers and brethren of the lodges in the province.

The minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge having been read and confirmed, addresses of congratulation from the various lodges of the province were presented to the P.G.M., Lord Waveney, on his elevation to the peerage, expressing the warm fraternal regard in which his lordship is held by the brethren, and of their sincere hope that the Great Architect of the Universe may long spare him to hold masonic sway over them. The presentation and reading of these addresses—most of which were beautifully engrossed and illuminated—occupied till the time fixed for divine service; and the brethren were then formed under their respective banners by the P.G.D.C., Bro. Emra Holmes, and marched in procession to the parish church. The prayers and lessons were read by the Rev. R. C. M. Rouse, the Rev. R. N. Sanderson, P.P.G.C., of Ipswich, and the Rev. Tighe Gregory, and an eloquent and appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. T. G. Beaumont, P.G. Chaplain, from the text Heb. vi., part of the 6th verse, "Let us go on to perfection."

After divine service the brethren again formed in procession, and returned to the Lecture Hall, where the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge was resumed. The P.G.A. Sec., Bro.

W. E. Bailey, read the minutes of the Board of Finance, which were confirmed.

The R.W.P.G.M. then addressed the lodge, and in the course of his remarks stated that in accordance with the wish of the Rev. R. C. M. Rouse, the rector, to whom they were indebted for the opportunity of meeting for divine worship in his church, the amount of the collection, £7, would be applied to the use of the National School. His lordship then proceeded to the appointment of officers for the ensuing two years as follows:—Bros. W. Boby, P.G.S.W., 114, Ipswich; F. Spalding, P.G.S.D., 81, Woodbridge; W. Armstrong, P.G.J.D., 1,008, Bury St. Edmund's; C. F. Long, P.G.D.C., 114, Ipswich; A. Gamman, P.G.S.B., 376, Ipswich; T. Prentice, P.G.P., 225, Ipswich; P.G. Stewards—W. Clarke 1,008, Bury St. Edmunds; M. Cohen, 959, Ipswich; and F. Whisstock, 81, Woodbridge. The other officers remain as before until next year.

The appointment of Treasurer rests with the brethren of the Provincial Grand Lodge, and on the motion of Bro. Westgate, seconded by Bro. Gissing, Bro. Spencer Freeman was unanimously re-elected.

The R.W.P.G.M. then alluded in feeling terms to the loss which the Craft had sustained by the death of the Earl of Zetland, P.G.M. of England, a loss which he said all Masons mourned, not merely by the outward symbols which they wore now on their badges, but sincerely in their hearts. His lordship congratulated the brethren on the growth of Masonry in the province, and after an allusion to the proposed investment of Provincial Grand Lodge funds in the shares of the Masonic Hall at Ipswich, he announced that in future the Provincial Grand Lodge will be held on the second instead of the first week in July, and that the day of meeting will be Monday. He also announced that the Provincial Grand Lodge will next year be held at Lowestoft; and concluded by thanking the brethren for the hearty good wishes expressed in their addresses of congratulation.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned to the Bull Hotel, where a capital banquet was provided by Bro. Grout, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the brethren. A glee party, consisting of Bros. Hodges, G. T. Carter, S. Smith and Lander was in attendance and contributed greatly to the harmony of the evening. The banquet was, of course, presided over by the R.W.P.G.M., Lord Waveney. The Senior Warden's chair was filled by Bro. Boby, the newly appointed P.G.S.W., and the Junior Warden's chair by Bro. J. F. Hills, the P.J.G.W. The R.W.P.G.M. was supported by a number of Past Officers, whose names will be found among the list of those present in the lodge, and altogether about 120 brethren sat down to banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and in the course of the evening Bro. Terry announced that Lord Waveney had consented to preside at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons.

At the special request of the Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Emra Holmes acted as Director of Ceremonies, and was ably assisted by Bro. Fitzgerald, P.P.G.S.B.

The want of a band was much felt, and it is hoped that when Provincial Grand Lodge meets next at Lowestoft that want will be supplied.

It would be well too if the Stewards' duties were called into requisition at the banquet to overlook the waiters and see that they perform their duty.

The City Swiss Club and the Club of True Highlanders, which formerly held their meetings at the Caledonian Hotel, Strand, now meet at Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street (Bro. Gosden's)—the first-named club weekly, and the last monthly.

CONSECRATION OF THE SOUTHDOWN MARK LODGE, (No. 164,) AT HAYWARD'S HEATH.

Hayward's Heath has of late years become an important suburb of Brighton. There, charmed by the beauty of the surrounding country, the happy and prosperous trader has erected his garden-environed villa. There, the adjacent station, affording an easy means of reaching London, and, indeed, almost every part of Sussex, has enticed the merchant, who in his middle age finds a retreat amid scenes of rural joy and plenty. There, in the old-fashioned cottage, in the older-fashioned farm-house, or in the innumerable petite homes which have grown up within a short memory in and about and around the Heath, a numerous well-to-do class of inhabitants have gathered, attracted by the pleasures afforded for the leisure hours of age by their gardens and fields, and the delightful walks of the neighbourhood. All this is not to be wondered at. From every point of Hayward's Heath a variety of scenes can be embraced, the extent only limited by the magnificent range of downs on the south, and by the hills and wooded heights on the north; while to the east the pretty village of Lindfield (celebrated of old for its famous white currants) with its church and needle-shaped spire a conspicuous object. To the west, Cuckfield church spire marking, the spot where a small country town lies embedded in a mass of glorious foliage and colour. Hayward's Heath, is indeed the centre of a country district charming to the eye, invigorating to the health, attractive to the lover of country scenes, aye, indeed, to the lover of country sports it is attractive alike to the sportsman, the huntsman, or to the "disciple of Isaac Walton."

It was at the Station Hotel, quiet, comfortable, and convenient, a hostel presided over by a genial and kindly landlord, and an equally good tempered landlady, that a party of Masons decided to hold a Mark Lodge, and to apply to the R.W. Grand Mark Master Mason for permission to open a Lodge of the degree. This having been granted and a warrant issued under which to work, Saturday last was the day fixed on for the important ceremonies of Consecration, Installation, and Advancement of members. Precisely at half-past two o'clock, R.W. Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., and Grand Secretary of the degree, who had been specially deputed by the Grand Master R.W. Bro. the Earl Percy, to perform the Ceremony of Consecration entered the Lodge Room, accompanied by W. Bro. W. Hudson, P.M. 75 (Mark), P.G.A.D. of C., W. Bro. J. M. Cunningham, P.M. 75 (Mark), P.G.J.G.W.; Bro. Thos. J. Sabine, P.M. 22 (Mark), P.G.A.D. of C. The Consecrating Officer then placed his officers at their posts, the S.W. chair being occupied by W. Bro. J. M. Cunningham, and the J.W. chair by W. Bro. Thos. J. Sabine. The Acting-Grand Secretary, Bro. R. S. Ade, then stated the reasons which had led to the formation of the Lodge, and the members present having stated their approval of the officers designate, the Consecrating Officer called on the Acting-Grand Secretary to read the warrant of Constitution of the Southdown Lodge No. 164 on the register of the Grand Mark Lodge of England and Wales, and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown. This having been done, the corn, wine, and oil was taken round the Lodge by three Past Masters, Bros. Cunningham, Hudson, and Sabine. The Lodge was formally and legally consecrated to the service of the G.A.O.T.U. and dedicated to the service of Mark Masonry, for the advantage and convenience of those residing in or visiting the district of Hayward's Heath. The ceremony of consecration being ended, the W.M.'s chair was taken by W. Bro. Thos. J. Sabine, who had been requested to install in the chair of "A," the W. Bro. W. Hudson, P.M. 75, Craft P.G.A.D. of C. The W.M. Designate having been presented, questioned, and pledged, all the brethren below the rank of P.M. withdrew from the Lodge, and Bro. Hudson was formally installed in the Worshipful Master's chair in the presence of a board of Installed Masters, comprising the Present or Past Grand Officers.—W. Bros. Binckes, Cunningham, Sabine, and Bros. Thomas Cooke

P.M. 75; John Robinson P.M. 75; G. R. Lockyer W.M. 75, and Bro. Trollope W.M. 166, Hastings. Bro. T. J. Sabine was invested with the collar of P.M. The board of Installed Masters was closed, and the brethren admitted; at this stage and by special permission, a ballot was taken for nineteen candidates, hailing from Craft Lodges 40, 56, 73, 186, 271, 284, 311, 315, 511, 811, 874, 1305, 1362, 1420, all of whom were unanimously elected.

A ballot was then taken for seven joining members, all of whom were elected.

Eleven of the candidates, including Bro. Sir John Cordy Burrows, being present, they were advanced by the W.M. into the mysteries of this ancient and highly instructive degree, the lecture being delivered in a very correct and impressive manner by Bro. Thomas Cook, P.M. 75.

Apologies were received from several of the candidates, who will attend to be advanced at the next meeting, to be held on the 26th July.

The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with. The W.M. having been proclaimed, saluted, and addressed, he proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. James Pearson, S.W.; S. R. Ade, J.W. They were addressed as to the nature of their duties, and advised as to the responsibility of their office. The W.M. nominated and invested his Overseers as follows:—Bros. Kemp, M.O.; Bonniwell, S.O.; C. Golding, J.O. The Overseers were next addressed on the importance of their duties, and on the rules which must guide them in their approval of the work submitted to them for inspection. Bro. Captain Knight was invested as Secretary; Bro. F. Willard was unanimously elected Treasurer, to the satisfaction of the brethren present; Bros. Cowley, S.D.; Read, J.D.; Bidgood, I.G.; Woolcock, Steward; Cook, P.M., D. of C.; and T. Hughes, Tyler.

The members were then addressed on the importance of carrying out in their integrity the principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth. The whole of the addresses were most admirably given by W. Bro. James Stevens, P.M., P.M.G.O., Prov. G. Sec. of Middlesex and Surrey. Several notices of motion were given, and W. Bros. Binckes, James Stevens, and Dr. Cunningham elected as honorary members of the lodge. The lodge was closed, and the brethren, between 30 and 40 in number, adjourned to dinner, which was served up in a manner reflecting great credit on Bro. Golding. The W.M., Bro. Hudson, presided, having on his right hand Bros. Sir John Cordy Burrows, F. Binckes (the consecrating officer), J. Stevens, Dr. Cunningham, Trollope, and W. R. Wood; and on his left, Bro. Sabine (the installing Master); Bro. Robinson, P.M. 75; Lockyer, W.M. 75. We have only room to give a list of the toasts, all of which were proposed and responded to in a suitable manner.

The establishment of the Southdown Lodge of Mark Masons is an undoubted success, and it is expected that a few months hence the Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Masons of Sussex will be inaugurated with Bro. Sir John Cordy Burrows, of Brighton, as Provincial Grand Master, and Bro. J. M. Cunningham, M.D., of Hailsham, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

We learn that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has postponed, until about the 11th or 12th of August, his visit to Holyhead, for the purpose of formally opening the Harbour of Refuge, and declaring the breakwater at that place complete.

Original Correspondence.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

No person, as has been shown by your correspondent J. E. C., can belong to any secret order in this country—by which, I mean the United Kingdom—without first having taken the vows and exemplified his conduct as a Master Mason in Craft Masonry. Hence, if the new Order of the Temple choose to disconnect themselves from Masonry, they place the existence of that Order in jeopardy.

As an admitting official of another order, to which I have made reference before (see your paper of October 9th, 1869), if a postulate is admitted here, he must previously, to attain that honour, vouch to me or to the admitting brethren, that he is a Master Mason, and the utmost strictness is observed. Of course where the law is different, a different procedure takes place. There, an oath, not in contravention of the various codes in existence in the various countries where we have chancellories, is administered; or should any one desire to belong to the Order, after true approval, he is taken into a country where the oath can be legally administered. The Order of the Temple differs in very few respects as to its rite of admission, but it is clear that, should it desire to retain the protection of the law, it must, at any rate, win its sanction according to ordinary legal forms. The mere fact that an illustrious brother should have placed himself at the head of any association cannot change fundamental principles. I am sure my brethren will be glad to see the letter of J. E. C. It is most opportune, inasmuch as the good the Masonic Knights Templar can do must be greatly affected by the status they are found to hold. Through a felonious charity—which, if not Masonic, it would be—nothing could be effected; "good cannot arise out of evil," nor can evil be regarded as disguised good. Many think so, however. Vale, Frater!

BALSARIAN SECT OF CHRISTIANS:

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Hutchinson, in the thirteenth lecture of his "Spirit of Masonry," says:—"In modern Masonry, it is given as a principle why our dedication of lodges is made to St. John, that the Masons who engaged to conquer the Holy Land, chose that saint as their patron. We should be sorry to appropriate the Balsarian sect of Christians to St. John," etc.

This passage is quoted by Dr. Oliver, of course, in his "Mirror of a Johannite Mason," and, I believe, also in some other of his works. Now I have heard of a great many Christian sects, but never heard of "Balsarian Christians." Cannot some Masonic scholar inform me whose who these Balsarian Christians were? Where and when did they flourish? and what connection was there between their heresy, and St. John, and Masonry, or the Knights Templar?

Yours fraternally,

JACOB NORTON.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The brevity of the notice in your issue of the 5th inst., calling attention to my project for obtaining a Life Governorship of the above-named institution, induces me to solicit the insertion of the following particulars:—

"Every purchaser of a shilling ticket will be entitled to participate in the ballot for a Life Governorship, and the possessor of the successful number will have £10 paid to the Institution in his or her name."

Several hundred tickets have been disposed of, and I feel convinced that the fact of having a chance of a Life Governorship for a shilling, only requires to be generally known to secure a successful issue. I hope every member of the Craft will be induced to invest a shilling, and more especially as the institution receives the benefit of every ticket sold. Every 200 tickets constitutes a Life Governorship.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,

JOHN CONSTABLE, S.W., 185,
58, Richmond-road, Barnsbury.

July 7th, 1878.

Tickets may be had of the writer and the following brethren:—Jas. Terry, Freemasons' Hall; T. J. Barnes, 442, Mile-End-road; E. Gottheil, 120, Mile-End-road; H. M. Levy, 24, Southampton-row; W. Buck, 5, Bow Church Yard, E.C.; A. Parkinson, 19, Lawrence-lane, E.C.; H. R. Davies, 14, Well-street, E.C.; J. Pinder, City Bank Chambers, Threadneedle Street, E.C.

SUMMER FESTIVAL OF LODGES 192 AND 766.

The Lion and Lamb and William Preston Lodges (Nos. 192 and 766), both meeting at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon Street, celebrated a joint summer festival at the Rosherville Hotel, Gravesend, Kent, on Thursday the 3rd instant, under the Presidency of the two W. Masters, Bro. Francis Trott, W.M. of the Lion and Lamb Lodge, occupying the chair as President, and Bro. Geo. Newman, W.M., of the William Preston, as Vice-President. The company consisted of about 60 ladies and gentlemen, as representatives of the two lodges. The dinner and other refreshments provided for the occasion were of the most recherché description, and great credit and thanks are due to the Bros. Roberts, the proprietors of the hotel, for their excellent catering, as well as for their general attention to render the occasion a comfortable and happy meeting.

The cloth having been removed, the President proposed the "Health of the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," to both of which were accorded the usual honours. Bro. Captain G. J. Kain, P.M., and Secretary of the William Preston Lodge, then gave the "Health of the President, and prosperity to the Lion and Lamb Lodge." Bro. J. G. Marsh, P.M., and Secretary to the Lion and Lamb Lodge, proposed the "Health of the Vice-President, and prosperity to the William Preston Lodge," both toasts were most cordially received and responded to by the respective W. Masters. The table entertainment concluded by Bro. Geo. Newman proposing the "Health of the Visitors," and Bro. Trott "The Ladies." Bro. W. Worrell, of the William Preston Lodge, replied in a humorous speech.

A portion of the company then retired to the ball room of the Swiss Cottage, for the light fantastic toe amusements, where refreshments were bountifully supplied during the whole evening, whilst others repaired to the garden to render the conclusion a happy day.

Amongst the brethren present we noticed Bros. W. Goodyer, Treasurer, Lion and Lamb Lodge; Geo. Kenning; E. Roberts, Director of Ceremonies; E. King, Steward; W. Ramsey; J. Cook; F. Fellowes, Steward; J. Kent, W. Bates, B. Marsland, H. Davis, J. Collis, W. Cotter, W. Donne, Geo. Abbott, Charles Arkell, W. Waring, W. Regan. Bros. Brand, of the William Preston Lodge; Harper, Gray, Dr. Bird, Dettmar, Forskett, J. Kinmer, Hart, McColly, Nicholson, Major Dowdell, Wren, Hoare, and Bro. Jardine, of the St. George's Lodge, nearly all of whom were accompanied by their ladies. We need scarcely say that this, the first occasion of the union of these two Lodges at a summer festival, was a most agreeable meeting, and we may further say a most successful one. Bro. J. G. Marsh and Captain G. J. Kain, acted as Honorary Secretaries.

THE PERSIAN VISIT TO ENGLAND.—We are informed that several members of the Shah's suite intend to send their sons to England to be educated. A beginning has been already made by his Chamberlain, who has left his son under the care of Dr. L. Schmitz, to be educated at the International College, at Spring-grove, near Isleworth.

WILLIAM PRESTON.

Bro. William Preston was entered, passed and raised among the "Ancients," a society which had its origin in a schism and secession from the Grand Lodge of England. Preston's clear perception, however, soon convinced him that his party was not a legally constituted one, and he left them and applied for and was received into membership under the banner of the regular Grand Lodge of England. With the utmost assiduity did he study the principles of our society, and a bright and successful student was he. He saw that the hidden treasures of Speculative Freemasonry, as established in 1717, required a more general development, in order to be more fully understood by the ordinary mind. To effect this was the chief object of his life, and how successful he was every intelligent brother knows. At a certain hour daily, he applied himself to the drawing of designs, and so perfect were his plans, that the Craft now, wherever dispersed, have since been engaged in executing them, and have never, at any period, been at a stand for want of employment. On Thursday, May 21, 1772, in order to have the advice and consent of the Craft, he gave a banquet at his own expense, at the Crown and Anchor, in the Strand, London, to which he invited all the Masonic talent and wisdom of Great Britain to be present.

According to his request, the brethren assembled early, and he was not slow in announcing to them the object he had in view in convoking them. He said that "Freemasonry, in order to preserve its standing, must spread its roots and extend its branches far and wide, for the purpose of extending its capabilities to meet the exigencies of the times. He then laid before them the result of his long and arduous labours, the present system of lecturing (a reconstruction of the old), as practiced subsequently to the formation of the Grand Lodge in 1717. It was discussed seriatim, approved and adopted. Bro. Preston then became exceedingly popular and was employed as D. G. Secretary under Bro. Hesseltime, who wished at that time to publish an improved edition of the Book of Constitutions, which would bring down the history of Freemasonry to his own time. Considering Preston the most eligible to prepare the work for the printer, he gave him entire charge of it, and free access to documents and papers of the Grand Lodge. When the most laborious part of the work was performed, and it was nearly ready to go to press, the G. Secretary wanted to give an acquaintance of his, Bro. Noorthouck, Treasurer of the Lodge of Antiquity, an interest in its publication, and appointed him to assist Preston in completing it.

Bro. Preston, having done all the work of selecting, arranging, &c., thought he was entitled to the individual honour of his labour, and declined the offer, when the work was taken from him altogether, and given to Noorthouck. Seeing that the honours he had so well earned were taken from him, he remonstrated warmly, and threw up the office of D. G. Secretary in disgust, and, some say, withheld a part of the material he had collected for the book.

This displeased Bro. Hesseltime, who was not long waiting for an opportunity of resenting the offence which Bro. Preston had given him, and the latter was arraigned for a violation of the laws of Grand Lodge, in attending a sermon at church in Masonic costume; and, in his defence, Bro. Preston said that this regulation of the Grand Lodge—the one which they said he had violated—was the height of absurdity, and could not be admitted by any person who professed himself a friend of the Society. He also said that "the Lodge of Antiquity had its own popular rights, formally secured by it in 1717, and was determined to preserve them inviolate, and it was very questionable if the Grand Lodge was empowered to make laws binding on a Lodge which had acted on its own independent authority from a period anterior to the existence of that body." On the 30th of January, he (Bro. Preston) was expelled from the Grand Lodge, and declared "incapable of attending the same, or any of its committees."

In 1787, when the Duke of Cumberland was Grand Master, the case of Bro. Preston was submitted to the Grand Lodge, who then, (like other Grand Lodges we know of, who acted harshly and cruelly in moments of passion,) in a better and more Masonic spirit, re-considered its former proceedings, and reinstated Bro. Preston to all the rights and honours of Freemasonry.

Such is the history of William Preston, whose memory is universally cherished among Free and Accepted Masons.—New York Dispatch.

IMPORTANCE OF MASONIC LITERATURE.—

At no time in the history of Freemasonry, has its intellectual character been more justly appreciated than at the present. At no time have its members, generally, cultivated its science with more assiduity. At no time have they been more zealous in endeavouring to obtain a due enlightenment on all the various topics which its system comprehends. It is true that Masons still abound who will not read, and who cannot learn—men who, ignorant of its history, its antiquities, its philosophy, still believe that a knowledge of the signs and acquaintance with the mere phraseology of its lectures, constitute the sum and substance of Masonic wisdom. But such men are beginning to be considered by their more studious brethren as mere drones in the hive of Masonry. Those who desire to hold a high position among their brethren, and claim the title of "Bright Masons," must labour with that "freedom, fervency, and zeal," which distinguished our ancient Brethren for the acquisition of knowledge. There cannot be a question of doubt that the higher elevation of the society, and its consequent popularity, is to be attributed to the well-digested publications which have appeared on the subject of Freemasonry. To assist in sustaining this elevation of position for the Fraternity, should be the duty of every brother, for thereby he secures the means of advancing his own intellectual progress as a Mason.

ENEMIES WITHIN.—To too many of us, I fear, Masonry is but a shadow without substance a body without life, a letter without spirit. It has substance, life and spirit, as well as a shadow, body and letter, and he who feels the substance and is possessed of that life and spirit, is a living Mason, an embodiment of its truth, and a just exponent of its principles. While as Masons we are never found soliciting persons to join us we should yet so live that others would esteem it a great privilege to be associated with men so wise, so virtuous and so good. Hostility to Masonry can do no harm so long as Masons are not recreant to every just principle of the Order. But it is true of Masonry, as well as Christianity that her greatest enemies are found among the leading worshippers at her shrine; so long as Masons are true to their principles, they have nothing to fear from opposition. The world has witnessed many social, political and religious revolutions, but amid all, the tenets of our Order and the mysteries of the Craft have been secretly guarded and religiously preserved; and although we have had foes from without and enemies within, though Church and State have combined for our certain destruction yet with unbroken ranks and unswerving purpose, our march has been steadily onward.—Robert Clark.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. CROSBY'S BALSAMIC

COUGH ELIXIR

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

* * * Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy, of which can be had gratis of all Chemists.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN AND

BUNION PLAISTERS are the best ever invented for giving immediate ease, and removing those painful excrescences. Price 6d. and 1s. per box. May be had of most Chemists. Observe the trade mark.—HY—without which none are genuine be sure and ask for YOUNG'S.

BARD OF AVON LODGE (No. 778).—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Greyhound Inn, Hampton Court, on Wednesday, 9th July, when Bro. George Elliot, member of Parliament for the Northern Division of the County of Durham, was installed as W.M., in presence of a large number of Grand Officers, and with the good wishes of brethren of every degree. The Bard of Avon Lodge was founded at Stratford-on-Avon in 1859, and its members had proposed a resolution, in the early part of 1872, to dissolve the lodge, and return the warrant to the Grand Master, when Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Provincial Grand Secretary of Middlesex, placed himself in communication with Bro. George Elliot, M.P., and other brethren, and the result was that the lodge was transferred to the Province of Middlesex, with the concurrence and fraternal co-operation of Bro. Lord Leigh, the Provincial Grand Master of Warwickshire, and Bro. Colonel Burdett, the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex. The Bard of Avon lodge struck vigorous root in Middlesex, and there are at this time upwards of thirty candidates for membership on its books, the majority of these being Freemasons who have won their honours elsewhere, and who are desirous to throw in their lot with the Bard of Avon. On Wednesday the assemblage was unusually large. Among those present were—Bros. Col. F. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; Col. Lowry Cole, C.B., P.S.G.W. England; John Hervey, G. Sec.; Hyde Pullen, P.D. Prov. G.M. Isle of Wight; Conrad Dumas, P.A.G.D.C.; Raynham Stewart, P.G.D.; Plunkett, M.P., P.G.D.; Rev. Taylor Jones, Prov. G. Chap. Middlesex; S. Rosenthal, Prov. G.S.W. Middlesex; Rev. J. D. Collis, D.D., Vicar of Stratford-on-Avon; Dr. Kingsley; Edward Dicey; P. H. Lawrence, P.M.; George Scharf, F.S.A., W.M. Lodge of Antiquity; and many others, there being twenty-seven Past Masters and Worshipful Masters present during that portion of the ceremony of Installation, when those below those ranks are excluded. The lodge was opened punctually at three p.m., when, after the minutes had been confirmed, and some formal business transacted, Bros. Rev. J. D. Collis, D.D., and Henry Kingsley, M.D., were raised from the degree of F.C. to that of M.M. The installation ceremony was then proceeded with, Bro. W. Roebuck presenting the W.M. elect, Bro. George Elliot, M.P. and Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.M. 181, and W.M. 758, performing the installation ceremony. The Masonic business was concluded and the lodge closed at 6 p.m., after which the brethren sat down to banquet, Bro. George Elliot, M.P., the new W.M., presiding. The new W.M. was supported to the right and left by brethren of high rank in the Province of Middlesex, and by Grand Officers. After the "Queen and the Craft;" "The Grand Master;" "The D.G.M.;" "The Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex;" and "The Deputy Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex" had been duly honoured, the gavel was, by special desire entrusted to Bro. Plunkett, M.P., G.D. (Irish Constitution) who in a speech of rare eloquence and power proposed the health of the Worshipful Master. Bro. Plunkett's manner, matter, and delivery convinced those present that the gift of "silver speech" is sometimes hereditary, and set some of his auditors thinking of the transmission of genius and Mr. Francis Galton's theories as to talent being handed down from generation to generation. Bro. G. Elliot, M.P., W.M., replied with earnest effectiveness, assuring all present of the pride and pleasure with which he accepted the office to which he had been elected, and of his determination to perform, to the best of his ability, the duties arising out of it. Reverting generally to the effect of the ritual and ceremonies of Freemasonry upon the mind, Bro. Elliot declared that, from the day of his initiation in the Granby Lodge, Durham, to the present, he had been profoundly impressed by the solemnity and usefulness of Masonic teachings. Bro. Elliot said the Masonic ritual not unfrequently reminded him of the services of the Church of England, and that the serious duties undertaken by Freemasons, must, if properly performed, tend to make men better. The new W.M. concluded a speech which was replete with good feeling and practical common sense, by again thanking the members of the Bard of Avon for the honour they had conferred upon him, and by reciprocating Bro. Plunkett's wishes for the permanence and prosperity of the lodge. The proceedings terminated with the usual toast, and a most successful installation meeting was brought to a conclusion. During the evening Bro. Rosenthal, P.S.G.W., made a handsome present to the lodge, consisting of copies of his two great pictures of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales being received in the Grand Lodge of England," and of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales being received in the Grand Encampment of English Knights Templar." It was announced also that Bro. Rosenthal has in hand a half length life size portrait, in oil, of Bro. George Elliot, M.P., in full Masonic clothing.

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—Baldwin Lodge (No. 1398).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 9th ult., in the Masonic Temple, The Castle, Dalton-in-Furness. The lodge was presided over by Bro. R. Pearson, P.W.M. Lodge of Furness, 995. The lodge having been opened and the minutes read and confirmed, the balloting for W.M. was proceeded with, when Bro. William Whiteside was unanimously elected. The Treasurer (Bro. F. H. Clark) and the Tyler (Bro. Thomas Cooper) were re-elected to their respective offices for the year 1873-4. An audit committee and banquet committee were afterwards appointed, it being arranged that the installation of Master and the banquet to follow should take place on the 29th July. As a mark of esteem, and to show that his efforts in conducting the lodge during the first year of its existence were thoroughly appreciated by the brethren, it was resolved to present Bro. Pearson with a P.M.'s jewel. Mr. H. Duncan having been initiated as E.A., the lodge was closed in due form by the Acting W.M. In consequence of the much lamented death of the Right Honourable the Earl of Zetland, K.G., M.W.P.G.M., the lodge was ordered to be placed in mourning for the space of six months.

ERA LODGE (No 1423).—At the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court, on Saturday, July 12th, the regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held. Bro. J. T. Moss, P.G.S.D. Middlesex, W.M., presided. The minutes were read and confirmed. Ballots were unanimous in favour of joining members. Mr. Benjamin Wright was initiated into Freemasonry. Bro. F. Walters, P.M., Sec., passed Bros. B. Robinson; W. F. Gardiner, 1275; A. C. Woodward, 1275; F. B. Williams, 1275; and J. Mc Naughton, 871, to the second degree; and raised Bros. E. Devereux, W. M. Matthews, and Loos, to the third degree. Several propositions for joining, and candidates for initiation in this lodge, were received. Business ended, the lodge was closed. Refreshment followed labour. The visitors were—Bros. Edwin J. Crow, P.M. 279, P.G.S.D., Leicestershire; H. J. Green, 216, 1275, 1326; C. W. Williams, 1275, 1326; Rev. P.M. Holden; and T. H. Miller. 907.

BRIGHTON.—De Warrene Preceptory.—A meeting of this young preceptory was held in the Masonic Rooms, Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Friday, July 11th, 1873. In the absence of the Eminent Commander Sir Knt. John Lucas Allen, V.E. Sir Knt. Major Shadwell H. Clerke opened the preceptory. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, confirmed, and signed. Sir Knt. Capt. Stratford was unanimously elected a joining member. The by-laws were then considered, and, after a few slight amendments, adopted. The alms were collected, and the preceptory was closed. There were present—Sir Knts. C. Horsley, M. B. Tanner, Thomas J. Sabine, Thomas Lane, E.C. of the Sussex Preceptory, Eastbourne, Herbert Stratford, Col. David Aitkin, C. J. Smith, and T. H. Moseley. Visitors: Sir Knts. Moren and Morris of the Sussex Preceptory, Eastbourne. At the close of the above proceedings, a preceptory of the Order of Malta was opened, presided over by Eminent Sir Knt. Major Shadwell Clerke, assisted by Eminent Sir Knt. Charles Horsley, when Sir Knts. M. B. Tanner, T. H. Moseley, C. J. Smith, Thomas Lane, Thomas J. Sabine, G. Morris, G. Moren, and Capt. Stratford were admitted and received as members of this degree; after which the preceptory was closed. The next meeting of the "De Warrene" preceptory will be held on Friday, September 12th, when it is expected a large number of Sir Knights will assemble. The Order of the Temple is attracting considerable attention among the Masons of Brighton, and there is every possibility that in a short time the "DeWarrene" preceptory will be one of the most successful in the south of England.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

BRIGHTON.—Eureka Chapter, S.P. Rose Croix of H.R.D.M.—On Saturday the third regular meeting of this recently established chapter of the Ancient and Accepted Rite was held in the Masonic Rooms, Royal Pavilion, at half-past six o'clock. The M.W.S., Ex. Bro. Dr. Tanner, opened the chapter, assisted by his officers. The following members of the Craft were unanimously balloted for as members:—Sir John Cordy Burrows, P.P.G.W. Sussex; G. Moren; George Vicars, 811; Capt. J. C. H. Stratford. The following Rose Croix Masons were balloted for as joining members:—Colonel William David Aitken, 30°; Charles A. Woolley, 18°, and unanimously elected. The M.W.S., Ex. Bro. Dr. Tanner, then conferred the degree on the following candidates:—Bros. Sir John Cordy Burrows, Capt. Stratford, George Vicars, and G. Moren, assisted by Ill. Bro. Major Shadwell H. Clerke, 33°, Ex. Bro. C. J. Smith, 18°, and Ex. Bro. Dr. Trollope, 18°. The M.W.S. most efficiently performed the duties of his position, and rendered the ceremony with most commendable accuracy, considering this was the first time he had been called upon to work the ceremony. There were present during the evening—Ill. Bros. Major Shadwell H. Clerke, 33°; H. Murray, 31°; C. Horsley, 30°; Ex. Bros. M. B. Tanner, M.D.; C. J. Smith; Thomas Trollope, M.D.; Paul Storr; John Lucas Allen; Rev. E. Walker, M.A.; Thomas J. Sabine, T. H. Moseley, John Wood, W. R. Wood, H. S. Sanderson, C. A. Woolley, and others. The lodge was closed about nine o'clock in ancient and solemn form.

THE SURREY MASONIC HALL COMPANY (LIMITED).—At the fortnightly meeting of the Directors, Bro. John Thomas was formally appointed Architect to the Company, plans and specifications of the hall and Masonic rooms were considered, and a Building Committee appointed, consisting of Bros. Pinder, Larlham, Green and Reeves, to make the necessary arrangements for commencing the structure. Several shares were applied for and ordered to be allotted. The members of the Board present being Bros. E. Worthington, Chairman, Levander, Kenning, Larlham, Stevens, Green, Ritherdon, Reeves, and Ramsay.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS MASONIC CLUB.

This society held their first anniversary dinner at the Hartington Hotel, on the 9th inst., at 8, p.m. 30 members sat down; this number was considered small, occasioned by the Piel Regatta being on the same day.

The President and Vice-President of the club, Bros. Cornfield and Silver, occupied the chairs. A short but very pleasant evening was passed, enlivened by the talented harmony of several of the brethren. The usual loyal, patriotic, and customary toasts were duly honoured.

The success of the club was proposed by the President, who bore testimony to the order and decorum observed, and the convenience which the club afforded to a large number of brethren. He trusted that he should not be out of place in observing the pleasing circumstance that the club although held at an hotel, the room being open from morning to night, had the very opposite effect to the encouragement of intemperance; if this was attributable to the stringency of the rules, it was most creditable to the foresight of the framers of such rules, but he thought he might go further and say that the good sense and example of the brethren towards each other, through the facilities now given for more frequently meeting together, gave rise to entertainment, interesting far beyond that of the drinking customs, of what may be called, indiscriminate company. After a few observations from the Vice-President, the toast was rapturously drunk.

The next toast "The Health of the Executive," was entrusted to Prior S. C. Baynes, who said that although a young member he had noticed with pleasure the great and necessary interest taken in the club; he felt it was a most prosperous institution, and had well supplied a great want in Barrow. They ought to be thankful to such men as the executive was composed of, for coming to the front at a great sacrifice of time and judicious exercise of talent required in the management of such a large society. The speaker was in his best vein, interspersing his remarks with Shaksperian and other quotations, amusing and edifying the brethren in the masterly manner for which he is famous. He coupled with the toast the names of the President, Vice, Treasurer, and Secretary. The speech was received with great applause, and the toast was duly honoured.

The President and Vice shortly replied. The Secretary, Bro. Leary furnished some statistics evidencing the flourishing condition of the club, and stated there were 80 members on the roll. The Treasurer, Bro. Hooker, shewed, by a balance to credit, its financial prosperity. "The Visiting Brethren" was proposed by Bro. J. C. Fanter, who said that the toast was always honoured by brethren, throughout the world, as a principal one in all the entertainments of the ancient Craft; he could bear testimony to its deserving the highest place, having recently experienced such kind and fraternal treatment in Belgium, and other places which he had recently travelled in. He enumerated a few instances, in detail, which excited the most pleasurable emotions amongst the company. The toast was responded to by Bro. Wilson, of H.M.s Customs upon which the endless chain was linked, and "Auld Lang Syne" sang with great gusto. Bros. McKnight, Haslam, Young, Peavons and Schuster made some complimentary remarks and the business concluded at 11 o'clock, with the toast of "The Host, Bro. Taylor, and the Hostess" whose efforts to furnish the club with a most excellent repast, served with great taste and comfort, elicited deserved approval.

FUNERAL OF THE REV. DR. TAYLOR, AT DUNDEE.

On Monday the remains of the late Rev. Dr. Taylor, were interred in the Western Cemetery, Dundee.

Services were conducted in the South church by the Rev. Dr. Watson and Rev. Mr. Horne, of Port-Glasgow. There was a large attendance of the members of the congregation and of the other friends of the deceased, and during the time of the service those present—a large number of whom were in mourning—seemed deeply affected. The pulpit and other parts of the church were draped in black. Appropriate passages of Scripture were read by the gentlemen named, and each of them also engaged in prayer.

Dr. Taylor having been Provincial Grand Chaplain of the Freemasons of Forfarshire and Honorary Chaplain of St. David's Lodge, nearly two hundred of the brethren turned out, although only a day's notice had been given. The Funeral Lodge was opened within St. David's Masonic Hall, 8, Bank-street, exactly at one o'clock, when there were present most of the Masters and office-bearers of the various lodges—every Lodge in Dundee and Lochee being represented, and the Prov. Grand Master, Gibraltar. The R.W. Master of St. David's Lodge (Bro. James Berry) was in the chair, and opened the lodge up to the third degree. He produced the letter from the relatives of the late Grand Chaplain, as also the authority addressed to him by Lord Dalhousie, P.G. Master, and then delivered a short address. The Rev. Bro. G. Alton, engaged in prayer, and thereafter the following anthem was sung:—

Almighty Maker of my frame,
Teach me the measure of my days
Teach me to know how frail I am,
And spend the remnant to Thy praise.
My days are shorter than a span,
A little point my life appears;
How frail at best is dying man!
How vain are all his hopes and fears!
Oh! be a nobler portion mine;
My God! I bow before Thy throne;
Earth's fleeting treasures I resign,
And fix my hope on Thee alone.

The Rev. Mr. Alton afterwards delivered an eloquent address, and the brethren then adjourned to join the funeral procession, the only emblem each bore being white gloves and a sprig of acacia, the emblem of the Craft. The services in the South Church concluded about half-past two o'clock, and the funeral procession was then formed. The body of deceased had arrived from Port-Glasgow, and was conveyed in a hearse to its resting-place, followed by fourteen mourning coaches, each drawn by a pair of horses. The chief mourners were Dr. John Taylor and Mr. Adam Taylor, the sons of deceased, and Messrs. Alexander, William, and Thomas Bell. Almost all the members of the Dundee Established Presbytery were present, and there were also in the cortege the Rev. J. C. Baxter, Rev. Mr. Nicoll, Murroes; Rev. Mr. M'Pherson, Meigle; Rev. Mr. Robertson, of the Original Seceders; Bailie Maxwell, ex-Provost Yeaman, Colonel Anderson, Colonel Alison, Mr. George H. Hill, Mr. Thomas Smith, &c. Preceding the hearse was a detachment of the North British Fusiliers, under the command of Lieut. Tew, Dr. Taylor, having acted as Chaplain to the Protestants in the regiment during the time they have been in Dundee. The Masonic brethren marched in single file on each side of the mourning coaches. On arriving at the Cemetery the coffin was lowered and a short prayer offered up by the Rev. Dr. Watson. At the call of Bro. Berry the Masons dropped their sprigs of acacia on the top of the coffin, and the grave was afterwards filled.

The funeral procession then returned. The streets between the church and the place of burial were lined with spectators. The Masonic Lodge rooms were draped in black, and will so remain for some time. During the day the town's bells were tolled.—Dundee Advertiser.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.—The party of English artisans from the various manufacturing centres, 34 in number, sent out by the Manchester Society for the Promotion of Scientific Industry, to report on the Vienna Exhibition, has arrived safely. They were received on their arrival by Mr. P. Cunliffe Owen, on behalf of the British Royal Commission, and were by him introduced to his Excellency the Baron de Schwarz Senborn, the Austrian General Manager of the Exhibition. Mr. W. G. Larkins, the Secretary of the Society, and Mr. W. Aitkin, the gentlemen in charge of the workmen from Birmingham, were also at the same time presented to his Excellency.

Reviews.

The Prevention of Poverty or Progressional Economy as a System of Natural Law, and Reform as a Science, by William Volckman, London, Trübner and Co., 57 and 59, Ludgate-hill.

Mr. Volckman urges that his essay is no attempt whatever at the advocacy of a "rhapsodical Arcadian" system of life, or of any absurdly levelling scheme of wealth distribution. On the contrary it is one of his objects to show the needlessness of such views or schemes, and the sufficiency of naturally economic law for a diversified well being. He contends that human society, is naturally and de facto a progressional and economical partnership; so endowed by birth-right, as to be well nigh secure against the possibility of poverty, if the natural conditions of its endowments be but properly understood and obeyed. He shows that such "endowed partnership" is not only a provision of well-being for all, it is also the guarantee of that enlightened liberty and individuality, so enjoyable to each, and so fruitful of general advancement. He asserts "Reform to be a science, &c." The author then urges that the individual and State alike are possessed of three, birthright, common-wealth endowments, viz:—Intelligence, labour, power, and land. He says "These are the primary sources of wealth, and are only operative in combined action, any one or two of them being simply powerless for the securing of well-being. To alienate any one or more of them from a state or an individual is to reduce such individual or state to starvation or slavery. He then goes on to show that reform as an active principle lies in the necessities of the masses. By the application of the co-operative or partnership principle to profit-division as between employer and employed the interests of capital and labour would become identical, both indeed, would be advanced, and the control of cheapening power would be enjoyed by the many, and not confined, as now, to the few. Thus union would be established among the masses, for a people thoroughly united could not fail to secure their every desire. The author concludes with several chapters in which he deals with luxuriousness, starvation, co-operative colonisation, the capitalisation of labour, republicanism, and also with the land as a commonwealth, &c.

The "Little Dressmaker" (No. 7, Vol. 2), is specially devoted to fashions for children and dolls. A beautifully coloured illustration is given, showing the latest fashions for children's and dolls, clothing, with the cut paper patterns. This little work is an invaluable assistant to those who choose the patterns for their little ones. It is altogether a most useful publication, printed with great care, on fine paper, and in which every detail is rendered with perfect fidelity. The plates are well executed, which makes it a work of art as well as that of fashion. We wish it every success.

"The Penny-a-Week Country Daily Newspaper." London, 112, Strand. This novel little daily is established to supply every rural parish with a daily newspaper friendly to Christianity and good government. It is a marvel of cheapness; twelve persons subscribing one penny each per week, may have 12 copies every morning, post-free, thus making the "Country Daily Newspaper" only a penny per week. It is a neat and handy sheet of four pages, of two columns each, and contains all the news up to the hour of publication. It is printed on good paper, in clear type, "set up" and printed by steam power.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

NATIONAL MUSIC MEETINGS.

The fourth and last, and the most interesting, of this year's public competitions took place on Thursday, July 10th, when the proceedings commenced (at the usual hour of one o'clock) with Class No. 3 (choral societies not exceeding 80 voices.) Three choirs of male singers—the Bristol Choral Union (conducted by Mr. A. Stone); the Liverpool Representative Choir (conductor, Mr. Sanders); and Mr. Proudman's Men's Voice Choir (conducted by himself)—contended for the two prizes awarded, a purse of £50 and a ten guinea library of music, presented by Messrs. Chappell and Co. The pieces sung were—by each choir alternately—the chorus “Where is he?” from Beethoven’s Mount of Olives and T. Cooke’s “Hohenlinden”—the Bristol choir having also been heard in Schubert’s “Nachthelle,” and that of Mr. Proudman in Netherclift’s “We happy Shepherd swains.” Some tests in sight-singing followed, and the general result was the award by the judges (Sir J. Benedict, and Messrs. H. Leslie and J. Barnby) of the first prize to the Liverpool choir, the second prize to that of Bristol, and a certificate of merit to the other competing choir.

The chief interest of the day centred in the re-appearance of the South Wales Choral Union, which has become famous since its performance at last year’s music-meetings, when it carried off the Challenge Prize Cup, value £100, without opposition, it is true, but with a general approbation that was justly earned by the fine singing of these Cambrian choristers. The anticipations raised by the promised re-appearance of this choir were heightened by the knowledge that this year the claim to the possession of the prize would be disputed by another competing body under Class No. 1 (choral societies not exceeding 500 voices). This opposition was made by the well-known Tonic-Sol-fa Association, whose capital singing is yearly exemplified at their special concert at the Crystal Palace.

The trial began with the South Wales’ Choir, the pieces selected having been, Bach’s motett, “I wrestle and pray;” the “Hallelujah” chorus from the Mount of Olives; the chorus, “See what love,” from Mendelssohn’s St. Paul; and that from the same composer’s Walpurge’s Night music, “Come with Torches.” The singing in each instance fully justified all that has been said in praise of this fine choir. Again, the quality of tone was rich and grand, powerful without the slightest approach to coarseness; and, notwithstanding the large number of choristers, readily graduated and subdued in force. The vigour and precision of attack in each division; the general truthfulness of intonation; the special brightness of the soprano voices, and their unflinching command of the higher range of compass (admirably exemplified in the difficult secular chorus of Mendelssohn), were qualities which won enthusiastic applause, not only from the many natives of the Principality, who were among the large audience, but from all others who were capable of judgment on the subject. It was manifest that to surpass such fine choral-singing was scarcely possible, and accordingly the performances of the same piece by the rival choir, excellent as they were in many respects, were universally felt to fall short of the previous displays. There could be little hesitation in the case, and the judges (Sir J. Benedict, Sir J. Goss, and Mr. Barnby) speedily gave their decision in favour of the South Wales Choir, a judgment which involves the continued holding of the Challenge Prize, and the award of a purse of £100. To the Tonic Sol-fa Choir a second prize was given—a fifty guinea harmonium, presented by Messrs. Alexandre and Co., of Paris. The Welsh Choir was conducted by “Caradoc” (Griffith Jones), the other by Mr. Proudman. The announcement of the result was received with shouts and cheers from various parts of the building, followed by a rush to the Telegraph-office to ensure speedy transmission of the news to distant expectants. As on other days, the competitions were followed by a miscellaneous concert, the programme of which was contributed to by some of the competitors.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. H. HORNBY.

We have this week, to announce the death of Bro. H. Hornby, a member of the Merchants’ Lodge, No. 241, holding its meetings in Liverpool—a brother who was highly esteemed, not only as a Mason, but as holding a high position in the town’s affairs. Bro. Hornby has represented Lime-street ward since 1868 in the Town Council, and during that time has done some good, quiet, and valuable service to the town. He was the proprietor of the Grand Junction Hotel, Lime-street, and a wine and spirit merchant; and while he identified himself with the dominant party in the Town Council, he took no part in the discussion of public affairs, but confined himself simply to voting upon the various questions which came under the notice of the council. Bro. Hornby, who was in the prime of life, being only 47 years of age, had been ailing some time, but his friends scarcely anticipated his sudden decease on the 8th instant. His remains were interred at Smithdown-lane cemetery on Friday, the 11th instant.

Masonic Tidings.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount-Edgcombe is to be installed as Provincial Grand Master of Cornwall, at Truro, on Tuesday next, the 22nd inst. A very large muster of the brethren and visitors is expected. Brethren will, of course, appear in Masonic mourning, though some have doubted the propriety of so doing; but, as it is an order of the Grand Lodge, we fail to see how it can legally be otherwise. In looking over the excellent directory for the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall, edited by the late Provincial Grand Secretary, Bro. Hughan, we find that our noble brother will be the eighth so installed since the constitution of the Province, in 1752. We trust that as successful a career is before his lordship as characterised the rule of his immediate predecessor, the R.W. Bro. Augustus Smith, who commenced his rule with 15 lodges and 468 members, and ended with 24 lodges and an increase of 500 members!

PRESERVATION OF LIFE AT SEA.

A most interesting exhibition to our numerous seafaring brethren in Liverpool was open during last week at the Town Hall, its object being to gather together the latest and best apparatus for the preservation of life at sea. In the different sections were exhibited models and full sized life boats, life rafts, life buoys, belts &c., boat-lowering apparatus, signals, rockets, &c., and the entire exhibition was of the most attractive character. The exhibition was opened by the Worshipful the Mayor Bro. E. Samuelson, and on each day the value of the gathering was greatly enhanced by trials of full sized apparatus on the river, under the direction of a committee of “old salts,” having for its chairman Rear-Admiral Kerr.

The value of these trials will be seen when it is stated that in the five years preceeding the 31st December, 1871, over 500 lives were lost by collisions, and 11,102 ships came into collision, of which 854 were sunk, the probable monetary loss amounting to about 15 millions in that time. It is therefore satisfactory to know that in the present exhibition the work of many brains has been brought to so much perfection, and it is the opinion of the committee—all of whom are gentlemen of great experience—that very rarely has a more select collection of appliances been brought together.

The proceeds of the exhibition will be divided between the Seamen’s Orphan Asylum and the Shipwrecked Mariners Aid Society.

At the close of the exhibition on Saturday, Bro. Samuelson, the Mayor, in the course of an excellent speech, said the interest which has been evinced in this exhibition had not been confined to this country, but had extended to our neighbours on the other side of the channel. (Hear, hear.) The “Société Central de Sauvetage des Naufrages” had sent Captain Delynge, a member of their council, who had shown an appliance for projecting a line from shore to a ship in distress. He (the Mayor) hoped the result of the exhibition would be such as not merely to allow it to terminate with the possibility and even the probability of its being repeated—(hear, hear)—and he hoped that there would be some lasting benefit accruing from it. (Applause.) Hitherto inventors had only scientific journals to resort to, and all knew that, however great that boon might be, it lacked the advantages of practical tests. (Hear, hear.) It was true that there was a Royal Humane Society and a National Lifeboat Institution, They had a Polytechnic Society in London and Liverpool, but he thought these institutions did not perhaps hold out sufficient encouragement to inventors, and therefore he and the committee thought something should emanate from this exhibition which should result in a permanent good. (Applause.) He for one—if others who were more immediately connected with matters of this kind felt disposed to institute a society for the preservation of life at sea—would have the greatest pleasure in giving it his support—(loud applause)—and he really thought they ought not to wait for their metropolitan neighbours to take the lead in these matters. Liverpool boasted of being the first maritime port in the world, and, accordingly, in all matters of this kind she ought to be in the vanguard—(hear, hear)—especially when the safety of human life was such a consideration. He concluded by expressing his personal thanks to the committee and the honorary secretary, for their exertions in connection with the exhibition.

It is probable that the society referred to by the Mayor will shortly be instituted.

ROYAL VISIT TO HOLYHEAD.—Our Royal Bro. the Prince of Wales, will visit Holyhead next month for the purpose of opening the new and most extensive breakwater there. A meeting of the county of Anglesey—the High Sheriff presiding—was held on Thursday, the 30th inst., at the Market Hall, to make the necessary arrangements. The ceremony will probably take place on the 12th or 13th of August, and although the Prince has desired that there should be no public banquet, addresses will be presented from the county and local authorities, and there will be general rejoicing. It may be stated that the breakwater has cost upwards of a million and a half sterling, and, therefore, its opening is worthy of the Prince’s presence, especially as its object is to shelter the mercantile navy from storm and shipwreck.

DISCOVERY OF ROMAN PAVEMENT.—Some extensive additions are about to be made by Messrs. F. Gordon and Co. to Crosby Hall, Bishopsgate-street, and, in preparing the foundations, there has this week been discovered part of a Roman tessellated pavement, of considerable extent, and apparently a remnant of a large floor. The border encloses an elegant leaf, ornamental pattern, and it is worked in red, yellow, black, and white tesserae. The pavement was discovered by Messrs. Merritt and Ashby, the builders, about seven feet only from the surface. It has been seen, through the courtesy of Mr. Thomas Smith, one of the firm of Messrs. Gordon and Co., by several members of the London and Middlesex Archaeological Society, who pronounce it to be a very interesting specimen; and it is now, we believe, removed to a place of safety. About two years ago, a similar pavement was discovered, when Messrs. Gordon and Co. were having the foundation laid of their new premises, opposite Crosby Hall. Bishopsgate was one of the main arteries of Roman London, and, doubtless, had mansions on either side. At various times, there have been Roman pavements found in the immediate neighbourhood—in Austin-friars, Wormwood-street, Old Broad-street, Threadneedle-street, &c.

A TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR BIBLE.—In the book-store of Mr. Bouton, on Broadway, there is now on exhibition what is certainly the most valuable copy of the Holy Bible ever compiled. It represents the industrious toil for thirty years of an English collector of Biblical prints, etchings, engravings, original drawings in oil and water colors, and authoritative or curious editions of the Scriptures, and is now roughly valued at 10,000 dols., though its real price may very likely prove to be much higher. The complete text used is that of Dr. Kitto’s edition of King James’ Bible. But this is but a fractional part of the sixty huge folio volumes through which it is spread. Sometimes the reader will turn over fifty consecutive pages of illustrations between those scattered fragments. Such subjects, for example, as “Susanna and the Elders,” or “Daniel in the Lion’s Den,” are enriched with scenes of illustration drawn from every field of art—the convent missals of the mediæval ages, the strange, fanciful, strikingly false drawing of the Italian masters, the grotesque works of Dutch and German painters, and the later and more truthful efforts of modern times. In all this monument of loving devotion to a worthy hobby are included no less than 30,000 illustrations of various kinds, some of them worth from 50 dols. to 100 dols. each, and extracts from some thirty editions of the sacred text. Such a treasure ought speedily to find a purchaser in some of our few great libraries, where it would be an unfailling spring of delight and instruction to artists and men of letters.—New York World.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY AND THE FREEMASONS' HALL AT WATFORD.

The ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the Public Library, in Queen-street, the building of which has just been commenced, excited some interest on Saturday last, inasmuch as it was laid by the Freemasons with their ancient ceremony. To many the occasion was one of much gratification, as there can be no doubt that the Public Library will supply a great want that has long been felt. Such an institution, under an Act of Parliament which is part of the local government system, and also under the Science and Art Department, has its guarantee of stability and proper management. Its means of benefiting the neighbourhood have been from time to time set forth, and we have now to speak of the handsome building, which we have no doubt will be both an ornament and a blessing to the town.

The building, which will have a frontage of 80 feet, will contain, on the ground floor, two spacious public reading rooms, each communicating with the library or book-room, a large news-room, committee and apparatus rooms. On the first floor the accommodation will be set apart for the Science and Art Department, and will consist of two science class-rooms, convertible, by the removal of a deal partition, into a lecture hall, 51ft. 6in. long by 30ft. wide; an elementary class room, painting and modelling rooms, besides a master's room, cloak rooms, and lavatories. The style of structure is that rendering of Gothic which has, of late years, been so successfully carried out in brickwork, and is that by which English architecture is chiefly characterised. The main portion of the exterior will be executed with yellow bricks, the monotony of which will be effectively relieved by the introduction of red and black bricks and Bath stone dressings. The front elevation, facing Queen-street, will be pierced on the ground floor by four large two-light windows, with red Mansfield stone shafts and Bath stone decorations. The entrance, with a massive stone superstructure, will be in the centre of the building, and will be embellished by a carved stone panel over the head of the door. On the left will rise a well pointed gable terminating in a carved finial, and containing, as a chief feature, the large three-light window at the end of the lecture hall. On the right two decorative mullioned windows will rise with their gabled heads into the roof, and the wall heads will be finished with a red brick cornice. Right along the whole length of the building will be cut in mediæval letters: "Watford Public Library and School of Science and Art."

The design for the building, which it will be remembered was selected by the Committee with great pains from several others in public competition, is by Mr. Syme, of Messrs. Sedgwick and Son's office, Watford, and is acknowledged to be of great merit. The building is expected to cost about £2,300, and the contract has been taken by Mr. Miskin, of St. Alban's.

To give the occasion of laying the foundation-stone an additional and uncommon interest, the Committee took advantage of the Watford Lodge of Freemasons being about to lay the foundation-stone of their new hall, to ask them to lay that of the public library, as they did that of the Corn Exchange some years ago. Although the time to make the arrangements was very short, all the public bodies who could possibly take an interest in the building were invited to send deputations.

The different representatives assembled at the Corn Exchange, at two o'clock, and formed a procession, which started for the site of the library at half-past two. The procession was headed by the band of the 2nd Herts Rifles. Following were the Watford Company of Volunteers, the Watford and Bushey Volunteer Fire Brigade, and the representatives of the trades of Watford, including engineers, carpenters, masons, printers, painters, and wood turners. The Committee of the Library and the Directors of the Corn Exchange Company were almost all included in the Masonic body.

On the arrival of the procession at the site, where a space had been covered in at the north-west corner of the building, the foremost gentlemen arranged themselves on either side, and allowed the performers of the ceremony, with Bro. T. F. Halsey, to pass to the front of the stone. Many ladies and gentlemen were accommodated with raised seats on either side that they might be enabled to obtain a view. Unfortunately at the time a drizzling rain made out-door proceedings slightly uncomfortable.

The ceremony commenced by Mr. A. O. Sedgwick handing the plans to Bro. Halsey, who, having, inspected them, addressed the assembly in the following words:—Brethren, ladies and gentlemen, we are assembled here to-day for the purpose of laying the foundation-stone, in accordance with the rites and ceremonies of our ancient Craft, of the Watford Free Public Library, and after the custom on these occasions I take the opportunity of briefly expressing the satisfaction with which we assist in an object so worthy of our support. Through this and similar institutions it is placed in the power of the humblest in the land to obtain an amount of information which in former days was quite beyond their reach, and which must be of the utmost value to them in their daily life, and fit them more and more to use those talents which the Great Architect of the Universe has given them, to His honour and glory, and the welfare of their fellow-creatures and themselves. Now you often hear it said, when a man leaves school, or college, or enters upon the profession which he may be going to follow, that his education is completed; but depend upon it, it is no such thing. A man's education ceases or should cease only with his life. The oldest and best and wisest amongst us have still something that they may learn. In fact, the greater knowledge a man acquires the more he sees his own ignorance. And if that is true in the case of those who have received the blessing of a good education in early youth, it must be so in a far higher degree with our humbler brethren. From the very fact of their being obliged to earn their bread, they must of necessity receive only the most elementary instruction in their youth. I cannot help thinking that to such as these an institution of this nature must be a priceless boon. Here they will have access to books and information which they cannot otherwise obtain, and which must be of great service to them, and help them to get their living, by raising them more and more from the position of mere machines to that of intelligent and reasoning beings, and make them of increasing value to their employers, and render them better able to fight the battle of life and discharge those duties which they owe as citizens in this their native land. Time will not allow me to expatiate more on the advantages of this institution; but though I have, in the words I have said, alluded more especially to the humbler classes, yet the remarks I have made apply with equal force to all. There is no man, high or low, rich or poor, learned or unlearned, who may not derive some benefit from access to a well-chosen library. Therefore, I will conclude by expressing, on behalf of the brethren present and those assisting me to-day, our sincere hope that within this building, the foundation-stone of which we are about to lay, many may lay in themselves foundation stones of knowledge, and raise thereon vast superstructures of improvement and mental elevation, through which they may be rendered more useful to themselves and of benefit to all around them. I also trust that those who with so much spirit have promoted this institution may be rewarded by watching it for many years through a long career of prosperity and usefulness in this important town and neighbourhood.

The Treasurer, Mr. C. F. Hubert, then deposited the phial containing coins, newspapers, &c., in the cavity of the lower stone, and the Chaplain, the Rev. N. Price, offered up the following prayer:—"Almighty God, framers of the worlds, without whom our labour is in vain, vouchsafe to prosper the work of our hands, and grant that this building, begun in Thy name, may be happily completed, to the setting forth of Thy glory, and peace and harmony, prosperity and happiness of this town. May we here learn to cultivate and wisely use the good gifts of intellect which Thou hast given us, for our true improvement, the service of our fellow men, and the hastening of Thy kingdom. Bless and reward Thy servants who have given of their substance for the furtherance of this work, and preserve them ever, both in body and soul, through, &c."

The cement was then placed on the upper face of the bottom stone, and Bro. Halsey adjusted it with a trowel, after which the upper stone was lowered slowly, the band playing "Rule Britannia." Bro. Halsey then proved the just position and form of the stone by the plumb, level, and square, which were handed to him by the Junior and Senior Wardens and W.M. 404. He then gave the stone three knocks with the maul, and said: "I declare this stone to be well and truly laid." The cornucopia was next called for, and handed to Bro. Halsey, who strewed the corn over the stone saying, "I scatter the corn as an emblem of plenty. May the blessing of heaven be showered upon us, and may we enjoy the blessings of plenty." On pouring out the wine, he said, "I pour out this wine as an emblem of love and rejoicing. May we enjoy the blessings of divine truth, and may virtue flourish as the vine." The sprinkling of the oil was accompanied with these words, "I sprinkle this oil as an emblem of peace. May peace and prosperity, brotherly love and unanimity ever flourish within this building." The Chaplain then pronounced the benediction: "The blessing of God Almighty be upon this work, and remain with it for ever." The band here played the National Anthem.

The procession was then formed again, and proceeded in the same manner to the site of the Freemasons' Hall, which is at the back of the Essex Arms Hotel. The new building will consist of a hall and general room, to be used also by the proprietor of the hotel, about 40 feet by 24 feet, approached, as was the old hall, through an anteroom in the hotel, and also, by a new and commodious staircase and corridor, to be erected instead of the present staircase at the rear of the Corn Exchange. There will be lodge-rooms adjoining, exclusively for the use of the Freemasons, about 25 feet by 18 feet, with lobby for Tyler, lavatory closet, wine closet, and other conveniences. The hall and lodge-room are lofty and lighted with sunlights. The whole building is carried on brick piers and iron girders, without intervening columns, as was the case in the old building. The building is of the simplest description, both externally and internally, but it is hoped that the interior may eventually be suitably decorated, the design admitting of the hall and lodge-room being made very handsome. The architect is Mr. J. T. Christopher, of Watford, and the builder Mr. Miskin, of St. Alban's, who is also building the Public Library.

The foundation-stone is in the brick pier at the north-west corner, a few feet from the ground. A platform was erected, on which the Masons performing the ceremony stood. The ceremony was precisely similar to that already described. When Bro. Halsey had inspected the plans handed to him by Mr. Christopher, he gave the following address:—"Brethren, ladies and gentlemen, we have assisted in laying the foundation-stone of a public building, and we now have to provide a domicile for ourselves. It will be in the recollection of those present that the old hall, which stood somewhere about on this site where we are now standing, and in which we held our meetings for many years, was burnt down three or four years ago. Of course, various difficulties arose which have retarded the rebuilding of it up to the present time, but now I am glad to think that these difficulties have been all settled, and we are about to lay the foundation-stone of a building where we shall be able to celebrate our peculiar rites and ceremonies with more comfort than we have been able to do during the last three of four years. Some of you may feel curiosity, perhaps as to the nature of the rites and ceremonies which we profess, but I can only say that it is not in my power to gratify you fully on this occasion as to the nature of those mysteries. If you wish to make acquaintance with them, I say that any worthy man among you, who really joins us from no interested motives, will come among us and receive a hearty welcome, and we shall teach him all we know ourselves. But I may assure you in the words of an old song well known to us—

"There's nought but good to be understood
In a free and accepted Mason."

And the fundamental principle of our order must commend themselves to everyone. They are "Brotherly love, loyalty, and charity." I am afraid that I cannot extend the same invitation to the fair sex present; because we have it on record that there was once a fair lady who was, I was going to say, a brother of our craft (laughter), but I suppose I must say a sister. This lady was determined to find out what took place, and concealed herself in a clock, where she was discovered after the conclusion of the ceremonies, and as she had seen all, there was nothing for it but to admit her into the fraternity. I must, therefore, ask the ladies to accept her as their representatives. But I can assure you in the words of the same song to which I have alluded—

"No mortal can more the ladies adore,
Than a free and accepted Mason."

I, therefore, conclude now by wishing prosperity to this hall, which we are about to lay the foundation-stone of, and I cannot do better than conclude in the words of a brother mason whose name is well known in this land, and who has secured for himself a lasting name in the temple of fame. I mean Robert Burns, who wrote for the lodge to which he belonged—

"Within this dear mansion may wayward Contention
Or withered Envy ne'er enter;
May Secrecy round be the mystical bound,
And Brotherly Love be the centre."

The ceremony then proceeded with the Chaplain offering a prayer as follows:—"Almighty and eternal God, Architect and Great Ruler of the Universe, have respect unto the prayers of Thy servants who call upon Thee. Prosper the work which we this day begin, and enable us in due time to bring it to a happy conclusion. Here may we learn the things which belong to our perfecting. Here may true faith, the fear of God, and brotherly love remain, and every moral and social virtue cement and unite us in one brotherhood of peace, truth, and charity, through, &c."

The members of the Craft responded "So mote it be," and the interesting ceremony concluded as before.

At 5 o'clock, more than 50 of the gentlemen who assisted at the ceremonies dined in the Corn Exchange. The dinner was excellent and well served; it was supplied by Mr. Neary, of the Essex Arms Hotel, and Mr. Buck, confectioner. T. F. Halsey, Esq., presided, supported by Dr. Brett, Mr. J. Sedgwick, Dr. Iles, Mr. C. F. Hubbard, Mr. S. Camp, Rev. N. Price, Rev. B. J. Warren, Mr. C. Heaton, Mr. J. Benskin, Mr. J. Benskin, jun., Mr. H. C. Finch, Rev. G. Finch, Mr. A. O. Sedgwick, Mr. J. T. Christopher, Mr. G. Lambert, Mr. Marnham, Mr. W. H. Hubbard, Mr. W. R. Williams, Mr. J. Terry, Mr. G. H. Haydon, Mr. G. Mickley, Mr. A. Godson, Mr. William Cutbush, Mr. T. Wargrave, Mr. J. Hart, Mr. E. Hayward, Mr. W. Wilson, Mr. G. Henry, Mr. Syme, Mr. T. Bodimeade, Mr. Miskin, Mr. Pratt, and others.

Bros. G. T. Carter, John Hodges, and Theodore Distin, were engaged, and enlivened the proceedings by some songs excellently sung. The toast master was Mr. Turner of London.

On the withdrawal of the cloth, the Chairman proposed the "Queen and the Craft," which was received in the usual loyal manner observed by all assemblages of Freemasons. A similar reception was also accorded to the next on the list, viz., "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family."

Some other toasts having been proposed and responded to, the Chairman proposed "Success to the Watford Public Library and School of Science and Art," coupled with the name of Dr. Brett, the Chairman of the Committee, who responded in eloquent terms.

Bro. Lambert said, Mr. Chairman, brethren, and gentlemen, when I entered this room I had little idea that any toast would have been awarded to me, but I am delighted to accept that task, for I am willing to do anything that I possibly can for the good of this town, the Public Library, or the Watford Lodge. You have talked about debateable ground, and we have heard about science and art, but what is their progress attributable to but to the old Roman guilds laid down so well in the imperial city, and which pervaded this country and were laid down with most admirable laws by Julius Agricola? And what have these guilds resulted in? In the various academies—the academiæ. And call them what you will, I will sum them all up in one word—the lodge (loud cheers); for it is the fact—the school of Athens, with Plato for the philosopher, was nothing but the Freemasons' lodge. It is what the Freemasons' lodge ought to be. We ought to eschew everything bad and cling to that which is good. This is Freemasonry in the fullest extent. It is the casting to the wind all old women's fables and rubbish of that kind. Let superstition fly before us; stick to the truth, for in that you have pure unsullied Masonry—the Volume of the Sacred Law unfolded. It is on these terms and on these alone that I accept the toast and wish success and prosperity to the Watford Lodge and their new hall. I am sorry that the old hall was burnt down; but as the phoenix rose from its ashes, so we hope to have another hall, like another phoenix, rise upon the ashes of the old one. I call upon you, gentlemen, to rise and drink prosperity to the Watford Lodge of Freemasons, because in that must be centred and pervade everybody and everything which should have good attached to it. It is the adoration of the Most High, the volume of the Sacred Law unfolded, education spread wide, so that we should have no sectarian nonsense of any kind, and be able to preach that which we can perform. the law of lights and the prophets (cheers).

Bro. Steavenson (W.M.) said: Worshipful Past Master, brethren, and gentlemen, it is indeed a proud moment in which I rise to return my sincere thanks, both for myself and the lodge represented in me on this occasion. I am a very unworthy member of the Craft, but to you gentlemen who are not Masons I need not say that. But I have to return thanks for the very kind manner in which you have drunk prosperity to our new undertaking, the new hall we are about to inaugurate. Freemasonry is well known to ourselves, but to those who are not Freemasons I trust it will be known. It contains virtues which you are not perhaps aware of, but they are nothing but goodness. There is no trickery, nothing but what is good, in Masonry. I have myself reached the head of this lodge after a short apprenticeship, and I assure you it is, as I said before, the proudest moment of my life that I am in this position. I have known Watford all my life, though I am not a resident here, and therefore I can wish success to that institution, the Public Library, which has been so ably responded to by our brother on my right, Dr. Brett. I can wish prosperity with all my heart to any institution which can be of any service to Watford. I knew the town when I was five years old, and have therefore known it half a century, and, in consequence I can, with heartfelt sincerity say that I have an interest in Watford. I have, gentlemen, to thank you most sincerely for the honour you have done your brethren of the Watford Lodge by your presence here this day, and for the manner in which you have drunk to its prosperity.

Bro. J. Sedgwick said: Brethren and gentlemen, a very onerous duty has been cast upon me, but it is one of those duties which I feel to be a sincere pleasure; the only alloy in the purity of the metal is that I do not feel myself quite capable to do that justice to it which I feel it deserves; nevertheless, I have manned the yards, and am going into the battle. Having seen the way in which our Chairman, whose health I am going to propose (loud cheers), has performed his duties in the ceremonies which we have gone through to-day, I say, as an old Mason of forty years standing, I have never seen the like—certainly he could not be superseded. Therefore, my strongest feelings were aroused with regard to the first ceremony, and also in my capacity as a Mason, identified in the prosperity of that building which we last laid the foundation-stone of. My Brother Brett has to-day, as Chairman of the Committee, mentioned and set forth the particulars concerning the Library in a manner I do not think I could have done. I recollect that a gentleman came here a few years ago to advocate a public library, and he told us a wonderful fact that there was only about one man in thirty or forty, who could make a door unless he had a model as large as the door itself, in fact that he could not work to a scale. It was a fact that impressed itself very much on my mind at the time, and I was further impressed by the statement that there was not a mechanic in France or Germany who could not do it, because in those countries schools were provided in which they taught it. This gave me an interest in the matter, and I feel extremely gratified in seeing the foundation-stone of the Public Library laid, and in having such a gentleman as the Chairman to lay it. As regards Masonry, I am old enough to recollect the laying of the foundation-stone of the old Freemason's Hall that was burnt down. About the third of a century after that we laid the foundation-stone of the hall in which you are now assembled. Subsequently the old hall was burnt down, and that circumstance, probably, has led to our being here together at this time, and I am quite sure that all those whom I represent, the Corn Exchange Company and the Freemasons, feel a debt of gratitude to the Chairman for having this day consented to perform a ceremony which those who are not Masons must admire, and those who are Masons must appreciate the manner of. I also feel, that in having the opportunity of witnessing that ceremony, we have been exceedingly fortunate, as the Watford Lodge, in having Brother Halsey to lay the stone. This is not his mother lodge, but his foster-mother; his first lodge he has left and has become a brother of ours. (Cheers.) Mr. Sedgwick concluded by proposing the health of the Chairman.

The Chairman (who was received with loud cheers) said: Brethren and gentlemen, on their own merits modest men are dumb, and, therefore, you will not expect many words from me in response to this toast. I was called upon by the undivided voice of the lodge to which I belong to lay the foundation-stone. In the ordinary course of things such a duty as this would devolve upon the Grand Master of the Province. Unfortunately, we have no Grand Master in this province; the brother who has so well and so worthily filled that position (hear, hear) for, I believe forty or fifty years, Bro. Stuart, of Aldenham Abbey, after sticking to his post to the last, has recently been compelled, I believe from failing health, to retire from that post, and no successor has been appointed. The brethren therefore met and chose me to lay the stone; why, I do not know, for I feel that some older and more experienced brother would have performed that duty in a much better and more efficient manner. The brethren, having called upon me, I had no alternative but to respond to the call, and I can only say that I have felt the greatest satisfaction to-day with the reception given me, and only hope that I have carried out the duties placed upon me, if not with satisfaction to you—for I think that it might have been done much better—yet so as not merit your disapprobation. (Cheers.)

Several other toasts were given and responded to, comprising, "The Architects;" "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with the name of Bro. Terry, Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, who responded; "The Local Board of Health;" and "The Ladies," which latter toast brought to a conclusion what must be considered as a very happy as well as profitable meeting.

We have pleasure in stating that Mr. G. A. Sala is restored to health, and is again engaged in his ordinary literary and journalistic pursuits,

In the absence of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, the chair was taken by W. Bro. Sheriff Perkins, P. Prov. S. W. Hants and Isle of Wight. Bro. Frederick Binckes, the Secretary of the Institution, having introduced Bro. Sheriff Perkins, as President of the meeting, remarking that his friend Bro. Perkins had made leisure from his multifarious duties to give them the benefit of his presence on this occasion. They all knew and congratulated Bro. Perkins upon the distinguished position he had attained in the first city in the world—and the estimation in which he was held by his fellow-citizens—and it was a source of satisfaction to know also that he was an old Mason, one who had attained high honours in the Craft, his appreciation of those honours being proved by his attendance here to-day. (Cheers).

Bro. Sheriff Perkins then presented the prizes to the boys, as follows:—

The boys then sang the following songs:—"God Save the Prince of Wales," "Dawn of Day," "Spring, Spring," "Children's Cheers," "See the Chariot," &c.

The following recitations and dialogues were given:—English dialogue, "Julius Caesar," Act 4, Sc. 3, Hopwood and Atkinson; German recitation "Das Sirgesfast," Atkinson; Latin Eclogue, Warner and Bowles; French dialogue, "Cinna et Auguste," Hopwood and Warner; English recitation "Charge of Balaclava," Lewis Smith.

At the conclusion of the distribution, Bro. Perkins said: Ladies and gentlemen, you will permit me first to address myself to the pupils of this school, and more especially to those who, having been the most successful in their studies, have been the recipients of the magnificent prizes which I have just distributed. It is with infinite pleasure I have attended here for that purpose, and that pleasure is considerably enhanced because I see around me the evidence of life and vitality. (Cheers.) I congratulate you on the success you have gained to-day, and I hope that success, and the prizes it has won, will be regarded as a substantial reward for the exertions you have used, and serve as a stimulus to others—not so fortunate to-day—to do all in their power to reach the top of the same ladder of proficiency. I look upon education as the grandest thing in life—nothing can equal it, nothing can approach it; secure it with all the opportunities you have, and you secure a boon of inestimable value—an advantage that will be priceless under all circumstances; to neglect it will be the greatest sorrow of your lives. (Applause.) I am glad to see that in this school there is something taught in addition to the three R's; you have mathematics, modern languages, and the classics. With regard to the latter, I know opinions differ; but my advice is, without giving too much time to their cultivation, don't, by any means, ignore them; and if—as I presume at times must be the case—you find a shining light amongst the boys, let provision be made for his ultimately entering himself at Oxford or Cambridge. (Loud cheers.) I am very glad to hear that the laws of the institution now permit the pupils to be retained until they arrive at the age of sixteen. The extension of a year is, in my opinion, most valuable, and in granting it, a proper and prudent course has been adopted. From fourteen to sixteen a boy begins himself to appreciate the value of education, and I shall look for considerable results from the change so wisely made. I am here to-day representing the Lord Mayor, whose absence I very much regret. That absence is occasioned by the discharge of a similar duty elsewhere—incumbent upon him. It was his intention to be here, and I wish he were in my place, because, you know, one Lord Mayor is worth two Sheriffs! The Lord Mayor is not a member of our Order, but he is as true a Mason at heart as I am, and we are very proud of him in the City. When I return there, I shall tell him what a treat he has lost, and what pleasure I have had in being here. I am proud of being a Mason, and that pride is increased at witnessing what I have seen to-day. You all ought to be proud of this Institution. My visit here—the first I have paid—has afforded me intense gratification. Every hall, every dormitory, every corridor, every room, gives evidence of health and cleanliness. The love of the brotherhood is marvellous, and even the ladies will acknowledge that there is something in Masonry when they see so many boys well clothed and cared for, healthy, and acquiring an education that will enable them to take their part in life as good and useful men. I see boys from my own town,—one the son of an esteemed friend whom I knew intimately when enjoying wealth, position, and influence. Evil days came—losses, death; and do you think I can be unmoved when I see the son of my departed friend receiving here paternal protection, and all the advantages which this noble institution affords to the children of the unfortunate members of our Order! I thank you, boys, ladies, and brethren for the opportunity given me of being here to distribute these prizes. I shall regard this as a red letter day in my existence, the recollection of which I shall ever cherish—It will be one of my greatest delights to remember I was here on such an occasion. (Loud and continued applause.)

Bro. Head, V.P., rose and said: Ladies and gentlemen: I am about to make a proposition which you will receive with great pleasure. We have seen to-day the great kindness and great ability that have been shown by the Sheriff of London. We are proud to have him here; we find him a true brother. (Cheers.) I ask you now to pass a vote of thanks to Bro. Perkins for his kindness in coming here, and for the very handsome way in which he has conducted this meeting. (Cheers.)

Bro. Rosenthal, V.P., seconded the proposition, which was put and carried by acclamation.

Bro. Sheriff Perkins, in responding, said: Ladies and gentlemen, and boys of this home; I thank you for your kindness. All I can say is, as a Mason, I am delighted to be able to do something towards the promotion of its welfare. (Cheers.)

The boys then gave three cheers for Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. They then sung the National Anthem, which brought the meeting to a close.

The ladies and gentlemen adjourned to the gymnasium, where a cold collation was served, which gave great satisfaction.

On the withdrawal of the cloth, Bro. Sheriff Perkins proposed the following toasts.—“The Health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen;” “His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G.,” “The Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family.”

Bro. the Rev. Dr. Cox, said: Ladies and gentlemen, though we regret the absence of the Lord Mayor, Bro. Perkins, I am happy to say is present. He loves to take part in every good cause, and is the right man in the right place. (Cheers.) I have not known a brother who has done such credit to himself as our brother has to-day; we are proud to have him here. (Cheers.) I have the greatest pleasure in proposing a toast to the health of the Chairman.

Bro. Sheriff Perkins in responding said: I thank you all for the kind manner in which you have received me. It has been a great pleasure to me to come among you; I am gratified beyond expression at being able to do something for such a noble Institution as this. How comforting it is to think that such a home is established and thrown open for the relief of the sons of the distressed members of our Order. See what Masonry has done to relieve the poor, the widow, and the orphan! (Cheers.) I speak with thankfulness that I am a Mason. I should think every lady would be anxious that her husband should be a Mason. Masonry will have a tendency to elevate his thoughts, it will make him a better man, therefore, ladies and brethren, permit me to thank you for allowing me to be present, and to preside here. I shall take back with me such recollections that I shall never forget. (Cheers.)

Bro. Sheriff Perkins then proposed “Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.” He said: I have endeavoured to picture to you this grand school, governed by a Master and Matron, and whose heart and soul are in the work, whose delight is to see such an Institution as this flourish. If Masonry is extending, and fortune is uncertain, men who are rich to-day may be poor to-morrow, and thus forced to seek for the assistance of this school, in which if, the intentions of its managers are carried out, will ere long be received a large increase in the number of boys we see to-day. We know not what a day will bring forth. Therefore all who have money in their pockets, who have love for their brotherhood, ought to help this good cause. I am glad to learn that the Institution is free from debt. You have a beautiful building, situated in a lovely part of the country. See what Masonry can do for the benefit of humanity. I challenge the world to find any other society that has done so much as Masonry has. (Cheers.) Nothing can touch us for our generosity to our poorer brethren, and we have to reason to close our eyes to the fact. We trust that the boys in this Institution will rise to be great men of the future. (Cheers.) I couple with this the toast “Health of our good Bro. Binckes.” (Cheers.) I look upon him as one who mainly brought this Institution into existence. He never fails, always looking forward; progress is his motto. (Cheers.) Masonry cannot afford to lose sight of such a man who has done so much. (Cheers.)

Bro. Plucknett begged permission to interpose for a few moments between the toast just given and the response. There was no one occupying a similar position for whom he had a greater regard than for Bro. Binckes. He had witnessed with much pleasure and more delight his unwearied exertions on behalf of this noble Institution, and it was with feelings of unalloyed gratification that he had taken the active part he had in the organisation from which had resulted the testimonial to be presented to Bro. Binckes that day. He considered Bro. Binckes worthy of all the honour they could do him, and there was no interference with, or derogation from, the honour they wished to do him, in deciding that the testimonial should take the substantial and practical form in which it would be presented. He would hand to the Chairman a silver salver, with a purse, representing the amount contributed by many of those who had watched Bro. Binckes' labours with interest and anxiety, and ask him, in the name and on behalf of the committee, to hand them to Bro. Binckes, accompanied with their sterling and hearty good wishes for health, happiness, and prosperity through many long years. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. Sheriff Perkins said:—Ladies and Gentlemen, I have known Bro. Binckes for many years but little thought that the honour of presenting him with this silver salver, accompanied by a thousand guineas would be conferred on me. (Cheers.) This testimonial has been obtained through the kind efforts of friends, privately, unknown to the world. Bro. Binckes, and the boys of the Masonic School is a proverb in the country; they live together, they look on him as a father. His heart and soul are in the Institution, we are very proud of him, I sincerely hope, through the kind blessings of Providence, he may be spared to give this institution the benefit of his good judgement and advice. Bro. Binckes, as a token of your friends' esteem, I hand you this silver salver with a purse of one thousand guineas, and in the name of the subscribers I wish you God speed. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. Binckes rose amidst loud cheers and said, Bro. Sheriff Perkins, Bro. Plucknett, Ladies and Gentlemen, Brethren and Pupils of this Institution. In rising on the present occasion I really feel inadequate to find words to express my gratitude for the handsome testimonial now presented to me, and for the too flattering and complimentary addresses by which that presentation has been accompanied, embodying as they do your appreciation of my Masonic work. Many of us are tempted to describe this or that event as the most important of our lives, but certainly I think I may well be pardoned if I describe this occurrence as at once the happiest and the most trying in my existence, While desirous of not trespassing unduly upon your patience, I trust I may be pardoned on so exceptional an occasion, in asking you to take a retrospect of the fortunes of this Institution, so that you may compare—or rather contrast—what it was with what it is. Founded in 1798, it is true it maintained a name, and was productive of much good; but down to 1855 it had no local habitation. In that year we purchased this freehold property, and within the mansion then standing we received 25 of the 70 boys then on the Institution. This showed a wonderful change since 1850, in which year, a committee specially appointed to consider the question, reported their recommendation “that a building or establishment for the boys should not be entertained.” From the date mentioned (1855) the Institution has grown. In 1861 I had the honour of being elected its Secretary. In 1865 the present building was opened. To-day you see what it is—admirably fitted and provided for the accommodation of the 136 boys within its walls, to be increased in August by the admission of 12 additional; and I am delighted to be able to inform you that 28 more boys will be admitted during the next year, the construction of new dormitories having been ordered at an outlay of, say, £1,800. These are substantial results of labour, and I do not hesitate to say I feel proud in knowing that during the 12 years I have filled my present position, £90,000 have been received for the purposes of this Institution. (Loud cheers.) This proves that something has been done. A great work had to be accomplished, and it had to be done in a short time. For myself, I have worked from the first in faith; I shall continue to work in faith—that is, in firm reliance on our widely extended Craft for support. In all that has been done, however, let me at once say, that I claim no other merit than that of having been the means of inducing a large number of friends to come to our assistance. I look round this room and see with pride and gratification the familiar faces of many—some from long distances—who have ever been for most with their purses and advice. Amongst them I am pleased to notice my friend Bro. John Symonds, with whom, in earlier days, I was often associated in the work of Masonic Charity in this and other spheres. To these, and other good friends, I throw back all the honour for their generosity, who have never been weary in well doing. On the policy involved in all this I am well aware that differences of opinion have existed, and still exist; I am, however, unshaken in my belief that our policy has been, and is, the true and proper policy. Masonry cannot, must not, and shall not, if I can in any way help it, be behind in ministering to the legitimate wants and needs of the increasing number of its members who are rudely turned from affluence to poverty. Equally aware am I, with reference to the kind testimony of appreciation of my poor services, that opinions widely differ, and that in some quarters it is regarded as altogether undeserved. To them who thus feel I would simply say “the less I deserve the more merit in your bounty,” while to those who have so plainly expressed their favourable opinion I can only say how deeply I value this handsome and substantial mark of approval, as I feel that “I shall little grace my cause in speaking for myself.” To Bros. Winn, Plucknett, and Edward Cox, I must beg them publicly to be allowed to express my sense of obligation which is deeper than any words I can now find will allow me to give utterance to. The recollections of this day will for ever be vividly cherished by me,—the events of the day must linger in a grateful memory—and I can only assure you that the manifestation of favour extended to day, will stimulate me with a desire. I only hope I may have the strength, to work with greater vigour in the future. Again and again, I thank you one and all.

The boys then gave three cheers for Bro. Binckes.

“The Health of the Ladies” was then proposed by Bro. Head, and responded to in a very able manner, by Bro. Loveridge.

This brought the afternoon's proceedings to a close, after which the company proceeded to the lawn, when dancing, croquet, bowling, and other amusements were indulged in. Great praise is due to the Assistant Masters, who rendered valuable aid throughout the day.

At 8 p.m., the dining hall was opened as a ball room and presented a most brilliant appearance. Dancing was kept up to the strains of the 33rd Middlesex Volunteers, under the leadership of Mr. George Ison.

The entertainment passed off with the greatest satisfaction to all present.

During the afternoon Bro. Haigh succeeded in producing several excellent photographs of the School, various groups of visitors, and boys to whom prizes had been given. These will tend not only to establish him in the first rank as an artist in his profession, but they will also be cherished as interesting souvenirs of the memorable day.

“ON GUARD!”—In these days of cheap and rapid travelling epidemics are conveyed from country to country, with marvellous celerity. With cholera east and west, prudence forbids impurity, irregularity and dependency. Each of these provocatives of this dire disease, may be overcome without danger, by Holloway's remedies, provided they be resorted to without delay, the moment listlessness, looseness, feverishness, or pain discovers disordered action. The directions will enable the least cultivated to treat successfully and subdue completely these warning symptoms of cholera. When confidence in Holloway's preparations is once established, each believer in their virtues will humanely recommend them to his acquaintances, that none may foolishly harbour hostile reinforcements within his own person.—ADVT.

MASONIC HISTORIANS. No. V.

By BRO. WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

BRO. DAVID MURRAY LYON.

In reviewing a work of the magnitude and importance of Bro. Lyon's “History of the Lodge of Edinburgh from A.D. 1599,” we are aware that our attempt will only be considered as preliminary to a more careful examination and exhaustive review, to be undertaken and completed by several brethren well versed in such studies, and familiar with our old records. Our friend D. Murray Lyon has, long since, become well known to all Masonic students, wherever located, for his diligence and faithfulness in bringing to light minutes of great value previously unnoticed; and especially has his “History of Mother Kilwinning Lodge” caused his name to be respected throughout the Masonic world. All past efforts, however, necessarily pales before his present enterprise, which is not only his magnum opus, but, as a historical account of the rise and progress of Freemasonry in Scotland, is the most valuable contribution to our Masonic literature that has been made during this or former centuries. Based as it is upon the oldest lodge records in existence (hitherto unpublished), and profusely illustrated with engravings, embracing, not only portraits of distinguished Craftsmen, but facsimiles of charters, statutes, marks, commissions, seals, and “old charges,” dating from the sixteenth century, such a history of the Society of the Free and Accepted Masons cannot fail to take its place as a standard work, without which no Masonic library can be complete.

In his desire to present a history to the fraternity, worthy of the ancient lodge he chiefly describes, Bro. Lyon has been ably seconded by the publishers, Messrs. Blackwood and Sons, Edinburgh, who may justly be proud of their part in the publication, for the typographical excellence of the work cannot fail to be noticed and appreciated by all admirers of beautifully printed books; and we are certain that the members of the Lodge of Edinburgh generally, and our excellent Bro. William Officer in particular, will warmly express their approval of the splendid volume issued by that great firm.

Bro. Lyon, in commencing his history, informs us that the Scots, Masonically, are less ambitious than the English; for, while their southern neighbours claim that the Fraternity was organised at York, A.D. 926, “Scottish Freemasons are content to trace their descent from the builders of the abbeys of Holyrood, Kelso, Melrose, and Kilwinning, the cathedral of Glasgow, and other ecclesiastical fabrics of the 12th and 13th centuries.” As a matter of fact, however, the ambition of our past historians has led them far beyond the tenth century, for nothing short of Adam as the first Grand Master appears to have limited their extensive ideas respecting the antiquity of Freemasonry.

In alluding to the appointment of King James I. as Grand Master, and other similar apocryphal assertions, Bro. Lyon tells us there are no such records. “Those of Mary's chapel, the oldest extant, contain nothing upon which such a statement could be founded, except the evidence they give of the existence in the end of the sixteenth century of the office of Principall Warden and Chief Maister of Maissonis, for the purpose of regulating the affairs of Lodges . . . and the presumption is that the Grand Master-Mason of James I. is a purely fabulous personage.” In that belief we think all intelligent readers will concur; and they, with us, must regret that such absurd notions were ever received as authentic by a too credulous brotherhood.

Laurie is proved to be (what we have often before noticed) an inaccurate historian, and, with respect to early Freemasonry in Scotland, absolutely untrustworthy. It is refreshing to turn from his crude history to a work like Lyon's, for in the latter one feels he is treading on solid ground, and supported on every hand by unquestionable evidence.

Bro. Lyon will not allow Patrick Copland's election as Warden and Justice within the counties of Aberdeen, Banff, and Kincardine, and subsequent ratification by the King (James VI.) to be an "evidence of the antiquity of speculative Masonry, of the early admission into lodges of persons unconnected with the building fraternity, or of the sovereign's interference with Craftsmen in their choice of office bearers, either in lodges or incorporations." We cannot quite follow our brother in this belief. Certainly the appointment of Copland does not prove him to have been a Master Mason; but we must not forget that the grant, dated 25th September, 1590, provides for the gentleman exercising the office of Warden, "also frieli in all respectis as ony uther Wardane of the said Crafte within this realme dois or may do." Hence it appears to us a most likely occurrence for Sir Patrick Copland to have been an accepted as well as speculative Mason, seeing also that "old charges" prior to that period allude to similar initiations.

In chapter 2nd we are informed as to the number and character of the volumes of records of the Lodge of Edinburgh.

1 vol., thin folio, 72 leaves. 1598 to 1686. (The "Vardene booke.")
2 vol., folio, bound in vellum. 1687 to 1761. (Has valuable list of members.)

3 vol., 1761 to 1781 } List of members from 4 vol., 1781 to 1814 } 1781 commenced in vol. 3, and continued in next vol. to 1814.

5 vol., 1814 to 1844 } A hiatus in the years
6 vol., 1844 to 1869 } 1816-18, 1832-33, and 1834-35 is explained subsequently.

7 vol. contains the subsequent transactions.

The preservation of these books is certainly creditable to the brethren of the lodge, and must be a source of commendable pride to the present members, especially when so many other old lodges have lost all their valuable records, or, like the Grand Lodge of Scotland, are minus several years of minutes. The Lodge of Edinburgh Records are unequalled in importance and antiquity, hence their perusal by all anxious to be informed of the customs of our ancient brethren is most desirable. Without particularising the several chapters, we may state that the "Schaw Statutes of 1598" are carefully considered in a series of most able and extensive researches and their application not only to the Lodge of Edinburgh, but to all the other old lodges is noted, and compared with the records. The chapter respecting the "trial of skill in his Craft," the production of an "essay-piece," and the tutors for the apprentices is full of interest, as also those which have special reference to the office of Master Mason and its privileges.

Bro. Lyon is of the opinion that "the absence from the Kilwinning and Mary's Chapel archives of any certification of a Craftman's ability to serve the lieges in the station of a Master Mason, strengthens the supposition that lodges did not, in the seventeenth century, possess the power of raising Fellow Crafts to the position of Masters in Operative Masonry."

We quite concur in this opinion, and wonder the subject has not received attention before. So far as our memory serves us, we believe it is the first time such a custom has been alluded to, but now that Bro. Lyon has, in his clear style, exhibited the proof that the prescription of a Master Mason's essay really lay with the incorporation, we can see plenty of confirmatory evidence therefor, when the lodges were in connection with incorporations.

We believe however that in the instance of the Aberdeen Lodge the "Essays" when presented by vote of the members attending at the ordinary meetings, and we know for a fact such was the custom during the last century in that old lodge, which possesses records from 1670. We are also informed in this chapter that "applications from parties desirous of being admitted to the privileges of Master Masons within the burghs of Edinburgh and Leith required to be accompanied by evidence of their having been passed as Fellow Crafts by the Lodge of Edinburgh."

This and similar regulations during the sixteenth century, at once explains why the monopoly of the Mason-trade in Edinburgh was in the hands of this ancient lodge.

That Masonic initiation was formerly of a very simple character is evidenced by the fact "that a century after the promulgation of the Schaw Statutes the Mason word was wont occasionally to be imparted by individual brethren in a ceremony extemporised according to the ability of the initiator. The word is the only secret that is ever alluded to in the minutes of Mary's Chapel, or in those of Kilwinning, Atchesan-Haven, or Dunblane, or any other that we have examined, of a date prior to the erection of the Grand Lodge."

This curious circumstance, mentioned by Bro. Lyon, would appear to be peculiar to Scotland, for we have several allusions to "Signs" prior to the institution of the Grand Lodge of England A.D. 1717, and therefore, simple as the ceremony of initiation may have been in North Britain, evidently in England something more than the "Mason's Word" was communicated to entrants.

A little farther on in the fourth chapter however, we find that the "Secrets of the Mason Word" is referred to in the minute-book of the Lodge of Dunblane, and we also remember that in a series of valuable articles in the Freemason's Magazine, the Prov. Grand Secretary of Selkirkshire stated that the word was accompanied with a grip at Haughfoot Lodge in 1707. A still more important statement is made by Bro. Lyon, viz.:—"Secret modes of recognition among other than Masonic Craftsmen are traceable through several generations. The 'Squaremen Word' was given in conclaves of journeymen and apprentice* wrights, slaters, &c., in a ceremony in which the aspirant was blindfolded and otherwise 'prepared,' he was sworn to secrecy, had word, grip, and sign communicated to him, and was afterwards invested with a leather apron . . . The entrance to the apartment was guarded, and all who passed had to give the grip . . . Like the Masons, the Squaremen admitted non-operatives. Squaremen were represented in the St. Clair Charter of 1628."

We should feel much indebted to our excellent brother, if he would favour us through the columns of The Freemason with the date, and a transcript of the "Squaremen Records" in which the foregoing particulars occur.

We have often seen it stated that the Freemasons alone had signs, grips and words, before the last century, and hence the fact of the "Wrights and Slaters" being the conservators of "word, grip, and sign" in their secret meetings would certainly prove the distinction claimed for the Mason Craft to be an erroneous one.

Respecting the question of Masonic degrees, Bro. D. Murray Lyon is particularly clear and emphatic in asserting that "in primitive times there were no secrets communicated by lodges to either Fellows of Craft or Masters that were not known to apprentices." About the middle of the seventeenth century apprentices actually filled the offices of the Deacon and Warden in the Lodge of Kilwinning, and in 1693 that old lodge recognised "passing" simply as an "honour and dignity."

We thoroughly believe the foregoing, and also support the following happy illustration of the fact. "If the communication by Mason lodges of secret words or signs constituted a degree—a term of modern application to the esoteric observances of the Masonic body—then there was, under the purely operative regime only one known to Scotch lodges,—viz. that in which, under an oath, apprentices obtained a knowledge of the Mason word and all that was implied in the expression, and that this was the germ whence has sprung Symbolical Masonry, is rendered more than probable by the traces which have been left upon the more ancient four lodge records (especially those of Mary's Chapel) of the gradual introduction, during the seventeenth and the first quarter of the eighteenth century, of that element in lodge membership which at first modified, and afterwards annihilated the original constitution of these ancient courts of operative Masonry."

The earliest minute of the Lodge of Edinburgh (Mary's Chapel) records its deliverance on a breach of the statute against the employment of a "cowane."

Evidently the term meant then, as it did in later years, an "uninitiated craftsmen," or a mason "without the word" and not as some have fancied merely "eavesdroppers, or listeners outside the lodge."

* Carpenters:

We should like to glance at the various resolutions passed by the Lodge of Edinburgh in early days, respecting operative Masons and Masonry, but we must forbear, especially as the curious regulations and minutes are so numerous and valuable that one would be embarrassed in making a selection. Their value, however, to archaeological Freemasons cannot well be over-estimated.

The Lodge of Edinburgh (we are told) seems, for "120 years from the revivification of the Scotch Lodges in Schaw's time, to have existed chiefly as an auxiliary to the Masonic section of the Incorporation of Mary's Chapel."

It appears to have been the custom in the early experience of the Lodge of Edinburgh, (and so of all the Scottish Lodges) to "initiate notaries with a view to their acting as lodge Clerks" It is well to note that the Clerk of the Lodge of Edinburgh (Bro. Robert Alison, Writer), initiated and elected on St. John's day 1709 was also elected Clerk to the Grand Lodge of Scotland on its institution in 1736, without however resigning his former office, for his connection with that lodge terminated only with his decease in 1752.

Though we agree with Bro. Lyon that "Mr. Allison held the office during what may be called the transition period of the lodge's history, and by the guarded style in which he recorded its transactions has contributed to veil in a hitherto impenetrable secrecy details of the most important epoch in the history of Scottish Freemasonry," yet we think no intelligent brother could read the records presented in the history of the Lodge of Edinburgh from the sixteenth century to the institution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland 1736 without being struck with the gradual progress of the speculative element, and that the alterations or additions known as the "Revival period" were more of the character of slow transitions from the operative to the speculative experience of Freemasonry, rather than a violent and radical change, or an entirely new creation. In reality the Freemasonry after 1736 in Scotland was virtually a continuation of that which previously existed as respects the esoteric customs, and a combination of the old "signs, words, and grips" with others of a more elaborate style, according to the evidence of these ancient minutes. We think our co-labourers Bros. the Rev. A.F.A. Woodford and D. Murray Lyon, will support us in this view.

The admission of Elias Ashmole in 1646 is shown not to be the first instance of the initiation of a non-operative, for John Boswell, Esq., the Laird of Auchinlech, was present at one of the lodge meetings of Mary's Chapel as early as A.D. 1600.

In chapter viii. are given the celebrate St. Clair Charters of 1600 and 1628 (circa) and their history is sketched by a masterly hand, indeed we know not where else such interesting particulars are obtainable, their elucidation and collation being one of Bro. Lyon's most important works.

The next chapter, on craftsmen's marks, deserves a most careful perusal.

In chapter xi. there is much that requires consideration, especially the excerpts of minutes from 1634, for "they afford authentic instances of Speculative Masons having been admitted to the fellowship of the Lodge of Edinburgh 12 years prior to the reception of Colonel Mainwaring and Elias Ashmole in the Lodge of Warrington, and 38 years before the date at which the presence of gentlemen Masons is first described in the Lodge of Kilwinning by the election of Lord Cassilles to the Deaconship." Surely this statement sufficiently demonstrates the value of the Records of the Lodge of Edinburgh, and how pleased we should be that they are at last published.]

A BOON TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD.—Boots, with the celebrated wire-quilted soles, wearing twice as long as ordinary leather, for all ages; and children's boots with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

Original Correspondence.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE AND THE ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE.

As a loyal member of both bodies I cannot but express my great regret at the tone of Sir Patrick Colquhoun's letter, published recently in your columns. I have the very highest regard for the English Chancellor of the Order of the Temple, and a full appreciation of his great abilities; I believe, as I have before stated in another place, that the Order is greatly indebted to him for its present unexampled pitch of prosperity; and yet, nevertheless, I am constrained to say that I believe most of the members of our chivalric Order will share with me in expressing our profound regret that Sir Patrick should have penned the letter to our American brother, which appeared in your leader of the 14th June. At the same time, I deprecate the caustic remarks you make on the said letter, inasmuch as I fully believe it was never intended to be published.

Sir Patrick, like myself, is a member of the Ancient and Accepted Rite; and I had the honour of receiving the 31° at the hands of our venerable and esteemed Illustrious Bro. Vigne, the Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander 33° Ancient and Accepted Rite, on the same day with the Chancellor.

He, however, was afterwards distinguished by being elected to the 32°, and I rejoiced, with many others, doubtless, in the selection, made with their usual wisdom, by the members of the Supreme Council.

I therefore was quite unprepared to see an attack made by him upon the Supreme Council, which is in my opinion a perfectly legitimate body, and bound to us as Templars, together with the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters under the tripartite treaty. It is just possible that some of the leaders of the Ancient and Accepted Rite may have been secretly antagonistic, if not openly hostile, to the late changes in the government and constitution of the Order of the Temple and so brought down upon themselves the righteous indignation of the English Chancellor of the Order.

I do not say that this is so, as I do not profess to be behind the scenes, but I do say that it would be better if all the high degrees and Chivalric Orders could work harmoniously together. A policy of conciliation and mutual forbearance is the true policy, I am sure, and at all events it has the merit of being thoroughly Masonic; and should therefore recommend itself to all those who, like myself, are enthusiastic Freemasons (whether of high or low degree), who thoroughly believe in the "Hautes Grades," and yet confess themselves as good Craft Masons.

I do not like to impute motives, however, and I am sure that Sir Patrick Colquhoun has been singlehearted and unselfish in promoting the interests of the Order of the Temple. I know that when the Convent General was formed he refused a very high office, and declined to be made a Knight Grand Cross, so that men could not say he had worked for his own ends.

The Supreme Council, in my humble opinion, took a very wise step in forming themselves into a company, and I like your correspondent "J.E.C.," object to the idea that there is necessarily any trading in degrees, as suggested by Sir Patrick.

The formation of the Company no doubt established the legality of the A. and A. Rite, which might possibly have been objected to before, as of foreign origin, resting its claims upon a Charter from the Supreme Council of the S. J. United States; but whilst giving every credit to "J.E.C." for his able letter, I must protest against his attempt to prove the United Orders an illegal organization.

The fact is a great deal of nonsense has been talked of late about the Templars, and many brethren who know no more about the Order than I do of Chinese, have kindly constituted themselves censors and critics where they should have been content to observe the motto of the Craft "Audi, Vide, Tace."

Bro. Hodges, for example, in your issue of May 24, knows so little of the high degrees that he speaks of Bro. Yarker as a member of the 33°, whereas that erratic gentleman is an ostracised member of the 18°, and no more entitled to the affix 33° than I am. It is a pity brethren should rush into print only to betray their ignorance. As I have said before, the Order of Constantine occupied yesterday the position the Order of the Temple does to-day, so far as change of title is concerned, and it is simply nonsense to say that the mere abolition of the title "Masonic" makes us an illegal body. Some errors occurred in my letter of the 31st May, but I dare say your readers would follow my meaning. I there reminded them that our learned and distinguished Bro. Hughan once utterly repudiated Bro. Yarker's assertions that there were documents in existence showing that the Grand Lodge of all England at York recognised the Knight Templar degree prior to 1780, but Bro. H. has since admitted that he was wrong, and I merely mention this to show that the best of us are mistaken sometimes, and the dictum of such good Masonic students as Bro. Hughan cannot always be accepted as conclusive. In The Freemason of June 7, Bro. Woodworth asks me to prove my statement that Masonry is still the vital essence of the United Orders. He says that under the the old working the connecting link was "extremely slight." He signs himself P.K., (whatever that may mean), and, no doubt, is well instructed in Craft Masonry; but he certainly knows very little of Templar history or the Templar degree, or he would not have made that statement.

As to the new Ritual, I can only say that, as one of the Ritual Commissioners, I believe I am betraying no confidence when I state that the aim of the Commissioners will be to abide by the ancient landmarks as much as possible, and to return to the old chivalric secreta receptis, giving up only what is manifestly modern and incongruous. As to the "grand old Order" (by the way, Craft Masonry was never called an order, but a society) and its religious toleration, surely Bro. Woodworth knows that its toleration dates from 1717, and that in the old days Masons were Roman Catholics, and consequently Trinitarians. The history of the Templars and the high degrees generally has yet to be written. I published, last year, a poem which indicated that the Templar degree was known in England about 1720.

The late Dr. Leeson, had documents in his possession, I believe which proved the existence of the Kadosh degree at that date. Preston says that the Duke of Cumberland was made a Mason in 1768, whereas I have seen documents in the possession of my learned Bro. W. H. Bowden, of Bristol showing that the Duke was at the head of certain high degrees in 1763. So much for Masonic history. The Baldwin Encampment or Preceptory of Bristol is in possession of certain degrees more or less intimately connected with those given by the Ancient and Accepted Rite—Knights Rosa-Crucis, Knights of the Ninth Arch, Kilwinning, &c., but which the Templars of Bristol got from the Grand Orient of France, so late only as 1836, nine or ten years prior to the establishment of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in this country—and no doubt other encampments formerly had possession of some of these degrees. This being so I do think that now the Ancient and Accepted Rite is firmly established in this country, and under a legal basis, it would be well if the Templars would restrict themselves entirely to the Templar and Knight of Malta degrees, and leave the others to the more legitimate authority of the Supreme Council.

I hope the day may be far distant however when to be thoroughly loyal to the Order of the Temple one must be necessarily antagonistic to the Ancient and Accepted Rite.

CHARITY JEWEL.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. Terry, the Secretary of the Masonic Benevolent Institution, has reminded me that, in June, 1869, the Board of General Purposes recommended to the M.W. the Grand Master that the privilege of wearing the Charity Jewel be granted to any brother serving any two of the three charities, and that the recommendation was approved and has been acted upon since that date; and, as Bro. Terry is of opinion that my previous statement—that the Charity Jewel was only presented to those brethren who had served the Stewardship of the Boys' and Girls' Institutions—may do his Institution harm, I have very great pleasure, if you will allow me, in correcting my former statement, and thus making it known that any brother on serving the Stewardship of any two of these charities, has the privilege of wearing the Charity Jewel, with, of course, a clasp for the third and for any further Stewardship.

I am, yours fraternally,

MAGNUS OHREN, P.M.

ROYAL ARK MARINERS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

On the 14th June you published a letter from Bro. Morton Edwards, P.G.C. Royal Ark Mariners, stating that the affairs of that degree were to be in future superintended by a council, under the authority of the Mark Grand Lodge. Can you now inform me who the members of that Ark Council are, and what status they are to have under the Grand Mark Lodge?

Is it now competent for the officers of the defunct Ark Grand Lodge, to wear the badges of their Past Offices in Grand Mark Lodge or not, and are the members of the Ark Council to have any distinctive badge?

Yours fraternally,

A PAST OFFICER OF THE LATE
GRAND ARK LODGE.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—On Saturday last the prizes awarded to the successful competitors in the musical contests which have been taking place in the Crystal Palace during the early part of the week were distributed. The attendance was very numerous for a half-crown day, and amongst those present on the platform were several musicians of celebrity. Mr. T. Hughes, M.P., who presided, said that was the second year on which the prizes of the company were distributed to the successful competitors in music and song. On the last occasion His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh kindly undertook to distribute the prizes but he was just now looking out for a prize for himself—(laughter)—and therefore more agreeably engaged than if he presided over the second distribution of musical prizes in the Crystal Palace. He was sure they would all rejoice in the circumstance that the Welsh choir again carried off the chief prize, and no one would grudge that honour to the smallest principality in the kingdom. The men of Liverpool had also proved themselves worthy on this occasion, and the flags and banners around showed that they need not be ashamed of the musical talents of the population of the metropolis. He believed these contests were calculated to do much good, and hoped that the result of each year that passed by would be still more satisfactory.

The Bishop of London and the Romish Archbishop of Westminster are said to have met at the Guildhall entertainment, and were seen conversing for some time. Bishop Jackson remarked to Dr. Manning:—"According to the rules of our respective Churches, neither your Grace nor I ought to be here to-night." "I have dispensed myself, and all my Catholic colleagues," was the Archbishop's prompt reply. "If not too late, I will at once follow your Grace's example," retorted the Bishop of London. And then they both enjoyed a hearty laugh.

There are in connection with the College

THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS,

open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.

The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the

PREPARATORY SCHOOL

(entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitioners, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the rector, or to

MR. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. NEW WORK ON FREEMASONRY.

Dedicated by permission to the Most Hon. Earl Percy, Right Worshipful Grand Master Mason of Northumberland.

FREEMASONRY :

ITS

Symbolism, Religious Nature, and Law of Perfection.

BY BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON.
PAST MASTER, No. 393, ENGLAND.

Handsomely Bound in Cloth, Price Ten Shillings and Sixpence (Post Free).

Published by Reeves and Turner, 196, Strand, London.

FREEMASONRY is, in great part, a system of symbols. It is itself symbolic of that perfection after which it teaches all Members of the Masonic Brotherhood to aspire, and to their attainment of which in the highest degree possible for men in the present state of being, all its laws and its lessons are designed to contribute. Much of its teaching is carried on by means of symbols, which, continually meeting the eye, are calculated to recal its lessons of wisdom, and to impress them on the mind. Without an intimate acquaintance with the symbols of Freemasonry, no one is entitled to be deemed a well-instructed Freemason. It is to be feared that there is reason, however, to think that many brethren, are less perfectly acquainted with these symbols than it is desirable they should be, in order that they might at all times contemplate them with the fullest advantage, owing to the difficulty which they have found of acquiring the requisite knowledge. Nothing hitherto published has explained the beauties and excellences of Masonic Symbols; and the present work is intended to supply this want. The symbols are explained and with their meaning, their use is pointed out; and the great lessons are exhibited which they are intended to help in teaching, to impress upon the mind, and to recall to memory. Freemasonry is represented in a light in which, although the true one, it is too seldom contemplated, as the very type of Christianity,—the consummation of all that is most excellent in man, and most conducive to the welfare of individuals, of families, and of society. The origin of Masonic Symbolism is also considered, and its connection with the Symbolism of the Jewish Law is pointed out. The essentially religious nature of Freemasonry is established by the evidence of its Symbols and by other proofs; and the Masonic Law of perfection is stated and explained. It is hoped that the work will be useful to many Freemasons, affording them instruction of a valuable kind; and that the light in which it presents Freemasonry will win favour and respect for the most ancient of human institutions.

CROSBY'S
BALSAMIC

ELIXIR

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.
Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lie at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

* * * Invaders should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

STONEHOUSE.—Lodge of Sincerity (No. 189).—On Monday, 13th inst., there was an exceedingly large gathering of brethren at Lodge Sincerity, Stonehouse, on the occasion of the installation, as W.M., of Bro. I Latimer. Amongst the brethren present were—Bros. L. P. Metham, D.P.G.M.; T. W. Coffin, W.M.; Coates, J.W. T. S. Bayley, Treasurer, P.M.; R. M. Rae, Sec. P.M.; S. Hutchings, S.D.; Curteis, J.D.; G. Jackson, D.C.; G. Mair, I.G.; A. Latimer, and T. W. How, Stewards; J. E. Moon, O. C. G. Gibson, P.M.; J. Sadler, P.M.; J. Dampney, P.M.; E. P. Balkwill, P.M.; H. Rider, P.M. 159; J. May, P.M. 223; W. Powell, P.M. 1205; C. Leigh, P.M. 1205; T. H. Gillman, W.M. 1099; J. Baster, P.M. St. Aubyn; R. J. Laity, P.M.; J. Montgomery, P.M. 1205; J. Austin, P.M. 1099; J. R. Franklin, P.M.; F. A. Thomas, W.M. 1249; P. B. Clemens, P.M. 954; Chapman, S.W. (Torquay); and W. Harris, J.D. 1205. One brother was raised and another was passed, after which the impressive ceremonial of the induction of the Master Elect was very beautifully performed by Bro. Coffin, the retiring Master. After a few words from the W.M. expressive of his intention to conduct the lodge with dignity and courtesy, he proceeded to appoint his officers for the ensuing year, and the following were the appointments made:—Bros. T. W. Coffin, I.P.M.; M. Coates, S.W.; J. E. Curteis, J.W.; Rev. T. Lemon, Chaplain; T. S. Bayley, Treas.; R. H. Rae, Secretary; A. Latimer, S.D.; T. W. How, J.D.; J. E. Moon, D. of C.; Simons, O.; G. Jackson, I.G.; Jones, S.; A. Rogers, T. In the course of the evening Bro. Balkwill, P.M., stated that it was the last time he should have the pleasure of being present in the lodge, as he was about to remove from Plymouth to a permanent residence in the North of Ireland. The most cordial feelings were expressed towards Bro. Balkwill, who had been an excellent Master of the lodge, and had passed through all his offices with great credit. A vote of hearty good wishes was accorded to him, and recorded in the books of the lodge. After the business of the evening was concluded, the brethren proceeded to their half-yearly refreshment. The W.M. presided, and was supported on his right by the D.P.G.M. and Bro. Chapman, W.M. Elect of Jordan Lodge, Torquay, and on his left by Bro. Gotlieb, who was initiated in Lodge Sincerity by his father, who was then W.M., as far back as the year 1814. The W.M. proposed from the chair the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. The D.P.G.M., in acknowledging the toast of his own health, and the toast of the "Provincial Grand Officers," expressed regret at being unable to come amongst them so frequently as he had done, on account of the pressure of public and private engagements, which not only occupied all the day, but oftentimes the greater portion of the night. However he felt extremely pleased at the position which Lodge Sincerity maintained, and concluded by proposing in eulogistic terms, the health of the W.M. The W.M. responded, and then proposed the toast of the "Visitors," at the same time adverting to the fact of their having amongst them a venerable brother, who had recently returned to England, and who had been initiated in the lodge so many years back. Bro. Gotlieb, in returning thanks, stated that he was initiated in 1814, and that he had been fifty years in India since that time, so that he had had no opportunity of again visiting the lodge till the present time. It afforded him great pleasure to be present on that occasion. Bro. Chapman also acknowledged the compliment, and expressed a hope that he should see some of the brethren present at the 22nd of the coming month. He hoped to have the pleasure of having the P.G.M. and the D.P.G.M. honouring him with their presence. In the course of the evening the W.M. called attention to the fact that on Tuesday next one of the oldest members of Lodge Sincerity, the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgcomb would be installed as P.G.M. of Cornwall. He expressed his regret that personally he should be unable to be present, stating that he was called to London on that day on important business, but he hoped that not only would Lodge Sincerity be well represented at the Grand Lodge at Truro, but that there would be a very large gathering of members of the lodges in the Three Towns, as well as of other parts of Devon, to do honour to their noble and distinguished brother.

LYMINGTON.—New Forest Lodge (No. 310).—On Monday 14th inst., Bro. Stephen Seward Pearce (Junior Bailiff of the Borough of Southampton) was installed Worshipful Master of the New Forest Lodge, Lymington, for the ensuing year. There was a large assembly of brethren on the occasion, both from the town and district, while a numerous contingent also proceeded from Southampton to take part in the proceedings of the day. The ceremony of installation was impressively performed by the Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., who had expressly journeyed to Lymington for the purpose, and who was ably assisted by Bro. Booth, P.M. of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, Southampton—the latter taking the after part of the ceremony, as the Provincial Grand Master was obliged to leave for London by the two o'clock train in order to attend to his Parliamentary duties. The newly-installed W.M., on assuming his official position, invested his predecessor, Bro. H. Doman, as I.P.M., congratulating him upon the position which the lodge had assumed during the past year under his able management, no less than twenty-eight having joined the Order since he took the chair. The following were then invested by the W.M. as his officers:—Bro. Housham, S.W.; Le Roy, J.W.; Doman, P.M., Treasurer; Bath, P.M., Secretary; Scovell, S.D.; Austen, J.D.; Lumby, I.G. After the installation and investiture, the business of the lodge was proceeded with—the ceremonies of passing and raising being performed by the I.P.M.; while three newly elected members were initiated by the W.M. in a manner that drew from the Past Masters and others the remark that it was very rare indeed to find a brother on assuming the chair discharge this important duty with such marked ability. The brethren subsequently assembled at the Anchor and Hope Inn, where, to the number of more than fifty, they sat down to an admirably served banquet, which reflected much credit on the catering of Mrs. Ackland. The W.M. occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Doman, I.P.M.; Booth, P.M.; Le Feuvre, P.M.; Lemon, P.M.; R. S. Pearce, P.M.; Waterman, P.M.; Bath, Senior Warden of the Southampton Lodge; Rev. B. Maturin (vicar of Lymington), the officers of the New Forest Lodge, and many visiting brethren—the Senior and Junior Wardens filling the vice chairs. The customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, Bro. Le Feuvre responding for the Provincial Grand Officers, after which the newly-initiated brethren were duly honoured; and then the company drank with right good Masonic heartiness the health of the W.M., whose exertions on behalf of the New Forest Lodge were most cordially recognised, and who in responding, assured the brethren that if he had rendered any service to the lodge since he had been a member of it—and it would be mere affectation to say that he had not—it was but an earnest of what he would endeavour (with the kindly co-operation and assistance of all) to do during the year of office upon which he had just entered. The W.M. then proposed, in terms of warm commendation, "The Health of I.P.M., Bro. Doman," and this having been received most cordially, Bro. Jackman presented to that brother a valuable Past Master's jewel as a mark of esteem on the part of those brethren who had been initiated during his year of office. The toast and the presentation were acknowledged by Bro. Doman in a most felicitous address, and the sentiments, both of fidelity to the Order, and of gratitude for the handsome souvenir of which he had been made the recipient, were expressed in a manner which evoked the admiration of all the brethren. The toast of "The Past Masters of the Lodge" was ably given by Bro. the Rev. B. Maturin, and responded to by Bro. Bath, P.M., and Bro. Waterman, P.M., respectively: "The Officers for the year," given from the chair, was acknowledged by Bro. Housham, S.W.; and interspersed with a number of capital songs by Bros. J. S. Pearce, Wilkins, Barham, Scovell, Stroud, the W.M., and others. The proceedings were of a most enjoyable and gratifying character. The majority of the Southampton brethren present were conveyed to and from Lymington in a break with four horses and postillions, provided by Mr. R. C. Bishop, of the Dolphin and Grovenor Mews. A fine day, with a light bracing breeze, following the rain of Sunday, contributed materially to the enjoyment of the trip.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Lodge (No. 823).—The brethren of this highly prosperous and excellent lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, which is fairly entitled to rank as one of the best worked and most harmonious lodges in the extensive province of West Lancashire, met together on Wednesday evening, the 16th inst., the principal business being the installation of the Worshipful Master-elect (Bro. Wm. Boulton) and the investiture of officers for the ensuing year. The gathering was certainly the largest of any private lodge which has been held at the Masonic Temple for some years, there being about 150 present, including a large number of the leaders in the Craft, and the enthusiasm which marked the whole of the evening's proceedings speaks volumes for the true masonic spirit which characterises every brother connected with No. 823. The Lodge was opened according to ancient form, shortly after 5 o'clock, by Bro. Joseph Holland, W.M., who was supported by the following present and past officers:—Bros. J. Banning, P.M.; W. Boulton, S.W.; W. J. Lunt, Treas.; W. Cottrell, Sec.; T. Shaw, S.D.; W. Wilson, J.D.; T. Ashmore, P.M., D.C.; W. G. Vale, Org.; A. T. Lowe, I.G.; H. Ashmore, S.; and P. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members of the lodge present were Bros. A. C. Mott, P.G.S.W. of Westmoreland and Cumberland; J. Hamer, P. Prov. G. Treas.; D. Callow, H. M. Molyneux, R. W. Robinson, J. Bishop, J. Houlding, S. Millikin, B. Birchall, T. Bloomfield, T. Taft, C. D. Raymond, E. P. Benedict, J. Marsh, J. Brooksbank, J. W. C. Brown-Cave, R. Warriner, J. Holden, J. Warriner, T. Cunningham, J. Grant, J. Clotworthy, E. Kite, G. Purves, J. White, J. Davis, D. Casson, and E. Thompson. Amongst the visitors were:—Bros. J. F. Goggin, P.G.C.; W. T. May, P.M. 673; J. Rose, W.M. 249; J. K. Smith, P.M. 249; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673; J. Devayness, P.M. 667; E. Kyle, W.M. 673; J. Parsons, P.M. 203; P. B. Gee, W.M. 1264; J. Jones, W.M. 1393; C. H. Hill, P.M. 724; J. Kenyon, P.M. 1013; H. Nelson, P.M. 673; Dr. J. V. Worthington, S.W. 220; Capt. T. Berry, S.W. 1393; C. Humphries, S.W. 1013; Rev. G. F. Cave-Brown-Cave,

J.W. 986; S. Tickle, 220; R. Carter, 249; R. Leason, 1393; T. A. Jackson, 1264; H. Firth, 667; A. Hart, 724; M. Hart 724; J. Ellis, 667; W. H. Thompson, 594; J. Newman, 1356; W. H. Dawson, 1264; W. Jackson, S.D. 1393; G. Bird, 673; C. H. Cooper, 1393; and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, two candidates were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. The chair was taken by Bro. T. Ashmore, P.M., who proceeded with the installation of Bro. Boulton as the W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. The W.M. elect was presented by Bro. Holland, P.M., and Bro. Lunt, P.M. The entire ceremony—one of the most striking and impressive in the whole Masonic ritual—was performed by Bro. Ashmore in a manner which did not detract in the slightest degree from its value, and reflected the highest credit upon his Masonic attainments. The following brethren were subsequently invested as the officers of the lodge:—Bros. J. Holland, I.P.M.; W. Cottrell, S.W.; T. Shaw, J.W.; W. J. Lunt, P.M., Treas.; W. Wilson, Sec.; J. Houlding, S.D.; Ashmore, J.D.; J. Goodman, I.G.; S. Millikin, S.S.; J. S. Cuthbert, J.S.; T. Bloomfield, A.S.; T. Ashmore, P.M., M.C.; and W. G. Veale, Organist. Bro. P. Ball was unanimously re-elected Tyler of the lodge. After the installation ceremony, the W.M., in an exceedingly pointed speech, presented a very chaste P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Holland as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the brethren of No. 823. In doing so the W.M. said that Bro. Holland had been ten years in connection with the lodge, and the brethren all knew with what zeal, assiduity, and courtesy he had discharged the duties of the various offices in the lodge. In reply, Bro. Holland thanked the brethren for that token of their approbation, and spoke with pleasure of the fact that, during the previous year, they had been as a happy family. He trusted that spirit would continue, and he would assure every member of the lodge that he would use his best endeavours to promote its interest. After the brethren had dispensed charity to deserving applicants, the lodge was closed in ampie form. A banquet was subsequently served in the lodge-room, to which about 120 sat down, under the presidency of the W.M., who proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in exceedingly choice terms. In proposing the "West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," Bro. Boulton said that was a toast which was dear to every Mason's heart, and one worthy of their highest approbation. They were told that charity was the peculiar characteristic of every Mason, and he certainly considered their Masonic charities were the key stone of the whole success of Masonry. They had many noble Masonic Educational Institutions in London, but that in West Lancashire was equally worthy of their support and sympathy. Its prosperity was shown by the fact that it had now £10,000 in funded property, by which means it was enabled to educate fifty children of deceased and distressed Freemasons. He trusted every brother in the Everton Lodge would become a subscriber. Bro. Holland, in proposing "The Worshipful Master," spoke in high terms of the many admirable qualities which so fully prepared him for fulfilling the duties of the chair. After the toast had been acknowledged by the W.M., he gave "The Worshipful Past Masters," which was responded to by Bro. Holland and F. Ashmore. "The Wardens and Officers," was acknowledged by Bros. Cottrell, S.W., and T. Shaw, J.W.; and the other toasts were "The Newly Initiated," "The Visiting Brethren" (coupled with the names of Bros. May, P.M. 673, and Rose, W.M. 244), and the "Tyler's Toast," given by Bro. T. Ashmore. Excellent songs were given by Bros. Veale, T. Ashmore, D. Callow, Wilson, H. Ashmore, &c., and Bro. H. Jackson, gave a Shakespearean recitation with rare force and dramatic vigour. In accordance with the custom of several years, the brethren of the Everton Lodge, with their wives, daughters, &c., on Thursday morning, went out of town for their annual picnic, Gresford being the place chosen for the scene of the day's festivities. The morning was as unpromising as it possibly could be when the large party assembled on the George's Landing-stage, shortly before ten o'clock, the rain coming down with a steady persistence which threatened to mar the day's pleasure. Fortunately, however, before the arrival at the exceedingly picturesque village of Gresford, the rain had passed off, and the "out" proved one of the most enjoyable which has yet taken place in connection with the lodge. When a second contingent of "outers" arrived at two o'clock there would be about 250 present, and amongst the general company present, besides all the officers of the "Everton," were Bros. the Rev. J. F. Coggin, the Rev. E. F. Cave-Brown-Cave, Councillors Dr. Taylor and Minton, Forrest, A. C. Mott, &c. As on a former occasion when Gresford was visited, the party proceeded from the station to the church, where the "Old Hundredth," read by the Rev. J. F. Coggin with great impressiveness, was sung by the whole company. The fine old church was minutely inspected, several started on a ramble through the woods, others made a tour of the village, &c., the whole of the party returning to dinner, which was served in a large tent at the top of the hill behind the railway station. The afternoon was passed in an exceedingly pleasant manner, dancing, games, and rural rambles being the principal attractions. After tea a large number started for Liverpool by an early train, while others remained until a later hour. The whole excursion was one of the most pleasant nature, and the arrangements, the abundant supply of creature comforts, and the fine spirit which prevailed, reflected the highest credit upon all who were entrusted with the organisation of the picnic.

LIVERPOOL.—The Temple Lodge (No. 1094).—The annual picnic in connection with this lodge took place on Thursday, the 10th inst., the place chosen being the pretty village of Kirby. About fifty brethren with their friends proceeded by train from Tithebarn-street Railway Station about two o'clock, amongst those present being Bros. R. R. Martin, W.M.; R. Washington, J.W.; Winstanley, P.M., M.C.; Yelland, S.D.; J. Wood, Treas.; Doe, Steward, and Bros. Horspool, H. Jones, Salke, Speer, W. Crane, P.M.; T. Marsh, P.P.G.D.C., P.M., P.G.S.B.; Dr. Pughe, T. Winstanley, E. Howell, Capt. H. Newman, W. Simpson, Bird, &c. Although the morning was wet, the weather cleared up in the afternoon, and a most delightful "out" was enjoyed on the lovely grounds of the Railway Hotel. Games of bowls, dancing, rustic rambles, and kindred recreations formed the staple of the afternoon's amusements, and everyone seemed to enjoy the country trip to the full. An excellent and substantial tea was served on the grounds, and the happy party returned to Liverpool at a seasonable hour. Special credit is due to Bros. Marsh, Winstanley, and Yelland for the admirable arrangements made in connection with the picnic.

THE ASAPH LODGE (No. 1319) held its last meeting for the season at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C. On the 7th inst., this being the day for the election of the W.M. and officers, the election took place. Bro. James Weaver, P.M., P. Prov. G. C., Middx. and M.E.Z. Designate of the Whittington Chapter No. 862, was unanimously elected W.M.; Bro. Charles Coote, Jun., re-elected Treasurer; and Bro. E. S. Jones, P.M. and M.E.Z., Elect, Sec. The rest of the officers forming the committee of the Benevolent Fund were re-elected. The lodge then voted a P.M. jewel, accompanied with a testimonial engrossed on vellum, to the W.M., Rev. I. M. Chamberlain, for his attention to the duties during his year of office. There was one initiation, and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

LIVERPOOL.—Fermor-Hesketh Lodge (No. 1350).—Bro. Alfred Samuels, M.D., was installed W.M. of this lodge, on Friday evening, the 18th inst., at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, and the following officers were subsequently invested by him:—Bros. J. Higson Johnston, P.M.; Edward Harbord, P.M., Treas.; T. K. Hughes, P.M.; S. Jones, P.M.; T. A. Collinson, S.W.; F. Day, J.W.; M. Browne, Sec.; W. J. Morris, S.D.; J. Makin, J.D.; F. Peirce, I.G.; H. Morison, D. of C.; and J. Lawrence, Steward. During the evening a handsome jewel was presented to Bro. Harbord, P.M., Treas., in recognition of the very valuable services he has rendered to the lodge since its formation.

LEBANON LODGE (No. 1326).—The fourth installation meeting of this well established lodge was held on Saturday, July 19th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Lion Square, Thames-street, Hampton. The lodge was opened by Bro. John Thomas Moss, P. Prov. G. S.D. of Middlesex, W.M. The minutes of the previous lodge meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, were declared to be unanimous in favour of the admission of Bro. Edwin James, 871, and Bryan James 871, as joining members, also for Messrs. Canale, W. Hill, and W. Warhurst, as candidates for initiation into Freemasonry. Mr. Richard Carne being in attendance, was introduced and duly initiated into ancient Freemasonry, the ceremony being beautifully rendered. The great event of the meeting then took place, which was the presentation to Bro. Frederick Walters, Past Master and Secretary (who was on the previous Thursday appointed as one of the Provincial Grand Stewards for Middlesex, with a complete suit of Provincial Grand Steward's clothing, which was unanimously voted to him from the lodge funds as a mark of esteem, respect and gratitude for the able manner he had performed his duties as Secretary, and the very many essential services he had rendered to the lodge as one of the founders. The W.M. Bro., J. T. Moss P. Prov. G.S.D. Middlesex, presented the clothing to the Secretary, desiring him to leave the lodge-room to put it on, and again enter the lodge. The Secretary obeyed the W.M.'s commands and on his return to the lodge-room was received as a Provincial Grand Lodge Officer with the customary honours. The worthy brother on whose behalf this reception was given returned his thanks for this renewed mark of their favour. He tried, he said, to do his duty and hoped he succeeded. Such proofs of their kindness as he was continually receiving from them were fully appreciated by him and would induce him to persevere until he succeeded in making their lodge second to none in the province. He then took the chair, when the Prov. Grand Master, Col. Burdett, was announced. He was received upstanding with, full Provincial Grand Lodge honours, and was offered, by the presiding officer, the chair and gavel, but kindly desired the presiding officer to retain his seat. The lodge business was then proceeded with. Bro. J. T. Moss, P. Prov. G.S.D. Middlesex, W.M., presented Bro. William Hammond, P.M., S.D., and W.M., elect to the presiding W.M., Bro. Frederick Walters, P.M., Sec., to receive from his hands the benefit of installation. He soon proved his expertness by the admirable, painstaking, correct and impressive manner in which he installed the W.M. elect, Bro. W. Hammond, P.M., as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The officers appointed and invested were Bro. H. A. Dubois, S.W.; J. W. Jackson, J.W.; S. Wickens, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.S. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; E. Gilbert, S.D.; J. Hayward, J.D.; C. W. Fox, I.G.; R. W. Williams, Organist; H. Potter, P.M.; W. S. J. Gilbert, Prov. G. Tyler Middlesex, Tyler. The charges were then ably delivered, and the ceremony of installation was concluded. The work was so well done, that at its completion a cordial vote of thanks—and the same to be entered on the lodge minute book—was given to Bro. Frederick Walters, P.M. and Secretary, for his good working, and the excellent manner he had performed the ceremony of installation. This compliment was duly acknowledged by the recipient. Some brethren were proposed for joining, and candidates for initiation. A committee was appointed to revise the bye-laws of the lodge, and to decide the amount to be given from the lodge funds to the testimonial which was to be presented to Bro. J. T. Moss, for his valuable services whilst in the chair, and during his year of office. Some other important business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to a marquee, where a good banquet was served, under the superintendence of the energetic young landlord, Bro. R. Lawrence, who, as usual, exerted himself to please his guests, and succeed well in doing so. The visitors were: Bros. F. Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex; E. J. Crow, P.M. 279, P.G.S.D. Leicester and Rutland; S. Hill, P.M. 157; J. Sim, 834; R. T. Elsam, W.M. 889; A. J. Adams, 857; F. Honeywell, 889, and others.

The usual loyal toasts were proposed, and the visitors responded to by Bro. Brett, P.G.P., P.M. 177, &c., and that of the ladies by Bro. Cathin. A sumptuous dinner was provided by the Host, Bro. Coomber, followed by a dessert which could not fail to please the most fastidious. On the return of the steamer, dancing was kept up to the strains of an excellent quadrille band, a most enjoyable day was spent, and one that will be long remembered by those who had the opportunity of attending.

The third point having been given, the chapter was closed at 6.30 p.m. The brethren afterwards partook of an excellent banquet at the South Western Hotel.

MASONIC FETE AT KNOPPOGUE CASTLE.

JULY 9th will be long regarded as a rubrical day in the memory of the masonic fraternity—their wives and families—in the district of North Munster. The Provincial Grand Lodge, according to precedent, “goes circuit,” so to speak, throughout its bounds at the Summer Quarterly Meeting, and the noble Prov. G.M., Lord Dunboyne, in a truly fraternal spirit, determined that the July meeting of 1873 should take place at the historic castle of Knoppogue, in the “Kingdom of Clare.” Invitations were accordingly issued by order of the noble Lord to all the brethren who owe him Masonic allegiance, and in response a large number of gentlemen, accompanied by their female relatives, arrived by rail or vehicle at Knoppogue, which, by the way, is worthy of a much more extended notice than we can at present devote to it.

On entering the grounds about one o'clock, there were evidences on all sides of approaching festivity. A large marquee was erected on the lawn, and servants were to be observed busy in plying the culinary art. The Royal Standard unfurled its folds to a gentle breeze at a convenient distant—the Jack (red-crossed)—held a coigne of vantage on the “Clock Tower,” and over the main entrance, the banner of the ancient house of Butler or Fitz-Walter, with its lions rampant and scallop shells—remembrances of Holy Land pilgrimages, was displayed. The croquet lawn was in readiness, and the band of the Clare Militia discoursed marches, quadrilles, mazurkas, and waltzes on the greensward. When the entire party had assembled, warning was given to the brethren by the sounding of a gong that the P.G.L. was about to transact business, Lord Dunboyne's library, which is filled with many curious works of art, was fitted up as a lodge room. His lordship having taken his seat on the throne with the usual Masonic honours, Bro. Wilson acting as P.G.S.; John Hill, S.W.; Alexander Rowand, J.W.; Henry Sikes, S.D.; Rev. Dr. Mangan, J.D.; Rev. J. McMahon, Chaplain; Isaac Banks, I.G.; Rev. W. F. Seymour, Tyler. The lodges represented were 13, 50, 73, 135, 250, 268, 201, 272, 333.

While the Prov. Grand Lodge were in sedesunt, the ladies availed themselves of the privilege kindly accorded by Lord Dunboyne of viewing the interior of the castle, the most curious feature of which is perhaps the spiral staircase which ascends the old “Keep” from basement to turret, where warders in less happy times than ours kept “watch and ward,” while the mailed barons held feudal state below. Many of the interior fittings are curious, and suggestive to antiquarians.

Time passed very pleasantly for an hour or so in this inspection, after which the Past Grand Lodge having suspended labour, the united company sought refreshment in the spacious marquees erected on the lawn, not, however, before they had been photographed in groups through the medium of Mr. Belcher's camera. The entertainment was of the most recherché description, accompanied with copious flowings of generous wine. Nothing could exceed the courtesy of Lord Dunboyne, his daughter, the Hon. Miss Butler, and his son, Hon. T. Butler, in their assiduity and attention to their guests, proving that they thoroughly appreciated the sentiment that in honouring others we honour ourselves.

After the repast, Bro. the Rev. J. McMahon said:—Ladies and brethren, I do not think we ought to separate without drinking the health of our noble Provincial Grand Master and our generous host on this occasion (cheers). We have all had ample evidence often before to-day of the liberal mind and kind heart of Lord Dunboyne (applause). Much as we thank his Lordship for this day's great enjoyment at this beautiful residence, I am sure, my brethren, our enjoyment is still further heightened by the presence of so many fair ladies (cheers). I will now ask you to join with me, as I am sure you will heartily, in drinking health, long life, and happiness to our revered Provincial Grand Master, (louds of applause). Lord Dunboyne was not present when this compliment was paid him, but subsequently having entered the tent,

The Most Worshipful Grand Master said:—Brethren I was at the other end of the tent when I heard your hearty cheers, and it was intimated to me that you had done me the honour of drinking my health (applause). I assure you it gives me a great deal of pleasure to see you all here, and I give you welcome with all brotherly love (cheers.) I thank you, brethren, from my heart, for the honour you have done me, and I am proud to see you all at this happy re-union, accompanied by your wives, sisters, and daughters, and I may tell you that you would not have been half so welcome if you had not brought them with you (loud applause). I had hoped to have some little amusements provided for you out of doors; but I am afraid the threatening state of the weather will render it more desirable to keep in doors. I hope we shall be able to, however, to pass the evening not the less pleasantly. I may remind you, brethren, that you are closely watched outside, for yesterday I was gravely told that the assembling of the Masonic brethren here to-day would bring bad weather and a blight on our potatoes (laughter). Well, we don't see much blight as yet, thank God, and the weather is not so bad after all! Looking around me I am really delighted to see such a splendid array of beauty and loveliness which would be an honour to any country in the world (cheers), and our united meeting to-day is a sufficient answer to all detractors, and will show what Masonry really is—an institution which cannot exist without the display of love, harmony and good fellowship (cheers.) In conclusion, brethren, I thank you heartily for the compliment you have paid me in coming here, and for so cordially drinking my health (loud and prolonged cheers.)

Bro. Richard Studdert, Knocknareechy in concise and elegant terms proposed the health of Bro. the Hon. Theobald Butler, who in response said he had no higher ambition than to follow in the footsteps of his father, either as a man or a mason, and thus secure the good wishes of all such as he saw around him (applause).

Rev. Dr. Mangan, said their sentiments would be incomplete if they did not drink the health of the noble wife of a noble man. He need hardly say he alluded to Lady Dunboyne (cheers) and her amiable daughters (renewed cheers).

The toast was drank amid renewed cheers.

The company then separated for out-door exercises, and later in the evening a dance and supper wound up the proceedings, and Lord Dunboyne's guests departed after spending a day of unalloyed pleasure.

Original Correspondence.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

If our eminent Bro. Holmes, 31°, took as much interest in Royal Arch Masonry as he does in the “Order of the Temple,” it would not be necessary to inform him that our Irish “P.K.” is the equivalent of the English “P.Z.”

My statement that the connecting link between Freemasonry and the old Templar working was “extremely slight,” satisfies our brother that I know “very little of Templar history, or the Templar degree.” I thought I had a fair knowledge of both; but suppose I must be mistaken, and regret that our brother does not condescend to enlighten my ignorance by showing wherein the relationship consisted. I can quite understand that the matter could not be fully discussed in print, but I certainly fail to see in the ceremony of Templars' installation anything connecting it with Freemasonry, except the one “commemorative point,” to which I am sure I need not now more particularly refer.

I bow to our brother's correction of my use of the word “order.” Society is the correct designation, and I may suppose that my language has become slightly demoralised by occasional contact with those whom our late Bro. Dalcho (Frederick the Great?) would have addressed as “my respectable brethren.”

I do know that the great principle of toleration as it now exists in Freemasonry, took its rise at the revival of Grand Lodge communications in 1717, and that one of the first acts of Grand Lodge was to excise sectarianism from its working. As speculative Freemasonry, in its present form, is not traceable further back, it is not to the purpose to state the well-known fact that in the anterior society “Masons were Roman Catholics, and consequently Trinitarians.” Our society is “old” as continuing many of the “arts and mysteries” of the original framework. It is “grand” in its adoption and faithful rendering of the modern principle of universal religious toleration.

It is satisfactory to learn that the “Ritual Commissioners” of the “United Order” intend “to return to the old chivalric secreta receptio.” Where on earth did they get it?

How does the new “Templar Order” propose to deal with such encampments or preceptories as the “Baldwin,” whose possession of certain high grade degrees our brother Holmes admits? Though I ask, with great diffidence, is he quite correct in ascribing their origin to the year 1836? I actually believed that the old Templar rite of seven degrees was regularly worked in England long before the close of the last century, that Bro. Dunckerley was elected Grand Master of H.M., K.H., in 1790, and that Baron Raneliffe, the Duke of Kent, Judge Wright, and the Duke of Sussex, were successively heads of the rite, till the year 1811, after which Grand Conclave ceased to meet, and that in consequence the older conclaves formed a confederation, under which those “high grade” chivalric degrees were still conferred on duly qualified brethren. Is the law passed by Grand Conclave in 1866 to become inoperative? providing as it did for the continuance of the privileges enjoyed by certain encampments holding warrants granted prior to 1791? Are those privileges to be “snuffed out” by the new arrangements? And will the encampments referred to fall in with the views of Bro. Holmes, and quietly hand over the control of those degrees, whatever they may be intrinsically worth, to what he calls “the more legitimate authority of the Supreme Council?” Knowing, as I presume they do, the origin and history of the rite controlled by that Supreme Council, remembering what it is, when and where it originated, and the authorities on which it puts forth its claims to recognition.

Bro. Holmes states that the history of “the high degrees generally has yet to be written,” and if that history be truly recorded, while it would, doubtless be found very interesting and instructive after its kind, I fear the publication would not redound to the credit of Freemasonry with which those “hautes grades” would be surely, though improperly confounded, by those outside, as well as by many within our society.

The existing quarrel between the “Templar rites,” and the “Dalchoites,” is “a very pretty one as it stands.” It might be “worth the while” of both parties to pause and consider the probable results.

Fraternally yours,

JOSEPH H. WOODWORTH.

Dublin, 16th July, 1873.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I cannot allow the letter of Bro. Holmes to pass without comment.

“I certainly have not attempted to prove the “United Orders” an illegal organisation.

It is true that, for the purpose of argument, adopted, for the moment, Sir Patrick Colquhoun's assertion that the Order of the Temple is not Masonic, and I then proceeded to show that his view was correct the legal, or rather illegal position of its members.

I agree with Bro. Holmes that “it is simply nonsense to say that the mere abolition of the title ‘Masonic’ makes us an illegal body.” But here again Bro. Holmes has unintentionally, by doubt, misread, and put a false construction upon my letter.

I have said, and I reiterate, in the most explicit terms possible, that if we are content to accept the Arch Chancellor's decision that we are not a Masonic body (and this is not a mere “abolition of title” but a change of fundamental principles) we must be content to abide by the consequences it will entail upon us, and consider ourselves members of an illegal society, and as such liable to prosecution as felons.

That divers opinions existed relative to the late changes in the constitutions of the Order, there can be no doubt, and that some of the Supreme Council who hold exalted positions in the Order of the Temple have not agreed with those changes cannot be denied, but why this should call down upon their heads the "righteous indignation" (whatever that may be) of the English Chancellor of the Order I am entirely at a loss to understand.

I hold that every Knight Templar has a right to express his opinion upon so weighty a question as the one under discussion, and I trust the day is far distant when such egotism, arrogance and blundering as that displayed by Sir Patrick Colquhoun can be passed over in silence or with such a lame defence as that with which we have been favoured by Bro. Holmes, who, whilst differing from me in opinion, has in no way attempted to controvert my assertions or deal with my argument.

I am, Dear Sir, and Brother,
Yours fraternally,

J. E. C.

A LIFE GOVERNORSHIP OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FOR ONE SHILLING.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The letter you were kind enough to publish in The Freemason of the 12th inst. has brought many applications for tickets, also several letters, asking an explanation of my project, which I beg to repeat.

"The tickets are one shilling each, and the purchaser thereby secures a chance of having £10 paid to the above-named Institution in his or her name, constituting a life governorship; with the power of voting at each election of Annuitants; the corresponding numbers to those of the tickets sold will be placed in the ballot box, and according to the number disposed of will depend the issue. Every 200 tickets will represent £10."

I earnestly solicit the assistance of the brotherhood in furthering my object to enhance the funds of the Benevolent Institution. Lodges and Chapters periodically dispense their funds on behalf of our charitable institutions, and a vote of a few shillings carried in favour of my project may secure a life governorship, which I am sure many of our brethren and companions would be pleased to have recorded in their names in preference to the usual practice so universally adopted in recognition of their past services. Some of our members have spoken of my project as "a chandler's shop system," to them I would answer, many a small business is characterised for its honest dealing, and compares favourably with some of our gigantic establishments.

In soliciting charity, I maintain that any means to which we may resort being honest and equitable, is entitled to, and worthy of support, and as we are taught to guide our hearts by justice, and extend our hands by benevolence, let us endeavour to become influential in diffusing the light of wisdom to aid in the strength of reason, dispense the beauties of virtue, and lessen the aggregate of human vice and misery.

Applications for tickets to be accompanied by stamps or post office order.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,

JOHN CONSTABLE, S.W. 115.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CORNWALL.

Yesterday was a gala day with the Free and Accepted Masons of Cornwall. The occasion the installation of the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgumbe as the Right Worshipful the Grand Master of their Province. The recorded list of the Masonic Provincial Grand Masters of Cornwall is brief. It begins with William Pye, appointed 1752, over two lodges, all then in existence; Stephen Bell, 1762, over three lodges; George Bell, 1764, over four lodges; Stephen Bell re-appointed, 1775, over five lodges; Sir John St. Aubyn, Bart, 1786, over six lodges; Sir Charles Lemon, Bart, 1843, over eight lodges; Augustus Smith, 1863, over fifteen lodges; and now the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, 1873, over twenty-four lodges.

The late Provincial Grand Master, Augustus Smith, so long and so favourably known as the pseudo sovereign of the Scilly Islands, was an able and popular Masonic ruler. During his lifetime throughout his Province he was held in high esteem, and on all occasions of his visits to his brethren was received with great warmth of fraternal feeling. He was not appointed to his high office formally until 1863, on the death of Sir Charles Lemon. For several years previous to that date Mr. Smith, had, however, been the ruling power in the Province. The result of his ruling was a great extension of the Masonic body in Cornwall. During his career the lodges nearly trebled.

At the lamented decease of Bro. Smith, much speculation arose in the Province as to who would be his successor. The names of two prominent Masons in the Province were for some time in active discussion as likely to be the new Prov. Grand Master, but the mantle of the departed worthy did not fall upon either.

When it was announced that the succession had fallen upon its present noble occupant, the only feeling was that of general cordial congratulation among the brethren of the Province. The Earl of Mount Edgumbe is a brother of several years standing, having joined the Masonic body early in life, and passed through the principal chairs at the "Sincerity" Lodge, Stonehouse, some years since. The Mount Edgumbe family have also from a remote period occupied a prominent relationship with Cornwall, the county of the Paternal Home, the hill from which they take their patronymic. A metropolitan legend asserts that it was once the custom of Cornish children on retiring for the night, after imploring a benediction on their parents, to remember next the head of the Mount Edgumbe family. However this may be, the lords of Mount Edgumbe have undoubtedly for several generations stood high among the county families in the esteem of Cornishmen for their ability, urbanity, honourable feeling, and liberality. The call of the present Earl to the conspicuous position of Grand Master of the Masons of Cornwall is therefore regarded by that body as a promising omen of the continued success of their order in that county.

The installation of his lordship was arranged to take place at Truro. A Provincial Grand Lodge and General Communication of the Masons of the province assembled there in the Concert-hall of the new public rooms at ten o'clock. The attendance was unprecedented. Over 500 brethren were present, including nearly the whole of the leading names among the members of the order connected with the province.

The Provincial Grand Master presiding, opened the Grand Lodge with the usual ceremonies. After the minutes of the last P.G. meeting had been read and confirmed, in a brief address he paid a tribute of respect to the memory of the merits of the deceased G.M. of the Province, and congratulated the brethren upon the new Provincial Grand Master appointed.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgumbe was then introduced by seven P. Prov. G.W., the V. W. Bros. Sir F. M. Williams, Bart, W. D. Pearce, F. W. Dabb, E. T. Carlyon, Col. Peard, T. Solomon, and W. J. Mason.

The P.G. Secretary read the diploma of his lordship's appointment. R. W. Bro. the Rev. J. Huyshe, put the usual questions as Installing Master. P. Prov. G. Secretary, Bro. Hughan, read the ancient charges and regulations, to all of which his lordship gave the usual assent. The new P.G.M. was then duly obligated and placed in his chair. The P.G.D.C. proclaimed his lordship with the usual formalities as R.W.P.G.M. of Cornwall who then received from the brethren the usual salute.

R. W. Bro. the Rev. J. Huyshe then delivered the customary charge in a very impressive manner, the Devon brethren present noticing with much satisfaction the vigour with which their respected G.M. carried out his arduous duties.

The P.G.M., the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, thanked the brethren for the kind manner in which they had received him. After the very able manner in which they had been just addressed by his friend, the Rev. Jno. Huyshe, he said he would content himself for the present with urging a careful attention to the precepts just inculcated.

The business of the lodge was then proceeded with.

The P.G.M. appointed Sir F. M. Williams as D.P.G.M. who was duly obligated by R. W. Bro. the Rev. J. Huyshe as Installing Master, invested by the P.G.M., and installed in his seat.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer presented his annual statement, which exhibited a balance of £47 9s. 5d. in favour of the lodge, notwithstanding thirteen of the lodges had not yet paid up their dues. The forfeits incurred by those lodges were for the present passed over. The Prov. Grand Master, however stated that for the future he should be for the bye-law being put in force.

The Provincial Grand Secretary, presented his annual statement, which showed number of lodges in the province to be 24; number of initiations during the year, 130; number of joining members, 37; members remaining, 801; total, 968. Number of initiations in the previous year, 103; joining members 19; members remaining, 772; total, 894. Increase of initiations, 27; joining members, 18; remaining members, 29; total increase during past year, 74.

The report of the "Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund" shewed a favourable progress of that institution.

The Committee of Relief reported that they recommended that the widow of a brother, a P.M. of Fortitude Lodge, No. 131, Truro, and the widow of a brother, a P.M. of One and All Lodge, No. 330, Bodmin, be granted £10 each for their relief. The committee further reported that since the last meeting they had relieved two distressed brethren to the extent of £2 each.

The whole of these reports were received and adopted. The proposition of Bro. Hughan was carried; "That the rules and regulations as lately issued to the several lodges and members entitled thereto and bearing date "12th July, 1872, be accepted as the bye-laws of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall, with the exception that the sum of £10 towards the expenses of the lodges receiving the Grand Lodge be altered to £20.

On the motion of Bro. T. Chirgwin, seconded by Bro. Hughan, £25 were voted to the "Cornwall Annuity and Benevolent Fund." Twenty guineas were voted to the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, this donation completing the number of votes held by the P.G. Lodge in the London Masonic Charities to 60—Bro Solomon said this vote would be a compliment to Bro. Hughan, who had just been appointed a Steward to the Girls' School, and would be some recognition of the time and labour so generously devoted by Bro. Hughan to the interests of Masonry.

At this stage of the proceedings the Grand Lodge adjourned in procession, in full regalia, with emblems and banners displayed, and headed by the St. Austell Volunteer Rifle band to St. Mary's Church. The procession was the most imposing ever seen in the Province.

The Past Grand Master said the lodge must feel a deep sense of gratitude to Bro. Huyshe for his kindness in coming down and taking part in the proceedings of the day. The impressive manner in which that respected brother had just delivered the charge had made clear to him the importance of the office he had ventured to accept, and the duties he and the members had to carry out. It was their duty to shew their fellow-countrymen by their conduct in life that to be a Freemason was to be an honest and just man.

The Past Grand Master then appointed his officers.

The Past Grand Master presided at the usual banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toast were warmly drunk, and the latter ably acknowledged.—Western Morning News.

SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1873.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex was held on Thursday, 17th inst., at the Town Hall, Hounslow, the V.W. the Provincial Grand Master, Col. Burdett, J.P., presiding, supported by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., the retiring Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and a great number of past and present Provincial Grand Officers. There was also present a goodly throng of representatives from the sixteen lodges in the province.

The Provincial Grand Lodge business having been disposed of, and a sum of money voted to procure the Provincial Grand Secretary clerical assistance in the routine portion of his arduous and rapidly increasing labours, the Provincial Grand Master proceeded to appoint and invest his Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year as follows:

J. C. Parkinson, P.M. 131 and 778, and of Prince of Wales's Lodge, 259, P.Z. Prince of Wales's Chapter, etc., Deputy Grand Master.

Sir G. E. Campbell, B.A., W.M. 1415, Senior Grand Warden.

Arthur R. Richards (P.M. 8 and P. G. Steward Eng.), P.M. 865, Junior Grand Warden.

Rev. Chas. J. Martyn (P.M. and P. G. Chap. Eng.), 1310, Grand Chaplain.

Rev. J. M. Vaughan (P.M. 907), Chap. 1423, Grand Chaplain.

Henry G. Buss (P.M. 27), Sec. 1293, Grand Treasurer.

Hickson Briggs, P.M. 865, Grand Registrar.

R. Wentworth Little (P.M. 975), P.M. and Treas. 1293, Grand Secretary.

Robert Kenyon, P.M. 1293, Senior Grand Deacon.

Octavius H. Pearson, P.M. 708, Junior Grand Deacon.

Wm. H. Hubbard (P.M. 173), 1293, Grand Superintendent of Works.

Isaac D. McDougall, P.M. 788, Grand Director of Ceremonies.

John H. Butten, P.M. 1309, Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies.

Richard D. Odell (P.M. 3), 1194, Grand Sword Bearer.

Richard Limpus, Org. 1309, Grand Organist.

Richard Bancey, (P.M. 79), 1293, Grand Pursuivant.

George J. Jaquin, P.M. 382, Assistant Grand Pursuivant.

John Gilbert, 1194, Grand Tyler.

GRAND STEWARDS.—H. G. Edlman, P.M. 708; G. Elliot, M.P., W.M. 778; T. Nash, W.M. 865; R. T. Whitley, P.M. 946; F. Walters, P.M. 1309; H. A. Dubois, S.W. 1423.

The popularity of the foregoing appointments was proved by the hearty applause which greeted each brother as he donned the insignia and assumed the position accorded to him, and Colonel Burdett may be congratulated upon his tact and knowledge of the art of governing, as exemplified by these proofs that he had precisely met the wishes of those he presides over, by his selections for the purple of Middlesex.

So thoroughly successful was this Provincial Grand Lodge meeting that a Past Grand Chaplain of the province suggested the desirability of holding two Provincial Grand Lodges in each year, a proposition which was received with cheers, but which, as the Provincial Grand Master shewed, was more pleasant than expedient. It is wiser, as Colonel Burdett said in effect, to keep these festivals as annual treats, at which the officers of the year are appointed, and though Middlesex is lusty and vigorous as a young giant, it will do well to avoid stepping out of the beaten path followed by provinces it is perhaps destined to lead.

THE BANQUET.

Dinner was served in the great public room of the Town Hall about six, Colonel Burdett, Prov. Grand Master, presiding, supported on the immediate right by Bros. J. C. Parkinson, the new Deputy Prov. Grand Master; Raynham W. Stewart, Past Deputy Prov. Grand Master; Boyd, P.G.P.; S. Rosenthal, P. Prov. S.G.W.; Rev. Sir Claude de Crespigny, P.G. Chaplain; F. Walters, P.M.; Dr. Ramsay, J.W.; R. G. Glover (P.M. 131), S.D.; and Major Harding, (P.M. St. Andrews), I.G. all of the Bard of Aven, 773. On the Prov. G. Master's left were:—Bros the Rev. C. Martyn, P.G.C., and Vaughan, Prov. Grand Chaplains for the year; the Rev. D. Shaboe, P. Prov. Grand Chaplain; Terry; Little, Prov. Grand Secretary; Buss, Prov. Grand Treasurer; and many others. A first-rate selection of music was provided, under the direction of Bro. Limpus, the vocalists being all friends of Bro. Walters, P.M., who had most kindly volunteered their services, to give eclat to the proceedings of the Grand Lodge festival.

After the banquet, and when grace had been sung, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and responded to by Bro. Martyn, as Past Grand Chaplain of England; Bro. Boyd, P.G.P.; Bros. Terry and Little, for the Charities; and Bro. Raynham Stewart, P.G.D., who, in also proposing "The Health of the Prov. Grand Master," expressed his entire satisfaction with the principle of changing the personality of the position of Deputy Prov. Grand Master from time to time, and his conviction that in his successor, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, the Prov. Grand Master would find a zealous and able Deputy, and the Province a valuable ally. The Prov. Grand Master, in returning thanks, spoke feelingly of the honour conferred upon him when asked to become chief of the province, and added that his first impulse was to advise the brethren to offer the Prov. Grand Mastership to some nobleman of high rank, as in his judgment the position was one which men of the first rank in the State always filled with most advantage to the Craft. Colonel Burdett's remarks, so far as they were in modest deprecation of himself, were received with loud cries of "No, No!" from the brethren, and were met subsequently by Bro. J. C. Parkinson, the new Deputy Prov. Grand Master, who, as will be seen below, spoke up stoutly for the importance of the province, and the special fitness of Colonel Burdett to preside over it. In returning thanks for the Prov. Grand Officers of the year, (a toast to which the Prov. Senior Grand Warden, Bro. Sir Gilbert Campbell, and Bro. Richards, the Prov. Junior Grand Warden, also stood up) Bro. Parkinson spoke thus:—

Very Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Past Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Grand Officers and Brethren, Once upon a time, a worthy countryman of ours was staying at a foreign watering place, and was made positively uncomfortable by the number of petty German princes with great titles by whom he was surrounded. Serene Highnesses, Grand Dukes, High and Puissant Princes (over four acres and three soldiers, or thereabouts), their Mightiness of this and their Effulgence of that, made him feel that plain Mr. Smith was a nobody (laughter), and that the landlord neglected and the waiters spurned him, because of his being the only man there without a title. He fled to another town, and after much cogitation on the way, entered his name in the next hotel books as "Smith, Elector of Middlesex." (Loud laughter.) From that moment the tables were turned, and he was the most important person in the place. They had heard of the Elector of Hanover (laughter), and knowing how great a man he was, they felt certain that the "Elector of Middlesex" must be a person of vastly more consequence than the herd of German princes and counts staying with them. All the attention of the servants, all the smiles of the ladies, all the homage of the crowd were his, and Mr. Smith, whose health improved as his wounded dignity was appeased, returned to his counting-house in the City, thinking with the Swedish Chancellor, "My son, with how little wisdom is the world governed!" Brethren, this anecdote comes into my mind when I think of writing myself down in the future as Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex! I feel that the Masonic brethren I may visit will expect, on hearing that high-sounding title, there is far more in me than I shall find it at all possible to bring out; and I also feel that to be a Grand Officer of this Metropolitan province involves a heavy responsibility upon those wearing its purple, because the sound of "Middlesex" conveys more to the ear and to the understanding of the outer world than the names of provinces which are more remote. Middlesex is comparatively new, but it presents at this moment a picture of great and stable Masonic prosperity, and it rests with its members to elevate and strengthen it to a practically unlimited extent. (Loud cries of hear, hear.) The Freemasons of Middlesex are at this time one thousand strong, the lodges in the province have quadrupled in number since its formation in 1869; and all that is needed to make its real strength apparent, is a close and impenetrable union among its forces, and a leader whom it is honourable to follow and whose position is assured. Brethren no one who is acquainted with our Prov. Grand Master, Colonel Burdett, can have any doubt as to our good fortune in this last particular; and I must protest against the deprecatory tone which the Prov. Grand Master's modesty led him into a few minutes ago, when speaking of himself. (Hear, hear.) For Masonry, if I understand it, is a thing made up of honourable traditions, and while it would be our duty, as it would be our pleasure, to pay respect and obedience to any brother filling the distinguished position of Provincial Grand Master, the performance of that duty receives an undoubted stimulus when it is called forth by the inheritor of a lofty lineage, and the successor to a long line of noble deeds. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, our Grand Master bears an historic name (loud cheers), and the archives of his family are permanently inscribed upon the roll of England. Those whose tastes or whose avocations have led them to the study of genealogy—in the belief that the history of great families furnishes a faithful reflex of the changing conditions and progressive thought of a nation—those students know that when the Norman conquered, the Burdetts took root; and that from that time onwards their representatives have, under successive monarchs, played a leading part in the council-chamber, and on the battle-fields of England. (Cheers). We find them founding priories under the Normans; making valiant pilgrimages to the Holy Land, to fight the infidel, under the Plantagenets; bravely defending our French possessions under the House of Lancaster; scouring the seas for the defence of our Southern coast, under Henry the 8th; and affording an asylum to men of learning and piety during the troublous times which befel the Stuarts. (Cheers). The representative and heir of these gallant spirits has, it is true, fallen upon quieter times than they, and after serving his country in that distinguished regiment which carries a human skull upon its standard, and has "Death or Glory" for its motto, has for many years paid diligent attention to the "emblems of mortality" in another walk. (A laugh.) I trust, however, we shall hear no more from our Provincial Grand Master of his having any doubts concerning his own fitness, socially as well as Masonically, for the high position he fills amongst us. (Hear, hear.) It is as its own chosen chief, as one who unites the charm of personal qualities with the claims of ancient blood, and who has inherited the qualities of leadership from a long line of illustrious ancestors, that Middlesex is proud and happy in its Grand Master. This being so, what remains for us? I reply to be true to him and to ourselves, by displaying at all times our unity and organisation. In our gallant regiment of a thousand strong are so many Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of our Charities, that we have only to unite to make our influence felt, and to return a fair proportion of candidates. In Grand Lodge we may be sure that our influence will be respected, so long as we exercise it in furtherance of those great objects for which Freemasonry exists, and to which all our obligations point. I see before me, therefore, a great future for Middlesex, and in that future I discern, as in a vision—it may be but a vision, but I will cherish it—extended usefulness, vast responsibilities, great means adapted to noble ends, and this great Province marching onwards in calm strength and majesty, respecting itself and respected by the Craft. (Cheers.) My immediate predecessor in this position, whose good wishes on this occasion I most heartily reciprocate, is widely known for the time, devotion, and energy he has displayed in connection with our various Masonic institutions. (Hear, hear.) Our Provincial Grand Secretary has, as was shown pretty conclusively a few months since, won for himself, by his proved Masonic qualities, troops of Masonic friends. The three predecessors of the Provincial Grand Senior Warden of Middlesex of to day have represented respectively those scientific attainments which give their possessors a world wide fame, and those sister arts of music and of painting, which soothe the spirit and refine the mind. (Hear, hear.) Why if Plato himself were devising a modern republic—but a republic with a senatorial class—do not those I have quoted represent the very sections of the community he would rejoice to elevate? Great services to the Commonwealth proved administrative ability: Science, which, by increasing the aggregate of human knowledge, swells the sum total of human happiness; and the beautiful arts by means of which mankind is made less rugged, and life itself more elevated and graceful. Such are the qualifications which the Province of Middlesex has, during its brief life, seen in the highest place it has been in the power of its Grand Master to bestow. Remembering this, I am most proud to accept the trust reposed in me to-day, and for my own part, in thanking the Provincial Grand Master for the honourable position he has placed me in, and you for the favour you have shown me, let me say that from this hour, I throw in my

Masonic lot with Middlesex, and that such time and energy as I am able to give are yours. Let us always act together as friends united in a common cause, and above all, let us be true to our flag. Such, brethren, is the spirit and such the hopes with which I enter upon my new duties under the Grand Master. And in all earnestness I henceforth bind myself to the Province in the expressive words of the good old marriage service, not "forsaking all other," but "for richer or poorer, for better or worse," and to this I plight my troth. (Loud cheers, and cries of hear, hear.)

The Prov. Grand Master then proposed "The Health of the Stewards," to which Bro. Buss, Prov. Grand Treasurer, and one of the members of the Dalhousie Lodge, responded, after which the meeting broke up.

MASONIC PROFESSIONS AND PRACTICES.

There is a manly beauty and consistency in the formation and support of character, first adopting a system of ethics, by which to be governed, and then manfully to live up to the specific requirements of our own chosen standard. Manliness cannot be better displayed than by such a course.

All truly great men have attained their high standing in society by first adopting correct moral principles, and then having the firmness and independence to maintain them, in the face of all opposition, and thereby have shown their superiority over those who either have no defined and fixed principles, or if they profess them, have not the moral courage to support them.

The great character of our distinguished brother, George Washington, owed all its lustre and grandeur to the uncompromising fidelity with which he adhered to his chosen standard of moral principles. These sustained him in every position in which he was placed, and if he was called upon to make great sacrifices of ease, comfort and gain, or to sacrifice his principles, he ever choose the former; and these trials and sacrifices only made the true grandeur of his character to shine forth with increasing lustre.

The character and example of Bro. Washington has had a powerful influence in fixing the type of the true American character. In the primitive purity and simplicity of the American people, the influence of his example was more forcibly felt, than in later times, and as time rolls on, we are still being borne away, farther and farther from his personal example as a model of American manhood; but the principles which gave him all the force and influence of his illustrious life are imperishable and still retain the power to elevate, refine and promote all who, as he did, adopt and maintain them with unfaltering fidelity and devotion.

No Institution with which Washington was associated ever gained so powerful a hold on his affections and esteem as that of the Masonic Order, except that of the Church, to which he was greatly devoted. The system of ethics adopted and enforced in the Masonic Order, were found to be of the highest order, and that upon which the Church was founded, written by the finger of God Himself, upon tables of stone, imperishable and universal in their obligation, and upon which the laws of civil government are founded. This code of morals suited him; and it was the rule of his life, and formed the basis upon which he carved out his brilliant career, both in his military and civil achievements.

Others, with Washington, have found the lights which are shed from our sacred altars to be sufficiently strong and clear to illuminate their paths to virtue and its great rewards. The "great light" still shines in all its primitive brilliancy and force, and cannot fail if we are careful to follow in the paths and duties it reflects to gain like honours and rewards.

But the question arises here. Why are not all Masons good men, if not great men?

We answer, in the first place, that Masonry cannot confer capacity upon those who are not endowed with it by the God of Nature; we can only improve what we find they possess, we only give form and polish to the "Rough Ashlar" brought to our hands. Hence, all Masons are not great men.

We answer, in the second place, that if all Masons are not good men, it is not the fault of the Order, so far as its laws and principles are concerned.

In the nature of things, Masonry has a great work to do, in its labours upon the material brought up, to be fitted to its place in the great social and moral edifice. Some stones will not take a polish; some workmen have never, themselves, been reduced to Order,—not "fair work and square work." Some are too ready to compromise principle, and the immutable laws of the Order, for ease, luxury, self indulgence and prejudice. From these and many like causes, the high standards are lowered down to suit the circumstances of the times, and prevailing habits of place. There is too often a woeful departure from the principles of our profession, by which the sacred Order is made to suffer in all its great interests.

It is by far too common with many who profess to be Masons, when urged to uphold the sublime principles of our beloved Order, to repel the appeal by asking: "Do you want to make Masonry a Church, a temperance society, or a set of bigots? We are liberal in our views, and not disposed to restrain ourselves or our brethren when they choose to indulge their appetites and passions; we are but men, and don't profess to be saints; let us alone; other Masons can engage in any business, live as they please, and their lodges endorse their conduct. Why can we not do the same?"

The man who refuses to "subdue his passions and improve himself in Masonry"—a system of morality—should never knock at our doors; he should never bow at our altars; he should never make a profession of our doctrines and principles; he should never take upon himself the solemn vows and obligations by which he bound himself to be a Mason; to be a good man and true; and strictly to obey the moral law. The man who voluntarily takes upon himself our high profession, our sacred vows, and then indulges in profane swearing, gambling, frequents liquor shops, and lends his example and influence to promote drunkenness and debauchery in any form, violates his solemn vows, does violence to his profession, injures the cause of Masonry, and brings disgrace upon himself.

"We are not saints." No we do not, as Masons, profess to be saints; but will any intelligent Mason tell us the difference between the morality of Masonry and that of Christianity? Are they not the same? Our system of morality is derived from the Bible—the "Great Light" of Masonry. No man can be a good Mason, and not keep the moral law. The thing in itself is right, and every right-minded man will say so, whether he is a Mason or not. Masonry creates no new obligation; it only holds good men, under their own voluntary obligations, to do that which they ought to do, if there was no such thing as Masonry in the world.

Show us the man who willingly takes upon himself the high profession of a true and undefiled morality, such as every Mason subscribes to, and acts upon his profession, and we are prepared not only to take him by the hand, but to take him to our bosom as a brother and companion. We require nothing else. He may belong to any church or party in politics, or to no church or party; it matters not, if he is a good man and true, he is our brother. But profession and practice must go hand in hand, or else there is a fraud, a deception, and we pity the man who cannot be a man after the pattern of his Masonic profession.—Masonic Mirror.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A NEW MASONIC HALL IN NEW ZEALAND.

By reason of the land upon which the Masonic Hall, on LeCren's-terrace, stood being required by the General Government for the Timaru and Temuka railway, the Freemasons were compelled to seek for a suitable site elsewhere, and, after some trouble, succeeded in securing an eligible plot of land in Church street, opposite the English church. The old Hall, which was built of stone, was erected in 1866, and was used by the Freemasons until the year 1872. At this time, the cutting for the railway was made close to the building and undermined one corner of it, rendering it unsafe for use, and causing the Freemasons to forsake it, and conduct the business of their lodge in a room of Mr. White's offices. In 1872 the building was pulled down and the material stacked up until the Government paid the compensation for the removal of the building and placed the lodge in possession of funds to rebuild it. The amount of compensation to be paid the lodge was assessed in the District Court on January 15th, 1873, when the Freemasons were awarded £1,300, and interest on that sum at the rate of 8 per cent from the beginning of May, 1872. As soon as this was paid, the new site in Church street was purchased, and tenders called for the re-erection of the building, Mr. Parsons being the successful tenderer.

The foundations having been completed, it was decided to re-lay the foundation stone on Monday last.

The attendance of Freemasons was pretty large, several having come a considerable distance, but the number of visitors was small, probably in consequence of the laying of the stone being performed without Masonic ceremony, and therefore not so attractive as it otherwise would have been. The outward display was of a limited description, consisting merely of a number of poles ornamented with evergreens erected along three sides of the foundations of the building, and from which were suspended a profusion of bunting, giving to the scene rather a lively appearance.

At noon, the time appointed for performing the ceremony, the members of the Masonic body and some others mounted the platform at the eastern side of the building, at the northern corner of which the stone was suspended by a scaffolding ready for lowering it into position. Among those present were—Messrs. G. H. Wildie, W.M.; John King, I.P.M.; J. W. White, S.W.; G. W. Wade, J.W.; R. Scott, Treas.; W. M. Sims, Sec.; W. A. Hobbs, S.D.; J. Mackintosh, J.D.; G. Cliff, I.G.; H. Exley, Tyler; Rev. L. L. Brown, Chaplain.

In the stone on which the foundation-stone was to rest was cut a square hole, into which was placed and cemented down a bottle taken from the original lodge building when it was pulled down, containing newspapers, coins, &c., and another bottle containing a Lyttelton Times of Saturday's date, a Timaru Herald and South Canterbury Times of Monday's date, and a parchment, on which was inscribed the following:—

"This is to commemorate the re-laying of the foundation stone which was laid on the 30th of August A.L. 5866. The stone was taken up on the 14th of May, 5872, in consequence of the land being required for the Timaru and Temuka Railway. This stone is now re-laid without Masonic ceremony this 14th day of April, 5873, by George Hunter Wildie, W.M., in the presence of the officers and brethren of the Lodge."

Everything being readiness, the Worshipful Master said that he thought it was almost necessary that some apology should be made for bringing so many there to witness the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone, when probably many had come under the impression that it would be accompanied with the usual Masonic display and honours. In explanation, he would inform them that the stone was laid originally by the District Grand Master, Dr. Donald, and this being so, it was considered by the Grand Lodge in Christchurch unnecessary to re-lay it with Masonic honours, seeing that it had been already laid with all due ceremony. They had assembled there that day not as a Masonic body, but in their capacity as private individuals, to witness the re-laying of the stone for the honour of the institution to which they belonged. The stone was laid by the District Grand Master in 1866, and the cause of the removal since was in consequence of the Government requiring the land upon which the old hall stood for the Timaru and Temuka Railway. The removal of the stone was made on the 14th May, 1872, by their venerable Bro. Captain Scott, and the documents and coins which were placed underneath it and sealed up when the building was built were removed and placed inside the stone that day, together with some newspapers of that day's date. He trusted that those things would never have to be removed within the memory of man. The plans for the new building which he had in his hand, had previously been examined by the Committee. They were very fair specimens of skill and ingenuity on the part of the architect, Mr. Wilson, and he trusted the building would be carried out in its entirety according to them.

The stone was then lowered into its place, and after the W.M. had pronounced it perfectly square, level, and upright, he declared it duly laid.

The Chaplain then, in a few appropriate words invoked a blessing on the building.

The W.M. again addressing the assemblage remarked that it was barely necessary for him to say anything on behalf of the institution of Masonry, as he suspected many present were more thoroughly acquainted with the advantages to be derived from being a member of a Masonic body than he was himself, he being but a very young member. He might say that the present hall would be erected solely and wholly for the purposes to which it was dedicated—Freemasonry alone. It would be a hall in which Masons could meet, the reason of their assembling together being to bind themselves into one bond of brotherhood to work unanimously for the world's good, to feel they had to assist and improve the position of their fellow creatures, and not to say "Am I accountable for him, he is not my brother," but to assist his fellowman in all his undertakings. The great virtue of a Mason should be charity, not only in almsgiving—for a man is not expected to give more than he can afford—but he is expected to give at least sympathy to a brother in distress. Ancient writers had stated, and he believed it, that Masonry began with almost the beginning of the world, that the very moment sufficient people were created on the earth, and shook hands together with professions of good will to each other, that then Masonry commenced. This friendship naturally caused societies to be created, and in time they became universal. Now he supposed there was not a town in Europe or in the world of any importance, but what had in its midst one or more Masonic lodges. Anathemas had been hurled against Freemasonry, foul epithets have been used to decry it, but these had failed to weaken it, and it was now as secure as ever. Kings had passed away, and kingdoms and dynasties had decayed, but Masonry still possessed strength, and was now more prosperous and vigorous than ever. The longer they lived the more prosperous their Order would become, lasting until it was not required any longer, and that time would not be until the millennium arrived, when all people would be brothers, and when there would be no necessity for benevolence. Till then Masonry had its work to do. There were many charities belonging to Masonry which the world never heard of. If a man was a proper Mason, and adhered to the teaching given him in the lodge, he walked with benevolence in his hand and charity in his heart. He thought well and tried to do his duty to all mankind. Such was a Mason, according to the teaching of their lodges, and he trusted that that teaching was acted up to by all brothers. There were erring brothers but they were all human, and therefore could not expect every person to be perfect, but if they followed the teaching they received in Masonry they could not err greatly. No matter to what sect or to what clime a man belonged, so long as he was honest and upright and believed in the Great Architect of the Universe he would be allowed admission to the lodges. When once a Mason, no matter in what country he travelled, he would be certain to find a brother, and it was an acknowledged fact that many an assassin had stayed his hand when intending to take a man's life, and instead of being his murderer had become his greatest friend. Such things had not only been heard of, but also authenticated. He trusted that the Great Architect of the Universe would send his blessing on that building, and that plenty and abundance would be the lot of all the members of the lodge. In conclusion he (Bro. Wildie) invited those present to partake of refreshment in an adjoining building.

The Freemasons present, and a number of visitors, accepted the invitation, and partook of a cold collation laid out in the upper room of Bro. Cliff's stone store.

At the conclusion of the repast and champagne having been handed round, the W.M. rose and said that as the spread was altogether an impromptu one, he hoped the company would excuse its bareness. He did not feel inclined to make a speech and would at once propose a toast which he was sure would be drunk with enthusiasm, namely, "Queen Victoria."

The toast was drunk in a loyal manner.

The Chairman then proposed "Prosperity to Timaru and the new Lodge." He coupled the new building with Timaru, because if Timaru progressed the Lodge would progress. There was certainly every indication of Timaru continuing to prosper, and while doing so the Lodge would be sure to prosper also. As the prosperity of Timaru affected the inhabitants generally as well as the masons, he would couple the toast with the name of Bro. Maxwell.

The toast having been drunk,

Bro. Maxwell said he was taken by surprise by hearing his name coupled with the toast. He would merely state that as regarded Timaru no one could wish it more prosperity than he did, and as for the new lodge he wished it every success.

Bro. King said he had the pleasant duty of proposing the toast of "The Architect and Contractor," the first of whom had in a most skilful manner designed the building, and the latter had made a good start towards building it according to those designs.

After the toast was drunk,

Bro. Wilson said that he was greatly obliged for the manner in which they had drunk the toast, but would reserve his speech until the building was completed.

Bro. Parsons also responded.

Bro. White said he would ask the Freemasons to charge their glasses and drink the toast of "The Gentlemen who had attended that day to witness the re-laying of the foundation-stone, and who had graced the board by their presence afterwards." He would couple the toast with the name of Bro. Luxmore.

The toast was drunk with musical honors.

Bro. Luxmore said he thanked them exceedingly for the kind manner in which they had drunk the toast of the visitors. He was very glad himself to be present on the occasion, because he believed that Masonic and other kindred bodies were really a great advantage to the public, as they already afforded support to any member who might happen to be in distress. He had much pleasure in congratulating the Freemasons on being in the position of freeholders instead of, as they were before, leaseholders. (Hear, hear.) In conclusion, he stated that he felt confident the Masonic Institution would prosper in Timaru, and be a benefit not only to the town but the district at large.

Bro. Price said he had a toast to propose, in which he was sure they would all heartily join—"The health of Bro. Wildie, the W.M."

The toast was drunk with all the honors.

Bro. Wildie thanked the company for their kindness, and assured them that the toast was entirely unlooked and uncalled for. (No.) If he were possessed of the eloquence of Cicero, or the oratorical power of Demosthenes, he might have been able to do justice to that day's proceedings, but he felt that he lacked the ability to do justice to them himself. He would like to see in Timaru and other towns, persons at the head of Freemasonry of ability and intellect, to do that justice to the cause which it deserved.

The toast of "The Press" was then drunk and responded to by Mr. Ball and Mr. Feldwick.

The company then separated.

MASONIC ORPHAN BOYS' SCHOOL, DUBLIN.

The regular monthly meeting of the committee of this institution was held at Freemasons' Hall, Dublin, on Monday, the 14th inst., Bro. E. W. Maunsell in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and signed,

The Secretary announced that the receipts for the month of June amounted to £158 9s., and included a second donation of £50 from Bro. James Tyrrel £20, from R. Arch Chapter, No. 225; £10 from the Preceptor of H.K.T. No. 141; £10 from the Secretary of Prince Masons Chapter, No. 9, Dublin; £10 from Bro. James Stirling; £2, jury fees, from Bro. Harry Hodges, and £2 from J. H. Edge.

The half-yearly report from Bro. Rev. Samuel Skeen, of Adelaide Hall School, Merrion, at whose establishment the pupils of the school are now located, was submitted, and gave a most satisfactory account of the progress the pupils had made during the previous six months. Immediately previous to breaking up for the midsummer vacation examinations were held. The Rev. J. K. Leatham, A.M., Mathematical Moderator, T.C.D., who conducted the ordinary examinations, says in his report:—"Your boys answered me extremely well in all the subjects in which I examined them. Their acquaintance with geography and history was particularly good. The Latin and Greek grammars were well known, and the translations from classical authors were correct and flowing. In Euclid, the style of answering of most, showed not only that they had been carefully taught, but that they understood the subject."

The special examination for prizes offered by a member of the committee for the best answering in arithmetic, spelling, and dictation were, at the request of the committee, conducted by Bro. the Rev. Joseph Galbraith, F.T.C.D., assisted by Benjamin Gibson, who, in forwarding their report, state—

"The answering was very good, and we are happy to be able to add that the excellent condition and appearance of the boys do credit to Mr. Skeen."

The committee confirmed the recommendation of the examiners, and awarded the first prize in the first class, value £1, to James Erett; the second prize, value 10s., to John King Irwin; and the prize in the second class, value 10s., to George Du Noyer.

Brett's marks at the special examination reckoned as 280, out of a possible 300; and at the general examination, 1,359, out of 1,500.

The Good Conduct Medals, presented by Bro. S. B. Oldham, were awarded—that in the first class, in silver, to James Brett; that in the second-class, in bronze, to Robert Warren. This award was made by the vote of the pupils themselves, with the full approval of the master, who in his report says he has "much pleasure in stating that they are well deserving of them." The medal is a very beautiful specimen of die sinking, executed in Mr. Woodhouse's best style. It consists of an artistically arranged group, representing Faith, Hope, and Charity, with the name of the institution in a ribbon around it, surcharged on the equilateral triangles, interlaced, the whole forming a six-pointed star, suspended from a clasp, combining the crown and shamrock.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Negligence always inexcusable, becomes altogether unpardonable, when a pestilence, such as cholera, threatens to stalk throughout the land and relentlessly claim all ages for its victims. Have these remedies handy, let this Ointment be instantly, briskly, and perseveringly rubbed upon the abdomen, when disordered. At certain seasons, when the air is rife with infection and the water provokes disease, it becomes the permanent duty of all invalids to keep themselves and their families in full health and vigour. No wound or sore should be permitted to run its destructive course, when all such predisposing causes of danger may be effectually removed by this healing Ointment and these purifying Pills, without enervating or irritating the constitution.—ADVT.

CONSECRATION OF THE IVY LODGE NO. 1441.

On Tuesday the 16th inst., a new lodge, under the above title and number, was consecrated under the happiest auspices at Bro. Laxton's Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark-bridge road. The founders of this lodge may be heartily congratulated on their triumph in procuring the assent of Grand Lodge to their undertaking.

Only those who have themselves been engaged in the task, successful or otherwise of receiving a Warrant of Constitution from Grand Lodge can estimate the trouble and anxiety, to say nothing of the expense involved in the task. In the vast majority of cases the metropolitan applications fail; and with just reason, because already one-seventh of the entire number of the lodges owing allegiance to the English Constitution and spread over the four quarters of the globe, are located in and about the metropolis, and it may be well assumed at head-quarters that every reasonable facility at present exists for the promulgation of the tenets and principles of Freemasonry without the issue of further warrants.

We have ascertained that the intention of the founders of the Ivy Lodge, and more especially we would not mention the name of the Worshipful Master designate, Bro. Chas. Smith, to whom in chief measure the merit of obtaining the warrant is attributable, is to establish it on a high moral standard, to hold as the only object of its being the furthering of Masonic principles and the active support of Masonic benevolence, holding all other matters as subservient. Actuated by this spirit, which we sincerely hope may animate it even when those who have ushered it into existence shall have passed away we trust that the Ivy Lodge will never degenerate into a mere dining club or estimate the regular recurrence of costly banquets above the privilege of being frequently announced to the Masonic world as benefactors to those in temporary distress, the aged, the widow, and the fatherless. If the intention of the founders is carried out in its integrity with regard to the moral qualifications of its accepted members it will only fulfil the wishes which should be understood as commands, expressed by the Most Worshipful Grand Master when he last presided at Grand Lodge, and when he strongly animadverted on the conduct of certain lodges which had been lax in their acceptance of candidates for admission into the Order.

Three o'clock was the time fixed for the opening ceremony, and shortly after that hour the lodge-room, which is handsome and very well adapted to its intended use, being well filled with the founders and visiting brethren, the majority of whom had passed the chair, the Consecrating Officer appointed by the M.W.G. Master, Bro. James Terry, P.M. 228, 1278, 1366, P.Z. 17 &c., P. Prov. Grand Sword Bearer, Herts, a Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, commenced the ceremony of consecration. In the preliminary business he was obligingly assisted by Bros. C. A. Cottebrun Grand Pursuivant and Wm. Stuart, P.M. N 141, as Wardens; Bro. George Free, P.M. N 13, as Honorary Secretary; and by Bro. John Noke, P.M. No. 87, as Director of Ceremony. Bro. C. B. Payne, Grand Tyler; was in attendance with the golden consecrating vessels, a the appointments of the lodge, were altogether well chosen and even elegant.

Bro. Bilby presided at the harmonium, and with his fine voice the anthems, &c., were given with great effect.

To those brethren who have been present when Bro. Terry has acted as Consecrating Master, to describe his style would be superfluous; to others we will fearlessly say it throughout the whole length and breadth of Craft no brother could be found to excel in delivery in dignity or effect, or the high religious earnestness he has the power of effusing in hearers.

The lodge having been consecrated and constituted, Bro. Smith, the W.M. designate, was presented, and in due form, and with ancient custom installed as first Worshipful Master. By especial favour of the M.W.G. Master, I

Smith has obtained the summit of his Masonic ambition at one bound, having never served the office of warden in a regular lodge, but never has such signal favour been more worthily bestowed. A young mason, Bro. Smith, early distinguished himself by constant devotion to lodges of instruction, and no duty attached to the chair in which he will be found unprepared or incompetent. The chair of the "Ivy" lodge is now filled by a diligent masonic scholar and a courteous gentleman, who will, we are confident set a good example to those who will succeed him in his high office, which they will do well to study and imitate.

The W.M., having been installed, at once proceeded to appoint his officers as follows.—Bros. Geo. Mattock, S.W.; Josiah T. Cantle, J.W., pro tem., consequent on the absence of Bro. Louis Hirsch, J.W., Designate; Edward Thurkle, Treasurer; Charles T. Jolly, Secretary; Charles J. Poupard, S.D.; Louis Corneilssen, J.D.; Ashwell, I.G. and C. Fox; Tyler. Past Master, John Noke, No. 87, undertook the P.M.'s duties until a regular successor should be appointed. After the final addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren had been finely delivered by Bro. Terry, and the formal duties of the day had been completed, the W.M. rose and said:—"That the first duty that devolved upon him as W. Master of the "Ivy" lodge, was to him a very pleasing one. It was to propose that a vote of thanks be tendered to Bro. Terry, for the manner in which he had so efficiently performed the arduous duties imposed on him by the M.W.G.M., as consecrating and installing officer. He was confident that a deep and lasting impression had been made upon the minds of all who had witnessed the solemn services of the day; the brethren of the "Ivy" lodge felt profoundly grateful to Bro. Terry, and he had been requested by them to enquire if he would be good enough to accept an honorary life membership of the lodge. Bro. Terry having expressed his sense of the compliment, the motion was put from the chair, carried unanimously, and acknowledged by the Consecrating Officer in appropriate terms.

The W.M. then stated that he had another duty to perform of an equally pleasing character, it was to propose Bro. Cottebrune as an honorary member of the lodge.

This motion was put, and carried with unanimity equal to the former.

After Bro. Cottebrune had expressed his acknowledgements, thanks were tendered to Bro. Bilby for his services as Organist, and to the brethren generally for their kind assistance at that day's ceremonial. Several candidates for initiation having been proposed, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer.

After a cold collation had been served to the brethren, presided over by the W.M., the following toasts were proposed and duly honoured, "Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen and the Craft;" "The M.W.G.M., the Most Noble the Marquess of Ripon, K.G.;" "The M.W.P.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G.;" "The R.W.D.P.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Officers of Grand Lodge, Past and Present."

This toast was acknowledged by Bro. Cottebrune, G.P.

The toast of "The Worshipful Master" was proposed by Bro. Terry, in graceful and eloquent terms, he stated that the newly constituted lodge enjoyed the advantage of being presided over by one who was a gentleman in the truest sense of the word, and eminently qualified by his Masonic attainments for the post to which he had been appointed. He sincerely wished every prosperity to the Ivy Lodge, and hoped that it would long cling to the tree of Freemasonry.

The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm and replied to by the W.M. in suitable language and in a manner which showed that he fully appreciated the kind sentiments of his brethren.

The visitors replied seriatim to the toast of their health, all of them expressing hearty good wishes for the prosperity of the new lodge and regard, and affection for its W.M. Bro. T. H. Meredith, P.M., in his reply incidentally stated that he had initiated Bro. Smith, into the Order, and felt a natural pride in witnessing the position he now occupied in the Craft, there were four brethren whom he introduced into Freemasonry now occupying the position of W.M., a fact which he need hardly say was exceedingly gratifying to him.

After the health of "The Officers" had been proposed and responded to, the Tyler's toast was given and the brethren separated shortly after six o'clock.

Amongst the brethren present on this interesting occasion beyond those already designated were:—Bros. G. Ashwell, P.M. 22; G. Wingham, P.M. 25; W. Y. Laing, P.M. 45; E. Harris, P.M. and Treasurer 73, Collector of Institution for Boys; G. T. Fox, P.M. and late Treasurer 73, P.Z. 13; C. Hartley, W.M.; C. Nott, H. Wright, and J. Welsh, 87; H. Bartlett, W.M. 147; G. F. Swan, P.M. 304; Domburg, 511; R. Welsford, P.M. and Treasurer; and R. Foster, 548; R. Gans, P.M. 632; J. N. Gailant, I.G. 813; F. H. Meredith, P.M. 1257; T. Laxton, W.M. 1321; and many others.

CONSECRATION OF THE ETRUSCAN CHAPTER, LONGTON.

The consecration of the Etruscan Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, took place at the Masonic Hall, Longton, on Thursday, July 17th. The ceremony was most efficiently performed by the Grand Superintendent of Staffordshire, M.E. Comp., Geo. S. Tudor, assisted by M.E. Comp. Lewis and several other P.Z.'s.

The musical arrangements were under the direction of M.E. Comp. E. Shargool and were very well rendered.

Comp. John Pratt delivered a most excellent oration on Masonry.

After the chapter had been consecrated the following companions were regularly installed:—Horton Yates, Z.; A. Patterson, H.; F. S. Wright, J.

At the close of the ceremonies the companions sat down to a most sumptuous banquet at the Portland Hotel, provided by Bro. J. Meigh, M.E. Comp., Alfred Glover, presided, supported by M.E. Comp., G. S. Tudor, and M. E. Comp. Lewis, and other companions. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The whole of the arrangements were everything that could be desired.

The furniture, which gave great satisfaction, was supplied by Bro. George Kenning, of London, and Liverpool.

HERE'S HEALTH TO THE PRINCE!

By Bro. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z.

Here's a health to the Prince who now graces the dais,

A Prince and a Mason united in one,
But a Prince though he is, we all meet on the level.

May the tie that unites us be never undone!

May his home be as happy as true love can make it,

May domestic affliction ne'er ruffle its calm,
May the Wife and the Children who share his affection

Be preserved with himself from all that can harm!

May he see all the peoples over whom he may reign,

United and happy—attached to the throne;
Remembering ever that all blessings must come
From our Father in heaven—and from Him alone!

Then Here's to the Prince who now sits on the dais,

To whom we're united by brotherly love,
May his life be a long one, and happy as long—

Endow'd with all wisdom, and grace from Above!

A Poem to Her Majesty the Queen, with the celebrated wine-skins which she has graciously granted to the leather, for all ages; and children's hats with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

NOTICE.

"MASONIC HISTORIANS, No. 5," by Bro. Hughan, the Masonic Historiographer, will be completed in all probability in our next issue. Its delay is consequent on the "History of Freemasonry and the Lodge of Edinburgh" by Bro. D. Murray Lyon, not having yet made its appearance, although confidently expected last week.

Bro. Hughan wrote the first portion of his interesting article from advanced sheets kindly sent him by the publishers, and as the work itself is almost certain to be issued during the coming week, we hope the friendly review will be concluded in "The Freemason," for the 2nd August.

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D., T.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners; Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. Routledge, Esq., B.S.F.C.S., Manchester; also the Protestant Clergy, Nobility, and Professional Gentlemen (parents of present pupils) in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, Bognor, Preston, Burnley, Chester, Lancaster, Boston (Lincoln), Wigan, Harrowgate, Accrington, Haslingden, Kendal, Southport, Todmorden, &c., and various other towns; the Continent of Europe, the colonies, New York, and the United States, Brazil, Cuba, &c., who can bear ample testimony to the merits and success of this College.

Next term commences the 7th August, 1873.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.
CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.
 Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
 Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."
 This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.
 * * * Invidious should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN AND BUNION PLAISTERS are the best ever invented for giving immediate ease, and removing those painful excrescences. Price 6d. and 1s. per box. May be had of most chemists.
 Observe the trade mark.—HY—without which none are genuine be sure and ask for YOUNG'S.

GARSTON.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 220).—On the afternoon of Wednesday, the 23rd ult., the members of this successful suburban lodge, assembled at the Garston Hotel, Garston, for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. Dr. J. V. Worthington. The attendance of members and visitors was large and highly influential, and the whole of the afternoon's proceedings were of the most interesting character. The lodge was opened by Bro. W. Jones, W.M., who was supported by Bros. W. Vines, P.M.; C. Leedham, P.M.; J. Sellar, P.M.; Dr. J. V. Worthington, S.W.; J. Evans, J.W.; J. W. Baker, P.M. Treas.; T. B. Tellett, Sec.; J. Hughes, S.D.; A. Fisher, J.D.; R. Jones, P.M., D.C.; J. Clark, Org.; M. Bush I.G.; G. Aspinall, S.S.; I. Raw, J.S.; and J. Robinson, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. J. Coats, F. McGarvey, J. Booth, R. Webster, D. Ellis, J. H. Norton, J. Jones, S. Hardy, J. Tewkesbury, W. Guest, C. Humphries, S.W. 1013; J. Gordon, J. Parslow, J. Cave, J. Ellis, T. E. Lloyd, S. Tickle, W. H. Lovelady, J. D. Graham, I. Platt, J. Jarvis, T. Coates, W. Newall, &c. Amongst the visitors were Bros. A. C. Mott, P.G.S.W. of Westmoreland and Cumberland; W. Boulton, W.M. 823; W. G. Veale, Org. 203; J. Banning, P.M. 823; J. Busfield, 216; J. Kenyon, 1013; A. T. Smith, S.D. 1299; G. Dodson, P.G.S.B.; J. Kenyon, S.S. 897; J. Rose, W.M. 249; G. Williams, 1182; J. J. Jacob, 294; John Banning, 823; T. Dodson, 995. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, Bro. Dr. J. V. Worthington, was installed W.M. according to ancient form by Bro. J. Hamer, P. Prov. G. Treas.; and the following brethren were subsequently invested as officers for the ensuing year—Bros. W. Jones, I.P.M.; J. Evans, S.W.; J. Hughes, J.W.; W. Vines, P.M., Treas.; T. B. Tellett, Sec.; A. Fisher, S.D.; M. Bush, J.D.; I. Raw, I.G.; R. Jones, P.M., D.C.; S. Tickle, S.S.; and J. Tewkesbury, J.S. Bro. J. Robinson was unanimously re-elected Tyler of the lodge. After the installation ceremony, the newly-installed W.M. initiated Dr. F. D. Sutherland in a highly effective manner. It should be mentioned that Bro. Worthington presented the lodge with a new set of gavels, and rough and perfect ashlar, and that before the business proceedings closed a very chaste P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. W. Jones, as a token of the respect and esteem in which he was held by the brethren. A sumptuous banquet was subsequently served in a fine tent, provided by the Garston brethren, fitted up in the grounds of the Garston Hotel. The tables were decorated with a number of choice plants, lent by Bro. Meredith, of the Lodge No. 1182, and the band of the Pride of Garston Lodge of Druids played during the dinner. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and cordially responded to during the evening. In giving the toast of "Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M. and the P.G. Officers," the W.M. alluded to the fact that his Lordship had promised to visit all the lodges within his province in the course of time, and he was sure that the brethren of 220 would do all in their power to give him a becoming welcome. The toast was acknowledged by Bros. J. W. Baker, and A. C. Mott. Bro. W. Jones, I.P.M., gave the toast of "The Worshipful Master," to whom he paid a high compliment as a worthy Mason and one who would admirably fulfil the duties of his important office. The toast was received with the greatest enthusiasm, after which Bro. Worthington, W.M., responded in eloquent terms, promising to do his utmost to forward the interests of the lodge during his year of office. "The Past Masters" was acknowledged by Bro. W. Jones, I.P.M.; "The Officers" by Bro. Evans, S.W.; "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," proposed by Bro. P.M. Leedham, by Bro. Mott, "The Visiting Brethren," by Bros. Boulton, Rose, Kenyon, and P.M. Banning; "The Resident brethren of Garston," given by Bro. R. Jones, P.M., responded to by Bro. Tickle, and "The Newly Initiated Brother" acknowledged by Bro. Dr. Sutherland. Several excellent songs were sung during the evening, and the pleasant proceedings terminated at an early hour.

LIVERPOOL.—Neptune Lodge (No. 1264).—The annual summer festival of this admirably conducted lodge, which took place on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., was in every respect one of the most successful and enjoyable which has yet been held in connection with the lodge. Favoured with the most brilliant weather, which was all the more grateful after the terrible thunderstorm of the previous evening, a large party of about 160 started from Lime-street, shortly after 10 o'clock, and proceeded to Thatch Heath, which had once more been selected as the scene of the day's festivity. On arriving at the lovely grounds of the village hotel, the brethren and their fair friends immediately set about enjoying themselves according to their various tastes. Amongst those present were:—Bros. Davies, W.M.; P. B. Gee, I.P.M.; J. Healing, P.M., Treas.; J. Pemberton, P.M., Sec.; J. Taylor, P.M., M.C.; H. Williams, P.M.; J. Dixon, S.W.; T. Singleton, J.W.; W. Roberts, S.D.; J. Cotter, J.D.; Royle, I.G.; Korn, S.S.; Hughes, J.S.; Fish, A.S.; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 673; J. Wood, Treas. 1094; Burrows, 673; and others. Mr. Wittle, the landlord of the hotel, had made special preparations for the excursionists by providing a new entrance to his grounds, which at present show a magnificent display of flowers, and are beautifully laid out. Messrs. Walsham and Thomas's band met the brethren at the station, and marched at their head to the ground. An excellent banquet was served in the large dining hall connected with the hotel, at which Bro. Arthur Davies presided, supported by a large number of P.M.'s and other officers of the lodge. A number of loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and cordially responded to. Bro. P. B. Gee, I.P.M., in giving the health of "The Worshipful Master of the Neptune Lodge Bro. Arthur Davies," said he had known Bro. Davies for about four years in Masonry, and during the whole of that time he had seen the invariable kindness which had marked his conduct, in fact he had displayed every quality which should endear him to a Mason's heart, and he trusted their W.M. would have health and strength given him to fulfil aright the duties of his important office. In acknowledging the toast, the W.M. in an eloquent speech, referred to the great pleasure it gave him to meet again so many brethren on their annual festival day. He also spoke of the excellent effect which such annual social gatherings must have upon every member, especially when they were favoured with the presence of so many ladies. Bro. Gee responded to the toast of "The Past Masters," Bro. P.M. Healing to that of "The Ladies," Bro. Dixon, S.W., to "The Officers of the Lodge;" Bro. P.M. Williams on behalf of "Our Absent Sea-faring Brethren." After toast, song and sentiment, the company betook themselves to various amusements. Dancing appeared to be the chief attraction, excellent music being furnished by the quadrille band in attendance. Various groups of the "outers" were successfully photographed by Bro. H. Burrows during the afternoon. After spending a pleasant afternoon the party returned to town at an early hour.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—At the White Swan Tavern, High Street, Deptford, on Thursday, July 24th, this lodge held its meeting. Bro. William Andrews, P.M. and Treasurer (in the unavoidable absence of the W.M.), opened the lodge. Bro. W. Myatt, W.M., soon afterwards arrived, and took the chair. He was supported by Bros. G. Andrews, S.W.; S. A. Lewin, J.W.; F. Walters, P.M. and Secretary, Prov. Steward Middlesex; H. J. Tuson, S.D.; J. J. Pakes, J.D.; H. J. Wells, I.G.; R. Killick, W.S.; J. Hawker, P.M.; J. Truelove, P.M.; G. Porter, H. W. F. Fellows, H. J. Fisher, J. G. Thomas, R. West, L. Lemon, T. Spencer, T. Harton, H. Schartau, J. Rennie, and others. The long list of visitors comprised Bro. H. Sadler, P.M. 147; J. Beckett, 148; E. H. Thiellay, S.D. 145; W. Kipps, I.G. and Organist 1275; E. Wisner, 700; P. From, 1326; F. Jensen, 1326. The work performed was conferring the third degree on Bros. H. W. F. Fellows, P. From (1326) and F. Jensen (1326). The W.M. distinguished himself by his admirable manner of performing the important ceremony of raising. Four gentlemen were proposed for initiation. Those, in addition to others already balloted for, made more than five names on the list of candidates for initiation, consequently to ease the work, it was unanimously resolved to hold an emergency meeting of the lodge on Thursday, August 28th, at five o'clock, p.m. To enable the wife and family of a brother, who was at one time a member of this lodge, to join him in America (where he had gone to better his position in life), it was unanimously resolved to raise a sufficient amount (£23) from the lodge and charity funds of the lodge. Business being ended, the lodge was closed. There was not any banquet or refreshment.

LIVERPOOL.—Prince of Wales Lodge, (No. 1035).—Wednesday, the 23rd ult., being the day selected for the annual picnic of the Prince of Wales Lodge, 1035, about 150 of the brethren, their wives, and sweethearts, met at Lime-street station at noon, where first-class saloon carriages were waiting to convey them to Runcorn station, where they were provided with conveyances to Halton Castle, the scene of the afternoon's enjoyment. Amongst those present were the W.M., Bro. Sculthorpe; Bro. M'Nab, S.W.; Crosby, J.W.; Bunting, P.M.; Morgan, P.M.; A. Willis, Sec.; Salmon, S.D.; Westbury, J.D. Amongst the visitors were Bro. J. T. Callow, P.M. 673; Bro. North, P.M. 216; Walmesley, 292; Bro. Captain Berry, S.W. 1393; Bro. Gee, 249, &c. The scene from the elevated point of Halton Castle may be, and no doubt is, very fine on a clear day; but unfortunately a smoky mist hanging around the valleys below somewhat interfered with the pleasure of the prospect. However, the party, having come to enjoy themselves, determined to do so, and having some good turf, and excellent music, by the Liverpool police band, under the leadership of Mr. Beardall, the younger portion took to dancing, while the more sedate played bowls on a green, which was of anything but of the best description. Ample provision was made for the comfort of the inner man, and, as the shades of evening closed round, the party made towards home, well pleased with their "out."

SOMERSET.—Saint Kew Lodge (No. 1222).—Bro. General Gore Boland Munbee, P.M., P. Prov. S.G.W., was installed W.M. of this lodge by Bro. E. Else, P. Prov. G.S.W., P.G. Sec. (who ably performed the ceremony in the absence of Bro. Captain Bridges, D.P.G.M. through indisposition), on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., at the Masonic Hall. The following officers were afterwards invested:—Bros. B. Cox, P.M.; Rev. R. H. Bigsby, S.W.; S. Jones, J.W.; Rev.—Martin, Chap.; H. W. Davies, Treas.; H. R. Pearson, Sec.; A. W. Butler, S.D.; S. Lewis, J.D.; E. E. Earle, D. of C.; L. H. Ricketts, I.G.; W. Gaskell, Organist; J. Bath, and A. Wickenden, Stewards; W. Cousins, Tyler. The W.M. closed the lodge with prayer. The brethren then adjourned to Bro. Bath's, Railway Hotel, where a most sumptuous banquet was served under the superintendence of the Stewards. The visitors present were:—Bros. E. Else, P. Prov. S.G.W., P.G. Sec., Somerset, 291; G. T. Inskip, P.G. J.W. Somerset, 626; J. Cook, P. Prov. G. J.W. Somerset, 135.

HAMPTON COURT.—Burdett Lodge (No. 1293).—This lodge met at the Mitre Hotel, Hampton Court, on Saturday, the 26th ult., when there were present:—Bros. D. R. Still, W.M.; Colonel Burdett, P.M. and Prov. G.M.; R. Wentworth Little, P.M. and Treas., Prov. G. Sec.; H. Phythian, S.W.; D. R. Pearse, P.M., as J.W.; H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treas., Sec.; J. W. Wiles, J.D.; S. Rosenthal, P. Prov. G.W.; J. W. Saunders, J. W. Berric, R. Kotzenberg, W. Owen, D. Bindoff, and E. Baxter, with several visitors, including:—Bros. J. Lewis Thomas, P.M. 141; R. G. Glover, P.M. 181; and S. Lazarus, P.M. The lodge having been opened, Bro. Wilkin was accepted as a joining member, after which the annual subscription was, pursuant to notice of motion, increased. Two brethren were proposed as joining members and the lodge was then closed. A banquet followed, but after the loyal toasts, the usual routine was dispensed with, and the brethren went out to enjoy a charming evening on the banks of the river.

POTTER'S BAR.—Acacia Lodge (No. 1309).—On Saturday, July 26th, at the Railway Hotel, Potter's Bar, Middlesex, the regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held. Punctually at the appointed time the lodge was opened by Bro. Frederick Walters, Prov. G.S. of Middlesex, P.M. and Secretary. The W.M., Bro. E. W. Richardson, was detained in town by professional duties. The minutes of the previous lodge meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot was unanimous in favour of the admission of Captian John Harnett Dodd (in consequence of his going to sea long before the next lodge meeting, his candidature was declared to be a case of real emergency, which enabled him to be initiated at this meeting). The long list of work was got through by the presiding officer, initiating each candidate separately into the several degrees. He commenced by initiating Messrs. Henry Bryceson, John Bryceson, Abraham Gould, and Capt. John Harnett Dodd, into the mysteries and privileges of Ancient Freemasonry. He passed Bro. R. Jennings (907) Royal Albert Lodge, to the second degree; and completed the day's work by raising Bro. J. J. Colman to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The work was very carefully, impressively, and correctly done by the worthy Secretary, Bro. Frederick Walters, P.M. Bro. G. J. Waddington, S.D., by letter resigned his office and membership of the lodge in consequence of leaving for New Zealand. His resignation was accepted with very great and deep regret, as he is a popular and highly esteemed brother. The promotions which were made was the appointing Bros. C. A. Ferrier, Junior to Senior Deacon, and C. G. Rushworth, from Inner Guard to Junior Deacon. The new officers then appointed and invested with the collar and jewel of their office were Bros. H. J. Webster, I.G., and W. Y. Laing, P.M., Tyler. The following resolutions were duly made, and unanimously agreed to, namely—That the sum of five guineas be taken from the lodge funds, to purchase a Past Masters' jewel, to be presented to Bro. John Henry Button, I.P.M., P.G.A.D.C., Middlesex, for the efficient services rendered to this lodge during his year of office; also that his name be returned to the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Col F. Burdett, as the member whom the lodge would like to see selected for higher honours in the province. The name of Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G.S., Middlesex, P.M., and Secretary, was ordered to be returned as the member whom the lodge recommended and would like to see receive Provincial Grand Lodge office in 1874. Some gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. There were present, besides those enumerated, Bros. G. W. Schollar, S.W.; R. Limpus, P.G.C., J.W.; J. W. George. The visitors were Bros. T. H. P. Moore, J.W. 907; R. Jennings. At the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, held on Thursday, 17th July, the following members were honoured with appointments, viz., Bros. John Henry Button, I.P.M., promoted from P.G.S. to P.G.A.D.C.; R. Limpus, P.G.O.; and Frederick Walters, P.G.S.

MILLOM.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held in the lodge-room on the 15th inst., to instal Bro.

Thomas Dodgson, the W.M. elect and P.M. 995, as W.M. for the ensuing year. The chair was taken by Bro. R. Dodgson, the W.M. and P.G.S.B. Cumberland and Westmoreland, supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bro. T. Dodgson, S.W.; J. Mills, J.W.; Jas. Meredith Leo, S.D.; Postlethwaite, I.G., W. Cook, S.S.; W. Whiteside, J.S.; J. Holloway Org.; and J. T. Scott, Tyler; John Case, P.G.J. West Lancashire, P.Z. and P.M. 995; B. Pearson, P.M. 995; H. Waiting, W. Bradley, J. R. Beck John Barrow, P.M. 1353. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Henry Cook, P.P.G.S.W. Cumberland and Westmorland and P.M. 1021, &c.; Morgan, Chaplain 1318; W. Harrison, S.W. 995; Dr. Robinson, Sec. 995; John Hartley, 1398 and S.S. 995; F. Best, J.D. 1398; and Bro. Casson, P.J.D. and Org. 995; who ably presided at the harmonium. The minutes of the last regular communication were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the second degree. Bro. Case presented Bro. T. Dodgson, the W.M. elect, who after promising adherence to the ancient charges and regulations, took the O.B. of a W.M. elect. A board of Installed Masters was formed, and the brethren below that rank having retired, Bro. T. Dodgson was duly installed in the chair of K.S. by the Installing Master, Bro. R. Dodgson, I.P.M., which ceremony was performed in an exceedingly impressive and effective manner. The brethren saluted the W.M. in the three several degrees, and the following officers were invested with their respective badges.—Bros. Mills, S.W. and Treas.; Jas. Meredith, J.W.; Jas. Postlethwaite, Sec.; W. Crook, S.D.; H.M. Meakin, J.D.; W. Whiteside, I.G.; J. Holloway, Org.; H. Waiting, S.S.; W. Bull, J.S.; and J. T. Scott, Tyler. Bro. Pearson, J. and P.M. 995, explained the jewel. The Installing Master addressed the Wardens, afterwards the brethren generally. The lodge was then resumed in the first degree. Communications were received from several brethren, containing expressions of regret at not being able to be present at the installation. Hearty good wishes were given from lodges Nos. 86, 119, 281, 1021, 1353, 1398. The lodge was finally closed in due form, and with solemn prayer, at 3.45 p.m. The brethren, to the number of about forty, afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet at the Station Hotel, provided by the host, Bro. Henry Waiting. Bro. R. Dodgson, Installing Master, acted as Director of Ceremonies. The W.M. gave the following toasts, "The Queen and the rest of the Royal Family." "The Army, Navy, and Volunteer Forces," responded to by Bro. Dr. Robinson; "The Grand Lodge, Grand Master, Deputy G. and Master." In giving the toast of "The Provincial Grand Lodge Officers," the W.M. said he was personally acquainted with them all, and the way in which the business was conducted. He need make no remarks about any particular officer, as they were all good, and he would couple the name of Bro. R. Dodgson, P.G.S.B., Cumberland and Westmoreland, who responded, and said that Earl Bective, it was well-known, had always discharged his duties with fervency and zeal, so had the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Col. Whitwell, M.P.; he was a thorough good worker, and took great interest in the Craft; he was happy to hold an office under his management. Bro. Cook, P. Prov. G.S.W. also replied. Bro. Cook, P. Prov. G.S.W. proposed "The newly installed W.M." The W.M. said he was exceedingly flattered by the kind manner in which Bro. Cook had spoken of him. He sincerely intended to do what that day had been given in his charge, and he relied on his officers to help him to do all he possibly could for the good and great work of Freemasonry. Bro. Pearson, P.M. 995, proposed "The Past Masters and Installing Master." He said they did not often find a retiring W.M. capable of acting as Installing Master. Bro. Dodgson had performed his duty in such an efficient manner that the Lodge intended to present him with a jewel. The W.M. then presented to Bro. Dodgson a handsome P.M. jewel, on behalf of the Lodge, in recognition of his Masonic zeal and excellent services rendered to the Lodge. Bro. R. Dodgson replied in a feeling manner, and thanked the brethren for their kind acknowledgement of his labours. He would still continue to do all he could for the Lodge and the Craft. He could say the S.W. was always ready to further the interests of Freemasonry; the J.W. was also a zealous Mason. He thanked the officers, who had all regularly attended to their duties. Bro. Case, P.M. 895, proposed "The S.W., J.W. and the Officers generally." The S.W. and the J.W. responded. "The Clergy" was proposed by Bro. Mills, S.W., and responded to by Bro. Morgan, Chaplain 1398. "The Visitors" was proposed by the S.W., and responded to by Bro. Cook. "The Host and Hostess," and the Tyler's toast were then given, and the gathering broke up to leave by the 7.15 train.

LEICESTER.—Commercial Lodge (No. 1391).—The annual picnic of this lodge took place on the 21st inst., at Belvoir Castle, the residence of the Duke of Rutland. The weather being serenely beautiful, a numerous party of brethren and ladies assembled at the first-class waiting-room to proceed by the 9.20. train to Melton, where carriages were provided to complete the journey, a distance of 15 miles. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. Halford, W.M., the carrying out of the arrangements for the day's enjoyment devolved upon Bro. J. B. Hall, I.P.M., assisted by Bros. W. H. Chamberlain, Secretary; J. S. Tomlin, and W. Tomlin, who admirably performed that duty. There were also present:—Bros. R. A. Barber, J.W.; C. Wilkinson, T. Matts, B. Moore, A. Chamberlain, J. Hunter, R. Waite, P.M.; C. Gurden, J. W. Smith, J. Turner, G. K. Billings, Ewen, Odell, J. M. McAllister, and Kennedy, Fletcher Lodge, Birmingham. Amongst the ladies present were:—the Misses Hall, Mrs. W. Chamberlain, Mrs. A. Chamberlain, Miss Chamberlain, Mrs. W. Tomlin, Mrs. J. S. Tomlin, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Gurden, Mrs. Smith, Miss Parsons, Mrs. Turner and Miss Turner, Misses Kemp, Miss Ewen, Mrs. Panter, Mrs. Odell, Mrs. Hunter, and Miss Hunter, and Mrs. McAllister. Much might be said of the drive from Melton through that celebrated hunting district, but more especially from the heights beyond Waltham, where the first view is obtained of the extensive vale of Belvoir, so rich in many picturesque and sylvan scenes, which cannot fail to improve the taste, gratify the curiosity, and increase the knowledge of the visitor. The approaches to the castle are in keeping with its general character, and the views from the park are the best calculated to strike the stranger with a sense of its imposing majesty and feudal magnificence, for from these spots the massive towers and wide battlements stand haughtily forth in the upper air, and are environed with large forest trees. The entrance hall is a lofty apartment of oblong shape, fitted up in the ancient baronial style, and containing within recesses in the walls at a considerable height above the floor, figures in complete armour, the size of which corrects the mistaken impression that the men of old were of greater stature than those of modern times. The Regent's Gallery, a magnificent and princely apartment, is ornamented in compartments by some beautiful tapestry representing the most prominent scenes in Don Quixote. The furniture throughout the principal rooms is of the most costly description, and many works of art and family portraits by the most celebrated masters, decorate the walls. The library has a very neat and unique appearance, and the collection of books is large, including many rare and choice works. The chapel is fitted up with great taste and neatness, the altar-piece being a valuable painting by Murillo. A visit to the mausoleum, approached by an over arching grove of fine yew trees, and the beautiful gardens, completed the tour of inspection, under the guidance of Bro. Ingram, a gentleman whose high attainments and benevolence of character, have deservedly placed him in a high position of trust with the noble duke, and secured to him the respect and esteem of all who enjoy the pleasure of his acquaintance. As a souvenir of the visit, Bro. Johnson, P.M., succeeded in producing two excellent photos of the party, artistically arranged in social groups, the castle forming the background in one of them. Great credit is due to the committee for the completeness of the arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of the party, and to the host of the Peacock Hotel for the bountiful and agreeable manner in which the cuisine was supplied.

ROMFORD.—Liberty of Havering Lodge.—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 23rd ult., at the Fox and Hounds, Romford. The lodge was opened in the first degree. The minutes of the consecration meeting read by the Secretary and signed by the W.M., Bro. J. J. Wilson. It was proposed by Bro. English, and seconded by Bro. Brayshaw, that a committee of five, consisting of W.M., S.W., J.W., Secretary and Treasurer, be formed to decide upon a code of bye-laws, to be submitted to lodge for approval at next meeting. The ballot proved unanimous in favour of Messrs. Hitchen, J. Ellis, A. W. Naylor, and G. H. Vaughan, as candidates for initiation. The lodge was opened in the second degree. A letter was stated by the W.M. to have been received from Bro. Parker, W.M., King Harold Lodge, 1327, requesting that Bros. Malcolm, Sole, and Miller, might be passed to the second degree. The lodge was closed in the second degree, and resumed in the first. Mr. A. W. Naylor, the only one of the candidates in attendance, was initiated. It was proposed by Bro. Bishop, Treasurer, and seconded by Bro. J. J. Wilson, W.M., that a vote of thanks be recorded to Bro. Young, of Lodge No. 1327, for having presented the lodge with sword, poniard, and die, and that Bro. Young be elected an Hon. Member of lodge. The lodge was then closed in due form, until the fourth Wednesday in August, emergencies excepted. The following brethren were present:—J. J. Wilson, W.M.; J. Tydeman, S.W.; E. West, J.W.; G. W. Patmore, Secretary; Bishop, Treasurer; G. English, S.D.; B. B. Brayshaw, J.D.; Steadman, Parkinson, Sackett, Wootton, and others.

Royal Arch.

ULVERSTON.—Chapter of Furness (No. 995).—The installation meeting of this young and flourishing chapter took place at the Masonic Temple, Ulverston, on Monday, 4th inst., at two o'clock, p.m. The chapter was opened by Comps. Case, Z., P.Z., P. Prov. G.J.; T. Dodgson H.; and R. Pearson, J. There were also present, Comps. T. Wylie P.Z., P.G., Reg.; and W. Dodd P.Z. The companions being admitted, minutes of last regular convocation were read and confirmed, and the ballot taken for Comp. the Rev. J. M. Morgan, No. 1, Ireland (Vicar of Dalton-in-Furness) as a joining member, which proved favourable. (In this chapter one black ball excludes). All below the rank of Z. then retired, and the installations were proceeded with by Comp. Case, M.E.Z.; assisted by Comp. Wylie, who is an honorary member, Comp. T. Dodgson H., P.M. 995, W.M. 1390, being installed as Z., Comp. R. Pearson, I.P.M., 995, H.; and Comp. Roger Dodgson, Scribe E., P.M. 1390, P.G.S.B. Cumberland and Westmoreland, J. The companions were then admitted, and the following investments made, viz. Comps. Rev. J. M. Morgan, Chaplain; J. H. Matthews, Scribe E.; G. Cornfield, Scribe N.; J. Postlethwaite, Treas.; W. Whiteside, P. Soj.; R. T. Taylor, Org.; John Barrow First A. Soj.; John Morris, Second A. Soj.; Samuel Davies, Steward; John Robinson, Janitor. It was resolved to hold the chapter every two months, instead of quarterly. The M.E.Z. in name of the Chapter presented to Comp. Case, P.Z., P. Prov. G.J., a very handsome P.Z. jewel, (supplied by Comp. Kenning,) as a slight recognition of his services to the chapter, having twice served the office of Z., and also being one of the founders of the chapter. Comp. Case warmly and suitably responded. The chapter was closed at four o'clock, p.m. and the companions retired to the Sun Hotel, where a banquet was provided, in Mrs. Smith's usual style. It was presided over by the M.E.Z., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were very heartily responded to, a most agreeable evening being spent by all.

TWICKENHAM.—Royal Middlesex Chapter (No. 1194).—This chapter met at the Grotto Hotel, Twickenham, on Saturday, the 19th ult. (July), and amongst the companions present were Comps. G. Cattell, M.E.Z.; W. Roebuck, P.Z., Prov. G.H.; C. Horsley, J.; R. Wentworth Little, P.Z., S.E.; D. M. Dewar, A.S.; S. Rosenthal, P.Z.; H. Parker, Org., and T. W. White, S.N. 21. Bro. Alfred Solomon was duly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry, after which the Chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the banqueting room, where an excellent repast was served. During the evening Comp. Roebuck was presented with a P.Z.'s jewel, for his efficient services during the year 1872-3.

Knights Templar.

IPSWICH.—Prudence Preceptory.—The usual quarterly meeting of this old preceptory was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich, on Wednesday, the 23rd July, when the following answered to their names on the muster roll being called:—Sir Knight Emra Holmes, Past Grand Provost, Acting Preceptor, in the room of Sir Knight Dr. Beaumont, Staff Surgeon on board of H.M.S. Northumberland; Sir Knights Dr. Mills, P.E.C., Acting First Captain; J. Pitcher P.E.C.; G. S. Findley, P.E.C., Registrar; S. B. King, Acting Capt. of Lines. Visiting Frater Sir Knight W. T. Westgate, of the Plantagenet Preceptory, Acting 2nd Captain. The preceptory having been opened in ancient form and the minutes of the last regular meeting and of the Emergency meeting having been read and confirmed, the Eminent Preceptor drew the attention of the Sir Knights to the bye-laws of the preceptory, with reference to a candidate who had been proposed, ballotted for, and accepted at the last meeting, but whose proposition fee had not been paid. The companion had been written to twice, but had not answered either communication. The bye-laws directed that if a companion did not appear at the next regular meeting after he had been ballotted for, in order to be installed, or send a reasonable excuse, his name should be erased. The companion, who was an officer in the army, had not thought it worth his while to acknowledge the communications which had been addressed to him, and had made no excuse whatever for his non-attendance, but the E. Preceptor would leave the matter in the hands of the Sir Knights as to what should be done in the matter. Sir Knight Mills suggested that as the candidate was proposed by the present Eminent Preceptor, Sir Knight Dr. Beaumont, who was at present absent with his ship in Sweden, perhaps it would be as well to await his return in order to get an explanation. Sir Knt. Findley thought it would only be courteous to delay erasing the brother's name till the next meeting, for the reason stated by Sir Knight Mills. The Registrar announced that he had received the official accounts of the proceedings at Convent General and Great Priory. The Preceptor suggested that the Sir Knights would peruse the proceedings at their leisure. There being no further business before the preceptory it was closed and the Sir Knights retired for refreshment, which Frater Spalding had provided for them in the adjoining banqueting room. An admirable repast was served and ample justice was done to the viands. On the removal of the cloth Sir Knight Emra Holmes gave "The Queen, the Patron of the Order of the Temple;" "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital;" "The Earl of Limerick, Great Prior of England," in quick succession, the toasts being greeted with the usual loyalty and enthusiasm. He next proposed "The Health of their popular and estimable Provincial Prior, Sir Knt. Capt. Phillips, which was warmly received. Our visiting Frater was next proposed the Preceptor taking occasion to remark that the Prudence Preceptory was always very glad to receive visitors and only sorry it did not see them oftener. Sir Knight W. T. Westgate responded in his usual modest manner. A very pleasant evening was spent by the Sir Knights, the merits of the new "Masonic Magazine" being discussed, the advantages or disadvantages likely to arise from the proposed lowering of the fee for the Royal Arch as suggested by Sir Knight Emra Holmes, Masonic funerals and the law respecting them, the interest attaching to the Mark degree, and various other topics being discussed and dilated upon by the fratres in turn, much to their mutual edification. The Templars separated at a reasonable hour mutually pleased with the refection and discourse, and not the less gratified at the announcement of the Registrar (the accounts having been audited) that the funds of the preceptory had never been in so flourishing a state as at present.

EDITIONS OF THE CONSTITUTIONS, GRAND LODGE AND GRAND CHAPTER OF ENGLAND.

For some years I have endeavoured to obtain a complete list of all the Constitutions published by the Grand Lodge of England, as also to purchase copies of each edition, and the following exhibits the result:—

The first edition of the Constitutions of the Grand Lodge (the first of any Grand Lodge in fact) was published A.D. 1723, and it was followed by various editions issued in 1738, 1756, 1767, 1776, and 1784, which was the last of the series, prior to the "Union" of the two rival Grand Lodges in 1813. After that eventful period, there were published those of 1815, 1827, 1841, 1847, 1853, 1855, 1858, 1851, 1853, 1857, 1871, and finally 1873, making eighteen editions in all. Besides these, there were published a copy in 1769 (which does not appear to have been regularly authorized), and the edition of 1738 was issued in 1746, with only the title-page altered, bearing the last-mentioned year. The 1815 and 1827 copies are both styled the "second part," but the first portion, though promised, was never published. It was to have been edited by Bro. William Williams, Prov. G. Master, Dorsetshire. Bro. the Rev. George Oliver, D.D., subsequently offered to write the History of Freemasonry, which the expected volume was to contain, but his fraternal assistance was not accepted, although evidently some such valuable aid was needed. What may be termed the Traditional History, is to be found in all the issues of last century, but since the "Union" only the "ancient charges" and the laws have been published. I think the Grand Lodge wisely decided not to commit itself to several absurd statements first of all promulgated by Bro. the Rev. James Anderson, D.D., and contained in all our "Old Constitutions," by refusing any longer to publish, as under their sanction, the account of our ancient society, accepted as authentic from 1723 to 1784.

In this short notice of the foregoing, I do not intend to dwell at all on their contents, but my desire is to give the list publicity, so as to secure the co-operation of all Masonic students in seeking to discover other editions, if any such existed, and if not, then to take it for granted that my category includes all published from 1723 to 1873, a period of a century and a half.

I have said nothing about the Ancient Constitutions, or Charges, peculiar to operative Masons, of which many versions have appeared in print from 1722 to the present time, neither have I chronicled the "Ahiman Recons" of the "Ancients or Atholl Masons" as I intend these for a separate article. The 3200. copies of the Constitutions I have not alluded to, as they are precisely the same as the larger regular editions.

Of the Grand Chapter Regulations published—apart from the "ancients"—we have traced the following editions, viz.—1778, 1782, 1817, 1823, 1843, 1852, 1864, and 1869. The first two were issued whilst the Grand Chapter acted independently of the Grand Lodge, and the remaining six were all published by authority of the United Grand Chapter recognized by the United Grand Lodge of England.

The laws for the government of the Royal Arch Degree as worked by the "ancients" from 1756 to 1813 are contained in the "Ahiman Recons" or constitutions of that body, and were never issued in a separate form. The first edition of the laws of the Atholl Grand Lodge of A.D. 1756 mentions the Royal Arch Degree, but it is also noticed several times in a work of A.D. 1744 by Dr. Dassigny, of which I have a copy, believed to be unique.

I have copies in my library of all the foregoing constitutions and regulations of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, excepting the edition of 1746 (really the edition of 1738, with a new title-page), and the edition of 1776 (the 1767 with an appendix).

Will not some good brethren procure me copies of these, in order to complete my set? I shall not mind the expense, and shall be grateful for the assistance rendered. I shall also be glad to reciprocate the kindness any way in my power, for I am particularly anxious to possess the whole of the various editions of the laws of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter published in this country, having already some twenty-six out of the total—twenty-eight.

I believe a complete set is to be seen at Bro. Spencer's magnificent depôt of all Masonic works, London, which is the only collection of its kind in this country, (excepting the copies in Grand Lodge), although there are many near approaches to perfect sets in private Masonic libraries. In the United States I believe that Bro. E. T. Corson, of Cincinnati (Ohio) has a complete set of the constitutions, having also the largest Masonic library in America. I have obtained from Bro. Corson's Library transcripts of works not in any private library that I could discover in this kingdom. In conclusion I beg to thank the many private collectors in Great Britain for their valued assistance in the prosecution of my Masonic studies and researches.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

MASONIC FUNERAL AT THIRSK.

On Tuesday, July 22nd, the remains of Bro. Richard Davis Carter, the much respected agent of Messrs. Backhouse and Co., at their branch bank at Thirsk, were consigned to their last resting-place in Thirsk Churchyard.

The deceased being a Freemason, and having previously expressed a wish to be buried with the formalities of the Fraternity, a dispensation for a Masonic Funeral service was granted by the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon.

There was a large attendance of the members of the Craft, not only from Thirsk and neighbourhood, but also from Northallerton, Richmond, and Darlington, in which latter Lodge—Restoration, No. 111, the deceased was initiated, and continued a subscribing member to the time of his death. He was also a Royal Arch Freemason, having been exalted in the Darlington Chapter—Vigilance, No. 111. He was very active in the formation of a new Masonic Lodge in Thirsk—the Falcon, No. 1,416, of which Bro. F. Bell, Senior Grand Warden of North and East Yorkshire, was the first Master, and the deceased the first Senior Warden. He was looking forward with much pleasure to the ceremony of the laying of the foundation-stone of a new Masonic Hall, at Thirsk in September, when on Thursday evening, July the 17th, he was visited with an attack of apoplexy, and ceased to breathe the following morning.

On entering this quaint old town from the railway station, signs of mourning were everywhere visible, all the shops were closed, and the window blinds drawn down.

The Freemasons opened their lodge in the temporary lodge-room, and adjourned to a larger place for meeting in the Fleece Hotel, when the dispensation was read by the Secretary, and from which place the Masonic procession started, two Tylers, with drawn swords, leading the way. On reaching the residence of the deceased, the Freemasons led the way in front of the hearse, and on reaching the church gates they opened out right and left, to allow the coffin to pass through, followed by the widow and other relatives, when they closed in, and took their places inside the church.

The procession was met by the Rev. Canon Coates, who, in the absence of the Vicar of the parish, performed the service very impressively.

On entering the church, the organist, Bro. Walton, who is also Organist of the lodge, played the "Dead March," a surpliced choir occupying the chancel stalls, who chanted the 90th Psalm to a single Anglican, by Dr. Hayes.

After the lesson was read, hymn 191, "Ancient and Modern," was sung, when the congregation followed the body to the grave.

The coffin was of polished oak. On the top was a simple Latin cross of the same material, and a wreath of flowers. Upon the pall were placed the insignia of offices the deceased held—the sky-blue apron and collar of a Master Mason, and the purple and crimson apron and sash of a Royal Arch Mason.

At the conclusion of the Church service, the Masons formed a circle round the grave, when the Chaplain, the Rev. J. M. Guilding, vicar of Sowerby offered a suitable prayer.

The first part of the exhortation was given by the Master of the Restoration Lodge, and the conclusion by the Master of the Anchor Lodge, Northallerton, No. 1,337, who deposited in grave a scroll containing the name, age, and date of death of the deceased; likewise a lamb-skin, or white apron, the emblem of innocence, and the badge of a Mason; and, lastly, a branch of acacia—the emblem of faith in the immortality of the soul, with the exclamation, "Alas my brother!" The brethren then severally advanced to the grave, and also dropped the sprig of acacia.

The Rev. H. Jones, vicar of Osmotherley, offered another prayer, when the public grand honours were given, the brethren audibly pronouncing the following words:—"We commend his spirit to God, who gave it,"—the hands extended above the head,—and consign his body to the earth,—the hands extended towards the ground; "We cherish his memory hear,—the arms crossed on the breast.

The procession then returned in the same order, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to partake of luncheon at the Fleece Hotel.

Among the brethren present were the Rev. H. Jones, M.A., vicar of Rev. A. T. Attwood, M.A., Rural Dean; Rev. J. M. Guilding, vicar of Sowerby; Fred. Stichfull Bell, P.S.G.W.; John Rhodes, W. A. Bourne, G. Anderson, James Walton, W. Hall, Charles Greensides, William Coltman, George Ayre, H. Milburn, T. Wilkinson, N. C. Lawton, John Flatten, T. Cooper, of the Falcon Lodge, No. 1,416; Brunton, W.M.; Baily, P.M.; Farmer, P.M.; Jackson, P.M.; Boulton, Luck, Chadwick, Willis, Hoggett, Martin, Blacklock, Pape, Bell, and Gargett, of the Restoration Lodge, No. 111; Walton, P.M.; Palliser, C. Waistell, W. Waistell, Clarkson, Smithson, Hutchence, Oxendale, Rymmer, and Fairburn, of the Anchor Lodge, No. 1,337; T. Thompson, P.M., and P. Prov. G.D.C., of the Lennox Lodge, No. 123, Hoskins and Russell, of the Marquis of Ripon Lodge, No. 1,379, R. S. M. Vaughan of the Royal Kent Lodge of Antiquity, No. 20, Chatham; E. C. Pearson, of the Hope Lodge, No. 302, Bradford.

Nearly the whole of the principal inhabitants of Thirsk attended the funeral. There were also present Messrs. Alfred Backhouse, E. B. Mounsey, J. E. Clapham, and B. Boulton, from the Darlington Bank. A more highly respected neighbour and citizen could not exist than Richard Davis Carter. The Freemasons revere his memory and deplore his loss. May the fragrance of virtue, like the sprig of acacia, bloom over the grave of the deceased brother.—Northern Echo.

THE POPE AND THE FREEMASONS.—The Pope, receiving the Bishops who were recently nominated said they should acquire influence in their dioceses by giving an example of holiness, and recommended them to defend the rights of the Church. The Pope added that a question was now being discussed between some bishops and an American Catholic Government. Freemasons, he said, had re-entered the councils of the Sovereign of that country and religious associations. They believed on that account, and because the object of their association, as in Europe, was a charitable one, that the Church did not condemn them. This idea was false. They were excommunicated, like all other secret societies.

A BOON TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD.—Boots, with the celebrated wire-quilted soles, wearing twice as long as ordinary leather, for all ages; and children's boots with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

The Etymology and Syntax of Murray's Grammar, systematically arranged by Charlotte Kennion. Second edition, edited by Thalia S. Engall, Simpkin, and Marshall.

Kennion's Grammar is by this time too well known in the higher seminaries to need eulogy from us. By it the "dry" and distasteful study of English Grammar has become not only easy but pleasing to both teacher and pupil, "parsing," the horror of both, being rendered as amusing as the putting together of a child's geographical puzzle, and, to the eye, almost as pictorial. Valuable, however, as Kennion's Grammar has hitherto been, it is rendered much more valuable by Mrs. Engall's revision. The fellow-student and fellow labourer of the authoress, her aid was unsparingly given in the production of the first edition of the Grammar, and now, by an appendix, containing rules for parsing, so plain that a child of ordinary intelligence can scarcely fail to understand them, even without the aid of a teacher. In fact Mrs. Engall's revision has made this book not only what it professes to be, a systematic arrangement of Murray's Etymology and Syntax but without any fanciful departure from the great authority.

It is Lindley Murray revised and corrected, and so arranged that the student is carried forward, step by step, with the utmost speed and facility to the end of the journey; his love for it increasing with his onward progress. The Appendix is not the least valuable part of the book, and, now that the work is put before the public at a price that places it within reach of the ordinary class-room, or the humble private student, we have little doubt that it will soon become the general handbook for those who desire to obtain a thorough knowledge and understanding of the principles of the English and of other languages.

Medical Notes and Queries. London, Simpkin, Marshall and Co.

This paper (weekly) is devoted to the interests of the medical profession. The papers on "The Management and Diseases of Children" are evidently from the pen of a very able writer. It also gives a complete record of the special and general hospitals of the metropolis, with the addresses, means of obtaining admission, days for attendance of patients, &c. Taking the work as a whole, we heartily commend it to our readers, and to students of medicine it will yield much gratification.

Burial of Moses, sacred song. Words by Mrs. C. F. Alexander; music by H. R. Chamberlain. London, Chappell and Co.

We have much pleasure in drawing the attention of the Craft to this very interesting song. We heartily recommend it, feeling assured it will give satisfaction to all lovers of music.

MASONIC HALL IN NEW ZEALAND.

We recorded in our last number an account of the laying the foundation stone of a Masonic Hall at Timaru, Canterbury, New Zealand. We regret to have to add the following account (from the Timaru Herald), of its being rifled the same evening:—

“DISGRACEFUL THEFT.—The records of a Police Court show the worst phases of human nature, show to what depths man will go to accomplish crime, but usually there is a reverse side to the picture so presented, some reason being generally apparent. Starvation and poverty are at times assigned, but too often drink is found to be the prima causa which has led to the filling of our gaols and reformatories. But for the crime of robbing of the foundation stone of the new Masonic Hall of its contents—the robber must have been actuated by the basest of motives. Poverty could hardly be assignable, and only a desire for committing the pettiest of petty thefts could have actuated the very peculiar blackguard who effected the robbery. After the ceremony of laying the stone on Monday was completed, the workmen placed on the top of the “foundation stone” (a piece from the Oamaru quarries) a heavy piece of blue stone in the ordinary course of building. The two stones were found prized out of position, the cavity in the stone underneath the foundation-stone broken into—a cover of sandstone having been on Monday well cemented in—one of the bottles it contained smashed, the other bottle taken away, and the contents of both bottles stolen. The one bottle which was removed from the old hall contained two copies of the Timaru Herald, one of 29th August, 1866, and one of either the 11th or 18th June, 1864, a copy of the Lyttleton Times, Press, and Oamaru Times, besides a sovereign, half-sovereign, a crown piece, a half-crown, a florin, a shilling piece, sixpence, fourpenny bit, threepenny bit, a penny, and a half-penny, the cash in all being £2 1s. 8½d. The other bottle contained a copy respectively of the Timaru Herald and the South Canterbury Times, a Lyttleton Times, and a parchment setting forth the reasons for the then ceremony. The night was bright moonlight, and the thief or thieves must have worked at their rascally task in fear and trembling, the locality facing as it does a much frequented road. That he or they were disturbed is evidenced by a knife being left behind, with which the cement mortar had been picked out. This may eventually tell tales. We sincerely trust that it may, and that the police may catch the perpetrator of this vile act. The law, unfortunately, does not provide a sufficiently adequate punishment, but still we trust the people will not employ Judge Lynch to adjudicate. A warrant was issued for the apprehension of ‘a suspect,’ which has been acted upon, the man taken in custody and committed for trial.”

SUNDERLAND MASONIC PICNIC.—The sixth annual picnic of the Freemasons of Sunderland was held on Wednesday week, July 23rd, at Gilsland. The party, which numbered over 260, were conveyed by special train, which, after clearing the crowded lines of rails between Sunderland and Newcastle, travelled up the valley of the Tyne, among some of the prettiest scenery in the North of England. A section of the party went on to Corley, and inspected the beautiful grounds attached to Corley Castle, the old church at Wetheral, which contains one of the finest pieces of modern sculpture in England, and other places of interest, returning to Gilsland to luncheon and tea. At Gilsland a substantial luncheon was spread for the whole party, the chair being taken by Bro. W. H. Crookes, W.M. 1389, P.G.S., (Chairman of the Committee). This disposed of, dancing was commenced on the croquet lawn and bowling green attached to the Shaw's Hotel, and kept up with great spirit. Bro. R. Humphrey, W.M., 97, and Bro. Jas. Davison, W.M., 97, officiated as M.C.S. Bro. Jas. H. Coates, W.M., 949, acted as Secretary to the Committee.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL EXCURSION.—The London and Middlesex Archæological Society recently made an excursion to Hampton Court. A saloon steamer of the Citizen Company was specially chartered for the occasion, and a numerous freight of ladies and gentlemen embarked from St. Paul's or Westminster during the afternoon. Arrived at the Court, the company repaired to the Great Hall, where a general meeting of the society was held, by permission of Mr. Ayerton, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was subsequently passed. In the course of the introductory proceedings, sympathetic mention was made of the recent death of the Bishop of Winchester, who is well-known, amongst his other pursuits, to have been partial to archæology. The Rev. T. Hugo, a vice-president of the society, who had been president of the meeting, then took the society in tow, and throughout the remainder of the visit acted as a most able and agreeable cicerone. He gave an account of the Manor of Hampton as described in Domesday Book, and, in a few graphic sentences, brought the history down to the 13th century, when the widow of Sir Richard Gray left the estate to the Knights-Hospitallers of St. John. Mr. Hugo entertained his attentive audience with some receipts and expenditure of that remote period. The next stage in the historical narrative was to the 16th century, when the Order leased the manor to the famous Cardinal, who died “broken with the cares of state,” at Leicester. Wolsey was at the time of this lease Archbishop of York, and the popular idea has been that he pulled down the old Manor-house, and constructed the palace pretty much as it now appears. Nobody disputes that he made short work of the old Manor-house; but Mr. Hugo very plausibly argued that the Great Hall, as the visitors behold it in these days, was the work of Henry VIII. Mr. Hugo took his pleased company over the chapel and grounds, dilating with considerable enthusiasm upon the splendid brickwork of the eastern front, the handiwork of Sir C. Wren. Mr. W. J. Rogers, the celebrated wood carver, was present, to testify to the objects to which he was most interested, especially as to the Grinling Gibbons works, which many competent judges think he has fully equalled. A most pleasant day was spent, and after the heat of the day, and numerous learned disquisitions, the Citizen boat, in the cool of the evening, brought back a highly delighted cargo of excursionists. It should be mentioned that Mr. Waller on tapestry, and Professor Tennant on geological topics, contributed largely to the interest of the visit.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Dangerous Diarrhœa. The causes of this weakening disease being so various and the nature of its attack being so changeable fully accounts for the present high rate of mortality registered diarrhœa. Under Holloway's treatment the source of this complaint may be in obscurity and the success be still the same, whether the stomach, liver, large or small intestines be the seat of the malady. His Pills judiciously taken and his Ointment briskly rubbed over the abdominal wall: restrains the excited vessels and regulates each erring function, let it spring whence it may. Both medicaments address themselves directly to produce the exact balance between sensibility and irritability, between healthy and morbid secretions, between natural and excessive excretion.—ADVT.

Masonic Tidings.

THE EASTERN STAR.—The advocates of this system have now perfected their organization in such a manner as to insure its permanent existence, so as to more thoroughly accomplish the purposes for which it was established. This union which, after much consideration, has been effected, is entitled “The Supreme Council of the Order.” It assumes control of all grades and orders connected with it, and claims jurisdiction co-extensive with the Republic. To extend the knowledge of this subject to all inquirers; to form societies of ladies, being the wives, widows, &c., of Masons, in every community; to organize Grand Bodies out of their constituent societies, and finally to enlarge the sphere of charity and sociability by securing the countenance and aid of the ladies—these are the aims proposed in the organization of the Supreme Council. A committee of three is appointed to draft a constitution, and to appoint Deputies of the Supreme Council in those jurisdictions that have not yet formed chapters of the order. An adjourned meeting of the Supreme Council will be held in the city of New York at an early day to receive the reports of the committee, and the first regular meeting for the more perfect organization will be held in New Orleans on the Monday preceding the convocation of the Grand Encampment of the United States, December, 1874.—New York Dispatch.

Dr. Albert G. Mackey, 33°, in his last journalistic enterprise, has failed of that support from the Fraternity to which his great ability and transcendent talents entitle him. In all the walks of Masonry, as an historian, author, commentator and ritualist, he has few peers; his works are regarded as text books, and his opinions upon questions of Masonic jurisprudence are universally accepted. He needs no greater monument to his genius and Masonic life than the volumes which will live after him; then (if possible) to be more highly prized than now. Hence it seems passing strange that in this progressive age, the National Freemason should languish for support and maintenance among the Craft, that the diffusion of esoteric intelligence which it imparts should be interrupted, and that the Pierian spring for whose water we have so often thirsted, should cease its refreshing tribute.—New York Dispatch.

BIBLICAL REVISION.—The New Testament Company of Revisers assembled on Tuesday, the 15th ult., in the Jerusalem Chamber, for their thirty-second session. The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol presided. The other members present were:—Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishop of St. Andrews, the Dean of Rochester, the Dean of Westminster, Canon Lightfoot, Archdeacon Lee, the Prolocutor, Professor Milligan, Professor Moulton, Professor Newth, Professor Roberts, Dr. Brown, Dr. Vance Smith, Dr. Scrivener, Mr. Hort, and Mr. Humphry. The company proceeded to the revision of the 19th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

THE RESTORATION OF KIRKSTALL ABBEY.—Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A., has just completed a valuable contribution to archæological literature in a report to Colonel Akroyd, M.P., F.S.A., and a committee of gentlemen formed for the purchase and partial restoration of Kirkstall Abbey, near Leeds. Sir Gilbert's services had been called in to make “a careful survey of the ruins of the abbey church, with a view to forming an opinion as to the practicability and cost of bringing it back to a state fitted to its sacred uses.” The cost is estimated at £34,250.

The Lord Mayor is to be entertained at a grand banquet at York, as a recognition of his hospitality to the mayors of the kingdom at the Mansion House recently. The various mayors have readily fallen in with the proposal, and it is anticipated that the gathering will be nearly as large as was that at the Mansion House, which was notable as a demonstration in favour of the great principle of municipal government.

THE FRENCH MASONS AND THE PERSIAN VISITORS.

From an elaborately printed brochure we learn the particulars of a Masonic Fete, given in Paris by the Lodge "La Clémentine Amicie" to some members of the Suite of the Shah of Persia who belong to a Masonic lodge at Teheran, and who first saw the light in a lodge under the jurisdiction of the Grand Orient of France.

Of the three Persian Masons invited, only two were able to accept the invitation, viz.:—Bros. Mirza-Reiza-Khan, and Neriman Khan both whom are generals, and aides-de-camp of His Majesty the Shah. Bro. Mirza-Malcom-Khan, being seriously indisposed at the time of the meeting sent an apology by his countrymen. At eight o'clock on the 16th of July the guests of the lodge arrived at the gates of the Grand Temple, which was brilliantly illuminated, and were cordially received by the brethren of the 1st gr.

A little before nine o'clock Bro. Cousin vacated the chair, which was taken by the Senior Warden of the lodge, Bro. Vannier, Past Master, and descended into the Council Hall, to receive the President of the Grand Orient and his officers, of whom a great number honoured the lodge with their presence on this occasion.

The guests of the evening arrived at about half-past nine, and were warmly received in the Council Hall.

As soon as reciprocal presentations, and exchange of compliments were made, the Worshipful Master resumed the chair of the lodge, and made known to the President his readiness to receive the distinguished visitors.

The President of the Grand Orient and his officers were marshalled with due solemnity to their places on the dais. The gavel was, as is customary, offered to the President, who requested the Worshipful Master to retain it, and took his place at the right hand of the Worshipful Master.

The Persian brethren were then introduced with due ceremonial, and invited to seats in the East.

Bro. Cousin, the Worshipful Master, then delivered an address which was listened to by all present with wrapt attention. He said, in effect:—

"My dear Brethren,

"In the name of the Freemasons of Paris, Lodge "La Clémentine Amicie" salutes you. The lodge which you have honoured by your visit has followed its ancient traditions in meeting for the purpose of welcoming you as the representatives of Masonry of the East.

"Your place, my brethren, is naturally ranked as the first among the pioneers of progress, these good and worthy Masons who have so cordially responded to our call. We know that you love France, our dear and unfortunate country; you speak its language, you have been educated in its schools, and you have sought, under our Grand Orient, initiation into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Possessed of the confidence of your sovereign, who has won the sympathy of European nations, absorbed by your official duties, overwhelmed with pleasure, perhaps somewhat fatiguing, you, nevertheless, spare an hour to renew with us the ties of fraternity. Rest assured of your welcome, brethren, in this assemblage of free men, friends of the virtuous whether rich or poor—in this masonic democracy—dedicated to equality yet ever ready to honour the truly noble, and to recognise the superiority gained by services rendered to the country and the human race.

"It is not, my brethren, the distinguished titles which you bear, which have attracted around you the elite of Parisian Masons; it is your filial affection for the Grand Orient of France—of which your presence here to-night is a witness—your faithful attachment to Masonry, and your noble efforts for the propagation of our principles, which have conquered our hearts and merited our approbation.

"Permit me, brethren, to make a reflection, which I think is not out of place, and which, I hope, will not wound the feelings of any Mason present. The respectful cordiality with which our nation has received our royal guest, have drawn forth the remark, that in this loyal sympathy with Nasser-Eddin, may be discovered a latent desire to return to the institution of the past. These, my brethren, are the interesting thoughts awakened, and which your intelligence cannot have passed unobserved. Our poor Paris, so often calumniated, is not so frivolous as she is represented, and has learned a lesson out of her misfortunes.

"Without abandoning our honest conviction, without deserting the noble device which decorates our temple and shines on our monuments, we can, applaud the descendant of Xerxes, who despite the prejudices of his nation, has crossed the sea, and braved its dangers, in order to witness the benefits of civilisation, and endeavour to benefit his people thereby.

"You, my brethren, are the intelligent promoters, the fellow-labourers of this noble enterprise, and that is why the lodge "Clémentine Amicie" honours itself to day by placing your names upon those tablets, on which the most illustrious Masons of the two hemispheres have considered it an honour to be inscribed.

"Receive cordially these modest fraternal offerings from the good and faithful 'Sons of the Widow.'

"May they often call to mind this evening, the memory of which, traced on the brightest page of our 'Golden Book,' will never be effaced from our hearts."

The prolonged applause which greeted the oration of Bro. Cousin, was a proof that it reflected the sentiments of the brethren present.

Bro. Neriman Khan desired a word, and in a voice evidently affected with emotion, expressed to the assembly his deep gratitude for the reception with which he had been so profoundly honoured.

Bro. Mirza-Reiza Khan, in a brief but graceful address, endorsed the sentiments of his friend, and warmly returned thanks for the reception.

The brethren were called from labour to refreshment.

The Persian brethren were surrounded and warmly complimented. Their modest demeanour, the simplicity of their dress (they had worn no decorations), their affability, their readiness to answer the numerous interrogatories addressed to them, and the joy which beamed from their countenances, gained all hearts.

At half-past eleven the W.M. announced the departure of the guests, and conducted them to the gate of the Temple. On the way the visitors received unanimous expressions of sympathy and affection.

The W.M. was warmly complimented on the happy occasion by the President of the Grand Orient, and acknowledged, on behalf of his lodge and himself, the compliments of the first Mason of France.

The brethren retired at midnight, filled with joy at this happy event, which the distinguished assemblage of Masons had transformed from a modest reception to a brilliant solemnity, which must have impressed the Eastern brethren with an exalted idea of Parisian Masonry.

An emergency lodge was held the next day for the purpose of initiating Aga Reza, a member of the Suite of the Shah. Bro. Mirza-Al-Nazin acted as interpreter, as the candidate did not understand the French language, MASONIC HISTORIANS No. 5.

BY BRO. WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

BRO. D. MURRAY LYON, P.M., W.M. 125.

Chapter xiii. records two instances of Masons being made outside the Lodge of Edinburgh, one especially being noteworthy, viz., the initiation of the Right Hon. Robert Moray, Quartermaster General to the army of Scotland, which took place at Newcastle, England, on the 20th day of May, 1641. On the evacuation of the town of Newcastle, and the return of the army to Edinburgh, those who initiated Moray appear to have reported the fact to the lodge, which being approved by the members, was ratified by the signatures of three brethren, as representing the lodge, together with the signature of the newly-admitted brother.

The Kilwinning Lodge minutes (so Bro. D. Murray Lyon informs us) contain the earliest commission extant to enter Masons at a distance from the lodge. The date is 20th December, 1677, and it was granted to a number of operative Masons from the Canongate of Edinburgh, a facsimile of the original record being also given, with the signatures and marks of the brethren. Subsequently the Edinburgh brethren formed themselves into a separate lodge, and have continued to exist to the present time.

Farther on in the splendid volume will be found the Edinburgh Kilwinning MS. (circa 1670), and also the Acheson-Haven MS. of A.D. 1666, both being most valuable documents, and reproduced verbatim et literalim. The latter I think must have been the basis of Laurie's MS. in his "History of Freemasonry and the Grand Lodge of Scotland."

Bro. Lyon's remarks respecting these and other old MSS. (particularly as to the York MS. of 1693, which I published in my "Masonic Sketches and Reprints") are well worth perusing, and evidently the result of considerable thought. The information afforded as to the custom of the old lodges opening and closing with prayer, and also other peculiarities of what may be termed the Christian period of the Craft, are full of interest to the Masonic archæologist.

The history of the various struggles which, alas, disgraced, in some measure, the lodge early in the last century, and also later on, is fully given, and in such an impartial manner, that while I lament the differences which arose, and which evidently were amicably arranged, I can plainly see that Bro. Lyon is anxious to give a true picture of the lodge's past career, and not to keep back, what for the credit of the lodge one naturally wishes had never occurred.

Fortunately, however, for the historian, the Lodge of Edinburgh has not only the oldest records, but as a lodge, it has been, and is, the most influential and distinguished in the world. The "Decree Arbitral" of 1714-15 is surpassed by no other Masonic document in importance, and whether it is regarded in an archæological or Masonic light, its text is full of interest to all students of the operative period of our history. The Rev. John Theophilus Desaguliers, F.R.S. (Past Grand Master of England) visited the lodge, 24th August, 1721, and was admitted as a member. Bro. Lyon considers that the learned doctor's visit to the Edinburgh Masons was due to his desire to introduce the ceremonies, as revised in 1717, to the notice of the Scottish brethren, and he "ascribes Scotland's acquaintance with, and subsequent adoption of English Symbolical Masonry, to the conference which the co-fabricator and pioneer of the system held with the Lodge of Edinburgh in August, 1721."

There is no doubt to my mind, but that all grand lodges over the world owe their knowledge of Freemasonry of three degrees to the Grand Lodge of England, constituted in 1717, although of course lodges prior to the last century possessed secrets communicated only to the initiated, but then the ceremonies were simple in their character, and known to all the members, irrespective of their rank.

Another Grand Master of England visited the lodge in 1734, and took the chair on the initiation of several noblemen, two of whom became Grand Masters of England, another Grand Master of Scotland, and two became Grand Wardens.

One of the particulars afforded anent the choice of the First Grand Master for Scotland are entirely new to me, and I expect are equally so to my readers. The Lodge of Edinburgh, it seems, favoured the election of Lord Herne, and the Canongate Kilwinning Lodge, William Sinclair, of Roslin. We do not remember any allusion to Lord Herne prior to this, as a candidate for the Grand Mastership. The election, however, because of certain circumstances, fully explained in the history, was unanimously in favour of the latter brother, whose initiation took place only a few months before the occurrence of the great event in Scottish Masonry during the last century.

The history of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and of several lodges working under its wing, being so fully treated by Bro. D. Murray Lyon, I cannot do more than express my admiration of the diligence and patience with which our brother has discharged his task, likewise my approval of the manner in which the matter has been arranged and published.

In chapter xxi. Bro. Lyon observes "With the exception of the few instances in which both offices were united in one individual, the Deacon of the Incorporated Masons during the whole of the seventeenth and the first and second decades of the eighteenth century usurped the directorate of the Lodge of Edinburgh. The Deacon of the Incorporation was also Master of the lodge in 1736, and as such took part in the institution of the Grand Lodge. For the second time in its history the Incorporation elected to the Deaconship a brother who had never received Masonic Initiation." This was in 1753, and at St. John's Day the speculatives, taking advantage of this, elected a "writer" to the office of Master, which gave great offence to many of the operatives, who considered that only operative masons were eligible for the chair. Although the Grand Master sided with the latter, the members re-elected Bro. Reoch, to the chair of the lodge, and thus gradually the speculative and operative elements became blended and united in their Masonic relationships.

The third degree is referred to, for the first time in the records, on the first day of November, 1738. There are earlier references to this degree in some of the Scottish minutes of lodges, but during the same decade as the foregoing. It is probable however that it was worked either during the visit of Dr. Desaguliers, or soon afterwards, as I am of opinion that the knowledge of the "Sublime Degree" was obtained from "across the Border."

Bro. Lyon declares that the "Minutes of Cannongate Kilwinning contain the earliest Scottish record extant of the admission of a Master Mason under the modern Masonic Constitution (viz., A.D. 1735). "We have authority for stating that there is an earlier instance of the third degree being worked in Scotland than the minutes of the Lodge of Edinburgh contains, viz., in the Ancient Lodge of Aberdeen, which has a most valuable series of records from A.D. 1670, containing a copy of the * "Masonic Charges," and other most interesting matters, which I hope ere long to see printed and circulated amongst the Craft, for their publicity would be a great boon to the studious craftsman, and to the antiquary a curious feast.

The third degree is first mentioned by the Clerk to the Aberdeen Lodge, on the 8th July, 1736, but in such a way that it is evident the degree was not new to the members at that period. A month prior to this date it occurs in Kilwinning minutes. In England it is noticed in Lodge records as early as 1724. Abundant evidence is presented in the work to prove that the third degree had not become common to the Scottish lodges, until after 1770.

Some strange correspondence follows respecting the right of the Lodge of Edinburgh to its title, in lieu of Mary's Chapel. The former was the name by which it was originally known, and by which it has been often designated, and I cannot see why the Grand Lodge should have refused the application, in 1841, of the members to be so known for the future. What has been known as the Incorporation of Mary's Chapel, originally consisted of masons and wrights, incorporated by a seal of cause in 1475 (which document is given in full in the 24th chapter of this work), and ratified by the Archbishop of St. Andrews in 1517, by Royal Charter in 1527, by the Common Council in 1633, by Royal Charter again in 1635, and by decree of the Court of Session in 1703. Embracing at first only the masons and wrights of Edinburgh, the scope of the incorporation was gradually extended, till, in the beginning of the eighteenth century, it included glaziers, plumbers, slaters, painters, coopers, sievewrights, bow-makers, and upholsterers. In the year 1475, the members are styled "Masonis and the Wrichtis." Fines imposed on the Craftsmen in "ye olden tyme" were employed for the sustentation of the church. At Aberdeen, in the year 1483, they were given to the Sanct. Nicholas Kirk-wark. Money and wax to the altar of St. Thomas, erected in the kirk of Glasgow, and fines were exigible under the charter granted to the Incorporation of Masons in 1551, while the Ayr Squaremen (masons and wrights) were in 1555 placed under similar obligations for the uphold of St. Ninian's alter, in the parish kirk of the burgh From municipal records, belonging to the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, we learn that public bodies were accustomed to hold their meetings in the kirks within their respective bounds. This custom survived the Reformation; and was recognised by the Masonic Statutes of 1599, which confirmed the lodge of Kilwinning's right to hold its courts within the parish kirk An extraordinary communication of the Lodge of Edinburgh was held in Holyrood House in June 1600.

Chapter xxv. is devoted to a consideration of the claims of Mother Lodge Kilwinning, and the Lodge of Edinburgh, to greater antiquity, and as the old minutes of both lodges have been freely searched on this point, as also the books of the Grand Lodge, the subject is ably and exhaustively treated, and I think finally disposed of. Politics crept into Edinburgh Masonry a little, early this century, and a secession of the delinquents from the Grand Lodge was the consequence, which for a time involved the Craft not a little in the eyes of the public. The Grand Lodge of England sided with the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and through the aid of the Earl of Moira, acting Grand Master, opposed any lodges interfering in political matters. Gradually the struggle became more intense until the authorities of the City of Edinburgh were called upon to settle the dispute, and all meetings were for a time interdicted. Other questions also fell to be considered, which originally formed no part in the unfortunate misunderstanding, such as the legal right of a Grand Lodge, in either England, Scotland, or Ireland, to rule all lodges in these countries, which was shown to be erroneous, as at that time lodges in existence prior to the formation of the Grand Lodge of Scotland had refused to become connected with that body.

The Lord Ordinary of the Court of Sessions gave his decision on the 12th November, 1811. Amongst other clauses in this interlocutor, that legal authority thus refers to William St. Clair, the so-called Hereditary Grand Master. "That supposing the Grand Master to have possessed such powers, there is no evidence that when William St. Clair of Roslyn resigned the office of Hereditary Grand Master, he either actually did or could lawfully transfer to any other body of men any of the rights, powers, or privileges which belonged to him as Grand Master." The defendants were victorious, and the Grand Lodge party were found liable in the costs of the suits. Ultimately the Grand Lodge received the seceders back into their fold, and soon peace and harmony once more prevailed.

The various chapters on the "higher degrees" will be read by many with great pleasure, especially when the origin and progress of the Masonic Knights Templar and the Grand Royal Arch Chapter, as also other Masonic bodies, including that far-famed Royal Order of Scotland* are carefully and exhaustively treated. "It is a curious fact that the Knight Templars' Order, then known as Black Masonry, was propagated in Scotland to a large extent, through charters issued by the "High Knight Templars of Ireland Kilwinning Lodge," and what is still more extraordinary, this body of Freemasons in Dublin was constituted by mother Lodge Kilwinning in 1779 for the practice of the Craft degrees only.

As Bro. Lyon observes, the Knight Templar proclivities of the brethren in Ireland, "encouraged the belief in Kilwinning being a centre of the Hautes Grades." The truth is, however, Mother Kilwinning has never worked any degrees but those known as Craft Masonry, and knows nothing even of the Royal Arch Degree. "It is alleged that the Ancient Lodge of Stirling was, in 1743, the first in Scotland to practice the Royal Arch Degree, but of this there is no authentic evidence. . . . To such an extent had the work of lodges at this period (1799-1800) become associated with that of the Royal Arch and Templar Degrees, that in October, 1800, the Grand Lodge of Scotland issued a circular prohibiting and discharging its daughters to hold any meetings above the degree of Master Mason, under the penalty of the forfeiture of their charter."

The interesting particulars concerning the Royal Order of Scotland in Chapter xxxii. cannot fail to be most instructive and valuable to English Freemasons, as but little is known about the early history of this "quaint and ancient degree," and as it is now legally worked in London and in the northern counties, attention will naturally be drawn to an authentic account, such as Bro. Lyon affords. A transcript of the literal translation, inserted in the Lodge of Edinburgh records, of the charter of Cologne A.D. 1535, is given in the next chapter, and Bro. Lyon evidently concurs with Dr. James Barnes, Herr Findel, and Dr. George Kloss, who have declared the document to be a forgery. The transcript is most useful, however, to enable brethren to judge for themselves, and if it is carefully examined, there will be found plenty of internal evidence in proof of its modern composition.

Bro. Lyon well observes, "Statements as to the Mason Craft having three centuries ago been the conservators of chivalric rites, are not now received as historical facts, except by the more superstitious of the brotherhood."

The various grand visitations of the Lodge of Edinburgh are chronicled in a most happy manner, and I think few, if any lodges can boast of such special distinction in this respect.

The chapter in which allusion to the "dwarfish proportions of the fund of Scottish Masonic Benevolence" will, we trust, be carefully read, and lead to more attention being directed to that charitable organisation, which, though now is a disgrace, will soon become an honour to the fraternity in Scotland.

The debt of the Grand Lodge of Scotland (which is also mentioned) by proper management would have been extinct long ago.

All zealous Masons are hopefully looking forward to the time when the Earl of Rosslyn's energetic measures for the welfare of the fraternity in Scotland, have borne fruit, and the financial arrangements of the Grand Lodge will then be placed on a firm and Masonic basis. I hope my friends will not be startled, but at page 355 there are evidences submitted, which unequivocally prove that the presence of ladies was permitted in open lodge in the year 1843. It is too long a subject to open up now, but the proof afforded of such an occurrence having taken place is unquestionable. The matter was duly investigated by the Grand Lodge, and the offending parties were severely reprimanded.

It is comforting to be told that the meeting was only convened on a festive occasion, and not for the conferring of Masonic degrees, or the "Lady Freemason" may have lost her unique distinction.

Chapter xxxix. is mainly devoted to a sketch of the most distinguished Masonic career of the Right Hon. the Earl of Dalhousie, K.T., K.C.B., to whom the History of the Lodge of Edinburgh is dedicated, as one of its noblest Honorary Members, and whose family have for upwards of a century been closely associated with the government of the Craft. His Lordship is well-known in this country as Past Deputy Grand Master, and as the Representative of our Grand Lodge at the Grand Lodge of Scotland, of which latter body he was Grand Master for three years. To the Earl of Dalhousie the Fraternity are indebted for the patronage of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and his installation as head of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and doubtless from His Royal Highness taking so much interest in Scottish Freemasonry is to be attributed the fact that the present work by Bro. Lyon is issued under his Royal patronage.

Numerous notices of many distinguished brethren, forming quite a series of biographical sketches of prominent Masons, extending over a period of upwards of three centuries, adorn the work, and form an additional attraction to the History of the Lodge of Edinburgh. There is of course one important omission, which I shall endeavour to remedy at the close of this article. I allude to the life and labours of the author of the work itself, and am persuaded in briefly noticing Bro. D. Murray Lyon's Masonic career I shall accomplish, though in an imperfect manner, the wishes of all the subscribers. Division No. xlii. may be designated the Royal Chapter, as it contains a complete account of all the sovereigns and princes of this land who have honoured the Craft with their patronage, from the initiation of Frederick Lewis Prince of Wales (father of George III) in 1737, to His Royal Highness Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, in 1868.

We are glad to see by the notice concerning the Masonic Library of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, that a catalogue of that valuable collection of books is in course of preparation, for the condition the library has been in for many years has been most unsatisfactory. The volume contains in conclusion quite a galaxy of excerpts from the records of ancient lodges in the seventeenth, and early in the eighteenth centuries, the whole of which, though most interesting and valuable are many years later in date than those of the Lodge of Edinburgh.

The Masonic Historian of Scotland, Bro. David Murray Lyon, of Ayr, was initiated in the Lodge of "Ayr and Renfrew Militia St. Paul," No. 204, June 1854; was put in "harness" at once, having acted as Secretary in 1854 and since then, in 1869 and 1873. He was affiliated into "Mother Kilwinning" in 1860, was its Junior Warden in 1861, Proxy Warden from 1862 to 1869, and Proxy Master of Scarborough Lodge, Tobago, from 1869 and 1873. Affiliated with St. James Lodge, Newton-on-Ayr, No. 125, in 1868, the members elected him their Master in 1873, and as such received the degree of Installed Master in St. Mark's Glasgow, No. 102, in July. Until lately the Past Master's degree was worked under the authority of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland.

His connection with the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ayrshire, dates from 1861, since which period Bro. Lyon has been either Junior or Senior Grand Warden, having acted to the year 1866 in the former capacity, and since then as the Senior Prov.G.M.

He has also been elected annually from 1863 as one of the Grand Stewards of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. I shall not append the list of lodges of which he is Honorary Member, as I have already occupied considerable space in my review of his magnum opus, but shall rest content by mentioning that the Lodge of Edinburgh has his name enrolled as such in their illustrious records. In Royal Arch Masonry our brother has been also most fortunate and distinguished in his associations with the companions. Exalted in the Ayr St. Paul Chapter No. 18, in July, 1854, and affiliated into Ayr Kilwinning, No. 80, in 1860, the members were not satisfied until they were able to salute him as their Past First Principal of both chapters, and has since then rendered most invaluable assistance to the Grand Chapter by way of inaugurating chapters, and in a trying time was the chief support to that body in the Province of Ayrshire when a rival Grand Chapter was started in Glasgow.

Bro. Lyon is also a member of the Grand Priory of Scotland, having enjoyed that distinction from the year 1862. He was knighted in October, 1858, in the Ayr Priory, No. 4, for which he was the Secretary from 1860 to 1862, and from that period has presided as its Eminent Commander.

But it is as a Masonic Historian that his chief labours for the Craft have been so successfully devoted, and in appreciation of which he was elected one of the few corresponding members of the Verein Deutscher Freimaieria in 1867; and the M.A. of the Masonic University of Kentucky in June, 1862, and corresponding member of the Rosicrucian Society of England in 1869. As the author of the histories of "Mother Lodge Kilwinning;" "The Lodge of Edinburgh;" "The Lodge of Thornhill;" "Rise and Progress of Freemasonry in Scotland;" and a host of smaller, but most valuable productions, his name will be associated with his country as a most accurate Masonic Historian, so long as Freemasonry is respected and beloved, and faith, hope, and charity, are venerated throughout the length and breath of the land, and indeed wherever masonic students exist throughout the world.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SURREY.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey was held on Saturday 26th ult., for the year 1873, at the Station Hotel, Sutton, when a large and distinguished party of Freemasons of the county attended to show respect to the Provincial Grand Master, Major-General Brownrigg, C.B., who presided, and to perform the business of the Province which had accumulated during the year.

Among those who attended we observed:—Bros. the Rev. A. W. Hall, Prov.G.C.; George Price, Prov.G. Treasurer; C. W. Dommett, Prov. G.R.; W. Greenway, Prov. G.D.C.; C. W. Power, Prov. G.S.W.; James Squire, Prov. G. Std. B.; C. H. Woodward, P. Prov. J.G.W. Dr. Strong, P. Prov. J.G.W.; H. Cartwright, P. Prov. J.G.W.; George White, P. Prov. S.G. W.; H. J. P. Dumas, P.J.G.D., &c.; James Robins, P.M., Treasurer, No. 452; William T. Sugg, P.M., No. 452; E. H. Sugg, Org., No. 452; Magnus Ohren, P.M., No. 33, and P.M. and Secretary, No. 452; George Porter, Prov. G. Org.; James Fearman, Prov. G. Stwd. B.; J. J. Burton, Prov. G. Std. B.; Draper Woodward, W. Finlay, H. Potter, 1,347; R. R. D. Podmore, W. Church Poole, W.M., 452; C. Horsley, P.G.R., Middx.; R. T. Elsam, W.M., 891 W. J. Kemp, 1,362; A. C. Ebbutt, Walter Spencer, 452; Henry Langridge, S.W., 1,347; Herbert Potter, 55, 1,347; W. Baker, P.M., 142; James Terry, Secretary R.M. Benevolent Institution; W. Smallpeice, W.M. 1,385; C. Moody, P.M. 1,046; John Knight, W.M. 1,046, and E. E. Meakin, W.M. 1,363.

When the lodge had been formally opened and the preliminary business transacted, the Grand Lodge accepted the Finance Committee's report, which recommended twenty guineas to be given to the Boys' School, and fifteen guineas to the Girls' School, to qualify the Province as Vice-President of these Institutions. Bro. George Price was re-elected and invested as Provincial Grand Treasurer.

The Provincial Grand Master then read the speech of the most Worshipful Grand Master delivered in Grand Lodge on Grand Festival, which appeared in our impression of the 3rd of last May. The observations made in this speech he commended to the earnest attention of the brethren as being likely, if observed, to improve the position of both Masons and Masonry among the Institutions of the country and in the opinion of their fellow citizens.

The retirement of Bro. B. Blake from the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master was announced, and the Provincial Grand Master said he could not but regret it, as the services of Bro. Blake, in his high position, had been of great importance to the province; and that the thanks of himself and all other brethren were due to that brother for the faithful and zealous discharge of his duties.

He then appointed the following brethren as his Grand Officers:—Bro. W. F. Harrison, of Weybridge, D.G.M., in place of Bro. Blake, resigned through ill-health; Bro. Knight, P.S.G.W.; Bro. Magnus Ohren, P.J.G.W.; Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, G. Chaplain; Bro. G.

Price, G. Treasurer; Bro. C. Greenwood, P.G. Secretary; Bro. Ernest H. Morrison, P.G. Registrar; Bro. Charrington, S.G.D.; Bro. Owens, P.G. J.D.; Bro. W. Church Poole, P.G. Sup. Works; Bro. R. T. Elsam, G.D.C.; Bro. Horne, G. Swd. B.; Bro. Sugg, G. Org.; and Bro. C. T. Speight, Prov. Grand Tyler.

The following proposition by Bro. Woodward was brought forward and discussed:—

"That, owing to the growth of Freemasonry in the Province of Surrey, and the increasing number of lodges, a fund be established, to be called 'The Provincial Grand Lodge of Surrey Entertainment Fund,' to which every lodge in the Province of Surrey shall contribute the sum of two guineas annually. The amount to be paid to the Provincial Grand Treasurer, with and at the same time as Provincial Grand Lodge dues are paid. The Provincial Grand Treasurer will hand over to the Treasurer of the lodge entertaining Provincial Grand Lodge the amount he shall have received up to and including the day on which Provincial Grand Lodge shall meet in each year."

In the discussion Bros. Magnus Ohren, Sec., and James Robins, Treasurer of the Frederick Lodge of Unity, and many others took part, and it was proposed as an amendment that the sum should be made three guineas instead of two. The amendment, however, was afterwards withdrawn, and the original motion was carried. At the conclusion of the business of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the Grand Master and his officers were entertained by the W. Master (Bro. W. Church Poole) and brethren of the Frederick Lodge of Unity (452) at a banquet, in a spacious marquee in the grounds adjoining the hotel. When the banquet was concluded, the musical brethren sang grace, and the toasts were proceeded with.

The Provincial Grand Master, in appropriate terms, proposed "The Queen and the Craft." In giving "The Health of the Grand Master, the Marquess of Ripon," he referred again to the speech which his Lordship delivered in Grand Lodge on the 30th April, as showing the genuine interest he took in the welfare of the Craft.

The toast of "The Deputy Grand Master," which included that of "The Past Grand Master, the Prince of Wales," he said would also be received with pleasure. It was an immense satisfaction to the Craft when they found that the Prince had received Masonic light, and though he did not receive it in this country, they knew the excellent spirit in which Masonry was carried on in the country where he became a brother. Since then he had displayed great interest in Masonry; and though it could not be expected that H.R.H. could keep up the working of the degrees, yet as Master of a private lodge to which he (the Prov. G.M.) belonged, he had done his work very well. As the toast included the present and past Grand Officers, he would call on Bro. H. J. P. Dumas, a Past Grand Deacon, to respond to it.

Bro. H. H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D., in responding said how deeply he felt the honour of occupying the position of a grand officer, and of being favoured with the notice of the Provincial Grand Master. As he himself should endeavour, so he hoped every grand officer would endeavour to claim a title to such kind notice.

Bro. G. W. White Phipson proposed "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master." As an old officer of the province, he could not forget the twenty or twenty-one years that had passed since he first had the honour of being associated with the Past Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Alex. Dobie). Under him the officers of the province had passed many years of improvement, pleasure and happiness; but as it had been said there were as good fish in the sea as had ever been caught, so on the retirement of a good Grand Master, a good one was to be found to supply his place. Of that the province had had experience in the selection of the Present Provincial Grand Master, who was always to be found attending to his duties, and seeking the welfare of his province. In a great number of instances the duties of grand officers were but lightly thought of, though in the majority of instances they were well attended to. They had seen this in the past, and had led a happy and prosperous time under Bro. Dobie. The Grand Master, they could see, was a man of rule, and could carry out what he had set himself. He expected a due observance of the call which it was his right and privilege to make upon them. With such a ruler the province would grow in importance, and the distribution of office among men who were good Masons, would tend to raise the province in the estimation of the Craft. He trusted that the present Prov. Grand Master would long be preserved to rule over the province, and that for many years they would meet in that unanimity and good feeling which characterises them at the present time.

The Provincial Grand Master in acknowledging the toast, said his reception at the hands of the brethren had always been cordial, and if he did not meet with similar kindness in future it would be his own fault. The allusions which Bro. White Phipson had made to the career of the Past Provincial Grand Master was very touching, and he felt it very deeply, because he felt that when the time should come for himself through weakness to resign the honourable position he now held, the same good wishes and good feelings which had followed Bro. Dobie into retirement would follow him. Depend upon it he would do his best to preserve it, in all matters he would endeavour to act fairly, and honestly, and justly to all.

The Provincial Grand Master next gave "The Health of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Present and Past," and complimented them by saying that it was impossible he could carry out his work properly without their assistance. He was happy to say they had hitherto been found most efficient, and he hoped that those brethren, on whom his choice had fallen that day, would prove themselves as worthy of office as their predecessors. They would see the necessity of performing their duties, and attending to the work of the province. He would certainly not have undertaken the office of Provincial Grand Master if he had not intended to discharge the duties attached to the occupancy of the chair. Therefore what he had undertaken himself he expected of others.

Bro. Wright, and the Rev. Ambrose Hall responded, the latter remarking that Bro. Harcourt would have been present but for ill-health, and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, but for affliction, and he felt confident the brethren would express their sympathy with him in that affliction.

The Provincial Grand Master hoped the Provincial Grand Secretary would place on the minutes the few words he uttered in Grand Lodge when he expressed his high sense of the services Bro. Blake had conferred on the province, and his regret at his absence.

The Provincial Grand Master said that before he had the honour of being connected with the Province of Surrey he was able to testify to its hospitality. Since he had had the honour of being more closely connected with it, he had found a repetition of that hospitality. If at any time he had not attended their banquets, it was not for want of being asked, but for want of opportunity to accept the invitations. A large number of visiting brethren were always to be found at their board and in their lodges, which was a habit to be encouraged, as they always learned something from associating with their brethren from other provinces. "The Visiting Brethren from other Provinces" was the toast he had to propose, and he should couple with it the name of Bro. Horsley, Prov. G. Reg. Middlesex.

Bro. Horsley replied, and in doing so thanked the Provincial Grand Master for the compliment, the Frederick Lodge of Unity for their entertainment, and Bro. Magnus Ohren, an old and esteemed friend of his, for giving him the extreme pleasure of being present. The Provincial Grand Master had given them all a treat in shewing them that he could work his columns in Masonry as well as he could his columns in the army. He had had efficient officers round him in different parts of the world; but it was doubtful whether he ever had a more able corps of officers than he had at the present glorious board.

The Provincial Grand Master in giving "The Health of the Provincial Grand Treasurer and Grand Secretary," said the duties of those two officers were unceasing. The Grand Treasurer fortunately had well filled coffers, and it was their confidence in him which made his presence and his position so satisfactory to them all. The Grand Secretary they knew better than he (the Provincial Grand Master) did, and when he invested him with his collar he had said he did not know what we should do without him. With his own, at present, but partial knowledge of the province, Bro. Greenwood's advice had been of great assistance. He hoped in the matter of knowing the province he would go on improving every year. He had a bad memory for names, but a good memory for faces; but he trusted he should be able very soon to remember all the brethren with whom he might be brought in contact.

Bro. Price, Grand Treasurer, replied; he felt it a great advantage to be coupled with his worthy colleague, Bro. Greenwood, in this toast. They had acted together now for a great number of years, he was almost afraid to say how many, and during that period they had always worked in love and harmony together; they had never differed, and that was an advantage which others would do well to seek. If officers acted together the Provincial Grand Master would have very little trouble, and it would prove a benefit to Provincial Grand Lodge. For himself he begged to return thanks for the many kind things which the Provincial Grand Master had said of him. He had been Provincial Treasurer for many years. Last year he was in Spain when Grand Lodge met; and he was not able to attend; but he had very rarely been absent, and as long as they felt disposed to entrust him with the responsible position which he occupied, he would do his best to fill it to their satisfaction. He knew he was getting old, but while he was capable of performing their work he felt sure they would appoint no other to his place. He would, however, say that when he felt he could not perform his work satisfactorily, he would place his office in their hands.

Bro. C. Greenwood thought it very unkind that the Treasurer should have confined his speech entirely to himself, instead of responding for the Secretary as well. Bro. Price and himself were appointed on the same day, and it had given him great pleasure to work with him ever since. At Grand Lodge he had generally been present since then; very rarely had he been absent, indeed it was only two or three Provincial Grand meetings he had been absent from. It had given him great pleasure during that time to watch the progress of Freemasonry in the province of Surrey. When he was first appointed by Bro. Dobie, there were but few Masons in the province, and fewer lodges. Now, however, there was a great accession in lodges and a much more considerable accession of Masons. Most of them, he was happy to say, he knew, and he was proud to say that in the province of Surrey, they had carried out those sentiments which had been given expression to by the Grand Treasurer. Great changes had taken place. For many years he had the honour of serving under Bro. Dobie, whom he found to be an excellent Grand Master, and he was pleased to find his successor was in no respect inferior to him.

The Provincial Grand Master said the next toast was a special one. They had had a most agreeable evening; the banquet had been excellent, the hospitality of the Frederick Lodge of Unity unbounded, and the tent in which they had been greeted had been cool and airy, and everything had been done by the lodge to make them comfortable. For all this they had to thank the Frederick Lodge of Unity, and he would appeal to the brethren present for support in his assertion, that this visitation of Grand Lodge had been received with the most liberal exercise of the rights of hospitality, and good fellowship. He then proposed "W.M., Wardens, and brethren of the Frederick Lodge of Unity."

Bro. Elsam returned thanks for "The Masters and Wardens of the other Lodges in the Province," and for his own appointment as Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, an honour which he was sure the Dobie Lodge would value.

Bro. James Terry, Secretary of the Benevolent Institution, returned thanks for "The Masonic Charities." In doing so he expressed a hope that at the next festival of this Institution a brother would represent the province of Surrey, indeed he was sure there was a brother present who would do so. He also reviewed the progress made by the three Charities.

The company then separated, after having enjoyed a delightful evening. Of the banquet it is but fair to say that Bro. Potter, of the Station Hotel, supplied it with excellent discretion. It was a masterpiece of skill and taste, both as to the quality and quantity of the provisions, and the wines were a proof of sound judgment in their selection.

Bro. Speight, the Provincial Grand Tyler, was an efficient Toast-Master, and was very assiduous in the performance of his duties.

Some charming singing was performed during the evening, when Bros. Baxter, G. T. Carter, Montem Smith, and Theodore Distin displayed their superior vocal powers, and Bro. E. H. Sugg, Provincial Grand Organist, and Organist, 452, his ability as an instrumentalist.

THE RELIGIOUS QUESTION AND FREEMASONRY IN BRAZIL.

From the Anglo-Brazilian Times, published at Rio de Janeiro, we extract the following account of an interesting debate upon the subject of the Roman Catholic hostility to Freemasonry, which took place in the Senate of that country:—

Visconde Do Rio Branco: I do not intend to enter largely into the matter of which the motion treats, or, rather, on which the speech of its mover turns, still less do I rise to contest the famous oration of the noble senator for Maranham, Sr. Candido Mendes De Almeida, an oration circulated as a tract with a special title, not as a speech in the Senate, on the vote of thanks, but as though it were a pamphlet against the so-called religious policy of the cabinet.

What I have to do now is to inform the Senate, in the name of the government, that the matter shall have a decision on the appeal which one of the brotherhoods of the city of Recife has taken to the Crown, against the interdiction imposed on it by the prelate of that diocese. This affair has been committed to that enlightened section of the Council of State which consults upon affairs of the Empire, and probably the opinion of the full Council of State will also be taken, whereon the government will pronounce the decision which its powers admit of and the case requires.

I believe that, as the noble Senator for Para (Souza Franco) has said, there is appeal, and that our ecclesiastical law is happily not what the noble Senator for Maranham has expounded, denying even the legitimacy of the placet and arguing that in conjunctures like this there is no remedy but to go to Rome.

While giving this information to the Senate, I cannot avoid adding some reflections, very brief ones, as I do not wish to prejudice the speech of the noble Senator for Bahia (Zacarias), besides the solemn promise I recently gave him. The reflections I allude to arise naturally from my special position in relation to Brazilian Masonry.

Senator F. Octaviano Rosa:—Hear.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—The noble Senator for Maranham, who has taken upon himself the defence of the acts of the prelates, has made a really inquisitorial examination into all that has been published for or against Masonic societies throughout the world, and therefrom concludes that Brazilian Masonry is identified with that of Europe, not alone in the aims common to all, but even in the special interests of the society in which each lives. By this absolute and fatal logic the noble Senator has arrived at the deduction that the proximate and inevitable consequence of Masonry is the Commune of Paris. Propositions of this kind, Mr. President, can be enounced only by one who is hallucinated by a principle or by the defence of a cause, and is ignorant of what Masonry is in Brazil.

Senator Mendes De Almeida:—Like your Excellency? Pray keep within bounds; I respect you.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—I think there is nothing offensive to the noble Senator in what I have just said. (No, No.) To say that you are hallucinated by the principle or by the cause you defend, and that you do not know the Freemasonry of Brazil, is not throwing a slur on you. But to say that a society to which I have the honour to belong has similitude with the Commune of Paris is certainly an offensive proposition.

Sr. Mendes De Almeida:—Where is that in my speech?

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—Not only to him who is addressing the Senate, but even to a great number of Brazilians.

Sr. Mendes De Almeida:—I said no such thing; your Exc. is building a castle.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—The noble Senator said that the Commune of Paris, or the International, was a consequence of the principles professed by the Masonic societies; if this is not in his speech I think I heard it from him.

Sr. Mendes De Almeida:—I did not say so, Y. Ex. is mistaken.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—So be it.

Sr. Mendes De Almeida:—Things must be put to rights.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—I am even glad of the rectification of the noble Senator, that is, that he did not malign Brazilian Masonry so much as I thought I had heard him do.

Mr. President, I entered Masonry many years ago, and I have never seen it meddle with religion or with state politics; my experience is that it has ever been a society intended for the succour of its members and for the promotion of man's moral and intellectual perfection. If it does little for this latter aim, if it has established few schools, its acts of beneficence are incontestible, and many families receive assistance from these societies which it is sought to stigmatise, and even to deny the rights of citizenship to.

While still a young man I was invited to join one of the Masonic lodges, and I affiliated therein. Afterwards, for many years, I ceased attendance, until in 1869 I was called to the charge now exercised by me, of chief of one of the Masonic circles. I was preceded in this position by men of such recognized good catholicity as were Jose Clemente Pereira, Marquis de Abrantes, Marcellino de Brito, Visconde do Uruguay.

Sr. Francisco Octaviano:—Cayru.

Visconde do Rio Branco:—Baron de Cayru, Visconde de Albuquerque, Jose Bonifacio, the patriarch of our independence, and D. Pedro I, founder of this Empire. When accepting the position, I knew that the person elected, at the same time, to the office of assistant chief was one of our most respectable men, now no longer in existence, Sr. Furtado, also considered a perfect Catholic. Wherefore, I was very far from foreseeing that what was allowed to Sr. Jose Clemente Pereira, Provedor of the Santa Casa da Misericordia, during many years, and to Marquis de Abrantes, who succeeded him in the administration of the same institution, was a crime, a heresy, an offence to the State religion, when done by me.

I accepted the charge of the Masons of the Lavradio circle, and I do not repent doing so, let the noble Senators, in accordance with their theology and canon law, decree as many excommunications as they please; my conscience is at ease, my relations with God are those of a complete Christian.

I do not consider it expedient to defend the State religion in the manner Ultramontanes do, and I should wish that the illuminated minds who, like the noble Senator for Maranham, possess so much ecclesiastical knowledge, would promote the interests of religion in Brazil in another way, by contributing to the better education of our clergy, to the regeneration of that of now (hear, hear), to the edifying of their flocks by the prelates, evangelizing those flocks, and diffusing light and faith amidst them with apostolic works, with the example of devotion to God and society, whose pastors they are. It is thus consciences should be appealed to, not by commencing with expelling from the Catholic church the members of a society which has existed so many years in Brazil, always as a peaceful and beneficent association. (Applause.)

Discussion with the noble Senator for Maranham in these matters is difficult, because, besides his great learning, which I say without irony, he has the defect of supposing that others know absolutely nothing of ecclesiastical history and law.

Sr. Mendes de Almeida:—Pardon me; it is a defect discovered by Y. Ex. alone.

Visconde do Rio Branco:—So that not even as to the very Masonry I am seeing and practising, does he allow that I know anything.

Permit me, however, to remind you that Masonry was very much favoured by the Popes in other times, when the Masons bore the name of Freemasons, and enjoyed privileges as mechanical and artistical corporations, to whose work the great monuments of Christianity in Europe are owed.

Sr. F. Letoniano:—The cathedrals of Southern Europe.

Visconde do Rio Branco:—Bonifacio IV., Nicholas III., and Benedict XII., protected the Freemasons, and conferred important privileges upon them. (Hear.)

Sr. Mendes de Almeida:—Y. Ex. is making a discovery greater than that of Christopher Columbus!

Visconde do Rio Branco:—Your Excellency knows Masonry only by the books of its detractors, persons interested in breaking down what they consider a widely spread and powerful element of social progress.

Later, at the beginning of the XVIII century, Masonry became converted into a philosophical society, and took in some countries an active part in the politics of the day, and a persecution of it began. That persecution, Mr. President, did not stop at excommunication, many Masons ascended the scaffold and became victims. What, however, did religion and politics gain with that? Truth triumphed, Masonry continued to exist and make further spread, and it is now respected everywhere. Merely in two or three states was it forbidden, up to modern times, I think in Austria, Russia, and Spain; and the Senate knows that it is restored in the last country, and that it flourishes throughout Germany.

A party of Irish Freemasons are expected to leave Belfast in August on a trip to the United States. They will be piloted by Bros. John Ireland, and R. B. Matthews—two of the leading Freemasons of the North of Ireland.

THE VISIT OF THE AMERICAN BRETHREN TO GLASGOW.

At a recent meeting of the Masonic Excursion Party, U.S.A., it was resolved, that—

Whereas, the pre-eminence of Scotland in Masonic Rites is recognised throughout the world, we regard ourselves as singularly fortunate in being permitted to visit Glasgow and observe the working of the purest type of the Order.

Whereas, not only were we present and participants in the symbolic ceremonies of the Fraternity, but also the recipients of those social greetings which illustrate a union of heart as well as of hand among the brotherhood.

Resolved, that the Masonic Party from the U.S. entertained by the brethren of Glasgow on the evening of the 27th of June, are deeply sensible of the courtesy shown them.

Resolved, that the memories of the pleasant hour spent in intercourse with those who entertained us on that occasion, will be remembered with our most delightful reminiscences of a foreign land.

Resolved, that we shall hail with gladness the hour when we can reciprocate such cordiality.

Very respectfully and fraternally,

CECIL S. SPATES,
 D. W. LAWRENCE,
 H. F. CAMPBELL,

THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS,

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.
The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the
PREPARATORY SCHOOL
(entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy. Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease." This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough. *Invaluable should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had gratis of all Chemists.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN AND BUNION PLAISTERS are the best ever invented for giving immediate ease, and removing those painful excrescences. Price 6d. and 1s. per box. May be had of most chemists. Observe the trade mark.—HY—without which none are genuine be sure and ask for YOUNG'S.

Craft Masonry.

PAIGNTON.—Torbay Lodge (No. 1358).—The anniversary and installation meeting of this lodge was held at Masonic Hall, Paignton, on Monday last. The W.M. elect, Bro. J. C. Curtis Piller, was presented to the Installing Officer, Bro. Rev. R. Bowden, P.P.G.C., the immediate P.M., by Bro. J. Greenfield, P.P.J.G.D. The interesting ceremony of installation was ably performed by the I.P.M., Bro. Bowden, and the W.M., having been saluted according to masonic custom appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year: Bros. Rev. R. Bowden, P.P.G.C., I.P.M., and Chaplain; J. T. Goodridge, S.W.; W. E. Warren, J.W.; T. E. Dyer, Treasurer; C. H. Law, P.M., Secretary; T. Pope, S.D.; T. Pope, J.D.; F. K. Tozer, I.G.; J. Greenfield, P.M., D. of C.; W. Rossiter, and J. Chinnock, Stewards; and W. J. Tozer, Tyler. The accounts having been audited and passed, showed a balance in favour the lodge. The lodge was then closed and the brethren, amongst whom were P.M. Baron de Verte, a member of the Grand Lodge of Italy; A. B. Niner, P.M. 710; T. Oliver, P.M. 328; Johnson, P.M. 248; Bovey, 328; Gordon Campell, J. Couldrey, W. Rossiter, J. Chinnock, W. Windram, C. West, W. Harvey, and W. J. Tozer, adjourned to the Crown and Anchor Hotel, where a most splendid and elegant banquet served à la russe proved that the host was no novice as a caterer; novelties both in and out of season, graced the well decorated table, and the serving was all to be desired. Many excellent speeches were made, and the claims of a distressed brother over eighty years of age was brought before the brethren, who liberally responded, and it was determined to make application for him to the Committee of Petitions. The evening was most pleasantly spent, and the party broke up early, delighted with the spirit and fraternal feeling manifested throughout the days proceedings.

DALTON-IN-FURNESS.—Baldwin Lodge (No. 1397).—On Tuesday, July 29th, took place at Dalton-in-Furness, the installation of Bro. William Whiteside as second W.M. of the recently formed Baldwin Lodge, No. 1398. About one o'clock the members of the lodge, together with brethren from Ulverston, Lancaster Barrow, and Millom, assembled at the lodge room, in the ancient Castle, where the ceremony of installation was impressively conducted by Bro. Reuben Pearson, P.M. Lodge of Furness, 995, Ulverston. The newly installed W.M., on assuming his position, invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:— Bro. James Postlethwaite, S.W.; William Horn, J.W.; F. H. Clark, Treas.; J. Tyson Sec.; Rev. J. M. Morgan, Chaplain; F. Bell, S.D.; J. Walton, J.D.; R. Pearson, D.C.; P.

Derbyshire, Org.; T. Grieve and J. Harrison, Stewards; H. Kendal, I.G.; and Thomas Cooper, Tyler. After the installation and investiture, the brethren, to the number of 50, adjourned to the Wellington Hotel, where a banquet of a recherché description was provided by Bro. Bell. The tables were tastefully ornamented with choice exotics, and were much admired by many who had the pleasure of a view of them previous to the entrance of the guests. The repast was all that could be desired, and many were the expressions of pleasure at the catering capabilities of Bro. Bell. The after proceedings were presided over by Bro. Whiteside, W.M.; who was supported by Bro. Wylie, Provincial Grand Registrar, Bros. R. Pearson, Dodgson and others. The vice chair was occupied by Bro. James Postlethwaite, S.W., supported by Bro. James Robinson, Sec., 695; Bro. Mills, P.G. Steward C. and W., and others. The usual loyal and masonic toasts were given by the W.M. and Bro. T. Dodgson, and were drunk, and then the assembly drank with masonic heartiness the health of the W.M., who in responding said, he hoped at the end of his year to hand down to his successor the office of W.M. as un sullied as he had then received it. The "Wardens and Officers of 1398," was responded to by Bro. James Postlethwaite, S.W. The toast of "Installing Master" was given from the chair, and the W.M. also performed the pleasing duty of presenting to Bro. Pearson a P.M.'s jewel, as a slight token of esteem, and in appreciation of the able manner which he has worked the lodge during the past year. Bro. Pearson, in replying to the toast, said what he had done for the lodge had been to him a very great pleasure, and he heartily thanked them for the handsome jewel just handed to him. It was also announced that a similar jewel had been subscribed for by the brethren, and was intended for presentation to Bro. Baldwin. Both jewels were supplied by Bro. Kenning, of London and Liverpool, and were very much admired.—The other toasts given were "The Past Officers of 1398," "The Clerical Brethren," responded to on behalf of the Rev. J. M. Morgan, Chaplain; "The Masonic Charities," "The Visiting Brethren," acknowledged by Bro. Cornfield, Barrow; "The Ladies," "Our Musical Friends and Brethren," and "To all Poor and Distressed Masons," The toasts were interspersed with a number of songs sung by Bros. Harper, Parker, and Robinson, of Ulverston, and Bro. Bell, and the proceedings throughout were of a most enjoyable and gratifying character. Bros. Harper and Parker presided at the pianoforte. Bro. Baldwin, the I.P.M., was unavoidably absent. Besides the brethren already mentioned, there were present among the guests, Bro. Wylie, Provincial Grand Registrar, Bros. Joseph Rawlinson, P. Wurzburger, G. B. Moses, and Richard Hosking, Dalton; Roger Dodgson, I.P.M. Whitwell Lodge, Millom, and P.G.S.B. Cumberland and Westmorland; Thomas Dodgson, W.M. Whitwell Lodge; J. Case, P.M. Ulverston, and others.

PLYMOUTH.—Elliott Chapter (No. 1205).—A special meeting of this chapter was held on the 29th ult at the Metham Masonic Hall, Stonehouse, Plymouth, for the installation of the First Principal elect, Ex. Comp. J. G. Shanks, Capt. Royal Marines Light Infantry, Knight of the Imperial Order of the Mejidie, Past H. of this chapter, and Past Third Grand Principal of the Province of Devon. Comp. Shanks, although now stationed in Scotland on the recruiting service, was unanimously elected to fill the high office of Z. in this chapter, and a goodly number of Principals and other companions assembled to do honour to the occasion. The ceremony of installation was performed by Ex. Comp. Gidley, P.Z. Afterwards three candidates for this sublime degree were duly obligated and exalted, the beautiful ceremonial being most admirably and impressively rendered by Ex. Comp. Shanks. The historical lecture was delivered by Ex. Comp. Cross, J.; the Symbolical by Ex. Comp. Gidley, P.Z.; and the mystic lecture by Ex. Comp. Shanks, Z. The lectures were all given in such a manner as was calculated to impress the minds of the newly-exalted companions with the solemnity and deep religious feeling which pervades the teachings of this degree. On his return to Scotland, Comp. Shanks travelled by the train which met with the fearful catastrophe at Wigan, and although he escaped without any external injuries yet he was severely shaken, and was covered with the blood of some of those who so unfortunately lost their lives on that occasion.

LANGTON.—Etruscan Chapter (No. 546).—A convocation of emergency of this young chapter was held on Tuesday, the 29th July, when eleven candidates were balloted for and elected, nine of whom were exalted in a most efficient manner by M.E. Comp. Horton Yates, Z. The prospects of this chapter are most encouraging and it promises to be one of the best in the north of the province, both as regards number and efficiency of its officers.

Knights Templar.

NEWPORT.—Gwent Preceptory.—This preceptory was opened at the Masonic Hall, the 31st inst., by E.P., H. M. Kennard, supported by Major S. H. Clerke, D.G.S.P. of England; H. Hellyer, First Captain; S. G. Homfray, Second Captain; Captain Pearson, L. A. Homfray, R. S. Roper, W. Williams, R. J. Chambers, W. Pickford, H. J. Groves, and many other eminent Sir Knights.

After reading the minutes, the ballot was taken for Companion Walter West, who was unanimously elected, and was then duly installed by E.P., H. M. Kennard, who performed the ceremony in a most able and effective manner. Sir Knight H. Hellyer, was then unanimously elected as E.P. for the next year, to be installed in February. The alms were then collected, and the preceptory closed in due form.

A Priory of Malta was then opened by E.P. Major S. H. Clerke, when Sir Knight Walter West was installed of Knight of Malta. The ceremony was performed in the effective manner in which the gallant Major always performs his Masonic duties. The Province of Monmouthshire is deeply indebted to him for his valuable services, especially as having been the main cause of these degrees being originated in this Province.

GRAND COUNCIL.

A meeting of the Grand Council of this Order was held at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on Saturday, the 2nd inst., by special command of the Earl of Bective, under the Presidency of Colonel Burdett, G.S.G., who was supported by Sir Knts. K. W. Little, G. Treas.; H. C. Levander, G.H.A.; J. L. Thomas, G.A.; Angelo J. Lewis, G. Orator; and by a considerable number of the Senate, who joined in the deliberations without the power of voting, amongst them being Sir Knts. T. W. White, S. Rosenthal, T. Burdett Yeoman, and Rev. W. B.

Church. M. I. Bro. A. G. Goodall, G. Sov. of the Grand Council of New York, attended the council, and gave important information as to the position and prospects of the Order in the United States.

Amongst other propositions it was resolved that the fee for charters be increased to two guineas from the 1st of October—that the Canadian Knights be exempted from the payment of all fees to England except those for charters, enrolments and diplomas, and that a renewed application for a second conclave at Wellington, New Zealand, be referred to the Intendant General of that division. Sir Knt. Little presented his credentials and was greeted heartily as Grand Representative for Pennsylvania.

K.H.S.

A Patriarchal Council of the K.H.S. was then held, and it was unanimously resolved that every conclave in the Red Cross Order, in which at least nine Royal Arch Masons are members, be empowered, under its existing charter, to confer the K.H.S. degree, and that the fee payable to the Patriarchal Council for each Knight admitted be half-a-guinea.

The Mount Carmel Sanctuary of the K.H.S. was then opened by the Rev. W. B. Church, Presiding Prelate, and Commander of St. John, assisted by his officers, and by Sir Knts. W. Williams, jun., Intendant General, Monmouthshire; J. Lewis Thomas, G.A.; S. Rosenthal, G.A.M.; and G. Lambert, were created K.H.S. and K.S.J.

The Sanctuary of K.H.S. and Commandery of St. John were then closed with the customary solemnities.

A meeting of the Constantine Council of the Cryptic Rite was then held, and Comps. Williams, Thiellay, T. W. White and J. Lewis Thomas were received as M.E., R.S., and S.E. Masters.

The following were admitted into the Rosicrucian Society by the S.M.:—Bros. Williams, Thiellay, Thomas, and Lambert. In this instance vows are not required.

Bro. Williams was also obligated as a Royal Ark Mariner in connection with No. 1, the mother lodge.

The Cryptic Rite.

This Rite, which was introduced into England about two years ago, under the authority of the Grand Council of New York, is now established upon a firm and substantial basis by the formation of a Grand Council for England, Wales, and the Colonies, excepting our dependencies in North America.

On Friday, the 25th ult., a meeting was held at Golden-square, when the representatives of the four Councils of R. and S. Masters located in London met in convention. Illustrious Comps. Capt. N. G. Philips and Hyde Pullen represented the Grand Master's, or No. 1 Council; R. Wentworth Little, T.I.M.; H. E. Levander, D.M.; Rev. W. B. Church, P.C. of Works; T. Cubitt, T. B. Yeoman, and E. Stanton Jones, the Constantine Council No. 2; F. Binckes, T.I.M., the Mark Council No. 3; and S. Rosenthal, T.I.M., the Macdonald Council No. 4.

The Masters of Nos. 2 and 3 were duly installed, after which the following candidates were received and greeted:—Comps. Major G. Barlow, Capt. C. J. Burgess, and H. Dubosc, for No. 1; Colonel F. Burdett, T. W. Coffin, and J. C. Curteis, for No. 2; A. G. Goodall and Hyde Pullen, rendered valuable assistance, and the former was specially thanked, as an American R. and S. Master, for his services. The meeting was then adjourned to Tuesday the 29th ult., at 2, Red Lion-square, when a goodly number of members assembled to form the Grand Council. The Grand Mastership was awarded by a unanimous vote to the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., who was thereupon duly obligated and installed by Comp. F. Binckes, under powers delegated to the latter by the Grand Council of New York. The officers were then appointed as follows:—

Illustrious Comps. Capt. N. G. Philips, D.G.M.; J. M. P. Montagu, G.I.M.; Hyde Pullen, G.P.C. of Works; F. Binckes, G.R.; S. Rosenthal, G.C. of the Guards; Rev. W. B. Church, G.C.; H. E. Levander, G. Lecturer; E. Baxter, G. Marshal; and J. Stevens, G. Stewards. The rank of Past Grand Treasurer was conferred upon Comp. F. Davison. Comp. R. Wentworth Little presented his credentials as a Past Grand Master and Grand Representative from New Brunswick, and was duly acknowledged. Comp. Goodall was appointed Grand Representative of England to the Grand Council of New York. The laws and constitutions of the Rite were then considered seriatim, after which the Grand Council was closed.

GLASGOW.—St. Mark's Lodge (No. 102).—An emergency meeting of this old lodge was held on the 27th ult., in St. Mark's Hall, for the purpose of initiating Mr. J. D. Humphries, the well-known intrepid lion tamer. Bro. J. Halket, P.M. 102, took the chair, and performed the ceremonies in that impressive way that characterises all his working. The initiate, though perfectly fearless when in the den of the most ferocious animals, was evidently impressed by the sublime courage evinced by our Grand Master, Hiram. His professional engagement not permitting a longer stay, a few of the brethren met him on the following day, and presented him with a Master Mason's jewel, as a testimony of their respect for his public character and private work. The meeting was a most harmonious one.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF MONMOUTHSHIRE.

At 4 p.m., on Friday, the 1st of August, the companions of this province met at the Masonic Hall, Newport, to install their Past Grand Master, Col. Lyne, to the proud position of Past Grand Superintendent of Royal Arch Masons in this province, he having received his patent from the G.Z., the Marquess of Ripon.

We may remark that less than two years ago this province had but one Royal Arch Chapter, whereas it now numbers four—all well worked and supported, which speaks volumes for the progress of Royal Arch Masonry.

The ceremony was to have been performed by Dr. Hamilton, P.G. Superintendent of Jamaica, but in consequence of the death of a near relative he was obliged to depute the authority to others. The Worthy P.Z., S. G. Homfray, acted as the Presiding Officer, and the chapter was opened in due form by him as Z.; P.Z. Major S. H. Clerke, as H.; and M.Z., C. Wells, as J.

The patent was then read, and P.Z. Col. Lyne was presented by Comps. Pickford, and Hellyer, two of the oldest P.Z.'s in the province. Col. Lyne was then obligated, according to ancient custom, by Major S. H. Clerke, P.Z., and he appointed P.Z. S. G. Homfray, as P.G.H., and M.E.Z., and L. A. Homfray, as P.G.J.

The Principals were then duly invested and proclaimed.

The following appointments were made:—P.Z. Pickford as P.G. Scribe, N.; P.Z. Wells as P.G. Scribe, E.; P.Z. Middleton as P. Sojourner; P.Z. Hellyer, as Assistant Sojourner; P.Z. Olliver, as Assistant Sojourner; 2nd Prin. R. B. Evans, P.G. Treasurer; 3rd Prin. Chambers, P.G. Registrar; M.E.Z. Dr. Brown as P. Sword-bearer; M.E.Z. H. J. Gratte as Standard Bearer; 2nd Prin. Thomas Williams as Director of Ceremonies; 3rd Prin. W. Williams as Janitor; Comp. Groves as Organist.

The officers were duly installed and invested. The P.G. Superintendent then returned thanks in a most appropriate manner, and alluded to the valuable services rendered by Major S. H. Clerke, to whom he proposed a vote thanks for his kindness in being present and taking part in the ceremony.

A vote of thanks was also passed to P.Z. S.

G. Homfray as the Presiding Officer, and the chapter was closed in harmony.

The companions afterwards dined together at the King's Head, numbering over 30.

The following were appointed officers of Provincial Grand Chapter for the ensuing year: Comps. Colonel Charles Lyne, P.G.S.; S. G. Homfray, P.G.H.; L. A. Homfray, P.G.J.; Edward Wells, P.G.S.E.; Wm. Pickford, P.G.S.N.; R. B. Evans, P.G., Treasurer; John Middleton, P.G.P.S.; C. Holmes, P.G.; H. Hellyer, Asst. ditto; D. Brown P.G. Sword Bearer; W. J. Gratte, P.G. Standard Bearer; Thomas Williams, P.G.D.C.; H. J. Groves, P.G.O.; W. Williams, jun., P.G. Janitor.

These were present at the banquet: Comps. Charles Lyne, P.G.S.; S. G. Homfray, P.G.H.; L. A. Homfray, P.G.J.; Major Shadwell Clerke, P.Z.; R. S. Roper; H. J. Gratte, P.G.S.B.; R. B. Evans, P.G.T.; Edwin Hibbard, 471; William Evans, 471; H. Hellyer, P.G.A.S.; D. James, 471; Israel Williams, 1258; Jabez Jacob, 1258; Alfred Jacob, 471; J. Horner, 471 and 1429; E. Whitehall, 1429; W. Randall, W.M., 1429; W. Watkins, 471, 610, and 1429; J. G. Huxtable, 471 and 1429; John Campbell, 471; H. J. Groves, 683; Thomas Williams, 683, P.D.C.; W. Fletcher, 471; Walter West, 683; H. Sanders, 683; T. W. Duckworth, 345; W. Williams, jun., 818; W. Pickford, P.G.S.N.; E. J. Thomas, P.Z., 36, &c., &c.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, NEWPORT.

On Friday, the 1st inst, a new lodge of Craft Masons, designated "The Albert Edward," was consecrated at the Masonic Hall. The gathering was very large, including not fewer than some fifty visitors from "foreign" provinces. It was a very imposing ceremony.

THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES.

In the Eleusinian Mysteries the following hymn was sung or chanted:—

"I will declare a secret to the initiated;
But let the doors be shut against the profane.
But thou O Musæus, offspring the bright of Selene,
Attend carefully to my song:
For I shall deliver the Truth without disguise,
Suffer not, therefore, thy former prejudices
To debar thee of that happy life,
Which the knowledge of these sublime truths
Will procure unto thee;
But carefully contemplate this divine oracle,
And preserve it in purity of mind and heart.
Go on in the right way, and see
The sole Governor of the World;
He is one, and of Himself alone;
And to that one all things owe their being.
He operates through all,
Was never seen by mortal eyes,
But does himself see every one."

AN HISTORIC BIBLE.

R. W. Bro. Charles H. Titus furnishes Moore's Freemasons' Magazine, for April, with the following interesting historical item:

"In St. John's Lodge, No. 1. A.F. and A.M. of Newark, N. J., there is an old black letter Bible, printed in 1594. This Bible is of Thomas Matthew's translation, a folio, in the Gothic letter, and was printed by 'Ihon Daye, and William Seres.' The title-page to the Bible is gone, but the title-page to the New Testament is there and perfect, with the date 1549, and is otherwise in good condition, having the last leaf with the colophon and printers' names. It was presented to the lodge in the last century by an emigrant from the mother country, the emigrant having previously affiliated with the lodge. In the year 1825 it was stolen from the lodge, and remained away for 25 years, and in 1850 it was traced to Philadelphia, and finally recovered and returned to the lodge in 1857. During the wanderings of these 32 years it lost its first title-page, but also gained something, it having pasted on the inside of the cover a rare engraved portrait, of Washington, one which the writer, although having seen many collections of Washington portraits, never remembers seeing before.

"At the time Washington had his headquarters in Morristown, N. J., a part of the jewels and furniture of St. John's Lodge was loaned to the travelling lodge, formed in the part of the 'colonial army then wintering at Morristown. Among the things so loaned was the Bible, and during the winter, General the Marquis of Lafayette, then with the army, was entered, passed, and raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. This Bible was used in the ceremonies, and Lafayette took his obligations upon it. It is known that Washington officiated as 'Master,' on these occasions. The associations connected with this Bible makes it an interesting object to all Masons, while its age and antiquity give its value to the book lover and antiquarian. Lowndes gives its first title thus:

'The Byble

Nowe lately with greate industry and diligence recognised (by Edm. Becke).

Lond. by Ihon Daye and William Seres.

17 Aug. 1549,

"And further says that there are copies of this impression in the Lambeth, British Museum, Bodleian, and other libraries. A copy with one leaf wanting, sold at auction for £6 10s; other copies sold for various sums, one as high as £40. The facts in reference to the Bible having been used during the 'making' of Lafayette, were to be obtained from several old members of the lodge, one of these members being now eighty years of age. He, with the others, had the circumstances related to him by other earlier members who assisted at, or were known to those who did so assist, at the ceremonies above related. It is unnecessary to tell any member of the Craft that information derived from thorough Masons in regard to matters of this kind are likely to be very correct. The Master's chair used on the occasion, though much worn, is looked on with veneration because it once sustained the form of the father of his country."

THE SYMBOL OF THE STONE.

The stone, on account of its hardness, has been from the most ancient times a symbol of strength, fortitude, and a firm foundation. The word EBEN, which signifies a stone, is derived by Gesenius from an obsolete root, ABAN, to build, whence aban, an architect; and he refers it to AMANAH, which means a column, a covenant, and truth. The stone, therefore, says Portal (Symb. des Egypt.), may be considered as the symbol of faith and truth; hence Christ taught the very principle of symbology, when he called Peter, who represented faith, the rock or stone on which he would build his Church. But in Hebrew, as well as in Egyptian symbology, the stone was also sometimes the symbol of falsehood. Thus the name of Typhon, the principle of evil in the Egyptian theogony, was always written in the hieroglyphic characters with the determinative sign for a stone. But the stone of Typhon was a hewn stone, which had the same evil signification in Hebrew. Hence Jehovah says in Exodus, "Thou shalt not build me an altar of hewn stone;" and Joshua built Mount Ebal, "an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron." The hewn stone was there a symbol of evil and falsehood; the unhewn stone of good and truth. This must satisfy us that the Masonic symbolism of the stone, which is the converse of this, has not been derived from either the Hebrew or the Egyptian symbology, but sprang from the architectural ideas of the Operative Masons; for in Masonry the ashlar, or unhewn stone, is the symbol of man's evil and corrupt condition; while the perfect ashlar, or the hewn stone, is the symbol of his improved and perfected nature. — National Freemason.

CONSERVATISM OF FREEMASONRY.

The New Orleans Bulletin remarks concerning the Fraternity of the United States.

"Here is a body of men composed of all classes and professions, entertaining every kind of opinion upon religion and politics, and existing in every state of the union, who come together and exhibit among themselves the utmost harmony of freedom and action. No word of opprobrium escapes from the lips of anyone to insult and wound the feelings of another. No fierce anathema of sections is heard. No extravagance is indulged in. Everything is quiet, gentlemanly, respectful, dignified. The bitterest political enemies meet face to face, and you shall never know by their actions or words that they do not belong to the same party. Religionists the most opposite embrace each other in the arms of an exalted charity. Fanaticism finds no entrance into the society of the brotherhood. Not a wave of discord disturbs the waters of the inner temple, no plunge into the abyss of atheism, rant, or lawlessness, shocks the moral senses of mankind. No revolutionary hydra comes up from beneath to break up the foundation of order and send the tornado over the fair face of society. But what is the secret of their unanimity—of their harmony, of their brotherly love—of the conservative front, which without a tremor, they maintain, amid the general commotion, hatred, and fanaticism existing around them? It is found, it seems to strike us, in one word—Toleration."

GOOD MASON.—The good Mason is an example to his neighbors, and his name and character proverbial. Those who are younger venerate him; his companions love him. In his family he is high without severity, and condescending without meanness; his commands are gentle; indeed, his wishes are his commands, for all are equally ready to answer his desires. To his wife he is the tender husband, not the usurping lord; to his children he is the kind providential father, not the domineering tyrant; to his servant he is equally the friend as the superior. Thus ruling, he is obeyed with cheerfulness; and thus his home is, whether a cottage or a palace, while he is present, the habitation of peace. When he leaves, it is with reluctance, and when absent his returning is expected with pleasing avidity.—Inwood.

Original Correspondence.

JACHIN AND BOAZ.

To the Editor of The Freemason

Dear Sir and Brother,

Dr. Mackey, in his Lexicon (page 235), says that these pillars were set up, Jachin on the right or south side of the porch, and Boaz on the left or north.

A correspondent of The Freemason some time since alluded to this, and in confirmation of this opinion referred to a passage in scripture, in which it was said that Boaz was set up next the north wind. I have mislaid my note of the reference; could you oblige me with it, or perhaps some of your readers would. 2nd Chronicles, Chapter 3, verse 17, wont help me.

Yours truly,

H.

EGYPTIAN HALL.

If any thing could settle the pretensions of the soi-disant spiritualists, and make them exclaim, "Othello's occupation's gone!" we should say that it would be the marvellous entertainment of Maskelyne and Cook, the "Royal Illusionists," who not only imitate, but emulate the hitherto unexplained mysteries of the Davenport Brothers. The feats hitherto professedly accomplished by spiritual agency, Messrs. Maskelyne and Cook perform by simple dexterity and sleight of hand. This part of the entertainment is supplemented by astounding feats of plate dancing, an illusion, entitled "Decapitation Extraordinary," concluding with a transformation sketch, entitled, "Will, the Witch, and the Watch," in which some extraordinary effects are accomplished that no pen can describe, and which must be seen to be appreciated.

A memorial of the late Field-Marshal Sir George Pollock, constable of the Tower, has been placed in Westminster Abbey.

THE RELIGIOUS QUESTION AND FREEMASONRY IN BRAZIL.

The Masons were not persecuted in the name of Catholicity alone, for even the Sultan of Constantinople persecuted them; so it may be seen that the persecution had an origin other than religion—it arose from the influence exercised by it then on the political events of some countries.

For instance, it is known that in Great Britain Masonry contributed greatly to the restoration of the monarchy destroyed by Cromwell, and Charles II. ascended the throne of his fathers through the influence of the British Masons, especially of those of Scotland.

But in Brazil Masonry has been almost useless to politics; it has kept entirely apart, peaceful and neutral, so that politicians of all creeds meet with the utmost fraternity at its meetings.

The Masonic symbols, of which so much has been said, are allegories and traditions signifying nothing contrary to religion; the noble senators who so piously say amen to the excommunication of the Brazilian Masons may laugh at them, but they may not allege therewith that we are heretics or heresiarchs.

The Temple of Solomon, whose allegory the noble Senator considered one of his stones of scandal, is merely the first manifestation of the dogma of a single true God, a remembrance alluding to the works of art of the ancient Freemasons, a symbol of the moral and universal temple in which Christian civilisation should unite all humanity. All these symbols are drawn from sacred history, and therefore I do not know how they who do not disdain to employ the mythology created by paganism, can see even a blasphemy in the expression "Supreme Architect of the Universe," as though God were not the creator of the world, and that His wisdom, His power and His goodness are not adored in this formula. (Applause.)

In fine, Mr. President, all I know of Masonry is that its maxims are love of God, of our neighbour, and virtue. I think, therefore, that there is not only an injustice but even a mistake, a gross mistake, in politics and in religion, to seek to arouse this persecutory crusade against societies so numerous, so radicated in this country, so peaceful up to now, and to whom many families are owing their subsistence; against societies in which the catholic religion has sincere and devoted adepts, who are living examples of domestic and civic virtues.

The acts of the Prelate of Pernambuco have raised a question of law or jurisdiction which has been submitted to the study of the government. Its decision will be given after the affair has been thoroughly studied in all its gravity and bearings.

As regards the question of fact, I ask of the noble Senator for Maranham that, whenever he wishes to know what Masonry is in Brazil—

Sr. Zacarias:—Let him become a Mason.

Sr. F. Octaviano:—It would be the best way.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—he will talk on it with some Brazilian Mason, and will not allow himself to be borne away by what the inquisitors have said of the societies, or by what one or two Masons, in the use of their full liberty of thought, may have written in Brazil. How many things have not been written on the catholic religion which have been repudiated and condemned by the catholics themselves! How many heresies have not been said of our constitutional law without their authors being expelled therefor from our political communion! I would not be very rash if, supported by the authority of the noble Senator for Para, I should observe to the noble Senator for Maranham that in his theories, which he will allow me to qualify as ultramontane, there are real political heresies, they going against the express maxims of our constitutional law, as in that relating to the placet.

Sr. Mendes De Almeida:—I beg of Y. Ex. to read this part of my speech again.

Visconde Do Rio Branco:—Does not the noble Senator judge badly of Masonry because it professes religious tolerance, because in its bosom there is place for all creeds and all nationalities? if this be a crime, civil society is committing it at every instant, for I think that Brazil, though a catholic nation, does not cease to maintain good relations with protestant nations, and even with Turkey.

As Masonry treats neither of politics nor religion, as its mission is purely moral and beneficent, the fraternity is a natural one, and very conformable with the Christian religion and the general interests of humanity.

Sr. Mendes De Almeida:—The competent judge does not say so.

Visconde De Souza Franca:—Judges we are all of us.

Visconde do Rio Branco:—I believe, Mr. President, that this matter—Masonry in Brazil—is within the dominion of reason and public censure, that it is not a point of faith (assents). God preserve us, indeed, from a principle of faith which denies to us the right to appreciate the character and tendencies of a Brazilian civil association, upon the grounds that the spiritual power has declared it anti-religious. If to-day the principle be admitted in relation to Masonry, tomorrow the same power will say that another civil institution comes within its anathema, will proscribe its members, leaving to them no other recourse than to be silent, obey and suffer.

Sr. Mendes de Almeida:—How Y. Ex. is apart from Christianity!

Visconde do Rio Branco:—And who would answer to civil society for the profound shocks given to it by a doctrine so extreme, one which the noble Senator for Maranham might with propriety call religious politics?

No. Mr. President, the character of the Masonic Societies in Brazil and elsewhere is no dogma, no matter of religious faith, it is a question of fact which is within the plenary dominion of public reason. (Cries of assent.) Wherefore, the noble Senator may not pretend to impose silence on me with the word of a higher judge, said to have condemned Masonry.

I deny that there is such a condemnation of the Brazilian societies; the Masonry condemned was that of Europe, in remote times, and in modern ones by the present Pontiff, but for other reasons, and without the civil effects sought to be given amongst us to the ecclesiastical censure. The anathema launched upon the Masonic Institution in Europe had it, cause in the confusion of politics with religion, and if it was renewed in modern days, not, however, with the intolerance now preached within Brazil, it was in consequence of events in Italy, events which are threatening to exert a perilous influence upon the religious feelings of all Christianity, because there is insufficient prudence on the part of those who call themselves the best interpreters and the most strenuous defenders of Christianity.

I have finished. (Cries of very good, very good.)

TRADES' GUILD OF LEARNING.

A deputation waited upon the Marquess of Ripon, M.P., at the Privy Council Office Downing-street, for the purpose of asking the Government to co-operate with and to assist the Council of the above Guild in their efforts to educate the workmen of England in a technical sense. The deputation was introduced by Sir Antonio Brady (who stated its object) and consisted of a large number of representative working men.

The Rev. H. Solly, then laid before the Marquess of Ripon a paper which had been drawn up and adopted by the Council of the Guild, as expressing what they would like to see brought about. The artisans complained that there were no sources of information readily accessible or generally diffused as to what the department meant to do to assist them. Working men found it expensive to make a journey to South Kensington, and therefore desired museums in other parts, and especially called attention to the fact that the department did not supply teachers who understood the practical application of scientific principles to the various trades. They supplied teachers, but they did not understand the practical working of the trades. The certificates of competency was too often of such a class as to render no aid to the manufacturing industry of the country. The rev. gentleman also alluded to the demoralisation of the apprentice system.

Messrs. Savage, Latter, Langridge, Franklin, and others having spoken.

The Marquess of Ripon asked whether he was to take the document read as the expressed opinion of the Council. Having been answered in the affirmative, he said the best thing he could say was, that he would promise it should receive (between the present time and the time when it would be possible to come to any decision), the most careful consideration, and if they had occasion to require more information, no doubt some of the gentlemen present would supply it. Some of the proposals were too new for him to pass any opinion upon until he had more opportunity of studying the subject. With regard to what the State was doing at present he must refer them for particulars to the Art and Science Directories.

It was stated by the deputation that these directories were too expensive and difficult to obtain for the working classes, and what they desired was a condensed abstract of them.

The Marquis also stated that Major Donnelly, who was present, would be happy to afford any information in his power.

The deputation shortly afterwards withdrew, after some conversation with Major Donnelly.

DEATH OF THE DUCHESS OF INVERNESS.

The death is announced of Cecilia Letitia, Duchess of Inverness, who, after a protracted illness, died on Thursday, the 31st ult., at Kensington Palace. The deceased Duchess, who was in her 84th year, was eldest surviving daughter of Arthur Saunders, second Earl of Arran, by Elizabeth, his third wife, daughter of Mr. Rd. Underwood, of Dublin. The late Duchess married, on May 14, 1815, Sir George Buggin, Knight, who died in April, 1825. In May, 1831, Lady Cecilia assumed her maternal surname and arms of Underwood by virtue of the King's sign manual. Her ladyship was afterwards privately married to his Royal Highness the late Duke of Sussex, and as a mark of her Majesty's favour to her royal uncle, she was pleased to grant the dignity of a Duchess of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland to Lady Cecilia, "by the name, style, and title of Duchess of Inverness," which was gazetted 31st March, 1840. The Duchess leaving no issue the title becomes extinct. The Earl and Countess of Erroll, Lady Julia Lockwood, Lord and Lady Napier, Lord and Lady Carbery, Hon. Charles Gore, and Lord and Lady Ruthven, and several other noble families are placed in mourning by the death of the venerable duchess. The news of the Duchess's demise was transmitted to her Majesty by telegraph. The remains of the duchess will be placed in the same vault with those of his Royal Highness the late Duke of Sussex, in Kensal-green Cemetery.—Echo.

It will be interesting to the Craft to know that the deceased Duchess presented to the Grand Lodge of England, the magnificent testimonial which was given to H.R.H. the late Duke of Sussex, in 1838, upon the completion of the 25th year of his Grand Mastership.—Ed. F.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF SURGEONS.—Mr. W. Beecham, a student at Alston College, has successfully passed his preliminary examination at the Royal College of Surgeons (England); and in addition has satisfactorily acquitted himself in French.—Preston Chronicle.

PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN.—The Rev. T. A. Peters, of Alston College, has been elected a member of the above society, the president of which is the Right Hon. the Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G.—Preston Chronicle.

THE 'DAILY TELEGRAPH' ASSYRIAN EXPEDITION.—The Daily Telegraph announces that Mr. George Smith has returned from his successful labours in Assyria in excellent health. The boxes containing the lighter and more valuable objects of his collection were detained in Alexandretta through the obstinacy of the Turkish officials, and Mr. Smith was obliged to sail without them. The difficulty has been set right by the good offices of Sir Henry Elliot, and these important packages have now been shipped, and will soon arrive.

FREEMASONRY IN MONMOUTHSHIRE.

Last week was great, Masonically speaking, in Monmouthshire, a province in which the Craft finds a congenial home. It was, indeed, a week of Masonic meetings, including the consecration of a new Craft lodge, meetings of Provincial Grand Chapter, and of the Knights Templar, and Ancient and Accepted Rite, reports of which will be found under their respective headings. There was, of course, a round of Masonic banquets, in which toasts were given and honoured in right Masonic style.

Perhaps the most important banquet was that held on the 1st inst. at the King's Head Hotel, presided over by Bro. Col. Charles Lyne, Bro. Randall, the W.M. of the new lodge being vice.

The toasts were of the usual character, but it may be mentioned that the new Provincial Chapter, and the new Albert Edward Lodge, were toasted with great enthusiasm on this memorable occasion.

Masonic Tidings.

FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE.—The following appeared in the Paris correspondence of the Echo.—It appears that the Government is turning its attention to the Order of Freemasons. You are aware that this ancient and formidable corporation, although founded on exclusively philanthropic principles, has been much abused by many of its French members, who have made free use of it to advance, in an underhand way, their socialist and political doctrines. We had a striking and scandalous instance of this during the Commune, when a batch of Freemasons openly violated the ruling principles of the Order. The Government evidently fears that the Order is again being turned aside from its object by its hot-headed political members, and instructions have been sent off to the Prefects to inquire into, and report on the number and condition of the lodges in their departments, the names and character of the members, and the general effect of the Order.

On the 27th June the New Temple of Lodge "Union et Bienfaisance" situated in the Avenue d'Italie Paris, was inaugurated in the presence of Bro. Cremieux, President of the Rite Ecossais.

During the past year the Grand Orient of France has consecrated several new lodges. Others are in course of formation, and will shortly be opened.

The four lodges at Rouen have united to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the initiation of Bro. Desseux, advocate, the Father of Masonry in that city, and who has rendered distinguished services to French Masonry.

From Spain we learn that the Grand Lodge has under its jurisdiction 93 lodges, of which 26 are in Madrid, 5 in Cadiz, 5 in Malaga, 3 in Valencia, 3 in Almeria, and 2 in Barcelona. This is a good list, considering that the Grand Lodge only dates its legal existence from 1868. There are besides a considerable number of lodges under foreign jurisdictions, which have not affiliated with the Grand Orient of Spain.

THE LONDON MASONIC GLEE UNION.—Under the above title we learn that a glee party, consisting of Bros. John Hodges and Kerr Gedge of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, and Frederick Walker and R. De Lacy, of St. Paul's Cathedral, has been formed to supply a long felt want, viz., that of appropriate music of a high class for inaugurations, installations, and other solemn occasions, as well as the light and pleasant duties appertaining to the festive board. We should like to hear of similar associations amongst our provincial brethren in the great Masonic centres of Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Hull, and Bristol, and other well-known districts where the royal art prevails.

Our worthy and esteemed Bro. Frederick Perkins, Sheriff of Middlesex, was introduced to her Majesty at Osborne, on the 4th inst., and received the honour of knighthood. Our Grand Master, the Marquess of Ripon, was present as Secretary of State, in the absence of the Secretary of State for the Home Department. We are glad to congratulate Bro. Sir Frederick on his deserved honours, and hope we may have to record higher favours at no distant date.

Bro. Ex-sherriff Hutton has been elected Renter Bailiff for the Weavers' Company.

Bro. Edwin Sillifant, has been appointed auditor to the Maughold-Head Mining Company (Limited).

The Masonic Trowel, Springfield, Ill., has been incorporated with The Freemason, of St. Louis, Bro. Reynolds will continue to edit the "Illinois Department."

The new Masonic Lodge, the United Service, was consecrated on Tuesday, after which the Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Southsea Assembly Rooms, under the presidency of Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Provincial Grand Master. The business of the province was transacted and the officers were elected, Colonel the Hon. Somerset Calthorpe being appointed Senior Grand Warden.

Bro. T. W. Boord, 31°, has been elected by a large majority to the representation of Greenwich.

A special meeting of the Southampton Town Council took place on Saturday, at which it was resolved to invite the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London to a banquet in that town on their return from Osborne, after receiving the honours which her Majesty the Queen is about to confer on them. One of the Sheriffs (Bro. Sir. F. Perkins) is a Southampton man, and has been five times Mayor of that town.

One of the last acts of the Bishop of Winchester was to write to Sir Bro. Frederick Perkins, whom he had previously known as Mayor of Southampton, in the following terms, the letter being probably the last he wrote:—"Winchester House, St. James's-square, July 19th.—My dear Sir Frederick,—Allow one who watches with pleasure every success which comes to you, to congratulate you on well-achieved honours.—Yours most truly, S. WINTON."

POSTAGE OF NEWSPAPERS.—Some useful information and valuable hints respecting the postage of newspapers for transmission abroad are found in the Postmaster-General's report, just issued. Last year nearly 600,000 newspapers, posted for abroad, had to be stopped in their progress owing to insufficient payment of postage. Many persons appear to think that a penny, or even a halfpenny stamp, will carry a newspaper of any weight to any place whatever, whereas, as the Postmaster-General points out, no newspaper can be sent abroad for a halfpenny; and it is only to certain countries, and by certain routes, and when the weight does not exceed a quarter of a pound, that even a penny will suffice; while, as a rule, unless the full postage is prepaid, the newspaper cannot be forwarded at all. As the Post-office has generally no means of ascertaining who are the senders of newspapers insufficiently paid, copies are necessarily destroyed, and thus not only the newspaper but also the sum paid upon it is sacrificed. It cannot, says the report, be too strongly impressed upon persons sending newspapers to their friends in the colonies and other places abroad, that the halfpenny rate is applicable to inland newspapers only; that on newspapers going abroad the lowest rate is one penny, and that when the weight of any newspaper exceeds four ounces, the lowest rate is twopence. The neglect of another rule, viz., the fixing eight days from the date of publication as the limit within which a newspaper must be posted for foreign transmission, also leads to the loss of a large number of newspapers, such number last year having been more than 100,000.

THE CHINESE having been re-organising their army, which now numbers 300,000 men, armed with Enfield, Remington, and Colt's rifles, with a full complement of rifled artillery.

A circular⁷ has been issued from the Local Government Board to the various local authorities, advising sanitary measures to prevent the outbreak or spread of cholera in this country.

Poetry:

A MASTER MASON'S PRAYER.

By BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z. 177.

Oh bright morning star whose rising brings peace,

May my path be illumined by Thee
In all conflicts in life, and much more in death,
Through Thee may I conqueror be!

When all's bright around, and I'm tempted to stray

Into ways that by Thee are unblest,
May the thoughts that impress'd me, when raised to new life,
Bring me back to my refuge and rest!

And when through the Valley of Death I must pass,

May its shadow be all that I see;
By thy rod and staff comforted, as I pass on
To those bright and blest mansions with Thee!

THE PILLAR OF BEAUTY.

"Scatter the germs of the beautiful!

By the wayside let them fall,
That the rose may spring by the cottage gate,
And the vine on the garden wall;
Cover the rough and the rude of earth.
With a veil of leaves and flowers,
And mark with the opening bud and cup
The march of Summer's hours.

"Scatter the germs of the beautiful

In the holy shrine of home;
Let the pure, and the fair, and the graceful there

In the loveliest lustre come.
Leave not a trace of deformity
In the temple of the heart,
But gather about the earth its germs
Of nature and of art.

"Scatter the germs of the beautiful

In the temples of our God—
The God who starred th' uplifted sky,
And flower'd the trampled sod;
When He built a temple for himself,
And a home for his priestly race,
He reared each arch in symmetry
And curved each line in grace.

"Scatter the germs of the beautiful

In the depths of the human soul;
They bud and blossom, and bear the fruit.
While the endless ages roll.
Plant with the flowers of charity
The portals of the tomb,
And the fair and the pure about this path
In Paradise shall bloom."

SOLOMON'S TEMPLE IN THE VIENNA EXHIBITIONS.

Francis Langer, a sculptor of Kaaden, but born at Weipert, began to cut the model of Solomon's Temple out of lime-tree wood, according to the details given by the historian, Josephus Flavius. For thirty years he worked unceasingly at the laborious work, and at length died in 1850, at the age of 72. His son continued the unfinished work, 1858. Two citizens of Kaaden then took the matter in hand, and partly by working at it themselves, and partly by getting others to follow the plans and details left behind by Langer, succeeded in effecting it. The completed work takes up a space of three hundred and twenty-five feet. The present owners applied to the directors of the Vienna Exhibition as to whether they might exhibit it, and, after some little delay, received a reply that space should be reserved for it. This result of their labour during so many years requires twenty-eight cases to pack it in, and has been forwarded to the Exhibition at Vienna.

COMPAGNONAGE OF THE FRENCH HANDICRAFTS.

BY ALBERT G. MACKAY, M.D.

Compagnonage, or companionship, is the name which is given in France to certain mystical associations formed between workmen of the same or an analogous handicraft, whose object is to afford mutual assistance to the members. It was at one time considered among handicraftsmen as the second degree of the novitiate before arriving at the maîtrise or mastership, the first being of course that of apprentice; and workmen were admitted into it only after five years of apprenticeship, and on the production of a skillfully constructed piece of work, which was called their chef d'œuvre.

Tradition gives to compagnonage a Hebraic origin, which to some extent assimilates it to the traditional history of Freemasonry as springing out of the Solomonic Temple. It is, however, certain that it arose in the twelfth century, out of a part of the corporations of workmen. These, who prosecuted the labours of their Craft from province to province, could not shut their eyes to the narrow policy of the Guilds or corporations, which the Masters were constantly seeking to make more exclusive. Thence they perceived the necessity of forming for themselves associations or confraternities, whose protection should accompany them in all their laborious wanderings, and secure to them employment and fraternal intercourse when arriving in strange towns.

The Compagnons de la Tour, which is the title assumed by those who are the members of the brotherhoods of Compagnonage, have legends which have been traditionally transmitted from age to age, by which, like the Freemasons, they trace the origin of their association to the Temple of King Solomon. These legends are three in number; for the different societies in Compagnonage recognise three different founders, and hence make three different associations, which are:—

1. The Children of Solomon.
2. The Children of Maître Jacques.
3. The Children of Père Soubise.

These three societies or classes of Compagnons are irreconcilable enemies, and reproach each other with the imaginary contests of their supposed founders.

The Children of Solomon pretend that King Solomon gave them their devoir or guild as a reward for their labours at the Temple, and that he had there united them into a brotherhood.

The Children of Maître Jacques say that their founder, who was the son of a celebrated architect named Jacquain or Jacques, was one of the chief masters of Solomon, and a colleague of Hiram. He was born in a small city of Gaul, named Carte, and now St. Romille, but which we should in vain look for on the maps.

From the age of fifteen he was employed in stone-cutting. He travelled in Greece, where he learned sculpture and architecture; afterwards went to Egypt, and thence to Jerusalem, where he constructed two pillars with so much skill, that he was immediately received as a Master of the Craft. Maître Jacques and his colleague Père Soubise, after the labours of the Temple were completed, resolved to go together to Gaul, swearing that they would never separate; but the union did not last very long, in consequence of the jealousy excited in Père Soubise by the ascendancy of Maître Jacques over their disciples. They parted, and the former landed at Bourdeaux, and the latter at Marseilles.

One day Maître Jacques, being far away from his disciples, was attacked by ten of those of Père Soubise. To save himself he fled into a marsh, where he sustained himself from sinking by holding on to the reeds, and was eventually rescued by his disciples. He then retired to Sainte Baume, but being soon after betrayed by a disciple, named according to some Jerson, and according to others Jamaïs, he was assassinated by five blows of a dagger, in the 47th year of his age, four years and nine days after his departure from Jerusalem. On his robe was subsequently found a reed, which he wore in memory of his having been saved in the marsh, and thenceforth his disciples adopted the reed as the emblem of their Order.

Père Soubise is not generally accused of having taken any part in the assassination. The tears which he shed over the tomb of his colleague removed, in part, the suspicions which had at first rested on him. The traitor who committed the crime subsequently, in a moment of deep contrition, cast himself into a well, which the disciples of Maître Jacques filled up with stones.

The relics of the martyr were long preserved in a sacred chest, and when his disciples afterwards separated into different Crafts, his hat was given to the hatters, his tunic to the stone-cutters, his sandals to the locksmiths, his mantle to the joiners, his girdle to the carpenters, and his staff to the cartwrights.

According to another tradition, Maître Jacques way no other than Jacques de Molay, the last Grand Master of the Templars, who had collected under his banner some of the Children of Solomon, who had separated from the parent society, and who, about 1268, conferred upon them a new devoir or guild. Père Soubise is said, in the same legend, to have been a Benedictine Monk, who gave to the carpenters some special statutes. This second legend is generally recognised as more truthful than the first. From this it follows, that the division of the society of Compagnonage into three classes dates from the 13th century, and that the Children of Maître Jacques and of Père Soubise are more modern than the Children of Solomon, from whom they were a dismemberment.

The organisation of these associations of compagnonage reminds one very strongly of the somewhat similar organisation of the stonemasons of Germany and of other countries in the middle ages. To one of these three classes every handicraftsman in France was expected to attach himself. There was an initiation and a system of degrees, which were four in number: the Accepted Companion, the Finished Companion, the Initiated Companion, and lastly the Affiliated Companion. There were also signs, and words as modes of recognition, and decorations, which varied in the different devoirs, but to all the square and compasses was a common emblem.

As soon as a Craftsman had passed through his apprenticeship he joined one of the guilds, and commenced his journey over France, which was called the Tour de France, and in the course of which he visited the principal cities, towns, and villages, stopping for a time wherever he could secure employment. In almost every town there was a house of call, presided over always by a woman, who was affectionately called "la Mère," or the Mother, and the same name was given to the house itself. Here the Compagnons held their meetings and annually elected their officers, and travelling workmen repaired there to obtain food and lodging, and the necessary information which might lead to employment.

When two companions met on the road, one of them addressed the other with the topage or challenge, being a formula of words, the conventional reply to which indicated that the other was a member of the same devoir. If such was the case, friendly greetings ensued. But if the reply was not satisfactory, and it appeared that they belonged to different associations, a war of words, and even of blows, was the result. Such was formerly the custom; but through the evangelic labors of Agricol Perdiquier, a journeyman joiner of Avignon, who travelled through France inculcating lessons of brotherly love, a better spirit now exists.

In each locality the association has a chief, who is annually elected by ballot at the General Assembly of the Craft. He is called the First Compagnon of Dignity. He presides over the meetings, which ordinarily take place on the first Sunday of every month, and represents the Society in its intercourse with other bodies, with the Masters, or with the municipal authorities.

Compagnonage has been exposed at various periods to the persecutions of the Church and the State, as well as to the opposition of the corporations of Masters, to which, of course, its designs were antagonistic, because it opposed their monopoly. Unlike them, and particularly the corporation of Freemasons, it was not under the protection of the Church. The practice of its mystical receptions were condemned by the Faculty of Theology at Paris in 1655 as impious. But a hundred years before, in 1541, a decree of Francis I had interdicted the Compagnons de la Tour from binding themselves by an oath, from wearing swords or canes, from assembling in a greater number than five outside of their Master's houses, or from having banquets on any occasion. During the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries the Parliaments were continually interposing their power against the associations of Compagnonage, as well as against other Fraternities. The effects of these persecutions, although embarrassing, were not absolutely disastrous. In spite of them, Compagnonage was never entirely dissolved, although a few of the trades abandoned their devoirs, some of which, however, such as that of the shoemakers, were subsequently renewed. At this day the guilds of the workmen still exist in France, having lost, it is true, much of their original code of religious dogmas and symbols; and although not recognised by the law, always tolerated by the municipal authorities and undisturbed by the police. To the Masonic scholar the history of these devoirs or guilds is peculiarly interesting. In nearly all of them the Temple of Solomon prevails as a predominant symbol, while the square and compasses, their favourite and constant device, would seem in some way to identify them with Freemasonry, so far at least as respects the probability of a common origin.—National Freemason.

The formal opening of the Devon and Somerset Railway, from Wiveliscombe to Dulverton, took place at the latter place. A large stock market was opened, for which the land had been given by the Earl of Carnarvon. A great number of the nobility and gentry of the county sat down to a dinner, at which his lordship presided. The line extends from Taunton to Barnstaple, a distance of 43 miles, and passes through a rich district of iron and copper ores.

A BOON TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD.—Boots, with the celebrated wire-quilted soles, wearing twice as long as ordinary leather, for all ages; and children's boots with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

THE PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was holden in the Mechanic's Institution, Uppermill, Saddleworth, on Wednesday, 30th of July, at one o'clock, p.m., under the banner of the Candour Lodge No. 337, John Hirst, Junior, W.M., about 150 brethren being present. After the usual opening ceremony, the brethren saluted the W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Bentley Shaw, F.P. and D.L.) according to ancient custom, who, after warmly thanking the brethren for their kind and cordial welcome, proceeded to say that he was desired by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master (the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, K.G.) to express his sincere regret that his official duties would not permit him to leave London at this busy time of the session of Parliament.

It is a matter of regret to you, brethren, and I may be permitted to say to none more than to myself; I indulged the hope, some how or other that we might get his lordship amongst these Saddleworth Hills, and I did not relinquish that hope until Monday last, when he announced his inability to leave London.

Since we last met at Huddersfield, we have had to deplore the removal by death of the Earl of Zetland, who presided for more than a quarter of a century over our great Masonic Fraternity. His lordship, as you know, died somewhat suddenly at Aske Hall, near Richmond, in this county, on Monday the 6th of May, in the seventy-ninth year of his age, he having been born 5th of February, 1795, having retired, by reason of failing health, from his high office of Most Worshipful Grand Master of England some time previously. His memory will be long cherished by the Freemasons of England as being redolent of every Masonic virtue, and of every mental quality which could adorn and dignify the man. Peace be to his ashes!

We have great reason to congratulate ourselves brethren, that we have a noble and able successor to Lord Zetland in the Marquess of Ripon. You in this province more especially can appreciate his work who, since his installation on 22nd of May, 1861, has most admirably governed this province as Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master. I am sure you will all join me in the fervent prayer that he may long live to employ his talents and devote his energies in promotion of the best interests of our time-honoured Craft. I would earnestly recommend you, brethren, to bear in mind the excellent advice his lordship gives us whenever he is able to come amongst us, sitting as he now does on the Throne of Freemasonry; his opportunities for observation are not confined to West Yorkshire alone, he has oversight of every province of which his Masonic realm is composed, no wonder that he should again and again reiterate the advice to be careful as to whom we admit into our several lodges Brethren, as loyal Freemasons never forget to carry out this injunction, and in order to this end it is needful that every Worshipful Master should make himself acquainted with the Book of Constitutions, the Bye-Laws of Provincial Grand Lodge and of his own Lodge.

In admitting new members from other towns, joining members also, the true meaning and scope of Provincial Grand Lodge Bye-Laws 47 and 48, should be fully complied with. Our indefatigable and devoted Secretary, Bro. Henry Smith, will shortly issue, I believe, an amended, form of inquiry for the use of lodges in regard to this matter. Too much care cannot be taken where candidates are introduced from other towns and places where lodges already exist, and remembering as I do that we are now assembled on the borders of two important Provinces, East Lancashire and Cheshire, the former of which has adopted pretty nearly our Bye-Laws, may we hope that both the provinces will assist and do all in their power to prevent undesirable candidates crossing the border, and then re-crossing it as full pledged Masons, in spite of their neighbours, who may have considered them unworthy.

There is an important subject for congratulation to which I must briefly allude, namely, the extinction of the debt of the Royal Masonic Institution for boys. Not only is the debt discharged, but a sum of £2,000 is being expended in providing sleeping room for about thirty additional boys, who will by next May make the number one hundred and fifty, or more than double, I believe, since 1850. Brethren, it is to the untiring energy and undaunted perseverance of Bro. Frederick Binckes that we owe this long wished for consummation. An effort is being made in London to raise funds to present Bro. Binckes with a suitable recognition of his services. I feel sure West Yorkshire will gladly assist.

We have to-day as our guest Bro. James Terry, recently appointed Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Annuity Fund, his first official visit to Yorkshire. I am sure we heartily bid him welcome, and trust that he will take back with him a long list of names of Stewards for the annual festival in January, 1874. From the Annuity Fund we derive large benefits, and we should endeavour to show our gratitude and sympathy by regular and systematic subscription.

I may just revert, as a matter of history, to our previous visits to the locality, viz., on the 4th June, 1849, when the foundation stone of Christ Church, Friezland, was laid; the lodge then met at the Bell Hotel, Delph, and again on 12th June, 1858, when the foundation stone of the fine building in which we are now assembled was laid with Masonic honours; on that occasion the lodge was held at Dobcross.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master concluded by thanking the brethren for their very patient attention, and craved their support until the business of the day was completed.

The business being gone through, several petitions were presented for assistance, and on the motion of Bro. Thomas Hill, P.M. 302, P. Prov. G.W., and Charman of the Charity Committee, a sum of £10 was voted in each case. It was also resolved that a like sum should be devoted to the Binckes Testimonial. Bro. Scratcherd, Prov. G.D., on behalf of the W.M. and brethren of Probity Lodge, No. 61, Halifax, applied for the honour of entertaining Provincial Grand Lodge in October. The lodge was then closed in form and with solemn prayer shortly before three o'clock.

The banquet was served in the large hall which had been recently re-decorated.

The W.M., Bro. W. Blackburn, P. Prov. G.D. and other active members of Candour Lodge had undertaken the entire providing and management of the banquet, which was served cold, with the exception of fish, soup, and vegetables, giving great satisfaction to the brethren who had the pleasure of being present. The tickets being limited to 103, every seat was filled. During dinner Bro. Hemingway, P. Prov. G.O., assisted by a string band, played a selection of lively music. After the cloth was removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured. The musical talent was chiefly sustained by members of the lodge. Bro. Bentley Shaw, D. Prov. G.M., was compelled to leave at six o'clock to catch his train. Bro. Hirst took his place and was heartily supported by a number of his brethren and visitors from Lancashire and Cheshire.

THE NATIONAL REVENUE from April 1st to July 26th, was £21,867,648, against £22,570,017 in the corresponding period of last year. The expenditure in the same period of the current year was £29,095,634, against £26,402,818 in 1872. The balances on the 26th inst. were £2,813,768, against £4,921,134 at the same time last year.

CAUSE, COURSE AND CONSEQUENCE OF NEGLECTED MALADIES.—Between stomach and kidneys there exists a close and intimate relation, which is demonstrated by the waiting, which occurs in all diseases affecting the kidneys. Disordered stomach is often the first symptom of renal irregularity; Holloway's remedies used at that juncture, cut short many a serious and fatal attack. They act with wonderful efficiency on every organ of secretion, but especially do they regulate the stomach, liver, and kidneys, by restoring their healthy functions and casting out any obstructions or impurity. It is necessary for the Ointment to be well rubbed over the affected parts twice daily; when absorbed it must augment the purifying and salutary influence of the Pills.—ADVT.

GRAND LODGE OF CANADA.

The Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, of Canada, opened its annual communication at Montreal, July 9th, in the Queen's Hall. Most Worshipful Bro. Wm. Wilson, L.L.D., Grand Master, occupied the chair, and was supported by distinguished officers and members of the Craft, among whom were M.W. Bros. Harrington, Simpson, Stevenson, Seymour, D.G.M.; Thomas White, the District Deputy; and Grand Masters of the several Masonic districts, and Grand Secretary Harris. Over 250 lodges in Ontario, Quebec, and Manitoba were represented by delegates.

After the Grand Lodge was opened, Grand Master Wilson read the following address, which was interrupted by frequent applause:—

Brethren of Grand Lodge: It gives me great pleasure again to meet the representatives of our lodges in this, our eighteenth annual communication. The practice of delivering an address from the chair, introduced by myself at our first meeting, followed the example set us by our Sister Grand Lodges in the United States, and has ever since been adhered to by the distinguished brethren who have so ably discharged the duties of Grand Master in this jurisdiction. In the early period of the existence of our Grand Lodge, matters of government, points of Masonic law, our relation with the Masonic world in general, and with other grand bodies in particular, together with innumerable matters of detail, afforded ample scope for consideration and discussion; these, however, are now well understood and satisfactorily settled, and it appears to me that the "Annual Address," is now only useful as placing upon record the Masonic incidents of the past year, and for bringing under the notice of the Grand Lodge such topics as may be considered worthy of especial consideration, or as requiring future legislation. Acting upon this view, and declining to take advantage of my position to read to you a lecture on Masonry, I shall confine myself to a brief detail of the Masonic events which have transpired since my re-election, after which I will introduce such matters as seem to me requiring your consideration.

My attention having been directed to a certain resolution adopted by the Grand Lodge of Vermont at their last annual meeting, which instructed their Grand Master that in the event of this Grand Lodge not having withdrawn all claims to jurisdiction over the Province of Quebec, at our annual communication in July last, it would be her duty to issue circulars to the different Grand Lodges, and to their own subordinate lodges, notifying them that all Masonic intercourse has been suspended between us. Feeling that this most unfriendly and dictatorial act of the Grand Lodge of Vermont required prompt action on my own part, as your Grand Master, I at once issued the following edict:—

"GRAND LODGE OF CANADA.

"To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting.

"Whereas, Official information has reached us this day, that, at the last annual communication of the Grand Lodge of the State of Vermont, the following resolution was adopted, viz:—

"Whereas, the Grand Lodge of Canada still refuses recognition of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and is asserting jurisdiction over lodges located in the Province of Quebec; and

"Whereas, Such assertion of jurisdiction violates the well settled principles of Masonic law, applicable in such cases; therefore,

"Resolved, that the Grand Master is hereby instructed (unless the Grand Lodge of Canada at its next session withdraws from and ceases to assert any jurisdiction over any lodge or Masons in the Province of Quebec) to issue circulars to the different Grand Lodges, as well as to the subordinate lodges of this State, that the Grand Lodge of Vermont and its subordinates have suspended all Masonic intercourse with the Grand Lodge of Canada, and Masons under its jurisdiction until the wrong is made right."

"And whereas, the Grand Lodge of Canada, since its establishment in October, 1855, has claimed and exercised exclusive Masonic jurisdiction and authority over the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, which claims to Masonic sovereignty have been recognized and admitted not only by the Masons of Quebec and the Grand Lodge of Vermont, but also by the Grand Lodges in every quarter of the globe; and

"Whereas, while we readily admit the right that our sister Grand Lodges have, in accordance with their knowledge of the facts and of Masonic law, to recognise and establish friendly relations with any body of Masons whom they may deem worthy of that honour, we, at the same time, most emphatically deny the right of any Grand Lodge to dictate to us as to the course we should follow in such cases; and we, therefore, at once, indignantly repel the attempt thus made by the Grand Lodge of Vermont to coerce this Grand body into the recognition of a body of Masons, who, without the assent of this Grand Lodge, and in contempt of all Masonic law and precedent, have thus attempted to wrest from us a portion of our lawful territory and authority. The Grand Lodge of Canada, while jealous of her own honour, and careful at all times not to encroach upon the rights or prerogatives of others, will permit no interference, and will submit to no dictation, from any quarter whatever.

"Now, therefore, for the reasons above stated, and by virtue of the power vested in us as Grand Master, we do hereby order and direct that all official correspondence and communication between this Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodge of the State of Vermont shall now cease and terminate; and we do hereby charge and command all our worshipful and loving brethren within our jurisdiction to refuse admission into our lodges, and to hold no Masonic communication with any Mason hailing from the jurisdiction of the said Grand Lodge of Vermont. We also further order and direct that this edict shall remain in force and effect until the Grand Lodge of Vermont shall rescind the unfriendly and unjustifiable resolution above recited.

"Done and passed at the office of the Grand Master, at Simcoe, this 24th day of October, A.D. 1872.

"Wm. M. Wilson, Grand Master."

This was promptly followed by a characteristic letter from our M.W. Bro. T. D. Harrington, resigning his position as representative of the Grand Lodge of Vermont, near this Grand Lodge, a copy of which will be found in the appendix, and also as a necessary sequence by the withdrawal of the credentials of our representative near the Grand Lodge of Vermont. While I regret the necessity of these proceedings, I entertain no doubt of your unanimous approval.

In February last, I received a letter from the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana, informing me that his Grand Lodge had passed a resolution withdrawing their representative in this Grand Lodge, in consequence of what they conceive to be an antagonistic feeling on our part, as shown by the continuation of friendly relations with the Grand Orient of France, and as a necessary sequence to this action our R.W. Bro. J. C. Batchelor, M.D., representative at that Grand Lodge, has tendered to me his resignation.

It appears to me that the Grand Lodge of Louisiana has misapprehended our action in this matter. The Grand Lodge of Canada has, for the last ten years, been in fraternal communication with the Grand Orient of France, and the formal exchange of representatives, although delayed, was made without the slightest reference to, or thought of, the difficulties which had sprung up between these Grand Bodies.

With reference to the point at issue between the Grand Lodges of France and Louisiana, I must say that my sympathies are entirely with our sister Grand Lodge of Louisiana; but I fail to see that this Grand Lodge is called upon on that account to suspend friendly relations with a sister Grand Lodge.

I directed the Grand Secretary to acknowledge the receipt of R.W. Bro. J. C. Batchelor's letter, and while regretting the action of the Grand Lodge of Louisiana in this matter, to thank R.W. Bro. Batchelor for his valuable services rendered on behalf of the Order, and more particularly to this Grand Lodge, and to unite with him in the expression of the hope, that at no very distant day the two Grand Bodies would again meet on terms of friendly intercourse and the reciprocal exchange of Masonic courtesies.

I have to announce for your information that our R.W. Bro. Wm. H. Fraser, having ceased to reside in the State of Wisconsin, resigned his position as our representative to that Grand Body, and I had much pleasure in appointing as his successor, our R.W. Bro. Charles Khan, who has become a resident of that State. R.W. Bro. Fraser has since received his credentials from the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Wisconsin, as their representative near this Grand Lodge, and will doubtless present them during the present session. I have also been notified that our R.W. Bro. Hugh A. Mackay, has been appointed Grand Representative of the Grand Lodge of Michigan to this Grand Lodge, and entertain no doubt but that both of them will be received in their position as representatives of the respective Grand Lodges which they now represent, and I recommend that the rank of a Past Grand Registrar be conferred on those R.W. brethren.

I had also much pleasure in appointing our R.W. Bro. Dr. Lorenzo Montafar, 33°, Secretary of State of the Republic of Costa Rica, as our representative near the Grand Orient of Central America, and have since received and accepted credentials from that Most Worshipful Body, as their representative to this Grand Lodge.

On the 13th of November last I had the pleasure of dedicating a new Hall at Windsor, occupied by Great Western Lodge, No. 47. I had appointed the following day for a similar ceremony at Chatham, but was prevented by sickness from arriving in time to take part in the dedication. The ceremony, however, was ably performed by the R.W. the D.D.G.M. of that Masonic district. I had the pleasure of inspecting the new lodge room at this place, with which, and the hall at Windsor I was extremely pleased.

In March last I dedicated to Masonry a beautiful Hall at Pembroke (upon which occasion I was the recipient of a very gratifying address), and also one at the City of Ottawa. On both these occasions large numbers of the fraternity attended. On the 3rd of June last I dedicated a new hall, erected for the use of Beaver Lodge, No. 83, at Strathroy.

The corner stone of an Episcopal Methodist Church was laid with Masonic ceremonies at Colbrook, on which occasion I was ably represented by R.W. Bro. Richardson, the D.D.G.M. of Prince Edward District.

The corner stone of the Protestant Hospital at Ottawa was, by permission, laid with Masonic ceremonies on the 16th of May last, by R.W. Bro. T. White, D.G.M., on which occasion the ceremony was graced by the presence of His Excellency the Earl of Dufferin, the Governor-General of the dominion, who assisted in the work.

On the 28th of May last, I laid the corner stone of a new Masonic Hall for the use of York Lodge, 156, at Eglinton.

On the 1st of July, the corner stone of a Presbyterian Church was laid at Mount Forest, by permission, by the W.M. of St. Alban's Lodge, No. 220.

M.W. Bro. Simpson, P.G.M., kindly officiated for me by special dispensation on the 1st of July, by laying the corner stone of an Episcopal Church at Napanee.

And on the same day I laid the corner stone of a new Masonic Hall at Hamilton, for which a special Grand Lodge was convened. The attendance of Masons from various parts of Ontario was very large, about 800, and it is estimated that from six to eight thousand persons were present at the ceremony. For a full and correct account of the proceedings I refer you to the papers of the day. The preliminary arrangements were admirably made by our R. W. Bro. the Grand Secretary, ably assisted by the President and Directors of the Masonic Building Association. It is generally admitted to have been the most successful Masonic demonstration ever made in Canada. I hope that in the proposed Masonic Temple a suitable suite of chambers will be reserved for the office of our Grand Secretary.

On the 20th of February last, I spent a very pleasant evening with our Toronto brethren at a conversazione, upon which occasion I took advantage of the large gathering of Masons to present, on behalf of this Grand Lodge, the testimonial voted at our last meeting to M.W. Bro. Seymour. For a full account of this most interesting meeting, and for copies of the very flattering addresses presented to me on that occasion, I refer you to the pages of the Craftsman.

On the 27th of May last, I paid an official visit to Ashlar Lodge, No. 247, Yorkville, and had the pleasure of witnessing an admirable exemplification of correct working.

The receptions accorded to me on my official visits during the past year were most cordial; and I shall never forget the generous hospitality and the warm greetings I received from my brethren in the various localities I visited. When on my way to visit Pembroke Lodge, I was met at Renfrew by W. Bros. Supple and White, who had brought a sleigh upwards of forty miles to convey me in comfort to Pembroke, and on my return the same thoughtful kindness was repeated.

On the 16th of September last I received a letter from M.W. Bro. D. C. Cregier, President of the Masonic Board of Relief of Chicago, covering a draft on New York for 994 dollars, which he explained was the share, pro rata, of unexpended funds contributed by the Masons of Canada in aid of the fund raised for the relief of those Masons who had suffered from the great fire at Chicago in October last, and in acknowledgment of which contributions from our Grand Lodge, M.W. Bro. Cregier, writing to our M.W. Bro. Seymour, on the 14th of October, 1871, says:—"May God bless you and yours, and enable us to repay by lasting gratitude, if not in kind and coin, your generous bounty." The draft was at once handed over by me to the Grand Treasurer, and the receipt of it acknowledged in suitable terms. As the correspondence was published at the time, I need not further refer to the matter at present, than to repeat what I expressed in my reply, "that the action of the committee in returning funds not required for the purposes for which they were contributed, would ever afterwards be cited as a noble precedent for future guidance in all similar cases."

I regret to inform Grand Lodge that the room occupied by Shuniah Lodge U. D., at Prince Arthur's Landing, on Thunder Bay, has been destroyed by fire, by which calamity our brethren lost their dispensation, jewels, and furniture. I directed that a duplicate dispensation should be issued to them free of charge, and recommend a grant of 50 dollars in money to assist them in refurnishing.

A number of dispensations have been issued to enable brethren to appear clothed as Masons at balls and festivals; and several also to authorize the initiation of candidates who resided without the jurisdiction of the lodges interested.

I received petitions for a new lodge at Orillia, and also for one at St. Thomas, and, as neither of them had received a recommendation from the nearest lodge, I declined granting the dispensations asked for, and refer the matter to Grand Lodge.

During the year I have granted dispensations for the formation of fifteen new lodges.

I regret to announce that our friendly relations with the Grand Lodge of Illinois, have been interrupted in consequence of a certain resolution adopted by that Most Worshipful Body at their last annual communication, which I regarded as of a most unfriendly and dictatorial character towards this Grand Lodge. The correspondence which followed this act has, by my direction, been published and circulated, and it will now devolve upon you to express your opinion upon the whole question at issue, and to take such further action in the matter as you may consider requisite and necessary.

The report of our efficient and most trustworthy Grand Treasurer will be submitted for your inspection during the present session. I notice that on the 1st day of July, instant, the financial position of Grand Lodge is as follows:

Grand Lodge Funds in stocks, debentures, and bank deposit	47,325 24
Asylum Fund	6,193 66

dols. 53,518 90

Complaints at the instance of Plantaganet Lodge, No. 186, of irregularities and improper conduct on the part of the officers and members of St. John's Lodge, No. 159, Irish Registration, L'Original, have been received, and have been forwarded to the Grand Lodge of Ireland, for the consideration of that Most Worshipful Body, with our request that the matter might receive their earliest attention. A reply has just been received, from which it appears to me that the Grand Lodge of Ireland has not been sufficiently informed as to all the matters complained of, and I now place it on record, so that it may not be lost sight of by my successor.

The reports which will be submitted during the present session by the District Deputy Grand Master, will give you ample information as to the condition of Masonry in this jurisdiction, and it affords me much pleasure to announce that, so far as I am able to judge from my own personal observation, it is most satisfactory and cheering. The laudable efforts made during the past year by those in authority to instruct the brethren in the ritual sanctioned by the Grand Lodge for the efficient working of a lodge, and in the elucidation of interesting points of Masonic law, by opening in several localities, general lodges of instruction, have been most successful, and is most creditable to those distinguished brethren who had thus devoted their time and knowledge towards the general improvement of the Craft. In December last I received a letter from our R.W. Bro. the Deputy Dist. Grand Master of the Wellington District, announcing that, in consequence of ill-health, he was unable to perform the duties of his office, and, fearing that the Craft might suffer, tendered his resignation. As provided for by the constitution, I request the Grand Registrar to take temporary charge of the District, until our R.W. Bro. was sufficiently restored to health to resume his duties.

The address to our illustrious brother, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, ordered at our last annual communication, was most beautifully engrossed and forwarded under cover to R.W. Bro. Lord De Tabley, our Grand Representative near the Grand Lodge of England, who presented it to His Royal Highness, and transmitted to me the following gracious reply:—

"Sandringham, Nov. 4, 1872.

"General Sir William Knollys is desired by the Prince of Wales to acknowledge the receipt of an address from the officers and members of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Canada, conveying their warm congratulations on His Royal Highness's recovery from his illness.

"His Royal Highness desires to return his cordial and sincere thanks to the officers and members of the Grand Lodge, and to assure them of the grateful sense he shall ever entertain of the kind feelings expressed towards him by the Masons of Canada.

"Most Worshipful Bro. W. M. Wilson, Esq., LL.D., Grand Master G.L.C."

Among the deaths of the past year we have to deplore the loss of the Earl of Zetland, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of England, who departed this life in May last. For upwards of a quarter of a century our distinguished brother ably filled the Masonic throne of England. Under his benign sway, the light of Masonry, with all its attendant blessings and advantages, has been widely disseminated over the globe, from Japan to Gibraltar, from the Gold coast to the Himalayan mountains, through the ancient empire of Cathay, and the bleak regions of Newfoundland, the blessings of our friendly Craft have been spread, through his fostering care; his heart was in the work, and he spared neither time nor labour to ensure success. As an evidence of the lively interest which he felt in all Masonic matters, and the great ability with which he discussed them, I would refer the brethren of the Grand Lodge to the published correspondence which took place between his lordship and myself in the year 1859. By the death of our departed brother, Masonry has lost a fervent supporter, and this Grand Lodge a warm friend.

"Among the old familiar faces which in past years gladdened our hearts at our annual communications, we have to mourn one, now at rest.

I allude to our late R. W. Bro. Capt. Thompson Wilson, 33°. Our venerable brother, who had passed the ripe old age of four score years, had served his country for upwards of twenty-seven years in the Royal Artillery, sharing in all the dangers and glories of the Peninsular war. He was present and took part in the great battle of Waterloo, and subsequently served for three years in the West Indies. On retiring from active service he settled in London, Ontario, in the year 1837, but again at the call of his country, he rendered valuable service during the rebellion which broke out in this country at the close of that year. He was afterwards appointed barrack master on the Eastern frontier, at Prescott and Cornwall, subsequently retiring on half pay, after an additional service of sixteen years as a barrack master. He then returned to London, where he thereafter resided, esteemed and respected by all who knew him.

On examining the Masonic record of our distinguished brother, we find that he was initiated into Masonry in the Lodge of the 5th Regiment, in the year 1816, and in the following year was passed and raised to the degree of Master Mason in Military Lodge 406 of the 91st Regiment. Our deceased brother having been elevated to the Royal Arch and installed as a Knight Templar, subsequently attained the grade of S.G.I.G. 33°. He also held the rank of a Past Deputy Grand Commander in the Grand Conclave of Masonic Knights Templar of Canada, and was an actual Past Grand Z. of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Canada.

In his career as a soldier, our lamented brother was distinguished for his loyalty, his zeal and his courage; and as a Mason, we all know that his love of the Order, as evinced by his strict adherence to its great leading principles, his unwearied efforts to promote its establishment and to ensure its prosperity, was only second to his loyalty to the crown and his love to the country of his birth. Ever proud to regard him as a personal friend, it affords me a melancholy pleasure thus to place on record these evidences of his worth as a man, and his standing and character as a Freemason. The widow and orphan daughter of our R. W. brother can never want friends and protectors so long as Masonry exists in Canada or elsewhere.

We have also to mourn the loss of R. W. Bro. Alfio De Grassi, a Past D.D.G.M. of the Toronto District, and a zealous and most useful member of our Order; and of R. W. Bro. Thomas Drummond, representative of the Grand Lodge of Scotland to this Grand Lodge.

Among the Masonic incidents of the past year, there is perhaps none possessing greater interest to the Craft generally, and to the Masons of this jurisdiction in particular, than the one to which I am now about to refer.

In the month of February last a petition was presented to me, signed by our distinguished and Most Worshipful Brother Rob Morris, LL.D., and by M.W. Bro. Alex. A. Stevenson, both Past Grand Masters of this Grand Lodge, by Albert G. Mackay, John Scott, De Witt C. Cregier, John Sheville, Rolla Floyd, Robert Macoy, and many of the most eminent members of our fraternity on this continent, praying that this Grand Lodge would grant them the requisite authority, and constitute the said brethren into a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, under the denomination of "The Royal Solomon Mother Lodge," to meet at Jerusalem, or adjacent place in Palestine. Regarding this as a very high compliment paid to our Grand Lodge, and approving most heartily of a scheme which had for its object the revival of Masonic Light in that grand old East, which was the seat of its birth, and from which its brilliant rays had been transmitted to every quarter of the globe, I gave the matter my most favourable consideration, and after consulting with as many of the Grand Lodge officers as I conveniently could, I instructed the Grand Secretary to prepare the necessary authority (a copy of this document will be found in the appendix). I trust that my action in this matter will meet the approval of Grand Lodge, and I would now suggest for your consideration the propriety of marking the lively interest which, I think, you must feel in this event by forwarding to our distinguished offshoot the Three Great Lights of Masonry, together with the collars, and jewels, and clothing required by the officers of our new lodge.

My attention has been directed to a society formed in London, Canada, called "The London Masonic Mutual Benefit Association," the object of which is to secure to its members, being affiliated Masons, a sum of money to be paid in the case of accident, or to the widows and orphans in case of death. The association has been largely patronized by the fraternity, and thus has proved a blessing to the wives and orphans of our deceased brethren, who would otherwise have been compelled to seek aid from other sources. It has been suggested that associations of this kind should be placed, in some way, under the special patronage and control of the Grand Lodge, and that a scheme should be devised by which similar associations might be formed, either in each Masonic district within our jurisdiction, or by grouping two or more districts together for this purpose. With such names as now appear on the list of Managing Directors of the above-named association, no apprehension could be felt by its policy holders, either as to its stability or safety, but as it is one of those undertakings in which Masonic faith and honour form its sole claim to support, and in which a failure to fulfil its pledges would seriously imperil the fair name of Masonry, I feel it my duty to bring the matter before you for your careful consideration, and for such action as you in your wisdom may think desirable.

It will be apparent to you that the successful establishment and faithful working of such associations would confer an immense boon upon our fraternity, and would materially reduce the numerous applications now made upon our fund of benevolence; for the payments required from the members of such institution are so small, that it is quite within the reach of every Mason to secure for his family a provision in case of death.

Having heard that similar societies were in existence in the United States, I applied for, and obtained through the kindness of its Secretary, a copy of the constitution, by-laws, reports, and forms of the "Masonic Mutual Benefit Society of Indiana," which was organized in 1809, and has since been incorporated under the laws of that State. These documents, with similar ones from the London Association, I have much pleasure in submitting for the consideration of the Grand Lodge.

A report from the trustees of the Masonic Asylum Trust will be submitted for your consideration. This important subject was first officially brought forward in 1869, but up to this period no decided action has been taken in the matter. I venture to express a hope that during the present session the subject will receive your careful consideration, and that you will decide either at once to give instructions for carrying out of the suggestions made by the trustees, as to the purchase of lands and the erection of a suitable building, or to abandon the scheme altogether, for it does appear to me that (as expressed in the report) the protracted delay in carrying out a benevolent project, almost invites reflections injurious to the Craft. When the scheme was first submitted, it was received with universal approbation, and a liberal support was promised; but it was subsequently argued by many of our leading Masons that the class of persons in the country requiring this kind of benevolence, were very different from those for whom the great charities of England were established, and that but very few of them would be found willing to accept a home which would separate them from their children and relatives. From my own personal knowledge I may say that there are many whose hearts are now gladdened by your bounty, that would rather relinquish it altogether than accept it upon the terms suggested. There are a few, however, who do not thus regard it, and as our country increases in population, so will these cases increase also. From our ample resources a commencement on a limited scale might now be inaugurated, the land required for this purpose may be obtained at a comparatively low price at present, and I am inclined to believe that the fund now at the disposal of the Trustees would be found amply sufficient to purchase the land, and to secure a home which, for some years to come at all events, would be large enough to meet the necessities of our present position. I leave the whole matter in your hands, firmly believing that you will take such action as will seem to you to be most wise and prudent. Appeals from poverty and distress have never been disregarded by this Grand Lodge. The open hand, prompted by the generous heart, has ever been cheerfully extended to relieve the wants of our poor brethren, their widows or orphans, and the delay which has occurred in the matter of the Masonic Asylum, has really arisen from the anxious desire of the members of this Grand Lodge to ascertain the best way of directing the stream of their benevolence, so as to secure the greatest good to the greatest number. And I am proud to say that the Grand Lodge of Canada not only appreciates but practices that beautiful sentiment of Galt, "that whenever we do an act or justice or kindness to another, it is the benevolence of Heaven directing us to achieve some good for ourselves."

Brethren, having thus briefly and hurriedly referred to the various subjects and incidents of the past year, I will not further trespass upon your patience; I shall leave this chair conscious of the fact that my efforts to promote the interests of Masonry generally, and of this Grand Lodge in particular, have fallen far short of my aspirations; but I shall also leave it with the gratifying thought, that while I myself entertain none but the warmest feeling of brotherly love to every Mason in Canada, I am proud to believe that I shall carry with me the good wishes and respect of the fraternity generally.

And now, brethren, I shall conclude, in the language of the great apostle: "Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you."

WM. M. WILSON,
Grand Master

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE, MIDDLESEX AND SURREY.

The second annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, London, on Saturday, the 2nd instant, and was attended by a large gathering of well-known and influential members of the Mark Degree.

The proceedings throughout were eminently gratifying to those who participated in them, and we congratulate the officers of the province on the considerable success which crowned their endeavours.

Prior to the opening of the Provincial Grand Lodge, a Lodge of Instruction was opened for the purpose of working the ceremony of advancement. Bro. James Stevens, P.G.O. &c., officiated as W.M., by whom, assisted by Bros. Matier, P.G. Warden; A. Wolton, W.M. 104; T. Poore, J.W. 22; and other brethren well skilled in the working of the degree, the ceremony was ably rehearsed. Bro. F. H. Cozens conducted the musical portion of the rehearsal.

Punctually at the hour named the officers of the province entered the lodge-room, and were received by the brethren present in Masonic form.

In the unforeseen and unavoidable absence of the R.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master, Bro. Col. Burdett, the V.W. Deputy Prov. G. Master, Bro. Frederic Davison presided, and was supported by the V.W. The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting, held at Richmond in August last, having been confirmed, the Roll of Lodges was called over by the Provincial Grand Secretary, whose report was received with much satisfaction, the increase in the number of members during the past year being large. Sundry matters of routine business were disposed of, and a decision as to the future subscriptions of private lodges was unanimously arrived at, and the Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year were then appointed and invested as follows, viz:—

No further business being before the meeting, Provincial Grand Mark Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, at which the V.W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Frederic Davison presided. The customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and excellent speeches in response to several of these were made by Bro. Maher, on behalf of Grand Mark Lodge, Bro. Thrupp (on behalf of newly appointed officers), Bros. Goodall and Wilsden, both of New York (on behalf of the visitors), Bro. Stevens (for Prov. Grand Treasurer and himself), and Bro. Binckes (on behalf of "The Mark Benevolent Fund"). In further response to the last named toast, Bro. H. C. Levander announced his intention to represent the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge, as Steward at the ensuing Festival, to be held in connection with that fund. The pleasure of the evening was further enhanced by the capital recitations of Bro. Moody ("The Charge of the Six Hundred"), and Bro. Stevens ("Masons' Vows"), and the musical services of Bro. F. H. Cozens, the newly appointed Provincial Grand Organist, and his professional friends, Bros. Musgrave and Martin. Altogether, whether in respect of business or refreshment, a more enjoyable afternoon we do not seek to remember, and we desire to join with all those brethren who so cordially expressed their satisfaction to the Deputy Grand Master, and the Secretary of the province, in their hearty good wishes for the continued success of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge for Middlesex and Surrey.

There are in connection with the College THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS, open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.
The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the PREPARATORY SCHOOL (entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitioners, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D.T.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners; Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. Routledge, Esq., B.S.F.C.S., Manchester; also the Protestant Clergy, Nobility, and Professional Gentlemen (parents of present pupils) in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, Bognor, Preston, Burnley, Chester, Lancaster, Boston (Lincoln), Wigan, Harrowgate, Acerington, Haslingden, Kendal, Southport, Todmorden, &c., and various other towns; the Continent of Europe, the colonies, New York, and the United States, Brazil, Cuba, &c., who can bear ample testimony to the merits and success of this College.

Next term commences the 7th August, 1873.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

OPiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

* * * Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

HAMPTON COURT.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel. In consequence of the W.M., Bro. J. T. Moss, P. Prov. G.S.D. Middlesex, being at his sea-side residence in Margate, Bro. F. Walters, Prov. G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M. and Secretary, opened the lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The Ballot proved unanimous in favour of the admission of all the candidates for initiation into Freemasonry, and joining members to the lodge. Bro. Benjamin Wright was passed to the second degree. Bro. E. W. Mackney, Org., W.M. 134, took the chair, and raised Bros. F. B. Williams (1275) and W. F. Gardiner (1277) to the third degree. Following members were unanimously recommended for office in the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex for 1874, namely, Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.G. Stewd. Midx., S.W., for higher honours; T. J. Sabine, P.M., Treas., for office; Rev. T. Miller, for Chaplain; E. W. Mackney, Org., for Org.; J. S. W. Sweasey, J. D., was unanimously elected to represent the lodge as its Steward at the forthcoming festival, to be held in January, 1874. The usual large number of propositions have been given in, both for candidates for initiation and for joining members, the lodge was closed, refreshment following labour. There were present besides those above named, J. W. Baldwin, J.W.; E. H. Thiellay, S.D.; J. Baxter Langley, I.G.; S. Woolff, Faulkner, Loos, and others. The visitors were Bros. H. E. Bradley, the late Janitor, was voted a retiring pension, and the election and appointment of Comp. John Gilbert (Provincial Grand Tyler for Middlesex) as Janitor in his stead. Bro. Benaiah Ranney Bryant, of the Sphinx Lodge, was unanimously approved in ballot, and was exalted into the Supreme Degree. The chapter was then closed and adjourned to November next, and after a brief period of refreshment the companions separated.

On Saturday, 9th inst., the Gladstone Hall, in connection with the Woolston Convalescent Hospital, was opened by the Mayor of Liverpool. The hall was erected from the funds contributed by working-men to a testimonial to the Premier in 1868.

MACDONALD MARK MASTERS LODGE (No. 104).—This lodge met at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles at Camberwell, on Saturday, the 9th inst. The W. Bro. Arthur Wolton, Prov. G. Deacon for Middlesex and Surrey, W. M., was well supported, amongst those present being the V.W. Bros. Thomas Meggy, P.G.O. and Treasurer; James Stevens, P.G.O. and Prov. G. Secretary for Middlesex and Surrey; Alfred Williams, P.G.S.; Edgar Drewet, P. Prov. G.D.; W. C. Hale, P. Prov. S.B.; Edward Moody, P.G. Standard Bearer; F. W. Cozens, P.G. Org.; J. W. O'Neill, Prov. G. Steward; W. B. Collins, J. Bassett, and others. Ballots were taken for eight candidates for advancement and a joining brother, the whole of which proved unanimously favourable. The following brethren being in attendance were severally introduced and advanced with perfect musical ceremony, viz:—Bros. George Yarley, John Close, and J. K. Pitt, all of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord, and Bros. Charles Chard and J. Hayward. The remaining approved candidates had communicated their intention to be present at the ensuing meeting, and with other brethren proposed will receive the benefit of advancement. On full discussion, and taking into consideration the present strength and satisfactory position of the lodge, it was unanimously resolved that after the next regular meeting, in October, the advancement fee should be raised to the sum of two guineas, the annual subscription to two guineas, and that the meetings shall be held four times in each year. The lodge was then closed in sacred harmony, and the brethren adjourned to a frugal supper, characterised, as usual, by a joviality for which all gatherings at the First Surrey Head Quarters are famous. Bro. Cozens, as pianist, had but little interval from exertion during the period devoted to song and merriment, and a most agreeable evening was spent by all present.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

A quarterly meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland was held on Monday, 4th inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, George Street, Edinburgh. The M.W. Grand Master Mason of Scotland, the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, occupied the throne, and was supported by Bros. the Right Hon. the Earl of Dalhousie, K.T., Past Grand Master; Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart, Depute Grand Master; Henry Inglis of Torsonce, Substitute Grand Master; William Mann, R.W. Senior Grand Warden; Major Hamilton Ramsey R.W. Junior Grand Warden; the Right Hon. Lord James Murray, representative to the Grand Lodge of England; Mr. George Home Drummond, of Ardoch, representative of the Netherlands; Col. Campbell, of Blythswood, Provincial Grand Master for Renfrew; Dr. Sotaerville, of Ampherlaw, representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland; Charles W. M. Muller, representative of the Grand Lodge of Saxony; George Laurie, Grand Secretary; John Coghill, Grand Director of Cereemonies; Alexander Hay, Grand Jeweller; F. A. Barrow, Junior Grand Deacon; James Ballantine, Grand Bard; M. Mackenzie, Chief Grand Marshal; F. S. Melville, President of the Board of Grand Stewards, &c. The Grand Lodge was duly opened, and sundry proxy commissions were sustained, one from the Provincial Grand Lodge of New South Wales being delayed till next quarterly meeting. After the minutes of last meeting had been read, a long discussion ensued, and it was ultimately ruled, by a majority of 85 to 49, that the motion for the abolition of the proxy system, submitted to last meeting, was ultra vires of the Grand Lodge and of no effect. The motion was therefore cancelled. The Grand Master intimated the decease of the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, and stated that he had instructed the Grand Secretary to send the following letters of condolence to the Grand Lodge of England and to the family of the late nobleman.—
 "To the Most Worshipful the Grand Master Mason and the United Grand Lodge of Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons of England and Wales—
 "Illustrious and well-beloved Brethren,—It has been with a true feeling of sorrow that we have learned the demise of our right worshipful and much honoured brother, the Right Hon. the late Earl of Zetland, Past Grand Master of your illustrious Grand Lodge, whose nobility of character and long distinguished career as a Craftsman had justly endeared him to all Scotch Freemasons. We shall long mourn the loss of one whose bright example of charity and benevolence shed so much lustre on our Order, and we desire to mingle our sorrow with yours, and give expression to the deep sympathy we feel with our English brethren throughout the world in the bereavement they have sustained.

"Given at Freemasons' Hall, in the City of Edinburgh, in name and under the seal of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Scotland, this 11th day of June, A.D. 1873, A.L. 5877.
 (Signed) "ROSSLYN,
 "Grand Master Mason of Scotland."

To the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland.
 "My Lord,—I beg leave in my own name, as Most Worshipful Grand Master Mason of Scotland, and on behalf of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Scotland, to offer to you and to the members of your Lordship's family, the assurance of our deepest sympathy on the melancholy bereavement your house has sustained in the demise of our much beloved and honoured brother the late Earl of Zetland, whose distinguished worth had endeared him to all who had the privilege of his acquaintance; more especially do we, as Freemasons, mourn the loss of a brother who during a long life did so much to advance, elevate, and adorn our Craft. His unceasing labours in the promotion of the benevolent institutions of our society will send down his memory to future generations, ever fresh, honoured, and revered. We devoutly pray the Great Architect of the Universe to afford your Lordship and the members of your Lordship's family all consolation under your affliction and bereavement, and we trust that you may be cheered with the knowledge that the wide-spread sorrowers of our Order have mingled affectionately with those of your lordship and family.

"Given at Freemasons' Hall, in the City of Edinburgh, in name and under the seal of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, this 11th day of June, A.D. 1873, A.L. 5877.

(Signed) "ROSSLYN,
 "Grand Master Mason of Scotland."
 The following reply from the Earl of Zetland was then read to the meeting.—
 "To the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn and the Members of the Grand Lodge of Scotland—

"My Lord,—I take upon myself, on my own behalf and on that of the other members of my family, to express to you and to the officers and brethren of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, our most heartfelt thanks for your most kind and considerate assurance of sympathy on the loss we have sustained. It is most gratifying to us to feel that we have so many to sympathise with us under our bereavement. The late Earl of Zetland was indeed a good and true friend, and beloved most sincerely by his family and friends. We cannot but feel that his loss will be felt by all with whom he came in contact, especially by the Freemasons both of England and Scotland.—
 "I have the honour to be, My Lord, yours faithfully and fraternally,

(Signed) "ZETLAND."

The Secretary intimated the decease of Bro. Alexander Mitchell of Stow, Provincial Grand Master of Berwickshire; and of Bro. Thomas Drummond, representative at the Grand Lodge Canada. Bro. Sotires Georgiades was unanimously nominated as representative from the Grand Lodge of Greece. On the recommendation of the lodges in the West India Islands, Bro. Chief Justice Joseph Wattley was unanimously appointed Provincial Grand Master of that province. Bro. William Hay, as representative of the Grand Lodge of Nova Scotia, and Bro. Alexander Hay, as representative of the Grand Lodge of New Brunswick, presented their credentials, and were installed into office with the usual honours. On the recommendation of the Grand Committee, charters were ordered to be expedite to new lodges—"St. John," Crossgates; and "Marie Stuart," Crosshill. A petition for a new lodge at Coatbridge was remitted to the Grand Committee for further consideration. It was agreed that the renewed application for recognition of the Grand Lodge of Quebec should meanwhile be declined. The applications for recognition of the Grand Lodge of Brazil and the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England and Wales, were postponed, pending the receipt of fuller information. The motion tabled at last quarterly meeting for holding business meetings of the Grand Lodge in different parts of Scotland was postponed till next quarterly meeting, at the request of the mover. Several notices of motion for next quarterly meeting were tabled, and the Grand Lodge was then closed.

GRAND LODGE OF IRELAND.

The Grand Lodge of Ireland met at Freemason's Hall, Molesworth Street, Dublin, on Thursday the 7th inst., under the presidency of the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Robert Shekleton. About seventy brethren were present. The business transacted was of a routine nature—the consideration of the new conditions being deferred to the September meeting.

FREEMASONRY IN SOUTH AFRICA.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE.—In accordance with notice, the adjourned meeting from Monday, June 16, was held at the Exchange on Monday, June 23, Sir T. Maclear, Knt., acting D.G.M., in the chair. After discussing sundry questions, a resolution was adopted, to forward to the Grand Lodge an address expressive of appreciation of the eminent services rendered to the Craft by the late Grand Master, the Earl of Zetland, admiration of his virtues, and sincere regret at his death, and the loss which the Order has sustained by it. The Officers for the ensuing year were re-appointed, and as it was deemed best to make no alteration under existing circumstances, they were re-installed as follows:—Sir Thomas Maclear, Dep. Dist. G.M., to be Acting Dist. G.M.; Chas. A. Fairbridge, Dist. G.S.W.; M. T. King, Dist. G.J.W.; J. T. C. Inglesby, Dist. G. Treas.; R. P. Dobie, Dist. G. Reg.; W. T. Hawthorn, Dist. G. Sec.; W. Knight, Dist. G.S.D. (L. Alexander, acting pro tem.); H. W. Pearson, Dist. G.J.D.; T. Inglesby, Dist. G. Superintendent of Works; A. Inglis, Dist. G.D.C.; Capt. G. C. Swinney, Dist. G. Sword B.; W. F. Williams, Dist. G. Standard B.; W. Brandt, Dist. G. Organist; W. Hiddings, Dist. G. Purst.; Wm. McLeod, Assist. Dist. G. Purst. Stewards—R. W. H. Giddy, Geo. Slater, W. F. Stuttaford, L. Alexander, P. J. Stigant, and J. Riddelsdall. The following brethren were appointed Members of the Committee of General Purposes—Chas. A. Fairbridge (President), R. P. Dobie, T. J. C. Inglesby, W. T. Hawthorn, C. Cowen, A. Inglis, W. F. Stuttaford, L. Alexander, and J. Riddelsdall.

CAPE TOWN.—The brethren of the lodge "Rising Star," No. 1022, assembled at their lodge room. Bro. Hugh Exton the J.W., being elected as W.M. for the ensuing year, a board of P.M.'s (Bros. George Home, M. L. Pincus, and Alfred Barlow) was formed. The usual ceremonies were gone through, when the Immediate P.M., Bro. Alfred Barlow, duly installed the W.M. elect. The newly-installed W.M. then invested his officers in the following order:—Bros. W. D. Savage, S.W.; A. Barfield, J.W.; Alfred Barlow, I.P.M., Treasurer; John Wynn, Secretary; C. A. Ansdell, S.D.; E. S. Hanger, J. D.; Wm. Howatson and John P. Wright, Stewards; W. F. Barlow, I.G.; Moses Wesley, O.G. The solemn proceedings being ended, the lodge adjourned till seven o'clock, when the usual banquet took place. Bro. Thomas Serech was the caterer, and outdid himself by serving up a dinner fit for the Lord Mayor of London.

BLOEMFONTEIN.—St. John's Day, 24th June, was, as usual, duly honoured by the Fraternity belonging to both lodges established in this town. At the "Unie," the W.M. of the past year, Bro. C. Krause, having been re-elected, was installed by the Junior Warden, Bro. W. C. Pecters. The Master then proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—Bro. W. C.

Peeters, J.W.; C. C. Mathey, Orator; F. P. Klüener, Secretary; O. J. Truter, Treasurer; J. Janse van Rensburg, Almoner; J. F. van Iddekinge, M.C.; F. Drude, Tyler. The S.W., Bro. Lodewyk J. Papenfus, was not invested, as he was unavoidably absent on business. Bro. Mathey, the Orator, then delivered an excellent oration.

PHILIPPOLIS (ORANGE FREE STATE).—Angel Lodge (No. 1300 E.C.)—On St. John's Day, the brethren of this promising little lodge assembled for the purpose of installing the W.M. and investing the officers for the ensuing year. Many visitors had come from a considerable distance to join in the celebration. Amongst them were noticed Bros. Dr. Eagle, P.M.; J. F. M. Schulz, P.M.; J. R. Will, P.M.; J. Abrahamson, Stonier Leigh (late of the St. Helen's Lodge, No. 531), and the Harbour of Refuge Lodge, No. 702 (Harlepool, Durban.) Bisseaus, Laud-don of Philippolis, Mere, Jacobs Prater, Van der Riet, Clark and others. The suffrages of the brethren had fallen a second time on Bro. C. F. Welford, who though he had successfully governed the lodge for a year, from the impossibility of hitherto getting together a Board of Installed Masters, was without regular instalment. He was now admitted to this honour with the usual ceremonies. Bro. Eagle, who though long a resident in the Free States, hails from the Province of Essex, of which he is a P.J.G.W., officiating as Installing Master. The W.M. then invested with suitable remarks his officers:—Bros. Henry Harvey, I.P.M.; G. A. Monro, S.W.; L. Tower Blake, J.W.; Fred Linton, Treasurer; G. A. Weisslein, Secretary; M. H. Rooke, S.D.; T. Taylor, J.D.; James Martin, I.C.; and E. Harv (pro tem.), Tyler, after which the lodge proceeded in order to the English Church, where service was held and a sermon preached by the Rev. Mr. Barrow. In the evening there was a dance, which about 120 were present, and dancing was kept up with great spirit. By a dispensation the blasons appeared in their clothing, and besides the blue of the M.M., the insignia of the K.T., the Rose Croix, and the Mark Master were noticeable. The Stewards were Bros. Welford, G. Monro, F. Laxton, and W. M. Monro. Your correspondent, as one of the visitors, begs to acknowledge the hearty welcome given him, and the great preparations made for their comfort. The day will be remembered as a red-lettered day in the history of the Angel.

NEW RED CROSS CONCLAVE IN LIVERPOOL.—On Thursday, the 28th inst., the new Walton Conclave of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine, will be consecrated at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale. This will form the third conclave in Liverpool, and there is no doubt that the youngest will display all the vitality of the elder conclaves.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND—GRAND LODGE OF GREECE.—Bro. Sotures Georgiades, who was unanimously nominated by the Grand Lodge of Scotland Representative at Edinburgh of the newly formed Grand Lodge of Greece of which His Royal Highness Prince Rhodocanakis is Grand Master, is a native of Greece, but he has been long resident in Edinburgh, where, by his successful pursuits in business, he has acquired a competency. Bro. Georgiades is a member of all the higher degrees of Masonry in Scotland up to and inclusive of the 30°. He has filled with distinction the chair of the Lodge Celtic, Edinburgh, and fills at present high office in some other Orders. The appointment, which was an unanimous one, has given much satisfaction.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN SUPREME GRAND COUNCIL 33°, SOUTHERN JURISDICTION, UNITED STATES.

We have been favoured by Dr. A. G. Mackay 33°, with a copy of the Bulletin for June, 1873, and have generally been highly gratified with its contents. Its publication is a step in the right direction, and cannot fail to be warmly appreciated by Masonic students under the Southern Jurisdiction (U.S.A.). It is carefully edited, and the articles generally are of an interesting character. The aim of the promoters, and able editor, is to afford the members of the Supreme Council plenty of solid information respecting the history and character of the Craft, for which purpose various articles appearing from time to time in Masonic periodicals are transferred to its pages (not, however, without an acknowledgment), and many official documents are also printed. It is issued at intervals of not more than four months, and each number contains the latest information in regard to the doings of Foreign Supreme Councils and Grand Orients, or lodges. It is not a vehicle for essays, discussions, or deputations; but as respects domestic matters seeks to furnish the current information in regard to Consistories and subordinate bodies, and such extracts from foreign bulletins and other publications, official and historical, as may be valuable and entertaining. The expense is borne by the Supreme Council, and each number contains about 500 pages, costing about six shillings.

CONGRESS OF ALL THE SUPREME GRAND COUNCILS.

A copy of the circular convening a Congress of all the Supreme Grand Councils in the world, recognised and in treaty, is given in the Bulletin, and we find that the date is fixed for the second Monday of May, 1874. If any considerable number shall agree to accept the invitation cordially tendered by the S.G.C., Bro. Albert Pike, 33°, on upon receipt of responses to that effect during the year 1873, give information to the various bodies concerned, and advise them that the Congress will be held. Some, we find, desire the Congress to be held in Europe; but as a first attempt, it might surely be tried in the country where it originated, and we feel quite certain that so far as the reception is concerned, the European Grand Councils will not complain of their treatment by the brethren at the City of Washington. During the month of May; the Congress of the United States will be in session, so that an additional treat will thus be afforded the various illustrious strangers expected to attend.

CRAFT DEGREES V. ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE.

An important communication from the learned Bro. Albert Pike, in which certain alterations in the rituals of the 28° and 30° are recommended, deserves careful consideration. The portions recommended to be substituted could not be improved upon in any way as respects elegance of diction, and are especially noteworthy. The first reads thus:—"The Masonry of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite does not permit anyone to put forth in its behalf pretences to the possession of any mysterious and occult knowledge not within reach of the world at large During all the ages, the mass of mankind was, as if it were an instinct of human nature, sought to be governed by a single will, in things spiritual as well as in things temporal, by a hierarchy and a monarch. The consequences have in all the ages been the despotism of tyrants and that of Pontiffs."

"But, also, initiation seems to be a necessity for the human soul; and it is the purpose of Freemasonry to combat the instinctive tendency of men to submit blindly to a single will, by teaching the great doctrines of the Order—Liberty with loyal obedience to constitutional law; Equality—with that due subordination required by the social order, and Fraternity or Brotherhood, with its duties as well as its affections—the right of the wise to instruct the unwise, as well as the duty of the strong to protect the weak, and the rich to assist the poor."

"The Ancient and Accepted Rite . . . fulfils the functions of King and Priest, of wise leader and teacher, labouring for the good of men, and their improvement, for freedom of action, of conscience, and of speech."

BRO. GEORGE FRANK GOULEY, 33°, AND RESTORATION TO RIGHTS.

Bro. Gouley for some time was a "thorn in the flesh" to Bro. A. Pike, 33°, and the other members of the 33°, but of late mutual explanations have been offered and accepted, objectionable clauses have been omitted in the rituals, and peace reigns supreme. In consequence the feud is quenched, and Bro. Gouley is again an active member—one of the ablest of the able brethren of America.

ORATION BY BRO. HENRY BUIST, 33°.

A new Masonic Temple was consecrated, and Bro. Buist gave an address, which is inserted in the Bulletin, as it deserves to be. We are of the opinion that if Masonry was agreed on all hands to consist of those degrees only known as the "Craft," the generality of the objections urged against the Institution would be withdrawn, for we conceive it is mainly because of its theological and political bearings that any danger is apprehended from its progress; conditions unlikely to result from the promotion of Craft Masonry, but certainly a probable effect of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite," and others of the "Hautes Grades," which are often sectarian in character, and can scarcely be said to be free from political bias. We are ready at all times to acknowledge the great ability, Masonic zeal, and general intelligence of the chiefs in the Hautes Grades, but are nevertheless unable to see why there need be so many degrees, obligations, and rites, neither do we admit the desirability of sectarian degrees of any kind. I say this much, in mentioning the oration of Bro. Buist, for its worth is so apparent, and its Masonic illustrations so apt, that we only wish it had the circulation corresponding with its general excellence. His definition, however, of Freemasonry, is not consistent with sectarian degrees. Our Bro. says, "Freemasonry is one of the most marked, as well as one of the splendid exponents, of that great principle of which I have spoken. It is simply the development, noble in intention, still nobler in its result, of the instinct spirit of association. And when we speak of it legitimately, we must speak of it only as an association of good men, united for the accomplishment of a common object." A "common object," we take it, alike for Jews, Mahometans, and Christians.

What could be better than the following?

"Freemasonry is an association for the cultivation of intellectual philosophy; it is an association for the propagation of moral and religious sentiment; it is an association for the exercise of charity, and the encouragement of human love. And if I succeed in showing that its philosophy is scholarly, its moral and religious teaching orthodox, its practice of charity diffusive, and its principle of love pure and holy, I shall claim all for the character thus developed that I know just men will be disposed to bestow."

The term "orthodox," used by our brother, is evidently intended to mean not that "Freemasonry is a religious institution," for he says "far from it," but simply orthodox because it teaches the "great doctrine of the immortality of the soul and its necessary adjunct, the resurrection of the dead." . . . "Take from Freemasonry its philosophic teaching, the sublime arcana of God and man, of life and death, of time and eternity, which it was brought forth to develop in its own peculiar way, and Masonry would be a lifeless and worthless corpse."

REPRESENTATIVES FROM GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND TO UNITED STATES, &c.

We notice that the representatives from the Southern Jurisdiction, 33°, U.S.A. for England, Ireland, and Scotland are Captain H. G. Phillips, 33° (London), Dr. J. T. Townsend, 33° (Dublin); and Lord James C. P. Murray, 33° (Edinburgh); and from these Grand Councils respectively, to the Grand Council in Southern Jurisdiction, U.S.A., T. S. Parvin, 33° (Iowa), Dr. A. G. Mackay, 33° (Washington), and L. E. Barber, 33° (Little Rock).

A very long report is inserted respecting the misunderstanding existing between the Supreme Grand Council and the Grand Orient of France. It is mainly a translation from the official bulletin and enters fully into the question of Grand Lodges working the "Hautes Grades." We quite think with the Editor that "If a Congress of the Supreme Councils should be held, it should be a question for consideration, whether all such unions ought not to be dissolved, and each Supreme Council be a distinct autonomy, and also whether the symbolic degrees should not be left by them exclusively to the Grand Lodges and Grand Orients. Our opinion is that the Grand Lodges have no more right to work the degrees of the Supreme Grand Councils, than the latter to work the degrees of the former.

Grand Lodges, Masonically, have only to do with the degrees known as the "Craft," and have consequently authority only over the lodges which are under their jurisdiction. On the other hand, Supreme Grand Councils are not justified in controlling or working any portions of Craft Masonry, and wherever and whenever they do, the Grand Lodges so ignored and invaded should suspend all their members assenting and aiding such an act. On the other hand, the Supreme Grand Councils should be equally ready to suspend or expel their members who in any way promote the working of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite degrees" by Grand Lodges. Each of the bodies are distinct and independent and, Masonically speaking, are not capable of union, Craft Masonry being quite different in aim and objects to the "Ancient and Accepted Rite."

We are therefore in sympathy with the Grand Council (S.J.) in objecting to the Grand Orient of France assuming to itself control over the degrees of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite," but to be consistent, our American brethren should refuse countenance to the "Suprême Conseil pour la France," which works the Craft Degrees.

The article "Freemasonry in Greece," which appeared in The Freemason, is quoted in the Official Bulletin now under review, and "amicable relations," and a suitable representation, have been entered into by the 33° of United States (S.J.) and the 33° of Greece. The Article on the Royal Order of Scotland, and the institution of the Provincial Grand Lodge of London, is also taken bodily from The Freemason, and we feel sure that the editor of our English organ of the Craft will be pleased to find so good a use being made of his paper.

MASONS IN TIME OF WAR.

The few, but especially interesting references to "Masons in Time of War" deserve a friendly notice by us. Our good Bro. Findel in a letter to Bro. Hubert, Editor "Chaine d'Union," Paris, observes, "Immediately after the declaration of war, the Lodge of Mannheim called upon all the German Lodges for assistance for the wounded of both nations. Numerous donations followed; they were distributed among all the wounded, without distinction of nationality. The greater part of the lodges of South and Central Germany converted their temples into hospitals, at their own expense. Wherever there were Masonic physicians, they lavished their attentions gratuitously and indiscriminately upon the wounded. The wives of the Masons prepared lin for bandaged soldiers. The Lodge of Les Trois Epées, in the Orient of Halle, opened a subscription, and the proceeds were divided between the German prisoners in France, and the French prisoners in Germany. The six Lodges of Frankfurt-am-Main established a committee, which distributed abundant provisions to the prisoners, and came to the assistance of the hospitals. . . . The Grand Lodges of Royal York, d'Anhalt, and Les Trois Globes, at Berlin, obtained, at the first call for all the wounded, the sum of 6000 thalers."

Many instances of kindness to the wounded Masons by German brethren are cited, and are very suggestive of the active principles of benevolence inculcated by the Fraternity.

THE GERMAN CONVENT OF EASTERN TEMPLARISM.

What has been termed the "Grand Alliance Ceremony," viz.—The Installation of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, K.G., as Grand Master of the Knights Templars ("Not in itself Masonic" but in something else,) is graphically described, and subsequently the letter which appeared in a Washington paper, of the 18th May, 1872, is reproduced in full. The editor characterises it as "very injudicious," and speaks quite as strongly against its general contents as the editor of The Freemason, and certain able brethren did, soon after its publication became known in this country.

We quote the following as evidence of the feeling in the United States respecting Bro. Sir Patrick Colquhoun's views of Knight Templary, and to show that the objections that the majority of Knights Templars in England have to the position the indefatigable knight takes, are reciprocated by the fratres on the other side of the Atlantic.

The editor says, "It will hardly be admitted we think, by American Knights Templars that their order is not Masonic, but only a superstructure erected upon the body of Masonry. For if not Masonic, it would soon come to be the case that it would receive little more consideration than any one of the multitudinous orders springing up everywhere in the country."

"Sir Patrick might have indulged in laudation of his Constitutional Monarchy, without going to one side to insult the Supreme Council of England and Wales, because it is an incorporated body." If it be so, which we did not know, so are many of our Grand Lodges, and the Supreme Council for the Southern Jurisdiction was incorporated years ago, by the Legislature of South Carolina.

"As to the sale of degrees, we suppose that English Templarism sells degrees also. It is rather early for English Templarism to begin the work of aggression on other Orders."

Some brethren say there is internal evidence sufficient to prove that Bro. Sir Patrick Colquhoun wrote the letter in question, but we think quite otherwise, and hope that well-known brother is in a position to deny its authorship, for certainly the internal evidence is sufficient to prove that a more egotistical, illogical and unmasonic communication could scarcely have been penned.

"The Historical Section" contains the Latin text of the Apostolic Constitutions, and injunctions against the Society of Freemasons, of the years 1738, 1751, &c., and excellent translations are appended.

THE HAUTES GRADES.

One of the most important communications ever made respecting the "Ineffable Degrees" is the address by Bro. J. H. Drummond, 33°, delivered in 1859. It contains copies of warrants and records of a Lodge of Perfection from 1767 to 1776, and the documentary evidence abundantly confirms the fact of these degrees being regularly worked as early as the period mentioned.

The manifesto by Bro. John Yarker, (a Mason of much intelligence) respecting the 33° and the "Primitive Rite" is examined, and in some respects answered, provided the assertions are correct. They certainly are new to us and well worthy of being authenticated. A few we will mention.

Kaulmann and Chertin say that the Primitive Scottish Rite, introduced into France by Ramsay, was composed of the three blue degrees, and of the Esoteric, of the Knight of the Temple. So also Ragon says that another degree was added in 1736, making seven. Are these authorities correct? If so, I shall be glad to know where the evidence the root is to be found.

We are also told that "in 1743, the Petit Bleu Degree was invented at Lyons. This was afterwards known as the Kadosh, or the Kadush, with other Blu degrees, was developed from it." It was written in the France Magazine, in 1744 (mark the date) "that the majority of the Masters and Wardens do not know that Masonry consists of seven degrees, and the Lodge Generals, in its

* No one will accuse us of being prejudiced in favour of the Supreme Grand Council, 33° of England and Wales, and yet we are ready to maintain that the incorporation was a most judicious act, and quite the opposite of a "Trading Association."

blindness, resolved on the 11th of December, 1743, to regard the Masons of the 4th degree, i.e. the Maitres Ecossais, as only common Apprentices and plain Craftsmen."

"In 1748 the Rite de la Vielle Bru was established at Toulouse with nine degrees."

The "Historical Notice of the St. Clairs," copied from the Freemason, and said to be by Bro. Chalmers I. Paton, so far as the documents themselves are concerned, have already been shown to have been originally communicated by Bro. D. Murray Lyon, the Scottish Masonic Historian, a fact we desire to bring to the notice of the editor of the Bulletin. Our motto is "honour to whom honour is due," and I know my friend Dr Mackay, has a similar faith.

But we have pretty well exhausted the Bulletin, and so conclude the review by expressing our satisfaction at the general excellence of the publication.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

FREEMASONRY IN AUSTRALIA.

FUNERAL CEREMONIAL IN MEMORY OF THE LATE R.W.P.G.M., THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF ZETLAND.

The Worshipful Master, Bro. Wm. Little, of the Yarrowee Lodge of Freemasons, Ballarat, E.C., evidently has a good idea of how the rites and ceremonies of the ancient Order should be carried out. On the 20th May the new Masonic Hall, in Camp-street, had on the garb of mourning. The splendid dais over the Worshipful Master's chair was draped in crape and black velvet, the columns, pedestals, candelabra, wands, and all the paraphernalia used by the Craft in their secret workings were also craped, and altogether the lodge-room had a most solemn and impressive appearance before opening. But this was intensified tenfold when the brethren entered and quite filled the room, all dressed in mourning costume, and the three Rev. Chaplains, suitably robed, took up the position just outside the grand dais and directly in front of the Master's pedestal.

A scene of this kind in a Masonic lodge is seldom witnessed, every member of the Craft seeming to feel (if their solemn demeanour was an index to their hearts) that there was but a step between them and death.

A Masonic choir of singers and the string band of the lodge, were stationed in the southwest corner, under the leadership of Bro. Thomas King, and we can safely say they well performed the part allotted to them, Past Master Richard Kent presiding at the harmonium.

The lodge was duly opened in the first degree, as on other lodge nights, after which Bro. the Rev. J. W. Inglis engaged in prayer, and in such eloquent and appropriate terms, when referring to the illustrious departed that caused a thrill of holy awe to pervade the assemblage. The Worshipful Master, Bro. Wm. Little, P.G.J.W., who occupied the chair, rose and remarked that, as Master of the Yarrowee Lodge, the solemn duty devolved on him of formally announcing the death of the Past Grand Master of England—the Right Hon. Earl of Zetland. A loss so great to Masonry demanded at the hands of the lodge more than a mere passing notice; indeed, the departure of one so illustrious—of one who held the reins of English Masonic government twenty-six years, deserves permanent record in the annals of the lodge, as well as to be engraven on the hearts of its members. He had, therefore, anticipated their wishes in that respect by putting the lodge into mourning, by postponing their ordinary business until the following Tuesday, and by showing every mark of respect to his memory. He invited the brethren to engage in the labours of the evening with befitting solemnity, and take part with heart and voice in the following exercises, which he said were as complete as the shortness of the time enabled them to be made. There was much he could say why they should cherish the memory of their illustrious departed, but not wishing to be tedious or say what would be better said by his Bro. Chaplain, he would conclude his remarks by wishing all to join in singing the first hymn—

Solemn strikes the funeral chime—
Notes of our departing time,
As we journey here below
Through a pilgrimage of woe.

Mortals now indulge a tear,
For mortality is here;
See how wide the trophies wave
O'er the slumbers of the grave.

God of Life's eternal day
Guide us lest from thee we stray
By a false delusive light
To the shades of endless night.

Lord of all below—above—
Fill our souls with truth and love,
And when dissolv'd our earthly tie
Take us to thy Lodge on high.

The Rev Bro. Watson then read a portion of Scripture from the Books of Isaiah and Ecclesiastes, after which Bro. Lambie, sang with excellent voice, "O Rest in the Lord." (Elijah).

The Chaplain, Bro. Rev. Watson, then delivered the following extempore oration amidst breathless silence. The clear distinct utterance and fervency of the rev. gentleman told with good effect upon those present and at the conclusion a general feeling pervaded the minds of all, that the address was a masterpiece of Masonic oratory.

"Worshipful Master and Brethren,—In the volume of the Sacred Law, that "unerring standard" and guide which our all-merciful Creator has revealed to direct our steps in this moral life to an immortal one, our departure from this world is spoken of as a being "gathered unto our fathers." A very simple, yet it must be confessed a very beautiful and striking way of describing the death of God's people, and especially so in view of the fact that there are many who regard death as the "king of terrors." But had we been left, like the old pagans, or as the heathen of our own day, without the precious volume, we could not have looked upon it thus; we could then but have groped in the darkness anxious for some glimmer of light, that we might not only find the "unknown God" and be enabled to serve Him, but also know something of that world to which we are hastening. But, now thank God, through this revelation we have "life and immortality brought to light," and so can wend our steady footsteps, by a life of holiness and obedience to the commands of God, to our home of rest on high. Now though our thoughts as individuals are frequently drawn to the subject of death by the immortality which we are daily witnessing around us, yet it is not often that as Masons we are specially called upon to contemplate it, unless indeed in our sublime and solemn ceremonies. Not because deaths are not frequent among us—but because it rarely occurs among those who occupy such a position in the Order as warrant, our being called upon to "stand still" and lay aside our regular business that we may join together in a commemorative service (as we do to-night) in which we dwell upon departed worth and seek to impress one another with more solemn thoughts of, and a more anxious desire to be ready for, our great change when it shall come. But to-day our ordinary gathering, generally so pleasant and cheerful, presents to us signs of mourning. A great man has fallen among us—not merely one of noble blood, and on this account, as true and loyal men, entitled to our regard and esteem—not merely one who, like thousands of others, has wrought for the good of the Craft. But one who has been thought worthy by his compere throughout the length and breadth of our fatherland to fill for more than a quarter of a century the highest office and dignity that Masons have to bestow—that of Most Worshipful Grand Master. It is he whose signature we have attached to our warrant constituting this lodge. It is the death of this man we in lodge assembled, this night commemorate. Now, it is not necessary for me to speak of the private life of the Right Hon. Earl of Zetland. Suffice it to say, that he was born in 1795, so that at the time of his death he had attained to a good old age, having passed the three score years and ten. But it is of Masonic life on which we would dwell, and more particularly upon his Grand Lodge labours. He took a very warm interest in Masonry from the time that he joined it. And certainly during the time that he was Grand Master its success seems to have been unprecedented. Its annual issue of certificates was increased from about 1500 to 7000, while its income was increased from about £12,000 to £38,000. But besides these signs of success and prosperity, the Masonic Hall in London, with its suite of offices, &c., was built at a very heavy cost, large schools, both boys' and girls', established for the children of Masons, and many other things done that tended to consolidate our Order and give to it that position in the world that so important society should occupy. And these, doubtless, were in a great measure to be traced to his wise rule and tender regard for the welfare of the Craft and the good of his fellow-men. It was in consequence of this sterling worth that he came to stand so high in the estimation of our English brethren; so that when it became necessary for him to retire, in consequence of increasing age and failing health, from the position that he had so worthily and honourably filled for twenty-six years, they presented him with a very handsome testimonial, consisting of a piece of plate and £2,730 in cash, which would have been £10,000 if he had not said at the outset that he would not accept it for his private use. Now, in this, they not only showed their appreciation of his labours for the Craft, but expressed their own feelings towards him personally. But, as if to carry out one of the great principles of Masonry and thus impress his brethren with his singleness of purpose, he accepted the large sum that I have named only to have it invested for the relief of distinguished Masons and their families who might become reduced. As we cannot doubt that he was a good and true Mason, practising its duties and cultivating its virtues—as we cannot doubt that he lived as one true to the Great Architect of heaven, obeying the divine precepts and seeking alone for acceptance through Israel's God and Saviour, so we trust that thus "his grey hairs came down to the grave," and his eyes closed upon this mortal scene with the conscious assurance that his God was with him—that His rod and staff would be his stay and comfort as he passed over Jordan's stream. But while we would dwell upon the Masonic life and work of the Earl of Zetland, we must not forget that there are lessons, if not to learn from his death, at least to be impressed upon us. As Masons it must be confessed that there is something peculiarly appropriate in our pausing to reflect upon the death of this noble man. I do not say that it would be desirable for us to turn aside frequently from our usual lodge work for this purpose—it would lose its effect if we did, and, moreover, would be likely to lead to abuse. But I do say that occasionally when there arises a sufficient cause, there is something peculiarly appropriate in our so doing. In our most solemn ceremonies, it is this truth that is most forcibly and with such telling effect taught us—taught in such a way, and in connection with such events, that it ought never for one moment to be absent from us. But amidst the trials of life, its pressing business engagement and our own naughty hearts, there is a tendency if not to forget, at least not to dwell upon it with that earnest attention and that deep feeling that so weighty a subject requires and our interest therein demands. We seem to be so absorbed in the things of this world, that too many of us forget that we have to "go up higher;" and though as we witness our ceremonies we are reminded again and again of this truth, yet as our duty to God, our Redeemer, who brought us up out of the land, is in some things too frequently omitted, so our thoughts are too often turned away from this matter. Now, a contemplation on the present occasion of this most solemn subject in connection with the death of our Most Worshipful Past Grand Master, should lead us not only for our own sakes as men, but as Masons, to a renewed examination of ourselves and a determination to be guided more faithfully by the "Volume of the Sacred Law," that when the day shall come for us to depart we may, through the mercy of God, be ready. But our preparation, we must remember, is the work of our life. It is not to be put off to a more convenient season, but made the subject of our daily thoughts and earnest labours. We must frame our lives in accordance with the teaching of the Divine Word, and seek alone for acceptance with God in His own way, assured that He who sits on Heaven's throne "is not a man that He should lie, or the son of man that he should repent," and therefore we must not presume upon His all-merciful character, and put off to another day making our peace with Him, but knowing that "to-day we must hear His voice and harden not our hearts;" seek to be faithful to the great Ruler of events and to the high and sublime principles of our ancient Order. Suffer then, brethren, at this season this word of exhortation, that when we are each in our turn called upon in the good providence of God to leave this world, we may in truth be 'gathered unto our fathers,' and our fathers' God for evermore. 'Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, give honour and glory, for ever and ever, Amen.'

The choir then sung, and all present joined in the following hymn:—

What sounds of grief in sadness tell
A Brother's earthly doom;
No more in life's fair scenes to dwell—
A tenant of the tomb.

No more the friendly hand now pressed;
No gently whispered word.
He finds a long unbroken rest
Where rules his Heavenly Lord.

All earthly joys and sorrows o'er;
Each changing life or fear;
He sees the light of that fair home;
Without a sigh or tear.

Then bring to him whose holy care
That better temple forms,
Our wish that all may gather there,
Beyond life's coming storms.

The service concluded by a most impressive and beautiful prayer by Bro. the Rev. J. M. Goldreich, remarkable for its simplicity and fervency, but this is what the Craft might expect from a worthy brother so experienced in Masonic usages.

Among the members of the Craft present were noticed Bro. C. Megson, P.M.; Wm. Robertson P.M.; H. Josephs, P.M.; H. Peake, P.M.; T. Aldred, P.M.; R. Kent, P.M.; H. Davies, P.M.; H. White, W.M. elect of St. Johns; Dr. Radcliffe, P.M.; Bros. Finlayson, Harding, Nevitt, Salter, Cuthbert, Sleep, P.M.; Moran, P.M.; Gowan, Shoppee, P.M.; Valentine, P.M., and a number of the leading Masons of Ballarat, who testified by their presence their respect for the illustrious dead. Bro. Wm. Scott, R.W.P.G. Inspector, I.C., was unavoidably absent. The beautiful tracing boards were the subject of much praise. Certainly when the new hall is appropriately furnished there will be no equal to it in the colonies; every possible convenience for the working of the mysteries of the Craft has been attended to, and with such an old Mason and master of his handicraft as the successful tenderer for the furnishing (Bro. Wm. Robertson, P.M.) we may expect soon to see the hall and adjoining rooms as they should be—perfect and complete.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF THE WESTERN DIVISION, OF SOUTH WALES.

The annual communication of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at the Ivy Bush Hotel, Carmarthen, on Friday the 25th ult., under the banner of St. Peter's Lodge No. 476, by the brethren of which the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge were cordially welcomed.

The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Sir Pryse Pryse Bart., opened the lodge in due form, when about seventy brethren were present, among whom were Bros. Major J. Allen Lloyd-Phillips, D. Prov. G. M.; Edward J. Morris, D. Prov. G. M. South Wales, Eastern Division; Captain S. George Homfray, D. Prov.

G. M. of Monmouthshire; Thomas Phillips P.M. 378, 990, P.G.S.W.; John Thomas, 476, P.P.G. Treas.; Rev. Latimer M. Jones (Vicar of Carmarthen), P.M., 476, Prov. G. Chaplain; William Evans, S.W. 476; David Davies, P. Prov. G.S.W., P.M. 476; James Weeks Szlumper, P.G.J.W., P.M. 1072; George Tempany Smith, P.M. 1072, P.G. Sec.; J. Beaven Phillips, W.M. 671; Albert Harris, P.M. 110, Prov. G.D.C. Eastern Division South Wales; William Lloyd, 476; David Lewis, 476; R. Lloyd Jones, 476; Edward Hamer, S.D. 1072; Arthur J. Hughes, 1072; Barrat P. Jordan, 1072; J. R. Rowland, 1072; Griff Jones, 1072; Edward G. Norris, 671; Wm. E. Chalinder, 671; J. Pell, 1072; R. R. Carver, 476; W. J. Morgan, W.M. 47; H. Culliford, 1072; Henry Williams, P.M. 366, Prov. G. Treas.; Stanley J. Balcombe, J.W. 1072; Thomas Williams, 466.

The minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge were read and confirmed, and the following grants were made, upon the proposition of the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, viz.:—The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, 20 guineas; the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, 30 guineas; the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows, 10 guineas; the Carmarthen Infirmary, 5 guineas.

The Treasurer's accounts having been duly audited, were received and passed, and the Treasurer was unanimously re-elected. The R.W. Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to appoint and invest the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—

- | | |
|---|--------------------|
| Major J. A. Lloyd-Phillips (of Mabws), 1072, P.M. 224 | D. Prov. G.M. |
| G. J. Smith, P.M. 1072 | Prov. G.S.W. |
| W. J. Morgan, W.M. 475 | Prov. G.J.W. |
| Rev. W. L. Stradding, J.W. 366 | Prov. G. Chaplain. |
| Capt. H. Williams, P.M. 566 (re-elected) | Prov. G. Treas. |
| J. Beaven Phillips, W.M. 671 | Prov. G. Reg. |
| S. J. Balcombe, J.W. 1072 | Prov. G. Sec. |
| W. E. Chalinder, 671 | Prov. G.S.D. |
| E. L. Cole, P.M. 1072 | Prov. G.J.D. |

| W. Evans, S.W. 476 | Prov. G.D.C. |
| W. L. Harding, P.M. 464 | Prov. G. Org. |
| C. Miles, W.M. 990 | Prov. G.S.B. |
| N. Boyle, 378 | Prov. G. Purst. |

All the above appointments appeared to give satisfaction to every brother present, and we are sure that the promotion of Bro. Smith from P.G. Sec. (which office he has filled for five years) to P.G.S.W. is not the least popular.

The R. W. the Provincial Grand Master congratulated the brethren upon the steady growth of the Province, cautioning the representatives of each lodge to look more to the respectability of the initiates than to the number that might be proposed, adding that he hoped the brethren would individually support the charities and induce their lodges to do likewise.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which reflected great credit upon the proprietress of the Ivy Bush Hotel. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, and duly responded to. The health of the Provincial Grand Master was proposed by his Deputy, and was received with a perfect storm of cheers, which were renewed again and again.

The Marquess of Ripon left London on Saturday evening for Studley Royal, near Ripon, where his lordship will remain a few days, and then go on to the Isle of Harris for shooting.

The King of Denmark has appointed Prince Arthur a Knight of the Order of the Elephant.

At a special meeting of the Alexandra Palace Company, the resolution passed on the 14th ult., authorising the issue of new capital to the extent of £1,500,000, was confirmed.

A BOON TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD.—Boots, with the celebrated wire-quilted soles, wearing twice as long as ordinary leather, for all ages; and children's boots with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

Poetry.

THE MASONIC APRON.

By Bro. William Carpenter, P.M. and P.Z.

The badge we wear is no reproach,
It speaks with meaning, good and wise,
Suggesting thoughts of utmost worth—
Thoughts that Masons ever prize.

Though innocence is ours no more,
Its symbol is not used in vain,
For all who wear it are reminded
That purity should be their aim.

As friendship's bond, too, it unites us,
Each to each, as friend and brother;
Forbidding all that would prevent Kindly help for one another.

From spot or stain let us preserve it,
And, with it, live a blameless life;
United in a bond of friendship,
And guarded 'gainst all feud and strife.

THE ART OF THINKING.—Too much stress cannot be laid on the fundamental importance of perfect command over thought. How many a student finds a lack of this power the chief hindrance to progress! How many a page must be re-read, how many a lesson conned over and over to compensate for lapses of thought! In the possession or absence of this power over mind lies the chief difference between mental strength and mental weakness. Some men think as a child plays with a hammer, striking little blows here, there, anywhere, at any object within reach. The action of a strong mind may be compared to the stone-breaker's sledge-hammer, dealing stubborn blows successfully upon one spot till the hard rock cracks and yields. The power to classify and arrange ideas in proper order, is one that comes more or less slowly to even the best of minds. In proportion as this faculty is strengthened, desultory and wasted efforts diminishes. When the mind acts, it acts to some purpose, and can begin where it left off without going over the whole ground again, to take up the threads of its ratiocinations. Concentration and system are thus seen to be the chief elements in the art of thinking. To cultivate the first, constant watchfulness to detect the least wandering, and the immediate exertion of the will to call back and hold the mind upon the subject under consideration, should be vigilantly exercised. To secure the latter, the practice of analyzing and considering the different parts of a subject, first separately, and then in their relations to each other, is a discipline to which every young mind should be subjected, and which, we are sorry to say, is much neglected in most English methods of instruction.

NOVELTY IN DRINKING IN AMERICA.—In New York they have recently developed a sudden taste for pure milk and cream. The old restaurants, with their alcoholic mixtures, are being forsaken by the citizens who "lunch down town," for less inebriating potations at the dairies. They repair in vast numbers to the new establishments, where they obtain milk and cream pure and sweet, served up with all kinds of fresh bread, grits, oatmeal puddings, fruits, &c. At some of these "dairies" from 1,500 to 2,000 persons now feed daily.

FAPULESS AS QUOTES FOR FEBRICS AND EPIDEMICS:—Whatever may be the causes of fever, diarrhoea, dysentery, and similar complaints, it is well ascertained that these diseases are rampant in summer, and it should be as well known that they can be safely and successfully subdued by Holloway's purifying preparations. Holloway's Ointment well rubbed over the entire abdomen, his Pills taken internally, and his dietary rules strictly observed, embrace the domestic and medical management of these diseases, which, when neglected, weaken, if they fail to prove fatal. These remedies remove the causes of complaint from the system and no sufferer whether his disease be chronic or acute, should despair till trial has been given to Holloway's Medicines.—ADVT.

FREEMASONRY IN IRELAND.

BY AN ENGLISH MASON.

Notwithstanding the increased facilities for intercommunication between Great Britain and Ireland, the process of fusing into one homogeneous nation the various races inhabiting our "tight little island," is by no means so rapid as some optimists would have us believe. It is true that we form a "United Kingdom," and that when the power of the British Empire is put forth, Saxon and Celt and Ancient Briton are as "one" in sustaining the honour of the old flag. But it is nevertheless incontestable that each section of the "Kingdom" retains national characteristics which distinguish it from the other sections, and in Freemasonry these points of divergence are peculiarly prominent.

The first thing that strikes the attention of an English Mason in the conduct of Masonic affairs in Ireland, is the absurd mystery in which the Order seems to be surrounded by the rulers of Irish Freemasonry. It is doubtless this careful avoidance of the light of day that adds force to the diatribes of Cardinal Cullen against secret societies in general and the Craft in particular, and if the motive for such reticence be, as is alleged, a desire to conciliate the Ultramontane party in Ireland, all we can say is that the attempt has miserably failed, and that a bolder policy should now be accorded at least the privilege of a trial. The Grand Lodge of Ireland possesses a code of laws of a rather primitive type; these laws are, however, about to be revised, and from the interest which the proposed revision has awakened generally, we have little fear that the narrow-minded prejudices of an oligarchical minority will be suffered to triumph by the enlightened many. For a number of years Freemasonry in Ireland has been nominally under the rule of the Duke of Leinster—we say nominally, because certain wire-pullers really control the whole Masonic system.

For example, the North of Ireland, where the Craft flourishes to an extent unparallel in other parts of the country, does not possess a single representative amongst the Grand Lodge Officers, and so great is the dissatisfaction, we are informed, in Belfast and other great northern Masonic centres with reference to this palpable injustice, that secession from the Dublin body is by no means removed from the bounds of possibility.

Personally the noble chief of Irish Masonry is respected by all parties, and his lifelong devotion to the Craft, will ever be held in grateful remembrance by his brother Masons.

Still, in these days of progress, even ancient lineage and lofty names must be tested by practical proofs, and it cannot be said that the venerable Duke of Leinster, a sixty year old Grand Master, is abreast of the times, or specially gifted to estimate the altered conditions under which Freemasonry works at the present day. Not to multiply instances, it will be sufficient to note that the noble Duke not long ago fell blindly into the trap so skilfully laid for the Masonic Templars by that very "Arch" Chancellor, Sir Patrick Colquhoun, who stands convicted, out of his own mouth, of the most flagrant forgetfulness of the courtesies which usually obtain amongst gentlemen.

In one respect there is an apparent cohesion in the several branches of Irish Freemasonry which demands a closer investigation. The Blue or Craft Masonry, the Red or Rite, the Black or Knight Templars, and the Ancient and Accepted Rite, are all acknowledged as integral portions of the Masonic Order.

So far so good, but the effect of this seeming consistency is marred when we find that none but those entitled to bear arms are admitted into the Rose Croix or Prince Mason's degree—a "ductio ad absurdum" for which if the degree be acknowledged to be Masonic, we can see neither rhyme nor reason.

The Masonic Female School in Dublin, is, we are well pleased to know, supported by the brethren, and its annual reunions, upon the occasion of the distribution of prizes to the children, are always attended by thousands of friends of both sexes.

A vigorous attempt is being made to establish a Masonic Boys' School, and some six or eight have already been elected; much of the credit of this praiseworthy movement is due to a brother who has also done good service in English Masonry, Bro. W. E. Gumbleton, Past Grand Deacon of England.

In fine, it appears to us, that with the introduction of broader and more comprehensive views of the mission of the Order, and with the infusion of a more progressive and liberal spirit into their councils, our brethren in Ireland will rank second to none, not only amongst the British sections of Freemasonry, but in the great family of the Craft, wheresoever dispersed.

ROYAL MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS—VISIT TO SALISBURY AND STONEHENGE.

To the "City of the Plain," with its own and neighbouring attractions, has the attention of the few pupils of our two institutions remaining during the summer vacation, been directed during the last fortnight, an invitation from Bro. Benjamin Head, a Vice-Patron, and a member of the House Committee of each, having been accepted, for a visit to Salisbury and Stonehenge.

No sooner was the intention communicated to the brethren at Salisbury, than arrangements were made, by means of which every facility was liberally and generously provided for securing the comfort and enjoyment of the party, and for furthering the objects in view.

At 10.30 the representatives of the two institutions met at Waterloo Station, where a special carriage had been engaged, and punctually at one o'clock they found themselves at Salisbury. Amongst them were Bros. Benjamin Head, Alfred Diaper, C. F. Matier (of Manchester), F. Binckes, &c., with Mrs. Matier, Mrs. and Misses Binckes, and Miss Kernot with her five young charges from the Girls' School, and eight pupils from Wood Green. The heat was greater than that of the summer solstice, but there was an innate strong conviction that a remedy was at hand for that and every other form of suffering, and such proved unmistakably to be the case. Bro. Horatio Ward, P.P.G.W. of Wilts; with Bros. Griffin, W.M.; and Perham, S.W., of the Elias de Dereham Lodge, were on the platform, by whom the travellers were escorted to the residence of Bro. Ward, where lunch on a most liberal scale was laid out at the expense of the members of the lodge, to which ample justice was done by young and (comparatively) old alike.

Refreshed and invigorated, guests and hosts, ladies and gentlemen, and brethren of the locality, proceeded to Stonehenge. Boots it to say how in the present condition of the political world, the sight of old Sarum elicited remarks on the past, and opinions favourable to the present; how on nearing the famed old "Druid's Head," recollections were evoked of notorious highwaymen who found retreat and shelter in its quaint recesses, the contrast between past and present being again allowed to be in favour of the latter; how the occupants of the leading vehicles found themselves in bitterness and disappointment whisked by "the Druid's" now hospitable door; while those in their wake, having suffered from a derived suffocation of dust, laughingly drew a comparison between the "wise and foolish," and honestly and justifiably re-refreshed in a manner to which a "Good Templar" could scarcely object; how the far-stretching plain itself, apparently boundless, and free from distinguishable landmarks, became an object of wonder to those, whose lines falling in more pleasant places, now surveyed it for the first time—a fitting prelude to the greater wonders which soon met their astonished gaze; these—with the unrestricted laugh, the innocent mirth—the harmless raillery, the sense of freedom inspired by the temporary escape from the trammels of the conventional life of society—can all be imagined more easily than described. At length the mighty monument of antiquity was reached—those massive, simple, stones, telling of an age to which the memory of man runneth not, pregnant with traditions, and each one breathing in calm, eternal, silence, an unexpressed language, more eloquent than the word-painting of the most gifted author. Whence came they? By whom and by what means brought and placed, to render by their grim and solemn magnificence, desolation more desolate? What their object? What the purpose of the wondrous fabric of which they formed a part? Let Messrs. Lillwood and Blake unfold their admirable diagrams, explain learnedly and lucidly—discourse argumentatively (as on this occasion they did most kindly, impressing their large auditory of friends, "strangers and pilgrims," from various localities, such as are ever found attracted to this shrine—with feelings of admiration, if not always of conviction) the mind and imagination of each student beholder will persist in working out formulæ of its own, and in forming conclusions in accordance with the school of thought or theology in which he may have been trained, or of historical investigation and archaeological study, which he may have pursued and adopted. Whether in the giant monolith we see traces of the ancient universal worship, or in the mighty trilithon recognise symbols of a faith not then understood none of ordinarily observant character can fail to be awed by their isolated sublimity, and to be led into meditations on these seeming evidences of an eternity of the past, not only painfully contrasting with his own ephemeral existence, but affording cheering consolation in the hope they inspire of an eternity in the future.

While indulging in these attractions, Mr. Lillwood has brought his lecture to a close, and assisted by his friend Mr. Blake, has carefully packed away the diagrams, and—proh pudor!—shall it be told, the remnants of—no matter what, by which the body has been sustained while the intellectual pabulum has been administered to the mind.

A drive through another route, most pleasantly diversified by wood and water, by sunny knoll and leafy grove—by pleasant villages with old churches, and fine quaint mansions, brings the party in an hour and a half to Salisbury again, and to its symmetrical and beautiful cathedral. On this there is only time for a hurried gaze, with a few minutes for a hasty inspection of the interior, much to the regret of all who would have well liked a lengthened sojourn, with a chance of their drinking in one half of the beauties unfolded at every step to their view.

Once more at the residence of Bro. Ward, (who this time dispenses the private hospitality of Mrs. Ward and himself, instead of, as in the morning, acting vicariously) and a liberal repast is again displayed, to the appetite for which the labours of the day have imparted an added zest.

The iron monster of the age soon gives note that the time for departure is at hand. Thanks are offered, good-byes are interchanged, amongst which it is pleasant to record au revoir is not forgotten, kindly wishes are expressed, the escort of the morning resumes its duty, the station is reached, seats are taken, and "that word that must be and hath been—farewell" is spoken, the living freight moves on, in due course arrives at Waterloo. Night has fallen, the "moon is up, by heaven a lovely eve!" the companions of the day separate, and the witching hour of twelve booms forth from innumerable steeples, and a delightfully happy day is done!

To the founder and originator of the treat, Bro. Head, to Mr. and Mrs. Ward, to the brethren of the Elias de Dereham Lodge, notably to the W.M. and S.W., Bros. Griffin and Perham, the utmost acknowledgments are due, and doubtless their best reward was found in the hearty enjoyment so unquestionably manifested by the various recipients of their kindness and generosity.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF HAMPSHIRE AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

On Tuesday, the 5th inst., the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight met, and a new lodge was consecrated. At noon, the hour fixed for the latter ceremony, there was a large attendance of the brethren at the Masonic Hall, St. Mary's-street, Portsmouth, where the new lodge—"United Service Lodge," No. 1428—is to be held.

The brethren marched in procession from the ante-room to the lodge-room, where the chair was taken by the R.W. Bro. W. W. Beach, M.P., Provincial Grand Master of Hants and the Isle of Wight, who was supported by V.W. Bro. J. R. Stebbing, D.P.G.M., and several of the Provincial Grand Officers. The Presiding Officer having appointed Bros. H. M. Emanuel, P.M., and F. Pineo, P.M., to act as Wardens pro. tem., the impressive ceremony was proceeded with in due Masonic form.

The R.W. Prov. G. Master briefly addressed the brethren, expressing a hope that the new lodge would tend to the advancement of the principles of their Order, and, ranging as it did among so many other lodges of eminent character in the neighbourhood, that it would be enabled to take example by them, and propagate the principles of their glorious Order. From the character of its members he had no doubt the lodge would be started under the most favourable auspices, and he trusted they would make it their especial duty to see that those who for the future joined it were animated by the same laudable wish as themselves to spread the benefits of the Order. When, before long, many of them had, as he trusted they would have, an opportunity of visiting the lodge, he hoped they might find that it was conducted in the same excellent, zealous manner that so many other lodges were in the province over which he had the supreme honour to rule.

The Prov. G. Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. E. Nepean, having offered a suitable prayer, the brethren of the new lodge were arranged in order in front of the R.W. Prov. G. Master, and the Acting Secretary, Bro. John R. Wilson, P.M., read the petition and warrant for the new lodge, which is to meet on the second Friday in every month, after which the members signified their approval of the officers named in the petition and warrant in Masonic form.

An oration on the nature and principles of the institution was to have been delivered by the P.G. Chaplain, but at the last moment the V.W. Bro. J. R. Stebbing, D.P.G.M., was called upon to perform that duty, which he kindly did and with his usual ability. The nature and principles of Freemasonry were, he said, to love one another. Its great characteristics were brotherly love, relief, and truth. Masonry was universal. The nations, the peoples, the tribes who, from the earliest days to the present, had been associated in Masonry had been associated in one universal brotherhood, and the man was not a Mason, although he might have taken the obligations, although he might have associated with his brethren in lodges, although he might have given strong proofs of Masonic lore, until he had learnt the great lesson "love one another." Masonry did not consist of this lodge, this province, or this country; Masonry covers the whole earth, as the waters cover the sea, indeed

Its roots run under every sea,
It blooms on every shore.

Masonry was of no creed, or language, or people of no sect, of no politics, and had, or ought not, to have any prejudices. Man to man, foot to foot, hand to hand, should be the pledge of brotherhood, and the heart should be attuned to the most genuine principles taught by the Creator, and cultivated in the breast of everyone who bowed down in adoration to the Great First Cause. To do good to his fellow creatures, to be kind to those who despitefully used him, to defend a brother in his absence as you would do in his presence, should be the universal characteristics of Masons, for looking beyond the divisions which separated one country from another, and people of one language or origin from those of another, they had in view the universal purpose which adorned and hallowed the brethren of the mystic tie and could well exclaim

Ten thousand, thousand are our tongues,
But all our joys are one.

He need not enunciate these sentiments before a lodge of the character of that now constituted, because he learned from its title that it was a lodge of the united services; it embraced men who had fought for their country, defended the land of their birth, had been forward in support of liberty in every part of the globe, and from whom would go forth other men to do the great work of civilisation, and who would be better calculated to do it if within their hearts they had the principles of brotherly love, the great teaching of Masonry, and the practice of charity, the glorious cement of their institution, as it had been justly called, that made them not only kindly affectioned to those of the household of faith, but looked even to the outer world and practised benevolent designs, raising the afflicted from the dust, succouring those in distress, and doing good to all mankind, whether they were members of their mystic Craft or not. They were joined together in an ancient institution, so ancient that not only the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, but neither his Biblical nor his antiquarian research had enabled him to fix a period at which Masonry first dawned upon the world. They had the great traditions of their Order, which told them that whenever Masonry had been spoken of, it had been spoken of as an ancient institution. It seemed never to have had any youth, except that youth in which it would flourish unimpaired, until they forgot their principles, and were unfaithful to the obligation which they took on themselves when they joined an order, which cast honour on all men, and upon which he hoped they would cast no dishonour. If brethren wished to maintain the high character of Masonry, and hand it down untarnished from age to age, and from year to year, they must strive to remember these things. It was their boast that, by the special favour of the Great Architect of the Universe, Masonry existed in the earliest days of creation; Masonry lent the ability and the talent that decorated that great temple which gave so much delight and satisfaction to the early world; in those early days Masonry inculcated the rightful worship of Almighty God, and caused them to bow down to the one great cause; it lavished many blessings on the people. Masonry was a great thing in olden times and it would continue to be so if they did their duty to their Creator, loved one another, were faithful to their trust, observed secrecy, did kindnesses to their enemy, loved them who persecuted them, and helped the erring brother. They must not think that mere charity was everything, that almsgiving was merely the spending their superfluous cash, for the man that had little wealth could help a brother in trouble, in a way that money could not, by a kind word in season. They must remember that something more than mere wealth blessed human nature, warmed the heart of the generous brother, and caused him to help his neighbour and friend in times of trouble, and cheerfully to extend his charity when mere charity only was required. Masonry sought to uphold the great moral truths of all religious teaching; it was not religious teaching, it was not religion, and must never be thought to be its substitute. Many, very many, wisely extended their belief and submission far beyond the faith of the ancient people, and all could grandly and sublimely adopt the language of the poet, and exclaim—

Father of all! in every age,
In every clime ador'd
By saint, by savage, and by sage,
Jehovah, Jove, or Lord.

If there was any religion in Masonry, it was this, which did not divide men. Here they could not talk of distinctions of creed, they met on common ground; they had one object, and one purpose, to love one another and to practice before the world the greatest principles ever taught to man (except those higher principles in that Sacred Book, which he would not venture to touch upon) the principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth. These were the principles of Masonry, and he exhorted them so to act that when they came to their death-bed and had to think of a life well or ill-spent they might be able to say—"I have striven to fulfil my obligation; I die at peace with all the world, I have tried to love my brethren, I hope my last days will be peaceful and happy, and that when with greater aid than ever these can give, I go to the Grand Lodge above I may not be marked out as one unfaithful to the cause, but join in one universal brotherhood, where happiness, peace and truthfulness, clarity and benevolence, shall reign for ever."

The first part of the dedication prayer was then offered, followed by the invocation, by the Prov. G.M., after which the Chaplain read Chronicles, 2nd book, chap. ii., 1st to 16th verses.

The lodge was constituted by the Prov. G.M., after which a hymn—"Great source of light and love," was sung.

The lodge having been resumed in the second degree, Bro. Captain Trower, P.M., was installed as W.M. of the new lodge, after some very complimentary remarks from the Prov. G.M., which were richly merited (the W.M. having taken great interest in the establishment of the new lodge, and most generously supplied, at his own cost, the collars and jewels for the officers), the W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—

Bros. Tuohy, I.P.M.; J. R. Wilson, S.W. John McDonagh J.W.; T. Mears, Treasurer; Holmes, P.M., Secretary; H. Townshead, S.D.; W. Willmore, J.D.; W. Miller, I.G.; Esell, Tyler.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was to have been held at the Southsea Assembly Rooms at one o'clock, but in consequence of the time occupied in the consecration of the new lodge, business did not commence until an hour later, when the Provincial Grand Master took the chair, supported by the D. Prov. Grand Master and a number of Past Provincial Grand Officers.

Considerable time was spent in the discussion of the report of the Charities' Committee, recommending a scheme for utilising the votes of the various lodges, and eventually, with some amendments, it was agreed to.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer's accounts, shewing a balance of several hundred pounds, which had been duly audited, were submitted, after which Bro. Captain Hooper, P.G.S. Warden, proposed the re-election of Bro. M. E. Frost as Prov. Grand Treasurer, which was seconded by Bro. Eve, Prov. G.S. Warden, who said they could not have a better officer than Bro. Frost, who had discharged his duties so well for many years, and they were much obliged to him for his services. (Applause.) The resolution was carried by acclamation, and the Provincial Grand Master said he could only express their gratitude to Bro. Frost for the very efficient and zealous services which he had given them for the benefit of for so many years.

The Prov. G. Treasurer briefly returned thanks.

The committee for auditing the Prov. G. Treasurer's accounts and the committee for managing the Prov. G. Lodge funds having been appointed, the Provincial Grand Master appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—

D. Prov. G. Master Stebbing said a suggestion had been made that it would be better to have a winter meeting, at which business might be transacted.

The Prov. G. Master promised that he would consult as to what would be the most convenient time for holding the meeting, and if it was the general wish that it should be held, he would make the most convenient arrangement for holding it.

D. Prov. G. Master Stebbing said they had lost, during the last few weeks, the near relatives of three very distinguished Masons in Hampshire. The first he would mention was Bro. the Rev. —Pettat, who was a relative of their Prov. G. Master, and whose kindness of manner endeared him to every one in the province. They had also had the misfortune to lose a very illustrious dignitary of the Church, the Bishop of Winchester, and his son was an active Mason at Southampton. There was a special reason why he should mention the late bishop, because although he was not a Mason, when they held the centenary of the Royal Gloucester Lodge at Southampton, and they could not get access to their parish church, St. Mary's Church was placed at their disposal, and the Bishop wrote the special service for the day. The D. Prov. G. Master further referred to the bereavement sustained by Bro. Hickman, one of the Prov. G. Secretaries, in the loss of his wife, and which deprived them of his presence that day, and moved that a vote of condolence be sent to the relatives of the two first-named and to Bro. Hickman, which was seconded by Bro. H. M. Emanuel and carried.

The Grand Lodge was shortly afterwards closed in due Masonic form.

At five o'clock a number of brethren partook of a cold collation at the Portland Hall, under the presidency of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, the vice-chairs being occupied by the newly appointed Wardens. The splendid band of the Royal Marine Light Infantry, under the direction of Herr Kreyer, was stationed in the balcony, and played some choice selections during the evening.

The Provincial Grand Master, in giving "The Queen and Craft," said if there was one class more loyal to the throne than another it was the Freemasons of England. They had two reasons for this. They were, in the first place, prompted by that loyalty which, as Englishmen, they owed to their Sovereign, and as Freemasons they were taught to obey those in authority.

The Provincial Grand Master next proposed "The Most Worshipful the Right Honourable the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., Grand Master." They had during the year to mourn the loss of one who presided over them for more than a quarter of a century, who for that period reigned in the hearts of Freemasons, and obtained from them that love and affection which was acquired by a long life spent in doing his duty, and by having attached himself to the principles of the Order they loved. By the death of the Earl of Zetland they lost a brother whom they all esteemed and revered. He was sure that when the loss of that nobleman was announced to them, full of years as he was, a poignant sense of grief pierced the heart of every true brother, and the mourning in which for a period of six months every lodge throughout the country was placed would evince that they duly revered him and were duly sensible of the loss they had sustained. In the present Grand Master they had indeed a worthy successor of him. They had one who was able to rule their Craft with that firmness and decision which should characterise a Grand Master, with that zeal and attachment to the Order which he should also evince, and also with that courtesy which should distinguish every brother who aspired to rule over such a widely extended and important body of men.

The Provincial Grand Master next gave "Bro. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, P.G.M." He was esteemed by them all, and he was sure he was ready to discharge his duties in Freemasonry with zeal and ability. He was certain, from the interest the Prince of Wales took in Freemasonry, no doubt need be entertained that they should always find him a firm supporter. He did not shun trouble, but was ready to come forward on every occasion where the interests of the Order were concerned. They knew full well that when one of their grand Masonic charities needed a brother to preside at its anniversary festival the Prince of Wales came forward and lent his name and position to the great assemblage which then took place.

Bro. J. Rankin Stebbing, D. Prov. G.M., then said he had to claim their attention for a few moments whilst he proposed to them a toast as dear to them as any that had been proposed. It was in a spirit of loyalty to those distinguished persons whose healths had been proposed that they would drink to the health of one in authority under them—that was their revered and beloved Provincial Grand Master. (Loud Applause.) They might rejoice indeed that they had a brother of such distinction presiding in this province, for whilst he held a distinguished position as a country gentleman, he was a true working Mason, always accessible to the brethren and the lodges, and was ready to take part in their ceremonies, setting them an example in the accuracy and care with which those ceremonies were rendered, and in the urbanity and kindness which a Master should always exhibit. He was distinguished not only in his own person, but in the name which he inherited, for he had the right sort of father before him, whose name was dear to many old residents in Hampshire. They had in the son the additional advantage of his being a brother Mason. They had only to go into his immediate neighbourhood to find what they thought of him. Whether it was the humblest labourer on his estate or the proudest gentleman who sat beside him, he was hospitable, kind and noble-minded. He was happy to say he assembled a large number of Oddfellows and Foresters in his park on the previous day—people engaged in the same philanthropic work as themselves, and their Grand Master was amongst them, cultivating those neighbourly feelings, and that brotherly love so akin to his warm-hearted temperament. Whatever position he was placed in he dignified, and every man liked to call him his friend. (Applause.)

The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm.

The Provincial Grand Master, in responding, said it gave him the very greatest pleasure to come amongst them, and to have the opportunity of thanking them for that Masonic feeling which they had shown to him on every occasion he had met them. It was indeed with feelings of proud satisfaction that he had the honour to rule over this important province, and he could assure them that from the first moment he was appointed he resolved that if he possibly could he would do his best to earn the confidence of his brethren. (Hear, hear.) He knew full well that, considering the extreme importance of the province, and the vast number of brethren who ranged under its banner, it was extremely difficult for a Grand Master to do all that was in his heart. He ought to attend to a meeting of every lodge in his province. But how could he do that, with, in this province, no less than twenty-seven lodges? However much he might wish to do so in the year, it was quite impossible, first because if they counted a certain number of lodges in one year it formed no criterion of the number there would be the next year. A few years only had elapsed since he had had the honour of presiding over them, and yet during that time a number of new lodges had sprung into existence. He had never concealed his opinion that it was of no importance for lodges to come into existence unless the members were imbued with those zealous Masonic feelings which should inspire a firm confidence of success, but he believed he might say that every lodge he had had the pleasure of constituting had attained a considerable reputation, and the brethren had been imbued with that Masonic feeling which had enabled them to carry the lodge to that pitch which every Mason would wish. He had no doubt that the lodge he had the pleasure of constituting that day would be no exception, and that from the auspices under which it had been constituted it would attain the same reputation as other lodges which he had had the pleasure of constituting. He should have the greatest pleasure in coming down to attend a lodge in that part of the province on a future occasion. He regretted that he had not at the present moment the opportunity of staying among them as long as he should like, but it was from no fault of his, but from the business having occupied so much time. He hoped, however, that arrangements would be made before long for holding another meeting, at which they would have the opportunity of meeting around the social board, and when he would not be hurried away in the very perfunctory manner he was obliged to be on the present occasion. He begged to thank the brethren of the Provincial Grand Lodge, but he believed his thanks were more immediately due to the brethren of the Portsmouth Lodges. He knew he had not had an opportunity of meeting them quite so often as he should have liked, but he could only say it was his earnest wish to promote the prosperity of their lodges to the utmost of his power. He could not refrain from observing that one of the earliest Masonic ceremonies he was called upon to perform, in a public capacity, was to represent their late Grand Master, Admiral Sir Lucius Curtis, in constituting the United Brothers Lodge. He should never forget the warm and kindly reception he met with, in conjunction with the Grand Master, and he trusted that the work then inaugurated had produced worthy fruit. The Provincial Grand Master then retired amidst the hearty plaudits of the brethren, and the chair was taken by Bro. J. R. Stebbing, D. Prov. G.M.

Bro. Dr. Diver, P. Prov. G.M. Bombay, briefly gave "The Right Worshipful the Earl of Carnarvon, Deputy Grand Master, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge," and the D. Prov. G.M., as one of the officers of the Grand Lodge, responded.

Bro. Eve, P. Prov. G.S.W. Hants, said they had an excellent Provincial Grand Master, who thoroughly understood the principles of their Order, and who was desirous of doing the utmost he could to further those principles, for the benefit of the Craft in general, and of the province in particular. But he had never shown his ability more than in selecting the brother on his right (Bro. Stebbing). He could not have made a better choice, or one that fell in more with the feelings of all the brethren. As long as he had known the province he had always the name of Stebbing within his ears when anything in the shape of Masonry was thought or spoken of. For years past he had exerted himself to the utmost to promote the interests of Masonry in the province. Not only had he brought his will to bear upon it, but he had in himself the inherent capacity for giving effect to that will, and perfecting it as they had heard to-day. He had the peculiar faculty of making his voice heard and his sentiments felt, and of doing that amount of good which only man of his capacity could. Not only in Hants, but in London, and other parts of the country he was well known. His feelings for Masonry they could all appreciate. The spontaneous effusion of his that day was sufficient to glow the heart of any brother. It showed that he had the full spirit and feeling of Masonry in him, when he was able, on the spur of the moment, to deliver that grand oration. He then gave "The Worshipful J. R. Stebbing, Past Grand Deacon, Deputy Provincial Grand Master," and said he was sure they would receive it in such a manner as to show that they not only appreciated his abilities and his willingness to serve them, but the good work which he had actually done.

Bro. J. R. Stebbing, D. Prov. G.M., who was greeted with repeated rounds of applause, said he felt this was a compliment paid him, when after many roving years he visited his native town, the place of his earliest and happiest associations, and, wherein and in connection wherewith, if he added the Masonic career of his good old father to his own, they should make up very nearly a hundred years devoted to Masonry, and perhaps the most useful part of either his father's life or his own. When he recollected that Masonry was reconstructed from its ancient character in 1717, and that he appeared there to-day connected with a family that had been associated with Masonry for more than half the period that had expired since that time, (and if he were to add to that other family associations with Masonry, he would make 150 years' connection of the name of Stebbing with the Order) of all things he had been connected with nothing was more cheering than to be able to look back upon a long period, not of honours and wealth, but of connection with that brother, the most noble and illustrious and the most useful the world had ever seen. He ventured in the lodge that day to say something of the ancient character of Freemasonry, and it was not his intention to go over the same ground again, but he might be permitted to speak with pride and pleasure of their ancient institution. A great deal had been said during the last few years by historians and antiquarians in connection with the Order, but they should never lose sight of the fact that Masonry was always an ancient institution, and if they looked back to the records of 1717, which some foolish men had fixed as the date of the origin of Freemasonry, they would find that the men who then assembled fresh from the work of building St. Paul's Cathedral, which was carried on some 40 years anterior, were presided over by that great Mason Sir Christopher Wren, who was an old Grand Master of that day. The Book of Constitutions of 1723 spoke of the old records of Masonry, and in the grand old song which they sang with so much delight, they said:

Antiquity's pride we have on our side,
Which maketh men just in their station:

and, therefore, when that song was written it was not written in connection with a new institution. They should never forget these old associations, and when men talked and rushed into print, propounding strange doctrines and talking much nonsense, and fixing a date or age for Masonry, they could tell them it was a giant in age and a glorious thing in antiquity. There were great things in tradition, and go where they might they found that every nation, tribe, and people had traditions in which there was a great amount of truth, and the old history of countries, arithmetic, grammar, logic, music, and other such things had a connection with the ancient society of which they were the happy depositaries and the fortunate associates. In the middle ages those ancient rites and curious practices, of which they had a knowledge but to despise, many were they knew taken from the Masonic institution. In ancient times they found in Masonry the same high relations to truth, the same devotion to those principles that made them rejoice in their institution, which would live for ever, if they only practised its sacred dictates, and they might say of Masonry

Her monuments may fade away,

Her truth and social love shall ne'er decay
Temples might vanish, palaces might be destroyed, the most glorious buildings in the world might be lost, but in the truth and justice of their Order, in brotherly love, relief, and truth, in being kind to one another and setting an example to the outer world, Masonry would endure, new in its beauties, and lovely in the old past that had gone. They should never forget to reverence things that were old. He recollected hearing a man, on such an occasion as this, say, "Ah, I like old things. I like everything that is antique and beautiful to reflect upon," when some wag remark, "You like old women." The reply was, "Yes, I love my dear old mother." (Applause.) Let them never forget the recollections of their mother in Masonry and in life (a phrase that his brother Masons would understand), and it would keep them right. It had been his fortune to read the book of life and other books a little, to be mixed up with many troubles and to have many cares during a long career, and he was now hastening to the other shore. He could say with great truth and honesty, after nearly forty years in Masonry, that it had been a comfort and happiness to him under every care, and when occupying positions to which the confidence and kindness of his fellow townsmen had elevated him, nothing had given him such adamant strength as having a Mason to lean upon, and knowing that he would defend a brother in his absence as in his presence.

Bro. R. Stebbing, D.P.G.M., next gave "The Visitors," coupled with the name of Bro. Jesse Owens, Secretary of Hanwell Lunatic Asylum, who, with two other visiting brothers, responded.

Bro. Leigh Baily, W.M. 257, gave "The Wardens and Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge." He proposed the toast with the greatest pleasure, because it gave him the opportunity of thanking the Prov. G.M. for the honour conferred upon his own lodge, which was one of the oldest in the province, and had been the cradle of many excellent and worthy Masons.

Bro. the Hon. Somerset Calthorpe, Prov. G.S. Warden, responded. He felt that he held the office, certainly not from any merit of his own, but because he had reason to believe that the Provincial Grand Master wished to pay a compliment to the brethren of the Isle of Wight. He believed it was well known to them all that until quite lately the brethren of the Island thought proper not to join the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hampshire, and he was sure that now they had come to a sense of what he thought was due to them and to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hampshire they would for the future pull most cordially together, and he felt it an especial pleasure that it should devolve upon him to be the first, on an occasion like the present, to return thanks, as one of the Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge. Speaking for himself and his brethren, he could say it would be their endeavour, as far as their abilities would permit them, to assist in all the onerous duties that devolved on the Grand Lodge, and he was sure they should always, during the year of office, by punctual attention to their duties, endeavour in every way in their power to assist and promote the welfare of Masonry in general.

Bro. H. Cawte, Prov. G. J. Warden, also responded. He had not the honour of being so distinguished a brother as the preceding speaker, but it had been his study and endeavour to carry out those principles which at his initiation were instilled into his mind, and so long as the Great Architect of the Universe gave him health it would always be his wish and anxiety to do that which would not only be an honour to himself but to the society to which he had the pleasure to belong. It had been the great desire of his life to do all he could that should promote not only the success of Freemasonry in general, but also of those Masonic charities of which they as Masons felt so justly proud.

Bro. Rake proposed "The Past Wardens and Past Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge," to which Bro. Frost, Prov. G. Treasurer, and Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, Prov. G. Secretary, responded.

Bro. Ubsdell gave "The Lodges of the District and the Province," to which Bros. Legh Bailey and Capt. Trower responded.

"The Masonic Charities" (proposed by Bro. De Fraine, P.G.S.D.), "The Press" (proposed by Bro. G. S. Lancaster, W.M. 497, and acknowledged by Bro. G. L. Green); "The Ladies," (responded to by Bro. L. Emanuel), and "All Poor and Distressed Masons" were subsequently given, the proceedings being agreeably varied with some capital songs.

Original Correspondence.

JACHIN AND BOAZ.

To the Editor of The Freemason

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reference to J.C., permit me to say that there is a passage in Josephus (Ant. viii., chap. 3, verse 36), which shows, as I formerly stated on an article in the Temple of Solomon, that the left side of the porch was what would be on the right, if we suppose ourselves going up from the East Courts towards the Temple proper.

He says Solomon set five lions "on the left side of the temple, which was that side next the north wind;" whence it follows, that Jachin was on the south, against our left hand, on approaching the porch, and Boaz on the north, against our right hand. I think most people conceive erroneously of the situation of the pillars.

Yours fraternally,
WILL. CARPENTER.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE AND THE ANCIENT AND ACCEPTED RITE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I shall feel obliged if you can find me space for a few remarks on Bro. Holmes's letter in The Freemason of 19th.

I am, like Bro. Holmes, a member of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and of the Order of the Temple, and am not quite prepared to account for the tone of the letter published in your magazine, and supposed to be written by Sir Patrick Colquhoun. There may be differences of opinion even in high quarters, but whether of that importance to warrant severe words between themselves is a matter with which we have nothing to do, and I very much question the good taste of publishing any words, or letters, that may have been uttered or written privately.

I fully believe in the soundness of that foundation held by the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and I quite as fully believe in the singleheartedness of Sir Patrick Colquhoun, with reference to the Order of the Temple, I believe this Order is very largely indebted to him for the uninterested devotion he has paid to it. I know he has refused honours in it that most would have been glad to have accepted, and I believe he only desires to promote the true interests of Freemasonry, though perhaps particularly, the Order of the Temple.

I am quite of Bro. Holmes's opinion, that a great deal of nonsense has been talked and written about the Order of the Temple, by those who should first have made themselves a little better acquainted with the facts of the matter.

May I then, as a very humble member, advise all who have taken a prominent part in the controversy (for it is not argument) to ask themselves whether they are, by the style they have adopted, doing Masonic work, or pulling down the work that others have laboured in love to erect, and whether they have been anxious to pull out the mote, from a brother's eye, forgetting the beam in their own.

Let us all rather try to work together, forgetting our little selves, and endeavour to assist in the grand work of bringing all orders of Freemasonry to work in harmony, and though each order managing its own concerns, yet to work under one grand head.

Surely this is Masonic, or I have misunderstood the spirit of what I have delighted in for many years.

I am, yours fraternally,
EXCELSIOR.

K.H.S. AND ST. JOHN.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

From your report of the Grand Council I find it has been determined that under certain restrictions Provincial Conclaves may be permitted to work the degrees of K.H.S., and St. John, on payment of 10s. 6d. to the Council for every installation.

I venture to think that this is a mistake, and that it will have the effect of stopping the general working of these degrees; it appears to me that a smaller fee for registration would amply meet the case, and that this should certainly not exceed that charged for the Red Cross degree itself, viz. 5s.

I always understood that these degrees were appendant to the Red Cross, and indeed in America they are uniformly worked by all Red Cross Conclaves and no extra fees are charged; surely it is desirable to encourage the working of these degrees, and not to stifle them by unreasonable fees. I trust it may yet not be too late for the Grand Council to re-consider their decision.

Yours truly,
ALPHA.

SPIRITUALISTS.

(To the Editor of The Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You will not take offence if I say that you have been rash in pronouncing judgment upon the Spiritualists in the last Freemason, and especially as some of the most eminent amongst your brethren and readers are included in that judgment. I do not desire to detract, in the least degree, from all that has been said in praise of the mechanism constructed and employed by Maskelyne and Cooke; but when you write that the illusions exhibited through this "should put down the pretensions of the Spiritualists," you speak "without book," and place yourself amongst those who "see a little, presume a good deal, and jump to a conclusion." Pardon my saying that you can know very little of Spiritualism, or you would have made no such confession as you have made. Spiritual manifestations are not dependent upon mechanical contrivances, or clever manipulations, as you should have known before writing your condemnatory judgment upon those who—I was going to write, believe in them, but I should write—who know them. Do you happen to know that £1000 is an offer to Messrs. Maskelyne and Cooke, or to any other illusionist, who will produce the phenomena daily witnessed by Spiritualists, and that no one of them will accept the offer? Do you think we have not a right to challenge you to the proof of your assertion that Maskelyne and Cooke "perform by simple dexterity and sleight of hand the feats hitherto professedly accomplished by Spiritual agency?" You would be desperately put to it if you were to have such a challenge, and attempt the proof. I repeat, your pronounced judgment is a rash one; and I might add, is an insult to the understanding of many of your friends and brethren.

I am, yours fraternally,
WILL. CARPENTER.

[The above has been handed to the writer of the notice, to which he makes the following reply.—Ed. Freemason.]

(To the Editor of The Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read the remarks of Bro. Wm. Carpenter, which were evoked by my brief notice of the performance of Messrs. Maskelyne and Cooke, at the Egyptian Hall.

I little thought that my humble pen would have brought me into a controversy with a brother for whose literary labours, both in and out of Freemasonry, I have ever entertained the greatest admiration. With a writer of such ability and profound erudition, I do not feel competent to "break a lance." I must admit, at the outset, that, although I am a firm disbeliever in the pretensions of the Spiritualists, I have never seen any of these manifestations, but have taken my stand from the published descriptions of the feats of Spiritualistic media, as furnished by themselves, or by believers in their veracity.

I had formed the impression that the principal supporters (for the Spiritualists do not disdain to make money by their mysteries) were weak-minded elderly ladies, and other persons with but a limited knowledge of natural science, a little study of which, in my mind, is sufficient to demonstrate the absurdity of the pretensions of the Spiritualists.

The only way of accounting for the dancing of inanimate matter in the form of tables, chairs, sofas, &c., and the ariel flights of similar articles, would be a suspension of the laws of nature and the annihilation for the time of the laws of gravitation. These we know, to some extent, can be effected by means of galvanism, electricity, and other ingenious applications of natural phenomena.

I can, in every description of the "manifestations" at the seances (although my knowledge of natural science is not sufficient to enable me to account for all the phenomena), see some resemblance to the tricks of conjurers and wizards, and the various scenic effects lately produced as ghostly illusions, by means of reflectors of plate-glass, &c.

Bro. Carpenter says that "Spiritual manifestations are not dependant upon mechanical contrivances or clever manipulations;" but I have it in my recollection that at the seances of Messrs. Davenport Bros. they employed "mechanical contrivances" in the shape of specially constructed cabinets; and, from reading the descriptions at the time, the rope tying, undressing and dressing with floured hands, playing of musical instruments, &c., conveyed impressions to my mind which were exactly realised on witnessing the clever manifestations of Messrs. Maskelyne and Cooke.

As to the offer of £1000 to any one who can "produce the phenomena daily witnessed by the Spiritualists," I have only to remark that offers of wagers are not a very erudite argument in settling controversies. It is somewhat like the American game at cards, at which he who has the worst hand sometimes wins, because he has the most money—and audacity.

I do not know the terms upon which the £1000 are offered, but as Bro. Carpenter not only believes in Spiritual manifestations, but knows them to be genuine, I should have expected a better argument from him than the mention of an offer of a wager as a proof of their genuineness.

In reply to the concluding paragraph of his letter, I am rather surprised that Bro. Carpenter, who has taken part in so many discussions in your columns with such great ability, should take my few remarks as "an insult to the understanding" of those who hold a contrary opinion. I can assure him that they were written without any such intention on my part.

I remain, yours fraternally,

THE WRITER OF THE NOTICE.

OPENING OF A NEW MASONIC HALL IN GLASGOW.

Monday, August the 11th, will be a very memorable day in the history of the Glasgow Lodge Star, No. 219, the members of which some time past determined to obtain a hall of their own. This laudable object they have carried into effect by taking a lease of some large premises at No. 12, Trongate, in the very centre of Glasgow, which they have converted into one of the most convenient lodge-rooms in the city. The hall itself is a spacious apartment, well adapted for the purpose, while the reception, preparing, and Stewards'-room, and the adjuncts are all that can be desired. There are, also, smaller rooms adapted for the purposes of the higher orders, the whole being fitted and furnished in a truly Masonic style.

The P. G. Master, Bro. W. M. Neilson, being on the Continent, the ceremony of constitution was deferred, and the lodge opened by dispensation, so that the working might continue, the lodge having given up their old premises. It was accordingly opened by the following officers:—Bros. Joseph Wilson, R.W.M.; C. S. Atson, D.M., Acting Master; W. Anderson, S.M.; J. M. Davidson, P.M.; J. A. Logan, Acting S.W.; J. Garth, J.W.; J. McKing, Treasurer; J. Morgan, Sec.; J. White, Chaplain; R. Rinwil, S.W.; G. Miller, J.W.; Jas. Duthie, P.G.S.; Jas. Perston, S.S.; J. Gardner, D.S.

On this were Bros. J. Tweed, M.D., Mother Kilwinning No. 2; J. Gaities, P.M. 125; P.G.I.G.; W. Bain, P.G.B.B.; J. Collins, Acting W.M. 87; G. W. Wheeler, 73; J. Farrant, 459; D. Bell, R.W.M. 465; Rev. J. Bain, Chaplain Star of India, 342; and the Rev. J. Wilson.

In the hall were 150 visiting brethren, comprising deputations from every lodge in the province.

Bro. A. W. Banks presided at the harmonium and Bro. Robert Fraser conducted the singing at the opening. After this had been formally done the following six gentlemen, at the request of the R.W.M., were initiated by Bro. Gillies, P.G.I.G., viz.:—Messrs. Allen, J. Disher, Christie, Bronn, Yule, and Sheldon. The ceremony was ably rendered, but owing to the crowded state of the hall at that period the heat was intense; at its close means were taken to procure more ventilation, and the only drawback to the enjoyment of the evening removed. The R.W.M., Bro. Wilson, who had only just reached town, then took the chair, and the lodge was called from labour to refreshment.

The R.W.M., while congratulating the lodge on the fortunate completion of the work in preparing the hall, regretted that the state of his health would not allow him to adequately thank the kind brethren of the sister lodges for coming in such numbers to assist them in thus opening a new Masonic Hall.

The following toasts were then proposed, "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," responded to by Bro. Gillies, P.G.I.G. "The Six Initiates," to which Bros. Wm. A. Allen and Christie, replied on behalf of their companions. Bro. the Rev. J. Wilson in feeling terms gave the "Memory of the Illustrious Men who have filled the Chair of the Star Lodge." Bro. Bain, P.G.B.B., in a humorous speech, gave "Prosperity to the Star Lodge and the Health of its R.W.M." Bro. Wilson replied, thanking the visitors for their good wishes, and proposed "Prosperity to the various Deputations from the other Lodges," every lodge in the province being represented there that night. Bro. Carron, P.M. of No. 87, replied. The S.W. gave "The Past Masters of the Lodge," Bro. Aitken replied. The R.W.M. having given the last toast, called the lodge back to labour. He then said that the Star Lodge would be wanting in their duty to themselves if they did not bestow honouring affiliation on Bros. Fraser and Banks for the valuable service they had rendered in the musical department.

The lodge was then closed, all being highly pleased with the evening's proceedings. Bros. Price, Collins, Fraser, Carron, and Brown, also contributed to the harmony of the evening.

There are in connection with the College THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS, open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.

The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections, in the

PREPARATORY SCHOOL

(entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station: is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D., F.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners: Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. Routledge, Esq., B.S.F.C.S., Manchester; also the Protestant Clergy, Nobility, and Professional Gentlemen (parents of present pupils) in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, Bognor, Preston, Banbury, Chester, Lancaster, Bolton (Lancashire), Wigan, Harrogate, Accrington, Haslingden, Kendal, Southport, Formby, &c., and various other towns: the Continent of Europe, the Colonies, New York, and the United States, Brazil, Cuba, &c., who can bear ample testimony to the merits and success of this College.

Next term commences the 7th August, 1873.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC

COUGH ELIXIR

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest.

* * * Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

EUPHRATES LODGE (No. 212).—Favoured by fine weather the summer banquet of the Euphrates Lodge, took place at the Bald Faced Stag Hotel, Buckhurst Hill, (Bro. Henry Lock's) on Wednesday, the 13th inst. There was a goodly company of ladies and gentlemen assembled, all bent upon enjoying the day as much as possible. The W.M., Bro. Thomas Hammond, presided at the banquet, assisted by his two Wardens, his J.D., and several Past Masters, among whom we must not forget the name of Sam. Watkins, P.M. and Treasurer, always doing his best to promote the interests of the lodge and of these jovial gatherings. The cloth being drawn, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily responded to, and interspersed with appropriate songs given by various brothers, amongst whom were Bros. Howell, Hill, and others. The company then adjourned to the dancing saloon, where dancing was kept up till a late hour. It suffices to say that the dinner was served in Bro. Henry Lock's usual style and that the ladies and gentlemen present left the hotel with the greatest satisfaction possible, having enjoyed a pleasant and happy day.

Knights Templar.

GLASGOW.—The St. Mungo Encampment met on Monday, August 18th, in St. Mark's Hall, the M.N.S., Sir Knight R. Bell, presiding, assisted by the following Sir Knights, J. Tweed, D.E.C.; G. W. Wheeler, Recorder, Acting Prelate; M. Clanachan, C.C.; and J. Johnson, as M.; Comp. Lentitt, Scribe E. of Chapter 50, was proposed and unanimously elected as a suitable candidate for the Order. The nomination of officers was then proceeded with, Sir Knight Wheeler proposed Sir Knight R. Bell, as Most Eminent Commander for the ensuing year; they were all so well acquainted with the peculiar fitness of that gentleman for the arduous post, they had seen so many proofs of his proficiency in the past, that he was sure they would unanimously re-elect him to fill the chair this year. Sir Knight Bell, while deeply grateful to all the friends present, wished to be relieved of the responsibilities of the office, and would propose, as his successor, Sir Knight Wheeler, who was so well acquainted with the ritual, and was always at his post. Sir Knight Wheeler declined the honour, feeling sure that it would conduce more to the interest of the Order if their worthy E.C. would undertake these duties for the next year. They had adopted the ritual now prescribed by the Chapter General, and though quite willing to aid Sir Knight Bell, he would decline to take the office at present. T. Tweed was nominated as D.E.C.; J. Butler, as P.E.C.; J. E. Speirs, C.G.; G. W. Wheeler, Recorder; M. Clanachan, C.C.; G. M. Alister, S.C.; J. Douglas, J.C.; and J. Bates, Treasurer. The installation will take place on the 15th of Sept.

A committee of nine were appointed to seek a more suitable place of meeting for the ensuing year, and other routine business was transacted.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

EXETER.—Coryton and Rougemont Chapter H.R.D.M.—This chapter was held on the 24th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Exeter, Devonshire, when the following members of the Order attended:—Lieut. General H. E. Doherty, C.B., 33°. Inspector General of the Western District of England; P. H. Newnham, P.M.W.S., 32°; F. H. Woodforde, 32°; S. Jones, P.M.W.S., 30°; B. T. Hodge, M.D., M.W.S., 30°; W. H. Haycock, W. S. Passmore, H. Woodgates, M.D., T. David, T. Gardner, F. H. Huxtable, J. Moass, 18°, and others. The elections for the ensuing year resulted unanimously in favour of Bro. W. T. Passmore, 18°, as W.M.S., and Ill. Bro. S. Jones, P.M.W.S., 30°, as Treasurer. Bro. W. S. Passmore, 18°, was then duly presented by F. H. Woodforde, M.D., and installed in the chair of M.W.S. by Ill. Bro. S. Jones, 30°, and the following brethren received their appointments to the various offices:—R. Bowden, M.A., H. Prelate; J. Gould, 1st General; J. W. Keyworth, 2nd General; T. Dand, G. Marshal; W. H. Woodgate, M.D., Raphael; W. Hine Haycock, Capt. Guard; S. Jones, Treasurer; T. Grander, Registrar; H. Davey, Chamberlain; W. H. Reed, M.D., Almoner; J. J. Mackenzie, M.D., 1st Lieut. of Guard; F. H. Huxtable, 2nd Lieut. of Guard; R. R. G. Thomas, M.D., 1st Herald; F. Wood, 2nd Herald; A. S. Soper Hexter, Director of Ceremonies. A splendid diamond snake ring, and a beautifully illuminated vellum, with the subscribers' names, &c., upon it, was then presented to Ill. Bro. S. Jones, P.M.W.S., 30°, by Bro. W. Hine Haycock, who carried it on a very ancient silver plate belonging to the Masonic Hall, and, addressing the princes in his usual manner spoke as follows:—"Our Ill. Bro. Jones, as a small acknowledgment for his valuable services in resuscitating the Coryton and Rougemont Chapter, Rose Croix was recommended for and invested with the 30°. Is it not plain, therefore, that looking to what the Supreme Council awarded him as a distinctive mark of their approbation, we, the individual brethren of this comparatively humble branch of our Order, should recognize his claim to our regard and esteem. He has performed all the ceremonies of the Order since its resuscitation in Exeter, and been at considerable trouble, inconvenience, and expense, in arranging the paraphernalia. He has met the brethren on all occasions with that frankness and kindness which are so essentially his province, and at no time of the day during the hours of business or pleasure has he ever been known to refuse an immediate interview to a brother Mason to accord to him the advantage of his intimate knowledge, and advise in regard to all matters of Masonry, theoretical or practical. Ill. brother, when you quitted the chair last year, which you filled with so much credit to yourself and advantage to the other brethren, your left behind you the conscious attestation of the good services rendered to us all, you have set an example to your successors which they will do well to follow, and through all the varied phases of our association with you we have had continuous and increased cause to recognise the sincerity of purpose, devotion, brotherhood, and frequent exemplification of that real charity which are at once the main spring and the tide of our glorious creed. "Palman quit meruit ferat" will be most suitable as the inscription upon your ring, and though we are doubtless all familiar with Pope's hackneyed lines, I may well apply them here and say "Honour and shame from no conditions rise, act well your part there all the honour lies. Ill. Bro. Jones, P.M.W.S., 30° then rose and addressed the brethren, viz.:—Illustrious Brethren and Companions, it is with feelings of most profound gratitude I accept at your hands this handsome present and scroll, believing as I do, that it is intended on your part as an earnest of your kind and fraternal feelings towards me. There are occasions that occur in the lives of most of us, when the feelings which swell up from the bottom of one's heart are of such a nature that the tongue cannot find words to give utterance to them; such, believe me, my brethren, is the case with me at present. My esteemed and valued friend, Bro. Haycock, has in the generosity of his nature, brought my name before you in a manner far exceeding my deserts or that I could ever hope to deserve. If my humble endeavours to promote the good of our Order have met with your approval, that in itself indeed is a recompense to me in doing what has been a pleasure, and in the performance of the duties which have devolved upon me I have ever experienced the greatest gratification. Ever since I became a Master Mason it has been my anxiety to be admitted a member of the 18°, if deemed worthy, and finding when I thought I might fairly submit my name for approval I was admitted to the honour of fellowship of the Ancient and Accepted Rite in the Chapter at Bath, I then endeavoured to resuscitate it in our ancient and ever faithful City, and obtain the advantages for my brethren here. Aided by the strong help I received from the Supreme Council, Capt. Dick, and the cordial co-operation of the old members of the chapter here, we were fortunate enough not only to resuscitate the chapter, but to obtain the warrant of the oldest in existence under the Supreme Council, excepting only the Metropolitan, viz.: the Coryton. Although we may not perhaps have enrolled under our banner since then as great a number of members as other chapters, we have, I hope and believe, ever kept one point in view, that is only to admit into the privileges of our Order Masons who were thoroughly entitled to participate in those privileges. I cannot allow this occasion to pass without tendering my heartfelt and cordial thanks to the members of the chapter for the great kindness and co-operation I have ever received at their hands in carrying out the duties connected with it, many of whom came long distances for the purpose of assisting in our ceremonies, and I trust and believe my worthy friend, Bro. Passmore, that you will receive at the hands of the officers you have appointed, that assistance which you will command and require to carry out efficiently the duties of your high and distinguished position in the Order. I have to tender my grateful thanks to you, Bro. Haycock, for the very flattering manner you have spoken of me; to you, Illustrious Sirs, for your attendance on this, to me, auspicious occasion, and to you, my brothers assembled, for the kind indulgence I at all times receive at your hands. Believe me, I shall ever look back with pride to the day when I was so highly honoured by my brethren, and I trust the Great Architect will spare me to be present to enjoy the privilege of your society at many future meetings. This emblem of eternity will ever be prized and cherished by me as long as I live, and will, I trust, be handed to a Lewis to think of after I am gone. I cannot sit down without thanking two other distinguished members of our Order, Ill. Bro. Lieutenant-General Doherty, C.B.; I mean Bros. Woodforde and Newnham, who have come such a distance to join in our ceremony of installation, and in conclusion, M.W.S., allow me to wish you a very pleasant year of office, feeling assured, as I do, you will fill the distinguished post, not only with honour to yourself, but with credit to the members of the chapter by whom you were elected. The alms having been collected, the chapter was closed, when the brethren repaired to the Half Moon Hotel, and partook of a dinner in every way worthy of Bro. Gardner's reputation, and the evening was spent in the greatest harmony.

The Court of Chancery has just given an important decision in the case of Dr. John Collis Browne's "Chlorodyne," a preparation which has now been in extensive use for the last twenty years in the metropolitan hospitals and among the faculty, as an antidote to cholera, diarrhoea, dysentery, and other debilitating diseases, as well as in febrile, inflammatory, and neuralgic affections. Dr. Collis Browne, having discovered, while in India, serving with the army, an important method of counteracting the diseases which afflicted the Europeans settled there, after much labour brought to perfection a specific which upon its introduction into England met with the unqualified approbation of the most eminent practitioners. Under the name "Chlorodyne," which he also invented to distinguish it from all other preparations, he offered it to the public, and so valuable was it deemed that great difficulty was experienced in protecting it from imitation. The Court of Chancery while regretting its inability to prevent the use of the term, strongly expressed its opinion that Dr. Collis Browne's "Chlorodyne" was the only original, and, therefore, only genuine preparation.

FREEMASONRY IN SOUTH AFRICA.

On St. John's day, the festival of the Patron Saint of Freemasonry, the members of the Craft, including those belonging to the two lodges in Grahamstown, the Albany and St. John's, and others not affiliated with either lodge, assembled in the lodge-room for the installation of the Worshipful Masters of the two lodges, and for the investiture of the office-bearers of each. The Albany Lodge, No. 389, assembled at eleven o'clock, when Bro. A. Brittain, late Senior Warden of the Lodge Good Hope, Port Elizabeth, was installed into the Master's chair by Past Masters Bros. R. Carrin, H. Linton, and P. H. Solomon. The newly installed W.M. then proceeded to invest his office-bearers for the ensuing year, as follows:—Bros. W. A. Smith, S.W.; O. Lester, J.W.; A. W. Allcock, S.D.; G. Goodwin, J.D.; J. Viall, Sec.; J. S. Wilcox, Treas.; J. Everley, and G. Goodwin, Auditors; T. Sheffield, and W. Parsons, Stewards; J. Quait, I.G.; A. Will, Tyler.

Previous to the installation of the W.M. elect, the retiring W.M., Bro. R. Carrin, was presented by Bro. W. A. Smith, acting S.W., on behalf of office-bearers and brethren of the Albany Lodge, with a beautiful Past Master's jewel, and in doing so briefly expressed the pleasure such a pleasing task gave him.

The following address, which was very elegantly engrossed, and tastefully embellished in colours with Masonic emblems, by Bro. J. Viall, was read by the Secretary, and presented with the jewel:—

"To B other Past Master and Worshipful Master Richard Carrin, of Albany Lodge, No. 389, of Free and Accepted Masons.

"Worshipful Sir and Brother:—We, the undersigned, Wardens, Officers, and Brethren of the Albany Lodge, No. 389, desire to convey to you, on the expiration of your term of office, our sincere esteem and hearty appreciation of your invaluable services as presiding Worshipful Master since September, 1871. We cannot allow this opportunity to pass to-day without expressing our grateful acknowledgements that your presidency has been marked with the most beneficial results in promoting the welfare of Freemasonry at a sacrifice of no small comfort to yourself. Your early career in the Craft evinced a devotedness to a life of Masonic usefulness, matured and fully developed in process of time as ever to secure the approbation of those brethren who first placed you in the east in 1863-4, and since that time up to the present you have, Worshipful Sir, brightly shone conspicuous in the exercise of an energetic and successful effort not only to restore the ancient prestige of the oldest lodge in the Eastern Province, but in guiding its actions over the temporary darkness which overshadowed our Temple during a period of alleged departure from the landmarks of our Order.

"By the unanimous vote of the lodge we are called upon to perform an agreeable and pleasing duty. We have now the pleasure, Worshipful Sir, to present to you, as a small but affectionate token of our brotherly love, the accompanying Past-Master's Jewel, with the hope that it may ever remind you of the great truths it has been your happy lot so frequently to inculcate to others. May it ever remind you that since you were first initiated as a brother of this lodge in 1859 you have ever honourably and zealously fulfilled the various duties by worthy, upright, and conscientious conduct, which you have from time to time been called upon to perform, which has not only secured the good will, respect, and brotherly love of the brethren of your mother lodge, but of sister lodges in the town and country.

"May you, Worshipful Sir, now and for many years to come, enjoy as much as any one dare to expect of unalloyed personal, domestic, and social happiness, is the earnest prayer of the brethren of the lodge.

"Signed by the members of 'Albany Lodge' No. 389, at Grahamstown, Colony of the Cape of Good Hope, South Africa, on the Festival of St. John the Baptist, the 24th day of June, Anno Domini 1873, and Anno Lucis 5873."

The jewel is of silver-gilt, and upon the face of it are the words: "Audi, Vide, Tace." On the reverse side it bears the inscription—"Presented to Bro. P.M. RICHARD CURRIN, by Albany Lodge, No. 389, as a token of their esteem for his services as W.M., 1863-64, 1871-72, and 1872-73." The jewel is suspended with blue ribbon, and on the clasps, in elegant characters inlaid in white enamel, are the words, "Albany Lodge, No. 389."

The retiring W.M. thanked the brethren in the following terms:—Brethren,—In looking at the inscription on this jewel, it calls to my mind years that have passed and gone. I recollect many years ago, seeing the same inscription: "Audi, Vide, Tace," with the All-seeing Eye in the centre, on a tombstone. I was then in company with our late esteemed brother, E. K. King, who was for many years Secretary of the Albany Lodge. He told me those words signified "Hear, see, be silent." I thought, at first sight, it would have been a good text for me, as I am not in the habit of making a speech. But I feel on the present occasion, that I cannot sit down without saying a few words. Brothers Senior and Junior Wardens, Office-bearers, and Brethren all! I return you my most grateful thanks for the very handsome present I have just received at your hands, and for the very flattering address presented with it. I am afraid you have coloured my humble services too highly, for had it not been for the able support I have received from the office-bearers I could not have performed the duties of the office so well as I have done. I have done no more than what every Master of a lodge tries to do:—I have done my best. During the long period that I have had the honour of presiding over this, my mother lodge,—I speak it with pride, if I may use that expression—I do not recollect one single unpleasant event within the walls of the lodge, although I must say, it has not been altogether a bed of roses, for on one or two occasions I have had an unpleasant duty to perform, but I have always managed that outside the walls of the lodge, so as not to disturb its harmony. In looking at this magnificent jewel, it reminds me of various things—the first is, that I possess the goodwill of the brethren, and if I have merited so handsome a testimonial of their respect, I must have given them general satisfaction. I am now advanced in years, and I find that my memory begins to fail me. It is time for me, therefore, to take off this badge of office, and place it on some one younger, better able, and more competent to fill the high office. But if it should be the will of the Great Architect of the Universe to spare me in health and strength, I hope I shall always be found ready and willing to lend assistance if required; and when He shall see fit to call us from this sublunary abode, I hope we shall one and all of us be wearing that jewel that will admit us into the Grand Lodge above, where the World's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever. So mote it be!

At high twelve the installation of Bro. W. Waller, P.M., as W.M. of St. John's Lodge, No. 328, commenced, the officiating Past Masters being Bro. H. Linton, the retiring Master of the Lodge, and Bros. A. E. C. Fielden, R. Carrin, and P. H. Solomon. The Worshipful Master elect then proceeded to invest his office-bearers for ensuing year, as follows:—Bros. Jas. E. Everley, S.W.; A. E. C. Fielden, J.W.; F. Fleming, P.M., Treasurer; T. H. Addison, Secretary; D. Sampson, S.D.; T. Holliday, J.D.; H. Kennelly, Inner Guard; H. Will, Tyler.

In the evening the brethren of St. John's Lodge gave a grand Masonic ball, to which about 350 invitations had been issued.

PORT ELIZABETH.—The annual meeting of the Lodge of Good Will, No. 711, took place on Tuesday, the 24th June, at the Masonic Temple on the Hill. Bro. S. Bain, W.M., presided, supported by Bro. W. J. Nettleton, P.M., Bro. J. C. Kemsley, P.M., Bro. C. Wheelwright, W.M. Lodge of Good Hope, and about fifty brethren. The business of the evening was the installation of Bro. J. A. Bell in the chair of K.S., who had proved his qualifications for that important office by the painstaking, earnest, and efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of S.W. during the past year. The whole of the beautiful ceremony was conducted in a most impressive manner by the Installing Master, Bro. S. Bain, after which the newly-installed Master appointed and invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. S. Bain, I.P.M.; J. Blakeway, S.W.; A. Hill, J.W.; Geo. Armstrong (by proxy), Treasurer; H. E. Tonks, P.M., Secretary; J. W. Riches, S.D.; D. Dyason, J.D.; J. D. Puth, I.G.; W. Denny, Org.; J. E. Fortenbach and J. Horton, Stewards; and J. Morley, O.G. After closing the lodge, the brethren adjourned to the refreshment room, where an excellent banquet had been prepared by Bro. W. Fox, of the club, to which ample justice was done. The usual Masonic and other toasts having been disposed of, and several songs and recitations given, the brethren retired shortly after eleven o'clock, after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

READING OF THE SCRIPTURES.

By an ancient usage of the Craft, the Book of the Law is always spread open in the lodge. There is in this, as in everything else that is Masonic, an appropriate symbolism. The Book of the Law is the great light of Masonry. To close it would be to intercept the rays of divine light which emanates from it, and hence it is spread open, to indicate that the lodge is not in darkness, but under the influence of its illuminating power. Masons in this respect obey the suggestion of the divine founder of the Christian religion, "neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house." A close book, a sealed book, indicates that its contents are secret; and a book or roll folded up was the symbol, says Weingart, of a law abrogated, or of a thing of no further use. Hence, as the reverse of all this, the Book of Law is open in our lodges, to teach us that its contents are to be studied, that the law which it inculcates is still in force, and is to be "the rule and guide of our conduct."

But the Book of the Law is not open at random. In each degree there are appropriate passages whose allusion to the design of the degree, or to some part of its ritual, make it expedient that the book should be opened with those passages.

Masonic usage has not always been consistent, nor is it now universal in relation to what particular passages shall be unfolded in each degree. The custom in America, at least since the publication of Webb's Monitor, has been very uniform, and is as follows:—

In the first degree the Bible is opened at Psalm cxxxiii., an eloquent description of the beauty of brotherly love, and hence most appropriate as the illustration of a society whose existence is dependent on that noble principle. In the second degree the passage adopted is Amos vii, 7, 8, in which the allusion is evidently to the plumb line, an important emblem of the degree. In the third degree the Bible is opened at Ecclesiastes xii, 1-7, in which the description of old age and death is appropriately applied to the sacred object of this degree.

But, as has been said, the choicest of these passages has been selected, but always with great appropriateness, as may be seen from the following brief sketch.

Formerly the Book of the Law was opened in the first degree at the 22nd chapter of Genesis which gives an account of Abraham's intended sacrifice of Isaac. As this event constituted the first grand offering, commemorated by our ancient brethren, by which the ground floor of the Apprentice's Lodge was consecrated, it seem to have been very appropriately selected as the passage of this degree. That part of the 28th chapter of Genesis which records the vision of Jacob's ladder was also, with equal appropriateness, selected as the passage of the first degree.

The following passage from I. Kings, vi, 4, was, during one part of the last century, used in the second degree:

"The door of the middle chamber was in the right side of the house, and they went up with winding stairs into the middle chamber, and out of the middle into the third."

The appositeness of this passage to the Fellow-Crafts will hardly be disputed.

At another time the following passage, from II. Chronicles, iii., 17, was selected for the second degree; its appropriateness will be equally evident.

"And he reared up the pillars before the Temple, one on the right hand and the other on the left; and he called the name of that on the right hand Jachin, and the name of that on the left Boaz."

The words of Amos v. 25, 26, were sometimes adopted as the passage for the third degree:

"Have ye offered unto me sacrifice and offerings in the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel? But ye have borne the tabernacle of your Moloch and Chim, your images, the star of your god, which ye made to yourselves."

The allusions to this paragraph are not so evident as the others. They refer to historical matters which were once embodied in the ancient lectures of Freemasonry. In them the sacrifices of the Israelites to Moloch were fully described, and a tradition, belonging to the third degree, informs us that Hiram Abif did much to extirpate this idolatrous worship from the religious system of Tyre.

The 6th chapter of II. Chronicles, which contains the prayer of King Solomon at the dedication of the Temple, was also used at one time for the third degree. Perhaps, however, this was with less fitness than any of the other passages quoted, since the events commemorated in the third degree took place at a somewhat earlier period than the dedication. Such a passage might more appropriately be annexed to the ceremonies of the Most Excellent Master.

At present the usage in England differs in respect to the choice of passages from that adopted in America.

There the Bible is opened, in the first degree, at Ruth iv. 7:

"Now this was the manner in former time in Israel concerning redeeming and concerning changing, for to confirm all things; a man plucked off his shoe and gave it to his neighbour; and this was a testimony in Israel."

In the second degree the passage is opened at I. Kings, vii. 13, 14:

"And King Solomon sent and fetched Hiram out of Tyre. He was a widow's son of the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass; and he was filled with wisdom, and understanding, and cunning to work all work in brass. And he came to King Solomon and brought all his work."

While from the force of habit, as well as from the extrinsic excellence of the passages themselves, the American Mason will, perhaps, prefer the selection made in their own lodges, especially for the first and third degrees; he at the same time will not fail to admire the taste and ingenuity of our English brethren in the selection they have made. In the second degree the passage from Judges is undoubtedly preferable to his own:

In conclusion it may be observed, that to give these passages their due Masonic importance it is essential that they should be covered by the square and compasses. The Bible, square and compasses are significant symbols of Freemasonry. They are said to allude to the peculiar characteristics of our ancient Grand Masters. The Bible is emblematic of the wisdom of King Solomon; the square, of the power of Hiram; and the compasses, of the Chief Builder. Some Masonic writers have still further spiritualised these symbols by supposing them to symbolise the wisdom, truth, and justice of the Grand Architect of the Universe. In any view they become inseparable and inseparably connected portions of the true Masonic ritual, which, to be understood, must be studied together.

"The Trial of Sir Jasper," By S. C. Hall, F.S.A.

Sometime since the Times remarked, in reference to drunkenness, "Laws will not do the work which has to be done. We want men for that, and these men must see their work before they do it. Among all the writers, all the talkers, all the preachers, all the workers, all the names we see blazoned in the roll of English fame, are there none that will set about to abate this nuisance and scandal—our national drunkenness." To answer this challenge the "Trial of Sir Jasper" has been written in verse by the well-known editor of the "Art Journal," Mr. S. C. Hall, and the poem has been splendidly illustrated by artists of note, such as Doné, Ward, Tenniel, Paed, Patou, Gilbert, Crickshank, and some sixteen beside, their drawings having been entrusted to engravers in the first rank of their profession, Dalziel Brothers, Cooper, and several others. Evidently no expense has been spared to enlist art in the attempt to overcome sensualism. The poem represents the trial—the distiller, Sir Jasper, being the defendant, and the witnesses the poor sad sufferers from the effects of drunkenness.

"A self-deluded fool is he who deems
The head is innocent that moves the hand," and hence the poet endeavours to trace the frightful course to the source, and seeks to unfold the horrors flowing from the abuse of the intoxicating cup.

"We ask and have the aid of art, to show
The height and depth of this the country's curse;

To tell, with emphasis, what all should know,
For art can give a living force to verse."

Never, we think, was the poet more wedded to the poet than in the instance before us, for each and all alike seem as if inspired with superhuman gifts and eloquence to picture the witnesses, as one after another are summoned to make known their evidence, and unite in "Giving a foretaste and forecast of Hell, Which those who view the person know it well."

One thing to us is quite evident, that whether we countenance or support, or oppose the "Temperance movement" no one can reign ignorant of the extent of Britain's curse, and though many declare they have no patience with the "rabid Good Templars," while the latter are seeking in their own good way to reclaim the drunkards, these who are hindering the work of Total Abstinence have as yet provided nothing equally sure and satisfactory in its effects, or propounded any curative means of sufficient influence to prevent a certain number out of so many thousand moderate drinkers becoming a prey to that disease when—

"Ten thousand devils haunt him, day and night;
Hunt him alike in darkness and in light.
Horrible fancies of all hideous things,
Of birds with crawling feet, and dogs with wings;
The bread is yellow dry, the water ink,
A woman takes mud and with our drink;
The bones have left his limbs; his hair is flame,
That burns its way into his very brain;
And shadows of a past—a ghastly train—
Buzz in his ears of future guilt and shame."

or as
"An old man sang going to a drunkard's grave,
Not in the frosty winter of his age."

The eyes also go wide spread, notwithstanding the "advance of civilization," that the writer of this notice considers no apology is necessary for his introducing the quotation in the Freemason, seeing that the four cardinal virtues of the Craft are "Temperance, Fortitude, Prudence, and Justice," and that it is a fact that some of our brightest ornaments, distinguished in the roll of lodges, and fitted by nature to be Leaders, "On whose brows genius was seated," but—

"Share degraded names,
And self-reproach. Grand works within their brains

Dwindled to nothing!"
All, in fact, "Perished in the ruin they have wrought."

In the midst of our moral decadence, and we are we to ask for participation to mention the fact that abstinence alone is the safe remedy, or to fear avowing our belief that unless society will take the matter in hand, and look after the younger generation, training them up in habits of temperance, frugality, and self-denial, there will still be carried on the manufacture of drunkards in our very midst. How many try to overcome their fatal taste for the "drink?"—

"And idly, weakly, vainly sliding back,
They crawl again into the beaten track;
Resolve, and drink; and re-resolve and drink."
Were such poor victims but supported as they deserve to be, how different would be their lot, and how changed their lives.

After an experience of some years the writer of this notice unhesitatingly states it as his conviction, that the majority of mankind might, abstain entirely from the use of intoxicating liquors, and be no worse for the change. It is to be regretted that frequently would-be temperance reformers injure the very cause they desire to benefit by their intemperance of speech and over zealous endeavours, but is there not some excuse for them in the midst of so great and awful an evil, and would not some of their detractors be better engaged in seeking the salvation of the drunkard, than in condemning those who are not doing the necessary work precisely as they would?

But to return to Sir Jasper. The sentence was—"Accused, you are acquitted! go your way!

No human law can reach you."

* * * * *

"Sir Jasper, will you grudge
These victims their inalienable right
To change the venue—and be tried elsewhere?
They will be witnesses, accepted there—
Where God will be the judge."

We should state the work is published, at the sum of one shilling, by Virtue and Co., and to our mind each engraving is worth that sum alone.

Mnemonics: British and General. By George Crowther. London:—Mollat & Co. street.

Bro. Crowther has issued, at the moderate price of two shillings, a handy volume for the use of candidates for matriculation and other examinations, and also for the use of schools. The general principle upon which he bases his system of Mnemonics is as follows. To assist the student to remember the dates of certain events in history, he constructs a sentence of three or four words having some reference to the circumstance to be remembered. These words are selected in such manner that, by a preconceived arrangement, the initials of each word will represent a figure; these following in sequence will at once assist the student to determine the date of the event desired to be remembered. We know that some persons despise the use of any "aids to memory," arguing that instead of one thing to remember you have two or more. We cannot do better than quote an anecdote given in the preface in refutation of such an argument—

"Once there was a handy man who took a fancy to joinery. He went up to town and bought a complete assortment of carpenter's tools—everything from a woodman's axe to a sprig-bit. As he was scratching his ear in meditation about the best way to convey them home, a simple bystander suggested—'Why don't you look out for a wheelbarrow?' Because I'm not an ass, was the curt reply; then, softening a little, he added—'You see, my good friend, the difference is exactly here: as it is, I have my tools to carry home; if I took your advice I should be troubled with both the tools and the wheelbarrow.'

We have no doubt that the work will be useful to all those whose avocations or studies render an apt recollection of dates necessary.

THE FOOTSTEPS OF MASONRY, OR FREEMASONRY IN RELATION TO AUTHENTIC HISTORY.

BY BRO. W. VINER BEDOLFE, M.D., S.W. 1329.
Formerly Secretary to the Sphinx Lodge of Instruction.

"Justly are they called Initiations, for by them we especially learn the grand principles of life, and gain not only the art of living agreeably, but even that too of dying with a better hope.—Cicero.

In the papers I was privileged to contribute in 1871 and 1872 to the Freemason, I endeavoured to point out that Freemasonry being municipal in its constitution, was necessarily and essentially Roman in its origin; that institutions resembling it constituted the daily life of Roman society, even from its commencement; that the Masonic signs and pass-words were for the most part common expressions, or in daily use amongst them; that our so called working tools and mathematical emblems are, in reality, derived from the ancient teachings of Plato and Pythagoras; that our modes of initiation are founded upon Roman forms; that Cato, Cicero, and other great men, adorned by their lives or writings associations identical with our own; and finally, that the Roman being its basic form, it is to Grecian teaching that it owes its philosophy.

Since the establishment of a regular Masonic press, there has been a manifest modification of opinion as to the ideas formerly entertained of our mysterious origin, and writers are now expected to bring something more than mere assertion for the ideas they entertain, whilst there is a real and earnest desire to know something of what we are and whence we came.

At the centenary of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Germany, at Berlin, His Serene Highness the Crown Prince Imperial of Prussia thus gave expression to those liberal ideas he is said to entertain on this subject:—

"He alluded to the necessity for a revision of the Ritual, for it was acknowledged that the historical criticism of the day had become a power, from which even the most sacred traditions can no longer escape. That power, he declared, was making demands upon the Order which could no longer be refused.

"Satisfactory proof of historical tradition is demanded, and he acknowledged that the requirements of the present time would have to be complied with. Investigation has been commenced, and would be followed to a satisfactory conclusion.

"If the traditions were confirmed, doubts would disappear, and if anything should prove to be untenable, love of truth would give them courage to sacrifice it, for there is now almost nothing, if we accept the Ritual, but what is accessible to him who desires to investigate it. Let us beware," he emphatically said, "that we do not become blind to the necessities of the present whilst the age progressed with tremendous strides." He requested the brethren to examine his views without prejudice. "The closing century," he said, "has left us imperfections, the coming one will, at its close, point out the imperfections of our own labours."

"All knowledge in Masonry was confined to the ancient first degree, that is to Craft Masonry."

From The Freemason, October 14, 1871.

In the papers inserted in The Freemason we had thus far proceeded in our search after the Footsteps of Masonry, our last paper bringing it up to the 16th century, the era of the Council of Nice.

As it existed at that period it had simply a philosophic form, (much probably as at present, if the Hebraistic portion were expurged) and may properly be designated, and is in fact so designated by us as Ancient Speculative Freemasonry.

Far better indeed had it ever remained so, opening as it did its philosophic portals to all mankind of every race and creed: we are however committed to a more modern modification, which, whilst it adds nothing to its dignity or force, has introduced much fiction and idle story.

It must however be admitted that at its earliest known introduction to modern times it possessed some traditions which referred to King Solomon. Hence has arisen the untenable supposition that Israelitish structure was connected with our Institution.

An analogous case occurs with the Gipsies. On first coming into Europe they gave themselves out as being driven from Egypt, and to humour the people amongst whom they journeyed, adopted a pretended tradition to that effect, which long passed unchallenged.

Their history has, however, been traced. I recollect conversing with Mr. E. Carey, son of the celebrated Calcutta professor, and going over a list of their vocabulary, he pronounced all the words to be most unmistakeably Hindoo, and they themselves consequently wandering Thugs.

As Hindoo words could not come out of Egypt, so can no municipal institution have come out of Jerusalem.

Once settled, the Gipsy question has never been re-opened, and I am justified in saying that after the labours which have recently been bestowed to illustrate the history of Freemasonry any person whatever who pretends improperly to exact from his brothers' conscience a belief in vain traditions, will do so in defiance of literary criticism and of truth. For as the language of the Gipsies, so the language of the Masons has been traced, and its native "habitat" proved.

We may here remark that that solemn portion of the third degree, which in a former paper we described as derived from the Eleusinian mysteries, although in our ritual associated with Hebrewism, in reality has, and can have nothing to do with Hebrewism, for the Romish Church has a very analogous ceremony in the ritual of its initiations, derived from the same ancient source as our own, and making no pretensions to any Jewish origin.

The story, however, connecting our Order with King Solomon and his Temple, if implicitly believed in by some, excites the smile and receives the contemptuous shrug and "Credat Judeus" exclamation of the more philosophic brother.

Let us see if we can propose an explanation, or hypothesis of its origin, which shall reconcile truth with tradition.

As neither the sacred text, or the apocrypha afford any proof of this Hebraistic tradition, the question comes when, where, and how did our order obtain it, as it undoubtedly had associated to itself the name of the Israelitish king, when, after its long and dubious wanderings, it finally became re-established.

There is but one answer, possibly it derived it from the Arabs.

On the transference of the seat of the Roman Empire to Byzantium, all Roman institutions, and of course all Roman mysteries and associations, immigrated thither also, and flourished under its mild despotism, although municipal institutions had long existed throughout the Roman world.

Gibbon remarks that the Institution of engineers founded by the Trojans, existed up to the fall of Constantinople, nearly 1500 years, when the debris of that and all other institutions became spread abroad over the face of Europe, and it is well known that the ancient trade guilds of Rome still exist at Constantinople, and might with the greatest advantage be studied.

Guizet remarks, in his "History of Civilization," that Roman municipalities at Arles, and other towns of Southern France, existed without break of time until the 11th century. If therefore Masonry existed like other Roman municipal institutions at each of these two periods, it must necessarily have existed at intermediate ones, and this brings us to the point in question.

In the 9th and 10th centuries, whilst still Roman municipalities existed in the old colonies of Rome, the Arab Kingdoms of Bagdad, Granada, &c., arose and flourished with all the splendour that arts, science, and learning could bestow. Learned men from both East and West, Greece and Italy were invited, and there found liberal patronage.

Of this we may mention as an example the letters sent by the Caliph of Bagdad to the Emperor of Constantinople in A.D. 873, inviting him to send a certain learned professor. "Let not diversity of religion," says the highly enlightened caliph, "nor diversity of country or faith cause you to refuse my request. Do what friendship would demand from friends, in return I offer you a hundred weight of gold, a perpetual alliance and peace." This then was the welcome these monarchs held out to men of science being worthy.

We all know further the description given by Sir Walter Scott, of the liberality and freedom enjoyed in the glorious Arab Kingdom of Granada, where Isaac the Jew sought refuge from barbarous England, secure there of peace and protection, if not of favour.

Hence it is clear that all ranks and degrees of free men resorted to those kingdoms, some attracted by love of adventure, others for protection, others as teachers and instructors in the liberal arts and sciences, and amongst them would doubtless be found those quasi-masonic institutions into which Cicero was initiated, which he wrote of and adorned.

Under these conditions, and in these kingdoms alone could it have been that Freemasonry threw off whatever of heathen taint it still retained, and assumed a neutral character by adapting its symbols to those so highly prized by the people of the country of their choice, and in decorous courtesy to their new brethren and the spirit of the age.

We know that among the Arabs the name of King Solomon was a symbol, and was held in such high esteem that Solomon became with them almost synonymous with king, their literature (as shewn in the Arabian Nights tales) abounded with stories of his wealth and wisdom, and even the ancestry of their horses was and is still ascribed to the horses of King Solomon.

We may also in further illustration of the influence of his name, mention the Abyssinian tradition, deriving their Royal House from the visit of the Queen of Sheba to that same accommodating personage.

The Solomonian traditions have in fact spread every where that Mohamedanism prevails, in Cachmere they have a tradition that he visited their country on a flying throne borne by a swift genii.

We will, however, take a further glance at the Arabs.

Originally, a tribe of idolators, ignored by both Greek and Roman historians, we find them, about 200 years after Hegeira, settled in permanent kingdoms, cultivating especially the mathematical sciences, and teaching even the Greek language to their degenerate Christian neighbours.

Their race consisted, 1st, of Ancient Arabs, but of which they retained little, except the names of the tribes; 2nd, Pure Arabs, claiming descent from Heber. (See Genesis, chapter x.); 3rd, Descendants of Abraham, through his son Ishmael, who, they say, was carried into Arabia Felix, where he married numerous wives.

Here, then, is abundant scope for Hebraistic tradition.

Now the ancient, as well as the modern religion of these Arabs is inextricably mingled with the building of a celebrated Temple called the Kaecba, or "square," (hence the word "Cabalist," towards which they turned their faces in prayer, as do the Jews towards the Holy Temple at Jerusalem. To this temple, or its successor, they pay the same devotion as do the Jews to their temple, and tell of it similar fables.

Adam, they say, on his expulsion from Paradise, was ordered by God to build a temple on a certain place, the plan of which was revealed to him on curtains of light. This temple, they say, was actually built by his son Seth, and being destroyed at the deluge, was re-built by Abraham and Ishmael. Each system had its square.

Can we then wonder that in traversing, in common with all the arts and sciences, such a country, Freemasonry should partake of its ideas and by substituting for the Kaecba as an emblem the far-famed Temple of King Solomon, "which Jews might love, and Infidels adore," wisely, politically, and for ever attempt to unite all sects and creeds, all tongues and languages under their banner, in the Worship of the God of Abraham.

If then, this explanation of the origin of the Hebraistic tradition be accepted, we can see that King Solomon and his Temple are only symbolic, and intended as a sign to embrace all the religions influencing the then known world, viz.:—the Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan; a most worthy idea, and worthy of the philosophy whence Freemasonry sprung.

This symbol, however, of King Solomon and his Temple has unfortunately, in times of ignorance, been taken as historical, giving rise to tales.

which must emphatically be called idle tales. Such constitute a portion of the latter part of the third degree, evidently compilations of the last century, and which never came further east than Temple Bar.

I believe these idle tales introduced into Masonry have much retarded its progress, attracting largely the simple and credulous, but causing a disinclination on the part of men of taste and erudition for the brotherhood.

The Arch Mason does not pretend to any special tradition, but acts merely in memory of such and such an event, and we accept with respect its forms. The Grand Lodge of England also exercises a wise and sound discretion in refusing to admit those orders which pretend to absurd and nonsensical traditions. Even our own so called "traditional history" might just as well have been taken from the Arabian Nights, as those narrations we give of that monarch, to whose royal patronage we pretend, for erring man and unhappy fratricide as he was, he does not deserve the absurdities that Arabs, Abyssinians, and Freemasons tell of him. We hope, indeed, that they will soon be banished from our midst.

The Mohammedans and Jews had great influence even on the Christian religion of those days, for we are told that the chief of the Iconoclastic, or image breaking Emperors of Constantinople was incited thereto by the taunts of the Jews and Mohammedans.

This, then, is the probable origin of the traditional history, or Hebraistic element, in relation to King Solomon's Temple, and clearly points out a phase through which Freemasonry has passed, and of which it retains the vestiges. It is, moreover, evident that our institution must have passed, in common with other Roman institutions and professions, from Constantinople to these Saracenic kingdoms, where at that period all that was bright and fair was nourished and cultivated, for Mohammedanism was not at that time the miserable system it has now become, since the temporal and ecclesiastical power became irrevocably united under the same head.

Of course there are peculiar difficulties in endeavouring to trace the probable course of a secret society such as ours, but the same may be said of other systems once universally prevalent. Who shall fully explain to us, for instance, the Feudal system? which, like Freemasonry, had various stages of development, and it must never be forgotten that social facts form themselves but slowly.

We are now looking at Freemasonry when the causes which led to its formation have ceased. It now appears to the ordinary observer as an entirety, and he is easily led to suppose that it had always been so, forgetting that those facts which he contemplates as a fully developed system, commenced and increased, and whilst growing underwent many changes.

Numerous and various errors have thus arisen, and this is why so many contradictions and uncertainties concerning the character and moral destinies of illustrious men have occurred. If it be thus in the history of individuals whose duration is so short, how much more so must be the danger of overlooking the variety of origin to which great associations owe their rise, and the many complications which attend their slow and progressive development.

In our next we hope to consider the diffusion of Masonic societies in Western Europe, and its connection with modern ideas.

Persia has recently been described by the Secretary of the British Legation at Vienna, who travelled through the East in 1872. Persia, he says, is about as large as Great Britain and France together, but it has no more inhabitants than Ireland alone (between five and six millions), several thousands of whom have died of hunger during the last few years.

At a special meeting of the Alexandra Palace Company, the resolution passed on the 14th ult., authorising the issue of new capital to the extent of £150,000, was confirmed.

It is stated that Sir Bartle Frere is to be created a member of her Majesty's Privy Council, in recognition of his services in connection with the Zanzibar mission.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M. for West Lancashire, and Lady Skelmersdale, have arrived for the season at Lathom House, Ormskirk, Lancashire, from Portland-place, London.

The Belgrave Lodge of Instruction, (No. 749), is now held at Bro. Cleghorn's, the "Coach and Horses," 323 and 324, Strand, W.C., every Friday evening, throughout the year, at eight o'clock, p.m. Bro. T. H. Pulsford, P.M. 1158, is the Hon. Preceptor, and Bro. Scott, No. 749, Hon. Sec.

Sheriff Bro. Sir Frederick Perkins has received a vote of congratulation on his knighthood from the Town Council of Southampton.

The Marquess of Ripon, and the Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, M.P., have each placed their names for £5 at the head of a testimonial subscription to Mr. George Linnæus Banks, who is about to proceed on a lecturing tour to America, in consideration of his long service in lyric literature. Mr. Alderman Lusk, M.P., and the Rev. Dr. Allon are also amongst the first contributors.

A MAN OF BUSINESS.—You don't quite know how I am worked, for I don't talk of these things, because people bore me by saying how hard I work, and they exaggerate, of course. However, at present, and for once, I assure you they are not far wrong. In order to keep down the arrears in Chancery, and also to prevent appeals to the House of Lords (where I have no kind of help), I am forced to write all my judgments at great length. I never go out, except to a cabinet dinner, having since Christmas only dined out once—namely, "yesterday," because Miss Spalding would not go without me to Sefton's. I am never in bed till two, and sometimes three, and I am up again early, with a man copying, while I am correcting what I wrote over night. I dine at half-past five or a quarter before six, and am at work sometimes in half an hour, and never am a whole hour at table, during which time I have letters to write. If I relax, there is an arrear gets up in Chancery, as there did when I was unwell two years ago, and also when I was kept last summer in the House of Lords; and unless I take this kind of pains, the appeals get crowded in the Lords.—Lord Brougham's Life.

THE GREAT TICHBORNE TRIAL.—Messrs. Watkins and Haigh, of 215, Regent-street, have photographed a series of groups representing the jury in this cause célèbre, which still drags its slow and weary length along, leaving its issue, if ever determined, in a somewhat remote future. The twelve "honest men," who are sworn to well and truly try between our Sovereign Lady the Queen and the defendant at the bar, are here depict with a marvellous fidelity of portraiture, while the grouping of the figures is most natural and easy. Viewed simply in the light of photographs, these examples from the studio of Messrs. Watkins and Haigh represent the beautiful art in its highest state of perfection, and will doubtless be treasured as memorials of one of the most extraordinary public prosecutions in which this, or any other country, was ever engaged.

Two pamphlets have lately been issued by the publishers of The Rock. In one of these, lists are given of the "priests" who wish for the establishment of the Confessional in the Church of England, and for the introduction of other Romanizing practices, and in the other, a full report is given of the Anti-Confessional Meeting at Exeter Hall.

PRUSSIA AND THE CATHOLICS.—War is still waged between the German authorities and the Catholic party. The former have signified their opinion of the contumacious bishops by at once withdrawing the State allowance of 4 000 thalers, hitherto made to the priests' seminary at Fulda, and by ordering that the episcopal boys' seminary be closed on the 1st of October next. Archbishop Ledochowski has been summoned for the 8th of this month before the criminal section of the district court of Posen to offer a justification of the disciplinary proceedings taken by him against the priest Arndt.

THE MASON'S TREASURE.

BY BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M., P.Z.

Let monarchs boast their jewell'd crowns,
The rich their wealth display;
Let youth and beauty still believe
Their charms will ne'er decay.

Let all rejoice in what they have,
And prize it as they may;
We, too, will prize what we have got—
What ne'er will pass away.

The monarch must his crown resign,
The rich man leave his store;
But Truth and Virtue yield the fruits
That live for evermore.

When Masons true and faithful are,
And play their proper part,
They cultivate those priceless fruits,
And have them in the heart.

The good they do lives after them,
And more abundant grows,
For Heaven blesses all that's good,
And him who it bestows.

AN ELEGANT AND INTERESTING PRESENTATION.

Liverpool Town Councillors are about to do an act which reflects credit not only on their taste, but their liberality. An album of a most interesting kind has just been prepared by Bros. Vandyke and Brown, photographic artists, of Bold-street, which is intended for presentation to Mrs. Pearson, the wife of Bro. John Pearson, whose mayoralty of Liverpool last year was of the most munificent and satisfactory character. During Bro. Pearson's year of office the members of the Council subscribed for and purchased a gold chain of office intended to be worn by the mayors of Liverpool in perpetuity, and Bro. Pearson wore this chain for the first time at the Thanksgiving service held at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, for the recovery of the Prince of Wales. After the purchase of the Mayor's gold chain of office, a sum of money still remained, and it was resolved that this should be devoted to providing a souvenir of the circumstance of his worship attending St. Paul's, for presentation to Mrs. Pearson. It was determined that this should be in the form of an album containing the portrait of the lady's husband and portraits of his fellow-members of the corporation during his period of office, and also of the principal officers of the corporation. The album is neatly bound in morocco, and has the corporation arms on the outside in solid gold, and gold clasps and lock. The title-page of the album contains this inscription, which is wrought with illuminated letters and has an appropriate bordering, with the Liverpool arms, &c.:—"This album, containing photographs of the aldermen and councillors of the borough of Liverpool, was a presentation to Mrs. Pearson, of Golborne Park, Lancashire, during the mayoralty of her husband, John Pearson, Esq., in commemoration of the Thanksgiving day services in St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 27th day of February, 1872, for the recovery of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales from his dangerous illness, on which occasion the Mayor attended in state, wearing for the first time a chain of office presented to him by the members of the corporation for the use of the mayors of Liverpool in perpetuity." On the next page are photographs of the medallion attached to the Mayor's chain of office, and in the succeeding page is a photograph of Bro. Pearson. Then follow photographs of the aldermen and town councillors, and of the principal corporation officials. All the photographs are exceedingly clear, and remarkably well executed. Each of the pages contains four photographs, and has a neat and very appropriate bordering, which has been designed by Bros. Vandyke and Brown. The binding of the album was the work of Bro. H. Greenwood, Castle-street. The cost of the production is about £60.

DEDICATION OF A MASONIC LODGE AT JERUSALEM.

The attempt to organize a Masonic lodge in the city of Jerusalem, under American auspices, which has been long on foot, has at length succeeded. Advice was received a few days ago from Bro. John Sheville, who went out last spring for that purpose, that "on Wednesday, May 7th, he organized the Royal Solomon Mother Lodge, No. 293, in due and ancient form, in the Great Mark Master's Quarry, under the city of Jerusalem, and initiated a candidate."

As a preface to this remarkable incident, which forms an era in Masonic history, we give a brief history of the Cotton Megara (or Royal Quarry), with which every traveller in Jerusalem is familiar. The very existence of this vast cavern under the city had been forgotten. No records of crusading times give any account of it, although the discovery of Christian crosses on the walls show visits of travellers at least since the era of Christ. Some Arab chronicles of the ninth or tenth century hint at the fact that "very extensive caves underlie the Holy City;" but these may refer to other large excavations known to exist under various parts of Jerusalem. Upon the whole, it is the settled opinion that no knowledge of the great quarry, later than the first or second century of the Christian era exists, and it was reserved to an American missionary, Dr. J. T. Barclay, to bring the fact to light. Some twenty years since, passing along outside the north wall of Jerusalem, his dog, in pursuit of a rat, scratched an opening under the wall, and disappeared from the eyes of his master. This led to an enlargement of the opening, and the most remarkable discovery that this most wonderful of cities has ever yielded. It was found that under the north-east quarter of Jerusalem is an abandoned quarry of such vast extent as to answer most satisfactorily the query that has long puzzled antiquaries—"Where did Solomon's builders procure the native stone for the walls and substructure of the Temple?"

To enter this weird and mysterious crypt, it is necessary to pass outside the city at the north or Damascus gate, and turn to the right. The city wall here is about fifty feet high and of corresponding thickness. It was erected, as an Arabic inscription shows, in the year Hegira 948, equivalent to A.D. 1542, by order of the Sultan Suleyman. In constructing this wall, all sorts of massive materials were used—granite columns, marble blocks and huge bevelled "ashlars," that had done similar duty in mural structure ever since the days of Solomon.

The entrance into the great quarry has been enlarged with spade and chisel, so that it is an easy matter now to visit the place.

Lighting candles to dissipate the midnight darkness, you pass first in an easterly direction 113 feet. The way is over great mounds of rubbish, partly artificial, as the marks of chisels show; partly made up of pieces that have fallen from the ceiling. Then the way turns, at nearly a right angle to the south, 400 feet. The marks of chisel and hammer become more and more evident.

Blocks of square stone, in every stage of preparation, from the rough to the perfect, encumber the path. Piles of chippings are heaped up everywhere. Upon the side of the quarry deep, narrow grooves are seen, cut lengthwise and perpendicular, marking out the dimensions of proposed blocks, and showing the ancient method of detaching the stones from their native bed. The marble is of a soft, friable nature, called in the native tongue melcheli. Occasionally a harder vein of stone occurs, but of the same chemical composition, and this the natives call mescheli.

Turning again to the left, we go to the distance of 196 feet, to where a small basin, chiselled in the harder rock, five feet in diameter and half as deep, was made to collect water for the workmen of "Hiram." The water at present is bitter and disagreeable to the taste. Near this foundation is a deep circular pit, in which lies a human skeleton, probably of one of those early Christian devotees who used the quarries of Jerusalem for the same purpose as the catacombs of Rome, viz., as places of concealment during the persecutions of the first four centuries of our era.

A little further to the south there is an apartment eighteen feet square, which from its regular form seems designed for a particular purpose. Great numbers of bats cling to the roof, which is forty feet high. Bones of various kinds, brought in probably by jackals, proved that there were once ample openings to the cavern. Numerous crosses are traced upon the wall, and a few Hebrew inscriptions, but not sufficiently legible to be understood. It was in this apartment, henceforward to be known among Freemasons as "The Chamber of the Brotherly Covenants," that the Royal Solomon Mother Lodge, No. 293, of Freemasons was duly organised, May 7th.

The readers of the Herald will not have forgotten the visit to this renowned spot by Morris, the Masonic enthusiast, in 1868. Collecting together such of the ancient Craft as were to be found in Jerusalem at the time, including Capt. Warren, the English explorer, the venerable Prussian savant, Bro. Petermann, and others, he entered this memorable chamber, and performed there the mystic rites of Masonry so long disused. In that crypt of "silence, secrecy and darkness," the brotherly interchange was made, which has been perpetuated in every language under heaven, and there our American brother repeated his own verses, which every Mason has acquired by heart: "We meet upon the level and we part upon the square."

Since 1868, most zealous and unremitting efforts have been pursued by Dr. Morris and his associates to secure the organisation of a regular lodge in Jerusalem. The difficulties, almost insurmountable, were referable to the sparsity of the Craft in the East, their numerous languages, their inexperience in Masonic work, the want of suitable chambers for lodge rooms, &c., and most of all to the fact that there is no Grand Lodge of Masons in the Turkish Dominions.

Several efforts to organize this lodge at Jerusalem failed—one from the death of Hon. John P. Brown at Constantinople, and one from the degradation and death of the Pacha General at Syria, Mohammed Reschid. The nearest lodges were at Beyrout, Syria, 150 miles in the north, and Port Said, Egypt, 200 miles to the south-west; but within the memory of man there has been no lodge in Palestine.

At last all the named difficulties were overcome, and the following was issued by the Grand Lodge of Canada:—

"William M. Wilson, Grand Master—To all and every our Right Worshipful, Worshipful and Loving Brethren:—

"We, William Mercer Wilson, Esq., &c., of Simcoe, in the Province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, Grand Master of the Most Ancient and Honourable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons of Canada, send greeting.—

"Know ye—That we, by the authority and under the sanction of the Grand Lodge of Canada, vested in us for that purpose, and at the humble petition of our right trusty and well beloved brethren, Rob Morris, John Sheville, Rolla Floyd, Richard Beardsley, Charles Netter, Peter Bergheim, Robert Macoy, James M. Howry, C. W. Nash, George D. Norris, A. T. Metcalf, Alexander A. Stephenson, Chauncey M. Hatch, Martin H. Rice, John W. Rison, A. J. Wheeler, John Scott, Albert G. M. Mackey, John H. Brown and DeWitt C. Cregier, do hereby constitute the said brethren into a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, under the title or denomination of The Royal Solomon Mother Lodge, No. 293; the said lodge to meet at the city of Jerusalem, or adjacent places in Palestine, on the first Wednesday of every month; empowering them, in the said lodge, when duly congregated, to make, pass, and raise Freemasons, according to the ancient customs of the Craft in all ages and nations, throughout the world.

"Given under our hand and the seal of the Grand Lodge, at Hamilton, this 17th February, A.L. 5873, A.D. 1873. By command of the M.W. Grand Master,

"THOMAS WHITE, JR., D.G.M.
"THOMAS B. HARRIS, Grand Secretary."

Under this authority the Rev. Bro. John Sheville left New York, April 8th, conferred with a Masonic company at Cairo, Egypt, and may arrived at Jerusalem May 6th; finally on the 7th of May, the day named in the warrant, organised the lodge.

Collecting together twelve of the resident and visiting Masons of Jerusalem, including four of those specified in the warrant, Bro. Sheville entered the vast and gloomy vault at two p.m., and proceeded, with guides and lighted torches, to "the Chamber of the Brotherly Covenant" already named, where the Masonic emblems, engraved by Dr. Morris in 1868, remain to designate the place. Upon a square plate which marks the centre of the chamber the essential objects constituting the "Great Lights" of Masonry, were displayed in traditional order. A proper arrangement of officers and members followed, and the well-known forms of organising the lodge and dedicating the work to the royal patron, King Solomon, were proceeded with. On the same evening a resident of Jerusalem, a gentleman of distinction, was initiated.

The first act of the new lodge, after the Grand Marshal had pronounced the organisation perfect, was to declare that "all Master Masons who are members of the American Holy Land Exploration are hereby recognised as honorary members of No. 293, with corresponding rank." The number of these is some two thousand.

It has been demonstrated by instruments that the floor of this cavern is higher than the surface of the temple site, a quarter of a mile south, and as the great stones which still remain in the walls around Mount Moriah unquestionably had their origin in this quarry, much light is thrown by this fact upon the manner of moving them. The operatives had only to construct an inclined plane and roll these blocks, which are twenty, thirty and forty feet in length, down to their places.

Our readers who know that the Masonic Order in the United States and Canada are reckoned at a half million members, in 9,000 lodges, will not wonder at the interest taken in this movement by the American Craft at large. That the Order "sprung from the east and moved to the west" is an admitted fact in Masonic history, and as the Masonic membership of the world is less than a million, the American branch represents more than half the entire body. That there is a general uniformity in Masonic ceremonies and secrets the world over was fully established by Dr. Morris's researches in 1868, and confirmed by the observations of Mr. Seward, two years after. But the Americans have taken hold of Freemasonry in a broader sense than other people. It has entered more deeply into the business and domestic relations of the people. Sixteen periodicals are devoted to the instruction of its members. This very month, when the remains of the American Ambassador to Russia, Governor James Lawrence Orr, reached New York, the guard of honour, at his own dying request, consisted mainly of Freemasons. In the beginning of June a convention of more than two thousand Masons, representing 700 lodges, met in New York to consult upon matters of interest to the fraternity. At this moment there is a Convention holding in New York, of delegates from every State and Territory in the Union, arranging the Rituals of the Royal and Select Masters' Degrees of Masonry. Under this view of the condition of the world-wide institution in America, it was thought eminently fitting that the first lodge in the Holy Land, should go "from the west to the east," and so the light and knowledge of thirty centuries should be returned, as Christianity and science had already been returned, to the place from whence it came.

To the Past Grand Master of Kentucky, Rob Morris, LL.D., is due the inception of the plan, and to the liberality of some two thousand of the Masonic fraternity, under his earnest appeals for five years, its successful accomplishment.

The condition of society in the Turkish empire, social and civil, is extremely encouraging just now to the establishment of Masonic lodge there, and it is proposed during the coming year to organise them in sufficient number at Joppa, Acre, Nazareth, and Nablou to justify the formation of the Grand Lodge of Palestine.

It is known that the ancient Craft is favoured by the Sultan, Abdul Aziz, and that a good proportion of the Pachas and high officials are members in the Craft. The celebrated Fuad Pacha, long Grand Vizier of Turkey, was a warm advocate of Masonry, and at his death was Deputy Grand Master of Turkey, under the English Constitution. The Sultan, some years since, commanded one of his favourite Secretaries to "join the Masons and tell him who they are and what they do." He did so, and reported so favourably of "the high character of the members, the innocence and propriety of their secrets, their devotion to good order and decorum, their abhorrence of plots and conspiracies against the civil powers," &c., that the imperial inquirer let it be known from that time forward that he was favourable to the sons of King Solomon (Melek Suleyman) and their work." This adds his name to a royal and imperial group of patrons of Masonry, which is worthy of record.

William, Emperor of Germany, is a Freemason of forty years' standing; also his son, the Heir Apparent of the Empire. The father of Victoria, Queen of Britain, was a Freemason, also three of her sons, and herself, by royal consent, Patron of the Order.

Victor Emmanuel, King of Italy, is a Mason; as is also his son Amadeus, the late King of Spain. To them might be added the Kings of Holland and Sweden, and a host of princes and the nobility of Europe.

The want of a society like Freemasonry is more keenly felt in the Turkish empire, and particularly in Palestine, than in any other country in the world. So numerous are the religions, so keen the religious hatreds and feuds, that quarrels, such as those reported at Bethlehem a few weeks since, illustrate the normal condition of the country. Mohammedan, Christian, and Jew have no common ground of union there, except on the checkered pavement of the lodge.

This is proved by the facts collected in Dr. Morris' Masonic researches there. He found in Smyrna seven lodges, no two of which employed the same language in their rituals, and whose members represented all the religions of the Levant, yet meeting and associating in a harmony which is a standing marvel to those who are familiar with the jarrings and contentions so common in the city. So at Damascus and elsewhere, in the private convocations of Freemasons to hear the Masonic lectures of Dr. Morris, the Consuls of France, Italy, England, Germany, Persia, the United States, &c., joined hands with Pashas, Sheikhs, Beys, Cadis, Karniakamis, Americans, Protestants, Greeks and Jews, in the one work of giving and receiving pleasure.—New York Herald.

ANOTHER MASONIC HALL IN NEW ZEALAND.

The Masons of New Zealand seem to be in earnest in the great work. It is only a fortnight ago we had to record the laying the foundation of a Masonic hall at Timaru, now we copy the following from the Grey River Argus:—

The consecration and dedication of the new Masonic Hall, on the 22nd May, took place at Greymouth, in the presence of perhaps the largest gathering of the fraternity ever assembled at any time on the West Coast.

The first Masonic lodge was established at Greymouth on 20th March, 1868, under the English Constitution. The founders at first held their meetings at the Albion Hotel, but the accommodation becoming too limited for the rapidly increasing members of the Masonic body, the lodge was removed to a fine hall, built expressly for Masonic purposes by Messrs. Gilmer Brothers. The brethren of the Scottish Rite formed a lodge under their own Constitution, and inaugurated it on St. Andrew's Day, 1871.

Both lodges held their meetings in the same building, but the still increasing numbers of the fraternity justified the leading members of both lodges in considering that the time had arrived when the Freemasons should erect a building over which they would have sole control.

A joint stock company was formed, all the members of which are Masons. A suitable site was secured, and on 27th December, 1872, the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, by special dispensation from the District Grand Lodge, the foundation stone was laid with Masonic honours by Bro. James Kerr, W.M., Greymouth Lodge.

Bro. J. A. Eissenhardt was selected as architect, and the operative portion of the work was entrusted to the direction of Bro. Charles Holner. Both of them have faithfully performed their duties, and although the work is not carried out at present to the extent originally designed, the hall, in the magnitude of its fine proportions and the artistic elegance of its architectural decorations, stands an ornament to the town and an honour to the Masonic Society.

The internal arrangements of the building comprise on the ground floor a vestibule inside the main entrance, with passages leading on the left to the banqueting room, and on the right to offices suitable for occupation as professional chambers. In front of the vestibule, and reaching to the back of the building, is another large room which could be utilised as a library and reading-room, or for any similar purposes. The whole of the upper floor is occupied by the lodge room, with two ante-rooms, and the necessary conveniences for the safe keeping of the furniture and paraphernalia of the Order. The lodge room itself is a fine spacious hall, well lighted and ventilated, and decorated, according to ancient custom, with inscriptions, mottoes, and designs emblematic of the objects of Freemasonry and the obligations imposed upon those belonging to the Order.

At two o'clock the members, to the number of nearly one hundred, assembled at the lodge room at Gilmer's-buildings. The lodge was opened and closed in all the degrees, according to the Scotch and English rites, by Bros. Kerr and Kent, the Worshipful Masters of either lodge, and at three o'clock the Tyler announced the approach of the District Grand Master with his officers. The District G.M., Bro. John Lazar, was accompanied by Bros. G. W. Harvey, D.D.G.M.; Rice, Acting D.G.S.W.; Hudson, D.G.J.W.; Batham, D.G.S.; Cuddiford, D.G.D.C.; Eisfelder, D.G.P.; Hawkins, D.G.S.D., and other officers of the District Grand Lodge. The District Grand Master was conducted to the chair with the usual honours, and after the D.G.L. officers had taken their places, the District Grand Lodge was opened in due form, and the Grand Master delivered the following address from the chair:—

"Brethren,—In compliance with your request, I have now the honour, in the capacity of District Grand Master for the County of Westland, to lend my aid in dedicating a Masonic Hall to the honour and glory of the Most High. I must ever consider it as one of the fortunate events of my life that the Craft of Free and Accepted Masons should be called forth to assist at an undertaking so laudable and so glorious, during the time that, from their affliction, I have the honour of sitting in the chair of the District Grand Lodge. The business of this day will be remembered in the annals of Greymouth, and will transmit your names with lustre to posterity. In the name of the Craft of Free and Accepted Masons, I sincerely implore the protection of the Supreme Architect of the Universe on our undertaking. May you long continue here the ornaments of civil society, and may you hereafter be received into those mansions, those lodges, prepared in Heaven for the good and virtuous Mason."

The procession was then formed under the direction of Bro. Cuddiford, Deputy Grand Director of Ceremonies, who was efficiently assisted by Bro. W. H. Revell, as Marshal of the Craft Lodges. The order of procession usual on similar occasions was observed, and when all was ready the march was commenced to Trinity Church, the Entered Apprentices leading, followed by the Fellow-Crafts, Master Masons, and officers of both lodges, all whom preceded the District Grand Master with his Deputy, the District Grand Pursuivant bringing up the rear.

The large body of Masons present, clothed in the different coloured regalia of the several Craft Lodges, interspersed with the insignia of companions of the Royal Arch, many of whom attended, as well as the members of the confraternity of Mark Masons, gave the procession an imposing appearance.

The Grand Master was literally covered with the decorations, jewels, and insignia of his rank, and the Deputy Grand Master was, only in a lesser degree, suitably clothed in accordance with his standing and office in the Order.

The church was crowded with a congregation composed of all denominations, a large proportion of those present being ladies. After the District Grand Master had taken his place and the church services suitable to the occasion were concluded, the Rev. G. T. N. Watkins, Chaplain of the Greymouth Lodge, delivered the following discourse, taking as his text:—

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself."—St. Luke, x. 27.

"We are assembled here, brethren, to hold a service preparatory to the ceremony of setting apart the new hall for the better carrying out the purposes of Masonry. The short notice I received—only a few hours old, and the waning of the day alike forbid a lengthy discourse. We have met in this Christian temple for the express purpose of acknowledging the paramount claims of religion, and the superiority, infinite, of the service of God appointed over any society, however good, of human origin. To some it may seem that such an institution as Masonry is unnecessary, because the Christian religion furnishes rules sufficient, and presents motives sufficiently strong to the practice of them. Others not only regard Masonry as unnecessary, but even look upon it as antagonistic to religion, and point to the secret symbols, the exclusive meetings, and even the faults or vices of individual members, as confirmations of that hostility. With regard to the first two objections, I must content myself with saying that to Masons they seem necessary to the conservation of the discipline of the Order, and that the secret signs are especially needed as an universal language by which Masons may communicate with Masons, whatever be their country, and however strange their language. With regard to the last objection—the bad lives many Masons live—this in no degree militates against the value and goodness of the institution, for if it did, then the same objection might be raised against Christianity itself, which, though it numbers many millions under the banner of the Cross, yet at the same time hath myriads who, though professing to believe on Jesus Christ, yet live lives entirely unregulated by His holy teachings. "Masonry can hardly be the bad thing some think it, when we consider the number of good and wise who belong to it. It is a matter of fact as the statistics of Masonry show, that it is not confined to the bad and vicious; Masonry is now spread all over the world, and princes, nobles, senators, and philosophers, forgetting their splendor, have sought the favour of membership in a society where the rich and poor are alike considered and treated as brethren, and where only worth and benevolence, according to the principles of our Order, confer a title to respect. The society, brethren, to which I and many of you belong does not merely boast of the principles on which it is founded, which may be briefly summed up in the words I took for the text viz., the fear and love of the great God, and love to our brother, but the annals of Masonry are bright with deeds of the purest and most exalted benevolence. Captives have been delivered, exiles restored, the oppressed succoured, the poor relieved, by the brotherly love of Masons, and whatever the lives of some Masons may be, the principles are the same, sacred and perennial—the spirit of Masonry is the same. Every member of the Order knows that the principles of Masonry are calculated to promote the interests of sacred morality and pure religion. Every brother knows that such are the tenets of Masonry, and if any brother acts in opposition to the brotherly love and truth of what he is constantly reminded by appeals alike to eye and ear, he is in reality no Mason. "The voice may be Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau." To promote brotherly love is the grand design of Masonry; the opposite spirit is the cause of strife, confusion, and every evil work, and is the very antipodes of the spirit of Masonry. But our Order is made up of individuals, and it behoves everyone who would wish to deserve the name of a Mason to live consistently with the principles of the institution to which he belongs, not to be led astray by the spirit of selfishness, so common in an age of competition, where everyone is trying to rise on others' downfall; but by a spirit of justice, generosity, charity, benevolence, and piety, to obey the command of the Saviour, to so let His light shine before men that they may see His good works and glorify His Father which is in Heaven. There is a common argument against Masonry, that it is a passport to disorder and licensed revelry, and many think even a necessary part of the working of the Order. Now, though some of the Craft may have afforded scandal by intemperance and disorder at social meetings, yet for such blots Masonry is not answerable, for while it sanctions rational and friendly enjoyment, from the example of Christ at the marriage feast at Cana, where happiness must have marked the day, it as strictly forbids every approach to excess and every symptom of disorder; and he whose character is the opposite of temperate, industrious, frugal, pure, and pious, is entirely opposed to the principles of the Craft, and is doing what he can to throw contempt on the order of which he is an unworthy member, for when admitted a member he was straightway exhorted—an exhortation in varied forms afterwards repeated—to "let prudence direct him, temperance chasten him, fortitude support him, and justice be the guide of all his actions. With you brethren, it rests to support the credit of Masonry here. Refute the calumny, if it be one, by your strict and circumspect behaviour for the time to come; and if with any one of you it be too true, go back to the principles of your Order; built upon the old foundations, the revealed will of God, and lead a life which the world shall see only to admire. Be not content, however, with showing in your conduct the virtues of temperance, soberness, and chastity, to which you are bound, but remember, in addition thereto that crowning virtue so beautifully taught by the Saviour in the parable of the Good Samaritan, following almost the words of the text which is commended to your notice, when once at least in your life you appeared poor and penniless—I mean the grace of charity. Charity, first, in as tender a regard for the character of others as concern for your own good name, and next in administering out of your abundance to the need of your poorer brethren. Indeed, I shall now proceed to put your principles somewhat to the test, by calling on all here to exercise that virtue you all profess to admire—I mean charity, which, like its sister, mercy, blesses him who gives, as well as him who receives. I wish now to awaken the charitable feelings of all present on behalf of an institution which greatly aids in mitigating the pains of accident and disease—the Grey River Hospital. Of one blood all are made; all are therefore liable to sickness, disease, death; and though we are in health to-day, as our presence certifies, yet it may be otherwise. I ask you all to contribute to the funds of an institution which is supported in a great measure by voluntary contributions. Give heartily, give liberally, and whatever you may feel inclined to give on behalf of the useful object for which I have pleaded, will be thankfully received and faithfully applied. May we all leave this house benefitted by the services in which we have joined. May our after doing this day be hallowed by God's blessing. May we think nothing we would not have God discern; say nothing we would not have God see; and may peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety, be established amongst us evermore.—Amen."

The sermon was listened to with marked attention, and the singularly well-timed appeal the preacher made to the sympathies of his hearers, on behalf of the sufferers in the Grey River Hospital, was a spontaneous and commendable effort in the cause of those attributes of charity and mercy which Masons are always enjoined to cultivate and practice. The offertory at the conclusion of the sermon will form a handsome donation to the funds of the hospital.

The services at the church being finished, the procession reformed, and marched to the Masonic Hall in the same Order as before. On arriving at the lodge the District Grand Master and officers took their respective places, and the Worshipful Master of the Greymouth Lodge addressed the District Grand Master, and formally placed him in control of the building for the purposes of the dedication. The District Grand Master accepted the trust, and made the following invocation:—

“Great Architect of the Universe, Maker and Ruler of All Worlds, deign from Thy Celestial Temple, and from realms of light and glory, to bless us in all the purposes of our present undertaking. We humbly invoke Thee to give us, at this and at all times, wisdom in all our doings, strength of mind in all our difficulties, and the beauty of harmony in all our communications. Permit us, O Thou Author of Light and Life, Great Source of Love and Happiness, solemnly to dedicate this Hall to the honour and glory of Thy Most Holy Name.”

The first part of the ceremony of the consecration being concluded, the Architect of the building offered his implements to the District Grand Master, and resigned his trust. The District Grand Master received the emblems, and addressed Bro Eissenhardt as follows:—

“Brother Architect.—The skill and fidelity displayed in the execution of the trust reposed in you at the commencement of this undertaking have secured the entire approbation of the District Grand Lodge, and they sincerely pray that this edifice may continue a lasting monument of the taste, spirit, and liberality of its founders.”

The District Grand Master then handed the implements of the architect to Bro Frew, the District Grand Director of Works, with an appropriate charge. The District Grand Wardens then in turn presented the corn and wine to the District Grand Master, who used them at the proper time and in the prescribed manner. The District Grand Master then presented the oil to his Deputy, who disposed of it according to ancient usage, and with a most impressive and eloquent charge from the Grand Master to the brethren, the ceremony of consecration was concluded. At different parts of the ceremonies the choir sung appropriate hymns, accompanied on the organ by Bro. Wylde, who very ably performed the duty undertaken by him.

As the District Grand Master delivered his final charge he was surrounded by present and Past Masters, among whom on the dais were Bros. Kerr, W.M. of the Greymouth Lodge; Kent, the R.W.M. of the Grey River St. Andrew Lodge; Past Masters, Ancher, Moss, Cooper, Blackmore, Wylde, and Reid. When the District Grand Master, with his officers, had taken their departure, the lodge was closed in the form observed by both constitutions, and the brethren were dismissed.

This concluded the proceedings in connection with a ceremony which, for grand and impressive solemnity, and at the same time perfection in minute detail and arrangement, many of those who had the privilege of being present can scarcely ever hope to witness again.

The brethren afterwards met in the banqueting room, and partook of a cold collation, prepared by Bro. Jas. Johnston, in his usual first-class style, and at about eight o'clock in the evening, the brethren finally separated.

MASONIC BIOGRAPHY.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The name of Washington stands first on the roll of our country's history, for “first in war, and the first in peace, he was first in the hearts of his countrymen.” Heaven endowed him with the wisdom of the ages, and the virtues of his life were only equalled by the success of his patriotism. Without the vestige of any inordinate ambition, he became the leader of the people—the hero of liberty. Through the blood of revolution he ascended to an empire of fame and power, which has given him a name that ages cannot dim, or even time itself destroy.

He was honoured while living with the highest confidence of his fellow men, and, even now, when he has been dead for nearly three-fourths of a century, the state of his Masonic glory still shines with a lustre which the world cannot equal.

Many have wondered that among so many great and distinguished men who were his contemporaries, that he should be acknowledged so universally and pre-eminently the greater. Patrick Henry was more eloquent—John Adams was a better scholar, and Benjamin Franklin had more varied knowledge, and yet Washington was greater than them all.

It was not the heraldry of chivalry while he was Commander-in-Chief of our continental armies which had endowed him with such distinguished virtues, for as was well-known, his personal greatness had been already confessed, and it was this that had called him to the office.

When not yet quite 21 years of age Washington had been made a Mason, the law of admission at that time reading a little different from what it does now. It then required the applicant to be of “mature and discreet age.” This ancient requisition was a good one, and marked the measure of character far better than the mere years of majority. At nineteen Washington had received the commission of major in the army of the Colony of Virginia, and before he was made a Mason he had been appointed one of the executors of the estate of his brother Lawrence—with whom he had visited the West Indies, the only time in his life he was ever off the continent.

That Masonic knowledge had something to do with Washington's subsequent distinguished history and character, no one acquainted with the teachings of the Craft will for a moment doubt, for being honest and conscientious, and already of high character withal, he evidently gave heed to its numerous lessons of prudence and wisdom and made them the measure of his moral actions, as well as of his personal manners and spirit, through all his life-long responsibilities.

“November 4, 5752.—Received of Bro. George Washington, for his entrance £2. os. 3d.

“August 4, 5753.—George Washington raised Master Mason.”

The officers of the lodge serving at that time were R.W. Daniel Campbell, Master; John Neilson, Senior Warden, and Dr. Robert Halkerson, Junior Warden. The Holy Bible used on the occasion, it is said, is yet preserved. It is a small quarto bearing the imprint of John Field, printer to the Cambridge University, 1688. On the list of the membership of this old continental lodge are found the names of Brigadiers Hugh Mercer, (who fell at Princetown) George Weedon and William Woodford; of Col. John Jaringnan and Major Gustavus Brown Wallace, who were all officers of the revolutionary army. There also are the names of Gen. Edward Stevens, Governor Shottswood, Col. McWilliams, and Chief Justice John Marshall.

To be a Free and Accepted Mason in those early days of distinguished American history, required something more than the mere forms of initiation. The purer principles—the ennobling virtues—the sound philosophy and the high personal resolves—were all there to move the man—to give the development and to vindicate the sublime and ancient practice of the Order.

It is a little strange that the biographers of Washington have almost wholly ignored the fact that he was a Freemason. It may be that they did not think it necessary among the other multitudinous evidences of his goodness and greatness. But in taking such a course we think they were wrong, because Masonry doubtless had much to do with the purity and integrity, as well as with the general moral grandeur of his life's great success.

As is well known among American historians, the Masonic brotherhood had a lodge organized in the revolutionary army, which was called the “American Union Lodge,” and which was attached to the “Connecticut Lines” during most of the years of the war. With this lodge Washington met more than once. He assisted them in the celebration of St. John's Day, June 24th, 1778, and again on St. John the Evangelist's Day, December 27th of the same year.

The English soldiers, it seems, had also organized an army lodge, for on one occasion the American army captured a party of British soldiers, and in their possession was found the chest containing the jewels and furniture of a lodge of Freemasons, but as soon as this was made known to the Commander-in-Chief, he ordered them to be returned, with a note stating they were not legitimate trophies of war.

After the war was over, Washington was one of the Charter members to establish Alexandria Lodge, No. 22. His name headed the list. Governor Edmund Randolph, of Virginia, was then the Grand Master, and the warrant mentions the name of Washington as “our illustrious and well-beloved brother, George Washington, late General and Commander-in-Chief of the forces of the United States,” and bears date April 28th, 1788.

Washington's Masonic correspondence runs down to 1791, within one year of his death, showing that he never lost his first love, but that up to his last hours he never ceased his devotion to the ancient and honourable fraternity, to which he had given his name in his early young manhood, and to which he, no doubt, felt that he owed much of his physical and moral perfection during all his alter years. The bright example of such a distinguished member of the body should surely serve as a beacon light to all others through all coming years.

On many of the charts of our lodges he stands before us erect and properly clothed, as one who has properly exemplified the dignity of the fraternity, and given to the world evidence, which should be satisfactory, that the institution is worthy of the confidence and respect of all honourable minds. If it had not been so, George Washington would never have given it his life-long devotion. The favourable affirmation of one such witness who has testified from the inner walls of the Temple, is worth infinitely more than the intolerant accusations of ten thousand outside croakers, who never knew even the alphabet of the Masonic philosophy.

The index finger of Masonic integrity need but be pointed to Washington as one of its ardent and distinguished representatives to silence the guns of any intelligent opposition to Masonry the world may ever manifest, for his fame was no party myth, as his pre-eminent character was the product of the soundest principles as well as of the purest and wisest actions.

What he was as a man, a patriot, and sage, belongs to Masonry, in part at least, and therefore the Craft may rightfully present him to the eye of the present and coming ages as one whose distinguished memory is a portion of their inheritance.—Masonic Advocate.

THE CONSUMPTION OF COAL IN LONDON.—The accounts kept for the collection of the coal-tax show that the quantity of coal retained for consumption in the metropolitan district, with a population now of above four millions, was 5,133,567 tons in the year 1869, averaging 1 ton 7 cwt. 1 qr. and 7 lbs. per head; in 1870 it was 5,579,971 tons, or 1 ton and 9 cwt. 1 qr. head; in 1871 it was 5,810,789 tons, or 1 ton 9 cwt. 3 qrs. per head; and in 1872 it was 5,900,690 tons, or 1 ton 9 cwt. 2 qrs. per head.

Original Correspondence.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Excelsior, in your issue of the 16th, preaches the Christian doctrine that the injured should forget and forgive, but he omits to add that Christianity also teaches that contrition, confession, and restitution, should precede condonation. The beam in the eye of the offender, doubtless alluded to by your correspondent, not unfrequently blinds him to the importance of these obligations, and it is as well, therefore, that they should be imperatively insisted upon.

I entirely agree with Excelsior that a great deal of nonsense has been talked and written about the so-called Order of the Temple and Hospital by certain Masons who appear to have forgotten history and common sense in their efforts to rival the frog in the fable, and to convert the respectable body known as Masonic Templars into a chivalric windbag; and I am perfectly ready to assert, with Excelsior, that I "am not quite prepared to account for the tone of the letter published in your magazine" (sic) and supposed to be written by Sir Patrick Colquhoun.

However, no obligation rests upon either Excelsior or myself to do that which it is the duty of the individual chiefly interested to perform, and upon whose shoulders will rest the burden until due explanation may be afforded; neither can Excelsior, nor any other individual, persuade his brother Freemasons to let bygones be bygones, whilst the sin against them remains unacknowledged and unatoned.

Let Sir Patrick Colquhoun offer a disclaimer or an excuse for a letter, regarding which his friends and his opponents can have but one opinion, and let these "Knights" (who are not content to call themselves of the Temple alone, but in defiance of the societies must needs entitle themselves of the Hospital also) abjure the pretensions and the follies which have made them the laughing stocks par excellence of the 19th century, have seriously implicated an august and honoured personage, have caused disunion amongst the body universally known and respected as Masonic Templars, and have provoked the indignation of all those who have at heart the best interests of Freemasonry. Let them renounce the injurious and absurd aspirations to aristocratic exclusiveness indulged in so ludicrously by their would-be advocates, and be content once more with their modern origin, and to be "honest men and Masons," and then hope for Masonic forgiveness from their brother Masons, for their sins against their confrères and the Craft.

I am, yours faithfully
A MASONIC TEMPLAR.

FREEMASONRY IN IRELAND.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me, through you, to inform the author of the article entitled "Freemasonry in Ireland, by an English Mason," which occupies the position usually assigned to the leading article in your impression of the 16th instant, that he has (unintentionally, no doubt) considerably understated the result of the attempt which has, for the last five years, been making by a number of zealous members of our Order to establish a Masonic Orphan Boys' School in Ireland, as there are now sixteen orphan sons of our deceased brethren receiving the benefits of education and maintenance on the foundation of this charity, instead of the six or eight of which he speaks. I am sure the brother, for whose information I write, will be pleased to be thus set right, as he seems to be favourably inclined towards Irish Masonry, though endowed with a keen perception of some of the principal faults and blemishes in the government of our Order in this part of the kingdom. I may conclude this note by stating that the eminently zealous brother, to whom the founding of our Boys' School was originally due, has recently expressed his determination shortly to start a Widows

Annuity Fund, similar to our English benevolent institution, to which I cordially wish success.—

I am, fraternally yours,

AN ENGLISH AND IRISH MASON.

JACHIN AND BOAZ.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to Bro. Carpenter's reply, on page 538, respecting the above, our esteemed brother does not give reference to his previous article on the subject of Solomon's Temple, but as it is well worthy of perusal and reperusal, I would refer the brethren to page 539 of Vol. 3, of The Freemason, as not only is the question of the Pillars discussed, but also the number and position of the gates of the Temple, &c.

There are other passages which appear to me to show that the right hand coming out of the temple is intended, viz., I. Kings, xii. 39, where when speaking of the Brazen Sea it is said "and the sea was on the right side of the house Eastward over against the South, and in II. Chron. iv. 10, "and he set the sea on the right side of the East end over against the South." When it is remembered that the Holy of Holies was in the West, and that the Brazen Sea was in the inner court, just outside the holy place at the east end of the temple, the "East end against the South" must be on the right side in going out of the temple, and if this is so as regards the Brazen sea, it appears most likely the same rule would apply to when the pillars at the entrance of the Temple are spoken of.

KING SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been induced from a perusal of an admirable review in the Masonic Magazine of this month to purchase a few copies of the great Masonic poem, bearing the above title, by Bro. Duganne, of New York, published by our learned Bro. Markham Tweddell, of Stokesley, Yorkshire, and have been so much struck by its singular beauty that I hasten to advise all true Masons to get the poem and read it for themselves. The price is small (only 2d.), and the pleasure to be derived from its perusal by the brethren of the mystic tie will, I can fairly promise, be very great.

PASSING THE VEILS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you assist me in answering the following question, which has been put to me from a brother in Malta.

"A brother took his Mark Degree in Ireland, and the other day went to an Irish Chapter here (Malta), but they objected to him, as he had not passed the 'Veils;' he said he had, as it is a part of the Degree in Ireland, but they say nay. Who is right?"

I shall be glad to see an answer in your valuable paper, and enclose my card.

I remain, yours fraternally,

E.K.S., P.M. and P.Z.

UNDERSTAND YOUR AIMS.—I respect the man who knows distinctly what he wishes. The greater part of all the mischief of the world comes from the fact that men do not sufficiently understand their own aims. They have undertaken to build a tower, and spend no more labour on the foundation than would be necessary to erect a hut.—Gaelic.

"MEDICINAL EFFICACY FOR ANCESTRAL ERRORS."—Daily experience confirms the testimony borne to the benefits effected by Halloway's remedies in all descriptions of diseases which can in any manner be either at home or abroad. In cases of glandular or other complaints, arising from hereditary taints, the use of these healing and purifying remedies is always followed by the most gratifying results. The Ointment must be well rubbed upon the skin as near as possible to the ailing and aching part, and the Pills should be taken every night, by the mother (when purgative doses). These excellent medicines will then act in unison, quell the humors of life, re-establish order and purity throughout the system, and spare unnumbered sufferers from untimely death.—Advt.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Under this heading we think of starting a department for enquiry respecting old, scarce, and valuable works on Freemasonry; such as various editions of any important book, the differences in the editions, and the supply of title pages, &c., in case of any of the contributors having imperfect copies.

We hope to have the assistance of Masonic students generally, as such a department cannot fail to be of practical benefit to all Masonic bibliographers, and encourage an interest in the literature of the Craft.

ACCOUNT OF SCOTLAND 1702.

Can anyone inform us what authority Dr. Kloss had for saying that in a "Short Account of Scotland (being a description of the nature of that kingdom, and what the Constitution of it is in Church and State—London, Newborough)" is a remarkable Charter of the Brotherhood of Freemasons at Dundee, 1689? (No. 235 "Bibliographie der Freimaurerei.") A friend had a copy examined for us in the British Museum, but failed to discover such a charter.

MANIFESTO AND MASONS' CREED.

We have not succeeded in tracing a copy of this work, and shall be glad to be informed of its date and character through this department. It is alluded to in "Ahiman Rezon" of A.D. 1807, and is said to contain an account of the "Ben Jonson's Lodge" and its struggles.

It may be in Dr. Kloss' work, although, from a hasty examination, we did not notice it.

It is likely to furnish some facts of value as to the causes of the secession about 1738, which ultimately resulted in the institution of a rival Grand Lodge, and the invention of the Royal Arch as a separate degree.

JOHN CONSTOS AND HIS SUFFERINGS.

We have lately purchased a copy of a work, at the end of which is an imperfect copy of another book, which commences at Part the Second (page 23). "An Account of the Sufferings of John Constos for not Divulging the Secrets of Masonry." There are three engravings. Part the Third is mainly illustrative of the tendency of our symbols, &c. Then follow "Remarkable Occurrences; a list of Modern Lodges ending 585 (chesire) of 1799; and a "List of Ancient Lodges" without any dates.

We desire to know what was the title-page, and the contents of Part the First. We have found one page with a water-mark of 1803, and fancy the work must have been issued some eight years later. We are anxious to ascertain the year for which the "list of ancient lodges" is intended.

RAILWAYS REGULATION ACT.—The new Act on the regulation of railways has been printed. Returns are annually to be made to the Board of Trade in the form presented in the schedule. Within seven days of an inquest on a death arising from a railway accident, all coroners are to make returns to the Home Secretary. Without a further inspection of a railway the Board of Trade can delay the line being opened until the requirements of the board, for the public safety, are complied with.

SERIOUS SOVEREIGNS.—Some spurious sovereigns have recently appeared. They are made of platinum, gilt, and are almost identical in weight with the genuine coin; and, although upon examination they may be detected by ringing and by a sharp roughness of manufacture, they are calculated to deceive the public when carelessly taken.

A new telescopic comet was discovered at Milan by the well-known comet discoverer, Tempel, on the 3rd ult., a little after midnight, in the constellation Pisces. It was observed by Dr. Bruhns at Leipzig, on the 21st of July, being then in Cetus. He states that it somewhat elongated, with an eccentric condensation, a nucleus-like appearance, about two min. in diameter.

CROWTHER'S MNEMONICS.

Cloth, Post Free, 2s.

Extremely useful for easily imprinting upon the memory the dates of the chief Historical Events.

The system is likely to be very popular, young children are fond of it; and advanced students greatly value it.

"A most useful little work, the study of which would prevent common mistakes."—The Bookseller.

"Such a book cannot but be acceptable to everyone."—Barrow Pilot.

"There are more dates in Mr. Crowther's little two shilling book than ever a lad is taught at school; more than he could commit to memory in a twelvemonth; and yet, if he could enter into the system heartily, he would know the whole lot of dates in one week in such a way that most of them he would never forget."—Huddersfield Weekly News.

There are in connection with the College THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS, open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.
The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the PREPARATORY SCHOOL (entirely distinct, but contiguous) Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitioners, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D., F.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners; Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. Routledge, Esq., B.S.F.C.S., Manchester; also the Protestant Clergy, Nobility, and Professional Gentlemen (parents of present pupils) in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, Bognor, Preston, Burnley, Chester, Lancaster, Boston (Lincoln), Wigan, Harrowgate, Accrington, Haslingden, Kendal, Southport, Todmorden, &c., and various other towns; the Continent of Europe, the colonies, New York, and the United States, Brazil, Cuba, &c., who can bear ample testimony to the merits and success of this College.

Next term commences the 7th August, 1873.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CAMDEN LODGE (No. 704).—We regret to announce that the above lodge has sustained a sad loss in the death of the I.P.M., the highly esteemed and deeply regretted Bro. William Swatton, whose dissolution took place on Tuesday, the 12th inst., at Margate, whither he had gone in the vain hope of recovering his failing health. The lamented brother was initiated in the Camden Lodge in November, 1865 was appointed to office in July, 1868, and in May, 1872, was by the unanimous vote of the brethren elected to the Master's chair, upon his retirement from which in July last he was presented with a very handsome jewel as a token of respect and esteem, for during his year of office, and in fact throughout the whole of his career his kindness and urbanity were such as not only to endear him to every member of the lodge, but also to all with whom he was brought into contact. He was indeed a brother who felt and practised the highest and noblest principles of the Craft. His remains were interred at the Tower Hamlets Cemetery, Bow, on Monday, the 18th inst., in the presence of a numerous assemblage of mourning relations and friends, his lodge being represented by the following brethren:—Bros. J. N. Frost, P.M.; W. Meadway, P.M. and Sec.; Bro. G. A. Garratt, P.M.; W. Morrill, J.W.; and E. G. Morris. A special service was performed in the chapel in the most impressive manner by the Rev. Bro. D. Shaboe, M.A., Past Provincial Grand Chaplain of Suffolk and Middlesex, P.M. and Chaplain of Lodge Unity No. 183, P.Z. of the Yarborough Chapter, &c., during which, by the foresight of Bro. Garratt, P.M., and the kindness of the Reverend Chaplain, the coffin was surmounted by the traditional sprig of acacia, which, with the scroll, provided by the reverend brother, was interred with the remains in their final resting place.

WAVERTREE.—Duke of Edinburgh Lodge (No. 1182).—The brethren connected with this popular suburban lodge gathered in strong force at the Wavertree Coffee House, Wavertree, on Wednesday afternoon, the 20th inst., the principal business being the installation of Bro. J. W. Williams, the W.M. elect, and the investiture of officers. During the past year the prosperity of the lodge has been fully maintained, no fewer than 30 having been initiated; and as the working and general harmony of "The Duke of Edinburgh" have been maintained with Masonic zeal and true fraternal feeling, there has been nothing to detract from its position as one of the most successful local lodges. Consecrated in 1867, No. 1182 has steadily held its own amongst other lodges, and is now justly recognised a leading body of members in Masonry. The brethren were summoned to begin their Masonic duties at two o'clock, and punctual to the hour Bro. W. Pughe, W.M., commenced the exceedingly heavy business of the afternoon, by opening the lodge, supported by the following past and present officers and members:—Bros. P. R. Thorn, P.M.; J. Thornton, P.M.; W. Woods, P.M.; S. Cookson, P.M.; J. W. Williams, S.W.;

J. N. Edginton, J.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. G. Bales, Sec.; T. B. Myers, S.D.; R. Martin, jun., J.D.; J. C. Brew, I.G.; G. Scott, Org.; C. Llewellyn, S.S.; J. Williams, J.S.; W. Crawford, Tyler; Bros. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bros. Mugford and Hughes were duly passed by the W.M. The lodge was afterwards opened in the third degree, when Bro. Capt. Milledge was also efficiently raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. by the W.M. (Bro. Pughe). Not wearying in well-doing, Bro. Pughe next proceeded to instal Bro. J. W. Williams, as the W.M. of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, and the most effective manner in which he performed this impressive ceremonial, as well as the previous passing and raising, and the subsequent charges to the officers, reflected the highest credit upon his Masonic zeal, aptitude, and intelligence. The newly-installed W.M. invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. W. Pughe, I.P.M.; J. Edginton, S.W.; T. B. Myers, J.W.; W. Brown, Treas. (re-elected for the sixth time); J. G. Bales, Sec. (re-invested also for the sixth time); R. Martin, Jun., S.D.; J. Williams, J.D.; T. Davies, I.G.; G. Musker, S.; C. Llewellyn, S.; J. Thornton, P.M., M.C. On the motion of Bro. Thornton, seconded by Bro. Myers, Bro. G. Scott was unanimously re-elected Organist. Bro. W. Crawford, on the motion of Bro. Jacobs, seconded by Bro. Myers, was also re-elected Tyler for the sixth time. At the conclusion of the installation, the newly-chaired W.M. proceeded to initiate two candidates into the privileges and mysteries of the ancient fraternity, which he did in a most creditable and complete manner. The lodge was then closed according to established custom, and the brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent repast in the lodge room, which was all the more enjoyable after the arduous duties of the afternoon. Owing to the fact that the room was required for a bowling club dinner, the brethren separated immediately after the repast, without any toasts being proposed, although the brethren displayed their loyalty by singing the national anthem. On the following day (Thursday) the annual picnic of the brethren of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge was held at Mills' Great Eastern Pic-nic Hotel, New Ferry, which turned out an unqualified success and genuine treat for the "outers." The weather was splendid, the arrangements complete, and the general enjoyment unequalled. In respect to numbers, the Masonic pleasure gathering was the largest of the season. The first section of the party left the George's Landing stage at half-past twelve o'clock, and reinforcements arrived at New Ferry until the afternoon had far advanced. There were then upwards of 200 present on the grounds where the festival took place, among the principals being Bros. J. W. Williams, W.M. of the lodge, and the past and present officers:—Bros. J. Edginton, S.W.; S. B. Myers, J.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. C. Bales, Sec.; R. Martin, jun., S.D.; J. Williams, J.D.; T. Davies, I.G.; G. Scott, Org.; G. Masker, S.; C. Llewellyn, S.; J. Thornton, P.M., M.C.; W. Woods, P.M.; S. Cookson, P.M.; and the following visitors from local lodges:—Bros. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.G.C., W.M., 986; Rev. J. W. Lurton Burke, 369; S. E. Ibbs, P. Prov. G.S.B.; R. Ing, P.M. 594; E. Kyle, W.M. 673; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673; P. M. Larson, P.M. 594; R. Washington, J.W. 1094; F. Sargent, P.M. 594; N. Thoms, 1182; J. Dawson, 673 and 1299; N. Green, 241; P. Askew, 594; &c. The amusements provided for the large party were of the most varied and enjoyable character, chief amongst these being dancing, to the strains of Mills's New Ferry Band, croquet, bowls, &c., During the afternoon a number of donkey races were improvised by the brethren, and these were perhaps the most novel and entertaining of the whole programme. An excellent repast was provided for the company in the large hall of the grounds, and afterwards Bro. Williams, W.M., presented a very handsome P.M.'s jewel to Bro. W. Pughe, I.P.M., bearing the following inscription:—"Presented by the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, No. 1182, to Bro. W. Pughe, as a token of their esteem, being the first W.M. who was initiated therein."—Bro. Pughe, in the course of a pointed and excellent speech, acknowledged the presentation, and referred to the substantial benefits to be derived from the principles of Freemasonry. The ladies and brethren afterwards joined in the merry dance and other amusements, and the majority returned to Liverpool by the special boat at eleven o'clock.

Batten, P.G.A.D.C., Middlesex, I.P.M. The minutes of the lodge meeting, held on Saturday, July 26th, were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of the candidates for initiation at the September meeting. Bros. Capt. J. H. Dodd and Bryceson, were passed to the Fellow Craft's degree. Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M., and Secretary, took the chair. He raised Bro. R. Jennings, Royal Albert Lodge, 907, to the third degree. He initiated Messrs. J. R. Boyce, and D'Arcy, into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. The work of all the degrees was done in a superior manner. One brother proposed as a joining member for September meeting. Three gentlemen proposed for initiation at the October meeting. Letters of apology were received from Bros. E. W. Richardson, W.M.; E. Sillifant, P. Prov. G.D., Middlesex, P.M., Treasurer, and C. H. Rushworth, J.D., excusing and regretting their absence, which was caused by circumstances beyond their own control, also from Bros. J. C. Parkinson, D.P.G.M., Middlesex, P.M.; and E. W. Mackney, W.M. 134. Business being ended the lodge was closed until Saturday, September 27th Refreshment followed labour

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—On Saturday, 16th August, the regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Red Lion Bro. William Hammond, P.M. 201, W.M., opened the lodge. He was supported by Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.G. Steward, S.W.; J. W. Jackson, J.W.; S. Wickens, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.M., Prov. Grand Steward Middlesex, Sec.; J. C. Woodrow, P.M., as S.D.; J. Ridge, 1194; and others. The minutes of two meetings were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Bros. T. James, 60, W. Y. Laing, P.M. 45; S. Hill, P.M. 157; E. Mallett, I.G. 141; G. Harrison, 820; and J. McNaughton, 871, as joining members, and of Messrs J. V. Watkins, W. Prattout, add J. Laurence, as candidates for initiation at the next meeting of the lodge in September. The heavy agenda paper was relieved of a small portion of its work by the initiation of Mr. W. Warhurst, and passing of Bros. J. R. Croft, and R. Carne. The Worshipful Master feeling somewhat fatigued, resigned his seat as W.M. to his brother, Bro. John Hammond, P.M. 201, who proved his proficiency by the excellent manner in which he raised Bros. B. Meyer and G. S. Streeton to the third degree. The W.M. resumed the chair, and presided over the lodge or the remainder of the evening. He with his brother, did the work in a superior manner, which was pleasant and agreeable to witness. They proved themselves to be worthy scions of the well known good working "Jordan" Lodge, No. 201, which has numbered so many well known distinguished Masons amongst its Past Masters. The brethren unanimously recommended the Treasurer, Bro. S. Wickens, P.M., for office, and the W.M., Bro. W. Hammond, for Stewardship in the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex for 1874. A large number of joining members and candidates for initiation were proposed. A committee to revise bye-laws, also other business of the lodge was formed. The lodge was closed and declared a journeé until Thursday, September, 19th, 1873. Refreshment followed labour.

TORQUAY.—Jordan Lodge (No. 1402).—The brethren of Jordan Lodge, 1402, Torquay, met at the Masonic Hall, on the 21st, for the purpose of installing as W.M. for the ensuing year, Bro. John Chapman, who was honoured on the occasion with the presence of the much esteemed Provincial Grand Master of Devon, Bro. Huyshe, and the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Metham. There was a numerous attendance of brethren from various parts of the country, and amongst those present were:—The Provincial Grand Master of Devon, Bro. the Rev. J. Huyshe; The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. L. P. Metham; T. Perry, W.M., 1402; J. Chapman, S.W., 1402; L. M. F. Sarre, Sec. 1402; P. Karkeek, S.D., 1402; M. G. Rice, Organist 1402; T. Morgan, I.G., 1492; C. Johns, Tyler, 1402; W. A. Goss, P.M.; R. H. Rae, P.M. and Secretary, 189, P.G.S.D.; J. Brown, P.M., 1099, P.P.G.P.; H. W. Hooper P.M., 1254, P.G.R.; John Way, P.M., 39, P.P.G. Treasurer; P. D. Michelmore, W.M., 1138; B. H. Pescott, W.M., 789; D. Watson, 328; C. Mutton, 1205; J. Dodge, J. Paul, W. Bradnee, and others. Bro. Perry, the W.M. for the past year, performed the impressive ceremony of installation, with very great efficiency and ability, whilst the charges were given to the W.M. elect, and the Wardens by Bro. Rae, P.G.S.D., and this having been done, the Worshipful Master appointed his officers for the year ensuing, as follows:—Bro. Perry, I.P.M., Treasurer; Bro. J. Murray, S.W.; P. Karkeek J.W.; the Rev. J. P. Foster; Chaplain; L. M. Sarre, S.D., and Hon. Secretary; Morgan, J.D.; P. M. Harland, D.C.; W. A. Goss, A.D.C.; Rice, Organist; J. Dodge, Inner Guard; C. Johns, Tyler. A very interesting and pleasing feature in connection with the proceedings, was the presentation of a splendid Past Master's jewel, to Bro. Perry, by the Prov. Grand Master of Devon, on behalf of the lodge. This presentation was made as a recognition of the ability and the courtesy which Bro. Perry has at all times shown in the discharge of his many and difficult duties during his year of office—the first year of the lodge's existence, and in presenting the jewel the Prov. G.M. remarked that the worthy I.P.M. had strictly adhered to the duties which he took upon himself when he was first elected and had thoroughly conformed to all those regulations to which he at that time so cordially assented. By so doing he had gained for himself the esteem, the respect, and the love of his fellow Masons, and they could not shew this better than by presenting him with the beautiful jewel which he (Bro. Huyshe) had now the pleasure of handing to him. Amidst loud applause the Prov. G.M. then pinned the jewel on the breast of Bro. Perry, and the latter, in returning thanks, assured the brethren that it was his duty to govern the lodge had been feeble and unsteady they had, at any rate, been hearty and sincere. It was a matter of the greatest gratification to him to be able to say that during his year of office they had never had one single word which could by any means be considered as approaching to unpleasantness—(hear, hear)

—but the whole business of the lodge had been conducted with the utmost good feeling and unanimity—(applause). The thanks of the brethren were given to Bro. Goss for the gift of a very handsome frame for the charter of incorporation of the lodge; the Prov. G.M., the D.P.G.M., and the visiting brethren were thanked for their presence, and the lodge was then closed in due form. At a later hour the brethren partook of an excellent banquet at the Queen's Hotel, under the presidency of the newly installed W.M., Bro. Chapman. After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed. The health of the Prov. G.M. was most cordially drunk and the welcome with which he was always greeted amongst Masons in the province made the arduous office which he held a pleasure rather than a burthen to him. It certainly was a very laborious office, and in another week he should have to do that which, of all the duties he had to perform, was the most burdensome, viz., to appoint the officers for the Prov. Grand Lodge. But in this task he was ably assisted by the D.P.G.M. and others, and in all the appointments that he made he did his best to be thoroughly and strictly impartial—(hear, hear). But the brethren must recollect that while there were 44 lodges in the province, there were only eleven or twelve offices to be filled, and if they bore this in mind they would readily appreciate the extreme difficulty of the task which he had to perform. He could only say that the few honours which were at his disposal he always considered it his duty to give to those who worked hard and deserved them—(applause). Bro. Metham, D.P.G.M., briefly responded to the toast of his health, which was warmly received, and the Prov. Grand Master, in proposing the next toast said he attended Jordan Lodge that day with more than usual pleasure. He liked to see the Master of a lodge remember the solemn duties which he had to perform, and he liked to see those duties done as they ought to be done. He had seen that done to-day by their excellent I.P.M., Bro. Perry, who certainly performed the somewhat difficult ceremony of installation in a way which he did not find excelled in any of the lodges of the country. Certainly he did not expect to see it done so well in a lodge so young as the Jordan Lodge, and he congratulated the brethren on having had such a Master during the past year. He also congratulated them on the excellent selection of W.M. for the ensuing year, which they had that day made, because one who had received such tuition and such education as had been given by the worthy brother who had just vacated the chair could not fail to fill the office with satisfaction to all concerned. Although the Jordan Lodge was so young, it had already shown itself to be a lodge conducted upon true and faithful Masonic principles. It had endeavoured to do its duty without allowing itself to be carried away by a wish to largely increase its numbers, irrespective of the quality of those who were introduced into the lodge, and he wished to impress upon all Masons that they should not seek to get anyone and everyone into their lodges. For himself, he should be exceedingly glad if the Grand Lodge would double the entrance fee; they would then have a very different class of men in the Order. It was really a bad principle to look simply to the filling of their books with numbers. If a man put a bad stone into a building it was by no means an easy thing to take it out again. But it must come out unless they wished to mar the beauty of the whole building, and how was the mistake to be remedied? Why, by never letting the stone go in—(hear, hear, and applause). Never let them put an evil stone into a building, and then they would raise and erect a temple fit and proper for habitation—(hear, hear). This was why they had raised their fee above that of every other lodge in the province, and he congratulated them very much upon having done so, because it was the way to keep them select. It might perhaps be said, in opposition to such a course as this, that Masonry was universal, and therefore ought not to be kept select, but he did not consider that there was anything in the argument. Masonry was universal, it was true, in its principles, but in its members it was select, and ought to be select—(hear, hear). The R. W. brother concluded by proposing, in complimentary terms, the health of the W.M.—(applause). The W.M., in returning thanks, said that the sole object which they had in view in starting the Jordan Lodge, was that of raising the standard of Freemasonry, and so far, he was happy to say, their efforts had been crowned with success. In the formation of a second lodge, it was quite natural that there would be opposition, and especially as the new lodge started with the intention of admitting a better element than the candidates indicated in the old one. In dealing with that opposition, in a true Masonic spirit, he was pleased to find that the exercise of that spirit had contributed towards the ultimate success of the undertaking, and now at the first anniversary of the lodge, they were honoured by the patronage of the most distinguished Masons in the province. He (the W.M.) wished to express the indebtedness of the lodge to the wise counsels and constant support of their R.W. Provincial Grand Master, who was an honorary member of the lodge, and had ever shown himself ready to second their efforts. After acknowledging the complimentary terms tendered by the Provincial Grand Master in proposing the toast, he (the W.M.) proceeded to give "The Health of the Immediate Past Master," who had acquitted himself so creditably during his year of office, and who had at its close so satisfactorily conducted the installation of his successor. The I.P.M., Bro. T. Perry, replied briefly, and in terms that manifested deep attachment to the lodge, and expressed his indebtedness to the W.M. for the manner he had proposed his health, and hoped that the future of the lodge would fully realize the anticipations of its founders. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the W.M., Officers, and Members of the Sister Lodge," W. Bro. D. Watson, I.P.M. 328, responded, thanking the W.M. of the Jordan Lodge for the fraternal spirit he had kindly manifested towards the lodge of which he was the Immediate Past Master, and intimated that as far as he was able he should try to get St. John's Lodge to reciprocate the sentiments so kindly tendered. W. Bro. T. Perry then gave "The Health of the Visitors," which was responded to by Bros. P. D. Michelmore, W.M. No. 1238; R. H. Rae, P.G.S.D., Hon. Sec. No. 189; and D. Watson, I.P.M. 328. Bro. P. Q. Karkeek, J.W., expressed his wish to see the lodge take that position which would be calculated to improve the mental, as well as the moral standing of its members, and considered that the effort of those who had charge of the lodge should be to endeavour to secure this very desirable object. He was very glad that the lodge had by its bye laws strictly prohibited any refreshments at the meetings of the lodge, and trusted that the true principles of the Order would be faithfully carried out in the every-day life of the members. The Tyler's toast, given by Bro. C. Johns, in terms that indicated the spirit of Freemasonry, brought the meeting to a close.

Mark Masonry.

CARNARVON LODGE OF MARK MASTERS (No. 119).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the White Hart Hotel, Brislington, on Thursday, August the 21st. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. W. A. Scott, at 5 o'clock. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. J. B. Halford, as a joining member from the Amity Mark Lodge No. 132, also Bro. The ballot being unanimous in every case, and five of the brethren being in attendance, and having signed the required declaration, they were severally introduced and advanced to the honourable degree of M.M.M.'s, with full ceremonial, in accordance with the new ritual. The brethren present expressed their great satisfaction at the introduction of the new ritual, and were advised by the W.M. to procure a copy each, so that by the next meeting they might be perfect in their part of the ceremony. Reviews.

Bro. D. Murray Lyon's History of the Lodge of Edinburgh, No. 1.

For some months we have been expecting the advent of the most important contribution to Masonic literature of this eventful period in the Craft's history; now our hopes are realized, and there lies before us not only the handsomest, but also the most readable volume which has ever been published, respecting the "Rise and Progress of Freemasonry in Scotland." Containing as it does over 400 pages, printed most beautifully by Messrs. Blackwood and Sons, and profusely illustrated, the really splendid work by Bro. D. Murray Lyon cannot be done justice to, even in a carefully prepared review, and therefore we are anxious to induce our readers not to rest satisfied with the following brief notice of its varied contents, but to procure copies for themselves whilst they are obtainable. Published under the patronage of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G. ("Patron of the Order" in Scotland), and dedicated to the Right Hon. the Earl of Dalhousie, K.T., G.C.B. (P.G.M.), we should say that the author and publishers have obtained every influence requisite to ensure success; we predict a rapid sale of the volumes as yet unsubscribed for, and confidently anticipate one hearty and unanimous expression of approval of Bro. Lyon's labours by the fraternity and Masonic press of both hemispheres.

The portraits are so numerous and excellent, that it would almost be invidious to select any for particularization. To many, no doubt the full page engravings will form the chief attraction in the series, they are the Earl of Dalhousie (forming the frontispiece, by Jeans, from a photograph), the Duke of Athol, John Whyte Melville, Esq., Earl of Rosslyn, Earl of Haddington, Earl of Zetland, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. There are more than fifty other portraits, engraved by our able Bro. Robert Paterson, forming an attractive gallery of living and deceased Masonic celebrities, the like of which has not hitherto been produced. In fac-similes the work is especially rich, and certainly, whether we consider the admirable and faithful lithographs by Ritchie, or the unique and curious originals, the publishers have offered us a rare combination of gems in art and antiquity.

Commencing with the beginning and concluding portions of the Schaw Statutes of 1598, and the oldest minute of the Lodge of Edinburgh, July, 1599, the artist pictures to us the exact appearance of these old records, and reproduces all the chief documents mentioned by the author including the "Letter of Jurisdiction to William St. Clair," of 1600 (in full), the very large "Letter of Jurisdiction to Sir William St. Clair of 1628," various commissions, seals, marks, portions of M.S. charges, and lodge records from the sixteenth century. Apart altogether from the novelty of the foregoing, their value in assisting the studies of the literary members of the Craft cannot well be over estimated.

Having thus, by way of introduction, referred to what may be termed the ornamental part of the book, it is needful we should glance at the History itself.

No one familiar with Masonic literature for the last and present decades of this century, can fail to have been impressed with the voluminous, instructive, and most valuable character of Bro. D. Murray Lyon's contributions, and they at least will not wonder that his honorary and honourable connection with the Masonic press for many years has culminated in the production of the massive and well-written "History of the Lodge of Edinburgh," and the publication of a work, which will always be regarded as the chef d'œuvre of Masonic research and information.

Those who expect nothing more than an account of the lodge of Edinburgh will be most agreeably surprised on turning over the pages of the book to find a history of the several ancient lodges in Scotland, and, in fact, an epitomized narration of the progress of Freemasonry in North Britain for the last three centuries, including a sketch of the "hautes grades" and fanciful degrees which were so eagerly sought after about a hundred years ago.

Brother Lyon disposes of the so-called "Hereditary Grand Mastership" of the St. Clairs, by demonstrating such a title to be wholly foreign to the text of the "Letters of Jurisdiction" of 1600 and 1628 (circa). The latter was mainly a confirmation of the older document, and both are silent as to the Grand Mastership. Hence, so far from affording corroboration of the appointment by James II. of William St. Clair, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, to the office of hereditary Grand Master (as Bro. W. A. Laurie claims), Bro. Lyon shows that "on the contrary, they furnish a pretty conclusive refutation of the statement."

It would be strange indeed for a brother to be Grand Master of the Masons prior to his initiation, and yet such must have been the case with William St. Clair, if we receive the fable, for he was not accepted a member of the Lodge Canongate Kilwinning until May 18, 1735, and on the 2nd of the following month was "advanced to the degree of Fellow Craft." Bro. Lyon establishes the important fact "that more than a year before the date at which St. Clair is alleged to have formally intimated his intention of resigning the Masonic protectorate, and several months prior to his admission into the Order, the creation of a Grand Mastership for Scotland had been mooted among the brethren." It should also be remembered, that whilst the first of these Letters of Jurisdiction purports to be drawn by the Deacons, Masters, and Freemen of the Scottish Masons, the second is the joint production of the "Masons and Hammermen within the kingdom of Scotland."

It is thus evident, as Bro. Hughan, the well known Masonic historiographer, has frequently observed, the office of "Grand Master was a creation of the Revivalists of A.D. 1717."

The Acts of the Scottish Parliament, ancient the Crafts and Incorporations, are carefully traced by Bro. Lyon, and their bearings with respect to the Freemasons accurately weighed and considered indeed the complete manner in which the early history of the Masonic lodges in Scotland is treated by our brother, is amply sufficient to enable one quite a stranger to their career to become generally familiar with the salient points in their eventful history, and many of their proceedings are so graphically described, that the reader cannot fail to be interested and instructed as he proceeds with the perusal of the records.

The great feature in the work is its readable character. Dry accounts of lodge meetings, confused particulars as to the origin of lodges, and questionable statements as to the antiquity of certain offices, degrees, and ceremonies, are all touched by the "magic wand" of the historian, and changed into a compact and harmonious narrative of the sayings and doings of the early Craft, every evidence being fitted into its proper place, and the whole cemented together by a master mind and skilful Mason. The "Schaw Statutes" of 1598-9, and the M.S. of the "Acheson-Haven" and "Edinburgh-Kilwinning," as also numerous other curious and valuable documents, are to be found in the volume, and what is more, every needful particular is furnished as to the period when such were granted, written or promulgated.

We have not been able to discover one event of importance in relation to Freemasonry in Scotland which has been omitted, but so far as our researches have gone we have found every special event which has occurred during the mainly operative period of the Craft, and all the salient points in subsequent proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Scotland and its daughter lodges, to be faithfully portrayed by Bro. D. Murray Lyon, and described in such an efficient, accurate, and happy manner that we do not hesitate to style the author of such a work the "Masonic Historian of Scotland," a title he has earned for himself prior to the issue of the present volume.

The records of the Lodge of Edinburgh commence July 1599, and extend to six volumes, all of which are in excellent preservation. No other lodge occupies so favourable a position in this respect, either in Scotland or the sister kingdoms of England and Ireland. The earliest authentic minute of a non-operative (or gentleman) being a member of a Mason-lodge is to be found in the records of this ancient lodge, viz.—John Boswell, Esq., 8th day of June, A.D. 1600.

On the 3rd day of July, 1634, the Right Hon. Lord Alexander, was "admitted folowe off the Craft," and on the same day Sir Alexander Strachan, Bart, and Sir Anthony Alexander, were similarly distinguished. Several other speculatives are chronicled as being initiated a few years subsequently, and it is "worthy of remark that, with singularly few exceptions, the non-operatives who were admitted to Masonic Fellowship in the Lodges of Edinburgh and Kilwinning during the seventeenth century were persons of quality, the most distinguished of whom, as the natural result of its metropolitan position, being made in the former lodge."

General Alexander Hamilton was made a member of the Lodge of Edinburgh, May 20, 1640, and took part in the initiation of Quarter-Master-General Robert Moray, at Newcastle, in May, 1641, when that town was occupied by the Scottish army. This most singular admission of a Mason in a town in England, by members of the Lodge of Edinburgh, (and which initiation was subsequently acknowledged to be lawful by the brethren of the Lodge) has entirely been overlooked by all those who preceded Bro. Lyon in scrutinising the ancient records, yet one of more value cannot be found in all the minutes. Sir Patrick Hume (afterwards Earl of Marchmont) joined the Lodge on St. John's Day, 1667, the Right Hon. William Murray on June 24, 1670, and so also was Sir John Harper. On the 27th December, 1679, several brethren, for "taken upon them to passe and enter several gentlemen without licence or commission from this place," were severely censured and made to suffer some of the penalties of transgression for a season. Up till the year of the Revolution, in favour of William Prince of Orange, Bro. Lyon tells us the Lodge of Edinburgh seems to have been in undisturbed possession of the metropolis and its seaport as the field of its labours. In 1677 a number of Masons started the Canongate Lodge by representing themselves as "one part" of the mother Kilwinning, which in reality they were not. In 1685 several Masons formed themselves into a lodge for Leith and the Canongate, and thus gradually the monopoly enjoyed by the Lodge of Edinburgh was gradually and surely undermined, and prepared the way for the final overthrow of its exclusive jurisdiction by the "Journey-men" in 1712. Not that its privileges were surrendered quietly, or without many severe struggles, but nothing could withstand the growing conviction that one lodge only for the city of Edinburgh was neither just nor desirable.

During the formation of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, which was in all probability a result of the visit of Dr. Desaguliers to that country, many very curious incidents are referred to by the historian, and as the time arrived when even the Grand Lodge itself was put on its trial, and a dissolution of that body was threatened, our readers will see that Bro. Lyon has no lack of stirring events to chronicle. We must not omit to mention that capital biographical sketches of distinguished Freemasons are interspersed throughout the work, and are a most attractive addition to its contents, neither must we neglect to notice the excellent index which accompanies the volume, and increases its usefulness as a work of reference. Contrary to the desire of the author, but certainly in accordance with the wishes of the subscribers, a really good portrait of Bro. D. Murray Lyon heads the "contents," and only the life of that able brother is wanting to complete the book. We are glad to see his friend, Bro. William James Hughan, has supplied this desideratum in an appreciative and lengthy review of the history in question, to which we beg to refer our readers, and which we are likely to reprint.

We cannot conclude better than by recommending every Master of a lodge to introduce this grand work to his brethren, and every brother should seek to promote its sale.

The Trustees' Guide. Cracroft's Investment Tracts: published by Edward Stanford, Charing Cross, price 1s.

This excellent and very cheap "Guide" is a synopsis of the ordinary powers of trustees in regard to investments, with practical directions and tables of securities, British, colonial, foreign, and miscellaneous. To investors this work will prove invaluable. It gives the amount of issue of every class of stocks and shares; the company, rates of interest, description of option, date when interest is payable, date of termination, and prices from 1868 to the present time. The legal portion has been superintended by counsel of high standing. Few books, probably if any, containing so great an amount of condensed and carefully digested fact, have been presented to a public at so reasonable a price.

Skin Diseases: An enquiry into their parasitic origin, and connection with eye affections; also the fungoid or germ theory of cholera; by Jabez Hogg, Surgeon to the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital, &c., London: Baillière, Tindall, and Cox.

The frontispiece shows: fungi taken on a glass slide exposed to a current air; algoid filaments growing in distilled water; healthy yeast-cells from sweet-wort, a little too dark in colour, and too full of granular matter, &c.

The writer gives some able remarks on the aim of modern medicine; the rise and progress of a vegetable parasitic theory of disease, to which is added a table of diseases of supposed parasitic origin. Page 9 commences with:— the anatomical structure of the skin. The skin is composed of three layers, the epidermis or cuticle, the dermis or true skin, and the subcutaneous cellular tissue. It is largely supplied with blood-vessels, nerves, glands, and adipose tissue. Muscular fibres are found in the superficial layer of the dermis in close connection with the hairs of the body. In some of the lower animals, as the cat tribe, mouse, &c., these muscles are arranged in bands about the nose, and they serve to erect the hairs and convert them into sensitive tactile organs. From page 20-90 it gives chapters on parasitic diseases: the atmospherical conditions necessary for their production, botanical description of fungi and yeast plant, simplicity of structure of fungi and mildews; ravages occasioned by them in the vegetable and animal kingdoms mode of destruction explained, various opinions on the nature of parasitic diseases of the skin, porrigo, scutulata, ringworm, description of disease, and treatment; cases examined under the microscope, ophthalmia, pustular conjunctivitis, description of disease, overcrowding as a cause in government pauper schools and school hospitals; treatment; Mycetoma, fungus—foot disease of India, conclusion arrived at after a survey of parasitic diseases of the skin, &c. In the latter part of the book is given a chapter on cholera and other diseases, containing fungoid or organic germ; theory of cholera. The vital germ, and physical theories of disease explained, Dr. Tytler's, supposed discovery of the cause of cholera; Dr. Wallace, Dr. Mitchell, and other authors' fungus theories, &c. In concluding, the writer says—

"So much remains to be done in this difficult inquiry, and so many doubtful points require clearing up before it can be truly said cholera or any other form of disease has its origin in a fungoid growth, that, if we are not more cautious, we shall find the cholera contagion what Borek has aptly described it to be—"the infusoria chaos of the intestines." He further remarks,—"if any one is determined to furnish a formula for cholera, he may take bad air, bad water, sewer emanations, floating stinks, germs if you please, bad ventilation, with perhaps with a dozen or two more evils, which are all more or less concerned in originating the disease." He shows that the prime occasion for its development is a mass of human beings aggregated together, either in towns in barracks, or in the country, into a sufficiently limited area of mud, gravel, granite, large and imposing structures, crowded courts, alleys, cellars, or attics, and the necessary conditions for cholera as well as other zymotic diseases are provided. Altogether it is one of the most complete works we ever saw on skin diseases. We heartily commend it to our readers' patronage.

The Revising Barrister for the City of London will open his court on the 23rd of September.

ST. JOHN'S GATE.—The following letter appears in the Clerkenwell News:—Sir, "A rumour is being extensively circulated that this house is to be restored at the expense of the English Order of St. John, to whom it is stated it has been sold. The property was purchased of Mr. Wickens by a private gentleman, a client of our house, and not by the Order of St. John. That gentleman is a member of the English branch of the Order, and this may, in some measure account for the report; but though it is hoped that the Old Gate House may ultimately become the property of that body, it is intended for the present to keep it open as an old-fashioned tavern, under management which we hope will satisfy the numerous literary and other clubs which have for so many years been connected with the locality. As the statement that the house is about to be closed is likely to do the business considerable harm we shall be obliged by your finding room in your columns for this explanation of the real state of the matter.—We are, sir, yours, &c., Chapman and Turner."

CENTENARY OF THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.—The Grand Orient of France has issued a circular to all its lodges, and to all Masons in correspondence with it, of its intention to celebrate the centenary of the establishment of the Grand Orient of France. The celebration will take the form of a fête and banquet, on the 27th September, during the session of the General Assembly. The Grand Orient invites all Masonic bodies in correspondence to send deputations, and relies upon a numerous attendance in reply to the invitation. The Grand Orient considers that the occasion of its centenary will afford the opportunity of a reunion of brethren of all rites, for the purpose of renewing the bonds which exist between the great Masonic family.

THE DIVINE OMNIPRESENCE.

"Let us remember that wherever we are, and whatever we do, He is with us, and His all-seeing eye beholds us."—Masonic Charge.

The Sacred Symbol consecrates the Lodge,
And thoughts inspire which lift the heart above,
Suggesting that 'tis holy ground we tread,
Where all is harmony—all peace and love.
We're there reminded of the truth sublime,
That He who all things made, now fills all space;
In all things lives, and animates the whole,
Ruling and guiding in every place.
Where'er we are, whate'er we say or do,
His eye beholds, for He is with us ever,
To check the evil, and to crown the good,
To strengthen and to aid each high endeavour.
Oh, Lord omnipotent, as good as great,
Who wert, and art, and evermore shalt be!
Let Thy good Spirit rule within our hearts,
That all our doings may be bless'd by Thee!
Then shall we ever in uprightness walk,
Our obligations ne'er forgotten be,
But so controlling us, in heart and life,
That all may learn from what in us they see.
There's nothing selfish in our mystic band, There's nothing difference makes among our kind,
Our brothers first, but only first, we aid,
That aid we'd give alike to all mankind.
'Tis thus we'd imitate our common Lord,
Whose sun shines forth on evil and on good,
Whose rain refreshes both unjust and just,
Though some, through life, His goodness have withstood.
Oh, Lord Omnipotent, give us the grace
To do Thy will, as holy angels do,
That others seeing, in our steps may tread
And thus the reign of righteousness renew.

A CALIFORNIAN LANDOWNER.—Dr. Glenn, of Colusa County, owns a ranch which contains nearly 45,000 acres. It embraces a frontage of 18 miles on the Sacramento River, and extends back about five miles. It is enclosed and divided by 140 miles of fencing. One tenant, G. W. Hoog, rents and cultivates about 10,000 acres of the land, and the Gupton Brothers cultivate an equal portion. Some 15,000 acres are rented out to a number of farmers who work on a smaller scale. At the present time Hoog is engaged in cutting 7,000 acres of wheat and barley. The crop this year will yield about 20 bushels per acre of wheat. In favourable seasons the yield has been about 35 bushels. The yield of barley is considerably larger. The total crop will amount to nearly 180,000 bushels. He is thrashing his grain with one of Case's 48-inch cylinder thrashing machines, which is run by a 20 horse-power steam engine. To supply this machine requires six large headers and 18 header wagons, which require the labour of 110 horses and 50 men. The machine has thrashed five sacks of barley per minute, at which rate it has run for an hour and a half in succession. It has also thrashed 32 sacks of wheat in seven minutes. It will require about six weeks to thrash the entire crop. These are the operations of Hoog alone. Gupton Brothers have an equally large crop, and are driving business on about the same scale. The smaller tenants are equally well employed.—Sacramento Union.

HOWEVER HIGH THE TEMPERATURE, however impregnated with impurities, air, food, or beverages may be, no one need be helpless, hopeless, or powerless. Apathy, restlessness, headache, giddiness and parched skin, warn mankind that a feverish attack has begun, which neglect will intensify if the sufferer fail to resort early to Holloway's purifying and regulating pills or some such corrective medicine. Holloway's Pills meet all the disarrangements of the circulation and nervous centres with efficiency and safety, and through these patent auxiliaries they are competent to check advancing maladies and to conquer threatened perils. Holloway's Medicine is particularly useful to people past their climatic age, when energies begin to wane, and various organs of the body become capricious in their functions.—ADVT.

A NOVEL EXPERIMENT.—The National Temperance League have successfully made a novel experiment at the manœuvres on Dartmoor, and are about to repeat it at Cannock Chase. With the sanction of the military authorities they opened a temperance commissariat for the benefit of the soldiers, and have worked it so well as to make up to some extent for the deficiencies of the Control Department. Commencing at five o'clock in the morning, they have all day long supplied hot coffee and tea, in addition to most things eatable and drinkable which savour not of alcohol. In other respects the "Temperance Camp" has offered far better accommodation to the soldiers than the ordinary canteen, the men being able not only to obtain stationery and stamps, but having a tent placed at their disposal for recreation, reading, and writing. The "camp" appears to have supplied about 100 gallons of coffee and four gallons of tea a-day in 1d. cups, and at certain hours of the day demands upon its resources have been very severe. The experiment has been made under the direction of a Miss Robinson, assisted by an earnest and competent staff, and officers and men alike have largely and thankfully availed themselves of the advantages which it conferred. At considerable personal trouble, too, Miss Robinson has rushed in where the postal officials feared to tread, and has earned the gratitude of many a soldier's wife by sending to Plymouth for post-office orders for the men, neither the camp postmaster nor the Postmaster-General, though memorialised on the subject, caring to make the necessary arrangements. Writing to the Secretary of the League on August 14th, Miss Robinson says that on the previous Saturday she had sent in for forty orders, amounting to over £25, and adds, "Last year the soldiers' wives left behind in garrison suffered much from being unable to get remittances from their husbands, and the men as a rule take no money back, saying that they may as well spend it as lose it." It is scarcely necessary to observe that the temperance caterers have seized every available opportunity of spreading the principles of the League, and as they started by securing in an eminently practical way the sympathies of the men, they have succeeded in making a very fair number of converts.—Times, 21st August, 1873

A CONSUMERS' STRIKE.—In these days of high prices it is impossible to tell what form combination may take, and it is interesting to watch its development as it extends from one class to another, and is even snatched up as a weapon of defence in out-of-the-way places under the pressure of emergency. It seems that at Builth, a Welsh watering place, the other day, the visitors, maddened by the exorbitant charges of the local tradesmen, determined on a "strike" and accordingly convened a meeting on the public recreation ground of the place, where they discussed their grievances and decided on their plan of action. Bitter complaints were made of the high prices charged by shopkeepers and hotelkeepers, and it was ultimately resolved that unless the charge for butter was reduced nearly 50 per cent, and the price of ham brought down to that at which it could be obtained at Cardiff, they (the visitors) would totally abstain from the use of those articles of consumption. The meeting was then adjourned, after a committee had been formed to wait upon the tradesmen and inform them of the determination that had been arrived at. There can be little doubt that this system of "striking" against the charge of certain articles which have hitherto been of daily use will in a short time become common, owing to the impossibility of meeting the exorbitant demands of retail dealers. People are beginning to find out that many of what are termed "necessaries" are in fact luxuries, which can be easily dispensed with without serious discomfort or inconvenience. The style of living has of late years become far too extravagant among all classes of society, and the present high prices will be not without their compensation, if they induce simpler habits than those which have done so much to demoralise both tradesmen and their customers. Fewer servants, fewer fires, less meat, less butter, less luxuries of every description will become the fashion, until demand and supply have reached an equilibrium.—Pall Mall Gazette.

PATENT AIR GAS.—A novelty is about to be introduced in Leeds in the shape of gas manufactured by a very simple process from air. The necessary apparatus consists of three connected parts. The first is a blower, set in motion by a wound-up weight, operating upon its axis by a cord passing over pulley sheaves. Through the motive power secured by the gradual pressure of the weight downwards, the fan revolves and forces a sufficient supply of air into what is called the generator. This is a cylinder charged with a chemical preparation known as gasogen, which gives off an inflammable vapour. By passing through this, common air acquires illuminating qualities, and is at once conducted, ready for use, into the "governor," a kind of meter used to regulate the pressure. It will thus be seen that no kind of fuel is used in the process, the only material requisite, in addition to the air supply, being the liquid gasogen. One of the main ingredients of this highly volatile preparation is spirits of petroleum. It is not explosive, and can be purchased at a cost of half-a-crown per gallon. This quantity will make 500 cubic feet of air gas, which is said to be equal to twice that supply of coal gas, owing to its stronger light and slower combustion. Consumers who may contemplate making their own gas by the new mode will want to know something about the apparatus. A machine to serve from 10 to 14 burners can be purchased for £15, and the prices for ordinary purposes range from this figure to £50 for an apparatus equal to the supply of from 5 to 125 burners.

CONSERVATION OF WOOD.—The application of wood to the rough and trying purpose of street paving renders any inquiry into the means of assuring its preservation of great interest. At Toledo, Ohio, blocks were found to be, at the end of four or five years, entirely rotten; yet when the wood paving at the corner of King and Jordan-streets, Toronto, was taken up after some two or three years' wear, it was found to be practically as good as new. It had diminished only from one-sixteenth to one-eighth of an inch but, although the surface had thus been ground down, it was, by that very process, rendered almost as hard as iron. Toledo blocks had been coated with tar. The probability is that the latter had been thus treated while the wood was still green or moist, and that the superficial covering served to confine the moisture, and so to make the process of softening or rotting away all the easier. French and Belgian engineers have been lately giving some attention to this subject. An American newspaper, noticing their experiments, says—"Instances are mentioned by one of the experimenters, M. Melsens, in which prepared blocks, into the sinuosities of whose woody fibres the tarry preparation had penetrated, after exposure to alternate steam baths and frosty weather, and to burial in wet or marshy soil, were perfectly sound and uninjured after 20 years' trial. A section of a piece of timber impregnated with tar shows that the conserving substance has followed the lines of the longitudinal fibres, and often the microscope reveals the complete filling of the pores, and every channel which might give entrance to deleterious agents is plugged by the tar, which in many cases, is also found a perfect preserver of bolts, screws and nails." It is declared that by this process a railway sleeper may be made as sound and to last as long as an Egyptian mummy. It must be clear that no such results as these could be attained without a careful selection and preparation of the wood in the first instance. That appears to us to be the primary condition in all cases. Then it becomes a question what is the best preserver, regard being had to cheapness. Is it carbolic acid or tar, or what? The answer may most materially affect the application of wood where durability is an absolute necessity to its adoption.—Toronto Globe.

THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL AND THE PRESS.

BY BRO. EMRA HOLMES.

The impertinent self-appointed mentor of the Prince of Wales must have had an attack of jaundice, or shall we coin a word, and call it "Templaphobia," when it published the article on the "Order of the Temple," now under review; but unfortunately, in venting its spleen on the august ceremonial which roused its ire—possibly because its representative was not invited to the feast—betrays what we can only describe as crass ignorance in commenting on the meeting.

The writer, it would seem, had recently read "Ivanhoe"—had probably witnessed the performance of "Rebecca"—and gathered the little historical knowledge he possessed from the pages of Sir Walter Scott.

The joke is really too good—The Spectator quoting Sir Walter Scott as a reliable authority on matters antiquarian. Our would-be-clever contemporary, in speaking sarcastically of the officers present at the Convent General, in April, takes exception to the style "Most Eminent" as applied to the Grand Master, no doubt forgetting, or, might we say, more probably not knowing that that title was precisely what was used by the Knights of St. John, with whom the Knights Templar were amalgamated. If the author of the article in The Spectator will condescend to refer to Porter's History of the Knights of Malta* he will find a letter thus headed:—

"Charles II., by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c."

"To the Most Eminent Prince, the Lord Nicholas Cottoner, Grand Master of the Order of Malta, our well-beloved cousin and friend, Greeting:

"Most Eminent Prince," &c., &c. The letter concludes, "we therefore amicably beseech your Eminence, &c.," and is signed, Your Highness's Cousin and Friend, Charles Rex."

A letter from Queen Anne to the Grand Master, in 1713, is couched in the following style:

"Anne, by the Grace of God, &c, to the Most Illustrious and Most High Prince, the Lord Raymond Perellos, Grand Master of the Order of Malta," and is signed "Your Highness's good Cousin and Friend, Anne R."

Emanuel Pinto, Grand Master (under whose sanction, it is said, the Malta Order was conferred on Freemasons), who died in 1773, was not content to be "Most Eminent" only, or "Illustrious," but claimed for his ambassadors at foreign courts the prerogatives of those who represented the monarchs of Europe, and for himself demanded the title of Most Eminent Highness, whereas his predecessors, Porter alleges, in a somewhat contradictory manner, had all been contented with that of Eminence.

It would thus appear that Most Eminent is by no means an inappropriate title for the Grand Master of the United Orders of Knights Templars, and Knights of St. John of Jerusalem.

Our contemporary is pleased to sneer at the Earl of Limerick, the Great Prior, and adds:—"It is only necessary to read Ivanhoe to learn that the chief of a Templar Convent was Preceptor, not Prior." We are very grateful for the information, but the Preceptor is the chief of our Convents or Encampments, and not the Prior, who, however, is the head of a priory of Malta.

Perhaps The Spectator will forgive us if we suggest that the Templar houses were not called convents at all, but preceptories, and that the author of Ivanhoe is the last man we should go to for correct antiquarian knowledge. If we remember right, in the very book The Spectator quotes, "Ivanhoe," Sir Walter Scott makes the courtiers address Richard I. as "your majesty," a title which was not used by the Kings of England for centuries afterwards.

We are quite ready to admit the truth of one statement of The Spectator, that the Duke of Manchester's Knights of Malta are not true Johanniter, and here for once The Spectator is right, as the Sacred Council at Rome, the Supreme body in the Order of St. John, repudiates the claims of the so-called Anglican langue.

By the way it is whispered that the Manchester Knights, or Anglican Langue, as they prefer to be called, are making strong efforts to secure, if they have not already purchased, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, erst the head quarters of the Knights of St. John.

It is said that Sir George Bowyer and the Roman Catholic Knights (but with how much truth we know not) have been equally desirous of getting possession, but remembering that the chief authorities at Rome refuse to acknowledge the legitimacy of the English langue, the mere holding of St. John's Gate will no more make the Duke's lieges real Johanniter than the possession of Temple Church makes the London barristers Knights Templar. Our contemporary in attempting to describe the Installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master is positively amusing in its mendacious impertinence, when it says that "having passed the precincts of the Temple of Willis's," as it describes, with infinite wit, the place of meeting, "than he was launched into the centre of a series of scenes of the most arrant tomfoolery, curiously variegated with maudlin piety." We have stated before that the account of the proceedings given in the Daily Telegraph was incorrect, but it was nevertheless fairly written, as most of its descriptive articles are. We cannot say so much for The Spectator. The whole tone of the article is splenetic and contemptible, and the ribald manner it adopts to spit its venom on the Order of the Temple is strongly suggestive of an old fable, often quoted, and often needing quotation.

Is it possible that the writer of the article is some canny Scot, who tries to decry what he, in his heart of hearts, only covets?

Is it because the Prince of Wales has shown so great an interest in the Convent General of the Order of the Temple, whose Statutes the Scotch repudiated before they had properly weighed the consequences of their conduct that this article was written?

Can it be the old story of "The Fox and the Grapes" revived for the benefit of a few malecontents?

The Spectator's logic is very fine.

At the commencement of the article under review, it ridicules the notion that the Masonic Knights are true descendants of the ancient Templars, apostrophises the shades of Hugh de Payen and Brian de Bois Gilbert, and talks of "the marvellous transmogrified resuscitation of knights all dust, and swords all rust."

At the conclusion it is vastly indignant that the heir to the throne, with the Queen's sanction should give away "trumpery titles and pinchbeck decorations," a graceful way of sneering at the Grand Cross conferred upon the Emperor of Germany, the King of Sweden, and a few other nobodies The Spectator does not choose to recognise, and then says that "real nobility and knighthood lose somewhat of their worth," while such things are allowed.

The Spectator concludes as follows:—

“When Lord Granville was recently questioned by Lord Houghton in regard to the principle of permitting British subjects to wear foreign Orders, his reply was pitched in a very high key indeed. What would he say if he were questioned as to the propriety, or not to put too fine a point on it, the legality, of the Prince of Wales conferring not merely a foreign, but a Papal and Monastic Order at Willis’s Rooms?”

If we are a Papal, Monastic, and Foreign Order we must be surely true Knights Templar, but then our sapient compeer speaks of us at the outset as only a sham.

If we are only imitation and Masonic Knights then the reference to the Monastic and Papal Order is simply nonsense, if we are true Knights Templar, under the Mastership of the heir to the throne and the express sanction of the Crown (the fountain of law and honour) the question of legality is as idle as it is intended to be mischievous.

The Spectator opens by attacking us as spurious, and concludes by admitting our right to our title, in order to denounce us as an illegal body.

Our contemporary is on the horns of a dilemma, and we leave it to find its way to the logical conclusion of a line of argument, which we readily admit, is unique of its kind.

NOBLE MASONIC THOUGHTS.

Above all, a personal fidelity, absolutely incorruptible, should be the characteristic of every Mason; and none should gain admission to your Temple who are not so organized and tempered that, whatever emergency may arise, and whatever temptation may assail them, there shall be no sacrifice of one jot or tittle of the faith they have plighted at your altars. There can be no divided fealty or devotion among us. I am one of those who demand of my Masonic brethren exactly what I propose to give them in return—a loyalty to my vows which no earthly influences can shatter or impair. I demand that the moral standard of the ancient brotherhood shall be steadily advanced—raised higher and higher, and yet higher—until the golden period shall come again, when the simple name of Freemason shall be a guarantee of manhood, faithfulness, and integrity. Let us not be content with any half-way excellence. The genius of our Order demands all the perfection attainable, and in these respects, at least, humanity is capable of absolute perfection.

No man is so constituted that he cannot be true and faithful, and he who, possessing the faculty, will not exercise it, is unworthy material, to be cast out without compassion or delay. Let me admonish you again to look more to quality and less to quantity; and not to forget that in the character, not in the number, of your brethren, is to be found the strength, the influence, and the capacity of the brotherhood. I submit to you, in illustration of this view, the simple proposition that it would be better, infinitely better, that there should be but one hundred Masons in this vast Commonwealth, and each one of that hundred feel that he could repose in serene and perfect confidence on the fidelity and truth of the other ninety-nine, than that there should be an hundred thousand, with the distrustful feeling that ten of them, in the hour of trial, might prove false. Let us know where we stand as Masons, and whether the solemn vows which we have uttered are to govern our actions, or whether they are hollow mockeries, imposing no higher duties than those we owed before they were uttered. Let us ascertain whether Masonry is a living reality, demanding some sacrifice as the occasion for it may arise, or a delusion and a sham—a child’s rattle, to be toyed with at pleasure, and cast aside whenever a selfish interest may lead us away from the observance of its obligations.

I do not propose to be thus cheated and deluded. I am earnest in my own devotion to its sublime teachings and principles. If there is one thing in our poor human nature which more than all others tends to redeem us—if there is one thing that makes me feel like bowing down to thank Almighty God for the poor gift of human life, it is this sense and capacity of fidelity to individuals with which he has endowed us. It is the strongest similitude of the divine, and I shall have strangely miscalculated if, in the summing up, the practice of this virtue is not suffered to cover a multitude of sins. I repeat, it is peculiar by the province and mission of our Fraternity to cultivate that virtue; nay Freemasonry demands it; and you cease to be Masons when you cease to practice it. And as it is the crowning glory of human character, so the vice which stands opposed to it,—treachery, infidelity, betrayal of the confidence and trust you have invited and received,—is the basest and most odious, the most universally detested and despised of all human depravities. Treachery, moreover, is never a solitary invader. It brings in its train an army of lesser evils, as if to conceal its own enormity by surrounding itself with gradations of infamy. As treason is the the highest crime known to the law of the land, so in the moral and social world, infidelity is the basest, the vilest of all vices. The one is the jewel which should always glitter resplendent in the Mason’s crown; the other the hateful word which should find no place in his vocabulary. Next to that of husband and wife, parent or child, no merely human relation is so sacred as that of the Masonic Brotherhood. To be false in any of these connections is to sin against ourselves and descend to the lowest depths of shame and degradation. Yet, we must make the humiliating confession that Masons are sometimes false to one another, and that betrayals of confidence and trust among those who sustain that relation have been of far too frequent occurrence.

I would have you, as you can do if you will make an end of these humiliating and shameful occurrences. I would imbue you with a nobler conception of the spirit and requirements of your fraternal obligations, with a more complete and unwavering devotion to your vow.

If you have been imposed upon by unworthy brethren, if you have been betrayed and wronged in the name of Freemasonry, on your own head the blame must rest, for you hold in your own hands the remedy for all these evils; and I adjure you once more, if you would preserve untarnished the lustre of the name you bear, be more diligent in the application of those remedies. If you are too cowardly to reject the doubtful or expel the unworthy—if you receive into your ranks the applicant of indifferent character, because your treasury is impoverished and your revenues are falling away, you have converted your trust into merchandise, and the fate of the ancient money-changers ought to fall, and will fall, upon your heads. Reduce you numbers, surrender your charters, let your lodges perish and seek Masonic association elsewhere, if need be, rather than degrade your profession and compromise the Fraternity by the acceptance of unworthy material. I caution you again against making Freemasonry too popular, too common, and too cheap. I renew the admonition more emphatically to-day, because you are again in the midst of a season of marked prosperity, than which nothing more imperils purity of character. The danger must grow with your growth. As you increase in numbers and apparent power and influence, the shrewd and designing, the selfish and the ambitious, will seek to ally themselves with you, not for the purpose of becoming serviceable to their fellow-men, but with the intent to make Freemasonry serviceable to themselves. Let sleepless vigilance be the guardian at the portals of your Temples.

I am not setting up a degree of excellence unattainable, and I desire not to be misapprehended. Freemasonry does not demand perfection. I am painfully aware how soon my own expulsion would follow the establishment of such a test. It does not inhibit any rational enjoyment. That would be to subvert and destroy the social qualities, which it aims rather to cultivate and develop. But it does require, most imperatively, that every one of its votaries shall at least maintain the ground of respectability; and he who falls but a hair’s-breadth below that requirement should be cast out without misgiving or regret. Regard your Lodge as a family, of which you are constituent portions, and let no one enter there whose conduct or character is such that you would be unwilling to admit him at your own fireside, or blush to present him to your own wives and daughters.

It is because you have departed from these rules of conduct and fallen below this standard of excellence, that you have become frigid and unsocial at your gatherings, and half the enjoyment of being Freemasons has become unattainable. You do not give the sojourning brother a cordial welcome, because your experience has taught you that some who bear that name are unworthy of your confidence and fellowship. But if you had been more careful in making Masons, you would have had no such experience and no such consequent distrust. I have often been pained at the neglect with which strangers have been received and treated in your lodges. I have seen them depart with more alacrity than they came, glad and relieved, apparently, to escape from a place where they had come expecting fraternal regard, and found only the form of politeness, mingled with evident suspicion and distrust. And though until more care is exercised in the election of candidates, and more energy is displayed in the discipline of those already chosen, there will be occasional impositions; yet Masters of Lodges should know that whoever comes to them in the character of a Mason should receive that civility and attention, which the fraternal relation entitles him to anticipate, until, by some act of his own, he has forfeited his claim to your courtesy and hospitality.—Grand Master Leonidas E. Pratt, of California.

The sentence of death passed on Captain Jack and five other Modoc Indians has been approved of by President Grant, and they will be hanged on the 3rd of October.

MASONIC FETE.

A new feature in the interchange of courtesies amongst the brethren of the Craft has been introduced by Bro. John Sutcliffe, P.M., P. Prov. S.G.W. of Lincoln; who invited the Prov. Grand Officers, and the Worshipful Masters and Wardens of the province, with their wives, to a garden and croquet party, and banquet, at his residence, Stallingborough House, near Great Grimsby, on Thursday, the 14th inst. Bro. Sutcliffe is so well known in Masonic circles for his large-hearted charity, liberality and hospitality, that those who were honoured with invitations knew they would be entertained in right royal style, for none can do the host better than he, and in this were not disappointed.

Amongst those present were:—Bros. Major Smyth, D.Prov. G.M.; J. Fowler, Prov. S.G.W.; Daniel Ace, Prov. G.C.; W. G. Moore, Prov. G.R.; F. D. Marsden, Prov. G.S.; C. M. Nesbitt, P.G.T.; J. Hadfield, Prov. J.G.D.; A. Bates, Prov. G.D.C.; Cobbett Jackson, Prov. G.S.; M. Cook, Prov. G.S.; T. Slater, jun., Prov. G.S.; Geo. Nelson, Prov. G.S.; W. E. Howlett, W.M. 422; Gardner, S.W. 712; Goodhand, J.W. 712; Copeland, P.M. 792, P. Prov. S.G.D.; Broadhead, P.M. 792, S.D. 1294; W. Marshall, J.W. 792; R. Gough, Sec. 792; Jas. Robinson, D.C. 792; Wardale, Tyler 792; W. H. Radley, P.M. 838, P. Prov. J.G.W.; W. Poole, S.W. 838; John Allen, jun., Sec. 838; Henry Scales, Sec. 1232; Robbs, P.M. 1282; Pigott, S.W. 1282; H. H. Cave, J.W. 1282; C. L. Hett, Sec. 1282; Rev. C. K. Saunders, S.W. 1286; H. C. Chambers, J.W. 1286; A. A. Padley, Sec. 1286; F. Long, W.M. 1294, P. Prov. G.S. of W.; T. P. Cupiss, 1294, P.M. 792, Prov. S.G.W.; Walmsley, S.W. 1294; Jack Sutcliffe, J.W. 1294; Holland, Steward 1294; H. Garvey, 1294; Wardale, Tyler 1294; Dawson.

The following ladies were also present:—Mrs. W. G. Moore, Miss Howlett, Mrs. Ace, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Copeland, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Robinson, Miss Benett, Mrs. Robbs, Mrs. Pigott, Mrs. Long, Mrs. and Miss Cupiss, Mrs. Bates, Miss Garvey, Miss Harriet Garvey, Mrs. Dawson, Miss Dawson, Miss A. E. Dawson, Mrs. Jasse, Mrs. Sutcliffe, three sons, and five daughters.

On the arrival of the company they were received by Bro. Sutcliffe, Mrs. Sutcliffe and one of the Misses Sutcliffe in the drawing-room, and after the reception they entered the garden, where they were refreshed from a delicate spread of wines, claret cup, &c. provided al fresco, the other Misses Sutcliffe, assisted by Bro. Jack Sutcliffe, J.W. 1294, P. Prov. G. Steward; and Mr. Harry and Mr. James Sutcliffe, gracefully performing the honours.

The company then passed on to the croquet lawn, on which was an excellent quadrille band from Manchester, and the company soon appreciated the enlivening strains by entering into the "poetry of motion."

The day was charming for the occasion, and highly the company enjoyed it, which was enhanced by the urbanity of the worthy host and his lady, and the courteous attention of the Misses Sutcliffe and their brothers, who vied with each other, during the visit, to render the enjoyment and of each one complete. These pleasures were interrupted by the sound of the gong calling the company to the banquet, in a spacious and elegant marquee, erected in an adjoining pasture. Great taste had been displayed in the decorations, and the tables, which were luxuriously provided with every delicacy of the season, were worthy the presence of a prince. During the banquet the band played pleasing, but subdued airs. On the right of the host sat the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and Mrs. Sutcliffe, and Bro. F. Long and Mrs. Long, and on his left the Provincial Grand Chaplain and Mrs. Moore, and the Provincial Grand Registrar and Mrs. Ace. After the loyal and other toasts had been given, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master proposed the health of Bro. Sutcliffe in eulogistic and deserving terms, alluding to the great aid which the Craft, its charities, and its schools had received by his advocacy, support, munificent and sympathetic charity; and to the founding of the St. Albans Lodge, No. 1294, of which he was its first Master, and to his being well known by the brethren in West Yorkshire and Durham (of the latter province he was Past Provincial Senior Grand Deacon), and in particular to the benefit which his own province had derived from him; and he thanked Bro. Sutcliffe for the splendid compliment he had that day paid them. Bro. Sutcliffe feelingly responded, and said he was not only proud and happy to have such an assemblage around him, but he desired to promote unanimity and good feeling among the brethren of the province, and the interests of the Craft, and to shew the ladies—he would call them his sisters—that they could be admitted into something Masonic; if not to witness our secret mysteries and labour, to partake of and join with us in our refreshment after. He referred to the compliment paid him by the Provincial Grand Lodge in electing him Steward to represent the province at the next Festival of the Boy's Institution, and to the testimonial presented to him by the St. Albans Lodge, on the second year of his Mastership.

The Provincial Grand Chapter, in polite and complimentary terms, proposed the health of Mrs. Sutcliffe. On leaving the banquet the company returned to the lawn, where dancing was resumed, and continued until darkness compelled retirement.

Thus passed a delightful afternoon, which will long remain in the memory of those present. It might without much impropriety, be added that the services of Bro. Sutcliffe during his Masonic career, and the substantial benefits he has conferred on the Craft, it is hoped, ere long be recognised by his elevation to an office in Grand Lodge.

In addition to those present Bro. Sutcliffe had several letters from brethren apologizing for inability to attend from pre-engagements, or other unavoidable circumstances. When Bro. Sutcliffe was installed at West Hartlepool as W.M. of 1066, he then invited the Province of West Yorkshire and about 90 brethren responded. Bro. Dr. Fearnley, D.P.G.M., assisted by a Board of 37 Installed Masters, did him the honour on that occasion to instal him.

It is gratifying to learn that Bro. Jack Sutcliffe received the following letter, accompanied by a very handsome biscuit canister:—

Boston, 21 Aug., 1873.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—

We the undersigned brethren, who on the 14th inst., had the pleasure of accepting your father's Hospitality at a grand Masonic fete, (which will be treasured in our memory as a red letter day in our Masonic career,) think this a fitting opportunity of endeavouring to shew our high appreciation of his love of Masonry by begging your acceptance of the accompanying small present, as a souvenir on your approaching marriage, and we sincerely hope you and the lady of your choice may enjoy every earthly blessing and many years of great happiness.

With affectionate and paternal greetings, we subscribe ourselves your faithful brothers in Masonry,

"W. HEPPWORTH RADLEY, P.M., 838,
P.P.S.G.W.

"COBBETT JACKSON, W.M., 272,
P.G. Steward.

"THOS. SLATER, jr., W.M., 838,
P.G. Steward.

"WM. POOLLES, S.W., 838.

"JOHN ALLEN, jr., Sec., 838."

"Bro. JACK SUTCLIFFE,

"Stallingboro' Hall."

We doubt not the wish of Bro. Sutcliffe in bringing together the brethren of the province to form a better personal acquaintance with each other and establish friendships, will result in more frequent meetings beyond the pale of the lodge room and strengthen the cords of Masonic feeling both within and without the Craft.

The Court of Chancery has just given an important decision in the case of Dr. John Collis Browne's "Chlorodyne," a preparation which has now been in extensive use for the last twenty years in the metropolitan hospitals and among the faculty, as an antidote to cholera, diarrhoea, dysentery, and other debilitating diseases, as well as in febrile, inflammatory, and neuralgic affections. Dr. Collis Browne, having discovered, while in India, serving with the army, an important method of counteracting the diseases which afflicted the Europeans settled there, after much labour brought to perfection a specific which upon its introduction into England met with the unqualified approbation of the most eminent practitioners. Under the name "Chlorodyne," which he also invented to distinguish it from all other preparations, he offered it to the public, and so valuable was it deemed that great difficulty was experienced in protecting it from imitation. The Court of Chancery while regretting its inability to prevent the use of the term, strongly expressed its opinion that Dr. Collis Browne's "Chlorodyne" was the only original, and, therefore, only genuine preparation.

KENTUCKY MASONIC ORPHANS' HOME.

From the "proceedings," of the last annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, we extract the following account of an interesting incident. It is necessary to state that the session of Grand Lodge was held in a theatre:—

The Grand Master, having called the Grand Lodge from labour to refreshment, the drop curtain of the stage was raised, exhibiting the Orphan's Home, composed of fifty-eight children, clad in plain but neat attire, to the admiring gaze of the delegates. As soon as the applause had subsided, Past Grand Master E. S. Fitch, introduced the children as follows:

Most Worshipful Grand Master and Brethren. It is my distinguished honour, and the highest gratification of my whole life, to present for your inspection to-day, this design drawn upon our trestle board, wrought out and developed in living reality—The Masonic Orphans' Home of the State of Kentucky. Mingling my hearty congratulations with those of the entire brotherhood over this commendable achievement, while contemplating the youthful charges now before us, and presenting them to the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, as their foster mother, may we not exclaim, with an exulting pride, surpassing even that which fires the bosom of the old Roman Matron, when she presented her Gracchi children, "Here! here are our jewels!"

At the close of these remarks, the following Greeting Song, written for the occasion, was sung by the Orphans in a creditable manner, and with manifest emotion, awaking a kindred sympathy throughout the crowded hall.

GREETING SONG.

"Come, let us be joyful,—before us we see,
The friends of our fathers in sweet unity;
They've paused just a moment, our faces to view,
To inspect a design of Freemasonry true.

"Chorus—Happy greeting to all.

"We claim not the dear ties of kindred or birth,—
Our idols of clay lie entombed in the earth,—
But we hail you, as brothers of that mystical band,
Who've embellished our Home with a generous hand.

Chorus—Happy greeting, &c.

"As friends, benefactors, as fathers indeed,
The hope of the orphan in the hour of need,
We know you have rallied, our sad lives to bless,
To shield us from harm, and relieve our distress,

Chorus—Happy greeting, &c.

"Then, welcome, thrice welcome, we greet you to-day,
Assembl'd securely in Grand Lodge array!
And may each fond meeting, in future attest,
Your love for the home of the Orphan bereft.

Chorus—Happy greeting, &c."

This was followed by an introductory address by Grant Williams, a beneficiary of Montgomery Lodge, No. 23, Mt. Sterling, Kentucky.

Following this introductory, which was delivered in a clear and distinct voice, though tremulous with emotion, "Our Little Flower Girls" arranged in a semi-circular form on the stage, with bouquets of flowers in their hands, each one repeated a beautiful, poetical sentiment or appropriate text, suggested by her favourite flower, and then all united their voices in that charming little song, entitled,

"We are little sunbeams, shining and free."

Next in order was an original dialogue, on the character of the Home and Freemasonry generally, by Preston Brickey, a beneficiary from Fleming Lodge, No. 112, and David Stephenson, from Dycusburg Lodge, No. 232. This dialogue was rendered in a spirited manner, and was exceedingly interesting and humorous, but too lengthy for insertion.

"The entire home then sang the popular school song, "We are gay and happy."

"As soon as the applause was quieted, the following true biographical sketch was given, in a very impressive manner, by William Crane, a beneficiary from Good Samaritan Lodge, No. 174, Lexington, Kentucky:

"A boy there was, sent to our Home,
And he was thought quite crazy,
With dogs and sheep inclined to roam,
When not too mad or lazy.

"His silly pranks and wayward steps
Awaken'd sad foreboding;
He slighted all the best precepts,
The car of mischief ever loading.

"No threat could daunt—no fright prevail,
This erring boy to law recall;
'Till Love's sweet accents did prevail,
And won his heart and rescued all.

"That boy so wayward, crazy, wild,
Ne'er felt a mother's gentle hand;
He was a slighted orphan child,
'Till gathered to this happy band.

"Before you now, you see that boy,
Whose early life in blight began,
Rejoicing with a heart-felt joy,
That he may yet become a man.

"To you I owe what'er of bliss,
My future life may now enjoy,
To you the recompense is this—
You've sav'd a Mason's orphan boy."

The transition from this truly pathetic incident was happily made by the "Green River Salutation," an original poem by Mollie Coleman, beneficiary, from Pond River Lodge, No. 244, as follows.

"In Grand Lodge array, before me I see
The ag'd and the honour'd, the hopeful and young,
Engaged in rites of deep mystery,
Which history has noted and poetry sung.

"A band so renown'd a presence so grand,
May well daunt a novice like me.
Yet pardon a word on behalf of the land
So famed for its Leaf and its Freemasonry.

"You've heard from our hills in the prelude of Grant,
The 'blue-grass' has spoken through her Elkhorn Crane;
And Smiley has echo'd her women's rights rant
As the voice of the Jessamine plain.

Then may not a Muhlenburg Orphan be heard,
If only to remind you, 'tis surely enough
That this styling it over us is rather absurd,
As Green River folks are quite up to snuff.

Then step to the front—tobacco-patch girls,
Sample bright tens of the Green River Stock,
Let's give them a song—come brush back your curls,
And tell of the moral that's taught by the clock."

Suiting the action to the word, nine beautiful girls, from the Green River section of the State, advanced to the foot lights, and ranging themselves in line, under their leader, rendered the Clock song, in inimitable style.

After a cordial and earnest invitation from the Superintendent to all present to visit the home during their stay in the city, the exercises were closed by an appropriate song, and a benediction pronounced by the Grand Chaplain.

DEATH OF A PARIS JOURNALIST.—M. Darpenne de la Grangerie, a well-known contributor to Le Figaro and Le Gaulois, is dead. During the late war M. de la Grangerie originated and organized the "Ambulances de la Presse," whose personnel consisted almost wholly of unpaid volunteers, and so successfully did M. de la Grangerie carry out his work that succour and food were always to be found at his field ambulances during the various sorties, even when others had exhausted their supplies. M. de la Grangerie was arrested by the Commune, and was fellow prisoner with the late Archbishop of Paris, whose fate he would certainly have shared but for the strong remonstrances of his fellow-workers in the ambulances, who intimated to the Commune that they would withdraw their attentions to the wounded if their Secrétaire-Général was not liberated. M. de la Grangerie received the decoration of the Legion of Honour for his services.

Original Correspondence.

SPIRITUALISTS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Sir,

My attention has just been called to Mr. Carpenter's letter respecting your report of our entertainment at the Egyptian Hall. Your correspondent was in error when he stated that the £1000 challenge dodge of a spiritualist has not been accepted. Two challenges were sent to me, one for £250, to accomplish all that the Davenports did, and another for £1000, to produce spirit manifestations under the same conditions as mediums. Both these I at once accepted; for the first I proposed to obtain reports from three towns, Cheltenham, Bath, and Leeds, where I had seen the Davenports perform, and undertook to accomplish everything the reports stated that the brothers did, both in their cabinet and dark seances. This was not agreed to, but I was told I must accomplish something that was reported to have taken place in private; what that something was, I could not ascertain, consequently, I would not pledge myself to perform tricks I had never seen or heard of. For the second challenge, I undertook to produce spirit lights, spirit faces, rap and move tables, and suspend myself in mid-air in a private room, under the same circumstances as Home, viz; in total darkness. This was agreed to, if I would consent to be bound hand and foot, and allow myself to be held by a committee during the entire seance, and lights struck at three seconds notice. I would like to see the medium who could produce the manifestations under the same test, or, as seeing is generally objected to by mediums, I would give a good sum to feel him, and if I had as many thousands to spare as the challenger appears to have, I would readily stake one upon it.

I am having the whole of the correspondence respecting the challenges printed, and shall be pleased to furnish a copy to anyone who will send address.

Yours respectfully,

JOHN NEVIL MASKELYNE.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Either your "devil" or my caligraphy is to blame for an error which appears in my letter inserted in your last issue.

For "unities" your printer has substituted "societies."

The unities of time, place, and action, are alike outraged by the assumptions of that section of the Masonic Templars who, unmindful of the axioms of Freemasonry, would forsooth be aristocratic and exclusive, who forgetful of the deadly feuds between the Templars and Hospitallers in the middle ages must needs now-a-days pretend to represent at once the Knights of the Temple and of the Hospital, who owing their right to the name of Masonic Templars to Freemasonry, and to Freemasonry alone, have discarded the prefix "Masonic," would fain forget their origin, and crying Excelsior! Excelsior! would kick over the ladder by which they have mounted. I protest against such outrages against common sense and propriety, and I trust the great body of the Masonic Templars will unite in restraining the follies of the few. For my part I have no ambition to imitate the jackdaw in peacock's feathers, and I am content to remain nothing better nor worse than

Yours faithfully,

A MASONIC TEMPLAR.

BRITISH ARCHÆOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION.

This association held its annual congress this year in Sheffield. The members assembled at Cutlers' Hall, where they were received by the Mayor of Sheffield and the members of the corporation. There were present his Grace the Duke of Norfolk (the president for the year), Lord Houghton, Mr. Gordon, Mr. Hills, Mr. Godwin, Mr. R. N. Philipps, and others.

The Mayor having spoken a few words of welcome, the Town Clerk read an address embodying a formal expression of the good wishes of the townspeople towards the association.

The Duke of Norfolk, in receiving the address, said it was a great pleasure to the members of the association to be received in such a kind and cordial manner by the inhabitants, and to have the assurance that in making the researches they were about to commence into the former history of the town, they would have the sympathy and assistance of those living there.

The formal business over, the association proceeded to the parish church, where an inspection was made of the Shrewsbury monuments in what is called the Shrewsbury Chapel. These monuments are those of the Earls of Shrewsbury, who were the former lords of Hallam before the estate passed into the hands of the Norfolk family. A visit was next paid to the "Manor House," which was one of the prisons of Mary Queen of Scots, and which is being restored by the Duke of Norfolk into something like the condition in which it was when it was inhabited by that ill-fated queen.

The party were then driven to Broom Hall, the residence of Mr. R. N. Phillipps, for the purpose of inspecting the fine ancient timber of that house; and they received a hearty welcome. The hall excited great interest, and the visitors willingly remained in the open air, on an elevated piece of ground, opposite to the gable, while Mr. Phillipps read a paper on "The Early Dwellings and Timbered Houses of England," illustrated by a reference to Broom Hall, near Sheffield."

At the close of the reading the thanks of the association were accorded to Mr. Phillipps, who entertained the Duke of Norfolk, Lord Houghton, and about a hundred ladies and gentlemen at luncheon.

In the evening the association assembled at the Cutlers' Hall, where the members were the guests of the Duke of Norfolk.

On Wednesday evening a conversazione was held, when a very numerous party assembled at the Cutlers' Hall, the great banqueting hall and other rooms being thrown open for the occasion. A collection of Roman, mediæval, and other antiquities, lent by the Corporation of London, was exhibited, and greatly admired and appreciated, together with other objects of a similar character from private collections. An interesting paper on "Celts, and the Manufacture of Iron and Iron Implements by the Romans," was read also by Mr. R. N. Phillipps, which was listened to and frequently applauded by a crowded and attentive audience; and a vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. Planché, Somerset Herald, for a paper so full of information, and so appropriate to the locality where the congress was then assembled. A number of excursions were arranged for the week.

A STRAY ICEBERG.—A letter from a gentleman on board the United States steamer Junia, at St. John's, Newfoundland, contains this paragraph:—"On the 3rd of July a large iceberg became stranded at the mouth of the harbour, and the captain wishing some of the officers to go out with him and see it, I gladly accepted the invitation, and as soon as our party was made up we started out in the steam launch. As we approached the berg the air grew sensibly colder, and we found it necessary to slip on our overcoats. We ran alongside of it and measured it with our eye, which gave us 25ft. high, 180ft. broad, and 400ft. long, and as that portion below the surface bears the proportion of seven to one, we can calculate the depth or thickness of the berg to be 280ft., equal to 11,200,000 cubic feet or 286,225 tons. The berg was melting so rapidly that water was flowing from it in every direction, preventing us from approaching very close to it, so we decided to go to a smaller one and cut some ice for our own consumption. We were very successful as we brought on board nearly half a ton. About five minutes after leaving the large berg we heard an explosion, and looking around saw that one end had burst off, and filled an area of about 300ft. in length of the width of the berg; so we escaped an unpleasant dampness just in time."

 Extremely useful for easily imprinting upon the memory the dates of the chief Historical Events.
 The system is likely to be very popular, young children are fond of it; and advanced students greatly value it.

 "Such a book cannot but be acceptable to everyone."—Barrow Pilot.
 "There are more dates in Mr. Crowther's little two shilling book than ever a lad is taught at school; more than he could commit to memory in a twelvemonth; and yet, if he could enter into the system heartily, he would know the whole lot of dates in one week in such a way that most of them he would never forget."—Huddersfield Weekly News.

There are in connection with the College
 THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS,
 open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.
 The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the PREPARATORY SCHOOL

(entirely distinct, but contiguous)
 Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D., T.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners; Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. CROSBY'S BALSAMIC

COUGH ELIXIR.

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

 Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN AND UNION PLAISTERS are the best ever invented for giving immediate ease, and removing those painful excrescences. Price 6d. and 1s. per box. May be had of most chemists. Observe the trade mark.—HY—without which none are genuine be sure and ask for YOUNG'S.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"It is intended to give in it a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches, and to judge by the current number, it admirably fulfils this design."—Bath Express, August 2.

"Judging from the first number, the periodical is likely to have a large circulation among Freemasons."—Bath and Cheltenham Gazette, July 16.

"It is well printed, and the contents are such as are calculated to interest the brethren. In Masonic circles we should say that this addition to the literature of the Craft will be warmly welcomed."—Banbury Guardian, July 31.

"The usefulness and importance of the Masonic Life are temporarily inculcated in a leading article. Some verses on the late Earl of Zetland are a proper and fitting tribute to an excellent man."—Bell's Life, August 16th.

"Its articles are well written, very instructive and interesting to all those who have the interest of Freemasonry at heart. We would recommend all Freemasons to obtain a copy and judge for themselves."—Berks Telegraph, July 18.

"The list of contributors is a sufficient guarantee that the magazine will fulfill its purpose, No Freemason should be without it."—Bolton Guardian, July 12.

"The contents of the first number will be especially appreciated by Freemasons."—Bolton Weekly Journal, July 12.

"The magazine contains a variety of valuable articles concerning the Craft in all its branches, and we doubt not that it will become a publication highly prized amongst Masons."—Borough of Hackney Express, August 2.

"It will no doubt interest every member of the Order."—Brechin Advertiser, July 8th.

"We recommend our Masonic readers to subscribe to the magazine. It is well got up for six-pence."—Brecon County Times, July 26.

"It will be welcomed by the brethren of the Craft as an acceptable addition to Masonic periodical literature, and in some sort as an organ of the ancient Order. The 'Masonic Magazine' bids fair for an extended circulation within the limits of its sphere of usefulness."—Brighton Examiner, July 22.

"It is neatly printed, and contains matter interesting to members of the Craft all over the world. It contains, amongst the list of contributors, men eminent in Masonry, and we have no doubt it will be largely patronised by members of the 'Mystic Tie.'"—Cashel Gazette, July 12th.

"From the distinguished names given as its 'patrons,' it promises to be well supported."—Coventry Standard, July 16th.

"We wonder whether the ladies will be curious to catch from its pages some glimpses of the life, which is so great and often so irritating a mystery to them, and from which they often resent their exclusion. There is a careful sketch of the progress of the Craft, of its various developments, of its charitable institutions, &c."—Derby and Chesterfield Reporter, Aug. 1st.

"We trust that it will continue to prosper as well as it has begun. The list of contributors comprises several leading names of distinguished Masons, such as must promise well for the success of the undertaking. The number for August is not less interesting and attractive than its predecessor (July), and contains some valuable articles on various subjects connected with the Craft."—Doncaster, Nottingham, and Lincoln Gazette, August 8th.

"After reading with much interest the articles contained in it we recommend its perusal by those interested in the literature of Freemasonry."—Jewish Chronicle, Aug. 8th.

"It deserves to become exceedingly popular."—Clifton Chronicle, July 16th.

"It will be hailed with delight by all who feel interested in the wide-spread progress of the grand principles of the Order, or require information on its beneficent and mysterious unfoldings and developments. It affords interesting subjects for consideration to the general reader."—Draper, July 18th.

"We confidently recommend this periodical to the notice of our Masonic readers. It is truly marvellous how such a beautifully printed work can be produced at the price, and to ensure a profitable return to the proprietor, it will require, and we do not doubt it will achieve, an extensive circulation."—Dunfermline Journal, July 26th.

"It is very ably edited, and amongst its contributors are many of the most eminent English and foreign writers on Freemasonry."—Eversham Journal, July 19th.

"A careful inspection of its contents justifies the expectation that it will be well supported. It is cheap, neatly got up, and smartly written, while all subjects of interest to Masons, seem to receive full attention."—Galloway Gazette, July 12th.

"We are satisfied, that it is edited by a gentleman that displays great literary ability, combined with a most thorough and masterly treatment of his subject. We repeat, we have derived great pleasure and information from the perusal of this clever magazine, and have therefore every confidence in recommending it to our readers."—Gateshead Observer, July 26th.

"The first number is a most creditable specimen, and if succeeding issues are as good, the 'Magazine' will have a satisfactory circulation."—Grantham Journal, July 19th.

"The new monthly opens well with an interesting paper on the present position of English Freemasonry, &c."—Gravesend Journal, July 19.

"It is launched into the world with a long list of worthy contributors. The 'leading' article, so we may call it, 'The Present Position of English Freemasonry,' is extremely instructive."—Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, July 12th.

"Members of the Craft will doubtless find it full of interesting matter."—Hampshire Advertiser, July 12th.

"It will be sure to be widely circulated amongst the brethren."—Deal, Walmer, and Sandwich Mercury, Aug. 9th.

"The contents go to make up such a cheap and interesting sixpennyworth, as ought to secure a place for this magazine."—Hampshire Independent, August 13th.

"There are very few of this class of periodicals extant, and we have no doubt that the praiseworthy efforts of the publisher will be properly valued by the brotherhood."—Hawick Advertiser, July 12th.

"We can safely predict that its advent will be hailed with delight wherever Freemasonry is known, and the English language spoken; and we can congratulate the members of the Craft in having such an organ devoted exclusively to themselves. As the cost is but sixpence monthly, it may be said to be within the reach of all."—Jersey Observer, July 10th.

"It appears to be ably conducted, and the adherents of Freemasonry ought to give it their hearty support."—John O'Groat's Journal, July 17th.

"The articles are all excellent, and we feel assured that those of our readers who may peruse the magazine, will join in supporting our high opinion of it."—Kelso Chronicle, Aug. 22nd.

"The numerous and respectable lodges of Freemasons in this country required a magazine of this kind to give them their proper literary position in the land. This is the first number (July) of a new monthly, and begins well."—Hastings and St. Leonard's News, July 25th.

"The magazine is worthy of the position to which it aspires, both as regards its outward appearance and its contents. Able articles may be expected, and if the contents of this month's (July) magazine may be taken as a specimen, of what is to follow, the expectation will not be disappointed."—Kelso Courier, July 11th.

"With the contributors they have on the staff, the Masonic Magazine will always be worth reading. Wishing it success we commend it to our brethren."—Kelso Mail, July 9th.

"This is a monthly publication that has been much needed by Craft Masons, and from the contents of the first number we feel sure it will be welcome to all brethren."—Kent and Sussex Courier, July 25th.

"Altogether the new magazine is a very interesting one, and we heartily commend it to the notice and support of Freemasons."—Leigh Times, July 12th.

"Much editorial judgment and taste are displayed in the selection and arrangements of the contents; and the individual articles are characterised by great ability and thorough knowledge of the matter in hand."—Leith Burghs Pilot, July 19th.

"We have perused with much pleasure this, the first number of the Masonic Magazine, and recommend it to the Craft generally. On looking at the list of contributors, we cannot but think and heartily desire it to be a success."—Louth Advertiser, July 19th.

"We earnestly recommend it to the Craft. It contains valuable matter of the history, rise, and progress of Freemasonry. Among the list of contributors are names recognised as workers in and for the Craft and Arch."—Lowestoft Observer, July 12th.

"It is full of promise and full of interest. Such a magazine will supply a great want in the Masonic world. The list of contributors comprises the names of many, who are not only high in the Craft, but well known in literature."—Lymington and South Hants Chronicle, July 11th.

"We should judge that the periodical would prove a valuable addition to the literature of the Craft."—Newbury Weekly News, July 17th.

"It is devoted to the interests of the 'Order,' and gives promise of considerable ability."—Northern Ensign, July 17th.

"We hail a new magazine, devoted to the noble purpose of improving the knowledge and enunciating the principles of Freemasonry, with a fraternal greeting. The present work is well got up and ably edited, and the cost sixpence per month."—Pembrokeshire Advertiser, July 17th.

"This magazine will be welcomed by all Masons as containing a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches."—Peterborough Advertiser, July 19th.

"It fills up a space, that has been gaping long. From the appearance of the first number, it deserves to be well supported. We advise all our Masonic readers to support the new undertaking in connection with the 'Craft' as it deserves."—South Wills Express, July 12th.

"We commend the magazine to the notice of all who have the objects of Freemasonry at heart."—Ross Gazette, July, 10th.

"Masonic brethren have no need to feel ashamed of the latest addition to their class literature. It certainly seems to merit patronage."—Southport News, July 12th.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Lodge (No. 249).—The annual summer festival of this most popular and pleasant lodge, which came off on Wednesday, the 27th ult., was in every respect a complete success, and will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present. Frodsham, Belmont, and the Overton Hills, within easy distance of Liverpool, was selected, after mature study and no little trouble, as the scene of the day's festivities, and the result of the "out" fully justified the choice. The all-important weather, although somewhat gloomy in the morning, assumed a brighter aspect as the day wore on, and there was little left to desire in this respect. A committee, consisting of Bros. Rose, W.M., the S.W. and J.W. of 249; J. K. Smith Treas.; J. Wood, and H. W. Nicholas, I.G.; spared no pains to make the pleasure gathering a success, and they succeeded to their hearts' content. To Bro. Nicholas especial praise is due, not only for the active exertions which he made, but also for framing a programme of the day's proceedings which formed a novelty in Masonic productions. This programme was so unique, so clever, and so thoroughly characteristic, that it deserves to be quoted at length for the benefit of other pic-nic committees. It was as follows:—

MARINER'S PIC-NIC, No. 249,
 August 27th, 1873.

The Party will leave the Lime-street Station at—12.0., and in saloon carriages specially provided by the London and North Western Railway Company, be conveyed to FRODSHAM.

Proceeding through the village, the right hand of fellowship will be extended to them at the

BEAR'S PAW.

Where matters are expected to come off à la, the landlord being a bit of a wag. Journeying onward, they will arrive at the

PARISH CHURCH,

Permission having been obtained to view the same, from the vicar, the Rev. W. C. Cotton. After singing the old Hundredth Psalm, and hearing an address from the Rev. Phillip Hains, Rector of St. George's Wigan, and Chaplain of the lodge, the Picnicians will reach their destination.—

BELMONT,

30. ("In the morning we will fly towards Belmont."—Shakespeare.) Where a sumptuous dinner will be provided by the proprietor, Mr. James Rigby. Bro. Henry Burrows, R.A., will "hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature," and in the course of the day photograph the group.

30. GRAND PROMENADE IN THE GROUNDS. The Overton Hills command an extensive view of the Runcorn Bone Works, the Red Hills of Helsby, and "other ills that flesh is heir to."

LADIES RACE,

For a Silver Thimble, given by Bro. Robinson, of the firm of Brown, Jones, and Robinson.

3.30. GENTLEMEN'S RACE,
 For a handsome Silver Watch and Appendages. Entrance 1s. each. "We know what belongs to a watch."—Shakespeare.

4.0. DONKEY RACES ON THE FLAT,
 And it is to be hoped on the square also. Entries to be made on the spot. Handicapper, Starter, and Judge, Bro. Edwin Hughes, I.P.M.; Clerk of the Course, Bro. Henry Pearson, P.M.; Commissions executed by "Nicholas," the only true Prophet. Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith will be in attendance in case of accident.

5.0. MISCELLANEOUS CONCERT,
 In the Belmont Music Hall, under the direction of Professor Bro. W. G. Veales, Mus. Doc., who will be assisted by artists of acknowledged ability. The P.G.C. will here dilate upon Past and Passing Events—"In a quiet sort of way."

6.0. TEA IN THE ARBOUR.
 The party will leave Belmont and return by the way of the Village Smithy, where Bro. Veales will record the deeds of the Village Blacksmith, in song. The Chestnut Tree, not being poplar or ornamental, has been cut down for other purposes.

FINALE—HOME, SWEET HOME.

About 120 brethren and ladies started from Lime-street Station at the time appointed, and on arrival at Frodsham the parish church was visited, and an excellent address, by Bro. Hains, Chaplain of the lodge, on the principles of Freemasonry in accordance with the Sacred Law, was listened to with marked attention. At Belmont a sumptuous dinner was done full justice to, where the tables "groaned beneath the weight of curious viands." In the grounds Bro. Henry Burrows made an excellent photograph of the outers, and a separate one of the officers of the lodge. The ladies' race was contested by quite a bevy of fair ones and was won by Miss Leighton, who also carried off other prizes during the day. The race for the silver watch evoked much competition, and was cleverly won by Bro. Hamilton, G.D., who defeated in the final heats Bro. Hains, Chaplain; Hughes, I.P.M.; and Jones. The donkey races on the flat were "flat" indeed, as several of the animals refused to move. The miscellaneous concert by Bros. Meale, Rose, Price, Fisher, and Nicholas, assisted by Mrs. Skeaf, elicited such rapturous applause, that this particular portion of the programme passed off in anything but "a quiet sort of way." The party having partaken of tea, turned their faces homewards, making a halt at the Village Smithy, where the song of the "Village Blacksmith" was most effectually rendered by Bro. W. G. Veales, to a real bellows and anvil accompaniment, whilst the forge fire lighted up the group in a weird and effective picture. The party arrived in Liverpool at 10.15., thoroughly delighted with the day's festival.

WEST DERBY.—Pembroke Lodge (No. 1299). The annual pic-nic of the brethren of this lodge, holding its meetings at West Derby, at a pleasant distance from Liverpool, took place on Thursday, the 28th ult., the scene of the day's festivities being Frodsham, Belmont, and the Overton Hills. About 80 brethren and ladies started from Lime Street Station, shortly after 11 o'clock. Amongst those of the party were Bros. J. Clegg, W.M.; J. Sellar, I.P.M.; J. F. Jones, J.W.; R. Bennett, Sec.; F. Page, and others. Admirable arrangements had been made by the Special Committee of which Bro. J. H. Townley was the indefatigable Secretary; and the catering of Bro. W. Vines, one of the P.M.'s of the lodge, must have given the most complete satisfaction, even to the most exacting. The weather on the whole was favourable, and a very pleasant day was spent. After an excellent dinner, the party engaged in dancing, croquet, bowls, gymnastics, &c., according to their various tastes; while not a few found considerable amusement in exciting donkey races. Mr. Martin's band furnished excellent music, and every feature passed off with the proverbial merryness of the "marriage bells." The party returned to Liverpool at an early hour.

MILLOM. Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge, was held at the Masonic Rooms, Millom, on Tuesday 19th, August. The chair was filled by Bro. Thomas Dodgson, the W.M., and P.M. 995, who was supported by Bros. J. Mills, S.W.; J. Meredith, J.W.; J. Postlethwaite, Sec.; R. Pearson, P.M., 995; and othes. Sundry business was disposed of, and the the lodge was finally closed in due form.

Red Cross of Constantine.

CONSECRATION OF THE WALTON CONCLAVE. A third Red Cross Conclave has been added to those already in existence in Liverpool, and flourishing to the most surprising extent, by the consecration of the Walton Conclave, No. 97, at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, on Thursday, the 28th August. The addition of a Conclave to the lodges and chapters already in existence at the North end of Liverpool, must prove a great boon to the residents in that part of the town, and there is every likelihood of the "Walton" proving as popular as either of the existing Conclaves. The consecration ceremony was fixed to begin at 5 o'clock, and shortly after that time, and as a preliminary to the more important part of the proceedings, a conclave was opened by Ill. Sir Knt. G. Turner, Int. Gen., for West Lancashire, for the purpose of installing several approved and elected candidates for the new fraternity. The chair of the V.E. was occupied by Sir Knt. J. Banning, P.V.; and that of H. P. by Ill. Sir Knt. J. K. Smith, Dep. Int. Gen. for West Lancashire. After the conclave had been opened according to the strict ritual of the knightly Order, Sir Knt. T. Ashmore, Past S. of the Skelmersdale Conclave, No. 77, ascended the throne, and proceeded to instal into the sublime privileges of the Order, Bros. the Rev. T. W. Richardson, 1086; D. R. Williams, 1035; G. E. Hammer, 1086; and U. S. Barker, 724. (Four other candidates were due, but absence from town prevented their attendance). After the installation Ill. Sir Knt. Turner proceeded to consecrate the Walton Conclave, No. 97, assisted by the following Knights of the Order, besides those already named:—Sir Knts. Joseph C. Lant, M.P.S. designate; J. J. Rose S.G.; P. Ball, S.; C. McNab, W. Quayle, P. Armstrong, besides the following visitors:—Em. Sir Knight Molyneux, M.P.S. 55; Sir Knights P. B. Forshaw, 77; J. Wood, Treas. 55; Em. Sir Knight H. Nelsen, M.P.S. 77; and others. The Ill. Int. Gen. in an impressive consecration of the conclave, received invaluable help from Em. Sir Knights J. K. Smith, T. Ashmore, and H. M. Molyneux. Em. Sir Knt. J. C. Lunt, was subsequently enthroned M.P.S. of the new conclave, and Sir Knt. Jesse Banning, was installed V.E.; and the following were the other officers, who were invested at the meeting:—Sir Knights J. Rose, Sen. Gen.; W. S. Barker, Jun. Gen.; Rev. F. W. Richardson, H.P.; W. S. Barker, Treas.; Wm. Quayle, Rec.; C. Mc. Nabb, Prefect; Geo. E. Hammer, S. Bearer; and P. Ball, S. Bearer. The assembled knights subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet in an upper room.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332), met on Monday, September 2nd, at 170, Buchanan-street, Bro. J. B. McNair, R.W.M., presided, assisted by Bro. R. Mitchel, P.M.; D. McThurdy, S.W.; and A. Conichie, J.W. This lodge has, owing to the connection of Bro. Mitchell with the shipping of the port, obtained such a name amongst the master mariners trading to that port, that emergency meetings have been held during the past month to accommodate them. On this occasion the work consisted of the initiation of two candidates, the work being admirably performed by the Right Worshipful Master, who also impressively passed one brother into the Fellow Craft Degree. Bro. Mitchell, P.M., then took the chair, and raised Captain Meriam to the third degree in a painstaking manner. At the conclusion of the ceremony, he brought forward the case of an old Mason for whom, owing to the infirmities of age, they were getting up a subscription. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. W. Bassett, 27; G. W. Wheeler, 73; and J. Johnston, 619. After labour the lodge proceeded to refreshment, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk; Bro. Meriam responded to that of "The Initiates."

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DEVON.

On Thursday, Aug. 28, the annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon was held in the Town Hall, Dawlish, when there were about two hundred members present. Besides the transaction of the ordinary business of the year, Grand Lodge was held for the consecration of Salem Lodge, No. 1443. There being no Lodge of Freemasons at Dawlish, Bro. J. Stroud Short, the W.M. designate, and his brethren, had made every preparation to give their brethren of the province and the visitors a cordial welcome.

There was a large attendance of Past and Present Provincial Grand Officers and brethren from every lodge in the province.

Previous to the meeting of the Grand Lodge the Committee of Petitions met at Hatcher's Royal Hotel, and there considered several petitions from the widows of deceased brethren, and transacted other business.

On adjourning to the Town Hall, the Grand Lodge was opened in regular form by the Prov. Grand Master; prayer being offered by the Rev. John Matthews, P.G.C.

Bro. W. G. Rogers, the Provincial Grand Secretary, read the minutes of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge during the past twelve months.

Bro. Dennis Moore suggested that the address of condolence to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall on the death of Bro. Augustus Smith should be recorded in the minutes.

Bro. Rogers said he had received a letter in reply from the Province of Cornwall, which he was about to read, and it might be entered, with the address, in the minutes of the lodge. The following is a copy of the reply, together with a note added by the present Prov.G.M., the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe.

"To the Right Worshipful the Prov. G. Master of Devon, and the brethren of the Province of Devon.

"We, the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall, in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, gratefully acknowledge the feeling expression of condolence of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon, conveyed to this province, on the death of our late beloved Prov.G. Master, Bro. Augustus Smith, whose merits we so fully appreciate, and whose loss we so deeply regret.

"We cordially thank the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon for the handsome form in which this condolence has been presented, and shall always retain it amongst our archives as a token of the kind sympathy existing between the sister provinces.

"Reginald Rogers, D.P.G.M. of Cornwall.

"E. P. Carlyon, P.G. Secretary.

"Dated Masonic Hall, Truro, 13th March, 1873."

To this reply was appended the following note:—

"Being unable to sign the above letter on behalf of my Prov. G. Lodge (as it was held under the presidency of the Dep. G. Master), I am anxious to express my own share in the general sorrow excited by the death of my lamented friend and predecessor throughout the province over which he ruled so worthily, and my cordial sense of the truly fraternal feeling manifested in the message of sympathy, which has been so warmly appreciated by the brethren of this province.

"Mount Edgcumbe, Prov. G.M. of Cornwall."

The Prov. G. Master thanked the members of the Grand Lodge for the support they had given to him while acting as Grand Steward. The province was by far the largest contributor—four times larger, in fact, than any other province in the kingdom. The contribution was very much esteemed by one of the greatest personages in the kingdom.

Bro. Rae suggested that the address to the Prov. G. Lodge of Cornwall, and the reply, should be printed and circulated in the next report, which was agreed to.

Bro. Rogers read a statement of receipts from the lodges of the province throughout the year. There was no lodge now which had not made its returns.

Bro. Bird, Prov. G. Treasurer, brought up his statement of accounts, which showed a balance in hand of £117 13s. 2d.

Bro. Rogers read the report of Bro. Pope, the Treasurer of the Fortescue Annuity Fund, showing the receipts and expenditure of that fund for the past year. The funds invested amount to £1,729.

Bro. Gover, Secretary of the Committee of Petitions, next read the following report of the Committee:—"The Committee of Petitions have much pleasure in presenting their annual report to the Provincial Grand Lodge, demonstrating as it does most forcibly the great benefits which have been conferred on the aged and distressed members of the Order, their widow and orphans, by its continued exertions. Desultory effort has given way to well organised action, whereby the influence of the province has been brought to bear, as will be seen, with much success, on the individual cases which have on enquiry been found to be the most deserving. But although very much of this is due to the improved organisation of the province, your Committee feel they are bound to record the untiring efforts of their Bro. James Stevens, who, hailing from Devonshire, has undertaken the arduous and delicate task of conducting the elections on their behalf in the various Masonic charities. They do this with the warmest feeling of gratitude, in which they believe the Provincial Grand Lodge will sympathise. The Committee have still to regret that many votes are given to cases out of the province, but, happily, not in sufficient numbers to influence the general result. During the past year they have succeeded in the election of one boy, one aged Freemason, and one widow, and except the October schools, are free to undertake new cases. The Committee have also to report that two brethren and one brother's child have been relieved in the Royal Albert Hospital by means of tickets subscribed for by lodges. During the past few days two children, daughters of a deceased brother, have been admitted into the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, one by election and the other by nomination of the Admiralty. One of the most important questions ever raised in this or any other province was inaugurated at the meeting held at Exeter in January of the present year, and then referred to a meeting held in April. It related to the formation of an Educational Fund for the children of deceased or distressed brethren. It is admitted that this province cannot expect to carry an election of either a boy or girl, except at long intervals, and at a considerable expenditure of votes, which might be advantageously used in other directions, whilst at the same time there are now no less than seven boys and girls, two widows, and four aged brethren, asking for aid. Your committee are confident that the Prov. Grand Lodge will agree with them that it is the sacred duty of every Mason to do what he can to relieve the distressed, and to advance the interests of those who have been reduced to poverty by the death, sickness, or unmerited misfortune of their parents. They believe, too, that relief cannot be given in a better or more substantial form, than that of a good practical education, thereby enabling the recipients to battle with the trials and competitions of life. They therefore most earnestly commend so good a cause to the cordial and liberal support of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and also of all Prov. G. officers, the lodges, and members of the Order. The rules unanimously adopted by the committee at their adjourned meeting have been sent to all the lodges, and will be submitted for the approval of the Prov. Grand Lodge. At the meeting held in Exeter, the Committee granted the sum of £5 to a member of lodge 719, and they recommend that an additional sum of £5, be granted by the Prov. Grand Lodge. This brother had lost a sum of £14,000 in his business as an hotel proprietor, and at the age of 68 is entirely destitute. They also granted the sum of £5 to the widow of a brother of Lodge 159, Stonehouse, to assist her in carrying on the business of a lodging-house keeper. At the meeting held this day at Dawlish the committee granted the sum of £5 to the widow of a brother of Lodge 1212, Devonport, recently deceased. The Committee also recommend the Provincial Grand Lodge to grant further sum of £5 to the widow of a deceased brother of Lodge 223."

Bro. Dennis Moore proposed that that part of the report which related to the proposed Educational Scheme should be deferred for twelve months.

Bro. Brizzi seconded the motion. A long discussion took place upon the motion, and it was eventually agreed that time should be given to the lodges in the province to consider the whole question, and that the Grand Master be requested to convene a special Grand Lodge in about six months for the consideration of this subject.

Bro. Metham, D.Prov. G.M., then moved that £5 be given to the sister of a deceased brother—a most excellent Mason, a naval officer, who, in dying, had left her destitute. The case was well known to many of the brethren.

Bro. Dennis Moore moved that the amount should be 10 guineas, which was agreed to.

In this case friends of the lady had already subscribed for her £100.

Bro. Capt. Tanner Davy then proposed, in accordance with notice, a donation of £10 to the North Devon Infirmary, Barnstaple, which was agreed to, having been seconded by Bro. Metham.

The donation is to be conveyed to the infirmary through Bro. Davy.

Bro. Jones proposed a similar gift to the Devon and Exeter Hospital. Seconded by Bro. Gover, and carried unanimously.

Bro. James Stevens, of London, the representative of the charities of the province, spoke in warm terms of the manner in which the province had during the last two or three years, subscribed to the great charities, and of the high position which it now held. His labours would be very much lightened in consequence of their generosity. There would be little chance for any election in October, but he hoped that at the next election he should be able to place a candidate in both the Boys' and Girls' schools.

Brethren then gave notice of their intention next year to apply for donations for the Torbay and Tiverton Infirmarys.

Bro. Latimer, P. Prov. G. Sec., said they had voted their money freely to other charities, and he would now propose that £25 be voted to the Fortescue Annuity Fund.

Bro. Rae seconded, the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The Grand Master then proceeded with the ceremony of the constitution and consecration of Salem Lodge, No. 1442. The ceremony was beautifully carried out by the Grand Master, who always performs all his duties in the most effective and eloquent manner.

The Prov. G. Secretary read the warrant of constitution, and after the brethren of the new lodge signified their assent to the officers named in the warrant.

The D.Prov.G.M., Bro. L. P. Metham, P.G.D. of England, then delivered an oration on the subject of Masonry.

The Prov. G. Master added a few words in commendation of the principles so beautifully enunciated by Bro. Metham, after which he pledged the Master and members of the new lodge to obey the laws and constitutions of the Grand Lodge, and then declared Salem Lodge to be regularly and duly constituted.

The ceremony of consecration was next proceeded with, the Grand Master, his Wardens, and the Chaplain taking their part in the solemn service. Bro. Col. Elliot acted for the Deputy Prov. G. Master, who was suffering from indisposition, and left early.

The installation of the Master Designate was deferred, the Grand Master promising to pay an early and special visit for the purpose.

The following are the officers appointed for Salem Lodge:—J. Stroud Short, W.M.; Samuel Loran, S.W.; William Ball, J.W.; George Bragg Avent, S.D.; Charles W. W. Spencer, J.D.; F. E. Temes, Secretary; F. Haslett, I.G.; P. Haggerty, Tyler.

The consecration having been concluded, the Provincial Grand Master proceeded with the remainder of the business of the Grand Lodge. Bro. Hooper, of Exeter, proposed Bro. William Thomas Maynard, of 106, as Treasurer; Bro. Jones, of 112, seconded the motion. Bro. Maynard was cordially elected.

The following appointments were also made:

Walter Goddard Rogers	Prov. G.S.W.
W. Elphinstone Stone	Prov. G.J.W.
B. C. Gidley	Prov. G. Reg.
Charles Leigh	Prov. G. Sec.
R. R. G. Thomas	Prov. G.S.D.
Thomas Coffin	Prov. G.J.D.
Rev. T. Lemon	Prov. G. Chaplain.
S. S. Tremayne	Prov. G.S.W.
W. Trevena	Prov. G.D.C.
H. F. Hearle	Prov. A.G.D.C.
James Montgomery	Prov. G. Sword B.
P. B. Clemens	Prov. G. Purst.
W. Cole, P.G.P.	Prov. G. Steward.
Henry Powell Smith	" " "
Henry Welsh	" " "
W. Hugo	" " "
John Gould	" " "
John Chapman Yolland	" " "
George C. Bignell	" " "

In making these appointments, some of the brethren were highly complimented for their past services, especially Bro. Rogers, the mention of whose name was greeted with the warmest cordiality. The Prov. G. Master stated that Bro. Rogers had served them in the most courteous manner as their Secretary for ten years, and he had spared no labour in their service. The Prov. G. Master also stated that in future the excellent plan, which had been started by Bro. Vincent Bird, of printing the accounts and circulating them, should be adopted. Bro. Rae proposed that the accounts so printed should be paid for by Prov. G. Lodge. To this Bro. Bird objected; but it was insisted upon, and unanimously agreed to. A vote of thanks was also especially voted to Bro. Bird for his excellent services.

This closed the business of Prov. G. Lodge.

The brethren then adjourned "from labour to refreshment;" that is, about one hundred of them proceeded to the Royal Hotel, and there, under the presidency of R.W. the Prov. G. Master, Bro. the Rev. John Huyshe, with his Wardens, acting as croupiers, partook of a most excellent cold dinner. The supply was abundant, and the quality of the viands all that could be desired. The business here was not protracted, many of the brethren having to travel to different parts of the province by road or rail. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk, and a most pleasant day most pleasantly concluded.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF DORSET.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Dorset was held on Wednesday, 27th ult., at Blandford, and it was one of the most successful gatherings of the Craft that have ever been held in the province. The lodge was opened at noon in due form, by Bro. J. Gundry, of Bridport, R.W. Prov. G.M.; supported by Bro. J. Montagu, R.W.D. Prov. G.M. There was also a numerous attendance of Grand Lodge Officers, Past and Present Prov. Grand Lodge Officers, W. Masters, Past Masters and Wardens of the various lodges in the province.

An important item in the proceedings was a lecture by the P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. P.H. Newnham, formerly of Frome Vauchurch, but now of Stonehouse, Devon, on the true status of Freemasonry, in which he pointed out that our tendency as a body is to take far too low a view of the Craft to which we belong. Historical science enabled them to reconstruct the religion of the past, and see how God as been pleased to educate the minds of men, in a religious point of view, from the lowest beginning of Nature worship to the knowledge of the true Deity; and he asked them to look at Freemasonry as a collection of old symbols, in 3 or 4,000 years before Christ, and adopted by later guilds of operative masons, who admitted others called speculative masons into their body. These symbols were intended to convey the ideas they had concerning the Deity, and through which they were trying to grope their way to a knowledge of the true God.

They were as the chisel employed on the rough ashlar to remove irregularities and make them fit for a higher state of society. God had been working on one plan in the education of the world from the earliest ages to the present time. It was so in the arts and sciences. In both they found foreshadowed the refined appliances of the present time—from the flint implements of the earliest ages to the finished mechanism of modern engines of war; and from the hieroglyphic alphabets to the telegraph printing of to-day. Through all the ages one unceasing purpose runs. It must be remembered that man is a composite animal—of body, soul, and spirit, as St. Paul says, and they had to see to the education of all three. Of the mind by such careful well-regulated habits, corporeally and mentally, as shall conduce to its fullest energy; there was the education of the intellect, and also spiritual education, the latter being of the highest importance in the strange Trinity of which man is made up. The learned Chaplain went on to point out how the several degrees of Masonry symbolised the various steps by which men advanced to the knowledge of God, through Sun worship to apprehension of the Father of Lights, to regeneration and resurrection, the cross and the Trinity, tracing through all the tendency to get nearer and nearer the one great object of our desires. In conclusion he observed that this spiritual education must still be carried on in us individually, and at his church or chapel the truths of religion. Freemasonry would never teach them to him, yet properly used, its practices and spirit were calculated to be of great assistance in that work. It was of serious importance to them all that they so applied Freemasonry.

This is necessarily a brief indication of the spirit of Bro. Newnham's lecture, which was most eloquently and ably worked out by the applied Freemasonry.

The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, in moving avote of thanks to Bro. Newnham, remarked on the importance and usefulness of the study of the origin of Freemasonry. He observed that lately when in France he found that the Craft held a much lower status in that country than here, through having been abused for sectarian and political purposes, and dwelt on our happy condition in avoiding those dangers. At a subsequent period, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master made some remarks on the state of the province of Dorset. There were now 13 lodges, nearly all of which were in an improving condition. As a whole he was happy to say the lodges of the province were steadily progressing, and every year increased the members of the Craft, while the assembly on that occasion showed the active interest of the members had in no way abated: and for himself he increasingly felt that there was always some new point in the Craft which might exercise their intellects and give them useful occupation. He alluded in eloquent terms to the loss by death of the G.M. of England, the late Earl of Zetland; and he adverted to the death of our late Bro. John Tizard, of Weymouth. All in the province who had the pleasure of the personal acquaintance of our lamented brother felt his death most acutely, for his geniality and kindness of disposition, and his willingness at all times to give substantial proofs of sympathy, endeared him to all; and he was sure they all sympathised deeply with his mourning widow and bereaved children. He remarked that the province appeared to be in a very satisfactory and prosperous condition, and their funds were in an excellent state. Thanks to their good friend the Prov. Secretary, everything was in a gratifying condition. In conclusion he referred to the success of the plan adopted for administering the charities of the province.

On the motion of the R.W.G.M., Bro. Gundry, seconded by the R.W.D.G.M., Bro. Montagu, it was resolved—"That the following resolution be passed and duly recorded on the minutes of Provincial Grand Lodge, and a copy thereof forwarded to Bro. the present Earl of Zetland. This being the first occasion of it re-assembling since the death of our late R.W.P.G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, which occurred on the sixth day of May last, this Provincial Grand Lodge desires to record its deep feeling of regret at the loss of a brother so esteemed and revered, under whose efficient and courteous rule for upwards of 25 years Freemasonry so advanced and flourished, and who had taken with him into the retirement necessitated by increasing years the affectionate regard of the whole body of the Craft."

On the motion of the R.W.P.G.M. seconded by the R.W.D. Prov. G.M., it was resolved—"That the following resolution be passed and recorded on the minutes of Provincial Grand Lodge, and a copy thereof forwarded to the widow and family of our late W. Bro. John Tizard. That this Provincial Grand Lodge desires to express its condolence with the widow and family of the late W. Bro. John Tizard, on the irreparable loss they had sustained in his untimely death, and to convey to them its regret that a brother so able and willing to aid and promote the best interests of Freemasonry has been removed from a sphere of usefulness to the Craft, and to his fellow creatures generally."

The R.W.P.G.M. also mentioned the death of the Rev. R. J. Thomas, of Yeovil, as an old and honoured Mason.

The Provincial Grand Secretary, W. Bro. Coombs, read the Treasurer's account, showing £150 on deposit and £43 2s. 8d. on current account. This was deemed highly satisfactory.

The W. Treas. Bro. Cam Sykes, was re-elected.

The Prov. G. Sec. read the report of the charity committee, which was approved, and the following brethren were appointed for the ensuing year—Bros. Jacob Wyndham, Gutch, and Soppitt,—the latter in the place of Bro. Newnham, removed to Devonshire.

Several donations were voted to charitable objects, and other deserving cases for aid were mentioned to the P.G.L.

The Prov. G. Sec. read the report of the committee appointed to provide new P.G.L. clothing necessitated by the old being both worn out and contrary to regulation.

The P.G.M. then appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—

After investing the Provincial Grand Secretary, W. Bro. Coombs, of Dorchester, the Provincial Grand Master said the time had now come when he thought it desirable, and to himself it was most pleasant, to refer to a little matter affecting our excellent and able brother Coombs, who, he was happy to say, had once more consented to fill the office of Provincial Grand Secretary, and for which they were all very much indebted to him. It would be in the recollection of most of them that it was proposed to ask W. Bro. Coombs to accept a suit of Grand Lodge clothing; he consented, and the province was most delighted. After that time a feeling pervaded the brethren of the province that they would like to give in a quiet way an independent testimonial of the sense they felt of the great services Bro. Coombs had rendered to this province and to Masonry generally. Under these circumstances it was proposed, and he was happy to say carried out, that a subscription should be quietly raised amongst the brethren of the province to procure a suitable testimonial. With that good feeling, so honourable to himself, which had always been evinced by the Provincial Grand Secretary, as soon as he heard of it, he requested most strongly that the vote previously passed to present him a suit of Grand Lodge clothing should be rescinded, as he would rather have the cost of it abstracted from the sum subscribed by the brethren, and that it be included in the testimonial they proposed to present as a memento of their feelings towards him. Desiring first and foremost to please their excellent Provincial Grand Secretary, he agreed, though he must say rather unwillingly, that his wish should be acceded to. He had now very great pleasure in asking Bro. Coombs, in the presence of the Provincial Grand Lodge, to receive that small and unworthy testimonial, raised by free and voluntary subscriptions, on the part of the members of the province of Dorset. The subscription was advisedly fixed at a small amount, as it was considered it would be pleasant to Bro. Coombs for it to be in the power of every member of the province to subscribe his mite towards the testimonial. He was glad to say that in spite of the smallness of the sum allowed to be subscribed, the fund amounted to more than £100, showing the high estimation in which Bro. Coombs was held by the Craft throughout the province. It was now his pleasure and privilege to ask Bro. Coombs' acceptance of the results of that subscription, and invest him with the suit of Grand Lodge clothing. He was quite sure that Bro. Coombs would wear it worthily, and by it bring honour on the province of Dorset. After investing Bro. Coombs, the Provincial Grand Master added:—Allow me also to present to you the result of the residue of the subscription—which will be much more lasting than the other—as a token of the high appreciation of your long and able services by the brethren of the province.

The testimonials consisted of a handsome suit of Grand Lodge clothing, and a large and elegantly chased silver salver, bearing Bro. Coomb's crest, and the following inscription:—

"Presented to W. Bro. Thomas Coombs, of Dorchester, P.M., Lodge No. 417, Grand Secretary for the Province of Dorset, and P.G. Assistant Director of Ceremonies of the Grand Lodge of England, by the Freemasons of Dorset at a Provincial Grand Lodge held at Blandford, on the 20th of August, A.L. 5878, A.D. 1873, as a token of their esteem and affection; as well as a slight recognition of his invaluable services to the Craft during many years. Hearty good wishes."

The inscription was read to the lodge by Bro. Montagu.

W. Bro. Coombs, who was heartily cheered, said for the very handsome appreciation they had shown of his services as Secretary he was unable at present adequately to give them thanks. He only trusted that the experience they had had of his efforts in the past, and that they had had of each other, would enable them to go on in the future in a similarly happy manner to what they had hitherto done—(great applause). He hoped there was a great deal of hard work left in him yet for the benefit of the province of Dorset—(applause). They would excuse him from going more fully at present into the subject of the P.G.M.'s address. It was unexpected—fully unexpected; he had not an idea of it till a little bird peeped out and whistled a little song he could not understand—(laughter). He found a resolution which he thought applied to a subscription for Provincial Grand Lodge clothing; but it seemed very strange; and he then got an inkling of what was intended. He felt that the Provincial Grand Lodge fund was heavily charged with providing new clothing; and that the value of a testimonial to himself would not be in the number of ounces it weighed, but as it was a token of their regard and esteem—(cheers)—and under those circumstances he wished that the Provincial Grand Lodge fund might be relieved of the cost of the Grand Lodge clothing they had so kindly voted to him—(applause). For though it would make the value of the present so much the less, yet it was the feeling evinced that was the testimonial to him and not the weight of the plate—(cheers). He was unable adequately to express to the brethren the thanks he owed for this favour; he only trusted that, as he had said, there were yet some years of hard work left in him, and that by their kind expression of appreciation of his past services he was not to consider it as a hint that they were to be at an end—(cheers)—but that they should still continue on the good terms which had hitherto subsisted—(hear, hear). He was only too grateful to them for this token of their appreciation, and wished he had been able to express his thanks more perfectly and fully than he had done—(cheers).

On the motion of the Prov. G.M., thanks were accorded to the officers and brethren of lodge No. 1,266, Blandford, for their reception of Provincial Grand Lodge; to W. Bro. Stebbing, (D.P.G.M. of Hampshire) and other visitors for their attendance.

The lodge was closed punctually at 3 p.m., according to the agenda paper, the business being finished precisely at the time indicated.

The banquet took place at the Crown Hotel, at four o'clock, when nearly 200 brethren were present. Bro. J. Gundry presided, with Bro. A. E. Guest, M.P., in the Vice-Chair. Viscount Portman presented a haunch of venison, and Capt. Hanham choice fruit for dessert.

After giving "The Queen and the Craft," the Prov. G.M. proposed "The M.W.G.M. of England, the Marquess of Ripon," saying he was heart and soul in the love of Masonry, and would no doubt be a worthy successor to Earl Zetland.

In giving "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, P.G.M. and the Royal Family," Bro. Gundry observed we were fortunate in having the Prince of Wales to take care of our material interests in this country. As to the royal family, he said—may God bless them all, and may they ever possess as they do now, the affections of the people of Great Britain.

Bro. Gundry proposed "The R.W.D.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Present and Past Officers of the Grand Lodge." With regard to them he believed he was right in saying they were selected exclusively with a view to efficiency and fitness. As regarded one of them, our experience for many years of the ability of Bro. Coombs proved that to be the case. The toast was associated with the name of our Worshipful brother.

Bro. Coombs, in responding, referred to the fact that there were present two distinguished, and older members of Grand Lodge than himself—Bro. Stebbing and Symonds, though he cordially thanked them for this compliment to himself as one of the Grand Officers native to this province.

Bro. Stebbing, being called upon, also responded in an eloquent speech, remarking that most of the Grand Officers were conspicuous not only for their attention to Masonic duties, but for their devotion to the interests of the charities of the Craft, in which he thought rested in a great degree the excellence and permanence of the Order. He enlarged on the fact that Masonry exists throughout the world, having the same characteristics of large-hearted charity, its members all bound together by the fraternal tie of benevolence. It was the province of the Grand Lodge to guide and foster our noble Order wherever it existed, and if they were faithful to their principles and loved Masonry as it taught them to love it, the Grand Lodge of England would continue to be the most glorious institution in the empire.

Bro. W. J. Montagu proposed "The Army, Navy, and Reserved Forces."

Adjutant Barrett responded for the army.

Capt. Hanham, for the navy, said it had been his lot to visit every capital in Europe and almost every state in North and South America, and the pleasure had been greatly enhanced by meeting everywhere brother Masons.

Bro. B. P. Gundry, replied for the reserved forces.

Bro. J. Gundry, gave "The Bishop and Clergy and Ministers of Religion of all Denominations," in cordial terms.

Bro. the Rev. J. H. Newnham, responding, said he trusted he should see the day when a nonconformist minister was selected as the Grand Chaplain of England.

Bro. the Rev. M. Heath, also responded.

Bro. Symons, proposed "The Health of the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. Gundry," remarking on his zeal for Masonry, and the geniality of his manners as a worthy gentleman.

Bro. Gundry thanked them for the compliment paid him, and said it would always be a great pleasure to him to see any efforts for the furtherance of the Craft so long as they bestowed on him their approval, and with their support he confidently anticipated the continued advancement of the Craft in Dorset.

Bro. J. Gundry gave "The Health of the W.D.P.G.M., Bro. Montagu, and the Present and Past Officers of Provincial Grand Lodge."

Bro. Montagu responded.

Bro. Gundry proposed "The Health of W. Bro. Stebbing, and our other Visitors."

Bro. Stebbing congratulated the brethren on the excellent condition of the Craft in Dorset. He was much pleased with the orderly manner in which the business was conducted, and the peculiar grace and kindly feeling with which the Prov. G.M. presided. He spoke of the advantages and usefulness of visiting other lodges, remarking that he had observed several things here which were an improvement on anything he had seen before. He expatiated at length on the generous feelings which Masonry fosters in the breasts of all its disciples, and was heartily cheered.

Bro. Gundry proposed "The Lodge of Honour and Friendship, No. 1,266, Blandford," and remarked on the value of interchange of ideas with brother Masons.

Bro. Hanham responded, and observed that many foreign lodges were jealously regarded by the sovereigns, and accused of political objects wrongfully, with a view to crush them; especially was this the case in Brazil.

A brother mentioned that there had just been issued in Brazil an edict directing the priests to abandon their opposition to Freemasonry—(applause).

WAR AGAINST MASONRY IN BRAZIL. BY THE ROMISH BISHOPS.

The Voice of Masonry gives the following extract from a letter, from a brother resident in Brazil:—

Just now we are engaged in the most extraordinary discussion throughout the whole empire that I ever witnessed; a veritable religious warfare, that two centuries ago would, I surely believe, result in bloodshed.

It is difficult for me to give you a just idea of it. It began over a year ago with the festival at the Grand Masonic Lodge in Rio, given in honour of Rio Branco, for the passage of the Emancipation Act. A priest of some considerable reputation, himself a Mason I believe, delivered the oration on that occasion. The Bishop thus having the open violation of this Priest, (with the rules of the church,) brought to his notice, admonished him; reminded him of the bulls of excommunication which had been from time to time promulgated against secret societies, and notably against the Order of Freemasonry; and concluded by urging him to abjure his oath of secrecy, and break off such relations. The Priest refusing to do so, he was deprived of certain offices, and rendered incapable by interdiction of confessing and officiating at mass, &c.

The Masons of Rio of course flew to the defence of their brother, and for a time the journals were discussing nothing else, and by many writers the Bishop was handled without gloves.

This incident brought on a most lively discussion of all the disputed ecclesiastical questions which have from time to time convulsed Brazilian society, such questions as whether we have here in Brazil a national church, in any sense independent of Rome, the right of sepulture, separation of the church from the state, liberty of worship, and others of similar character, questions that rarely appear in the United States for the simple reason that the voluntary system prevails.

In December this state of things was aggravated by the announcement that the fiery young prelate of Pernambuco had declared open warfare against the Masons of his Diocese.

But he was going to wait till he found a priest. He took the ground that the religious brotherhoods must either expel those members who were Masons, or suffer the pains and penalties of interdiction. But as several of these Orders were composed almost wholly of members who were Masons at the same time, there was no exclusion, and interdiction followed.

It was carrying out, in all its parts, this pastoral of the Bishop, wherein he executes the papal bull of excommunication against Masonry, that the present great excitement began first to manifest itself. The people en masse, with the commencement of the present year, spurred on by the continued warfare of the Bishop against Masonry, at last addressed a vigorous protest to the Government, not forgetting to make a representation to Parliament, then in session at Rio.

Previously the Bishop of Para had forbidden the faithful to read certain Liberal journals, in which certain alleged heresies were defended, under pain of suffering spiritual punishment at his hands.

The Bishop of Rio Grande, with his associate clergy, also manifested a like spirit, and the debate waxed warmer and warmer.

The Bishop of Para decided to furnish his little contribution as well, and began to excommunicate and anathematize the Liberal journals, and recently, in imitation of his Pernambuco brother, "tried his hand" on the religious orders, which in Brazil are a species of benevolent society, participate in the ceremonies of the church, on feast days march in the processions, wearing their albs and carrying torches in the most solemn manner.

This priestly epidemic, or fit of excommunication, ran down the coast, and finally attacked his reverence the Bishop of Rio; and his anathema is the last which has been hurled at us, down to the present writing.

From this rapid view of the case you may imagine into what a "damnable" state we have fallen—spiritually considered. The man who does the funny jokes on the "Reforma," under the heading of "Boatos," kept up very creditably until a few days since, when he broke ground in a most alarming manner, and, in retaliation for the terrible mass of old obsolete canon law, with which Mendes Almeida garnished his discourse the day previous, began to hurl a lot of celestial thunderbolts himself, quoting with perfect recklessness the following bulls:—

Quousque tandem,—Clement XLVIII.

Parturiunt montes nascitur,—Leo XCV.

Sic itur ad,—Pio X.

adding that his stock wasn't exhausted either, and they had better look out, Bishop and all.

* * * * *

The best of it all is, that the eyes of the public are being opened gradually to the actual state of things, and men who ten months ago would have indignantly scorned such an idea as unworthy a true Catholic, are now asking themselves whether it would not be much better after all to end these questions by one simple act—separation of church from state, and so settle for ever this pretended supremacy of Rome. This idea is fast seizing hold of the public mind, and journals and public men are continually announcing themselves as adherents to it.

But I am running on to unusual length. All this may be without interest to you. Let me hear from you as you find occasion and disposition to write.

Yours most truly,

RICHARD CUTTO SHANNON.

Secretary of Legation of U.S. in Brazil.

DESIGN OF THE DEGREES.—The initiation into the first, or Entered Apprentice's Degree, was made to partake, in a slighter proportion, of those trials of physical and moral courage for which the admission into ancient and chiefly Egyptian mysteries were famous. The second, or Fellow Craft's, was rendered interesting by those scientific instructions and philosophical lectures which characterised later parts of the mysteries; though both degrees were made to tend to the glory of that God who had given such wonderful faculties to them and to the welfare of their fellow creatures. Thus instructed in morals, and science, the third, or Master Mason's Degree, led them to that great truth which the sublimest part even of the heathen mysteries, though it too soon seldom succeeded, was intended to teach, and the faithful believer was assured of a future life and immortality beyond the grave. And, whereas, the heathens had taught this only by the application of a fable to their purpose, the wisdom of the pious Grand Master of Israelitish Masons took advantage of a real circumstance, which would more forcibly impress the sublime truths he intended to inculcate upon the minds of all brethren. Such is a brief outline, intelligible I trust, to the members of the Order, of the design of that beautiful system which, then established, has long been the admiration of the world, and has stood the test of ages amid every persecution.—Archdeacon Mant.

LANGUAGE OF MASONRY.

"As every Masonic idea has its own proper sign that expresses it better than any other can, we should seek to preserve uniformity of language as well as spirit. We are to teach Masonry as we receive it, and not as we have forgotten and substituted some words of our own. An interpolated word here and there, by one and another lecturer, would, in the course of time, entirely destroy the original text of Masonic instruction.

"Masonry is one of the agencies to preserve the purity of the English tongue, and the moment we begin to admit words of modern coinage, or of philological construction from foreign tongues, that moment we weigh anchor and set sail on uncertain seas, where a maelstrom may wait to engulf us.

"The normal language of Masonry is simple and pure. Men of correct tastes will admire the sublime simplicity of our ritual much more than when clothed in the meretricious rhetoric of every lecturer who thinks he can beautify it by his own expurgations and substitutions. No license to change should be allowed any one, or we shall be at last confounded in a Babel of tongues. We heard of an artist who once took a pure white lily and sought to improve it by penciling on its petals the parti-colored fancies he had mixed on his pallet. He committed floral sacrilege, and violated the first principles of art, which is strict conformity to nature. Paint is good in its place, but not to improve flowers. 'Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these.' Moral truths are grandest when clothed in severe attire. The adornments of art cannot add to the charms of truth. Let us continue Masonry in that uncorrupted form in which our fathers taught it—free from the garish decorations of the modern drama, and the high-sounding periods of bombastic oratory and poetry. We want no Johnsonianism in Masonry, and naught of the spectacular style."

OPENING AND CLOSING A LODGE.

The old charges say that in a Lodge opened, the brethren are to have no private committees, or separate conversation, without leave of the Master; that they are to utter nothing unseemly; that they are not to interrupt the Master or Warden, or any other while speaking, nor to speak or act ludicrously or jestingly while the lodge is engaged in what is serious or solemn, and that no unbecoming language whatever is to be used.

A lodge room, in all that pertains to respect or reverence for Deity, or to the moral law or social code, should be as sacred as a church. It should be a place in reality dedicated to the service of God, and, while nothing of innocent mirth or playful familiarity is to be excluded, nothing contrary to Divine teachings, violation of the code of morals, or offensive to good breeding, should be admitted upon the floor of a lodge room. By good breeding we do not mean the rule of upper-tendom, or the artificial conduct required in different circles, but that innate sense of propriety which prompts even the uneducated and untaught man to render to others what he desires for himself.

We do not care to say here what we have seen and heard upon the floor of a lodge room, but this we do say emphatically, that any brother who will so far forget his solemn covenants and teachings as to act or appear unbecomingly upon the floor of a lodge room, is very likely to so act and appear everywhere else.

The room itself should be regarded sacred, because a lodge is erected to God, who inhabits the room. Having been erected to God, He is supposed to reside therein. When the brethren assemble, before a lodge is formed, freedom, politeness and friendly recognition should prevail; but upon the sound of the gavel, every brother, clothed, should decorously repair to his own seat or station. Every brother ought to be able to fill any station, in opening or closing, unless we may except those of Master and Secretary. But especially is it the duty, as it should be the pride, of every officer to know his part, and be able to perform his duty with honour to the Master and creditably to himself. We find lodges very much lacking and lame in this, by which brethren become wearied and impatient, disgusted and ashamed, and cease to attend. Let the opening ceremonies be effectively rendered, the business transacted methodically, and the lodge closed in good time, and there will not only be attendance, but attention and interest.

The lodge-room should be the place, and the lodge itself the school of good manners. No man should be a Mason, unless he is by nature a gentleman, one who respects himself and others; one thoughtful in his acts and expressions and chary in his words. We find, too, that in opening a lodge, one great lesson is disregarded. We are taught that "no man should enter upon any great or important duty, without first invoking the blessing of the Deity." And yet many lodges are pretended to be opened without even the semblance of prayer. In Mackey's 7th point of opening, he lays this duty down as indispensable, and many hold that a lodge is not Masonically opened until the blessing of Deity is invoked.

After the opening ceremonies, the first business is the reading of the record. This should in no wise be omitted at a regular communication, and should be read from the record book itself. Indeed, were we Master of a lodge, we would not open a lodge until the record (not in minutes) was made up, unless it should be impracticable. A lodge should be a lodge in its ceremonies, in its works, in its business, in its manners, and its records.

We shall make this article too tedious if we stop now to comment upon the work. What we have said of opening is true of closing, only the ceremonies may be more brief and rapid, preserving decorum and solemnity.

Unless the hour is late, the brethren should not be in haste to disperse, but should indulge in friendly conversation upon what concerns them, their business, their prospects, their families, the good of Masonry, and the welfare of the lodge. In this way brotherly affection, ties of friendship and personal regard grow strong, and their good influence abide in our homes, go with us through life, modify our acts, and smooth the voyage over the river of death.—Masonic Trowel.

WHAT IS YOUR LIFE?

"Life, to me, is a very great mystery. The question, 'What is your life?' comes very often uncalled for, and, on an occasion like the present the question proves itself through the multitude of thoughts and memories, and clamors for consideration. 'What is your life?' Am I making the best possible use of the opportunities of life as they are presented. Are you meeting the ends of your being, and discharging the high responsibilities resting upon you, in view of the positions you occupy in our Order and in the State. My own mind goes back a quarter of a century, and calls up the lessons and teachings of Masonry, learned and meditated over in the earlier years of Masonic life, and I ask myself the question, Have I, in youth, as an Entered Apprentice, industriously occupied my time in the attainment of useful knowledge; and, in manhood, am I applying that knowledge in a faithful discharge of the duties which I owe to God, my neighbor and myself? Are we all so applying these lessons and duties, that we can look forward to the time of age, in the hope of enjoying the happy reflection consequent upon a well-spent life, and wait our appointed time, when we shall be, like ripe sheaves in the harvest time, gathered into the great garner of eternity."

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1873.

THE LAST ROMAN CATHOLIC ATTACK ON FREEMASONRY.

We do not think, that, the last assault on Freemasonry is likely to be more effective than preceding ones.

Some before this have been serious enough in all conscience, the head of the Romish Catholic Church, speaking "ex Cathedra Petri," and appealing alike to the "Fideles," and fulminating a Bull or Pastoral, against us wicked Freemasons.

So far back indeed as the Council of Rouen, in the 12th century, and at the Council of Avignon in the 14th century, societies, which elected annually a "Majorem," or Master, and were bound together by an inner bond of secret union, seem to have been condemned.

Of later years Pope Clement XII., in his bull, or decree bearing date, April 27, 1738, beginning "In eminenti apostolatus specula," and Benedict XIV., 18 May, 1751, in his bull beginning, "Providas Romanorum Pontificum" condemned altogether the "assemblies and meetings" of the said "Freemasons," and "their advisers, and abettors."

Pope Pius VII., on the 15th August, 1814, in a decree drawn up by Cardinal Consalvi, and countersigned by Cardinal Pacca, renewed such condemnation in even stronger terms.

We believe, that the present occupant of the see of Rome, benevolent as he is, has thought well to give forth a quasi utterance of condemnation on an Order, in which Dame Rumour has always stated, whether truly or falsely, that he was once himself initiated!

Be this as it may, the Roman Catholic may fairly say that the society is under the censure of his church; how far that censure extends is a matter affecting only the consciences of Roman Catholics themselves, and on which we do not profess to pass any opinion whatever. But if these serious condemnations of Freemasonry have not affected its onward course, it is not likely, we think, that this last and intended jocose attack will fare any better, or have any more effect.

Independently of the fact, that such ecclesiastical censure in no way affects those who are not members of the Church of Rome, we doubt very much, whether Freemasonry is a subject with which the Church spiritually has anything to do, and, above all, has any inherent right to condemn or anathematize.

We are aware that there have been members of the Church of England, and other religious bodies, who have equally disapproved of the Masonic Order, but their views have been treated always as individual views, and of no weight or authority in such a "vexata quæstio."

Well, if all serious objections have failed, based, too, on ecclesiastical authority, is it likely we ask, that attacks, meant to be witty, and intending to be crushing in consequence, are likely, to have even the slightest influence on us as Freemasons?

Despite the attacks and condemnations of the past, Freemasonry still survives and flourishes, and in all probability will continue to do so the more, the longer it is so vehemently arraigned, and so hastily condemned.

Not that in saying this, we at all approve of the attitude Freemasonry has taken in some countries abroad, where it is in constant antagonism, apparently, alike to Church and State.

Probably had those countries, like our own wise land, permitted Freemasonry to endure, as a recognized Institution, it would have become as peaceful, as orderly, and as loyal, as we are all happily as Freemasons, in England.

None of the true principles of Freemasonry are at all inimical either to civil order or loyal citizenship, and we utterly deny, that any true Freemason need be, according to our well known teaching, "a Fautor" of sedition or disorder in the slightest degree.

We in England are and always have been a pre-eminently loyal body, and there is no reason why in all countries, under its peaceful and tolerant banner, Freemasonry might not be, as it is intended to be, both a rallying point of tranquility, order, and harmony to the brethren, its members loyal subjects and good citizens, helpful to the community, and faithful to the State.

In the Westminster Gazette, a Roman Catholic weekly paper and literary journal, of May 17, 1873, appears an article entitled: "The follies of Freemasonry."

It is, as we said, intended to be witty and written to be cutting, but we feel we are not far wrong in stating that it is neither.

Indeed we have never perused an article which convinced us how very little the writer himself knew of the subject on which he so verbosely dilates, and of how little weight such an off-hand and illiberal opinion of our benevolent society really and truly can be.

We might say a good deal about the style of the writer, which is so very peculiar, that, we think we recognize an old familiar friend, and is redolent from first to last, of what the writer seems to favour a good deal, the "bar parlour of the Pig and Whistle."

Some of us may remember how the memorable Mr. Pott, of Batanswill journalistic fame, was roused to the height of indignation, by Mr. Shirk's accusation that he was "an ungrammatical twaddler," and therefore we will not bring on our devoted head the "dira ira" of the Westminster Gazette writer by saying so much now.

But this we feel bound to assert, that we never have read such an unmeaning collection of misplaced epithets and silly nomenclature, and that we never hardly before realized, how words can be used which are utterly misused, alike, as names, or epithets, or adjectives, or when intended to display the fullest force of withering sarcasm.

The writer, from first to last, is like Don Quixote fighting with the windmills. He is attacking an order of which he knows nothing in reality; the evils he deprecates, and the imputations he casts, are alike imaginary and unfounded; and all that remains of a great deal of "tall talk," is about as childish, unmeaningless, and valueless an attack on Freemasonry, as it has ever been our misfortune to con over or consider.

First of all its "pseudo history," as the writer calls it, is not, as he so boldly avers, "one of the greatest shams and impostures known in this day of Pinchbeck."

Despite his ready asseverations, that "it has not the slightest claim to rank as one of the successors of the old trade guilds of the middle ages, and still less, as is farcically asserted, to be a remnant of the Egyptian and Jewish religious rites," we can only say, after a careful study now of many years, that the historical and archæological evidence is unimpeachable which links on our present speculative and philanthropic Order, to the Craft guilds of mediæval times.

Supposing we have established this fact to our own satisfaction, and that of the outside world, carefully and critically, why need we care because some one has chosen to say, that our only "unvarnished history, is, that, it was established late in the last century, by a few illiterate and petty tradesmen, whose ideas of romance were flattered by the flimsy cloak of affected mystery they contrived to throw around their proceedings, and whose counterskipping vanity was titillated by the grandiose titles freely lavished on each other?" As Paddy said of old, "mighty foine writing, bedad; it only wants a little poethry to make the prose rowl down aisier any how!"

As the writer in the Westminster Gazette is evidently so utterly ignorant of our history, and our principles, and our practice, we need not waste time or space, by dilating upon his highly flavoured remarks, for neither in the present typical representatives he has given us of our Order, and shown up as he fancies, in such vivid colours, can we in any degree recognize the slightest likeness to any of our Masonic contemporaries.

"Cheops the butcher," who is happily blessed with an affectionate and adoring wife; "Mr. Touch-and-go Pettit," whatever such a name means, who apparently has no time to enjoy the society of a 'placens uxor'; "Bro. Nobleton Graball, and Bro. Shark, the great Masonic jeweller, and above all the lender of loans to impoverished brother bricklayers, Hebraic in their interest," are, as far as we know and believe, pure creations of this modest writer's imagination—and a wonderful imagination it is.

"Mr. Daniel Clement, the great diamond merchant, of Godiva Street," who is equally a mythic personage, has never, we make bold to say, been so ungentlemanly or ill-bred as to "clap the Heir Apparent on the back," when, as the writer puts it so elegantly, "he is cheek-by-jowl with half our peerage."

Well if the Heir Apparent, and half our peerage attend our "seances," and honour our "symposia," Freemasonry is doing very well indeed, and will do very well indeed, we make bold to say, despite the opinions of a writer, whose knowledge of our Order and whose acquaintance with the culture of civilized society, are only equalled by his childish anathemas and vulgar diatribes.

We are sorry to see a respectable paper like the Westminster Gazette, allowing such intense snobbishness as the last passage but one, of the same article to discredit its pages, and to bring ridicule on its pretensions, as a literary organ of a great religious community.

This last attack on Freemasonry will, we make bold to say, have very little effect on us, as Freemasons, whatever it may have on some of our Roman Catholic brethren who are Freemasons.

Freemasonry is not to be put down, depend upon it, either by the thunders of ecclesiastical anathemas, or the so-called witticisms, of unqualified critics. Wit, no doubt, like water always finds its level here, and genuine wit, even when adverse to us, we can hail and admire for that "Geist" which when really displayed by any one, or anywhere, or anyhow, is the common property, so to say, of our human intellect.

But where writers affect to be well read, and are most superficially informed on the subject they are treating, when they seek to be witty and are only vulgar, when they aim at sarcasm, and only land themselves in childish inanity, we can safely, as the most charitable course, afford to leave their επευ πτεροεπιτα to the stern and sober criticism, of advancing time.

And so we hand over the writer of the "last attack on Freemasonry" to the consideration of the tolerant and the criticism of the just!

He may indeed have succeeded in momentarily hurting the feelings of some good and useful brethren of our Order, but as we have never yet known ignorance or vulgarity to gain the upper hand, when opposed to intellectual enlightenment, and happy culture, we will only repeat that, Freemasonry, has nothing to fear from such attacks, or such writers, but can go on its way, breathing out most peacefully its gentle words of good will, peace, harmony, and toleration, for us severed mortals in this antagonistic world. W.

THE GREAT LIGHT IN MASONRY.—"The Bible is the Great Light in Masonry. Every man is responsible, to a greater or less extent, according as his means of knowledge have been greater or less. No one who has had the Bible placed in his hands, and been taught to read it, can be a good man and disbelieve its teachings. And no one can be a good Royal Arch Mason who is not a good man. Therefore, I answer, that no one who does not believe in the writings of Moses and the Prophets, as contained in the Old Testament, if he has been educated in a civilized or enlightened country, can be a good Royal Arch Mason, for Royal Arch Masonry is founded thereon."

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The quarterly meeting of Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. The Grand Master did not attend, but his place was filled by Dr. Hamilton, P. Dist. G.M. of Jamaica. Col. Brownrigg was at his post as G.S.W., and Capt. Platt as G.J.W.

The Temple was but sparsely attended, there being not more than 150 brethren present. This is generally the case at the September meetings; as Masons, like the uninitiated, are out of town at this season of the year.

Amongst the brethren present we noticed the Rev. John Huyshe, Prov. G.M. Devon; Rev. A. B. Fraser, G.C.; Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, G.C.; S. Rawson, P. Dist. G.M., China; Sir Albert W. Woods, (Garter), G.D.C.; Æ. J. McIntyre, Q.C., G.R.; Horace Lloyd, Q.C., President of the Board of General Purposes; Ll. Evans, Dr. Hogg, James Mason, John B. Monckton, Benj. Head, Major Creaton, J. E. Saunders, W. Ough, Joseph Smith, Samuel Tomkins, G.T.; Thomas W. White, E. S. Snell, J. A. Rucker, S. Rosenthal, H. M. Levy, John M. Clabon, Hyde Pullen, Joshua Nunn, N. Bradford, and J. W. Halsey.

After the opening of Grand Lodge, and the reading of the minutes by Bro. Hervey, G.S., Bro. Hervey read an address of condolence from the Grand Lodge of Scotland on the death of the Earl of Zetland.

The Grand Registrar moved and the Rev. J. Huyshe seconded that it be entered in the minutes, the latter brother asking at the same time whether notice of the noble Earl's death had been communicated to Grand Lodge of Scotland, and Grand Lodge of Ireland.

Bro. Hervey said it had not been.

The motion that the address be received, adopted, and entered on the minutes, was then put and carried.

Bro. Hervey said he had also received an address of condolence on the Earl of Zetland's death from the Provincial Grand Lodge of South Africa, but it arrived the day after the Board of Masters sat, and consequently he had not had the opportunity of placing it before the Board. As some months would elapse before the next meeting of Grand Lodge, he had thought it right to mention it to this meeting in order that it might not be considered by the District Grand Lodge of South Africa that their vote of condolence was shelved on account of the usual routine not having been observed.

Bro. Horace Lloyd moved and Bro. Huyshe seconded "That the standing orders be suspended to enable the vote of condolence from South Africa to be read."

This having been carried, the address was read, and Bro. McIntyre moved, and a brother seconded, that it be received and entered on the minutes, and that replies be forwarded to the Grand Lodge of Scotland and the District Grand Lodge of South Africa.

The motions were then put and carried.

Bro. Hervey read the following:—

"Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz.—A brother of the Beaufort Lodge, No. 103, Bristol, £50; the widow of a brother of the Belvidere Lodge, No. 503, Maidstone, £100; the widow of a brother of the Grove Lodge, No. 410, Ewell, £250; a brother of the Lodge of United Strength Lodge, No. 228, London, £100."

On the motions for each of these grants being put,

Bro. Joshua Nunn observed that it would be as well to say something about the Board of Benevolence. Masons were now a much larger body than they were formerly, and the Board had the means of giving larger sums than they used to do in charity. They consequently did so, and where cases came before them of great merit they dealt with them liberally. He was quite sure that Grand Lodge would support them in this course, and that the grants the Board recommended would be carried unanimously.

Bro. J. M. Clabon was of the same opinion. A grant of £250 to one individual was a large sum, and it was the second time such a large grant had been made. It was desirable that the attention of Grand Lodge should be drawn to the state of the funds of the Lodge of Benevolence. In the year 1872 they received £6050, and they spent £3700; in other words they had £2300 to the good. This state of prosperity had been going on for some time. Some years back he proposed to apply the surplus funds in apprenticing the children of Masons. At that time they had £10,000 in hand; they had now £30,000. What object could they have in accumulating these sums in the Bank of England, when it should go in benefitting Masons? Some said it should go to benefit posterity; but if they wanted to do so, one shilling a year from each Mason would effect that object. He hoped at next Grand Lodge to show how they could employ their surplus. If they could save £2300 in one year, they could afford to give £250 to one poor lady. If they gave her £50 it was but a drop in the ocean, but if they gave her £250 it was something that would give her a start in life. For himself, he would vote her more, and he hoped they would not refuse to vote her that amount.

Bro. James Mason said it had always struck him when attending the Board of Benevolence that there was too much hesitation in giving liberally. When they found from the President of the Board that their funds were so large he thought they should have no hesitation. He believed that the more generous Masons were with their wealth, the more they would get, and be enabled to do an immense amount of good.

All the grants were unanimously carried.

The following report of the Board of General Purposes was taken as read.

"Report of the Board of General Purposes to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

"The Board of General Purposes beg to submit a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 15th day of August, shewing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3,532 14s 5d; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75, and for servants' wages £88 19s. od., and avail themselves of the opportunity to congratulate the members of the Craft on the very satisfactory condition of the accounts.

(Signed) HORACE LLOYD, President."

Bro. Horace Lloyd in moving the adoption of this report, said he did not suppose the most critical brother present, if there was one, could find anything to offend him in its shortness, and he therefore assumed it would not meet with opposition, but as it referred to the satisfactory condition of the funds perhaps he would be pardoned if he detained the brethren for a few moments in shewing them by some very simple figures, how well justified the Board were in saying that the finances were prosperous. The President of the Board of Benevolence had shewed them what was the state of the funds with which he had to deal, and at how great a rate they were being added to and accumulated. On behalf of the Board of General Purposes, he might say that there was not of course the same necessity for accumulating its funds, if it were not that they had a certain debt to pay off, which they incurred at the time of the construction of the new buildings. It was their great desire to pay that off as speedily as possible, and he thought the brethren would see they were in a fair way to do so. The finances of any corporate body or association were to be judged of in three ways: What was the income they were raising? what was their expenditure? and what was their state in respect to debt? In all those aspects the finances of the Board were satisfactory. On the first point, in 1870 their income was £8295; in 1871, £8578; and in 1872, £9642; of that large sum not much more than £1700 was raised by rents of property, and not more than £350 to £400 from all exceptional sources, such as fees paid by Grand Officers when appointed, and the various fees obtained from dispensations. It followed therefore that a sum which must be very close on £8000 a year was raised from the Masonic body by a taxation which he need not say fell as lightly as any taxation imposed on any tax-paying community, from the quaterages of the lodge. On the second point, the expenditure, in 1870 it was £6382; in 1871 which was a heavy year, £6795—and that included one large grant; and in 1872, £6007 19s. The present year was not yet completed, but he thought its expenditure would be equally satisfactory. The expenditure showed a diminution on the third point, debt; they contracted a loan of £19,000, which represented what he might call our national debt." They had paid off £8300 of this, leaving a balance £10,700. In the last year, out of their savings they had paid off £3,700. If they went on at the same rate, in three years they would have swept off the whole loan. Under these circumstances he thought they were justified in looking at their finances as in a satisfactory condition.

The motion having been seconded was put and carried.

Bro. Hervey, read memorials from the Friendly Lodge, No. 383, Montego Bay, for assistance to build a Masonic Hall.

Bro. Frederick Bigg, W.M. No. 1261, moved "That at least seven days' notice shall be given to the W.M. of a lodge before such lodge is posted as being in arrear of its subscription."

He said that at last quarterly communication he, in obedience to summons, attended, with his Wardens, at some inconvenience, but on his arrival found a notice that his lodge among others had not paid its dues, and that he and his Wardens could not be admitted. He, however, was anxious to comply with the summons, and offered to pay anything that might be due; he was told that if he could name the amount it would be received, but the Secretary of his lodge was not in attendance, and he himself had no knowledge of what the amount was. Consequently he and his Wardens were obliged to retire, and had to pass the rest of their evening as best as they could, in the west-end of London, where plenty places of amusement were open. To obviate such an inconvenience, he thought that if a lodge was in arrear, notice should be given by Grand Secretary, seven days before the meeting of Grand Lodge, of such default. It would sometimes occur that the Secretary of a lodge was not a Past Master, and not a member of Grand Lodge, and consequently he would not be present, and the Master would not know the amount of unpaid dues. He did not ask for an innovation, but for an improvement, and he thought that it would be a graceful act if Grand Secretary seconded his motion.

Bro. Clabon thought the question should be discussed, though he could not quite understand Bro. Bigg's request.

Bro. Horace Lloyd said the difficulty was met by the Book of Constitutions, though not one lodge in twenty carried out the directions of that book, but they could not complain if they suffered any inconvenience when they did not so comply. Certainly the Master of a lodge was not the person to come and complain. At page 66 the Book of Constitution said: "All monies received or paid on account of the lodge shall be entered in proper books; the fees or dues received on account of and payable to the Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge shall be kept separate and distinct from the money belonging to the lodge, and shall be deposited in the hands of the Master, instead of the Treasurer of the lodge, and shall be transmitted to the Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge at such times as the laws require." He was quite aware that they were all mixed up together, but brethren had no right to complain if any inconvenience arose, which they might avoid by following the strict letter of the law. If Bro. Bigg had followed that out, and had had the dues placed in his hands, he would have made himself responsible for their being paid. The law was quite right, and if a lodge, in defiance of that law, trusted to its Secretary and Treasurer, the Master must take the consequences.

The motion was then rejected.

Bro. Benjamin Head, P.G.D., moved "That the sum of £80 be given from the fund of General Purposes. That the money be placed in the hands of the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, to supply the inmates at Croydon with coals during the winter season."

Bro. Joshua Nunn seconded the motion, which was then put and carried.

Bro. William Smith, P.M. No. 33, moved "That in future the laws and regulations of the Fund of Benevolence governing the Lodge of Benevolence be read once in every year previous to the Lodge entering on business at the meeting in the month of January, and that Article 17 of the laws and regulations of the Fund of Benevolence on the Book of Constitutions be altered accordingly."

Bro. Smith made a very short statement in support of his motion, and informed Grand Lodge that the brethren attending the Lodge of Benevolence were well acquainted with the laws regulating it, and that, as he believed, all who now formed it could read and write, there would be no difficulty in impressing upon them its rules. His motion he thought would save a great deal of time.

Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P. seconded the motion, and would even go further than Bro. W. Smith, and proposed that the rules should not be read to the Lodge of Benevolence at all. It was quite unnecessary for the brethren's time to be taken up every meeting of the Board for a quarter of an hour.

Bro. J. M. Clabon, President of the Board, cordially agreed in the motion, although he knew nothing of it until it was presented to the Board of Masters. Grand Secretary now read the Laws and Regulations four times a year, to brethren who knew them by heart. He (Bro. Clabon), did not go entirely with Bro. Joseph Smith in desiring to dispense altogether with the reading of the laws, but thought they might be usefully read once a year, when the new members of the lodge joined.

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. W. Smith, P.M. then moved, "That in future a room be set apart for the reception of Provincial Brethren on Quarterly Communications and other meetings of Grand Lodge."

He made his motion on these grounds, that the attendance of provincial members was very large. There was usually a much larger attendance of them than there was that night, although there was then as large an attendance as there was at all September quarterly communications. He had heard a great many of them complain of want of accommodation—not, of course, the distinguished brethren on the dais—but the provincial brethren generally, to whom it would be a very great convenience to have a suitable room to meet in.

A brother, whose name did not transpire, seconded the motion.

Bro. McIntyre opposed the motion. He thought it would be a great advantage to provincial brethren that they should mix with those in London. A room could be set apart for the London and provincial brethren, but that might be left to the Board of General Purposes. He most strenuously protested against the motion, and against the proposition that the provincial brethren should be sent into a room by themselves. He agreed that every accommodation should be given, even to the throwing open the whole of the rooms that belonged to Grand Lodge; but let them have no segregation of provincial brethren from the London brethren. He was sure that every provincial brother would rather come where his London brethren were, and it might be referred to the Board of General Purposes to provide ample accommodation.

Bro. James Mason, P.G.S.B., would propose an amendment to that effect. It was one of those matters of detail which ought not to be brought before Grand Lodge. Questions of this kind were peculiarly within the province of the Board of General Purposes, and it needed very little consideration from the members then present.

Bro. W. Smith said that, with the consent of Grand Registrar, he would withdraw his motion. The Board would no doubt attend to the matter after he had made the suggestion, but the suggestion ought not to have been rendered necessary. The Board was very jealous of any suggestion being made to it. The subject had been a source of complaint for a considerable time. He would make no charge against the Board about that, but he believed the time had arrived when it should be attended to, and that he had a right to be heard upon it. He would withdraw his motion.

Bro. Horace Lloyd said it was a matter which wanted no direction at all, as the Board were already directed by their regulations to do all such things. If a memorial had been sent to them about it they would have attended to it. It was one of their duties; but they did not know there was a want of accommodation. Let it be brought before them and they would consider it. The Board of General Purposes was spoken of, he regretted to say, as if it were in the hands more or less, of those who sat on the dais. Now, the Board consisted of members elected yearly by the Craft, and a great number of those changed from year to year. There was no pretence at all for saying that the Board, or any member of it, sought to assume an exclusiveness, or to reject suggestions brought before it from without. It was their strongest wish, on the contrary, to consider everything which might tend to the benefit of the Craft.

The motion was therefore withdrawn, and Grand Lodge having nothing else before it, was closed in due form.

A NEW THEORY.—A new theory of earthquakes and volcanoes, which has found favour with scientific men generally has been given by Maller. It is based upon the conceded fact that the earth is gradually cooling; and as it cools, it contracts, but not uniformly. The interior contracts more rapidly than the crust, and Maller believes that the shrinkage of the crust can explain all volcanic phenomena. As the result of the contraction of the earth, irregularities of level were first produced in the far remote ages; then corrugation of mountain ranges and table lands; and lastly local crushings down and dislocations, a process still going on. Heat being, as is now generally allowed, a form of motion, the work expended in bearing down the crust is transformed into heat. The surface of the earth may be well compared to the shrivelled skin of an apple. Earthquake and volcanic eruptions are the result of the subsidence and shrinkage of the earth's surface. The old theory that mountains are upheaved is not correct. The valleys are sunken down. The volcanic force has passed its maximum, and is now growing less as the earth parts with its internal heat.

IMPROVEMENT AT ST. PAUL'S.—The works now in hand in St. Paul's churchyard for the improvement of the thoroughfare at the top of Ludgate-hill are rapidly approaching completion. The present railings will be thrown back as far as the statue of Queen Anne, and the space thus gained will be added to the roadway. The ground taken from the churchyard is of considerable value, as the Corporation have agreed to give the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral £20,000 for it. In view of the public importance of the improvement, the Corporation has applied to the Metropolitan Board of Works for a contribution towards the cost. With reference to the precautions taken to protect the cathedral from lightning, it may be stated that in metallic connexion with the cross, ball, and scrolls, there are eight copper conductors, each being a half-inch strand of copper wire. The octagonal strand has been adopted, as it gives the most metal in the least space. In the opinion of electrical engineers, St. Paul's Cathedral will, if properly fitted with conductor, protect all the surrounding buildings from lightning within an area of 3,000 feet.

The Rev. Dr. Cox, Vicar of St. Helen's, the author of "Musical recollections of the Last Half Century," is engaged upon another work, namely, "Recollections of the Last Half Century of the Tractarian and Ritualistic Controversy."

A BOON TO EVERY HOUSEHOLD.—Boots, with the celebrated wire-quilted soles, wearing twice as long as ordinary leather, for all ages; and children's boots, with metallic tips, which never wear out at the toes, may be had at most shoe dealers. Insist on giving these a trial, and judge on their merits.

FREEMASONRY IN TRINIDAD.

On Saturday, the 24th May, the members of Athole Lodge, 438, San Fernando, holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, met, by appointment, at the residence of Bro. John Lewis, to bid farewell to their esteemed Past Master, the Right Worshipful Bro. Wm. Cuthbert, who was about to leave the island for Europe. The Right Worshipful Master, Past Master Palmer, and Bro. W. L. Johnston, J. W., accompanied Bro. Cuthbert from his residence to Bro. Lewis's, where he was fraternally received by the brethren, who had been waiting his arrival. Bro. Phillip C. Corrie, W.M. of Lodge Royal Trinity, 372, E. C.; Bro. John McKenzie, Past Master, and other members of that lodge in the Island were present also, for the one common cause of paying "honour to whom honour is due."

The following address, signed by the brethren, was read, and handed to Bro. Cuthbert by the Rev. R. C. Nelson, the R.W.M. of "Athole," the brethren all standing:—

"San Fernando, 24th May 1873.
"To Bro. W. Cuthbert, P.M., A.L. 438. Right Worshipful Sir and Brother. On the eve of your departure from this Island for Europe, we, Members of the Lodge Athole (and other brethren), desire to express the obligation we feel to you for the valuable services you have rendered us during the past year especially.

"We desire to bid you a fraternal farewell, to wish you a happy and safe voyage, and a speedy return among us in good health, and with the heartfelt hope that every blessing may be yours."

To which address Bro. Cuthbert replied as follows:—

"To the Right Worshipful Master, Past Master, and Brethren of Lodge Athole, No. 438.

"Brethren.—I have much pleasure, on the eve of my departure for Europe, to receive this address, and have to express my sincere and fraternal thanks for the very kind and good wishes conveyed therein.

"I am glad and pleased that the little I have done for the Athole has been appreciated. I wish you all for a time farewell, and hope to find on my return that harmony and unanimity which is so characteristic of the brethren of Athole, of which I have the honour to consider myself one of the founders.

"Our many happy meetings shall ever be remembered by me.

"To you, my brethren of Royal Trinity and other lodges, I beg to tender my most sincere thanks for your fraternal kindness in being present on this occasion to join in the address which I have just received, and to extend to me the right hand of friendship, symbolical of those feelings of "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth," which ought always to reign in our midst.

"I hope soon, brethren, to be with you again. Wishing you all a hearty and fraternal farewell, I remain, my dear Sirs and Brethren, ever yours, fraternally,

"WM. CUTHBERT,
"P.M. Athole, 431."

Bro. Cuthbert spoke with great emotion, which evidently could not be avoided, seeing himself surrounded by men of different countries, colours, and creeds, yet united in brotherly love and harmony, to bid him farewell. Amongst them were some who were initiated into the ancient mysteries of Freemasonry by him, and had reasons to feel deeply the parting. He has served the Craft faithfully, and has entirely won the love and esteem of the brethren—very precious jewels—which cannot be bought, even by monarchs.

ALL RANKS AND ALL CLASSES of Men, Women, and Children suffer occasionally from bilious attacks, depression of spirits, and other morbid feelings, arising directly or remotely from disarrangement of the stomach, liver, or bowels. A few doses of Holloway's noted Pills act magically in dispelling low spirits and in expelling the covert attacks made on the liver by excessive heat, impure atmosphere over-indulgence or exhausting excitement. The most shattered constitutions derive benefit from Holloway's Pills, which regulate disordered action, brace the nerves, increase the energy of the intellectual faculties and revive the failing memory. By attentively studying the instructions for taking these Pills and obediently putting them into practice, the most despondent will soon feel confident of a perfect recovery.—ADVT.

AN ENTER'D APPRENTICE'S PRAYER
BY BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M. P.Z.

Almighty Father! Architect divine
Of countless worlds diffused through endless space
Each moving in an orbit of its own,
Each amid millions, keeping its own place.
In wisdom hast Thou made thy varied works,
And over all things Beauty's magic thrown,
To charm th' aspiring soul, and warm the heart,
Such wondrous working is of Thee, alone.
When first I knelt within the guarded door,
Thy blessing was invoked, that grace divine
Might raise me from the grovelling things of earth
To better estimate all works of Thine.
May all injunctions then upon me laid,
To influence and guide me never cease,
But cherish'd by me, as a sacred charge.
Direct my footsteps in the way of peace.
With wisdom from above, endow me now,
That I may know, and knowing may pursue
The way that will approve itself to Thee,
That this in all things, I Thy will may do.
Oh! Gracious Lord! my heart incline aright,
For all that's good inspire with a love—
With love of Thee, from Whom all good must come,
And thus prepare me for Grand Lodge above!
[Bro. Carpenter's name was accidentally omitted from "The Divine Omnipresence," in the last Freemason.]

Bros. Colonel Campbell of Blythwood, and Colonel Mure of Caldwell, both Provincial Grand Masters, are candidates for the representation of Renfrewshire in Parliament.

DUNOON.—The foundation stone of the New Town Hall was laid with Masonic honours, by Bro. James M'Griere, M.P., on Saturday 30th, ultimo.

There are in connection with the College

THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS,

open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age. The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the PREPARATORY SCHOOL

(entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D.T.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners; Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. Next term commences the 4th August, 1873.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS. Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy. SELECT TESTIMONIAL.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

* * * Invands should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The first number of this magazine, issued by Bro. George Kenning, at the offices of the Freemason, has reached us, and bears evidence of careful editorial supervision. We have attentively perused the contents, and have no hesitation in saying that it has a legitimate claim upon the consideration of the Craft at home and abroad. The articles are well written, and cannot fail to interest those for whose special delectation it is designed. In future numbers the introduction of a few short notes upon current events in the Masonic world would be to the reader an acceptable feature."—Sunday Times, July 20th.

"The magazine has begun well, and the immense popularity of the Order is perhaps one of the best guarantees of its success."—North Norfolk and Yarmouth Constitutionalist, July 19th.

"There are several contributions of a nature tending to interest Freemasons, and by this body the publication will, doubtless, be well patronized."—North Wilts Herald, July 19th.

"We need not, however, run through the whole of the articles, which make up the number, but would merely add that the affair is well got up, and deserving of success."—Norwich Argus, July, 1873.

"Societies and customs, such as those connected with Freemasonry, have a curious and highly interesting history, and the present magazine bids fair to provide valuable sketches of their past and present condition."—Nottingham Daily Guardian, July 18th.

"All the articles are well written and interesting."—Orkney Herald, July 9th.

"The first number is full of promise and full of interest. Such a magazine will supply a great want in the Masonic world."—Poole and South Western Herald, July 17th.

"The 'Masonic Magazine' undoubtedly possesses many attractions which Masonic readers will not fail to appreciate."—Somerset County Herald, July 19th.

"We have great pleasure in commending it to the notice of the Masonic brethren as being a first-class magazine."—Ryde News, July 19th.

"It deserves commendation, and is likely to receive a cordial reception."—South Wales Weekly Telegram, July 11th.

"The entire contents will be of great interest to the Masonic reader."—Staffordshire Daily Sentinel, July 15th.

"It will no doubt, be welcomed by all members of the Craft."—Stroud News, Aug. 8th.

"The magazine is intended to give a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches, and the first number is very promising."—Western Daily Mercury, July 18th.

"If it continues to as ably edited, and to contain as good articles, the 'Masonic Magazine' will soon take an influential position among magazine literature. We wish Bro. Kenning every success in his new enterprise."—Wigton Advertiser, July 19th.

"It comes forward under the sanction of the highest authorities in the Craft, and numbers among its contributors the most eminent living writers and workers in Masonry."—Sunderland Times, Aug. 1st.

"The magazine will doubtless be hailed with satisfaction by the members of the Craft, for it is full of historical lore of the past, and the doings of the present."—Torquay Directory, July 23rd.

"There are several other matters pertaining to the Order, and we anticipate a successful career for the enterprise."—Freeman's Exeter Flying Post, July 23rd.

"It deserves to become exceedingly popular."—Clifton Chronicle, July 16th.

"It will be hailed with delight by all who feel interested in the wide-spread progress of the grand principles of the Order, or require information on its beneficent and mysterious unfoldings and developments. It affords interesting subjects for consideration to the general reader."—Draper, July 18th.

"We confidently recommend this periodical to the notice of our Masonic readers. It is truly marvellous how such a beautifully printed work can be produced at the price, and to ensure a profitable return to the proprietor, it will require, and we do not doubt it will achieve, an extensive circulation."—Dunfermline Journal, July 26th.

"It is very ably edited, and amongst its contributors are many of the most eminent English and foreign writers on Freemasonry."—Eversham Journal, July 19th.

"A careful inspection of its contents justifies the expectation that it will be well supported. It is cheap, neatly got up, and smartly written, while all subjects of interest to Masons, seem to receive full attention."—Galloway Gazette, July 12th.

"We are satisfied, that it is edited by a gentleman that displays great literary ability, combined with a most thorough and masterly treatment of his subject. We repeat, we have derived great pleasure and information from the perusal of this clever magazine, and we therefore every confidence in recommending it to our readers."—Gateshead Observer, July 26th.

"The first number is a most creditable specimen, and if succeeding issues are as good, the 'Magazine' will have a satisfactory circulation."—Grantham Journal, July 19th.

"The new monthly opens well with an interesting paper on the present position of English Freemasonry, &c."—Gravesend Journal, July 19.

"It is launched into the world with a long list of worthy contributors. The 'leading' article, so we may call it, 'The Present Position of English Freemasonry,' is extremely instructive."—Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, July 12th.

"Members of the Craft will doubtless find it full of interesting matter."—Hampshire Advertiser, July 12th.

"It will be sure to be widely circulated amongst the brethren."—Deal, Walmer, and Sandwich Mercury, Aug. 9th.

"The contents go to make up such a cheap and interesting sixpennyworth, as ought to secure a place for this magazine."—Hampshire Independent, August 13th.

"It is well got up and most ably written, giving statistics and general information, which will be valued by the society in particular, and found interesting by the public in general."—Tunbridge Wells Gazette, July 18.

"This new monthly bids fair to become a successful candidate for public favour, not only amongst the brethren of the 'Mystic Tie' but the general public."—Walsal Free Press, July 26th.

"The rapid growth and increasing interest in Masonic matters seems amply to justify an increase in its literature, and this new magazine seems well calculated to supply the want."—Wilts and Gloucestershire Standard, July 26th.

"The title of this useful monthly fully indicates the work to which it is devoted. It is in every sense a thorough and useful digest of matters pertaining to the good old Craft of Freemasons, in all its branches. We commend the new venture to every member of the Craft."—Worcestershire Advertiser, July 19th.

"The numerous and respectable lodges of Freemasons in this country required a magazine of this kind to give them their proper literary position in the land. This is the first number (July) of a new monthly, and begins well."—Hastings and St. Leonard's News, July 25th.

"The magazine is worthy of the position to which it aspires, both as regards its outward appearance and its contents. Able articles may be expected, and if the contents of this month's (July) magazine may be taken as a specimen, of what is to follow, the expectation will not be disappointed."—Kelso Courier, July 11th.

"With the contributors they have on the staff, the Masonic Magazine will always be worth reading. Wishing it success we commend it to our brethren."—Kelso Mail, July 9th.

"This is a monthly publication that has been much needed by Craft Masons, and from the contents of the first number we feel sure it will be welcome to all brethren."—Kent and Sussex Courier, July 25th.

"Altogether the new magazine is a very interesting one, and we heartily commend it to the notice and support of Freemasons."—Leigh Times, July 12th.

"Much editorial judgment and taste are displayed in the selection and arrangements of the contents; and the individual articles are characterised by great ability and thorough knowledge of the matter in hand."—Leith Burghs Pilot, July, 19th.

"We have perused with much pleasure this, the first number of the Masonic Magazine, and recommend it to the Craft generally. On looking at the list of contributors, we cannot but think and heartily desire it to be a success."—Louth Advertiser, July 19th.

"We earnestly recommend it to the Craft. It contains valuable matter of the history, rise, and progress of Freemasonry. Among the list of contributors are names recognised as workers in and for the Craft and Arch."—Lowestoft Observer, July 12th.

"It is full of promise and full of interest. Such a magazine will supply a great want in the Masonic world. The list of contributors comprises the names of many, who are not only high in the Craft, but well known in literature."—Lymington and South Hants Chronicle, July 11th.

"We should judge that the periodical would prove a valuable addition to the literature of the Craft."—Newbury Weekly News, July 17th.

"It is devoted to the interests of the 'Order,' and gives promise of considerable ability."—Northern Ensign, July 17th.

"We hail a new magazine, devoted to the noble purpose of improving the knowledge and enunciating the principles of Freemasonry, with a fraternal greeting. The present work is well got up and ably edited, and the cost sixpence per month."—Pembrokeshire Advertiser, July 17th.

"This magazine will be welcomed by all Masons as containing a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches."—Peterborough Advertiser, July 19th.

"It fills up a space, that has been gaping long. From the appearance of the first number, it deserves to be well supported. We advise all our Masonic readers to support the new undertaking in connection with the 'Craft' as it deserves."—South Wilts Express, July 12th.

"We commend the magazine to the notice of all who have the objects of Freemasonry at heart."—Ross Gazette, July, 10th.

"Masonic brethren have no need to feel ashamed of the latest addition to their class literature. It certainly seems to merit patronage."—Southport News, July 12th.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BRADFORD.—Lodge of Hope (No. 302).—On Tuesday, the 2nd inst., the brethren of this lodge gave a complimentary dinner to their W.M., Bro. Geo. Richardson, and made him a presentation of a silver salver, value sixty guineas, on the occasion of his marriage. Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M., P. Prov. G.W. occupied the chair, and was supported on his left by Bros. the Rev. Flynn, P. Prov. G. Chap.; T. Hill, P.M., P. Prov. G.W.; Schaeppi, P.M., Prov. G.S.D.; C. H. Taylor, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D.; W. Ibbetson, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.D.; W. Beanland, P.M.; J. R. Armitage, P.M., P. Prov. S. of W.; J. Rhodes, P.M., P. Prov. G.O.; J. Oddy, P. Prov. G.C.; and on his right by Bros. Geo. Richardson, W.M. 302; J. Ambler, W.M. 874; A. Briggs, P.M., P. Prov. G.S.B.; J. Green, P.M.; W. W. Barlow, P.M.; H. Smith, P.M., Prov. G. Sec.; H. O. Mawson, P.M.; A. Hunter, P.M.; Thos. Senior, P.M., P. Prov. G. Reg.; Rebt. Richardson, P.M.; J. White, P.M. 439; T. W. MacGowen, (Town Clerk). The Chairman read letters of apology for unavoidable absence, from Bro. Bentley Shaw, LL.D., D. Prov. G.M., and several other brethren, and then proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Broughton, who occupied one of the vice-chairs (the other being ably filled by Bro. J. A. Binns, S.W.), was called upon to give a toast, and in doing so, said, the toast I have to propose need only be named to meet with your hearty acceptance, namely, "The Right Worshipful the Prov. G.M., the W.D. Prov. G.M., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers." Our worthy Chairman has spoken in eulogistic terms of our G.M., and as the same brother is also Prov. G.M., I may well say ditto to what he has said with reference to him. Our D.Prov. G.M. is Bro. Bentley Shaw, and when I mention his name I am sure it will be received with the greatest applause, since his name is a household word in Yorkshire, and when I allude to the other Prov. Grand Officers, I am pleased to speak of such men. We, in the Lodge of Hope have been highly honoured by the province, and I trust the province will never have cause to regret the selections. We have present to-night, Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. Grand Secretary, who fills the post so admirably and is so much esteemed by all the brethren. We have also a number of other brethren present, both past and present officers of Provincial Grand Lodge. I have much pleasure in giving you the toast entrusted to me. The chairman called upon Bro. H. Smith, Prov. G. Sec., to respond, who said I feel very proud indeed to reply, I feel it is a great honour to the Lodge of Hope to see so many brethren stand up to acknowledge this toast, and for the honour you have done to the Prov. G. Officers, I return you my most hearty thanks, and feel it a privilege to belong to such a lodge, and I feel especially proud to be present on such an interesting occasion as the present. I wish not to detain you from the special business of the evening, and beg heartily to thank you for the compliment paid the Prov. Grand Officers. The Chairman again rising, said I have a very pleasing, at the same time a very difficult duty, to perform, to do it to the satisfaction of all the brethren. I don't know why I have been selected for this position except that, if not the oldest member of the lodge, the oldest one present. Brethren, it is rather an unusual thing to present a piece of plate as we are doing this evening; it is not often that a W.M. marries during his year of office. We have had W.Ms. do so, but then they have been widowers. I can only tell the W.M. we heartily congratulate him on the auspicious occasion, we did remember him during his absence on his wedding tour, and suggestions were thrown out that something should be done, and I have pleasure in saying that what has been done has been entirely voluntary, and if one thing more than another gives me pleasure it is that the 74 brethren who have made this presentation, do so with the best wishes for yourself and your wife, and I was going to say family, but those in prospect, and should it please the Great Architect that you should be blest with a son, we hope that you will hand down this salver as a heirloom in your family. I wish your good lady could have been with us, as I know she would have been pleased. In making this presentation on the part of the brethren, I trust it will be your lot to pass through life with the greatest happiness and pleasure. The inscription on the salver is as follows—"Presented by the brethren of the Lodge of Hope, 302, of Free and Accepted Masons of England to the Worshipful Master, Bro. George Richardson, on the occasion of his marriage, as a mark of their fraternal regard, and as an expression of their congratulations and best wishes for his future happiness and prosperity, Bradford, 2nd Sept. 1873." Will you accept this, Worshipful Sir, on behalf of the brethren of the Lodge of Hope? Bro. Geo. Richardson, W.M., on rising to respond, was received with the greatest applause, and on its subsiding said, Worthy Chairman, Vice Chairman, and brethren, I have been sitting here for some time thinking how I should address you, not feeling, under the present peculiar and flattering circumstances, quite so much at home as usual, but the kind way in which Bro. P.M. Rhodes has introduced the toast, and presented your splendid gift, has set me in some measure at ease. I knew that on my return home you would be glad to see me again in my old place, but I was not prepared for the magnificent welcome with which you have received me to-night. To most men in their lives there comes a special time for laudable pride and heartfelt gratification, to me this evening is such, and when I look round upon this noble assembly, and reflect that you have each come from your own home circles to make me, as it were, the centre of this inner circle, to entertain me as your guest, and to show your personal regard for me, I am at a loss how to thank you, or where to find words which will fully express to you my deep appreciation of this, your great kindness to me. I have no sympathy with, or respect for those men who are careless of the opinion of their fellows, and profess to consider such carelessness as a mark of independence and manliness, but candidly acknowledge that I have always wished to stand well with my fellow men, and more particularly with my brethren of the Lodge of Hope, and I am glad to find to-night that the kindly regards you have towards me are greater than I expected, and that I have gained a higher place in your estimation than I could have anticipated. As the student gaining knowledge longs for more, so I, with the knowledge of your great good feeling towards me, shall desire to gain your yet further respect, and shall look upon this evening as a stand point from which to build a still closer friendship with you. In thanking you once more, brethren, I feel that I cannot express myself sufficiently for the estimable gift you have made me, and for the feelings which it represents, and if in the vicissitudes of life a dark cloud should ever overhang me I shall think of this evening with the greatest consolation. Bro. A. Briggs, P.M., with the permission of the Chairman, desired to offer a suggestion with reference to the forthcoming meeting of the British Association, stating that in different towns where he had attended its meetings, it had been usual for the Freemasons to fix a meeting of the brethren to which the members of the Association who are Masons could be invited to have a friendly meeting, and he would suggest that the same be done here. The proposition met with the hearty response of the brethren present. Bro. Briggs said further that he could not sit down without expressing his deep gratification at being present this evening to welcome one Benedict amongst us whom we thought hopeless, and hoped from that stock good Lewises will spring, linking the present with the future. Bro. Broughton, Vice-chairman, called upon Bro. Schaeppi, P.M., for the next toast, who said I do so with pleasure, as it commends itself without any preface from me, and when I tell you it is "The Health of the Chairman," I know that it will be so. I am glad to propose his health to you as one of the best brethren amongst us, and one who has done so much for Freemasonry, striving for the good of every brother. It is rare to find such a one to preside over us; and although he may begin to feel himself advancing in years, he seems ever young among us, and I am sure he will have had much pleasure in presenting this plate to the newly-married couple; and I trust he will be long spared, as also the W.M., to whom the presentation is made, to share a long-lived happiness with us. Bro. W. Rhodes, P.M. (the Chairman), who was received with much applause, said, I rise with great pleasure to respond, and I can assure you the gratification I feel in meeting you grows no less as years roll on. I cannot disguise from myself that I am getting older, and that I cannot expect to meet you so many years longer. It affords me great pleasure to be with you, and to see so many here who have worked so much together for the good of my fellow-men. It is especially gratifying to me to see the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys out of debt, and so placed in a position for a long career of usefulness. Allow me to thank you for the compliment you have paid me. Bro. T. Hill, P.M., rose to propose the next toast, but said previous to doing so, he wished to congratulate the W.M. on his new position, and to express to him the gratification he felt to see the high estimation he is held in by the brethren. The toast I have to propose is the health of the two Vice-Presidents, Bros. Broughton and Binns, and I feel very much pleasure in calling upon you to drink with me heartily to their good health. Bro. Broughton being called upon, said, Mr. Chairman and brethren, in responding to his toast it is not my intention to trespass upon your time more than a few moments. In the first place allow me to thank the Presentation Committee for placing me in this position, and I thank you for the compliment paid me by you and the brethren. Referring to the circumstance calling us together this evening, I wish to express my opinion of our W.M.'s great worth from my acquaintance of many years standing. I know he possesses the qualifications of a good Mason, and therefore of a good man, as I have ever found him influenced by those principles which constitute the spirit and essence of Freemasonry. We cannot all expect to attain the high distinction of W.M., but we may all attain the reputation of good and worthy Masons, by the practice of the Masonic virtues, faith, hope, charity, temperance, fortitude, prudence, and justice, and thus command the respect and esteem of our fellow-men. Let this be the aim of every one of us, and then we shall have the satisfaction of feeling that in honouring others we honour ourselves. Bro. Ibbetson, P.M. (in the temporary absence of Bro. Binns) also shortly responded to the toast, excusing himself saying much after the admirable expressions which had fallen from Bro. Broughton. Bro. W. T. MacGowen, (Town Clerk) was called upon to give the next toast "The Wife of the W.M., and the Ladies," and said, I consider, Mr. Chairman, that in calling upon me you have displayed your usual good reason—gentlemen laugh but they don't see why—I am the youngest "Mason," present and consider I know the pleasures of matrimony most. There must be something in the the position of W.M. tending in this direction, for no sooner does Bro. Geo. Richardson find himself installed W.M., than he finds out the great mistake he has made and marries. I am asked to propose the health of the wife of the W.M. and the ladies, and have very great pleasure in doing so. I am happy to say that although it is some time since I took to myself a wife, I feel as happy as on the day I was married. As to the testimonial just presented, I think nothing of its intrinsic value, but as showing the feelings of the brethren towards our W.M., and I trust he will long live in their high estimation. Well, brethren, I am asked to propose the ladies, and can there be any more agreeable subject to talk about? Bro. Broughton says "No, No;" well there is no one had more experience than he. You know there is only one handsome child in the world, and every man has that one; and so I believe there is but one handsome woman in the world and every man in his wife believes he has the happiness of possessing her. I recommend you who are not married to make all speed and follow the W.M.'s example. I have much pleasure in calling upon you to drink to "The Health of Mrs. George Richardson and the Ladies." Bro. George Richardson, W.M., in responding, said I have very great pleasure in replying to the last toast, I can tell you that I have got an excellent wife, and can support the recommendation of Bro. McGowan, and wish all who have not entered the blissful state of matrimony to do so. I have travelled through many years with my friends upon the dusty road of life, and from time to time seen first one and then the other turn off to enjoy themselves in their little garden of matrimonial bliss, and now I have got one of my own, and I may tell you my wife is of a real good Masonic stock, her sire being a highly distinguished and respected Mason. I can assure you that both she and I (as Bro. McGowan, said) will value the gift you have made us, not so much for itself as for the spirit in which it is given, and if it should be so that we should have successors it will be handed down to them as a great token of your esteem and regard. Allow me again on the part of my wife and the ladies, to thank you most heartily on their behalf for the compliment you have paid them. After the usual concluding toast this highly interesting and most agreeable evening's entertainment was brought to a close. We feel it due to Bros. J. Rhodes, P.M., R. Richardson, P.M.; A. Hunter P.M.; J. Brigg, W. Bealand, P.M.; and C. Pratt, P.M., to say that their very excellent harmony, contributed greatly to the enjoyments of the evening.

Franks and King, assisted by Comps. Tracy, Prin. Soj., the beautiful Mystical Lecture being given by Comp. King, with his customary eloquent power, and the Historical by Comp. Mills. The candidates and visitors amongst whom we number ourselves, were greatly struck at the admirable way in which the degree was worked, and at the solemnity and decorum which pervaded the proceedings. The election of officers was then proceeded with, when the following was the result.—Comp. King, Z; P. Cornell, H.; N. Tracy, J.; W. Fraser, Prin. Soj.; W. P. Mills, P. Z., Scribe E.; Scopes, N.; W. Townsend, Treas.; Syer, Janitor; Comp. the chapter, coupled with regrets that the companions should lose the benefit of his valuable assistance. A companion having been proposed for exaltation at the next meeting, the chapter was closed and the brethren retired for refreshment.

Brett, Little, and Dodd respectively. A proposition for joining was made and the chapter was closed. At the banquet Comp. Terry, P.Z., presided, as owing to his absence at Comp. Sheen's funeral, he was unable to attend the working in chapter. A very pleasant evening was spent, the usual festive toasts being given with great geniality by the acting Z. Comps. Brett responded for the Grand Officers; Little for the P.Z.'s; Hillhouse for the Exaltees; Terry for the Chair; Lane, King, and others for the Visitors; Buss, Treas., for the Officers. Kenning, S.W., was then installed as W.M., and the officers were invested as follows:—Bros. S. C. Davison, S.W.; T. B. Yeoman, J.W.; T. H. Edmands, M.O.; Rev. P. H. E. Brette, D.D., S.O.; J. W. Barrett, J.O.; Rev. W. B. Church, M.A., P.M., Chaplain; H. C. Levander, P.M., Treas.; R. W. Little, P.M., Sec.; John Boyd, R. of M.; C. Horsley, S.D.; E. H. Thiellay, J.D.; H. A. Dubois, I.G.; H. Parker, Organist; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. The name of a brother was erased for non-payment of dues, and P.M. jewels were voted to Bros. Marsh and Cubitt, P.M.'s. The lodge was then closed, and a capital supper was served, after which the loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily accepted. The new Master, Bro. George Kenning, stated that he intended to represent the lodge as a Steward, at all the Festivals of the Masonic Institutions in 1874. Bros. Binckes and Little, in responding, trusted that the Members of the lodge would give the W.M. their best support in such a good cause. After a very pleasant evening the brethren separated.

Red Cross of Constantine.

An adjourned special meeting of the Grand Council was held at Freemasons' Tavern, on the 1st instant, under the presidency of the High Chancellor, Sir Knt. W. E. Gumbleton, J.P., for the consideration of important business. A letter from Sir Knt. S. K. Herrick, Intendant General for Massachusetts, U.S.A., was read, in which he conveyed the views of the Conclaves in his Division,—their desire being to remain under the jurisdiction of the Grand Council of England, and to conform to the Statutes which declare that Master Masons are eligible for admission into the Order, as in some of the American States Knights Templar only are admitted as candidates.

Sir Knt. Herrick's action was approved, and a copy of the resolution thereon was ordered to be sent to Sir Knt. Creigh, LL.D., Chief Intendant General in America, for his guidance in future.

The following Knights were elected members of the Executive Committee:—Colonel Burdett, W. E. Gumbleton, R. W. Little, W. R. Woodman, M.D.; and H. C. Levander, M.A.; and the meetings of the Committee were fixed to be held on the Monday preceding the Quarterly Communications of the Grand Lodge of England.

It was resolved that the Grand Sovereign be recommended to appoint Chief Intendants General for groups of divisions in England, and it was announced that the Right Hon. the Lord Skelmersdale, Int. Gen. unattached, had accepted the post of Chief Intendant General for Lancashire.

It was ordered that all fees payable from officers or conclaves now due be at once required, and the result communicated to the Executive Committee, who were further deputed to act as a Board for revising the ritual and statutes.

A letter from the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters was read, and ordered to be entered on the minutes. It contained an intimation from the Earl Percy, M.P., M.W.G.M.M.M., to the Earl of Bective, M.P., M.I.G.S. that the representatives of the Mark Grand Lodge would use their best endeavours to secure the admission of the Red Cross Order into the treaty of alliance now existing between the Mark, the Knights Templar, and the Ancient and Accepted Rite.

It was reported that the Grand Recorder, Dr. Woodman, had obtained an office at No. 23A, Great Queen-street, exactly opposite Freemasons' Hall, where the business of the Order would be carried on from the 8th inst.

The sanction of the Grand Council was given to a ball being held under its auspices early in the coming year, the Knights to appear in full Red Cross regalia, with the jewels of any Masonic degree, except the Craft and Royal Arch.

A vote of ten guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was agreed to, subject to confirmation. The council was then closed.

K.H.S.

A meeting of the Patriarchal Council, K.H.S., was then held, when it was moved by the Treasurer General, seconded by Bro. Knight Levander, First Lieut., and carried unanimously, that the registry fee for Knights of the Order be five shillings, instead of ten shillings and sixpence, as previously resolved. The regalia of the Order is to consist of a black silk sash, with the emblem of rank embroidered thereon in front; a black sheathed sword, and the usual jewel. It was recommended that the Red Cross sash be lined with black silk, and worn so reversed in the K.H.S.

Bro. Knight T. Cubitt, T.B., proposed, and Bro. Knight S. Rosenthal seconded a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was carried by acclamation.

Bro. Knight Gumbleton, Captain of the Guard in this Order, briefly acknowledged the compliment.

ORIGINAL OR PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND.

This Conclave met when the previous business was over, and Sir Knight Charles F. Hogard, of the Plantagenet Conclave, No. 2, was advanced to the grades of Viceroy and Sovereign. The Rev. Dr. Smyth was approved as a candidate, and several brethren were proposed for the next meeting. The Conclave was then closed, and the Knights dined together under the sceptre of Sir Knight Little, who presided for Sir Knight Moss, M.P.S., who is out of town. A very pleasant evening was spent, agreeably diversified by the speeches of Sir Knights John Hervey, P. G. Chancellor, E. Sillifant, Rev. Ernest Brette, D.D., T. B. Yeoman, J. G. Marsh, and H. A. Dubois, and the musical talents of Sir Knight H. Parker, the Grand Organist of the Order.

GLASGOW.—Clyde Lodge (No. 408) held its usual monthly meeting on Friday, Sept. 5th, Bro. D. Downie, R.W.M., in the chair, Bro. W. Clinton, S.W.; J. Stewart, J.W. There were a number of visiting brethren present. After the lodge had been opened in the first degree, petitions were read from three candidates for initiation. The R.W.M. requested Bro. G. W. Wheeler, of No. 73, to perform the ceremonies for him, which he did. It was then stated that as Bro. Christian Crause, and W. Welman, both master mariners, were about to proceed to sea, it would be necessary for them to take the second and third degrees and at the request of the R.W.M., Bro. G. W. Wheeler, proceeded to pass these two brethren to the Fellow Craft Degree, and thereafter raised them to the sublime degree of Master Masons. At the conclusion of labour the lodge adjourned for refreshment. After the usual loyal toasts the R.W.M. proposed that of "The Initiates, which was responded to by Bro. Wellman, in a neat speech. "On the "Health of Bro. Wheeler," who had done the work, being proposed, he replied, by wishing prosperity to Lodge Clyde and its Right Worshipful Master. Bro. Downie, acknowledged the compliment to the lodge and himself, and gave "The Visiting Brethren," which was responded to by Bro. Worthness, in suitable terms. The last toast was "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again."

GLASGOW.—Kilwinning Lodge (No. 4).—This old lodge, in accordance with ancient custom, held an harmonic meeting on Wednesday, September the 3rd, Bro. A Thorburn, R.W.M., presiding; J. Jamison, S.W.; J. Johnson, acting J.W. On the dais were:—Bros. Steet, S. Prov. G.M., I.P.M.; N. J. Sage, P.M. No. 4; J. Bain, P.M. 103, Prov. G.B.B.; J. B. McNair, R.W.M. 332; J. Miller, R.W.M. 413; and William Cammeron, of Kilwinning 97, Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S. The musical part of the programme was under the direction of Bro. Robert Fraser, who is a host in himself, and who by the unanimous wish of the lodge, was affiliated as an honorary member of Kilwinning No. 4. Bro. J. Thompson presided at the harmonium. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, the R.W.M. gave that of "The Provincial Grand Lodge." He considered it an honour to the lodge that Bro. Steet, his predecessor in that chair, now occupied the very distinguished post of Substitute Provincial Grand Master, and he should call on him to reply. Bro. Steet said he was rejoiced to meet so many of his old friends again to night. It reminded him of the time, now about 20 years since, when in their old hall in Union-street, they used to hold their harmonic meetings, in accordance with a time-immemorial custom, and as an ancient lodge. He was glad to see they were reviving an ancient usage; he told them when he left the chair that they wanted younger men with more blood to land them on, and Bro. Thorburn was just the right man. They must pardon him if he spoke more of the lodge than of the province, he knew they were all loyal to that, and to the Neilson Government, so he would speak more of home, and he had come there to night not as a member of the province, but as an old member of Kilwinning No. 4, and he had come there to tell them that they might now congratulate themselves on the fact that they had recovered their old minute books that had been so long lost. These books contained minutes that went back for about one hundred years, extending beyond the formation of the Grand Lodge itself, and containing records of the many good men who had belonged to the lodge, men who had been illustrious outside of the lodge for their literary and scientific knowledge and ability. This subject was most on his heart to-night, yet in behalf of the Prov. Grand Lodge he thanked them. Bro. Sage said, as the oldest member of the lodge, and one who had been much abroad, he had been requested to give "Freemasonry all over the Globe," and more especially American Freemasons. He had spent many years in America, and could therefore testify to the vitality of American Masonry, and he was happy to say, that to-night they had with them an American Mason, who was also a son of Kilwinning. Bro. Wm. Cammeron, of Chap. 97, Kilwinning, Ohio, U.S., briefly replied; speaking, he said, was not his forte, but he could assure them that in the United States, while they respected Masons from all parts of the world, they always looked with especial favour on Scotch Masons, and regarded Mother Kilwinning as the parent stock. As a member of Kilwinning 97, he was glad to meet with Kilwinning, No. 4. The R.W.M. then gave "The Visiting Brethren." He would couple this toast with Bro. McNair the R.W.M. of 332, for although there were members present from 3½ and other older lodges, yet as they had been contributing so much to the harmony of the meeting in the singing department, he thought they might be glad to get Bro. McNair to speak for them. Bro. McNair replied on behalf of about 30 visiting brethren, thanking the lodge for their hospitable entertainment, and congratulating them on the recovery of their old minute books, as any lodge might well be proud to show their continuous records for a century and a half. The final toast was soon after given. Some excellent glees were sung by Bro. Miller, R.W.M., 413, and his friends. Bros. Fraser, Dinachie, Porter, Johnson, Thomas, Thorburn, McCullough, Mullings, and others also contributed to render this a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

GLASGOW.—Thistle and Rose Lodge—This lodge met on Tuesday, September the 4th, Bro. G. McDonald, R.W.M., in the chair; G. W. Wheeler, acting S.W.; A. McLeod, J.W. Two candidates were proposed for initiation. The R.W.M. requested the S.W. to perform the ceremony, which he did in a very creditable manner. The grant of a small sum of money to the late Tyler was then, on the motion of J. Hanbridge, Secretary, confirmed, and arrangements were made for the presentation of a testimonial to Bro. J. Wallace.

CONSECRATION OF THE PRINCE LEOPOLD LODGE NO 1445, KINGSLAND.

On Thursday, the 4th inst., the important ceremony of consecrating a new lodge in the populous district of Kingsland, was most successfully performed. It appears that the large suburbs of Kingsland, Dalston and Stoke Newington have hitherto been destitute of local lodges, and the opening of the Prince Leopold Lodge is therefore felt to be a great boon in the neighbourhood.

Soon after 4 p.m., the brethren assembled at the "Lord Stanley" Tavern, Sandringham-road, where the lodge is to be held, and a procession having been formed under the direction of Bro. R. Wentworth Little, as Director of Ceremonies, the brethren entered the lodge-room, and the chair was taken by V. W. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, the Consecrating officer, who appointed Bro. J. Emmens, P.G.P., and H. G. Buss, Prov. G. Treas. Middlesex, Wardens, pro tem., and Bro. Hoare I.G. The lodge was then opened in the three degrees, after which Bro. Hervey addressed the brethren upon the nature of the meeting, especially counselling them to observe the greatest caution in the selection of initiates, so as to maintain the character and prestige of the Craft. The Acting Chaplain, Bro. Jas. Brett, P.G.P., gave the opening prayer, the D.C. arranged the brethren in order, and requested the presiding officer to constitute the lodge. The petition and warrant were read, and the founders signified their continued approval of the officers designated therein. Bro. Brett then delivered an oration upon the principles of the Order, dwelling briefly, but emphatically, upon the advantages of fraternal love, discriminative benevolence, and the diffusion of light and truth; indicating Freemasonry as the guide to intellectual wisdom, moral strength, and spiritual beauty, and concluding with a hope that centuries hence, the true principles of the Craft might be preserved and disseminated in the Prince Leopold Lodge. The Anthem "Behold how pleasant it is. &c." was then magnificently rendered by the choir, which comprised Bro. Limpus, Prov. G. Organist, Middlesex, Bruce, McDavitt, and Hubbard. The Dedication Prayer, a "Sanctus" and the "Invocation" by the Consecrating Officer, followed. The lodge board was then uncovered, and the consecrating elements were carried round three times by the W.M. and Wardens.

The lodge was dedicated and the anthem, "Praise ye the Lord," succeeded.

The Chaplain took the censer round three times, and gave the final dedication prayer, upon which the presiding officer constituted the lodge, under the style and title of the Prince Leopold Lodge, No. 1445, on the register of the Grand Lodge of England. Boyce's Anthem, "We have built Thee an house" terminated the ceremony of consecration.

Bro. Hervey then proceeded to install the W.M. Designate, Bro. W. T. Howe, with the usual solemnities—the Board of Installed Masters comprising a goodly array of qualified brethren. The following is a complete list of the first officers of the lodge:—Bros. W. T. Howe, 212, W.M.; Frank Green, 212, S.W.; W. H. Myers, 820, J.W.; T. Austin, 933, P.M.; J. Pinder, 15, Sec.; F. W. Wilkins, 86, S.D.; W. F. Stevenson, 754, J.D.; F. Trebeck, 1365, I.G.; J. E. Simms, 1365, D.C.; J. Clark, 174, W.S.; and G. Bruce, 1365, W.S. In addition to the consecrating officers, we noticed the following brethren amongst those present:—Bros. T. A. Hoare, Prov. G.S.; Richd. Limpus, Prov. G.O.; T. Hammond, 212, W.M.; W. Stephens, 1365, W.M.; T. Austin, 933, W.M.; C. Lacey, 1421, W.M., 174, P.M.; W. Jones, 445, P.M.; W. F. Wheeler, 865, P.M.; J. Constable, 185, S.W.; E. B. Graham, 19, I.G.; and several others. The addresses to the W.M., &c., were delivered by Bros. Hervey and Brett,—the former of whom was elected an honorary member—votes of thanks being passed to his assistants.

Ten gentlemen were proposed for initiation, and the lodge was closed.

At the banquet, which was admirably served by Bro. Townsend, P.M., 820, the host, a number of brethren sat down, under the gavel of the W.M., Bro. Howe, who proved as efficient as a speaker, as he is well known to be an excellent worker in the lodge. Bro. John Hervey, G. Secretary responded for "The D.G.M. and rest of the Grand Officers," and also to the toast of the "Consecrating Master." He then gave "The Health of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Howe, and Prosperity to the Prince Leopold Lodge," a toast which was most heartily received, and for which the worthy W.M. expressed his grateful acknowledgments. "The Assistant Consecrating Officers Health" elicited a cordial demonstration, and Bro. Buss responded on their behalf. The W.M. then introduced the toast of the "Masonic Benevolent Institutions," with which he coupled the name of Bro. Wentworth Little, Secretary of the Girls' School, who, in returning thanks, gave a brief account of the origin and progress of the Institutions, and expressed a hope that the new lodge would, under their esteemed Master, support the Schools and the Amnity Fund.

"The Health of the Officers," was proposed in eulogistic terms by the W.M., who enlarged upon the Masonic worth and acquirements of the Wardens, Bros. Green and Myers, also Bro. Pinder, the Secretary, and in fact of all who had accepted office.

The toast was cordially greeted, and the several officers expressed their thanks for the compliment, and their determination to assist the Master in the accomplishment of his desire to make the lodge a great success.

Bro. Pinder especially commended to the brethren the observations of Bro. Little respecting the Masonic Charities, and said he was sure the Prince Leopold Lodge would not ignore one of the primary obligations of the Order—Charity.

We omitted to state that for the "Visitors," Bro. Hammond, W.M., 212 made a most effective response. During the evening the musical brethren, under Bro. Limpus, delighted the company with songs and glees, and everything contributed to make the gathering one thoroughly enjoyable and most pleasant to all.

Alderman and Sheriff Sir Thomas White and Sheriff Sir Frederick Perkins have been honoured by the Shah with the Persian order of the Lion and the Sun.

CONSECRATION OF YARBOROUGH CHAPTER, No. 811, AT BRIGHTON.

In the suite of rooms at the Royal Pavilion, set aside chiefly for Masonic purposes, the unusual and interesting ceremony of consecrating a new chapter, and dedicating it to the purposes of Royal Arch Masonry, took place on Saturday, August 30th, 1873, in the presence of between 40 and 50 Royal Arch Masons from various parts of the county, London, and elsewhere. At half-past three o'clock Companion John Hervey, Grand Scribe E., accompanied by Comp. R. W. Little, Grand Scribe E., Middlesex, and attended by Comp. Thos. Trollope, P.Z. 40, as acting H.; V. Freeman, P.Z., 732, as acting Director of Ceremonies; John Read, P.Z. 720, as Org.; T. J. Sabine, P.Z. 73, as acting Scribe E.; J. M. Cunningham, P.Z. 916, 311, M.E.Z. designate; W. R. Wood, P.Z. No. 2 as H. designate; C. Horsley, Provincial Grand Reg., Middlesex, as J. designate, entered the chapter-room, which was appropriately fitted in a manner peculiar to the teachings of this degree in Freemasonry.

The chapter was then opened in ancient form, and the companions admitted, Comp. Read, P.Z. 720, playing a solemn march on the harmonium.

Comp. John Hervey, G. Scribe E., [who had been specially invited to perform the ceremony of consecration, then addressed the assembled companions on the nature of the meeting, taking especial care to point out in plain and unmistakable language the duties which Royal Arch Freemasons take upon themselves, and referring to the care which should be exercised in the admission of those who from previous experience would prove worthy and devoted members of the Order, and likely by their position and prospects to maintain with honourable pride those noblest of all Masonic characteristics, benevolence and charity, by ever thinking of the young needing a helping hand, and by readily succouring the wants of the aged and distressed. Comp. Hervey closed his address amid applause.

The Consecrating Officer then called on Comp. Sabine (Acting Scribe E.) to read the petition and charter, which having been done,

The D. of Ceremonies, Comp. V. Freeman, assembled all those present who had signed the petition, to whom were addressed the question "Do you approve of the Principals named in the charter," when their approval was signified in form. "The oration" suitable to the occasion was most effectively and impressively given by Comp. R. W. Little, Provincial Grand Scribe E. of Middlesex, in the course of which, he traced Royal Arch Freemasonry from its earliest days to the present, commented upon the useful teachings of its symbolism, and proved to the assembled companions how necessary it was that all Masons should qualify themselves for this further and most necessary degree, without which the mere shell or outline of Freemasonry is only attained. He likewise directed the attention of all Masonic students to the recognition and practice of those responsibilities which every Mason takes upon himself by passing through the degree.

On Comp. Little resuming his seat he was much applauded.

The collars and jewels of the various officers were handed to the consecrating Principal. Upon this being done, the D. of Ceremonies presented to the Consecrating Officer the three Principals appointed by the charter, and the members of the new chapter were placed in two columns immediately in front of the dais. The anthem, "Behold, how pleasant and how good," was effectively given, and the pedestal unveiled, the corn was strewn as an emblem of plenty, the wine poured out as an emblem of joy, and the oil dropped as an emblem of peace. Haydn's Anthem "The spacious Firmament on High," was beautifully rendered, all present joining in, after which the consecrating Principal dedicated and constituted the members into a regularly registered Royal Arch Chapter, named the Yarborough Chapter, No. 811. The acting J. gave the patriarchal benediction and the companions sang a Masonic hymn.

The three Principals, Comp. J. M. Cunningham, P.M. 811, 315, 916, P.Z. 916, P. Prov. S., G.W. Sussex; Comp. W. R. Wood, P.M. 63, 315, 811, P.Z. No. 2, P. Prov. G. J. W. Sussex; and Comp. C. Horsley, P.M. 811, &c., Grand Registrar Provincial Grand Chapter, Middlesex, were placed in their respective chairs. The officers were nominated and invested as follows:—Comp. Thos. J. Sabine, P.M. 73, Scribe N.; Comp. T. Cook, 2nd A.S.; Comp. W. H. German was unanimously elected Treasurer. The remaining offices were left open until next meeting of the Chapter.

Two brethren were proposed for exaltation.

The business of the day having terminated, and the chapter closed, the companions sat down to a banquet provided by Messrs. Mutton Bros. The usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given and responded to. The toast of the evening was that of the health of the Consecrating Officer, Comp. John Hervey, Grand Scribe E., of whom the M.E.Z. spoke in the highest possible praise, as a genuine working Mason, ready at all times to promote the welfare of his companions, and to render assistance, advice, or guidance to the young Mason.

Companion Hervey replied, and in doing so took occasion to refer to the pleasure he experienced in once more having had the opportunity of visiting Brighton. He said it was many years ago since he consecrated a chapter in this beautiful town, which he had found so much improved since his last visit. He fully believed the Yarborough Chapter would be a prosperous and carefully managed branch of the royal degree. It augured well for its future that at its head were three Companions of the Order so experienced, but he must add a word or two of his satisfaction at the manner in which Companion Sabine had managed the whole affair, which up to this latest moment left nothing wanting. He regarded the completeness of every detail with much satisfaction, and he had to thank Comp. Sabine for taking off his hands the very large amount of troublesome work. He must also allude before he sat down to the assistance rendered him that day by Comps. Trollope, Little, Read, and, not least, to the very valuable services of Comp. V. Freeman, who, as Director of the Ceremonies, had performed the delicate and difficult work of the office with most commendable skill and ability. He concluded by expressing a hope that on some future occasion he should be able to pay the Yarborough Chapter a visit, when he had no doubt to find everything in good working order.

The remaining toasts, including "Success to the Masonic Institutions," were then given, and the companions separated at an early hour, all well pleased with a happy, instructive, and delightful day.

Amongst those present during the day, in addition to those already referred to, we noticed from the South Saxon Chapter, No. 211, Comps. W. W. Turner and H. Freeman; the Lennox Chapter, 271, Comps. Gill, R. J. Rogers, and R. B. P. Taaffe; the Hartington Chapter, 916, Comps. C. H. Matthews, W. Kirkland, Thos. Lane, M.E.Z., and G. Flint; Royal Sussex Chapter, 732, Comps. G. Smith, P.Z., W. Smith, W. Hudson, M.E.Z., W. Challen, P.Z., Jas. W. Stride, and J. S. Houghton; the Emulation Chapter, 40, Comps. James Dorman, A. R. Croucher, and others.

The following companions were, from various circumstances, unable to attend:—Comps. Lord Pelham, 171, G. E. Pocock, P.Z., 271; G. Tatham, P.Z. 271; E. J. Furner, P.Z. 271; W. H. Hallett, M.E.Z., 271; W. Pulteney Scott, P.G.S.N., P.Z., No. 2; Capt. Braithwaite; W. B. Tanner, M.E.Z., 40; A. Elmsley, P.Z., 311; James Terry, P.Z.; E. Bostock, 732; Joseph Spencer, 73; C. G. Reed, P.Z., 732; W. J. Smith, 73, Capt. Molineux, M.E.Z., No. 2, F. Walters, P.Z., 73, J. S. Gowen, P.Z., Henry Dabose, P.Z.; Major Shadwell H. Clerke, P.Z.; William Hyde Pallen, P.Z.; Capt. H. Stratford; and George Kenning, P.Z.

ἸΝΘΩΙ ΣΕ ΑΥΤΩΝ.

(By the Author of "ALPHA AND OMEGA")
Dedicated to the Ancient and Accepted Rite.

Ave Rosa Crucis! When through the dark valley
The shadows of Death mock the pilgrims of Woe,
When Error and Fraud their grim satellites rally,
Unflinching under thy banner we go.

Thy vision of Truth to the Soldier believing
Gleams bright on the Altar, fulfils the desire,
And sheds o'er the veil of Mortality's weaving
A purer aura of spiritual fire.

There thrills through our ranks, from thy sweet inspiration,

A mystic spell like to the sound of the sea.
The charmed hymn wakes, to eternal vibration
The echoes of Nature in full melody;
It whispers the roll of the infinite muster
Of worlds which revolve in their orbital race.
Illumed by a keen inconceivable lustre;
And held by immutable Laws in the space;
Upspreading, it kisses the seal of Creation
And worships afar at the signet of God,
Till melting in glow of divine exhalation
It pours down the path which Emanuel trod;
Returning it unlocks the mazes of Seven,
The spheres through which we to Perfection press on.

'Ere steeped in the splendour of Three times
Eleven

We gaze through the Light which the perfect have won;

It ends in announcing the Message of Heaven
Over which radiates the face of the One,
Proclaiming the Crown of the Sacrifice given,
The anguish endured and the Victory done.

We hear it, the mystical ladder ascending,
Which yields, at each step, the initial of flame Whose ascents caught up by Archangel, come blending

And breathe out, in awe, the ineffable Name.

The Eagle exultant, ascends to the morning,
With wing golden tipp'd by the Lord of the East.
From ashes, the Phoenix, the fire-circle scorning, Soars in renewed youth and with beauty increased;

Its innocent brood see the Pelican nourish,
In shedding its lifeblood, with pinion unfurled;
And long in our midst may their attributes flourish

For these are the Types we disclose to the world.
The bold gaze of Hate and the sad sigh of Sorrow
We quench in a Charity deeper than they,
The Faith of the Present, the Hope of the Morrow
Transmit through the Ages our roseate ray.

The Past may mistake or the Future condemn us,
Our Love is link'd firm to the Ancient of Days;
Opponents may harass and ambushes hem us,
But none from our ranks our great Captain betrays.

With Him when the eyelash grown wet at our story

Is dried with the solace 'tis His to bestow,
Shall Princes and Sages assemble in Glory
Who fought the good fight in the valley below.

A MASONIC PARTING.

By Bro. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M., and P.Z.

In friendship we meet, and in friendship we part,
With brotherly love inspiring each heart:
Remembering, ever, if tempted to roam,
That affection and duty alike call us home.

Our duties are pleasures, our mission's to sow
The seed of good feeling, wherever we go;
But nothing we do will suffice to atone
For lack of the duty we all owe at home.

Our wives are our helpmates, and often they show
For us what is best they assuredly know;
Then, let us remember, if tempted to roam,
That affection and interest both call us home.

ERRATA.—In "An Entered Apprentice's Prayer," in the last Freemason, in stanza 5, last line, for this read thus. In last stanza, line 2, insert me, after inspires.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.—No. 2.

A curious book was published in the year 1765, entitled "a defence of Masonry as practised in the regular Lodges" (London). It is especially valuable because of a reference to Dr. Dassigny, and also to Bro. Laurence Dermott.

It is the only printed notice of Dr. Dassigny we have been able to trace within a few years of the publication of "Ahiman Rezon," A.D. 1756, (which is the first work that is known to allude to that author) and yet we cannot but think there must be other allusions to his "Impartial Enquiry," published in 1744.

We shall be glad to correspond with any brother who has discovered a reference to Dr. Dassigny, or his works between the years 1740 and 1780, as the value of his books are not easily over-estimated, seeing they contain the earliest printed references to Royal Arch Masonry known. We have a copy of the "Impartial Enquiry," of 1744, believed to be unique, but there is still another work of his to be traced.

CLAPTON LODGE, No. 1365.—The installation meeting of this lodge will take place at the White Hart Hotel, Clapton, on Wednesday next, September 17th.

RENFREWSHIRE ELECTION took place on Wednesday. Polling-booths were opened at 8 o'clock, their localities being Paisley, Neilston, Pollokshaws, Crosshill, Kinning Park, and Greenock. The result of the election was as follows:—Bro. Col. Campbell (Conservative), 1,855; Bro. Col. Moore (Liberal), 1,677. Majority for Bro. Campbell, 178.

Bro. Montague will re-open the Globe Theatre for the winter season with a play entitled "Chivalry," by Mr. Richard Lee, whose "Ordeal by Touch" obtained a marked success at the Queen's last year.

MEMORIAL WINDOW IN ST. PAUL'S.—One of the five light clerestory windows on the north side of St. Paul's Cathedral has been filled with stained glass. The five openings are filled with a subject taken from the life of King Solomon in the Temple. Under the window is a brass, placed upon one of the piers, with the following inscription:—"The above window was erected by Susannah Woodcock, in loving memory of her husband, William Henry Woodcock, who died November 2nd, 1870, in the 73rd year of his age."

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Francis Tussaud, son of the late Madam Tussaud. The event took place on Sunday, Aug. 31st. The Exhibition in Baker-street was closed on the 5th inst., the date fixed for the funeral.

NEXT YEAR'S EISTEDDVOD.—The success of the Mold Eisteddvod has given an impetus to the committee of next year's Bangor Eisteddvod, and at the meeting last week a satisfactory amount of progress was reported. In addition to the list of subjects drawn out by the committee, and published a short time ago, a number of handsome prizes have been offered by several ladies and gentlemen, who take a warm and patriotic interest in the success of the great national gathering. Foremost among the number are Miss Edith Wynne and Mr. Brinley Richards, whose sacrifices in the cause of Welsh nationality are already well known. Mr. Brinley Richards announced at Mold, that a triple harp would be offered as a prize at Bangor, and Miss Wynne offers a handsome prize for the best collection of Welsh proverbs.—Llandudno Directory.

"NEVER OVER-ESTIMATE YOUR STRENGTH!"—Pain, though hard to bear, is evidently necessary for our safety, wanting it disorder would become disease without our knowledge; death would end the scene ere danger was discovered. Suffering is the indication of some disorder or disease, and should never be neglected, for the pain of today may prove the agony of to-morrow. Holloway's remedies stand pre-eminently forward, and are everywhere commended for quickly removing all maladies when the least uneasiness has discovered their seat and kind. These remedies so purify the blood and regulate its circulation, that every organ acts perfectly and every secretion is natural, which is health; and may be secured by every individual at a trifling outlay.—ADVT.

Obituary.

BRO. JAMES RICHMOND SHEEN.

Freemasonry both in her theoretical teachings and practical operations of charity, has lost a steady supporter in the demise of Bro. Sheen.

A long life time of manly exertion and uniform devotions to her best interests cannot but be admired by those good masons who had not the pleasure and privilege of his acquaintance, but a deep heart-felt grief must we all experience who have had the delights of his friendship, the aid of his Masonic teachings, and the intercourse of his cultivated intellect. If his universal charity can be said to have developed itself in one position more than another, it was in the direction of the Orphan Institution for the daughters of Freemasons, and, singular to say, it was in that very asylum of usefulness that he met with the accident by a fall which proved the exciting cause of his death, at the age of 65 years. For the greater part of the current year, Bro. Sheen had exhibited signs of gradually declining health, and proffered his resignation of several of the important posts of trust and honour which he held in the Craft, all of which, however, were thrust back upon him, and he was in complete Masonic harness to the time of his death, on the 1st instant. He was a member of the House Committee of the Girls' School, a permanent member of the Board of Benevolence, Scribe E. of the Jerusalem Chapter, and had only one member standing before him as Father of the Jordan Lodge, No. 201.—Bro. Patten, the late Secretary of the Girls' School.

Bro. Sheen, in his long career of usefulness, has had many honours thrust upon him; but, although not altogether despising the glitter of outward show, always felt a greater delight in quietly doing good: hence he not only never put himself forward for Grand Lodge honours, but persistently refused to be put forward by others who sought to vary the even path of deserving merit by some of those marks of distinction which only real worth will dispense with. One of his last acts of benevolence, apparently only to add to the amount on the list of the Steward who represented his mother lodge at the Festival of the Girl's School, was to make a nephew a Life Governor of that institution. He always asserted that whatever honour might be paid to deserving merit, none could reach the satisfaction of that which would accrue from a consistent and uniform support of the charities. Thus, on one occasion, when a Master of the lodge of which Bro. Sheen had already been a P.M. for years, receiving at the end of his year of office the award of a Past Master's jewel, preferred to present the five guineas to the funds of the Boys' Institution, making thereby his "Lewis" a life subscriber of that charity, Bro. Sheen stepped forward and said, that choice, my brethren, I consider is fraught with more honour than the display of a score of jewels. At the next meeting, however, he himself presented a Past Master's jewel to the brother, with the following inscription thereon:—"A jewel was voted to Bro. — P.M., by the Jordan Lodge, No. 201, for his efficient services as W.M. in 18—. He preferred giving the amount to the Masonic Boys' School, in token of which this jewel is presented to him by his sincere friend, J. R. Sheen, P.M. 201."

His remains were placed in the family grave at Woking, on Saturday, September the 6th, a large number of relations, brethren, and friends attending to pay a last meed of respect to his worth.

The Rev. Reginald Hay Hills, of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, the parish in which the departed had resided for upwards of 30 years, read the service in the sad ceremony, the chapel being full of mourners, among whom we noticed Messrs. W. M. Kedge, H. Kedge, H. Coombes, J. Blake, W. S. Young, H. Hopkins, J. Wilson, and others, the executors, Bros. Dyer, Moorman, and Mr. J. Saunders.

Among the brotherhood present representing a large number of lodges were:—Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, P. Prov. D.C.M. Middlesex; R. Watts, Holbrook, Harris, T. White, Sheppard, W. Hammond, Davage, Stevens, Terry, Genese, Terry, Lane, and others. Many letters of condolence have been received from members of the chapters and lodges connected therewith, all manifesting the depth of grief which their loss had occasioned. Thus writes one, all re-echoing similar sentiments:—"In the death of our dear friend, I feel that the course of charity, more particularly that important branch connected with the education of orphans, has sustained the loss of one of its most generous, liberal, and judicious advocates and supporters. Personally I grieve for the loss of a genuine kind-hearted friend."

Bro. Sheen was the author of a very interesting and valuable book on "Wines and other Fermented Liquors from the Earliest Ages to the Present Time," a work exhibiting much careful research and literary taste and ability. "A Four Days' Ramble," too, from his pen, is a most readable production, exhibiting much keen thought and close observation in a tour through Surrey and West Sussex. He also wrote at an earlier date, "A Treatise on Chemical Experiments," a subject to which his early life was devoted. "First Impressions," "Jottings by the Way," &c. There are few lives of such usefulness as that of Bro. Sheen's, between the time that he left Chislehurst, as an educated young man, starting in life, and that at which he returned to the spot to breathe his last.

A PRESENTATION GOLD MEDAL FROM HIS HOLINESS PIUS IX.

Bro. John Tweed, Glasgow, has been favoured with a presentation from Pio Nono, which, independent of its intrinsic value, is no ordinary compliment to a Scottish publisher.

Bro. Tweed is the publisher of a curious volume, entitled "The Catholic History of Scotland," compiled with great care, at a very great expense, and interesting to every class of Scotchmen.

Bro. Tweed forwarded a volume of this work to his Holiness Pio Nono, and in return, has been presented with a solid gold medal, of very considerable value, having a medallion portrait of the Pope upon it, being executed with great artistic beauty, and adorned with appropriate insignia. The presentation has been accompanied with the following gracious letter, and which Bro. Tweed, is bound to treasure as a curious and precious relic. Upon the envelope in which the medal was enclosed, Pio Nono writes, in his own hand,—"To the Rector of the Scottish College, for the Publisher, Pius IX."

"Dear Sir,—At the request of His Grace Archbishop Eyre, I beg to inform you that the volume of "The Catholic History of Scotland," some time since received from you for presentation to His Holiness the Pope, was duly forwarded to Rome, and presented to the Holy Father by the Most Rev. Monsignor Simeoni, Secretary of the Sacred Congregation of Propaganda Fide. His Holiness admired exceedingly the elegant appearance of the volume. On turning over the leaves he recognised, in the steel engravings of the Scottish Bishops, old and familiar faces. The Italian Address accompanying the volume was also read to His Holiness, who was very much pleased with it, and as a substantial proof of his paternal feeling, and an encouragement to the publisher, he immediately brought forth a beautiful Gold Medal enclosed in a crimson velvet case, adorned with the Pontifical Arms, and desired that it should be presented to you. The medal has just arrived, and you can receive it on calling at the residence of His Grace the Archbishop. It is a magnificent work of art, in massive and pure gold, in size larger than a crown piece, having on the obverse a beautiful profile figure of the Holy Father in very high relief; on the reverse side is a highly finished view of the Loggia Di Raffaele, or Hall of Raphael, of the Vatican Palace in Rome.

"I have the honour to remain, Dear Sir, Your most obedient servant,

"H. W. HOWLEY,
"Secy. to the Archbishop."

AN ORATION.

By BRO. L. P. METHAM, D.P.G.M.

The following is the oration of Bro. L. P. Metham, P.G.D. of England, and D.Prov. G.M., which was delivered on Thursday, Aug. 28th, at the Provincial Grand Lodge, held in the Town Hall at Dawlish, on the occasion of the consecration of Lodge Salem No. 1443:—

"Right Worshipful Sir.—The commands you have laid upon me to perform to-day the customary duty of addressing the brethren present, and more particularly the brethren of the lodge we are about to consecrate, will be obeyed with great willingness, but I fear, owing to illness with even less force than on former occasions. I, however, feel the importance of this portion of the ceremony, on each recurring occasion for its exercise, to be of a very increasing and grave character, especially in all that relates to the conduct of the brethren without, as well as within, the lodge. I therefore propose to-day, to confine myself to urging upon all who hear me, the necessity of guarding more carefully than ever the portals of our Order, that none unworthy shall be permitted to enter. Never in the history of the Craft was Masonry so flourishing, if numbers are to be accepted as the proof of success. In our own province a member has been added to the body for nearly every day of the past year. If each of those initiates is really what his proposer and seconder, and the Lodge which has accepted him, are bound by their obligations to scrupulously enquire and satisfy themselves that he is, namely, a 'good man and true,' then have we reason to rejoice that our principles have gained so many volunteers for their support and dissemination. Indeed it would, in such a case, be a subject of deep regret that the number has not been multiplied by thousands for every unit, so as to hasten the coming of that millennium when the great Brotherhood of Nations shall learn, in the practice of universal Masonry to forget that war, bloodshed, discord, and misery polluted the world which the great God has given us for our use and enjoyment, so full of beauty, peace, and harmony. But if, on the other hand, sufficient care has not been taken by the lodges, for on them, as the ultimate court of appeal, must rest the responsibility of every initiation, to test the moral qualities as well as the social position of each candidate proposed for admission into their number, it is impossible but that some have gained admission who are unworthy of the honour, and who will do discredit to the Order. If there be twenty such, or ten such, or even five such, amongst the 350 candidates admitted into the Devonshire lodges, better would it have been for the province and for the Order that not a single candidate should have been initiated during the whole year. The strength of every noble edifice or stately structure is to be estimated, not by the altitude of its towers, by the number of its arches, or by the size of its buttresses, but by the strength of its weakest part. A deficient key-stone, a rotten stone in the foundation, or a loose screw, may, in a moment reduce to absolute ruin the proudest monument of the builder's art. And in the present day, when the spirit of the age is one of enquiry, when every pretension to superior consideration is immediately challenged, when all who claim skill or knowledge which are not possessed by others, must be prepared to show that their skill is real and their knowledge is true, Masonry more than any other human institution will, whether its members like it or not, be subject to the same spirit of enquiry; it will have to pass, as it were, through an ordeal of fire, to run the gauntlet of the severest criticism, and to encounter the sharpest ridicule. The fire will not scathe us, the criticism will not wound us, neither will the ridicule give us any concern, if we are, as a body, true to our principles, if in our daily lives we practice what we have learned in our lodges. But if the dissolute claim admission for the sake of conviviality, and have his claim allowed, if the bankrupt thinks Masonry will rebuild the fortune which neglect and improvidence have ruined, or if those whose private lives will not bear examination as to their morality, honesty, or religious sentiments, are permitted to parade themselves in our ranks, the world will judge the Order, not by the thousands of just and upright men who range under its banners, having the tongue of good repute heard ever in their favour, but by the tens, or the units, by whose admission our own carelessness has given the outer world the power to judge and to condemn us. I use the word carelessness advisedly, for I cannot believe that any man who had pondered for a single moment on the solemn obligations he had taken as a Master, or even as a simple member of a lodge, would deliberately recommend any to a participation of our secrets, or permit them to share our privileges, unless he had a well founded confidence that the candidate so proposed would reflect credit on our choice. But the fact remains and cannot be contradicted, that many unworthy and unfitting men have of late years been admitted into the Order. Now each of these men holds the honour and the good name of the Craft in his keeping as much as the most worthy and upright brethren do. An offence committed by an individual who is not a Mason affects but a limited circle, but when committed by a Mason it tarnishes the pure metal of our whole Order. It is not sufficient for us to point to the thousands of our brethren who lead blameless and useful lives, which show forth, as a shining light, the teaching of Masonry carried into daily practice. It is not sufficient for us to contend that bad members are to be found in every sect, even among professing Christians; the world is only too eager to seize every opportunity of condemning what it does not understand, and by that opinion and judgment we must, as all other human institutions must, stand or fall. When, therefore, we see, my brethren, that one hour of a bad man's life will weigh more against the body to which we are so proud to belong, than the whole of a good man's history, let us exercise the greatest care that none are admitted who can bring us, individually and collectively, into contempt. I speak to the whole of the brethren who are present, and more emphatically to you, W.M., officers, and brethren of Lodge Salem. I entreat you to be able to tell us in future years that you have made the internal and moral qualities of each candidate the subject of most searching enquiry and the test of admission, rather than his external position and advantages. Your duty, Worshipful Sir, is plain, to you is confided the honour of the whole body throughout the world; see that you perform your duty firmly; your duty, officers of the lodge, is equally plain; and so is yours, members of the lodge ; see that you each, in your turn, are prepared to justify your acceptance into your ranks of every candidate, tested as it ought to be by the principles of the Order. At all cost, my brethren, refuse admission to the unworthy and the unfitting. Let no ambition to enlarge your numbers, no eagerness to increase your funds, ever divert you from following the straight and undeviating line which should ever mark the footsteps of the true Mason. I trust I have dealt with this subject so as to give pain to none, I have specified no individual case, but there must be many here who know well that I have reason for what I have said. My own experience and the experience of my Masonic friends throughout the kingdom guide me to the clear conclusion that I ought to address you on the subject. I should be unworthy of the confidence placed in me by him by whose grace I fill the proud office I do, and of the confidence you have always extended to me in the discharge of my responsible duties, if cowardice or indifference led me to be silent in the presence of an evil which is sapping the pure fame of our Institution. If you would save that pure fame, let every Mason strike at the very root of the evil, let each satisfy himself of the good moral qualities of the candidates offered for their acceptance. Do not be satisfied with the negative fact that you know no evil of them, but assure yourselves that their minds and their dispositions are attuned to Masonry. Make each candidate understand that ours is no benefit society, from which he may expect to receive more than he brings, but on the contrary, let him be told that he will be expected to give rather than to receive, to do good to his fellow creatures rather than to be pensioners upon them. Let him, if possible, be taught more clearly still that while we enjoy each other's society round the festive board, temperance chastens our enjoyment, and that there is no room there for the drunkard and the dissolute. Tell every candidate that before he can become one of us he must, in the words of our antient charge, 'Let prudence direct him, temperance chasten him, and justice be the guide of all his actions.' And then, in the words of a distinguished brother—'The rigid observance of these rules for a series of years, and not many years will be required, will restore the goodly condition of former years, when the moral force of the Masonic obligation was alone sufficient to secure obedience to all requirements, and enable us to feel that it is a great honour and distinction in society to be hailed and recognised as Freemasons. With these views it has been my constant effort, in visiting lodges, to impress upon my brethren a higher standard of Masonic excellence, more exacting tests of fitness in candidates, a more rigid observance of our solemn personal obligations to each other in all our intercourse, and more readiness to punish every departure from those obligations. I have urged upon them everywhere, that the so-called lesser evils of society, of which the law of the land takes no cognizance—intemperance, profanity evil speaking, hypocrisy and deception—are all Masonic offences; and, as we would preserve the ancient lustre and hallowed charm which has so long encircled the Fraternity, we cannot be too zealous in their condemnation and punishment.' I fervently pray that with me you will strain every nerve to remove the spots which disfigure our glorious luminary, and then, brethren, to quote from another distinguished brother, a P.G. Chaplain of England—"If thus, brethren, we hold to the great principles of our Order, 'adding to our faith virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge temperance, to temperance brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity;' then we shall hand down something in our generation to bless and enrich our Craft, our country, and our kind. Systems may change; customs may vary; nay, empires may rise or fall, we shall still, keeping in view the ancient landmarks and 'the bright and morning star' go on our way rejoicing—rejoicing in the spread of truth, of virtue of charity—rejoicing in the diffusion of that peace and good will which shall really conduce to the brotherhood of nations—rejoicing in the mitigation of human suffering, in the alleviation of human sorrow, and in the elevation of human thought. Then, having passed through the apprenticeship of human discipline, having had fellowship in the work of restoration—having mastered the lower passions and affections of human nature, having, in fact, finished the work given us to do, we shall exchange these lodges or tents we now inhabit for eternal mansions not made with hands, which the Great Architect has prepared—and we shall enter on the possession of that promised land where the good and faithful workman shall rejoin the companions of his former toils, shall rest from his labours, and shall receive his 'great reward.' "

The delivery of the foregoing address was concluded amidst the heartiest applause.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A NEW TOWN HALL AT DUNOON.

On Saturday, the 30th ult., an imposing demonstration took place at Dunoon, on the occasion of the laying the foundation-stone of the New Burgh Buildings and Town Hall for that beautiful watering place. The weather during the entire day was delightfully fine, and from an early hour in the forenoon the prepossessing village was quite astir and wore more than a holiday aspect. The streets were crowded with people—fine and gaily-dressed ladies and gentlemen—the quiet inhabitant and summer resident alike entering into the spirit of the occasion; flags waving in every direction, music striking the ear wherever one went, the pageant of a public procession—all went to make up a scene of peculiar loveliness, a scene to be remembered.

Dunoon has long felt the want of a proper public hall, and unavailing efforts were frequently made to have that want supplied. Some months ago, however, the Police Commissioners were successful in carrying out measures for the erection of a suitable place, and that, commenced as it was in June last, is expected to be completed early in the forthcoming year. The edifice, which faces Argyll Street, is in the old Scottish style of architecture, and is fitted up with burgh offices and the concomitant platform and rooms of a convenient public meeting-place. The hall is on the second storey, will accommodate 500 people, and has its entrance from Hanover-street. The burgh offices are on the ground floor, and are to have their entrance from Argyll-street. The entire building will cost about £3500.

The ceremony of laying the foundation-stone, as has been stated, was performed on Saturday, the 30th ult., with full Masonic honours, by Bro. J. J. Grieve, M.P., for Greenock, and Right Worshipful Grand Deputy Master, Provincial Grand Lodge of West Renfrewshire Masons. Previous to the ceremony, however, a grand procession, composed chiefly of Masons, took place, the processionists, to the music of five instrumental bands, marching through the principal streets. This was a very imposing part of the proceedings, and attracted a great deal of attention. About half-past two the procession arrived at the new building, and the various companies of demonstrators—a body of the county constabulary, the magistrates and police commissioners, the Provincial Grand Lodge and other Masonic lodges, the Good Templars, &c.,—were soon in their proper places. The gathering of people here was very large, and every piece of vantage ground, including the spacious platform erected on the partly-completed building, was crowded with ladies and gentlemen, among whom we observed General Anderson, C.B., and party from Edinburgh. The ceremony was commenced by Bro. the Rev. Arch. Fullarton, Greenock, engaging in prayer. Provost Smith then presented Bro. Grieve with a handsome silver trowel, for which, as well as for the honour accorded him, the Right Worshipful Deputy Master thanked the promoters of the demonstration. The various formalities, including the placing of a bottle containing the coins of the realm, and a copy of each the Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Greenock newspapers in the cavity of the stone, having been completed and the stone declared properly laid.

Bro. Grieve addressed the gathering. He said that by the favour of Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, Grand Master of West Renfrewshire, he had been deputed to perform the ceremony which had been completed, and although not performed in the efficient way it would have been by the Right Worshipful G. Master, yet, it had been done with a sincere heart and a good will. It afforded him great pleasure to come and witness this flourishing place, which might now be ranked as a town. By the enterprise of the inhabitants and the worthy magistrates, they had raised a hall which would be worthy the place, and he could not more suitably impress upon them, than in the fine language of their (the officiating) clergyman, the duties that devolved upon them in the maintenance of the hall. He trusted the enterprise of Dunoon would be an example to many other places, for it was of the utmost importance to have a proper place for the great bulk of the people to assemble and deliberate, and express themselves on all matters affecting the community and the nation at large. He had therefore to congratulate them that that edifice had been erected under the Provostship of his respected friend Mr. Smith. He trusted it would be the precursor of many blessings to the burgh.

Provost Smith said he had to thank Mr. Grieve for his kindness in coming to Dunoon and so efficiently laying the foundation stone of that building. The operations connected with it had hitherto been carried on without accident, and he trusted the auspicious commencement might be followed up to an equalley prosperous and happy termination. The want of a public hall had long been felt in Dunoon, but up to the present any effort in the direction of having the want supplied always fell through. Last year the Commissioners adopted steps to bring into requisition the clauses of the Police and Public Improvement Acts, whereby an assessment was leviable for public buildings, and through this and the good offices of the late Bro. John M'Arthur Moir, who generously granted a free site on which to erect the hall, the long-desired object was attained, and the hall, as they saw, was now far advanced towards completion. He could not but embrace the opportunity of bearing testimony of the enlightened interest that Bro. Moir manifested in that place during all their negotiations and intercourse with him in reference to the affairs of the town, during the very short time he enjoyed the estate. The Commissioners, as well as the general community, had great reason to mourn his early death.

In the course of the afternoon a public dinner took place in the Free Church Academy, when a large number of gentleman sat down. Provost Smith occupied the chair, and the croupiers were Bailies Melville and Lyall and Captain R. W. Young.

Dinner over, the Chairman proposed the usual loyal toasts.

Dr. Thomson gave "Both Houses of Parliament," coupling the toast with the name of Bro. Grieve, M.P., who replied.

The toasts which followed included:—"Success to the New Town Hall," "The Police Commissioners of Dunoon," "The Provincial Grand Master," "The Provincial Grand Secretary," "The Architects," "The Contractors," "The Masonic Deputations," "The Strangers," "The Joint Committees," "The Press," "The Croupiers," "The Ladies," "The Chairman."

The architect for the hall is Mr. R. A. Bryden, of Clarke & Bell, Glasgow; contractor for mason work, Andrew Dixon; joiner work, Thos. Young; plumber work, James Kelly; slater work, Moses Neilson; plaster work, Robert Stirling—all of Dunoon; and the whole is under the superintendence of Mr. James Tannock, Clerk of Works.

About 280 Masons were present at the demonstration, and the lodges represented, so far as reported, were.—3½, St. John, Glasgow; 12, Greenock Kilwinning; 68, Doric Kilwinning, Port-Glasgow; 103, Union and Crown, Glasgow; 116, Royal Arch, Ruthlerglen; 129, St. Mirren, Paisley; 179, St. John, Greenock; 219, Star, Glasgow; 275, Shamrock and Thistle, Glasgow; 292, St. John, Rothesay; 335, Dunoon, Argyle; 413, Athole, Glasgow; 419, Neptune, Glasgow; 437, Govandale, Glasgow; 496, St. Mark, Ardnadam; 412, Thorntree, Thorliebank; and Provincial Grand Lodge West Renfrewshire, which consisted of J. J. Grieve, M.P., P. Prov. G. Master, who had been deputed to act by Sir Michael Shaw Stewart; D. Anderson, Prov. G. Depute-Master; H. J. Anderson, Prov. G. Substitute-Master; J. G. Shanks, Prov. G. Senior Warden; J. Wilson, Prov. G. Junior Warden; A. Boag, Prov. G. Secretary; J. R. Allison, Prov. G. Treasurer; J. D. Macdonald, Prov. G. Clerk; Rev. A. Fullarton, Prov. G. Chaplain; and Bros. D. Leslie, R. Parker, J. M'Gregor, Capt. Young, H. Blair, T. Greir, J. P. Fyfe, J. Russell, R. D. Oliphant, R. Allan, G. Hamilton, J. F. Muir, and N. Tasker.

SPIRITUALISTS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the few remarks I offered on this subject, in The Freemason of August, 16th, I did not base my belief in spiritualism, or correctly speaking, my firm conviction of its truth—meaning by "Spiritualism," the occasional and frequent manifestation of the presence amongst us of disembodied spirits, who make their presence known in various ways; sometimes by moving or otherwise acting upon material objects, sometimes by audible voices, sometimes by making one part of themselves visible, and almost always by giving intelligent answers, sometimes correct and sometimes otherwise, to questions asked, or communicating facts, sometimes already known, and sometimes unknown to the person communicated with—I did not, I say, place my belief in these phenomena upon the "performances," as they are sometimes called, of the Davenport Brothers, or other public "mediums," but upon what has spontaneously occurred in my own residence, no one being present but my wife and myself. I feel bound, nevertheless, to say a word on the statement made by Mr. Maskelyne, in The Freemason, of the 30th ult., as to my having been "in error," when I stated that the "£1000 challenge dodge" of a spiritualist "had not been accepted," he having, as he alleges, accepted both this and another, of £250, offered by the same person. I certainly was under the impression that neither of these offers—not wagers—had been accepted, but were still open, and the enquiries I have subsequently made confirm that impression. I have carefully read the correspondence that took place between the gentleman who offers the money and Mr. Maskelyne himself; and I think it shows, beyond all doubt, that Mr. Maskelyne has never accepted the challenge. He advertised that he could and would do all that has been done by the Davenport Brothers, that he could and would do any thing that Mr. Home, or other mediums can do, and thus show that Spiritualism is "all humbug," and that the success of mediums depends upon "the gullibility of their audience." If you will do that "under the same conditions," replies the challenger, "I will forfeit £1000. He says, "You profess to expose the Davenports. To do so you must do what they have done, hundreds, if not thousands, of times, as a matter of common notoriety, established by the united testimony of innumerable non-spiritual press reporters, in various parts of the world, and which there will be no difficulty in finding any number of witnesses 'of integrity' to testify to. Nothing short of this was implied in my challenge from the very first. If you have ever followed up the career of the Devonports at all, as I am sure you have, you must know that your account falls ludicrously short of what they are asserted, by overwhelming testimony, to have done in public (and often in private) séances, under much more severe tests than they were ever subjected to in public."

The "conditions" are the matter of contention, and certainly Mr. Maskelyne has never agreed to these, and hence the thing remains as it was.

I do not desire to interfere between these two gentlemen, but merely to state my own judgment upon the question. I may, however, be permitted to remark, that it is to be regretted that Mr. Maskelyne should have made any attack upon those who, like myself, have good evidence for their belief in the spiritual phenomena, by representing them as knaves or fools, alleging that the knaves humbug the fools; and alleging, also, that he is a perfect master of "the trickery" by which what they deem spiritual manifestations are produced. I am not aware of any Spiritualist having attempted to deprecate the wonderful cleverness of Mr. Maskelyne's performances, which will, I hope, continue to draw large and gratified audiences, notwithstanding the hard words and vituperation which he hurls at the "gullible" spiritualists.

WILLIAM CARPENTER.

LANGUAGE OF FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Having read the article under the above heading, permit me to make a few observations upon the principles sought to be inculcated. I fully appreciate the genuine tenets of Freemasonry and am satisfied that the Craft has no desire to alter our ritual in any way tending to a deviation from the established landmarks of the Order.

There are many very enthusiastic and highly intelligent brethren, whom others have been good enough to designate "innovators," from having rendered our ceremonies and lectures in grammatical phraseology, adding such beauties of rhetoric (maintaining their original essence) as to captivate the hearers and induce many to pursue their researches with greater self-denial and love, and thus secure an indissoluble adherence to our noble Institution and its valuable precepts.

Freemasonry should be ("not is") one of the agencies to preserve the purity of the English tongue, but such a consummation, although, "devoutly to be wished," cannot be under our present regime. Many honorable members aspire to, and obtain the position of Master, and I can testify in many instances, that their want of education has brought strong censure upon us. Allow me to state one fact in proof of my assertion. A short time since a gentleman was introduced to lodge and regularly initiated—subsequently he was heard to remark, "that a copy of the English grammar should be presented to the W.M., for the ceremony which he had just witnessed deserved a better exponent." It must be stated that the Master referred to was well skilled in the noble science, but had obtained his knowledge from those indefatigable preceptors who exult in promulgating undeviatingly the time-honoured, but rather faulty exposition of the ritual, transmitted by our respected forefathers, and who fail to acknowledge that we are progressive beings, endowed with reason by an Almighty Architect, which noble gift they also fail to apply and appreciate."

I beg to assert that men of "correct tastes," while profoundly conscious of the sublime simplicity of our ritual, are nevertheless anxious to promote a correct rendering of Masonic language, which, should bear the impress of enlightenment and education.

The simile of the artist who endeavoured to improve a lily of nature with daubs of paint, is a poor attempt at comparison, for it bears no analogy to the Craft; the principles of Freemasonry, which every right-minded brother will revere, are eternal and unalterable, but being transmitted orally, the original wording cannot be supposed to exist in its purity, hence many errors have naturally crept in, therefore, it is absurd to complain of those who have endeavoured to rectify such anomalies as appear to them contrary to an enlightened mode of thought and the requirements of the present universal spread of education.

Do not let us continue the "forms of our fathers," whilst human genius buds, and whose leaves are producing from day to day the fairest and choicest fruits and exalting mankind.

There is to my mind one course open, which would settle a difficulty we experience in uniformity of working. It is this:—That a duly and legally constituted committee be appointed by Grand Lodge, to consist of the most noteworthy and educated of the Order, who shall be empowered to frame a ritual for the government of our entire body; that no brother be permitted to take the chair of Master, Principal of a Chapter, or the appointment of Preceptor, until he has undergone an examination, and fully proved to the satisfaction of the committee that his education and knowledge warrant him a creditable and worthy exponent; and any deviation from the established ritual should be followed with suspension, until the committee have investigated the matter, and their decision obtained. Such a course would materially add to the dignity and stability of our Order, and save the necessity of the remarks I have felt it my duty to address you under this heading.

In conclusion I may add, that I have yet to learn that moral truths would be less forcible if enunciated in grammatical sentences.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Faithfully and Fraternaly yours,

JOHN CONSTABLE, S.W. 185.

BRO. HOLMES AND THE UNITED ORDERS OF THE TEMPLE AND HOSPITAL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have perused in your issue of the 30th ult., an article by Bro. Holmes, on the article published in the Spectator, some six months since, criticising the installation proceedings of Convent-General on the 7th of last April.

If Bro. Holmes has occupied the somewhat long interval in composing the article in question your readers may have fairly expected him to season it with a little more pepper, and, indeed, some may even think he should have done battle in the Spectator's own columns.

I should, however, not have troubled you with this communication, save that Bro. Holmes takes the opportunity again to make voluntary and disparaging observations respecting the institution of the true Order of St. John in this country. Your readers will probably consider that after the manner in which the arguments and mendacious statements of Bro. Holmes, and his distinguished and trenchant friends, were sometime since knocked on the head and respectably buried, that worthy brother would have been content to exercise himself in the business of the new united, and let his neighbours alone; but no, the brother is gifted with such wise discretion, and eagerly seizes upon the observation contained in the Spectator to make another gratuitous and unworthy attempt to disparage the genuine Order in England, at the same time omitting (conveniently as before) to tell your readers that the Secretary of the English Langue at once addressed letters to the Spectator correcting the observation made in its columns. Why did not Bro. Holmes favour the Spectator with one of his thunderbolts when it criticised the doings of the new united, instead of cudgelling his brains for six months and then infusing the result with statements, unnecessary and untrue, respecting an Order with which he has nothing to do?

The Protestant Langue of England of the Order of St. John is a legitimate branch of the grand old Fraternity of the Baptist; a fact which all the wailings of Bro. Holmes, and all the eager anxieties of his friends, will not alter. It is not in alliance with the so-called, "Sacred Council" at Rome, on the sole ground of religious difference. That council, which had no existence until after 1805, is representative of only certain sections of the Order, and it is to be regretted that all are not allied for the beneficent purposes which called the Order into existence.

Bro. Holmes is in no manner warranted in his statement that the Roman Council "repudiates the claim of the so-called Anglican Langue;" seeing that in May, 1870, the Secretary of that Council gave no other reason for declining an alliance, then offered, than the difference in religious faith. Such an alliance is not necessary to the validity of the English Order, or of any other lawful branch. In a document published by Bro. Holmes some time since, it was officially stated on behalf of the Roman Council, that the Order in Prussia was "perfectly legal;" yet the secretary of the same council said in 1870, "We have no connexion with these knights;" it is thus clear that an alliance is no essential to legitimacy. Much the same position was assumed at the time this was said, the secretary of the same council qualifying his negotiations with the English secretary by saying "in our relative positions, that is in those of our Orders."

The Masonic Templars of Canada do not seem to agree with Bro. Holmes, for I find the following passage, in an official circular published on the 25th of April, last.

"The Order of the Temple originally had no connection with that of Malta, or the Order of St. John; but the combined title appears to have been adopted in commemoration of the union which took place in Scotland, with the Temple and the Hospital of St. John, when their lands were in common at the time of the Reformation, but our Order of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta, has no connection with the present Knights of Malta in the Papal States, or the Protestant branches of the Order, the lineal successors of the ancient Knights of St. John, the sixth or English Langue of which is still in existence, and presided over in London, by His Grace the Duke of Manchester. The Order when it occupied the Island of Malta as a sovereign body was totally unconnected with Freemasonry." This circular is signed by that very eminent and accomplished brother Colonel McLeod Moore, who introduced the Masonic Templars into Malta, whence Bro. Holmes would have us believe came the very ancient and absurd ritual, which I believe was never yet used in the Island, and was manufactured in the manner made known to your readers some time since.

I am happy to be aware of the fact that one of the English Chevaliers has become the owner of the fine old gateway at Clerkenwell. The English Langue is true and legitimate without possession of the gate of St. John, but it is gratifying and appropriate that its offices of business should find place in part of this very interesting old building, to which I hope they will shortly be removed from St. Martin's Place.

LUPUS.

FINE ART GIFT TO LIVERPOOL.—Messrs. Agnew and Sons of Manchester and Liverpool, have written to his Worshipful the Mayor (Bro. Samuelson) offering to present to the town of Liverpool a set of the Turner proof engravings, recently purchased by them from the representatives of the Turner estate. The gift has been accepted, and will form a very valuable addition to the art treasures of the "good old town."

The Glasgow Herald says:—A rumour is circulated, and is generally credited, that negotiations are in progress with a view to purchase the Inverloch estate for his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh.

FREEMASONRY IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

The brethren of the Fremantle Lodge (No. 1033), celebrated their anniversary, on St. John the Baptist's Day, 24th June, 1873, by attending Divine Service, at St. John's Church, in the afternoon, and a banquet at Maloney's Hotel, in the evening.

The brethren assembled at the lodge in William Street, at 3 p.m., when, after the business of the lodge had been disposed of, and due preparation made, they proceeded, accompanied by the W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Perth (No. 485), his Wardens, and other visitors, to St. John's Church, in Masonic form and clothing. As this was the first time the brethren had attended Divine Service in Masonic form; and as a few regarded the ceremony somewhat in the light of an innovation, some only reluctantly "consented to appear;" but none came away without feelings of satisfaction and pleasure at their attendance. The minister, the Rev. G. J. Bostock, preached an excellent and very appropriate sermon from Mal. c. 1. v. 2.—"But unto you that fear My name shall the sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings, &c.," which proved a very agreeable surprise and delight to the brethren. The service ended, the brethren returned in order to their lodge-room, and adjourned.

At 6.30, there was a good muster of the members and visitors at the lodge room for the purpose of installing the W.M. Elect, Bro. G. B. Humble, as W.M. for the ensuing year. There were present the W.M., Bro. G. B. Humble, Bro. G. Pearce, S.W.; Bro. E. F. Duffield, J.W.; Bro. J. De M. Absolon, Treas.; Bro. J. McCleery, Act. Sec.; Bro. Jose, Act. S.D.; Bro. L. Henderson, J.D.; Bro. G. A. Forsyth, I.G.; Bro. H. Jarvis, Tyler; and about 25 members. The visitors present from Perth were, Bro. R. Pether, W.M. 485; Bro. Tymperly, S.W. 485; Bro. E. C. Dears, J.W. 485; Bros. Snook, P.M.; B. Mason, J. King, P.M., and others, whom the brethren of the lodge were very pleased to welcome amongst them on this occasion. The brethren had hoped to have had with them the Hon. the Col. Secretary, Bro. Barlee, P.M.; and Bro. Lochee, P.M., who were both unable to attend, and letters of apology from them were read to the lodge. After the various ceremonies and business of the lodge had been disposed of, Bro. Geo. Bland Humble, P.M., was duly installed W.M. for the ensuing year, according to the ancient rites and established customs of the Order; Bro. Jno. F. Stone, P.M., fulfilling the duties of Installing Master in his usual happy and very efficient manner.

The W.M. having been conducted to the chair of K.S. thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him in re-electing him to fill the office of W.M. another year. He could not regard their vote otherwise than a mark of their approval of his conduct and services during the past year. When he first took upon himself the duties of the office, he did so with a full sense of the arduous duties and responsibilities connected with it; but he felt very pleased indeed, that with the assistance of the junior officers, he had been enabled to perform the work of the year in a manner that had proved so satisfactory to the brethren. He assured them that it would be his earnest effort to continue to work, if possible with more zeal and assiduity in the future; feeling stimulated thereto by their expressions of kindness and forbearance, and he hoped he would be as well supported by those whom he should select as his officers for the present year, as he had been during the past year. The W.M. was then pleased to appoint and invest the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year, giving to each the ancient charges, viz., Bro. E. T. Duffield, S.W.; L. Henderson, J.W.; I. DeM. Absolon, Treas. (re-elected); J. McCleery, Sec.; Bro. Wardle, S.D., re-appointed; W. Johnston, J.D.; G. A. Forsyth, I.G. (re-invested); and Harrington, Tyler, (unanimously elected).

At the close of the ceremonial of installation, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, and repaired to Bro. Maloney's Hotel, where the host had provided a most sumptuous repast. The W.M., Bro. G. B. Humble, occupied the chair, and was supported by P.M.'s Pether and Snook, and Bros. Tymperly, Dean, Francisco, Absolon, and G. Pearce. The vice-chairs were filled by the S.W., Bro. E. F. Duffield, and the J.W., Bro. H. Henderson. Grace having been said by the W.M., ample justice was done to the good things provided, all being highly gratified with the excellent dinner mine host of the "Emerald Isle" had provided.

After dinner the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drank, the W.M. giving "The Queen," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the other Members of the Royal Family," "His Excellency Governor Wild," and "The M.W.G.M. Mason of England, the Marquess of Ripon," all of which were duly honoured; the brethren singing "God Save the Queen," and the now very popular air "God bless the Prince of Wales."

Bro. Croke, P.M. in a very flattering and highly eulogistic speech, gave the toast of the evening "The Health of our Worshipful Master." He referred to the faithful manner in which Bro. Humble had discharged his duties in the past year, and his willingness to render what service he could to meet the brethren for the good of the lodge. For some months in the year he had not only performed the duties of his office as W.M., but had also done the duties of Secretary in addition. He also gave some practical hints to the junior members of the lodge, and concluded by again asking the brethren to join him most heartily in the toast he had given. The toast was drank with lodge honours.

The W.M. in reply, said, that he thanked Bro. Croke for so cordially proposing his health, and the brethren for the manner in which they had received the toast. He was afraid that Bro. Croke had over-rated his merits; but what he had done, he did willingly, and with this one great object, the good and benefit of the lodge. It was true, that owing to the absence of the Secretary, Bro. S. J. Solomon, he had been obliged to do the duties of that office, but that he scarcely expected to hear it alluded to so prominently, on this occasion. He attributed, as he had said before, his success in lodge, in a great measure, to the efficiency of his officers, and he felt proud to say that on several occasions, when visitors from the other colonies had attended the lodge, they had been highly complimented on their mode of working. The lodge too, he was pleased to say, was in a flourishing condition, and he hoped that during the year on which they had just entered, he would be enabled, by the assistance of his officers, to keep up the credit of the lodge. He knew that they did not expect from him perfection, but he trusted to their kind forbearance, and he hoped with the blessing of the G.A.O.T.U., to perform the duties to the satisfaction of his own conscience, and next to that, the satisfaction and approbation of the brethren.

Bro. J. Manning next gave the "Past Officers of the Lodge," which was duly responded to by Bro. Geo. Pearce. Bro. Croke then proposed "The Officers for the ensuing Year," which was acknowledged, in a neat speech, by the Senior Warden, Bro. E. F. Duffield.

Bro. Francisco then asked the brethren to drink the health of "The W.M., Officers, and brethren of the Perth Lodge, No. 485," acknowledging the debt of gratitude the Fremantle Lodge owed to the Perth Lodge, for services rendered in years gone by. Bro. Pether, P.M., replied on behalf of the Perth Lodge, and after expressing his pleasure at being present on this occasion, proposed "Prosperity to the Fremantle Lodge." Bro. Champneys gave the health of "The Visitors," which was acknowledged by Bro. Snook. The W.M. then proposed the healths of the two oldest members of the lodge, Bros. P.M.'s King and Jose, referring at the same time to the efforts they made at the formation of the Fremantle Lodge, and also made reference to some of the brethren who had passed away, during the few years the lodge had been in existence. The toast was very warmly received, and Bro. King gave quite a history of the Fremantle Lodge, which was exceedingly interesting to the brethren. Bro. Jose also responded, referring to the progress the lodge had made, and to the unspeakable pleasure it had given him, to see the brethren attend Divine Service, in Masonic form, as they had done that day. He hoped that the brethren, would still persevere, and that soon a Provincial Lodge may be formed, or a chapter to work the Arch degree. Bro. Absolon then proposed "The Stewards" which was acknowledged by Bro. L. Henderson. Bro. Broomhall then, in a very facetious and humorous speech, proposed "The Ladies," and Bro. McCleery modestly responded on their behalf.

A very agreeable and social evening was then brought to a close by Bro. Henderson, J.W., proposing the health of "The Host," to whom the brethren accorded three hearty good cheers, and retired, all highly gratified with their evening's enjoyment.

MASONIC MUSICAL SERVICE.—Dr. J. C. Baker, of the Merchants' Lodge No. 24, Liverpool, has recently altered his "Masonic Musical Service" to a different key from that in which it originally appeared, and Bro. G. Kenning, of London and Liverpool, has published it in a form which is at once handy and complete. The whole service, intended for the various ceremonies connected with both Craft and chapter, is of the highest musical order, and as the alteration in the key has greatly simplified it to the uninitiated, the service is sure to become more popular than ever.

There are in connection with the College
THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS, open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopershill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.
 The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the
PREPARATORY SCHOOL
 (entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitors, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"This is a new monthly, which we confidently expect will be hailed with delight by the numerous "Brethren of the Mystic Tie," as a seasonable addition to Masonic literature. A casual glance at the list of contributors will show the names of many who have, long before now, made their mark in the literary world on Masonic and non-masonic subjects, and enables us to augur for the new venture a long and successful career. The first paper, by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, sets before the reader in a clear and succinct manner the wonderful antiquity of the Craft, and the vast progress it had made in modern days. As an illustration of the author's style our readers will, perhaps, allow us to quote the following passage on the "Universality of the Craft:—"For strange though it be in itself as a fact, Freemasonry has been found alike in the most civilised and the most uncivilised portions of the world, amid the Arabs of the East, and the Esquimaux of the North, among the aborigines of Australia and North America, as well amid the more polished communities of Europe and Asia. It is not an exaggeration to add that Freemasonry exists in all the four quarters of the globe. Its marks and symbols are traced on the cave of Elephanta and the Temples of Mexico, on the mighty cathedrals and ecclesiastical buildings of all Europe, as well as on the Roman wall, on the Egyptian pyramid, on the remains of Grecian shrines, and the debris of Syrian buildings, on the internal decorations still visible through the whitewash of St. Sophia, and on the underground passages, and skillfully constructed crypts of that sacred building at Jerusalem, so well known to all Freemasons, and still dear to the memory and the heart of some traveller and pilgrim from a far shore, as it was to those who once worshipped in a happier time within its ever holy walls." Space does not allow us to notice the other papers—in prose and verse—although equally interesting; and we can only recommend our readers to take a dip into the magazine for themselves, and we are well assured they will not regret doing so, but we may be excused for hinting that the enterprising and intelligent publisher would make his work still more perfect by paying more attention to the operations of Freemasonry in Scotland and Ireland, not confining the magazine articles to a chronicle of the Craft in England.—Coleraine Chronicle, Aug. 30th.

We are in receipt of the first number of "The Masonic Magazine: A Monthly Digest of Freemasonry in all its Branches," published by Bro. Kenning, of London. In looking at this new Masonic favour, we are struck with the goodly promise that it gives us of the future. Among the list of its contributors we find the names of Hughan, Findel, Lyon, Paton, Woodford, and many others, who have already done good service in the field of Masonic literature; and doubtless will do still more in the pages of the "Masonic Magazine." The present contains many important and instructive articles, one of which, on "Systematic Masonic Benevolence," by Bro. Hughan, we shall transfer to our next number, because its account of the Louisiana Relief Lodge is especially interesting to American readers. We hope that the "Masonic Magazine" will meet with a large patronage on this side of the water. The terms for American subscribers are nine shillings per annum, payable in advance. "George Kenning, 198 Fleet Street, London."—Mackay's National Freemason, Aug. 1873.

We have received the first number (July) of a most important monthly, published by Bro. George Kenning, of London, of which the title in full reads as follows:—"The Masonic Magazine; a monthly Digest of Freemasonry in all its Branches. Under the patronage of the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., M.W. Grand Master, England; the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, the M.W. Grand Master Mason; the Earl of Dalhousie, K.T.; the M.W. Past Grand Master Mason, Scotland; Col. Francis Burdett, Representative for Grand Lodge of Ireland; and the Grand Masters of many Foreign Grand Lodges." The list of contributors is very ample, including well known writers and prominent Masons, not only in various parts of Great Britain, but also Paris and Leipzig. The two leading articles in the present number are "The Present Position of English Freemasonry," by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain, and "The New United Orders" (of Knights Templar), by Joseph H. Woodworth. The crowded state of our columns compels us to omit further reference to this magazine, and to these articles, so interesting to American Masons and Templars. In our next we shall hope to give at least an abstract."—Freemasons' Repository, Aug. 15th.

The first number of this magazine, issued by Bro. George Kenning, at the offices of The Freemason, has reached us, and bears evidence of careful editorial supervision. We have attentively perused the contents, and have no hesitation in saying that it has a legitimate claim upon the consideration of the Craft at home and abroad. The articles are well written, and cannot fail to interest those for whose special delectation it is designed. In future numbers the introduction of a few short notes upon current events in the Masonic world would be to the reader an acceptable feature."—Sunday Times, July 20th.

"The magazine has begun well, and the immense popularity of the Order is perhaps one of the best guarantees of its success."—North Norfolk and Yarmouth Constitutionalist, July 19th.

"There are several contributions of a nature tending to interest Freemasons, and by this body the publication will, doubtless, be well patronized."—North Wilts Herald, July 19th.

"We need not, however, run through the whole of the articles, which make up the number, but would merely add that the affair is well got up, and deserving of success."—Norwich Argus, July, 1873.

"Societies and customs, such as those connected with Freemasonry, have a curious and highly interesting history, and the present magazine bids fair to provide valuable sketches of their past and present condition."—Nottingham Daily Guardian, July 18th.

"All the articles are well written and interesting."—Orkney Herald, July 9th.

"The first number is full of promise and full of interest. Such a magazine will supply a great want in the Masonic world."—Poole and South Western Herald, July 17th.

"The "Masonic Magazine" undoubtedly possesses many attractions which Masonic readers will not fail to appreciate."—Somerset County Herald, July 19th.

"We have great pleasure in commending it to the notice of the Masonic brethren as being a first-class magazine."—Ryde News, July 19th.

"It deserves commendation, and is likely to receive a cordial reception."—South Wales Weekly Telegram, July 11th.

"The entire contents will be of great interest to the Masonic reader."—Staffordshire Daily Sentinel, July 15th.

"It will no doubt, be welcomed by all members of the Craft."—Stroud News, Aug. 8th.

"It deserves to become exceedingly popular."—Clifton Chronicle, July 16th.

"It will be hailed with delight by all who feel interested in the wide-spread progress of the grand principles of the Order, or require information on its beneficent and mysterious unfoldings and developments. It affords interesting subjects for consideration to the general reader."—Draper, July 18th.

"We confidently recommend this periodical to the notice of our Masonic readers. It is truly marvellous how such a beautifully printed work can be produced at the price, and to ensure a profitable return to the proprietor, it will require, and we do not doubt it will achieve, an extensive circulation."—Dunfermline Journal, July 26th.

"It is very ably edited, and amongst its contributors are many of the most eminent English and foreign writers on Freemasonry."—Eversham Journal, July 19th.

"A careful inspection of its contents justifies the expectation that it will be well supported. It is cheap, neatly got up, and smartly written, while all subjects of interest to Masons, seem to receive full attention."—Galloway Gazette, July 12th.

"We are satisfied, that it is edited by a gentleman that displays great literary ability, combined with a most thorough and masterly treatment of his subject. We repeat, we have derived great pleasure and information from the perusal of this clever magazine, and have therefore every confidence in recommending it to our readers."—Gateshead Observer, July 26th.

"The first number is a most creditable specimen, and if succeeding issues are as good, the 'Magazine' will have a satisfactory circulation."—Grantham Journal, July 19th.

"The new monthly opens well with an interesting paper on the present position of English Freemasonry, &c."—Gravesend Journal, July 19.

"It is launched into the world with a long list of worthy contributors. The 'leading' article, so we may call it, 'The Present Position of English Freemasonry,' is extremely instructive."—Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, July 12th.

"Members of the Craft will doubtless find it full of interesting matter."—Hampshire Advertiser, July 12th.

"It will be sure to be widely circulated amongst the brethren."—Deal, Walmer, and Sandwich Mercury, Aug. 9th.

"The contents go to make up such a cheap and interesting sixpennyworth, as ought to secure a place for this magazine."—Hampshire Independent, August 13th.

"It is well got up and most ably written, giving statistics and general information, which will be valued by the society in particular, and found interesting by the public in general."—Tunbridge Wells Gazette, July 18th.

"This new monthly bids fair to become a successful candidate for public favour, not only amongst the brethren of the "Mystic Tie" but the general public."—Walsal Free Press, July 26th.

"The rapid growth and increasing interest in Masonic matters seems amply to justify an increase in its literature, and this new magazine seems well calculated to supply the want."—Wilts and Gloucestershire Standard, July 26th.

"The title of this useful monthly fully indicates the work to which it is devoted. It is in every sense a thorough and useful digest of matters pertaining to the good old Craft of Freemasons, in all its branches. We commend the new venture to every member of the Craft."—Worcestershire Advertiser, July 19th.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Lodge (No. 259).—In accordance with resolution passed at last general meeting, the brethren of this, one of the oldest and most prosperous lodges in the province, met on Thursday, 11th inst., at the Temple, for the purpose of forming a Lodge of Instruction. After some time had been occupied in passing bye laws, and transacting other business of importance, the brethren proceeded to the election of Preceptor, when Bro. Dr. J. Kellets Smith, was unanimously elected, many of the brethren expressing the very great pleasure they felt in having secured the services of so able and distinguished a brother to fill the important office. Bro. Smith, in returning thanks for the confidence reposed in him, pointed out some of the important advantages to be derived from Lodges of Instruction, and expressed his determination, as far as it lay in his power, to make this one of the most successful lodges in town. The brethren then unanimously chose Bro. Crosby Leighton, Treasurer, and Bro. William Hamilton, Secretary, for the ensuing year. The regular meetings of the lodge were fixed for the second and last Thursdays in each month, at 8 p.m. Bro. Hayes, J.W., in the absence of Bro. Lloyd, S.W. was chosen W.M. for the first regular meeting, which was announced to be held on Thursday evening, September 25th, at 8 o'clock.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Loyal Lodge of Industry (No. 421).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, South Molton, on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., Bro. W. Cole, P. Prov. G.P. and I.P.M., acting as W.M., in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Thomas Sanders; Bros. James Stevens, as S.W.; J. A. Kingdon, J.W. and Treas.; J. Wood, P. Prov. G.D.C., P.M., S.D. and Sec.; T. Chapple J.D.; F. Day I.G.; R. Kingdon Tyler; and Bro. J. T. Shapland, P.M.; W. Oram, P. Prov. G.D.C. and P.M.; Widgey, P.M.; Manning, P.M.; Hitchcock, J. Kingdon, J. Paige, R. Paige, R. Cowdery, J. Bickell, &c. The lodge having been duly opened, the W.M. delivered the lecture on the first tracing board, and subsequently Bro. Bickell, having proved his proficiency, was passed to the degree of F.C., Bro. Stevens delivering the second section of the degree and the lecture on the second tracing board. The lodge was then closed down, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. On the previous evening a Lodge of Instruction had been held, which was well attended; and on the previous Saturday the members of the lodge had been called together to welcome as a visitor to the town, and an honorary member of the lodge, Bro. James Stevens, P.M. 1216, and W.M. of the Great City Lodge, London; on which occasion a banquet was provided by Bro. Coles, P.M., and landlord of the Unicorn Hotel. A very agreeable evening was spent in the entertainment of the guest in whose honour the dinner was given, and an interchange of information as to Masonic working in the provinces and in London was made, of great profit to the numerous brethren who were present, amongst whom were Bros. Major Tanner Davey, Dr. Furze, Dr. Sanders, S. Cocks, J. Huxtable, T. Huxtable, and several others, in addition to those who were present in the lodge on the subsequent Tuesday.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—This lodge held its regular meeting at the Balham Hotel, Balham, on Monday, the 15th inst., Bro. Thomas Poore, W.M., presiding. The officers and members present were:—Bros. Henry Payne, S.W.; C. Pulman, J.W.; W. Withall, S.D.; D. Trusler, J.D.; T. Sane, I.G.; Henry F. Huntley, P.M. and Sec.; James Stevens, P.M.; B. Richardson, J. Broadbridge, Dr. W. Weir, E. C. Cuming, George Silley, W. Smith, and others. Among the visitors were:—Bros. Dr. Joseph Moore, of King Solomon Lodge, No. 22, Canada; Hoppner Meyer, of St. Andrew's Lodge, Toronto, Canada West; Frank McAlpin, P.M. of No. 229, Calcutta. The lodge having been opened in due form and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Richardson proved his proficiency as E.A., and was passed to the second degree. Bro. Stevens then delivered the lecture on the tracing board, including therewith the beautiful second section of the F.C. degree. The working of the ceremony and the subsequent lecture gave great satisfaction to the foreign brethren present, and they were very earnest in their expressions of gratification. On the lodge being closed down to the first degree, the W.M. requested the brethren to rise, and then in feeling terms announced to them the great loss which had been sustained by the lodge, in consequence of the death of the late respected P.M. and Treasurer, Bro. John Thomas. After narrating certain details connected with Bro. Thomas's long illness, and directing that the lodge be placed in mourning for a period of six months, the W.M. called upon Bro. Stevens, as the oldest Past Master, to address the brethren on the melancholy subject, and this was done with all the force and eloquence which a long and close acquaintance with the deceased friend and Brother would naturally inspire. The large portrait of Bro. Thomas suspended in the lodge room, and now deeply craped, was often looked upon by tearful eyes, and the close of Bro. Stevens's address was succeeded by a solemn pause before the business of the meeting was resumed. On the lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to supper, and after a short interval, during which the usual toasts were honoured, but without the usual hilarious accompaniments, the brethren separated at an early hour, proposing to meet again at the grave of the deceased brother, to pay to his remains the sad tribute of respect and reverence.

HIGH CROSS LODGE, (No. 754).—The brethren of this highly prosperous and flourishing lodge, met in strong force at the Seven Sisters Hotel, Page Green, Tottenham, on Wednesday, Sept. 10th, at one o'clock. Bro. Jas. Linzell, W.M., was surrounded by the following members, viz., Bros. David Roberts, Treas.; D. S. Potts, P.M.; Thos. Jones, P.M.; Jas. Wells, P.M.; Wm. Steedman, P.M.; Geo. Townsend, P.M.; T. E. Cunningham, S.W.; J. Maller, J.W.; W. F. Copland, Sec.; J. Green, C. Hughes, E. L. Cross, W. Peckham, G. Townsend, H. Stephens, G. C. Hindley, H. Sturt, H. Waud, C. H. Witt, E. Sayer, W. H. Wharton, J. H. Buck. Among the visitors we noticed:—Bros. Dr. J. M. Cunningham, P.M., Prov. G.S.W., Sussex; Jos. Driscoll, P.M.; J. C. Bull, P.M.; Chas. Tye, P.M., P. Prov. G.P.; R. T. Andrews, P.M.; R. Mathison, T. Fisher, John Hill, W. R. Crowe, C. L. Brown. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, Bro. G. C. Hindley was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. the impressive ceremony being ably rendered by the W.M. Mr. J. Hobbs and Mr. J. Edwards then presented themselves for initiation, after which ceremony came the installation of the W.M. elect. Bro. J. E. Cunningham, S.W., having been unanimously chosen by the brethren to fill that proud position. The beautiful and impressive ceremony was rendered in an effective manner by the W.M., Bro. Lingell. The newly installed W.M. then proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Maller, S.W.; H. Ward, J.W.; David Roberts, P.M., (who had been unanimously elected at the last lodge meeting) Treas.; W. F. Copland, Sec.; E. Cross, S.D.; T. Wilson, J.D.; J. Barnham, I.G. The lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to a temporary room, where a choice dinner awaited them. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed. The "Health of the I.P.M." Bro. Lingell, having been duly proposed and honoured, the W.M. presented him with a P.M. jewel, and in a few well chosen words expressed the satisfaction of all the brethren of the lodge for the able and efficient manner he had conducted the business. The I.P.M. feelingly acknowledged the compliment paid him, and promised to continue actively to do his utmost to promote its interests. The W.M. next presented Bro. Thos. Jones, P.M., with a charity jewel, which had been unanimously voted by the lodge to mark its appreciation of the energy and exertions made by him in the cause of the Masonic Charities. Bro. Jones in returning thanks expressed himself very pleased that the lodge had thought proper to acknowledge in that handsome manner his humble exertions which had been to him a great pleasure. "The Health of the W.M." was then proposed by the I.P.M., and the W.M., Bro. Cunningham, in returning thanks, heartily thanked the brethren for the proud position they had placed him in, and hoped he would receive, should he not come up to the standard of their expectations, kind and generous forbearance from all the brethren, and that they might rest assured he would always do his utmost to promote the interests of the High Cross Lodge. "The health of the Visitors," was responded to by Bro. Dr. Cunningham who happily alluded to the pleasure it afforded him to find his nephew the W.M. of that lodge, and that he had travelled many miles to be present on that interesting occasion. The toast was also responded by various other visitors. The toasts of the Past Masters, Initiates, and Officers, having been duly proposed and responded to, the W.M. paid a special compliment to Bro. Oddy for the successful exertions he had made that day to promote their comfort. Bro. Oddy, in reply, expressed himself proud of the opportunities the lodge afforded him of showing his attachment to the Craft, and that his work in contributing to their comfort was always to him one of his greatest pleasures. The Tyler's toast having been duly given by Bro. Steedman, the brethren separated after spending a very happy evening.

ROYAL OAK LODGE, (No. 871).—Another emergency meeting of this lodge was held on the 11th inst., at the White Swan Tavern, 217, High Street, Deptford. The W.M., Bro. W. Myatt, presided, supported by Bros. G. Andrews, S.W.; S. O. Lewin, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, Prov. G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; H. J. Tuson, S.D.; J. J. Pakes, J.D.; J. Baxter Langley, D.C., and many other brethren, together with Bros. F.W. Ward, P.M., and H. R. Harker, 79; E. Sisson, P.M. 901; J. Hayward, J.W. 946; H. Keeble, W.M. 1275; H. G. Green, A. C. Woodward, 1276; R. W. Williams, Organist, 1326; C. Seasel, D.C. 1382; and J. S. Sweasey, J.D. 1423. The work done was the conferring of the third degree upon Bro. A. C. Woodward, of the Star Lodge, 1275, now in recess, and the initiation of Messrs. J. W. Haddingham, J. Allen, J. J. Muris and A. Gordon. The working of the W.M. and his subordinate officers was highly creditable to all. Twenty pounds were voted from the lodge funds towards the purchase of a harmonium, and ten pounds to enable the wife of a former member to join her husband in America. Bro. L. Lemon was appointed to represent the lodge as Steward at the Royal Benevolent Festival in January next. We ought to have observed in proper place that Bro. G. Andrews, S.W., at the close of the initiations, delivered the ancient charge, so often spoken of and so very rarely given, in a superior efficient and impressive manner. No banquet or any refreshment followed the labour.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Lodge (No. 1094).—The brethren of this most excellent lodge assembled for the due fulfilment of their Masonic duties at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Wednesday evening, the 10th inst. The lodge was opened shortly after six o'clock by Bro. Richard R. Martin, W.M., who was assisted by the following officers.—Bros. R. Dawson, P.M.; J. K. Smith, P.M.; Rev. T. Cranmer Ewbank, Chap.; T. Gibson,

S.W.; R. Washington, J.W.; J. Wood, Treas.; T. Marsh, P. Prov. G. A.D.C., P.M., Sec.; R. Yelland, S.D.; W. Healing, J.G.; J. Skeat, Prov. G. Org., P.M., Org.; A. Jarvis and A. C. Doe, Stewards; and P. Ball, Tyler. The members present were:—Bros. T. Williams, T. Sleator, Prov. G. Sec. of the S.E. division of Ireland; J. Hamer, P. Prov. G. Treas.; T. E. Mason, J. C. Parkinson, Dr. A. Bernard, R. Bennett, and H. Jones. The visitors were:—Bros. H. Pearson, P.M. 249; Dr. A. Samuels, W.M. 1350; C. H. Hill, P.M. 724 and 1276; W. Hamilton, J.D. 249; H. W. Nicholas, I.G. 249; J. Winsor, I.G. 241; D. Critchley, 673; J. C. Robinson, 249; C. McNab, 1035; and J. North, 216. After the minutes had been read and passed in Masonic form, Mr. Harrison Barclay Jones was duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Fraternity; and Bro. Parkinson was passed, according to ancient form, to the degree of F.C. The whole of the ceremonial in the two degrees was very effectively performed by Bro. Martin, W.M., who received valuable and most efficient help from his competent officers. After the lodge had been closed the brethren sat down to an excellent repast.

STAR LODGE.—(No. 1275).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on Friday, 5th ult., it being the fifth installation anniversary. Bro. H. Keeble, W.M. opened the lodge and there were present during the afternoon.—Bros. J. R. Darke, S.W. and W.M. elect; G. Pymm, P.M., J.W.; J. Smith, P.G.P. P.M. Treas.; F. Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; G. F. Guest, S.D.; J. Limebeer, J.D.; W. Kipps, I.G. and Organist; S. Homewood, W.M. 749, D.C.; W. Ough, P.G.P., P.M.; C. J. Hogg, P.G.S., P.M.; E. W. Mackney, W.M. 134; and some forty other members. The visitors who honoured the lodge with their presence were—Bros. F. Frampton, P.M. 87; J. T. Johnson, 72; H. Youle, P.M. 101; A. Thomas, 134; F. Turner, W.M. 146; G. Jardine, J.W. 140; J. Smith, P.M. 157; J. J. Pope, P.M. 389, 946; G. A. Garrett, P.M. 704; W. Hule, P.M. 780; W. Hilton, J.W. 780; H. E. Francis, P.M. 867; A. Adams, I.G. 857; E. C. Massey, Sec. 1297; G. F. Poupard, S.D. 1441; and others. The lodge being opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was read, received, adopted, and ordered to be placed in the lodge minute book. It showed after every liability had been met that there was a good round sum in the Treasurer's hands. The ballot for Mr. John Ellis, H.M. Civil Service, proved unanimous in favour of his admission. He being in attendance was in an impressive manner initiated into Ancient Freemasonry, the ceremony being considerably improved by the admirable manner in which was added to its charms the splendid music supplied by the Organist, who, in his usual able style, performed on the harmonium. The event of the meeting was the installation of Bro. R. Darke, S.W. and W.M. elect, into the Solomonic chair. In the hands of veteran Bro. J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treasurer (the father of the lodge), that all impressive and important ceremony lost none of its lustre, for it was correctly done. The officers appointed for the ensuing year, were—Bros. G. Pymm, P.M., S.W.; G. F. Guest, J.D.; J. Smith, P.G.P. P.M., Treas. (reinvested fourth time); F. Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M., Sec. (reinvested for fifth time); J. J. Limebeer, J.D.; S. Homewood, W.M. 749, I.G.; J. Gilbert, P.G. Tyler, Middlesex, Tyler, (reinvested for fifth time); A. Stevens, D.C., was appointed Steward for Royal Benevolent Institution, to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival, to be held on Wednesday, January 28th, 1874. As a reward of merit, and for distinguished services rendered to the Lodge, in the course of the evening, the Immediate Past Master, Bro. H. Keeble, had a valuable Past Masters' Jewel, presented to him; it had been unanimously voted to him from the lodge funds, and bears a suitable inscription on it. Some important notices of motion were given, one in particular being likely to prove popular, as it is for altering the day of meeting from Friday to Saturday. The usual number of propositions for joining and initiates were given to the Secretary. A superior banquet, worthy of the reputation of the host, was then served, and gave satisfaction. The regular toasts followed. Bro. E. W. Mackney, gave some of his best songs, which were well received.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Chapter (No. 249).—The usual periodical gathering of this chapter was held on Friday, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool. There was a large and highly influential gathering of companions. The "Mariners" was perhaps the largest chapter in the province at one time, and although it has been outstripped by one or two younger chapters, it has recently gained numerical and social ground so rapidly, that there is every probability of its again coming to the front. The chapter was opened by Comp. J. F. Jones, M.E.Z., and amongst the assembled officers were:—Comps. W. Jones, P.Z.; W. J. Lunt, P.Z.; J. Hamer, P.Z.; W. Doyle, H.; H. Pearson, J.; J. Wood, Treas.; J. E. Dixon, S.E.; J. E. Jackson, P.S.; and P. Ball, Janitor; with the following members:—Comps. W. Ellis, J. Marshall, H. Firth, P. B. Gee, J. K. Smith, P.Z.; W. Laidlaw, P.Z.; J. J. Rose, J. Clusnall, W. Roberts, W. Nash, W. Marshall, R. Carter, H. S. Griffiths, J. E. Skillicorn, P. Robbie, A. Bucknall, and W. Shakespeare. The list of visitors comprised, among others, the names of Comps. H. S. Alpass, P.G.S.E.; A. C. Mott, P.P.G.S.N.; T. H. Jackson, 673; T. Jones, 241; and others. During the evening Bro. J. Capell, Hall, and Barry were exalted in a striking and effective manner by the M.E.Z., assisted by the different officers of the chapter. The assembled companions subsequently sat down to a capital banquet, and a most pleasant evening was enjoyed.

BOLTON.—St. John's Chapter (No. 348).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Rising Sun Inn, Churchgate, Bolton, on Tuesday, September 9th, when there were present:—Comps. James Young, Z.; Thomas Wilson, H.; James Horrocks, J.; Thomas Chambers, P.Z., E.; Robert Harwood, P.Z., Prov. G. Standard Bearer, Treas.; James Newton, P.Z., Prov. G. Standard Bearer, and several others. The chapter being opened, the ballot was taken for a candidate for exaltation, who was unanimously elected. Pursuant to notice, Comp. Newton proposed that in consequence of the removal of the St. John's Lodge, No. 348, from the Three Tuns Inn, Moor-lane, Bolton, to the Rising Sun Inn, Churchgate, Bolton, the future meetings of this chapter be also held at the said Rising Sun Inn. The proposition was duly seconded and carried unanimously. A candidate was proposed for exaltation in the chapter, and the chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned to refreshment.

GLASGOW.—Glasgow Chapter (No. 50)—held its monthly meeting on Thursday, 11th inst., which was well attended. J. Crabb, Z.; J. Frazer, H.; G. B. Adams, J.; J. Soutall, Scribe, E. Amongst the visitors were:—Comps. Duthie, Z. 67; G. Wheeler, H. 73; J. Dolman, J. 87; Wm. Dabbe, P.Z. 119; and J. Kelly, 272, Belfast, (I.C.). A Lodge of Mark Masters was opened, Comp. Crabb, Z., M.M.; J. Miller, S.W.; G. W. Wheeler, acting J.W.; when three candidates were proposed for advancement. Comp. Humphries, Z. 69, then requested them to advance a gentleman on behalf of that Chapter, this request having been unanimously acceded to, the four brethren were then duly instructed in that degree. A Lodge of Excellent Masters was then opened, when Comp. Wheeler, as Master of the Tabernacle, conducted Bros. McGusken, Cadwallar, Gladstone, and Cheeseman, through the veils. A Holy Royal Arch Chapter having been opened with J. Crabb, 1st P.Z.; T. Humphries, Z. 69, as H.; J. Duthie, Z. 67, as J.; and G. W. Wheeler, H. 73, as Principal Sojourner. The same four gentlemen were exalted into the Royal Arch Degree with all that attention to details that distinguishes Comp. Crabb's working. Comp. Kelly as the P.Z. of two Chapters in Belfast, expressed the pleasure he had experienced in seeing such correct and impressive working; it had quite exceeded his ideas of Scottish Masonry, and he had no hesitation in saying, that neither in Ireland or in England, had he seen every portion of the ceremony conducted with so much efficiency. The companions worked most admirably. Comp. Miller at the harmonium, and the choir in singing the Sanctus, had added much to the impressiveness of the ceremony, rendering it in fact perfect. The M.E.Z. was highly pleased to hear this testimony from so competent a judge as Comp. Kelly, who had written a work on Arch Masonry; but for the completeness of the ceremony he was beholden to the aid of some companions of other chapters; the aid of Comp. Wheeler of 73, had been invaluable, as in consequence of the absence of his own officers this last year, he should have been unable to work the chapter without his assistance, he therefore proposed that he receive affiliation as an honorary member, and also Comps. Duthie, Z. 67; Dolman, J. 87; Wm. Dolbie, P.Z. 119; and Kelly, P.Z., of Belfast; A. A. Smith, T., having seconded the motion, it was carried by acclamation, and the five companions were obligated as honorary members. The chapter having been closed, the companions adjourned for refreshment. After this protracted labour, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair by the Z. In replying to that of the three Grand Chapters of England, Ireland, and Scotland, Comp. Shelly said, that hitherto he had thought that they had the perfection of Royal Arch Masonry in Belfast; in his opinion it was better worked than in England, but he must say he had never seen it worked so well as he had to-night by Comps. Crabb and Wheeler, as King and Sojourner. It would give him great pleasure to see all the chapters under the three constitutions, working in the same way. The toast of the "Newly Exalted Companions" was responded to by Comps. Cadwallar and Gladstone, who expressed themselves delighted with their reception. Comps. Dolbie and Wheeler replied on behalf of those who had been affiliated. Companion Shelly in highly eulogistic terms gave "Prosperity to Chapter 50, and her Z." Comp. Crabb, in reply, said he was proud to work for No. 50, but prouder still to say that when he was deserted by his own officers he had been able to secure co-operation of the best workers in the province. G. W. Wheeler responded to the sentiment of the Masonic Press, and Comps. Crabb, Duthie, and Dolbie; as Zs. of their respective chapters, urged all present to support The Freemason and The Masonic Magazine. The Janitor's toast concluded this truly social meeting.

GLASGOW.—St. Andrew's Chapter (No. 69).—The usual monthly meeting of this chapter was held on Tuesday, 9th inst., Comp., T. D. Humphries, D.P., First Principal, in the chair. The principal business was the nomination of officers for the ensuing year. The companions were unanimous in their desire that the Z. should continue to occupy that chair for the ensuing year. E. Comp. D. Campbell, was appointed as H., and G. Herne, as J.; the late J., Comp. W. Thomas, as Treasurer, and D. B. Fleming, as First Sojourner, W. Cruzin, Second S. and W. Middleship, as Third Sojourner. Amongst the visitors we noticed G. W. Wheeler, H., and J. Balfour, Scribe E. of 73; and J. O. Park, Z. of 119.

GLASGOW.—St. Rollox Chapter (No. 144).—This young chapter met on Friday, the 12th inst., D. Bell, Z., presiding. A lodge of Mark Masters was opened, J. McLeish, J., as S.W.; G. McCallum, as J.W.; and G. W. Wheeler, acting as S.D., or Conductor. Bros. Auld, James McCullough, and J. Christy were then advanced to that degree. It being the first time the Z. had performed the ceremony, all were surprised at the accuracy with which it was done. At the conclusion Bro. McLeish said he had been deputed by two companions, who were too modest to speak [themselves, to present two valuable gifts for the use of the chapter; one was, a pair of stones from Comp. Haliday, and the other was a splendid copy of the Book of the Law. That book contained the inspired songs of David, and it was a present from their own David, their worthy young friend, and Scribe E. Comp. Wheeler moved the thanks of the chapter to those two worthy companions for their valuable presents. The bible was a very handsome one, and if they only paid attention to the precepts it contained, the gift might be said to be invaluable. The other present was of great importance to a young Mark lodge, as without those stones the lodge could not work, and he trusted that the candidates to be obligated on the one would mark well the lessons it contained, and also leave their mark, not only on those stones, but on the living stones of the True Temple. The motion was carried unanimously. In conformity with the laws of the Supreme Chapter of Scotland, though the chapter has been so recently consecrated, they had to elect fresh officers. The following were unanimously nominated to fill the respective chairs:—Comps. David Bell, 1st Principal Z.; James McLeish, H.; George McCullum, J.; David Reid, Scribe E.; G. Hern, N.; G. Charlton, T.; F. Halliday, 1st Soj.; J. Anand, 2nd Soj.; J. Appleyard, 3rd Soj.; and John Hughes, Janitor. Comps. G. W. Wheeler and J. Rotherham were appointed as Auditors. The 23rd was named for the installation of the officers, and from the enthusiastic way in which each of them have worked in the Craft lodge, there is every prospect of this, the youngest chapter in the province, soon showing good work.

GLASGOW.—St. Mungo Encampment.—The annual meeting of this body was held on Monday, the 15th inst., Sir Knt. R. Bell, M.N.C., presiding. The election was proceeded with, but as all the nominations had been unanimous, it was merely formal. Captain Shanks, P.E.C. of the Royal Veteran Encampment (E.C.), now a member of this encampment, then assumed the chair, and in a very impressive manner installed Sir Knt. R. Bell as Commander for the ensuing year. A special vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded for the excellent manner in which the ceremonies were conducted, as Captain Shanks had to leave by train. The newly-reinstalled Commander installed and invested as his officers:—Sir Knts. J. Tweed as his Deputy; J. G. Speirs as G.C.; Rev. J. C. Steward, Prelate; G. W. Wheeler, Recorder; F. Bates, Treas.; M. Clanachin and G. McAlister, Captains; F. Barclay, Seneschal; S. Scott, Marshal; J. Barclay, Hospitaller; J. McLeish, Warder; W. J. Shee, Sword Bearer; J. Biddall, 1st Aide-de-Camp; and J. McDade, Sentinel. The committee on the new place of meeting reported, and obtained leave to sit again.

Original Correspondence.

THE UNITED ORDERS AND THE ANGLICAN LANGUE OF ST. JOHN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

When Bro. Lupus talks about my mendacious statements, we may conclude that he and his genuine Order have been hardly hit. Bro. Lupus is very indignant because I, and others, are incredulous as to the legitimacy of his true Order of St. John, but I am very sorry I cannot withdraw those statements, simply because what I said in The Freemason was perfectly true, however unpalatable to the reprobable champion of the English Protestants, who call themselves Knights of St. John.

When Bro. Lupus talks of mendacious statements, and yet asserts that the titular Anglican Langue "is not in alliance with the so-called Sacred Council in Rome, on the sole ground of religious difference," and further that I am "in no manner warranted in making the statement that the Roman Council repudiates the claim of the so-called Anglican Langue," I can only say, tu quoque to his polite insinuation, and point to the proofs I have already given in your columns as to the grounds upon which I based my assertions.

Bro. Lupus may elect to ignore the so-called—as he is pleased to term—the Sacred Council; but it won't do.

He cannot get over the fact that the Masonic Knights of Malta have been in existence for over 100 years, at all events; that they have worn the black mantle for that period; and that whilst the Sacred Council, the sole legitimate head of the Order, refuses to recognise them, we, the Masonic Knights, have quite as good a claim to the title of Knights of St. John as they.

When Bro. Lupus, in speaking of Malta, says, "whence Bro. Holmes would have us believe came the very ancient and absurd ritual which I believe was never yet used in the Island, and was manufactured in the manner made known to you readers some time since," I should be sorry to throw doubts on his statements, as he does upon mine, without very good reason, but if he desire it I will undertake to give him privately the name of the brother—a Provincial Grand Commander—who brought the Malta degree from Malta, and of another brother who received the degree under the same ritual in Malta which my sapient Bro. Lupus affects to believe was never used there. My learned brother make the bold assertion "that the Protestant Langue of England, of the Order of St. John, is a legitimate branch of the grand old Fraternity of the Baptist;" (in my innocence I had imagined that St. John the Almshouse and not St. John the Baptist, was the patron of the Order, and Porter, Mackey, Taaffe and others share my opinion, but no doubt they are all wrong, and Lupus right;) "a fact," he adds "which all the wailings of Bro. Holmes and all the eager anxieties of his friends will not alter."

This is all very well in its way, but assertion is not proof.

As to the anxieties of my friends about the existence or non-existence of the Anglican Langue, I need only remark that they and I are alike profoundly indifferent as to the matter. An inconsiderable and unimportant body like the band of English gentlemen, who flatter themselves that they are preux chevaliers sans peur et sans reproche, are quite welcome to dub themselves any name they please, but no act of Parliament, nor even the startling assertions of Lupus, will make us believe in them.

Bro. Lupus by his gratuitous attack on the Masonic Knights of Malta, justly provoked the retort as to his own pet order, and he and his friends are alone to blame for a discussion which however much they may flatter themselves has told in their favour, will in the opinion of most sensible and independent readers, have assumed quite a different complexion.

Of course it must be very galling to ambitious et disert knights, after being solemnly put to the proof as to their noble descent, (one would like to know where some of them get it,) and after paying, we fear, rather considerable fees for the honour, such as it is, to find out that after all they are, in the eyes of a good many people, only sham knights after all. I say it must be very galling, very galling indeed, but what then? We are not to blame in the matter. If these gentlemen keep their knighthood to themselves, and do deeds of charity and all that sort of thing, we can sympathise with them and admire their beneficent services, but when they allow neat little paragraphs (shall we say puffs?) to be inserted in the daily papers, announcing their proceedings, and get some of their number to attack the Masonic Knights of Malta, who were in existence in England 50 years before they were, it behoves all good men and true, who have the honour to belong to the United Orders, to repudiate their claims and ridicule their pretensions. When the Sacred Council and the Catholic Knights of St. John recognise the Protestant Cavaliers, we are ready to do so too, and not before. By the way what do the Duke of Norfolk, and Lord Beaumont, think of these claims.

Can it be possible that some of the Masonic Knights were received into the Anglican Langue on the understanding that they should do their best to crush out the Masonic Order of St. John? I should be sorry to suggest such a thing, but really, recent events would make us fear so, and if this be the case, would one wrongfully accuse the knights of perfidious conduct?

My Masonic friends should look to it.

But no!

"Brutus and Cassius are honourable men,

So are they all—all honourable men."

I have the greatest possible respect for Col. M'Leod Moore, and his opinion as to the Order of St. John is valuable, but still it is his opinion, and is not binding upon others who have probably gone into the question as deeply as he. From Mackey's Lexicon, I gather that according to a tradition of the Rosa Croix 27,000 of the descendants of the Masons, who, at the destruction of Jerusalem, by Titus, had fled to Scotland, being desirous of uniting in the wars of the Crusades, obtained permission of the Scottish Monarch, and, on their arrival in Palestine, performed so many deeds of valour as to attract the admiration of Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, who, as a token of their esteem, requested to be initiated into the Masonic Order, whence arose the connexion of that body with the Freemasons. I merely give this tradition for what it is worth, but it is certain that some of the Knights of Malta did become Freemasons about the middle of last century, and Findel, as I have said elsewhere, admits the fact, and writes thus:—* "In 1743, Thory tells us the Masons in Lyons, under the name of "Pelit Elu," invented the degree Kadosch, which represents the revenge of the Templars. The Order of Knights Templar had been abolished in 1311, and to that epoch, they were obliged to have recourse, when, after the banishment of several Knights from Malta in 1740, because they were Freemasons, it was not longer possible to keep up a connection with the Order of St. John, or Knights of Malta, then in the plenitude of their power, under the sovereignty of the Pope."

It would thus appear that, prior to 1740, many of the Knights of St. John were Freemasons and that at that period the Masonic body had some connection with the Sovereign Order. I hope Lupus is satisfied.

EMMA HOLMES.

SPIRITUALISM.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The clear and candid definition of Spiritualism given by Bro. Carpenter at page 609 (as it is: "The occasional and frequent manifestation of the presence amongst us of disembodied spirits, who make their presence known in various ways, sometimes by moving or otherwise acting upon material objects, sometimes by audible voices, sometimes by making one part of themelves visible, and almost always by giving intelligent answers, sometimes correct and sometimes otherwise, to questions asked, or communicating facts, sometimes already known and sometimes unknown to the person communicated with)," is one which entirely dispenses with aught of quibbling. The question left for the seeker after truth to decide therefore: Is the explanation that these spiritualistic phenomena are the work of "disembodied spirits" really correct? On account of his experiences thus far in the matter, Bro. Carpenter answers, yes, while so far as I have been able to investigate the subject, I feel bound to say no. And to the question—To whom are these manifestations due? I must answer, that allowing them to be the work of spirits, they were the work of embodied "spirits;" and in no case was it either necessary for, or did any "disembodied spirit" take the slightest action in the matter. It will be time enough to attribute these "manifestations" to "disembodied spirits" when all the various faculties and powers connected with the living human frame, or with the "embodied spirits" present, have been taken into account and proved to be unable to solve the problem. Being somehow asked by various parties who were either spiritualists or in doubt about the matter to help them in their difficulties, I found that, so far as I could observe any so called spiritualistic phenomena to which I was either witness or became acquainted with, were produced by one or more of the living parties present, and produced without the aid of any disembodied spirit, there being about as much need for the aid of a disembodied spirit in any of these "spiritualistic" phenomena, as there is for its services in sending a telegraphic message from here to London, or in keeping a piece of iron from falling to the ground that is suspended by a magnet. And to imagine that a disembodied spirit can either use its lungs (?) or speak or move material objects, is equivalent to expecting your watch to be able to go on ticking away and telling the time of day after its works have been taken out.

I had a friend who was brought into contact with the spiritualists, and not only did he become one himself, but he turned out a capital medium. In the first flush of the excitement produced by his sudden introduction to a new world he was fairly carried away by it, and not a single word would he listen to in opposition to the idea that all the manifestations, in which he played such an important part, were the result of something else than the work of a "disembodied spirit." However, time wore on and he began to feel that this close acquaintance with "disembodied spirits" was anything but favourable to either his health or nerves. He could not sleep at night, (others have told me that their nerves got so unstrung, and the manifestations took such a ghostly turn in the dark that they had to keep the gas burning full blaze all night), and by and by he began to think and also to examine into the cause of the manifestations, and the result now is that he considers that the idea of "disembodied spirits" having anything to do with the matter, was simply a delusion—the feelings swaying the judgment. There are many, I have reason to assert, who have gone through the same experience as my friend, only in order to prevent ill-feeling they do not care to say much about it.

I am, yours fraternally,

W. P. BUCHAN.

Obituary.

BRO. W. F. JOHNSON.

On the 11th inst., Bro. Wm. Francis Johnson, member of Everton Lodge, No. 823, and Junior Deacon of the Hamer Lodge, No. 1393, and connected with H.M.'s Customs as tide surveyor, departed this life, after a painful and lingering illness, at his residence in Newlands-street, Liverpool. On Saturday last, in conformity with the wish of the deceased, his remains were interred with Masonic ceremonial, at Anfield Cemetery; and the respect for the deceased was clearly shown by the attendance of a large number of the brethren connected with the two local lodges of which he had been a member for a considerable time.

The Hamer Lodge, situated in Windermere-street, was opened shortly after 9 o'clock by Bro. J. Jones, W.M., who was supported by the following officers and other members:—Bros. W. T. May, I.P.M.; Capt. T. Berry, S.W.; R. H. Evans, J.W.; E. Wilson, Sec.; C. Tyrer, Treas.; A. Jackson, S.D.; E. Dutch, S.S.; R. Price, J.S.; M. Williamson, Tyler; T. Larce, N. Thornthwaite, C. A. Cooper, G. Lunt, G. Chapman, R. Parry, T. Roberts, G. Graham, T. Sammons, T. Durrans, W. Malpass, T. Leadley, J. Cearney, R. W. Rowlands.

The Everton Lodge was represented by the following:—Bros. W. Boalton, W.M.; Jesse Banning, P.M.; W. Cottrell, S.W.; T. Shaw, J.W.; J. Houlding, S.D.; H. Ashmore, J.D.; J. Goodman, I.G.; J. S. Cutlibert, J.S.; E. G. Benedict, T. Bloomfield, J. Mannay, E. H. Bryson, C. Morgan, W. Atherton, and J. W. Coates. There were also present Bros. T. G. Wilkins, 1264, W. Brewers, 1264; W. Jones, Sec. 864, and R. Lloyd, 1356.

After the lodge had been opened in the three degrees, the brethren proceeded to the late residence of the deceased, where a procession was formed. By a special dispensation, the brethren wore their Masonic clothing. The route taken was by Breck-road, Oakfield-road, Walton Breck-road, Spellow-lane, &c., and on the arrival of the cortège at the cemetery, the funeral service of the church to which deceased belonged, was impressively read by the clergyman. The brethren then gathered round the grave, and the usual Masonic funeral oration was very impressively delivered by Bro. J. Jones, W.M. 1393. The Secretaries advanced and deposited their rolls in the grave, and the brethren threw in sprigs of acacia. The procession was then reversed, and the brethren returned to Windermere-street, where the lodge was closed in solemn form.

BRO. THE REV. JOHN BANNISTER, L.L.D. (T.C.D.)

Our lamented friend and Bro. the Rev. John Bannister, L.L.D., was removed from the scene of his earthly labours, on Saturday, the 30th August, having only been ill for a few days. His decease will leave a void in the Province not easily supplied, for the reverend brother was a man of considerable ability, and as well known for his Masonic zeal and information, as for his literary acquirements and general intelligence, added to which he was ever ready to lend a helping hand to every good cause, and the poor especially found in him a constant friend.

We do not intend in this short sketch to say aught of the worthy Doctor's labours in philology, or in fact to mention the various scientific works with which his name has been so honourably allied, and for which the county of Cornwall is much indebted; but our desire is simply to present a few particulars as to his Masonic career for the benefit of those of the Craft interested therein.

The Rev. Dr. John Bannister, was initiated in the Tregulow Lodge, No. 1006, St. Day (the Masonic rooms being in a vicarage occupied by our brother) in June 1864, and from that date passed to be one of the most prominent additions to Freemasonry in Cornwall, during the present century, the Lodge of Tregulow particularly has had every reason to be proud of their member, and the Province, through its representatives, has on many occasions testified to their appreciation of his worth. In 1865, and 1866, he was Chaplain of the lodge 1006, in 1867 Senior Warden, in 1868 W. Master, in 1869 and 1871 Treasurer, and re-appointed Chaplain from 1869 to the last festival.

The late Bro. Augustus Smith, Prov. G. Master, appointed him Junior Prov. Grand Chaplain, in 1866, at the Prov. G. Lodge held at Bodmin, and Senior Prov. G. Chap. at Redruth in 1867.

In the Mark Degree, our brother was, we believe, advanced in the Meridian Lodge, No. 73, Redruth, was Master Overseer in 1872, and Junior Warden in 1873. The Prov. G. Master Bro. Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., invested him as Prov. G. Chaplain, at Hayle, in 1869.

Mark Masonry was a favourite with Dr. Bannister, because of its being preservative of the ancient custom, of "choosing the mark," and few were better acquainted with its early history.

Royal Arch Masonry had special charms for him, and being a good Hebrew scholar, he was particularly well qualified to be the first Principal of a chapter, he was at his decease.

He was exalted in the Cornubian Chapter, No. 331, Truro, on the 25th of January, 1867, and was Chaplain therein during 1868, as also of the Tregulow Chapter, St. Day, No. 1006. Of the latter chapter he was elected Prin. Soj., 1870, Third Principal, 1871, Second Principal, 1872, and Z. in 1873.

He joined the Knights Templars in the Cornubian Preceptory, Truro; was Prelate in 1870 and 1872, and appointed Prov. Grand Prelate by the Prov. Grand Prior, the Rt. Hon. Lord Eliot, in 1872.

He was connected with the Ancient and Accepted Rite through joining the St. Aubyn Rose Croix Chapter, at Devonport, of which he was Chaplain in 1868, and occupied the chair of Perfect Master for one year; the degrees from the fifth to the 18°, being worked in this chapter.

It will be seen that Dr. Bannister's Masonic career has been a brilliant and eventful one; he was a most constant attendant at his mother lodge, the "Tregulow," St. Day, never missing a meeting, unless wholly unable to be present, and he was always anxious, at the festivals of the lodge, (as also at those he visited,) to impress on the brethren the necessity of practising in their daily lives, the principles of Freemasonry which they professed to admire, and while he was a most social and agreeable visitor, he was a faithful friend and adviser, ever solicitous to warn the members against intemperance and excess, to impress on the newly-initiated candidates the value of the symbols and illustrations of the Craft, and to remind the brethren generally that they were only true Freemasons as they obeyed its sublime precepts.

His Masonic studies were diligently pursued, and his views as to the origin of the Order are best explained by mentioning that he was an adherent of the "Guild Theory," believing that the present society was not only a "Revival" of 1717, but a continuation of the operative lodges of former centuries.

On Thursday, the 14th inst., the mortal remains of our Brother were committed to their last resting place, in the church-yard of St. Day, in the presence of a vast concourse of people.

The Members of the Tregulow Lodge of Freemasons (1006), and many other brethren, met at 11 a.m. at the Lodge Rooms, St. Day, and were addressed in a few suitable words by Bro. Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., Past Grand Warden of England, &c., who (expressing the unanimous feeling of all present) stated that their late excellent brother would be deeply lamented, not only by his lodge (which he had served so faithfully), but also by the Craft throughout the county.

Bro. Dr. Geo. Michell, P.M. 1006, then read several letters apologising for absence, including one from the Prov. Grand Sec., Bro. E. T. Carlyon, who was prevented from attending, as was also Bro. John Hocking, Junr., P.M. 589, and others who had been Masonically connected with the learned doctor for many years.

Bro. John Ninnes, P.M. 600, P. Prov. G. Reg., acted as Master of the Ceremonies, and the procession being formed, the brethren, in Masonic mourning, proceeded two and two to the Vicarage, and on the funeral cortège leaving about "high noon," they preceded the corpse, followed by a large number of friends, "rich and poor," who had assembled to pay the last sad office of respect to departed merit. It was in fact a funeral in which the whole town and neighbourhood took part, all business being suspended, and the inhabitants generally being solicitous, outwardly, as well as privately, to testify to the general respect and esteem felt by them for their beloved vicar.

On the conclusion of the usual service, which was most impressively rendered, and in which the choir took a prominent part, Bro. the Rev. G. L. Church, P.M. 699, P. Prov. G. Chap., read one of the Masonic funeral charges in a most solemn manner, and delivered, as it was, over the grave of the departed, could not fail to prove salutary to the living, and suggestive of the noble principles of Freemasonry.

The brethren then walked in procession to the lodge, when Bro. William Pascoe, P.M. 1006, took the chair, and having thanked the members and friends for their attendance, stated he would be pleased to hear any remarks suitable to the occasion.

Bro. the Rev. G. L. Church then read another "charge," after which Bro. W. H. Jenkins, P.M. 331, P. Prov. S.G.W. spoke for a few minutes on the life of the deceased, and how he had been so universally respected and beloved by all who knew him.

Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.P.G.S., followed by expressing the heartfelt sympathy of the brethren in Truro, for the great loss the lodge had sustained in the removal of Dr. Bannister from their midst, and stated that he hoped all present would endeavour to live according to the example which their beloved brother had so uniformly set them, both in and out of the lodge.

Bro. T. Solomon, J.P., P.M. 331, P. Prov. S.G.W., also desired to unite with the brethren from Truro, in sincerely sympathising with the Members of Tregullov Lodge; and also with the bereaved widow and family.

A general wish was expressed that a short sketch of Dr. Bannister's Masonic career should be prepared by Bro. Hughan, and before the brethren separated a vote of condolence was passed and forwarded by letter to Mrs. Bannister, which, we hear, that lady received with marked appreciation.

In addition to the foregoing brethren who attended, we noticed Bros. F. W. Dabb, P.M., 589, P. Prov. G.J.W.; Rev. F. H. A. Wright, M.A., P.M. 331, P. Prov. Chap.; John Hall, P.M. 699, Prov. G.J.D.; Dr. Hugoe, P.M. 699; J. Burgess, P.M. 1006; E. Mitchell, junr., P.M. 1006; W. Middleton, W.M. 131, Prov. G. Std.; S. Serpell, W.M. 331; Rev. W. H. Bloxsome, W.M. 318, Prov. G. Chaplain; Bro. Holman, W.M. 699; James Pool, W.M. 450; E. Penman, P.M. 589, P. Prov. G.D., and others.

Everything was done by the members of the lodge to express their respect and esteem for their late Chaplain, and we never before attended a Masonic funeral at which sorrow was so universally depicted on every face.

LORD DERBY.—In April last, Lord Derby accepted an invitation from Bro. E. Samuelson, Mayor of Liverpool, to dine at the Town Hall. His lordship's family were thrown into mourning on the eve of the banquet, which was, of course, postponed. Thursday, the 16th of October, has now been named as the day on which his worship hopes to have the honour of entertaining the noble lord; and the Mayor has privately intimated that it will give him much pleasure to see as many of the gentlemen who had accepted invitations to meet his lordship on the 25th April last, as can conveniently be present.

The lifeboat contributed to the National Lifeboat Institution by the Independent Order of Good Templars, is to be placed at Sunderland. Mr. R. P. J. Simpson, of Liverpool, was the first who suggested that the Order might present this boat to the Institution, and the Rev. James Yeames, of Kirkstall, who was appointed honorary secretary of the lifeboat fund, has been indefatigable in his exertions to promote its success.

PROPOSED FINE ART GALLERY IN LIVERPOOL.

Much talk has taken place of late in Liverpool about a fine art gallery, worthy of the town, which is far behind Manchester, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and other places in this respect, and there is now every probability that the scheme will be carried out. This will not be done by taxing the rate-payers, about which there has been no small outcry, but by the voluntary and noble liberality of several citizens of Liverpool.

A few days ago, Mr. Picton, the Chairman of the Art Committee offered, to contribute £1000 towards the funds, if other gentlemen could be found to give the same amount, or if the requisite sum was raised by general subscription. It was felt that such a challenge should not be allowed to pass by unaccepted, and that the appeal thus made to the liberality of the merchant princes of Liverpool would receive a hearty response; nor has the reply been long delayed. Bro. Andrew George Kurtz, a large manufacturing chemist, residing at Grove House, Wavertree, has intimated his intention to give £1000; and scarcely was this second liberal donation made known, when Bro. Samuelson, the Mayor announced to the Town Council that Mr. John Parrington, of the firm of Harding and Parrington, brewers, of St. James's-street—had followed the example of Messrs. Picton and Kurtz, and promised £1000. To this list of contributions are now added the names of Mr. James G. Houghton, merchant, of Sandheys, Waterloo, and Mr. Thomas Harding (partner with Mr. Parrington). Great George-square, each of whom gives £1000, thus swelling the contributions to £5000. There is a rumour that several other well known public men are about to contribute with equal liberality, so that in a very short time, it may confidently be affirmed, the necessary amount of £20,000 will be raised.

The announcement made at the Council meeting on Wednesday week that valuable collection of paintings will be presented to the town immediately a place has been prepared for their reception, should stimulate the zeal and liberality of those who can afford to help on this work, and meanwhile contributions of pictures might be made, which could be treasured at the Town Hall till the gallery is completed. The public will no doubt duly appreciate the efforts thus being made to add a fine-art gallery to the other institutions of Liverpool; and when they are admitted within its walls, and scan the works of art with which the building will be adorned, their pleasure will be enhanced by the recollection that the institution has been raised without taking one farthing in the shape of increased taxes from the pockets of the ratepayers.

GOOD TEMPLAR DEMONSTRATION.—The quarterly convention of the Good Templar body for the south-western division of Lancashire was held on Monday, the 8th inst., at St. Helens. The delegates, nearly 300 in number, assembled in the Independent Schoolroom, under the presidency of Mr. G. Whitehead, D.D.G.W.C.T. Afterwards a grand procession and demonstration of the local lodges was held in honour of the event. Although the institution has been established in the district only two years, it has 146 lodges and about 12,500 members, and continues to make considerable progress.

GENTLENESS AND VIOLENCE.—The gentle mind is like a smooth stream, which reflects every object in its just proportion and in its fairest colours. The violent spirit, like troubled waters, renders back the images of things distorted and broken, and communicates to them all that disordered motion which arises solely from its own agitation.—Blair.

The editor of the "Bauhütte" has founded at Florence an establishment for the sale of German and English books. We have much pleasure in introducing the same to the notice of our many readers who may visit the fair city, feeling assured that they will meet with every attention from those in charge. The address is—Messrs. Flor and Findel, German and foreign booksellers, 24, Lung Arno Antiquari, Florence, Italy.

Masonic Tidings.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire, the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W. Prov. G.M., was held at Altrincham on Thursday, the 18th inst., but in consequence of the late period of the week at which it was held, we are compelled to defer the full report until next week.

We are requested to state that the late Bro. John Thomas, of Denmark Street, Camberwell, will be interred this day (Saturday), at Norwood Cemetery. Brethren desirous of paying the last sad tribute of respect, are requested to be there at half past one o'clock, as the funeral will take place at two. Private carriages to be at 20, Denmark Street, Camberwell, at 12 noon.

A meeting of the Masonic friends and pupils of Bro. John Thomas, will be held at the Freemasons' Hall on Saturday, the 27th inst., Bro. Edward Worthington in the chair, to determine upon some means of perpetuating his memory.

The inauguration and dedication of St. Mark's Conclave of the Masonic and Military Order of Knights of Rome and Red Cross of Constantine, (No. 96), will take place at the Masonic Hall, Newport, Monmouthshire, on Monday, the 22nd inst., at 1.30 p.m. precisely. The Illustrious Sir Knt. William Williams, Int. G., is the M.P.S. designate. The ceremony will be performed by Illustrious Sir Knt. R. Wentworth Little, Grand Treasurer, the officer appointed by Earl Bective, Most Illustrious P.G.S.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction, No. 1278, held at Bro. T. Lloyd's, the Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria-park, on Friday, the 26th inst., at 7 p.m.

The ceremony of installation will be worked by Bro. Crawley, at the New Concord Lodge of Instruction, held at Bro. Gabb's, Rosemary Branch Tavern, Hoxton, on Wednesday, the 1st proximo, commence at eight o'clock.

Bro. Boord, M.P., has acceded to the request of a deputation to preside at the anniversary dinner of the Licensed Victuallers' Protection Society.

The Panmure Mark Lodge No. 139, will meet at the Balham Hotel, Balham, for the installation of the W.M., on Monday next, September the 22nd, at 6 o'clock.

NEW WORK ON FREEMASONRY.

We understand that the well-known Masonic Historiographer, Bro. Hughan, of Truro, is engaged in writing a History of the Lodge of Fortitude, No. 131, warranted A.D. 1772, by the "Ancients." A valuable appendix is to be inserted, containing a list of all the lodges on the roll of the "Ancients" and "Moderns," immediately before the "Union of 1813" and the one published immediately after, also a copy of the "Articles of Union." The "Modern" and "Ancient" list of A.D. 1815, of the United Grand Lodge being the first issued after the Union, is very scarce indeed, and hence a reprint will prove a great boon for Masonic students.

Bro. Hughan, we hear, is about to write a History of all the M.S. Masonic Constitutions from the fourteenth century, in which he will be assisted by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., one of the best authorities on the subject known, and the work is likely to be ready early in the ensuing year. The volume is to be the finest of its kind ever issued, and will contain copies of the Halliwell MSS. with page for page translation, and other old MS., some of which have been lately discovered by our indefatigable brother.

THE HARMONY BETWEEN THE BIBLE AND FREEMASONRY.

As we incidentally stated in The Freemason of the 6th inst., the Rev. Philip Hains, Rector of St. George's Church, Wigan, and Chaplain of the Mariners' Lodge, No. 249, Liverpool, gave an excellent address on the harmony existing between the principles and teachings of the Book of the Sacred Law and Freemasonry, at the annual festival of the Mariners' Lodge, held on the 27th ult. The address was given on a special occasion, and was listened to with special attention. As it possesses many features of interest, we have much pleasure in now furnishing the text of the address to our readers.

The Rev. Bro. Hains, said,

Freemasonry has been defined as a system of pure morality, veiled in allegory and illustrated by symbols. Taking the volume of the Sacred Law as its standard of right and wrong, it is founded on the Divine precepts contained in the Holy Scriptures. Did time permit, I might point out many similitudes between the teachings of the Bible and the usages of Freemasonry, but this morning, I will content myself with just alluding to three resemblances. Both teach moral truths, by means of symbols or emblems; secondly, both speak of mysteries, i.e., have a moral meaning hidden, or secret, beneath the outward substance; and thirdly, both inculcate the necessity of brotherly love, relief, and charity. Hence the Bible has been called a "Book for mankind." Of no other book can this be said. Neither Homer, nor Dante, Milton, nor even Shakespeare, the most universal of all writers, can be said to be adapted to all time, all countries, and all peoples, but this is true of one Book, the Volume of the Sacred Law. So the universality of Freemasonry is one of its proudest boasts, and is its distinguishing characteristic. The distant Chinese, the wild Arab, the American savage, the volatile Gaul, the phlegmatic German; all nations, whatsoever may be their particular distinctions, are here asked to forget their differences, and to unite as brethren and children of our one Common Father in Heaven.

Masonry teaches us that the visible operations of nature contain a hidden moral meaning; so the Bible inculcates that the voices of nature are only dull and inarticulate to those that have no eyes to see, nor ears to hear, that when we behold the sun in the Heavens, that great luminary which our science calls "The Glory of the Lord," we might be reminded of One who is the Father of Lights, and that the Lord God is a Sun, and a shield, and that when we hear the sound of the wind around us, and cannot tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth, but only know its direction by the way in which we behold different objects impelled, so we are taught is every one that is born of the Spirit." And when we hear the thunders roll, and see the lightnings flash, we should be conscious of the presence of Him who "maketh the winds his messengers and His ministers a flame of fire." Thus Scripture and Masonry coincide in teaching by allegory, that, by a holy chemistry, we may extract Heaven out of Earth, and by contemplation and meditation, transform the inanimate things of nature into a line of union, which, like Jacob's ladder, may reach from Earth to Heaven. Masonry teaches us that if we study but one single fragment of the Universe aright, we have grasped, at least, the first link of a chain that will lead us up to God, and every book of the Bible insists on the same divine lesson.

To teach us a useful lesson of humility, we are bidden to lift our eyes to the firmament above us:—"When I consider the Heavens, the works of Thine hand, the moon and the stars that thou hast made. What is man That thou art mindful of him and the Son of Man, that Thou so regardest him."

To teach us industry and ordinary prudence in the pursuits of life, we are bidden to contemplate God's marvellous workmanship in the organisation of the little insect we heedlessly tread under foot:—"Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise, who without guide, overseer, and ruler, provideth her meat in the summer and gathereth her food in the harvest."

To teach us faith and reliance in the goodness of our Universal Parent we are bidden to go and learn from the flowers of the forest:—"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. If God so clothed the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you."

To give us a hope full of immortality, to show us that we shall not wholly die, and that the best part of us shall escape death, we are bidden to gaze at a handful of grain cast into the furrows of the ground. That which thou sowest is not quickened except it die. "Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit." Thus the invisible things of Him, from the beginning of the world, are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made.

Masonry at all times teaches this truth, that if we have senses to comprehend, we may find God everywhere, and moral lessons in everything, whether in the bowels of the earth, the rude fragment of a stone, or in a sunbeam; whether in the structure of a wild flower, the organization of an insect, or in the mechanism of the Heavens.

But the secrecy of Freemasons has been, and still is a constant charge against us. In this too we have the sanction of the Book of Revelation. We read of mysteries there, and who was that Divine Master, who said, "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to those who are without in parables?"

The great truths of His kingdom came, incorporated in symbols, to the eyes of some, whilst others had no spiritual eyes to see nor ears to hear. We read of the mystery of God's will, and again "Great is the mystery of Godliness," and then "The mystery which from the beginning of the world had been hid with God," then again "Behold I show you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." the same word is used respecting the state of marriage. "For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh." This is a great mystery. Then in regard to the Sacraments of the Church; We, the Ministers constantly say, "We that have only received these mysteries." The mysteries being the bread and wine, regarded, however, as symbols or emblems, having a moral and spiritual meaning hidden beneath the material substance. To the very name by which we are known in one of the church's prayers, is that of "Ministers and Stewards of the Mysteries of God." So Moses says "Secret things belong to the Lord our God, but those things that are revealed belong to us and to our children for ever," and Job asks, "Hast thou heard the secret of God?" It was this, according to many Jewish interpreters, that Moses craved when he said "I beseech Thee show me Thy glory," which was denied him, as being impossible for man in this present life, and which can only be communicated in the Grand Lodge above, when we shall see Him as He is. Now secrecy in some cases, or silence, has been pronounced by some of the wisest of mankind as a virtue of the most important and golden kind, and the most celebrated of ancient teachers recommended it to their disciples as a most necessary probation. Indeed, some societies and councils could not possibly exist, if their transactions were indiscriminately disclosed, but that there is nothing dangerous in our secrets we may gather from the fact that monarchs and rulers are themselves members of the Institution.

The third resemblance between the teachings of Scripture and Freemasonry consists in the brotherly love towards all mankind, relief and charity, which are the marks of both.

There is only one kind of person which we refuse to participate in our mysteries and privileges, that is the stupid atheist, who believes in an effect without a cause; but with this exception we are taught to call nothing common or unclean, and the animosities and differences which divide those that call on the name of their common Maker are not recognised amongst Masons. We say, in the language of the inspired law, "of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation, he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him." Does this argue any indifference for Religion? By no means, whatever be our religious convictions, those, I maintain, we ought strenuously to uphold, live for, strive for, and like the fortitude of him, whose example our traditions have brought down to us, if necessity arises, be willing to die for—but it does not follow that we should be harsh and uncharitable, repelling and intolerant towards the equally conscientious belief of others, how much soever it may differ from our own. How can we feel angry at human error, when we consider that the Great Architect of the Universe, who formed man, has so constituted him that no two countenances are precisely alike, and still more various are human characters, minds, and dispositions. How can we be surprised at the errors of others, when we know not the circumstances that have attended their birth and infant nurture, on which perhaps a great deal of the character of religious belief is dependent. "To feel angry at human error," says an ancient writer "is the same thing as to be angry with the blind for stumbling in the dark, with the deaf for not obeying your command, with the aged, with the sick, with the weary. That very dullness of comprehension which excites at once your wonder and your wrath, is but a parcel of our common frailty. And the love of error, is as inherent in our Natures, as the existence of error itself." Dark ages, my Brothers, there have been in this world, ages as black as midnight with folly, ignorance, and crime, ages when the children of our common Father in Heaven, doomed other children of the same father to the tortures of the stake, or the flames, and in those times none suffered more unheard-of torments than our own ancient brethren; and the reason was, that man did not understand the nature of man, or the foundation on which a religious belief depends, for when anything which was part of the common, or established belief of those times, was doubted of, it seemed to the majority to be so clearly, so unquestionably true, that it was impossible to doubt it. Thus they judged from their own zeal, their own convictions, their own persuasion, let it have been true or otherwise; the unbelief of others, therefore, was not regarded as so many conscientious scruples, but as arising from wilful obstinacy, and the road from this supposed wilfulness to the infliction of punishment on its behalf was a very short one. But the spirit of the Bible and the spirit of Masonry are alike opposed to all this. Both breathe a spirit of kindness and toleration which incite us to exclaim—

"How shall this weak unknowing hand,
Presume God's bolts to throw,
Or deal damnation round the land,
On all I deem my foe.

"If I am right, God's Grace impart,
Still in the right to stay;
If I am wrong, Oh, touch my heart,
To find a better way."

Such are the principles of our Order, which have endeared it to the wise and good of all times and countries. But we do not rest here. Our sentiments assume the form of virtue (for there may be a sentiment and not a virtue) in the active beneficence and systematic charity, which is the distinguishing feature of Freemasonry. Surely he was a wise master builder who laid the foundation of our Institution on the solid basis of love and reverence to God, and raised, the superstructure in love to man.

The charity shown by Masons has become a proverb, and in it the noblest defence of our Order consists. This is the real secret of our success as a society. Other societies have passed away because not founded as ours has been; other guilds and corporations have died out in time. The noblest leagues have been dissolved; tastes have changed, and men have changed. As one generation has passed away, another came, and old associations have broken up; but there is not only no sign of our dissolution, though the oldest as well as the noblest of all the ancient guilds, but our principles, because founded on the eternal nature of things, are more widely extended to day than they have ever been; and men who are more apt to judge by what they see, than by what they hear, are not slow in thinking that constant systematic and yet discriminating charity, universal as the air we breathe, impartial as the sun that shines, such benevolence teaches more of the love of God than a thousand sermons—that a society

"That hath a tear for pity, and a hand Open as day, for melting charity" must have something in it worthy of imitation, and the world judges right. Men generally, with the exception of those who are determined to misrepresent our principles, speak well of Freemasonry, and quote it as an unselfish, benevolent society, whose many institutions for distressed Masons are models of benevolence the wide world over. I am persuaded that this is one of the principal reasons why our Order has endured so long. The quality of mercy, as Shakespeare says, is not strained,

"It droppeth as the gentle rain from Heaven,
Upon the place beneath; it is twice blessed—
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes."

Masons have long realised this. Every lodge is consecrated, like a temple of charity, to the generous affections. This is the meaning of that ancient saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." This is the noble scope of Masonic principle which absorbs every partial selfish feeling, in an expanded comprehensive love to the whole brotherhood of man. What luxury ever equalled that of Job, even in the midst of his misery? "When the eye saw me it blessed me, when the ear heard me it gave witness unto me because I delivered the poor and the fatherless and him that had no helper. The blessing of Him that was ready to perish came upon me and I caused the widow's heart to leap for joy." Brethren, I know not if it is possible to offer up a better prayer for you than that. I know not if we can offer to God a better prayer for ourselves—that when the last trying hour shall have arrived and we are about to die, amidst the shadows that are falling around us, one gleam of light may spring up in the darkness, one ray of hope illumine the gloom, when looking back on the days that are past and remembering the follies we have committed, the mistakes we have made, the opportunities we have lost, the many sins we mourn over, we may at least have this consolation, if we say—"one thing I know, however imperfect I have been, yet there was once a time in my life, when I was followed by the blessing of him who was ready to perish."

Such, then, are the principles—at least some of them—which distinguish Freemasons, and although such virtues may be banished from the face of the earth, and be found nowhere else, I trust, that, amidst all the storms of human life, they may long find an enduring asylum in the Mariners' Lodge of Liverpool.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BENGAL.

A quarterly communication of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal was held at Freemasons' Hall, Calcutta, on Saturday, the 21st of June.

There were present:—Bros. John Pitt Kennedy, Acting Dist. Grand Master; H. H. Locke, and G. H. Daly, Past Deputy Dist. Grand Masters; I. I. Taylor, Dist. G.S.W.; J. Mackintosh, Dist. G.J.W.; D. J. Zemin, Dist. G. Reg.; W. B. Mactavish, Dist. G. Treas.; Rev. Bro. Ety, Dist. G. Chaplain; A. J. Hughes, Dist. G. Sec.; Amos, Dist. G.S.D.; J. C. Parker, Dist. G. Dir. of Cer.; W. H. Jones, Dist. G. Dir. of Cer.; Sebastian, Dist. G. Swd. B.; C. H. Compton, Dist. G. Org.; J. Beer, Dist. G. Par.; L. Guyon, Dist. G. Std. B.; W. H. Ayres, A. Le Franc, and J. M. Evans, Dist. G. Stewards; G. Alexander, Tyler; and representatives of the various lodges in the district.

The District Grand Lodge was opened in due form at 7 p.m.

Apologies were read from several brethren for unavoidable non-attendance.

The Right Worshipful Acting District Grand Master informed the brethren, that the first work before the meeting was to consider and confirm the minutes of the communication of the 21st March last; but that as copies of those minutes had been printed and circulated, he proposed to consider them as read, and moved that they be confirmed.

Bro. C. H. Compton complained that he had not received a copy of the printed proceedings, and that in the summons he had received to attend the present meeting, neither his name nor the date were written in the body of the letter, and that he had only received a copy of the agenda paper that afternoon.

The Right Worshipful Acting District Grand Master feared that it was very possible that some irregularities, of the kind noticed by Bro. Compton, might have occurred, owing, in the first place, to the adjournment of the meeting of the Committee of General Purposes to the 14th June, in consequence of the absence of the District Grand Treasurer; and in the second place, to the dangerous illness of the District Grand Secretary.

Bro. C. H. Compton, District Grand Organist, intimated that he must object to passing the minutes as usual, as he had not received a copy of the same.

The Right Worshipful Acting District Grand Master then ordered the minutes of the proceedings of the last communication to be read.

On the Acting District Grand Secretary commencing to read the minutes, Bro. Compton withdrew his objections, and said he did not wish to give unnecessary trouble, but only to bring before the meeting the fact that irregularities in the Secretary's office had taken place.

Right Wor. Bro. G. H. Daly, P.D. Dist. G.M., remarked that he was by no means sure that Bro. Compton was entitled to a separate copy of the printed proceedings; that, at all events, he was a Warden of a lodge, and that he could vouch to the fact that copies of the proceedings had been circulated to the Masters of lodges for circulation among the Wardens and Members of lodges, and therefore Bro. Compton must have received, or at least, had access to the minutes.

Bro. Compton, District Grand Organist, said he had never heard of their receipt, nor had he ever seen them.

Wor. Bro. H. H. Locke then proposed, and Wor. Bro. G. H. Daly seconded:—That the minutes of the communication of the 21st March, 1873, be confirmed. On being put to the vote they were confirmed.

The District Grand Master then addressed Grand Lodge as follows:—

Worshipful Brethren,—In endeavouring to fulfil, as far as possible, until a more able successor be appointed, the duties of a brother, who has for years occupied this chair, I have felt, and feel very great difficulties, especially considering the qualifications of that brother. We had amongst us a Master of Masonry, of great experience and ability, one who thoroughly knew his position in the Craft and his duties, and carefully performed them. My qualifications, I fear, fall far short of his, not from the want of a hearty desire to do my best in the position which I hold, but from the inability to devote that time to the Craft which the duties of the office require.

I feel it necessary, in the first place, to offer some explanation as to the action I considered it advisable to take on hearing of the death of the Earl of Zetland, our Most Worshipful Past Grand Master. The sister lodges of Madras and Bombay were prompt in mourning on the occasion, and therefore, unless some explanation were given, it might appear that I was guilty of remissness, or of disrespect to the memory of the late Grand Master of England.

I considered that the position of the District Grand Lodge of Bengal was in no way so closely connected with the late Most Worshipful Grand Master as to justify us in adopting measures to mark our respect for him, and our sorrow for his loss as an isolated branch of the Craft; and I did not think we ought to anticipate or suggest the action to be taken by Grand Lodge of England.

The case of the late Lord Mayo was different. He was the local Patron and Head of the Order here, and there could be, in his case, no doubt as to the propriety of putting into mourning the lodges working under the Hiram of the District Grand Master of this Lodge, over which he had presided.*

I have to bring another matter before you, which, at present, promises serious consequences to our Worshipful Brother the District Grand Secretary. The Masonic Almanac instead of proving a source of profit to the Bengal Masonic Fund, has, I am sorry to say, proved a loss, and it has not received anything like that support from the brethren which it has received on previous occasions.

It is not too late to remedy this, and I hope that every brother will take steps to supply himself with an Almanac as soon as possible, and thus we may be quite certain to avoid any unnecessary loss, and, perhaps, the extinction of the Almanac in future years.

I have received a statement of the amount of funds credited to the Fund of Benevolence. It shows that however much Masonry may be said to be falling off in Bengal in other respects, in the main object of charity it is evidently progressing. The collection of the Fund of Benevolence in five years was nearly Rs. 21,000.

The report of the Committee of General Purposes was read.

W. Bro. H. H. Locke said, with reference to the remarks of the Chairman of the Committee of General Purposes, at the committee meeting of the 7th of June, that he would like to come to some definite understanding as to the position of W. Bro. Wood-Mason with regard to the District Grand Treasurership; he would, in fact, like to know whether the District Grand Lodge had a Treasurer or not. He would bring forward a motion on the subject later in the evening.

The E.W. Acting District Grand Master explained that Bro. Wood-Mason had expressed his wish to resign, and he (W. Bro. Kennedy) had expected a formal resignation.

It was then proposed by W. Bro. G. H. Daly, and seconded by W. Bro. D. J. Zemin:—That the report of the Committee of General Purposes and the accounts, be received; and they were passed accordingly.

Report of the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence was also read.

In proposing the adoption of the report, Wor. Bro. H. H. Locke said he had observed with extreme satisfaction, which he felt confident would be shared by every member of District Grand Lodge, that Bro. Roberts had accepted the office of Secretary to Sub-Committee of the Fund of Benevolence. Doubtless there were some present who had had many amicable battles with Bro. Roberts; no one perhaps had had warmer or more frequent fraternal combats with that worthy brother than he himself, but he could not refrain from bearing testimony, in which all would join, to the zeal, energy industry, and ability of this veteran Mason; and he thought it a subject of sincere congratulation that Wor. Bro. Roberts had accepted an office connected with a fund with which his name had been so long and so honourably connected. Wor. Bro. Locke then proposed that the report of the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence be adopted, together with the following resolution:—

On receipt, since, of intimation from the Grand Secretary, the District Grand Lodge and the Lodges subordinate to it have been placed in mourning for a period of six months.

“That the District Grand Lodge records upon the minutes of the proceedings of this communication the satisfaction with which it has received the information of the acceptance, by Wor. Bro. Roberts, of the office of Secretary to the Executive Sub-Committee of the Fund of Benevolence, and that the thanks of the District Grand Lodge be given to Wor. Bro. Roberts for having done so. Seconded by Wor. Bro. Daly, and carried unanimously amid acclamation.

The report of the Committee of the Fund of Benevolence was approved and confirmed.

The meeting then proceeded to discuss the report of the proceedings of a committee appointed by the District Grand Master of Bengal to investigate certain irregularities alleged to have taken place in Lodge Courage with Humanity, No. 392, B.C.

Wor. Bro. H. H. Locke asked if the Master and Wardens of the offending lodge had been formally cited to appear and answer for themselves.

The Acting District Grand Secretary stated that ordinary cards of admission had been sent to them, together with the agenda paper.

It was ultimately determined that the further consideration of this report be deferred until next meeting, and that, in the meantime, a formal summons should be served upon the Master and Wardens, calling upon them to show cause why the proceedings of the committee should not be confirmed.

Wor. Bro. H. H. Locke moved that the District Grand Secretary be instructed to write to Bro. Wood-Mason and ask him if he felt himself able and willing to perform the duties of District Grand Treasurer, in order that if he did not feel himself equal to them, the Right Worshipful Acting District Grand Master might make other arrangements. Wor. Bro. Locke added that he had never seen Bro. Wood-Mason either at any committee meetings, or at any of the communications of District Grand Lodge, all of which it was the duty of the District Grand Treasurer to attend; and that it was most inadvisable that the present state of things should continue. Seconded by Wor. Bro. Zemin.

The Right Worshipful Acting District Grand Master then put the motion to the meeting and it was carried nem con.

Bro. C. H. Compton, District Grand Organist gave notice of motion:—“That at the next quarterly communication he should move that the sum of Rs. 500, forming part of the balance now outstanding to the credit of the Musical Instrument Fund, be transferred from that fund to the Fund of Benevolence.

The Acting District Grand Secretary reported that he had received several notices of exclusion from lodges for non-payment of dues.

There being no further business to be brought forward, the District Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

“CERTAIN STRAIGHT AND INTELLIGIBLE GUIDANCE.”—After the hot season that has just passed by, a mild damp atmosphere will probably follow, and in its train will come fever, sore throat, diphtheria, chest complaints, and rheumatism. Holloway's Ointment well rubbed upon the skin, near the affected part, at once corrects the relaxing and depressing effects of dampness on the constitution and spares sickness; it penetrates to the internal structures, regulates the local circulation, assuages inflammation, soothes irritation, braces relaxed organs and heals ulcerations. Holloway's Pills, simultaneously taken, expedite the cure. In all cases of disease of the lungs, immediate recourse is recommended to Holloway's purifying powerful preparations, which, as already employed, will prevent asthma, consumption and other serious issues.—ADVERT.

"Official Bulletin of the Supreme Council of the 33°, for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States, Vol. 2, No. 2, June, 1873."

This bulletin is intended to be published at intervals of not more than four months, and as much oftener as may be found necessary. It contains information of the action of the Supreme Council at its sessions, the reports made to it, the Statutes adopted, the resolutions, edicts, and decisions of the body, the acts and decisions of the Council of Administration, and the mandates and rulings of the Grand Commander. It contains also the latest information in regard to the doings of Foreign Supreme Councils and Grand Orients. In the miscellaneous section of this bulletin we find the word "cowan" explained, which will interest our Masonic brethren. Some very beautiful poems are also given, including "Haikal Kadosh," "The Narrow Home," "Freemasonry," "The Larger Bliss," "The Dead," "Death," &c. It contains 244 pages, printed on fine paper. The numbers published every two years will constitute a volume.

"The Old Faith and the New: a Confession." By David Friedrich Strauss. London: Asher & Co., 13, Bedford-st., Covent-garden.

The writer very ably expounds on our position towards the old creed, and the fundamental principles of the new Cosmic conception which we acknowledge as ours. He says—"The creed in fact is Christianity. Our first question therefore resolves itself into how and in what sense we still are Christians. Christianity is a definite form of religion, the generic essence of which is distinct from any form; it is possible to have severed oneself from Christianity and still to be religious. Out of this question arises the next, whether we still possess religion. Our second question, concerning the new Cosmic conception also, upon examination, resolves itself into two! in the first place, we would know in what this Cosmic conception consists, on what evidence it rests, and what especially, as compared with the old ecclesiastical views, are its characteristic principles. And in the second place we would learn whether this modern Cosmic conception performs the same service, whether it performs them better or worse than did the Christian dogma for its votaries, whether it is more or less adapted to serve as a basis on which to erect the structure of a truly human, i.e., a moral, and because a moral, a happy life." The following chapters are well written, and give great credit to the writer:—Are we still Christians? Have we still a religion? What is our conception of the Universe? What is our Rule of Life? First appendix: Of our great Poets; second appendix: Of our great Composers. It consists of 440 pages, well printed, on fine toned paper, and is elegantly bound. Altogether it is a good book, brimful of beautiful thoughts, which should be read by all.

"Toussaint L'Ouverture"—A Tragedy, in five acts, by Bro. Joseph Crawley. London, Waterlow & Sons, Great Winchester-street, E.C.

Toussaint, the hero of this tragedy, was born in St. Domingo, in the year 1743; his parents were both slaves, on the plantation of Count Hoe. As Toussaint grew to manhood he enjoyed the advantage of being instructed by an intelligent negro, Pierre Baptiste, in reading, writing, arithmetic, Latin, and Geometry. His character was irreproachable, and his mind of a high moral tone; he gained the confidence of his employer. In 1789, a revolution broke out in St. Domingo; and in course of time the slaves ravaged the Island, but Toussaint refused to join the insurgent blacks, and saved from them the lives of the Count's bailiff, and his family.

The author very beautifully shows in his tragedy how Toussaint, by his character, rose to the highest commands, till Buonaparte in envy pulled him down, and placed him in a dungeon in France, thereby causing his death in 1803. The facts are published in Messrs. Chambers' Tracts, and on this our author has worked, and he has most completely accomplished his purpose. We cordially recommend this work, and compliment Bro. Crawley for his taste and skill in bringing before us such a work.

THE DELECTABLE LAND.

"FANCY."

Come, my love, come, let us hasten away,
To the land of delight were the soft breezes play;
Where the world is forgotten, where love holds her sway,
Come, my love, come, let us hasten away.

O'er the ocean of fancy our bark we will steer,
Whose sky and whose waters for ever are clear;
Where no murmur is heard, no sigh, and no tear,
Then come, my love, come, why still linger here.

'Mong its valleys to wander, its gentle hills climb,
Where no night ever cometh, no ending to time;
Where Nature to please Thee her powers will combine,
My love will be thy love, and thy love be mine.

Then come, my love, come, let us hasten away,
To the land of delight where the soft breezes play;
Through its gardens of roses for ever we'll stray,
Come, my love, come, let us hasten away.

AGED NINE YEARS AND NINE MONTHS.

Son of Bro. Richard Edward Barnes, of 48, Hoxton-square. The said Bro. R. E. Barnes was initiated in the Kent Lodge, No. 125, on the 17th day of November, 1835, and has subscribed thereto 38 years; he has also acted as Honorary Secretary to the same for 35 years; served the office of W.M., and is now the Father of the Lodge.

There are in connection with the College

THREE ANNUAL EXHIBITIONS,

open for general competition to all students, and tenable for three years.

Special Classes are formed for preparing students for the Legal, Medical, Home, Colonial, and Indian Civil Service Examinations; and for entrance to Woolwich, Coopers-hill, and the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Dublin, Durham, and Edinburgh.

The Religious Teaching is based on strictly Protestant Principles, in accordance with the Doctrines and Liturgy of the Church of England.

Students requiring a commercial education only, are exempt from the classical course, if desired.

The year consists of two terms, during which there are no holidays, the only vacations being at Midsummer and Christmas.

The use of all class books, valuable library, stationery (except mathematical instruments) laundry, &c., is included in the terms. No Extras of any kind.

The High School—Students from 16 to 23 years of age.

The Middle School—Students from 12 to 16 years of age.

The Preparatory School—Students under 12 years of age.

The College is divided into three sections. In the PREPARATORY SCHOOL

(entirely distinct, but contiguous)

Boys are well grounded in the elements of a sound English Education, with French and German (also in Latin and Greek if for the learned professions), and prepared for the High or Middle School. In the High School the course of study is a preparation for the Universities and the various competitive examinations; while the Middle School trains pupils in such subjects as will qualify them for scientific and commercial pursuits.

Alston College is pleasantly situated, about six miles from Preston, and half a mile from Longridge Railway Station; is in immediate proximity to beautiful mountain scenery, within half an hour's ride of the chief watering places on the western coast of Lancashire, and is considered by Medical Professors to be in one of the healthiest localities in England—a fact sufficiently proved by the remarkably good health enjoyed by the students and regularly confirmed by the half-yearly medical reports.

Extensive Cricket Grounds are attached to the College Farms, whilst a spacious covered Gymnasium and Student's Hall, available for recreation, drill, &c., adjoin.

Reports of all examinations, together with the names of those students who have distinguished themselves at the College and the Universities, as Exhibitioners, Medalists and Prizemen, also the reports of the late examinations, together with views of the College buildings, and all necessary information, forwarded on application to the Rector, or to

Mr. GEORGE CLIFFORD, Secretary.

References kindly permitted to Bro. Masons, and to the late Examiners: Rev. T. H. Lindsay Leary, M.A., D.C.L. (Oxon), Assistant Examiner to Her Majesty's Civil Service Commission, Crawford Cottage, Epsom; T. W. Eyre Evans, Esq., LL.D.T.C.D., Nightingale Villa, Lower Norwood; and other University Examiners; Professor Pagel, Liverpool; R. Routledge, Esq., B.S.F.C.S., Manchester; also the Protestant Clergy, Nobility, and Professional Gentlemen (parents of present pupils) in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, Bradford, Bognor, Preston, Burnley, Chester, Lancaster, Boston (Lincoln), Wigan, Harrogate, Accrington, Haslingden, Kendal, Southport, Todmorden, &c., and various other towns; the Continent of Europe, the colonies, New York, and the United States, Brazil, Cuba, &c., who can bear ample testimony to the merits and success of this College.

Next term commences the 7th August, 1873.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.
DISEASES OF THE LUNGS AND AIR-VESSELS.
CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.
 Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
 Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."
 This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist Scarborough.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"The Masonic Magazine, a new-comer amongst magazines, appears likely to fill satisfactorily the position to which it aspires, as a monthly digest of Freemasonry. A goodly list of contributors is announced, and the articles appear, as a whole, to be well written, and full of interest to members of the Craft."—City Press, Sept. 13th.

"The Masonic Magazine is a new experiment, and it will no doubt meet with support from the brotherhood. This number contains some fair writing, and acquaints us with certain facts that would make us more favourably disposed towards Freemasonry. The systematic benevolence of the Order is very noticeable. For example, we have here figures showing that the Relief Lodge No. 1, of New Orleans has, during the last eighteen years, distributed £11,028, and if the lodges throughout the world do their benevolence in anything like proportionate measure, the Masonic brotherhood distributes altogether an immense sum annually. Bro. J. G. Findel writes an attractive paper, with some new facts evidently, on "Freemasonry in Germany."—Nonconformist, September 3rd, 1873.

We have received a copy of this new periodical, published by Mr. George Kenning, at 198, Fleet-street, as a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches, and as supplemental to the Freemason, a weekly publication by the same proprietor. This magazine is under the patronage of the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., Grand Master, England, the Earl of Rosslyn, Grand Master Mason, and the Earl of Dalhousie, Past Grand Master Mason, Scotland, Colonel Francis Burdett, representative of Grand Lodge, Ireland, and the Grand Masters of many foreign Grand Lodges. The present number, which is highly promising, opens with an interesting essay "On the Present Position of English Freemasonry," by Bro. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., and contains much other matter of interest to the Craft, which, in the quaint words of a former generation, has been so ennobled that "Great kings, dukes, and lords,

Have laid by their swords,
Our mystery to put a good grace on;
And ne'er been ashamed
To hear themselves named,
With a Free and an Accepted Mason."

We cordially wish success to this new literary effort.—London Mirror.

"It is devoted to the interests of the 'Order,' and gives promise of considerable ability."—Northern Ensign, July 17th.

"We hail a new magazine, devoted to the noble purpose of improving the knowledge and enunciating the principles of Freemasonry, with a fraternal greeting. The present work is well got up and ably edited, and the cost sixpence per month."—Pembrokeshire Advertiser, July 17th.

"This magazine will be welcomed by all Masons as containing a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches."—Peterborough Advertiser, July 19th.

"We commend the magazine to the notice of all who have the objects of Freemasonry at heart."—Ross Gazette, July, 10th.

"The magazine is intended to give a monthly digest of Freemasonry in all its branches, and the first number is very promising."—Western Daily Mercury, July 18th.

"There are several other matters pertaining to the Order, and we anticipate a successful career for the enterprise."—Freeman's Exeter Flying Post, July 23rd.

"This is a new monthly, which we confidently expect will be hailed with delight by the numerous "Brethren of the Mystic Tie," as a seasonable addition to Masonic literature. A casual glance at the list of contributors will show the names of many who have, long before now, made their mark in the literary world on Masonic and non-masonic subjects, and enables us to augur for the new venture a long and successful career. The first paper, by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, sets before the reader in a clear and succinct manner the wonderful antiquity of the Craft, and the vast progress it had made in modern days. As an illustration of the author's style our readers will, perhaps, allow us to quote the following passage on the "Universality of the Craft:—"For strange though it be in itself as a fact, Freemasonry has been found alike in the most civilised and the most uncivilised portions of the world, amid the Arabs of the East, and the Esquimaux of the North, among the aborigines of Australia and North America, as well amid the more polished communities of Europe and Asia. It is not an exaggeration to add that Freemasonry exists in all the four quarters of the globe. Its marks and symbols are traced on the cave of Elephanta and the Temples of Mexico, on the mighty cathedrals and ecclesiastical buildings of all Europe, as well as on the Roman wall, on the Egyptian pyramid, on the remains of Grecian shrines, and the debris of Syrian buildings, on the internal decorations still visible through the whitewash of St. Sophia, and on the underground passages, and skillfully constructed crypts of that sacred building at Jerusalem, so well known to all Freemasons, and still dear to the memory and the heart of some traveller and pilgrim from a far shore, as it was to those who once worshipped in a happier time within its ever holy walls." Space does not allow us to notice the other papers—in prose and verse—although equally interesting; and we can only recommend our readers to take a dip into the magazine for themselves, and we are well assured they will not regret doing so, but we may be excused for hinting that the enterprising and intelligent publisher would make his work still more perfect by paying more attention to the operations of Freemasonry in Scotland and Ireland, not confining the magazine articles to a chronicle of the Craft in England."—Coleraine Chronicle, Aug. 30th.

We are in receipt of the first number of "The Masonic Magazine: A Monthly Digest of Freemasonry in all its Branches," published by Bro. Kenning, of London. In looking at this new Masonic favour, we are struck with the goodly promise that it gives us of the future. Among the list of its contributors we find the names of Hughan, Findel, Lyon, Paton, Woodford, and many others, who have already done good service in the field of Masonic literature; and doubtless will do still more in the pages of the "Masonic Magazine." The present contains many important and instructive articles, one of which, on "Systematic Masonic Benevolence," by Bro. Hughan, we shall transfer to our next number, because its account of the Louisiana Relief Lodge is especially interesting to American readers. We hope that the "Masonic Magazine" will meet with a large patronage on this side of the water. The terms for American subscribers are nine shillings per annum, payable in advance. "George Kenning, 198 Fleet Street, London."—Mackay's National Freemason, Aug. 1873.

We have received the first number (July) of a most important monthly, published by Bro. George Kenning, of London, of which the title in full reads as follows:—"The Masonic Magazine; a monthly Digest of Freemasonry in all its Branches. Under the patronage of the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., M.W. Grand Master, England; the Right Hon. the Earl of Rosslyn, the M.W. Grand Master Mason; the Earl of Dalhousie, K.T.; the M.W. Past Grand Master Mason, Scotland; Col. Francis Burdett, Representative for Grand Lodge of Ireland; and the Grand Masters of many Foreign Grand Lodges." The list of contributors is very ample, including well-known writers and prominent Masons, not only in various parts of Great Britain, but also Paris and Leipzig. The two leading articles in the present number are "The Present Position of English Freemasonry," by the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain, and "The New United Orders" (of Knights Templar), by Joseph H. Woodworth. The crowded state of our columns compels us to omit further reference to this magazine, and to these articles, so interesting to American Masons and Templars. In our next we shall hope to give at least an abstract."—Freemasons' Repository, Aug. 15th.

The first number of this magazine, issued by Bro. George Kenning, at the offices of The Freemason, has reached us, and bears evidence of careful editorial supervision. We have attentively perused the contents, and have no hesitation in saying that it has a legitimate claim upon the consideration of the Craft at home and abroad. The articles are well written, and cannot fail to interest those for whose special delectation it is designed. In future numbers the introduction of a few short notes upon current events in the Masonic world would be to the reader an acceptable feature."—Sunday Times, July 20th.

"The magazine has begun well, and the immense popularity of the Order is perhaps one of the best guarantees of its success."—North Norfolk and Yarmouth Constitutionalist, July 19th.

"There are several contributions of a nature tending to interest Freemasons, and by this body the publication will, doubtless, be well patronized."—North Wilts Herald, July 19th.

"We need not, however, run through the whole of the articles, which make up the number, but would merely add that the affair is well got up, and deserving of success."—Norwich Argus, July, 1873.

"Societies and customs, such as those connected with Freemasonry, have a curious and highly interesting history, and the present magazine bids fair to provide valuable sketches of their past and present condition."—Nottingham Daily Guardian, July 18th.

"All the articles are well written and interesting."—Orkney Herald, July 9th.

"The first number is full of promise and full of interest. Such a magazine will supply a great want in the Masonic world."—Poole and South Western Herald, July 17th.

"The "Masonic Magazine" undoubtedly possesses many attractions which Masonic readers will not fail to appreciate."—Somerset County Herald, July 19th.

"We have great pleasure in commending it to the notice of the Masonic brethren as being a first-class magazine."—Ryde News, July 19th.

"It deserves commendation, and is likely to receive a cordial reception."—South Wales Weekly Telegram, July 11th.

"The entire contents will be of great interest to the Masonic reader."—Staffordshire Daily Sentinel, July 15th.

"It will no doubt, be welcomed by all members of the Craft."—Stroud News, Aug. 8th.

OCTOBER ELECTION, 1873.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The generous support and influence of the Governors and Subscribers to the above Institution is earnestly and respectfully solicited at the ensuing election in October, on behalf of

AGED NINE YEARS AND NINE MONTHS.

Son of Bro. Richard Edward Barnes, of 48, Hoxton-square. The said Bro. R. E. Barnes was initiated in the Kent Lodge, No. 15, on the 17th day of November, 1855, and has subscribed thereto 38 years; he has also acted as Honorary Secretary to the same for 35 years; served the office of W.M.; and is now the Father of the Lodge.

He joined the United Mariners' Lodge, No. 50, on the 4th day of November, 1845; subscribed thereto 28 years; and is also the Father of that Lodge.

He was also exalted in the Union Waterloo Chapter, No. 13, on the 20th day of July, 1842; served the office of M.E.Z.; has acted as Scribe E. for 30 years; and is now the Father of the Chapter.

He was for upwards of 30 years master and proprietor of Hoxton Educational Institution, Hoxton-square, a profession and position he was gradually compelled to relinquish, in consequence of the erection by public subscription, within a few hundred yards of his own establishment, of a large middle-class school, capable of accommodating 1000 boys, with which he was totally unable to compete.

He is now partially employed as clerk in a savings bank, at a salary totally inadequate to meet the necessities of his family, consisting of a wife and three children, entirely dependent upon him for support.

The subjoined List of Brethren beg most earnestly to solicit your favourable consideration and support:—

- Bro. Peter Matthews, P. Prov. S.G.W., Essex, P.M. 11 and 30.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

BRADFORD.—Shakespeare Lodge (No. 1018).—The regular monthly meeting of the members of this lodge was held on the 14th May last, in the Freemasons' Hall, Salem-st., under the presidency of Bro. G. Althorp, W.M., assisted by Bros. W. Longley, S.W.; G. W. Monckman, J.W.; W. Morgan, S.D.; H. Harrison, I.G.; W. H. Haley, Sec.; and Harrison, Treasurer. There were present also—Bros. J. Ward, P.M., P. Prov. G. Reg.; T. Laycock, P.M.; C. Bannister, P.M., P.G.S.B. of E.; W. Wren, P.M.; A. Nicholson, P.M.; J. B. Hammond, H; R. C. Latimer, Ferrand, Swithenbank, W. Whaley, Milnes, S. Priestly, J. M. Parkinson, and others. The lodge was opened in the three degrees, and in pursuance of previous notice, Bro. J. M. Parkinson was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, according to ancient usage. The lodge was lowered to the first degree, and after some discussion on the finances of the lodge, was closed in due form. The brethren afterwards adjourned to refreshment, and spent a very pleasant evening. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly honoured. The special toast of the evening however, was that of "Bro. J. Laycock, P.M., on his return from a voyage to the Cape, in South Africa." This toast was proposed by the W.M., who referred to the circumstance of Bro. Laycock having been two years Master of the lodge, and to his having been a member, and taking an active part in its affairs from its foundation. Bro. Laycock, as the brethren all knew had been travelling abroad with an invalid brother, and in the name and on behalf of the members of the lodge he begged to render him a hearty welcome on his safe return. The toast was received with enthusiasm. Bro. Laycock thanked the brethren for the very cordial reception given to the toast and himself on his return from Cape Town. After referring in touching terms to his having left England months ago in company with his brother, who had been recommended to travel for the benefit of his health, and who had died very suddenly and unexpectedly on his return voyage from Cape Town, he gave a very interesting account of his visit to various lodges in the Colony, and his reception by the brethren there. Amongst other places Bro. Laycock went to Cape Town, Beaufort West, Bloemfontein Potchefstroom, and Natal, all in South Africa. At Cape Town he visited the British and the Joppa Lodges, and at Bloemfontein the Rising Sun, Lodge, and a Dutch Lodge, called Unia. Bro. Laycock dwelt in very warm terms on the great kindness shown to him by the brethren of all these lodges.

LANCASTER.—The Duke of Lancaster Lodge (No. 1353)—The brethren of this lodge held their regular meeting on the 17th inst. in the Lodge Room, Athenæum. Present Bro. J. Bell, W.M.; Bro. W. Heald, S.W.; Bro. Jos. Barrow J.W.; Bro. John Acton, Hon. Sec.; Bro. J. Conlon S.D.; Bro. R. Wolfenden J.D.; Bro. I. H. Williams J.G.; and a goodly number of brethren, and visiting Bro. John Hatch, P.M., 281. There were two raisings, two passings, and one initiation. Bro. P.M. J. Hatch gave the two raisings, and one passing, in his usual able and efficient manner. The brethren feeling so pleased, they passed a vote of thanks to Bro. P.M. Hatch, for his kindness and assistance. After further business had been transacted, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer.

CLAPTON LODGE. (No. 1365).—A very numerous body of the members and friends of this lodge assembled on the 17th inst. at the White Hart Tavern, Clapton. The Clapton Lodge has met with an immense amount of success since its consecration, two years ago, having been presided over by two brethren of marked Masonic ability, who have been most ably assisted throughout by one of the most able and energetic Secretaries we have ever had the pleasure of meeting. An emergency meeting was held a few evenings previously for the purpose of clearing off the business of the lodge, so that the ceremony of installation of the W.M. elect should be the main feature of the meeting, and be conducted throughout without hurry or confusion. On this occasion the lodge was opened at four o'clock by the W.M. Bro. Wm. Stephens, and the minutes of the last regular and emergency meetings were read and confirmed. Afterwards the ceremony of initiation was worked, the candidate being Mr. Thomas Thompson, who was duly inducted into Freemasonry, Bro. Stephens' working being excellent. The W.M. elect, Bro. R. C. Miles, was then presented by Bro. Taylor, the first W.M. of the lodge, and in due time placed in the chair of K. S. Bro. Stephens' working of the ceremony was much appreciated and applauded. During the ceremony the Warden's chairs were filled by Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, Grand Pursuivant and J. L. Mather, P.M. 95 and 1,227. The newly-installed W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bro. Lutwyche, S.W.; R. Wyatt, J.W. In making this appointment the W.M. stated that the rapid promotion of Bro. Wyatt from Junior Deacon to Junior Warden was owing to the generous self-abnegation of Bro. H. W. Cattlin, who was in reality entitled to the Junior Warden's chair, but that brother being already Junior Warden in the Royal Standard, his mother lodge, had no desire to hold both appointments at the same time, and had very gracefully allowed Bro. Wyatt to become a Warden, and consequently a member of Grand Lodge, twelve months sooner than under other circumstances would have been the case. Bro. Richard Buller, P.M. was loudly applauded as the W.M. placed the Secretary's collar for the third time round his neck, and a similar token of approbation greeted Bro. Cattlin on his resumption of his former office of Senior Deacon. Bro. Somers was appointed J.D.; Bro. Room, I.G.; Bro. J. McDavitt, Organist; Bro. Paul, D.C.; Badkin, W.S.; and Gilchrist, Tyler; all appointments evidently being popular with the bulk of the brethren. When the final charges and addresses had been delivered the lodge was regularly closed down, and the brethren repaired to the banquetting hall, where a repast had been prepared by Bro. Harwood, the proprietor of the establishment. Bro. Miles, the new W.M., presided. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were received with enthusiasm. The health of the retiring Master, Bro. Stephens, was the toast of the evening, and the W.M., in proposing it, did full justice to the many amiable qualities and valued services of that brother, which he assured him were fully appreciated by his brethren of the Clapton Lodge, as he would soon have an opportunity of judging. He then placed on the breast of Bro. Stephens a very beautiful Past Master's jewel in gold, and handed him a jewel case containing a costly brooch and earrings; the case bore an inscription stating that the presentation was made in token of the respect and esteem in which, Mrs. Stephens was held by her friends in Freemasonry. A surprise awaited Bro. Stephens, when a beautiful testimonial on vellum was presented to him in addition to those other substantial marks of regard. The presentation of this testimonial was a secret known to very few in the lodge, and Bro. Stephens was certainly not one of them. His reply in return was manly, modest, and effective, and he assured the brethren what he had received that evening would be cherished as amongst his dearest possessions. The toast of "The Grand Offices" was responded to by Bro. Cottebrune, and that of "The Masonic Charities" by Bro. R. W. Little, P.G. Sec. Middlesex, and Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. McDavitt and other brethren delighted the company with their musical exertions. Amongst others present, besides those already named, were Bros. E. Coste, P.M., 9; J. C. Goldsmith, 3. W., and E. B. Grabham, I.G., 19; W. Y. Laing, P.M., 45, and 160, S.C.; A. J. Ireton, 83; C. Fox, 538; Greenwood, 749; G. W. Watkinson, 813; H. Lloyd, W.M.; and W. Christian, 1278; W. T. Manger, S.W., 1314; J. Summers, S.W., 1348; W. Baldwin, J.W., 1,423, &c.

MILLOM.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The regular communication of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 16th inst., when there were present, the W.M., Bro. Thomas Dodgson, P.M. 995, supported by Bros. Mills, S.W.; Meredith J.W.; Crook, S.D.; Myers Meakin, J.D.; Whiteside, W.M. 1398, I.G.; and other officers and brethren, amongst whom was visiting Bro. Dr. J. V. Worthington, W.M., Lodge of Harmony, No. 220, Garston.

The lodge was opened by the W.M., and the usual business disposed of, when the ballot was taken for Bro. John Hartely, as a joining member, and for Mr. George Mills, a candidate for admission, which in both cases proved favourable. The latter being in attendance was duly initiated into the order in a very impressive manner by Bro. J. V. Worthington, W.M. 220, Bro. Casson, P. Org. 995, acting in a most efficient manner as Organist. Several propositions for joining and admission were afterwards received and hearty good wishes were expressed by brethren representing Lodges 220, 280, 993, and others. The general business being disposed, of the lodge was duly closed in the usual form.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—The first meeting of this new lodge took place at the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark-bridge-road, on Tuesday evening, the 16th inst., and was well attended by brethren interested in every fresh undertaking in connection with the Order. The lodge was opened soon after 7 o'clock by Bro. Chas. Smith, the Worshipful Master, assisted by the following officers:—Bros. Geo. Mattock, S.W.; J. J. Cantle, J.W.; C. S. Jolly, Sec.; Edward Thurkle, Treas.; C. F. Poupard, S.D.; Louis Cornelissen, J.D.; William Ashwell, I.G.; and Geo. Fox, P.M., Tyler. Bro. John Noke, 87, acted as Past Master. The minutes taken at the consecrating and installing meeting, in July last, having been read, were confirmed by the brethren. The balloting for the admission of Messrs. T. Cox, T. F. Knight, Smyth, and Chas. Nott, resulted in favour of the candidates, who were soon after separately introduced into the Order, the ceremony being impressively worked. Bro. Robert Forster, 548, was also admitted as a joining member of the lodge. There being no farther business to be transacted, the lodge was closed, according to prescribed rule, the brethren remaining for a short time, at the invitation of the W.M., to hear the excellent pianoforte playing of Bro. Smyth, one of the initiates, and the vocalisation of Bro. J. J. Cantle, J.W. of the lodge.

WALTHAM (HERTS).—King Harold Lodge.—This prosperous lodge met at the Britannia Hotel, New Town Waltham, Herts, on the 16th inst. There was a full muster of members, and the business of the evening was to raise four brethren, which ceremony was efficiently rendered by the W.M., Bro. Edward Parker, Prov. G.P. Herts; the names of the brethren being, Soul, Imrie, Miller, and Malcolm; also to elect the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year. Bro. James Kerr Young, was elected W.M.; Bro. James Barwick, Treasurer, was re-elected; and Bro. Steedman, to fill the office of Tyler, owing to the resignation, through failing health, of Bro. W. Allison, for whom the King Harold Lodge entertained the highest respect. The W.M. elect thanked the W.M. and brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him in electing him to the chair. Bro. Young has always been most energetic in his exertions for the benefit of this lodge and was one of its founders. Bro. Barwick has been Treasurer of the King Harold since its consecration in September, 1870, and has always been most highly esteemed. On the completion of business the lodge was closed, and the brethren retired for refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk and heartily responded to, and the evening was enlivened with some excellent harmony. The brethren, after spending a very pleasant evening, retired at an early hour. The brethren were:—Bros. E. Parker, the W.M., Prov. G.P. Herts.; E. West, P. Prov. G.S.D., Herts.; Lacy, P.M., S.W. (W.M. No. 1421); J. W. H. Evans, J. W.; W. Gilbert, S.D.; Barwick, Treasurer; Reilly, Secretary; Copeland, I.G.; Allison, Tyler; and Bros. Auher, Barnett, Bowyer, Burge, Calvert, Carter, A. PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WARWICKSHIRE.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire took place at Coventry, on Tuesday, 16th inst.

The members of the lodge assembled about noon in good numbers, at the New Free Library, in order to transact the usual routine business, under the presidency of Lord Leigh.

This part of the proceedings, which included the election of officers for the year, having been accomplished by about half-past three o'clock, a procession of members was formed, and they at once proceeded to St. Michael's Church, where a special service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Baynes, and a sermon preached by the Hon. and Rev. J. W. Leigh, late vicar of Stoneleigh, both members of the fraternity.

Some time previous to the hour appointed for the procession, a large crowd of persons had assembled outside the building, in order to witness the departure, and it was evidently a ceremony of no ordinary interest to them. The varied regalia of the members had a very striking effect, and many of the decorations created almost a state of admiration among the spectators. A large number of persons followed the procession in church, and listened to the service, which was conducted in an impressive and appropriate manner. The singing of the choir was even better than usual, and the anthem was given with excellent effect. There were five or six ministers present in their regalia.

The Trinity Lodge, No. 254, was opened at half-past two o'clock, the Right Worshipful the Prov. Grand Master and his Officers were then received, and the Prov. G. Lodge was opened at three o'clock.

The lodges and roll of Provincial Grand Officers were then called, and the minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge, which was held at the Faithful Lodge, No. 474, Birmingham, on March 31st last, were read and confirmed.

The reports of the Audit Committee and the Benevolent and Annuity Fund Committee were received, and the applications for relief, recommended by the latter committee, were considered and decided upon.

The lodge next determined which of the candidates for the Masonic Charities should receive the support of the province at the next election. The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master having fixed the place of meeting of the next Provincial Grand Lodge, the Provincial Grand Lodge adjourned and attended Divine Service.

The service having been concluded, the rev. gentleman took his text from 1st Epistle of St. James, and the 27th verse, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." The apostle in this chapter informed us how we may distinguish between a vain religion and one which was approved by God. There were many differences existing in the world on this subject—what religion was pure and undefiled. Whatever diversity of opinion there may be respecting the words and the doctrines the apostle here gave, there was one great distinguishing mark to go by, and one which the majority of men who had any profession of religious faith, would be ready to admit. The preacher then went on to point out that that religion was vain which was made up of mere pomp and show, and a man that followed a vain religion was sure to be the first to revile his neighbours. The pure and undefiled religion, then, was "to visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted before the world." Brethren, he said, let us see then whether this fraternity, to which we belong, does not endeavour to carry out the precepts here laid down by the apostle. It teaches us to do everything in the presence of God, and to endeavour to regulate our action by his precepts. True religion pointed out our duty toward God, our neighbour, and ourselves; it teaches us to practice charity to the poor and distressed, to relieve the destitute, to soothe the afflicted, and to do to others what we should that they should do unto us. The fatherless and the widows were particularly mentioned, because they were the most apt to be neglected; but we are also to understand all proper objects of charity. Now, let us consider whether these precepts are to be in accordance with the principles and aims of the honourable Order to which we belong. Do they not inculcate these great duties? Do they not impress upon you the necessity of cultivating brotherly love? and not to backbite and slander our fellow men. Do they not urge you to exercise that most beautiful charity, to hold the hand of fellowship to a brother in distressed circumstances, and on all occasions to relieve the wants of the fatherless and widows? It may not be out of place to say a few words as to the best means of administering our charity. There are in this land many who are ready to give, and to give liberally from their substance; yet there are many who from ignorance or want of proper care misplace their charity. It was an important matter, not only to do good to our fellow-creatures, but that we should find out the best way of doing it. It is surprising to see how many men are deceived by the mere sentiments of humanity, to the belief that they are human. It may, perhaps, be better not to give at all than to give promiscuously, but it were far better to help some poor family struggling against the world for existence; to help the widow and the fatherless, old people incapable of labour, and orphans. After pointing out that men only knew of the misfortunes of others from what he heard, and not from what he himself saw, he said many men were charitable in order to enjoy the luxury and gratitude of their fellows. Speaking of the distribution of charity, he said there had been associations and charity organisation societies started, with the object of seeing relief more equitably distributed, but he doubted whether there was a grander or more noble association than this. Masonry did try to distribute the contributions of its members, on the most judicious principles. Look at those noble institutions, School for Boys and Girls, and the asylums for decayed men and women, were they not living examples of what they had been doing? And if anyone doubted it, let him visit those asylums and schools and see for himself with what care, and perseverance, and tenderness, and affection they are watched over. By so doing he would learn one great secret of Freemasonry: that of performing a charity in the best way. They were not merely a band of brothers meeting together for personal gratification, or a mysterious or secret order organised for the purpose of revolutionising society, the government, or the Church. But it was a society which endeavoured to carry out the precepts of true religion by "visiting the fatherless and widows in affliction," "to fear God and to honour the King." He then spoke of the second part of his text—to keep themselves unspotted from the world. Did not Masonry teach them to exalt those talents with which God had blest them? Did it not urge them to place a bridle upon their actions? to use the faculties that God had given them to the exaltation of chastity and virtue? And to finally prepare themselves when called before the great tribunal, when they would be judged by their works? There were men, he regretted to say, who did not live up to the noble objects taught by their system, but that was not a fault of Masonry. What we required in this world was more light, and their system desired to make them lights of the world. The great characteristics of Masons were temperance; fortitude, prudence, and justice; the principles on which it was founded were brotherly love and truth; and the grand Christian as well as Masonic motto, faith, hope, and charity. So that when they had finished trials on earth they might at length pass to the Grand Lodge above, and take their place with the World's Great Architect.

A short interval ensued after the service, and then a banquet, supplied by Mr. John Hall, of the Castle Hotel, took place in St. Mary's Hall. It was served up in a superior style, under the superintendance of Mr. Hill, of the Draper's Hall. The courses consisted of the most innumerable delicacies, and previous to the company being seated the tables presented a magnificent appearance. They and the room were beautifully decorated with some choice flowers from Stoneleigh Abbey. Covers were laid for 120, the plate, glass, and cutlery being supplied by Mr. Hedger of the Broadgate.

Lord Leigh presided, and he was supported by D. Prov. G.M. Col. Machen, on his right, and W.M. of the Trinity Lodge, Bro. Mulloney on the left.

His Lordship proposed "The Queen," "The Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family," and "The Grand Lodge of England." The latter toast was responded to by Bro. Wheeler, Prov. G.O.

The Rev. Canon Baynes proposed the Provincial Grand Master of Warwickshire," which having been cordially drunk,

His Lordship suitably responded to the toast.

The Rev. F. M. Beaumont proposed "The Deputy Provincial Grand Master and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire," to which

Col. Machen made an excellent response.

Lord Leigh proposed "The W.M. of Trinity Lodge and Success to the Lodge."

Bro. Mulloney, W.M., responded in a short speech.

Bro. A. E. Fridlander, in a eulogistic speech, proposed "The Health of the Hon. and Rev. J. W. Leigh." He alluded to the high esteem in which he was held by all who knew him, and more particularly those by whom in his own parish he was more immediately surrounded. He regretted his departure for America, and hoped he might return safely.

The Hon. and Rev. J. W. Leigh, in his response, said he took his departure much more unwillingly from the knowledge of the many friends he left behind him; however it would afford him much consolation to know that he was kindly remembered by the friends at home. He hoped he might be permitted to rejoin them again.

His Lordship proposed "The Visitors," and the toast was responded to by Bro. W. G. Griffiths, P. Prov. S.G.W.

"The Masonic Charities" was the subject of another toast proposed by Col. Machen, and responded to by Bro. Binckes, Secretary to the Boys' School. He eulogised the Warwickshire Masons for the great amount they had subscribed to the Masonic Boys' School, and alluded in glowing terms to the usefulness of the Institution.

The Tyler's toast, by Lord Leigh, concluded the toast list.

Bros. Kennedy, Insall, and Croydon sang capital songs during the evening.

Votes of thanks were passed to the Mayor for the use of the hall, and Mr. Gulson for the use of the Free Library Building.

MASONIC EPISODE IN REAL LIFE.

Previous to the late war, there lived in the North a Mason of the 32nd grade, known as Richard Balcom; a gentleman held in high esteem by his confrères, of sterling integrity, genial and prepossessing manners, in fact, a generous, whole-souled gentleman; but with these excellent qualities he had a fiery and imperious temper, prompt to resent insult, furious if a friend's honour or character were attacked.

On one occasion the W.M. of his lodge indulged in language of a disparaging nature in regard to an absent member, an intimate associate of Balcom, who, conceiving it to be his imperative duty, resented the course pursued by the W.M. toward his absent friend, in a violent manner, and in strong terms, condemning the W.M.'s actions. High words ensued, and if others had not interfered the result might have been serious. So great a breach of discipline could not pass unnoticed. Charges were preferred, and a commission appointed, resulting in the expulsion of Balcom.

About two months thereafter business matters demanded the attention of Balcom in Peru. His old Masonic friends, in large numbers, notwithstanding the Masonic interdiction, assembled at the wharf to bid him "God speed" on his journey. When he left New York he expected to return within six months, but business affairs proved so remunerative that he resolved to remain on the Pacific. Matters prospered with him, and in a few years he was one of the wealthiest merchants on that coast. He had thoroughly mastered the language of the country, and had great influence with the government, in consequence of valuable services rendered on various occasions. He married into one of the best families of Lima, and resolved to spend the remainder of his days among a people who honoured and appreciated him.

In the fall of 1865, four persons were arrested by the authorities of Lima, a short distance outside the city, and when they were brought up for examination, Balcom, who happened to be present, at once recognised them as his countrymen, and, judging from their appearance, men of character. He obtained an adjournment of the case in order to secure an interview with the accused, and the privilege was accorded.

Balcom had already ascertained that one of the number accused, Norval Prince, was a Mason. From him he learned all the facts of the case. Suffice it to say, the arrest was a mistake, and Balcom was enabled, by his knowledge, to obtain all the necessary evidence, and the prisoners were honourably discharged.

After their release, Balcom invited them to partake of his hospitality, which was gratefully accepted, and shortly after the three friends departed, leaving Bro. Prince at Balcom's house.

After their departure, Balcom held out to Bro. Prince inducements to remain and engage in business in Lima. He did so, and by the assistance of Balcom, succeeded beyond his most sanguine expectations. Thus they remained for two years, few men being so fondly attached to each other's society. One day Bro. Prince said:

"My dear Balcom, why have you always shown such marked partiality to me, to the exclusion of all others?"

"You are a Mason."

"I am; how did you know that? You have never given me any indication that you were one."

"Do you recollect when first brought before the magistrate you made a movement—a mute appeal—which all Masons understand, and which none can disregard?"

"I do now recollect. Well?"

"That appeal was seen and noted by others as well as myself, and may account in a measure for kind receptions on several occasions by those who were strangers to you."

"My dear brother, you knew that I was a Mason, and yet never made yourself known. I cannot understand it. How many happy hours we might have passed in pleasant intercourse on Masonry."

"We have had our first and last conversation on that subject; from this time forth you must never again allude to Masonry in my presence—in fact, you cannot, which you will readily understand, when I inform you that I am an expelled Mason."

The surprise of Bro. Prince at this announcement was indescribable. He could not realise that such a gentleman could not be guilty of any fault that demanded such a penalty.

Balcom then related to him all the details of his quarrel, trial and expulsion, and again enjoined his friend against referring to matters relating to the Order. Bro. Prince protested in the most earnest manner against his decision, but Balcom was firm.

Bro. Prince then resolved to know more of the matter, and learning that an old friend was a member of the lodge to which Balcom had formerly belonged, he lost no time in writing to him, asking all particulars in regard to Balcom and his trial, and what course was necessary to have him restored. The response arrived while Bro. Prince was immersed in business, but seizing his hat, he rushed from his office in a state of agitation that induced the clerks to suppose that he had been seized by a sudden fit of madness.

With all speed, he reached the residence of Balcom, trembling with excitement, and some time elapsed before he could speak coherently; but, becoming as quiet as the circumstances permitted, he said,

"Bro. Balcom, (mark I use the term brother) six months ago you interdicted me from speaking on Masonic subjects. I hereby dissolve that injunction myself, and intend hereafter to talk of Masonry on all occasions when in your society."

"I sincerely regret that you have resolved to adopt that course; although it would deeply grieve me to sever the ties of friendship that have bound us together so pleasantly, yet my duty to you and my sense of honour demands this sacrifice, if you persist in your resolution."

"But, my dear brother, all I have in the world, my success in life, is wholly due to you. You, of all Masons have been the truest; we shall not part, nor refrain from talking on Masonic matters; on the contrary, you will this evening accompany me to our lodge rooms, where I predict you will have a grand reception."

Balcom was now thoroughly alarmed, being impressed with the idea that some undue excitement in business had produced temporary aberration of mind, but he said, soothingly:

"Come, Prince, you are labouring under some strong agitation; be quiet for a while. You must be aware what you say is not in accordance with your usual good sense."

"On the contrary, I am talking sound sense. Please peruse that document and then accuse me of talking nonsense."

Bro. Prince placed a paper in the hand of his friend, to which a seal was attached. He opened the paper in surprise, and with happiness beaming from his noble countenance, for a moment he was entirely wrapt in his own emotions. Suddenly extending his hand to Bro. Prince, while his moistened eyes exhibited his gratification, he said:

"My dear brother, to you, then, I am indebted for one of the happiest moments of my life."

It appears that after the departure of Bro. Balcom from his native city, sympathy for his position rose to the highest pitch in the lodge, and the W.M. asked for Bro. Balcom's restoration, which was unanimously acceded to within a month after his departure, and under an excitement seldom witnessed in a Masonic body. It was generally understood that Bro. Balcom would return in six months, and a surprise was organised to meet him on his return, and give him an ovation, the W.M. to make the welcoming speech; but as they received no information from Bro. Balcolm or his whereabouts, they could not communicate with him, and he remained impressed for eight years that he was still under the ban of expulsion, and but for the happy interference of Bro. Prince, would probably have never been the wiser.

Bro. Balcolm, who was already a 32°, affiliated with the bodies of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, the only one known in the country, while Bro. Prince, who was a K.T., affiliated with the symbolic lodge, and petitioned for advancement in the Ineffable Grades. He advanced as rapidly as could be expected, having in three years attained the 18° grade, and now, after a probation of three years, expects shortly to obtain the 32°.

The above was related to us by Bro. Prince, about eight months ago, and, in the present controversy now existing in reference to the status of unaffiliated Masons in the new statutes of the Grand Lodge, called the same to mind.

The brothers, Balcolm and Prince, still live, and are highly honoured members of the community in which they reside, devoted to our noble Order, and vying with each other in dispensing charity to the poor, distressed, and destitute.

Would that our Fraternity had more members like Bro. Balcolm. Masonry had dissolved its connection with him and absolved itself of all control so far as he was concerned; yet he, true to his obligation, never renounced his part of the contract. He acted toward Masons as if they were still his brothers, when aid and assistance was required, and believed in that old, but now almost obsolete, legend, "Once a Mason always a Mason."—New York Dispatch.

PRESENTATION to Bro. S. H. WAGSTAFF P.M. 1216,

On Tuesday evening 16th inst, a number of ladies and gentlemen connected with the well known firm of the celebrated Wheeler and Wilson Sewing Machine, whose chief office is 43, St. Paul's Church-yard, met together at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, to present an address beautifully illuminated on vellum, and handsomely framed, on the occasion of Bro. Wagstaff's leaving England; he having been chosen by the firm to represent them in further developing their business in the Indian Empire, for which place he started on Thursday, the 18th inst., in the P. and O. Company's splendid steamer Mizan, from Southampton. A most recherché banquet having been provided, at which the much respected general manager and representative of the firm in Great Britain, Bro. R. Hunting of the Harmony Lodge, U.S.A., presided. The cloth having been cleared the chairman rose and in a most feeling and complimentary manner, alluded to the long connection of Bro. Wagstaff with the firm, and of their high appreciation of his valuable services, as proof of which, they had retained him for the important and responsible mission which was fully expressed in the address which he had now the pleasure to present, it having been prepared by his co-assistants in the establishment, as a mark of the great respect, in which he was held by them. Bro. Wagstaff, who was much affected, stated that he thought he was better constituted to face a danger than to be the recipient of so much kindness, which, however, he highly appreciated, and thanked them for, and should prize more than anything they could have offered him, as he could hand that down to his posterity with pride and pleasure. After several complimentary toasts were drunk, chiefly referring to the wonderful resources and development of the sewing machine, the company separated, pleased with the evening's entertainment and reassured of the good feelings of the firm towards their assistants, and their readiness to recognise faithful service.

THE CHARITY JEWEL.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

At the quarterly communication of Grand Lodge on the 4th of June last, the Grand Master is reported to have made a change, in or an addition to the existing system, under which brethren are entitled to the rights and privileges as to wearing the Charity Jewel or clasps.

I have no doubt that those cognisant of the existing system will "recognise the wisdom of the change," but, from my communication with Provincial brethren, I am inclined to believe that there are many, like myself entirely in the dark as to the existing system.

If therefore you can throw any light upon this subject it will be appreciated by your readers.

I am Sir, yours faithfully,

THE LAST ROMAN CATHOLIC ATTACK ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your recent leader on "The Last Roman Catholic Attack on Freemasonry," is certainly called for, and it is a matter much to be deplored that amongst ourselves in the Craft, there should be any bickering. We should be united, and not allow the disputes amongst the higher degrees to undermine the strength of our free and liberal institution.

The Roman Catholic Press may attempt to ridicule Masonry, but their ridicule comes with a bad grace, from those whose ceremonial is a tissue of deceptions and mummeries. At any rate, we Freemasons do not call railway excursions with lots of provender, "Pilgrimages," and the Masonic titles of our officers are not a whit less dignified, than those of homeless ecclesiastics, who parade fantastical costumes, give themselves out as His Grace of So and So—and assume territorial jurisdiction, where our honest lieges laugh them to scorn, and where an aggrieved boot-black may summons "His Eminence of Anywhere" before a sitting magistrate for obstructing the way!

These poor mediavalists, may catch a stray legacy, or cajole an old lady without brains, and an uneasy conscience, but they know very well in their own hearts, that the heart of England is sound, and that Freemasonry is no insignificant means of keeping it so—hence their childish rage and jealousy.

Nothing is easier than to write reams of what are called, "funny articles," against Freemasonry. A little flippancy, and a very small stock of knowledge, is sufficient for the purpose, but for one absurdity in the ceremonial of Freemasonry we can point out a dozen instances of the most ridiculous description in the Roman Catholic Church, and as for the sneer of the Westminster paper, about the "diamond merchant," what is this to compare with the systematic pumping of the poor, for "Peter's pence?" But there happens to be no such individual as "the diamond merchant," whereas we know of many dupes, who give up their dinners, on pretence of a fast, in order that the money which would have bought them, may be less felt, on its transfer to Peter's pocket.

Yours fraternally,

S.

SPIRITUALISM.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If Brother Buchan has never seen nor heard of any "so called spiritualistic phenomena" but what might have been accomplished by living persons present, without the aid of any disembodied spirit, he is quite right in refusing to refer them to the agency of such spirits. But surely his ignorance of veritable spiritualistic phenomena is not necessarily to be taken as the measure of my convictions. He cannot reasonably be expected to believe in what he has neither seen nor heard of, but he can hardly take upon himself to aver that others, who have seen and heard much that he has not, are to deny the evidence of their senses, because their experience has extended far beyond his. If he should ever happen to hold conversations of from two to three hours in length with some unseen intelligent power, which declares itself to be a spirit, which had inhabited a body, and which in that body bore a certain name, as my wife and I have done for six several evenings, no other person being present—conversations in which facts and directions were given which saved a family from ruin—he will say "yes" with as little hesitation as I now do.

Meanwhile, I am quite content to bear the reproach of the "credulous" and "deluded."

OUR JOURNEY.

Though rough be the path on our journey through life,

Yet, 'twill be bright if we look well before us;
'Tis a leap in the dark, or neglect on the road,
That bringeth such black shadows o'er us.

We are taught to be true to mankind and ourselves,

And apportion each day for prayer, rest and labour,

To assist on the road those who are weary and tired,

Also, extend hand of friendship to neighbour.

See, the man who is selfish and looks but to gain,
Or the idle who will beg, steal, or borrow,
The improvident man, who spends all to-day,
And the thoughtless, who heeds not the morrow.

These are the lost on the road, and need help, Save! or their journey will be in darkness and
woe;

Look well as you travel, and help when you can,
For rich is the harvest you skilfully sow.

Treat all men as brothers, alike rich and poor;
Be slow to anger, but quick to forgive;
If rich, help the needy; if poor, envy not
The wealth of thy neighbour, but struggle to live.

Should misfortune o'ertake you never despair,
Look steadfast before you may distance her yet,
Onward! then onward! faithful, earnest and true,
Remember that life is with trouble beset.

A FREEMASON'S SONG.

I'm a merry hearted Mason,
Oh, yes, indeed I am;
Always pleased to meet a brother,
And do the best I can.

Chorus.

Then here's a health to all true Masons,
Wherever they may be;
May fortune smile upon them;
On the land, and on the sea.

I promote the welfare of the Craft,
By acting on the square;
And treat with kindness every man,
No matter when or where.

In every clime the Craft is known,
In every place we find a brother;
And with advice and purse untied,
We love and cherish one another.

Then here's a health to all true Masons,
Wherever they may be;
May fortune smile upon them,
On the land and on the sea.

HISTORICAL NOTES ON SCOTCH LODGES.—No I
By D MURRAY LYON.

GLASGOW KILWINNING, No. 4.

It has hitherto been very much the custom to ascribe to Mother Kilwinning the paternity of all the Lodges which were found in last century to have adopted its name. To have "Kilwinning" incorporated in the designation of a lodge was regarded as a mark of antiquity, just as "Royal Arch" was meant to imply the possession of degrees higher than those of Craft Masonry. In the establishment of the few Scotch Lodges that were in existence apart from bodies of operative masons in the third decade of the 18th century, as a rule, the sanction of no authority higher than themselves was sought. Some, indeed, had asked and obtained from Kilwinning confirmation of their position, but the majority were self-constituted and independent. GLASGOW KILWINNING belonged to this class. It was erected at a communication under the presidency of John Anderson, master of the "Lodge of Kilwinning held at Edinburgh" (Scots Arms,) at the sign of the Globe, in the Gallowgate of Glasgow, 1st April, 1735. The sederunt bears the names of three master masons and five apprentices. The brethren of the lower grade having been passed fellow crafts and raised masters, and a new member admitted, "the lodge was constitute." Honoured with the privilege of nominating the master of the new lodge for the current year, the presiding brother named John Clerk, merchant, and afterwards "installed and congratulated" him. The wardens—Robert Mollison, supervisor of excise, and J. Mentognerie, merchant—were chosen and installed by the master. The minute from which this information is derived is notable as containing the earliest record of the Third Degree being worked in the west country. And it is only one day later than the first occasion of the degree being conferred in Scotland, of which there is documentary evidence, viz., in Canongate Kilwinning, March 31, 1735. The earliest mention of a master's reception in Ayrshire is contained in the Kilwinning minute of 12th July, 1735, where it is reported by the master that "at a lodge held at Irvine the fifth of April last Cuninghame of Collenian and Forbes of Watertoun were received and admitted fellows of craft and masters." One of the brethren who were raised at the first communication of the Glasgow Kilwinning, was present in Canongate Kilwinning as a "gentleman visitor" in December of the same year, and "sufficiently acquitted himself in a trial of his qualifications as a master mason." Another visitor, somewhat boastful of his being a master mason, was after examination declared to be a "verry weak entered prentice."

Shortly after his election to the wardenship of Glasgow Kilwinning, Mr. Mollison removed to Ayrshire. He joined the Lodge of Kilwinning, and became one of its leading members. As a collector of excise, he was frequently in the district of Carriek, and on one of his journeys thither, in 1735, we find him, in terms of a commission from Mother Kilwinning, inquiring into the affairs of certain Masons in Maybole and Girvan, charged with admitting members to the lodge without accounting for or making payment of their entry-money. He was master of the lodge in 1741, and was succeeded by William, Earl of Kilmarnock, who on the day of his installation and proclamation, 20th January, 1742, admitted, pas'd and rais'd Alexander, Earl of Eglington. Mr. Mollison was deputy Master of Mother Kilwinning, when, in 1747, he was appointed to the Provincial Grand Mastership of Glasgow province, and for several years discharged the duties of both offices.

There were two candidates for the Grand Mastership at the institution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, viz., William St. Clair, of Roslin, and the Earl of Home. Like Mary's Chapel, Glasgow Kilwinning instructed its representative to vote for Lord Home. No division took place, and St. Clair was chosen by the unanimous voice of the brethren. He visited the lodge in May, 1739. The Earl of Home was at the institution of the Grand Lodge Master of Kilwinning ing Scots Arms. He held a cornet's commission in the 2d regiment of dragoon guards in 1735, and got a troop of Churchill's dragoons in 1740. He rose to the rank of lieutenant-general in the army. He was in Scotland in 1745, when the Rebellion broke out, joined Sir John Cope at Dunbar in September, and was at the battle of Prestonpans. He joined the Royal army at Stirling in December, at the head of the Glasgow regiment of 600 men. At his death, in 1761, he was governor of Gibraltar.

Although a self-constituted body, Glasgow Kilwinning professed to be a branch of the Kilwinning Fraternity. In the minute of a meeting which it held at Port Glasgow in August 1735, the master and six other brethren well met are represented as having made a surgeon and a custom-house clerk free and accepted masons of the Mother Lodge of Kilwinning, who forthwith paid to the poor box of the said lodge held at Glasgow five shillings ster. each. A fortnight afterwards a select lodge was held at the Old Coffeehouse in Glasgow, at which Harry Lord Grey was made, the Earl of Kilmarnock, then master of Kilmarnock Kilwinning, being present as a visitor. In December following the lodge went to the house of a musician, in the Salt Mercatt, and there initiated him—probably for the sake of the host's professional services, although he is credited with the sum of five shillings paid to the poor's box.

About this time and long after, Glasgow Kilwinning was accustomed to visit with the highest penalty members "refusing to give attendance either at monthly or quarterly meetings." Brethren making respectful application "to be dismissed the lodge, and no longer to be reputed members," had their request complied with, but were permitted to attend as visitors. In the absence of diplomas it was customary for brethren from a distance to be introduced on letters of recommendation. From a copy of one such document engrossed in the books of Glasgow Kilwinning under date 2nd November, 1736, information is obtained of perhaps the earliest regularly-organised Lodge in America: ". . . Our lodge was constituted at Boston in New England, by our Right Worshipful Master, Henry Prince, Provincial Grand Master, on the 31st day of August, A.M. 5733, and is held at the Royal Exchange Tavern, in King's Street, the second and fourth Wednesday of every month,—and is adorn'd with the most eminent gentlemen of this great town, and kept up to it's primitive beauty and purity. . . Henry Price, G.M.; James Gordon, D.P.G.M.; Robt. Tomlinson, M.; Hugh McDaniel, S.W.; Jno. Osborn, J.W.; P. Breterth, Secretary." The establishment of a lodge of free and accepted masons in the then colony of Massachusetts Bay followed upon Mr. Price's appointment to the Provincial Grand Mastership of new England, under the Grand Lodge at London. His commission was subsequently made to embrace "all North America." This however did not prevent the introduction of Scotch charters, the first of which there is any record being that issued by the Grand Lodge to St. Andrew, Boston, Massachusetts, in 1756; although Washington is understood to have been initiated in a Virginian lodge under a Scotch charter in 1752. The Tappahannock (Essex County, Virginia), chartered in 1758, was the first American Kilwinning Lodge.

In its earlier years the bulk of the lodge's members were merchants, with a sprinkling of writers, physicians, university students, and excisemen—master mariners and "merchant sailors." One of this class, the master and owner of the ship "Freemason," was in 1738 presented by the lodge with "a badge of Masonry to be placed on the stern of the said ship." The roll was swelled also by officers of the regiments that from time to time were quartered in Glasgow. There is a hiatus in these records from December, 1742, to January, 1753. We are thus left in ignorance of the effect of the rebellion of 1745 upon the lodge.

The "solemnities" of the St. John's Day communication embraced a dinner, toasts, songs, instrumental music, and a torchlight procession, the flambeaus being carried by boys from the poor's-hospital. While, as the minutes record, the brethren were on such occasions accustomed to enjoy themselves with "music, wine, and mirth, in that innocence peculiar to the noble institution," they were not unmindful of the claims of charity. On St. John's Day, 1740, the lodge gave a concert to a "genteel company" in the Merchants' Hall for the benefit of the poor. Mason songs sung by the brethren, with organ accompaniments, were a leading feature of the entertainment.

A charity ball was given in 1742. The fascinations of music were in those days largely employed to attract attendance at lodge communications—the "mason songs being sung and played on musical instruments," at all stated meetings. In September, 1742, the brethren resolved to purchase an organ for the benefit of the lodge, at a cost not to exceed £30. This resolution was shortly afterwards given effect to—good brother Deans being paid, with a glass of thanks, twenty pounds eight shillings sterling, the price of that musical instrument which now adorns our lodge. "Ladies and stranger masons" had the privilege of hearing the organ, which could only be used apart from masonic meetings at the request of at least three contributing members of the lodge.

These records contain what is perhaps the earliest notice of a Scotch provincial grand visitation, viz., that made to Glasgow Kilwinning in March, 1739, by the Provincial Grand Master of Argyle, Clydesdale, Dumbarton, Renfrew, and Stirling. In the course of this and subsequent visits the brethren were catechised on "the proper questions of masonry"—a custom which has long since become obsolete; although the twin practice of "drinking the usual healths" has been retained in all its integrity. There are no mason marks, or any mention of a mark degree, in these old minute-books.

RESPONSE TO "A MASONIC PARTING."

By Bro. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M. and P.Z.

True Friendship's indeed the elixir of life,
For where it is found, there's an absence of strife;
But beware of the friendship that tempts you to roam,
And prize above all things the friendship of home.
In the Craft are formed friendships on which you rely,
For therein you're bound by that strange mystic tie;
But, if after parting, you're tempted to roam, Remember you're anxiously looked for at home.
At home there is one whose friendship, be sure;
Though oftentimes tried, will ever endure;
But be not exacting, nor given to roam,
And cherish, 'bove all things, the friendship of home

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1873.

MASONIC LITERATURE.

There never probably was a time in the annals of our Order, when the material prosperity of Freemasonry was so great as at the present hour. The roll of lodges under our English Grand Lodge is continually lengthening out, and our excellent Grand Secretary is continually welcoming the advent of another interesting "Little Stranger." Indeed, there seems at present no possible limit to be placed either to the expansiveness or development of our English Freemasonry.

Simultaneously with this steady increase of our lodges, and this great prosperity of our Order generally, there has also grown up a considerable taste for æsthetic adornment.

No longer confined to the public-house, or busy tavern, however respectable or well conducted, no longer exposed unavoidably, to those incongruities which the hotel system always subjects our lodge meetings to, as a general rule,—our brotherhood has sought for refuge in private lodge-rooms in the well arranged Masonic Temple, or the stately Masonic Hall. And the same feelings, and the same tastes seem just now to be distinguishing our Masonic brethren in America.

In Philadelphia, for instance, they have recently, at the cost of one million three hundred thousand dollars, raised what, so far, is the largest Masonic Hall in the world, and which in its architectural character, its outward appearance, and its inner arrangements, reflects, from the description of it, the greatest credit, as well, on those who planned, as on those who paid, for so magnificent a structure! Indeed, we in England may well feel somewhat startled, as we read in the Times, at home, of what our brethren are doing in the "Far West."

Now this is one peculiar phasis of modern Masonry, which we must not overlook, when we seek to realise what Freemasonry is "about," so to say, at the present hour amongst us.

A taste, as we before observed, for "æsthetics" has sprung up in the Order, and everywhere we see a tendency to more ornamented rituals, and more adorned accessories, in all our lodge-rooms, and lodge assemblies. And in this, no doubt, we are quite right, so far as we do not as is too often the case in changes and movements of the same kind, in the Craft and out of the Craft, fall into excess.

For it very often happens, that, in our ardent desire for improvement, we forget the golden rule of moderation, the "via media" of what is true, between the two extremes of carelessness on the one hand, or extravagance on the other.

Hence, though it is most advisable, and is most proper and becoming, to encourage the movement for lodge ornamentation, to throw around our meetings all that good taste can suggest, or thoughtful ingenuity can supply, in order to make our halls and our ceremonies beautiful, impressive, and affecting, yet, we should always keep this, as all other tendencies of a similar kind, in due bounds, and within proper limits!

We quite agree with those who hold, that, new life is often thrown into our Masonic arrangements, that a spirit of awakened zeal and interest is infused into our routine Masonic existence, as well as a new light cast upon our Craft ceremonies, by the happy addition, and liberal aid of a well decorated and properly ornamented lodge-room.

Some of us, who remember the carelessness and the indifference which characterised our earlier experience of our lodge meetings, must rejoice to see, on every side of us, halls and buildings springing up, specially set apart for Masonic services, and on which the Architect has exerted his skill, and in which the "Ornamentor" if one may use such a word, has put forth his graceful strength, in order to render the erection, within and without, alike creditable to Freemasonry, and conducive in the highest degree, both to the comfort and delight of the brethren.

But while we commend sincerely this state of things, truly to be commended in itself, for the highest interests of our Order, we must repeat, as we said before, that we must not be content with the mere outward display or even the mere inward ornamentation of our lodges!

We require something more than all this to prove to us, and to the minds of all reflecting brethren, that Freemasonry is in a thoroughly healthy state amongst us.

Two great "indiciæ" of such a condition always characterise Freemasonry, when thoroughly acting up to the teaching it unfolds, and the obligations it avows.

The first is the development of a charitable spirit in the Craft, the carrying out in practice of what we so often, and so solemnly, profess in theory.

Whatever else may be said about English Freemasonry no one can venture to deny that, of late years, it has been remarkably distinguished by a most open handed obedience to its own constraining principles. Independently of the sums raised for our Masonic charities, in the last few years, and the large amount given periodically month by month from our various funds of benevolence, the simple fact that, during this very year, our brotherhood has contributed £21,000 to the Masonic Charities, is a reality of active and energetic benevolence, which we cannot dwell upon too much, or in truth praise too highly.

And with the material prosperity of our brotherhood, there come of necessity, the corresponding claims for aid and relief.

The sun does not always shine upon us; "It is not always May," says the old proverb, and amid our numerous confraternity there are many year by year, who pass away, leaving their widows and orphans destitute, or who, from unforeseen calamity, which may affect us all in an unexpected moment, are reduced from affluence and social elevation to the "lowest ebb of poverty and distress."

Hence there is ever, and must be ever, a call on our Masonic Charity, and compassion, and we have every reason to hope and believe, that remembering the past and judging from the present, the Freemasons of to day will not be behind hand ever, in obeying and carrying out in the fullest power, the abiding and sacred dictates of sympathy, relief and benevolence.

But there is another characteristic of healthy Freemasonry, namely, intellectual activity and study.

In this last department, we fear that our good English brethren are somewhat behind, nor do they manifest, as a general rule, a sufficient patronage of literary efforts, or an enlightened appreciation of archaeological studies. It is a very rare thing, for instance, to find attached to a lodge, (there are some, we know, but very few) a reading room or library, where the brethren can peruse our English Masonic journal, The Freemason, or the Masonic Magazine, or any of the French, or American, or German Masonic serials, which, assiduously read abroad, are hardly known by name in England, and are seen only by a few humble students.

Even our own Grand Lodge is a great culprit in this respect. There is a nominal reading room, and there is a nominal library, but the one is a reading room in which nothing is ever read, and the other is a library in which the books are never opened. Some years ago we made an inquiry of an excellent official as to the library. "Well," he said, "there are books; that is all I can tell you; but no one ever reads them."

Is it too much to hope, that, in this improving age, we may yet hail the day, when there is attached to our Grand Lodge, a library and a reading-room, which we can use with pleasure, and which we can show to the foreign student, without discredit?

There is an immense collection of books and MSS. yet to be made, as regards the history, archæology and ritualism of Freemasonry, the attacks upon her fair fame, the defence made by many an unknown brother, which though familiar to the casual inquirer, and the little band of English Masonic students, are entirely unknown to the great mass of our English Freemasons.

There is another branch, too, of intellectual study, which though begun from time to time, has never been continuously carried out, or systematically arranged in England. We mean "Lectures," and in which we are altogether beaten out of the field by our German and American brethren.

There is no reason whatever why each lodge should not have its regular system of lectures from able and careful brethren, which, touching upon the various points of our history or object, archæology or literature, our outward organisation, or our inner ritual, may develop a taste for Masonic literature among our younger brethren, and greatly enhance the value and the blessing of Freemasonry to us all alike.

There is, we know, a great deal of latent talent in our lodges, which only requires to be evoked, in order to be of much and lasting benefit to our Order in every way.

Is ours, then, an unreal or visionary anticipation, with which we close this article to day?

Is it really too much to hope, that the time is close at hand, when all our lodges will feel, that, having improved in this and amended that, they should now turn their efforts to literary and mental culture, and endeavour, by their lodge library or reading room, to develop a healthy desire for Masonic knowledge and study, amongst our younger brethren especially?

Then a better and brighter day will dawn on those who, amid many discouragements, seek to supply Freemasonry with a sound and wholesome literature. Then will our Order rise to the full consciousness of its historical, its practical, and its intellectual teaching, and no longer confined to a few zealous students, or painstaking adepts, a general taste for Masonic literature and study will gradually spread itself over the wide surface of our English Freemasonry.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CHESHIRE.

By command of the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W.P.G.M., of the Province of Cheshire, the annual Provincial Grand Lodge of that division was held at the Literary Institute, Altrincham, on Thursday, the 18th inst., for the purpose of transacting the annual business of the province. In obedience to his lordship's commands, and to show the sincerity of their respect for his able, generous and judicious rule the brethren came from all parts of the province in strong force, and the result was one of the largest and certainly the most influential and imposing gatherings seen in Cheshire for several years. This is all the more remarkable, because Altrincham is not so conveniently situated for the majority of the brethren as many other towns in the province.

A large section of brethren from Birkenhead, Rock Ferry, &c., travelled by special saloon from Lime-street Station of the L. and N.W.R.; while a strong contingent from the same places, Liverpool, &c., went from James's-street, and travelled by the new line, forming a district route from Liverpool to Manchester, in connection with the Midland, Great Northern, and Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railways, each of the passengers by the latter route being delighted with the arrangements of the manager, Mr. English, and the pleasant nature of the new journey.

The Masonic gathering caused the greatest excitement in the pretty town of Altrincham. There were about 320 of the brethren present on this occasion, amongst whom were an unusually large number of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and officers of the different lodges within the province, and probably the display of the purple on the platform with his lordship, was never more striking nor numerous.

THE LODGE BUSINESS

About half-past one o'clock, the Provincial Grand Lodge was announced, and having entered and encircled the hall, while music was furnished by Bro. Kirk, P.G.O., the Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W.P.G.M., took his seat on the throne, placed on a raised platform, and proceeded at once to open the Provincial Grand Lodge. Amongst those with him on the platform were the following P. G. Officers, past and present:—Bros. Fawcett, R.W.P.G.M. of Durham; C. Dutton, P.G.S.W.; Captain C. J. Howard, P.G.J.W.; Rev. R. The R.W.P.G.M. opened the lodge in due form, after which the Prov. G. Sec. called the roll of Prov. Grand Officers and Lodges, when it was found that every one of the 37 lodges in the province was represented, the Stamford, No. 1045 by 50 members. The P.G. Sec. also intimated that he had received letters of apology for non-attendance from Bro. G. Cornwall Legh, M.P., R.W.D.P.G.M.; Nicholas Le Gendre Starkie, R.W.P.G.M. for East Lancashire, and several other distinguished brethren.

Bro. Griffiths then read the minutes of the previous Provincial Grand Lodge, at Crewe, and of the committee of the Fund of Benevolence, which were confirmed unanimously.

In the absence of Bro. J. Bland, P.G. Treas., the P.G. Sec. also submitted a statement of accounts, from which it appeared that there was a balance to the credit of the Fund of Benevolence of £1278 19s. 4d., and to the Provincial Grand Lodge the sum of £291 14s.

After the accounts had been passed unanimously, Lord De Tabley moved the re-election of Bro. James Bland to the office of Treasurer, and in doing so referred to the satisfactory state of the funds and the admirable manner in which the P.G. Treas. had performed his duties. The re-appointment was seconded by Bro. C. Dutton, P.S.G.W., and carried by acclamation.

Bro. Lord De Tabley, P.G.M., then said that he would, as usual, now have the honour and pleasure of addressing a few words to the brethren of the province. It had been well remarked that that country was happy which had no history; and if that were true, then, Freemasonry in the province of Cheshire was particularly happy, as there had been no striking events during the past year, although the stream of Masonry had continued to flow on. (Applause.) No one who looked at the large and influential assembly that day would doubt for a moment that the province of Cheshire was in a flourishing condition. (Applause.) He was proud indeed to preside over such a province, and he felt grateful to every brother—from the highest to the lowest—who gave him their support; and he felt particularly proud that day in being honoured with the presence of one of the oldest and most influential Grand Officers, Bro. Fawcett, P.G.M. of Durham. (Applause.) Masonic events generally during the year had been very few, but the sacred cause of charity had continued to be supported heartily both by lodges and individual members of the Craft. Although no new lodges had been consecrated in the province during the past year, a great many members had been added to the Order; but he felt constrained again to caution the W.M.'s of lodges to see that initiations were confined to "worthy men, and to worthy men only." (Hear, hear.) They should also see, when candidates presented themselves from distant towns, where there were lodges, that careful inquiry should be made as to their character. (Cheers.) He need scarcely, in that room, allude to the loss which Masonry had sustained in the death of their most beloved and most revered Past Grand Master—the Earl of Zetland—because they all knew the excellent service he had rendered to Masonry during the long number of years which he reigned over it. It had pleased the G.A.O.T.U. to take him from amongst them, full of honours and years, and they would never again have his kind presence, his genial advice, and excellent influence. They still wore mourning for their departed brother, and he was quite certain this was no outward show, but a sincere evidence of respect for his memory. His lordship then referred to the pleasure which it gave him to consent to lay the foundation stone of the college at Knutsford the following week; and intimated that it was his intention to hold his next annual Provincial Grand Lodge in the ancient city of Chester, the use of the Town Hall having been kindly given by the corporation, and the Dean of Chester at the same time giving them the liberty of using the Cathedral for the annual service. He took that opportunity of saying that he thought the Freemasons in that province should follow the example of Gloucester, Hereford, and Worcester, and enter into a private subscription towards the restoration of their venerable cathedral at Chester. He did not mean that their subscriptions should go into the general restoration fund, but it should be devoted towards the purchase and presentation of some specific thing, such as a font or a sedilia. (Loud applause.) He again thanked the brethren for their support, and assured them that his constant endeavours would ever be to forward the interests of Masonry. (Applause.)

The R.W.P.G.M. then invested the following as his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bro. G. Cornwall Lugh, M.P., R.W.D.P.G.M.; C. Dutton, P.S.G.W.; Captain C. J. Howard, P.J.G.W.; Rev. R. Hodgson, P.G.C.; Rev. J. Lomax, P.G.C.; J. Wood, P.G. Reg.; E. H. Griffiths, P. G. Sec. (to whom his lordship paid a high compliment on re-investing him); Dr. Spratly, P.S.G.D.;—Simpson, P.J.G.D.; G. Whale, P.G.S. of W.; F. Jackson, jun., P.G.D. of C.; J.S. Mort, P.G.A.D. of C.;—Brown, P.G.S.B.; W. Goodacer, P.G.P.; T. H. Kirk, P.G.O.; J. Swindells, P. G. Tyler; and Bros. Atherton, Gibson, Davenport, T. D. Simcock, J. Cavanah, and E. Bradbury, P. G. Stewards.

Bro. Captain Cope was re-appointed Chairman of the Fund of Benevolence.

Bros. H. Bulley and Birch having served the office of Stewards at the Festivals in London, were presented by the P.G.M. with the charity jewels, amidst the applause of the brethren.

This being the whole of the business, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

THE SERVICE AND SERMON.

A procession of the brethren was then formed, as is usual on such occasions, for the purpose of attending divine service. The brethren marched to St. Margaret's Church, at Dunham, clothed in the collars and jewels of their offices, where full Cathedral service was performed. Bro. Kirk, P.G.O., presided at the organ, the music being rendered by the choir of St. Margaret's, assisted by Bros. Stafford, Dumville, and Ball. The anthem "Blessed be Thou" (Kent) was sung with the finest effect. The service was intoned by the Rev. R. Hodgson, M.A., P.G.C., who took for his text St. John, xv., 12, "This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you."

The Preacher said— Once more, Brethren, after the lapse of another year, we are gathered together in God's own house, to thank Him for His mercy and grace during the last twelve months, and in the most solemn manner to entreat the Great Architect of the Universe to continue to preserve our Order, by beautifying and adorning us with every moral and social virtue. We have met together in our lodge room, and also here in God's temple, to carry out, according to our power, the command of our Great Master in Heaven, and by our prayers and real sympathy, as well as by our liberal alms, to show our love to all our sick and bereaved brethren. To day you are called upon to extend your charity beyond your Order, and I trust you will give a double donation to the Stewards, when they bring the boxes round to you. Our first duty, as Masons, is doubtless to our own sick, to our widows, and orphans, but we, I trust, have been well taught, that we shall not confine our charity at home, but show that, as men and Christian men, we are ready to extend the helping hand to all who need our charity. The unfortunates who enter the wards of our hospitals must always have a claim on our benevolence. We may differ in our opinions upon other societies upon other calls upon our purse, but here we are all one. The maimed, the halt, the sufferer of severe bodily disease, the subjects of accidents, these speak home to the hearts of all true men, and I know not how we can to day better obey the precepts of our Great Master in the text, than by giving liberally to the Altrincham hospitals and the Fund of Benevolence. The advantages of the latter I need not occupy your time in detailing to you; they are well known to you all; of the former I will only say that as one of the working committee, I can speak most strongly of the advantage it has been to this town and neighbourhood, and I am only sorry to say, that, for want of greater support, we cannot extend its privileges so widely as we should wish. I now leave the matter in your hands, trusting that you will do what you can, and proceed for a few minutes to the more general consideration of the text. No vice perhaps is so ingrained into our fallen nature as that of selfishness. Since the disobedience of our first parents, it has so spread as to become almost part of our very organism. You may detect it in the infant, almost before it can lisp; it is proverbial amongst the young; and who is blind to its presence in the middle-aged, to say nothing of the old. No man who for a minute looks into his own heart, can fail to detect how great an influence the thought of self has upon all his words and acts, the irrepressible "I" is ever appearing, and unconsciously a man considers how will this or that affect me, my character, my happiness, my well being, my position amongst my fellows, so subtly and so universally has this poison infected all our nature that for its eradication it needed that the Great Architect himself should come down from above and take our nature upon Him, that once more He might restore us to His own likeness, and image. Yes it was not enough that our Great Master should speak from Heaven, and say "this is my commandment that ye love one another, but he must be born of a woman, live as a child, as a youth, as a man, amongst us, and by His fair example as well as His precept, teach us to "Love one another, as I have loved you," and what a beautiful pattern He has set us. I speak not at this moment of the atonement, which by His holy life and precious death He has brought for us, but I ask you to contemplate the beauty, the loveliness of His character as a man. Where can you place your finger on one imperfection, one blot? Where can you detect in His conduct towards His parent, His disciples, the Pharisees and Sadducees, the multitude, the sinners, the friends or the enemies, the least approach to egotism, the thought of self?
