It is cruel waste of money to spend £5, £10, or £15, and upwards in a jewel to the brother, ever so deserving, because at his death no one else can wear it, and the breaking-up price is hardly as many shillings, and no one is benefitted but a jeweller. Adopt the above plan, and our Charities reap the benefit. I cannot but remark that I think it is decidedly wrong to vote lodge funds away for decorating and rewarding any brother. If he has distinguished himself and is worthy of a testimonial, let the brethren personally subscribe for it, which renders the gift doubly valuable, and reserve the lodge balance for its true source, charity. Ten W.M.'s of a lodge each taking a £5 5s. jewel in ten years is equal to a Vice Presidency.

Again I would suggest to our Secretaries to seriously consider the propriety of easing the burden imposed upon a Steward—£10 10s. for himself and £3 or £4 for incidental expenses, about £14, is a large amount to hand out at once, and I am free to confess keep some out, and others also. Many cannot afford so large a sum, having others to think of at home. I would suggest that if the amount must remain at the same figure, could it not be divided into instalments, and so ease the payment.

I fancy a smaller qualification would increase the number of Stewards. Charity begins at home, and a brother has no right to serve as Steward, which I fear is sometimes done for the sake of keeping up appearances.

I can fully endorse Bro. J. H. Coate's remarks upon the fatal step of doubling the amount to qualify a lodge or chapter as life subscriber. Being connected with a young lodge, and also a chapter, which could have voted their £5 5s., but cannot vote £10 10s., and so the Treasurers hold the cash instead of the Charities.

Yours fraternally

P.M.

CHESHIRE EDUCATIONAL MASONIC INSTITUTION.

On 16th March, the annual meeting of the General Committee of the above institution was held at No. 9, Hamilton-street, Birkenhead, by kind permission of the Zetland Lodge, 537; Bro. G. H. Wilson, W.M., 537, vice-president, in the chair. There were also present the following Life Governors.—E. G. Willoughby, P.P.J.G.W.; R. Gracie, W.M. 447; W. L. Hunt, P.M. 425; J. Dennis, W.M. 721; J. Beech, P.M. 361; F. K. Stevenson, P.G. Assist. S.; Edward Harbord, P.G., Std. B.; J. B. Platt, P.P.G.J.W.; James Hepworth, W.M. 1106; T. Stafford, S.W. 1,166, &c.

After the transaction of some formal business the annual report was presented as follows:—

"Charity never faileth, and though individual energy may flag, yet the combined efforts of the Masonic body exemplifying in a forcible manner how much that virtue is appreciated and practised by the brethren. Much has been said against the precept and practice of Masonry, and the subject of education is one, that at the present time, causes much angry dispute, but your committee are willing to pursue their quiet way without desiring either eulogium or disparagement, and they confidently appeal to the following facts as evidence of the good work they are doing in the province of Cheshire. During the last year nineteen children have received the benefit of scholastic instruction, three of whom cease to be recipients at the end of this year, four have, in accordance with the rules, had means furnished towards their advancement into business or professional avocation, and there are now five additional candidates for education and two for advancement.

"The year began with a balance in hand of £1,731 2s. 9d., £1,500 of which was safely invested, and ends with a total of £1,995 5s. 10d. The expenses have been kept within bounds with the most scrupulous care, but the more the value of the institution becomes known the greater are the claims on its funds, and increased support is much required to enable the committee to meet all the demands upon them.

"The Committee desire to record with much pleasure the fact that the Provincial Grand Chapter, which has so recently been established in Cheshire, had made a donation of £10 10s. to the funds, with a fraternal intimation that when their finances will allow a still larger grant shall be made.

"The amateur performance in Birkenhead, referred to in the last report, when the accounts had not been fully audited, have now been made up, and shew a balance in favour of the Institution of £14 13s. 10d.

"Brethren, cannot you individually do anything to aid in the great work? Masters of Lodges, do you feel you do your duty to the best of your ability and opportunity, in bringing this charity before the members of your respective lodges? Let conscience answer.

"The Committee cannot close their report without recording their sense of the value of the constant attention and unremitting energy displayed by their esteemed Secretaries and Treasurer; and feel sure that all the subscribers will agree in a cordial vote of thanks.

"May the G.A.O.T.U. bless every effort made to advance the good of mankind.—So mote it be."

The report and the accounts, as audited, were duly passed, and the candidates for education and for advancement were recommended to the Court of Governors for adoption. A cordial vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

FREEMASONRY IN AUSTRALIA.

On Monday, 29th December, at high noon, the installation of P.M., Bro. H. M. Joseph, as Worshipful Master of the Mountain Lodge of Bombala, No. 920 (E.C.), took place; the installing brethren being P.M. W. H. Dudley, A. A. MacKeachie, (who rode 35 miles to be present), and the late W.M., J. H. Morgan. After the installation Bros. Henry C. Hogarth was invested with the badge of S.W.; Francis Jesse, as J.W.; J. E. Bennett, as S.D.; Emil Jonas, J.D.; E. Sutton, as Inner Guard; and J. Holyhead, as Tyler. Bro. P.M. W. H. Dudley, had been elected Secretary, and John Steward Scott, Treasurer. When the lodge had opened in the first degree, three candidates were initiated, Messrs. George Crighton, Stevenson, and W.M. Cooke. After the lodge had closed, the brethren assembled again at 7 p.m., and sat down to a splendid banquet, prepared in the lodge-room by Mrs. Solomon, widow of the late Bro. Maurice Solomon. The Worshipful Master, H. M. Joseph, occupied the chair, supported on his right by Bro. P.M. MacKeachie and Morgan, and on the left by the three newly initiated brethren, the vice-Chairmen being Bros. Hogarth, S.W.; and F. Jesse, J.W. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given, Bro. (Tyler) Holyhead, went round with the charity box, after proposing our poor and distressed brethren, which was nobly responded to by all brethren present. The brethren adjourned to the smoking-room well pleased with their entertainment. There is a glorious future now before this lodge, six candidates were proposed at the last lodge meeting, on the 6th January, and a great many influential gentlemen in the district, we believe, intend to join, so there is every prospect of the Mountain Lodge of Bombala, under the new regime, being the best lodge throughout the country towns of New South Wales. Bombala is situated 350 miles from Sydney, New South Wales, and Melbourne (Victoria), about equidistant between each colony.

Obituary.

BRO. ALFRED DAY.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. Alfred Day, which took place at his residence "The Hollies" Garrett-road, Tooting. The state of Bro. Day's health had for some time past caused much anxiety to his friends; hopes were however entertained of his recovery, but unfavourable symptoms manifested themselves a few days before his death, which took place on the 3rd inst. Our late Brother was well known in the City Road, where he had been engaged in business as an auctioneer, estate agent, &c., for several years, and was highly respected for his integrity and business habits.

As a Freemason few surpassed him in the ardour and sincerity in which he maintained and carried out the Grand Principles on which our Order is founded, or subscribed more liberally to our Masonic Charities. Bro. Day, was a P.Z. of the Yarborough Chapter, 554, Prov. G. Purist of Essex, W.M. of Chigwell Lodge, 453, Founder, P.M., and Treasurer of Finsbury Lodge, 861, P.M. of the Prosperity Lodge, 65, and P.M. of the Temple Lodge 101. He was ever ready to render the helping hand by purse or advice when sought.

The funeral of our departed brother took place on Tuesday, the 19th inst., at Abney Park Cemetery. The solemn service was most impressively performed by the Rev. J. E. Funnar, of the Wimbledon Common Congregational Chapel, whereof our deceased brother was a member, the rev. gentleman made a short and earnest appeal to those present to prepare for that great change which will overtake all, so that when the last trumpet shall sound, they might be ranked amongst the justified made perfect. The funeral cortege consisted of the bears and four mourning coaches, each drawn by four horses, and several private carriages following the entire funeral arrangements were executed under the care and personal superintendance of Bro. Sinclair, 81, City-road. At the grave where nearly one hundred persons had assembled we noticed Bro. R. S. Hart, W.M., with most of the officers and brethren of the Finsbury Lodge, 861; Bro. Main, P.M., and Bro. Sinclair, Treasurer of the New Concord Lodge, 813; Bro. Storey, W.M. of the Cornwallis Lodge, 1107; Bro. J. Owens, W.M. 1366, and many other friends and brethren, all met to pay their last tribute of respect to their late lamented and much esteemed friend and brother, whose memory will long be cherished by a large circle of Masonic and other friends with affectionate regard.

BRO. H. T. KELLY.

We regret also to have to announce the death of Bro. Henry Kelly, of Food's Hotel, Filey. He died on Wednesday, the 11th inst. aged 48, very greatly respected. His funeral, which took place on the following Sunday, was largely attended by the brethren of the Craft, as also by the Foresters, of which body he was an esteemed member. There was also a very numerous attendance of neighbours and friends to pay him their last tribute of respect.

"CAUSE, COURSE AND CONSEQUENCES OF NEGLECTED MALADIES."—Between the stomach and kidneys, there exists a close and intimate relation, which is demonstrated by the wasting which occurs in all diseases affecting the kidneys. Disordered stomach is often the first symptom of real irregularity. Holloway's remedies used at the juncture, cut short many a serious and fatal attack. They act with wonderful efficacy in every organ of secretion, but especially do they regulate the stomach, liver, and kidneys, by restoring their healthy functions and causing every obstruction or impurity. It is a daily violation of the Oath to be well rubbed over the body daily; when absorbed it much augments the salutary influence of the Pills.—ADVERT.

Masonic Tidings.

Bro. Maxwell C. Close, M.P. for the County of Armagh, and P.G.W. and P.G.M., Armagh, ought to have been included in the list of Freemasons in the House of Commons.

We have pleasure in announcing to our readers that, at a meeting of the Chorlton Lodge, No. 1387 (West Lancashire Province), Bro. B. Newburn Brown, the W.M., was presented with a very valuable timepiece, with bronze ornaments, bearing the following inscription thereon:—"Presented to Bro. Newburn Brown, W.M., of the Chorlton Lodge 1387, by the promoters of the lodge, as a token of their high appreciation of the very valuable services rendered by him in its formation. Charlton-cum-Hardy, March 6th, 1874." A very elegant Past Master's jewel, inlaid with a costly brilliant, was also presented to Bro. Brown by the members of the lodge as a recognition of the very able manner in which he discharged the duties of W.M. during his year of office.

MAY ELECTION, 1874.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FOR WIDOWS OF FREEMASONS.

The favour of the Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers to the above Institution is earnestly solicited on behalf of

- JEMIMA SPICER, Widow of the late Bro. Walter Spicer, of the Lodge of Science, 437, Bourton, Dorset, to which he subscribed 30 years. He was elected to the above Institution in 1872, and carefully followed out the directions printed on every package. It is rather more difficult to make than other Starches, but when this is overcome, they will say, like the Queen's Laundry, that it is the finest Starch they ever used. "When you ask for the Glenfield, see that you get it." The case is strongly recommended by Bro. B. Head, V.P. D., 12, Earl's-terrace, Kensington. Dr. Strong, P.M., 3, 403, P.Z., 425, 403 P.P.G.W., Surrey; 64, Northend, Croydon. Price, P.M. 403, P.Z. 403, P.G. Treasurer, Surrey, 114, High-street, Croydon. Pratt, P.M., 7, Malverna Row; or Bedford Park, Croydon. W. Masterman, P.M., P.Z. 410, Wellesley-road, Croydon. Proxies will be thankfully received by Mrs. Spicer at the Masonic Institution, Croydon.

GLENFIELD STARCH is the only kind used in Her Majesty's Laundry.

Those Ladies who have not yet used the Glenfield Starch, are respectfully solicited to give it a trial, and carefully follow out the directions printed on every package. It is rather more difficult to make than other Starches, but when this is overcome, they will say, like the Queen's Laundry, that it is the finest Starch they ever used. "When you ask for the Glenfield, see that you get it."

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC DINNER PILLS. No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the Stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing Headache, Giddiness, &c., arising from a Costive Habit, Debilitated Stomach, or Torpid Liver. They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution can take them with safety. Taken as an adjunct with Wilkinson's Sarsaparilla with the greatest success.

QUINTESENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER and CAMOMILE. WILKINSON'S Preparation of Ginger and Camomile has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is the most efficient Stomachic Tonic, and the best remedy for Flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion, and is not affected by climate. No European in India or tropical climates should be without it. In one-eighth, quarter, and half-pint bottles.

SARSAPARILLA. WILKINSON'S ESSENCE, OR FLUID EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for PURIFYING THE BLOOD, DESTROYING LEUC COMPLAINTS, and freeing the system from effects of Mercury. It is exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to the principal diseases. "Superior preparations that may always be relied upon."—S. Astley Cooper. "We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet. "We recommend yours as the best."—Medical Review. In Quarter, Half, and Pint Bottles. CAUTION.—Spurious and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that Bottle and Label have the name and Address, "T. Wilkinson, late Wilkinson, Bridge, and Co., No. 27, Regent-street, London."

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT. WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS. It is allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of RUPTURES. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful to the muscles, is here avoided; a soft bandage bears upon the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PALY LEVER, moving with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A circular may be had, and the Truss which answers best to be forwarded by post, on the receipt of the price of the body, two inches below the hip. MANUFACTURER, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London. Price of the Truss, 31s., 21s., 20s. 6d. and 15s. 6d. Postage free. Price of the Circular, 1s. 6d., 1s., and 5s. 6d. Postage free. Post Office ORDERS to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post Office, Piccadilly. NEW PATENT ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEECAPS, &c. The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly ELASTIC and IMPERMEABLE to the heat in giving efficient and permanent support in cases of WEAKNESS, VARICOSE VEINS, &c. Price 4s. 7s. 6d., 10s., and 16s. each. Postage free. SPINAL MACHINES, LEG IRONS, and Every Description of Surgical Appliances. JOHN WHITE, Manufacturer, 228, Piccadilly, London.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LIVERPOOL.—Ancient Union Lodge (No. 203).—The annual meeting of the brethren of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 19th inst., at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, the whole of the evening's proceedings being of the most successful and enjoyable character. The lodge was opened shortly after five o'clock by Bro. F. W. Sarjeant, W.M., amongst his official supporters being Bros. J. Parsons, I.P.M.; B. W. Rowson, P.G. Superintendent of Works, P.M.; W. A. Wilson, P.M.; P. M. F. Neill, S.W.; J. Birtles, D.; J. Winsor, I.G.; C. Bromley, P.M., Treas.; E. Johnson, Sec.; W. Wilson, S.; and Ball, Tyler. The members of the lodge present were Bros. J. Gallaher, A. McDougall, W. Barclay, W. Winsor, R. Sillitoe, E. Greenlaw, N. Aronsburg, A. Barton, J. R. Japha, D. Beck, C. Birch, J. Hargreaves, W. Clarkson, C. Harrison, J. Bathie, J. Hilton, J. R. Williams, W. Whiteside, Ed. Maccabe, J. F. Ston, C. Desoer, J. Boyes, J. Crompton, J. Sticher, W. H. Ball, J. Thomas, T. Lovell, W. Helling, W. Myers, and W. Eastwood. Amongst the visitors present were C. H. Hill, J. Reg.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; Jesse Banning, S.O., C. and W.; R. R. Martin, W.M. 1634; Boulton, W.M. 823; Dr. Slack, P.M., late J. Wood, Treasurer 1004; J. T. Callow, 1. 673; E. Nash, 241; John Winsor, 251; A. Lawton, 786; Dr. C. Puzey, 857; T. Atfield, 1183; A. C. Hesketh, 1182; G. Forster, 241; G. Bird, 673; H. Burrows, 673; Price, 1393; G. Musker, 1182; T. W. Green, 241; G. W. Chirnside, 1325; H. W. Colas, I.G. 249; W. Burnet, 1013, &c. The lodge had been opened, and the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, the retiring W.M., Bro. Sarjeant, assumed the position of acting Master, and proceeded to place Bro. McKFarlane Neill, the W.M. elect, in the chair of the lodge. By thus fulfilling the important functions of installing Master, Bro. Sarjeant closed a prosperous year of office, and exceedingly masterly and thoroughly effective in which he performed the whole ceremony not only elicited universal admiration, but that he is a Masonic student of a high order. The closing charges to the Masters, Treasurers, and brethren were especially impressive, and the closing weighty sentences were delivered with the most profound effect. The brethren invested by the W.M. as officers of the lodge were Bros. J. Winsor, I.P.M.; E. Johnson, S.W.; J. Birtles, J.W.; C. Bromley, P.M., Treas.; J. Parsons, P.M., Sec.; James Wilson, S.D.; J. Frank, J.D.; A. McDougall, W. Wilson, S.S.; and J. Hilton, J.S. Ball was again elected Tyler of the lodge, being a candidate for initiation, the newly installed W.M. commenced his year's office by initiating him into the mysteries and duties of the Order in a very creditable manner. The majority of the brethren subsequently attended a sumptuous banquet, under the presidency of the W.M., who during the earlier part of the evening, proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In the course of the after-dinner proceedings, Bro. Rawson, in the name of the brethren, presented Bro. Sergeant, I.P.M., with a chaste and valuable mantle timepiece, as a token of the esteem and respect of the members of the Ancient Union. The presentation was acknowledged by Bro. Sergeant, in an exceedingly thoughtful and vigorous speech, which was much above the average of the numerous complimentary orations. The health of the W.M. was received with the most enthusiastic cordiality. A very pleasant evening was enlivened by a great number of capably rendered songs.

IPSWICH.—Perfect Friendship Lodge (No. 376).—This lodge held its jubilee meeting on Wednesday evening, the 18th ult., having attained the fiftieth year of its existence. Having been invited by the courtesy of the W.M., Bro. Gamman, to attend on this interesting occasion, we availed ourselves of the opportunity to visit this prosperous lodge, and must profess ourselves as greatly pleased and edified with the working of the lodge, and with the great harmony which prevailed—a characteristic not always found in Masonic Lodges, softly be it spoken. Amongst those present were Bros. A. Gamman, W.M., P.P.G.S.W.; Dr. Straddon, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Elliston, P.M.; W. Spalding, P.M.; N. Tracy, P.P.G.S.W., S.W.; S. B. King, P.P.G.S.D.; W. T. Westgate, P.P.G.D.C.; J. A. Pettit, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; W. A. Smith, P.P.G.D.C.; G. Scopes, J.W.; Daking, I.G.; Jack, P.P.G.S.D.; Abbott; Woods, and others. Visitors, C. F. Long, P.M. 114; P.G.D.C.; Emra Holmes, P.M. 531; P.G. Reg., P.P.G.A.D.C.; S. Wright; P. Cornell, P.P.G.S.D., of the British Union Lodge; M. Cohen and G. Abbott, of the Prince of Wales Lodge, and Bros. Westgate and King, who also represented the St. Luke's Lodge. Thus the whole of the Ipswich lodges were fitly represented, and a most agreeable and harmonious meeting was the result. The lodge having been opened by Bro. N. Tracy, in the absence of the Master, who arrived later, and the minutes read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Edward Boredd Lewcock, shipbroker, and being in his favour, and the candidate present, he was initiated into the mysteries of Masonry. The lodge being opened in the third degree, Bros. T. K. Elkington and Albert Cannon were respectively admitted, obligated, and in due form raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, the ceremonies being conducted by Bro. Tracy in admirable style, who was ably assisted by the officers of the lodge and by Bro. Westgate, who acted as Deacon. The Worshipful Master, whose business engagements had prevented his arriving earlier in the evening, but who usually conducts the whole of the ceremonies in excellent fashion himself, then resumed the gavel and entrusted the newly-raised Master Masons with the secrets restricted to this degree, and the lodge was afterwards closed down to the first degree. The W.M. then read to the brethren a letter couched in feeling and grateful terms from Mr. Franks, son of the late venerated Bro. J. Franks, P.M., in reply to the letter of condolence from the lodge to the relatives of the deceased brother, and which was ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The further business of the lodge having been disposed of, the lodge was closed in due and ancient form and with solemn prayer, and the brethren retired for refreshment. After doing ample justice to a most substantial repast, the W.M. rose and proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, not forgetting the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, which were of course loyally and Masonically responded to, Bro. Abbott singing the solo of the National Anthem in his usual animated style. In giving "The P.G.M. and officers past and present of the Provincial Grand Lodge," the W.M. stated that he had received a letter from Lord Waveney expressing his great regret at being unable to attend that evening, but his Parliamentary duties precluded the possibility of his accepting on that occasion the invitation of the lodge. His Lordship added, however, that it would not need a jubilee meeting to bring him down, and he quite hoped ere long to visit the Perfect Friendship Lodge. The W.M. took occasion to remark on the illness of the D.P.G.M., Bro. the Rev. E.

J. Lockwood, Rector of Belstead, and expressed a hope, cordially endorsed by the brethren, that T.G.A.O.T.U. might be pleased speedily to restore him once more to health. Bro. Q. Tracey, whose name was coupled with the toast, responded for the Past Grand Officers and made a few modest and pertinent remarks. Bro. Emra Holmes responded for the present Provincial Grand Officers, who he said he believed were chosen for their Masonic zeal and attainments, and they would no doubt do their utmost to sustain the reputation of their predecessors in office. He ventured to remark on the small number of those present who were decorated with the Royal Arch jewel, and urged the younger brethren to show their Masonic zeal and extend their Masonic knowledge by taking that sublime degree as soon as they were able to do so. No Freemason should stop short of the Royal Arch if he wanted to be considered a Mason in truth and not in name only. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the evening "Success to the Perfect Friendship Lodge" which was drunk upstanding with high honours, none but Master Masons being present, and those below that rank withdrawing for a time. The W.M. in giving the toast, narrated some interesting facts culled from the old minute books in connection with the Perfect Friendship. It appears that the first meeting to constitute the lodge was held April 21st, 1824, when Bro. George Bullen, W.M. of the British Union Lodge, then No. 180, Bro. Alfred Head, S.W., of the same Lodge, and Bro. John Garnham, J.W. of St. Luke's Lodge, No. 373, attended for the purpose of installation. The lodge was opened at the Unicorn Inn, and the following were the first officers appointed:—J. Gosling, W.M.; T. Hardy, I.P.M.; J. Garnham, S.W.; S. Cook, J.W.; E. Planter, S.D.; J. Hill, J.D.; J. Bromley, I.G.; R. Cole, Treasurer; S. Pipper, Secretary; W. Rudland, Tyler. The lodge was held at the King's Head Inn, the number was 790, and at the first festival of St. John, in Dec., 1824, twenty-four members were present. The W.M. remarked that a very salutary law was in force at that time, and on the 21st Sept. 1825, officers were fined for non-attendance. The following year the first brother was erased for non-payment of quarterage. In 1829 the lodge was removed to the Bee Hive Inn, and in 1830 they applied for a Royal Arch Warrant. In 1834 there were thirty-four members, on 23rd Aug., 1835, they attended a Masonic funeral, that of Bro. Pepper, Secretary for eleven years. The lodge moved to the White Horse Hotel (celebrated in "Pickwick" by Dickens) in 1851. On Oct. 19, 1843, the lodge took part in the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the handsome new custom house, a building in the Italian style of architecture. They attended the Church of St. Mary-le-Tower, and afterwards went in procession to the quay with the Mayor and corporation, and after the ceremony the brethren, eighty in number, dined together at the Assembly Rooms. Bro. W. Elliston was then W.M., and Bro. Pettit, the builder, was Secretary. The lodge was honoured with a visit from the R.W. the P.G.M. of Essex at the St. John's Festival in 1855. It appears to have been of a very migratory disposition, for some time afterwards it was removed to the Assembly Rooms, and then returned to the White Horse. The most sensible move however was that made in April, 1870, when the lodge was removed to the handsome Masonic Hall in Brook-street, one of the most elegant and complete Masonic halls for its size in England, where it is still held, and where its prosperity is daily on the increase. Bro. Pettit, who was initiated in 1830, and W.M. in 1835, and whose name, together with that of Bro. W. Spalding, was coupled with the toast, gave some amusing additional particulars as to the lodge in the old days. It appears the lodge used to meet on Sundays, and sometimes when they had their festivals, they sat down at 4 p.m., and left at 4 a.m. There was no Lord Aberdare in those days, and every lodge did what was right in its own eyes. There had been an old Perfect Friendship Lodge, but it had become moribund, and it was resolved at a meeting on the casting vote of the W.M. to give up the charter, as it was thought the St. Luke's being, the older lodge, should have the preference, both lodges being in a languishing state. However, no sooner had they done it, and committed Masonic suicide, then they wanted to bring about a resurrection. The result of their efforts was the establishment of the lodge—whose jubilee they were now celebrating. Other toasts were given; Bros. King, Cohen, Smith, and Abbott added to the harmony of the evening with songs and recitations, and it was at a late hour when the brethren separated, after enjoying, speaking for ourselves, a most agreeable evening.

WEST DERBY.—Pembroke Lodge (No. 1299).—The brethren of this lodge assembled at Bro. Rawlinson's Hotel, West Derby, on Thursday afternoon, the 19th inst., the special business on the circular being the installation of the W.M. elect (Bro. Peter Macmudrow), the investiture of officers, election of Tyler, and one "raising" and three "passings." The installation and investment of officers, however, was found to be sufficient for one afternoon, and therefore the other portion of the programme was left in abeyance, which was a very wise step to take. The lodge was opened shortly after two o'clock by Bro. Joseph Clegg, W.M., and the officers (past and present) whose names appeared on the Tyler's book were Bros. W. S. Vines, P.M.; T. Macmudrow, S.W.; W. Jones, J.W.; H. Liversage, Treas.; Richard Bennett, Sec.; A. T. Smith, S.D.; M. Bush, J.D.; G. Aspinall, I.G.; W. Avis, Org.; Alex. Jones, Steward; and J. Robinson, Tyler. The members present were Bros. W. Brown, J. Stephenson, W. S. Bennett, S. Schonstadt, J. Sutcliffe, P.M.; J. Townley, J. Christian, J. Lonsdale, J. Capell, H. T. Bamber, A. E. Kirkpatrick, J. Dawson, J. Holmes, W. Hiles, Frank Moss, G. Foster, W. S. Hawarth, H. Dickenson, W. Nash, and F. H. Nash. The following visiting brethren were also present:—Bros. Thomas Wylie, P. Prov. J.G.W., W.L., P.M. 86 and 292; James Macmudrow, P.G. Sec., Wighton and Kirkcudbright, W.M. Lodge 41, Scotland; J. Vaughan, S.D. 86; J. E. Howard Pughe, 1094; W. J. Chapman, 667; David Paterson, 673; Samuel Kirkpatrick, 249; Richard C. Yelland, S.D., 1064; Wm. Wood, 263; Richard R. Martin, W.M. 1094; Aug. P. Fabian, P.M. 487, P.P.S.G.W., Hants; Isaiah Raw, I.G. 220, Garston; James B. Mackenzie, 1182. Although the weather was of the most unpleasant nature in the early part of the day, and although the majority of brethren had to travel by bus from Liverpool, it will be seen that there was a very good and influential gathering, thus showing the popularity and prosperity of the Pembroke, as a suburban lodge. The business having been duly opened by the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Joseph Clegg, the retiring W.M., then occupied the chair of Installing Master, and at once proceeded, according to ancient form, to instal Bro. Peter Macmudrow, as the W.M. of the Pembroke Lodge. This always interesting ceremony—no matter how often it had been witnessed—was especially remarkable on this occasion, for the effective and complete manner in which it was performed by Bro. Clegg, who was ably assisted in some portions by Bro. T. Wylie, P.P.J.G.W. After a Board of Installed Masters had been held, and the brethren, on their re-admission, had saluted the newly-chaired W.M. in the three degrees, the following brethren were invested by him as his officers:—Bros. Joseph Clegg, I.P.M.; W. Jones, S.W.; R. Bennett, J.W.; H. Liversage, Treasurer (re-elected); A. T. Smith, Secretary; M. Bush, S.D.; Geo. Aspinall, J.D.; W. Avis, Organist; Alex. Jones, I.G.; J. Sellar, P.M., D.C.; John Capel, S.S.; A. E. Kirkpatrick, J.S. Bro. Robinson was unanimously re-elected Tyler. Hearty good wishes were then given for the W.M. by brethren from Lodges 86, 220, 249, 487, 673, 1094, &c., and after several propositions had been made, and the accounts, which showed a good balance in favour of the lodge, had been passed, after a high compliment from the auditors to Bro. Liversage, the Treasurer, the brethren were called off from labour to refreshment. About half past five, nearly the whole of the brethren present sat down to an excellent dinner, provided by Bro. Rawlinson,

No. 1299, but the waiting was capable of being greatly improved without very much trouble. Of course, Bro. P. Macmudrow, the W.M., presided, and after the cloth had been removed, he proceeded, without delay, to give in a business like manner, the usual loyal toasts, which were received with true Masonic loyalty. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the M.W.G.M., the Marquess of Ripon, the M.W.D.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Grand Lodge Officers," a toast which was also given with enthusiasm and responded to with the greatest heartiness. A similar reception was given by the brethren to the "Health of Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., Bro. the Hon. Captain F. Stanley, M.P., D.P.G.M., and the other P.G. Lodge Officers," to each of whom the W.M. referred in the highest terms. Bro. Thomas Wylie, P. Prov. J.G.W. and P. Prov. G. Reg., responded to the toast, and in doing so said that Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, since his appointment had won golden opinions from every brother within his province. He (Bro. Wylie) had the assurance of his lordship that it was not his intention to perpetuate the long periods of office amongst his Provincial Grand Officers, as had formerly prevailed, except in cases where the change would be detrimental to the interests of the Provincial Grand Lodge, but he intended to change the officers every year. It was his lordship's intention to have visited every lodge in his province within one year, if possible, but now his engagements in connection with Her Majesty's Government had set that arrangement aside, and he would be prevented from carrying out his intentions for the present. The W.M., in happy terms, next gave "The Grand Masters of Scotland and Ireland, coupled with the names of Bro. James Macmudrow, P.G. Sec., Wighton and Kirkcudbright, W.M. Lodge 41, Scotland, and Bro. Aug. P. Fabian, P.M. 487, P.P.S.G.W., Hants. Bro. Macmudrow and Bro. Fabian both responded, and expressed feelings of hearty good will from their respective lodges, and the highest admiration for the working and harmony of the Pembroke Lodge. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Past Masters of Pembroke Lodge, coupled with the name of Bro. Vines," who acknowledged the compliment. "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Clegg, I.P.M.," was next given by the W.M., who after passing a high eulogium upon him for the admirable way in which he had fulfilled his duties, presented him, in the name of the brethren, with a very handsome P.M.'s jewel, set with splendid diamonds, as a token of the esteem and admiration felt for him by all the brethren. He had also great pleasure in presenting a Life Governorship of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution to Bro. Clegg, in recognition of his indefatigable exertions in connection with the lodge ball, recently held, which had not only proved a most pleasant meeting, but highly remunerative. In making the presentation of the jewel, the W.M. said:—Bro. Clegg, I have much pleasure in presenting this jewel to you in the name of the members of the Pembroke Lodge. By it they desire to convey to you their appreciation of the way in which you have conducted the affairs of the lodge during the past twelve months. A more handsome P.M. jewel I have never seen, but I am sure you will value it, not so much on account of its intrinsic worth, as for the kind feelings of fraternal regard, of which it is the expression. That you will wear it with pride and pleasure, I doubt not, but you may also look upon it as an emblem of another jewel, that we, as Masons, must strive to obtain, one which is above all value, for the just approbation of our fellow mortals is insignificant when compared with that of our Divine Creator. Your year of office as Worshipful Master in this lodge is now over, and you rest long spared amongst us in health and strength, and that when you have finished your allotted task here below, you may meet your reward in the Grand Lodge above, where the World's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever. Bro. Clegg acknowledged the high compliment and the presentations in appropriate terms, expressing much gratitude for the kindness ever shown to him, and his assurance of a continued interest in the welfare of the lodge. Subsequently Bro. Clegg proposed the health of the W.M., which was very cordially received. Bro. Macmudrow, W.M., in responding, said it was his ambition to see the Pembroke Lodge second to none for the efficiency of its working, in regard to which he was glad to say it had already got a good name in the provinces. He afterwards proposed the health of the officers of the lodge, remarking that they had officers upon whom the might well congratulate themselves. Bro. Jones, S.W., acknowledged the toast on behalf of himself and brother officers, and assured the W.M. they would all do their utmost to assist him in his arduous duties in the conduct of the lodge. Bro. Bennett and Bro. Liversage, the Treasurer and the various other officers also responded. Bro. Liversage, in doing so, remarked that financially the lodge was never in a better position than at the present time. The "Visitors" (responded to by Bro. Wood), the "Press" (acknowledged by Bros. Vaughan and Mackenzie) and other complimentary toasts followed; most agreeable evening being spent. The proceedings were varied and enlivened by some capital songs, excellently sung by several of the brethren.

WALTHAM NEW TOWN (HERTS.)—King Harold Lodge (No. 1327).—The first regular meeting for the present year of this highly prosperous and flourishing lodge was held at the Britannia Hotel, on Tuesday, 17th ult., the vacation months being now December, January, and February, instead of June, July, and August as heretofore; present Bros. J. K. Young, W.M.; West, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. Herts; Evans, S.W.; Gilbert, J.W., Barwick, Treasurer; Riley, Secretary; Lacy, P.M. 174 and 1421, acting for S.D.; Tydeman, J.D., and S.W. 1437; Holmes, I.G.; Verry, Tyler, and several other brethren. The lodge was opened in due form, the minutes of the last lodge, and also of a Lodge of Emergency, were read and confirmed. The ceremony of the first, second, and third degrees was then conducted by the W.M., with the able assistance of the various officers, in that impressive manner for which he is so deservedly distinguished. Mr. M. Levy was duly initiated, Bros. Bull and Robinson were passed to the second degree, and Bro. Price raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The lodge was closed and adjourned until April 21st, 1874. The remainder of the evening was devoted to refreshment and social enjoyment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts being duly honoured, some excellent singing further enlivened the proceedings, and the brethren separated with mutual goodwill and satisfaction at 10 p.m.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—The last regular meeting of the season of this young and meritorious lodge was held on Tuesday, the 17th inst., at Bro. Plock's, the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge-road, and like every preceding meeting proved a source of gratification to its founders, promoters, and numerous friends. The proceedings comprised the working of the three degrees, which were begun, carried on, and completed in a pure and perfect manner by the W.M. and his principal and assistant officers. The lodge was opened soon after five o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Charles Smith, and the necessary and preliminary business despatched. Two out of the three candidates for the third degree being found to be present, the lodge was opened in the second degree, and the requisite examination was undergone by Bros. G. Skegg and W. C. Ware, who afterwards withdrew. The lodge was then opened in the third degree, and the two brethren having properly presented themselves, were afterwards re-admitted, and receive the benefit of the sublime degree. Bro. C. Pantlin, the other candidate, having arrived, the lodge was resumed to the second degree, and that brother, having satisfactorily proved his further Masonic attainments, withdrew while the lodge was again resumed to the third degree. Bro. Pantlin having been re-admitted, the sublime degree was again worked by the W.M. most solemnly and impressively, Bro. Smith terminating his labours in this degree by imparting the traditional history of the lodge, and its history in all its fulness and

The lodge was then resumed to the first degree, and Bros. J. S. Dane, W. Doherty, and G. Plock were presented as candidates for crafting. They having satisfied the W.M. and brethren that their previous introduction into Masonry had not been unfruitful of knowledge were entrusted, and retired. The lodge was again resumed to the second degree, and those three brethren were duly passed. The final resumption of the lodge was to the first degree, and the ballot was taken with a successful result for the admission into the order of Messrs. C. J. Henton and J. Lawrence. (We may here incidentally mention that another candidate for initiation, and also a brother for raising, were prevented from attending by private business of moment.) Those two gentlemen were accordingly soon properly prepared, and in accordance with a rule rigidly observed by Bro. Smith, were separately introduced and initiated, the splendid working of the W.M. evidently making a deep impression on their minds. This concluded the business of the first session of the lodge, which now stands adjourned (emergencies excepted) till the third Tuesday in September ensuing. Some simple refreshments were served, when the lodge was closed, and the brethren passed some time in social enjoyment, not separating till eleven o'clock. Thus ended the first campaign of the Ivy Lodge, which for the purity of its Masonic working, and the harmony which reigns amongst its members, stands in the very front rank in the Craft. The officers present were Bros. Geo. Mattock, S.W.; J. J. Cante, J.W.; C. S. Jolly, W.M. Vitruvian Lodge, Sec.; E. Thurble, Treas.; C. F. Poppard, S.D.; Lewis Cornelissen, J.D.; W. Ashwell, I.G.; G. T. Fox, P.M. and P. Z., Tyler. As visitors we observed, Bro. E. Farwig, St. James's Union, No. 180; Bro. J. H. Cumming, Polish National No. 534; and W. P. Drew, Belgrave, No. 749.

INSTRUCTION.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge of Instruction (No. 310).—At the regular meeting of this lodge on Monday last, held at Freemasons' Hall, Southampton, the proceedings were especially interesting, owing to the fact that Bro. Kenneth Wilson, B.A. (who has passed all the chairs), was present for the last time prior to his departure for New Zealand, where he has been appointed Principal of Wellington College. After the business of the evening had been transacted, the brethren of the lodge of instruction, together with representatives from all the lodges in the town, entertained Bro. Wilson at a banquet, the air being taken by Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, Prov. Sec., P.M. 130 (during whose year of office Bro. Wilson first saw the "light"); and founder and preceptor of the lodge of instruction. Bro. Le Feuvre is also one of the trustees of the summer school, where Bro. Wilson, during the six or seven years, has held the post of head master. Amongst those present were Messrs. J. R. Stebbing, Dep. Prov. Grand Master, Hampshire and Isle of Wight, Past Grand Master of England, &c.; Alex., Past Prov. Gloucestershire, P.M. 246; Thomas, M. 130; Burtenshaw, W.M. 356; H. M. 359, Past Prov. D.C.; Dyson, M. 394, Past Prov. Supt. Works; R. Sharpe, P.G.O., Sec. and Treas. lodge of instruction; Aldridge, C. J. Phillips, Miles, Hickman, Joly, Jellicoe, Dartnall, Gregory, J. Coles, Martin. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been given and drunk, Bro. Stebbing, speaking on behalf of the Grand Lodge, the worshipful brother rose and said, as Deputy Grand Master of the province in which the Gloucester Lodge was situate, and one of the oldest members of that lodge, he had been pleased to propose the toast of the evening, "Long Life, Happiness, and Prosperity to Kenneth Wilson," their guest, who to the great regret was now about to leave England for a distant colony. England was essentially a country of social life and domestic joy, and was characteristic of England's sons, that all their differences of opinion, they could esteem and respect one another. Perhaps to their feeling of social brotherhood that they owed so much of its success in our midst. It bound men together in one common chain of indissoluble friendship, and it was gratifying to feel that although a link of that chain was now about to be severed, when their brother reached another land—his adopted home—there would be an opportunity of again uniting the links, of which he doubted not due advantage would be taken. Southampton Masons had ever been able to recognize in Masonry something beyond the ordinary ties of friendship, because in meeting to carry out its beneficent principles—feelings had been found to spring up which would cease only with life itself, and to this fact their brother, from whom they were about to separate, had been a prominent witness. We could not all occupy the same positions in society, but when one was taken from our midst, who had proved most useful in his day and generation, we feel the severance more, and of Bro. Wilson it might at least be said that in his departure, we should miss both a scholar and a gentleman, and an excellent Freemason. (Applause.) Upon this subject he should not enlarge, because he knew the temptation to appear fulsome just in proportion as one estimated the worth of a brother. He hoped, however, and had no doubt that the slight testimony which they had paid to Bro. Wilson might act in some degree as an introduction to him in his new sphere of labour. He would take with him the most generous emotions of their hearts, and their heartiest wishes that when in good time he might return to Old England he would be laden with honour and the respect of those among whom his lot was to be cast, as he had justly merited that respect from those with whom he had been associated in Southampton. The toast having been warmly drunk, Bro. Wilson, in response, said he little thought when the subject of the meeting was mentioned to him that it would assume the most gratifying character which it had taken. When he first received the intimation of his appointment he felt, and had ever since experienced a growing sense of his responsibilities, and nothing could have tended more to increase that feeling than the expression of goodwill which he had that evening witnessed, and echoed by the lodge with which he had been connected. It had been an especial pleasure to him to find the toast of his health proposed by so distinguished a member of the Craft. He felt that he should enter upon what he hoped would be a long career in Masonry on the other side of the globe under the most favourable auspices, for he knew that wherever Masonry was known, the name of their right worshipful brother was not altogether unheard of. He considered therefore an additional responsibility rested upon him, in having the sanction of his brother's name as a recommendation to him in his new sphere. Nor could he forget that under the brother who occupied the chair that evening, he first saw the light of Masonry. He should ever remember the years he had spent with his brethren in that lodge as amongst the most pleasant in his experience, and that whatever he might have been able to assist in accomplishing, was as nothing compared with what he had learnt. Whatever he might be able to do for Masonry in a distant part he should ever attribute in a great measure to what he had learnt here, for it was his hope that the three months occupied in his voyage, would form the largest period during which he should be consecutively absent from some lodge meetings. He trusted they might all be spared to meet again in Old England or elsewhere; but whatever might betide him, his earnest prayers for their welfare, would be ever with him, and he trusted to hear of the most complete success of their lodge. In responding to the toast of the Sister lodges Bro. Burtenshaw, W.M. 359, on behalf of the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, the largest in the Province, over which he was proud to preside, desired to tender his heartiest thanks for the very kind manner in which the toast had been proposed and the warmth with which it had been received by the brethren. It afforded him great delight to be there that evening to do honour to the worthy and distinguished brother who was about to leave the country. He knew full well that Bro. Wilson had endeavoured to promote goodwill, brotherly love and truth, and that he had proved himself a good and true man and Mason. Bro. Dyson, W.M. Southampton Lodge, No. 394, who was also called on to respond to the toast of the sister lodges, expressed himself in kindly and fraternal terms towards the guest of the evening. He said that from the time of his first becoming acquainted with Bro. Wilson, he had entertained for him the greatest possible esteem, and believed fully that he would leave this country with the most sincere and best wishes of every brother with whom he had become connected. He would further say, that in expressing his personal sentiments towards Bro. Wilson, he was also conveying those of every brother of the Southampton Lodge, knowing that one and all wished him health and happiness in the undertaking he was about to enter upon. Bro. Thomas, W.M. 130, could not refrain from feeling a certain amount of sadness in hearing Bro. Wilson officiating that evening in the J.W. chair, knowing that that was the last time they would hear his voice, and that they would so soon see his face no more; but it was a pleasure to think that although they would soon have half the globe between him and themselves, yet the Masonic ties would still be between them uniting them in a bond too strong for any distance to weaken. In looking over the list of lodges in the colony of N.Z. he found there were 28 owing allegiance to our English G.L. There, our Bro. would no doubt have the opportunity of seeing the same ritual and ceremonies with which he had so thoroughly made himself acquainted in the R.G.L. of Instruction, the same authority appealed to in cases of difficulty, the same charities supported; in fact he would find that a Mason really finds a home in every clime, and he also hoped that T.G.A.O.T.U. would spare their lives that they might welcome back our brother on some future occasion, and once more see him mixing with the companions of his former toils in their dear old Gloucester Lodge. Bro. R. Sharpe, P.G.O., Sec. and Treas., wished to supplement the congratulations of the rest of the brethren to Bro. Wilson, on his valuable preferment, to assure him, that he was indeed going to a "land of promise" not literally flowing with milk and honey, but full of the milk of human kindness, where he would find a warm-hearted hospitable people, ready to hold out the right hand of fellowship, and give him a cordial greeting, whether in the capacity of Mason or citizen. It was a matter for further congratulation that he was going to a country possessed of a climate with but one rival in the world, and that one Tasmania, where he (the speaker) had resided for nearly five years, a climate which would, he felt confident, prove a rich blessing to him, because it was sure to be the means of restoring to perfect health and strength, the one who, above all, was nearest and dearest to him.

Mark Masonry.

BOLTON.—St. John's Lodge (Time Immemorial).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 25th March, at the lodge room, Commercial Hotel, Town-hall-square, Bolton, at which were present, Bro. James Newton, Prov. G. Mark Inspector of Works, W.M.; John Alcock, S.W.; James Horrocks, J.W.; John Harwood, M.O.; Wm. Hamer, P.M., as S.O.; Robert Glaister, J.O.; Thos. Entwisle, P. Prov. G. Mark Master, Registrar of Marks; Thomas Morris, P. Prov. G. Mark Sword Bearer, Secretary; Thos. Holme, S.D.; Robert Pickup, J.D.; Henry Tattersall, I.G.; Robert Harwood, P. Prov. G. Mark Deacon; Daniel Stansfield, P. Prov. G. Mark Deacon, and others. The lodge being opened, and the minutes confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bro. Thomas Mycock, P.M. Clifton Lodge, 703, Blackpool, as a candidate for advancement, and was unanimously in his favour, and he being in attendance was admitted and advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master, the ceremony being performed by the W.M. A candidate was proposed for advancement, and the lodge was closed in the usual manner.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

MANCHESTER.—Jerusalem Chapter of Antiquity.—A meeting of this chapter of H.M., K.H. was held at the Manchester Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, the 24th March, 1874, under circular to all the thirty members, when the following report, signed by the Past R.G.C. was adopted, and the Chapter and Senate united with the ancient and primitive rite of Masonry, under the title of the Palatine and Jerusalem Chapter of Antiquity No. 2, thus inaugurating a new era. Report.—1. A Grand Council was held in Paris in 1762, to ascertain whether the Kadosh and the Templar were one and the same order, and a resolution to adopt the black and white colours of the Templar Beauseant was adopted in their title and eagle. 2. The fact that the "Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry" derives from the "Primitive Rite of Philadelphes of Narbonne," 1779. 3. The absence of any evidence of the existence of the Templar Order in Great Britain and Ireland previous to 1780, and the fact that from the earliest time down to 1852, the connection between the Red Cross and Kadosh Templars was invariable, of which proof was given in English, Irish, and Scottish documents and rituals, between 1792 and 1840. 4. The fact that from 1791 to 1852 all warrants issued in England styled the degree "Grand Elected Knight Templar Kadosh of St. John of Jerusalem, &c." and that emblems known only to Kadosh Templars appear upon the certificates, in the ceremony of installation, and upon the old banners of the Jerusalem Encampment or Conclave used prior to 1835, copies of photographs of which were in possession of the R. G. Superintendent. 5. The exhibition of the ritual of the "Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry" in the degree of Knight Kadosh, in proof that the symbolism of the old English Templar was known only to members of each degree of the A. and P. Rite. The fact that the present Grand Conclave of Knight Templars had utterly disconnected themselves from any possible progenitors in 1852, and again in 1872, in order to ally themselves with a body spurious upon the three counts, and working a forged constitution, styling themselves the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite. Therefore it is resolved that the members of the "Jerusalem Chapter of Antiquity" H.M., K.H., amalgamate and unite their Rose Croix and Kadosh Templar degrees with the same degrees of the "Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry" of which the R.G. Supt. is bound (under the charter of the G.W. Sanctuary of America, derived from the illustrious Bro. Marconnis de Negre, and the late Marshal Magnan, late Grand Master of the Grand Orient of France) with such powers to give the extraneous degrees as may be mutually agreed between them, the "Royal Grand Council of Ancient Rites, time immemorial," and the "Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry." A hope was expressed that the S.G.C. of the A. and A. Scottish Rite might, by adopting a representative constitution, end further the Masonic squabble.

EDINBURGH.—St. Giles' Conclave, (No. 103).—The regular monthly meeting of this flourishing conclave was held on Thursday, the 19th inst., Em. Sir Knight H. E. Jonas, M.P.S., in the chair, supported by his Viceroy, the Em. Sir Knight D. Shearer, all the officers, and a good attendance of Sir Knights. The minutes having been read and confirmed, several brethren were proposed as candidates for admission into the Order, and being balloted for were found to be unanimously approved of. The next business was the reception of Ill. Sir Knight C. G. C. Christie, attended by Very Eminent Sir Knts. J. B. Mercer and R. S. Brown, Knights Grand Cross, were received in due form under the Arch of Steel. The sceptre having been resigned to the Ill. Intendant-General, he graciously returned it to the M.P.S., and requested him to retain his position and chair, the duties of which he so admirably discharged. The M.P.S. then, in his own name and that of the Conclave, tendered a hearty welcome to Ill. Sir Knight Christie, and expressed his thanks to him for this visit, and hoped that it would be frequently repeated. The Intendant-General expressed his gratification with the kind reception he had received, the admirable manner in which the affairs of the Conclave had been conducted since its commencement, and the great success which had attended their efforts to promote the prosperity of the Order, and it was now his duty to reward the zeal of two worthy members of the Conclave, viz., Sir Knights W. Barton and J. M. McPherson by conferring upon them the rank of Honorary Sovereigns of the Conclave. A College of Viceroy was thereupon opened and Sir Knights Barton and McPherson were duly consecrated as Viceroy, and afterwards, in a Senate of Sovereigns, duly enthroned as Honorary Sovereigns, the ceremonies throughout being conducted by the Ill. Intendant-General, assisted by the M.P.S., and Very Eminent Sir Knights J. B. Mercer and R. S. Brown. The Conclave was thereafter closed in ancient form.

FALKIRK.—Lodge St. John (No. 16).—A largely attended meeting of the members was held on Tuesday, 9th March, in the Lodge-room, Burns' Court, Falkirk, for the purpose of presenting Bro. William Snodgrass, the late Secretary, with a gold watch, as a mark of personal esteem and an expression of the appreciation with which his services to the Craft in the district are regarded. Bro. John Duncan, the Right Worshipful Master, presided, and having opened the lodge, called upon Bro. Shields, the Past Master, to take the chair. Bro. Shields expressed the pleasure he experienced at being the medium of handing over to Bro. Snodgrass a substantial token of the brethren's regard and gratitude. How well Bro. Snodgrass had served the lodge and the cause of Masonry in the district they all knew. As Secretary of No. 16, he had shown the liveliest interest in the affairs of the lodge; and from his intimate and extensive knowledge of Masonry, and his long experience in lodge-working, he had on many occasions enabled them to surmount difficulties which, without his aid, would have put them very much about. As they were all aware, Bro. Snodgrass was in a large measure instrumental in bringing about the resuscitation of the Prov. Grand Lodge. Bro. Shields concluded by presenting the handsome gift to Bro. Snodgrass, along with the best wishes of the brethren for his future happiness and success. Bro. Snodgrass, in reply, said:—Right Wor. Master, Worshipful Wardens, and Brethren—For this unexpected and unlooked-for mark of your respect and esteem I have to thank you one and all. It has been often said that out of the fulness of the heart the mouth speaketh; but there are seasons when the heart is so full that the mouth cannot give utterance to the feelings therein contained. Such is my present position. I cannot say that I feel bashful or timid; but something says to me, "What have you done over and above the other office-bearers of the lodge that you should be selected for this ovation?" Your worthy chairman has tried to explain the reason for making the presentation; but still the question comes back with redoubled force—What have you done for the lodge or Masonry, other than your duty. My answer is plain and simple. I have done to the best of my ability, irrespective of position. We are all aware that a certain duty devolves on every office-bearer and member of a lodge; and it pleased this lodge, before I was long a member, to place me in the honourable position of being its Secretary. That office I accepted, and held up till the last election on St. John's Day, when I declined to act longer, in consequence of intervening circumstances, which would prevent me from fulfilling my duties to my own satisfaction. During my term of office I tried to the utmost of my ability to fulfil it, and where I have failed it has not been for the want of the will on my part, or the love that I bore to the Craft, and your appreciation of my services is this handsome gift, for which I have again to thank you. Much of the praise, however, bestowed on me is due to the harmonious working of the other office-bearers, and especially to your presiding Masters during my term of office, through their prompt attention to all matters connected with Lodge or Masonry, which it has been my duty as Secretary to bring before them. These duties have ever been with me a work of love to the Craft; and if my services to promote the welfare and prosperity of the Order has met with your approval, as it would appear from the present meeting, I am more than amply rewarded, although there had not been this handsome token to mark it. Ever since I first entered the portals of a Masonic lodge it has been a pleasing duty to me at all times, in whatever position I was placed, to do all that lay in my power for the prosperity of the lodge, with which I was connected and Masonry in general; and since my connection with No. 16 I may say that I have enjoyed myself Masonically more than in any other lodge to which I have affiliated. And so long as I live, I will endeavour Masonically to merit a continuance of your kind wishes and good opinion. And when my apron is worn out with tear and wear in the service of the Order, and my head grown white with years, may I still enjoy them; and when the G.A.O.T.U. sends his call to us respectively may we all meet in the Grand Lodge above. I will now close with the hope that every time I refer to this, your gift, it will bring vividly to my remembrance your kindness and regard, and the many happy evenings we have spent together; and that as I mark the moments fleeting on, it may bring to my recollection that this world is only a lodge of preparation and instruction for the Grand Lodge where we all hope to gain admittance through the grand pass-word, and my prayer is that you may be spared for many years to come in the enjoyment of health, strength, happiness, and prosperity, and that through all and in all our actions, thoughts, and words, charity, like golden and silken cord, shall be seen running through the tangled web of life, binding man to his fellow man in indissoluble bonds, and ushering in the dawn of the real golden age, which if Masonry be true, lies before rather than behind us.

Fellow Masons lend your hand
To your feeble faltering brother;
Bear in mind the sweet command—
Love ye one another.

Sow ye seeds of kindly deeds
As on through life you're roaming;
Think ye not 'twill be forgot,
Harvest time is coming.

Again thanking you all for your kindness, Votes of thanks were awarded to Bro. Shields, Warden, and A. Marshall, for their services in connection with the promotion of the memorial. The watch bears the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. William Snodgrass by Lodge No. 16 (Falkirk), as a mark of esteem—March, 1874." The lodge was then formally closed.

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The brethren of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1356, held their first annual ball on the 19th inst., at the Royal Assembly Rooms, George-street, Liverpool, and there is no doubt that from the complete success attending their first merry meeting, it will not be the last. The object of this prosperous and influential lodge, the subject in view was not only to afford amusement to those who were present, but there was further noble object in view of giving substantial assistance to one of the noblest charities of brotherhood—the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, which, with its accumulated capital of about £20,000, is doing a good and noble work, in a quiet yet very successful manner. As there were upwards of 250 present at the "De Grey and Ripon" hall, the amount

SURREY MASONIC HALL.

A contract has been entered into, and the work is progressing at a rapid rate, by the directors of the above company. The builder is Bro. John Oliver, and the amount of his contract £5,000.

The building is intended partly as a Masonic Temple for holding "Craft" and "Chapter" meetings and banqueting, partly as a club for Masonic brethren, and partly, although very separately if desired, as an assembly room for lectures, balls, drawing-room entertainments, political and other meetings. The former will give all the accommodation required, even a billiard room for use of club members and visitors, while the latter will be the much required room of the locality, about 70 by 35 and 35 feet high, having all necessary dressing and retiring rooms, lavatories for ladies and gentlemen, &c.

The premises are so arranged that with convenience a dinner may be served for eighty persons, and each separate lodge or chapter may have its separate wine store.

The building in course of erection is finely classic, having a portico in advance of the general facade line, and a neat little tower rising over the vestibule in the centre of the building, from a square into octagonal form to about 60 feet high, finishing with a corona and mansard roof, decorated simply with pilasters, caps and bases.

From the plans ventilation appears to have been studied throughout, and from the general appearance of the design and plans South London appears to have taken a step in the right direction.

The architects are Messrs. Pain and Clarke, of 19, Buckingham-street, Strand, the last named being Bro. Edward Clark, P.M. 1194 and 1329, P.P.G. Superintendent of Works, under whose especial care the design has been prepared. Being a prominent Freemason, and thoroughly understanding the requisites of a Masonic temple, he will leave no stone unturned to preserve his reputation by providing a handsome as well as commodious temple worthy of the Craft.

CONSECRATION OF ANOTHER MELROSE LODGE IN GLASGOW.

In October, 1873, a few members of Lodge Melrose St. John, No. 1, having obtained a dispensation for that purpose from the Ancient Melrose body, started a new lodge in the East-end of Glasgow. They already number seventy-one members, and the character and standing of the lodge being unimpeachable, they have now received a charter, and will in future be known as Melrose St. Mungo No. 2, Glasgow. The consecration of this lodge took place in the Borough Hall, Catton, on Wednesday the 11th inst., and the interesting ceremony was performed by a deputation from Melrose Grand Lodge. Bros. Robert Renton, M.W.G.M.; Andrew Hart, P.G.M.; Frank Hart, R.W.G.S. Warden; and John Pringle, R.W.G.J. Warden, opened the lodge. Bro. John Kinnaird, 33, &c., acted as V.W.G. Chaplain, and in a truly Masonic prayer invoked the aid and blessing of the G.A. of the Universe. The charter was read by Bro. Renton, M.W.G.M., who delivered a very able address on the objects, virtues, and benefits of the Order. Bro. Andrew Hart, P.G.M., delivered the charges and admonished the brethren to practice all those virtues which every true Mason should possess, particularly brotherly love and charity. Bros. T. Stratford, R.W.M., and S. Davidson, S.W., of Melrose St. John's No. 1, were on the platform. Fifty-five members of the lodge St. Mungo, No. 2, and thirty visiting brethren were present, including some from lodges Nos. 4, 28, 87, 116, and 441 (Grand Lodge of Scotland.) The following office-bearers were installed.—Bros. John Hamilton, R.W.M.; James Hunter, S.W.; Matthew Downie, J.W.; Robertson, Secy., and others. The lodge went on to refreshment, Bros. Renton, Kinnaird, Stratford, McPherson, Hamilton, Davidson, and others, addressed the brethren, and Bro. Andrew Hart, P.G.M., expatiated on the antiquity and merits of the Melrose Masons. As soon as the ceremony was over a telegram was despatched to Melrose, apprising Mother Melrose of the fact. A reply was shortly wired back and read:—Mother Melrose in open lodge extends right hand of fellowship to St. Mungo No. 2. This was received with deafening applause.

A deputation of Masons, presently under Grand Lodge of Scotland, requested a dispensation from the Melrose Masons, for starting a new lodge in the neighbourhood of Kirkintilloch, under that ancient body. The M.W.G.M. promised to lay their petition before the Grand Committee at Melrose. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts, votes of thanks, &c., were given and responded to, and harmony became the order of the day. The meeting broke up at a late hour.

Masonic Tidings.

Mr. Emra Holmes, of Her Majesty's Customs, Ipswich, has been once more doing good work for his necessitous neighbours. At an entertainment recently given, on behalf of the funds of the Dovercourt Institute, his humorous readings were the most agreeable feature of the evening, and elicited loud and continued applause from a delighted audience. If we had more colleagues like Mr. Holmes, the Civil Service would have a firmer hold on the affections of the people.—Civilian. [This is our well-known brother.—Ed.]

Washington Lodge, No. 32, of Alexandria, Virginia, have nearly completed their new Masonic Hall. The upper story is already finished and occupied. When completed, it will, it is said, be one of the finest buildings devoted to Masonry in the United States.

We understand that a number of influential Jewish brethren in Liverpool have already had one or two friendly meetings with the view of establishing a Lodge of Israel in the town. From the spirit with which the matter has been taken up, there is no doubt that the new lodge will soon be un fait accompli, and from the numbers and well-recognized influence of the Jewish brethren there is no doubt that it will be one of the most successful in the province.

Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., R.W.P.G.M for North Wales, has consented to act as one of the Presidents at the Bangor Eisteddfod.

Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., has been elected chairman of the Church Defence Association, vice Bro. C. H. Raikes, M.P., resigned.

GLASGOW.—PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE VISITATIONS.

This has been a busy week for the Province of Glasgow. Bro. F. A. Barrow, D.P.G.M. in the absence of Bro. W. M. Neilson, who is abroad, has commenced the annual visitations of all the lodges in the Province. On most occasions he has been well supported by the Provincial Grand Office Bearers, consisting of Bro. J. Steel, D.P.G.M.; John Baird, P.G.S.W.; Kinghorn, P.G.J.W.; A. Mc. Taggart, M.A., P.G.S., J. B. Walker, P.G.T.; J. Halket, P.G.S.D.; G. Thallon, P.G.J.D.; R. Robb, P.G.M.; A. Brin, P.G.B.B.; James Balfour, P.G.D. of C.; Wm. Phillips, P.G.I.G. J. Gilles, P.G.S.B.; G. Sinclair, P. of the Benevolent Fund; and C. Collinson, Janitor.

A detailed account of the visits will be given in our next.

KNOWLEDGE AND SYMPATHY.—Good spirits may be readily restored to the late fortunate owner, by a few doses of Holloway's revivifying medicine; instant action alone is wanted to prevent the development of more disagreeable and dangerous symptoms. Everyone has frequently experienced sudden personal changes from gaiety to gloom, the weather oftentimes receiving the blame, when a faulty digestion alone is the cause of the depression. Holloway's Pills can be honestly recommended for regulating a disordered stomach, and improving digestion. They entirely remove all sense of fullness and oppression after eating; they cleanse the furred tongue and act as a wholesome stimulant to the liver, and as a gentle aperient to the bowels. They healthfully arouse both body and mind.—ADVT.

result is likely to be such as to prove a substantial addition to the funds of the charity, and a reward to the brethren, who were indefatigable in devising and carrying out the arrangements. We understand that the "lion's share" of this work fell upon Bro. T. Evans, the W.M. of this lodge, and therefore he deserves the warmest praise and recognition for his untiring efforts, which so largely contributed to the enjoyment in connection with the festive gathering which every one must have realised. The "commander" had excellent "lieutenants" in Bros. S. E. Ibbs, P.M.; E. Rothwell, S.W.; Joseph Bell, J.W.; Jos. Jones, Sec. (who especially distinguished himself as "reception brother"); Ireland, Treas.; and T. Horne, S.D. Amongst the visitors from other lodges we observed Bros. Philip R. Thorn, P.M. 1182; G. Turner, P.M. 823; A. C. Morrison, Sec. 594; T. B. Myers, J.W. 1112; R. Martin, jun., S.D. 1182; J. Chisnall, 249; J. B. Mackenzie, 349 and 1182; W. Gardick, 249; — Little, 149; G. Maxwell, 594; A. Martin, 594; Bros. Eve, G. Jeffery, &c. By special dispensation, the majority of the brethren appeared wearing the jewels, clothing, and insignia of different Masonic Orders, and as there were present members of the Orders of Royal Arch Masons, Knights Templar, Mark Masons, &c., besides a number of "Craftsmen," the very excellent salon presented a brilliant and lively appearance, more especially as the whole of the bright-eyed and fair ladies were dressed with the most exquisite taste. The gathering was of the truest "happy family" kind, every one unselfishly striving to make the enjoyment complete, and Bro. C. Bath, a member of the lodge, contributed greatly to the pleasure and comfort of the guests by his courteous and untiring efforts as Master of the Ceremonies. Dancing commenced shortly after nine o'clock, and was kept up with great spirit until about three, capital music being furnished by Bro. Duncanson's quadrille band. Bro. Milburn, of St. Anne-street, was entrusted with the order for "creature comforts," and as these were of the most satisfactory kind, there was no grounds for complaint.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY,

FROM ITS ORIGIN TO THE PRESENT DAY.

Drawn from the best sources and the most recent investigations.

BY J. G. FINDEL,

Second Edition, Revised, and Preface written by

Bro. D. MURRAY LYON.

One vol., 800 pages 8vo., with an Index. Cloth gilt. Price, 10s. 6d.

"This book is a strictly historical one, from which all is excluded that is not based upon ascertained or probable fact."—Builder.

"Of its value to Freemasons, as a detailed history of their Brotherhood, it is not possible to speak too highly."—Public Opinion.

"The author seems to have fairly exhausted the subject."—The Athenaeum.

"The edition we are now considering is a second English edition, which had the great advantage of Bro. D. M. Lyon's able superintendence and editorship in its English dress. There can be no doubt but, that so far, Bro. Findel's work is the most complete work on Freemasonry which has yet appeared, and that he deserves the greatest credit for his careful and accurate treatment of all evidence on the subject, and for his honest desire after truth. Bro. Findel gives up in the view he has so clearly and consistently put forth our early Masonic history, the older theory of the Roman Colleges, &c., and limits the origin of Freemasonry to about the twelfth century, and as then arising from the operative Masons, and specially the "Steinmetzen" and "Bauhütten" of Germany. Bro. Findel gives us a good deal of evidence on this head, and one thing is clear from his work, that the German Freemasons were, at a very early period, organized into lodges with a Master over them, and with outward regulations and inner ceremonies peculiar to the Craft. Bro. Findel rejects all the views which have been from time to time put forward of a Templar or a Rosicrucian origin. Whether or no Bro. Findel's theory of the date of the rise of Freemasonry be correct, matters very little: we do not ourselves profess to accept it; but this we can fairly say of Bro. Findel's work, it is marked from first to last by the most remarkable token of industry, ability, and care, of patient research, and of skillful criticism. We know of no work which so clearly sets before us our amount of knowledge up to the present time on the great question of Masonic Archaeology, and there can be little doubt that what Preston's work is to English Freemasonry, Findel's work is to cosmopolitan Freemasonry. Indeed no student in Masonry can now dispense with it, and it is a perfect storehouse both of Masonic evidence and Masonic illustrations. We earnestly recommend all the lodges in this country to obtain a copy for the lodge library before the work is bought up for America; and we believe that no Mason will rise from the perusal of its pages without a higher idea both of the historical truth and intrinsic value of Freemasonry, and of fraternal regard and recognition to the latest and not the least well-informed or effective of our Masonic historians. The present century has produced no such equal, in authority and usefulness, to the great work of our Bro. Findel, and we wish him and it, in all of fraternal sympathy and kindly intent, many earnest readers, and more grateful students."—The Masonic Magazine.

WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

There appeared in our last impression a very interesting account of the "Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution," by which it appeared that nineteen children were being educated that province, and we have been since favoured with the report of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, to which we think we should call attention to-day.

As a "succursale," as the French would say, of our greater system, it deserves not only respectful mention, but consideration.

For the report is a very creditable one to West Lancashire, and places in a most favourable light the educational zeal of the West Lancashire brethren, and their friendly sympathy for orphans of their deceased brethren.

The Institution was founded in 1850, and therefore fourteen years old.

During the last year forty-five children enjoyed its benefits, and the sum of £341 1s. 3d. paid for their education and advancement in

The "financial statement," says the report, we fully agree, "is one which cannot fail to be satisfactory." "At the close of the year 1873, total funds of the charity amounted to £9779 4s. 5d., whilst the present report shows the investments in Dock Bonds, and Mortgages, together with the cash in hand, and in the Treasurer's hands, amounted to £10,845, 24s. 9d."

Nothing can be apparently better managed on a more satisfactory basis, than this West Lancashire Institution, the more so as annual subscriptions and donations amount to £700, in round numbers, annually, far exceeding the present cost of education.

We have been deeply interested with this proof (if proof were needed) of Provincial and Masonic good feeling, and we congratulate the brethren of West Lancashire on the success of their useful and valuable Provincial Institution. Neither they, nor the Cheshire brethren, claim for their respective associations more than this, that they are, as far as they go, useful and beloved to the community, and their benefits, as well as their

"their advancement in business, or professional avocation," to which the reports allude.

The one great defect in both systems, is the want of general supervision, and we do not quite see or understand how the West Lancashire brethren test or gauge the value and quality of the education given and received.

But having said this, we cannot but highly commend them for this striking and successful evidence of their active appreciation of the great principles of Freemasonry, and of their laudable efforts to advance the cause of education generally, especially for those, who, by the visitation of Providence, have been deprived alike of the great blessing of parental control, and too often of the means of receiving the greatest of all helps to man, the inestimable privilege of a good and a sound education.

MASONIC HALLS.

We give, in another column, a detailed account of the New Surrey Masonic Hall, and of the buildings contemplated and already in progress.

We are very glad to hear of a fresh attempt to raise up Masonic Homes for our brethren, and we trust that the undertaking will receive the liberal patronage and hearty support of the Craft.

For some time past, the movement has been happily spreading amongst us, of raising at no little cost, and with great architectural skill those many handsome "Temples" and "Halls," which are found in most of our large towns, and even in sometimes smaller localities.

In our humble opinion, an opinion we expressed years ago, nothing has so tended to elevate the status of Masonry amongst us, as the erection of many "stately and superb edifices" as well as many a convenient lodge room, in which our brethren can associate privately, happily, and peacefully, and in which our ancient ceremonies can be duly and decorously carried out.

Some of us who call to mind the attendant circumstances and accessories of our lodge meetings and lodge rooms twenty years ago, and note the wonderful difference now, will not be surprised, we think, at the great strides Masonry has recently made, and at the general contentment and harmony, and social pleasantness, and befitting hours which now almost universally distinguish our lodge gatherings. May this state of things continue, other, may it increase, and may we seek always to encourage every effort, made by the intelligent and energetic of our Order, to supply to Freemasonry the means of regular assembly, in buildings which are a credit to the Craft, and honourable to the Brotherhood. We hope to hear, that, this undertaking has received full and substantial support from our worthy and progressing order.

Every additional Masonic Temple we raise is another proof of the extending influences and commanding power of Freemasonry, and another guarantee of social order, harmony, and peace, and the spread of general enlightenment and civilization.

So let us encourage all such efforts, and aid such enterprises, whenever they come before us, with fraternal sympathy and support. The words of the poet seem to close appropriately this short article.

"Build, that these walls to future generations
Your strength, your skill, your faithfulness may tell;
That all may say, as storms and centuries test them,
'The men of old built well! built well!'
Thus ever speaks the Great Master Builder to us,
Where'er our journeywork may be,
Whate'er the toil, the season, or the structure;
'Build well! build well! build worthily!'

WEEKLY SUMMARY.

Her Majesty is at Windsor Castle, but leaves for Osborne, for Easter, this week. Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales go to Sandringham for Easter, also, this week.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh have been at Windsor Castle.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, and Prince Leopold, attended by Lady Macclesfield and Lady Frances Baillie, General Probyn, Captain Ramsay, M. Kaloshine, and Mr. Collins, were present at the performance of the Messiah by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society last evening.

The boat race between Cambridge and Oxford on Saturday last has been decided in favour of Cambridge by about three lengths, after plucky rowing by Oxford. Great crowds assembled as usual to cheer the dark and light blues.

It is announced that her Majesty intends to confer on Sir Garnet Wolsley a Baronetcy and a pension of £1000 a year for two lives. Sir Garnet will also be promoted to the rank of Major-General, and will receive the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. From a feeling of delicacy (says the Times) Sir Garnet has declined the Grand Cross of the Bath, but will be advanced to the dignity of K.C.B.

We hope that Captain Glover will not be forgotten, and that Colonel Festing and the good old "jollies" will receive all befitting notice. There is no finer corps in the service, than that loyal and steady body of men, whose services are greatly distinguished "per mare et terra."

On Monday Her Majesty reviewed in Windsor Park, the regiments which had returned from the Gold Coast. Surrounded by all the Royal Family, and in the presence of the Commander-in-Chief, her Majesty gave to Sir Garnet Wolsley, the insignia of the Bath, and of St. Michael and St. George. The Victoria Cross was given to Lieut. Lord Gifford, and would have been granted to Sergeant McGaw, 42nd Highlanders, had he been present. All seems to have gone off admirably at that most interesting spectacle.

The votes of thanks to the army and navy were passed on Monday night, unanimously in both houses, and Sir E. Wilmot mentioned another very gallant trait of Col. Festing's, as a reason for giving him the V.C. Mr. Disraeli paid an eloquent tribute to the skill of the commander, the energy of Captain Glover, and the gallantry of the troops and sailors.

At the annual general meeting, held on March 30, Sir George Burrows, M.D., F.R.S., was re-elected President of the College of Physicians.

There is not much more to be noticed at home, except the following daring attempt at burglary near Windsor, during the review on Monday. Taking advantage of the excitement into which Windsor was thrown on Monday, a gang of thieves obtained forcible entrance into the dwelling house of Mr. W. Beach, Balmoral-villas, in the New-road, Clewer, and succeeded in putting together a number of valuable articles, previous to carrying them off. They were surprised, however, by the servant, who had been left in the house, and who gave the alarm. The Metropolitan police, who were on special duty near, hearing her cries, proceeded to the house, and captured two of the gang, one of whom offered a desperate resistance, and, besides battering the officer who had arrested him about the head in an exceedingly brutal manner, shot at him five times, the last shot taking effect at the side of the constable's face. The thieves having been secured, the officer's wounds were attended to at the Infirmary, and he subsequently recovered so far as to be able to go back to London. Superintendent Hayes found on the premises several house-breaking implements, including two small jemmies. The men in custody will be brought up on Tuesday before the borough magistrates for examination. It is a very serious matter, this reappearance of armed burglars.

It has been duly announced also in the agony column of the Times, the well-known motto of the Freemasons is "patented" by a secret service agent. Very good of the secret service agent but hardly complimentary to the great Masonic brotherhood at home and abroad.

Marshal Serrano has evidently failed in his attack on the Carlist position, and in all probability, therefore, the fall of Bilbao is imminent. But the "Cosas de Espana" are always very ticklish things, to talk about, and nothing is really certain in that remarkable country, until it is a "fait accompli."

Lord Rosmore, of the 2nd Life Guards, died on Saturday evening, the 28th inst., of the effects of his accident.

It appears by a telegram received on Sunday, by Mr. James Gordon Bennett, that the Maboia arrived at Suez at 11 on Saturday, having Mr. Walter Laing and Jacob Wainwright on board, with the body of Dr. Livingstone. He died, it appears, on May 4th, 1873, of chronic dysentery, at a place called Muila, beyond Lake Yemba, in Bisha country. The last entry in his diary is of date April 27th.

ITEMS OF HOME NEWS.

On Wednesday evening, March 25, the Prince of Wales, accompanied by Prince Christian, presided at a dinner at Willis's Rooms in aid of the funds of the British Orphan Asylum. In attendance were the Marquis of Hamilton, General Right Hon. Sir W. Knollys, and Major-General Probyn. The subscriptions announced during the evening amounted to upwards of £2,400.

The Prince of Wales presided on the 25th inst., at Marlborough-house, over a meeting of the Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851. There were also present the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Arthur, Prince Christian, the Duke of Teck, the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marquess of Ripon, the Earl of Carnarvon, Sir William Knollys, Sir Bartle E. Frere, Mr. Playfair, Sir Thomas Bazley, Sir William Anderson, Sir Thomas Biddulph, Sir F. Sandford, Mr. Edgar Bowring, Mr. T. Field Gibson, Mr. Thomas E. Harrison, General Ponsonby, General Probyn, Mr. Cole, and General Scott (secretary).

The first flower show of the season was held on Monday, 30th inst., at the Royal Botanic Society's gardens, Regent's Park. Roses, red, white, and yellow, deutzias, clematis, lilac, and many other of our summer favourites were exhibited. The number of specimens entered for prizes was so large that both sides of the corridor, 200ft. long, were well filled, and a considerable space at the east end of the conservatory had to be fitted up for the occasion. Most of the principal nurserymen were represented. Messrs. Veitch contributed a large number of hyacinths, tulips, and clematis, as well as a collection of orchids and miscellaneous plants. Mr. William Paul sent several boxes of cut roses and camellias, and some hyacinths, &c., in pots. Mr. Williams had also a display of stove plants, &c. A few well-grown though small camellias from Mr. Lane's nursery divided the general attention with the plants of clematis from Mr. Jackman and the deutzias of Mr. Reeves. There were also collections of yellow roses from the garden of Mr. Benham, and cyclamens from Mr. Little and Mr. Watson, as well as flowers of all kinds from the gardens of many other amateurs. The large Nepal tree rhododendrons are now in full bloom in the conservatory, and give us some idea of what a sight the Himalayas must be when clothed with such flowers.

The Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress entertained Major-General Sir Garnet Wolseley, together with Colonel Sir Archibald Alison, Colonel McLeod, Colonel Mostyn, and the whole of the officers who have returned from the Ashantee Expedition, at a grand banquet in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House, on Tuesday evening, at seven o'clock. A distinguished company was invited to meet the officers on the occasion, including, among others, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, H.R.H. the Commander-in-Chief, H.R.H. Prince Arthur, Mr. Gathorne Hardy, the Secretary for War, and Mr. Ward Hunt, the first Lord of the Admiralty, and Viscount Cardwell.

The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's have received the liberal gift of £500 for the Completion Fund of St. Paul's Cathedral, from Mrs. Comber, of Worthing.

POST OFFICE TELEGRAPHS.—The following statement shows the total number of messages forwarded from postal telegraph stations in the United Kingdom during the week ending the 21st of March, 1874, and during the corresponding week of 1873:—Week ending March 21, 1874, 343,998; week ending March 22, 1873—305,508; increase in the week of 1874 on that of 1873, 37,590.

The estimates for the fiscal year 1874-75 compare as follows with the Estimates for preceding year:—

Army Estimates	14,416,100	14,485,300
Navy Estimates	9,899,725	10,179,485
Civil Service Estimates	11,593,014	11,286,978
Revenue Department (cost of collection and postal service)	7,451,103	7,513,683
Total	43,359,942	43,465,446

The total for 1874-75 is £105,504 more than in 1873-74. It is estimated that on the Army account there will be Exchequer extra receipts in 1874-75 amounting to £1,191,500, reducing the net charge for Army services for that year to £13,293,800.

THE HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES.—The 18th anniversary of this institution was held last evening at the London Tavern. Lord George Hamilton, M.P., presided, and the company included Mr. J. D. Allcroft, the Rev. W. P. Pearce, Mr. Alderman Ellis, Mr. Thomas Kelsey, the Rev. T. W. Aveling, the Rev. Herbert Williams, Mr. George Norbury, the Rev. E. J. Rogers, and Mr. C. W. C. Hutton. The Royal Hospital for Incurables, situate at West-hill, Putney Heath, was founded in the year 1854, for the relief, during the remainder of life, of persons above the pauper class suffering from incurable maladies, and thereby disqualified for the duties of life. In this respect the institution differs essentially from ordinary hospitals, as its action only commences where theirs necessarily ceases. For persons needing a home an asylum is provided; medical attendance, nursing, and domestic comforts are supplied; and an endeavour is made to alleviate suffering, and to cheer the life from which health has departed. To persons having a home, but without the means of support, a pension of £20 a year is granted. Since its foundation, in 1854, elections had been held twice a year, and at the present time there were 151 inmates and 319 pensioners. This might seem a large number of people for a single charity to support, but the fact was that at the present moment there were no fewer than 200 candidates waiting to participate in the advantages either of the hospital or of the pensions. The cost of maintaining a hospital for incurables was necessarily higher than that of ordinary hospitals. The balance-sheet of the past year showed that nearly £16,000 was expended in maintaining the hospital and in granting pensions. These annual meetings of the friends of the institution were held, not merely to express sympathy with the object of the hospital, but in order to collect subscriptions for its support. The noble Chairman's appeal was followed by an announcement by the secretary (Mr. Frederic Andrew) of subscriptions amounting in the aggregate to £2,000: The proceedings of the evening were enlivened by the performance of a selection of vocal music, under the direction of Mr. T. Baxter.

Deputy Stapleton has given notice of his intention to propose the following resolution at the next meeting of the Court of Common Council:—"That the honorary freedom of the City of London, with a sword of the value of 150 guineas, be presented to Major-General Sir Garnet Joseph Wolseley, C.B., K.C.M.G., in recognition of his gallant services in the British army, and especially in reference to the distinguished ability and gallantry displayed by him in his command of the expeditionary force to the Gold Coast, by which he destroyed the power of the Ashantee nation and obtained results conducive to peace, commerce, and civilization on the continent of Africa. And this Court desires also to record its admiration of the patient endurance of hardship exhibited, and the valuable co-operation and assistance rendered to Sir Garnet Wolseley by Captain Glover and Commodore Hewett, and the gallant men of both services and of all arms engaged in the expedition."

THE OLD MELROSE LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Various brethren having expressed themselves in connection with this subject in your columns, I may say that I also was thinking of taking part in it. It so happens however, that Bro. Stratford and others have opened up the subject in the Glasgow daily papers, and in said papers special reference was made to what has been said in your own columns upon the subject. I took the liberty to reply to what your correspondents said, and in order that none of them may say that I have attacked them unknowingly, I beg to append a copy of my remarks, and if I am wrong in any point I am quite open to correction.

I am, Yours fraternally,
MASONICUS.

Glasgow, March 24.

FATHER MELROSE AND MOTHER KILWINNING.
To the Editor of the North British Daily Mail.

Sir,—Perhaps you will allow me to say a few words in reply to the remarks of "Fraternal Justice" and of Mr. Stratford, R.W.M., of Melrose St. John's, No. 1, and as they are both upon the same side, what does for one will serve for both. Mr. Stratford in closing, particularly recommended me to read "Masonic Relics," in The Freemason of March 7th, &c. Well, I did so, and must confess that I laughed heartily over them; my mirth, however, was not unmingled with sadness, for it was simply the old story over again. A brother who knows little or nothing of the subject rushes boldly into the forefront of the battle, ready and able, as he supposes, to carry everything before him; but, poor man, he will soon find that the weapons he wields are now of little real value. To come forward now with a recapitulation of the mushroom legends promulgated in connection with Melrose and Kilwinning, simply proves that the credulity of the writer is far in excess of his knowledge. To say as much as that Melrose is the Adam of Scottish Freemasonry, while Kilwinning is its Eve, is certainly most amusing. In this case, too, they tell us that the Masonic Adam was four years older than his Eve, and, ergo, he is, of course, entitled to precedence. To speak more plainly, I may mention that the Melrose legend tells us that the Melrose lodge was instituted at the building of Melrose Abbey in A.D. 1136, four years, we are told, before the Kilwinning Lodge, which they say was first established at the building of Kilwinning Abbey (in A.D. 1140), with one John Murdo at its head as their Grand Master pro tem. In proof of this, the Melrose Masons point to the extant ruins of their old abbey, which ruins they say are what remains of the structure erected in 1136. Upon examining the ruins, however, and also their contemporary history, we find that they tell a very different story. Instead of being built in 1136, the standing portions actually say that they were not placed in situ before the fourteenth century, and, instead of John Murdo either living in 1136, or being "Grand Master" then, we find upon perusing the bit of autobiography written by himself upon the old abbey stones still extant, that he was living about the year 1400 A.D., and earnestly engaged superintending certain repairs then going on. We also find that, instead of placing Melrose in the first place on the roll of his operative Masonic charges, he actually puts it third, and after Glasgow! So, Bro. Stratford, "Fraternal Justice," and "An English, French, and Scottish Mason," what do you think of that? I dare say that may be "more light" to you, and as good as an extra degree! In case you don't believe me, however, I shall quote Mr. Murdo's own words. He says:—

"John Morow sum tym callit was I,
And born in Paris certainly,
And had in keeping all Mason werk
Of St Andrews the high kirk,
Of Glasgu, Melrose, and Paislay,
Of Nyddysdale and of Galway.
† Pray to God and Mary baith
And sweet Sanct John tae keep this haly
kirk fra skaith."

I think I need hardly say more to show how entirely inconsistent the Melrose legend is with fact; and seeing, as I said, that Murdo placed Melrose after Glasgow in the fourteenth century, the Grand Lodge of Scotland may perhaps follow suit and place it after it in the nineteenth, and as Glasgow St. John's is No. 3 bis, Melrose might manage to get No. 3 ter. Then as to bouncing about the grand working of this Melrose Lodge, I should like to know when and where it got hold of the ceremonies it now practises? In my opinion it did not know anything of them until after the institution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland in 1736; and when it did get them, it was only by copying them from the working of some of the other lodges. Further, it has struck me that the reason why the Melrose Lodge did not join in forming the Grand Lodge of Scotland in 1736 was because it was then dormant. If I be wrong in this latter point, I shall be happy to acknowledge it upon proper proof shown. And if the Melrose Masons really wish to set themselves right with the public, let them accept such an offer as that made by one of the first Masonic historians in the world—Bro. W. J. Hoghan, of Truro—who, in the Freemason for February 1st 1874, offers to pay the expense of an examination into their records. If they have any old minute books, &c., the sooner they send them to him the better. If, however, they think Truro too far away, perhaps our Scottish Masonic historian—Bro. D. Murray Lyon—might be induced to examine them. In regard to the question of the propriety of the members of lodge under the Grand Lodge of Scotland visiting the Melrose Lodges, the following words, contained in the Freemason for March 7th, to which Mr. Stratford referred me, support what I said, viz. "The authority of the Grand Lodge of Scotland is unquestionable over the lodges which unite to form it, and over the new lodges to which has granted charters." Now, if such be the case, as I think it is, the members of lodge under the Grand Lodge of Scotland have a right to violate their obligations and disobey the proper orders of their Grand Lodge. That some—possibly in ignorance—may do so does not prove it to be right. There are many thieves in the country, e.g., but that simple fact is no proof that stealing is either lawful or expedient.—am, &c.,

MASONIC LITERATURE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see in this day's Freemason which is a covert "rap" at the ... continue taking in the ... not one of those ... ness say ...

thinking that one reason why brethren are discontinuing the Freemason is the direct discouragement to be a regular subscriber, which is to be found in the fact that while single numbers are only 2d., the annual charge is 10s. There might be more inducement to subscribe, if it were cheaper to do so, than to send for it week by week.

I am fraternally yours,
J. ALLEN JONES.

March 28, 1874.

MR. CUFFE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

There have been several letters in The Freemason, saying that notice ought to be taken of Mr. Cuffe's refusal to bury a Freemason. I am surprised that the Freemasons of Chatham have not met, and officially, as a body, presented a memorial to the commanding officer of the deceased, requesting them to communicate with the proper authorities.

May we hope that this may be done without further delay? Such a scandalous piece of business ought not to be allowed to be passed over in silence by the Masonic body.

Yours fraternally,
P. M.

EARLY GRAND ENCAMPMENT IN SCOTLAND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read the letter of "Fiat Justitia," page 163. While I do not intend to defend either Bro. Barrow or the P.G.L. of Glasgow, as I do not doubt they are able to do that for themselves, in justice to the St. Mungo Encampment of Knights Templar, I must correct two or three errors, into which your correspondent F.J. has fallen.

1st. There is no R.A. Chapter acting under the Superior Chapter General of Knights Templar for Scotland, 2nd. Nor any R.A. Chapter that has recently joined that body. There was a body of Knights Templar called the Girvan Encampment, who eighteen months ago joined the Grand Body of Knight Templars for Scotland, and are now known as the St. Mungo. 3rd. Brother Barrow is not now and never was a member either of the Girvan or St. Mungo Encampments, and there is only one member of the P.G.L. who is a member of our Encampment.

This much in correction of what I have no doubt are unintentional errors. Bro. Barrow was a member of the old Glasgow Priory, which has been dormant for some years, but I believe as now no official position in the Knight Templar body.

In conclusion I would ask the members of the early Grand Encampments in Scotland if they would not further the grand interests of Templary in general, if they were to join the Grand body, as union is strength, and they would doubtless be received with open arms, as we are. By adopting this course they would not give up their individual organisation, possibly they would be no better Templars, but they could be recognised in all quarters of the globe, instead as now being isolated and unrecognised. I can in any way contribute towards this desirable result I shall be glad to render any aid in my power.

Yours fraternally,
G. W. WHEELER.

SPEECH OF BRO. J. C. PARKINSON, D.P.G. MASTER, MIDDLESEX.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to the very able speech of Bro. Parkinson, reported in The Freemason of the 1st inst., I would observe that Bro. Parkinson is quite right in presuming that the 56 Peers, 11 of Peers, and the 77 members of the new use of Commons whose names are given in lists are not all the Freemasons comprised under those heads, and in support of this view would mention the names of two members of the One All Lodge, 330, Bodmin. The Honourable Agar Roberts, the eldest son of a Peer, and the Honourable F. Leveson-Gower, M.P., for Bodmin, also Colonel Deakin, M.P. for Lancaster and H. T. Cole, 26 M.P. for Falmouth.

It is also worthy of notice that of the thirteen M.P.'s for Cornwall, six of that number are members of the Craft, one of whom, Sir F. M. Williams, M.P. for Truro, is the D.P.G.M. for Cornwall.

I also venture to correct Bro. Parkinson's description of the Provincial Grand Master of Cornwall, the Right Honourable the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, who appears in his list as a Past Master.

I am Sir, yours fraternally,
RICHARD RICH, P.M.
Hon. Sec. One and All Lodge, 330, Bodmin.

Reviews.

The Freemason. New York and St. Louis.

We are always glad to welcome our Trans-Atlantic contemporaries, and have been more than once deeply impressed with the size and character of The Freemason, our good American cousin. It does not only "look large" in the distance, like some periodicals, but it is undoubtedly one of the largest extant.

It has some little amiable peculiarities, however, we feel bound to notice in all fraternal good-will.

Bro. McCalla gives us the following amusing story in The Keystone, of March 7th, which we think well to submit to our readers to-day:—

"Rev. George Hunt recently removed from Chatham, Ontario, and settled down at Pine Lake in the wilds of Michigan. The circumstance would hardly be worth mentioning, perhaps, if, in the hurry and confusion of starting, he had not made the ludicrous mistake of taking along Mr. Walter Robinson's wife and children, instead of his own."

Now our worthy Brother, the editor of The Freemason, St. Louis, has committed a somewhat similar mistake, though in a very different way.

In The Freemason of March he has, no doubt in a very great hurry, adopted the monthly summary of the Masonic Magazine, and made it peacefully his own.

Reading the Freemason at St. Louis the writer of the original summary would probably himself not know his own production, so cleverly is it broken up into separate paragraphs with an air of originality about it, which reflects the highest credit on editorial skill and arrangement. Will our good brother be offended if we ask him, the next time he so sympathetically adopts and adapts our little bantlings (to which he is heartily welcome all the same), not any more—we feel sure he won't—to leave their real poor, old legitimate father out in the cold.—[The Editor "Masonic Magazine."]]

MASONIC RELICS (Page 165).

I am glad to find G.W.W. so far agrees with me, that a union of the Melrose Masons and the Grand Lodge would be best, but I cannot allow his own words, "An unrecognised assembly working without a charter or other authority from the Grand Lodge of Scotland," to pass without again taking exception to such words being used. The question is, are they or are they not recognised? It is the fact they are recognised all over the world, except in Scotland, and a fact also that lodges holding charters from the Grand Lodge of Scotland in foreign countries admit them as visitors, and often affiliate them. This makes it very plain that they are recognised. As to the Melrose Lodge sanctioning the erecting of daughter lodges they have as good, and as legal a right as the Grand Lodge of Scotland; if you come to the legal question, it has been said in an opinion of counsel that the Grand Lodge of Scotland had no right after a certain date to issue charters for the erection of new lodges. Besides the Melrose Lodge are only doing that which the Mother Kilwinning,

No. 0, did many years ago; Mother Kilwinning at one time issued charters to daughter lodges, and the Melrose Lodge are only following a practice which was in use long ago, thus shewing everything they have done is founded on an ancient Masonic practice.

ITALIAN FREEMASONRY.

From the "Eco del Tirreno" of 31st January, 1874, we publish by request the following resolution of the lodge, Anziam Virtuosi all'Or. de Livorno, under the auspices of the Supreme Counsel G.O. of Italy, sitting in Palermo.

Whereas Freemasonry is an essentially philanthropic, philosophical, and progressive institution, and its fundamental basis is the existence of God, the immortality of the soul, the exercise of beneficence, the study of morality, and the practice of virtue. That its watchword is bound in this, "Liberty, Equality, Brotherhood."

Considering that from the very first of its exalted sphere, Freemasonry requires that its watchword be made good and respected by all its members, so that it admits of no discussion of political and religious questions, and only entertains those having a truly humanitarian object in view. Considering that genuine and orthodox Freemasonry looks upon the "Internationale" as a purely class and very hurtful sect.

That the duty of Freemasonry is to enlighten the masses.

And whereas the "Internationale" urges the "abolition of property," which it considers as a theft.

That it desires to destroy the institution of the "family," and to proclaim the "annihilation" of human individuality.

Thus, in admitting such a theory, Liberty, viz., the very essence of true mankind, so that merit and demerit would be no more; reason would be destroyed, and mankind would be reduced to a mere instinct state, thus could only be considered as a brute.

Considering that by abolishing "property" destroying the "family" and "Liberty," the "Internationale" would create the worst of tyrannies, since it would affect or endeavour to affect the substance of all action, would do away with every incitement to work and produce, viz., personal interest and the love of the family.

Whereas by building up its principles into a system, the "Internationale" forbids all religious worship, and yet religion is a powerful lever and motive agent, and acts with energy on the heart of man, urging him to good actions.

Considering that said society by no means favours "Equality," since instead of the just principle to each according to his merit, it substitutes the unjust one, to each according to his need, and thereby idleness and vice alone would be encouraged, and honest labour and virtue degraded.

And whereas by carrying out its theories it would overturn the sublime principles of "Universal Brotherhood."

The Lodge Areopago Capitolare Anziam Virtuosi, all'Or. of Leghorn, true to its standard of blue, the only real one of universal Freemasonry, inasmuch as it maintains its allegiance to the Sup. Coun. in Palermo, professing the Scotch Rite Anc. and Acc.

Insisting as it does upon the sanctity and inviolable nature of oaths which are binding; not departing from what is prescribed in its gen. and spec. regulations, in fact keeping within the sphere of the truths advanced by universal Freemasonry, after a long and well-weighed discussion of the doctrines of the "Internationale," which are contrary to the real and fundamental principles of Freemasonry, the object and principles of which would be destroyed by the former.

Having seen and carefully considered the Statutes of the "Internationale,"

Also the articles of the "Gazzetta d'Italia," of 28th September, and 3rd October last.

Also Art. 3, secs. 320 and 321 of the Gen. Statutes of Scotch Freemasonry;

During its ordinary meeting of 28th January, 1874, unanimously

RESOLVES:—

1. To reject, and as not applicable to itself or its rite, the contents of the aforesaid articles of the "Gazetta d'Italia."

2. That it neither desires to, nor can have any bond or intercourse with, the "Internationale Society," but in fact must energetically protest against, and oppose the principles of the same.

3. That the doctrines advanced by said Society are subversive of family and social order.

4. That were the principles of the "Internationale Society" realised, the great Masonic watchwords, Liberty, Equality, Brotherhood, would be destroyed.

5. To make use of the weapons allowed by genuine Freemasonry in order to prevent the development of those dangerous principles.

6. Lastly that the only weapons of Freemasonry are those of enlightened reason, instruction, good example, and to preach unto all, love, labour, brotherhood, and unity among mankind.

Given at the lodge, Areopagoe Capitolare Anziani Virtuosi, this 28th day of January, 1874, E.V.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma. CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague. CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms. CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Extract from "INDIAN ECONOMIST."

"We direct the attention of medical men to a fact observed some years since by ourselves, and corroborated by our subsequent experience, that Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is in many cases of Low Fever immensely superior to Quinine in curative power. We cannot persuade ourselves that the true value of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is yet properly appraised in India. . . . It may be given with absolute safety even to a child three days old. Were medical men but to make a fair and exhaustive trial of it we are persuaded that it would work a revolution in the treatment of two-thirds of the diseases to which children are subject. Its curative power is simply amazing."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila, to the effect that Cholera had been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE."—See Lancet, Dec. 1. 1864.

From W. VESALIUS PETTIGREW, M.D., Hon. F.R.C.S., England,

Formerly Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology at St. George's School of Medicine.

"I have no hesitation in stating, after a fair trial of Chlorodyne, that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-Spasmodic and Sedative. I have tried it in Consumption, Asthma, Diarrhoea, and other diseases, and am most perfectly satisfied with the results."

From Dr. THOMAS SANDIFORD, Passage West, Cork.

"I will thank you to send me a further supply of Chlorodyne. It was the most efficacious remedy I ever used, affording relief in violent attacks of Spasms within a minute after being taken. One patient in particular, who has suffered for years with periodical attacks of Spasms of a most painful nature, and unable to obtain relief from other remedies, such as opium, &c., finds nothing so prompt and efficacious as Chlorodyne."

From JNO. E. GOULSTONE, M.D., late Principal Surgeon to the Steamship Great Eastern.

"I can confidently state Chlorodyne is an admirable Sedative and Anti-Spasmodic, having used it in Neuralgia, Hysteria, Asthma, and Consumption, with remarkably favourable results. It relieved a fit of Asthma in four minutes, where the patient had suffered eleven years in a most distressing manner, no previous remedy having had so immediate and beneficial an effect."

From Dr. B. J. BOULTON and Co., Horncastle.

"We have made pretty extensive use of Chlorodyne in our practice lately, and look upon it as an excellent direct Sedative and Ant Spasmodic. It seems to allay pain and irritation in whatever organ, and from whatever cause. It induces a feeling of comfort and quietude not obtainable by any other remedy, and it seems to possess this great advantage over all other sedatives, that it leaves no unpleasant after effects."

J. C. BAKER, Esq., M.D., Bideford.

"It is, without doubt, the most valuable and certain Anodyne we have."

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," 13th July, 1864.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each Bottle.

GROBBS'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.
Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which is at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, (author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it relieves cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment of this disease."
This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Nephritis, Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in Bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by JAS. M. CROSBY, Chemist, Scarborough.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

KENT LODGE (No. 15).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons Hall, on Wednesday, the 11th ult., Bro. E. P. Barlow, W.M., in the chair, assisted by his Wardens, Bros. Martin and Giles. The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. J. Goldberg was duly entrusted and the lodge opened in ancient form in the second degree, when Bro. J. Goldberg was regularly introduced and passed to the degree of F.C. The lodge was opened in ancient form in the third degree, when a board of Installed Masters was formed, consisting of Bros. J. Steeman, P.M. 15; R. E. Barnes, P.M. 15; W. P. Dukes, P.M. 15; J. P. May, P.M. 15; J. Austin, P.M. 1445; Howe, W.M., 1245; B. Portsmouth, P.P.G.D. Hants; Palmer, P.M. 1221; Chillingworth, P.M. 1228; Owens, W.M. 1336; who according to ancient custom, installed Bro. Henry Martin to the chair of the above lodge. The duties of the Board of Installed Masters was declared to be concluded and the lodge resumed in third degree. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren to the offices annexed to their names, viz.:—Bros. J. Giles, S.W.; J. Pinder, J.W.; Steeman, P.M., Treasurer; E. E. Barnes, P.M., Hon. Sec.; Wharman, S.D.; Cambridge, J.D.; Weingott, I.G.; Goldberg, D.C.; Higginson, Steward; and Beckett, Tyler. The ceremony of installation was admirably performed by Bro. E. P. Barlow, whose excellent working evinced the assiduity and perseverance bestowed in acquiring the duties of the office, when it was unanimously resolved, "that the best thanks of the lodge be given to Bro. E. P. Barlow for the very efficient manner in which he discharged the duties of Installing Master, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. All business being concluded, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to be banquet. The usual loyal toasts being given and responded to, Bro. E. P. Barlow, proposed "The Health of the W.M., Bro. H. Martin." He observed that the lodge had occasion to be delighted with the selection they had made in the choice of a Master to preside over them; his efficiency in the discharge of his duties was redoubtable in the highest degree; his punctuality of attendance, and the zeal he at all times manifested for the welfare of the lodge, and his courtesy to every member, was such as to merit their warmest approbation. Bro. Martin, in reply, assured the brethren he felt highly honored with the encomiums passed on him. As Master of the Lodge he would endeavour to promote its welfare, and during his term of office would use his utmost energies both in and out of the lodge to merit the continuance of the esteem evinced towards him. The W.M. then exhorted the brethren that he had a most important duty to perform, that of presenting to the highly esteemed Past Master, Bro. Barlow, "M's jewel, unanimously voted at the last meeting. It was to him (the W.M.) a source of great gratification that the opportunity afforded him of presenting the same. He assured it would be highly prized. The following is a copy of the inscription: "Presented by the Kent Lodge, No. 15, to Bro. E. P. Barlow, P.M., to mark the high esteem entered towards him, and the very efficient manner in which he discharged the duties of W.M., 1874." Bro. Barlow in reply assured the brethren of his truly fraternal feeling for the sincere manner in which this mark of respect had been evinced towards him, and would at all times use his utmost endeavours to promote the interest and prosperity of the lodge. The "Health of the Past Masters," was given and severally responded to. The "Visitors" was given, the W.M. remarking that Masons never lacked hospitality, and as a rule always welcomed visitors. There were many visitors present on this occasion, and he hoped what they had seen would induce them again to visit the Kent Lodge. The toast was responded to by Bros. Portsmouth, Sexton, and Howe. The "Officers of the Lodge" was the next toast, which was replied to by the respective officers, the brethren having enjoyed the evening with true Masonic spirit. The visitors were: Bros. Austin, Doric; Howe, Prince Leopold; Simms, Prince Leopold; Blackless, Royal Standard; Clark, Temple; Portsmouth, P.P.G.J.D., Haunts Oakley; Palmer, Crystal Palace; Hainsworth, Zetland; Rothschild, 1288; Roach, Gihon; Hill, 174; Chillingworth, Beacontree; Laxton, Beacontree; Dobbs, Beacontree; Owens, W.M. 1366; Sadler, S.W. 1366.

SHEERNESS-ON-SEA.—Adam's Lodge (No. 158).—The brethren of this old and flourishing lodge held their annual meeting under the direction of the W.M., Bro. George Beckwith, P.G. Supt. of Works of Kent, at the Britannia Inn, Mile Town, on the 19th of March, for the purpose of installing Bro. Alfred Oyston, the W.M. elect for the ensuing year. Having been presented by Bro. Bagshaw, P.M., to receive the benefit of installation, and having taken the customary obligations, a board of Installed Masters was formed, at which ten were present. He was then duly installed into the chair of K.S., in a most impressive, complete, and effective manner, by Bro. Alex. Spears, P.M., P.P.G.O. of Kent, who is highly beloved for his valuable Masonic abilities by the brethren of this lodge. The lodge being resumed, and the new W.M. saluted in the three degrees, he proceeded to appoint his officers as follows:—Bros. Thos. Firainger, S.W.; Sergeant-Major Thurlow, R.A., as J.W.; John Bagshaw, P.M., Sec.; Alex. Spears, P.M., Treas.; John Kelly, S.D.; J. P. Watts, J.D.; Jas. Nunn, I.G.; H. Foster, T.; and Wiggins, Steward. Among the brethren of which there were fifty present, we were happy to see the much respected late Secretary, Bro. James Townsend, P.M., who, through the infirmity of age, was compelled to give up that office, after doing that duty, with credit to himself and honour to the lodge, for the space of 28 years, for which the brethren have shown their appreciation of his valuable services with something more than empty thanks; also we noticed his son, Bro. S. L. Townsend, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. of Kent, after a very serious illness, but still unable to take any part in the ceremonies, to the great regret of the brethren. There were present, Bros. T. Hughes, P.M. 158; J. Carpenter, P.M. 158. Visitors, Bros. John Hancock, W.M. 1089; J. Nicholls, W.M., P.G.S. 1050; Chas. Andrews, I.P.M. 77; T. M. Rigg, W.M. elect 1089; S. Newton, W.M. elect 1050; G. H. Cust, J.W. 1050; and MacDonnell, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. of Kent, 1089; G. Penny, 1019; J. Hodges; H. G. Clarkson, 1082. The lodge was then closed in due form, with solemn prayer, after which the brethren assembled at the Masonic Hall, and sat down to a banquet of excellent quality, which did great credit to the widow of the late lamented Bro. J. Green, P.M., P.P.G.J.D. of Kent, which gave the most complete satisfaction to everyone present, of which there were about 60. After the cloth had been removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., in an impressive manner, which augurs well for him in carrying out the ceremonies of the Craft. The meeting was enlivened by several excellent songs and speeches by the brethren, who, after spending a happy evening together, parted in peace and harmony, happy to meet again.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Lodge (No. 249).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, the chair of K.S. being occupied by Bro. J. J. Rose, W.M. The other officers present were—Bros. Hamer, P.P.G. Treas.; W. Crane, P.M.; J. Hayes, J.W.; J. R. Smith, P.M. Treas.; R. Collings, Sec.; H.

P. Price, S.D.; W. Hamilton, J.D.; H. W. Nicholas, I.G.; the Rev. P. Hains, Chaplain; W. G. Veale, Org.; G. Ramson, S.; W. Forster, S.; W. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members present were—Bros. J. Wood, J. C. Robinson, R. R. Martin, F. Cooper, J. Chusnall, C. Leighton, and about thirty others. The visitors, who numbered about twenty, included Bros. F. Day, J.W., 1350; H. Williams, P.M., 1264; Cheedham, P.M. 220, and others. The W.M. during the evening initiated three candidates and raised four brethren in a very creditable manner, and the lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony.

LIVERPOOL.—Downshire Lodge (No. 594).—The "Old Downshire" as it is familiarly called, removed from the quarters it has hitherto occupied in Duke-street, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 26th inst., and for the first time met at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, awaiting the opening of the new hall, where it will be permanently located. The removal would have excited more general interest, but for the fact that "all the world and his wife" were at the Aintree race-course, with the double object of getting fresh air and seeing the "Grand National." As it was, there was a very good attendance of members, and the proceedings were of the most interesting character. Bro. N. D. Rowse, W.M., was in his place, and the other officers present were—Bros. B. Ing, I.P.M.; Peter M. Larsen, P.M.; J. Dilcock, J.W.; R. P. France, S.D., (acting as J.W.); J. Le Comber, J.D.; J. H. Martin, I.G.; and W. G. Veale, Org. The members present were—Bros. J. L. Houghton, P. Askew, W. E. Cattell, W. Leatham, J. Scott, D. Quayle, R. Barber, A. Moreland, R. Mowatt, A. Rankin, W. J. Burden, W. L. Moss, Isaac de Freece, G. Maxwell, J. L. Jones, D. Boden, D. Macdonald, J. Long, A. Martin, J. Whitfield, L. Yates, J. Malcolm, S. G. May, R. Dunn, J. Harris, R. Maddox, J. Riding, and J. H. White. The list of visitors included the names of Bros. W. Pughe, I.P.M., 1182; C. H. Hill, P.G. Reg.; W. Westbury, S.D., 1035; F. Atkinson, 18; J. B. MacKenzie, 1182; J. Layton, 1035; R. Hulme, 673; W. Hugheson, 292; J. Parkes, 1182, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to initiate four candidates into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, which he did in a very masterly and impressive style. The lodge was subsequently opened in the second and then in the third degree, when Bro. Larsen, P.M., raised two brethren to the sublime degree of M.M. in a very satisfactory manner. At the conclusion of the business about forty brethren sat down to a sumptuous supper, under the presidency of the W.M., who proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in an exceedingly able manner. A very pleasant evening was varied and enhanced by several capital songs, and the first night of the "Downshire" at the "Temple" will long be remembered as one of the most enjoyable nature.

LODGE OF ST. JAMES (No. 765).—A meeting of the above well known lodge was held at the Bridge House, on Tuesday, the 7th inst. Bro. William Jones, W.M., in the chair. The minutes of the last lodge having been read, the W.M. proceeded to the passing of several brethren to the second degree, after which a ballot was taken for Mr. James Caton and Frederick H. Wilcock. The result being in their favour, they were then initiated, with Mr. Robert Watts, elected at the last meeting, into the mysteries of Freemasonry, by the W.M., with his well known ability. He then resigned his chair in favour of Bro. Montague Scott, P.M., the indefatigable Secretary of the lodge, for the purpose of installing Bro. Francis Child, which ceremony was performed in a manner that could not be surpassed in correctness, impressiveness, and elocution. Bro. Scott then presented a very handsome gold jewel to the outgoing W.M., which gave great satisfaction to the whole of the brethren, there being nearly 100 present, Bro. Jones being very popular, in consequence of the able manner in which he had performed the duties of the W.M. chair and the services he had rendered the lodge by introducing a considerable number of members, and leaving the chair with a balance of ninety pounds in hand, which will enable them to devote a considerable amount to our noble charities. Some routine business having been transacted, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting hall, where a well spread board awaited them, under the personal superintendence of Bro. Spencer, which gave unqualified satisfaction to all present. The usual toasts were duly proposed and acknowledged, that of the visitors being acknowledged by Bro. Charles Horsley, P. Grand Registrar Middlesex, in one of his well known humorous speeches. We also noticed a considerable number of visitors. Bro. W. J. Howe, J. Spilling, S. D. Ewins, George Kenning, and others. The Tyler's toast concluded a very enjoyable evening.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—On Thursday, March 26th, at the White Swan Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford, this lodge was held, Bro. George Andrews, W.M., presided. There were present during the evening Bros. S. A. Lewin, S.W.; H. J. Tuson, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G. Steward, P.M., Sec.; J. J. Rakes, S.D.; J. Baxter Langley, I.G.; H. J. Dawe, M.C.; H. J. Fisher, Organist; W. Wyatt, P.M.; J. W. Reed, P.M.; E. Wood, W. A. R. Harris; H. M. Fellows, J. H. Tisdell, T. Harton, W. J. Pierce, E. C. Kilsby, W. H. Hawkins, J. Allen, L. J. Harvey, R. Stringer, W. Elgood, E. Good, L. Porter, F. G. Thomas, E. James, W. Atkins, F. R. Hood, H. Schartau, J. Wollett, R. Harman, A. Maeers. The visitors were Bros. J. G. Loughborough, 140; H. R. Harker, 79; J. Lawrence, 1326; J. Larking, 1326; R. G. Beaver, 700; J. S. Sweasey, S.D. 1423; A. J. Webley, 1423; W. A. Simmons, 1423, and others. The ballot was unanimous in favour of the admission of Bro. Rev. J. M. Vaughan, P.G. Chaplain, Middlesex, P.M. 907, to become a joining member. The work done was initiating Mr. A. Maeers, crafting Bros. W. J. Pierce, J. C. Craig, F. H. Burr, E. Wood, J. Larking, 1326; A. J. Webley, 1423. Raising J. H. Tisdell, W. Atkins, Josias Lawrence, 1326. The Worshipful Master, Bro. George Andrews, proved himself a proficient worker of all the ceremonies. He did them all in a perfect manner. It was a pleasure to all present to hear each ceremony worked correctly, impressively, and efficiently. He proved himself to be the right man in the right place. We congratulate the lodge on their having such a distinguished brother in the proud and enviable position of Worshipful Master. This being the first night of work since his installation it was the only time the brethren had an opportunity of seeing what their new W.M. could do in the way of work. He did it well, and proved himself a worthy successor of such good workers in the Craft as Bros. H. A. Collington, Dr. Dixon, F. Walters, G. Wilton, Dr. Scott and others, who have filled the chair. The lodge was closed. There was not any banquet or refreshment.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—The regular March meeting of this lodge was held on the 26th ult., at the City Terminus Hotel, when there was a full attendance of members, and a long list of visitors. The W.M., Bro. William Worrell, presided, and initiated Messrs. G. H. Davies, E. B. Broomhall, and L. G. Reinhardt; passed Bros. Keen, Johnston, French, and Lyon; and raised Bros. S. Emley, and F. Ince. The brethren then adjourned to banquet, which was served up in admirable style. When it was disposed of, the loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and drunk, and the evening was passed very enjoyably. The following is a list of officers, lay members, and visitors present:—W. Worrell, W.M.; A. Brown, S.W.; J. Pringle, J.W.; Kain, P.M., Treas.; M. Newton, S.D.; G. Cragg, J.D.; E. Ascher, I.G.; G. Newman, P.M.; R. H. Whiteman, P.M.; Newton, P.M.; W. H. Harper, P.M.; B. Abbott, P.M.; J. A. Keen, J. French, H. F. Partridge, G. Smithers, W. J. Roberts, E. Kidman, C. R. Cutmore, A. E. Rees, F. Ince, W. Johnston, S. J. Emly, S. Wilkinson, R. Lyon, E. Draper, P. Steinmann, R. Avery, J. F. Hodey, C. Scott, S. D. Ewins. Visitors, Bros. W. H. Kempster, S.D. 1420; G. H. Lay, 569; W. Goodyear, P.M. 1365; C. Hammerton, P.M. 1339; G. Jackson, 435; J.

H. Broomfall, 569; W. Donne, 192; F. G. Baker, P.M. 753. The next regular meeting of the lodge will not be held until September.

SHEERNESS.—De Shurland Lodge (No. 1089).—The ancient and solemn ceremony of installing the newly elected W.M., Bro. T. M. Rigg, took place at the Local Board of Health Room (kindly lent), on Tuesday last, the 31st ultimo, at an adjourned meeting of the lodge. The installation ceremony was performed in an able and most impressive manner by Bro. MacDonald, P.M. 1089, P.P.G.D.C., who, in the masterly manner he acquitted himself evinced to the Craft that the tuition of our lamented Bro. Keddell, P.M. 158, P.P.G.S.W., P.Z., had not been lost on his pupil, who was honoured with a hearty vote of thanks. A very pleasing duty was performed by the outgoing W.M., Bro. Hancock, viz., presenting to Bro. Bourne a massive silver goblet (beautifully engraved by Mr. J. Highley), on behalf of the lodge, in recognition of the efficient manner he had performed his duties as Secretary. Bro. Bourne, in a very neat and effective speech acknowledged the kindness of the brethren for their gift, which he least expected. The newly installed W.M. selected and invested the following brethren to serve as his officers:—Bros. Hancock, I.P.M., P.G.S.; Ingleton, S.W.; Bourne, J.W.; Pannell, P.M. 1089, P.P.G.S. of W. was invested for Bro. Shrubsole, P.M. 158 and 1089, P.P.G.S. of W., elected Treasurer (who was absent); Bro. McDonald, P.M. 1089, P.P.G.D. of C., Secretary; Bro. West, P.M. 1089, M. of C.; Bro. Dutnall, S.D.; Bonney, J.D.; Sinclair, Org.; Clarkson, I.G.; Parsons, O.G. It is very pleasing to observe that never has there been seen at the De Shurland Lodge so large a display of the purple, and it was very gratifying to the newly-installed Master to be honoured by so many. Among the visitors we observed, Bros. A. Spencer, P.M. 1063, Malling Abbey, Prov. G.S.; G. Watson, P.M. "Gwendulph," Prov. G.R.; T. Townsend, P.M. 148, P.P.G.R.; Spears, P.M. 158, Sheerness, P.P.G.O.; H. Bathurst, P.M. 133, Harmony, Faversham, P.P.G.R.; W. Sage, P.M. 1063, Mulbery Abbey, and P.P.G.R. 703; Blakey, P.M. 1174, Pentangle, P.P.G.A. D.C.; Carpenter, P.M. 158, Adams; Kelly, S.D. 158; S.D. Adams; Roach, 158; Turner, 972, and 1449; Eastley, 184; Bross, 184; Nicholls, W.M. 1050, "Gwendulph;" D. Seabrook, P.M. 1174, P.P.G. J.C.; Burley, W.M. 184; Muggleton, J.W. 184; Harris, 1273, St. Michaels; Newton, W.M. elect 1040, Gwendulph, and several other brethren. The lodge being duly closed by the new officers, the brethren adjourned to the Fountain Hotel, there to partake of a splendid banquet, which had been provided by Bro. A. W. Howe, in that manner so peculiar to himself. After ample justice had been done to the good things provided, and the cloth removed, the usual Masonic toasts were given by the W.M. in a style that brought forward a telling speech from the Prov. Grand Sec., who congratulated the lodge on the sterling abilities he had noticed in the Master. This was supplemented by Bro. Page, who stated, that being over twenty years a member of the Craft, and accustomed as he was to visit meetings of the kind, he confessed he never during his long experience was more gratified (and he expressed the feelings of many if not all of the brethren present), at the proceedings of the day, and argued that the W.M. in his selection of officers he had made would tend greatly to cement those characteristics that were so prominent in members of the Craft, characteristics which most eloquently propounded by Bro. the Rev. R. Palmer (Rector of Queenboro), Chaplain of St. Michael's, 1273, and hon. member of De Shurland. Bro. Sinclair presided in a most efficient manner at the harmonium. The brethren separated at nine o'clock, after spending a very pleasant day, the visiting brethren from the several lodges in the province, giving the Sheerness brethren a hearty invitation to attend their respective festivals.

HERVEY LODGE (No. 1260).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall. At the commencement of the business, Bro. G. King, jun., W.M., raised Bro. E. C. Axford to the third degree, and passed Bros. Foss, Spalding, and Bedford to the second degree: He then initiated Mr. T. W. Kingcombe in the earliest mysteries of the Order. After the report of the Audit Committee had been received, read, and adopted Bro. King proceeded, with great fluency, to install Bro. C. Darby as W.M. of the Hervey Lodge for the year 1874-5. The brethren having been admitted, and the W.M. saluted in the different degrees, he then proceeded to appoint his officers as follows—Bros. T. R. Maples S.W.; Harrison, J.W., D. Hogg, P.M., Treas. G. King, jun., P.M., Sec.; H. Hollingsworth P.M., S.D.; W. Ryan, J.D.; W. Lowes, I.G. G. King, P.M., D.C.; Alfred Brummsden, W.S. J. T. Bigwood, Assistant W.S.; John Maples Org.; C. T. Speight, T. Bro. King, jun., was invested by the W.M. as I.P.M., who after the above office had been conferred on the brethren, delivered the charges to the W.M., Wardens and brethren. The W.M. then said, addressing the I.P.M., that the brethren were fully aware of the great difficulties he had had to surmount during the time he had occupied the chair; but he had surmounted them, and came out victorious. The brethren wished to mark their sense of his conduct by making him a suitable presentation on his leaving the chair. He had already a P.M. jewel, as a P.M. of the lodge, but the brethren thought it right to distinguish his second year of office by an additional gift. They, therefore, wished him to accept a bible, as a token of their appreciation of his services, and they had had inscribed in that volume the following sentence: "Presented to Bro. George King, jun., R.M., and one of founders of the Hervey Lodge, No. 1260, together with a silver P.M.'s jewel and collar, in appreciation of the ability and zeal shown by him in serving the office of W.M. of the lodge for the second time, 1873-4. April 8th, 1874." The W.M. in conclusion trusted that Bro. King might live long to be among the brethren, and when he should quit this life might this book be handed down to his posterity, his children and grandchildren, and great grand children, that they might see that in their family there was a King, who was victorious, and who had the appreciation of his brethren. Bro. King in reply said he could scarcely find words to express his gratitude for the great honour they had done him in making him this handsome present. It was true he had undertaken the duties of the chair for the second time, and that it was a very arduous task; but thanks to the co-operation and assistance of the brethren he saw around him, he had conducted the lodge to a successful end, for in vacating the chair he had been enabled to hand over to his successor the largest balance that there had yet been in the Hervey Lodge. That lodge had been a pet of his, and it was with great pleasure he assisted in making it overcome all obstacles. Now that they were located at Freemasons' Hall he was sure there was nothing but success before them in the future, and he hoped to live to see that success. He was much obliged to the W.M. for expressing that wish to be hoped that the "Lewises" alluded to by the W.M. would see that if a Mason had troubles to go through, he was yet appreciated by his brethren. The W.M. then gave notice of motion, that in consideration of the services of Bro. King, sen., to the lodge, he should be made an hon. member, with all the privileges of an ordinary member. Whenever any officer of the lodge had been absent, Bro. King was always ready to perform his duties, and in the Lodge of Instruction he had imparted knowledge which had been useful to them all. The J.W. said that when the motion came on, he should be happy to second it, because he felt that he owed his elevation to the instruction he had received from Bro. King. A vote of thanks was then passed unanimously to Bro. Jones, the late Treasurer, and the lodge was afterwards closed. The brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. C. E. Francatelli. At the conclusion of the banquet, grace having been rendered the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, dwelling more particularly on the great interest which the Prince of Wales took in the Craft. In proposing the health of the Past Grand Masters, he regretted the absence of Bro. Hervey, which was necessitated by his having to attend at the installation of the new lodge on the next day, as Prov. G.M. 1874.

Hogg replied as a P.G.D. Bro. G. King, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in doing so said that the W.M. had worked very hard in the Craft, and all who had been present in the Lodge of Instruction when he went through the three degrees must have been delighted with his progress. The W.M. had carried in an excellent list as Steward for the Boys' School, and in all his capacities while a member of the lodge had shewn himself a worthy Mason. He could only wish that while a member of the lodge, the W.M. might witness the prosperity which he had been so great a means of promoting. The W.M., in reply, said it was very gratifying to him to receive such a welcome. He would do the best he could to promote the welfare of the lodge. He should always set a good example to the brethren, both whilst W.M., and P.M., and he hoped that example would be followed. He trusted that when his year of office was at an end, the brethren would acknowledge that he had done good for the lodge. "The Initiates," "The P.M.'s," "The Visitors," "The Officers," and "The Tyler's Toast," were afterwards given and the brethren separated after having spent a delightful evening. The brethren present were—Bros. G. King, jun.; G. King, C. Darby, T. R. Maples, H. Hollingsworth, C. E. Axford, J. T. Bigwood, W. Ryan, T. P. Bedford, E. J. Goddard, John Foss, jun.; J. T. Spalding, G. Vine, M. Lowes, J. R. Maples, A. Dains, and Dr. Jabez Hogg. The visitors were Bros. H. S. Hilairy, P.M., 251; H. E. S. Sanderson, 69; Jas. A. Gow, W.M. 807; S. Carrington, 1314; G. Simpson, 65; H. Massey, P.M. 619; W. Goodyer, P.M. 192; T. Holland, P.M. 172; and Seymour Smith. There was a capital selection of music performed during the evening, in which Bro. Seymour Smith took a principal part.

MILDM.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 1390).—The monthly meeting was held on Tuesday, March 17th, at the Masonic Rooms. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Thos. Dodgson, P.G.S.S.C. and W., and P.M. 995. The minutes of last regular lodge were read and duly confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. George Corkhill, of East India Road, London, which proved favourable. Bro. Bell being a candidate for being passed to the second degree, the questions being answered satisfactorily, was entrusted and retired; Bro. Newton Pearson, P.M. 955 and P.G.P. West Lancashire, took the chair, and passed Bro. Bell to second degree. Bro. Dodgson was placed on the Charity Committee for this lodge at next P. G. meeting. Bro. Dodgson then assumed the chair, and it was unanimously carried that the lodge business be adjourned until June 16. There being no other business, the lodge was closed in due form with solemn prayer at 7 p.m.

INSTRUCTION.

STRONG MAN LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 45) was held at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, on Monday evening, March 23rd, Bro. Beckett, Preceptor, in the chair; Bro. Williams, W.; Saul, J.W.; Defriez, S.D.; Harty, J.D.; Rider, I.G.; Bro. Poona, (W.M. 720), W.M. 21. The lodge was opened in the three degrees, and Bro. Beckett worked the installation ceremony, at the termination of which Brother W.M. No. 45, (in the absence of P. M. 45; who had to retire only to catch his train) presented to Bro. Beckett in the name of the Strong Man Lodge and Charterhouse Club of Instruction with a cheque for £10, subscribed by the brethren, as a mark of appreciation for the willingness he has at all times shewn in instructing the brethren in their Masonic duties. Bro. Beckett made a very able reply. A vote of thanks to the Committee was given, and the evening to a close. The brethren were a few of the brethren who attended were—M. West, 548; Sickle, J. W. Urban; J. D. 45, P.M. Bently; Rider, Davies, Cook, Storey, Baldwin, Durham, Fox, Tolmie, Crawley, Sayer, Garbett, Walker, and others.

GLASGOW.—PROV. G. LODGE VISITATIONS. Monday, 16th ult., there was a large attendance of the members of the Union Lodge, 332, to do honour to the W.M. Bro. J. B. McNair, the R.W.M., and his office-bearers, were highly complimented by Bro. Barrow, on the correctness of their work and the good state of their books. After the deputation had retired, the R.W.M. proceeded to pass five brethren to the Fellow Craft degree.

On Tuesday, 17th, St. John's Lodge, No. 3, was visited. This is the oldest lodge in the province, and they claim to be the oldest in the world; their traditions carry them back beyond the Old Melrose, Mary's Chapter, Mother Kilwinning, or even the ancient York Lodge in the days of Athelstan, but the historical proof is not complete. Still the P.G.M. was able to congratulate them, and prove that old age had not impaired their vigour, and that under Brother Fletcher, their present R.W.M., they are not likely to retrograde or stop in their progress. The Thistle, No. 87, was also visited. Brother Miller, R.W.M., was not so fortunate in securing so large a meeting, but the report of P.G.S. was complimentary to the lodge.

Wednesday, the 18th, the Caledonian Railway Lodge, 354, was visited. This lodge last year had the honour of having Bro. Walter Monguire Neilson, the P.G.M., in their chair, it is therefore not to be wondered at that Bro. Shaw, his successor, should do his best to make the visit pass off with eclat, in which he succeeded, as there was a full attendance of members, and a good number of visitors. The D.P.G.M. addressed them at some length on the present aspect of Masonic affairs in the province.

On Thursday the St. Mungo Lodge, No. 27, received them under the presidency of their new R.W.M., Bro. Dugald Butler, the I.P.M., Bro. G. Sinclair, being one of the provincial deputations. The books kept by Bro. Pattison, the Secretary, were declared to be in perfect order, and after the official visit was over, the lodge was called from labour to refreshment, when with song, toast, and sentiment, the brethren enjoyed themselves to the "wee short hours ayent the twal," the sons of St. Mungo delighting to do honour to their patron saint, who is also the titular saint of the city.

On Friday the Lodge Clyde, No. 408, was visited, when the hall was crowded, as in addition to their members and several visitors from other Glasgow lodges, there was a deputation of 37 members from Rutherglen, No. 247, headed by their R.W.M., his Wardens and principal office-bearers. The lodge was opened at 8 o'clock by Bro. D. Downie, R.W.M., assisted by Bro. J. Buchanan, P.M.; McGinons, S.W.; Belsand, J.W.; Harper, T.; J. Martin, Sec. On the dais, in addition to those named were G. W. Weston, R.W.M.; G. W. Wheeler, S. 73; and W. Bassett, 27. The Provincial Lodge were received with the customary honours. Bro. McTaggart, P.G.S., reported that he had never seen books better kept than those he had now inspected. The acting P.G.M., Bro. Barrow, said it afforded him great pleasure to visit a lodge when the P.G.S. was able to report a clean bill of health. These visitations were for a double purpose, to see what they had been doing in the past, and to give them counsel for the future. He was pleased to find so many visiting brethren there to-night, but that was a point on which it behoved them to be very cautious, and he hoped the lodge would follow the advice he had already given to other lodges he had visited, and not admit any one into the lodge room without producing their diplomas, unless they were personally known either to the Master or his Wardens. This caution was necessary, now, as they had in their midst several of what he could only designate as Bush Lodges, and spurious Masons who were trying to entrap the unwary. He had no sympathy with those parties, but he pitied the poor dupes whom they got to join them; many of these had heard of the benevolence of Masons, and they were justly proud of their benevolence, but if any of these poor dupes should ever require aid they could not get it from a regular recognised lodge, neither would their widows or orphans have any claim on them or on their funds. The P.G.M. then explained a plan that had been suggested for raising more funds for benevolence, so as to ensure that every deserving brother or his family might receive relief should they ever require it. He must, however, draw his remarks to a close, as they had another lodge to visit that night. The P.G.S. then retired.

The P.G.L. then proceeded to Crox-place, to visit the Commercial Lodge, No. 360. Bro. Morton, R.W.M., who was also well supported, not only by his office-bearers, but also by a large body of members, at 9.15, received the P.G.L. The P.G.M. congratulated the lodge on the progress they had made during the past year and the efficiency of the [Master and his staff of officers; he also cautioned them against having anything to do with spurious Masons, if they would not violate their own obligations, and also dwelt on the prominent features of the scheme of benevolence. The R.W.M. tendered the thanks of the lodge to the P.G.M. and P.G.L.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE.

The annual meeting took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, the 26th ult., under the auspices of the Fowke Lodge, No. 19. The chair was taken by the R.W. Bro. W. Kelly, now the senior Prov. G.M. in the Order, and there was a good attendance of officers and members.

The business consisted only of the ordinary routine at annual meetings. The Treasurer's accounts were passed, and the Prov. G. Officers for the year were duly invested, the G. Wardens being the Earl Ferrers, Past S.G. Warden of England, and Bro. Partridge, P.M. 19. After the Prov. Lodge had been closed, the regular meeting of the Fowke Lodge was held, the W.M., Bro. W. Weare, presiding. Two candidates were advanced to the degree of Mark Master, after which the dispensation authorising the installation of Bro. J. M. MacAlister, J.W., the W.M. elect was read, (he not being a Craft P.M.), and the S.W., Bro. Toller having declined the office. Bro. MacAlister was then regularly installed, and saluted, after which he appointed and invested his officers. The ceremonies of advancement and of installation were admirably performed by Bro. Partridge, P.M. £3 3s. was voted to the Howe Memorial Widows' Fund, after which the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, under the presidency of the newly installed W.M.

It may be mentioned that the Mark degree is exceedingly popular in Leicester, the Fowke Lodge now numbers 86 subscribing members, and amongst the present officers are six Craft P.M.'s.

Masonic Tidings.

THE CONFIDENCE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION having been removed from the Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street, to Bro. Chard's, White Hart Tavern, corner of Abchurch-lane and Cannon-street, the ceremony of consecration will be performed on Wednesday, the 15th inst. at 7 p.m., by Bro. Jas. Brett, P.G.P., after which the installation ceremony by Bro. J. Constable, W.M. 185. The attendance of brethren on this occasion is invited.

We are requested to notice the death of Mrs. Catharine Baker, who died March 28th, 1874, the beloved wife of the late Bro. William Baker, who died May 14th, 1871, and who was initiated on the 10th day of March, 1832, in the One and All Lodge, Bodmin, Cornwall. She departed this life much respected by all who knew her.

INVALIDS TOO OFTEN FRUITLESSLY EXHAUST EVERY EFFORT TO OBTAIN RELIEF FROM THEIR SUFFERINGS, when a little reflection and moderate faith would supply them with a remedy for rheumatism, gout, colds, &c. Holloway's Ointment well rubbed upon the skin, after repeated fomentation gives infinite relief in these diseases. Thousands of testimonials bear witness to the wonderful comfort obtained from this safe and simple treatment, which all sufferers can instantly and successfully adopt without any further advice than is afforded in the accompanying directions. Holloway's Ointment, assisted by the judicious use of his Pills, is especially serviceable in assuaging the sufferings from cramps, other muscular pains, and the great inconvenience of varicose veins.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, APRIL 11, 1874.

THE INSTALLATION OF BRO. THE EARL OF ZETLAND.

At first this announcement almost sounds strangely to the Craft, and at any rate to many of us old Masons; for the name of "Zetland" carries us back to ancient days, and a good "regime," in which this famous Craft of ours flourished and progressed in wonderful measure.

And we are glad to be permitted to make such an announcement, as it is, and will be, a subject of rejoicing to all Freemasons, to see the nephew following in the steps of his well known and most venerated uncle.

That the gathering at York to welcome our distinguished brother will be very numerous, we need hardly say, and as far as the arrangements have been made known, they seem to us to be both very simple and yet very effective.

Our Grand Master will preside in person at the installation ceremony, and we feel certain that all will be done to enhance the solemnity of the occasion, and to make this great "assembly" a "dies alba" in the memory of Yorkshire Freemasons. All that the good city of York can do to give a respectable welcome to the strangers and visitors on that day, we hope will be done and done well, and we trust that our brethren may enjoy a very happy gathering, under the shadow of that great Minster raised by our operative forefathers in times of old.

May all of good attend the installation and rule of Bro. the Earl of Zetland, and may he emulate the true Masonic spirit and zealous devotion to our Order, which characterised his lamented uncle, our good old chief. We hope to give a full account of the day's proceedings in our next issue.

THE NEXT ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

An official circular from Bro. R. Wentworth Little, the Secretary, which appeared in our last impression, informs the Craft that the Stewards for the next festival have elected Bro. the Earl of Zetland, President of the Board of Stewards, and Bro. Joseph Charles Parkinson, the D.P.G.M. for Middlesex, Vice Patron. Bro. Raynham Stewart, P.G.D., has been elected Treasurer, and all present and Past Grand Officers, Vice-Presidents, and Vice-Patrons of the institution.

The Stewards' deposit was fixed at the reasonable amount of £2 2s., and ladies' tickets can be obtained, price 11s. each.

This seems to be a very sensible arrangement, and will, we think, be acceptable to many of the brethren. We feel certain that the next Anniversary Meeting, under the presidency of our distinguished Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, will be a very successful one, and we hope that, by their liberal support and fraternal sympathy, our brethren will exhibit their unabated interest in that excellent institution, the Girls' School, and will thus testify that they fully endorse and approve of the recent enlargement and additions, urgently required by increasing demands for admission and education.

We would suggest, that, our excellent Bro. R. W. Little should publish before long the list of Stewards.

May our third charitable anniversary for 1874, make plain to all impugners of Freemasonry, that, whatever may be the changes elsewhere Masonic hearts are still unchanged, and beat very warmly in the "good old cause" of relief and true charity to those who are now dependant on them, in the hour of their bereavement and adversity.

REVIEW OF THE SOLDIERS FROM THE GOLD COAST.

Though we are not politicians, as Freemasons in any sense, and though the Freemasons have nothing, quâ Freemasons, to do with the passing events of the world extern to Freemasonry, yet we think we are not doing wrong as English Freemasons, for alluding to the subject of our heading.

It must surely be a matter to us all of great rejoicing, as philanthropists and lovers of peace (not peace at any price), to know that a sad and distant war is over, and that our gallant soldiers have returned to receive the well-merited approval of their sovereign, and the admiration and applause of their fellow countrymen.

Though some, alas! are sleeping in their far and lonely graves, who died as English soldiers always die; though some have come back to country and friends enervated and suffering from the poisonous atmosphere of that deadly clime, a very large number of stalwart frame and cheery presence were mustered on Monday, March 30th, in Windsor Park, to await the arrival, and hail the advent of their Queen.

At their head was their excellent and skilful commander, surrounded by his efficient staff and the sunburnt men there assembled in the presence of our Royal Family and a large concourse of spectators, received from H.R.H. the Commander-in-Chief the formal assurance of Her Majesty's special admiration and approbation.

We must all rejoice at the well-merited honours which have fallen to the lot of Sir Garnet Wolseley and his subordinate officers; and we all feel proud of the young Lieutenant and of the gallant Sergeant, who have won the Victoria Cross.

Independently of the fact, that, there are no doubt some of our brethren among the officer and non-commissioned officers happily returned home as patriots as well as Freemasons, we must always feel proud of the English arm.

John Beetle-Crusher, as some one has called him, deserves very well of us all, for few persons do more hard work and do it more thoroughly than he does. And when we remember to do how very many, and how varied are the services of the English soldier, we may well admire the discipline, and courage, and devotion, and dauntless heroism, which make many of the chapters of our military history so striking and so brilliant. May those who have returned home safe and sound, from the perils of the jungle and treacherous breezes of the Gold Coast, soon recollect their woe and previous vigour, both of mind and body, amid the welcome which all at once offer to those who have served their Queen well, have so signally punished a treacherous and have maintained alike the credit of the famous regiments, and the power and prestige of England.

But in saying this we must not forget the fine body of men, the Marines, or the gallant blue jackets of our Naval Brigade, or even the West India Regiment, for all alike served well of their Queen and Country.

deed it is almost impossible to overrate the services performed by Colonel Festing and his Marines, Captain Grubbe with his blue-jackets, and Captain Glover with his native levies.

All have combined to bring the war to a successful conclusion, and we hope to teach a lasting lesson to lightly-clad Ashantees and King Coffee Kalkalli.

THE LATE BRO. HORACE LLOYD.

We have to announce with deep regret, the decease of our much respected Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C., President of the Board of General Purposes.

His high character and great legal attainments rendered him a most fitting person to fill that high and very important post in our Masonic officiality.

His loss will be alike deplored by the honourable profession to which he belonged, and the Order he has so long adorned, and his personal merits and Masonic qualifications will long be affectionately remembered by his brethren and Grand Lodge.

WEEKLY SUMMARY.

Her Majesty is at Osborne, having left Windsor Castle at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, April 2. Her Majesty entertained at a State dinner a large number of the officers recently arrived from the Gold Coast, on the evening of the 30th.

As it may interest some of our fair sisters, we give the following extracts relative to the Drawing Room on the 25th ult. Her Majesty wore a black watered silk dress, with a train trimmed with crape, embroidered in black silk and jet. Her Majesty also wore a ruby and diamond diadem over a long white tulle veil, and a diamond and ruby necklace and brooch. With the Riband and Star of the Order of the Garter, her Majesty likewise wore the Victoria and Albert Order, the Orders of Louise of Prussia, St. Catherine of Russia, Marie Louise of Spain, St. Isabelle of Portugal, and the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha Family Order. The Princess of Wales wore a dress of white satin, with pleatings of satin and ostrich feather trimming; the train of white satin, also with pleating of satin and ostrich feather trimming. Head-dress—a tiara of diamonds, feathers and veil. Ornaments—corsage, necklace, &c., of pearls and diamonds. Orders—Victoria and Albert, Catherine of Russia, and the Danish Family Order. Princess Beatrice wore a train and petticoat of pink silk, trimmed with Honiton lace and white daisies. Ornaments—Pearls and diamonds. Order—Victoria and Albert. The Duchess of Edinburgh wore a petticoat of white tulle over white silk, spangled with silver, and striped with wreaths of roses; a train of the same material, trimmed with a wreath of roses and plait of silver, striped with bands of silver and roses. Head dress—Coronet of diamonds and rubies, white feathers and veil. Ornaments—Necklace and brooch of diamonds and rubies. Orders—Victoria and Albert, and the Russian Order of St. Catherine.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have gone to Sandringham for Easter, and the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh are at Buckingham Palace.

The evening of Wednesday, the 29th of April, has been appointed for the ball to be given by the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress to their Royal Highness the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh at the Mansion-house. It is needless to state that a distinguished company will be invited to meet their Royal Highnesses, and that the occasion will be in all respects worthy the illustrious guests and the traditions of the Mayoralty of the City of London.

General Sir Richard Airey, G.C.B., will shortly assume command of the troops in Ireland, in succession to General the Right Hon. Lord Sandhurst, G.C.B., G.S.C.I. It is expected that Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Ellice, K.C.B., will succeed Sir Richard Airey as Adjutant-General to the Forces. Major-General Sir Alfred Horsford, K.C.B., commanding the South-Eastern District, is spoken of as Sir Charles Ellice's successor.

Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Hastings Doyle, G.C.M.G., has been appointed to the command of the Southampton District, vice Lord Templetown. He has appointed Lord Burchley, Grenadier Guards, and Mr. Doyle, 2nd Dragoon Guards, his aides-de-camp.

The Observer understands that, during the stay of the Court at Osborne, the Queen will visit the naval invalids from the Ashantee War, now in Haslar Hospital. The review of the Naval Brigade will probably be held on Southsea Common.

Captain Glover, accompanied by Mr. Goldworthy and Capt. Sartorius have reached Liverpool. We trust that befitting rewards await him, and his subordinate officers.

The Victoria Nyanza, a large Indiaman, has been wrecked not far from Boulogne. The second mate, and five sailors, who remained with the ship, all lost but one; the rest of crew were saved.

Captain Tyler's general report on the railways of the United Kingdom for the year 1872 shows that a total sum of £569,047,346 had been expended on 15,814 miles of railway, or at the rate of nearly £36,900 a mile. By the running of trains for 190,720,719 miles, £51,304,114 was received during the year, of which £25,652,383 was expended in working and maintenance, and £25,651,731 remained as net profit. There were 422,874,822 passenger journeys, besides 272,342 season ticket holders; and 179,302,121 tons of goods and minerals were conveyed. The average rate of dividend on ordinary capital was 5.14 per cent., and upon the total capital 4.76 per cent., including £32,901,496 of ordinary capital, part of £42,582,631 of total capital, which received no interest or dividend. The results of working in 1873 present somewhat similar results of further increased receipts and further increased expenses, but it is hardly probable that either the one or the other will continue to increase in 1874 in the same ratio. The traffic of the country must be considered to have been for the last two years in an inflated condition, and the price of wages, fuel, and materials to have attained a point considerably above the average. There will, no doubt, be fluctuations in these respects in the future, as there have been in the past. But, upon the whole, and comparing longer than annual periods, the progress of the country, as shown by its railway traffic, has been marvellous. The gross receipts of the railways have increased from £23,956,749 in 1858 to £51,304,114 in 1872; or have been more than doubled in fourteen years.

The remains of the late Henry Cairnes Westenra, Baron Rossmore, whose lamented death on the 28th ult., in the Cavalry Barracks, Windsor, is fresh in the memory of our readers, were conveyed from thence to his country seat in Ireland, for interment in the family vault in the town of Monaghan. On Tuesday last, at half-past two, the hearse containing the body proceeded to the church, followed by thousands of friends and tenants. The chief mourners were his Lordship's three brothers, the Hons. Derrick, Richard, and Peter Westenra, his stepfather, Colonel Stapoole, and his brothers-in-law, Captains Candy and Stirling. On reaching the church the coffin was covered with wreaths and crosses of white flowers, sent by many of his friends unable to attend. Among them were offerings from the Countess of Bective, Viscount Helmsley, M.P., the Hon. Mrs. Candy, the Hon. Mrs. Stirling, Mr. Horace Farquhar, and several others. A wreath was sent by the soldiers of the deceased's regiment, and his corporal-major came over in person to deposit it upon his tomb. The pall-bearers were Captain the Hon. Charles Byng, Sir Simon Lockhart, Captain Fellowes, Captain Duncombe, Captain the Hon. R. Talbot, Captain Dunbar, Captain Thorold (all his brother officers), and Lord Arthur Somerset, of the Royal Horse Guards. Among the friends and relations present in the church were the Earl of Dartrey, Lord Cremorne, Lord Charles Beresford, M.P., Viscount Hastings, Colonel the Hon. John Westenra, Mr. Leslie, M.P., Colonel Lloyd, Captain Wauchope, Mr. Madden, and others.

The Standard of Friday describes the distribution of the famous Tichborne Dole, which was established by a pious lady, Mabel, the wife of a Sir Roger Tichborne, in the time of Henry II., and which forms the subject of a picture at the Hall, painted just two centuries ago. The "dole" is distributed to all applicants residing in the parishes of Tichborne and Cheriton, and consists of one gallon of best wheaten flour to each adult, and half a gallon to each child. It had been intended that the distribution this year should be made on the lawn in front of the house, but the infant baronet, Sir Henry Alured Joseph Doughty Tichborne, a fine little fellow in his eighth year, was unfortunately unable to be present, as he is just recovering from an attack of the measles. The programme was therefore altered, and the lady members of the family were not present at the ceremony, which took place at the rear of the house. All being in readiness, a couple of stalwart miller's men emptied several of the sacks of flour into an immense tub. Then the resident priest of the quiet little domestic chapel which forms part of the mansion, the Rev. Thomas Quinn, offered up a short prayer, and, after invoking the blessing of Heaven on the gift, sprinkled the flour with holy water from a chalice borne by an acolyte. John Etheridge, the blacksmith, who proved such a characteristic witness for the prosecution in the Court of Queen's Bench, was one of the recipients. The old man did not personally appear, but a substitute conveyed his share to him. Kennett, coachman to the Dowager Lady Tichborne until her death—a hale old man of seventy, spare and upright, with grisly locks, who now lives in a small freehold cottage at Cheriton, of which he is owner, having retired from work on a small competency—also came forward and received three gallons of flour. Each recipient, with a curtsey or a pull at the forelock, was served in alphabetical succession, and the work extended over a period of about two hours, until nine sacks, each containing fifty gallons of flour, had been distributed. The total number of the recipients was upwards of 600.

There has been a very successful Easter Monday Review of the Volunteers, at Wimbledon, under Major-General Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar.

The foreign news is very unimportant. Marshal Serrano has so far not succeeded—in his attack on the Carlist position, or in his attempt to relieve Bilbao. What success or defeat the future may bring to the combatants time only can disclose. Prince Bismarck is happily getting better from his recent serious attack. There seems to be a little cloud rising in the East, but we must hope, that the great struggle impending may at any rate be postponed.

We have to announce the deaths of the Marquis of Downshire, General Sir W. H. Elliott, G.C.B., Major-General Charles Gostling, R.A., of Colonel Arthur Wyndham, Madras Staff Corps, Lieutenant-Colonel Fredk. Miller, C.B., of Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Gaote, late 35th Regiment, of Lieutenant-Colonel Wm. Lambert, of Major Edward Stephenson, late Rifle Brigade, of Surgeon-Major Wyatt, Coldstream Guards, of Captain Gibson, C.B., of Captain Carleton, R.N., of Sir Edward H. P. Turner, of Sir William Bodkin, of Herr Krause, Councillor to the German Embassy, and of Mr. Albert Way, F.S.A. We have also specially to deplore the loss of our distinguished Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C., President of the Board of General Purposes.

LONDON AND HOME NEWS.

A marriage is arranged between Lady Anne Spencer Churchill, fourth daughter of the Duke of Marlborough, and the Marquis of Bowmont.

We congratulate the Directors of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway on being the initiators of a reform which has long been demanded in connexion with the sale of railway tickets. On and after to-day (Wednesday) the offices at the principal stations on their lines—Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Rochdale, Wakefield, Bolton, Blackburn, &c.—will be open continuously on weekdays from 8 o'clock in the morning until 7 in the evening, "in order that tickets may be obtained at any time and for any train" during the day. This admirable arrangement will remove one of the terrors of railway travelling—the "crush" at the booking-offices; but we venture to suggest to the directors that if they had gone a step further and opened an office in Market-street for the sale of tickets at any hour during the day, the public would have been still more deeply indebted to them.—Manchester Guardian.

The first Act of the new Parliament was yesterday issued. It was passed on Saturday, to apply £1,422,727 14s. 6d. out of the Consolidated Fund for the service of the years ending March 31, 1873 and 1874.

Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to command that Colonel Sir Garnet Joseph Wolseley, K.C.M.G., C.B., be promoted to the rank of Major-General in the Army, in recognition of his valuable services in command of the force employed against the Ashantees. The Queen has been graciously pleased to give orders for the following promotions in and appointments to the Most Honourable Order of the Bath. To be Ordinary Members of the Military Division of the Second Class, or Knights Commanders of the said Most Honourable Order, viz.:—Major-Gen. Sir Garnet Joseph Wolseley, K.C.M.G., C.B.; Capt. John Edmund Commerrell, R.N., C.B., V.C.; Captain William Nathan Wright Hewett, R.N., V.C.; Col. Sir Archibald Alison, Bart., C.B.; Col. John Chetnam M'Leod, C.B., 42nd Regiment; Deputy Surg.-Gen. Anthony Dickson Home, C.B., V.C. To be Ordinary Members of the Military Division of the Third Class, or Companions of the said Most Honourable Order, viz.:—Capt. Walter James Hunt Grubbe, R.N.; Capt. the Hon. Edmund Robert Freemantle, R.N.; Col. John Carstairs M'Neill, V.C., C.M.G., late 48th Regiment; Col. George Richards Greaves, late 7th Regiment; Col. Savage Mostyn, 23rd Regiment; Lieut.-Col. James Maxwell, 1st West India Regiment; Lieut.-Col. George Daniel Webber, 2nd West India Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Arthur Frederick Warren, Rifle Brigade; Lieut.-Col. Baker Creed Russell, 13th Hussars; Lieut.-Col. Duncan Macpherson, 42nd Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Francis Cunningham Scott, 42nd Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Robert Home, Royal Engineers; Lieut.-Col. Thomas Durand Baker, 18th Regiment; Major Redvers Henry Buller, 60th Regiment; Major Arthur John Rait, Royal Artillery; Major William Francis Butler, late 60th Regiment; Deputy-Controller Matthew Bell Irvine, C.M.G.; Staff-Surg. Ahmuty Irwin, R.N.; Surgeon-Major Thomas Macdougall Bleckley, M.D.; Staff-Surg. Henry Fegan, M.D., R.N.; Surg.-Major Robert William Jackson; Surg.-Major Charles Benjamin Mosse, African Medical Service.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned officer and non-commissioned officer, whose claims to the same have been submitted for Her Majesty's approval, for acts of bravery performed by them during the recent Ashantee War, as recorded against their names, viz.:—

24th Regiment.—Lieutenant Lord Gifford, for his gallant conduct during the operations, and especially at the taking of Becquah. The officer commanding the Expeditionary Force reports that Lord Gifford was in charge of the scouts after the army crossed the Pele and that it is no exaggeration to say that since the Adansi Hills were passed he daily carried his life in his hand in the performance of his most dangerous duties. He hung upon the rear of the enemy, discovering their position, and ferreting out their intentions. With no other white man with him, he captured numerous prisoners; but Sir Garnet Wolseley brings him forward for this mark of Royal favour most especially for his conduct at the taking of Becquah, into which he penetrated with his scouts before the troops carried it, when his gallantry and courage were most conspicuous.

42nd Regiment.—Lance-Sergeant Samuel Mc Gaw (date of act of bravery, January 31, 1874), for having at the battle of Arnoafal led his section through the bush in the most excellent manner, continuing to do so throughout the whole day, although badly wounded early in the engagement.

On Tuesday evening, March 31, in accordance with the precedent which the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's established in Holy Week of last year, and which then gave such unqualified pleasure, not only to all who appreciated true Church music, but to those who felt that the due observance of Lent was, at length, provided for in the great Metropolitan Cathedral, a special service was held in the dome area. The Passion Music (St. Matthew) by John Sebastian Bach, formed the musical attraction in the service, and this, as in last year, was rendered with admirable effect and complete success by a large surplined choir, numbering not less than 300 voices, and including the members of the Cathedral choir, the Chapels Royal, and a picked body of amateurs; an orchestra of stringed and wind instruments, and a large unsurplined vocal contingent in the transepts. The Cathedral was densely thronged, and it is stated on good authority that the number which assembled last year—10,000—was far exceeded on this occasion. Even the galleries were filled with people. The organ was played by Mr. George Cooper, and Dr. Stainer, the organist of St. Paul's, conducted the choir. The Bishop of London, the Dean of St. Paul's, and Canons Gregory, Liddon, and Lightfoot were present, together with a large number of the clergy. The service commenced at 7 o'clock with the Miserere, to the music of the "Tonus Regalis" adapted by Dr. Stainer, the intoning priest being the Rev. W. C. F. Webber, the sub-Dean of the Cathedral. Then followed some versicles and prayers, and afterwards the Matthew Passion Music was given from beginning to end. The congregation, at places marked in the service paper, stood while the most solemn and impressive parts of the music were being sung, and a short and striking pause between that part of the musical narrative which ends with Our Lord's agony in Gethsemane and resumes at His return to His Disciples was set apart for private prayer and meditation. At the end of the service, which lasted nearly three hours, the benediction was pronounced by the Bishop of London, and the congregation dispersed.

Bicton, the seat of Lady Rolle, was discovered to be on fire about noon on Monday. The furniture and costly paintings were removed to the lawn in front of the building. The conservatories and servants' dwellings are completely gutted, but at present the mansion has escaped much damage. The servants have lost the whole of their wearing apparel, and it is feared many valuable works of art are destroyed. Lady Rolle superintended the removal of the furniture, &c., as she sat in her brougham. Up to a late hour in the evening the flames were not subdued.

About fifty of Earl of Fitzwilliam's foxhounds have been shot, in consequence of canine madness having shown itself amongst them.

Bro. Sir Frederick Perkins, M.P., has been elected a member of the Reform Club.

The differences of opinion as to the proper site for the memorial to the Duke of Brunswick at the erection of which was a condition of the quest to the town—have proved too serious to be settled without reference to some higher authority. Accordingly, M. OUR MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

For this discussion to be of any value, it should lead to some practical results. Some of the letters which have appeared upon the subject display much ability, and all contain more or less pertinent remarks, but the vital question at issue has scarcely been touched. For we have to ascertain or discover some method, by which every member of the Craft should, as is his bounden duty to do, subscribe to the institutions which are the pride and glory of the Order. That the charities are mainly supported by the minority is without dispute. That the whole fraternity ought to contribute not only towards their efficient maintenance, but also to lay foundations for extended usefulness will, I think, scarcely be questioned. Then how is this to be accomplished. Bro. Coates proposes the establishment of a provincial charity board, Bro. Bodenham deems that scheme too elaborate for general adoption, and recommends a method excellent in itself, but according to his showing too circumscribed in its operations. He asserts that the members of the association, which he thinks if generally adopted will meet the case, are drawn from six or seven lodges in his province. It would be well to know whether every one of the members of these lodges subscribe one guinea per annum. We have a number of similar societies in London. Their beneficial influence cannot be overrated. But unless you can induce every member of the Craft to subscribe to such an association we shall be as far off as ever of obtaining subscriptions from each individual, and that is the point in question. The usual methods adopted have proved inefficient. The circulars regularly sent by the Stewards prior to each of the festivals are for the most part so much waste paper and futile expenditure of postage stamps. We cannot reach the brethren in the lodge, for the average attendance at a regular meeting of any given lodge is about two thirds, and those who happen to be absent during a collection lose their opportunity. Many of the absentees would no doubt gladly give. But at their next attendance the matter is either forgotten or neglected; thus the institutions suffer. Therefore until a better mode is suggested, I still think that the influence of the Grand Lodge alone can secure the desired result. Bro. Bodenham thinks that compulsory contributions would destroy the foundations of the institutions. I do not see how. I firmly believe the same percentage of brethren will always be found not only willing but anxious to become vice-Presidents, Life Governors, and Life and Annual Subscribers. It is ridiculous to presume that in consequence of a small tax per annum, all the said to benefit the institutions which has hitherto characterised Freemasons would immediately expire. Besides several of your correspondents insist that all lodge subscriptions, instead of being expended for the gratification of the palate or the decoration of deserving brethren, should be paid in to the charities. Would not that constitute compulsory contribution? I do not see any reason for fastidiousness in this matter provided the end proposed is legitimately and efficiently secured. The importance of the subject and your own kindness may justify the request that you will permit and encourage this discussion. I shall perhaps by persistently and clearly stating the different bearings of the case some more able and influential brethren may be induced to move in the matter.

Let the call be sounded at head quarters and there is no doubt every member of the Craft will heartily and right loyally respond.

Yours fraternally,

E. GOTTHEIL, P.M. and P.Z.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think the Masonic Charities would immensely benefit by the appointment of local or provincial secretaries and collectors, who might be empowered to solicit and receive subscriptions and donations from lodges and brethren.

I think the guinea subscriptions to the Boys' and Girls' Institutions is, as a minimum subscription, too high. I would venture to suggest that such guineas subscribed should carry two votes, and a half-guinea subscription one vote at each election, and subscriptions of five shillings should entitle the subscriber to one vote at one election in the year. I would also venture to suggest that the balance sheets of the several charities should be annually printed, and several copies sent to each donor and subscriber, and to the Secretary of every lodge and Scribe E. of every chapter for distribution, and that the Secretary of every lodge and Scribe E. of every chapter should be encouraged to act as Hon. Secretary or collector to the several charities by giving them some advantage in votes according to the amount collected.

I quite agree with your correspondent, R. W., in to-day's Freemason, that the amount of the Stewards' fee must often have acted as a drawback to the success of the Masonic charities. An instance occurred in my own lodge this year. £10 10s. was proposed to be given out of the lodge funds to the list of any brother of the lodge who would be willing to serve the office of Steward for the Boys' Festival this last time, but it was declined on account of the largeness of the incidental expenses, and the ten guineas was thus lost for a time to the Boys' School. At the same time I may say we have for the last two years sent a Steward to the Old People's Festival, and a brother in the lodge has signified his intention of serving the office next year. I have myself served the office of Steward to one of the charities, and am a life governor of each, and a subscriber to two of the charities. I should have myself accepted the offer of the £10 to take the office of Steward for the Boys', but felt I would much rather do, as I did, give £5 direct to one of the charities.

I am, dear sir and brother, fraternally yours,

AD REFERENDUM.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A great deal has lately been written on this subject, but your correspondents have, it appears to me, overlooked the most efficacious, as well as the most simple, plan for advancing the interests of the charities.

A compulsory contribution from every Mason, as suggested by some, would never do; it would destroy entirely the nature of the institutions; and I think the Charity Boards and Committees proposed by Bro. Coates would be found too unwieldy. Moreover what would, by such an arrangement, be the business of several would probably not be done by anyone. The work of raising funds for the Masonic Charities should be one man's work in each lodge and chapter, and if that one be energetic and zealous he will do far more good; he will draw far more money than would be obtained by any committee. Every lodge and chapter should have its Charity Steward, whose duty it should be to bring the claims of the Charities under the notice of every member, and as these charitable institutions are not only countenanced, but also partly supported by Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, those august bodies should compel the appointment of a Charity Steward in every daughter lodge and chapter, otherwise many lodges, &c., will never have such an officer; and it could easily be done by a motion to that effect in Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter.

If such a rule were made, the Charity Steward would be either a new officer of the lodge, &c., or the duties would be attached to some office already existing. In the former case the Charity Steward, considering the importance of his work, should rank next after the J.W.; but a far better plan would I think be to make the J.W. the Charity Steward also. The Junior Warden has little to do besides qualifying himself for the higher chairs, and the intimate acquaintance that his duties as C.S. would give him with each member of the lodge, would certainly be advantageous to him on becoming W.M. Besides this the J.W. has charge of the brethren at those times when the purse-strings are most likely to be freely loosened; thus he has opportunities for pressing the claims of the schools, &c., which others have not. Again, the Wardens being members of Grand and Provincial Grand Lodges, the Charities would be well represented in those bodies. Moreover the addresses of all Wardens are in the hands of Grand and Provincial Grand Secretaries, so that the Secretaries of the Institutions would have no difficulty in forwarding the necessary documents to them. In R.A. Chapters I would suggest that the S.N. would be the best officer to undertake the duties of C.S., all the ranks above him having quite enough to attend to at present if they do their work properly.

Hoping, with you, that the good of the Charitable Institutions may be materially advanced by the discussion now going on, I remain,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

G. SHANKS, 18°

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

There is an old Scottish proverb which says that "if you put your spoon in other folk's kail, you are sure to get burned." This is beautifully applicable to Bro. W. P. Buchan, and also to your correspondent who signs himself "A Masonic Student," with respect to their letters published in p. 174 and p. 180 of the Freemason. They have chosen to intermeddle in the controversy between Bro. Hughan and me as to Masons' Marks, which perhaps we might as well have been left to finish for ourselves, if we could do so in a proper manner. In their haste, however, Bro. Buchan and the "Masonic Student" have rushed into print, unprepared by any sufficient study of the subject. They have thrown no light on it, and have only succeeded in showing that they know very little about it. Bro. Buchan has mistaken the very point at issue between Bro. Hughan and me. Any one who looks at Bro. Hughan's letter at p. 180 of the Freemason may see that he is only defending the system at present practised in England, by the lodges that work the Mark Degree, for he says:—"It has been the custom for years in England for candidates on being "advanced" in lodges under the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters, to select marks with an even or odd number of points, and he goes on to state that this custom was sanctioned by the Grand Mark Lodge, because in accordance with the ancient custom, as confirmed by an examination of the marks still existing on many old buildings. What I said is, a mark ought to have an odd number of points, and this I maintain is what has been taught in lodges for more than one hundred and fifty years. The Grand Lodge of Mark Masters in England was only constituted a few years ago, to take charge, so to speak, of the Mark lodges in England; but all these English lodges received their charters from Scotland, and along with them their ritual, which they could have no right to change, and in which it is distinctly laid down as a fixed rule that candidates are to choose no other mark than one with an odd number of points. If the lodges could not change the ritual which they had received, neither could the Grand Lodge constituted by them. Any such change would be a violation of the charters of the lodges, and it would be a violation of a landmark of Freemasonry.

I may ask how does it happen that the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters is not recognised by the Grand Lodge of England, or that of Ireland, or that of Scotland, and that no arrangement has been entered into for fraternal relations between it and any of these Grand Lodges.

All the lodges of Mark Masters in England are daughters of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, which supplied Mark books along with the charter and ritual to every daughter lodge; and all the marks in these books have an odd number of points.

As to marks with an even number of points, found on old buildings, their presence admits of easy explanation. I shall not occupy your space at present by showing what that explanation is. For this is not the present question, but that question is what at present is, and has been for more than one hundred and fifty years, the practice of lodges?

Bro. Buchan and "A Masonic Student" have both wandered from this question which concerns speculative Masonry only, to a question concerning operative Masonry. Perhaps if they will duly consider this hint, they will find out for themselves how to account for marks with an even number of points to be found on buildings, and Bro. Buchan's amusement at my statement as to Masons' Marks may give place to a somewhat different feeling. He may find that it is not my ignorance, but some other body's that needs to be excused.

Yours fraternally,

CHALMERS I. PATON.

MELROSE ST. JOHN'S LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Our attention having been called to a correspondence by Mr. Stratford, on the above subject in your columns, we have much pleasure in sending you a letter to the Editor of the North British Daily Mail, Glasgow, explaining a visit of three masons, under Grand Lodge Constitution, to this lodge, which we think will speak for itself, and disabuse the minds of your Masonic readers of the idea that it was a fraternal visit, which Mr. Stratford attempted to convey by the tone of his letter to which we replied.

Trusting you will give it a place in your columns.

We are yours fraternally

THE THREE VISITORS.

MELROSE "BUSH" LODGE.

To the Editor of the North British Daily Mail.

Sir,—In reply to Thomas Stratford's letter in your paper of 20th inst., we beg to say that, having seen an advertisement that his lodge was to meet on a certain evening (the date of which neither of us can recollect) to "install office-bearers," we thought, seeing there was no Masonic ceremony, that it would be a suitable opportunity to visit for the purpose of gratifying our curiosity, and also, if necessary, putting our veto upon the proceedings, and exposing to the members their true position with regard to the lodges and members thereof holding of Grand Lodge of Scotland. When we arrived at the place of meeting there was a sederunt book, in which we entered our names; but will it be believed of this "lodge of lodges" that may some day confer so much honour as to join Grand Lodge—though we would suggest to Mr. Stratford rather to offer Grand Lodge the honour of joining it—that their door keeper was unclothed, and on our interrogating him, there was no doubt in our minds that he was not a Mason. We were admitted without being tested, which is another sample of how business is conducted at this Temple of Masonic (?) perfection; and pity it is that we had not had an instantaneous lens, in order that we might have presented a carte of this worthy meeting to each lodge in the province. The chairman expressed his regret that he was not competent to install the office-bearers, but requested Bro. Miller to have the kindness to do so, and hoped he would have no objection. This, need scarcely say, was promptly and positively refused him, and in a protracted discussion which ensued, we repudiated their charter, protested that their meetings were un-masonic, exposed to the members their position relative to constitutional lodges and their members, and censured in unsparing terms the conduct of those who were carrying on the trade, but more especially that of Mr. Stratford, seeing he declared himself a Mason under Grand Lodge laws. We have the satisfaction of knowing that the report of our visit was the means of an agitation which resulted in Mr. Stratford being ignominiously expelled from Lodge Glasgow No. 441, and we hesitate not to say that he will not be permitted to enter any lodge in the province, and we have a very erroneous opinion of the gentleman if he attempts to do so. We neither saw nor heard anything of their charity, and as regards Melrose Lodge being instituted to benefit the "craft," and not the "crafty," the less Mr. Stratford says about that the better, but had his statement been that it was instituted by the "crafty," it would have had our cordial approval. When it was proposed to close the meeting, we intimated that as we could discern no pretensions for its being a Masonic lodge, we must retire, and accordingly did so. Thomas Stratford is not now a member of any properly constituted Masonic lodge, and we would say to those whom he may advise to join his party that they will not be admitted into the fellowship of any Masonic lodge in this or any other province in the kingdom. We intend this letter as an explanation to brethren, and not as a reply to Mr. Stratford, whose conduct is unworthy of notice, unless indeed it be criminal to conduct an illegal secret society. Further correspondence on this subject will have no reply from us.—We are, &c.

THE THREE VISITORS.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this institution met last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., in the chair. There was a good attendance of members, notwithstanding the holiday season and the inclemency of the weather. Among the brethren present were James Weaver, Hyde Pullen, J. G. Chancellor, S. Rosenthal, James Terry, John Symonds, Richard Spencer, R. Motion, H. Massey, and F. Binckes, Secretary.

After the reading of the minutes of the former general and house committee meetings, in which latter the tenders of tradesmen for provisions for the school were set out, four petitions were read for placing as many candidates on the list for election at the quarterly court in October. The whole of them were found to be satisfactory, and in one of them, which was a London case from No. 228, the candidate appeared before the committee, and though only seven years of age, read very fluently. All four cases were ordered to be placed on the list.

The sum of £50 was ordered to be transferred from the general account of the school to the Sustentation Fund, as that amount would probably be required for the purposes for which the fund was established.

Bro. John Symonds, V.P., gave notice that he would at the next meeting of the General Committee on the 2nd May, move that £50 be added to the salary of Bro. Binckes, from the commencement of the present year, on account of his long service as the Secretary of the Boys' School, and the efficiency of that service.

The Committee then adjourned.

Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s., and 16s. each. Postage free.

SPINAL MACHINES, LEG IRONS, And Every Description of Surgical Appliances. JOHN WHITE, Manufacturers', 228, Piccadilly, London.

GLENFIELD STARCH is the only kind used in Her Majesty's Laundry. Those Ladies who have not yet used the Glenfield Starch, respectfully solicited to give it a trial, and carefully follow the directions printed on every package. It is rather more difficult to make than other Starches, but what it is to overcome, they may, like the Queen's Laundresses, say, that it is the finest Starch they ever used. "When you ask for the Glenfield, see that you get it."

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," has repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it cures cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment. This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Scarborough. *Invaluable should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Disorders of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had of all Chemists.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CROYDON.—East Surrey Lodge of Concord (No. 463).—The installation meeting of this old and prosperous lodge took place on Thursday, the 2nd inst., at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon. The lodge was opened at 3 o'clock by Bro. Podmore, W.M., and the three degrees worked by the W.M. and his officers in a masterly manner, after which Bro. Henry Wallis Hunt, the S.W., was duly installed into the chair of King Solomon, by Bro. Woodward, P.M. and Sec. of the lodge, in his usual able and impressive style. The W.M. began his year of office by announcing himself a Steward for the coming festival of the Girl's School, when £5 5s. was voted from the lodge funds to be placed on his list (not a large sum for a lodge consisting of some ninety members). The lodge being duly closed, the members adjourned to the banqueting room, where, judging from the printed "menu" placed before them, a most sumptuous banquet was waiting for them. The W.M. gave the usual Masonic toasts, and the health of the W.M. was received with the most enthusiastic conviviality. Among the brethren we noticed, Bros. Price, P.M., P.G. Treas. Surrey; J. G. Chancellor, P.M., P.P.G.D.; E. A. Sacre, P.M., P.P.G.D.; Crispe, P.M., P.P.G.D.; Wm. Roebuck, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; J. W. Dosell, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M. 73, &c., &c.

JERSEY.—Royal Alfred Lodge (No. 877).—The 13th anniversary meeting of this lodge took place at the Masonic Temple with more than ordinary eclat. The suffrages of the brethren had been unanimously given in favour of Bro. Ellis Anwyl Owen, a Mason highly esteemed and respected. His induction to the chair was attended with peculiar circumstances of felicitation, both to the members of the lodge, and to his brethren and friends of the other lodges, and awakened a desire among them to be present at the gratifying ceremony. The lodge was opened in the first degree by Bro. Wm. Adams, W.M., assisted by his Wardens, E. A. Owen, Major Woodall, J. Le Cronier, M.D., P.M., D.P.G.M.; A. Schmitt, P.P.G.S.W., as I.P.M.; W. F. M. Turner, S.D.; W. J. Ennis, J.D.; General T. C. Kelly, C.B., I.G.; F. T. Cooke, &c., &c. Among the visitors were pleased to observe Bros. E. L. Bennett, W.M. 244; E. Martel, W.M. 491, P.G.D.C.; Captain Fawcett, &c., &c. The minutes were read and confirmed, and the lodge opened in the second degree, when Bros. D. J. Le Cronier and A. Schmitt were requested by the W.M. to present Bro. Ellis Anwyl Owen, the W.M. elect, for receiving the benefit of installation. The customary enumeration of duties was made and acknowledged, the ancient charges were read and willingly assented to, and the Ob. of W.M. elect administered. The lodge was opened in the 3rd degree, and all who had not passed the hair withdrew. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. Ellis Anwyl Owen was duly placed in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. The Board being closed, the several classes of Masons were in turn admitted, and the processions and proclamations were gone through, respecting which it need only be recorded that Bro. Adams conducted the ceremonies with great exactitude and impressiveness. After the usual address to the W.M., delivered with effect, Bro. Ellis A. Owen briefly remarked that, fully acknowledging the difficulty of the task he had undertaken, he was sensible of the honour conferred upon him. He accepted the responsibility, and trusted with the G.A. of the U.'s help, he should not be found wanting in the worthy discharge of it, especially as he had been promised, and could confidently rely upon efficient assistance from the P.M.'s. He therefore had every reason to hope he should be enabled to make his year of rule advantageous to the lodge and the Craft in general. The following appointments were made, the W.M. in each case offering the usual and appropriate observations: Bros. Fred W. Woodall, S.W.; W. F. M. Turner, J.W.; D. J. Le Cronier, Treas.; Wm. Adams, Sec.; W. J. Ennis, S.D.; General T. C. Kelly, J.D.; F. Le Feuvre, I.G. The retiring W.M. presented to the lodge a splendid Master's jewel and collar, for which, on the proposition of the W.M. and the D.P.G.M., a grateful and hearty vote of thanks was passed, and ordered to be recorded in the minutes. After the ceremonial part of the proceedings had been concluded, the brethren, by the invitation of the W.M., adjourned to the refreshment room, where a banquet was provided. After the cloth was drawn, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and enthusiastically received, and the brethren dispersed, expressing themselves highly delighted by the truly Masonic, and social manner in which the whole business had been conducted.

ROYAL STANDARD LODGE (No. 1291).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 7th inst., at the Marquess Tavern, Canonbury, when there was a goodly muster of brethren to greet the new Master, Bro. Robert Shackell, P.M. 30, P.P.G.P. Hants. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M. proceeded in an able manner to pass Bros. Shearman and Hurrell, to the degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge then received the report of the officers committee respecting the presentation of a testimonial to Bro. Ballantyne for his valuable services rendered to the lodge during the past year, after which a sum of five guineas was voted from the lodge funds to head the list of subscriptions for that purpose. The lodge was then closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned for a light repast. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were excellently given by the W.M., and the evening was enlivened with some good singing by Bro. Watford, and others, and by some capital music by one of the visitors, Bro. Dore, assisted by the Organist of the lodge, Bro. Blackbee.

FAITH CHAPTER (No. 141).—An emergency convocation of this chapter was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, E.C., on Monday the 30th ult. Comp. Thos. Mortlock, the M.E.Z. presided. He was assisted by Comps. C. C. Taylor, H.; N. Gluckstein, J.; E. Gottheil, P.Z.; M. Bamberger, Treasurer; Gompertz, S.E.; Hogard, S.N.; John Constable, P.S.; John Ross, 1st A.; Bloomfield, D.C.; Hollands, W.S. Bros. Parkinson, Godhart, and Taylor, were admitted to the exalted degree with the usual ceremony, the working was excellent. Each officer without exception displayed abilities rarely seen in a Royal Arch Chapter. Those who are acquainted with the degree know the task is onerous, and great credit is certainly due to the companions for the pains they have taken to enable them to attain such perfection. The Faith Chapter may confidently look forward to a prosperous future, if the rest of its members will emulate the example of those in whose hands its guidance is now placed. After an ordinary but ample repast, the usual toasts were given. It happened to be the whim of the companions that each individual should reply on his own account, and the result was a succession of brief but humorous speeches. These were interspersed with songs by Comps. Mortlock, Henley, South, Constable and Ross. Thus passed a very pleasant evening, and the companions separated before ten o'clock Comps. Henley and Christian were admitted joining members. The only visitor present was Comp. R. A. Wright, P.Z., who expressed himself highly delighted with the proceedings, and the remarkable efficiency of the officers of so young a chapter.

IPSWICH.—St. Luke's Chapter.—The usual quarterly convocation of the members of this chapter was held at the Coach and Horses Hotel, Ipswich, on Wednesday the 25th March; present —Comps. J. Turner, H., as Z. (the First Principal Comp. Richmond, having died since the last meeting); Emra Holmes, J. acting H.; Dr. Mills, P.Z. of the Royal Sussex Chapter, as J.; S. B. King, P.Z., Scrib. E.; G. Abbott, Scrib. N.; Byford, Prin. Soj.; Henry Ward, S. Godball, C. Godball, and others. The chapter having been opened, and the usual business transacted, the accounts were audited, and Comp. Mills delivered up the sum held by him, as the representative of the deceased much respected Treasurer, Comp. J. Franks, whose recent death has been so much felt in Ipswich by the members of the mystic tie. This being the annual meeting for the election of officers, the following were nominated:—J. Turner, Z.; Emra Holmes, H.; Byford, J.; G. Abbott, Prin. Soj.; S. B. King, Scribe E.; Jobson, Scribe N. Comp. King took occasion to remark on the great loss the chapter had sustained through the lamented death of three of its oldest members since the last meeting. Comps. Richmond, First Principal; J. Franks, P.Z.; and J. Tracey, P.Z.; and Comp. Holmes moved that a letter of condolence, couched in suitable terms, should be addressed to the relatives of each of the companions on behalf of the brethren of this chapter, which was agreed to nem. con. Comp. Mills spoke in feeling terms of his fidus achates, Comp. Franks, whose constant friend and companion he had been for thirty years, and the members present expressed their deep sense of the regret at the melancholy changes which had taken place. Comp. Holmes moved that at next regular meeting of the chapter, when the Three Principals were to be installed, a banquet should be held, which was agreed to. The companions having shared the secrets, the chapter was closed, and the brethren partook of refreshment. The usual toasts were given, and a pleasant social gathering broke up at an early hour.

Mark Masonry.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 104).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday evening, at the head quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, Brunswick road, Camberwell New-road, when there were present:—Bros. Arthur Wolton, W.M.; Wm. Worrell, S.W.; C. Hamerton, P.M.; James Stevens, P.M.; Thomas Meggy, P.M., Treas.; F. Cozens, Organist; W. Wigginton, S.D.; E. Drewett, J.D.; N. J. F. Bassett, S.D.; and W. P. Collins, I.G.; G. W. Verry, W. Bell, jun., George Motion, J. K. Pitt; visitors, H. D. Martin, and H. Massey. No candidates for advancement made their appearance, and the lodge therefore went on with the other business. The first was the election of Bro. James Stevens, P.M., as an honorary member, he having on the last meeting of the lodge resigned his membership on account of the day of meeting of the Great City Lodge happening to be the same on which the Macdonald Lodge assembled. The brethren of the Macdonald feeling that the lodge was much indebted to Bro. Stevens, among others, for its high position in the order as a working lodge, considered that they could not afford to lose such a member, and Bro. Meggy placed a motion on the paper to elect Bro. Stevens an honorary member. On the motion coming on for discussion, of course in the absence of Bro. Stevens from the lodge, the brethren decided unanimously to elect him in accordance with the terms of Bro. Meggy's motion, and on Bro. Stevens's admission to the lodge the W.M. announced the result of the brethren's decision. Bro. Stevens in acknowledging the compliment said that the Macdonald Lodge would always be the first in his heart in connection with Mark Masonry, and in order to show his appreciation of the brethren's kindness he should consult the interests of their lodge on all occasions, in addition to which he should be present at its meetings as often as his other engagements would allow. Bro. Meggy also moved that members of the lodge leaving England for twelve months or residing ten miles beyond the place of the lodge's meeting should be eligible to be placed on the list of country members to pay only a guinea per annum. The motion was seconded by Bro. Hammerton, and carried unanimously. Another motion, proposed by Bro. Meggy, and seconded by Bro. Motion, that such members be disqualified during that time from taking office in the lodge, was also carried unanimously, and Bro. Stevens proposed Bro. F. Kent, W.M. of the Domatic Lodge, 177, and Bro. Worrell proposed Bro. W. Partridge, of the William Preston Lodge, 766, as candidates for advancement at next meeting. The W.M., informed the brethren of what had been done relative to a notice from the Macdonald Craft Lodge, 1216, which had been given to the Mark Lodge to remove from its present quarters. He said that the matter had been debated at an emergency meeting of Craft Lodge at which there was a very full attendance of members. When the permission to use the room and the furniture was given, it was thought that it would be beneficial to the lodge and the volunteer corps, but as many withdrawals and other circumstances had in the course of time occurred, it had been found that there were but few names now on the mark lodge book who were members of the corps. The Mark Lodge was, therefore, looked upon very much in the light of strangers and intruders. It therefore became necessary to look out for new quarters, for he was afraid they would not now be able to work harmoniously with the Craft Lodge. A notice of motion should, therefore, be placed on the paper for next meeting for removing the lodge. Bro. Worrell gave notice of motion for removing to the Cannon-street Hotel, where at present there was no Mark Lodge. As many Craft lodges met there, and among them the Great City Lodge, it might be of great service both to them and the Mark Lodge. Bro. Stevens said that by October there would be a suitable building (the Surrey Masonic Hall) ready within a few hundred yards of their present place of meeting; and as a director of the company he pledged himself to a very favourable consideration of this lodge's requirements. Ultimately Bro. Worrell gave notice of motion "That the Macdonald Mark Lodge be removed." The W.M. directed the Treasurer to send £5 to the Macdonald Craft Lodge for the use and repair of the furniture. The lodge was afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. In the course of the evening the usual toasts were proposed and drunk. Bro. Meggy responded for "Earl Percy, G.M.; the Earl of Limerick, D.G.M.; and the rest of the Grand Officers." Earl Percy was always at his post when his health permitted him, and the Earl of Limerick was no less an ardent supporter of the degree. The whole of the Grand Officers were anxious to do their best, and they did all they could to sustain and assist those who were in office. With regard to the members of Grand Lodge they were selected by the Grand Master for their ardour, and for their desire to make the Mark Degree assert itself. The W.M. next proposed the toast of "The Prov. Grand Master." Bro. Hammerton proposed "The W.M.," who, in reply, said that when he accepted the office, he promised to attend the meetings, and fulfil his part to the best of his ability. That ability was not very great, but his heart was thoroughly in his work, and it gave him great pleasure to see his officers support him so well on all occasions. This was the last occasion he should have the pleasure of presiding over them, but he hoped that for many years he should be able to attend. At a future time, he trusted to go through the offices again, and he would promise always to be faithful to his lodge. As a proof of his desire to do the work of W.M., he might inform them that he had come 120 miles that day to preside. After some other speeches had been delivered, the lodge was closed, and the benevolent fund, which had been collected in the course of the evening, was further increased by the initiation of the brethren present, into an amusing un-masonic body called "The Benevolent Society of Corks," of which Bro. Meggy was Captain, and Bro. Hammerton Lieutenant.

BRISTOL.—William De Irwin Conclave (No. 17).—The regular meeting of this conclave was held on Friday, March 13th, at seven o'clock p.m. Eminent Sir Kat. G. F. Tuckey, M.P. Sov., occupied the throne; and amongst those present were Sir Knts. William Hodges, V.E.; J. J. Hallam, S.G.; William Munro, J.G.; J. M. Hunt, H.P.; George Tonkin, Recorder; A. G. Williams, Treasurer; Henry Amor, Herald; Michele Ansaldo, Stand, Bear; Henry Wills Lane, Orator; Joseph Coles, Sentinel; W. A. Scott, M.P.S. No. 101; Captain G. S. Tricks, S.G. No. 101; William H. Bowden, Hon. Sov., No. 2 A. After the usual preliminary business Bros. Benham, P.M., Lodge 103; Collins, W.M., Lodge 1404; W. Richards, J.D., Lodge 68; Edward Ware, Lodge 610; Charles H. Plaister, Lodge 326; W. Thomas, Lodge 1363; Bevan, Lodge 973; and Knill, Lodge 610; were duly balloted for, and being declared unanimously elected, those in attendance were admitted and installed, according to the ritual of the Order. The working was most complete and satisfactory, and reflected the highest credit on every officer of the conclave. The M.P.S. then stated that it was his intention at an early date to open a sanctuary of K.H.S. and Commandery of St. John, and invited any Sir Knights, being Royal Arch Masons, who would like to join, to signify the same to the Recorder. Several present gave their names as candidates for these orders. There being no further business for consideration by the Sir Knights, the conclave was closed in perfect harmony.

CONSECRATION OF THE HOVA ECCLESIA LODGE, NO. 1466, AT BRIGHTON.

On Wednesday, 8th inst., at the Old Ship Hotel, the above named lodge, which is intended to be held at Cliftonville as soon as suitable provision is made, was opened and consecrated in due form. A large number of the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Sussex, were present, and took part in the ceremony.

The lodge having been opened in due form by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the petitioning brethren present, namely, Bros. German, C. J. Smith, S. Wing, E. Walker, and J. W. Stratford, were placed before the W.M., the petition to and charter from Grand Lodge was read, and a most impressive address was made by the Prov. G. Chaplain, the Rev. J. C. McCarogher. Bro. German was then formally invested as first Master of the new lodge by Bro. J. H. Scott, and appointed his officers as follows:—Bro. C. J. Smith, S.W.; Capt. Stratford, J.W.; Capt. Jennings, S.D.; McMinnie, J.D.; Wing, Treasurer; Storr, I.G.; T. Lane, Director of Ceremonies.

All business being ended, the lodge was closed, and the brethren proceeded to banquet. Mr. Robert Bacon provided in the elegant Assembly Rooms, one of those entertainments for which the Old Ship Hotel has for many years been proverbial. The bill of fare was admirable, the wines of the finest vintages, and the service all that could be desired. Bro. German, the newly installed W.M. of the lodge, was prevented from presiding, owing to the death that morning of his old and esteemed friend Dr. Bryce. In the absence of the W.M., the W. Prov. D.G.M., Bro. Furner, occupied the post of honour.

On the removal of the cloth, the D.P.G.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," to which due honour was rendered, Bro. Devin, P. Prov. G. Organist, leading, on the pianoforte, with the National Anthem. The Prov. G. Chaplain (the Rev. J. MacCarogher) said he had been suddenly called on, owing to the position occupied by their Prov. D.G.M. that day, to propose the next toast, that of "The M.W.G.M. the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, the W. the Dep. G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, and Officers of Grand Lodge, Past and Present." He desired to connect with the toast the name of their Prov. D.G.M., whose services were highly appreciated wherever he went. His health would be proposed, subsequently, in another form, therefore he would say no more on that occasion than simply commend the toast to their notice, coupled with the name of their most able Prov. D.G.M. of Sussex, Bro. Furner. Bro. Furner, Prov. D.G.M., briefly, but appropriately responded. Bro. W. W. Burrell, W.M. of the Ockenden Lodge, Cuckfield, proposed "The R.W. the Prov. G. Master, Lord Pelham, the W. the Dep. Prov. G. Master, Bro. E. J. Furner, and the Officers (Present and Past) of the Provincial Grand Lodge. He thanked the Prov. Grand Lodge Officers for their exertions, lately manifest, especially both at Cuckfield and Brighton, as well as manifest on all occasions when their services were required. Bro. W. R. Wood, (Prov. G.S.W.) responded. He was ever earnest in the service of Freemasonry, and it was with especial pleasure that he found that day a new lodge opened in "the old classic walls of the Old Ship." If the members of the Craft generally would only realise in practice as in profession the beautiful precepts inculcated in all their ceremonies, they would be living up to Masonry and promoting most thoroughly the principles of brotherly love, relief, and truth. Bro. Molyneux (P. Prov. J. Warden), also responded in a few brief, but very well timed remarks.

The Prov. D.G.M. then gave the "W.M., and Success to the New Lodge." In doing so he expressed his deep regret at the absence of their W.M. His absence they all regretted, appreciated the reasons, and sympathised deeply with him in the cause of his absence. He had every reason for believing that this would be a prosperous lodge, would be a credit to the officers, and would be a credit to the province of Sussex.

Bro. C. J. Smith (S.W. of the lodge) responded. Most unexpectedly he was called on to do this, owing to the absence, through the death of his friend, of their esteemed W.M. It was his desire, and that of his brother officers, to do their duty to the Craft, and act up honourably to the principles inculcated in the Book of Constitutions.

Bro. C. J. Smith again rose, and proposed the health of "The Consecrating Officer," whom and his admirable colleagues of the day, he desired to thank most sincerely for their services.

The W.D. Prov. Grand Master (Bro. Furner) most ably acknowledged the last toast.

The W. the Deputy Grand Master, being compelled to retire, then delegated the function of his office to Bro. J. H. Scott, Prov. G. Secretary.

Bro. Scott (acting W.M.), then proposed "The Visitors." He regretted that, owing to the absence of their W.M., he was called upon to propose this toast, Bro. German felt unequal to the duty of attending, owing to the death of on whom he (Bro. Scott) dearly esteemed, Bro. Bryce; although he had differed with him very much, he ever felt great pleasure in making up with him, believing him ever to be actual with the most warm, kindly, and genial sentiments towards all. Bro. Freeman responded regretting the absence of their excellent W.M. and the cause—the death of one whom they so highly esteemed. Bro. Fabian also responded.

Bro. Sabine proposed "The Masonic Benevolent Institution," and said he supposed he had been called upon to propose this toast on account of the great interest he had for many years taken in the success of the Masonic Boys' and Girls Schools. There were about 160 girls and 100 boys who were clothed, educated and trained in the battle of life. He had on eight different occasions acted as Steward at the different festivals, and he might safely total his exertion on their behalf at one thousand pounds. He mentioned this not with a view to his own glorification, but to show what a great and necessary individual member might be.

his overtime to this subject; therefore he hoped they would ever bear in mind that each one had, in the words of the poet,— “Sworn with generous gifts to care

For those in sorrow-stricken.
The brother on the darkened square,
The widow with dishevelled hair,
The orphan doomed, alas, to stray
Along life's cold and cheerless way;
Whose tears gush forth unbidden.
On holy book these vows we've taken,
And we will break them never,
But will observe them ever.”

Bro. Challen acknowledged the toast and exhorted the brethren to still further carry out the good example set them by Bro. Sabine. Bro. A. Creak then proposed “The Officers of the Lodge,” which was suitably acknowledged by the officers, after Bro. Challen had sung very prettily “Sweet Mary of the Vale.” Bro. C. J. Smith then made some practical observations as to the desirability of the erection of a Freemasons' Hall and a Freemasons' Club in Brighton. He could tell them of a gentleman who was prepared to advance £5,000 towards carrying out the project of a Masonic Hall. Bro. J. H. Scott would be happy to advise his colleagues as to the establishment of a Masonic Hall, whenever a feasible scheme was put forward. He was very pleased to tell them that Masonry was flourishing in the country, since the charter for this lodge was granted, No. 1466, 20 more charters had been granted, making the last lodge number 1486. (Applause). “The Tylers toast,” by Brother Hughes, brought the proceedings to a very happy termination.

CONSECRATION OF JOHN O'GAUNT LODGE, NO. 172, GAINSBOROUGH.

The consecration of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 26th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Gainsborough, when a goodly number of Mark Master Masons assembled to welcome V. W. Bro. Binckes, G. Sec. M.M.M. At two p.m. the lodge was opened, assisted by the following officers: Bros. Binckes, W.M.; Chas. Harrison, I.D., (P.M. Remigius, 117, Lincoln) as P.M.; G. Moore (117), S.W.; Hayward (117), W.; Cullen (117), M.O.; H. Watson W.M., I.D.; S.O.; J. H. Oldham (117), J.O.; F. Pearson (W.M. 117), S.D.; Motley (117), D. The following, amongst other brethren, were present: Bros. Hayes, Goodman, Roberts, Ansham, R. C. Carline (Registrar and S.W., 7), Trafford, Kirk (Star of the East Lodge, Gainsborough), Swanston (117).

The following brethren were then advanced in a solemn and impressive manner: Bros. W. B. Hanaly (W.M. Yarborough Lodge 422); Nixon (P.M. 422); Wm. E. Hartlett (P.M. 422); James Braithwaite (422). The ceremony of consecration was then conducted in a sublime manner by Bro. Binckes, who delivered a splendid oration to the brethren on the principles and history of Mark Masonry generally, after which he proceeded to install Thomas Hugh Oldman, K.T., Z. All Saints' Lodge 422, P.M. 422, &c., as first W.M. of John O'Gaunt Lodge, which was performed in the usual impressive manner, for which Bro. Binckes is known, after which the new W.M. designated the following as his officers: Bros. S.W.; George Horsham, J.W.; Motley, S.O.; Hayes, S.O.; Swanston, J.O.; Robin-Goodman, S.D.; Roberts, J.D.; Noxon, &c. and the new lodge having been thus duly installed, was closed by the new W.M. and his brethren. The brethren then adjourned to Bro. Binckes, at the White Hart Hotel to a most elegant banquet, and the usual toasts were responded to, under the presidency of Oldham, some eloquent speeches being delivered by Bro. Binckes, whose presence contributed much to the harmony and success which characterized the whole proceedings. We are informed that the prospects of the John O'Gaunt Lodge are most encouraging, there already several applicants for advancement must not omit to state that Bro. Mason (117), presided at the harmonium with great taste and skill.

CONSECRATION OF THE KEYSTONE LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS, No. 168, AT BRIGHTON.

The ceremony of consecrating this new lodge took place on Saturday, at the Old Ship Hotel, a warrant having been granted by the M.W. Grand Master, Earl Percy, M.P., dated September, 1873, the consecration having been unfortunately deferred in consequence of the recent illness of the Worshipful Master Designate, Bro. Sir John Cordy Burrows. The health of the worthy knight has happily been sufficiently restored to enable him to undertake the duties devolving upon that important position.

At half-past two, the consecrating officer, specially deputed to perform this interesting ceremony, R.W. Bro. F. Binckes, P.G.J.W., and Grand Secretary of this degree, attended by several officers of Grand Lodge, entered the lodge room, which was appropriately set out. Having taken the Master's chair, he appointed V.W. J.M. Cunningham, P.M. 75, P.G.J.O. to the Senior Warden's pedestal; W. Bro. Wm. Hudson, P.M. 75, P.G.A.D.C., to the Junior Warden's pedestal; W. Bro. Thos. J. Sabine, P.M. 22, W.M. 78, P.G.A.D.C., as Director of Ceremonies; Bro. Ade, J.W. 164, was deputed to act as Chaplain; and Bro. Chas. J. Smith, 164, officiated as Secretary.

The Consecrating Officer then addressed the assembled brethren on the nature of the ceremony about to be performed. The Director of the Ceremonies next arranged the petitioning brethren, to the number of 12, six on each side of the lodge room, when Bro. Binckes requested to know the grounds on which the petition had been made? W. Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.M. 22, W.M. 75, and P.G.A.D.C., stated that the prosperity of Mark Masonry was evidenced by the establishment of a large number of new lodges in the past year, of those, notably in Sussex, the very successful new lodge at Hastings, under the auspices of Bros. Dr. Trollope, Kirkland, and Wellard; and of the lodge at Hayward's Heath, under the auspices of Bros. Wm. Hudson, Pearson, and Ade, together with the generally expressed wish that Sussex should be formed into a Province of Mark Masonry, thereby following the example set by the counties of Kent on the East, Hampshire on the West, and Surrey on the North, all of which have Provincial Grand Mark Lodges, and in addition to the necessity which has for a long time past been felt for placing the Sussex Mark Lodges under the protection of a Provincial Grand Lodge. To this end after frequent interviews between the local leaders of this degree it was determined to seek the assistance of Bro. Sir John Cordy Burrows, who had very kindly consented to be nominated as the first Provincial Grand Master. A second reason may be adduced that the Royal Sussex Lodge, No. 75, had between 40 and 50 subscribing members on its roll, among whom were many Past Masters in the Craft anxious to become P.M.'s of the “Mark.” These were the reasons which prevailed towards the establishment of the Keystone Lodge.

The Consecrating Officer, than whom few men are better acquainted with the ancient and modern history of the Mark Degree, then delivered an address, of which the following is an outline. After a brief introduction, and speaking of the rise and progress of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, &c., he entered into a consideration of the origin and antiquity of the Masonic system generally, and the position of the Mark Degree in connection therewith. Though not forming a part of what is called the “recognised system of English Freemasonry,” its antiquity and authenticity of a Craft degree could be proved as clearly as those of any other degree. Its practice could be traced back to the 16th century, and its traditions have come down from a date antecedent to that claimed by some as the origin of English Masonry, viz: 1717. Differing widely as do the opinions of learned writers on, and students of Freemasonry, as to its source and antiquity, the arguments in favour of the one view or the other are not one wit more strong than those adduced with reference to the Mark Degree, which—without attempting to decide the question of the “operative” or “speculative” origin of Masonry generally—most certainly combines the operative and speculative more fully than does any other known degree. Ignored by the supreme jurisdiction in England, the Mark Degree is regarded as essential in Scotland, where two supreme bodies claim power to rule over it, the same in Ireland, and also in America; while in France the degree, or one similar to it, is incorporated in the system as there practised. Its principles are as high, its teachings as sound as those inculcated in any degree. It maintains the doctrine of universality, claimed as the one great charm of Craft Masonry—knowing no distinction of creed, but steadfastly insisting on devotion to one Almighty Ruler. Trace its existence in the deeply imbedded foundations—recently brought to light—of the Temple at Jerusalem, on the stones of ruined abbeys and splendid cathedrals, whether in this country or on the continent, and he would inquire what surer basis was there for the support of any degree under any system of Freemasonry than can be adduced in favour of this degree? Let the question be treated in a fair, candid, and dispassionate spirit—free from bias or prejudice—and the Mark Masons need fear no scrutiny, nor shrink from no investigation. His own conclusion was—having seen the working of the degree in various parts of the country—having had the benefit of the opinions, as well as the result of the researches of others, and bearing in mind the comparatively modern introduction of what is known as the “Third Degree,” that this is the real old “Chair-Master's Degree,” that the Mark Master was advanced to that position to enable him to preside over a lodge of Operative Masons, consisting of entered Apprentices and Fellow Crafts, to which two grades the lodges of old were confined. Do not be dismayed by the application of the terms “fancy” or “spurious” to this degree. Believe that to-day we are not adding to our structure a mere “ornament,” but that we are affording additional means for the promotion of brotherly love, relief, and truth, the great objects and sublime principles on which this degree is founded, claiming, therefore, as it does, an importance and a usefulness not to be surpassed by any other branch of our ancient and honourable institution.

The acting Secretary (Bro C. J. Smith), was then called upon to read the warrant or charter of constitution, which was done at length. The Consecrating Officer next inquired if the brethren approved of the principal officers designate, viz:—Worshipful Master, Bro. Sir John Cordy Burrows, J.P., P.M. 811, P.P.G.W. Sussex; Senior Warden, Bro. W. R. Wood, P.M. 63, 315, 811, P.G. Steward, P.G.S.W., Sussex; Junior Warden, Bro. John Nathan Stoner, P.M. 56. Three Past Masters carried the silver vessels containing the corn, wine, and oil. Bro. Cunningham strewed the lodge with corn as an emblem of plenty, and to mark the wish of all for its future prosperity. Bro. Hudson sprinkled the lodge with wine as an emblem of joy, to mark the desire to perpetuate the Masonic virtues, the researches into which are extended by advancement into this universal degree. Bro. Sabine dropped oil upon the lodge as an emblem of peace, and to mark the hope of all in this degree for its peaceful career.

The lodge was then dedicated and constituted for the purposes of Mark Masonry, and its members empowered to advance into the privileges of this honourable and ancient degree duly qualified Craft Masons.

The Worshipful Master Designate, Bro. Sir J. Cordy Burrows, was next installed, in the presence of a Board of Installed Masters, comprising Bros. Binckes, Cunningham, Sabine, Lockyer, Trollope, Cook, Hudson, Robinson, &c. The brethren having been re-admitted, the Master proceeded to nominate and invest his officers; after which Bro. Cook, P.M., delivered in an admirable manner the addresses to the Master, Wardens, Overseers, and brethren, which were received with Masonic applause. Bro. Cunningham, by special request, then worked the ceremony of advancement. Bro. Sabine was elected Treasurer, and Bro. Thomas Hughes, Tyler. We may here state that Bro. Charles J. Smith, of 36, Albany Villas, Cliftonville, is the Secretary for the ensuing year, to whom applications should be made by Master Masons (Craft) desirous of entering this lodge. A Committee of General Purposes was elected, and on motion duly made, the Consecrating Officer was unanimously elected an honorary member.

The installation banquet took place at the Old Ship Hotel, a bountiful and well prepared repast being served in an admirable manner by Bro. Bacon, the proprietor.

Bro. Sir J. Cordy Burrows, W.M., presided, and after the usual loyal and patriotic toasts had been honoured in a truly Masonic manner, Bro. Binckes, P.G.J.W., G.M.S., proposed "Success to the Keystone Lodge of Mark Masons," coupling with it the health of its W.M., Bro. Sir Cordy Burrows. In the course of a long and eloquent speech, he alluded, amidst cheers, to the benevolence of the Order in supporting charitable institutions. There was, he observed, the Boys' Institution, supported entirely by Freemasons, in which 150 boys were receiving a first-class education, the admirable system and complete nature of the instruction given having again and again called forth the warmest commendations of Inspectors and Examiners. In the Girls' Institution, an education, similar to that given to the boys, was provided for 150 girls, both boys and girls being sent forth into the world well qualified to fulfil any position to which they might be called, and suitable situations being found for them. Then, too, they had their Masonic Benevolent Institution, and a Home for the Widows of Masons, where old men and old ladies of 60 had their annuities, and where the aged and decayed of both sexes lived, comparatively speaking, "in clover," after having sustained the heat and burden of the day. As an example of the generosity of the members of the Order, he mentioned that at the last anniversary of the Boys' Institution, under the presidency of the Marquess of Ripon, no less a sum than £7,000 had been subscribed, and this, he said, was much to the honour of the great and important principles of Masonry (applause). People were fond of describing the members of the Order, from the frequent banquets which they held, as "knife-and-fork Masons;" but they would do well to recollect, before casting such a stigma upon them, that a proportion of the subscription of every man who sat down to his dinner went to support the numerous, the noble, and the benevolent and charitable institutions connected with Masonry (hear, hear, and applause). Alluding next to their W.M., Sir Cordy Burrows, the speaker descanted with much pathos upon the occasion when Sir Cordy had received the girls and the boys of the Masonic Institutions, and had given them a collation at his own expense. On that occasion the Rev. Dr. Griffith, not then being a Mason, had said that the Masons were practically carrying out the doctrines which the clergy preached, and so impressed was he with the good that the Order was achieving that he immediately joined it, and not he alone, but others, with tears in their eyes, gave testimony to the worth and influence of Masonic institutions. With the utmost pleasure, he begged to give them "Success to the Keystone Lodge of Mark Master Masons," and the health of its W.M., Sir Cordy Burrows.

The toast having been received, and drunk with all due and customary honours,

Bro. Sir J. Cordy Burrows, the Worshipful Master of the Lodge, in acknowledging the toast, made some pertinent remarks in regard to Freemasonry, and respecting the motto of the Order—"Friendship, Love, and Truth." They were, he said, the principle which every man, whether a Mason or not, should endeavour to carry out in his daily avocations. Every man's conduct should be animated by love to all creation, man and beast; not even a worm should be unnecessarily trod upon; and truth should be every one's great and abiding principle and aim. For years, throughout his whole career, he had endeavoured to carry out the great principle of love and friendship to all men, and he at all times and in all places tried to inculcate and exemplify the great good and need of truthfulness in all the various relations and avocations of life. Love for mankind, and for all animated creatures, was a great and glorious principle, and if they only carried it out to the fullest extent, they would not unnecessarily or wantonly inflict pain upon any living creature. It was likewise their duty as Masons to make both their great aim and object. He thanked them for drinking his health.

Bro. E. Lewis, 75, Mark Lodge (publisher of the Brighton and Hove Daily Mail), then proposed "Success to the Sister Mark Lodges, Royal Sussex, No. 75; Southdown, No. 164; East Sussex, No. 166, and prosperity to the Mark Degree throughout the country." In doing so he alluded in flattering terms to the perseverance and energy with which Bro. Sabine had maintained the position of the Mark degree in Sussex, also to the faith which he had created in the minds of his brother Mark Masons by the example he had set of patience and hope. In conclusion he called upon Bro. Sabine, as the W.M. of the Senior Lodge in the province, to respond to the toast.

Bro. Sabine, on rising, was received with applause, which having subsided, he said: Since I was first advanced into Mark Masonry, I have taken a deep interest in its welfare, and in its spread, contending as I have always done, that a Mason's experience is incomplete without the Royal Arch and Mark degrees being conferred upon him. In March, 1865, the warrant for the first lodge ever held in Sussex was granted, so few were the Mark Masons at that time it was with difficulty that three or four who had taken the degree in other places could be found to sign the petition of these few; he, the speaker, was one, and since the day, May 13th, 1865, when the Royal Sussex Lodge was consecrated until the present time, he had taken a deep and permanent interest in the success of the degree. These efforts continued for many years, almost single-handed, had been materially aided and assisted by several other Mark Masons, until he was gratified to announce that a petition was in course of signature, asking the R.W. Grand Master to constitute the four lodges into a province, and nominating the newly-installed W.M., Bro. Sir John Cordy Burrows, as the first M.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master Mason. To this petition there were attached between 80 and 90 names of men of influence and position residing in various parts of the county of Sussex. In the early autumn he trusted to see a large and influential gathering of Mark Masons from all parts of the South of England, to assist at the dedication of the Provincial Mark Lodge of Sussex. I thank you for your good wishes, for your assistance, and for the sympathy I have ever received from you, and trust that our united efforts may be directed to maintain and uphold pure and unsullied the ancient and universal degree of the Mark, from the unwise attacks which from time to time have been made against it by certain local Masons, who are, however, powerless to prevent its spread among the true hearted and just Craft Masons. A year ago only it was reported that the Mark degree would be crushed out, and the only lodge closed. What has been the result of this threat? The Mark Masons have formed themselves into a close and compact body, and during the last few months, three new lodges have been opened, and a Provincial Grand Lodge, not only talked about, but the petition for its charter almost completed. These have been the results, in which I am satisfied to say I have had my share of the work, and you, with many who are unavoidably absent (looking round the table) have given me much valuable assistance.

Bro. W. R. Wood, P.M. 63, 135, 811, P.G. Steward, P.G.S.W. Sussex, in responding to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge," which had been proposed by the W.M., expressed his great desire to carry out to the utmost of his power and ability all the principles which Masonry inculcated. In showing forth his love for his fellow men, he should do all in his power to assist those who were less fortunate in life than himself; he always endeavoured to do his utmost to assist and carry out the great principle of truth. Masonry and Masonic institutions were progressive and progressing, and as an instance of this he alluded to the fact that some years ago there were only two lodges of Masons in Brighton, whilst at the present time there were four, and it was anticipated that another would be formed in the course of a few days.

The principles of Masons were grand, glorious and true ones, and they ought not to keep their exclusive; he believed that Masonry was one of the great means by which society would progress and improve (applause). He was sincerely grateful, and heartily thanked them for the kind manner in which they had drank the health of the officers.

Bro. S. R. Ade, J.W. 75, proposed "Success to all the Masonic Institutions," commenting in appropriate terms on the fact that the various secretaries have during the past two years done so much to raise them in the estimation of the Masonic public. They were a credit to those members of the Masonic circle who contribute something from their means towards their support. He was happy to say that the Royal Sussex Mark Lodge, 75, of which lodge he was the J.W., had, at the suggestion of Bro. Sabine, qualified the W. Master's chair with a Life Governorship for the Boys' and Girls', and shortly he hoped this would be the case for the Benevolent Institution.

Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Boys' School, replied, and the evening closed with mutual expressions of satisfaction at the position of the Mark Degree in Sussex.

Masonic Tidings.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Belgrave Lodge of Instruction on Friday, April 24th, 1874, at "The Coach and Horses," Strand, by Bro. C. G. Dille, P.M. 1155, W.M. 147, assisted by fifteen members of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction. Lodge opened at seven o'clock precisely.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction on Wednesday, April 22nd, at the "White Hart Tavern," Cannon-street, E.C., by Bro. F. Adams, P.G.P., W.M. Lodge will be opened at 6.30 p.m. Brethren are earnestly solicited to support our veteran brother upon this occasion, we believe the only octogenarian in the Craft.

A weekly newspaper, in English and French entitled The Eastern Echo, (L'Echo D'Orient), is announced, designed to deal especially with questions of the East, and particularly of the Levant. It will be published in London. The first number will appear on the 25th April next. It will be conducted by Bro. Edward W. John Fairman.

STAR LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 1275) —The fifteen sections will be worked in this lodge, on Saturday, April 25th, 1874, at the Marquis of Granby, New Cross-road, by Bro. John Shaw, J.W. 79. Lodge opened at 6.30 precisely.

We are pleased to be able to record that the sum of £30 1s. 6d., the profits of a concert given by the members of St. John Lodge, No. 175, at Greenock, has been handed over to the Treasurer of the Infirmary.

The Reformed Presbyterian Church in Strouness, which was closed in consequence of the transfer of the minister, has been sold to the Freemasons.

The foxhound, the pointer, the retriever, the greyhound, and the pet spaniel or terrier, however much they may differ in all other qualities are alike in this, that they require careful feeding to be kept in good condition. The great difficulty experienced by all trainers and breeders is to find a food that shall always be alike, that it may be graduated according to the weather, and the work a dog is doing. This desideratum is secured, so far as we know, only by the very excellent biscuits manufactured by the Navy firms of Harrison and Harbridge, of Liverpool, which being made of the best English flour and the best beef, can always be depended upon, and we have invariably found that wherever these biscuits are used, the dogs remain constantly in good condition, instead of being "burnt" from day to day.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

On Wednesday, 8th inst., the annual convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Freemasons of West Lancashire was held in the New Masonic Rooms, King-street, Wigan; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Most Excellent Provincial Grand Superintendent, presiding. Amongst those present were the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. Grand Z.; Comp. Cornelius Sherlock, P.G.H.; Comp. H. W. Johnston, P.G.J.; Comp. H. S. Alpass, P.G.S.E.; Comp. D. W. Finney, First P.G. Assistant S.; Comp. James Hamer, P.G. Treasurer; Comp. Thomas Wylie; P.G. Reg.; Comp. Landless, P.G. Herald; Comps. T. Dodgson, Z. 995; T. Armstrong, P.P.G. Soj.; E. Pearson, H. 995; E. Meugens, P.Z. 32; W. Doyle, H. 249; T. Clark, P.Z. 673; J. K. Goepel, P.Z. 86; J. Case, P.Z. 995; J. Cossler, J. 703; W. Mossop, P.Z. 148; C. Fryer, P.Z. 133; S. Rowbottom, P.P.G.S.N.; W. C. Deeley, P.Z. 180; E. Kyle, J. 220; D. Jones, P.Z. 216; J. Sooth, P.Z. 220; John Pemberton, P.Z. 1094; J. C. Lunt, Z. 1086; Thomas Chesworth, P.Z. 1036; George Turner, P.Z. 823; P. M. Larson, P.Z. 220; Jos. Skeaf, P.G. Org., H. 216; J. Gaskell, P.Z. 178; Robt. Wylie, P.P.G.D. of C.; Rev. Philip Hains; J. T. Callow, H. 673; Edward Harbord, P.G. Standard Bearer, Cheshire; W. Archer, P.Z. 1886; J. Hotten, P.Z. 220; J. Lamb, P.Z. 178; J. Lunt, Z. 241; A. C. Mott, P.G.S.N.; W. Leader, 178.

The Prov. Grand Chapter having been opened in ancient and solemn form, the minutes of the last convocation at Preston were read by E. Comp. Alpass, P.G.S.E., and unanimously confirmed.

E. Comp. Hamer, P.G. Treas., presented the accounts for the year, which showed a balance in hand of £46 14s. 2d., against £40 8s. 11d. last year. The accounts had been duly audited by Comps. G. Turner, Z. 86; J. M'Kune, Z. 216; and J. Lunt, Z. 1086; and were unanimously approved, on the motion of Comp. A. C. Mott, seconded by Comp. G. Turner.

On the motion of Comp. Robert Wylie, seconded by Comp. A. C. Mott, Comp. Hamer was cordially re-elected Treasurer; and Comp. Hamer, in acknowledging the compliment, said that, although he had intended resigning the office this year, still he would endeavour for one year more to justify the confidence that had been reposed in him.

Comp. Peter Ball was unanimously re-elected G. Janitor for the ensuing year.

The following officers were appointed, and installed by the Most Excellent Superintendent, P.G.—Comp. Thomas Wylie, H.; E. Meugens, H. S. Alpass, S.E.; Kellet Smith, S.N.; C. Deeley, P.S.; Goepel, 1st Assistant S.; Landless, 2nd Assistant S.; Charles Hill, G.; Mossop, P.G.Sd.B.; Comp. Fryer, 1. Std.B.; T. Dodgson, D. of C.; J. Skeaf, G.; — Simpson, Std.

The M.E.P.G. Superintendent said, having appointed his officers for the ensuing year, he wished to say a few words to the companions, and be thanked for their hearty support on occasion. It was extremely gratifying to learn that Royal Arch Freemasonry was pressing in the province, and exerting itself to note the great ends which the noble science intended to advance. It had been suggested after the convocation of the Prov. Grand Chapter, a Provisional Grand Lodge should be with a view to opening in Masonic form elegant building in which they were then assembled, but it was found that there was no object for and no ceremony proper to such occasion, and it was hardly right to create such precedent. Therefore the suggestion was declined. At the same time, he could not resist the giving a few words expressive of thanks to P. Leader, the owner of the spacious building in which they met that day, for the energy which he had brought the construction of the building to a conclusion, and of congratulation on the success with which the design had been carried out. The room in which they were assembled would be as handsome a room as any division, and they must all rejoice to see

Freemasonry holding such a firm place in the hearts of Masons as to induce them to erect such a building, and to provide so handsome, commodious, and convenient a place of meeting as that. His hope was that such an excellent example as had been set in Wigan might be followed throughout this great province, and that they might be truly able to say no province could excel West Lancashire for its thorough and hearty exemplification of the great principles of Freemasonry—brotherly love, relief, and truth.

Comp. T. Wylie, P.G.H., gave notice that at the next convocation, he should move that ten per cent. of the annual income of the Provincial Grand Chapter be set apart as a fund for the support of the Masonic Charities.

On the motion of Comp. Robert Wylie, seconded by Comp. T. Armstrong, the votes of the province were appropriated, together with £5, towards securing the election of an old companion to the benefits of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons.

After the transaction of some formal business the P.G. Chapter was closed in ancient and solemn form, after which the companions banqueted together, and separated shortly after seven o'clock.

EARLY GRAND ENCAMPMENT OF SCOTLAND.

The Grand Council of the Early Grand Encampment of Scotland, held their usual quarterly meeting in the Sun Hotel, Kilmarnock, on Saturday, the 4th inst., Sir Knight Pollock, of Newmilns, Grand Commander of the Order, presiding.

The Grand Officers being placed at their respective posts, the encampment was opened in ancient form. The Grand Registrar having read the minutes of last meeting, which being approved of, were endorsed by the council in their minute book. Deputations of three Sir Knights from each of the various Early Grand Encampments attended, with the exception of Muirkirk, whose absence was explained by the significant fact that they had made application to the Chapter General of Scotland, under whose banner they desired to be enrolled; the position Muirkirk has thus taken in alienating themselves from the body they have been connected with for nearly a century, elicited some warm remarks, but as the old adage says—"The losing of one is the gaining of two," has again proved true. A dormant charter was re-granted, and a deputation attended from Girvan, praying for a charter of erection in that place, their application to lie over till next meeting. It is to be hoped that the Muirkirk body will reconsider their position, seeing as yet they have not accepted the very honourable proposals of the Supreme Chapter.

Obituary.

BRO. ROBERT BROWN.

We have to record the demise of an old member of the Craft, Bro. Robert Brown, who passed away at the house of his son-in-law, Fakenham, Norfolk. Bro. Brown was a native of the City of Carlisle, we believe, and for above twenty years was superintendent of police at Cocker-mouth, from which public office he retired on a pension in the year 1861. Bro. Brown spent a few years of his early life in France, and while there was initiated into Masonry. He was one of the original seven that founded Skiddaw Lodge, Cocker-mouth, 1002, in the spring of 1864, and he was a subscribing member till the date of his death. Bro. Brown was more than once offered a Warden's chair in Skiddaw Lodge, but his modesty, and strictly undemonstrative disposition, always led him to decline anything higher than I.G., which office he was the first to hold in connection with the lodge just referred to. Bro. Brown died on the 2nd inst., after a short but severe illness, at the ripe age of 77, and his remains were removed to Cocker-mouth for interment on Saturday last. The members of Skiddaw Lodge were not apprised of the arrangements for the funeral in time, otherwise arrangements would have been made for attending in full strength.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

THE JESUITS.

I think it well to subjoin the following note from the Times of the 8th, on Captain Cuttle's famous principle, "when found make a note of it."

Although the "Jesuit Question" is not altogether cognate to Masonic researches, yet once upon a time, some credulous persons believed the Jesuits were Freemasons, and that the Freemasons were Jesuits. See Bonneville's Jesuites chasses de la Maconnerie. And though to most, probably the "Jesuiten Garten," or some of Wurtzburgh's will be far more agreeable than all "die Lehren der Jesuiten," yet the note below has its interest for us, as in truth all has which refers to an Order, famous or infamous in the world's history, as you like to look at it, but I believe consistent in their endeavours to advance the study of science and the spread of education. Certainly they were in days gone by, whatever they may be in the present day.

With this little preface I commend the note to the notice of my brother Masonic students.

I have thought it best to put it forward at this time, especially when the "popularis aura" is blowing very adversely to the order everywhere. "In a work lately published in Berlin (Die Lehren der Jesuiten") it is said that in 1750 the Jesuits had 669 Colleges, 24 houses for professi, 61 for probationers, 176 seminaries, &c., 335 residences, and 273 missions, in which there 22,589 members, among whom 11,293 priests lived. In 1872 there were 8,951 members. The laws of the Order are found in the "Examen Generale et Constitutiones cum Declarationibus," which was sketched out in part by Loyola, and completed by Lainez and Salmeron, but was not intended for any till they had actually taken the vow. Up till then they were provided with no more than the "Summarium Constitutionum et Reglæ." These and other such works were kept secret for a long time; but at length one and another came into notice, till at length an Antwerp bookseller, Johann Meursius, published in 1702, with the consent of the superior, a collection of the most important documents connected with the society, in two quarto volumes, and under the title "Corpus Institutionem Societatis Jesu." In 1757, at the command of the 18th General Congregation, a more complete work was published, under the title of "Institutio Societatis Jesu, auctoritate Congregationis Generalis xviii. meliorem in ordinem digestum auctum et recusum." A newer edition of this appeared at Avignon in 1827-1838 in seven volumes, "Die Lehren der Jesuiten" gives the Latin on one side, and a German translation on the other, and consists of 100 pages, with notes, some of which are very interesting. A MASONIC STUDENT.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

I have read in The Freemason for Feb. 28th, 1874, a note from Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, in which he alludes to the Rosicrucian work entitled "Clypeum Veritatis," as one which he had not seen, and he makes enquiry concerning it. This work was written by Gotthardus Arthusius, co-rector of the Frankfort Gymnasium, and published in 1618 (not 1619), under the pseudonym of Irenæus Agnostus. Like Bro. Woodford, I have never seen the "Clypeum Veritatis," but in the "Frater non Frater," by the same author, (1619) which is in my library, he refers to it in the expression "in unser clypeo." The book is described by Kloss (Bibliog.), No. 2523. ALBERT G. MACKAY, M.D.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Diseases and casualties incidental to youth may be safely treated by the use of these excellent medicaments, according to the printed directions folded round each box and pot. Nor is this Ointment alone applicable to external ailments; conjointly with the Pills it exercises the most salutary influence in checking inflammations situated in the interior of the body. When rubbed upon the back and chest, it gives the most sensible relief in asthma, bronchitis, pleurisy, and threatening consumption. Holloway's remedies are especially serviceable in liver and stomach complaints, for the cure of bad legs, and all sorts of wounds, sores, and likewise scrofula, and scorbatic affections, this Ointment produces a cooling and soothing feeling most acceptable to the sufferer.—ADVT.

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1874.

THE ASSEMBLY AT YORK.

The report of the last great Masonic assembly at York has a deep interest for every English Freemason!

For not only does the name of Zetland carry us back to some of the brightest annals of our English Order, but the associations which York preserves for all student Masons, and for our world-wide Craft, are alike most precious and remarkable.

With York is bound up very clearly, for instance, the legendary records of our Order, the histories and constitution of the Craft guilds, and at any rate for 350 years, York has been designated by name as the "Alma Mater" of English Freemasonry. Inferential evidence of a very clear and striking kind might lead us not unwarrantably to trace this connection to the end of the fourteenth century, at any rate, as the "syte" of the oldest Masonic chronicles is undoubtedly York.

With York is also bound up the famous legend of Athelstan, and even of an earlier Edwin, and there seems no possible a priori reason why the great Assembly of Athelstan's time may not have taken place, as our records tell us it did, at York. That assembly was in all probability simply the annual assembly of the Craft guild of Masons, to legislate for the general and special interests of the sodality. Thanks to the Surtees society and Canon Raine, we have fabric rolls of York Minster, and regulations of the chapter from 1360, shewing, that, the Freemasons were a recognised body, and besides their customary suit and service to the chapter to which they were bound by an oath of obligation, had evidently certain franchises and customs, and privileges of their own.

Indeed, beneath the cold and technical terms of a Monastic fabric roll, its simple statements, and its terse account of things and persons, the educated Freemason can clearly discern that the "Le loge Latomorum," was governed by its own "Magister" and "gardiani" and "Seniores" pretty much as at the present day.

What the real "status" of the Freemason's lodge at York Minster in the 14th century was, as regards ourselves, it is not easy now to lay down or decide; but if the Masonic token in Mr. Brown's possession, still, we believe, at York, be a relic of the old Masonic guilds, that connection was far closer than some of us might be willing to believe.

The tradition of our order is, however, perfectly uniform as to the connection with York, and we see no reason to discredit it, or reject it.

Drake, the learned historian, when he aided in reviving the Grand Lodge at York, in the last century, clearly saw no difficulty in this claim of our English Freemasonry, and we owe to him the true version, undoubtedly, of the Edwin legend.

If doubts in later times have been cast on the tradition and on the so-called York Constitution such doubts seem to resolve themselves into fair historical criticism on the alleged documents, and evidences themselves, and by no means, as it appears to us, affect the probability or truth of the original legend, or of the connection of York, with Freemasonry.

Since the days of Athelstan no more distinguished Assembly of York Masons ever was gathered together, than that which greeted our Grand Master and Bro. Lord Zetland, the new Provincial Grand Master, on Thursday last.

We congratulate the members of the York Lodge on the success which has attended their zealous efforts to do honour to their Masonic rulers and brethren, and greatly to be commended is the friendly concurrence of the municipal authorities, and the sympathetic support of the excellent Dean, and the Clergy of the Cathedral body.

The sermon preached by our Bro. Kemp was a most eloquent one, and truly befitting the occasion, and we rejoice to think that like the "good Samaritan" of old, the members of our brotherhood sought to pour the wine and oil of love and relief, into the open wounds of common humanity.

proceedings reflect the great credit on those concerned in them. proceedings which cannot fail to have produced a very favorable impression, and to have raised our anti-brotherhood in the good opinion of the loyal citizens of the metropolitan city. Indeed quite takes us back to olden days, to find classes thus combining to promote the assembly of York Masons, and pleasant it is for students of our archæology and all lovers of our Craft, to find history thus repeating itself as the centuries leave us in turn, in our annals, and labours, and gatherings and assemblies of our time-honoured, but we will a beneficent Brotherhood.

The collection at the end of the service amounted to a little over £48.

WEEKLY SUMMARY.

Her Majesty is still at Osborne.

The Prince and Princess of Wales spent 1 week at Sandringham the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh remained at Buckingham Palace.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, the Hereditary Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and the Maharajah Dhuleep Sing, left Sandringham on Wednesday morning, April 8th, and proceeded to Ely for the purpose of inspecting the fine cathedral. The Royal party afterwards returned to Sandringham House.

The twenty-first birthday of Prince Leopold George Duncan Albert, youngest son of the Queen, was celebrated at Windsor yesterday with the customary honours paid to members of the Royal Family.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, not, after all, go to Sandringham with the Prince and Princess of Wales, but stayed their Easter in London. On Sunday the Duke and Duchess were at the organ performance at the All Hall. The ball to be given by the Lord Mar to the Duke and Duchess has been fixed for 29th inst. The Mansion House will be transformed for the occasion, being splendidly decorated and illuminated like the Imperial Palace at St. Petersburg on the night of the Duke and Duchess's marriage. The Royal party have a reception, retiring, and supper reserved for them. Between 800 and 1000 persons are invited. The Duke and Duchess going to pay Ireland a visit in August, & they will stay in Dublin with the Duke of Cornwall.

The Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne took possession last week of their home at Dornden, near Tunbridge Wells. Good Friday the Marquis and Marchioness went to the service at St. Paul's, Rusthall, next day the Duke of Argyll arrived on a Sunday the Princess, with her husband the Duke, went to Langton Church, and on Tuesday the Marquis and several of his wife drove to Tunbridge Wells to see some of sports.

Windsor Castle is fully occupied in preparation for the Czar's coming visit, and the State Apartments are closed for the present, in order to get ready for his Majesty. The Emperor occupies the State Apartments overlooking the north terrace—almost identical with the habited by the ex-Emperor and Empress French on their visit to Windsor in 1854. include the Vandyke Room, or old ball the Lucharelli Room, or Queen's State D Room, the Queen's Closet, the King's and the Council Chamber. The suite lodged in the Audience and Presence Chamber as well as part of the Round Tower. The his brother, the Grand Duke Constantin his third son, the Grand Duke Alexis, expected at Berlin on the 2nd inst.

There is little other news at home. The session of Parliament has recommenced with week, but owing to the time we go to press we cannot give a precis of the Budget until next week.

Dr. Kenealey has been excluded from the Bar Mess on the Oxford Circuit, but "en revanche" has edited a new paper called The Englishman, what the Times terms "noble but monotonous, and which seems so far to be entirely to the honour and glory of Dr. Kenealey himself."

The Corporation of the City of London propose to invite the Czar Alexander of Russia, to a great festal reception, when here, a guest of Her Majesty the Queen.

Sir John Karslake, in consequence of ill-health, has resigned the office of Attorney-General, and has been succeeded by Sir Richard Baggallay.

The office of Solicitor-General has been offered to Mr. Huddleston, Q.C.

Abroad the news is not so far important.

The German Parliament have levied 4,000,000 men for seven years, and Prince Bismarck is recovering.

Marshal Serrano has made proposals to Don Carlos, which have been, Baron Reuter says, definitely rejected, and so we shall see then what we shall see.

We regret to say that the Famine in Bengal, is not decreasing, nearly £75,000 have been already collected by the Mansion House Fund.

We have to announce the deaths of the Marquis of Clanricarde, of the Duchess Dowager of Leeds, of the Baroness Dumfermline, of the Lady Colridge, of Col Peter Drummond, Bengal army, of Col. George Harold, half pay of the 42 and 92nd Highlanders and of Sir Henry Oglander.

LONDON AND HOME NEWS.

The Earl of Guildford is about to marry Georgiana, sister to Sir George Chetwynd.

The International Exhibition of 1874 was opened on Easter Monday, but the occasion was marked by no formal ceremony. The number of visitors during the day, however, reached 14,525. Several departments are as yet incomplete, including the Indian and French Courts; and it is announced that the exhibition of wines, which will form a most important part of this year's programme, cannot commence before the 1st of May.

On Wednesday, the 6th, there was much festivity at Worcester in honour of the completion of the restoration of the Cathedral, which has been in the hands of the architects and decorators for the last twenty years, the work costing £100,000. Two services were held in the sacred building, each attended by about 500 clergy, who filled the choir, while the nave, transepts, and aisles were crowded with the select of the laity admitted by ticket. The Bishop of Worcester preached in the morning, and the Bishop of Derry in the evening. The Mayor gave a breakfast to the Corporation and the Freemasons of the province, and the Dean and Chapter entertained some distinguished guests at the College Hall.

Oxford "Commemoration" will be held on the 17th June.

The Warwick Castle restoration subscriptions have now amounted to £9,651. The work is being rapidly completed, and in a very short time the Castle will be restored to its former grandeur.

The Royal College of Physicians of London have addressed to Mr. Disraeli a memorial, in which they say that, in the daily exercise of their profession, they are brought much into contact with the poorer classes of the population, and are deeply interested in everything that concerns their welfare, not only on account of the poor themselves, but also because the evils engendered among them often affect the whole of society:—It is within their knowledge that the wholesale demolition of the houses inhabited by the poor, which had been carried on of late years under various railway and improvement acts, while it has been serviceable in removing many very bad streets and dwellings, has incidentally caused much distress to the persons displaced, and has almost uniformly driven them to crowd into neighbouring quarters, which were already as full, or fuller, than was consistent with healthiness. They believe that private enterprise is powerless to provide the fresh and improved house accommodation which is required for those who have been expelled from their former habitations, in addition to that which is called for by the constant increase of the population by reason of the impossibility of securing suitable sites for building. Even so rich and powerful a body as the trustees of the Peabody Fund has been repeatedly foiled in particular attempts to obtain land to build upon. They believe that the mere enabling powers which are at present entrusted to various authorities have proved, and must prove, insufficient to effect the desired object. In their opinion a remedy for these evils is urgently required, and they therefore venture to express the hope that Mr. Disraeli will favour them by holding out some prospect that this question of the dwellings of the London poor, upon which the health and morality of the people so much depend, will be taken up by Government in the present session of Parliament.

A stained glass window has just been placed in the parish church, of Folkestone to the memory of Dr. William Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, who was born in the town in 1578. It is the gift of the medical profession, more than 3,000 of whom have contributed towards the cost. The artist was Mr. C. E. Kempe, of Beaumont-street, London. The window was formally uncovered, when the "Hallelujah Chorus" was sung by the united choirs of the churches in the town. In the chancel of this church there is a brass to the memory of Joan Harvey, mother of Dr. Harvey, which bears the following inscription:—"A.D. 1605, Nov. 8th, dyed in ye 50th yeere of her age, Joan, wife of Thomas Harvey, mother of 7 sons and 2 daughters, a godly, Harmless Woman; a chaste lovinge wife; a charitable quiet Neighbour; a cofortable friendly Matro; a provident diligent Hyswyfe; a carefull te'der harted Mother; deere to her Hysband; reverensd of her children; beloved of her Neighbour; elected of God; whose Sole Rest in Heaven; her Body in this Grave, to her a Happy Advantage, to Hers an Vnhappy loss."

The sum of £24 8s. 10½d. was collected at the voluntary service in the Royal Military Chapel, Wellington Barracks, on Sunday evening, April 5, after a sermon preached by the Chaplain-General. The amount will be lodged to the credit of Lady Wolseley's Fund.

On Saturday the annual return respecting military savings banks, presented to Parliament, was printed, showing that the total amount of the fund for the banks up to the 10th ult. was £300,609 9s. 5½d. The interest showed during the year 1873 to depositors in military savings banks was £6,823 12s. 7½d., and the interest allowed on army charitable funds £1,965 19s. 7½d. The withdrawals from the banks in the period were £131,254 11s. 6½d. The number of accounts open on the 31st March last year was 14,560.

The following is a statement showing the total number of messages forwarded from postal telegraph stations in the United Kingdom during the week ended the 4th of April, 1874, and during the corresponding week of 1873:—Week ended April 4, 1874, total number of messages, 314,773; week ended April 5, 1873, total number of messages, 326,563; decrease in the week of 1874 on that of 1873, 11,790.

A sad calamity has befallen Mr. Hipwell, of Tolworth. About three weeks ago a stray dog got among a flock of sheep and lambs and worried a score or more to death. Now it is found that the dog must have been mad, for numbers of the poor animals have since shown symptoms of hydrophobia, and have had to be knocked on the head or strangled. Mr. Hipwell has taken every precaution to prevent the spread of the terrible disease, and the carcasses are buried as killed; but it is greatly feared that a very heavy pecuniary loss will result to him, and further, the full extent of the mischief can hardly be imagined.—Surrey Comet.

On Saturday a Parliamentary paper was printed containing an account of the gross amount received during the year ended the 31st of December, 1872, and its application. The amount received by the Post-office from the 1st of January, 1872, to the 31st of December, 1872, in respect of telegraphic messages, private wire rentals, and special wire, &c., was £1,359,652 10s. 5½d., less £309,509 3s. 8½d. paid to submarine telegraph companies, being message receipts collected on their behalf, and amount allowed to postmasters in respect of sums paid by them for the special delivery of messages, &c., leaving £970,683 6s. 9d. The amount expended by the Post-office in the period for salaries, rent, and maintenance of telegraphs was £144,107 10s. 2½d. It is stated in a note that the expenditure for 1872 was exceptional, as it included payments proper to the two previous years. A statement is given of the application of the balance of telegraph revenue, amounting to £144,807 0s. 2½d.

The vote proposed to the House of Commons this Session for elementary education in England and Wales estimates the grants required at 12s. 5d. each for 1,709,808 day scholars in inspected schools, and at 7s. 11d. each for 43,376 evening scholars. In the financial year 1872-73 the expenditure from the education grant in England and Wales, comprised 757,860 on schools connected with the Church of England; £143,512 on schools connected with the British and Foreign School Society; £71,959 on Wesleyan schools; £58,929 on Roman Catholic schools, and £14,287 on Board Schools, this last item making its appearance in the account for the first time.

ITEMS OF FOREIGN NEWS.

From Paris the sudden death is announced of M. Beulé, at the age of forty-eight. The deceased was appointed Minister of the Interior in the Cabinet formed by the Duc de Broglie after the overthrow of M. Thiers, on the 24th of May last year. He left office when the Septennial power was conferred upon Marshal MacMahon.

The ex-Emperor Ferdinand, who abdicated in favour of his nephew, the present Emperor of Austria, is reported to be lying dangerously ill at Prague.

According to information forwarded by Professor Palmieri to the local journals, the crater of Mount Vesuvius has lately undergone some rather ominous changes. The explosion of the 26th of April, 1872, left, it appears, a wide and deep crater on the summit of the mountain, which was divided into two compartments by "a sort of cyclopean wall," composed of great masses of lava and thick layers of slag. "Within the last few days," writes the Professor, "the cyclopean wall has disappeared, and the crater has been filled up without the occurrence of eruptive phenomena."

Dr. Viale, the Pope's physician, and one of his most intimate friends, has just died at Rome at the age of eighty-five.

The question of a tunnel between England and France appears to be revived. A special French Committee, composed of railway directors invited the Chairmen of the English Railway Companies interested in the question to confer with them in Paris.

The conference, which lasted two days, has served to establish the bases on which the preliminary experiments must be made to prove the possibility of such an undertaking.

The President of the Republic has expressed his interest in the object which the conference had in view.

It is thought that, in the meantime, until the question of a tunnel be decided, that of a port on the French coast for improved steamboat service will be considered.

The sovereignty of the Fiji Islands has been formally ceded by King Cacoban to England, and Mr. Layard, the British Consul, has accepted the cession, subject to the ratification of the Home Government. The Fiji exchequer is said to be insolvent, the expenditure having amounted during the last two years to £124,000, while the revenue during the same period was only £42,000. The Fiji Administration has been unable to pay the interest due on the loans it had contracted. An interim Administration has been formed, pending the decision of the British Government.

"E. F." writes to The Times:—"Your Neapolitan Correspondent, in The Times of Wednesday, shows us how the beautiful isle of Sicily is still disgraced by the crime of brigandage, while he gives us no hope of its ceasing till the trade and commerce of the island are developed. But it is very singular that in the very adjoining column of the same sheet, in your most interesting review of the Year Books of Edward I., you should have pointed out the most effectual way of repressing such atrocities. 'There are several cases which illustrate the utility of this ancient system of Tything and Hundred in enforcing an excellent police administration, and in the securing of prompt investigation in the case of concealed crimes or outrages by men whose rank or lawlessness had no small influence in impeding the cause of justice. And it is very remarkable that when Sicily was in a similar state of disorder after the wars in the beginning of this century, the island was brought to perfect rest and safety by the simple expedient of making every township and district responsible for the crimes committed in its area.'

The Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Brussels has taken up the question as to the custody of Ruben's paintings, now in Antwerp Cathedral, and at a recent meeting of the Academy, M. Gallait, as president of the society, stated "that the Academy could not remain indifferent to the serious questions which had been raised on the subject in other quarters; that the preservation of those chefs-d'œuvre must be thoroughly assured, and that a stop must be put to the scandalous traffic and abuse now going on in the cathedral, in refusing to allow these paintings to be seen except for a money payment." Other members of the Academy having concurred in M. Gallait's observations, a commission is to be appointed to carry out the views of the Academy—viz., that the paintings in question, being the patrimony of the nation, should be removed from all risk of deterioration and be placed in the museums, in order that artists and amateurs should have an opportunity of studying them free of expense.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

It is impossible not to be intensely amused with Bro. Chalmers I. Paton's last and most characteristic letter.

In Theodore Hook's life, there is a very amusing story told, of his startling an ornate swell with the sudden query, "Please Sir, are you somebody?" To judge by Bro. Chalmers I. Paton's letter in The Freemason of the 11th ult., he is the only writer who is competent to discuss or decide certain "vexatas questiones" of Masonic archaeology, and though Bro. Chalmers I. Paton is bold enough to say, that in common with Bro. Buchan, I know very little about the question of Masons' Marks, I will but say this once for all, that, I have studied Masons' Marks probably far longer and far more carefully than Bro. Paton, and whether I am competent to express an opinion on such a subject or no, I will leave to my good friend Bro. Hughan to decide.

The truth is, that Bro. Paton, like a good many other persons at the present day, seem to think, that they are to bear you down, by noisy asseveration and overbearing assertion.

I for one, never intend to allow any one, so long as I am able to hold a pen, to mislead the Craft, either by absurd pretensions to infallibility, or by idle claims to authority.

We have suffered too much from literary charlatanism as an Order, for those, who have studied the subject, and understand what they are writing about, to permit any brother, be he who he may, to assume for himself the function of setting everybody else right, he himself being at the best, but a second rate, and second-hand authority.

Bro. Chalmers I. Paton originally asserted that all Marks must have even points. He did not then limit the assertion to speculative Masonry, whatever he may have meant.

My answer to such an assertion was, and still is, that Bro. Paton was utterly wrong, and that such a statement was in direct defiance of all our evidence on the subject. Bro. Paton said such had been the rule for Scotland for 150 years.

My reply was, that the evidence of the Scottish lodges, as preserved in Bros. Laurie's and D. M. Murray's works, was entirely contradictory of such a gratuitous assertion.

Bro. Hughan stated, that, there is no such rule in England

Where then is Bro. Paton?

All Mark Masonry is derivative from actual operative Masonry, and is only valuable to us archaeologically.

In operative Masonry, there is no such rule as even points, in speculative Masonry there is no trace of such a custom. If even there was, it would only prove, as I originally observed, that speculative Masons have departed from the rules and regulations of Mark Masons. But on Bro. Hughan's authority, which is very high as regards England, and on the authority of the Scotch speculative lodges, which are of far more weight to us than Bro. Chalmers Paton's anonymous and elderly informant, Bro. Chalmers Paton, in my humble opinion, had not the slightest warrant for his bold assertion. To show how little reliance can be placed on his knowledge of marks, he originally stated that the double triangle was not a mark at all, because, it had an equal number of points. Now anyone who has studied the mark question knows, that both the pentagon and the double triangle, or hexagon are equally, if not common operative marks, yet marks of which many instances can be proved, and which are still pursued. Let me recommend Bro. Paton to study the question a little more closely before he again writes so dogmatically, and as he began with a Scotch axiom, I will end with a good old English one, "Don't teach your grandmother to suck eggs."

A MASONIC STUDENT.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you permit me to ask Bro. Carpenter, through the columns of The Freemason, whether he has traced any portion of the ten tribes to the continent of America. Will you also permit me to ask some other learned brother if the Indian word wigwam—or living place—has any connection with the Latin word vivam—I shall live, and which according to the new, or perhaps, more properly speaking, the ancient pronunciation would be pronounced wigwam, "I shall live," or in the present subjunctive word, "I may live."

Fraternally yours,

H. B. HODGES, P.P.S.G.W., Herts.

THE MELROSE LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the Editor of the North British Daily Mail has declined to insert my second letter in answer to the second letter of "Masonic," which appeared in The Freemason of the 4th inst., perhaps you will, in fairness, insert the enclosed copy of my first letter, which is simply an answer to the first letter of "Masonic," in which he dogmatically asserts that Masons hailing from the Grand Lodge of Scotland had no business to be present at the consecration of Melrose No. 2 Lodge Glasgow. As "Masonic" is open to correction, I trust that he will have the goodness to correct those parts of his second letter where he couples me with those who contend for the priority of the old lodge at Melrose, over that of Kilwinning, that I leave to those who are now investigating into that matter. The question with me is, which of the two bodies are the best practical Masons. Let "Masonic" answer this without any equivocation. As soon as he has done so, I shall with your permission, be prepared to present him with a bone which he may not find easy to masticate.

I am, yours fraternally,
FRATERNAL JUSTICE.

FATHER MELROSE AND MOTHER KILWINNING.
To the Editor of the North British Daily Mail.

Sir,—In answer to "Masonic" I beg to inform him that I, among many others, hailing from the Grand Lodge of Scotland have been in the habit of visiting the Melrose Masons in Glasgow; and having now had some experience of both bodies of Masons, I do not for a moment hesitate to give it as my candid opinion that the Melrose Masons are the most economical, the most charitable, the most brotherly, the most orderly, and consequently the best Masons that I have met with anywhere, especially in Scotland. I do not regard the authority of either "Masonic" or any others of similar opinions who may question my right in acknowledging the Melrose Masons. I know they are acknowledged in all parts of the world, and that of itself is quite sufficient for me. I know, on the other hand, Masons hailing from the Grand Lodge of Scotland and from lodges in Glasgow actually being refused admittance in lodges in America. I am, &c.

FRATERNAL JUSTICE.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been very pleased to notice the interest taken in the important subject of "Our Masonic Charities," and have duly considered the various suggestions made by the writers of the several interesting letters which have appeared in The Freemason. As Bro. Gotheil says, "For this discussion to be of any value, it should lead to some practical results," and I think some tangible good cannot fail to be produced through the ventilation of the question in these pages.

The communication signed "Ad Referendum" is a fair representative of the feelings of a great number of brethren in the provinces, and the sooner such a state of matters is altered the better. The lowering of the Steward's fee is a step in the right direction, and at the ensuing festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls only two guineas each have to be paid by the Stewards. This arrangement will partly meet with the wishes of "Ad Referendum" (who is, if I mistake not, an active worker in the "good cause"); and at the Boys' Festival the fee was not more than three guineas, inclusive, we believe, of a "ladies' ticket."

According to the new laws, Stewards are eligible to wear the charity jewel, provided they attend two festivals, and have £150 on each of their lists, even if they give no sum themselves to either of the charities beyond the subscriptions for Stewards' fees.

I think, for brethren residing in the provinces, the necessary attendance at the festival as a qualification for the charity jewel, should be dispensed with, for else in many cases the cost of travelling, &c., would exceed that of a life governorship.

In the province of Cornwall, each lodge elects a Steward for the year at its annual festival for the Cornwall Masonic Account and Benevolent Fund, and we find the plan has worked exceedingly well, having realized nearly £2,000 in ten years.

Could not a similar plan be devised for the great Masonic charities, and either a Charity Steward be appointed annually by each province, or one by each lodge, and a committee composed with chairman and officers, as in the case of West Yorkshire, and alluded to by our able Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., P.G.C.; and the letter from Bro. Captain Shanks on this subject is much to the point.

Respecting the minimum fee being lowered, I cannot quite agree with the suggestion made by our Bro. "Ad Referendum," excepting so far as to hint at an amendment, to the effect that sums may be received, which when they amount to one guinea shall enable the subscriber to vote as if he had at once contributed the minimum subscription, provided no single payment be less than five shillings.

As to the "statement of the accounts" of each of the charities being annually sent to all the lodges, chapters, &c., I quite think with "Ad Referendum" the plan would work well, and cause a much greater number to subscribe, for at present it is lamentable how few Masons really know of the character, extent, and benefits of our Masonic Institutions, which all along it appears to me have been supported by the few, who have very rarely (or their "dependants") sought any assistance, and the many who have either been elected as annuitants, or their children, placed in our institutions have never, whilst in prosperity contributed one farthing to the Masonic charities! In Chester no child is allowed to be a candidate for election with the admirable Educational Institution of that province without his or her father had subscribed to its funds. I do not advise such a law for the London Masonic charities, but subscribers can now exercise their own minds on the subject in voting.

W. J. HUGHAN.

THE EARLY GRAND ENCAMPMENT AND THE P.G. LODGE OF GLASGOW.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to the letter of "Fiat Justitia," Bro. Wheeler, Secretary of St. Mungo's K.T. Encampment, who is the undoubted champion of everything legal, Masonically speaking, in Scotland, at the present moment has fallen upon the E.G. Encampment, and apparently intends to make short work of both it and its members; like a practical general he has divided his charges into three component parts, so as to give force and brevity to his remarks, his 1st, 2nd, and 3rd in these three points. Bro. Wheeler has discovered that your correspondent "Fiat Justitia" has blundered, and as he politely puts it, committed some unintentional errors. Let us see where these errors are. 1st. Who says there is a R.A. Chapter, acting under the superior Chapter General of K.T.'s of Scotland? Please Bro. Wheeler quote the passage that says so.

2nd. Nor any R.A. Chapter, that has recently joined that body. Will Bro. Wheeler be good enough to explain himself? We do not profess to see so clearly as he does, nor do we observe any reference to the Supreme Chapter and the Chapter General in the sense referred to by Bro. Wheeler.

What has the E.G. Encampment got to do with the Girvan and St. Mungo Encampments? It is well enough known that all this has occurred, without Bro. Wheeler giving us more light upon the matter.

We shall pass over Bro. Barrow, and his position amongst the Sir Knights. It is quite enough for our purpose, that he holds the position he does, and that he acted, as has already been made public, as stated before. We only hope that the P.G.L. will reconsider their decision, and allow the Early Grand Encampment to occupy those premises they forced them to leave.

The remaining paragraph of Bro. Wheeler's letter bespeaks much for his praise. If there had been more like him, we should, ere this, have been unanimous.

I would beg to suggest that the encampments acting under the Chapter General, join the Early Grand Encampment, seeing that the Grand Encampment of the E.G. was formed before the Chapter General. Union is certainly strength, and why not then the Chapter General join with the E.G. About us being isolated and un-recognised in any part of the world, is certainly rather much to assert. We can name members who have obtained entry into chapters and encampments in Scotland, and vice versa; in fact, some of the most distinguished Scottish Masons of the present day have during their Masonic career, been not ashamed to own connection with the E. G. body, for instance, B.os. D. M. Lyon, the Masonic historian, received the R.A. under the hands of Bro. Martin, a P.E.C. of the E. G. Body. Various other matters can be enumerated, regarding the Early Grand, showing that its authority and legality are unquestionable.

I am, dear sir and brother, yours fraternally,
W. F.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly Court of the Governors and Subscribers to this Institution, was held on Saturday last, in the Board Room at Freemasons' Hall. The chair was occupied by Bro. Major J. Creaton, V.P., and among the other brethren present there were: Bros. R. Wentworth Little, Secretary; T. Randall, G. Wyatt, H. Smith, T. Hill, W. Wellsman, G. Singer, R. Jeffries, S. Rawson, Griffiths, Smith, T. F. Peacock, Col. F. Burdett, T. Meggy, G. Bolton, H. Browse, Thomas W. White, E. H. Tinney, H. Massey, S. H. Tattershall, Robt. Blockton, E. Harris, J. G. Marsh, H. C. Levander, L. Finch, Jas. Brett, Joseph Smith, A. D. Loewenstark, R. Price, Jesse Turner, J. Strachan, W. H. Radley, W. Lane, Edward Spooner, W. Stephen, Geo. Kenning, Geo. Morris, James Stephens, S. Rosenthal, John Coutts, J. R. Stebbing, Benjamin Head, E. S. Snell, John Symonds, H. Empson, James Terry, and H. Muggidge. The attendance of members was very large.

After the advertisement calling the meeting, and the minutes had been read,

Bro. Thomas W. White announced that one of the inmates of the school, Beatrice Seaton, had died, and he accordingly moved, "That 16 instead of 15 girls be elected that day."

Bro. Jesse Turner seconded the motion, which was thereupon carried.

Col. F. Burdett and Dr. Ramsay were then elected to the vacancies on the House Committee, caused by Major Creaton's acceptance of the office of Trustee of the Institution, and Bro. George Cox's death.

On the motion of Bro. S. Rawson, seconded by another brother, Bro. Samuel Tomkins was re-elected Treasurer.

Bros. A. Moore, T. F. Peacock, J. G. Marsh, and Jesse Turner, were chosen to fill the four vacancies, on the General Committee.

Scrutineers of votes were then selected, and the election of 16 girls out of a list of 31, was proceeded with.

The names of the successful and unsuccessful candidates will be found in our advertisement columns.

Votes of thanks to the scrutineers and chairman closed the proceedings.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The usual April Quarterly Court of the Boys' School Governors and Subscribers was held on Monday at noon, in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. As customary on election day, which Monday was, there was a large assemblage of the brethren, and among them we noticed Bros. Major Creaton, Gumbleton, Raynham W. Stewart, Samuel May, S. Rawson, A. H. Tattershall, H. Massey, George Lambert, R. J. Spiers, Collard, Moutrie, Jesse Turner, James Brett, F. Adlard, Thomas W. White, and John Coutts. Bro. H. Browse, V.P., took the chair, and Bro. F. Binckes, (Sec.) read the minutes of the last quarterly court, and of the various committees which had sat between that and the present time.

These having been unanimously confirmed,

Major Creaton, V.P., proposed, and Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., seconded the re-election of Bro. George Plucknett, as Treasurer of the Institution. The motion having been carried nem. con., Bros. R. B. Webster and N. Martin were elected to fill vacancies which had occurred on the General Committee, and the scrutineers of votes were appointed. The election of fifteen boys out of a list of fifty-two candidates was then proceeded with.

The names of the successful and unsuccessful candidates will be found in our advertisement columns.

Votes of thanks to the scrutineers and chairman concluded the proceedings.

BELFAST MASONIC WIDOWS' FUND.

The annual meeting of the subscribers of this fund was held on the 31st ult., at eight o'clock, in the Masonic Hall. Bro. Sir Charles Lanyon, D.P.G.M., President, occupied the chair. Amongst those present were, Bros. Tate, Godfrey, Wilson, Doey, Ryans, Ireland, Fisher, Scott, Hill, Fleming, M'Keown, Hanna, Ledlie, Gelston, and Allen (Secretary).

The Chairman, after a few introductory remarks, called on the Secretary, Bro. James Allen, to read the annual report, which was as follows:—

"The committee of the Belfast Masonic Widows' Fund, in presenting their first annual report, desire to express their thanksgiving to the Giver of all Good for the success which has attended the charity in this, the first year of its existence.

"At the annual meeting of the Belfast Masonic Charity Fund, held in 1873, a strong expression of opinion was manifested that a more liberal support was needed for the objects of Masonic charity in Belfast; and the committee of that fund, considering that there were many widows of our deceased brethren left in circumstances of great destitution, but who from their former position in society would shrink from making application to the charity fund, felt that it was necessary that a new agency should be formed to meet their case. Accordingly, a Provisional Committee, largely representative of the Masonic body in Belfast, was appointed to establish a Belfast Masonic Widows' Fund, and to bring this most desirable object under the notice of every lodge and every brother in town. On the 1st of July, the Provisional Committee having well performed its work, yielded its place to the present committee, regularly elected from all subscribing lodges, chapters, and preceptories. Among the first work undertaken by this committee was the formation of the constitution and bye-laws of the fund, which have been published and furnished to all subscribers. The committee have great satisfaction in reporting that very many of the Belfast lodges, with a considerable proportion of the chapters and preceptories, have either subscribed or promised subscriptions, and a large number of the brethren have cheerfully become donors or annual contributors. It will be seen that six brethren have subscribed £20 each to the fund, thereby being qualified to be Vice Presidents. The committee have much pleasure in referring to the services held in St. George's Church on St. John's Day, June, 1873, on which occasion the evening sermon was preached by Bro. Rev. H. D. Sheppard, D.D., in behalf of this and the local charity fund. The donations and subscriptions amount altogether to £249 17s., of which (in accordance with the rules) the sum of £193 7s. 7d. has been invested in the purchase of £200 Ulster Railway debenture stock. The committee have granted £20 to very deserving cases, which were brought before them in the course of the year. On the whole your committee feel that the fund has fairly established itself, and entered upon a career which they trust will be one of great success and usefulness. Very much remains to be done. Many lodges brethren have not yet subscribed, and the committee would earnestly urge upon them the claims of this useful charity, whose objects they think need only be known to meet from them a hearty response. The objects which this charity has especially in view have scarcely met hitherto with that systematic care and attention which they need. Cases frequently arise in which the families of some of our brethren are suddenly reduced from a position of comfort and ease to poverty and distress by the removal, in God's providence, of their head and support. The relief in such cases is an object truly worthy of the Masonic Order, whose higher ornaments have always been charity and benevolence; and the fund, which has been so successfully established, is eminently calculated to give these virtues a systematic, practical effect."

From the financial statement, as read by the Secretary, it appeared there was a balance in hands of the Treasurer of £5 9s. 3d. in favour of the fund.

The Chairman then moved the following resolutions: "That the report, with statements of account, now read, be received and adopted, and printed for circulation." In doing so, he said he had great pleasure in identifying himself with this movement, and with everything which had for its object the advancement of Masonry, but especially with the cause of charity, which should be the aim of every good Mason. They had their orphan schools, and nothing could be more successful than they had been. They were models in efficiency of management, and worthy of all imitation. He hoped that this movement for another charity, which provides for the widows of our deceased brethren, would be as successful as that to which he had referred for the Masonic Orphan Schools. He fully concurred with the concluding portion of the report, which says that the deserving object of this society is not met with the sympathy, care and attention which it needs. However much he might be able to congratulate them on the statement of accounts for the first year of inauguration, he regretted to see the absence of names which ought to be on the list of subscribers. He hoped that an effort would be made to increase the subscription list of the society, and that no feeling of jealousy would arise to prevent such a successful issue, and that every lodge would make an effort to promote the success of the fund. He had sincere pleasure in moving that the report, which had been read, be received, adopted, and printed for circulation.

Bro. Ryan, (Lodge 609) seconded the motion, which was passed.

Bro. Tate, (Lodge 7) moved the next resolution—"That this meeting, whilst deploring the want hitherto of a society similar to this, recognises the good likely to arise from the formation of this fund in the relief of the widows and families of Freemasons, and the consequent good resulting therefrom to the Order, and pledge themselves to its support."

Bro. Hanna (Lodge 272), in an able speech, seconded the motion, which was passed.

Bro. John Ireland (Lodge 59), moved—"That a systematic effort should be made amongst the various lodges not yet subscribing that they may be induced to do so, and otherwise to co-operate in furthering the objects of this society."

Bro. H. J. Hill (Lodge 111), seconded the motion, which was carried.

The chair having been vacated by Bro. Sir Chas. Lanyon, and taken by Bro. Tate,

Bro. Doey (Lodge 609), moved—"That the best thanks of the meeting are due to Bro. Sir Charles Lanyon for his dignified conduct in the chair."

Bro. Godfrey (Lodge 59), seconded the resolution, which was carried amid applause.

Bro. Sir C. Lanyon, having replied in appropriate terms, said he thought that there had been one motion which had been overlooked, and when he was out of the chair he took the opportunity of moving it. They all knew the great interest Bro. T. Fisher had taken in furthering the good of the charity. He, therefore, begged to move that the thanks of the meeting be given to Bro. Fisher for the energy he has displayed in promoting the interests of the charity.

The motion, having been seconded by Bro. Hanna, was carried unanimously.

Bro. Fisher having thanked the brethren present, the proceedings terminated.

METROPOLITAN MASONIC MEETINGS.

For the Week ending Friday, April 24, 1874.

The Editor will be glad to have notice from Secretaries of Lodges and Chapters of any change in place or time of meeting.

Saturday, April 18.

GLENFIELD STARCH is the only kind used in Her Majesty's Laundry. These Ladies who have not yet used the Glenfield Starch, are respectfully solicited to give it a trial, and carefully follow out the directions printed on every package. It is rather more difficult to make than other Starches, but when this is overcome, they will say, like the Queen's Laundry, that it is the finest Starch they ever used. *When you ask for the Glenfield, see that you get it.

HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS VICINAGE.

being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lan-burgh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with copious Pedigrees of the principal Families. Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect.

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each (or by Book-post 7d).

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in On's History, the Work is illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed with a new type, on good paper; and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips; and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by Messrs. TWEDDELL and SONS, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Whitby.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Extract from "INDIAN ECONOMIST."

"We direct the attention of medical men to a fact observed some years since by ourselves, and corroborated by our subsequent experience, that Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is in many cases of Low Fever immensely superior to Quinine in curative power. We cannot persuade ourselves that the true value of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is yet properly appraised in India. . . . It may be given with absolute safety even to a child three days old. Were medical men but to make a fair and exhaustive trial of it we are persuaded that it would work a revolution in the treatment of two-thirds of the diseases to which children are subject. Its curative power is simply amazing."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera had been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE."—See Lancet, Dec. 1. 1864.

From W. VESALIUS PETTIGREW, M.D., Hon. F.R.C.S., England,

Formerly Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology at St. George's School of Medicine.

"I have no hesitation in stating, after a fair trial of Chlorodyne, that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-Spasmic and Sedative. I have tried it in Consumption, Asthma, Diarrhoea, and other diseases, and am most perfectly satisfied with the results."

From Dr. THOMAS SANDIFORD, Passage West, Cork.

"I will thank you to send me a further supply of Chlorodyne. It was the most efficacious remedy I ever used, affording relief in violent attacks of Spasms within a minute after being taken. One patient in particular, who has suffered for years with periodical attacks of Spasms of a most painful nature, and unable to obtain relief from other remedies, such as opium, &c., finds nothing so prompt and efficacious as Chlorodyne."

From JNO. E. GOULSTONE, M.D., late Principal Surgeon to the Steamship Great Eastern.

"I can confidently state Chlorodyne is an admirable Sedative and Anti-Spasmic, having used it in Neuralgia, Hysteria, Asthma, and Consumption, with remarkably favourable results. It relieved a fit of Asthma in four minutes, where the patient had suffered eleven years in a most distressing manner, no previous remedy having had so immediate and beneficial an effect."

From Dr. B. J. BOULTON and Co., Horncastle.

"We have made pretty extensive use of Chlorodyne in our practice lately, and look upon it as an excellent direct Sedative and Ant Spasmic. It seems to allay pain and irritation in whatever organ, and from whatever cause. It induces a feeling of comfort and quietude not obtainable by any other remedy, and it seems to possess this great advantage over all other sedatives, that it leaves no unpleasant after effects."

J. C. BAKER, Esq., M.D., Bideford.

"It is, without doubt, the most valuable and certain Anodyne we have."

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," 13th July, 1864.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each Bottle.

BEDFORD LODGE (No. 157).—This excellent lodge held its usual monthly meeting on Friday week, at Freemasons' Hall, when there was a good attendance of members, including the W.M., Bros. Briggs, L. Drew, S.W.; W. Follett, J.W.; J. Lavender, P.M., Treasurer; J. Hills, P.M. Secretary; T. Wagton, S.D.; R.A. Kelly, J.D.; A. G. Creak, I.G. The working of this old established lodge was exceedingly well carried out, the W.M. in particular discharging the duties of the chair with considerable tact and talent, his rendering of the traditional history to the candidate in the third degree was received with much approval. We are glad to note that Grand Lodge has conferred the honour of the centenary jewel on this lodge. Much sympathy was evinced by the brethren at the sudden and deeply lamented death of the respected Bro. G. A. Brown, P.M., many years a member of the lodge. Among the P.M.'s present were Bros. T. Cobitt, officer of Grand Lodge; J. Brander, S. Willis, J. Smith, the visiting brethren being Bros. G. Ayres, P.M., 95; and J. R. Stacey, P.M. 180. After lodge the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, served in Bro. Francatelli's est style.

ETONIAN LODGE (No. 209).—The usual monthly meeting of this ancient lodge was held on the 7th inst., at the Masonic Temple, St. Alban's-street, Windsor. This was a red letter day, as the members for the first time met at the now named temple, where the business of the lodge will hereafter be transacted, instead of the royal Adelaide Hotel. To those unacquainted with the beautiful temple it may be as well to state that it is owing to the noble enterprise of a few members of the Windsor Castle Lodge, a handsome edifice was, a few years ago, at a considerable cost, raised. On entering the temple the carved stalls for the use of the brethren, the beautiful mosaic flooring, the handsome roof as well as the organ (from one of the metropolitan churches) reminds one of being in a cathedral chapel, whilst every surrounding tends to impress, and commands that awe and reverence which the beautiful ceremonies require. It is perhaps strange that the Etonian Lodge should not have long ago made overtures to the Windsor Castle Lodge to be allowed to meet at the temple, but it must be said, the first advance of the Etonian a few months ago met with cordial and brotherly consideration of the members of the other lodge, and without the difficulty the necessary arrangements were effected. The W.M., Bro. G. W. Dixon, was, it may be supposed, well supported by the brethren of his lodge, and likewise a large attendance of the members of the Windsor Castle Lodge. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. I. H. S. Reid, I.P.M.; Bladon, J. O. Carter, J.W.; Strange, P.M., Sec.;

MacIlwham, P.M.; Brytuel, Nicholls, Barkshire, Hiscock, Duffield, Emanuel, and others. Visitors: Bros. Biggs, Prov. G. Sec. Berks and Bucks; Stedwell, P.P.J.G.W. Middlesex; Bingham, W.M. 771; Tolley, P.M. 771; Cantrell, 771; Cave, 771; Whitehouse, 771; Churchill, and others. The lodge was opened at five p.m., by the W.M., and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Hawker, after the usual interrogation, was entrusted with the pass, grip, and word leading from 1st to 2nd degree, and after the lodge had been opened in the 2nd degree, re-admitted and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M. On the lodge being closed to the 1st degree, the ballot was taken for Messrs. Clay and Terry, and being unanimous in their favour they were initiated to the light of Freemasonry. A handsome P.M.'s jewel, with a suitable inscription, was then presented to Bro. Reid, I.P.M., for his services in the chair during the past year. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel to partake of supper, and so closed one of the most pleasant and enjoyable meetings ever known by the members of the lodge.

ROCHESTER.—Gundulph Lodge (No. 1050.)—On Wednesday, April 15th, the installation of Bro. Thomas W. Newton, as W.M. of this lodge, took place in the presence of a great number of principal officers, thus showing the great interest taken for the welfare of the lodge, and the benefit of the Craft in general. There were present: Bros. Captain George Watson, P.M., P.G.R., who acted as Master of the Ceremonies in his usual able and efficient manner; Spencer, P.G. Sec.; W. Page, P.P.G.S.D.; J. S. Warne, P.P.G.A. Sec.; Owen J. Carter, P.P.G.S.D.; C. Relph, P.G.S.D.; J. Wyles, P.P.G.S.D.; Rei Fry, P.P.G.J.D.; Penfold, P.P.G.O.; Knight, P.P.G.D.C.; Blakey, P.P.G.A.D.C.; W. MacKenzie, from Zetland Lodge of Grangemouth, and the Worshipful Masters from lodges 1089, 1174, 77, 188, 1063, 1089, 913, 184, and a very good attendance of Past Masters, besides a large number of brethren from all parts of the province. The outgoing W.M., Bro. John Nicholls, in the most praiseworthy manner installed his successor, and it is a gratifying fact that Bros. Nicholls and Newton have made themselves so thoroughly efficient under the able tuition of Bro. Captain Watson, P.M., as to merit the approbation of many Past Masters, who expressed their opinion that the working of the lodge was second to none in the province of Kent. The Worshipful Master appointed the following brethren his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. John Michell, I.P.M.; George H. Carel, S.W.; Thomas Watson, J.W.; Thomas Wyles, P.M., Treasurer; George Watson, P.M., Secretary; John P. Griffin, S.D.; Mark Baines, J.D.; George Elliot, I.G.; H. Bryant, Organist; J. Glaister, M.C.; Henderson, Lennox, Stewards. The Senior Past Master Bro. G. Ashdown, P.P.G.P., rose and proposed that a vote of thanks be recorded in the minutes of the lodge to Bro. John Michell for the manner in which he had conducted the affairs of the lodge during the past year and for his kind and courteous manner in attending to the requirements of the brethren, as also the able way in which he had initiated the new W.M., and at the same time handed a very handsome jewel, which had been subscribed for by the members of the lodge, to the new W.M. for presentation, which was accordingly done, amid the approbation and hearty good wishes of the brethren. When the lodge was closed the brethren, to the number of fifty, sat down to a sumptuous banquet, provided by Mrs. Flicker, of the King's Head Hotel, in her usual style, and many of the brethren expressing their delight in which it was served. We must not omit to mention that by the kind consent of the Mayor, who is Constable of Rochester Castle, the usual privilege was granted to Gundulph by having a large St. George's Ensign hoisted on the tower of the castle in commemoration of Bishop Gundulph, who was devoted to Freemasonry, and from whose name the lodge is called.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE (No. 1178) held its regular meeting on Thursday, April 2, at the Gregorian Arms Tavern, 96, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, Bro. John Henry Harmsworth, W.M.,

assisted by Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M. Sec.; W. Batchelor, M.C.; J. W. Dudley, I.P.M.; G. F. Grace, P.M.; A. Goodman, F. Garbett, J. Stock, W. May, J. J. Morse, J. Phillips, W. T. Looover, T. Jones, and others. The visitors were Bros. Whitaker, 73, and W. Cockle 871. The minutes were read, and unanimously confirmed. Bros. J. Stock, F. Garbett, and W. Cockle, 871, were raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons. Bro. J. W. Dudley, I.P.M., in the unavoidable absence of the W.M., opened the lodge, and did the ceremony of raising, the work being well done. Agreeable to notice of motion previously given, five guineas were unanimously voted from the lodge funds to the Boys' School, in the name of the W.M. for the time being. Bro. J. H. Harmsworth, W.M., previous to the lodge being closed, took the chair, and presided over the meeting for the remainder of the evening. All business being ended, the lodge was closed. In consequence of the regular meeting being due in the Derby week, it was agreed to postpone that meeting for one week. A splendid banquet and dessert followed after the lodge business was completed. Some hours spent in an agreeable manner, terminated this pleasant evening.

RAMSGATE.—Lewises Lodge (No. 1209.)—The installation meeting of this promising lodge was held on Wednesday, April 8th, at the Royal Hotel. The lodge was opened by Bro. Bedford Newbold Hiscock, W.M. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed, ballot was taken for Bro. William Henry Howard, Witham Lodge, No. 297, Lincoln, as a joining member, which was decided to be unanimous. A board of Installed Masters was then formed and Bro. William Call, the W.M. elect, was duly installed in the chair of K.S., by Bro. W. Winch, P.M. 429, P.P.J.G.D., the beautiful ceremony being performed in a very impressive and masterly style. The W.M. then appointed as his officers for the ensuing year the following brethren:—Bros. A. Wootton, P.G.S., S.W.; G. Page, J.W.; L. Faich, P.P.G.D.C., Treasurer; B. N. Hiscocks, I.P.M., Hon. Sec.; Rev. G. W. Sickling, P.P.S.G.W., Chaplain; J. W. Smith, S.D.; F. Crux, J.D.; W. Barrett, I.G.; J. Faich, D.C.; J. Cassingham, S.; W. Larkin, Organist; G. Meager, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting hall, when ample justice was done to the good things placed before them; after the cloth was drawn, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and enthusiastically received, and the brethren separated after having spent a very enjoyable evening.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216)—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles at Camberwell on Thursday, the 9th instant, when there were present:—Bros. G. H. Newington Bridges, W.M.; Edward Baxter, Grand Steward, as S.W.; A. Woodcock, J.W.; J. J. Curtis, Secretary; M. S. Larham, S.D.; H. Hammond, J.D.; F. W. Carnell, D.C.; F. Cozens, Org.; George Waterall, P.M.; James Stevens, P.M.; C. H. Neville, R. B. Joy, A. C. Bindley, Capt. A. Styan, F. Wilkins, W. P. Collins, W. E. Stride, M. Elliot, F. A. Harper, P. Clay, A. I. Style, A. Youngman, E. Bower, E. Eldridge, and several other members, and the following visitors, viz.:—Bros. I. P. Probert, and W. N. Cooke, of No. 8; W. M. Young, No. 116; J. Vincent, No. 1076; E. Baxter, and J. H. Vockins, S.W. 1329. The lodge having been opened in due form and the minutes of the previous regular meeting and subsequent emergency having been confirmed, Bros. W. E. Stride, J. D. Challener, and A. J. Style severally proved their proficiency as P.C.'s, and were in due course raised to the degree of W.M., with all that orderly and earnest ceremonial for which the lodge is justly celebrated, and in respect of which the several visitors expressed high commendation. The lodge having been closed in the first degree, the brethren proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. W. J. Messenger, the present S.W. (whose engagements on circuit prevented his attendance on this occasion) was unanimously elected to that high office, the result of the ballot being Pullen, P.M., Treas.; Stacey, P.M., Org.; Crowhurst, J.D.; Schiemann, S.; J. Wilson, P.M.; received with acclamation. Bro. Dr. Cronin being reluctantly compelled to resign his office of Treasurer, the choice of the brethren was unanimously made in favour of Captain A. Styan, who in very gracious terms accepted the appointment. Notice of motion was given later in the evening by Bro. Stevens, P.M., to the effect "that a Past Treasurer's jewel be voted to Bro. Dr. Cronin for his eminent services during the past five years." Bro. Grant was re-elected Tyler, Bros. Gray and Bradley were elected on the Audit Committee. On the proposition of Bro. Waterall, P.M., the lodge unanimously voted the Past Master's jewel to the retiring Master, Bro. Bridges. Propositions for several initiations having been taken, and a few matters of ordinary business disposed of the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the usual frugal supper, and the customary toasts and Masonic compliments having been duly honoured and exchanged, the evening's proceedings terminated with charitable remembrances of absent friends and less fortunate members of the Order.

ST. JOHN OF WAPPING LODGE (No. 1306).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Gun Hotel, High-street, Wapping, on Wednesday, April 8th. The lodge was opened by the W.M., J. W. Dawson. The ceremony of installation was proceeded with, Bro. W. Mann, P.M. 186, and Treasurer, presented to Bro. J. W. Dawson, W.M., the W.M. elect, Bro. Wm. Beck, the first member initiated in the St. John of Wapping Lodge, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. He appointed and invested as his officers, Bros. Maud, S.W.; J. W. Jackson, J.W.; Wm. Mann, P.M. (the father of the lodge), Treasurer, re-invested for the fourth time; T. Pallett, S.D.; Poore, J.D.; F. Boutts, I.G.; Fortescue, W.S.; Longstaff, Tyler. The addresses were well given, and applauded, and the remainder of the business was quickly despatched. The usual number of candidates for initiation were proposed. The lodge was then closed, and a splendid banquet followed, served up under the personal supervision of Bro. Hayward (who as usual was ever ready to please everyone), and he succeeded in giving satisfaction to all. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. The agreeable evening was brought to a pleasant termination, the brethren separating to enjoy "Tired nature's sweet repose, balmy sleep."

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge took place at the Royal Hotel, Aldershot, at six o'clock p.m., on the 2nd instant. In consequence of the unavoidable absence of the W.M., the chair of K.S. was taken by Bro. Captain Richardson, I.P.M. and Treasurer, who was supported by the following officers, viz.:—Bros. Anderson, S.W.; Smith, J.W.; Harker, W.M. 723, as P.M.; Williams, S.D.; McKinney, J.D.; Munro, I.G.; Burns, Tyler; Austin, Secretary. There was also a good attendance of the brethren, among whom were several visitors. The lodge having been opened in form in the first degree, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken separately for two candidates for initiation, which proved favourable in each case. Brother Cullinan being a candidate for the second degree, after having given proof of his proficiency in the first degree, was entrusted and retired. The lodge was opened in the second degree, and on his readmission he was duly passed as a F.C. Bros. Newman and Field having proved themselves proficient in the second degree, were entrusted with a test of merit preparatory to their admission to the third degree. The lodge was then resumed to the second and third degrees, and one of the candidates, Mr. Stayley, being present, was duly initiated and instructed in the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry, at the conclusion of which the lodge was opened in the second and third degrees, and Bros. Newman and Field were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The W.M., Bro. McKenzie, having now arrived, the lodge was resumed to the second and third degrees, and Bro. Captain Richardson, to whom at a later period of the evening the brethren passed a vote of thanks for the admirable and impressive manner in which the ceremonies of three degrees had been rendered and conducted, retired from the chair. The W.M. then read a letter from the W.M. of Panmure Lodge, No. 723, inviting a committee of 1331 to co-operate with a committee of the former in the necessary arrangements for the reception of the P.G. Lodge here in August next, which was cordially acceded to, the W.M. and Wardens being duly nominated and approved. The votes of the lodge, with those of Bros. Brown and Coleman, who have become Life Subscribers to the Boys' School, by payment into the Charitable Association in connection with 1331, were then given in favour of a military candidate, the late Bro. Wellington's son, whose name stood 39th on the list of candidates, but whose election proved successful. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. P.M. J. Balfour Cockburn, M.D., 30th, for his kindness in representing the lodge as a Steward, at the recent festival of the Boys' School, and a vote of condolence with Bro. P.M. Samuel Cole, expressive of the regret of the brethren at the sad loss sustained by the death of his daughter, was also unanimously adopted and received. Propositions for joining members and candidates for initiation having been made and duly seconded, and hearty good wishes given by Bro. Harker, W.M. 723, the "Aldershot Camp Lodge" was closed with solemn prayer about half past nine o'clock, and adjourned until the first Thursday in May.

ANDOVER.—St. Hubert's Lodge (No. 1373).—The annual festival of this lodge, held on the 13th inst., was an event long to be remembered in the annals of Freemasonry in this province. It is now only two years ago since we had the pleasure to report the opening of a lodge for the purposes of the Craft in Andover, and at that time there appeared only a handful of brethren to start the undertaking; since then, however, several of the principal inhabitants of the neighbourhood have joined, and the number of members now nearly reaches forty. The meetings up to the present time have been held in the Foresters' Hall, but great inconvenience in many respects having been found in continuing there, it was determined to accept the offer of Bro. Stride to build a lodge room suitable to the Craft. This has been done, and one of the most handsome and convenient lodges in the province will be found in the rear of the White Hart Hotel. We refer to its interior, for of its exterior such adjectives would be somewhat out of place. The room is fitted with oak furniture. The ceilings are coloured blue and salmon, and the room is lighted with a handsome sun light, the various accessories of the Craft are all of the best description, the chairs for the Masters and his officers were the costly gift of five of the members, and indeed almost every brother has contributed something towards the furniture of the lodge, either in money or the purchase of what was needed for the due performance of the ancient ceremonies. During the past year the chair has been most ably filled by Bro. E. Y. Nepean, Provincial Grand Chaplain, Vicar of Appleshaw, and to his good government and hearty manner in the general conduct of the business of the lodge, must be attributed the success of St. Hubert Lodge and the unanimity with which everything connected with it has been carried out. The brethren assembled on the 13th inst. at noon, and after the ordinary business of the meeting had been conducted, which we may add consisted of an initiation and the passing of one brother, to whom Bro. Lear, Basingstoke, delivered an excellent charge. The Provincial Grand Master, Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., was then received in the usual manner, and immediately proceeded to install Bro. T. Best, P.M., as Master of this lodge. The ancient ceremony was performed in his usual able manner by the P.G.M., and Bro. Best was received by the members most cordially, the musical portion of the ceremony being given by Bro. Taylor, P.M., late of Salisbury Cathedral, and who we may add has just received the vacant appointment at the Foundling Hospital. The ceremony of installation having concluded, the W.M. proceeded to appoint his officers, which are as follows.—Bros. Rev. E. Y. Nepean, I.P.M.; C. V. Plesco, S.W.; W. C. Powning, J.W.; Rev. E. F. Randolph, Chaplain; T. Butt, Treas. Burgiss-Brown, Sec.; H. Hammas, S.D. Pike, J.D.; Farr, I.G.; T. Lamb, M.C.; F. Fowle and F. Fern, Stewards; C. Tredgold, Tyler. The P.G. Master then invested the foregoing brethren with their collars and addressed a few words of congratulation to Bro. Best and the Officers, which were received with marked approbation by all present. The lodge was then closed in the usual manner. The following is a list of the brethren present:—The Right Worshipful the P.G.M., Bro. W. V. B. Beach, M.P.; Bros. T. Best, P.M. 357, W.M. 1373, and P.P.G.R. for Oxon; De P.M.; G. Best, P.M.; Rev. E. Y. Nepean, P.M. Lear, W.M., Oakley Lodge; Fern, P.M. Taylor, P.M. and P.G. Organist, Wilts; Rev. Randolph, Chaplain; Portsmouth, P.P.G.J.D. Thatcher, P.G.S.; Thomas, W.M. Glaston Lodge; Rev. W. W. Pearin, Southampton; Helsdon, S.W.; Powning, J.W.; Hamman, S.D.; Pike, J.D.; Lamb, M.C.; Farr, I.G. Hickman, junr., and Phillips, (Southampton) S. H. Allen, Morgan, Beale, Bloxham, No. wood, Hawkins, Fisher, Osborne, H. Barne Daniels, S.W. Oakley Lodge, R. A. Rout Pritchard, W. Lush, Fowle, Stride, W. Tasker, R. Tasker, T. Butt (Treasurer), B. Brown, (Secretary), Tredgold and Hall, Tylers, and others. The banquet was provided at the White Hart Hotel, Bro. Best occupying the chair, supported on the right by the P.G.M., and on the left by the I.P.M., Bro. Nepean. The room and hall were nicely decorated with plants, and everything possible was done for the comfort of the guests, the viands were of the best description and the wines, we believe supplied by Bro. Fern of first-class quality, and indeed every possible care was taken by Mrs. Turner, the hostess, to provide a banquet worthy of the occasion, and in this she was indeed successful, everyone present expressing themselves in the highest terms of her catering on that occasion. The toast having been cleared, the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to, each with musical honours, Bro. Taylor kindly presiding at the piano. The P.G.M.'s health was proposed from the chair by Bro. Best, who alluded to their early days as brethren in Freemasonry. Bro. Beach responded, and spoke at length on the principles of the Ancient Order, alluding to the Masonic charities as a proper channel for the exercise of one of the great principles of the Craft, and he thought there was no province in England which exerted itself more than this for the charities of which they might well be proud to boast. It was a very great pleasure to him to witness the prosperity of the St. Hubert Lodge, which he had the pleasure of consecrating only two years ago, and he wished it much prosperity for the future. The P.G.M. proposed the health of the W.M., Bro. Best, and spoke of their connection with Freemasonry in the Apollo University Lodge at Oxford, and of having installed him W.M. of that Lodge twenty-one years ago. He said no one was better qualified to fill the chair, and it had been a great pleasure to him to have installed him that day. The W.M., in responding, was received most heartily. A toast highly appreciated among Masons was given by the worthy Chaplain, Bro. Randolph, "All poor and distressed Masons." The health of the Past Master of the Lodge, Bro. Nepean, was drunk, who returned thereon an eloquent speech. The health of the Officers of the St. Hubert Lodge, the Visitors and others, followed. The pleasure of the evening was greatly enhanced by some excellent songs by Bros. Taylor, Fern, G. Best, B. Brown, Fisher, Helsdon, Beale, and others, and the company dispersed soon after eight o'clock, all one of the most successful meetings yet held.

HAMPTON COURT.—Era Lodge (No. 1423). The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court, Saturday, April 11th. Bro. Henry Arthur Bois, P.G. Steward Middlesex, W.M., presided. There were present Bros. John Thomas M.P. Prov. G.S.D. Middlesex, P.M.; R. Lint, P.G. Organist Middlesex; Rev. J. W. Vaug, P.G. Chaplain, Middlesex; E. Walters, Steward, Middlesex, P.M.; W. Bald, S.W.; R. Lint, P.G. Organist;

Baxter Langley, J.W.; J. S. Sweasey, S.D.; W. C. Devereux (R.N.) J.D.; E. W. Devereux, I.G.; B. Wright, W.S. and others. The visitors were Bros. W. Hammond, W.M., 1326; T. G. Tagg, 1326; W. Mitchell, 1326; H. Jones, 1326; T. Boyce, 1309, and others. The W.M. in a clear, painstaking, correct, and impressive manner (which was pleasurable to witness and listen to) initiated Bro. Henry Fajja into the secrets and mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. The veteran Secretary Bro. F. Walters took the chair, and in a slow dignified style crafted no less than seven, which included one visitor F. Boyce, 1309. He then raised Bro. J. G. Tagg, 1326, to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The W.M., Bro. H. A. Dubois, having returned, (being compelled to be absent for a short time on urgent private business) he took the chair and presided over the lodge for the remainder of the evening. On motions duly made by the Secretary, and which were seconded, Bros. R. Limpus, for "Boys" and J. Sweasey, for "Girls," were unanimously elected as Stewards to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festivals in 1875. Bro. J. C. Parkinson, D.P.G.M., Middlesex, and E. W. Mackney, P.M. 1345, were unanimously elected as honorary members. The initiation was raised to ten and joining fee to five guineas, when the lodge numbered fifty subscribing members. Several gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was unanimous in their wish to solicit the P.G.M. to hold the next Provincial Grand Lodge, Middlesex, under its auspices. The lodge was closed. Banquet and desert followed.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 7th inst., at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. The lodge was opened by the Bros. Koch, W.M.; Higgins, S.W.; Gardner, J.W.; Hales, S.D.; Arnold, J.D. (W.M. of No. 45); Reeves, I.G.; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Page, P.M., Treasurer. The minutes of the previous lodge having been confirmed, the W.M., assisted by the officers, proceeded to raise Bros. B. H. Phillpott, T. C. Walls, and J. H. Byfield to the sublime degree of M.M., the impressive ceremony being well rendered. Bro. Bates was then passed as a F.C. A committee consisting of the W.M., the P.M.'s of the lodge, and the S.W. and J.W., was appointed to draw up a code of rules for the establishment of a benevolent fund in connection with this lodge, and to submit the same at the meeting in October. It was also resolved that a lodge of emergency should be called to raise Bro. Bates, and to carry out any other business that might arise, early in May next. The lodge being closed in due form the brethren partook of supper, which was well catered for by the host Bro. Pope, P.M. This not being a lodge banquet the only toast given by the W.M. was "The Queen and Craft" which was well responded to, and the National Anthem sung. The remainder of the evening was devoted to harmony by Bros. Flower and Phillpott.

INSTRUCTION.

CONFIDENCE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 3).—Upwards of eighty brethren assembled, owing to want of room, a great number had been refused admission, at Bro. Chard's, White Hart Tavern, Abchurch-lane, E.C., on Wednesday, the 16th inst. The special inducement of an extraordinary gathering at a Lodge of Instruction was the announcement that Bro. Jas. St. P.G.P., would rehearse the ceremony of initiation. That name is always sufficient to excite a strong muster. The ever increasing popularity of Bro. Brett is, however, well deserved, and the prevailing opinion as to his oratorical abilities was never better exemplified upon this occasion. The beautiful ceremony was admirably rendered. The oration especially was exceedingly appropriate, and dedicated with an earnestness and impressiveness, which elicited loud and hearty approbation. Bro. St. still suffering from recent indisposition, was obliged to leave at the conclusion of this part of the evening's programme. The next business was the rehearsal of the ceremony of Installation. This task had previously been allotted to John Constable, W.M. 185. It was a successful attempt on the part of that brother, but a marked success. With the confidence of an old stager and unsurpassed fluency, the rather difficult work was accomplished. Bro. Constable is one of those who throw heart and soul in all they attempt. Any one who has watched his Masonic career cannot fail to be struck with the varied abilities he progressively displays. The brethren showed their appreciation by repeated acclamations. A great number of visitors were present, among whom not a few were W.M.'s and P.M.'s and so delighted were they with the proceedings, that they immediately enrolled themselves members of the lodge. It was cheering to note the harmony and hearty good fellowship subsisting amongst this large number of brethren, some of whom are known to entertain diversified opinions on points of Masonic practice and lodge government. Difference of opinion, however, did not prevent the mutual truly loyal Masonic grasp, nor the expression on all sides of earnest re-union. The more prominent brethren present were, Bros. Jas. Stevens, P.M., W.M. 1426; C. J. Dilley, P.M. 1155, W.M. 147; T. Poore, W.M. 720; E. Gottheil, P.M. 141; A. H. Lilley, P.M. 12; Rev. P. M. Holden, J.D.; and Chaplain 907; W. F. Rogers, P.M. 193; S. Moss, P.M. 185; N. Moss, P.M. 185; Bloomfield, P.M. 185; Pinder, J.W. 15, etc. The vocal and musical part was conducted by Bro. Billey, P.M., assisted by Bro. Miller, P.M., John Ross, S.W. 185, and others.

WIGTON.—St. John's Chapter (No. 327).—A convocation of this chapter was held on Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., in the lodge room, Comps. Lemon, M.E.Z.; J. Porter, H.; J. Gate, J.; and several other companions being present. After all companions below Installed Principal had retired, the chapter was duly opened in solemn form by Companion Jesse Banning, M.E.Z., 823, who, at the request of the Principals, acted as Z. on this occasion. The minutes of the last convocation were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken separately, and proved in their favour for Bros. Lazonby and McMechan. Both being in attendance were properly prepared, admitted, and duly exalted, M.E.Z. Banning giving the historic, symbolic, and mystic lectures, in a very finished and deeply impressive manner; after which a candidate was proposed for exaltation, and a vote of thanks ordered to be recorded on the minutes to M.E. Companion Jesse Banning for his valuable services. Comp. J. Tickell officiated as P.S. in his usual perfect style. The following companions were elected officers for the ensuing year:—James Porter, M.E.Z.; John Gate, H.; H. Bewes, J.; Dr. Shannon, E.; James Gardner, N.; John Tickle, P.S.; T. McMechan, first A.S.; Joseph Lazonby, second A.S.; T. Richardson, T.; Joseph Martin, Janitor. Nothing further appearing for the good of R.A.M., the chapter was closed in due form.

RAMSGATE.—Holmesdale Lodge (No. 129).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Royal Hotel, Ramsgate, on Thursday, March 26th. The brethren assembled at 4.30, and soon after that time, the lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. H. Grove Snowden, D. Prov. G. M.M. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Snowden vacated the chair in favour of Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.W., Prov. G.M. Sec. for Middlesex and Surrey, &c., &c., who had come down expressly to perform the Installation ceremony, as he had previously done for several successive years. This was purposely the only work left for the day, a special meeting of the lodge having been held a fortnight before for the purpose of advancing two candidates, viz., Bros. J. J. Cooper Wylde, and Walter Searles. Bro. Snowden presented the W.M. elect, Bro. John Lamy Ellerm, to Bro. Stevens, to receive at his hands the benefit of Installation, and the customary declaration having been made, all brethren below the rank of Installed Mark Master retired. A Board of I.M.M. was then formed, and the W.M. elect, and Bro. the Rev. G. W. Sicklemore, Prov. G.M. for Kent, took the O.B. The latter, through inadvertence, had not been entrusted with the secrets of the chair at the time of his installation, and this was the first convenient opportunity which had occurred to him for having the omission supplied. The secrets having been communicated, and the Board of I.M.M. closed, the brethren were re-admitted, and they saluted the new W.M. He was then proclaimed in due form, and presented with the Working Tools, the Lodge Warrant, the Book of Constitutions, and the Book of Bye-Laws. The following brethren were then appointed to office, and invested, viz., James W. Smith, S.W.; George Page, J.W.; W. J. C. Harrison, M.O.; R. J. Emerson, S.O.; Walter B. Wallace, J.O.; The Rev. G. W. Sicklemore, Chaplain; Lewis Finch, (elected) Treasurer; Horace Friend, Regr. of Marks and Secretary; Wm. Crawford, S.D.; John Finch, J.D.; Wm. Larkin, Org.; Walter Searles, I.G.; George Meager, (elected) Tyler. The respective exhortations to the W.M., Warden, Overseers, and brethren were delivered in an impressive manner by Bro. Stevens, and the ceremony of installation was complete. The W.M. rose and expressed his regret that he would be obliged to leave for London immediately after the closing of the lodge, on account of the death of a relative; and he hoped that the brethren would excuse that which, except under these painful circumstances, might be considered a mark of disrespect to them. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. Stevens, and a candidate having been proposed for advancement, the lodge was closed. A banquet was then held under the presidency of Bro. Snowden, I.P.M., and we need not tell those who have ever been at the Royal Hotel on such an occasion as this, that the viands were well served and the wines excellent.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

The usual half-yearly meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland was held on Wednesday, the 6th inst., at the Crown Hotel, Penrith.

The following officers and past officers of the province were present: Bro. Col. Whitwell, M.P., Deputy Grand Master, Past Grand Junior Warden of England, Kendal; Bro. Greaves, Past Deputy Grand Master, Penrith; J. Holme, P.G.S.W., acting as S.W., Kirkby Lonsdale; H. Cook, Past Grand Superintendent Works, acting as Junior Warden, Barrow; W. B. Gibson, Grand Secretary, Whitehaven; J. Lemon, Grand Treasurer, Wigton; W. Tattersall, Past Grand Senior Warden, Kendal; E. Hughes, Grand Senior Deacon, Whitehaven; C. J. Smith, Grand Junior Deacon, Penrith; J. Porter, Past Senior Grand Deacon, Wigton; J. Pearson, Past Senior Grand Deacon, Cocker-mouth; J. Talbot, Grand Registrar, Kendal; W. Kirkbride, Past Grand Secretary, Penrith; J. Matthews, Past Grand Assistant Secretary, Penrith; E. Fearon, Past Grand Director of Ceremonies, Whitehaven; H. Rauthmell, Past Grand Director of Ceremonies, Kendal; G. Brooker, Past Grand Pursuivant, Workington; T. B. Arnison, Past Grand Sword Bearer, J. Mills, Past Grand Sword Bearer, Millom; Jesse Banning, Grand Organist, Carlisle; S. Rowland, Past Grand Organist, Penrith; D. Crosthwaite, Grand Steward, W.M. 1073, Keswick; W. Armstrong, Grand Steward, Maryport. There were also present:—From Skiddaw Lodge, Cocker-mouth, Bros. W. H. Lewthwaite, W.M.; W. F. Lamont, S.W.; Josiah Raine, I.G.; J. Robinson (Keswick). From the Lodge of Perseverance, Maryport, Bro. W. Banks. From the Whitwell Lodge, Millom, Bros. Dodgson, P.M.; J. Hartley, Sec. 995, and W. Whiteside, I.G. and W.M. 1398 (Dalton). Deputations likewise attended from Lodges Sun, Square, and Compasses, Whitehaven; Lewis, Whitehaven; Union, Kendal; Union, Carlisle; St. John's, Wigton; Underley, Kirkby Lonsdale. The remaining lodges, comprising the seventeen in the province, were not represented, viz.:—Holy Temple, Longtown; Curwen, Harrington; Solway, Silloth; Eden Valley, Appleby; and Kenlis, Egremont. Shortly after one o'clock, Bro. Greaves, the W.M. of Lodge Unanimity, Penrith, opened the Craft lodge in form, after which the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge were announced, and the Deputy Grand Master took his seat upon the throne, in the absence of the R. W. Provincial Grand Master, the Earl of Bective, M.P., through the death of his brother-in-law, the Marquis of Downshire. The lodge being opened in due form, the minutes of the preceding meeting, held at Whitehaven in September last, were read and confirmed. The provincial dues were next paid over by the representatives of lodges, after which the Grand Secretary made the gratifying announcement that the total number of subscribing members in the province is 836, of whom 86 were initiated during the past twelve months, and 24 joining members. Proceeding to charitable matters, the sum of fifteen guineas was voted from the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge to the widow of a deceased brother, together with twenty guineas for two additional provincial votes in the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. It was also agreed that the votes of the province be given towards aiding the election of the son of a deceased brother at Silloth into the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The last business on the programme was that of fixing the locale for the annual Provincial festival in September next. Two places were proposed and seconded, viz., Kirkby Lonsdale and Keswick, the festival having been held at the first-named place seven years ago, whilst it never had been held at Keswick. Upon a vote being taken a considerable majority was recorded in favour of Keswick, and it was also understood that Kirkby Lonsdale will be chosen the following year. This being the whole of the business, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in form. Afterwards the brethren adjourned to the dining hall of the hotel, where Bro. Wagstaff had provided a sumptuous luncheon. The Deputy Grand Master presided, and, after dessert had been placed upon the table, he rose and announced there would be no speech-making, simply calling upon the brethren to drink the health of her Majesty the Queen, who was not now the mother of a Mason, but the mother of Masons—princes who were connected with a fraternity in which kings placed themselves on a level with the peasant. The toast was loyally responded to; and, after dedicating a hearty bumper to the Deputy Grand Master, followed by one for the Provincial Grand Master (of course drunk in silence) the party broke up about four o'clock.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF HERTFORDSHIRE.

BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Herts was held on Wednesday last, at the Shire Hall, Hertford.

Bro. William Stuart having resigned his office of Provincial Grand Master, on account of age and infirmity, Bro. Thomas Frederick Halsey, M.P., of Gaddesden Place, had been nominated by the Marquess of Ripon, Grand Master, to fill that high and important office, and the meeting of Wednesday was appointed for his installation.

From an early hour the town had put on a very gay appearance, and was decorated with as many flags hung across the principal streets, as if Royalty had been going to pay it a visit.

The hour fixed for the meeting of the Grand Lodge was one o'clock, when the principal trains would arrive; and by that hour large numbers of persons had assembled in the streets, as it was known that in the course of the day a procession of Masons, wearing the badges of the Order, would march from their place of meeting to the church.

The town was indeed devoted to holiday making, and no one could enter it without seeing that something unusual was about to take place. Ladies and children, dressed in all the varieties of costumes which the female mind seems to delight in inventing, were seen at every turn, but it must be admitted that everything was done to make the installation of the new Grand Master a great event in the annals of Masonry.

No similar occurrence has taken place in Hertford for 30 years, that long space of time having elapsed since Bro. William Stuart assumed the reins of office, and Bro. Halsey may congratulate himself that his rule over the Craft in the province of Herts has begun under the most auspicious circumstances.

About 150 of the brethren attended, but as it was impossible to get a full and correct list in time for our present edition, we can only give the names of those we were able to ascertain. Among them were Bros. John Savage, P.G.D.; F. Binckes, P.G. Steward, P.M. 8617; and numerous brethren representing the following lodges in the province:—

Hertford Lodge No. 403; Watford Lodge No. 404; Berkhamstead Lodge No. 504; Gresham Lodge, No. 869; King Harold No. 1387.

Prov. Grand Lodge was opened about two o'clock, by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Sec., taking the chair, and proceeding with the customary ceremony.

Bro. Hervey then addressed the body, and said that they all must regret that the Immediate Past Grand Master was absent, but they must all feel great pleasure that though he had retired from his office as Grand Master, his place was to be filled by so able a brother as Bro. Halsey. Every Mason in the province must look back with gratification on the many years that Bro. Stuart had presided over them, as he was one of those men who were acceptable to the Craft, not only in this province, but throughout the length and breadth of the Masonic world. He had interested himself in every branch of Masonry, and had devoted his attention to it with a zeal that was highly commendable. His name would always be revered, and his rule of thirty years would be looked back upon as one of the happiest that had occurred in Hertfordshire. It was with great regret that they had heard that growing age and infirmity had compelled him to resign his office, but he would carry with him in his retirement the best wishes of the brethren whose cause he had always striven to promote. But it was an old saying that there were as good fish in the sea as had ever come out of it, and he trusted that the new Grand Master would be one who would carry out his duties well. There were no two opinions on that subject, and he could only hope that Bro. Halsey's reign would be as long and successful as that of his predecessor.

By the direction of Bro. Hervey, the patent of Bro. Halsey was demanded, and a deputation, consisting of the Masters or P.M.'s. of lodges 403, 404, 409, 449, 504, 869, 1327, and 1385, then left the lodge to conduct Bro. Halsey to the lodge.

On his arrival he was received with great applause. Bro. Hervey congratulated him on his selection by the G.M. and Provincial G. Secretary, Bro. Dr. Iles, read the patent. Prayer was offered up by Grand Chaplain, Bro. Lewis Deedes. Bro. Halsey took the obligation, and was then invested and installed by Bro. Hervey, who called in the brethren to salute him. This having been done, the Provincial Grand Master appointed and invested Bro. John Sedgwick as his Deputy, and the following as the remaining Provincial Grand Officers:— Bro. Magner, Prov. G.S.W.; Bro. Wilson, Prov. G.J.W.; Rev. Lewis Deedes, Rev. Newton Price, Grand Stewards; Bro. H. T. Fitch, Prov. G. Registrar; Dr. F. H. Wilson Iles, Provincial Grand Secretary; Bro. Thomas Carter, Prov. G.S.D.; Charles Lacey, Prov. G.J.D.; N. Cutbush, Provincial G. Supt. of Works; James Terry, Prov. G.D.; Harris, Prov. A.G.D.C.; Wylie, P.G.S.B.; Allan, Prov. G. Purst.; H. Camplin, E. Francis, Hargreaves, Copstick, Cussans, and Wingham, Prov. G. Stewards; Thomas and Wright, Prov. G. Tylers.

Bro. Alfred Copeland was unanimously elected Grand Treas., and invested by the Grand Master. A committee of brethren, one to represent each lodge, was elected to audit the accounts.

A procession was then formed, and headed by the Grand Master, proceeded to the church, where to a crowded congregation, the R. Grand Chaplain preached an excellent sermon from the Corinthians xiii. 13, on Freemasonry.

On returning to lodge a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Deedes, who informed Grand Lodge that the collection in church amounted to £25 8s. This was to be divided between the Hertford Infirmary and Visiting Society.

On the motion of Bro. Hodges, seconded by Bro. George Lambert, £10 10s. were voted the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, the male fund, £10 10s. for the female fund.

A vote of thanks was also passed, and directed to be sent by the Grand Secretary to the Rev. Mr. Lindley, the curate in charge of the parish for the use of All Saints' Church, and another vote of thanks was given to Bro. John Hervey for installing the Prov. Grand Master.

Prov. G. Lodge was thereupon closed, and the brethren sat down to a splendid banquet, provided by the Hertford Lodge, No. 403. The room was beautifully decorated, the walls being hung with banners and festoons, and there being also a plentiful display of flowers.

After the banquet grace was ended, and ten toasts were proposed, Bro. Ransford and other musical brethren at intervals favouring the brethren with some excellent songs.

In giving the first toast of "The Queen," the Provincial Grand Master referred to the accession of Prince Arthur to the Craft, and in giving "The Most Worshipful Grand Master," in a laudable manner in which he discharged his duties. In giving "The Past Grand Master the Prince of Wales, and Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of Grand Officers," he applauded the zeal with which the Prince of Wales had entered into Masonry. And speaking of the Earl of Carnarvon said that the ability with which he conducted Grand Lodge business in the absence of the Marquess of Ripon met with the approval of all members of the Craft, and of the rest of the Grand Officers, of whom many were present, it was unnecessary for him to say anything as to their discharge of their duties, as every one who knew anything of the business of Grand Lodge knew well how admirably they performed all that was required of them.

Bro. John Savage responded. Bro. John Hervey, proposed "The Health of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master." There were some toasts, he said, which require recommendation, but this one would, he was sure, be so universally acceptable that it recommended itself. Bro. Halsey would do just to the office in which he had been that day installed and if the whole county had been polled there was no brother who would have been elected in preference to Bro. Halsey.

The toast having been drunk with immense enthusiasm.

The Provincial Grand Master said, I have to thank you most sincerely for the kind manner in which you have greeted this toast, and I assure you that it is a most gratifying and encouraging circumstance that I should be received in this manner at the onset of my career as Prov. G. Master. I can only say that I find that I have a very hard task to fulfil, coming into the office after one who has held the office in the province for more than a quarter of a century who was, I believe, the oldest Provincial Grand Master, under the English Constitution. I find that after such a Grand Master, who has been preceded by another brother, whose name was always honoured in the county, the Marquis of Salisbury, that I am placed in a difficult position. I come after distinguished brethren, it will need all my energies and exertions to perform my duty, and to tread in their footsteps. I can only say I will endeavour to do so, that I shall look to you to support and help me in that task. It is for you to smooth my way (hear, hear.) From the reception you have given me this evening I think you will help me that on all occasions I shall receive from the brethren of this province the support which it would be impossible for me to factorily to discharge the duties that may devolve upon me, however arduous they may be. I am, my dear brethren, very truly yours, Bro. Halsey.

taken a great stride.—(hear, hear)—since even in the short time that I can remember, many new lodges have formed, and I hear rumours of more new lodges still. (Hear, hear.) I am called upon to preside over eight lodges, and I can only say that I trust as long as I have the honour to preside over the province those eight lodges will go on and progress, and even where there is room, and I think in some parts of the province there is still room for lodges, for there are places where they might be well established, without, as far as I can see, any injury to existing lodges. I hope it will be my lot to consecrate lodges in those places. It will be my endeavour to conduct the business of this province with impartiality and fairness. You must remember that it is not a very easy province to preside over. You know yourselves better than I can tell you what the communications are between different parts, and consequently you will understand that it is very difficult, as the western side of the country and the eastern are almost like two separate districts altogether, to obtain the knowledge which it is desirable for us to have, and to find out the wants of all the brethren all over the country. Therefore I feel that at any rate for some years to come, until I get more experience than I have got now, there must be, do what I will, shortcomings and mistakes on my part. (No, no.) But, I can only say that those mistakes I will make as few as I can, I will endeavour to promote Freemasonry in every part of the province with impartiality and energy. (Hear, hear.) But after all I can do nothing, my deputy can do nothing, and the officers can do nothing, without the support of the brethren, and therefore, I say, I look to the brethren of the province to support me, as long as I hold the office to which I have been appointed, and I feel sure from the reception I have met with this evening, and on other similar and important occasions on which I have happened to be in Masonry in my province since my formal appointment there, that you will support me. I derive from to-day's reception great encouragement in the path on which I have entered. I will say no more for myself, except that I trust that any shortcomings of mine you will pass over, and give me credit for best intentions. You know there is an old saying "That it is impossible to please everybody," and therefore there may be occasionally some little temporary dissatisfaction; but I am sure that if there should be any at any time, those who feel it, on reflection will see it was perfectly unintentional on my part that any cause was given for it, and that it ever will be so. I trust in you to support me and to meet me in the spirit in which I shall endeavour to discharge the duties of Grand Master in this province. (Hear, hear.) Before I sit down I have to perform another duty which devolves upon me, and it is one which I perform with the greatest pleasure. I have this day been installed in the chair of this province, and I think you will all agree that you have had a great Masonic treat. (Hear, hear.) You have in the first place had a ceremony which is not one of very frequent occurrence, and which, therefore, must give satisfaction to every brother to be present as from the day in which that ceremony was conducted nothing more impressive could have taken place in any assemblage of Masons. (Hear, hear.) I shall, therefore, ask you to show your approbation of the manner in which the ceremony was performed, of its impressiveness and solemnity, by drinking "The Health Bro. John Hervey," who came down to day purpose to perform the ceremony. (Great applause.)

The Prov. G. Master then proposed "The Health of the Past Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy P.G.M., and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers past and present.

Bro. Wilson, Prov. G. J. W. responded.

The toast of "The Masonic Charities," which was given in very happy terms by the Prov. G. Master, was responded to by Bro. F. Binckes, on behalf of the Boys' School, and by Bro. James Hervey, on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, the latter brother taking occasion to thank the Prov. G. Lodge for their liberal donation just voted to that institution.

In giving the toast of "The Visitors," the Prov. Grand Master remarked that the brother whom he would call upon to respond to it, Bro. Edis, W.M. of the Westminster and Key-stone Lodge No. 10, was the first brother he ever initiated.

"The Lodges of the Province," coupled with the name of Bro. Wagner, W.M. No. 403, having been given and responded to, a song brought the proceedings of a most successful day, which reflected the highest credit on all the brethren engaged in making the arrangements, to a close.

The dinner was admirably supplied by Bro. Andrews, of the Salisbury Arms, and gave un-mixed satisfaction.

Masonic Tidings.

The fifteen sections will be worked on Monday evening next, the 27th inst., by members of the Strong Man Lodge of Instruction (No. 45) at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, at 7 p.m. The following brethren will work the sections, Bros. Pulsford, Rogers, Constable, Talmie, Defriez, Morrison, etc., etc.

A meeting of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will be held on Friday, 15th May, at Freemasons' Hall, for the election of ten annuitants on the Freemason Widows' Fund from a list of thirty-one candidates. Full particulars will be duly advertised.

We understand that the under mentioned will in all probability be included in the list of Grand Officers for this year:—S.G.W., Bro. Lord H. Thynne; J.G.W., Bro. Percy Leith; Deacons, Bros. Rucker, Parkinson, and ex-Sheriff Hutton; A.G.D.C., Bro. Hadley; A.G.P., Bro. Wright.

NEW BARONET.—Bro. George Elliot, late M.P. for North Durham, has received the dignity of Baronet. By profession a mining engineer, he became President of the Mining Institute some years ago, and is now said to be the largest colliery owner in the world. He has also taken a large share in the direction of telegraphic enterprises, notably the first Atlantic cable. Mr. Disraeli, in acquainting Bro. Elliot with the distinction conferred upon him, wrote:—"In laying the matter before her Majesty I wished to show my sense of your great services to the Conservative cause, and of the enterprise and energy of your useful and honoured life."

[Bro. Elliot is W.M. of the Bard of Avon Lodge, and father-in-law of Bro. J. C. Parkinson.]
A National Great Priory, of the United Religious, and Military Orders of the Temple will be held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Friday, May 8th, 1874, at 3.30.

A Priory of the Order of Malta will be held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Friday, May 8, 1874.

THE "MASONIC STUDENT" v. BRO. CHALMERS I. PATON, P.M.

All those interested in the discussion respecting Masons Marks cannot do better than look through the Freemason for the last few months, and then in view of all the facts, they should read the last letter from Bro. Paton in the Freemason of the 17th inst., and the communication from the "Masonic Student" of the 18th inst.

Our able and distinguished Brother "Masonic Student" has so well and so fully answered Bro. Paton, and is so thoroughly capable of proving all he has said on the subject, that we have no intention of continuing the correspondence unless brethren bring facts to support their statements, and are ready to consider the question from other standpoints than their own.

We should state that this Masonic Student has no equal that we know of in this country as an authority on Masons' Marks, their archaeological and masonic bearings, and their general characteristics, either under the operative or speculative periods of Freemasonry, therefore

Bro. Paton's ipse dixit when opposed to the former's well considered assertions and facts are simply worthless,

ANOTHER IMPORTANT WORK ON FREEMASONRY.

The Library Committee of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, U.S.A., has been authorized by the Grand Master and officers to prepare a memorial volume, commemorative of the Dedication of the new Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, September 26th, 1873. Full particulars will be afforded therein of the dedicatory ceremonies and procession, in which 12,000 brethren took part, and all matters of interest respecting the laying of the corner-stone, the halls of the several lodges, chapters, and commanderies. The addresses and orations will be carefully noted, and receive due attention. The work will be embellished with views of the various halls of the lodges, Chapters, &c., to assemble in the splendid building, and the volume will be prepared in the highest state of typographic art, bound in cloth, and will be furnished to subscribers only. The names of subscribers will be inserted in the work up to July 12 next, and the book will be ready for delivery about September, 1874.

We strongly advise intending subscribers to apply at once to our good friend and brother Charles E. Meyer, 722 Second-st. Philadelphia, Penna., (U.S.A.) for copies. The price will be five dollars (£1) exclusive of carriage, and P.O. orders may be made payable to Charles Eugene Meyer, of Philadelphia.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

Grand Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Clabon, President; Bro. Joshua Nunn, S.V.P.; and James Brett, J.V.P. There was a large muster of brethren, who voted £405 to deserving cases, in sums varying from £5 to £40. There were ten widows cases, one orphan's case, and nine brethren.

MASONIC SONG.

As brethren we meet one another with joy,
And tender each other the hand,
That should ne'er proffered be when'er aught of alloy
Intertwines thoughts so noble, so grand,
That we ne'er give the right hand of fellowship
In our bosom dwells aught but regard.
Thus one for another shall have hearty cheer,
And shall none wish for other reward.
What pleasure it gives us united to be,
And to feel that in lodge all is pure,
Where aided by sympathies generous and free
Our shortcomings are thought of no more.
Since life in this world is but frailty's scheme,
We must try and do more than bestow
Our "hearty good wishes" on him who by deed,
Helps those whom misfortune lay low.
Then joyful we'll be whilst on earth we remain.
There's plenty of work to be done;
If we stand by each other we always shall gain,
Those kind words which so sweet are when won.
'Mid the battle of life may true brethren e'er feel,
In the warmth of sincerity dear;
That the "word," "sign," or "token" will always reveal,
Those fraternal points Masons revere.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—"Dismiss your doubts."—Let no one be longer oppressed with the notion that his malady is incurable, till these purifying pills have been used with the most marked success. A course of this admirable medicine clears the blood from all impurities, and improves its qualities. The whole system is thus benefited through the usual channels without the reduction of strength, shock to the nerves, or any other inconvenience; in fact health is renewed by natural means. For curing diseases of the throat, windpipe, and chest, these pills have established pre-eminently a world-wide fame, and in complaints of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, they are equally efficacious.—ADVT.

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1874.

THE RESTORATION OF WORCESTER CATHEDRAL.

We have received the account of the elaborate services and successful gathering by which the the opening and restoration of Worcester Cathedral on April 8th, were duly celebrated and completed.

To use the words of a local paper, "after a period of nearly twenty years' restoration, and an expenditure of some £80,000., Worcester Cathedral was at last reopened with great ceremonial, and much festivity and rejoicing, which have not been surpassed in "the Faithful City," within the recollection of "the oldest inhabitant."

All classes and all authorities seem to have combined in this great day of rejoicing, when the "Domus Dei," "the holy and beautiful house" of their fathers, was restored, after years of apathy and neglect to all of becoming reverence, and chaste ornamentation for the honour and worship of Almighty God.

Our Masonic brethren in Worcestershire seem to have taken a laudable interest in this good and needed work, and to have contributed, alike by their generous presence and fraternal offering to promote the success of the day's festivity, and to show their interest in the result of long labours so munificently supported and so successfully achieved.

And it is very interesting for our speculative Order to day to know and to believe, that our Free and Accepted Brotherhood is the lineal descendant of the operative lodges and the Craft Guilds, which in days gone by raised those mighty structures, which we admire to day, which adorn our own and many other lands, and which raise in us all, we believe, emotions of piety and sympathy and of admiration.

No one we think, can traverse the noble aisles of our great Minsters and Cathedrals, and look at their noble proportions or majestic pillars, cunning tracery, or gaze up at the fretted roof, without feeling how great, how divine, how noble, how sublime, how elevating, how refining, and its elevating influences on mankind.

The great Erasmus is credited of old with a fine passage in respect of some such great buildings of religious worship.

Tanta magistate sese erigit in cœlum ut et intuitibus religionem incutiat,

And few of us, we believe there are, who have ever loitered amid the sacred walls of these great evidences of the piety and munificence of our fathers, but must have felt the like sentiment of reverential regard, and must rejoice to think that we have still architects and Masons competent to mend and restore what the devouring hand of time has touched and marred, and to give to us, and for the use of future generations, a glorious and holy house of God in our land.

But the question has often arisen, who raised these great and superb edifices, and how did that we see so much unity of design and similarity of treatment?

The answer, in our humble opinion, to these questions, is that these buildings were raised by the ways erected and designed by the guilds and lodges of the operative Masons.

All these cathedral bodies had a lodge attached to them of "Freemasons" or "Latomi," as they were called in Christchurch Canterbury, with its Master, Wardens, and members, and the more famous Malton, where the Masons went from county to county, often to their lodge, after their local and immediate work was over.

We find in the old fabric rolls, mention of some Master, working now North of the Trent, and now South of the Trent, now down in the Eastern Counties, now in the Western part of our land.

When a great work was to be undertaken, there were no contracts in those days as we understand contracts), a Master Mason was appointed who brought as many Masons as were required, who all received so much per day, under the supervision of a "Magister operis," until the work was concluded.

We find, indeed, contracts to build Cathedral Church, and Fotheringay Chapel, and other doubt may be added where the Master Mason undertakes to complete the whole work at certain prices, or at a given sum.

But as a general rule, the work was carried by day work, under the architectural direction of the Master Mason, and under the personal supervision of a Controller or Surveyor of the work, generally a member of the Cathedral body! It is much to be desired that the fabric rolls of our Cathedrals were accessibly to students or carefully edited as in the case of York, as we should find in them, many of the deepest interest, still, to us as Freemasons.

Let us hope that a better day is dawning on the study of Masonic Archaeology, and that we may rejoice to think and to remember, that though the operative character of the work is now gone, yet the spirit of the work remains, and that we may return, our hearts full of admiration.

unceasing testimony to the skill of the ancient Craft guilds, and the unchanging excellency and beauty of the noblest of arts, the most benign of labours—Architecture.

MR. CUFFE.

The Rev. Mr. Cuffe, Military Roman Catholic Chaplain to the troops at Chatham, thought it well in the exercise of his spiritual duties, "pousser si loin," sa "charité chrétienne," as Molière says, so as to deny even the rights of burial to a Roman Catholic soldier, Bro. Sergeant Johnstone, simply because he was a Freemason.

This reverend and charitable representative of the Roman Catholic Church grounded his intolerant refusal to perform the last sacred duties of religion to a fellow religionist, on this most absurd reason, that, by becoming a Freemason, Sergeant Johnstone ceased to be a Roman Catholic.

We stated at the time, that, such a "dictum," however dogmatically announced, was utterly indefensible and untenable, even on the authority of the Roman Catholic canon law itself, that the reverend gentleman had no valid ecclesiastical authority of his own for the course he pursued, or the opinions he put forth, and that in so acting, while he violated every precept of our common Christianity, he was not upheld even by any actual Roman Catholic pastoral, or decree, or bull, or law, on the subject.

We are glad to have our views confirmed by no less an exalted personage than the present excellent and benevolent Pontiff himself; Pius the Ninth, of infallible authority, remember, to Roman Catholics, whether speaking "ex cathedra Petri," or presiding over an œcumenical council.

We ask our Masonic brethren to read a letter of his, which we take from the Chaine de l'Union of April, the letter having appeared in a Roman Catholic paper of Florence, the Journal de Florence, and having been quoted by the National of March 16th, this year.

The was addressed to Monsignor Freppel, Archbishop of Angers, in France.

Vénérable frère, salut et bénédiction apostolique.

Par votre lettre en date du 27 du mois dernier, nous avons vu qu'en publiant parmi vos diocésains, par le mandement que vous nous avez envoyé, Notre Encyclique récemment donnée, vous avez jugé nécessaire de leur rappeler les constitutions apostoliques par lesquelles les sociétés dites des Franc-maçons sont condamnées par le Siège apostolique, et les très-graves censures encourues pour ceux qui en font partie. Nous louons très-fort, vénérable frère, le zèle que vous avez montré à ce sujet, et qui est tout à fait digne de la charge épiscopale que vous exercez.

Nous déplorons aussi, vénérable frère, que de cette source, même des sectes condamnées soit sortie, pour la perte des âmes, une autre société pernicieuse appelée Ligue de l'enseignement, travaillant à extirper radicalement, surtout de l'âme des enfants, la foi catholique, et s'efforçant d'exercer impunément par toute la France les industries de son iniquité. Bien que nous sachions que dans votre diocèse vous vous êtes empressé d'appliquer votre sollicitude pastorale à combattre un pareil fléau, cependant, en raison de la gravité de cet objet, nous ne voulons pas omettre de vous exciter dans le Seigneur à persévérer dans les efforts de votre zèle, pour la garde de notre troupeau, en persistant à stimuler la vigilance de vos fidèles, et en vous appliquant avec ardeur à arracher du champ qui vous est confié ces déplorables plantations que cultivent les enfants des ténébres.

Pie IX, page.

We need hardly translate this remarkable letter, as the French is alike so easy and so simple; but we quote it, mainly for the purpose of pointing out, how very different is the position assumed by the most reverend Pontiff and the combatant Cuffe, and how advisable it would be for the latter intolerant and unsound divine to study his own canon law, before he again ventures to put forth the childish and unwarranted dogma, that, all Roman Catholic Freemasons cease to be Roman Catholics, being, as we see, entirely contradicted by the Infallible head of his own Church.

EARLY GRAND ENCAMPMENT IN SCOTLAND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having but lately become a member of the Early Grand Encampment, I am therefore ignorant of the true history of the rival bodies of Knight Templars at present existing in Scotland, and should feel obliged if some brother would kindly give me information on the following points, or state where I may obtain the same:—

1. Was the Early Grand Encampment recognised as legal in Scotland, prior to the formation of the Chapter General?
2. If recognised as legal then, by what right do they declare its members to be illegal and spurious Knights Templar now?
3. How many of the Encampments were present at the formation of the Chapter General, also how many of the Encampments have since that date joined the Chapter General?
4. Have the Early Grand Encampments at present in existence in England and Ireland any Grand Councils in connection with them; if so what is their time and place of meeting?

Hoping you will find space for this in your valuable paper, I remain,

Yours fraternally,
EARLY GRAND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your last impression Bro. W. F. has again fallen into what I will still call "unintentional error," for I have no wish to make "short work either of the E. G. Encampment or its members." On the contrary, I would do all that I could to forward their best interest, which I conceive lays in union.

W. F. asks me to quote the passage referring to Royal Arch Chapters acting under the Chapter General of K. T., saying that he "don't clearly see any reference to the Supreme Chapter and the Chapter General. W. F. does not quote me correctly. I never used the word Supreme when speaking of the chapter, but used instead the letters R. A. Chapter, and now to quote the passage on which I was commenting:—"Bro. F. A. Barrow and his office bearers are also members of the Royal Arch Chapter and Knight Templar Encampment, acting under the Chapter General of Scotland." If this passage of "Fiat Justitia" or W. F.'s is not very clear, it is the writer's fault, and not mine; it bears the construction I put upon it, for there is nothing in it to disconnect the Royal Arch Chapter spoken of from the Knight Templar Encampment referred to. It is also borne out by the context "They" (namely Bro. Barrow and his office bearers) "have but recently become connected with the Chapter General themselves." He then goes on to describe the offices held by Brother Barrow, ending thus:—"He is also Supt. of the Royal Arch Chapter in the province and also holds a position in the Encampment." It was in reference to this part that I explained that he was Superintendent of all the chapters of the province, but he held no position in the Encampment, he never having been even a member thereof.

I can understand how this confusion of ideas has arisen in the mind of F. J. and W. F., as under the E. G. Encampment, the R. A. degree is given as well as the K. T.

While I lay no claim to the title so kindly given me by W. F. of being "The Champion of Legality in Scotland," I am an advocate for union, and should like to see all legal bodies that are at present unrecognised, united upon equitable terms with those supreme heads of orders that are recognised by all the grand bodies in the Masonic world.

Yours fraternally,
G. W. WHEELER.

FATHER CUFFE.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see in page 207 of The Freemason, April 4th, a letter from "P.M." upon the subject of the Roman Catholic Army Chaplain, Priest Cuffe, refusing to bury the remains of Bro. Armourer-Sergeant Johnstone, because he was a Freemason. "P.M." is surprised that no notice has been taken at Chatham upon this painful subject. I took the matter up in your journal February 14th, at the same time I wrote an account of it to one high in authority in Grand Lodge, stating the reason why Priest Cuffe refused to perform the service over the remains of our Bro. Johnstone, leaving it to be completed by the Protestant Chaplain, who could have no scruple in doing such a charitable service to an upright man, where the only crime was that of being a Freemason. I strongly requested that the subject might be brought before Grand Lodge of England, and if nothing could be done, that at the least Grand Lodge should notify to all Provincial Grand Lodges that the W.M.'s of the lodges in their provinces should inform every Roman Catholic that before joining our Craft he should be informed that the act of becoming a Freemason would subject him to "the greater excommunication."

I received a reply from another officer of Grand Lodge, to the effect that the subject could not be entertained by Grand Lodge. Thus, as a loyal and obedient Freemason, I felt myself bound to proceed no further in this matter.

Still I think lodges 20 and 1174 might most effectually lay the subject before the Masonic public; and, I am sure the Freemasons in the northern provinces will join them in any Masonic step they may lawfully take.

I am painfully aware how much indignation is felt in these provinces that such an uncharitable act should be allowed to pass without some protest from the Masonic body in England. It would appear that we tacitly and tamely submit to the decree of a foreign prince who has no jurisdiction over the subjects of this land of freedom; and long may dear old England know, and duly appreciate her high privileges.

I remain, yours fraternally,

AUGUSTUS A. BAGSHAW, M.A.
P.S.G.W. of Derbyshire, and P.P.G. Chaplain,
I.P.M. Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann, 1235.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Bro. Paton would fain get out of his difficulties in connection with this subject by telling us that he was only dealing with Speculative Mark Masonry, per se, and that he had nothing to do with Operative Mark Masonry. But it so happens that, however he puts it, my remarks at page 174, were perfectly justifiable on account of the mistakes he made in dealing with his subject, and even to-day, at page 221, in place of keeping clear of further errors, he persists in adding a slip or two more, e.g. he says, p. 221, "a mark ought to have an odd number of points, and this I maintain is what has been taught in lodges for more than one hundred and fifty years." Now, I deny that, and challenge him to bring forward the slightest substantial evidence of the existence of any Mark Degree so early as one hundred and fifty years ago?

Above one hundred and fifty years takes us back to before A.D. 1724, but my study of the subject leads me to consider that the Mark Degree never existed until long after 1724. Bro. Paton also asserts, on page 221, that my letter on page 174, "throws no light upon the subject," but I feel inclined to say that that is scarcely true, because although my remarks at page 174 are short, yet I referred the reader who wished further information upon the subject to certain back numbers of The Freemason, where that information could be got. Inter alia, I referred to page 550 of The Freemason, for September 2nd, 1871, where the very important information is given, that the Entered Apprentice, when being entered, got his mark on payment of one mark piece for his Mason Mark.

It was generally thought that no one got his mark until he was a Fellow Craft, but the publication of the old statute above referred to showed that modern idea to be wrong. Whether I was the first to publish such a rule, or to call attention to it, I know not, only the fact remains that the rule was published and the bearing it has upon the mark Degree, and the bearing of Masons' Marks, is certainly great. In fact it was the reading of such old statutes as this that led me, some years ago to make the assertion that Speculative Masonry, in certain of its features was the renaissance in a new dress of some of the old forms in Pagan mysticism. Bro. Paton wished to uphold the custom, in vogue for some time back in Scotland, of insisting upon those getting the Mark Degree choosing their marks with an odd number of points, and he finds fault with Bro. Hughan for allowing his candidates to take either an even or an odd number of points, just as they please. Now while Bro. Hughan can certainly point to old pre-eighteenth century customs in support of his practice, I am not sure that Bro. Paton can bring forward any better foundation or origin for the views he supports that what is contained in the old song, when he says:—

"There's luck in odd numbers, Says Rory O'More."
I am, yours fraternally,

W. P. BUCHAN.

MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was much surprised to see in your last issue, in reporting the proceedings of the General Committee of the Boys' School, a notice of motion by Bro. Symonds for the General Committee on the 2nd May next, to raise the salary of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary, £50 per annum on account of length of service and his ability. The services I believe do not extend over 12 years, his ability and energy no one can doubt, and there have been many additions made to his salary, which I believe commenced at £150 per annum.

For some brethren who do not look at the annual balance sheets of our institutions this may seem a disposition to keep pace with the Secretaries of our Girls' School and Annuity Fund, whose salaries have lately been advanced £50 per annum, making their salaries £350. Those brethren perhaps are not aware that previous to the advance made to Bros. Terry and Little, Bro. Binckes's salary exceeded theirs by £150 per annum, he having been in receipt for some years of £450 per annum, besides a large amount for travelling expenses.

I think, as a governor of the Masonic Charities, there ought to be a limit to this sort of thing. Why it is only nine months ago we were startled by the announcement that at the summer fete in July last, at Wood Green, Bro. Sheriff Perkins, who presided, presented Bro. Binckes with a purse containing 1,000 guineas on a massive silver salver. This testimonial, raised by subscription, no one can object to; indeed we are glad to see our officers so highly appreciated, but as to the expenditure of our Institutions, we ought to keep the thing within a proper limit, and I think £450 per annum and the usual present from the Board of Festival Stewards, generally about £50, sometimes more, is quite ample remuneration for the services rendered.

Our Bros. Terry and Little accepted their offices cheerfully at a salary of £300 but I think with such a discrepancy where the duties are so nearly akin, it was only just to them that an increase should be made in their case. I think it was a stipulation also in their case they should not hold any other paid office, wherein our Bro. Binckes holds a very lucrative appointment as Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England, which must of necessity occupy a great deal of his time.

I hope the Governors, who are anxious for the welfare of our Masonic Institutions, will come forward on the 2nd May next at Freemasons' Hall, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon (all governors are members of the Committee) and put a stop to such extravagant expenditure, or there is no knowing where it will end.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

A LIFE GOVERNOR.

THE DOMATIC LODGE BALL.

This ball, which took place under the auspices of Bro. Frederick Kent, the W.M. of the lodge (and a member of the Court of Common Council) at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on the 9th instant, was in every respect a most brilliant and triumphant success. The idea of giving the ball originated with the W.M., who on assuming office expressed his intention of having some such entertainment and taking upon himself individually the pecuniary responsibility of success or failure. By his influence the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs and Sir Sidney Waterlow, Bart, and other influential personages, was secured, and a dispensation obtained from the M.W.G. Master. As the result has proved, the ball not only has been successful, but has defrayed the cost attendant thereon, so that no loss will accrue to the lodge. Dancing commenced at about 9 o'clock, to the admirable band of Bro. Adams, a P.M. of the lodge. Bro. Foulger (also a P.M. of the lodge) was the Master of the Ceremonies, assisted by Bros. Treadwell, Foxcroft, Scard, and other brethren, who each wore most elegant badges, which had been expressly prepared for the occasion by Bro. Kenning. The W.M. wore the full dress uniform of a Lieutenant of the 9th Essex Rifles V.C., Bro. Captain Clifton Browne, Major Weil, and several other brethren wore the uniform of their different regiments in addition to their Masonic jewels, which latter were by them worn on the right breast. Shortly after eleven o'clock intimation was conveyed to Bro. Frederick Kent of the arrival of the Right Hon. the Lord and Lady Mayoress, and he at once proceeded to the staircase to meet them, escorting Mrs. Loftus (the sister of Mrs. Kent, who was absent by reason of a recent interesting event). The Lady Mayoress then took the arm of Bro. Kent, the W.M., and the Lord Mayor escorted Mrs. Loftus to their private room, when the following presentations took place, Bro. Walford, P.M.; Bro. Foulger, P.M.; and Bro. Treadwell, and the other officers of the lodge and their ladies. A procession was then formed, headed by Bro. F. Kent and the Lady Mayoress, the Lord Mayor and Mrs. Loftus, Mr. and Mrs. Walford, Bro. Foulger and Mrs. Archer, Bro. Mead, P.M., and Miss Mead, Master S. Kent, and Miss Hannah.

A quadrille party was then formed, and the W.M. (wearing his sword as an officer), danced with the Lady Mayoress, and his Lordship had for his partner Mrs. Loftus. Several other dances followed, in almost all of which his Lordship most heartily joined, and he eventually honoured the lodge, by accepting at the hands of Bro. Kent, the W.M., the "Steward's insignia" of office, which he good humouredly invited Bro. Kent to affix to his coat, and the Lady Mayoress was also pleased to accept of the like "insignia," which she affixed to her dress, and wore during the evening. Bro. Monckton (Town Clerk of the City of London) P.M., P.G.D.C., &c., joined the company late in the evening, and had the honour of dancing with the Lady Mayoress. His Lordship's many engagements requiring his attendance elsewhere, he was reluctantly compelled to leave before supper, and the W.M., Bro. Kent, and Bro. Monckton politely escorted his lordship and the Lady Mayoress to their carriage, both remarking to Bro. Kent as they left, that they had enjoyed themselves immensely. At the supper table Bro. Kent occupied the chair, and was well supported by several distinguished brethren, and their ladies.

After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured, Bro. Monckton rose, and responded to the latter toasts, taking occasion also to propose (in concluding) the health of "The W.M. and Chairman" that evening. He said that it was a great pleasure to him to see the W.M. in so honourable a position; he had presided with admirable tact in the ball room, and he was equally at home in the chair that evening. The success which had attended his efforts to make the brethren happy would, he hoped, be some reward to him for the anxiety and patience he had bestowed in the discharge of his duties. He hoped the company would drink to his good health and receive the toast with "Kentish Fire." This was most heartily given, and the W.M., on rising to respond was received with most enthusiastic cheering.

In reply, Bro. Kent said:—Bro. Monckton, ladies, and gentlemen, the splendid sight I see before me, the "bright eyes" which I see around me beaming with happiness, because you are happy, and your hearty cheers, convince me that I made no mistake when I proposed this ball. Long may we all live, and may this scene at no distant date be repeated; but, brethren, I have to speak now of charity, the noblest gem in our Masonic diadem, I tell the ladies advisedly that their husbands are doing a wise thing when they become Masons, liable as they are to have large families, and on this point I can speak with authority, it is indeed a comfort to know that after an honourable career, and when the icy hand of death overtakes them, their brethren will not forget their wives and children.

The W.M. associated with the toast of "The Charities" Bro. R. W. Little, P.M., P.Z., and the Secretary of the Girls' School.

Bro. Little in reply made a most telling and effective speech.

The remaining toasts were "The Stewards," which was responded to by Bro. Walford, P.M., "The Visitors," and "The Ladies," the latter being responded to by Bro. Ferguson, another P.M. of the lodge, who in the course of a humorous reply referred to the 4th degree which they were enjoying, and the 5th, i.e. dancing, in which the ladies were most proficient, which was then to be renewed.

Over 250 persons attended the ball, and a letter was received from Sir Sydney Waterlow, Bart., M.P., expressing his great regret at his inability to be present. We understand that Bro. Kent is preparing a summer excursion, or what he calls the "Ladies' Day." [We wish him success.]

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF YORKSHIRE, (NORTH AND EAST).

The brethren of the Province of North and East Yorkshire assembled in the Guildhall, York, which had been fitted up as a lodge, under the banner of the York Lodge, 236, on the 9th inst., and at half-past twelve the M.W. the Grand Master of England, the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., together with the Past Provincial Grand Officers, entered the hall in procession from the Mansion House, where they had previously assembled by invitation of the Lord Mayor. The Grand and Provincial Grand Officers were numerous, and represented some of the highest offices in the Craft. Among those present, besides the M.W. the Grand Master of England, we observed the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, Grand Master Designate of North and East Yorkshire; Gen. Marwood Esq., P.D. Prov. G.M. of the North and East Ridings; Bentley Shaw, Esq.,

Apr. 25, 1874.]

West Yorkshire, &c. The total number of officers and brethren present exceeded 400.

The Grand Lodge having been opened in solemn form by the Grand Master, who was duly saluted,

The Marquess of Ripon returned his hearty thanks for the reception which the brethren had given him, and said it afforded him the utmost pleasure to be present on that most interesting occasion, namely, that of undertaking the most agreeable duty of elevating to the proud position of Grand Master of the Province of North and East Yorkshire, their noble brother the Earl of Zetland. It was a very great satisfaction to have it in his power to continue the connection between this province and the honoured name of Zetland. That was the object which had specially called them together that day; and without further remark he would proceed to the discharge of that duty.

The Earl of Zetland was then introduced and installed Grand Master of the Province, with the customary ceremonial, and having been duly invested, ascended the throne, from which he proceeded to designate and invest the following brethren as his Provincial Grand Officers:—

- Dr. John Pearson Bell D.P.G.M.
- J. Marsh P.S.G.W.
- Dr. Bennett P.J.G.W.
- Rev. W. Valentine Chaplain.
- C. H. Priestley P.G. Registrar.
- W. C. Peck P.G. Secretary
- J. Fearn Holden P.G.S.D.
- F. Dickenson P.G.J.D.
- John Hudson P.G. Supt of W.
- J. W. Teal, M.A. P.G.D.C.
- W. Petchell P.G.S. Bearer
- Thomas Oats Organist.
- J. Ward P.G. Pursuivant
- Thomas Crier P.G. Tyler
- Major R. W. Hollon Treasurer

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master (D. Bell) then presented to the Earl of Zetland the following address, which had been beautifully engrossed on vellum as follows:—

"To the Right Honourable the Earl of Zetland, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire.

"May it please your Lordship,
 "We, the Grand Officers, Past Grand Officers, and Members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of the North and East Ridings of Yorkshire, and others being Brethren of the Order within the Province, beg to offer to your Lordship our heartfelt congratulations on your appointment as Provincial Grand Master, and to hail you with universal acclamation as our Chief.

"The Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, in selecting your Lordship to occupy the vacancy caused by the lamented decease of your deeply revered predecessor, conferred upon us a high honour, and we feel proud in the continued alliance between the Province and the illustrious house of Dundas. In your Lordship's person we have the pleasure of seeing the third Earl Zetland in succession occupying the Masonic Throne of this Province, and we are confident that with such examples you will emulate their virtues and equally reign in the hearts of the brethren.

"Long, very long, may your Lordship preside over us! May you be preserved in health and strength to be a blessing to your family and the country at large; and when your course in this world shall have been run, may you enter the Grand Lodge above, and receive from the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe a crown of joy and rejoicing which shall never fade away.

"Given at York on the day of your Lordship's installation, this ninth day of April, A.D. 1874."

The Grand Master, who was loudly applauded on rising, expressed the intense pleasure and gratification he had experienced in listening to the very flattering address which they had just presented to him. He felt very much touched by the terms of that address, as it bore pleasing references to those who had gone before him in discharging the duties of the office which he had now the honour to hold. He felt that he had been appointed to a very high and very honourable office, and one of very grave responsibility.

He felt that responsibility all the more because he followed one who had won the praise and good-will of the entire province, and the testimonials to whose worth, coming from so many quarters, were a matter of which they could readily understand he was justly proud. Those tokens of their affectionate regard for his predecessor would, he hoped, ever be an incentive to greater exertions on his own part to follow, however humbly, in the footsteps of one whose memory was so revered. He thanked the brethren very heartily for the kind reception which they had given him, as well as for the flattering address which they had presented; and he hoped and believed that he might rely upon the whole of the officers of the provinces for the best possible assistance in promoting the welfare of Freemasonry, not in the province only, but throughout England.

After some business had been transacted, a cordial vote of thanks to the Dean and Chapter, for granting the use of the Minster to the Prov. Grand Lodge, was passed unanimously, and then the lodge was closed.

The following was the order of the procession.

- Two Tylers with drawn swords.

In the above order the procession left the Guildhall, en route for the Cathedral, by way of St. Helen's-square, Blake-street, and Duncombe, street. A large crowd had been patiently awaiting their arrival and various, as, no doubt, the expectations of the onlookers had been, there was only one opinion, and that a most flattering one, as to the neatness, appropriateness, and beautiful workmanship of the regalia, and other emblems and symbols of the Craft. During the time of the procession the sun shone brightly, the Minster bells rang merrily, the pavements were thronged with interested crowds, the windows of the houses with beaming faces, and thus without a hitch to mar its progress, the western doors of the Cathedral were reached by a procession thoroughly representative of the true-hearted Englishman, the generous philanthropist, the cordial friend, and the sympathy which is ever displayed in any deserving case by the "Free and Accepted Mason."

At half-past two o'clock there was a special service at the Cathedral, which was very largely attended, the choir being crowded. Admission prior to the arrival of the procession was by ticket, and so liberal had the local committee of management been in the distribution of these tickets, which were most eagerly coveted, that nearly the whole of the East end of the choir was filled, principally with ladies, one result being that when the Masons arrived, the seats in the body of the choir were not capable of accommodating the large gathering of Freemasons, many of whom had to stand, and others to occupy the side galleries. No sooner were the great West doors thrown open, than a voluntary on the magnificent choir organ was played by Dr. Monk, P. Prov. G.O., the Organist of the Cathedral. Entering by the West doors, the procession, which was met by the clergy of the Cathedral, passed along the nave, which was thronged with spectators, who obtained a capital view of the Masons as they passed at a slow and measured pace. The sight was most imposing, the glittering and varied hue of the regalia of the Craft, and the splendid architectural vista obtained of the choir from the centre of the nave, constituting a beautiful sight, and one rarely witnessed. On arriving at the entrance to the choir the procession halted, and the brethren divided, facing inwards, and forming an avenue through which the Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Master, and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, preceded by the Standard and Sword Bearers, passed to their seats. The first to enter the choir were the choristers and songmen, with the Rev. W. A. Wightman, the Rev. W. Haworth (vicars choral), the Rev. T. Falkner (sub-chanter), the Rev. Canon Residentiary Thorold, the Venerable Archdeacon Jones, and the Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of York. Then followed the Masons in the order in which they had been in the procession, who branched off on each side of the choir, and took up the seats allotted to them. It was observed that the Right Hon. John March (Lord Mayor of York) occupied the stall which is appropriated to the head of the York Corporation. On the Masons taking up their respective positions an agreeably diversified array of regalia was to be seen on every hand—blue and gold or silver, light green and white, and purple and gold, with an occasional stuff gown or scarlet sash, all with aprons and sashes, and many with cuffs.

The order for evening prayer was intoned by the Rev. T. Falkner, the responses being by Tallis. The Psalms, Nos. 127 and 128, were according to the Anglican Psalter Chants. The Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were chanted in A., by E. G. Monk, P.P.G.O. The first lesson was read by the Rev. Canon Thorold, and the second by the Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of York. The anthem was "Great is the Lord," by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. Ousely, Bart., P.M., P.G. Chaplain of England, the words being taken from the 48th Psalm.

The sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. H. W. Kemp, B.A., P.P.G. Chaplain, taking for his text the words, "Our holy and beautiful house," Isaiah 64, 11.

The concluding voluntary was Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus."

The collection was in aid of one of the admirable local charities—the York Dispensary, which does a most useful work in a remarkably quiet, unostentatious way.

At the conclusion of the service, the procession was reformed in the same order as it had been at first marshalled, and thus returned to the Guildhall, where the brethren unclashed themselves of their Masonic regalia. The Craft clothing and jewels were much admired by all who obtained a near inspection of them, a crowd of persons being collected near the west end of the Minster, and along the route to the Guildhall.

After the service at the Minster, the Grand Master, Provincial Grand Master, and brethren proceeded to the Festival Concert Room, where a very excellent cold collation had been provided. To this fully 300 brethren sat down, under the presidency of the Earl of Zetland, who was supported on his right by the Marquess of Ripon. The galleries were filled by ladies and gentlemen, friends of the brethren, and the music was supplied by the band of the 9th Lancers, who played during the dinner and at intervals afterwards. Upon the withdrawal of the cloth,

The Earl of Zetland gave the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," which was drunk with the customary honours. He next gave "Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales and other members of the Royal Family"—in the course of which he alluded to the deep interest taken by the Prince of Wales in Freemasonry, and the fact that Prince Arthur is about to enter its ranks. The toast was drunk with honours.

Next followed from the chair "The Army and Navy, with the Auxiliary and Reserve Forces."

Colonel Nason responded.

The noble Chairman said he rose with very great pleasure to propose "The Health of the Most Worthy Grand Master of all England, the Marquess of Ripon," (loud and repeated cheering.) As his Lordship was anxious to catch the train he would couple with the toast the Provincial Deputy Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Officers. (Applause.) He passed a high eulogium upon the Grand Master for the way in which he discharged the high duties of his office. (Drunk with three times three and loud applause.)

The Marquess of Ripon (who was greeted with reiterated plaudits on rising) returned his warmest thanks for the very cordial reception which they had been pleased to accord to the toast which had been proposed in terms so flattering by his Right Worshipful friend, the Earl of Zetland. It had given him great pleasure to be able to be present on that occasion, and to instal his Right Worshipful friend in the chair of that province. It was the first occasion since he had held the office of Grand Master on which he had installed any of his Provincial Grand Officers. Of course, he could not always undertake to discharge that duty, however agreeable it may have been to him to do so; and it was never easy to make a selection whilst all from whom that selection was to be made were so worthy of the highest honours. He thought he might, however, depart from his rule on this occasion, for it was but natural that one Yorkshireman should desire to do honour to another. (Applause.) Officially connected as he was with the North Riding, it was not unnatural that he should take a principal part on that occasion, an occasion on which was to be bestowed the highest honours of that great province upon one who bore the honoured name of Zetland. (Applause.) He need not tell the brethren the great claims which the late Earl had upon the affections and reverence of Freemasons; nor need he say that the late Earl's name would live honoured in the memories of English Freemasons, so long as the Craft should last. (Applause.) He (the Grand Master) had some difficulty in persuading his noble friend to accept the post; for, with a diffidence that did him honour, he shrank from it. But the way in which his lordship had discharged the duties of the high office that day, proved that he was not only entitled to the name of Zetland, but that he will merit, by his own abilities and his own merits, the affection of the entire province of North and East Yorkshire. (Loud applause.)

The Earl of Zetland was loudly cheered on rising to respond. When silence had been restored he begged to return his most sincere thanks for the warmth with which the toast had been received, and the cordiality of its reception. He hoped that the long-continued tie which had existed between his family might be kept unbroken, and without any loss of dignity or usefulness in his hands. (Applause.)

The Grand Master, in order to catch his train, here left the meeting, and was loudly cheered on his departure.

The remaining toasts were "The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Bell;" "The newly-appointed Provincial Grand Officers;" "The York Lodge No. 236, and the various lodges of the province;" "The Visiting Brethren;" and "The Ladies."

The banquet, which was of a first-class character, was provided by Mr. Abbott, of Scawin's Hotel, York. In the front of the orchestra were displayed portraits of the Right Hon. Lawrence, Lord Dundas, formerly Deputy Grand Master of England; and of the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, K.T., M.W. Grand Master 1843 to 1870.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SOUTH WALES (WESTERN DIVISION).

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge was held on the 9th instant, at Haverfordwest, under the banner of the Cambrian Lodge No. 464, by the members of which the Provincial Grand Lodge was enthusiastically received on the occasion of the installation of Major John Allen Lloyd Philipps (of Mabws) as Provincial Grand Master; who has had the honour to receive this appointment owing to the regretted retirement of Bro. Sir Pryse-Pryse, Bart. We are glad to know that the present Provincial Grand Master is an able successor to so worthy a Mason. Haverfordwest was chosen for the scene for two reasons—one being that Major Lloyd Philipps is a Pembrokeshire man, the other that the Cambrian Lodge No. 464 is, owing to the exertions of a few of its principal members, in possession of a Masonic Hall, the ground upon which it is built being freehold, and which is capable of accommodating with comfort as many persons as can be expected. On the occasion now being referred to, about two hundred brethren were present, seated in and around the spacious building, and yet ample room was left for the ceremonies of the day. The hall was decorated in chaste style. Banners depended from the capitals of pillars supporting the roof. On the walls were Masonic emblems and devices wrought in proper colours by Bro. Thomas Rule Owen, and in the recesses of windows, &c., were hot-house and other flowers arranged (as only ladies can arrange) in perfection of harmony of colour and design. The exertions of these aides-de-camp of the Local Committee cannot be too highly praised, they contributed greatly to the pleasure of the meeting, and their services were specially referred to by the R.W. Prov. G.M.

The brethren having taken their seats, the members of Provincial Grand Lodge, and visitors of distinction having been duly marshalled by Bro. Pell, 1072, P. Prov. G.D.C., entered the hall in procession, and the chair was taken by the R.W. Theodore Mansel Talbot, Grand Master for South Wales, East Division, who as Install-Master opened this Provincial Grand Lodge, being supported by his able Deputy, Edward J. Morris, Capt. S. G. Homfray, D. Prov. G.M., Monmouthshire, together with the Grand Wardens of this province, Bro. George T. Smith, G.S.W., P. Prov. G. Sec., P.M. W.M. 1072; and Bro. W. J. Morgan, G.J.W., P.M. 476. The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the meeting held at Carmarthen on the 25th July, 1873, were read and confirmed.

Announcement having been made that Bro. Major J. A. Lloyd Philipps, Prov. Grand Master, was in attendance, Brothers George Parry, P.P.G.S.W.; Thomas Phillips, P.P.G.W.; J. W. Szlamper, P.P.G.J.W.; Dr. G. Griffiths, P.P.G.S.W.; F. Rule Owen, P.P.G.R.; John James, P.P.G.S.D.; and David Davies, P.P.G.J.W.; being seven Senior P.M.'s and members of Provincial Grand Lodge, were deputed to escort the R.W. Prov. G.M. into the Masonic Hall. This having been duly performed, Bro. Geo. Parry, P. Prov. G.S.W., presented the R.W. Brother for the benefit of installation, and he, having been obligated, was placed on the throne by the R.W. Prov. G.M. for South Wales, Eastern Division, in his usual style (i.e. perfection). The R.W. Prov. G.M. was then saluted in ancient form under the direction of Bro. Geo. Parry, P. Prov. G.S.W.

Report having been given that the D. Prov. G.M. was waiting to be admitted, Bros. V. Huggey, P. Prov. G.S.D.; F. Rule Owen, P.P.G.R.; M. Nicholson, P.P.G.S.D.; S. J. White, P.M., and John James, P.P.G.S.D. were deputed to escort the Worshipful Brother for the benefit of installation. Having been received in due form and obligated, he took his proper place in the Provincial Grand Lodge.

(The patents of Prov. G.M., and of D. Prov. G.M., were read, and ordered to be entered on the minutes.)

The W.D. Prov. G.M. was duly saluted, Bro. Geo. Parry again leading.

The accounts of the Provincial Grand Treasurer were received and adopted.

The R.W. Prov. G.M. then proposed, in able and complimentary terms, the re-election of Bro. Capt. Henry Williams, P.M. No. 366, as Provincial Grand Treasurer, which, having been seconded by Bro. George Parry, P.P.G.W., was carried by acclamation.

The R.W. P.G.M., then appointed and invested his Provincial Grand Officers for the ensuing year, viz.:

Bros. T. J. White, P.M. 464, Prov. G.S.W.; J. Beavan Phillips, W.M. 670, Prov. G.J.W.; the Rev. W. L. Stradling, W.M. 366, Prov. G.C.; Capt. Henry Williams, P.M. 366 (re-elected), Prov. G. Treas.; T. Rule Owen, P.M. 464, G.R.; Stanley J. Balcombe, S.W. 1072, G. Sec.; H. D. Reynolds, G.S.D.; W. Milligan Phillips, W.M. 464, G.J.D.; Wm. Davies, P.M. 476, G.S.W.; David Rees, P.M. 671, G.D.C.; A. J. Hughes, I.D. 1072, G.S.B.; W. L. Harding, P.M. 464, G. Org.; Joseph Gregory, 1177, G.P.; Thomas Baker, 464, A. Daysh, 366, C. W. R. Stokes, 1177, T. Cousins, 990, Prov. G. Stewards.

The R.W. Prov. G.M. proposed that a vote of thanks should be recorded on the minutes of this Provincial Grand Lodge to Theodore Mansel Talbot, Esq., the R.W. Prov. G.M. for South Wales (Eastern Division) for his kindness in attending on this occasion, and for performing the ceremony of Installation.

The motion having been carried by "acclamation," the R.W. Prov. G.M. (Eastern Division), returned thanks in a most cordial manner, saying it was not the first time he had had the pleasure of meeting the brethren of the Western Division. In fact he looked upon South Wales as one Province, but with two Commanders-in-Chief, so well did they always pull together. The P.G.M. for South Wales (Eastern Division) concluded by thanking his Prov. G. Officers, and members of different lodges in his Province for their support on this occasion.

It was resolved that Bro. J. Beavan Phillips, G. J. W., P. G. R., W. M. 671, be appointed to represent this Province at the anniversary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys in 1875, and that £20 be voted towards his list. Bro. J. Beavan Phillips was also appointed "Charity Commissioner," to receive and exchange votes for either of the Institutions. £55s. was voted to the Haverfordwest Infirmary, on the motion of Bro. Thos. Phillips, P. G. W., seconded by Bro. Geo. T. Smith, P. G. W.

Bro. F. Binckes, P.M., P. G. Steward of England, returned thanks on behalf of the Clergy, and specially thanked Bro. J. Beavan Phillips for proposing, and this Provincial Grand Lodge for voting the grant to the Boys' School, concluding an able speech by urging the brethren to contribute to the list of the G. J. W.

The Provincial Grand Lodge being closed, the brethren were formed into procession by Bro. J. Pell (who throughout the day performed his arduous duties in a most satisfactory manner), and proceeded to St. Mary's Church, when the G.O. Bro. the Rev. W. S. Stradling, preached an excellent sermon taking as his text the 4th verse of the 1st of Solomon. The G. Org., Bro. W. S. Harding, presided at the Organ. Service being over the brethren returned to the Masonic Hall, and subsequently sat down to a banquet comprising every delicacy of the season, provided by the Misses Reynolds, of the Salutation Hotel, whose catering gave great satisfaction. The cloth having been removed the usual loyal toasts were duly given and heartily responded to. Upon the D.G.M. rising to propose "The Health of the Prov. G.M., Major J. A. Lloyd Phillips," which he did in well chosen terms, he was received with a perfect storm of cheers. The toast having been drunk, the G.M. rose to return thanks, his rising being the signal for the renewal of the cheers, and for a few moments he could not proceed. The G.M. subsequently proposed "The Health of the P.G.M. Brother Sir Pryse-Pryse, Bart., and of the D.G.M., Bro. the Rev. Latimer M. Jones," than whom a better Mason could not be found. The latter having responded the G.M. proposed "The Health of the R. W. Theodore Mansel Talbot, G.M. South Wales, Eastern Division," thanking him for his kindness in attending to instal him. This too was most heartily received. "The Healths of Bro. Edward J. Morris, D.G.M. South Wales, Eastern Division, and of Bro. Capt. S. G. Homfray, D.G.M. Monmouthshire" were duly given, most warmly received, and acknowledged by each of those excellent brethren, whom this province is always glad of the opportunity to welcome. The toast of the Provincial Grand Officers, coupled with the names of the Grand Wardens, was given from the chair, and responded to by Brothers Thomas J. White, S.G.W.; and J. Beavan Phillips, J.G.W., "Our Masonic Charities" brought forth a most able speech from Brother F. Binckes, P.G. Steward Eng., who was received with ringing cheers. The proceedings of the evening were enlivened by some excellent singing by Bro. W. Milligan Phillips, Captain Homfray, L. Davies, Videon Harding, (who created a perfect furore) and by the excellent delivery of Othello's "Address to the Senate" by Bro. Binckes.

Obituary.

BRO. CAPTAIN A. C. MOTT.

A noble man and a genuine Mason has gone to his rest and reward, while a very large circle in Liverpool and residents in nearly every part of the world are left to drop the tear of genuine sympathy over the memory of Bro. Captain Andrew Cook Mott. For very many years his name has been familiar as a "household word" amongst the members of the marine and Masonic bodies in Liverpool, and as one who knew and valued him highly remarks "It will be difficult to fill the blank created by the grim tyrant." The news of Bro. Mott's death came like a sudden shock to many last Monday morning, and one could scarcely realise that a dear brother, whose manly form stood prominent on every great Masonic occasion, and whose useful services whenever required were always at hand, would never more be seen in the circles which were so frequently gladdened by his presence. The gallant captain, who had been the hero of many a stirring adventure by flood and field, was only fifty-two years of age, and the suddenness of his death was, therefore, all the more astonishing. Although suffering to some extent, he attended the meeting of the Provincial Grand Chapter of West Lancashire, of which he was P.G.S.N., held at Wigan about a fortnight ago, at this was his last public Masonic appearance. He shortly afterwards was compelled to keep to his room, and, becoming gradually worse, he expired on Saturday evening last, the 18th inst., from congestion of the lungs, at his residence, "The Ferns," Litherland, near Liverpool. Our deceased brother leaves a widow and eight children to mourn his loss.

It would be exceedingly difficult to over-estimate the many valuable qualities possessed by Bro. Captain Mott, and which he so happily ought to bear upon the performance of his civil, public, and Masonic duties. Sterling honesty was the chief characteristic of a useful life, and in addition he displayed a rare combination of manliness, disinterested zeal, brotherly sympathy with all that merited it, a readiness at all times to help the distressed and raise the fallen, and an unswerving loyalty to the Masonic Order, with which he was peculiarly identified, and for which he gave up many a spare hour. It is impossible in this brief notice to do more than indicate a few of the offices which Bro. Captain Mott filled in connection with the Order of Freemasonry. He was a P.M. of the Merchants' Lodge, No. 241; a Past Master of the Skelmersdale Lodge, No. 1380 (filling the post of W.M. when Lord Skelmersdale, the first W.M., was unavoidably absent; P.Z. of the Merchants' Chapter: P.P.G. Sec. of the Provincial Grand Chapter of West Lancashire; honorary member and P.M. of numerous Craft lodges; P.P.G.S.B. of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire; and at the time of his death he held the distinguished position of P.G.S.W. of P.G.L. of Cumberland and Westmoreland, where he was as highly valued and esteemed as in the province with which his name was more particularly associated. He also occupied the part of Grand S.B. in the National Great Priory of the order of Knight Templars. It is a literal fact that scarcely any member of the Masonic body in this part of the country was equal to Bro. Captain Mott in a knowledge of the whole Masonic ritual, not only in connection with Craft Masonry, but also in other Orders, such as Knights Templar, R.A., Mark Masonry, &c., and it is perhaps not generally known that he was amongst the first Red Cross Knights in Liverpool. At consecrations and installations it has long been considered an honour, as it was a pleasure, to have him in the presiding officer's chair, and his loss in this particular section of Masonic work will not easily be made up. He was most extensively known and valued, however, as the Hon. Sec. of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution for the Education and advancement in Life of the Children of Distressed and Deceased Freemasons, a post which he held for many years. It was the dream of his life to see that noble institution have an invested capital of £10,000, and happily he lived to see that "dream" a reality, though alas! his death has taken place just after the reality has been reached. It is owing in a very large measure to the untiring zeal and great ability with which he discharged his duties as Honorary Secretary that that institution now occupies the enviable position of having an invested capital of upwards of £10,000, and that during its existence it has done so much to promote the sacred cause of charity in a pure, unostentatious, and legitimate manner, by giving timely and valuable help to the children of many a distressed and deceased brother. With him the institution was a pet scheme, and he nursed it with all a father's care, never wearying in doing what he could to further its best interests. Let us fervently hope that the G.A.O.T.U. will now watch over and prosper the widow and fatherless children of our departed brother, who did so much for the widow and fatherless in his life time. It should also be stated that Bro. Mott was Treasurer of the Liverpool Masonic Relief Committee, which has done a large amount of good during its existence. In view of all this noble labour, every brother must heartily exclaim, Requiescat in Pace.

Bro. Mott, who for upwards of eighteen years held the office of Superintendent of the Mercantile Marine of the port of Liverpool, was also a Lieutenant of the Royal Naval Reserve Force. In his position as Superintendent of the Mercantile Marine, Captain Mott was called upon to discharge duties requiring the exercise of great judgment, and in the shipment and discharge of crews and in other important matters connected with the Mercantile Marine of the port and the Royal Naval Reserve Force he so judiciously exercised his authority as to secure the esteem of the leading shipowners and the confidence of the men. The writer can bear testimony to the courtesy and gentlemanly bearing of Captain Mott, who was always ready to give every information in his power to aid the publication of matters of interest in connection with the shipping of the port. In the organisation of the Royal Naval Reserve Force he took an active part, and his practical knowledge was found of great value to the Liverpool contingent of that body.

The funeral of our deceased brother took place on Tuesday morning, at St. Mary's cemetery, Kirkdale, and was very largely attended.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.
"We recommend yours as the best."—Medical Review.
In Quarter, Half, and Pint Bottles.
CAUTION.—Spurious and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that Bottle and Label have the name and Address, "T. Wilkinson, late Wilkinson, Bridge, and Co., No. 270 Regent-street, London."

RUPTURES.—BY ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.
WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER TRUSS
Is allowed by upwards of 500 Medical Men to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of HERNIA. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, sitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss, which cannot fail to fit, forwarded by post, on the circumference of the body, two inches below the hips, being sent to the MANUFACTURER,
Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.
Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d. and 31s. 6d. Postage free of a Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 36s. and 41s. 6d. Postage free of a Triple Truss, 41s. and 46s. 6d. Postage free. Post Office Orders to be made payable to JOHN WHITE, Post Office Piccadilly.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEECAPS, &c.
The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly ELASTIC and COMPRESSIBLE and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of WEAKNESS, VARICOSE VEINS, &c. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s., and 12s. each. Postage free.

LENFIELD STARCH is the only kind used in Her Majesty's Laundry. Those Ladies who have not yet used the Glenfield Starch, are kindly solicited to give it a trial, and carefully follow out the directions printed on every package. It is rather more difficult to use than other Starches, but when this is overcome, they will see the Queen's Laundress, that it is the finest Starch they used. When you ask for the Glenfield, see that you get it.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief to Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such false remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which is at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it relieves cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment of this disease."
This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Indigestion, Nausea, Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. LODGE OF TRANQUILITY (No. 185).—An unusually small number of members of this lodge met at Cannon-street Hotel, E.C., on Monday, the 20th ult. This paucity may possibly have arisen from the fact that the magical word, "banquet," at a specified time, had on this occasion been either inadvertently or intentionally omitted from the summons. Most of the Past Masters were, however, present, and the meeting was also honoured by several visitors. The programme for the evening was light. The third degree was conferred upon Bros. Bayley and Smith, and Mr. Thomas James was admitted into the Order in the usual way. Bro. John Constable, the W.M., presided. It is therefore needless to enter into a lengthy description of the perfect and impressive manner in which the ceremonies were performed. Bros. John Ross and Barnett, the Wardens; David Posener and Childs, Deacons; and Bro. Croaker, as I.G., acquitted themselves very creditably indeed. Bros. John Peartree, Hon. Treas., and Phil Levy, Hon. Sec., (whom the W.M. was pleased to designate the Father and Mother of the lodge, without distinctly specifying which was to be considered the mother), rendered valuable assistance at their respective posts which they have occupied upwards of fifteen years. The banquet, not sumptuous, was plentiful and agreeable. The various toasts, propositions as well as responses, must be considered witty, because they were brief, and the brethren uttered no complaints, but seemed delighted with the brevity. Altogether the temper of the assembly was such as is usually presumed to exist in a united snug family party. The proceedings were interspersed with songs by Bros. John Ross, Child, P. Levy, Wood, and Barnett, the latter also presided at the piano. Bro. Thomas James, the newly-initiated, heartily thanked the brethren for accepting him among them, hoped to become a useful member of the Craft, and to mark the sincerity of his sentiments, at once subscribed 25s. to the lodge's private benevolent fund. The visitors, Bros. Garrett, P.M. 183; Boys 294; Wright, W.M. 196; St. Hilliers, J.W. 251; Wood, J.W. 438; and Weingott, I.G. 15, responded each on their own behalf, Bro. Weingott being so pleased with the proceedings in the lodge, as well as his reception at the festive board, that he begged to be accepted a joining member, provided he could do so without leaving his Mother Lodge. The P.M.'s present were, Bros. N. Moss, Bloomfield, Harfeld, Holok, S. Solomon, S. E. Moss, E. Gottheil, and Glückstein. Bro. Martin Bamberger, of 141, was unanimously accepted a joining member.

SCARBOROUGH.—Old Globe Lodge (No. 200).—The brethren of the above lodge gave an amateur Dramatic Performance on Tuesday, the 14th, in the Londonborough Theatre, Scarborough, in aid of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The performance commenced with the comedy "Still Waters Run Deep," the W.M. of the lodge, Bro. W. G. Knight, and the Potter of Bro. G. O. Crowther, D.C., deserve special mention. Mrs. Sternhold was splendidly acted by Mrs. Curtis, a lady of great dramatic abilities; Mrs. Mildmay, was badly represented. The comedy appeared to have been well rehearsed. Bro. G. O. Crowther, D.C., during the evening recited "The Wake of Tim O'Hara," which gave great satisfaction. The programme finished with Charles Selby's Farce of "The Boots at the Swan." At intervals during the evening the band efficiently rendered sweet harmony under the able direction of Mr. G. Dixon, of the 3rd R. Y. Artillery. A dispensation having been obtained for the purpose the brethren appeared in full Masonic clothing, and conjoined with the splendid toilettes of the ladies, produced a very brilliant effect in the theatre. The performance was well attended and was under distinguished patronage.

SOUTH MIDDLESEX LODGE (No. 851).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at Beaufort House, West Brompton, on Thursday, the 23rd ultimo, when there was a large attendance of the members and their friends to witness the installation of Bro. P. Kirke, the W.M. elect, late S.W., an old and much esteemed member of the lodge. After the usual formal business, which succeeded the opening of the lodge, Bro. Davis, having undergone the usual examination as to his knowledge of the first degree, was passed to the degree of F.C., after which Bro. Kirke, the W.M. elect, was presented in due form, and having given his assent to the principles laid down in the Book of Constitutions a Board of Installed Masters was formed and Bro. Kirke was duly installed into the chair of K.S., the ceremony being very ably performed by Bro. Jones. The incoming Master then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows:—Bros. Pamphilon, S.W.; H. Egan, J.W.; Major Radcliffe, P.M., Treasurer; Shuter, P.M., Secretary; Singleton, S.D.; Todd, J.D.; Cooper, P.M., D.C.; Wilberforce Bird, I.G.; Blewell Pollard, Steward; Woodstock, Tyler. In performing this ceremony the W.M. presented to the lodge a handsome P.M.'s collar, with which he invested the I.P.M., Bro. P. H. Jones. A presentation of emblems of mortality was also made to the lodge by the new J.W., Bro. Egan. A handsome Past Master's jewel, voted by the lodge to Bro. Jones, was presented to him, with a few appropriate remarks, by the W.M., and Bro. Jones thanked the brethren for having bestowed upon him this mark of their approval of his conduct in the chair. The newly installed W.M. then proceeded to initiate Mr. William Young, Mr. John Grove, and Mr. Charles Henry Cumberland, into the mysteries and privileges of the first degree; after which the report of the Audit Committee was presented to the lodge, and this concluding the business of the evening, the lodge was closed in due form. The members and their friends then sat down to an excellent banquet, which did great credit to the canteen arrangements of the South Middlesex Volunteer Corps, of the members of which, we believe, the lodge is almost wholly, if not entirely, composed. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured, that of the Grand Officers being responded to by Bro. Snell, P.G.D. The Chairman then rose and said that the next toast he had to propose to their notice was the toast of the evening. The members of that lodge were good Masons, and as such were devoted to the Craft, and ever anxious for the spread of Freemasonry amongst good and true men. He was sure therefore that this toast would be well received, as it was the health of the three brethren that had that evening been admitted into the Craft, and whom he was sure they were all of them anxious to give a hearty welcome to, more especially as from the very commendable attention they had paid to the ceremony they had gone through there appeared to be every reason to believe that they would make very good Masons. He therefore had very great pleasure in proposing "The Health of the Brother Initiates." The three initiates having returned thanks, Bro. Jones, I.P.M., rose and said that they all knew there, that when the W.M. entrusted the gavel to other hands, what toast was about to be proposed. He should therefore make but few remarks in proposing "The Health of the W.M. in the Chair." Those brethren who had belonged to the lodge since its foundation have known Bro. Kirke as one of its earliest members, and one of its most steadfast supporters. A more regular attendant it would be almost impossible to find, and it afforded him exceeding pleasure and satisfaction to be the first to propose his health as W.M. of the lodge. From the comments made that night he augured well for the success of Bro. Kirke's year of office, of which if it ended as auspiciously as it had commenced he might well be very proud of. They all knew him so well in the regiment, at drill, at review, at the festive board, and they always found him the same Bro. Kirke, the same zealous workman, genial companion, and kind friend; and he had great pleasure in asking them to rise to drink his health. The Worshipful Master having returned thanks, proceeded to propose "The Health of the Visitors, the Past Masters and the Officers of the Lodge." Thanks for the former being returned by Bro. the Hon. E. Curzon, a Past Master of this lodge, who had ceased to be a member, but was present on this occasion as a visitor, and the latter was acknowledged by Bro. Jones, I.P.M., who took that opportunity of referring to the presentation they had made to him of the handsome jewel it was his happiness to wear on his breast. This he told them had always been the acmé of his ambition, and unlike many things they looked forward to, the realisation was not less than the anticipation. He acknowledged that he had always taken a great interest in the South Middlesex Lodge, and having now for twelve or thirteen years attended its meetings and performed those duties he had been appointed to fulfil, he now found himself intensely happy in passing to that haven of rest on the left hand side of the chair. Before he sat down he would also refer to one other matter which should have been done before. It was to their Worshipful Master that they were indebted for the I.P.M. collar and jewel. They had not previously had one, and the W.M. thought that that was a state of things that should no longer exist, and had therefore presented one to the lodge, a jewel which the speaker had then the pleasure of wearing for the first time, and which he trusted would be handed down from Master to Master for many generations, in honour of their brother who succeeded the chair on this evening. Among those present, besides those we have had occasion to name already, we observed Bros. Whitchild, P.M.; Cooper, P.M.; Wellsman, Weaver, P.M.; Worthington, P.M.; Ashton Goodwin, P.M. Among the visitors there were Bros. H. F. Kirke, St. Luke's, 144; J. Thomson, 834; E. Snell, P.G.D.; Holt, Fitzroy Lodge, Grand Steward; Wormald, Lodge Celtic 291, Scotland; C. E. Fluker, 1325; H. Fluker, 1325; Hon. E. Curzon, Pullen 144; Henry, Lodge St. Clair, 349, Scotland; and Goderich, 231. After a very pleasant evening the brethren separated at a late hour.

ROYAL ALBERT LODGE (No. 907).—The last meeting of the session of the above lodge was held on the 20th ult., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-st. The W.M., Bro. F. H. Miller, was assisted by the following officers—Bros. F. H. Miller, S.W. and W.M. elect; S. H. P. Moore, J.W.; R. Stevenson, S.D.; the Rev. Holden, J.D. and Chaplain; F. White, I.G.; Jos. Smith, Treasurer; W. H. Farnfield, Secretary. Upon the confirmation of the minutes of the last lodge meeting, the W.M. raised Bro. W. H. Wood, 1185, to the third degree. Bro. F. Griffith, S.W. and W.M. elect, was then presented for installation, which ceremony the W.M. performed with great solemnity and ability, the newly installed Master conferred an advanced step upon each of the officers of the past year, and Bro. Jennings, I.G. The Treasurer, Secretary, and Tyler, having received the confidence of the brethren were re-instated. The newly installed Master then entered upon a pleasant duty of his appointment, initiating Mr. R. W. Duncan into the ancient mysteries, which was done with considerable ability. This concluded lodge business, the brethren adjourned to banquet, and after the proverbial loyalty of the Craft had been exemplified and other Masonic toasts, the I.P.M. rose to submit the toast of the evening, viz., "The W.M.," whose moral standing and proficiency in the various duties of the lodge were too well known to need further recommendation. The I.P.M. wished the W.M. health and prosperity, in which all present cordially joined. The W.M. on rising was greeted with vociferous cheering. In reply he said: Brethren, I thank you heartily for your kind reception of the toast so ably proposed by my esteemed friend, Bro. Miller, I feel the want of words adequately to convey my gratitude for this mark of your appreciation; it is ample payment for my past services, and I shall endeavour to merit its continuance by faithfully discharging the trust you have been pleased to repose in me, and I beg you to accept the assurance that nothing shall be wanting on my part to further the interests of our lodge; before resuming my seat I have the pleasure to propose to you "The Health of Bro. T. H. Miller, I.P.M.," whose proficiency upon all occasions, and more particularly in the installation ceremony of this evening, is worthy of the emulation of every member of the Craft. Brethren, in your name and that of the Royal Albert Lodge, I place upon our esteemed brother's breast this jewel; it is a token of our hearty appreciation of his past services, and it is our fervent hope that he may live long in the memory of our hearts and that this presentation shall be a pleasing and fond reminiscence in the yellow leaf of his age. Bro. Miller, who was evidently moved by the kind words addressed to him, replied in terms expressive of his gratitude and pleasure. Bro. R. W. Duncan replied to the toast of "The Initiates" in such phraseology that augurs well for his future progress in the science; he asserted that he had not known himself until the happy moments of his initiation. Bro. Terry replied on behalf of the charities with his usual good grace and eloquence. His appeal for support was answered by the W.M. undertaking a Stewardship for the next Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, an invariable course pursued by each Master of this lodge. It was also mooted that Bros. T. H. Miller and J. Dennis, were Stewards for the forthcoming festival of the Girls' School. We trust that the commendable rivalry existing between these two brethren will materially assist the charity. The toasts of the "Past Masters" and "Visitors" were ably given and liberally responded to, the former included all the financial P.M.'s of the lodge, and amongst the latter we observed Bros. Montem Smith, Roberts, Field, Smeed, Black, Lane, Lester, and several others too numerous to mention. The remaining toasts brought a very enjoyable evening to a close, the pleasures of which were considerably enhanced by music and singing under the direction of Bro. F. H. Cozens, Organist of the lodge, assisted by Bros. Montem Smith, Lester, Carter, and Farquharson. We were surprised that no mention was made of the handsome tools and furniture presented to the lodge by Bro. T. H. Miller, P.M., and Bro. T. Griffith, W.M.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Lodge (No. 1094).—The usual quarterly meeting of the brethren of the Temple Lodge, No. 1094, for installation and other purposes, was held at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on Wednesday afternoon, the 8th ult., and as the occasion was one of special interest there was a specially large and particularly influential muster of the brethren of the mystic tie. Without doubt, the lodge holds first rank in the province of West Lancashire as embracing many brethren of the highest standing, and the hearty and unanimous election at the previous meeting of Bro. Richard Washington, S.W., to the chair of W.M., was at once a recognition of well-known zeal on his part and an evidence that the brethren were not insensible of the numerous noble qualities of head and heart which have made him so popular. The lodge was opened shortly after three o'clock, by Bro. Richard R. Martin, W.M., and the officers who assisted at the opening were:—Bros. W. Crane, P.M.; R. Danson, P.M.; Dr. J. K. Smith, P.M.; Dr. E. M. Sheldon, P.M.; T. Gibson, S.W.; R. Washington, J.W.; J. Wood, Treas. J. Marsh, P.M.; P.P.G.A.D.C.; P. Prov. G.S.B.; S. Crane, R. C. Yelland, S.D.; R. I. Jeffery, T. G.

lain; A. C. Doe, S.; and W. H. Ball, acting as Tyler. The members of the lodge present during the ceremonial of the afternoon were Bros. H. B. Jones, W. Callow, W. Durrows and Critchley, T. Birch, H. Horspool, E. Chater, H. Jones, T. S. Williams, J. Spiers, T. H. Williams, J. Pyer, J. R. Callender, jun., and others. As showing the popularity of the election, there was an unusually large attendance of visitors, some hailing from distant parts of the country. Amongst the strangers were Bros. Henry Pearson, P.M. 249; J. Beesley, P.M. 220; T. Ashmore, P.M. 824, 323; J. J. Rose, W.M. 249; P. Macmildrow, W.M. 1299; W. Jones, P.M. 220; J. Hayes, J.W. 259; W. Hamilton, J.D. 249; H. W. Nicholas, I.G. 249; J. Grimes, S.W. 1086; G. Maxwell, 594; G. Collings, 1182; A. D. Hesketh, 1182; G. H. Turner, 86; T. Wright, 1283; W. Lee, 111; W. Curtis, 1035; G. T. H. Lyall, 833; J. Alexander, 1564; W. G. Veale, O. 1556; T. Yeatman, 667; W. Oldham, 823; T. Evans, 1023; E. Lovatt, 1336; J. Jarvis, 220; J. Cave, 220; J. B. MacKenzie, 349 and 1182; and A. Barnard, 249. The minutes of the previous meeting having been duly confirmed, Bro. Washington was presented by Bro. J. K. Smith, P.M.; and Bro. T. Marsh, P.M., to Bro. R. R. Martin, presiding as Master, for the benefit of installation. The obligation and other initiatory portions of the installation ceremony were very impressively given by Bro. Martin, who deserves the greatest praise for the manner in which he did this section of the work. All below the rank of Installed Master then retired and a numerous board of Installed Masters was held. On the readmission of the brethren the remaining part of the ceremony of installation, as well as the charges to the officers, were very ably given by Bro. Dr. Smith, P.M., whose Masonic capability was once more clearly shown by his working. At the close the following were invested by the new W.M. as the officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. R. Martin, I.P.M.; R. C. Yelland, S.W.; W. Healing, J.W.; Jos. Wood, Treasurer (re elected for the ninth time); T. Marsh, Secretary; H. Jarvis, S.D.; T. G. Winstanley, J.D.; A. C. Doe, I.G.; T. S. Williams, S.S.; H. B. Jones, J.S.; J. C. Ewbank, Chaplain; J. Skeaf, Organist; R. Danson, P.M., M.C. Bro. P. Ball was unanimously re-elected Tyler. On the motion of Bro. R. R. Martin, seconded by Bro. Joseph Wood, it was unanimously resolved to vote a sufficient sum from the lodge funds in order to constitute Bro. W. Crane, P.M., a Life Governor of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. Bro. Crane having feelingly acknowledged the high compliment thus paid to him, the W.M. proceeded to initiate three candidates into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, which he did in a most effective manner, the "working tools" being admirably given by Bro. Healing, J.W., and the "ancient charge" in a most impressive manner by Bro. Yelland, the S.W. At the conclusion of the business, the brethren sat down at seven o'clock to a sumptuous banquet, prepared by Mrs. Wright, of the Coffee House, Wavertree, which gave complete satisfaction to everyone. The W.M. (Bro. Washington), presided, and after dessert had been placed on the table he proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in complimentary terms, Bro. Thomas Marsh, P.P.G.A.D.C., and P.P.G.S.B., responding to that of "Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M., and the Hon. F. Stanley, M.P., D.W.P.G.M., and the P.G. Officers of the Province of West Lancashire." Bro. Dr. Smith, proposed "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," which was acknowledged by Bro. Joseph Wood, Treasurer of the Temple Lodge. Bro. Martin, I.P.M., gave "The Worshipful Master," in most eulogistic terms, spoke of the high estimation in which he was held by every member of the Craft who knew him. Bro. Washington made a very appropriate and pointed reply, assuring the brethren that it was his intention to spare no effort to make the lodge equal to its former standard during his year in the chair. The W.M. subsequently proposed "The Visitors," which was acknowledged by a number of brethren from other lodges. During the evening of the esteem and affection felt for him personally by the members of the lodge, and also as a recognition of the excellent work he had done during his year of Mastership. Other toasts followed, and a pleasant evening was greatly enlivened by several splendidly rendered songs, Bro. W. G. Veale, Organist, 1356, presiding with great ability at the piano. Chief amongst the musical items was the celebratory topical song, given by Bro. H. W. Nicholas, I.G. 249, "In a Quiet Sort of Way," brought down to the very latest period, and "touching up" persons and circumstances in connection with that merry meeting in a peculiarly happy style.

HAMPTON COURT.—Burdett Lodge (No. 1293).—The usual April meeting of the above lodge was held on Saturday, 25th ult. Present, Bros. H. Phythian, W.M.; Keily, S.W.; Pease, J.W.; Little, Treasurer; Buss, Secretary; Berrie, S.D.; Wilkins, I.G.; the R.W.P.G.M. Colonel Burdett; Raynham Stewart, Still, Shabo Wiles, Kotzenberg, Baxter, Sanders, Coalban Bindoff, Ruf, Groombridge, Owen, Sisson, Sadler, and George Kenning. Visitors, Bro. Colonel Peters, W.M. Thames Valley Lodge; Sir Gilbert Campbell, P.G.S.W.; Kimbo, W.M. Campbell Lodge; Dr. Woodman, Thielke, and many others. The W.M. discharged the duties of the chair in a very able manner, the being two initiations, passings, and raising. Five guineas was voted from the lodge funds, to be placed on the W.M.'s list for the Girls' School. Bro. Pease and Phythian, were recommended to the Grand Master for Grand Officers in the province. The lodge was then closed, the brethren dined together, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and responded to, and Bros. Kimber, Baxter, and others contributed to the harmony of the meeting by their vocal and recitative powers. The brethren then returned at an early hour to town in a saloon carriage kindly provided by the South Western Railway Company.

LEICESTER.—Commercial Lodge (No. 139).—The second anniversary and installation meeting of this highly prosperous lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, on Friday, the 17th inst. The choice of the brethren having fallen upon Bro. Dr. George Clifton, S.W., who has attained a considerable position in his profession during the few years he has practised in this town, the lodge assembled in the afternoon, and the installation of the W.M., by Bro. J. Halford, the retiring Master, was proceeded with, after the usual preliminary business had been transacted. The regular course of the ceremony of the newly installed Worshipful Master was proclaimed and saluted in the three degrees, and he subsequently appointed and invested his officers follows:—Bros. John Halford, I.P.M.; R. Barber, S.W.; A. G. Chamberlin, J.W.; Waite, P.M., Treasurer; E. Mason, Secretary; George Watts, Asst. Secretary; B. Moore, S.J. G. Crofts, J.D.; E. Ewing, I.G.; Willi Chamberlin, Master of Ceremonies; A. Chamberlin, Organist; E. McBride, and E. Butler, Stewards; C. Bembridge, and J. Du Tyers. The addresses to the Worshipful Master Wardens, and Brethren, were delivered in most impressive manner by the installing officer who on resuming his seat was in turn addressed by Bro. Clifton, in eulogistic terms, expressive of the high appreciation of the efficient manner in which Bro. Halford had discharged the onerous duties of the chair during the past year; his geniality, and good discipline by which the business of the lodge had been facilitated, moxy preserved, and brotherly love continued; and in further recognition of his eminent services the W.M., on behalf of the brethren, placed upon his breast a handsome Past Master's Jewel, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. J. Halford, P.M. 1391, the officers and brethren of the lodge, as a token of their appreciation of his zeal and ability during his year of office, April 17th, 1874." Bro. Halford expressed his surprise at being recipient of such an unexpected tribute of fraternal regard, and while he deprecated any claim on his part to extraordinary merit, he thanked the lodge, he heartily thanked the brethren for the jewel, which and wear with much pride. At the close of the lodge the brethren partook of an excellent banquet, at which Bro. Clifton, W.M., presided. The loyalty of the brethren was manifested by the enthusiastic reception of the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft," and the hearty response accorded to the next in order, "The Prince of Wales, P.G.M., Princess of Wales, Prince Arthur, and the other members of the Royal Family." The toast of "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Lodge of England," was received with due honour, as also "The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire and Rutland," to which Bro. S. S. Partridge, Prov. Grand Secretary, ably responded. In submitting the toast of "Bro. Kelly, P.P.G.M.," the Worshipful Master alluded to the literary labours of that distinguished Mason, to his connexion with various scientific societies, his extensive knowledge of Masonry, and exhorted the brethren to emulate the example of their former chief in the study of the liberal arts and sciences. Bro. Kelly, in acknowledging the toast, congratulated the W.M. on his elevation to the chair, and the success and importance the Commercial Lodge, "his youngest child," had attained since its consecration. "The Health of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Clifton," was ably given by Bro. Halford, I.P.M., heartily responded to by the brethren, and modestly acknowledged by the W.M. "The Past Masters of the Lodge" received due acknowledgment from Bro. Halford, "The Sister Lodges" from Bro. A. Palmer, W.M. 279, and F. J. Baines, W.M. 523. Bro. J. Mavins, W.M. 1333, responded to the toast of the visitors. "The Officers of the Lodge" called forth able speeches from Bros. R. A. Barber, S.W.; A. G. Chamberlain, J.W.; E. Mason, Secretary; B. Moore, J.D., and other officers, including a humorous and characteristic reply from Bro. Watts, Assistant Secretary. Harmony and good fellowship prevailed until a late hour, and the evening's enjoyment was considerably enhanced by the songs of Bros. Barrow, H. Palmer, S. Tebbitt, A. H. Baines, C. Wilkinson, B. Moore, Chamberlain, Fitch, and Knight, and the recitations of G. Watts. Among the brethren present on the occasion in addition to those already mentioned, were—Bros. C. Morris, P.P.S.W.; G. Toller, P.G.W.; F. Turner, No. 55; A. M. Duff, P.P.S.D.; Wm. Weare, P.P.S.D.; J. M. McAllister, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; J. W. Smith, S.W. 279; J. F. Thorp, J.W. 523; J. H. Johnston, P.M. 129; G. B. Atkins, J. Young, A. Sargeant, 523; J. S. Tomlin, Wm. Tomlin, and others, and we specially notice the presence of Bro. W. W. Toller, Zetland Lodge 524, Hong Kong.

WALTHAM.—King Harold Lodge (No. 1327).—The monthly meeting of the above lodge took place at the Britannia Hotel, Waltham, on Tuesday, the 21st inst., Bro. J. K. Young, the W.M., in the chair. There was a good muster of the brethren, among whom were Bros. Young, W.M.; Edward Parker, P.M., P.G.P. Herts;acey, P.M. 174 and 1421; Gilbert, J.W.; Kelly, Secretary; Mooney, S.D.; Tydeman, D.; Holmes, I.G.; Cox, Fisher, Noyes, Soul, Malcolm, Bull, Price, Levey, Jacobs, Wyatt, Meldon, Skinner, Robinson, and others. Visitors, Bros. Gaskett, P.M. 1076; Platt and Middlehurst. Bros. Bull and Robinson were initiated, Messrs. Shepherd and Young. The several ceremonies were ably worked by the W.M., Bro. J. K. Young, after which the lodge was closed, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close at an early hour.

HYDE PARK LODGE (No. 1425).—The installation meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Westbourne Hotel, Craven-road, W., on the 8th ult. This being the end of the first year at the lodge has been in existence, there was a large assemblage of brethren, who had met to do honour to the W.M. and his successor. Bro. Longhurst, assisted by his officers, opened the lodge at the appointed hour, and having passed o. Woodham, and raised Bros. Craig and Yes, requested Bro. George Read, P.M. and Sec., to perform the ceremony of installation. The unanimous vote of the brethren having fallen upon Bro. Tatham, S.W., he was duly presented, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, he was placed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom. The whole of the ceremony was most admirably worked, the addresses being beautifully delivered. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Savage, S.W.; Crittenden, J.W.; Langridge, Treas.; J. Read, P.M., Sec.; Rev. W. Heaton, Chaplain; Soames, S.D.; Grillain, J.D.; J. Heaton, I.G.; Clark, D.C. Messrs. Taylor, Gosden, and Ashton, being candidates for initiation, were admitted, the ceremony being worked by Bro. Tatham, in such a manner that proved the choice of the brethren had fallen upon one who would worthily fill the office of W.M. All Masonic business being ended, the brethren adjourned to a most elegant banquet. After the cloth was drawn the usual toasts were duly honoured. In proposing the health of the I.P.M., Bro. Longhurst, the W.M. expressed the gratification all the members had experienced at the able manner in which he had presided over the lodge in the capacity of first Master, and expressed a hope that he would continue to take as much interest in the lodge as he had hitherto done, and as a token of the appreciation in which he was held, begged his acceptance of a P.M. jewel, bearing a suitable inscription. Bro. Longhurst replied in a few heartfelt sentences, and assured the brethren that he should always treasure their kindness in his heart. A very enjoyable evening having been spent, the brethren adjourned. Amongst the visitors were, Cottebrune, G. Purs., Worthington, P.M. 834; J. Rendell, P.M. 776; A. Barfield, P.M. 511; W. Fame, W.M. 611.

INSTRUCTION.

STABILITY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—On Friday evening, the 24th ult., the fifty-seventh anniversary of this lodge was held at the Cannon-street Hotel, under the presidency of Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, P.G.W., R.W. Grand Master for Middlesex. This is a meeting which may appropriately be called Bro. Muggeridge's festival, and always an important feature in the doings of the Masonic year. From Bro. Muggeridge's long and industrious career as an instructor in Masonry, he is of course known to thousands, of which some hundreds are always found crowding to join in the anniversary meeting of the lodge, at which they are always sure to be gratified with a very comprehensive view of Craft Masonry in the excellent working of the various sections of its lectures. On Friday evening there must have been between two and three hundred Masons assembled in the pillar room of the Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, when the chair was taken by Bro. Muggeridge, who worked the seven sections of the lecture in the first degree, ably assisted by the following brethren:—1st section, Bro. Wagner; 2nd section, Bro. Winkfield; 3rd section, Bro. Phythian; 4th section, Bro. John Jonas; 5th and 6th sections, Bro. Scriven; 7th section, Bro. Robertson. The whole of the work was done in a very able manner, but we must do Bro. Scriven the justice to admit that the lecture on the tracing board as he delivered it, was pre-eminently good, his admirable address and excellent elocution giving full effect to that composition, of which no word can be slighted without injury to the whole. When Bro. Muggeridge had left the chair, it was assumed by Bro. Col. Burdett, P.G.W., who rose, and said, that it had been proposed by the Treas. that £5 5s. should be given to the Masonic Girls' Institution; £10 10s. to the Boys' Institution; and £5 to the Benevolent Institution. The motion having been seconded, was put to the meeting, and carried unanimously. A vote of thanks to Bro. Muggeridge was then proposed by Bro. Scriven, seconded by Bro. Snell, P.G.D., and carried unanimously. Bro. Snell then proposed a vote of thanks to those brethren who had so ably assisted Bro. Muggeridge in working the sections, which, having been seconded, was also carried unanimously. The S.W., on behalf of the working brethren, returned thanks. This concluded the business of the evening, after which a large number of those present not connected with the lodge gave in their names as joining members, after which the whole company adjourned to the great dining room, where a supper, both substantial and at the same time elegant, was provided in a style that reflected the greatest credit on the proprietor, Bro. Spencer. The President was supported on his right by Bro. Thos. Cubitt, and on his left by Bro. Muggeridge. Among those present were many very eminent brethren, but we cannot do more than give the names of a few, among whom we noticed Bros. Sir G. Campbell, Bart.; Col. Peters, Capt. Scriven, Emmens, Snell, R. W. Little, Terry, J. G. Marsh, J. F. White, Hubbuck, George Kenning, Goodyear, W. Watson, Hedges, Copestick, Spooner, Kibble, Jun., Morgan, Litord, Brownlow, Marston, Tattershall, Abbott, Arkell, Spencer, Roberts, Edmands, Limpus, Birdseye, Kibble, and others. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Ransford, P. Grand Organist, assisted by Bros. Frank Elmore, Lester, and Martin. As grace after supper the musical brethren present sang:—

"Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us;
But unto thy name give glory," being an English version of the "Non nobis," recently arranged by Bro. Ransford, and performed in public for the first time on this occasion. Many say that the words as arranged by Bro. Ransford go very well to the music, which was beautifully rendered by the experienced singers by whom it was performed. The usual toasts of "The Queen and the Craft" and "The M.W. G.M., the Marquess of Ripon," having been proposed and responded to, Bro. Lester sang "Phyllis is my only joy," in a style that called forth immense applause. The toast of "The M.W. Past Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Grand Officers" was then proposed by the president, who in doing so remarked that the Prince had proved lately that he was a working Freemason by having initiated his own brother into the Order. He believed that Prince Arthur was anxious to join the Order, and he trusted that he would make a good Mason. I have the pleasure, continued the chairman, to have more than one Grand Officer present this evening, but as one of them, Bro. Snell, is so well known in this lodge as almost to be looked up to as its father, I shall couple with this toast the name of our Bro. Snell. A glee, by Wright "With a Full Flowing Bumper," was here admirably performed by Bros. Lester, Elmore, and Ransford, and Bro. Snell having replied, Reichardt's pretty song, "Thou art so near," was rendered in a very masterly way by Bro. Frank Elmore, and elicited loud applause. The Chairman then said:—Now brethren that you are engaged in the agreeable, and I hope profitable, occupation of lighting your cigars, I trust that the toast I am about to propose to you will be warmly received and enthusiastically responded to, because it is one that must be considered as the toast of the evening. You all know what it is, "Our Bro. Muggeridge's Health." (Loud and prolonged cheering.) I was quite sure that the reception of the toast would be all that I could wish. Bro. Muggeridge has given you so much edification during the time that he has been Preceptor to this Lodge of Instruction, and I feel sure that it is not merely from vanity that our brother affords us this exhibition of his skill and of that of his pupils. There are a great many passages and a great many cases in Masonic law that are very difficult to understand, and it is therefore a great advantage to have the benefit of a brother's study who has devoted so much time to the subject as Bro. Muggeridge, whose reading has generally been found to be correct, whenever there has been a discussion over difficult passages. And speaking generally, I may say that there are many brethren of high position in the Craft, who are greatly indebted to Bro. Muggeridge for the assistance he has afforded them. I need not trespass longer upon you, and therefore conclude with proposing "Success to the Lodge of Instruction, coupled with the name of Bro. Muggeridge." Bro. Muggeridge said, Right Worshipful Chairman, Brother Grand Officers, and brethren, I rise on the present occasion with a great deal of pleasure to thank you for the very kind reception you have given me, and I assure you in all sincerity that I do not appreciate your compliment the less from the fact that I feel to have in some degree deserved it. I have done all I can or could to promote the success of this meeting, and I feel very great pleasure in doing it, but really I must tell you that it has occupied a great deal of time and attention and caused me some anxiety, but I am amply repaid by the very cordial manner in which you have received me. I assure you that the success of this meeting and the lodge is my great desire, my hobby, if you will. I may tell you that I joined this Lodge of Instruction the evening after I was initiated in 1839. Some young Masons have appeared since then, but I have grown old, but even now I do assure you that I enjoy the Lodge of Instruction beyond all else in Masonry. I cannot tell you anything fresh on these occasions, I can only return you my thanks, and so I will only repeat the old history, that the Stability Lodge is the oldest working Lodge of Instruction in London. It was founded in the year 1817, somewhere about the time when the two Grand Lodges, the Ancient and the York, were united, under his late H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex. It was presided by Bros. Philip Brodwick, Thornton, Herder, and several others, in connection with the Rev. Hemmings, and was under the management of Bro. P. Robb, till he left London. When Peter Thompson, became Instructor, and held the office till his death in 1851, when I succeeded him. During that time I have done all I could to promote its interest, and I don't think I have failed; indeed with so brilliant a meeting before me I can have no doubt upon the subject. As there are many brethren here to-day for the first time, I will repeat what I have so often said before, that this Lodge of Instruction meets from the last Friday in September to the last Friday in April, and that if they will come I shall have much happiness to receive them. Some of my friends may laugh at me for saying it, but I will state the plain fact that we meet at the Guildhall Tavern, and we pay for the use of the rooms we meet in a rent for the period. We give the Tyler 2s. 6d. each night for his attendance; all that is left goes to the Masonic charities, and I wish that particularly understood. Bro. Muggeridge concluded by again thanking the brethren for their kind reception of him, and resumed his seat amidst loud and continued cheering. "The Health of the Chairman, Bro. Col. Burdett," was proposed by Bro. Scrivens, and in replying Col. Burdett remarked upon the happiness of his lot as Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex, in having to preside over lodges in which Masonry was well understood and well worked. This he said was far from being the case in some parts of the country he had visited, where ignorance of the mere ceremonies was by far more general than London Masons could well imagine. He then proceeded to propose "The Health of the working brethren, who had so ably assisted Bro. Muggeridge, and dilated upon the excellence of their working." "The Sister Lodge of Instruction" and "The Masonic Charities" were also proposed and heartily responded to, and this large meeting dispersed after a very gratifying evening. Besides the songs above referred to Bro. Ransford sang his famous song "The Oak and the Ivy," and the following compositions were also sung, the whole being executed in brilliant style—Glee "King Canute" by Macfarren; Lever's Irish Ballad "Father Molloy," "Mary of Argyle," and "Willie brewed," from which our readers will see that there was no lack of excellent music.

Royal Arch.

GIBRALTAR.—St. John's Chapter (No. 115).—Another gathering, of no less importance than many former ones, has just been celebrated by the Fraternity on the Rock, and another Royal Arch Chapter has been added to the list. The non-existence of a chapter working in the Spanish language was felt as a want that deprived many brethren from obtaining this important degree. It was accordingly determined, with this object, to obtain a diploma, and the necessary steps were taken for the purpose. The companions, members of this new chapter, and those of the other chapters, were invited to meet in the rooms of the St. John's Lodge, to which the chapter is attached. The ceremony of consecration was performed by Comps. Morgan, Carver, J. Haynes, and Wall, and the following companions were installed as Principals:—G. Cavana, P.Z.; H. Morgan, P.Z.; J. Henry, P.Z.; Comps. Clavaresso and J. Haynes being appointed as E. and N. Of a chapter opened under such favourable auspices, it is not saying too much to predict its fulfilling the mission required of all lodges and chapters.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

GIBRALTAR.—Europa Chapter Rose Croix.—The members of this chapter assembled on the 24th ult., for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. Ill. Pr. Henry being almost unanimously elected to fill the chair of M. W.S., was at once installed, P.M.W. Ill. Pr. Gilbard, kindly acting as installing officer. The M.W. then proceeded to appoint the following Ill. Prs. to fill the various offices:—Ill. Pr. M.W. Gilbard, Prelate; Ill. Pr. R. Hepper, Sen. Gen.; A. Patterson, Jun. Gen.; F. Haynes, Raphael; Elmes, G.; Marshal, Wall, Treas. and Recorder; Trenergy, Captain of Lines; Relle, Organist; Weir, Herald; Peterkin, Equerry.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LIVERPOOL.—Skelmersdale Conclave (No. 77).—An assembly of the Skelmersdale Conclave of the Knights of Rome, and of the Red Cross of Constantine, was held at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Monday, the 6th inst., the principal business being the installation of approved candidates, the election of M.P.S., Viceroy, and Treasurer, and the appointment of auditors. There was a goodly muster of the Sir Knights Companions of the ancient and noble order. After the Knights had taken their several stations in the Conclave Chamber, the proceedings were solemnly opened by Em. Sir Knight Henry Nelson, M.P.S., supported by Sir Knights J. T. Callow, V.E.; Jesse Banning, S.G.; W. Cotterell, J.G.; Henry Jackson, H.P.; Thomas Ashmore, Past Sov., Treasurer; John McCarthy, Recorder; J. Rose, S.P.; J. Skeaf, J.P.; W. Carbin, S.B.; H. Morris, Orator; C. Leighton, Org.; W. Quayle, Herald; and P. Ball, Sentinel. The members of the Conclave present were Sir Knights W. H. Cooper, E. Clements, J. Clatworthy, J. Dawson, T. Large, R. H. Evans, J. T. Russell, J. Atkinson, J. Lolley, J. S. Kelly, H. Burrows, W. Matthews, and Joseph Wood (Treas. of No. 55 Conclave). The only visitor present was Sir Knight J. Kelly, No. 55. After the conclave had been duly opened, and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Charles Munro, of the Everton Lodge No. 823, was balloted for, elected, and installed in accordance with the impressive ceremonial of the Order, each of the officers doing his work in a most satisfactory manner. The election was then proceeded with, and the following nominations were unanimously adopted by the members of the conclave:—Em. Sir Knight J. T. Callow, M.P.S. elect; Sir Knight W. Cotterell, Viceroy-elect; and Sir Knight T. Ashmore, P.S. re-elected Treasurer; Sir Knights R. H. Evans, and T. Large were appointed Auditors. The conclave was then closed in harmony, and the assembled Knights adjourned to refreshment.

COCKERMOUTH.—Dyke's Conclave (No. 36).—A conclave in connection with the above was held on Wednesday week, at the Masonic Rooms, Market-place, Cocker-mouth. There were present Em. Sir Knight R. Robinson, M.P. Sov. on the throne; Em. Sir Knight J. Pearson, Eusebius; Em. Sir Knight W. Taylor, Senior General; Em. Sir Knight J. R. Tickle, Junior General; Em. Sir Knight H. Dodgson, Treas.; Sir Knights W. Armstrong, Junior Prefect; R. Bonley, Almoner; W. Shilton, D. of C.; W. F. Lamonby, Orator; W. Potts, Sentinel; H. Moncrieff, T. Maudale, J. Gardiner, D. Titterington, Stephen Thwaite, J. Abbott, F. R. Banks, and W. H. Fickle. The conclave having been opened in form, the minutes of the preceding meeting were read by Sir Knight Orator, in the absence (through dangerous illness of his daughter) of Em. Sir Knight T. F. Taylor, Recorder, and on being put to the conclave, were duly confirmed. Two brothers were next installed Knights of the Order, viz.:—Bros. W. H. Leuthwaite, W.M. Skiddaw Lodge, Cocker-mouth, 1002; and W. Beeby, Chaplain Lodge of Perseverance, Maryport, 337. Subsequently the bye-laws of the conclave were read by the acting Recorder, and then the Sir Knights proceeded to the election of a Sovereign, Viceroy, and Treasurer, for the ensuing twelve months, the installation taking place at the next conclave in July. Upon ballot being successively taken, Sir Knight George M. Tickle, of Maryport, was unanimously elected Sov. Sir Knight Edward Ablett, M.D., of Whitehaven, Viceroy, and Sir Knight Thomas Mandale, of Maryport, Treas. This was the whole of the business, and the conclave was closed in form. Although having only been really twelve months in existence (the charter being just granted a couple of years previously) we are glad to know the Dykes Conclave is in most flourishing condition, the number of Sir Knights answering the roll call being at the present time 47.

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As chairman of the West Yorkshire Charity Committee for nearly ten years, I think it well to add a few notes and offer a few suggestions on the present interesting discussion.

My belief, founded on the personal and practical experience of ten years, is simply this, that we must look for the development of a more enlarged Charity action in our lodges, to the working of Provincial Charity Committees, and if I wish to obtain a more systematic support of our great Metropolitan Institutions.

As this appears to me to be the simplest and readiest solution of the present controversy, I propose to give your readers the West Yorkshire Provincial Bye Law on the subject.

"Bye-Law 55. There shall be a Committee, to be called the Charity Committee, formed in and for this province, for the purpose of taking charge and promoting Masonic benevolence in this province, in connection with the General Masonic Charities, and also for the investigation of all such local claims or applications for relief, as shall be referred to it by the Provincial Grand Master or his Deputy Assistant, or by the Provincial Grand Lodge.

"The Charity Committee shall consist of one member from each lodge in the province, such members shall be elected annually on the night of installation of W.M., and the name and post-address of such elected member shall be transmitted by the W.M. of each lodge, immediately after such election, to the Provincial Grand Secretary."

By bye-law 56, the Provincial G.M., D.P.G.M., ex-officio President and Vice-President, respectively "but the Charity Committee shall, "it is added," for the better transaction of business, elect annually at their first meeting a chairman, and vice chairman to act in the presence of the President and Vice President, the Charity Committee shall hold a general meeting of all its members at least once in every year, and shall present to each annual Provincial Grand Lodge, a report of its proceedings, a list of the annuitants, and widows and children belonging to this province.

Now the effect of this West Yorkshire Charity Committee has been to stimulate remarks in that important province, the zeal of brethren, and to arouse their sympathies in cause of the Masonic Charities.

Since its foundation up to the present time something like 14 years, it has been instrumental in obtaining for the Great Masonic Charity including two perpetual presentations to Boys' School, the not inconsiderable amount of round numbers of money, if it not actually exceeded it, as I have not seen the whole official returns, to the present time, having resigned the chairmanship in 1871.

This is surely a commendable result, and though it is true, that, even to this hour I believe all the lodges in West Yorkshire have not a perpetual Life Governorship of all the charities, or are yearly subscribers, which I have often contended they ought to have and ought to be, yet this work still lies before the West Yorkshire Charity Committee, and on the day that they can announce to the Prov. Grand Lodge that every lodge in West Yorkshire has a Life Governor's vote for all the charities, they will, I know well, feel, that, they have not altogether laboured in vain.

I cannot agree with our good Bro. Gottheil's suggestion, to seek the action of Grand Lodge to bear on this subject.

Our brethren generally would not, I think, willingly see an increase of our constitutional dues, and I doubt very much the expediency of such action in the interests of the charities themselves. That the work is difficult, that there are many obstacles to arousing the active support of the lodges, whether from want of funds or from want of interest, is manifest in the otherwise striking result of the West Yorkshire Organisation, where, as I can testify, no pains were spared and no exertions were wanting on the part of our lamented Bro. R. R. Nelson and others to press the matter home to all the brethren and all the lodges.

It is a subject, however, I feel convinced, which must be left to provincial action and lodge sympathy, to local energy and individual effort, and in my humble opinion it will not be furthered or developed, but rather retarded and hindered by any authoritative interference of Grand Lodge, or by any addition to our benevolence payment. I am, therefore, desirous of suggesting through your columns the propriety of provincial action, in the first place, in the matter; and to aid this and expedite this, I would venture to repeat my recommendation of a Provincial Charity Committee in every province, similar to that in West Yorkshire, and which has been worked successfully for fourteen years, in order to call general attention to the requirement and position and general support by lodges and brethren of our great charitable institutions.

I am, fraternally yours,
A. F. A. WOODFORD, P.G.C. and P.P.G.S.W. for West Yorkshire.

OLD K. T. CERTIFICATE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Some time ago you gave a copy of an old Knight Templar certificate, viz., Abbey Chaplain Encampment, held in Nottingham between 1750, and 1800 it was stated to be either Chester or Bangor Museum, but I cannot now find it. If you could assist me so to do I should be much obliged, and if you cannot, perhaps you would kindly ask the question in your next, and one of your Chester and Bangor friends might inform you.

I have taken your Magazine from the first remain, yours faithfully and fraternally,

S. R. P. SHILTON,

D.P.E.C. for Nottinghamshire, 31^o.

REFUSAL TO BURY A ROMAN CATHOLIC FREEMASON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Kindly insert in your valuable paper a numerous meeting of the principal officers of the same, took place three days after the occurrence, when Mr. Caffé refused to do his duty as Chaplain to our late Bro. Johnstone, and the matter was at once laid before the Prov. Grand Lodge, Lord Holmesdale, who at once took steps to prevent the like in future. His lordship wrote a letter to the W.M. of the lodge, the matter has now been placed in the hands of the Secretary of State for War, who, I have no doubt, will see the importance of such a servant, who has made himself so obnoxious either being dismissed, or at any rate removed from here at once.

Yours fraternally,
P.M.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

Is a brother (a military man or otherwise), eligible for the position of W.M., he having left his Mother Lodge two years, and not having paid his quarterages for that period.

Yours fraternally,

THOMAS S. GRAY.

[According to general custom no; but, if he had not been asked for his subscription it may be doubted, perhaps, whether he is still not a member of his lodge, unless there be a lodge bye-law making the non-payment of the year's subscription the actual cessation of membership.]

SOCIETATIS ROSICRUCIANÆ IN ANGLIA.

COLLEGE OF MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND THE NORTHERN COUNTIES.

The obligatory meeting was held at Freemason's Hall, Manchester, and was presided over by the R.W. Ch. Ad. Frater C. Fitzgerald Matier, 9^o; assisted by Fr. G. Turner, 8^o; Fr. Yarker, 7^o; and Dr. Smith, 6^o, who form the permanent Council of the College. The M.C. was duly formed by Fr. Entwisle, Celebrant, assisted by the ancients and members of the several grades. The minutes of last meeting were then read and confirmed, and the formal routine business transacted, after which the following candidates were introduced into the temple, Bros. Gilles, Doyle, and Jackson, and were received into the Grade of Zelator by the Celebrant and officers.

The Chief Adept then thanked Bro. Entwisle for his assiduity and attention during the past year as Celebrant, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed by the Frateres present.

The Chief Adept then proceeded to appoint the officers of the first order for the ensuing year, when the following were nominated:—Dr. Moore, Celebrant; Lord Skelmersdale, 1st Ancient; J. K. Goepel, 2nd Ancient; W. Romaine Callender, M.P., 3rd Ancient; G. P. Brookbank, 4th Ancient; Robinson, Herald; Clarke, C. of N.; Ashmore, Torch Bearer; J. W. Taylor, Precentor; J. M. Ruther, Acolyte; Wood, Medallist; Gilles, Chamberlain.

Frater Robinson was then promoted to the 4th Grade, to fill the vacancy of the late Frater Wayne.

It was then proposed by Fr. Brookbank, 4th Ancient, and seconded by Fr. Turner, Suffragan Gen., that the jewel of the Ninth Grade should be presented to the Chief Adept, as a small acknowledgment of the many services he had rendered to the college from its foundation. This was carried unanimously, and there being no further business before the college, the M.C. was dissolved in due form.

The fratres then proceeded to banquet, after which the usual loyal and special toasts were given from the chair by the Chief Adept.

An interesting conversation on the mysteries and religions of antiquity became general, and continued till the meeting broke up.

Besides those fratres already mentioned we observed Bros. J. L. Hine, J. W. Petty, Smith, and others.

Obituary.

BRO. WILLIAM CARPENTER, P.M., P.Z., MASTER GENERAL ELECT OF THE ROSICRUCIAN SOCIETY.

Although in the course of time it was likely that soon our most amiable, forbearing, and suffering brother would be removed from us by the merciful decree of T.G.A.O.T.U., still the news of his departure struck with mournful resonance upon the heart of one who was proud to be his friend, who loved for more than twenty years his genial and kindly presence, and who now both masonically and humanly, wishes to lay his acacia branch beside the tomb.

There were few persons, who, joined with a long life and a very various fortune, could have maintained so gently calm reason on its throne and a spirit of encouraging criticism in all points of rudimentary or vital debate. Whether I met our friend as an opponent, and we were sometimes in the most general and generous way, opposed, our friend maintained a happy equanimity. There were points since that time, on which we did not agree, in which, however, he subsequently displayed that proper judgment that arises from conviction.

It is very solemn to think that a hero of the press should have passed from amongst us. His own literary career should now be sacred from attack. It was singular, successful, and single-hearted, and I regret that at a time when he was about to receive a signal honour not accorded to many he should have left us.

But I need say very little to his numerous friends, those who knew him will only feel sorrow that his late years should have been so chequered with misfortune and illness.

It was sad to miss him from the annual banquet, partially intended to do him honour and to inaugurate his reign, now frustrated.

Personally, I can only say that a kinder heart could never have existed. But the example of such men produces emulation, and hence I truly hope to see the honourable feelings of Bro. William Carpenter reflected in the acts of some other of the brethren of the press and the Masonic fraternity. That he died at a ripe age for this world, and that our own Masonic creed, independently of that we shared in common, forms the last consolation.

KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE,
Known as Cryptonymus, Assistant Secretary General of the Rosicrucian Society.

BRO. J. W. BARRETT, P.M., &c.

We regret having to record the decease of this well-known brother, who, as announced in our last impression, expired on the 17th ult. Bro. Barrett was initiated in the Lodge of Temperance, No. 169, in the year 1852, and served the office of W.M., in 1859. He was exalted in the Domestic Chapter, No. 177, in 1858, and was H. at the time of his death. He was also one of the Overseers in St. Mark's Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 1, a member of the Constantine Council, No. 2, of Royal and Select Masters of the Palestine Rose Croix Chapter, the Rosicrucian Society (Metropolitan College), and the Premier Conclave of the Red Cross Order. Bro. Barrett was one of the founders of the Acacia Lodge, No. 1309, at Barnet, and was appointed Prov. Grand Sword Bearer of Middlesex, in 1872. Our deceased brother was a Life Governor of all the Masonic charities, and had served the Stewardships on several occasions. He was likewise one of the fifty founders of the Girls' School General Committee Club, three of whom have been removed by death since its establishment last July, viz., Bros. Mark Edersheim, P.M. 757, Dr. Samuel C. Davison, P.M. 167, and Bro. Barrett. The funeral of the deceased took place on Thursday, and amongst those who attended were Bros. Cubitt, G. Priest, and G. Bolton, P.M. 169.

ERRATUM.—In the report of P. G. Mark Lodge of Lincolnshire in our impression of 11th April, "for Howe Masonic Memorial Widow's Fund" read "Window Fund." The object of the fund is to obtain Masonic subscriptions to place a stained glass window in the Church of St. Peter, just opened in Leicester, which has been erected in memory of the late Prov. Grand Master Earl Howe. We are happy to say that promises have been received making up nearly the whole amount required.

THE VITAL SPRING CONTAMINATED SOWS MISERY, DESTRUCTION, AND DEATH.—To ensure health, it is absolutely necessary that the fluids and solids of the human body should be kept free from impurities, which are continually getting into the system through erroneous living, unwholesome atmospheres, or disordered stomach. The only safe and certain way to expel impurities, is to take Holloway's Pills, which have the power of cleansing the blood from all noxious matter, and at the same time removing any irregularity which their presence has produced in any organ. Holloway's Pills expel all humours which taint and impoverish the blood, which they purify and invigorate, and give general tone. They are applicable alike to both young or old, robust or delicate.—ADVT.

BY J. G. FINDEL,

Second Edition, Revised, and Preface written by
BRO. D. MURRAY LYON.
One vol., 800 pages 8vo., with an Index. Cloth gilt.
Price, 10s. 6d.

"This book is a strictly historical one, from which all is excluded that is not based upon ascertained or probable fact."—Builder.

"Of its value to Freemasons, as a detailed history of their Brotherhood, it is not possible to speak too highly."—Public Opinion.

"The author seems to have fairly exhausted the subject."—The Athenaeum.

"The edition we are now considering is a second English edition, which had the great advantage of Bro. D. M. Lyon's able superintendence and editorship in its English dress. There can be no doubt but, that so far, Bro. Findel's work is the most complete work on Freemasonry which has yet appeared, and that he deserves the greatest credit for his careful and accurate treatment of all evidence on the subject, and for his honest desire after truth. Bro. Findel gives up in the view he has so clearly and consistently put forth our early Masonic history, the older theory of the Roman Colleges, &c., and limits the origin of Freemasonry to about the twelfth century, and as then arising from the operative Masons, and specially the "Steinmetzen" and "Bauhütten" of Germany. Bro. Findel gives us a good deal of evidence on this head, and one thing is clear from his work, that the German Freemasons were, at a very early period, organized into lodges with a Master over them, and with outward regulations and inner ceremonies peculiar to the Craft. Bro. Findel rejects all the views which have been from time to time put forward of a Templar or a Rosicrucian origin. Whether or no Bro. Findel's theory of the date of the rise of Freemasonry be correct, matters very little: we do not ourselves profess to accept it; but this we can fairly say of Bro. Findel's work, it is marked from first to last by the most remarkable token of industry, ability, and care, of patient research, and of skilful criticism. We know of no work which so clearly sets before us our amount of knowledge up to the present time on the great question of Masonic Archaeology, and there can be little doubt that what Preston's work is to English Freemasonry, Findel's work is to cosmopolitan Freemasonry. Indeed no student in Masonry can now dispense with it, and it is a perfect storehouse both of Masonic evidence and Masonic illustrations. We earnestly recommend all the lodges in this country to obtain a copy for the lodge library before the work is bought up for America; and we believe that no Mason will rise from the perusal of its pages without a higher idea both of the historical truth and intrinsic value of Freemasonry, and of fraternal regard and recognition to the latest and not the least well-informed or effective of our Masonic historians. The present century has produced no such equal, in authority and usefulness, to the great work of our Bro. Findel, and we wish him and it, in all of fraternal sympathy and kindly intent, many earnest readers, and more grateful students."—The Masonic Magazine.

"This volume is the history of Masonry par excellence. Every interested person may regard it, therefore, as the present text-book on the subject."—Manchester Guardian

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGES.

One of the most remarkable features of our English Masonic system is that, of our Provincial organization.

It is peculiar to English Freemasonry.

We know of no parallel to it, in other Masonic systems, as the American divisions of territorial Grand Lodges, are altogether different from

There are many Grand Lodges now in America of independent authority and co-ordinate jurisdiction, but no Provincial Grand Lodges as we have in England, all emanating from and dependent on one Central Grand Lodge.

Indeed the position of our Provincial Grand Lodges is somewhat anomalous in itself, and we confess, that, we have often thought it to be susceptible of considerable amendment.

By the constitutions of our Order, Provincial Grand Lodges are as virtually dependent on P.G.M.'s authority and functions alone; they exist with his existence, they die with his death.

It may be said to be a Masonic axiom, "Provincial Grand Master, no Provincial Grand Lodge."

Indeed, despite the apparent continuity of some of the Provincial Grand Lodges, the Laws, which provide for the formal transaction of Provincial business, we apprehend constitutionally, that the Provincial Grand Lodge endure in full favour and vigour during the life or "regime" of a P.G.M., but they "ex necessitate rei," when he resigns or passes away, and that the very Provincial Bye-laws require to be renewed and re-accepted by successors.

Such we venture to contend is the present constitutional position of all Provincial Grand Lodges, and it is a position, as we said before, which is in our humble opinion deserving of much careful consideration and susceptible of considerable amelioration.

There can be no a priori reason why we are inclined to think, why the same law of perpetuity which applies to Grand Lodge should not be made to bear on Provincial Grand Lodges, the object of course to all due constitutional restriction and why as one exists "jure suo," the might not be made to do so, by a very slight alteration in the Book of Constitutions saving all the just prerogatives of the P.G.

A simple provision that all Provincial Grand Lodges continued to exist as Grand Lodges during an "interregnum," and were to be governed for the convenience of the business of the province in the interim pro tempore by some officiating official, would obviate, it appears to us, difficulties, and remove all anomalies.

And we say this, not from any mere desire of innovation or desire of change, but because we are personally aware of the great importance of our provincial system to our English Freemasonry, and of the very large amount of Masonic work, and the charitable efforts, of our provincial system, and that we should do our best to maintain and

Many of our Provinces have considerable trust funds and property belonging to them; all administer largely relief to provincial applicants, from the Provincial Fund of Benevolence, and a few of our provinces have useful charitable institutions of their own, of various kinds.

And knowing all this, we venture again to express our opinion, that the time has come when our provincial system may be advantageously strengthened in the manner we have sought to point out.

There can be no doubt, but, that the wise provisions of our excellent Book of Constitutions have so far enabled our provinces, to work out for themselves in full liberty of action, a wide sphere of activity, usefulness, and benevolence, but, there can be no reason why, as time passes on, and new conditions arise, we should not seek to supply what is deficient, and to add what is needful, in order to make our whole Masonic system, homogeneous and consistent.

We publish a letter on another page, which shows how much may be done by Provincial organization, on the best of all causes Masonic Charity, and we feel certain of this, that the Province of West Yorkshire was right, when it endeavoured to place the claims of the Metropolitan Charities under the special care and direction of a Provincial Charity Committee.

The letter we have referred to tells us very clearly what provincial organization can do in so good a cause, and we feel it right to express our belief, that if every province had its Charity Committee, the interest of our great Charities would be largely promoted, and their general support by lodges and the Craft greatly enhanced.

It is the want of this general and systematic support which is the weak point in our present charitable efforts, and though even the W. Yorkshire Charity Committee has not yet succeeded in inducing every lodge to obtain a Life Governorship in all the Charities, it has removed apathy and stimulated zeal, and induced many willing and honest W. Yorkshire brethren to give liberally and gladly of their substance to the relief of indigence, the succour of old age, and the education of the young, the friendless, and the orphan.

Feeling how important is the whole question of our Provincial Grand Lodge system and organization, we shall resume the subject before very long.

GRAND FESTIVAL.

The annual Grand Festival of Freemasons was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Grand Lodge, which preceded the festival, and at which the Marquess of Ripon was again installed as Grand Master for the year, was well attended, and a large number of Past Grand Officers sat on the dais during the ceremony. The Earl of Limerick took the seat of the Deputy Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, who was absent on account of his official duties, Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, was in his place as Grand Senior Warden, and Captain Platt, in his chair as Junior Warden.

Among the brethren present there were: Bras. S. Rawson, S. Tomkins, F. Roxburgh, Q.C., Sir Albert W. Woods (Garter), R. J. Spiers, the Rev. A. B. Fraser, the Rev. R. J. Bent, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Col. Cole, John Havers, Col. Whitwell, Rev. Edmund Cox, W. Pulteney Scott, H. Browne, B. Head, T. Bradford, Brackstone Baker, Hyde Pullen, and James Mason.

Grand Lodge was formally opened, and Bro. Hervey read those parts of the minutes of last Quarterly Communication which referred to the election of the Grand Master, which having been confirmed, Sir Albert Woods proclaimed the Marquess of Ripon as Master for the current year. The brethren then saluted the Grand Master in Masonic form.

The Grand Master afterwards rose and said:—Brethren, I beg to thank you most heartily for the kind reception which you have given to me on this occasion. When you were pleased to record your suffrages in my favour at the Quarterly Communication last March, I availed myself immediately of the opportunity so afforded to me to return to you my warmest thanks for again conferring upon me the honour of presiding over this ancient and honourable Craft, and I would now only repeat that which I said upon that occasion. But I will not detain you for any length of time, because I trust that you will always find that the principles upon which I shall endeavour, so long as I may hold the office, that I have now the honour to fill and conduct the business of the Masonic Order on principles invariable in their nature, and which consequently involve no change as time goes on. I cannot therefore now sing any other song than that which I sang in March, and I will not weary you by a repetition of the remarks which I then made. But I will content myself with heartily congratulating you on the flourishing condition of the Craft at this moment, and tendering to you once more, with the utmost sincerity, my hearty thanks for this renewed proof of your confidence. (Cheers.)

The Grand Master then proceeded to appoint and invest the new Grand Officers. In appointing the Earl of Carnarvon as Deputy Grand Master, his Lordship observed that though the Deputy Grand Master was not able to be present, on account of the pressure of public business in his department, his abilities were such that it was an honour to the Craft to have for the representative of the Grand Master a nobleman holding such a high position in her Majesty's Council. (Applause.)

The customary salutes were then given, and the following brethren were immediately invested with their collars, jewels, and badges of office, and received the salutes of the brethren:—Lord Henry Thynne, M.P., S.G.W.; Horton Charles Okeover, J.G.W.; the Rev. Robert J. Bent, and the Rev. James Simpson, D.C.L., Grand Chaplains; Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; E. J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Reg.; John Hervey, G.S.; E. F. Wendt, G.S. for German correspondence; J. A. Rucker and James Percy Leith, Grand Senior Deacons; J. C. Parkinson and C. W. C. Hatton, Grand Junior Deacons; Wm. James Hughtan, Past S.G.D.; F. P. Cockerell, Grand Superintendent of Works; Sir Albert W. Woods (Garter), G.D.C.; Simeon C. Hadley, Assistant G.D.C.; James T. Collins, G.S.B.; Wilhelm Kuhe, Grand Organist; T. Cubitt, Grand Purst; John Wright, A.G.P.; C. B. Payne, Grand Tyler; Bro: C. A. Cottebrune, to bear rank and wear the clothing of Past Grand Purst.

Bros. Gardiner, 4; Smither, 58; Warner, 23; G. Payne, 1; W. J. Eramus Wilson, 2; A. H. Draper, 5; Sir Bruce M. Seaton, 6; J. T. Blake, 8; H. J. Bothomley, 14; C. P. Stollenhoff, 21; R. J. Kerr, 26; a brother whose name failed to reach us, of 29, A. Richards, 46; H. Whitfield, 60; W. B. Rogers, 91; S. B. Harrison, 99; J. Oster, 107; and C. W. B. Wilson, 257; were nominated by the brethren of their lodges, announced by Grand Secretary, and approved of by the Grand Master, as Grand Stewards for the coming year.

Grand Lodge was thereupon closed, and the Grand Master, Grand Officers, and brethren were entertained at a sumptuous banquet by the Grand Stewards. A much larger number of brethren partook of this repast than we remember to have seen at any former Grand Festival. When the repast had been disposed of the toasts were proposed, and after that of "Her Majesty the Queen" had been duly honoured,

The Grand Master in proposing "The Health of the Prince and Princess of Wales," said he would not say anything of the deep interest which the Prince of Wales, Past Grand Master, felt in the Craft, as it was well known to all the brethren. They were well aware that it arose not from the high position he held merely, but was both deep and hearty. On this occasion he (the Grand Master) had the satisfaction of congratulating the brethren upon the interesting circumstance that since last Grand Festival another member of Her Majesty's family had been admitted to the roll of the ancient Order, and he was happy to say that no worthier could have joined their ranks. Prince Arthur had taken upon himself the responsibilities of membership, and from the zeal, energy, and devotion with which His Royal Highness devoted himself to the performance of everything that devolved upon him in life, no one could doubt that in gaining him the Craft had won not only an illustrious personage, but one whose personal character was calculated to reflect high honour upon the ancient Order. If it were possible, which he ventured to doubt, that anything could add to the enthusiasm with which the brethren would drink the health of every member of the Royal Family, it was this circumstance, which connected so closely at the present time two members of that illustrious family with this ancient Order.

Bro. John Havers, Past Grand Warden, in the absence of the Earl of Carnarvon, proposed the Grand Master's health, and while congratulating his Lordship on being the ruler over such an extensively distributed body as Freemasons, and also congratulated the Craft on having at their head a nobleman, who had proved himself so worthy to preside over them.

The Grand Master in reply said, I beg most sincerely to thank you for the very hearty reception which you have been pleased to accord to me this evening. I can assure you that I feel sincerely grateful for this renewed proof of your esteem and confidence. Bro. Havers has been good enough to say that during the time in which by your choice I have had the honour of filling the position of Grand Master, the Craft has prospered; but, brethren, it is always a comparatively easy task to govern in prosperous times, and it was my good fortune to receive from the hands of that distinguished man to whom my excellent friend on my right (Bro. Havers) has adverted in such just terms (Lord Zetland), an inheritance of prosperity, which, though it entailed upon me doubtless great responsibility, inasmuch as it was indeed difficult to follow one who for a quarter of a century had swayed the hearts and minds almost as one man. (Hear hear.) Nevertheless, he seemed to me, as I may say, a pedestal upon which, honoured by your suffrages, I had only to take my place. It has been my endeavour since that time to maintain the high position which the Craft had then attained. But, brethren, in spite of what my worshipful friend has said of the influence that the Grand Master has, and I do not dispute the nature of that influence—over the prosperity of the Craft, it must always be borne in mind that one who, after all, is but the creature of your annual suffrages, can only hope successfully to discharge the duties of the high office which I have now the honour to fill, if he has the good fortune to enjoy the confidence of his brethren. I have always held that that confidence was not a thing to be bought, (hear, hear), as it was not to be secured by any forgetfulness of the prerogatives of my office, or by any unwilling compliance which would be inconsistent with that position. (Hear, hear.) I have endeavoured, and I always shall endeavour to maintain those prerogatives, and to uphold the rights of the Masonic throne to which you have called me, so long as I may hold the office which I now fill. The privileges and the rights of the Grand Master it is the duty of every occupant of that position carefully to maintain, while it is equally his duty, as most assuredly it is his interest, to be equally careful for the rights of, and the prerogatives and the privileges of every brother of the Craft (hear hear). It has been my sincere desire, and I trust I may without egotism say, it has been my honest endeavour to act upon those principles, to uphold the dignity of this great community, and to follow out those high principles which we profess to lie at the foundation of the Craft—that I have endeavoured, during the years I have filled the position of Grand Master, and I shall, as long as I may hold that office, endeavour to follow out that course, continually setting before me, as I have ever done, the great example of my eminent predecessor in this chair, and ever strive to deserve your esteem and confidence, having a just regard for the great interests of this community, for the rights of every one who is enrolled among its members, and for the upholding the character of this ancient and honourable fraternity.

"The Grand Lodges of Scotland and Ireland" was then proposed by the Grand Master, and drunk.

The Grand Master next proposed "The Health of the Provincial Grand Masters." He was proud to know that he had the great advantage in the discharge of his duties to be assisted by a most able and zealous body of Provincial Grand Masters; upon them necessarily depended, to a great extent, the local prosperity of the Craft, and it was a most pleasing fact to know how very rare indeed it was that any exception was in these days taken to the government of the Provincial Grand Masters. The peace and tranquillity of the Grand Master himself was greatly promoted by that happy state of things, and he only regretted that at this Grand Festival they had not the good fortune of having among them a Provincial Grand Master to return thanks for this toast. Lord Limerick, who attended that afternoon in Grand Lodge, was anxious that the brethren should fully understand how greatly he regretted his inability to stay to the banquet, but he had been called to wait on a great civic functionary, whose commands of that evening were almost of an imperative character. For himself he was almost bound to say that he liked to see a Mason do as Lord Limerick had done that day, come for business and not stay for the pleasure, for he would rather see a brother in Grand Lodge than at any banquet. (Hear, hear.) Lord Limerick was an example he would commend to their imitation.

In giving "The Health of the Deputy Grand Master and Grand Officers of the year" his Lordship remarked that recollecting the great kindness and forbearance of the brethren to himself, which the brethren had always been pleased to extend when official duties prevented him from discharging his Masonic duties, he should gladly accord to Lord Carnarvon the same indulgence. The brethren had much occasion to congratulate themselves upon the readiness which distinguished and zealous members of the Craft had ever shewn to accept office in Grand Lodge, and it had always been his endeavour to make his selection of officers under the circumstances of the moment which appeared to him most for the general interest of the Craft. But he suspected that if the Prime Minister was to be asked whether he had not a very unpleasant time not long ago when he had to construct a government he would reply that he had, and they would therefore readily admit that it was the duty of every member of a party to lay aside all personal considerations in respect to the choice by a Prime Minister of the members of his cabinet, so was it the duty of every member at the head of the Craft to be quite certain to fill the Grand Offices with the best men. They might be quite certain that if there had been offices enough they would all have been appointed. He was satisfied that in the choice of his officers he had made a good selection, and he believed that by their appointment he had been consulting the interests of the Craft.

Lord Henry Thynne, G.S.W., responded, and after regretting the absence of Lord Carnarvon, congratulated his own lodge on being in the province in which Lord Carnarvon was the Grand Master (Somerset), and over which he had presided so well for several years. He thanked the Grand Master in the name of his brother Grand Officers, and in his own, and trusted that at the end of their year of office they would leave Grand Lodge, not only as prosperous as it was now, but still more so.

The Grand Master next proposed "The Masonic Charities," and called on Bro. Little, the Secretary of the Girls' School, to respond, but that distinguished functionary suffering from a severe cold, which was unmistakable in the few words he said, deputed to Bro. Binckes the performance of the duty imposed upon him by his Lordship.

Bro. Binckes warmly thanked the G. Master, who had always shown such a loving, vital, practical interest in the Masonic Institution.

The toast of "The Stewards," responded to by Bro. Chynoweth, and "The Ladies" brought the proceedings to a close, and the brethren adjourned to the concert, which was given in the Temple, where, under the direction of Bro. Wilhelm Ganz, P.G. Org., a charming concert was given, in which Mdlle. Enequist, Madame Talbot Cherer, Miss Alice Fairman, Bros. George Perren, Montem Smith, Thomas Baxter, Theodore Distin, Wilhelm Kube, G. Organist; Oberthür, and Paque, and Mr. Maybrick, took part.

The dinner was well served by Bro. Francatelli, of Freemasons' Tavern, and was personally superintended by himself and Mr. Dawkins, to whom too much praise cannot be given for their attention to the wants of the brethren, and their courtesy. The Stewards must also be complimented on the great success of this festival, which has been rarely attained, and never excelled at any previous gatherings. Bro. James Hayho was an excellent toastmaster.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

On Wednesday, April 15th, the annual meeting of Freemasons in the province of West Yorkshire was held in the Masonic Hall, South Parade, Huddersfield. The preliminary lodge was opened up in the three degrees by Bros. Geo. Harling, W.M.; Wm. Harrop, S.W.; Geo. Sykes, J.W.; and the officers of the Huddersfield Lodge, 290. At 12.30 (noon), Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by the Most Hon the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., P.G.M. of West Yorkshire, and G.M. of England, and in the presence of Bros. Bentley Shaw, D.P.G.M.; J. Craven, P.P.G.W.; Captain Wordsworth, P.J.G.W.; Manoah Rhodes, Mayor of Bradford; J. Freeman, Huddersfield; and other provincial officers and brethren, to the number of about 250. After the reading of a portion of Scripture by Bro. the Rev. W. Barton, P.P.G. Chaplain, the Provincial Grand Master was saluted according to ancient custom.

In acknowledging the compliment, the noble Marquess said he rejoiced to see so many brethren around him in the good town of Huddersfield. He had always pleasant recollections of Huddersfield. He would not go into details of the period when he was first introduced to the world of Masonry in that town, but if he were likely at all to forget those associations the portrait of Bro. William Smith (which his lordship then beheld for the first time), a brother highly respected throughout the province, served to recall those recollections. Whilst the noble Marquess congratulated the brethren on the satisfactory state of the province, and on the great improvement in the different lodges with respect to their returns to the Provincial Grand Lodge, he regretted to have to find fault with a few lodges with regard to their returns to the Grand Lodge in London. He urged on the Worshipful Masters of those lodges to send their returns more promptly, and save him the pain of having the province, for which he is Provincial Grand Master, being reported to him as Grand Master of England. He also congratulated the brethren on the growth of Masonry in this province. On the 1st January last there were 2841 members in the province of West Yorkshire, of whom 319 had been admitted the past year. There had been 65 deaths. West Yorkshire was not singular in this increase, it was widespread, but he warned the brethren not to measure the growth of Masonry by mere numbers. Before resuming his seat his lordship referred to the interesting ceremony which took place at York last week, the installation of the Earl of Zetland, Prov. G.M. of North and East Yorkshire. Lord Zetland, he said, was a young man, and in a great part unknown, but no brother who knew anything of the late Earl would not but rejoice with him that they had been enabled to continue the connection of Zetland with Masonry. It was by retaining the connection for generations between those who had striven well in any sphere that they were enabled to lay the foundation and raise the structure on a lasting footing. His lordship concluded his remarks by expressing his determination to continue his exertions to maintain the credit of the Craft throughout the province, and hoped the brethren would do likewise, and that Worshipful Masters would strive to keep together the Past Masters of their lodges, not allowing them to go rusty for want of work, but that all would work in one harmonious strain for the welfare of the Craft at large.

The ordinary routine of passing the minutes of the last Provincial Grand Lodge, and calling the roll of lodges, having been gone through, a letter was read from Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.P.G.M., expressing his profound gratitude for the kind and generous sympathy and support which had been accorded to him and his wife, in their great bereavement, by the Provincial Grand Lodge, and to his lordship for the kind and feeling manner he had introduced the subject to the brethren. That address would be a constant incentive to greater diligence in the discharge of the duties of his office.

The investiture of the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge for the ensuing year was then proceeded with as follows:—

Bro. L. R. Starkey, M.P.	P.S.G.W.

After the several officers had been invested, a vote of thanks to Bro. Charles Olroyd, of Dewsbury, P.P.G. Treasurer, for his seven years faithful service, was passed unanimously, after he had been highly eulogised by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master for the business manner he had conducted the duties of his office.

The report of the Charity Committee was then presented by Bro. Thomas Hill, received, and the Prov. Grand Master said the brethren might consider it a very satisfactory one.

Petitions for relief were then considered, after which the lodge was duly closed.

A banquet was afterwards held in the banquetting hall, which was presided over by the Marquess of Ripon, and which had been elegantly served by Bro. H. Birley, of the Pack Horse Hotel, Huddersfield, and to which about 150 brethren sat down.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

The annual convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Freemasons of West Lancashire, was held on Wednesday, the 8th ult., at the new Masonic-rooms, King-st., Wigan, where there was the largest assembly of "Arch" Masons seen in this division for the last few years. M. E. Comp. the Right Honourable Lord Skelmersdale, Prov. Grand Z., was present, and presided at the convocation, which was both hearty and unanimous throughout the whole of the interesting proceedings.

Amongst the other notables present on the occasion were:—Comps Corneilus Sherwin, P.G.H.; Comp. H. W. Johnson, D.G.; H. S. Alpass, P.G.S.E.; D. W. Finny, Past P.G. Ass. S.; James Hamer, P.G. Treas.

Thomas Wylie, P.G. Reg.; Landless, P.G. Hd.; T. Dodgson, Z. 995; T. Armstrong, P.P.G. Soj.; R. Pearson, H. 995; E. Meugens, P.Z. 32; W. Doyle, H. 249; T. Clark, P.Z. 673; J. R. Goepel, P.Z. 86; J. Case, P.Z. 995; J. Crossley, J. 703; W. Mossop, P.Z. 148; C. Fryer, P.Z. 113; S. Rowbottom, P. Prov. G.S.N.; W. C. Deeley, P.Z. 18c; E. Kyle, J. 220; D. Jones, P.Z. 216; J. Sooth, John Pemberton, P.Z. 1094; J. C. Lunt, Z. 1086; Thomas Chesworth, P.Z. 1086; George Turner, P.Z. 824; P. M. Larson, P.Z. 220; Joseph Skeaf, P.G. Org., H. 216; J. Gaskell, P.Z. 178; Robert Wylie, P. Prov. G.D. of C.; Rev. Philip Hains, J. T. Callow, H. 673; E. Harbord, P.G. Std. Cheshire; W. Archer, P.Z. 1086; J. Hocken, P.Z. 220; J. Lamb, P.Z. 178; J. Lunt, Z.; 241; A. C. Mott, P.G.S.N. and others.

After the Provincial Grand Chapter had been opened in solemn form, according to ancient ritual Em. Comp. H. S. Alpass, P.G.S.E., read the minutes of the last convocation, which was held at Preston, and, being found correct, were confirmed unanimously without discussion.

E. Comp. Hamer, P.G. Treas., presented the accounts for the year, which showed a balance in hand of £46 14s. 2d, against £40 8s. 11d., last year. The accounts had been duly audited by Comps. G. Turner, Z. 86; J. MacKune, Z. 216; and J. C. Lunt, Z. 1086, and were unanimously approved, on the motion of Comp. A. C. Mott, seconded by Comp. G. Turner.

On the motion of Comp Robert Wylie, seconded by Comp. A. C. Mott, Comp Hamer was cordially re-elected Treasurer; and Comp. Hamer, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had intended resigning the office this year, but still he would endeavour for one year more to justify the confidence that had been reposed in him, and endeavour to perform the duties of his office to the complete satisfaction of the companions.

Comp. Peter Ball was unanimously re-elected P.G. Janitor for the ensuing year.

The following officers were appointed and invested by the Most Excellent Superintendent, viz., Comps. —

- Thomas Wylie Prov. G. H.
- E. Meugens Prov. G. J.
- H. S. Alpass Prov. G. S.E.
- J. R. Kellett Smith Prov. G. S.N.
- W. C. Deeley Prov. G. P.S.
- J. R. Goepel Prov. G. 1st Ast. S.
- R. Landless Prov. G. 2nd Ast. S.
- Charles Hill Prov. G. Reg.
- Mossop Prov. G. Std. B.
- Fryer Prov. G. Std. B.
- T. Dodgson Prov. G. D. of C
- J. Skeaf Prov. G. Organist.
- Simpson Prov. G. Steward.

The M.E.P.G. Superintendent said, having appointed his officers for the ensuing year, he wished to say a few words to the companions, whom he thanked for their hearty support on that occasion. It was extremely gratifying to him to learn that Royal Arch Freemasonry was progressing in the province, and exerting itself to promote the great ends which the noble science was intended to advance. It had been suggested that after the convocation of the Provincial Grand Chapter, a Provincial Grand Lodge should be held, with a view to opening, in Masonic form, the elegant building in which they were then assembled; but it was found that there was no precedent for and no ceremony proper to such an occasion, and it was hardly right to create such a precedent, therefore the suggestion was declined. At the same time he could not resist saying a few words expressive of thanks to Comp. Leader, the owner of the spacious buildings in which they met that day, for the energy with which he had brought the construction of the buildings to a conclusion, and of congratulation on the success with which the design had been carried out. The room in which they were assembled would be as handsome a room as any in the division, and they must all rejoice to see Freemasonry holding such a firm place in the hearts of Masons as to induce them to erect such a building, and to provide so handsome, commodious, and convenient place of meeting as that. His hope was that such an excellent example as had been set in Wigan might be followed throughout this great province, and that they might be truly able to say no province could excel West Lancashire for its thorough and hearty exemplification of the great principles of Freemasonry — brotherly love, relief and truth.

Comp. T. Wylie, P.G.H., gave notice that at the next convocation he should move that ten per cent. of the annual income of Prov. Grand Chapter be set apart as a fund for the support of the Masonic Charities.

On the motion of Comp. Robert Wylie, seconded by Comp. T. Armstrong, the votes of the province were appropriated, together with £5, towards securing the election of an old companion to the benefits of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons.

After the transaction of some formal business, the P.G. Chapter was closed in ancient and solemn form, after which the companions banquetted together, under the presidency of the M.E.P.G. Superintendent. In the course of the evening, his lordship referred to the approaching completion of the new Masonic Hall in Liverpool, and expressed a hope that the Masons of the district would be honoured with the presence of the M.W.G.M. of England, the Marquess of Ripon, on the occasion of the consecration. He also expected that the gathering at the opening of the hall would be one of the most distinguished and influential which had ever been held in the northern part of England. After a very pleasant meeting, the companions separated about seven o'clock.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

The annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Chapter was held at the Nottingham Castle Inn, Denton, on Wednesday, the 8th ult., under the auspices of the Chapter of Faith, No. 210. The Prov. G. Chapter was opened in ancient and solemn form at half-past 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when there were present, Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, M. E. Prov. G. Supt.; Comps. J. L. Hine, Prov. G. 2nd Principal; J. A. Birch, Prov. G. 3rd Principal; John Tunnah, Prov. G.S.E.; Thomas Entwisle, Prov. G. S.N.; Isaac W. Petty, Prov. G. Principal S.; Henry Maiden, P. Prov. G. Prin. S.; Jas. Hall, Prov. G. 1st A.S.; C. Sutcliffe, Prov. G. 2nd A.S.; W. Ashworth, P. Prov. G. 1st A.S.; John Higginbottom, P. Prov. G. Reg.; Ellis Jones, Prov. G. Sword Bearer; C. M. Jones, P. Prov. G. Standard Bearer; Herod Turner, P. Prov. G. Standard Bearer; Robert Whittaker, Prov. G. D. of C.; J. W. Taylor and Jas. Newton, Prov. G. Stewards; and representatives from 19 of the 35 Chapters in the province.

Letters of apology were read from such of the Prov. G. Officers as were absent. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Prov. G. Treasurer's accounts for the past year were presented and confirmed.

Comp. G. P. Brockbank was unanimously re-elected Prov. G. Treasurer for the ensuing year.

The Prov. G. Superintendent appointed and invested the following companions as Prov. G. Officers: —

- J. L. Hine Prov. G. 2nd P.
- J. A. Birch Prov. G. 3rd P.
- John Tunnah Prov. Scribe E.
- Major T. G. Parker Prov. Scribe N.
- Jno. G. Hind Prov. G. P.S.
- Jas Graham Prov. G. 1st A.S.
- Ralph Landless Prov. G. 2nd A.D.
- Thomas Chorlton Prov. G. Reg.
- Marshall Taylor Prov. G. S.W.
- Edwin Sleigh Prov. Standard B.
- Robert Whittaker Prov. G. D. of C.
- J. W. Taylor Prov. G. Org.
- A. McIlquham Prov. G. Stewards.
- Jas. Woolfenden Prov. G. "
- Fred Higginbottom Prov. G. "

Comps. H. Maiden and Robert Whittaker were appointed auditors of the Prov. G. Treasurer's accounts for the ensuing year.

A grant of £5 5s. was made to the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Benevolent Fund.

Some other formal business was transacted, and the Prov. G. Chapter was closed. About eighty companions afterwards partook of an excellent banquet at the Nottingham Castle Inn, under the presidency of the M.E. Prov. G. Superintendent.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF LEICESTERSHIRE.

A special meeting of the Prov. G. Chapter took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, the 23rd ult., for the purpose of installing the Principals of subordinate chapters.

The Prov. G. Chapter was opened by the P.G. Supt., Comp. W. Kelly, Z., assisted by Comp. E. Stretton, as H., and the Rev. John Denton, J., after which the Principals of the Chapter of Fortitude, Leicester, No. 279, were installed as follows: — Comps. E. J. Crow, Z.; S. Perkin, H.; and W. Sculthorpe, J.; and at the same time Comps. H. Deane, Z.; and J. C. Duncombe, H., of the De Mowbray Chapter, Melton Mowbray, No. 1130, were also installed. The regular meeting of the Fortitude Chapter was then held when the officers elected at the last meeting were invested, and Bro. E. J. Mason was exalted to the degree of R.A., the ceremony being admirably rendered by the M.E.Z., who had just previously been installed. Comp. Sculthorpe gave the historical, Comp. J. W. Moore, H., the symbolical lecture, whilst the explanation of the signs was given by the M.E.Z., and of the words by Comp. Toller, who also acted as P.S.

The Treasurer's account, showing a considerable balance in hand, was adopted, and the Chapter having been closed, the companions adjourned to the banquet, when a very pleasant evening was spent, under the presidency of the M.E.Z.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LEICESTER AND RUTLAND.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Leicester and Rutland was held, under the auspices of the Fowke Lodge, No. 19, at the Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday evening, the 25th ultimo. From a concurrence of circumstances the attendance of the brethren was not so numerous as on previous occasions, and several of the nominees for office were unavoidably absent.

The reports received from the several lodges in the province were highly satisfactory, and from the number of Derby brethren advanced in the Fowke Lodge during the year, there is every probability that Mark Masonry will extend its ramifications into a neighbouring county before long.

The following brethren were appointed officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge: —

- Rev. J. Spittal D. Prov. G.M.
- The Right Hon. Earl Ferrers Prov. G. S.W.
- S. S. Partridge Prov. G. J.W.
- Rev. W. Langley Prov. G. Chaplain.
- Rev. H. E. Von Stürmer ... Prov. G. Chaplain.
- J. E. Duncombe Prov. G. M.O.
- F. J. Baines Prov. G. S.O.
- G. Toller, jun. Prov. G. J.O.
- C. Stretton Prov. G. Treas.
- J. M. MacAllister Prov. G. Sec.
- R. A. Barber Prov. G. R.M.
- J. G. Tippetts Prov. G. S.D.
- R. B. Smith Prov. G. J.D.
- J. B. Hall Prov. G. D.C.
- F. Amatt Prov. G. S. of W.
- R. Waite Prov. G. S.B.
- W. T. Rowlett Prov. G. Organist.
- J. T. Thorpe Prov. G. I.G.

G. W. Statham, Alfred Childs, and T. A. Wykes Prov. G. Stewards.

On the business of the Fowke Lodge being resumed, Bro. S. S. Partridge, P.M., proceeded to instal Bro. J. M. MacAllister into the chair of Adoniram, and the W.M. appointed his officers as follows: —

- W. Wear, I.P.M.; G. Toller, jun., S.W.; C. Stretton, G.S.; J.W.; Rev. H. E. Von Stürmer, Chaplain; W. Sculthorpe, M.O.; R. A. Barber, S.O; W. T. Rowlett, J.O.; F. J. Baines, Secretary; J. Garner, Treasurer; J. B. Hall, R.M.; G. W. Statham, S.D.; T. A. Wykes, J.D.; J. T. Thorpe, M.C.; S. Tibbutt, Organist; J. Young, I.G.; and J. W. Smith, and J. Edmunds, Stewards.

At the banquet which followed Bro. Mc Allister, W.M., in giving the toast of the "Provincial Grand Master," alluded to the important services rendered by our esteemed chief, in raising Masonry to the high estate it now occupies in this province, and who at a time when most men would contemplate that retirement which a long life of active service justly entitles them to enjoy, nevertheless continues in the increasing exercise of his high duties. It has ever been his pleasure to support and encourage the principles and practice of that science which so powerfully develops all social and benevolent affections, and affords the only neutral ground on which all ranks and classes can meet in perfect equality, and associate without degradation or mortification, whether for the purposes of moral instruction, or of social intercourse.

In pursuit of the objects to be attained in the practice of Masonry, we have been enlightened by the example of our chief, guided by his advice, encouraged by his kindness and affection, and supported by his active and steady co-operation in all that concerns the best interests of this lodge. And while we manifest our attachment and dutiful regard for our Provincial Grand Master, we express the hope that his life may be prolonged to preside over us for many years to come, as those which have as happily been passed under his able, judicious, and fraternal government since the year 1858.

The toast was received with great enthusiasm, and in the absence of the Prov. Grand Master, was ably responded to by Bro. S. S. Partridge, P.G.J.W.

The usual toasts were given at some length, and the health of the Installing Master was submitted with the following remarks by the W.M.: You have all witnessed the admirable and impressive manner in which Bro. Partridge has performed the ceremony of installation this evening, and I cannot speak too highly of the talent and energy so cheerfully rendered by him in the cause of Masonry in this province, which have also materially contributed to the welfare and prosperity of this lodge, and distinguished him among his brethren. While we admire his extensive and intimate knowledge of the ceremonies, he has won our regard and esteem, not alone by his Masonic ability, but by his precept and example, to promote peace, goodwill and kindly feeling among the brethren, and I trust that the zealous and warm support of our esteemed brother may be continued during my year of office, and for many years to come.

Bro. Partridge thanked the brethren for their appreciation of his past services, and expressed his willingness to continue his labours in maintaining the efficiency of the lodge.

The toast of "The Officers" was ably responded to by Bro. Toller, S.W., and that of "The Ladies" by Bro. A. Palmer.

THE LODGE OF ISRAEL.

In our impression of February 7, 1874, a report appeared of the meeting of the Lodge of Israel, No. 205, and the installation of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Joel Emanuel. That report was furnished to us by Bro. Gottheil, of the Lodge of Faith, who, we are informed, had been invited as a visitor to the lodge, and in substance the report stated that the Worshipful Master had thought proper, in proposing the toast of the Queen and the Craft, to introduce political allusions, contrary to the spirit of Masonry, and further that the Worshipful Master had been guilty of discourtesy towards his visitors, and had shown a most overbearing manner towards his guests. We are now informed by the Worshipful Master that the report was a most erroneous one, and as evidence of the fact we have been furnished with what is stated to be a verbatim report of the Worshipful Master's speech, and which certainly contains no political allusion of any kind. We some time ago communicated with Bro. Gottheil, requesting him to substantiate his report, so furnished to us, and also to put himself in communication with the Worshipful Master at once. Bro. Gottheil having failed to adopt either course, we can only express our regret that the report published by us was not strictly just and accurate, and we beg farther to state that it was far from our wish or intention to publish anything, which, from its inaccuracy or exaggeration, might cause pain or annoyance to any one.

Masonic Tidings.

A Grand Concert will be given at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on Monday, 4th May, in aid of the Stoke Newington Working Men's Institute. Conductor Bro. J. F. Watford. Bros. Shackell, Chaplin Henry, and Sir Frederick Perkins, Knt. J.P., F.R.G.S., M.P., are giving valuable assistance.

ROYAL ORDER OF SCOTLAND.—A Council will be held at 33, Golden-square, on the 14th May. There are eight candidates for advancement.

UNION MASONIC CLUB OF INSTRUCTION.—It has been resolved that the day meetings should be held every Tuesday at two o'clock, instead of Wednesday, in order to enable the attendance of theatrical brethren. It is expected that by this alteration that a great number of Masons will be able to attend. We are informed that a very able Preceptor has been appointed.

A Grand Council of the Illustrious Knights K.K. 30° will be held at the Masonic Hall, 33, Golden-square, on Tuesday, the 12th day of May. There are nineteen candidates.

The Era Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 176, will be consecrated on Friday, May 8th, at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, at six o'clock p.m. Bro. J. T. Moss, W.M. Designate, H. A. Dubois, S.W. Designate; J. B. Langley, J.W. Designate.

The Lebanon Chapter, No. 1326, will be consecrated on Saturday, June, 27th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton, Middlesex, at three o'clock p.m. Comps. J. T. Moss, M.E.Z. Designate; S. Wilkins, H. Designate; W. Hammond, J. Designate.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

His Grace the Duke of St. Alban's, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Major Smyth, Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge and General Communication of Masons in this Province,

WILL BE HELD IN THE
 PUBLIC ROOMS, GRANTHAM.
 Under the auspices of the Doric Lodge, No. 362,
 ON THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1874,
 AT HIGH TWELVE.

When and where the P.G. Officers and Past Officers, with the Worshipful Masters and Past Masters, and the Acting Wardens of the Lodges in the Province, are hereby convoked to attend, and at which all Master Masons are invited to be present.

FREDERICK DELAHENE MARSDEN, Provincial Grand Secretary.

Louth, 25th April, 1874.

BUSINESS:—

The Lodges will be called over.

The Roll of Provincial Grand Officers will be called.

The Minutes of the Annual Provincial Grand Lodge, holden at Louth, on Thursday, the 29th of May, 1873, will be read and put for confirmation.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer will read his Finance Statement.

The Provincial Grand Secretary will read the Report of the Committee of the P.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence and an abstract of the accounts to the present time.

The Provincial Grand Registrar will give the Returns for the past year from the several Lodges in the Province.

W. Bro. W. H. Radley, P.M. 838, P.J.G.W., and Secretary to the Provincial Charity Committee, will read the Report for the past year, and render an account of the efforts made by the Province in connection with the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

The Provincial Grand Lodge will proceed to elect a P.G. Treasurer.

The R.W. Provincial Grand Master will invest the P.G. Officers for the ensuing year.

N.B.—Members of the P.G. Lodge may obtain a copy of the Bye-laws of the P.G. Lodge and the Rules of the P.G.L. Fund of Benevolence, on presenting a card with their Name and Masonic rank upon it to the P.G. Treasurer. A History of the P.G. Lodge of Lincolnshire and the Private Lodges in the Province, both past and present, with some interesting Tables showing the rise and progress of the Order in the Province since the year 1792, as well as a List of all the P.G. Officers since its formation, have been bound up in conjunction with the Bye-laws, and may be had by Members of the P.G.L. on payment of Sixpence each, and by Non-members at One Shilling; if sent by post, One Penny extra.

A Banquet will be provided at the Guildhall, St. Peter's-hill, at three p.m.

Tickets, including Dinner and Dessert, 5s. each.

In order that Bro. E. F. Hudson, the W. Master of the Doric Lodge, may make suitable arrangements for the Banquet, the Brethren are requested to intimate as soon as possible if their company may be expected, and he will in such case reserve seats for them.

A Provincial Grand Lodge of Emergency will be held at the town of Epworth, on Monday, the 11th of May, 1874, in order to Consecrate, at High Twelve, the New Lodge of the "ISLE OF AXHOLME," No. 1482, when and where the P.G. Officers and Past Officers, with the Worshipful Masters and Past Masters and the Acting Wardens of the several Lodges in the Province, are hereby convoked to attend, and at which all Master Masons are invited to be present.

A cold collation will be served at the Red Lion Hotel, at two p.m. Tickets (6s. each) may be obtained of Bro. Alfred Taylor, Epworth.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma. CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague. CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms. CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Extract from "INDIAN ECONOMIST."

"We direct the attention of medical men to a fact observed some years since by ourselves, and corroborated by our subsequent experience, that Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is in many cases of Low Fever immensely superior to Quinine in curative power. We cannot persuade ourselves that the true value of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is yet properly appraised in India. . . . It may be given with absolute safety even to a child three days old. Were medical men but to make a fair and exhaustive trial of it we are persuaded that it would work a revolution in the treatment of two-thirds of the diseases to which children are subject. Its curative power is simply amazing."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera had been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE."—See Lancet, Dec. 1. 1864.

From W. VESALIUS PETTIGREW, M.D., Hon. F.R.C.S., England.

Formerly Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology at St. George's School of Medicine.

"I have no hesitation in stating, after a fair trial of Chlorodyne, that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-Spasmodic and Sedative. I have tried it in Consumption, Asthma, Diarrhoea, and other diseases, and am most perfectly satisfied with the results."

From Dr. THOMAS SANDIFORD, Passage West, Cork.

"I will thank you to send me a further supply of Chlorodyne. It was the most efficacious remedy I ever used, affording relief in a violent attack of Spasms within a minute after being taken. One patient in particular, who has suffered for years with periodical attacks of Spasms of a most painful nature, and unable to obtain relief from other remedies, such as opium, &c., finds nothing so prompt and efficacious as Chlorodyne."

From Jno. E. GOULSTONE, M.D., late Principal Surgeon to the Steamship Great Eastern.

"I can confidently state Chlorodyne is an admirable Sedative and Anti-Spasmodic, having used it in Neuralgia, Hysteria, Asthma, and Consumption, with remarkably favourable results. It relieved a fit of Asthma in four minutes, where the patient had suffered eleven years in a most distressing manner, no previous remedy having had so immediate and beneficial an effect."

From Dr. B. J. BOULTON and Co., Horncastle.

"We have made pretty extensive use of Chlorodyne in our practice lately, and look upon it as an excellent direct Sedative and Anti-Spasmodic. It seems to allay pain and irritation in whatever organ, and from whatever cause. It induces a feeling of comfort and quietude not obtainable by any other remedy, and it seems to possess this great advantage over all other sedatives, that it leaves no unpleasant after effects."

J. C. BAKER, Esq., M.D. Bideford.

"It is, without doubt, the most valuable and certain Anodyne we have."

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," 13th July, 1864.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each Bottle.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which is at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," has repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably his cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pleurisy, consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Indigestion, Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 17s. each, by respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, 6, Scarborough.

* Invaluable should read Crosby's Price Treatise on "Disorders of the Lungs and Air-Vesicles," a copy of which can be had of all Chemists.

COLCHESTER.—United Lodge (No. 697).—The installation of Bro. the Rev. Eustace H. Crate, Curate-in-Charge of Abberton, as W.M. of the United Lodge, No. 697, took place on Thursday, 30th ult., in the presence of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master (Bro. R. J. Bagshaw), the Provincial Grand Secretary (Bro. John Wright Carr), and a very large number of visitors and members of the lodge. The ceremony was most ably performed by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, W.M. of the "Stour Valley" Lodge No. 1,244, P.M., P.Z., and Past Grand Chaplain of England; and at its conclusion the new W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. Rix, P.M., S.W.; the Rev. R. C. Gardiner, J.W.; T. Rix, Secretary; R. Roche, Assistant Secretary; B. Brailley, Treasurer; Thomas W. Naylor, S.D.; R. O. Carpenter, J.D.; G. Guiver, Organist; J. McConnell, I.G.; W. Middleton and W. Seddes, Stewards; and C. Gunner, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master for his kind attendance, and to Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn for the able manner in which he had performed the ceremony of the 27. About forty brethren subsequently dined at a sumptuous banquet at the George Hotel, the catering of Bro. C. Guiver being as usual most satisfactory. On the removal of the 28th, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and drunk, and the enjoyments of the evening were very much enhanced by the vocal orderings of Bros. Dawson, Roche, Taylor, Wallace, and others, Bro. G. Guiver accompanying. Bro. Neild created much amusement by his clever recitation. Amongst those present in the lodge or at the banquet, besides the brethren already mentioned, were—Bros. F. A. le, W.M.; S. Chaplin, I.P.M.; T. R. Miller, P.M.; W. P. Lewis, P.M.; A. Welch, V.; T. J. Kalling, Secretary, and J. Hanly, V.; W. Shury, P.M., 167, 548, and 51; Wright, No. 213; J. W. Jolly, W.M.; J. E. Seman, P.M., Secretary, and G. Riches, I. 433; J. Brinkley, 446; Wm. Cotton, 552; Dulton, jun., and W. Downes, 650; P. Piton, 1; J. W. Quihampton, P.M. 1024; and the following members of No. 697; W. Bateman, Ball, J. Beamish, J. H. Boulton, E. N. Gg, W. Dawson, T. Duffy, G. Guiver, W. S. H. Harlow, W. J. Harvey, George Harvey, Hunt, J. Inwood, J. Neild, W. Parker, W. Siggers, M. Taylor, and T. Williams.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the White Tavern, 217, High-street, Deptford, on Friday, the 23rd ult. Bro. G. Andrews, V., presided over lodge, and did all the work. There were present during the afternoon and evening, Bros. F. Walters, P.M., Sec.; H. J.

Tuson, J.W.; J. J. Pakes, S.D.; J. Baxter Langley, I.G.; H. J. Dawe, W.M.; H. J. Fisher, Org.; M. Concanen, J. Woollett, W.S.; J. G. Vohmann, G. Porter, and about forty other members. The visitors were Bros. J. W. Baldwin, S.W. 1423; A. J. Webley, 1423; J. V. Watkins, 1326; E. Larking, 1326, and others. The minutes read of regular and emergency meetings were unanimously confirmed. The work done (in a superior manner) was passing A. Macers to the second and raising Bros. E. Wood, F. H. Buer, J. C. Craig, G. Clark, A. J. Webley (1423), and E. Larking (1326) to the third degree. Bro. John Baxter Langley, I.G., was elected as a Steward to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of Royal Benevolent Institution, to be held in January, 1875. Some notices of motion were given in to the Secretary, relative to proposed new bye-laws, and all other business being disposed of, the lodge was closed. There not being any banquet or refreshment, the members separated after the business terminated.

POTTER'S BAR.—Acacia Lodge (No. 1309).—The regular meeting of the season took place on Saturday, April 25th, at the Railway Hotel, Bros. E. W. Richardson, W.M.; R. Limpus, J.W.; C. A. Ferrier, S.D.; C. G. Rushworth, J.D.; J. H. Webster, I.G.; J. H. Butten, P.M.; C. Horsley, P.M.; J. W. George, T. S. Lewis, H. E. Appleby, H. J. Lambly, T. Boyce, S. Budgett, H. D'Arcy, A. Gould, and others. Visitor Bro. J. Lee, 1158, was present. Bro. C. Horsley, P.M., in his usual well known able manner raised A. Gould and H. D'Arcy to the third degree. Several important notices of motion were discussed and approved of relating to alterations in bye laws. The Secretary, Bro. Fred. Walters, P.M., was through illness absent from the lodge. One gentleman was proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. Refreshment followed labour.

GREENWICH.—Star Lodge (No. 1275).—An emergency meeting was held on Friday, April 24th, at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich. Bro. T. R. Darke, W.M., presided, and was supported by Bros. G. Pymm, P.M., S.W.; W. Kipps, J.D.; L. L. Limebeer, S.D.; S. Homewood, P.M., I.G.; Rev. Colles, Chaplain; C. J. Hogg, P.G. Steward, P.M., and many others. There were not any visitors. The work, done in a superior manner, was initiating Mr. C. H. Williams, passing brothers H. Prall, G. Fawn, and W. B. Woodman, and raising Brothers A. Tisley, and W. Brough. It was announced that Harriett Davis, daughter of the late Bro. Davis, of this lodge (City Terminus Hotel), had been elected into the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls at the April election. A communication was received from the Secretary, Bro. Frederick Walters, P.M., who through illness was absent, regretting his inability to attend. All business being ended the lodge was closed. There was not any banquet.

STOCKTON.—Lodge of Fraternity (No. 1418).—On Thursday, the 23rd ult., the brethren of this lodge celebrated their annual festival at the Freemasons' Hall, Wellington-street, Stockton-on-Tees. At half-past two o'clock the brethren assembled, and the lodge having been opened in due form, the ordinary business was proceeded with. The Treasurer's report showed there was a balance against the lodge of £1, which, considering that the lodge had been in existence but one year, was deemed very satisfactory. The ceremony was then proceeded with of the installation of Bro. William James Watson, as W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed in a very able and impressive manner by Bro. J. H. Jackson, P.M., P.P.S.G.D. The ceremony over, the W.M. proceeded to appoint and invest his officers, and in doing so he addressed a few remarks of congratulation and encouragement to each. His choice fell upon the following brothers:—R. S. Hopper, S.W.; G. D. Leng, J.W.; J. Boothroyd, Sec.; J. Trotter, Treas.; Jonathan Fowler, S.D.; T. Wilks, J.D.; W. Lightfoot, I.G.; Thomas Preston, Org.; J. J. Thorman, and W. W. Wilson, Stewards; and J. Trenholme, Tyler. The W.M. then, in the name of the members of the lodge, presented to the I.P.M. and installing officer, Bro. J. H. Jackson, a most cordial vote of thanks for his zealous and faithful discharge of his duties during the year, to which he ascribed, in no small degree, the gratifying position which the lodge occupied. He then begged Bro. Jackson to accept from the lodge for his wife a life subscription (entitling to two votes), to the Boys' Institution, and in doing so he referred in eulogistic terms to the services which Bro. Jackson had rendered to the lodge during his term of office. Bro. Jackson responded in suitable terms. The lodge having been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting hall, and sat down to an excellent repast, which reflected the highest credit upon Mrs. Bell, and the repast was rendered all the more enjoyable from the fact that several brethren, viz., W. W. Wilson, T. Wilks, W. Ford, Jonathan Fowler, W. Lightfoot, J. J. S. Harman, P. Pescod, and others, had undertaken to attend personally to the wants of the company, thus securing in a most agreeable manner the comfort of every one present. Too much credit cannot be given to these brethren for their exertions, for by dispensing with the services of professional waiters, the guests were served with most commendable care and attention. The wines, which were of the best quality, were supplied by Messrs. Thomas Hutchinson and Co. The chair was occupied by the Worshipful Master, Bro. W. J. Watson, who was supported by Bros. A. C. Knowles, P.M. 509, P.M. 940, P.S.G.D.; J. Hunton, P.M., J.G.D.; G. Ellis, P.M., P.G.S. of Works; Thomas Walton, P.M.; A. S. Fowler, P.M.; Thomas Bowron, P.M.; J. H. Jackson, P.M., P.P.S.G.D. Amongst the company present were the following brethren:—Lord Ernest Vane Tempest, W. Best, P.M., P.P.S.G.D.; I. H. Hart, James Bowron, C. Jordison, H. Smith, W. Hird, S. T. Stephenson, Samuel Gordon, G. E. Smirke, R. S. Hopper, Thomas Bradley, J. Ashmore, G. Hopper, T. S. Thorpe, W. Laing, J. Spicer, B. Lockwood, A. G. J. de Long, M. B. Dodds, J. Boothroyd, J. Trotter, J. P. Banning, J. Trenholme, P. Pescod, J. Fowler, J. W. Moses, W. Lightfoot, W. W. Wilson, J. J. Thorman, Jos. Walton, Thomas Preston, W. Ford, John Scarth, J. C. Carr, 940; R. B. Horsley, 764; John Inglis, 254; C. A. Head, 509; W. S. Dixon, 543; B. R. Smith, J. Usher, C. E. Naish, J. G. Walton, C. W. Hanson, R. J. Jackson, and F. J. H. Bellingranger. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave in succession "The Queen and the Craft," "The Most Worshipful Grand Master of England," "Bro. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, P.G.M.," and "The Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master of England, and the Present and Past Grand Officers." Bro. Bowron then gave the next toast, "The Health of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Durham, Bro. John Fawcett," and Bro. R. S. Hooper followed with the toast of "The Deputy Provincial G.M. of Durham." Bro. W. Best then proposed "The Health of the Installing Master," and in doing so spoke highly of the manner in which Bro. Jackson had discharged his duties in the ceremony. Bro. Jackson responded. The health of the "Visiting Brethren" was proposed by Bro. J. Trotter, and responded to by Lord Ernest V. Tempest, and Bro. Dixon. of Stokesley. Bro. J. H. Jackson next gave the "Health of the W.M.," dwelling at some length upon the zeal and attention which the W.M. had shown in the discharge of his duties since he entered the Craft. The W.M. acknowledged the compliment in suitable terms. Bro. Boothroyd gave the "W.M. and Brethren of the Tees Lodge," coupled with the name of Bro. G. Ellis, and Bro. M. B. Dodds proposed the "W.M., Officers, and Brethren of the Lodge of Philanthropy," to which Bro. A. S. Fowler replied. Amongst the remaining toasts were "The Officers of the Lodge," the "Philanthropy Lodge of Instruction," and "All poor and distressed Masons." During the evening some excellent vocalism was given by Bros. A. J. de Long, G. Thorpe, I. H. Hart, G. E. Smirke, J. Bowron, J. Boothroyd, P. Pescod, C. Jordison, J. H. Jackson, W. Laing, &c., who were accompanied on the pianoforte by Bro. Joseph Walton, with his usual good taste and skill. The proceedings were throughout of a most enjoyable character.

INSTRUCTION.

DALHOUSIE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—The Brethren connected with this recently established and flourishing Lodge of Instruction, celebrated their first anniversary at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on Thursday evening, the 30th ult., and the social gathering was one of the most successful and enjoyable nature. The chair was occupied by Bro. Dr. J. Kellet Smith, P.M., who has acted in the most eminently satisfactory manner as the Preceptor of the lodge, and Bro. J. J. Rose, W.M. of the Mariners' Lodge, was in the position of S.W. There were about 30 members present. After a very excellent dinner, supplied by Bro. Ball, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and responded to with the greatest heartiness. Bro. Rose afterwards gave the health of "Bro. Dr. Smith, our worthy Preceptor," referring to the very excellent services rendered by him as the Preceptor of the lodge, and to the great advantages derived by the members from his instruction. Bro. Dr. Smith, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had long been of opinion that no organised body of Masons could be satisfactorily worked without a lodge of instruction, and, therefore, he had all the greater pleasure in CONFIDENCE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 193).—The veteran Bro. Thomas Adams, P.G.P., eighty-one years of age, but possessing greater vigour and sprightliness than many a man half his age, honoured the above lodge by presiding as W.M. for the purpose of working the Fifteen Sections on Wednesday, 22nd ult., at Bro. Chard's, White Hart Tavern, Abchurch Lane, E.C. To say the work Bro. Adams had in hand was exceedingly well done, would scarcely be complimentary, his Masonic abilities and aptitude to instruct being universally known and recognised, but the great merit of his performance consisted in his readiness to supply a missing word or correct an inadvertency. With unequalled fluency and remarkable precision the work was accomplished. He was most efficiently assisted by the brethren, in the following order:—Henson, Gottheil, Constable, James Stevens, Bentley, De Solla, S. E. Moss, Posener, Larham, Pinder, Earnes, Austin, and Bloomfield. The room was crowded, and several visitors, who became members, were present. In due course Bro. Gottheil proposed a vote of thanks to the W.M. for his kindness and courtesy, and asked him to confer a favour upon the lodge by accepting honorary membership; to which Bro. Adams replied in suitable terms, accepted the honour, and promised to frequently visit a lodge in which he had been favoured with so cordial a reception. Bros. S. E. Moss, P.M., and Pinder, occupied the Wardens' chairs, the latter rendering valuable assistance during the progress of the proceedings. It may be interesting to many to know that a portrait of Bro. Adams is published by Bro. Swallow, and that the whole of the profits arising from its sale will be given to the Masonic charities. Copies may be had at 3, King-street, St. James, or of Bro. T. Dyson, Rupert-street, Haymarket, proofs 7s., copies 3s. 6d.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Lodge of Instruction (No. 249).—The brethren connected with this recently established and flourishing Lodge of Instruction, celebrated their first anniversary at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on Thursday evening, the 30th ult., and the social gathering was one of the most successful and enjoyable nature. The chair was occupied by Bro. Dr. J. Kellet Smith, P.M., who has acted in the most eminently satisfactory manner as the Preceptor of the lodge, and Bro. J. J. Rose, W.M. of the Mariners' Lodge, was in the position of S.W. There were about 30 members present. After a very excellent dinner, supplied by Bro. Ball, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and responded to with the greatest heartiness. Bro. Rose afterwards gave the health of "Bro. Dr. Smith, our worthy Preceptor," referring to the very excellent services rendered by him as the Preceptor of the lodge, and to the great advantages derived by the members from his instruction. Bro. Dr. Smith, in acknowledging the compliment, said he had long been of opinion that no organised body of Masons could be satisfactorily worked without a lodge of instruction, and, therefore, he had all the greater pleasure in fulfilling the duties entrusted to him as Preceptor. He was greatly pleased at the success which had attended the Mariners' Lodge of Instruction, and trusted that in time it would be the means of making No. 249 one of the best worked lodges in the province, thereby making it worthy of its age and position. Other toasts were given and responded to, and the harmony of a very pleasant meeting was greatly enhanced by the excellent singing of Bros. W. H. Nicholas, J. Ellis, and W. G. Veale, the last-named also presiding at the harmonium.

WELLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—(No. 548.—The annual festival of the Wellington Lodge of Instruction was held on Monday, the 20th April, at the White Swan, Deptford, when a large gathering of the members of the lodge, and their friends assembled to partake of an excellent banquet, which was put on the table in a style that reflected the greatest credit on Mrs. Porter, the proprietress of the establishment. Shortly before eight o'clock the lodge was opened in due form by the W.M., Bro. Griffin, P.M. 933, Z. 79, H. 933, and the first section was worked by the brethren present, the questions being propounded by Bro. J. Nash, P.M. 79, who occupied the chair of J.W. At the close of the section the lodge was called off to refreshment, and the brethren proceeded to the banquet-room, where the chair was taken by Bro. Griffin, supported by Bros. Dr. Baxter Langley, J.W. 1124, and H. J. Green, 1275, as vice-chairmen. Bro. Macdonald, S.D. 1158, the Secretary, occupied the seat on the right of the Chairman, who was supported on the left by Bro. Dilley, P.M. 871, the esteemed Preceptor of the lodge. Among the other brethren present we observed Bros. Shaw, J.W. 79; Andrews, W.M. 871; Dingle, S.W. 161; and Moore, Debac, Bear, Hutchings, Spark, Stevens, Pitt, Marketts, Dalby, Fellows, Gloster, G. Porter, Croisdale, Jewett, Zachrisson, and Stahr. On the removal of the cloth the chairman rose and said that on account of the lateness of the hour he thought it advisable to curtail the list of Masonic toasts as much as possible, and therefore in proposing the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the brethren must receive it and respond to it in its most comprehensive sense. The loyalty of Freemasons was so well known that it needed no encomiums from his lips upon the many virtues and domestic qualities of their sovereign to ensure an enthusiastic reception to the proposition of Her Majesty's health; he had only to remind them that in addition to the claims which the Queen had on the affections of her subjects generally, she was also entitled to their gratitude as a patron of the Order. With these remarks he would propose to them in its most comprehensive sense the toast "The Queen and the Craft." It is needless to say that the toast was responded to with the greatest enthusiasm. The Chairman then proposed the toast of the evening, namely, "Success to the Wellington Lodge of Instruction," in doing which he observed that he was pleased to see so many members present, but he wished that the list of visitors had been more numerous. For the information of the latter he stated that the lodge was held in that room every Monday evening, at eight o'clock, when, as W.M., it was his practice to have the working commenced punctually. He was pleased to say that punctuality in this matter had been attended with the best results, as it had had the effect of securing a very good attendance of brethren. As other brethren, their Secretary in particular, would have something to say in relation to the lodge, he should content himself with these remarks, and conclude by proposing "Success to the Wellington Lodge of Instruction," coupling with it the name of Bro. Nash, P.M. of the Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Nash said that he was rather taken aback at hearing his name coupled with this toast, but as an old member of the lodge, he had much pleasure in returning thanks for the manner in which the toast had been received, and for the honour done to him by being called upon to respond. He had joined the lodge some eight years ago, and it formed a feature in his career of Freemasonry, that for about five years he had been a constant attendant, during which time, though not the Preceptor, he had frequently had the honour of taking that position, and had the satisfactory reflection that he had done something in imparting instruction to the brethren who stood in need of it. They congratulated themselves upon the improvement of the lodge. At one time it was thought that it would die out. At that time it numbered only some ten or twelve members, but he was glad to find that at the present time they numbered some hundred members on their books. At present time he occupied the office of Preceptor to another lodge, of which he was very proud and though he therefore naturally wished for his own lodge pre-eminence success, he trusted that the Wellington Lodge of Instruction would continue its successful career and long enjoy the benefit it possessed in being presided over by present excellent Master. Bro. Dr. Baxter Langley proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Lodge, the Secretary, the Treasurer, the Preceptor," in doing which he observed that he often regretted to find a want of enthusiasm about Freemasonry in Lodges of Instruction where he had often found that a considerable time elapsed before the officers of the lodge were in attendance. He was very glad to find there was nothing to regret in the Wellington Lodge this score. But speaking of enthusiasm regarding Freemasonry he thought that very few sufficiently appreciated the grandeur of the science which might be traced back through the long vista of existing records of the world's history. He had long been devoted to the study of these records, and now looking at these records and monuments with Masonic eyes he could not but regret that he was so comparatively young a Mason, as he found that he had long been working with veiled eyes. He said that it was surprising to find how many traces of Freemasonry existed in the monuments preserved in the British Museum, as to which he made some very interesting allusions, concluding with some words in praise of Freemasonry as the teacher of man's duty to his God and his neighbour. Bro. Dilley, the Preceptor, having returned thanks to the Secretary, Bro. Macdonald, read a statement of the affairs of the lodge, which showed the same to be in a very prosperous condition reflecting great credit on the energy displayed by the management. "The Health of Visitors" was then proposed and responded to, and on the proposition of various members, none of them became members of the lodge. A vote of thanks to the Chairman was then proposed by Bro. Baxter Langley, which concluded the business of the evening, and the lodge was resumed, and closed in due form. During the evening some admirable songs were sung, and considerably to the enjoyment of the fest which must be pronounced a great success. cannot close this report without a word of praise to Mrs. Porter, the hostess, for the very superior manner in which the lodge rooms are furnished and decorated, and also for the excellence of the banquet provided, and the admirable manner in which it was served.

Mark Masonry.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—The usual meeting of the above lodge was held on Tuesday, the 5th inst., present: Bros. George I. King, W.M.; Cubitt, S.W.; Yeoman, J. Edmonds, M.O.; Brette, S.O.; Newman, J. Charles Horsley, S.D.; Dubois, I.G.; Levat, Treasurer; Little, Sec.; Holden, Marsh, Limpus. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read, a ballot was taken for William Stephens, P.M. 1365; it being in favour of his favour, Bro. Stephens was advanced to the degree of Mark Master. It was announced by the Secretary that the lodge had lost to its officers since the last meeting, viz., Davison, S.W., and Barrett, J.O. It was proposed by Bro. Charles Horsley, S.D., seconded by Bro. P. M. Cubitt, that a vote of condolence should be entered upon the minutes, and sent to the friends of the deceased brethren. This being election night a ballot taken for the W.M. for the ensuing year, resulted unanimously in favour of Bro. Yeoman, the same being made in favour

Bro. Levander, Treasurer, and Gilbert, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in due form, the brethren adjourning to a well spread board, provided by Bro. Gosden, in his usual liberal manner, after which some few toasts were proposed, whilst contributions to the harmony of the meeting, from Bros. Charles Horsley and Marsh, closed a very pleasant evening.

Keswick.—Bective Lodge (No. 147).—On Wednesday, April 22nd, a special assembly of this lodge of Mark Master Masons was held at the Lodge-room, Keswick Hotel, for the purpose of installing Bro. W. Thornton as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. After the lodge had been opened by Bro. John Wood, the retiring Master, the Master elect, Bro. Thornton, was presented to Bro. James Porter, of Wigton, Past Master of Cumberland Lodge, No. 63, Carlisle, and Past Grand Senior Deacon of England, who, with the assistance of Bro. Wood, performed the ceremony of installation in the most able manner. Subsequently the newly-installed Worshipful Master appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Rev. R. Rutherford, S.W. and Chaplain; G. P. Abraham, J.W. and Organist; Wm. Lamony, (Keswick), Master Overseer; J. D. Wivell, Senior Overseer and Treas.; D. Crosthwaite, Junior Overseer; R. Robinson (Cockermouth), Registrar of Marks; Alfred Pettitt, Sec.; T. Usher, S.D.; W. F. Lamony (Cockermouth), J.D.; E. Tyson (Whitehaven), I.G.; and W. Crowden, Master of Ceremonies. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to another room, where all present were invited by Bro. Thornton to partake of an excellent banquet. The Worshipful Master presided, supported by the Installing Master, and faced by Past Master Wood. Afterwards a very agreeable evening was spent in harmony, sentiment, and song, Bros. Usher, Abrahams, and Wood contributing very materially to the last-mentioned department of the enjoyments.

Knights Templar.

LIVERPOOL.—Alpass Preceptory.—By command of the E.P., a conclave of the knights of the Alpass Preceptory, stationed at Liverpool, was held at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, on Wednesday, the 20th ult., the principal business being the installation of Eminent Preceptor. During its year's existence, the Alpass Preceptory (named after the most valuable and esteemed P.G. Sec. for the Province of West Lancashire, of Antient Free and Accepted Masons), has quickly established itself as one of the most influential, successful, and best worked in the province, and therefore the clat attending its first anniversary meeting was all the more pronounced and certain. The preceptory was opened at 4 o'clock, by Sir Knight H. S. Alpass, E. Preceptor, and the others present in the preceptory were: Sir Knights J. E. Jackson, Prelate; T. Clark, 1st Captain; Wm. Doyle, 2nd Captain; Moses Mawson, Registrar; R. Brown, Almoner; W. H. Shakespeare, 1st S.B.; W. C. Bulman, 2nd S.B.; J. Kenyon, 2nd H.; J. Ball, Equerry; W. Shortis, J. Chisnall, T. Evans, J. Gallagher, and H. Burrows. The visitors present were: Sir Knights E. Pierpoint, E.P. (Jacques de Molay), P.E.G. Captain of Lines; Captain Thomas Berry, P.G. Captain, 1st Standard Bearer, 1st P.G. Captain, P.E.P. (Jacques de Molay); Joseph Wood, (William Jacques de Molay); J. E. Hall, Constable (Loyal Volunteer, No. 7); and William Ashley Clayton, (Jacques de Molay). The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed, after which the ballot was taken for Comp. Amiel Hikins, St. John of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 203, which proved unanimously in favour of his election. The Eminent Preceptor elect, Sir Knight T. Clark, First Captain, was then presented to Sir Knight Alpass for installation to the chair of the Preceptory, Sir Knights Pierpoint and Berry making the presentation. The customary obligations were taken, the first and second Captains took command of their respective columns, and the arch of steel having been formed, the Eminent Preceptor elect was inducted to the East by the P.E.P.'s. All the knights below the rank of E.P. were then requested to retire, and on their re-admission Sir Knight Alpass, P.E.P., made proclamation of the newly installed E.P. in due form. Sir Knight Clark, E.P., then appointed the following as officers of the Preceptory for the ensuing year:—Sir Knights S. Alpass, P.E.P.; John Lloyd, Prelate; William Doyle, First Captain and Treasurer; J. E. Jackson, Second Captain, Moses Mawson, Registrar (second time); J. T. Parker Parkinson, Almoner, Richard Brown, Expert; W. C. Pulman, 1st St. Bearer; John Renyon, 2nd Std. Bearer; W. H. Shakespeare, Captain of Lines; William Shortis, 1st Herald; John Gallagher, 2nd Herald; Thomas Evans, Chamberlain; and Peter Ball was re-elected Equerry. Three members were subsequently proposed for installation. Before the Preceptory closed (the P.E.P. having in the meantime retired) it was proposed and carried by acclamation that Sir Knight Alpass, P.E.P., in recognition of his valuable services, should be made an honorary member of the preceptory, if agreeable to him, and also that he should be asked to sit for his portrait at the expense of the preceptory, for the purpose of being placed on the walls of the new Masonic Hall. On re-entering the Preceptory Sir Knight Alpass was informed of the desire of the members, and in acknowledging the compliment he said that although it has been his intention to continue a subscribing member of the preceptory, he accepted the honour with sincere thanks. With respect to the other proposal that he should sit for his portrait, he could assure the assembled knights that he could not find words with which to thank them for this distinguished and altogether unexpected honour. He could assure them that he felt this a compliment indeed, and one which would give him the highest pleasure in complying with. The preceptory was afterwards closed, and the knights adjourned to a sumptuous banquet. During the evening the usual loyal, Masonic, and knightly toasts were given with rare enthusiasm. "The memory of Sir Knight A. C. Mott, P.G.S.B. of England," was drunk in solemn silence, after Sir Knight Alpass, P.E.P., had referred in glowing and feeling terms to the many noble qualities which adorned the character of the deceased.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The quarterly communication was held on Thursday, April 29, in St. Thomas Hall, Glasgow. There was a very large attendance of members, the hall being quite filled with the members and brethren, owing to there being four appeal cases.

Bro. W. M. Neilson, P.G.M., being on the continent, the chair was taken by Bro. F. A. Barrow, his Deputy, who was accompanied by the following office-bearers—J. Baird, acting Deputy Master, F. Walker, P.G. Treasurer; A. McTaggart, M.A., P.G.S.; J. Halket, P.G.S.D.; G. Thallon, P.G.J.D.; J. Balfour, P.G.D. of C.; J. Gilles, P.G.S.B.; and Wm. Phillips, P.G.I.G.; G. Weston, R.W.M. of 73, was appointed S.W.; and Bro. Wyllie, R.W.M. 117, J.W.

The lodge having been opened and a letter of apology read from the Rev. G. Penny, P.G. Chaplain,

The Treasurer's accounts were presented, and showed that the balance in hand is steadily increasing.

The Provincial Benevolent Fund accounts were also presented, showing that there had been fees received for 700 candidates during the past year. This had enabled the committee to relieve every case that had come before them, and yet put by nearly £100, so that there is now £400 in hand. The accounts were received with acclamation, and thanks voted to the Treasurer of each.

Bro. Walker replied, and expressed his regret that Bro. Sinclair had been unable to attend.

The P.G.M. expressed the pleasure he felt to be able to report so satisfactorily on the financial aspect of affairs, and after having visited twenty-two out of the twenty-four lodges in the province, he was still very happy to be able to say that their whole progress was satisfactory; it was something to think that 700 members had been added to the roll during the past year, but it was more satisfaction to be able to add that the status of the Order in Glasgow was advancing, morally as well as numerically. They had now to consider the application for three new charters in the province. Those for the Clydesdale and St. Vincent's, he should have much pleasure in recommending to the Lodge; the third he was not so sure of, as he did not like to see fresh lodges opened unless he was quite certain the circumstances of the district required it. There was one other point on which he should just touch, and that was the position of their Provincial Grand Secretaries. Fourteen years ago a small salary was attached to it; during those fourteen years the work had more than quadrupled; now this was in a great measure owing to the untiring zeal and energy of the Secretary, who had laboured incessantly to bring order out of comparative chaos, and the result was before them. Glasgow was now not only the largest, but, he would make bold to say, the best organised province in Scotland, and from their Benevolent Fund they now disbursed as much as the Grand Lodge herself. He would, therefore, move that the Secretary's salary be doubled.

This was carried by acclamation, and Bro. McTaggart re-entered the lodge, and being informed of what had been done in his absence, he thanked them in felicitous terms, not so much for himself, as for whoever might succeed him in the office. He had laid the foundation for good work and he hoped a worthy successor might soon be found who would be able to raise a noble superstructure, worthy of the Craft he loved so much, and had endeavoured to serve so faithfully in the past, and if health was spared him they would not find his zeal faltering or his love growing cold.

Bro. John Frazer, P.M. 87, and P. Prov. G.S.D., was then elected as the Deputy Marshal, to assist Bro. Robb.

The P.G.M. said there was another officer they had to elect viz, a Tyler, in the room of their deceased Bro. James Pollock, to whose memory he paid a deserved eulogium, and said he trusted all the Masters in the province would support his proposition for making a permanent provision for his widow, so that her few remaining days might be spent in comparative comfort and ease.

Bro. Halket stated what had been done already towards effecting this object, and proposed Bro. Hardy to fill the vacant office, which was unanimously agreed to.

The report of the Committee on Appeals was then read. They recommended: 1st. That the appeal of Mr. Thomas Stratford be dismissed, and his expulsion from Lodge Glasgow, 441, be confirmed, and that Grand Lodge be requested to expel him from the Order, for violating his Masonic obligation, he having acknowledged that he had joined and acted as the so-called Master of a spurious body, calling themselves No. 1 St. John's Melrose Masons; 2. That the petition of Bro. Spears be also dismissed, he at the time not being a clear member of his lodge; 3. That the brethren of the Neptune be advised to send another request to the Master to call the desired meeting; and 4, that they exonerate Bro. Stevens from the charge preferred by Bro. Wallace.

The whole of these recommendations were then adopted by the lodge. Bro. J. Wallace took exception to the last, but the Prov. G. M. ruled that he could not be heard on the subject, as he was not at present a member of the Provincial Lodge.

The questions to come before the Grand Lodge were then discussed. Bro. Bain, P.G.W., thought it a waste of time and money to go to Edinburgh to be treated with contempt by the Prov. G. Masters there, and have the deliberate resolutions of a large meeting overruled by a small one, when they were not present. Some discussion then ensued, some contending that they should attend in large numbers for the reason urged by Bro. Bain.

The lodge was then closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332) met on Monday, the 20th ult., Bro. J. B. MacNair, R.W.M., in the chair, Bros. MacCurdy, S.W.; and MacConachy, J.W. The auditors presented their report, which showed the lodge to be in a most flourishing financial position, and a cordial vote of thanks was given to Bro. Demster, the worthy Treasurer, for the attention he had bestowed on the affairs of the lodge. Two gentlemen were then proposed for initiation, and were duly admitted into the Order. The lodge having been raised to the second degree, Bro. MacNair passed two members into that degree; the same brethren being about to sail next week, were then raised to the sublime degree by Bro. Pash, the R.W.M. giving them the lecture and charges. This concluded a long evening's work, all of which was given in admirable style.

Lodge Thistle (No. 87) met on the 22nd ult., in St. Marks' Hall, Bro. J. Miller in the chair. The work consisted of one initiation, after which the lodge was placed for a short time in the hands of the J.W., when a very harmonious hour was spent by the assembled brethren, amongst whom were nearly twenty visitors.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle and Rose (No. 73).—This old lodge was honoured on Tuesday, the 21st of April, by a visit from the Provincial Lodge, the deputation being composed of Bros F. A. Barrow, acting P.G.M.; J. Bain, P.G.S.W.; J. Walker, P.G.T.; A. McTaggart M.A., P.G.S.; T. Halket, P.G.S.D.; J. Bairn, P.G.B.B.; W. Philips, P.G.D.C.; and J. Gills, P.G.S.B. Bro. G. Western, R.W.M. of 73, expressed the pleasure the lodge felt at receiving so large and important a deputation from the P.G.L. The P.G. Secretary then read the official report of the inspection of the lodge affairs. The acting P.G.M. said it was a source of great gratification to him and his office-bearers at the visitation to be able, as they could in this instance, to highly commend the whole working of the lodge, both in the conducting of the ceremonies and the keeping of the books. But while commending them as a lodge he must state that he was not satisfied with the position of the Order in the Province; he thought they should take a higher stand than they had hitherto done, make a better use of their power and influence, and use it to raise the moral tone of society at large. They belonged to the oldest institution in the world, and it behoved them to carry out, more fully than they had hitherto done, the great principles on which the Order was founded. They had done much, but what was done should not satisfy them, but only act as an incentive to greater exertions for the future. Let them look at what has been done in England, for the cause of charity, and also in France, or in America, and surely they in Scotland ought to be able to do the same. He had been pressing the subject on the attention of each lodge during his visitations this year. He trusted the lodges would take it up, and instruct their Masters and Wardens so that they might go to the next Provincial Grand Lodge prepared to take definite action in the matter, for if anything practical was to be done it must arise from the lodges themselves becoming interested in it, and giving instruction to them, as the Provincial Lodge, to carry out their wishes, and so realise the true principles of the Order (cheers). Bro. Western, R.W.M., thanked the P.G.M. for the advice he had given them, and the kind manner in which he had conveyed it to them. The Thistle and Rose were always pleased to receive the P.G.L., and would endeavour to carry out their suggestions. The deputation then withdrew, and after the transaction of some private business, the lodge was closed in the usual form.

GLASGOW.—Athol Lodge (No. 413)—This lodge met at 213, Buchanan-st., on Tuesday, April 28, Bro. John Wallace, R.W.M., in the chair, supported by James Miller, I.P.M.; J. Robinson, D.M.; J. Leutitt, S.W.; J. McConnicher, J.W.; D. Agnew, Treasurer; H. Henny, Secy. A proposition was read for Jas. Liddle, which was unanimously received, and he being in attendance, was admitted and initiated by the R.W.M. The lodge was then called on to elect a Secretary, in the place of Bro. Henny, who is leaving for Canada. The lodge was unanimous in their expression of regret at losing his services. As this was the last night that he would be with them they had previously presented him with a handsome testimonial of their respect for his past services on behalf of the lodge. Bro. Wm. Loutitt was then chosen as his successor, and along with Bro. Jamison, who had been elected as S.D., was then installed by Bro. J. Miller, P.M. The lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—Mother Kilwinning Lodge (No. 10).—The members of the Mother Lodge resident in Glasgow and its vicinity, held their annual festival on the 24th ultimo, at Bro. Paton's, the Albert Hotel, who provided a most excellent banquet in his well known first-class style. The chair was taken by Bro. R. Cochran Partrick, of Woodside, Deputy Master of the P.G.L. of Ayrshire, R. Bell, the M.N.C. of the Knights Templar, occupied the chair of Croupier; they were respectively supported by Bros. Whinton, Gibson, Johnston, Fergusson, Grant, Walker, Tweed, Shaw, Turner, Adams, and Bruce. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were done full justice to by the Chairman. Bro. W. F. Shaw then proposed "The P.G.L. of Ayrshire," which Bro. Partrick gracefully acknowledged. J. Fergusson gave "Mother Kilwinning." Bro. Whinton replied, showing how it had proved the cradle of Masonry. The next sentiment was "The Ground Work of Freemasonry," by the Croupier. The excellence of his address created an unanimous request that Bro. Bell would allow it to be published, and we hope to give it in our next. Bro. Johnston replied for the brethren from Kilwinning. Votes of thanks to the Chairman and Croupier, were suitably acknowledged, and this pleasant evening was concluded by the whole company singing "Auld Lang Syne."

OPENING OF A NEW CONCLAVE OF THE RED CROSS OF ROME AND CONSTANTINE IN GLASGOW.

On Thursday, April 23rd, 1874, at the request of the Grand Imperial Council of the Order, the Illustrious Sir Knight C. G. C. Christie, K.G.C., M.P.S. No. 4, the Intendant General for Mid Lothian, attended at Glasgow, to open a new Conclave. He was accompanied by the following distinguished members of the Order:—Very Eminent Sir Knight J. B. Mercer, K.G.C., P.M.P.S. No. 4; R. S. Brown, K.G.C., Hon. S. and P.E.V. 4; H. C. Jonas, M.P.S. 103; E. William Barton, Hon. S. 103; E. D. Shearer, V.E. 103; William Milne, M.P.S. elect No. 4; J. Fleming, E.V.E. elect No. 4; A. M. Bruce, S.G. 103; J. P. Nevin, T. 103; N. Minola Rennie, T. Forbes, Davie, Wilmott, Robertson, and others.

Members of Conclaves No. 4 and 103, in Edinburgh, who came forward with alacrity to help to open the first Conclave in the West of Scotland, though we venture to predict that it will not be the last in that quarter of the kingdom, as the Order is sure to spread when it becomes known.

The meeting was held at 2 o'clock, in St. Mark's Hall, which is admirably adapted for such a purpose, the shield and banners of the Knights Templar with which it is adorned being not inappropriate to the working of this chivalric degree.

The conclave was duly opened by the Ill. I.G. Sir Knight Christie, as M.P. Sov.; J. B. Mercer, K.G.C., P.S. No. 4, as E.N.; R. S. Brown, as H.P.; A. M. Bruce, S.G.; J. Nolan, J.G.; J. Fleming, H.

Bros. G. W. Wheeler, R. Bell, J. Johnstone, and P. J. Tweed were created Knights of the Order. A Council of Eminent Viceroy's was then formed, and the same four brethren, along with Sir Knights Wells and Fleming, of Conclave No. 4, were duly installed in the seat of Eusebius. A Council of M.P. Sovereigns was then opened, and Sir Knights G.W. Wheeler, R. Bell, and J. Mill, were received into that degree and installed in the chair of Constantine. A Conclave of Knights was again opened, and eight brethren were duly admitted and installed as Knights of the Order. The Ill. Intendant General then called on the members of the Glasgow Conclave to choose their first set of officers, wherewith to open their conclave, when the following Knights were unanimously elected, and thereafter installed by the M.P. Sovereign, a Sir Knt. R. S. Brown, K.G.C., the ceremony being admirably rendered.

George William Wheeler, M.P. Sov.; John Johnston, E.V., Eusebius; Robert Bell, Hon. Sov.; J. Tweed, Hon. Vice, Dugald Bull, S.G.; W. Dabber, J.G.; D. B. Fleming, H.P. W. Bell, T.; James Loutitt, Recorder; John Buchanan, P.; G. B. Adams, S.B.; J. O. Partrick, H.; and T. McClanachan, Sentinel. The M.P.S. said it was with great diffidence and reluctance that he had accepted of the distinguished honour they had just conferred upon him, for was indeed a high honour to preside as the Sovereign of the first Conclave in the West of Scotland. He did not intend to say much on the present occasion, but if attention to duty and perseverance in the precepts of the Order, would make up for lack of ability and influence, he trusted that his acts should speak for him. His first duty had been to thank them for their confidence, and his next was to thank the Illustrious Intendant General and the Eminent Knights that had accompanied him from Edinburgh, for their kindness in coming over to confer the degree, and install them, and also to thank the Grand Recorder and the G. Treas., Sir Knight R. W. Little, for the very kind way in which they had met their request to form a Conclave in Glasgow.

Sir Knight Christie said it had been a source of pleasure to himself, and the rest of the deputation to come over on this occasion, for he felt sure from what he had seen of their Sov., as well as the rest of the officers, that the Conclave would be soon second to none.

The Knights then adjourned to St. John's Masonic Hall, where a repast was awaiting them. The Edinburgh friends were much pleased with this arrangement, as it enabled them to see the two best Masonic halls in Glasgow. G. W. Wheeler presided, supported by C. G. C. Christie, K.G.C., I.G.D., M.P.S. No. 4; and V.E. Sir Knight R. S. Brown, K.G.C., Hon. S. and P.E.T. No. 4; Bro. F. Johnston, V., as Croupier, was supported by V.E. J. Mercer, K.G.C., P.M.P.S. No. 4; H. E. Jonas, M.P.S. 103; R. Bell, H.S.; and J. Tweed, H.V. of the Glasgow Conclave. After the cloth was cleared the Chairman, after giving "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Patron of Scotch Masonry," "Our new Bro. H. R.H. Prince Arthur and the rest of the Royal Family," proposed "The Grand Imperial Council of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, with the M.I.G. Sovereign, Sir F. M. Williams, M.P.," C. Christie, I.G., replied in very felicitous terms on behalf of that illustrious body, and then gave "The Glasgow Conclave and its Sovereign, congratulating them on the favourable auspice under which they had been inaugurated, and predicting for them a most satisfactory progress from the eminent Masonic qualities ensure not only by their chief but by all the officer elect.

Bro. Wheeler said that in assuming the arduous duties to which they had appointed him, he had done so in full reliance on the support of the officers which he saw around him. He knew them all intimately, and knew they to be thoroughly imbued with the true spirit of Masonry, and that they were all workers rather than talkers. He could perhaps say with no other son of the Order could, that all his office-bearers were not only brethren holding high positions in Arch Masonry, eight of them being Principals, and two Scribe E's of different chapters in the city, but further that they were all of them Knights Templar; he had not only his esteemed friend R. Bell, the M.N.C., but all three Past Commanders at two Deputy Commanders. With such a staff of officers he felt that success was certain if they were only true to themselves in the principles of the Order they had now inaugurated, and fully relying on their aid, he would do his best for the Glasgow Conclave, and so try to deserve the honour now conferred on him.

R. Bell, Hon. Sec., then proposed "The deputation from No. 4." He felt it indeed an honour to have so large and influential a deputation present, and one so capable of fully supporting the beautiful and impressive ceremonies of the Order. Bro. R. S. Brown, E.V.E. of No. 4, replied, expressing the pleasure it had given him, as well as the rest of the deputation, to come and assist in spreading the Order, whose interest they all had so much at heart, and as for his share in the day's work, he would assure them that it was at all times a pleasurable duty for him to travel from the East to the West to impart light, and he had very little doubt that before long he should be asked to again accompany his friend C. Christie to establish another conclave, so sure was he of their rapid success. J. O. Pask gave "The Evening Officers;" V.E. Sir J. B. Mercer read, giving a beautiful exposition of the principles of the Order.

The Chairman gave "The Sovereign and Members of 103;" J. Jonas, M.P. Sov., briefly addressed.

Sir Knight Brown, proposed "The Croupier," and replied in a very feeling speech, expressing his desire to be useful to the conclave.

C. Christie proposed "The Hon. Sovereign and Viceroy of the Glasgow Conclave." R. Bell and J. Tweed replied.

"Happy to meet, sorry to part, but happy to meet again," concluded the toast lists.

Several of the Edinburgh Knights contributed to the harmony of the meeting, notably, R. Bruce, T. No. 4, by his excellent rendering of Sir Knight Little's "Red Cross Night."

GRAND CHAPTER.

The quarterly convocation of Grand Chapter was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Comps. John Havers as G.Z.; Dr. Hamilton as G.H.; and Sanderson (Bengal) as J. Among the other companions present were John Hervey, S.E.; Capt. W. Platt, Col. Edlett, S. Rawson, John Savage, Ben. Head, Browne, H. G. Dumas, E. S. Snell, Joseph Smith, James Brett, Joshua Nunn, F. A. Philbrick, C. E. Snow, R. J. Spiers, R. Spencer, F. Laird, J. A. Rucker, Dr. Goldsborough, J. C. Kinison, James Weaver, A. A. Pendlebury, H. Buss, H. Massey, J. E. Saunders, and Rev. R. Davy.

After the reading and confirmation of the votes of last quarterly convocation, the following officers were installed:—

- Marquess of Ripon G.Z.
- Earl of Carnarvon G.H.
- Lord de Tabley G.J.
- John Hervey G.S.E.
- Henry Thynne G.S.N.
- Rucker G.P.S.
- Percey Leith G. 1st A.S.
- Philbrick G. and A.S.
- John Tomkins G. Treas.
- J. McIntyre, Q. C. G. Reg.
- Parkinson Swd. B.
- E. Saunders Std. B.
- John C. Hadley G.D. of C.
- Payne G. Janitor.

The following is the report of General Purposes, which was taken as read and received, and ordered to be entered on the minutes.

The Committee of General Purposes beg to report that they have examined the accounts for the 21st January, to the 14th April, 1874, inclusive, which they find to be as follows:—

Balance 21st January ...	£555	7	0
Subsequent Receipts ...	385	7	10
	£940	14	10
Disbursements during the quarter ...	£164	13	10
Purchase of £300 Consols 1874 and Commission, &c.	276	15	0
Balance ...	499	6	0
	£940	14	10

The balance is in the hands of Messrs. Percival and Co., Bankers of the Grand Chapter. The accounts having been received from the following companions for charters for chapters, were submitted to Grand Chapter, and the prayers thereof were granted, on the recommendation of the Committee:—

1st. From Comps. John Penberthy Berryman, as Z.; William Guy, as H.; Charles Truscott, jun., as J.; and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Peace and Harmony Lodge, No. 496, St. Austell, to be called "The Mount Edgcumbe Chapter," and to meet at the White Hart Hotel, St. Austell, Cornwall.

2nd. From Comps. John Graydon as Z.; Charles Coupland as H.; Thomas Waters Knight as J.; and nine others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Pattison Lodge, No. 913, Plumstead, to be called "The Pattison Chapter" and to meet at the Lord Raglan Tavern, Plumstead, Kent.

3rd. From Comps. James Fowler, as Z.; Edmund Locock as H.; Charles Mitchell Nesbitt, as J.; and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Lindsay Lodge, No. 712, Louth, to be called "The St. James' Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Louth, Lincolnshire.

4th. From Comps. Simeon Charles Hadley as Z.; Richard Peter Atkins as H.; John William McIntosh Dosell as J.; and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Constitutional Lodge, No. 55, London, to be called "The Constitutional Chapter," and to meet at private rooms, Leytonstone, Essex.

With respect to a petition for another chapter, the committee reported that they had also received a petition from Comps. George D. Pochin as Z.; Heywood Masters, as H.; Joseph C. Gillman, as J.; and seven others, for a chapter to be attached to the Architect Lodge, No. 1375, Didsbury, to be called "The Architect Chapter," and to meet at the Didsbury Hotel, Didsbury, Lancashire. This petition was regular in form, but inasmuch as the Lodge to which the Chapter was proposed to be attached had not completed three years of its existence, the Committee could not recommend that the prayer thereof be granted. They, therefore, referred the question of the granting of this petition to the consideration of Grand Chapter.

Comp. Savage advised that Grand Chapter should not depart from its rule. If they granted the prayer it would place Grand Chapter in a difficulty, for it would be quoted hereafter as a precedent for departing from their usual course. As the Lodge had not been established three years it could not have three Past Masters to occupy the chairs of the three Principals. He moved that the prayer be not granted.

Comp. F. Adlard seconded the motion.

Comp. H. Browse moved as an amendment that the prayer be granted, but that the charter should not issue for six months, by which time the lodge would have completed its three years of existence.

Comp. Havers enquired whether there was precedent for such a course.

Comp. Hervey replied that there was no law or practice for that course.

On a division the amendment was lost, and the motion of Comp. Savage carried.

Comp. Hervey said he was sorry to announce that Comp. W. Pulteney Scott was absent on account of illness, but that companion desired to express his regret to Grand Chapter that he was unable to be present.

Comp. Havers then said that with respect to the next paragraph of the report the Committee have further to lay before Grand Chapter a report of the proceedings of the District Grand Chapter of Bengal, on the 6th of November, 1873, and beg to remit the whole question to Grand Chapter for its consideration. It referred to a matter which had on former occasions been before Grand Chapter. District Grand Superintendents in the colonies had been in the habit of allowing chapters to work pending the granting of charters by Grand Chapter. In May, 1873, a resolution was come to in Grand Chapter forbidding it; but Comp. Locke, the acting District Grand Superintendent of Bengal, had in June granted a dispensation to the nine companions to form a chapter called the Mayo Chapter. At that time the resolution of Grand Chapter could not have arrived there, and he therefore acted in ignorance of the resolution. When the resolution arrived there, he withdrew his permission. He, however, subsequently looked into the patent of the District Grand Superintendent, whose locum tenens he was, consulted with other companions, and by their advice withdrew his prohibition. The case appeared to be clearly against all the laws of Grand Chapter; but after the most careful consideration he (Comp. Havers) had given to the subject, he had come to the conclusion that the whole of the proceedings were right. The resolution was come to by Grand Chapter in May, but it was not confirmed till August. The old law was not against Comp. Locke. When he referred to the patent of Comp. Sandeman, he found he was authorized and empowered by his own hand and seal to grant to any nine known companions of the Order, a dispensation for their holding Chapters at certain times and places as he might find to be most convenient. The new law was not then passed; and the old one was not against it; the constitutions provided for it, and the patent authorised it. The old patent was granted in Comp. Gray Clarke's time, as S.E.; and it was not likely that either he, Comp. W. H. White who preceded him, put the power in the patent of their own will. The power was quite in accordance with a known law of Grand Chapter, for the patents were all engraved and printed. Having read the whole of Comp. Locke's report, he must say how much he appreciated the straightforward and manly conduct, the ability and the perfect courtesy, together with the determination it exhibited on the part of that companion to do his duty. A more exhaustive report he had never read. He would propose that the matter be referred to the Committee of General Purposes, with directions to examine and report upon what changes, if any, it would be advisable to make in the laws of Grand Chapter, to the next meeting.

After a few words from Comps. Hamilton and Sanderson, the motion was put and carried.

Comp. H. Browse then read the conclusion of the report of the Committee of General Purposes as follows:—

The President having quitted the chair, it was resolved unanimously that the best thanks of this Committee are due, and are hereby most fraternally offered to Comp. W. Pulteney Scott, President, for his constant attention to the business of Royal Arch Masonry, and his courtesy and kindness to all the members of the Committee during the last twelve months, and moved that it be recorded on the minutes.

Comp. Adlard seconded it, and it was carried unanimously.

The Committee of General Purposes for the ensuing twelve months was then elected, and Grand Chapter was closed.

Masonic Tidings.

MASONIC MAGAZINE.—The June number of the Magazine will contain a photograph of the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., Grand Master of England, and among other articles, Old Military Lodges, by Bro. Hughan; the Old Masonic Poem; Troy; History of Freemasonry in Russia; and other interesting matter. The Masonic Magazine is published monthly by Bro. George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.

Bro. A. H. Tattershall has been proposed as a member of the House Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

Bro. Peter Laird, the Assistant-Secretary of the Agricultural Hall Company, has resigned the post so long filled by him, and is about to retire into private life. The directors, at a special meeting yesterday, resolved that a purse of one hundred guineas, accompanied by a written testimonial in recognition of his lengthened and faithful services to the company from the time of its foundation, be presented to Bro. Laird on his cessation from labours at the Hall.

We understand that Messrs. Longmans, Green, and Co., will shortly publish in a half crown volume the speeches on "Financial Reform," which Bro. Wm. Trant, of Liverpool (Harmonic Lodge), has recently delivered on behalf of the Financial Reform Association.

THE CHARITIES.—A suggestion has been made that the Stewards' fees for our Charity Festivals should be arranged with or without dinner tickets, so that a brother could serve as Steward, without dining, for one guinea. No profit is made out of the dinner, the tavern-keeper having it all.

ever, but the laws of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution required that such notice should be given before any motion for an intended change was made. He had thought it best to assimilate the laws of this Institution in this respect to those of the Benevolent Institution, and he was sure that the more this matter was considered the more they would feel that it was the proper thing to do. In the motion he had to submit he had stated in his notice that the alteration should be made in consideration of the length and efficiency of Bro. Binckes's services. Bro. Binckes had been their Secretary for thirteen years, so that there really was length of service in his case. In their own private businesses, as merchants, warehousemen, solicitors, or any other line of business, the brethren remunerated the services of those whom they had employed for any long space of time, by giving them a larger salary than they did servants who had been with them but a short time. A body with which he as well as his brother on his left (Jesse Turner) was connected, the Corporation of London, had adopted a plan by which there was a revision of all salaries once every five years. Now, on looking over the papers in Bro. Binckes's office he found that the last time there was a revision of Bro. Binckes's salary was in 1869, which was just five years from the present time, though when he gave notice of this motion he had not that fact in mind, or any intention to assimilate the Masonic Institutions to the Corporation. He would call attention to the fact that in consequence of the increased cost of living the additional £50 a year would really only bring up Bro. Binckes's salary to what it was in 1869, so far as regarded its purchasing power; and it was hardly such an increase as it seemed at first sight to be. The second fact he had mentioned in his notice, the efficiency of Bro. Binckes's services, would be acknowledged by everyone who knew anything about that brother. At the time when Bro. Thistleton was Secretary they used to think a festival very favourable if they could get £200. On one occasion he (Bro. Symonds) remembered he said to Bro. Thistleton, scratching his head at the same time, that he thought £800 was a very small amount; but that brother smiled blandly, and said it was a good one, and that they had not had such a sum before within his knowledge. Now, it was not very long ago that £23,000 were announced at two successive festivals; that was in a great measure owing to the exertions of Bro. Binckes. (Hear, hear). He did not think he need dilate further upon the subject; it was nothing but absolutely just to Bro. Binckes that after so long and efficiently serving the institution he should have this addition made to his salary. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. H. Browse, V.P., seconded the motion. He had been one of those who had revised Bro. Binckes's salary in 1869, when his commission on the subscriptions, which it was at first thought best to pay, was discontinued, and a sum paid to him as salary in lieu of commission. This salary did not amount to nearly so much as his income, when he was paid commission, and it was now thought, after five years, that that should be increased. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., supported the proposition, on account not only of the length of the service of Bro. Binckes, but also of its efficiency. The brethren were told at the time the payments to Bro. Binckes were revised that his zeal and energy on behalf of the institution would fall off. This had not been the case at all, as Bro. Binckes was as energetic and zealous now as formerly. He was only sorry that Bro. Symonds had not gone further in his motion, and made the amount £100.

The motion was carried unanimously, and authority was given to sign the necessary cheque.

Bro. Binckes, who had been out of the room during these proceedings, was then called in, and informed by the Chairman of the result of Bro. Symonds' motion.

Bro. Binckes said he felt it was always a very delicate and difficult matter to speak of himself, but he hoped they would allow him in brief, though sincere words, to express his thanks to the brethren for their too kind appreciation of his services. He need hardly say that he felt very much the compliment paid to him; he felt it perhaps the more deeply because the motion carried with it in some way or other a mark of approval of the manner in which he had endeavoured to discharge his duties, and when the Chairman said it was carried without opposition that it greatly enhanced its value. If any brethren had entertained a feeling not entirely approving of what he had done, he hoped they would live long enough to find he had done right, and to give him credit in the meantime for the most honest endeavour to do so. Whatever might be their feelings it would make no difference at all in the energy with which he should continue to discharge his duties; except that would rather stimulate him to increased exertion on behalf of the interests of the institution. He would repeat how deeply he felt the kindness of the brethren in passing this resolution, and would once again warmly thank them for their kindness. (Hear, hear.)

The brethren then adjourned, after passing a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee held its usual monthly meeting on the 30th ult., in the Library, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Ben. Head, V.P., presided. There were also present, Bros. Major Creaton, H. Browse, H. C. Levander, A. T. Tattershall, E. Clark, Griffiths, Smith, J. F. Peacock, R. B. Webster, H. A. Dubois, H. Massey, A. H. Diaper, Raynham W. Stewart, and Dr. Ramsay. The sum of £1,500 was ordered to be invested, and Col. F. Burdett and Dr. Ramsay were elected on the House Committee, in place of Major Creaton, now Trustee, and Bro. George Cox, deceased. Nominations were received for the House and Audit Committees, and the brethren then proceeded with the consideration of petitions received since last meeting. The committee afterwards adjourned.

THE INITIATION OF H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD.

An emergency meeting of the Apollo University Lodge, No. 357, Oxfordshire, was held on the 1st inst. for the purpose of initiating into Masonry H.R.H. Prince Leopold, who is now resident in Oxford.

The interesting ceremony that was about to be performed drew together the largest number of members of the lodge that has probably ever been assembled in the University Masonic Hall at any one time, and from the fact that, at the special request of H.R.H., no visitors were admitted, and that the training for the college boat races prevented many brethren who would otherwise have been present from attending, the very large number present, nearly one hundred, showed the deep interest with which the entrance of H.R.H. into Masonry was regarded by all the brethren in the University.

The acting Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Aencas J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar, was unfortunately unable to attend.

The ceremony of initiation was performed by the W.M., Bro. F. Morrell, assisted by his officers, who all performed their parts with their usual promptitude and accuracy.

After the lodge was closed, the brethren adjourned to a banquet, presided over by the W.M., upon whose right hand sat Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, the toast of the evening, given by the W.M., was drunk with great enthusiasm, and duly responded to by his Royal Highness, who also subsequently returned thanks for congratulations addressed to him by the French and Italian readers of the University, on behalf of their respective nationalities. The brethren did not separate till a late hour, after a very pleasant and most successful meeting.

It should be mentioned that Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold was proposed in open lodge by desire of, and on behalf of, Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., the immediate Past Master of the lodge, and that Mr. R. H. Collins, of Lincoln College, Secretary to H.R.H. Prince Leopold, was initiated at the same time as his Royal Highness.

By special permission, the W.M. of the Alfred Lodge, No. 340, was present to represent the Mesons of the City of Oxford and as no other visitors were admitted, we are indebted to one of the members of the Apollo University Lodge for this account of a ceremony, which cannot fail to be of interest, not only to all members of the Craft, but also to all the loyal subjects of her Majesty.

EARLY GRAND MOTHER ENCAMPMENT OF SCOTLAND.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

There appears in your impression of April 18th, a notice of a meeting of the Grand Council of the Early Grand Encampment of Scotland in Kilmarnock. Now, Sir, I wish, through the columns of your valuable Masonic paper, to make it known that the Encampments mentioned have neither right nor title to announce themselves the Grand Council, as the charter, empowering the Early Grand in Scotland to form a Grand Council was granted to the oldest number in Scotland, which is Muirkirk, and it is stated that Muirkirk was the only Encampment that was not represented, and explained their absence by the fact that Muirkirk had made application to the Chapter General to come under that lodge. Now Sir, that statement is entirely without foundation, and I believe a mere fabrication of their own, to fulfil some purpose as yet unknown to Muirkirk's Sir Knights, and I think it was a great pity that any warm remarks should have been passed on a subject in which there was no truth, nor is it likely Muirkirk will ever take such a step as alienate themselves from a body of which in virtue of her charter, she is supreme, and I would wish further to let them know that if they cannot work the Grand Council according to the Ancient Irish Charter, they should not impose on the Masonic community by granting and regranteeing charters, when they know they have not such a power, without at least the concurrence of the oldest encampment, which is Muirkirk.

Your inserting the above in your valuable paper will oblige.

Yours fraternally,

JAMES ADAMSON,
Grand Scribe.

RAILWAY MANAGEMENT.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to correct an error in your issue of to-day, taken from the Manchester Guardian, and which has also appeared I believe in the Poll Mall Gazette and Standard, to the effect that the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company have been the first to open the booking offices at the principal stations from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Such is not the case, as the North Eastern Railway Company at some of their stations (personally, I know of Harrogate and Leeds) have had that arrangement in vogue, at least a fortnight before the Lancashire and Yorkshire advertised theirs. I think honour ought to be given to those to whom it is due.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN BARKER.

MR. CUFFE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I am glad to learn that Bro. A. A. Bagshawe has moved in the matter of Mr. Cuffe's refusal to bury a Roman Catholic Freemason, but I think it is evident that Grand Lodge can do nothing. What I wanted the Chatham lodges to do, but which apparently they have not spirit enough to do, inasmuch as nothing has been done in this way, is to bring Mr. Cuffe's conduct before the Colonel of the regiment, requesting him to take official steps in the matter. If Mr. Cuffe is a paid Chaplain, it is quite clear he should be brought to account for refusing to perform part of his duties as Chaplain.

I may mention that the late Dr. Leeson informed me that not only was the present Pope a Freemason, but of the highest rank in the higher degrees.

Yours fraternally,
P. M.

MASONIC CYPHER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Either I am very stupid, or the mystery is very deep; but I am a Mark Master, and I cannot read the advertisement in The Freemason, of May 2nd, in cypher. If you could explain it, or the advertiser, or if you could in your answers to correspondents, next week I should be obliged.

Yours fraternally,
M. M.

[We are sorry our brother is not up in the Masonic cypher! The cypher is very easy to read, but far be it from us to reveal the secrets of the advertising brother.—Ed.]

PROV. G. LODGE OF HERTFORDSHIRE.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If your reporter had spoken to me or to the Secretary of the Hertford Lodge, some mistakes in the report might have been avoided, but I never knew he was there, until I made enquiries during dinner. I would merely point out, first, that only five out of eight lodges in the province are mentioned, secondly, that the banquet was provided by the Hertford Lodge, whereas the tickets were £1 1s. each, thirdly, that the dinner was supplied by Bro. Andrews, of the Salisbury Arms, whereas Bro. Andrews is the Secretary of Hertford Lodge, and has nothing to do with the hotel.

Yours fraternally,
P. H. WILSON ILES.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In looking over this amusing controversy, I note that, in my last communication, I made a slight slip of the pen, by substituting "equal" for "old," twice at the very least.

Curiously enough this mistake, unlike many others, has no appreciable bearing on either the context of the sentence, or the "points" of my argument.

There is no custom in operative Masonry, here is no rule in speculative Masonry, which demands or enforces, either an equal or an unequal number of points.

Those who contend for any such rule or custom betray an utter ignorance of the subject of which they profess to expound, with the "dictum" of a skilled Master, the leading principles.

I should not have intervened in this discussion at all, as Bro. W. J. Hughan is quite able to encounter Bro. C. I. Paton, on any ground, and that, I was amused with the startling audacity with which Bro. Paton propounded gravely and ridiculous dogma, that, the double triangle could not be a Masonic Mark because it had an even number of points.

Having studied the question many years, in all bearings, and having had the advantage of listening to the lectures, and sharing in the rambles of our lamented and able Bro. E. W. Saw, who was most truly "facile princeps" in questions anent Masons' Marks, having been defied by hard and persevering labour the largest lecture extant, I felt that I could not allow Bro. C. I. Paton to come out, like the "jay in rowed plumage" and assert, what I know to be archaeologically incorrect and historically untrue.

The fact is, that Bro. C. I. Paton, like a good many other people now a days, not having studied the question profoundly "ab origine," seems to think that, if he will only boldly assert or sententiously put forth, some very novel and startling view, everybody else must "vail his bonnet," and go to the wall!

Now I have always contended, and always intend to contend, as long as discussion is permitted and intellect is free, that "ceteris paribus," we are all also equally competent to form an opinion and to express it.

If persons indeed propound untenable theories, merely for the idle purpose of controversy or sensation; if they rush into print on the slightest provocation; if they will argue where they have not studied, and adduce second hand authority, when they should have verified their references, they must not be surprised if in the melée of our Masonic criticism, they sometimes get rather roughly handled, unhorsed from their infantine hobbies, and comfortably rolled over on the ground.

Their fall will do them no harm, if it teaches them a little less egotism, a little less looseness of assertion, and if it renders them a little more tolerant and more respectful of the words and statements of others, who really do understand what they write about, and who actually, too, have thought out for themselves, relying on no second-hand "data," what in their desire to diffuse Masonic information, and to advance Masonic archæology, they seek to impart to others.

The question of the "Marks" is one of the most abstruse, and yet one of the most interesting of the whole range of subjects which fall under Masonic discussion.

It cannot be decided off-hand by any one, who on a most superficial acquaintance with the subject, and on an utterly rotten foundation, attempts to build up a showy but viciously planned and constructed edifice.

Many people, too, confuse the merely operative period of Masons' Marks with the purely speculative.

Learned men are not by any means agreed yet what Masons' Marks are in themselves, whether corporate or personal, whether mystical or purely tokens of Craft labour and convenience, but in discussing the question of Marks at all, to limit the discussion to the speculative period, is as reasonable as to play Hamlet, omitting the part of the chivalrous Prince.

I say all this by way of warning, all Masonic discussions having been next to nigh impossible hitherto, because they have always drifted into personalities.

We seem to be doing the same, even about "Marks."

But those who, like myself, look at the question, after many years study, purely from an archæological, and not from a personal point of view at all, we cannot allow any one to use such uncourteous and unmasonic language as Bro. Paton thought well to use in writing about Bro. Buchan and myself, though we have nothing in common, that we did not know what we were talking about, that we only displayed our ignorance, &c., and several other equally choice expressions.

Coming from Bro. C. I. Paton, this was a little too bad, as all I had done, my only offence, had been to point out that this view of the necessity of odd points was an utter absurdity, that there was no warrant for it to be found anywhere, at any period, either in speculative or operative Masonry, and that the double triangle was a Masonic operative mark, though Bro. Paton did not seem to know it. I referred him to Laurie and to Lyon to refute his own ill-judged and hasty assertion.

And so I leave the question, having thought well to admit a slight error, and to restate my own position more carefully to-day.

A MASONIC STUDENT.

THE LOST TEN TRIBES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Two words misprinted in my letter which appears in to-day's Freemason so alter the sense, that I must request you to kindly correct them. The ancient pronunciation of "Vivam" is "Weewam" and if you try to pronounce "Weewam" in the sort of guttural pronunciation of the Indians, it sounds very like Weegwam. Also present subjunctive "word" should be present subjunctive "mood."

Faithfully yours,
HERBERT B. HODGESS.

MASONIC BIBLIOGRAPHY.

In continuing this interesting department, so ably supported by Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., P.G.C., I wish to give the titles of two curious pamphlets I have lately purchased.

Any brethren who have others of a similar character about the same date would confer a favour on all Masonic students by furnishing particulars through the same medium.

W. J. HUGHAN.

"THE FREEMASONS' ACCUSATION AND DEFENCE," in six genuine letters between a gentleman in the country, and his son, a student in the Temple, wherein the whole affair of Masonry is fairly debated, and all the arguments for and against that fraternity are curiously and impartially handled. The third edition. London, printed for J. Peele, at Locke's Head, in Paternoster-row, and N. Blandford, the "London Gazette," Charing-Cross, 1726. (Price sixpence.)

Size 8vo. pp. 39.

"A Full Vindication of the Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons from the malicious aspersions and sly insinuations of ignorant and envious slanderers, particularly, the author or authors of a scandalous pamphlet, intitled, 'The Freemasons' Accusation,' whose false charges are here fairly confuted, his false reasonings, and false English set on a true light. By a lover of harmony and good fellowship.

" 'This maxim still the good wives hold,
One story's good till t'other's told.'"

—HUDIB.

"London, printed for J. Roberts, in Warwick-lane. 1726. (Price 6d.) 8vo. pp. 27."

ERRATA.—In that part of our report of the Stability Lodge of Instruction last week in which we referred to Bro. Ransford's English version of the non nobis, for the words "Many say that the words as arranged by Bro. Ransford go very well to the music," read "We may say that the words, &c., &c." There can be no two opinions about it.

In our notice of the Temple Lodge 1094, last week, it should have been stated that Bro. Ball, the House Steward at the Masonic Temple, was the purveyor of the excellent banquet, and not Mrs. Wright, as our reporter was informed.

In the report of the Commercial Lodge, No. 1391, in last week's paper, for Bro. "George Watts" read "George Matts' Assistant Secretary.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.—The Stewards' visit to the Girls' School will take place on May 11th, at 3 p.m. A very attractive programme of the proceedings on this interesting occasion has been issued, and will doubtless induce many brethren to be present. The prizes will be presented to the children by the Right Hon. the Countess of Shrewsbury and Talbot.

The meeting of the Board of Stewards for the Girls' School Festival will take place on Saturday, 8th inst., at 2.30 precisely.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—UNSEEMLY ERUPTIONS.—No means heretofore discovered are so competent to cope with and conquer all Blemishes, Boils, Eruptions, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, as these celebrated medicaments, which are valued wherever they are known. Holloway's remedies cool the system, regulate the circulation, and so thoroughly purify the whole body, that whatever is hurtful must inevitably be swept away, and be succeeded by healthy structure, which is derived from rich and pure blood. The cosmetic virtues of this Unguent have been long appreciated; no toilet table is well appointed which lacks its presence; it soothes and cleanses the most fair and tender skins, and when assisted by Holloway's Pills, is the most valuable beautifier.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR AGED FREEMASONS.

The kind support of the President, Vice-Presidents, Life Governors, and Subscribers is earnestly solicited on behalf of BRO. RICHARD COMMINS.

Formerly of "All Souls" Lodge, No. 170, was initiated in April, 1829, and continued a subscribing member until June, 1849, being always a most zealous working Mason.

The Petitioner is a Cabinet Maker and Upholsterer, and for 59 years carried on a most respectable business in Weymouth, holding a good position, and for 18 years was a member of the Town Council.

During a competition, losses in trade, and sickness in his family, at last he has been obliged to retire in a penniless condition.

He is 77 years of age, has a wife 74 to support, and is entirely dependent on charity; and to add to his misfortunes, has recently met with an accident, breaking two of his ribs, rendering him totally unfit for even a casual day's labour.

This is an urgent case, and worthy of your sympathy and assistance. The case is most earnestly recommended by the undermentioned Brethren—

- E. W. Bro. J. Gundry, P.G.M., Dorset; The Hyde, Bridport. E. W. Bro. J. Hyshe, P.G.M., Devon, Clythaydon Rectory, Cullampton. R. W. Bro. W. Elliot, P.P.G.M., Dorset, Weymouth.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FOR WIDOWS OF FREEMASONS.

The favour of the Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers to the above Institution is earnestly solicited on behalf of JEMIMA SPICER.

Widow of the late Bro. Walter Spicer, of the Lodge of Science 433, Boniton, Dorset, to which he subscribed 30 years. He was elected to the above Institution in 1857, where he died last year. Mrs. Spicer's only means of support, is one half the Annuity formerly allowed her late husband, which will be ultimately discontinued in accordance with the laws of the Institution.

The case is strongly recommended by Bro. H. Head, V.P.P.G.D., 12, Earle-terrace, Kensington. Dr. Strong, P.M., 452, 463, P.Z., 452, 463 P.P.G.W., Surrey St., North-end Croydon.

Price, P.M. 463, P.Z. 463, P.G. Treasurer, Surrey St., 114 High street, Croydon. Frauds, F.M., 7, Malvern House, Bedford Park, Croydon. W. Waterman, P.M., P.Z. 410, Wellesley-road, Croydon.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief to Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such false remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which is the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
 Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says he has repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdues cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment in this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 12s. each, by respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough.

DONCASTER.—St. George's Lodge (No. 242).—The installation of W.M. in connection with this lodge took place on Friday, 8th inst., at the Town Hall, when Bro. Francis Drury Walker, on whose behalf the voice of good report has long been heard, was duly installed, Bro. Ensor Drury, P.P.G.W. West Yorkshire officiating as Installing Master. The W.M. subsequently invested his officers for the ensuing year, these being as follows:—Bros. Hardy, P.M.; Heaton, S.W.; Collins, J.W.; The Rev. S. W. Earnshaw, M.A., Chaplain; C. Mandall Hartley, P.M., Treasurer and Secretary; Shires, S.D.; Alfred Parkin, J.D.; Hawksworth, I.G.; R. Smith and Joseph Hirst. An interesting circumstance may be mentioned as occurring during this ceremony, namely, the presentation to Bro. Hartley of a complimentary jewel of beautiful design and considerable value. The W.M., in a few flattering words, alluded to Bro. Hartley's long connection with St. George's Lodge, and the services he had rendered as Secretary and Treasurer, and expressed the gratification it gave him to be the means of presenting him with this mark of the lodge's appreciation of those services. The jewel, he observed, had been specially designed so as to commemorate the offices of Secretary and Treasurer, with the seniority of a Past Master—the emblems of each being skillfully united into one design, and had been subscribed to by every member of the lodge. The W.M. then invested Bro. Hartley with the jewel, a singularly chaste decoration worked out in solid gold and blue enamel, and suspended from a blue riband having three clasps of gold. Bro. Hartley briefly returned thanks for the elegant testimonial, which he thought was far more than he had ever deserved, and much more than he had ever expected—indeed, his only ambition had been to see the lodge prosper, and this had already been his sufficient reward for anything he might have done to promote that result. The same evening the brethren dined together at the Royal Hotel, a most elegantly appointed banquet being provided by Mrs. Pyc, to which about fifty of the brethren sat down. The following were the visitors present:—Bros. Dr. Martin de Arlotomé, P.P.J.W. of this province from the field; W. C. Smith, W.M., Phoenix 904, otherham; H. J. Bingham, and T. W. Roome, of the same lodge; Jonathan Turner, P.M., of Richard Davison, S.W., Sykes 1040, of the field; George E. Earnshaw, 587, Birmingham, and Belling, formerly of the Doncaster Lodge. Bro. Drury (Sheffield) is an honorary member of St. George's Lodge, and therefore scarcely be included in the list of visiting brethren. We may add that the usual toasts are given with Masonic honours, and a very pleasant evening was passed, great satisfaction being expressed by several speakers at the proceedings made by this old respectable lodge during the past year.

FLEETWOOD.—Hesheth Lodge (No. 950).—

The installation meeting of this promising lodge was held on Thursday, April 2nd, at the Royal Hotel, when there was a very large attendance of the members. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Dr. Orr. The minutes of last lodge were read and confirmed, and having been opened in 2nd and 3rd degrees, the W.M., in a clear, correct, and impressive manner, raised Bro. E. A. Knox to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The ceremony of re-installation was then proceeded with, when Bro. J. A. Orr, P.M., was duly installed in the chair of K.S. by Bro. C. Hartley, P.M. 281, 1353. The beautiful ceremony being performed in a painstaking and masterly style. The W.M. then appointed as his officers for the ensuing year the following brethren:—Bros. Lofthouse, I.P.M.; Burns, S.W.; Capt. Jameson, J.W.; Gibson, P.M., Treasurer; William Stewardson, S.D.; Henry Rawes, J.D.; James Willacey, I.G.; James Gibson, Tyler. After three propositions, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room, where a sumptuous repast had been prepared in Mrs. Walker's best style, which consisted of all the delicacies of the season, the brethren expressing their delight at the manner in which it was served. After the cloth was drawn, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and enthusiastically received, and the brethren separated, after having spent a most enjoyable evening. The visiting brethren were T. Fare, W.M. 1256; G. C. Purcell, 350; E. Howard, 113; I. B. Robinson, 281; John Jacobson, 1353; R. Wolvenden, J.D. 1353; John Bannister, 1353; R. Parkinson, 1353; Rev. James Pearson, P.M. and P.P.G.C.; E. M. Mutrie, P.M. 163, 189, and 1256; James Urmston, 1021; and A. H. Whitehead, W.M. 113.

THE EARL SPENCER LODGE (No. 1420).—A meeting of this lodge, which was consecrated last May, was held at the Freemasons' Hotel, New Wandsworth, on the 8th inst., for the transaction of the annual business of the installation of the successor of Bro. Edward Spooner, who had occupied the chair as W.M., by authority under the warrant of Grand Lodge, as the first Master. The other brethren present on this occasion were—Bros. C. Jackson, S.W., W.M. elect; Thomas Buckham, S.W.; Dr. Kempster, J.W.; A. Loutham, S.D.; J. T. Hiscox, I.G. pro tem; J. W. Hiscox, P.M. 209; W. Hudson, P.M. 315, and P.P.G.S.D., Sussex; Charles Estlin, Organist; C. Pulman, Wm. B. Miller, J. Gibson, A. Brown, Frederick Reed, H. Borders, and the following visitors, viz.:—Bros. Dr. Whileman, P.M. No. 256; Coulton, No. 141; Symons, No. 180; Cook, No. 1044; and Pilditch, No. 1257. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been read and confirmed the first duty which devolved upon Bro. E. Spooner was the initiation of three candidates, viz., Mr. Alexander Giles, Mr. Wm. Salter, and Mr. Jas. Jno. Joseph, and the passing of Bro. E. H. Symors, St. James's Union, No. 180, and it is but doing justice to Bro. Spooner to state that he discharged each duty with that efficiency which his long experience in Masonry, and as a Past Master of two other lodges, afforded him ample opportunity of acquiring. Bro. C. Jackson, P.M. 180, having been duly installed by Bro. Spooner as W.M., the following officers were appointed and invested by the Installing Master, viz.:—Bros. Buckham, S.W.; D. Kempster, J.W.; A. Southam, S.D.; Estlin, I.G.; Potter, Tyler, (pro tem). Bro. J. W. Hiscox was re-appointed Secretary, and Bro. Spooner, Treasurer. The lodge being closed the brethren sat down to a well-served and excellent banquet provided by the host of the tavern, and the evening was passed in a most enjoyable manner, during which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk, and the speeches which were made by the several brethren in the course of the evening, met with the applause they merited, especially the kind remarks which the W.M. made in presenting a very handsome Past Master's Jewel, manufactured by Bro. George Kenning, to Bro. J. Spooner, which had been unanimously voted to him for his past services, and as a token of the esteem entertained towards him by the members of the lodge;

INSTRUCTION.

PRESTONIAN CLUB OF INSTRUCTION.—The session of this club being ended, the brethren held their annual banquet on Tuesday the 5th inst., at the King's Head Hotel, 265, Strand, when the veteran President, Bro. Wm. Watson, supported by the working members of the club, and several visitors, amongst whom we noticed Bros. W. Cook, L. Pope, and Willis, No. 3, sat down to a very excellent dinner, which reflected the greatest credit on the attention bestowed upon it by Bro. Carr. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been proposed and responded to, Bro. Sherwill, in proposing "The Health of the worthy President" congratulated him on his recovery from a very severe illness. Bro. Watson replied in appropriate terms, and promised his support to the club and Craft so long as health permitted him. Several of the brethren contributed to the harmony of the evening by their vocal powers, finding a ready and willing accompanist in Bro. W. Cook. The thanks of the brethren having been proposed to the officers of the club, the brethren dispersed to the "Land of Nod," after a very pleasant evening.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Conclave (No. 55).—The usual quarterly meeting of this conclave was held at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, on the 17th ult. Eminent Sir Knight H. M. Molyneux, M.P.S., was on the throne, and the other officers and members of the conclave present were Sir Knights T. Clark, V.E.; W. Doyle, S.G.; J. E. Jackson, J.G.; J. Wood, Treas.; R. Young, Rec.; J. Capell, S.B.; J. S. Keaf, O.; P. Ball, S.; J. R. Goepel, P.P.S.; G. Turner, Intendant General, W.H.; J. K. Smith, D.T.G., P.P.S.; P. Armstrong, A. Mitchell, H. Nelson, M.P.S. 71; I. W. Robinson, R. Brown, H. James, Thompson, and others. After the transaction of some routine business, the conclave proceeded with the annual election, when Sir Knight Clark was chosen M.P.S.; W. Doyle, V.F.; and Joseph Wood, re-elected Treasurer for the third time.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Kilwinning (No. 4).—This old lodge held its regular monthly meeting May 6th, Bro. A. Thorburn in the chair, supported by nearly all the office-bearers and a fair attendance of members, there was only one candidate in attendance. Who was duly initiated by the R.W.M.

GLASGOW.—Thistle and Rose Lodge (No. 73) held their usual meeting on Tuesday, the 5th May, Bro. G. Weston, R.W.M., in the chair; G. MacDonald, I.P.M.; T. Stewart, D.M.; J. Bannerman, S.W.; J. MacGregor, J.W.; J. Richards, Secretary. Some local business occupied the lodge for some time, after which the R.W.M. reported from the Provincial and also the Grand Lodge. Bro. Wheeler gave notice of his intention to move at the next meeting, "That this lodge deem it essentially necessary that they should be represented at Grand Lodge, and hereby agree to pay the travelling expenses of the Master and Wardens when they attend at Edinburgh for that purpose." There being two brothers present waiting for the second degree, the lodge was then raised, and P.M. G. Macdonald passed the two brethren into that degree.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union and Crown (No. 103) held an emergency meeting on the 30th ult., as four members had to leave for America; there were also two brethren of St. Mark's, No. 27, who, as their hall was engaged by the P.G.L. meeting, were desirous of also being passed and raised. This the lodge at once granted. In the absence of the R.W.M., Bro. A. M. Wright, the chair was taken by that veteran worker, Bro. J. Bain, a P.M. of the lodge, who worked the degrees of passing and raising in a way that is seldom surpassed; he was ably assisted by Bros. G. Muir, S.W.; G. Thomas J.W.; J. Gillis, Sec.; and Mitchell, of St. Mungo, who acted as S.D., and afterwards thanked the lodge for their kindness in putting through the brethren of his lodge. The acting Master replied that 103 was always glad to act in a friendly spirit to all the sister lodges in the province, and with respect to 27, himself and at least two other P.M.'s were also members of it; so they felt quite at home in doing all that lay in their power to forward its interests.

GLASGOW.—Star Lodge (No. 219.) met on Monday, the 4th inst., Bro. Alston, in the chair. There was a full attendance of the members, but the R.W.M. was away at the Grand Lodge. Bro. Bain, at the request of the acting Master, initiated two members and passed one. Bro. Bain's working is too well known to need comment.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332) held their regular meeting on Monday, May 4th. In consequence of the absence of the R.W.M. at the Grand Lodge in Edinburgh, the chair was taken by Bro. Poole, D.M., who initiated two candidates in a highly creditable style.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Athol (No. 413) met on Tuesday, the 24th ult., Bro. J. Wade in the chair. There was a full attendance of officers and members to receive the deputation from the Provincial Grand Lodge. Bro. Barrow addressed them at some length, on the necessity of exercising caution at the present time in the admittance of visitors into their lodge. The Provincial Lodge also paid a visit to Mary Hill, No. 510, on Wednesday, and expressed themselves highly pleased with the working of the youngest lodge in the province; in fact in some respects some of their seniors would do well to copy their example.

GLASGOW.—Cathedral Chapter (No. 67) met on Tuesday, the 28th ult., at 22, Struthers-street, Comp. J. Duthie, Z., presiding. There were two exaltations, and the committee reported that the soirees had proved a success, financially as well as numerically.

GLASGOW.—Caledonian Chapter of Unity (No. 73) met on the 31st ult., Comps. McDonald Z.; G. W. Wheeler, H.; J. Tweed, J.; J. Balfour, S.E.; J. Angus, S.N.; J. Bannerman, T. The chapter having been opened, a deputation from the P.G.C. attended. The P.G.S.E. said as this was his Mother Chapter he would not make any speech, but simply read the minute. The Deputations had proposed Comp. Barrow, P.G.Z., who said it was highly gratifying to him to be able to congratulate the chapter, not only the admirable state of their books, but also the general working of the chapter. All the officers appeared to attend well to their duties, the only thing he had at all to regret was that here as in the other chapters he had visited he did not see so large an attendance of the members themselves as he could wish. He should like to see this remedied if possible; he was now visiting all the lodges as well as the chapters in the province, and he saw the difference in attendance; of course there were not so many in the one body as the other, but he thought if the members of all the chapters would attend at the next Provincial meeting something might be done to stir them up a bit, for he was desirous of seeing Arch Masons taking their proper place, as standing above the Craft Members. He was willing to aid in this, but he must defer any further remarks, having to attend the Caledonian Chapter also to-night. After Comp. McDonald had tendered them the thanks of the chapter, the Deputation then withdrew, and the chapter was closed. Comp. Wheeler, at the request of the Z. opened a Lodge of Mark Masters, J. Stewart, acting S.W.; J. Tweed, J.W. A petition for advancement was then read from Bro. A. Pearman, of Lodge 73, who was then introduced by Comp. McDonald, Z., acting as S.D., when he was duly advanced to the degree of Mark Master by Comp. G. W. Wheeler. Two other brethren wished to be exalted into the Royal Arch, but in consequence of the lateness of the evening it was deferred till the next meeting.

GLASGOW.—Thetis Chapter (No. 122) held their usual meeting on Monday, March 30th. Comps. I. O. Park, Z.; G. W. Wheeler, acting H.; J. Scott, J.; J. Gunn, T.; the S.E. was absent in consequence of the death of his brother, but his place was ably filled by Comp. J. Clawworthy. Shortly after the chapter was opened a deputation from the Provincial Grand Chapter was announced, and were received with chapter honours; it consisted of Comps. F. A. Barrow, P.G. Superintendent; A. McTaggart, M.A., P.G. Scribe E.; T. Halket, P.G.T.; G. B. Adams and W. Phyliss, P.G.S.'s. The P.G. Superintendent said it was a source of gratification to him to endorse the excellent report the Grand Scribe had given. He was very desirous of seeing all the chapters in the Province as near perfection as possible, and the one slight defect the Scribe E. had pointed out was only a proof of kind-heartedness of the chapter, and that was a better feeling than had been exhibited by some other parties. He did not say that a Mason could not go to law with a brother, for the law is above Masonry, but this he would say, that the taking of a brother into a law-court, before exhausting all Masonic modes of settling the dispute, proved that the person so acting was not a good Mason. Now, whether these remarks did not apply to them as a chapter, they did to circumstances in their neighbourhood, and he thought it desirable to allude to it, as a line of conduct they should not only shun themselves, but reprobate and condemn in others with whom they might come in contact. Comp. Park thanked the P.G.Z. for the kind remarks he had made—he would only ask the visitors to remember that the strictures made by Comp. Barrow, though just in themselves, did not apply to Chap. 122. The deputation then retired, and there being no other business, the chapter was closed.

GLASGOW.—St. Rollox Chapter (No. 144).—This chapter met in their hall, Garnagad-road, on Tuesday, 10th ult. Comp. R. Bell, 1st P. presided, assisted by G. W. Wheeler, acting H.; J. Annand acting J.; and D. Reid, Scribe E. After the usual business of the chapter was concluded the Scribe E. intimated his intention of resigning his office, as since he had been elected as R.W.M. of St. Andrew Lodge he had found he could not give the necessary time to the duties. Comp. Annand called attention to the continued absence of two other officers, and moved that they be written to, and if not present at the next meeting that the chapter proceed to elect others in their place; carried, and the chapter was then closed.

GLASGOW.—Saint Mungo Encampment K.T., held their usual monthly meeting at St. Mark's Hall, Glasgow, on Monday April 20th, Sir Knight R. Bell, M.N.C. presiding. He was assisted by F. Tweed, D.; G. W. Wheeler, Recorder, acting Prelate; M. Clanachan, S.C.; and G. MacAllister, J.C. Two gentlemen were duly introduced and received into the Order. A Priory of the Knights of Malta was then opened, and four of the Knights were admitted to a participation in the secrets of that degree. Sir Knight R. Bell was Prior, and G. W. Wheeler, Prelate. Arrangements were then made for the annual festival, to take place next month. A petition was then presented from the widow of an old member of the encampment, when a sum was voted from the funds to meet her present necessities.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The annual visit of the Chairman of the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls to the School was paid on Monday afternoon by the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, who was accompanied by the Countess, a firm and enthusiastic admirer of the Institution. On reaching the building they were met by the House Committee and Colonel Burdett, and Bro. J. C. Parkinson, Raynham W. Stewart, and other members of the Board of Stewards, which was strongly represented on the occasion, and by Miss Davis, Head Mistress, and Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Secretary. By them they were conducted over the building, and had all the arrangements for the health and comfort of the pupils explained. The beautiful new infirmary was also inspected, and the principle of isolating cases of sickness from the healthy portion of the inmates of the school fully delineated. The inspection, which lasted a considerable time, and appeared to be thoroughly appreciated by the Earl and Countess, having been brought to a close, the girls were put through their calisthenic exercises, and marching and drilling, all of which were warmly approved of by the noble visitors, and applauded by the general company, numbering some four or five hundred ladies and gentlemen. The Earl and Countess were then conducted as before to the school-room, where the girls were ranged in order on a dais, from which they were to play selections of music and recite, but before doing so Lord Shrewsbury requested Bro. Thos. Taylor, P.G.S.W. Staff., Bro. Derry, P.G.J.W. Staff., and Bro. Jacobs, P.P.G. Reg. Staff., step forward and present to the Countess of Shrewsbury the complete set of table ware given by the potteries to the Girls' School for its use. His Lordship's request having been complied with, Lady Shrewsbury in the name of the province of Staffordshire and the three brethren deputed to attend, handed over this very useful and handsome gift to the Institution; thereupon great cheering was raised, and the pupils afterwards proceeded with the programme above mentioned. When this had been completed, His Lordship rose and said that, as his presence was required in the House of Lords he was unable to stay sufficiently long to distribute the whole of the prizes. It was his pleasant duty to offer a few words of congratulation to the children and the brethren on what they had just witnessed. He was anxious to be cautious in what he was about to say, and he did not mean to speak with flattery when he said it was that the impression his mind had received was very favourable. He had the honour to hold a commission in Her Majesty's Army, but he never had seen a regiment before that day go through its drill without a word of command. It certainly indicated the superior intelligence of women; whether if woman suffrage became the law men would become the inferior sex was a matter he would not venture to decide; but he must compliment Miss Davis on the results she had obtained. Passing from these results to Freemasonry, he was proud to say that Masonry was the greatest institution in the world, because the brethren endeavoured to unite in every possible way in doing charity. This was their first and greatest object, and with regard to the Girls' School they prided themselves on sending out into the world girls capable of getting their own living. He was glad to say that ever since the Institution had been started, the Girls' School and the Boys' School had been a credit to Freemasons. He was no great musician himself, but the style in which the pupils had performed the selections that had been made had greatly pleased him. To have performed with the taste and the accuracy of time that they had was a very great accomplishment. Those young ladies would not only gain pleasure from what they had learned, but they would find it desirable too in their future lives.

His Lordship having distributed the prizes, a vote of thanks was passed to him and Lady Shrewsbury, and they took their departure amidst the hearty greetings of the assemble company.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart concluded the distribution, which, as will be seen from the following list, was a work of considerable magnitude.

The following pupils received prizes, presented by the Earl of Shrewsbury:—

Maria Louisa Flintoft, the Gold Medal for General Proficiency, given annually by Bro. William Paas, with £5 given annually by Bro. William Winn.

Kate Isabella Barrett, the Silver Medal for Good Conduct, given annually by the Institution with £5 given annually by Bro. William Wir Elizabeth J. Baxter, Cara B. Fletcher, a Leila Lucy Caparn, each a third of Five Guineas given annually by Bro. William Winn.

The following prizes, given annually by the Institution, were presented by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart:—

By Bro. Collard Moutrie, for Music, Mary Nina Fradelle Pratt.

By Bro. H. W. Hemsworth, for Amiability, as voted by her Schoolfellows, Mary Alice Eastham, a Silver Watch.

From the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, for Drawing, Henrietta Featherstone and Florence S. Groves, for Geometry—Compasses; Alice M. M. Batley, Melora F. Goodridge, Caroline Harr, Mary Young; for Freehand—Drawing Boards and Rulers; Elizabeth J. Baxter, Mary T. Claisen, Cara B. Fletcher, Mary N. F. Pratt, for Model—Colours.

By Mrs. Brette, for Music, Florence Sara Groves.

By Mrs. Crick, for Elocution, Maria L. Flinloft, Letitia D. Whalley, and Bessie L. Morris.

By Bro. John M. Clabon, for Good Conduct, Clara M. Wicks.

By Bro. Joseph Starkey, for Drawing, Maria Louisa Flintoft and Elizabeth J. Baxter.

After this distribution the company adjourned to an excellent repast, and finished the evening with dancing.

Among the brethren and ladies present we observed Bros. Col. Burdett, Raynham W. Stewart, J. C. Parkinson, Major Creton, J. A. Rucker, H. Browse, P. Matthews, Joshua Nunn, Griffiths Smith, W. Pinn, T. Cubitt, T. Mortlock, J. W. White, Dr. Wharton, P. Hood, Rev. C. Woodward, Sir Gilbert Campbell, and Lady Campbell, Thomas Taylor, P.G.S.W. Staff; Deray, P.G.J.W.S.; Jacobs, P. Prov. G. Reg. Staff; F. Binckes, Thomas Hill, West Yorkshire; Henry Bigg Smith, P. G. Sec., West Yorkshire; Ernest Brette, D.D.; D. J. Drakeford, J. M. Vaughan, H. A. Dubois, J. T. Moss, C. Lacey, J. Tanner, George Albert, W. M. C. Morris, Little, H. Muggeridge, S. Muggeridge, and E. B. Hedges.

The 86th anniversary festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Wednesday evening, at the Freemasons' Tavern. The Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, presided, and was supported by a numerous and distinguished body of Freemasons. Among them was a large body of brethren from his lordship's own Province, who celebrated his presidentship by the useful and valuable present which is fully described in another portion of our present impression. On the dais were Bros. Bentley Shaw, Deputy Prov. G.M. of West Yorkshire; Colonel Burdett, Prov. G.M. of Middlesex; Capt. Platt, Past Grand Junior Warden; Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain; H. Browse, Past Grand Deacon; Joseph C. Parkinson, Grand Deacon; J. A. Rucker, Grand Deacon; Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; John Hervey, Grand Sec.; Joshua Nunn, Past Grand Sword Bearer; Dr. Barrington; Dr. Ramsay; Peter Matthews; Major Creton, Past Grand Deacon, Trustee of the School; W. Winn; T. Fenn, Past Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies; S. Rosenthal; J. Cooper Wyld; Hyde Pullen, Past Grand Sword Bearer; Edward Cox; W. E. Gumbleton; J. Gumbleton; Fred. Binckes, Secretary Boys' School; James Terry, Sec. Benevolent Institution; while Staffordshire was represented by Bros. T. Taylor, Prov. G.S.W.; F. Derry,

P.J.G.W.; J. Jacobs, P.P.G.R.; Bodenham, P.G.T.; Marsh, P.P.S.G.W.; B. Love, 539; Alfred Jacob, 482; J. D. Henson, 726, and Longley, 726. There were also present the Rev. C. Woodward; W. Perrett, Head Master Boys' School; H. C. Levander; H. G. Buss; A. A. Pendlebury; W. Dodd; H. R. Williams; H. Kimber; F. Adlard; H. M. Levy; T. Mortlock; T. Cubitt, G.P.; and John Boyd, P.G.P. The company numbered altogether over 500, including a great many ladies.

The proceedings commenced with an admirable banquet, which was provided and personally superintended by Bro. C. E. Francatelli, the excellent manager of the Freemasons' Tavern Company. At the conclusion of the repast, grace was well rendered by the musical brethren and ladies, and Bro. Harker, the Toast Master, then demanded silence for the noble chairman, in his well-known sonorous accents.

The Chairman in proposing "The Health of her Majesty the Queen" said it would be impertinent in him to dilate upon the virtues of her Majesty as exhibited either in her public or her private life, but he was sure he might say they were as thoroughly recognised by the nation at large as they were by the Craft.

The Chairman, after the National Anthem had been sung, said that the next toast would be equally acceptable to the notice of the brethren, for "The Prince of Wales," who was the subject of it, was always enthusiastically received by his brother Masons. His Royal Highness was no show Mason, but felt a deep interest in all the proceedings of the Order. He had met his Royal Highness the night before, and mentioning the Girls' School, wished him (the Chairman) every success at this festival. The toast would not be the less acceptable if he joined in it "The Health of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh." He was glad to say that the anxiety of the Duchess of Edinburgh for her father's safety as his yacht had met with an accident that day, had been allayed by a telegram to say he had reached Dover and was now safe in Windsor. They would all greet the Czar's arrival in this country with the pleasure which her Royal Highness would display, for they entertained for her an affection no less sincere than that they felt for the Princess of Wales. They would all remember the differences which this country had some time ago with Russia, and they now looked upon the intimate relations we had with the empire with delight. Masonry had nothing to do with politics, but the brethren would hope, as Masons always did, to be at peace with all the world. It was their principle and they would endeavour to carry it out.

The Chairman said the next toast was an equally pleasurable one, the Grand Master's health would always be received with delight, because they all knew he was anxious for the good of the Craft. As President of this Institution, he had special claims on their good wishes that evening. He was glad to say he had also seen his Lordship the evening before. The Grand Master said to him, "I understand you are in the chair of the School of the Girls this year;" to which I replied, "I am my Lord, and I believe I shall have a bigger subscription than even you had." He hoped that presentment would not come amiss, and he also hoped that as the Girls' School increased, his successors in the chair would have even a bigger subscription than he had this year.

The Chairman then said that for the fourth time he rose to ask them to join him in cordially drinking another toast, "The Health of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master of the Craft, and the past and present Officers." What he had said of the Marquess of Ripon was also applicable to the Earl of Carnarvon. It was the pride of Freemasonry that it should have at its head two such distinguished noblemen on opposite sides in politics. They had, thank God, no politics in Masonry, but he thought they might congratulate themselves that in no country in the world could they have two eminent statesmen holding various views in politics, and so cordially united in carrying out the great objects which as Masons they had in view. It was a great thing to be able to sink their individual differences, and please God, they might maintain with integrity and firmness their political and religious opinions.

Capt. Platt responded. He said for this complimentary manifestation of your good wishes I beg to offer my sincere and hearty thanks on behalf of the Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers past and present. The patrons and supporters of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls have ample reason to congratulate themselves on such a brilliant array of brother Masons assembled together to put into practice the virtue which is the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart. The Grand Officers who happened to be present on this occasion salute you with a truly fraternal greeting, and rejoice to meet so many fellow labourers in the good cause, each one according to his means contributing his quota towards the maintenance and education of orphans and fatherless children. Thrice blessed, thrice honoured be they

"Who pity with a parent's mind
The helpless orphan that is left behind."

Colonel Burdett—Brethren, it is with more than ordinary pleasure that I rise now to propose the health of one whom I know you will receive in the most kind and enthusiastic manner. We have now amongst us a brother who has shown himself in every possible way a good and earnest Mason. You have had him here to night as your Chairman, and you know very well, at least as well as I do, what he has done before for Freemasonry. I am quite certain from what I have heard that he is not only a good working Mason, that is, a man who can do his work in the lodge as well as in the province, that he has set an example, I may say, to the Provincial Grand Masters of England. He has set to work in a way that we should consider most praiseworthy in every possible way, and you, I am quite certain will be able to appreciate his efforts when you know the exertions he has made for the good of his province. He is not only known himself to the members of his province, but I am happy to say, it speaks a good deal in his favour when he is able to appreciate and know the members of his own Province individually. (His Lordship had, in the course of the evening, challenged the different members of his Province who were present, by name.) He has been amongst them; he is constantly with them; he has worked with them; he works not only for the benefit of the Province, but he works the Province for the benefit of the charities; and I believe that to be one of the principal duties of the Provincial Grand Master. He has also not only made himself well known amongst us, but in the Province which he has the pleasure to reign over. I may only mention—I will not trespass on your time, because I know that nothing I can say will enhance his lordship's merits. If he had not been present, I might have said a good deal more than I do of the way he has carried Masonry out, he is not only an excellent brother and a good working Mason, but he has the highest social position in the kingdom, as he is the premier earl of the country. We are proud to have him amongst us, and I know you will drink his health most heartily.

The Chairman—Brethren, for a moment, I confess I feel somewhat bashful in returning thanks for the very kind reception which you have given to the most flattering utterances that have been offered to you, in coupling my name as Chairman of this evening, by the Most Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex. I trust that I deserve part of what he has said. I trust that his kind adulation of me will stir me to further efforts, but if I may venture to be so far egotistical as to say this, that not only as a Mason, but as an humble member of a high assembly, and also, I trust, as a man, I hold, it behoves every man to endeavour to do his duty in that station of life to which it has pleased God to call him; and I venture to say, that though I have had pride as a working Mason, which I cordially desire, as regards the carrying out of our ritual, yet I trust that in the short time that I have presided over the province of my own county, I may say that I may claim the privilege of calling myself a working Mason—(hear, hear)—because it is not for the sake of egotism, it is for the sake of Masonry that I tell you this, that those who preside over provinces should throw themselves heartily in the work, and if there is any compliment that I appreciate it is this, that I have endeavoured to know the various lodges in it, to visit them all, to look up what is amiss, to encourage what is good, and to find fault with them when there is anything ill. I am glad to say there are no ills; but we are all capable of improvement, and I have endeavoured to inculcate in my province that we should not use those very solemn words of our ceremonial without meaning what we say. I am glad my province has come out nobly, not only on this occasion—and I hope you will be pleased with what they have done. I hope you will never meet for enjoyment without thinking of the principles of Masonry. I venture to say in a colloquial manner, not formal, that it is an advantageous system I have instituted, of having Quarterly Provincial Grand Lodges; because it is impossible for a Provincial Grand Master to know the working of the lodges by his visiting them only once a year. Therefore I have proposed that we should meet once a quarter. There are eighteen lodges in the province, we visit a lodge and we get a great deal of information as to what are the requirements of the lodge. On one of these occasions I took the liberty to tell my brethren this—Brethren, I hope I am not a glutton, but I hope if you come to enjoy yourselves you will support the charities. I will not come to you at all unless you give me a rattling good income to maintain the charities, and I put it in this way—if you will drink a bottle of champagne which costs 10s. 6d. you should put 10s. 6d. into the box; if you drink a glass of gin and water, which costs 3d. you should put 3d. into the box. We do not wish the affluent only to support our principles, but that every one should give according to his means, and that the left hand should not know what the right hand has given. I should be glad if we could do away with the announcing of names and only give the aggregate amount. I hate and detest that a man should put down his name to be hallowed out at a public table afterwards. If he does not do that which he conscientiously can do he is not a Mason, and ought to be ashamed to have his name called out. The subscriptions should be collected from lodges in the province and not from the individuals who are subscribing brethren. I pass from this. I have always been in the habit of saying what I think for the good of the cause. I now pass to a pleasanter subject, viz., the claims of this institution to your charitable consideration; and I must say in the first instance that I had the pleasure of being able to take rather a severe critic with me, no less than in the person of my good wife, to your school (cheers), because she said she had seen this collar and this apron, and it is all very fine, but it is a capital excuse to go out for a pleasant dinner. I said the time will come when I shall show you we not only enjoy ourselves but do a great deal of good, and the brethren from Staffordshire asked her ladyship to present the pottery to the Institution which was given by them on Monday. Her ladyship will excuse me observing that whenever she does a good thing she goes into it thoroughly, and she went into the institution with a critical eye to frighten me to death. I am glad to hear to-day she gave no offence. She gave, I will not say valuable hints, because we do not want any, but she called the attention of the matron and mistress to matters that are about to be adopted, and I am glad she made the inspection of the school, because her ladyship told me some years ago when I first entered the Craft that if there was anything good to be known in Masonry she would have known it long since. Well, I am sure what she saw on Monday was worth knowing; she was delighted and pleased. I venture to add my testimony to what was a great pride to her, and it induces me to bring the claims of the Institution more strongly before you. First of all there seems to be some excellent management somewhere, and though I have, as I said on Monday, the honour of being a soldier, I cannot well understand how Miss Davis manages to get those children in such perfect order without a single syllable escaping her lips, or word of command or direction. If I have any powers of observation I would say that those children are not intimidated by fear, but ruled by affection. The lady that presides over that establishment, and the many brethren who have a share in its management, and the ladies who assist, are giving the right sort of instruction; because where you find so orderly, so regular, and yet so cheerful a set of girls, you may be convinced we are doing our duty as Masons—we are bringing up girls, who will, I hope some day be the mothers, and happy mothers of families, the kind of people who bring credit to the great Craft to which we have the honour to belong. We have made certain improvements. The large hall was opened on Monday. The year before I believe our worthy Bro. Lord Skelmersdale opened the Infirmary. We are glad to hear it proved most efficacious this year. There were 62 young ladies who had been in it, but knowing I was coming to see them they managed to get perfectly well. (Laughter.) A nicer looking set of girls I have never seen. I do not know whether it would be improper, but I think it would be a very nice thing some day to let the boys have a look at them in case they should like to associate together. (Laughter.) When we think that we have educated upwards of 1000 girls since the institution was started, I think we may congratulate ourselves. There are printed reports on the table, which I commend to your notice, because they go into detail, and I will not weary you with that. On these occasions there is always a treat for the brethren in our excellent programme of music, at which the ladies expect us to join them. I ask you to pardon all imperfections in my chairmanship to-night, I have before presided for the boys, I now preside for the girls, and I hope to complete the circle by presiding for the old people. All our Institutions rule over our affections. We are not jealous of each other. You know the order in which the festivals are held, and I tell you whilst they endeavour to do good you should unite in your endeavours to assist them. I give you "Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls."

The toast having been drunk,

Bro. Samuel Tomkins acknowledged it. It was a great pleasure to Masons to find that their annual charitable festivals commanded not only as much interest as ever, but the interest in them seemed rather to increase. Whilst they had such a Chairman as the noble Earl, and such admirable followers in the Craft generally, there could be no fear that the interest of past years would fall off in the future. It was a great duty and a great advantage in Freemasonry that there were three objects of charity on which to concentrate their exertions. The first and oldest was the Girls' School, which had ever been dear to the Masonic body. The noble Chairman had drawn attention to the interesting exhibition he had witnessed at that School on Monday, but the facts he had mentioned were very well known to a great many, and this was one of the reasons that all who could should come forward to support it.

The Secretary (Bro. Little) then read the lists, which amounted in the whole to £8,022, with several lists yet to come in. (Immense applause.)

Bro. John Hervey proposed "The Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, various Committees and Medical Officers," who were all zealous workers for the success of the Institution.

Bro. H. Browse responded. There was a strong administration at the head; but then it was necessary to have, under their superintendence and guidance, a body of persons who would carry out their wishes, and the principles on which the Institution was founded. These brethren merited general approbation, and he was glad to say that the Medical Officers performed their duty admirably. They were never wanting in it, and they deserved the best thanks of the subscribers. The Institution had been most fortunate in securing good Medical Superintendents, and to them it was greatly indebted. (Cheers.)

The Chairman proposed "The other Masonic Charities, and success to them, viz.—The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution." The three Institutions were tria juncta in uno, and would all be served in their turn. He would couple the name of Bro. Terry with the toast, because he had been in communication with him for taking the chair at the next Festival of the Benevolent Institution, and that brother would, of course, speak well in hopes of favour to come. Gratitude had been said to be a lively sense of favours to come, and he was in fear that if he called on Bro. Binckes to respond, he would not throw much energy into his reply, because, as he, the Chairman, had already presided at the Boys' School, Bro. Binckes had, of course, lost all feelings of gratitude. (Great laughter.)

Bro. James Terry said that as his lordship had coupled his name with the toast, in hopes of favours to come, he trusted that in January, when his Lordship would preside, there might be a no less magnificent result obtained than there had been that evening. He could only wish and sincerely trust that the brethren would carry out the duty his lordship had laid upon them, that that every brother should give according to his means. If that was done throughout the Craft generally he had not the slightest doubt that an enormous amount of anxiety would be taken off the shoulders of the Secretaries of the three institutions as well as of the Committees. In the Masonic recess he would wish the brethren in London and the provinces would not forget the duties that would devolve upon them, but would wake up their lodges to renewed energy on behalf of the institutions.

Bro. Binckes said he stood before his Lordship a melancholy and a disappointed man. (Laughter.) Ingratitude was "as the sin of witchcraft," and he had no idea that he should be charged with it in any meeting of Masons, least of all did he ever believe that a noble and distinguished brother like my Lord Shrewsbury would stand forward and point to him and say he was an ungrateful man. (Cheers.) On the first visit his Lordship paid to the Boys' School he pledged him (Bro. Binckes) with the cold water of ingratitude, but he forgave him for this misfortune he then suffered, and his Lordship had more than compensated for it by the admirable manner in which he presided at the meeting that night. To allude to him (Bro. Binckes), and to couple his name with the sin of ingratitude was to him one of the bitterest regrets he should ever feel in the whole course of his life, whether he looked back upon his past experience, or regarded the present, or looked forward to the future. But he knew the noble lord's kindness, and that he must have his joke; and they could all allow for jokes, when they looked at the amazing success of that evening. He was one of those who never envied any one the success he achieved. He loved the race of life. It was being run now certainly, at a very severe pace; competition never was so severe as now. They were doing all they possibly could in their own Order to advance the interests of these various Institutions. Talent was enlisted on behalf of the year after year, and he would appeal to the Craft throughout the world to tell him where they would find three festivals so successfully carried out. What was the aggregate of subscriptions this year? Nearly £6,000 the first; £7,000 the second, and now they were told £8,000 the third. But this did not end the year. They had their balance sheets to produce to the 31st of next December, and the ought to be large additions made to these festival announcements by that time, or else they who were charged with the responsibilities were idle and unworthy stewards. Let them see what additions were made, what they were doing after the festivals, and up to the time when their accounts were closed. I do not let the brethren be satisfied with giving their donations, but let them do what they could to induce others to come forward to aid the institutions, to get brethren to subscribe, even though they were not Stewards. I must congratulate the Girls' School on the superb and magnificent result of this festival. There was an honest and honourable rivalry between the institutions, his he felt that the more they did to stimulate the brethren to generosity the more they were doing to relieve distress and mitigate the great mass of misfortune which is happily growing year by year.

The toast of the responded to by Bro. Parkinson, after which the brethren adjourned to the Temple, where a choice concert was given, conducted by Bro. R. Limpus, Grand Organist for Middlesex. The executants were Mesdames Ashton, Thaddeus Wells, and Poole, Miss Emmeline Cole. Bros. Geo. Perren, T. Pearson, G. Mellor, Lester, Albert Hubbard, Henry Nicholson, and Henry Parker.

The Toastmaster of the evening, as we have said above, was Bro. Harker.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

On Monday, the 4th inst., the quarterly communication of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Scotland was held in their hall, George-street, Edinburgh. There was a large attendance, especially of members of the Craft from the west of Scotland.

In the absence of the Most Worshipful Grand Master (Bro. Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Bart.), the throne was occupied by Bro. J. T. Oswald of Dunnikie, R.W. Substitute Grand Master, who was supported by Bros. William Mann, Past Grand Warden, acting R.W. Senior Grand Warden; Major Hamilton Ramsay of Garion, R.W. Junior Grand Warden; Captain G. R. Harriott of Killiemore, Provincial Grand Master of Wigtownshire; John Laurie, Grand Secretary; F. A. Barrow, V.W. Senior Grand Deacon; William Hay of Rabbithall, V.W. Junior Grand Deacon; William Officer, Past Grand Deacon; Alexander Hay, Grand Jeweller; John Coghill, Grand Director of Ceremonies, C. W. M. Muller, Grand Director of Music; R. Davidson, Grand Organist; M. Mackenzie, Chief Grand Marshal; Albert T. Apthorpe, Grand Marshal; Wm. Bryce, Grand Tyler.

Grand Lodge having been opened, apologies for absence were read from the M.W.G.M., Sir Michael Shaw Stewart; the Earl of Rosslyn, R.W. Past G. Master; the Right Hon. James C. P. Murray, R.W. Depute Grand Master; &c.

After the usual preliminary business, several presents were laid on the table, including those of "Proceedings" from Grand Lodges of France, Egypt, Virginia, North Carolina, California, Massachusetts, Illinois, &c.; also from Bro. Colonel Kinloch of Kilrie, "Histoire de la Franc-Maçonnerie."

Petitions for charters for new lodges were disposed of as follows:—Those from Clydesdale, Larkhall; St. Vincent, Sandysford, Glasgow; Caledonia, Jamaica; St. Andrew, Adelaide; Clydesdale, Glasgow; and Blantyre Kilwinning, Blantyre, were granted; St. Andrew, Coatbridge, remitted to Grand Committee, with powers; Sir Clyde, Kilm, and Ardgowan, Greenock, delayed, in order to the petitions being put in proper form; and Kenmuir, Balgray, Glasgow, was remitted to the Provincial Grand Lodge, to be reported on.

Bro. Hugh A. Mackay was appointed representative at the Grand Lodge of Canada, and Bro. Alex. K. Smith, Provincial Grand Master for Victoria.

The following motions, tabled at last quarterly communication, were severally agreed to, viz:—
1. Moved by Bro. Alexander Hay, V.W. Grand Jeweller, and seconded by Bro. David Inneer, P.M. 105, and Grand Steward—

"After the words 'Eligibility of the Candidate' in Sec. IV. Chap. XX., the following words inserted, 'three black balls being necessary to exclude.'"

2. Moved by Bro. Major Hamilton Ramsay Garion, R.W. Junior Grand Warden, and seconded by Bro. Wm. Officer, P.M. 11, and Past Grand Deacon—

"That copies of all notices of motions given Grand Lodge be sent at once to Provincial and Lodges, and that they be requested to circulate them in their provinces."

3. Moved by Bro. Wm. Officer, P.M. 11, and Past Grand Deacon, seconded by Bro. Kinnear, M. 105, and Grand Steward—

"That it shall be competent for subordinate lodges abroad to nominate any three Master Masons to represent its Master and Wardens at meetings of any Foreign and Colonial Provincial Grand Lodge of which the Master and Wardens of such subordinate lodges are members, with all their powers."

Grand Lodge was then closed in ample form.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE AT EPSWORTH.

On Monday last, 11th inst., a most interesting and impressive ceremony was performed in this town, which has attained something of historic note as being the birth-place of John Wesley, and the hotbed of that peculiar form of dissent which bears his name.

Several brethren of the "mystic tie" having resolved to form a lodge of their own in the town, the assistance of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire was claimed in order to duly consecrate the new lodge, under the title of the "Isle of Axholme." It had been arranged that Major W. H. Smyth, D.P.G.M., in the absence of His Grace the Duke of St. Alban's, D.G.M., should undertake the ceremony, but the unhappy consequences of domestic bereavement prevented his attendance. His place however, was ably filled by W. Bro. Fowler, 712, P.G.S.W., assisted by several of the officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge.

Among the brethren present were:—W. Bros. James Fowler, 712, P.G.W.; W. G. Moore, 270, P. G. Reg.; C. M. Nesbitt, 712, P.G. Treasurer; A. Kirk, P. Prov. G.S.; Rev. D. Ace, P.G.C.; George Robinson, P. Prov. G.C.; James Laughton, P. Prov. G.S.D.; W. E. Howlett, P. Prov. G.A.D. of C.; J. Moxon, P. Prov. J.G.D.; John Hadfield, J.G.D.; T. B. Hamlyn, W.M. 422; F. D. Walker, W.M. 242; F. H. Fosdick, 114; Thomas Morris, 1282, P.G.P.; H. H. Cave, 1282; Rev. J. C. K. Saunders, W.M. 1286; F. D. Marsden, P.G. Secretary, W.M. 712; and many others. A most convenient lodge-room had been already prepared for the occasion by the energy of the Epsworth brethren, and the kind assistance of Bro. Alfred Parkin (Minson and Parkin), W.M. elect.

The always impressive ceremony of consecration was rendered more so on this occasion by a soul-stirring address delivered by the Prov. Grand Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D., 423, in which he took occasion to allude to the similarity of Freemasonry, to the great work which John Wesley had in view, viz., the acknowledgment of one vast brotherhood under one Common Father.

At the close of the ceremony, a congratulatory address was delivered by the Rev. J. C. K. Saunders, W.M. 1286. Afterwards the W.M. elect, Bro. Alfred Parkin, was duly installed, and proceeded to invest his officers—Bros. the Rev. Daniel Ace, D.D., as S.W.; John K. Johnstone, J.W.; Alfred Taylor, Secretary, and others.

A cold collation, admirably served by the charming hostess of the Red Lion Hotel, was done ample justice to by the brethren assembled.

Bro. George Kenning furnished the lodge.

This will be a day long remembered by the people of Epsworth, and we trust ere long to report the consecration of another lodge in this already influential province.

The Provincial Grand Lodge will be holden at Grantham on the 28th inst.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE AT ST. ALBANS.

The consecration of the Halsey Lodge No. 1479 (so named in compliment to the Prov. G. Master), took place at the Town Hall, St. Alban's, on Wednesday, 20th ult. About forty brethren were present; among those were the R. W. Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Prov. G.M.; V.W. Bro. O. H. Wagner, Prov. G.S. Warden; V.W. Bros. J. R. Cocks, H. L. Thomas, J. R. T. Andrews, P.P.G.J. Wardens; V.W. Bro. Wilson Iles, M.D., Prov. G. Sec.; V.W. Bro. T. S. Carter, P.G. Senior Deacon; V.W. Bro. W. Cutbush, P.G. Supt. of Works; V.W. Bro. J. Terry, P.G.D.C.; V.W. Bro. M. Heywood, P.G. Org.; Bros. J. Lowthin, P.M. 506, and 1385, W.M. Designate; Hayward Edwards, S.W. Designate; G. Askew, J.W. Designate; S. Harding, P.M. 449; F. J. Searancke; H. Edwards; H. T. Lamb.

The R. W. Prov. G.M. acted as Consecrating and Installing Officer, who was ably assisted by V.W. Bro. Terry, P.G.D.C.; V.W. Bro. Heywood, Prov. G. Org., presided at the harmonium. The whole of the ceremonies were performed in a faultless and impressive manner; it has seldom been our lot to witness such perfect working.

Bro. J. Lowthin was installed W.M.; Bro. Hayward Edwards was appointed and invested S.W.; Bro. G. Askew, J.W.; Bro. W. Cutbush, W.M. 1385, Hon. Sec.; Bro. A. Godson, S.D.; Bro. W. Morgan, J.D.

The R.W. Prov. G.M., V.W. Bro. Terry, and V.W. Bro. Wilson Iles, were elected honorary members.

Votes of thanks were accorded to Bro. Lamb for lending the Consecrating Vessels, and to Bro. M. Heywood for conducting the musical portion of the ceremonies.

Seven gentlemen were proposed for initiation, and six brethren as joining members, which augurs well for the success of the new lodge.

The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Peahen Inn, where a sumptuous banquet was prepared by the host; a most agreeable evening was spent.

At the last monthly meeting of the Royal Lodge, 643, Bro. Walter Fisher, P.M., P.G.S., the celebrated photographic artist, at Filey, presented to his brethren of the above lodge, an enlarged photograph (painted in oil) of the late lamented Bro. Farthing, who was so well known, and so highly esteemed within the Province. As a work of art, the above photograph is faultless, and as a truthful likeness, it could not be surpassed. It is enclosed in a massive Alhambra gold frame, and will form a cherished and highly valued ornament to the lodge-room. A vote of thanks was unanimously recorded to Bro. Fisher for his kind, thoughtful, and generous gift. The presentation was made through the hands of P.M. Bro. Charles Scrivener, M.D., who, in a speech replete with eloquence and artistic remarks, pointed out the various beauties of the portrait, and, at the same time, passed a high and well merited eulogium to the memory of the departed brother.

YARBOROUGH LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 554), held at Bro. T. Walters, the Green Dragon Tavern, Stepney.—We have pleasure in acquainting our Masonic brethren in East London that the fifteen sections will be worked in this lodge on the evening of Tuesday next, 19th inst., by Bro. G. W. Verry, P.M. The meeting is convened for seven o'clock precisely, and the favour of the attendance of the brotherhood is invited.

STOKE NEWINGTON WORKING MEN'S INSTITUTE.—A concert in aid of the funds of this most excellent society was given at the Shore-ditch Town Hall, on Monday evening the 4th inst., but notwithstanding the attraction of a most interesting programme, the audience was unfortunately more select than numerous. The music performed was entirely sacred, and consisted of the choicest morceaux from the Oratorios, Elijah, Creation, Messiah, and Judas Maccabeus. The Craft was well represented in the orchestra. A band and chorus numbering nearly 400 being most ably conducted by Bro. J. F. Walford, the principal vocalists being Miss Matilda Scott, Miss Julia Derby, Mr. Selwyn Graham, and Bro. Chaplin Henry. Solo Trumpet, Bro. Dearden. Miss Scott, although suffering from a cold, gained great applause for her singing, especially in "Rejoice Greatly." Miss Julia Derby, also, was enthusiastically applauded for her singing, "O Rest in the Lord," "Father of Heaven" and "He was Despised" gaining two encores. Mr. Selwyn Graham was also greatly applauded in all his solos, but Bro. Chaplin Henry had the greatest reception, as in all his songs he was encored, and in our opinion he never sang better, and never showed his fine voice to greater advantage.

This Work contains 215 pp. and 118 Musical Compositions suitable for all the Ceremonies of the Masonic Order; First, Second, and Third Degrees; Consecration and Dedication of Halls and Lodges; Programmes, Toasts, Songs, Trios, Choruses, &c., for Banquets and other Festive Gatherings; Laying Foundation or Corner Stones; Installation; Mark Masonry; Royal Arch; Masonic Funerals; Voluntaries; Marches, &c., &c.

Notice from the Evening Mail.

Our Masonic readers are no strangers to the name of Bro. William Spark, the talented musician and Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. In this really great work, now completed, Dr. Spark has shown his great tact and judgment by compiling and compiling for the Masonic brethren a complete library of musical compositions of the choicest English and foreign works, ancient, traditional, modern, vocal, and instrumental, by the best composers. It comprises Masonic anthems, installation odes, dedication music, responses, opening, closing, and intermediate music for all degrees, Thanksgivings, funeral odes, marches, songs, duets, banquet music, programmes, voluntaries, and general musical directions, arranged for voices and organ, piano-forte, or harmonium. "The Freemasons' Liber Musicus" is issued with the concurrence of many influential Masonic Lodges, and under the distinguished patronage and support of the Most Worshipful the Grand Masters of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. It forms a complete library of the choicest and rarest Masonic music, in a word, it is indispensable to all Masonic lodges. The worthy brother editor, moreover, has had the valuable co-operation and assistance of the most distinguished and experienced composers and organists, members of the Craft. It is brought out in the highest style of art, is printed from large engraved music plates, and forms a very handsome folio volume of "nearly two hundred and twenty pages!" It deserves the patronage of every Masonic Lodge, both at home and abroad and for its merits alone it ought to be zealously prized by every brother. As a present to a lodge, nothing could be more useful, valuable, and appropriate.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY,
FROM ITS ORIGIN TO THE PRESENT DAY.

Drawn from the best sources and the most recent investigations.

BY J. G. FINDEL,

Second Edition, Revised, and Preface written by
Bro. D. MURRAY LYON.

One vol., 800 pages 8vo., with an Index. Cloth gilt.
Price, 10s. 6d.

"This book is a strictly historical one, from which all is excluded that is not based upon ascertained or probable fact."—Builder.

"Of its value to Freemasons, as a detailed history of their Brotherhood, it is not possible to speak too highly."—Public Opinion.

"The author seems to have fairly exhausted the subject."—The Athenaeum.

"The edition we are now considering is a second English edition, which had the great advantage of Bro. D. M. Lyon's able superintendence and editorship in its English dress. There can be no doubt but, that so far, Bro. Findel's work is the most complete work on Freemasonry which has yet appeared, and that he deserves the greatest credit for his careful and accurate treatment of all evidence on the subject, and for his honest desire after truth. Bro. Findel gives up in the view he has so clearly and consistently put forth our early Masonic history, the older theory of the Roman Colleges, &c., and limits the origin of Freemasonry to about the twelfth century, and as then arising from the operative Masons, and specially the "Steingmeiten" and "Bauhütten" of Germany. Bro. Findel gives us a good deal of evidence on this head, and one thing is clear from his work, that the German Freemasons were, at a very early period, organized into lodges with a Master over them, and with outward regulations and inner ceremonies peculiar to the Craft. Bro. Findel rejects all the views which have been from time to time put forward of a Templar or a Rosicrucian origin. Whether or no Bro. Findel's theory of the date of the rise of Freemasonry be correct, matters very little: we do not ourselves profess to accept it; but this we can fairly say of Bro. Findel's work, it is marked from first to last by the most remarkable token of industry, ability, and care, of patient research, and of skilful criticism. We know of no work which so clearly sets before us our amount of knowledge up to the present time on the great question of Masonic Archaeology, and there can be little doubt that what Preston's work is to English Freemasonry, Findel's work is to cosmopolitan Freemasonry. Indeed no student in Masonry can now dispense with it, and it is a perfect storehouse both of Masonic evidence and Masonic illustrations. We earnestly recommend all the lodges in this country to obtain a copy for the lodge library before the work is bought up for America; and we believe that no Mason will rise from the perusal of its pages without a higher idea both of the historical truth and intrinsic value of Freemasonry, and of fraternal regard and recognition to the latest and not the least well-informed or effective of our Masonic historians. The present century has produced no such equal, in authority and usefulness, to the great work of our Bro. Findel, and we wish him and it, in all of fraternal sympathy and kindly intent, many earnest readers, and more grateful students."—The Masonic Magazine.

"This volume is the history of Masonry par excellence. Every interested person may regard it, therefore, as the present text-book on the subject."—Manchester Guardian

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1874.

THE IRISH GRAND LODGE.

We have reason to believe, that, some objection is still entertained among the rulers of the Irish Grand Lodge, to the report of Grand Lodge proceedings and private lodge business altogether.

The Freemason is printed and published with the sanction of our own Grand Master, and with the approval of the Grand Master of Scotland, has never yet received the formal "imprimatur" of the Grand Master of Ireland.

It has been said, that, a technical objection has been taken, that, we have never formally applied for the formal granting of such "license."

If that is the only difficulty, if that is the only fault we have committed, we are quite ready to cry "peccavi," and apply formally for the sanction and patronage of the much respected chief of Irish Masonry, our venerable brother the Duke of Leinster.

But the truth is, we believe the objection a little deeper, and is based on an entirely different foundation.

There is, we fear, a prima facie opposition to all reporting, and practically to all printing of Masonic proceedings, except, such as take place in public, and all reporting of lodge work, in all circumstances, and yet with a curious inconsistency, while The Freemason, the only Masonic journal at present existing, or circulating in Ireland, is objected to for reporting at all. We receive neither aid nor information, we see time to time long reports of Masonic proceedings alike in Grand and private lodge, both in Saunders's News Letter, and several non-Masonic papers, which though they do not emanate from authority professedly, yet what the foreign papers would term practical "communiqués" of some well-informed and gifted brother! Why then is this?

What has The Freemason done to be left in the cold? or why should its enterprising publishers not be able to print from time to time properly authenticated reports of the Irish Grand Lodge and private lodge proceedings? The Freemason is intended to be a fair and impartial record of the Craft, and why should we of the doings of our warm-hearted brethren across the channel, where, as we know, the very best feeling really exists between the brethren of the two jurisdictions, and only wants to be cultivated to be both warm and enduring:

The attitude of some good friends of ours in Dublin, on things Masonic, puts one in mind of the story of the Irish widow, who said to a rather backward admirer, who was somewhat hesitating, "Ye are mighty particular, come, spake out your mind like a man, I've got my answer riddy!" Why cannot the Irish authorities imitate her large-heartedness and open-mindedness?

We believe, that the little "impedimentum" to a full and fraternal approval of The Freemason, in all three jurisdictions arises from the fact, that the authorities, excellent and worthy as they are in Ireland, somewhat object to innovations, and are a little afraid of change.

Yet in 1874, it seems too late, in the history of Freemasonry and the world, to stand in the way of the progress and expansion of the Masonic Press.

The Inquisition of old, tried to silence Gallico, but for all that the earth moved, and the world has moved on, despite that "Institutio detestabilis."

And so to day, on every side of us we see, that the Masonic Press and Masonic Literature are happily on the increase, and that the Masonic Schoolmaster is abroad.

Who will take the responsibility of impeding the spread of the former, or marring the work of the latter?

When we in good old cautious, sober, slow-going England, remember, that the permission to print our Masonic proceedings, was granted by the most careful of rulers, and vigilant of Grand Masters, Lord Zetland, that, it certainly has done no harm to English Masonry, that, the same privilege has been conceded in Scotland, by that able ruler, Lord Dalhousie, and has been since confirmed by Lord Rosslyn, and is maintained by its worthy occupier of the Scottish chair, we see, how little fear any need entertain that we are in any way departing really from our ancient landmarks or from our old and cherished constitutions.

We feel sure of this, that Irish Masonry itself would receive an impetus and encouragement, if we could receive proper reports of the proceedings, and were not left to the chance columns of non-Masonic papers.

We say this in all good feeling and regard to the authorities of the Irish Grand Lodge.

The Irish Grand Lodge in itself is a very distinguished body, under its venerable chief, and represents a large, and worthy, and intelligent body of Freemasons. To it we wish all possible success, and with it we are most anxious to announce an entire "entente cordiale." Our worthy publisher is most anxious to give all Irish news of those many lodges, which do so much good work yearly, and we sincerely hope in conclusion that our remarks will be accepted in the spirit in which they are penned, namely, in all fraternal goodwill and respect to the constituted authorities of the Irish Grand Lodge, and all heartfelt aspirations, for the honour and development of Irish Craft Masonry.

THE CEREMONY OF THE DEDICATION OF KING SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

Freemasons have always been patrons of all æsthetic influences, and our Bro. Albert Mackey, wrote a very able article not long ago to prove that, Freemasonry was the conservator of the arts.

Indeed, as the true history of Freemasonry is to be found invariably linked, with perhaps the noblest of all the handicraft and artistic works of man, architecture, we shall not do wrong in asserting that our benevolent brotherhood of today, is still, as ever, uniformly ready and willing to encourage those genial and graceful labours which tend to expand civilization, and to elevate humanity.

We are led into this train of thought by the reception of a programme and prospectus placed in our hands by Bro. Ashton.

He is the possessor, it seems, of a picture painted by Morris Lewis Hermann, painter to Peter the Great, representing the ceremony of the dedication of King Solomon's temple.

The picture is a large one in itself, and alike unsuited from its size and subject for a private collection of paintings, and far more fitting, for every reason, for the adornment of a public gallery, or a corporate building. The picture is interesting in itself, and was formerly in the collection of Lord Moira, a distinguished member of our Order, we believe, as it came from a collection of paintings belonging to a descendant.

It has seemed to Bro. Ashton, that, the best and most suitable place for its reception, was Freemasons' Hall, and he has with that object in view professed himself ready to part with it for a sum of £2,000, of which £1,000 shall be divided among the Charities, in such proportions as a Committee, consisting of Bro. Nathaniel G. Phillips, J. M. P. Montague, Frederick Binckes, George Kenning, and E. P. Paraire, shall think fit.

Such is the original proposal of Bro. Ashton, and his first plan, for the surrender of the picture to the Craft and Freemasons' Hall. We think the idea is in itself most commendable, and the offer of Bro. Ashton most fraternal and praiseworthy. But naturally such a plan is not proposed by him as a "sine qua non" or without any possible modifications.

It is just possible as the subscription progresses, it may become apparent to Bro. Ashton, that it is after all more advisable for him, to make the transaction a simple matter of business arrangement, as between him and the Committee. In that case, we are warranted in saying, that, he will probably be found perfectly willing to accept a fair sum from the Committee, for the purchase itself, leaving out the question of the charities, and to hand the picture over to Grand Lodge, at the request of the subscribers, under such conditions as Grand Lodge itself shall see fit to lay down.

It is but fair to Bro. Ashton, to bear in mind that the picture originally cost 1200 guineas.

We subjoin a very able and artistic account of the picture itself to which we beg to call the attention of our many readers. It is written by Bro. Paraire.

A very interesting picture is now exhibited in Freemasons' Hall, the production of Francis Lewis Hermann, who was painter to Peter the Great. The subject chosen by the artist is the feast of the dedication of the Temple, the moment that of King Solomon's prayer. The attributes and accessories which constitute the groundwork of the picture are taken from the first Book of Kings, the 7th and 8th chapters.

The architectural details of the great court are well designed, and the appearance of space produced by careful attention to the laws of perspective, assisted by the very delicate warm tone of the colouring, produce a pleasing effect. As the far end and sides of the court fade into obscure indistinctness, they form a well studied background to the Inner Court of the house of the Lord, which thus relieved stands out in bold prominence and forms the centre of the picture. The effect of the whole is considerably enhanced by the distinct though apparently unlaboured attributes. The two pillars of brass with the chapiters concentrate the view on the porch of the temple; in front of which is the altar for the sacrifice of peace offerings. The details of this extraordinary work are so minutely studied in design and portrayed by the artist, and are brought together in such an able manner, that the mind is sensibly affected, and left to wonder at the amount of time and care that must have been bestowed on the design of the various implements, lavers, and vessels with which the picture abounds.

No less extraordinary is the general grouping of the numerous figures, that, fill every part of the canvass. The assemblage of all the heads and chief fathers with the banners of the various tribes and their retainers, the variety of costume, the attitude, and the anxiety manifested by all, the expression portrayed by each, the position and colour, all tend to strike the mind of the observer, while memory calls back the various details of that portion of history so clearly set forth in the biblical record of the construction and dedication of King Solomon's Temple.

We have only further to add that our Grand Master has given his full approbation to the plan and proposal, and has himself become a subscriber.

Our Bro. George Kenning is the Treasurer of the Committee, and we therefore, shall not be exceeding our province if we press on all our brethren to see the picture for themselves, and to aid in obtaining for the perpetual adornment of Freemasons' Hall, the representation of an episode in the history of Freemasonry and of mankind, so deeply connected with the progress of the most civilising of arts, and so specially interesting to all true Freemasons everywhere. We beg to remind all our readers, and repeat for the information of the brethren, that the picture is now on daily view, in a large room adjoining Freemasons' Hall.

Next week we shall publish a list of subscribers towards the purchase of the picture, and Bro. George Kenning is ready to receive the names of all our brethren wishful to contribute towards so desirable an object.

GIRLS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

Owing to the time that we are obliged to go to press on Thursday we cannot call attention to the report of the Girls' School, but hope to do so, and also to advert to the giving of prizes on Monday, in our leading columns next week.

NEW LODGE AT BLACKPOOL.—The consecration of the new lodge at Blackpool, in the Province of West Lancashire, which was originally fixed for Easter Tuesday, has been postponed for a few days. A full report of the opening will appear in the columns of The Freemason.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF EAST LANCASHIRE.

Many and many a day will have to pass away ere the remembrance of Wednesday, 6th May, can be eradicated from the memory of some of the good people of Bolton, and it will be a long time ere the part which was played at the same time by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the province of East Lancashire can possibly be forgotten by the members of the Order who participated in the grand festival. The gathering was held under the auspices of the Bolton Lodges, and no pains had been spared by the committee to give effect to the pageantry. Circulars were issued to the Officers, Masters, Wardens, and all whom it might concern, inviting their attendance; and in short everything that could be done to ensure a large and brilliant gathering, together with a bright and an imposing demonstration, was effected. The weather, although showery in the early part of the day, was fine, and large numbers of people were on the look-out, the streets presenting a somewhat livelier appearance than usual. Ladies especially were very numerous, and most of them being dressed in the striking and elegant fashions of the day, the thoroughfares exhibited a busy and gay appearance.

Shortly after twelve o'clock, the Anchor and Hope Lodge, No. 37, opened in the three degrees, in the Baths' Assembly Rooms, Lower Bridgman-street, by Bro. William Slater, W.M.; James Walker, S.W.; Dr. Robinson, J.W.; R. K. Freeman, S.D.; Jas. Brown, J.D.; Samuel Crowther, I.G.; and Charles Walker, Tyler. Shortly before one o'clock, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie and his Provincial Grand Officers, were announced, and were received with the usual salutations; and immediately afterwards the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened by the Provincial Grand Master, in the presence of Bros. J. L. Hine (sitting as Deputy P.G.M.) C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, P.S.G.W.; John William Maclure, P.J.G.W.; J. A. Elliott, P.G.R.; John Tunnah, P.G. Sec.; T. J. Lancashire, P.S.G.D.; Herod Turner, P.J.G.D.; Thomas Entwistle, P.G. Sup. of W.; James Pollitt, P.G.D.C.; Robert Whittaker, P.G.A.D.C.; Jas. Holroyd, P.G.S.B.; Ralph Collingwood, P.G.O.; Thos. Hargreaves, P.G. Pur.; R. C. J. Duckworth, P.G.A.P.; and other provincial officers and brethren, to the number of 500.

After the divine blessing had been invoked by the Chaplain, the Provincial Grand Master announced a letter of apology from the D.P.G.M., W. Romaine Callender, M.P., owing to parliamentary engagements, the minutes of the last Prov. Grand Lodge meeting having been read and agreed to, and the roll of lodges called over, the Provincial Grand Master pointed out that the minutes contained a paragraph to the effect that each lodge not represented at the Provincial Grand Lodge was fined £1 each, unless they gave some acknowledgment for not putting in an appearance. It appeared, however, that only two had so offended. The accounts, which show a balance of £279 17s. 10d., were taken as read, and unanimously confirmed.

Bro. Samuel Isherwood, P.M. 37, Bolton, was unanimously elected Prov. G. Treasurer for the ensuing year.

The investiture of the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge for the ensuing year was then proceeded with as follows:—

Thos. Glaister	P.S.G.W.
J. A. Birch	P.J.G.W.
Rev. F. A. Cave-Browne- Cave	P.G.C.
Rev. Charles James Bowen	P.G.C.
T. A. Winder	P.G. Reg.
S. Isherwood (elected)	P.G. Treas.
John Tunnah	P.G. Sec.
William Slater	P.G.S.D.
J. L. Barrett	P.G.J.D.
Robert Harwood	P.G. Sup. of Wks.
Robert Whittaker	P.G.D.C.
George Lofthouse	P.G.A.D.C.
W. Whewell	P.G.S.B.
Josiah Wm. Taylor	P.G.O.
James Hall	P.G. Pur.
Robert Butterworth	P.G.A. Pur.

James Newton	P.G. Steward
Frank Ainsworth	P.G. Steward
John Morris	P.G. Steward
R. Horridge	P.G. Steward
James Horrocks	P.G. Steward
James M. Rutter	P.G. Steward
Charles Walker	P.G. Tyler

During the investiture of the officers a very pleasing incident occurred. The Provincial Grand Master, after investing P.G. Sec. Tunnah with his badge of office, presented that gentleman with a jewel in commemoration of his past faithful services as P.G.S. for a period of twenty-one years.

The report of the charity committee was next taken and agreed to, it being considered a very satisfactory one.

A grant of £200 was voted to the Institution for aged Freemasons and Widows, and a committee was appointed to consider the desirability of establishing a local institution for the education and advancement of the children of Masons.

The lodge was shortly afterwards duly closed.

Shortly after three o'clock the procession was marshalled by Bro. Robert Whittaker (of Farnworth), the Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies; assisted by Bro. Lofthouse, P.G.A.D.C. The splendid band of the 7th Dragoon Guards headed the procession, the appearance of which was highly imposing, the aprons, gold lace, and bright insignia of the officers having a really magnificent effect. The line of route from the Assembly Rooms, via Newport-street, was crowded with spectators, who, one and all, seemed thoroughly charmed with all they saw, as well as delighted with the occasion that had brought them together. At the foot of the steps of the Town Hall, the brethren opened to the right and left, and preceded by his Standard Bearer, the Provincial Grand Master walked up to the hall doors, the brethren following in procession from the rear, thus inverting the order of procession.

Shortly after four o'clock 400 of the brethren sat down to a banquet in the Albert Hall, at the Town Hall. The galleries were crowded by a large concourse of ladies, who were admitted immediately after the banquet. The band of the 7th Dragoon Guards occupied the orchestra, and between them and the principal table were a number of choice plants, in full bloom, which had a very pretty effect.

The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Le Gendre N. Starkie, occupied the chair, and after the repast he proposed "The Health of her Majesty the Queen" in very appropriate terms.

Solo, band and chorus, "God save the Queen."

The Prov. Grand Master proposed "The Health of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, M.W. Past Grand Master." The Prince, he said, had been received in Bolton on the occasion of the opening of the beautiful building they were then assembled in, in a true Lancashire fashion, and with a demonstration of feeling which no other body of men could give. He asked them to drink the toast with true Masonic feeling, and he hoped that heaven would bless the Prince of Wales.

The next toast proposed by the Prov. Grand Master was "The Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, M.W. Grand Master," whom he highly extolled, and afterwards he alluded to the services rendered to the Craft by the Earl of Zetland.

Song, "The Grand Master," Bro. Dumville.

In proposing the next toast, viz., "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers present and past," the Prov. Grand Master briefly alluded to his own installation. He said he was sure that all who witnessed that ceremony by the Earl of Carnarvon must have felt deeply interested in it. As regarded himself he should never forget the good counsel the Earl gave him, and he hoped he would be able to follow the rules he had laid down, not only to his own advantage, but to the advantage of all the brethren. He trusted that circumstances would bring the Earl of Carnarvon into this province again, and that they would give him that Masonic welcome which he deserved.

The toast was well received, and responded to by Bro. Binckes, Past Grand Steward.

Glee, "Prosper the Art."

P.P.G.W. J. L. Hine gave "The Health of Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Provincial Grand Master." He referred to the manner in which it appeared the Prov. Grand Master had been educated in all that appertained to the Craft, and said there was no Prov. Grand Master whose heart was more open, or whose purse was always more ready.

The toast was drunk in a most enthusiastic manner, and upon rising to acknowledge the compliment the Prov. Grand Master was loudly cheered. He remarked that that was the largest assembly of Freemasons it had ever been his privilege to preside over. It was with feelings of no small agitation, and feelings which he could scarcely repress, that he addressed them upon that occasion. Knowing, as he did, that he stood in the place of one who was the townsman, one who was highly respected and beloved by every member of the fraternity, and a man in whose footsteps in Masonry he hoped he should always tread. He then alluded to that province, which he said was the largest in England, and it was now in a most flourishing state. He was at that time, he might almost say, in his native town, for if they read history they would find that some of his ancestors were interred in the churchyard adjoining the old Parish Church in Bolton, and when he remembered that fact it was sufficient to raise in him feelings which could only beat in the heart of a Lancashire lad. He then alluded to Free masonry, and to its charities, after which he proposed "The Health of W. Romaine Callender, Esq., M.P., Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and the Provincial Grand Officers, present and past." He remarked that the name of Wm. Romaine Callender, Esq., was a household word in that province, and that no man had done more than he in elevating Masonry.

Prov. J.G.W. J. A. Birch, responded on behalf of W. Romaine Callender, Esq., and the Provincial Grand Officers, and in doing so alluded to the noble and eminent men connected with Freemasonry.

"Glee, 'O Hills, O Vales of Pleasure.'"

The Prov. Grand Master next proposed "The Mayor and Corporation and Town and Trade of Bolton." They were all, he said, indebted to the Mayor and Corporation of Bolton for the use of that hall that evening. He wished the toast had fallen into the hands of a worthy brother who was unable to be with them that evening, but, like Bro. Callender, he was in London attending to the duties of the State. He (the Prov. Grand Master) saw one present that evening whom he had that day appointed Senior Grand Warden, namely, Bro. Glaister—(he heard)—a gentleman who was connected with the Corporation of Bolton. All the brethren were deeply indebted to some persons for a commodating them in that magnificent erection. Such a building as that was a credit to the town of Bolton. He did not know the Mayor of Bolton, but he believed that he was good citizen of his native town. He trusted that the trade of Bolton would flourish, for he did not know any town that concerned him so. The toast was drunk with three times three.

Song, "John Anderson my Jo, John."

Prov. S.G.W. T. Glaister thanked them in the manner in which they had received the toast. He had not long been a member of the Corporation of Bolton, but he had endeavoured to do duty while connected with it, and he believed that the whole Corporation were trying to their duty to the best of their skill and ability. They had now extensive waterworks, and was sure that that beautiful Town Hall was credit to Bolton. He trusted that the trade of the town would continue to flourish, for if it did not, he would suffer with the rest.

P.Prov. G.W. T. G. Gibbons proposed, "The Masters of the Bolton Lodges," which was responded to by Prov. S.G.D. W. Slater, W. 37.

"The Visiting Brethren" was next proposed by the Prov. Grand Master, and responded to by P. Prov. G.W. West Lancashire, Bro. Birch of Preston.

The Prov. Grand Master then proposed his place in the chair was taken by P.P.G.W. J. L. Hine.

Bro. Hine next gave the toast of "The Masonic Charities," which was responded to by Bro. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Benevolent Institution, and Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Masonic Boys' School, London.

Song (by desire) by Bro. Wroe, "A Mason's True Jewels."

Bro. Hine next proposed "The Provincial Grand Stewards," which was responded to by Bro. Frank Ainsworth.

Glee, by Bros. Edmondson, Bailey, Lovatt—"Willie brewed a peck o' maud."

The toast of "The Ladies" was proposed in very gracious terms by Bro. Pilkington, P.M., and responded to by Bro. Walter Pennington, W.M. 678.

The last toast on the list, "All poor and distressed Masons," was given by Bro. Hine.

Bro. Dunville next sang "The Final Toast" which brought the banquet to a close.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have hesitated not a little before resolving to address to you a few words in reply to a letter on Masons' Marks, which appeared in the Freemason of 18th February (p. 234), signed "A Masonic Student," for I do not think it generally advisable to carry on controversy with any one who has the meanness to descend to personal abuse; and I was very much inclined to think that the letter of "A Masonic Student" could produce little impression on the mind of any intelligent Freemason, except to disgust him by its low abusiveness, to amuse him by the self-conceit which it displays, and to astonish him by the extraordinary blundering of which it is full. "Self-praise is no honour," it is said; but our Student Brother seems to be of a different opinion, and sounds his own trumpet loudly enough. However, when he takes credit to himself for his diligence in the study of Masons' Marks, saying "I have probably studied Masons' Marks far longer and far more carefully than Bro. Paton," I feel no inclination whatever to dispute the point. I am willing to give him credit for the utmost assiduity in the study, and for having persevered in it for years enough to make him quite a remarkable student; but I cannot help reflecting that mere time and diligence in study will not produce very satisfactory results without something else. Perhaps he has heard the story of a great painter who being asked by an aspirant for artistic fame what mixed his colours with, replied "with brains, r!" How far this ingredient has entered into the composition of "A Masonic Student's" letter, you may judge who read it.

Permit me, however, to point out that he has fallen into utter confusion as to the state of the question on which he professes to write. He writes—"Bro. Chalmers I. Paton originally asserted that all Mason's Marks must have even numbers." Most certainly, I asserted no such thing. I suppose that by "even points" the student means an even number of points, though the expression used does not very clearly convey that, nor any other meaning. Anyone who has read what has previously appeared in the Freemason on this subject, must know that instead of asserting that all Mason's Marks must have an even number of points, I asserted the very opposite, that they must have an odd number of points, and to this it is that the whole controversy relates. Far be it from me to suppose that "A Masonic Student" consciously and deliberately made a statement wholly contrary to the truth. I only suppose that he has got bewildered, like a man in a dazed condition, who does not know very well where he is or where he wants to go. I have imagined that the word even, in the sentence which I have quoted, was written by a slip of the pen for odd; but other things which follow forbid the entertainment of this opinion, as, for example, when we read:—"In operative Masonry there is no such rule as even points, in speculative Masonry there is no trace of such a custom," a statement on which it is evidently unnecessary for me to make any observation, beyond this that it makes the proof of bewilderment complete.

"A Masonic Student" is pleased to speak of my "noisy asseveration and overbearing assertion," and resolutely declares that he for one never intends to allow any one, so long as he is able to hold a pen, "to mislead the Craft, either by absurd pretensions to infallibility or by idle claims to authority." Now he ought to be aware, if he has read and is capable of understanding the letters on which he seems to animadvert, that I adduced proofs and authorities in support of the assertions which I made, that I referred to the authority of the Grand Lodge of Scotland and of the best writers on Masonic History, dead and alive, both in England and in America, whereas he indulges in assertions unsupported by any proof or authority whatever, and in favour of which he brings forward no semblance of Masonic argument. It is he that is misleading or attempting to mislead the Craft, not I. I am inclined to think that he is not a Mark Mason himself, and that amidst all his Masonic studies, he has never read Laurie's History of Mark Masonry. It is plain that he has not recently looked into Bro. D. M. Lyon's book, as the fac-similes of marks there all belong to operative Masonry, and to the period from A.D. 1599, to A.D. 1680, and there is nothing in the whole volume to afford countenance to any of the views he apparently wishes to maintain. And if he is an English Freemason, it is quite evident that he is not acquainted with Bro. Oliver's landmarks. He writes about a subject of which it is evident that he knows nothing, and all his tall talk does not conceal his ignorance of the difference between operative and speculative Masonry.

The brother who wrote the chapter on Masons' Marks in Laurie's History of Freemasonry is Bro. Andrew Kerr, Past Master No. 8, S.C., and it was he whom I adduced as an authority for the opinion which I expressed, and have seen no reason to change, that a Mason's Mark of the present period ought always to consist of an odd number of points.

It is amusing to see how, "A Masonic Student" refers to Bro. Hughan, as a great authority in Masonry, and how Bro. Hughan, in a letter which appeared in The Freemason of 25th April, returns the compliment to the Student. But it all comes to this, that they have studied the subject, and they know, and therefore all other brethren must take their word for it. I hope many brethren will prefer to enquire for themselves, and to consider the evidence adduced.

Yours fraternally,
CHALMERS I. PATON.

A CAUTION.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I should feel obliged if you will find space in your next Saturday's issue for this letter.

A foreigner who professes to be a distressed Alsatian, has been travelling about this province selling French poplins, cloth, &c., which he says have been given to him by his brother, who he says is a manufacturer at Lyons, to sell, in order to pay his expenses to the French colony in Canada. During my absence he victimised my wife to the tune of £3 10s., for a dress; on my return home, I fortunately found the individual, and compelled him to take back the dress and refund the money; he then attempted to pass himself off as a Mason, at the same time telling me he would, as a brother Mason, let me have the dress for £2 10s. Of course, I did not accept his fraternal offering, and fortunately, for after his departure a similar dress bought by another lady in this place was found to be utter rubbish (she gave him £3 10s. for it). Amongst other things, he succeeded in obtaining 10s. from a very worthy and Rev. brother of my acquaintance by passing himself off as a distressed French Mason.

He is a man about 48 years old, thick set, rather over the average height, full face, clean shaven, with the exception of a moustache. He presents cards of numerous people in the neighbourhood, many of which, I hear, have been surreptitiously obtained. He sends in a neat little card, with his name, over the name is a crest.

In this neighbourhood he presents a letter of introduction which he has obtained by misrepresentation from a lady highly connected, and which letter, much to her annoyance, has led to his making victims of many of her friends.

I may say that the letter is supposed to be signed Alice Barrington, or Alice E. Barrington. His victims in this neighbourhood are legion, his gentlemanly bearing and language gaining him an easy access everywhere.

Fraternally yours,
HERBERT BUSY HODGES.
P.P.S.G.W., Herts.

THE MELROSE LODGE.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

After reading the letters of "Fraternal Justice," at page 234 of your issue for April 18th, I waited to see if there was to be any more in the same style before answering. There has been none, so in answer to "Fraternal Justice," I may say that his letters are sufficiently answered already at page 206. As to his assertion that he is "prepared to present me with a bone which I may not find easy to masticate," I beg to say that the only "bone" in the case worth spending time upon is the old minute-books and papers of the lodge. If he is able to give me a proper chance of "masticating" them, I am willing to try what I can do. In case, however, the effect of my teeth might be dreaded, pray give Bro. W. J. Hughan the opportunity of dealing with the subject.

I understand that a number of the Melrose Masons are ready to join the Grand Lodge of Scotland, if they get what they want, but for them to have the audacity and presumption to aim at getting in as No. 0, and before the lodge of Edinburgh, Mary's Chapel, is simply ludicrous. No doubt they may point to the Kilwinning Lodge as a precedent, and say that if fortune rewarded her pretensions with success, she may also equally favour them, if they will only be persistent enough and adopt the same course, coming in with all their illegitimate children under the paternal coat tails just as the other so gracefully sailed in with all her's under her petticoat! I am afraid, however, that the times have now changed, and that the Grand Lodge of Scotland will now see it to be more to her true interests to deal out "Fraternal Justice" with a faithful hand than to adopt what I consider to be the unfair course she took in A.D. 1807. And although fortune favoured the Kilwinning Lodge then, it is quite possible that this Melrose agitation now going on is simply the fair Nemesis shaking her whip over the back of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and threatening to bring it down, as the settlement for past misdeeds.

I am, Yours fraternally,
MASONICUS.

OPENING OF THE INFIRMARY FOR WIGAN AND DISTRICT.—On Thursday week, the Royal Albert Edward Infirmary, erected at a cost (including furnishing) of £29,500, was formally opened for the reception of patients, and, at the same time, the first annual general meeting of subscribers was held. The report placed the deficiency between subscriptions and expenditure at £3,200. Of this sum £1,000 was written off at the meeting. It was stated that the sum required to carry on the institution would be about £1,800 per annum, and the endowment fund, after the sale of the old dispensary, would probably be £6,000. Hospital Saturday and Sunday had this year produced £783, and in addition there were the annual subscriptions.

Masonic Tidings.

We have received a letter from Bro. Gottheil, with reference to a statement in our issue of May and, for every reason, we think it better not to publish the letter, and not to re-open the question now settled, in any way.

The Gresham Masonic Club of Instruction is held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, every Friday evening, from 6 o'clock to 9, Bro. Crawley, P.M. 174, Preceptor.

The fifteen Sections will be worked by Bro Austin, P.M. 933, assisted by the brethren, on Friday evening, June 5th, in the Gresham Masonic Club of Instruction, Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, commencing at 6 o'clock.

"MASONIC MAGAZINE."—The June number of the Magazine will contain a photograph of the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., Grand Master of England, and among other articles, Old Military Lodges, by Bro. Hughan; the Old Masonic Poem; Troy; History of Freemasonry in Russia; and other interesting matter. The "Masonic Magazine" is published monthly by Bro. George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.

R. D. PARR,

General House Furnishing Ironmonger,
45, BLACKMAN STREET, BOROUGH.

OFFERS nothing extraordinary, but REAL

GOOD ARTICLES at fair and reasonable prices. He does not keep an "Innocent Stock," but sufficiently large for any person to select from. He does not sell "cheaper than every other household trader," but quite as cheap as any.

A first-rate article at all times, be very much appreciated.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma. CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague. CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms. CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Extract from "INDIAN ECONOMIST."

"We direct the attention of medical men to a fact observed some years since by ourselves, and corroborated by our subsequent experience, that Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is in many cases of Low Fever immensely superior to Quinine in curative power. We cannot persuade ourselves that the true value of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is yet properly appraised in India. . . . It may be given with absolute safety even to a child three days old. Were medical men but to make a fair and exhaustive trial of it we are persuaded that it would work a revolution in the treatment of two-thirds of the diseases to which children are subject. Its curative power is simply amazing."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera had been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE."—See Lancet, Dec. 1. 1864.

From W. VESALIUS PETTIGREW, M.D., Hon. F.R.C.S., England.

Formerly Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology at St. George's School of Medicine.

"I have no hesitation in stating, after a fair trial of Chlorodyne, that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-Spasmic and Sedative. I have tried it in Consumption, Asthma, Diarrhoea, and other diseases, and am most perfectly satisfied with the results."

From Dr. THOMAS SANDIFORD, Passage West, Cork.

"I will thank you to send me a further supply of Chlorodyne. It was the most efficacious remedy I ever used, affording relief in a violent attack of Spasms within a minute after being taken. One patient in particular, who has suffered for years with periodical attacks of Spasms of a most painful nature, and unable to obtain relief from other remedies, such as opium, &c., finds nothing so prompt and efficacious as Chlorodyne."

From JNO. E. GOULSTONE, M.D., late Principal Surgeon to the Steamship Great Eastern.

"I can confidently state Chlorodyne is an admirable Sedative and Anti-Spasmic, having used it in Neuralgia, Hysteria, Asthma, and Consumption, with remarkably favourable results. It relieved a fit of Asthma in four minutes, where the patient had suffered eleven years in a most distressing manner, no previous remedy having had so immediate and beneficial an effect."

From Dr. B. J. BURLTON and Co., Newcastle.

"We have made pretty extensive use of Chlorodyne in our practice lately, and look upon it as an excellent direct Sedative and Anti-Spasmic. It seems to allay pain and irritation in whatever organ, and from whatever cause. It induces a feeling of comfort and quietude not obtainable by any other remedy, and it seems to possess this great advantage over all other sedatives, that it leaves no unpleasant after effects."

J. C. BAKER, Esq., M.D. Bideford.

"It is, without doubt, the most valuable and certain Anodyne we have."

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," 13th July, 1864.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each Bottle.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

His Grace the Duke of St. Alban's, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Major Smyth, Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge and General Communication of Masons in this Province,

WILL BE HELD IN THE

PUBLIC ROOMS, GRANTHAM.

Under the auspices of the Doric Lodge, No. 362, ON THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1874.

AT HIGH TWELVE,

When and where the P.G. Officers and Past Officers, with the Worshipful Masters and Past Masters, and the Acting Wardens of the Lodges in the Province, are hereby convoked to attend, and at which all Master Masons are invited to be present.

FREDERICK DELABENE MARSDEN, Provincial Grand Secretary.

Louth, 25th April, 1874.

BUSINESS:—

The Lodges will be called over.

The Roll of Provincial Grand Officers will be called.

The Minutes of the Annual Provincial Grand Lodge, holden at Louth, on Thursday, the 20th of May, 1873, will be read and put for confirmation.

The Provincial Grand Treasurer will read his Finance Statement.

The Provincial Grand Secretary will read the Report of the Committee of the P.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence and an abstract of the accounts to the present time.

The Provincial Grand Registrar will give the Returns for the past year from the several Lodges in the Province.

W. Bro. W. H. Radley, P.M. 838, P.J.G.W., and Secretary to the Provincial Charity Committee, will read the Report for the past year, and render an account of the efforts made by the Province in connection with the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

The Provincial Grand Lodge will proceed to elect a P.G. Treasurer.

The R.W. Provincial Grand Master will invest the P.G. Officers for the ensuing year.

N.B.—Members of the P.G. Lodge may obtain a copy of the Bye-laws of the P.G. Lodge and the Rules of the P.G.L. Fund of Benevolence, on presenting a card with their Name and Masonic rank upon it to the P.G. Treasurer. A History of the P.G. Lodge of Lincolnshire and the Private Lodges in the Province, both past and present, with some interesting Tables showing the rise and progress of the Order in the Province since the year 1792, as well as a List of all the P.G. CROSBY'S
BALSAMIC

C. OSBY'S
BALSAMIC
COUGH ELIXIR.

Opiates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which at the root of the malady, modern science points to Crosby's BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.
SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
 Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it relieved cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Cosumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment in this disease.
 This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success
 Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, N
 Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the throat chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough.
 Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had gratis all Chemists.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETING S

Craft Masonry.

LIVERPOOL.—Merchants' Lodge (No. 241).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, the chair of K.S. being occupied by Bro. J. Halton, W.M.: The officers and others present were Bro. R. Robinson, P.M.; G. Broadbridge, P.M.; S. Forrest, P.M.; R. Wilson, P.M.; W. M. Chudley, S.W.; R. Brown, J.W.; S. I. McGeorge, P.M., Treasurer; G. Hutchins, Sec.; G. Peet, S.D.; J. Winsor, I.G.; P. Ball; Tyler, W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823; W. M. Norbury; J. Cooper; H. Gabriel; J. Latta; G. Hulse; M. de Freece; J. Sillitoe, P.M. 605; B. Levy; S. Jacob; D. C. Marks, &c. The visitors included Bro. J. Banning, P.G.O., C. and W.; J. Mandsley, P.P.G. Reg.; C. H. Hill, P.G. Reg.; J. R. Goepel, P.G.S.; E. Friend, P.P. J.G.D. (Cheshire); W. C. Connell, P.M. 137; W. Sephton, W.M. 1086; J. Wallace, I. G. 1289; J. W. Farley, P.M. 1035, &c. During the meeting it was unanimously resolved that a letter of condolence, signed by the W.M. and Sec., should be sent to the widow of the late Bro. Capt. Mott, who was a valued and esteemed P.M. of the Merchants' Lodge. Bro. Wilson also gave notice that he should move at the next meeting, that the sum of £100 be given by the lodge towards the fund about to be raised, as a presentation to the widow of Captain Mott. Bro. R. Robinson, P.M., was elected Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction in connection with No. 241, in room of Bro. Mott, who had for many years most effectually filled that position. After the transaction of some formal business, the proceedings closed in peace and harmony.

LIVERPOOL.—Croxteth United Service Lodge (No. 786).—Bro. H. J. Newman, W.M., presided at the ordinary meeting of this excellent lodge on Thursday evening, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Temple, and amongst the others present were Bro. G. Owen, P.M.; G. L. Blundell, P.M., S.W.; G. S. Stopford Taylor, J.W.; L. Coulton, P.M., D.C.; W. B. Cay, Sec.; W. H. Holt, J.D.; W. H. Tyerman, &c.; J. B. Wallace, Treas.; R. Neville, Tyler; and W. G. Veale, Org. The principal business of the evening was the election of W.M., and Bro. G. G. Stopford Taylor, the S.W., was unanimously and by acclamation chosen to fill that important office. The installation will take place on the 11th June, when it is expected that Bro. Councillor Dr. Taylor, P.M., will instal his son into the chair of K.S. The assembled brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent repast, and during the evening the usual loyal, masonic, and complimentary toasts were given from the chair by Bro. Newman, W.M., in happy terms.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 56).—The brethren of this large and prosperous lodge assembled for the performance of their Masonic duties on the evening of the 13th inst., in their lodge room, North Hill-street, 150th Park. Bro. T. Evans, W.M., presided, the principal officers being Bro. B. B. Marson, M.; Rothwell, S.W.; J. Bell, J.W.; Joseph nes, Sec.; W. G. Veale, Org. The principal business was the raising of five candidates, the ceremony being performed by the W.M., Bro. Evans, in a most masterly and impressive manner. Several substantial sums were voted for charity, after which the lodge was closed.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—A very numerous attended meeting of this lodge was held at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, at Camberwell, on Thursday, the 14th inst., the occasion being the installation of a highly respected member, both of the corps and the lodge, as its fifth W.M., the first of the initiates who has attained the honourable distinction. Amongst those present were Bros. Newington Bridges, W.M.; W. J. Messenger, S.W., and W.M. Elect; J. H. Hastie, J.W.; M. S. Larham, S.D.; H. Hammond, J.D.; F. H. Cozens, Org.; T. W. Carnell, D.C.; Fountain, Steward; G. Waterall, I.P.M.; Major Irvine, Senior P.M.; J. Stevens, P.M.; Dubois, Allen, Fletcher, Ross, Grey, Cacket, Harper, Collins, Nevill, Bradley, Styan, Joy, Cutting, Bowen, Youngman, Clay, Challoner, Style, Wilkins, Woodcock, Barnett, and a large number of visitors were also present, among whom we observed the W. Bros. Henry Bridges, P.G.S.B., D.P.G.M. Somerset; R. C. Else, P. Prov. G.S.W. Somerset; Thrupp, P.M.; Coote, P.M.; Gatherwood, P.M.; Rexworthy, Stride, 176; Puckle, 176; Garner, and others. The lodge was opened at four o'clock, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, ballots were taken for three candidates for initiation, which were found clear, and the Rev. Charles Compton Barry Domville, M.A., being in attendance, was introduced. At the conclusion of the ceremony the rev. brother expressed his high appreciation of the solemnity, and gave force to his opinion by accepting at a later period of the evening the office of Chaplain to the lodge. The lodge having been opened in the second degree, Bro. W. J. Messenger was duly presented as W.M. elect, and was then installed in a large board of Installed Masters, and in a most efficient manner, by the retiring W.M., Bro. Newington Bridges, who afterwards completed the ceremony by delivering the addresses to officers and brethren in a most correct and perfect manner. The newly-installed Master then appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. W. J. Messenger, W.M.; J. H. Hastie, S.W.; M. S. Larham, J.W.; Rev. C. C. Domville, M.A., Chaplain; A. Styan, Treas.; J. J. Curtis, Sec.; H. Hammond, S.D.; J. W. Carnell, J.D.; C. Fountain, I.G.; F. Cozens, Org.; J. Stevens, P.M., D.C.; D. A. Ross, W.S.; W. Gray, C.S. The W.M. stated his desire that the office of D.C. should be held by a Past Master, and be considered as out of the rota for promotion, so that the advancement of other officers might not be retarded, and at his solicitation, Bro. Stevens, P.M., agreed to fulfil the duties of that office. Business was at once undertaken by the W.M., who in most excellent manner initiated the remaining two candidates previously balloted for, and Messrs. T. A. Fitzen, and H. P. Jarman, were severally admitted to the Order. A Past Master's jewel of the elegant and valuable description worn by former P.M.'s of this lodge, was presented to Bro. Bridges, I.P.M., and a Past Treasurer's jewel of equal value was unanimously voted for presentation to Bro. Dr. E. Cronin, who had filled that office since the formation of the lodge. Candidates were proposed for initiation at the ensuing meeting, and the lodge was then closed with musical service, Bro. Coote presiding, during the temporary absence of Bro. Cozens, at the harmonium. The banquet was provided in the large canteen of the corps, the tables being plentifully adorned with large and valuable epagnes, cups, and other prizes won by the members of the lodge. Amongst them our attention was especially directed to the elaborate Macdonald Lodge cup, a work of beautiful design and of considerable cost, a gift from the lodge to the corps, and which has been held by Bro. Curtis, the Secretary to the lodge, as prize winner; as also to the magnificent Bread-street Ward epagne, a challenge prize, which has been won by Bro. Messenger, the newly installed W.M. The late Colonel Macdonald's cups, Major Irvine's shield, and other similar trophies gave evidence that Masonry and rifle practice went hand in hand in the Macdonald Lodge. The costly dinner service bearing the device of the lodge and presented to it by one of its earlier members, Bro. Rassam, of Abyssinian celebrity, was also brought into requisition on this occasion, and generally the surroundings of the entertainment were in unison with the position and celebrity the Macdonald has attained. The cloth having been cleared and the loving cups, the Macdonald Lodge cup, and Colonel Macdonald's cup, having circulated, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, that of "The past and present Officers of Grand Lodge" being responded to by the W. Bro. Henry Bridges, P.G.S.B. and D.P.G.M. Somerset, who thanking the lodge for the reception accorded to him, took occasion to express his pleasure at having the ceremony of installation so ably performed by his nephew, the outgoing Master, and the subsequent ceremonies of initiation so well carried out by the W.M. and his officers. To the toast of "The W.M." Bro. Messenger responded with much feeling, thanking the proposer (Bro. Newington Bridges) for his allusion to the fact of his initiation in the lodge and that he was the first of the lodge's children to attain the high position he now held. He expressed his anxiety from the first to attain that position, and his acknowledgments to former officers and brethren who had aided and stimulated his exertions towards that object, and concluded a brief but forcible speech by proposing the toast of "The Past Masters." Bro. Major Irvine in one of his usual excellent speeches, in the course of which he reviewed the past proceedings of the lodge, returned thanks on behalf of the Past Masters, and trusted that, as he believed would be the case, in the future the same prosperity would attend its labours. Bro. Else, Provincial Grand Senior Warden, Somerset, responded on behalf of "The Visitors" in complimentary terms of satisfaction with all which they had seen, heard, and enjoyed. "The Initiates" was replied to by both of the newly admitted brethren then present (Bro. Domville, the Chaplain, having retired before the closing of the lodge), and the several other toasts were also duly acknowledged. The evening's proceedings were enlivened by the excellent performance of Bros. Cozens, Cootes, and others, and terminated with the "Tyler's toast."

LEBANON LODGE (No. 1326).—After a recess of six months this well established lodge commenced its session by meeting on Saturday, May 16th, at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton, Bro. W. Hammond, W.M. presided. There were present during the afternoon and evening Bros. H. A. Lubois, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, W.M. 1423 S.W.; J. W. Jackson, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M.; Sec.; L. Hayward, J.D.; J. T. Moss, P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, P.M.; J. C. Woodrow, P.M.; E. Hopwood, P.M.; H. Potter, P.M., W.S.; R. Limpus, P.G. Organist, Middlesex; W. G. Laving, P.M.; H. Gloster, T. Wheeler, W. Mitchell, J. G. Fessett, T. W. Stone, G. Shott, W. Staunton, J. J. Marsh, James Lawrence, Josias Lawrence, Robert Lawrence, J. W. Baldwin, C. Heitzmann, G. R. Turnbull, E. Larking, J. Hurst, and some others. The visitors were Bro. Col. F. Burdett, R.W.P.G.M. Middlesex; R. Mabson, 100; T. Price, J.D. 946; W. Smeed, P.P.G.J.W. Middlesex, P.M.; G. W. Malim, 1423; W. A. Simmons, 1423; F. H. Webster, I.G. 1309; and others. The minutes of previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballots proved favourable to all the candidates for initiation. The work done was initiating Mr. G. R. Turnbull, and passing Bro. J. W. Stone to the second degree, the work being well and ably done. On motion made by the Secretary, Bro. F. Walters, ten guineas were unanimously voted from lodge funds to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The W.M., Bro. W. Hammond, P.M. 201, on his motion got five pounds voted from the charity fund of the lodge for the male annuity fund of the Royal Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and the widows of Freemasons, both amounts to be paid in the name of the W.M. for the time being. Three gentlemen were proposed for initiation, the lodge was closed, and a good cold collation was served.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Chapter (No. 249).—The annual meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on the evening of Friday, the 8th instant, when there was a large and influential muster of companions. Comp. J. F. Jones, Z., presided at the opening, and amongst the others present were Comps. J. Hamer, P.Z.; W. J. Lunt, P.Z.; J. Healing, P.Z.; W. Doyle, H.; H. Pearson, J.; J. S. Dixon, E.; W. C. Bulman, N.; J. E. Jackson, P.S.; Joseph Wood, Treas.; Rev. P. Hains, Chaplain, P. Ball, Janitor; W. Roberts, W. Laidlaw, P.Z. 216; P. B. Gee; G. S. Willings; C. Leighton, J. R. Goepel, P.S. 86; A. Bucknall; W. Curtis; J. Chisnall; T. H. Hall; R. Carter; J. Archdeacon; H. Firth; J. Marshall; J. E. Skillicorn; W. Heath; Jose F. Larza; W. Nash; C. Warner, &c. The list of visitors included the names of Companions J. Pemberton, P.Z. 1094; W. Shortis, H. 1094; W. T. May, P.Z. 580; P. M. Larsen, P.Z. 220; T. Clark, 673; J. Skeaf, Z. 216; J. Goodman, 823; and C. S. Hinks, 203. After the transaction of some formal business, Comp. J. Hamer, P.Z., proceeded to instal Comp. W. Doyle, H., as Z. of the chapter, and after he had been duly placed in that position, he invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Comps. H. Pearson, H.; W. C. Bulman, J.; Joseph Wood, Treas. (re-elected); Rev. P. Hains, Chaplain; J. E. Jackson, P.S.; J. S. Dixon, S.E.; P. B. Gee, S.N. Comp. Peter Ball was unanimously re-elected Janitor. Comp. Hamer, who is a recognised veteran in excellent working, performed the ceremony of installation in a remarkably able manner. Bros Evans, Carter, and Jones, were exalted during the meeting, and in the course of the evening Comp. J. F. Jones was presented with a handsome P.Z. jewel, in recognition of his valuable services.

PANMURE CHAPTER (No. 720).—The installation meeting of this prosperous chapter was held at the "Horns Tavern," Kennington, on Monday, the 11th instant. The chapter was placed in mourning for the late Comp. S. C. Davison, the M.E.Z., whose decease took place on the 23rd January last. The chapter was opened by Comps. James Stevens, P.Z., as M.E.Z.; Henry Smith, H.; Chas. Hammerton, J.; H. C. Levander, P.Z., and Treas.; R. H. Harvey, P.Z.; Joseph Nunn, P.Z.; John Read, P.Z.; William Watson, P.Z.; William Worrell, M.E.Z., William Preston Chapter; and the following companions were present during the convocation, viz:—Comps. Rev. W. B. Church, N.; T. Pulsford, P.S.; T. Poore; C. Burrell; Newington Bridges; T. Heffer; R. B. Bryant; G. Waterall; M. S. Larham; F. Levander; R. N. Field; and J. Gilbert. The minutes of the previous convocation having been confirmed, Bro. William Hislop Van Baerle, of the British Lodge, No. 8, was duly exalted into the Supreme Degree with full ceremony and addresses. The following companions were then installed and invested, respectively, as officers for the ensuing year, viz:—Comps. Henry Smith, M.E.Z.; Chas Hammerton, H.; Rev. W. B. Church, J.; James Stevens, P.Z., E.; G. Waterall, N.; H. C. Levander, P.Z., Treas.; M. S. Larham, P.S.; T. Poore, S.A.S.; R. N. Field, J.A.S.; R. B. Bryant, Steward; and J. Gilbert, Janitor. The report of the Audit Committee, which presented a very favourable financial result, after liberal donations to charitable purposes, was read and adopted. The sum of five pounds, to be added to a former vote of equal amount, was voted for the purpose of constituting a Life Governorship in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, in memory of the late M.E.Z., to be called the "Davison Governorship," and to be at the disposal of the Treasurer for the time being. A similar Life Governorship, in memory of the late Comp. Thomas, P.Z., had been created during the past year. The resignation of Comp. Worthington, P.Z., in consequence of business engagements in the country, was accepted with earnest expressions of regret, and the resignation of Comp. T. Pulsford was also accepted. Propositions for exaltation at the ensuing meeting were received, and the chapter was then closed.

The companions partook of an excellent banquet, provided in first-rate style by the new host of the "Horns" Tavern, which gave unqualified satisfaction, and was supplemented by a very generous gift from the M.E.Z., who received hearty congratulations on his advancement in Masonic position, and whose health, after the usual preliminary toasts, was cordially drunk and responded to by him in his customary genial and courteous manner. A most enjoyable evening was passed in that perfect harmony and good companionship which has been characteristic of this chapter from its foundation, and the members separated at a seasonable hour, well pleased with the entire proceedings of their ninth anniversary.

EDINBURGH.—The Lodge of Edinburgh Mary's Chapel (No. 1).—The last monthly meeting of the season of this lodge was held in the lodge room, Waterloo place, on Tuesday evening, the 12th inst. There were present on the occasion, Bro. Bailie Muirhead, R. & M.; Abbott, P.M.; Officer, P.M.; Mann, P.M., Melville, P.D.M., President Board of Grand Stewards; Captain Shanks, Royal Marines L.L., J.G.W., Prov. Grand Lodge of Devon; Schopp, R.W.M.; Lodge Canongate Kilwinning No. 2, accompanied by a deputation; H. R. Hendrie, P.M., Lodge Journeymen, No. 8; Roy, D.M.; Dr. Dickson, S.M., and a numerous attendance of other brethren. In the temporary absence of the R.W.M., the lodge was opened by Bro. Roy, D.M., after which the minutes were read and confirmed. A petition was then read from Bro. Edward Massey Hay, Roslin, Mid Lothian, a M.M. of the Lodge Hornsey, No. 890 (E.C.) craving to be affiliated a member of the lodge, which having been unanimously approved, Bro. Hay was duly affiliated, and at a subsequent part of the evening gave the brethren an interesting sketch of his experiences as a Freemason in various distant parts of the world, and of the advantages of Freemasonry to those whose avocations lead them to travel abroad, a remark which was amply corroborated by Bro. Captain Shanks. In accordance with a previous resolution of the lodge to confer honorary affiliation on Bro. H. P. Hendrie, P.M. of the Lodge Journeymen No. 8, in recognition of his lengthened and well known services to the Craft, and of the friendly relations which have always existed betwixt the lodge No. 1, and the lodge No. 8, one of its most thriving and vigorous offshoots, that brother presented himself, and was affiliated in common form, amid the applause of the brethren. A gratifying part of the proceedings of the evening consisted in the presentation of a piece of plate, and a P.M.'s jewel, to Bro. W. J. Crawford Abbott, whose name has been familiarly identified with the lodge for a considerable number of years past. Bro. Abbott has been in office for at least seven consecutive years of that period as Secretary, Sub-Master, and latterly as R.W.M., an office which he vacated on St. John's Day, 1872, and during his connection with the lodge, he has worked incessantly and disinterestedly in furthering its welfare. The R.W.M., in making the presentation, adverted in a highly complimentary manner to the good work Bro. Abbott had done for his mother lodge, and how pleasing it was to him, personally, to be deputed by the brethren to place in his hands that gift expressive of their appreciation of his services in the various offices he had filled. He hoped that Bro. Abbott would not estimate their gratitude by the size or value of the gift, but accept as a little representing a great deal. The R.W.M. concluded by placing the piece of plate in Bro. Abbott's hands, and by fixing the jewel on his breast, amid much applause. Bro. Abbott, in reply, said that he felt great difficulty in expressing himself in terms adequate to an occasion so gratifying to him. It did not require this mark of their approval to keep him in mind of the gratitude he owed to the lodge. After serving in several subordinate offices, he was raised by the goodwill of the brethren to the responsible position of Master, in which position he received the most generous support from the office-bearers and brethren. He would ever look back to the two years of his Mastership as the most pleasant of his life. While occupying the chair he endeavoured, as was his duty, to do all he could not only to advance the interests of the lodge, but also to do the Craft at large; and although he had "passed the chair," the brethren might reckon upon him in any emergency so long as health and strength were vouchsafed to him. Bro. Abbott concluded by adding that as he devoted much time to Masonry, he considered it just to do homage to claims of an importance by allowing Mrs. Abbott to receive her own pleasure in the selection of the gift, a remark which elicited much applause. On motion of brother officers it was unanimously agreed to record on the minutes an expression of regret at the death of Bro. Alexander Hay, Past Treasurer, and (with the exception of the oldest member of the lodge, Bro. Hay, who initiated in the year 1822, and has thus been connected with the lodge for the long period of 52 years. This concluded the business, and the lodge was closed according to ancient form.

GLASGOW.—St. Mark Lodge, No. 102, held their usual meeting on Monday, May 11th. There was a good attendance of members, Bro. Mitchell, R.W.M., in the chair. There one candidate who was duly admitted into the Order by the P.M., Bro. T. Halket.

GLASGOW.—Star Lodge, No. 219, met on the 11th. Their fine new Hall was crowded with members and visitors, Bro. Joseph Wilson, R.W.M., in the chair; J. Logan, S.W.; J. Duthie, acting J.W.; Bro. Miller, Sec. There were two candidates for initiation, and a request was preferred from the Lodge Union and Crown Lodge, No. 103, to initiate two for them. This was read and acceded to, and Bro. A. M. Wright, R.W.M., No. 103, proceeded to initiate the four gentlemen in a careful and praiseworthy manner. The lodge was then raised to the second degree, and five brethren were duly passed to that degree, Bro. J. Gilles, R.W.M. of 103, giving the degree. The lodge was again raised, and that sublime degree was conferred on three brethren by Bro. P. A. Bain. This concluded a long evening's labour, the brethren having had the opportunity of seeing the three degrees worked by three excellent workers of the mystic art.

GLASGOW.—Union Lodge (No. 33).—This lodge held an emergency meeting on Monday, May 11th, to initiate a gentleman who was about to sail for Canada. The lodge was opened at 8 p.m. by Bro. J. MacNair, R.W.M.; Bro. McHurdy, S.W.; J. McConnachy, J.W.; Balfour, P.M., as Past D.M.; and J. Murray, Secretary. The 1st and 2nd degree were wrought by the Master, Bro. J. Pash gave the obligations of the 3rd, and Bro. J. Balfour the lecture and concluding charges.

GLASGOW.—Glasgow Lodge (No. 441). This lodge held their monthly meeting in their own hall, Struthers-street, on Tuesday, May 12th, the R.W.M., Bro. W. H. Jackson, in the chair, Bros. W. Taylor, P.M.; Thallon, S.W. J. Mason, J.W.; and A. Rennie, Secretary. A deputation from the Provincial Grand Lodge consisting of Bros. M. W. F. A. Barrow, D.P. acting Grand Master; J. B. Walker, P.G.T.; McTaggart, M.A., P.G.S.; G. Thall, P.G.J.D.; J. Balfour, P.G.D. of C.; J. Gilles, P.G.S.B.; and Wm. Phillips, P.G. The P.G. Secretary reported that after a minute examination they had found all the books perfectly correct and well kept. The P.G.M. said it was always a source of pleasure to be able to speak well of the lodge they were visiting, in this instance it was all the more satisfactory as they had had occasion to refer to the minutes for the past five years, and they found they were always accurately kept. As the lodge were aware they had some trouble with one of their late members, Bro. Thomas Stratford, who they had expelled for unmasonic conduct, and acting as the Master of an unrecognised lodge; that gentleman had appealed to the Grand Lodge, who had sent him back to the Provincial Lodge to be initiated. When before that body, he had, in the presence of relating to events that took place about the time of his joining the lodge, but the minute book showed that those statements were without foundation, and this showed the necessity of the records of a lodge being accurately kept, as he was glad to say they were. He had accordingly confirmed the action of the lodge in expelling Mr. Stratford. The P.G.M. then impressed on the members the necessity of caution in the admission of visitors, and also dwelt on the desirability of an extended scheme of benevolence for the province, stating, that as this was the last visitation for this season, and he had now brought the matter before each lodge, he thought that now something practical should be done, and with that view he intended, at the next provincial meeting, to bring it before them in a definite shape. Bro. Jackson, R.W.M., thanked the P.G.M. and the deputation for their visit, and also for the favourable way in which they had spoken of the affairs of the lodge, and congratulated them on having completed their arduous task of visiting the twenty-six lodges of the Province. By the aid of his officers and members, the lodge of Glasgow had, during the past year, paid off £50 of their debt, and their hall would soon be free, and he could assure the P.G.L. that 441 would gladly join a plan for extending benevolence to deserving objects. The deputation then withdrew. The brethren spent some time in harmony. The R.W.M. proposed the various toasts in appropriate terms; that of the visitors was responded to by Bro. J. Gray, of No. 17, and G. W. Wheeler, 73, who proposed "Prosperity to Lodge 441." Bro. Jackson acknowledged the compliment, and gave "The Masonic Press." Bro. Wheeler responded for the Freemason, and Bro. Adams for the Masonic News.

GLASGOW.—Clyde Lodge (No. 408,) met at 170, Buchanan-street, on Friday, May 15th, D. Downie, R.W.M., in the chair, supported by J. McDonald, P.M. 73; G. W. Wheeler, 73; J. Bain, P.M. 103; J. R. Mitchell, P.M. 332; J. McGinnis, S.W.; Wm. Billsland, J.W.; J. Harper, T. There was a petition for initiation from Mr. Buckland, Master Mariner, and also one from Mr. H. G. Banks, on behalf of lodge 73. These two gentlemen were then duly initiated into the Order by Bro. Downie, the Master of the lodge, in a way which proved him to be a careful Masonic Student. The lodge having been raised to the second degree, Bro. G. McDonald, P.M. of 73, passed one brother for his own lodge, and another for the Clyde, into that degree. A lodge of Master Masons was then opened, and Bro. Banks, P.M., of 103, raised three brethren to the sublime degree. At the conclusion of the ceremony, as two of the new Mark Masters were seafaring men, he related the circumstances under which a seaman and mate of a schooner who had himself raised to the same degree had been the means of saving not only their own lives but those of the whole ship's crew, through their knowing the distress sign on their first voyage, and the owners were so pleased at their being the means of saving the vessel and cargo that they had placed them in the command of a large vessel with greatly increased pay. The narration of this anecdote, as the event is quite recent, and some of the actors well known, created a great impression in the Lodge Clyde, many of its members are seafaring men.

GLASGOW.—Clydesdale Lodge (No. 556).—A meeting of this new lodge was held in the "Star Lodge Hall," 12, Tron-gate-street, on Thursday, 14th May, for the election of officers, when the following brethren were unanimously appointed, viz:—Bro. William Phillips, R.W.M.; Dr. Thomas Russell, D.M.; Wm. McNaught, S.M.; J. B. McNaught, S.W.; J. Howie, J.W.; T. B. Yuill, T.; James Young, S.; John Frew, S.D.; John McDougall, J.; John Doig, C.; Wm. J. E. Dobson, J.S.; J. Weir, S.S.; John Brown, I.G.; Wm. Jackman, A.; Wm. Graham, T. After business of election was settled, the lodge proceeded to initiate four candidates, viz:—John Yuill, Robert Scott, George Yuill, and John Campbell. The lodge was thereafter held, in due and ancient form.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW LODGE AT LARKHALL, LANARKSHIRE.

Saturday, May the 9th, was a day to be remembered by the inhabitants of this village and its vicinity, for the oldest inhabitant had never seen such a procession as that formed by the brethren of the mystic tie to assist inaugurating the Lodge Clydesdale Larkhall, No. 534. As a proof of the zeal and energy of the members of the new lodge, we have only to say that the charter was only granted on Monday the 4th, and on the 9th they had not only got the Provincial Grand Master to attend, but also above 600 brethren from the several other lodges in the province. The day too was propitious and the whole proceedings, considering the short time the new officers had to make their arrangements, was something wonderful, and fully accounted for the few moments' delay, at the commencement.

As it would be invidious to mention a few names where so many were present, we will only state that there were deputations from the following lodges: Hamilton, Kilwinning (No. 7), Old St. John, Lanark (No. 21), St Mungo, Glasgow (No. 27), St. Mary Coltness, Wishaw (No. 31), Thistle and Rose, Glasgow (No. 73), Robert Burns Chapter (143), Free Operatives, Biggar (167), St. John's, Carluke (187), Union St. John's, Stonehouse (244), Hamilton (233), Woodhall St. John's, Holytown (305), St. John's, Cairnworth (244), St. John's, Dalziel, Motherwell (406), and the Old Larkhall St. Thomas, (306), which numbers about 200 members, and has a benefit society attached to it, and who are cordially welcoming the new lodge in their midst. Larkhall is the centre of a large mining district, and if some of its denizens are not quite so polished as some of the Masonic fraternity, they have hearts as warm, and their hands are quite as open to relieve the wants of a brother in distress.

Bro. Hector MacLean, P.G.M., of the Upper Ward of Lanarkshire, attended by the P.G. Sec., Bro. John Currie, and other Provincial Officers, attended punctually at the hour named, and the handsome gold cups, brought by the P.G.M., excited much admiration.

The consecrating ceremonies having been gone through, Bro. MacLean proceeded to instal the following brethren as the first officers of the lodge: James Davis, R.W.M.; Daniel Wright, S.W.; Robert J. Brown, J.W.; Andrew T. Watson, Sec.; William MacEwan, Treas.; Alex. Frew, S.D.; William Brown, J.D.; Neil Barn, S.S.; Andrew Imrie, J.S.; John Caldwell, I.G.; and William Wood, Tyler. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, after a short interval, the brethren assembled in the large hall of Bro. Sibbald's Inn, where a substantial banquet was provided in very good style. The P.G.M. presided, supported by the R.W.M. and P.G.S., we also noticed Bros. Bassett and Wheeler, who appeared to be the only representatives of the Glasgow Province; probably this was owing to the shortness of the notice.

DIMITS.

A number of brethren in various lodges throughout Scotland are not exactly aware of the nature of a Dimit, it best explains itself and a copy is herewith given, the blanks being filled up when issued to a brother:—

"The office bearers and members of the lodge holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, No. do hereby certify that brother (whose signature is annexed in the margin) has, during the period of his membership, conducted himself to the entire satisfaction of the lodge, and has paid all fees and dues exigible from him, he is therefore cordially commended to the fraternal reception of any regular lodge in which he may seek affiliation.

..... R.W. Master.
..... Secretary.

..... IS.....
"GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.
"The foregoing Dimit is hereby countersigned, and confirmed under the seal of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, at the request of the lodge No....
[Seal] Grand Secretary."

DEDICATION OF KING SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

We give to day the following amount of subscriptions, and the subscribers names, towards the purchase of Bro. Ashton's picture. Bro. George Kenning, 2, 3, 4, Little Britain, is the treasurer of the fund. We wish the endeavour to obtain the picture for Freemasons' Hall all success:—

A NEW LODGE IN NORTH LONDON.

We understand that a charter has been granted for a lodge to be holden at the very handsome Literary Institute entitled the Athenæum, Camden-road, N. The new lodge, which has taken its name from the building which is proposed for its place of meeting, is founded, we are led to believe, under very distinguished patronage, and starts on its course with every prospect of a brilliant career. The aims of its founders are sufficiently indicated by the device and motto assumed. Around a bust of Pallas-Athene a garter bears the aphorism, "Sapientia Summa Felicitas." The number on the Grand Lodge register is 1491. The very Worshipful Bro. John Hervey, G.S., &c., &c., is deputed by the Grand Master to perform the ceremony of consecration, and has appointed Wednesday, the 10th June, at six o'clock in the evening, for that purpose, when a very select company—comprising some of the very élite of the Craft—is expected to be present. The new lodge will be entirely independent of the tavern element, the brethren undertaking their own commissariat. It remains but to be added, that the first occupant of the throne of K.S. in this star, now rising in the north, will be the worthy and well-known Bro. Samuel Poynter, P.M. and Treas., Burgoyne lodge No. 902, and for many years past an active member of the Board of General Purposes.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—SORES, WOUNDS AND ULCERS.—Every variety of sore, ulcer, eruption, boil, and carbuncle is safely stopped in its destructive course by the timely application of this healing Ointment. It arrests unhealthy, and substitutes healthy action; thus curing inflamed, irritable, and spreading diseases affecting the skin. Holloway's Ointment has gained an imperishable fame for its faculty in healing old inflammatory sores about the shins and ankles, and for bad legs and old wounds it cannot be equalled; nor is it less efficacious in gathered breasts and abscesses. When the complaint has been of long continuance, Holloway's Pills will expedite recovery if taken in those doses which act as alteratives on the stomach and tonics on the constitution.—ADV'T.

FREEMASONS' LIBER MUSICUS,
Dedicated by express permission to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, Past Grand Master of England and Wales. Edited by DR. WILLIAM SPARK, P.P.G.O., W.Y.—298.

This Work contains 215 pp. and 118 Musical Compositions suitable for all the Ceremonies of the Masonic Order; First, Second, and Third Degrees; Consecration and Dedication of Halls and Lodges; Programmes, Toasts, Songs, Trios, Choruses, &c., for Banquets and other Festive Gatherings; Laying Foundation or Corner Stones; Installation; Mark Masonry; Royal Arch; Masonic Funerals; Voluntaries; Marches, &c., &c.

Notice from the Evening Mail.

"Our Masonic readers are so attracted to the name of Bro. William Spark, the talented musician and Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. In this really great work, now completed, Dr. Spark, has shown his great tact and judgment by completing and compiling for the Masonic brethren a complete library of musical compositions of the choicest English and foreign works, ancient, traditional, modern, vocal, and instrumental, by the best composers. It comprises Masonic anthems, installation odes, dedication music, responses, opening, closing, and intermediate music for all degrees. Thanksgiving, funeral odes, marches, songs, duets, banquet music, programmes, voluntaries, and general musical directions, arranged for voices and organ, pianoforte, or harmonium. "The Freemasons' Liber Musicus" is issued with the concurrence of many influential Masonic Lodges, and under the distinguished patronage and support of the Most Worshipful the Grand Masters of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. It forms a complete library of the choicest and rarest Masonic music, and is indispensable to all Masonic lodges. The worthy brother editor, moreover, has had the valuable co-operation and assistance of the most distinguished and experienced composers and organists, members of the Craft. It is brought out in the highest style of art, is printed from large engraved music plates, and forms a very handsome folio volume of "nearly two hundred and twenty pages." It deserves the patronage of every Masonic Lodge, both at home and abroad, and for its merits alone it ought to be zealously prized by every brother. As a present to a lodge, nothing could be more useful, valuable, and appropriate.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1874.

THE VISIT OF THE CZAR.

We English Freemasons are not politicians, and it never can be repeated too often, or remembered too carefully, that, with politics, quâ politics, we have no concern whatever.

Indeed so careful are we to maintain the golden mean of neutrality, between external parties that we should not allow in The Freemason, political addresses on one side or the other to appear, even as paid advertisements, because such a proceeding would be utterly alien from the true principles of entire Masonic neutrality, in respect of the passing political transactions of the day.

But though this be so, and we trust ever will remain the distinguishing feature and bond of English Freemasonry, there are some events in the world's history which seem to lift themselves above the domain of mere party politics, and which we may fairly deal with, though we be Freemasons, on the broader ground, and with the blameless sympathies of citizens of the world.

Now it appears to us that the visit of the Emperor Alexander II. to this country, is just one of those events in which we all have equally a concern, and which interests us all alike, so much so that, it may be fairly noticed in the pages of our hebdomadal Masonic paper, which is alike cosmopolitan in its teaching, as it is cosmopolitan in its circulation.

And, therefore, Freemasons though we be and proud are we for every reason of being so, and of our good old Order, we hail with an entire people, nay with two great nations, with every expression of gratification and rejoicing, the advent of so exalted a visitor to our friendly and hospitable shores.

For in truth the Emperor Alexander II. comes to us invested not only with that Sovereign rank which as loyal Englishmen, we have been taught to value and revere, but also distinguished markedly by those many and genial qualities of the mind and heart, and person, which lend such a charm to cultivated humanity, and are so strongly prized ever by our English people.

His whole career has been a signal instance, in all his public acts, of earnestness and consideration, usefulness and justice, patriotism and benevolence, united with a singular love of home life and family association, and with an entire absence of needless ceremonial or profitless parade. He succeeded to that mighty empire at a time of great national anxiety which the genius of Peter the Great had practically founded, which the mental powers of Catherine II. had consolidated, and which, despite all shallow opinions and prophecies to the contrary, has continued to grow in greatness and expand power.

On the Emperor Alexander the Second was imposed the solemn responsibility of emancipating the serfs of Russia, and of completing the gigantic undertaking which his uncle and father had initiated, and he has succeeded happily in having his name handed down to posterity, as the emancipator and benefactor of countless myriads of a toiling but grateful people.

Later, by the marriage of his only cherished daughter with a member of the Royal family, the personal interests and national sympathies of Russia and England have been greatly strengthened and cemented.

And we who have lately welcomed as an entire people with one heart and voice the arrival of his charming daughter amongst us, rejoice in welcoming, to day, the father of the Duchess of Edinburgh, and the august ruler of all the Russias! Happily, too, a firm and honourable peace now unites our two great Empires in the bonds of friendly rivalry and civilizing progress.

Time was, even in our own generation, when the two firm friends of olden days found themselves in hostile array.

But now that the loud echoes of war are hushed, and those unbrotherly feelings which war evokes are forgotten, let us hope for ever we, in this country, and with that praiseworthy frankness characteristic of our fine army, and our gallant neighbours, "La Belle France," have not failed to offer our tribute of admiration to the fighting qualities of the Russian soldiers, to the skilful disposition of Prince Gortschakoff, and to the historic fame of Todleben.

And so in this auspicious visit, and at the time when all the feuds of former days are forgotten in the happier association of the present, and with bright anticipation of the future, we offer our humble Masonic welcome, in unison with all our countrymen and countrywomen of every rank and condition to the Emperor Alexander the Second.

In so doing, we believe that we do but express the universal feeling of our ever loyal Order, that we most entirely represent the entire brotherhood to day when we offer our heartfelt congratulations to the Emperor personally, and our most sincere wishes for the well-being of that great country, over which he has been called by God's providence to reign, and which we entertain so many close connections and such important and needful commercial relations.

May the visit of the Czar be one of our happiness and satisfaction to our sovereign himself, of much family enjoyment to the various imperial and Royal Families, of renewed friendship to the Duchess of Edinburgh, and may it tend to unite closer the bonds of society and will between Russia and England, to confirm the peace of Europe and advance the tranquil progress of mankind.

One word more before we close.

Once upon a time Freemasonry existed in Russia, having had its origin exclusively in England, and our English Grand Lodge, I think all went on well, until the introduction of the ceremonies and symbols of the "observance" called "the divisions and cabals, and to dissensions innumerable amongst the Russian Freemasons.

Up to that time, our English Masonic system had received the direct approval of the Government, because altogether peaceable, loyal, and unpolitical, and had attracted to it some of the best names in Russia, as may be seen from an interesting account of "Freemasonry in Russia," translated from "Le Monde Maçonique," and which will appear in the June number of the "Masonic Magazine."

About 1821, as it is well known, all the Masonic lodges in Russia were closed by order of the imperial authority, and have remained so ever since, there being little doubt but, that the peculiar views and teaching of the High Grades, which abroad are ever a cause of dissension, and a cause of weakness to Craft Masonry, had attracted the attention of the Government, not otherwise unfriendly.

Indeed the ceaseless dissensions and cabals of the High Grade Masons, and the divisions which existed in Russian Freemasonry, gave, we feel it right to express our opinion, legitimate cause for the apprehensions and decision of the lawful authorities,

But it is perhaps not impossible that, if Russian Freemasonry could divest itself, were its resuscitation permitted, of those extraneous and hurtful accessories, and revert to its personal simple English form of an entirely unpolitical and benevolent association, many of the old objections to its existence would be loosened and eventually removed.

So we shall hope, that as time passes on, the former Anglo-Russian Masonic system may be revived, with the full approval of the imperial authorities, and resume its peaceful labours, duly intent on promulgating its great and benign principles of active corporate beneficence and charity, brotherly love, sympathy, and liberation for all mankind.

THE ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

We congratulate the House Committee of the Girls' School, and Bro. R. W. Little, on the most successful result of the gathering of Wednesday last, the 13th inst.

Our third Masonic Charitable Festival for 1874, has come and gone with increasing tokens of Masonic sympathy, and liberality. As Bro. Binckes observed, "It seems as if our charitable anniversaries have proceeded at 'crescendo' time since while the trio have produced the large total in all of over £21,000, they have stood respectively at £6,000, £7,000, and £8,000.

We therefore beg to express once more, our hearty felicitations to all concerned in the management of the Girls' School, and in the arrangement of the Festival.

It says something for the energy of the Stewards, and not a little for the kindly liberality of our Order, that this last anniversary was so entirely successful, alike in its appeal, and in its results, and, that, so large a response has been made to the claims of that most excellent Institution, in order to render it still more serviceable to the many applicants for its happy home, and its admirable education.

It seems, that, in a previous article, we slightly underrated the increase of the number of orphans since the last anniversary.

Twenty-eight additional pupils have actually been received, Bro. R. W. Little tells us, since 1873, and with the exception of about ten, or fifteen more at the outside, the present building, we believe, cannot be made to accommodate by any means a larger number.

Let us rejoice to think, that, we as an Order, can boast of so admirable a school, unique in its organization, standing out prominently amidst a host of educational institutions, as remarkably successful, and perfectly adapted to the end in view, a kind and parental training of the young girls, on whom in the providence of God, the terrible trial of orphanhood has fallen.

And with this feeling of pride and rejoicing, of confidence in the House Committee, of approval of the educational authorities, may it be our aim not to relax our efforts, or stay our hands in the liberal support of our Masonic Girls' School.

There is no Masonic charity in which we may feel a more legitimate contentment and pride, and there is no educational institution in the country which has a more abiding and rightful claim on our fraternal sympathy and material aid.

Those, too, who take an interest in the proceedings of educational establishments, will have been deeply pleased with the report of the distribution of prizes by Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, and his kindly Countess, on Monday last, the 11th.

It is most gratifying to read such an account of the result of the labours of the pupils, and to note so much proficiency in every branch of study or emulation.

The girls seem to be thoroughly happy, healthy, and contented, educated with great care and skill, and fitted, as far as friendly human help can fit them, for the after struggles and sterner battle of life.

Let it be a subject of rejoicing to us as Freemasons, that, while many idle and hurtful controversies abound about education, what it is, and what it should be, we have so far practically solved the difficulty by giving to these interesting orphans, as sound, as good, as practical, as valuable an education as can possibly be given under any circumstances. The actual condition of the Girls' School reflects the highest credit on the governing body, on Bro. Little, and above all on Miss Davis, and those associated happily with her, in the active and ever blessed work of education.

The following is from Richmond, Indiana, U.S., and it is certainly a note which deserves to be found and attended to, by the proper authorities, though of course mishaps will occur in all postal deliveries.—Ed.

BRITISH MAILS.—To illustrate the interest taken by the English P.O. Department in mis-sent letters and papers, we would notice, that a copy of the London Weekly Freemason is taken at this P.O., and the No. due here for Oct. 28, 1873, arrived here this week, it having been mis-sent to Melbourne in Australia, 13,000 miles, and then forwarded to New York 15,600 miles, from thence to Richmond—the whole time being nearly six months.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I have read this correspondence with some interest, and think it is a pity these discussions can never be confined to their archaeological limits; the fact that they never can show the bigotry of Masonry, whilst it sets itself up the opponent of such in all other creeds.

We may, I think, reasonably conclude that in ancient times, as now, whilst the mystic nature of the Marks were understood by a few, the mass were ignorant of the signification.

I can show either "Masonic Student," or Bro. Hughan, a Mark ritual furnished to me by the Grand Mark Lodge of England upon which to start the first lodge founded here under their jurisdiction, which makes the odd points compulsory; but to my mind this is the very strongest argument in favour of these writers against Bro. Paton, since it shows the ritual to be a modern concoction, opposed, as it is, to the facts of operative marks.

Few Masons, now-a-days, believe the pretensions of any of the Masonic degrees, and in my opinion the Mark is a spurious Order, not above a century old. The old operative and speculative Masonry (conjoined) gave the Mark with both the first and second degree, as some degrees give stones, tokens, mottoes, characteristics, roses, &c., and the single principle followed seems to have been, that, like Runic or arrow-headed characters, they were to be simple and easy to cut, carve, or engrave. Mystic symbols, when available, were used as now. Other trades, even merchants and literary men, made use of marks in the same way as operative Masons.

It is worthy of enquiry whether the even marks might betoken the 1st, and the odd the 2nd°. The Mark degree, I consider no authority either way.

JOHN YARKER, JUN.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I think that it will be better on the whole for me to withdraw from the discussion on this very interesting topic to myself, who have carefully studied it for years, and leave to Bro. C. Paton the honour of beginning and ending it with puerile personalities.

I have said nothing except in pure self-defence, and when a state of things had been arrived at by Bro. Paton's rejoinder to a purely archaeological communication, in which, to use the words of a very great statesman, he clearly proves that "ignorance was not logic and impertinence was not criticism."

Then it was Bro. Paton told me, as he told Bro. Buchan, that we neither of us knew anything about the matter, that he was in fact alike the only "arbiter elegantiarum," and "doctor dubitantium," and last week he expressed his conviction that I had never even studied the subject at all, or if I had, I had learnt nothing from my studies, and that I had not even read Laurie or Oliver, though why he brings Oliver in I don't exactly know.

It is in vain Bro. Hughan, by no means given to flatter anyone, tells him, on his personal knowledge, that I do understand what I write about. There is, as we know, no limit to "la credulité des incridules." The truth is Bro. Paton has got into a regular mess; he has struck out into deep water, and has hardly yet learned to swim; he has committed himself to a ridiculous position in which he has unfortunately betrayed his entire ignorance of the subject to all true students; he can't advance; he can't retreat; and so being between Scylla and Charibdis, or rather in the "Caudine Forks" of practical evidence and scientific criticism, he follows the example of that ever memorable "representative of an uncurrent 6s. and 8d." To use poor Powers' words, in "His Last Legs," "I have a deuced bad case, go in and abuse the plaintiff's attorney."

And Bro. Paton has certainly succeeded, as a more ill-mannered, childish, petulant, vulgarly written letter, I never perused.

What can you think of a brother who professes to set everybody else right, and who, clearly, has not yet mastered "the grammar" of Mark Masonry, who confounds, in the most beautiful manner, speculative and operative Marks with the sublimest contempt of evidence, and an utter disregard of all the known facts of the case!

Those of us who have paid attention to marks know that Bro. Paton is utterly wrong, and I beg to refer him to the able treatise of Mr. George Godwin, to the opinion of Mr. Dove, that all that Mr. Street has so well said on the subject, and to the clever statement of a Portuguese writer, that so he may realise what can yet be written on the subject itself.

As regards my not knowing the difference between operative and speculative marks, it is just because I do know the difference, and because I have so closely studied the operative marks, that I do object to Bro. Paton making the incorrect statement on the subject that he has done, the only result of which is to utterly mislead the brethren. I would recommend Bro. Paton, in conclusion, the next time he writes upon a subject so dogmatically and overbearingly, to have mastered its first principles, as otherwise he is an utterly valueless, useless "master of the work," and to clear his head at once of what Carlisle has called so well "bottled moonshine," of which commodity it appears to me Bro. Paton at present possesses a superfluous and extravagant amount.

I am, yours fraternally,
MASONIC STUDENT.

TEMPLARISM AND RED-CROSSISM IN EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On reading the report of the opening of a new conclave of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine in Glasgow, I find that Sir Knight Wheeler rejoices in the fact that "his office bearers are not only high up in Royal Arch Masonry, eight being Principals and two Scribe E.'s, but that they are also Knights Templar, three being Past Commanders and two Deputy Commanders. Now I shall be glad if anyone will inform me how it is that the Knights Templar of Glasgow can become active members of the Red Cross degree, when the Knights Templar of Edinburgh threaten their members with all sorts of pains and penalties should they do so, they even refuse to admit a Red Cross man into their Order, unless he forswears his R. C. connection.

Now the Templars of Glasgow must either be acting in opposition to their Constitution, or the Templars of Edinburgh must be taking a position they have no right to hold—which is it?

ENQUIRER.

THE POPE A FREEMASON.

(To the Editor of The Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The last paragraph of a letter from "P.M." has attracted my attention, and I would so far venture to corroborate the writer and his informant, Dr. Leeson, as to say, that, in Italy it is a well known fact that Pope Pío Nono is a Freemason. I quote from an Italian brochure which I purchased at a kiosk either at Milan or Turin:—

"Il secolo era pieno del nome di Napoleone, di militari e d'idee guerriere, Giare maria canto la battaglia d'Austerlitz, e si fece inscrivere nelle loggie de Francmassoni."

This brochure was selling in great quantities. I need hardly say that it is not very complimentary to the Mastai Ferretti, "già Tenente di Cavalleria." I only quote from it, however, to show the assertion current amongst the Italians.

I have also one of the very common photographs, whereon he is represented in a collar adorned with emblems, &c.

There is not the slightest doubt that Freemasonry has been used for political purposes in Italy—hence his present condemnation of it. I should like much to know the date when he commenced his crusade against it. Was it not about 1848 or '49, after the Colonna's death?

I am yours fraternally,

W. M.

Gebitws.

DR. MACKAY'S ENCYCLOPEDIA OF FREEMASONRY, 1874.

I am very pleased to notice the high encomium you pass on the labours of the world-renowned craftsman, Dr. Mackay, and certainly he has only now given an indication even of the extent and variety of his abilities. I presume now he has pretty well fashioned the keystone of his many works, for at his age, and being far from a robust constitution we cannot expect more of such volumes as the "Encyclopædia," which presents within the compass of about one thousand pages the labours for a lifetime of a scholar, a Masonic enthusiast, and a constant searcher after truth.

To my mind nothing equal to it of its kind has ever been produced in Europe or America, and it is impossible to obtain such a mass of valuable and trustworthy (as also interesting) information in any other larger Masonic work besides.

In none can the discoveries and researches of the last three years be found excepting in this grand volume, and in addition to its being a sure guide as to the present condition of Masonic archaeology, it is also a repertory of ancient and modern Freemasonry, comprising the whole range of arts, science, and literature, as connected with the fraternity.

I know of no Masonic work to be compared with this one in a linguistical point of view, and many words which in a symbolical sense have reference to our esoteric customs are most exhaustively and learnedly treated and explained. I should much like to afford the readers of the Freemason an insight into the general character of the work, but its extent is such as to render that almost impossible. As, however, the splendid book can be obtained at the office of the Freemason for two pounds, (or a trifle increase for the extra binding), I strongly advise all Masonic students to procure copies at once, and especially that the officers of Masonic libraries take the opportunity of adding the Encyclopædia to their collections.

Because of the size of the volume I cannot spare the time now to particularize its contents, or to carefully note any of the points especially worthy of selection.

I should like also to fraternally allude to some of the articles about which there is a little difference of opinion, and occasionally I should have to differ from the worthy author, but rarely, and not on any important question.

I am glad to find that so able and thorough a Masonic scholar, as also one of the best informed brethren in the United States, agrees in the main with our views in this country, especially with Bros. Woodford, Lyon, and myself, and with our able Bro. Findel of Saxony. When several have thus for years conducted their researches independently, their united testimony at the present time cannot fail to be worthy of respect and careful consideration.

In Dr. Mackay's Encyclopædia, all the results of modern researches respecting the history of the Craft are very fully described, and the evidence when conflicting is most fairly presented in a twofold aspect, and every opportunity afforded the reader to arrive at a common sense conclusion. The various decisions as to Masonic legislation, and suggestions respecting Masonic trials, are especially of value, and indeed Dr. Mackay is one of the first, probably the first, Masonic jurist in this country, or in America.

On Adoptive, spurious and semi-Free Masonry the work furnishes copious details, and our Rosicrucian friends will find in its pages, many more particulars relative to the obscure mystical and symbolical studies than numerous works of a much more pretentious character.

I shall allude to the Masonic Encyclopædia shortly again, and meanwhile a hope that the few copies sent over from across the "big pond," will soon be transferred to the shelves of the lodge libraries in this country.

From a few odd sheets of the work we take up casually the following, which will serve to indicate the style of the noble volume.

W. J. HUGHAN.

CRUX ANSATA. This signifies, in Latin, the "cross with a handle." It is formed by a tau cross surmounted by a circle, or more properly an oval. It was one of the most significant of the symbols of the ancient Egyptians, and is depicted repeatedly on their monuments borne in the hands of their deities, and especially Pthah. Among them it was the symbol of life and with that meaning it has been introduced into some of the higher degrees of Masonry. The crux ansata, surrounded by a serpent in a circle, is the symbol of immortality, because the cross was the symbol of life, and the serpent of eternity.

CROSS, JEREMY L. A teacher of the Masonic ritual, who, during his lifetime, was extensively known, and for some time very popular. He was born June 27, 1783, at Haverhill, New Hampshire, and died at the same place in 1861. Cross was admitted into the Masonic Order in 1808, and soon afterwards became a pupil of Thomas Smith Webb, whose modifications of the Preston lectures and of the higher degrees were generally accepted by the Masons of the United States. Cross, having acquired a competent knowledge of Webb's system, began to travel and disseminate it throughout the country. In 1819 he published The True Masonic Chart or Hieroglyphic Monitor, in which he borrowed liberally from the previous work of Webb. In fact, the Chart of Cross is, in nearly all its parts, a mere transcript of the Monitor of Webb, the first edition of which was published in 1797. Webb, it is true, took the same liberty with Preston, from whose Illustrations of Masonry he borrowed largely. The engraving of the emblems constituted, however, an entirely new and original feature in the Hieroglyphic Chart, and, as furnishing aids to the memory, rendered the book of Cross at once very popular; so much so, indeed, that for a long time it almost altogether superseded that of Webb. In 1820 Cross published The Templars' Chart, which, as a monitor of the degrees of chivalry, met with equal success. Both of these works have passed through numerous editions.

Cross received the appointment of Grand Lecturer from many Grand Lodges, and travelled for many years very extensively through the United States, teaching his system of lectures to lodges, chapters, councils, and encampments.

He possessed little or no scholarly attainments, and his contributions to the literature of Masonry are confined to the two compilations already cited. In his latter years he became involved in a schismatic effort to establish a spurious Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Rite. But he soon withdrew his name, and retired to the place of his nativity where he died, at the advanced age of seventy eight.

Although Cross was not a man of any very original genius, yet a recent writer has announced the fact that the symbol of the monument in the third degree, unknown to the system of either Preston or Webb, was invented by him. See Monument.

CRUCEFIX, ROBERT T. An English Mason distinguished for his services to the Craft. Robert Thomas Crucefix, M.D., LL.D., was born at Holborn, Eng., in the year 1797, and received his education at Merchant Tailors' School. After leaving school, he became the pupil of Mr. Chamberlayne, a general and celebrated practitioner of his day, at Clerkenwell; he afterwards became a student at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and was a pupil of the celebrated Abernethy. On receiving his diploma as a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, in 1810 he went to India, where he remained but a short time upon his return he settled in London, and continued to reside there till the year 1841 when he removed to Milton-on-Thames, where he spent the rest of his life till within a few weeks before his decease, when he removed, for the benefit of his declining health, to Bath, where he expired February 25, 1850. Dr. Crucefix was initiated into Masonry in 1829, and during the greater part of his life discharged the duties of important offices in the Grand Lodge of Eng.

land, of which he was a Grand Deacon, and in subordinate Lodges, Chapters, and Encampments. He was an earnest promoter of all the Masonic charities of England, of one of which, the "Asylum for Aged and Decayed Freemasons," he was the founder. In 1834, he established the Freemasons' Quarterly Review, and continued to edit it for six years, during which period he contributed many valuable articles to its pages.

In 1840, through the machinations of his enemies, (for he was too great a man not to have had some), he incurred the displeasure of the ruling powers; and on charges which, undoubtedly, were not sustained by sufficient evidence, he was suspended by the Grand Lodge for six months, and retired from active Masonic life. But he never lost the respect of the Craft, nor the affection of the leading Masons who were his contemporaries. On his restoration, he again began to labour in behalf of the Institution, and spent his last days in advancing its interests. To his character, his long-tryed friend, the venerable Oliver, pays this tribute:—"Dr. Crucefix did not pretend to infallibility, and like all other public men, he might be sometimes wrong; but his errors were not from the heart, and always leaned to the side of virtue and beneficence. He toiled incessantly for the benefit of his brethren, and was anxious that all inestimable blessings should be conveyed by Masonry on mankind. In sickness or in health he was ever found at his post, and his sympathy was the most active in behalf of the destitute brother, the widow, and the orphan. His perseverance never flagged for a moment; and he acted as though he had made up his mind to live and die in obedience to the calls of duty."

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

DR. DESAGUIERS IN HIS OLD AGE.
In the "Encyclopedia Britannica" (8th ed., 1857), we are told that Jean Theophile Desaguliers, D.D., was born at Rochelle, March 12th, 1683, and died in 1749, aged 66. After giving a short sketch of his career it goes on to say, "The following lines, of the poet Camthorn, depict the indigence and neglect into which he fell in his old age."

"How poor, neglected, Desaguliers fell!
How he who taught two gracious kings to view
All Boyle ennobled, and all Bacon knew,
Died in a cell, without a friend to save,
Without a guinea, and without a grave."

Now in reference to the above, I would respectfully ask, if any reader of The Freemason can tell us under what circumstances Desaguliers was so left in his old age? This is of all the more interest to us, as Freemasons, seeing the active and prominent part he took in the formation of the Grand Lodge of England.

W. P. BUCHAN.

AN ANCIENT CHARGE.

The following charge was dictated by a very old Freemason, since deceased, to Bro. James redk. Spurr, F.R. Hist. Soc., P.Z., 18, who as sent it to us for publication:—

"Brother—You stand before me a representative of the second birth. Remember from henceforth thyself, and all the twice born, shall live to the newness of life; from henceforth earnest piety and strict moral virtue must be thy end and aim, and of all the twice born, for singly each man born, singly he dies, singly receives the reward of his good deeds, and singly the ward of his evil ones, therefore be earnestly virtuous, for in thy passage from life to the next neither father nor mother, life nor child, kinsman nor friend, can bear thee company, thy piety and virtue alone, if sincere will remain with thee, with piety and true to accompany thee thou wilt traverse a journey how hard to be traversed."

CURIOUS REMINISCENCE OF SCOTTISH FREEMASONRY.

A curious document has just come to light, tending to prove that Freemasons and the Roman Catholic Church were not always at such an enmity, as one would believe from the fierce themas hurled against its members by the Sovereign Pontiff and his followers. It is a list of the brethren composing the original Scotch Lodge of John of Scotland, holding its warrant and constitution from the Orient of Paris, in 1778. Amongst the officers and members of the lodge, who belonged to all classes of society, may be seen that of the Abbé Bartolio, Worshipful Master, and a Rosicrucian; Abbé Robinson, Rosicrucian; Abbé Durand, prior of Entraignes; Master Don Chabriet, Benedictine Friar attached to the Monastery of Cluny, Rosicrucian; and many others. It may also be remembered that his Holiness the Pope, and many of his cardinals, notably Antonelli, are not only Masons, but have worked their way up to the degree of Rosicrucians.

Masonic Tidings.

At a special court of the governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, Bro. Richard Brown, J.W., of the Merchants' Lodge (241) was elected hon. secretary of the institution, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Bro. Captain Mott.

Owing to the proprietors of "The London Warehousemen's Association" having been compelled somewhat suddenly to relinquish their occupation of 33, Gutter-lane, the meetings of the Great City Lodge of Instruction will be discontinued until some other meeting place can be found.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC ELIXIR.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR

Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such false remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which is the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL.
Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," writes: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it cures cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment in this disease."
This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 12s. each, by respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, 34, Scarborough.

* Invaluable should read Crosby's Price Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had gratis from all Chemists.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The last monthly meeting of the session was held at the Masonic Hall, St. Alban's-street, Windsor, on the 5th inst. The W.M., Bro. G. W. Dixon, was supported by a large number of the brethren of the lodge and visitors, amongst whom were Bros. J. P. Carter, J. W.; Denne, S.D.; Crowhurst, J.D.; Herne, D.C.; Strange, P.M., Sec.; J. Wilson, P.M.; L. Bryett, P.M.; Duffield, Baker, Hiscock, Webster, Pears, Christian, Lovegrove, and others. Visitors Bros. Bingham, W.M. 771; Guisebrook, I.P.M. 771 (acting S.W.); Tolley, P.M. 771; Rev. J. Cave, 771; Cantrell, 771; Veal, W.M., Dobie Lodge, and others. The lodge was duly opened and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. After the usual interrogation Bros. Clay and Ferrey were entrusted with the pass, grip, and word, and retired to be properly prepared. On their return to the lodge they were raised to the degree of F.C., by the W.M. The next business was raising Bro. Hawker to the sublime degree of M.M. After some routine business had been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel for refreshment.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Balam Hotel, on Monday the 18th inst., and was well attended by members and visitors. The W.M. Bro. Thomas Poore, opened the lodge punctually at three o'clock in the afternoon and was supported by Bros. Payne, S.W.; Puman, J.W.; H. Huntley, P.M., Secretary; Whitall, S.D.; Trusler, J.D.; Lane, I.G.; R. Huntley, Cole, Dr. Moore, Richardson, Lilley, Broadwood, Broadbridge, Burgess, and Woolfe. Amongst the visitors were Bros. James Stevens, P.M., 720, 1216, and W.M. 1426; G. Neall, P.M., 720; R. N. Field, Burgoyne Lodge; W. Iarber, 1426; Lewis Lewis, 1426; Coe, J.D.; Stockwell Lodge; W. Heffer, Southern Star lodge, and others. Messrs. Biddlecombe and Keart- and, as candidates for initiation, were billeted and duly elected, and Bro. Biddlecombe, being in attendance was admitted to the first degree. The lodge having been passed to the second degree, Bro. Stevens presented Bro. Payne, as W.M. elect, who was installed into the chair of K.S. in a most able and efficient manner by the retiring W.M., Bro. Poore, whose admiration of the beautiful ceremony of installation, was highly appreciated, and called forth expressions of well deserved eulogium. The officers for the ensuing year were appointed as follows:—Bros. Fulman, S.W.; R. Huntley, Sec.; H. F. Huntley, P.M., Sec.; F. Trusler, D.; Lane, J.D.; Burgess, I.G.; Broadbridge, S. Bro. T. Poore, I.P.M., was invited as S.C., and then proceeded to deliver the usual addresses to officers and brethren. Bro. Scotland was introduced and duly initiated by a new W.M., and some business matters relating to the lodge having been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The customary toasts were duly nourished and Bro. Poore, I.P.M., received at the hands of the W.M., a handsome P.M.'s jewel. The evening's proceedings were enlivened by song and recitation, and closed at a reasonable hour with satisfaction to all present.

MANCHESTER.—Du Grey and Ripa Lodge

(No. 1161).—The St. John's festival and installation of the Worshipful Master of this lodge was held at the Corporation Hotel on Friday 22nd inst. Amongst the company present were—Bros. Bowen, Prov. G. Chaplain, East Lancashire; Last, P.P.G.D.C., East Lancashire; Hind, P.M. 204; Parker, P.M. 501; Barker, P.M.; Yates, P.M.; and Allison, W.M. 993. The ceremony was ably performed by Bro. S. P. Bidder, P.M., assisted by Bro. East. Afterwards the brethren repaired to a splendid banquet prepared in the Ardwick Town Hall, presided over by the W.M. Bro. John Hayes, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Bowen replying on behalf of the P.G. Lodge, gave some most interesting incidents of the value of Freemasonry in various parts of the world visited by him. In proposing the toast of "The I.P.M., Bro. John Hinchliffe," Bro. Parker presented him, in the name of the brethren, a very handsome 18-carat gold jewel for his able, zealous, and faithful performance of the duties of Worshipful Master, which was most feelingly acknowledged by Bro. Hinchliffe. At nine o'clock the ladies of brethren arrived, at the invitation of the Master, to a soiree of a most agreeable character, dancing being kept up with much spirit till two o'clock.

WAVERTREE.—Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, (No. 1182).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 20th inst., at the Coffee House, Wavertree, near Liverpool. Bro. J. Watkin Williams, W.M., was in the chair of K.S., and the other members present were Bros. W. Pugh, P.M. (acting as J.W.); J. Thornton, P.M.; S. Cookson, P.M.; W. Woods, P.M. (acting as S.D.); J. A. Edginton, S.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; T. Davis, I.G.; G. Masker, Steward; Peter M. Larsen, P.M. 564 (acting as Tyler, in the absence, through serious illness, of Bro. W. Crawford, the respected Tyler of the lodge); Bros. Smelton, A. D. Hesketh, J. Haslam, S. Lincoln, S. Whitfield, W. Thomason, J. Jones, J. Collings, J. York, D. Norris, G. Bowring, R. Jones, G. H. Samuell, S. Newbold, and J. B. Mackenzie. The visitors present were Bros. G. W. Chirside, 1325; J. Dawson, 1299; G. Wilson, Sec., 1393; and R. Hulme, 673. During the meeting, Bros. Norris, Samuell, and Lincoln, were passed to the degree of F.C., by the W.M., in a most efficient manner, and before the lodge was closed a vote of money for a deserving case of charity was made unanimously and heartily. The brethren present subsequently sat down to a very excellent repast, provided in her well-known style by Mrs. Wright, the W.M. occupying the position of president. A very pleasant evening was spent, toasts and songs being given with great zest.

POTTERS' BAR.—Acacia Lodge (No. 1509).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Railway Hotel, Potters' Bar, on Saturday, May 23rd, 1874. Bro. Frederick Walters, P.G. Steward Middlesex, P.M., Sec., opened the lodge. There were present Bros. R. Limpus, P.G. Organist, J.W.; J. H. Webster, I.G.; J. W. George, S. Budgett, A. Gould, R. P. Tebb, E. W. Collins, F. H. Butten, P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, P.M.; C. Horsley, P.P.G.R., Middlesex, P.M. Visitors, strange to say, none were present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of all the candidates for initiation. Messrs. H. D. Upstone, J. A. Murray, and Charles Paulson, were introduced separately and duly initiated into ancient Freemasonry. Bro. R. P. Tebb, was raised to the third degree. The elections proved unanimous in favour of Bro. R. Limpus, P.G. Org., Middlesex, as W.M.; E. Sillifant, P.P.G.D., Middlesex, P.M., re-elected Treasurer for the fifth time; W. Y. Laing, P.M., re-elected Tyler; and for Stewards to represent the lodge at the Festivals in 1875, namely Charles Horsley, P.P.G. Registrar, Middlesex, P.M., for Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons; R. Limpus, P.G. Org., Middlesex, W.M. elect, for Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; and John Henry Butten, P.G.A.D.C., Middlesex, for Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. It was carried nem con that no more meetings be held at Potters' Bar. Some candidates were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. Refreshment followed labour.

HAMPTON COURT.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—An emergency meeting of this well-established lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court, on Friday, May 22nd, 1874. Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.G. Steward Mid., W.M., occupied the chair of K.S. There were present Bros. J. W. Baldwin, S.W.; J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G. Steward Mid., P.M. Sec.; Rev. A. P.M. Holden, Chaplain; T. Hastings Miller, P.M., Organist; J. S. Sweeney, S.D.; E. W. Devereux, I.G.; S. Woolf, M.C.; Rev. J. M. Vaughan, P.G. Chaplain Mid., P.M.; J. T. Moss, P.P.G. S.D. Mid., P.M.; C. Raab, H. Fajja, W. M. Matthews, E. King, G. A. Blacey, F. A. Joyce, E. H. Thiellay, R. Liebmann, D. Sullivan, G. W. Malim, A. Hartmann, G. A. L. Hohly, W. A. Simmons, M. Underwood, W. Munday, L. Thornhill, D. D. Weinhausen, E. W. Mackney, P.M., and others. Amongst the visitors were Bros. J. Chynoweth, W.M. 4; Captain W. Andrews, 784; C. Cann, 192; W. Hammond, W.M. 1326, P.M. 201, and others. The W.M. in an admirable manner, for force, impressiveness, and correctness, initiated Messrs. S. W. Seldner, M. Underwood, W. Munday, L. Thornhill and D. D. Weinhausen. E. W. Mackney, P.M. 134, took the chair, and in his happy correct style passed Bro. H. Fajja, raised Bros. G. W. Malim, E. King, F. B. Joyce, G. A. L. Hobby, and G. A. Black. The lodge was closed; refreshment followed labour.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—This young and very successful lodge, having completed its first session, stood adjourned until September next; but several highly qualified candidates for admission into Freemasonry having expressed their anxiety for an early initiation, and other brethren being in intermediate stages of the Order, the W.M., felt justified in calling the lodge together on Tuesday, the 19th inst., at the usual meeting place, the Windsor Castle Tavern, Southwark Bridge-road. The meeting was very fairly attended, and the only officer absent was the Treasurer. The W.M., Bro. C. Smith, presided throughout the whole of the meeting, supported by Bros. J. Noke, P.M., as I.P.M.; G. Mattock, S.W.; J. J. Cante, J.W.; C. S. Jolly, Sec.; C. F. Poupard, S.D.; L. Cornelissen, J.D.; W. Ashwell, I.G.; and G. T. Fox, P.M., Tyler. Many private members and Bros. Knox, No. 22; Laing, P.M. No. 45; Farwig, No. 180; and R. Welsford, P.M. and Treasurer No. 548, as visitors. There were four candidates for raising named in the summons, viz.:—Four for the third degree, two for the second, and four for initiation; of these appeared Bros. J. S. Dane, W. Doherty, and G. Plock, for the former; Bro. C. J. Shenton, to be crafted; and Messrs. J. Burgess, of Charing-cross, and A. Vernon, of Finsbury-park, as initiates. The three ceremonies were most admirably worked by Bro. Smith, and his excellent staff, each candidate being separately introduced, and the ancient charge most impressively delivered to the newcomers by the W.M. When the lodge was closed most of the brethren departed, but a few remained, not for the purpose of speechmaking or song singing, but for interchange of Masonic thought, analytical and critical, and the time passed so delightfully that the summons to depart was quite a surprise, the time had passed so quickly. This meeting of the Ivy Lodge and its agreeable associations will long dwell in the memory of those who had the good fortune to be present. The lodge stands adjourned until the third Tuesday in September.

GLASGOW.—St Mungo Encampment met at 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, May 18th, at 3.30, Sir Knight R. Bell, M.N.C., presiding, assisted by Sir Knights J. Tweed, D.C.; J. C. Spears, C.G.; G. W. Wheeler, Recorder, acting Prelate; R. Hunter, C.C.; C. Mackenzie, S.C.R.; R. Currie, J.C.; J. Chatfield, W.; J. Dunbar, 1st A. de C. The encampment having been regularly opened, petitions were read from Comps. R. S. Brown, James Walker, H. Macpherson, and William Bassett, the ballot proving unanimous they were admitted, and be carried out. By appointment of the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. Thomas Wylie, P.P.J.G.W., was afterwards to have performed the necessary ceremonial, but owing to an unfortunate accident he was prevented from being present. His place was accordingly taken, at very short notice, by Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., assisted by Bros. the Rev. F. Goggin, M.A., P.G. Chaplin; T. Armstrong, P.G. Treas.; R. Wylie, P.P.G.D.; and J. Skeaf, P.G.O. A number of brethren from Liverpool were present on the occasion, and there were also representatives from Manchester, Preston, Barnley, Omeskirk, Lytham, Southport, &c. The morning was cloudy and showery, but towards afternoon the weather brightened considerably, enabling the numerous brethren from other parts to enjoy the magnificent promenade of the fashionable watering place. The Blackpool Lodge was inaugurated under the most promising circumstances, and there is no doubt that, with the influential character of the members connected with this the youngest lodge in the province, it will enjoy a most prosperous career, and quickly take rank as one of the best in this part of the country where its meeting place has been fixed.

Shortly before twelve o'clock the brethren assembled in the handsome lodge room, while a voluntary was played by Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., who presided at the harmonium. Amongst those present we observed the following:—Bros. J. Prescott, P.G.J.W.; C. R. N. Beswick-Royds, P.S.G.W., East Lancashire; H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.G. Chaplain; T. Birchall, P.P.J.G.W.; E. Pierpoint, P.G.S.D.; R. Laudless, P.G.S.E.; T. Armstrong, P.G. Treas.; R. Wylie, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; D. Jones, P.M. 155; J. Greenwood, W.M. 308; J. Eccleston, P.M. 703; J. Wray, W.M. 1061; T. Nevitt, P.M. 133; M. G. Manning, P.M. 95; J. A. Orr, W.M. 950; G. Stuttard, P.M. 126; W. M'Murtrie, P.M. 189; Joseph Wood, Treas. 1094; T. Bisson, 1356; C. Haswell, 203; D. Saunders, 1299; J. Busfield, 216; P. H. Bird, 1061; T. Knowles, 280; H. G. Crewe, 1052; J. H. Carr, 1170; W. Stewardson, S.D. 950; G. Bolton, 703; R. Rushton, 703; E. Gregson, 703; J. Grime, 703; E. Bisson, 1356; H. Johns, 703; C. E. Chadwick, 1061; A. M. Viener, T. R. Judson, 1051; E. Diggle, I.G. 126; H. Gardner, 703; R. W. Braithwaite, 703; J. Crossley, 307; J. B. McKenzie, 1366, and others. After the brethren had assumed their proper places the chair was taken by Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., as presiding officer, who appointed his officers, pro tem, as follows:—Bros. T. Birchall, I.P.M.; J. Prescott, S.W.; E. Pierpoint, J.W.; J. Wood, S.D.; J. B. McKenzie, J.D.; and G. Bolton, I.G. Bro. T. Armstrong efficiently acted as P.G. Secretary during the ceremony, and Bro. R. Wylie, as D.C., performed his duties in a manner which contributed in a large measure to the impressive and successful performance of the ceremony. After the lodge had been opened in the three degrees, the brethren took their places to the right of the Presiding Officer. An opening prayer was offered by Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.G.C., and after a piece of solemn music had been played by the P.G.O., the brethren were addressed on the nature of the meeting by the reading Officer. The P.G. Secretary then read the petition and warrant, and after the brethren had signified their approval of the brethren named therein,

Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.G. Chaplain, then delivered the following appropriate and most impressive oration, which was listened to with the most profound attention by the whole of the assembled brethren:—
Brethren, the Temple of King Solomon was erected in imitation of the Tabernacle of Moses, "the court thereof," but with vast and general improvement in the grandeur, riches, and magnificence of it, by the design that David father received from the Great Architect of the Universe. It was a most glorious palace, of cedar and fir, and olive wood and hewn stone, with most amazing expense of gold, silver, and brass, and precious stones, both for adorning of the house itself, and "for the vessels thereof." King Solomon dedicated the Temple to the Most High, by assembling all the men of Israel, by bringing thither the ark, and the holy things, by a devout prayer to God, by music and praises, by a feast of seven days, and a vast number of sacrifices. Every part of the Temple had a symbolic meaning; its porch, its courts, its pillars, its altars, its decorations, and vessels. The services were, moreover, of a typical and symbolic character, and calculated to impress the minds of the most ignorant among the worshippers with feelings of respect, awe, and reverence, for the Great Creator. The highest acts of adoration were accompanied by sounds of many trumpets, the harps of skilful players, and the swelling choruses of a vast multitude of trained singers while the prayers of the faithful ascended to the Great Throne above, with sweet incense wafted from golden censers. Symbolic worship has been used from the earliest times by all nations in their religious rites and ceremonies, but nothing so imposing and gorgeous has been ever seen or heard of in the world's history as the splendid Temple worship at Jerusalem. A Freemason's Lodge is a humble representation of the Temple of King Solomon, and however feeble an imitation it may be it enjoins, by its symbolic teaching, such estimable tenets (founded on the contents of the volume of the Sacred Law), that if Masons will only strive to the utmost to acquaint themselves with its mysteries and ceremonies, they must become better fitted for the society of their brethren of the Craft, as well as better members of the popular world at large. So full of meaning are the symbols constantly before our eyes, that the poorest memory can retain their signification and practice the principles they represent in daily life and conduct. To carry the illustration, further, I need scarcely remind you that the human body has been described as "the temple of the Most High" and as our earthly tabernacle. What more fitting occupation, then, can we have than to build up with care, and protect with caution, that outward part of our manhood "so fearfully and wonderfully made." The teaching of Masonry is a great help to this end. However rough and uncultivated a Mason may be, or however much what the world calls "refined"—be he prince or peasant—he may learn how to guard against most of those errors and temptations which beset humanity. By using the instruments and working tools of the Craft upon the rough projections and irregular angles of his character (until his mind will bear the test of square and compasses, level and plumb-rule, guided by the (divine) tracing-board and plan of operations) he will raise a superstructure worthy of the builder, and fitted for every walk in life. As a pure mind can only exist in a pure body, so the soul must have an abode free from defilement; and the peculiar system of Masonry is such, that were all its members obedient thereunto, morality would be triumphant, and vice almost unknown. Finally, brethren, let us strive to obtain excellence. First of all, our foundation must be laid upon a proper basis, namely, a firm but humble confidence in the Great Architect of the Universe, whose aid we should invoke in all our undertakings. Next, our ashlar work should be of the true die, square nicely adjusted, and cemented with true affection. Thus will mind and body be built up, perfect in its parts, and full of wisdom, strength, and beauty. The roof, like our aspirations heavenward, should be so constructed and ordered, that our eyes may behold the Bright and Morning Star, whose rising brings peace and salvation to the faithful and obedient. Supported by fortitude, chastened by temperance, and guided in all our actions by faith and justice, we shall be able to maintain the fabric of this our earthly temple until time for us shall be no more. A frequent reflection upon the dissolution of this bodily tabernacle will discipline our minds by the line of the skirret, and the divisions of the 24-inch gauge, until death shall lose its terrors, and we can hope for a home in those heavenly mansions not made with hands, but which shall endure to all eternity, for the World's Great Architect lives there and reigns for ever. Let us work while it is day, and while we are in the light, advancing daily in a knowledge of the Craft, and employing ourselves in its operations, until we are all in reality perfect stone-squarers, fitted for the Grand Lodge above, the abode of Him, whence all goodness emanates. Let this be our aim, and to keep within the parallel lines of the path of rectitude ascending by the steps of "Faith, Hope, and Charity." And may the Most High prosper all our endeavours. So mote it be.

Bro. Skeaf's splendid anthem, "Behold, how good," was then sung, and the first portion of the consecration prayer having been offered by the P.G. Chaplain, the lodge was uncovered and consecrated according to ancient form. The whole of the effective music used during the ceremony was the composition of Bro. Joseph Skeaf, P.G. Organist, who presided at the harmonium, and was most impressively and artistically rendered by Bros. D. Jones, P.M. 155; D. Saunders, 1299; C. Haswell, 203, and J. Buswell, 216. The anthem, "Behold, how good," was especially well rendered, and equal praise is due to the "Hallelujah Chorus," which brought the consecration ceremony to a close.

Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., as Presiding Officer, proceeded to instal Bro. Ralph Laudless, P.M. 126, 703, and 1256, P.G.S.B., as W.M. of the new lodge, being presented for that honour by Bro. the Rev. J. F. Goggin, P.G.C., and Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.D.C. After the usual ceremonial in connection with this part of the proceedings, the first Master of the Blackpool Lodge invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. H. Johns, S.W.; R. W. Braithwaite, J.W.; H. Gardner, Treas.; R. Rushton, S.D.; E. Gregson, J.D.; G. Bolton, I.G.; A. M. Viener, M.C.; and J. Waddington, Organist. Bro. Wade was unanimously elected the first Tyler of the lodge.

The charges at the investment of the officers were given by Bro. R. Wylie, and at the close of the installation ceremonies Bro. Alpass said he must remind the brethren of the new lodge that a great trust had been imposed in them by the M.W.G.M., after being recommended by their R.W. Prov. G.M., and he (Bro. Alpass) strongly impressed upon them to strive to warrant that confidence. They commenced their Masonic career in Blackpool with another long-established lodge in existence, but there was no reason why they should not work together in perfect harmony and strive to emulate each other in good works, endeavour to display the principles of Freemasonry—"brotherly love, relief, and truth." The brethren of the new lodge would shortly have to frame their bye-laws and he would strongly counsel them to fix their subscriptions at such a figure as would cover the working expenses. It was not carrying out the principles of Masonry to use any part of the initiation fees, for the purpose of meeting working expenses. This principle was not sufficiently acted upon by lodges, forgetting that initiation fees ought to be devoted entirely to charity. He also cautioned the brethren as to the admission of members into the lodge, especially with regard to applicants for membership from other towns. He had long strongly held the opinion that the town in which a man ought to be initiated was the town in which he was well known. This also was not sufficiently well attended to in some parts of that province not far distant from Blackpool. There might be circumstances in which such a thing became justifiable, but he would counsel them to exercise the greatest caution in connection with such an arrangement. In conclusion he warmly congratulated the brethren of the new lodge upon the auspicious opening, and upon having so worthy and excellent a W.M. as Bro. Laudless to preside over them.

The lodge was then closed, after several propositions for joining and initiation and "hearty good wishes" had been conveyed to the W.M. by the majority of the representatives of other lodges present.

The whole of the furniture of the lodge, with the clothing and numerous et ceteras, was supplied by Bro. George Kenning, of Monument Place, Liverpool, and the extremely artistic character of all his furnishing elicited universal admiration from both visitors and members.

After the day's business had been satisfactorily concluded, about fifty brethren sat down at three o'clock to a very magnificent banquet at the Clifton Arms Hotel, which was admirably served under the superintendence of the manager. Bro. Laudless, W.M., presided during the banquet, but as soon as dessert had been placed on the table he left the room for the purpose of proceeding to Manchester, where his son was lying seriously ill, the whole of the brethren expressing their most cordial sympathy for him in his affliction and anxiety. In his absence the chair was taken by Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Secretary, who completed an admirable day's work by fulfilling the duties of the chair in a most satisfactory manner.

Bro. Alpass, in giving the toast of "The Queen," said her Majesty as far as a lady could, took a deep interest in the prosperity and welfare of Masonry.

National anthem, solo by Bro. Busfield.

Bro. Alpass then gave "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the royal Family." This toast he said was becoming year by year more interesting to Masons. They had known the Prince of Wales for several years, and during that time he had taken the liveliest interest in the Craft. Whilst in other countries the reigning monarch and family might look down with suspicion upon Masonry, and to the best of their ability strive to prohibit its existence, yet in this free country of ours they always had, when the proper age had been reached, some member of the reigning family identifying himself with their ancient and honourable Order. During the years the Prince of Wales had been a member of their Order he had given frequent and abundant proofs of his zeal for the cause of Freemasonry, and within the last month or two they had had another member of the royal Family initiated into their body, who, he was quite sure, would find among the members of the fraternity some of the most loyal supporters of the throne. Although they had amongst them persons of different religions and political opinions, yet as regarded the throne they were unanimous in their unflinching sentiments of devoted loyalty.

Bro. Jones, "God Bless the Prince of Wales."

Bro. Alpass: the next toast, brethren, is the ruler of our Order, "The Right Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, M.W.G.M." I shall not waste your time nor patience by expatiating on his many merits as a Mason. He has received his present high position by the unanimous vote of the Grand Lodge of England for some four or five years, and that he takes a very deep interest in the prosperity of our Order I very well know. I couple with that toast "The Health of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon," an equally enthusiastic Mason, who is always ready to assist to the utmost of his power, and the rest of the Grand Lodge Officers.

Song and Chorus, "When I am on the Sea," Bro. D. Saunders.

Bro. Alpass, in proposing "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M., West Lancashire," said, no one had a better opportunity of observing the zeal and interest of his lordship, and the thorough conscientiousness with which he discharged his various duties. His anxious wish was to do his very best for Masonry in this Province. In a Province like West Lancashire, which included between sixty and seventy lodges, it must happen that brethren would have to wait some little time before they obtained P.G. Lodge honours, and he would recommend the brethren to entertain the same modest anticipations which he (Bro. Alpass) held when a very young Mason, and that was, that some day or other modest merit would be repaid. For a long time he had served the office of the P.G. Steward—many more years than was now the custom—and, at last, he obtained a very subordinate office; but as time rolled on, he obtained office of distinction. Lord Skelmersdale, he could assure them, was too anxious for the welfare of the Province, to pass over any worthy brother when brought under his notice.

Glee, "Prosper the Art," with solo, by Bro. Busfield.

Bro. J. Prescott, P.J.G.W., in responding to the toast, said that any one who came into contact with his lordship in his Masonic capacity, must at once feel admiration for his many talents, and be convinced that he was the right man in the right place. No one, he was sure, would be more sorry than his lordship at his inability to be present at the interesting ceremony that day. He (Bro. Prescott) asked to be permitted to congratulate the W.M. and Officers of the Blackpool Lodge, upon the very perfect manner in which everything had been got up and done that day.

Bro. Alpass then gave "The Hon. F. Stanley, R.W.D.P.G.M., W.L., and the rest of the P.G. Officers."

Song, "When shall I see you?" by Bro. Busfield

Bro. T. Birchall, P. Prov. G.J.W. responded to the toast.

Bro. Alpass then gave "Bro. Major Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W.P.G.M., East Lancashire, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers."

Glee, "Mynheer Van Dunck."

Bro. Bidder acknowledged the toast.

Bro. A. M. Viner, M.C., proposed "The Consecrating and Installing Officer," which was acknowledged by Bro. Alpass.

Bro. R. Wylie, then gave the health of "Bro. Laudless, the W.M. of the Blackpool Lodge," of whom he spoke in the highest terms.

The other toasts were "The Officers of the Lodge," given by Bro. Birchall, and acknowledged by Bro. H. Johns, S.W.; "The Visiting Brethren" given by Bro. Eccleston, and responded to by Bro. Nevitt; "The Masonic Charities," proposed by Bro. Bird, and acknowledged by Bro. Alpass; and the "Tyler's Toast."

The singing of Bros. Saunders and Buckfield, with the assistance of the other musical brethren was greatly admired, and Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O., ably presided at the harmonium.

CONSECRATION OF THE MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489.)

This new lodge was consecrated on Wednesday last, at the hall of Bowles's Metropolitan Benefit Society's Asylum, Balls Pond-road, Dalston. The ceremony was performed by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was assisted by Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., who took the S.W. chair. Bro. H. G. Buss, G. Treasurer for Middlesex, who took the post of Inner Guard, and Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G. Sec., Middlesex, acted as Director of Ceremonies. The Rev. P. M. Holden was Chaplain on the occasion, and Bro. Jones, P. Prov., G.D.C., Herts, acted as Secretary. The musical portion of the ceremony was under the direction of Bro. Limpus, Prov. G. Organist of Middlesex, who was assisted by Bros. Hubbard and McDavitt. Like the other portions of the ceremony, this was most ably performed.

An oration on Freemasonry was delivered, with excellent effect, by Bro. Little. The lodge was fully attended, and there was every prospect of this new addition to the roll of Grand Lodge becoming very prosperous. At the conclusion of the ceremony of consecration and dedication, Bro. W. Stephen was installed W.M., who then proceeded to invest as his officers the following brethren—Elias Somers, S.W.; W. J. Murlis, J.W.; J. C. Walford, Treas.; Jones, Sec.; T. E. Jessitt, S.D.; E. F. Sim, I.G.; Dr. Somers, D.C.; Ellen, Steward; and Gilchrist, Tyler. The address to the W.M. was delivered by Bro. Hervey, and those to the Wardens and brethren by Bro. James Brett. Bros. Hervey, Brett, and Little were elected honorary members of the lodge, and a vote of thanks to them, and Bros. Buss, Holden, Cubitt, Payne, and the musical brethren was ordered to be entered on the minutes for their kindness in taking part in the consecration of the lodge.

Bros. Hervey, Brett, and Little, acknowledged the thanks of the brethren, and then Bro. Jones read out a long list of names of proposed joining members and initiates, after which the lodge was closed till Friday next, and the brethren adjourned to London, where, at the restaurant of the Broad-street terminus of the North London Railway, they partook of an elegant banquet, provided with the greatest taste and skill by W. Higgs, the refreshment contractor at that place. At the conclusion of the banquet, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts.

Bro. T. Cubitt responded to the toast of the "Past Grand Master, the Prince of Wales Earl of Carnarvon, and the rest of the Grand Officers," and in doing so said that the whole of the Grand Officers were always in their place when any work was to be done at Grand Lodge. He trusted that this would be case on Wednesday next, when there were some important questions to come before the brethren.

Bro. John Hervey proposed "Success to the Marquess of Ripon Lodge." He was satisfied that everyone would drink it with pleasure, himself, although it was not at all times possible for us to do what we liked, on this occasion it had been accorded to him to do so. The brethren whom they had chosen for their W.M., a candidate which had been sealed by the Grand Master, was one whom he (Bro. Hervey) had long known as a worthy brother. Good wine needed no bush, and the W.M. was so well-known that it was needless to make a long speech to introduce them of his merits. He would therefore simply offer this toast to the brethren, feeling confident that it would be well received.

The W.M. in reply said that the new lodge was started on a sound basis, and that its future would meet with the approbation of the Grand Master. He felt assured of its success, and it would be one of the best lodges in the metropolis.

The W.M. next gave "The Consecrating Officers," Bros. Hervey, Brett, Cubitt, Little, Buss, and Holden. In speaking of the brethren, he said he was an old acquaintance of his, for a few years since he was in the habit of attending church every Sunday where he used to officiate. He had lost sight of him for some time, but when he did come across him he told him they were going to establish a lodge at Dalston, and requested him to be the Chaplain. He knew he would be a valuable acquisition to the lodge, and that he would be greatly respected in it. He remembered that when the reverend brother left the neighbourhood where he ministered he had a handsome testimonial presented to him as a mark of respect and loyalty, which he was held, to which testimonial he (W.M.), had great pleasure in contributing a mite. Of the other Consecrating Officers, were all so well known that it would save the trouble of saying much about them; but could not propose their health without acknowledging their kindness in performing the ceremonies of the day, more especially when he knew that it was at great inconvenience to themselves that they have attended. He was sure the lodge would be successful, for they were good officers. He himself had never proposed more than four initiates, and he was happy to say that three of those were officers under that evening. They were brethren for whom he had the most cordial and fraternal regard, and he knew they would assist him to the utmost in well ruling and governing the lodge. He had all much to thank Bro. Hervey for, among other kindnesses he had exerted his very much in obtaining the warrant for the lodge.

Bro. Hervey said he had thought that he proposed "Success to the Marquess of Ripon Lodge" to toast would meet with such a reception as that; but he was mistaken, the toast just proposed had not fallen short of the favour with which it was accepted. It given him very great pleasure to participate in the good work of consecrating the lodge, and in embodying the hospitality which the brethren had provided. If in addition to being Consecrating Master he also became the bore of the lodge by obtruding himself upon them frequently, it was really not his fault but somebody else, he would not say who, but W.M. had given him great praise for conducting the lodge. Now, he had not, it was remembered, done it single-handed, but been assisted by those with whom he had times before, Bro. Brett and Bro. Little with whom he should have much pleasure in acting again. Whether Bros. Brett, Buss, Little should be consecrating officers, he always has pleasure in taking the Senior Warden's chair for them; and he would be in mind, but all of them were present at all times, and he would be glad to see them at all times.

always pervade members of the Craft. They sank their rank, they did not for one moment imagine that one was above another; they all sought to come to one great end, and that was to carry out a ceremony well and worthily, and to do that which was agreeable to the lodge they were about to consecrate, and to the brethren with whom they were associated. The W.M. had alluded to Bro. Holden, the Chaplain, who had done them such good service that evening. He (Bro. Hervey) had been telling that brother that he thought he was a relative of his, as his own mother's maiden name was Holden, and the graveyard of Bolton, in Lancashire, was paved with tombstones of the Holdens. He did not know that they really were related in that way, but he knew they were very much nearer in their relationship than this at the present time. He had known Bro. Holden in another place, and he could only say that to know him was to respect him. He had given his services that day with great gratification to the brethren, as well as with great advantage to the ceremony of consecrating the lodge. He (Bro. Hervey) was always glad to be associated with another brother, whose name he had not yet mentioned, in connection with the consecration of the lodge, and that was Bro. Cubitt. In conclusion, he would say that, if he had been put to any little trouble in coming among the brethren, he had been amply repaid for it by their cordiality.

The Rev. P. M. Holden said, he believed he had one very great merit as a public speaker, which was being extremely short in his remarks; and he thought the W.M. would bear him out when he said that, that was one reason why he was so popular in the pulpit. His sermons were always short, and the longer he lived, the more convinced he was that a long sermon was a great and fatal mistake. The W.M. would also bear him out in saying that if, on any occasion, when he had heard him he did not succeed in interesting him, at any rate he was not sufficiently tedious to bore him, and he had not occasion to look at his watch to see when he was going to leave off. It had been a great pleasure to him to be present, and to assist at the consecration of his lodge, a ceremony he had never witnessed before. He need hardly say how much impressed he had been by it, it had been very interesting and effective, and he could not but congratulate himself on having been permitted to take a share in it, more especially as he had found that he had conferred a species of immortality on himself by doing, because as had been told in lodge that his name as a Consecrating Officer would now be known as that of one of the great lights of Masonry along with those of Bros. Hervey and a vote of thanks given to him. He was happy to think that on the very first occasion of attending a consecration he should have the species of immortality conferred on him to which had previously referred. With regard to his only relations with Bro. Hervey that brother said he believed they were not related. Now it was a great mistake because they were brothers, (cheers) and as a brother he very much respected Bro. Hervey. He would mention in thank the brethren for the kind way in which they had drunk his health, but he felt he had done nothing to deserve it. (No, no.) The mention by the W.M. of his name had filled him with gladness, but he could not help saying he would have been unworthy of the position if he had not cheerfully come forward as Chaplain that day. (Cheers.) The W.M. then gave "The Visitors," to whom he expressed his thanks for their attendance, and gave them both a hearty welcome, evening, and a cordial invitation to any meet of the lodges when it got to work. Home (Prince Leopold Lodge) returned and wished every success to the Marquess of Ripon Lodge which the members of the lodge selves could wish it. R. Spooner Hart, W.M. 861, and Bro. et al likewise responded. W.M. proposed "The Officers of the Somers, S.W., replied; after which W.M. then gave "The Charities," expressing his regret that Bros. Binckes and Terry were not present. He, however, was glad to see Bro. Little at the table, who was well-known, not only as a great working Mason, but as a most energetic upholder of the Charities. The only time he (the W.M.) was Steward for one of the Charities, it was for the Girls' School, of which Bro. Little was Secretary. He hoped that the Marquess of Ripon Lodge would always send a Steward to one or other of the Institutions' festivals; and he hoped to make himself a life governor of every one of the Masonic Charities. Bro. Little, in reply said, he felt intensely gratified at the way his name had been coupled with this toast. He had the honour to be Secretary to the oldest Masonic Institution which had commended itself to their forefathers, and was commending itself to the present generation. Sinking himself in that Institution, they would allow him to congratulate himself on having assisted at the consecration of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge. Though a young Freemason he had endeavoured to do his duty to the Craft and to his brethren. It had been the utmost satisfaction and gratification to him to meet them on such occasions as this to greet them as being the precursors of still greater success than hitherto in Masonry. With respect to the Charities he need not say that they were very successful, and they were more estimated and appreciated every day. He believed they would be still more so the better they were known. It was not for him to commend those institutions, because they were known to all the brethren present, but he must say they are alleviating distress and soothing the pillows of the aged and infirm as well as providing entirely for multitudes of the young. As long as he had the honour to be the Secretary of the Girls' School he should endeavour to perform his duties to the satisfaction of the Craft and all who were connected with it. They had a worthy representative of the Benevolent Institution present (Bro. Jones, Secretary), and he was happy to say that all the institutions were working well together. He hoped it would go forth through the length and breadth of the land, and there was no rivalry between them. He and the other Secretaries were all one in spirit, and would continue to discharge their duty. The more they did so the better they themselves would be satisfied, and they felt they could reap their reward hereafter. The brethren then separated.

THE MELROSE LODGE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

So "Masonicus" has been waiting to see how many letters of "the same style" he could despatch with a single shot, and though he has had ample time to study the subject of discussion between us, he either cannot or dare not level his fowling piece to ruffle a single feather of the single solitary bird that has dared to cross his path.

"Masonicus" says that my letters at page 234 "are sufficiently answered already at page 206." I ask "Masonicus" how it could have been possible for him to have answered one of my letters before it was written. I would caution "Masonicus" to be careful how he makes reckless assertions that may lead him into a net, from whose meshes he might find it difficult to extricate himself.

It is unfair in "Masonicus" to persist in misrepresenting me by trying to drag me in, against my inclination, among those who are upholding the priority of Melrose over Kilwinning. Practical Masonry is a more important question with me than the mere age of any particular lodge, and I challenge "Masonicus" to point out to me a single word, in any of his letters, that he can construe into an answer to either of mine.

If "Masonicus" is not able to masticate the small "bone" which I have given him at page 234, without the aid of another to assist him, let him retire in favour of a champion with sounder teeth and less presumption, and instead of indulging in slang ridiculisms I would advise him to study a little logic as a preventive of wandering too far into the labyrinth of entangling "coat tails and petticoats" of "illegitimate children."

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am much surprised in not finding a report in your paper of the meeting and election of candidates for the Male and Female Annuitants at the May election, which I consider one of great importance to Masons and subscribers of your paper.

TEMPLARISM AND RED CROSSISM IN EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Under the above heading, "Enquirer" asks certain questions, which, if his previous enquiries had been of a stricter nature, I think he might have saved himself the trouble of doing.

As he has mentioned my name, I beg to inform him that I have too great a respect for my Masonic O.B., to "wilfully act in opposition to the Constitution" of any Order to which I may have the honour to belong. I fear, when he made his former enquiries, his informant must have been practising on his credulity. Possibly, some Knight Templar, whose zeal may have outrun his discretion, may have become a little jealous of the rapid spread of the Red Cross Order, in Edinburgh; but that the officials of the Order threaten their members with all sorts of pains and penalties if they join, and even refuse to receive a Red Cross man into their Order, unless he will forswear his R.C. connection, is a statement to which I cannot give credence till it is supported by proof substantial by the writer's own signature. The two Orders are not naturally antagonistic, and need not be rivals; true they are both Christian Orders of Chivalry, but there is no difficulty in a Freemason preserving his allegiance to both.

Yours Fraternally,

G. W. WHEELER.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to "Enquirer" in your issue of Saturday last, I beg to inform him that the Knights Templar of Edinburgh do not refuse to admit members of the Red Cross Order of Constantine into their Order or require them to forswear their R.C. connection. There are several Sir Knights who maintain active relations in both Orders in Edinburgh.

I am, yours fraternally,

K.T. and K.R.C.C.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—SORES, WOUNDS, AND ULCERS.—Every variety of sore, ulcer, eruption, boil, and carbuncle is safely stopped in its destructive course by the timely application of this healing Ointment. It arrests unhealthy, and substitutes healthy action; thus curing inflamed, irritable, and spreading diseases affecting the skin. Holloway's Ointment has gained an imperishable fame for its faculty in healing old inflammatory sores about the shins and ankles, and for bad legs and old wounds it cannot be equalled; nor is it less efficacious in gathered breasts and abscesses. When the complaint has been of long continuance, Holloway's Pills will expedite recovery if taken in those doses which act as alteratives on the stomach and tonics on the constitution.—ADVT.

FREEMASONS' LIBER MUSICUS,

Dedicated by express permission to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, Past Grand Master of England and Wales. Edited by DR. WILLIAM SPARK, P.P.G.O., W.Y.—298.

This Work contains 315 pp. and 118 Musical Compositions suitable for all the Ceremonies of the Masonic Order; First, Second, and Third Degrees; Consecration and Dedication of Halls and Lodges; Programmes, Toasts, Songs, Trios, Choruses, &c., for Banquets and other Festive Gatherings; Laying Foundation or Corner Stones; Installation; Mark Masonry; Royal Arch; Masonic Funerals; Voluntaries; Marches, &c., &c.

Notice from the Evening Mail.

"Our Masonic readers are no strangers to the name of Bro. William Spark, the talented musician and Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. In this really great work, now completed, Dr. Spark, has shown his great tact and judgment by compiling and compiling for the Masonic brethren a complete library of musical compositions of the choicest English and foreign works, ancient, traditional, modern, vocal, and instrumental, by the best composers. It comprises Masonic anthems, installation odes, dedication music, responses, opening, closing, and intermediate music for all degrees, Thankgivings, funeral odes, marches, songs, duets, banquet music, programmes, voluntaries, and general musical directions, arranged for voices and organ, pianoforte, or harmonium. "The Freemasons' Liber Musicus" is issued with the concurrence of many influential Masonic Lodges, and under the distinguished patronage and support of the Most Worshipful the Grand Masters of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. It forms a complete library of the choicest and rarest Masonic music, in a word, it is indispensable to all Masonic lodges. The worthy brother editor, moreover, has had the valuable co-operation and assistance of the most distinguished and experienced composers and organists, members of the Craft. It is brought out in the highest style of art, is printed from large engraved music plates, and forms a very handsome folio volume of nearly two hundred and twenty pages!" It deserves the patronage of every Masonic Lodge, both at home and abroad, and for its merits alone it ought to be zealously prized by every brother. As a present to a lodge, nothing could be more useful, valuable, and appropriate.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY,
FROM ITS ORIGIN TO THE PRESENT DAY.

Drawn from the best sources and the most recent investigations.

BY J. G. FINDEL,

Second Edition, Revised, and Preface written by
BRO. D. MURRAY LYON.
One vol., 800 pages 8vo., with an Index. Cloth gilt.
Price, 10s. 6d.

"This book is a strictly historical one, from which all is excluded that is not based upon ascertained or probable fact."—Builder.

"Of its value to Freemasons, as a detailed history of their Brotherhood, it is not possible to speak too highly."—Public Opinion.

"The author seems to have fairly exhausted the subject."—The Athenaeum.

"The edition we are now considering is a second English edition, which had the great advantage of Bro. D. M. Lyon's able superintendence and editorship in its English dress. There can be no doubt but, that so far, Bro. Findel's work is the most complete work on Freemasonry which has yet appeared, and that he deserves the greatest credit for his careful and accurate treatment of all evidence on the subject, and for his honest desire after truth. Bro. Findel gives up in the view he has so clearly and consistently put forth our early Masonic history, the older theory of the Roman Colleges, &c., and limits the origin of Freemasonry to about the twelfth century, and as then arising from the operative Masons, and specially the "Steinmetzen" and "Bauhuten" of Germany. Bro. Findel gives us a good deal of evidence on this head, and one thing is clear from his work, that the German Freemasons were, at a very early period, organized into lodges with a Master over them, and with outward regulations and inner ceremonies peculiar to the Craft. Bro. Findel rejects all the views which have been from time to time put forward of a Templar or Rosicrucian origin. Whether or no Bro. Findel's theory of the date of the rise of Freemasonry be correct, matters very little: we do not ourselves profess to accept it; but this we can fairly say of Bro. Findel's work, it is marked from first to last by the most remarkable token of industry, ability, and care, of patient research, and of skilful criticism. We know of no work which so clearly sets before us our amount of knowledge up to the present time on the great question of Masonic Archaeology, and there can be little doubt that what Preston's work is to English Freemasonry, Findel's work is to cosmopolitan Freemasonry. Indeed no student in Masonry can now dispense with it, and it is a perfect storehouse both of Masonic evidence and Masonic illustrations. We earnestly recommend all the lodges in this country to obtain a copy for the lodge library before the work is bought up for America; and we believe that no Mason will rise from the perusal of its pages without a higher idea both of the historical truth and intrinsic value of Freemasonry, and of fraternal regard and recognition to the latest and not the least well-informed or effective of our Masonic historians. The present century has produced no such equal, in authority and usefulness, to the great work of our Bro. Findel, and we wish him and it, in all of fraternal sympathy and kindly intent, many earnest readers, and more grateful students."—The Masonic Magazine.

"This volume is the history of Masonry par excellence. Every interested person may regard it, therefore, as the present text-book on the subject."—Manchester Guardian

INDEX to Vol. VI. of "THE FREEMASON"
May be had at the Publishing Office, 198, street.

TO FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS.

It is very necessary for our friends to be advised of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America, otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them. Several remain uncredited at the present time, owing to no advice having been received.

The Freemason.

SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1874.

FANTASTIC PROCEEDINGS.

A case has come to our cognizance to which we deem it right, in the interests of Freemasonry, to call attention at once, in the hope, that the stop may at once be put to a proposal, which, if persevered in, must tend not only to the detriment of the Craft in that particular locality, which is most antagonistic to the spirit of the Book of Constitutions and the "lex inscripta" of our Order, and will we think bring the Craft and officers and brethren inevitably sooner under the notice of the Board of Grand Purposes.

We have received a communication dated 12th, from a reputable and respectable brother who has furnished us in confidence with a name, in which we are assured that in the bye-law specified, under the English Constitution, a bye-law has been proposed and carried, that a visiting fee not exceeding three guineas shall be charged, at the option of the brother, on all Masons resident within a radius of three miles, who may desire to visit the more than once, without becoming affiliated.

We should have been inclined to think that there must be some mistake, but the complaint lies before us as we write, and we have every reason to believe it to be a bona fide communication, and we are made acquainted both with the locality and the name of the brother, which is most assuredly to be found in the Masonic Calendar.

The object gravely asserted to be the object of this most remarkable bye-law is, "to keep out any members of the Craft, although subscribing to other lodges, who are obnoxious to the members of the lodge in question."

Now we venture at once to express our decided opinion, that anything more unmasonic more alike in language and more opposed to the feelings of our brethren.

of the lodge itself, never was suggested or propounded.

Knowing as we do so well of what the "staple" of our lodges is composed, we are we confess, utterly astounded to learn, that, any number of brethren could on any grounds, however adroitly laid down, ever be induced to vote in favour of such a palpably unmasonic bye-law.

Indeed we do not hesitate to say, that, in our humble opinion, any lodge which has such a bye-law, deserves never again to be honoured with the presence of any visiting brethren whatever.

Many lodges very properly make their members vouch for the visiting brethren they introduce, and pay a given sum for them if they remain to share in the lodge banquet, which is a private friendly brotherly réunion; but to say, that, all visiting brethren are to pay a certain sum for every visit, at the option of the W.M., is not only to make an utterly illegal claim upon our brethren at large, but exposes the W.M. and the lodge to the inevitable charge, that, they are either utterly ignorant of the common law of Masonic courtesy and hospitality, or are entirely unacquainted with the principles of Freemasonry, or are actuated by some unexpressed but unworthy personal feelings of antagonism to some of the local brethren it is hoped in this way to exclude.

We can only thank our correspondent for calling our attention to these "fantastic proceedings," and express our hope, that, the good sense of the members of the lodge we have alluded to, will induce them at once to retrace their steps, and to rescind so unmasonic a bye-law, before that, such untenable claims and such unwise proceedings become matter of just complaint to the constituted authorities of our Order.

THE MASONIC CLUB.

We have had our attention called to the prospectus of a new Masonic Club, about to be established in London, and we think it therefore well to let the matter be fully known to the Order, through the columns of The Freemason.

It has been very truly observed by a contemporary:—"In a society so widely diffused and of such social influence, it is really singular that no Masonic Club has been yet established. The want has been long felt, and we are pleased to learn that a project is now on foot with every prospect of a happy realisation. It is proposed that a Masonic Club be opened in a central position of the west end. The club being proprietary there will be no liability on the part of the members. Its use will be restricted to members of the Masonic Order. It is intended that the club contain spacious dining, smoking, billiard, and reading-rooms, a well-stored library, and every modern convenience. The entrance fee will be £5 5s., and annual subscription £5 5s. No further liability. Country members' annual subscription, £2 2s. First members admitted without entrance fee. An influential committee will have the control of the club. The following names will be a sufficient guarantee for the respectability and bonâ-fide nature of the undertaking, viz:—The Right Hon. Lord Sherborne, Colonel Dering, Major Whitbread, Rev. A. W. Hall, F. R. F. Banbury, Gordon Campbell, F. Binckes, Major Fowler, W. Paas, Alderman Stone, S. C. Dibdin, E. C. Musson. Many other gentlemen of the first standing in society in London and the provinces have associated their names with this undertaking, the establishment of which, we believe, will be hailed with pleasure throughout the whole length and breadth of the Craft."

Since then we have received a further list of names, including some well-known in the Order, and as we quite agree that in so diversified a society as ours, composed of all professions, a club may be, if well conducted, a great comfort to "many metropolitan and provincial brethren, we hope to hear that the movement has been successful, and that the Masonic Club starts with a good basis of substantial support and adhesion among the numerous members of our Order, alike in town and country.

THE MASONIC MAGAZINE.

Some twelve months ago our enterprising publisher brought out the first number of the Masonic Magazine.

Its birthday has come round, and its number for June completes the volume for 1873-4.

We are induced to call attention to it because, by the kind permission of our Grand Master, his latest "carte de visite" accompanies the June number, and will afford pleasure and gratification to countless loyal Freemasons everywhere.

We congratulate Bro. Kenning on the result of twelve months' endeavour to supply the Craft, with a wholesome literature, and we trust that 1874-5 may witness a largely increased number of subscribers to the "Magazine."

Its very moderate price places it within the reach of all, its literary character is well maintained, its Masonic articles are of a very high order alike of intellect and information, and are the product of the first Masonic writers we have, while its tone is elevating, and its spirit is thoroughly commendable.

Bro. Kenning deserves also the support and gratitude of the Craft, for the great perseverance with which, amid much apathy in literary matters, he has looked forward to a better day of sympathy and appreciation, alike with his endeavours and of his energy. May he find a response to what have been many sacrifices in the enlarged and more general support kindly accorded by the brotherhood to the Masonic Magazine, our only monthly serial, and to The Freemason, which goes all over the world, and is most truly cosmopolitan in every sense, and commends itself to the patronage and sympathy of every Craftsman.

MASONIC FEMALE ORPHAN SCHOOL, DUBLIN.

The annual meeting of this school was held on the 20th May in the Exhibition Palace. Though a generous and continuous support is accorded by the members of the Masonic Order to the school, enabling the Governors to do much good work in furtherance of the noble duty they have undertaken, yet, despite their assiduous care, much remains undone for want of increased assistance. The cause of the widow and orphan is one which appeals to the sympathies of all, and even a stronger and more personal claim has the distress of the little ones bereaved of a Masonic parent to the prompt and liberal succour of the brethren of the Craft. In the annual meeting the Governors find a valuable supplement to the yearly income and a powerful stimulative to renewed effort upon the part of the friends of the school. This recurring reunion has, indeed, become one of the most prominent and attractive of Masonic festivals, and the meeting of last night fully sustained the prestige of the institution, and betokened to the most casual glance the influence and wealth of the Order in Ireland. The beautiful Concert Hall of the building was almost inconveniently crowded by a brilliant assemblage, representative of the most important classes of the community. Many, unable to obtain seats or even standing room within the favoured precincts of the Hall, were fain to content themselves with promenading in the glass transept, and enjoying the music "sweetly discoursed" by the band of the Royal Irish Constabulary. Others availed themselves of the balcony of the transept immediately opposite, to sit and endeavour to hear such portions of the oratory as might perchance reach them, and to observe the charming and rich diversity of the auditorium through a drapery of evergreens tastefully suspended in front of the Hall. Inside the Hall, amidst the gay and fashionable attires of the ladies, the varied and sparkling Masonic costumes and jewels of the brethren, and the general air of graceful luxury which prevailed throughout, no feature appeared more interesting or pleasingly conspicuous than that of the pupils of the female and male schools, who occupied seats on a rising dais in front of the orchestra.

Neatly dressed and exhibiting that intelligent demeanour which, in truth, is the result of watchful supervision and careful training, they were the object of considerable attention and consequent satisfaction. The doors of the Palace were thrown open at a quarter past seven o'clock, from which time the building began rapidly to fill, and until the commencement of the proceedings a selection of music was performed by the band of the 17th Lancers, under the direction of Bro. Herr A. Hartman, and that of the Royal Irish Constabulary, under the direction of Bro. J. P. Clarke. At eight o'clock the Grand Officers and a number of other brethren who had been requested to occupy places on the platform assembled in the small Concert Room, and a procession having been formed, the Grand Master was conducted by it meanwhile from the Leinster Hall to the platform in the following order—the bands playing a Masonic march:—Stewards; Grand Stewards; Officers of Country Lodges, being Governors; the W.M., Wardens, and Secretary of each of the Dublin Lodges; Officers of the Grand Master's Lodges; Vice-Presidents and Vice-Patrons; Honorary Officers and Committees of the School; Provincial Grand Officers; Past Grand Officers; Representatives from Foreign Grand Lodge; Grand Inner Guard; Grand Organist; Grand Superintendent of Works; the Grand Deacons, with their Wands; the Grand Chaplains; the Grand Treasurer; the Grand Secretary; the Grand Wardens; the Grand Sword Bearer, carrying the Sword; the Deputy Grand Secretary, with the Book of Constitutions; the Grand Master; Deputy Grand Master; Past Deputy Grand Masters; the Grand Director of Ceremonies; Stewards.

On ascending the platform, the brethren filed off, according to lodges, and took their respective places as appointed by the Stewards. Following the procession came the pupils of the school, accompanied by the pupils of the boys' school, who took seats on the dais underneath the orchestra. During the evening several of the pupils played a programme of pianoforte music consisting of the following pieces:—Duet, "Overture to Massaniello." Solo, "Will o' the Wisp." Solo, "Le jet d'eau." Solo, "March from Tanhauser." Duet, "Husarenritt." Solo, "Home Sweet Home." The performance deservedly elicited the warm plaudits of the listeners, showing, as it did, very great ability and accuracy of taste and manipulation.

On the chair being taken by The Most Worshipful his Grace the Duke of Leinster, Grand Master,

The brethren present (and the pupils) saluted his Grace "by a running fire of eleven coming down on the third," the time being taken from the Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master.

The proceedings having been opened by the singing of a portion of the hundredth psalm, joined in by the entire assemblage,

Right Worshipful J. F. Elrington, Q.C., read—

The report of the governors for the year ending December 31st, 1873, which stated that the revenue of the school from all sources, including a balance from the previous annual account of £778, amounted to the sum of £3,511 6s. 11d., not any material increase over the previous year. Of that sum £1,621 9s. 9d. had been expended in the maintenance and education of the pupils, and in the necessary repairs and supplies for the school house, as well as the providing outfits and apprentice fees for those who had left the institution during the year. The capital stock had been increased by the purchase of £900 in Great Southern and Western Railway stock, and by the investment of £265 in Masonic Hall shares, and a balance of £747 4s. 8d. was carried forward to credit. The annual subscriptions showed a falling off of £183 10s., when compared with those of last year; and the individual life donations also are less than those of 1872 by the sum of £55 10s., but these deficiencies were, in part, made up by the official life donations, which were nearly double the amount of those in the last year's account, and on the whole the income of the school, including a sum of £250 on deposit receipt, transferred to the current account, shows an increase of £25 on the year. The expenditure showed an increase, arising chiefly from the high price of provisions and fuel. The Governors had completed negotiations for the purchase of a plot of ground on the north side of the schoolhouse; but it had been a matter of much consideration whether, in the event of the building of an enlarged schoolhouse being decided on, should such be erected on the present site, looking to the increase of buildings in the neighbourhood, and the limited area of the ground, even with the addition thus secured. One of the pupils (Emma Walsh, aged 13) died during the year of rapid decline; and another (Maude White) was in delicate health; but with these exceptions the health of the pupils during the year has been satisfactory. No change in the educational department had taken place since the last report, except the appointment of one of the senior pupils, Lizzie G. Williams, as pupil teacher—an arrangement which promised to work satisfactorily. The progress of the children in their studies has been good. During the year nine girls were elected, but of these only six had as yet been admitted in consequence of the crowded state of the schoolhouse. During the same period three girls in addition to the one appointed pupil teacher, had been provided with situations; one had been returned to her mother, and one had been removed by death as above stated. The report concluded with a graceful reference to the loss which the institution had sustained by the death of Bro. Edmund R. Digges La Touche, who for many years filled the office of honorary secretary of the institution.

Bro. the Right Worshipful Lord Plunket, who was received with loud applause, said:—I have the honour of moving the following resolution—"That the report now read be adopted, printed, and circulated, and that the thanks of this meeting are due to the members of the several committees of the institution, and also to the medical officers of the school, for the zealous and efficient manner in which they have discharged the duties devolving upon them, and for the lively interest they manifest in everything conducive to the prosperity and progress of the pupils of the Masonic Female Orphan School." I must remember that this is a meeting for the distribution of prizes, and not for making speeches, and therefore I will try and follow the good example generally set by your Grace, and detain the meeting here as short a time as possible by my remarks. It is now, I think, just eleven years since I had the honour of moving a resolution in the very same words as those which I have just read. I had only then been very recently made a Mason, and I took the opportunity of stating the reasons which had induced me to join the Order, and the advantages which I hoped to obtain from connecting myself with that ancient and honourable brotherhood. Eleven years have now passed, and I can truly say that my expectations have not been disappointed. My experience has taught me that the Masonic Order is not merely an institution established for the purpose of initiating its members into certain mysteries which they have the privilege of keeping secret from all, even from the importunity of their wives; how great that privilege is I leave it to the married members of my order to confess. Nor is it an institution which gives us merely an opportunity of displaying or airing our oratorical powers in our respective lodges, or of exercising our gastronomical powers at our feasts; it is something more, I am happy to say. It is an institution, as my experience teaches me, for bringing together in loving bonds of social union men of different opinions and creeds and views and tastes and feelings, making them to love one another daily more and more as brothers. It is an institution which above all brings us together upon the common platform of Christian charity, and which teaches us all, as this meeting does, to do that which the blessed book that was carried before us in procession this evening, the symbol and emblem of what our lives should be and the standard beneath which we should never lower our aspirations, to do what that blessed book tells us is the great element of pure and enlightened religion, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to support them in their distress. Upon the same occasion I had also to ask the meeting to return their thanks to those who during the past year had acted upon the various committees of this excellent institution, the Masonic Female Orphanage, and dwelling as I did then upon what appeared to me the anomalous duties of those gentlemen who had to act on committees, I claimed from the meeting an unanimous response, and received it. Now eleven years have passed, and for my own part, though I have attended innumerable committees during the interval, I have not found them one whit more pleasant than they were then. Let me say here openly, I hate committees, I consider it even a more trying ordeal to be summoned to a committee than to be invited to an afternoon tea, and that, as a friend near me observes, is saying a good deal. But then if you go to an afternoon tea you may hear good music, or you may converse with some of your friends, and if they are disagreeable you may go up to your hostess, make some complimentary remarks, go down stairs, take your hat and coat, if somebody else has not done that before you, and go home to your wife, whereas if you go to a committee you have to listen to some gentlemen uttering dry platitudes, about the election of a new Secretary, and if you think his remarks are rather tiresome, and begin to speak to a friend, you are called to order, and if you take up your hat and go out in despair, you go under the ban of general disapprobation, and feeling that you have been guilty of a dereliction of duty. Therefore I say that really an afternoon tea is better than a committee. However, committees are necessary evils, and all one can do is to tender our thanks to those who, at such self sacrifice, take upon themselves the arduous duty of attending them. And now, since you have so heartily responded to that, there is one point more which I must not omit bringing before you, that among the committees connected with this institution, there is a ladies' committee. I know that a poet has said that men must work and women weep, and I remember one man being so profane as to interpret that thus: "Men must work and women talk;" but for my part a more atrocious calumny on the fair sex I never heard. What greater proof of that could there be than the fact that to the ladies' committee is owing very much of the present successful condition of the institution. They are the workers, and now I, poor humble man, am the talker. But you will, I am sure, properly appreciate their labour. That response shows that you agree with me in thinking that we are under obligations to the ladies, and it would be a piece of monstrous superfluity to prove a foregone conclusion. I will merely conclude by moving the resolution I read, and by asking you, after it is seconded, to adopt it with acclamation.

Bro. the Right Worshipful Edward Hudson, Kinahan, D.L., High-sheriff of the county Dublin, and representative of the Grand Lodge Virginia, in seconding the resolution, testified to the excellent manner in which the schools had been conducted during the past year, remarking that he did so after frequent personal observation.

The resolution was then put, and adopted amidst applause.

Bro. George Woods Maunsell proposed the second resolution, as follows:—That whilst acknowledging with gratitude the liberal support and assistance which the Masonic Orphan Schools have hitherto experienced, the Governors would earnestly invite the co-operation of the brethren in order still further to extend the usefulness of these institutions." He might ask this magnificent meeting which was gathered around them, he might ask the distinguished members of the Order of which he had the honour to be an humble member, what was the cause of their assembling here to-night, if it were not through the medium of such a meeting to extend the usefulness of the Order. He had heard such meetings as this made little of, as if they had no value or importance in promoting the objects of this great and noble institution. They were met here for many and valuable objects. They were met, first to render an account to the subscribers to the institution of how their money had gone, and how the institution had prospered; they were met here to enlist recruits for the institution; they were met here to carry forward into the future the blessings which it had so far extended and they were here—as he had heard it stated—to add bricks to the temple which had already been built. He thought he might congratulate the Order upon the benefits which had been hitherto achieved. It was happily said by the present Prime Minister at one of his orations, he thought at Glasgow, that now-a-days men liked to become their own executors. Men liked to see the value of these institutions, which at other times were only carried out in intention during life time, and were left to executors to be fulfilled. Now a new principle was introduced, and men were found in the length and breadth of the land devoting in their lifetime the sums which Providence had placed at their disposal, to create and extend institutions which carried blessings to all around them. He hoped that among those who heard him there were some who might become their own executors in the extension of this school, so that the wish of the governors might be realized, by increasing the number of pupils from 40 to 70. Let them hope that the governors would soon be able to carry out their intentions of placing the institution in such a position that no brother leaving a family unprovided would feel there was a difficulty about getting them a home and education; that they would be placed over them those who would train them, and who would feel they had more beings to discipline, and souls to save. So long as there was a large class in the world who must eat the bread of industry on the condition of good behaviour, so long would cases arise that called for the support, the protection, and the assistance of the brethren he saw around him. Let them hope that that assistance would be given, and the usefulness of the institution extended either by building an addition or planting the institution on a larger space.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Vice-Chancellor, in seconding the resolution, said, as he had served on committees, the labours of which had been depicted as so irksome, and for more years even than Lord Plunket had mentioned, he would venture to bring before them some facts which he asked their serious attention. The income, as stated by their Secretary, consisted of annual subscriptions this year of £800. This presented a diminution from last year of £18.

That was not as it ought to be, and called upon them to bring before them more energetically the resolution he was now speaking to, so that they should not again have to make such a statement to any annual assemblage in the future. But he had to tell them, in addition, that their house, which afforded accommodation barely for the number of 38 inmates, was crowded at present to the extent of 40 inmates—two over the maximum accommodation. And not only that, but they had been obliged to give up the half-yearly election, which generally took place in the ensuing month of June, through having admitted several pressing cases to the number of six, at the December meeting, which caused the number to be too great for the accommodation they were able to afford. He therefore called upon the brethren and friends assembled here to exert themselves more than they had hitherto done, and to prevent the Governors again coming before them with such a statement. He trusted to the liberality of the Order—he could hardly call it the liberality, but the discharge of the common duties of Masonry—to enable them to extend the accommodation to the number which the Order peremptorily demanded. He should be ashamed if they could not do this, and admit every pressing case, and he would call upon them to extend the accommodation to sixty if not to seventy inmates. He asked them to look upon the children brought before them, having listened to their performances, and judge for themselves whether the school was deserving of the support of the Order.

The resolution was put and carried.

This terminated the proceedings in the large Concert Hall, and the procession of the brethren to the platform having re-formed, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master was conducted from the room to a dais erected at the upper end of the glass transept. On reaching this point the officers of the several lodges represented fell back, right and left, forming an avenue through which the pupils were conducted to his Grace, at whose hands were presented—with graceful and appropriate remarks—the various prizes, medals, and certificates awarded at the last annual examination. At these the following brethren acted as examiners:—

William T. Wilkinson, Esq., of the Church Education Society; W. A. Hunter, Esq., of the National Board of Education; Rev. Benjamin Gibson, Professor Prospero Belio, and Francis Quin, Esq., Past Grand Organist. The following is a list of the prizes awarded:—

First Class.—Mary Barnett, Anna M. Copeland, Jane S. Andrews, Margaret Knight, Maud White, Grace Harte, Kate M'Nally, Phoebe Shegog.

Second Class.—Mary H. Armstrong, Minnie Burdge, Emma J. Hendley, Emilie Christian, Gertrude L. Gill, Frances Smith, Jessie Wallace, Frances Shields.

Third Class.—Lilly Bradshaw, Christabella Knight, Helen Perry, Louisa M'Mullen, Edith Anketell, Kate Sayers, Alice Richards, Emily Wigmore, Kate Lowry.

Fourth Class.—Kate Wilson, Emily Little. The Fennell Prize, value £3, was awarded to Anna Matilda Copeland, a pupil in the First Class, on very superior answering. The Astley Prize, founded in memory of the late Charles D. Astley, Grand Superintendent of Works (in two divisions), were given, the first, value £2, to Anna Matilda Copeland; the second, value £1, to Maud White. In the Second Division, for French, the First Prize, value 25s., was awarded to Maud White, and the second, value 15s., to Anna Matilda Copeland. The Good Conduct Medals presented by Bro. Oldham, Assistant Secretary (and which was awarded by the vote of the pupils), were won by Maud White and Maggie Knight.

The following prizes were then awarded to the pupils of the Masonic Boys' School, who had been successful on the occasion of the last annual examination:—

First Class.—James B. Brett, Alexander J. Semple, John King Irwin.

Second Class.—George A. Du Noyer, Francis A. Fraser, Edward B. Atkins, Henry G. Willson, George Faris, Robert A. Robertson, John Sayers. The Astley Silver Medals, for the highest marks during the year in English, mathematics, and classics, were all three this year carried off by James B. Brett. The Good Conduct Silver Medals, presented by Bro. Oldham, were awarded by the vote of the pupils themselves to James B. Brett, in the first class, and to Robert G. Warren in the second class.

For a very considerable time, after the business of the evening had concluded, the halls were thronged by the company, excellent promenade music being supplied by the bands already mentioned.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

A Quarterly Communication was held at Freemasons' Hall, Sydney, on Monday, the 19th day of January, 1874. Present:—R. W. A. T. Hdroyd, District Grand Master, in the chair; V. W. Ernest O. Smith, Deputy District Grand Master; W. F. Senior, P.D.G.S.W., as Senior District Grand Warden; W. G. Cassidy, Junior District Grand Warden; Rev. W. Beg, M.D., L.L.D., District Grand Chaplain, J. R. Thackeray, M.A., District Grand Chaplain; W. W. H. Simpson, District Grand Treasurer; Henry Westcott, District Grand Registrar; Richard Leworthy, District Grand Secretary; W. Webster, Senior District Grand Deacon; Ryall, as Junior District Grand Deacon; A. Gray, District Grand Assistant Director, of Ceremonies; J. R. Elliott, District Grand Supt. Works; Henry Harper, District Grand Sword Bearer; G. Merrett, P.S.D.G.W., as District Grand Pursuivant; S. A. Delissa, District Grand Tyler.

The District Grand Lodge was opened by the R. W. District Grand Master in due form.

The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 20th October were read and confirmed.

The District Grand Master invested Bro. the Rev. J. R. Thackeray, with the collar and jewel of District Grand Chaplain, and said he had much pleasure in doing so, more especially as that brother belonged to a country lodge, because he desired to show that those brethren of the country lodges who could and would take office would have every opportunity of doing so whenever circumstances permitted.

A letter was read from the Grand Secretary, dated 18th October, forwarding the Warrants granted by the M.W.G. Master to the Doric Lodge, No. 1450, Hill End, and the St. John's Lodge, No. 1451, Mudgee.

The District Grand Master stated he had received a petition from certain brethren at the Tumut, for a dispensation to open a lodge in that locality, to be called the "Tumut Unity Lodge;" he had granted the prayer of the petitioners, and the warrant of dispensation had been issued and forwarded to form and work the new lodge.

The District Grand Secretary read the report of the meetings of Committee of Benevolence since last communication, with the names of applicants for assistance, and the several amounts voted, amounting to £31.

The District Grand Secretary stated that no meetings had been held of the Orphan Society or Board of General Purposes.

The District Grand Treasurer stated the balance to credit of District Grand Lodge was £126 19s. 5d.; Benevolent Fund £449, 9s. 5d.; Orphan Fund £45 10s. 5d., exclusive of £700 invested in Government Debentures, and shares in Freemasons' Hall, the value of the latter being doubtful.

W. H. Simpson, D. G. Treasurer, read and moved the motion standing in his name on the Agenda Paper—"That the fee payable to District Grand Lodge for every initiation shall be £1, such payment to include Grand Lodge Certificate for the brother initiated." He was aware some years ago the practice among lodges was not to include the certificate in the fee charged at initiation, leaving that to be paid by the brother when he applied for it. Lodge No. 390, to which he belonged, did so till lately; they had now altered the Initiation Fee so as to include the payment for the certificate. The Grand Lodge required the full fee on the registration of every brother.

The better way for the future would, therefore, be for lodges to make their returns quarterly, in the same way as the Benevolent and Orphan Funds; it would be more advantageous to both the District Grand Lodge and the lodges themselves.

The District Grand Master said the fees for certificates should, with as little delay as possible, be handed over to District Grand Lodge.

Bro. Ryall, P.M. 556, said he would second the motion if the mover would consent to a slight alteration he proposed to make, viz., "That the fee on the initiation of every candidate shall be £1, such payment to include registration in the books of the Grand Lodge of England, and Grand Lodge Certificate for the brother initiated, the fees to be paid quarterly to District Grand Lodge." This, he thought, would be the best course to pursue, and would facilitate the registration of the brother. By the Book of Constitutions, every brother was entitled to have his name returned and to obtain his certificate.

The Deputy District Grand Master quoted the Law No. 1, page 89, in Book of Constitutions, and said that every lodge was bound to obtain a Grand Lodge Certificate for a brother initiated therein.

Bro. Booth, P.M. Lodge 392, inquired whether a brother could obtain a certificate other than for the Third Degree.

Bro. Elliott, District Grand Supt. of Works, asked whether a brother after he had completed his three degrees had a right to his certificate.

The Deputy District Grand Master said, the Book of Constitutions required every brother to take up his certificate. If necessary he could have a certificate for each degree without any extra expense.

Bro. H. Harper, District Grand Sword Bearer, said he had given a brother his third degree who had received the first and second elsewhere, and on another occasion had given the second and third degrees to a brother in like manner.

Bro. Simpson having consented to the amendment, the District Grand Master put the motion as amended, which was carried.

Bro. Cassidy, J.D.G. Warden, moved the motion standing on the paper in his name—"That the sum of £20 be voted from the funds of District Grand Lodge towards defraying expenses of painting and decorating lodge-room."

Bro. Westcott, D. Grand Registrar, seconded the motion.

Bro. Booth, P.M. Lodge No. 390, moved as an amendment—"That the sum of £25 should be voted." The brethren of the Furnishing Committee had taken great trouble, and large expenses had been incurred, and the room had a very handsome appearance. He thought that the District Grand Lodge on an occasion of this kind should be liberal.

The Deputy District Grand Master said he seconded the amendment. He thought the District Grand Lodge could well afford the amount, and should vote the largest sum in order to set the lodges a good example.

In reply to an inquiry, D.G. Treasurer said, the cost, he understood, would be £132.

Bro. Ryall, P.M. No. 556, supported the amendment, and said the Sydney Lodges alone should bear the cost.

Rev. Bro. Beg also supported the amendment.

The District Grand Master said, that the manner in which the room was decorated was handsome and neat, and very creditable; he had visited the lodge rooms several times while the work was in operation, and he now considered the room very comfortable, and he fully approved of what had been done. The lodges, he was happy to say, were progressing favourably, and the District Grand Lodge was in a prosperous condition.

The amendment was carried.

B. Webster, S.D.G. Deacon, stated, as President of the Benevolent Fund, that he had been requested to bring under the notice of District Grand Lodge the large amount of arrears (£25) owing by Lodge No. 937 to the Benevolent Fund.

The D.G. Treasurer said this lodge was over three years in arrears to the Benevolent Fund, and he thought, in justice to other lodges, these arrears should be paid.

After some further remarks by other brethren the subject was allowed to drop.

The Rev. Bro. Thackeray returned thanks for the honour conferred on him by his appointment and investiture as District Grand Chaplain. He regretted very much that he had been unable to attend sooner, he had started from Maitland on two occasions, on one of which the steamer had to put back. He trusted he should be able to attend regularly in future. He might mention that the Unity Lodge, 547, of which he was a member, was strong in numbers, and had among its members a large majority of the most influential gentlemen of the Hunter district.

The Deputy District Grand Master said he had received a letter from Bro. Blau, of Hunter-street, wishing him to bring under the consideration of the brethren the great distress prevailing in Hungary through the ravages of cholera, and soliciting on behalf of the widows, orphans, and others, assistance. He read Bro. Blau's letter, also an extract from one he received, fully bearing out his statements. The D.D.G. Master very forcibly urged this matter on the attention of District Grand Lodge, and said great misery, distress and want were caused by the ravages of cholera, which had raged so terribly; that there was hardly a house or family where there was not a death therein, and great grief and suffering of course the result; he trusted, as the District Grand Lodge had means, a sum of money would be voted this evening, as he felt sure it could not be better applied, it would tend to prove to our poor distressed Hungarian brethren that distance did not weaken the Masonic bond by which we are embraced.

Bro. Simpson, D.G. Treasurer, said he was sorry he must object to voting money without notice for such a purpose, as it was contrary to their rules to vote money until after due notice. In this case he believed neither he nor any of the brethren present had ever heard of the distress said to prevail in Hungary, a country of which they knew or heard so little at any time.

The Rev. Bro. Beg thought we might do as asked when the objects of our sympathy were so far away.

Bro. Booth, P.M., Lodge 390, said he objected to the money of District Grand Lodge being voted for any such purpose. He considered this a matter for private subscription, and if one was opened he would very willingly put his name down.

The business being concluded, the District Grand Lodge was closed in due form at 9.30 o'clock.

Bulwark in Parado, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

MARK MASONRY.

I am glad to notice a communication from Bro. Yarker, in to-day's Freemason, respecting the choice of marks by our operative brethren, and pleased to see he confirms the statement made by "Masonic Student" and myself, that these marks consist of even and odd points, according to the fancy of the Masons who made them.

That this is but the reiteration of an archaeological fact well-known to all students of the subject, must be patent to anyone who will take the trouble to examine certain old buildings, both at home and abroad, or who will consult the pages of that magnificent book lately issued by Messrs. Blackwood & Sons, Edinburgh, containing the history of the Lodge "Mary's Chapel," from 1599, by my friend Bro. Lyon. The regulation alluded to by Bro. Yarker as having been in force amongst Mark Master Masons under the English Constitution, was rescinded by the Mark Grand Lodge, on the 14th December, 1864. On referring to a report of the proceedings, I find that the "General Board," on "representations received from the Camarvon Lodge, No. 7, and other lodges, recommending the abrogation of the regulation confining the selection of marks to figures comprising any specified numbers of points or lines."

The R.W. Bro. W. W. Beach, M.P., concurred on the policy of the alteration. An examination of the ruins of ancient buildings, on the stones of which the marks of the artificers were found, proved that "no such regulation as that enforced under this rule existed." The Vice-President moved that the alteration be agreed to, and Bro. Colonel Cole, C.B., seconded it, and the proposition was carried unanimously.

I do not quite understand what Bro. Yarker means by saying that "few Masons, now-a-days, believe in the pretensions of any of the Masonic degrees, and, in my opinion, the Mark is a spurious Order, not above a century old." Bro. Yarker's "Speculative Freemasonry" should be consulted on the subject.

Were I discussing the antiquity or Masonic character of the "Mark Degree," I should be inclined to elucidate the probable meaning of the foregoing, but, so far, the inquiry has had reference mainly to operative Masonry, and the more the correspondence is limited to the original object the better. It would be well, also, if the editor expunged all references of an offensive, or "personal," or abusive style from the communications sent for insertion in The Freemason.

I hope this inquiry will have the effect of inducing our able brother "Masonic Student" to drop his "nom de plume," so that his valued contributions may have the full weight that his name (if known) would confer upon them.

MacGrath, J. R. Scott, 801, E.C., Comps. W. H. Burgess, jun., D. Lewis, Chapter 536, E.C., and all subscribing installed Past Masters of contributing lodges who shall pay a subscription of not less than 10s. 6d. per annum to this fund.

The object of this institution is to assist aged and distressed worthy brethren of the Ancient and Honourable Order of Freemasonry, and to afford relief to their Widows and Orphans.

The annual meeting of the Committee was held on the 28th of January, when the officers and committee for 1874 were appointed, and the financial statement and balance sheet unanimously adopted, copies of which the committee circulated amongst the members of the Order generally, and the contributors to the fund in particular.

The statement of receipts shows that the income from all sources in 1873 amounted to £7 15s. 6d., being £17 1s. in excess of the previous year.

The total payments for education, gratuities, &c., for the same period was £42 17s. 2d., an increase of £24 11d., over the amount paid in 1872. The disbursements for printing, &c., amounted to £1 15s.

The balance sheet shows amount of cash to the credit of the fund £62 17s. 7d., and £220 invested in 6 per cent Debentures.

The Committee has much pleasure in congratulating the Order on the present highly satisfactory state of the fund, and tenders its grateful acknowledgements to the donors, and individual subscribers, and especially to the lodges and chapters, for the handsome amounts voluntarily contributed during the past year.

In conclusion the Committee cannot refrain from again urging on the W. Masters and Officers of the lodges the desirability of keeping the objects of the institution prominently before their members, bearing in mind that its object is not only to relieve Lodge Funds, and individual brethren, from the necessity of aiding the distressed worthy Mason, but by careful enquiry to protect the Order against imposition by unworthy members.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The General Committee of Grand Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, at Freemason's Hall. Bro. J. M. Clap President, Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior V. President, and Bro. James Brett, Junior V. President, occupied their respective places. There were also present, Bros. John Her Grand Secretary; J. A. Rucker, John S. Hadley, C. A. Cottebrune, Colonel C. Conrad C. Dumas, N. Bradford, J. B. Morton, John Emmens, T. Cubitt, and a full list. The sum of £385 in all was voted to deserving objects of benevolence.

At the Board of Masters, the M.W.G. gave notice that he would move at next Grand Lodge, that Grand Lodge give £500 to the Bengal Famine Fund. The report of the Board of General Purposes read, in the report were contained recommendations for a revision and increase of salaries of all the officers in Grand Secretariat office. Notice was given of a motion to contribute £70 to the asylum for the aged at Croft for coals; and Bro. W. Smith gave notice of a motion that all Masters of lodges should have access to the Board of General Purposes to make suggestions. At this Board there were nominations of members for the Board of General Purposes, the Colonial Board, and the Masonic Annuity.

TRAMORE. TRAMORE. TRAMORE.

COUNTY WATERFORD, IRELAND.

THE GREAT HOTEL.

The Great Hotel at Tramore is the only first-class Hotel on the Southern Coast. It commands a magnificent view of the bay and surrounding country.

Tramore Bay and Strand (the latter is 4 miles long), is said to be the finest in the world. Intending tourists to Ireland will find Tramore worthy of being known as a watering place. Its advantages are a delightfully mild climate, splendid bathing, yachting, boating, and a modern hotel, conducted on the most approved principles, and the most moderate of any similar house in the kingdom.

Bro. James Hearne, R.A. 64 and 196, Proprietor.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The Quarterly Communication to Grand Lodge of England was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. The Marquess of Ripon, M.W.G.M., presided. Lord Tenterden occupied the G.S.W. chair, and Colonel Whitwell, the G.J.W. There was a large attendance of brethren from various lodges, and a great number of Past Grand Officers.

The minutes of Quarterly Communication of March and of Grand Festival having been read by Grand Secretary and confirmed, the Scrutineers of votes for members of the Board of General Purposes and of the Colonial Board were selected and obligated, and the election then took place. When the voting papers had been collected and the scrutineers had retired,

The M.W. G.M. rose and said, I now rise for the purpose of submitting to you the motion which stands in my name upon the paper, and I am quite sure that so far as the object to which I am about to ask you to make a contribution, is concerned, it will need no words of mine to recommend it to your charitable feelings. For brethren, you have had brought before you, month by month, in the public journals, the full descriptions, first of what was likely to happen and then of what was actually happening in the great British possession of India, at least in a certain portion of it, during this greivous time of famine. You have had, I say, such ample descriptions brought before you by the public press, that it would be perfectly unbecoming in me to attempt in less forcible language to repeat that which from time to time unhappily of late you have been reading in the newspapers. You know well the extent and the terrible character of that calamity. Happy indeed are we that in these times of ours we as a nation know nothing of these wide spread famines, but our own munimity ought not to make us less sensible. I rather think that through a sense of gratitude it ought to make us more sensible of the misfortunes of others. It ought to give us a tender heart with which to feel for, and greater readiness to aid those who are suffering from a calamity so tremendous, and to us perhaps in its extent I may truly say so inconceivable. Therefore, brethren, so far as the propriety of doing by any means in the power of those who are amongst those who are the fellow subjects of our beloved Sovereign. I am confident that you will not require words of mine to convince you of the propriety of that course. The only question which could be raised would be whether this be or be not a fitting subject for the assistance of this Grand Lodge. Now, brethren, I say at once that I have always held that we ought very carefully to weigh the claims which may be brought before us in this description and very carefully to consider the circumstances under which they come before our notice. Claims of this kind are undoubtedly not of a strictly Masonic character, but I will not say but that there is much in the arguments which I have sometimes heard urged some that these claims, not strictly Masonic, not proper objects for the contribution of Grand Lodge. I am not prepared to lay down so strict a general rule—(hear, hear)—but I distinctly of opinion that we ought to consider every one of these cases very carefully, and we ought not to contribute from the funds of Grand Lodge except in cases which are clearly of a national character. Now, no one doubted when you were asked to contribute in the case of the cotton famine in Lancashire—(hear, hear)—no one doubted that that was a great national calamity to which the funds of Grand Lodge might be appropriately devoted. Well, it seems to me that we Englishmen, we white Masons, owe a great debt of consideration to our brethren in the East, of a different race and of a different colour, but who are many of them Masons as we are, and who are all of them the subjects of our Queen—(hear, hear)—and I do think that when you have before you so large a portion of British subjects, a calamity so tremendous and so overwhelming, that if you have the funds, as I believe you have upon this occasion, at your disposal, it is a call of a national character and one to which you may justly respond. (Hear, hear.) But I have thought it right to draw your attention to this portion of the subject, in order that I may, so far as in me lies, enter at the same time, and protest against applying the funds of Grand Lodge to non-Masonic purposes, except in circumstances of a strictly national, and more or less of an exceptional character. I believe those circumstances to exist at the present time. I believe that we shall be justified in making this grant, and I cannot doubt that if you agree with me in thinking that it is one which we may fairly make, it is one which you will make most gladly, because it will enable you to come forward to aid those who cannot aid themselves, and those who are suffering from one of the most tremendous calamities that can befall any portion of mankind. Therefore, brethren, without further preface I will content myself with moving the following resolution, "That taking into consideration the dreadful sufferings which the present famine in Bengal has inflicted on the natives of that presidency, this Grand Lodge do grant the sum of £500, to be paid out of the Fund of General Purposes, in aid of the voluntary fund now in course of formation for their relief." (Cheers.)

Bro. Fawcett, P.G.M., Durham, seconded the motion.

Bro. Sandeman, District Grand Master of Bengal, in supporting the motion said, that in Bengal the Masons had always been guided by the principle just laid down by the G. Master, always to give their charity to Masons, except in cases of national or exceptional emergency. Although poor in pocket they managed to subscribe a somewhat handsome donation in the case of the Scottish famine many years ago, the Irish famine, and the cotton famine. He was sure the District Grand Lodge of Bengal would most highly appreciate this gift to the public of Bengal.

After a few words from Bro. J. H. Wynne, in opposition to the gift, while twelve poor old men and twenty-two poor old women were unsuccessful at the last election of the Benevolent Institution, the resolution was put and carried; and

Bro. Tomkins, Grand Treasurer, said he would follow the course he had adopted on former similar occasions, and pay the money immediately, without waiting for the confirmation of the vote by next Grand Lodge.

The G.M. announced that he would defer making the statement as to the alterations he contemplated with regard to the charity jewel.

The late W.M. and another brother of the British Oak Lodge were then introduced to show cause why the lodge should not be erased. The late W.M. went into a long statement to show that in doing what he had done, he did what he thought was for the best, and if he had done wrong he apologised for it.

Bro. J. A. Rucker, V.P., and the Board of General Purposes explained what the conduct of the two contending sections of the lodge was when before the Board, and said that from what the Board saw they felt it was impossible for the lodge to exist with any credit to the Craft. The Board though very unwilling to erase the lodge, were unanimous in their recommendation to that effect.

Bro. F. A. Phillbrick and Bro. Poynter concurred in every respect with Bro. Rucker.

On the G.M. putting the motion for the erasure of the lodge;

The late W.M. of 831, said he attended that evening, not to show cause against the motion, but only to apologise and express his regret if it was ruled that he had done wrong. He never intended to show cause.

The resolution for the erasure of Lodge 831 was then put and carried unanimously, and the two brethren retired.

Bro. Joshua Nunn, moved the following grants recommended by the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, viz:—

- A Brother of the St. Luke's Lodge, No. 144, London £50
- A Brother of the Bank of England Lodge, No. 263, London £50
- A Brother of the Star-in-the-East Lodge, No. 67, Calcutta £50

All these were carried unanimously. Bro. James Brett seconded the two first and Bro. J. B. Monckton the last.

The following report of the Board of General Purposes was moved by Bro. Rucker, and seconded by Bro. J. B. Monckton, to be taken as read.

"The Board of General Purposes deeply regret having to report that since the last Quarterly Communication the Craft have sustained a serious loss, and the Board have been deprived of the services of a most efficient head, by the early death of their President, Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C., whose great ability in presiding over them, and whose unvaried urbanity had gained him the respect and warm esteem of every Member of the Board.

"The Board further report that they have had their attention drawn to the salaries of the officials in the Grand Secretary's Department, and the following tabular statement has been brought under their notice showing the number of Certificates issued in each year from 1866 to 1873 inclusive, together with the Income of the Fund of General Purposes and of the Fund of Benevolence during the same period:—

Date	Total Number of Certificates issued by the Grand Lodge and Chapter.	Total Income of the Funds of the General Purposes, the Fund of Benevolence and of Grand Chapter.	Total Salaries Paid.
1866	7547	£13,578 14 6	£1,527 6 0
1867	7498	14,805 15 9	1,331 5 0
1868	7148	14,280 12 6	1,278 5 0
1869	7286	14,846 12 11	1,307 14 0
1870	7323	14,952 3 11	1,317 10 0
1871	7440	15,369 19 11	1,416 0 0
1872	8452	16,926 16 11	1,439 0 0

The number of lodges in 1863 was 996, in 1873 1380, showing an increase of 39 per cent. in eleven years.

Taking into consideration the facts set forth in the foregoing statement, and that the increase in the number of lodges, of certificates issued, and consequently of the annual receipts, must necessarily have greatly added to the work of this department, and considering more especially that all household expenses have materially increased since the salaries were last fixed by Grand Lodge in 1866, the Board are of opinion that the time has arrived for revising the salaries in the Grand Secretary's department, and for submitting a new scale for the sanction of Grand Lodge.

The offices in the Grand Secretary's department are—

- Grand Secretary.
- Chief Clerk.
- Cashier or 2nd Clerk.
- 3rd Clerk.
- 4th Clerk.
- 5th Clerk.
- Grand Tyler.

The Board first took into consideration the salaries of the various offices, without reference to the individual merits or claims of the brethren who fill those offices at the present time, and after arriving at what they deem should be the minimum and maximum in each case, they considered what immediate increase they should recommend to be made in the salaries of those who at present discharge the duties of those offices.

The scale fixed by Grand Lodge in 1866 was as follows:—

	To commence.	Yearly increase after the Second Year of office.	Maximum
Grand Secretary	£450	£15	£600
Chief Clerk	£200	£10	£350
2nd Clerk	£150	£10	£200
3rd Clerk	£100	£10	£150
4th Clerk	£100	£10	£150

There was no fifth Clerk at that time.

The Board consider that the present salary of the Grand Secretary is by no means adequate to the position in the Craft held by that officer and the important and responsible duties he has to perform.

They therefore recommend to Grand Lodge that in future appointments to the office of Grand Secretary the salary of such officer shall commence at £500, and that an annual increase of £50 shall be made in such salary until the sum of £800 is reached, which shall be the maximum salary.

They further recommend that the following shall be the scale of salaries for the subordinate offices:—

	To Commence.	Yearly Increase.	Maximum.
Chief Clerk	£300	£20	£400
Cashier or 2nd Clerk	200	15	300
3rd Clerk	120	10	200
4th Clerk	120	10	200
5th Clerk	120	10	200
Grand Tyler	100	10	150

In determining the amount at which they recommend the salaries of the Junior Clerks shall commence, the Board have had in mind that all the Clerks must be Masons, and that consequently none can be employed under twenty-one years of age.

The Board recommend that the Salary of the present Grand Secretary shall be £600 per annum from the commencement of the present year, with an increase of £50 per annum until the maximum of £800 is reached.

That the salaries of the subordinate officers be raised from the commencement of the present year as follows:—

	Increase.
Bro. Buss, Chief Clerk, from £505 to £520	£15
Bro. Pendlebury, Cashier or 2nd Clerk, from £150 to £200	50
Bro. W. Dodd, 3rd Clerk, from £150 to £170	20
Bro. W. H. Lee, 4th Clerk, from £100 to £120	20
Bro. N. Green, 5th Clerk, from £100 to £120	20
Bro. C. B. Payne, Grand Tyler, from £125 to £150	25

“Add to this the proposed immediate addition to the salary of the Grand Secretary £90

Total addition to the present salaries £240

“With respect to Bro. Pendlebury, it is necessary to observe that although he succeeded Bro. Little in the office of cashier he obtained no immediate increase in his salary, having arrived after nine years' service at the maximum fixed for the salary of 3rd Clerk, and on his promotion receiving for the next two years only the same sum as the minimum salary of the Cashier or 2nd Clerk.

The Vice-President will then move:—

(1.) That the report be received and entered on the Minutes.

(2.) That the various recommendations contained in the report of the Board be adopted.

(Signed) JOHN A. RUCKER, Vice-President.

After the ordinary business had been disposed of, it was resolved unanimously:—That the best thanks of the Members of the Board are eminently due, and are hereby offered, to the Vice-President, Bro. John Rucker, S.G.D., who, in consequence of the ill-health and subsequent decease of the President, has so ably and courteously presided over the meetings of the Board during a great portion of the year, and whose untiring devotion to the duties of his office has obviated any inconvenience which might otherwise have been experienced in the conduct of the affairs of the society.

(Signed) J. E. SAUNDERS.

To the Report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 15th day of May ult, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3,761 3s. 4d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for Petty Cash, £75; and for Servants' Wages, £90 5s.

Bro Rucker in moving that the report be received and entered on the minutes, paid a high tribute to the memory and character of Bro. Horace Lloyd, Q.C., the late President of the Board.

Bro. F. A. Philbrick also bore testimony to the distinguished character of the deceased brother, the care and assiduity with which he discharged his duties, and the unwearied manner with which he devoted himself to all the claims of Masonry, notwithstanding his numerous professional avocations. As a Mason he was an ornament to the Order, and in his profession he was missed as one of the ablest reasoners, and as possessing one of the most analytical minds in Westminster Hall.

The M.W.G.M. said he could not allow this motion to pass without expressing his entire concurrence in what had fallen from the worthy brethren who had just addressed them. He fully agreed with them in the belief that the Craft had sustained the loss of a very eminent brother, and the profession of the law a great ornament. Speaking for himself, he (the M.W.G.M.) felt grateful when Bro. Horace Lloyd accepted the office of President of the Board of General Purposes, and he now rejoiced to find how truly his services upon that Board were appreciated by those with whom he was associated.

The report was then unanimously ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

Bro. Rucker moved the adoption of the various recommendations contained in the report, which having been seconded,

Bro. John Havers alter stating that he knew he was taking a most unpopular view of the recommendation as to the increase of the salaries to Grand Secretary and his officers, opposed it except in the case of Bros. Buss and Pendlebury, and said that a bad precedent would be set, that the salaries would really in seven years be increased by over £2,000; but what he most objected to was the increase in the junior clerks' salaries, and the commencing salaries of the new clerks who would come in. He instanced various Government offices where the commencing salaries were small, but was reminded first that junior clerks in Government offices went in as boys, and that when they reached twenty-one, which a clerk in Grand Secretary's office must be, their salaries were far higher than Grand Secretary's junior clerks. He was also reminded by Bro. Matthew Cooke that Government clerks were not obliged to be Masons.

Bro. S. Tomkins, G. Treasurer, supported the recommendation of the Board, and thought that so great and rich a body as Freemasons should act with dignified liberality to their officers.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson, G.J.W., followed on the same side.

Bro. Eve, from Hants, and another brother from the same province, respectively, moved and seconded an amendment embodying Bro. Haver's views, that brother having only spoken to the motion, and not moved any amendment.

Lord Tenterden supported the Board, as did also Bro. Matthew Cooke, who spoke strongly in favour of the industry, urbanity and consideration which characterised all the officers in Grand Secretary's department.

The motion of amendment being put and lost, the motion was put and was opposed by two hands only, and it was declared to be carried, amidst marks of general approbation.

Bro. Monckton moved the reception of the following report of the Colonial Board.

The Colonial Board take the opportunity, at the close of their year's labours, to congratulate Grand Lodge on the prosperity and general unanimity of the Craft, under the English Constitution, in the various colonies; and that during the session 1873-4 they have not had occasion in one single instance, to trouble Grand Lodge with the affairs of the colonies, no question any sort having arisen with which the Board was not enabled to deal.

The only subject the Board have to submit for the consideration of Grand Lodge, is an application from the Royal Philanthropic Lodge, No. 405, Trinidad, for assistance to build a Masonic Hall.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

The members of the Board desire to express to their President, Bro. John B. Monckton, P.G.D., their hearty thanks and sincere acknowledgments for the courtesy of his demeanour and the ability with which he has presided over them, and their earnest hope that the Craft long have the advantage of his services.

(Signed) W. NETTLESH, Vice-President.

The same was received, and Bro. Hervey he had a letter from the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, at Trinidad, asking the postponement of the consideration of the petition of the Philanthropic Lodge.

The Annual Report of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons, Widows of Freemasons, was then laid before Grand Lodge, and the following alteration in laws, which was agreed to at the Annual General Meeting of the Institution, held on Friday, the 15th May, 1874, submitted for approval of Grand Lodge:—

That Rule 8, page 8 of the Rules and Regulations be altered, by inserting after the words “London Papers”—“Notice also being sent every Provincial Grand Secretary.”

Bro. John Symonds explained that this alteration was suggested for the purpose of giving country brethren full notice of any of the special meetings of the Institution. The rule had been adopted in the Boys' and Girls' Schools, and was found that advertisements in the London daily papers, and The Freemason, did not always reach the eyes of Provincial brethren.

The alteration was ordered to be made.

The following two appeals were dismissed after due consideration, from the Union of M.Lodge, No. 407, Malta, against the decision of the District Grand Master ordering the reinstatement of a brother excluded by the lodges and of the Treasurer of the Sandeman Lodge, No. 1374, Dum Dum, Bengal, East India, against an order of the Deputy District Grand Master directing that the resignation of a brother must be accepted although his dues were not paid.

The motion by Bro. Benjamin Head, P.G. That the sum of £70 be given from the Fund of General Purposes. That the money placed in the hands of the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, to supply the inmates at Croydon with coals during the winter season was carried nem con.

Grand Secretary read a letter from Bro. Smith, P.G. Steward, P.M. 26, asking permission to postpone the motion given below, as he feared he would not be back from Epsom time. (Great laughter.)

That the practice followed by the Board of General Purposes of refusing audience a right to members of the Craft desiring to have personal communications or suggestions for benefit of the Order, or on matters likely to be conducive to its well-being, unless invited to the Board to attend, shall henceforth be discontinued in respect of Past Masters and the Masters of Lodges, who shall, in future, have the right of audience after communicating in writing to the Grand Secretary their intention to attend on the next board-day, and shortly the object or purpose of such audience.

The Scrutineers then returned into Grand Lodge, and the following brethren were duly elected.

Board of General Purposes, Masters: John Chynoweth, No. 4; Edward Clark, Frederick G. Dobbs, £150; Robert Grey, Peter De Lande Long.

2; Erasmus Wilson, 1464. Past Master Frederick George Finch, 33; Standish Grady, 14; Henry Gruning, 197; Mullins, 753; Samuel Poynter, 902; Smith, 21; George John Theobald, 5; Levander and Theobald, polled each 118 M.W.G.M., gave his casting vote in of the latter brother, he belonging to the lodge.

Grand Master invested Bro. Monckton. (Received with loud cheers). Monckton said so much has been said so feelingly as to the sad cause of the that I am now called for to fill, that I of further allude to it, but will simply say will endeavour to follow a great and an Mason to the best of my poor ability.

of brethren elected on the Colonial Bros. Brackstone Baker, No. 21; Brett, No. 177; John M. Case, No. 1; March, No. 99; John G. Marsh, No. William F. Nettleship, No. 14; Samuel

Grand Master appointed Bro. Rucker, and Bro. Joseph Smith, Vice-President, and thanked the scrutineers on behalf of Lodge for the manner in which they had discharged their duties.

Committee of Management for the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Free-masons and Widows of Freemasons, Bros. Brett, 177; Charles A. Cottebrune, 733; Cubitt, 157; John A. Farnfield, 256; Gale, 19; Charles F. Hogard, 205; Kent, 177; Hyam M. Levy, 188; G. Stevens, 554; Wm. Thomas White, Lodge was then closed.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The usual half-yearly communication of Lodge of Mark Masters of England and S. &c., was held on Tuesday evening at Masons' Tavern. The Rev. George Ray-Portal, Past Grand Master, presided, and a large number of Mark Masters attended to assist him. Among the brethren present

W. Bro. Rev. G. R. Portal, P.G.M., as G.M.; W. W. B. Beach, M.W.P.G.M.; Bro. Sir Edmund Lechmere, Bart., P.G.M., as Dep. G.M.; James Stevens, O., as G.S.W.; Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, Chaplain, as G.I.W.; Samuel Bryant, O.; C. C. Whitney Griffiths, P.G.S.D., as Thomas Hargreaves, P.G.J.D., as Rev. D. J. Drakeford, Rev. J. Hordern G. Chaplains; Frederick Binckes, G. Standard Bearer as Grand Bearer; Edmund Worrall, G. Standard Bearer; F. H. Cozens, G. Org.; S. Funkenz-berg, G. Org.; Clement Stretton, W. A. Scott, R. Parker, Grd. Stewards, and the following Grand Officers:—R. W. Bros. W. Mableton, P.G.J.W.; S. C. Dibbin, as W. Bros. Wm. Hudson, P.G.A.C.; Spencer, P.G. Sword Bearer; S. M. P.G. Org.; J. H. Wynne, P.G.I.G.; Levander, P.G.D.C.; J. Sabine, C.; John Read, P.G. Organist; Rev. C. R. Davy, H. Massey, Israel s, James W. Smith, D. M. Dewar, F., P.G. Stewards; with the following Grand Officers. R.W. Bros. Major Harlow, P. Prov. G.J.W., Middlesex and William Roebuck, P. Prov. G.W. Mid-Surrey; Arthur Walton, Prov. G.S.O. and Surrey; W. Bros. Frederick Prov. G. Organist, Middlesex and William Trevena, P.P.M.O. Devon; George Mellor, P.P.G.W. East shire; Thomas Radley, P.P.G. Chap-shire; Thomas Schofield, P.P.G.J.W. shire; and the Masters, Past Masters, Overseers, and brethren of many

The Acting Grand Master, as soon as Grand Lodge had been opened, read a letter he had received from Earl Percy, M.W.G.M., explaining his non-attendance at this meeting for installation and regretting the same.

Grand Secretary then read the minutes of the last half-yearly communication of 2nd Dec. 1873, which were put by the Acting M.W. Grand Master, and unanimously confirmed.

The following report of the General Board was afterwards read by Grand Secretary:—

In the six months ending 31st March, 1874, 413 certificates have been issued, the total number of brethren on the register of this Grand Lodge to that date being 7645.

During the same period the following warrants of Constitution have been granted:—

- No. 170 Keystone India.
" 171 Union Oldham, Lancashire.
" 172 John o'Gaunt Gainsborough.
" 173 Temple London.
" 174 Athol Birmingham.
" 175 St Michael Helston, Cornwall.
" 176 Era London.

The following warrants for working the degree of Royal Ark Mariner, have also been issued:—

St. John's Lodge, attached to Langley Lodge, of M.M.M., No. 28.

Isaac Newton, University Lodge, attached to Isaac Newton University Lodge, No. 112.

The number of certificates issued to same date are 147.

The Board entered into possession of the new offices on the 25th day of March last. The facilities for the transaction of business are greatly increased, and many advantages will be derived from the improved accommodation afforded by a spacious suite of rooms on the ground floor. Not the least of these was the means provided for meetings of private lodges and lodges of Instruction, and for the fitting performance of the various ceremonies of the Order. The charge for the use of the rooms will be £1 1s., which will include gas.

The recommendation of the Board for an increase from 8s. 6d. to 10s. in the fee payable for registration and certificate for a brother advanced in a private lodge, received the approval of Grand Lodge at the half-yearly communication in December last. Before giving effect thereto it has been considered advisable to wait the confirmation of that approval by the present meeting of Grand Lodge. In the event of such confirmation the increased fee will be payable on certificates issued on and from the first day of July, 1874.

The delay in the reply from the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland to the request of this Grand Lodge for a recognition of certificates and of membership as regularly advanced Mark Master Masons, has been alluded to in former reports of the Board. The reply under date 12th March, 1874, has at length been received and is of an unsatisfactory nature. The Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland announces its decision against the request urged by this Grand Lodge "following the example of the Grand Chapter of Ireland." As however the latter body has expressed in writing under date July 30, 1870, March 29th, 1873, its consent to recognise the certificates of this Grand Lodge, and to admit its members as legally advanced Mark Master Masons, the Board instructed the Grand Secretary to represent the fact to the Grand Chapter of Scotland and Ireland. This was done on 6th April, 1874, and the board still waits replies from the representatives of the respective bodies.

The Grand Council of the 33° having brought before this Grand Lodge the name of a brother, a member of the Fidelity Lodge, No. 31, Hyde, Cheshire, as openly avowing himself an active member of the so called "Antient and Primitive Rite of Misraim" the Grand Secretary addressed a letter to the brother in question, inquiring as to the correctness of the charge.

The reply was couched in language so outrageous, that the brother was summoned to attend the next meeting of the board to shew cause why he should not be suspended. The answer to that summons exceeded the former in violence and impropriety, and the Board have therefore resolved to recommend that the name of the brother shall be erased from the roll of members under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge.

The Board have again had under its notice the complaint by Bro. A., against Bro. B., for charges reflecting on his character as a Knight Templar, published by the latter in the public press.

The Board, while deeply regretting that any charge of an offensive nature should be made by one brother against another, and be neither substantiated nor apologised for, feels itself unable to deal with a matter which has not arisen within the walls of a Mark Lodge.

Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C., having announced his intention to represent, for the third year in succession, the Mark Degree generally as Steward for one of the great Masonic Charitable Festivals, selecting for 1875 the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the Board recommend to Grand Lodge to vote from the General Fund the sum of £42, as a contribution to the said Institution, such sum to be placed on the list of Bro. Sabine, Steward.

Grand Treasurer's accounts are presented herewith, showing,

Examined and found correct, 2nd June, 1874.

I also hereby certify that I have visited Messrs. Ridgway and Sons, the bankers of this Grand Lodge, and have seen the Four £100 Bonds in Canadian 5 per Cent. Securities, and also examined their books.

(Signed) THOMAS MEGGY, Auditor.

Grand Secretary said he was sorry to inform Grand Lodge that Bro. Stebbing, Grand Treasurer had been again taken ill and was unable to come to town to submit the above statement of accounts to the brethren. He had written to know how Grand Treasurer was, and the last answer received was that he was very seriously ill. He had written again, hoping to have got another answer before Grand Lodge met, but it had not yet arrived.

Bro. H. C. Levander moved the adoption of the second recommendation of the Board, that the special report of the General Board with reference to Bro. * * * be received and adopted, and that the recommendation of the Board that his name be erased from the list of members of the Mark Degree under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge be and is hereby approved and confirmed. He was exceedingly sorry that such a case should have come before the General Board. It was lamentable that the brother should so far have forgotten his Masonic duty as to use unbecoming language on the first occasion of his being written to. Still more did it increase and aggravate the offence, when on the second occasion he exceeded the violence of the letter which he had written at first. The Board had considered the matter with special reference to section 101 of the Constitution of the Order, which said the Board has authority to hear and determine all subjects of complaint or irregularity respecting lodges or individuals, when regularly brought before it, and generally to take cognisance of all matters relating to the Order of Mark Master Mason. It may proceed to admonition, fine, or suspension, according to the laws, and its decision shall be final, unless an appeal be made to the Grand Lodge. But should any case be of so flagrant a nature as to require the erasure of a lodge, or the expulsion of a brother, the Board shall make a special report thereon to the Grand Lodge." Therefore, without further remarks, he would propose the adoption of this recommendation. With regard to the resolution that he be expelled from the Order of Mark Master Masons, that, of course, will be subject to his appearing at Grand Lodge next time it meets, and shewing cause why he should not be expelled.

Grand Secretary said, article 13 provided for all that. "No lodge shall be erased, nor any brother expelled, until the Master or Officers of the lodge, or the brother charged with the offence, shall have been summoned to shew cause, in the Grand Lodge, why such sentence should not be recorded and enforced." The brother would not have his name erased till he had been summoned to shew cause.

The acting Grand Master observed that Bro. Levander's motion then would take that form, that he be summoned.

Bro. Levander said it would, "That he be summoned to shew cause why his name should not be erased from the roll of Grand Lodge."

Bro. D. M. Dewar, seconded the motion.

The Acting Grand Master:—Brethren, it is proposed and seconded, "That Bro. * * * * be summoned to next Grand Lodge to show cause why his name should not be erased from the roll of members under this jurisdiction."

The motion was carried nem con.

Bro. F. Davison, D.P.G.M. Middlesex and Surrey, proposed, "That the sum of £42 be voted from the General Fund of this Grand Lodge to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. That the amount be placed on the list of Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C., who has volunteered to accept the office of Steward, representing the Mark Degree at the Anniversary Festival of that Institution in 1875.

That the thanks of this Grand Lodge are due and hereby offered to Bro. Sabine for coming forward for the third year in succession to represent the Order as Steward at the Festivals of the Masonic Institutions.

The sum voted would, we believe, make up the amount required to make this Grand Lodge a Vice-President of the Institution. (Cheers.)

Bro. W. E. Gumbleton seconded the motion, which was then put and carried unanimously.

The report of the General Board was then put and adopted.

Bro. Cubitt proclaimed Earl Percy as M. W.G.M.M.M., and by his direction Grand Lodge formally saluted the Grand Master.

The following brethren were afterwards appointed Grand Officers for the year:—

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I did not intend to say anything more in this "pretty little quarrel" but, that I wish to advert to two points.

I quite agree with Bro. Yarker; it is a great pity that we can never begin a Masonic archaeological discussion without ending in personalities.

It is just possible, that, I may have expressed myself a little too plainly, and forcibly, but I confess I do not see the use ever in free and open discussion of being "mealy mouthed," and I think it always better to speak and to write as "Downright Dunstable."

You will remember the discussion was proceeding regularly when Bro. Paton did two unheard-of things.

He objected to Bro. Buchan, and myself expressing any opinion at all in the matter, and stated that neither of us knew anything of the subject about which we were writing.

Now this, to use a common but expressive word, just now, was really too "cheeky," even in that well-known Masonic writer.

He had just made the most egregious blunder that any Masonic Student has ever made. He boldly stated that all Masons' Marks must be odd, and that the double triangle was not a Masonic Mark at all, because it had even points.

Well, the rejoinder to so startling a statement, which completely took my breath away, was that there was no such rule in operative marks; that the double triangle was an old operative mark, and that the marks of the Scottish lodges in which Bro. Paton said this rule had "existed for 150 years" proved the direct contrary. I referred him to Laurie and D. M. Lyon, specially.

What was his reply?

His most graceful course would have been to admit that he had made a "little mistake" and "ferre gradus retrorsum."

Not a bit of it! Bro. Paton gallantly returns to the charge, says he meant "Speculative," not "Operative Masonry," that we were a very ignorant set of critics; that I could never have studied the question at all; and if I had I was so dense that I had not profited by my studies, and that it was quite clear I did not know the difference between operative and speculative Marks.

Now that is unfortunately just what I did do, and do do, to use a very homely form of language. The "Speculative Marks" qua Marks are utterly worthless, as Bros. W. J. Hughan and Yarker, and Buchan will agree, if you disassociate them from the "Operative Marks," from which they are taken, and of which they are, only except in some of the Scotch Marks an amateur imitation.

Had Bro. Paton limited the discussion to Speculative Masons Marks I should not have intervened in it at all, as, from an archaeological point of view they only point to an earlier system and afford but little information in and by themselves. At any rate they are derivative evidence at the best, and of secondary importance.

It is a great pity that we cannot conduct such discussions without correspondents losing their temper, but as the French writer says, "nous sommes tous mortels," and even Freemasons are not exempt from the foibles of humanity.

If I have spoken too strongly, or too openly, I regret it, but I can plead, at any rate, a sincere desire to advance the cause of Masonic Truth. We have suffered so much from unsound dogmata and fallacious theories, that, I confess, in 1874, to be gravely told that the double triangle is not a Masonic Mark, and that marks must have "odd points" was too much for my patience and my stomach.

With regard to Bro. W. J. Hughan's suggestion, that I should give up my pseudonym, sign myself by my actual name, I think, despite his valuable opinion, "for good and sufficient causes, me thereunto moving," I think it better still to subscribe myself

Yours fraternally,

THE MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.
Dear Sir and Brother,—

Myself and others who read The Freemason are much surprised at not finding a list of the successful candidates at the last election for aged Freemasons and their widows. Is there any reason why it should not be published in an oversight.

Yours fraternally,

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday week at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. John Symonds, V.P., in the chair, the day being that appointed annually for the election of the House and Audit Committee. The meeting was very fully attended. Among the brethren present we noticed A. H. Tattershall, H. Dubosc, B. Picking, H. A. Dubois, L. Thiellay, B. Head, Joshua Nunn, Thos. White, C. G. Dilley, D. Bear, P. Samuels, Loewenstark, W. Wellman, R. B. Welton, Rev. P. M. Holden, W. Myatt, Junr., G. Griffiths Smith, J. F. Peacock, Thos. Cubitt, W. Stephens, W. P. Dicks, G. Abbot, J. Horwood, H. A. Collington, W. Noah Shalless, Collard Moutrie, A. L. D. T. B. Yeoman, W. Hammond, B. Mallan Harris, John Coutts, J. Holbrook, W. T. H. C. Lacey, W. Paas, R. Kenyon, W. Roel, E. A. Sacre, A. H. Diaper, Jesse Turner Rosenthal, M. D. Loewenstark, W. Lane, M. Levy, W. A. Colls, C. F. Hogard, E. B. G. Andrews, H. Roberts, Raynham W. St. Dr. Jas. Self, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, J. Phillips, Hyde Pullen, H. G. Levy, R. H. Girand, James Terry, J. B. Law, J. M. Case, Joseph Smith, A. A. Pendl, J. G. Marsh, E. Sillifant, A. C. Burrell, Burr, S. P. Norris, George Kenning, Stanton, H. Browse, T. H. Miller, N. H. J. T. Moss, G. Barringer, L. Ruf, Dr. Brett, Richard Spencer, Edward Clark, W. T. Massa, E. H. Hubbuck, Joseph Taylor, M. Haigh, A. L. Dussek, G. Abbott, Stanton, W. T. Home, N. F. Smith, F. D. E. Harris, E. Shalless, J. C. Parkinson, Wentworth Little, (Secretary).

At the conclusion of the reading and motion of the minutes, one petition was presented and the House Committee having recommended an increase of the salary of Bro. Hedges, of motion was given to that effect.

The brethren then proceeded to elect a House Committee, consisting of twelve members, for the ensuing year, and at the term of the election the following was found the result:—Joshua Nunn, 58 votes, B. Head, 53; Thomas W. White, 52; C. Burdett, 49; John A. Rucker, 48; Smith, 46; Rev. J. M. Vaughan, William Paas, 42; H. Browse, 41; R. W. Stewart, 41; Alfred H. Tattershall, Dr. Ramsay, 36.

The election of members of the Audit Committee for the year was next taken, following result:—R. B. Webster, 29; Nunn, 26; W. Paas, 24; E. Sillifant, C. Levander, 23; W. Roebuck, 21; Chancellor, 20; John Symonds, 20; Browse, 19.

A cordial vote of thanks was then officiating

ORIGINAL OR PREMIER CONCLAVE.—This conclave met on Monday last at the Masonic Hall, 68, Regent-street. Sir Knight Robert Little presided, having Sir Knight G. Marsh to act as V.E. There was an excellent attendance of the Knights of the Order, and the meeting was altogether a great success. Among the Sir Knights present were J. T. Moss, P.G.; E. Sillifant, V.E.; H. A. Dubois, J.G.; Ernest Brette, H.P.; T. Cubitt, Treasurer; H. Ker, Organist; Thos. Kingston, Past S.; C. Levander, Past S.; George Kenning, P.S.; W. J. M. Vaughan, Rev. P. M. Holden, E. Norris, T. Catlin, W. Sorrell, and H. Massey. P. S. J. W. Ellison Macartney, M.P.; Tyrone, Lieut. Jelinger Edward Symons, R.N.; he exalted to the degree of Knights Red Cross, in a college of viceroys, Rev. E. Brette, D.; W. Smale, No. 15; Rev. P. M. Holden, W.; E. Macartney, M.P.; J. E. Symons, and Massey, then took the superior degree, and Knights Macartney, Symons, and Massey re-installed Sovereigns of the Order. This being the evening for the installation of Sovereign and appointment of other officers, Sir Knight Edwin Sillifant was installed M.P.S., B. Yeoman, V.E.; H. A. Dubois, S.G.; Dr. Brette, I.G.; Rev. J. M. Vaughan, P.; T. Cubitt, Treasurer; R. W. Little, Recorder; T. Kingston, Prefect; Alfred Moore, Standard Bearer; Colonel Peters, Herald; Pettengull, Thomas Massa, Aides. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the Conclave closed and the Sir Knights adjourned to a delicious banquet, provided by D. Nicols, at the restaurant in a most superior style. When the Sir Knights had partaken of this, they proceeded to honour the toasts usually given in the Red Cross Degree. C. and E. having been given, the "Queen," "Sir F. M. Williams, G.S.," "Colonel Burdett," and others, Sir Knight J. T. Moss, proposed "The Health of Sir Knight Sillifant, M.P.S." and said it was a matter of the greatest gratification to propose the health of one in going through the chair, he hoped Sir Knight would find it as pleasant as he himself during his year of office. Fortunately Sir Knight Little was always at hand to perform the ceremonies for him, and he had consequently through his year very well. If the M.P.S. should necessarily be absent and unable to do any of his work, Sir Knight Little would be happy to do it for him, and at the end of his year of office he must be congratulated on having served the Order worthily. (Cheers.) M.P.S. said he was overwhelmed with the grace and eloquence of Sir Knight Moss—but putting that on one side, he assured the Sir Knights that he should endeavour to carry out the charge placed in his hands as sovereign of the Order, not as Sir Knight Moss had said he did it—(laughter)—but, personally, and properly, and gratefully. (Cheers.) Sir Knight Little in proposing "The Newly Installed Sir Knights in Arms," regretted that more brethren had not presented themselves for the hood; he was pleased, however, to say that of those who did come up was introduced himself by Commander Scott, a distinguished Irish Mason, who had achieved great success in the sister country. Sir Knight Little had recently obtained a seat in the House of Commons, for that Sir Knights would be with the utmost enthusiasm. From the M.P.S. had seen of the ceremony, although it was a short one of its paraphernalia, and an accident, Sir Knight Macartney was pleased with it; but had he seen all that would have perceived an amount of Masonic Symbolism which he could form no opinion of. The conclave were sorry that the ceremony had not been given in full form, but on a previous occasion Sir Knight Macartney, and Sir Knight Little, would have an opportunity of doing it with all its accessories, and with the Knights of the Red Cross considered it a great honour. Sir Knight Levander had introduced Sir Knight Symons, who was an excellent although a very young Mason. He had led much in the Holy Land, and had seen the traditions collected together there which were the pride of Masonry, which were true, and were based on solid foundations. The more Sir Knight Symons saw of Masonry, whether of Craft, Mark, or Knightly Orders, the more would he be disposed to greet the great traditions with which Masonry was indissolubly associated. The Knights of this conclave gave these newly installed Sir Knights a hearty welcome and their best wishes for their further progress in Freemasonry. Sir Knight Macartney, M.P., said the mode in which his health and that of Sir Knight Symons had been proposed and drunk was highly gratifying, but he was much pleased himself with the warm and cordial tone of Sir Knight Little towards his friend commander Scott. He believed there was not a better Mason living. The more he saw of Freemasonry, the more exalted opinion he formed of the purposes of the Order. Shorn as it had been in part of some of the paraphernalia of the ceremonies of that day, which contained so much of the very highest symbols of the Craft bearing on the truths of their common Christianity, yet no man he thought could be admitted to the Order without feeling himself very deeply touched. (Hear, hear.) He did not enter this degree in a jovial manner, but felt the seriousness of it (hear hear), and he thought that the more the seriousness of it was felt the more they would be prepared to carry out the real objects of Masonry. The first step a Mason took was one in which he felt himself bound with all those who confessed one God (hear, hear), and that was a very wide and ennobling idea. But still more touching and endearing to the heart was the coming into the Christian orders where we saw ceremonies still more closely attached to our eternal interests. Masonry seemed to him to be a system which led man to his God, and by steps to the most practical and best ways, teaching him to love his God and to love his neighbour, through love to the one to love the other; and that he thought was the teaching of the symbolism he had just witnessed. Although some inanimate objects were away, he who inducted the candidates into the Order did it in such a way that they could not forget it. (Hear, hear.) He felt greatly honoured at being admitted to the Conclave; he had been proposed by an esteemed friend and he had been received like a friend. He had always found among Masons a fraternal and kind reception. (Hear, hear.) He was lately in Italy, a country where Masonry was very extensively, but not properly practised. He was invited by a Neapolitan Mason, and the working of the lodge was good. The lodge was much used for political purposes, but still he was received in a most cordial and fraternal manner, and with all the honours that could be bestowed on a British Mason. He was the first British Mason that ever sat in a Masonic lodge in Rome. He hoped to see the day when those Italian Masons would devote themselves to the true principles and teaching of Masonry, that they would be in connection with us before long, and that Masons would then be a brotherhood over all the world. (Cheers.) Sir Knight Symons said that a knight who had been a brother so short a time as he had must have very little to say, but yet he could safely affirm that the excessive solemnity of the ceremony of installation which he had just passed through had impressed him very deeply. He had only taken the third degree a month; therefore it would be seen he had taken the earliest opportunity of extending his Masonic acquaintance. His experience of that day had led him to desire an extension of that acquaintance which he should not hesitate to make. He felt very deeply the honour that had been done him by his admission to the conclave, and he would take this opportunity of thanking his proposer, Sir Knight Levander, and his seconder, Sir Knight Little, for their kind offices. As his travels had been mentioned by Sir Knight Little, he must say that in those travels his convictions on Freemasonry had been greatly strengthened by his experience of facts which had been handed down to them in the history of past ages, that had not a little added to his faith. What he had been taught in history tallied exactly with what he had found, and he thought the knowledge of this fact, might be interesting to Freemasons. (Hear (hear). The M.P.S. proposed "The Health of P. S. Moss," to which Sir Knight Moss responded, and after a few other toasts, including that of "The Officers," the Sir Knights separated having spent a most delightful evening.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF BERKS AND BUCKS.

The annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Berkshire and Buckinghamshire was held in the hall of the Carlton Club, Windsor. Sir D. Gooch, Bart, M.P., P.G.M., presided, and among those present were the Rev. Sir J. W. Hayes, Bart, D.P.G.M.; the Rev. F. S. Brownrigg, D.P.G.M. elect; Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart, M.P., P.G.M. (N. Wales); Bros. Trendall, P.G. W.; Biggs, P.G.S.; with many others.

The reports presented by the P.G.S. showed that the various lodges in the two counties were in a prosperous condition, and that Masonry was steadily increasing in the Province.

The Charity Fund, established by the P.G.M., had been well supported, and among the amounts disbursed in relief during the past year was one of 500 guineas, raised by the brethren of the "Abbey" Lodge, at Abingdon.

After the usual business, the P.G.M. duly installed as his Deputy the Rev. F. S. Brownrigg to the office of D.P.G.M., in the room of the Rev. Sir J. W. Hayes, Bart, who had resigned on account of advancing years.

The brethren subsequently walked to the Town Hall, where a sumptuous banquet was served.

Masonic Tidings.

The annual festival in aid of the Grand Mark Lodge Benevolent Fund will be held on the 15th July, Sir Edmund Lechmere will preside.

ACCIDENT TO A P.P.G. REGISTRAR.—On Monday, the 18th inst., Bro. Thomas Wylie, P.P.G. Registrar of West Lancashire, was passing along North John-street, Liverpool, when he was knocked down by a spring cart, the wheels passing over his foot, the horse treading on his hand. Bro. Wylie is still confined to the house in consequence of his injuries.

Bro. John Rankin Stebbing, Past Grand Deacon of England, and present Deputy Past Grand Master for Hampshire and Isle of Wight, died at Southampton on Tuesday. Bro. Stebbing had also been a member of the Executive Council of the Associated Chambers of Commerce.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Langthorne Lodge of Instruction, at the Swan Hotel, Stratford, E., on Wednesday next, the 10th inst., by Bro. Verry, P.M., assisted by several eminent brethren from the Yarrowburgh and Doric Lodges. The lodge will be opened by Bro. Verry, at seven p.m. punctually, and a number of Masonic brethren resident in the neighbourhood are expected to be present.

The June number of the "Masonic Magazine" contains a photograph of the Marquess of Ripon, and we recommend our readers to apply at once for a copy, to 198, Fleet-street, as the number is necessarily limited.

The meetings of the Metropolitan Royal Arch Chapter of Improvement, held at the Jamaica Coffee House, Cornhill, have been adjourned until the first Tuesday in October.

The musical arrangements at the Consecration of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge (No. 1489), were entrusted to Bro. McDavitt, who had the sole direction, and not (as stated in our report) to Bro. Richard Limpus, Provincial Grand Organist, Middlesex.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This cooling Medicine may be used with the happiest effects when the blood is overheated and a tendency to inflammatory action appears in the system; a course of one Pill a day taken shortly before dinner does away with the indigestion, fullness, and flatulency—indications of a weak stomach or disordered liver. A few Pills taken at bedtime act as alteratives and aperients; they not only relieve the bowels, but regulate every organ connected with them, overcome all acrid humours, and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and in hot climates and high temperatures, induce that feeling of comfort which is the pleasing accompaniment of a high state of health.—ADVT.

FREEMASONS' LIBER MUSICUS,

Dedicated by express permission to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, Past Grand Master of England and Wales. Edited by DR. WILLIAM SPARK, P.P.G.O., W.Y.—298.

This Work contains 215 pp. and 118 Musical Compositions suitable for all the Ceremonies of the Masonic Order; First, Second, and Third Degrees; Consecration and Dedication of Halls and Lodges; Programmes, Toasts, Songs, Tios, Choruses, &c., for Banquets and other Festive Gatherings; Laying Foundation or Corner Stones; Installation; Mark Masonry; Royal Arch; Masonic Funerals; Voluntaries; Marches, &c., &c.

Notice from the Evening Mail.

"Our Masonic readers are no strangers to the name of Bro. William Spark, the talented musician and Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. In this really great work, now completed, Dr. Spark, has shown his great tact and judgment by completing and compiling for the Masonic brethren a complete library of musical compositions of the choicest English and foreign works, ancient, traditional, modern, vocal, and instrumental, by the best composers. It comprises Masonic anthems, installation odes, dedication music, responses, opening, closing, and intermediate music for all degrees, Thanksgivings, funeral odes, marches, songs, duets, banquet music, programmes, voluntaries, and general musical creations, arranged for voices and organ, pianoforte, or harmonium. "The Freemasons' Liber Musicus" is issued with the concurrence of many influential Masonic Lodges, and under the distinguished patronage and support of the Most Worshipful the Grand Masters of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. It forms a complete library of the choicest and rarest Masonic music, in a word, it is indispensable to all Masonic lodges. The worthy brother editor, moreover, has had the valuable co-operation and assistance of the most distinguished and experienced composers and organists, members of the Craft. It is brought out in the highest style of art, is printed from large engraved music plates, and forms a very handsome folio volume of "nearly two hundred and twenty pages!" It deserves the patronage of every Masonic Lodge, both at home and abroad, and for its merits alone it ought to be zealously prized by every brother. As a present to a lodge, nothing could be more useful, valuable, and appropriate.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JUNE 6TH 1874.

THE NEW SURREY MASONIC HALL.

We have to call the attention of our readers, to an interesting ceremony, which took place on Friday last, the 29th ult., namely, the laying of the foundation stone of the new Surrey Masonic Hall, of which interesting ceremony a report appears in our columns to-day. We congratulate the Directors of the Company on this auspicious commencement of their important undertaking, and trust sincerely that the building may be erected without danger to the workmen, and will prove eventually alike profitable as an investment, convenient to the lodges using it, a credit to Masonic Architecture, and advantageous to the Craft. There is no reason why such buildings should not, under proper management, be in themselves, so to say, self-supporting, as well as most helpful to true Freemasonry. Indeed, when we recall to-day the somewhat haphazard way in which the ancient ceremonies of our Order were celebrated some twenty years ago, the inconvenient rooms in which we were content to meet, the incongruous accessories which then sometimes graced our so-called lodge-rooms, used for other purposes, and often less elevated proceedings, we cannot but feel what a large stride Masonic æsthetics have made happily amongst us, and how everywhere to-day we see tokens alike of the craftsman's handiwork, and the architect's skill, employed in raising and adorning many a most stately and goodly Masonic Hall in our land. In the case before us, all the plans of the ground buildings and all the details of the inner arrangements seem to betoken an anxious design to make the building alike suitable and fitted for our Masonic ceremonial and the convenience and comfort of our brethren. And though we know there have been those, there probably still are some, who on the "penny wise and pound foolish system," object to such an outlay and deprecate such elaboration, and say that it is better and cheaper to rent a room in some adjacent hotel, or public building, yet we feel certain from some little experience, that no movement has done more good to Masonry than that, which, a our able Bro. John Havers saw and said years ago, would disassociate our excellent brotherhood from uncongenial influences and questionable localities. Most of us who have realized the privacy, the independence, the comfort, and the self respect which our own freehold lodge buildings give us always, will never for a moment entertain the idea that, our previous arrangements were beneficial in this respect, or that it is advisable to return to that "tenant-at-will" position which so often exposed the brethren to several drawbacks, and often effectively lowered the character of Freemasonry, in days gone by, and in the less satisfactory lodge rooms of a defunct generation. That Masonry worked on, notwithstanding many patent inconveniences and unsuitable arrangements is due, we believe, to the inherent excellency of Masonry, and the high character of our Order, but once admitted, the defect, proved the blot, it is the duty of all Masons "good and true," to labour zealously to amend the one, and to remove the other. And thus, all our large towns, as Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds, Sheffield, Huddersfield, Bradford, and many more, our brethren have, for some time since, either purchased or raised large and stately buildings, in some of which several lodges meet, and which, alike, by their external appearance and internal arrangements, do honour to those who planned them, and those who use them. Although the hand which drew the stately proportions and planned the becoming decorations, our brethren who hailed the opening, or assembled there for many years, must gradually pass away, their works and their labours of love survive. Amid the onward march of time, they still remain to tell after generations of craftsmen, that, if their forefathers were not ashamed to own themselves Free and Accepted Masons, did not grudge to give of their substance to do open honour to the Royal Art, and bequeathed to them a duty to perform, and a course to pursue in their so as to carefully preserve to their after brethren what they so liberally erected, and so lovingly reared. It is one of the great characteristics of that noble art, which forms the basis of all Masonic history and symbolism and teaching, it is so to say purely unselfish. For we have evidence before our eyes to-day of the munificence of those who, in the noble building they raised with so much care and at such sacrifices, proclaimed to us that their Masonic motto ever was, "Freely have ye received, freely give," and that they toiled, to pleasure, delight, and happiness to all. Yet we who look up with admiring gaze to the pinnacle and tower, on the wondrous proportions of some majestic building, some grand minster, some Guild Hall—we who still appreciate oftentimes now the cunning or quaint gargoyle, we should never get what we owe to that wandering of Freemasons, to those moveable lodges of operative Craft, which have given us the fulness of architectural skill and best many marvels of that noble handiwork which enriched and consecrated the sciences of architecture. From them we still obtain grand lines for modern buildings, and we discern in re-art is that which seeks to raise our minds and hopes, ever heavenwards, by them we can be encouraged to go and do likewise, in our time and generation, and in the associations they supply, and the appreciations they evoke, we can ever feel, that we are privileged as Freemasons, to claim those operative Masons as our forefathers, and that art, as our ground work of Speculative Symbolism, which has served to promote peace and liberty, law and civilization, and to advance the Glory of God, and the welfare of man.

MASONIC ARCHÆOLOGY.

The progress of Masonic archæology has of late years been very striking, and too much praise cannot be accorded to those earnest students and Masonic "pioneers" who are digging so manfully around the foundations of the old and decayed building of Masonic fable and legend, are clearing away the rubbish, and are opening out the vast proportions of that goodly Temple of truth which lies buried in the accumulated collections of unenquiring times, and is half hid from view by the weeds which have been allowed to grow in rank luxuriance. Among these able students of the new, interesting, and true history of Freemasonry, few have laboured so earnestly and disinterestedly as our energetic Brother W. J. Hughan. His past endeavours, his present contributions to Masonic archæology have obtained for him the admiration of the Craft, and the special approval of the Grand Master. We rejoice to hear that our unwearied brother is now busily engaged in preparing a work for the press on the Union of 1813, with a list of the lodges under both the "Ancients" and the "Modern," and their numbers altered in 1814, 1832, and 1863. As an appendix to this interesting "brochure," Bro. Hughan intends we understand to publish also as an appendix, D'Assigay's "Enquiry" of 1744, which is the first work so far, which alludes to the Royal Arch, and of which Bro. Hughan possesses an unique copy. Search has been made, in the British Museum, and the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, in vain, for another copy, and unless it be bound up with some other pamphlet of the Dr.'s or some Masonic work, we believe, that the only copy extant is apparently that which belongs to our able Bro. Hughan. We congratulate the Craft, therefore, on this announcement of so interesting a work, and we thank Bro. Hughan by anticipation, for what we know will be valuable, as an archæological contribution from his pen, edifying to his readers, and helpful of Masonic enquiry and historical research.

LAYING THE MEMORIAL STONE OF THE SURREY MASONIC HALL.

On Friday, the 29th ult., the memorial stone of this new hall was laid by Colonel Francis Burdett, Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, on a plot of ground in the Camberwell New-road, near the Post Office. There were a large number of Masons present on the occasion, and many ladies. The brethren appeared in Masonic clothing, for which purpose the following dispensation was granted specially to Bro. James Stevens, the Worshipful Master of the Great City Lodge, No. 1426.

"To the W. Master of "The Great City" Lodge, No. 1426, London.

"You are hereby authorised to assemble the members of your lodge on the 29th day of May instant, in Masonic form and clothing at the site or ground whereon is to be erected The Surrey Masonic Hall, at Camberwell, in the county of Surrey, to assist the R. W. Bro. Lieutenant-Colonel F. Burdett, Prov. Grand Master of Middlesex, in laying with Masonic form and ceremony the first or foundation stone of the said intended Masonic Hall, and you are further permitted to allow any other brethren of the Craft to join in such Masonic ceremony. But you, the Master, are strictly charged not to permit any of the brethren to appear beyond the precincts of the said intended Masonic Hall, in the clothing or jewels of the Order, and that you take especial care that all and every the brethren do conduct themselves with order and decorum, that the credit of the ancient Craft may be maintained, as you may answer to the M. W. Grand Master, and you are further charged to transcribe this dispensation into your minute book, and forthwith to transmit for the M. W. Grand Master's information a detailed account of the proceedings.

"Given at London, this 21st day of May, 1874. By command of the most Honourable the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., &c., M. W. Grand Master.

"JOHN HERVEY, G.S."

The building is intended to be purely classic in architecture, the portico and tower forming a good composition, and will be partly of fire-proof construction. It is being carried out as especially adapted to Masonic purposes in detail, with lodge and chapter-room, banqueting hall, library, billiard-room—having a club in view—kitchen, and offices sufficiently commodious to cook for, say 80 persons, and the cellars are so arranged that each separate chartered body can have its own wine cellar. The portico and vestibule can be made the principal entrance to the large hall or ball-room, which has three other separate entrances, so that when the large hall is being used by the general public, the Masonic portion of the premises will remain perfectly separate. The facade is arranged with an elegant portico, and an octagonal tower rising at rear of same in about the line of general facade over a square base, decorated with statuary, having a mansard roof with ornamental cresting, and dormers to a total of about fifty feet high. The drawings display a large amount of skill in the arrangement of service from kitchen, entrance of goods, entrances and exits of the Freemasons and public, either separately or conjointly, and, on the whole, it may be said that nothing has been neglected which could in any way conduce to the success of the building as far as public requirements are concerned.

The cost of the hall is estimated to be about £6,000, to be subscribed for in shares of £5 each. The shares are not confined to Masons, but are open to outsiders, many of whom are availing themselves of the offer. Bro. Edward Clark (of the firm of Pain and Clark) is the architect, and Bro. John Oliver, of Denmark Hill, is the contractor. The photographs of the design show sufficiently the handsome exterior of the new building, as a work of architecture; Bro. Oliver's high repute as a builder is a good guarantee of the right sort of workmanship for permanency. The central position of the site could scarcely be superseded in point of usefulness, since the roads by rail, tram, and bus radiate from here to almost every part of London; it is almost as central as the Elephant and Castle.

The silver trowel, the Stewards' favors, and the lodge banner, (the Freemasons' Arms) was supplied by Bro. George Kenning, the remainder of the flags and banners by Messrs. Thomson and Son, through the influence of Bro. Mayo, Registrar of Seamen.

The display of bunting was lavish in the extreme, and the assemblage of a vast crowd in the Camberwell New-road bespoke an attraction of no ordinary character. In the interior the arrangements were very complete. The space in front of the stone was carpeted, a high-backed chair elaborately gilded for the Provincial Grand Master being on the right of the stone, and gilded chairs of minor proportions for the Grand Secretary and Deputy Grand Master at a little distance off. Three-fourths of the area were filled with chairs, and a large number of ladies were present. On each side staging had been erected for the accommodation of visitors, and the appearance of the whole was very effective. The brethren, as we have said, mustered very strongly, and all the emblematic decorations were displayed to their fullest advantage. A special lodge was first opened, after which the brethren assembled in the ante-room, and to the strains of the 1st Surrey Rifles' band, marched in procession towards the stone, the juniors taking the lead.

The arrangements generally fell very well on the shoulders of Bro. James Stevens, and to him great praise is due for the admirable manner in which they were carried out. The handsome silver trowel, mentioned hereafter, was a gift to the company by Bro. Clark, the architect. Bro. Oliver, the builder, was very generous in his arrangements for preparing the platforms and decorating the railway arch. In the work he was assisted by Bro. Newington Bridges, of Camberwell, a P.M. of the Macdonald Lodge. The band of the First Surrey Rifles, in uniform, attended by permission of Colonel Gardiner. Amongst the selections of music played was a march, founded on Bro. Stevens' Masonic song, "What better theme than Masonry," and the "Entered Apprentice's Song." The Post office Authorities kindly gave up the use of the ground in rear of their building to enable the brethren to pass in procession to the reception-room and banquet saloon.

Among the brethren present were Bros. H. A. Dubois, Auditor; Edwin Sillifant, Sec.; North Rithardon, Director; Wm. Ramsey, Director; Dr. E. Pinder, Director; E. Richards; J. Heppburn Hastie; G. H. N. Bridges; James Stevens, Director; L. Leftly; D. A. Ross; M. S. Larham, Director; John Oliver, Builder; F. Spooner; E. W. Devereux; J. C. Reynolds, G. Ward, W. W. Peak, Thomas Smale, Arthur Southan, J. H. Vockins, F. S. Lancaster, R. H. Harvey, H. Durham, J. B. Scatliff, C. C. R. Donville, Thomas Bucktam, George Skegg, A. C. Burrell, J. J. Ashburner, E. Col. Burdett said that a few words from him would not be inopportune on this occasion. They were assembled to lay the memorial stone of a building which they hoped would last for a great many years, and be a benefit not only to those who had promoted it, but to the Order in general. He hoped the Craft would support the building which had been undertaken by several members of the Craft, most enthusiastic men and Masons. It was not necessary for him to say much about it, except that he hoped it would be generally supported. (Hear, hear.)

The Rev. P.M. Holden then offered up a solemn prayer, invoking the assistance of the Almighty on the undertaking.

The stone having been duly raised, accompanied by music,

Bro. Edwin Sillifant, the Secretary, read the inscription on the stone.

Then copies of these inscriptions were placed in a casket by Bro. J. T. Moss, a copy of The Times of the 29th May, The Freemason of the 30th May, prospectus of the company, a half-crown, a florin, a shilling, a sixpence, a fourpenny piece, a threepenny piece, a penny, halfpenny, and farthing, all of the current year's coinage. The casket was sealed and placed in a cavity under the stone by Bro. Clark, the architect, who also handed to Colonel Burdett, the silver trowel with which the ceremony of laying was to be performed. Bro. Oliver, the builder, presented Col. Burdett, with the heavy maul, Bro. John Hervey handed the square. Bro. J. C. Parkinson, the level, and Bro. J. T. Moss, the plumb rule. Col. Burdett, adjusted the stone after finding it to be fair work and square work, and such as was ordered to be received for the building, and then adjusted it, declaring it to be well and truly laid, well squared, level, and perpendicular and a "perfect stone." The band during this portion of the ceremony continued to play the music appointed as above-mentioned. When the stone had been laid with these formalities.

Colonel Burdett, turning to the company, said he trusted that the stone just laid might be a memorial of a happy day, and also of happy future prospects. He would now return the square to the Past Master, which he had been permitted to use for ascertaining the correctness of the material laid, and which he had found to be true. The level he would return to the Grand Senior Warden, and the plumb rule to the Grand Junior Warden. In conclusion he must congratulate the brethren on the very successful issue of the day's proceedings thus far. (Cheers.)

Each of these officers having received the above working tools,

Bro James Stevens came forward, and addressing Colonel Burdett, said, Most Worshipful Grand Master, I now present you with a drawing of the building which we hope to see raised on the basis which you have so cordially and kindly done us the honour to lay to-day. We trust, Sir, that the proceedings of this day may make a very lively impression not only on those who attend them, but on other members of our Craft, and lead them to do all they can to render the building thus commenced a credit to the Craft, a useful building for the neighbourhood, and an honour to all concerned in its construction. We have adopted—I am speaking now, brethren, to you especially—one of those principles of our Craft's teaching, without which we cannot be Masons at heart, I mean the principles of "faith." We have had a very great many difficulties to contend with in regard to the formation of this Surrey Masonic Hall; and I tell you this is the third attempt that has been made to build such a place during the last eight or ten years. From laxity on the part of some, and, perhaps, bad management on the part of others, the former undertakings have fallen through; but we have trusted very much to the energy of a few brethren to bring matters now to the present issue, not waiting to come before you till the hall is built, but coming before you at once, and relying on that faith without which the great metropolitan church of St. Paul's would not have been carried out by Sir Christopher Wren, who acted as a Mason should, and never rested till the building was completed. We feel very deeply indebted to you for the honour conferred upon us by your presence on this occasion. On behalf of the directors I beg to express the great pleasure we have in seeing with you here the Grand Secretary, and the most highly respected Deputy Provincial Grand Master from your province. Both for myself and the other directors I beg to thank them and all the others who have kindly assisted by their presence. But allow me to make one other remark before I sit down about the matter for which we have assembled. We trust, sir, at no distant date that it may be our proud privilege to receive you and all others who are now on the premises, on which we are standing, in a finished building to perform the ceremonies of our Order with that decorum together with that pleasure and agreeableness to ourselves in which we know they can be done in suitable buildings. Again thanking you for your attendance to-day, and trusting that the brethren who are not yet shareholders of the Company may give the matter consideration, and join us in carrying out what we feel assured will be profitable pecuniarily to themselves, and of benefit to the Order, I beg to make to you a present of the drawing I mentioned at the beginning of my address, and I trust you will have much pleasure in looking on it in the future, as you have pleasure in being here to-day. (Cheers.)

Colonel Burdett—Bro. Stevens, I receive the picture with very much pleasure, and shall always look on it with lively satisfaction.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson—Colonel Burdett, and brethren, there is one other duty I think we should perform, and which, I believe, we should perform with pleasure, and that is to thank the ladies who are present for their kindness in coming here. The brother who has just spoken alluded to the virtue of "faith," which he says has been largely invoked by the brethren more immediately interested in this undertaking. There is another virtue which we associate with "faith," and which the beautiful faces before me are highly calculated to inspire in the minds of our younger brethren, that of hope. I am quite sure the bachelor Masons who are present must be inspired by the presence of such bright and beautiful faces before them, and feel hope that at no distant day they may bring their wives and daughters to a similar ceremony. Bro. Hervey has asked me thank you for him as well as for myself for your kind remembrance of us. It has given me great pleasure to be present and witness the general tone of harmony which prevails. I am quite sure the provincial Grand Master, whose Deputy I have the honour to be, will look on this ceremony as one of the bright spots in his life.

Sir John Bennett:—We do not forget that this is no ordinary occasion. We have had, as we have been told, previous attempts at construction of a Masonic Hall for Surrey, and failures; I rather like attempts and failures. We are all the stiffer, we are all the better for them, for we are about at last to succeed. We are met as Masons at a time of day unfortunately when many of our brother Masons who would have been here are so occupied with the affairs of every-day life that they cannot come. We do not forget that Masons will have here, "a local habitation," and a home. We do not forget the great purposes of Freemasonry. We know its antiquity, we know its great traditions. Our oldest authentic history, that of the Hebrews, is one in which we find great traditions concerning our Craft, and strange to say, the learning of some of our most able critics of late, possibly through the exposition of the Talmud itself, is likely to bring forward confirmation of it to which we as Freemasons attach due importance. The world's history has led up to the present condition of human civilisation. Every chapter has been a step higher and higher to those very objects which are the cardinal points of the Craft of Masonry, and we are prepared to say this tradition confirms our declaration that through every chapter of the world's history for centuries there is little doubt that Freemasonry has played no insignificant part. In these days of liberty—at least here in England—in these days, we hardly know what it had to do in former ages. Sometimes it held its meetings in secret; but always having within its own circle some of its brightest and best men, thoroughly in earnest, because they knew the danger under which they acted, who kept alive the lamp of faith, of hope, of charity, of the highest human importance, and all those great principles and elements on which we stand as free men in the present time. We have been reminded to-day that we are honoured by the presence of the fair sex, the very fair sex. What women's rights may come to in the future we can hardly tell, but we must build the foundation before we have the superstructure; and certainly looking at the fact of their position in early days, and at the useful and high position which they occupy now, and that they are as intelligent beings taking part in this ceremony, we say that Masonry has had something to do with it; and whether directly or indirectly we hardly know to what extent they are indebted to the honourable Craft of Masonry for the blessings they enjoy. On their behalf I thank you for the compliment you have paid them and on behalf of the brethren. Provincial Grand Master, I have to thank you for the distinguished honour you have conferred upon us by coming here and performing the ceremony of laying the memorial-stone of this building. (Hear, hear.)

Colonel Burdett—Brethren, I feel very much gratified at being here, and I thank you very much for the kind manner in which you have received my endeavours to be of any little service to you. It is not to me that the arrangements which have been made to-day are due. I have had a great deal of credit which I feel I do not deserve; yet if, at any moment, I can do anything to assist the brethren at large, I am happy to do it, and I feel both gratified and pleased, as well as honoured, by taking part in this day's proceedings.

The company, including the ladies, then repaired to the luncheon tent, which was fitted up beneath one of the railway arches with great taste. Striped canvas was placed overhead, and the walls were hung with red and green cloth, producing an agreeable effect to the eye, and being sufficiently cool and ventilated to be very pleasant to visitors who would have to sit for a lengthened period. Colonel Burdett, of course occupied the chair, having Mrs. Burdett on his left, and Bro. J. Stevens on his right. Bro. Hervey, Grand Secretary, Bros. Parkinson, E. Clark, J. Beard, Sir John Bennett, J. T. Moss, C. A. Cottebrune, George Kenning, P. A. Nairne, Dr. Pinder Browne, Middlemas, Vockins, Bridges, Larham, Hastie, Batch, and Forbes, were among the brethren who assisted.

At the conclusion of the elegant repast which was spread,

The Chairman proposed "The Health of the Queen," which having been honoured, he proposed "The Marquess of Ripon, M.W.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, D.G.M., and the Grand Officers, Past and Present," and in doing so expressed his great pleasure at seeing so many present, from his own province of Middlesex, from Surrey, Essex, and even from Scotland. Many as they were, he should have been pleased to see a still greater number. He called upon Bro. Parkinson to respond.

Bro. Parkinson said that he had presumed that he would have to return thanks for the Grand Officers of the year, but he could not conceive that because he held that position he was to return thanks for the Marquess of Ripon. Profoundly grateful as the Grand Officers were of course to the Grand Master for the high distinction conferred on them, their satisfaction was materially heightened by the manifestations of generous approval which, on all occasions, greeted their appointments. (Hear, hear.) They were fully conscious that it was from no superior merit of their own, that they had attained their present position, but rather from circumstances having enabled them to render services which any Mason would be glad to perform, which many Masons had performed, but which, in the Grand Officers' case, had had the good fortune to come to the Grand Master's knowledge, and to be stamped with his approbation. No one knew better than the Grand Officer addressing them, that among the Grand Master's Masonic subjects there were hundreds and thousands of members who would make unexceptionable Grand Officers, who were excluded from the position only by the inexorable law of numbers, and who would, if called upon, be felt satisfied, willingly undertake the position even with the oratorical responsibilities which he himself found so heavy. He would only say that on behalf of the large and influential body of Grand Officers of England, for whom he had been asked to respond, they earnestly trusted they would be enabled to perform their duties, and when the time came for putting off their armour, they must be thought worthy to join that band of whom it might be said, in the choice and significant language of Holy Writ, "They have done what they could." (Cheers.)

The Chairman said, although he had spoken several times before, he found he had another toast to propose, which he felt would come home to every one present. They had all been much gratified with the proceedings that had taken place that day, and he must say that he had been as much gratified as they with the proceedings and the arrangements. So, gratified was he, that he felt they would be content in the performance of their duty.

were not to propose "Success to the Surrey Masonic Hall and the Health of the Chairman and Committee, who had carried out the work." No doubt they had all had very hard work to do; indeed they had had an uphill game to play. Now they had rolled the stone to the top of the hill he hoped they would have an easy descent, and finally arrive at the place which would place them in a comfortable position, so that hereafter they must say "We assembled here on a certain day, we had a great deal to do before that; here we are floating comfortably, and have succeeded in getting not only the support of the brethren at large, but the public generally as well." (Hear, hear.) He did not believe that it was possible for men to have exerted themselves more energetically than the Chairman and Committee of this company, and he thought no one could accuse them of any deficiency in their duty, therefore he had very much pleasure in proposing "Prosperity to the Surrey Masonic Hall Company," and of coupling with it the name of "The Chairman of the Company, Bro. James Stevens." (Applause.)

Bro. James Stevens said that on behalf of those who were interested in the Masonic Hall Company he begged to return very sincere thanks for the support which had been accorded that day to the endeavours that had been made to bring the business of laying the memorial stone to a successful issue. He trusted, as he had said before, that the work commenced that day would be added to, and cemented together, and become of lasting use to the Craft, and the neighbourhood, and to all with whom they must be associated in respect of their Masonic Order. To the chairman, as well as to those who had attended, they were very much indebted for the élat that had attended the proceedings, and he hoped that the result would be to prove to many of the brethren who were present that they had to support members of the Order who stood in an exalted position in regard to Freemasonry, to follow whom could be no small honour, and and other brethren whom they met in the social world, for whom they entertained the highest regard, and who had arrived at such a position in the attainment of civic and other distinctions as to be of great aid to the company in carrying on their work. But great as they might be, desirous as they might be to help, this was more of a universal matter, this Masonic Hall, and the directors had to look to the suffrages, not of the few but of the many, and it was in order to make it the success they wished that they now asked the assistance of Masons who desired to carry out the principles that they all shared in respect to such matters. The Directors had shewn that there really was something like a body in the undertaking they had in hand. They did not ask for any large amount; they had a certain number of shares which they were desirous should be taken up by the Masonic world, and they would rather that the shares should be taken up by units, rather than by tens and scores. What they wanted was to obtain the sympathy of the greatest number of the Craft that they could. He would not say that they would think more highly, because that would be stupid flattery, of the man who held one share, than the man who held a dozen; but they thought quite as highly of him. They wanted the individuals to take the shares. They would rather have 10,000 shareholders than 5,000, and he could assure them if they would support the undertaking they would not be losers by it. In a Masonic sense they ought not perhaps to expect anything; but in a commercial sense, added to the Masonic, he could perhaps say they would be able to give from 5 to 9 per cent. At all events they would give what they could. The want of some such place in the neighbourhood for other than Masonic purposes had not been lost sight of, and when this hall was completed he believed there would be a great demand for the accommodation they could afford, to an extent which must pay the shareholders a good percentage. (Cheers.) This was clear by the evidence of those men who had attempted to give entertainments in this particular neighbourhood. With regard to the Masonic conveniences which would be provided, the hall would be a great advantage in removing their meetings from the influence of taverns and public-houses, which alone ought to be duly appreciated by the wives and sweethearts of Masons. (Hear, hear.) There were but very few people who had any mind at all who would be likely to sneer at this, very few indeed among Masons, and those who might be tempted to do so were surely not imbued with what we consider the first point among Masons, the desire to be good, moral, and social men, to do all that they could in regard to matters in connection with the Masonic Order, but at the same time not to forget that they had homes and wives and children (cheers). It was because they believed that they could form an institution like this that they should be able to succeed in taking our Masonic ceremonies away from taverns, that they should be doing good to their own kind as far as the men were concerned, and only what was just and proper, and their duty to do as far as their kindred were concerned in doing it as a matter of commercial duty (hear hear) and separating Masonry from the connection he had alluded to. He therefore trusted that the enterprise would be supported warmly, and it would be a great pleasure to the board of directors to find at their next meeting a large number of applications for single shares, even in preference to applications for greater numbers of shares. He assured them that this was rather a proud moment for him. He did not pretend to arrogate to himself any particular position in regard to the undertaking, but as he had been connected with the first endeavour to form the hall, which failed and the second endeavour to form the hall, which failed also, finding himself connected with the third in which they had at last arrived at laying the memorial stone, he had reason, he thought, to feel a little bit satisfied. He felt that what he had endeavoured to do in connection with the other undertakings of the last ten years was meeting with something of a reward by the proud position of himself and his co-directors. He was proud to see Sir John Bennett present, as well as the Colonel of his own regiment, to whom the company were indebted for the presence of the band, and as sure as his name was Stevens, there would, please God, be a meeting in that large room before eight months were over of a large number of Masons. The way to help them was to fill up the share list, and he was happy to say that the Chairman, Bro. Beard, and several others who were present, had just sent in applications for shares. He then proposed "The Civic Authorities," coupling with the toast the names of Sir John Bennett and Bro. Beard.

Bro. Beard replied, although much had been said, not only by their esteemed Chairman, and others, about the perseverance and assiduity with which the committee had carried on their duties, he thought too much encouragement could not be given them by praising them for what they had done. They were indebted to Bro. Stevens for the success of this affair, for, to the present time; and he was speaking without intending the slightest compliment when he expressed the fervent hope that his health might be spared to exercise his talents and usefulness to such an extent as to render the present a successful undertaking. (Applause.) The very happy way he had of placing the case before them would induce any one to give it support by taking a little money from his pocket, although, when he came there, he (Bro. Beard) had not thought of taking shares in the Company, when he found men at the head of affairs with such a pilot to guide them, if he had been asked to double the number of his shares he should have done so. He believed the undertaking would turn out a successful one. Bro. Stevens had frequently made some excellent remarks on the duty of charity, and when the civic authorities had their health drunk, it would not be out of place when the person who responded for the toast said, that nothing gave the civic authorities more pleasure than to assist in the work of charity. (Cheers.)

Bro. J. T. Moss proposed "The Press," and said that every one in England felt proud of it. Whenever there was anything done, there was always a satisfaction in finding that it was recorded by gentlemen connected with the press.

Bro. Massey responded for The Freemason. Bro. Stevens proposed "The Health of the Chairman," who was one of those Masons who had endeared himself thoroughly to every brother who knew him in his own province of Middlesex, Surrey, in Ireland, and elsewhere. It was therefore peculiarly gratifying to have him as their Chairman on an occasion like the present. Masonic ceremonies like that they had just observed were far more frequent in the provinces than in London. By the dispensation of the Grand Master they were allowed in the country, and as a rule countrymen had a greater opportunity of seeing Masonic ceremonies than we of the metropolis. The Grand Master only granted his dispensation to those brethren who he thought would see that the ceremonies were properly carried out. If anything went wrong the Grand Master would be to blame, and so he looked after the character of the person to whom he granted the dispensation. Without their Bro. Colonel Burdett there would have been little chance of their meeting as they had done, and with the knowledge they had themselves of his ability in Masonry and his fitness to see the ceremony properly performed, it was a duty they owed him to pass a vote of thanks to him for what he had done. He would therefore ask them to drink his health.

The Chairman said he was greatly obliged for the brethren's kindness. They were so much indebted to their Bro. Holden, who had acted as Chaplain, that he should now propose his health, as one who had that evening offered a suitable and appropriate prayer on the laying of the foundation stone of this Masonic Hall. They ought to be very much indebted to him for coming to assist, and for the very eloquent way in which he had performed his duties.

The Rev. P.M. Holden said—Bro. Colonel Burdett, ladies and gentlemen, it has been quite an unexpected pleasure for me to have my health proposed this afternoon. I have done so very little that I have hardly deserved the mention of my name. However, I beg to thank you very much indeed for the warm and kind manner in which you have responded to the toast. There is one other toast, if the toasts are now supposed to be at an end, which with your permission I will now propose. I ask to propose it because in former days a knight and a gentleman was considered, and he was said to be the champion of God and the ladies; and I really do not know that a clergyman could be spoken of in better terms than calling him a champion of God and the ladies. Most of you know very well that by the rules of precedence, those who are of the very highest rank should always go last, and it is upon that rule of precedence that we generally propose "The Health of the Ladies" as one of the last, though not the very least of the toasts. It is an acknowledged fact that in all pleasures and amusements the ladies take a first and foremost place. It is their fascinating presence, their bewildering beauty, and their graceful assistance, which lends a charm, and the greatest charm to all our public meetings, and to all our pleasant and social gatherings. I do not think we of the rougher sex are at all sufficiently aware of the very great debt we owe to the ladies, and it occurs to me at the present moment that in reading (this is true all the world over) the travels of Mungo Park, he particularly says that though a homeless stranger, though very often cruelly ill-treated by the men, whenever he was in distress, whenever he stood in need of any assistance, he always found the hearts of the women not near so black as their faces—(cheers)—whatever ill-usage he met with, he tells us that he was always sure to find assistance from the women of the village wherever he happened at that time to be. Now, of course the ladies of England cannot for a single moment compete in complexion with those ladies who were so good and kind to Mungo Park; but still I will venture to say that their hearts are as warm, and still warmer by the cultivation of their minds; and therefore, gentlemen, I should say, without detaining you any longer, I give you "The Health of Ladies," who are present on this occasion, and many thanks to them for having contributed so very largely to the enjoyment of to-day; and, perhaps, you will allow me to put that toast in a manner in which I once heard it put on the other side of the Atlantic, in the United States. A gentleman on that occasion who had given the toast of "The Ladies," concluded by saying, "And now, gentlemen, I give you the toast of 'The Ladies,' the most enduring tribunal, who rule without law, decide without appeal, and are never wrong." (Laughter.)

Bro. Bethell responded.

The Chairman in proposing "The Health of Bro. E. Clark, the Architect," said they could not do less than drink the health of one who had been instrumental in carrying out the proceedings and the works before them which they had seen. They ought thoroughly to study plans, specifications, elevations, and so forth, in order to understand the real value of the architect's work. The building of the place was a minor consideration; it was on the architect's portion of the work that the greatest amount of intellectual labour was expended. He must mention that Bro. Clark was a Past Superintendent of Works in his own Province of Middlesex, and he was most proud of having him in that position. He was also a Past Master of his (the chairman's) best lodge, he was going to say, but that would be hardly right, as they were all best. They were all working equally well, but he might say that Bro. Clark was one of the best working members of the whole of the province. (cheers.)

Bro. Clark in reply said that although he had been much praised by the Chairman for his work, that work had been to him a labour of love. He could only add that this was one of the few efforts which would be brought before the notice of the public to rescue the Craft in general from the influence of the taverns. Most working Masons were very desirous their meetings should be free from what he must term the taint of the tavern. As a rule it was not a fit place for Masons to meet in. It certainly had some small amount of bad influence on the brethren; at any rate their wives were happier when Masons met at Masonic Halls. This small work would be a very great success; to his mind it was bound to be so. They could isolate their Masonic meetings and go on with their working without any disturbance. With regard to this locality, it especially required such an establishment, for he thought they had not anything of the kind nearer than a mile off. The Horns was nearly a mile—a most respectable house—but still it was some distance away; but in other directions there was not a good-sized place within from perhaps two to three miles in which general meetings and entertainments could be held.

Bro. Stevens proposed "The Health of the Chairman and Lady Burdett." Having alluded to the high estimation in which he was held by the Masonic world he expressed his gratification at seeing him amongst them on this occasion. He also spoke of the great honour which the Grand Master had conferred upon him in deputing him to be his representative at the laying of this memorial stone.

The Chairman in reply said he felt great difficulty in responding to the toast, which had been so kindly and flatteringly brought forward by Bro. Jas. Stevens. He knew he had done a great deal in Masonry, but still if it had not been for the support he had received from such brethren as Bro. Stevens and other brethren of the Province to which he belonged, he should never have held the office he now did. Masons always supported their Grand Officers, and he himself felt very much flattered by the way in which he had been received and supported, and especially in being then present. He would never forget this event in his life. It would be an event which would be marked in red letters hereafter. He did what he could for Freemasonry, not from the mere simple fact of being brought forward as Provincial Grand Master, but to advance the interests of the Masonic Charities and Masonry in general. If it were not for the Charities, the Order would not be looked upon as anything at all. In the Girls' School there were 128 or 130 girls clothed, educated and supported, in the Boys' School 146 Boys, and in the Benevolent Institution for old men and women, who had served their time in Masonry, a long list of recipients of bounty on the books. Masons must be proud of what they were doing. Masons not only did this but they had their convivial meetings, all of which tended to the cause of the charities, and he looked on the whole of Masonry as tending towards faith, hope, and charity, and he trusted that every member not only there present but who must be initiated into the order in the grand temple which was going to be erected, would be induced not only to look to his own preferment in the Order, but also to his preferment in the Masonic Charities, that he would be hereafter enabled to wear what was called the Masonic jewel, that individuals only obtained by certain subscriptions to the charities and by assistance given to the charities, which they believed to be the foundation of all Freemasonry. The ladies were not forgotten by the Order, but were upheld as the principal patrons and supporters, and in any case where they could do anything in the Benevolent Institution for ladies connected with the Order to whom anything unfortunate had happened, they always did it. He hoped that none present would think that the Masons were present merely to take part in a ceremony or banquet, or something of that sort, but that they wished by this means to encourage others to come to them, and he hoped assist in the Masonic Charities, and to help those who were really in want. They did not come in their gold collars and aprons merely to shew themselves, but for some really good Masonic purpose. Wherever he found the brethren he was happy to meet them, and wherever he met them he found a cordial reception. He also thanked them for their kindness in not forgetting his wife.

Bro. Oliver, in replying to the toast of "The Health of the Builder" said he had done all he possibly could to render this building a success. He and Bro. Clark, the Architect, had been up till twelve o'clock the night before about it, and again at six that morning. He was very much pleased that the affair had gone off so well, and that the Chairman and brethren approved of their efforts. (Cheers.)

The company then separated.

The luncheon was supplied by Messrs. J. and T. Hannan (Littlejohn's), King William-street, City, under the superintendance of their chef, Mr. T. W. Phillips.

PRESENTATION OF AN ADDRESS TO THE R.W. THE J.G.W. OF ENGLAND.

On Wednesday, the 20th instant, a lodge of emergency was held by command of the W.M. of the St. Oswald Lodge No. 850, in the Lodge-room, Town Hall, Ashbourne, Derbyshire.

The lodge was opened in due form at two p.m., by Bro. Hornsey Casson, W.M., P.P.G.O. of Derbyshire, who stated to the brethren present that the special object of their meeting that day was to present the congratulatory address to their acting P.G.M., Bro. Okeover, who, as they all were aware, had lately been raised to the dignity of J.G. Warden of England. For this purpose, he proposed, now, to adjourn the lodge to the Museum, at Okeover, whither, in the name of their R. Worshipful brother, he now had the pleasure to invite all the brethren present.

The Museum had been fitted up by Bro. Okeover as a most convenient and pleasing lodge-room, and when all the brethren were duly assembled, the W.M. resumed the lodge, and the Right Worshipful the Prov. D.G.M. was received with the honour due to his exalted station.

The W.M. then stated to Bro. Okeover the object of their visit, and thanked him in the name of all the brethren for the opportunity he had afforded them of presenting this address at his own house, where so many evidences were afforded, that he and his predecessors had indeed made the "liberal arts and sciences" their especial care and study. By command of the W.M.,

Bro. Holland, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., of Derbyshire, rose and said, that as mover of the address from the lodge, it was his pleasing duty first to address the R.W. brother. He was, at the same time, proud and somewhat sad to remember that he was at present the only subscribing member of the St. Oswald lodge who was a member when Bro. Okeover was initiated, now some ten years ago. He would not take up any more valuable time, but simply say that he trusted Bro. Okeover would consider that every word in the address now about to be presented was the heartfelt feeling of every brother in the lodge, and not a mere formal expression of congratulation.

Bro. Lister, P.M., P.P.S.G.D., the seconder of the address, spoke in similar terms.

The Worshipful Master then said that nothing remained to be done, but to beg Bro. Okeover's acceptance of the address of congratulation, which he assured him, speaking as the voice of the whole lodge, was the unanimous expression of the feelings of the brethren. It gave him great pleasure to inform Bro. Okeover that it was signed by every present subscribing member of the lodge, and he could assure the Right Worshipful Bro. that the absence of the few brethren who were not present on that occasion was in every case the result of very urgent and unavoidable circumstances. It would ill become him, in Bro. Okeover's presence to say all that the brethren thought with regard to their newly-honoured D.P.G.M., but he could assure him that had he been present at the lodge when the address was voted, he would at any rate have proved the fallacy of the adage, that listeners never hear any good of themselves. Bro. Okeover had endeared himself to every brother with whom he had come in contact, and he (the W.M.) held up the career of Bro. Okeover as a high example to every young Mason. Well had he carried out all the principles, as taught him by the different degrees through which he had passed. His true Masonic Charity, his cultured mind and devotion to the liberal arts and sciences, and his willingness and desire at all times to lend himself to the instruction and welfare of all his inferior brethren, proved him a just and upright Mason, who had profited by the teaching of each successive degree. In the name of the St. Oswald Lodge, he begged Bro. Okeover's acceptance of the congratulatory address.

Bro. Okeover said that "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," was not literally true in his case, for out of the abundance of his heart at that moment he found it very difficult to speak. He could assure the brethren that nothing in the whole course of his life had ever given him greater feelings of gratification than receiving that kind expression of the congratulations of his brethren. He felt that he was unworthy of the flattering terms in which he had been spoken of that day, but he assured the brethren one and all that the high honours conferred upon him, foremost among which he esteemed that expression of feeling on the part of the brethren of his Mother Lodge, would have the effect of making him more zealous in his Masonic duties, and more anxious to make himself worthy of the good opinion which it gratified him to find the brethren of his province had of him. He could only thank the brethren for the beautifully executed work of art in which their sentiments were expressed, and he could assure them that it would be treasured up by himself and his children as one of the most valued of their heir-looms. After labour comes refreshment, and he hoped that all the brethren present would now adjourn to the dining room, where they would find something which he hoped would prove acceptable to them after their long walk.

The W.M. then thanked their host for his hospitality, which they all accepted with pleasure. The brethren after partaking of an excellent collation, enjoyed a walk through the picture galleries, which contain many well known master pieces, and after spending a most pleasant afternoon adjourned back again to their lodge-room, when the lodge was closed in due form.

The address, which is in the form of a letter, is a very beautiful specimen of the of illumination, it was executed by Messrs. Benson of Derby, and was as follows:—

"To the Right Worshipful Haughton Charles Okeover of Okeover, Esq., D.L. Junior Grand Warden, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire, &c., &c.

"Right Worshipful Sir and Brother, "We the undersigned, W.M., Past Masters, Wardens, and brethren of the St. Oswald Lodge of Ancient, Free and Accepted Masters, No. 850, in regular lodge assembled, having learnt that it has pleased the M.W. the Marquess of Ripon, Grand Master of England, to confer upon you the high office and dignity of a Grand Warden, hasten to convey to you the congratulations of this your Mother Lodge, which has the honour to number you among its Past Masters. We feel assured that all the other lodges in this Province, which has, under your rule as its Deputy Grand Master, made such distinguished progress in Masonry, most cordially share with us the feeling that the honour conferred upon you is but a just reward of the eminent services you have, during the whole of your Masonic career, rendered to Masonry in general, and this Province and lodge in particular, and that we and they are sensible of the high honour which from you reflects upon all over whom you preside.

That it may please the Great Architect of the Universe to grant you life and health long to enjoy the honours and perform the duties of Masonry, and that the rays of Heaven may shine upon you and yours with every blessing is the earnest prayer of Your most obedient servants and attached brethren, J. Hornsby Casson, W.M., P.P.G.O., Derbyshire; J. S. Whitham, I.P.M., P.P.G.S. Bearer, Derbyshire; H. M. Wood, J.W., W. R. Holland, P.M., J.W., P.P.S.G.W.; and others.

(Signed by every member of the lodge.)

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdues cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsey, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 12s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesaled by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough.

Invaders should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had gratis of all Chemists.

BRADFORD.—Lodge of Hope (No. 302.)—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 1st instant, at the Masonic Hall, Godwin-street. There were present Bros. B. Brighton, W.M.; H. Farrow, S.W.; M. S. Rhodes, J.W.; Rev. Vaile, Chaplain, J. Clarke, Treas.; F. G. Andrews, Sec.; James Ambler, S.D.; Hamilton, I.D.; Fettinger, I.G.; Holmes, O.G.; and the following P.M.'s—Bros. F. Hill, M. Rhodes, W. Mawson, W. Ibbetson, A. Hunter, W. Bearland, C. H. Taylor, W. W. Barlow, R. Richardson, J. J. Schaeppi, C. Pratt, S. B. Walmsley, W. H. Evans, J. Foster, F. Senior, J. G. Hutchinson, and many other brethren and visitors, amongst whom we noticed Bros. Rev. R. W. Loosemore, Rev. J. Hollywood, William Firth, J. W. Holmes, Samuel P. Firth, and W. C. Lupton of the Pentalfa, 974, also Samuel Hurd, of the Fidelity, 289, and J. Davis, of the Eccleshill 1034. There not being any business before the lodge, the W.M., by request, delivered a lecture "On the General Principles and Advantages of Freemasonry," which was listened to with rapt attention during the fifty minutes it took to deliver. At its conclusion the visitors were invited to refreshment, where the W.M. again presided, and gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were rapturously received by the brethren with Masonic honours. Bro. Rev. J. W. Loosemore, Prov. G. Chaplain, on being called upon by the W.M., responded on behalf of the Grand Officers, and in doing so said that whilst he knew it was a satisfaction to the brethren of his lodge that he should receive the appointment he held, it was equally so to him, and he desired to thank them for the manner in which the toast had been proposed and received. Referring to the lecture of the W.M., they had had the pleasure of listening to, he felt that the principles propounded in it were such as any Freemason might well adopt and endeavour to carry out. He would leave it to the other Prov. Grand Officers to respond for themselves, he would only say that as he felt it the highest privilege to be admitted a member of the fraternity, so he felt that if all endeavoured to act up to the principles it inculcated they would be the better men for so doing. Bro. H. Smith, P.M., Prov. Grand Secretary, being called upon by the W.M., said in thanking them for the compliment, he esteemed it the highest honour to be associated with the Prov. Grand Officers, and also with the Lodge of Hope, and thanked the W.M. very much for what he had said in proposing the toast. He would also wish to express to them how very highly the D.P.G.M. esteemed the brethren of Bradford, especially for their liberality to the Masonic charities. For himself he must say that his duties were much lightened by the admirable way in which the proceedings of lodges were conducted, and on behalf of the Prov. Grand Officers and himself, tendered them most hearty thanks for the way in which their names had been received. Bro. W. Bearland, P.M., Prov. G.S. of W., being called upon by the W.M., said—Brethren, you know I don't make long speeches, and I can only ask you, to adopt the language of other assemblies, to accept all I should say "as read." Bro. J. D. Sugden, P.M., Prov. G. Pursuivant, said he felt it a high honour to be placed in the position he held, and he would do all he could for the good of the Craft. Bro. Evans, M.D., P.M., being called upon by the W.M. to give the next toast, said were it not that you are, as it were, the Emperor of all the Russias, I should prefer being silent, but I must obey. The toast, brethren, which I have to propose I am sure will commend itself to you all, namely, "The Clergy and Ministers of all denominations." I am certain could all ministers, I might say the whole community, have heard the excellent lecture which has been delivered to us to-night, they might fully endorse every sentiment contained in it. I only wish we and all others could follow up and put in practice the principles enunciated in it, and then the world would be much improved. The Ministers do much, very much in the same direction for their fellow men, and we owe them a deep debt. I call upon you then to wish them very good health. The W.M. in first calling upon Bro. Rev. J. Vaile, Chaplain of the Lodge to respond, said he hoped that Bro. Rev. T. H. Flynn, P. Prov. Grand Chaplain would not feel slighted at speaking behind a "Veil." Bro. Rev. J. Vaile in thanking the W.M. and brethren, said that the lecture to which they had listened that night struck him with astonishment as to the amazing similarity it bore to the sermons he had himself preached, and he must say it was a matter of great congratulation on our part that a layman could give utterance to such exalted and noble sentiments. It seemed to me to contain a great theology, that of the incarnation of the Son of God. That assures to all the one great sentiment that Freemasonry is so proud of, that God reconciles all the human race. It is through such doctrines we receive that grand feeling of love to our neighbours, and no minister could better enlarge upon that grand principle you have enunciated to-night. The interest felt by the brethren was sufficiently seen by the patient way in which they listened for the fifty minutes it took in the delivery. But I must not trespass longer upon your time, but conclude by thanking you very sincerely for the way in which you have thought of the clergy and ministers, and I hope to visit you on future occasions when this post is occupied by other and more worthy brethren. Bro. Rev. T. H. Flynn, P. Prov. Grand Chaplain, being called upon said if Bro. Vaile felt any difficulty, the W.M. had placed him in a greater one. But he was one of those who liked short measures. He did not like long speeches nor long sermons. Bro. Vaile had well responded, and he could endorse what he had said. He had well spoken of the lecture he had heard, and he must say it had afforded him great pleasure. He always was gratified when he had the opportunity of being amongst them, and he wished to add his hearty thanks for their kind wishes towards the clergy and ministers of all denominations. Bro. Rev. Hollywood being also called upon said he did not know whether it was a post of honour being called upon to pick up the odds and ends after what had been said. But, said he, I cordially thank you for the way, not only on this but all other occasions, you have received the clergy, and expressed the pleasure it afforded him to attend these meetings and trusted they might be able always to meet and act together as brethren. The W. Master then rose and said, I have a duty to discharge, yet do not feel competent to propose in adequate terms the next toast, that of "The Visitors," but I trust they will feel that they have received a true Masonic welcome, and, if I fail to fully express our kindly feeling towards them, I trust they will know that the brethren especially honour this toast, and that it is not drunk as a mere matter of form, but that we feel what we say, that we offer them a truly Masonic welcome. We feel that we are as one family, and the Lodge of Hope is the first to offer the hand of good fellowship to all visitors, and I want you to feel that we give you a hearty welcome on this and all other occasions, and I call upon my brethren to let our visitors see that this toast is given right heartily. Bro. Foster W.M., in responding, said on behalf of the Visiting Brethren, and especially those of the Pentalfa, and myself, I thank you. I may say we came here with great expectations, and they have been more than realised. In the lecture which your W.M. has given to-night you have well expounded the noble principle on which Freemasonry is based, and we shall retire from the effects of the lecture with greater determination to follow out the grand principles of Freemasonry. Whilst thanking you heartily for the manner in which the visitors have been received, allow me to say that if you will return our visit the brethren of the Pentalfa will endeavour to give you as warm a welcome as you have given us. Bro. J. G. Hutchenson (P.M. Eccleshill) being also called upon to respond said: W.M., Officers and brethren, my position this evening may be said to be somewhat peculiar. So soon as I received the invitation of the W.M., I knew I should have a great treat, and I hope you won't think what I am going to say out of place. I heard the lecture with great pleasure, but although you may hear a thing, unless you can take it home with you, you soon lose it. In connection with what the W.M. has said an intelligent mind may well follow it up and derive great benefit. I have not heard the principles of Freemasonry so well expounded before. One peculiar feature was the quotations the W.M. gave from the writings of men who have given a life time to their study, reflections we can well appreciate. Passing from that it would be remiss in me if I did not thank you much for your kind reception. I can only tell you that when I visit the Hope I always do so with pleasure. Bro. M. Rhodes, P.M. (Mayor of Bradford), rose and said—W.M., I shall take the gavel out of your hands for once. The W.M. rules over this lodge with kindness, but there is one here greater than the W.M. One of my brethren says I am W.M. of the whole town. Well a great deal has been said—not too much—for the excellent lecture we have heard to-night. No one entertains a higher opinion of it than I do, and it will be well if we try to put in practice the principles expounded in it. I thought during the evening I wish I could say something to our younger brethren to follow in your shoes, W.M., and endeavour to follow in your shoes in preparing lectures for our edification. I don't know that I have ever been more interested than this evening, and let us hope that we may soon again have a like pleasure. Brethren, I ask you to join with me in drinking "The good Health of the W.M." The W.M., on rising to respond said: Worthy P.M.'s and brethren, the enthusiastic reception which you have given to the toast places me in a somewhat invidious position, for I have not words in which to thank you. I can only say I heartily thank P.M. Rhodes and you all, brethren, for the way in which that toast has been proposed and received by you. Yesterday, when on our way to that church to which I am accustomed to go, we had a few words respecting the lecture to be given this evening, and although Sunday, I don't think it was wrong. He asked me how long it would take to deliver, and I said about fifty minutes, when he thought it would be desirable to shorten it. Brethren, I am glad that Bro. P.M. Rhodes has recanted his opinion, as he said this evening, and I only hope that the lecture seemed as short to you. Bro. Rhodes, P.M., has asserted his position as Master of all the Borough, then one of our brethren has said I am an autocrat. Brethren, as long as I sit in this chair, I maintain that my power is absolute, but not autocratic. I maintain there is a great difference. At this hour I wish not to detain you, but desire to say a word or two as to the lecture. I think it is the duty of every brother to do all he can for the Craft, and that it is most desirable we should have occasional lectures, the various principles and precepts inculcated in Freemasonry being so admirably calculated for exposition, and the advantage of all who know and practice them. The preparation of the lecture given this evening has afforded me much pleasure, at the same time it has been a tax upon my time, and often robbed nature of her just dues, and deprived me of what one of your poets has spoken of as "tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep." Brethren, you, especially of the Lodge of Hope, know it has always been my wish to do all in my power for the cause of Freemasonry, and I trust that so long as I occupy this chair, or in any other capacity, I shall carry out those great principles which I have so feebly endeavoured to promulgate. The W.M. before sitting down proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," terming them the backbone of the lodge, and if any W.M. had not their support he could not succeed. Bro. Thomas Hill, P.M., excused himself from making a long speech, owing to the lateness of the hour, but on behalf of the P.M.'s responded in a few terse and appropriate sentences. The W.M. proposed the health of "The Officers," complimenting them on the very efficient way in which they discharged their duties. Bro. Hanson Farrar, S.W., thanked the W.M. for the compliment paid to the officers, and congratulated him on the very successful evening, and thanked him for the excellent lecture he had given them, and thought the lessons he had propounded in his lecture taught us, as officers, it was our duty to attend to the principles therein explained. Bro. T. N. Andrews, Sec., in responding apologised for being rather late at his post that evening owing to certain circumstances, he was going to say "over which he had no control." The W.M. did not omit to notice this, and he could only say that he had an eye of an eagle, if not of an autocrat. His eye was more powerful than words. I confess when I saw it I felt as one who had done wrong. Brethren, you look on an officer who has once done wrong, and if I do wrong another time it will be the second. I may say, however, that here, as elsewhere, we shall, as officers, endeavour to do our duty. The Tyler's toast brought the very pleasurable and instructive evening's proceedings to a termination, and it would be well if, as in this case, when there is no other business lectures could be given if merely "pour passer le temps." We should be remiss did we not allude to the very excellent harmony so freely discoursed during the evening, to the gratification of all, by our able Bro. F. C. Atkinson, Mus. Bac. Cantab, and other brethren.

LEICESTER.—John of Gaunt Lodge (No. 523).—The regular meeting took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Thursday, May 21st, when there was a large attendance. The candidate whose name was upon the summons for initiation not being present, the principal business was the election of the W.M. for the ensuing year. On the ballot being taken it was found to be unanimous in favour of the S.W., Bro. S. S. Partridge, P.G. Sec., who in appropriate terms thanked the brethren for the honour conferred on him. The festival was fixed to take place on St. John's Day. After the transaction of formal business the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. There was an unusually large attendance of P.M.'s and members to do honour both to the retiring W.M., Bro. F. J. Baines, and the W.M. elect, who are deservedly much esteemed by the members. It may be mentioned that the W.M. elect, Bro. Partridge, has worked his way to the chair through all the offices, and in the Lodge of Instruction has given repeated proofs of his thorough acquaintance with the ritual; he has also filled the office of P.G. Sec. for the last two or three years. It is only reasonable to suppose that under his rule the prosperity of the lodge will be more than maintained.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, E.C., when the following brethren were present:—Bros. William Worrell, W.M.; A. Braun, S.W.; G. J. Kain, P.M. and Sec.; George Newman, P.M.; B. Abbott, P.M.; John Newton, P.M.; R. H. Whiteman, P.M.; W. M. Newton, S.D.; also Bros. A. C. Rees, C. J. Chellam, C. R. Cutmore, H. J. Roberts, W. Johnston, F. Ince, J. A. Keen, G. H. Davies, H. Reissmann, E. B. Bloomhall, J. F. Honey, H. F. Partridge, R. Lyon, L. Reinhardt, W. E. Newton, P. Steinmann. Visitors, Bros. J. Jones, S.W. 715; J. W. White, 917; F. Frott, P.M. 192; G. Abbott, P.M. 192; G. W. Lay, 569. The business of the evening consisted of the initiation of Mr. John Robert Williams and Mr. Robert Sutcliffe, the passing of Bros. Reissmann, Davies, Broomhall, and Reinhardt, and the raising of Bros. Keen, Johnston and Lyon. All Masonic business being ended the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent supper, presided over by the W.M., the usual Masonic toasts being duly honoured.

JERSEY.—Lodge La Césarée (No. 590).—The anniversary meeting of this large and influential lodge was held on Thursday, May 28th, at the Masonic Temple, and was as usual well attended, though, owing to the peculiar occupations of many of the inhabitants in connection with shipping, some of the members are prevented from presence on all occasions. The chair was taken soon after four o'clock, by Bro. Ph. W. Binet, a worthy successor to a sire, who in all his actions endeavours to carry out Masonic principles, and who must have regarded with intense interest the successful termination of his son's year of office in the chair which he had vacated 15 years previously. The W.M. was supported by Bro. J. Pallot, S.W.; H. E. Durell, J.W.; J. Gregg, I.P.M., and P.G. Org.; A. Schmitt, Sec., and P. Prov. G.S.W.; J. Durell, Treas., and P. Prov. G.S.W.; A. Viel, P.M., and P. Prov. G.S.W.; J. Oatley, F.M., P.G.S.D.; G. J. Renouf, P.M., P.G.J.W.; Dr. H. Hopkins, Hon. Member, and P. Prov. G.S.W., for Warwickshire; Capt. Messervy, J.D.; Capt. D. Pallot, I.G.; and a goodly number of members. Among the visitors present we observed the Rev. Stewart Patterson, P. Prov. G.M., of the province of Manatoga, Canada; C. Kingsworth, P.M., 245; P.M. Nicolle, J.D. 84, Guernsey; E. Martell, W.M. 491, P.G.D.C.; J. O. Le Sœur, P.M. 491, and P.G. Secretary; E. L. Bennett, W.M. 244; P. W. Benham, P.M. 244, and P.G. Treas.; H. Follett, and others. The lodge was opened in the first degree and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. It was then opened in the second degree, and the chair was taken by the venerable and highly respected Bro. Schmitt, who always acts as Installing Master, being as apt in the performance of this important ceremony as he is in the working of all other Masonic rites. Bro. Pallot was presented as the W.M. elect, by Bros. P. W. Binet and J. Gregg. After the preliminary proceedings had been completed, the lodge was opened in the third degree. The brethren who had not passed the chair were then called upon to withdraw, leaving an array of nearly 20 Past Masters. The ceremony of installation was duly carried out, and Bro. Pallot, was placed in the chair of King Solomon. On the return of the brethren, the customary proclamations, processions, and greetings were made, and the impressive addresses to the W.M., officers, and members were delivered. It is worthy of notice that at this early stage of his career as a Masonic ruler, the W.M. proved his competency for the position to which he had been appointed by addressing each officer on his investiture, entering into full details on the duties appertaining to it, in a manner of which but few are capable. The following were the appointments made for the next year—Advocate Durell, S.W.; William Grant, J.W.; J. Durell, Treas.; A. Schmitt, Sec.; Capt. P. Messervy, S.D.; H. Joudon, J.D.; Capt. A. de Carteret, I.G.; H. Du Jardin, Tyler. The proceedings connected with the installation having been brought to a close, Bro. A. Schmitt laid before the members some details as to the funds and present position of the lodge, which are on the whole satisfactory. This he did at considerable length, and concluded in the following words, or rather in words of which the following is a translation, the work of the lodge being conducted in French. "Finally I desire to impress upon you, that as the lodge is the centre or pivot upon which every Masonic Institution depends, and from which it derives its authority and beneficial tendencies, so the W.M. is the true capstone, and as such from him proceeds its strength and unity. He who has presided over us during the last twelve months, which are gone for ever, deserves a special mention from my lips. All must agree that Rev. Ph. W. Binet has discharged his onerous and responsible duties in a manner which has gained the approbation and good will of our members. Faithful to the lodge, devoted to the elevation and extension of the Masonic system, endowed with sentiments of honour, of conciliation and of harmony, this large hearted brother has won not only the esteem but the affection of the members of Lodge La Césarée, and has merited all the honour we can bestow upon him. Permit me, therefore, as the natural consequence of such a view of his merits, to lay before you the following proposition:—"That a Past Master's jewel as a substantial recognition of his services, be presented by the lodge to Bro. Ph. W. Binet, to mark the united sentiments of gratitude, of esteem, and of affection which we entertain towards him." This was duly seconded and carried unanimously. One or two other matters were discussed and settled, the lodge was closed at about 6.30, and the brethren were dismissed to re-assemble in the banqueting room. The W.M., who of course presided, was supported on his right by Past Masters Dr. Hopkins, A. Schmitt, Benham, John Durell, and on his left by Past Masters P. W. Binet, A. Viel, Gregg, and others. The excellent provision made by Bro. Long, Curator of the Temple, having been disposed of, the usual toasts were proposed by the W.M. and others, and duly responded to. In reply to that of the W.M., Bro. Pallot ably descanted on the duties and privileges connected with the Craft, proving his own appreciation of them, and his ability to enforce them on others. The other principal speakers were Bros. Schmitt, Advocate Durell, Nicolle of Guernsey, and Dr. Hopkins, who concluded by reciting a piece with much effect, entitled "The Mason's Vows," as appropriate to the occasion. This he did in responding to a special toast proposed by Bro. A. Schmitt, in which his name was joined with that of Bro. W. J. Hughan, the first Mason on whom has been conferred the rank of Hon. Past Grand Senior Deacon of the Grand Lodge of England, and honorary member of the Césarée Lodge, which latter distinction he highly appreciates, and in the same toast was included the name of Bro. Nicolle of Guernsey. The proceedings were enlivened by songs from Bros. Sandon, Benham, Biazet, and others. The brethren separated at about ten o'clock.

TOPSHAM.—Breut Lodge (No. 1284).—On Saturday, the 30th ult., the brethren of this lodge held their anniversary meeting in the Masonic Hall, Topsham. The lodge being duly opened at high twelve, by Bro. John Map, the W.M. for the past year, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, after which the lodge was raised to the second degree, and the W.M. vacated the chair, which was thereupon occupied by Bro. Samuel Jones, P.M., P.S.G.D. Bro. W. G. Rogers, P.S.G.W., then presented Bro. Thomas Lascelles, as the W.M. elect, and the ceremony of installation was thereupon proceeded with, the Installing P.M. being assisted by Bros. W. G. Rogers, P.M., P.S.G.W.; W. E. Stone, P.M., P.S.J.W.; Low, P.M.; S. Hodder, P.M., and the retiring W.M. This being completed, the newly-installed W.M. ascended the throne of K.S., and received the salutations of the brethren in the several degrees, after which he proceeded to appoint and invest the following officers.—Bros. H. J. Yelland, S.W.; Charles Pinn, J.W.; John Moass, P.M., Treas.; J. P. Harrison, Sec.; F. Pollard, S.D.; A. H. Wells, J.D.; Edward Rivington, Org.; J. Styles, I.G.; and P. L. Blanchard, Tyler. The lodge having been then closed in ancient form with solemn prayer, the brethren present adjourned to the adjacent Hotel, the Globe, and there, to the number of twenty-nine, sat down to a sumptuous repast, which had been prepared by Bro. Harrison, and which reflected the highest credit on the liberality as well as the taste and selection of the worthy host, who has been one of the most useful and energetic members of this lodge from the time of its foundation. Dinner over, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded to, and the labours of the day were succeeded by and evening of harmony and conviviality which concluded to the satisfaction of all present.

ROMFORD.—Liberty of Havering Lodge (No. 1437).—This young but promising lodge, which has only been in existence a few months, assembled at the White Hart Hotel, Romford, on Wednesday afternoon, the 26th inst., for business before the lodge was and raising, (the candidate for the latter, however was absent), to elect a Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, to elect Treasurer, and Tyler, and appoint auditors. Amongst the brethren present were—Bros. J. J. Wilson, W.M.; J. Tydeman, S.W.; George English, acting as J.W.; B. B. Brayshaw, S.D.; T. T. Bishop, Treasurer, and acting J.D.; D. Goddin, I.G.; Steedman, Tyler; G. W. Gatmore, Secy.; J. Taylor, A. W. Naylor, J. Garnett, Jas. Ellis, and others. Visitor—Bro. Taylor, of Lodge 350. The lodge having been opened in the first degree, the minutes of the last regular meeting were confirmed. Bro. Garrett was entrusted and retired, lodge opened in the second degree, and Bro. Garnett having been re-admitted, was passed to the degree of F.C. The lodge was resumed to the first degree, when Mr. Owen was duly initiated into the mysteries of Ancient Freemasonry. The ballot having been taken, it was found to be unanimous in electing Bro. J. T. Tydeman, S.W., to the position of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. Bro. Tydeman, in thanking the brethren for their kindness towards him, hoped that during his year of office the brethren would not be disappointed in the confidence they had placed in him. He assured them that if he did anything which might seem not exactly right in their opinion, it would not be the fault of the heart, but it might be of the head. He trusted in the support of every officer and brother of the lodge to assist him in the discharge of his duties, for he felt greater confidence in accepting the high position they had elected him to, more especially because the brethren had been so unanimous in electing him. Bro. Bishop was re-elected to the office of Treasurer, and, in accepting it, hoped he should continue to give the satisfaction he seemed to have given during the past year, and assured the brethren that he would do all in his power for the good of the lodge. Bro. Steedman was re-elected Tyler, and Bros. J. Ellis and A. W. Naylor appointed to assist in auditing the accounts. Some complimentary remarks having been made of the excellent manner in which Bro. Wilson, W.M., had governed the lodge and worked the ceremonies during his year of office, it was unanimously decided that a Past Master's jewel be presented to him, upon his retiring from the position of Worshipful Master, as a testimony of the great esteem in which he is held by every member of the lodge. A gentleman was proposed for initiation at the next meeting, and, the business of the evening being ended, the lodge adjourned until the fourth Wednesday in June (the 24th), when the installation ceremony will be performed and officers invested.

LIVERPOOL.—Neptune Lodge (No. 1264.)—Taking the lead amongst the numerous summer installations in Liverpool, the brethren of the Neptune Lodge assembled in strong force at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Friday, the 5th inst., for the purpose, principally, of assisting at the placing of Bro. J. S. Dixon, W.M. elect, in the chair of K.S. The importance of the occasion, the prosperity of the lodge, and the popularity of the brother whom the brethren delighted to honour by entrusting with the government of the lodge, were clearly shown by one of the largest and most influential attendances, both of members and visitors, ever seen in the Neptune Lodge. The lodge was opened about five o'clock, by Bro. Arthur Davies, the much esteemed W.M., whose principal supporters were Bros. P. B. Gee, P.M.; J. Taylor, P.M., D.C.; J. S. Dixon, S.W.; T. Singleton, J.W.; J. Healing, P.M., Treas.; J. Pemberton, P.M., Sec.; W. Roberts, S.D.; A. Cotter, J.D.; R. Royle, I.G.; J. Korn, S.; J. C. Fish, S.; J. Hill, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members present were Bros. J. Alexander, J. P. Gamble, T. Ryley, A. L. Wylie, L. Schultz, W. Fish, C. S. Davies, W. A. Dawson, J. Paltreyman, G. A. Hall, J. W. Burgess, P. West, A. Morrice, J. Bushell, W. Gray, J. Grindell, J. Lyon, E. Hartnell, W. C. Webb, R. Smith, J. Hamer, P.P.G. Treasurer, J. Kelly, W. Brewer, D. R. Davies, T. G. Wilkin, W. Hill, W. Dickenson, R. P. Bott, G. Smith, J. Cottrell, J. Leonard, W. Crook, J. Hughes, E. A. Gray, E. Ellison, R. Bradley, A. Fletcher, J. Griffiths, J. Burke, R. S. Ogle, J. Hughes, J.

Abrahams, G. Temple, J. Richardson, J. Roberts, J. Johnson, Y. H. Jackson, Y. Crank, and others. The visitors present were Bro. W. F. Savage, S.W., of the Hyde Park Lodge, No. 1425, (London), and of the Ranelagh Lodge, No. 834; W. Doyle, P.J.G.D.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; T. Evans, W.M. 1356; W. Sephton, W.M. 1086; W. Jones, P.M. 220; R. R. Martin, P.M. 1094; J. Lunt, P.M. 1086; J. Jones, W.M. 1393; E. Rothwell, S.W. 1356; H. Pearson, P.M. 249; R. Abraham, P.M. 1086; W. Shortis P.M. 724; W. R. Bainbridge, P.M., Sec. 1276; C. Leedham, P.M. 220; T. B. Myers, J.W. 1182; J. Devaynes, P.M. 667; J. Wood, Treas. 1024; W. Pugh, P.M. 1182; J. Davison W.M. 724; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594; T. Ockleshaw, S.W. 667; A. C. Morrison, Sec. 594; M. Corless, W. 673; J. Hayes, J.W. 249; H. P. Price, S.D. 249; W. Hamilton, J.D. 249; H. Ashmore, J.W. 1325; A. Stother, S23; R. Carter, 249; J. Romano, 667; J. Harrison, 673; J. Jones, 605; W. Atherton, S23; A. D. Hesketh, 1182; R. Crispe, 724; C. G. Wynne, 249; D. Robertson, 1835; E. C. Jones, 1356; J. Jacobs, 724; W. Draper, 673; and others. After the minutes had been read and duly confirmed, and several candidates had been balloted for, the position of presiding officer was taken by Bro. Joseph Healing, P.M., Treas., who proceeded to instal Bro. John S. Dixon, of the W.M. of the Neptune Lodge. The whole of the ceremony of installation, as well as the charges to the officers, was singularly impressive, and displayed in a remarkable manner the Masonic zeal and careful study which Bro. Healing had brought to bear on his work. The W.M. subsequently invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year.—Bros. A. Davies, I.P.M.; T. Singleton, S.W.; W. Roberts, J.W.; J. Griffiths, Sec.; J. Healing, Treas.; A. Cotter, S.D.; W. Royle, J.D.; J. Korn, I.G.; P. B. Gee, P.M., D.C.; J. C. Fish, S.S.; J. Hill, Asst. Sec.; A. C. Wylie, J.S.; and R. Smith, Organist. Bro. W. H. Ball was unanimously re-elected Tyler of the lodge. On the motion of Bro. P. M. Pemberton, seconded by Bro. P. M. Gee, a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Bro. P. M. Healing, for the exceedingly effective manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. Bro. Healing in acknowledging the compliment, said it was always the duty of a child to remember his parent, and therefore, if he had done his work to the satisfaction of the brethren that day, they must give Bro. Hamer all the credit of his instruction. A vote of thanks was also passed to Bro. Hamer, P.P.G. Treas., for his assistance on that occasion, and after Bro. Hamer had acknowledged the vote, the W.M. presented Bro. A. Davies, I.P.M., with a very handsome P.M.'s jewel, as a token of the esteem in which he was held by the brethren of the Neptune Lodge, and also as a recognition of the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of the chair, to the admiration of the brethren. Bro. Davies acknowledged the gift in a feeling and pointed speech, assuring the brethren that he would continue to wear the jewel presented to him with pride and pleasure, and with a continued desire to merit the approbation of his brethren in Masonry. At the conclusion of the installation ceremony, the newly-chaired W.M. inaugurated his year's labour by initiating two candidates into the mysteries and privileges of the Order, and the exceedingly masterly manner in which this was done augurs well for the coming year in the Neptune Lodge. After the transaction of some other business, the lodge was closed, and about sixty of the brethren retired from labour to refreshment. The W.M. in brief but pithy terms, proposed "The Queen," "Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Past G.M., the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Marquess of Ripon, M.W.G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, R.W.D.G.M., and the other officers of the Grand Lodge," and "The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M., the Hon. Frederick Stanley, W.D.P.G.M., and the P.G. Officers." Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O., who responded for the last named toast, said it had always been the object of his lordship to promote the interests of Masonry in the province of West Lancashire, and an impetus had been given to the Craft since his appointment. Bro. Davies, I.P.M., next proposed "The Worshipful Master," and said he was sure no brother of the Neptune Lodge felt that any mistake had been committed in appointing Bro. Dixon as their Master, who was undoubtedly "the right man in the right place." He had always faithfully attended to the duties of the lodge, which was the secret of his success in his Masonic career. During its existence the membership of the lodge had increased from six to about two hundred, and it was by his determination to do his duty manfully, faithfully, and straightforward that Bro. Dixon was now in the proud position of W.M. of Neptune Lodge. The W.M. in acknowledging the toast, assured the brethren that he would spare no exertion to uphold the status and dignity of the lodge. The W.M. then gave "The Installing Master," (Bro. Healing, P.M., who had left at this stage), "The I.P.M. and P.M.'s," the latter toast being acknowledged by Bro. Davies, I.P.M. "The Visiting Brethren" was acknowledged by Bro. W. Crane, P.M.; "The Wardens and Officers of the Lodge," by Bro. Roberts, J.W. (acting as S.W.); "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution" by Bro. Martin, P.M. 1094. Bro. Savage of London, also spoke in the highest terms of the Masonic Educational Institutions for Boys and Girls in the metropolis, and Bro. Leedham, P.M. 220, said that the claims of the Institution for Aged and Distressed Freemasons should not be forgotten. "The Brethren of the Neptune Lodge" was acknowledged by Bro. Bushell; "Our Seafaring Brethren," by Bro. Hill and Grindell; and "The Masonic Press" by Bro. J. B. Mackenzie. "The Tylers' Toast," given by the Acting S.W., brought the pleasant proceedings to a close. During the evening several excellent songs were given by Bros. W. Jones, Dawson, Savage, (whose "Sly Glance" caused immense amusement), Gray, the W.M., and other brethren, Bro. Skeaf presided at the harmonium.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—This lodge held its first meeting on Friday, the 5th inst. Present, Bros. W. J. Stephens, W.M.; E. Somers, S.W.; W. G. Murlis, J.W.; Rev. P. Holden, Chaplain; Walford, Treas.; W. Jones, Sec.; and others. The ballot was taken for four joining members and eleven initiates, but as no dispensation had been obtained five only were initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M., who performed the ceremony in a most impressive manner. At the conclusion of the business a cold collation was provided by Bro. Grist, of Hackney. The usual Masonic toasts, were duly honoured and responded to. Bro. J. Brett the acting P.M. proposed the toast of "The W.M.," who in reply urged upon the brethren the necessity of being particular in whom they proposed as members of the lodge, wishing those only to be introduced which could with confidence be admitted to their own homes and friends of their family. Bro. Vine, the W.M. of the Phoenix, Bro. Bellerby, P.M. of the Prosperity, and Bro. Captain Webb of the Clapton, were visitors, and severally acknowledged the hospitality afforded. A most harmonious and friendly meeting was brought to a close by the Tyler's toast, and adjourned to the first Friday in July.

INSTRUCTION.

WELLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 548).—The anniversary festival of this popular Lodge of Instruction, was held on Monday evening, at the White Swan, High-street, Deptford, and proved most successful. Over 80 brethren attended, all, or nearly all, of whom were local Freemasons of Greenwich and Deptford. The ceremonies of Lodge Consecration and W.M. Installation were announced to be performed, and the brother selected as "Consecrating Officer," was Bro. James Terry, an accomplished instructor in "the noble science," and both well-known and deservedly popular. Everything had been done beforehand which could make the evening pass off well, and the influence of some of the brethren had been successfully exercised among the Catholic priesthood in the neighbourhood, who most generously lent their silver consecrating vessels for the occasion. The incense, the corn, the wine, and the oil, were thus distributed with the same solemnity and from as valuable vessels as at the ceremonial observed at a regular consecration, and the services were conducted as "decently and in order," as by "the officer appointed by the M.W. the Grand Master." Bro. James Terry, G. Director of Ceremonies for the Province of Herts, took the chair, having Bro. James Griffin, P.M. 933, as S.W.; Bro. C. G. Dilley, W.M. 147, P.M. 1155, Preceptor to the lodge, as J.W.; Bro. Govan Macdonald, J.W. 1158, Hon. Sec., as D.C.; and Bro. W. Kipps, J.D. 1275, Org. 79, 1310, 1314, and chapter 79, as Organist. The ceremonies were of course perfectly performed by the Consecrating Officer and his assistants, and the music of Bro. Kipps, and the singing of the splendid choir, by whom he was assisted, gave a finish to the proceedings which in other cases frequent previous rehearsals only could have produced. At the conclusion of the work, which was conducted in the fine large banqueting room of the White Swan, the brethren adjourned to a cold collation in the lodge room where Bro. Griffin presided, and after the repast proposed the customary toasts. "The Masonic Charities," were duly honoured, and in replying on behalf of these admirable Institutions, Bro. James Terry gave a rapid genial sketch of that with which he was more immediately connected, and the immense progress of it and its sister institutions during the last few years. He particularly alluded to the generous support which had at all times been extended to them in the districts of Deptford and Greenwich, and hoped that they would always not only receive but deserve the appreciation of their efforts to relieve misery, which the brethren in South-East London had exhibited. The brethren separated rather late, but not before all the loyal and Masonic toasts had been proposed.

Royal Arch.

WILLIAM PRESTON CHAPTER (No. 166).—The first meeting after the consecration of this chapter was held on Thursday, the 28th of May, 1874, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, E.C. The following companions were present—Comps. William Morrell, M.E.Z.; George J. Kain, H.; R. H. Whiteman, J.; George Newman, S.N.; Henry Garrod, S.E.; W. R. Newton, Treasurer; James Brett. Visitor Comp. R. H. Harvey, P.Z. 720. The minutes of the preliminary meetings and consecration were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for several brethren whose names appeared on the summons, the following being present, were duly exalted to the degree of Royal Arch Masons, viz.:—Bros. W. H. Harper, P.M. 766; A. Braun, S.W. 766; P. C. Steianann, 766; C. R. Cutmore, 766; W. H. Kempster, 890; W. C. Cecil, S.W. 173. Comp. W. H. Harper was duly elected and invested as P.S., and appointed Comps. A. Braun, and W. H. Kempster, as his 1st and 2nd Asst. Soj.

ROSE OF DENMARK CHAPTER (No. 975).—This chapter met at the Star and Garter, Kew-bridge, on Saturday, the 6th inst., when a large number of companions assembled. Comp. W. Tinkler, was installed as M.E.Z., by Comp. J. Terry, P.Z., after which Bros. J. May, Frank May and W. H. Lee, were exalted, the chairs being filled by Comps. Pendlebury, R. W. Little, and J. B. Poole, and the other work devolving upon Comps. W. Dodd and J. Owens. The chapter having been closed, an excellent banquet was served by Comp. Banks, the host, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Comps. H. G. Buss, P.Z., Treas.; W. F. Smith, P.Z.; A. H. Longhurst, H.; J. Newton, P.Z.; D. W. Pearse, and G. Everett, were amongst those present during the evening.

Red Cross of Constantine.

LEICESTER.—Byzantine Conclave (No. 44).—A regular assembly of this flourishing conclave took place at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Monday, 18th inst., and was largely attended by the members. A College of Viceroys having been formed, Sir Knight F. J. Baines, 18°, V.E. elect, was consecrated as V.E., as were also Sir Knights Dr. Hunt and J. C. Duncombe, who had been recommended for that distinction by the permanent committee. The ceremony of consecration was performed by Sir Knight Toller, 18°. G. Council. After the conclave had been opened and the minutes confirmed the ballot was taken for Bro. Ward, of the Yarra Yarra Lodge, Melbourne, Australia, which being unanimous in his favour, he was duly installed, as was also Sir Knight J. Shaw, 1391, previously elected. The M.P.S., Sir Knight S. Sturbridge, 18°, K.G.C., very ably conducted the ceremony, the traditional history being given by Sir Knight Toller, and the charge by the Intendant-General Sir Knight W. Kelly, Sir Knight C. Stretton, Hon. Sov. was then inducted into the chair of C., on giving his assent to the usual charges, after which he was saluted, and proceeded to appoint and invest his officers for the year. The Treasurer's report, showing a considerable balance in hand, was adopted, after which the conclave was closed, and the members, to the number of 25 adjourned to the banquet, after which the usual toasts were very heartily responded to. In the course of the evening it transpired that Sir Knight W. Kelly has been appointed Chief Intendant-General for the Eastern Midland Counties, a well deserved honour, for which he received the congratulations of those present.

LIVERPOOL.—Skelmersdale Conclave (No. 77).—On Monday evening, the 1st instant, the annual assembly of the Knights of Rome and of the Red Cross of Constantine attached to the Skelmersdale Conclave, No. 77, was held at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool. Em. Sir Knight H. Nelson, M.P.S., occupied the throne at the opening of the conclave, and the other principals of the Order present were Ill. Sir Knight J. K. Smith, Int. General Unattached; Em. Sir Knight J. T. Callow, V.E.; Sir Knights W. Cottrell, J.G.; H. Jackson, H.P.; T. Ashmore, P.S., Treasurer; J. McCarthy, Recorder; J. J. Rose, S. Prefect; J. Skeaf, J. Prefect; H. Morris, Orator; C. Leighton, Organist; W. Quayle, Herald; J. Capell, S.S.; and P. Ball, Sentinel. The other Knights who assembled in the conclave chamber were the following:—Sir Knights J. Lolley, W. Shortis, J. Purvis, E. A. Wright, W. P. Jennings, C. Munro, Y. Alvarez, R. H. Evans, T. Large, W. H. Cooper, J. S. L. Hobbs, J. C. McGuire, T. Garratt, J. Burgess, H. Burrows, and J. White. Amongst the visitors were Em. Sir Knight H. M. Molyneux, M.P.S. No. 55, and Sir Knight R. Washington H.P. No. 55. After the records of the previous conclave had been read and confirmed, Em. Sir Knight Nelson proceeded to install, in a most efficient manner, Bros. Fletcher, White, Auchinleck, and Dale into the rank and honours of the Order. The ceremony of enthronement of Em. Sir Knight J. T. Callow as M.P.S. of the conclave was then proceeded with, Ill. Sir Knight J. K. Smith, Int. Gen. West Lancashire, being the presiding officer. After the ceremony had been very efficiently performed, Sir Knight W. Cottrell was duly installed Viceroy, and the following officers were subsequently invested by the M.P.S.:—Sir Knights H. Jackson, S.G.; J. McCarthy, J.G.; J. J. Rose, H.P.; T. Ashmore, P.S., Treasurer; J. Skeaf, Rec.; W. R. Corbin, S. Prefect; H. Morris, J. Prefect; E. Quayle, S. Bearer; R. H. Evans, Orator; C. Leighton, Organist; W. H. Cooper, Herald; H. Burrows, S. Aide, T. Garratt, J. Aide; T. Large, M.C.; and P. Ball, Sentinel. The conclave was subsequently closed in regular form, and the assembled knights banqueted in the conclave chamber.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—This cooling Medicine may be used with the happiest effects when the blood is overheated and a tendency to inflammatory action appears in the system; a course of one Pill a day taken shortly before dinner does away with the indigestion, fullness, and flatulency—indications of a weak stomach or disordered liver. A few Pills taken at bedtime act as alterative and aperients; they not only relieve the bowels, but regulate every organ connected with them, overcome all acrid humours, and encourage a free supply of all the secretions essential to our well-being. Holloway's Pills thoroughly cleanse and perfectly regulate the circulation, and in hot climates and high temperatures induce that feeling of comfort which is the pleasing accompaniment of a high state of health.—ADVT.

Scotland.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF THE MIDD WARD OF LANARKSHIRE.—This Provincial Grand Lodge met on 27th of May, in the Masonic Hall, Motherwell. In the absence of P.G.M., Bro. James Mecoy, on the Continent the lodge was presided over by Bro. J. C. Forrester, S.P.G.M., assisted by the following Provincial Grand office-bearers—J. Henderson, P.G.S.W. Wm. Morrison, P.G.J.W.; J. Nesbett, P.G.S. C. Nelson, P.G.S.; and W. McMurdo, P.G.S. The lodge having been opened in due form, the acting P.G.M. informed the brethren that the principal business of this special meeting was to consider a remit from the Grand Lodge of Scotland for a new lodge at Coatbridge, to be called the St. Andrew's. The old lodge had raised some objection at Edinburgh, and the whole matter was now remitted to them to be investigated into and reported on. After some conversation on the subject it was moved by Bro. Henderson, R.W.M. of 116, Airdrie, and unanimously agreed to. "That seeing there has been no opposition to the prayer of the petition offered to the Prov. Grand Lodge, that the Secretary be instructed to report to the Provincial Committee accordingly, requesting them to exercise the powers vested in them by the Grand Lodge and grant the charter asked for. The being no further business the Prov. Grand Lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Union (No. 332) met at 170, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, June 1st, 1874. Bros. J. B. McNair, R.W.M. J. Murray, as S.W.; and James Balfour, J.W. There was one candidate for initiation the lodge was then raised to the second degree when a brother was passed to the Fellow Craft. The R.W.M. then installed Bro. J. Pash as Deputy Master, and Bro. J. Gilles as Substituted Master. A motion for the purchase of an harmonium for the use of the lodge was deferred till the next meeting, as well as some other business of a private character. The lodge was then closed in the usual form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle and Rose (No. 73) The old lodge met at 170, Buchanan-street, on June 2nd, Bros. G. Weston, R.W.M.; J. McLeod, acting S.W.; J. McGregor, J.W. The work consisted of one raising, which was performed in a very careful manner by Bro. W. Dobbie, R.W.M. 362. Some lodge business occupied the rest of the evening.

HOLYTOWN.—St. John Woodhall Lodge (No. 305.)—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, the 23rd ult. The lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. Coke, the E.A. Degree. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved of, Bro. Meek said, Right Worshipful Sir, Wardens, brethren, no doubt you are all aware of the calls that have been made upon us for charity to assist some poor brother who was in want of a great many cases quite unexpectedly to most of the members present at these meetings consequently the sum subscribed was not what it might have been had we had a fund for that purpose. I beg therefore to present to the lodge this box, to be known as the Charity Benevolent Fund Box, hoping that it will be placed in the lodge at each meeting, so every brother will, who thinks proper, have opportunity of practising that best of virtues, namely, charity. The R.W.M. on receiving the box thanked Bro. Meek in the name of the lodge. The box is in the shape of a diamond jewel, on each side of which are a few Masonic emblems. Two gentlemen were then initiated into the mysteries of the first degree, Bro. J. Kennedy, R.W.M. elect of Lodge St. Andrew's Coatbridge, officiating. The nomination of candidates for the chair and other offices followed after which the lodge was closed in due form.

MURKIRK.—St. Thomas Lodge (No. 101) The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the lodge room, on June 12th, 1874. Bro. David Samson, R.W.M., was taken his place in the seat, and the other of the lodge being in their respective places, the lodge was opened in the ancient form, when the R.W.M. called upon Bro. James Adamson, who delivered a very instructive lecture on the Master Mason degree. Bro. Adamson is a very young Mason, but bids fair to outstrip by far many of his seniors. The very frank and open way he defined some of the important points of this degree shows he has had great energy in the Masonic cause, and it is hoped that this example may prove a stimulus to many of the brethren of St. Thomas, to be up and do likewise, and we have no doubt that by such meetings and such instructions Masonry will prove a greater blessing in the future in this district than it has in the past.

GLASGOW.—Caledonian Railway Lodge (No. 354) held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., J. Shaw, R.W.M.; A. A. Smith, P.M.; J. Stafford, S.W.; J. Dune, J.W.; Jas. Crabb, S.; when one brother was, after due examination passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Clyde (No. 408) held its monthly meeting on Friday, the 5th inst. The R.W.M. being unavoidably absent, at the request of Bro. R. Mitchell, D.M., and D.P.M. of 332, Bro. J. Bain, P.M. of 103, took the chair; J. MacGuinness, S.W.; J. Garwen, J.W.; J. Murton, Sec.; J. Stewart, S.D. The acting R.W.M. asked the lodge to grant his lodge the privilege of having a candidate initiated along with them; this was granted, Jas. Nichodemis Jamieson for 103, and Jas. W. Hunter, for the Clyde Lodge were then introduced and initiated into Freemasonry. The lodge was then raised, when Bro. P. Campbell and N. Jamieson, were passed to the Fellow Craft degree. There were a good many visitors present including Bro. G. Webster, R.W.M. 73.

ZETLAND COMMEMORATION FUND.

The following is the text of the circular issued by the sub-committee of the Zetland Commemoration Fund, the substance of which was given in our last issue:—

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 16th March, 1869.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,

Many enquiries having been made as to the destination of this Fund, we have the pleasure to inform you that the M.W. the Grand Master (having consulted the General Committee) has been pleased to state that he is willing to accept the Fund for the following purpose, viz:

"To invest it in the name of Trustees, and devote the interest to the relief of distinguished brethren who may become distressed their widows, or relations depending on them. The disposal of it to rest with Lord Zetland for his life; and, after him, with the Grand Master for the time being. The Grand Master will fix hereafter such regulations as he may think proper for the administration of the Fund."

We have good reason to hope that this will meet with general approbation. We request that you will communicate it to the members of your Lodge or Chapter; and if their subscriptions have not been already sent in, we shall be glad if you will remit them without delay.

We remain, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours, fraternally,

W. J. SIMPSON } Hon. Secs.
JOHN M. CLABON }
JAS. TERRY, Secretary.

The above appeared in The Freemason for March 20th, 1869. What has been done to carry out the object of this fund? Have any "distinguished brethren" in distress been aided? As a subscriber of a guinea I should like to know when and how the handsome sum raised as a lasting testimonial to our lamented Past Grand Master is to be dispersed.

RIVRESIE.

CONSECRATION OF THE ATHENÆUM LODGE (No. 1491.)

A new lodge with this title was consecrated on Wednesday evening, at the Athenæum, in the Camden-road, by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was assisted in the performance of the ceremonies by Bros. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain; T. Fenn, P.A.G.D.C., as S.W.; Buss, Prov. G. Treasurer, Middlesex, as J.W.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P., as Director of Ceremonies; Little, Prov. G. Secretary, Middlesex, and Jas. Terry, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies, Herts. Bro. Woodford delivered an admirable oration on the principles of the Order, and the ceremonies were adorned with some good music performed by Bro. W. H. Thomas. At the conclusion of the ceremony of consecration Bro. Hervey installed Bro. Samuel Poynter, W.M., who afterwards appointed the following brethren as his officers for the year:—W. Giles, S.W.; Angelo J. Lewis, J.W.; Benjamin Mallam, Treas.; George J. Brocklerby, Sec.; A. C. Lewis, S.D.; C. Giles, J.D.; W. H. Thomas, I.G.; and Grant, T. Bro. T. Fenn gave the charge to the W.M., Bro. Jas. Terry that to the Wardens, and Bro. Little that to the brethren. Propositions for joining and initiation were then received, and a vote of thanks, moved by the W.M. and seconded by Bro. Mallam, was unanimously carried to Bro. John Hervey for consecrating the lodge, and he was constituted an hon. member of the lodge. Bro. Hervey replied and said he felt it a great compliment to be elected a member of the lodge. A vote of thanks was also given to the W.M., S., and J.W. the Treasurer, and Bro. C. Giles, was passed on the motion of Bro. Brocklesby, seconded by Bro. H. Thomas, for gifts of various portions of the lodge furniture. Another vote was passed to Bro. Woodford, P.G.C., who had acted as Chaplain, and delivered the oration. Yet another vote of thanks was passed to Bros. Buss, Little, Terry, Fenn, and Joseph Smith, for assisting in the consecration. Bro. Fenn replied on behalf of all these brethren. The lodge was afterwards closed till the first Wednesday in July.

The following brethren were present during the evening—Samuel Poynter, W.M.; J. G. Chancellor, I.P.M.; Benjamin Mallam, Treas.; George J. Brocklesby, Secretary; A. C. Lewis, S.D.; H. Giles, J.D.; W. J. Foster, 19; H. Dodd, 1209; H. C. Levander, 142; John Hervey, G.S.; Thomas Fenn, P.G.A.D.C.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; H. G. Buss, Provincial Grand Treasurer, Middlesex; A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; J. F. West, P.M. 753; R. H. Harvey, P.M. 902; W. Wigginton, P.M. 902; R. W. Field, W.M. 902; Thomas Williams, 177; W. J. Leishman, P.M. 754; W. Smith, P.M. 33; A. B. Astley, W.M. 890; R. Baker, P.M. 177; W. H. Thomas, 1351; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; R. H. Marsh, P.M. 1196; R. Wentworth Little, Prov. G. Sec. Middlesex; W. D. S. Green, James Terry, Prov. G.D.C., Herts; D. R. Still, P.M. 1293; Charles B. Payne, P.M. 27; Thomas Hales, S.D. 227; John Green, J.W.; John Harker, 19; G. C. Turner, 902; Newton Pratt, 624; A. Booth, 36; Daniel J. Miller, 21; Henry Smith, P.M. 902; B. J. Bridgewater, 1140. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment, after which the customary toasts were proposed. Bro. Woodford responded for the "Grand Officers," and was followed by Bro. T. Fenn, who remarked on the satisfaction it gave him to find that this lodge was consecrated and would be held in a building not connected with a tavern. It had always struck him that the beautiful ceremonies were degraded by being delivered in close proximity to a tap-room. But he was not averse to the refreshment portion of Masonry, because he believed that after the labours of the evening, it was necessary to have refreshment. Indeed, he found it in the Book of Ecclesiastes, of which King Solomon was the author, that it was good for a man to have refreshment.

Bro. Hervey proposed "The Health of the W.M." He hoped the ceremonies of the occasion had been carried out to the satisfaction of all the brethren. He was sure Bro. Poynter would carry out the duties of W.M. properly, and that the work was in good hands. There was no better toast than this, "Prosperity to the Lodge." It would commend itself to all the brethren.

The W.M. replied. The utmost kindness and consideration had always been extended to him, and on this occasion there was no diminution of that cordiality.

The W.M. proposed "The Health of Bro. Hervey." As a Mason, a gentleman, and a brother of the Craft, Bro. Hervey had attained to the highest position in the affections of the Craft. It had been much discussed in Grand Lodge what a Grand Secretary should be, but as having been compelled to have much communication with him, he found him the very man for the place. Every other brother had the same opinion.

Bro. Hervey said, this was one occasion when a man would rather speak by deputy. The W.M.'s eulogium of him had been almost extravagant, but he was always glad to be of use to the Craft. He was proud to have assisted at the consecration of such a distinguished lodge as this was likely to become. "The Visitors" was a toast which drew forth the expressions of warmest hospitality from the W.M., and the brethren drank it with great cordiality. Bros. Chancellor, and Col. Wigginton responded, Bro. Wigginton said he felt the lodge would be a great success. Bro. Field also responded, and as a member of 902 was extremely proud to see one of its best P.M.'s, and its Treasurer in the W.M. chair of the Athenæum Lodge. "The Officers" was the next toast, and it was drunk with great warmth. After having been proposed with the kindest expressions by the W.M., the S.W. replied, as did also Bro. Angelo J. Lewis, J.W., who expressed his belief that the W.M. had conducted the business of the lodge with a due regard to the principles of Freemasonry. He looked on the brethren who had performed the consecration as having shed a lustre on the lodge, and it was a happy omen in the future success of the lodge.

The toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary" was beautifully proposed by the W.M., and Bro. Mallam responded, stating that if entrusted with the money of the lodge he would take care of it. Bro. Brooker being Secretary did not doubt that he would be able to do the work of the lodge efficiently, and promised his utmost endeavours to make the lodge an honour to the Craft. "The Masonic Institutions" was the next toast.

Bro. Little as Secretary of one of the Institutions rejoiced that the Athenæum Lodge had begun to assist their Institutions already, the Worshipful Master having placed himself as a Steward of one of the institutions for next year. Bro. Terry thanked the W.M. having included the Boys' School in the toast. Bro. Binckes had been compelled to go away; for himself, he was glad to see that the principle of the Burgoyne Lodge was going to be followed in the Athenæum, to be Vice President of all the Masonic Institutions. The Charities must look forward to new members for support. The principle on which this new lodge was founded was a good one, and he hoped to see it repeated by other lodges.

Bro. A. C. Lewis, replied for the S.D., J.D., and I.G., after which the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated.

CONSECRATION OF THE FELIX LODGE No. 1494.

This lodge was consecrated at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, Middlesex, on Saturday, the 30th ult., by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Provincial Grand Secretary, assisted by V.W. Bro. J. Hervey, Grand Secretary, as S.W.; H. G. Buss, Provincial Grand Treasurer, as J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden as Chaplain; and T. W. White, Past Grand Steward, as D.C.

An account of the proceedings will be given next week.

THE FREEMASONS' LIBER MUSICUS, Dedicated by express permission to H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, Past Grand Master of England and Wales. Edited by DR. WILLIAM SPARK, P.P.G.O., W.Y.—398.

This Work contains 215 pp. and 118 Musical Compositions suitable for all the Ceremonies of the Masonic Order; First, Second, and Third Degrees; Consecration and Dedication of Halls and Lodges; Programmes, Toasts, Songs, Tios, Choruses, &c., for Banquets and other Festive Gatherings; Laying Foundation or Corner Stones; Installation; Mark Masonry; Royal Arch; Masonic Funerals; Voluntaries; Marches, &c., &c.

Notice from the Evening Mail.

"Our Masonic readers are no strangers to the name of Bro. William Spark, the talented musician and Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. In this really great work, now completed, Dr. Spark has shown his great tact and judgment by compiling and compiling for the Masonic brethren a complete library of musical compositions of the choicest English and foreign works, ancient, traditional, modern, vocal, and instrumental, by the best composers. It comprises Masonic anthems, installation odes, dedication music, responses, opening, closing, and intermediate music for all degrees, Thanksgivings, funeral odes, marches, songs, duets, banquet music, programmes, voluntaries, and general musical directions, arranged for voices and organ, piu solo, or harmonium. "The Freemasons' Liber Musicus" is issued with the concurrence of many influential Masonic Lodges, and under the distinguished patronage and support of the Most Worshipful the Grand Masters of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. It forms a complete library of the choicest and rarest Masonic music, in a word, it is indispensable to all Masonic lodges. The worthy brother editor, moreover, has had the valuable co-operation and assistance of the most distinguished and experienced composers and organists, members of the Craft. It is brought out in the highest style of art, is printed from large engraved music plates, and forms a very handsome folio volume of nearly two hundred and twenty pages!" It deserves the patronage of every Masonic Lodge, both at home and abroad, and for its merits alone it ought to be zealously prized by every brother. As a present to a lodge, nothing could be more useful, valuable, and appropriate.

THE HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY, FROM ITS ORIGIN TO THE PRESENT DAY. Drawn from the best sources and the most recent investigations.

BY J. G. FINDEL,

Second Edition, Revised, and Preface written by BRO. D. MURRAY LYON.

One vol., 800 pages 8vo., with an Index. Cloth gilt. Price, 10s. 6d.

"This book is a strictly historical one, from which all is excluded that is not based upon ascertained or probable fact."—Builder.

"Of its value to Freemasons, as a detailed history of their Brotherhood, it is not possible to speak too highly."—Public Opinion.

"The author seems to have fairly exhausted the subject."—The Athenæum.

"The edition we are now considering is a second English edition, which had the great advantage of Bro. D. M. Lyon's able superintendence and editorship in its English dress. There can be no doubt but that so far, Bro. Findel's work is the most complete work on Freemasonry which has yet appeared, and that he deserves the greatest credit for his careful and accurate treatment of all evidence on the subject, and for his honest desire after truth. Bro. Findel gives up in the view he has so clearly and consistently put forth our early Masonic history, the older theory of the Roman Colleges, &c., and limits the origin of Freemasonry to about the twelfth century, and as then arising from the operative Masons, and specially the "Steinmetzen" and "Bauhütten" of Germany. Bro. Findel gives us a good deal of evidence on this head, and one thing is clear from his work, that the German Freemasons were, at a very early period, organized into lodges with a Master over them, and with outward regulations and inner ceremonies peculiar to the Craft. Bro. Findel rejects all the views which have been from time to time put forward of a Templar or a Rosicrucian origin. Whether or no Bro. Findel's theory of the date of the rise of Freemasonry be correct, matters very little: we do not ourselves profess to accept it; but this we can fairly say of Bro. Findel's work, it is marked from first to last by the most remarkable token of industry, ability, and care, of patient research, and of skillful criticism. We know of no work which so clearly sets before us our amount of knowledge up to the present time on the great question of Masonic Archeology, and there can be little doubt that what Preston's work is to English Freemasonry, Findel's work is to cosmopolitan Freemasonry. Indeed no student in Masonry can now dispense with it, and it is a perfect storehouse both of Masonic evidence and Masonic illustrations. We earnestly recommend all the lodges in this country to obtain a copy for the lodge library before the work is bought up for America; and we believe that no Mason will rise from the perusal of its pages without a higher idea both of the historical truth and intrinsic value of Freemasonry, and of fraternal regard and recognition to the latest and not the least well-informed or effective of our Masonic historians. The present century has produced no such equal, in authority and usefulness, to the great work of our Bro. Findel, and we wish him and it, in all of fraternal sympathy and kindly intent, many earnest readers, and more grateful students."—The Masonic Magazine.

"This volume is the history of Masonry par excellence. Every interested person may regard it, therefore, as the present text-book on the subject."—Athenæum Guardian LONDON: GEORGE KENNING, 198, Fleet Street.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JUNE 13TH, 1874.

IN MEMORIAM.

One of the most affecting circumstances connected with this human life of ours, (independently of its admitted shortness and its unsteady gifts, and that sense of weariness which falls so often on the human heart, amid toil and amid success), is that constant separation from old companions and valued friends, which takes place every day, nay every hour, in all professions and on every highway or byway of the world. Whoever we be, wherever our lot is cast, we ever may be allotted to us as our rank or our position in society and among our fellow men, but copies to us all equally, sooner or later, that changing experience of human existence, which is probably most fully and truly realized in that greatest of all severances which divides us from our mates and companions here, sad, but common lot of us frail children of Earth, which throws, so to say, its cloud of gloom and regret, over the pathway of our life, and penetrates with sorrow, or bows down with awe, many a loving, many a friendly, many a sympathizing heart of man. Just as of old the poet sang in solemn strain, so is it in a measure still with us all:—

"Divesnè prisco natus ab Inacho
Nil interest, an pauper et infimè
De gente sub Dio moreris.
Victima nil miserantis Orçi.
Omnes eodem cogimur, omnium
Versatur urna, seriùs, ocìus
Sors exitura."

For even to day, we miss in a moment a companion of years from our very side, read in the daily journal of the passing away of some well known and valued fellow laborer. The active brain has ceased to work, the frequent tongue to speak, the warm heart to beat, and we find that like a band of pilgrims, passing onward to some distant shrine, one by one our fellow travellers have fallen out by the way, either in the fulness of all their powers of mind and body, because in God's good and merciful Providence their hour was come, or because they became prematurely footsore by the fainting weary with the march of life. Those of us who have had much to do with Lodge life especially, must know, and we know how true this is of those associations, which linked together, in some pleasant hour, of Masonic work or social fellowship, for time as it fleets by us so rapidly, as some one has said, "on its wings of air," takes away one by one, many who once were the prop and ornament of our lodges, —the soul, so to speak, of many a genial moment of kindly intercourse, the best of friends, and the truest of companions.

Such, we venture to think, will have been the thoughts and associations which must have arisen in the mind and memories of our readers, when they saw, last week, the little paragraph which announced the lamented death of Bro. J. R. Stebbing. For though he was probably best known and appreciated in his own distinguished Hampshire province, and in the South of England, where the greater part of his good Masonic work was done, yet as a speaker and a working member he was well known in Grand Lodge, and the Board of General Purposes, and other Masonic official duties, and his name is a very familiar one to our English Craft, and his Masonic reputation was, so to say, the common property of the Order. Most of us have read from time to time, those eloquent speeches of his, delivered on various occasions, marked by his own original ideas, and personal characteristics, and which have always seemed to us, to embody, in a striking measure, especially in their enunciation of first principles, the truest teaching of Freemasonry. Regretting then, as we do, the end of a honourable, hard-working, high-minded Masonic career, we feel bound to-day not to allow such a loss to our Order to pass altogether unnoticed or unrecorded in our pages! For the loss of Bro. Stebbing is a great loss to us, as a fraternity, take it as you will. We have happily in our Order many, very many, distinguished, and honourable, and able brethren, ornaments to their various professions, and a credit to our sodality, but we have to deplore in the death of Bro. Stebbing, the removal from among us of a most typical representative of Masonic truth and Masonic energy. It may be, that, in his long career we may not always have agreed with his views, propounded as they were with outspoken animation, though we always honoured his motives, and though sometimes we found ourselves opposed to the Mason in the great interests of our common fraternity, we yet always loved the man. There was something in Bro. Stebbing so thoroughly English, honest, reliable, and Masonic, that, no one could be brought into personal contact with him without liking him, and no one ever made his acquaintance without wishing to know more of him. Unlike some men, he always gained upon acquaintance, and even when you did not always agree with his earnest and outspoken opinions, either on his own entire honesty and sincerity, the absence in him of anything merely personal or selfish. His zeal for the Craft was, we believe unquenched to the last, and no one member of our entire English Order, has more openly proclaimed "in season and out of season" his entire devotion to the principles and position of Freemasonry, amid the conflict of the hour, and "the strife of tongues," and before that outer world which knows nothing of our tenets, and yet is so apt to condemn alike our professions and our practice. Bro. Stebbing will be a "missed man" in that province with which he has been so long connected, and in which he held such high office, and in that town of which he has been so long a well-known and active citizen. He has filled very high posts of duty alike in municipal as in Masonic life, and has earned in both characters the good opinion and respect both of his fellow citizens and his brethren. It is always a sorrow to us to part with the old familiar face, to miss the pleasant countenance, to listen no more to the well-known voice, and to feel that all of earthly companionship or association for the time is over. But yet the grief we feel is lessened, and the sad sense of loss is mitigated, when we also rest assured that, that was indeed a true labourer's life whose close we now regret, that like a good soldier, our fellow pilgrim has died, so to say, "with harness on his back," that he has passed away doing his duty to the last, working the work of another and greater Master, until the night came when none of us can work any more. In Bro. Stebbing's Masonic career we have a high example for our own Craft, old or young, and in our deep regrets for his mourning family, and in our sympathy for the brethren of his province and lodge, we yet claim, in the name, and with the fraternal respect of our entire Brotherhood to cast our humble wreath of "Immortelles" on the grave of our worthy, and zealous, and devoted, and lamented brother, J. R. Stebbing.

THE LAST ELECTION OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We have received several letters complaining of the non-publication of the names of the successful and unsuccessful candidates at the last election of the R.M. Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows. "A priori," one would have thought, that the most natural place to find the earliest official information was in the pages of The Freemason, and we do not, therefore, at all wonder at, or complain of, the remarks of our correspondents. Certainly any one would say, "in our only English Masonic Newspaper, we shall find the information we anxiously seek, which, in one sense, is purely Masonic." "According to Cocker," any Freemason would naturally look to the columns of The Freemason to find the official announcement of so great and so valuable an institution of our Craft. But if we did really reason so, we should soon see the fallacy of our position, we should soon be entirely undeceived. That is by no means the way we do our business at the head quarters of the institution in this metropolis of the country, and of Freemasonry. Nothing of the sort! We are Freemasons who conduct this paper for the information of the brotherhood, and therefore, we are the last persons to receive such official information from the Institution. Anxious, however, not to disappoint our readers, having received no official information from the office of the Society, we took the list from a paid advertisement in a non-Masonic journal. Can anything be more absurd, or in truth unfair, or savouring more of hopeless red-tape? We are the only Masonic paper in existence in England, and we are favoured neither with a paid advertisement or an unpaid "communiqué." And yet, why we are thus left out in the cold, we do not know! We have unceasingly advocated the cause of each of the Masonic Charities, and have been at considerable cost to procure reliable reports for the brethren. Why then if we may not have paid advertisements, should we not have official information? We have never refused to publish anything sent to us, though our space is limited, and we do not therefore profess to understand what is to us a Masonic enigma.

We have hesitated to dwell upon this topic before, as we do again to-day, for fear we shall be fraternally answered, that we are only seeking for paid advertisements. But we will say this, once for all, with, we feel sure, the entire concurrence of the Craft, that, as a respectable and well-conducted Masonic paper, we have a right to expect, on the true principles of Freemasonry, some little patronage by this great Masonic Institution of our only Masonic paper. But we would even dispense with paid advertisements, from the Benevolent Institution, if we could but receive unpaid official information. Yet like some other Societies we wot of, the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution is tied down, by some old and stereotyped rules, which do not apply to the passing hour. Because there was a rule, at a time the Masonic press had but little circulation not to publish the advertisements in our Masonic papers, there is no reason why The Freemason should be now deprived of a fair share of patronage by the Institution, and be compelled to cull from non-Masonic papers, and paid advertisements in non-Masonic journals, the official return which it professes to supply to the Order. Such is the inveterate force of custom, that, we do not suppose that anything we have said will obtain a change in the system, which we regret, for the sake of the R. M. B. Institution itself. We have however thought it well, from a feeling of self-respect, and in consequence of the complaints we have received, to state the matter really as it is, for the information of the subscribers of that admirable Institution, and for the consideration of the House Committee and the Craft.

In Memoriam.

Servant of the Great Master, whose "Well done!" fell all too suddenly upon the ear,—
Like muffled thunder speaking when the sun
Is shining, and the summer skies are clear:
With silent grief we gather, one by one,
Mournful and heavy-hearted, round thy bier,
And give thee all that love can give,—a tear.

How many a heart thy tender hand hath sooth'd;
The widow and the orphan held thee dear;
Affliction's roughest paths by thee were smooth'd;
And helpless sorrow ever found thee near.
Stebbing! for thee our broken hearts lament;
And to thy name, in place of marble, rear
Love, as thy memory and monument.

HENRY DOMAN, P.M. 319.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

Bro. H. C. Levander said that the 15th July had been fixed as the day for holding the Benevolent Fund Festival. As to the place of meeting it had not yet been fixed. It had been hoped that the Alexandra Palace would be ready by that time, and communication had been had with the directors on the subject. An answer had not yet been received, but it was immediately expected.

Bro. J. H. Wynne hoped that a large number of brethren would come forward as Stewards on the occasion.

Grand Secretary said that the banquet was so well managed at the Alexandra Palace last year, and gave so much satisfaction, that it was wished to have it there again.

The Acting Grand Master hoped that in the interval between this meeting and the festival it would be well made known among the brethren and ladies. The calls on the Benevolent Fund were small and the balance in hand was considerable. It was a matter of great congratulation that very few Mark Masters applied to the fund for relief from time to time. It was proposed that as there were so few calls on it, there should be one or two exhibitions, by which one or two boys could have admission to Grammar Schools, and, after being examined and passing, should have scholarships at one of the universities. By this means deserving boys would have a chance of getting on. He thought the scheme was a good one. (Cheers.) Bro. J. T. Sabine thanked Grand Lodge for the vote which it had passed for his services. He trusted that at the festival for which he was to be Steward for Mark Grand Lodge, he should receive as good if not a better amount of support than he did in 1873. He then, as W.M. of the oldest Sussex Mark Lodge, invited in the name of that lodge the Grand Master to hold the annual moveable Grand Lodge at Brighton, in September or October.

Bro. James Stevens said it would give general satisfaction if the Grand Master selected Brighton for the purpose, and added that the moveable Grand Lodges had been of great service to Mark Masonry.

The Acting Grand Master observed that the holding of the Moveable Grand Lodge was entirely within the power of the Grand Master, and also as to where it should be held. He would bring the matter before Earl Percy, and he had no doubt arrangements would be made for holding it in Brighton in September or October.

A list of apologies for absence was read from several brethren, and a letter of condolence from Grand Lodge on his illness was ordered to be written by Grand Secretary (Bro. Stebbing).

Grand Lodge was then closed, and the brethren headed by Bro. Portal, sat down to banquet.

After the banquet grace was sung by Bros. H. D. Martin, T. B. Evison, A. Hubbard, and F. H. Cozens, and Miss Agnes Drummond.

The Acting Grand Master then gave the usual toasts. That of "The Queen" was proposed simply in these words—Brethren I give you "The Queen and Mark Masonry." The next toast was proposed by Bro. Portal in these words—Brethren I give you "The Prince of Wales, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold," all three of whom are Masons, and I am sure it is a matter of great congratulation that the younger brothers of the Prince of Wales have at last joined our great Order, and I have no doubt they will be as great an ornament to the Order as their brother.

The Acting Grand Master again rose and said: The next toast I have to bring before your notice is "The Health of our Grand Master." (Hear hear). It is a necessary condition of the election of a nobleman of high rank and great position, such as our Grand Master, who is not only a member of Parliament but also a high officer in the Queen's household, it is a condition of such an appointment as that, that we cannot be able to command his services here, as if we had an officer who had no other avocation or calling elsewhere. But I am sure the Grand Master regrets exceedingly, as he stated in the letter which I read you to-night that he is no present with us. He feels very much the honour you have done him in electing him the second time to the chair of this Grand Lodge. His heart is in Mark Masonry, and he has done his utmost to promote the degree in his own province of Northumberland. I am sure there is no brother more deserves to have his health drunk with cordiality than our Grand Master.

The toast having been duly honoured,

Sir Edmund Lechmere, P.D.G.M., proposed "The Past Grand Masters," and in doing so said he knew they would all look with pride on the illustrious list of Past Grand Masters of this Order. Lord Holmesdale, the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Holmesdale, Mr. Beach, and the Rev. G. R. Portal. With them, and the Earl Percy for the present Master, he could not conceive a more illustrious roll, though there might be in future times many distinguished Mark Masters added to the list, yet none could work more zealously than had those Grand Masters to place Mark Masonry in the position it now occupied. It was therefore due to them to acknowledge their services, both in the revival and sustaining of Mark Masonry, but while drinking the health of those who were absent they must not forget what they owed to Bro. Portal for the spread of the Order. He (Bro. Lechmere) was but a sluggish Mason, but it was surprising to see the stimulus which Bro. Portal gave to the Order. By his energy he had tended to strengthen the zeal of others to the cause, and he must be looked upon as one of the motive powers of the degree.

The acting Grand Master, in a very brief reply, said, that while thanking the brethren for this toast on behalf of the other P.G.M.'s and for himself, they thought the very least they could do was to place their services at the disposal of this Order. So long as they could be of use they would be happy to be so, and speaking for himself, if ever they wanted any one to conduct the business of the lodge, or this table, he should be always happy to do it.

The acting Grand Master then gave "The Deputy Grand Mark Master, the Earl of Limerick." That brother was unfortunately detained in the House of Lords, but they had a very distinguished Past Deputy Grand Master present, Sir Edmund Lechmere. Time was when he attended this Grand Lodge more regularly than he had of late years. In those days, under the influence of the good cheer which Grand Lodge set before its friends, he promised no effort should be wanting on his part to promote the good of Mark Masonry in his province of Worcester. But no doubt other avocations had prevented his carrying out those promises as fully as he would desire. But he (Bro. Portal) could not help thinking that Sir Edward Lechmere had set himself up as the Provincial Grand Master of Worcester. This Grand Lodge would be only too glad to see Mark Masonry put under his charge there, and he would hope he would allow no reasons to stand in his way.

Sir E. Lechmere said he rose as a repentant prodigal to respond to the toast. As regarded the province of Worcester there was but one lodge in it, but Bro. Griffiths and another had taken great interest in forming a local organisation in the shape of a Grand Lodge. At one time a fusion with Gloucestershire was suggested, but ultimately it was not considered desirable until there was an extension of Mark Masonry in the province. He was afraid it was hardly fair to tax him with not being Provincial Grand Master. They had not the wherewithal. He looked upon Masonry as representing the ancient guilds at work in the Temple. Masonry contained very much that illustrated that idea, and modern speculative Masonry was closely connected with the Masonry of our predecessors. When the Cathedral of Worcester was re-opened the Dean and Chapter recognised the fact in inviting the Masons of the province to participate in the ceremony.

The acting Grand Master, in giving "The Health of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," said there was nothing which fell within the Grand Master's domain of so anxious and critical a nature as the appointment to Grand Office. It had always been the endeavour of the Grand Masters of this degree to give office where merit was due, and the greatest possible pains were taken to ascertain who were desirable brethren. For the recommendation obtained, alone, office was given, and never from any private or personal feeling at all. Therefore, he could ask them to drink the health of the Grand Officers as a mark of men who had endeavoured to do justice to this degree. He would couple with this the name of Bro. Little, than whom there was no man who had worked harder in the cause of Masonry in the various degrees, or in the Charities of the Order.

Bro. Little confessed that he hardly expected it would have fallen to his lot to respond to such a distinguished toast that evening, but it arose from his seniors in office not being present. He was satisfied that those distinguished brethren who had been selected would have been delighted had they been present to witness the cordial and harmonious meeting, and to congratulate the acting Grand Master on the great spread of the Mark Degree through the length and breadth of the land. He hoped he should always endeavour to do his duty in every position he obtained in Masonry. He had not done much for the Mark Degree, nor for Masonry generally, but he hoped that the office conferred on him to-day would be an additional stimulus. If he was spared, that would be the case.

The Acting Grand Master next gave "Success to the Mark Benevolent Fund," with thanks to the Chairman and Board of Stewards of Festivals already held, and repeated the scheme he announced in Grand Lodge for future exhibitions and scholarships.

Bro. F. Binckes, in the course of acknowledging the compliment, said that it was astonishing that in so short a time as the festival had been established the brethren had done so much. They had already invested £400, before closing the year it would very likely be £600. He had been rather taken by surprise at the scheme of the Grand Master, but it was doubt one which commended itself to his mind, and would tend to the minds of others. Whatever might be done, he was sure the consideration would be given to any well devised scheme. For the coming festival there every prospect of success, and he thought would be even greater than any of its predecessors, and that a large amount would be realised. He hoped it would be so; he was a man of progress himself, and could not endure the course like progress of going backwards. He would go to strength to strength; that he would continue to have as satisfactory a prosperity as it was now enjoying. He hoped their friends would rally round them, and the number of Stewards would increase. When the festival came round, that a large amount of money, which means the sinews of war, would come in, and when they had sufficient of it would determine how it should be disposed of.

The brethren shortly afterwards separated.

The dinner was well supplied by Bro. Fratelli, and during the evening a selection of it was performed by Miss Agnes Drummond, Bros. H. D. Martin, T. B. Evison, and Hubbard, under the direction of Bro. F. Cozens.

Multum in Parvo, or Masonic Notes and Queries.

I am putting together an account of Wm. Preston, and I am anxious to learn if any brother can kindly refer me to any account or memoir of his life, or tell me of any letters of his.

It may be that some traces of him still be found in York. Among the brethren the old York Grand Lodge appears the name of Preston more than once, both earlier and later.

In one place he is called John Preston appears to have been W.M. Is there any relationship between him and our great Mark historian? It struck me some years ago Wm. Preston had some sort of connection with York, from his reference to the York I &c., and I remember that our late Bro. J. Hughan seems also to have been connected with York.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

Thursday, the 18th of May, was the day appointed for the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons, in Lincolnshire, and Grantham the town selected for holding the meeting. Early in the day a considerable number of brethren arrived, and met at the Exchange at high twelve for the business of the Lodge.

In the minds of many persons we know very well that a prejudice exists against Freemasonry, and for many reasons. The religionist, who, not knowing the arcana of the Order, imagines it somewhat of a usurpation of their own exclusive right of dictating to men and women what they ought to believe; others, anxious to penetrate the veil, and unable to do so, fall back upon the argument that "there is nothing in it;" the public lives of many of its members are often held up to derision; and, it is a fact, that among the few there is objection taken to this speculative science. We need only say that they do not know what it is that they condemn, and, consequently, their condemnation is but of little effect. Nor do Masons fear it. They attend their meetings and transact their business, caring little for what the outside world may say about them. It is their custom to meet once a year, and then they fix upon a central town, and representatives from each Lodge are present. These are called meetings of "Grand Lodge," and the ceremonies are of course much more imposing.

Grand Lodge was held at the Exchange, in High-street, and the Lodge was, as usual, opened in the first degree by the officers of the Doric Lodge (Grantham). The ordinary announcements having been made, his Grace the Duke of St. Albans entered the Lodge, supported by his officers, and we need hardly say that the procession was a most elaborate and imposing one. His Grace having ascended the dais, the brethren standing meanwhile, the hymn of invocation was sung with spirit and effect, and the supplication said by Bro. Dr. Ace, who looked exceedingly imposing in his many coloured robes. Grand Lodge was then opened, Bro. J. Lambert, P. G. O., presiding at the organ.

The business for transaction was not very extensive, and to some extent it was less interesting than it might have been from the fact that the brethren at the lower end of the room had a difficulty in hearing the various transactions of the Committees, whose reports were read. From these reports, we learned that Freemasonry had progressed very considerably during the year, more than seven hundred members being on the books at the present time. The funds, too, appeared to be in a very healthy state.

The Charity Committee had met at an earlier hour, and awarded various sums to aged widows of Freemasons, and a report was read by Bro. Radley, showing the workings of lads sent from his province into the Masonic Institution for Boys.

In connection with this subject, the name of Bro. Sutcliffe, P.S.W., of the Grimsby Lodge, was specially and honourably mentioned. This worthy and deserving member of the fraternity was last year appointed P.G.S., and he appears to have thoroughly interested himself in the work, or, by liberal contributions from himself and his family, and the co-operation of the Lincolnshire Lodges, he succeeded in sending to the funds of the School no less than a thousand guineas, one-seventh of the whole amount contributed during the year. A special expression of gratitude was proposed and seconded in Lodge, and his Grace the Duke said he felt he should be very remiss if he did not mention the especial aid and satisfaction it gave him to find that Bro. Sutcliffe had made such efforts for supporting the institution.

Bro. Binckes, Secretary of the Boys' School, then rose and said he was deputed by the Governors to be present, in order to acknowledge their appreciation of the very handsome donations awarded them by Bro. Sutcliffe, and they would have thought it a neglect of duty had they omitted to make special acknowledgement, not only of his exertions, but also of his own liberality. Bro. Sutcliffe, who spoke very much under the influence of emotion, and who was not distinctly heard in consequence, said what he had done had been a labour of love, and he would have done more had it been in his power. W. Bro. Chas. Michell Nesbitt, 712, was then unanimously re-elected P.G. Treasurer for the ensuing year, and the following officers were then invested by his Grace:—

Heartly good-wishes having been expressed, the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to a sumptuous banquet, provided at the Guildhall, in the best style by Bro. Brickett, of the Angel Hotel (late of the "Great Northern," Lincoln); the chair being taken by his Grace the Duke of St. Albans.

The Provincial Grand Lodge will be held in 1875 at Boston.—Spalding Free Press.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

The ill-considered, hasty, and erroneous statements of Bro. Chalmers I. Paton on this subject, have, as regards their main points, been so thoroughly controverted by the learned brother who writes under the modest nom de plume of "A Masonic Student," and by my able and worthy friend, Bro. W. J. Hughan (whose literary services to the Craft all must be delighted to see recognised by the M.W. Grand Master), that it would be quite superfluous for any one else to add a word to these observations, so far as the actual question of Masons' Marks is concerned.

There are, however, two or three assertions made by Bro. C. I. Paton, collateral to the main issue as to the marks, but important in themselves, which are equally inaccurate with the rest. These have been entirely passed over in the discussion, and it certainly seems desirable to have them rectified.

I have waited for some time in the hope that some more able brother would stir in the matter, but as no else seems disposed to do so, I venture to "put my spoon in the kail," even at the risk of the penalty threatened in the Scottish proverb quoted by Bro. Paton. I hope, however, that in my case, our English proverb that "too many cooks spoil the broth," will not prove to be true.

In Bro. C. I. Paton's letter, in The Freemason of April 11 (p. 221), he asserts that "The Grand Lodge of Mark Masters in England was only constituted a few years ago, to take charge, or to speak of the mark lodges in England; but all those English lodges received their charters from Scotland, and along with them their ritual, which they could have no right to change, and in which it is distinctly laid down as a fixed rule that candidates are to choose no other mark than one with an odd number of points," and again, further on, he re-asserts that "all the lodges of Mark Masters in England are daughters of the Supreme Grand Royal and Chapter of Scotland."

It is possible that a brother who is a fluent writer on Freemasonry, and who possesses the undoubted abilities and acquirements of Bro. Paton, can really be so ignorant of the status of Mark Masonry in England as not to know that the Mark Masters' degree was worked by many lodges in this country long before the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland itself existed.

This being so, I would first recommend Bro. C. I. Paton to peruse the introduction to the Constitutions of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters of England, which I presume, he cannot have seen, and then proceed to give the following particulars, as facts within my own knowledge, confirmatory of the statements there made.

The Mark Masters and other degrees not now recognised by the United Grand Lodge of England, were regularly worked in an old lodge, No. 91, in this town, date of foundation unknown, but which, after many years' labour, ceased to exist about the year 1818, the seals of which, including those for the Ark Mariners, the Royal Arch, the Knights Templar, and the Red Cross degrees, are now in my own possession.

These degrees were also worked, under the Craft warrants, in the Knights of Malta Lodge, at Hinckley, in this Province, now No. 50, on the Craft register and No. 30 in that of the Mark Grand Lodge, which was founded in the year 1767.

In my sketch of the History of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire, 1870, (pp. 66-9) I have given copies of some curious old certificates, issued by their lodge, and also some extracts from the lodge books, of which the following entries may suffice for present services.

Joseph Dudley was arked and marked on St. John's Day, 1827. The Square

William May, on the same day The Half Moon.

Bro. Joseph King marked and arked, March 23rd, 1828. The 7 Stars.

Although St. John's Lodge (now 279) in this town never worked the Mark as a separate degree, I well recollect, after being passed in it, thirty-five years ago, having the sign inimical of a Mark Man and Mark Master communicated to me.

In company with five or six other Leicester brethren, I was advanced to the Mark Masters' degree, sixteen years ago, in the old Newstead Lodge, No. 47, at Nottingham, which, like the lodge at Hinckley, founded almost contemporaneously with it, has continued from its foundation to work the Mark degree, in connection with the Craft Lodge, down to the present day, but, unlike the latter, it is one of the very few time-immemorial lodges, which has yet recognised the Mark Grand Lodge, but in the midst of its territory or jurisdiction, it continues, in isolated independence, a little imperium in imperio.

Here, we have three positive instances of lodges in this neighbourhood, in which the Mark Degree has been worked from about a century ago, and also in two, out of the three cases, of the correctness of the statements in the Mark Book of Constitutions, that notwithstanding the non-recognition of this degree by the United Grand Lodge at the union in 1813, "the Mark Degree continued to be extensively worked in the Northern and Midland districts of England."

The first warrant issued to an English Mark Masters' Lodge under the Scottish Constitution was, I believe, that to the Bon Accord Lodge, in London, less than twenty years ago. I have a copy of the ritual used in the lodge at that time (differing essentially, in some respects from the working at Nottingham), which singularly enough, contains no mention of the candidate Mark being required to have an odd number of lines, indeed, the candidate did not select it himself, but it was presented to him by the R.W.M., "subject to the confirmation of the Registrar." I fully admit, however, the accuracy of Bro. C. I. Paton's statement that such a requirement was part of the Scottish system of working.

When the newly-established Grand Lodge of Mark Masters, in 1856, promulgated their first ritual, this practice was copied from Scotland, and the candidate was instructed that he was to select a Mark consisting of 3, 5, 7, 9, or 11 lines of any figures, not previously chosen by a member of the same lodge, except the equilateral triangle, which was the Mark Master's Mark.

This restriction being found contrary to ancient usage, after being in force during several years, was abolished, and as Bro. Hughan and "A Masonic Student" were probably advanced to the degree subsequently to this being done, their ignorance of such a requirement having existed, is, of course, at once explained, whilst at the same time it confirms the accuracy of Bro. Yarker's statement at p. 311.

It is evident that no such restriction existed in the old mark lodges, any more than it did among the operative Masons in the middle ages, as it will be seen that among the marks selected at Hinckley, as above mentioned, are the square, the half moon, and seven stars, all contrary to Bro. Paton's assertion, whilst in the lodge at Nottingham, also, no such restriction was enforced, and I believe that scarcely one of the marks selected by the candidates from Leicester was in accordance with this so-called requirement. I recollect that one brother chose a horse shoe as his mark, whilst singularly enough, as apropos to the present discussion, the mark I myself selected was the double triangle, which Bro. C. I. Paton denied to be a Masonic mark at all.

If any confirmation were needed to those who have studied the subject of Masons' Marks, I could from my own experience on the subject, fully confirm the assertion of "A Masonic Student" that (although it certainly does not occur so frequently as the pentagon) "there is hardly a collection of Mason's Marks in which the double triangle is not to be found."

To show that I am not wholly ignorant of the subject, I may state (at the risk of Bro. C. I. Paton accusing me, as he has done "A Masonic Student," of "sounding my own trumpet") that years ago I also devoted considerable attention to the study of these marks, of which I made a tolerably large collection.

In the year 1852, George Godwin, Esq., F.S.A., (one of the first to draw attention to the importance of Masons' Marks) favoured me with copies (six sheets) of marks which he had found whilst engaged in the restoration of Canterbury Cathedral, and which, with others collected by myself in this country, I had the pleasure of supplying to the late indefatigable Bro. Shaw, whose illness and premature decease prevented the appearance of what would, doubtless, have proved a most useful and interesting text book on the subject. Among numerous marks at Canterbury contradictory of Bro. Paton's theory, was a bell, probably the mark of a Craftsman so named.

Regretting, as I am sure all your readers must do, the unmasonic personalities which have been so unnecessarily imported into this discussion,

I am, yours fraternally,

WILLIAM KELLY,
P.G.M.M., Leicestershire.

DR. SPARK'S LIBER MUSICUS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to suggest the desirability of Dr. Spark's work being advertised with a detailed index showing the contents of each part.

I can conceive of many musical brethren who might avail themselves of this eminent maestro's composition, say for instance that incidental to Craft Masonry, who would not care about purchasing the entire work.

Yours fraternally,

M.M.

TEMPLAR CERTIFICATE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

One of your correspondents, some weeks since, enquired where the Templar certificate, of which I published a copy in your columns, was to be seen. I must apologise to that brother for not having replied at once to his enquiry. The certificate is in the museum at Bangor; it is dated 30th January, 1806, and granted under the sanction of Lodge No. 44, at Nottingham.

May I take this opportunity to suggest that the termination "ism" is much out of place when tacked on to the Templar or Red Cross degrees. What should we think of Garterism or Bathism as applied to the public orders.

Yours fraternally,

LUPUS,

MASONIC CHARITIES.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The list of subscriptions handed in at the Girls' School Festival has not yet appeared in your publication. I looked forward anxiously to seeing it in to-day's paper, but am disappointed. It is interesting to see whence the money comes, whether from town or country, and to see and know who have taken an interest in the success of the different charities.

This ought to be made known to all, it ought not to be a Masonic secret, known only to a few.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN SUTCLIFFE.

TEMPLARISM AND RED CROSSISM IN EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW.

(To the Editor of the Freemason.)

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In thanking Bro. Wheeler, and K.T.—K.R.C.C. for replying to my communication of the 23rd of May, I cannot help remarking on the difference between the dignified and unimpassioned tone of K.T.—K.R.C.C., and the angry tinge which seems to pervade the communication of Bro. Wheeler. I always feel sorry for a man, particularly a brother Mason, who fails to handle a subject calmly and dispassionately as he not unfrequently comes to grief however good his cause may be. Why Bro. Wheeler should be angry with me for commencing my enquiries in The Freemason instead of running up and down and asking Dick, Tom, and Harry, I cannot conceive, being fully impressed with the idea that The Freemason is the proper medium through which to ask questions and ventilate all Masonic subjects. I can however assure Bro. Wheeler that knowing him (by repute) as I do, I fully believe him when he says that "he has too great a respect for his O.B., to wilfully act in opposition to the Constitution of any Order he may belong to," and I rejoice that he has adopted the R.C.C. degree, and wish him every success. It was my confidence in his Masonic probity and my knowledge of the state of matters in Edinburgh, (which by the bye he elects to disbelieve) that induced me to ask the question I did, and which he has so far answered by declaring that he at least, is acting in due conformity with the Charter of the Encampment which he represents as Secretary.

Now the Edinburgh Champion—K.T.—K.R.C.C., (it is a terrible job getting over all those capitals) goes in for a bold straightforward denial of my position, and backs his denial by a calm statement that there are "several Sir Knights who maintain active relations in both Orders in Edinburgh." Now at first sight that looks like a terrible crusher, and so it would be if it truly meant what it bears on the surface, which it does not, I am sorry to say, and therefore is a wee bit misleading to those not in the secret. It is true that there are several Templars holding office in the Red Cross Order in Edinburgh, but they happen to be Glasgow Templars and in no way under the jurisdiction of the Priory of the Lothians. Such being the case I apprehend that the evidence of K.T.—K.R.C.C. goes for nothing, or if anything, it must be to prove the contrary of what he desires.

Now as neither of my correspondents have satisfactorily cleared up the question at issue, the one merely denying and the other refusing to believe the existence of the ground on which my question was based, but which I know did, and believe still does exist, and which I shall be happy to find vanish, I will, in conclusion, and at the risk of being considered credulous, state what I have heard since my last communication, and which may not be known to Bro. Wheeler or to K.T.—K.R.C.C., as neither of alluded to it, and which taken with Wheeler's declaration may account for the in the nut. It is to the effect that the Ten of Edinburgh possess a privilege not possessed by their brethren of Glasgow, that the C of the Priory of the Lothians empowers them to confer the Red Cross Degree. It is true they have never done so, and perhaps never will still they say they have the power, and that they cannot at present make up their mind to see another body, what they call infringe rights. There appears, however, a probability that ere long they will make up their mind to do so. How far my credulity has been posed upon in the above, I must trust to the dict of Bro. Wheeler, hoping he will give dispassionate consideration, being guided by beautiful principles inculcated in the R.C.C. degree, the exposition of which so delighted on the occasion of our opening in Glasgow.

I am your fraternally,

ESAU

PROVINCE OF CORNWALL AND HUGHAN, F.S.G. DEACON.

The brethren of this province with Bro. Hughan is so deservedly popular, are gratified at the great honour bestowed by the Grand Master at a recent meeting of the Grand Lodge.

The Fortitude Lodge, 131, Truro, of Bro. Hughan is a Past Master, has paid a high compliment of presenting to Bro. Hughan a P.S.G. Deacon's collar and Lodge Druids, 589, Redruth, has paid a similar compliment by presenting to Bro. Hughan apron and cuffs to match.

At a meeting of the Lodge One and A Bodmin, held on the 1st instant, the following vote of congratulation to Bro. Hughan passed with acclamation:—

"The most noble the Marquess of Grand Master, having conferred on our gifted brother, Bro. Hughan, P.M., a member of this lodge, the very distinguished honour of P.S.G. Deacon, we, the W. Master, Past Masters, Wardens, and do, at the first regular meeting of this lodge the above auspicious event, hasten to Bro. Hughan our sincere congratulations high and unique distinction he has attained the hands of the Grand Master, and do our fervent hope that he will long live to the honour he so richly merits.

"That the above vote of congratulation entered on the minutes of this lodge, and a copy thereof be transmitted to Bro. Hughan."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall, Wordsworth in the chair. There were present Bros. H. Browne, J. G. Chance, Roebuck, Benjamin Head, J. W. Denon, Gutierrez, W. H. Saunders, John S. H. Massey, Hyde Pullen, Jesse Turner, Moutrie, F. Adlard, R. Spencer, H. Duff, F. Binckes (Secretary).

There was but a small amount of work got through. The minutes of former meetings were read and confirmed, and the minutes of other committees were read for information. A pleasing communication was conveyed from one of the Lancashire brethren, that one of the Lancashire brethren had made the munificent offer of 176 counterpane for the use of the institution. One lad was in reading previous to being put on the candidates for election; and a letter from a Lancashire brother making an offer of the institution's benefit, which it was necessary to forward to the Provincial Lodge before accepting. A young man was made to a former paper, who had satisfaction to his employers, and the list then adjourned.

Masonic Tidings.

GRAND LODGE OF IRELAND.—A special meeting of Grand Lodge was held on Thursday, 11th of June, for the consideration of the proposed rule 133, and the several notices of motion which have been handed in relative to alternate prayers, &c., full particulars of which will be issued immediately after Grand Lodge on the 4th prox. The Grand Lodge will meet on Wednesday, 24th June, St. John's at twelve o'clock noon, to salute the Grand Masters and receive the report of Committee of Selection as to the officers of the Dublin lodges for the next half-year.

We are requested to contradict, (on authority) the statement in the Report of the General Grand of the Mark Grand Lodge, that a brother whose name was submitted for erasure was a member of the Rite of Misraim. It should have been Memphis.

On Tuesday the 9th inst., a testimonial consisting of a handsome and elegantly engraved tea pot was presented to Bro. E. Gottheil, (and P.Z.), by the members of the Confiance Lodge of Instruction, in recognition of 17 years' service as Preceptor thereto.

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR. Oplates, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy. SELECT TESTIMONIAL. Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Pulmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease." This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough. Invalids should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels," a copy of which can be had gratis of all Chemists.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 28th ult., when there were present Bros. W. Boby, P.S.G.W., in the chair of W.M.; A.D. George, S.W.; J. Wright, acting J.W.; Emra Holmes, P.G. Reg., M.C.; F. Comell, P.P.G.S.D.; N. Tracy, P.P.G.J.W.; and S. B. King, P.P.G.S.D., of the Perfect Friendship Lodge; G. Cresswell, W.M. Prince of Wales Lodge; and others. After the lodge had been opened and the minutes confirmed, Bro. Tracy, in the absence of the popular W.M., Bro. Peter de Lande Long, at the request of the acting Master assumed the gavel, and passed Bro. Casley to the second degree in his usual manner, Bro. Cornell presenting the working tools. Bro. Emra Holmes gave notice that at the next regular lodge he should move that the fee should be £5 5s. for initiation instead of £4 4s., as at present. Previous to 1830, the higher sum had been charged, and it was only subsequent to that date that it had been lowered to its present figure. Bro. Emra Holmes also gave notice that he should bring the question of a salaried Organist before the lodge at the next meeting. He thought if that officer were adequately remunerated, the addition of music to the ceremonies would greatly add to their effect. Bro. George cordially supported the notion. At refreshment Bro. Holmes called attention to the circular issued by Bro. Kenning, relative to the picture of the building of King Solomon's Temple, which it is proposed to purchase by subscription and present to Grand Lodge. Several copies of the well-known poem in the same subject, published by our able Bro. Arkham Tweddell, were also disposed of, and the proceeds given to the Benevolent Box. Bro. Tracy brought before the lodge the project of a Masonic library, first mooted in the Perfect Friendship Lodge, which had already a considerable number of books to form the nucleus of a good library. The matter was referred to a small committee. A very agreeable evening, under the presidency of Bro. Cornell, was spent with the brethren.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Harbour of Refuge Lodge (No. 746).—On the 9th inst. in presence of a influential gathering of Masons, many from distant lodges, the installation of the W.M. of the Lodge of Freemasons took place at the Music Hall, Upper Church-street, West Hartlepool. The W.M. elect, Bro. George Thompson, was installed by Bro. Gourley, F.M., and at the conclusion of the ceremony the W.M. appointed the following officers:—Bro. Chas. T. Sebourne, S.W.; Bro. W.T. Tait, J.W.; the Rev. John Rudd, Chaplain; Bro. Harpley, P.M., Treasurer; Bro. Geo. Paxton, Secretary; Bro. Mellanby, S.D.; Bro. J. Tweedy, J.D.; Bro.

F. Cowper, I.G.; and Bro. W. Atkinson, Tyler. The customary banquet was held the same evening at the Royal Hotel, and was numerously attended by members of the Order belonging to distant lodges, the W.M. presiding.

LIVERPOOL.—Croxth United Service Lodge, (No. 786).—The annual meeting, for installation purposes, of the brethren of the Croxth United Service Lodge, No. 786, was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Thursday, the 11th inst., and as there were two features of special interest in connection with the gathering, the brethren who were present experienced all the greater pleasure. The first arose from the fact that this was the first installation which has been held in the new building, which is not yet quite complete, and the second from the fact that Bro. G. G. Stopford Taylor, the W.M. elect, was installed by his father, Bro. Councillor Dr. J. Stopford Taylor, a worthy and much esteemed P.M. of the Everton Lodge, No. 823, who previously had had the privilege of initiating and subsequently raising his son a few years ago. The presence of Bro. Councillor Taylor, for such a purpose, on this occasion, was an expressive evidence of the value and genuine merits of Freemasonry, and as it is very rarely the privilege of brethren to see a father installing his son, whose brother he is, all the greater importance attached to the meeting, which was largely and influentially attended. The lodge was opened about 5 o'clock by Bro. Capt. W. J. Newman, W.M., who was supported by Bros. G. L. Blundell, P.M., S.W.; G. G. Stopford Taylor, J.W.; W. B. Caw, Secretary; J. B. Wallace, Treas.; W. H. Holt, J.D.; G. Owen, P.M., P.G.S.; J. A. Coulter, P.M.; and P. Ball, acting Tyler. Amongst the members were Bros. W. Tomkinson, H. A. Lawton, J. Dale, J. Bunting, H. Tomkinson, E. W. Parnell, and J. W. Wright, and the list of visitors included the names of Bros. Dr. Taylor, P.M. 823; J. Hamer, P. Prov. G. Treas.; R. Wylie, P. Prov. S.G.D.; C. H. Hill, P.G. Reg.; Dr. S. Kisch, 216; B. Williams, 216; A. Stephen, P. Prov. G.S.D. (Cheshire); W. Hughes, P.M. 1013; J. Hocken, P.M. 673; R. Croft, 673; W. J. Chapman, 667; T. Platt, P. Prov. G.S.D. (Cheshire); R. Collinson, 1305; J. Galloway, 113; J. B. Mac Kenzie, 1356; T. H. Ward, W.M. 1276; W. G. Veale, Org. 1356; H. Price, 1393; J. C. Minclair, 1393; and others. After the lodge had been opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, Dr. Francis J. Bailey, assistant surgeon of the 80th L.R.V., was duly and impressively installed by the W.M. Bro. P.M. Taylor then took the chair, and proceeded to instal his son, Bro. G. G. Stopford Taylor, into the chair of K.S., the whole of the ceremony being very effectively and efficiently performed. The W.M. subsequently invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Captain W. J. Newman, I.P.M.; W. B. Carr, S.W.; W. H. Holt, J.W.; J. B. Wallace, Treasurer (re-elected by acclamation); W. H. Tyerman, Secretary; G. W. Parnell, S.D.; W. Tomkinson, J.D.; Dr. H. A. Lawton, I.G.; and J. A. Coulter, P.M., D.C. Bro. Neville was unanimously re-elected Tyler of the lodge. The brethren then "ceased labour" and retired to a most recherché banquet in the old lodge-room, where the newly chaired W.M. was supported by a good muster of the fraternity. During the evening, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in a most business-like manner, which augurs favourably for his year's Masonic reign. The toast of "The Rulers," was acknowledged by Bro. Platt, P.P.J.G.D. (Cheshire), and Bro. G. Owen, P.M., P.G.S. (West Lancashire). The W.M.'s health was given by Bro. Newman, I.P.M., in terse and pointed terms, and acknowledged in an excellent manner by the W.M. Bro. P.M. Blundell proposed "The I.P.M.," who suitably responded, referring with pleasure to the great harmony and good feeling which had obtained during his year of office. Bro. P.M. Owen gave "The Health of the Installing Master," who, in reply, spoke of the pride and pleasure he had experienced that day in installing his son into the chair of W.M. There was something true and noble in Masonry, else he would not have occupied the position he had held that day. The more he (Bro. Dr. Taylor) saw of Masonry, the more he felt that the man who acted up to its principles, would be better in heart and conscience. The W.M. then gave "The New Initiate," which was acknowledged by Bro. Dr. Bailey. "The Officers" was then responded to by the whole staff, and "The Visitors," by Bros. Hughes, Leslie, and Kisch. The lodge was then resumed, and after several propositions for initiation, and hearty good wishes from a number of visitors, the proceedings were brought to a close at an early hour.

WALTHAM CROSS.—Gresham Lodge (867.)—The installation meeting of this lodge took place at Waltham Cross, on Saturday, the 13th instant, the W.M., Bro. F. D. Rees Copestick, P.P.G.S.B., in the chair, assisted by his officers, all of whom were in their places. The lodge was opened at 2 p.m., and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, with the exception of that part relative to the election of Treasurer (in order to take the office of J.W.). The ballot was then taken for Mr. A. Powel, of Wood-street, E.C., as a candidate for initiation, which proving unanimous, the W.M. proceeded to initiate him into the mysteries of the Order. It was then announced that the R.W. Grand Master of the Province desired admission. Bros. Past Masters, Forsyth, Gompertz, and Bruce were, therefore, deputed by the W.M. to escort him to the lodge, who, on his arrival, with Bros. O. H. Wagner, P.G. J.W.; and Wilson Iles, P.G. Secretary, was saluted with the usual honours observed on such occasions. The lodge having been opened in the 2nd degree, Bro. the Rev. Charles Mayo was examined as to his proficiency in the art, which proved satisfactory. He accordingly retired, when the lodge was opened in the 3rd degree, and the ceremony of raising him was worked by Past Master Gompertz in an impressive manner. The chair being resumed by the W.M., Bro. J. Copestick, W.M. elect, was presented for installation, which ceremony was performed in a very impressive manner. The newly installed W.M. having been proclaimed and saluted, proceeded to appoint his officers for the year as follows—Bros. A. C. Wylie, J.W.; J. E. Grotcott, J.W.; Rev. C. Mayo, Chaplain; T. D. R. Copestick, Treasurer; W. E. Gompertz, Secretary; Etherington, S.D.; Pottle, J.D.; Chapman, I.G.; Stephens, D.; Perry, Steward; after which the Installing Master gave the addresses to the Wardens and brethren in a manner that called forth a general expression of approval. The Master, in the chair, then presented the immediate P.M., in the name of the lodge, with a handsome Past Master's jewel, manufactured by Bro. George Kenning, as a small token of the esteem in which they held him, and in appreciation of his services during his year of office. After the usual routine business, propositions, &c., the lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to a recherché banquet, served up by mine host, Bro. Hunt, and presided over by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Joseph Copestick, supported on the right by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, P.S. Grand Warden; the P. G. Secretary, and Bro. J. B. Scriven, P. G. Steward, and the Past Masters of the lodge on the left. Justice having been done to the good things provided, and the cloth removed, the W.M. proved his fitness for the position by the animated way in which he proposed the various toasts of the evening. That of "The Grand Officers" was responded to by Bro. Scriven, P.G.S. "The Health of The P.G.M., the R. W. Bro. Thomas Halsey, M.P." was received most heartily, and after the enthusiasm had subsided, the Grand Master rose to acknowledge the compliment and return thanks. He said he congratulated the brethren on the very efficient manner in which the several officers had performed their duties in the lodge, and of his satisfaction at the position of the various lodges in the Province, as far as he had been able to visit them, and he felt that although the number was small, yet for efficiency and usefulness, he was sure they would bear comparison with many older and larger provinces. He thanked the brethren for the cordial manner in which they had received him, and hoped to often have the pleasure of meeting them in time to come. In response to the toast of the Deputy

P. Grand Master, who had written to excuse his absence, being engaged at the London Orphan Asylum, Bro. Iles, the P.G. Secretary, replied, assuring the brethren that so long as he had the honour to preside over the official duties of the Province, he should do so with all promptitude and courtesy possible, at the same time he wished to thank the Secretaries of the various lodges for the assistance they had afforded him by the prompt manner in which they had replied to his communications. The "Health of the W.M." was then proposed by the Provincial Grand Master in very complimentary terms, and responded to heartily by the brethren. Bro. Copestick, in replying, assured the P.G.M. and brethren it should be his study to promote the prosperity of the lodge, and the happiness of the brethren, to the utmost of his power. The "Health of The Immediate P.M." was proposed by Bro. Past Master Barnes in very warm and eulogistic terms, and Bro. Copestick, in replying, thanked the brethren for their unanimous expression of approval, and instanced the cordial good feeling that had hitherto existed in the lodge by the fact that the W.M., the present S.W., and himself, were initiated together, and had had the honour during the past year of filling the three principal offices, having followed each other in unbroken succession. Before resuming his seat, he wished to propose the health of the officers, and in doing so, thanked them for the assistance they had rendered him during his term of office, and to express his conviction that they would render to his successor the same firm support so necessary in the well-governing of the lodge. Bro. Gompertz, the Secretary, in responding, gave a short history of the lodge, by which it appears it had been in existence thirteen years, during which time sixty-three brethren had been initiated, seven of whom had passed the chair, and still remain members, the number of which at present were thirty-three. All the Past Masters had served as Stewards to one or other of the Charities, and a large portion of its members are Life Governors or Subscribers, the lodge being in addition annual subscriber to each. Further, by a Club inaugurated by Bro. F. D. R. Copestick, seven life subscribers had been purchased, and he believed there were funds in hand to purchase two more, a circumstance of which the brethren might justly feel proud. Several capital songs were sung, and the band of the 41st Middlesex played some choice selections during the evening. Amongst the visitors, were the W. Bro. W. Thomas, Halsey, M.P., Prov. Grand Master W. Bro. O. H. Wagner, Prov. G.S.W.; W. Bro. Wilson Iles, Prov. G. Secretary; W. Bro. Scriven P.M., Lodge No. 5, Past Grand Steward; Bro. James Death, Lodge 186; Bro. Jackson, Lodge 1475, &c.

WELCHPOOL.—Welchpool Lodge (No. 998) held its first meeting since the installation of the new Master, on Friday, the 6th inst., the W. Bro. William Callender in the chair of K.S. There were also present:—Bros. Goldsbrough, P.M., P.P.G.P., North Wales; H. Muggeridge, P.M., 192, P.G. Standard Bearer, England; D. P. Owen, P.M., P.P.G.P., North Wales; W. Withy, P.M. and Treas., No. 998; Kemble Williams, J.W.; MacGrath, Graham Brown, R. T. Morris, Danily, Morgan, Jones, Barnard, and others. The W.M. opened the lodge, and on the confirmation of the minutes the ballot was taken for Mr. J. Anderson, a candidate for initiation, who on being introduced was duly inducted into Masonry by Bro. Muggeridge, to whom the W.M. gracefully yielded his chair for the occasion. Bro. Goldsbrough stated that he had been honoured and entrusted by the lodge with the performance of a duty which was highly gratifying to himself, namely, that of presenting to the Worthy and Worshipful Bro. Withy, a very handsome Past Master's jewel, unanimously voted him by the lodge as a small but very significant token of the high regard, fraternal affection, and esteem in which he was held by every member of the lodge. "It has been my happiness" (said Bro. Goldsbrough), "to have been very intimately acquainted with Bro. William Withy for upwards of thirty years, and the longer I have known him the more have I regarded him as the true, sincere, and kind friend." (Addressing Bro. Withy), "On behalf of the Welchpool Lodge, I have great, very great pleasure in placing this jewel upon your breast; it is not only a mark of the high estimation in which your services are held as a Past Master and the Treasurer of this lodge, but it is a token of our sincere regard, fraternal affection, and esteem. Very long may your life be spared to wear this handsome and well-merited testimonial on your breast." Bro. Withy having expressed his thanks to the brethren for the compliment they had paid him, and the kind manner in which Bro. Goldsbrough had spoken of him. Bro. Muggeridge, at the request of the W.M. and the brethren, delivered a lecture upon the first lodge board, which was listened to with profound interest and pleasure. Bro. D. P. Owen then eloquently expatiated upon the brightest ornament of Freemasonry, and proposed that the sum of five guineas be given from the funds of the lodge, (which he observed were in a very prosperous state), as a donation to the Girls' School. Bro. Goldsbrough seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously. Bro. Goldsbrough proposed that the donation from the lodge to the Girls' School should be made in the name of Bro. D. P. Owen, whose services to the lodge had been continuous almost from the day of his initiation, and it would mark, though in a very slight degree, the estimation in which those services were held by the members of the lodge. This proposition was duly seconded and carried unanimously. There being no further business, the lodge was closed, and the brethren, accepting the hospitable invitation of Bro. D. P. Owen (Mayor of the town), partook of refreshments at the residence of his Worship.

OLD UNION CHAPTER.—The installation meeting of this distinguished chapter took place at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, on Tuesday, the 26th ult., and was numerously attended. Among those present were Ex. Comps. R. W. Williams, M.D., M.E.Z.; W. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P., H.; John H. Paul, M.D., J.; A. Holman, P.Z.; H. Dumas, P.Z.; Saul Isaac, M.P., P.Z.; Samuel Isaac, P.Z.; Stevenson, Scribe E.; G. B. Foster, Ibbetson, P.S.; Rooke, and others. The visitors were E. Comps. Greenwood, P.Z.; Thomas, (South Wales) P.Z.; Goldsbrough, M.D., P.Z. The minutes of the previous convocation having been confirmed, the companions below the rank of Installed First Principal retired, and Comp. Bulkeley Hughes, being presented by Comp. Saul Isaac, was duly installed as the M.E.Z. Comp. Saul was re-admitted, and installed into the second chair, after which Comp. Richards was admitted and installed as J. for the ensuing year. The following officers were then invested: Comp. Williams, as the I.P.Z.; Stevenson, S. E.; Ibbetson, as P.S.; Rook, as 1st. Asst. Ex. Comp. Saul Isaac informed the chapter of the highly satisfactory results of the efforts which he, in conjunction with Comp. Dumas, had made for the distressed widow of a late esteemed companion of the chapter, and which would place the widow in comparatively easy circumstances. The business of the Chapter being concluded, the companions partook of an excellent dinner, (à la Russe), the menu of which was provided by Comp. W. G. Jennings. After the banquet the customary Masonic observances and toasts were duly honoured. E. Comps. Holman and Dumas returned thanks for the officers of the Grand Chapter. E. Comp. R. W. Williams, I.P.Z., in complimentary terms proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z.," and observed what the companions had seen of the work of the M.E.Z., in the Chapter that evening, and the good fellowship he displayed towards the companions was highly satisfactory to them all. The M.E.Z. in reply said:—"I should be unworthy of the position in which I stand as your principal officer of the Chapter, if I did not acknowledge with deep gratitude the kind feeling which you have evinced on this occasion. I assure you that when I entered this chapter, of which I was then proud (and of which I am now still), I little expected I should hold a high position of your principal officer, but allowance must be made for the friends, the companions, especially of the I.P.Z., and some other companions present, who deserve that kindness and the encomiums upon me; however, to respond to your kind wishes, I assure you no honour conferred upon me equalled that which you have done this evening. By future actions and by strict adherence to my duties, I trust I may so conduct in continuing to promote and study the prosperity of your chapter as to do honour to and justice to you for the honour you have conferred upon me. I little expected at the time when I was exalted by my revered friends, that I should be in the proud position I now hold in this chapter, so pleased you I should preside over you, and I trust you will never see me again, and that you will always find me diligent in the discharge of my duties so far as I (consistently) am able. The time has arrived when I should say or two of commendation of our excellent companion who preceded me in this chair, the next toast I have to propose to you is the health of that man to whom this chapter owes much, very much, and to whom I owe a great deal, (not for what he said of myself this evening, which, from friendly prejudice is serving of being recollected) but for what he has done for the M.E.Z. so sedulously did for this chapter. He raised himself to that position to which kindness has elevated me. I know that he has had many laborious duties to encounter, but he has not forgotten the Old Union Chapter, he has done good service by having been the M.E.Z. Permit me to ask you to drink his health with that energy and cordiality, that kindness and friendship with which I do, and to continue to serve this chapter and the Royal Arch Masonry, for very many years. Let me ask you to drink, with honour, the health of the Immediate Past Z., W. Williams, and thanks from myself personally and from the Chapter. M. E. Comp. Williams, I.P.Z., having replied, the M.E.Z. said that the toast was one which should have special mention. It is "The Health of the Past Principals of the Chapter," in giving which we do honour to ourselves, and to the chapter to which we belong, and it will afford you a gratification which we particularise one individual among them on a recent occasion portrayed to us the case of a singularly distressing case of a widow, which, I am sure, enlisted the sympathy of all those companions who were present. I allude to the case of the widow of * * * which was taken up by one of our companions now present, and have now the opportunity of telling him individually I thank him for the service rendered to that poor creature, who is all those easy circumstances which we all should be. In giving you the "Health of the Past Principals of this Chapter," upon you to thank Companion Isaac for his work of charity and good feeling in which he has been so successful. Comp. Isaac:—Excellent, I may tell you that the Past P. have always been upholders of this Chapter and of everything they could do to embellish the beauties of Royal Arch Masonry for me. I may tell you, Sir, that it was my good fortune to be introduced into this chapter by a companion twenty-seven years ago; since then I have followed the example set me by my Past Principal, whom a better set of men never stepped upon. I have been a good Mason, and a good Royal Arch Mason. You have mented me for what I do not deserve, for I have obtained £250 from the Grand Chapter, and my Companion Stevens, our Co. Secretary (with his cheerful face) all has contributed to the assistance of the widow, particularly grateful for what you said of the Past Principals of the chapter. As charity, it is our first duty to assist the orphan, and the orphan, we have assisted the widow brought in two others. It is an honour to be brought here, to rise to any toast, and to be unable to rise, but to be able to do this is an honour to you. W.

for your kind mention and for proposing health. Comp. Holman, P.Z., begged that might supplement the observations of Comp. who would not acknowledge his own deeds, and reminded the members of this that they were indebted to him for the very handsome Principals' chairs he had presented to the chapter. The M.E.Z.:—A toast comes round to me which I know all will honour to, one to which is always accorded and great consideration on every occasion, whether it be in Royal Arch or Craft Masonry, or any other institution, and it is one in which ought to unite on every occasion; the toast is "Health of the Visitors," who have done us honour to be with us this evening, and whom shall be only too proud to ask again and to come here. We have received them with that genial feeling, cordiality and unity, which should always exist among Masons. The toasts this evening are Companions Past Principals Goldsbrough, Greenwood, and Thomas. Comps. Goldsbrough, Greenwood and Thomas, respectively replied, Comp. Rhys Williams, P.Z., said, I beg permission to propose the Health of Comp. Saul Isaacs, under whom I had the pleasure of working as a junior member of the chapter. I have only to give the name of Saul Isaacs to ensure the reception of the toast. The Town of Nottingham has seen him as the most fitting person as its representative in parliament, and has done honour only to him, but to the Old Union Chapter also, and though the Most Excellent is on one side, and Comp. Isaac on the other, here they are but one Masonic feeling, I can assure Comp. Saul Isaac, that I have sincere pleasure in proposing his health, and that I have regretted his absence on many accounts, especially that on occasioned by his heavy domestic affliction. I propose you to stand to the toast. Comp. Saul Isaacs replied:—I feel somewhat incapable of rendering to the toast proposed by the Immediate Past. For the kind sympathy you have expressed towards me, I feel deeply grateful, but I am indebted to the past services of my brother in the estimation in which the name is held in the chapter. I cannot lose sight of the extension of sympathy with me on the grave sorrow that has fallen on me; no particular or public notice took me from your meetings, your extension of sympathy in the chapter towards myself, in my seclusion, under the affliction upon me; by the Almighty, I shall cherish in my mind, and the consolation you had for me, and for that dear in the hour of my sorrow and affliction, M.E.Z., proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Chapter," and complimented Comp. Ibbetson on the admirable way in which he had responded. Comp. Ibbetson, P.S., then thanked for the officers. The M.E.Z. said: "Whatever I have been remiss in this evening I trust you will excuse. On this occasion I have been, as to the order of the night, I have omitted one which ought to have been from me earlier in the evening, one which is always by my pleasure, as it is my duty, on every occasion, to propose to you, and which I admit has been a great dereliction in not proposing earlier; we acknowledge the services of the companion who is the glory of our chapter, and we all lament the loss of Comp. Bradford. I would say, not in the name of that toast, I am quite sure that toast will give as great pleasure to you as that has preceded it. The companion whose name I shall mention is one to whom we are truly indebted, and one for whom we have esteem and regard, I allude to Comp. Stevenson, and I acknowledge my fault in not drinking his health. His gentlemanly behaviour will excuse me for not bringing his name before you. Nothing could enhance the esteem of high regard with which I esteem this chapter, with which is identified my name at Comp. Stevenson; may he long continue the object of it. It is his own fault that he has not been up to that eminence to which you have endeavoured to raise me. Comp. Stevenson, in reply said; I regret extremely the loss of Bro. Bradford, my privileged friend for the last eight or nine years, and I thought that the Most Excellent had thought proper to apologise for the late introduction of my name; my name has been introduced quite as soon as it ought. Without affectation I may say that the duties which I render are comparatively small. I return you my warmest thanks. The Janitor's toast concluded the proceedings of the evening.

WHITEHAVEN.—The Sun, Square and Compasses Chapter (No. 119).—A regular convocation of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, June 9th, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Principals, Comps. Kenworthy, Z.; Barr, H.; and Fearon, J.; were supported by an unusually large number of companions. Visitor, E. Comp. John Bowes, P.Z., P. Prot. G.S.B. The chapter having been opened by the Principals the remainder of the companions were admitted, and the minutes of the previous convocation read and confirmed; the ballot was then taken for ten brethren regularly proposed, all of which were accepted. On the invitation of the M.E.Z. Comp. John Bowes, took the principal chair, and the following seven brethren were severally admitted and exalted in ample form viz., Bros. Tickle, Pitblade, Blakany, Crear, Paitson, Rev. W. Beeby, and Dr. Horan. The lectures were given by Comps. Fearon, J. Barr, H.; and Bowes, acting Z. On the conclusion of the ceremony M. E. Comp. Kenworthy, M.E.Z., proposed that the best thanks of the chapter be given to E. Comp. Bowes, P.Z. for his ready and valuable assistance on the occasion, and that the same be entered on the minutes of the proceedings. The motion was seconded by Comp. Fearon, and carried by acclamation, and Comp. Bowes made a suitable acknowledgment. Several brethren were then proposed, and after some routine business the chapter was closed, and the companions retired to the refreshment room, where the usual toasts were proposed, honoured and responded to.

BOLTON.—St. John's Chapter (No. 348).—The regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Rising Sun Inn, Churchgate, Bolton, on 9th June. Amongst others present were Comps. Thomas Entwistle, P. Prot. G. Scribe N., as Z.; Thomas Wilson, H.; James Horrocks, J.; Robert Harwood, P.Z. P. Prot. G. Standard Bearer; James Newton, P.Z., John Brandwood, P.Z.; Thomas Chambers, P.Z.; and others. The chapter having been opened and the minutes of the preceding meeting read and confirmed, the ceremony of installation of Principals and investiture of officers was performed by Comp. Entwistle, as follows:—Comps. Thomas Wilson, Z.; James Horrocks, H.; Robert Harwood, J.; Thomas Chambers, E.; Henry Ainsworth, N.; Robert Glaister, Principal Soj.; Charles Walker, Janitor. The chapter was then duly closed.

WELCHPOOL.—Welchpool Chapter (No. 998).—The anniversary meeting of this chapter was held on Thursday, the 4th inst. Among those present were:—E. Comps. Goldsbrough, M.E.Z.; D. P. Owen, H.; W. H. Spaul, J.; H. Muggeridge, P.Z., P.G. Standard Bearer, England; J. Onions, P.Z.; Hyde, P.Z. Comps. W. Withy, W. Callender, Sides, Davies, Graham, Brown, Kemble, Williams, R. S. Morris, Barnard, and others. This being the installation meeting, a conclave of Installed Principals was formed, and Comp. D. P. Owen (presented by Comp. Henry Muggeridge) was installed by Comp. Goldsbrough as First Principal for the ensuing year. Comp. Spaullet was then presented to the newly installed M.E.Z., by whom he was ably inducted into the second chair, after which Comp. Withy was placed in the chair of J., by the immediate P.Z. The following were invested as officers:—Comps. Goldsbrough, I.P.Z.; W. Callender, Scribe N.; R. T. Morris, Scribe E.; Bagnall, P.S. The M.E.Z. proposed that the best thanks of the chapter be voted to Comp. Goldsbrough, the Immediate P.Z., for his valuable services to the chapter from the day of its consecration, and that the same be recorded on the minutes of the chapter. One of the highest privileges conferred by Freemasonry (observed the M.E.Z.) was the close and firm friendships formed amongst its members; when the formation of a chapter was contemplated, I felt that I was almost pressing too much upon the kindness of Comp. Goldsbrough, by asking him to be the first Z., but whenever Welchpool has required his services, it has always been to him, within the length of a cable tow, proving how closely Freemasonry binds its members together, he has been always ready. His services in Freemasonry are a matter of history in England as well as in the Province of North Wales and Shropshire, where his name is a household word, and I have much pleasure in moving also that the chapter do present to Comp. Goldsbrough a Past First Principal's jewel, as a small token of the regard and esteem of the members of this chapter, as well as to mark our high sense of his services and courtesy. Comp. Spaul, H., in seconding the proposition of the M.E.Z., said, I cheerfully confirm all that Comp. Owen has said with regard to Comp. Goldsbrough, whom, in other capacities, I have always found ready. Whenever his services are required, he comes, I don't know how far, from the extreme end of England, to render us services in this province, and, I am sure, it is a source of pleasure to the companions to express their gratification at the proposition of the Most Excellent Z. The M.E.Z. expressed the regret which he felt, in conjunction with the other members of the chapter, at the absence of the Ex. Comp. George Arthur Brown, whom circumstances, of family affliction, had prevented attending, but who had said "if, at the last moment, you should want me, wire me, and I will come." I asked Companions Onions and Hyde to come, they both promised to be here, and they are here; and I did not send to Comp. Brown. Comp. Muggeridge consecrated our lodge some ten years ago, and we have the pleasure of seeing him at our first anniversary of the chapter. Our companions come from a distance, especially Comp. Muggeridge, who has come from London, and I may tell you, that had they not made up the number of Installed First Principals, our meeting, so far as the installation was concerned, would have been in vain. I move "That the thanks of this chapter be given to Comps. Muggeridge, Onions, and Hyde for their great kindness in coming here to-day," and I hope, when another anniversary comes round, to see their genial faces again. Comp. Withy, J., seconded the proposition, which was cordially carried. Comps. Muggeridge, Onions, and Hyde acknowledged the compliment paid them by the chapter, and expressed the gratification they felt in having been elected honorary members of the chapter. The chapter was then closed, and the members partook of a well served banquet. The customary toasts were given by the M.E.Z., and warmly responded to. In proposing "The Health of the Marquess of Ripon," Comp. Owen said—Very few words are required when it is so well known that Lord Ripon, as one of the most active members of Government, scarcely ever failed in his attendance in the Grand Lodge; it is saying a great deal for a man in his high position. I am a great admirer of the man who, when he puts his hand to the plough does not draw back. When we consider the example set us by Lords Ripon, Carnarvon, De Tabley, and other dignitaries in Masonry, it only shows how little sacrifice we make for our chapters. We all promise to do what we can within the length of our cable, but I am very much afraid that vain excuses are sometimes made. In proposing the healths of Lords Carnarvon, De Tabley, and the Officers of the Supreme Grand Chapter, the M.E.Z. said.—We are honoured this evening with the presence of one of the past officers, Comp. Henry Muggeridge, P.G.S.B. It is extremely gratifying to us so see his nice genial face again amongst us, I do not think we ought to drink his health, except as a distinct toast, and I only do so otherwise to save time, as some of our companions have to leave by train. Though I have but little knowledge of the Grand Officers generally, I know a great deal of him, when we consider the number of years he has devoted to Masonry, he is like an evergreen, and seems to put out fresh leaves every time we see him. It is a great pleasure to me to see him here on the evening of my installation, and it is very kind of him to come amongst us again. I give you "The Health of the Officers of the Grand Chapter, and couple therewith the name of Comp. Muggeridge, and thanks to him for his presence here this evening." Comp. Mugeridge, in reply said—On behalf of the officers of the Supreme Grand Chapter, allow me to return my very sincere thanks, for the very kind manner in which you have recognised my name. I assure you I have very great pleasure in coming to this chapter this evening, I had the honour of consecrating the Welchpool Lodge, and of visiting the lodge on its first anniversary, when Bro. Dr. Goldsbrough was re-elected their Master for the second year, and, if I remember aright, I came on a third occasion, I can assure you I felt very much pleased when Comp. Goldsbrough intimated to me that you had done me the honour of electing me an honorary member of this chapter, which I appreciate very highly, I beg again to thank you for the very kind reception you have given me. Comp. Goldsbrough, P.Z., proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z.," dwelling in terms of praise upon the services which Comp. Owen had rendered not only to Freemasonry from the time when he became a member of the Craft, but also those which he had as the chief magistrate of his native town, he being the originator and mainspring of a work of great public utility in operative Masonry, namely, the rebuilding of the Town Hall, which would be a lasting memento of his mayoralty, and an ornament to the town. The M.E.Z., in reply said—I am extremely obliged for the eulogistic remarks, which excellent Comp. Goldsbrough has thought fit to make in proposing my health. Anything I can do for this chapter, I always do with pleasure; those who know me thoroughly well know that what I say is sincere. I little thought some ten years ago, that I should see myself at the head of Masonry in the lodge, much less did I think I should go further, and reach that proud position in the chapter. Some years ago it was in contemplation to form a chapter here, and when the subject was again mooted I had only to copy the former proceedings of the lodge, and it is now accomplished. As regards my Masonic career, I may say it has been one of unmitigated pleasure. I thank the companions for their kindness to me, and hope that no action of mine will ever warrant their distrust of me. The M.E.Z. said: Companions, I am going to ask you to drink the health of the Past Principals of the chapter, and when I tell you that at present we can only couple Comp. Goldsbrough with the toast, it is sufficient to recommend it to your hands. I hardly know how to put the toast to you, because his name and Masonic career is not confined to this province, but may be said to extend almost over the whole of the dominions of the Grand Chapter. I think I am not very far wrong in saying that at the very time when he was the W.M. of the Welchpool Lodge, each of his brothers was presiding as W.M., one in New Zealand and the other in Australia; within this province his name is a household word, and no Provincial Grand Lodge seems complete if he has not answered to the muster. We never seem complete here if he is not amongst us. Our last anniversary was a blank without him, and I hope it will be the last of his being absent. It was not his own fault, he follows a profession in which his time is not his own. We have to thank him much for his valuable services to this chapter; may he be spared many years with health and faculties unimpaired. Comp. Goldsbrough having returned thanks, the M.E.Z. proposed "The Healths of E. Comps. Spaul and Withy," the Second and Third Principals, and said, Royal Arch Masonry has thought fit to join two others in the government of the chapter; a very good idea; they have the means of checking the exuberance of the First Principal, or the reverse, by keeping him up to his work. As to E. Comp. H., his labours are well known, he has taken upon himself the responsibility of Provincial Grand Secretary, and I am extremely pleased; the first document he issued showed his determination to carry out his duties, and we shall see, he will do so. The late Bro. Wigan devoted his best energies to the interests of the province, still a young member, he does a deal of good; and I predict a new reign of law, and that we are going to be looked up. Our Comp. Withy is well known as one of the Past Masters, and as the Treasurer of our lodge, and under his kind care and protecting nursing we have increased our balance at the bank, and I hope we shall soon take a proper position in supporting the charities as we ought to do. Comps. Spaul and Withy having respectively returned thanks, the M.E.Z. proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Chapter," to which Comp. Scribe N. replied.

Mark Masonry.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 104).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, at Camberwell, on Saturday last, the 13th inst., and was well attended. The W.M., Bro. Arthur Wolton, Prov. Grand Senior Overseer, was supported by the V. W. Brethren, Frederick Binckes, P.G.J.W., and Grand Secretary; Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O.; James Stevens, P.G.J.O., and Grand Secretary for the Province; and Charles Hamerton, P. Prov. G. Secretary, Past Masters of the lodge. The W.M. elect, Bro. William Worrell, P.P.G. Organist, was in the west, and amongst other brethren present were Bros. Robert Berridge, J.W.; North Ritherdon, J.O.; Edward Moody, S.D.; Edgar Drewett, J.D.; W. P. Collins, I.G.; Frederick J. Cozens, Org.; N. F. Bassett, Steward; also Bros. George Motion, G. Yaxley, J. Close, J. K. Pitt, Dennis, Chard, Wohlgemuth, O'Neill, Bell, &c., &c.

The business of the lodge on this occasion admitting only of discussion of several motions, in addition to the ceremony of installation, the numerous candidates for advancement were not summoned to be present. They were, however, balloted for, and approved of, and an early Emergency Lodge is to be called for the special purpose of admitting them to the honourable degree. The minutes of the previous lodge meeting, which contained important resolutions, were unanimously confirmed, and the W.M. elect, Bro. W. Worrell, was presented to the W. Bro. T. Meggy as Installing Master, and was duly installed into the chair of H. in a manner so perfect as to call forth the well-deserved acknowledgements of Bro. Meggy's services. The following members were appointed and invested as officers of the ensuing year, viz.:—Bro. Robert Berridge, S.W.; Bro. Thomas W. White, J.W.; Bro. North Ritherdon, Prov. G. Sup. Works, S.O.; Bro. Edward Moody, Prov. G. Std. Bearer, S.O.; Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., Treasurer; Bro. Charles Hamerton, Z. Prov. G. Secretary; Bro. W. Wigginton, Registrar; Bro. Edgar Drewett, S.D.; Bro. W. P. Collins, Prov. P. Steward, J.D.; Bro. W. J. F. Bassett, Prov. G. Steward, D.C.; Bro. Frederick J. Cozens, Prov. G. Organist, I.G.; Bro. John Dennis, Organist; Bro. George Huxley, W.S.; Bro. George Motion, C.S.; Bro. W. Grant, Tyler. The notice of motion which stood in the name of the newly installed Master, "That the lodge be removed from the present place of meeting," was then discussed, and after many expressions of regret that such removal was rendered a necessity, it was unanimously agreed to change the place of meeting. On the question as to the selection of a future habitation, several brethren were heard, and the respective merits of sundry localities were canvassed. Bro. Stevens advocated the removal to the new Surrey Masonic Hall, now in course of erection, and was warmly supported, but it being proved that the individual convenience of a large majority of the members would be best studied by selecting a place of meeting in the City, it was at length unanimously resolved to remove the lodge to the Masons' Tavern, near the Guildhall, where from this date its meetings will be held. The lodge having been closed with musical service, the brethren adjourned to banquet, and, on the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. To that of "The Grand Officers" a hearty response was given by the V.W. Bro. F. Binckes, who enlarged on the considerable progress of the Order under late and present rule; and that of "Provincial Grand Lodges" was responded to by the V.W. Bro.

Stevens. The W.M., in responding to the toast "The Worshipful Master," referred to the trying circumstance that he found himself in the proud position of occupying at the same time the principal chairs respectively of Mother Craft Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter, Mark Lodge, and trusted that his earnest desire to fulfil the duties which had now devolved upon him would be crowned with success. He concluded a very powerful address by proposing the health of the "Past Masters of the Lodge" and at the same time decorating the I.P. Bro. Wolton, with a P.M. jewel, and expressing his obligations to the V.W. Bro. Meggy. Installing Master on this occasion. The object of "The Mark Benevolent Fund" was supported by Bros. Meggy and Binckes, whose eloquent speeches induced Bro. N. Bassett to undertake the representation of the lodge at the next festival, and the brethren at once to place their Stewards' list the nucleus of which probably be a handsome donation to the fund. Poor and distressed members of the Order were not forgotten when the charity box circulated, and, after recognising the services of "Officers," and the enjoyment of excellent songs by Bros. Cozens, Dennis, Wolton, and Stevens, the brethren separated in perfect harmony, satisfied both with "labour and refreshment."

ALBERT VICTOR MARK LODGE.—The quarterly meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Monday, the 15th, when there were present—Bros. Robertson, W.M.; Rev. N. Sanderson, P.G. Chaplain, Acting J. Emra Holmes, P.G.J. of Works, Acting M. G. T. Townsend, P.G.D., Secretary; Cresswell, S.W.; G. Abbott, S.O.; M. T. W. gate, P.M., Acting S.D.; W. Cuckford, Act. I.G. The lodge was opened in due form, and minutes of last lodge read and confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bro. Henry Wainwright, the St. Luke's Lodge, who was a candidate for advancement, and proving unanimously, and candidate being in attendance, he was received, and advanced to the honourable degree of Mark Master Mason, the first part of the ceremony being worked by the W.M., the second part by Bro. Sanderson, who assumed the part in his usual able manner. Pursuant to notice Bro. Sanderson proposed that the fee for advancement be one pound ten shillings, instead of pound as heretofore, and in doing so, laid great stress on the fact that Grand Mark Lodge had just raised the fee payable for certificate registration to 10s. He thought it was absolutely necessary if the lodge was to go on successfully that the fee should be raised. Townsend seconded the proposition, which also supported by Bro. Westgate. Bro. F. Holmes was sorry to oppose anything proposed by Bro. Sanderson, who he knew had the interests of Mark Masonry at heart. He felt, however, that if this resolution were carried, the advancement fee increased 50 per cent. should run great risk of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. He was of opinion that great numbers joined Mark Masonry because the fee was so low; but he feared it would make all the difference in the number of candidates if they raised the fee. He would move as an amendment that the fee for advancement remain as before. Bro. Abbott begged support Bro. Holmes's views, though he did not vote for the amendment. He had to enquire only this morning that the fee was who shrugged his shoulders, and declined to propose, and he believed if he had said so, it would have made all the difference his friend would have become a candidate for advancement. Bro. Holmes' amendment being to find a seconder, it fell to the ground. The original proposition was put and carried. There being no other business before the lodge, and the ceremony of advancement over, the W.M. resumed the gavel, and closed the lodge in due and ancient form, and the brethren retired for refreshment. On account of lateness of the hour, the toasts were reduced to two, "The Queen," and "Our Advanced Brother." To the latter, Bro. Sanderson briefly responded. In spite of the comparatively small attendance, nearly attainable at this season of the year, a very pleasant evening was spent, and the brethren separated about

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Athol (No. 413) held their regular meeting, June 9th, at 213, Buchanan-street. In the absence of the R.W.M., the chair was taken by Bro. J. Miller, P.M., who in a very able way raised Bro. J. Liddle to the sublime degree of a Master Mason; he was ably assisted by Bros. Jas. Leuttitt, S.W.; Walter Neilson, J.W.; Wm. Leuttitt, Sec. There were several visitors present, amongst whom we observed Bros. Adams, Blockman, McBride, Elliss, and Muir, as office-bearers in other lodges.

GLASGOW.—The Union Lodge held an emergency meeting on Monday, June 8th, at St. Mark's Hall, when the three degrees were worked by Bro. J. B. MacNair, the R.W.M.

GLASGOW.—Maryhill Lodge (No. 510) held their monthly meeting in their own lodge, Muir-bridge, Maryhill, on Wednesday, June 10th, Bro. Hugh Niven, R.W.M., in the chair, assisted by Bros. A. MacKay, Substitute Master; A. Neving, Sec. S.W.; Neil, Treas., acting J.W.; J. Pringle, Secretary. A petition was presented from M. Duncan Shaw, and he having been unanimously elected, Bro. MacKay, at the request of the R.W.M., initiated him into the order in a very careful style, but without the aid of the harmonium, as the Organist was absent, the brethren by vocal music doing their best to supply its place. Fifteen handsome suits of clothing, which had been sent from Bro. George Kenning's Glasgow establishment, were exhibited and much admired, the other brethren being determined to be snortly clothed in a like style.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. Andrew (No. 465) held an emergency meeting on Friday, June 12th, when one gentleman was initiated, and five passed to the second degree, after which Bros. Walter Deed, Wm. Telfer, Jack Duncan, Cameron, and Jas. Creeling were raised to the sublime degree of Master Masons. The whole of the ceremonies were admirably wrought by Bro. D. Reid, R.W.M., who though a young man is a good working Mason, he was ably assisted by Bro. J. MacLeith, D.M.; J. Clark, Sec.; J. Youill, J.W.; and the Sec., Bro. Wm. McNeill, who with Bro. Jennason acted as Treas.

GLASGOW.—St. Mark's Lodge (No. 102) held their usual meeting in their own hall, on Monday, June 8th, 1874, the R.W.M., Bro. Mitchell, presiding, assisted by the whole of the office bearers. The work consisted of initiation, and one passing, after which arrangements were made for raising a fund for the support of the widow and daughter of the Janitor, who had held that office many years, and died at the ripe age of 82. As he was well known in the province, the R.W.M. and each of the lodges had taken the subject and he had no doubt sufficient would be forthcoming to comfortably support the widow for the remainder of her days.

GLASGOW.—Star Lodge (No. 219).—This lodge met in their new hall, Trongate, on June 10th, Bro. J. Wilson, R.W.M., presiding, James Mitchell, acting S.W.; J. Harn, J.W.; G. Miller, Sec. There was a large attendance both of brethren and visitors. Amongst the latter we observed Bros. Paterson, 27; A. Wilson, 27; Wm. Er, 73; J. McKeckner, S.W.; G. Giles, Sec.; J. Bairn, P.M. 803; J. Muir, S.W. 103; J. W. 103; and a deputation from St. John's, 458. There were two passed to the second degree, after which Bro. Wm. P.M. 103, by the consent of the lodge initiated two brethren for his own lodge. The lodge from Busby invited the Glasgow brethren to join them in a procession they intended to have on Saturday. Arrangements were made for the excursion by water on Monday's Day, by the united Committee of the two lodges, which promises to be a well-arranged trip.

GLASGOW.—St. John's Lodge (No. 312) held their emergency meeting in their own hall, Buchanan-street, on Tuesday, June 9th, the R.W.M., Bro. J. Fletcher, in the chair, assisted by Bro. W. Bell, D.M.; William McPherson, Sec.; J. W. 103; and the Sec., Bro. W. Dick, Buchanan, Org. Propositions were read from Messrs. Gilchrist, and Anderson, and the ballot proving unanimous in their favour, they were then admitted, and at the request of the R.W.M., Bro. J. Dick proceeded to initiate them into this, the oldest lodge in the province, in a careful manner, the excellent way in which the organist performed his portion of the mystic rites, considerably enhanced the efficiency of the ceremony, and now that appropriate music has been published, we feel that no lodge should be without an harmonium, if they wish to give due effect to our varied ceremonies.

GLASGOW.—Clydesdale Lodge (No. 556).—An emergency meeting of this new lodge was held in the Hall of the Lodge Neptune, on Tuesday, June 2nd, when the following brethren were present:—Bros. William Phillips, R.W.M. 566; John McNaught, S.M.; 566; Dr. T. Russell, D.M. 566; T. B. Yuill, Treas. 566; Henry Jackman, A. 566; John Milter, R.W.M. 87; William J. E. Dodson, Prov. G.S. 566; Henry Fuge, 27; Charles Groves, 392; John H. Rogers, 392; Joseph Roddy, 566; John Park, 275; H. Sherry, 594; W. S. Vallance, 275; James Hucheson, 419. The lodge was opened in due form, and the S.M. then proceeded to initiate Bro. Peter J. Aitken, in the E.A. degree, in a very clever manner, after which the R.W.M., Bro. Phillips, proceeded to raise the lodge to the Fellow Craft degree. Bros. Roddy and Brown, were then passed to the said degree by the R.W.M., in his usual impressive manner, Bro. William J. E. Dodson, acting as conductor. The ceremony over, the R.W.M. in a short speech directed the attention of the brethren present, to the centenary of the Poet, "Tamahill," which would be celebrated in Paisley, on the morrow, Wednesday, June 3rd, and deputations from lodges in Glasgow and suburbs, being requested by the Masonic brethren of Paisley, to assist in the celebration thereof, he deemed it but right that though the new Lodge Clydesdale was but young, that we should go and assist in the demonstration, as many as conveniently could. Bro. J. McNaught then proposed a show of hands from those who were willing to form a deputation from Clydesdale, 556. On the show of hands, ten of the brethren were found willing, viz:—Bros. Wm. Phillips, R.W.M.; John McNaught, S.M.; D. T. Russell, D.M.; Wm. J. E. Dodson, P.G.S.; H. Jackman, A.; J. Doig, C.; R. Scott, T. B. Yuill, Treas.; J. Strang, Sec.; D. Campbell. There being no further business, the R.W.M. proceeded to close the lodge, in due and antient form. The brethren afterwards adjourned to refreshment. "The Health of the Last-laid Stone" was then proposed by the R.W.M., and drank with all the honours. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, Visiting Brethren, &c., had been given, the brethren separated. "Happy to meet, sorry to part, but happy to meet again."

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

Lodge of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., was in the President's chair; Bro. J. C. Parkinson, G.J.D., in the Senior Vice-President's; and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P., in the Junior Vice-President's. Grand Secretary attended, and Bro. H. G. Buss, G. Treasurer, Middlesex. There were also present the following wearers of the purple:—Bros. Hutton, J.G.D.; C. C. Dumas, P. Asst. G.D.C.; T. Cubitt, G.P.; W. Ough, P.G.P.; and a large number of brethren from various lodges; £322 in all were granted, including recommendations for two grants of £100 each to distressed brethren. The President and Senior Vice-President, were absent through illness.

ERRATA.—In the letter of Bro. Kelly last week, page 359, first column 11th line from bottom, for "or" read "so," last line, for "and" read "Arch," second column first line, for "It is" read "Is it," line 29, for "warrants" read "warrant," line 37, for "their" read "this," line 40, for "services" read "purposes," line 50, for "intimical" read "manual." Page 360 fourth line, for "figures" read "figure," line 15 from bottom, for "country" read "county."

CONSECRATION OF THE FELIX LODGE No. 1494.

This lodge was consecrated at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, Middlesex, on Saturday, the 30th ult., by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Provincial Grand Secretary, assisted by V.W. Bro. J. Hervey, Grand Secretary, as S.W.; H. G. Buss, Provincial Grand Treasurer, as J.W.; Rev. P. M. Holden as Chaplain; and T. W. White, Past Grand Steward, as D.C.

The usual ceremonies incident to the consecration were duly observed, after which Bro. Little installed Bro. Edward B. Grabham as First Master. The officers were nominated as follows:—Bro. Major George Barlow, S.W.; Felix Sumner Knyvett, J.W.; Daniel Nicholson (P.M. 19), Treas.; Edward S. Norris, Sec.; F. B. Archer, S.D.; J. W. Sanders, J.D.; R. Berridge, I.G.

Among the brethren present besides those mentioned were R.W. Bro. Colonel Burdett, the Prov. G.M.; J. C. Parkinson, J.G.D., Dep. Prov. G.M.; R. A. Houstoun, Dep. Prov. G.M. East Lothian; W. Smithett, G. Steward; Major S. H. Clerke, P. Prov. G.W. Devon; H. C. Levander, P. Prov. G.D. Wilts; Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B., P. Dep. Prov. G.M. Isle of Wight; F. Binckes, P.G. Steward; J. C. Goldsmith, W.M. 19; E. Hopwood, P.M. 141; H. Phythian, W.M. 1293; F. Kelly, S.W. 1293; D. W.; Pearse, J.W. 1293; H. Robinson, P.M. 180; C. B. Payne, P.M. 27; F. Knyvett, 160; E. S. Horne, 227; G. P. Gillard, 657; and E. J. Southwell, 1293.

The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. R. Limpus, Prov. G.O., assisted by Bros. A. Hubbard, T. B. Evison, and G. Musgrave.

The rank of honorary member was conferred upon the consecrating officer and several other brethren, and several propositions for initiation, &c., were announced. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren spent a delightful evening together under the presidency of the W.M., who elicited the warm congratulations of all present upon his having attained the Master's chair.

Masonic Tidings.

The death is announced of Bro. Frederick Ledger, for many years proprietor and conductor of the Era newspaper. Bro. Ledger died on Sunday last at his residence at Balham-hill. He was 58 years of age.

The advice of the late Mr. Thackeray was as much prized by his friends as his literary genius was appreciated by his fellow-countrymen. A young lady of his acquaintance, knowing how wide and deep was his knowledge of worldly matters, one day asked him what would be the best present to make to her old friend and school-fellow, who was just married, and was setting up housekeeping. "My dear," replied the great novelist, "you may be certain your young married friends are thinking only of the luxurious and the ornamental in their purchases. Now, suppose you take the useful and the practical side. My dear, you cannot do better than present your friends with a filter—a Lipscombe's filter, mind. It is the best kind of filter I know." This was some years since, and the merits of Lipscombe's filters have become more and more esteemed as their use has spread. Numbers of valuable lives were saved during the Ashantee war by means of these filters, sent out by Government from the well-known establishment near Temple Bar, which converted water absolutely poisonous into a pure and wholesome beverage.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—BAD LEGS.—Any unnatural discharge from the skin is at all times disagreeable, but in hot weather it becomes irritating—sometimes offensive. Bad legs, old wounds, scrofula, and scorbutic eruptions are cooled, soothed, and cured by Holloway's Ointment. It at once arrests all diseases of the surface by purifying and regulating the circulation in their neighbourhood, by giving energy to the nerves of the affected part, and by expelling all poisonous and noxious matters. It ejects the seeds of all virulent eruptions and ulcerations, and thus confers no partial or temporary boon, but a complete and permanent cure. By means of these remedies all sufferers may aim at attaining health, and will invariably succeed.—ADV.

This Work contains 215 pp. and 118 Musical Compositions suitable for all the Ceremonies of the Masonic Order; First, Second, and Third Degrees; Consecration and Dedication of Halls and Lodges; Programmes, Toasts, Songs, Trios, Choruses, &c., for Banquets and other Festive Gatherings; Laying Foundation or Corner Stones; Installation; Mark Masonry; Royal Arch; Masonic Funerals; Voluntaries; Marches, &c., &c.

Notice from the Evening Mail.

"Our Masonic readers are no strangers to the name of Bro. William Spark, the talented musician and Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. In this really great work, now completed, Dr. Spark has shown his great tact and judgment by completing and compiling for the Masonic brethren a complete library of musical compositions of the choicest English and foreign works, ancient, traditional, modern, vocal, and instrumental, by the best composers. It comprises Masonic anthems, installation odes, dedication music, responses, opening, closing, and intermediate music for all degrees, thanksgivings, funeral odes, marches, songs, duets, banquet music, programmes, voluntaries, and general musical directions, arranged for voice and organ, pianoforte, or harmonium. "The Freemasons' Liber Musicus" is issued with the concurrence of many influential Masonic Lodges, and under the distinguished patronage and support of the Most Worshipful Grand Masters of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland. It forms a complete library of the choicest and rarest Masonic music, in a word, it is indispensable to all Masonic Lodges. The worthy brother editor, moreover, has had the valuable co-operation, and assistance of the most distinguished and experienced composers and organists, members of the Craft. It is brought out in the highest style of art, is printed from large engraved music plates, and forms a very handsome folio volume of "nearly two hundred and twenty pages." It deserves the patronage of every Masonic Lodge, both at home and abroad and for its merits alone it ought to be zealously prized by every brother. As a present to a lodge, nothing could be more useful, valuable, and appropriate.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JUNE 20TH, 1874.

NEW LODGES.

We were present at the dedication of a new lodge on Wednesday, the 11th inst. (the Athenæum, No. 1491, Camden-road), of which a condensed report appeared in our last impression, and as some thoughts seemed to force themselves upon our mind, during the interesting ceremonies of the day, we think it well to take our many readers into confidence, and impart them, with their fraternal permission, to all who peruse our pages to-day. Independently of the fact that the ceremony, always most edifying, was most ably performed by our distinguished Bro. John Hervey, our much valued and much respected Grand Secretary, assisted by that "facile princeps" of all ritual work, Bro. Fenn, and by Bros. Buss and Little, we were rejoiced to see so many well-known members of our Craft assembled, including the ever genial presence of Bro. Joseph Smith, and the Secretaries of our three great charitable Institutions. The new Master is a most worthy and energetic Mason, and he is supported by an array of excellent officers, mostly Past Masters, we observed, and with the promise of several well-known Masons and young brethren as joining members, everything appears to augur well for the future prosperity of the Athenæum Lodge. One consideration came before us very strikingly, during the day's proceedings, namely, the onward progress of Freemasonry. Each weekly Freemason that we read tells us of new lodges springing up, in different parts of our land, and go where we will we see some stately building, which we are told is the Freemasons' lodge. We say nothing of the grammatical use of the word lodge. We only state the fact—a very remarkable one it is for the reflecting Mason—that English Freemasonry has practically doubled the number of its lodges during the last quarter of a century, and despite the vast accession of new lodges in our long extended roll, "the cry is still they come." Indeed, we do not see at present any possible limit to the expansiveness and elasticity of our English system. Now this great increase of Masonic lodges proves two things, we think, incontestably. The one is, that Freemasonry is, in itself a want for the age in which we live. It is a very remarkable fact, that, in this prying and bustling age, in which everything seems to be sacrificed to the dust, and dirt, and turmoil of public life, an institution so peculiar and so obtrusive, so much averse to open recognition and so difficult of access, should be popular to all classes of society. And yet the secret of a want and of such popular appreciation is not, I think, not hard to find. Freemasonry may have frailties and its defects, like everything else, is earthly or human, but Freemasonry has a great recommendation—it is a neutral ground for us all—an open platform on which the differing and the most distant may meet together in peace and goodwill, a green oasis in this arid wilderness of to-day's strife, in which the genial, and the friendly, the tolerant and the true, and the scholar and the statesman, may find alike rest for their bodies and refreshment for their minds. Many of us who day by day are toiling at "the forum" or in the counting house, in the senate or in the camp, or are labouring as bread winners, by the energy of their brains, to cheer and sustain the nearest and dearest to them, can find in Freemasonry, many an hour of intellectual improvement, many a season of faithful work, many a pleasant moment of social relaxation. At the portals of our lodges and on the pediment of our stately halls, seem still engraved, in words of light, that good old English motto "Friendship, Goodwill, and Brotherly love." For there we can gladly resort, after the toils of the busy day are over. There when we meet once within the lodge, the divisions and the separations of political and denominational life end, for the echoes of political war cries do not penetrate, and there the acrimony of sectarian controversy is unknown. So despite all our boasted simplicity of life and thought and ways and means to-day, the tyled lodge room of us "Ancient Free and Accepted Masons," has a great attraction for many a wandering and weary child of earth. And again Freemasonry is recognised as a medium of doing good. The old idea that we were a club of good fellows, a cordial and benevolent Order, whose very best aspiration was a good dinner, and whose chief qualification was a Masonic speech. But now we, like many have "lived down" the ancient jest of childish calumny, and can point with laudable to our charitable institutions and benevolent deavours, our institutions which emulate, do not excel any similar ones in the land. So many of the public are beginning to feel what we have long proclaimed in our good formularies, that the chief characteristic of a Freemason's heart is charity. In a new lodge, then, that we found is meant to be a centre of light, of friendship, toleration, and charity to its members. From it, we trust, some rays of brightness will fall on many of our fellow men. And it be true, that all things here are at the best ephemeral and transitory, that, they are like the dying flower, and pass like some of the day, yet let us hope, that, from the living fragment of many an earthly lodge may emanate a spirit of truth, and that loyalty, and benevolence, which shall pervade both the material fabric and the earthly members, and be perpetuated in a happier and perfected knowledge, of an improved and eternal love.

AN ORATION.

DELIVERED AT THE DEDICATION OF THE ATHENÆUM LODGE, No. 1491.

By THE REV. A. F. A. WOODFORD, M.A. P.G.C.

Worshipful Presiding Officer and Brethren:—

I esteem it a great honour to have been asked by the Master Designate of this new lodge, our very worthy and much respected Bro. Samuel Poynter, to deliver the customary oration, as Consecrating Chaplain. For I think, that, all such ceremonies as we take part in to-day, are not only interesting in themselves to us all as faithful members of our ancient Order, but are suggestive of many very useful thoughts and valuable considerations.

As Freemasons we rejoice to see another promising offshoot of our old Masonic tree, and as brethren bound together by the ties of old friendship and sympathy, as well in solemn work, as in the social hour, we must feel within us all, those associations both pleasant yet somewhat saddening, which every new dedication of every new lodge evokes from all our minds and memories. For we are taken back even to-day from this new lodge, with all the accessories of Masonic ceremony and appointed dedication to old days, and to other meetings and to happy gatherings gone by, and ancient friends now no more. It has been my lot as W. Presiding Officer to take part in many dedications, and to deliver more than one oration, and therefore, I cannot hope, as I do not pretend, to offer you this afternoon, anything very striking or novel. All I profess to do to-day is, only to retrace after all a beaten track, and to draw from our old teaching, and our time-honoured landmarks, and the unchanged witness of Freemasonry, some few lessons of practical Masonic lore, which may be improving to our younger brethren, and will not be, I would fain hope, unedifying even to the older members of our Order now present.

I propose then (leaving out all other topics and considerations, owing to the shortness of time) to look at Freemasonry from three main points of view. First of all, let us look at it as a centre of union and harmony for men of different views and often differing opinions. It is the special characteristic of Freemasonry, that, it offers, so to say, "a harbour of refuge," a wide and a peaceful platform, where, and on which may gladly gather those who differ on most other subjects in the world outside the lodge. We cannot go into busy life, or mix much with our fellows now without becoming instantly aware, that, many severances sever us, and many divisions divide us from one another daily here. What these divisions and severances may be, matters nothing to our present consideration, whether they be religious, political, national, or social, but they do exist, and they affect us all in a variety of ways. Yet once within a lodge of Freemasons, they are happily practically altogether unknown. Within that peaceful region, so far, the voice of political animosity has never been heard, the din of religious controversy is stilled. Material and social severances, the demarcations of sectarianism, the various class antagonisms of this world's social organization have no existence there. We are all brothers. Once within the lodge-room, once admitted into Freemasonry, be we who we may, and whatever our social rank or condition outside our lodge may be, there we all meet "upon the level, and part upon the square." Freemasonry receives all candidates within its ample fold, who are good, honest, true, moral men, whatever their denominational views may be, except, as our old formularies say, "the stupid atheist, or their irreligious libertine," and enrolls gladly under her great and tolerant banner all who believe in the common Father of the human race. Our position in this respect, has been blamed by some, and anathematized by others, who censure so wide a "formula" of religious profession and adhesion, but the experience of many years has told me, as I believe it tells us all, that, Freemasonry is right, in laying down this law of acceptance into her fraternal assemblies, and, that, they are gravely in error, who impugn too hastily either her precepts or practice in this respect.

Again Freemasonry is an institution whose foundation is the moral law of the Divine Lawgiver, and the inculcation on her members of every moral and social virtue. Freemasonry is not religion, and does not put forth dogmas of belief. But Freemasonry is a great and world-wide philanthropic society, and may be said to be a handmaid to religion, inasmuch as brotherly love, relief, and truth, are its unchanging watchwords, and because, from first to last, from the hour of our initiation to our closing moments of work, it tells us in clear and touching tones of moral duty and moral living. Sending us to the best of books, the Bible, always open in our lodges, it urges us thereby and therefrom, to be good husbands, good fathers, good brothers, good sons, good members of society, loyal subjects, and peaceable citizens. More than once, in many a lecture, and many a portion of its mystic ritual, Freemasonry forcibly appeals to us, to follow all our worldly avocations, and to perform alike our public and private duties with freedom, fervency, and zeal. For let us remember how idle is our profession of Freemasonry if we do not make obedience to the moral law, both the proof and the end of our Masonic profession. It is indeed idle to call ourselves Freemasons, idler still to disport ourselves in lodge, in all the external decorations of our excellent fraternity, if all the while our lives are a scandal to morality, and a discredit to our lodge, and the Craft at large. I do not wish to take a too professional view of the subject, always a difficult one to deal with, or to give even the tinge of a sermon to what I am now saying, and therefore will only add, that, we shall never go very far wrong, if we endeavour carefully to conform ourselves in our passage through life, to those admirable exhortations to morality and sobriety, to decency and to decorum, which we hear so often in well known words, from that "curule chair," Sir, you so well and worthily occupy to day. And so once again, Freemasonry is a great philanthropic institution, whose unchanging teaching finds its best and most active expression in deeds of charity and labours of love.

Now whatever else may be alleged against Freemasonry, it cannot be said, that, in this respect its profession and practice do not go hand in hand. I know of no other body, which so unnecessarily labours to carry out its own great principles into beneficial and persevering activity. Yes, W. Sir, I make bold to say Freemasonry may fairly claim the approval of all honest men for the zeal with which it seeks, in its divine mission of charity and goodwill, and forbearance and toleration towards men, to practice its old teachings of sympathy, and succour, towards those of its own members whom sickness or calamity have reduced to poverty or distress.

For as Freemasons, we ever do assiduously labour, and let this be ever our unchanging aim, amid all the changes and calamities of life, to relieve distress, to support old age, to aid infirmity, to educate the orphan, and to cause the "widow's heart to sing for joy."

If we wanted any defence for Freemasonry, which we do not, either as regards its utility or its mission, we surely can find it in our great charities, and our benevolent contributions. To any one who asks us to day, what does Freemasonry do of good in the world, pointing to our charities we can say "Si queris circumspice."

Why, Sir, in 1856, at the Anniversary Festival of the Girls, our most distinguished brother, then Lord Panmure, now the Earl of Dalhousie, lauded in glowing words the magnificent contributions to the Girls' School of £1500. The whole returns for the charities that year amount to £4,500. This year the subscriptions and donations of our ever ready and sympathetic brotherhood exceed £21,000, an amount not only large in itself, but, testifying in a most striking way, to the zeal and liberality of our order, which, instead of slackening or decreasing, seems only to be augmented year by year. And when, Sir, I call to mind our Grand Lodge, and Provincial Grand Lodge and private lodge grants to suffering or indigent brethren, when I number up our many local Masonic charitable efforts, I say, that, any one who still professes to believe that Freemasonry is a mere idle form, a mere club of good fellows, or a selfish convivial assembly, must be insensible to any evidence you can offer to his mental capacity, must be, in truth, as big an idiot as exists on God's glorious earth. And so let us leave all idle cavils and frivolous objections to this practical proof of reality both of profession and of work. Let us disregard all impugnors and calumniators, let us quietly put by us all anathemas and interdicts, and let us go on our way, proud of our good old Craft, which has weathered so many angry squalls, and let us gladly welcome to-day another addition to her long list of effective lodges.

But before I close my oration (if I have not wearied my brethren), I must add two words of caution, which seem to me very appropriately to come in at the opening of a new lodge; the first is, as to the admission of new members. We are suffering at this moment, in our Order, in our great material prosperity, from a "plethora" of candidates for admission. With a new lodge there comes in always a temptation to a new Master, and its first Master, at the expiration of his year of office, to point exultingly to a long list of recently admitted members. Now I feel sure, that my worthy Bro. Samuel Poynter will pardon me for saying, that, after an experience of 32 years as a Freemason, I earnestly recommend him to adopt for his motto, in this respect at any rate, "Festina lente." There is a popular view, I am aware, amongst us, that, as Freemasonry is a public institution we have no right to refuse any who come with fair credentials and a proof of social respectability.

Now, I venture to assert to-day, that, this, Worshipful Sir, is a great fallacy. Our lodge is a brotherhood, a family, and we have no right to admit into our lodges, those whom we cannot, or will not introduce to our own families, whom we do not believe to be morally "good men and true," whom we do not think likely to rise in the lodge, or to do credit to Freemasonry. I would, therefore, earnestly urge upon the members of this lodge carefully to scan the pretensions of all who seek to be enrolled amidst the honourable ranks of our ancient and useful sodality.

And one other caution. We live in an age of much restlessness externally, many questions, more doubts. Under our Most Excellent Grand Master, and under our active and efficient Masonic administration, our great fraternity is moving on peacefully, prosperously, and well contented. But those who, like myself, see and hear a good deal of Masonic opinion, we know well, that, there is in some a hankering after novelties and changes, an "unsettlement," so to say, of ideas and aims, as regards what, at any rate since 1813, has tended wonderfully to preserve the peace and promote the progress of Freemasonry in this country.

Therefore I say, and especially to the officers and brethren of this new lodge, "keep by the ancient landmarks." Let nothing tempt you, on any pretence, or in any degree, to part with them or depart from them. They were laid down by good and expert brethren in olden days; they have withstood the lapse of years, and the onward experience of time; they are commended to our affectionate loyalty as Craftsmen, and let us resolve to hand them on unchanged and unaltered, to those who shall come after us, in the lodge, and in Freemasonry.

And now, Worshipful Sir and brethren, I commend this good work, in which we have been engaged to-day, to the providential care of the Great Architect of the Universe. May all of success attend the Athenæum Lodge, and may it long remain a centre of light, and intellectual strength to this district, a source of unflinching happiness and edification to all its members, a credit to Freemasonry, an honour to God, and a benefit to mankind.

MASONS' MARKS.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I think it necessary to address you once more on the subject of Masons' Marks with reference to the letters of Bros. John Yarker junior, W. J. Hughan, and the brother signing himself "A Masonic Student," which appeared in the numbers of The Freemason of dates May 23rd and 30th, and June 5th and 13th. And with this I intend that the discussion which has been carried on in your columns, shall, in so far as I am concerned, be concluded. I have stated my opinion and given reasons for it, that a Mason's Mark ought to have an odd number of points, and that a mark with an even number of points is not allowable. I have been met by the assertion of an opposite opinion, but with no proof nor argument to shake my conviction, for I cannot acknowledge the authority of the brethren, who have attempted, as they think, to set me right, as in the least degree worthy to be set against that of the Ritual which I quoted, and which has been in use in Scotland for nearly 200 years, nor can I yield to that of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, which in abolishing the rule that required an odd number of points, proceeded I believe, on a wholly mistaken view of the facts concerning the marks on the stones of old buildings, and also, as I will presently proceed to show, without right to make the change it did.

Whilst the letters of Bros. Yarker and Hughan contain nothing but what is gentlemanly and brotherly, I am sorry that I cannot say the same of those which have been written by "A Masonic Student" since he began to take part in this discussion, and his abusiveness has seemingly reached its climax in that published on May 23rd, (Freemason pp. 311, 312,) in which he uses language with regard to me, such as in all my connection with the press, I have never seen put in type before, and such as would certainly not be permitted to appear in any ordinary newspaper. I cordially agree with Bro. Hughan that it would be well if the Editor expunged all references of an offensive, or personal or abusive style from the communications sent for insertion in The Freemason. It would be more to the credit of the brotherhood, and more pleasant, I believe, to readers in general. From his last letter, published on June 6th "A Masonic Student" seems himself to have become aware that he has gone a little too far, and he makes a kind of half apology for his intemperate expressions, which, however, is not worth much, for he at the same time justifies himself, by saying that he does not see the use in free and open discussion, of being "mealy-mouthed," and that he thinks it always better to speak and to write as "Downright Dunstable." There is no excuse, however, that I know of, for downright Billingsgate. The cause which excited a Masonic Student's choler in the first instance was, as he now tells us, no offensive language of mine, but merely the opinion which I had ventured to express. He says—"We have suffered so much from unsound dogmatic and fallacious theories, that I confess, in 1874, to be gravely told that the double triangle is not a Masonic Mark, and that all marks must have odd points, was too much for my patience and stomach." If a man is to get angry, whenever an opinion is advanced that is contrary to his own, there is not likely to be much good done by any discussion in which he takes part, nor is the cause of Masonic truth likely to be much promoted. But I pass from this disagreeable subject, and hope I shall not be betrayed into any expressions in what I have further to say, that can reasonably be deemed offensive by "A Masonic Student" or by any other brother. He must try to keep his temper, however, and bear with me as patiently as he can, whilst I repeat that the Double Triangle is not a Masons' Mark, and that all Masons' Marks ought to have an odd number of points, and even when I add that he has mistaken the very subject of the discussion into which he so eagerly rushed. He seems to have fancied and still to fancy that it relates to operative Masonry, whereas my statement, as made at first, had reference to speculative Masonry alone, and all that has been said about Operative Masonry in course of the discussion has been merely because the subject of operative Masonry has been dragged into it by himself and others.

I utterly fail to follow Bro. Yarker, junr., in his arguments, when he says, "I can show either 'Masonic Student,' or Bro. Hughan, a Mark ritual furnished to me by the Grand Mark Lodge of England, upon which to start the first lodge founded here under their jurisdiction, which makes the odd points compulsory, but to my mind this is the very strongest argument in favour of these writers against Bro. Paton, since it shows the ritual to be a modern concoction, opposed as it is, to the facts of operative marks." It appears to me that Bro. Yarker falls into confusion here, and that apart from his notion as to the meaning of "the facts of operative marks," the fact that the ritual sent to him by the Grand Mark Lodge did contain the rule that marks should have an odd number of points ought to be regarded as strongly in favour of the opinion that such is the true rule of Freemasonry. How it can be regarded as tending to show that the ritual is a modern concoction, I am unable to perceive. Might it not have occurred to Bro. Yarker, that be it framed when it might, "the facts of operative marks," were in all probability fully present to the minds of those who framed it, and that they had taken a different view of the meaning of these facts, and of the evidence afforded by them, from that which he has taken, and which was taken by the Grand Mark Lodge of England, when, on 14th December, 1864, it abrogated this rule, and allowed the selection of marks with an even number of points? The original ritual of the majority of Mark Lodges in England, was sent to the first of them that were founded, by the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, from which they received their charters, and the regulation which it contained as to marks was no recent concoction, but has been included in the ritual used in Scotland, for, as I have said, nearly 200 years. And how was the Grand Mark Lodge of England entitled to abrogate this regulation? It was itself founded by the majority of lodges, which had received their ritual with their charters, and nothing could be more unmasonic than to make such a change in the ritual without consulting the parent body. It might have been expected that in such a matter, the Grand Mark Lodge of England should not have proceeded hastily, and without consulting the highest Masonic authorities. But it appears from Bro. Hughan's account of what took place, (Freemason p. 328), that the Grand Mark Lodge, a body of very recent origin, proceeded in the most summary manner, on the ground that "an examination of the ruins of ancient buildings, on the stones of which the marks of the artificers were found, proved that no such regulation as that enforced under this rule existed." That is, as I apprehend, the Grand Mark Lodge mistook the meaning of the evidence which these old stones afforded, and hastily swept away a regulation which had been in force from time immemorial amongst the Freemasons of all countries.

I have no wish to say anything disrespectful of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, but when its authority is appealed to in such a matter as the present, I am compelled to call to mind its very recent origin, and that it has never been in any way recognised as yet by the Grand Lodge of England, nor by the Grand Lodge of Scotland, nor by the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, from which last nearly all the lodges that united to found it, had received their charters.

Let us now consider what consequences must ensue from the innovation which the Grand Mark Lodge of England has made. Masons' Marks are of use that brethren may recognise one another, and a change of the rule regarding them is calculated to produce confusion. As well might pass-words and signs be changed. Every Mason must have his own mark, and he cannot change it. The rule of having an odd number of points, aids a Mason in deciding whether a stranger who comes to him, asking brotherly kindness, is a true Masonic brother or not. The Mark Grand Lodge of England has done all in its power to deprive us of one mode of detecting an impostor, which a man asked to show his mark, and showing one with an even number of points, would properly be held to be; unless indeed, now, an exception would have to be made in the case of one professing to have been initiated since 1864, in one of the Mark Lodges of England. But supposing anyone so initiated, and having adopted a mark with an even number of points, to become resident in Scotland, and to be affiliated to a Scottish Constitution Lodge, in any part of the world out of England, he would need to take a new mark with an odd number of points, and thus have two marks, one for England and another for Scottish Constitution.

I have no need to look again into any Masonic work for proof that marks with an even number of points are to be found on the stones of old buildings. I am as perfectly aware of this fact as any of my opponents in the present discussion, even "A Masonic Student" himself. But I know the explanation of it too, which is more than he seems yet to have found out. At some future time, I may perhaps give it, but meanwhile I would only ask him, or any other brother who thinks this subject worthy of attention, if he has ever observed a mark with an odd number of points and one with an even number appearing together on the same stone; and further, if he ever saw a mark of the latter description without one of the former nearly alongside of it.

"A Masonic Student" has never yet said if he is a Mark Mason, or what lodge he belongs to. I am still inclined to doubt if he is a Mark Mason at all. With this, however, I have nothing to do, except as bearing on his capacity for forming an opinion on the subject on which he has written so confidently, and with so much passion. I cannot help saying that I am somewhat amused by the way in which Bro. Hughan and he certify for one another. I doubt, however, if this will give much additional value to the opinion of either. To the authority of both I prefer that of the late Bro. Dr. Oliver, to whom "A Masonic Student" expresses surprise that I have referred in this discussion. But I know no author whose opinions on Masonic questions are entitled to greater respect, and his opinion that Masons' Marks ought to have an odd number of points, is clearly enough expressed in his works. I have heard him also express it in conversation, having had the happiness of being acquainted with him, and having enjoyed many a long conversation with him on Masonic subjects.

A single sentence in reply to Bro. Kelly. Although a number of irregularities may have crept into some of the Mark Lodges in England such as adopting a bell for a Masons' mark, this is no rule to set aside an established law and custom. Many Freemasons have tried to introduce their coat of arms for their mark, but it has been refused to be allowed by many Mark Lodges in Great Britain.

And now, for the present, I take leave of the subject of Masons' Marks.

I am, yours fraternally,

CHALMERS I. PATON.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read Bro. Kelly's clear and instructive letter with very great pleasure. It is very seldom that we have the opportunity of perusing so thoroughly satisfactory a statement as regards a point of controversy. I am inclined to think that the question is settled for the present, as our good Bro. Paton must see that the consensus of nearly all our Masonic writers is against his peculiar views. I don't myself profess to realize what more can be said pro or con, but it is satisfactory to have arrived at this agreement, that whatever partial or temporary law there may have been of Speculative Mark Masonry, there is no such law affecting operative marks as Bro. Paton proposed to be down.

Being a Mark Mason myself, having received my Mark from a very old Mark Lodge in Yorkshire, I certainly never heard of any such rule in English Speculative Masonry, and the marks of the Scotch lodges are fatal to the theory. But I will not pursue the subject. Will Bro. Kelly send me his history of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Leicestershire, and I will send him a little Masonic brochure of mine.

I am, yours fraternally,
A MASONIC STUDENT.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of The Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I observe in last week's issue of The Freemason Bro. Sutcliffe's letter respecting the non-appearance in that paper of the subscription list handed in at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and I quite agree with him in reference thereto, that it would be interesting to see whence the money comes and to know who have taken an interest in that excellent institution and deserving charity. Anxiously awaiting the publication of the several Stewards' lists.

I am, yours fraternally,
HARRY W. J. MOXON.

NATIONAL GRAND PRIORY.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having hoped for weeks past that some more efficient writer would bring to the notice of your readers the last tyrannical act of the leaders in the National Grand Priory of the Masonic Order of Knight Templars, I find myself constrained to ask, whether our Templar brethren throughout England and Wales are aware, that at the last meeting of the National Grand Priory, the appointment of its Grand Officers was made for life, "ad vitam," moyennant regular attendance, the consequence of which measure being that neither metropolitan nor provincial knights have any change of Grand Priory rank.

Under these circumstances, if I may be permitted to give a word of advice, I should say to all the preceptors that it is advisable to become dormant, until the Masonic, religious and moral tone be restored to our chivalric degree.

Yours fraternally,
A PAST PRECEPTOR.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR AND RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

To the Editor of the Freemason

Dear Sir and Brother,—

While thanking "Enquirer" for the good opinion he has been pleased to express regarding myself, I think he has missed the pith of my former letter (p. 323). I did not object to his making enquiries through the pages of The Freemason; those enquiries I replied to, but I did object to his charges made against the Knights Templar of Edinburgh, and asked for proof that they had acted as he has stated. That is the sole ground of my dispute with him, I admitted that there might be a little jealousy, quite unfounded, but it may arise from the cause he now states as the result of his further enquiries. I frankly confess that I was not aware that the Priory of the Lothian claimed the right to work the Red Cross of Constantine, I knew that some priories as well as some Royal Arch Chapters in Scotland do work another Red Cross Degree, of which I am also a member. But with the exception of the name it has nothing in common with the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine. I am glad to hear that there is a probability of this difficulty being arranged between our Edinburgh friends.

I am sorry, if by using the word "credulity," I have wounded the sensitiveness of "Enquirer," but I know from experience when there is a divergence of opinion amongst the brethren how difficult it is to get a dispassionate statement of facts.

I hope in this and all future controversies we bear in mind the Red Cross charges of which "Enquirer" has so kindly reminded me.

I am, yours fraternally,
G. W. WHEELER.

FREEMASONRY IN PRUSSIA.

W. H. D., writing from abroad to Bro. J. K. Larke, Masonic Editor of the New York Courier, furnishes the following interesting items concerning the present condition of Masonry in Prussia:

"I was stopping some weeks since in Creffield, a manufacturing town of Rhenish Prussia, a place about an hour's ride from Cologne, and a little more from Dusseldorf. Business commanded my stay here for nearly two weeks, during which time it was my pleasure, when at table in the Hotel Wildemann, to be seated with an accomplished gentleman, of English birth, and a member of the Lodge of Creffield, named Henry F. Greene, Esq., of the house of Klemme & Co., manufacturers there. By him I was introduced to many of the brethren, whom we met at his club, and was conducted to his lodge room on their night of meeting. The building is owned by the fraternity, with the tastefully decorated grounds surrounding. On the entrance floor are the reception rooms, with all the conveniences necessary for the brethren; hat racks, mirrors, tables, &c., with their own servants and attendants. Here some of the brethren repair, before the opening of the Lodge, and partake of the choicest cuisine. In their banquet hall, were some venerable pictures (Masonic subjects) with historical reminiscences. They were lost to them for some years in the war with the first Napoleon, by whose command the Lodge was closed, because of the loyalty of the membership to its own king and country—as characterizes the Craft everywhere throughout the world. The Germans are truly loyal to their duly constituted government—their great Emperor, and Grand Master of the Craft in his dominions. On the next floor are rooms for the various degrees, separate rooms for each. I was present at the opening in the first degree, and was not a little surprised to find myself requested to equip in hat and sword, as were all the brethren present. My rank in the Craft (Past Master) being known, I was furnished with the appropriate jewel. After the ceremonies incident to opening of the Lodge, the Master, Worshipful Bro. Hermendahl, tendered a cordial welcome to the visiting brethren present, and, alluding to the presence of an American Brother, addressed himself in faultless English, expressing, as do Germans everywhere, the greatest regard for our country and people. On behalf of America, whose poor representative I found myself on the occasion, I made my acknowledgments, informing them that my lodge was largely composed of their countrymen, and that it was an element in the composition of our Lodges as highly appreciated as was their highly swelling numbers, by emigration, in our body politic. Their work was transacted with great dignity and decorum. The officers and members were all men of high social standing in the place, which shows what care they exercise in guarding the ballot box. After the closing of the lodge, I was invited to participate with them at the festive board, and enjoyed myself with great satisfaction. Here the Master called on the brethren to discuss some matters which were furnished from a printed programme at intervals snatched from the enjoyment of their choice Moselle and Rhenish wines.

"Previous to my visiting the Lodge at Creffield, by invitation of Brother Gustave Gebhard, Esq., of Gebhard & Co., Elberfeld, I visited his Lodge, in that city, where I was also very cordially welcomed. The Master's speech was translated to me by Brother Gebhard, who, doubtless, replied for me in much improved language to any I could muster—the Brother being a highly accomplished linguist, as well as an eminent manufacturer. He is also consul of the Persian Empire, director in various monetary institutions, one of the dignitaries of the city government of Elberfeld, and for some years a resident of this city.

"After the closing of the Lodge, the brethren repaired to their elegantly appointed club room, where some few hours were passed in social enjoyment; and, with a most fraternal "bon voyage" to the writer, who, on the morrow, was to set out for other parts of the European Continent."

MASONIC NEWS FROM AMERICA:

We take the following interesting excerpts from our respectable contemporary the Philadelphia Keystone, in the belief that they will be acceptable to our many readers.

DESCRIPTION OF NEW YORK MASONIC TEMPLE.

The new Masonic Temple in New York city (says the N. Y. Courier) is 140 feet long on Twenty-third street, nearly 100 feet on Sixth avenue, and to the top of the shield is 163 feet in height from the street level. On the second floor are the Grand Secretary's offices, consisting of a suite of three rooms, with that of the Grand Master adjoining. Opposite to these is the Grand Lodge room, 94 feet by 90, and 28 feet high. This is not yet completed. A broad staircase, in the Ionic style, leads from the Twenty-third-street entrance to this floor, and another broad staircase to the third floor, on which are located the Tuscan, Doric, and Ionic rooms; all constructed in the styles after which they are named. The first and last are 62 x 27 x 21 feet, and the Doric, 62 x 30 x 21 feet. The description of one answers for all, except in the colour of the carpet and style of architecture. The altar and lesser lights are fixtures, and are suitable to the style of architecture. The steps leading to the stations are covered with velvet, and the floors with rich Wilton carpets. The organ is located in a gallery above the West, where, on extraordinary occasions, a powerful choir can be placed. In the East are columns supporting a portico, representing the entrance to a Temple and forming a recess. Each Lodge room is supplied with suitable ante-rooms, hat and coat room, with facilities for performing the toilet, property rooms, &c. On this floor will be located the Grand Lodge Library, separated from the Lodge rooms by a hall in the Corinthian style, with the flooring after the pattern of the ground floor of King Solomon's Temple.

On the fourth floor are located the Corinthian and Composite rooms, 62 x 27 x 21 feet, fitted up in similar styles as the rooms on the third floor, only as the architecture is more beautiful, fittings are made to correspond. Between these two rooms are the Chapter room, constructed after the Egyptian style of architecture, and representing the inside of an Egyptian Temple. The capitals of the columns in this, as in all the other rooms, stand out in bold relief, and, although the room is 62 feet 6, by 30 feet, and 21 feet high, the massive caps and columns make it appear much smaller. The peculiar appliances of the R. A. D. are to be located in an adjoining room, and are well arranged. Being fixtures, the companions are saved a great amount of labour. The carpet of the main floor is scarlet, with emblematical devices, and the Council carpet is of scarlet velvet. The Grand Council is located at the entrance or within the portico of the Inner Temple. The grandeur of this room can be better appreciated by an inspection, and when completed, during the summer recess, will present a fine effect. On this floor is located the handsome parlour of the Temple.

On the fifth floor are the Commandery rooms, the Asylum of which is to be in the Gothic style, but it is yet incomplete. The entrance to the Asylum is through the Sentinel's room, which is formed like a tent, and presents that appearance. The banquet hall, on the north side, is after the Norman style, and is 54 x 27 x 21 feet. The Council Chamber is after the Persian style, and is elegantly fitted up. The Chamber of R—and the Transparency Room are suitably arranged, and in the dome are located three armories, with accommodation for over 700 Knights, and with a private staircase leading thereto. By means of an elevator, this floor, as well as all the others, can be reached without labour or difficulty.

MASONIC PILGRIMAGE TO JERUSALEM.

Bro. Rob Morris, LL.D., Past Gr. Master of Kentucky, and the present Worshipful Master of Royal Solomon Lodge, No. 293, of Jerusalem, the only Masonic Lodge in Palestine, is now organizing a Masonic party to be composed of Master Masons, limited in number. He will leave New York by one of the first class lines, on September 26th next, and will visit Liverpool, London, Paris, Turin, Milan, Venice, Trieste, Alexandria, Cairo, the Pyramids, Suez, Hebron, the Pools of Solomon and Jerusalem, and from thence to the Dead Sea, the Jordan, the Sea of Galilee, Nazareth, Mount Hermon, Damascus, Baalbec, the Cedars of Lebanon, and all points of Masonic interest through the Holy Land, opening his Lodge in many of these appointed places; returning from Beyrout in Syria, the party will go to Smyrna, Ephesus, Constantinople, Athens, Corfu, Brindisi, Naples, Pompei, Vesuvius, Sorrento, Rome, Florence, Bologna, Mt. Cenis, Geneva, Berne, Bale, Paris, London, York, Edinburgh, Ayr, Glasgow, Belfast, Dublin, Liverpool, paying official Masonic visits to the Lodges and Grand Lodge at all these points.

Bro. Morris has a number of the brethren already enrolled, and has made a contract with Cook, Son & Jenkins, of New York and London, the great excursion managers, in which they agree to conduct this party from New York over the entire route back to New York, to provide the best hotels and first class travelling arrangements for a period of one hundred and forty two days, by sea and land, by rail and steamer, in carriage and on horseback, and in tents, providing guides, camp equipage, omnibuses, porters, backsheeh, and servants—in a word, paying all expenses necessary for the tour, from the date of departure from New York until the return to New York, for the sum of eleven hundred dollars.

It will be remembered that this is the firm that so successfully managed the Pilgrimage of Alleghany Commandery, Knights Templar, to Europe, three years ago, which was pleasantly commemorated in St. John's Commandery at its last meeting, where we had the pleasure of again greeting Bro. E. M. Jenkins, one of the Pilgrims, in person.

We may remark, here, that upon that occasion Bro. Jenkins took upon himself the conduct of the Pilgrims, prepared for them a printed volume containing a complete description of the tour, in advance, with every place of note to be visited, and what were the prominent points to be seen.

He manifested such ability as an excursion manager throughout the Pilgrimage, that Messrs. Cook & Son resolved to utilize his services on this side of the Atlantic, and he became, as a result, and is now, a member of their firm, stationed at New York.

STAFFORDSHIRE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

The seventh half-yearly meeting of this association was held at Hawkstone, on Tuesday, 9th inst.

Twenty-one new members were enrolled, bringing the present number of subscribing members to 154, of whom seven have entered their names for double subscriptions.

The Treasurer's statement showed funds in hand sufficient for twenty-one life subscriptions to the charities, which were balloted for accordingly. The winter meeting was appointed to be held at Lichfield on the first Tuesday in December.

Thirty-one members and ladies dined after the meeting, under the presidency of W. Bro. Marsh, P.P.S.G.W., Vice-President of the Association. W. Bro. Binckes, P.G.S. (who was present as a visitor), Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, proposed "Success to the Association," and congratulated the members upon its excellent basis, and the success which had already attended their efforts, assuring them that he saw in it the elements of a further steady growth and a more influential organization for good than they were perhaps aware of. He urged the co-operation of ladies, not as visitors only, but as members.

The Secretary in replying to the toast, called special attention to the Local Education Fund recently added, and announced that the present drawing would make a total of upwards of £400 contributed to the three great charities through the instrumentality of the Association during its short existence.

The healths of "The Committee," and "The Ladies," were then drunk, and the brethren separated, all having to drive some miles to the different railway stations, agreeing that the Hawkstone meeting had been one of the most enjoyable as well as one of the most successful meetings yet held. The weather was beautifully fine, and the visitors were charmed alike by the varied scenery of the park and the magnificent distant views.

BRO. SIR GEORGE ELLIOT, BART.

On Tuesday Sir George Elliot, Bart., was appointed Senior Grand Warden for the Masonic Province of Middlesex for the year 1874. Sir George Elliot owes this promotion to his zealous and varied efforts for the spread and development of Freemasonry in all its branches. The worthy baronet is at this time the Worshipful Master of a distinguished Middlesex lodge, to the chair of which he was re-elected on the termination of his first year of office in 1873. He is also First Principal of a Royal Arch Chapter, in which the Earl of Limerick is Second Principal; High Prelate of a Knight Templar Preceptory of which Bro. Staveley Hill, Q.C., is the Preceptor; M.W.S. of a Rose Croix Chapter; and he also holds high office in a conclave of the Red Cross of Constantine. Sir George is a Vice-Patron of the Freemasons' Boys' School, and a Vice-Patron of the Freemasons' Girls' School, and he has served the office of Steward for both institutions. By the promotion just conferred upon him, he will succeed Sir Gilbert Campbell, Bart., as Senior Grand Warden of the Metropolitan Province, and his investiture will take place at the Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex, to be held at Enfield, in that county, on the 4th July next, and at which many of the leading Masons in England have expressed their intention of being present.—South Durham Herald.

Obituary.

BRO. J. R. STEBBING.

With reference to the lamented decease of this distinguished brother, on Monday evening, 2nd inst., at his residence, Willbrook, near Southampton, we are enabled to add the following outline.

He came to Southampton from Portsmouth, about forty years ago, and in conjunction with his brother established a business there as an optician, and nautical instrument maker. With an aptitude for business, and great mechanical ingenuity, he combined a highly scientific intelligence, for so far back as 1833 he was a frequent lecturer on subjects connected with scientific investigation, at the Southampton Literary and Philosophical Institution. His powers of eloquence and business habits soon brought him into notice, and led to his taking part in the business of the Borough. In 1838 he entered the Town Council, and in 1840 was appointed sheriff of the town, subsequently chosen an alderman; but it was not till 1867 that, having been frequently urged to accept the Chief Magistracy, he yielded to the solicitation of his friends, and was unanimously elected Mayor, the somewhat onerous duties of which office during an eventful year, he discharged to the entire satisfaction of his constituents. He had been appointed a Justice of the Peace by the Lord Chancellor some years previously. He took an active part in establishing the Chamber of Commerce, at Southampton, in 1851, and was chosen President of it, a member of the Pier and Harbour Commission, a director of the Hampshire Banking Company, and of the Southants Permanent Building Society. There was no subject involving the interests of the inhabitants of Southampton in which he did not take a prominent part. For many years he was President of the Polytechnic Institution, the members of which will long remember his kindly counsel and advice. (Here he frequently delivered lectures.

The original scheme for establishing the Hartly Institute, it is understood, was drawn up by Bro. J. R. Stebbing, and approved by the Court of Chancery, with but slight alteration. He was an earnest supporter of friendly and beneficial societies, and a member of several of them. The volunteer movement was warmly promoted by him, and when a few years ago, he took up his residence at Millbrook, he took a lively interest in parochial affairs, and was mainly instrumental in securing the erection of a new church for that district, and he materially aided its construction. He was not however, permitted to witness its completion, for on Whit Tuesday, this handsome building was consecrated by the Bishop of Winchester, and our Bro. Stebbing was suffering from the illness which carried him off. In a word he possessed all the sterling qualities of an Englishman, unwavering integrity, bold manly independence, fervent eloquence, kind hearted and genial indisposition; every one acquainted with him was his friend. At present we have to dwell upon his Masonic career. He was P.M. of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, 130 of the Twelve Brothers No. 785; of the Peace and Harmony 359, at Southampton, of the Economy Lodge, Winchester, 76; of the St. Hubert at Andover, 1373; of the New Forest at Lymington, 319; and also of a lodge at Portsmouth. In 1836, he was Grand Steward of his province (Hampshire), in 1842, Provincial Grand Secretary, in 1849, Provincial Grand Warden, in 1870, on the resignation of the late Bro. C. E. Deacon, the M.W. Prov. Grand Master appointed him Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. In 1860, elected by Grand Lodge a member of the Board of General Purposes, and subsequently the Vice President, during the past 20 years, a constant attendant at Quarterly Communications. His frequent speeches were always listened to with pleasure, his clear, emphatic, ready, voice being raised in support of the extension of Masonic privilege, and in defence of what he deemed justice and fair play. When Grand Lodge determined in 1862 to erect suitable buildings for a Freemasons' Hall, and emancipate the Craft from being a mere appendage to a tavern, our Bro. Stebbing was elected by Grand Lodge a member of the committee of seven brethren, under the able presidency of Bro. John Havers, to conduct the building operations, and all the Craft know how zealous and indefatigable were the exertions of that distinguished Heptarchy, and the successful results of their labours in what we may call operative Masonry. Their names cannot be too frequently kept before the brethren, they were Bros. John Havers, J. Llewellyn Evans John Herbert, Job A. Savage, J. Rankin Stebbing, George Plucknett, and Henry Grissell. When the erection of Freemasons' Hall was completed and consecrated, Bro. Stebbing received the reward of his labours by being called to the dais as Senior Grand Warden of England and on the grand staircase of the hall a medallion portrait of the handsome face of our deceased brother, by the distinguished sculptor, Bro. Durham, perpetuates his likeness, and record his services. That tablet erected as a testimonial to the Building Committee is now, alas become for Bro. Stebbing, also a funeral monument. In Royal Arch Masonry he succeeded Bro. Deacon, in 1872, as Second Principal of the Provincial Grand Chapter, having from 1846 to 1865 officiated as Scribe E. He was Grand Treasurer of the Mark Degree, and First Master of St. Andrew's Mark Lodge, as well as of the Solent Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners; of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, he was Past Sovereign of the Rose Croix. The Peace and Harmony Lodge presented his portrait to the Masonic Hall, Southampton. He was also Chairman of the Masonic Assurance Society. Such is a brief outline of the busy and useful life of our departed brother.

On Wednesday the foundation stone of a new chancel to All Saints Church was laid with full Masonic rites. The brethren of the local lodge, with a number from those of Hampshire and the surrounding counties, met in the Clauence Schoolroom, and the ceremony was performed by the R.W. Prov. G.M. of Hampshire and Isle of Wight, Bro. W. W. B. B. M.P.

HISTORY OF CLEVELAND AND ITS VICINAGE.

being an Historical, Topographical, and Statistical Account of the past and present state of each Parish, Township, and Hamlet within the Wapentake of Lamburgh, and the Boroughs of Whitby and Stockton-on-Tees; the Soil, Produce, Manufactures, Antiquities, Natural Curiosities, and Benefit Societies; with copious Pedigrees of the principal Families. Memoirs of Memorable Men, careful Chronicles of the most Remarkable Events, Notices of the Manners and Customs, Sports and Pastimes, Legends and Superstitions, and a Glossary of the North York Dialect.

BY BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDELL, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society; of the Societies of Antiquaries of Scotland and Newcastle-upon-Tyne; of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c.

To be completed in 32 Parts at 6d. each (or by Book-post 7d).

In addition to nearly all the fine Woodcuts given in Ori's History, the Work is illustrated by numerous other Engravings, executed specially for it; is neatly printed, with a new type, on good paper, and contains all the information to be derived from previous histories of the district, with a mass of other curious particulars relating both to the Past and to the Present, collected by the Author during the last thirty years. A chapter on the Geology of Cleveland has been kindly contributed by Professor Phillips, and the manuscript information collected by the late Mr. Justice Temple for his long-projected History of Cleveland (including some useful communications by the late learned Archdeacon Todd), has been obligingly placed at the Author's disposal.

Subscribers' names received by BROS. TWEDELL and SONS, Cleveland Printing and Publishing Offices, Stokesley.

 BANKERS.—The City of Glasgow Bank.

The sole object of the Society is to create and extend a taste for the Fine Arts amongst the community. The whole amount of subscriptions, after deducting the necessary working expenses, will be expended in meritorious Works of Art for Prizes and Presentation Plates, at the most rigid economy, consistent with efficiency, will be enforced and carried out as usual.
 2567 Choice Works of Art were issued between Prizes and Presentation Plates during last Twelve Months.

The following excellent Presentation Plates will be given this Season, besides the Chance for the Prizes:—

- To Subscribers of Five Shares—
 "THE VILLAGE FESTIVAL."
 After David Wilkie, R.A. Size 20 by 15.
- To Subscribers of Ten Shares—
 "TIRED OUT."
 Very Superior Oleograph Chromo. From of Mrs. Anderson's Celebrated Pictures.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC DINNER PILLS.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the Stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing Headache, Giddiness, &c., arising from a Costive Habit, Debilitated Stomach, or Torpid Liver. They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution can take them with safety.

QUINTESENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER and CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S Preparation of Ginger and Camomile has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most effective Stomachic Tonic, and the best remedy for Flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion, and is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical climates should be without it in one-eighth, quarter, and half-pint bottles.

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S ESSENCE, OR FLUID EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, preparied by the Faculty for Purifying the Blood, Debility, Liver Complaints, and freeing the system from effects of Mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to Tropical diseases.

"Superior preparations that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend you as the best."—Medical Review.

In Quarter, Half, and Pint Bottles. CAUTION.—Spurious and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that Bottle and Label have the name and Address, "T. Wilkinson, late Wilkinson, Bridge, and Co., No. 270 Regent-street, London."

CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR.

Opium, Narcotics, and Squills are too often invoked to give relief in Coughs, Colds, and all Pulmonary diseases. Instead of such fallacious remedies, which yield momentary relief at the expense of enfeebling the digestive organs, and thus increasing that debility which lies at the root of the malady, modern science points to CROSBY'S BALSAMIC COUGH ELIXIR as the true remedy.

SELECT TESTIMONIAL. Dr. Rooke, Scarborough, author of the "Anti-Lancet," says: "I have repeatedly observed how very rapidly and invariably it subdued cough, pain, and irritation of the chest in cases of Palmonary Consumption, and I can, with the greatest confidence, recommend it as a most valuable adjunct to an otherwise strengthening treatment for this disease."

This medicine, which is free from opium and squills, not only allays the local irritation, but improves digestion and strengthens the constitution. Hence it is used with the most signal success in Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Coughs, Influenza, Night Sweats of Consumption, Quinsy, and all affections of the throat and chest. Sold in bottles at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each, by all respectable Chemists, and wholesale by Jas. M. Crosby, Chemist, Scarborough.

* Invaluable should read Crosby's Prize Treatise on "Diseases of the Lungs and Air-Vessels;" a copy of which can be had Gratis of all Chemists.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

CLARKE'S WORLD FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.

TRADE MARK.—"BLOOD MIXTURE." THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER AND RESTORER. For cleansing and clearing the blood from all impurities, cannot be too highly recommended.

* For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin Diseases, and Sores of all kinds, it is a never-failing and permanent cure.

* It Cures old Sores. * Cures Ulcerated Sores on the Neck. * Cures Ulcerated Sore Legs. * Cures Blackheads or Pimples on the Face. * Cures Scabby Sores. * Cures Cancerous Ulcers. * Cures Blood and Skin Diseases. * Cures Glandular Swellings. * Clears the Blood from all Impure Matter.

From whatever cause arising. As this mixture is pleasant to the taste, and warranted free from anything injurious to the most delicate constitution of either sex the Proprietor solicits sufferers to give it a trial to test its value.

Thousands of Testimonials from all parts. Sold in Bottles 2s. 3d. each, and in Cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s.—sufficient to effect a permanent cure in the great majority of long-standing cases.—BY ALL CHEMISTS AND PATENT MEDICINE VENDORS throughout the United Kingdom and the world, or sent to any address on receipt of 27 or 12s stamps by the other visitors, who also responded, cordially seconded Bro. Holmes's remarks. Several of the brethren contributed to the harmony of the evening, the W.M. giving a capital topical song, about being truly thankful, which caused considerable amusement, and Bro. Pettitt, the oldest member of the lodge, rendering "The Flying Dutchman" in splendid style. A pleasant social hour or two was thus passed, and the brethren separated.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE.—(No. 1178).—On Thursday, June 11th, at the Gregorian Arms Tavern, 66, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, this lodge was held. Bro. J. H. Harmsworth, W.M., presided. There were present Bros. C. Deakin, J.W.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M. Treas.; F. Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; J. Ruse, S.D.; J. A. Smith, I.G.; J. W. Avery, P.M., W.S.; W. Batchelor, M.C.; G. J. Grace, P.M.; J. W. Dudley, P.M.; and others. Bro. F. Walters, P.M., took the chair, and did part of the raising of Bro. M. Mordecai, the ceremony being completed, by Bro. J. W. Dudley, P.M. One gentleman was proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed. Slight refreshment was served.

HAMPTON.—Lebanon Lodge (No. 1326).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at Red Lion Hotel, on Saturday, June 20th, Bro. W. Hammond, W.M., P.M. 201, presided. He raised Bro. Turnbull, initiated Messrs. Middleton Dench, Shackleton, and Stanhana. Elections were in favour of Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, as W.M.; S. Wilkins, P.M., Treas. (re-elected); J. Gilbert, Tyler, (re-elected). Notice of motion by the Secretary Bro. F. Walters, P.G. Steward Middlesex, P.M., that ten guineas be taken from lodge funds, and be given to Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Several candidates for initiation proposed. The lodge was then closed. Refreshment followed labour. There were present Bros. J. T. Moss, P. Prov. G.S.D. Middlesex, P.M.; R. Limpus, P.G. Org. Middlesex; J. W. Jackson, J.W.; E. Gilbert, S.D.; J. Hayward, J.D.; D. W. Fox, I.G.; J. Hammond, P.M.; J. C. Woodrow, P.M.; and a large number of members. Only one visitor was present. It was arranged that an emergency meeting should be held on Thursday, July 2nd.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 1356).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 17th inst., at the usual place, 140, North Hill-street, Toxteth-park and was numerously attended. Bro. T. Evans, W.M., presided, and the officers "on guard" were Bros. B. B. Marson, P.M.; S. E. Ibbis, P.M.; E. Rothwell, S.W.; J. Ireland, Treas.; Josh Jones, Sec.; R. Roberts, S.; C. Costigan, S.W.; G. Veale, Org.; P. M. Larsen, P.M. 594, acting as Tyler. The principal business was initiation and passing, and the splendid style in which the W.M. not only did the necessary work, but gave the historical lecture in the second degree—a masterly accomplishment—reflected the very highest credit upon him, and well warranted the special vote of thanks passed to him and ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The election of W.M. was afterwards proceeded with, when Bro. E. Rothwell, S.W., was unanimously chosen to fill that distinguished and honourable post. Bro. G. Ireland was re-elected Treasurer, and after the transaction of some other business, the lodge was closed in peace and harmony.

HAMPTON COURT.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday, June 13th, at the King's Arms Hotel. Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, W.M., opened the lodge, supported by Bros. J. Baxter Langley, J.W.; J. Sabine, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.G. Steward, Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; J. S. Swaese, S.D.; S. Wolff, J.D.; E. W. Devereux, I.G.; B. Wright, W.S.; W. A. Simmons, C.S.; J. T. Moss, P.P.G.S.D. Middlesex, P.M.; and others. Visitors, Bros. Webster, James, Elsdon, and others. Mr. Pearson was initiated; the Secretary, Bro. F. Walters, passed Bros. James and Elsdon, and raised Bro. J. Johnson. It was resolved nem. con. to remove the lodge. The lodge was closed, and refreshment followed labour.

ATHENÆUM LODGE (No. 1491).—The first meeting for actual business of this young and promising scion of the Craft was held in its handsome lodge room in the Camden Road, N, on the 17th inst. The W.M., Bro. Samuel Poynter, P.M. and Treas., occupied the chair, and was well supported by his talented officers, every one of whom was present, Bro. Chancellor, P.M. 463 and 657, kindly consenting to perform the duties of the post of Immediate Past Master for the evening. The lodge having been opened, as the meeting was one of emergency there were no minutes to read and confirm, and the Master at once proceeded to the business of the evening, which was to initiate into our mysteries five very promising candidates, and in due form the light was unveiled to Messrs. Heaton, Waterlow, Swainson, Weiss, and Hamer, and the usual addresses made to them by the W.M. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to simple refreshment, served in the same building, for the members are their own caterers. Here after the usual display of Masonic loyalty to our political and our Craft rulers, the W.M., who presided, proposed "The Health of the Initiates," and expressed the profound respect he ever entertained towards those who, just admitted to the Craft, were confused and dazzled by what they had learnt and beheld, might one day perhaps be eminent teachers of the mysteries, and rule and govern where they now were learning to serve and obey. He (the W.M.) confessed that he always felt in the presence of the initiates like the old French schoolmaster, who every morning on entering the school took off his cap and bowed low to his pupils, and who when remonstrated with for this apparently extravagant act of humility, replied "Messieurs, I do not uncover to these little ragged urchins, but to the future marshals of France, among whom I have the honour now to teach." In the same way he (the W.M.) asked them to rise and drink to the future rulers and teachers of Masonry, whom they had had the distinguished honour to launch on their Masonic career that evening. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm, and each of the initiates returned thanks, expressing their sense of the value of the institution, and the beauty of the ceremony through which they had just passed. Bro. Brocklesby, the indefatigable Secretary, here ably obliged with "the Entered Apprentice's Song." "The Health of the Visitors" was responded to by our esteemed Bro. Albert Pendlebury, P.M. 1056, the well known cashier, at Freemasons' Hall. He eulogised the working of the lodge, as he had witnessed it that evening, and particularly felicitated the brethren on beginning their career with not only the profession, but the active practice of the Masonic virtue, hospitality. The Master, after doing the usual justice to his singularly able officers, brought the business of a very pleasant evening to a meet conclusion by himself (in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Grant, the Outer Guard of the lodge), giving the Tyler's toast. This being an emergency meeting, no propositions for joining members could be received, but we understand, that at the regular meeting of the lodge, on the 1st proximo, the applications of many brethren desirous of admission stand for consideration, and there is no doubt, that in that meeting also another "expectant five" will present themselves to learn from the W.M., "the word and the sign of a Free and Accepted Mason."

TEDDINGTON.—Felix Lodge (No. 1494).—The first regular meeting of this promising lodge was held at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, on Saturday, the 20th inst., the W.M., Bro. Edward B. Grabham, in the chair, supported by Bros. Major George Barlow, S.W.; F. Sumner Knivett, J.W.; D. Nicholson, P.M. 19, Treas.; Edward S. Norris, Sec.; F. B. Archer, S.D.; Robert Berridge, J.D.; W. G. Moore, I.G.; W. Paterson, and others. Visitors, Bros. Witham M. Bywater, P.M. and P.Z. 19; J. Watson, W.M. 1170; and E. J. Southwell, jun., 1293. The lodge was duly opened and the minutes confirmed; after some preliminary business the ballot was taken for Messrs. Thos. Archer, G. C. Cattlin, E. E. Whitford, and E. A. Woolley, as candidates for initiation, which proving unanimous in their favour, they were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Order by the W.M. Two brethren were next proposed as joining SWANSEA.—Indefatigable Lodge (No. 237).—Availing themselves of the kind permission of their R.W. Prov. Grand Master, T. M. Talbot, the members of the above lodge left Swansea, on Thursday, the 18th inst., for Margam Park, the seat of the Lord Lieutenant of the county. On their arrival at Port Talbot they were met by several brethren from the Aberavon, Aberdare, and Cardiff Lodges. Thus reinforced, the party proceeded in well appointed conveyances to the park, where they sat down to tiffin in the orangery. With the inner man thus fortified, the brethren, numbering about 80, strolled over the fine old abbey, and were specially delighted with the view of the rare pictures preserved in the splendid gallery. A few hours of the most delightful character were then spent in roaming about the magnificent grounds attached to the Abbey, many of the brethren doing their best to add to the pleasures of their annual picnic by organising various out-door amusements. At six p.m., a first-class dinner was provided by Miss Jones, Walnut Tree, at the New Town Hall, Aberavon. The cloth being removed, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, interspersed with some capital songs, kept the party in excellent humour until the arrival of a special train which whirled them back to their homes at 10.30.

IPSWICH.—Perfect Friendship Lodge (No. 376).—On the 17th inst., the usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Ipswich. There were present, Bros. Arthur Gamman, W.M.; N. Tracy, P.P.G. J.W., S.W.; J. Pettitt, P.P.G.S.G.; W. G. Scopes, J.W.; Daking, I.G.; G. S. Findley, P.P.G.D.C.; S. B. King, P.P.G.S.D.; W. T. Westrate, P.P.G.D.C.; There were present several visiting brethren, the whole of the lodges of the town being represented. Bro. Emra Holmes, P.G. Reg., representing the British Union Lodge. The lodge having been opened in the first degree, and passed to the second, Bro. Lewcock was examined as a candidate for the third degree, and entrusted, and the lodge being opened in that degree, he was prepared, admitted, obligated, and raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The ceremony was ably performed by the W.M. The routine business of the lodge having been disposed of, the brethren sat down to supper, and in due course the usual toast list was gone through, and Bro. Emra Holmes, in responding to the toast of "The Visitors," remarked upon the great pleasure it had given them to visit this respectable lodge. He believed it was the third time during the year that he had put in his appearance, and they had always treated him so kindly that he was very glad to come amongst them. He ventured to remark on the admirable manner in which the ceremonies had been performed that evening, and the lodge was to be congratulated on having such an efficient body of young officers, who would in due course succeed the W.M. in the chair. One or two of
